In action against state for damages sustained when plaintiff's automobile, while avoiding barricade protecting excavation located on curve in highway, struck defect in shoulder, evidence established that accident was caused by motorist's own negligence as to speed. Fogarty v State, 127 N.Y.S.2d 76, 205 Misc. 120, 1954 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1935 (N.Y. Ct. Cl. 1954).

The failure of owner of vehicle to give driver instructions to drive with extreme care and at a slow rate of speed was proof of contributory negligence on the part of the owner where there was 6–8 inches of heavy snow and visibility was only about 100 feet. Mosher v State, 124 N.Y.S.2d 223, 204 Misc. 580, 1953 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2139 (N.Y. Ct. Cl. 1953).

Court properly granted plaintiff's motion to set aside verdict finding that defendant was not negligent in operation of her vehicle where plaintiff presented evidence that defendant failed to slow her vehicle in response to "special hazard" of which she admittedly was aware, failed to sound her horn or give any warning of her intent to veer around recycling truck, and failed to keep proper lookout and to see what with proper use of her senses she could have seen, defendant's version of accident was that she left road at near "highway speed" and admittedly failed to see what was in her field of vision and there to be seen, and defendant admitted her awareness that workers were likely to be around truck, but that she proceeded at barely reduced speed in disregard of risk of hitting worker. Augustine v Dandrea, 274 A.D.2d 962, 710 N.Y.S.2d 748, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7647 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 2000).

Jury verdict in favor of defendant would be reversed, and plaintiff granted judgment as matter of law, where it was undisputed that defendant violated CLS Veh & Tr § 1126(a) by crossing over double yellow line, he claimed that he skidded over double yellow line because roadway was "very wet," "dark," and "very curvy," but he further acknowledged at trial that he was traveling at 25 miles per hour, 5 miles above posted speed limit, he also admitted to police officer responding to scene of accident that he crossed double yellow line because he was traveling "too fast," and he pleaded guilty to crossing double yellow line and paid fine. Haughey v Noone, 262 A.D.2d 284, 691 N.Y.S.2d 553, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5889 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't), app. dismissed, 94 N.Y.2d 858, 704 N.Y.S.2d 533, 725 N.E.2d 1095, 1999 N.Y. LEXIS 3998 (N.Y. 1999).

Emergency doctrine did not preclude triable issue of fact as to negligence of motorist who came over hill at 60 miles per hour and spun out on black ice when she braked to avoid rear-end collision with slower moving vehicle, resulting in chain-reaction pile-up of multiple vehicles behind motorist. Lester v Chmaj, 251 A.D.2d 1069, 674 N.Y.S.2d 222, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7172 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1998).

Emergency doctrine did not preclude triable issue of fact as to negligence of ninth motorist in chain-reaction pile-up, after first vehicle spun out on patch of black ice just over crest of hill, where ninth motorist admitted that he had encountered black ice on roadway earlier that morning, and jury could conclude that emergency was one that he should have anticipated and been prepared to meet. Lester v Chmaj, 251 A.D.2d 1069, 674 N.Y.S.2d 222, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7172 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1998).

Defendant motorists who followed plaintiff motorist into chain-reaction pile-up, after 10th vehicle ahead of plaintiff's spun out on patch of black ice just over crest of hill, were entitled to summary judgment where they were confronted with sudden and unanticipated emergency that was not of their own making. Lester v Chmaj, 251 A.D.2d 1069, 674 N.Y.S.2d 222, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7172 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1998).

In action for injuries sustained by plaintiff who was hit by car that skidded and went out of control on slippery highway in New York City, court improperly charged jury that it would constitute negligence if driver of car violated CLS Veh & Tr § 1180(e), which constrains drivers to proceed at appropriate reduced speeds in presence of special hazards, since § 1180(e) was superseded by City of New York Traffic Regulation § 60; violation of regulation, unlike violation of statute, merely constitutes "some evidence" of negligence. Fox v Lyte, 143 A.D.2d 390, 532 N.Y.S.2d 432, 1988 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9233 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1988).

In an action for damages arising out of a collision of a car driven by appellant, on a two-lane rural road on the day following a heavy snow storm and while there were eight-foot snow banks bordering the driveway from which respondent was backing out, it was reversible error for the trial court to charge the jury in terms of subd. 1 of former § 56 to the effect that appellant could be found negligent on the mere fact that he was unable to prevent his car from colliding with respondent's car, no matter what the circumstances. Armondi v Johnson, 16 A.D.2d 712, 226 N.Y.S.2d 714, 1962 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10318 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1962).

Whether actions of westbound motorist, in proceeding at 45–50 miles per hour toward busy intersection at a time when the pavement was wet and he was denied a full view of possible approaching traffic on intersecting street by the presence of vehicles in the exiting lanes, were unreasonable and concurrent cause of intersectional collision with northbound vehicle was question for the jury. Kinsfather v Grueneberg, 47 A.D.2d 789, 365 N.Y.S.2d 903, 1975 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9105 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1975).

Plaintiff, who in support of her motion for summary judgment in a negligence action against a common carrier and a driver, stated she was a passenger in a chartered bus that, on a snow-covered New York State Thruway, had suddenly left the extreme right hand lane and crossed over the other lanes before turning over in the center mall area, is entitled to summary judgment where she establishes a prima facie case so convincing that the inference of negligence arising therefrom is inescapable, if not rebutted, through the evidentiary value of her own affidavit, the submission of a certificate of conviction regarding defendant bus driver's plea of guilty to driving the bus at a speed greater than was reasonable and prudent under the snowy conditions (Vehicle and Traffic Law, § 1180, subd [a]) and the operability of the doctrine of Fres ipsa loquitur which is applicable because it was incumbent upon the carrier to come forward with a reasonable explanation for the occurrence since plaintiff was a passenger in the carrier and, in view of the fact that the bus overturned in the center mall area, it was necessary for the defendants to advance a satisfactory explanation for the incident. Horowitz v Kevah Konner, Inc., 67 A.D.2d 38, 414 N.Y.S.2d 540, 1979 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10073 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1979).

40. Speed at intersection

In personal injury action arising out of broadside striking of plaintiff's turning vehicle at intersection, failure of defendant to have reduced speed of his vehicle as he approached intersection did not constitute negligence per se, since CLS Veh & Tr § 1180(e), providing that motorist shall drive at "appropriate reduced speed" when approaching and crossing intersection, when read in conjunction with CLS Veh & Tr § 1180(a), which prohibits driving at greater speed than is "reasonable and prudent" under conditions," does not mandate that driver reduce speed at every intersection. Bagnato v Romano, 179 A.D.2d 713, 578 N.Y.S.2d 613, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 347 (N.Y. App. Div.

Defendant was properly granted directed verdict in action for injuries sustained when her eastbound vehicle collided with plaintiff's vehicle as plaintiff proceeded into intersection heading north after stopping at 2-way stop sign, since there was no condition shown that would have required defendant to reduce her speed as she approached intersection, there was no evidence that defendant had any opportunity to avoid collision, and defendant's uncontroverted testimony stated that she never saw plaintiff before accident and had no time to apply her brakes or to turn her steering wheel. Anastasio v Scheer, 239 A.D.2d 823, 658 N.Y.S.2d 467, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5552 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1997).

In automobile collision case involving 2 defendant drivers, with plaintiff apparently being passenger, jury's finding that appellant was 25 percent at fault and that other driver was 75 percent at fault was based on fair interpretation of evidence where jury properly could have inferred, from location of damage to 2 cars and point of impact, that appellant's car was traveling considerably faster than he claimed, and there was evidence that appellant failed to see other car until impact, at which time other car was already in intersection. Donahue v Smorto, 240 A.D.2d 464, 658 N.Y.S.2d 650, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6087 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1997).

Defendants, owner and operator of northbound vehicle which struck plaintiff's left-turning southbound vehicle in intersection, were improperly granted summary judgment given plaintiff's testimony suggesting that as defendant approached intersection she failed to keep proper lookout and to see that which was there to be seen, and fact issue existed as to whether defendant may have been traveling too fast for circumstances. Greco v Boyce, 262 A.D.2d 734, 691 N.Y.S.2d 599, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6491 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1999).

Jury properly found defendant motorist 30 percent at fault and plaintiff motorcyclist 70 percent at fault for intersectional collision in which motorcycle struck defendant's car on rear passenger side as defendant was about ¾ of way through process of turning left in front of motorcycle where defendant stopped her car and checked for oncoming traffic before entering intersection, sole vehicle within sight was large truck that blocked her view of motorcycle behind it, she turned after deciding that truck was safe distance away and traveling slowly, and plaintiff changed lanes and accelerated past truck on its right as he approached intersection. Teller v Anzano, 263 A.D.2d 647, 694 N.Y.S.2d 780, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7833 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1999).

Although defendant motorist was negligent in trying to turn left at intersection without yielding to plaintiff approaching motorist with right of way, plaintiff was not entitled to summary judgment dismissing defendant's counterclaim for comparative negligence where there were triable issues of fact as to whether plaintiff (1) was traveling too fast at 20 to 30 miles per hour in view of slippery road conditions and (2) should have reduced his speed when he saw defendant approaching intersection without appearing to slow down or look in plaintiff's direction. King v Washburn, 273 A.D.2d 725, 710 N.Y.S.2d 185, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7433 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2000).

In action for injuries sustained by plaintiff when southbound vehicle in which she was passenger collided with defendant's westbound vehicle at intersection controlled by 4-way signal which was flashing yellow for east/west traffic and flashing red for north/south traffic, defendant was not entitled to summary judgment on ground that sole proximate cause of accident was southbound vehicle's failure to stop at flashing red signal, where evidence submitted by plaintiff raised question of fact whether defendant failed to use reasonable care when proceeding into intersection. Doctor v Juliana, 277 A.D.2d 1013, 716 N.Y.S.2d 196, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11378 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 2000).

In personal injury action arising from 2-vehicle rear-end collision while plaintiff's car was stopped at intersection, plaintiff was entitled to summary judgment on issue of following driver's liability where following driver breached his duties to drive at safe speed and to maintain safe distance between 2 vehicles, always compensating for any known adverse road conditions. Ortega v City of New York, 281 A.D.2d 466, 721 N.Y.S.2d 790, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2353 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2001).

In personal injury action against city transit authority and others, jury could have fairly found that authority's bus driver did not violate Vehicle and Traffic Law, and thus court properly denied plaintiff's motion for order setting aside verdict for defendants and ordering new trial, where jury heard conflicting evidence as to speed at which plaintiff was traveling, lane in which he was traveling, his state of intoxication, distance that his motorcycle was from intersection when bus driver saw him, and bus driver's sight lines. Karoon v N.Y. City Transit Auth., 286 A.D.2d 648, 730 N.Y.S.2d 331, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8836 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2001).

An automobile operator's license may be suspended upon a determination of the Commissioner of Motor Vehicles after a hearing that the operator was unable to stop his motor vehicle at an intersection in time to avoid a collision with another motor vehicle. McNellis v Fletcher, 96 N.Y.S.2d 599, 197 Misc. 80, 1950 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1576 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1950).

An operator was properly convicted of a violation of sub 1 of former § 56 where it appeared that he drove an automobile at a rate of speed that endangered the lives of pedestrians crossing at a street intersection when, while blinded by the setting sun, he turned the corner at the rate of 15 to 18 miles per hour. People v Zurn, 127 N.Y.S.2d 178, 205 Misc. 35, 1954 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1939 (N.Y. County Ct. 1954).

Trial court properly granted summary judgment pursuant to N.Y. C.P.L.R. 3212 to a driver in an injured party's personal injury action arising from an automobile accident; the driver went through an intersection with a green light, and was entitled to anticipate that another defendant would yield, the injured party testified without contradiction, that the vehicle was traveling at 15 to 20 miles per hour at the time of the accident, having reduced speed as it approached the intersection, and such testimony refuted the injured party's otherwise baseless speculation that the driver failed to operate the vehicle at an appropriate reduced speed as she entered and crossed the intersection, N.Y. Veh. & Traf. Law § 1180(e), and further, the roads were clear and dry at the time of the accident, thereby belying the injured party's unsubstantiated assertion that the driver was operating the vehicle at speeds not reasonable and prudent for the conditions, N.Y. Veh. & Traf. Law § 1180(a). Rowe v Harrison, 303 A.D.2d 863, 758 N.Y.S.2d 693, 2003 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2487 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2003).

In applying New York law to a case arising out of an accident at an intersection in Germany, charge that each driver must "maintain a reasonable safe rate of speed" adequately reflected the applicable New York State law and brought the factor of appropriate speed to the attention of the jury. Loebig v Larucci, 572 F.2d 81, 1978 U.S. App. LEXIS 12278 (2d Cir. N.Y. 1978).

In applying New York law to a case arising out of an accident in Germany, New York courts would assume that the general negligence standard of care would be applicable but would be unlikely to add the statutory refinements to the standard of care requiring an apparent slight extra duty of care in approaching intersections. Loebig v Larucci, 572 F.2d 81, 1978 U.S. App. LEXIS 12278 (2d Cir. N.Y. 1978).

Reference to "an appropriate reduced speed" in CLS Vehicle and Traffic Law § 1180, subd e does not indicate the quantum of reduction or that reduction in speed is always necessary when entering an intersection. Loebig v Larucci, 572 F.2d 81, 1978 U.S. App. LEXIS 12278 (2d Cir. N.Y. 1978).

41. —Known intersection

Where westbound motorist was proceeding at 45–50 miles per hour, he knew there was a busy intersection ahead, he could observe that the pavement was wet and he was denied full view of possible approaching traffic on intersecting street by presence of vehicles in exiting lane, the motorist was not entitled to invoke the emergency doctrine with respect to northbound vehicles in the intersection. Kinsfather v Grueneberg, 47 A.D.2d 789, 365 N.Y.S.2d 903, 1975 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9105 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1975).

Plaintiff motorist was not entitled to summary judgment, even though defendant motorist appeared to have been negligent in attempting to turn left at "Y" intersection without yielding right of way, resulting in collision with plaintiff's approaching car, where plaintiff appeared to be to some degree at fault in causing accident, because (1) she was familiar with road and considered intersection dangerous, (2) although she was fully aware of 25-miles-per-hour speed limit sign, her speed was 35 to 40 when she entered intersection, (3) she could not recall where she was looking before accident, and (4) despite her clear and unobstructed view of intersection, she unaccountably saw defendant's car "less than a fraction of a second" before collision. Anderson v Miller, 263 A.D.2d 643, 692 N.Y.S.2d 816, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7857 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1999).

42. Emergency vehicles

Former § 56 subd. 1-a and relative portions of former §§ 58 and 67 do not relate to police vehicles, and it was prejudicial error for the trial court so to charge. Booth v Rochester, 258 A.D. 849, 15 N.Y.S.2d 945, 1939 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7226 (N.Y. App. Div. 1939).

Defendants, including city housing authority, were not entitled to summary judgment where patrol car driven by 2 housing police officers, responding to emergency radio run, collided with another vehicle, as result of which police car jumped curb and hit infant plaintiffs, where parties disputed whether (1) police car had both lights and siren on at time of impact, (2) driver of other vehicle cut in front of speeding police car, and (3) police car was traveling too fast in crowded commercial district. Foster v New York City Hous. Auth., 251 A.D.2d 42, 672 N.Y.S.2d 718, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6427 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1998).

Jury verdict for plaintiff motorist hit by another car being pursued by police car was not against weight of evidence, even though car being pursued had violated 2 traffic regulations, where pursuit was through residential area in dark during rush hour at speeds of 60 to 80 miles per hour in 25 to 30 speed zone, officer was aware of police procedures dictating that he slow down if automobile pursuit "gets out of hand," officer continued even though he had considered that someone might be killed, and there was conflicting evidence as to whether officer activated his siren and flashing lights. Fioriello v Sasson, 255 A.D.2d 549, 680 N.Y.S.2d 662, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12944 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1998), app. denied, 93 N.Y.2d 817, 697 N.Y.S.2d 564, 719 N.E.2d 925, 1999 N.Y. LEXIS 2920 (N.Y. 1999).

Police officer did not act in reckless disregard for safety of others, in violation of CLS Veh & Tr § 1104, where he received report of reckless driving, saw vehicle that matched description round corner with its tires squealing, and pursued vehicle briefly at speed not exceeding 40 miles per hour in effort to pull it over by activating first red patrol car lights and then white "wiggle-waggle" headlights, and motorist increased his speed as he approached curve and ultimately crashed into plaintiff's house. Martin v Miller, 255 A.D.2d 816, 680 N.Y.S.2d 300, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12927 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1998).

Standard of "reckless disregard for the safety of others," set forth in Saarinen v Kerr, 84 NY2d 494, to govern police officer's conduct in pursuing suspected law breaker, is not limited to high-speed pursuits. Martin v Miller, 255 A.D.2d 816, 680 N.Y.S.2d 300, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12927 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1998).

State trooper did not act recklessly in pursuing dirt bike that accelerated after driver ignored his gesture to pull over (for failure of driver and passenger to wear helmets), trooper's conduct was not proximate cause of accident in which driver lost control of bike, even though trooper's car came to rest on top of injured passenger, and thus state was not liable for passenger's injuries, where (1) passenger's own expert acknowledged that operation of bike was threat to public safety and that trooper, having perceived Vehicle and Traffic Law violation, had authority and duty to follow bike and remove it from highway, (2) although trooper exceeded 35 miles-per-hour speed limit during part of brief pursuit, he never exceeded 50 and was traveling only 17 to 20 miles per hour when he left road, (3) trooper's exceeding of speed limit did not warrant liability, given that weather was clear and dry, it was light outside, and there was no traffic in rural area of pursuit, and (4) although trooper's car ultimately came into contact with bike and passenger's ejected body on side of road, that unintentional contact resulted from trooper's reasonable efforts to avoid what he thought was going to be collision on road. Schieren v State, 281 A.D.2d 828, 722 N.Y.S.2d 128, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3011 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2001).

Ambulance driver operating his vehicle at 75 miles per hour in a 50 mile per hour zone was justified where there was ample evidence to show that defendant reasonably believed he was responding to an emergency call. People v Bisig, 46 Misc. 2d 299, 259 N.Y.S.2d 452, 1965 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1988 (N.Y. Spec. Sess. 1965).

43. Fines

It is doubtful whether a fine of $100 is proper for a first offense of speeding. People v Marsellus, 9 Misc. 2d 1030, 168 N.Y.S.2d 1008, 1957 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1913 (N.Y. County Ct. 1957).

City could enforce its 30-mile-per-hour speed limit without enforcing provision of same ordinance setting maximum fine for violation of speed limit since provision setting maximum fine had been preempted by CLS Veh & Tr § 1180; CLS Veh & Tr § 3002(a) and (b) provides that local laws are void if they conflict with Vehicle and Traffic Law. People v Fried, 153 Misc. 2d 764, 583 N.Y.S.2d 135, 1992 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 127 (N.Y. City Ct. 1992).

Maximum fine for violation of city speed limit was not limited to $50, notwithstanding provision of CLS Gen City § 20(32) that local traffic commission can set fine of not more than $50 for violations of its rules and regulations, since such statute had nothing to do with speeding violations, which are exclusively governed by CLS Veh & Tr § 1180. People v Fried, 153 Misc. 2d 764, 583 N.Y.S.2d 135, 1992 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 127 (N.Y. City Ct. 1992).

CLS Veh & Tr § 1180 has preempted local municipal field on fines for violations of speed limits. People v Fried, 153 Misc. 2d 764, 583 N.Y.S.2d 135, 1992 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 127 (N.Y. City Ct. 1992).

Notwithstanding validity of city ordinance establishing city-wide 30 mile per hour speed limit, fine for violation of speed limit was not limited by provision of same ordinance, which set fine for first violation at $50, since CLS Veh & Tr § 1180(h) and (h)(4) preempted local municipal field on speeding fines and made provision of city ordinance regarding fines obsolete. People v Fried, 153 Misc. 2d 764, 583 N.Y.S.2d 135, 1992 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 127 (N.Y. City Ct. 1992).

44. Jurisdiction of courts

Failure of the Appeals Board of the Administrative Adjudication Bureau of the Department of Motor Vehicles to render its decision in petitioner's case within 60 days as provided in applicable regulation did not operate to deprive the Board of its jurisdiction in matter where the subject regulation was directory and not mandatory. Tipon v Appeals Bd. of Administrative Adjudication Bureau, 52 A.D.2d 1065, 384 N.Y.S.2d 324, 1976 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12987 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't), app. denied, 40 N.Y.2d 806 (N.Y. 1976).

Court of Special Sessions had no jurisdiction to try defendant upon information charging an infraction of this section. People v Bullis, 5 Misc. 2d 1, 158 N.Y.S.2d 560, 1957 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3707 (N.Y. County Ct. 1957).

Traffic summons charging operation of motor vehicle at speed of 51 miles per hour in 60-mile zone in violation of statute was a nullity. People v Decker, 28 Misc. 2d 845, 215 N.Y.S.2d 602, 1961 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2860 (N.Y. County Ct. 1961).

A motorist arrested for speeding and given a uniform traffic ticket directing him to appear before the Court of Special Sessions of a specified town on a specified date and hour, who appeared with counsel at the time and place specified, found the building locked and no court in session after waiting for 15 minutes for the justice of the peace to arrive, was entitled to a writ of prohibition against being called before the same court on a later date on the same charge, the court having lost jurisdiction to proceed for failing to be present on return day. Abbott v Rose, 40 Misc. 2d 64, 242 N.Y.S.2d 773, 1963 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2160 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1963).

The failure of justice of peace to be present in court on return day deprived justice of jurisdiction to proceed further with prosecution of defendant for speeding. Abbott v Rose, 40 Misc. 2d 64, 242 N.Y.S.2d 773, 1963 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2160 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1963).

Justice of the peace who had jurisdiction of the accused at the time of arraignment did not lose such jurisdiction by making an unauthorized or improper adjournment of the case. Santacrose v Bean, 52 Misc. 2d 167, 275 N.Y.S.2d 418, 1964 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1161 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1964).

So long as an alleged speeding infraction occurred somewhere within the five western towns of Suffolk County, the District Court had jurisdiction. People v Rosgaard, 61 Misc. 2d 151, 304 N.Y.S.2d 1013, 1969 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1400 (N.Y. Dist. Ct. 1969).

Uniform traffic ticket which advised defendant that he was charged with operating his truck without proper plate or certificate was jurisdictionally valid even though it used erroneous number in referring to statute. People v Demar, 65 Misc. 2d 465, 317 N.Y.S.2d 676, 1970 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1074 (N.Y. Dist. Ct. 1970).

Fact that officer merely printed his name on defendant's copy of uniform traffic summons and that his signature in script did not appear thereon did not preclude court from acquiring jurisdiction on theory that summons failed to comply with regulations of Commissioner of Motor Vehicles requiring officer to sign defendant's copy. People v Godin, 80 Misc. 2d 919, 365 N.Y.S.2d 412, 1975 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2285 (N.Y. J. Ct. 1975).

Neither fact that date on information charging defendant with speeding in violation of Vehicle and Traffic Law had been changed prior to issuance of ticket, nor fact that officer used two different signatures, one on ticket and one to verify information, nor fact that officer failed to indicate whether defendant was charged with a traffic infraction or misdemeanor was sufficiently fatal to divest court of its jurisdiction in matter. People v Perlman, 89 Misc. 2d 973, 392 N.Y.S.2d 985, 1977 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2703 (N.Y. Dist. Ct. 1977), overruled, Graf v Foschio, 102 A.D.2d 891, 477 N.Y.S.2d 190, 1984 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 19120 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1984).

The failure of an information charging a violation of sub 3 of former § 56 to negative the exception that an automobile may be operated in excess of 50 miles per hour where a greater speed is permitted by the state traffic commission is fatally defective and deprives the court of special session of jurisdiction. However, a conviction under such information cannot be attacked after the time for appeal has expired. People v Zajkowski, 121 N.Y.S.2d 586, 1953 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1770 (N.Y. County Ct. 1953).

45. Judicial review

Where an intermediate appellate court reversed defendant's conviction of violating subd (c) of this section both on the law and on the facts, it should not have dismissed the information, but was obliged to grant a new trial. People v Nappi, 18 N.Y.2d 136, 272 N.Y.S.2d 347, 219 N.E.2d 176, 1966 N.Y. LEXIS 1177 (N.Y. 1966).

In occupant's action for injuries sustained when automobile was driven off pavement to avoid striking a truck blocking pavement, a charge permitting jury to find negligence if truck's speed exceeded 20 miles per hour under statutory presumption that such speed was not prudent was reversibly erroneous where evidence was undisputed that truck was only going 18 miles per hour when it started skid which resulted in blocking pavement. Akin v Pruyn Lumber & Supply Co., 254 A.D. 34, 4 N.Y.S.2d 370, 1938 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6332 (N.Y. App. Div. 1938).

In proceeding to revoke chauffeur's license for failure to use reasonable care in driving automobile on icy road, where chauffeur testified that distance from first patch of ice on which automobile began to skid and he brought it back under control to second patch of ice on which automobile skidded and overturned did not exceed 200 feet, finding that automobile was out of control for approximately 200 feet was contrary to evidence. Hessney v MacDuff, 284 A.D. 70, 130 N.Y.S.2d 405, 1954 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3344 (N.Y. App. Div. 1954).

Instruction invoking subdivision of statute as basis for finding either negligence or contributory negligence on part of drivers of respective vehicles was reversibly erroneous, where, prior to trial, such section had been declared unconstitutional. Carroll v Harris, 23 A.D.2d 582, 256 N.Y.S.2d 715, 1965 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4800 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1965).

Failure to present at administrative hearing the matters urged on appeal from determinations of the Appeals Board of the Administrative Adjudication Bureau of the Department of Motor Vehicles constituted a waiver so as to preclude petitioner from raising such matters. Tipon v Appeals Bd. of Administrative Adjudication Bureau, 52 A.D.2d 1065, 384 N.Y.S.2d 324, 1976 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12987 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't), app. denied, 40 N.Y.2d 806 (N.Y. 1976).

The Supreme Court, Appellate Division, could not substitute its view for that of the administrative agency in proceeding on petition in Article 78 proceeding to review determinations of the Appeals Board of the Administrative Adjudication Bureau of the Department of Motor Vehicles where the hearing minutes showed substantial questions of fact. Tipon v Appeals Bd. of Administrative Adjudication Bureau, 52 A.D.2d 1065, 384 N.Y.S.2d 324, 1976 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12987 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't), app. denied, 40 N.Y.2d 806 (N.Y. 1976).

An information was dismissed and defendant discharged where the credibility and weight to be given conflicting testimony in the Justice's Court could not be judged since it was merely summarized in narrative form and not set out verbatim. People v Woodard, 2 Misc. 2d 26, 150 N.Y.S.2d 366, 1956 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1949 (N.Y. County Ct. 1956).

Defendant who had been convicted of speeding would not be permitted, in absence of statutory authority, to amend affidavit of errors, which was complete on its face and contained no errors or defects, by including new grounds or errors after 30-day period authorized for taking appeals had elapsed. People v Hansen, 27 Misc. 2d 885, 209 N.Y.S.2d 1010, 1961 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3445 (N.Y. County Ct. 1961).

A conviction of speeding after trial in Justice's Court must be reversed when the Justice fails to file a return on appeal containing minutes of the trial or a record of the evidence upon which judgment was based. People v Wiltse, 28 Misc. 2d 410, 212 N.Y.S.2d 713, 1961 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3161 (N.Y. County Ct. 1961).

On appeal to a County Court from a conviction for violating subd. 3 of former § 56, alleging insufficiency of the evidence to sustain the conviction, conviction can only be reversed and a new trial ordered where no stenographic record of the testimony of the witnesses is presented to the reviewing court and it only appears from the justice's summary of testimony that there was a sharp conflict of testimony as between that of the arresting trooper and passengers riding in the defendant's car as to how fast the vehicle was traveling. People v Trafton, 28 Misc. 2d 475, 220 N.Y.S.2d 81, 1961 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3342 (N.Y. County Ct. 1961).

A defendant, convicted of violating subd. 4 of the section by exceeding the speed limit established by the State Traffic Commission, having failed to raise the question that the Commission's regulation fixing the speed limit had not been filed with the Department of State prior to his conviction, and the time to appear having long since expired, could not challenge his conviction by application for coram nobis. People v Schwartz, 31 Misc. 2d 409, 220 N.Y.S.2d 889, 1961 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2205 (N.Y. Dist. Ct. 1961), aff'd, 12 N.Y.2d 753, 234 N.Y.S.2d 708, 186 N.E.2d 559, 1962 N.Y. LEXIS 940 (N.Y. 1962).

It is clearly a question of fact for court determination whether the prosecution has established beyond reasonable doubt that defendant, at the time and place in question, was operating his car at a speed greater than reasonable and prudent under existing conditions, and an Appellate Court cannot substitute its judgment for that of the trier of facts on such matters. People v Pupillo, 37 Misc. 2d 455, 235 N.Y.S.2d 522, 1962 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2109 (N.Y. County Ct. 1962).

Where defendant motorist was charged with violating § 501 by operating a motor vehicle without a license on the same occasion as violating § 1180 by speeding, but the magistrate dismissed the charge of operating without a license at request of the District Attorney for "insufficient identification," his conviction for speeding was reversed by the County Court on the ground that the evidence must have been likewise insufficient to establish his identity as operator of the speeding vehicle. People v Quinzi, 39 Misc. 2d 1070, 242 N.Y.S.2d 334, 1963 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1713 (N.Y. County Ct. 1963).

Evidence that each petitioner had previously been convicted of a speeding violation was insufficient to support order suspending petitioners' driver's licenses pending trials of speeding charges. Hague v Sedita, 56 Misc. 2d 203, 288 N.Y.S.2d 212, 1968 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1723 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1968).

46. —Effect of receipt of evidence of prior offenses

In an Article 78 proceeding to review the revocation of a driver's license, revocation was proper where he had three speeding violations in 18 months. Further, application of the clear and convincing evidence rule in an administrative hearing resulting in mandatory revocation of a driver's license was constitutional. Filsame v Melton, 89 A.D.2d 604, 452 N.Y.S.2d 460, 1982 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 17695 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't), app. denied, 57 N.Y.2d 608, 1982 N.Y. LEXIS 7264 (N.Y. 1982).

Penalty of $100 fine and 60-day license suspension was not excessive where petitioner was found guilty of driving at 95 miles per hour and his driving record contained numerous other moving violations. Martin v Adduci, 138 A.D.2d 599, 526 N.Y.S.2d 181, 1988 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3150 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1988).

Speeding conviction was reversed where prosecutor failed to make opening statement and information referred to motorist's prior speeding conviction. People v Sperbeck, 5 Misc. 2d 849, 165 N.Y.S.2d 958, 1957 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3455 (N.Y. County Ct. 1957).

A conviction of speeding was confirmed over a contention that the justice of the peace who heard the case should have disqualified himself after receiving information of defendant's prior conviction. Such information was given to the justice by a volunteer, without improper act of any of the parties or of the justice, and there was no indication that the justice placed any reliance upon the hearsay statements in the volunteer's letter. People v Hartgrove, 12 Misc. 2d 201, 173 N.Y.S.2d 951, 1958 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3404 (N.Y. County Ct. 1958).

Admission of defendant's affirmative answer, as to prior convictions for speeding, though error, was not prejudicial where under the other evidence in the case, the justice could find the defendant guilty. People v Molnar, 16 Misc. 2d 174, 184 N.Y.S.2d 23, 1959 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 4030 (N.Y. County Ct. 1959).

A judgment of conviction for speeding should be reversed where conviction can only be considered as having occurred after the magistrate asked to see defendant's driver's license, noted two prior convictions for speeding indorsed thereon, and then made the statement that he was inclined to believe that defendant was speeding on the occasion in question and guilty as charged. People v Patton, 27 Misc. 2d 357, 210 N.Y.S.2d 591, 1961 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3396 (N.Y. County Ct. 1961).

Prior to conviction of a person charged with speeding, the court before which the charge is presented should not look at his driver's license to see if there are any notations thereon of prior speeding convictions, and it is a violation of defendant's rights to do so. People v Patton, 27 Misc. 2d 357, 210 N.Y.S.2d 591, 1961 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3396 (N.Y. County Ct. 1961).

The record in a speeding case, was insufficient to show that prejudice resulted to defendant by the arresting officer's inspection of his driver's license following arrest, or from the magistrate's mere glancing at such license when it was handed to him by defendant's own attorney. People v Bokman, 36 Misc. 2d 132, 232 N.Y.S.2d 180, 1962 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2616 (N.Y. County Ct. 1962).

A Town Justice erred in requesting a copy of defendant's motor vehicle record prior to trial in which defendant was charged with the offense of speeding in violation of Veh & Tr Law § 1180. People v Meisenzahl, 108 Misc. 2d 648, 438 N.Y.S.2d 434, 1981 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2261 (N.Y. County Ct. 1981).

47. Jury instructions

Where various sections of the Vehicle and Traffic Law read by the judge in his main charge were appropriate to the case and no exception was taken to this part of the charge; his refusal to charge the language of this section at the request of the plaintiffs was not error in the context of the general instructions given by the judge that due care and caution must be observed by both drivers. Wells v Goodrich, 3 A.D.2d 865, 161 N.Y.S.2d 174, 1957 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5882 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1957).

Although the accident in suit occurred when defendant's car ran into decedent's car after it had backed out of a driveway into a position across one lane of the highway on which defendant was approaching and partly across the other lane, and not within an intersection which was about a car length beyond, it was not error for the trial court to charge the jury in terms of the maximum speed for vehicles "approaching or entering" an intersection within a business or residential district not controlled by a traffic officer or traffic signal, there being evidence that defendant was traveling considerably in excess of that speed. Kinner v Kuroczka, 12 A.D.2d 383, 212 N.Y.S.2d 479, 1961 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11924 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1961).

Trial court's omission of the word "and" in its reading to the jury of statute pertaining to speed in certain situations constituted harmless error in personal injury action arising out of intersectional collision. Kinsfather v Grueneberg, 47 A.D.2d 789, 365 N.Y.S.2d 903, 1975 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9105 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1975).

In action by automobile driver, who was driving at 25 miles per hour on street as he proceeded past gas service station on his right and observed jeep through window of station but could not see whether it was occupied by driver, against jeep driver for back injuries sustained when jeep hit his automobile when he was just about by station, trial court's charge to jury of section of Vehicle and Traffic Law which requires driver to operate vehicle at reasonable and prudent speed was prejudicially erroneous in the record was devoid of any proof that automobile driver's speed was imprudent. Putnam v Lamoreaux, 59 A.D.2d 974, 399 N.Y.S.2d 333, 1977 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 14240 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1977).

In action for injuries sustained when plaintiff was struck by defendant's vehicle while crossing intersection on her bicycle, it was error to refuse plaintiff's request to charge CLS Veh & Tr § 1180(a) and (e) and to charge jury that defendant did not violate any law, since defendant testified that she accelerated and pulled into oncoming lane of traffic to pass slower vehicle as she approached intersection, and that her view of intersection was blocked; under circumstances, jury could find that defendant violated § 1180(a) and (e) by driving her vehicle at greater speed than was reasonable and prudent when entering intersection. Gabrielli v Biro, 140 A.D.2d 948, 529 N.Y.S.2d 626, 1988 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5775 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1988).

In personal injury action arising out of car-train collision at railroad crossing, court did not err in charging jury on CLS Veh & Tr §§ 1180(a), (b) and (e), in view of substantial testimony from witnesses indicating that plaintiff was driving recklessly and police accident report indicating that plaintiff's car was found with backup lights activated, from which it could be inferred that plaintiff was driving at unreasonable speed in attempting to beat train through crossing, and was attempting to back up when struck. Vasquez by Vega v Conrail, 180 A.D.2d 247, 584 N.Y.S.2d 345, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7958 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), app. denied, 80 N.Y.2d 762, 592 N.Y.S.2d 671, 607 N.E.2d 818, 1992 N.Y. LEXIS 3958 (N.Y. 1992), app. denied, 80 N.Y.2d 762, 592 N.Y.S.2d 671, 607 N.E.2d 818 (N.Y. 1992).

In personal injury action arising out of car-train collision at railroad crossing, court did not err in charging jury on CLS Veh & Tr § 1180(b), although reference to 55-mile-per-hour speed limit of statute was inapplicable to case, since statute also requires drivers to reduce speed whenever special hazard exists. Vasquez by Vega v Conrail, 180 A.D.2d 247, 584 N.Y.S.2d 345, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7958 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), app. denied, 80 N.Y.2d 762, 592 N.Y.S.2d 671, 607 N.E.2d 818, 1992 N.Y. LEXIS 3958 (N.Y. 1992), app. denied, 80 N.Y.2d 762, 592 N.Y.S.2d 671, 607 N.E.2d 818 (N.Y. 1992).

48. Applicability

Although skidding itself is not evidence of negligence, where it is alleged and proved that defendant, while operating his car on a slippery and icy street with knowledge of its nature, started his car from a stop on three separate occasions each time spinning the car around and sliding off into a snow bank, that is sufficient to sustain a conviction. People v Lewis, 13 N.Y.2d 180, 245 N.Y.S.2d 1, 194 N.E.2d 831, 1963 N.Y. LEXIS 867 (N.Y. 1963).

Police did not exceed bounds of normal traffic stop by detaining defendants' vehicle beyond time necessary to issue ticket for driving at speed not prudent under conditions where defendants were detained for 10 to 12 minutes, during which troopers observed duffle bag ultimately found to contain fruits of crime uncomfortably stuffed between one defendant's legs while car's back seat was empty, and determined that other defendant had received traffic ticket in certain town on same date he claimed to be elsewhere visiting friends, prompting police to obtain permission to search vehicle. People v Durgey, 186 A.D.2d 899, 589 N.Y.S.2d 631, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12391 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1992), app. denied, 81 N.Y.2d 787, 594 N.Y.S.2d 733, 610 N.E.2d 406 (N.Y. 1993), app. denied, 81 N.Y.2d 788, 594 N.Y.S.2d 734, 610 N.E.2d 407, 1993 N.Y. LEXIS 402 (N.Y. 1993).

School district was not precluded from discharging petitioner from her employment as school bus driver on her conviction of violating CLS Veh & Tr § 1180(e) merely because she had earlier signed agreement consenting to 20-day suspension in connection with same incident, since suspension was authorized by administrative regulation contained in district's school bus drivers' handbook, based on petitioner's receipt of citation, while her termination was mandated by different section of same regulation, following her conviction for speeding. Herbison v Board of Educ., 224 A.D.2d 618, 638 N.Y.S.2d 678, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1375 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1996).

Defendants, owner and operator of van which rear-ended 3-wheeled "scooter" in which police officer was seated while on scene investigating unrelated accident, were improperly granted summary judgment in officer's action under CLS Gen Mun § 205-e, and alleged violation of CLS Veh & Tr § 1180 (a), where fact issues existed, inter alia, as to whether van operator should have seen alleged oil spill before he collided with officer's vehicle. Cammilleri v S & W Realty Assocs., 243 A.D.2d 530, 663 N.Y.S.2d 222, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9807 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1997).

In action for wrongful death against driver of car in which decedent was passenger and against driver of oncoming car that struck first car, driver of first car was entitled to summary judgment where she was driving at legal speed, second driver was convicted of crossing double yellow line in violation of CLS Veh & Tr § 1126(a), and opposition to summary judgment was mere speculation that first driver might have done something to avoid accident. Tran v Nowak, 245 A.D.2d 1083, 666 N.Y.S.2d 84, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13862 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1997).

Plaintiff motorist was not entitled to partial summary judgment on issue of liability of defendant owner of another vehicle, even though defendant's vehicle hit plaintiff's stopped vehicle from behind, where defendant rebutted presumption of negligence of driver of rear vehicle by submitting nonnegligent explanation for collision, and it was for jury to decide whether following driver breached his duties to keep proper lookout and maintain reasonably safe speed and distance. Pitchure v Kandefer Plumbing & Heating, 273 A.D.2d 790, 710 N.Y.S.2d 259, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6719 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 2000).

In a personal injury action by a vehicle's passenger after a collision, there was an issue of fact as to whether the operator of the other vehicle was negligent, precluding summary judgment, as the operator testified that as he was making a left turn from the right lane, there was a vehicle to his left that was also making a left turn and his ability to see the traffic entering the intersection from the west therefore was impaired. Strasburg v Campbell, 28 A.D.3d 1131, 816 N.Y.S.2d 627, 2006 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5469 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 2006).

Finding of misconduct by a police sergeant and the sergeant's reassignment to a lower rank were proper because, inter alia, given the sergeant's clear violations of N.Y. Veh. & Traf. Law §§ 1111(d)(1), 1128(d), 1180(b), during the sergeant's off-duty pursuit of another vehicle, substantial evidence supported the finding that the sergeant violated a pertinent regulation and brought discredit on the state police. Matter of Revella v Felton, 60 A.D.3d 1184, 875 N.Y.S.2d 316, 2009 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1692 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2009).

Although defendant was arrested for speeding and driving while intoxicated under N.Y. Veh. & Traf. Law §§ 1180(d), 1192(2), (3) shortly after the homicide death of defendant's husband and defendant's miscarriage of a child, defendant's actions produced little or no harm to anyone, defendant had no prior criminal record, and the public safety or confidence in the criminal justice system would not be harmed; therefore, pursuant to N.Y. Crim. Proc. Law §§ 170.30(1)(g), 170.40, the charges were dismissed in the interest of justice. People v Haugh, 894 N.Y.S.2d 359, 26 Misc. 3d 1029, 2009 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3552 (N.Y. J. Ct. 2009).

49. Procedural matters

Conviction for speeding would be reversed as matter of discretion in interest of justice where (1) defendant was issued simplified traffic information which charged him with speeding, (2) information was dismissed on trial date for failure to timely serve and file supporting deposition, and (3) defendant was immediately issued new simplified information and supporting deposition based on same allegations. People v Rosenfeld, 163 Misc. 2d 982, 626 N.Y.S.2d 352, 1994 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 670 (N.Y. App. Term 1994).

Although a motorist's plea of guilty to failure to yield was evidence of her negligence in a passenger's traffic accident case, it did not preclude the existence of a fact issue as to the driver's comparative fault. Lopez-Viola v Duell, 100 A.D.3d 1239, 955 N.Y.S.2d 220, 2012 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7902 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2012).

Remaining charges against defendant of violating N.Y. Veh. & Traf. Law §§ 1192(1) and 1180(A) were dismissed under N.Y. Crim. Proc. Law § 170.40(1)(h) as: (1) two unclassified misdemeanor offenses, N.Y. Veh. & Traf. Law §§ 1192(3) and 1212, had been dismissed, but were charged on the original docket; (2) N.Y. Crim. Proc. Law § 30.30(1)(b) provided for a 90-day time period where at least one misdemeanor charge punishable by a sentence of imprisonment of more than three months was present on the docket; (3) 95 chargeable days had passed; and (4) a traffic infraction was an offense under § 30.30(1)(b). People v Ashley, 927 N.Y.S.2d 536, 32 Misc. 3d 644, 2011 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2625 (N.Y. City Crim. Ct. 2011), rev'd, 972 N.Y.S.2d 145, 39 Misc. 3d 149(A), 2013 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2429 (N.Y. App. Term 2013).

Where a jury found that defendant committed the offense of speeding in a construction zone in violation of N.Y. Veh. & Traf. Law § 1180(f) but the jury failed to make a specific finding as to the speed at which defendant was traveling, the trial court was not allowed to impose a sentence under N.Y. Veh. & Traf. Law § 1180(h)(3)(iii) based on its own finding that defendant's speed exceeded the applicable limit by more than 30 miles an hour; thus, defendant was entitled to resentencing pursuant to N.Y. Veh. & Traf. Law § 1180(h)(3)(i). People v Peacock, 193 Misc. 2d 672, 751 N.Y.S.2d 676, 2002 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1574 (N.Y. App. Term 2002).

Two supporting depositions were more than sufficient, and were subscribed and verified by the police officer, and were based upon his direct observation and contained sufficient factual allegations to provide a reasonable likelihood that defendant violated N.Y. Veh. & Traf. Law § 1180(d). The supporting depositions described defendant's operation of the motor vehicle described in the summons, the license plate number, that defendant was traveling at 53 miles per hour in a 30 miles per hour zone and that the speed was determined by a laser device. People v Stevens, 58 Misc. 3d 393, 66 N.Y.S.3d 589, 2017 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 4498 (N.Y. J. Ct. 2017).

Trial court erred in finding defendant guilty of speeding because there was no dispute that the request for a supporting deposition was timely, the court's choice of the trial date had the effect of rendering it all but impossible for the supporting deposition to be served "five days before trial," and the subsequent adjournment of the trial did not cure the defect. People v Wolner, 58 Misc. 3d 907, 68 N.Y.S.3d 805, 2017 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 5262 (N.Y. County Ct. 2017).

Conviction for speeding precludes convicted person from disproving such conduct in later civil action against state troopers who issued citation; such traffic infraction is to be given collateral estoppel effect notwithstanding its status as non-criminal violation. Pastre v Weber, 717 F. Supp. 987, 1988 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 16728, 1989 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 9676 (S.D.N.Y. 1988).

Prosecutor who, on his own motion, had previously dismissed several other cases for alleged speeding violations in same geographic area where defendant was charged with speeding violation, because speed sign was obliterated by foliage, was collaterally estopped to deny sign obliteration in defendant's case, necessitating dismissal of charge. People v Fox, 157 Misc. 2d 238, 596 N.Y.S.2d 984, 1993 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 104 (N.Y. J. Ct. 1993).

Prosecutor who, on his own motion, had previously dismissed several other cases for alleged speeding violations in same geographic area where defendant was charged with speeding violation, because speed sign was obliterated by foliage, was required by CLS Code of Pros Respons EC 7-23 to disclose existence of previous cases to defendant when defendant requested dismissal of charge. People v Fox, 157 Misc. 2d 238, 596 N.Y.S.2d 984, 1993 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 104 (N.Y. J. Ct. 1993).

Prosecutor who, on his own motion, had previously dismissed several other cases for alleged speeding violations in same geographic area where defendant was charged with speeding violation, because speed sign was obliterated by foliage, acted arbitrarily and capriciously, in violation of defendant's right to equal protection under both Fourteenth Amendment and CLS NY Const Art I § 11 in failing to afford defendant same treatment extended to other defendants in same circumstances by opposing his motion to dismiss charge. People v Fox, 157 Misc. 2d 238, 596 N.Y.S.2d 984, 1993 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 104 (N.Y. J. Ct. 1993).

In prosecution for speeding in violation of CLS Veh & Tr § 1180(d), defendant's CLS CPL § 240.20 motion for pretrial disclosure of radar device used to measure speed would be denied since violation was traffic infraction and CLS CPL § 240.20 applies only to misdemeanors, and use of radar is not "scientific test" as contemplated by CLS CPL § 240.20(1)(c). People v Guagnini, 143 Misc. 2d 676, 541 N.Y.S.2d 907, 1989 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 326 (N.Y. Village Ct. 1989).

Where defendant was charged with passing a stop sign, driving 67 miles per hour in a 30 mile per hour zone, and driving while impaired, and where driving while impaired charge was sent to a conference part, which resulted in defendant pleading guilty to amended charge of speeding, defendant could not thereafter be convicted of driving 67 miles per hour in a 30 mile per hour zone since this charge, and the one to which he pleaded guilty, were identical and arose out of the same act or criminal transaction. People v Billeci, 77 Misc. 2d 1089, 356 N.Y.S.2d 187, 1974 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1307 (N.Y. Dist. Ct. 1974).

Motorist accused of speeding in county in which such charges are adjudicated administratively was not denied due process by traffic violations bureau's refusal of his request for discovery pertaining to type of radar used and its associated testing and operating procedures, since motorist had no statutory or regulatory right to such disclosure. Miller v Schwartz, 72 N.Y.2d 869, 532 N.Y.S.2d 354, 528 N.E.2d 507, 1988 N.Y. LEXIS 1649 (N.Y. 1988).

Defendant charged with speeding violation was entitled to issuance of judicial subpoena duces tecum under CLS CPLR § 2307 for production of radar device which allegedly detected speeding since 15 NYCRR § 123.1 did not bar use of statute to obtain subpoena; however, radar device would only be turned over immediately prior to cross examination at his hearing since earlier surrender would improperly permit unauthorized discovery. People v Russo, 149 A.D.2d 255, 545 N.Y.S.2d 211, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11230 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1989).

Sixth Amendment right to effective assistance of counsel did not require issuance of judicial subpoena duces tecum for radar device which allegedly detected speeding by defendant since defendant had no constitutional right to counsel on charge of traffic infraction. People v Russo, 149 A.D.2d 255, 545 N.Y.S.2d 211, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11230 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1989).

Prosecution of a speeding charge by the District Attorney's office is not essential, as either the town attorney or a state trooper may prosecute it. Hogg v Parker, 38 Misc. 2d 41, 238 N.Y.S.2d 92, 1963 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2251 (N.Y. Sup. Ct.), rev'd, 20 A.D.2d 611, 245 N.Y.S.2d 406, 1963 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2603 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1963).

A defendant who received a uniform traffic summons for speeding and who made several appearances in traffic court only to discover that neither the arresting officer nor the district attorney was present was entitled to dismissal of the charge. People ex rel. Panek v Radak, 52 Misc. 2d 300, 275 N.Y.S.2d 937, 1966 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1258 (N.Y. Spec. Sess. 1966).

50. —Adjudication by justice of the peace

A justice of the peace holding a court of special sessions may suspend execution of sentence imposing a fine upon the conviction of a second offender for the violation of this former section. 1945 Ops St Compt 405.

There is no authority for the district attorney to give blanket authorization to a magistrate to accept a plea to a lower rate of speed on a violation of Vehicle and Traffic Law, § 1180(b). 1978 Op Atty Gen May 26.

A magistrate who is hearing a Vehicle and Traffic Law, § 1180(b), violation, with no district attorney or assistant district attorney present, can accept a plea to a lower rate of speed than that indicated on the U.T.T. without the prior approval of a member of the district attorney's staff, as long as the police officer or his superior who is prosecuting the violation consents to such a plea. 1978 Opp Atty Gen May 26.

After hearing defendant's witnesses, a Justice of the Peace had no power to reserve decision on a speeding charge until the jury rendered its verdict on the charge of driving while license was revoked. People v Baranowski, 147 N.Y.S.2d 882, 208 Misc. 862, 1955 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3218 (N.Y. County Ct. 1955).

In prosecution under this section the justice of the peace was bound to inform the defendant of his right to counsel and it was reversible error for the justice to state that it might cost the defendant a lot of money to get a lawyer. People v Pier, 121 N.Y.S.2d 342, 203 Misc. 117, 1952 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2290 (N.Y. County Ct. 1952).

In a nonjury prosecution of a speeding charge, conducted by a deputy sheriff, it was not error for the justice of the peace either to permit reopening of the People's case, in exercise of discretion, or to question a witness in order to elicit sufficient facts to enable him to reach a decision. People v DeLeyden, 10 N.Y.2d 293, 220 N.Y.S.2d 961, 177 N.E.2d 924, 1961 N.Y. LEXIS 971 (N.Y. 1961).

Where motorist, charged with traffic infraction, upon arraignment before a justice of the peace, demanded an immediate trial, the justice could adjourn the case over defendant's objection, since he had jurisdiction of defendant and the offense and had the power to adjourn the case. Hogg v Parker, 20 A.D.2d 611, 245 N.Y.S.2d 406, 1963 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2603 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1963), aff'd, 14 N.Y.2d 728, 250 N.Y.S.2d 74, 199 N.E.2d 171, 1964 N.Y. 1. In general

A public defender (County Law, Art. 18-A) is not required to represent an indigent defendant charged with a traffic infraction (Vehicle and Traffic Law, §§ 1101, 1180[f]). 1975 NY Ops Atty Gen Jan 16.

A town justice, when a ticket charging violation of Vehicle and Traffic Law § 1180(b) is filed with him, may not change the charge unilaterally to violation of § 1180(d). 1980 NY Ops Atty Gen Dec. 2 (informal).

2. Speeding as traffic infraction

A local government must enforce vehicle speed laws under the provisions of the Vehicle and Traffic Law. N.Y. Op. Att'y Gen. No. 84-56.

3. Sufficiency of information

An information alleging a violation of this section need not specify that the defendant is a second offender in order to convict him as such. 1953 NY Ops Atty Gen 128 (informal).

4. Absence of signs

Where the Taconic State Park Commission has adopted a regulation fixing a maximum speed of 50 miles per hour on that section of Taconic State Parkway between Putnam County south line and Route No. 55 in Dutchess County, it is not necessary to post signs in regard to the 50 mile speed limit on the indicated section of parkway in view of former § 2 and this section. 1946 NY Ops Atty Gen July 2.

5. Local speeding ordinances

Any prosecution of a motorist for speeding must be under the Vehicle & Traffic Law and not under a village ordinance. 1961 NY Ops Atty Gen Dec. 8.

Subdivision (c) of this section does not empower a village to limit speed to less than 25 miles an hour on curves and winding roadways within the village. 1962 NY Ops Atty Gen Nov 19.

Villages and cities may establish speed limits and traffic control devices on state highways passing through their boundaries if they comply with all requirements imposed by the Vehicle and Traffic Law, and speeding infractions become violations of that law regardless of the agency authorized to fix such speed limits. 1962 NY Ops Atty Gen Oct 31.

A violation of a village ordinance authorized by section 1643 of the Vehicle and Traffic Law must be prosecuted under section 1180(d) of the Vehicle and Traffic Law and not under the village ordinance. 1977 NY Ops Atty Gen March 23.

6. Speed at intersection

Speed in excess of twenty miles an hour at an intersection having a flashing amber signal does not violate subdivision (2)(c) of former § 56. 1957 NY Ops Atty Gen Sept 12 (informal).

7. Emergency vehicles

Ambulance driver, even though operating his vehicle in emergency, is subject to laws relating to speed. 1953 NY Ops Atty Gen 131 (informal).

8. Fines

Fines, etc. for violations of § 1180 relating to speed limits established by a suburban town pursuant to § 1662-a should be distributed by the Comptroller to such suburban towns pursuant to § 1803(5) within the limitations thereof. Other fines, etc. covered by § 1803(1.a.) imposed and collected by the District Courts of Nassau and Suffolk Counties should be paid to the county treasurers thereof and credited, in Nassau County, to the county general fund pursuant to UDCA § 2408-a(4) and, in Suffolk County, to the first judicial district thereof pursuant to USDA § 2503(4). 1967 NY Ops Atty Gen Feb 1, 1967.

Fines or penalties collected by the Village of Grand View-On Hudson for violations of maximum speed limits established pursuant to sections 1643 and 1644 of the Vehicle and Traffic Law must be remitted to the Comptroller, but if the Village has established the office of police justice, the yearly amount of such fines not exceeding two dollars for every inhabitant of the Village shall be distributed by the Comptroller to the Village. 1975 NY Ops Atty Gen Apr 4.

Article 45 of the Vehicle and Traffic Law does not authorize a pre-prepared schedule of fines to enable a motorist simultaneously to mail his fine and guilty plea in relation to a traffic offense. 1990 N.Y. Op. Att'y Gen. No. I90-61.

ARTICLE 32 Stopping, Standing, and Parking

HISTORY:

Add, L 1959, ch 775, eff Oct 1, 1960, with substance transferred from former Art 19.

§ 1202. Stopping, standing or parking prohibited in specified places [Effective until April 5, 2021]

(a) Except when necessary to avoid conflict with other traffic, or when in compliance with law or the directions of a police officer or official traffic-control device, no person shall:

1. Stop, stand or park a vehicle:

a. On the roadway side of any vehicle stopped, standing or parked at the edge or curb of a street;

b. On a sidewalk;

c. Within an intersection, except when permitted by official signs or parking meters on the side of a highway opposite a street which intersects but does not cross such highway;

d. On a cross walk;

e. Between a safety zone and the adjacent curb or within thirty feet of points on the curb immediately opposite the ends of a safety zone, unless a different distance is indicated by official signs, markings or parking meters;

f. Alongside or opposite any street excavation or obstruction when stopping, standing or parking would obstruct traffic;

g. Upon any bridge or other elevated structure upon a highway or within a highway tunnel, unless otherwise indicated by official signs, markings or parking meters;

h. On any railroad tracks;

i. In the area between roadways of a divided highway, including crossovers, except in an emergency;

j. On a state expressway highway or state interstate route highway, including the entrances thereto and exits therefrom, which are a part thereof, except in an emergency.

k. Engage in the retail sale of frozen desserts as that term is defined in subdivision thirty-seven of section three hundred seventy-five of this chapter directly to pedestrians on any highway having a speed limit in excess of thirty miles per hour. Nothing herein shall be construed to prohibit the operator of such vehicle from stopping such vehicle off such highway, in a safe manner, for the sole purpose of delivering such retail product directly to the residence of a consumer or to the business address of a customer of such retailer.

2. Stand or park a vehicle, whether occupied or not, except momentarily to pick up or discharge a passenger or passengers:

a. In front of a public or private driveway;

b. Within twenty feet of a cross walk at an intersection, unless a different distance is indicated by official signs, markings or parking meters;

c. Within thirty feet upon the approach to any flashing signal, stop or yield sign or traffic-control signal located at the side of the roadway, unless a different distance is indicated by official signs, markings or parking meters;

d. Within twenty feet of the driveway entrance to any fire station and, when on the side of the street opposite to the entrance of any fire station, within seventy-five feet of said entrance, when properly signposted, unless a different distance is indicated by official signs, markings or parking meters.

e. Alongside or obstructing a curb area which has been cut down, lowered or constructed so as to provide accessibility to the sidewalk.

3. Park a vehicle, whether occupied or not, except temporarily for the purpose of and while actually engaged in loading or unloading merchandise or passengers, within fifty feet of the nearest rail of a railroad crossing, unless a different distance is indicated by official signs, markings or parking meters.

(b) 1. No person shall stop, stand or park a vehicle within fifteen feet of a fire hydrant except when such vehicle is attended by a licensed operator or chauffeur who is seated in the front seat and who can immediately move such vehicle in case of emergency, unless a different distance is indicated by official signs, markings or parking meters.

2. No person shall stop, stand or park a vehicle within fifteen feet of a fire hydrant except when such vehicle is attended by a licensed operator or chauffeur who is seated in the front seat and who can immediately move such vehicle in case of emergency, when such vehicle impairs or hinders the access of a fire vehicle to a fire hydrant while such fire vehicle is engaged in an emergency operation, unless a different distance is indicated by official signs, markings, parking meters or the provisions of any local law, rule, or ordinance.

(c) No person shall move a vehicle not lawfully under his control into any prohibited area or away from a curb such distance as is unlawful.

1. In general

Parking violations could not be used as justification for act of police officers in "heading off" defendant's car with an unmarked police vehicle where parking violations amounted to a mere pretext on part of police officers who were assigned to an anti-crime unit and were not assigned to traffic duty. People v Flanagan, 56 A.D.2d 658, 391 N.Y.S.2d 907, 1977 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10798 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1977).

The driver, and likewise the owner, of a truck-trailer was liable for injuries sustained by a pedestrian where the driver backed the vehicle in such manner as to mount the curb and tilt an iron grate running across the sidewalk into the street in such manner as to strike and injure the pedestrian. De Sessa v White Plains, 30 Misc. 2d 817, 219 N.Y.S.2d 190, 1961 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2553 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1961).

2. Construction

Former § 86 of the Vehicle and Traffic Law, prohibiting parking or stopping on a sidewalk, was given a broad construction, one of its obvious purposes being to protect pedestrians on the sidewalk. De Sessa v White Plains, 30 Misc. 2d 817, 219 N.Y.S.2d 190, 1961 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2553 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1961).

3. Applicability

Statute prohibiting stopping or parking of vehicle on expressway except in emergency was applicable to city's department of sanitation's foreman, whose departmental car was struck from the rear after he had stopped car partially off highway and proceeded to instruct driver of snowplow to clear exits and entrances, contrary to contention that foreman was exempt from operation of statutes governing motorists generally because he was a person "actually engaged in work on a highway." Petosa v New York, 52 A.D.2d 919, 383 N.Y.S.2d 397, 1976 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12763 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1976).

4. Disabled vehicle

Court properly refused to instruct jury as to violations of CLS Veh & Tr §§ 1201(b) and 1202 where defendant's vehicle, while being driven on highway, had completely lost power, and thus was clearly "disabled" vehicle in "emergency" circumstances, to which statutes do not apply. Koseatac v Rubin, 4 Fed. Appx. 84, 2001 U.S. App. LEXIS 2540 (2d Cir. N.Y. 2001).

5. Arrest

Police officer acted lawfully when he stopped vehicle and directed defendant to produce his license and registration where he actually observed defendant engage in minor traffic violation of stopping in crosswalk, and when defendant failed to produce operator's license, officer acquired grounds to charge him with additional infraction. People v Cortes, 86 Misc. 2d 155, 382 N.Y.S.2d 445, 1976 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2417 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1976).

Where the trooper knocked on the car window, at which point defendant opened the window and the officer smelled burning marijuana in the car, the trooper had reason to approach the vehicle, as stopping, standing, or parking at the location in question was prohibited under N.Y. Veh. & Traf. Law § 1202(a)(1)(j) unless there was an emergency; after the trooper found partially smoked marijuana cigarettes in the ashtrays, the officer had the right under N.Y. Const. art. I, § 12 search the vehicle and the probable cause to arrest defendant. People v Semanek, 30 A.D.3d 547, 816 N.Y.S.2d 569, 2006 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8044 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2006).

6. Procedure

In action for personal injuries sustained when plaintiffs' vehicle struck city's department of sanitation's foreman's departmental car from rear after he stopped car partially off expressway and proceeded to give instructions to driver of snowplow, mere objection to "charging the Traffic Regulations and the Vehicle and Traffic Code, and particularly the Vehicle and Traffic Code as constituting negligence merely if there is a violation" was insufficient to preserve for review the contention that giving charge on statute prohibiting stopping or parking vehicle on expressway except in emergency was error on ground that foreman was exempt from operation of statute. Petosa v New York, 52 A.D.2d 919, 383 N.Y.S.2d 397, 1976 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12763 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1976).

Defendant in prosecution for operating motor vehicle with .10% or more by weight of alcohol in bloodstream was deprived of fair trial by being subjected to trial which began at 9:00 p.m. and ended with return of jury verdict at 6:05 a.m. on following morning. People v Hurley, 86 Misc. 2d 601, 383 N.Y.S.2d 177, 1976 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2492 (N.Y. County Ct. 1976).

7. —Jurisdiction

The parking of a truck across a sidewalk within a housing community operated by the Federal Government is a violation and the state courts have jurisdiction over an action for injuries to an infant occasioned upon his being injured in the street while going around the truck. Mullen v Fayette, 274 A.D. 527, 85 N.Y.S.2d 64, 1948 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3121 (N.Y. App. Div. 1948), reh'g denied, 275 A.D. 730, 87 N.Y.S.2d 920, 1949 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4234 (N.Y. App. Div. 1949), aff'd, 300 N.Y. 501, 89 N.E.2d 20, 300 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 501, 1949 N.Y. LEXIS 1393 (N.Y. 1949).

8. —Statute of limitations

Defendant was properly convicted on 23 counts of illegal parking over his contention that the prosecution of some of them was barred by the two-year statute of limitations applicable to misdemeanors. People v Levine, 308 N.Y. 685, 124 N.E.2d 322, 308 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 685, 1954 N.Y. LEXIS 1796 (N.Y. 1954).

9. —Summary judgment

In an action arising out of a collision between a truck and two buses that occurred when the truck driver was attempting to alleviate his stuck accelerator pedal and swerved, striking the buses, which were parked on the shoulder of the Long Island Expressway in violation of Veh & Tr Law § 1202(a)(1)(j), which prohibits stopping or standing on a state expressway except in an emergency, defendant bus company's motion for summary judgment would be denied, since the section clearly embodies a legislative judgment that the stopping, standing or parking of a vehicle, either on the roadways or shoulders of express highways, constitutes an unacceptable danger of accidents, and therefore, for the purposes of the motion, the negligence of the bus company was properly considered a substantial cause of the injuries sustained by plaintiffs, as it was closely connected in time and space to the injuries sustained, and violated a public policy. Dowling v Consolidated Carriers Corp., 103 A.D.2d 675, 478 N.Y.S.2d 883, 1984 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 19289 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't), app. dismissed, 63 N.Y.2d 952, 1984 N.Y. LEXIS 6402 (N.Y. 1984), aff'd, 65 N.Y.2d 799, 493 N.Y.S.2d 116, 482 N.E.2d 912, 1985 N.Y. LEXIS 15423 (N.Y. 1985).

In action by plaintiff whose vehicle was rear-ended while stopped on highway due to traffic jam caused by defendants, who had stopped their vehicles to argue with one another in apparent case of road rage, court erred in granting summary judgment to defendants on ground that their alleged negligence in stopping on highway was not proximate cause of rear-end collision as matter of law, as question of fact existed as to whether rear-ending accident was normal or foreseeable consequence of situation created by defendants. Mitchum v Friend, 270 A.D.2d 841, 705 N.Y.S.2d 152, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3552 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 2000).

Defendants, owner and driver of heating fuel delivery truck, should have been granted summary judgment dismissing complaint insofar as it alleged violations of CLS Veh & Tr §§ 1122, 1129, 1146, 1201(a), and 1202 since none of those sections applied to conduct of driver in stopping alongside road for purpose of making fuel delivery; however, defendants' summary judgment motion was properly denied as to action alleging negligence of driver (for which owner would be vicariously liable) where driver's deposition testimony stated that he did not park in driveway of subject residence because hose would not reach fuel tank from that location, but plaintiffs' expert opined that 150-foot hose originating from truck would have reached fuel tank from driveway of subject residence.. Falker v Ostrander, 272 A.D.2d 988, 708 N.Y.S.2d 532, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5166 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 2000).

Defendant was properly granted summary judgment, despite plaintiff's assertion that defendant's stopping in crosswalk, in violation of CLS Veh & Tr § 1202(a)(1)(d), was negligence per se and created jury question as to whether that violation was proximate cause of accident in which another vehicle that was passing defendant's vehicle on right struck plaintiff's decedent's motorcycle as it was making left-hand turn; statute was enacted to protect pedestrians and could not establish negligence per se by defendant since decedent was not within class of individuals intended to be protected, and plaintiff failed to show that defendant's decision to stop his vehicle where he did breached his common-law duty of ordinary care under circumstances or that he was otherwise negligent in operation of his vehicle. Boston v Dunham, 274 A.D.2d 708, 711 N.Y.S.2d 54, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7784 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2000).

In a personal injury action, a third driver was not entitled to summary judgment as the third driver failed to show his conduct in stopping his vehicle in a single travel lane in a construction zone was not negligent under N.Y. Veh. & Traf. Law § 1202(a) and that such conduct did not cause or contribute to the accident in which the vehicle behind the third driver was rear-ended by a second vehicle. Owsian v Cobo, 45 A.D.3d 1368, 846 N.Y.S.2d 824, 2007 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11498 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 2007).

Negligence claim was not appropriately resolved on summary judgment, although the city made a prima facie showing of its entitlement to summary judgment by demonstrating that its truck was lawfully stopped on the highway by reason of an emergency; fact issues existed as to whether the driver of the city's truck failed to exercise reasonable care to warn other motorists of the obstruction and, if so, whether such failure was a proximate cause of the accident. Pinilla v City of New York, 136 A.D.3d 774, 24 N.Y.S.3d 710, 2016 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 981 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2016).

10. Evidence

In action by minor against owner and operator of double-parked ice cream truck for injuries he sustained when he was struck by vehicle while he was sitting on his bicycle behind the double-parked truck, evidence as to truck owner's negligence in double parking in violation of traffic regulations was sufficient for jury. Giordano v Sheridan Maintenance Corp., 38 A.D.2d 552, 328 N.Y.S.2d 241, 1971 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2805 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1971).

11. Prima facia case

Passenger who was injured while exiting from rear passenger side of taxi owned and operated by defendants, when passing car struck open door of taxi, established prima facie case that defendants were negligent based on evidence that taxi driver violated CLS Veh & Tr § 1202(a)(1)(a) by double parking on left side of one-say street to allow her to exit. Ferguson v Gassman, 229 A.D.2d 464, 645 N.Y.S.2d 331, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7778 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1996).

12. Jury instructions

In action arising from accident in which infant plaintiff was struck by car after he passed in front of double parked van which obstructed vision of driver whose car struck him, court correctly instructed jury that, if it found that accident occurred at time when double parked van was actually loading passengers, then double parking was lawful at moment of accident regardless of fact that van had been unlawfully double parked for period of time prior to accident while awaiting arrival of passengers. Ramos v City of New York, 212 A.D.2d 480, 623 N.Y.S.2d 206, 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2301 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1995), reh'g denied, 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8586 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't Aug. 3, 1995), app. denied, 87 N.Y.2d 804, 639 N.Y.S.2d 782, 662 N.E.2d 1072, 1995 N.Y. LEXIS 5706 (N.Y. 1995).

Trial court committed reversible error in prosecution for operating motor vehicle with .10% or more by weight of alcohol in his bloodstream when it interjected its own opinion on facts into jury instruction concerning issue whether defendant was operating motor vehicle when he was found slumped over vehicle's steering wheel while motor was running. People v Hurley, 86 Misc. 2d 601, 383 N.Y.S.2d 177, 1976 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2492 (N.Y. County Ct. 1976).

13. Directed verdict

Directed verdict for a truck driver and owner was improper in a personal injury case arising out of an accident in which the van driver collided with the rear corner of the truck and then struck a vehicle in which the passenger was riding because the jury rationally concluded that the truck driver and owner were negligent in violating N.Y. Veh. & Traf. Law § 1202(a); however, the jury's apportionment of liability of 70 percent to the truck driver and owner and 30 percent to the van driver was unsupported by the evidence. The van driver's conduct in failing to maintain a safe distance, slow down, and change lanes when confronted with the well marked truck was clearly more of a cause of the accident than the jury found. Ivezic v Tully Constr. Corp., 47 A.D.3d 480, 850 N.Y.S.2d 65, 2008 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 288 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2008).

§ 1202. Stopping, standing or parking prohibited in specified places [Effective April 5, 2021]

(a) Except when necessary to avoid conflict with other traffic, or when in compliance with law or the directions of a police officer or official traffic-control device, no person shall:

1. Stop, stand or park a vehicle:

a. On the roadway side of any vehicle stopped, standing or parked at the edge or curb of a street;

b. On a sidewalk;

c. Within an intersection, except when permitted by official signs or parking meters on the side of a highway opposite a street which intersects but does not cross such highway;

d. On a cross walk;

e. Between a safety zone and the adjacent curb or within thirty feet of points on the curb immediately opposite the ends of a safety zone, unless a different distance is indicated by official signs, markings or parking meters;

f. Alongside or opposite any street excavation or obstruction when stopping, standing or parking would obstruct traffic;

g. Upon any bridge or other elevated structure upon a highway or within a highway tunnel, unless otherwise indicated by official signs, markings or parking meters;

h. On any railroad tracks;

i. In the area between roadways of a divided highway, including crossovers, except in an emergency;

j. On a state expressway highway or state interstate route highway, including the entrances thereto and exits therefrom, which are a part thereof, except in an emergency;

k. Engage in the retail sale of frozen desserts as that term is defined in subdivision thirty-seven of section three hundred seventy-five of this chapter directly to pedestrians on any highway having a speed limit in excess of thirty miles per hour. Nothing herein shall be construed to prohibit the operator of such vehicle from stopping such vehicle off such highway, in a safe manner, for the sole purpose of delivering such retail product directly to the residence of a consumer or to the business address of a customer of such retailer;

l. In a space designated as provided in this subparagraph for the exclusive purpose of charging an electric vehicle at an electric vehicle charging station, unless such vehicle is an electric vehicle connected to such charging station. Provided, however, that an electric motor vehicle disconnected from the electric vehicle charging station for no more than thirty continuous minutes while stopped, standing or parked in such designated space shall not be in violation of this subparagraph. Parking spaces designated for the exclusive purpose of charging an electric vehicle at an electric vehicle charging station shall be clearly identified, and such designation shall include conspicuous and permanently installed above grade signs which shall be positioned from the parking space surface at a height of not less than five feet nor more than seven feet and which identify such space as an electric vehicle charging station, indicate that such space is only for electric vehicle charging and include any day or time restrictions. For the purposes of this subparagraph, the term "electric vehicle" shall mean a motor vehicle that is propelled at least in part by an electric motor and associated power electronics which provide acceleration torque to the drive wheels sometime during normal vehicle operation, and that draws electricity from a battery or hydrogen fuel cell that is capable of being recharged from an external source of electricity, such that the external source of electricity cannot be connected to the vehicle while the vehicle is in motion, and the term "electric vehicle charging station" shall mean the equipment needed to convey electric power from the electric grid or another power source to an onboard motor vehicle energy storage system.

2. Stand or park a vehicle, whether occupied or not, except momentarily to pick up or discharge a passenger or passengers:

a. In front of a public or private driveway;

b. Within twenty feet of a cross walk at an intersection, unless a different distance is indicated by official signs, markings or parking meters;

c. Within thirty feet upon the approach to any flashing signal, stop or yield sign or traffic-control signal located at the side of the roadway, unless a different distance is indicated by official signs, markings or parking meters;

d. Within twenty feet of the driveway entrance to any fire station and, when on the side of the street opposite to the entrance of any fire station, within seventy-five feet of said entrance, when properly signposted, unless a different distance is indicated by official signs, markings or parking meters.

e. Alongside or obstructing a curb area which has been cut down, lowered or constructed so as to provide accessibility to the sidewalk.

3. Park a vehicle, whether occupied or not, except temporarily for the purpose of and while actually engaged in loading or unloading merchandise or passengers, within fifty feet of the nearest rail of a railroad crossing, unless a different distance is indicated by official signs, markings or parking meters.

(b) 1. No person shall stop, stand or park a vehicle within fifteen feet of a fire hydrant except when such vehicle is attended by a licensed operator or chauffeur who is seated in the front seat and who can immediately move such vehicle in case of emergency, unless a different distance is indicated by official signs, markings or parking meters.

2. No person shall stop, stand or park a vehicle within fifteen feet of a fire hydrant except when such vehicle is attended by a licensed operator or chauffeur who is seated in the front seat and who can immediately move such vehicle in case of emergency, when such vehicle impairs or hinders the access of a fire vehicle to a fire hydrant while such fire vehicle is engaged in an emergency operation, unless a different distance is indicated by official signs, markings, parking meters or the provisions of any local law, rule, or ordinance.

(c) No person shall move a vehicle not lawfully under his control into any prohibited area or away from a curb such distance as is unlawful.

1. No person shall operate a motor vehicle in this state unless: (a) all back seat passengers of such vehicle under the age of four are restrained in a specially designed seat which meets the Federal Motor Vehicle Safety Standards set forth in 49 C.F.R. 571.213 and which is either permanently affixed or is affixed to such vehicle by a safety belt and which shall be rear-facing whenever the passenger being restrained in such seat is under the age of two except that in the event that the weight or height of such passenger under the age of two exceeds the occupant size and weight recommendations of the manufacturer of such rear-facing seat, such seat may be forward-facing; provided, however, that in the event that the weight of such passenger under the age of four exceeds forty pounds, such passenger may be restrained (i) in an appropriate child restraint system as defined in subdivision four of this section used with combination lap safety and shoulder harness belts or (ii) by a lap safety belt in the event such vehicle is not equipped with combination lap safety and shoulder harness belts or all the combination lap safety and shoulder harness belts are being used to properly restrain other passengers who are under the age of sixteen; (b) all back seat passengers of such vehicle who are age four or older but under age eight (i) are restrained in an appropriate child restraint system as defined in subdivision four of this section used with combination lap and shoulder harness belts or (ii) are restrained in a lap safety belt in the event such vehicle is not equipped with combination lap safety and shoulder harness belts or all the combination lap safety and shoulder harness belts are being used to properly restrain other passengers who are under the age of sixteen; or (c) in the case of any other back seat passenger under the age of sixteen, he or she is restrained by a safety belt approved by the commissioner.

2. No person shall operate a motor vehicle unless all front seat passengers (a) under the age of sixteen are restrained by a safety belt; or (b) if they are under the age of four, by a specially designed seat which is either permanently affixed or affixed to such vehicle by a safety belt as required by subdivision one of this section, or in the event that the weight of such passenger under the age of four exceeds forty pounds, such passenger may be restrained (i) in an appropriate child restraint system as defined in subdivision four of this section used with combination lap safety and shoulder harness belts or (ii) by a lap safety belt in the event such vehicle is not equipped with combination lap safety and shoulder harness belts or all the combination lap safety and shoulder harness belts are being used to properly restrain other passengers who are under the age of sixteen; or (c) if they are age four or older but under age eight, (i) are restrained in an appropriate child restraint system as defined in subdivision four of this section used with combination lap safety and shoulder harness belts or (ii) are restrained in a lap safety belt in the event such vehicle is not equipped with combination lap safety and shoulder harness belts or all the combination lap safety and shoulder harness belts are being used to properly restrain other passengers who are under the age of sixteen.

3. No person shall operate a motor vehicle unless such person is restrained by a safety belt approved by the commissioner. No person sixteen years of age or over shall be a passenger in a motor vehicle unless such person is restrained by a safety belt approved by the commissioner.

3-a. Except as otherwise provided for passengers under the age of four, it shall be a violation of this section if a person is seated in a seating position equipped with both a lap safety belt and a shoulder harness belt and such person is not restrained by both such lap safety belt and shoulder harness belt.

3-b. No person holding a class DJ learner's permit or class DJ license issued pursuant to section five hundred two of this chapter, shall operate a motor vehicle in this state unless such person is restrained by a safety belt approved by the commissioner, and all passengers under the age of four are restrained in a specially designed seat which meets the federal motor vehicle safety standards set forth in 49 C.F.R. 571.213 and which is either permanently affixed or is affixed to such vehicle by a safety belt and, in the case of any other passenger under the age of sixteen, he or she is restrained by a safety belt approved by the commissioner. No person sixteen years of age or over shall be a passenger in a motor vehicle operated by a person holding a class DJ learner's permit, a class DJ license or a limited class DJ license unless such passenger is restrained by a safety belt approved by the commissioner.

3-c. (a) No person shall operate a taxi or livery unless such person is restrained by a safety belt approved by the commissioner.

(b) No person sixteen years of age or over shall be a passenger in a taxi or livery unless such person is restrained by a safety belt approved by the commissioner.

(c) No person eight years of age or older but under age sixteen shall be a passenger in a taxi or livery unless such person is restrained by a safety belt approved by the commissioner. A police officer shall only issue a summons for a violation of this paragraph to the parent or guardian of such person if the violation by such person occurs in the presence of such person's parent or guardian and where such parent or guardian is eighteen years of age or more. Such summons shall only be issued to such parent or guardian and shall not be issued to the person eight years of age or older but under age sixteen.

4. For the purposes of this section, the following terms shall have the following meanings: (a) "motor vehicle" shall include all motor vehicles which are required by section three hundred eighty-three of this chapter or regulation or would be required if such motor vehicle were registered in New York state to be equipped by a safety belt but shall not include those vehicles which are used as school buses, as such term is defined in section one hundred forty-two of this chapter and those vehicles which are authorized emergency vehicles, as such term is defined in section one hundred one of this chapter, provided, however, that for purposes of this section, "motor vehicle" shall also include fire vehicles owned and/or operated by a fire company as defined by subdivision two of section one hundred of the general municipal law and ambulances owned and/or operated by a voluntary ambulance service as defined by subdivision three of section one hundred of the general municipal law;

(b) "child restraint system" shall mean any device, used in conjunction with safety belts, designed for use in a motor vehicle to restrain, seat, or position children and which meets the applicable Federal Motor Vehicle Safety Standards set forth in 49 C.F.R. 571.213; and

(c) "appropriate child restraint system" shall mean a child restraint system for which the occupant meets the occupant size and weight recommendations of the manufacturer of such system.

5. Any person who violates the provisions of subdivision three, three-c or ten-a of this section shall be punished by a civil fine of up to fifty dollars. Any person who violates the provisions of subdivision one, two, eleven or thirteen of this section shall be punished by a civil fine of not less than twenty-five nor more than one hundred dollars. In any prosecution or proceeding alleging a violation of paragraph (b) of subdivision one or paragraph (c) of subdivision two of this section, it shall be an affirmative defense that the passenger subject to the requirements of such paragraphs was restrained by a safety belt and measures more than four feet nine inches in height and/or weighs more than one hundred pounds. In any prosecution or proceeding alleging a violation of paragraph (b) or paragraph (c) of subdivision three-c of this section, it shall be an affirmative defense that such taxi or livery was in violation of subdivision four-b of section three hundred eighty-three of this chapter.

6. The court shall waive any fine for which a person who violates the provisions of this section would be liable with respect to passengers under the age of eight if such person supplies the court with proof that, between the date on which he is charged with having violated this section and the appearance date for such violation, he purchased or rented a child restraint system which meets the requirements of subdivision one of this section. Provided, however, that such waiver of fine shall not apply to a second or subsequent conviction under this section.

7. The provisions of this section shall not apply to a passenger or operator with a physically disabling condition whose physical disability would prevent appropriate restraint in such safety seat or safety belt provided, however, such condition is duly certified by a physician who shall state the nature of the handicap, as well as the reason such restraint is inappropriate.

8. Non-compliance with the provisions of this section shall not be admissible as evidence in any civil action in a court of law in regard to the issue of liability but may be introduced into evidence in mitigation of damages provided the party introducing said evidence has pleaded such non-compliance as an affirmative defense.

9. Notwithstanding the provisions of subdivision four of this section, the provisions of this section shall not apply to buses other than school buses and the provisions of subdivisions one, two, three and three-a of this section shall not apply to taxis and liveries except that the provisions of subdivision three-a of this section shall be applicable to any person operating a taxi or livery and to taxi and livery passengers age eight or older.

10. The provisions of this section shall not apply to persons employed as rural letter carriers, as defined by the United States postal service, while such persons are discharging the duties of such employment.

10-a. Notwithstanding the provisions of subdivision one of this section, no person sixteen years of age or over shall be a passenger in the rear seat of a fire vehicle owned and/or operated by a fire company as defined by subdivision two of section one hundred of the general municipal law or in the rear seat of an ambulance owned and/or operated by a voluntary ambulance service as defined by subdivision three of section one hundred of the general municipal law unless such person is restrained by a safety belt approved by the commissioner. Provided, however, that the provisions of this subdivision shall not apply: (a) to a passenger in the rear seat of such fire vehicle or ambulance if such seat is not required to be equipped with safety belts pursuant to the provisions of section three hundred eighty-three of this chapter, nor (b) to emergency medical personnel during the course of providing patient care in the rear compartment of an ambulance in accordance with applicable patient care standards, guidelines and protocols established pursuant to article thirty of the public health law.

11. Notwithstanding the provisions of subdivision four of this section, no person shall operate a school bus unless all passengers under the age of four are restrained in a specially designed detachable or removable seat as required by subdivision one of this section, or another restraining device approved by the commissioner.

12. (a) Every rental vehicle company, as defined in paragraph (c) of subdivision one of section three hundred ninety-six-z of the general business law, shall post a sign in their place of business which states in conspicuous lettering of at least seventy-two point boldface type:

NEW YORK STATE LAW REQUIRES ALL CHILDREN UNDER THE AGE OF EIGHT TO BE RESTRAINED IN A FEDERALLY APPROVED CHILD RESTRAINT SYSTEM.

(b) Such sign shall be placed in an upright position and in a conspicuous place where it can easily be read by the clientele of the rental vehicle company.

(c) Any rental vehicle company which violates the provisions of this subdivision shall be subject to a civil penalty, not to exceed one hundred dollars for each day of violation.

13. Notwithstanding the provisions of subdivision four of this section, no person shall operate a school bus for which there are no applicable federal school bus safety standards unless all occupants are restrained by a safety belt approved by the commissioner or, regarding occupants age four or older but under age seven, are restrained pursuant to subdivision one or two of this section.

§ 14. This act shall take effect immediately; provided, however, that:

(a) sections one, five, six, eight, nine and ten and the amendments to paragraph (d) of subdivision 1 of section 501-b of the vehicle and traffic law made by section two of this act shall take effect on the one hundred eightieth day after it shall have become a law and shall apply to licenses issued on or after such effective date. Any license issued pursuant to section 503-a of the vehicle and traffic law prior to such effective date shall remain in effect until the expiration date of such license; (Amd, L 2010, ch 215, § 3, eff July 15, 2010.)

Laws 2017, ch 340, § 3, eff Nov 1, 2017, provides:

§ 3. This act shall take effect November 1, 2017. Effective immediately, the addition, amendment and/or repeal of any rule or regulation necessary for the implementation of this act on its effective date is authorized to be made on or before such effective date.

Laws 2017, ch 393, § 2, eff Nov 1, 2019, provides:

§ 2. This act shall take effect November 1, 2019.

Laws 2020, ch 8, § 3, eff November 1, 2020, provides:

§ 3. This act shall take effect on the first of November next succeeding the date on which it shall have become a law.

Laws 2020, ch 38, § 5, eff November 1, 2020, provides:

§ 5. This act shall take effect on the same date and in the same manner as a chapter of the laws of 2020, amending the vehicle and traffic law relating to safety belt requirements for taxis and livery vehicles, as proposed in legislative bills numbers S. 7134 and A. 8990, takes effect; provided, however, that section three of this act shall take effect one year after this act shall have become a law. Effective immediately, the addition, amendment and/or repeal of any rule or regulation necessary for the implementation of this act on its effective date are authorized to be made and completed on or before such effective date.

Laws 2020, ch 136, § 2, eff November 1, 2020, provides:

§ 2. This act shall take effect on the first of November next succeeding the date on which it shall have become a law.

1988 Recommendations of Advisory Committee on Criminal Law and Procedure: The Committee recommends that subdivision six of section 1229-c of the Vehicle and Traffic Law be amended to provide that a fine for violating the mandatory seat belt law provisions relating to restraint of children under age 4 (VTL § 1229-c(1), (2)) may be waived only where the court is supplied with proof that a child seating system has been purchased or rented since the date of the violation.

The purpose of this measure is to correct a loophole in section 1229-c. Subdivisions one and two of section 1229-c require that children under the age of four be restrained in specially-designed car seats meeting Federal Motor Vehicle Safety Standards set forth in 49 C.F.R. 571.213. Subdivision five of that section provides that a violation of any of the provisions of section 1129-c shall be punishable by a civil fine, not exceeding 50 dollars. Subdivision six, however, requires the court to waive any such fine where the violation of section 1229-c involves failure to comply with its requirements concerning seat restraints for children under four and the court is presented with proof that the violator has "purchased or rented a child seating system . . . on or before the appearance date [of his or her] violation."

Herein lies the loophole. It has been pointed out to the Advisory Committee that subdivision six prescribes no date after which a violator, seeking to benefit from the waiver provision, must have purchased the necessary seating system. Thus, the statute would seem to require that, where a violator is convicted for failing to use a seating system that he or she already owned at the time the violation occured, the fine must be waived. The Legislature cannot have intended such an anomaly. Accordingly, this measure would amend subdivision six of section 1229-c to clarify that waiver of the fine may be ordered only where a child seating system is purchased after the date of the violation.

Amendment Notes The 2015 amendment by ch 448 §§ 1–4, redesignated former 3-a as 3-b; added "provided, however, that for purposes of this section, 'motor vehicle' shall also include fire vehicles owned and/or operated by a fire company as defined by subdivision two of section one hundred of the general municipal law and ambulances owned and/or operated by a voluntary ambulance service as defined by subdivision three of section one hundred of the general municipal law" in 4(a); added "or ten-a" in the first sentence of 5; and added 10-a.

The 2017 amendment by ch 340, §§ 1, 2, in 5, added "three-c" in the first sentence, and added the last sentence; in 9, added "of this section, the provisions of," deleted "taxis, liveries and" following "shall not apply to," and added "and the provisions of subdivisions one, two, three and three-a of this section shall not apply to taxis and liveries"; and added 3-c.

The 2017 amendment by ch 393, § 1, substituted "and which shall be rear-facing whenever the passenger being restrained in such seat is under the age of two except that in the event that the weight or height of such passenger under the age of two exceeds the occupant size and weight recommendations of the manufacturer of such rear-facing seat, such seat may be forward-facing; provided, however, that" for "or" in 1.

The 2020 amendments by ch 8, §§ 1, 2, deleted "the front seat of" preceding "a taxi" in 3-c(b); added 3-c(c); and added "except that the provisions of subdivision three-a of this section shall be applicable to any person operating a taxi or livery and to taxi and livery passengers age eight or older" in 9.

The 2020 amendments by ch 38, §§ 1, 2, in 3-c(c), substituted "person eight years of age" for "person shall operate a taxi or livery unless all passengers who are age eight" and "age sixteen shall be a passenger in a taxi or livery unless such person is restrained" for "age sixteen are restrained" in the first sentence, and added the second and third sentences; added "or paragraph (c)" in the last sentence of 5.

The 2020 amendment by ch 136, § 1, deleted "the front seat of" following "a passenger in" in 3.

1. In general

State legislation addressing vehicle rental practices, including regulations imposed on all motor vehicles, does not set forth sufficiently comprehensive scheme of regulation to preempt further legislation in field by municipalities. Hertz Corp. v City of N.Y., 80 N.Y.2d 565, 592 N.Y.S.2d 637, 607 N.E.2d 784, 1992 N.Y. LEXIS 4238 (N.Y. 1992).

Where defendant was convicted of criminal possession of a controlled substance, the county court properly denied his motion to suppress the evidence seized from his vehicle because the police were justified in making the initial stop based an informant's tip that a vehicle matching the description had a large quantity of ecstacy in it. An officer stopped defendant after observing him driving without a seat belt. People v Portelli, 116 A.D.3d 1163, 983 N.Y.S.2d 355, 2014 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2405 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2014).

CLS Veh & Tr § 1229-c was enacted in response to federal regulation and did not prohibit comparative fault approach to seat belt defense in wrongful death action. Karczmit v State, 155 Misc. 2d 486, 588 N.Y.S.2d 963, 1992 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 437 (N.Y. Ct. Cl. 1992).

Father's violation of N.Y. Veh. & Traf. Law § 1229-c(1) for his failure to adequately secure the infant decedent in a child safety seat did not disqualify the father as an intestate distributee of the decedent's estate. Matter of Wigfall, 859 N.Y.S.2d 864, 20 Misc. 3d 648, 239 N.Y.L.J. 124, 2008 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3515 (N.Y. Sur. Ct. 2008).

2. Constitutionality

Mandatory seatbelt use law (CLS Vehicle and Traffic Law § 1229-c) constitutes proper and constitutional exercise of state's police power, since fastening seatbelt can hardly be termed burdensome, and benefits flowing from their use are vast; preventing or reducing injuries to unrestrained driver or occupant is valid state interest; classification created by statute which exempts taxis, liveries, tractors and certain heavy trucks and buses other than school buses does not violate Fourteenth Amendment of United States Constitution in that exemptions bear reasonable relation to desired legislative purposes; further, law is not invalid for vagueness in requiring use of safety belt approved by commissioner. People v Weber, 129 Misc. 2d 993, 494 N.Y.S.2d 960, 1985 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2892 (N.Y. Town Ct. 1985).

State's mandatory "seatbelt law," CLS Veh & Tr § 1229-c, is valid constitutional exercise of legislative power, as statute serves compelling state interest of saving lives and promoting welfare of citizens, and does not violate equal protection by exempting certain classes of vehicles and persons on requirement to wear seatbelts, as classifications are not suspect classifications and need only serve rational basis to be sustained, and further, State is not obligated to regulate all phases of problem or every class of acts or actors involved. Wells v State, 130 Misc. 2d 113, 495 N.Y.S.2d 591, 1985 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3147 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1985), aff'd, 134 A.D.2d 874, 521 N.Y.S.2d 604, 1987 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 51060 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1987).

3. Applicability

A defendant who operated a commercial van with two passengers under the age of five unrestrained by child safety seats violated Veh & Tr Law § 1229-c, where the law applied to all passenger motor vehicles, and a commercial van was such a vehicle. People v Hall, 117 Misc. 2d 1085, 459 N.Y.S.2d 970, 1983 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3253 (N.Y. J. Ct. 1983).

4. Construction

Term "safety belt" can refer to either "seat safety belts" or "shoulder harness safety belts," and thus defendant was not deemed in violation of CLS Veh & Tr § 1229-c(2) where her son (who was under 16 years of age) was wearing lap belt, but not provided shoulder harness, at time of police stop. People v Cucinello, 183 Misc. 2d 50, 701 N.Y.S.2d 599, 1999 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 573 (N.Y. App. Term 1999).

Based on plain language of CLS Veh & Tr § 1229-c read in conjunction with 15 NYCRR § 49.2(a), driver or passenger in front seat of motor vehicle was not required to use shoulder harness safety belt if lap safety belt was connected. People v Widrick, 185 Misc. 2d 765, 713 N.Y.S.2d 847, 2000 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 380 (N.Y. City Ct. 2000).

Defendant did not violate N.Y. Veh. & Traf. Law § 1229-c(3-a) by wearing defendant's shoulder belt portion of defendant's seatbelt under defendant's left arm rather than over the shoulder; the statute required defendant to be restrained by both the shoulder and lap belts, and defendant was still being restrained by the shoulder belt even though defendant wore it under defendant's arm. People v Locke, 765 N.Y.S.2d 468, 1 Misc. 3d 482, 2003 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1187 (N.Y. City Ct. 2003).

Because defendant stipulated to wearing the shoulder portion of a seat belt under an arm instead of over a shoulder, the prosecution proved him guilty, beyond a reasonable doubt, of violating N.Y. Veh. & Traf. Law § 1229-c(3)(a). People v Fortin, 839 N.Y.S.2d 672, 16 Misc. 3d 615, 2007 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 4162 (N.Y. City Ct. 2007).

5. No duty on passenger

In action for injuries sustained by 16-year-old boy in motor vehicle accident, defendant was entitled to have allegation stricken from bill of particulars which stated that driver of vehicle in which boy was passenger was negligent in failing to ensure that boy wore safety belt, since CLS Veh & Tr § 1229-c(3) does not impose duty on driver to require passenger who is 16 or older to wear safety belt or to ensure that passenger is restrained by safety belt before operating vehicle. Stewart v Taylor, 193 A.D.2d 1078, 598 N.Y.S.2d 627, 1993 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5702 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1993).

Mother who chose to hold her 2-month-old son in her arms while riding as passenger in back seat of car could not be held liable for comparative negligence when child was killed as result of car accident since (1) her decision was within parameters of her parental discretion and judgment, (2) any breach of duty of care in failing to place infant in child safety seat did not give rise to viable cause of action based on negligence because she did not owe such duty to world at large, and (3) CLS Veh & Tr § 1229-c imposes duty to restrain child passenger on operator of vehicle, not on fellow passenger. Thurel v Varghese, 207 A.D.2d 220, 621 N.Y.S.2d 633, 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 318 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1995).

Although N.Y. Veh. & Traf. Law § 1229-c, imposed a duty upon operators of motor vehicles to ensure that child passengers are properly restrained, this statute did not impose a duty on a passenger to cause her child to be put in a restraint system under circumstances in which the motorist did not claim that the passenger was in any way involved in the operation of plaintiffs' vehicle; dismissal of the motorist's counterclaim against the passenger was proper. Horan v Brown, 43 A.D.3d 608, 842 N.Y.S.2d 597, 2007 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8901 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2007).

6. Emergency vehicles

In defendant's prosecution for vehicular assault in the second degree under N.Y. Penal Law § 120.03, defendant was properly barred from claiming that the failure of a police officer, who was struck in his patrol car by defendant's vehicle, to wear a seat belt was the intervening cause of his serious physical injuries because the officer was not required to wear a seat belt under N.Y. Veh. & Traf. Law §§ 101, 1229-c(3), (4). People v Mojica, 62 A.D.3d 100, 874 N.Y.S.2d 195, 241 N.Y.L.J. 44, 2009 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1499 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't), app. denied, 12 N.Y.3d 856, 881 N.Y.S.2d 668, 909 N.E.2d 591, 2009 N.Y. LEXIS 2801 (N.Y. 2009).

City could not be held negligent as matter of law for injury caused by absence of seat belts in fire truck, in view of statutory exemption provided to emergency vehicles in CLS Veh & Tr § 1229-c. Weyant v City of New York, 162 Misc. 2d 132, 616 N.Y.S.2d 428, 1994 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 359 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1994).

In action against city by firefighter who was injured in accident while riding in fire truck from which seat belts had been removed, city was not entitled to have verdict against it set aside on basis of statutory exemption to seat belt law provided to emergency vehicles in CLS Veh & Tr § 1229-c, since city could still be found to have been negligent in removing seat belts that were provided with fire truck at time of purchase. Weyant v City of New York, 162 Misc. 2d 132, 616 N.Y.S.2d 428, 1994 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 359 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1994).

7. Violations of seat belt law

Police were justified in stopping vehicle in which defendant was passenger where he was not wearing seat belt as required by CLS Veh & Tr § 1229-c. People v Mikel, 152 A.D.2d 603, 543 N.Y.S.2d 712, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9632 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1989).

Complaint failed to state cause of action for abuse of process, even if plaintiff could establish impropriety of defendant's alleged ulterior motive for issuance of traffic ticket charging violation of seat belt law, where process was both issued and used for its intended purpose. Ackermann v Maloney, 223 A.D.2d 982, 636 N.Y.S.2d 882, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 522 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), app. dismissed, 88 N.Y.2d 841, 644 N.Y.S.2d 682, 667 N.E.2d 332, 1996 N.Y. LEXIS 1039 (N.Y. 1996).

Conviction of failure to use safety belt was supported by state trooper's testimony that, after stopping defendant for speeding, he approached driver's side of car, advised defendant to step out, and saw that defendant was not wearing seat belt. People v Burdick, 266 A.D.2d 711, 699 N.Y.S.2d 173, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12115 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1999).

On defendant's motion, the trial court improperly suppressed physical evidence because a police officer's decision to stop the vehicle in which defendant was a passenger was justified by the officer's observation that the driver was not wearing a seat belt in violation of N.Y. Veh. & Traf. Law § 1229-c(3); as a passenger, defendant demonstrated no legitimate expectation of privacy in the vehicle and thus lacked standing to challenge the search. Moreover, defendant did not have automatic standing since the People did not rely on the statutory presumption of N.Y. Penal Law § 220.25(1); at any rate, once the officer observed the plastic bag of what appeared to be cocaine in plain view, he was entitled to seize the narcotics and arrest defendant. People v Robinson, 38 A.D.3d 572, 832 N.Y.S.2d 585, 2007 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2616 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2007).

Because a state trooper was able to observe that defendant was not wearing a safety belt in violation of N.Y. Veh. & Traf. Law § 1229-c(3), the trooper was justified in stopping defendant's vehicle; accordingly, the hearing court properly denied defendant's motion to suppress physical evidence. People v Souris, 46 A.D.3d 711, 846 N.Y.S.2d 587, 2007 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12619 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2007), app. denied, 10 N.Y.3d 964, 863 N.Y.S.2d 148, 893 N.E.2d 454, 2008 N.Y. LEXIS 2691 (N.Y. 2008).

Police officer reasonably initiated a traffic stop of defendant's vehicle based upon the existence of probable cause because the officer observed the exhaust system on defendant's vehicle was excessively loud, N.Y. Veh. & Traf. Law § 375(31), and defendant was operating the vehicle without wearing a seatbelt, N.Y. Veh. & Traf. Law § 1229-c(3). People v Issac, 107 A.D.3d 1055, 968 N.Y.S.2d 631, 2013 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3974 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2013).

County court did not err in denying defendant's motion to suppress under the Fourth Amendment and N.Y. Const. art. I, § 12 because traffic stop was lawful as officer had probable cause to believe that defendant committed a traffic violation based on officer's observation that rear license plate of defendant's vehicle was inadequately lit as its numerals did not illuminate in the dark and that defendant was driving without a seatbelt. People v Blandford, 2021 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 85 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2021).

8. Seat belt defense

In an action arising out of an automobile accident in which an eight-year-old child, who was riding in the back seat of defendants' automobile but was not restrained by a safety belt, was injured, summary judgment was properly granted dismissing all causes of action predicated on alleged noncompliance with Vehicle and Traffic Law § 1229-c, which provides that no person shall operate a motor vehicle in New York unless all backseat passengers under the age of 10 are restrained by a safety belt, since the plain language of subdivision (8) of the statute prohibits proof in support of plaintiffs' causes of action predicated, directly or indirectly, upon noncompliance with section 1229-c. The statute, in the broadest and clearest of terms, prohibits any evidence of noncompliance in regard to the issue of liability, and absent ambiguity, courts may not resort to rules of construction to vary the scope and application of a statute. Hamilton v Purser, 162 A.D.2d 91, 563 N.Y.S.2d 163, 1990 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12076 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1990).

In action for injuries sustained by minor plaintiff in crash of car in which she was riding, it was error to submit seat belt defense to jury and reduce gross verdict in plaintiff's favor by 25 percent on basis of defense, since there was no evidence tying plaintiff's injury to fact that her head may have hit windshield because she was not wearing seat belt. Schrader v Carney, 180 A.D.2d 200, 586 N.Y.S.2d 687, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8206 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1992).

Seemingly contrary dictum in Obercon v Glebatis, 89 AD2d 762, did not alter rule that defense of failure to use available seat belt has nothing to do with issues of liability or serious injury threshold. Carson v De Lorenzo, 238 A.D.2d 790, 657 N.Y.S.2d 469, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3944 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), app. denied, 90 N.Y.2d 810, 666 N.Y.S.2d 99, 688 N.E.2d 1381, 1997 N.Y. LEXIS 3628 (N.Y. 1997).

CLS Veh & Tr § 1229-c prohibits proof in civil action predicated, directly or indirectly, on noncompliance with statute. Baker v Keller, 241 A.D.2d 947, 661 N.Y.S.2d 330, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7892 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1997).

Plaintiff was not entitled to amend complaint to allege that defendant was negligent in permitting plaintiff's son to ride in back seat of car without wearing safety belt, since CLS Veh & Tr § 1129-c prohibits proof of noncompliance with seat belt law in civil action and thus amendment was patently lacking in merit. Baker v Keller, 241 A.D.2d 947, 661 N.Y.S.2d 330, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7892 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1997).

Seatbelt defense against plaintiff passenger in intersection collision case should be limited to jury's determination of damages and mitigation of damages. Garcia v Tri County Ambulette

Serv., 282 A.D.2d 206, 723 N.Y.S.2d 163, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3364 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2001).

Unambiguous language of N.Y. Veh. & Traf. Law § 1229-c(8) precluded a town sued for negligent road maintenance from defending against liability on a claim that injured children were not strapped in their child-car seats. Boyd v Trent, 297 A.D.2d 301, 746 N.Y.S.2d 191, 2002 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7920 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2002).

Trial court erred, in an infant's suit against his father based on the father's improper placement of the infant in a vehicle, in denying the infant's motion to strike an affirmative defense alleging the infant's failure to use the available seatbelt because, inter alia, as the driver, the father had a duty to restrain any child under the age of four in the front seat under N.Y. Veh. & Traf. Law § 1229-c(2); the trial court also erred in denying the father's cross motion seeking dismissal of the infant's claim based on a violation of N.Y. Veh. & Traf. Law § 1229-c because, pursuant to N.Y. Veh. & Traf. Law § 1229-c(8) evidence of non-compliance was inadmissible in regard to the issue of liability. Smith v Kinsey, 50 A.D.3d 1456, 858 N.Y.S.2d 495, 2008 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4658 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 2008).

In action to recover for injuries sustained by 14-month-old child in motor vehicle accident, court granted plaintiffs' motion to strike affirmative defenses alleging comparative fault, assumption of risk and failure to mitigate damages due to child's failure to use seat belt or child car seat, as 14-month-old is incapable of contributory negligence, and contributory negligence of child's parent or other custodian cannot be imputed to child. Rider v Speaker, 180 Misc. 2d 999, 692 N.Y.S.2d 920, 1999 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 254 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1999).

9. —Use in determining liability

In action by car passenger injured when driver swerved to avoid deer and lost control of car, passenger was not entitled to dismissal of car owner's seat belt defense, even though owner cited inapplicable section of Vehicle and Traffic Law, where owner provided passenger with notice of its intention to rely on seat belt defense in its amended answer and amended verified bill of particulars, and thus there was no surprise to passenger, and owner raised triable issue of fact as to whether passenger was wearing available seat belt. Fitz-Gerald v Rich, 251 A.D.2d 1017, 674 N.Y.S.2d 232, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7043 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1998).

Where failure to wear seat belt is alleged to be cause of accident, conduct of party in failing to wear belt may be considered on issue of liability. Muzammil v Singh, 275 A.D.2d 398, 712 N.Y.S.2d 875, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8830 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2000).

Forklift operator's motion to strike seat belt defense was denied where expert testimony provided a sufficient predicate for trier of fact to reasonably conclude that the operator's use of a seatbelt would have prevented, or minimized, his injuries. Zollinger v Owens-Brockway Glass Container, Inc., 233 F. Supp. 2d 349, 2002 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 22437 (N.D.N.Y. 2002).

10. —Use in mitigation of damages

In personal injury action arising from motor vehicle accident in which plaintiff's decedent died when defendant ran stop sign, hit decedent's automobile, and caused decedent to be ejected from automobile, court erred in barring plaintiff from eliciting testimony from medical examiner as to whether decedent would have died even if he wore seat belt, since such question was pertinent and relevant to jury's determination of mitigation of damages. Stein v Penatello, 185 A.D.2d 976, 587 N.Y.S.2d 37, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10377 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1992).

Any issue of fact as to whether the injured passenger in a vehicle involved in a traffic accident failed to use an available seat belt did not prevent the granting of the injured passenger's motion for summary judgment on the issue of liability; whether the injured passenger failed to use an available seat belt, and whether any such failure resulted in an exacerbation of the injuries that he suffered, were among the issues that may have been decided at the trial on the issue of damages. Martinez v Novin, 303 A.D.2d 653, 757 N.Y.S.2d 317, 2003 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3184 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2003).

Trial court acted within its discretion in permitting a driver to amend his answer to assert a seatbelt defense in an injured police officer's action because while the injured police officer was not statutorily required to wear a seatbelt at the time of the accident, and his failure to do so was not relevant to the issue of the driver's liability, the seatbelt defense could be introduced into evidence in mitigation of damages. Freder v Costello Indus., Inc., 162 A.D.3d 984, 80 N.Y.S.3d 371, 2018 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4650 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2018).

In wrongful death action against state arising from accident in which decedent failed to wear seat belt and would have survived with minimal injuries if she had worn seat belt, failure to use seat belt would not bar all recovery but was "culpable conduct" within meaning of CLS CPLR § 1411 and would cause reduction in recovery. Karczmit v State, 155 Misc. 2d 486, 588 N.Y.S.2d 963, 1992 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 437 (N.Y. Ct. Cl. 1992).

11. —Evidence permitted

Supreme Court was not required to strike testimony of defendant's engineering expert, including his opinion that plaintiff was not using seat belt at time of accident and that if she had been using it, her head would not have struck windshield. Carson v De Lorenzo, 238 A.D.2d 790, 657 N.Y.S.2d 469, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3944 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), app. denied, 90 N.Y.2d 810, 666 N.Y.S.2d 99, 688 N.E.2d 1381, 1997 N.Y. LEXIS 3628 (N.Y. 1997).

Defendants, driver of vehicle and residential complex owner, were improperly granted summary judgment in action for injuries sustained when plaintiff fell off tailgate of vehicle as driver and plaintiff were driving around complex as volunteers replacing light bulbs in complex's common areas since plaintiff's assumption of risk, if any, was but factor to be considered in ascertaining proportionate culpable conduct of parties, and to the extent that plaintiff's decision to sit on tailgate rather than in vehicle with seat belt could be considered functional equivalent of nonuse of available seat belt, that fact could be considered in mitigation of damages; further, whether plaintiff was intoxicated, and whether such intoxication was factor in his fall, was fact question. Roach v Szatko, 244 A.D.2d 470, 664 N.Y.S.2d 101, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11643 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1997), app. dismissed, 91 N.Y.2d 956, 671 N.Y.S.2d 717, 694 N.E.2d 886, 1998 N.Y. LEXIS 906 (N.Y. 1998).

Seat belt defense was properly submitted to jury in automobile collision case where (1) plaintiff testified that he was not wearing his seat belt at time of accident, that his face hit windshield, and that glass from windshield was still surfacing from his lacerations at time of trial, (2) defendants' accident reconstruction specialist testified that seat belts are effective in preventing occupant from hitting windshield during front-impact collision and that seat belts would prevent head injuries in collisions involving occupants of car that was decelerating, (3) defendants' engineering professor testified that seat belt is the most effective restraint system if vehicle is hit directly in front or from any angle within 45 degrees to right or left, and (4) plaintiff's safety engineer admitted that, in crash tests conducted on make and model of car at issue, belted dummy passenger's face never came into contact with windshield. Lustyik v Manaher, 246 A.D.2d 887, 668 N.Y.S.2d 410, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 514 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1998).

Evidence that motorist was not wearing seat belt at time pickup truck he was driving collided with tree, which resulted in fuel-fed fire in which motorist was killed, was admissible in products liability action against truck manufacturer based on alleged design defect in fuel tank; failure to wear seat belt, while not causing fire, may have caused some of motorist's injuries and was relevant to claim for damages for motorist's conscious pain and suffering before, and was also relevant to theory of manufacturer as to how accident occurred. Ake v GMC, 942 F. Supp. 869, 1996 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 16017 (W.D.N.Y. 1996).

12. —Evidence not permitted

In action for personal injuries from automobile accident, defendants were properly precluded from inquiring into plaintiff's failure to wear seat belt during liability phase of trial since such testimony was relevant only to issue of damages, and defendants were also properly prevented from eliciting such testimony and arguing seat belt defense during damages phase where record indicated that defendants did not intend to present any competent evidence to indicate that any of plaintiff's injuries were caused by his failure to wear seat belt. Siegfried v Siegfried, 123 A.D.2d 621, 507 N.Y.S.2d 20, 1986 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 60769 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1986).

Court properly dismissed seat belt defense (CLS Veh & Tr § 1229-c) raised by defendant in wrongful death action arising from accident in which defendant's van crashed into side of car from which decedent, who was not wearing seat belt, was partially ejected and killed when car flipped over and landed on his head, since defendant's expert testified only that decedent "would not have sustained the injuries he did" had he worn seat belt but gave no opinion whether decedent could have survived internal injuries to his lung, liver and pelvis had he not also suffered head injury, whereas plaintiff's expert testified to ineffectiveness of seat belts in protecting human body against lateral impacts and concluded that while seat belt may have prevented head injury, it would not have prevented decedent's other internal injuries caused by lateral impact and that it was unlikely that decedent would have survived "whether or not he was wearing a seat belt." Baginski v New York Tel. Co., 130 A.D.2d 362, 515 N.Y.S.2d 23, 1987 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 46374 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1987).

13. Procedure

In personal injury action arising from motor vehicle accident, court did not abuse its discretion in allowing defendant to amend its answer to assert defense that plaintiff failed to mitigate his injuries by wearing seat belt, despite lateness of defendant's motion, where (1) motion was based on belated discovery of photograph of vehicle which depicted existence of seat belt, which flatly contradicted plaintiff's testimony at examination before trial that there were no seat belts in vehicle, (2) both parties had responsibility for delay in bringing action to trial, and (3) both parties had equal opportunity to inspect vehicle and should have discovered presence of seat belt at earlier date. Sass v Mack Trucks, Inc., 158 A.D.2d 332, 551 N.Y.S.2d 21, 1990 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1244 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1990).

In personal injury action arising from motor vehicle accident in which plaintiff's decedent died when defendant ran stop sign, hit decedent's automobile, and caused decedent to be ejected from automobile, court erred in submitting interrogatory to jury which asked whether decedent's death was caused by his failure to use seat belt, and effectively precluded jury from determining whether decedent would have sustained any other compensable injuries had he worn seat belt; evidence established possibility that decedent would have sustained injury even if he had worn seat belt, and it was therefore improper to frame interrogatory in manner which precluded jury from considering failure to use seat belt as mitigating damages rather than as full defense. Stein v Penatello, 185 A.D.2d 976, 587 N.Y.S.2d 37, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10377 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1992).

Supreme Court lacked authority, in automobile collision case, to consider juror affidavits or to amend amount reported by jury on special verdict sheet asking amount to which, rather than by which, plaintiff's total damages should be reduced because of his failure to use seat belt where, although there was confusion among counsel and court as to amount awarded, nothing in record indicated confusion among jurors in reaching their verdict. Lustyik v Manaher, 246 A.D.2d 887, 668 N.Y.S.2d 410, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 514 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1998).

Since CLS Veh & Tr § 1229-c allows noncompliance with seatbelt requirement to be introduced in mitigation of damages only where party introducing such evidence has pleaded noncompliance as affirmative defense, defendant in personal injury action who failed to specifically plead plaintiff's nonuse of seatbelts but instead relied solely on defense of "culpable conduct" would be precluded from introducing evidence of nonuse. Costanza v New York, 147 Misc. 2d 94, 553 N.Y.S.2d 616, 1990 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 126 (N.Y. Civ. Ct. 1990).

Defendant in personal injury action who failed to specifically plead plaintiff's nonuse of seatbelts as affirmative defense, as required by CLS Veh & Tr § 1229-c, would not be permitted to introduce expert testimony tending to show that plaintiff was not wearing seatbelts at time of accident on theory that expert would merely be attacking plaintiff's credibility, since it would be impossible to admit such evidence for limited purpose advanced without violating clear intent of statute. Costanza v New York, 147 Misc. 2d 94, 553 N.Y.S.2d 616, 1990 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 126 (N.Y. Civ. Ct. 1990).

14. —Summary judgment

In action for injuries sustained in automobile accident by 8-year-old child, who was riding in back seat of defendants' car but was not restrained by safety belt, court properly granted summary judgment dismissing causes of action predicated on noncompliance with CLS Veh & Tr § 1229-c since plain language of subdivision (8) of that statute prohibits any evidence of noncompliance in regard to issue of liability. Hamilton v Purser, 162 A.D.2d 91, 563 N.Y.S.2d 163, 1990 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12076 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1990).

Owner and driver of approaching vehicle were not entitled to summary judgment dismissing wrongful death action against them where there was triable issue of fact as to whether driver had enough time to take evasive action before hitting plaintiff's decedent, who had been ejected from cab of pickup truck onto road, and defendants did not prove that alleged failure of decedent to wear available seatbelt was sole cause of accident. Van Ostberg v Crane, 273 A.D.2d 895, 709 N.Y.S.2d 774, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6894 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't), reh'g denied, 716 N.Y.S.2d 351, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9714 (N.Y. § 1602. Emergency rule

(a) Whenever a police officer shall deem it advisable during a fire or at the time of any accident or special emergency and only for such period of time as is necessitated thereby for the public safety or convenience, temporarily to close any street or part thereof to vehicular traffic, or to vehicles of a certain description, or to divert the traffic thereof, or to divert or break a course of pedestrian traffic, such official shall have power and authority to do so.

(b) In the event of a fire or other emergency or to expedite traffic or to safeguard pedestrians or property: any police officer or other person empowered to regulate traffic at the scene may, to the extent authorized by local law, ordinance, order, rule, regulation or administrative code provision adopted by local authorities with respect to highways within their corporate boundaries, direct traffic as conditions may require notwithstanding the provisions of this chapter or of local laws, ordinances, orders, rules, regulations, administrative code or sanitary code provisions regulating traffic; and, in addition, outside of cities and villages any member of the state police may direct traffic as conditions may require notwithstanding the provisions of this chapter or of local laws, ordinances, orders, rules or regulations regulating traffic.

(c) Whenever the head of any police force or police department or the chief executive officer of a city, town or village shall deem it advisable during a snow storm or in order to remove snow or to plow streets, provided that signs or markings giving notice are posted as required by section sixteen hundred eighty-three of this chapter, such head of the police force or police department or the chief executive officer of a city, town or village may close any street or part thereof to vehicular traffic or prohibit, restrict or limit the stopping, standing or parking of vehicles.

(d) The superintendent of the New York state police or the head of any police force or police department may authorize the temporary closure of any street or part thereof to vehicular traffic, or to vehicles of a certain description, or to divert the traffic thereof, or to divert or break a course of pedestrian traffic in the following situations:

1. during the time of any speed contest, exhibition of speed or similar special event which is being held pursuant to section eleven hundred eighty-two-a of this chapter;

2. during the time of the filming of any movie, commercial or similar event which is being undertaken pursuant to section eleven hundred eighty-two-b of this chapter.

Notes to Decisions

Driver violated N.Y. Veh. & Traf. Law § 1102 where he failed to yield to the directions of volunteer firefighters who were directing traffic at the scene of an automobile accident, as the firefighters had authority to act pursuant to the instructions given to them by their fire chief, who had properly delegated his authority to regulate traffic at such incidents pursuant to the emergency doctrine contained in N.Y. Veh. & Traf. Law § 1602; although the firefighters were not fire police officers, pursuant to N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 209-c, they were acting under the direction and control of their chief pursuant to N.Y. Village Law § 10-1018. People v Loren, 4 N.Y.3d 411, 796 N.Y.S.2d 26, 828 N.E.2d 983, 2005 N.Y. Agency Opinions

A volunteer fireman, who is not a member of a fire police squad, may not be held personally liable for damages resulting from his negligence in directing traffic as part of a firemanic operation. 1975 NY Ops Atty Gen Jan 17.

ARTICLE 39 Regulation of Traffic by Cities and Villages

HISTORY:
Add, L 1959, ch 775, eff Oct 1, 1960, with substance transferred from former Art 26.

§ 1640-a. Traffic regulations at parking areas and driveways of hospitals, shopping centers, office buildings and office building complexes, places of public assembly, facilities owned or leased by not-for-profit corporations, private apartment complexes and fire stations; private condominium complex; mobile home parks; manufactured home parks

The legislative body of any city or village, with respect to the parking areas and driveways of a hospital or parking area of a shopping center, office building and office building complex or place of public assembly, or the parking areas and driveways of facilities owned or leased by a not-for-profit corporation or the parking areas, driveways, and private streets or roadways of a private apartment house complex, private condominium complex, or cooperative apartment complex, or the parking areas, private streets, roadways or driveways of mobile home parks or manufactured home parks, or the parking areas and driveways of a fire station, and pursuant to the written request of the owner, the person in general charge of the operation and control of such area, the fire chief of the city or village fire department or the police chief or the police commissioner of the police department serving such area, may, by local law or ordinance:

1. Order stop signs, flashing signals or yield signs erected at specified entrance or exit locations to any such area or designate any intersection in such area as a stop intersection or as a yield intersection and order like signs or signals at one or more entrances to such intersection.

2. Regulate traffic in any such area, including regulation by means of traffic-control signals.

2-a. Notwithstanding the provisions of section sixteen hundred forty-three to the contrary, establish maximum speed limits in any such area at not less than fifteen miles per hour.

3. Prohibit or regulate the turning of vehicles or specified types of vehicles at intersections or other designated locations in any such area.

4. Regulate the crossing of any roadway in any such area by pedestrians.

5. Designate any separate roadway in any such area for one-way traffic.

6. Prohibit, regulate, restrict or limit the stopping, standing or parking of vehicles in specified areas of any such area.

7. Designate safety zones in any such area.

8. Provide for the removal and storage of vehicles parked or abandoned in any such area during snowstorms, floods, fires or other public emergencies, or found unattended in any such area, (1) where they constitute an obstruction to traffic or (2) where stopping, standing or parking is prohibited, and for the payment of reasonable charges for such removal and storage by the owner or operator of any such vehicle.

9. Adopt such additional reasonable rules and regulations with respect to traffic and parking in any such area as local conditions may require for the safety and convenience of the public or of the users of any such area.

10. Make special provisions with relation to stopping, standing or parking of vehicles registered pursuant to section four hundred four-a of this chapter or those possessing a special vehicle identification parking permit issued in accordance with section one thousand two hundred three-a of this chapter.

In the case of a college or university, as defined in section two of the education law, the provisions of this section shall apply only upon the written request of the governing body of such college or university.

Notes to Decisions

While CLS Veh & Tr § 1640-a(2) grants additional authority to local government entity to regulate traffic, it was not meant to preclude application of CLS Veh & Tr §§ 1162, 1192, and 1211(a), and it clearly does not give village exclusive right to regulate traffic in public parking areas. People v Murphy, 169 Misc. 2d 357, 649 N.Y.S.2d 962, 1996 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 413 (N.Y. App. Term 1996).

Agency Opinions

Vehicle and Traffic Law § 1640-a authorizes a village board of trustees to regulate traffic in a shopping center in the village upon request. 1980 NY Ops Atty Gen Oct 8 (informal).

A city or village, when requested, by local law or ordinance may establish traffic regulations for hospitals, shopping centers, apartment complexes, condominiums and fire stations. 1981 NY Ops Atty Gen July 21 (Informal).

A village may not regulate traffic on the private streets of a single family housing complex, where development consists of single family homes owned in fee simple by separate owners, with all roads in development private roads and not open to public traffic and development is not co-operative for condominium complex. NY Ops Atty Gen 89-67 (informal).

Upon the written request of the owner, a village may regulate parking in the private parking lot of a shopping center, but may not regulate parking in other parking lots of private businesses unless justified by the need to protect the public safety, health and welfare. 1978 Op St Compt File #564.

A village may adopt and enforce traffic regulations applicable to the parking areas and driveways of a private condominium complex pursuant to a written request from the owner or person in charge of the area or the village fire chief. 1980 Op St Compt File #104.

A village may, by local law, regulate parking and traffic on the private streets, roadways or parking areas of a co-operative apartment complex. 1982 Op St Compt File #82-331.

Notes to Decisions

Town ordinance which gave town police authority to regulate and control traffic at shopping plaza should not be read to empower town to prescribe traffic signals and signs at plaza, so as to relieve plaza owners for liability in personal injury action arising from vehicular collision at plaza, where ordinance was granted at written request of owners pursuant to CLS Veh & Tr §§ 1603 and 1660-a, request was limited to creation and enforcement of no-parking zone along store fronts, and owners specified that they did "not consent to or request any other control or regulation" by town. Remmely v Irondequoit, 125 A.D.2d 984, 510 N.Y.S.2d 381, 1986 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 63177 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1986).

The installation of traffic controls by a town upon the parking area of a privately-owned shopping center is a town charge and the cost of same may not be assessed against the owner thereof. 1972 Ops St Compt File #573.

Town may not, pursuant to CLS Veh & Tr § 1660, regulate traffic on private roads within residential subdivisions consisting of detached, single-family dwellings, although "Rules of the Road" would apply upon private roads open to public traffic; however, suburban town with population over 50,000 may, within limitations expressed in CLS Veh & Tr § 1662-a, establish town speed limits within residential subdivisions on private roads that are open to public motor vehicle traffic. 1992 Op St Compt No. 92-19.

Pursuant to an ordinance or local law, a town is empowered to lay down markings and erect signs designating fire safety zones in shopping centers upon the request of the chief of the fire department serving the area in which the center is located, notwithstanding the objections thereto of the owner of the shopping center. 1984 Op St Comp File #84-47.

Agency Opinions

While a town does not have specific authority under the Vehicle and Traffic Law to regulate parking on private property, except in enumerated circumstances, a town may enact an ordinance pursuant to its general police powers prohibiting parking on private property without the permission of the property owner and providing for the removal of motor vehicles parked in violation of such an ordinance. 1980 NY Ops Atty Gen June 24 (Informal), 1980 N.Y. AG LEXIS 95.

Town may regulate parking on grounds of state facility if asked to do so by appropriate governing board of facility. 1985 NY Ops Atty Gen No. 85-44, 1985 N.Y. AG LEXIS 55.

Provisions of Vehicle and Traffic Law do not give town authority to enact local law establishing 15 mile per hour speed limit within mobile home park; however, if private roads within mobile home park are open to public motor vehicle traffic, town may establish and enforce speed limit of not less than 25 miles per hour within park. 1998 NY Ops Atty Gen I 98-25.

Provisions of CLS Veh & Tr § 1660-a do not extend to mobile home parks; thus, town could not erect stop signs within mobile home park under its provisions. 1998 N.Y. Op. Att'y Gen. No. 98-28, 1998 N.Y. AG LEXIS 38.

Vehicle and Traffic Law, § 1660-a permits a town board to regulate parking for the handicapped in private housing complexes upon receipt of a written request from the complex owner or other person in general charge of its operation. N.Y. Op. Att'y Gen. No. 84-1.

Regulation of parking and traffic in a private condominium complex is an exercise of a town's police powers, and a town is subject to the same constitutional principles as when it regulates parking and traffic on public streets and highways—e.g., regulations should bear reasonable relation to public welfare and operate with substantial equality and uniformity. The installation of signs and traffic controls in a private condominium complex is a town charge and may not be charged back against the property in question. 1978 Op St Compt File #269.

A town board, which has adopted traffic regulations for a privately owned shopping center, at the owner's request pursuant to Vehicle and Traffic Law, § 1660-a, may not be subsequently compelled to repeal such negotiation if so requested by the shopping center owner. 1979 Op St Compt File #78.

A town board does not have authority to adopt parking regulations for parking areas of a county community college. 1980 Op St Compt No. 80–353.

The cost of installing and maintaining traffic control signs in a private apartment complex is a town charge, and may not be charged back against the apartment owners. 1981 Op St Compt File #80-733.

ARTICLE 45 Penalties and Disposition of Fines and Forfeitures

HISTORY:
Add, L 1959, ch 775, eff Oct 1, 1960, with substance transferred from former Art 32.

§ 1800. Penalties for traffic infractions

(a) It is a traffic infraction for any person to violate any of the provisions of this chapter or of any local law, ordinance, order, rule or regulation adopted pursuant to this chapter, unless such violation is by this chapter or other law of this state declared to be a misdemeanor or a felony.

(b) 1. Every person convicted of a traffic infraction for a violation of any of the provisions of this chapter or of any ordinance, order, rule or regulation adopted pursuant to section sixteen hundred thirty or sixteen hundred thirty-one of this chapter for which another penalty is not provided shall for a first conviction thereof be punished by a fine of not more than one hundred fifty dollars or by imprisonment for not more than fifteen days or by both such fine and imprisonment; for a conviction of a second violation, both of which were committed within a period of eighteen months, such person shall be punished by a fine of not more than three hundred dollars or by imprisonment for not more than forty-five days or by both such fine and imprisonment; upon a conviction of a third or subsequent violation, all of which were committed within a period of eighteen months, such person shall be punished by a fine of not more than four hundred fifty dollars or by imprisonment for not more than ninety days or by both such fine and imprisonment, except that a person convicted of a traffic infraction for a violation of paragraph one of subdivision (d) of section one thousand one hundred eleven of this chapter outside of a city having a population of one million or more shall, for a first conviction thereof, be punished by a fine of not less than seventy-five dollars nor more than two hundred twenty-five dollars or by imprisonment for not more than fifteen days or by both such fine and imprisonment; for a conviction of a second violation, both of which were committed within a period of eighteen months, such person shall be punished by a fine of not less than one hundred fifty dollars nor more than three hundred seventy-five dollars or by imprisonment for not more than forty-five days or by both such fine and imprisonment; upon a conviction of a third or subsequent violation, all of which were committed within a period of eighteen months, such person shall be punished by a fine of not less than three hundred seventy-five dollars nor more than six hundred seventy-five dollars or by imprisonment for not more than ninety days or by both such fine and imprisonment except that a person convicted for a violation of paragraph one of subdivision (d) of section one thousand one hundred eleven of this chapter shall, for a first conviction thereof, be punished by a fine of not less than one hundred fifty dollars nor more than four hundred fifty dollars or by imprisonment for not more than fifteen days or by both such fine and imprisonment; for a conviction of a second violation, both of which were committed within a period of eighteen months, such person shall be punished by a fine of not less than three hundred dollars nor more than seven hundred fifty dollars or by imprisonment for not more than forty-five days or by both such fine and imprisonment; upon a conviction of a third or subsequent violation, all of which were committed within a period of eighteen months, such person shall be punished by a fine of not less than seven hundred fifty dollars nor more than one thousand five hundred dollars or by imprisonment for not more than ninety days or by both such fine and imprisonment.

2. Notwithstanding the provisions of paragraph one of this subdivision, a person convicted of a traffic infraction for a violation of paragraph two of subdivision (b) of section twelve hundred two of this chapter shall for a first conviction thereof be punished by a fine of not more than four hundred dollars or by imprisonment for not more than fifteen days or by both such fine and imprisonment. Upon a conviction for a second violation, both of which were committed within a period of eighteen months, such person shall be punished by a fine of not more than six hundred dollars or by imprisonment for not more than forty-five days or by both such fine and imprisonment; upon a conviction of a third or subsequent violation, all of which were committed within a period of eighteen months, such person shall be punished by a fine of not more than seven hundred fifty dollars or by imprisonment for not more than ninety days or by both such fine and imprisonment.

(c) Every person convicted of a traffic infraction for a violation of any local law, ordinance, order, rule, regulation or administrative code provision adopted pursuant to this chapter by any local authority or continued in effect by this chapter, except those adopted pursuant to sections sixteen hundred thirty and sixteen hundred thirty-one, shall be punished in the same manner as has heretofore been prescribed by law unless or until otherwise prescribed by local law, ordinance or state statute.

(d) A conviction of violation of any provision of this chapter shall not be a bar to a prosecution for an assault or for a homicide committed by any person in operating a motor vehicle or motorcycle.

(e) Every person convicted of a violation of the provisions of section eleven hundred forty-four of this chapter shall for a first conviction thereof be punished by a fine of not more than two hundred seventy-five dollars or by imprisonment for not more than fifteen days or by both such fine and imprisonment. For a conviction of a second violation, both of which were committed within a period of eighteen months, such person shall be punished by a fine of not more than four hundred fifty dollars or by imprisonment for not more than forty-five days or by both such fine and imprisonment. For a conviction of a third violation and all subsequent violations, all of which were committed within a period of eighteen months, such person shall be punished by a fine of not more than seven hundred fifty dollars or by imprisonment for not more than ninety days or by both such fine and imprisonment.

(f) Every person convicted of operating a truck, tractor or tractor-trailer combination having a total gross weight in excess of ten thousand pounds in violation of a local law, ordinance, rule or regulation enacted by the legislative body of any city with a population in excess of one million pursuant to the provisions of paragraph ten of subdivision (a) of section sixteen hundred forty of this chapter shall, for a first offense thereof, be punished by a fine of not less than two hundred dollars nor more than five hundred dollars or by imprisonment for not more than fifteen days or by both such fine and imprisonment. For a conviction of a second violation, both of which were committed within a period of eighteen months, such person shall be punished by a fine of not less than five hundred dollars nor more than one thousand dollars or by imprisonment for not more than forty-five days or by both such fine and imprisonment. For a conviction of a third violation and all subsequent violations, all of which were committed within a period of eighteen months, such person shall be punished by a fine of not less than one thousand dollars nor more than two thousand dollars, or by imprisonment for not more than ninety days or by both such fine and imprisonment.

(g) Notwithstanding the provisions of subdivisions (b) and (c) of this section, a person convicted of a traffic infraction for a violation of any ordinance, order, rule, regulation or local law adopted pursuant to one or more of the following provisions of this chapter: paragraphs two and nine of subdivision (a) of section sixteen hundred twenty-one; subdivision three of section sixteen hundred thirty; or subdivision five of section seventy-one of the transportation law, prohibiting the operation on a highway or parkway of a motor vehicle registered as a commercial vehicle and having a gross vehicle weight rating of less than ten thousand pounds shall, for a first conviction thereof, be punished by a fine of not more than two hundred fifty dollars or by imprisonment of not more than fifteen days or by both such fine and imprisonment; for a conviction of a second violation, both of which were committed within a period of eighteen months, such person shall be punished by a fine of not more than five hundred dollars or by imprisonment for not more than forty-five days or by both such fine and imprisonment; upon a conviction of a third or subsequent violation, all of which were committed within a period of eighteen months, such person shall be punished by a fine of not more than seven hundred fifty dollars or by imprisonment of not more than ninety days or by both such fine and imprisonment. Provided, however, the provisions of this subdivision shall not apply to a commercial motor vehicle as such term is defined in paragraph (a) of subdivision four of section five hundred one-a of this chapter.

(h) Notwithstanding the provisions of subdivisions (b) and (c) of this section, a person convicted of a traffic infraction for a violation of any ordinance, order, rule, regulation or local law adopted pursuant to one or more of the following provisions of this chapter: paragraphs two and nine of subdivision (a) of section sixteen hundred twenty-one; subdivision three of section sixteen hundred thirty; or subdivision five of section seventy-one of the transportation law, prohibiting the operation on a highway or parkway of a motor vehicle registered as a commercial vehicle and having a gross vehicle weight rating of at least ten thousand pounds but no more than twenty-six thousand pounds shall, for a first conviction thereof, be punished by a fine of not more than three hundred fifty dollars or by imprisonment of not more than fifteen days or by both such fine and imprisonment; for a conviction of a second violation, both of which were committed within a period of eighteen months, such person shall be punished by a fine of not more than seven hundred dollars or by imprisonment for not more than forty-five days or by both such fine and imprisonment; upon a conviction of a third or subsequent violation, all of which were committed within a period of eighteen months, such person shall be punished by a fine of not more than one thousand dollars or by imprisonment of not more than ninety days or by both such fine and imprisonment; provided, however, the provisions of this subdivision shall not apply to a commercial motor vehicle as such term is defined in paragraph (a) of subdivision four of section five hundred one-a of this chapter.

(i) Notwithstanding the provisions of subdivisions (b) and (c) of this section, a person convicted of a traffic infraction for a violation of any ordinance, order, rule, regulation or local law adopted pursuant to one or more of the following provisions of this chapter: paragraphs two and nine of subdivision (a) of section sixteen hundred twenty-one; subdivision three of section sixteen hundred thirty; or subdivision five of section seventy-one of the transportation law, prohibiting the operation on a highway or parkway of a commercial motor vehicle as defined in paragraph (a) of subdivision four of section five hundred one-a of this chapter, for a first conviction thereof, be punished by a fine of not more than seven hundred dollars or by imprisonment of not more than fifteen days or by both such fine and imprisonment; for a conviction of a second violation, both of which were committed within a period of eighteen months, such person shall be punished by a fine of not more than one thousand five hundred dollars or by imprisonment for not more than forty-five days or by both such fine and imprisonment; upon a conviction of a third or subsequent violation, all of which were committed within a period of eighteen months, such person shall be punished by a fine of not more than two thousand dollars or by imprisonment of not more than ninety days or by both such fine and imprisonment.

Editor's Notes: Laws 1995, ch 202, § 2, eff Aug 25, 1995, provides as follows:

§ 2. This act shall take effect on the thirtieth day after it shall have become a law and shall apply to violations committed on and after such date.

Laws 2020, ch 58, § 3 (Part B), eff September 30, 2020, provides:

§ 3. This act shall take effect on the one hundred eightieth day after it shall have become a law.

Amendment Notes The 2020 amendment by ch 58, § 1 (Part B), substituted "less than ten" for "less than twenty six" in the first sentence of (g); added (h); added the (i) designation; and in (i), substituted "not more than seven hundred dollars" for "not more than three hundred fifty dollars," "not more than one thousand five hundred dollars" for "not more than seven hundred dollars" and "not more than two thousand dollars" for "not more than one thousand dollars."

Repeal Notes: [1970, ch 337] Subdivision (e) of § 1800 of the Vehicle and Traffic Law has been repealed since its provisions substantially duplicated provisions contained in the Code of Criminal Procedure.

1. In general

The plain intention of legislature is that violations of Vehicle and Traffic Law, although classed as misdemeanors and punishable by imprisonment in penitentiary, should be punished as specifically provided in the above article (§§ 1800-1803). People v Ragusa, 44 Misc. 2d 940, 255 N.Y.S.2d 269, 1964 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1145 (N.Y. County Ct. 1964).

2. Construction

The Vehicle and Traffic Law being penal in nature must be construed strictly. People v Burton, 47 Misc. 2d 1077, 264 N.Y.S.2d 89, 1965 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1476 (N.Y. City Ct. 1965).

The words "enforce" and "enjoin" in former § 95-j related to the equitable powers of the supreme court rather than the trial of informations. People v Gilberg, 21 N.Y.S.2d 920, 1940 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2027 (N.Y. Spec. Sess. 1940).

3. Intention

Under provisions of the Vehicle & Traffic Law involving offenses mala prohibita, the people are not required to establish any criminal intent on the part of the defendant. People v Janoske, 132 N.Y.S.2d 186, 206 Misc. 155, 1954 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3414 (N.Y. County Ct. 1954).

4. Procedure

For the purpose of prosecuting traffic infractions the procedural rules for the trial of misdemeanors are applicable, and the court had the right to issue a warrant of arrest for a violation of former § 86, subd 3. People v Propp, 15 N.Y.S.2d 83, 172 Misc. 314, 1939 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2358 (N.Y. County Ct. 1939), rev'd, 284 N.Y. 491, 31 N.E.2d 915, 284 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 491, 1940 N.Y. LEXIS 816 (N.Y. 1940).

Where many costs included in respondents' computation for police tow away program of illegally parked automobiles were ordinary police costs and not costs of removing vehicles, fixation of $50 removal fee or towing charge was illegal, unreasonable, arbitrary and capricious and paragraph of temporary operating procedure doubling fee from $25 to $50 would be annulled. Freidus v Leary, 66 Misc. 2d 70, 320 N.Y.S.2d 122, 1971 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1721 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1971), rev'd, 38 A.D.2d 919, 329 N.Y.S.2d 897, 1972 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5140 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1972).

Right to speedy trial under CLS CPL 30.30 is available to defendant charged for traffic infraction punishable by jail term under CLS Vehicle and Traffic § 1800. People v Attie, 131 Misc. 2d 921, 502 N.Y.S.2d 342, 1986 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2594 (N.Y. City Ct. 1986).

Delay of more than 10 months between entry of plea of no guilty to traffic infraction and date case is first noticed for trial is excessive and deprives defendant of right to speedy trial where people do not attempt to explain or excuse delay. People v Attie, 131 Misc. 2d 921, 502 N.Y.S.2d 342, 1986 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2594 (N.Y. City Ct. 1986).

A traffic infraction is treated as a misdemeanor for the purposes of procedure only. People v Wilson, 168 N.Y.S.2d 391 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1957).

Defendant has no right to apply for certificate of removal when charged with a traffic infraction. 1947 Ops St Compt 51.

The members of a village board may apprehend, and the village police justice may try violators of village traffic ordinances. 1958 Ops St Compt File #405.

5. Validity of arrest

An arrest under a warrant at night for the infraction of a parking ordinance, although illegal, did not affect the validity of the motorist's trial and conviction. People v Baxter, 36 N.Y.S.2d 1020, 178 Misc. 625, 1942 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1948 (N.Y. County Ct.), app. dismissed, 37 N.Y.S.2d 489 (N.Y. App. Div. 1942).

6. Admissibility of evidence of conviction in subsequent litigation

Where after a motor vehicle accident, evidence presented at a hearing pursuant to § 71, standing alone, was insufficient to prove that the driver operated his car in a manner which unreasonably interfered with the free and proper use of a public highway or unreasonably endangered the users thereof, additional evidence that he had been tried and found guilty in a traffic court of "failure to give a pedestrian the right of way" was insufficient, when considered with the evidence theretofore received, to justify the commissioner of motor vehicles in finding that at the time of the accident such driver was guilty of "reckless driving" in violation of § 58 and directing revocation of his operator's license. Hart v Mealey, 287 N.Y. 39, 38 N.E.2d 121, 287 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 39, 1941 N.Y. LEXIS 1388 (N.Y. 1941).

In a negligence action the cross-examination of defendant as to a conviction of a violation of an ordinance regulating speed under former § 2 subdivision 29 was improper to affect his credibility but the conviction was prima facie evidence of the facts involved. Same v Davison, 253 A.D. 123, 1 N.Y.S.2d 374, 1937 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5122 (N.Y. App. Div. 1937).

Where deceased was killed when struck by a newspaper delivery truck in the city of New York, evidence that the driver of the truck was convicted of "dangerous driving" in connection with the same accident is inadmissible. Walther v News Syndicate Co., 276 A.D. 169, 93 N.Y.S.2d 537, 1949 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3137 (N.Y. App. Div. 1949).

7. Speeding

Ownership of an automobile did not create a presumption that the owner was the driver where police used a "phototraffic camera" which took two pictures at a set time interval apart thereby showing that defendant's automobile was proceeding at an illegal rate of speed. People v Hildebrandt, 308 N.Y. 397, 126 N.E.2d 377, 308 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 397, 1955 N.Y. LEXIS 996 (N.Y. 1955).

Speeding is a traffic infraction and not a crime and hence it is not necessary for a magistrate to inform a defendant that he is entitled to the aid of counsel. Lea v MacDuff, 126 N.Y.S.2d 646, 205 Misc. 24, 1953 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2474 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1953).

Either subdivision (d) of section 1180 of the Vehicle and Traffic Law or an applicable section of a local law or ordinance may serve as a basis for a prosecution for speeding within a city, since subdivision (d) of section 1180 does not state that it is the exclusive basis for such a charge and subdivisions (a) and (c) of section 1800 of the Vehicle and Traffic Law expressly provide conviction for this offense may rest upon violation of local law or ordinance. People v Levin, 93 Misc. 2d 106, 402 N.Y.S.2d 324, 1978 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2021 (N.Y. City Ct. 1978).

8. Truck ordinance

Penalties for violations of a town truck route ordinance may be prescribed pursuant to § 135 of the Town Law; however any such violation is a "traffic infraction" and may not be constituted a misdemeanor. 1953 Ops St Compt File 257.

9. Parking violations

The failure to park a vehicle as close to the curb as practicable is not a crime. Breland v Gray, 2 Misc. 2d 15, 37 N.Y.S.2d 291, 1942 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1228 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1942).

Since this section makes it a traffic infraction punishable by fine, imprisonment, or both, to violate any provisions of this chapter, including ordinances enacted under § 1670, a county has plenary power to assess a charge for parking in an area around the Court house with penalties for overtime or illegal parking in a prescribed metered area. People v Korn, 221 N.Y.S.2d 101, 1961 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3630 (N.Y. City Ct. 1961).

A parking ticket issued for violation of a village parking ordinance is subject to different statutes of limitations, depending on whether a civil or criminal proceeding is involved. 1974 Op State Compt File No. 1284.

10. Restriction of traffic

In order to restrict traffic on town highways pursuant to Vehicle and Traffic Law § 1660, the town board must cause the highway to be posted with signs. 1968 Ops St Compt File #1045.

Such restrictions may be made for a temporary period. The length of time which may be considered temporary is a question of fact. 1968 Ops St Compt File #1045.

Such restrictions may be made by ordinance, order, rule or regulation. If made by an order, rule or regulation, no public hearing is necessary and a person who violates the order, rule or regulation may be charged with the commission of a traffic infraction. 1968 Ops St Compt File #1045.

11. Thruway violations

A justice of the peace, when imposing fines and penalties on motorists for violations committed on the New York State Thruway, is governed by the provisions of § 1630(5) of the Vehicle and Traffic Law on the determination of whether or not an offense has been committed, and § 361 of the Public Authorities Law as to the punishment for such an offense. 1960 Ops St Compt File #246.

12. Suspension or revocation of license

A violation of former § 83 was not one of the infractions mentioned in either subd 2 or 3 of § 71, which designate instances in which suspensions and revocations are mandatory or discretionary. People v Stoner, 7 N.Y.S.2d 510, 169 Misc. 469, 1938 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2066 (N.Y. County Ct. 1938).

Motorist who breached conditional driver's license limitation by operating a motor vehicle at 1:10 a.m. was properly charged with a traffic infraction under Vehicle and Traffic Law provision prohibiting any person from operating any motor vehicle in violation of any restriction contained on his license, rather than being charged with a misdemeanor under Vehicle and Traffic Law provision pertaining to operating a motor vehicle upon a public highway while one's driver's license is suspended or revoked. People v Tousley, 86 Misc. 2d 1059, 383 N.Y.S.2d 996, 1976 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2579 (N.Y. County Ct. 1976).

13. Fines and imprisonment

Maximum fine that may be imposed for the violation of driving without headlights was $150 and the fine imposed upon defendant's conviction of circumvention of an ignition interlock device exceeded the maximum fine that might be imposed for the first conviction of such crime ($300) as set forth in N.Y. Veh. & Traf. Law § 1801(1). Pursuant to N.Y. Veh. & Traf. Law § 1801(1), the fine imposed upon defendant was reduced to $300. People v Mooney, 188 A.D.3d 1360, 135 N.Y.S.3d 185, 2020 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6621 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2020).

Where defendant failed to pay parking ticket and then was arrested, the court could impose an increased fine. People v Carter, 68 Misc. 2d 283, 325 N.Y.S.2d 772, 1971 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1152 (N.Y. County Ct. 1971).

A village board of trustees may not prescribe the fines to be collected by a traffic violations bureau. 1967 Ops St Compt File #1020.

Although the law is somewhat unclear, a village may impose a civil penalty for a violation of its parking ordinance. 1978 Op St Compt File #831.

14. Prior convictions

CLS Veh & Tr § 1800(d) supercedes CLS CPL § 40.20 and, to extent that it does not conflict with constitutional double jeopardy principles, permits successive prosecution for homicide and assault notwithstanding prior prosecution for traffic offenses arising out of same incident. Corbin v Hillery, 74 N.Y.2d 279, 545 N.Y.S.2d 71, 543 N.E.2d 714, 1989 N.Y. LEXIS 1002 (N.Y. 1989), aff'd, 495 U.S. 508, 110 S. Ct. 2084, 109 L. Ed. 2d 548, 1990 U.S. LEXIS 2698 (U.S. 1990).

Prosecution of indictment for reckless manslaughter, second degree vehicular manslaughter, criminally negligent homicide, and third degree reckless assault was prohibited under federal double jeopardy principles following defendant's guilty plea to driving while intoxicated and failing to keep right, even though homicide and assault crimes were not "same offenses" as traffic offenses, where prosecution stated in its bill of particulars that it intended to use acts underlying traffic offenses as major part of its proof on homicide and assault crimes; thus, CLS Veh & Tr § 1800(d) could not be applied to overcome statutory double jeopardy prohibition of CLS CPL § 40.20. Corbin v Hillery, 74 N.Y.2d 279, 545 N.Y.S.2d 71, 543 N.E.2d 714, 1989 N.Y. LEXIS 1002 (N.Y. 1989), aff'd, 495 U.S. 508, 110 S. Ct. 2084, 109 L. Ed. 2d 548, 1990 U.S. LEXIS 2698 (U.S. 1990).

CLS Veh & Tr § 1800(d) was inapplicable by its terms to counts of indictment for driving while intoxicated in violation of CLS Veh & Tr § 1192(2) and (3), which were brought against defendant who had previously pleaded guilty to infractions of driving while intoxicated and failing to keep right, since counts did not charge homicide or assault crime; thus, general statutory double jeopardy provision of CLS CPL § 40.20 was controlling. Corbin v Hillery, 74 N.Y.2d 279, 545 N.Y.S.2d 71, 543 N.E.2d 714, 1989 N.Y. LEXIS 1002 (N.Y. 1989), aff'd, 495 U.S. 508, 110 S. Ct. 2084, 109 L. Ed. 2d 548, 1990 U.S. LEXIS 2698 (U.S. 1990).

In view of the initial penalties imposed by this section for a second traffic infraction conviction, the provisions of §§ 1940 et seq. of the Penal Law dealing with multiple convictions for other offenses and the method of bringing them to the court's attention are inapplicable in a traffic infraction case. People v Bommarito, 29 Misc. 2d 171, 216 N.Y.S.2d 948, 1961 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2669 (N.Y. County Ct. 1961).

Where it is sought to invoke this section for imposition of an additional penalty upon a traffic law violator by reason of prior conviction of a traffic infraction, the previous convictions should be alleged in the information, and, unless they are so alleged, there is no basis for proceeding against the defendant, following conviction of the offense charged in the information, under the general multiple offender provisions of the Penal Code. People v Bommarito, 29 Misc. 2d 171, 216 N.Y.S.2d 948, 1961 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2669 (N.Y. County Ct. 1961).

15. Res judicata

In a motion to dismiss an indictment charging the defendant with criminally negligent homicide and reckless endangerment of life in the first and second degrees, arising out of an accident wherein the defendant passed a stopped school bus and struck the victim disembarking from the bus, the prior conviction of the defendant, based upon his guilty pleas, of driving without adequate brakes and passing a stopped school bus, a misdemeanor and traffic violation respectively, did not bar prosecution under the indictment. People v Taylor, 66 Misc. 2d 1058, 322 N.Y.S.2d 818, 1971 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1530 (N.Y. County Ct. 1971).

16. Miscellaneous matters

Ownership of an automobile did not create a presumption that the owner was the driver where police used a "phototraffic camera" which took two pictures at a set time interval apart thereby showing that defendant's automobile was proceeding at an illegal rate of speed. People v Hildebrandt, 308 N.Y. 397, 126 N.E.2d 377, 308 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 397, 1955 N.Y. LEXIS 996 (N.Y. 1955).

In Article 78 proceeding to review determination fining car dealer $1,000 for 5 violations of Vehicle and Traffic Law and regulations promulgated thereunder, court would remit matter to Commissioner of Motor Vehicles for imposition of appropriate penalty where court had disaffirmed one of 5 violations. Old Country Toyota Corp. v Adduci, 136 A.D.2d 706, 524 N.Y.S.2d 56, 1988 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 857 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't), app. denied, 72 N.Y.2d 803, 532 N.Y.S.2d 368, 528 N.E.2d 520, 1988 N.Y. LEXIS 1732 (N.Y. 1988).

The penalty for violation of former § 83 was found in former § 91. People v Stoner, 7 N.Y.S.2d 510, 169 Misc. 469, 1938 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2066 (N.Y. County Ct. 1938).

A violation of former § 86, subd 3, is a traffic infraction under former § 2, subd 29 and under this former § 70 subd 10. People v Propp, 15 N.Y.S.2d 83, 172 Misc. 314, 1939 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2358 (N.Y. County Ct. 1939), rev'd, 284 N.Y. 491, 31 N.E.2d 915, 284 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 491, 1940 N.Y. LEXIS 816 (N.Y. 1940).

Although the provision of Local Tow Car Ordinance which required licensing by town and prohibited soliciting for hire, was violative of this section of the Vehicle and Traffic Law in that it set a fine and penalty in excess of the maximum, the ordinance was not invalidated thereby since it provided for severability in the event of a finding that any portion thereof was invalid and therefore court could impose a penalty under this section of the Vehicle and Traffic Law. People v Francis, 53 Misc. 2d 606, 279 N.Y.S.2d 483, 1967 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1571 (N.Y. Dist. Ct. 1967).

Defendant's operation of limousine in which he picked up passengers from several stops within a housing development and transported them to specified areas in Manhattan for specified price constituted an operation of a "bus line" or "omnibus line" as defined by state statutes, and since the vehicle was not franchised, defendant's action constituted the unauthorized operation of a bus on city street within meaning of New York City traffic regulations. People v Schuster, 83 Misc. 2d 871, 374 N.Y.S.2d 951, 1975 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3006 (N.Y. City Crim. Ct. 1975).

While statute imposing penalty for operation of unfranchised bus in city of New York is penal in nature, court is not in a straightjacket so as to foreclose application of historic doctrine that intent of framers is the primary object; statute may not be so strictly construed as to pervert such legislative intent. People v Schuster, 83 Misc. 2d 871, 374 N.Y.S.2d 951, 1975 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3006 (N.Y. City Crim. Ct. 1975).

Jumping off the Atlantic Beach Bridge on a $10 bet is a violation of section 303.4 of the Rules and Regulations of the Nassau County Bridge Authority (21 NYCRR 303.4), which prohibits persons from diving from the bridge and, therefore, constitutes a traffic infraction under sections 1630 and 1800 of the Vehicle and Traffic Law. People v Noto, 92 Misc. 2d 611, 400 N.Y.S.2d 691, 1977 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2594 (N.Y. Dist. Ct. 1977).

Motion to dismiss a refusing to take a breath test in violation of N.Y. Veh. & Traf. Law § 1194(1)(b) charge was denied as refusing to take a breath test was a traffic infraction under N.Y. Veh. & Traf. Law §§ 1101 and 1800(a), which provided that it was a traffic infraction unless a misdemeanor was specified for any person to violate a New York Vehicle and Traffic Law provision; while there was contrary authority, appellate cases and cases from the New York Court of Appeals had recognized that the failure to submit to a lawful request for a preliminary or portable breath test was a cognizable offense. People v Leontiev, 956 N.Y.S.2d 832, 38 Misc. 3d 716, 2012 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 5565 (N.Y. Dist. Ct. 2012).

Analysis

1. In general
2. Speeding
3. Parking violations
4. Restriction of traffic
5. Suspension or revocation of license
6. Fines and imprisonment
7. Prior convictions
8. Miscellaneous matters

1. In general

A traffic infraction is not a crime and should not be included in the statistics of "crime and criminals" required by the Code of Criminal Procedure, §§ 947 and 949. 1934 N.Y. Op. Att'y Gen. No. 449.

A traffic infraction is not a crime and there is no authority to take fingerprints or photographs of a person so convicted. 1934 N.Y. Op. Att'y Gen. No. 452.

Traffic infractions, though no longer criminal, are to be prosecuted in the same manner as if they were misdemeanors. 1935 N.Y. Op. Att'y Gen. No. 124.

Where the vehicle and traffic law has not expressly declared the violation of a local ordinance governing or regulating traffic to be a misdemeanor or a felony, the violation is considered a traffic infraction. 1935 N.Y. Op. Att'y Gen. No. 340.

Traffic infraction is not a crime. 1953 N.Y. Op. Att'y Gen. No. 125.

2. Speeding

Speeding in violation of either a village ordinance or of the vehicle and traffic law is merely a traffic infraction and such a charge is not subject to removal from a court of special sessions for prosecution by indictment. 1955 NY Ops Atty Gen 106 (informal).

3. Parking violations

A village may amend its parking ordinance by local law to provide that if a parking violation fine is not paid within a specified period of time, the fine will be doubled, except that the total fine cannot exceed the maximum amount set forth in Vehicle and Traffic Law, § 1800. However, it is doubtful that local legislation can be enacted doubling a fine for violation of a parking regulation for failure of the violator to appear on the return date specified in the appearance ticket. 1981 Op St Compt File #80-798.

Where towns, cities and villages have designated spaces for handicapped parking, a county does not have the power to adopt a local law applicable county-wide to all municipalities in the county fixing a fine of $100 for parking in such spaces without a permit. 1983 Op St Compt File #83-170.

4. Restriction of traffic

When traffic regulations of a school district do not provide specific penalties for violations, the penalties set forth in § 1800(b) are applicable. 1979 Op St Compt File #26.

5. Suspension or revocation of license

Where the office of village justice is established, a village is entitled to the fines imposed for violations of sections of the Vehicle and Traffic Law and traffic regulations enacted locally pursuant thereto, in accordance with the provisions of section 1803. 1983 Op St Compt File #83-137.

6. Fines and imprisonment

Should defendant fail to pay fine imposed for violation of statute relating to stop sign, he may be imprisoned. 1953 NY Ops Atty Gen 105 (informal).

Village may not impose its own schedule of penalties for traffic infractions, since penalties are set by Vehicle and Traffic Law. 1986 N.Y. Op. Att'y Gen. No. 86-11.

Fines and other penalties for violations of local traffic regulations (defined as traffic infractions) must be consistent with parameters set forth in CLS Veh & Tr § 1800, must bear reasonable relationship to severity of offense and not be abhorrent to sense of justice or shocking to conscience. 2004 NY Ops Atty Gen I 04-10.

Although the law is somewhat unclear, a city may impose a civil as well as a criminal penalty for a violation of its parking ordinance. 1978 Op St Compt No. 78–465.

Article 45 of the Vehicle and Traffic Law does not authorize a pre-prepared schedule of fines to enable a motorist simultaneously to mail his fine and guilty plea in relation to a traffic offense. 1990 N.Y. Op. Att'y Gen. No. I90-61.

7. Prior convictions

A second offender, under former § 70, subd 10, is one who, within a period of eighteen months, is for the second time convicted of any misdemeanor specified in the Vehicle and Traffic Law, for which no other punishment is specially prescribed, and it is not necessary that it be a repetition of the identical offense or act. 1938 N.Y. Op. Att'y Gen. No. 192.

8. Miscellaneous matters

The provision in former § 70 subd 2 of the Vehicle and Traffic Law, which directs that sentence or execution thereof for any violation thereunder may not be suspended, is valid. 1955 NY Ops Atty Gen 182 (informal).

Traffic regulations imposed by a school district on school district property may be enforced by the police or other peace officers of the municipality in which said property is situated. 1969 NY Ops Atty Gen Jan 10 (informal).

While under its general powers the Village of Nyack Housing Authority may invoke speed, fire zone and parking regulations on streets under its jurisdiction within a housing project, such rules and regulations not having been invoked by the Village of Nyack may not be enforced by the police of such Village. 1974 NY Ops Atty Gen Nov 25.

ARTICLE 46 Uniform Vehicle Certificate of Title Act

HISTORY:

Add, L 1971, ch 1134, § 2, eff July 1, 1972.

§ 2101. Definitions

Except when the context otherwise requires, as used in this article:

(a) "Dealer" means a person registered as a dealer under section four hundred fifteen or twenty-two hundred fifty-seven of this chapter.

(b) "Commissioner" includes the office and a branch office of the commissioner and, when authorized to receive a document or fee as agent of the commissioner, the clerk of a county.

(c) "Identifying number" means the numbers, and letters if any, on a vehicle designated by the commissioner for the purpose of identifying the vehicle.

(d) "Implement of husbandry" means a vehicle designed and adapted exclusively for agricultural, horticultural or livestock raising operations or for lifting or carrying an implement of husbandry and in either case not subject to registration if used upon the highways.

(e) "Lienholder" means a person holding a security interest in a vehicle.

(f) To "mail" means to deposit in the United States mail properly addressed and with postage prepaid.

(g) "Owner" means a person, other than a lienholder, having the property in or title to a vehicle. The term includes a person entitled to the use and possession of a vehicle subject to a security interest in another person, but excludes a lessee under a lease not intended as security.

(h) "Person" means a natural person, firm, copartnership, association or corporation.

(i) "Pole trailer" means a vehicle without motive power designed to be drawn by another vehicle and attached to the towing vehicle by means of a reach, or pole, or by being boomed or otherwise secured to the towing vehicle, and ordinarily used for transporting long or irregularly shaped loads such as logs, poles, pipes, or structural members capable, generally, of sustaining themselves as beams between the supporting connections.

(j) "Security agreement" means a written agreement which reserves or creates a security interest.

(k) "Security interest" means an interest in a vehicle reserved or created by agreement and which secures payment or performance of an obligation. The term includes the interest of a lessor under a lease intended as security. The term also includes an interest in a vehicle pursuant to a lien arising under section two hundred eleven of the lien law and section one hundred eleven-u of the social services law. A security interest is "perfected" when it is valid against third parties generally, subject only to specific statutory exceptions.

(l) "Special mobile equipment" means a vehicle not designed for the transportation of persons or property upon a highway and only incidentally operated or moved over a highway, which if registered would be registered pursuant to schedule F of subdivision seven of section four hundred one of this chapter.

(m) "State" means a state, territory or possession of the United States, the District of Columbia, the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico, or a province of the Dominion of Canada.

(n) "Vehicle" means a vehicle as defined in section one hundred fifty-nine of this chapter except that it shall not include a device for which a registration is denied pursuant to section four hundred-a of this chapter and, except with respect to section twenty-one hundred two of this article, shall also mean a vessel as defined in section twenty-two hundred fifty of this chapter. Unless otherwise specified, "vehicle" also means a "mobile home" or a "manufactured home" as defined in section one hundred twenty-two-c of this chapter.

Editor's Notes: Laws 1985, ch 484, § 15, eff June 1, 1986, provides as follows:

§ 15. This act shall take effect June first, nineteen hundred eighty-six, except that (a) those provisions of this act relating to the registration fee for vessels shall not apply to the renewal of a registration for a vessel which expires on or prior to May thirty-first, nineteen hundred eighty-six, which is issued prior to September first, nineteen hundred eighty-six, and the fee for such renewal shall be the fee which was in effect on May thirty-first, nineteen hundred eighty-six and (b) the commissioner of motor vehicles may accept applications for and issue dealer registrations on and after January first, nineteen hundred eighty six (Amd, L 1986, ch 21, § 1).

Laws 1993, ch 322, § 18, eff July 1, 1994, provides as follows:

§ 18. This act shall take effect July 1, 1994, provided however, that effective immediately, the addition, amendment and/or repeal of any rules or regulations necessary for the implementation of the foregoing sections of this act on its effective date are authorized and directed to be made and completed on or before such effective date.

Laws 1997, ch 398, §§ 1, 147, eff Jan 1, 1998, provide as follows:

Section 1. The legislature hereby finds and declares:

It is essential that New York state's child support enforcement program meet the needs of children, including providing for the timely and efficient establishment of paternity and child support orders and the collection of child support payments.

It is also essential that New York state meet the child support requirements contained in the federal Personal Responsibility and Work Opportunity Reconciliation Act.

In recognition of these goals, we hereby enact a number of measures to strengthen New York state's child support system, including establishing a cost of living adjustment process to ensure that child support order amounts keep pace with inflation. In addition, we have determined that state and local child support agencies should have additional enforcement remedies and improved paternity establishment measures. Finally, we fulfill federal requirements by adopting several initiatives, including the Uniform Interstate Family Support Act, establishing a computerized state case registry and making improvements to New York state's new hire reporting program. These changes and others contained in this legislation are intended to help families by ensuring that New York state's children receive the child support that they deserve.

§ 147. Notwithstanding any provision of law to the contrary, the commissioners of social services, taxation and finance, health, labor and motor vehicles and the chair of the workers' compensation board, and any appropriate entity of the state, shall be authorized to promulgate regulations on an emergency basis to ensure the implementation of this act and may take any steps necessary to implement this act prior to its effective date.

Article 9 of Uniform Commercial Code, requiring issuance of certificate showing whether financing statement is on file naming particular debtor, manifested intent to protect certain class of people, and Secretary of State's error in issuing such certificate was therefore actionable. Hudleasco, Inc. v State, 90 Misc. 2d 1057, 396 N.Y.S.2d 1002, 1977 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2219 (N.Y. Ct. Cl. 1977), aff'd, 63 A.D.2d 1042, 405 N.Y.S.2d 784, 1978 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12139 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1978).

Purpose of Uniform Vehicle Certificate of Title Act and regulations promulgated thereunder includes not only the orderly transfer of motor vehicles and protection of those who purchase them, but also the protection of those who loan money in reliance on the security which a lien upon a vehicle may provide. Security Trust Co. v Valley Cadillac Corp., 91 Misc. 2d 511, 398 N.Y.S.2d 194, 1977 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2344 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1977).

A violation of regulation placing duty upon automobile dealer who sells vehicle and forwards to the Motor Vehicle Department an application for certificate of title does not establish negligence per se, but is simply evidence of negligence which the trier of fact may take into consideration with all of the other evidence bearing on that subject; in order to recover, lender must show not only the negligence of automobile dealer, but also that negligence was the proximate cause of its loss and that it itself was not contributorily negligent. Security Trust Co. v Valley Cadillac Corp., 91 Misc. 2d 511, 398 N.Y.S.2d 194, 1977 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2344 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1977).

Lender could not recover from automobile dealer on conversion theory as result of dealer's failure to notify Motor Vehicle Department of existence of lender's lien on automobile, in view of fact that lender's interest was equitable, not legal, since its lien was never recorded. Security Trust Co. v Valley Cadillac Corp., 91 Misc. 2d 511, 398 N.Y.S.2d 194, 1977 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2344 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1977).

Where check issued by lender and payable to buyer of automobile and automobile dealer contained on its reverse side a notice that a $3 filing fee was included on face amount of check and that lender was to be listed on registration form as first lienholder, dealer was negligent in failing to notify Motor Vehicle Department of existence of lender's lien, and such negligence was proximate cause of lender's loss of balance of loan made to buyer of automobile, and therefore, vendor was entitled to recover from dealer balance of such loan. Security Trust Co. v Valley Cadillac Corp., 91 Misc. 2d 511, 398 N.Y.S.2d 194, 1977 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2344 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1977).

Judgment creditor's motion seeking an order compelling a judgment debtor to turn over cash or a vehicle was denied; among other things, a website report showed that a third party was listed as a title holder to the vehicle at issue, and, as a joint owner, it was required that such person be given the opportunity to be heard. Erin Capital Mgt., LLC v Celis, 854 N.Y.S.2d 640, 19 Misc. 3d 390, 2008 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 592 (N.Y. Dist. Ct. 2008).

Repair shop was not entitled to a garageman's lien on a motor vehicle under N.Y. Lien Law § 184(1), as the company that owned the vehicle did not consent to the shop's claimed repair and storage charges, and the shop failed to investigate whether a man it knew to be the vehicle's lessee had authority from the company to place liens on the vehicle. Matter of DCFS Trust v New York State Dept. of Motor Veh., 821 N.Y.S.2d 852, 13 Misc. 3d 1056, 2006 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2621 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 2006).

Trial court properly denied the respective parties' motion and cross motion for summary judgment in a suit seeking a declaration of insurance coverage relating to a boating accident because the certificate of title to the boat was in the name of the insured's brother-in-law on the date of the accident, was not prima facie proof of ownership of the outboard engine, and nothing in the record suggested that the boat was purchased apart from the outboard engine, or that the ownership of one was ever separate from the other. RLI Ins. Co. v Steely, 88 A.D.3d 975, 932 N.Y.S.2d 80, 2011 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7493 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2011).

§ 2102. Exclusions

(a) The following are excluded from the provisions of this title:

(1) A vehicle owned by the United States unless it is registered in this state;

(2) A vehicle owned by a manufacturer or dealer and held for sale, even though incidentally moved on the highway or used for purposes of testing or demonstration; or a vehicle used by a manufacturer solely for testing other than: (i) a vehicle registered by a dealer or manufacturer, or (ii) a vehicle for which a physical examination is required under section four hundred thirty of this chapter before a certificate of title may be issued, or (iii) a vehicle held for sale by a dealer which was purchased by the dealer as a result of sale upon repossession or a sale by a sheriff or marshall to satisfy a judgment, or (iv) a vehicle held for sale by a dealer for which a certificate of title containing an error attributable to processing by the department has been issued, or (v) a vehicle held for sale by a dealer for which ordinarily acceptable proof of ownership cannot be obtained by the dealer with reasonable diligence but for which a certificate of title would ordinarily be issued upon the filing of a bond with the commissioner as prescribed in subdivision (d) of section twenty-one hundred five of this article, or (vi) a vehicle for which a manufacturer or dealer has submitted a notice of repurchase as required by subdivision two of section four hundred seventeen-a of this chapter and regulations of the commissioner, or (vii) a vehicle held for sale by a dealer which was purchased by a dealer as the result of a sale by a police department, or (viii) a vehicle held for sale by a dealer which was purchased by a dealer as the result of a sale by the United States government;

(3) A vehicle owned by a non-resident of this state and not required by law to be registered in this state provided, however, that a certificate of title may be issued to such a non-resident for a vehicle purchased by or transferred to such non-resident as a result of a sale after repossession, or a sale by a sheriff or marshall to satisfy a judgement [judgment]*, or a sale to foreclose a garageman's lien, provided such sale was held in this state, or a result of the settlement of an estate of a deceased if such settlement is pursuant to the estates, powers and trusts law of this state or a sale by a police department, provided such sale was held in this state;

(4) A vehicle regularly engaged in the interstate transportation of persons or property for which a currently effective certificate of title has been issued in another state;

(5) A vehicle moved solely by animal power;

(6) An implement of husbandry;

(7) Special mobile equipment;

(8) A self-propelled wheel chair or an adapted tricycle operated or driven by a person with a disability;

(9) A pole trailer or a trailer with an unladen weight of less than one thousand pounds;

(10) A vehicle manufactured prior to July first, nineteen hundred seventy-two and designated by the manufacturer as being a nineteen hundred seventy-two or earlier model year vehicle, and any vehicle manufactured or assembled prior to January first, nineteen hundred seventy-three for which the manufacturer or assembler has not designated a model year;

(11) Snowmobiles, off-highway motorcycles and limited use motorcycles;

(12) A motor vehicle set off to a surviving spouse or surviving minor child pursuant to section 5-3.1 of the estates, powers and trusts law until an application for registration is made by such survivor or until after the survivor transfers the vehicle, in which case the transferee must apply for a certificate of title;

(13) A vessel not required to be registered in this state and which is not registered in this state;

(14) A vessel designated by the manufacturer as being a nineteen hundred eighty-six or earlier model year vessel and any vessel manufactured or assembled prior to August first, nineteen hundred eighty-six for which the manufacturer or assembler has not designated a model year;

(15) Any vessel having a valid marine document issued by the United States or a foreign government;

(16) Any vessel under fourteen feet in length;

(17) A vehicle owned or leased by the state of New York and regularly utilized or intended to be utilized for undisclosed or undercover law enforcement purposes;

(18) A vehicle owned by a non-resident of this state for which a currently effective certificate of title has been issued in another state and which is leased to a resident of, and registered in, this state.

(19) A mobile home or a manufactured home, manufactured prior to July first, nineteen hundred ninety-four and designated by the manufacturer as being a nineteen hundred ninety-four or earlier model year mobile home or manufactured home, and any mobile home or manufactured home manufactured or assembled prior to January first, nineteen hundred ninety-four for which the manufacturer has not designated a model year.

(b) [Repealed]

(c) A person engaged in the business of selling vehicles who does not place such vehicles in his own consumer use and who is not required to be registered as a dealer under section four hundred fifteen of this chapter, shall not be deemed a dealer with respect to such vehicles and shall not be required to apply for or receive a certificate of title for any such vehicles. A local authority, which acquires title to a vehicle or vehicles under the provisions of section twelve hundred twenty-four of this chapter, and which does not place such vehicle or vehicles in its own consumer use shall not be required to apply for or receive a certificate of title for any such vehicle or vehicles.

(d) No certificate of title shall be issued to a vehicle excluded from the provisions of this article.

(e) The commissioner may, by regulation, exclude from the provisions of this title vehicles designated by the manufacturer as being of a model year more than nine years prior to the current calendar year. The commissioner may provide that such exclusion shall apply to all such vehicles or to any categories or classes of such vehicles.

Department of Motor Vehicles, in processing application for certificate of title to automobile which applicant had purchased in Florida, should have insisted on the production of a Florida certificate of title, since the Department knew that Florida was a vehicle certificate of title state. Statutes must be construed in light of the intent of the Legislature, which must be derived from reading the statute itself, unless, because of ambiguity, it is found necessary to resort to extraneous material. Since the intent of the Legislature cannot readily be ascertained from a literal reading of subdivision 5 of section 415-a of the Vehicle and Traffic Law, which requires vehicle dismantlers to keep certain records of motor vehicles and major component parts thereof while in their possession, and the memorandum in support of the statute makes it apparent that the intent of the Legislature in enacting section 415-a was to provide a method by which the police can trace stolen vehicles and their component parts, the court concluded that vehicle dismantlers are required to keep records of major component parts that have been removed from vehicles that have been issued a certificate of title by the Commissioner of Motor Vehicles or vehicles that are eligible to have a certificate of title, and, accordingly, where evidence submitted to the Grand Jury indicated that defendant, while working as a vehicle dismantler, had in his possession a nose clip, which is a major component part of a motor vehicle (15 NYCRR 81.20 [b]), from a 1978 Lincoln Continental, a vehicle that was eligible to have a certificate of title (Vehicle and Traffic Law, §§ 2102, 2104), and the evidence further indicates that defendant failed to maintain a record of the nose clip, the court found that the evidence was sufficient to sustain an indictment under section 415-a, which makes the failure to produce such records upon the request of the Commissioner of Motor Vehicles or the police a class A misdemeanor. HISTORY:

a. Any town in which any part of a newly incorporated village is located shall, from the date of such incorporation until the first day of June following the first day of January next succeeding such date of incorporation, continue to perform and to render to and in such incorporated area all those functions and services performed and rendered by it therein and therefor on the date of the filing of the petition for incorporation which function and services, except for the requirements of this section, would otherwise have ceased to be required to be performed or rendered therein upon such incorporation.

b. Any town improvement district and any fire district, fire protection district or fire alarm district partially located in a newly incorporated village and which upon the incorporation of such area would by operation of law or could thereafter pursuant to law, cease to exist in such village shall, nevertheless, from the date of such incorporation until the first day of June following the first day of January next succeeding such date of incorporation, continue to perform and to render to and in such incorporated area all those functions and services rendered by it therein and therefore [therefor]* on the date of the filing of the petition for incorporation.

2. The cost and expense of so performing and so rendering said functions and services shall be budgeted, levied upon, assessed against and collected from the entire town or district, as the case may be, as if such village had not been incorporated. In budgeting such cost and expense such town or district shall provide for a full year's cost and expense of providing such functions and services in the incorporated area.

3. The collector or receiver of taxes of a town and the treasurer of a county shall continue to perform their duties in respect to the property included in such incorporated area until all taxes and assessments extended and levied against such property prior to the village incorporation or subsequent thereto, as provided in subdivision two of this section, have been collected.

4. Such collector or receiver of taxes of a town and such treasurer of a county shall, on the first day of June following the first day of January next succeeding the date of incorporation, pay over to the treasurer of the village seven-twelfths of the collected taxes and assessments extended and levied against the real property in said area for the functions and services referred to in subdivision one hereof. Such collector or receiver of taxes of a town and such treasurer of a county shall, commencing on the first day of July following the first day of January next succeeding the date of incorporation, pay over to the treasurer of village monthly, as collected after the first day of June, seven-twelfths of the taxes and assessments extended and levied against the real property in said area for the functions and services referred to in subdivision one hereof. However, the village, town and district or any of them may agree to a different amount or manner of payment or both.

5. All sums received by the village treasurer pursuant to this section shall be deposited in the general village fund.

6. Nothing contained in this section shall be deemed to cause or require the abolition or diminution of such a town improvement district, a fire district, a fire protection district, or a fire alarm district.

Analysis

1. In general
2. Under former § 3-354

1. In general

Where area of fire district becomes incorporated village, fire district may continue to provide service to such village; if, upon petition, boundaries are changed by resolution of town board, fire district would be required to provide such services until first day of June following first day of January next succeeding date of incorporation of village. 1985 Op St Compt No. 85-50.

2. Under former § 3-354

That § 202-c of the Town Law was not designed to be the exclusive method of discontinuing or reducing the size of a special improvement district is indicated by former § 3-354 of the Village Law which provides this result may also occur by "operation of

A village incorporated in territory which formerly was administered by a town sanitary district had the power to render garbage service within its territorial limits upon the expiration of the contract existing with the sanitary district at the time of incorporation. Atlantic Beach v Kimmel, 18 N.Y.2d 485, 276 N.Y.S.2d 993, 223 N.E.2d 489, 1966 N.Y. LEXIS 920 (N.Y. 1966).

Former §§ 358 and 360 dealing with improvement districts part of which are included within the boundaries in a newly created village with respect to proportionate obligation, apportionment of personal and real property, discharge of liability, and apportionment of taxes and adjustments constitutes an inherent recognition by the Legislature of a termination of such districts' jurisdiction within the village limits. And a further indication that such was the intention of the Legislature is to be found in subd 1(b) of the above statute which expressly states that such a district shall cease to exist within such village. Atlantic Beach v Kimmel, 48 Misc. 2d 193, 264 N.Y.S.2d 562, 1965 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1369 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1965), aff'd, 25 A.D.2d 531, 267 N.Y.S.2d 534, 1966 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4996 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1966).

Section 202-c of the Town Law is not the exclusive means of dissolving or diminishing an improvement district inasmuch as the Legislature specifically recognized in subd b of the above statute that such a change may also occur by "operation of law". Atlantic Beach v Kimmel, 48 Misc. 2d 193, 264 N.Y.S.2d 562, 1965 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1369 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1965), aff'd, 25 A.D.2d 531, 267 N.Y.S.2d 534, 1966 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4996 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1966).

Where a village became incorporated on June 21, 1962 and included within its boundaries territory which was within a larger fire district, and no affirmative action was taken pursuant to Town Law, § 182 to exclude from the district the area within the new village, the fire district continued to exist within the village. 1966 Ops St Compt File #692.

Where town improvement districts are partially within a newly incorporated village, the segments of such districts which are within the village may or may not continue to be portions of such districts and continue to receive and pay for district services, depending on the circumstances of each case. 1967 Ops St Compt File #307.

Where assessments have been made by the town for a lighting district prior to its dissolution by the action of a village board, such assessments shall be collected by the town and paid over to the village treasurer. 1967 Ops St Compt File #959.

Agency Opinions

1. In general

The granting of a cable television franchise by a town creates vested rights and obligations which cannot be altered by the subsequent incorporation of a village within part of the town: consequently, The franchise continues in effect within the area of the village without change or alteration; The village is not entitled to receive any fee from the holder of the franchise for the exercise of the franchise right granted by the town; and The village is not entitled to demand from the town and to receive any portion of the fee received or receivable by the town from the holder of the franchise. 1976 NY Ops Atty Gen Nov 29.

§ 2-254. Effect of incorporation on all districts entirely within village

1. Whenever the term "district" is used in this section it shall be construed as referring to a fire district, fire protection district or fire alarm district, or a town special district, or a town improvement district; and the term "governing body" as used in this section shall be construed as referring to all boards, bodies of persons, in which any of the governing powers of a district are vested.

2. If on the date of incorporation or a village the limits of the village are coterminous with the limits of, or wholly include, the territory of a district, such district shall cease to exist at the end of the fiscal year of such district next following the first day of June following the first day of January next succeeding the date of incorporation; except as otherwise provided in this section, the powers and duties of the governing body of the district and of all the officers of the district in connection therewith shall then cease and determine; and any board of commissioners, any office of commissioner and any other office of any such district shall also cease to exist at such time.

2-a. If the limits of a village incorporated prior to the first day of April, nineteen hundred sixty-five are coterminous with the limits of, or wholly include the territory of, a district, the board of trustees of the village, by local law or pursuant to the provisions of article seventeen-A of the general municipal law, may abolish any such district. In addition to any other notice required in connection with the adoption of such local law generally, thirty days' written notice of the hearing to be held in connection with such local law shall be given to the governing body of any such district and to the town clerk. A certified copy of any such local law shall be served upon or mailed to such governing body and clerk within five days following the adoption thereof. Except as otherwise provided in this section, the powers and duties of the governing body of a district so abolished and of all the officers of the district in connection therewith shall cease and determine upon the effective date of such local law and any board of commissioners, any office of commissioner and any other office of any such district shall also cease to exist at such time. No such local law shall become effective except on the last day of a fiscal year of the town or district, as the case may be.

a. The obligations and the contracts of a district which shall so cease to exist and the obligations and contracts of a town for the benefit of or chargeable to such a district shall not be impaired by this section.

b. Notwithstanding the dissolution of a district pursuant to this section,

(1) an amount shall be levied and collected annually sufficient to pay in regular course the principal of and interest on all bonds or obligations issued pursuant to the local finance law or otherwise by or on behalf of such district which are outstanding and unpaid as of the date of the dissolution of the district. Such annual levy and collection shall continue until all such outstanding bonds and obligations are paid in full.

(2) all levies, assessments, fees, rates or other charges of the district unpaid as of the date of dissolution and all penalties and interest thereon shall be collected.

(3) all moneys collected under subparagraph two of this paragraph which would be available for district purposes if the district were not dissolved shall be applied to the payment of all obligations of the district, other than those described in subparagraph one of this paragraph, which are due and payable at the time of the dissolution of the district. All such moneys so collected and not required for such purpose shall be paid over to the village treasurer.

(4) the levies, collections and payments described in subparagraphs one, two and three of this paragraph shall be made in the same manner as if the district had not been dissolved, except that for the purposes of this paragraph:

(a) if a fire district is dissolved, the board of trustees of the village shall constitute the board of fire commissioners of the former fire district and

(b) if a district other than a fire district is dissolved, the powers of the governing body of the district shall be exercised and performed by the town board of the town in which the district is located.

(5) in lieu of the requirements set forth in subparagraph one of this paragraph, the board of trustees by resolution, subject to permissive referendum, may provide that the village shall assume responsibility for the levy and collection, as a general village charge, of all amounts required to pay the bonds or obligations therein described. In such event the village shall annually pay an amount sufficient to pay the principal and interest on such bonds or obligations as same become due and payable in regular course. In the case of bonds or obligations of a district other than a fire district, such payment shall be made to the supervisor of the town in which the district is located. In the case of fire district bonds or obligations, payment shall be made directly to the holder of such bonds or obligations. The board of trustees shall give written notice of such resolution to the town board before same shall become effective. Nothing herein contained shall prevent the village from prepaying to the town for the purpose of redeeming such bonds or obligations, other than those of a fire district, in whole or in part provided the bonds or obligations permit such part payment or redemption. Nothing herein contained shall prevent the village from prepaying or redeeming such fire district bonds or obligations in whole or in part provided the bonds or obligations permit such part payment or redemption.

c. All contracts of or on behalf of and chargeable to a district which ceases to exist hereunder, including all amounts unpaid under such contracts but excluding all amounts unpaid thereunder which were due and payable at the time of dissolution of such district, other than obligations incurred pursuant to the local finance law, shall, to the extent they are the responsibility of or beneficial to such a district, be assumed by the village and all expenditures under such contracts shall be charged as provided in subdivision six of this section. The terms and conditions and all rights of or on behalf of the district, including any right of amendment or rescission of such contract, shall inure to the benefit of the village.

4. The governing body of a district shall be responsible for the payment of all obligations of the district other than those described in subparagraph one of paragraph b of subdivision three of this section which are due and payable at the time of the dissolution of the district. The governing body of a district shall be responsible for the payment of all obligations of the district described in subparagraph one of paragraph b of subdivision three of this section.

5. Upon a district ceasing to exist hereunder, all property of a district shall automatically become the property of the village and, in connection therewith, the governing body and any other officer or person empowered to transfer title to or having the custody or control of any moneys of such district, any moneys in a reserve fund, any real or personal property of such district or used or applied for the purposes of such district, any policies of insurance for the benefit of such district, any documents, instruments and other muniments of title to district property and of any official books, records and other data relating to the operation and management of such district shall prepare or cause to be prepared an inventory of all such property, shall certify same, shall deliver same to the village clerk and shall:

a. pay over to the village treasurer all such moneys except so much thereof as was collected for the purpose of paying principal of and interest on bonds or other obligations issued pursuant to the local finance law or otherwise by or on behalf of the district and further except so much of the balance of such moneys as may be required to pay those obligations of the district described in subdivision four of this section. The village treasurer on receipt of such moneys, shall set same aside and apply them pursuant to law to the purposes of the district which ceases to exist hereunder so long as the village continues to provide the service or function thereof and thereafter to be applied in reduction of village taxes levied against the area of such former district; provided, however, that so long as the village provides the service or function of the former district any moneys held by or on behalf of a district in a reserve fund subject to the provisions of article two of the general municipal law or section fifty-five-a of the town law shall be held and administered by the village as a reserve fund subject to those provisions of article two of the general municipal law pertaining to villages for the same or similar purpose for which any such fund was established.

d. surrender and deliver all such insurance policies, books, records and other data to the village clerk. Copies of official books, records and other data relating to the operation and management of such district and certified by the officer responsible for same shall be sufficient to satisfy the requirements of this paragraph. No fees or expenses shall be charged for the making of such copies and same shall be entitled to the same admissibility in evidence in a court proceeding as the originals thereof.

e. surrender and deliver all other such personal property to such village officer, employee, board or commission as the board of trustees of the village shall designate The failure of the governing body or any other officer or person to comply with the requirements of this subdivision shall in no way impair the automatic transfer to the village of the right, title or interest of the district of, in or to such property.

6. Upon a district ceasing to exist hereunder and until such time as the village may discontinue the service or function pursuant to subdivision seven of this section, the service or function of such former district shall become a village service or function and shall be continued as, in the discretion of the board of trustees of the village, may be needed in all territory which previously received same and the board of trustees shall have all the powers and duties granted by law to village officials in connection with such service or function and such additional powers formerly held by the governing body or any officer of the district which may be necessary to continue the service or function of the district, provided, however:

a. if the limits of a district which ceases to exist hereunder are wholly within but are not coterminous with those of the village and the service or function formerly provided by such district is not extended outside the limits of the former district, all the costs and expenses of such service or function may be chargeable only to the territory of such former district.

b. if the limits of a district which ceases to exist hereunder are wholly within but are not coterminous with those of the village and the service or function formerly provided by such district is extended outside the limits of such former district, so much of all costs and expenses of such extension of service or function to such outside territory as is represented by the payment of the principal and interest on obligations incurred therefor by the village pursuant to the local finance law may be chargeable to and collected from such outside territory; and all other costs and expenses of such service or function may be chargeable only to that part of the entire territory of the village in which such service or function is provided. In any event and regardless of the territory to which such other costs and expenses may be made chargeable, same shall be apportioned and collected uniformly and without discrimination within such territory.

c. upon any fire district ceasing to exist hereunder, all fire, hose, protective or hook and ladder companies and all authorized squads or other units of such district, including the memberships thereof, shall continue to exist and shall not be affected thereby except as follows:

(1) the members of all such companies, squads or units shall constitute a corporation and the fire department of the village.

(2) all such companies, squads or units shall thereafter be subject to and governed by all the provisions of this chapter regulating and pertaining to any such company, squad or unit and the fire department of the village.

d. upon the incorporation of a village all existing fire, hose, protective or hook and ladder companies and all other firemanic squads or units independently organized and incorporated which are not companies, squads or units of any fire district ceasing to exist hereunder and the boundaries of which companies, squads or units as specified in their certificates of incorporation or charters or any laws establishing such companies, squads or units are coterminous with or wholly included within the limits of the village and the memberships thereof shall continue to exist and shall not be affected thereby except as follows:

(1) the members of all such companies, squads or units shall constitute a corporation and the fire department of the village.

(2) all such companies, squads or units shall thereafter be subject to and governed by all the provisions of this chapter regulating and pertaining to any such company, squad or unit and the fire department of the village.

e. all officers and employees of any district which ceases to exist hereunder shall to the greatest extent practicable in the discretion of the board of trustees be continued in the same or similar positions as village employees and, in connection therewith, shall have all the rights provided by the civil service law as if their former positions with the district had originally been established by the village.

7. The board of trustees of the village at any time by local law may discontinue the service or function of the former district in all or any part of the village; provided, however, that any such local law shall be subject to a permissive referendum of the qualified voters in the territory receiving the service or function at the time of the adoption of such local law and in which the service or function is proposed to be discontinued. For the purpose of such referendum such territory shall be considered as if it comprised the entire territory of the village.

8. This section shall not apply to any special assessment area or any area of assessment for benefit the boundaries of which are coterminous with or wholly included within the limits of the village, which was established only to pay the original cost of any special improvement or facility or any addition thereto, benefitting such area. As to any such area the assessments therein established shall continue to be levied and collected as if the village had not been incorporated. However, any such publicly owned improvement or facility shall become the property of the village in the same manner as provided in subdivision five of this section for property of a district.

9. Any other special assessment area or any other area of assessment for benefit the boundaries of which are coterminous with or wholly included within the limits of a village, shall be considered as a district subject to the provisions of this section and chapter if same was established not only to pay the original cost of any special improvement or facility, or any addition thereto, benefitting such area but also to pay the cost of the operation, maintenance, repair or replacement thereof.

2. Under former § 3-356

1. In general

After report of incorporation of new village is filed with secretary of state, town in which village is located may not take action to prevent dissolution of ambulance district which is wholly located within bounds of new village; however, town can, with consent of village, establish new ambulance district to encompass boundaries of former district after former district has ceased to exist. 1986 Op St Compt No. 86-47.

2. Under former § 3-356

A village incorporated in territory which formerly was administered by a town sanitary district had the power to render garbage service within its territorial limits upon the expiration of the contract existing with the sanitary district at the time of incorporation. Atlantic Beach v Kimmel, 18 N.Y.2d 485, 276 N.Y.S.2d 993, 223 N.E.2d 489, 1966 N.Y. LEXIS 920 (N.Y. 1966).

The provisions of former § 89, subd 25(a), in regard to the powers of the board of village trustees over the disposition of garbage show that the legislature intended a village upon incorporation to have the final say with respect to garbage removal service within its territorial limits. And this intention is further evidenced by the provision of subd 2 of the above statute that town improvement districts "shall cease to exist at the end of the fiscal year of the district next following the first day of June following the first day of January next succeeding the date of incorporation" where the improvement district is coterminous with the limits of or wholly included within the village boundaries. Atlantic Beach v Kimmel, 48 Misc. 2d 193, 264 N.Y.S.2d 562, 1965 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1369 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1965), aff'd, 25 A.D.2d 531, 267 N.Y.S.2d 534, 1966 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4996 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1966).

Where town improvement districts are partially within a newly incorporated village, the segments of such districts which are within the village may or may not continue to be portions of such districts and continue to receive and pay for district services, depending on the circumstances of each case. 1967 Ops St Compt File #307.

Where assessments have been made by the town for a lighting district prior to its dissolution by the action of a village board, such assessments shall be collected by the town and paid over to the village treasurer. 1967 Ops St Compt File #959.

3-308. Separate boards of commissioners

HISTORY:

Add, L 1972, ch 892, eff Sept 1, 1973.

§ 3-308. Separate boards of commissioners

1. The board of trustees may establish or abolish a board or boards of fire, ambulance, water, light, sewer, park or cemetery commissioners or a single municipal board having the powers, duties and responsibilities of two or more such separate boards.

2. The board of trustees may also establish or abolish a separate board of police commissioners.

3. The board of trustees shall establish the composition, powers, duties and responsibilities of each board of commissioners and may, from time to time, amend same.

4. Any board established hereunder shall be composed of not less than three members, who shall perform their duties subject to the approval of the board of trustees.

5. The mayor, subject to the approval of the board of trustees, shall appoint the members of any board of commissioners and the first appointments of members thereto shall be for terms so fixed that at least one will expire at the end of each official year commencing at the end of the current such year and continuing in succeeding year [years]* until the entire original appointments run out. No such term shall exceed five years.

6. Commencing with the first annual meeting following the establishment of any such board, and continuing annually thereafter, successors to former appointees, the term of whose offices have then expired, shall be appointed for a full term. The length of such term shall be determined by the board of trustees but in no event shall exceed five years.

7. A person who has been convicted of arson in any degree shall not be eligible for appointment to any board of fire commissioners. Any fire commissioner who is convicted of arson in any degree during his term of office shall be disqualified from completing such term of office.

8. The board of trustees may also abolish any such board of boards established under any prior provision of law. If not so abolished such board or boards shall continue and the commissioners thereof shall continue in office during their respective terms.

9. Any action of the board of trustees hereunder establishing, relating to or abolishing any such board or fixing the terms of office of the members thereof shall be by resolution or local law adopted at a regular meeting by a majority vote of the entire board. No such action shall be taken unless a public hearing has first been held of which at least ten days public notice shall have been given by publication in the official village newspaper, or, if there be none, in a newspaper of general circulation in the village.

ARTICLE 4 Powers, Duties and Compensation of Officers

Section
4-412. The board of trustees

HISTORY:

Add, L 1972, ch 892, eff Sept 1, 1973.

1. General powers of the board of trustees. a. In addition to any other powers conferred upon villages, the board of trustees of a village shall have management of village property and finances, may take all measures and do all acts, by local law, not inconsistent with the provisions of the constitution, and not inconsistent with a general law except as authorized by the municipal home rule law, which shall be deemed expedient or desirable for the good government of the village, its management and business, the protection of its property, the safety, health, comfort, and general welfare of its inhabitants, the protection of their property, the preservation of peace and good order, the suppression of vice, the benefit of trade, and the preservation and protection of public works. The board of trustees may create or abolish by resolution offices, boards, agencies and commissions and delegate to said offices, boards, agencies and commissions so much of its powers, duties and functions as it shall deem necessary for effectuating or administering the board of trustees duties and functions.

b. Whenever the constitutionality of any local law, ordinance, rule or regulation of a village is brought into issue upon a trial or hearing of any civil cause of action or proceeding in any court, and the village is not a party to such action or proceeding, notice shall be served upon the village in accordance with section one thousand twelve of the civil practice law and rules.

2. Procedure for meetings. The mayor of the village shall preside at the meetings of the board of trustees as provided in section 4-400 of this article. A majority of the board shall constitute a quorum for the transaction of business, but a less number may adjourn and compel the attendance of absent members. Whenever required by a member of the board, the vote upon any question shall be taken by ayes and noes, and the names of the members present and their votes shall be entered in the minutes. The board may determine the rules of its procedure, and may compel the attendance of absent members by the entry of a resolution in the minutes, directing any peace officer, acting pursuant to his special duties, or police officer residing within the village to arrest such absent member and take him before the board of trustees to answer for his neglect. A copy of the resolution, certified by the clerk of the village, shall be sufficient authority to such officer residing in the village to arrest such absent member and bring him before the board.

3. In addition the board of trustees:

(1) Drains. May, for the purpose of arresting and preventing damage to property within the village resulting from floods or erosion, construct drains, culverts, dams and bulkheads, and dredge channels, and regulate water courses, ponds and watering places within or without the village. Power and authority is hereby conferred upon the board of trustees of a village, in the name of the village, to acquire property necessary for such public improvements, whether located within or without such village, by purchase or by condemnation in the manner provided by the condemnation law. No property shall be acquired or such a public improvement constructed without the corporate limits of a village except with the consent of the governing board or body of the city, town or village in which such property is situated or such public improvement is proposed to be constructed. Such consent may only be given after a public hearing held within such city, town or village pursuant to notice published at least once and at least ten days prior to the hearing in a newspaper having general circulation in the municipality in which the hearing is to be held. Consent given by the governing board or body by any such municipality shall not impose a liability against the city, town or village and the maintenance and repair of any such improvement shall remain the responsibility of the village making the improvement. The cost of the work, including the acquisition of property, shall be a charge against the village, except that in respect of improvements wholly within the village, or that part thereof located therein, the work may be done wholly at the expense of the village or of the owners of the property benefited, or partly at the expense of each as a local improvement. The term "property" as used in this section is defined to include lands, structures, rights in lands, including lands under water, riparian rights and any and all other things and rights usually included within the said town, and shall include also easements, rights of way, uses, leases, licenses and any and all interests in such property less than full title.

(2) Banks of deposit. Shall designate in the manner provided by section ten of the general municipal law the depositaries for the deposit of all moneys received by the treasurer, clerk, receiver, and town receiver who is designated and appointed as village receiver; and may require a report by the cashier thereof to each regular meeting of the board of the amount on deposit to the credit of the treasurer and such other village officers.

(3) Payment and compromise of claims. The board of trustees may pay or compromise claims equitably payable by the village, though not constituting obligations legally binding on it in those cases in which there has been a payment to the village through error or mistake and to which funds the village is not entitled, but the trustees shall have no power to waive the defense of the statute of limitations or to grant extra compensation to any public officer, servant or contractor.

(4) Waste disposal. May, whenever in its judgment, the interest of the village require it, purchase or acquire by condemnation proceedings, lands for the establishment of a public waste disposal site or disposal plant within or without any such village, and prohibit the use of any other lands within the village for such purpose. But no land shall be acquired without the corporate limits of the village for such purpose without the consent of the board of trustees, town board, common council or other similar legislative body of the village, town or city in which such land is situate.

(5) Sale of abandoned or lost property. May transfer to the general fund the proceeds realized from the sale of lost or abandoned property.

(6) Franchises; competing light or water system. May grant rights and franchises or permission to use the streets, highways, public places or any part thereof or the space above or under them or any of them for any specific purpose upon such terms and conditions as it may deem proper and as may be permitted by law. No franchise shall be granted without a public hearing notice of which shall be given by publication in the official newspaper at least ten days before the meeting. If a village operates a municipal lighting system or water system the granting of a right or franchise in competition with such system shall be subject to a permissive referendum as defined in this chapter.

(7) Acceptance of dedicated streets. Is authorized to accept the dedication of lands in the village for a public street or streets in the village.

(8) Public docks. Subject to the provisions of general law, may acquire, construct, enlarge, extend or improve public docks, as a municipal purpose, within or without the corporate limits thereof and may acquire land therefor, provided however that one end of any such dock shall be within the corporate limits of the village. Before any such dock shall be acquired, constructed or extended beyond the corporate limits of the village into a town, the consent of the town board shall be obtained. Charges for use of the facilities of any such dock may be imposed.

(9) Fire protection and ambulance service. a. May contract for the furnishing of fire protection within the village with the fire department in the village or with any city, village, fire district, or incorporated fire company having its headquarters outside such village and maintaining adequate and suitable apparatus and appliances for the furnishing of fire protection in such village. The contract also may provide for the furnishing of emergency service in case of accidents, calamities or other emergencies in connection with which the services of firefighters would be required, as well as in case of alarms of fire. The contract also may provide for the furnishing of general ambulance service subject, however, to the provisions of section two hundred nine-b of the general municipal law. In the event that the fire department or fire company furnishing fire protection within the village pursuant to contract does not maintain and operate an ambulance then a separate contract may be made for the furnishing within the village of emergency ambulance service or general ambulance service, or both, with any city, village or fire district the fire department of which, or with an incorporated fire company having its headquarters outside the village which, maintains and operates an ambulance subject, however, in the case of general ambulance service, to the provisions of section two hundred nine-b of the general municipal law.

(i) Except as provided in clause (ii) of this subparagraph, prior to commencing the negotiation process for such contract with an incorporated fire company, the incorporated fire company shall file with the board of trustees a statement itemizing the estimated costs of the incorporated fire company attributable to the provision of services under the prospective contract. The estimated costs attributable to the provision of services under the prospective contract itemized in the statement shall include, at a minimum, those, if any, for: supplies; materials; operation, maintenance and repair of equipment and apparatus; insurance; training; protective clothing, gear and other personnel costs; building rental, maintenance and operation; and a specified proportionate share of capital costs. If the fire company is required to prepare any of the following documents, copies shall be included with the statement:

(A) the fire company's most recent annual report of directors pursuant to section five hundred nineteen of the not-for-profit corporation law;

(B) the fire company's most recent verified certificate pursuant to subdivision (f) of section fourteen hundred two of the not-for-profit corporation law;

(C) the fire company's most recent internal revenue service form 990; and

(D) the fire company's most recent annual report pursuant to section thirty-a of the general municipal law.

(ii) Upon good cause shown, the board of trustees may, by resolution, waive in whole or in part the requirement that the fire company file the statement, and copies of documents, required by clause (i) of this subparagraph.

b. The period for which such service may be furnished under any such contract shall not exceed five years. The contract shall specify a definite sum to be paid each year for such service. No such contract shall be entered into until a public hearing has been held by the board of trustees. Notice of such hearing shall be published at least once in at least one newspaper having general circulation in the village. Such notice shall specify the time when and place where said hearing will be held, and describe in general terms the proposed contract. The first publication thereof shall be at least ten days prior to the day specified for such hearing.

c. By mutual consent of the contracting parties, and after a public hearing held pursuant to notice in the manner aforesaid, any such contract heretofore or hereafter executed may be (1) amended, (2) terminated, or (3) terminated and a new contract may be entered into in lieu thereof, if the board of trustees, after such hearing, shall determine, by resolution, that it is in the public interest so to do. Such notice shall state in general terms the reason why any existing contract is to be amended or terminated, and if a new contract is to be entered into the notice shall also describe the new contract in general terms.

d. The provisions of this subdivision shall not be deemed to have amended subdivision two of section two hundred nine-b or section two hundred nine-d of the general municipal law, or any other general, special or local law requiring the consent of a fire department, fire company or an emergency rescue and first aid squad to the entering into of a contract for services to be performed by such department, company or squad.

e. The term "fire protection", as used in this section, includes inspections of buildings and properties in the village or portion thereof, required to be protected under a contract for fire protection pursuant to the provisions of this subdivision, for the purposes specified in and as authorized by sections eight hundred seven-a and eight hundred seven-b of the education law, subdivision four of section three hundred three of the multiple residence law, and section two hundred fourteen of this chapter.

(10) Air rights and subsurface areas. May, in addition to such powers as may be granted by any other law, lease to any person, firm or corporation, for commercial or private use, the air rights over or the subsurface area under any property of the village acquired or to be acquired for street purposes, public parking garages, parking spaces or public off-street loading facilities. Such lease may only be entered into when such air rights or subsurface areas are not needed for village purposes. Any such lease may be for a term not exceeding fifty years and may be renewed for such additional term or terms as the board of trustees may provide. Any such lease shall contain provisions requiring the lessee to construct facilities adequate to support and maintain, without interference, the village parking or off-street loading facilities being conducted by the village and in such manner as to minimize or avoid the relocation of public utility facilities and may also contain such other provisions, conditions and restrictions, including the responsibility of the lessee to excavate land or erect or construct buildings, structures, substructures or superstructures at the expense of the lessee, as the board of trustees may prescribe. Such lease must provide that title to any buildings, structures, substructures or superstructures erected or constructed by the lessee shall vest in the village at the termination of the lease. Any such buildings, structures, substructures, or superstructures, the title to which remains in the lessee, during the term of the lease, shall be deemed to be real property for purposes of taxation as defined in subdivision twelve of section one hundred two of the real property tax law.

(11) Every officer, board or agency of a village shall let all contracts for public work and all purchase contracts to the lowest responsible bidder after advertisement for bids where so required by section one hundred three of the general municipal law.

(12) An officer or person who assumes to create a liability or appropriate money or property of the village without authority of law, or assents thereto, is personally liable for such debt, or to the village for such money or property. Each member of a village board present at a meeting thereof when such unlawful action is taken is deemed to have assented thereto, unless he expressly dissents and requests such dissent to be entered upon the minutes of the meeting. If any person shall have heretofore appropriated or shall hereafter appropriate money or preperty [property][*] of the village, contrary to law, and the facts in relation thereto are known to the board of trustees, and, after this section as amended takes effect, such board fail for thirty days to bring an action against such person to recover such money or property, each member of the board having such knowledge shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and liable to removal from office unless within such period of thirty days he shall file with the village clerk a written request, signed by him, requesting the bringing of, such action or shall cause to be entered upon the minutes of a meeting of the board a motion made by him for the bringing of such action, or his vote in favor of such a motion.

(13) Loitering. May prohibit and punish loitering; provided however, that such ordinance or law shall only prohibit loitering for a specific illegal purpose or loitering in a specific place of restricted public access and shall therein set forth guidelines for application of such prohibitions by law enforcement officers so as to prevent arbitrary or discriminatory enforcement of such prohibitions.

I. In General

1. In general

No village officer has power to waive or suspend enforcement of an ordinance. People v Frederico, 88 Misc. 2d 32, 387 N.Y.S.2d 521, 1976 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2376 (N.Y. J. Ct. 1976), aff'd, 91 Misc. 2d 131, 397 N.Y.S.2d 515, 1977 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2256 (N.Y. App. Term 1977).

The legislative power of village boards of trustees may be exercised by simple resolution, ordinance or local law, depending upon the subject matter of the legislation. 1974 Op St Compt No. 74–104.

Absent act of state legislature, village may not conduct advisory referendum on question of whether village should become city. 1996 Op St Compt No. 96-18, 1996 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 15.

2. Creation of offices

Village board of trustees' resolution creating position of Village Administrator was authorized by CLS Vill § 4-412(1) where position entailed specifically enumerated responsibilities subject to control and direction of mayor and board of trustees. Fairgrieve v Incorporated Village of Mineola, 238 A.D.2d 466, 656 N.Y.S.2d 643, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4035 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1997).

3. Employment of village attorney

A village may not designate a law firm as village attorney. 1974 Op St Compt No. 74–1.

A village may adopt a local law authorizing a village to engage a law firm on a fee basis in lieu of appointing a village attorney. 1974 Op St Compt No. 74–1.

4. Hiring of other employees

The board of trustees may ratify the mayor's act of hiring an attorney as labor negotiator but is not obliged to do so. The board of trustees determines its own rules in regard to an agenda since an agenda is procedural in nature. Also, policy-making power lies with the board of trustees. 1981 Op St Comp No. 81-417, 1981 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 466.

5. —Residence requirement

Members of village board of trustees who also are affiliated with volunteer fire department should recuse themselves from voting on those portions of budget that affect fire department; board may, however, establish exceptions to such rule if public interest would be served. 1994 Op St Compt No. 94-31, 1994 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 29.

6. Conduct of meetings; hearings

The trustees of a village had no power to appoint a village attorney where a local law required that, at least four business hours prior to each board meeting, a copy of each resolution to be submitted to the board be delivered to the village clerk, and this procedure had not been followed with respect to the resolution appointing the new attorney. D'Ambrosio v Reile, 106 A.D.2d 856, 483 N.Y.S.2d 555, 1984 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 21757 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1984).

A village board may not regularly convene special meetings to handle regular village business, but, instead, if the work load so requires, the board should provide in its rules for one or more additional regular meetings each month. Where, however, urgent matters arise which must be dealt with prior to the next scheduled meeting of the village board, then special meetings may be called by the board and such meetings may, where necessary, be called without notice to the general public. 1975 Op St Compt No. 75–680.

7. Village contracts

Village defendants were entitled to dismissal of civil damages action under 42 USCS § 1983 alleging that they illegally changed zoning classification of property used by factory located next to plaintiffs' property, as village board of trustees did not exceed its authority when it executed stipulation which settled litigation against factory owners by modifying restrictions imposed on factory's use of its property, and plaintiffs failed to identify any protected interest under § 1983. Konrad v Incorporated Village of Valley Stream, 270 A.D.2d 459, 705 N.Y.S.2d 77, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3166 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't), app. dismissed, 95 N.Y.2d 886, 715 N.Y.S.2d 377, 738 N.E.2d 781, 2000 N.Y. LEXIS 3451 (N.Y. 2000).

Where board of trustees of village adopted formal resolution which authorized finalization of certain plans for building to be erected on village property for recreational purposes and where, in conformance with such resolution, village clerk notified licensed engineer to proceed with finalization of plans, city was estopped from denying existence of valid contract and right of engineer to seek compensation in accordance with his performance, despite fact that village did not provide engineer with a purchase order. Dour v Port Jefferson, 89 Misc. 2d 146, 390 N.Y.S.2d 965, 1976 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2837 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1976).

In contracting with petitioner to manage its golf club, village was acting through its "business" persona rather than its governmental one, and thus terms of that contract could legally transcend terms of village trustees who approved it, and was binding on village trustees (past, present and future) who might not approve of it, notwithstanding absence of mayor's signature. Karedes v Colella, 187 Misc. 2d 656, 722 N.Y.S.2d 714, 2001 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 60 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 2001), aff'd in part, modified, 292 A.D.2d 138, 740 N.Y.S.2d 526, 2002 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3845 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2002), rev'd, 306 A.D.2d 769, 761 N.Y.S.2d 534, 2003 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7473 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2003).

8. Liability insurance

Village may contract for services of emergency first-aid rescue squad of village fire department only in context of contract for fire protection; if contract for fire protection provides for furnishing of ambulance services, it should describe services to be provided on specified terms; village may not purchase liability insurance for vehicles owned by village fire department. 1987 Op St Compt No 87-76.

Village may not purchase liability insurance, nor agree to indemnify third parties against claims for damage to vehicles owned by village fire department. Ops St Compt 89-15.

9. Maintenance of private property

Village ordinance which required property owners to maintain buildings and structures in good repair, and to keep structures painted or covered in protective coating, was based on sound governmental objectives and passed constitutional muster where ordinance was based on legislative finding which established its purpose to foster health, safety and welfare and to maintain neighborhood and property values. People v Beecher, 153 Misc. 2d 247, 580 N.Y.S.2d 980, 1992 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 49 (N.Y. J. Ct. 1992).

Village ordinance which required property owners to maintain buildings and structures "in good repair" was not void as vague or indefinite since phrase was not incapable of definition and was not one which common sense of reasonable person would not comprehend. People v Beecher, 153 Misc. 2d 247, 580 N.Y.S.2d 980, 1992 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 49 (N.Y. J. Ct. 1992).

Village ordinance which required property owners to keep structures painted or covered in protective coating was not void as too subjective or as placing too much discretion in hands of building inspector since person of ordinary intelligence would be capable of recognizing if structure needed painting or protective coating. People v Beecher, 153 Misc. 2d 247, 580 N.Y.S.2d 980, 1992 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 49 (N.Y. J. Ct. 1992).

Where a landlord of a multiple dwelling within a village neglects to properly heat the building, the village may not order fuel oil on behalf of the landlord, pay the cost thereof to the dealer, and seek reimbursement by assessing the cost thereof against the property. However, the village may enact legislation requiring sufficient heat to be provided by a landlord to maintain minimum temperatures. 1974 Ops St Compt File #35.

A municipality may adopt a local law requiring the removal of trash and debris from private premises and in default thereof by the owner, providing for removal by the municipality and the assessment of the cost thereof against the property, to be collected by levy and inclusion on the tax bill. Prior inconsistent opinions e.g. 24 Opns St Comp, 1968, p 659; 26 Opns St Comp, 1970, p 10) are superseded. 1981 Op St Comp File #81-372.

Village may dredge privately owned pond within village where such pond is integral part of village's drainage system and where filled in condition is result of its drainage function; entire cost of dredging may be assessed against properties benefited; if village authorizes such dredging, cost may be financed through issuance of bonds if village has interest in property during time obligations are outstanding, such as easements from owners of pond to restrict owners from taking any actions which prevent pond from fulfilling its village draining function; such easements would ensure that pond is "drainage improvement" within meaning of CLS Local Fin Law § 11.00(a)(3). Ops St Comp 90-4.

10. Regulation of park land

Agreement to operate facility at park which is termed license or concession, but which, in substance, constitutes lease, contravenes common law restriction against alienation of park property without specific legislative authority. Ops St Compt 88-60.

11. Waste disposal

A village may reasonably regulate the conduct of a commercial garbage compacting business within the village. Whether the village may prohibit use of the compaction station in relation to garbage originating outside of the village, depends upon the facts and circumstances, and principles of constitutional law. 1976 Ops St Compt File #9.

Villages may provide for refuse collection services on co-operative basis either by jointly acquiring equipment and hiring personnel or by one village acting as "lead agency" and contracting to provide services to others. 1988 Op St Compt No. 88-12.

12. Zoning powers

Amendment to village zoning ordinance, which placed greater restrictions on use of property in zone containing plaintiff's parcel, was properly applied to parcel notwithstanding plaintiff's contention that he made subdivision application under prior ordinance, since plaintiff did not have complete subdivision application before planning board when ordinance was amended. Elstein v Board of Trustees, 184 A.D.2d 1079, 584 N.Y.S.2d 374, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8348 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1992).

Amendment to village zoning ordinance, which placed greater restrictions on use of property, was valid where it was enacted in accordance with comprehensive plan for land use within village and did not constitute spot zoning. Elstein v Board of Trustees, 184 A.D.2d 1079, 584 N.Y.S.2d 374, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8348 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1992).

Village ordinance which prohibited issuance of permit to construct outdoor residential swimming pool if pool was detrimental to general character of district or to orderly development of village and which contained rear yard, set back requirements and fixed maximum percentage of lot area pool could occupy was not a legitimate exercise of police power but a zoning regulation invalid and unenforceable because of village's lack of power to enact zoning legislation. Garnett v Atlantic Beach, 84 Misc. 2d 460, 376 N.Y.S.2d 802, 1975 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3150 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1975).

Signs are traditionally and properly included within definitions of zoning capacity. Century Federal Sav. & Loan Ass'n v Atlantic Beach, 86 Misc. 2d 863, 383 N.Y.S.2d 524, 1976 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2534 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1976).

Village which was located in Nassau County and which did not have zoning powers had the power to regulate signs, at least in some reasonable way. Century Federal Sav. & Loan Ass'n v Atlantic Beach, 86 Misc. 2d 863, 383 N.Y.S.2d 524, 1976 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2534 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1976).

Newly incorporated village may adopt zoning legislation to supersede zoning laws of town which were in effect upon date of incorporation of village and town may not enact zoning or land use legislation affecting property within village subsequent to date of incorporation. 1987 Op St Compt No. 87-12.

13. Banks of deposit

It seems that a village treasurer no longer has the discretionary power to require depositaries of village funds to furnish security. 1974 Ops St Compt File #111.

14. Use of village funds

Trial court erred annulling three village resolutions on the basis that the public opinion surveys constituted impermissible advisory referenda or opinion polls because the village board did not seek to submit any of the survey questions to voters at an election and, therefore, even if the surveys were characterized as opinion polls, the village board was authorized to appropriate public funds to conduct them pursuant to N.Y. Village Law § 4-412(1)(a). Matter of Woodburn v Village of Owego, 151 A.D.3d 1216, 57 N.Y.S.3d 537, 2017 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4433 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2017).

A village may not expend moneys for the purpose of planting shrubs and trees on the center mall of a State highway which runs through the village. 1975 Ops St Compt File #836.

Village can refund special franchise taxes levied against a cablevision corporation for past 2 fiscal years in amount equal to special franchise fees paid to village prior to levy of taxes, where corporation has received no credit for such fees against taxes as required by CLS Real Property Law § 626. 1985 Op St Compt No. 85-59.

The effect of the amendments to § 208-f of the General Municipal Law, Chapter 415 of Laws of 1982 and Chapter 348 of Laws of 1989, is to permit the special accidental death benefit to be paid to the deceased member's children under the age of 18 in both the situation where the deceased member is divorced at the time of his death and in the situation where the deceased member's spouse predeceases him. Further § 5 of Chapter 415 of the Laws of 1982 provided that payments to the children of deceased member may be made retroactive to September 1, 1978. While it appears that claims of eligible children, either retroactive from September 1, 1978 or thereafter, may be subject to a municipality obligation to interpose an appropriately statute of limitations defense, it should be noted that the 4 month statute of limitations contained in CPLR § 217 (subject to tolling for infancy), which would be applicable to the Article 78 proceeding in the nature of mandamus to compel payment, would not begin to run until there was a demand and a refusal, although a claim may be barred by laches even where no demand has been made if the claimant unreasonably delays in making the appropriate demand. 1990 Op St Compt 90-43.

Village, by local law, may establish publicity fund and may provide for limitation on amount of fund; such limitation provided for by local law may be increased or eliminated only by adoption of another local law. 1998 Op St Compt No. 98-22.

There is no statute pursuant to which a village may purchase smoke detector units in bulk and then resell them to village residents at its cost, nor can authority to do so be provided by local law. 1982 Op St Comp File #82-50.

Broad grant of general authority set forth in N.Y. Village Law § 4-412 authorizes public opinion surveys regardless of whether they are labeled surveys or opinion polls. Matter of Woodburn v Village of Owego, 151 A.D.3d 1216, 57 N.Y.S.3d 537, 2017 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4433 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2017).

15. Payment and compromise of claims

It would be an unconstitutional gift of public funds should a village compromise a claim for damages incurred by a homeowner by reason of a ruptured water main, unless there is a legal basis for village liability for such damages. 1977 Ops St Compt File #235.

The effect of the amendments to § 208-f of the General Municipal Law, Chapter 415 of Laws of 1982 and Chapter 348 of Laws of 1989, is to permit the special accidental death benefit to be paid to the deceased member's children under the age of 18 in both the situation where the deceased member is divorced at the time of his death and in the situation where the deceased member's spouse predeceases him. Further § 5 of Chapter 415 of the Laws of 1982 provided that payments to the children of deceased member may be made retroactive to September 1, 1978. While it appears that claims of eligible children, either retroactive from September 1, 1978 or thereafter, may be subject to a municipality obligation to interpose an appropriately statute of limitations defense, it should be noted that the 4 month statute of limitations contained in CPLR § 217 (subject to tolling for infancy), which would be applicable to the Article 78 proceeding in the nature of mandamus to compel payment, would not begin to run until there was a demand and a refusal, although a claim may be barred by laches even where no demand has been made if the claimant unreasonably delays in making the appropriate demand. 1990 Op St Compt 90-43.

In village which has established office of village auditor, village board of trustees may not, by resolution or local law, authorize auditor to audit and order paid only certain claims; village board of trustees may not delegate its authority to make budget transfers between appropriations; village board of trustees may permit claims against village to be processed without either certification or verification by oath of claimant. Ops St Comp 90-9.

16. Compensation of officers and employees

The salaries of village elective officers may be increased during their terms of office only by adoption of local laws subject to permissive referenda. 1974 Ops St Compt File #104.

A village trustee may request and receive payment of salary at a time outside the regular meetings of the village board of trustees unless board procedures require prior audit. If audit is required, authorization for such payment may only take place at regular or special meetings open to the general public. Village trustees may not receive salary prior to times previously designated by the board unless authorized to do so by formal resolution. CIVIL SERVICE LAW, § 35(a): An elected village trustee is exempt from civil service classifications and therefore does not require certification before requesting payment of salary. 1982 St Compt File #82-227.

In absence of pre-existing authority under state statute, local law, or collective bargaining agreement provision, village may not pay legal expenses incurred by village police officers in connection with criminal proceedings; village may not pay as moral or equitable obligation legal expenses of village police officers arising out of allegations of misconduct. 2000 Op St Compt No. 00-1.

It would appear that village which owns electric utility system may, by local law, extend to its officers and employees, as part of their compensation, credit up to a specified dollar amount for utility service. 1986 Op State Compt No. 86-12.

17. Purchase or sale of property

Trial court's dismissal of a parking field purchaser's action, seeking specific performance and injunctive relief against a village, was proper, as the purchaser had contracted for the sale of the field with the village's community development agency, but the agency had never actually acquired the field under N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law §§ 555(1)(a), (c), and 556, it never obtained the approval for the sale from the village pursuant to N.Y. Village Law § 4-412(1)(a), and it accordingly lacked authority to sell the field. RB Hempstead, LLC v Incorporated Vil. of Hempstead, 34 A.D.3d 552, 824 N.Y.S.2d 407, 2006 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13524 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2006), app. dismissed, app. denied, 8 N.Y.3d 1019, 839 N.Y.S.2d 451, 870 N.E.2d 691, 2007 N.Y. LEXIS 1569 (N.Y. 2007).

The purchase of an option to buy a building by a town and village for the purpose of future assignment of such option to a private corporation would not be in furtherance of a proper town or village purpose and is, therefore, impermissible. 1974 Ops St Compt File #576.

18. Lease of village property

A village board of trustees may lease village-owned real property not acquired for park or recreational purposes and not presently needed for any other village purpose, and the question of whether or not to enter into such a lease may not be submitted to an advisory referendum. 1975 Ops St Compt File #594.

Agreement to operate facility at park which is termed license or concession, but which, in substance, constitutes lease, contravenes common law restriction against alienation of park property without specific legislative authority. Ops St Compt 88-60.

19. Village fees or assessments

Special assessments levied against petitioners' properties in village to defray portion of cost of municipal parking facility were not illegal and void, notwithstanding that primary purpose of facility was supervised parking for commuter convenience, where petitioners' properties received a concomitant if perhaps secondary but significant special benefit in that new parking spaces were created, existing short-term public parking was opened up, and more parkers of whatever character, including commuters, were attracted. Scarsdale Chateaux RTN v Steyer, 41 N.Y.2d 1043, 396 N.Y.S.2d 166, 364 N.E.2d 830, 1977 N.Y. LEXIS 2042 (N.Y. 1977).

Board may not use its tap-in fee for the purpose of defraying a portion of the cost of maintaining and improving its water system; Board's permit fee is sustainable only as a regulatory measure and only where the amount charged is not greater than a sum reasonably necessary to cover costs of issuance, inspection, and enforcement. Torsoe Bros. Constr. Corp. v Board of Trustees, 49 A.D.2d 461, 375 N.Y.S.2d 612, 1975 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11413 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1975).

A village may not pay a monthly fee for cable television for village homeowners since such payment is not authorized. A village could not impose a tax to pay such a fee, even by adoption of a local law, because taxation is a matter of state concern and the legislature has not authorized a cable television tax. 1985 Op St Compt 85-32.

Village may dredge privately owned pond within village where such pond is integral part of village's drainage system and where filled in condition is result of its drainage function; entire cost of dredging may be assessed against properties benefited; if village authorizes such dredging, cost may be financed through issuance of bonds if village has interest in property during time obligations are outstanding, such as easements from owners of pond to restrict owners from taking any actions which prevent pond from fulfilling its village draining function; such easements would ensure that pond is "drainage improvement" within meaning of CLS Local Fin Law § 11.00(a)(3). Ops St Comp 90-4.

20. Practice and procedure

Apartment owner was not barred by laches from recovering damages from village based on imposition of additional charges which involved unequal assessment of charges for garbage collection without reasonable basis therefor. Juleah Co. v Roslyn, 56 A.D.2d 483, 392 N.Y.S.2d 926, 1977 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10489 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1977), aff'd, 44 N.Y.2d 845, 406 N.Y.S.2d 760, 378 N.E.2d 123, 1978 N.Y. LEXIS 2041 (N.Y. 1978).

Village violated constitutional guarantee of equal protection of the laws when it set lower limits on amount of garbage it collected per dwelling unit in apartment developments than that imposed on one and two-family homes and, in addition, imposed on owner of apartment development a substantial additional charge for such service over and above ad valorem real estate taxes collected from such owner. Juleah Co. v Roslyn, 56 A.D.2d 483, 392 N.Y.S.2d 926, 1977 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10489 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1977), aff'd, 44 N.Y.2d 845, 406 N.Y.S.2d 760, 378 N.E.2d 123, 1978 N.Y. LEXIS 2041 (N.Y. 1978).

Since village ordinance governing proceedings to declare damaged buildings nuisances was not invalid and was self-executing, commencement of special proceeding in the Supreme Court by resolution was appropriate. Scheid v Eight Sixteen Main Street Corp., 57 A.D.2d 1018, 394 N.Y.S.2d 492, 1977 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12312 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1977).

Fact that village ordinance governing proceedings for declaration of a damaged building as a nuisance does not specify that the proceedings are to be brought in the Supreme Court nor the fact that the ordinance does not provide for the same time limits as did former provisions of the Village Law did not mean that the ordinance was not validly enacted. Scheid v Eight Sixteen Main Street Corp., 57 A.D.2d 1018, 394 N.Y.S.2d 492, 1977 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12312 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1977).

Stipulation in action against village to determine boundary between two parcels of land under which any possible defense of adverse possession was removed from the case did not violate section of Village Law prohibiting trustees from waiving defense of statute of limitations. Salesian Soc. v Ellenville, 58 A.D.2d 711, 396 N.Y.S.2d 711, 1977 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12820 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), app. denied, 42 N.Y.2d 810, 399 N.Y.S.2d 1025, 369 N.E.2d 774, 1977 N.Y. LEXIS 3899 (N.Y. 1977).

Petitioner who owned property in village and was engaged in business of mineral extraction had standing to ask court to annul local law regulating extraction of natural products within village due to village respondents' alleged failure to comply with State Environmental Quality Review Act (SEQRA), and thus petitioner's combined Article 78 proceeding and action for declaratory judgment was improperly dismissed for failure to allege specific adverse environmental impact; property owner has legally cognizable interest in being assured that municipality satisfied SEQRA before taking action. Skenesborough Stone, Inc. v Village of Whitehall, 229 A.D.2d 780, 645 N.Y.S.2d 579, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7829 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1996).

Aspect of Article 78 petition seeking declaration of validity of contract between petitioner and respondent village was converted to action for declaratory judgment, thus saving time and expense of another lawsuit over same basic issue, where parties were jurisdictionally before court and each, in one way or another, had asked for determination as to legality and enforceability of contract. Karedes v Colella, 187 Misc. 2d 656, 722 N.Y.S.2d 714, 2001 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 60 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 2001), aff'd in part, modified, 292 A.D.2d 138, 740 N.Y.S.2d 526, 2002 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3845 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2002), rev'd, 306 A.D.2d 769, 761 N.Y.S.2d 534, 2003 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7473 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2003).

In municipalities other than New York City, cable franchises are granted by the town board, village board of trustees, or the common council of the city, as required by N.Y. Town Law § 64(7), N.Y. Village Law § 4-412(6), N.Y. Gen. City Law §§ 20(10) and 23(2)(b), and N.Y. Second Class Cities Law § 37, respectively; in New York City, however, the City Charter requires that the New York City Franchise and Concession Review Committee (FCRC) approve franchises and explicitly bars any participation by the Council after the Council passes an authorizing resolution. Thus, the FCRC was the body with authority to approve cable franchise renewals and the New York Public Service Commission's regulation did not require or authorize the additional approval of the Council. Council of N.Y. v PSC, 99 N.Y.2d 64, 751 N.Y.S.2d 822, 781 N.E.2d 886, 2002 N.Y. LEXIS 3371 (N.Y. 2002).

It was premature for village to commence Article 78 proceeding to review determination of Public Employment Relations Board, which found that village's appointment of hearing officer to conduct employee disciplinary action could be subject to collective bargaining and thus remanded matter to hearing officer to take further evidence on issue, since there was no final resolution of ultimate issue as to whether village was guilty of improper employer practice based on its unilateral departure from alleged past practice of holding disciplinary hearings before its board of trustees, and determination challenged herein was limited to ruling that if such past practice was established in future hearing, village was not free to change it without negotiation; moreover, determination had no coercive impact as village's only burden was to proceed with hearing. Hempstead v Public Employment Relations Bd., 137 A.D.2d 378, 529 N.Y.S.2d 219, 1988 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6085 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), app. denied, 72 N.Y.2d 808, 534 N.Y.S.2d 666, 531 N.E.2d 298, 1988 N.Y. LEXIS 3307 (N.Y. 1988).

In action against village board of trustees for judgment declaring right of plaintiffs to use certain pool facilities in village, plaintiffs were not entitled to judgment declaring that they were currently residents of village and had same rights as other residents to use pool facilities where (1) plaintiffs' properties were traversed by boundary separating village from neighboring town, (2) court entered judgment declaring that plaintiffs were residents of village, and (3) village thereafter amended ordinance to define residents as persons residing in dwellings located entirely within village; however, validity of amendment to ordinance and its effects on plaintiffs' preexisting rights were proper subjects of hearing. Beyda v Board of Trustees, 155 A.D.2d 500, 547 N.Y.S.2d 578, 547 N.Y.S.2d 579, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 14294 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1989).

Absent delegation of power from state, village may not mandate manner in which property may be owned; thus, inasmuch as local law encumbered sponsors' efforts to convert apartments, which village zoning ordinance classified as multifamily dwellings, into condominiums, also considered multifamily dwellings, it went beyond village's enabling legislation and was thus ultra vires and void. P.O.K. RSA, Inc. v New Paltz, 157 A.D.2d 15, 555 N.Y.S.2d 476, 1990 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4732 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), app. dismissed, 76 N.Y.2d 886, 561 N.Y.S.2d 546, 562 N.E.2d 871, 1990 N.Y. LEXIS 3186 (N.Y. 1990).

Village law establishing classifications as to who would and would not be deemed "residents" of village for purposes of use of village pool did not violate equal protection. Beyda v Board of Trustees, 207 A.D.2d 517, 616 N.Y.S.2d 72, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8562 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't), app. dismissed, 84 N.Y.2d 977, 622 N.Y.S.2d 916, 647 N.E.2d 122, 1994 N.Y. LEXIS 4373 (N.Y. 1994), app. denied, 85 N.Y.2d 804, 626 N.Y.S.2d 755, 650 N.E.2d 414, 1995 N.Y. LEXIS 1265 (N.Y. 1995).

Village board of trustees had authority to amend its local law to permit taking of deer under nuisance deer permits duly issued by Department of Environmental Conservation. Coalition to Save the Deer v Village of N. Haven, 231 A.D.2d 669, 647 N.Y.S.2d 987, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9676 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1996).

Village ordinance prohibiting public consumption of alcoholic beverages was reasonable exercise of municipal police power. People v Finch, 88 Misc. 2d 581, 388 N.Y.S.2d 820, 1976 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2707 (N.Y. J. Ct. 1976).

Village ordinance which prohibits "excessive or unusually loud sound which either annoys, disturbs, injures or endangers the comfort, repose, health, peace or safety of a reasonable person of normal sensitivities", is not unconstitutionally vague, since its provisions clearly and expressly state what is prohibited and its enforcement depends upon objective standard to be applied and determined by court before which cases are to be tried. People v Hollstegge, 129 Misc. 2d 580, 493 N.Y.S.2d 720, 1985 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2655 (N.Y. J. Ct. 1985).

Village law, which prohibited parking in residential district of village without sticker available to residents and their visitors, was valid exercise of police power by village board of trustees where board of trustees made clear at time of enactment of law that intent was to exercise police power in connection with prevention of burglary and apprehension of persons suspected of crimes committed within village. People v Weinberg, 142 Misc. 2d 608, 537 N.Y.S.2d 1003, 1988 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 823 (N.Y. J. Ct. 1988).

Village law, which prohibited parking in residential district of village without sticker available to residents and their visitors, did not violate equal protection since law rationally promoted its objectives to control traffic and parking congestion and to aid police in investigation of burglaries and other crimes. People v Weinberg, 142 Misc. 2d 608, 537 N.Y.S.2d 1003, 1988 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 823 (N.Y. J. Ct. 1988).

Court would invalidate, as unconstitutionally vague and overbroad, sections of village code which established music licensing system which, except for coin-operated juke boxes, prohibited owner or operator of places of amusement from offering live or mechanically reproduced music without first obtaining permit granted on basis of, inter alia, applicant's "good moral character," lack of objection by adjoining residents to "objectionable" music, "suitable parking so as to avoid traffic congestion," no "reasonable objection" by police chief, and absence of any adverse effect on health, welfare or morals of village residents, and which further authorized music license to be terminated on showing that continuation of such permit was "injurious to health, welfare or morals of residents of village." Dawson v Spring Valley, 151 Misc. 2d 128, 572 N.Y.S.2d 1000, 1991 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 361 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1991).

A local law of the Village of Bellerose, which prohibits parking in the "Residence District" unless the parked automobile bears a sticker available to residents of the district and their visitors, is constitutional as a valid exercise of the village's police power (Village Law § 4-412 [1]) even though the desire to eliminate traffic, parking congestion and pollution might not be sufficient to sustain the ordinance (see, New York State Pub. Employees Fedn. v City of Albany, 72 NY2d 96) since the law was also enacted for the specific and legitimate purpose of aiding the police in the investigation of burglaries and other crimes within the village. The local law is entitled to the strong presumption of regularity and constitutionality and the village is also entitled to the full benefit of the further presumption that it has investigated and found the existence of a situation showing or indicating the need for or desirability of the law. Defendant, a nonresident, has failed to meet his burden of showing that there is no reasonable basis at all for the challenged law. People v Weinberg, 142 Misc. 2d 608, 537 N.Y.S.2d 1003, 1988 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 823 (N.Y. J. Ct. 1988).

While a town or village may not provide its gasoline for use by volunteer firemen in their private cars, such municipality may assist volunteer firemen by providing a place to store the volunteer firemen's emergency allocation of gasoline. 1974 Ops St Compt File #181.

The use of a village "code", which consists merely of a compilation of existing ordinances into a bound volume for easy reference, may be discontinued by resolution of the village board of trustees; thereafter, reference to such legislation should be as originally enacted. 1974 Ops St Compt File #704.

A municipality has concurrent jurisdiction with the State to regulate the use of tidal wetlands within such municipality. However, a municipality may not permit a use of such wetlands which would be inconsistent with State regulations with respect thereto. 1974 Ops St Compt File #868.

A village may appropriate funds for an education program which promotes fire prevention. 1984 Op St Compt 84-67.

A village, by local law, may regulate vending from vehicles on state highways located within the village; accordingly, a village may adopt a local law which prohibits peddlers from vending their wares from vehicles parked on state highways within the village. 1985 Op St Compt No. 85-65.

Although a village may abolish positions of employment and contract with private entities to perform services formerly performed by municipal employees in order to provide more cost efficient services, so long as there is no circumvention of civil service requirements, it may not abolish the office of clerk-treasurer and engage a private contractor to fulfill statutory duties of that office. 1985 Op St Compt No. 85-70.

Village board may rename street by resolution and without special public notice. 1986 Op St Compt No. 86-30.

Village board of trustees may not establish audit commission consisting of mayor and clerk-treasurer which would have authority to audit claims against village. 1987 Op St Compt No. 87-65.

When property is intersected by boundary line between village and city, village, in absence of municipal corporation agreement, is obligated to continue to provide services to property, including police, fire, ambulance, and sanitation. 1987 Op St Compt No. 87-68.

Village may establish special assessment district for purpose of financing all or portion of cost of flood control project against lands deemed benefited by such project. 1987 Op St Compt No. 87-92.

Village, by local law, may provide for publication and distribution of newsletter for its residents containing information including notices of public meetings, information as to structure and function of village government, schedules of village activities, and financial reports; however, village may not sell advertising space in such newsletter. 1992 Op St Compt No. 92-31.

Village board has authority to enact local law providing for licensure and control of cats; however, village's local law may not regulate cats that are lost, strayed, homeless or abandoned animals within meaning of provisions of Agriculture and Markets Law. 1994 Op St Compt No. I 94-27.

Subject to equal protection considerations, coterminous village/town may expend publicity fund monies under contract with not-for-profit corporation, to advertise and publicize resources available in downtown area of village/town, including day labor hiring site, and to monitor and document use of such resources. 2002 Op St Compt No. 02-16.

While there is no statute requiring fire company which constitutes village fire department to submit its books and records pertaining to receipt and expenditure of proceeds from fire protection contracts and fund raising to village board for audit, village board may make such requirement condition to entering into fire protection contracts for outside service or to allowing company to undertake fund raising activities; financial information concerning fire department may also be obtained under provisions of CLS Not-For-Profit Corporation Law and Freedom of Information Law; board of fire commissioners or, if there is no board of fire commissioners, board of trustees of village may require submission of report by chief of fire department. 1988 Ops St Compt 88-55.

Village may contract for services of emergency first aid rescue squad of village fire department only in context of contract for fire protection; if contract for fire protection provides for furnishing of ambulance services, it should describe services to be provided on specified terms; village may not purchase liability insurance for vehicles owned by village fire department. 1987 Op St Comp No. 87-76.

A village which operates under the village manager form of government may adopt a local law authorizing the board of trustees to designate an officer or employee, as necessary, to serve as acting village manager when the office of village manager is temporarily vacant, or if the manager is absent or disabled. 1979 Op St. Compt File #408.

A village may adopt a resolution as a matter of personnel policy requiring employees of the village who are sent to school at village expense for specialized training in order to qualify for a job promotion, to reimburse the village for the cost of such training if they terminate employment within a specified period of time. 1982 Op St. Compt File #82-4.

II. Under Former § 88

22. In general

Where a quorum of four out of five members of Village Board were present at meeting, and one member disqualified himself, a vote of less than a majority of the board was sufficient to defeat a petition for a change of zone. Steers Sand & Gravel Corp. v Village Bd. of Northport, 129 N.Y.S.2d 403, 1954 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3147 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1954).

When three members of a village board of trustees vote for a resolution, two vote against and one refuses or abstains from voting, such resolution is adopted. 1955 Ops St Compt 286.

A village board may not restrict participation at a public hearing on the village budget to only taxpayers of the village. 1965 Ops St Compt File #343.

To govern the conduct of its meetings, a village board should follow the procedure set down in former § 88 of the Village Law and should further adopt some recognized set of rules to govern procedure in matters not specifically covered by this section. 1967 Ops St Compt File #565.

Resolution of town board should be passed and filed with board of elections at least 120 days prior to next biennial election. 1954 Ops St Compt 344.

III. Under Former § 89

A. Financial and Contractual Powers

23. In general

For a discussion re legality of establishment of purchasing system for village see, 1953 Ops St Compt 175.

A village may not erect a building for use by the county. 1964 Ops St Compt #321.

A village may not enact an ordinance requiring insurance agents to obtain a license or permit to do business in the village. 1964 Ops St Compt #412.

24. Banks of deposit

Where the only commercial bank in a village is a bank of which the mayor is an officer, such bank may, nevertheless, be designated as the depositary of village funds. 1945 Ops St Compt 52.

Village officers may not be interested in village depositories (unless it is only bank in village). Village board of trustees designates depository of separate water board funds. 1946 Ops St Compt 173.

Where all the banks in a village are represented on the village board of trustees, such banks may be designated as depositories of village funds. Within the limits of Local Finance Law, § 60.10, a village may sell its bonds to a bank which is represented on the village board of trustees. 1953 Ops St Compt 418.

Where one of the two commercial banks in a village is represented on the village board, the interested bank may not be designated as village depository. To a limited extent, village obligations may be sold to the interested bank. 1955 Ops St Compt 320.

Where village board of trustees have, by resolution, designated a bank as depositary for village funds, the village treasurer is not liable for loss of such funds by reason of the default or insolvency of such bank. 1955 Ops St Compt 328.

Banks or trust companies located without the village may be designated as depositories for village funds, even though an eligible bank or trust company is located within the village. 1957 Ops St Compt 339.

There is no authority for a village to designate, as depositaries of village funds, banks located outside its boundaries, in which village officers have an interest. 1960 Ops St Compt 332.

When a village deposits in a bank or trust company either current funds or moneys not required for immediate expenditure, the obligations pledged by the bank as security do not have to be delivered to the sole custody of the village treasurer, but they must be physically segregated and designated, approved by the village treasurer, and deposited in such place and held under such conditions as the village treasurer may determine, which conditions shall include at least joint control by such treasurer. 1967 Ops St Compt File #487.

A prohibited conflict of interest does not occur when a village board designates a bank as the depository of village funds, notwithstanding the membership of a trustee on the bank's advisory board. Disclosure, however, is necessary. 1968 Ops St Compt File #323.

Discussion of village and town financial transactions whose village or town officer is interested in the bank with whom such village or town does business. Such banks may be village or town depositories. 1946 Ops St Compt 113.

25. Village funds

Village moneys must be expended by the village board of trustees through the village treasurer. Such moneys may not be paid over to the fire council for expenditure. 1954 Ops St Compt 240.

Balance of proceeds derived from activities of the local War Council of the village during the Second World War is public money and should be transferred to the general fund. 1955 Ops St Compt File #7386.

For a discussion of investments for town and village reserve and sinking funds and proceeds from sale of obligations, see 1954 Ops St Compt 238.

No provision for establishment of contingent fund for a village. 1946 Ops St. Compt 193.

26. Use of village funds

Villages may appropriate monies, operate and receive State Aid for recreation, education and child care projects. 1946 Ops St Compt 386.

Village funds may be expended to repair a firehouse owned by the village fire department but leased to the village. 1946 Ops St Compt 426.

A village need not pay 4% interest on consumers' deposits furnished by customers of a village-operated electric utility. 1947 Ops St Compt 128.

Village Law does not authorize village to pay all or part of rent for premises to be used exclusively by state police for substation purposes; village may rent space in a building wherein state police also rent space for substation purposes. 1947 Ops St Compt 383.

Fire insurance money received by village as result of destruction of village hall by fire should be placed in village general fund and may thereafter be expended for purchase of highway equipment provided there appears a budgetary item for this purpose in current budget. 1947 Ops St Compt 481.

Where no emergency exists, village moneys may be expended on doing restoration work on private property only where the village has obtained title through purchase or condemnation or has obtained an easement from the owner. 1954 Ops St Compt 367.

Village may appropriate money for a survey of the governmental structure and efficiency of the village. 1955 Ops St Compt 559.

Moneys appropriated pursuant to former subdivision 68 may be used to conduct a study of the advantages of adopting "the village manager plan" form of government. 1955 Ops St Compt File #7763.

A village may not insert a renewal clause in a garbage collection contract whereby it will run from year to year indefinitely, nor may such a contract contain an "escalator clause" providing for direct billing of occupants in new homes after June 1 at a specified rate and for a rate increase to such occupants at the end of the year. 1962 Ops St Compt 46.

If a village desires to erect a fire station the cost of which will exceed $2,500, it must comply with the requirements of § 103 of the General Municipal Law. 1962 Ops St Compt 167.

A village may not pay the travel expenses of a foreign exchange student. 1962 Ops St Compt 199.

Village may not use proceeds of sale of bonds to defray part of costs of a project more expensive than that for which the bonds were authorized. 1966 Ops St Compt File #683.

Expenses incurred by village for medical examinations, blood tests and chemical analyses in prosecuting crimes are proper village charges. However, witness fees are not payable in courts of special sessions. 1955 Ops St Compt File #7224.

27. Presentment and payment of claims

Water company's claim against city should be presented to board of trustees in itemized account properly verified for audit, and no action should be brought upon it within month after such presentation. Commonwealth Water Co. v Castleton, 192 A.D. 697, 183 N.Y.S. 753, 1920 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7537 (N.Y. App. Div. 1920).

Where a party who had rendered services to a village filed with such village notices of claim for services subsequent to the commencement of the original action but over 30 days before moving for leave to amend the complaint in the original action such plaintiff sufficiently complied with the requirements of this section that no action should be commenced within 30 days of presentation of a claim for audit. Potts v Haverstraw, 110 F.2d 58, 1940 U.S. App. LEXIS 4478 (2d Cir. N.Y.), cert. denied, 311 U.S. 660, 61 S. Ct. 17, 85 L. Ed. 423, 1940 U.S. LEXIS 379 (U.S. 1940).

Payments to private corporations contracting to perform services under Village Law, former § 89(64) must be paid after rendition of services. Lump sum contributions to such corporations may not be made. Doubt exists in villages whether such contracts may be entered into. 1946 Ops St Compt 256.

Verified claims, vouchers or bills need not be submitted in villages operating under Village Law for compensation by officers and employees compensated on regular salary basis. 1946 Ops St Compt 445.

A village board of trustees may determine that bills and accounts against the village may be paid on certified vouchers. 1947 Ops St Compt 402.

Unless the contract between the village and a contractor calls for the payment of certain sums at definitely ascertainable times as the work progresses, no payment should be made thereunder save on a proper voucher audited and allowed by the village board. 1947 Ops St Compt 410.

A claim against a village must be sworn to or certified to prior to audit, except village payrolls and the payment of principal and interest on village bonds and notes. 1947 Ops St Compt 463.

Expense of hospitalization of two men injured while fleeing arrest on a criminal charge is proper charge against village where arrest was made by village officers. 1954 Ops St Compt 329.

The requirements as to form which a claim must satisfy before it may be audited by a village board of trustees apply regardless of the amount of the claim. The board of trustees should, by resolution, order the approved claims to be paid and such resolution must appear in the minutes. A majority of the members of the board of trustees must approve the resolution. 1955 Ops St Compt 644.

A board of trustees of a village may not cancel or compromise tax liens acquired subsequent to January 1, 1944. 1955 Ops St Compt File #7764.

Where change orders and extras raise total cost of waterworks construction above amount which was appropriated and which was approved by referendum, village has no authority to pay claim for the additional amount in the absence of litigation or a special act of the Legislature. 1965 Ops St Compt File #340.

Fees collected pursuant to an invalid ordinance may be refunded upon the adoption of a local law authorizing the payment of equitable claims against the town. 1967 Ops St Compt File #765.

A police officer of a village may not be paid unless his appointment or employment has been certified by the county civil service commission to have been made in accordance with civil service law and rules. 1954 Ops St Compt 203.

28. Compensation of officers and employees

Where act incorporating village contained list of village officers in which village attorney was not named, attorney retained by village at annual rate was employee of village and not public officer, and entitled to compensation for year, notwithstanding that few months after his appointment as village attorney village was incorporated as city. Fisher v Mechanicville, 225 N.Y. 210, 121 N.E. 764, 225 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 210, 1919 N.Y. LEXIS 1120 (N.Y. 1919).

Village may not compensate a volunteer fireman for clothes damaged or ruined while fighting fires, or for amounts deducted from his wages by his employer for time lost while fighting fires. 1946 Ops St Compt 217.

A village may not compensate a volunteer fireman for service. 1946 Ops St Compt 366.

Salaries of village police constables and fire department drivers may be increased during fiscal year if funds are legally available therefor. 1947 Ops St Compt 383.

A village attorney may properly be compensated above his fixed salary for services not included in his appointment. 1947 Ops St Compt 546.

The salaries of members of a village board of trustees, whose terms do not expire until 1955, may be increased as of the first Monday in April. 1954 Ops St Compt 68.

A village engineer appointed at an annual salary for certain specific duties is not entitled to additional compensation for his official work. 1954 Ops St Compt 279.

Overtime pay may not be authorized for a village superintendent of public works; such officer is entitled to his fixed salary and only such salary no matter how much or how little time he spends in the performance of his duties. 1955 Ops St Compt 251.

While former § 89 contemplated that the village attorney may be employed on fixed annual salary basis, it is believed to permit the village to compensate, on a fee basis, such attorney for additional legal services rendered to the village and not contemplated in his contract of employment. 1960 Ops St Compt 410.

The village attorney is a village employee, and other paid officers and employees of the village may not serve as village attorney and receive compensation therefor. 1960 Ops St Compt 410.

A village attorney may receive compensation in addition to his salary for special services not contemplated at the time of his appointment. 1963 Ops St Compt #88.

A former village attorney may be compensated for legal work performed subsequent to his period of public service if the Board of Trustees has specifically resolved to engage him as special counsel or has ratified his efforts. 1963 Ops St Compt #311.

A village may not pay the officers of the village fire department the amount of money budgeted for fire department purchases, so that such purchases may be made and paid for such fire department. 1965 Ops St Compt File #190.

A village attorney should be paid an annual salary for normal duties, but may be paid additional sums for extraordinary work. 1967 Ops St Compt File #296.

Extra compensation may be paid by a village to the village attorney for extraordinary services performed by him, where an agreement to that effect exists. Where insufficient village moneys are available to pay such additional compensation, budget notes may be issued therefor, subject to statutory limitations. 1967 Ops St Compt File #674.

The fee of an attorney hired by the volunteer firemen of a village fire department, to represent them in negotiations with the village board of trustees, is not a proper village charge. 1969 Ops St Compt File #413.

The operator of machinery and equipment rented by a village may not be paid extra compensation as a village employee but he may be employed by the political subdivision hiring the machinery or equipment. 1954 Ops St Compt 111.

29. Employee benefits

Village may not purchase uniforms for employees of highway department. 1953 Ops St Compt 420.

A village board may require receipts of actual expenditures to be submitted by volunteer firemen in order to receive reimbursement for expenses incurred in attending training schools and instruction courses. 1960 Ops St Compt 299.

A village may not pay a uniform allowance to its water meter readers or waters maintenance department employees. It may, however, purchase uniforms or badges for use by its water meter readers and protective clothing for use by its water maintenance department employees. 1968 Ops St Compt File #422.

30. Expenditures for holidays or celebrations

A village may finance or appropriate village funds toward the expenses of a celebration to be held in honor of those who served in the Armed Forces during "World War II", such celebration to be held at a time other than on Memorial Day. 1946 Ops St Compt 601.

Expenditures of village funds in connection with annual parade and inspection of fire department should be disbursed through the village treasurer after claims therefor have been audited and allowed by the board of trustees of the village. 1947 Ops St Compt 295.

The proper limitation for an appropriation for Memorial Day observance as pertaining to a first class village is $1000. 1955 Ops St Compt 141.

A village of the second class may appropriate $500 for the expense of the proper observance of Memorial Day. While a village should designate an authorized patriotic organization to have charge of the observance in advance thereof, if the village has appropriated a sum for such observance and the patriotic organization has acted with the informal concurrence of the village board, its claim for reimbursement may be audited and paid despite failure to formally designate. 1955 Ops St Compt File #7353.

A village, not of the first class, may expend moneys for printing of brochures commemorating its 25th anniversary. The amount which may be raised by taxation is limited to $1,500. However, such a village may borrow moneys not in excess of the limitations set forth in section 29.00(2) of the Local Finance Law provided it has a local historian. 1956 Ops St Compt 225.

Villages may appropriate funds for the Hudson-Champlain celebration, but the expenditures must be controlled by the respective village boards. 1959 Ops St Compt 208.

A village may expend monies from the publicity fund in order to decorate village streets at Christmas time, as long as such decorations are for the benefit of the village. 1961 Ops St Compt 119.

Money appropriated by a village for observance of Independence Day may be expended only by the Board of Trustees, but, under stated conditions, money appropriated for observance of Memorial Day may be paid to veterans organizations. 1963 Ops St Compt #212.

The village board may reimburse a veterans' organization for expenses of a village Memorial Day observance, within the amount appropriated by the board for this purpose. The propriety of particular items of expense is a matter for the determination of the local authorities. 1964 Ops St Compt File #804.

A village may expend money to celebrate the 75th anniversary of the founding of both the village and the village fire department, but may not contribute toward a fire department celebration. 1965 Ops St Compt File #551.

A village may expend moneys for a historical commemoration only if funds have been appropriated for such and are retained in control of the village board. 1966 Ops St Compt File #723.

A village may not expend funds in conjunction with other villages for the celebration of a United Nations Day Program. 1968 Ops St Compt File #454.

A village may not establish a reserve fund for a centennial celebration. 1968 Ops St Compt File #724.

A town and a village within the town may expend funds jointly to celebrate an historical commemoration. 1969 Ops St Compt File #1023.

Control of municipal funds appropriated for an historical commemoration may not be turned over to private citizens for administering the program. 1969 Ops St Compt File #1023.

Village Law, former § 89(31-a), which limits the amounts which may be appropriated for Independence Day observances, may be superseded under the authority of Municipal Home Rule Law, § 10(1)(ii)(e)(3). However, the constitutionality of the latter statute is questionable. 1972 Ops St Compt File #184.

31. Plaques or memorials

Village funds may not be expended for the purchase and erection of a plaque commemorating the State's construction of a bridge in the village nor for the entertainment of officials attending its opening ceremony. 1960 Ops St Compt 319.

A village may purchase a plaque in memory of departed police officers. 1967 Ops St Compt File #365.

A village may not contribute money or land to an American Legion Post for the erection of a veterans' memorial, but may itself erect such a memorial and accept gifts to help defray the expense. 1969 Ops St Compt File #754.

32. Private enterprises

Annual membership dues of municipal attorneys in the New York State Bar Association (payment of which is a condition to membership in the Municipal Section of such Association) are personal obligations of such attorneys and are not proper charges against municipalities. 1946 Ops St Compt 85.

Towns and villages may not spend money to defray expenses of meeting of a county historical society. 1947 Ops St Compt 148, 149.

Village may not make appropriation of village funds to village drum corps. 1953 Ops St Compt 11.

A village may not sponsor and contribute funds towards the running of an automobile race. 1953 Ops St Compt 236.

A board of trustees of a village may not appropriate funds for a donation to a veterans' organization. 1955 Ops St Compt File #7764.

A village board may not contribute $2,500 to a public library located in the village without submitting such expenditure to a referendum, if an original proposition approved by referendum, establishing the library, fixed a maximum annual expenditure therefor; but if no such maximum annual expenditure was fixed by referendum, no referendum is necessary to make a further annual expenditure. 1961 Ops St Compt 86.

33. Publicity fund

Publicity fund moneys may be expended for Christmas lighting and decorations in the business and commercial area of the village. 1954 Ops St Compt 408.

A newsletter published for and in the interest of the village residents alone, does not qualify as the type of publication for which publicity funds may be expended. 1959 Ops St Compt 326.

A village may not permit a civic association to control or disburse monies from its publicity fund in the absence of written contract. 1962 Ops St Compt 38.

A village may appropriate money for promotion of the location of a community college in the area, and such monies must thereafter be used for publicity purposes. 1963 Ops St Compt File #919.

34. Acquisition of property

Just compensation had to be paid by the state to a village for land which the village acquired by unlimited deed and which land was used by the village to attract business to its inhabitants by serving as local baseball team's home ground. The village did not acquire this land as an agency of the state or for the use of the general public of the state. Canajoharie v State, 13 Misc. 2d 293, 177 N.Y.S.2d 799, 1958 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3137 (N.Y. Ct. Cl. 1958), aff'd, 8 A.D.2d 656, 184 N.Y.S.2d 871, 1959 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9027 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1959).

A decision by a village Board of Trustees to acquire certain property for park purposes involves exercise of the Board's own responsibility, which cannot be left to the voters by referendum. Gerzof v Sweeney, 34 Misc. 2d 1039, 229 N.Y.S.2d 807, 1962 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3292 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1962).

A village board of trustees may purchase real property for a village purpose without holding a referendum thereon. 1953 Ops St Compt 13.

A village may purchase a building for the sum of $650.00 pursuant to a resolution of the board of trustees and without the necessity of a referendum. 1953 Ops St Compt 138.

A village may not acquire title to a privately owned bridge situated on a private road within a contiguous city. 1953 Ops St Compt 245.

Village board may purchase land and building for a garage and finance transaction without referendum. 1953 Ops St Compt 260.

Two municipalities may jointly acquire property for a recreation center pursuant to Article 13 of the General Municipal Law at least where such property is situated entirely within one of the municipalities. 1953 Ops St Compt 317.

A village may not purchase land under a reservation that it be used exclusively by local Boy Scout Troop. 1956 Ops St Compt 39.

In the interest of public use, convenience and necessity, a village may acquire land outside of the village owned by the village fire department, for the purpose of constructing a firehouse on such land, where such firehouse will mainly serve a village purpose. 1964 Ops St Compt File #1011.

A village may not purchase property in order to rent it to a physician at a nominal consideration. The village may, however, establish a hospital or seek special legislation to create a health center for the village. 1967 Ops St Compt File #468.

The acquisition of a village hall is not subject to a referendum, unless it is to be financed and the statutes governing financing contain referendum requirements under the specific circumstances. 1968 Ops St Compt File #153.

Village board of trustees may agree to compromise on value of real property taken by the county by condemnation without submission of compromise to referendum. Village Treasurer should accept tender of that amount. 1955 Ops St Comp 164.

35. —for parks

The acquisition by a village of property for park and recreational purposes was for a public purpose and the village has power to acquire by condemnation property for such purposes even though the use is to be limited to the residents of the village. Hicks Development Corp. v Lawrence, 282 A.D. 1048, 126 N.Y.S.2d 222, 1953 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5787 (N.Y. App. Div. 1953), aff'd, 306 N.Y. 922, 119 N.E.2d 604, 306 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 922, 1954 N.Y. LEXIS 1227 (N.Y. 1954).

Land acquired in fee for general purposes without any restriction even though used for a park may be used for other municipal purposes. Pearlman v Anderson, 62 Misc. 2d 24, 307 N.Y.S.2d 1014, 1970 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1929 (N.Y. Sup. Ct.), aff'd, 35 A.D.2d 544, 314 N.Y.S.2d 173, 1970 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4148 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1970).

While a village may not lease park lands held by it for the public use, it may grant a concession or license for the construction, maintenance and operation of a golf course to a private individual. 1955 Ops St Compt 159.

If a village street is discontinued and if a village owns the fee, it may establish such area as a park, playground or recreational area and the use thereof may be restricted to residents or to certain reasonable classifications of non-residents. 1955 Ops St Compt 234.

A village may not lease its park land to a private association under any circumstances, without specific legislative authority. A village may permit the use of its park lands by a private association or sport team, but such user may not charge admission fees. The village may require the user to procure adequate liability insurance coverage as a condition to such use. 1960 Ops St Compt 392.

The statutory grant of power to a village to establish one or more parks implies the power to acquire suitable sites, if sites already owned by the village are not suited to the envisioned purpose. 1965 Ops St Compt File #196.

The acquisition by a village of lands located outside of the village to be used for park and recreational purposes is not subject to the provisions of § 247 of the General Municipal Law. 1965 Ops St Compt File #483.

Village may designate and set apart for use as playgrounds or neighborhood recreation centers any land owned by such municipality and not dedicated or devoted to another inconsistent public use. 1956 Ops St Compt 54.

36. —Personal property

Board of trustees of village has power to enter into conditional sales contract for purchase of engines and machinery for municipal electric lighting plant providing for payment of contract price in installments from revenues of lighting system. Kelly v Merry, 262 N.Y. 151, 186 N.E. 425, 262 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 151, 1933 N.Y. LEXIS 928 (N.Y. 1933).

Village may purchase fire-fighting apparatus and equipment, which becomes property of village. Individual fire companies may not purchase fire apparatus and equipment and bill village therefor. 1945 Ops St Compt 215.

A village may not purchase street machinery under a contract pursuant to which the machinery would be paid for in five annual installments, with interest. Such machinery may be financed over a period of years only as provided by the Local Finance Law. 1947 Ops St Compt 362.

There is no special procedure required to authorize a village to make purchases for civil defense purposes and to pay for the same. 1955 Ops St Compt File #7511.

A village may purchase an existing dock for municipal purposes where the dock is affixed to realty which is the subject of the purchase. 1956 Ops St Compt File #7937.

A village may purchase and supply protective weather gear and waders to the members of the drainage crew of the highway department. 1957 Ops St Compt 283.

37. Lease of village property

The board of trustees of a village may not lease village property acquired by the village for public parking purposes to private interests for use as a private parking lot. 1956 Ops St Compt 174.

A village may lease its real property, which is not necessary to village purposes and which has not been impressed with a public trust, to a commercial or nonprofit organization for a fair consideration. 1964 Ops St Compt File #985.

A village may lease real property not dedicated to public use and not presently needed for village purposes to the local grange for a fair consideration. 1965 Ops St Compt File #146.

A village may lease village land, not impressed with a public trust and not needed for village purposes, to a Little League ball club for a fair and adequate consideration, but the lease should be executed by the mayor, pursuant to a resolution of the board of trustees, and not by the village recreation commission. A village may provide improvements and maintenance for such leased land consistent with revenues received from the lease. 1965 Ops St Compt File #217.

A village board may lease village real property not impressed with a public trust and not presently needed for a village purpose, and may require the lessee to provide fire and liability insurance, for the protection of the village, in such amounts as the village board deems necessary. 1967 Ops St Compt File #1027.

A village may rent space in a portion of a multideck, offstreet parking facility to persons on a monthly basis, while the remainder of the facility is metered on an hourly and daily basis. 1969 Ops St Compt File #795.

Village property may not be leased for commercial purposes if it is in current use by the village. 1970 Ops St Compt File #63.

A village, owning and operating a general public hospital, established pursuant to the terms of a trust created by a donor of real property, may not lease a portion of said premises, unneeded for village or hospital purposes, in violation of the terms of said trust. 1971 Ops St Compt File #981.

A village may lease real property for a village dump. 1955 Ops St Comp File #7504.

38. —Docks

Where instruments conveying lands from state to village had clearly indicated that village received the lands for public use, and where, in constructing docks on such land for the benefit of the village, the village held such docks in a public capacity, the village would be enjoined from leasing a dock and related facilities to a private corporation engaged in sight-seeing activities on adjacent lake. Lake George S.B. Co. v Blais, 30 N.Y.2d 48, 330 N.Y.S.2d 336, 281 N.E.2d 147, 1972 N.Y. LEXIS 1503 (N.Y. 1972).

The act of the Village officials, in entering into a lease conveying exclusive use of a village dock for use as a base for a "sightseeing" boat, was an improper exercise of their authority and discretion, where there was no showing that the premises in question were dedicated exclusively to a public use, at least to the extent of prohibiting public authorities from leasing part of the lake frontage for docks to private enterprise. Lake George S.B. Co. v Blais, 30 N.Y.2d 48, 330 N.Y.S.2d 336, 281 N.E.2d 147, 1972 N.Y. LEXIS 1503 (N.Y. 1972).

The requirements of former Subd. 39 for public hearings do not apply to a lease by a village of a wharf or dock since such a lease is not a franchise. Ocean Beach Ferry Corp. v Ocean Beach, 92 N.Y.S.2d 275, 1949 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2811 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1949), aff'd, 276 A.D. 920, 94 N.Y.S.2d 826, 1950 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5135 (N.Y. App. Div. 1950).

Where no special legislative authority exists, a village is without authority to lease the use of a public dock held by it for public use so as to divert it to a possession or use exclusively private for private business purposes. 1947 Ops St Compt 178.

Except for permissible charges for the use of public docks pursuant to Village Law former § 89(65), a village may not require a permit fee for issuing licenses to moor boats. 1960 Ops St Compt 116.

A village may install, maintain, and rent water and electric outlet units on the docks to cruisers mooring in the area. 1961 Ops St Compt 128.

39. Sale or transfer of property

Village property may not be conveyed to veterans' organizations for nominal consideration only. 1946 Ops St Compt 646.

Proceeds from sale of village realty should be paid into village general fund. 1953 Ops St Compt 373.

Dedicated streets may be discontinued as such, but title thereto may possibly revert to the grantor or his heirs. If title remains in the village after discontinuance the land may be sold without referendum or hearing. 1954 Ops St Compt 24.

A village may not loan or sell to a person, for resale to another person, village property of a nature difficult to procure otherwise. 1955 Ops St Compt 323.

A village board of trustees may, by resolution, authorize the sale of personal property of the village at private sale. 1956 Ops St Compt 154.

Where the village originally acquired by purchase certain real property for a specific public use and it does not now hold it for that use or for the use and benefit of the public, such property may be properly sold for private purposes without public notice. 1956 Ops St Compt 269.

Public property must be sold for the best price obtainable with reasonable diligence. The use to be made of the property by prospective purchaser, however beneficial it may be to community, is not legal consideration. 1960 Ops St Compt File #158.

As a general rule, where a village wishes to sell real property the Board of Trustees has a general power of conveyance, and, if the property has ceased to be of public use or benefit, or is no longer required for such purposes, its sale may be authorized by resolution of the Board of Trustees and does not require a referendum of public notice of sale. 1961 Ops St Compt 113.

A village may not take back a purchase money mortgage as part of the consideration for the sale of village-owned property which it no longer requires for any public use. 1967 Ops St Compt File #904.

A village may sell its property, real or personal, at public auction. 1968 Ops St Compt File #73.

Village property may not be conveyed to an incorporated volunteer fire company with the purpose of leasing it back for the storage of village fire-fighting equipment. 1968 Ops St Compt File #123.

A village may engage the services of a real estate broker and pay commissions therefor, where such services will be rendered in selling a hotel acquired by the village for non-payment of taxes. 1968 Ops St Compt File #520.

A village may transfer a barn located on village property to an historical society in return for the society's removal of the unwanted structure from the village property. 1968 Ops St Compt File #570.

A lot, which is unimproved, unneeded and has not been devoted to a public purpose, does not become inalienable solely by virtue of its continued informal use as a parking lot by the general public and may be sold by resolution of the village board. 1969 Ops St Compt File #375.

A village may not donate its real property to a private corporation pursuant to an agreement that the property, together with the buildings and improvements to be erected thereon, will revert to the village after forty years for a nominal payment of $1.00. 1969 Ops St Compt File #1068.

A village may sell property which houses the village office and assembly hall and such sale is not subject to a referendum. 1953 Ops St Compt 101.

A village may not convey a dedicated public street, unless its use has been discontinued. Discontinuance may be accomplished pursuant to the procedure detailed in Village Law, former §§ 145–148 (inclusive). Upon discontinuance as a street, the property may be sold at private sale, without public notice. A referendum on the sale is not required. 1958 Ops St Compt 460.

Where a village maintains a public general hospital and desires to discontinue the same, it would seem to have authority to do so and, in the process, to transfer, for a fair and adequate consideration, to a private eleemosynary hospital corporation, the assets of such village hospital, both real and personal. This would seem to include trust or endowment funds established for the use and benefit of the village hospital, provided there is no express prohibition in the instruments creating such trusts or endowments. No mandatory or permissive referendum would be involved. 1965 Ops St Compt File #868.

40. —Park lands

Village Board of Trustees had authority to sell land allegedly restricted for park purposes where the land was never dedicated or used for such purpose and the deed of conveyance and the judgment registering title to the property did not restrict its use to such purpose. O'Shea v Hanse, 3 Misc. 2d 307, 147 N.Y.S.2d 792, 1955 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2235 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1955).

Action by taxpayer for judgment restraining Village Board of Trustees from consummating contract for sale of land acquired by village for park purposes was dismissed where the contract purchaser, an indispensable party was not joined as a party in the action and did not intervene. O'Shea v Hanse, 3 Misc. 2d 307, 147 N.Y.S.2d 792, 1955 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2235 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1955).

A village of the second, third or fourth class may not sell park property devoted to public use without express statutory authority. 1953 Ops St Compt 252.

Land conveyed to a village by a developer for park purposes under the authority of former § 179- l (1) of the Village Law becomes impressed with a public trust and may not be alienated without a special act of the Legislature. 1968 Ops St Compt File #976.

Property bought by village for purpose of public park, never devoted to such use and now unsuited therefor, may be sold for private purposes without express legislative authority. 1953 Ops St Comp 251.

41. Assessments

Although former § 223 of the Village Law, providing for the original establishment of a water system, does not confer upon a village any assessing power, and former § 224 authorizes assessments only for extensions of such a system, a village may nevertheless levy special assessments to cover the original installation by virtue of the provisions of subds. 16 and 38 of former § 89 which grant to the village the power to furnish water supply and to levy assessments for all local improvements. Board of Education v Alexander, 92 N.Y.S.2d 471, 197 Misc. 814, 1949 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2843 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1949).

The duty of fixing assessments rests exclusively upon the assessors and cannot be delegated to a person or a corporation employed to appraise the value of real property to assist assessors in the assessment thereof. Barrett v Munger, 115 N.Y.S.2d 708, 201 Misc. 985, 1952 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1741 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1952).

A first class village is not authorized nor do we believe that a local law could be passed to create a special district in the village whereby a special assessment could be levied on an ad valorem basis to cover the excess cost of services rendered to said area. 1957 Ops St Compt 349.

A village may not properly re-assess the aggregate debt service each year of a local improvement. A village board may levy a special assessment for a local improvement against real property exempt from general village taxes. The cost of the improvement or service must be apportioned and assessed against those properties benefited, according to frontage, area, or assessed value, and must be just and equitable. 1968 Ops St Compt File #782.

42. Contract bid requirements

Village operating under Village Law need not advertise for bids on equipment, as general rule, if contract for installation is not involved. 1946 Ops St Compt 252.

Street resurfacing contract in village must be awarded after bids. 1946 Ops St Compt 252.

43. Particular contracts

Village board of trustees may enter into a contract for fire protection with fire department of village. 1946 Ops St Compt 83.

There is no limit on amount village may pay for fire protection under contract. 1947 Ops St Compt 211.

A contract for fire protection made between a village and the fire department may provide for payment of the contract price in advance of their rendition of the service. 1953 Ops St Compt 303.

Modification of existing municipal contract for the sole benefit of the private contracting party would constitute a constitutionally prohibited gift of municipal funds. 1953 Ops St Compt 325.

Where a village has entered into a contract to furnish fire protection to a fire protection district in the town and the contract does not provide for any payment to the volunteer fire department furnishing the protection, the village may not pay any portion of the contract price to the volunteer fire company. 1957 Ops St Compt 120.

There is no constitutional authority for the joint purchase of a squad car by a village and a fire district jointly. However, a possible solution of such a problem would be the purchase of the squad car by either the fire district or the village and then entering into a fire protection contract pursuant to Town Law § 176, subd 16, subd 22, and Village Law former § 89, subd 24. 1959 Ops St Compt File #600.

While a village board may take all measures not inconsistent with existing law to protect the public health and possesses broad powers as a Board of Health, it has no authority to enter into an agreement to maintain and repair a private sewer pump except under conditions where public health is jeopardized, and any agreement for maintenance and repairs under other circumstances would violate § 1 of art. VIII of the Constitution. 1960 Ops St Compt 493.

A village may enter into a franchise with a telephone company whereby the village, for a monetary consideration based upon a percentage of the receipts, will permit placement and maintenance of public telephone booths on village streets. 1962 Ops St Compt 470.

There is no statutory limit on the amount a village may be charged for fire protection under a fire protection contract. 1967 Ops St Compt File #815.

A village may purchase liability insurance covering fire-fighting apparatus owned by a village fire company. 1968 Ops St Compt File #672.

There is no statutory bar to prevent a village which contracts to furnish fire protection to another village from charging a sum which, when translated into a tax rate, is proportionately greater than the sums charged to fire protection districts protected by the same village. 1968 Ops St Compt File #216.

A village need not contract for fire protection with a fire company located in the village but may do so if it desires. Village should be a party to any contract to furnish fire protection to outside area. 1968 Ops St Compt File #672.

Where claimants performed engineering services for a village over a period of time, making periodic reports and meeting periodically with the village board, ratification of the contract may be implied from such acquiescence and other affirmative acts of the board of trustees. 1955 Ops St Comp 52.

B. Regulatory Powers

The exercise of the police power by a Village is not, generally, or by the language of Village Law former § 89, subdivision 69, limited to mere regulation. Within the general authority to regulate may exist the power to prohibit in the furtherance of aesthetic values or the public well-being provided, however, that the exercise of that power is not arbitrary, capricious or irrational. Friedland v Diamond, 67 Misc. 2d 642, 324 N.Y.S.2d 578, 1971 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1297 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1971).

45. Amusements

Neither a town nor a village is authorized to license pin ball machines, juke boxes or shufflboard games. 1946 Ops St Compt 709.

A village may enter into an agreement to permit a private organization to erect lights on a village baseball field for the conduct of after-dark events, and to charge for use of such lights. 1955 Ops St Compt 160.

While a village may, subject to provisions of existing law, license and otherwise regulate circuses, places of amusement, amusement parks and shows, and other exhibitions and performances, such enterprises are apparently lawful business which a village may not entirely prohibit. 1961 Ops St Compt 325.

46. Bicycles

A village ordinance or local law may validly require the testing of children, and others, by the application of reasonable standards, to determine their fitness to operate bicycles on public ways within the village, and may also provide for the issuance or withholding of licenses so to operate bicycles. The power to license the operation of bicycles implies the power to suspend or revoke such license by the application of reasonable standards. A village board of trustees may appoint a commission to administer such ordinance or local law and may delegate to this commission the power to test applicants, issue or withhold licenses and suspend or revoke the same, but not the power to hear prosecutions for violations of the enactment, since this power belongs exclusively to the courts. 1965 Ops St Compt File #296.

47. Boats and waterways

Ordinance enacted pursuant to former § 90, prohibiting landing of excursion boats in village without consent of trustees of village was valid. Mills v Fremd, 213 A.D. 742, 211 N.Y.S. 247, 1925 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8581 (N.Y. App. Div. 1925).

Where a waterway is less than 1500 feet in width, one side of which is owned by a town and the other side by a village, the town is excluded from any jurisdiction to regulate the speed and operation of boats thereon. 1956 Ops St Compt 314.

A village may issue fishing permits for use in the village reservoir for a fee of $2.00 per annum, but may not restrict nonresident permits to members of a particular private club, or delegate the sale of such permits to said club to use monies received for restocking the reservoir. 1962 Ops St Compt 17.

A first class village has power to regulate, by ordinance, the anchoring or mooring of houseboats and barges within its harbor line, subject them to police inspection, and regulate their sewage disposal, garbage removal, and use of toilets. 1963 Ops St Compt #163.

A village may charge nonresidents for use of a village beach and its privileges, although residents are not required to pay for such use. 1964 Ops St Compt #380.

A town may not take over the function of establishing and maintaining aids to navigation on a lake formerly maintained by an incorporated village within the town. 1966 Ops St Compt File #746.

48. Businesses

Certain portions of a Port Chester village ordinance dealing with dancing and entertainment in night clubs and restaurants serving liquor, and the permissible days and hours for dancing and entertainment, and imposing fines and penalties were considered too vague to be valid in failing to inform operators of such places when and under what conditions they could operate. Sa-Bleu, Inc. v Port Chester, 42 Misc. 2d 360, 247 N.Y.S.2d 943, 1963 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1263 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1963).

The Village of Port Chester has power, through its Board of Trustees and subject to provisions of existing law, to provide for licensing and otherwise regulating establishments licensed to sell alcoholic beverages to customers and operating as night clubs and restaurants, and, under the village charter, may sanction or prohibit theatrical shows or exhibitions or "performances for money." Sa-Bleu, Inc. v Port Chester, 42 Misc. 2d 360, 247 N.Y.S.2d 943, 1963 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1263 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1963).

A village ordinance which requires every person who carries on the business of plumbing to obtain a license, but which does not require such person to possess any qualifications or meet any standards, is invalid. 1953 Ops St Compt 406.

Business concerns whether within or without the village may not be licensed or regulated under an ordinance enacted pursuant to sub 48 of former § 89 where they merely solicit orders of goods for future delivery from another state. 1954 Ops St Compt 7.

A village may, by ordinance, regulate maintenance and operation of coin-operated washing machines, drying machines, and/or dry cleaning machines. 1961 Ops St Compt 185.

A village may, by ordinance, require that a dealer in used auto parts procure a license and may provide that such a license shall be refused if the applicant has been convicted of larceny or receiving stolen property. 1961 Ops St Compt 286.

A village may grant a concession or license to place sandwich and beverage vending machines in the village playground and swimming pool area, basing the amount on a percentage of monies taken in by vending machines, and there is no requirement for taking of bids before granting such a concession or license. 1963 Ops St Compt #469.

A village may adopt an ordinance requiring taxicabs to be inspected at an inspection station for a fee if it is reasonable and is not inconsistent with the Vehicle and Traffic Law. 1966 Ops St Compt File #670.

While a town and a village may establish a "joint public vehicle commission", they may not confer upon such commission the power to jointly regulate and control the operation of taxicabs within the area. 1967 Ops St Compt File #660.

A village may not issue a permit or license to a mobile vendor of food and merchandise and at the same time, restrict the licensee from operating within 400 feet of any immobile competing establishment. 1967 Ops St Compt File #1026.

49. —Peddlers

An ordinance barring the taking of orders for future delivery of goods, wares and merchandise within a village, within the intent of evading provision against peddling, without license issued therefor, does not prohibit plaintiff from selling furniture from catalogue on installment plan and making collections therefor, and an injunction will issue permanently restraining village from interfering with his employees in conduct of business in so far as it is transacted in said village. Saidel v Tupper Lake, 254 A.D. 22, 4 N.Y.S.2d 814, 1938 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6329 (N.Y. App. Div. 1938).

Subdivisions 48 and 52 of former § 89 did not empower a board of village trustees to prohibit peddling by a particular individual or by peddlers generally. Supreme Industrial Catering Corp. v Fuerst, 30 Misc. 2d 394, 219 N.Y.S.2d 858, 1961 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2451 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1961).

A village board's rejection of an application for a peddler's license on the ground that it would not be "in the best interests of the village," was arbitrary and capricious. Supreme Industrial Catering Corp. v Fuerst, 30 Misc. 2d 394, 219 N.Y.S.2d 858, 1961 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2451 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1961).

Insofar as a village ordinance attempted to enlarge upon authority of the village trustees with respect to regulating peddling and itinerant vendors, by providing that they need not issue a license unless satisfied it would be in every way proper and not detrimental to the best interests of the village, the public, and property owners adjacent to the locality for which the license was desired, such ordinance was invalid as going beyond the powers conferred by subds. 48 and 52 of former § 89. Supreme Industrial Catering Corp. v Fuerst, 30 Misc. 2d 394, 219 N.Y.S.2d 858, 1961 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2451 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1961).

A village may properly require the licensing of hawkers, peddlers and solicitors. One who takes orders from customers while in the course of delivering merchandise to them is not a solicitor. 1960 Ops St Compt 423.

An ice cream vendor who receives orders for ice cream from village residents without active solicitation on his part therefor, is not required to have a license under an ordinance necessitating a license for vendors soliciting orders publicly or house to house. 1967 Ops St Compt File #524.

A village may not enact an ordinance requiring the licensing of persons who solicit orders of goods for future delivery from another state. 1968 Ops St Compt File #603.

In view of past court decisions, the legality of a village ordinance establishing a fee for a soliciting license at $100 is doubtful. 1968 Ops St Compt File #1021.

50. Cable television

Commercial closed-circuit television is subject to franchise and to license by a village. Federal government may preempt the field but has not yet acted. 1957 Ops St Compt 351.

A village may not enact an ordinance fixing a monthly service rate to subscribers of a privately-owned television cable. 1961 Ops St Compt 372.

A town or a village may not prescribe the rates to be charged by a television cable service company to which it grants a franchise. 1965 Ops St Compt File #531.

51. Construction of electric power lines

A village has power to regulate the construction of an electric transmission line. Long Island Lighting Co. v Simonson, 272 A.D. 943, 72 N.Y.S.2d 52, 1947 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4316 (N.Y. App. Div. 1947).

Under Transportation Corporations Law § 11, subd. 3 and Village Law former § 89, subd. 39, a village has the right to impose as a condition upon the erection of an electrical transmission line in the highways that the same be placed underground. Long Island Lighting Co. v Shields, 274 A.D. 803, 79 N.Y.S.2d 657, 1948 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3429 (N.Y. App. Div.), app. dismissed, 298 N.Y. 696, 82 N.E.2d 589, 298 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 696, 1948 N.Y. LEXIS 1262 (N.Y. 1948), aff'd, 299 N.Y. 562, 85 N.E.2d 791, 299 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 562, 1949 N.Y. LEXIS 1032 (N.Y. 1949).

Village may regulate or prohibit erection of antenna wires over village streets or it may grant franchises unless village merely holds an easement for highway or other purposes in which case consent of owner of fee must be obtained. 1954 Ops St Compt 92.

52. Gasoline

Village might have prevented erection of gasoline tank, for which zoning permit had been issued on ground that gasoline is explosive. Attica v Day, 236 N.Y.S. 607, 134 Misc. 882, 1929 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 905 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1929), aff'd, 230 A.D. 776, 243 N.Y.S. 915, 1930 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9249 (N.Y. App. Div. 1930).

53. Intoxicating liquors

Village board had power to enact ordinance barring manufacture, sale, furnishing or transportation of any intoxicating liquors within village under penalty of forfeiting $100 and in addition making any violation thereof disorderly conduct and any one violating it a disorderly person. People v Fenton, 259 N.Y.S. 913, 144 Misc. 710, 1932 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1286 (N.Y. County Ct. 1932).

A village may enact ordinance prohibiting within village, manufacture, sale, furnishing or transportation of intoxicating liquors. People v Coulides, 265 N.Y.S. 765, 148 Misc. 292, 1933 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1198 (N.Y. County Ct. 1933).

54. Signs

Since villages have the power under Village L former § 89, subd 47 to regulate advertising near streets and in public places, and may, under Village L former § 89, subd 59, adopt ordinances for purposes consistent with the exercise of the police power, an ordinance of a resort community limiting commercial sign size to 4 feet square, and imposing criminal sanctions for violation thereof, was a valid and permissible exercise of the police power in the interest of aesthetics. People v Goodman, 31 N.Y.2d 262, 338 N.Y.S.2d 97, 290 N.E.2d 139, 1972 N.Y. LEXIS 1628 (N.Y. 1972), reh'g denied, 32 N.Y.2d 705, 1973 N.Y. LEXIS 2046 (N.Y. 1973).

Former §§ 89, subd 48, and 90, authorize the adoption of an ordinance relating to all kinds of signs, and in fact prohibiting any and all types of vertical signs and other signs projecting from the face of any building over any sidewalk, street, highway or alley in the village and requiring the removal of all signs presently in existence which are violative of its provisions. Preferred Tires, Inc. v Hempstead, 19 N.Y.S.2d 374, 173 Misc. 1017, 1940 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1663 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1940).

An ordinance which absolutely prohibits the erection of billboards cannot be sustained under former § 89, where it prohibits them without any relation to whether they constitute fire or health hazards. Ruth v Colonie, 99 N.Y.S.2d 471, 198 Misc. 608, 1950 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1963 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1950).

Advertising signs in railroad passenger station and between railroad tracks were not in violation of zoning ordinance which purported to regulate sign boards in "public" places. People v New York C. R. Co., 5 Misc. 2d 232, 165 N.Y.S.2d 877, 1956 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1259 (N.Y. County Ct. 1956), aff'd, 3 N.Y.2d 825, 166 N.Y.S.2d 17, 144 N.E.2d 654, 1957 N.Y. LEXIS 924 (N.Y. 1957).

Aesthetic reasons, whether or not alone sufficient to warrant the provisions of a village ordinance regulating signs in residential areas, may, at least when coupled with the police power, be appropriately considered in enacting sign control regulations. Larchmont v Sutton, 30 Misc. 2d 245, 217 N.Y.S.2d 929, 1961 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2808 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1961).

The grant of power to a village to regulate or prohibit use of streets for signs and to regulate billboards and other advertising media, etc., sanctions a village ordinance prohibiting signs in residential districts except those customarily incident to churches, libraries, parks, etc., and professional name plates or name signs not exceeding a maximum area on the face of buildings, after a prescribed future date. Larchmont v Sutton, 30 Misc. 2d 245, 217 N.Y.S.2d 929, 1961 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2808 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1961).

A village ordinance regulating the size of signs and granting a 2 year period for the removal of nonconforming signs was validly enacted as a public benefit pursuant to the village's police power. People v Artrol Corp., 67 Misc. 2d 1087, 325 N.Y.S.2d 800, 1971 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1173 (N.Y. J. Ct. 1971), aff'd, 31 N.Y.2d 262, 338 N.Y.S.2d 97, 290 N.E.2d 139, 1972 N.Y. LEXIS 1628 (N.Y. 1972).

A 2 year period in a village ordinance for the removal of nonconforming signs was reasonable. People v Artrol Corp., 67 Misc. 2d 1087, 325 N.Y.S.2d 800, 1971 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1173 (N.Y. J. Ct. 1971), aff'd, 31 N.Y.2d 262, 338 N.Y.S.2d 97, 290 N.E.2d 139, 1972 N.Y. LEXIS 1628 (N.Y. 1972).

A village "sign" ordinance restricting signs on buildings in a retail business zone to those placed on the front or face of the building is permissible and is applicable to prohibit a sign which, though clearly visible to traffic on the street, is on the side of the building. Larchmont v Levine, 225 N.Y.S.2d 452, 1961 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3667 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1961).

A village ordinance prohibiting signs on buildings in a retail business district except on the front of the building bears reasonable relationship to the police power in the absence of sufficient evidence to the contrary. Larchmont v Levine, 225 N.Y.S.2d 452, 1961 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3667 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1961).

A village may not enact an ordinance wholly prohibiting billboards within village limits, but it may regulate them by ordinance for purposes of public safety and over-all community aesthetics. 1964 Ops St Compt File #650.

55. Trailers and trailer parks

Amendment of a basic zoning ordinance which was originally enacted in 1931 and contained no provisions relating to house trailers so as to deal in full with trailer parks and the parking of trailers disregarded the command of former § 176 requiring that all zoning regulations be uniform throughout the district and made in accordance with a comprehensive plan, and was accordingly invalid as constituting illegal spot zoning, but the preexisting provisions of the zoning ordinance remained in effect and enforceable by injunction. Jackson & Perkins Co. v Martin (1963) 12 NY2d 1082, 240 NYS2d 29, 190 NE2d 422, revg (4th Dept) 16 AD2d 1, 225 NYS2d 112, for reasons stated in the dissenting opinion thereto.

A comprehensive village ordinance regulating and licensing trailer parks is entitled to the strongest possible presumption of validity and must stand if there is any factual basis therefor, and one who attacks its validity has the burden of showing that it is not justified under the police power by any reasonable interpretation of the facts. Jackson & Perkins Co. v Martin, 16 A.D.2d 1, 225 N.Y.S.2d 112, 1962 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11296 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1962), rev'd, 12 N.Y.2d 1082, 240 N.Y.S.2d 29, 190 N.E.2d 422, 1963 N.Y. LEXIS 1269 (N.Y. 1963).

Under subd. 59 of former § 89, giving a village the right to enact ordinances for protection of public welfare, a village ordinance regulating automobile trailers and requiring the obtaining of a permit for their maintenance within the village limits could properly be enacted even prior to enactment of former subd. 69. Harriman v Kabinoff, 40 Misc. 2d 387, 243 N.Y.S.2d 210, 1963 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1611 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1963).

A "mobile home" means a movable residence akin to a house trailer and, with respect to defendants attempting to maintain a trailer park without such permit as is required by village ordinance for "automobile trailers" maintained within the village limits, the ordinance requirements cannot be avoided by merely making an attempted distinction between mobile houses and automobile trailers. Harriman v Kabinoff, 40 Misc. 2d 387, 243 N.Y.S.2d 210, 1963 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1611 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1963).

Regulation of trailer camps by a village as a matter of public welfare is an exercise of legislative function which does not require the formulation of general standards where granting of licenses or permits is left up to majority vote of the Board of Trustees. Harriman v Kabinoff, 40 Misc. 2d 387, 243 N.Y.S.2d 210, 1963 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1611 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1963).

A village zoning ordinance may not arbitrarily bar use of trailers as dwellings on purely esthetic grounds or arbitrarily ban trailers from the village, but it may limit the duration of their stay outside of an established trailer camp. 1958 Ops St Compt 95.

A village may not, by ordinance, require a permit for the parking of a camper on the owner's property. 1968 Ops St Compt File #547.

No authority exists for a village to construct, operate or finance a house trailer camp. 1969 Ops St Compt File #168.

An ordinance which prohibits the parking or storing of an unoccupied trailer on one's own land, without a permit, is invalid. 1961 Ops St Compt 84.

A village may levy a real property tax on trailers and may, in addition, impose and collect a permit fee where they are used or occupied as living quarters outside of house trailer and tourist camps. 1963 Ops St Compt #589.

A village may not arbitrarily ban house trailers as permanent dwellings within the village either by trailer ordinance or zoning ordinance, but it may regulate and restrict them in the furtherance of a comprehensive plan for the benefit and welfare of the community. 1964 Ops Compt File #650.

56. Zoning regulations

The enactment of a requirement for 2-acre minimum lots in area, is in an appropriate case, a legitimate exercise of the police power. Levitt v Sands Point, 6 N.Y.2d 269, 189 N.Y.S.2d 212, 160 N.E.2d 501, 1959 N.Y. LEXIS 1143 (N.Y. 1959).

Legislature did not intend that zoning restrictions on property owners' rights should be haphazard, selecting one street or another from time to time. Regulation must be "in accordance with well considered plan" applying to entire village. Harris v Dobbs Ferry, 208 A.D. 853, 204 N.Y.S. 325, 1924 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6594 (N.Y. App. Div. 1924).

Although privately owned, parking place conducted by store for convenience of its patrons is affected with public interest, and ordinance enacted under former § 89, subd. 52 requiring approval of board of zoning appeals on public parking areas applies as to it. Best & Co. v Garden City, 247 A.D. 893, 286 N.Y.S. 980, 1936 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9296 (N.Y. App. Div. 1936), aff'd, 273 N.Y. 564, 7 N.E.2d 694, 273 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 564, 1937 N.Y. LEXIS 1300 (N.Y. 1937).

The only authority for adoption of setback restriction by a village is found in former § 89, subd. 30 and art. VI-A of the Village Law, and on ordinance imposing setback restrictions, enacted without compliance with the procedural requirements of former § 178, is invalid. Kipp v Ardsley, 13 A.D.2d 1012, 216 N.Y.S.2d 893, 1961 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10140 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1961).

"Burnap Plan" of city design is invalid because of its indefiniteness, its visionary character, its total failure to district and divide as required by statute as well as insufficiency of proof of requisite enactment. Granville v Krause, 228 N.Y.S. 204, 131 Misc. 752, 1928 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 791 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1928).

Amendment to a zoning ordinance which, in effect, defines a residence district for the exclusion therefrom of general business, and provides for its extension for an additional 200 feet with respect to the particular business of undertaking establishments, is neither unreasonable nor void. Heimerle v Bronxville, 5 N.Y.S.2d 1002, 168 Misc. 783, 1938 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1769 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1938), aff'd, 256 A.D. 993, 11 N.Y.S.2d 367, 1939 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5802 (N.Y. App. Div. 1939).

Former § 175 authorizing municipal regulations with respect to the size of buildings and former § 89 subdiv 30 authorizing action respecting the bulk of buildings by implication authorize zoning regulations treating with livable floor space in dwellings and an ordinance requiring 1,800 square feet of livable floor space was not unreasonable. Flower Hill Bldg. Corp. v Flower Hill, 100

N.Y.S.2d 903, 199 Misc. 344, 1950 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2202 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1950).

A village may acquire by purchase or condemnation substandard lot which owner cannot put to any practical use because of zoning restrictions. Long Island Land Research Bureau, Inc. v Young, 7 Misc. 2d 469, 159 N.Y.S.2d 414, 1957 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3720 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1957).

Where a village adopted a Building Code, pursuant to former §§ 89, 90, and 90-a of the Village Law, requiring a 10-foot front yard setback from the street line for any building erected upon property in an area where plaintiffs' property was located, plaintiffs were issued a building permit showing no setback, but served with a stop-work order after performing a substantial amount of work in erecting a building without a setback, and sought an injunction against enforcement of the stop-work order, it was held that the ordinance was void for failure to provide plaintiffs with any way to test reasonableness of the ordinance in relation to their property. Kipp v Ardsley, 205 N.Y.S.2d 917 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1960), aff'd, 13 A.D.2d 1012, 216 N.Y.S.2d 893, 1961 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10140 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1961).

While a village may establish zoning districts for various classes of residential, business and industrial use, including the location of trailer camps, it may not enact an ordinance prohibiting the use of trailers as dwellings. 1953 Ops St Compt File #6211.

Where a village zoning ordinance neither expressly nor impliedly prohibits the keeping of horses in a residential district, the zoning ordinance could not be invoked against the owner, although he might possibly be in violation of certain general village ordinances, depending on the facts. 1967 Ops St Compt File #557.

57. Miscellaneous

Where consent to the operation of an omnibus line had been given by the trustees of a village after the hearing prescribed by Trans. Corps. Law, § 66, preceded by publication of notice thereof in official newspapers, as required by Vill. Law, former § 89, subd. 39, an action to enjoin the village from permitting operation of the bus line on the ground of failure to comply with provisions of a village ordinance imposing other conditions precedent to such hearing could not be maintained. De Matteis v Peekskill, 282 N.Y. 98, 25 N.E.2d 383, 282 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 98, 1940 N.Y. LEXIS 1006 (N.Y. 1940).

Subd 7 of former § 89 does not evidence legislative intention that government buildings be required to comply with village building ordinances. County of Westchester v Mamaroneck, 22 A.D.2d 143, 255 N.Y.S.2d 290, 1964 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2694 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1964), aff'd, 16 N.Y.2d 940, 264 N.Y.S.2d 925, 212 N.E.2d 442, 1965 N.Y. LEXIS 1101 (N.Y. 1965), disapproved, In re County of Monroe's Compliance with Certain Zoning & Permit Requirements, etc., 72 N.Y.2d 338, 533 N.Y.S.2d 702, 530 N.E.2d 202, 1988 N.Y. LEXIS 2697 (N.Y. 1988).

A village ordinance prohibiting the keeping of pigeons passed pursuant to former § 89 was not so clearly unreasonable that it could be declared void on a motion for judgment on the pleadings. Kraushaar v Zion, 63 N.Y.S.2d 359, 188 Misc. 851, 1946 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2394 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1946).

A village may enact an ordinance which prohibits unauthorized persons from dialing the unlisted number of the fire company at time of a fire call. 1961 Ops St Compt 185.

A village may not prohibit casual maintenance of abandoned or dismantled automobiles on one's own private property unless public health, safety, or general welfare of the community is adversely affected. 1963 Ops St Compt #267.

A village ordinance may impose reasonable regulations on railroads passing through the village, provided there is no unreasonable or undue burden on interstate commerce. 1964 Ops St Compt File #566.

General police powers are sufficient to authorize a village board to require the covering or filling of an excavation. 1964 Ops St Compt #798.

A village may not purchase a coin-operated photo-copying machine for placement in the village office and use by the general public. 1967 Ops St Compt File #374.

A town water district does not have to obtain a building permit from a village preliminary to the construction of a water tank on property owned by the district within the village. 1967 Ops St Compt File #737.

The right of a village to compel a farmer to abate the piling of manure and the resulting offensive odor ultimately depends upon whether the odor constitutes a public nuisance. 1969 Ops St Compt File #411.

C. Streets, Sidewalks, and Parking

58. Use of streets

Village of Sea Cliff, in Nassau county, although not village of first class, may, under former § 89, subds. 44 and 59 and former § 90 provide for traffic signal to be erected at intersection of county road and village street. People v Wolf, 275 N.Y.S. 434, 153 Misc. 230, 1934 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1801 (N.Y. County Ct. 1934).

Veh. and Traff. Law § 90 does not deprive village trustees of second class village of power granted under former § 89 to "regulate and prohibit coasting" on village streets. Lockwood v Hugo, 61 N.Y.S.2d 793, 187 Misc. 159, 1946 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2147 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1946).

While a village may regulate use of its streets, its powers in this respect are further subject to § 1640 of the Vehicle and Traffic Law, under which it cannot impose unreasonable controls or exclude the owner or operator of a vehicle from free use of a public highway. Merritt Manor Estates, Inc. v Elmsford, 30 Misc. 2d 935, 218 N.Y.S.2d 371, 1961 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2784 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1961).

Although a village has statutory authority under this section and § 1640 of the Vehicle and Traffic Law to enact an ordinance regulating use of its streets, a temporary injunction against enforcement of such an ordinance can properly be issued at the instance of a restaurant owner whose patrons are prevented thereby from parking near the restaurant in such manner as to be able to depart without taking a long circuitous route to get back again on a main highway, upon a showing that the ordinance is only enforced sporadically and in a discriminatory manner. Karl's Mariner's Inn, Inc. v Northport, 39 Misc. 2d 951, 242 N.Y.S.2d 297, 1963 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1770 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1963).

The village ordinance requiring the payment of an annual fee of $10 for each vehicle engaged in the business of transporting sand, stone, and gravel along the streets of the village, which provided that a violation of the ordinance constituted disorderly conduct was invalid as a violation of Vehicle & Traffic Law § 1604. McLain Dock & Stone Co. v Port Jefferson, 60 Misc. 2d 429, 303 N.Y.S.2d 411, 1969 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1319 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1969).

That part of a village ordinance prohibiting the spilling of certain materials upon the highways within the village was valid but a further portion of such ordinance requiring the use of metal or canvass coverings on certain vehicles to prevent such spillage was invalid as prescribing equipment, the authority to prescribe such a requirement never having been delegated to local subdivisions. New York Trap Rock Corp. v Roslyn, 66 Misc. 2d 334, 320 N.Y.S.2d 584, 1971 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1675 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1971).

Powers of municipalities in regulating the use of roads are limited to those powers delegated, by the Legislature, and there is no right to close a street which has become a public right of way under the guise of regulating it. Huntington v Foster, 219 N.Y.S.2d 220 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1961).

Village may not convey village street to a school district so school district may maintain and police it. 1955 Ops St Compt 278.

A village may not restrict vehicular traffic upon its streets to residents of such streets or persons having dealings with them. 1964 Ops St Compt #385.

A property owner may not place a barricade between the paved roadway of a village street and the sidewalk, where there is no curb, unless permitted to do so by the village board. 1968 Ops St Compt File #462.

59. Acceptance of dedication of streets

Under former § 89 board of trustees of a village is authorized to ratify dedication of a street to village and to agree to make reimbursement for sewers and water lines, subject to a permissive referendum. Scarborough Properties Corp. v Briarcliff

Manor, 278 N.Y. 370, 16 N.E.2d 369, 278 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 370, 1938 N.Y. LEXIS 1311 (N.Y. 1938).

Where deed conveying streets to village contained covenant that they should not be renamed, covenant concerns matter which is within corporate powers of village and of city to which village was later annexed and is unenforcible. Belden v Niagara Falls, 230 A.D. 601, 245 N.Y.S. 510, 1930 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8692 (N.Y. App. Div. 1930).

A village board may accept the dedication of a street which does not have sewers, water mains and hydrants therein, pursuant to the provisions of former § 144 of the Village Law. In such case, the permissive referendum provisions of subdivision 61 of former § 89 of the Village Law are not applicable. 1947 Ops St Compt 477.

Where developers of a subdivision have furnished plans and posted bonds as required by former § 179-l of the Village Law, but the village has not formally accepted dedication of the streets in such subdivision, the village may not furnish street lighting to such streets. 1956 Ops St Compt 104.

A village can accept a dedication of lands for public streets, but only upon condition that it reimburse the owners for sewers, water mains, and fire hydrants. 1960 Ops St Compt 164.

A village may legally reimburse an individual for the expense of constructing water and sewer lines in a street dedicated to the village as a street. A claim for such reimbursement, based on the dedication agreement, properly certified or verified, must be presented for audit. The resolution authorizing the village to enter into the agreement for reimbursement is subject to permissive referendum. 1960 Ops St Compt 274.

60. Regulation of speed

A village board may not exclude motorcycles from village streets, but may restrict their speed within the prescribed minimum speed limits. 1967 Ops St Compt File #727.

A village, upon the erection of proper warning signs along its streets may regulate the speed of traffic passing a public school. 1955 Ops St Compt 185.

61. Regulations relating to trees

Village could pass ordinance, pursuant to former § 90, prohibiting destruction of shade trees in streets or parks of village under penalty for each offense. Cattaraugus v Johnson, 249 N.Y.S. 327, 139 Misc. 368, 1931 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1224 (N.Y. County Ct.), aff'd, 233 A.D. 799, 250 N.Y.S. 945, 1931 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12807 (N.Y. App. Div. 1931).

Board of trustees may, by ordinance, compel property owners to trim or remove trees. 1946 Ops St Compt 650.

For a discussion of the authority of a village to enact ordinance regulating the location and types of trees to be planted adjacent to streets and sidewalks, see 1953 Ops St Compt File #6115.

It is the responsibility of a village to remove a dangerous tree within a street line, irrespective of ownership; it may not assess cost of removing a tree within the street line against abutting land, but, by ordinance, may compel abutting owners to remove trees in the first instance. 1964 Ops St Compt #315.

A village ordinance may validly require private owners of dangerous trees within a street line to remove such trees. A village may not, by ordinance or otherwise, require abutting owners to remove such trees where they are owned by the village. 1964 Ops St Compt File #1046.

A village may plant trees along its streets at village expense or it may assess the cost therefor against the adjoining property owners. It may not contribute half the cost, with the remainder to be paid by and at the option of property owners. 1968 Ops St Compt File #946.

62. Repair and improvement of streets

Adjacent landowners are liable for special assessments for the erection of curbing to the extent and in the proportion fixed by the village board under appropriate procedure. 1954 Ops St Compt 214.

A village, upon petition by owners of real property abutting upon a private street, may improve such street at the expense of said owners, after converting said street to a public highway. 1971 Ops St Compt File #885.

63. Sidewalks

Former § 89 did not authorize a village to adopt an ordinance making an abutting property owner liable in tort by reason of omission, failure or negligence in constructing, maintaining or properly repairing a sidewalk abutting his premises. Holcomb v Wincuinas, 22 A.D.2d 715, 253 N.Y.S.2d 190, 1964 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3071 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1964).

Various subdivisions of former § 89, including specifically subd. 46, give power to the trustees of a village to regulate use of sidewalks, and under this authority they may accordingly regulate sidewalks included in a street-widening resolution pursuant to former § 179-h, to the extent that the street is used by the public, although title in part of the sidewalk is not in the municipality. People v Lieberman, 32 Misc. 2d 741, 228 N.Y.S.2d 878, 1961 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2010 (N.Y. Spec. Sess. 1961).

There is no authority for the establishment of sidewalk districts in villages, although sidewalk improvements may be charged back by special assessment against benefited property. 1954 Ops St Compt 20.

A village of the second class may not obtain easements from private property owners whose property abuts on a state highway and build public sidewalks thereon. 1962 Ops St Compt 391.

Repair and replacing of village sidewalks are the responsibility of the village, which, by ordinance, may compel abutting owners to trim or remove dangerous trees within a street line or do the work itself and assess the cost of trimming, but not removing, against abutting land; but without an ordinance both the work and the cost must be borne by the village. 1964 Ops St Compt #422.

64. —Snow removal

A village may not remove snow or permit its machinery to be used for the removal of snow from private driveways. 1946 Ops St Compt 58.

65. Parking

Village may appoint special part-time police to police parking areas and serve summons in connection therewith. 1955 Ops St Compt 314.

The owners of a private street may restrict parking thereon to the owners and their invitees. 1965 Ops St Compt File #589.

The board of trustees of a village may enact an ordinance regulating parking on the driveways of a private hospital located in such village. 1967 Ops St Compt File #705.

A village may not charge taxicab or bus companies for the use of unmetered parking space on public streets. 1968 Ops St Compt File #184.

A village has no authority to ban the parking of trucks on private property in residential areas. The village may lease property for public parking purposes. 1968 Ops St Compt File #915.

66. —Parking lots

Former § 89 was not violated by a village ordinance making it unlawful for anyone other than a licensed village resident to park in a village owned off-street parking area. People v Gilbert, 307 N.Y. 773, 121 N.E.2d 615, 307 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 773, 1954 N.Y. LEXIS 1481 (N.Y. 1954).

While villages have power to purchase property for the purpose of public parking, there is no authority for them to do so on the installment plan. Marine Midland Trust Co. v Waverly, 42 Misc. 2d 704, 248 N.Y.S.2d 729, 1963 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1722 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1963), aff'd, 21 A.D.2d 753, 251 N.Y.S.2d 937, 1964 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5365 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1964).

A village ordinance might establish an off-street parking area on land purchased by it at the railroad station and limit its use to village residents. People ex rel. Larchmont v Gilbert, 137 N.Y.S.2d 389, 1954 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2549 (N.Y. County Ct. 1954).

A village ordinance establishing an off-street parking lot exclusively for village residents was not unconstitutional as an arbitrary or unreasonable classification or discrimination. People ex rel. Larchmont v Gilbert, 137 N.Y.S.2d 389, 1954 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2549 (N.Y. County Ct. 1954).

A village, in order to condemn land for public parking, was not required to proceed under subdivision 18-b of former § 89 and to comply with art 11, since the village had the power to condemn land for such purpose under art 14 prior to the enactment of subdivision 18-b of former § 89. There is nothing in subdivision 18-b to indicate the legislature intended to restrict the condemnation powers heretofore possessed. Baker v Marley, 182 N.Y.S.2d 278, 1958 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 4114 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1958).

A village may lease land for a parking area and install meters under a rental agreement based on meter revenue. 1954 Ops St Compt 307.

Parking space in a village parking lot may not be set aside and designated for benefit of some users to the exclusion of others. 1962 Ops St Compt 479.

67. —Financing

A village has authority to establish parking lots and set fees for their use but an ordinance setting the fee at one rate for residents of the village and residents of two outside communities and charging a higher rate for residents of all other outside communities was invalid as discriminatory. People ex rel. Lawrence v Kraushaar, 89 N.Y.S.2d 685, 195 Misc. 487, 1949 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2320 (N.Y. Dist. Ct. 1949).

Village bond resolution for construction of public parking places with a provision that a portion of the cost of the improvement be chargeable to the real property benefited is not subject to permissive referendum. Application of Thilly, 125 N.Y.S.2d 64, 204 Misc. 628, 1953 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2279 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1953), aff'd, 283 A.D. 663, 126 N.Y.S.2d 691, 1954 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4824 (N.Y. App. Div. 1954).

The 1953 amendment to former § 89 ended prohibition against charging rentals or fees for use of public parking places acquired in whole or in part on a benefit assessment basis, irrespective of date parking place acquired. 1953 Ops St Compt 212.

Where a village has established a parking field, the cost of which was borne by special assessments upon the area of benefit, the board of trustees may install parking meters and use the proceeds to pay the annual expense of operation and maintenance. No part of such proceeds may be refunded to the taxpayers who paid the special assessments. 1955 Ops St Compt 91.

A village operating a parking lot pursuant to the provisions of the Village Law may charge nonresidents a greater fee for the use thereof. Where the parking facility was established under the provisions of the General Municipal Law it is doubtful that a discriminatory charge may be levied against nonresidents. 1959 Ops St Compt 380.

A village may not include in the total project cost of a proposed public parking lot, cost or value of real property previously acquired and paid for by the village, for purpose of apportioning such total cost between the village at large and the area benefited. 1964 Ops St Compt File #388.

A village may not assess costs of operation and maintenance of an off-street public parking facility against the property deemed benefited by the improvement. 1972 Ops St Compt File #1111.

Where a special assessment district financed the original construction of parking lots, a village board could improve the municipal parking lot and make the cost of such improvement a general village charge. 1959 Ops St Compt 379.

D. Miscellaneous Powers

Former § 89, subdivision 7-a of the Village Law is self-executing without a general ordinance having been enacted to implement its provisions. Jewett v Luau-Nyack Corp., 31 N.Y.2d 298, 338 N.Y.S.2d 874, 291 N.E.2d 123, 1972 N.Y. LEXIS 1003 (N.Y. 1972).

A village board of trustees had power to legislate in respect of the removal of sand and gravel from the ground as a matter of zoning and such power was not recalled by the addition of subdivision 67 to former § 89. This latter power is merely auxiliary to the former. Upper Brookville v Faraco, 282 A.D. 943, 125 N.Y.S.2d 214, 1953 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5529 (N.Y. App. Div. 1953), aff'd, 307 N.Y. 642, 120 N.E.2d 835, 307 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 642, 1954 N.Y. LEXIS 1395 (N.Y. 1954).

A village ordinance providing that a justifiable abortion shall be performed only in a hospital duly licensed and accredited by the New York State Department of Health and having equipment and facilities acceptable by the State Hospital Review and Planning Council was beyond the scope of the powers of the village. Robin v Hempstead, 38 A.D.2d 758, 329 N.Y.S.2d 678, 1972 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5495 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't), aff'd, 30 N.Y.2d 347, 334 N.Y.S.2d 129, 285 N.E.2d 285, 1972 N.Y. LEXIS 1262 (N.Y. 1972).

A village has plenary authority under sec to pass measures for the promotion of the public welfare, but, as with the exercise of the police power, measures adopted pursuant thereto must satisfy the dictates of reasonable necessity, must not be unduly oppressive, and the means selected must have a substantial relation to the objection sought. Kraushaar v Zion, 63 N.Y.S.2d 359, 188 Misc. 851, 1946 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2394 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1946).

An ordinance which made it unlawful for a corporation, business or individual to set up or erect on private property for public use within the incorporated limits of the village, a campsite which was to be used as temporary residences of the transient public, although prohibitory in nature, was not an irrational or arbitrary exercise of police power. Friedland v Diamond, 67 Misc. 2d 642, 324 N.Y.S.2d 578, 1971 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1297 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1971).

Village of Castelton-on-Hudson has no responsibility or liability to incorporated fire companies which constitute fire department other than that imposed by statute. 1945 Ops St Compt 215.

Duty placed upon fire commissioners to keep fire equipment in good condition and repair. 1946 Ops St Compt 721.

Board of trustees have management and control of publicity. 1947 Ops St Compt 55.

Uniform system of numbering of village dwellings may be enforced by penalties prescribed in ordinance creating system. 1953 Ops St Compt 445.

It is not necessary that doing restoration work by a village be for the protection of public property. Protection of private property may be a public purpose. 1954 Ops St Compt 20.

A village board of trustees may issue special identification cards for registered owners of automobiles who are either paraplegics or otherwise physically disabled. 1955 Ops St Compt 579.

Subdivision 48 of former § 89 does not permit a village to license and regulate vending machines which are not located in public places, but in restaurants, stores, gas stations, taverns, or manufacturing plants. 1960 Ops St Compt File #799.

A village may place its insurance with a mutual company. 1963 Ops St Compt File #321.

A village may charge a fee of as much as $2.50 per $1,000 of estimated cost for a building permit, if reasonable under the circumstances. 1963 Ops St Compt File #743.

A village board may authorize the use of equipment of one village department by another such department, and may determine which department shall be responsible for damage to the equipment or injury to the operator. 1967 Ops St Compt File #1027.

Even though a village board has adopted a resolution which is subject to permissive referendum, it may, subsequently and upon its own motion, and prior to the expiration of thirty days, submit such resolution to referendum. 1968 Ops St Compt File #817.

A village may obtain an easement on property contiguous to the village for construction of a turnaround for use by village snow plows and fire trucks at the end of a village street which dead ends at the village boundary line. 1969 Ops St Compt File #958.

The mayor of a village subject to the provisions of the Village Law has no power to veto legislative acts of the board of trustees. 1967 Ops St Compt File #432.

An ordinance passed by the village board is a prerequisite before subdivisions (33) and (42) of former § 89 of the Village Law, requiring the cutting of grass by property owners, become operative. 1968 Ops St Compt File #692.

69. Relation to penal laws

A village may enact and enforce penal regulations which are in aid of or not in conflict with the penal laws of the state. People ex rel. Travis v Thatcher, 73 N.Y.S.2d 655, 190 Misc. 494, 1947 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3093 (N.Y. County Ct. 1947).

A village may adopt ordinances not inconsistent with existing law, prohibiting and punishing acts also prohibited and punished by the general law of the state, where the legislature has not expressly provided that the general law shall be exclusive, and so may make certain acts punishable by fine of a grade less than a misdemeanor, although the same acts are the subject of Penal Law former §§ 722, 723 and 1851. Brewer v Watson, 77 N.Y.S.2d 97, 191 Misc. 117, 1947 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3668 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1947).

It is within the province of a village to define disorderly conduct and fix a punishment therefore "not inconsistent with existing law". Hence, where the penalties prescribed in a local ordinance were not as severe as those of the Penal law with respect to disorderly conduct and otherwise the general import of the Village Law was consistent with the Penal Law, the local ordinance was valid. People v Jerome, 8 Misc. 2d 883, 168 N.Y.S.2d 452, 1957 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2059 (N.Y. County Ct. 1957), aff'd, People v Bailey, 5 N.Y.2d 832, 181 N.Y.S.2d 506, 155 N.E.2d 402, 1958 N.Y. LEXIS 726 (N.Y. 1958).

No express authority has been given to municipalities to supersede the state law as set up in §§ 2140–2153 of the Penal Law as to what may, and may not, be done lawfully on the Sabbath. Sa-Bleu, Inc. v Port Chester, 42 Misc. 2d 360, 247 N.Y.S.2d 943, 1963 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1263 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1963).

70. Village attorney

When an action is prosecuted as an official duty rather than for personal motives, and the village attorney is disqualified from acting, the village may be held liable for payment of expenses incurred. Zablow v Freeport, 41 Misc. 2d 803, 246 N.Y.S.2d 434, 1964 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2184 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1964).

A public officer has implied authority to employ special counsel in the prosecution or defense of an action undertaken in the public interest and involving his official duties where the municipal attorney is disqualified from acting, as in the case of a dispute between two agencies or officers of the governmental body. Zablow v Freeport, 41 Misc. 2d 803, 246 N.Y.S.2d 434, 1964 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2184 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1964).

The board of trustees when necessary may employ an attorney other than the village attorney to perform special services and pay reasonable compensation therefor. Farmingdale v Karp, 54 Misc. 2d 714, 283 N.Y.S.2d 267, 1967 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1424 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1967).

A village attorney may not complete and be compensated for pending litigation and bond issues after qualifying as village trustee. 1953 Ops St Compt 159.

A village may pay a fee to a former village attorney for services rendered in conjunction with a bond issue, though the village attorney was also being paid on a salary basis, if such services were in addition to those contemplated to be performed by the village attorney at the time the village attorney was appointed. 1959 Ops St Compt 300.

A village may pay counsel fees legally incurred from 1954 through 1959, inclusive, if sufficient funds are currently available. 1960 Ops St Compt 255.

A municipal commission charged with the management of a village's electric and water departments may not engage an attorney but may request the village board of trustees to furnish legal assistance. 1967 Ops St Compt File #334.

A village clerk, who is also an attorney, may be retained by the village to render legal services, relating to the expansion of its sewage treatment facilities. 1967 Ops St Compt File #1009.

A law partner of the village attorney may substitute for him at meetings of the board of trustees, with the consent of the board. 1968 Ops St Compt File #544.

A non-resident may be appointed village attorney. 1953 Ops St Compt 160.

71. —Conflicts of interest

The mayor's relatives, if qualified, may legally be appointed as village attorney and village treasurer. 1955 Ops St Compt 320.

There is no statutory prohibition against a village attorney being employed by a town as counsel to the town attorney in preparation of a charter to be used upon formation of a city composed of the village and town. 1961 Ops St Compt #248.

While it is inadvisable for the same person to hold the office of town justice of the peace in a town of the second class and the position of village attorney of a village therein, the acceptance of the second position does not result in a vacancy in the first, assuming that the village attorney has not been designated an assistant district attorney. 1965 Ops St Compt File #949.

One person may serve as both village prosecuting attorney and member of a school board. 1967 Ops St Compt File #392.

There is no incompatibility, but there may be a conflict of duties, making it inadvisable for a town attorney to serve simultaneously as village attorney of a village located in the same town. 1967 Ops St Compt File #913.

A prohibited conflict of interest does not occur where a firm of lawyers, of which the village police justice is a member, is retained by the village to render legal services. 1968 Ops St Compt File #544.

The same person may be both village attorney and attorney for the town zoning board of appeals. 1968 Ops St Compt File #799.

There is no legal prohibition against the same individual being attorney for both a village and a school district which includes the village. However, due regard should be accorded Canon 6 of the Canons of Professional Ethics of the New York State Bar Association. 1968 Ops St Compt File #987.

A prohibited conflict of interest arises when a village trustee, an attorney employed by the village attorney, participates, in his capacity as such associate in any legal matters involving village affairs, on behalf of the village attorney. 1971 Ops St Compt File #909.

It is recommended that, where the same individual is attorney for both a town and village within the town, each should employ another attorney for representation in matters between the two municipalities. 1968 Ops St Compt File #1019.

72. Police

Local law which provided for retirement of police officers upon the attainment of age 62 was adopted pursuant to the general authority conferred by former § 89. Geary v Phillips, 53 Misc. 2d 337, 278 N.Y.S.2d 506, 1967 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1722 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1967).

Determination of village to aid defense of police officers charged with assault while in the performance of their duties was within the scope of the village's authority. Gaylord v North Collins, 57 Misc. 2d 803, 293 N.Y.S.2d 365, 1968 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1224 (N.Y. County Ct. 1968).

No power in town to contract for village police to render emergency service to town. Town executive may request and village may grant use of village police in town emergency. 1953 Ops St Compt 348.

A village may furnish an automobile for the official, but not the personal, use of the village police chief, and may authorize the official use of a privately owned vehicle with the payment of actual expenses or a mileage rate. A village-owned vehicle may not be used for personal purposes by the village police chief. 1967 Ops St Compt File #973.

Two villages of the second and third class, respectively, may extend police protection services to each other under a mutual assistance contract not exceeding five years. 1967 Ops St Compt File #1044.

73. Limitations as to trustees

Where a village planning board had advisory authority alone which made it equivalent to no planning board at all, the board of trustees of the village could act as a planning board but when it so acted, the provisions applying to planning boards applied to the board of trustees as well. Hilbol Realty, Inc. v Barnhart, 126 N.Y.S.2d 865, 205 Misc. 187, 1953 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2509 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1953).

The legality of the official acts of a village board of trustees is not affected by the fact that a member thereof violates the Alcoholic Beverage Law by being interested in the sale of alcoholic beverages. 1955 Ops St Compt 146.

A village trustee who applies for and receives a beer license commits a misdemeanor but does not forfeit his office. 1956 Ops St Compt 81.

In a village which has no separate board of fire commissioners and wherein the village board accordingly has the powers and duties of a separate board of fire commissioners, a member of the village board of trustees may not serve as an officer or director of a volunteer fire company located in the village. 1961 Ops St Compt 147.

A prohibited conflict of interest arises where a village purchases supplies and equipment from a hardware store operated by a corporation of which a village trustee is the principal stockholder. 1968 Ops St Compt File #323.

A chairman of a town zoning board of appeals may simultaneously hold office as a village trustee. 1968 Ops St Compt File #331.

A prohibited conflict of interest exists where a village purchases supplies from a business owned by a member of the board of trustees in excess of $100 during any one fiscal year. This Department has no authority to provide an exception to that statute. 1968 Ops St Compt File #536.

A village trustee may not legally hold the office of assistant engineer of the village fire department. 1969 Ops St Compt File #245.

A trustee of a village situate within a town may legally hold the office of finance director of such town. 1969 Ops St Compt File #515.

Village trustees may not, either individually or as a board, require the village clerk to leave books and files out in the office after office hours, but the trustees are entitled to unlimited access to those records and may, by resolution of the board, be given keys to the vault. 1970 Ops St Compt File #49.

74. Other employees

Power to appoint chief engineer of fire department of Dobbs Ferry, which has no board of fire commissioners, rests with board of trustees and not with counsel of fire department. People ex rel. Wallace v Carpenter, 135 N.Y.S. 593, 77 Misc. 244, 1912 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1144 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1912).

The power to employ an attorney rests solely with the Board of Trustees of a village and, as a general rule, a public official has no authority to engage independent counsel even though his services benefit the municipality. Zablow v Freeport, 41 Misc. 2d 803, 246 N.Y.S.2d 434, 1964 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2184 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1964).

A village board of trustees may establish the office of village auditor and appoint a qualified person to fill such office. The village auditor would possess the power to order paid only those bills against the village which he himself duly audited. A village trustee may not be appointed village auditor. 1953 Ops St Compt 302.

A public officer is required to keep himself reasonably available to perform the duties of his office. Village board of trustees may not regulate office hours of village police justice. 1957 Ops St Compt 321.

While a village has statutory authority to appoint a superintendent of public works, there appears to be no authority for it to enter into an employment contract for the performance of the services of that office. 1959 Ops St Compt 260.

A village board of trustees does not possess the power to fix the working hours of the village police justice or to require him to be available between certain hours of the day. 1960 Ops St Compt 407.

Discussion of right of village in Suffolk County to appoint a person to handle local health problems and programs. 1961 Ops St Compt 207.

A prohibited conflict of interest would occur if a village mayor should be hired as an independent contractor to work for the village. While no such conflict arises if he is employed by the village, his appointment to a position of employment by the board of trustees would be contrary to public policy. 1967 Ops St Compt File #1042.

Where a village official is called to testify before a grand jury regarding his official acts, the village may retain and pay a special counsel to represent such official. 1968 Ops St Compt File #5.

There is no legal prohibition against a village police justice representing clients in criminal courts other than the village police court. 1968 Ops St Compt File #544.

75. Animal control

A village may purchase and operate a "gas chamber" for extermination of stray cats, if it has provided by ordinance for seizure and impounding of such animals. 1955 Ops St Compt 62.

Stray dogs within village boundaries are of village and town although, in counties other than Nassau and Westchester, the power to license dogs resides in town and cities therein. 1959 Ops St Compt 72.

76. Drainage and flood control

Power conferred upon board of trustees of village by subd. 15 of former § 89 is not exclusive, nor is it adequate to meet every situation and condition that may arise or exist in village; and Drainage Act of 1869, as amended in 1896, which, in terms, is made applicable to incorporated villages, is neither hostile to nor inconsistent with In re Spring Valley Swamp, 123 N.Y.S. 269, 66 Misc. 206, 1910 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 90 (N.Y. County Ct. 1910), aff'd, 145 A.D. 636, 129 N.Y.S. 918, 1911 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4807 (N.Y. App. Div. 1911).

A village has no legal responsibility to dredge or otherwise improve streams so as to prevent erosion damage to privately owned property through which such streams flow. 1954 Ops St Compt File #6955.

Village may maintain and repair a drainage ditch in which it has an easement for drainage purposes. Village may not repair an archway over such drainage ditch, where the archway has been constructed by the owner, covered with asphalt and used as a gasoline station. 1955 Ops St Compt 296.

A common drainage system constructed as a joint project by a village and a town may not be financed by the issuance of bonds. Drainage facilities constructed individually may be so financed. 1956 Ops St Compt 97.

A village may not reimburse the owner of private property for cost of constructing a drain on the property. 1962 Ops St Compt 255.

A village may maintain a drainage ditch outside village limits for draining surface water from property located within the village, but only to arrest and prevent damage to such property resulting from floods or erosion. 1964 Ops St Compt #322.

A town is not authorized to contribute town moneys to a village for maintaining a dam and retaining walls owned by and located in the village. 1969 Ops St Compt File #995.

77. Nuisances and safety hazards

Village can regulate or prohibit noises which may affect public health or safety, but it cannot indiscriminately prohibit noise from one type machine when another of possibly greater intensity is not prohibited. Stoffel Seals Corp. v Tuckahoe, 134 N.Y.S.2d 114, 206 Misc. 597, 1954 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2487 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1954).

The failure of a municipal employee to recommend measures for preventing fire or to direct the removal of a defective stove did not, without more, impose liability on a village to occupants of an apartment for losses subsequently sustained as a result of a fire. Shaw v Hempstead, 15 Misc. 2d 72, 177 N.Y.S.2d 744, 1958 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3064 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1958), modified, 11 A.D.2d 789, 204 N.Y.S.2d 945, 1960 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8727 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1960).

While a village has the legal right to acquire lands for a public dump and to provide for use of the dump for disposal of garbage, rubbish, etc., if it fails to operate and control use of the dump in such manner as to prevent it from becoming a nuisance to nearby property owners the latter are entitled to damages or to seek an injunction against the dump as a nuisance. Bloss v Canastota, 35 Misc. 2d 829, 232 N.Y.S.2d 166, 1962 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2676 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1962).

The provision in subd. 48-a of former § 89 which authorized the trustees of a village to prohibit "whistling, ringing of bells and other noises," was not an authorization to prohibit any sort of noise but, in referring to "other noises" limited to noises similar to or resembling shouting, blowing horns, and unnecessary sounding of automobile signals, and a village ordinance prohibiting "unusual" noise will not be construed as intended to extend to the ordinary noise from ordinary operation of a factory. People v F. & M. Die Casting Corp., 201 N.Y.S.2d 305 (N.Y. J. Ct. 1960).

A village may bring an action to enjoin an adjacent municipality from causing residue from its rubbish fire to fall upon certain property within the village where such activity constitutes a public nuisance, and such a nuisance is likewise subject to control or abatement under the Air Pollution Control Act. 1963 Ops St Compt File #564.

Whether an electrically charged fence, designed to prevent the owner's horses from escaping, is a public safety hazard involves a question of fact. 1967 Ops St Compt File #557.

A local noise-abatement ordinance may be enacted, regulating the use of motorcycles on village streets and prohibiting excessive noise which disturbs the tranquillity of the residential area. 1967 Ops St Compt File #727.

78. Official newspaper for publication of notices

Even if no official paper is designated by the board of trustees, designation of a newspaper for publication of the report of the treasurer must necessarily be a paper published in the village. Roy v Murphy, 33 N.Y.S.2d 991, 1942 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1450 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1942).

The annual official statement does not have to be published in the same paper as the notice of annual election but must be published and posted in the same manner as the notice of annual election so that if there are two papers printed and published in the village the notice of election might be published in one and the annual financial statement in another but where there is but one paper published in the village both notices must then be published in the same paper. Roy v Murphy, 33 N.Y.S.2d 991, 1942 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1450 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1942).

A board of trustees of a village may not designate for publication of notices, resolutions and proceedings of said board, a newspaper owned by one of the trustees even though such newspaper is only one published in the village. 1945 Ops St Compt 104.

A village may not publish the minutes of its proceedings at village expense. 1955 Ops St Compt 187.

The board of trustees of a village may not legally designate as an official paper a mimeographed give-away publication of the "penny-saver type" for the publication of notice resolutions, ordinances and other matters required by law to be published. 1955 Ops St Compt 269.

Where only one newspaper is published in a village, it may be designated as the official newspaper of the village even though a member of the board of trustees is interested in said newspaper. 1956 Ops St Compt File #8057.

A mimeographed publication of the pennysaver type which is distributed through the mails to village residents may not be designated the official newspaper, notwithstanding its large circulation. 1960 Ops St Compt 377.

Where two newspapers are published in a village, only one may be designated as official newspaper although both are qualified for designation and legal notices and other matter required to be published may be published in both, regardless of the fact that one of them has not been designated as official newspaper. 1963 Ops St Compt #198.

A village may publish and distribute in the form of a newsletter information relating to official activities of village officers, employees and agencies. 1963 Ops St Compt #831.

A village may not designate a "pennysaver" publication as its official newspaper under the provisions of the Village Law, and grave doubt exists that it may do so by local law. 1967 Ops St Compt File #336.

The mere fact that a newspaper is owned by the village mayor would not prohibit the village from publishing notices, resolutions or proceedings in such newspaper. 1967 Ops St Compt File #925.

A village board of trustees may designate a newspaper owned by the mayor as the official village newspaper. 1967 Ops St Compt File #925.

Where there is only one newspaper published in the village and that newspaper is not designated as the official newspaper, such newspaper must, nevertheless, be used for the publication of notices, resolutions, ordinances or other proceedings of the village board. 1967 Ops St Compt File #925.

79. Operation of ferry

There is nothing in the general language of subdivisions 39 and 59 of former § 89 of the Village Law empowering a village to make an exclusive grant of a ferry privilege within the village. Ocean Beach Ferry Corp. v Ocean Beach, 298 N.Y. 30, 80 N.E.2d 137, 298 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 30, 1948 N.Y. LEXIS 821 (N.Y. 1948).

A village has the right to acquire and maintain a ferry terminal and may lease such terminal. Ocean Beach Ferry Corp. v Ocean Beach, 92 N.Y.S.2d 275, 1949 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2811 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1949), aff'd, 276 A.D. 920, 94 N.Y.S.2d 826, 1950 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5135 (N.Y. App. Div. 1950).

A village's leasing of a ferry terminal owned by it and occupying 200 feet of a 1700 foot shoreline to a single company did not constitute an illegal exclusive grant of ferry privileges. Ocean Beach Ferry Corp. v Ocean Beach, 92 N.Y.S.2d 275, 1949 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2811 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1949), aff'd, 276 A.D. 920, 94 N.Y.S.2d 826, 1950 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5135 (N.Y. App. Div. 1950).

A village leasing a ferry terminal owned by it may require the use of a particular type of engine and may prescribe rates and schedules. Ocean Beach Ferry Corp. v Ocean Beach, 92 N.Y.S.2d 275, 1949 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2811 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1949), aff'd, 276 A.D. 920, 94 N.Y.S.2d 826, 1950 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5135 (N.Y. App. Div. 1950).

A village has the power to operate its own ferry boats and establish its own schedules and rates without obtaining any license or consent of the county court. Ocean Beach Ferry Corp. v Ocean Beach, 92 N.Y.S.2d 275, 1949 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2811 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1949), aff'd, 276 A.D. 920, 94 N.Y.S.2d 826, 1950 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5135 (N.Y. App. Div. 1950).

80. Recreational activities

A village may pay rent for premises in which it operates a youth center, and may compensate teachers and pay for supplies and equipment for its recreation and leisure-time activities which are conducted during the summer months in a schoolhouse and may prepare for use and equip a village owned and operated playground. 1946 Ops St Compt 363.

Village may conduct recreational activities; when village property is not required for village purposes, village may authorize temporary use of such property by organizations and groups for reasonable consideration, and may permit incorporated community center organization to conduct recreational and other activities on such property. 1947 Ops St Compt 392.

A village recreational commission, upon establishment by the board of trustees, shall have all of the powers granted under Article 13 of the General Municipal Law. Its use of these powers shall not be subject to ratification or approval by the village board. The budget of a village recreation commission must be adopted in the same manner as the budgets of other village departments. Commission funds are held and paid out by the village treasurer. The village board may dissolve the recreation commission by repealing the creative resolution. 1958 Ops St Compt 463.

A village may not expend funds for a children's day program, or for refreshments at the close of such program. 1967 Ops St Compt File #392.

81. Repair or removal of unsafe buildings

Under subd. 7-a of former § 89 and a local ordinance empowering the village board of trustees to provide for removal or repair of buildings dangerous or unsafe to the public, there being evidence that the building in question could be repaired so as to be made safe, it was error to direct its demolition without giving the owner an opportunity to make the necessary repairs. Application of Suffern, 12 A.D.2d 769, 209 N.Y.S.2d 599, 1961 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13581 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1961).

Where county held deed to premises and its interest appeared in records of County Clerk and it was not given notice of proceeding, village's application to remove unsafe building was denied. In re Application of Hempstead, 135 N.Y.S.2d 291, 1954 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2928 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1954).

A village possesses powers adequate to eliminate a fire hazard which consists of a residential structure in poor repair. 1953 Ops St Compt 226.

A village board has the power to demolish a condemned building no longer required for public purposes and may erect a new one on the site. 1961 Ops St Compt File #202.

A village may, by ordinance, require a property owner to repair or remove buildings which create a health hazard and safety risk, or, under subd. 7-a of former § 89, the village itself may do the repairing or removal. 1963 Ops St Compt File #378.

A village is not liable on a contract made in the name or on behalf of the village if the contract is not authorized by law. A village is not authorized to repair or remove unsafe buildings unless it has enacted an ordinance in conformity with former § 89(7-a). 1965 Ops St Compt File #586.

The village may demolish unsafe buildings on its own lands. 1967 Ops St Compt File #280.

Where a county has acquired a tax title to certain lands within a village, upon which there are unsafe buildings and upon which the village owns unpaid tax liens, the village may acquire title from the county to demolish the buildings and protect its tax liens, and the extinguishment of such liens may represent all or part of the consideration passing from the village to the county, for such purchase. 1967 Ops St Compt File #280.

A building does not constitute a "fire hazard" justifying demolition thereof solely because it is vacant and unattended. 1967 Ops St Compt File #421.

In removing an unsafe building and assessing the cost of removal against the property benefited, a village should first enact an ordinance providing for such removal and assessment and should then follow the procedure set out in former §§ 6-616 and 6-618 of the Village Law in levying the assessment. 1967 Ops St Compt File #873.

A village has the power to enact ordinances under which it may provide for the removal or repair of dangerous and unsafe buildings. 1954 Ops St Compt 209.

82. Sewers or sewage systems

The power given to village trustees to lay out, establish, etc., sewage systems is no authority for the laying of sewer pipes on private property or converting a private drain into a public sewer subject to municipal maintenance. Marks v Lake Placid, 14 A.D.2d 934, 221 N.Y.S.2d 37, 1961 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7867 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1961).

A village may repair a private sewer in order to protect public health. The cost of such repair is borne by the sewer owner. The repairs must not be for the mere convenience of the sewer owner but must be directly related to protection of public health. A village may engage a private firm to make lawful sewer repairs; the cost of such repairs are borne by the sewer owner. 1958 Ops St Compt 455.

Villages may not install septic tanks in private homes beyond boundaries of the municipal sewage system unless the public health is endangered. 1962 Ops St Compt 457.

Cost of repairs performed by a village to the main line of a private sewer system may be assessed against the land of all property owners served by that system. 1964 Ops St Compt File #275.

There is no authority for a village at public expense to lay water mains or sewer pipes on private property for the purpose of supplying water or sewer connections to that property or to property not fronting on a public street. 1964 Ops St Compt File #775.

A village may impose a flat fee to cover the reasonable expense for issuing a permit and for inspecting a sewer connection. 1968 Ops St Compt File #368.

83. Lighting systems

Lighting districts may be established within a village upon petition of property owners. 1954 Ops St Compt 20.

A portion or the cost of more expensive lighting in a village lighting district equal to the cost, per light, of other village lighting may be made a charge upon the entire village. 1967 Ops St Compt File #1045.

A village board of trustees may, under certain conditions, establish a special lighting district upon application by petition of residents of certain village streets for special lighting facilities. The cost of installing such special lighting facilities may be a charge upon the property owners in the special district or it may be apportioned between the owners within such district and the village at large. 1968 Ops St Compt File #276.

84. Waste disposal

The legislature obviously intended that special districts should render garbage collection services to areas outside of incorporated villages, and that villages should render such services within their territorial limits. Atlantic Beach v Kimmel, 18 N.Y.2d 485, 276 N.Y.S.2d 993, 223 N.E.2d 489, 1966 N.Y. LEXIS 920 (N.Y. 1966).

A village incorporated in territory which formerly was administered by a town sanitary district had the power to render garbage service within its territorial limits upon the expiration of the contract existing with the sanitary district at the time of incorporation. Atlantic Beach v Kimmel, 18 N.Y.2d 485, 276 N.Y.S.2d 993, 223 N.E.2d 489, 1966 N.Y. LEXIS 920 (N.Y. 1966).

A village, upon its incorporation, had control and jurisdiction over garbage removal within its territorial limits after the expiration of the contract which then controlled garbage removal in the area of the village. Atlantic Beach v Kimmel, 25 A.D.2d 531, 267 N.Y.S.2d 534, 1966 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4996 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't), aff'd, 18 N.Y.2d 485, 276 N.Y.S.2d 993, 223 N.E.2d 489, 1966 N.Y. LEXIS 920 (N.Y. 1966).

Mere exercise by village of governmental function will not permit it to operate its garbage disposal plant in such manner as to annoy, disturb or materially interfere with enjoyment of property and render its ordinary use or occupation physically unfit or uncomfortable; any structure which is so operated may become a nuisance. Nicoll v President & Trustees of Ossining, 220 N.Y.S. 345, 128 Misc. 848, 1927 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 831 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1927).

The provisions of subd 25(a) of former § 89 in regard to the powers of the board of village trustees over the disposition of garbage show that the legislature intended a village upon incorporation to have the final say with respect to garbage removal service within its territorial limits. And this intention is further evidenced by former § 3-356, subd 2, which provides that town improvement districts "shall cease to exist at the end of the fiscal year of the district next following the first day of June following the first day of January next succeeding the date of incorporation" where the improvement district is coterminous with the limits of or wholly included within the village boundaries. Atlantic Beach v Kimmel, 48 Misc. 2d 193, 264 N.Y.S.2d 562, 1965 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1369 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1965), aff'd, 25 A.D.2d 531, 267 N.Y.S.2d 534, 1966 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4996 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1966).

Since subd 25 of former § 89 empowered a village to enter into a contract for garbage removal and disposal, in a dispute solely between a newly created village and a pre-existing sanitary district as to such services the village is a proper party to bring an action for a declaratory judgment establishing that it has the sole and exclusive power and jurisdiction to provide for the collection and removal of garbage within its territorial limits and for an injunction (1) to restrain such district from providing such services, (2) from levying taxes against the real property in the village for such services, and (3) to enjoin such district from entering into a garbage removal contract effective after a specified date. Atlantic Beach v Kimmel, 48 Misc. 2d 193, 264 N.Y.S.2d 562, 1965 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1369 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1965), aff'd, 25 A.D.2d 531, 267 N.Y.S.2d 534, 1966 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4996 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1966).

Board of trustees may license and regulate collection of ashes and garbage. 1946 Ops St Compt 334.

Board of trustees may enact ordinances regulating dumping of garbage, ashes and other refuse within village whether or not village maintains public dump. 1953 Ops St Compt 342.

A village may not purchase and install in private homes garbage disposal units, the cost of each unit to be repaid to the village by the property owners over a five year period. 1954 Ops St Compt 390.

The primary responsibility for determining what items may be disposed of in the public refuse disposal system as waste or rubbish rest with the municipality. 1966 Ops St Compt File #113.

A village has no authority to establish a special district for the collection and disposition of refuse and garbage. 1966 Ops St Compt File #1130.

A village may construct a sewage disposal plant on land entirely outside of the village. 1967 Ops St Compt File #920.

85. —Cost of collection

Village may assess part of cost of collection of garbage on ad valorem basis and the balance of cost billed upon basis of garbage collected over maximum amount. 1945 Ops St Compt 413.

The collection of service charges for removal and disposition of refuse and garbage in a village should be performed by a village employee or village officer. 1955 Ops St Compt 98.

A village may impose a service charge for refuse and garbage collection. 1955 Ops St Compt 238.

Village of over 5,000 inhabitants according to last federal census may adopt a local law relating to the collection of garbage and assess the cost on property benefited and provide that on failure to pay the unpaid assessment shall become a lien on real property. 1955 Ops St Compt 306.

A village may assess the cost of garbage collection as a general village expense, only against property benefited, or by a combination of both methods. 1960 Ops St Compt 13.

A village may not reduce the amount of garbage collection service furnished to business establishments when such service is paid for by the imposition of an ad valorem village-wide tax, but said village may establish a scale of charges for the service, assessing each recipient in proportion to the benefit he receives. 1967 Ops St Compt File #864.

When a village defrays the cost of its garbage collection service by means of an ad valorem levy it may not render service to and assess residential properties unless it does the same for store properties on an equal village-wide basis. 1968 Ops St Compt File #17.

When such cost is defrayed by means of a scale of charges, residential and store properties may be classified separately and charged different rates but all properties in the village must be given an equal opportunity to use the garbage collection service, paying only when they elect so to use it. 1968 Ops St Compt File #17.

A village board of trustees may provide for the cost of the collection of garbage by general village taxation or it may fix a scale of charges for the rendering of such services on a contractual basis. 1969 Ops St Compt File #365.

There is no requirement that village residents be charged for the use of the village landfill site before a schedule of fees for nonresidents of the village may be imposed. 1969 Ops St Compt File #607.

86. —Village dump

There is nothing in the Village Law or other law which prohibits the discontinuance of a village dump. 1959 Ops St Compt 419.

A village which maintains a dump on village property outside the village limits may not adopt an ordinance prohibiting use of the dump to persons outside the town in which such property is located and impose fines upon violators, but it may license scavengers collecting garbage in the village on a reasonable fee basis. No license can be imposed by a village for collecting garbage outside its limits, even though the garbage could be dumped in a village dump outside the limits. 1960 Ops St Compt 238.

A village, not of the first class, is not authorized to permit use of its garbage dump by a private garbage collector who operates outside the village. 1961 Ops St Compt 238.

A village dump, located in a town outside of the village, may not, by village ordinance, be limited to use by residents of the two municipalities, but the town may enact and enforce such an ordinance. 1964 Ops St Compt File #908.

A village dump, located in a town outside of the village, may not, by village ordinance, be limited to use by residents of the village, to the exclusion of town residents, but the village may employ a custodian and take such other measures to bar trespassers as could lawfully be employed by any private property owner. 1964 Ops St Compt File #952.

87. Water supply and water commissioners

A water district, servicing a town in which a village is carved out of territory embraced within the district does not have a vested, superior or exclusive right to furnish all of the water to be used within the district and a village may render such services within its territorial limits. Rinas v Duryea, 278 A.D. 419, 106 N.Y.S.2d 151, 1951 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3827 (N.Y. App. Div. 1951), aff'd, 304 N.Y. 586, 107 N.E.2d 80, 304 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 586, 1952 N.Y. LEXIS 835 (N.Y. 1952).

Where village does not have a separate board of water commissioners, the minutes of the actions of the board of trustees in water matters may be combined with the minutes of actions on general village matters. 1954 Ops St Compt 343.

Exercise of power of water commissioners is subject to approval of board of trustees. 1955 Ops St Compt 311.

A village, which had purchased certain lands for the construction of a well, could not agree in writing with the private owner of the adjoining premises (who also was a former owner of the land purchased by the village) to supply the latter with free water. The property was located outside the village limits. 1959 Ops St Compt 313.

A village is not required to hold a public hearing prior to authorizing fluoridation of its water supply. 1968 Ops St Compt File #245.

A village may defray the cost and expense of operating and maintaining a water system (a) by charging the consumers a fair and equitable water rental, (b) by a general tax levy, or (c) by a combination of both methods. 1969 Ops St Compt File #346.

IV. Under Former § 332-a

88. In general

The village board of trustees of a village could resolve to construct sidewalks at village expense, but could not let a contract therefor which involved an expenditure in excess of $2,500.00 without advertising for bids. 1953 Ops St Compt 76.

A construction contract for public works may be entered into by a village only after public bidding. Village may not take unit bids from one contractor and award work to another, who did not bid, at the unit rate. 1953 Ops St Compt File #6357.

Where the village trustee is an employee of the lowest bidder on a village purchase contract, such contract should not be awarded to the trustee's employer. 1955 Ops St Compt 440.

A municipality having rejected all bids on an advertised contract, may not thereafter accept the lowest bidder, but should readvertise for new bids. 1956 Ops St Compt 138.

A contract calling for expenditure by a village of $3,000 for uniforms for members of the village fire department must be awarded by public bidding. 1961 Ops St Compt 86.

A contract for garbage collection and disposal involving an expenditure of more than $2,500 is subject to competitive bidding. 1956 NY Ops Atty June 14 (informal).

V. Under Former § 333

89. In general

The cause of action under this section, where the debt has not been paid, is the putative village creditor. Where the money has been paid, the cause of action vests in the village. Joseph A. Cicci, Inc. v Allanson, 16 Misc. 2d 394, 187 N.Y.S.2d 911, 1959 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3985 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1959).

Corporation could not recover from mayor and members of village board under this section where it paid an assessment on a water main, though mayor had stated that village would construct main at no expense to the corporation. In the absence of a resolution by the board, there could be no personal liability of the defendants, since they were not required to register their dissent to a mere discussion. Joseph A. Cicci, Inc. v Allanson, 16 Misc. 2d 394, 187 N.Y.S.2d 911, 1959 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3985 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1959).

Village funds may not be used to pay a judgment rendered against a village trustee in his private capacity where the cause of action arises out of an act of the trustee which was not within his power or duty to perform for the village. 1953 Ops St Compt 258.

A village is not liable on a contract made in the name or on behalf of the village if the contract is not authorized by law. A village is not authorized to repair or remove unsafe buildings unless it has enacted an ordinance in conformity with former § 89(7-a). 1965 Ops St Compt File #586.

Under former § 333 it is a misdemeanor and grounds for removal for a village board member to allow illegal payment of village funds, imposing personal liability to repay the village. 1964 NY Ops Attys Gen Jan 7.

I. In General

1. In general

A village may not enact a local law authorizing it to adopt ordinances. N.Y. Op. Att'y Gen. No. 83-48.

Quorum of village board of trustees must be present to conduct hearing on proposed local law. NY Ops Atty Gen 88-50 (Informal).

Mayor has responsibility for appointment of village officers and employees, subject to approval of board of trustees, and board of trustees is responsible for authorizing village to enter into all contracts. NY Ops Atty Gen 88-79 (Informal).

Subject to due process requirements, costs incurred by village for other than local improvements may be assessed against real property in manner provided by local law, not limited by provisions of Real Property Tax Law relative to omitted assessments. 8 Op. Counsel SBEA No. 99.

2. Creation of offices

A village may create the village offices of village plumbing inspector and village attorney either by resolution or by local law. 1974 NY Ops Atty Gen Dec 20.

Discussion of validity of village local law establishing architectural review board with power to review, and approve or disapprove, all applications for building permits and accompanying site plans except applications relating to single-family residential buildings. 1978 Op St Compt File #177.

A municipality may not create a code enforcement board with the power to adjudicate alleged violations of the municipal building code and to impose penalties for such violations. 1982 Op St Compt File #82-5.

3. Employment of village attorney

A law firm may not be appointed as the village attorney. However, a law firm may be retained to render legal services under an independent contract. 1979 Op St Compt File #95.

4. Hiring of other employees

5. —Residence requirement

A village board of trustees cannot mandate that officers and employees of the housing authority reside within the village. 1978 Op St Compt File #327.

A municipal housing authority serving a village may, by resolution, require, as a condition of employment, that all future employees of the authority, hired subsequent to the adoption thereof, reside within the village. 1978 Op St Compt File #327.

Village board may employ study manager and may determine compensation of employee; if board determines that it is in village's best interest to do so, it may by local law establish exception to common law rule of compatibility so that village trustee may be employed as study manager. 1998 NY Ops Atty Gen I 98-8.

A village may engage a tax consultant and compensate him either on a per diem basis or by annual retainer. Vouchers must be submitted. 1980 Op St Compt File #444.

6. Conflicts of interest

The same person may not hold the offices of village trustee and village justice due to the control which the former has over the amount of compensation to be paid to the latter. 1978 NY Ops Atty Gen March 14 (Informal).

Offices of deputy sheriff and member of village board of trustees are compatible. 1987 NY Ops Atty Gen No. 87-16 (informal).

Trustees with direct financial interest in proposed legislation before village board must recuse themselves from participating in deliberations and decision-making on legislation. 1993 NY Ops Atty Gen I 93-11.

A village attorney normally provides legal services for all village boards and agencies (such as the planning board and zoning board of appeals). Separate counsel would be necessary in situations involving an adversary relationship between the board of trustees and any such boards. 1980 Op St Compt File #675.

7. Conduct of meetings; hearings

The Mayor of the Village of Haverstraw does not have the authority to order each of the Trustees of the Village Board to sit in a particular seat at a reorganizational meeting or any other Board meeting unless so empowered by duly adopted rules of procedure of the Board of Trustees. 1976 NY Ops Atty Gen May 11 (informal).

Quorum of village board of trustees must be present to conduct hearing on proposed local law. NY Ops Atty Gen 88-50 (Informal).

It would appear that a village board of trustees can prohibit use of recording devices at its regular meetings. 1978 Op St Compt File #457.

The village board has discretion to determine the rules of its procedure including the method used to convene special meetings. It may also adopt a resolution calling for a special meeting. 1980 Op St Compt File #482.

When necessary in the public interest, meetings of village boards and commissions may be held in a facility situate outside of the territorial limits of the village. 1982 Op St Compt File #82-286.

Executive sessions of village board of trustees might properly have been conducted to consider topic of "safe houses" for battered women, since CLS Pub O § 105(a) applies in consideration of need to provide safety and security to battered, abused or threatened women and their children. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3925.

8. Village contracts

A choice of law clause within a public contract would be permissible so long as there is authorization to enter into the underlying contract. 1983 Op St Compt File #83-178.

9. Liability insurance

A village may protect it's officers and employees against liability for claims either by purchasing liability insurance or becoming a self-insurer. 1978 Op St Compt File #996.

A private civic association may not be included as a additional named insured in a general liability policy purchased by a village, even if the association bears the additional cost. 1981 Op St Compt File #81-214.

10. Maintenance of private property

A village may enact an ordinance which would compel a person whose property line extends to the center of a village street to remove diseased and dangerous trees growing within the right-of-way at his own expense. In the event that such property owner fails or refuses to remove such trees, the village would be entitled to seek a penalty pursuant to Section 20-2010 of the Village Law and a judgment for the actual expense of their removal if permitted by a properly enacted local law. There is no authority permitting a village to enact an ordinance compelling a person, whose property abuts a street owned in fee by the village, to remove diseased or dangerous trees that are within the right-of-way and are the property of the village. 1974 NY Ops Atty Gen July 3 (informal).

A village may adopt a local law to remove unsafe or dangerous buildings constituting a nuisance, provided that the local law is consistent with constitutional due process requirements, as, for example, shown by Multiple Dwelling Law, § 309(1)(a) through (f), Multiple Residence Law, § 305(2) or General City Law, § 20(35). 1974 NY Ops Atty Gen Sept 25 (Informal), 1974 N.Y. AG LEXIS 153.

In order to further safety and general welfare of persons and property, village has authority to prohibit, by local law, parking on lawns of residences within village and to enforce such local law by issuing tickets. 1986 N.Y. Op. Att'y Gen. No. 86-10.

Village may enact local law providing for demolition and clean up of unsafe buildings and, in event owner fails to reimburse village costs, also providing for sale of property in order to effectuate its lien. 1998 NY Ops Atty Gen I 98-35.

Subject to due process guarantees, a village may remove obstructions within the village highway right-of-way and, by local law, may require that abutting property owners remove obstructions in the right-of-way placed there with their consent and/or that the cost of removal of such obstructions be charged back to the abutting owners. 1981 Op St Compt File #81-67.

11. Regulation of park land

Park use regulations may be established by local law or by a properly created park commission provided they are approved by the Village Board consistent with the procedures necessary in enacting a local law. 1980 NY Ops Atty Gen July 18 (Informal), 1980 N.Y. AG LEXIS 84.

12. Waste disposal

A village may not modify its garbage collection contract by increasing the compensation paid or reducing the number of days of pick-up without receiving additional consideration to support the modification, and any modification may not result in a material variance from the original bid specifications. 1981 Op St Compt File #81-41.

Where a village finances its refuse collection service through general taxation all properties within the village are entitled to the service, including those properties which are exempt from real property taxation. The village is not required to provide more service to a school district than to other similarly situated properties, but the village may enter a municipal cooperation agreement with the school district to provide additional service to the district for a fee. 1983 Op St Compt File #83-201.

13. Water and sewer services

A village may regulate swimming and, where not inconsistent with applicable Federal or State law, the operation, anchoring and mooring of vessels in navigable waters bounding the village to a distance of fifteen hundred feet from the shore. There is no authority for village regulation of fishing, shellfishing or the construction of piers and docks in such area. N.Y. Op. Att'y Gen. No. 83-56.

Discussion of responsibility of a village for maintenance and improvement of a sewer line located in the village in circumstances where it is not clear who owns the sewer line. 1978 Op St Compt File #704.

A village may share the cost of digging a well on private property to supply water to the village hall and the private property owner. 1980 Op St Compt File #68.

14. Zoning powers

A village by local law may prohibit the raising and grazing of livestock on private property in certain areas of the village where warranted under the police power. In general, a village may not use its zoning power to prohibit the keeping of livestock on land presently being used for that purpose, but may provide for the discontinuance of such use within a reasonable period of time. 1982 NY Ops Atty Gen July 9 (informal).

A village board, or a town board of trustees, is not authorized to settle litigation so as to grant a variance application the zoning board of appeals denied. Such an action would usurp the power to grant or deny a variance vested exclusively in the board of appeals by Village Law, § 7-712(2)(c). While a town board or village board of trustees cannot compromise litigation contrary to a board of appeals determination, it can amend or repeal zoning regulations or timely commence an Article 78 proceeding to overturn denial of variance application. 1990 N.Y. Op. Att'y Gen. No. I90-45.

A member of the village board of trustees should recuse himself from participating in an application for a change of zoning that would benefit the industry for which he is employed. 1990 N.Y. Op. Att'y Gen. No. I90-57.

15. Use of village funds

The Village of Broadalbin may not, without adequate consideration, expend moneys to provide an office or home for a physician. 1978 NY Ops Atty Gen June 22.

The village may, after adopting a local law authorizing a publicity fund, expend moneys to advertise for a doctor in trade magazines, newspapers or other applicable places. 1978 NY Ops Atty Gen June 22.

Board of trustees has control of village funds and may establish reasonable rules to ensure that expenditures do not exceed budgeted amounts or available funds. 1994 NY Ops Atty Gen I 94-38.

A town and a village may agree to expend funds jointly to pay for the cost of publishing a coloring book commemorating the 300th anniversary of the area. 1978 Op St Compt File #264.

A village has neither the authority to donate funds to "The Family", a private organization that assists people in temporary emotional distress, nor to contract with such an organization. 1978 Op St Compt File #914.

A village may expend funds to hire consultants who will study the question of why 5 percent or more of the village dwellings are having serious problems with basement flooding. 1979 Op St Compt File #417.

A village may not make a gift of funds to a volunteer ambulance service but may contract with it for the rendering of ambulance service to the village. This assumes, of course, that the volunteer ambulance service possess a valid voluntary ambulance service statement of registration. 1979 Op St Compt No. 79-492.

The City of Saratoga Springs may expend moneys from its publicity fund to pay for actual and necessary expenses incurred in connection with a "Legislators' Day" held for the benefit of the members of the New York Legislature if such expenditures serve the purpose of promoting the general commercial and industrial welfare of the City. Whether an expenditure is for such a purpose is a question of fact to be determined in the first instance by local officials. To the extent Opns St Comp, 1965, No. 65-315, unreported, or other opinions of this Department are inconsistent with this opinion, they are superseded. 1979 Op St Compt No. 79-655, 1979, 1979 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 164.

The Camillus Volunteer Fire Department may, without public bidding, purchase an ambulance with its own funds and then donate the ambulance to the village. But, any purchase made with village funds must meet the requirements of public bidding. 1979 Op St Compt No. 79–666.

A village may not expend moneys generated from a village recycling program for the cost of a Christmas party for village employees. 1980 Op St Compt File #186.

Village may not contribute village funds to a veterans' organization to help finance a Memorial Day celebration planned in the village by the organization. However, the village may authorize the organization to stage the event on behalf of village residents generally and reimburse it for proper expenses incurred. 1980 Op St Compt File #192.

A village may not contribute funds to a private association that holds a boat race, but may, by local law, authorize itself to establish a publicity fund from which expenditures to promote a privately sponsored boat race could be made if the village board determines that such race will publicize the village as a recreational or resort area. 1980 Op St Compt File # 739.

A village board may hold an annual dinner for unsalaried members of various village boards where only the meals of the members will be paid for by the village as a token of appreciation for the services rendered by such members to the village. 1981 Op St Compt File #80-775.

A village may authorize the appropriation of funds for the observance of Memorial Day by adoption of a local law or resolution. 1978 Op St Compt No. 78–854.

16. Payment and compromise of claims

Discussion of payment of claims under a contract for public relations work, including the preparation of a newsletter. 1978 Op St Compt File #559.

As a general rule, a village may not wholly or partially forgive an amount due from a water district arising from leaks in the supply lines located in the district. The village may compromise claims which the water district might have against the village with regard to the leaks. 1980 Op St Compt File #899.

17. Compensation of officers and employees

Discussion of extra compensation for village attorney. 1978 Op St Compt File #977.

A village board, by resolution, may determine to compensate a village attorney by a fixed annual amount for certain specified services and by a flat fee or on percentage basis for work in connection with real property tax collection by civil action. 1981 Op St Compt File #81-145.

A village justice may receive his salary quarterly and on the first day of every fourth month regardless of when other village employees are paid if the village board has so authorized by resolution. The mayor may also order that pay checks be issued early when the regular payday falls on a holiday if the village board has, by resolution, authorized him to do so. 1981 Op St Compt File #643.

A village board may, be resolution, determine to compensate a village attorney by a fixed annual amount, an hourly or a daily rate, or a combination thereof. Opn No. 75-942 and other prior opinions superseded to the extent inconsistent. 1981 Op St Compt File #80-792.

A village may not prorate the annual salaries of the mayor and trustees on a monthly basis and withhold payment of such prorated amounts for failure to attend a regular monthly meeting of the board of trustees. 1978 Op St Compt File #993.

18. Purchase or sale of property

Village seeking to acquire property in town for purposes of public utility service under CLS Gen Mun Art 14-A must use procedures set forth in Eminent Domain Procedure Law; CLS Vill § 4-412(3)(1) does not apply. 1999 NY Ops Atty Gen I 99-44.

The consideration for the sale of the hospital assets could properly include the promise by the private hospital to continue acute care hospital services at the village hospital site, continued employment of the village's hospital employees by the private hospital and a cash payment. 1978 Op St Compt File #932.

The village may accept the cash portion of the consideration on a deferred payment basis, if it adopts a local law authorizing it to take back a purchase money bond and mortgage for the cash consideration. 1978 Op St Compt File #932.

19. Lease of village property

Local government is not authorized to permit use of its property for private advertising. 1992 NY Ops Atty Gen I 92-56.

A village is authorized by Village Law § 4-412(1)(10) to lease air rights as provided therein. 1978 Op St Compt File #980.

A village may lease the air rights above a village parking facility for a period of 40 years, renewable for up to three 15 year periods, to a private developer who intends to build a shopping plaza above such parking facility. 1979 Op St Compt File #118.

The Village of Saranac Lake may, for adequate consideration, grant a license or concession to one or more individuals, partnerships or corporations to use a portion of a public park to sell food, beverages, souvenirs and other artifacts during the 1980 Winter Olympics. 1979 Op St Compt File #909.

20. Village fees or assessments

A village may charge a fee for permission to fish in a village-owned reservoir; discussion of the propriety of charging a larger fee to non-residents of the village. 1978 Op St Compt No. 78–898.

A village may establish a fee schedule for individuals using a beach parking area which differentiates between residents and nonresidents of the village, regardless of whether the parking area is owned by the village or leased to the village. 1979 Op St Compt File #139.

A village which finances its garbage and refuse collection service by means of a general tax may not exclude industrial property owners from use of such service. A village may establish a system of contractual charges for garbage and refuse collection to reflect the services rendered to each property owner. 1979 Op St Compt File #307.

Where a village is situate in Towns A and B, and garbage collected by its municipal collection service is deposited in a landfill located in, and operated by, town A, the village may impose a service charge on property owners situate in town B to pay the cost to the village, charged by town A, for disposal of garbage collected in town B. 1979 Op St Compt File #563.

Where a property owner in a village fails to connect to the public sewer system, the village may not collect sewer rents from the owner. But the village may have the connection made and assess the cost against the property or it may require connection by local law and if the property owner then fails to connect the village may impose a fine if the local law so provides. 1980 Op St Compt File #326.

A village which finances its refuse and garbage collection service with general tax revenues may not exclude certain types of property from such service. However, the village may operate its collection service on a contractual basis and may charge different types of property different rates based on the value of the services rendered. 1980 Op St Compt File #329.

The village board of trustees is empowered to fund garbage collection through the general village tax or as a special charge or assessment against the real property benefitted. 6 Op Counsel SBEA #23 (1977 May 20).

21. Practice and procedure

The standard practice of a village board of trustees over a period of years under which committee members and chairmen are appointed by the mayor subject to approval by the board of trustees constitutes a determination of the village board of the rules of its procedure and should be followed until changed by formal action of the board. Committee memberships and chairmanships are not public offices and no term of office attaches so there is no reason why a committee can not be abolished or its membership changed or the chairman changed during the official village year. A subsequent appointment of a new chairman by the mayor, approved by the board of trustees, removes the original chairman and replaces him with the new one. When the mayor states that he removes a committee chairman and a motion to override the action fails to receive a majority vote, it is an expression of the will of the board of trustees that the chairman is dismissed. 1977 Op Atty Gen Nov 23.

When refunding an overpayment after a claim is made, a village may not waive the defense of the statute of limitations. 1979 Op St Compt File #235.

Where a village board of trustees informally agreed to extend medical insurance benefits to village officers at a meeting in 1973, and did so but without formal resolution, village board may now ratify such action by adoption of resolution or local law. 1979 Op St Compt File #266.

22. Miscellaneous

A village may provide for general ambulance service either under General Municipal Law § 122-b(1) or Village Law § 4-412(3[9]). 1977 NY Ops Atty Gen Feb 3 (Informal).

The legislative body of a village may enact a local law to provide that a village police officer may remove a vehicle that is delinquent on six or more parking meter violation tickets. 1977 NY Ops Atty Gen Sept 21.

The village may not grant a property tax exemption for a doctor's office or home for a specified length of time. 1978 NY Ops Atty Gen June 22.

Village Law, § 4-412, Article 9, § 2(c) of the New York State Constitution and Municipal Home Rule Law, Article 2, § 10(1)(i), give a village the general power to adopt local laws relating to village business which are not inconsistent with the Constitution nor with the general laws of the State. While there is no specific authority for a village to establish a publicity fund, the village may, by adopting a local law, supply this authority. There is no monetary limit set by law on this fund. Similarly, a limit could be set by adoption of a local law. 1978 NY Ops Atty Gen Feb 28 (Informal).

The Town/Village of Harrison is only authorized to adopt the provisions of General Business Law, § 352-ee and is not authorized to adopt a local law which regulates the conversion of rental premises to cooperatives or condominiums. 1979 NY Ops Atty Gen Feb 1.

Town Law, § 64(11-a), Village Law, § 4-412(3)(1) and General Municipal Law, § 119-o are permissive statutes and impose no duty on the town or village to make repairs on privately owned streams within such municipalities. 1979 NY Ops Atty Gen Sept 14 (Informal).

A village may, by local law, prevent the operator of a tavern or bar from allowing persons to enter a bar once the occupancy limitations have been reached. 1980 NY Ops Atty Gen Sept 10 (informal).

A village board of trustees may enact a local law pursuant to its general police powers prohibiting parking on private property and providing for the removal of motor vehicles parked in violation of such an ordinance. 1980 NY Ops Atty Gen Sept 10 (informal).

A village ordinance regulating taxis may be suspended but only by a local law. 1980 NY Ops Atty Gen Sept 15 (informal).

Person may simultaneously hold offices of county treasurer and village trustee, village mayor or village budget officer. 1986 NY Ops Atty Gen No. 86-63 (informal).

Individual trustees have access to records of village that are not exempt from disclosure. 1994 NY Ops Atty Gen I 94-38.

Chief, deputy chief, and assistant chief of village fire department may not hold office of mayor or trustee of village. 1998 NY Ops Atty Gen I 98-33.

Village may use boat parking meters to collect fees for use of village-owned docks; village may not create traffic violations bureau to handle parking tickets issued as to use of its docks. 2000 NY Ops Atty Gen I 00-21.

Village may in its proprietary capacity prohibit a person who has an unrestricted license to carry a firearm from entering village hall carrying or possessing a firearm covered by the license, as although CLS Penal Law § 400.00(6) prohibits village from regulating the licensing of firearms, these provisions do not preclude village from acting in its proprietary capacity for safety of its property and persons present thereupon, and in its proprietary capacity village can prohibit persons from entering its property while possessing a firearm, even if he or she has an unrestricted license to carry such firearm. NY Ops Atty Gen 89-75 (informal).

A village may adopt a local law providing for the disposition by sale or otherwise of vehicles which are duly impounded by it and which are not considered as abandoned vehicles under Vehicle and Traffic Law, § 1224, provided principles of due process are served. 1978 Op St Compt File #756.

A village may not enact a local law providing for the prosecution of individuals engaging in conduct in violation of Education Law, § 265, and providing that such conduct is not a crime, but a violation, inasmuch as state legislature has declared such conduct to be criminal. 1978 Op St Compt File #947.

Village may enact local law prohibiting hunting or trapping in residental areas for purposes of public safety, even though the regulation of hunting or trapping has been pre-empted by State law. 1979 Op St Compt File #79.

A village lacks the authority to erect a community residential facility for the mentally ill. 1979 Op St Compt File #316.

A village may adopt a local law providing for the publication of a newsletter to be distributed to village residents. 1979 Op St Compt File #383.

A village may enact a local law providing for the publication of a list of tax-exempt properties which identifies the owners, the basis for and the amounts of the exemptions. 1979 Op St Compt File #499.

Whether a village may legally adopt a local law creating a "quiet zone" in the area of a village-operated hospital depends upon the circumstances. 1979 Op St Compt No. 79-527, 1979 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 157.

A village, by local law, may amend the penalty provisions of a 1964 housing code ordinance to fix minimum and maximum fines, but maximum may not exceed $250 unless the entire ordinance is repealed and reenacted as a local law. 1979 Op St Compt File #589.

A village may adopt a local law authorizing volunteer firemen to receive reimbursement for actual and necessary expenses or a mileage allowance for travel in their own automobiles on fire department business. 1979 Op St Compt File #722.

The board of trustees has the power to determine the location of all village offices within the village hall. The board of trustees may impose additional duties upon the justice court clerk without increasing the salary of that office. 1980 Op St Compt File #90.

The law is uncertain whether a village local law licensing taxi-cab owners may prohibit the transfer of a license. 1980 Op St Compt File #104.

In the absence of the village treasurer, the village board of trustees has the authority to delegate the duty of signing tax sale certificate redemptions, bond anticipation notes and other documents which would normally be signed by the treasurer or deputy treasurer, if any, to another village officer. 1980 Op St Compt File #131.

A village, in an agreement with a private operator for the use of the village stadium to stage stock car races, may require that all drivers of race cars be licensed drivers. In lieu of such an agreement, the validity of a local law to that effect depends upon the reasonableness thereof in light of constitutional principles. 1980 Op St Compt File #714.

A village may not adopt a local law requiring that all trucks and trailors transporting refuse capable of being windblown, be covered by a tarpaulin or other similar cover. 1981 Op St Compt File #81-189.

A village may amend its parking ordinance by local law to provide that if a parking violation fine is not paid within a specified period of time, the fine will be doubled, except that the total fine cannot exceed the maximum amount set forth in Vehicle and Traffic Law, § 1800. However, it is doubtful that local legislation can be enacted doubling a fine for vioaltion of a parking regulation for failure of the violator to appear on the return date specified in the appearance ticket. 1981 Op St Compt File #80-798.

A county or village may adopt a resolution which recognizes or "approves" the establishment of a not-for-profit corporation and the issuance of its obligations for a public purpose. Such resolution has no substantive effect under New York law in that the failure to adopt the resolution would not prohibit either the establishment of, or the issuance of obligations by, the corporation. The State Comptroller expresses no view with respect to whether such a resolution is sufficient to qualify the obligations to be issued by the corporation as being issued on behalf of a political subdivision under Revenue Ruling 63-20. 1982 Op St Compt File #82-19.

A village may adopt a local law providing that all existing ordinances containing no penalty provision be designated as violations and imposing as a penalty a fine not to exceed $250. The local law cannot denominate as public nuisances violations which do not as a matter of law constitute public nuisances. 1982 Op St Compt File #82-288.

Subject to constitutional considerations, a village may adopt a local law providing for the licensing and regulation of video game arcades. 1982 Op St Compt File #82-357.

A member of a village board of trustees may purchase and use stationary imprinted with the village logo or seal for correspondence related to his official duties. 1983 Op St Compt File #83-62.

If a village board of trustees determines that exclusion from village boundaries of an area of a fire district which has been annexed to the village will serve a village purpose, it may expend village moneys and utilize the village attorney's office to assist in preparing the petition for such exclusion. 1983 Op St Compt File #83-192.

The interest rate and redemption period provisions of sections 46 and 48 of the General Business Law, relating to collateral loan brokers, are preemptive. N.Y. Op. Att'y Gen. No. 2012-3, 2012 N.Y. AG LEXIS 3.

Discussion of certain procedures to abate dangerous conditions of abandoned buildings and to recoup costs of abatement. 2015 N.Y. Op. Att'y Gen. No. 2015-3, 2015 N.Y. AG LEXIS 2.

23. In general

Whenever required by a member of the board, the vote upon any question before the Post Chester Village Board of Trustees must be taken by ayes and noes and the names of the members present and their votes entered in the minutes of the meeting. 1955 NY Ops Atty Gen 110 (informal).

Where a village board of trustees consists of five members, three must vote in favor of a resolution before it can be properly adopted. 1957 NY Ops Atty Gen July 19 (informal).

A village trustee may not vote by proxy at a meeting of the village board. 1958 NY Ops Atty Gen Dec 30 (informal).

There is no legal provision which permits village trustees to vote by proxy. 1962 NY Ops Atty Gen June 22.

A resolution to appoint a member of the village planning and zoning board by a five member village board, all members being present at an organization meeting, said resolution being properly moved and seconded but receiving only two affirmative votes, one negative vote and two trustees voting "present," was defeated. 1966 NY Ops Atty Gen May 11.

While any official action of the board should be taken at a meeting open to the public, including the news media, a village board of trustees may adopt proper legislation by the affirmative vote of a majority of all its members prohibiting the use of tape recorders by the public during sessions of its board meetings. 1970 NY Ops Atty Gen March 18 (Informal), 1970 N.Y. AG LEXIS 50.

The Village Board of Trustees of the Village of Honeoye Falls is authorized to adopt a resolution by an affirmative vote of a majority of all its members prohibiting the use of a tape recorder by one of its members during sessions of its Board meetings if in its judgment the recording distracts from the true deliberative process of the Board. 1972 NY Ops Atty Gen Oct 27.

III. Under Former § 89

A. Financial and Contractual Powers

24. Banks of deposit

Federal savings and loan association, created pursuant to § 5 of Home Owners' Loan Act of 1933, is not a bank or trust company within meaning of provisions of former § 89 designating permissible depositories of village funds. 1939 N.Y. Op. Att'y Gen. No. 169, 1939 N.Y. AG LEXIS 141.

Where there is no bank in a village, a bank outside the village may not be designated as the village depository if a village trustee is vice president thereof. 1953 NY Ops Atty Gen 44 (informal).

A bank in which a village trustee is interested as a stockholder, officer or director may be designated as a depository of village moneys only when it is the only bank in the village. 1953 NY Ops Atty Gen 124 (informal).

Where village officers are officers or stockholders of the only two commercial banks in the village which might be designated as depositaries for village funds, either or both of such banks may be designated as depositaries for village funds. 1956 NY Ops Atty Gen Nov 30 (informal).

25. Village funds

A village board of trustees may by resolution establish a petty cash fund for the village clerk. 1954 NY Ops Atty Gen 72 (informal).

26. Use of village funds

There is no statutory authority for the expenditure of village funds to conduct a special census by the Federal Bureau of Census. 1953 NY Ops Atty Gen 127 (informal).

There appears to be no authority for the expenditure of village funds to pay a reward for information leading to the arrest of a criminal. 1953 NY Ops Atty Gen 144 (informal).

A village of the fourth class may not expend village moneys to buy and operate a bus for the convenience of residents of the village. 1957 NY Ops Atty Gen Jan 7 (informal).

Village funds may not be paid to a town to reimburse the town in part for the cost of a special population census. 1957 NY Ops Atty Gen Nov 18 (informal).

27. Employee benefits

Although a city is restricted to paying one-half the cost of accident and hospital insurance for its officers and employees, a village may pay the entire cost. 1961 NY Ops Atty Gen Sept 28.

A village may assume the entire cost of hospitalization, medical and surgical insurance covering its officers and employees. 1957 NY Ops Atty Gen Aug 12 (informal).

28. Private enterprises

There is no authority for a village to turn over village moneys to a veterans' organization to assist it in erecting a club house. 1954 NY Ops Atty Gen 88, (informal).

29. Publicity fund

The $1,500 limitation upon the amount of a publicity fund may not be increased. There is no authority for the submission of a proposition for this purpose. 1953 NY Ops Atty Gen 130 (informal).

30. Acquisition of property

31. —for parks

A village may not charge village residents for admission to a village-owned public park although it is possible that a charge could be made for the use of some special facilities in the park. 1953 NY Ops Atty Gen 56 (informal).

A village may lease, for a nominal consideration, municipal property not otherwise required for public use, for use as a playground or recreation area. 1953 NY Ops Atty Gen 80 (informal).

A town and a village may enter into a municipal cooperation agreement to establish and maintain a public park in such village. 1965 NY Ops Atty Gen Sept 7.

The Village of Kensington is not authorized to contract by lease or otherwise with private enterprise to conduct its parks, playground or recreation programs or portions thereof. 1969 NY Ops Atty Gen Oct 23 (informal).

32. —Personal property

A village Board of Trustees may acquire a motorboat for use of the police department to enforce provisions of the Penal Law, and may expend money for insurance premiums on such vessel. 1962 NY Ops Atty Gen Jan 12.

A village may obtain by condemnation property needed for the construction of a village garage. 1953 NY Ops Atty Gen 63 (informal).

Lands owned by a private business corporation and used by it in the operation of a private school may be acquired by a village for any municipal purpose by condemnation. 1953 NY Ops Atty Gen 76 (informal).

Village may purchase land for a public use, such as a park, subject to a condition for reversion or repurchase should the property cease to be used for the intended purpose. 1953 NY Ops Atty Gen 92 (informal).

While a village is not authorized to acquire property without the confines of the village for use as a village garage, a town may acquire such property outside of the town boundaries for such purpose. 1972 NY Ops Atty Gen Mar 2.

33. Lease of village property

34. —Docks

It is doubted that a village board of trustees may properly enter into a lease with a private person to use the village-owned dock for private purposes, even though the public is at all times permitted access to the dock. 1955 NY Ops Atty Gen 171 (informal).

Village may lease land not held or no longer required for public use but may not lease land held for public use. 1955 NY Ops Atty Gen 148 (informal).

35. Sale or transfer of property

36. —Park lands

Consent of the legislature is necessary for a village having home rule powers to sell village park property. 1953 NY Ops Atty Gen 138 (informal).

Generally speaking, real property held by a municipality for a public use may not be alienated without express legislative authority. 1953 NY Ops Atty Gen 98 (informal).

Village owned real property not held for a public use may be sold upon resolution of the board of trustees without submitting such resolution to permissive referendum. 1953 NY Ops Atty Gen 107 (informal).

Legislative consent is necessary for a village to sell property held for public use. 1954 NY Ops Atty Gen 74 (informal).

A village may sell its excess lands without either referendum or public bidding. 1958 NY Ops Atty Gen Oct 10 (informal).

A village-owned parking lot is held for "public use" and may not be sold or leased without legislative authority, but sale may be authorized by resolution when it has ceased to be so used and is no longer required for public purposes and conveyance is not subject to either a mandatory or permissive referendum. 1964 NY Ops Atty Gen May 25.

The Board of Trustees of a village may sell village real property not held for a public use upon resolution and no referendum is necessary. Said sale may be to a private individual at a private sale without public notice. 1965 NY Ops Atty Gen Feb 26.

A village board of trustees without public auction may by resolution for a proper consideration convey land or a properly discontinued street provided such land had not been deeded to the village to be held in trust by it for street purposes. 1967 NY Ops Atty Gen June 1.

A village that has acquired land by purchase to be used as a village dump may not sell such land while it is used for such purpose. 1967 NY Ops Atty Gen June 5.

The Village Board of Trustees of the Village of Munsey Park is authorized to sell surplus lands without public auction and use the proceeds therefrom to defray the costs for the erection of a village hall and police justice court. Authorization for such sale and construction by the Village Board of Trustees is not subject to permissive referendum. 1972 NY Ops Atty Gen Oct 19.

37. Assessments

Property of a charitable or religious corporation is subject to village benefit assessments for new sidewalk construction, garbage and refuse collection, but neither these corporations nor a school district are liable for an assessment for village fire protection. 1955 NY Ops Atty Gen 6 (informal).

38. Contract bid requirements

In the absence of fraud, the courts will not interfere with judgment of village board in awarding contract to bidder other than lowest bidder. 1960 NY Ops Atty Gen June 2 (informal).

39. Particular contracts

A Village Board of Trustees may not, in the absence of statutory authority therefor, enter into a contract to employ an individual which would run longer than the period of its own existence. 1955 NY Ops Atty Gen 116 (informal).

As between village and town fire districts there is no provision for, and there is a prohibition against, inclusion of territory of one in the territory of the other; but a contractual relationship may be entered into so as to accomplish the desired result. 1961 NY Ops Atty Gen Aug 30.

The air space above real property maintained by a village as a parking area up to the height to which it may reasonably be expected to be occupied may not be leased without specific legislative authority therefor. General Municipal Law § 72-j grants such authority as to real property acquired and disposed of in accordance therewith. 1966 NY Ops Atty Gen May 9 (Informal), 1966 N.Y. AG LEXIS 71.

Under the above sections, there exists authority whereby the Board of Trustees of the Village of Fishkill may designate a board of fire inspectors composed of volunteer firemen of a fire company whose performance of duties as such fire inspectors would be covered under the Volunteer Firemen's Benefit Law. 1970 NY Ops Atty Gen Feb 18.

A village may not enter into a contract to furnish fire protection to a person residing outside the corporate village limits. 1959 NY Ops Atty Gen Jan. 28 (informal).

Library building may be built by village on land held for park purposes and contract may be made with county library service. 1967 NY Ops Atty Gen Nov 20.

B. Regulatory Powers

40. Amusements

Village may let concessions for innocent amusements, under certain restrictions, but is not authorized to operate them itself. 1926 N.Y. Op. Att'y Gen. No. 232.

41. Bicycles

A village board of trustees may not establish a "Bicycle Court" nor may a village ordinance provide for the impounding of a bicycle because of the act of the rider thereof. 1953 NY Ops Atty Gen 41 (informal).

42. Boats and waterways

A village has certain powers to regulate, but not to prohibit the use of, motor powered boats on small bodies of water, such as Georgica Pond in Suffolk County. 1960 NY Ops Atty Gen July 26 (informal).

A town ordinance passed for the purpose of regulation of vessels is not effective in waters within or bounding an incorporated village to a distance of fifteen hundred feet from the shore of the village, whether or not a village has adopted regulations. There is no concurrent jurisdiction by the two types of municipalities. 1974 NY Ops Atty Gen Mar 28.

A town ordinance passed for the purpose of regulation of vessels is not effective in waters within or bounding an incorporated village to a distance of fifteen hundred feet from the shore of the village, whether or not a village has adopted regulations. There is no concurrent jurisdiction by the two types of municipalities. The Town of Huntington, which is in the Suffolk County Police District, and thus served by the Suffolk County Police Department, has transferred its police function to that department and the Town of Huntington may expect that the Suffolk County Police Department will enforce Town of Huntington ordinances to the same extent as another town, having its own police department, would expect its own police department to enforce its ordinances. 1974 NY Ops Atty Gen Mar 28 (informal).

A village may enact ordinances regulating speed and operation of boats on waters up to a distance of 1500 feet from the shore. 1963 NY Ops Atty Gen June 3.

43. Businesses

44. —Peddlers

A village Board of Trustees may require peddlers to register with village clerk, but may not prohibit all peddling in the village. 1962 NY Ops Atty Gen July 11.

A village may reasonably license and regulate (1) hawking and peddling; (2) soliciting orders for immediate delivery; and (3) under some circumstances, soliciting orders for future delivery. A municipality may not license or regulate persons licensed by the State Liquor Authority to solicit orders for the sale of alcoholic beverages. 1965 NY Ops Atty Gen Dec 13.

A village may not regulate the hours for barbering. 1953 NY Ops Atty Gen 102 (informal).

It is not believed that a village board of trustees may by ordinance license and otherwise regulate taxicabs which do not transport passengers from one point to another within the village or which transport passengers from the village to a location many miles from the village. 1954 NY Ops Atty Gen 75 (informal).

A village board of trustees may not regulate the hours during which bowling is permitted on Sunday, unless it finds that there is a serious interruption of the repose or religious liberty of the village. 1955 NY Ops Atty Gen 206 (informal).

45. Construction of electric power lines

Village Board of Trustees may grant permission to erect a coaxial cable over a village street following a hearing. 1955 NY Ops Atty Gen June 1 (informal).

Village may grant telephone company permission to install lines in village streets without public hearing. 1967 NY Ops Atty Gen May 23.

The Village of Westfield has the right to acquire by purchase or condemnation land in the Towns of Westfield and Portland to construct transmission lines which would connect its municipal electrical system with a transmission line of a private power corporation, provided proper procedural steps are followed. 1969 NY Ops Atty Gen Apr 23.

46. Gasoline

A village board may not enact an ordinance to require a fee of $500 or $1,000 for each pump connected to a gasoline tank which may be installed in a gasoline service station. 1958 NY Ops Atty Gen Apr 23 (informal).

A village may prohibit the use by a purchaser of gasoline dispensing equipment at a gasoline filling or service station. Such ordinance, if adopted, must apply to all gasoline service stations in the village. 1965 NY Ops Atty Gen Sept 1.

47. Signs

A village ordinance regulating signs must not be unreasonable or arbitrary. 1953 NY Ops Atty Gen 68 (informal).

48. Zoning regulations

A village is not authorized to adopt an amendment to its zoning ordinance restricting an area to apartment buildings that cannot be used or occupied by persons under fifty years of age and prohibiting children as occupants thereof. 1969 NY Ops Atty Gen May 6.

49. Miscellaneous

A village may properly enact an ordinance protecting its water supply against trespass even though the supply is located outside the village. 1957 NY Ops Atty Gen Aug 1 (informal).

A village board may enact ordinances prohibiting the discharge of firearms within the village limits. 1957 NY Ops Atty Gen Oct 10 (informal).

A village may not enact an ordinance or local law affecting the provisions of Labor Law § 204. 1968 NY Ops Atty Gen March 5.

In the absence of express legislative grant a municipality may not exercise its jurisdiction beyond its boundaries and may not, therefore, regulate by ordinance or local law the use of real property owned by it but located in another municipality. 1971 NY Ops Atty Gen May 11 (informal).

C. Streets, Sidewalks, and Parking

50. Use of streets

The subsurface area of real property acquired by a village for street and parking area purposes may not be sold or leased to a private owner of adjoining property for storage use without specific legislative authority. 1965 NY Ops Atty Gen Dec 8.

51. Acceptance of dedication of streets

A resolution of a village board of trustees, accepting a dedicated street containing sewer and water facilities, is subject to permissive referendum. 1953 NY Ops Atty Gen 4 (informal).

52. Sidewalks

53. —Snow removal

The village board of trustees may require the owner of land fronting on a sidewalk to keep it clear of snow and ice. 1953 NY Ops Atty Gen 103 (informal).

54. Parking

55. —Parking lots

Lands leased by a village for a parking space are held for public use and hence, a village board of trustees could not properly permit the village fire department to use temporarily a portion of such parking area for the fire department's annual fair. 1953 NY Ops Atty Gen 23 (informal).

In the absence of statutory authority so to do, there is no implied authority for a village board of trustees to regulate by ordinance, the fees which may be charged by the operators of private parking lots on privately owned property. 1956 NY Ops Atty Gen Dec 14 (informal).

56. —Financing

A bond resolution proposing maturity of more than five years to finance the cost of acquiring a parking area is subject to a permissive referendum or may be submitted to a referendum by the village board. 1957 NY Ops Atty Gen March 26 (informal).

Villages have right to prohibit parking on their public highways. 1935 N.Y. Op. Att'y Gen. No. 221.

A village board may not promulgate a rule, in any form, which would restrict parking of vehicles on certain portions of the public street so that only doctors' patients be permitted to park. 1965 NY Ops Atty Gen June 9.

A village may not install a no-parking sign on private property at the request of the landowner at village expense. 1971 NY Ops Atty Gen July 1 (informal).

Where the Village of Cedarhurst adopted a "No Parking 3 a.m.—5 a.m." ordinance pertaining to certain streets in the Village, it is not authorized to issue identification cards to residents of the Village which would exempt them from the provisions of the above-described ordinance as such action would be discriminatory. 1971 NY Ops Atty Gen Aug 18.

D. Miscellaneous Powers

57. In general

A town may only permit the use of its highway equipment by a village pursuant to the provisions of the Highway Law. 1955 NY Ops Atty Gen 199 (informal).

An ordinance enacted pursuant to subd. (7-a) of former § 89 may provide for entry upon adjoining property by a town building inspector in appropriate situations. 1963 NY Ops Atty Gen Nov 8.

The City of Rye may not adopt an ordinance or local law prohibiting hunting within the City Limits. However, an ordinance which prohibited the discharge of firearms except by law enforcement officers would likely constitute a reasonable exercise of the police power if its operation were restricted to certain densely populated areas or areas where the discharge of firearms would be hazardous to the general public or to nearby residents. 1972 NY Ops Atty Gen Sept 13 (Informal), 1972 N.Y. AG LEXIS 139.

Authority of a village to order owner of real property to cut, trim or remove brush, grass, rubbish or weeds, and if the owner fails or refuses to do so, the authority of a village to enter upon the private property and accomplish the same, either by its own employees or through contract. 1974 NY Ops Atty Gen Dec 12 (Informal), 1974 N.Y. AG LEXIS 193.

58. Village attorney

59. —Conflicts of interest

A village acting police justice may not at the same time serve as village attorney. 1955 NY Ops Atty Gen 68 (informal).

There appears to be no constitutional or statutory objection to a person simultaneously holding the offices of district attorney and village attorney. This opinion points out that former § 93 of the Village Law permits a village to pay a village attorney additional compensation for the additional work or prosecution if he is designated an assistant district attorney. In addition, the opinion states there does not appear to be any objection on the grounds of incompatibility to one person simultaneously holding these two offices providing the duties of one may be performed without neglecting the duties of either. 1959 NY Ops Atty Gen May 4 (informal).

A village attorney is not a village officer nor a public officer but a mere employee of the village. He is not required to be a resident of the village. 1953 NY Ops Atty Gen 36 (informal).

The powers of the Board of Trustees of a village should be strictly construed and accordingly the Board of Trustees is only empowered to hire one attorney. 1958 NY Ops Atty Gen May 21 (informal).

The services to be performed by a village attorney for his fixed compensation should be agreed upon by the board of trustees of the village and the attorney concerned. 1959 NY Ops Atty Gen Aug. 11 (informal).

The board also may, from time to time, employ such village attorney to attend to any other legal matters not included in the original compensation and pay him for such services and such compensation shall be in addition to the village attorney's annual compensation and shall be a legal charge against the village. 1959 NY Ops Atty Gen Aug. 11 (informal).

A Village Board may hire additional counsel for purposes expressed in subd. 59 of former § 89. 1961 NY Ops Atty Gen Dec 11.

A Village Board of Trustees may appoint a village attorney for a term no longer than the life of the Board itself. 1962 NY Ops Atty Gen Nov 29.

A village attorney is not a village officer, but is an employee and therefore need not reside within the village. 1965 NY Ops Atty Gen Dec 17.

60. Police

A village may not enact a local law forming a "police reserve" to supplement the work of an existing village police department. 1953 NY Ops Atty Gen 12 (informal).

The jurisdiction of the police officers of a village police department rendering protection to other villages pursuant to contract is thereby extended to include the territory of the contracting villages. 1966 NY Ops Atty Gen Dec 27.

61. Limitations as to trustees

A village trustee who is a stockholder, officer and director of an incorporated restaurant licensed to sell alcoholic beverages is within the contemplation of the Alcoholic Beverage Control Law provision prohibiting certain police officials from trafficking in alcoholic beverages. 1953 NY Ops Atty Gen Dec 14.

A village board of trustees may only submit a proposition to the village electors if authorized by statute. 1956 NY Ops Atty Gen Apr 6 (informal).

While generally a member of a village board of trustees may not resign that office and thereafter be appointed by the board to an office which it has the power to fill by appointment, it is suggested that such a practice might be authorized by local law in a village having home rule powers. 1960 NY Ops Atty Gen Nov. 23 (informal).

In a village having no separate board of fire commissioners, the village board of trustees acting as such board may appoint persons residing outside the village to the village fire department, if such persons reside in territory afforded fire protection by the department. 1953 NY Ops Atty Gen 10 (informal).

62. Other employees

A village may employ school crossing guards. 1954 NY Ops Atty Gen 117 (informal).

A town board may not compel an assessor to accept the designation as chairman of the board of assessors. An assessor so declining such a designation could not vacate his office or could he be removed from the office of assessor for that reason. 1959 NY Ops Atty Gen Apr. 9 (informal).

In the absence of creation of a Board of Water Commissioners, a village Board of Trustees may appoint the Superintendent of the Village Water System and fix his salary or compensation. 1961 NY Ops Atty Gen Nov 10.

The authority granted to a village to establish and maintain a pound and employ a keeper does not include authority to appoint a dog warden. 1963 NY Ops Atty Gen June 20.

Positions of employment may be created by a village board of trustees subject to Civil Service Law, section 22; payment of salaries thereof is subject to Civil Service Law, section 101; appointments to fill the positions are to be by the village mayor with the approval of the board of trustees. Except under unusual circumstances, appointment of Special Legal Counsel and Special Counsel to all other boards, instead of appointment of Village Attorney and Assistant Village Attorney, is to be made by the mayor with the approval of the Board of Trustees. 1974 NY Ops Atty Gen Aug 5 (informal).

63. Animal control

The authority conferred upon a village board of trustees to regulate and restrain the keeping within the village and running at large of animals "and to" take all measures deemed expedient or desirable for the protection of (the) health of its inhabitants, the protection of their property" is sufficient to enable the board to prohibit new swine or milk farms within the village. 1959 NY Ops Atty Gen Apr. 9 (informal).

Although villages have control over keeping of animals within their boundaries and over animals in their streets, they have no authority to appoint village dog wardens except in certain counties, as specified in § 119 of the Agriculture and Markets Law. 1961 NY Ops Atty Gen Apr 17.

64. Drainage and flood control

A town may clean and deepen a stream for flood control purposes flowing within a village in a town, as well as that portion of the stream located in the town outside the village. 1955 NY Ops Atty Gen 199 (informal).

A village has the duty to protect municipal property and the right to protect property within the village from damage by floods, and likewise the right to compel removal of health hazards. 1963 NY Ops Atty Gen Nov 13.

A village may construct and maintain surface water drainage ditch located outside its limits. 1964 NY Ops Atty Gen May 15.

A village may purchase and install a sluice pipe on and over the property of a private owner for the purpose of arresting and preventing damage to his property resulting from an overflow of the village reservoir. 1966 NY Ops Atty Gen July 22.

Under the common law, a village, as an upstream riparian owner, may not divert the flow of flood water from a stream in such manner as to unreasonably increase the flow of another stream without subjecting itself to legal action by a downstream owner of the stream in its original channel or the downstream owners on the new receiving waters. However, former Conservation Law, § 429-j might form the basis for a declaratory judgment against affected riparian owners or as a defense to an action by such owners if, as a matter of fact, it can be established that the diversion is "a harmless interference". 1968 NY Ops Atty Gen June 18.

A village flood control project, whether undertaken by the village alone, or in participation with a federal program of flood control, is not subject to permissive referendum. However, the method of financing same may be subject to such referendum. 1970 NY Ops Atty Gen July 21.

65. Enactment of curfew ordinance

While it is believed a village may enact a so-called "curfew ordinance" there is grave doubt that such an ordinance may impose a penalty or punishment on the parents of minor violators thereof. 1954 NY Ops Atty Gen 63 (informal). Same effect, 1961 NY Ops Atty Gen Mar 21.

A village may enact a constitutionally valid "curfew ordinance" if the necessary safeguards against arbitrary invasion of personal liberties are incorporated therein. 1967 NY Ops Atty Gen Oct 16.

66. Nuisances and safety hazards

Enforcement of responsibility for affording protection to public from hazards to their safety, security and welfare, resulting from exposed banks of a private hydraulic canal is generally a matter of local concern and Village of Herkimer is vested with adequate authority to accomplish this purpose. 1946 NY Ops Atty Gen Dec. 12.

Village may not adopt ordinance inconsistent with safety rules adopted by Public Service Commission governing gas corporations engaged in transmission or distribution of gas. 1955 NY Ops Atty Gen 56 (informal).

67. Official newspaper for publication of notices

A village board may not designate, as the official village newspaper, a paper for which no charge is made to the public. 1957 NY Ops Atty Gen May 14 (informal).

A Village board of trustees may authorize the printing, publication and distribution of the Village assessment roll and provide for payment of the cost thereof. However, the Mayor of a Village, acting alone, may not do so. Copies of the assessment roll may be mailed or delivered together with tax bills provided that the Village has adopted a local law authorizing same. 1970 NY Ops Atty Gen July 13.

It is not required that a village board of trustees designate any newspaper as an official newspaper of the village. 1971 NY Ops Atty Gen June 28.

The place of publication of a newspaper is the place where it is first issued to be delivered or sent by mail, or otherwise, to its subscribers. The publication occurs at the place of entry of the newspaper in the post office as second class matter. 1972 NY Ops Atty Gen June 29.

68. Recreational activities

A village Board of Trustees may authorize construction and operation of a skating rink or the licensing of one operated by a private individual or concern. 1963 NY Ops Atty Gen Jan 3.

The Board of Trustees of the Village of Depew is prohibited from donating a sum of money to a Little League organization to help defray its expenses in conducting Little League baseball and football programs. 1968 NY Ops Atty Gen March 15.

69. Repair or removal of unsafe buildings

A village board may provide for removal or repair of buildings in business, industrial or residential sections that are dangerous or unsafe, and may enact such ordinances as may be deemed necessary for protection of property or life from fire or health hazards. 1962 NY Ops Atty Gen Aug 16.

Inspection of buildings thought to be dangerous or unsafe to the public in the event entry is refused, must be by warrant. 1967 NY Ops Atty Gen Oct 4.

70. Lighting systems

Where a village operates a municipal lighting system, the granting of a franchise for the purpose of furnishing natural gas to residents of the village result in competition with the municipal service, subjecting such franchise to a permissive referendum. 1962 NY Ops Atty Gen Jan 30.

71. Waste disposal

72. —Village dump

It is not believed that a village may lease lands outside the corporate limits of the village for use as a village dump without the consent of the town board. 1956 NY Ops Atty Gen July 19 (informal).

73. Water supply and water commissioners

In a village having no separate board of water commissioners, the board of trustees may establish such a board in accordance with the procedure set out in former § 63. 1955 NY Ops Atty Gen 178 (informal).

IV. Under Former § 332-a

74. In general

A village may properly enter into a contract with a parking meter manufacturer whereby meters are installed in the village under an arrangement whereby the costs thereof will be paid from the proceeds of the meters. 1954 NY Ops Atty Gen 79 (informal).

A village is not liable under a public works contract in excess of $2500 let contrary to the law requiring advertisement for competitive bids. 1967 NY Ops Atty Gen Oct 18.

The Board of Trustees of the Village of New York Mills may take a reasonable time after receiving bids before awarding a contract to purchase a new fire truck. 1973 NY Ops Atty Gen Mar 5.

V. Under Former § 333

75. In general

Village is not liable upon contract under which work to be done is not for village purpose. 1911 N.Y. Op. Att'y Gen. No. 340.

A village is not liable under a public works contract in excess of $2500 let contrary to the law requiring advertisement for competitive bids. 1967 NY Ops Atty Gen Oct 18.

§ 5-500. Definitions

For the purposes of this article the following terms shall be defined as follows:

1. "Administrative unit" shall mean an office, department, division, bureau, board, commission or other agency or specific activity of village government.

2. "Budget officer" shall mean the mayor or, in a village which has adopted the village manager plan, the village manager. The mayor or village manager, as the case may be, may designate any other village officer or employee to be budget officer, to serve at his pleasure.

3. "Character of expenditure" shall mean the classification of an expenditure as to periods of benefit as follows: a. current expenses, b. debt retirement or c. capital projects.

4. "Fiscal year" shall mean the period commencing on the first day of June in one calendar year and ending on the thirty-first day of May in the following calendar year, unless the board of trustees shall have established a different fiscal year pursuant to the provisions of former section one hundred seventeen of the village law as enacted by section fourteen of chapter eight hundred nine of the laws of nineteen hundred fifty-four or pursuant to section 5-510 of this article or section 17-1729 of article seventeen.

5. "Fund" shall mean a group of accounts set aside for the purpose of accounting for moneys or other resources of general functions or specific activities of water supply, capital projects or other activities of a village in accordance with a system of accounts.

6. "System of accounts" shall mean a system prescribed by the state comptroller. In the case of water utilities it shall also mean a system recommended by the public service commission or a system generally recognized as a national standard and provided either such alternate system has been approved by the state comptroller following receipt of an application and a certified copy of a resolution adopted by the board of trustees of a village authorizing the maintenance of such alternate accounting records for a water utility.

7. "Object of expenditure" shall mean the classification of an expenditure as to types of articles purchased or services rendered.

8. "Unappropriated unreserved fund balance" shall mean the difference between the total assets for a fund and the total liabilities, deferred revenues, encumbered appropriations, amounts appropriated for the ensuing fiscal year's budget, and amounts reserved for stated purposes pursuant to law, including reserve funds established pursuant to the general municipal law for the fund, as determined through application of the system of accounts prescribed by the state comptroller pursuant to section thirty-six of the general municipal law.

Jurisprudences:

27 NY Jur 2d Counties, Towns, and Municipal Corporations §§ 1545, 1577.

§ 5-506. Form and content of tentative budget

1. The tentative budget shall consist of the following schedules and statements:

a. A schedule of appropriations for all expenses authorized or required by law, other than expenses of operation of a municipal electric, gas or steam utility service, or a water utility for which an annual estimate is not filed pursuant to subdivision five of section 5-502 of this article, and also for all expenditures to be financed from special assessments and proceeds of obligations authorized by the local finance law. The appropriations shown on such schedule shall be classified by funds, administrative units, character and object of expenditure and shall be so arranged as to show in parallel columns the following comparative information:

(1) Expenditures for the last completed fiscal year;

(2) Appropriations for the current fiscal year reflecting supplemental appropriations to a date not more than forty-five days prior to the filing of the tentative budget with the village clerk; and

(3) The budget officer's recommended appropriations for the ensuing fiscal year. Such schedule may contain an amount recommended as necessary to be appropriated for contingencies, which amount shall not exceed ten per centum of the total of other appropriations excluding debt service and judgments. A statement of the amount recommended to be appropriated for a reserve for uncollected taxes may also be included, which amount shall be not less than the principal amount of taxes levied by the board of trustees for the last completed fiscal year and remaining uncollected at the end of such year, including the amount of such taxes sold to the village at tax sale and unredeemed at the end of such last completed fiscal year.

b. A schedule of estimated revenues to be received by the village during the ensuing fiscal year other than real estate taxes to be levied as stated in paragraph e of subdivision one of this section, income from operations of a municipal electric, gas or steam utility service or a water utility for which an annual estimate is not filed, pursuant to subdivision five of section 5-502 of this article, proceeds of special assessments for capital projects and proceeds of obligations authorized by the local finance law. The estimated revenues shown on such schedule shall be classified by funds and itemized as to sources and shall be so arranged as to show in parallel columns the following comparative information:

(1) revenues for the last completed fiscal year;

(2) estimated revenues for the current fiscal year reflecting modifications to a date not more than forth-five days prior to the filing of the tentative budget with the village clerk; and

(3) the budget officer's estimate of revenues for the ensuing fiscal year.

c. A schedule of fund balances estimated to be on hand at the close of the current fiscal year, classified by funds, together with a breakdown of such fund balance estimated for encumbrances, amounts appropriated for the ensuing fiscal year's budget, amounts reserved for stated purposes pursuant to law, including reserve funds established pursuant to the general municipal law, and the remaining unappropriated unreserved fund balance, provided that the remaining estimated unappropriated unreserved fund balance for each fund shall not exceed a reasonable amount, consistent with prudent budgeting practices, necessary to ensure the orderly operation of village government and the continued provision of services, taking into account factors including, but not limited to, the size of the fund, cash flows, the certainty with which the amounts of revenues and expenditures can be estimated, and the village's experience in prior fiscal years. Such schedule shall not include fund balance of any fund established as the result of issuance and sale of obligations pursuant to the provisions of the local finance law.

d. A schedule of each special reserve fund showing for each such fund the purpose for which established and by parallel columns the amount therein as of a date not more than forty-five days prior to the filing of the tentative budget, and the amount, if any, recommended to be spent therefrom to meet appropriations for the ensuing fiscal year. A requirement of law that an expenditure from any such reserve fund be subject to a permissive or mandatory referendum shall not prevent the inclusion of a recommendation for such expenditure in the tentative budget.

e. A schedule showing the computation of the amount to be levied on real estate which amount shall be equal to the difference between the total of all recommended appropriations as shown in the schedule required by paragraph a of subdivision one of this section and the total of estimates shown in the schedules required by paragraph [paragraphs]* b through d of subdivision one of this section. Such schedule shall be so arranged as to show such recommendations and estimates by funds in parallel columns.

f. A schedule of wages and salaries to be paid which shall be subdivided by administrative units and shall show in parallel columns, for each office or position of employment, the title, the number of persons in the title, the recommended rate of compensation for the title and the total recommended appropriation for the title.

g. A statement of the estimated income and proposed expenditures of a municipal electric, gas or steam utility service or a water utility for which an annual estimate is not filed, pursuant to subdivision five of section 5-502 of this article which shall be in the form and detail prescribed in subdivision four of section 5-502 of this article.

2. The tentative budget shall include any other data which the board of trustees may, by resolution, require or which the budget officer shall deem advisable.

§ 5-508. Adoption of budget

1. The village clerk shall present the tentative budget to the board of trustees at a regular or special meeting to be held on or before the thirty-first day of March or such other date as may be applicable pursuant to section 5-510 of this article or section 17-1729 of article seventeen. At such meeting the board of trustees shall review the tentative budget and make such changes, alterations and revisions as it shall consider advisable, provided that:

a. The statement of the amount estimated for any object or purpose for which an appropriation is required to be made by law shall not be reduced below the minimum so required.

b. The board of trustees shall enter in its minutes a statement of the basis for any increase in or addition to any statement of estimated revenues.

2. If the board of trustees shall make any changes in the tentative budget, such adjustments shall be made which are necessary so that the total estimated revenues, appropriated fund balance and appropriated reserves together with the amount of taxes to be levied shall equal the total estimated expenditures.

3. A public hearing shall be held upon the tentative budget, as changed, altered or revised, on or before the fifteenth day of April or such other date as may be applicable pursuant to section 5-510 of this article or section 17-1729 of article seventeen. Notice of such public hearing shall be published at least once in the official newspaper and in such other newspapers and for such other additional times as the board of trustees, by resolution, may direct. At least five days shall elapse between the date of the first publication of such notice in the official newspaper and the date specified for the hearing. The notice of hearing shall state the time when and place where such public hearing will be held, the purpose thereof and that a copy of the tentative budget is available at the office of the village clerk where it may be inspected by any interested person during office hours. The notice shall also state the compensation proposed to be paid to each member of the board of trustees. The hearing may be adjourned from day to day but not beyond the twentieth day of April or such other date as may be applicable pursuant to section 5-510 of this article or section 17-1729 of article seventeen.

4. After completion of the public hearing, the board of trustees may further change, alter and revise the tentative budget, subject, however, to the conditions and restrictions imposed by subdivision one of this section. Such budget, as so revised, shall be adopted by resolution not later than the first day of May, or such other date as may be applicable pursuant to section 5-510 of this article or section 17-1729 of article seventeen and such adoption of appropriations and the means of financing the same shall be indicated in each schedule and schedule in a column parallel to those required by section 5-506 of this article. Unless the resolution specifically sets forth the appropriations in greater detail, the appropriations shall be deemed to have been made for each administrative unit by the following objects of expenditure: personal services, equipment, other expenses and special objects of expenditure as may be prescribed in a uniform system of accounts by the state comptroller. Upon adoption of the resolution required by this section the amounts proposed to be appropriated shall thereupon be appropriated and the wages and salaries shown in the schedule thereof shall be fixed at the amounts shown therein. In the event that the board of trustees shall fail to adopt a budget on or before the first day of May or such other date as may be applicable pursuant to section 5-510 of this article or section 17-1729 of article seventeen, the tentative budget, with such changes, alterations and revisions as shall have been made by resolution of the board of trustees, shall constitute the budget for the ensuing fiscal year.

Analysis

1. In general
2. Under former § 6-608

1. In general

In a taxpayer's Article 78 proceeding to enjoin the implementation of a village budget, the trial court would refuse to declare the budget allegedly adopted by the village board of trustees null and void on the asserted ground that the budget was a revision of a tentative budget filed with the village clerk and submitted for comment at a public hearing, and had been adopted without any further public hearing, since, under Vill Law § 5-508(4), the board of trustees was permitted to change, alter, and revise the tentative budget after the hearing without any further hearing being required prior to such revision, and since the taxpayer failed to show that the mayor or board of trustees had engaged in unlawful or irregular conduct, that the mayor, by precluding any speakers from commenting on the revised budget and then demanding a vote on the budget, had departed from any rule of procedure established by the board of trustees, or that the actions by the mayor and the board of trustees were otherwise arbitrary, capricious, or unreasonable, had resulted from improper conduct, or were based upon an erroneous conception of a rule of law. Puka v Greco, 119 Misc. 2d 696, 464 N.Y.S.2d 349, 1983 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3580 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1983), aff'd, 104 A.D.2d 362, 479 N.Y.S.2d 150, 1984 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 19832 (N.Y. The salaries of village elective officers may be increased during their terms of office only by adoption of local laws subject to permissive referenda. 1974 Ops St Compt File #104.

The "compensation" proposed to be paid to members of a village board of trustees which must be published, pursuant to Village Law § 5-508, in the notice of public hearing on the tentative budget refers only to the salary, or fixed, periodic cash consideration, proposed to be paid, exclusive of the cost or value of fringe benefits. 1990 Op St Compt 90-44.

Salary appropriated for position of acting village justice, which position was never filled, cannot be paid to village justice in addition to village justice's own salary; however, salary of village justice may be increased during village justice's term, but not as retroactive compensation for services already performed. Ops St Compt 88-59.

2. Under former § 6-608

Village should include in its budget the estimated revenues to be received by its several departments. 1946 Ops St Compt 193.

Annual budget prepared and adopted pursuant to former § 111 of Village Law. 1947 Ops St Compt 74.

Where the fifteenth day of April falls on a Sunday, the public hearing on the tentative budget may be held on the following Monday. 1956 Ops St Compt 129.

A village board may not restrict participation at a public hearing on the village budget to only taxpayers of the village. 1965 Ops St Compt File #343.

The village board may fix salaries at an amount less than that called for in the preliminary budget. 1968 Ops St Compt File #778.

A village may not prorate the annual salaries of the mayor and trustees on a monthly basis and withhold payment of such prorated amounts for failure to attend a regular monthly meeting of the board of trustees. 1978 Op St Compt File #993.

The salary of a village assessor may be increased during the fiscal year to compensate him for his new responsibility of assessing property at 100 percent assessment pursuant to court order. 1979 Op St Compt File #413.

The village board of trustees may adopt a resolution to increase the salary of the village attorney during the fiscal year. 1979 Op St Compt File #615.

(1) A village board of trustees may amend the tentative budget after it has been finally adopted but prior to publication of notice of the hearing on the budget. 1979 Op St Compt File #741.

(2) Notice of hearing on the tentative budget should state the compensation proposed to be paid to the mayor and the trustees, however, the effect of failure to do so is unclear. 1979 Op St Compt File #741.

When the salary of an elective village officer is fixed by inclusion in the budget rather than by local law, it need not be preceded by a public hearing nor is there a permissive referendum requirement. 1980 Op St Compt File #312.

A village does not have to use a local law to increase the salary of a village justice during his term of office. 1981 Op St Compt File #81-86.

Where a village has so designated two official newspapers, notice for the public hearing on the village budget must be published in both newspapers. 1982 Op St Compt File #82-173.

27 NY Jur 2d Counties, Towns, and Municipal Corporations § 1577.

§ 5-520. General budgetary controls

1. A separate account shall be kept for each appropriation. Each such account shall show the amount appropriated, the several amounts expended therefrom [therefrom][*] and the unexpended balance.

2. No expenditure shall be made, nor shall any contract which in any manner involves the expenditure of money or the incurring of any pecuniary liability be entered into, unless an amount has been appropriated for the particular purpose and is available therefor or has been authorized to be borrowed pursuant to the local finance law. Nothing in this subdivision shall prevent the making of a contract or lease for a term exceeding one year when authorized by law nor shall anything in this subdivision require a village which has entered into a contract or lease for a term exceeding one year to pay during the current fiscal year any amounts larger than those which become due and owing during that year under the terms of such lease or contract.

3. Whenever during a fiscal year it shall appear probable to the budget officer that the moneys available for such year will be insufficient to meet the amounts appropriated, he shall forthwith notify the board of trustees of such fact, stating the probable amount of such deficiency. The budget officer may include his recommendations as to the action which should be taken. The board of trustees may reduce any appropriation or appropriations by resolution so as to prevent the making of expenditures in excess of moneys available. An appropriation shall not be reduced below the minimum amount required by law to be appropriated, nor shall an appropriation be reduced by more than the balance therein less outstanding and unpaid claims chargeable to such appropriation.

4. The board of trustees, during a fiscal year, by resolution, may make additional appropriations or increase existing appropriations. Moneys therefor may be provided by transfer from the unexpended balance of an appropriation, from the appropriation for contingencies, from unappropriated unreserved fund balance, or unanticipated revenues within a fund, or by borrowing pursuant to the local finance law. For the purposes of this subdivision, unappropriated unreserved fund balance or unanticipated revenues shall be available for transfer only to the extent that the total of all revenues of such fund recognized or reasonably expected to be recognized in the current fiscal year, including unappropriated unreserved fund balance, exceeds the total of all revenues of such fund as estimated in the budget, including appropriated fund balance.

5. Notwithstanding the provisions of subdivision four of this section, grants in aid from the state and federal governments, other gifts which are required to be expended for particular objects or purposes, and insurance proceeds for the loss, theft, damage or destruction of real or personal property, when proposed to be used or applied to repair or replace such property, may be appropriated by resolution of the board of trustees at any time for such objects and purposes.

In an engineer's action against a village, alleging that the village failed to pay the engineer's claim for the design and planning of the village's sewage treatment facility, judgment for the engineer was proper where the village entered into an agreement with the engineer for the design and planning of the facility after the state health department ordered the village to submit plans for the facility, and where the village waived the affirmative defense of its failure to comply with Vill Law § 5-520(2) by its failure to plead this defense. Vrooman v Middleville, 91 A.D.2d 833, 458 N.Y.S.2d 424, 1982 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 19739 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1982), app. denied, 58 N.Y.2d 610, 462 N.Y.S.2d 1028, 449 N.E.2d 427, 1983 N.Y. LEXIS 3857 (N.Y. 1983).

In absence of any resolution by village board of trustees as to how village intended to pay or cost of using county sewage treatment facility, court properly determined that village was liable under theory of implied contract for damages in quantum meruit. Nassau County v Incorporated Village of Roslyn, 218 A.D.2d 688, 631 N.Y.S.2d 42, 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8714 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1995).

Village was not entitled to summary judgment on an action alleging breach of contract, because it was not entirely clear that a contract for demolition of a hotel violated N.Y. Village Law § 5-520, since it was not fully established what funds were available for that project, and the action was not time-barred pursuant to N.Y. C.P.L.R. 9802, as the action was brought within one year of the accrual of the cause of action. Bianchi Indus. Servs., LLC v Village of Malone, 41 A.D.3d 999, 838 N.Y.S.2d 240, 2007 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7343 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2007).

A village from which an engineering firm sought to recover for services rendered in planning a sewage treatment system could not avoid its contractual liability to the firm by interposing Vill Law § 5-520(2), which prohibited a village's entering into a contract unless the village had appropriated funds or authorized borrowing for the particular purposes of the contract, where the village's answer had not pled such statute as an affirmative defense and where the village had passed a resolution authorizing the issuance of bonds for construction to which the firm's services had been preliminary; even if the contract were void on the basis of such statute, the firm could recover under the doctrine of quantum meruit since the firm had acted in good faith, rendered substantial services to the village and provided the village with an approved set of plans for the construction of sewers; nor was Env Conser L § 17-1901, which permitted any municipality to select a person or firm to perform necessary consulting engineering services with respect to a pure water program so long as the Commissioner of Health was a party to any contract between the municipality and the person or firm, a bar to the firm's action where the commissioner had directed the village to submit to the State Department of Health plans for a sewage treatment system, where the village's contract with the firm required the firm to formulate such plans, and where the commissioner had later approved the design and plans prepared by the firm. Vrooman v Middleville, 106 Misc. 2d 945, 436 N.Y.S.2d 662, 1981 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2035 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1981), aff'd, 91 A.D.2d 833, 458 N.Y.S.2d 424, 1982 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 19739 (N.Y. A village justice cannot enter into a contract on behalf of the village for computer services in connection with the issuance of traffic tickets. 1973 Ops St Compt File #880.

Salary appropriated for position of acting village justice, which position was never filled, cannot be paid to village justice in addition to village justice's own salary; however, salary of village justice may be increased during village justice's term, but not as retroactive compensation for services already performed. Ops St Compt 88-59.

In village which has established office of village auditor, village board of trustees may not, by resolution or local law, authorize auditor to audit and order paid only certain claims; village board of trustees may not delegate its authority to make budget transfers between appropriations; village board of trustees may permit claims against village to be processed without either certification or verification by oath of claimant. Ops St Comp 90-9.

1. In general

Subdivision 2 of former § 6-630 makes exclusive application of the Local Finance Law to village financing abundantly clear. Marine Midland Trust Co. v Waverly, 42 Misc. 2d 704, 248 N.Y.S.2d 729, 1963 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1722 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1963), aff'd, 21 A.D.2d 753, 251 N.Y.S.2d 937, 1964 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5365 (N.Y. Proceeds from sale of village realty should be paid into village general fund. 1953 Ops St Compt 373.

The treasurer has no power to increase or decrease appropriations; such power is vested solely in the village board. 1968 Ops St Compt File #778.

2. Appropriations for purposes not in budget

If village budget made no provision for police officer and police justice, money may be secured from contingent fund, profits of municipal public utility, or notes. 1950 Ops St Compt File 238.

If a village has unappropriated cash surplus or unanticipated revenues, it may use such moneys to make a permanent street improvement although no appropriation therefor was made in the annual budget. 1955 Ops St Compt 265.

A village may appropriate money for a purpose which was not included in the village budget and provide the moneys required by transfer from an unexpended balance, the contingency item, unappropriated cash surplus, unanticipated revenues or by borrowing pursuant to the Local Finance Law. 1955 Ops St Compt 632.

3. Transfer of village funds

By resolution of the board of trustees, the purchase of land for a parking place for vehicles may be authorized; a portion of profits resulting from operation of electric public utility service of Freeport may be transferred to another appropriate village fund, theretofore appropriated for a specific and definite purpose in the fiscal year in question; and payment for such land may be made from such other village fund. 1945 Ops St Compt 602.

Discussion of transfer of village moneys. 1947 Ops St Compt 93; 1947 Ops St Compt 64; 1947 Ops St Compt 451; 1946 Ops St Compt 543.

Moneys of the electric fund may not be transferred to the general fund where there are outstanding obligations of the village issued on account of the electric fund. After September 1, 1955, unappropriated cash surplus, unanticipated revenues and unexpended balances of appropriations may be transferred. 1955 Ops St Compt 263.

Where a village has underestimated in the budget the amount of a probable unexpended balance at the end of the fiscal year, the excess may be used to increase an appropriation only to the extent that actual revenues received exceed the total revenues of the particular fund as estimated in the budget. 1955 Ops St Compt 483.

A village which has a paid fire department may employ temporary firemen, for services of less than one month's duration, for "important and urgent" reasons. The board of trustees may transfer moneys from the contingent fund to pay such temporary firemen, if the fire department budget is inadequate. 1960 Ops St Compt 325.

Village board may make transfers from unappropriated cash surplus, including moneys accumulated in an unauthorized reserve fund. 1964 Ops St Compt File #857.

Money may be transferred from fund to fund where a true surplus as defined by Village Law, former § 6-630(4) exists. Such transfer must be made by the village board. 1968 Ops St Compt File #778.

Where a true surplus exists in the village water department fund, the village board may, by resolution, transfer the surplus to the sewer fund. 1968 Ops St Compt File #829.

4. Expenses of officers and employees

Village may not reimburse policeman for loss of private car while engaged in performance of his duties. 1954 Ops St Compt 29.

Village officer may not be compensated for time lost attending meeting of PSC. 1954 Ops St Compt 29.

Village funds may be used to provide telephone service in homes of village police officers where telephones are used for official business only. 1954 Ops St Compt 212.

Up until September 1, 1955, a village clerk-treasurer may be reimbursed for travel expenses and mileage in taking village moneys to a bank in another city, if so authorized by the board of trustees. On and after September 1, 1955, prior authorization is not necessary. 1955 Ops St Compt 425.

5. Waterworks and equipment

A contract with an engineer for preparation of plans and supervision of construction of a water works for seven per cent of the cost of construction if the plan went through was a contract involving an expenditure within the meaning of former § 6-630. Potts v Haverstraw, 79 F.2d 102, 1935 U.S. App. LEXIS 4028 (2d Cir. N.Y. 1935).

An appropriation for miscellaneous expenses for the year was insufficient to authorize a contract with an engineer for supervision of construction of a water works for seven per cent of the cost. Potts v Haverstraw, 79 F.2d 102, 1935 U.S. App. LEXIS 4028 (2d Cir. N.Y. 1935).

On appeal from judgment dismissing amended complaint upon motion, in action in contract by civil engineer against village for services in construction of waterworks, defense that money for the project had not been provided as required by former § 6-630 cannot be considered, for defendant must plead it in confession and avoidance. Potts v Haverstraw, 93 F.2d 506, 1937 U.S. App. LEXIS 2848 (2d Cir. N.Y. 1937).

Pending the issuance of bonds or capital notes, a village may not use general fund moneys temporarily to pay for water meters delivered to the village. 1947 Ops St Compt 276.

Where change orders and extras raise total cost of waterworks construction above amount which was appropriated and which was approved by referendum, village has no authority to pay claim for the additional amount in the absence of litigation of a special act of the Legislature. 1965 Ops St Compt File #340.

6. Miscellaneous

Former § 6-630 did not prohibit the purchase of equipment for a lighting system under a conditional sales contract to be paid from the revenues of the system, for money is "otherwise available" within the meaning of such section where payment is to be made from specific revenues. Kelly v Merry, 262 N.Y. 151, 186 N.E. 425, 262 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 151, 1933 N.Y. LEXIS 928 (N.Y. 1933).

The board of trustees may by resolution make an appropriation for the purpose of paying an attorney other than the village attorney employed to perform special service. Farmingdale v Karp, 54 Misc. 2d 714, 283 N.Y.S.2d 267, 1967 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1424 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1967).

Fire insurance money received by village as a result of destruction of village hall by fire should be placed in village general fund and may thereafter be expended for purchase of highway equipment provided there appears a budgetary item for this purpose in current budget. 1947 Ops St Compt 481.

For a discussion on the use of fire insurance proceeds where bonds issued to finance purchase of building destroyed by fire remain outstanding, see 1953 Ops St Compt 365, see former § 101-c.

Real property for village public library purposes should be acquired jointly by village and library trustees as tenants in common where village furnishes only a portion of the purchase price, the balance to be paid from a bequest to the library trustees. Moneys in contingent fund may be appropriated to pay village share of purchase price, where no item for this purpose was included in the current budget. 1953 Ops St Compt 142.

Except for an unforeseen emergency, a village may not pay bills incurred in a prior fiscal year. 1957 Ops St Compt 155.

A village may legally reimburse an individual for the expense of constructing water and sewer lines in a street dedicated to the village as a street. A claim for such reimbursement, based on the dedication agreement, properly certified or verified, must be presented for audit. The resolution authorizing the village to enter into the agreement for reimbursement is subject to permissive referendum. 1960 Ops St Compt 274.

The planning board of a village is not authorized to incur obligations for engineering service without an appropriation or issuance of obligations pursuant to the local Finance Law. 1961 Ops St Compt 275.

Even though additional moneys required under an employer-employee agreement are not available in the current budget, a village board may enter into the agreement with a recognized employee organization during the current fiscal year and such agreement may be effective during all or part of such year, so long as, prior to the closing of the agreement, the board makes the required additional appropriations. 1968 Ops St Compt File #565.

A village through the board of police commissioners may appoint an individual to the rank of captain in the village police force. The village board may obtain money to pay a salary for the newly created rank of captain and may increase the salary of the chief of police by obtaining money from an unexpended balance, from the contingency fund, from a true surplus or by borrowing pursuant to the Local Finance Law. 1968 Ops St Compt File #783.

A village may acquire land outside of its corporate limits for the purpose of preventing contamination of the village water supply, and may finance the purchase thereof with surplus water fund moneys. 1964 Ops St Compt File #1067.

Village may join State Health Plan during fiscal year although annual budget contained no provision for expense of participating. 1964 Ops St Compt File #1097.

§ 5-524. Audit and payment of claims

1. The term "claim", as used in this section, shall include all bills, accounts and demands for the payment of money, of whatever nature, asserted against the village.

2. In a village which has not established the office of auditor, the board of trustees shall audit all claims against the village, except that it may, by resolution, authorize and empower a separate board of commissioners, a board possessing the powers of two more such boards or another board possessing like powers to audit and order paid all claims incurred by such board and payable out of the funds within its jurisdiction.

3. In a village which has established the office of auditor, the auditor shall audit and order paid all claims against the village. Such order shall be in the form prescribed in this chapter for similar orders of the village clerk. The auditor shall transmit such order directly to the village treasurer and shall retain a duplicate thereof in his office.

4. Except as hereinafter provided, no claim shall be ordered paid unless such claim is in writing and itemized and approved by the officer or employee whose action gave rise or origin to the claim. The board of trustees may determine, by resolution, that claims shall be certified or verified by oath of the claimant or his duly authorized agent.

5. Fixed salaries, debt service, amounts becoming due upon lawful contracts for periods exceeding one year and the compensation for services of employees or officers regularly engaged by the village at agreed wages by the hour, day, week, month or year may be paid without prior audit. All payrolls, or other claims for compensation, for personal services rendered to the village by any person other than an elective village officer shall be certified by the village officer or employee having direct supervision of the claimant to the effect that such services indicated on such payroll or claim were actually performed by the person or persons mentioned therein. If the rules of the state civil service commission, the county civil service commission or the county personnel officer, as the case may be, have been extended to apply to any such employees or officers, no claim for compensation shall be paid unless the payroll or claim shall have been certified by such commission or personnel officer to the effect that the appointment or employment of such officers and employees has been made in accordance with the civil service law and rules.

6. The board of trustees may be resolution authorize payment in advance of audit of claims for public utility services, postage, freight and express charges. All such claims shall be presented at the next regular meeting for audit, and the claimant and the officer incurring or approving the same shall be jointly and severally liable for any amount disallowed by the board of trustees.

As used in this subdivision, the term public utility services shall mean electric, gas, water, sewer and telephone services.

7. The actual and necessary expenses of all officers, employees, and, when authorized by the board of trustees, the actual and necessary expenses of the volunteer chief and assistant volunteer chiefs of the village fire department incurred in the performance of their official duties shall be a village charge. For the purposes of this subdivision "actual and necessary expenses", as it applies to a volunteer chief or assistant volunteer chief of the village fire department, means only such expenses incurred in the performance of their extra official duties as volunteer chief or assistant volunteer chief. The board of trustees of any village, in lieu of auditing and allowing the claim of a village officer, employee, or volunteer chief and assistant volunteer chiefs of the village fire department for actual and necessary expenses for travel, may determine by resolution to allow and pay such officer, employee, or volunteer chief and assistant volunteer chiefs of the village fire department a reasonable mileage allowance for use of his own automobile for each mile actually and necessarily traveled by him in the performance of the duties of his office or position, or in attending a convention, conference or school pursuant to section seventy-seven-b of the general municipal law. The actual and necessary expenses incurred by a police justice who does not also hold the office of town justice in attending a training school for justices provided by the education department or given within his county by the county magistrate's association shall be a charge against the village of which he is police justice. No such person, however, shall be allowed such expenses for attending a regional school unless his village shall be included within the area of such region as established by the education department.

8. Notwithstanding the provisions of subdivisions two, three and four of this section or of any other law, any village by vote of its board of trustees may enter into a mutual aid agreement with other villages or political subdivisions of the state, pursuant to the provisions of the New York state defense emergency act, and all acts amendatory thereof and supplemental thereto, for the purpose of civil defense as defined in said act and may raise money by tax to defray the expense of its participation in such mutual aid agreement. Such villages may also enter into a financial agreement or arrangement with such other participating villages or political subdivisions of the state, provided, however, that:

a. the treasurer of one such participating village shall be designated as treasurer of a joint mutual aid or civil defense fund;

b. each of such participating villages may from time to time advance and pay to such mutual aid or civil defense fund its proportionate share of an amount of money agreed upon by all such participating villages for the purpose of defraying the necessary and proper expenses of mutual civil defense aid;

c. the treasurer of such joint fund as herein provided shall make necessary and proper disbursements from said fund and shall account monthly to each village for such disbursements.

All moneys advanced or otherwise disbursed by each such village to carry out the provisions of this subdivision, shall be only from moneys appropriated for such purposes and included in the annual budget of said village.

9. Any officer of the village who shall knowingly audit, order paid or pay any claim contrary to the provisions of this section shall be guilty of a misdemeanor.

1. In general

Village can refund special franchise taxes levied against a cablevision corporation for past 2 fiscal years in amount equal to special franchise fees paid to village prior to levy of taxes, where corporation has received no credit for such fees against taxes as required by CLS Real Property Law § 626. 1985 Op St Compt No. 85-59.

Village board of trustees may not establish audit commission consisting of mayor and clerk-treasurer which would have authority to audit claims against village. 1987 Op St Compt No. 87-65.

A municipality may make a down payment on a fire truck where certain safeguards are taken to protect the municipality's interest. 1974 Ops St Compt File #1215.

In village which has established office of village auditor, village board of trustees may not, by resolution or local law, authorize auditor to audit and order paid only certain claims; village board of trustees may not delegate its authority to make budget transfers between appropriations; village board of trustees may permit claims against village to be processed without either certification or verification by oath of claimant. Ops St Comp 90-9.

2. Compensation of officers and employees

Municipal officers and employees are compensated by the payroll method. 1974 Ops St Compt File #1118.

Village board may, by resolution, fix compensation of members of village zoning board of appeals on either per diem or annual basis. 1986 Op St Compt No. 86-70.

Village trustee who is officer, employee and stockholder of construction corporation would have prohibited interest in any contract between corporation and village unless (a) his or her stock ownership amounts to less than 5 percent of outstanding stock and (b) is employee and officer of corporation, his or her duties do not involve procurement, preparation or performance of village contracts in his or her remuneration is not affected by such contract; there is no exception to conflict of interest provisions of CLS Gen Mun Art 18 for contracts entered into in emergency situations. 1988 Op St Compt No 88-23.

Compensation of appointive village officers and employees for services may be paid without prior audit by village board of trustees, upon certification of officer or employee having direct supervision, unless board determines to require such prior audit. Ops St Compt No. 89-33.

3. Payment for expenses of officers and employees

Where the same individual serves as an appointed town justice and as an elected village justice of a village within the town, expenses incurred by him in attending a training school for justices should be paid by the town. 1975 Ops St Compt File #1148.

In absence of pre-existing authority under state statute, local law, or collective bargaining agreement provision, village may not pay legal expenses incurred by village police officers in connection with criminal proceedings; village may not pay as moral or equitable obligation legal expenses of village police officers arising out of allegations of misconduct. 2000 Op St Compt No. 00-1.

4. Accrual of cause of action

Although contractor had initially stated to village that it would have no recourse but to bring legal action if it did not receive payment within ten days, where village had not audited the vouchers or work orders and had not officially rejected the claim, contractor's cause of action against village did not accrue for statute of limitations purposes until the village was informed that the contractor would commence an action against the village within 30 days; upon expiration of that period without approval or payment, the contractor's claims were constructively rejected and its cause of action accrued. Memphis Constr., Inc. v Moravia, 59 A.D.2d 646, 398 N.Y.S.2d 386, 1977 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13518 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1977).

Contractor's cause of action against village did not accrue until it possessed the legal right to be paid and to enforce the right to payment, which did not occur until the vouchers and work orders were audited and rejected by the village. Memphis Constr., Inc. v Moravia, 59 A.D.2d 646, 398 N.Y.S.2d 386, 1977 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13518 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1977).

Municipality may not forever frustrate potential causes of action against it simply by failing to audit submitted claims; facts of every such case will determine whether there came a time when claimant should have viewed his claim as having been constructively rejected thus giving rise to accrual of a cause of action. Memphis Constr., Inc. v Moravia, 59 A.D.2d 646, 398 N.Y.S.2d 386, 1977 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13518 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1977).

5. In general

The board of trustees may require verification rather than certification of claims by adopting a proper resolution therefor. 1956 Ops St Compt 216.

A village which contemplates establishment of the office of auditor may not limit his powers to audit of claims of a specified nature or size. 1962 Ops St Compt 411.

A village urban renewal agency which was established by special act of the legislature is not subject to former 128 of Village Law with respect to audit and payment of claims. 1965 Ops St Compt File #656.

Only the village treasurer need sign village payroll checks. 1967 Ops St Compt File #469.

Minutes of a village board must show the amounts allowed on bills and accounts audited by the board and the fund from which such amounts shall be paid. 1968 Ops St Compt File #600.

The minutes of the village board of trustees must show each individual claim audited and the fund from which it is to be paid. 1968 Ops St Compt File #778.

Only the village board audits and approves claims against the village. The board may form a committee to make recommendations regarding acceptance or rejection of claims. 1968 Ops St Compt File #778.

A village clerk may be appointed to the office of village auditor. 1968 Ops St Compt File #1042.

6. Claim form

The requirements as to form which a claim must satisfy before it may be audited by a village board of trustees apply regardless to the amount of the claim. The board of trustees should, by resolution, order the approved claims to be paid and such resolution must appear in the minutes. A majority of the members of the board of trustees must approve the resolution. 1955 Ops St Compt 644.

Suggested form for contract claim against village, see 1955 Ops St Compt File #7754.

A village must require a claim form to be executed by a seller in a contract of sale of real property to the village. 1957 Ops St Compt 338.

A village need not require a claim form to be executed by a claimant to whom an award has been granted in a final decree in a condemnation proceeding. 1957 Ops St Compt 338.

7. Compensation of officers and employees

A village treasurer should not pay a claim for overtime compensation of a village officer even though the claim has been audited and ordered paid by the village board of trustees. 1956 Ops St Compt 79.

A board of village trustees may not appoint and pay salary of a person as custodian of the village marina where he is already a full time member of the village police department. 1961 Ops St Compt 203.

A village may employ a tennis professional to operate its tennis courts and to give lessons thereon to village residents, as an independent contractor upon such terms and conditions as may be agreed upon. 1963 Ops St Compt File #387.

8. Payment of expenses of officers and employees

A village board may require receipts of actual expenditures to be submitted by volunteer firemen in order to receive reimbursement for expenses incurred in attending training schools and instruction courses. 1960 Ops St Compt 299.

While a village may, under certain circumstances, furnish meals for village officials and employees, it has no authority to furnish meals for state officials. 1961 Ops St Compt 95.

Expenses in connection with village employees taking a supervisory course in a community college would be a proper village charge. 1962 Ops St Compt 481.

A village may not pay the officers of the village fire department the amount of money budgeted for fire department purchases, so that such purchases may be made and paid for by such fire department. 1965 Ops St Compt File #190.

There is no authority whereby the expenses of village officers and employees, incurred in attending conventions, conferences and schools, may be paid from a petty cash fund. 1967 Ops St Compt File #335.

A claim for reimbursement by a village mayor who attended a conference should be detailed. Garage, miscellaneous expenses and entertainment expenses should not be reimbursed. 1967 Ops St Compt File #593.

A village treasurer may pay the educational expenses of a library employee taking courses related to the administration of the public library where such attendance is pursuant to an official request and authorization and thus part of her official duties. 1968 Ops St Compt File #985.

The expense actually and necessarily incurred by a village justice in taking his court fines to the bank is a village charge. Whether the use of a taxi for this purpose is necessary must be determined by the village board. 1969 Ops St Compt File #406.

9. Payments for use of car

Up until September 1, 1955, a village clerk-treasurer may be reimbursed for travel expenses and mileage in taking village moneys to a bank in another city, if so authorized by the board of trustees. On and after September 1, 1955, prior authorization is not necessary. 1955 Ops St Compt 425.

Where a village fixes a mileage rate for officers and employees for official travel a so-much-a-mile basis, the rate includes all actual and necessary expenses incurred in travel, including cost of tolls paid. 1961 Ops St Compt 22.

A village police chief, using his own car in village police work, may be paid necessary travel expense or a mileage allowance, if the Board of Trustees has first passed a resolution fixing such an allowance. 1961 Ops St Compt 68.

A village may purchase metal medallions to be placed on the private cars of the mayor and members of the board of trustees for the purpose of identifying such officers while on official business. 1967 Ops St Compt File #595.

A village may furnish an automobile for the official, but not the personal, use of the village police chief, and may authorize the official use of a privately owned vehicle with the payment of actual expenses or a mileage rate. A village-owned vehicle may not be used for personal purposes by the village police chief. 1967 Ops St Compt File #973.

A village may not authorize a periodic lump sum personal automobile allowance to a village officer to cover the cost of operating his own automobile in the performance of his official duties. 1969 Ops St Compt File #317.

A village clerk may be reimbursed for expenses incurred in returning from his vacation in Florida, at the request of the village board, because of the death of the mayor. 1969 Ops St Compt File #379.

A village trustee who is a commissioner in charge of a village department may be paid mileage when he uses his own car to get emergency supplies from a place outside of the village. 1969 Ops St Compt File #448.

A village board of trustees may not legally authorize village employees to obtain gasoline and oil for their personal cars, to be used in official business, and have same charged directly to the village. 1960 Ops St Compt 389.

10. Payment of other particular claims

The village must pay over the amount prescribed in a garnishee execution against a village employee's salary without any demand that the officer execute and sign a voucher for such amount as a condition precedent to payment. 1956 Ops St Compt 76.

Discussion in regard to the obligations of a village where water rents have been increased pursuant to an invalid ordinance. 1957 Ops St Compt 331.

A village may make quarterly advance payments under a fire protection contract. 1959 Ops St Compt 198.

A village may legally reimburse an individual for the expense of constructing water and sewer lines in a street dedicated to the village as a street. A claim for such reimbursement, based on the dedication agreement, properly certified or verified, must be presented for audit. The resolution authorizing the village to enter into the agreement for reimbursement is subject to permissive referendum. 1960 Ops St Compt 274.

There is no authority for a village to pay a claim of a physician for services rendered an injured person, notwithstanding the injury was sustained in a motor vehicle accident and the physician was summoned by a village police officer, nor is there any authority for a village to pay a similar claim for services rendered to the victim of a stabbing. 1961 Ops St Compt 395.

A village participating in a state health insurance plan for the benefit of its employees may not require a certified claim before paying its share of administration expenses. 1962 Ops St Compt 40.

Disbursements made by a village in course of operating a day camp which has been turned over to it as a gift are to be recorded in the same manner as other village expenditures. 1963 Ops St Compt File #324.

Village board may not make a deposit of public moneys with a water corporation, or contract to make periodic payments in the future for materials or services to be furnished at this time; or pay now for materials and services to be furnished later. 1965 Ops St Compt File #175.

11. Conflicts of interest

A law firm in which the mayor of a village is a partner may not represent the village, even though the firm will receive no compensation but only reimbursement for actual disbursements made. 1956 Ops St Compt 256.

A village treasurer and insurance broker is barred from sharing commissions received by another broker for placing village insurance. 1958 Ops St Compt 409.

The chief engineer of a village fire department may not lawfully sell equipment, materials or supplies to the village. 1960 Ops St Compt 231.

Since, under other provisions of the Village Law, the chief engineer of the fire department is under the direction and control of the Board of Fire Commissioners, who must approve his nomination, an employer-employee relationship exists, whether or not the chief engineer receives any pay, precluding him from lawfully selling equipment, materials, or supplies to the village. 1960 Ops St Compt 231.

A prohibited conflict of interest would exist if a village trustee should perform services for the village as an electrician and receive compensation therefor. 1967 Ops St Compt File #668.

A prohibited conflict of interest would occur if a village mayor should be hired as an independent contractor to work for the village. While no such conflict arises if he is employed by the village, his appointment to a position of employment by the board of trustees would be contrary to public policy. 1967 Ops St Compt File #1042.

A prohibited conflict of interest exists where a village trustee is employed by an engineering firm retained to perform services for the village when the trustee's duties, as an employee of the firm, involve performance of some part of the firm-village contract. 1968 Ops St Compt File #80.

A prohibited conflict of interest arises where a village purchases supplies and equipment from a hardware store operated by a corporation of which a village trustee is the principal stockholder. 1968 Ops St Compt File #323.

A prohibited conflict of interest does not occur when a village board designates a bank as the depository of village funds, notwithstanding the membership of a trustee on the bank's advisory board. Disclosure, however, is necessary. 1968 Ops St Compt File #323.

A prohibited conflict of interest exists where a village purchases supplies from a business owned by a member of the board of trustees in excess of $100 during any one fiscal year. This Department has no authority to provide an exception to that statute. 1968 Ops St Compt File #536.

Where consideration of a contract is under $100, the contract is not prohibited by conflict of interest. 1969 Ops St Compt File #444.

A prohibited interest in contract arises where an insurance agency (corporation) by which the mayor of a village is employed sells insurance to the village, unless former § 802(1)(b) is applicable. 1968 Ops St Compt File #719.

A village may not pay a claim submitted by a low bidder for an amount in excess of the bid price where the bidder delivered a vehicle which contained additional equipment not called for in the bid specifications nor requested or approved for purchase by the village board of trustees. 1979 Op St Compt File #842.

A village may not expend moneys generated from a village recycling program for the cost of a Christmas party for village employees. 1980 Op St Compt File #186.

Two members of a village board of trustees do not have prohibited conflicts of interest in insurance contracts between the village and an insurance company of which they are officers if, as employees of the company, they have nothing to do with the preparation, procurement or performance of the insurance contracts and their remuneration is not directly affected as a result of the contract. 1980 Op St Compt File #443.

In the absence of a local law authorizing reimbursement of a fire chief of a village volunteer fire department for expenses actually and necessarily incurred by him in the line of duty, a village would be prohibited from reimbursing him for those expenses. 1978 Op St Compt File #1084-A.

A village may not reimburse a police officer for legal fees incurred in connection with criminal charges arising from actions committed while the officer was off-duty. 1979 Op St Compt File #290.

A village may provide, in a collective bargaining agreement, that employees will be reimbursed for use of their personal tools on village business, and will either be reimbursed for a portion of the cost of repairs on their personal vehicle used on village business or have such repairs performed at village facilities. Subject to conflict of interest provisions, a village may rent personal vehicles and/or tools from its employees if deemed to be in the best interests of the village. 1982 Op St Compt File #82-32.

Meal expenses of village employees are reimbursable where the meal is included in a meeting on village business which began before the meal and continues through and after the meal if the food is sent in so that the meeting continues uninterrupted. Meal expenses of village employees are also reimbursable where a luncheon meeting is scheduled between two or more employees because it is the only time a meeting can be held before an important deadline and there is involved municipal business of an immediate nature. Meal expenses of village employees are not reimbursable where a meeting is schedled for 5 PM and runs to 8 PM and the employees take a meal after 8 PM, because meals are proper expenses only where they occur in conjunction with a business meeting. 1982 Op St Compt File #82-253.

5. Membership dues

A municipality may pay membership dues of its attorneys in national, state and local bar associations or sections thereof, if membership in such organizations or sections is determined by the municipality to be of benefit to the municipality. 1979 Op St Compt File #336.

A city, town or village may pay membership dues of its judges in the New York State Association of Magistrates. All prior inconsistent opinions are hereby superseded. 1979 Op St Compt No. 79–848.

A town or village may pay membership dues of its justice court clerks, or justices who do their own clerical work, in the New York State Association of Magistrates Court Clerks. 1980 Op St Compt File #380.

A municipality may, by resolution, authorize the payment of membership dues for its officers or employees in particular societies or associations if it determines that membership in such society or association will benefit the municipality. In making this determination, the municipality should be able to point to some reasonable connection between some or all of the activities of the particular society or association and the official duties of the officer or employee whose dues it intends to pay. 1980 Op St Compt File #501.

A municipality may pay the cost of dues and related expenses that result when an officer or employee becomes a member of a professional type society or association, provided it determines that membership will be beneficial to the municipality. 1981 Op St Compt File #81-136.

A village board, by resolution, may pay membership dues of the local historian in a historical society, provided the board determines that such membership is of benefit to the village and is significantly related to the historian's work. 1981 Op St Compt File #81-166.

6. Travel and mileage expenses

It is within the discretion of the village board of trustees to fix the amount of a mileage allowance for the use of a village officer's personal car while on village business. 1978 Op St Compt File #272.

A village may adopt a local law authorizing volunteer firemen to receive reimbursement for actual and necessary expenses or a mileage allowance for travel in their own automobiles on fire department business. 1979 Op St Compt File #122.

A village officer who has been authorized to attend to conference of village officials in his own automobile may not be reimbursed for additional miles traveled as the result of getting lost while enroute to or from the conference. 1979 Op St Compt File #517.

The village board may by local law pay volunteer firemen a mileage allowance for use of their personal automobiles on fire department business. 1979 Op St Compt File #911.

Tips to bellboys or maids are a reimbursable travel expense for an officer or employee authorized by a municipality to attend a conference. However, tips to bellboys or maids should not be included on a voucher as part of mileage expenses. 1980 Op St Compt File #717.

A village may not pay the superintendent of public works a lump sum at the end of a fiscal year to cover the cost of driving his own vehicle although he may be paid either the automobile expenses actually and necessarily incurred in the performance of his duties or a mileage allowance for each mile actually and necessarily traveled in the course of his duties. 1982 Op St Compt File #82-49.

A village special patrolman is entitled to travel expenses or mileage allowance. 1961 Ops Atty Gen May 4.

9. Conflicts of interest

A village clerk, while he holds that office, may not be appointed as a deputy treasurer and village auditor. Former § 43 provides only for combining the offices of deputy clerk and treasurer. However, in construing former § 81, which sets forth the duties of a village treasurer, and former § 128 which sets forth the duties of an auditor, it would appear that the duties of these two offices are in conflict one with the other since the auditor in some cases must audit the accounts of the treasurer. 1959 Ops Atty Gen May 15 (informal).

9-912. Propositions–submission and special election

HISTORY:

Add, L 1972, ch 892, eff Sept 1, 1973.

§ 9-912. Propositions–submission and special election

1. The board of trustees may, upon its own motion, and shall, upon the petition of at least two hundred electors in villages containing a population of five thousand or more; by at least one hundred fifty electors in villages containing a population of at least three thousand and less than five thousand; and by at least one hundred electors in villages containing a population of one thousand and less than three thousand; and in villages containing a population of less than one thousand, by electors numbering at least ten percent of the number of voters registered for the last general village election, cause a proposition on any of the questions set forth in the following subdivision to be submitted at a regular or special village election as such elections are defined in the election law. If such petition request the holding of a referendum at a time other than at such regular or special village election, such petition must contain twice the number of signatures otherwise required. If such petition does not request the holding of such a referendum, such question shall be submitted at the next regular or special village election for officers, held not less than thirty days after the filing of such petition. If such petition requests the holding of a referendum at a time other than at such regular or special village election, such referendum shall be held no less than thirty, nor more than sixty, days after the filing of such petition.

2. The questions which may or shall be submitted as propositions upon petition or motion of the board of trustees, as hereinbefore provided, are:

(a) Whether or not the area of the village should be diminished.

(b) Whether or not the village should be reincorporated.

(c) Whether or not the name of the village should be changed.

(d) Whether or not the month of the general village election should be changed.

3. A special election for submission of a proposition shall be noticed, conducted, canvassed and otherwise held in the same manner as a general village election; provided, however, that a proposition for the consolidation or dissolution of a village shall be noticed, conducted, canvassed and otherwise held pursuant to, and in accordance with, the provisions of article seventeen-A of the general municipal law.

App. Div. 2d Dep't 1975).

Authority of village board to change date of village election by resolution was not extended by election law provision to effect that village "may hereafter determine to elect its officers pursuant to a resolution, on a date other than the third Tuesday in March" since such provision could not be construed as extending authority of village board to determine by resolution a matter which village law required to be approved by the electorate. Etelson v Jacaruso, 80 Misc. 2d 685, 364 N.Y.S.2d 103, 1975 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2238 (N.Y. Sup. Ct.), aff'd, 47 A.D.2d 715, 366 N.Y.S.2d 389, 1975 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13136 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1975).

CLS Vill § 9-912 authorizes village board, on its own motion, to hold referendum on proposition to change month of general village election at either general or special village election for village officers; village board, on its own motion, may not hold referendum on such proposition at any other time. 1993 Op St Compt No. 93-2.

Absent act of state legislature, village may not conduct advisory referendum on question of whether village should become city. 1996 Op St Compt No. 96-18, 1996 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 15.

2. Under former § 4-438

On August 22, 1922, petition signed by more than twenty-five electors, in compliance with former § 4-438 requested trustees to call special election to vote on two propositions, one of which would be resubmitting proposition which had been adopted March 16, 1920, and other intent of which was to find use for money which had been raised pursuant to proposition already adopted. Motion for peremptory mandamus directing trustees to call special election will be denied. People ex rel. Osborn v Board of Trustees, 196 N.Y.S. 459, 119 Misc. 357, 1922 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1520 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1922).

Board of trustees of village is not required to submit at village election proposition for establishment of lighting system and power plant, where proposed proposition as presented to board in petition of one hundred electors of village of first class is incomplete and indefinite and requires that certain data with respect to availability of certain moneys be obtained before said proposition may properly be submitted to voters. Cosgrove v Smith, 288 N.Y.S. 481, 159 Misc. 583, 1936 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1183 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1936).

A petition to dissolve a village must be signed by the owners of one-third in value of the real property within the village as assessed upon the last preceding village assessment roll. A proposition to dissolve a village may be submitted, however, by the board of trustees upon its own motion. 1954 Ops St Compt 330.

Since former § 4-438 contained no provision for a referendum on a proposed low-rent public housing project, and the Public Housing Law does not require it, a village board may not direct a referendum on such a project. 1961 Ops St Compt 69.

There is no authority for a village to hold a referendum on petition or on its own motion regarding fluoridation of its water supply. 1963 Ops St Compt #497.

Property owners may not initiate a referendum by petition to the village board on a proposition to undertake removal of weeds from a private lake and there is no authority for a village to undertake such weed-removal for the sole benefit of private property owners. 1964 Ops St Compt #860.

A discussion of the effects of changing from a village of the fourth class to a village of the third class. 1967 Ops St Compt File #799.

1. In general

Under Loc Fin Law § 36.00; Vill Law §§ 9-908, 9-912, 9-914, when the Board of Trustees of a village, on its own motion, submits a bond resolution to a referendum and such resolution is defeated, such resolution may not again be resubmitted to a referendum until after the expiration of three months or until the next general village election, whichever shall be the later. 1974 NY Ops Atty Gen June 6 (informal).

A resolution creating the second office of village justice is subject to a permissive referendum and is not effective until after the referendum or after the time within which a referendum can be demanded. When the resolution becomes effective there is a vacancy in office which can be filled by appointment until the next date for conducting a regular or special village election. The term of the first elected second village justice will be for such time that thereafter one village justice will be elected each two years for a four-year term. 1975 NY Ops Atty Gen May 2.

A village board of trustees may pass a resolution to change the date of the general village election but such a resolution will be ineffective to make a change until a proposition on the question is submitted to the electors of the village and approved by them. Alternatively, if the board does not take any action to change the date of the general village election, and some of the village residents want such a change, 25 or more of them may, through the process of a petition, require that such a proposition be submitted to the voters of the village for their approval. Upon the approval of the proposition by the people of the village, and only upon such approval, the resolution becomes effective but the change of date of the general village election does not prolong or extend the terms of office of present office holders or change the dates of the next two general village elections. 1975 NY Ops Atty Gen Jan 6.

The timetable for conducting the referendum authorized by Village Law § 9-912 subd 3 to dissolve a village is contained in Village Law § 9-912 subd 1 as modified by Village Law § 19-1900 subd 1. 1978 NY Ops Atty Gen Dec 20.

It is not necessary that the petition for dissolution of a village submitted to the village board of trustees contain a plan for the disposition of village property, payment of obligations including the levy and collection of the necessary taxes and assessments therefor, and such other matters as may be necessary to wind up the village affairs; it is the duty of the village board of trustees to formulate that plan. 1978 NY Ops Atty Gen Dec 20.

If a petition for dissolution of a village does not specify any particular date for a referendum, the question will be on the ballot at the next regular or special election held not less than thirty days after the public hearing on the petition. 1980 Op St Compt File #800.

2. Under former § 4-438

A proposition to dissolve a village submitted at an annual village election need receive only the approval of a majority of the duly qualified village electors voting thereat to be adopted. 1953 NY Ops Atty Gen 22 (informal).

A village board of trustees may submit a proposition to dissolve a village on its own motion. 1954 NY Ops Atty Gen 26 (informal).

Since a special village election must be conducted and the result canvassed in the same manner as an annual election, a fewer number of polling places than are used at a general election may not be designated for a special village election at which a bingo proposition is submitted. Former Article 14-G of the General Municipal Law is silent with respect to any limitation of time for the submission of the mandatory proposition designed to legalize bingo, and the time limitation governing a village referendum on petition does not apply. 1958 NY Ops Atty Gen July 9 (informal).

Where a village is divided into election districts for general elections, village board may, by resolution adopted at least 30 days prior to a general village election, alter or abolish such districts. A special village election for submission of a proposition shall be noticed, conducted, canvassed and otherwise held in the same manner as a general village election. 1966 NY Ops Atty Gen Sept 21.

A proposition to dissolve a village must be submitted at either a general village election or a special village election but not at the general state-wide election held in November. 1971 NY Ops Atty Gen June 22.

§ 10-1000. General powers of the board of fire commissioners

The board of fire commissioners of a village, subject to the approval of the board of trustees:

1. Has the care, custody and control of all village property of the fire department.

2. May purchase such equipment as is suitable and necessary to prevent and extinguish fires within the village, or for the purposes of any emergency and first aid squad organized within the fire department, and uniforms for all active members of the fire department and keep the same in good condition and repair.

3. May erect and maintain suitable and necessary buildings for the fire department.

4. May construct and maintain reservoirs and cisterns and supply them with water for use at fires.

5. May adopt rules for the admission, suspension, removal and discipline of the members, officers and employees of the fire department, may prescribe their powers and duties, and fix their compensation not inconsistent with section 10-1018 of this article.

6. May adopt rules and regulations governing fire companies and fire departments, prescribing the duties of the members thereof, and may enforce discipline and provide for public drills, parades, funerals, inspections and reviews of the village fire department, or any company or unit thereof, within the village or at other places within the state, any adjoining state or in Canada. Such rules and regulations shall not authorize any member of the board of fire commissioners to interfere with the duties of the fire chief or the assistant fire chief at such times as the fire department or any company or squad thereof is on duty.

7. May appoint persons other than members or officers of the department to take charge of village property, and may fix their compensation.

8. May employ duty or "persons on call", to serve on a part-time basis when necessary, and fix their duties and compensation. Such part-time paid firefighters in the event of injury shall be entitled to the applicable benefits provided for such part-time paid firefighters under section two hundred seven-a of the general municipal law and in the event of injury or death shall be entitled to the applicable benefits, if any, provided for such part-time paid firefighters under the retirement and social security law and the workers' compensation law. Persons who are volunteer members of the village fire department may be employed as such part-time paid firefighters, but in the event of injury, death, disease, or infection, resulting from services performed in line of duty as such part-time paid firefighters they shall not be entitled to any of the benefits provided for volunteer firefighters under the volunteer firefighters' benefit law, or under any policy of blanket accident insurance purchased by the village or purchased by the fire department to cover only volunteer members of such department.

9. May inquire into the cause and origin of fires occurring in the village and may take testimony in relation thereto.

10. [None]

11. Notwithstanding any other provisions of law to the contrary, a village may include as part of its budget an appropriation to fund an annual firefighters' inspection-dinner for each fire company within the village.

Editor's Notes: Substance transferred from § 200.

Laws 1975, ch 838, § 1, provides as follows:

Section 1. Legislative declaration. The services provided by volunteer firemen in this state are invaluable. In the highest tradition of exemplary public service, these firemen serve their neighbors, their community and their state. In order to insure the continued availability of this irreplaceable work force, it is in the best interest of the people of our state to provide financial assistance for programs of local fire districts and villages which facilitate the recruitment, training and administration of new personnel who can contribute their loyalty and devotion in the interest of fire protection.

Amendment Notes The 2018 amendment by ch 476, § 110, in 8, substituted " 'persons on call' " for " 'call men' " in the first sentence, in the second sentence, substituted "firefighters" for "firemen" three times and "workers' compensation law" for "workmen's compensation law" and in the last sentence, substituted "firefighters" for "firemen" three times and "firefighters' benefit law" for "firemen's benefit law"; and substituted "annual firefighters' inspection" for "annual firemen's inspection" in 11.

Notes to Decisions

1. In general

In negligence action alleging that village firefighters prevented plaintiff from returning to burning building to rescue decedent (his wife) who was trapped inside burning room, evidence of plaintiff's contact with firefighters on behalf of decedent satisfied elements of special relationship sufficient to defeat summary judgment, where (1) firefighters forcefully restrained plaintiff from making any further attempts to rescue decedent, (2) firefighters were aware that decedent was trapped, (3) decedent did not make direct contact with firefighters, but plaintiff communicated urgency of her situation and need for firefighters' immediate assistance, which they allegedly failed to provide, and (4) plaintiff justifiably relied on firefighters' implied assurances that they would rescue decedent. Stata v Village of Waterford, 225 A.D.2d 163, 649 N.Y.S.2d 232, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11449 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1996).

In negligence action alleging that village firefighters prevented plaintiff from returning to burning building to rescue decedent (his wife) who was trapped inside burning room, village defendants were entitled to dismissal of cause of action seeking recovery for plaintiff's injuries, as his severe burns were result of his own efforts to rescue his wife, and special relationship required to withstand summary judgment did not exist. Stata v Village of Waterford, 225 A.D.2d 163, 649 N.Y.S.2d 232, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11449 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1996).

Village board of trustees lacked jurisdiction to prosecute village fireman on charges of vandalism of village property and neglect of duty where he had been suspended by council of village fire department in connection with same incident, since council has exclusive jurisdiction under CLS Vill Art 10 as to suspension and removal of village volunteer firemen. Price v Board of Trustees, 139 Misc. 2d 535, 527 N.Y.S.2d 701, 1988 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 211 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1988).

In general, a board of fire commissioners, or if there is no board of fire commissioners, the village board of trustees and the council of the fire department, has control of the external affairs of a fire company within the village, and that the constitution and by-laws of the fire company regulate the internal affairs of the company. In addition, the by-laws of a fire company within the village should not be inconsistent with the rules and regulations enacted by the board of fire commissioners, or the village board of trustees and the council of the fire department. There is, however, no statutory requirement that the latter approve the by-laws of the fire company. 1990 Op St Compt 90-19.

Under Sections 10-1000 et seq. of the Village Law, a village fire department is a corporation consisting of members of all the fire, hose, protective and hook and ladder companies of a village; it is administered by a board of fire commissioners or, where no board of fire commissioners has been appointed, by the village board of trustees and the council of the fire department. Fire companies in a village are associations or corporations, which must operate in accordance with their certificates of incorporation, bylaws, and statutes; and, although fire companies are separate and distinct from the village, the statutes do permit village authorities to exercise a certain degree of control over their organization, incorporation, governance, and membership, including residency for membership. A fire company must consent to a contract for the provision of fire protection outside the village and the fire chief of the village fire department cannot consent on behalf of members of the company. 1990 Op St Compt 90-19.

UNDER FORMER § 200

2. In general

The term "fire district" as used in § 205-b of the General Municipal Law, referring to liability for negligence of fire district and volunteer firemen, has a specific meaning in law and does not include fire companies. Heifetz v Rockaway Point Volunteer Fire Dep't, 124 N.Y.S.2d 257, 1953 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2150 (N.Y. Sup. Ct.), aff'd, 282 A.D. 1062, 126 N.Y.S.2d 604, 1953 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5825 (N.Y. App. Div. 1953).

Volunteer fire department which was organized pursuant to the provisions of the Membership Corporations Law was a publicly owned or governmental facility, and membership in said company could not be denied arbitrarily or discriminatorily based solely on the fact that the applicant was a Negro. Everett v Riverside Hose Co., 261 F. Supp. 463, 1966 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 10491 (S.D.N.Y. 1966).

Authorities having control of village volunteer fire department may organize all firemen thereof as emergency relief squad and not be liable for damage by fire within village while firemen are serving in squad. 1951 Ops St Compt 76.

For a discussion of village fire departments generally, see 1953 Ops St Compt 276.

Bylaws of the village fire department cannot amend, alter or supersede the provisions of former § 200, and any attempt to do so is ineffectual. 1963 Ops St Compt #724.

Money received by a village under a contract for fire protection should be paid into the general fund. 1968 Ops St Compt File #31.

3. Residence requirement

Residents of Pennsylvania are not eligible for membership in a village fire department and are not covered against injury or death while fighting fires by New York State law. 1954 Ops St Compt 266.

Persons residing in area protected by contract may subject to certain conditions, be admitted to membership in a village fire company and village apparatus and equipment may, subject to certain conditions, be housed in such area. 1955 Ops St Compt 60.

4. Service outside of village

An incorporated fire company located in a village is subject to the control of the village authorities irrespective of the fact it existed before incorporation of the village. Such fire company may not contract to furnish fire protection outside the village independently of the village board. 1953 Ops St Compt 353.

Both village and fire department or fire company should be parties to contract to furnish fire protection outside of village. Village may retain moneys received pursuant to such contract or pay over a portion to the fire department or fire company. 1954 Ops St Compt 240.

Where a village owns two fire trucks, the trustees may restrict outside service to use of one truck only, leaving the other for stand-by emergency service within the village. 1961 Ops St Compt 156.

5. Compensation of firemen

A village may not compensate members of its volunteer fire department but it may employ a number of call firemen and fix their compensation on a "per call" or "per hour" basis. 1956 Ops St Compt 258.

A village may not compensate members of its volunteer fire department for fighting fires. However, it may employ one or more paid firemen. 1958 Ops St Compt 200.

A village of the fourth class is not authorized to appoint or contract with "duty" or "call" firemen, but may employ one or more paid firemen and fix their salary. 1961 Ops St Compt 312.

A village may not pay firemen for the difference in cost between a party line telephone and a private telephone. 1963 Ops St Compt File #148.

The board of trustees of a village may pay an expenditure deemed to have been necessarily incurred to provide food and beverage to be consumed at the site of a serious fire for village volunteer firemen as well as outside firemen responding to a call for mutual aid. 1972 Ops St Compt File #88.

6. Construction or repair of fire house

Village funds may be expended to repair a firehouse owned by the village fire department but leased to the village. 1946 Ops St Compt 426.

A village may not contribute to a volunteer fire corporation a portion of the cost of erecting a fire training tower to be erected on a plot of land owned by the fire corporation. It may lease land and erect tower but lease should give village right to remove tower at expiration of term. 1953 Ops St Compt 103.

In the interest of public use, convenience and necessity, a village may acquire land outside of the village, owned by the village fire department, for the purpose of constructing a firehouse on such land, where such firehouse will mainly serve a village purpose. 1964 Ops St Compt File #1011.

A village may construct an addition to the village owned firehouse for the purpose of housing fire equipment, owned by the incorporated fire company and to be used outside of the village. Providing the arrangement is provident for the village, rental need not be charged the fire company for such use. 1965 Ops St Compt File #320.

7. Purchase of equipment

A village may purchase fire apparatus and equipment for the use of the village fire department. 1955 Ops St Compt 109.

Where a village board of trustees acts as Board of Fire Commissioners, it may appropriate the sum of $3,000 to purchase uniforms for all active members of the fire department without submitting the matter to a referendum, but the board must purchase the uniforms and the money may not simply be paid to the fire department for that purpose. 1961 Ops St Compt 86.

A fireman's bond is recreational in nature and village funds may not be used to provide uniforms for the band. 1964 Ops St Compt File #211.

A village may not pay the officers of the village fire department the amount of money budgeted for fire department purchases, so that such purchases may be made and paid for by such fire department. 1965 Ops St Compt File #190.

A village, while it may purchase fire equipment and apparatus, may not transfer such equipment to the volunteer fire department, but must hold the title to such equipment. 1967 Ops St Compt File #842.

8. Particular regulations

Subdivision 5 of former § 200 authorizes an incorporated village fire department, through its council and subject to approval of the board of trustees, to adopt a requirement that, in order to maintain membership in the department, a member must respond to a stated percentage of firemanic duty calls during a year; but an unincorporated fire company may not prescribe such a rule. 1960 Ops St Compt 398.

Villages, fire districts or cities may require that persons elected to membership in a volunteer fire company satisfactorily complete a physical examination. The cost of such a physical examination may be assumed by the respective municipality. 1969 Ops St Compt File #597.

9. Procedural matters

Rules of fire department, adopted by board of fire commissioners pursuant to subd. 5 of former § 200 did not require notice of charges or hearing thereon. Marks v Gombert, 225 A.D. 876, 233 N.Y.S. 47, 1929 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12519 (N.Y. App. Div.), aff'd, 251 N.Y. 542, 168 N.E. 420, 251 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 542, 1929 N.Y. LEXIS 793 (N.Y. 1929).

Section 209-l of the General Municipal Law is more extensive, as far as the required hearing is concerned, than subd. 5 of former § 200, and volunteer members of a fire department were not given a fair hearing on charges of misconduct by the board of fire wardens where no sworn testimony was taken to sustain the charges. Gardner v Ward, 199 N.Y.S.2d 953 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1960).

10. Miscellaneous

The council of a village fire department, in a village which has no separate board of fire commissioners may designate a member of the fire department to take charge of an emergency relief squad under the direction of the chief engineer. 1947 Ops St Compt 223.

Village fire apparatus used in providing outside service may be housed in the fire protection district. 1955 Ops St Compt 60.

The chief engineer of a village fire department may not lawfully sell equipment, materials or supplies to the village. 1960 Ops St Compt 231.

Although former § 200 gave the village board of fire commissioners care, custody and control over all property belonging to the village fire department, it is referring only to property owned by the village department as a corporation separate and distinct from volunteer fire corporations of the village. 1961 Ops St Compt File #266.

There is no authority for a village to permit a private factory to connect an alarm device to the fire department building so that it will alert the department if the factory furnace has been extinguished or the water in the boiler is too low. 1963 Ops St Compt #934.

A village may permit an automatic sprinkler alarm system from a private factory to be connected at expense of the owners to the village fire house but may not make an annual charge for such connection. 1963 Ops St Compt #934.

A village may not restrict a social room within the village firehouse for the exclusive use of the fire department, to the exclusion of all others. 1968 Ops St Compt File #423.

In the event the council of a village fire department refuses to authorize the fire chief to purchase a new or different design of decoration or shield to be worn on his fireman's hat the chief, even if he purchased one at his own expense, may not wear it at any time he is on duty. 1977 NY Ops Atty Gen Sept 13.

A village fire council has the power to require the presence of at least one fire chief within the village limits at all times. 1978 NY Ops Atty Gen July 20.

The village board of trustees, on the recommendation of the council of a fire department in a village having no board of fire commissioners, determines the style of uniforms and the type of equipment to be purchased for use by members of the fire department. The procedures for receiving calls for assistance and responding to such calls by participants in a county mutual aid plan would be those described in the plan. Section 10-1006(16) of the Village Law does not affect the limitation under section 10-1006(7) that not more than thirty percent of the members of a fire company may be non-residents of the village or of the area served by the fire department or a fire company. 1981 NY Ops Atty Gen March 5 (informal).

The Camillus Volunteer Fire Department may, without public bidding, purchase an ambulance with its own funds and then donate the ambulance to the village. But, any purchase made with village funds must meet the requirements of public bidding. 1979 Op St Compt No. 79–666.

The village may also purchase a car for the chief to be used on fire department business. 1979 Op St Compt File #911.

A village may not contract separately with a central school district to provide fire protection to two school buildings, one within the village and the other outside the village in a fire protection district. 1980 Op St Compt File #45.

When a volunteer fireman is removed from membership in a volunteer fire company by vote of the members themselves based on the company's constitution and bylaws, rather than by village fire authorities, then the village may not provide a legal defense to the fire department when sued by the discharged fireman for wrongful removal. 1980 Op St Compt File No. 80-366.

A village board is not compelled to follow the fire council's recommendation to purchase a new fire truck. 1981 Op St Compt File #81-30.

Fair rental value must be paid by a private organization for using a social room in a village firehouse, but such a room can be used without paying a fee by members of the fire department and their guests. 1979 Op St Compt File #610.

Non-residents of a village who live in an area which is furnished fire protection and ambulance service by the village fire department (i.e. a fire protection district) are eligible for membership in the emergency rescue and first aid squad of the village fire department and are entitled to volunteer firemen's benefits for injuries incurred in the line of duty. 1979 Op St Compt File #773.

The battalion chief of a village fire department cannot also serve as village mayor or village trustee. 2014 N.Y. Op. Att'y Gen. No. 2014-4, 2014 N.Y. AG LEXIS 83.

UNDER FORMER § 200

2. Residence requirement

In a village having no separate board of fire commissioners, the village board of trustees acting as such board may appoint persons residing outside the village to the village fire department, if such persons reside in territory afforded fire protection by the department. 1953 Ops Atty Gen 10 (informal).

3. Service outside of village

A village fire company, under the direction of the chief, may respond to emergency calls from outside the area regularly protected, until such outside service is restricted by action of the governing board of the village. 1957 Ops Atty Gen Oct 4 (informal).

4. Compensation of firemen

Volunteer firemen cannot be compensated for lost wages for time spent as witnesses in an action arising out of an accident involving their fire truck. 1963 Ops Atty Gen Nov 1.

Volunteer firemen who are also part-time paid firemen have status of paid firemen. 1963 Ops Atty Gen Feb 8.

5. Particular regulations

Nothing in the Village Law authorizes a fire department council to adopt a rule conditioning eligibility for fire department chiefs and engineers requiring ability to operate all fire equipment owned by the department and to instruct others fully in such operation. 1963 Ops Atty Gen June 11.

6. Miscellaneous

Property of a charitable or religious corporation is subject to village benefit assessments for new sidewalk construction, garbage and refuse collection, but neither these corporations nor a school district are liable for an assessment for village fire protection. 1955 Ops Atty Gen 6 (informal).

The amount paid under a contract for fire protection is solely a matter for negotiation between the parties. Since such a contract must specify a definite sum for services rendered under the contract, a provision whereby the village receiving fire protection services is to pay for the cost of certain materials used to provide the service and is to indemnify the village providing the service for unreimbursed loss or damage to the latter's equipment or unreimbursed damages due to injury to or death of its personnel is improper. 1982 Op St Compt File #82-355.

§ 10-1006. Volunteer members of village fire companies

1. The volunteer members of a fire company shall be elected and appointed as provided in this section.

2. The board of fire commissioners shall appoint residents of the village as the volunteer members of any newly organized fire company. Thereafter, the fire company may elect other eligible persons, including village officers, as volunteer members. The election shall be pursuant to the by-laws, if any, of the fire company; otherwise, by a three-fourths vote of the members of the fire company present and voting at a regular or special meeting thereof. The membership of any person so elected shall become effective when approved by resolution of the board of fire commissioners. Membership shall be deemed to have been approved pursuant to this subdivision in the event that no action is taken by the board of fire commissioners, either approving or disapproving, within forty days after servce [service]* of written notice of election to membership shall have been made by the secretary of the fire company upon the village clerk, either personally or by mail.

3. Any person elected to membership as a volunteer member as [of]* a fire company shall be a resident of the village or of territory outside the village which is afforded fire protection by the fire department of the village, or any fire company thereof, pursuant to a contract for fire protection, except as otherwise provided in subdivision six.

4. The membership of a volunteer member of a fire company shall terminate when he ceases to be a resident of the village or of any territory outside the village which is afforded fire protection but* the fire department of the village, or any fire company thereof, pursuant to a contract for fire protection, except as otherwise provided in subdivision five.

5. Any fire company may authorize the continued membership of any volunteer member where such member notifies the secretary of his or her fire company (a) that he or she plans to change his or her residence to territory which is not in the village and is not protected by the fire department of the village, or any fire company thereof, pursuant to a contract for fire protection, and (b) that by reason of his or her residence in the vicinity or his or her usual occupation he or she will be available to render active service as a volunteer firefighter in the village or in territory outside the village which is afforded fire protection pursuant to a contract for fire protection by the fire department of the village, or a fire company thereof. Such authorization shall be pursuant to the by-laws, if any, of the fire company of which he or she is a member, otherwise by a three-fourths vote of the members of such fire company present and voting at a regular or special meeting thereof. Such authorization shall not become effective unless approved by resolution of the board of fire commissioners. Such authorization shall be deemed to have been approved pursuant to this subdivision in the event that no action is taken by the board of fire commissioners, either approving or disapproving, within forty days after service of written notice of such authorization shall have been made by the secretary of the fire company upon the village clerk, either personally or by mail. Any membership continued pursuant to the provisions of this subdivision shall terminate when the member cannot meet either the requirements of this subdivision or the residence requirements of subdivision three of this section. In the case of a village which adjoins another state, the term "vicinity", as used in this subdivision, includes territory in this state and territory in the adjoining state.

6. A person who cannot meet the residence requirements of subdivision three of this section may be elected to membership as a volunteer member of any fire company of the fire department if by reason of his or her residence in the vicinity or his or her usual occupation he or she will be available to render active service as a volunteer firefighter in the village or in territory which is afforded fire protection pursuant to a contract for fire protection by the fire department of the village or a fire company thereof. Such election shall be pursuant to the by-laws, if any, of the fire company; otherwise by a three-fourths vote of the members of the fire company present and voting at a regular or special meeting thereof. The membership of any person so elected shall not become effective unless approved by resolution of the board of fire commissioners. Membership shall be deemed to have been approved pursuant to this subdivision in the event that no action is taken by the board of fire commissioners, either approving or disapproving, within seventy days after service of written notice of election to membership shall have been made by the secretary of the fire company upon the village clerk, either personally or by mail. The membership of any volunteer member elected pursuant to the provisions of this subdivision shall terminate when the member cannot meet either the requirements of this subdivision or the residence requirements of subdivision three of this section. In the case of a village which adjoins another state, the term "vicinity", as used in this subdivision, includes territory in this state and territory in the adjoining state.

7. The membership of any volunteer firefighter shall not be continued pursuant to subdivision five of this section, and persons shall not be elected to membership pursuant to subdivision six of this section, if, by so doing, the percentage of such non-resident members in the fire company would exceed forty-five per centum of the actual membership of the fire company, provided however, that the provisions of this subdivision shall not apply to the membership of the village of Blasdell volunteer fire department, provided however, that the provisions of this subdivision shall not apply to the membership of the village of Delanson volunteer fire company in the village of Delanson, county of Schenectady, provided however, that the provisions of this subdivision shall not apply to membership of the village of Port Dickinson Fire Department, within the village of Port Dickinson, Broome County.

8. The board of trustees, or the board of fire commissioners subject to approval of the board of trustees, by resolution may restrict the membership of volunteer members in any or all of the fire companies of the fire department to residents of the village. Any volunteer member who then resides in territory outside the village shall cease to be a member of any fire company to which the restriction is applicable unless the resolution provides that his membership shall continue during the existence of any contract for fire protection to such territory by his company or the fire department or during the period in which he may continue to meet the requirements of subdivision three, five or six.

9. Residents of outside territory protected pursuant to a contract for fire protection who have been elected to volunteer membership, and non-residents whose volunteer memberships have been continued or authorized pursuant to subdivision five or six of this section, shall have all the powers, duties, immunities, and privileges of resident volunteer members, except (1) non-residents of the state may not be appointed or elected to any office in the fire company or fire department, and (2) a non-resident of this state whose membership has been continued pursuant to subdivision five of this section, or a non-resident of this state who was elected to membership pursuant to subdivision six of this section, shall not be considered to be performing any firemanic duty, or to be engaged in any firemanic activity, as a member of the fire company while he or she is outside of this state unless and until he or she has first reported to the officer or firefighter in command of his or her fire department, or any company, squad or other unit thereof, engaged or to be engaged in rendering service outside this state, or has received orders or authorization from an officer of the fire department or fire company to participate in or attend authorized activities outside of this state in the same manner as resident members of the fire company.

10. A person shall not be eligible to volunteer membership in more than one fire company at one time.

11. The term "contract for fire protection" as used in this section means one under which a cash consideration is received by the village or by the fire department or a fire company thereof for the furnishing of fire protection to an area outside the village. Any such contract shall be deemed in full force and effect for the purposes of this section if negotiations are pending for the renewal thereof.

12. In a village where there is no board of fire commissioners, the board of trustees shall have the powers and perform the duties of such board which are prescribed in this section.

13. The provisions of this section shall not be deemed to authorize the election of any person as a member of a fire company or the continuance of membership in a fire company as herein provided if such election or continuance of membership shall be contrary to the by-laws, rules or regulations of the fire company or of the fire department of the village.

14. A village may not adopt a local law changing, amending or superseding this section.

15. Any person:

(1) who was recognized prior to the first day of July, nineteen hundred fifty-four, as a volunteer member of any fire company of a village subject to the provisions of this article by the board of trustees or board of fire commissioners of the village or by the officers and members of his fire company, and

(2) who rendered active service with such fire company prior to such date, and

(3) who was, at the time of his or her nomination for membership, a resident of the village or of territory outside of the village which was afforded fire protection by the fire department of the village, or any fire company thereof, pursuant to a contract for fire protection, shall for all purposes in law be considered to have been duly nominated and appointed to membership in such fire company as of the date of such appointment, if any, and, if none, then as of the date of such nomination; notwithstanding that there may have been some legal defect in such nomination, or the proceedings precedent thereto, or a failure of the board of fire commissioners or board of trustees to appoint such member, as provided by law in force at the time of such nomination, and the status of such person as a volunteer firefighter as of the date of such appointment or nomination is hereby legalized, validated and confirmed. An election to membership in a fire company shall be deemed equivalent to a nomination for membership for the purposes of this subdivision in the event that a formal nomination for membership was never presented to a board of fire commissioners or board of trustees as provided by the law in force prior to the first day of July, nineteen hundred fifty-four, and, for the purposes of this subdivision, such election, and the proceedings precedent thereto, shall be considered to have been held and conducted in the manner required by law. This subdivision shall not apply to a person, if any, whose volunteer membership in a fire company was declared invalid by a court of competent jurisdiction prior to the first day of January, nineteen hundred fifty-five.

16. Any person:

(1) who was recognized on and after the first day of July, nineteen hundred fifty-four and prior to the first day of January, two thousand eleven, as a volunteer member of any fire company of a village subject to the provisions of this article by the board of trustees or board of fire commissioners of the village or by the officers and members of his fire company, and

(2) who rendered active service with such fire company between such dates, and

(3) who was, at the time of his or her election to membership, a resident of the village or of territory outside the village which was afforded fire protection by the fire department of the village, or any fire company thereof, pursuant to a contract for fire protection, or who was a non-resident who was elected to membership or who was continued as a member, pursuant to the provisions of subdivisions five or six of this section, shall for all purposes in law be considered to have been duly elected and approved, or continued, as a member in such fire company as of the date of such approval, if any, and, if none, then as of the date of such election or, in the case of a continuance, as of the date of the approval, if any, by the board of fire commissioners or the board of trustees, and, if none, as of the date of authorization of continuance by the fire company; notwithstanding that there may have been some legal defect in such election, or the proceedings precedent thereto, or a failure of the board of fire commissioners or board of trustees to approve such member, or approve the continuance of membership of such member, as provided by the law in force at the time of such election, or continuance, and the status of such person as a volunteer firefighter as of the date is hereby legalized, validated and confirmed. This subdivision shall not apply to a person, if any, whose volunteer membership in a fire company was disapproved by the board of trustees or board of fire commissioners or declared invalid by a court of competent jurisdiction prior to the first day of January, two thousand eleven.

(a) It shall be an unlawful discriminatory practice for any volunteer fire department or fire company, through any member or members thereof, officers, board of fire commissioners or other body or office having power of appointment of volunteer firefighters in any fire department or fire company pursuant to this section, because of the race, creed, color, national origin, sex or marital status of any individual, to exclude or to expel from its volunteer membership such individual, or to discriminate against any of its members because of the race, creed, color, national origin, sex or marital status of such volunteer members.

(b) Any person claiming to be aggrieved by an unlawful discriminatory practice pursuant to this section may by himself or his attorney at law make, sign and file with the state division of human rights, a verified complaint which shall set forth the particulars of the alleged unlawful discriminatory practice and contain such other information as the division of human rights may require. The division shall thereupon cause to be made an investigation and disposition of the charges pursuant to the provisions of article fifteen of the executive law.

18. A person who has been convicted of arson in any degree shall not be eligible to be elected or appointed as a volunteer member of a fire company. The membership of any volunteer member of a fire company shall immediately terminate if he is convicted of arson in any degree while a member of a fire company.

19. Upon application by any person for membership in a fire company operating pursuant to this section, the fire chief shall cause the applicant's background to be checked pursuant to section eight hundred thirty-seven-o of the executive law for a criminal history involving a conviction for arson and conviction of a crime which requires the person to register as a sex offender under article six-C of the correction law. Where such criminal history information includes conviction of a crime which requires the person to register as a sex offender under article six-C of the correction law, a fire company shall determine whether or not such person shall be eligible to be elected or appointed as a volunteer member of such fire company. Such determination shall be made in accordance with the criteria established in sections seven hundred fifty-two and seven hundred fifty-three of the correction law.

Prior Law: Section 10-1106 derived from substance transferred from § 202-a.

Editor's Notes Laws 1999, ch 423, §§ 1, 6, eff April 1, 2000, provide:

Section 1. Legislative intent. The efforts of volunteer firefighters in New York state embody many of the values and traditions long respected and admired by our citizens. Volunteer firefighters devote many hours acquiring necessary training and then expend their energies to protect lives and property while placing their own lives and physical well being in jeopardy. They are heroes to our children, are trusted in our hour of need and provide role models for dedication and discipline.

Unfortunately, each year the public and members of the volunteer firefighting services are shocked to learn that a very few volunteers among the ranks have themselves been responsible for setting fires in their communities. These are the very individuals who have received specific training as firefighters in the arts and techniques of the arsonist. While observers may differ as to whether these fires are set by individuals who are fascinated by fire itself, or are set by those who seek to create opportunities in which they can be viewed as brave heroes by others, the results are the same: a serious erosion in public confidence in the volunteer firefighting services as a whole, and a loss of trust and morale within the volunteer companies themselves. This small number of individuals also places our communities and citizens at serious physical risk.

Mindful of these consequences, the legislature enacted chapter 719 of the laws of 1985, making an arson conviction in any degree an absolute bar to membership in a fire company. This law, however, relied too heavily upon an individual's willingness to admit an arson conviction and resigning as a volunteer or in refraining from applying in the first instance. It is the intent of this law to strengthen the ability of fire companies to police their own ranks by enabling fire chiefs to require new applicants for membership as volunteer firefighters, including transfers between fire companies, to undergo an arson conviction record check prior to acceptance as members. The authority afforded will enable the early identification of persons convicted of arson who may not serve.

§ 6. This act shall take effect April 1, 2000 except that the division of criminal justice services and the department of state are immediately authorized to promulgate such rules and regulations necessary to implement this act on or before such effective date.

Laws 2003, ch 393, § 1, eff Aug 19, 2003, provides as follows:

Section 1. Legislative intent. This legislation is designed to update certain provisions of the village law, the town law, the general city law and the not-for-profit corporation law relating to recognition of volunteer firefighters as duly elected or approved members of their respective fire companies. Periodically, these provisions of law should be updated to ensure that firefighters recently recognized as volunteers are considered to be duly elected and approved members in their respective fire companies, notwithstanding any legal defect in the election or approval process. This bill updates the relevant statutory provisions and ensures that more recently elected or approved volunteer members of fire companies are recognized as duly elected or approved for all purposes in law, including but not limited to coverage under the volunteer firefighters' benefit law.

Laws 2011, ch 373, § 1, eff Aug 3, 2011, provides as follows:

1. In general

In general, a board of fire commissioners, or if there is no board of fire commissioners, the village board of trustees and the council of the fire department, has control of the external affairs of a fire company within the village, and the constitution and by-laws of the fire company regulate the internal affairs of the company. In addition, the by-laws of a fire company within the village should not be inconsistent with the rules and regulations enacted by the board of fire commissioners, or the village board of trustees and the council of the fire department. There is, however, no statutory requirement that the latter approve the by-laws of the fire company. 1990 Op St Compt 90-19.

Under Sections 10-1000 et seq. of the Village Law, a village fire department is a corporation consisting of members of all the fire, hose, protective and hook and ladder companies of a village; it is administered by a board of fire commissioners or, where no board of fire commissioners has been appointed, by the village board of trustees and the council of the fire department. Fire companies in a village are associations or corporations, which must operate in accordance with their certificates of incorporation, bylaws, and statutes; and, although fire companies are separate and distinct from the village, the statutes do permit village authorities to exercise a certain degree of control over their organization, incorporation, governance, and membership, including residency for membership. A fire company must consent to a contract for the provision of fire protection outside the village and the fire chief of the village fire department cannot consent on behalf of members of the company. 1990 Op St Compt 90-19.

6. Other persons as members

A volunteer fireman is in "the public service" and a public servant, despite the fact that he receives no salary, in view of the fact that he is entitled to certain statutory benefits and exemptions, and an applicant to membership in a volunteer fire company may not be denied employment solely on racial grounds. Everett v Riverside Hose Co., 261 F. Supp. 463, 1966 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 10491 (S.D.N.Y. 1966).

Volunteer fire department which was organized pursuant to the provisions of the Membership Corporations Law was a publicly owned or governmental facility, and membership in said company could not be denied arbitrarily or discriminatorily based solely on the fact that the applicant was a Negro. Everett v Riverside Hose Co., 261 F. Supp. 463, 1966 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 10491 (S.D.N.Y. 1966).

Women may be elected to membership in an incorporated fire company, if the by-laws do not prohibit such membership and if their election is approved by the board of fire commissioners or town board. 1955 Ops St Compt 104.

While a village policeman may be elected to membership in the volunteer fire department of the village, if duly qualified, he might, if serving at a fire within the village, be deemed to be functioning as a policeman and thereby forfeit his right to benefits under the Volunteer Firemen's Benefit Law § 5, subd 2-d. 1959 Ops St Compt 4.

The procedures for receiving calls for assistance and responding to such calls by participants in a county mutual aid plan would be those described in the plan. Section 10-1006(16) of the Village Law does not affect the limitation under section 10-1006(7) that not more than thirty percent of the members of a fire company may be non-residents of the village or of the area served by the fire department or a fire company. 1981 NY Ops Atty Gen March 5 (informal).

2. Membership

A nonresident of a village may be elected to membership, or his membership may be continued, in a village volunteer fire company if that person resides in an area outside of the village which is afforded fire protection by contract by the village fire department or a volunteer fire company thereof, unless the village authorities have restricted membership to persons actually living within the village. Such a member is a resident member. Nonresidents of the village or contract protected outside area may be continued as members of a village volunteer fire company or elected as members of such a company, if the by-laws of the fire company authorize it and if the village authorities consent to it. If the volunteer fire company has no by-laws, the consent can be given by a ¾ vote of the members present and voting at a regular or special meeting of the volunteer fire company. Such members are nonresident members. Nonresident memberships can not constitute more than 30% of the actual membership of the fire company. The by-laws of a village fire company may be more rigid than the statute concerning eligibility for membership and could provide, in spite of the provisions of Village Law § 10-1006 herein discussed, that election to membership or continuation of membership is dependent upon actual residence within the territorial confines of the village. A fire company by-law restricting membership to residents of the geographic territory of the village may be amended so as to extend membership rights to the extent and in accordance with the provisions of Village Law § 10-1006. 1976 NY Ops Atty Gen Feb 4 (informal).

By-law provisions for the admission of members of volunteer fire companies which provide that three negative votes or black balls will defeat election to membership appear to be valid but if they are used in a manner contrary to the Constitutions of the United States or of the State of New York or the anti-discrimination statutes of the state, such a by-law would be invalid. 1977 NY Ops Atty Gen May 9 (Informal), 1977 N.Y. VILLAGE LAW, § 10-1006: Under the requirements prescribed by subdivisions (5) and (6) of this section, persons who are not residents of the village which controls a volunteer fire company or of the area outside the village which receives fire protection, can still remain or become members of the village volunteer fire company. 1981 NY Ops Atty Gen June 1 (informal).

Member of village board of trustees could also serve as volunteer member of village volunteer fire department and as vice-president of separate corporate entity acting in supportive capacity to volunteer fire department; however, trustee would be required to recuse himself from participating in approval of volunteer fire department's budget. 1996 NY Ops Atty Gen I 96-21.

Volunteer members of a village fire department or of a fire district fire company who are non-residents of the village, the fire district, or of the territory protected by a fire protection contract, may still be elected or appointed to a fire company or fire department office if they are residents of the state. 1982 Op St Compt File #82-67.

3. Compensation

A village may not pay volunteer firemen who are members of the ambulance squad for wages lost when they leave their factory to answer a call for ambulance service nor may it pay the factory for financial losses when the firemen leave the factory for such purpose. Volunteer Firemen's Benefit Law benefits may be affected by such payment. 1980 Op St Compt File #177.

When a volunteer fireman is removed from membership in a volunteer fire company by vote of the members themselves based on the company's constitution and bylaws, rather than by village fire authorities, then the village may not provide a legal defense to the fire department when sued by the discharged fireman for wrongful removal. 1980 Op St Compt File No. 80-366.

Volunteer firemen, including the chief and assistant chief or chiefs of a village fire department, may not be compensated for their services. 1980 Op St Compt File #544.

Nonresidents of the village may not be appointed or elected to any office in a village fire department. 1963 Ops Atty Gen Dec 17.

Whether a non-resident is living or working in the vicinity of a fire district and is thus eligible for membership in a volunteer fire company in that district, is a matter of fact to be determined in each individual case by the fire company. 1970 Ops Atty Gen May 11.

6. Membership in two companies

A person may not be a volunteer member of more than one fire company at the same time unless he had more than one valid membership prior to July 1, 1954. Social and other related types of members of fire companies are not legal members of such companies. 1958 Ops Atty Gen Nov 19 (informal).

In addition, the board of trustees, or the board of fire commissioners subject to the approval of the board of trustees, may, by resolution, require that any or all of such fire department officers shall be residents of the village. The delegates elected to the general convention of the fire department shall meet at the council room thereof on the Thursday following the first Tuesday in April, except the elected delegates of the fire department of the village of Fishkill, Dutchess county, which shall meet on the first Tuesday in December, and nominate a person for each of such offices; but the fire commissioners of any village may adopt a rule requiring all such nominations to be made on the day of the meeting by a vote of the duly qualified members of the department, in which case the meeting of the delegates in general convention, as provided for in this section, shall be dispensed with. The person acting as secretary of such convention shall forthwith file in the office of the village clerk a certificate of such nominations. The board of fire commissioners at its next meeting shall consider the nominations and appoint such persons to the offices to which they are respectively nominated or, if a nomination is not approved the board shall reconvene the general convention, which shall submit a new nomination to take the place of any nomination not approved, which procedure shall continue until a full set of officers is approved. A person who has been convicted of arson in any degree shall not be eligible for nomination, election or appointment to the office of chief or assistant chief. Any fire chief or assistant chief who is convicted of arson in any degree during his term of office shall be disqualified from completing such term of office.

Subject to certain limitations, there is no legal prohibition against a volunteer fireman of a village volunteer fire department serving as a member of the board of trustees. 1974 Ops St Compt File #379.

Under Sections 10-1000 et seq. of the Village Law, a village fire department is a corporation consisting of members of all the fire, hose, protective and hook and ladder companies of a village; it is administered by a board of fire commissioners or, where no board of fire commissioners has been appointed, by the village board of trustees and the council of the fire department. Fire companies in a village are associations or corporations, which must operate in accordance with their certificates of incorporation, bylaws, and statutes; and, although fire companies are separate and distinct from the village, the statutes do permit village authorities to exercise a certain degree of control over their organization, incorporation, governance, and membership, including residency for membership. A fire company must consent to a contract for the provision of fire protection outside the village and the fire chief of the village fire department cannot consent on behalf of members of the company. 1990 Op St Compt 90-19.

There is no statutory requirement that fire company officers, other than those specified by the Village Law, be designated by any particular titles. Consequently, in relation to a fire company within a fire district, a fire company may establish offices such as "fire company chief" in its by-laws. The designation of a fire company officer as a "chief", however, would not entitle the individual holding that office in the company to perform the duties and exercise the powers of the chief of the village fire department. 1990 Op St Compt 90-19.

Court erred in dismissing village fire chief's Article 78 petition for reinstatement on ground that he had retired, since petitioner, as holder of position within classified competitive civil service, was required by 4 NYCRR 5.3(a) to submit resignation in writing, and no such written resignation was ever tendered. Stork v Board of Trustees, 179 A.D.2d 1058, 579 N.Y.S.2d 797, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2406 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1992).

If village board has rejected nominee submitted by village fire department for office of fire chief and department fails to submit new nomination, village board may not appoint new chief; in event of such impasse, incumbent chief continues to serve as chief or, if he or she resigns before new chief is appointed, assistant chief performs functions of chief until new appointment. 1992 Op St Compt No. 92-38.

2. Under former § 205

A non-resident member of a village fire department may not hold the office of assistant engineer. 1956 Ops St Compt 76.

The chief engineer of a village fire department may not lawfully sell equipment materials or supplies to the village. 1960 Ops St Compt 231.

Nonresident members of a village fire department, though not electors of the village, are eligible for positions of chief and assistant chief engineer of the village fire department, provided they are residents of the State. 1961 Ops St Compt 156.

After the village Board of Trustees, acting as a Board of Fire Commissioners, by resolution has declined to approve nomination of a person for chief engineer, the fire department convention may not resubmit the name of the same person for consideration at reconvening of the Board of Trustees for filling the position. 1961 Ops St Compt 197.

By restricting membership in all fire companies for volunteers to residents of the village, a village may effectively restrict eligibility to the positions of chief and assistant chief engineer to village residents; and this is the only method by which such eligibility may be so restricted. 1962 Ops St Compt 146.

Unless a village Board of Trustees has, by resolution, required that the chief engineer or any assistant chief be a resident of the village, a non-resident member of the village fire deparment is eligible for such appointments. 1963 Ops St Compt File #283.

A village trustee may not legally hold the office of assistant engineer of the village fire department. 1969 Ops St Compt File #245.

A member of a village board of fire commissioners or a single fire commissioner may not simultaneously hold any village fire company office except warden and delegate to the general convention of the fire department. 1976 NY Ops Atty Gen Nov 16 (informal).

If a village trustee is not a single fire district commissioner or a member of a village board of fire commissioners, that trustee may hold a fire company office but, because of the prohibition contained in Village Law § 10-1012, such trustee could not be chief engineer or assistant chief of the village fire department or hold a position which, upon occasion, would necessitate the trustee's performing the function of chief engineer. 1976 NY Ops Atty Gen Nov 16 (informal).

Under no circumstance may a chief engineer or assistant chief engineer of a village fire department (or any other individual who, in the absence of someone holding a higher position in a fire department would act as chief engineer of the fire department) simultaneously hold the office of village trustee. 1976 NY Ops Atty Gen Nov 16 (informal).

Pursuant to section 10-1012 of the Village Law, the board of trustees, or the board of fire commissioners (if any) with the approval of the board of trustees, may, by resolution, require that the chief and/or some or all of the assistant chiefs of the village fire department be residents of the village. However, the residency requirements of this section could be superseded by a local law pursuant to which a village could require the chief and assistant chiefs to reside in the village or the portion of the town in which the village is located to which the village provides fire protection pursuant to contract. 1980 Op St Compt File #746.

Incumbent engineers of a village fire department should hold over in those posts until their successors are chosen. 1957 NY Ops Atty Gen April 11 (informal).

A fire chief is eligible to be a candidate and to be elected to the office of village trustee. However, it would be inadvisable for a village trustee to serve at the same time as chief of the village fire department. 1959 NY Ops Atty Gen May 25 (informal).

A board of fire commissioners, if any, or a village board of trustees may require nominations for chief engineer and assistant engineers to be made by vote of the duly qualified members of the volunteer fire department. 1970 NY Ops Atty Gen Dec 28.

Where a village board of trustees, acting as a board of fire commissioners, declines to approve the nominations of chief engineer and assistant engineer made by delegates elected to the general convention of the fire department, the board shall reconvene the general convention, which shall submit new nominations to take the place of any nominations not approved, which procedure shall continue until a full set of officers is approved. 1971 NY Ops Atty Gen March 17 (informal).

Industrial Board of Appeals had rational basis to conclude that service of notice and order on village fire chief did not comply with service requirements of Public Employee Safety and Health Act (CLS Labor § 27-a) because fire chief was mere "employee" and there was no assurance that he would notify village officials, whereas direct notice to principal elected official of village would assure notification to accountable village officer who could enforce compliance; Labor Commissioner failed to prove that grant of authority to fire chief under CLS Vill § 10-1018 was broad enough to authorize fire chief to act on behalf of village, and that actual notice to fire chief constituted constructive notice to village. Hudacs v Village of Watkins Glen, 208 A.D.2d 181, 622 N.Y.S.2d 384, 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1389 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1995).

1. Under former § 220

The parents' cause of action against the Water Department and the President of the Water Board were properly dismissed as the Water Board, charged with the operation and administration of the waterworks system acquired by the village, exists merely as an administrative arm of the village itself, exercising authority delegated by the village apart from which it has no independent existence upon which it may be sued which is reinforced by the scope of restrictions placed upon the board by statute. Rathbun v Waverly, 35 A.D.2d 227, 315 N.Y.S.2d 237, 1970 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3501 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1970).

The Board of Water Commissioners is not a public benefit corporation nor de facto corporation possessing status as an independent entity allowing it to sue or be sued within the meaning of General Corporation Law § 3, subdivision 4, as no certificate of incorporation was ever drawn nor legislation enacted establishing the board as a corporation and since there is no authorization upon which the board could become a de jure corporation it could not be deemed even a de facto corporation. Rathbun v Waverly, 35 A.D.2d 227, 315 N.Y.S.2d 237, 1970 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3501 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1970).

Former § 220 was not applicable to a village which owns its own water distribution system, but is applicable to villages which are served by a water system owned by an individual or another corporation, public or private. 1956 Ops St Compt 342.

A village, which had purchased certain lands for the construction of a well, could not agree in writing with the private owner of the adjoining premises (who also was a former owner of the land purchased by the village) to supply the latter with free water. The property was located outside the village limits. 1959 Ops St Compt 313.

The offices of village water commissioner and town councilman are not incompatible where village water supply is completely separate from that of any water district in the town. 1967 Ops St Compt File #722.

§ 11-1124. Contracts for purchase and sale of water

1. The board of water commissioners may contract with the town board on behalf of the town or a water supply, fire alarm or fire protection district thereof, or with the board of trustees of a village or the board of fire commissioners of a fire district, respectively, to furnish water for the extinguishment of fires, including the furnishing, erection, maintenance, care and replacement of fire hydrants, the erection and maintenance of markers therefor, and the removal of snow and ice to provide access thereto, or for sanitary or other public purposes, for any period not exceeding ten years. The amount payable each year under such a contract shall be raised as a part of the expenses of such town or water supply, fire alarm or fire protection district thereof, village or fire district, and paid to the treasurer of the village owning such system of water works. Nothing herein contained shall be deemed to alter or remove any of the limitations, restrictions or procedural requirements provided in sections one hundred eighty-four-a and one hundred eighty-four-b of the town law.

2. The board of water commissioners of any village maintaining its own water distribution system may contract in the name of such village with any public corporation or improvement district which possesses the power to sell a supply of water, for the purpose of purchasing all or any portion of the water supply of such village from such public corporation or improvement district for such period as may be deemed necessary, but not in excess of forty years. The term "public corporation" as used in this subdivision shall mean a public corporation as defined in the general corporations law and also any joint water works corporation formed under the provisions of chapter six hundred fifty-four of the laws of nineteen hundred twenty-seven, as amended.

The board of fire commissioners of a fire district may contract with a village for a term not to exceed five years for the erection and maintenance of hydrants on the village supply line running through the fire district. A water supply district could be established to accomplish the same purpose as zoning of the fire district. 1953 Ops St Compt 204.

A village may connect its water system to the water system of another village and contract for a period not to exceed five years to purchase water from such other village. There is no limit upon the price which may be paid for water nor is a referendum required. 1956 Ops St Compt 342.

A fire protection district may contract for a supply of water and hydrant service with a village. The expense for such a contract must be assessed against all the property within the district. 1967 Ops St Compt File #363.

§ 17-1720. Fire districts; preservation of fire districts, fire protection districts and fire alarm districts

1. In every such village any fire districts created or organized under the provisions of the county law, shall be merged in and consolidated with such village and shall become a part of such village for fire protection purposes and all buildings, engines, fire apparatus, and other property belonging to such fire district shall be vested in such village and maintained and administered by it as a part of the fire protection system thereof. All the powers and duties of the commissioners of such fire district shall be and are hereby devolved upon and transferred to the board of trustees of such village. For the purpose of paying the principal and interest of any bonds of any such fire district which may be outstanding and unpaid at the date of the incorporation of any such village, the board of trustees of such village shall levy, assess and collect upon all the taxable property in such village, a tax sufficient to pay the interest thereof as the same accrues and sufficient also to provide for the payment of the principal of such bonds at maturity.

2. At any time after the date the report of incorporation is delivered to the secretary of state pursuant to section 2-232 of the village law, and prior to the first day of June following the first day of January next succeeding the date of incorporation, the board of trustees of any village in which a majority of the electors has approved a proposition submitted to the voters in accordance with subdivision three of section 17-1708 hereof, may adopt a local law providing that any fire district, fire protection district, fire alarm district or any district functioning pursuant to section one hundred eighty-six of the town law which is located wholly or partly within the boundaries of such village, shall continue to function in all respects whatsoever, and all officers and employees of such entity shall continue to hold their offices and exercise their powers and duties, as though such village were not incorporated.

3. In the event that the board of trustees adopts a local law pursuant to subdivision two of this section, then notwithstanding any provision of sections 2-252, 2-254, 2-256, 2-258, 17-1704, 17-1720 or 17-1726 of the village law, any such fire district, fire protection district, fire alarm district or any district functioning pursuant to section one hundred eighty-six of the town law which is located wholly or partly within the boundaries of such village, shall continue to function, in all respects whatsoever, and all officers and employees of such entity shall continue to hold their offices and exercise their powers and duties, as though such village were not incorporated.

11-c. Medical examination of volunteer ambulance workers to detect and identify the human immunodeficiency virus (HIV)

HISTORY:
Add, L 1988, ch 24, § 31, eff Jan 1, 1989.

§ 5. Coverage

1. The duties and activities in relation to which benefits shall be paid and provided pursuant to this chapter are:

a. Necessary travel to, working at, and necessary travel returning from an accident, alarm of accident, or other duty to which his ambulance department, ambulance company, or any unit thereof, either has responded or would be required or authorized to respond, including necessary travel during such work or incidental thereto.

b. While, within the state, personally assisting another ambulance department, ambulance company, or any unit thereof, including, after his services have been duly accepted, necessary travel to and returning from such work and necessary travel during such work or incidental thereto.

c. While, within the state and pursuant to orders or authorization, performing duties at the ambulance facility, or elsewhere, directly related to; (1) the prevention of accidents or other disasters, or (2) the delivery of emergency health care.

d. While, within this country or in Canada and pursuant to orders or authorization, instructing or being instructed in ambulance duties, attending a training school or course of instruction for ambulance workers, or attending or participating in any noncompetitive training program, including necessary travel directly connected therewith.

e. While, within the state, any adjoining state or in Canada and pursuant to orders or authorization, attending or participating in any drill, parade, funeral, inspection or review in which his ambulance department, ambulance company, or any unit thereof, is engaged, including necessary travel directly connected therewith.

f. While, within the state and pursuant to orders or authorization, attending or working at meetings of his ambulance department or ambulance company, or any organized unit thereof, at the ambulance facility or other regular or special headquarters of the department, company or unit, including necessary travel directly connected therewith other than travel to or returning from such meetings.

g. While, within the state and pursuant to orders or authorization, working in connection with the construction, testing, inspection, repair or maintenance of (1) the ambulance facility and the fixtures, furnishings and equipment thereof, and (2) the ambulance vehicles, ambulance apparatus and equipment used by the ambulance department, ambulance company, or other unit thereof, including necessary travel directly connected therewith other than travel to or returning from such work.

h. While, within the state, any adjoining state or in Canada and pursuant to orders or authorization, practicing for, or participating as a contestant or an official in, any competitive tournament, contest or public exhibition conducted for ambulance workers which is intended to promote the efficiency of the ambulance department, ambulance company or any unit thereof, including necessary travel directly connected therewith other than travel to and returning from such practice. The actual rendition of ambulance or other emergency service shall not be deemed "practicing" within the meaning of this paragraph.

i. While, pursuant to orders or authorization, engaged in the inspection of ambulance vehicles and ambulance apparatus prior to delivery under a contract of purchase, or performing duties in relation to the delivery thereof, including necessary travel directly connected therewith.

j. While, within this country or Canada and pursuant to orders or authorization, attending a convention or conference of ambulance workers or ambulance officers as the authorized delegate or representative of his ambulance department, ambulance company or any unit thereof, including necessary travel directly connected therewith.

k. While, within the state and pursuant to orders or authorization, working in connection with a fund raising activity of his ambulance company, including necessary travel directly connected therewith, but shall not include competitive events in which volunteer ambulance workers are competitors, such as baseball, basketball, football, bowling, tugs of war, donkey baseball, donkey basketball, boxing, wrestling, contests between bands or drum corps, or other competitive events in which volunteer ambulance workers are competitors and which involve physical exertion on the part of the competitors.

l. While, within the state, performing duties in an area other than his or her own related to the delivery of emergency health care prior to the arrival of the ambulance department, ambulance company, or any unit thereof that is responsible for the provision of such care in that area, provided that the volunteer ambulance workers' municipality, ambulance department, ambulance company, or any unit thereof, adopts a resolution granting coverage for such duties. Upon the arrival of the ambulance department, ambulance company, or any unit thereof responsible for emergency health care in the area, such volunteer ambulance worker shall be entitled to benefits in the manner set forth in paragraph b of this subdivision.

2. Benefits shall not be paid and provided pursuant to this chapter in the following instances:

a. Work or service rendered by a volunteer ambulance worker while on a leave of absence pursuant to the general municipal law or pursuant to any other general, special or local law, charter or ordinance or pursuant to the constitution, by-laws, rules or regulations applicable to the ambulance company or ambulance department of which he is a member.

b. Practice for and participation in any recreational, social, or fund raising activity other than a fund raising activity for which coverage is provided under paragraph k of subdivision one of this section.

c. Work or service rendered by a volunteer ambulance worker while suspended from duty pursuant to any general, special or local law, charter or ordinance or pursuant to the constitution, by-laws, rules or regulations applicable to the ambulance company or ambulance department of which he is a member.

d. Work or service not rendered as a volunteer ambulance worker, but rendered as an officer, official or employee of a public corporation or any special district thereof, whether with or without remuneration, even though by law a requirement for such office, position or employment shall be that such officer, official or employee shall have been or must be a volunteer ambulance worker.

e. Work or service not rendered as a volunteer ambulance worker, but rendered in the course of his employment for a private employer.

f. Work, service or activities in which the volunteer ambulance worker has been ordered not to participate.

This subdivision shall not be deemed to enumerate all of the activities engaged in by volunteer ambulance workers for which mandatory coverage is not provided by this chapter, or to prohibit any of the activities described in this subdivision, or to prevent the securing of insurance pursuant to section four thousand two hundred thirty-seven of the insurance law to cover volunteer ambulance workers when engaged in activities other than those for which mandatory coverage is provided by this chapter.

HISTORY:

Add, L 1988, ch 24, § 31, eff Jan 1, 1989; L 2014, ch 496, § 2, effective June 15, 2015.

Amendment Notes: The 2014 amendment by ch 496, § 2 added par l of sub 1.

Notes to Decisions

Although the future liability accrued by a self-insurance plan was not a debt within the meaning of N.Y. Const. art. VIII, § 2, a county was not entitled to summary judgment as it failed to establish that certain employees were volunteer ambulance workers, within the scope of N.Y. Workers' Comp. Law § 63(3) and N.Y. Vol. Ambul. Workers' Ben. Law §§ 3, 5, and 30. Village of Ilion v County of Herkimer, 63 A.D.3d 1546, 879 N.Y.S.2d 875, 2009 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4445 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 2009).

§ 8. Permanent total disability benefits

In the case of total disability adjudged to be permanent the volunteer ambulance worker shall be paid six hundred dollars for each week during the continuance thereof. Permanent total disability, within the meaning of this section, shall exist only if the earning capacity of the volunteer ambulance worker has been lost permanently and totally as the result of the injury. The loss of both hands, or both arms, or both feet, or both legs, or both eyes, or any two thereof, shall, in the absence of conclusive proof to the contrary, constitute permanent total disability, but in all other cases permanent total disability shall be determined in accordance with the facts. Notwithstanding any other provisions of this chapter, an injured volunteer ambulance worker disabled due to the loss or total loss of use of both eyes, or both hands, or both arms, or both feet, or both legs, or any two thereof shall not suffer any diminution of such weekly benefit by engaging in business or employment provided his or her weekly earnings or wages, when combined with his weekly benefit shall not be in excess of eight hundred dollars; and further provided that the application of this section shall not result in reduction of benefits which an injured volunteer ambulance worker who is disabled due to the loss or total loss of use of both eyes, or both hands, or both arms, or both feet, or both legs, or any two thereof would otherwise be entitled to under any other provisions of this article.

Editor's Notes: Laws 1989, ch 604, § 6, eff July 21, 1989, provides as follows:

§ 6. This act shall take effect immediately provided that sections one, two, three, four, and five of this act shall be deemed to have been in full force and effect on and after January 1, 1989 and shall apply to certain permanent partial disabilities, death and injuries in the line of duty occurring on or after such date.

Laws 1998, ch 574, § 3, eff Jan 1, 1999, provides as follows:

§ 3. This act shall take effect on the first day of January next succeeding the date on which it shall have become a law and shall apply by its terms to benefits paid for all weekly benefit periods which occur after its effective date.

Laws 2016, ch 401, § 3, eff July 1, 2016, provides:

§ 3. This act shall take effect on the same date and in the same manner as part GG of chapter 54 of the laws of 2016 takes effect and shall apply to weekly benefit periods that commence after January 1, 2017.

Amendment Notes:

1999. Chapter 574, § 1 amended:

Par by deleting "three hundred dollars for each week during the continuance thereof; provided, however, that the volunteer ambulance worker is injured in the line of duty on or after the effective date of this chapter to June thirtieth, nineteen hundred ninety; provided further that when a volunteer ambulance worker is injured in the line of duty on or after July first, nineteen hundred ninety to June thirtieth, nineteen hundred ninety-one, such ambulance worker shall be paid three hundred forty dollars for each week during the continuance thereof; provided further that when a volunteer ambulance worker is injured in the line of duty on or after July first, nineteen hundred ninety-one to June thirtieth, nineteen hundred ninety-two, such ambulance worker shall be paid three hundred fifty dollars for each week during the continuance thereof; provided further that when a volunteer ambulance worker is injured in the line of duty on or after July first, nineteen hundred ninety-two such ambulance worker shall be paid" and "four hundred fifty dollars for the period beginning on or after the effective date of this chapter to June thirtieth, nineteen hundred ninety, five hundred ten dollars for the period beginning July first, nineteen hundred ninety to and including June thirtieth, nineteen hundred ninety-one, five hundred twenty-five dollars for the period beginning July first, nineteen hundred ninety-one to and including June thirtieth, nineteen hundred ninety-two," and "for the period beginning July first, nineteen hundred ninety-two".

The 2016 amendment by ch 401, § 2, substituted "six hundred dollars" for "four hundred dollars" in the first sentence.

Notes to Decisions

Medical evidence, which established that the volunteer ambulance employee suffered a permanent partial disability which precluded her from performing many of her job duties, including enforcement patrols, directing traffic, and standing for prolonged periods of time, supported the Workers' Compensation Board's determination that the employee suffered a causally related disability. Also, pursuant to N.Y. Vol. Ambul. Workers' Ben. Law §§ 3(8) and 10(1)(g), the benefits awarded were based on a loss of earning capacity, not actual reduced income. § 11-c. Medical examination of volunteer ambulance workers to detect and identify the human immunodeficiency virus (HIV)

1. Whenever a volunteer ambulance worker has been exposed to a significant risk of transmission of the human immunodeficiency virus (HIV) while performing services in the line of duty, the executive officer of the ambulance company of which the volunteer ambulance worker is a member shall authorize such volunteer ambulance worker to obtain an appropriate medical examination to determine if such volunteer ambulance worker has been exposed to or infected with the human immunodeficiency virus (HIV). Such medical examination of a volunteer ambulance worker shall be authorized within eight hours of notification to the executive officer of the ambulance company of which such volunteer ambulance worker is a member of an incident that has created an exposure risk to the volunteer ambulance worker.

2. Should it be determined by the examining physician or other attending health care worker that a significant risk of transmission has occurred, or should any medical examination conclude that a volunteer ambulance worker has been exposed to or infected with human immunodeficiency virus (HIV), then such volunteer ambulance worker shall be offered counseling and additional testing, as appropriate and consistent with treatment guidelines issued by the commissioner of health. Such counseling may include a discussion of the risk of the transmission of the human immunodeficiency virus (HIV) from the exposure the volunteer ambulance worker may have experienced and the spectrum of tests commercially available for the prompt and reliable diagnosis of such infection. Information from any such medical examination of a volunteer ambulance worker shall be confidential information pursuant to article twenty-seven-F of the public health law and shall not be made available to the ambulance company without the written authorization of the affected volunteer ambulance worker.

3. Payment for medical examinations, additional testing, treatment services, counseling services, and any other additional services provided pursuant to this section shall be a covered benefit under this chapter.

4. For the purposes of this section, the term "significant risk of transmission" means the alleged conduct or actions taken by a victim or patient or any other action, situation or event that occurs while a volunteer ambulance worker is performing services in the line of duty that has created a recognized and significant risk of infection of a volunteer ambulance worker with the human immunodeficiency virus (HIV), as determined by the commissioner of health, consistent with guidelines, protocols, and findings of the United States centers for disease control and prevention.

5. For purposes of this section, the term "medical examination" includes a physical examination or test performed by a physician or other appropriate health care worker to determine if a volunteer ambulance worker has been exposed to or infected by the human immunodeficiency virus (HIV). Tests may include, but not be limited to, the most accurate, sensitive, and timely tests available used for the early identification of the human immunodeficiency virus (HIV).

6. The commissioner of health shall issue guidelines to facilitate the identification of circumstances potentially exposing a volunteer ambulance worker to a significant risk of transmission of the human immunodeficiency virus (HIV). Such guidelines shall be consistent with criteria accepted by the federal centers for disease control and prevention. Such guidelines shall also provide information regarding related counseling and testing procedures available to such individuals.

7. Any information gathered pursuant to the provisions of this section which is deemed confidential under any other provision of law shall be treated in a confidential manner.

51. Fund for reopened cases

HISTORY:
Add, L 1988, ch 24, § 31, eff Jan 1, 1989.

1. The provisions of section twenty-five-a of the workers' compensation law shall be applicable as fully as if set forth in this chapter, except that, other than with respect to the annual assessment under such section, payments to an executor or administrator of the estate of a volunteer ambulance worker pursuant to subdivision two of section seven of this chapter shall not constitute payment of benefits for the purpose of determining the amount of the payment to the fund for reopened cases. Benefits paid to volunteer ambulance workers and other persons entitled to benefits under this chapter from the fund for reopened cases shall be in accordance with the provisions of this chapter.

2. The insurance carrier or entity responsible for payment of benefits paying such benefit increase shall claim for such benefit increase reimbursement from the special fund for reopened cases commencing one year from the date of the first such payment and annually thereafter while such payments continue, on a form prescribed by the chair.

3. The insurance carrier or entity responsible for paying the benefit increase provided in chapter two hundred thirty-three of the laws of two thousand four and the benefit increase provided in the chapter of the laws of two thousand five that added this subdivision shall claim for such benefit increase reimbursement from the special fund for reopened cases commencing one year from the date of the first such payment and annually thereafter while such payments continue, on a form prescribed by the chair.

4. All carriers shall pay benefits in conformance with rates set forth in section eight of this chapter without awaiting modification by the board of any prior inconsistent award.

§ 2. Purpose.

One of the finest traditions of American community life is the service which people render to others without remuneration. Volunteer firefighters have long been in the forefront of this group. In recognition of the unselfish service by these volunteers, government has undertaken to provide for them and their families some measure of protection against loss from death or injuries in line of duty. Over the years there has developed a dual system of benefits when volunteer firefighters are killed or injured. The dual system has caused uncertainty and confusion. This law establishes a new single system of benefits for volunteer firefighters and provides for the administration of such system by the workers' compensation board and the chairman of such board.

It is hereby declared that this chapter is intended to effectuate the objects and purposes of section eighteen of article one of the state constitution and that the relationship between the political subdivision liable for benefits under this chapter and a volunteer firefighter entitled to such benefits is that of employer and employee within the meaning of such provision of the state constitution.

HISTORY:

Add, L 1956, ch 696; amd, L 1957, ch 751, § 1, eff Apr 19, 1957; L 2018, ch 476, § 263, effective December 28, 2018.

Amendment Notes The 2018 amendment by ch 476, § 263, substituted "firefighters" for "firemen" or variants in the second, third, and last sentences, and in the second paragraph; and substituted "workers'" for "workmen's" in the last sentence.

Notes to Decisions

Evidence which established, inter alia, that death of volunteer fire chief from myocardial infarction caused by coronary thrombosis which supervising assignment of fire truck to assist two other fire districts was caused by stress related to his duties was sufficient to sustain finding that death resulted from services in line of duty for purposes of Volunteer Firemen's Benefit Law. Rigali v Colonie, Verdoy Fire Dist., 47 A.D.2d 507, 367 N.Y.S.2d 570, 1975 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9526 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1975).

The term "injury" as used in Volunteer Firemen's Benefit Law as a predicate to recovery of benefits requires only a disablement resulting from services "in line of duty" and not an "accidental injury arising out of and in the course of employment." Rigali v Colonie, Verdoy Fire Dist., 47 A.D.2d 507, 367 N.Y.S.2d 570, 1975 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9526 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1975).

Although Workmen's Compensation Board did not specifically find ultimate fact of "injury" in regard to volunteer fireman's benefit claim, where sole issue litigated was causal relationship between volunteer fireman's death and his duties as district fire chief, a finding of injury was implicit in Board's finding that death was causally related to his duties. Rigali v Colonie, Verdoy Fire Dist., 47 A.D.2d 507, 367 N.Y.S.2d 570, 1975 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9526 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1975).

The rights of a volunteer fireman injured in line of duty are now defined by this law, as amended, but it does not extend to injuries suffered by a volunteer fireman's wife by reason of a miscarriage resulting from shock upon learning of her husband's injury. Smith v Plandome, 28 Misc. 2d 793, 213 N.Y.S.2d 119, 1961 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3311 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1961).

A volunteer fireman is in "the public service" and a public servant, despite the fact that he receives no salary, in view of the fact that he is entitled to certain statutory benefits and exemptions, and an applicant to membership in a volunteer fire company may not be denied employment solely on racial grounds. Everett v Riverside Hose Co., 261 F. Supp. 463, 1966 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 10491 (S.D.N.Y. 1966).

UNDER FORMER GEN MUN L § 205

1. In general

This section is applicable where the decedent and negligent employee were members of same department performing governmental function. Ottmann v Rockville Centre, 248 A.D. 592, 287 N.Y.S. 367, 1936 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6448 (N.Y. App. Div. 1936), aff'd, 273 N.Y. 205, 7 N.E.2d 102, 273 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 205, 1937 N.Y. LEXIS 1193 (N.Y. 1937), modified, 275 N.Y. 270, 9 N.E.2d 862, 275 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 270, 1937 N.Y. LEXIS 1426 (N.Y. 1937).

The fact that paid members of city fire department are members of state retirement system cannot be construed to mean that city is maintaining a pension fund contemplated by subd. 1, paragraph a. Raymond v North Tonawanda, 259 N.Y.S. 908, 145 Misc. 297, 1932 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1284 (N.Y. County Ct. 1932).

A village discharged its duty to a volunteer fireman where it provided the coverage required by this section and the applicable provisions of the Workmen's Compensation Law even though there would be no award of compensation since deceased had no surviving spouse, child or dependent parent. General Municipal Law § 50-a was not applicable. Poulakis v Freeport, 7 Misc. 2d 1005, 162 N.Y.S.2d 737, 1957 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3287 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1957).

2. Constitutionality

The section does not offend "due process of law" clause of constitution, and legislature in directing town to pay certain sum where fireman is injured or loses his life in subjugation of fire acted within its constitutional authority. In re Young's Estate, 266 N.Y.S. 532, 148 Misc. 431, 1933 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1298 (N.Y. County Ct. 1933), rev'd, 241 A.D. 188, 272 N.Y.S. 167, 1934 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8204 (N.Y. App. Div. 1934).

3. Purpose

This section does not contemplate compensation for consequences of diseases or ailments which do not arise out of injury suffered at fire or in course of performance of duties as volunteer fireman. Trumm v Long Beach, 246 A.D. 747, 283 N.Y.S. 805, 1935 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10029 (N.Y. App. Div. 1935), app. dismissed, 275 N.Y. 538, 11 N.E.2d 738, 275 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 538, 1937 N.Y. LEXIS 1515 (N.Y. 1937).

The purpose of the section is remedial and it should be liberally construed. Petition of Lattrell, 136 N.Y.S.2d 836, 206 Misc. 766, 1954 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3529 (N.Y. County Ct. 1954), aff'd, 286 A.D. 937, 143 N.Y.S.2d 73, 1955 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4545 (N.Y. App. Div. 1955).

4. Construction, generally

The charter of the city of Fulton, which was incorporated after the statute of 1895 was in effect, provides that call men connected with fire department shall be entitled to same privileges as are accorded by law to volunteer firemen. Upon examination and construction of statutes cited, the word "privileges" as used in the provision giving to call men "the same privileges and exemptions as are accorded by the laws of this state to volunteer firemen" is synonymous with the word "rights," and hence when plaintiff's intestate became one of call firemen there was read into his contract with city a provision of the statute providing for payment to him, if injured, sum specified by statute or to his representative in case of his death. Hammond v Fulton, 220 N.Y. 337, 115 N.E. 998, 220 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 337, 1917 N.Y. LEXIS 974 (N.Y. 1917).

Words "within one year thereafter," should be construed as relating to time of death following injury and not time for payment by municipality following death. Turk v Canandaigua, 244 A.D. 600, 280 N.Y.S. 65, 1935 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5885 (N.Y. App. Div. 1935).

While the word "call," as used in former § 205, subd. 4, must be construed liberally, still a fire district should not necessarily be assumed to have called all firemen of neighboring districts who happen to hear its fire alarm. Wieszczecinski v Sloan, 258 A.D. 858, 15 N.Y.S.2d 958 (N.Y. App. Div. 1939), reh'g denied, 258 A.D. 1033, 17 N.Y.S.2d 862, 1940 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8711 (N.Y. App. Div. 1940).

The word "call," as used in subd. 4, means call made by any one in district or territory immediately in need of fire help. In re Brown, 211 N.Y.S. 807, 125 Misc. 600, 1925 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1037 (N.Y. County Ct. 1925).

This section, being remedial statute enacted for relief of volunteer firemen in recognition of their meritorious public service, should receive liberal rather than narrow and restricted construction. Smith v Sea Cliff, 263 N.Y.S. 679, 146 Misc. 685, 1933 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1073 (N.Y. County Ct. 1933).

5. Relation to other laws

This section is not an exclusive remedy, and plaintiff has right to maintain action on theory of negligence in operation of a fire truck under Highway Law § 282-g. Filing of claim by plaintiff is not an election of remedies. Ottmann v Rockville Center, 241 A.D. 843, 271 N.Y.S. 391, 1934 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9984 (N.Y. App. Div. 1934).

That town charges are enumerated in Town Law, § 170, does not conflict with subd. 4 of this section making sum to be paid to fireman or his estate a town charge also. Re Young's Estate (1933) 148 Misc 431, 266 NYS 532, revd (1934) 241 App Div 188, 272 NYS 167.; Young v Kortright, 244 A.D. 45, 278 N.Y.S. 180, 1935 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5753 (N.Y. App. Div.), aff'd, 268 N.Y. 676, 198 N.E. 553, 268 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 676, 1935 N.Y. LEXIS 1144 (N.Y. 1935).

This section is in no way modified or changed by General Municipal Law § 209. In re Young's Estate, 266 N.Y.S. 532, 148 Misc. 431, 1933 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1298 (N.Y. County Ct. 1933), rev'd, 241 A.D. 188, 272 N.Y.S. 167, 1934 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8204 (N.Y. App. Div. 1934).

The legislature in enacting Town Law, § 67, did not expressly alter or amend this section. In re Gilbert, 300 N.Y.S. 790, 165 Misc. 222, 1937 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1988 (N.Y. County Ct. 1937), app. dismissed, 254 A.D. 814, 4 N.Y.S.2d 753, 1938 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7729 (N.Y. App. Div. 1938).

A fire district may not purchase insurance under Town Law, § 176(19), to protect persons who may not legally be members of the fire district fire department. 1953 Ops St Compt File #6074.

6. —To Worker's Compensation Law

A claim by the widow of a deceased volunteer fireman for the death benefits under Workmen's Compensation Act is dismissed where only death benefits she is entitled to were already paid under § 205. Wiltse v Owego, 288 N.Y. 519, 41 N.E.2d 928, 288 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 519, 1942 N.Y. LEXIS 1372 (N.Y. 1942).

The determination of the Workmen's Compensation Board dismissing the claim of a volunteer fireman for compensation for injuries suffered while attending a parade and competitive drill were not a bar to a proceeding under this section where the Compensation Law does not make provisions for attending drills, parades or inspections and such provisions are made in this section. Weiss v Franklin Square & Munson Fire Dist., 309 N.Y. 52, 127 N.E.2d 804, 309 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 52, 1955 N.Y. LEXIS 929 (N.Y. 1955).

Liability for workmen's compensation for the death or injury to volunteer firemen begins only where the special statutory liability provided in this section ends and no liability arose against the fire company or fire district for workmen's compensation benefits until these had exceeded the amount for which the town was liable under a judgment of the county court. Schraeder v Mendon Volunteer Fire Co., 278 A.D. 986, 105 N.Y.S.2d 895, 1951 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5449 (N.Y. App. Div. 1951).

Payment of $3,000 death benefits under § 205 to the widow of a member of a volunteer fire department suspended payment of death benefits under the Workmen's Compensation Law, but did not relieve the employer of all liability. Grimes v Albion, 279 A.D. 486, 111 N.Y.S.2d 319, 1952 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4702 (N.Y. App. Div. 1952).

The sum recovered by a volunteer fireman under this section, while attempting to answer a fire alarm, should be credited against an award for total disability benefits made under the Workmen's Compensation Law. Brundage v Westons Mills Volunteer Fire Dep't, 1 A.D.2d 854, 149 N.Y.S.2d 3, 1956 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6290 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1956).

The benefits available to volunteer firemen are integrated under the General Municipal Law and the Workmen's Compensation Law. Municipal corporations in fire districts are empowered to procure insurance indemnifying against liability imposed under Workmen's Compensation Law, but such contracts of insurance must also indemnify against the liability imposed under the General Municipal Law. It would be anomalous if the benefits provided by one statute constituted a liability of the town while the benefits payable under the other constituted a liability of a fire district. Bauman v Irondequoit, 122 N.Y.S.2d 47, 204 Misc. 494, 1953 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1809 (N.Y. Sup. Ct.), aff'd, 282 A.D. 916, 125 N.Y.S.2d 250, 1953 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5406 (N.Y. App. Div. 1953).

Members of a fire department emergency relief squad are covered by the provisions of this section and the Workmen's Compensation Law when performing services in case of fire, accident, public calamity or other emergency. 1955 Ops St Compt File #7303.

Volunteer firemen who are members of an emergency relief squad may respond to calls for assistance from territory outside the area regularly protected and such squads are covered by the provisions of this section and the Workmen's Compensation Law when performing services in case of fire, accident, public calamity or other emergency. 1956 Ops St Compt File #7846.

7. Entitlements to benefits, generally

Allowance of a claim for pension by the widow of a volunteer fireman, killed in performance of duty, was barred by subd. 1, par. a, where no pension system existed for the benefit of paid members of a city fire department, and volunteer firemen neither had pension system nor were members of state retirement system. Raymond v North Tonawanda, 259 N.Y.S. 908, 145 Misc. 297, 1932 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1284 (N.Y. County Ct. 1932).

The widow of a volunteer fireman killed in the performance of duty whose claim for pension was barred by subd. 1, par. a, is entitled to award of $2500 as prescribed in subd. 1, par b. Raymond v North Tonawanda, 259 N.Y.S. 908, 145 Misc. 297, 1932 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1284 (N.Y. County Ct. 1932).

Nonvisibility of the injury was not fatal to recovery under the section. Biegel v North Hills, 57 N.Y.S.2d 412, 185 Misc. 131, 1945 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2256 (N.Y. County Ct. 1945).

Claims against the village for benefits solely under this section may be determined by the village board of trustees. 1952 Ops St Compt File #5906.

A volunteer fireman injured in the performance of his duties as such is entitled to benefits from the first day of his disability. 1953 Ops St Compt File #6147.

An injured volunteer fireman who is also a village employee is entitled to benefits from the village under this section during his period of disability notwithstanding the fact that at the same time he is receiving full sick-leave pay as a village employee. 1955 Ops St Compt File #7535.

8. Active membership requirement

Where a claimant is not actually an "active" member of volunteer fire company, but is performing duties of an active member at time of his injury he is entitled to the benefits conferred by this section. In re Cole, 189 A.D. 306, 178 N.Y.S. 451, 1919 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4651 (N.Y. App. Div. 1919).

In proceeding under this section, the defense that the decedent was not member of volunteer fire department because he was admitted to the department before he had reached age specified in by-laws thereof, and that his membership had been cancelled for failure to pay dues was not sustained when these conditions had been waived by the fire department and the town board. Urban v Pendleton, 236 N.Y.S. 383, 134 Misc. 782, 1929 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1229 (N.Y. County Ct. 1929).

Village of Castleton-on-Hudson has no responsibility or liability to incorporated fire companies which constitute fire department other than that imposed by statute. 1945 Ops St Compt 215.

Where person ceases to be member of volunteer fire company and there is no compliance with subdivision 24 of § 176, Town Law, he is not entitled to benefits provided by § 205, Gen. Mun. Law. 1947 Ops St Compt 317.

Volunteer fireman entitled to benefits even though membership dues are not paid up. 1950 Ops St Compt File #4707.

A fire district may not purchase insurance under Town Law, § 176(19), to protect persons who may not legally be members of the fire district fire department. 1953 Ops St Compt File #6074.

"Firemen" of unincorporated private group organized to fight fire in town outside villages and fire districts are not entitled to statutory financial benefits provided for volunteer firemen of duly organized volunteer fire companies. 1955 Ops St Compt File #7379.

All members of a volunteer fire company must be active members. The law does not recognize inactive classifications. 1955 Ops St Compt File #7510.

A fire district or municipality is not liable for payment of benefits to member of a ladies' auxiliary injured while attending a fire. 1956 Ops St Compt File #8028.

All members of a volunteer fire company must be active members in order to be entitled to benefits in the case of injury or death. 1956 Ops St Compt File #8070.

9. Performance of duty requirement

The right to compensation, of dependents of decedent fireman, is not destroyed because he was extinguishing fire in his own home. Hommel v Saugerties, 253 A.D. 84, 1 N.Y.S.2d 208, 1937 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5114 (N.Y. App. Div. 1937), aff'd, 278 N.Y. 588, 16 N.E.2d 113, 278 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 588, 1938 N.Y. LEXIS 1415 (N.Y. 1938).

A volunteer fireman who operated a service station with a grease pit and received burns resulting in death while assisting a neighbor from the pit, accidentally set afire by decedent, was not precluded from recovery because the fire was caused by decedent's own negligence, or that no fire alarm had been turned in, or that the decedent may have been actuated, in part, by the personal motive to save the life he had placed in peril. Sahr v North Tonawanda, 254 A.D. 645, 3 N.Y.S.2d 415, 1938 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6861 (N.Y. App. Div.), aff'd, 278 N.Y. 595, 16 N.E.2d 116, 278 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 595, 1938 N.Y. LEXIS 1419 (N.Y. 1938).

Petitioner, an active member of the volunteer fire department of respondent towns, is entitled to relief under § 205 for the injuries suffered while attending firemen's parade and inspection. Brown v Gates, 266 A.D. 640, 44 N.Y.S.2d 703, 1943 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3638 (N.Y. App. Div. 1943), aff'd, 292 N.Y. 663, 56 N.E.2d 94, 292 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 663, 1944 N.Y. LEXIS 1821 (N.Y. 1944).

Death from coronary thrombosis within approximately half an hour after the deceased fireman finished driving a fire truck to and from a fire, sustained a finding under this section, that he died from injuries incurred in the performance of his duties as a volunteer fireman. Jacobs v Mamaroneck, 274 A.D. 811, 79 N.Y.S.2d 793, 1948 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3467 (N.Y. App. Div. 1948).

A volunteer fireman was within the coverage of this section where he was injured after he had participated in exercises, contests and a parade in a neighboring village and while on the way to assist the other village's department in putting out a fire in that village. Stevens v Smyrna, 281 A.D. 918, 119 N.Y.S.2d 807, 1953 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3767 (N.Y. App. Div. 1953).

The decedent was not engaged in performance of the duties of fireman where he was killed while accompanying the chief of fire department to another town on fire apparatus for purpose of borrowing grappling hooks. Urban v Pendleton, 236 N.Y.S. 383, 134 Misc. 782, 1929 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1229 (N.Y. County Ct. 1929).

The death of a decedent must have occurred while he was engaged in performances of duties as fireman. Urban v Pendleton, 236 N.Y.S. 383, 134 Misc. 782, 1929 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1229 (N.Y. County Ct. 1929).

The decedent died as result of injuries incurred while in performance of his duty as volunteer fireman, where decedent must have received his burns either while actually trying to put out flames caused by his pouring kerosene over fire in stove in his kitchen or while trying to escape from the dangerous situation in which he had placed himself as result of his attempt to put out said flames, and mere fact that the fire was in his home and may have resulted from his negligence and that no alarm had been sounded, does not preclude recovery. Bennett v Wolcott, 29 N.Y.S.2d 365, 177 Misc. 768, 1941 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2076 (N.Y. County Ct. 1941), aff'd, 263 A.D. 932, 33 N.Y.S.2d 392, 1942 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7416 (N.Y. App. Div. 1942).

Where a volunteer fireman was at the firehouse to procure gasoline ration necessary for his attending fires, and about a half hour after signing application was struck in eye by ping pong bat while watching game being played he was held to have received his injuries while performing duties as volunteer fireman. There was no obligation on his part to leave the firehouse immediately after signing such application. May v Mt. Vernon, 50 N.Y.S.2d 441, 182 Misc. 248, 1944 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2353 (N.Y. County Ct. 1944).

A volunteer fireman who was killed when he fell from a fire truck while it was on its way to participate in a parade in a neighboring town was clearly engaged in an act included within the purview of the protective provisions of subdivision 3 of this section, as amended by the laws of 1951. Hutter v Brookhaven, 127 N.Y.S.2d 8, 205 Misc. 1, 1954 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1927 (N.Y. County Ct. 1954).

Court held that participating in parades was not limited to parades in which firemen were ordered or compelled to participate, for purposes of statute providing for death payments. Hutter v Brookhaven, 133 N.Y.S.2d 170, 206 Misc. 345, 1954 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2141 (N.Y. County Ct. 1954).

Compensation should be made to the widow of a deceased volunteer fireman who died from burns received while in the performance of his duty even though he was fighting a fire in his own home. Petition of Lattrell, 136 N.Y.S.2d 836, 206 Misc. 766, 1954 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3529 (N.Y. County Ct. 1954), aff'd, 286 A.D. 937, 143 N.Y.S.2d 73, 1955 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4545 (N.Y. App. Div. 1955).

Where injuries sustained by the petitioner, a volunteer fireman, were the direct and instantaneous result of initial explosion occasioned by an act of petitioner, there is no basis for recovery under § 205 in absence of convincing proof that he sustained injuries while in performance of his duties as a fireman. Demeo v Eastchester, 33 N.Y.S.2d 967, 1942 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1448 (N.Y. County Ct. 1942).

The negligence of claimant in causing the injuries to himself is not fatal to recovery, under subd. 3, if in fact he was injured while performing his duties as a fireman. Demeo v Eastchester, 33 N.Y.S.2d 967, 1942 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1448 (N.Y. County Ct. 1942).

If a volunteer fireman is injured while participating in an outing or clambake or while engaging in a sport as a member of a departmental athletic team, he is not protected by the provisions of this section and § 10 of the Workmen's Compensation Law. 1949 Ops St Compt File #4042.

Volunteer firemen, who respond to calls in a fire district "emergency vehicle" on occasions not involving fire, accident, public calamity or other emergency, will not be entitled to benefits provided by § 205 of the General Municipal Law or section 10 of the Workmen's Compensation Law, if they are, or should be, aware that the occasion is not one of those mentioned above. 1951 Ops St Compt File #5411.

Discussion re compensation coverage of volunteer firemen and others while participating in parade. 1951 Ops St Compt File #5485.

Members of a village fire department are protected through compensation for injuries or death while attending any drill or parade in which their department engages as a unit, within or without the state, providing such members have been ordered to attend. 1952 Ops St Compt File #5906.

The "home territory" of a volunteer fire company is liable for the payment of benefits, adjudged to be payable where a member of such company is injured or killed while attending a fire company meeting, a fire drill, a tournament or a parade and inspection when authorized to do so. 1954 Ops St Compt File #6714.

The conduct of fund-raising activities by volunteer firemen is within the purposes stated in the usual charter provisions of a volunteer fire corporation. 1955 Ops St Compt File #7124.

Volunteer fireman injured while participating as such in civil defense drill is performing a firemanic duty. Thus, insurance providing coverage in case of injury or death while performing firemanic duty, provides coverage during such drills. 1955 Ops St Compt File #7359.

Generally speaking, volunteer firemen are within the performance of their duties while going to or returning from authorized meetings for purposes of instructing or being instructed in fire duties. 1955 Ops St Compt File #7376.

A volunteer fireman is performing his firemanic duties at a fire until he returns to his point of departure regardless of whether he travels directly to and from the fire or goes and returns via a firehouse to assist with apparatus so long as there is no intervening deviation from his duty. 1955 Ops St Compt File #7558.

10. Injury requirement

Injuries suffered by a fireman during formation of a parade were suffered while attending "drill or inspection" so as to entitle him to relief under § 205. Brown v Gates, 292 N.Y. 663, 56 N.E.2d 94, 292 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 663, 1944 N.Y. LEXIS 1821 (N.Y. 1944).

A volunteer fireman who was drenched with water while attending a fire did not suffer "injury" within the meaning of § 205. Trumm v Long Beach, 246 A.D. 747, 283 N.Y.S. 805, 1935 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10029 (N.Y. App. Div. 1935), app. dismissed, 275 N.Y. 538, 11 N.E.2d 738, 275 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 538, 1937 N.Y. LEXIS 1515 (N.Y. 1937).

Death from coronary thrombosis within approximately half an hour after the deceased fireman finished driving a fire truck to and from a fire, sustained a finding under this section, that he died from injuries incurred in the performance of his duties as a volunteer fireman. Jacobs v Mamaroneck, 274 A.D. 811, 79 N.Y.S.2d 793, 1948 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3467 (N.Y. App. Div. 1948).

Volunteer fireman, injured while responding to a fire call in performance of his duty, is entitled to recover from an incorporated village for loss of wages and medical expenses arising from said injuries, where it appears that he was struck by the village fire apparatus while upon street after unsuccessful attempt to board another fire apparatus immediately ahead of it. Nash v Sea Cliff, 211 N.Y.S. 440, 125 Misc. 267, 1925 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 934 (N.Y. County Ct. 1925).

Volunteer fireman suffered "injury," within meaning of this section, where it appears that when alarm sounded he ran at least two hundred feet from his residence to fire house; that he ascended driver's seat of automotive apparatus and drove to fire; and that after proceeding some distance it was found that he had died from acute dilation of heart. Although he had previously suffered from some sort of heart affliction, dilation of heart which caused his death resulted from exertion and excitement in running to fire house, getting out apparatus and operating it, all in line of his duty as active volunteer fireman. Smith v Sea Cliff, 263 N.Y.S. 679, 146 Misc. 685, 1933 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1073 (N.Y. County Ct. 1933).

Bronchial pneumonia and staphylococcus-septicemia, which resulted from the exposure of a volunteer fireman while attending a fire, constituted "injuries," within the meaning of § 205, subd. 4, as added by L 1941, c 724. Cunningham v New Hartford Oneida County, 36 N.Y.S.2d 9, 178 Misc. 432, 1942 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1722 (N.Y. County Ct.), aff'd, 265 A.D. 906, 38 N.Y.S.2d 571, 1942 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6429 (N.Y. App. Div. 1942).

Although the deceased fireman was suffering from severe chronic heart disease, and injury received in performance of his duties aggravated it and hastened his death, his widow was entitled to recover since there was a direct causal connection between such injury and death. Biegel v North Hills, 57 N.Y.S.2d 412, 185 Misc. 131, 1945 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2256 (N.Y. County Ct. 1945).

The negligence of claimant in causing the injuries to himself is not fatal to recovery, under subd. 3, if in fact he was injured while performing his duties as a fireman. Demeo v Eastchester, 33 N.Y.S.2d 967, 1942 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1448 (N.Y. County Ct. 1942).

11. Residing requirement

Residents of territory outside of a fire district may be appointed members of the fire department of such district if such outside territory is afforded fire protection by the fire department of the fire district, and the board of fire commissioners of the fire district, by resolution, authorizes residents of the outside territory to become members and any such non-resident active member is protected by the provisions of § 205 of the General Municipal Law while going to or returning from a fire within the district. Whether or not the contract of insurance indemnifying the district against the liability imposed by § 205 covers non-resident members of the fire department depends upon the terms of the contract. 1945 Ops St Compt 126.

All of the members of a volunteer fire department of a fire district are entitled to the same privileges regardless of whether they reside within or without the district, including protection under the provisions of § 205 of the General Municipal Law and the provisions of the Workmen's Compensation Law. 1952 Ops St Compt File #5803.

For a discussion of problems involved when volunteer fireman moves from one fire district to an adjoining fire district, see 1953 Ops St Compt File #6207.

Where the qualifications for membership in the fire department of the City of Peekskill require that the member be a resident, membership is forfeited if the member ceases to be a resident of the city, and such person will no longer be protected by the provisions of this section. 1954 Ops St Compt File #6550.

12. Notice and claim requirement

Neither the written notes of a town clerk made from an oral report nor the written notice to an insurance carrier is a compliance with this section. In re Dussing's Estate, 278 A.D. 57, 103 N.Y.S.2d 805, 1951 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3737 (N.Y. App. Div. 1951).

Town officers cannot waive the requirement of written notice. In re Dussing's Estate, 278 A.D. 57, 103 N.Y.S.2d 805, 1951 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3737 (N.Y. App. Div. 1951).

In a proceeding under subd. 4 for determination of certain questions arising from injuries suffered by the members of the village fire department in answering a call in another town, written notice filed with clerk of village within thirty days will permit a recovery, notwithstanding clear intendment of subd. 3 that claim be filed with the clerk of municipality liable therefor.

In re Brown, 211 N.Y.S. 807, 125 Misc. 600, 1925 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1037 (N.Y. County Ct. 1925).

A written notice of claim by volunteer fireman injured while answering fire alarm which was served more than sixty days after injuries were received is insufficient notice under this section, on which to base allowance for medical treatment and loss of earnings. A communication mailed by secretary of fire company to town clerk stating that fireman had met with accident and had been injured was purely voluntary and without knowledge of claimant and not at his direction. Kibler v Alden, 272 N.Y.S. 692, 151 Misc. 915, 1934 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1418 (N.Y. County Ct. 1934).

It is unnecessary to serve notice of claim on a village to recover, under § 205, subd. 1, par. b, for the death of a volunteer fireman from injuries allegedly incurred while in performance of his duties. Bennett v Wolcott, 29 N.Y.S.2d 365, 177 Misc. 768, 1941 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2076 (N.Y. County Ct. 1941), aff'd, 263 A.D. 932, 33 N.Y.S.2d 392, 1942 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7416 (N.Y. App. Div. 1942).

The defense that petitioner gave no notice of injury to comptroller of city as required by § 205 was properly sustained and recovery denied, although notice was prepared and given to corporation counsel. May v Mt. Vernon, 50 N.Y.S.2d 441, 182 Misc. 248, 1944 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2353 (N.Y. County Ct. 1944).

Procedure for giving notice of injury and filing claims discussed. 1954 Ops St Compt File #6624.

13. Who is liable

Under this section a call from some adult person having appreciation of perils involved and aid needed is sufficient to create obligation against town requesting assistance. Young v Kortright, 244 A.D. 45, 278 N.Y.S. 180, 1935 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5753 (N.Y. App. Div.), aff'd, 268 N.Y. 676, 198 N.E. 553, 268 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 676, 1935 N.Y. LEXIS 1144 (N.Y. 1935).

If a fireman is injured while fighting a fire on state or Federal property, the municipality within which such fire occurred is liable as provided in § 205 of the General Municipal Law. 1947 Ops St Compt 44.

Where fire district situated in two towns, both are liable for payment of benefits for death of firemen. Method of pro rating shares. 1947 Ops St Compt 207.

After June 30, 1953, the law is clear that fire districts, as such, are liable for firemanic benefits payable under this section and the Workmen's Compensation Law and that such districts, and not the town, must pay for contracts of insurance to protect against such liability. 1953 Ops St Compt File #6195.

The "home territory" of a volunteer fire company is liable for the payment of benefits, adjudged to be payable where a member of such company is injured or killed while attending a fire company meeting, a fire drill, a tournament or a parade and inspection when authorized to do so. 1954 Ops St Compt File #6714.

Where a village fireman is injured while rendering fire protection service to an area of a town outside of the village and outside of a fire district, the town must provide for the payment of benefits. If the town has not secured insurance by one of the prescribed methods, it must pay the benefits and charge the cost back upon the fire protection district, the fire alarm district or the unorganized territory in which the fire occurred. 1954 Ops St Compt File #6742.

Discussion re liabilities arising out of fire on New York State Thruway relative to (1) benefits to volunteer firemen, (2) damage to apparatus or equipment and (3) tort liability. 1955 Ops St Compt File #7593.

14. —For injuries beyond territorial limits

A volunteer fireman, who was captain of a village emergency relief squad, was injured while transporting a sick woman from her home to a hospital located outside the village. The request for this service came from a hospital located outside the village. Such requests were customarily honored, with the approval of the village trustees. Whether the accident happened within or without the village, plaintiff was entitled to disability benefits and medical expenses. In re Hanna, 3 A.D.2d 791, 160 N.Y.S.2d 319, 1957 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6206 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), app. denied, 3 N.Y.2d 705, 1957 N.Y. LEXIS 1320 (N.Y. 1957).

The town where fire company is located is not liable for any injuries suffered by the fireman in performance of his duty at a fire which his company was called to extinguish in neighboring town. In re Gilbert, 300 N.Y.S. 790, 165 Misc. 222, 1937 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1988 (N.Y. County Ct. 1937), app. dismissed, 254 A.D. 814, 4 N.Y.S.2d 753, 1938 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7729 (N.Y. App. Div. 1938).

Where a volunteer fireman, while attending a volunteer fireman's convention in another village, was injured while attempting to volunteer his services on the occasion of a fire during the convention, since his services had not been accepted, he is not entitled to recovery from the latter village, but since he was attending the convention under the terms of § 205 of the General Municipal Law, his own village was liable for his compensation. Stevens v Smyrna, 93 N.Y.S.2d 775, 196 Misc. 944, 1949 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2991 (N.Y. County Ct. 1949), aff'd, 281 A.D. 918, 119 N.Y.S.2d 807, 1953 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3767 (N.Y. App. Div. 1953).

Where a town volunteer fireman had been summoned to assist two men caught in a manhole in a fire district and suffered asphyxiation in his efforts to release the two men, the decedent at the time of his death was an employee of the fire district and not of the defendant town. Hence, his common law action against the fire district should be dismissed on the ground that the Workmen's Compensation Law was a complete bar to such an action but the motion to dismiss the complaint against the town should have been denied. Bauman v Irondequoit, 122 N.Y.S.2d 47, 204 Misc. 494, 1953 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1809 (N.Y. Sup. Ct.), aff'd, 282 A.D. 916, 125 N.Y.S.2d 250, 1953 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5406 (N.Y. App. Div. 1953).

A town may pay a claim for loss, damage, expense or cost incurred by a fire department or fire company in rendering aid to territory of a town outside of a city, village, fire district, fire protection district or fire alarm district as provided by §§ 205 and 209 of the General Municipal Law. 1945 Ops St Compt 122.

Town may not pay volunteer fireman value of clothing damaged while answering a call for assistance in territory of the town outside of the fire district. 1946 Ops St Compt 187.

Volunteer fireman is entitled to the benefits of § 205 when injured while attending a fire outside of a fire district, even though no call for assistance has been made. 1946 Ops St Compt 336.

If a fireman of one district is injured while attending a fire in another fire district, he cannot recover workmen's compensation benefits covered by insurance carrier of such other district. 1947 Ops St Compt 44.

If a fireman of one district is injured while attending a fire in another district, he must look to such other district for the benefits prescribed by § 205 of the General Municipal Law. 1947 Ops St Compt 44.

Where volunteer firemen, members of an incorporated fire company, are participating in civil defense drills held outside the territory normally protected by them, the town in which the fire company is located is liable for injury to such firemen during such test drills. 1951 Ops St Compt File #5408.

Municipality or district issuing call for assistance is liable for benefits of firemen injured or killed and for equipment damaged and materials used. 1953 Ops St Compt #6285.

Village insurance does not cover its volunteer firemen engaged in protecting property in fire district pursuant to a contract. Fire district is liable in such case. Board of fire commissioners may not delegate to village board the power to purchase insurance to cover such liability. 1953 Ops St Compt File #6326.

Where the town board has not limited or restricted outside assistance by a volunteer fire company, a member thereof is protected by this section while fighting fires on an Indian reservation situated within the town. The town is liable for benefits in the first instance and may insure against such liability. 1953 Ops St Compt File #6396.

Unprotected area in town from which call for assistance is issued is liable for expense of fire department answering such call and for benefits payable to volunteer firemen under this section and Workmen's Compensation Laws. 1953 Ops St Compt File #6403.

Where a village fireman is injured while rendering fire protection service to an area of a town outside of the village and outside of a fire district, the town must provide for the payment of benefits. If the town has not secured insurance by one of the prescribed methods, it must pay the benefits and charge the cost back upon the fire protection district, the fire alarm district or the unorganized territory in which the fire occurred. 1954 Ops St Compt File #6742.

Members of fire police squads are covered under this section and § 10 of the Workmen's Compensation Law and other sections related thereto when injured outside of the village while rendering services pursuant to a mutual aid arrangement or while rendering services pursuant to a contract between the fire protection district and the village of which their fire company and fire police squad is a part. 1955 Ops St Compt File #7238.

Village is not liable for injuries to its volunteer firemen while furnishing fire protection outside village. Town board may, at request of village, include village in a single policy of insurance indemnifying against liability for benefits. 1955 Ops St Compt File #7311.

The area which calls for assistance is liable for damages to the fire equipment and also cost of workmen's compensation for volunteer firemen injured at a fire. 1955 Ops St Compt File #7638.

Volunteer firemen who are members of an emergency relief squad may respond to calls for assistance from territory outside the area regularly protected and such squads are covered by the provisions of this section and the Workmen's Compensation Law when performing services in case of fire, accident, public calamity or other emergency. 1956 Ops St Compt File #7846.

15. Indemnification and subrogation

Where the widow of a volunteer fireman employed by a municipal corporation was awarded death benefits at the rate of $12.60 per week from the date of death, and the employer carried an insurance policy in the amount of $3,000, the action of the board in directing payment of the $3,000 into the aggregate trust fund was mandatory. Richter v Islip-Fire Dep't, 276 A.D. 42, 92 N.Y.S.2d 844, 1949 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3108 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), modified, 276 A.D. 806, 92 N.Y.S.2d 844, 1949 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3377 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1949).

An insurance policy provided for in § 205 is not an indemnity contract. Employers' Liability Assurance Corp. v Daley, 51 N.Y.S.2d 567, 183 Misc. 975, 1944 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2575 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1944), aff'd, 271 A.D. 662, 67 N.Y.S.2d 233, 1947 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5116 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1947).

Where a town secured policy of insurance from the plaintiff to cover payments required by § 205 to reimburse its volunteer firemen for medical expenses and time lost from their usual vocations, as result of injuries suffered in performance of their duties, the plaintiff insurance company and town were not entitled to subrogation to the rights of injures volunteer firemen who brought actions against third persons and received settlements, since loss insured against was not the same loss for which defendant firemen sought to recover. Employers' Liability Assurance Corp. v Daley, 51 N.Y.S.2d 567, 183 Misc. 975, 1944 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2575 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1944), aff'd, 271 A.D. 662, 67 N.Y.S.2d 233, 1947 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5116 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1947).

Residents of territory outside of a fire district may be appointed members of the fire department of such district if such outside territory is afforded fire protection by the fire department of the fire district, and the board of fire commissioners of the fire district, by resolution, authorizes residents of the outside territory to become members and any such non-resident active member is protected by the provisions of § 205 of the General Municipal Law while going to or returning from a fire within the district. Whether or not the contract of insurance indemnifying the district against the liability imposed by § 205 covers non-resident members of the fire department depends upon the terms of the contract. 1945 Ops St Compt 126.

Where there is no fire district in a town and no tax for fire protection purposes is levied, the town board may not expend town funds for the purchase of public liability insurance upon a truck owned by and licensed in the name of an unincorporated volunteer fire company furnishing fire protection services in the town. The town board may, however, expend town funds for the purchase of insurance indemnifying the town against any loss by reason of the liability imposed by § 205 of the General Municipal Law. 1945 Ops St Compt 176.

Municipality or fire district, or insurance carrier thereof, has no right of subrogation against third party tortfeasor for amounts paid to volunteer firemen under this section, but does have such right in relation to "excess benefits" under Workmen's Compensation Law. 1955 Ops St Compt File #7198.

A town may use general town funds in the first instance to purchase insurance indemnifying a fire protection district against the liability for volunteer firemen's benefits. 1955 Ops St Compt File #7592.

16. What benefits are recoverable

Under this section an injured fireman may recover one-half of the amount payable to his widow or administrator but nothing of that payable to his widow for benefit of children. Henderson v Glen Cove, 274 N.Y. 575, 10 N.E.2d 559, 274 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 575, 1937 N.Y. LEXIS 966 (N.Y. 1937).

Subdivision 3 of this section provides for reimbursement for medical attention and loss of wages occasioned by the injuries suffered by a voluntary fireman in the line of duty, irrespective of whether the injuries resulted in permanent or temporary disability. Accordingly, petitioner, permanently disabled volunteer fireman, is entitled to an order directing town of Brookhaven, to reimburse him for moneys expended for medical treatment and loss of earnings, though it appears that town has already paid him amount provided for in the second paragraph of subd. 3 of this section by reason of permanent disability. In re Westphal, 259 N.Y.S. 303, 144 Misc. 729, 1932 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1235 (N.Y. County Ct. 1932), aff'd, 240 A.D. 851, 266 N.Y.S. 1015, 1933 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6698 (N.Y. App. Div. 1933).

Volunteer fireman was entitled to be reimbursed for expenses of replacing artificial leg broken while he was performing his duty. Ort v Yulan Fire Dep't, 3 Misc. 2d 613, 155 N.Y.S.2d 40, 1956 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1565 (N.Y. County Ct. 1956).

For method of computation of benefits under county mutual self-insurance plan, see 1953 Ops St Compt File #6188.

1. In general

There is no statute which requires an employer to pay an employee for time during his regular work hours while he is performing the duties of a volunteer fireman. 1960 NY Ops Atty Gen Sept 13 (informal).

2. Relation to other laws

3. —To Worker's Compensation Law

The board of commissioners of a fire district established under the provisions of Town Law are authorized to insure volunteer firemen constituting members of department under provisions of Workmen's Compensation Law. 1935 N.Y. Op. Att'y Gen. No. 352.

Volunteer firemen, when participating in inter- or intra-county test runs, are performing required duty and enjoy the same rights, protections, immunities and privileges they have when performing duty in their home territories. On such test runs, home territories are responsible for damage to their own equipment. If such test runs are ordered as part of civil defense plan, the broader privileges and immunities provided by the Defense Emergency Act would apply. 1951 NY Ops Atty Gen May 25.

4. Entitlements to benefits, generally

A statutory provision is made for the death and disability benefits for village volunteer firemen, where firemen are victims of accidents arising out of their service. 1926 N.Y. Op. Att'y Gen. No. 240.

5. Active membership requirement

Honorary, active, life members are not "volunteer members" of the fire department entitled to benefits under General Municipal Law, § 205, and under Workmen's Compensation Law, § 10. 1960 NY Ops Atty Gen May 2 (informal).

6. Who is liable

7. —For injuries beyond territorial limits

Volunteer firemen, when participating in inter- or intra-county test runs, are performing required duty and enjoy the same rights, protections, immunities and privileges they have when performing duty in their home territories. On such test runs, home territories are responsible for damage to their own equipment. If such test runs are ordered as part of civil defense plan, the broader privileges and immunities provided by the Defense Emergency Act would apply. 1951 NY Ops Atty Gen May 25.

8. Indemnification and subrogation

The moneys payable to injured volunteer firemen or their legal representatives are to be raised in the manner specified in act, and indemnity insurance is not authorized for this purpose. 1928 N.Y. Op. Att'y Gen. No. 139.

Volunteer firemen must perform their firemanic duties without remuneration and a town board is not authorized to compensate them for such. 1966 NY Ops Atty Gen Feb 14.

While temporary paid employment of a volunteer fireman for stand-by duties would disqualify him for benefits under this law if he were injured during such temporary service, his status as a member of a volunteer fire department or fire company would not be affected thereby. 1967 NY Ops Atty Gen May 15.

§ 3. Definitions

As used in this chapter:

1. "Volunteer firefighter" means an active volunteer member of a fire company.

2. "Fire company" means:

a. A fire company of a county, city, town, village or fire district fire department, whether or not any such company has been incorporated under any general or special law,

b. A fire corporation incorporated under or subject to the provisions of article ten of the membership corporations law, which is not included within paragraph a above, if such corporation is by law under the general control of, or recognized as a fire corporation by, the governing board of a city, town, village or fire district, or

c. A fire corporation incorporated under, or established pursuant to the provision of, any general or special law, which is not included within paragraphs a and b above, if such corporation is by law under the general control of, or recognized as a fire corporation by, the governing board of a city, town, village or fire district or Indian reservation.

Any district corporation which has the general powers of and operates as a fire district shall be considered as a fire district for the purposes of this chapter. A "fire department" may be composed of one or more fire companies.

3. "Line of duty" means the performance by a volunteer firefighter as a volunteer firefighter of the duties and activities described in subdivision one of section five of this chapter and the same such duties and activities performed for a specialized team established pursuant to the provisions of section two hundred nine-bb of the general municipal law for which the volunteer firefighter does not receive any remuneration or a gratuity and shall be deemed to include any date of injury as determined by the workers' compensation board pursuant to the provisions of section forty-one of this chapter. The following shall not be deemed to be remuneration or a gratuity: reimbursement of expenses for meals, lodging and actual and necessary travel; the receipt of a mileage allowance in lieu of travel expense; reimbursement of expenses for registration and tuition fees payable under section seventy-two-g of the general municipal law, and the acceptance of transportation, food, drink, shelter, clothing and similar items while on duty or engaged in such activities.

4. "Injury" includes any disablement of a volunteer firefighter that results from services performed in line of duty and such disease or infection as may naturally and unavoidably result from an injury.

5. "Child" includes a posthumous child, a child legally adopted prior to the injury of the volunteer firefighter; and a step-child or acknowledged child born out of wedlock dependent upon the deceased volunteer firefighter.

6. "Surviving spouse" means the legal spouse of a deceased volunteer firefighter, but shall not include a spouse who has abandoned the deceased. The term "abandoned", as used in this subdivision, means such an abandonment as would be sufficient under section two hundred of the domestic relations law to sustain a judgment of separation on that ground.

7. "Dependent" includes a surviving spouse entitled to receive benefits under this chapter, whether or not actually dependent upon a volunteer firefighter, unless a contrary meaning is clearly intended.

8. "Earning capacity", except as herein provided, means:

a. The ability of a volunteer firefighter to perform on a five-day or six-day basis either the work usually and ordinarily performed by him or her in his or her remunerated employment or other work which for any such worker would be a reasonable substitute for the remunerated employment in which he or she was employed at the time of his or her injury, or

b. The ability of a volunteer firefighter to perform on a five-day or six-day basis either the work usually and ordinarily performed by him or her in the practice of his or her profession or in the conduct of his or her trade or business, including farming, and from which he or she could derive earned income or other work which for any such person would be a reasonable substitute for the profession, trade or business in which he or she was engaged at the time of his or her injury.

Every volunteer firefighter shall be considered to have earning capacity and, if the provisions of paragraphs a and b above are not applicable in any given case, the workers' compensation board, in the interest of justice, shall determine the reasonable earning capacity of the volunteer firefighter with due regard to the provisions of such paragraphs and the work he or she reasonably could be expected to obtain and for which he or she is qualified by age, education, training and experience. The ability of a volunteer firefighter to perform the duties of a volunteer firefighter, or to engage in activities incidental thereto, may be considered in determining loss of earning capacity, but the inability of a volunteer firefighter to perform such duties or to engage in such activities shall not be a basis of determining loss of earning capacity.

9. "State" includes all territory within the boundaries of the state of New York, including territory which has been or may hereafter be ceded to the federal government or to the United Nations and territory within the boundaries of Indian reservations.

10. "Political subdivision" mean a county, city, town, village or fire district.

11. "State fund" means the state insurance fund provided for in article six of the workmen's compensation law.

12. "County plan of self-insurance" means a county plan of self-insurance under article five of the workmen's compensation law.

13. "Insurance carrier" means the state fund, the stock corporations, mutual corporations or reciprocal insurers described in subdivision nine of section thirty of this chapter, a county plan of self-insurance, or a self-insuring political subdivision. For purposes of this chapter, a nonprofit property/casualty insurance company which is licensed pursuant to subsection (b) of section six thousand seven hundred four of the insurance law shall be deemed a stock corporation and a nonprofit property/casualty insurance company which is licensed as a reciprocal insurer pursuant to subsection (c) of section six thousand seven hundred four of the insurance law shall be deemed a reciprocal insurer.

14. "Emergency" includes the search for persons and the search for, and attempts to recover or the recovery of, bodies of persons even though it is possible or is known that all hope of life is gone.

15. "Fund raising activity" means a method of raising funds to effectuate the lawful purposes of a fire company, but shall not include any method prohibited by the state constitution or the penal statutes of this state, public fireworks displays unless conducted in compliance with section 405.00 of the penal law. Such term "fund raising activity" shall not include drills, parades, inspections, reviews, competitive tournaments, contests or public exhibitions, described in paragraphs e and i of subdivision one of section five of this chapter, even though prizes are awarded at such events. Such fund raising activity must comply with all the requirements of section two hundred four-a of the general municipal law.

16. "Minor" or "infant" means a person who has not attained the age of eighteen years.

17. The "workers' compensation rating board" or the "New York workers' compensation rating board" shall have the meaning set forth in section two of the workers' compensation law.

[1960] This act was recommended by the Joint Legislative Committee on Fire Laws.

Laws 1974, ch 933, § 2, provides as follows:

§ 2. This act shall take effect on the first day of September, nineteen hundred seventy-four, but shall not be construed to alter, change, affect, impair or defeat any rights, obligations or interests heretofore accrued, incurred, or conferred prior to the effective date of this act.

Laws 2007, ch 6, § 80, eff March 13, 2007, provides as follows:

§ 80. The superintendent of insurance [superintendent of financial services], in consultation with the chair of the workers' compensation board, may promulgate regulations relating to the standards to be followed in the approval of forms and in the procedural requirements needed to implement the provisions of this act, and the chair of the workers' compensation board, in consultation with the superintendent of insurance [superintendent of financial services], may promulgate regulations relating to the procedural requirements needed to implement the provisions of this act.

Amendment Notes: 2013. Chapter 57, § 28 (Part GG) amended:

Sub 6 by deleting at fig 1 "wife of a deceased male volunteer fireman or the legal husband of a deceased female volunteer fireman, as the case may be,", at fig 2 "eleven hundred sixty-one of the civil practice act" and adding the matter in italics.

2008. Chapter 11, § 5 amended:

Sub 17 by deleting at fig 1 "mean the compensation insurance rating board until February first, two thousand eight, and thereafter such entity as is designated by law" and adding the matter in italics.

2000. Chapter 598, § 9 amended:

Sub 13 by adding the matter in italics.

1996. Chapter 458, § 1 amended:

1. In general

There is no apparent incompatibility per se between the offices of town fire district fire company line officer and town fire prevention officer. 1968 Ops St Compt File #18.

2. Earning capacity

Since claimant's actual earnings after the accident exceeded those prior to the accident, he would not be entitled to benefits under the Workmen's Compensation Law, however, under the Volunteer Firemen's Benefit Law, neither the degree of disability nor the amount of benefits is dependent on loss of earnings; benefits being instead measured solely by loss of earning capacity, i.e., loss of ability of the injured fireman to perform the work usually performed by him or a reasonable substitute employment. Verrilli v Harrison, 34 A.D.2d 1074, 312 N.Y.S.2d 340, 1970 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4253 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1970), aff'd, 28 N.Y.2d 882, 322 N.Y.S.2d 719, 271 N.E.2d 553, 1971 N.Y. LEXIS 1335 (N.Y. 1971).

Despite the absence of any loss of earnings, a volunteer fireman, whose remunerative employment was as a plumber-steamfitter and who was injured in line of duty as a volunteer fireman, resulting in permanent partial disability, was entitled to an award using the test of "loss of earning capacity," defined as a loss of ability to perform the work usually performed by him or a reasonable substitute employment. O'Brien v Central Islip Fire Dist., Volunteer Firemen's Co., 37 A.D.2d 890, 325 N.Y.S.2d 433, 1971 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3181 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1971).

Workers' compensation claimant had earning capacity as defined by CLS Vol Fire Ben § 3(8) where, although he was 74 years old and retired at time of his injury, he was acting in his capacity as volunteer firefighter, and his expert medical witnesses substantiated finding that he was capable of gainful employment, both before and after accident, but that injuries sustained by him in line of duty severely limited type of work that he could perform. Ziegler v Chenango County Self-Insurance Plan, 242 A.D.2d 781, 661 N.Y.S.2d 867, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8633 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1997).

Decision finding that claimant did not suffer loss of earning capacity was not supported by substantial evidence where it was unrefuted that, after his injury, claimant could work only fraction of number of hours per week he had previously devoted to his self-employment as attorney; Workers' Compensation Board erroneously relied on fact that claimant was currently earning more than he had at time of accident. Young v Moyers Corners Fire Dep't, 243 A.D.2d 883, 663 N.Y.S.2d 326, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10131 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1997).

Court would affirm determination finding that claimant suffered permanent partial disability where evidence, including expert medical testimony, reports of physicians' examinations, and clinical records, showed that claimant was unable to resume his profession as skilled gunsmith following his injuries because he could no longer operate heavy machinery necessary to manufacture and repair firearms, compelling him to shift focus of his business from manufacture, sale, and repair of custom firearms to retail sale of firearms. Dentico v Village of Walworth, 254 A.D.2d 515, 677 N.Y.S.2d 831, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9968 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1998).

Workers' Compensation Board, which classified claimant as having permanent partial disability, properly found that he did not suffer loss of earning capacity under CLS Vol Fire Ben § 3(8) where he returned to his regular job duties as electrician following both accidents, his chiropractor did not impose any restrictions on his work subsequent to first accident, at time of second accident, claimant had different employment entailing assembly of electrical components at work bench, which he stated did not require any heavy lifting, and it was not until about one year later when claimant's back condition was exacerbated that chiropractor imposed restrictions on lifting and bending; claimant's testimony that such limitations precluded him from applying for higher paying and more physically demanding positions was irrelevant as to whether he suffered loss of earning capacity under Volunteer Firefighters' Benefit Law. Griffo v Onondaga Hill Volunteer Fire Dep't, 256 A.D.2d 858, 681 N.Y.S.2d 835, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13578 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1998).

Volunteer firefighter was entitled to disability benefits if he or she established a loss of earning capacity defined as the ability to perform on a five-day or six-day basis work usually and ordinarily performed in his or her remunerated employment or a reasonable substitute therefor; medical evidence, which established that an injured firefighter suffered a moderate partial disability, permanent in nature, precluding his return to any employment, including the trucking industry, together with the injured firefighter's testimony, constituted substantial evidence supporting the findings of a permanent partial disability with a 50 percent impairment in his earning capacity. Allen v Brentwood Fire Dist., 1 A.D.3d 657, 766 N.Y.S.2d 259, 2003 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11575 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2003).

Workers' Compensation Board did not err in awarding benefits under N.Y. Vol. Fire. Ben. Law § 3(8), where the employee, a steamfitter for the past 35 years, was unlikely to receive clearance to return to work and was therefore entitled to disability benefits, and his treating physician testified that the injuries sustained to his right foot and left knee caused consequential injuries to his right knee and back, such that due to the labor-intensive nature of steamfitting, he was permanently disabled from resuming this type of employment. Donlin v W. Babylon Fire Dist., 1 A.D.3d 813, 767 N.Y.S.2d 305, 2003 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12627 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2003).

3. Fund raising activity

A village can be held vicariously liable for Dram Shop Act violations committed by volunteer firefighters during fundraising events, but not for misconduct during social activities. 1990 Atty Ops Gen No. 90-64 (Informal), 1990 N.Y. Op. Att'y Gen. No. 90-64, 1990 N.Y. AG LEXIS 68.

4. Injury

Notwithstanding conflicting medical testimony as to casualty, there was sufficient evidence to sustain a finding of the Board that death of a volunteer fireman 53 years of age while driving a fire truck which was a 12-ton combination tanker and pumper and which he was unaccustomed to handling on icy roads, from a heart attack, was due to unaccustomed physical strain and tension. Post v Hughsonville Fire Dist., 16 A.D.2d 999, 229 N.Y.S.2d 554, 1962 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9077 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1962).

Although Workmen's Compensation Board did not specifically find ultimate fact of "injury" in regard to volunteer fireman's benefit claim, where sole issue litigated was causal relationship between volunteer fireman's death and his duties as district fire chief, a finding of injury was implicit in Board's finding that death was causally related to his duties. Rigali v Colonie, Verdoy Fire Dist., 47 A.D.2d 507, 367 N.Y.S.2d 570, 1975 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9526 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1975).

The term "injury" as used in Volunteer Firemen's Benefit Law as a predicate to recovery of benefits requires only a disablement resulting from services "in line of duty" and not an "accidental injury arising out of and in the course of employment." Rigali v Colonie, Verdoy Fire Dist., 47 A.D.2d 507, 367 N.Y.S.2d 570, 1975 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9526 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1975).

Workers' Compensation Board properly determined that claimant, as 16-year-old member of junior corps of town fire department, became active member of department and was entitled to benefits provided by Volunteer Firefighters' Benefit Law following injury incurred while operating his vehicle in response to fire alarm, since members of junior corps were required to respond to alarms once school day was completed, they were under direction and control of chief of department, and their duties at scene were consistent with those of active firefighter save for certain limitations such as not entering building that is scene of fire; furthermore, given these facts, junior corps is not youth program and thus its members are not excluded from benefits by operation of CLS Gen Mun § 204-b. Elander v Pleasantville Fire Dist., 124 A.D.2d 388, 507 N.Y.S.2d 334, 1986 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 61399 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1986), app. denied, 69 N.Y.2d 608, 516 N.Y.S.2d 1023, 509 N.E.2d 358, 1987 N.Y. LEXIS 16376 (N.Y. 1987).

Claim for a hip injury was barred as untimely under either N.Y. Workers' Comp. Law § 28 or N.Y. Vol. Fire. Ben. Law § 41 because the evidence showed that the hip condition was a direct injury from the claimant's August 2005 accident, and, although a claim for other injuries had been established, the claimant did not make a claim for the hip injury until April 2008 despite experiencing hip pain as early as November 2005. Matter of Hilbrandt v Village of Red Hook, 75 A.D.3d 1025, 906 N.Y.S.2d 183, 2010 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6370 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2010).

Volunteer firemen who are members of an emergency rescue and first aid squad would seem to be covered under the Volunteer Firemen's Benefit Law where they contract a contagious disease while responding to a call for general ambulance service if the squad is authorized to furnish such service pursuant to § 209-b of the General Municipal Law. Disability benefits do not include full reimbursement for lost wages from the firemen's regular job, nor are members of the volunteer firemen's family covered. 1983 Op St Comp File #83-115.

5. Line of duty

The death of a volunteer fireman while marching in a Memorial Day parade was properly found to have occurred "in the line of duty", and consequently, his widow was properly awarded death benefits pursuant to provisions of the Volunteer Firemen's Benefit Law. Sullivan v Delphi Falls Fire Co., 29 A.D.2d 584, 285 N.Y.S.2d 682, 1967 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2756 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1967).

Evidence which established, inter alia, that death of volunteer fire chief from myocardial infarction caused by coronary thrombosis which supervising assignment of fire truck to assist two other fire districts was caused by stress related to his duties was sufficient to sustain finding that death resulted from services in line of duty for purposes of Volunteer Firemen's Benefit Law. Rigali v Colonie, Verdoy Fire Dist., 47 A.D.2d 507, 367 N.Y.S.2d 570, 1975 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9526 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1975).

Evidence which established, inter alia, that sole cause of volunteer fireman's collapse from heart seizure while participating in firemen's parade was an underlying arteriosclerotic heart disease and that occurrance of collapse during course of parade was only coincidental was sufficient to sustain finding that claimant did not sustain injury in the line of duty, within volunteer firemen's benefit law. De Witta v Bay Shore Fire Dist., 47 A.D.2d 981, 367 N.Y.S.2d 116, 1975 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9466 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1975).

Volunteer firemen assigned to duty at a stock car race track for the purpose of providing fire protection and emergency services in case of accident are performing firemanic functions and within the protection of this law. 1961 Ops St Compt #317.

Volunteer firemen who are specially trained in scuba diving and under-water recovery work are covered by the Volunteer Firemen's Benefit Law when they are called out to assist neighboring volunteer fire companies in diving to recover the bodies of victims of drowning and similar incidents. 1966 Ops St Compt File #745.

6. Political subdivision

The fact that a fire district is defined as a political subdivision does not preclude it from also being defined as an agency within the intendment of Volunteer Firemen's Law § 19. Pollini v Fuller Road Fire Dep't, 39 A.D.2d 554, 331 N.Y.S.2d 732, 1972 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4992 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1972), aff'd, 34 N.Y.2d 744, 357 N.Y.S.2d 502, 313 N.E.2d 793, 1974 N.Y. LEXIS 1594 (N.Y. 1974).

7. Volunteer fireman

A volunteer fireman belonging to a unit outside the territory protected, who was injured while rendering emergency service in helping the local unit fight a fire, has no right of action against the local unit or municipality, notwithstanding his injuries are caused by defective equipment, in view of § 209-i of the General Municipal Law, his exclusive remedy being under § 19 of this act. Smith v Plandome, 28 Misc. 2d 793, 213 N.Y.S.2d 119, 1961 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3311 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1961).

If the chief inspector of the bureau of fire prevention of a fire department of a first class village is paid a salary, he may be ineligible for benefits under this law as a paid fireman rather than a volunteer. 1960 Ops St Compt File #880.

An individual volunteer fireman who is summoned by a town supervisor to assist in extinguishing a forest fire is a town employee and not within the protection of the Volunteer Firemen's Benefit Law. 1961 Ops St Compt #326.

Unless a village has restricted outside service by volunteer firemen pursuant to §§ 209 or 209-b of the General Municipal Law, village volunteer firemen who are answering a call for assistance in rendering emergency relief squad service by ambulance outside the village are within the coverage of this section with respect to personal injuries sustained. 1961 Ops St Compt #576.

A fire corporation, if specifically so authorized by charter, may organize a junior fire department, but the members thereof would not be considered volunteer firemen and would not be entitled to benefits under this act. 1963 Ops St Compt #129.

Inactive membership in a volunteer fire company is not recognized by law. 1963 Ops St Compt #344.

Volunteer members of a fire district fire department who are compensated for service on stand-by duty during emergencies are not within the coverage of this law. 1963 Ops St Compt #588.

Whether firemen who have been designated "active honorary volunteer firemen", but not subject to fine or penalty for failure to respond to calls, are entitled to benefits under this law presents a question of fact depending upon whether they are to be deemed volunteer firemen; if not, they are not entitled to benefits. 1963 Ops St Compt #655.

The fact that a fire district secretary receives compensation for his services does not render him ineligible for compensation benefits under this law. 1964 Ops St Compt #533.

Volunteer firemen who are specially trained in scuba diving and under-water recovery work are covered by the Volunteer Firemen's Benefit Law when they are called out to assist neighboring volunteer fire companies in diving to recover the bodies of victims of drowning and similar incidents. 1966 Ops St Compt File #745.

If a volunteer fireman receives payment as a full or part-time dispatcher, and if such activity is firemanic, the fireman's power to act as a volunteer fireman is temporarily suspended. 1967 Ops St Compt File #465.

A volunteer fireman may be hired by the fire district as an independent contractor to provide painting, snow removal, grading, plumbing and other maintenance work without affecting his status as a volunteer fireman. 1967 Ops St Compt File #465.

Insurance coverage normally carried by a fire district includes protection for volunteer firemen and firefighting equipment while fighting fires on real property within the fire district which is not taxed for fire protection purposes. 1968 Ops St Compt File #1016.

Only an active volunteer fireman is entitled to benefits, pursuant to the Volunteer Firemen's Benefit Law, for injuries sustained in the performance of his prescribed duties. 1972 Ops St Compt File #279.

An auxiliary policeman who volunteers his services to the chief engineer of a fire district department at the scene of a fire, but is not himself a volunteer fireman, and sustains injuries, is not entitled to any benefits under this law or the Workmen's Compensation Law. 1963 Ops St Compt #329.

A volunteer fireman, who responds to a request for assistance outside the area regularly served by his department is entitled to volunteer firemen's benefits if his injury occurred after his assistance was accepted by a department or company commander engaged in handling a fire. 1968 Ops St Compt File #665.

A county that administers a county self-insurance plan under Article 5 of the Workers' Compensation Law may not decline to cover an individual volunteer firefighter who has been duly approved for membership in a fire department. N.Y. Op. Att'y Gen. No. 84-62.

2. Fund raising activity

A fund raising activity conducted by a volunteer fire company must be under the "exclusive auspices" of such fire company to be a covered activity such as is contemplated in the Volunteer Firemen's Benefit Law and the General Municipal Law. 1979 NY Ops Atty Gen August 15 (informal).

3. Line of duty

A paid secretary of a volunteer fire company who is injured while attending one of the monthly fire company meetings is not injured "in line of duty" as defined in this section and not eligible for benefits. 1961 NY Ops Atty Gen Sept 5.

A "water ball fight" between fire companies is in the nature of a competitive training program or a recreational or social activity, and injury sustained by a volunteer fireman while participating therein is not covered by this law. 1962 NY Ops Atty Gen Sept 11.

4. Volunteer fireman

Volunteer "fireman" is an active volunteer member of a fire company who is subject to call for duty and who does not have the option of determining whether to place himself on duty. 1958 NY Ops Atty Gen Dec 16 (informal).

A village fire department may respond to a call for assistance from an Indian Reservation unless there is a resolution restricting such response. Volunteer firemen injured in the course of such response are covered under the Volunteer Firemen's Benefit Law. 1959 NY Ops Atty Gen Sept. 10 (informal).

There is no statutory restriction upon the appointment to volunteer fire companies of persons who are suffering from some physical disabilities; nor does the Volunteer Firemen's Benefit Law limit the coverage of such persons. 1960 NY Ops Atty Gen Jan 12 (informal).

Definition of active member. 1960 NY Ops Atty Gen Oct 13 (informal).

Active honorary members of a fire company must be subject to call for duty, without option of whether they will or will not place themselves on duty, in order to be eligible for benefits under this law. 1961 NY Ops Atty Gen Aug 2.

A volunteer fire company may answer calls for assistance outside the area regularly served and the members are covered under the Volunteer Firemen's Benefit Law while answering such calls. 1961 NY Ops Atty Gen Oct 20.

Only "active" volunteer members of a fire company are entitled to the benefits of this act, and a chaplain or physician may not be accorded its benefits by artificially designating him as an active fireman if he answers a specified percentage of firemanic calls. 1961 NY Ops Atty Gen May 23.

A member of a volunteer fire company who enters active duty in the Armed Forces is not covered by the Volunteer Firemen's Benefit Law. 1962 NY Ops Atty Gen June 4.

This law has no application to a volunteer fireman rendering aid to a peace officer in keeping peace and order or quelling a riot, and his remedy for loss or damage sustained, like that of any other person, is under § 1848 of the Penal Law. 1963 NY Ops Atty Gen Aug 26.

Volunteer firemen are covered by volunteer firemen's benefits while answering calls outside of areas regularly served by fire companies. Gratuities accepted by a fire company do not affect firemen's benefits. 1965 NY Ops Atty Gen Mar 8.

Volunteer firemen must perform their firemanic duties without remuneration and a town board is not authorized to compensate them for such. 1966 NY Ops Atty Gen Feb 14.

Youths of 16 to 18 years of age may be admitted to membership as volunteer firemen of an incorporated fire company if the bylaws or constitution of the company so provide and the board of fire commissioners of the fire district have taken no positive action to the contrary. Only as such volunteer firemen would they be covered by the Volunteer Firemen's Benefit Law. Though not prohibited by statute, Town police officers' duties may make their membership as volunteer firemen inadvisable. There is, however, no such conflict of duty in the case of Town Highway employees. 1970 NY Ops Atty Gen March 6.

The laws relating to volunteer firemen recognize only active volunteer members of fire companies and only such active volunteer members are protected in case of injury or death in the performance of firemanic duties and are accorded rights and privileges of volunteer firemen. 1970 NY Ops Atty Gen Nov 12.

Members of a rescue team organized within a volunteer fire department to conduct underwater rescue missions and to search for victims are covered by the New York State Volunteer Firemen's Benefit Law when acting in the performance of such duties. 1973 NY Ops Atty Gen Apr 5.

The law recognizes no classifications of membership of volunteer firemen. There is no authority for probationary or provisional appointment of a volunteer member of a volunteer fire company in a town fire district. Because a person elected to membership in a volunteer fire company is not a member until the election is approved by the board of fire commissioners, the person is not entitled to benefits under the Volunteer Firemen's Benefit Law and the person should not be allowed to perform any firemanic duties until the membership becomes effective. 1975 NY Ops Atty Gen Dec 18 (informal).

A minor over the age of sixteen years may serve as a volunteer with a volunteer fire department. A minor would be considered an active volunteer fireman pursuant to Volunteer Firemen's Benefit Law, § 3(1), even though said minor may be subject to compulsory school attendance pursuant to Education Law, §§ 3204–3206, provided that said minor was subject to call for duty and does not have an option of placing himself on duty while not in compulsory school attendance. 1977 NY Ops Atty Gen Apr 11.

The act of classifying a volunteer fireman as an "active member" of a fire company has no bearing on such fireman's entitlement to benefits under the Volunteer Fireman's Benefit Law; a fireman who is on restricted duty may, nevertheless, qualify as an "active member" of the company for the purpose of receiving benefits. 1978 Op St Compt File #1053.

A village may not pay volunteer firemen who are members of the ambulance squad for wages lost when they leave their factory to answer a call for ambulance service nor may it pay the factory for financial losses when the firemen leave the factory for such purpose. Volunteer Firemen's Benefit Law benefits may be affected by such payment. 1980 Op St Compt File #177.

Members of an emergency rescue and first aid squad of a volunteer fire company are covered by the Volunteer Firemen's Benefit Law when responding to calls for assistance outside of the fire protection district which the company serves pursuant to contract with a town, whether the call is pursuant to a mutual aid plan or otherwise. A town cannot contract with the company to provide ambulance service for the area of the town outside of the fire protection district. 1981 Op St Compt File #81-112.

Right of a fire chief to deputize bystanders. Coverage for benefits of persons drafted or volunteering for fire fighting duties. 1960 NY Ops Atty Gen Oct 24 (informal).

While temporary paid employment of a volunteer fireman for stand-by duties would disqualify him for benefits under this law if he were injured during such temporary service, his status as a member of a volunteer fire department or fire company would not be affected thereby. 1967 NY Ops Atty Gen May 15.

Non-residents of a village who live in an area which is furnished fire protection and ambulance service by the village fire department (i.e. a fire protection district) are eligible for membership in the emergency rescue and first aid squad of the village fire department and are entitled to volunteer firemen's benefits for injuries incurred in the line of duty. 1979 Op St Compt File #773.

§ 4. Removal of civil liability barriers

1. (a) Liability protection. (1) A fire company or political subdivision, including a person acting as an agent thereof, that acts reasonably in donating qualified fire control or fire rescue equipment to a volunteer fire company shall not be liable in civil damages under any state law for personal injuries, property damage, or death proximately caused after the donation by a defect in the equipment.

(2) Any state or local agency, including a person acting as an agent of such an agency, that acts reasonably in administering the distribution of qualified fire control or fire rescue equipment to a volunteer fire company or political subdivision shall not be liable for civil damages under any state law for personal injuries, property damage, or death proximately caused after the distribution by a defect in the equipment.

(b) Exceptions to liability protection. Paragraph (a) of this subdivision shall not apply to a person or agency if:

(1) the defect that proximately causes the injury, damage, or loss resulted from an act or omission of the person or agency, that constitutes malice, gross negligence, recklessness, or intentional misconduct;

(2) the person or agency is the manufacturer of the qualified fire control or fire rescue equipment; or

(3) the person or agency modified or altered the equipment after it had been recertified by an authorized technician as meeting the manufacturer's specifications.

2. For the purposes of this section the following words and phrases shall have the following meanings:

(a) "Person" means any individual and any governmental or other entity.

(b) "Qualified fire control or rescue equipment" means fire control or fire rescue equipment that has been recertified by an authorized technician as meeting the manufacturer's specifications and has been distributed through a state or local agency to the volunteer fire company.

(c) "Authorized technician" means a technician that has been certified by the manufacturer of fire control or fire rescue equipment to inspect such equipment. The technician need not be employed by the state or local agency administering the distribution of the fire control or fire rescue equipment.

§ 5. Coverage

1. The duties and activities in relation to which benefits shall be paid and provided pursuant to this chapter are:

a. Necessary travel to, working at, and necessary travel returning from a fire, alarm of fire, hazardous material incident or other emergency to which his fire department, fire company, or any unit thereof, either has responded or would be required or authorized to respond, including necessary travel during such work or incidental thereto.

b. While, within the state, personally assisting another fire department, fire company, or any unit thereof pursuant to the provisions of section two hundred nine-i of the general municipal law, including, after his services have been duly accepted, necessary travel to and returning from such work and necessary travel during such work or incidental thereto.

c. While, within the state and pursuant to orders or authorization, performing duties at the firehouse, or elsewhere, directly related to (1) the prevention of fires or other disasters, (2) the investigation of fires or other disasters, (3) the inspection of property for fire hazards or other dangerous conditions, including necessary travel directly connected therewith.

d. While, within this country or in Canada and pursuant to orders or authorization, instructing or being instructed in fire duties, attending a training school or course of instruction for firefighters, or attending or participating in any noncompetitive training program, including necessary travel directly connected therewith, as well as necessary travel to and necessary travel returning from such activity.

e. While, within this country or in Canada and pursuant to orders or authorization, attending or participating in any drill, parade, funeral, inspection or review in which his fire department, fire company, or any unit thereof, is engaged, including necessary travel directly connected therewith, as well as necessary travel to and necessary travel from such activity.

f. While, within the state and pursuant to orders or authorization, attending or working at meetings of his fire department or fire company, or any organized unit thereof, at the firehouse or other regular or special headquarters of the department, company or unit, including necessary travel directly connected therewith other than travel to or returning from such meetings.

g. While, within the state and pursuant to orders or authorization, working in connection with the construction, testing, inspection, repair or maintenance of (1) the firehouse and the fixtures, furnishings and equipment thereof, and (2) the fire fighting vehicles, fire apparatus and equipment used by the fire department, fire company, or other unit thereof, including necessary travel directly connected therewith other than travel to or returning from such work.

h. While, within the state and pursuant to orders or authorization, working in connection with the construction, testing, inspection, repair or maintenance of the fire alarm system, water supply system, fire well, fire cistern or fire suction pool, used by the fire department or fire company, including necessary travel directly connected therewith, as well as necessary travel to and necessary travel from such activity.

i. While, within this country or in Canada and pursuant to orders or authorization, practicing for, or participating as a contestant or an official in, any competitive tournament, contest or public exhibition conducted for firefighters which is intended to promote the efficiency of the fire department, fire company or any unit thereof, including necessary travel directly connected therewith other than travel to and returning from such practice. The actual rendition of fire or other emergency service shall not be deemed "practicing" within the meaning of this paragraph.

j. While, pursuant to orders or authorization, engaged in the inspection of fire fighting vehicles and fire apparatus prior to delivery under a contract of purchase, or performing duties in relation to the delivery thereof, including necessary travel directly connected therewith, as well as necessary travel to and necessary travel returning from such activity.

k. Necessary travel to, work in connection with, and necessary travel returning from a call for general ambulance service by a member of an emergency rescue and first aid squad which has been authorized to furnish such service pursuant to section two hundred nine-b of the general municipal law, including necessary travel during such work or incidental thereto.

l. While, within this country or Canada and pursuant to orders or authorization, attending a convention or conference of firefighters or fire officers or fire district officers as the authorized delegate or representative of his or her fire department, fire company or any unit thereof, including necessary travel directly connected therewith, as well as necessary travel to and necessary travel returning from such activity.

m. While, within the state and pursuant to orders or authorization, working in connection with a fund raising activity of his or her fire company, as defined in subdivision fifteen of section three of this chapter including necessary travel directly connected therewith, as well as necessary travel to and necessary travel returning from such activity, but shall not include competitive events in which volunteer firefighters are competitors, such as baseball, basketball, football, bowling, tugs of war, water-ball fights, donkey baseball, boxing, wrestling, contests between bands or drum corps, or other competitive events in which volunteer firefighters are competitors and which involve physical exertion on the part of the competitors.

n. While, within the state and pursuant to orders or authorization, performing work or service leading or directing a youth program established pursuant to section two hundred four-b of the general municipal law, including necessary travel directly connected therewith, as well as necessary travel to and necessary travel returning from such activity. This paragraph shall not be interpreted as providing coverage for participants in such youth programs.

o. While, within the state and pursuant to orders or authorization, performing the duty of pumping out water or any other substance from the basement or other part of a building, including necessary travel directly connected therewith.

p. While, within the state and pursuant to orders or authorization, instructing, supervising, being instructed or participating in a supervised physical fitness class, group session or program for the purpose of promoting or maintaining the performance of their duties as firefighters, as well as necessary travel to and necessary travel from such activity, but shall not include competitive sporting events in which volunteer firefighters are competitors.

2. Benefits shall not be paid and provided pursuant to this chapter in the following instances:

a. Work or service rendered by a volunteer firefighter while on a leave of absence pursuant to either section two hundred-b or section two hundred-c of the general municipal law, unless such work or service is performed pursuant to subdivision one-a of section two hundred-b or subdivision one-a of section two hundred-c of the general municipal law, or pursuant to any other general, special or local law, charter or ordinance or pursuant to the constitution, by-laws, rules or regulations applicable to the fire company or fire department of which he or she is a member.

b. Practice for and participation in any recreational, social, or fund raising activity other than a fund raising activity for which coverage is provided under paragraph m of subdivision one of this section.

c. Work or service rendered by a volunteer firefighter while suspended from duty pursuant to section two hundred nine-l of the general municipal law, article eight of the village law or pursuant to any other general, special or local law, charter or ordinance or pursuant to the constitution, by-laws, rules or regulations applicable to the fire company or fire department of which he or she is a member.

d. Work or service not rendered as a volunteer firefighter, but rendered as an officer, official or employee of a public corporation or any special district thereof, whether with or without remuneration, even though by law a requirement for such office, position or employment shall be that such officer, official or employee shall have been or must be a volunteer firefighter.

e. Work or service not rendered as a volunteer firefighter, but rendered in the course of his or her employment for a private employer.

f. Work or service not rendered as a volunteer firefighter, but rendered as a civil defense volunteer.

g. Work, service or activities in which the volunteer firefighter has been ordered not to participate.

This subdivision shall not be deemed to enumerate all of the activities engaged in by volunteer firefighters for which mandatory coverage is not provided by this chapter, or to prohibit any of the activities described in this subdivision, or to prevent the securing of insurance pursuant to section four thousand two hundred thirty-seven of the insurance law to cover volunteer firefighters when engaged in activities other than those for which mandatory coverage is provided by this chapter.

Editor's Note: [1958] This act was recommended by the Joint Legislative Committee on Fire Laws. Section 1 provides mandatory coverage under the Volunteer Firemen's Benefit Law for volunteer firemen practicing or participating in competitive tournaments, contests and public exhibitions intended to promote the efficiency of a fire department, fire company or any unit thereof. Section 2 provides coverage under such law for volunteer firemen attending firemanic conventions as delegates or representatives. Paragraphs a and c of subdivision 2 of section 5 of such law formerly expressly excluded such coverage, except for first aid contests, and were, therefore, repealed by section 3 of this act as inconsistent with the amendments made by sections 1 and 2 of this act. Such first aid contests come within the broader provisions of this act. Subdivision 3 of section 5 of such law permitted tournament coverage on an optional basis and was, therefore, repealed by section 4 of this act. Section 5 of this act gives counties the "home rule" power to decide whether or not their county self-insurance plans will insure the participating political subdivisions against liabilities under the Volunteer Firemen's Benefit Law. If a "plan" does not cover such liabilities, volunteer firemen's benefit insurance would be purchased in the usual way from insurance carriers in the same manner as political subdivisions in 23 counties now secure such insurance.

Editor's Notes: See 1960 note under § 3, supra.

Laws 2005, ch 341, § 4, eff Aug 25, 2005, provides as follows:

§ 4. This act shall take effect on the thirtieth day after it shall have become a law and shall apply to volunteer firefighters who, on or after the effective date of this act, are on a leave of absence pursuant to section 200-b or 200-c of the general municipal law.

1. In general

It can be gleaned from the provisions of this section that this act was not intended to cover volunteer firemen under all circumstances. Hofmann v Hurley, 17 A.D.2d 181, 233 N.Y.S.2d 622, 1962 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7120 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1962).

Workers' Compensation Board properly determined that claimant, as 16-year-old member of junior corps of town fire department, became active member of department and was entitled to benefits provided by Volunteer Firefighters' Benefit Law following injury incurred while operating his vehicle in response to fire alarm, since members of junior corps were required to respond to alarms once school day was completed, they were under direction and control of chief of department, and their duties at scene were consistent with those of active firefighter save for certain limitations such as not entering building that is scene of fire; furthermore, given these facts, junior corps is not youth program and thus its members are not excluded from benefits by operation of CLS Gen Mun § 204-b. Elander v Pleasantville Fire Dist., 124 A.D.2d 388, 507 N.Y.S.2d 334, 1986 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 61399 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1986), app. denied, 69 N.Y.2d 608, 516 N.Y.S.2d 1023, 509 N.E.2d 358, 1987 N.Y. LEXIS 16376 (N.Y. 1987).

It was neither arbitrary nor capricious for Workers' Compensation Board to conclude that volunteer firefighter's fatal heart attack was precipitated by his changing flat tire on fire district vehicle and marching in parade authorized by fire department, thus entitling his widow to benefits under CLS Vol Fire Ben § 5, since cargo area of vehicle had been modified to carry fire equipment which firefighter had to remove in order to extricate spare tire, causing him to return home later than usual and allowing him to rest only one hour prior to parade; although there was conflicting medical testimony as to whether his death was caused by underlying coronary artery disease rather than stress-related acute myocardial infarction, resolution of that issue was for board to decide. Dineen v Islip Fire Dist., 135 A.D.2d 969, 522 N.Y.S.2d 377, 1987 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 52868 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1987).

Workers' Compensation Board improperly ruled that employer was estopped from raising issue of coverage under Volunteer Firefighters' Benefit Law where substantial evidence did not support finding of Workers' Compensation Law Judge, which subsequently was affirmed by Board panel, that instant claim was properly established under Volunteer Firefighters' Benefit Law; further, even assuming that doctrine of laches could be applied, prejudice identified by Board panel—that claimant would be precluded from seeking benefits under Workers' Compensation Law due to expiration of relevant statute of limitations—was unavailing given concession by employer and carrier that claimant had valid claim under Workers' Compensation Law. Moynihan v Moyers Corners Fire Dep't, 254 A.D.2d 584, 681 N.Y.S.2d 93, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11197 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1998).

Workers' Compensation Board, which classified claimant as having permanent partial disability, properly found that he did not suffer loss of earning capacity under CLS Vol Fire Ben § 3(8) where he returned to his regular job duties as electrician following both accidents, his chiropractor did not impose any restrictions on his work subsequent to first accident, at time of second accident, claimant had different employment entailing assembly of electrical components at work bench, which he stated did not require any heavy lifting, and it was not until about one year later when claimant's back condition was exacerbated that chiropractor imposed restrictions on lifting and bending; claimant's testimony that such limitations precluded him from applying for higher paying and more physically demanding positions was irrelevant as to whether he suffered loss of earning capacity under Volunteer Firefighters' Benefit Law. Griffo v Onondaga Hill Volunteer Fire Dep't, 256 A.D.2d 858, 681 N.Y.S.2d 835, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13578 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1998).

Husband was acting in the course of the husbands' volunteer firefighting duties while burning scrap material for a training session at the time of the husband's death thus entitling the wife to benefits, as the death was a direct result of the fire department's training session even though the material was provided by the husband's employer. Van Wert v Schaghticoke Volunteer Fire Dep't, 301 A.D.2d 831, 754 N.Y.S.2d 90, 2003 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 269 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2003).

A volunteer fireman is always protected by coverage and the benefits that accrue thereunder in the event of an injury sustained by him in performance of a service authorized by § 5 of the Volunteer Firemen's Benefit Law, but responsibility for payment of the benefits is imposed in accordance with various other statutory provisions. 1960 Ops St Compt File #956.

2. Answering calls outside territory

The law provides for volunteer firemen's benefits and the payment of cost of damage to apparatus and equipment when volunteer firemen respond to a call for assistance for fire or other emergency on the New York State Thruway. 1962 Ops St Compt #986.

The law provides for volunteer firemen's benefits and payment of cost of damages to apparatus and equipment when volunteer firemen respond to a call for assistance for fire or other emergency in territory outside of of the area regularly served. 1962 Ops St Compt #1017.

3. Effect of salaried performance

If a volunteer fireman receives payment as a full or part-time dispatcher, and if such activity is firemanic, the fireman's power to act as a volunteer fireman is temporarily suspended. 1967 Ops St Compt File #465.

A volunteer fireman may be hired by the fire district as an independent contractor to provide painting, snow removal, grading, plumbing and other maintenance work without affecting his status as a volunteer fireman. 1967 Ops St Compt File #465.

4. Emergency relief teams

The proper procedure to be followed in establishing a general ambulance service in the fire district is set forth generally in § 209-b of the General Municipal Law. Volunteer firemen are covered for injuries they receive in rendering such service under the Volunteer Firemen's Benefit Law §§ 3 and 5. 1959 Ops St Compt File #38.

Volunteer firemen who are members of an emergency relief squad are entitled to the protection of this law where, at the direction or request of a police officer, they are transporting an injured or ill person to a hospital. 1960 Ops St Compt File #824.

Volunteer firemen are covered by the Volunteer Firemen's Benefit Law while on call as members of an emergency rescue and first aid squad. Unless members of the ladies auxiliary are also members of the volunteer fire department, they are not covered by the Volunteer Firemen's Benefit Law. 1967 Ops St Compt File #986.

Active member of volunteer fire department emergency first aid and rescue squad who has not received firefighting training is not precluded from receiving benefits under VFVL for injuries incurred while performing duty or activity enumerated in § 5 of Volunteer Firefighters' Benefit Law. 1987 Op St Compt No. 87-15.

5. Fund raising activities

Where a volunteer fireman was directed by his chief to attend a fund-raising parade, and, following the parade, he attended a block party held in conjunction with the parade and then went to a location across the street from the party, and 3 hours later, when on his way home, he sustained a head injury when he fell from the fire department truck, an award was upheld since the activities entered into by the claimant subsequent to the parade were all localized in the general area of the parade, and were participated in by numerous firemen present at the parade and were, in effect, part and parcel of the day's activities. Myslborski v Greenport Fire Dist., Volunteer Firemen's Co., 38 A.D.2d 646, 327 N.Y.S.2d 203, 1971 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2678 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1971).

A village can be held vicariously liable for Dram Shop Act violations committed by volunteer firefighters during fundraising events, but not for misconduct during social activities. 1990 Atty Ops Gen No. 90-64 (Informal), 1990 N.Y. Op. Att'y Gen. No. 90-64, 1990 N.Y. AG LEXIS 68.

6. Insurance

Insurance coverage normally carried by a fire district includes protection for volunteer firemen and firefighting equipment while fighting fires on real property within the fire district which is not taxed for fire protection purposes. 1968 Ops St Compt File #1016.

7. Non-active members

Volunteer firemen on leaves of absence for military service, infants, and others, who may lend assistance to a fire department in fighting a fire, but are not themselves firemen, are not entitled to the benefits of this law. 1963 Ops St Compt #329.

A volunteer fireman who enters military service does not continue to be an active volunteer fireman and must be given leaves of absence from his company. 1963 Ops St Compt #329.

8. —Ladies' auxiliary

Members of a ladies auxiliary rendering aid to volunteer firemen who are fighting fires or rendering other emergency service are not entitled to volunteer firemen's benefits if injured or killed while so engaged. 1963 Ops St Compt #61.

Volunteer firemen are covered by the Volunteer Firemen's Benefit Law while on call as members of an emergency rescue and first aid squad. Unless members of the ladies auxiliary are also members of the volunteer fire department, they are not covered by the Volunteer Firemen's Benefit Law. 1967 Ops St Compt File #986.

9. Performance of non-firefighting duties

A volunteer fireman, injured while putting up Christmas decorations in the firehouse pursuant to custom of the district to decorate the firehouse inside and outside at that season, who was working under the direction, if not strictly pursuant to orders, of the chief, could properly be found to be within the coverage of this section, and could similarly have been found to be within the coverage thereof if placing flags or putting up bunting on a public building over a patriotic holiday. Paden v Dix Hills Fire Dist., 12 A.D.2d 202, 210 N.Y.S.2d 7, 1961 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13018 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1961).

Annual installation dinner constitutes "inspection or review" within meaning of statute, and myocardial infarction sustained by firefighter during dinner is compensable; statute does not require that meeting must be held at firehouse in order to place firefighter in attendance within line of duty. Coburn v Hewlett Fire Dep't, 111 A.D.2d 1071, 490 N.Y.S.2d 644, 1985 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 50299 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1985).

Workers' Compensation Board properly ruled that volunteer firefighter was covered under CLS Vol Fire Ben § 5 after he collapsed and died from heart attack while marching in town Christmas parade as member of fire department's band since parade was specifically enumerated activity within coverage of statute, and despite fact that fire department never sought permission from fire district board of commissioners to march in parade, decision by department's membership to march therein was sufficient "authorization" under § 5. Dineen v Islip Fire Dist., 135 A.D.2d 969, 522 N.Y.S.2d 377, 1987 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 52868 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1987).

It was reasonable to find that action of volunteer firefighter in changing tire on fire district automobile was activity covered under CLS Vol Fire Ben § 5, which pertains to, inter alia, maintenance of firefighting vehicles, notwithstanding that tire change occurred outside geographical area of district, for in order to readily respond to fire emergencies, firefighter had been supplied with vehicle and permitted to use it for commuting between his home and train station, where he discovered flat tire on returning home from his regular job. Dineen v Islip Fire Dist., 135 A.D.2d 969, 522 N.Y.S.2d 377, 1987 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 52868 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1987).

Workers' Compensation Board properly determined that volunteer firefighter was acting within scope of his duties when he was injured while driving motorcycle with female passenger at 2:00 a.m. after having spent several hours drinking after firefighters' convention where firefighter had attended working session of convention that had lasted well into evening, he had gone to bar seeking meal, bar was no longer serving food, and accident occurred as firefighter and passenger sought nearest open restaurant in next town. Stewart v Chili, 146 A.D.2d 933, 536 N.Y.S.2d 970, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 484 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1989).

Volunteer fireman's claim for damages against the state for injuries sustained while attending a fire school conducted by state employee was barred, since the state was within the purview of § 19(3) which makes the statute the exclusive remedy of an injured volunteer fireman against any person or agency acting under governmental or statutory authority. Rosenberger v State, 46 Misc. 2d 194, 259 N.Y.S.2d 548, 1965 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1936 (N.Y. Ct. Cl. 1965).

Workers' compensation board properly determined that volunteer firefighter was a covered employee under N.Y. Vol. Fire. Ben. Law § 5(2)(e), because substantial evidence supported the finding that work the firefighter was performing on a fire truck when he was injured was done in his capacity as a volunteer firefighter rather than in the firefighter's capacity as a self-employed mechanic. Matter of Schuster v Village of Lake George Fire Dept., 34 A.D.3d 944, 823 N.Y.S.2d 619, 2006 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13220 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2006).

In view of the definition of "emergency" and other provisions of this law, and likewise § 209-b of the General Municipal Law, a volunteer fireman rendering services as such to the sheriff to assist in recovering bodies of persons believed to be drowned is acting within the coverage of the Volunteer Firemen's Benefit Law. 1960 Ops St Compt File #663.

Coverage is not afforded to village firemen who are injured while drawing water for farmers to fill farm cisterns. 1961 Ops St Compt #286.

Where various civic organizations use a central school building for meetings and functions, and the village fire company has been requested to furnish members of its fire police squad to supervise activities with regard to smoking regulations and exits, squad members while rendering such service are "on duty" and have all the powers and duties of peace officers. 1961 Ops St Compt #311.

A volunteer fireman who is injured in course of furnishing floodlights for apprehension of burglars at the request of the police is not engaged in firemanic duties and is not entitled to benefits under this section. 1961 Ops St Compt #824.

Members of a fire police squad assigned to attend meetings or public assemblies for purposes of observing and reporting violations of safety requirements are acting as volunteer firemen not in the capacity of fire police, and, while so engaged, they are covered by the benefit provisions of this law. 1961 Ops St Compt #866.

This section confers the right to volunteer firemen's benefits on such firemen when injured while voluntarily engaged in remodeling a structure for use as a company firehouse pursuant to orders or authorization. 1962 Ops St Compt #413.

By-laws of volunteer fire department may provide for class of membership of volunteer firefighters to perform firemanic functions other than fighting fires, such as dispatching. 1987 Op St Compt No. 87-57.

10. When coverage begins and ends

Whether a volunteer fire department member was acting in line of duty in traveling home from a parade by his company at a neighboring town was for determination by the board, whose finding that he was not would not be overturned where it appeared that attendance was purely voluntary, that he remained over for social activities, and was killed as the result of an automobile accident while leisurely driving back. Sloper v Westport, 13 A.D.2d 566, 212 N.Y.S.2d 362, 1961 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12195 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1961).

Death of a volunteer fireman could be considered as incurred in course of "necessary travel" in connection with firemanic duties where he was found dead in the highway in front of his home, due to apparently having been struck by a passing motorist after alighting from a car of a fellow fireman in which he was driven home following performance of assigned duty in keeping entrance of the firehouse clear from parked cars during a church social taking place next door to the firehouse, there being no witness to the accident. Hofmann v Hurley, 17 A.D.2d 181, 233 N.Y.S.2d 622, 1962 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7120 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1962).

Where a volunteer fireman who was, by trade, a carpenter self-employed but was also a member of a volunteer ambulance unit affiliated with his fire department, was injured by a fall from a ladder after returning from an ambulance trip to retrieve tools and material on the roof of a building, the question of whether his work activity fell within the exclusion in par. e of subd. 2 of this section was one for evaluation by the board which could properly dismiss the claim. Rescigno v Eastchester, 21 A.D.2d 923, 251 N.Y.S.2d 102, 1964 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3356 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), app. denied, 14 N.Y.2d 489, 1964 N.Y. LEXIS 1907 (N.Y. 1964).

Paragraph a of subd. 1 of this section, providing for coverage of a volunteer fireman while necessarily engaged in traveling to or returning from an emergency, contemplates portal-to-portal coverage but ceases when he reaches the place of performance of his private work and becomes engaged in a phase of purely personal endeavor. Rescigno v Eastchester, 21 A.D.2d 923, 251 N.Y.S.2d 102, 1964 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3356 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), app. denied, 14 N.Y.2d 489, 1964 N.Y. LEXIS 1907 (N.Y. 1964).

8. Performance of non-firefighting duties

1. In general

Firemen should respond to call where danger of fire is imminent, as in case of a bomb scare, and should assist in evacuation of premises but should not attempt to search for, remove or neutralize a bomb unless specially trained therefor nor authorize re-entry until such search, removal or neutralization is accomplished by special demolition experts. 1964 NY Ops Atty Gen Apr 30.

A volunteer fireman's entitlement to V.F.B.L. benefits is not dependent upon whether or not the fire vehicle, on which he is responding to a call when injured, utilized a siren and/or red flashing lights. 1979 Op St Compt File #230.

A volunteer member of the emergency rescue and first aid squad of a fire company injured in the line of duty while responding to a call from a fire protection district which the company provides fire protection pursuant to contract would be entitled to coverage under the Volunteer Firemen's Benefit Law regardless of whether or not the contract required the company to provide emergency ambulance service. 1982 Op St Compt File #82-236.

A volunteer fireman acting in that capacity is covered by the VFBL while engaged in assisting in the containment of a spill of hazardous substances. The insurance carrier, of course, would make a determination of coverage in the first instance. 1982 Op St Compt File #82-266.

2. Effect of salaried performance

Volunteer firemen must perform their firemanic duties without remuneration and a town board is not authorized to compensate them for such. 1966 NY Ops Atty Gen Feb 14.

While temporary paid employment of a volunteer fireman for stand-by duties would disqualify him for benefits under this law if he were injured during such temporary service, his status as a member of a volunteer fire department or fire company would not be affected thereby. 1967 NY Ops Atty Gen May 15.

A chief engineer of a volunteer fire department, or other officer who may be called upon to be the acting chief of a volunteer fire department, may not be a paid employee of the department but a volunteer fireman of the fire department may be an employee of the fire department if, and only if, the duties for which he is paid are non-firemanic in nature. If he performs any firemanic duties as a paid employee, then he becomes a paid fireman and is not covered under the provisions of the Volunteer Firemen's Benefit Law. 1974 NY Ops Atty Gen Mar 15 (informal).

3. Emergency relief teams

The governing board of a fire district must conduct a public hearing before authorizing a general ambulance service and the district may furnish such service only if it has an emergency relief squad. Such service is restricted to assistance of disabled persons within the district or residents thereof and the area receiving assistance is liable for injury or death of the volunteer firemen. 1957 NY Ops Atty Gen Oct 7 (informal).

Members of a rescue team organized within a volunteer fire department to conduct underwater rescue missions and to search for victims are covered by the New York State Volunteer Firemen's Benefit Law when acting in the performance of such duties. 1973 NY Ops Atty Gen Apr 5.

Discussion of entitlement of volunteer members of an emergency rescue and first aid squad established prior to the enactment of General Municipal Law § 209-b(2)(e), and authorized to provide general ambulance service, to benefits under the Volunteer Firemen's Benefit Law. 1978 Op St Compt File #207.

Volunteer firemen who are members of an emergency rescue and first aid squad would seem to be covered under the Volunteer Firemen's Benefit Law where they contract a contagious disease while responding to a call for general ambulance service if the squad is authorized to furnish such service pursuant to § 209-b of the General Municipal Law. Disability benefits do not include full reimbursement for lost wages from the firemen's regular job, nor are members of the volunteer firemen's family covered. 1983 Op St Compt File #83-115.

4. Fund raising activities

A fund raising activity conducted by a volunteer fire company must be under the "exclusive auspices" of such fire company to be a covered activity such as is contemplated in the Volunteer Firemen's Benefit Law and the General Municipal Law. 1979 NY Ops Atty Gen August 15 (informal).

5. Insurance

Liability for tournament coverage under Volunteer Firemen's Benevolent Law § 5 must be covered by insurance obtained from the state fund, a stock corporation, a mutual corporation or a reciprocal insurer authorized to write volunteer firemen's benefit insurance. 1957 NY Ops Atty Gen June 11.

6. Non-active members

7. —Ladies' auxiliary

Women who are active members of a volunteer fire company, even though their duties are limited to answering phone calls, are protected by this statute. 1964 NY Ops Atty Gen June 23.

Discussion of coverage of a volunteer fireman after he has entered the Armed Forces. 1963 NY Ops Atty Gen Aug 7.

The act of classifying a volunteer fireman as an "active member" of a fire company has no bearing on such fireman's entitlement to benefits under the Volunteer Fireman's Benefit Law; a fireman who is on restricted duty may, nevertheless, qualify as an "active member" of the company for the purpose of receiving benefits. 1978 Op St Compt File #1053.

8. Performance of non-firefighting duties

A "water ball fight" between fire companies is in the nature of a competitive training program or a recreational or social activity, and injury sustained by a volunteer fireman while participating therein is not covered by this law. 1962 NY Ops Atty Gen Sept 11.

Authorities having control of fire departments and fire companies may organize within such departments or companies fire police squads composed of their volunteer members and, if they are properly ordered to duty to direct traffic at fires, they are covered under Volunteer Firemen's Benefit Law while in performance of such. 1966 NY Ops Atty Gen Sept 15.

The training of Explorer Scouts by volunteer firemen would not seem to fall within volunteer firemen's benefits coverage. 1978 Op St Compt File #381.

Enclosure of Op. No. 77-878, relating to pumping out of cellars by volunteer firemen. 1978 Op St Compt File #410.

§ 6. Volunteer firefighters' benefits; general.

If a volunteer firefighter dies from the effects of injury in line of duty, or if such a firefighter shall be injured in line of duty, benefits shall be paid and provided pursuant to this chapter, except that there shall be no liability for such benefits when the injury has been solely occasioned by intoxication of the volunteer firefighter while acting in line of duty or by the wilful intention of the volunteer firefighter to bring about the injury or death of himself or herself or another.

Notes to Decisions

The death of a volunteer fireman while marching in a Memorial Day parade was properly found to have occurred "in the line of duty", and consequently, his widow was properly awarded death benefits pursuant to provisions of the Volunteer Firemen's Benefit Law. Sullivan v Delphi Falls Fire Co., 29 A.D.2d 584, 285 N.Y.S.2d 682, 1967 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2756 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1967).

Evidence which established, inter alia, that sole cause of volunteer fireman's collapse from heart seizure while participating in firemen's parade was an underlying arteriosclerotic heart disease and that occurance of collapse during course of parade was only coincidental was sufficient to sustain finding that claimant did not sustain injury in the line of duty, within volunteer firemen's benefit law. De Witta v Bay Shore Fire Dist., 47 A.D.2d 981, 367 N.Y.S.2d 116, 1975 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9466 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1975).

Workers' Compensation Board was not required to consider volunteer firefighter's intoxication as basis for denying him benefits for injuries suffered in motorcycle accident where employer failed to prove that intoxication was sole cause of accident. Stewart v Chili, 146 A.D.2d 933, 536 N.Y.S.2d 970, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 484 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1989).

Decision finding that claimant did not suffer loss of earning capacity was not supported by substantial evidence where it was unrefuted that, after his injury, claimant could work only fraction of number of hours per week he had previously devoted to his self-employment as attorney; Workers' Compensation Board erroneously relied on fact that claimant was currently earning more than he had at time of accident. Young v Moyers Corners Fire Dep't, 243 A.D.2d 883, 663 N.Y.S.2d 326, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10131 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1997).

Workers' Compensation Board, which classified claimant as having permanent partial disability, properly found that he did not suffer loss of earning capacity under CLS Vol Fire Ben § 3(8) where he returned to his regular job duties as electrician following both accidents, his chiropractor did not impose any restrictions on his work subsequent to first accident, at time of second accident, claimant had different employment entailing assembly of electrical components at work bench, which he stated did not require any heavy lifting, and it was not until about one year later when claimant's back condition was exacerbated that chiropractor imposed restrictions on lifting and bending; claimant's testimony that such limitations precluded him from applying for higher paying and more physically demanding positions was irrelevant as to whether he suffered loss of earning capacity under Volunteer Firefighters' Benefit Law. Griffo v Onondaga Hill Volunteer Fire Dep't, 256 A.D.2d 858, 681 N.Y.S.2d 835, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13578 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1998).

Benefits paid under volunteer firemen's benfit law are benefits under workmen's compensation law or plan of state within meaning of applicable offset provision of Social Security Act (42 USCS § 405). Beesmer v Heckler, 744 F.2d 10, 1984 U.S. App. LEXIS 18680 (2d Cir. N.Y. 1984).

Although not prohibited by law, it is inadvisable for a volunteer fireman serving one fire district to accept employment as a paid fireman in another district, since, in certain situations, he may jeopardize his rights to benefits pursuant to the Volunteer Firemen's Benefit Law. 1960 Ops St Compt File #255.

It is doubtful that a person regularly employed as a paid fireman will be covered under the Volunteer Firemen's Benefit Law for injuries or death sustained while serving as a volunteer during off-duty periods. 1960 Ops St Compt File #947.

A volunteer fireman who is injured while engaged in firemanic activity for which benefits are provided under this act is not entitled to additional benefits because he is a minor. 1961 Ops St Compt #518.

Volunteer members of village fire companies 16 years of age are entitled to protection afforded by this act. 1963 Ops St Compt #217.

Where a volunteer fireman has entered upon military service but not been granted leave of absence because still available for fire fighting duty, he is covered by the provisions of this law if injured in line of duty while a member of the fire company. 1964 Ops St Compt #35.

There is no apparent incompatibility per se between the offices of town fire district fire company line officer and town fire prevention officer. 1968 Ops St Compt File #18.

UNDER FORMER WORK COMP L § 10

1. In general

Claimant, volunteer fireman, sustained accident in firehouse of fire district in 1952. Both town and fire district carried workmen's compensation insurance policy. Decision holding fire district's carrier solely liable for medical payments in excess of $500 affirmed. Doremus v Tallman Fire Dist., 5 A.D.2d 945, 172 N.Y.S.2d 285, 1958 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6490 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1958).

Where a town volunteer fireman had been summoned to assist two men caught in a manhole in a fire district and suffered asphyxiation in his efforts to release the two men, the decedent at the time of his death was an employee of the fire district and not of the defendant town. Hence, his common law action against the fire district should be dismissed on the ground that the Workmen's Compensation Law was a complete bar to such an action and a motion to dismiss the complaint against the town should have been denied. Bauman v Irondequoit, 122 N.Y.S.2d 47, 204 Misc. 494, 1953 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1809 (N.Y. Sup. Ct.), aff'd, 282 A.D. 916, 125 N.Y.S.2d 250, 1953 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5406 (N.Y. App. Div. 1953).

A volunteer fireman injured in the performance of his duties as such is entitled to benefits from the first day of his disability. 1953 Ops St Compt File #6147.

2. Constitutionality

3. Relation to other laws

General Municipal Law § 205 is broader than Workers Compensation Law § 10. Hence, a determination of the Workmen's Compensation Board dismissing a volunteer fireman's claim for injury suffered while attending a parade and drill was not a bar to a similar proceeding under the General Municipal Law. Weiss v Franklin Square & Munson Fire Dist., 309 N.Y. 52, 127 N.E.2d 804, 309 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 52, 1955 N.Y. LEXIS 929 (N.Y. 1955).

A fire district may not purchase insurance under Town Law § 176(19) to protect persons who may not legally be members of the fire district fire department. 1953 Ops St Compt File #6074.

Members of fire police squads are covered under § 205 of the General Municipal Law and § 10 of the Workmen's Compensation Law and other sections related thereto when injured outside of the village while rendering services pursuant to a mutual aid arrangement or while rendering services pursuant to a contract between the fire protection district and the village of which their fire company and fire police squad is a part. 1955 Ops St Compt File #7238.

Members of a fire department emergency relief squad are covered by the provisions of § 205 of the General Municipal Law and the Workmen's Compensation Law when performing services in case of fire, accident, public calamity or other emergency. 1955 Ops St Compt File #7303.

Volunteer firemen who are members of an emergency relief squad may respond to calls for assistance from territory outside the area regularly protected and such squads are covered by the provisions of General Municipal Law § 205 and the Workmen's Compensation Law when performing services in case of fire, accident, public calamity or other emergency. 1956 Ops St Compt File #7846.

4. Active membership requirement

A "member at large" of a volunteer fire association who was not an "active" member but attended a fire and suffered a heart attack after assisting in fighting the fire was not an employee of the fire Commissioners of a fire district and was not covered by a policy covering employees. Smith v Laurelton Fire Dep't, 279 A.D. 291, 110 N.Y.S.2d 135, 1952 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4658 (N.Y. App. Div. 1952).

Volunteer firemen are entitled to benefits even though membership dues are not paid up. 1950 Ops St Compt File #4707.

"Firemen" of unincorporated private group organized to fight fire in town outside villages and fire districts are not entitled to statutory financial benefits provided for volunteer firemen of duly organized volunteer fire companies. 1955 Ops St Compt File #7379.

All members of a volunteer fire company must be active members. The law does not recognize inactive classifications. 1955 Ops St Compt File #7510.

A fire district or municipality is not liable for payment of benefits to member of a ladies' auxiliary injured while attending a fire. 1956 Ops St Compt File #2028.

All members of a volunteer fire company must be active members in order to be entitled to benefits in the case of injury or death. 1956 Ops St Compt File #8070.

5. —Residency

For a discussion of problems involved when volunteer fireman moves from one fire district to an adjoining fire district, see 1953 Ops St Compt File #6207.

Where the qualifications for membership in the fire department of the City of Peekskill require that the member be a resident, membership is forfeited if the member ceases to be a resident of the city, and such person will no longer be protected by the provisions of this section. 1954 Ops St Compt File #6550.

6. Line of duty requirement

If a volunteer fireman is injured while participating in an outing or clambake or while engaging in a sport as a member of a departmental athletic team, he is not protected by the provisions of § 205 of the General Municipal Law and this section. 1949 Ops St Compt File #4042.

Volunteer firemen, who respond to calls in a fire district "emergency vehicle" on occasions not involving fire, accident, public calamity or other emergency, will not be entitled to benefits provided by § 205 of the General Municipal Law or this section if they are, or should be, aware that the occasion is not one of those mentioned above. 1951 Ops St Compt File #5411.

Compensation coverage of volunteer firemen participating in a parade. 1951 Ops St Compt File #5485.

Village is not liable for injuries to its volunteer firemen while furnishing fire protection outside village. Town board may, at request of village, include village in a single policy of insurance indemnifying against liability for benefits to volunteer firemen. 1955 Ops St Compt File #7311.

Volunteer fireman injured while participating as such in civil defense drill is performing a firemanic duty; thus, insurance providing coverage in case of injury or death while performing firemanic duty, provides coverage during such drills. 1955 Ops St Compt File #7359.

Generally speaking, volunteer firemen are within the performance of their duties while going to or returning from authorized meetings for purposes of instructing or being instructed in fire duties. 1955 Ops St Compt File #7376.

Whether or not volunteer firemen are covered under § 205 of the General Municipal Law and § 10 of the Workmen's Compensation Law when engaged in the rescue of cats or other animals from trees and roof depends upon whether or not a public emergency exists, which is a question of fact. 1955 Ops St Compt File #7419.

A volunteer fireman is performing his firemanic duties at a fire until he returns to his point of departure regardless of whether he travels directly to and from the fire or goes and returns via a firehouse to assist with apparatus so long as there is no intervening deviation from his duty. 1955 Ops St Compt File #7558.

Volunteer firemen who are members of an emergency relief squad may respond to calls for assistance from territory outside the area regularly protected and such squads are covered by the provisions of General Municipal Law § 205 and the Workmen's Compensation Law when performing services in case of fire, accident, public calamity or other emergency. 1956 Ops St Compt File #7846.

7. Coverage outside home area

An award was properly made where a volunteer fireman, attending a parade in another town because he was compelled to do so or be subjected to a fine, collapsed and died after the parade. However, he was not responding to a call for assistance from the town where the parade was held. Cottrell v Pleasantville Fire Dist., 279 A.D. 1124, 112 N.Y.S.2d 588, 1952 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6040 (N.Y. App. Div. 1952).

The decedent, a volunteer fireman, answered a call for assistance from an adjacent fire district and after the fire in that district had been placed under control he returned to his own station. Later, the same fire spread into the district served by the decedent and, in fighting that fire, decedent was fatally injured. Liability was not imposed on the adjacent fire department because decedent lost his life in fighting a fire in his own district. Ames v Brentwood Fire Dep't, 1 A.D.2d 859, 148 N.Y.S.2d 897, 1956 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6296 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), reh'g denied, 1 A.D.2d 985, 151 N.Y.S.2d 359, 1956 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5822 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1956), app. denied, 1 N.Y.2d 643, 1956 N.Y. LEXIS 1385 (N.Y. 1956), app. denied, 1 N.Y.2d 643, 1956 N.Y. LEXIS 1390 (N.Y. 1956).

This section contemplates only an emergency of a public nature. A volunteer fireman transporting a person who suffered a heart attack outside his own district upon a call from a hospital located outside the district did not make the outside district responsible for compensation benefits. Rocque v Waterford, 2 A.D.2d 716, 152 N.Y.S.2d 862, 1956 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5013 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1956).

Claimant, volunteer fireman, was member of fire department of Village of Watkins Glen. In 1955, he was injured at Village of Odessa while participating in test fire drill held pursuant to county mutual aid plan. Held. Village of Watkins Glen was properly held liable to claimant and Village of Odessa properly relieved from liability. There was no call for assistance from Village of Odessa within the meaning of this section. Woodworth v Watkins Glen, 7 A.D.2d 694, 179 N.Y.S.2d 226, 1958 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4351 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1958).

Volunteer firemen rendering mutual aid assistance to a municipality or area served by paid firemen are entitled to compensation coverage. 1951 Ops St Compt File #5456.

Municipality or district issuing call for assistance is liable for benefits to firemen injured or killed and for equipment damaged and materials used. 1953 Ops St Compt File #6285.

The "home territory" of a volunteer fire company is liable for the payment of benefits, adjudged to be payable where a member of such company is injured or killed while attending a fire company meeting, a fire drill, a tournament or a parade and inspection when authorized to do so. 1954 Ops St Compt File #6714.

Where a village fireman is injured while rendering fire protection service to an area of a town outside of the village and outside of a fire district, the town must provide for the payment of benefits. If the town has not secured insurance by one of the prescribed methods, it must pay the benefits and charge the cost back upon the fire protection district, the fire alarm district or the unorganized territory which the fire occurred. 1954 Ops St Compt File #6742.

Members of fire police squads are covered under § 205 of the General Municipal Law and § 10 of the Workmen's Compensation Law and other sections related thereto when injured outside of the village while rendering services pursuant to a mutual aid arrangement or while rendering services pursuant to a contract between the fire protection district and the village of which their fire company and fire police squad is a part. 1955 Ops St Compt File #7238.

Discussion re liabilities arising out of fire on New York State Thruway relative to (1) benefits to volunteer firemen, (2) damage to apparatus or equipment and (3) tort liability. 1955 Ops St Compt File #7593.

The area which calls for assistance is liable for damages to the fire equipment and also cost of workmen's compensation for volunteer firemen injured at a fire. 1955 Ops St Compt File #7638.

8. Insurance

The benefits available to volunteer firemen are integrated under the General Municipal Law and the Workmen's Compensation Law. Municipal corporations in fire districts are empowered to procure insurance indemnifying against liability imposed under Workmen's Compensation Law, but such contracts of insurance must also indemnify against the liability imposed under the General Municipal Law. It would be anomalous if the benefits provided by one statute constituted a liability of the town while the benefits payable under the other constituted a liability of a fire district. Bauman v Irondequoit, 122 N.Y.S.2d 47, 204 Misc. 494, 1953 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1809 (N.Y. Sup. Ct.), aff'd, 282 A.D. 916, 125 N.Y.S.2d 250, 1953 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5406 (N.Y. App. Div. 1953).

A county mutual self-insurance plan gives participating village complete protection against the claims of volunteer firemen injured in the line of duty. The rates of compensation payable are not dependent upon the nature of the firemanic duty being performed. 1952 Ops St Compt File #5906.

A fire district may not purchase insurance under Town Law § 176(19) to protect persons who may not legally be members of the fire district fire department. 1953 Ops St Compt File #6074.

Village insurance does not cover its volunteer firemen engaged in protecting property in fire district pursuant to a contract. Fire district is liable in such case. Board of fire commissioners may not delegate to village board the power to purchase insurance to cover such liability. 1953 Ops St Compt File #6326.

Village is not liable for injuries to its volunteer firemen while furnishing fire protection outside village. Town board may, at request of village, include village in a single policy of insurance indemnifying against liability for benefits to volunteer firemen. 1955 Ops St Compt File #7311.

A town may use general town funds in the first instance to purchase insurance indemnifying a fire protection district against the liability for volunteer firemen's benefits. 1955 Ops St Compt File #7592.

§ 7. Lt. Michael E. Neuner/Timothy Goff memorial death benefit program

In the event of death the benefit shall be known as a death benefit and shall be paid as follows:

1. The reasonable funeral expenses of the deceased volunteer firefighter shall be paid in an amount not exceeding six thousand seven hundred dollars; provided however, that such six thousand dollar maximum shall not apply where a volunteer firefighter dies from injuries received in the line of duty as a direct result of firefighting. If such funeral expenses shall have been paid by a person entitled to benefits under this section or by others, the funeral expenses awarded shall be made payable to such beneficiary or others; otherwise they shall be payable to the undertaker who provided the burial. Funeral expenses shall be awarded in all death cases.

2. If there be a surviving spouse, to such spouse the lump sum of fifty-six thousand dollars, but if there be no surviving spouse, then to the executor or administrator of the estate of the volunteer firefighter, the lump sum of fifty-six thousand dollars. Such sum shall be in addition to any other benefits provided in this chapter and shall not be diminished by benefits paid to the volunteer firefighter during his or her lifetime. Any money paid to an executor or administrator pursuant to the provisions of this subdivision shall be distributed in the manner provided by the laws of this state for the distribution of the personal property of an intestate decedent. Provided, however, that nothing herein shall be construed as affording a greater benefit for those volunteer firefighters injured prior to the effective date of this act, however the spouse or estate of such firefighter shall continue to be eligible for a benefit in the sum of eleven thousand eighty-four dollars.

3. If there be a surviving spouse and no surviving child of the deceased under the age of eighteen years or under the age of twenty-five years who is enrolled as a full time student in any accredited educational institution and no surviving child of any age dependent blind or physically disabled, to such spouse one hundred thirty dollars for each week until remarried, and upon such remarriage the lump sum of thirteen thousand one hundred forty-two dollars.

4. If there be a surviving spouse and a surviving child or children of the deceased under the age of eighteen years or under the age of twenty-five years who is enrolled as a full time student in any accredited educational institution or a surviving child or children of any age dependent blind or physically disabled, to such spouse ninety-five dollars for each week until remarried, and upon such remarriage the lump sum of nine thousand eight hundred fifty-six dollars; and an additional amount of sixty-three dollars for each week for each such child until the age of eighteen years or under the age of twenty-five years who is enrolled as a full time student in any accredited educational institution or until the removal of the dependency of the blind or physically disabled child or children; in the case of the subsequent death or remarriage of such surviving spouse any surviving child of the deceased firefighter, at the time under eighteen years of age or under the age of twenty-five years who is enrolled as a full time student in any accredited educational institution or dependent through mental or physical infirmity, shall have his or her benefit increased to ninety-five dollars for each week, and the same shall be payable until he or she shall reach the age of eighteen years or twenty-five years, as the case may be, or until such dependent blind or physically disabled condition shall have been removed; provided that the total amount payable for each week under this subdivision shall in no case exceed two hundred fifty-three dollars per week. Upon statutory termination of payments to all such children, the payments to the surviving spouse shall be increased to one hundred thirty dollars for each week until such spouse remarries, and upon such remarriage, such spouse shall be paid the lump sum of twelve thousand thirty-three dollars.

5. If there be surviving child or children of the deceased under the age of eighteen years or under the age of twenty-five years who is enrolled as a full time student in any accredited educational institution or a dependent blind or physically disabled child or children of any age, but no surviving spouse, for the support of each such child until the age of eighteen years or twenty-five years as the case may be, or until the removal of the dependency of such blind or physically disabled child or children, ninety-five dollars for each week; provided that the total amount payable for each week under this subdivision shall not exceed two hundred fifty-three dollars per week.

6. If there be no surviving spouse, or child of the deceased under the age of eighteen years, or under the age of twenty-five years who is enrolled as a full time student in any accredited educational institution or dependent blind or physically disabled child of the deceased of any age, or if the amount payable for each week to the surviving spouse and to children under the age of eighteen years or under the age of twenty-five years who is enrolled as a full time student in any accredited educational institution or such dependent blind or physically disabled children shall be less in the aggregate than two hundred fifty-three dollars per week, for the support of grandchildren or brothers and sisters under the age of eighteen years, or under the age of twenty-five years who is enrolled as a full time student in any accredited educational institution if dependent upon the deceased at the time of the injury, seventy-nine dollars for each week for the support of each such person until the age of eighteen years or twenty-five years as the case may be, and for the support of each parent or grandparent, of the deceased if dependent upon him at the time of the injury one hundred thirty dollars for each week during such dependency, but in no case shall the aggregate amount payable under this subdivision exceed the difference between two hundred fifty-three dollars and the amount payable for each week as hereinbefore provided to the surviving spouse or for the support of a surviving child or children.

7. If any person under the age of eighteen years is an inmate of any institution and a public charge upon the state or any political subdivision, the benefits allowed hereunder shall be payable to the state or political subdivision to the extent of the reasonable charges for care and maintenance, during the continuance as a public charge in such institution of such beneficiary and until he shall have attained the age of eighteen years. Any sum or sums remaining after such payments shall be distributed as provided in this section.

8. The term "dependent blind or physically disabled", as used in this section in relation to dependent children, means totally blind or physically disabled dependent children whose disablement is total and permanent.

9. All questions of dependency shall be determined as of the time of the injury.

10. The workers' compensation board may in its discretion require the appointment of a guardian for the purpose of receiving benefits payable to a minor child or a dependent blind or physically disabled child. In the absence of such a requirement by such board the appointment of a guardian for such purposes shall not be necessary.

11. In the case of a death of a volunteer firefighter, on or after January first, nineteen hundred seventy-eight and prior to July first, nineteen hundred seventy-eight, that results from services performed in the line of duty, if there be a surviving spouse and no surviving child of the deceased under the age of eighteen years or under the age of twenty-five years who is enrolled as a full time student in any accredited educational institution and no surviving child of any age dependent blind or physically disabled, to such spouse two hundred eighty-two dollars for each week until remarried, and upon such remarriage the lump sum of twenty-nine thousand three hundred fifty-four dollars.

12. In the case of a death of a volunteer firefighter, on or after January first, nineteen hundred seventy-eight and prior to July first, nineteen hundred seventy-eight, that results from services performed in the line of duty, if there be a surviving spouse and a surviving child or children of the deceased under the age of eighteen years or under the age of twenty-five years who is enrolled as a full time student in any accredited educational institution or a surviving child or children of any age dependent blind or physically disabled, to such spouse one hundred fifty-six dollars for each week until remarried, and the additional amount of one hundred thirty dollars for each week for such child or children, share and share alike, until the age of eighteen years or under the age of twenty-five years who is enrolled as a full time student in any accredited educational institution or until the removal of the dependency of the blind or physically disabled child or children. In the case of the death of such surviving spouse, the surviving child or children of the deceased firefighter, at the time under eighteen years of age or under the age of twenty-five years who is enrolled as a full time student in any accredited educational institution or dependent through mental or physical infirmity, shall have his or their benefit increased to two hundred eighty-two dollars for each week, share and share alike, and the same shall be payable until he or they shall reach the age of eighteen years or twenty-five years, as the case may be, or until such dependent blind or physically disabled condition shall have been removed. Upon the remarriage of such surviving spouse prior to the statutory termination of benefits to all such children, such spouse shall be paid the lump sum of sixteen thousand one hundred forty-five dollars; and the surviving child shall continue to receive weekly payments of one hundred thirty dollars; if there be two surviving children, each shall receive one hundred six dollars per week; and if there be more than two surviving children, they shall receive two hundred eighty-two dollars per week, share and share alike; and the same shall be payable until he or they shall reach the age of eighteen years or twenty-five years, as the case may be, or until such dependent blind or crippled condition shall have been removed. Upon statutory termination of payments to all children, the payments to the surviving spouse shall be increased to two hundred eighty-two dollars for each week until such spouse remarries, and upon such remarriage, such spouse shall be paid the lump sum of twenty-nine thousand three hundred fifty-four dollars. In no event shall the total amount payable for each week under this subdivision exceed two hundred eighty-two dollars.

13. In the case of a death of a volunteer firefighter, on or after January first, nineteen hundred seventy-eight and prior to July first, nineteen hundred seventy-eight, that results from services performed in the line of duty, if there be surviving a child or children of the deceased under the age of eighteen years or under the age of twenty-five years who is enrolled as a full time student in any accredited educational institution or a dependent blind or physically disabled child or children of any age, but no surviving spouse, for the support of such child or children until the age of eighteen years or twenty-five years, as the case may be, or until the removal of the dependency of such blind or physically disabled child or children, two hundred eighty-two dollars, share and share alike, for each week; provided that the total amount payable for each week under this subdivision shall not exceed two hundred eighty-two dollars per week.

14. In the case of a death of a volunteer firefighter, on or after January first, nineteen hundred seventy-eight and prior to July first, nineteen hundred seventy-eight, that results from services performed in the line of duty, if there be no surviving spouse or child of the deceased under the age of eighteen years or under the age of twenty-five years who is enrolled as a full time student in any accredited educational institution or dependent blind or physically disabled child of the deceased of any age, then for the support of grandchildren or brothers and sisters under the age of eighteen years or under the age of twenty-five years who is enrolled as a full time student in any accredited educational institution, if dependent upon the deceased at the time of the injury, one hundred six dollars for each week for the support of each such person until the age of eighteen years or twenty-five years, as the case may be, and for the support of each parent or grandparent of the deceased, if dependent upon the deceased at the time of the injury, one hundred sixty-nine dollars for each week during such dependency, but in no case shall the aggregate amount payable under this subdivision exceed two hundred eighty-two dollars per week.

15. In the case of a death of a volunteer firefighter, on or after July first, nineteen hundred seventy-eight and prior to January first, nineteen hundred seventy-nine, that results from services performed in the line of duty, if there be a surviving spouse and no surviving child of the deceased under the age of eighteen years or under the age of twenty-five years who is enrolled as a full time student in any accredited educational institution and no surviving child of any age dependent blind or physically disabled, to such spouse four hundred six dollars for each week until remarried, and upon such remarriage the lump sum of forty-two thousand two hundred seventy dollars.

16. In the case of a death of a volunteer firefighter, on or after July first, nineteen hundred seventy-eight and prior to January first, nineteen hundred seventy-nine, that results from services performed in the line of duty, if there be a surviving spouse and a surviving child or children of the deceased under the age of eighteen years or under the age of twenty-five years who is enrolled as a full time student in any accredited educational institution or a surviving child or children of any age dependent blind or physically disabled, to such spouse two hundred twenty-four dollars for each week until remarried, and the additional amount of one hundred eighty-three dollars for each week for such child or children, share and share alike, until the age of eighteen years or under the age of twenty-five years who is enrolled as a full time student in any accredited educational institution or until the removal of the dependency of the blind or physically disabled child or children. In the case of the death of such surviving spouse, the surviving child or children of the deceased firefighter, at the time under eighteen years of age or under the age of twenty-five years who is enrolled as a full time student in any accredited educational institution or dependent through mental or physical infirmity, shall have his or their benefit increased to four hundred six dollars for each week, share and share alike, and the same shall be payable until he or they shall reach the age of eighteen years or twenty-five years, as the case may be, or until such dependent blind or physically disabled condition shall have been removed. Upon the remarriage of such surviving spouse prior to the statutory termination of benefits to all such children, such spouse shall be paid the lump sum of twenty three thousand two hundred forty-eight dollars; and the surviving child shall continue to receive weekly payments of one hundred eighty-three dollars; if there be two surviving children, each shall receive one hundred fifty-two dollars per week; and if there be more than two surviving children, they shall receive four hundred six dollars per week, share and share alike; and the same shall be payable until he or they shall reach the age of eighteen years or twenty-five years, as the case may be, or until such dependent blind or crippled conditions shall have been removed. Upon statutory termination of payments to all such children, the payments to the surviving spouse shall be increased to four hundred six dollars for each week until such spouse remarries, and upon such remarriage, such spouse shall be paid the lump sum of forty-two thousand two hundred seventy dollars. In no event shall the total amount payable for each week under this subdivision exceed four hundred six dollars.

17. In the case of a death of a volunteer firefighter, on or after July first, nineteen hundred seventy-eight and prior to January first, nineteen hundred seventy-nine, that results from services performed in the line of duty, if there be surviving a child or children of the deceased under the age of eighteen years or under the age of twenty-five years who is enrolled as a full time student in any accredited educational institution or a dependent blind or physically disabled child or children of any age, but no surviving spouse, for the support of such child or children until the age of eighteen years or twenty-five years as the case may be, or until the removal of the dependency of such blind or physically disabled child or children, four hundred six dollars, share and share alike, for each week; provided that the total amount payable for each week under this subdivision shall not exceed four hundred six dollars per week.

18. In the case of a death of a volunteer firefighter, on or after July first, nineteen hundred seventy-eight and prior to January first, nineteen hundred seventy-nine, that results from service performed in the line of duty, if there be no surviving spouse or child of the deceased under the age of eighteen years or under the age of twenty-five years who is enrolled as a full time student in any accredited educational institution or dependent blind or physically disabled child of the deceased of any age, then for the support of grandchildren or brothers and sisters under the age of eighteen years or under the age of twenty-five years who is enrolled as a full time student in any accredited educational institution, if dependent upon the deceased at the time of the injury, one hundred fifty-two dollars for each week for the support of each such person until the age of eighteen years or twenty-five years as the case may be, and for the support of each parent or grandparent of the deceased, if dependent upon the deceased at the time of the injury, two hundred forty-four dollars for each week during such dependency, but in no case shall the aggregate amount payable under this subdivision exceed four hundred six dollars per week.

19. In the case of a death of a volunteer firefighter, on or after January first, nineteen hundred seventy-nine, that results from services performed in the line of duty, if there be a surviving spouse and no surviving child of the deceased under the age of eighteen years or under the age of twenty-five years who is enrolled as a full time student in any accredited educational institution and no surviving child of any age dependent blind or physically disabled, to such spouse four hundred seventy-seven dollars for each week until remarried, and upon such remarriage the lump sum of forty-nine thousand five hundred sixty-eight dollars.

20. In the case of a death of a volunteer firefighter, on or after January first, nineteen hundred seventy-nine, that results from services performed in the line of duty, if there be a surviving spouse and a surviving child or children of the deceased under the age of eighteen years or under the age of twenty-five years who is enrolled as a full time student in any accredited educational institution or a surviving child or children of any age dependent blind or physically disabled, to such spouse two hundred sixty-three dollars for each week until remarried, and the additional amount of two hundred fourteen dollars and fifty cents for each week for such child or children, share and share alike, until the age of eighteen years or under the age of twenty-five years who is enrolled as a full time student in any accredited educational institution or until the removal of the dependency of the blind or physically disabled child or children. In the case of the death of such surviving spouse, the surviving child or children of the deceased firefighter, at the time under eighteen years of age or under the age of twenty-five years who is enrolled as a full time student in any accredited educational institution or dependent through mental or physical infirmity, shall have his or their benefit increased to four hundred seventy-seven dollars for each week, share and share alike, and the same shall be payable until he or they shall reach the age of eighteen years or twenty-five years, as the case may be, or until such dependent blind or physically disabled condition shall have been removed. Upon the remarriage of such surviving spouse prior to the statutory termination of benefits to all such children, such spouse shall be paid the lump sum of twenty-seven thousand two hundred fifty-one dollars; and the surviving child shall continue to receive weekly payments of two hundred fourteen dollars and fifty cents; if there be two surviving children, each shall receive one hundred seventy-eight dollars and seventy-four cents per week; and if there be more than two surviving children, they shall receive four hundred seventy-seven dollars per week, share and share alike; and the same shall be payable until he or they shall reach the age of eighteen years or twenty-five years, as the case may be, or until such dependent blind or crippled condition shall have been removed. Upon statutory termination of payments to all such children, the payments to the surviving spouse shall be increased to four hundred seventy-seven dollars for each week until such spouse remarries, and upon such remarriage, such spouse shall be paid the lump sum of forty-nine thousand five hundred sixty-eight dollars. In no event shall the total amount payable for each week under this subdivision exceed four hundred seventy-seven dollars.

21. In the case of a death of a volunteer firefighter, on or after January first, nineteen hundred seventy-nine, that results from services performed in the line of duty, if there be surviving a child or children of the deceased under the age of eighteen years or under the age of twenty-five years who is enrolled as a full time student in any accredited educational institution or a dependent blind or physically disabled child or children of any age, but no surviving spouse, for the support of such child or children until the age of eighteen years or twenty-five years as the case may be, or until the removal of the dependency of such blind or physically disabled child or children, four hundred seventy-seven dollars, share and share alike, for each week; provided that the total amount payable for each week under this subdivision shall not exceed four hundred seventy-seven dollars per week.

22. In the case of a death of a volunteer firefighter, on or after January first, nineteen hundred seventy-nine, that results from services performed in the line of duty, if there be no surviving spouse or child of the deceased under the age of eighteen years or under the age of twenty-five years who is enrolled as a full time student in any accredited educational institution or dependent blind or physically disabled child of the deceased of any age, then for the support of grandchildren or brothers and sisters under the age of eighteen years or under the age of twenty-five years who is enrolled as a full time student in any accredited educational institution if dependent upon the deceased at the time of the injury, one hundred seventy-eight dollars and seventy-four cents for each week for the support of each such person until the age of eighteen years or twenty-five years as the case may be, and for the support of each parent or grandparent of the deceased, if dependent upon the deceased at the time of the injury, two hundred eighty-six dollars for each week during such dependency, but in no case shall the aggregate amount payable under this subdivision exceed four hundred seventy-seven dollars per week.

23–30. [Repealed]

31. In the case of a death of a volunteer firefighter on or after July first, nineteen hundred eighty-five, that results from services performed in the line of duty, if there be a surviving spouse and no surviving child of the deceased under the age of eighteen years or under the age of twenty-five years who is enrolled as a full time student in any accredited educational institution and no surviving child of any age dependent blind or physically disabled to such spouse six hundred sixty-five dollars for each week until remarried and upon such remarriage the lump sum of sixty-nine thousand one hundred sixty-four dollars.

32. In the case of a death of a volunteer firefighter on or after July first, nineteen hundred eighty-five, that results from services performed in the line of duty, if there be a surviving spouse and a surviving child or children of the deceased under the age of eighteen years or under the age of twenty-five years who is enrolled as a full time student in any accredited educational institution or a surviving child or children of any age dependent blind or physically disabled, to such spouse three hundred sixty-six dollars for each week until remarried, and the additional amount of three hundred dollars for each week for such child or children, share and share alike, until the age of eighteen years or under the age of twenty-five years who is enrolled as a full time student in any accredited educational institution or until the removal of the dependency of the blind or physically disabled child or children. In the case of the death of such surviving spouse, the surviving child or children of the deceased firefighter, at the time under eighteen years of age or under the age of twenty-five years who is enrolled as a full time student in any accredited educational institution or dependent through mental or physical infirmity, shall have his or her benefit increased to six hundred sixty-five dollars, for each week, share and share alike, and the same shall be payable until he or she or they shall reach the age of eighteen years or twenty-five years as the case may be, or until such dependent blind or physically disabled condition shall have been removed. Upon the remarriage of such surviving spouse prior to the statutory termination of benefit to all such children, such spouse shall be paid the lump sum of thirty-eight thousand forty dollars and the surviving child shall continue to receive weekly payments of three hundred dollars; if there be two surviving children, each shall receive two hundred fifty dollars per week; and if there be more than two surviving children, they shall receive six hundred sixty-five dollars per week, share and share alike; and the same shall be payable until he or she or they shall reach the age of eighteen years or twenty-five years, as the case may be, or until such dependent blind or physically disabled condition shall have been removed. Upon statutory termination of payments to all such children, the payments to the surviving spouse shall be increased to six hundred sixty-five dollars for each week until such spouse remarries and upon such remarriage such spouse shall be paid the lump sum of sixty-nine thousand one hundred sixty-four dollars. In no event shall the total amount payable for each week under this subdivision exceed six hundred sixty-five dollars.

33. In the case of a death of a volunteer firefighter on or after July first, nineteen hundred eighty-five, that results from services performed in the line of duty, if there be surviving a child or children of the deceased under the age of eighteen years or under the age of twenty-five years who is enrolled as a full time student in any accredited educational institution or a dependent child or physically disabled child or children of any age, but no surviving spouse, for support of such child or children until the age of eighteen years or twenty-five years as the case may be, or until removal of the dependency of such blind or physically disabled child or children, six hundred sixty-five dollars share and share alike, for each week; provided that the total amount payable for each week under this subdivision shall not exceed six hundred sixty-five dollars per week.

34. In the case of a death of a volunteer firefighter on or after July first, nineteen hundred eighty-five, that results from services performed in the line of duty, if there be no surviving spouse or child of the deceased under the age of eighteen years or under the age of twenty-five years who is enrolled as a full time student in any accredited educational institution, or dependent blind or physically disabled child of the deceased of any age, then for the support of grandchildren or brothers and sisters under the age of eighteen years or under the age of twenty-five years who is enrolled as a full time student in any accredited educational institution if dependent upon the deceased at the time of the injury, two hundred fifty dollars for each week for the support of each such person until the age of eighteen years or twenty-five years as the case may be, and for the support of each parent or grandparent of the deceased if dependent upon the deceased at the time of the injury, four hundred dollars for each week during such dependency but in no case shall the aggregate amount payable under this subdivision exceed six hundred sixty-five dollars per week.

43. In the case of a death of a volunteer firefighter on or after July first, nineteen hundred ninety-two, that results from services performed in the line of duty, if there be a surviving spouse and no surviving child of the deceased under the age of eighteen or under the age of twenty-five years who is enrolled as a full time student in any accredited educational institution and no surviving child of any age dependent blind or physically disabled, to such spouse eight hundred eighty-seven dollars for each week until remarried and upon such remarriage the lump sum of ninety-two thousand two hundred nineteen dollars.

44. In the case of a death of a volunteer firefighter on or after July first, nineteen hundred ninety-two, that results from services performed in the line of duty, if there be a surviving spouse and a surviving child or children of the deceased under the age of eighteen years or under the age of twenty-five years who is enrolled as a full time student in any accredited educational institution or a surviving child or children of any age dependent blind or physically disabled, to such spouse four hundred eighty-eight dollars for each week until remarried, and the additional amount of four hundred dollars for each week for such child or children, share and share alike, until the age of eighteen years or under the age of twenty-five years who is enrolled as a full time student in any accredited educational institution or until the removal of the dependency of the blind or physically disabled child or children. In the case of the death of such surviving spouse, the surviving child or children of the deceased firefighter, at the time under eighteen years of age or under the age of twenty-five years who is enrolled as a full time student in any accredited educational institution or dependent through mental or physical infirmity, shall have his or her benefit increased to eight hundred eighty-seven dollars, for each week, share and share alike, and the same shall be payable until he or she or they shall reach the age of eighteen years or twenty-five years as the case may be, or until such dependent blind or physically disabled condition shall have been removed. Upon the remarriage of such surviving spouse prior to the statutory termination of benefit to all such children, such spouse shall be paid the lump sum of fifty thousand seven hundred twenty dollars and the surviving child shall continue to receive weekly payments of four hundred dollars; if there be two surviving children, each shall receive three hundred thirty-three dollars per week; and if there be more than two surviving children, they shall receive eight hundred eighty-seven dollars per week, share and share alike; and the same shall be payable until he or she or they shall reach the age of eighteen years or twenty-five years, as the case may be, or until such dependent blind or physically disabled condition shall have been removed. Upon statutory termination of payments to all such children, the payments to the surviving spouse shall be increased to eight hundred eighty-seven dollars for each week until such spouse remarries and upon such remarriage such spouse shall be paid the lump sum of ninety-two thousand two hundred nineteen dollars. In no event shall the total amount payable for each week under this subdivision exceed eight hundred eighty-seven dollars.

45. In the case of a death of a volunteer firefighter on or after July first, nineteen hundred ninety-two, that results from services performed in the line of duty, if there be surviving a child or children of the deceased under the age of eighteen years or under the age of twenty-five years who is enrolled as a full time student in any accredited educational institution or a dependent child or physically disabled child or children of any age, but no surviving spouse, for support of such child or children until the age of eighteen years or twenty-five years as the case may be, or until removal of the dependency of such blind or physically disabled child or children, eight hundred eighty-seven dollars share and share alike, for each week; provided that the total amount payable for each week under this subdivision shall not exceed eight hundred eighty-seven dollars per week.

46. In the case of a death of a volunteer firefighter on or after July first, nineteen hundred ninety-two, that results from services performed in the line of duty, if there be no surviving spouse or child of the deceased under the age of eighteen years or under the age of twenty-five years who is enrolled as a full time student in any accredited educational institution, or dependent blind or physically disabled child of the deceased of any age, then for the support of grandchildren or brothers and sisters under the age of eighteen years or under the age of twenty-five years who is enrolled as a full time student in any accredited educational institution if dependent upon the deceased at the time of the injury, three hundred thirty-three dollars for each week for the support of each such person until the age of eighteen years or twenty-five years as the case may be, and for the support of each parent or grandparent of the deceased if dependent upon the deceased at the time of the injury, five hundred thirty-two dollars for each week during such dependency but in no case shall the aggregate amount payable under this subdivision exceed eight hundred eighty-seven dollars per week.

Editor's Notes: [1962] In the Message of Governor Nelson A. Rockefeller to the Legislature, January 3, 1962 (Leg. Doc. (1962) No. 1, page 12) an increase in workmen's compensation benefits was recommended. Any such increase would be applicable to the paid officers and employees of the State, most of the paid officers and employees of the local governments in the State, as well as those who are employed in industry, and by other employers, and who have coverage under the Workmen's Compensation Law.

The public policy of this State has been to keep the amounts of certain death and disability benefits for volunteer firemen the same as the maximum amounts of the comparable death and disability benefits payable under the Workmen's Compensation Law when paid officers and employees of counties, cities, towns, villages and fire districts are killed or injured in the course of their employment. This policy has been expressed in the Volunteer Firemen's Benefit Law, enacted by the Legislature in 1956 and prior thereto by various amendments to the Workmen's Compensation Law and the General Municipal Law. Such public policy has also been expressed in amendments to the Volunteer Firemen's Benefit Law, §§ 7, 8, 9, 10, and 11. This act, in conformity with and continuance of such public policy, makes appropriate amendments to the Volunteer Firemen's Benefit Law if the increases in benefits under the Workmen's Compensation Law, as recommended by Governor Rockefeller, are enacted as law. The passage and approval of this act should depend upon the enactment of comparable increases in the Workmen's Compensation Law such as are contained in L 1962, ch 55.

Laws 1959, ch 502, § 10, provides:

§ 10. Any increase in the amount of benefits afforded by this act shall apply to any volunteer fireman injured in line of duty on or after the first day of April, nineteen hundred fifty-nine, or to the dependents of a volunteer fireman who dies from an injury received in line of duty on or after the first day of April, nineteen hundred fifty-nine.

Laws 1960, ch 781, § 7, provides:

§ 7. Any increase in the amount of benefits afforded by this act shall apply to any volunteer fireman injured in line of duty on or after the first day of July, nineteen hundred sixty, or to his dependents in the event he died on or after the first day of July, nineteen hundred sixty, from injury in line of duty.

Laws 1962, ch 175, § 6, provides:

§ 6. The increase in the amount of benefits afforded by this act shall apply to any volunteer fireman injured in line of duty on or after the first day of July, nineteen hundred sixty-two or to his dependents in the event he dies on or after the first day of July, nineteen hundred sixty-two, from injury in line of duty.

Laws 1965, ch 311, § 7, provides:

§ 7. The increase in the amount of benefits afforded by this act shall apply to any volunteer fireman injured in line of duty on or after the first day of July, nineteen hundred sixty-five or to his dependents in the event he dies on or after the first day of July, nineteen hundred sixty-five, from injury in line of duty.

Laws 1968, ch 833, § 7, provides as follows:

§ 7. The increase in the amount of benefits afforded by this act shall apply to any volunteer fireman injured in line of duty on or after the first day of July, nineteen hundred sixty-eight or to his dependents in the event he dies on or after the first day of July, nineteen hundred sixty-eight, from injury in line of duty.

Laws 1970, ch 283, § 7, provides as follows:

§ 7. The increase in the amount of benefits afforded by this act shall apply to any volunteer fireman injured in line of duty on or after the first day of July, nineteen hundred seventy, or to his dependents in the event he dies on or after the first day of July, nineteen hundred seventy, from injury in line of duty.

Laws 1974, ch 584, § 7, provides:

§ 7. The increase in the amount of benefits afforded by this act shall apply to any volunteer fireman injured in line of duty on or after the first day of July, nineteen hundred seventy-four, or to his dependents in the event he dies on or after the first day of July, nineteen hundred seventy-four, from injury in line of duty.

Laws 1975, ch 694, § 2, provides as follows:

§ 2. The increase in the amount of benefits afforded by this act shall apply in relation to the surviving child of any volunteer fireman who dies from the effects of injury in the line of duty on or after the effective date of this act.

Laws 1977, ch 675, §§ 43, 85-a, eff Aug 3, 1977, provides as follows:

§ 43. a. There is hereby created a joint labor-management committee to make a thorough study examination and review of:

(i) the current system of experience rating and alternative systems of rate making, including a flat uniform rate;.

(ii) the present rates of contribution to the unemployment insurance fund;.

(iii) benefits for total and partial disabilities provided pursuant to the state workmen's compensation law;.

(iv) the question of an employer's liability under sections ten and eleven of the workmen's compensation law and the effect of court decisions relative thereto, and to prepare and submit to the 1978 session of the legislature necessary amendments to clarify and restore the exclusivity of the employer's liability under such law;.

(v) the question of rising product liability insurance premiums and make recommendations for legislation to the nineteen hundred seventy-eight session of the legislature for controlling such costs;.

(vi) the economic impact of the various tax incentives provided under articles nine-a, nine-b, nine-c, twenty-two, twenty-three, thirty-two and thirty-three of the tax law and the various other tax incentives provided to business by the several other states of the United States; and.

(vii) the investment tax credit, the allocation formulae provided under subdivision three of section two hundred ten of the tax law, the alternative taxes provided under paragraphs (a) and (b) of subdivision one of section two hundred ten of the tax law, the employment incentive credit provided under articles nine-a, twenty-three of the tax law; and the rates of tax imposed under the various articles of the tax law cited above. Such study shall consider the benefit and associated costs of such tax incentives currently provided under the tax law and the potential benefit to be provided and associated costs to be incurred by adoption of one or several alternative tax incentives.

b. Such committee shall consist of nine members appointed by the governor, one of whom shall be appointed upon the recommendation of the temporary president of the senate, one of whom shall be appointed upon the recommendation of the speaker of the assembly, one of whom shall be appointed by the minority leader of the senate and one of whom shall be appointed by the minority leader of the assembly. Of the members, four shall be representative of business and management, and four shall be representative of labor and the ninth member shall be an impartial chairman, designated by the governor, who shall represent the public interest. The industrial commissioner and the chairman of the workmen's compensation board shall serve as ex-officio members of the committee.

c. For the accomplishment of its purposes, the committee shall be authorized and empowered to undertake any studies, inquiries, surveys or analyses it may deem relevant through its own personnel, or in cooperation with any public or private agencies including educational, civic and research organizations, colleges, universities, institutes or foundations.

d. The committee may employ and at pleasure remove such personnel as it may deem necessary for the performance of its functions and fix their compensation within the amounts made available by appropriation therefor. The committee may meet within and without the state and shall have all the powers of a legislative committee under the legislative law.

e. No member of the committee shall be disqualified from holding any other public office or employment including that as a member of the legislature nor shall he forfeit any such office or employment by reason of his appointment hereunder notwithstanding the provisions of any general, special or local law to the contrary.

f. The members of the committee shall receive no compensation for their services but shall be allowed their actual and necessary expenses incurred in the performance of their duties hereunder.

g. The committee may request and shall receive from any department, division, board, bureau, commission or other agency of the state or any municipal corporation or institution of higher education chartered by the regents of the state of New York, such assistance and data as will enable it to properly carry out its powers and duties hereunder.

h. The committee is hereby authorized and empowered to make and sign any agreements, and to do and perform any acts that may be necessary, desirable or proper to carry out the purposes and objectives of this act.

i. The committee shall make recommendations on items (iv) and (v) by March first, nineteen hundred seventy-eight and make a preliminary report of its activities hereunder to the governor and the legislature on or before October fifteenth, nineteen hundred seventy-eight; and a final report on or before September fifteenth, nineteen hundred eighty. The committee shall also make recommendations for any changes in law it may deem necessary or desirable.

j. [Appropriation].

§ 85-a. If any clause, sentence, paragraph or part of this act shall be adjudged by any court of competent jurisdiction to be invalid, such judgment shall not affect, impair or invalidate the remainder thereof, but shall be confined in its operation to the clause, sentence, paragraph, or part thereof directly involved in the controversy in which such judgment shall have been rendered.

Laws 1989, ch 345, § 5, eff Nov 1, 1989, provides as follows:

§ 5. This act shall take effect on the first day of November next succeeding the date on which its shall have become a law and shall apply to all individuals who die in the line of duty on or after that date, except that the provisions of section one shall apply to claims based on crimes committed after March 1, 1967 (Amd, L 1992, ch 409, § 1, eff Jan 1, 1993).

Laws 1998, ch 415, § 8, eff Jan 1, 1999, provides as follows:

§ 8. This act shall take effect January 1, 1999 and shall apply to weekly benefit periods which occur after such effective date; and the provisions of subdivision 2 of section 7 of the volunteer firefighters' benefit law, as amended by section three of this act, shall be deemed to have been in full force and effect on and after May 9, 1998. (Amd, L 1999, ch 577, § 4, eff Nov 1, 1999, amd, L 2002, ch 139, § 1, eff July 23, 2002.).

Laws 1999, ch 577, § 5, eff Nov 1, 1999, provides as follows:

§ 5. This act shall take effect immediately and shall apply to all weekly benefit periods payable beginning on or after January 1, 1999.

Laws 2005, ch 212, § 7, eff July 12, 2005, provides as follows:

§ 7. This act shall take effect immediately and shall apply to weekly benefit periods which begin after January 1, 2006.

Laws 2006, ch 246, § 3, eff July 26, 2006, deemed eff on and sfter Jan 1, 2006, provides as follows:

§ 3. This act shall take effect immediately, and shall be deemed to have been in full force and effect on and after January 1, 2006 and shall apply to weekly benefit periods that began after such date.

See notes to Art I.

Amendment Notes The 2018 amendment by ch 476, § 267, in 2, substituted "firefighter" for "firemen" or variants in the first, second, and twice in the last sentences and added "or her" in the second sentence; in the first sentence of 4, substituted "firefighter" for "firemen" and added "or her" and "or she"; substituted "firefighter" for "firemen" in 19, 21, 22, 31, in the first and second sentences of 32, in 33, and in 34; and added "or she" in the second and third sentences of 32.

Repeal Notes: [1976] Chapter six hundred ninety-six of the laws of nineteen hundred seventy-five repealed by this act provided that the effective date of chapter six hundred ninety-five of the laws of nineteen hundred seventy-five be amended to be effective on September first, nineteen hundred seventy-five, however, its effective date was made to be the same as that of chapter six hundred ninety-five of the laws of nineteen hundred seventy-five, rendering chapter six hundred ninety-six of the laws of nineteen hundred seventy-five a nullity.

Chapter six hundred ninety-eight of the laws of nineteen hundred seventy-five, proposed to be repealed by this act, provided that the effective date of chapter six hundred ninety-seven of the laws of nineteen hundred seventy-five be amended to be effective on September first, nineteen hundred seventy-five, however its effective date was made to be the same as that of chapter six hundred ninety-seven of the laws of nineteen hundred seventy-five rendering chapter six hundred ninety-eight of the laws of nineteen hundred seventy-five a nullity.

Widow of a volunteer firefighter, who died in 2002 as a result of the effects of a work-related myocardial infarction in 1987, was only entitled to $10,000 in death benefits under former N.Y. Vol. Fire. Ben. Law § 7(2), rather than $50,000, because the injury occurred prior to the law's May 9, 1998, effective date. Matter of Lustyik v Village of Tarrytown, 41 A.D.3d 1066, 839 N.Y.S.2d 281, 2007 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7612 (N.Y. § 7-a. Date of death benefits.

All weekly benefits payable under section seven of this article shall accrue as of the date of death of the volunteer firefighter. In the event that a person or persons entitled to weekly benefits shall die before a determination is made on the merits of their claim, and such determination on the merits is ultimately in their favor, then all weekly benefits due from the date of death of the volunteer firefighter up to the date of death of the person or persons entitled to such weekly benefits shall be paid to the executor or administrator of the estate of such person or persons.

Amendment Notes The 2018 amendment by ch 476, § 268, substituted "firefighter" for "fireman" in the first and second sentences.

§ 8. Permanent total disability benefits

In the case of total disability adjudged to be permanent the volunteer firefighter shall be paid six hundred dollars for each week during the continuance thereof. Permanent total disability, within the meaning of this section, shall exist only if the earning capacity of the volunteer firefighter has been lost permanently and totally as the result of the injury. The loss of both hands, or both arms, or both feet, or both legs, or both eyes, or any two thereof, shall, in the absence of conclusive proof to the contrary, constitute permanent total disability, but in all other cases permanent total disability shall be determined in accordance with the facts. Notwithstanding any other provisions of this chapter, an injured volunteer firefighter disabled due to the loss or total loss of use of both eyes, or both hands, or both arms, or both feet, or both legs, or any two thereof shall not suffer any diminution of such weekly benefit by engaging in business or employment provided his or her weekly earnings or wages, when combined with his or her weekly benefit shall not be in excess of eight hundred dollars; and further provided that the application of this section shall not result in reduction of benefits which an injured volunteer firefighter who is disabled due to the loss or total loss of use of both eyes, or both hands, or both arms, or both feet, or both legs, or any two thereof would otherwise be entitled to under any other provisions of this article.

§ 9. Temporary total disability benefits

In the case of temporary total disability the volunteer firefighter shall be paid one hundred twenty-five dollars for each week during the continuance thereof; provided, however, that when the volunteer firefighter is injured in the line of duty on or after July first, nineteen hundred seventy-eight to December thirty-first, nineteen hundred seventy-eight, said firefighter shall receive one hundred eighty dollars per week during the continuance thereof; and further provided, that when the volunteer firefighter is injured in the line of duty on or after January first, nineteen hundred seventy-nine to June thirtieth, nineteen hundred eighty-three, said firefighter shall receive two hundred fifteen dollars per week during the continuance thereof; and further provided, that when the volunteer firefighter is injured in the line of duty on or after July first, nineteen hundred eighty-three to June thirtieth, nineteen hundred eighty-four, said firefighter shall receive two hundred fifty-five dollars per week during the continuance thereof; and further provided, that when the volunteer firefighter is injured in the line of duty on or after July first, nineteen hundred eighty-four to June thirtieth, nineteen hundred eighty-five, said firefighter shall receive two hundred seventy-five dollars per week during the continuance thereof; and further provided, that when the volunteer firefighter is injured in the line of duty on or after July first, nineteen hundred eighty-five to June thirtieth, nineteen hundred ninety, said firefighter shall receive three hundred dollars per week during the continuance thereof; and further provided, that when the volunteer firefighter is injured in the line of duty on or after July first, nineteen hundred ninety to June thirtieth, nineteen hundred ninety-one, said firefighter shall receive three hundred forty dollars per week during the continuance thereof; and further provided, that when a volunteer firefighter is injured in the line of duty on or after July first, nineteen hundred ninety-one to June thirtieth, nineteen hundred ninety-two, said firefighter shall receive three hundred fifty dollars per week during the continuance thereof; and further provided, that when a volunteer firefighter is injured in the line of duty on or after July first, nineteen hundred ninety-two, said firefighter shall receive four hundred dollars per week during the continuance thereof. Temporary total disability, within the meaning of this section, shall exist only if the earning capacity of the volunteer firefighter has been lost temporarily and totally as the result of the injury. In case of temporary total disability and permanent partial disability both resulting from the same injury, if the temporary total disability continues for a longer period than the number of weeks set forth in the following schedule, the period of temporary total disability in excess of such number of weeks shall be added to the period provided in section ten of this article: arm, thirty-two weeks; leg, forty weeks; hand, thirty-two weeks; foot, thirty-two weeks; ear, twenty-five weeks; eye, twenty weeks; thumb, twenty-four weeks; first finger, eighteen weeks; great toe, twelve weeks; second finger, twelve weeks; third finger, eight weeks; fourth finger, eight weeks; toe other than great toe, eight weeks. In any case resulting in loss or partial loss of use of arm, leg, hand, foot, ear, eye, thumb, finger or toe, where the temporary total disability does not extend beyond the periods above mentioned for such injury, benefits shall be limited to the schedule contained in section ten of this article.

§ 10. Permanent partial disability benefits

1. In the case of disability partial in character, but permanent in quality, the volunteer firefighter shall be paid ninety-five dollars for each week for the period specified in this subdivision, provided, however, that when the volunteer firefighter is injured in the line of duty on or after January first, nineteen hundred seventy-eight to June thirtieth, nineteen hundred eighty-three, such payment shall be one hundred five dollars for each week, and further provided that when a volunteer firefighter is injured in the line of duty on or after July first, nineteen hundred eighty-three to and including June thirtieth, nineteen hundred eighty-four, such payments shall be one hundred twenty-five dollars for each week and provided further that when the volunteer firefighter is injured in the line of duty on or after July first, nineteen hundred eighty-four to and including June thirtieth, nineteen hundred eighty-five such payments shall be one hundred thirty-five dollars for each week and provided further that when the volunteer firefighter is injured in the line of duty on or after July first, nineteen hundred eighty-five to and including June thirtieth, nineteen hundred ninety such payments shall be one hundred fifty dollars for each week, and provided further that when the volunteer firefighter is injured in the line of duty on or after July first, nineteen hundred ninety to and including June thirtieth, nineteen hundred ninety-one such payments shall be two hundred eighty dollars for each week, and provided further that when the volunteer firefighter is injured in the line of duty on or after July first, nineteen hundred ninety-one to and including June thirtieth, nineteen hundred ninety-two such payments shall be three hundred fifty dollars for each week, and provided further that when the volunteer firefighter is injured in the line of duty on or after July first, nineteen hundred ninety-two such payments shall be four hundred dollars for each week, as follows:

(a) Loss of member.

Member lost	Number of weeks
Arm	312
Leg	288
Hand	244
Foot	205
Eye	160
Thumb	75
First finger	46
Great toe	38
Second finger	30
Third finger	25
Toe other than great toe	16
Fourth finger	15

If more than one phalange of a digit shall be lost, the period shall be the same as for the loss of the entire digit. If only the first phalange shall be lost, the period shall be one-half the period for loss of the entire digit. The period for loss or loss of use of two or more digits, or one or more phalanges of two or more digits, of a hand or foot, may be proportioned to the period for the loss of use of the hand or foot occasioned thereby, but shall not exceed the period for the loss of a hand or foot. If an arm or leg shall be amputated at or above the wrist or ankle, the period for such loss shall be in proportion to the period for the loss of the arm or leg. In the case of loss of binocular vision or of eighty per centum or more of the vision of an eye, the period shall be the same as for the loss of the eye.

(b) Loss of hearing. In the case of the complete loss of the hearing of one ear, sixty weeks; for the loss of hearing of both ears, one hundred fifty weeks.

(c) Total loss of use. In the case of permanent total loss of use of a member, the period shall be the same as for the loss of the member.

(d) Partial loss or partial loss of use. Except as above provided in this subdivision, in the case of permanent partial loss or loss of use of a member, the period shall be for the proportionate loss or loss of use of the member. Compensation for permanent partial loss of use of an eye shall be awarded on the basis of uncorrected loss of vision or corrected loss of vision resulting from an injury whichever is the greater.

(e) Disfigurement. In the case of serious facial or head disfigurement, including a disfigurement continuous in length which is partly in the facial area and also extends into the neck region as described in this paragraph, the volunteer firefighter shall be paid in a lump sum a proper and equitable amount, which shall be determined by the workers' compensation board. If the earning capacity of the volunteer firefighter shall have been impaired, or may in the future be impaired, by any serious disfigurement in the region above the sterno clavicular articulations anterior to and including the region of the sterno cleido mastoid muscles on either side, the volunteer firefighter shall be paid in a lump sum a proper and equitable amount which shall be determined by such board. Two or more serious disfigurements, not continuous in length, resulting from the same injury, if partially in the facial area and partially in such neck region, shall be deemed to be a facial disfigurement. An award, or the aggregate of the awards, to a volunteer firefighter under this paragraph shall not exceed twenty thousand dollars.

(f) Total or partial loss or loss of use of more than one member. In any case in which there shall be a loss or loss of use of more than one member or parts of more than one member set forth above in paragraphs a to e, both inclusive, of this subdivision, but not amounting to permanent total disability, the periods for loss or loss of use of each such member or part thereof shall run consecutively.

(g) Other cases. In all other cases of permanent partial disability the volunteer firefighter shall be paid for each week during the continuance thereof, as follows:

1. If the percentage of loss of earning capacity is seventy-five per centum, or greater, he or she shall be paid ninety-five dollars for each week, provided, however, that when the volunteer firefighter is injured in the line of duty on or after January first, nineteen hundred seventy-eight to and including June thirtieth, nineteen hundred eighty-three, such payment shall be one hundred five dollars for each week provided, however, that when the volunteer firefighter is injured in the line of duty on or after July first, nineteen hundred eighty-three to and including June thirtieth, nineteen hundred eighty-four, such payment shall be one hundred twenty-five dollars for each week provided, however, that when the volunteer firefighter is injured in the line of duty on or after July first, nineteen hundred eighty-four to and including June thirtieth, nineteen hundred eighty-five such payment shall be one hundred thirty-five dollars for each week, provided, however, that when the volunteer firefighter is injured in the line of duty on or after July first, nineteen hundred eighty-five to and including June thirtieth, nineteen hundred ninety such payment shall be one hundred fifty dollars for each week, provided, however, that when the volunteer firefighter is injured in the line of duty on or after July first, nineteen hundred ninety to and including June thirtieth, nineteen hundred ninety-one such payment shall be two hundred eighty dollars for each week, and provided further that when the volunteer firefighter is injured in the line of duty on or after July first, nineteen hundred ninety-one to and including June thirtieth, nineteen hundred ninety-two such payment shall be three hundred fifty dollars for each week, and provided further that when the volunteer firefighter is injured in the line of duty on or after July first, nineteen hundred ninety-two such payment shall be four hundred dollars for each week;

2. If the percentage of loss of earning capacity is fifty per centum, or greater, but less than seventy-five per centum, he or she shall be paid sixty-three dollars and thirty-three cents for each week, provided, however, that when the volunteer firefighter is injured in the line of duty on or after January first, nineteen hundred seventy-eight to and including June thirtieth, nineteen hundred eighty-three, such payment shall be seventy dollars for each week, provided, however, that when the volunteer firefighter is injured in the line of duty on or after July first, nineteen hundred eighty-three to and including June thirtieth, nineteen hundred eighty-four such payment shall be eighty-three dollars and thirty-three cents for each week, provided, however, that when the volunteer firefighter is injured in the line of duty on or after July first, nineteen hundred eighty-four, to and including June thirtieth, nineteen hundred eighty-five, such payment shall be ninety dollars for each week, provided, however, that when the volunteer firefighter is injured in the line of duty on or after July first, nineteen hundred eighty-five to and including June thirtieth, nineteen hundred ninety such payment shall be one hundred dollars for each week, provided, however, that when the volunteer firefighter is injured in the line of duty on or after July first, nineteen hundred ninety to and including June thirtieth, nineteen hundred ninety-one such payment shall be one hundred eighty-six dollars and seventy-six cents for each week, provided, however, that when the volunteer firefighter is injured in the line of duty on or after July first, nineteen hundred ninety-one to and including June thirtieth, nineteen hundred ninety-two such payment shall be two hundred thirty-four dollars and fifty cents for each week, provided, however, that when the volunteer firefighter is injured in the line of duty on or after July first, nineteen hundred ninety-two such payment shall be two hundred sixty-eight dollars for each week;

3. If the percentage of loss of earning capacity is twenty-five per centum, or greater, but less than fifty per centum, he shall be paid thirty dollars for each week;

4. If the percentage of loss of earning capacity is less than twenty-five per centum, he or she shall not be paid any weekly benefit. Permanent partial disability, within the meaning of this paragraph, shall exist only if the earning capacity of the volunteer firefighter has been permanently and partially lost as the result of the injury. The workers' compensation board shall determine the degree of such disability and such board may reconsider such degree on its own motion or upon application of any party in interest.

2. An award made to a claimant under this section shall in case of death arising from causes other than the injury be payable to and for the benefit of the persons following:

(a) If there be a surviving spouse and no child of the deceased under the age of eighteen years, to such spouse.

(b) If there be a surviving spouse and surviving child or children of the deceased under the age of eighteen years, one-half shall be payable to the surviving spouse and the other half to the surviving child or children.

(c) If there be a surviving child or children of the deceased under the age of eighteen years, but no surviving spouse, then to such child or children.

(d) If there be no surviving spouse and no surviving child or children of the deceased under the age of eighteen years, then to such dependent or dependents as defined in section seven of this chapter, as directed by the workmen's compensation board; and if there shall be no such dependents, then to the estate of such deceased in an amount not exceeding reasonable funeral expenses as provided in subdivision one of section seven of this chapter, or, if there be no estate, to the person or persons paying the funeral expenses of such deceased in an amount not exceeding reasonable funeral expenses as provided in such subdivision one.

3. An award for disability may be made after the death of the volunteer firefighter.

Notes to Decisions

Court would affirm determination finding that claimant suffered permanent partial disability where evidence, including expert medical testimony, reports of physicians' examinations, and clinical records, showed that claimant was unable to resume his profession as skilled gunsmith following his injuries because he could no longer operate heavy machinery necessary to manufacture and repair firearms, compelling him to shift focus of his business from manufacture, sale, and repair of custom firearms to retail sale of firearms. Dentico v Village of Walworth, 254 A.D.2d 515, 677 N.Y.S.2d 831, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9968 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1998).

N.Y. Workers' Comp. Law § 114-a may not be applied to benefits received under N.Y. Vol. Fire. Ben. Law § 10. Matter of Giello v Providence Fire Dist., 57 A.D.3d 1294, 869 N.Y.S.2d 676, 2008 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9819 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2008).

Claimant, a volunteer firefighter, could not be disqualified from receiving benefits under N.Y. Vol. Fire. Ben. Law § 10 for allegedly making false representations as to her alleged physical limitations because the plain and unambiguous language of N.Y. Workers' Comp. Law § 114-a limited its application to claims for benefits under N.Y. Workers' Comp. Law § 15; thus, the civil penalties of § 114-a did not apply to wage replacement benefits, and only criminal penalties were provided for in N.Y. Workers' Comp. Law § 114 and N.Y. Vol. Fire. Ben. Law § 55. Matter of Giello v Providence Fire Dist., 57 A.D.3d 1294, 869 N.Y.S.2d 676, 2008 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9819 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2008).

New York Workers' Compensation Board's decision that a claimant had sustained a causally related loss of earning capacity and was entitled to benefits under Vol. Fire. Ben. Law § 10 was affirmed; there was substantial evidence from a neurosurgeon's report that the claimant's injury resulted in a 50% reduction in earning capacity. The neurosurgeon also acknowledged a correspondence from the claimant's employer estimating that the claimant's average work hours had been lowered from 60 hours per week to 25 hours per week. § 11-a. Repair or replacement of prosthetic devices.

If, as a result of services performed in line of duty, a volunteer firefighter damages or loses any prosthetic devices required to be worn or used by him or her, whether or not he or she is injured, such prosthetic device shall be repaired, or replaced in the discretion of the workers' compensation board, and necessary medical, surgical or other attendance or treatment, nurse and hospital service, in connection therewith shall be furnished, in the same manner as a prosthetic device would be furnished, replaced or repaired and treatment and care provided under the provisions of section sixteen of this chapter. Damage to or loss of a prosthetic device shall be deemed an injury, except that no disability benefits shall be payable with respect to such injury under sections eight, nine, ten and eleven of this chapter. The term "prosthetic device" as used in this section includes an artificial limb, artificial eye, eyeglasses, contact lens, hearing aid, denture or dental appliance or any surgical appliance required to be worn or used by the volunteer firefighter, but shall not include shoes or any other article considered as ordinary wearing apparel, whether or not specially constructed.

Amendment Notes The 2018 amendment by ch 476, § 271, in the first sentence, substituted "firefighter" for "firemen," added "or her" and "or she," and substituted "workers'" for "workmen's"; and substituted "firefighter" for "fireman" in the last sentence.

Agency Opinions

While, under this section, a fire district is liable for damage or loss of a volunteer fireman's false teeth or eye-glasses, it is not liable for loss of other items of personal property such as clothes, wallet, etc. in course of duty. 1963 NY Ops Atty Gen Aug 7.

§ 11-b. Hazardous exposures.

If, as a result of services performed in line of duty, a volunteer firefighter is exposed to or comes in contact with any poisons, gases, x-rays, radium, radio-active materials or other potentially harmful substances or matter, the chief engineer or other executive officer of the fire department or fire company of which he or she is a member may authorize the volunteer firefighter to obtain such examinations, tests, treatment and care as are immediately necessary to determine whether he or she is injured. Any such authorization may be granted prior to the giving of a notice of injury under this chapter. In any such case, the volunteer firefighter shall be deemed to have been injured and shall be entitled to treatment and care and disability benefits as provided in this chapter.

HISTORY:

Amendment Notes The 2018 amendment by ch 476, § 272, in the first sentence, substituted "firefighter" for "fireman" twice and added "or she" twice; and substituted "firefighter" for "fireman" in the last sentence.

§ 11-c. [There are two sections 11–c] Medical examination of volunteer firefighters to detect and identify the human immunodeficiency virus (HIV).

1. Whenever a volunteer firefighter has been exposed to a significant risk of transmission of the human immunodeficiency virus (HIV) while performing services in the line of duty, the executive officer of the fire company of which the volunteer firefighter is a member shall authorize such volunteer firefighter to obtain an appropriate medical examination to determine if such volunteer firefighter has been exposed to or infected with the human immunodeficiency virus (HIV). Such medical examination of a volunteer firefighter shall be authorized within eight hours of notification to the executive officer of the fire company of which such volunteer firefighter is a member of an incident that has created an exposure risk to the volunteer firefighter.

2. Should it be determined by the examining physician or other attending health care worker that a significant risk of transmission has occurred, or should any medical examination conclude that a volunteer firefighter has been exposed to or infected with human immunodeficiency virus (HIV), then such volunteer firefighter shall be offered counseling and additional testing, as appropriate and consistent with treatment guidelines issued by the commissioner of health. Such counseling may include a discussion of the risk of the transmission of the human immunodeficiency virus (HIV) from the exposure the volunteer firefighter may have experienced and the spectrum of tests commercially available for the prompt and reliable diagnosis of such infection. Information from any such medical examination of a volunteer firefighter shall be confidential information pursuant to article twenty-seven-F of the public health law and shall not be made available to the fire company without the written authorization of the affected volunteer firefighter.

3. Payment for medical examinations, additional testing, treatment services, counseling services, and any other additional services provided pursuant to this section shall be a covered benefit under this chapter.

4. For the purposes of this section, the term "significant risk of transmission" means the alleged conduct or actions taken by a victim or patient or any other action, situation or event that occurs while a volunteer firefighter is performing services in the line of duty that has created a recognized and significant risk of infection of a volunteer firefighter with the human immunodeficiency virus (HIV), as determined by the commissioner of health, consistent with guidelines, protocols, and findings of the United States centers for disease control and prevention.

5. For purposes of this section, the term "medical examination" includes a physical examination or test performed by a physician or other appropriate health care worker to determine if a volunteer firefighter has been exposed to or infected by the human immunodeficiency virus (HIV). Tests may include, but not be limited to, the most accurate, sensitive, and timely tests available used for the early identification of the human immunodeficiency virus (HIV).

6. The commissioner of health shall issue guidelines to facilitate the identification of circumstances potentially exposing a volunteer firefighter to a significant risk of transmission of the human immunodeficiency virus (HIV). Such guidelines shall be consistent with criteria accepted by the federal centers for disease control and prevention. Such guidelines shall also provide information regarding related counseling and testing procedures available to such individuals.

7. Any information gathered pursuant to the provisions of this section which is deemed confidential under any other provision of law shall be treated in a confidential manner.

§ 12. Non-schedule adjustments

Notwithstanding any other provision of this chapter, in any case coming within the provisions of sections ten and eleven of this chapter, in which the right to benefits has been established and benefits have been paid for not less than three months, in which the continuance of disability cannot be ascertained with reasonable certainty, the workmen's compensation board may, in the interest of justice, approve a non-schedule adjustment agreed to between the claimant and the political subdivision liable for the payment of benefits or its insurance carrier. The provisions of subdivision five-b of section fifteen of the workmen's compensation law shall apply in any such case.

§ 14. Previous disability.

The fact that a volunteer firefighter has suffered previous disability or received benefits therefor as provided in section two hundred five of the general municipal law, the workers' compensation law, or this chapter shall not preclude him or her from benefits for a later injury nor preclude death benefits for death resulting therefrom; provided, however, that a volunteer firefighter who is suffering from a previous disability shall not receive benefits for a later injury in excess of the benefits allowed for such injury when considered by itself and not in conjunction with the previous disability. Notwithstanding the foregoing provisions of this section, if a volunteer firefighter has previously incurred permanent partial disability through the loss or loss of use of one hand, one arm, one foot, one leg, or one eye, and suffers the loss or loss of use of another such major member or eye, he or she may be adjudged permanently totally disabled and receive benefits for permanent total disability as provided in section eight of this chapter.

§ 15. Expense for rehabilitating injured volunteer firefighters.

A volunteer firefighter, who as a result of injury is or may be expected to be totally or partially incapacitated for a remunerative occupation and who, under the direction of the state education department is being rendered fit to engage in a remunerative occupation, may receive such additional financial benefit necessary for his or her rehabilitation as the workers' compensation board shall determine. Not more than thirty dollars per week of such additional amount shall be expended for maintenance. Such expense and such of the administrative expenses of the state education department as are properly assignable to the expenses of rehabilitating such volunteer firefighters shall be paid out of the vocational rehabilitation fund created pursuant to subdivision nine of section fifteen of the workers' compensation law. Any such volunteer firefighter for the purposes of such fund shall be considered an employee of the political subdivision liable for the payment of benefits to such volunteer firefighter under this chapter and such "employer" or its insurance carrier, as the case may be, shall make the same financial contribution to such fund as required by such subdivision nine in every case of injury causing death of a volunteer firefighter in which there are no persons entitled to financial benefits under this chapter other than (1) funeral expenses and (2) the death benefit provided in subdivision two of section seven of this chapter.

Notes to Decisions

The 3 immunization subdivisions of CLS Vol Fire Ben § 19 are designed to provide protection from suit to different categories of persons and entities defined by their relationship to the injured firefighter; the one common thread is an employer-employee-like relationship. Lima v State, 74 N.Y.2d 694, 543 N.Y.S.2d 378, 541 N.E.2d 407, 1989 N.Y. LEXIS 656 (N.Y. 1989).

Volunteer Firefighters' Benefit Law benefits are intended to be exclusive remedy against state when it is acting as employer. Lima v State, 74 N.Y.2d 694, 543 N.Y.S.2d 378, 541 N.E.2d 407, 1989 N.Y. LEXIS 656 (N.Y. 1989).

To be protected from suit by provisions of CLS Vol Fire Ben § 19(3), person or agency acting under governmental or statutory authority must be found to have employer-employee-like relationship with injured firefighter, and to have responsibility for firefighter's performance or training. Lima v State, 74 N.Y.2d 694, 543 N.Y.S.2d 378, 541 N.E.2d 407, 1989 N.Y. LEXIS 656 (N.Y. 1989).

State was immune from suit under CLS Vol Fire Ben § 19(3), and thus entitled to summary judgment in negligence action premised on respondeat superior and seeking damages for injuries to member of village volunteer fire department who fell while participating in fire training program sponsored by Department of State and supervised by instructor retained by state; state qualified for immunity because it was carrying out its statutory duty under CLS Exec § 156 to plan, coordinate and provide training for volunteer firefighters. Lima v State, 74 N.Y.2d 694, 543 N.Y.S.2d 378, 541 N.E.2d 407, 1989 N.Y. LEXIS 656 (N.Y. 1989).

This section prescribes the exclusive remedy of volunteer firemen against municipal entities enumerated therein. Gresis v Garth Manor Corp., 20 A.D.2d 726, 248 N.Y.S.2d 118, 1964 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4331 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't), app. denied, 14 N.Y.2d 488, 1964 N.Y. LEXIS 1868 (N.Y. 1964).

Section 19 of the Volunteer Firemen's Benefit Law did not bar a suit in common law negligence against the town which maintained a fire hydrant, the cap of which blew off as plaintiff and other members of his volunteer company from a nearby town, were attaching a fire hose to it, where the record contained no evidence to indicate the defendant town was a political subdivision regularly served by plaintiff's fire company. Giuliano v Brunswick, 32 A.D.2d 705, 300 N.Y.S.2d 27, 1969 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3975 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), app. dismissed, 25 N.Y.2d 740, 1969 N.Y. LEXIS 1828 (N.Y. 1969).

Under evidence that the plaintiff was a volunteer fireman and after responding to an alarm was directing traffic in front of the firehouse when he was struck by the defendant's automobile, and that the defendant also was a volunteer fireman and was responding to an alarm when he struck the plaintiff, the plaintiff's exclusive remedy was governed by § 19 of the Volunteer Fireman's Benefit Law. Lamalfa v Denny, 34 A.D.2d 709, 309 N.Y.S.2d 852, 1970 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5037 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1970).

The fact that a fire district is defined as a political subdivision does not preclude it from also being defined as an agency within the intendment of Volunteer Firemen's Law § 19. Pollini v Fuller Road Fire Dep't, 39 A.D.2d 554, 331 N.Y.S.2d 732, 1972 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4992 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1972), aff'd, 34 N.Y.2d 744, 357 N.Y.S.2d 502, 313 N.E.2d 793, 1974 N.Y. LEXIS 1594 (N.Y. 1974).

In an action brought by a volunteer fireman seeking damages for personal injuries, and by his wife for loss of consortium, the complaint would be dismissed where the exclusive remedy would be a form of workers' compensation inasmuch as the fireman had been injured in the line of duty when his car collided with the car of another volunteer fireman while both had been independently proceeding to the firehouse in response to an alarm. Malone v Jacobs, 88 A.D.2d 927, 450 N.Y.S.2d 885, 1982 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 17271 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1982).

County was not entitled to summary judgment in village volunteer fireman's negligence action which arose from personal injuries sustained at county training facility, despite exclusive remedy provisions of CLS Vol Fire Ben § 19, where village did not "regularly serve" county given facts that mutual aid program authorized under CLS County § 225-a was voluntary program which allowed village to opt out and rejoin at will, assistance was rendered on irregular emergency basis, and less than 5 percent of village's responses during fireman's tenure were to calls for mutual aid. Lima v County of Rockland, 133 A.D.2d 740, 520 N.Y.S.2d 161, 1987 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 51783 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1987).

State was entitled to summary judgment dismissing claim for injuries suffered by volunteer firefighter during training course conducted by state employee since firefighter had applied for and received benefits under CLS Vol Fire Ben § 19, which provides exclusive remedy to volunteer firemen and applies to state as government in authority. Lima v State, 139 A.D.2d 701, 527 N.Y.S.2d 457, 1988 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4506 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1988), aff'd, 74 N.Y.2d 694, 543 N.Y.S.2d 378, 541 N.E.2d 407, 1989 N.Y. LEXIS 656 (N.Y. 1989).

Court properly held that county was not "person or agency" under CLS Vol Fire Ben § 19(3). Pedone v County of Nassau, 262 A.D.2d 540, 692 N.Y.S.2d 662, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7052 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1999).

Widow's claims against a village and a fire department to recover for the death of her husband, a volunteer firefighter, were barred by N.Y. Vol. Fire. Ben. Law § 19 because the widow sought to recover both as the estate administrator and in her individual capacity, and the village and the fire department were among the respondents enumerated in the statute; N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 205-a did not provide for a recovery in addition to that provided by the various provisions of the Volunteer Firefighters' Benefit Law. Brady v Village of Malverne, 76 A.D.3d 691, 907 N.Y.S.2d 68, 2010 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6621 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2010).

The Volunteer Firemen's Benefit Law afforded the exclusive remedy against political subdivisions for injuries sustained by a volunteer fireman when a fire truck collided with another vehicle. Hausman v Miller, 14 Misc. 2d 93, 178 N.Y.S.2d 566, 1958 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2577 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1958).

The remedy of an outside fireman, injured while giving emergency aid to a local unit, of which he is not a member, is exclusively under this act, notwithstanding the injury is caused by defective equipment of the local unit. Smith v Plandome, 28 Misc. 2d 793, 213 N.Y.S.2d 119, 1961 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3311 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1961).

Volunteer fireman's claim for damages against the state for injuries sustained while attending a fire school conducted by state employee was barred, since the state was within the purview of § 19(3) which makes the statute the exclusive remedy of an injured volunteer fireman against any person or agency acting under governmental or statutory authority. Rosenberger v State, 46 Misc. 2d 194, 259 N.Y.S.2d 548, 1965 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1936 (N.Y. Ct. Cl. 1965).

Volunteer Firemen's Benefit Law bars an action both against the political subdivision and the town superintendent of highways for injuries sustained by volunteer firemen when the shoulder of a highway collapsed while the firemen were answering a call. Where various fire organizations were engaged in a common or joint training exercise, the members of the participating units were precluded by Volunteer Firemen's Benefit Law § 19 from seeking any other remedy than that provided by said statute, when one of the firemen was injured during such exercise. Pollini v Fuller Road Fire Dep't, 66 Misc. 2d 523, 321 N.Y.S.2d 411, 1971 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1661 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1971), aff'd, 39 A.D.2d 554, 331 N.Y.S.2d 732, 1972 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4992 (N.Y. Village volunteer fireman injured as result of fall while participating in training operations at fire training center owned and operated by county is not precluded from bringing common-law tort action against county where, although fireman's volunteer fire company participates in mutual aid and assistance program coordinated by county, fireman's company does not regularly service county within meaning of § 19. Lima v County of Rockland, 132 Misc. 2d 447, 503 N.Y.S.2d 964, 1986 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2716 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1986), aff'd, 133 A.D.2d 740, 520 N.Y.S.2d 161, 1987 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 51783 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1987).

Where plaintiff, a volunteer firefighter, suffered injuries in a traffic accident on the way to a structure fire, his complaint against the driver (another volunteer firefighter) was dismissed, as he failed to demonstrate a triable issue as to whether the conduct of the driver constituted willful negligence or malfeasance, as his driving did not bespeak conscious indifference to a highly probable risk that calamity would ensue. Plaintiff's claims against the town were dismissed, as the benefits of Vehicle and Traffic Law § 19 were the exclusive remedy of a volunteer firefighter for a line of duty injury as against the town. § 21. Assistance to other states, the Dominion of Canada, property ceded to the federal government and to Indian reservations.

1. Whenever a fire company or fire department in this state shall answer a call to furnish assistance to any political subdivision or territory of another state of the United States or of the Dominion of Canada, or property ceded to the federal government, the provisions of this chapter shall apply with respect to the volunteer firefighters of such fire company or department, while such assistance is being rendered or while going to or returning from the place from where the assistance is to be or was rendered, to the same extent and in the same manner as if such service had been rendered in or for the area regularly served by such volunteer firefighters; provided, however, that there shall be deducted from any amounts payable under this chapter any amounts recoverable by or payable to any such volunteer firefighter under the laws applicable in the political subdivision or territory for which the call for assistance was made.

2. The provisions of this chapter shall apply with respect to volunteer firefighters of fire departments and fire companies of other states of the United States and of the Dominion of Canada who render service in this state in answer to a call for assistance to the territory regularly served by a fire department or fire company described in subdivisions one to five, inclusive, of section thirty of this chapter and, for the purposes of determining liability for benefits under this chapter, any such volunteer firefighter shall be considered as a volunteer member of the fire department or fire company of the territory for which service has been rendered in this state pursuant to a call for assistance; provided that the laws of the state served by such volunteer firefighters, fire departments or fire companies, or of the Dominion of Canada, as the case may be, contain provisions under which benefits are granted in relation to volunteer firefighters of this state who are killed or injured when rendering service in such other states, or the Dominion of Canada, as the case may be, in answer to a call for assistance; provided, however, that there shall be deducted from any amounts payable under the provisions of this chapter to a volunteer firefighter of such other states or of the Dominion of Canada, any amounts recoverable by or payable to such volunteer firefighter under the laws of the state served by such volunteer firefighter or of the Dominion of Canada, as the case may be.

3. Whenever a fire company or fire department in this state shall answer a call for assistance to be rendered to any part of an Indian reservation the provisions of this chapter shall apply with respect to the volunteer firefighters of such fire company or department, while such assistance is being rendered or while going to or returning from the place from where the assistance is to be or was rendered, to the same extent and in the same manner as if such service had been rendered in or for the area regularly served by such volunteer firefighters.

ARTICLE III Liability for Benefits; Insurance

Section

30. Liability for and payment of benefits
32. Group insurance

HISTORY:
Add, L 1956, ch 696, eff March 1, 1957.

§ 30. Liability for and payment of benefits

Except as otherwise provided in article five of the workers' compensation law, in section two hundred nine-i of the general municipal law and in section twenty-one of this chapter:

1. If at the time of injury the volunteer firefighter was a member of a fire company of a county, city, town, village or fire district fire department, any benefit under this chapter shall be a county, city, town, village or fire district charge, as the case may be, and any claim therefor shall be audited in the same manner as other claims against the county, city, town, village or fire district and the amount thereof shall be raised and paid in the same manner as other county, city, town, village or fire district charges.

2. If at the time of injury the volunteer firefighter was a member of a fire company incorporated under the membership corporations law, or any other law, and located in a city, village, or fire district, protected under a contract by the fire department or fire company of which the volunteer firefighter was a member, any benefit under this chapter shall be a city, village or fire district charge, as the case may be, and any claim therefor shall be audited in the same manner as other claims against the city, village or fire district and the amount thereof shall be raised and paid in the same manner as other city, village or fire district charges.

3. If at the time of injury the volunteer firefighter was a member of a fire company incorporated under the membership corporations law, or any other law, and located in a fire protection district, or fire alarm district, protected under a contract by such fire company, any benefit under this chapter shall be a town charge and any claim therefor shall be audited and paid in the same manner as town charges and the amount thereof shall be raised upon the property liable to taxation in the fire protection district or fire alarm district in the same manner as town charges therein are raised.

4. If at the time of injury the volunteer firefighter was a member of a fire company incorporated under the membership corporations law, or any other law, and located outside of a city, village, fire district, fire protection district or fire alarm district, any benefit under this chapter shall be a town charge and any claim therefor shall be audited and paid in the same manner as town charges and the amount thereof raised upon the property liable to taxation in such outside territory protected by such fire company in the same manner as town charges therein are raised.

5. If at the time of injury the volunteer firefighter was a member of a fire company or fire department operating in, or maintained jointly by two or more villages, or two or more towns, or two or more fire districts, any benefit under this chapter shall be a charge against such villages, towns or fire districts, in the proportion that the full valuation of taxable real estate in each bears to the aggregate full valuation of the taxable real estate of all such villages, towns or fire districts and the amount thereof shall be audited, raised and paid in the same manner as other village, town or fire district charges. Full valuation shall be determined by dividing the assessed valuations of taxable real estate of each such village, town or fire district as shown by the latest completed assessment roll of the village, town or fire district by the equalization rate established by the authorized state agency or officer for such roll; provided, however, in a county having a county department of assessment the full valuation in towns and fire districts shall be determined by applying the state equalization rate established for the town, or the town in which the fire district is located, to the appropriate portion of the last completed county roll.

6. The provisions of subdivisions one to five, inclusive, of this section shall not apply if the injury results from services performed when assistance is being rendered to:

a. Another city, town which has a town fire department, village or fire district, including one protected under a contract by the fire department or fire company of which the volunteer firefighter is a member,

b. A fire protection district or fire alarm district, including one protected under a contract by the fire department or fire company of which the volunteer firefighter is a member,

c. The area of a town protected by a fire company incorporated under the membership corporations law, or any other law, and located outside of a city, village, fire district, fire protection district, or fire alarm district,

d. The unorganized area of a town (outside of a city, village, fire district, fire protection district, fire alarm district, and also outside the area protected by a fire company incorporated under the membership corporations law, or any other law, and located outside of a city, village, fire district, fire protection district or fire alarm district),

e. The joint area protected by a fire company or fire department operating in, or maintained jointly by two or more villages, or two or more towns, or two or more fire districts,

f. A fire department of a county which has a fire department, or

g. A county which has requested fire aid pursuant to section two hundred nine-e of the general municipal law, pursuant to a call to furnish assistance to any such municipal corporation, district or area in cases of fire or other emergencies, or for other authorized purposes, or while going to or returning from the place where the assistance is to be or was rendered, or if death shall result from the effects of any such injury, and in any such case any such benefit shall be a charge against such aided municipal corporation, district or area and after audit shall be paid and the amount thereof shall be raised upon the property liable to taxation in such municipal corporation, district or area, in the same manner as other charges against the same are raised, except that in the cases described at paragraphs b, c and d of this subdivision, the town in which the district or area is located shall be primarily liable for such payment. If there is no property liable to taxation in any area described in paragraph d, the benefit shall be a town charge and any claim therefor shall be audited and paid in the same manner as town charges and the amount thereof shall be raised upon the taxable real property in the town in the same manner as town charges therein are raised.

In the case of a false call for assistance, any such benefit shall be audited, raised and paid in the manner provided in subdivisions one to five, inclusive, of this section, as the case may be.

The term "assistance", as used in this section, includes the services of firefighting forces, fire police squads, emergency rescue and first aid squads rendered in case of a fire or other emergency, including stand-by service, to aid (1) a fire department, fire company, or any unit thereof, other than that of which the volunteer firefighter is a member and (2) owners or occupants of property, and other persons, whether or not such owners, occupants or persons are receiving fire or other emergency service from a fire department, fire company, or any unit thereof, other than that of which the volunteer firefighter is a member.

Except as otherwise provided by law in the case of natural disaster emergencies, a call to furnish assistance may be made by any person aware of the peril involved and the need for assistance or pursuant to any legally authorized or recognized plan for the furnishing of mutual aid in cases of fire or other emergency. The call need not originate in the municipal corporation, district or area ultimately liable for benefits under this section and may be relayed through one or more persons or mediums of communication.

The provisions of this subdivision shall not apply if the injury results from services performed by the volunteer firefighter in a natural disaster emergency and he or she was serving as part of the civil defense forces activated, and when assistance is being so rendered the benefits to be paid and provided under this chapter shall be paid and provided by the political subdivisions which would be liable under subdivisions one to five, inclusive, of this section.

If death or injury results from the performance of duty by a volunteer firefighter serving as fire chief while inspecting a public or private school pursuant to paragraph c of subdivision seven of section eight hundred seven-a of the education law for fire prevention and protection purposes in a fire district, fire protection district or fire alarm district furnished fire protection pursuant to a contract by his or her fire department or fire company, or from necessary travel directly connected with any such duty, then the benefits to be paid and provided under this chapter shall be a charge against such fire district, fire protection district or fire alarm district so protected pursuant to contract and after audit shall be paid and the amount thereof shall be raised upon the property liable to taxation in any such district in the same manner as other charges against the same are raised, except that in the case of a fire protection district or fire alarm district, the town in which the district is located shall be primarily liable for such payment.

If death or injury results from the performance of duty under subdivision four of section three hundred three of the multiple residence law, or from necessary travel directly connected with any such assignment, and the building or property inspected or to be inspected is not located in the area regularly served and protected by the fire department or fire company of which the volunteer firefighter is a member, but is located in a city, town which has a fire department, village, fire district, fire protection district or fire alarm district served and protected pursuant to a contract for fire protection by the fire department or fire company of which the volunteer firefighter is a member, then the benefits to be paid and provided under this chapter shall be a charge against such political subdivision, fire protection district or fire alarm district so protected pursuant to contract and after audit shall be paid and the amount thereof shall be raised upon the property liable to taxation in such political subdivision or district in the same manner as other charges against the same are raised, except that in the case of a fire protection district or fire alarm district, the town in which the district is located shall be primarily liable for such payment.

If death or injury results from the performance of duty by a volunteer firefighter while inspecting buildings for fire hazards in a city, village, fire district, fire protection district or fire alarm district furnished fire protection pursuant to a contract by his or her fire department or fire company, or from necessary travel directly connected with any such duty, then the benefits to be paid and provided under this chapter shall be a charge against such city, village, fire district, fire protection district or fire alarm district so protected pursuant to contract and after audit shall be paid and the amount thereof shall be raised upon the property liable to taxation in any such city, village or district in the same manner as other charges against the same are raised, except that in the case of a fire protection district or fire alarm district, the town in which the district is located shall be primarily liable for such payment. This paragraph shall not be applicable in any city, however, unless a city charter or other law under which the city operates, or a local law adopted by the city, authorizes such an inspection in areas of the city receiving fire protection pursuant to a contract. The term "building," as used in this paragraph, does not include a multiple dwelling which may be inspected by such fire department or company under and pursuant to the provisions of subdivision four of section three hundred three of the multiple residence law.

The foregoing provisions of this subdivision shall apply only in cases where volunteer firefighters are injured in line of duty prior to the first day of March, nineteen hundred sixty-four; and in death cases where death results from injuries sustained prior to such date. Where volunteer firefighters are injured in line of duty on or after the first day of March, nineteen hundred sixty-four, and in death cases where death results from injuries sustained on or after such date, the liability for benefits under this chapter shall be determined pursuant to subdivisions one to five, inclusive, of this section, except as otherwise provided in article five of the workers' compensation law, section two hundred nine-i of the general municipal law and in section twenty-one of this chapter.

6-a. The provisions of subdivisions one to six, inclusive, of this section shall not apply if the injury results from services performed when general ambulance service is furnished under a fire protection contract pursuant to section two hundred nine-b of the general municipal law for (1) another city, village or fire district, protected under a contract by the fire department or fire company of which the volunteer firefighter is a member or (2) a fire protection district or fire alarm district, protected under a contract by the fire department or fire company of which the volunteer firefighter is a member, pursuant to a call to furnish such service in any such municipal corporation or district, or while going to or returning from the place where the service is to be or was furnished, or if death shall result from the effects of any such injury, and in any such case any such benefit shall be a charge against such municipal corporation or district and after audit shall be paid and the amount thereof shall be raised upon the property liable to taxation in such municipal corporation or district, in the same manner as other charges against the same are raised, except that in the case of a fire protection district or fire alarm district the town in which the district is located shall be primarily liable for such payment.

The foregoing provisions of this subdivision shall apply only in cases where volunteer firefighters are injured in line of such general ambulance service duty prior to the first day of March, nineteen hundred sixty-four, and in death cases where death results from injuries sustained prior to such date. Where volunteer firefighters are injured in line of such general ambulance service duty on or after the first day of March, nineteen hundred sixty-four, and in death cases where death results from injuries sustained on or after such date, the liability for benefits under this chapter shall be determined pursuant to subdivisions one to five, inclusive, of this section, except as otherwise provided in article five of the workers' compensation law, section two hundred nine-i of the general municipal law and section twenty-one of this chapter.

7. Any political subdivision may finance the payment of any benefits to be paid and provided under this chapter by the issuance of serial bonds or capital notes pursuant to the local finance law unless it is required by some law, other than this chapter, to pay such benefits from current funds.

8. Any political subdivision may contract for insurance indemnifying against the liability imposed by this chapter and the cost of such insurance shall be audited, raised and paid in the same manner as benefits are required to be audited, raised and paid in this section.

9. Insurance authorized to be purchased pursuant to subdivision eight of this section may be secured from the state fund or any stock corporation, mutual corporation or reciprocal insurer authorized to transact the business of workers' compensation in this state. If such insurance is not secured, the political subdivision liable shall be deemed to have elected to be a self-insurer unless it is a participant in a county plan of self-insurance or its liability for benefits under this chapter is covered by a town's participation in a county plan of self-insurance as provided in subdivision three of section sixty-three of the workers' compensation law. Every such self-insurer shall file with the chair of the workers' compensation board a notice of such election prescribed in form by such chair. For failure to file such notice within ten days after such election is made, the treasurer or other fiscal officer of such political subdivision shall be liable to pay to the chair of the workers' compensation board the sum of one hundred dollars as a penalty, to be transferred to the state treasury. A notice of election to be a self-insurer for compensation and benefits to volunteer firefighters under the provisions of the workers' compensation law and the general municipal law in effect prior to March first, nineteen hundred fifty-seven, which was filed prior to such date pursuant to the provisions of subdivision four of section fifty of the workers' compensation law as in effect prior to such date shall be deemed to be a notice of election filed under this section unless the chair of the workers' compensation board is notified to the contrary. The provisions of subdivision five of section fifty of the workers' compensation law shall be applicable to such self-insurers.

10. The governing board of a political subdivision liable for the payment of such benefits may authorize the treasurer or other fiscal officer thereof to pay the financial benefits provided for in this chapter to the person entitled thereto without waiting for an award in any case in the manner provided in section forty-nine of this chapter. The amount payable prior to an award pursuant to such authorization shall constitute a settled claim within the meaning of the local finance law.

11. A contract for fire protection, for the purposes of this section, shall be deemed in full force and effect if negotiations are pending for the renewal thereof.

12. Where a city, village, fire district or town on behalf of a fire protection district or fire alarm district is furnished service by a fire company, fire department, or any unit thereof pursuant to a contract with another city, village, fire district, or an incorporated fire company having its headquarters outside the city, village, fire district, fire protection district or fire alarm district receiving such service and the liability for benefits under this chapter in relation to volunteer firefighters rendering such service pursuant to such contract is not covered pursuant to a county self-insurance plan pursuant to section sixty-three of the workers' compensation law, such contract shall provide for payment to the city, village, fire district or town in which such incorporated fire company has its headquarters, of a sum in addition to the amount to be paid for such service pursuant to the contract, to provide for any increase in cost, or any new or added cost for insurance coverage for the liability for benefits under this chapter by reason of the service rendered pursuant to such contract, unless such additional sum has been specifically included in the contract amount for such service. Any such additional sum so paid shall not be subject to division with a volunteer fire company as otherwise provided by law in the case of contracts for such service.

6. Insurance

1. In general

Fire district which, under CLS Gen Mun § 209-i(1-a), accepts services of volunteer firefighter who is member of fire company in bordering area, is liable for Volunteer Firefighters' Benefit Law benefits accruing to volunteer firefighter injured during time such services are rendered. 1998 Op St Compt No. 98-24.

2. Construction, generally

Under subd. 6 of this section, all that seems to be necessary to constitute a "call for assistance" is that there be a "peril" and that "need" for assistance is communicated by someone to the other district. Fancher v Canastota, 16 A.D.2d 847, 227 N.Y.S.2d 627, 1962 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9975 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), app. denied, 12 N.Y.2d 641, 1962 N.Y. LEXIS 1535 (N.Y. 1962).

Subdivision 6 of this section places responsibility for death or injuries of a volunteer fireman responding to a call for assistance emanating from another fire district upon the latter district as long as the call for assistance comes from a person aware of the peril involved, and that district is responsible notwithstanding it refuses to accept assistance from the responding fire department. Gilewski v Mastic Beach Fire Dist., 19 A.D.2d 299, 241 N.Y.S.2d 874, 1963 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3264 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1963), aff'd, 14 N.Y.2d 595, 248 N.Y.S.2d 884, 198 N.E.2d 262, 1964 N.Y. LEXIS 1268 (N.Y. 1964).

3. —"Home area" rule

Where a volunteer fire company is located in a town and is not within a fire district, fire protection or fire alarm district, thc "home area" responsible for volunteer firemen's benefits is the town in which the company is located. The town board may by resolution restrict the company from entering into new contracts to provide services outside the "home area" town. 1967 Ops St Compt File #420.

Where the entire unincorporated area of a town is a fire protection district receiving protection under a fire protection contract with a volunteer fire company located within the said unincorporated area of the town, the town is the "home area" liable for volunteer firemen's benefits for members of the fire company. 1967 Ops St Compt File #477.

Where an incorporated fire company is located in a town outside of a fire district, fire protection district or fire alarm district, and provides fire protection under contract to municipalities and districts outside of the town, the recipient municipality or district is required to pay to such town the amount of the additional cost to such town for insurance coverage occasioned by the "home area" rule of liability for volunteer firemen's benefits. 1967 Ops St Compt File #420A.

When an incorporated fire company is located in a fire protection district in a town and provides fire protection under contract to that district and a fire protection district in an adjacent town, the recipient adjacent town is required to pay an additional sum to the "home area" town, to cover increased cost of insurance coverage for firemen's benefits. 1974 Ops St Compt File #960.

Any loss or damage to, or expenses incurred in operation of, equipment used in answering call for assistance to fire protection district is charge against and paid by fire protection district, however, "home area" is responsible for Volunteer Firefighters' Benefit Law coverage under those circumstances. Ops St Compt 89-15.

4. Assessments and charges

A clause in a fire protection contract may not relieve taxable property in the fire protection district of liability for assessment of costs of volunteer firemen's benefits. 1961 Ops St Compt #836.

Cost of volunteer firemen's benefits arising from service in a fire protection district is charged against the district, but the town in which the district is located is primarily liable for payment. 1962 Ops St Compt #186.

5. Coverage outside territory

A volunteer fireman was answering a "call for assistance" from another district, and accordingly within the coverage of this section, where he suffered a heart attack while assisting in a search for a child lost in the woods of a neighboring fire district, pursuant to the request of the chief of such other district to the chief of his own department. Fancher v Canastota, 16 A.D.2d 847, 227 N.Y.S.2d 627, 1962 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9975 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), app. denied, 12 N.Y.2d 641, 1962 N.Y. LEXIS 1535 (N.Y. 1962).

Where, at time of injury, a volunteer fireman was responding to a call from his own fire company made by a person aware of the peril involved and need for assistance at a site in an adjoining fire district, the adjoining district was liable for death benefits notwithstanding its chief refused assistance from decedent's fire company upon its arrival. Gilewski v Mastic Beach Fire Dist., 19 A.D.2d 299, 241 N.Y.S.2d 874, 1963 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3264 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1963), aff'd, 14 N.Y.2d 595, 248 N.Y.S.2d 884, 198 N.E.2d 262, 1964 N.Y. LEXIS 1268 (N.Y. 1964).

A volunteer fireman providing service outside the State pursuant to a fire protection contract is covered by volunteer firemen's benefits payable by his "home area". 1975 Ops St Compt File #160.

A town which has a fire district located within its boundaries is not responsible for paying any portion of the premiums for insurance covering volunteer firemen's benefits for volunteer members of that fire district such expense is a fire district charge. 1982 Op St. Compt File #82-3.

6. Insurance

Deceased fire chief of a volunteer fire company was properly found to have been a covered employee under the N.Y. Vol. Fire. Ben. Law § 30(2) where he suffered a fatal heart attack at the scene of a fire, as an implied in fact contract existed between the city and the volunteer fire company; the New York Workers' Compensation Board properly drew negative inferences from the fact that the city failed to produce an employee who was familiar with the relationship between the volunteer fire company and the New York Fire Department, as there was evidence that the company had been in existence for a number of years, had rendered assistance to the Department, and that no objections had ever been made regarding the company's participation. Pache v Aviation Volunteer Fire Co., 20 A.D.3d 731, 800 N.Y.S.2d 228, 2005 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7803 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2005), app. denied, 6 N.Y.3d 705, 812 N.Y.S.2d 34, 845 N.E.2d 466, 2006 N.Y. LEXIS 127 (N.Y. 2006).

Where a town, on behalf of a fire protection district, contracts with a village fire department and the village itself, for fire protection, but does not agree to pay for volunteer firemen's benefits, or insurance coverage therefor, for the village firemen, the town has no liability for such payments. 1967 Ops St Compt File # 561.

Where county mutual self-insurance plan does not include coverage of volunteer firemen, village may, but is not required to, purchase insurance to protect against liability. 1968 Ops St Compt File #235.

When an incorporated fire company is located in a fire protection district in a town and provides fire protection under contract to that district and a fire protection district in an adjacent town, the recipient adjacent town is required to pay an additional sum to the "home area" town, to cover increased cost of insurance coverage for firemen's benefits. 1974 Ops St Compt File #960.

A town which has a fire district located within its boundaries is not responsible for paying any portion of the premiums for insurance covering volunteer firemen's benefits for volunteer members of that fire district such expense is a fire district charge. 1982 Op St. Compt File #82-3.

5. Insurance

1. In general

The Medina Firemen's Benevolent Association may not use moneys paid to it from the tax on foreign fire insurance premiums to defray the cost of arbitration or the legal fees related to arbitration proceedings between the village and its paid firemen. Opn No. 79-238 superseded. 1979 Op St Compt File #238-A.

A conflict of interest does not occur where a fire district commissioner, who is a physician, is paid fees for providing medical services to volunteer firemen under the Volunteer Firemen's Benefit Law, when the payments are made by an insurance carrier pursuant to a contract with the district. 1979 Op St Compt File #537.

2. Construction, generally

Fire company is "located" under statute, in fire protection district where headquarters have been since 1905 even though it has additional real property and equipment in a village with which it has a contract for fire protection. 1965 NY Ops Atty Gen Jan 7.

An endorsement naming a fire department or company, fire commissioners and/or fire chiefs as additional insureds cannot be added to nor form a part of a fire district's Volunteer Firemen's Benefit Law insurance policy originally issued to take effect on or after March 1, 1962. A fire district may purchase liability insurance for the fire departments or companies, fire commissioners and fire chiefs serving the district. 1983 NY Ops Atty Gen April 14 (informal).

3. Assessments and charges

Where a volunteer fireman, at time of injury, is a member of a fire department operating in two villages, one fire district, and one fire protection district, benefits payable under this law to him are a charge to be distributed proportionately among the villages, the fire district, and the fire protection district served by the department. 1962 NY Ops Atty Gen Sept 28.

Where a town, on behalf of a fire protection district, contracts with a fire company located within such district for fire protection, the town is liable for injuries or death of firemen occurring in the performance of their duties. 1978 Op St Compt File #641.

Where volunteer firemen are covered by a county self-insurance plan, they are entitled to benefits if injured while responding to a call for assistance from outside the fire district notwithstanding that the request for assistance is not a mutual aid call. 1981 Op St Compt File #81-77.

A town which is a participant in a county mutual self-insurance plan may not charge back to a fire district within the town that portion of the town's annual contribution to the plan which can be directly attributed to losses incurred by the fire district. 1981 Op St Compt File #771.

Where a town has improperly paid premiums for insurance covering volunteer firemen's benefits for a fire district within the town, the amount of such premiums raised from real property located outside the boundaries of the fire district should be refunded to the town subject to a six year statute of limitations. 1982 Op St Compt File #82-248.

4. Coverage outside territory

Volunteer firemen en route to and attending a fire outside of the fire district, pursuant to an actual call for assistance are covered by the Volunteer Firemen's Disability Benefits Law and amendments to the General Municipal Law dealing with the liability of the municipality for damages due to negligence of volunteer firemen. 1959 NY Ops Atty Gen Apr. 9 (informal).

A village fire department may respond to a call for assistance from an Indian Reservation unless there is a resolution restricting such response. Volunteer firemen injured in the course of such response are covered under the Volunteer Firemen's Benefit Law. 1959 NY Ops Atty Gen Sept. 10 (informal).

Where a town, on behalf of a fire protection district, contracts with a fire company located within such district for fire protection, the town is liable for injuries or death of firemen occurring in the performance of their duties. 1978 Op St Compt File #641.

The Town of Chenango is responsible for providing VFBL benefits to a member of the Chenango Forks Volunteer Fire Company who is injured while fighting a fire in a fire district in the Town of Greene. 1980 Op St Compt File #449.

5. Insurance

The Medina Firemen's Benevolent Association may not use moneys paid to it from the tax on foreign fire insurance premiums to defray the cost of arbitration or the legal fees related to arbitration proceedings between the village and its paid firemen. Opn No. 79-238 superseded. 1979 Op St Compt File #238-A.

Compensation coverage of volunteer firemen located with towns which have withdrawn from county self-insurance plan is governed by Volunteer Firemen's Benefit Law § 30 if the villages or fire districts within the towns do not elect to become participants in the plan. 1968 NY Ops Atty Gen March 14.

A conflict of interest does not occur where a fire district commissioner, who is a physician, is paid fees for providing medical services to volunteer firemen under the Volunteer Firemen's Benefit Law, when the payments are made by an insurance carrier pursuant to a contract with the district. 1979 Op St Compt File #537.

A fire protection contract pursuant to which a fire district fire department provides fire protection to a fire protection district or a village may provide that the fire protection district or the village shall be responsible for paying any increases in the cost of Volunteer Firemen's Benefit Law insurance attributable to the protected area which occur during the contract term. 1979 Op St Compt File #541.

Enclosure of Opns St Comp, 1977, No. 77-354 to the effect that, where a village provides fire protection to a fire protection district, the fire protection contract may not require the town, on behalf of the district, to pay for, or provide insurance for volunteer firemen's benefits. However, the additional cost to the village of providing insurance for benefits could be reflected in the contract. 1979 Op St Compt File #858.

While there is no provision of law authorizing or requiring the addition of the fire company or department which serves a municipality, fire district or fire protection district as an additional named insured under the employer's liability portion of a VFBL insurance policy (coverage B), it would seem that, purely as a matter of contract, the insurance company providing the policy could agree to do so. 1980 Op St Compt File #529.

A town, on behalf of a fire protection district for which it has entered into a contract with a fire district for fire protection after March 1, 1964, is not required to pay the fire district for any increase in the premium for VFBL insurance attributable to the contract area and occurring during the contract term unless the contract expressly provides for such payments or unless the town agrees to amend the contract pursuant to the provisions of section 184(8) of the Town Law. 23 Opns St Comp, 1967, p 371 and Opns St Comp, 1979, No. 79-541 superseded to the extent they are inconsistent. 1980 Op St Compt File #635.

Where volunteer firemen are covered by a county self-insurance plan, they are entitled to benefits if injured while responding to a call for assistance from outside the fire district notwithstanding that the request for assistance is not a mutual aid call. 1981 Op St Compt File #81-77.

A town which is a participant in a county mutual self-insurance plan may not charge back to a fire district within the town that portion of the town's annual contribution to the plan which can be directly attributed to losses incurred by the fire district. 1981 Op St Compt File #771.

§ 32. Group insurance

1. Notwithstanding any provision of section thirty of this chapter, any town may contract for a single policy of insurance indemnifying (1) all fire protection districts and fire alarm districts wholly within such town which are liable for the payment of benefits under this chapter, (2) all territory within such town outside cities, villages, fire districts, fire protection districts and fire alarm districts which is liable for the payment of benefits under this chapter, and (3) the town in relation to such fire protection districts, fire alarm districts and outside territory, against liability imposed by this chapter. If a town has any such liability and contracts for such a single policy, then and in that event only any such policy, if requested by the board of trustees of any village wholly within the town, or by the board of fire commissioners of any fire district wholly within the town, shall also indemnify such village or fire district against such liability. The cost of such insurance shall be a town charge and shall be levied and collected in the same manner as other town charges only in the territory of such town which is liable for the payment of benefits under this chapter and which is outside of any village and fire districts not covered by such a policy. Nothing in this section contained shall impose any additional liability on any town for any benefit payments in relation to volunteer firefighters.

2. Notwithstanding any other provision of section thirty of this chapter, any group of cities, villages, fire districts or town boards acting for and on behalf of fire protection districts, fire alarm districts or territories outside any such municipal corporations or districts which are liable for the payment of benefits under this chapter, all of which cities, villages, districts and territories are located in whole or in part within one county, may elect by resolution of the governing board of each member of the group to be insured against liability imposed by this chapter, as a group under a single policy. Such resolutions shall be filed with the chairman of the board of supervisors. The group shall file with the chairman of the board of supervisors an agreement, signed by the officer of the governing body designated by such resolution, agreeing to the effective date of such policy and to the population of each such city, village, fire district, fire protection district, fire alarm district and such territory outside any such municipal corporation or district, and, if any such fire protection district or fire alarm district lies wholly or partly within two or more towns, the population of the district within each such town. The population shall be that which is shown by the latest federal census, or, if not shown by such census, then as estimated. The estimate used for any village, district or other area in a town plus the estimated or actual population of all other villages, districts and areas in such town shall not exceed the population of such town as shown by the latest federal census. It shall be the duty of the chairman of the board of supervisors of the county, upon the filing of such resolutions and agreement, promptly to contract for insurance indemnifying against the liability imposed by this chapter in the manner provided in section thirty of this chapter. Except by mutual consent of the participating members, a member may withdraw from such a group only upon the anniversary date of the policy, and then only upon thirty days' notice of withdrawal by mail to the chairman of the board of supervisors. The costs of such insurance shall be apportioned by the clerk of the board of supervisors of the county to each such city, village, fire district, fire protection district, fire alarm district, and such territory outside such municipal corporations and districts, in the proportion that the agreed population bears to the entire population of the group. Refunds, dividends and discounts in relation to such insurance shall be distributed or credited according to the same apportionment. Upon notification by the clerk of the board of supervisors, the chief fiscal officer of each such city, village or fire district shall pay to the county treasurer, from moneys available or made available, the amount apportioned to such city, village or district. Upon like notification, the supervisor of each town in which such a fire protection district or fire alarm district is located in whole or in part, or in which such outside territory is located, shall pay to the county treasurer the amount apportioned for such district, in whole or in part, or territory, as the case may be, using moneys raised or made available for the purposes of fire protection in such district or outside territory, or if there be no such moneys or insufficient moneys, using funds of the town available or made available, which funds shall be a charge upon such district or territory for which the town shall be reimbursed. The county treasurer shall pay the cost of such insurance with such moneys, or if any apportioned share has not been paid, the county treasurer shall advance the amount necessary from moneys of the general fund upon resolution of the board of supervisors. Any such advance shall be repaid as soon as moneys are available therefor. If any apportioned share remains unpaid, the county may recover the same by action at law. If any member of the group shall fail to pay its apportioned share within thirty days after notice that such amount has become due and payable, the chairman of the board of supervisors may terminate the participation of such member in the group by notice by mail to such member on a date specified in the notice, and a copy of such notice shall be filed by the chairman of the board of supervisors with the insurance carrier, who shall notify the chairman of the workmen's compensation board of the termination of coverage in the same manner as provided for cancellation of policy under subdivision five of section fifty-four of the workmen's compensation law. If any village or fire district is located in two or more counties, it may elect to join such a group in one of such counties. If any fire protection district or fire alarm district includes territory in more than one county, it shall become a participant only if all the town boards acting for and on behalf of such district shall have elected that such district shall become a participant in such a group, and in such case such town boards shall elect as to which county group it shall join. If any participating fire protection district or fire alarm district includes territory in more than one town, whether or not in more than one county, the amount of cost of insurance, refund, dividend or discount apportioned to such district shall be apportioned in the proportion that the population of the district within each such town bears to the population of the entire district. The figure used for population in such case shall be the one stated in the agreement. If the boundaries of any city, village, fire district, fire protection district, fire alarm district or such outside territory in the group shall be changed during the effective period of any such insurance policy, or if there are changes in the membership of the group, the agreement heretofore mentioned concerning population shall be appropriately amended by a supplementary agreement to be executed and filed in the same manner as the original agreement, in which case the coverage of the policy and the apportionment of the cost thereof shall be changed accordingly.

3. Each policy issued pursuant to subdivisions one and two of this section shall identify clearly each city, town, village, fire district, fire protection district, fire alarm district and outside territory covered thereby.

§ 40. Notice of injury or death.

Notice of an injury or death for which benefits are to be paid or provided under this chapter shall be given to the political subdivision liable for the payment thereof within ninety days after such injury or death except that such notice need not be given if a claim is filed pursuant to section forty-one of this chapter within ninety days after such injury or death. Either such notice may be given by any person claiming to be entitled to such benefits or by someone in his or her behalf. The notice shall be in writing, shall contain the name and address of the volunteer firefighter, and state in ordinary language the time, place, nature and cause of the injury and shall be signed by him or her or by a person on his or her behalf or, in case of death, by any one or more of his or her dependents, or by a person on their behalf. The notice shall be given to the clerk of the board of supervisors of the county, the comptroller or chief financial officer of the city, the town clerk of the town, the clerk of the village or the secretary of the fire district, as the case may be, by delivering it to such officer or by registered letter properly addressed to such officer. The failure to give notice of injury or notice of death shall be a bar to any claim under this chapter unless such failure is excused by the workers' compensation board on any of the following grounds, (1) that for some sufficient reason the notice could not have been given, (2) that a member of a body in charge of, or any officer of, the fire department or fire company had knowledge within such ninety-day period of the injuries or death, (3) that the political subdivision, or its insurance carrier had not been prejudiced by a delay in giving such notice, or (4) that the cause of disablement or death was not known to be the result of service performed in line of duty as a volunteer firefighter in sufficient time to comply with the provisions of this section.

Amendment Notes The 2018 amendment by ch 476, § 283, added "or her" in the second sentence; in the third sentence, substituted "firefighter" for "fireman" and added "or her" three times; and in the last sentence, substituted "workers' compensation" for "workmen's compensation" and "firefighter" for "fireman."

Notes to Decisions

While the legislature has authorized the court to exercise its discretion under certain prescribed circumstances, to permit service of the notice of claim required as a condition precedent to the commencement of a court action against a public corporation within a reasonable time after the expiration of the 90-day period, or to amend such notice in order to cure a mistake, omission, irregularity or defect therein made in good faith, there is no authority to transform a notice of claim served under § 40 of the Volunteer Firemen's Benefit Law into a notice of claim grounded in tort, which is the prerequisite to the commencement of an action against a public corporation as prescribed by § 50-e of the General Municipal Law. Raynor v Westhampton Beach, 58 Misc. 2d 1082, 296 N.Y.S.2d 704, 1969 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1856 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1969).

§ 41. Claim for benefits.

The right to claim benefits under this chapter shall be barred, except as hereinafter provided, unless within two years after the injury, or, if death results therefrom, within two years after such death, a claim for the benefits under this chapter shall be filed with the chairperson of the workers' compensation board and a copy of such claim shall be filed with the same officer to whom a notice of injury must be given under section forty of this chapter. The right of a volunteer firefighter or his or her dependents to claim benefits under this chapter for disablement or death, as the case may be, caused by disease shall not be barred by the failure of the volunteer firefighter or his or her dependents to file a claim within either such period of two years, provided such claim shall be filed after either such period of two years and within ninety days after disablement or ninety days after knowledge that the disease is or was due to service as a volunteer firefighter, whichever is the later date. The claim shall be in substantially the same form and shall give substantially the same information as is required to be given in a claim under the provisions of section twenty-eight of the workers' compensation law. Notwithstanding the provisions of any other law, any such claim need not be sworn to, verified or acknowledged. No case in which an advance payment is made to a volunteer firefighter or to his or her dependents in case of death shall be barred by the failure of the volunteer firefighter or his or her dependents to file a claim, and the workers' compensation board may at any time order a hearing on any such case in the same manner as though a claim for benefits had been filed.

The date of injury caused by disease shall be the date of contracture of such disease as determined by the workers' compensation board on the hearing of the claim and the responsibility of the political subdivision liable for the payment of benefits and its insurance carrier shall be fixed by the date of injury as so determined.

Claim for a hip injury was barred as untimely under either N.Y. Workers' Comp. Law § 28 or N.Y. Vol. Fire. Ben. § 44. Presumptions

If a claim for benefits is filed within two years after the injury, or, if death results therefrom, is filed within two years after such death, as provided in section forty-one of this chapter, then in any proceeding for the enforcement of such claim, it shall be presumed in the absence of substantial evidence to the contrary:

1. That the claim comes within the provisions of this chapter;

2. That sufficient notice thereof was given;

3. That the injury was not occasioned by the wilful intention of the injured volunteer firefighter to bring about the injury or death of himself or herself or another;

4. That the injury did not result solely from the intoxication of the injured volunteer firefighter while acting in line of duty;

5. That the contents of medical and surgical reports introduced in evidence by claimants for benefits shall constitute prima facie evidence of fact as to the matter contained therein.

Notes to Decisions

Claimant, a volunteer firefighter, could not be disqualified from receiving benefits under N.Y. Vol. Fire. Ben. Law § 10 for allegedly making false representations as to her alleged physical limitations because the plain and unambiguous language of N.Y. Workers' Comp. Law § 114-a limited its application to claims for benefits under N.Y. Workers' Comp. Law § 15; thus, the civil penalties of § 114-a did not apply to wage replacement benefits, and only criminal penalties were provided for in N.Y. Workers' Comp. Law § 114 and N.Y. Vol. Fire. Ben. Law § 55. Matter of Giello v Providence Fire Dist., 57 A.D.3d 1294, 869 N.Y.S.2d 676, 2008 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9819 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2008).

§ 61. Death or disability due to disease or malfunction of heart or coronary arteries; claims and procedures. [Expires and repealed June 30, 2025]

1. A claim for benefits for the death or disability of a volunteer firefighter due to disease or malfunction of the heart or of one or more coronary arteries filed in accordance with section forty-one of this chapter, shall not be denied provided the claimant introduces evidence which establishes that a volunteer firefighter suffered disease or malfunction of the heart or of one or more coronary arteries which caused the disablement or death of the volunteer firefighter, and that such disease or malfunction resulted from the duties and activities in which the volunteer firefighter was engaged as set forth in section five of this chapter for which benefits shall be paid, unless it can be shown by substantial evidence to the contrary that the duties and activities of the volunteer firefighter in which the volunteer firefighter was engaged at the time of such disease or malfunction did not cause or precipitate such disease or malfunction; and further provided that the injury did not result solely from the intoxication of the volunteer firefighter while acting in line of duty or was not occasioned by the wilful intention of the volunteer firefighter to bring about the injury or death of himself or herself or another.

2. The chairman of the workers' compensation board shall promulgate rules and regulations providing a priority for controverted claims for benefits filed as provided in subdivision one of this section provided, however, that the claim must be decided within ninety days measured from the date of the receipt of a completed claim from the volunteer firefighter or his representative. Such rules and regulations shall also prescribe a form to be used for making claims for such benefits. Such form shall specifically request the information necessary in order to receive an award of benefits.

3. This section shall not be construed to repeal by implication any existing provision of law.

HISTORY:
Add, L 1977, ch 668, § 2, eff Aug 1, 1977; amd, L 1994, ch 272, § 1, eff July 6, 1994; L 2018, ch 476, § 288, effective December 28, 2018.

Editor's Notes: Laws 1977, ch 668, §§ 1, 3 and 5, eff Aug 1, 1977, provide as follows:

Section 1. Statement of legislative findings. One of the most valuable assets of New York state is the service rendered by its volunteer firemen. The state legislature has already recognized the unusual risks to which volunteer firemen are subjected, and has provided a system of benefits through the volunteer firemen's benefit law for volunteer firemen who die from the effects of injury in line of duty or who are disabled in line of duty. One of the risks to which volunteer firemen are subjected is the risk of death or disablement resulting from the injury of heart attack. Studies have shown that the duties of a volunteer fireman produce a stress and strain beyond the ordinary wear and tear of life, thereby increasing the risk of heart attack. In addition, the exposure to carbon monoxide has been shown to increase the risk of heart attack. When a volunteer fireman suffers death or disablement due to the injury of heart attack resulting from services performed in line of duty, an award of benefits should be promptly made pursuant to the volunteer firemen's benefit law.

When a volunteer fireman suffers the injury of heart attack in line of duty, the claimant has been required to prove that the injury resulted from services performed in line of duty. As a result, claims are frequently controverted leading to long delays in the receipt of benefits where the claim is sustained. This delay has proved most onerous, particularly when a family has suffered the loss of its primary wage earner.

The legislature hereby intends to (1) clarify the law regarding benefits payable when a volunteer fireman suffers the injury of heart attack in line of duty by codifying the principles enunciated by the courts of this state applying thereto and, (2) to establish a procedure for the special handling of such claims.

§ 3. The chairman of the workers' compensation board shall maintain a record of each claim for benefits under this chapter in which it is alleged that death or disability was caused by disease or malfunction of the heart or of one or more coronary arteries. The chairman of the workers' compensation board shall prepare, by the first day of July in every year, a summary of such records and report on such summary to the governor and the legislature by the first day of July in every year. The summary and report shall indicate the number of claims for benefits made under this chapter in which it was alleged that death or disability resulted from a disease or malfunction of the heart or of one or more coronary arteries, the number of such claims in which the claimant was granted benefits, the number of such claims in which the claimant was denied benefits. (Amd, L 1990, ch 348, § 1, eff July 2, 1990).

§ 5. This act shall take effect on the first day of July next succeeding the date on which it shall have become a law, or if signed after the first day of July, nineteen hundred seventy-seven, shall take effect immediately, and shall apply only in cases where the injury causing death or disability occurred on or after such date of taking effect.

Laws 1977, ch 668, § 4, eff Aug 1, 1977, provides as follows:

§ 4. The provisions of section two of this act shall remain in full force and effect to and including the thirtieth day of June, 2025 (Amd, L 1979, ch 321, § 12, eff June 29, 1979; L 1981, ch 381, § 12, eff June 20, 1981; L 1983, ch 413, § 10, eff June 30, 1983; L 1985, ch 278, § 1, eff June 30, 1985; L 1987, ch 207, § 1, eff June 30, 1987; L 1989, ch 233, § 1, eff July 1, 1989, L 1991, ch 435, § 1, eff July 19, 1991; L 1993, ch 115, § 1, eff June 21, 1993; L 1995, ch 137, § 1, eff July 7, 1995, L 1997, ch 218, § 1, eff July 18, 1997; L 1999, ch 111, § 1, eff June 22, 1999; L 2001, ch 67, § 1, eff June 27, 2001; L 2003, ch 89, § 1, eff July 1, 2003; L 2005, ch 138, § 1, eff June 30, 2005; L 2010, ch 383, § 1, eff Aug 13, 2010; L 2015, ch 26, § 1, eff June 30, 2015; L 2020, ch 58, § 1 (Part XXX, Subpart B, Item CC), eff April 3, 2020).

Laws 1994, ch 272, § 2, eff July 6, 1994, provides as follows:

§ 2. This act shall take effect immediately, provided however that any rule or regulation necessary for the implementation of the provisions of this act are authorized to be completed within 180 days of such date and provided further that the amendments made to subdivision 2 of section 61 of the volunteer firefighters' benefit law by section one of this act shall not affect the expiration of and shall expire at the same time as such section expires as provided by section 4 of chapter 668 of the laws of 1977 as amended.

Laws 2018, ch 476, § 292, eff December 28, 2018, provides:

§ 292. This act shall take effect immediately, provided, however, that:

a. the amendments to section 30 of the workers' compensation law made by section thirteen of this act, the amendments to subdivisions 1, 4 and 6 of section 207-c of the general municipal law made by section fifty-six of this act, and the amendments to paragraph 1 of subdivision c of section 340 of the retirement and social security law made by section one hundred eighty-two of this act shall take effect on the same date and same manner as chapter 628 of the laws of 1991, take effect; and

b. the amendments to subdivision 1 of section 61 of the volunteer firefighters' benefit law made by section two hundred eighty-eight of this act shall not affect the repeal of such section and shall be deemed to repeal therewith.

1. In general; constitutionality

There can be no question of the power of the legislature to take away the statutory remedy for a death claim and substitute therefor another remedy. Culhane v Economical Garage, Inc., 195 A.D. 108, 186 N.Y.S. 454, 1921 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4705 (N.Y. App. Div. 1921).

The state constitution, article 1, § 18, removes all limitations on the power of the legislature to enact laws dealing with workmen's compensation. Schmidt v Wolf Contracting Co., 269 A.D. 201, 55 N.Y.S.2d 162, 1945 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2952 (N.Y. App. Div. 1945), aff'd, 295 N.Y. 748, 65 N.E.2d 568, 295 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 748, 1946 N.Y. LEXIS 928 (N.Y. 1946).

A workmen's compensation law is not guaranteed by the state constitution; the legislature is merely empowered to pass such an act and the regulation thereof is wholly within the scope of legislative authority. Sager v General Electric Co., 269 A.D. 801, 55 N.Y.S.2d 138, 1945 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3910 (N.Y. App. Div. 1945), app. dismissed, 298 N.Y. 752, 83 N.E.2d 152, 298 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 752, 1948 N.Y. LEXIS 1299 (N.Y. 1948).

Omnibus Workers' Compensation Reform Act of 1996 (L 1996, ch 635), which forbids third-party actions against employers for contribution except in cases where employee sustained grave injury, is prospective only to accidents occurring subsequent to effective date of statute. Knapp v CONRAIL, 171 Misc. 2d 597, 655 N.Y.S.2d 732, 1997 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 34 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1997).

Neither in rendering an employer liable irrespective of doctrines of negligence, contributory negligence, assumption of risk and negligence of fellow servants, nor in depriving an employee, or his dependents, of higher damages which, in some cases, might be recovered under those doctrines, can the Workmen's Compensation Law be said to violate due process. New York C. R. Co. v White, 243 U.S. 188, 37 S. Ct. 247, 61 L. Ed. 667, 1917 U.S. LEXIS 2105 (U.S. 1917).

Viewed from the standpoint of natural justice, the system provided by the Work. Comp. Law in lieu of former rules is neither arbitrary nor unreasonable. New York C. R. Co. v White, 243 U.S. 188, 37 S. Ct. 247, 61 L. Ed. 667, 1917 U.S. LEXIS 2105 (U.S. 1917).

Rights of employers under the 14th amendment are not violated by the extension of the workmen's compensation law to all employment in which four or more workmen (farm laborers and domestic servants excepted) are employed, which is construed by the state courts as including all other employees of the same employer and employed in the same business with such workmen and operatives, though at places remote from their work. Ward & Gow v Krinsky, 259 U.S. 503, 42 S. Ct. 529, 66 L. Ed. 1033, 1922 U.S. LEXIS 2495 (U.S. 1922).

2. Relation to other laws

Determination by Workers' Compensation Board that injury was work-related does not, by operation of collateral estoppel, automatically entitle injured employee to CLS Gen Mun § 207-c benefits, because no identity of issues inheres in determinations regarding these 2 types of benefits. Balcerak v County of Nassau, 94 N.Y.2d 253, 701 N.Y.S.2d 700, 723 N.E.2d 555, 1999 N.Y. LEXIS 3927 (N.Y. 1999).

The Work. Comp. Law and the Federal Employers' Liability Act should be given a reasonable construction and harmonized when possible, although the state law must give way to the federal law where they are antagonistic. Parsons v Delaware & Hudson Co., 167 A.D. 536, 153 N.Y.S. 179, 1915 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8225 (N.Y. App. Div.), app. dismissed, 216 N.Y. 710, 111 N.E. 1093, 216 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 710, 1915 N.Y. LEXIS 930 (N.Y. 1915).

A state workmen's compensation law is ineffectual against the federal government without the consent of Congress. Snow v United States Railroad Administration, 209 A.D. 308, 204 N.Y.S. 514, 1924 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8616 (N.Y. App. Div.), aff'd, 239 N.Y. 528, 147 N.E. 181, 239 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 528, 1924 N.Y. LEXIS 538 (N.Y. 1924).

A proceeding under the Workmen's Compensation Law is not an action or a special proceeding under the Civil Practice Act but a statutory proceeding having its own rules as to limitations. Hence, the provisions of the Civil Practice Act do not apply to proceedings under the Workmen's Compensation Law unless there is direct statutory authority therefor. Luoma v Spearin, Preston & Burrows, Inc., 282 A.D. 612, 126 N.Y.S.2d 543, 1953 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4537 (N.Y. App. Div. 1953), aff'd, 307 N.Y. 728, 121 N.E.2d 544, 307 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 728, 1954 N.Y. LEXIS 1458 (N.Y. 1954).

The provision in the Motor Vehicle Accident Indemnification Corporation indorsement providing that any amount awarded thereunder should be reduced by the amount paid under any workmen's compensation law requires that the award be so reduced. Cruzado v Motor Vehicle Accident Indemnification Corp., 24 A.D.2d 743, 263 N.Y.S.2d 484, 1965 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3312 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1965).

In action by New York truck driver who was injured in New Hampshire while unloading cargo obtained from New York warehouse owned by foreign corporation, provision of New Hampshire's Workers' Compensation Law which prohibited contribution claims against employers barred third-party contribution claim asserted by foreign corporation against plaintiff's corporate employer domiciled in Kentucky; it would be undesirable to impose New York's Workers' Compensation Law on Kentucky employer with respect to injury that occurred in New Hampshire. Gleason v Holman Contract Warehouse, 250 A.D.2d 339, 681 N.Y.S.2d 664, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13547 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1998).

Workers' Compensation Board, which classified claimant as having permanent partial disability, properly found that he did not suffer loss of earning capacity under CLS Vol Fire Ben § 3(8) where he returned to his regular job duties as electrician following both accidents, his chiropractor did not impose any restrictions on his work subsequent to first accident, at time of second accident, claimant had different employment entailing assembly of electrical components at work bench, which he stated did not require any heavy lifting, and it was not until about one year later when claimant's back condition was exacerbated that chiropractor imposed restrictions on lifting and bending; claimant's testimony that such limitations precluded him from applying for higher paying and more physically demanding positions was irrelevant as to whether he suffered loss of earning capacity under Volunteer Firefighters' Benefit Law. Griffo v Onondaga Hill Volunteer Fire Dep't, 256 A.D.2d 858, 681 N.Y.S.2d 835, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13578 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1998).

Even if the New York Workers' Compensation Board concluded that a union was not an employer, its determination under one statute was not binding on the New York Unemployment Insurance Appeal Board when the same question arose under a different statute. In re Local 54 United Paperworkers Int'l Union, 301 A.D.2d 922, 754 N.Y.S.2d 439, 2003 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 374 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2003).

Where the defendant in an action for damages brought against him as owner of a motor vehicle known as a hi-lo desires to raise the point that negligence of the operator of the vehicle was the cause of injuries to plaintiff and that the operator was a coemployee of plaintiff, wherefore plaintiff's cause of action or rights are solely under this act, he should be permitted, on motion, to amend his answer to assert such a defense. Bonsignore v L & D Carriers, Inc., 24 Misc. 2d 500, 201 N.Y.S.2d 944, 1960 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3166 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1960).

The application to an injury sustained by a longshoreman while unloading in a New York port, an ocean going steamship owned by a nonresident corporation, of the provisions of the New York Workmen's Compensation Act renders the statute, to that extent, invalid as conflicting with Art 3 § 2, of the United States Constitution which extends the judicial power of United States to all cases of admiralty and maritime jurisdiction, and with Art 1 § 8 giving Congress power to make all laws necessary and proper to carry into execution the powers vested in the federal government. Southern Pacific Co. v Jensen, 244 U.S. 205, 37 S. Ct. 524, 61 L. Ed. 1086, 1917 U.S. LEXIS 1628 (U.S. 1917).

It was not error in an action by longshoremen under the Jones Act, not to charge the jury that the plaintiff was being compensated under the New York Workmen's Compensation Law, as the plaintiff's rights under that law were irrelevant to a determination of his damages. Maccarone v A/S Inger, 262 F.2d 569, 1959 U.S. App. LEXIS 5143 (2d Cir. N.Y. 1959).

3. Construction

The workmen's compensation law should be liberally construed. In re Petrie, 215 N.Y. 335, 109 N.E. 549, 215 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 335, 1915 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 748, 1946 N.Y. LEXIS 928 (N.Y. 1946).; Commissioner of Taxation & Finance v Riger Bldg. Corp., 260 A.D. 358, 22 N.Y.S.2d 378, 1940 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4592 (N.Y. App. Div. 1940), rev'd, 285 N.Y. 217, 33 N.E.2d 529, 285 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 217, 1941 N.Y. LEXIS 1506 (N.Y. 1941).; In re Rheinwald, 168 A.D. 425, 153 N.Y.S. 598, 1915 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8298 (N.Y. App. Div. 1915), limited, Kackel v Serviss, 180 A.D. 54, 167 N.Y.S. 348, 1917 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8073 (N.Y. App. Div. 1917).

While this statute is to be liberally construed to serve the underlying social need, it may not be stretched beyond the limits established by the legislature, even in cases of hardship. Di Donato v Rosenberg, 263 N.Y. 486, 189 N.E. 560, 263 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 486, 1934 N.Y. LEXIS 1301 (N.Y. 1934).

A claim by a workman, injured in the course of his employment, for compensation under the Work. Comp. Law, may not be construed as a demand for damages for a wrong alleged to have been done by the employer. Recovery is sought in consequence of injuries received for which statute, read into contract of employment, gives right to compensation. Heaney v P. J. Carlin Const. Co., 269 N.Y. 93, 199 N.E. 16, 269 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 93, 1935 N.Y. LEXIS 792 (N.Y. 1935), aff'd, 299 U.S. 41, 57 S. Ct. 75, 81 L. Ed. 27, 1936 U.S. LEXIS 6 (U.S. 1936).

The Workmen's Compensation Law is properly construed broadly to embrace all activities which can, in any reasonable sense, be included within its coverage. Wilson v General Motors Corp., 298 N.Y. 468, 84 N.E.2d 781, 298 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 468, 1949 N.Y. LEXIS 1006 (N.Y. 1949).

The workmen's compensation law must be construed with the greatest liberality in favor of workmen and their dependents. Tate v Dickens' Estate, 276 A.D. 94, 93 N.Y.S.2d 504, 1949 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3119 (N.Y. App. Div. 1949).

An employee is entitled to a liberal construction of the workmen's compensation law to enable him to obtain compensation for injuries sustained in the course of the employment in border line cases; and he is also entitled to a liberal construction such as will sustain a recovery in a negligence action in excess of that which could be awarded under the workmen's compensation law. Jones v Herbert Equities, Inc., 60 N.Y.S.2d 88, 186 Misc. 163, 1946 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1826 (N.Y. App. Term), aff'd, 270 A.D. 922, 62 N.Y.S.2d 612, 1946 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4653 (N.Y. App. Div. 1946).

4. Purpose

The workmen's compensation law was adopted in deference to a widespread belief and demand that compensation should be awarded to workmen who were injured and disabled in the course of their employment, even though sometimes the accident might occur under such circumstances as would not permit a recovery in an ordinary action at law; the underlying thought was that such a system of compensation would be in the interest of the general welfare by preventing a workman from being deprived of means of support as the result of an injury received in the course of his employment. In re Petrie, 215 N.Y. 335, 109 N.E. 549, 215 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 335, 1915 N.Y. LEXIS 1004 (N.Y. 1915).; Schmidt v Wolf Contracting Co., 269 A.D. 201, 55 N.Y.S.2d 162, 1945 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2952 (N.Y. App. Div. 1945), aff'd, 295 N.Y. 748, 65 N.E.2d 568, 295 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 748, 1946 N.Y. LEXIS 928 (N.Y. 1946).

The theory of the Work. Comp. Law is not indemnity for the loss of a member or physical impairment, as such, but compensation for disability to work made on the basis of average weekly wages. Marhoffer v Marhoffer, 220 N.Y. 543, 116 N.E. 379, 220 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 543, 1917 N.Y. LEXIS 1001 (N.Y. 1917).

One purpose of the workmen's compensation law is to spread the loss by injuries to or death of employees so that the entire loss should not fall upon unfortunate employees suffering injuries or, in the case of death, upon their dependents. Goldstein v State, 281 N.Y. 396, 24 N.E.2d 97, 281 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 396, 1939 N.Y. LEXIS 1024 (N.Y. 1939)..See also Gardener v Horseheads Const. Co., 171 A.D. 66, 156 N.Y.S. 899, 1916 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9449 (N.Y. App. Div. 1916).; Jones v Herbert Equities, Inc., 60 N.Y.S.2d 88, 186 Misc. 163, 1946 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1826 (N.Y. App. Term), aff'd, 270 A.D. 922, 62 N.Y.S.2d 612, 1946 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4653 (N.Y. App. Div. 1946).

The purpose of the Work. Comp. Law is to provide compensation for industrial accidents inherent in the modern system of production, and not for the pensioning of those who suffer from disease not caused by such accidents. Donovan v Alliance Electric Co., 195 A.D. 678, 186 N.Y.S. 813, 1921 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4818 (N.Y. App. Div. 1921).

The Workmen's Compensation Law secures to dependents speedy, certain and adequate provision for their support; it affords a means of protecting workmen and their dependents with an effective relief from want, when an employee is injured. Skakandy v Wreckers & Excavators, Inc. (1948) 274 App Div 220, 81 NYS2d 841, affd (1949) 298 NY 888, 84 NE2d 805.. See also Skakandy v State, 66 N.Y.S.2d 99, 188 Misc. 214, 1946 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2996 (N.Y. Ct. Cl. 1946), aff'd, 274 A.D. 153, 80 N.Y.S.2d 849, 1948 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3031 (N.Y. App. Div. 1948).

Workmen's Compensation Law is intended to secure speedy, certain and adequate provision for support of dependents and to give every workman in specified trades compensation for injury received while in course of his employment. Grello v Daszykowski, 58 A.D.2d 412, 397 N.Y.S.2d 396, 1977 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12424 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1977), rev'd, 44 N.Y.2d 894, 407 N.Y.S.2d 633, 379 N.E.2d 161, 1978 N.Y. LEXIS 2081 (N.Y. 1978).

The purpose of the workmen's compensation law is to regulate the relation between employer and employee, not between employee and the world at large. Employers Mut. Liability Ins. Co. v Refined Syrups Sales Corp., 53 N.Y.S.2d 835, 184 Misc. 941, 1945 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1591 (N.Y. Sup. Ct.), aff'd, 269 A.D. 931, 58 N.Y.S.2d 216, 1945 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4560 (N.Y. App. Div. 1945).

5. —Elimination of injuries

The legislature intended that a claimant is to be protected against his own improvidence or folly. Sackolwitz v Charles Hamburg & Co., 295 N.Y. 264, 67 N.E.2d 152, 295 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 264, 1946 N.Y. LEXIS 829 (N.Y. 1946).

The workmen's compensation law was designed to assure to the workingman a protection against lost earning power through injury sustained in his employment, irrespective of how that injury occurred or what brought it about. Williams v Hartshorn, 296 N.Y. 49, 69 N.E.2d 557, 296 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 49, 1946 N.Y. LEXIS 787 (N.Y. 1946).. See also Cardinal v State, 102 N.Y.S.2d 895, 200 Misc. 574, 1951 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1566 (N.Y. Ct. Cl. 1951), modified, 279 A.D. 326, 109 N.Y.S.2d 818, 1952 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4667 (N.Y. App. Div. 1952).

Workmen's compensation was created to prevent injured workmen from becoming objects of charity and to make reasonable compensation for injuries and death caused by job related activities regardless of fault. Lundberg v State, 25 N.Y.2d 467, 306 N.Y.S.2d 947, 255 N.E.2d 177, 1969 N.Y. LEXIS 938 (N.Y. 1969), reh'g denied, 26 N.Y.2d 883, 309 N.Y.S.2d 1032, 258 N.E.2d 223, 1970 N.Y. LEXIS 1897 (N.Y. 1970).

Workmen's compensation is designed to shift risk of loss of earning capacity caused by industrial accidents to industry and ultimately the consumer, regardless of fault. (Per Margett, J., with one Judge concurring and one Judge concurring in result.) Grello v Daszykowski, 58 A.D.2d 412, 397 N.Y.S.2d 396, 1977 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12424 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1977), rev'd, 44 N.Y.2d 894, 407 N.Y.S.2d 633, 379 N.E.2d 161, 1978 N.Y. LEXIS 2081 (N.Y. 1978).

Workmen's Compensation Law is social legislation designed to secure to workers and their dependents compensation when they are injured or killed in course of their employment, without regard to fault. Brezickyj v Eastern Railroad Builders, Inc., 59 A.D.2d 578, 397 N.Y.S.2d 452, 1977 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13377 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1977).

6. Compensability of injuries; scope of coverage

An award of workers' compensation benefits to a claimant who suffered from a work-related permanent partial disability would be continued during the period that he or she was confined to a psychiatric ward for the criminally insane, since to penalize a worker who had suffered a permanent disability solely because he or she had subsequently been afflicted by mental illness would in no way further the goals behind the Workers' Compensation Law, suspending benefits during periods of institutionalization for treatment of mental illness would only compound the hardship created by the illness itself and, in addition, by discouraging recipients from seeking treatment for mental problems, the suspension of benefits might be counterproductive to the health of such injured workers. Tallini v Martino & Son, 58 N.Y.2d 392, 461 N.Y.S.2d 754, 448 N.E.2d 421, 1983 N.Y. LEXIS 2932 (N.Y. 1983).

Mental injury solely from mental cause is not compensable under the Workmen's Compensation Law. Wolfe v Sibley, Lindsay & Curr Co., 44 A.D.2d 739, 354 N.Y.S.2d 470, 1974 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5235 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1974), rev'd, 36 N.Y.2d 505, 369 N.Y.S.2d 637, 330 N.E.2d 603, 1975 N.Y. LEXIS 1847 (N.Y. 1975).

Where sufficient factual relationship can be found between strain of work done and employee's death and such a conclusion is supported by medical proof, the resultant death may be deemed an accident within the scope of Workmen's Compensation Law. Strzelecki v Almor Corp., 46 A.D.2d 704, 359 N.Y.S.2d 916, 1974 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3862 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1974).

The Workmen's Compensation Law does not require that there be an accidental injury arising out of and in the course of the employment in order to recover, but only that there be a disablement of the employee which resulted from services in the line of duty. Hoff v Williston Park, 50 A.D.2d 631, 374 N.Y.S.2d 756, 1975 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12443 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1975).

The fact that an employee is illegally employed does not ipso facto render the workmen's compensation law inapplicable, and accordingly the statute may be applied where the employee suffering injury was under 18 years of age. Monteleone v Center Storage Warehouses, Inc., 68 N.Y.S.2d 369, 1946 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3367 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1946).

7. —Particular injuries

Where a workman claims compensation for an injury suffered by reason of the negligence of defendant for which his employer was temporarily rendering service the Work. Comp. Law does not apply. Mirabile v Bartlett-Hayward Co., 249 A.D. 667, 291 N.Y.S. 285, 1936 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5455 (N.Y. App. Div. 1936).

A complaint by one employee against another for damages sustained by plaintiff while walking across the employer's parking lot, due to being struck by defendant's automobile as defendant drove into the lot, was not sustainable as against objection that plaintiff's exclusive remedy was under the Workmen's Compensation Law. Kunze v Jones, 6 A.D.2d 888, 177 N.Y.S.2d 579, 1958 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5089 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1958), app. dismissed, 6 N.Y.2d 841, 188 N.Y.S.2d 547, 160 N.E.2d 83, 1959 N.Y. LEXIS 1326 (N.Y. 1959), aff'd, 8 N.Y.2d 1152, 209 N.Y.S.2d 833, 171 N.E.2d 906, 1960 N.Y. LEXIS 844 (N.Y. 1960).

Claimant, whose immediate supervisor had committed suicide by self-inflicted gunshot wound at his office, who was first to discover body and who thereafter became mentally disturbed and depressed and had acute depressive reaction, who was admitted to hospital and given shock treatments and who did not recover sufficiently to return to work until some six months after the incident, was not entitled to workmen's compensation disability benefits. Wolfe v Sibley, Lindsay & Curr Co., 44 A.D.2d 739, 354 N.Y.S.2d 470, 1974 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5235 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1974), rev'd, 36 N.Y.2d 505, 369 N.Y.S.2d 637, 330 N.E.2d 603, 1975 N.Y. LEXIS 1847 (N.Y. 1975).

Corporate owner of garbage truck on which minor worked was insulated by Workmen's Compensation Law from tort liability for injuries sustained by minor when the garbage truck ran over him while being operated by fellow employee where owner was engaged in joint venture with minor's corporate employer, where corporations had common ownership and management. Felder v Old Falls Sanitation Co., 47 A.D.2d 977, 366 N.Y.S.2d 687, 1975 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9458 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1975), aff'd, 39 N.Y.2d 855, 386 N.Y.S.2d 214, 352 N.E.2d 131, 1976 N.Y. LEXIS 2804 (N.Y. 1976).

Injured pedestrian's right of recovery was restricted to the employer under Workmen's Compensation Law, where he was struck by a car operated by a fellow employee while on the employer's premises. Klein v Coletta, 3 Misc. 2d 26, 150 N.Y.S.2d 662, 1956 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2117 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1956).

Plaintiff was a member of a dance band of five, one of whom was defendant who ran the band. Plaintiff was injured while on the way to a rehearsal in an automobile owned and operated by the defendant. Held: plaintiff was neither engaged in a hazardous employment nor in a business in which four or more employees were engaged in a hazardous employment and hence, was not covered by this law. McDougle v Wilson, 9 Misc. 2d 820, 170 N.Y.S.2d 859, 1958 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3832 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1958).

A porter who was employed by defendant-corporation, and was allegedly violently assaulted by its president, acting within the scope of his authority, could sue at common law for the wilful tortious acts of the employer and was not relegated solely to Workmen's Compensation. Garcia v Gusmack Restaurant Corp., 150 N.Y.S.2d 232 (N.Y. City Ct. 1954).

8. Exclusiveness of injuries

Where an employer agreed with a railroad to release, indemnify and save harmless the railroad against any and all claims including those by employees of the employer resulting from the use of the premises by the employer's employees, an agreement, as a condition precedent to his employment by the employer, signed by the employee to the effect that in case of an injury in the course of his employment while traveling or being on the premises of the railroad, that he should look for compensation solely to the employer's relief plan or to workmen's compensation law, is void as against public policy. Western Union Tel. Co. v Cochran, 277 A.D. 625, 102 N.Y.S.2d 65, 1951 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5651 (N.Y. App. Div.), aff'd, 302 N.Y. 545, 99 N.E.2d 882, 302 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 545, 1951 N.Y. LEXIS 706 (N.Y. 1951).

Intentional tort can give rise to cause of action outside purview of Workers' Compensation Law only if facts demonstrate intentional or deliberate act by employer or coemployee directed at causing harm to complaining employee. Bulis v Di Lorenzo, 142 A.D.2d 707, 531 N.Y.S.2d 107, 1988 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7993 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1988).

Court erred in granting defendants' motion to dismiss complaint on ground that plaintiff was "special employee" and that her exclusive remedy was Workers' Compensation since plaintiff had never made claim for Workers' Compensation Benefits for injuries arising from accident; case should have been referred to Workers' Compensation Board for factual determination as to whether plaintiff had valid claim for damages or whether she was relegated to benefits under Workers' Compensation Law. Manetta v Town of Hempstead Day Care Ctr., 248 A.D.2d 517, 669 N.Y.S.2d 901, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2552 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1998).

The Work. Comp. Law is constitutional, and the remedy thereby provided for an employee engaged in the employments enumerated therein is exclusive and in full substitution for any action for damages. Connors v Semet-Solvay Co., 159 N.Y.S. 431, 94 Misc. 405, 1916 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1092 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1916).

The workmen's compensation law destroys the right of action of the employee and his personal representatives against his employer, substituting therefor benefits which are not subject to the vagaries and uncertainties of litigation and the defenses incident to and which arise from such relations; it leaves unaffected the liabilities of third persons. Employers Mut. Liability Ins. Co. v Refined Syrups Sales Corp., 53 N.Y.S.2d 835, 184 Misc. 941, 1945 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1591 (N.Y. Sup. Ct.), aff'd, 269 A.D. 931, 58 N.Y.S.2d 216, 1945 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4560 (N.Y. App. Div. 1945).

Within the scope of its coverage the workman's compensation law is conclusive. Monti v Gimbel Bros., Inc., 82 N.Y.S.2d 781, 192 Misc. 811, 1948 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3224 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1948), aff'd, 275 A.D. 845, 89 N.Y.S.2d 238, 1949 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4740 (N.Y. App. Div. 1949).

When an employee is accidentally injured in course of employment, the Workmen's Compensation Act is a complete substitute for any and all rights, remedies, obligations, and liabilities existing at common law between employer and employee. Schnall v 1918 Harmon St. Corp., 26 Misc. 2d 287, 207 N.Y.S.2d 375, 1960 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3643 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1960).

9. —Defense or bar to other actions

Where claimant filed a compensation claim and subsequently commenced a personal injury action against his employer, and the compensation case was closed pending outcome of the action, which was settled for $7,500, further proceedings in the compensation case were precluded by successful settlement of the personal injury action. Martin v C. A. Productions Co., 8 N.Y.2d 226, 203 N.Y.S.2d 845, 168 N.E.2d 666, 1960 N.Y. LEXIS 1070 (N.Y. 1960).

An action brought by an employee against his corporate employer and a fellow employee to recover damages for an alleged assault by the fellow employee could not be maintained where there was already an outstanding award of workmen's compensation to plaintiff under which he had been accepting payments. Schmidt v Carrara, 11 A.D.2d 788, 204 N.Y.S.2d 942, 1960 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8726 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1960).

The Workmen's Compensation Board was not precluded from considering and making an award in connection with a claim filed in 1959 for occupational loss of hearing by claimant who had worked for the same employer for 48 years in the employer's shipyard and repairing of ships in New York Harbor because a similar claim had been rejected by the Longshoremen's and Harbor Workers' Compensation Board in 1950, with medical proof of loss of 40% hearing at that time, claimant thereafter having been employed for five years as a "snapper" in the employer's plate shop on shipyard premises in an environment of constant stridence, such a claim falling within the "twilight zone" rule, since claimant's employment related both to shore and navigable waters and the federal claim having been rejected on procedural grounds rather than on the merits. Bryce v Todd Shipyard, 17 A.D.2d 666, 229 N.Y.S.2d 993, 1962 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8713 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1962), app. denied, 12 N.Y.2d 646, 1963 N.Y. LEXIS 1550 (N.Y. 1963).

Though plaintiff claimed that he was injured while performing duties for defendant on account of latter's alleged negligence and violation of Labor Law, where defendant was not only covered by Workmen's Compensation Law, but plaintiff applied for and was receiving workmen's compensation benefits, no action at law could be maintained against defendant as plaintiff's employer. Ramos v Broadway Maintenance Corp., 51 A.D.2d 911, 381 N.Y.S.2d 62, 1976 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11576 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1976).

Employer could not be sued directly for death of employee as result of car-truck accident because of bar of Workmen's Compensation Law. Cimino v New York, 54 A.D.2d 843, 388 N.Y.S.2d 276, 1976 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 14595 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1976), aff'd, 43 N.Y.2d 966, 404 N.Y.S.2d 595, 375 N.E.2d 775, 1978 N.Y. LEXIS 1865 (N.Y. 1978).

The separate tort actions of a husband and wife who allegedly sustained injuries when they were assaulted by two trespassers in a building owned by the defendant would be dismissed pursuant to defendant's motion for summary judgment, where the wife failed to fulfill her burden to plead and prove lack of workmen's compensation coverage by the defendant who was also her employer, and where there was a factual issue as to whether or not the husband was an employee of defendant which needed to be decided by the workmen's compensation appeals board. Kimbrough v C. F. L. Development Corp., 80 A.D.2d 737, 437 N.Y.S.2d 167, 1981 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10465 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1981).

Decedent's widow was barred from seeking workers' compensation benefits by prior settlement of wrongful death action against employer, despite widow's assertion that parties to wrongful death action were "the Widow and the Estate" while parties to claim for death benefits were "the Widow and children," since wrongful death action is not brought on behalf of estate, but on behalf of decedent's distributees, which includes children. Green v Kamalian, 141 A.D.2d 936, 530 N.Y.S.2d 288, 1988 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6799 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1988).

Defendants, plaintiff's employer and nurse employed by plaintiff's employer, were properly granted summary judgment in action alleging malpractice on part of nurse and negligence on part of employer in failing to provide competent medical care for employees injured on job since medical services in question were not available generally to members of public, and plaintiff received medical treatment not as member of public but only as consequence of his employment; action fell within scope of CLS Work Comp § 29(6). Cronin v Perry, 244 A.D.2d 448, 664 N.Y.S.2d 123, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11576 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1997).

Defendants, Catholic high school and Roman Catholic Diocese, were entitled to summary judgment where plaintiff had previously submitted claim for and received workers' compensation benefits based on same incident, and plaintiff's employer and high school function as administrative divisions of diocese, and diocese had complete control over plaintiff's employer and high school. Smith v Roman Catholic Diocese, 252 A.D.2d 805, 677 N.Y.S.2d 183, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8319 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1998).

Court improperly denied defendants' summary judgment motion in action for injuries sustained when plaintiff tripped and fell in employee parking lot as she went to her car during her lunch break; court should have referred case to Workers' Compensation Board for factual hearing on which Board could make reasoned factual determination as to whether plaintiff had valid claim for damages or whether she was relegated to benefits under workers' compensation law. Hofrichter v North Shore Univ. Hosp., 271 A.D.2d 649, 707 N.Y.S.2d 639, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4507 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2000).

Defendant was properly granted summary judgment where affidavits from its president, building superintendent, and managing agent, all based on personal knowledge, stated that plaintiff was defendant's employee when he sustained his injury, and that defendant hired plaintiff, had exclusive authority to fire him, supervised and controlled his work, and paid him, and plaintiff merely offered unsworn documents as to whether defendant was his employer. Karczewicz v 473 Owners Corp., 272 A.D.2d 137, 708 N.Y.S.2d 10, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5420 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2000).

Court improperly granted defendants' summary judgment motion on ground that award of Workers' Compensation benefits barred instant claim for sexual discrimination by plaintiff against her employers where workers' compensation award resulted solely from attempted videotaping of plaintiff by co-worker while she was in company locker room, and did not implicate alleged, intentional activities of company officer in subjecting her to hostile work environment by directing inappropriate sexual remarks and jokes toward her, and making demands on her for sexual relations in exchange for forgiving loan. Hanford v Plaza Packaging Corp., 284 A.D.2d 179, 727 N.Y.S.2d 407, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6182 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2001), app. denied, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9220 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't Sept. 25, 2001).

There is no indication that there was any purpose to require or permit the establishment of a state fund to protect employers against the risk of liabilities in excess of the prescribed compensation, and as to any subsisting common law liability, employer's liability remained the same. Cardinal v State, 102 N.Y.S.2d 895, 200 Misc. 574, 1951 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1566 (N.Y. Ct. Cl. 1951), modified, 279 A.D. 326, 109 N.Y.S.2d 818, 1952 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4667 (N.Y. App. Div. 1952).

An employee who sustained injury when eating a sandwich at a counter maintained by her employer brought an action based on a breach of warranty and her husband also made a claim for loss of services. Held: where the employer gave notice of the accident to its insurance carrier and notice of a hearing before the compensation board was given to the plaintiff who failed to appear, the board acquired jurisdiction and the breach of warranty action could not be maintained. Montross v Walgreen Co. of New York, Inc., 9 Misc. 2d 318, 169 N.Y.S.2d 481, 1957 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1873 (N.Y. City Ct. 1957).

In an action against Cornell University seeking damages for injuries sustained by plaintiff, who had received workers' compensation benefits as an employee of the university, defendant's motion for summary judgment dismissing the complaint would be granted where the institution which had paid the plaintiff was part of Cornell University and not a State agency and therefore plaintiff would be deemed an employee of the university and the instant action would be barred by Workers' Compensation Law. Neish v John Deere Co., 118 Misc. 2d 459, 460 N.Y.S.2d 861, 1983 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3337 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1983).

10. — —Special employment relationship

Defendant, property manager, should have been granted summary judgment where plaintiff admitted that his "general employer" was either property owner or payroll corporation which paid him Workers' Compensation benefits for his claimed disability following accident, and defendant was plaintiff's "special employer," having hired him, having ultimate responsibility for maintaining building where he was "maintenance man," and having authority to terminate his employment. Gubitosi v National Realty Co., 247 A.D.2d 512, 669 N.Y.S.2d 321, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1490 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't), app. dismissed, 92 N.Y.2d 843, 677 N.Y.S.2d 69, 699 N.E.2d 428, 1998 N.Y. LEXIS 1802 (N.Y. 1998).

Plaintiff was special employee of defendant as matter of law, and thus court should have dismissed action as barred by exclusive remedy provisions of Workers' Compensation Law where plaintiff was general employee of employee leasing firm, which assigned him to work for defendant, leasing firm surrendered complete control and supervision over plaintiff's work to defendant, and defendant directed plaintiff to work site, directed and supervised plaintiff's work activities, and provided him with all his tools and equipment for job; fact that leasing firm paid plaintiff's wages and plaintiff received workers' compensation benefits from leasing firm's insurance carrier was not dispositive. Davis v Butler, 262 A.D.2d 1039, 691 N.Y.S.2d 845, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7268 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1999).

Defendant should have been granted summary judgment in action under CLS Labor § 240(1) on ground that plaintiff was "special employee" of defendant at time of his injury, thus making his exclusive remedy under Workers' Compensation Law, where defendant entered into hourly agreement with plaintiff's employer as a successful bidder to provide manpower, service truck, and certain tools, and once plaintiff's employer's employees were assigned to defendant, defendant was solely responsible for placing those employees on particular project and, on daily basis, directing what work would be performed, when it would be performed, and manner in which it would be performed, notwithstanding that plaintiff's employer's employees went directly to job site without first reporting to barn as defendant's employees did, or that plaintiff's employer retained authority to replace employees at defendant's projects with other employees without consultation with defendant. Jaynes v County of Chemung, 271 A.D.2d 928, 707 N.Y.S.2d 516, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4671 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), app. denied, 95 N.Y.2d 762, 715 N.Y.S.2d 215, 738 N.E.2d 363, 2000 N.Y. LEXIS 2327 (N.Y. 2000).

11. — —Affirmative defense

A motion dismissing an affirmative defense that plaintiff's exclusive remedy was under the Workmen's Compensation Law was denied as the proper method of determining the issue of whether plaintiff was an employee at the time of the accident was by plenary trial according to the statute. Duboff v Board of Higher Education, 34 A.D.2d 824, 312 N.Y.S.2d 726, 1970 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4699 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1970).

Since defendants were not parties to proceedings before Workmen's Compensation Board regarding compensation claim, a determination of the board is not binding on them and since there exists genuine fact questions as to whether the infant plaintiff's injuries were sustained during the course of employment and that he may have deviated from his regular work activity at the time of the accident, defendants ought to be afforded an opportunity to establish the affirmative defense that a claim for Workmen's Compensation is plaintiff's exclusive remedy. Robbins v Master Diesel Corp., 34 A.D.2d 1021, 312 N.Y.S.2d 785, 1970 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4319 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1970).

In action seeking declaration that automobile liability insurer was required to make no-fault payments to insured without any offset for workers' compensation, it was error to deny insurer's motion for summary judgment and to grant insured's motion to strike affirmative defense asserting exclusivity of workers' compensation board as forum to resolve issue of insured's employment status, since matter should have been remanded to board to determine threshold issue of whether insured was employee or independent contractor, and insurer, by stressing factors that are traditionally considered in determining whether employment relationship existed, presented issue involving mixed question of fact and law, over which board had primary jurisdiction. Arvatz v Empire Mut. Ins. Co., 171 A.D.2d 262, 575 N.Y.S.2d 836, 1991 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 14161 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1991).

Court erred in denying defendant's motion for leave to amend answer to include affirmative defense of Workers' Compensation Law, even though motion was first raised in response to plaintiffs' motion to reinstate note of issue and to restore case to trial calendar, since plaintiff was aware of his employment status and had already received workers' compensation benefits prior to date on which motion was made, and there were fact issues as to whether plaintiff and defendant were coemployees at time of accident and whether plaintiff's injuries arose out of course of his employment. Singh v Shafi, 252 A.D.2d 494, 675 N.Y.S.2d 614, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8014 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1998).

12. — —Exceptions

In an action brought against a hospital and hospital supervisor by plaintiff to recover damages for defamation, intentional infliction of emotional distress and negligence in which plaintiff alleged that his supervisor made a statement to plaintiff's shop steward accusing plaintiff of being a thief, the defense of workers' compensation was properly stricken as to all causes of action against plaintiff's supervisor inasmuch as an intentional tort committed by an employee against a coemployee cannot give the perpetrator of the act immunity under the Workers' Compensation Law; however, liability imputed to the hospital-employer through respondeat superior would not include the employer's participation in the intentional tort and a common law action pleading respondeat superior would be barred by the Compensation Law since, although the plaintiff sought recovery for injuries, which had not yet been recognized as compensable (loss of reputation, humiliation and embarrassment), benefits would still be available for psychological injuries such as depression, anxiety or psychotic reactions as well as physical injuries, under Work Comp Law § 2(7). Thompson v Maimonides Medical Ctr., 86 A.D.2d 867, 447 N.Y.S.2d 308, 1982 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 15500 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1982).

Workers' compensation claim could not be withdrawn by claimant, widow of state correctional employee who was killed when State Police retook Attica Correctional Facility during prison uprising, where claimant had accepted workers' compensation benefits, as claimant was not misled by state into applying for and accepting benefits, and she forfeited her rights to pursue alternative remedy for intentional tort by her acceptance of benefits. Hardie v New York State Attica Correctional Facility, 144 A.D.2d 164, 534 N.Y.S.2d 492, 1988 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10146 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1988), app. dismissed, 73 N.Y.2d 918, 539 N.Y.S.2d 301, 536 N.E.2d 630, 1989 N.Y. LEXIS 173 (N.Y. 1989), app. denied, 76 N.Y.2d 708, 560 N.Y.S.2d 990, 561 N.E.2d 890, 1990 N.Y. LEXIS 3142 (N.Y. 1990).

Allegation that defendant employer's negligence caused plaintiff's injuries by allowing him and other employees to be exposed to toxic and injurious chemicals in course of their employment at defendant's facility did not bring them within limited exceptions to general bar of Workers' Compensation Law. Tompkins v IBM, 247 A.D.2d 465, 668 N.Y.S.2d 673, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1020 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1998).

13. —Out-of-state residents or claims

The Work. Comp. Law involves the exercise of the police power of the state, and does not attempt to regulate the duty of foreign employers in the conduct of their business within foreign jurisdictions. Smith v Heine Safety Boiler Co., 224 N.Y. 9, 119 N.E. 878, 224 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 9, 1918 N.Y. LEXIS 850 (N.Y. 1918).

Where employer was first insured under the Workmen's Compensation Law of Minnesota and later insured by another company under the Workmen's Compensation Law of New York, and the claimant, although working in Minnesota, was engaged in employment so closely related to New York as to be governed by the New York Workmen's Compensation Law and within the jurisdiction of the New York Workmen's Compensation Board, the first insurer was, neither by its direct coverage nor by its all States' indorsement, liable for any part of a claim under the New York compensation statute, and the entire risk must be assumed by the company which insured the employer under the Workmen's Compensation Law of New York. Kohl v Picoult, 18 N.Y.2d 312, 274 N.Y.S.2d 867, 221 N.E.2d 536, 1966 N.Y. LEXIS 1045 (N.Y. 1966).

North Carolina is not bound to follow a decision of the New York Workmen's Compensation Board under the full faith and credit clause of the United States Constitution. Yoshi Ogino v Black, 278 A.D. 146, 104 N.Y.S.2d 82, 1951 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3763 (N.Y. App. Div. 1951), aff'd in part, 304 N.Y. 872, 109 N.E.2d 884, 304 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 872, 1952 N.Y. LEXIS 1038 (N.Y. 1952).

Denial of a claim in one state does not necessarily bar a plaintiff from proceeding under the Workmen's Compensation Law of another, and even after receipt of benefits pursuant to an award in one state, an injured employee may still be permitted to file his claim in a second state where greater benefits are possible. Yoshi Ogino v Black, 278 A.D. 146, 104 N.Y.S.2d 82, 1951 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3763 (N.Y. App. Div. 1951), aff'd in part, 304 N.Y. 872, 109 N.E.2d 884, 304 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 872, 1952 N.Y. LEXIS 1038 (N.Y. 1952).

The New York Workmen's Compensation Commission has jurisdiction over claims against a New York employer by one employee who was a resident of Pennsylvania acting as a saleman in certain New Jersey territory, claimant having been hired by an official from the New York office and his employment being transitory in nature and not at a "fixed place," notwithstanding the accident causing injury occurred in New Jersey. Levin v Eutectic Welding Alloys Corp., 21 A.D.2d 925, 251 N.Y.S.2d 127, 1964 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3358 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), app. denied, 14 N.Y.2d 488, 1964 N.Y. LEXIS 1878 (N.Y. 1964).

The New York Compensation Board properly found that it had jurisdiction of a claim allegedly based upon injury sustained by claimant while working as an apartment house superintendent in New York City notwithstanding delay in presenting the claim and removal of claimant and his wife to Germany. Eberhardt v Sonsade Realty Corp., 21 A.D.2d 951, 251 N.Y.S.2d 264, 1964 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3235 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1964).

In light of express provision in compensation policy with employer limiting coverage to workmen's compensation law and any occupational disease law of state of New Jersey, insurer could not as a matter of law be held responsible for payment of New York compensation award to employee injured on job in New Jersey. Costanzo v Security Mut. Ins. Co., 44 A.D.2d 626, 353 N.Y.S.2d 566, 1974 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5428 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1974).

In a workers' compensation case involving a mechanical engineer who was a resident of Texas and who was injured in Saudi Arabia while working for a New York company, the New York Workers' Compensation Board properly exercised jurisdiction over the claim where the engineer was hired in New York, where his salary was paid with checks drawn on a New York bank, and where the engineer reported to the New York office for instructions regarding on-site construction problems. Hartham v George A. Fuller Co., 89 A.D.2d 720, 453 N.Y.S.2d 843, 1982 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 17847 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1982).

Pennsylvania's worker's compensation law applied to action arising from work-related injury to New York resident employed by Pennsylvania subcontractor performing work in Pennsylvania, even though general contractor was New York corporation and choice-of-law issue involved loss-allocating rule which would favor application of New York law, since (1) subcontractor contracted with general contractor to perform work in Pennsylvania and hired plaintiff from Pennsylvania local union hall, (2) relevant collective bargaining agreement provided that employer was to provide workers' compensation insurance in Pennsylvania, (3) plaintiff applied for and received benefits under Pennsylvania law, (4) Pennsylvania legislature had clearly expressed its interest in having its workers' compensation law apply to all industrial accidents occurring within its state, (5) New York's interests in seeing that its injured resident receive benefits was satisfied, and (6) Pennsylvania law was neither anachronistic nor unfair. Roach v McGuire & Bennett, Inc., 146 A.D.2d 89, 539 N.Y.S.2d 138, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2823 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1989).

Where a policy was issued to cover only claims filed under the Workmen's Compensation Laws of the State of New York and employee's injuries arose in New Jersey out of an occurrence which was within the scope of the Workmen's Compensation Act of New Jersey, the insurer was not liable under the terms of the policy to pay the award granted to the employee. Rood v Nelson, 14 Misc. 2d 859, 178 N.Y.S.2d 969, 1958 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2989 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1958).

I. In General

1. Generally

In determining whether particular persons or classes are covered it is necessary to consider the statute as a whole and the purposes embodied in its enactment. Goldstein v State, 281 N.Y.

396, 24 N.E.2d 97, 281 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 396, 1939 N.Y. LEXIS 1024 (N.Y. 1939).

A contractual relationship or act of hiring is necessary for the operation of the Workmen's Compensation Law, and this jurisdictional fact must be established by due process of law. Skeels v Paul Smith's Hotel Co., 195 A.D. 39, 185 N.Y.S. 665, 1921 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4692 (N.Y. App. Div. 1921).

Workers' Compensation Board did not err in concluding that electrician's discharge was product of lawful personnel decision undertaken in good faith, within meaning of CLS Work Comp § 2(7), where 2 supervisors testified that he had received 3 prior disciplinary warnings before incident in which he failed to follow their instructions regarding diagramming of electrical panel. Dockum v Syroco Inc., 260 A.D.2d 688, 687 N.Y.S.2d 759, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3294 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), app. denied, 93 N.Y.2d 811, 695 N.Y.S.2d 540, 717 N.E.2d 699, 1999 N.Y. LEXIS 1902 (N.Y. 1999).

2. Construction

A plain language reading of N.Y. Workers' Comp. Law § 137(3)(a) supports the conclusion that "board certified" means certification by a medical specialty board. The phrase "board certified" is a term of art, typically understood to refer to approval by a designated group of professionals. This is especially true when the phrase is used to describe physicians, who are commonly referred to as board certified. Belmonte v Snashall, 2 N.Y.3d 560, 780 N.Y.S.2d 541, 813 N.E.2d 621, 2004 N.Y. LEXIS 1540 (N.Y. 2004).

Definition of "compensation" in N.Y. Workers' Comp. Law § 2(6) as the money allowance payable to an employee or to his dependents" is not applicable to the use of "compensation" in N.Y. Workers' Comp. Law § 120 pertaining to awards for retaliatory discharge; if that definition is read into § 120, it does not make sense. Matter of Greenberg v New York City Tr. Auth., 7 N.Y.3d 139, 818 N.Y.S.2d 784, 851 N.E.2d 1135, 2006 N.Y. LEXIS 1174 (N.Y. 2006).

The phrase "hazardous employment" is used in subdivision 4 of this section in a sense different from that implied by the use of the phrase in Workmen's Compensation Law § 3 subd 1. Chilk v New York, 26 A.D.2d 425, 275 N.Y.S.2d 167, 1966 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2982 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1966), aff'd, 22 N.Y.2d 661, 291 N.Y.S.2d 358, 238 N.E.2d 748, 1968 N.Y. LEXIS 1404 (N.Y. 1968).

In the Workmen's Compensation Law § 2, subd 4, where "employee" is defined as a "person", and in subd 3, "employer" is defined as a "person, partnership, association, corporation . . .," subsidiary corporations may not be considered as the parent corporation's "employees" and hence, "fellow employees" of plaintiffs "in the same employ". Thomas v Maigo Corp., 37 A.D.2d 754, 323 N.Y.S.2d 106, 1971 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3587 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1971).

Although issue of reasonableness is ordinarily question of fact for Workers' Compensation Board, court may decide issue as matter of law when record is devoid of evidence to support finding of reasonableness. Langford v William Rogers, Inc., 144 A.D.2d 785, 534 N.Y.S.2d 761, 1988 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10986 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1988).

Injuries to 15-year-old junior lifeguard when he dived into shallow lake at summer camp arose out of and in course of his employment, rather than in off-duty athletic activity, for purposes of his entitlement to workers' compensation benefits, where (1) he attended lifesaving class, along with other lifeguards and some campers, just before accident, (2) class was taught by head lifeguard (his uncle) and included instruction in shallow-water diving, (3) although junior lifeguard was not required to attend class, head lifeguard invited him to do so, and (4) after class ended, head lifeguard left area, but other lifeguards remained. Kobre v Camp Mogen Avraham, 255 A.D.2d 636, 679 N.Y.S.2d 753, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11684 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1998).

3. Effect on availability of other actions, generally

Where an employee proceeds under the Workmen's Compensation Law seeking compensation for disability arising from aggravation of a disease not occupational in nature, and is eventually denied compensation because later decisions of the Court of Appeals have held that such a disability is not compensable, he is not barred by lapse of time under § 23 of the Civil Practice Act, as amended, from commencing an ordinary action for damages after adverse termination of the compensation proceedings. Hotaling v General Elec. Co., 12 N.Y.2d 310, 239 N.Y.S.2d 344, 189 N.E.2d 698, 1963 N.Y. LEXIS 1301 (N.Y. 1963).

An employer was entitled to summary judgment in an action by a painter-employee for wilful assault where it was alleged scaffold rope gave way causing employee to fall and where employee who was indisputably injured in his employment, had made claim for compensation and accepted and retained benefits therefrom. Assuming that employee had cause of action for wilful assault, he lost that remedy when he elected to take compensation. But court refused to hold, in the absence of controlling authority that an employee could not maintain common-law action against his insured employer for wilful assault when it occurred during the course of and within scope of employment. Legault v Brown, 283 A.D. 303, 127 N.Y.S.2d 601, 1954 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4669 (N.Y. App. Div. 1954).

After the Compensation Board had assumed jurisdiction of a claim for compensation and the injured employee had testified that he was injured while riding with a co-employee on the employer's business, the claimant could not waive his right to compensation and thereby place himself in a position to maintain a third-party action against the co-employee on theory that he was not engaged in the course of his employment at the time of the accident. Traynor v Plattsburgh Coop. G. L. F. Service, 2 A.D.2d 617, 151 N.Y.S.2d 854, 1956 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5463 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), app. denied, 2 A.D.2d 795, 154 N.Y.S.2d 432, 1956 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4683 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1956).

An employee of joint venturers could not maintain an action against one of them for negligence based upon the supplying of an inadequate scaffold, but was relegated to his remedy under the Workmen's Compensation Law. Fallone v Misericordia Hospital, 23 A.D.2d 222, 259 N.Y.S.2d 947, 1965 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4150 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1965), aff'd, 17 N.Y.2d 648, 269 N.Y.S.2d 431, 216 N.E.2d 594, 1966 N.Y. LEXIS 1517 (N.Y. 1966).

In an action brought against an employer, seeking damages for assault, false imprisonment, false arrest, and malicious prosecution, summary judgment was properly denied to the employer on the basis that the employee-plaintiff alleged that he was assaulted by other employees in the parking lot after work and that the employer actively directed and encouraged the assault, where the Workers' Compensation Law was not the employee's exclusive remedy in that the employer was alleged to have instigated the assault. Deutsch v Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Co., 89 A.D.2d 597, 452 N.Y.S.2d 469, 1982 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 17678 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1982).

Owner of taxi, owner of garage, and plaintiff's fellow mechanics at garage could not be held vicariously liable under CLS Veh & Tr § 388 for their alleged negligence in using taxi, even though plaintiff was burned when fellow mechanic spilled gasoline on him as consequence of attempting to start taxi during repair, since fellow mechanic, as plaintiff's coemployee, was immune from suit under Workers' Compensation Law, under which plaintiff had previously received compensation. Ulysse v Nelsk Taxi, Inc., 135 A.D.2d 528, 522 N.Y.S.2d 162, 1987 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 52481 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1987), app. denied, 73 N.Y.2d 702, 536 N.Y.S.2d 743, 533 N.E.2d 673, 1988 N.Y. LEXIS 3435 (N.Y. 1988).

Workers' compensation claim could not be withdrawn by claimant, widow of state correctional employee who was killed when State Police retook Attica Correctional Facility during prison uprising, where claimant had accepted workers' compensation benefits, as claimant was not misled by state into applying for and accepting benefits, and she forfeited her rights to pursue alternative remedy for intentional tort by her acceptance of benefits. Hardie v New York State Attica Correctional Facility, 144 A.D.2d 164, 534 N.Y.S.2d 492, 1988 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10146 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1988), app. dismissed, 73 N.Y.2d 918, 539 N.Y.S.2d 301, 536 N.E.2d 630, 1989 N.Y. LEXIS 173 (N.Y. 1989), app. denied, 76 N.Y.2d 708, 560 N.Y.S.2d 990, 561 N.E.2d 890, 1990 N.Y. LEXIS 3142 (N.Y. 1990).

In negligence action against city by city attorney who tripped and fell on defective public sidewalk during her lunch hour, Supreme Court, in granting attorney's motion to dismiss affirmative defense that workers' compensation was her exclusive remedy, and in denying city's cross motion for summary judgment dismissing action, encroached on primary jurisdiction of Workers' Compensation Board where court decided primary jurisdictional issue of whether attorney was acting within scope of her employment in traveling between 2 separate offices of her employer. Spector v City of New York, 245 A.D.2d 68, 666 N.Y.S.2d 122, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12852 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1997).

Attorney and his law firm were entitled to summary judgment dismissing malpractice action alleging negligent failure to commence underlying intentional tort action (against plaintiff's employer for kicking plaintiff in buttocks at work) within one-year statute of limitations where, despite attorney's advice that plaintiff's acceptance of workers' compensation benefits would preclude him from bringing lawsuit against his employer and that plaintiff should notify workers' compensation board that he was electing not to collect such benefits, plaintiff forfeited his right to sue by continuing to accept such benefits. Wilson v Gerstenzang, Wiener & Gerstenzang, 245 A.D.2d 859, 666 N.Y.S.2d 332, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13178 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1997).

While the record established that his symptoms were longstanding, predating work-related changes and, thus, were not a direct consequence of any personnel decision so as to trigger this exclusion Workers' Comp. Law § 2(7), the Workers' Compensation Board's alternate basis for the denial of the underlying claim, that the pressures encountered by the injured worker, while considerable, were not greater than those experienced by his peers, was supported by substantial evidence; thus, the Board's determination to deny his claim on that ground was not disturbed Pinto v Southport Corr. Facility, 19 A.D.3d 948, 798 N.Y.S.2d 750, 2005 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7225 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2005).

Where plaintiff was allegedly assaulted by a fellow employee in course of employment, the employer notified its compensation carrier, which made payments accepted by plaintiff, who failed to heed a notice to attend a compensation hearing and was awarded compensation by the board in the amount paid and accepted by her, jurisdiction of the board became exclusive and plaintiff lost any right she might have had to maintain a common-law action for assault. Burgess v Tryde Mfg. Co., 20 Misc. 2d 875, 195 N.Y.S.2d 519, 1960 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3827 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1960).

4. —Collateral estoppel; res judicata

Determination by Workers' Compensation Board that injury was work-related does not, by operation of collateral estoppel, automatically entitle injured employee to CLS Gen Mun § 207-c benefits, because no identity of issues inheres in determinations regarding these 2 types of benefits. Balcerak v County of Nassau, 94 N.Y.2d 253, 701 N.Y.S.2d 700, 723 N.E.2d 555, 1999 N.Y. LEXIS 3927 (N.Y. 1999).

Judgment against claimant in a common-law action against his employer for damages sustained in falling down a flight of stairs, did not preclude him from succeeding on a subsequent compensation claim, where there was no finding in the unsuccessful suit which would negate an employer-employee relationship, and the employer and its insurance carrier had recognized liability by paying hospital and doctor bills and tendering compensation payments. Bode v O. & W. Restaurant, 9 A.D.2d 969, 193 N.Y.S.2d 845, 1959 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5653 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1959).

Worker whose injury had been determined to be compensable by Workers' Compensation Board was barred by res judicata from maintaining that he was not employee of defendant, and thus could not bring direct action for intentional tort against defendant, where worker did not appeal from, or move to vacate, that determination and instead accepted workers' compensation benefits. Martin v Casagrande, 159 A.D.2d 26, 559 N.Y.S.2d 68, 1990 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9509 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't), app. dismissed, 76 N.Y.2d 1018, 565 N.Y.S.2d 767, 566 N.E.2d 1172, 1990 N.Y. LEXIS 4461 (N.Y. 1990).

Notwithstanding parties' sharply conflicting evidentiary submissions, defendant homeowners were entitled to summary judgment in action under CLS Labor §§ 240(1) and 241(6) by plaintiff who was injured while securing worksite at request of contractor who had been injured while repairing homeowners' roof, as preclusive effect was given to prior determination of Workers' Compensation Board which denied plaintiff benefits based on board's ultimate finding that there was no employee-employer relationship between plaintiff and contractor. Lee v Jones, 230 A.D.2d 435, 659 N.Y.S.2d 549, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6976 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), app. denied, 91 N.Y.2d 802, 666 N.Y.S.2d 564, 689 N.E.2d 534, 1997 N.Y. LEXIS 4160 (N.Y. 1997).

Where plaintiff in an action for damages against one who is both her landlord and employer has previously filed a claim for workmen's compensation in connection with which the Board has found that plaintiff sustained her injuries in course of employment and awarded her certain compensation as an employee, the doctrine of collateral estoppel by such finding precludes her from recovering in the subsequent action for damages. Harris v Tarlow, 33 Misc. 2d 933, 227 N.Y.S.2d 116, 1962 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3512 (N.Y. Sup. Ct.), reh'g denied, 228 N.Y.S.2d 939 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1962).

Plaintiff's claim that she was entitled to summary judgment as to liability on her Uniform Services Employment and Reemployment Rights Act (USERRA), 38 U.S.C.S. § 4301 et seq., claim under collateral estoppel principles failed as the USERRA required application of a two-pronged burden-shifting analysis, and the New York State Workers' Compensation Board did not accord defendant the opportunity to present an affirmative defense that it would have made the same decision without regard to her military status and did not apply the burden shifting analysis in determining that plaintiff suffered stress, depression and anxiety as a direct consequence of a lawful personnel decision involving a disciplinary action, work evaluation, job transfer, demotion, or termination taken in good faith by defendant under N.Y. Workers' Comp. Law § 2(7). Wang v New York State Dept. of Health, 966 N.Y.S.2d 327, 40 Misc. 3d 747, 2013 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1822 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 2013).

5. —Intentional tort exception to exclusivity

In an action brought against a hospital and hospital supervisor by plaintiff to recover damages for defamation, intentional infliction of emotional distress and negligence in which plaintiff alleged that his supervisor made a statement to plaintiff's shop steward accusing plaintiff of being a thief, the defense of workers' compensation was properly stricken as to all causes of action against plaintiff's supervisor inasmuch as an intentional tort committed by an employee against a coemployee cannot give the perpetrator of the act immunity under the Workers' Compensation Law; however, liability imputed to the hospital-employer through respondeat superior would not include the employer's participation in the intentional tort and a common law action pleading respondeat superior would be barred by the Compensation Law since, although the plaintiff sought recovery for injuries, which had not yet been recognized as compensable (loss of reputation, humiliation and embarrassment), benefits would still be available for psychological injuries such as depression, anxiety or psychotic reactions as well as physical injuries, under Work Comp Law § 2(7). Thompson v Maimonides Medical Ctr., 86 A.D.2d 867, 447 N.Y.S.2d 308, 1982 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 15500 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1982).

Personal injury actions against plaintiffs' employer and certain of their coemployees alleging that defendants "intentionally ignored" the known hazard of an explosion in connection with the design and operation of a manufacturing process that was being carried on when the explosion occurred at their place of employment, injuring plaintiffs, were properly dismissed, where plaintiffs had been awarded and had accepted workers' compensation benefits, in that allegations of the complaint did not specify acts directed at causing harm to particular employees as required to bring the actions within the intentional tort exception to the exclusivity provisions of Work Comp Law § 11. Furthermore, even if plaintiffs had alleged sufficient acts on the part of defendants to bring themselves within said exception, they would be barred from maintaining these causes of action against their employer, since they constitute an impermissible collateral attack upon the findings of accidental injury implicit in the board's determinations authorizing payment of workers' compensation benefits. Orzechowski v Warner-Lambert Co., 92 A.D.2d 110, 460 N.Y.S.2d 64, 1983 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 16598 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1983).

Intentional tort can give rise to cause of action outside purview of Workers' Compensation Law only if facts demonstrate intentional or deliberate act by employer or coemployee directed at causing harm to complaining employee. Bulis v Di Lorenzo, 142 A.D.2d 707, 531 N.Y.S.2d 107, 1988 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7993 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1988).

Employee was not barred by Workers' Compensation Law from receiving lost wages under State Division of Human Rights' decision that employer was liable for age and sex discrimination where employee's monetary recovery for intentional acts of discrimination in human rights proceeding was offset by amount of workers' compensation benefits paid to her, and thus CLS Work Comp § 29, which was designed to prevent double recovery, was not frustrated. Grand Union Co. v Mercado, 263 A.D.2d 923, 694 N.Y.S.2d 524, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8451 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1999).

6. Other matters

Where an employer was bound by contract to furnish transportation to an employee and a third party to Florida when their jobs were to begin and the employee was injured in an automobile accident on the way to Florida in the car of the third person, there is no relation of fellow servant and the workmen's compensation law does not apply. Dunseath v Starrett Bros. & Eken, Inc., 288 N.Y. 174, 42 N.E.2d 474, 288 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 174, 1942 N.Y. LEXIS 1024 (N.Y.), reh'g denied, 288 N.Y. 734, 43 N.E.2d 355, 288 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 734, 1942 N.Y. LEXIS 1567 (N.Y. 1942).

Decedent, an elevator operator employed by a multiple dwelling owner, was killed when he fell down an elevator shaft. In a third party action brought by the widow against the managing agent of the dwelling on the theory that the death was caused through the affirmative negligence of the agent's employee, the superintendent of the building, the complaint was dismissed upon the ground that the superintendent was an employee of the owner and that, because decedent and superintendent were fellow servants, workmen's compensation was exclusive remedy. Cunningham v Mark Rafalsky & Co., 306 N.Y. 712, 117 N.E.2d 903, 306 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 712, 1954 N.Y. LEXIS 1072 (N.Y. 1954).

Fact that newspaper's employment of ten-year-old as newspaper carrier was illegal did not remove ten-year-old from scope of Workmen's Compensation Law, but rather illegality could result in double award. O'Rourke v Long, 41 N.Y.2d 219, 391 N.Y.S.2d 553, 359 N.E.2d 1347, 1976 N.Y. LEXIS 3147 (N.Y. 1976).

Where complaint in personal injuries action specifically alleged that plaintiff was not an employee of defendant and did not disclose a state of facts bringing the matter within the purview of the Workmen's Compensation Law, it was error to dismiss the complaint in the absence of proof that defendant had secured compensation insurance covering plaintiff's employment, as the burden of proof of such matter was on defendant. Flatau v Fairchild Camera & Instrument Corp., 40 A.D.2d 990, 338 N.Y.S.2d 663, 1972 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3140 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1972).

In action by State Insurance Fund commissioners to recover unpaid workers' compensation policy premiums, insured employer was foreclosed from raising issue of its proper rating classification where commissioners' rule required that any challenge to insurance classification be lodged within 12 months after expiration of rating term, and although that rule was not as readily available as it might have been, employer was put on general notice of its existence, and nothing further was required. Commissioners of the State Ins. Fund v Netti Wholesale Bev. Co., 245 A.D.2d 48, 665 N.Y.S.2d 84, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12850 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1997).

In action by State Insurance Fund commissioners to recover unpaid workers' compensation policy premiums, insured employer had sufficient opportunity to challenge its rating classification where commissioners' rule required that any challenge to insurance classification be lodged within 12 months after expiration of rating term, and employer's rating term expired in April 1990. Commissioners of the State Ins. Fund v Netti Wholesale Bev. Co., 245 A.D.2d 48, 665 N.Y.S.2d 84, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12850 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1997).

Workers' compensation claimant did not voluntarily withdraw from labor market, and thus was not disqualified from receiving benefits, where (1) he had unsuccessfully applied to 36 companies for employment, (2) through vocational rehabilitation, he had completed course in photographic techniques and was currently employed by his wife's modeling agency, and (3) his limited education and learning disability might have rendered him unqualified for many job prospects supplied to him by Comprehensive Rehabilitation Association. Oken v Stanmorer Liquor Co., 251 A.D.2d 719, 674 N.Y.S.2d 784, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6479 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1998).

Injury that occurred in employer's parking lot as claimant tried to help co-worker start motorcycle was sufficiently similar to previous case involving claimant who injured back while turning off lights of car in employer's parking lot, thus requiring Workers' Compensation Board to either follow precedent of previous case or provide explanation for its failure to do so. Vogel v Anheuser-Busch, 265 A.D.2d 705, 696 N.Y.S.2d 571, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10710 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1999).

Claim was properly denied on finding that claimant voluntarily withdrew from labor market where his treating chiropractor reported no disability prior to his retirement, he had lost no time from work, he had not complained to his supervisor or requested change in his working conditions, and he did not tell his supervisor that he was retiring due to injury. Baumgarten v New York State Banking Dep't, 279 A.D.2d 741, 718 N.Y.S.2d 480, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 291 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2001).

Appeal by employer and its workers' compensation carrier from decision of Workers' Compensation Board was not premature where appellants' argument that claimant was ineligible for benefits as result of his loss of employment for misconduct unrelated to his disability involved threshold legal issue that might be dispositive of claim against one or more parties. Katsaris v Lockheed Martin Fed. Sys., 281 A.D.2d 744, 721 N.Y.S.2d 298, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2310 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2001).

Workers' compensation claimant's loss of employment for misconduct unrelated to his disability did not preclude his claim; his discharge merely defeated inference that his loss of wages was attributable to physical limitations that resulted from his work-related injury, thus imposing on him burden of proving that limitations on his employment due to his disability caused his later inability to obtain employment. Katsaris v Lockheed Martin Fed. Sys., 281 A.D.2d 744, 721 N.Y.S.2d 298, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2310 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2001).

Workers' compensation law judge (WCLJ) properly disapproved an agreement resolving a Workers' Compensation Law § 120 retaliatory discharge and discrimination claim because the board had continuing jurisdiction over the claim, under Workers' Compensation Law, § 32, board approval was required for the settlement of such a claim, the WCLJ initially found that the agreement failed to comport with the statutory requirements of § 32, and, under § 32(b)(3), the worker was allowed to later withdraw approval of the agreement. Matter of Coleman v Compass Group USA, Inc./ Chartwells, 105 A.D.3d 129, 960 N.Y.S.2d 532, 2013 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1292 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2013).

Workers' Compensation is not directly affected by Health Insurance Portability and Accountability Act (HIPAA) (Pub. L. 104-191 (1996)) privacy requirements; while release of protected health information under No-Fault may be covered by HIPAA privacy regulation, under existing New York requirements transfer of health information for purpose of payment of No-Fault claims is in compliance with HIPAA privacy requirements. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 03-07-10.

II. Employer

7. In general

Before classifying a person as an employer it must first be determined whether or not he was an employer at the time of the injury. Dahoda v Simmons, 11 A.D.2d 842, 203 N.Y.S.2d 167, 1960 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8516 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1960).

The fact that work is being done upon premises owned by the alleged employer does not necessarily establish that he was, at the time of injury sustained by claimant, the claimant's employer. Dahoda v Simmons, 11 A.D.2d 842, 203 N.Y.S.2d 167, 1960 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8516 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1960).

An agreement by one person to supply workmen's compensation liability insurance for the benefit of another may be given "evidentiary effect" on an issue of employer-employee relationship between them, but it cannot create an employment status where none would otherwise exist. Green v W. O. Nannen & Sons, 20 A.D.2d 139, 245 N.Y.S.2d 108, 1963 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2662 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1963).

A joint venture, though not specifically referred to in this section, is an employer as defined herein. Fallone v Misericordia Hospital, 23 A.D.2d 222, 259 N.Y.S.2d 947, 1965 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4150 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1965), aff'd, 17 N.Y.2d 648, 269 N.Y.S.2d 431, 216 N.E.2d 594, 1966 N.Y. LEXIS 1517 (N.Y. 1966).

Workers' Compensation Board properly ruled that claimant, who was employed as taxicab operator pursuant to lease agreement with respondent, was respondent's employee, not employee of employee leasing service from which respondent leased its various other employees (e.g., president, treasurer, dispatchers, mechanics and clerical staff) where claimant was never reported as employee of leasing company or any corporation with which leasing company entered into employee leasing agreement, and hearing testimony confirmed that neither respondent nor leasing company intended for taxicab operators to be employees of leasing company. Teal v Albany Capitaland Enters. Inc., 259 A.D.2d 859, 687 N.Y.S.2d 451, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2360 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), app. dismissed, 93 N.Y.2d 1041, 697 N.Y.S.2d 569, 719 N.E.2d 930, 1999 N.Y. LEXIS 2887 (N.Y. 1999).

Personal injury plaintiff was not entitled to have stricken defendant corporation's affirmative defense based on exclusive remedy provisions of Workers' Compensation Law where there was triable issue of fact as to whether defendant was alter ego of plaintiff's employer. Roche v T.G. Realty, Inc., 266 A.D.2d 367, 697 N.Y.S.2d 520, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11530 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1999).

Under the Workmen's Compensation Act an employee may have more than one employer. United States Fidelity & Guaranty Co. v R. H. Macy & Co., 156 F.2d 204, 1946 U.S. App. LEXIS 2556 (2d Cir. N.Y. 1946).

A county or other municipality may not elect to provide workers' compensation coverage under a county self-insurance plan to persons sentenced to perform public service under an alternative sentencing program. 1984 Op St Comp File #84-29.

8. Particular persons or entities as employers

For purposes of compensation, a municipal corporation is an employer and when its employees are injured in a hazardous occupation, it is liable for compensation. Hence, a town superintendent of highways sustained a compensable injury while using town equipment in blasting work on privately owned land for which the town collected a fee. Perry v Cherry Valley, 307 N.Y. 427, 121 N.E.2d 402, 307 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 427, 1954 N.Y. LEXIS 973 (N.Y. 1954).

A railroad company, having operated its cars under the federal act without objection, is an "employer" within the meaning of the Work. Bryant v Pullman Co., 188 A.D. 311, 177 N.Y.S. 488, 1919 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7837 (N.Y. App. Div. 1919), aff'd, 228 N.Y. 579, 127 N.E. 909, 228 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 579, 1920 N.Y. LEXIS 1046 (N.Y. 1920).

A school district is an employer within the meaning of subd. Bailey v School Dist., 204 A.D. 125, 198 N.Y.S. 247, 1923 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9428 (N.Y. App. Div. 1923).

An employer under twenty-one years of age is liable for compensation. Rahman v Bethel, 236 A.D. 182, 258 N.Y.S. 286, 1932 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5926 (N.Y. App. Div. 1932).

An infant may disaffirm his contract as employer but he cannot avoid his statutory liability as to compensation where an accident happens prior to a valid disaffirmance of his contract. Rahman v Bethel, 236 A.D. 182, 258 N.Y.S. 286, 1932 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5926 (N.Y. App. Div. 1932).

A nurses' registry employment agency was properly determined to be the general employer of a nursing assistant who was injured when she slipped and fell on a wet floor while attending a hospital patient as a companion on assignment from the registry, where the registry profited by the claimant's work in that it received 10 percent of the wages she earned as a patient's companion, where the registry also determined when, where, and for whom the claimant could work based on its evaluation of the claimant's suitability, where the claimant needed the registry's approval to voluntarily leave her assigned employment, and where the claimant was paid by the registry on a time basis rather than a lump-sum basis; additionally, the hospital at which the claimant was employed at the time of her accident was properly determined to be the claimant's special employer where the hospital had the right to control the claimant's activities, the claimant's work in the hospital was integral to and beneficial to the hospital, and the hospital had the exclusive right to control the claimant's behavior on her assignment as to such matters as her dress and movements. Abramson v Long Beach Memorial Hospital, 103 A.D.2d 866, 478 N.Y.S.2d 105, 1984 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 19529 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1984).

Fifty percent shareholder of corporation for which legal malpractice plaintiff worked was plaintiff's "employer," for purposes of whether plaintiff's underlying intentional tort action against him (for kicking plaintiff in buttocks at work) was barred by plaintiff's acceptance of workers' compensation benefits, where complaint referred to him as plaintiff's "employer" and showed that he had identity indistinguishable from that of corporation. Wilson v Gerstenzang, Wiener & Gerstenzang, 245 A.D.2d 859, 666 N.Y.S.2d 332, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13178 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1997).

County was liable for payment of Workers' Compensation benefits, even though county economic opportunity program (CEOP) supervised claimant's day-to-day activities, where claimant received no wages from CEOP and instead received public assistance benefits, reimbursement for work-related expenses, and lunch allowance from county, number of hours claimant worked was dependent on size of her public assistance grant, county required claimant to complete time sheets and submit other related paperwork, only county could determine whether proffered excuse by claimant for work absence was acceptable, and county retained power to monitor and evaluate worksite. Hughes v Steuben County Self-Insurance Plan, 248 A.D.2d 757, 669 N.Y.S.2d 716, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2218 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1998).

Workers' Compensation Board properly determined that no employer-employee relationship existed between decedent and company that employed passenger decedent was carrying when plane he was piloting crashed, where president of company testified that company did not hire decedent and that decedent had offered to provide flight as favor, and claimant had stated in her application for insurance benefits that decedent was not in course of his employment at time of accident. Limpert v Kay-R Elec., 250 A.D.2d 1005, 673 N.Y.S.2d 762, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5921 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1998).

In a workers' compensation claim brought by a limousine lessee-driver, control-related factors were relevant only when the vehicle lessor-owner drove the vehicle 40 or more hours per week; where the vehicle lessor-owner did not drive the vehicle 40 or more hours per week, the lessee-driver was an employee of the lessor-owner. Mihalaris v UTOG 2-Way Radio, Inc., 299 A.D.2d 677, 749 N.Y.S.2d 599, 2002 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10778 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2002).

As a dispatch company leased a vehicle to a workers' compensation claimant who had a hack license and used the vehicle to pick up passengers for compensation, and the vehicle had New York City Taxi and Limousine Commission license plates registered to the company, the vehicle was a "taxicab" as defined by N.Y. Veh. & Traf. Law § 148-a. Therefore, the company and claimant were employer and employee under N.Y. Workers' Comp. Law § 2. Matter of Nkrumah v Thomas, 61 A.D.3d 1325, 877 N.Y.S.2d 515, 2009 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3312 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2009).

Workers' compensation claimant's violations of New York City Taxi and Limousine Commission regulations by picking up street hails in a livery cab did not alter his status as an employee or the vehicle's status as a taxicab under N.Y. Veh. & Traf. Law § 148-a. Matter of Nkrumah v Thomas, 61 A.D.3d 1325, 877 N.Y.S.2d 515, 2009 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3312 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2009).

Defendant contractor's motion for summary judgment against its subcontractor's injured employee on the asserted grounds that federal regulations preempt New York State Labor Law, that the company was not an owner or general contractor upon which the Labor Law imposed a duty, and that the New York State Worker's Compensation Law afforded plaintiffs their sole and exclusive remedy, would be denied, where there was no proof that defendant hired plaintiff or had any control over plaintiff in the performance of his job, where federal statutes which permitted the United States Government, the owner of the site, to delegate control over the worksite are not irreconcilable with and do not preempt State Labor Law §§ 240 and 241, which impose a nondelegable duty on the owner and general contractor, and where the Workers' Compensation Law does not preclude an injured employee of a subcontractor from maintaining a suit based on common-law theories of negligence against defendant contractor; accordingly, defendant's attempt to divest itself of safety responsibility pursuant to its subcontract with plaintiff's employer was impermissible. Yarter v General Electric Co., 123 Misc. 2d 736, 474 N.Y.S.2d 390, 1984 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3071 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1984), modified, People v Jennings, 111 A.D.2d 678, 490 N.Y.S.2d 496, 1985 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 49943 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1985).

Defendant was entitled to the stay of plaintiff provider's action to recover assigned first-party no-fault benefits because the fact that the cab company owned the vehicle involved in the accident and was named as the insured on its automobile policy showed potential merit that the cab company was not an independent livery base and that the assignor therefore would be covered under Workers Compensation Law § 2(3). Chiropractic Testing Servs. of N.Y., P.C. v American Tr. Ins. Co., 59 Misc. 3d 250, 71 N.Y.S.3d 802, 2018 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 620 (N.Y. Civ. Ct. 2018).

9. Unions, associations and employee groups

Where a group of ten railroads jointly maintained an employment bureau and a school for the instruction of conductors and motormen, and employee of one of the companies is not precluded from maintaining a negligence action against one of the other companies on the ground that the workmen's compensation law provided the only remedy available. Doran v New York C. I. R. Co., 239 N.Y. 448, 147 N.E. 62, 239 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 448, 1925 N.Y. LEXIS 986 (N.Y. 1925).

A labor union which furnishes union members for jobs, acting as their spokesman and paying them, may be an independent contractor and liable for compensation. Hines v Henry I. Stetler, Inc., 196 A.D. 622, 188 N.Y.S. 73, 1921 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5578 (N.Y. App. Div. 1921).

10. —Employment

A business engaged in supplying temporary office help was the employer of a vault custodian where employee had signed a contract that agency was his sole employer and bank paid wages to agency which in turn paid employee. The bank at no time considered claimant one of its employes. Meyer v Tops Temporary Personnel, 286 A.D. 1048, 144 N.Y.S.2d 775, 1955 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5108 (N.Y. App. Div.), amended, 286 A.D. 1123, 146 N.Y.S.2d 685, 1955 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5380 (N.Y. App. Div. 1955).

Where an employee was furnished to a corporation by an agency engaged in the business of furnishing temporary workers which paid all wages, made all tax, etc. deductions, provided workmen's compensation insurance, and reserved the right to discharge or transfer and to control persons furnished, customers agreeing not to appropriate to their own employment persons so furnished, the agency was properly found to be the employer of a worker supplied for temporary work, rather than the corporation to whom the worker was furnished. Ettlinger v State Ins. Fund, 12 A.D.2d 568, 206 N.Y.S.2d 739, 1960 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7273 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1960).

With respect to a claim for death benefits by a widow whose husband had been employed in two capacities, as business agent for a local union and as a delegate to the district council from the local, who had received a salary from both employers together with annuities, pension, and medical benefits from the district council, and who was killed while pursuing required work duties for the district council, the decision of the Workers' Compensation Board to award death benefits solely against the district council was supported by substantial evidence. Evangelista v N.Y.C. Dist. Council of Carpenters, 79 A.D.2d 795, 435 N.Y.S.2d 117, 1980 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 14200 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1980).

11. Dual, multiple or joint employers, generally

Employees may look to either their general employer or their special employer or to both, for compensation for injuries due to occupational hazards. De Noyer v Cavanaugh, 221 N.Y. 273, 116 N.E. 992, 221 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 273, 1917 N.Y. LEXIS 1300 (N.Y. 1917).; Schweitzer v Thompson & Norris Co., 229 N.Y. 97, 127 N.E. 904, 229 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 97, 1920 N.Y. LEXIS 660 (N.Y. 1920).; Dennison v Peckham Road Corp., 295 N.Y. 457, 68 N.E.2d 440, 295 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 457, 1946 N.Y. LEXIS 801 (N.Y. 1946).; Dale v Saunders Bros., 171 A.D. 528, 157 N.Y.S. 1062, 1916 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5376, 1916 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9736 (N.Y. App. Div.), aff'd, 218 N.Y. 59, 112 N.E. 571, 218 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 59, 1916 N.Y. LEXIS 1042 (N.Y. 1916).; Piester v Traver, 24 A.D.2d 688, 261 N.Y.S.2d 333, 1965 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3556 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1965).

Where an employee works for two different employers, the test of whose employment he was working in when injured is whether the duties were so separate and distinct in time or place that the employment is capable of identification as that of only one employer. Goldstein v House of Schrager, Inc., 19 A.D.2d 759, 241 N.Y.S.2d 925, 1963 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3278 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1963).

In an action brought by an injured forklift operator against the subsidiary of the company that carried the applicable workers' compensation insurance policy, summary judgment was properly denied to the subsidiary where summary judgment was sought on the ground that the forklift operator's exclusive remedy was under the Workers' Compensation Law, where the workers' compensation board's listing of both the subsidiary and the carrier of the insurance policy as employers was only a procedural step and not a determination, and where a limited factual issue remained as to whether one or both of the companies employed the forklift operator. Jensen v Illinois Glove Co., 88 A.D.2d 1067, 452 N.Y.S.2d 738, 1982 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 17486 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1982).

Defendant was not entitled to summary judgment dismissing personal injury action on ground that action was barred by CLS Work Comp § 11, as matter of law, because defendant was operating as joint venture with plaintiff's employer during time in question, thus making plaintiff their joint employee, since evidence suggested that defendant and plaintiff's employer were not in fact one enterprise where (1) joint financial statement of defendant and plaintiff's employer set out assets of companies separately, (3) plaintiff's employer was guarantor of defendant's debts, and (3) plaintiff's employer paid rent to defendant for building occupied by it during time in question. Gurga v Carville Leather Co., 145 A.D.2d 712, 534 N.Y.S.2d 837, 1988 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12331 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1988).

General contractor was not entitled, on basis of workers' compensation defense, to summary judgment dismissing causes of action for common-law negligence and violation of CLS Labor §§ 200, 240(1), and 241(6) where (1) defense was based on proof of general contractor's joint venture agreement with cocontractor, and (2) under that agreement, employees who were loaned by cocontractor to work on subject project, such as injured plaintiff, remained in employment of cocontractor and were not employees of joint venture. Luckern v Lyonsdale Energy Ltd. P'ship, 281 A.D.2d 884, 722 N.Y.S.2d 632, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2761 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 2001).

The fact that one employer paid the main part of an employee's compensation does not preclude the latter from being also in the employ of a second employer, who paid a lesser part of the compensation. United States Fidelity & Guaranty Co. v R. H.

Macy & Co., 156 F.2d 204, 1946 U.S. App. LEXIS 2556 (2d Cir. N.Y. 1946).

12. —Salesmen

A commission salesman representing two firms may be awarded compensation against both. Jacobi v Supreme Junior Coat Co., 268 N.Y. 654, 198 N.E. 541, 268 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 654, 1935 N.Y. LEXIS 1121 (N.Y. 1935).

A full-time salesman for a siding company in the South who undertook to sell brushes on a part-time basis for a N. Y. brush company was not an employee of the N. Y. concern for the purposes of workmen's compensation for the casual and sporadic nature of his work met neither the "right to control" test nor the "relative nature of the work" test. Paly v Lane Brush Co., 6 A.D.2d 50, 174 N.Y.S.2d 205, 1958 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5780 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1958).

Claimant, a traveling salesman, was injured in an automobile accident. He notified appellant company and identified the appellant as employer in a notice of claim. Appellant filed employer's report of injury in which claimant was identified as its salesman. Subsequent reports carried the same information. Thereafter, manager of appellant notified board that a mistake had been made and that the claimant was the employee of respondent. Both companies had same office in New York from which claimant was employed. Claimant testified that he was employee of the appellant but he did not know how he was listed on the books. Held: finding of board that claimant was employee of appellant was sustained. Kerner v Croyden Leather Products, Inc., 8 A.D.2d 882, 186 N.Y.S.2d 1008, 1959 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8290 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1959).

A deceased employee who acted as salesman for two different companies but with somewhat different territories for each could not be considered as working in the employment of both where he was killed in an automobile accident while attempting to collect an account for one only outside of territory assigned to him by the other, and responsibility for death benefits accordingly rested entirely upon the employer at whose request he was making the special trip. Goldstein v House of Schrager, Inc., 19 A.D.2d 759, 241 N.Y.S.2d 925, 1963 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3278 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1963).

13. —Retailor department store demonstrators

A demonstrator for cosmetics assigned to a department store where she worked under its supervision selling its products as well as her own is not entitled to recover against the store for injuries in the course of her employment there, where both companies agreed that the demonstrator should be deemed the employee of the cosmetic company. Knox v Gimbel Bros, 258 A.D. 1013, 16 N.Y.S.2d 964, 1940 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8644 (N.Y. App. Div. 1940).

Where claimant was employed to demonstrate the products of a cosmetic manufacturer in a retail store and contracted an occupational disease when she broke a bottle of the cosmetics, and was covered by workmen's compensation insurance carried by the manufacturer, who paid her and exerted some control over her work, the board's conclusion that she was an employee of the manufacturer was well founded, notwithstanding the manufacturer's claim that she was an employee of the store and that such action as the manufacturer had taken was only on behalf of the store. Janesch v Saks 34th Street, 10 A.D.2d 749, 198 N.Y.S.2d 3, 1960 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11191 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1960).

A sales clerk, hired by a department store to sell only products of a particular manufacturer at a counter in that store, subject to the same rules as other employees of the store as to working hours, etc., except that she could not be shifted to a different counter or to sale of different goods, must be considered an employee of the store for purposes of the store's liability for injuries sustained by her on the premises, notwithstanding the manufacturing firm eventually paid all her wages. Janikowski v Yardley's of London, Inc., 11 A.D.2d 577, 201 N.Y.S.2d 157, 1960 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9926 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1960).

One employed by a manufacturer to demonstrate its products in a department store under an arrangement with the store whereby the manufacturer would select a demonstrator, place her in the department store and pay her wages while she worked there, but with the agreement that the demonstrator would be subject to the hours and rules of the store's own employees, is an employee of the department store as well as the manufacturer, where the demonstrator helped the sales girls in making sales of other articles and was paid a commission by the department store. United States Fidelity & Guaranty Co. v R. H. Macy & Co., 156 F.2d 204, 1946 U.S. App. LEXIS 2556 (2d Cir. N.Y. 1946).

14. —Employers under common control or shared premises

Where the employees of a corporation and a partnership occupied portions of the same premises and moved freely from one part of the premises to the other in connection with the businesses of both, an employee of the partnership, who was injured while working the portion of the premises used by the corporation, will be granted an award of compensation solely against the partnership. Patterson v Bell & Hooks, 276 A.D. 801, 93 N.Y.S.2d 361, 1949 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3362 (N.Y. App. Div.), amended, 276 A.D. 880, 94 N.Y.S.2d 185, 1949 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3668 (N.Y. App. Div. 1949).

Where claimant was employed as an elevator operator during the day but after hours performed work for a tenant in the building and was injured after his regular working hours and while performing work for the tenant, he was in the sole employ of the tenant. Mallon v Adolph Lewisohn & Sons, Inc., 282 A.D. 784, 122 N.Y.S.2d 490, 1953 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4956 (N.Y. App. Div. 1953).

Where a claimant was employed by two corporations whose affairs were somewhat interwoven, an award against one of them was proper where he was paid by it and was in the course of his duties as a sales manager for it when injured. Lowey v Acme Chemical Co., 283 A.D. 900, 130 N.Y.S.2d 89, 1954 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5692 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), modified, 283 A.D. 976, 130 N.Y.S.2d 89, 1954 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5982 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1954).

Two corporations, appellant and another, were controlled by same owners. Claimant had formerly been employed by one but at time of accident he was employed by appellant, although he was sometimes directed by appellant to perform services for former employer. He was injured while on former employer's truck at appellant's direction. Held, there was no joint employment and claimant was employed by appellant. Sirico v Mastro Transit Mix Corp., 6 A.D.2d 935, 175 N.Y.S.2d 786, 1958 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5256 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), app. dismissed, 5 N.Y.2d 708, 1958 N.Y. LEXIS 1637 (N.Y. 1958), app. dismissed, 5 N.Y.2d 785, 180 N.Y.S.2d 312, 154 N.E.2d 566, 1958 N.Y. LEXIS 786 (N.Y. 1958).

The board should not apportion compensation between two firms operating businesses on the same premises where the claimant had filed a compensation claim against one firm and a common law suit for damages against the other, even though she was unsuccessful in the damage suit. Falkenstein v Victory Stationery Co., 9 A.D.2d 977, 193 N.Y.S.2d 747, 1959 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5669 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1959).

Where it was conceded that the injured workman was an employee of someone at the time of injury, there was sufficient evidence to sustain a finding by the Board that he was a direct employee of the developer of a certain tract of land rather than of a subcontractor doing carpenter work in erection of dwellings on said property, in view of evidence of cessation of the subcontractor relationship between claimant's original employer and the developer and assumption of direct control over the work by the developer. Lewandowski v Baldwin Droms, Inc., 18 A.D.2d 1118, 239 N.Y.S.2d 5, 1963 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4021 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1963).

15. —General contractors and subcontractors

A workman injured while working on a lumber job is the employee of the general contractor, who has a contract to clear a tract of pulp wood, rather than alleged subcontractors where it was the custom in the industry that a tract to be cleared should be subdivided among small groups of men where such subdivisions do not amount to the creation of sub-contractors, and the general contractor was the only one who had taken out insurance. Sullivan v Preston, 177 A.D. 110, 163 N.Y.S. 692, 1917 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5184 (N.Y. App. Div. 1917).

An award may be given against a contractor and subcontractor jointly. Dunbar v Mackenzie (1921) 198 App Div 946, 189 NYS 233, affd (1921) 232 NY 556, 134 NE 570.See also Clark v Monarch Engineering Co., 248 N.Y. 107, 161 N.E. 436, 248 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 107, 1928 N.Y. LEXIS 1230 (N.Y. 1928).

An employee of a structural steel contractor who finished the structural steel work and then undertook to lay wire mesh for another contractor on the same project, is then the employee of the general contractor rather than the structural steel contractor. Schieve v Border Bldg. Co., 260 A.D. 970, 23 N.Y.S.2d 345, 1940 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5644 (N.Y. App. Div. 1940).

A subcontractor rather than a general contractor is the employer of a claimant, originally employed by the general contractor but who was employed by the subcontractor and during the period in which the employee was injured, the subcontractor paid the employee's wages, his social security obligations and workmen's compensation insurance covering him made the first report of injury and notified the Industrial Commissioner that it had commenced payment of compensation. Moore v Colonial Sand & Stone Co., 261 A.D. 857, 24 N.Y.S.2d 751, 1941 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7791 (N.Y. App. Div. 1941).

General employee of elevator company was not, as matter of law, special employee of company's sub-contractor at time of injury, barring him from bringing suit against sub-contractor, where employee had been assigned by company to work with sub-contractor in drilling hole at construction site, utilizing company blueprints and specifications; notwithstanding that employee testified before trial that it was his job to assist sub-contractor in all work, question of fact remained as to whether company relinquished to sub-contractor right to direct and control employee in performance of work. Kinney v Kuhn, 122 A.D.2d 569, 504 N.Y.S.2d 948, 1986 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 59851 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1986).

Workers' Compensation Board's decision that injured claimant was employed by contractor rather than subcontractor on date of injury was supported by substantial evidence where (1) contractor testified that subcontractor worked in dual capacity for him, at times as employee and at times as independent subcontractor, (2) contractor provided material for project, including scaffolding from which claimant fell, and (3) on date of injury, contractor paid claimant, and contractor's employee was teaching him to apply siding. Schaff v William C. Maunz Co., 144 A.D.2d 109, 534 N.Y.S.2d 447, 1988 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10110 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1988).

Evidence sustained determination that general contractor on highway project was solely liable for workers' compensation benefits paid to claimant although general contractor argued that claimant, who was working on loan to subcontractor on project at time of his heart attack, was subcontractor's "special employee," where general contractor paid claimant's salary, assigned him to operate subcontractor's hydrodemolition machinery, retained right to discharge him, set standards and timetable for completion of various stages of project, and hired union worker who took claimant's place operating subcontractor's hydrodemolition machinery. Hutchinson v Fahs-Rolston Paving Co., 287 A.D.2d 936, 732 N.Y.S.2d 116, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9957 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2001).

16. —General and special employers, in general

General employee of one employer may also be in special employ of another, notwithstanding general employer's responsibility for payment of wages and for maintaining workers' compensation and other employee benefits. Thompson v Grumman Aerospace Corp., 78 N.Y.2d 553, 578 N.Y.S.2d 106, 585 N.E.2d 355, 1991 N.Y. LEXIS 4925 (N.Y. 1991).

Injury sustained by claimant, who assisted mechanics in garage and drove special taxicab containing equipment and supplies on road calls to assist disabled taxicabs owned and operated by employer and who had taken regular taxicab and was on his lunch hour and performing no duties for employer at time of accident, when taxicab struck pole did not arise out of and in course of employment. Bennerson v Checker Garage Service Corp., 54 A.D.2d 1042, 388 N.Y.S.2d 374, 1976 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 15006 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1976).

Evidence supported determination that construction company was decedent's sole employer at time of his work-related death and that waterproofing company was not decedent's special employer where construction company only hired nonunion employees, waterproofing company hired only union employees, and as nonunion employee, decedent could only work for construction company, which paid decedent's wages. Estate of Harrison v Jerrick Waterproofing Co., 210 A.D.2d 711, 620 N.Y.S.2d 172, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12735 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1994).

Defendant, property manager, should have been granted summary judgment where plaintiff admitted that his "general employer" was either property owner or payroll corporation which paid him Workers' Compensation benefits for his claimed disability following accident, and defendant was plaintiff's "special employer," having hired him, having ultimate responsibility for maintaining building where he was "maintenance man," and having authority to terminate his employment. Gubitosi v National Realty Co., 247 A.D.2d 512, 669 N.Y.S.2d 321, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1490 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't), app. dismissed, 92 N.Y.2d 843, 677 N.Y.S.2d 69, 699 N.E.2d 428, 1998 N.Y. LEXIS 1802 (N.Y. 1998).

Defendants in personal injury action were entitled to summary judgment on ground that workers' compensation was plaintiff's exclusive remedy where plaintiff was both general employee of defendant owner of subject premises and special employee of second defendant, who was agent retained by owner to manage premises. Gjelaj v Dwelling Managers, Inc., 251 A.D.2d 4, 672 N.Y.S.2d 713, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6372 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1998).

County Department of Social Services, which sponsored workfare program, was properly found to be claimant's proper employer and solely responsible for paying her benefits where written agreement between County and owner of facility where claimant was injured showed that County selected claimant, recipient of public assistance, for placement at workfare program facility and exercised significant control over terms of her work, including method of payment, hours worked, and duties performed, and County established standards governing type and location of work to be performed and conducted regular performance reviews with assistance of facility's representative. Adams v Otsego County Dep't of Soc. Servs., 269 A.D.2d 626, 702 N.Y.S.2d 698, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1088 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2000).

Wholly owned subsidiary of company that hired plaintiff to work on highway construction project failed to establish that it was plaintiff's special employer where plaintiff worked at site for only 3 days before accident, there was no evidence that she was aware of possible employment relationship with any entity other than company that hired her, and thus there was no basis for finding her implied consent to special employment relationship. Shelley v Flow Int'l Corp., 283 A.D.2d 958, 724 N.Y.S.2d 244, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4429 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't), app. denied, 96 N.Y.2d 937, 733 N.Y.S.2d 375, 759 N.E.2d 374, 2001 N.Y. LEXIS 3080 (N.Y. 2001).

Whether an injured worker's status was that of a special employee limited to workers' compensation remedies was a question of fact; an earlier denial of summary judgment on the issue of whether the property owner and the worker's employer were separate entities did not preclude further consideration of the issue of special versus general employment status. D'Amato v Access Mfg., Inc., 305 A.D.2d 447, 762 N.Y.S.2d 393, 2003 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5365 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2003).

17. — —Presumption of continued general employment

General employment is presumed to continue, but presumption is overcome on clear demonstration of surrender of control by general employer and assumption of control by special employer. Thompson v Grumman Aerospace Corp., 78 N.Y.2d 553, 578 N.Y.S.2d 106, 585 N.E.2d 355, 1991 N.Y. LEXIS 4925 (N.Y. 1991).

In action by plaintiff who was injured due to alleged negligence of coworker assigned to work for his employer by defendant temporary employment agency, defendant was entitled to summary judgment on ground that allegedly negligent employee was special employee of plaintiff's employer as matter of law and therefore complaint was barred by exclusive remedy provision of CLS Work Comp § 29(6), as presumption of continued general employment with defendant was rebutted by evidence that plaintiff's employer provided specific training and supervision for temporary employees supplied by defendant, was solely responsible for their job assignments and hours of work, and supplied all necessary tools and equipment. Gadway v Tri-City Manpower Inc., 270 A.D.2d 616, 704 N.Y.S.2d 347, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2631 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2000).

18. — —Hallmarks of special employment relationship

Special employee is one who is transferred for limited time of whatever duration to service of another. Thompson v Grumman Aerospace Corp., 78 N.Y.2d 553, 578 N.Y.S.2d 106, 585 N.E.2d 355, 1991 N.Y. LEXIS 4925 (N.Y. 1991).

Although person's categorization as special employee is usually question of fact, determination of special employment status may be made as matter of law where undisputed facts establish that general employer was performing no work for special employer and general employer did not retain control over special employee. Thompson v Grumman Aerospace Corp., 78 N.Y.2d 553, 578 N.Y.S.2d 106, 585 N.E.2d 355, 1991 N.Y. LEXIS 4925 (N.Y. 1991).

A harbor master hired by a general agent of war shipping administration having charge of operations connected with loading and unloading of vessels, from stevedores employed by a contract stevedore, and placed under sole supervision of the dock boss of the general agent is a special employee of the agent and award of 50 percent of death benefits is properly made against the agent and its carrier. Johnston v International Freighting Corp., 274 A.D. 728, 87 N.Y.S.2d 297, 1949 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5878 (N.Y. App. Div.), reh'g denied, 275 A.D. 865, 89 N.Y.S.2d 523, 1949 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4818 (N.Y. App. Div. 1949).

A special employer-employee relationship between appellant, a chimney construction corporation undertaking to erect the chimney for a power house in connection with which a different corporation had the general construction contract, and a high lift operator who was an employee of the latter corporation but taken over by the former for the temporary task of filling the chimney with gravel, existed where appellant was, in fact, paying the wages of the high lift operator while engaged in this work and he was doing the work under the general supervision of appellant's supervisor. Goodman v Stone & Webster Engineering Corp., 11 A.D.2d 558, 199 N.Y.S.2d 770, 1960 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10192 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1960).

Where defendant Chamber of Commerce agreed to pay specified amount to volunteer fire company for erecting and removing Christmas decorations on street and claimant, a volunteer fireman, was injured while removing same, defendant was not liable under the definitions of "employer" (subd 3) and "employee" (subd 4) of above statute since it was not found that volunteer fire company as general employer had surrendered control of claimant to defendant which is necessary for the creation of employer-employee relationship under statute. Martell v Whitehall Chamber of Commerce, 23 A.D.2d 511, 255 N.Y.S.2d 148, 1965 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5110 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1965).

The Workmen's Compensation Board's determination of special employment was supported by substantial evidence where claimant was engaged in the supervision of construction and the finishing of houses as opposed to his usual work of carpenter supervisor, the absence of payment by his general employer for the day of the accident, and the method of payment for work previously done by the claimant for his special employer. Kreisler v Dennis Bridgehampton Constr. Corp., 37 A.D.2d 891, 325 N.Y.S.2d 301, 1971 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3183 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1971).

Evidence that injured workman was employed by general employer which was in the business of supplying labor on a day-to-day basis and that company for whom workman was working at the time that he was injured had signed a contract with the general employer which provided that the general employer was not an employment agency and provided workmen's compensation and unemployment insurance for the workers whom it employed and furnished to others sustained determination that company for whom the injured employee was working at the time of injury had not become a special employer so that the employee was not restricted to workmen's compensation recovery. Hill v Erdle Perforating Co., 53 A.D.2d 1008, 386 N.Y.S.2d 265, 1976 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 15806 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1976).

The Workers' Compensation Board properly determined that the landlord of the premises at which claimant worked as a security guard was a special employer and thus liable to claimant in such capacity, where the landlord had exercised sufficient control and direction over their placement, dress and use of security guards hired by claimant's general employer to establish a special employment relationship with the claimant. Alli v Mandel Sec. Bureau, Inc., 86 A.D.2d 911, 448 N.Y.S.2d 256, 1982 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 15584 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1982).

Plaintiff was "special employee" of defendant where he was hired by company supplying professional help to various companies for work at premises owned by defendant, he worked at premises from inception of his employment until date of accident, and defendant exercised exclusive direction and control over his daily activities. Schulze v Associated Univs., 212 A.D.2d 588, 622 N.Y.S.2d 570, 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1542 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1995).

Defendants established that plaintiff truck driver was their special employee as matter of law, entitling them to summary judgment based on defense of workers' compensation, where plaintiff's general employer had been incorporated by defendants' principals to provide workers to defendants and another related entity, general employer had no other business or clients and thus served merely as in-house employment agency through which defendants paid salaries and provided benefits to workers, plaintiff reported for work and picked up his paychecks at defendants' facilities, all essential details of manner and outcome of his services were directed by defendants, and plaintiffs' contrary contentions were belied by his repeated references (during his examination before trial and in his affidavit) to being employed by defendants. Rotoli v Domtar, Inc., 229 A.D.2d 934, 645 N.Y.S.2d 367, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8960 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1996).

Defendant was entitled to summary judgment on ground that action was barred by exclusive remedy of workers' compensation benefits where (1) plaintiff reported to work each day at defendant's distribution center, punched in time clock, was supervised by defendant's employees, and performed work for benefit of defendant, and (2) plaintiff's general employer was not present at work site and did not have right to supervise or control plaintiff's work. Eagen v Harlequin Books, 229 A.D.2d 935, 645 N.Y.S.2d 226, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8962 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1996).

Plaintiff was, at least, "special employee" of defendant at time of accident in light of undisputed evidence that defendant issued and was listed on plaintiff's W-2s as plaintiff's employer, that defendant paid plaintiff's wages, benefits, and workers' compensation insurance, and that plaintiff was injured while making repairs to defendant's building. Crean v Queens Blvd. Tenants Corp., 252 A.D.2d 352, 675 N.Y.S.2d 533, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7899 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1998), app. denied, 93 N.Y.2d 809, 694 N.Y.S.2d 631, 716 N.E.2d 696, 1999 N.Y. LEXIS 1341 (N.Y. 1999).

Driver for truck delivery service was properly found by Workers' Compensation Board to be special employee of company for which he was making deliveries where that company controlled scheduling and location of deliveries, required drivers to work on specified days and had authority to impose rules as to their personal appearance, drivers stored their trucks in company warehouse, and drivers gained access to warehouse using identification cards bearing name of company's subsidiary. Tunison v P.C. Richards & Son, 257 A.D.2d 856, 684 N.Y.S.2d 311, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 524 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1999).

Plaintiff employed by temporary agency for construction workers, who was injured while working at defendant's job site, was defendants' special employee as matter of law, entitling defendant to dismissal of personal injury action as barred by Workers' Compensation Law, where (1) his deposition stated that defendant's foreman would assign work to him, instruct him how to do it, provide tools, tell him when to go to next job, and tell him when to arrive and leave job site, and (2) he failed to explain why his affidavit opposing summary judgment motion, prepared 9 months after his deposition, contradicted his deposition. Zylinski v Garito Contr., 268 A.D.2d 427, 702 N.Y.S.2d 86, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 198 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2000).

Defendant was plaintiff's special employer and should have been granted summary judgment dismissing complaint where defendant had exclusive right to control and direct manner, details, and ultimate result of plaintiff's work on date of subject accident, and plaintiff had received Workers' Compensation benefits from its general employer. Martin v Baldwin Union Free Sch. Dist., 271 A.D.2d 579, 706 N.Y.S.2d 712, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4336 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2000).

Building maintenance worker was building tenant's special employee, although building owner paid his salary and workers' compensation benefits, where his duties were directed and controlled by tenant, whose employees he considered to be his supervisors with influence effectively amounting to authority to fire him. Evans v Citicorp, N.A., 276 A.D.2d 370, 714 N.Y.S.2d 473, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10645 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2000).

Plaintiff was special employee of defendant, and thus his action for personal injuries incurred on defendant's premises was barred by Workers' Compensation Law, where defendant's only 2 officers were sole owners of plaintiff's general employer, defendant directed manner, details, and result of plaintiff's work, and plaintiff was paid directly by check from defendant. Syku v La Barranca Realty Corp., 282 A.D.2d 600, 723 N.Y.S.2d 379, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3789 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't), app. denied, 97 N.Y.2d 607, 738 N.Y.S.2d 290, 764 N.E.2d 394, 2001 N.Y. LEXIS 3840 (N.Y. 2001), app. denied, 97 N.Y.2d 607, 738 N.Y.S.2d 290, 764 N.E.2d 394, 2001 N.Y. LEXIS 3843 (N.Y. 2001).

Plaintiff was properly found to be defendant city's special employee as matter of law where city, through its department of housing preservation and development (HPD), exclusively controlled hiring, firing, discipline, promotion, work performed, sick leave, vacations, and every other aspect of plaintiff's employment, with exception of payroll services, which were provided by plaintiff's general employer; it was immaterial that plaintiff reported directly to lead mechanic in employ of general employer where lead mechanic, like plaintiff, was controlled and supervised by HPD. Brunetti v City of New York, 286 A.D.2d 253, 728 N.Y.S.2d 665, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8053 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2001).

19. — —Allocation of award

An employee of a general employer had been working for a special employer for more than a month, and was directed by the latter's servant to haul a load of lumber already loaded on a truck, to which he transferred his general employer's horses, and was injured by the negligence of one of the special employer's servants. It was held that the employee's exclusive remedy was the workmen's compensation law, against either the general or special employer, or both. Lee v Cranford Co., 182 A.D. 191, 169 N.Y.S. 370, 1918 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7848 (N.Y. App. Div. 1918), aff'd, 230 N.Y. 618, 130 N.E. 917, 230 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 618, 1921 N.Y. LEXIS 896 (N.Y. 1921).

A student nurse, starting her vacation 2 days early, who was injured while in her father's automobile while enroute to the general employer from the special employer pursuant to instructions and the rules of the institution to report "and sign out" for vacation, before being released from duty, was entitled to an award, entirely assessed against the general employer hospital. Kwitkowski v Charles E. Wilson Memorial Hospital, 277 A.D. 802, 96 N.Y.S.2d 871, 1950 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3376 (N.Y. App. Div. 1950).

The rule is well established that if there is both a general and special employer the board can make an award against both or either as it sees fit, and that appellate courts have no power to impose a uniform or consistent rule upon the board in such matters, irrespective of the facts of the particular case. Goodman v Stone & Webster Engineering Corp., 11 A.D.2d 558, 199 N.Y.S.2d 770, 1960 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10192 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1960).

There was sufficient evidence to sustain a finding that both a general and special employer-employee relationship existed, sustaining a 50–50 apportionment of an award against the general employer, where it appeared that appellant, a funeral director, regularly employed claimant to drive a hearse and ambulance and to perform general work at a weekly wage of $60 regardless of whether business was slack or active, except as claimant was employed at like wages driving a truck for appellant's son in the construction business, and that appellant had first call on claimant's services whenever required in the undertaking business. Hogan v Mahar, 12 A.D.2d 570, 206 N.Y.S.2d 907, 1960 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7280 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1960), app. denied, 9 N.Y.2d 610, 1961 N.Y. LEXIS 1652 (N.Y. 1961).

Testimony as to a custom or usage in the trucking business for the lessor of a truck supplying the truck and driver for operations conducted under the Interstate Commerce Commission permit of a lessee truck line, either to provide the Workmen's Compensation Insurance coverage or to be charged therefor by deduction of the premium from the contract price, will not, in the absence of a showing of such an arrangement in connection with a particular truck, preclude a compensation award for death of the driver as the result of an accident in driving the truck from being charged against both the lessor of the truck, as general employer, and the truck line, as special employer. Donoghue v De Carolis, 15 A.D.2d 602, 222 N.Y.S.2d 398, 1961 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6978 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1961).

20. —Responsible employer in situations involving lease of premises or equipment

Where the defendant corporation had an arrangement with the Western Union Telegraph Company, whereby the latter agreed to furnish wires and necessary paraphernalia for a telegraph office, receive messages and transmit them to their destination and to pay a commission of fifty per cent of the proceeds to the defendant corporation, from which it agreed to pay the wages of employees, a messenger injured in the course of his employment is properly granted an award against the defendant corporation as employer rather than the Western Union Company. Sharp v Queensboro Corp., 252 N.Y. 622, 170 N.E. 167, 252 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 622, 1930 N.Y. LEXIS 695 (N.Y. 1930).

A corporation managing a building was a third party in relation to a cleaner of building's windows who fell and lost his life, corporation owning the building being the cleaner's employer. Kindga v Charles F. Noyes Co., 260 N.Y. 521, 184 N.E. 76, 260 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 521, 1932 N.Y. LEXIS 711 (N.Y. 1932).

Where New York city contracted with the owner for the use of his team and a driver and the driver having finished his day's work was killed while returning to his employer when a wheel came off the wagon, an award against the city is not justified. Mackey v New York, 193 A.D. 535, 184 N.Y.S. 495, 1920 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5590 (N.Y. App. Div. 1920).

The lessor of a mill is not liable as an employer for the death of one of the lessees working in the mill where, under the lease the lessees were to have entire charge of operating and running the mill, and assumed liability for injury, damage or accident arising from the operation of the mill, and the lessor had no control over working hours and the manner of performing work. Manning v Whalen, 259 A.D. 490, 20 N.Y.S.2d 364, 1940 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6180 (N.Y. App. Div. 1940).

Where a contractor engaged in excavating leased a power shovel from a corporation not connected with either the contractor or the owner, one regularly employed by the corporation but was engaged by the contractor to assist in operating the shovel, receiving his wages from the contractor, is the contractor's employee for purposes of workmen's compensation. Dennison v Peckham Road Corp., 269 A.D. 800, 55 N.Y.S.2d 137, 1945 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3907 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), superseded, 269 A.D. 803, 269 A.D. 800, 55 N.Y.S.2d 137, 1945 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3920, 1945 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3907 (N.Y. App. Div. 1945).

Where trailer-tractor operator was killed while driving a tractor while it was under lease by a partnership whose principal business was to lease trailer-tractors to corporate lessees, an award was proper against the lessor-partnership. Hamilton v M

With respect to equipment leased to an interstate trucking outfit, for operation of the latter under an ICC permit held by the lessee, driver to be furnished by the owner-lessor, there is no conclusive presumption from operation of the truck under the ICC permit that the driver is an employee of the trucking outfit rather than of the owner of the equipment, and the driver's employment status is determinable as a matter of fact according to the conventional tests and factors. Williams v Solomon, 13 A.D.2d 159, 214 N.Y.S.2d 928, 1961 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11017 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1961).

Where an individual truck owner for several years, and up to the time of the accident resulting in death of the driver, had leased his truck to an interstate trucking corporation to haul merchandise under the corporation's ICC permit, but driver to be furnished by lessor, and the lessor paid the driver's wages, obtained shipments for him to haul, helped the driver in loading them, etc., received payments from shippers, and there was no sufficient evidence to show any direction or control over the driver by the corporation, there was sufficient evidence to sustain a finding that the owner-lessor of the truck was the "sole" employer of the driver and solely responsible in liability under the Workmen's Compensation Law for death benefits. Williams v Solomon, 13 A.D.2d 159, 214 N.Y.S.2d 928, 1961 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11017 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1961).

With respect to workmen's compensation insurance coverage of a truck driver, found to have been solely employed by the owner of the truck notwithstanding a lease arrangement with an interstate trucking corporation for operation of the truck under the corporation's ICC permit, where the corporation's compensation insurance policy expressly covered only that corporation's liability under the Workmen's Compensation Act the insurance carrier could not be held liable for death benefits. Williams v Solomon, 13 A.D.2d 159, 214 N.Y.S.2d 928, 1961 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11017 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1961).

The evidence was insufficient to show that claimants, employed by a service station operator, were employees of the oil company from which the station was leased by the operator, where the lease called for monthly rent payments, evidenced no retention of control by lessor, lessor did not furnish the equipment used by claimants who were hired to do repair work for the operator as an independent source of his income, and lessor had no right to discharge lessee or his employees but only the right to terminate the lease. Grant v Frontier Oil Refining Co., 20 A.D.2d 493, 247 N.Y.S.2d 731, 1964 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4190 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1964).

Amendment to CLS Work Comp § 2(3), defining employer as person or entity which leases or contracts with operator or lessee for purpose of driving, operating or leasing taxicab, was reasonably interpreted by Workers' Compensation Board and State Insurance Fund to require livery car base owners to pay workers' compensation premiums on behalf of independent owner-operators, and is constitutional on its face and as so enforced. Livery Owners Coalition v State Ins. Fund, 152 Misc. 2d 905, 581 N.Y.S.2d 577, 1992 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 90 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1992).

21. —Other incidents of dual control

An award lies against a golf club for injury to a caddy paid solely by players' tips. Meyer v North Hills Golf Club, 238 A.D. 752, 261 N.Y.S. 1021, 1933 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9625 (N.Y. App. Div. 1933).See also Rose v Rex Concrete Const. Co., 245 A.D. 888, 282 N.Y.S. 289, 1935 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11401 (N.Y. App. Div. 1935).

Evidence sustained the finding that the claimant employed in theatrical work was employed by the theatre owner who paid claimant's wages and carried a workmen's compensation policy protecting him rather than by the producers of the show. Miller v Trebuhs Realty Co., 4 A.D.2d 724, 163 N.Y.S.2d 816, 1957 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5136 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1957).

Decedent was employed, for the purposes of death benefits, by an actor and night club entertainer, where decedent was hired for an engagement in Las Vegas by a corporation of which the actor was sole stockholder, where the employment was personally negotiated by the actor either in the name of the corporation or in the actor's name, and expense checks were drawn on the corporate account or the actor's account, without regard to the name used as employer in the particular instance, and the decedent was a part of the actor's personal "act". Maisel v Berle, 11 A.D.2d 831, 202 N.Y.S.2d 562, 1960 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8500 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), reh'g denied, 11 A.D.2d 961, 206 N.Y.S.2d 568, 1960 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8118 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1960).

There was sufficient evidence to sustain a finding that claimant, a jockey and exercise boy, was in the employ of appellant, a public trainer of race horses who was permitted to select and had control over jockeys riding some of the horses trained by him, when injured while riding in a race on a jockey assignment made by appellant. Clingman v Cushman, 12 A.D.2d 671, 207 N.Y.S.2d 732, 1960 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6730 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1960).

Where claimant, although not at the time regularly employed by the hospital, had at an earlier time been so employed as a practical nurse and was called by the hospital to act as an attendant for a particular patient whose son had requested that someone be in constant attendance during the night, and sustained injury inflicted by the patient while so in attendance, the evidence would sustain a finding that claimant was an employee of the hospital when injured, rather than an employee of the patient's son who requested the service and paid the bill. La Barge v Mercy General Hospital, 12 A.D.2d 689, 208 N.Y.S.2d 340 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1960), app. denied, 9 N.Y.2d 610, 1961 N.Y. LEXIS 1663 (N.Y. 1961).

Where an employer was in the business of installing and servicing printing presses, which work required the use of riggers which it could not hire because of lack of any contract with the riggers' union and accordingly made an arrangement with a rigging corporation to carry certain riggers, originally employed by the first corporation, on the latter's payroll, the first employer was the actual employer of such employees where they reported directly to it for daily assignments and at all times remained under its direction and control. Miceli v Tracy-Smith Co., 17 A.D.2d 1021, 234 N.Y.S.2d 569, 1962 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6728 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1962).

Workmen's recovery for personal injuries sustained when he was pinned against loading platform by truck was barred, as against driver of truck and that driver's primary employer, where, at time of accident, driver was under control of plaintiff's employer as a loaned employee; exclusive remedy was for workmen's compensation. Pichardo v Kreger Truck Renting Co., 57 A.D.2d 177, 394 N.Y.S.2d 189, 1977 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10462 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1977).

Workers' Compensation Board's finding of dual and similar employment between injured worker's regular full-time job as legal secretary and office manager and part-time job as chairperson of election inspectors at polling place at which she was injured was sufficiently supported by board's conclusion that her duties in both positions were clerical in nature, involving tallying, filing and record keeping, despite full-time employer's contention that worker's duties as legal secretary involved great deal more skill and responsibility than her purely clerical duties as election inspector. Ribar v County of Suffolk, 125 A.D.2d 801, 510 N.Y.S.2d 25, 1986 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 63012 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1986).

Although parent corporation may be deemed to be employer of employee of subsidiary corporation for purposes of Workers' Compensation Law if subsidiary functions merely as alter ego of parent, parent must exercise complete domination and control over subsidiary's everyday operations. Allen v Oberdorfer Foundries, 192 A.D.2d 1077, 595 N.Y.S.2d 995, 1993 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4080 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1993).

Finding that claimant worked for dual employers, who were brothers, was supported by evidence that she was on first brother's payroll while she worked as horse groomer at second brother's farm, at which both brothers owned horses, that she received her paychecks from first brother, although second brother provided equipment and supervised her day-to-day activities, and that she considered herself answerable to both. Ayers

v Hakes, 260 A.D.2d 975, 689 N.Y.S.2d 281, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4447 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1999).

22. Employer of persons engaged by agents or coworkers

The employer's insurance carrier is liable for the death of an employee who died from injuries received while doing carpenter work at the house of the employee's manager by direction of its foreman under an arrangement, to which the employee was not a party, that the manager should pay the employee while he was at work upon the place, the employee having been off the employer's payroll for a portion of the time that he was so engaged, but at the time of the injury had been back on the payroll for about a week. Jaabeck v Theodore A. Crane's Sons Co., 238 N.Y. 314, 144 N.E. 625, 238 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 314, 1924 N.Y. LEXIS 683 (N.Y. 1924).

An intermediary acting as an agent hiring an employee is not liable for compensation; such intermediary is liable only if an independent contractor or a subcontractor. Kackel v Serviss, 180 A.D. 54, 167 N.Y.S. 348, 1917 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8073 (N.Y. App. Div. 1917).; Tsangournos v Smith, 183 A.D. 751, 171 N.Y.S. 256, 1918 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6014 (N.Y. Claimant, although hired by the superintendent of highways, is the employee of a town and is covered by its compensation policy, in view of subd. 3 and § 50, subd. 4-a and High. Law, § 47, subds. 1 and 4 where hiring was originally done by superintendent of highways, but was approved by town board. Kittle v Kinderhook (1925) 214 App Div 345, 212 NYS 410, appeal after remand (1926) 217 App Div 809, 217 NYS 919, affd (1927) 244 NY 612, 155 NE 919.A corporation employer is liable to a roofer taken by his foreman to perform a roofing job for friend of the foreman. An employer may be held liable as such where the employee was hired by the employer's agent having apparent authority to hire in behalf of the employer. Enright v Asplundh Tree Expert Co., 271 A.D. 847, 65 N.Y.S.2d 871, 1946 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3387 (N.Y. App. Div. 1946), aff'd, 297 N.Y. 452, 74 N.E.2d 170, 297 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 452, 1947 N.Y. LEXIS 965 (N.Y. 1947).

When testimony respecting agency and employment is conflicting, a question of fact is presented and the court may not weigh such testimony, but is bound by the decision of the Board. Coppola v Tilyou, 271 A.D. 848, 65 N.Y.S.2d 619, 1946 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3388 (N.Y. App. Div. 1946), aff'd, 297 N.Y. 656, 76 N.E.2d 322, 297 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 656, 1947 N.Y. LEXIS 1131 (N.Y. 1947).

As to whether an injured minor, engaged in helping a milk route deliveryman, was an employee of the dairy farm engaged in the retail milk business or of the deliveryman, on the theory that the latter was an independent contractor, the board was entitled to go behind the written contract between the dairy farm and the routeman to ascertain the real relationship, and there was sufficient evidence to sustain a finding that the injured minor was an employee of the dairy farm where it appeared that, following execution of the contract, the routeman continued to operate substantially the same as prior thereto, when he was concededly an employee, with the dairy farm exercising considerable control over his activities such as to indicate an employer-employee relationship. Wheeler v Blake, 13 A.D.2d 602, 212 N.Y.S.2d 292, 1961 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11968 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1961).

A finding that claimant, at the time of the accident in question, was employed by a landscaping service operating as a partnership between two brothers which carried compensation insurance, was sustained by substantial evidence where claimant had been hired by one of the brothers to maintain and cut lawns, plant trees, and other incidental work, and, at the time of injury, was assisting at a combination job of tree removal and landscaping contracted for by the partnership. Prinz v Fey, 14 A.D.2d 606, 218 N.Y.S.2d 445, 1961 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9381 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1961), aff'd, 12 N.Y.2d 986, 238 N.Y.S.2d 971, 189 N.E.2d 503, 1963 N.Y. LEXIS 1403 (N.Y. 1963).

Apartment complex owner was building manager's employer under Workers' Compensation Law, despite fact that complex's operator provided manager with equipment, tools, and supplies, delivered him his paycheck, and notified him of his termination, where operator was owner's managing agent, owner was listed as manager's employer on his W-2 form, and owner's board of directors maintained ultimate authority and control over important aspects of manager's employment, including his hiring, salary, and termination. Clifford v Mark Greenberg Real Estate, 219 A.D.2d 753, 631 N.Y.S.2d 98, 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9154 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1995).

County was properly held responsible for payment of workers' compensation benefits for Salvation Army kitchen aide because, although Salvation Army had virtually complete control over aide's day-to-day activities, county retained sufficient overall control over important aspects of aide's work to be deemed her general employer, where, under arrangement between county and Salvation Army, county continued to provide public assistance benefits to aide and other participants in workfare program, number of hours worked was based on size of public assistance grant, participants were required to complete time sheets that were given to county, decisions regarding type of work performed were made jointly by county and Salvation Army, and county retained right to monitor work site and to remove participant from placement in event of improper supervision. Quick v Steuben County Self-Insurance Plan, 242 A.D.2d 833, 242 A.D.2d 883, 662 N.Y.S.2d 608, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8822 (N.Y. Building superintendent was special employee of building owner, and thus superintendent's action against owner for Labor Law violations and common-law negligence was barred by exclusivity of remedy afforded by award of workers' compensation benefits, where owner was in partnership with building manager who supervised and directed superintendent's work, building manager and superintendent were coemployees of real estate management corporation engaged by owner to maintain premises, and result barring action was consistent with state's rejection of dual capacity doctrine and with statutory inclusion within ambit of term "owner" of "agent, or any other person, firm or corporation, directly or indirectly in control of a dwelling." Gonzalez v RHQ Assocs., 263 A.D.2d 413, 693 N.Y.S.2d 580, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8238 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1999).

23. Effect of transfer of employment contract, premises on which work is performed or the like

A bank having taken possession of a building for the purpose of collecting rents for a mortgagor is liable for subsequent injury to a janitor of the building. Wenks v Dry Dock Sav. Inst., 253 A.D. 851, 1 N.Y.S.2d 487, 1938 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8895 (N.Y. App. Div. 1938).

One who originally hired an employee remains liable as employer for compensation after an assignment of the contract under which the work was to be done, where such assignment occurred in another state, without the employee's knowledge. Noel v Morrison, 260 A.D. 377, 22 N.Y.S.2d 649, 1940 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4598 (N.Y. App. Div.), reh'g denied, 260 A.D. 896, 23 N.Y.S.2d 832, 1940 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5265 (N.Y. App. Div. 1940).

No private arrangement can avoid an employer's responsibility for compensation fixed by law. Thus, where claimant, superintendent of an apartment house, was injured on January 6, after the owner of the apartment had entered into a sale contract to be closed January 7, a provision in the contract as then closed vesting title in purchaser as of January 1 and making repairs from that date on the responsibility of the new owner had no effect on the seller's liability, as employer, for compensation payments. Tuohy v Barbarich, 9 A.D.2d 814, 192 N.Y.S.2d 511, 1959 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6164 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1959), app. denied, 7 N.Y.2d 709, 1960 N.Y. LEXIS 1599 (N.Y. 1960).

There was substantial evidence to sustain a finding that, although claimant was originally employed as a plasterer by one corporation, which had a contract with another, following a dispute between the two corporations in course of which claimant's job was discontinued, upon taking over the work by the second corporation claimant became its employee and was such when injured. La Porta v Wakefield Realty Corp., 11 A.D.2d 882,

203 N.Y.S.2d 209, 1960 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8416 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1960).

First corporation's comprehensive daily control of employee's work and absence of any control by second corporation established that he was special employee of first corporation, and thus first corporation was entitled to summary judgment in employee's action to recover for injuries sustained while he was working at first corporation's factory on basis of employee's acceptance of workers' compensation benefits through his employment with second corporation, even though terms of contract between corporations stated that employee was employee of second, not first corporation, where (1) employee was assigned to work at first corporation's factory under contract, (2) first corporation had authority to fire employee, and (3) employee testified at deposition that he commenced working at first corporation's factory immediately on being hired by second corporation, that he worked there exclusively until he was injured, that he acknowledged his foreman at factory as his supervisor, and that foreman oversaw his day-to-day work. Thompson v Grumman Aerospace Corp., 166 A.D.2d 578, 560 N.Y.S.2d 864, 1990 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12717 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1990), aff'd, 78 N.Y.2d 553, 578 N.Y.S.2d 106, 585 N.E.2d 355, 1991 N.Y. LEXIS 4925 (N.Y. 1991).

24. Apportionment of award between multiple employers, generally

The board is not required to apportion compensation on an equal basis where a claimant is employed by two or more employers jointly, and the Appellate Division will not disturb the apportionment as long as it is fair and equitable under all the circumstances. Berkman v Billig Mfg. Co., 9 A.D.2d 810, 192 N.Y.S.2d 852, 1959 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6155 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1959).

Where there is a dual employer situation, the board can properly make the award against either or both employers. Janikowski v Yardley's of London, Inc., 11 A.D.2d 577, 201 N.Y.S.2d 157, 1960 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9926 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1960).

It was error for board to impose joint and several liability on uninsured dual employers where evidence was insufficient to show that they participated in joint venture; matter would be remitted for board to determine whether joint venture existed, and if not, board should apportion liability between employers. Ayers v Hakes, 260 A.D.2d 975, 689 N.Y.S.2d 281, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4447 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1999).

25. —Particular applications

Where a watchman sustained injuries while guarding the premises of separate property owners, an award will be imposed against the owner whose property he was guarding at the time of the accident. Moochler v A. H. Herrick & Son, 272 N.Y. 545, 4 N.E.2d 729, 272 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 545, 1936 N.Y. LEXIS 1040 (N.Y. 1936).

The claimant was jointly employed by the owners of two adjacent housing developments as a night watchman and while on the property of one of the employers, he was assaulted in the course of his employment. Held: although both employers were liable, they were only liable for compensation to claimant in proportion to the remuneration paid by each. Hunt v Regent Development Corp., 3 N.Y.2d 133, 164 N.Y.S.2d 694, 143 N.E.2d 892, 1957 N.Y. LEXIS 869 (N.Y. 1957).

Where a truck renting corporation and a motor haulage corporation employed the same mechanic, an award against the rental corporation alone is proper where on the day of the injury he was in the employ solely of the rental corporation. Antonini v Young Rental Corp., 263 A.D. 1032, 33 N.Y.S.2d 466, 1942 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7961 (N.Y. App. Div. 1942).

Where a nurse who had been employed at two hospitals is exposed to patients suffering from active tuberculosis during a tour of duty at one of the hospitals, resulting in an reactivation of a pre-existing tuberculosis condition, she is entitled to an award of compensation apportioned between both hospitals. Nyulassey v New York, 270 A.D. 970, 62 N.Y.S.2d 110, 1946 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4892 (N.Y. App. Div. 1946).. See also Commissioner of Taxation & Finance v Willard Parker Hospital, 256 A.D. 1018, 10 N.Y.S.2d 487, 1939 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5901 (N.Y. App. Div. 1939).; McDonald v New York, 265 A.D. 1026, 39 N.Y.S.2d 2, 1943 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6674 (N.Y. App. Div. 1943).; Nosowich v Central Islip State Hospital, 274 A.D. 1080, 85 N.Y.S.2d 674, 1949 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6143 (N.Y. App. Div. 1949).

Where a claimant, hired by two corporations as a nightwatchman to keep simultaneous watch over adjacent home building projects of each employer, with each paying half of his wages, was injured in attempting to close the windows on the premises of one employer after leaving the premises of another, the award against both of them to be paid in equal amounts was proper since the employment was joint. Cyrus v Modart Const. Co., 283 A.D. 368, 128 N.Y.S.2d 115, 1954 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4683 (N.Y. App. Div. 1954).

Allocation of an award between two employers was proper where claimant suffered a sacroiliac strain in 1944 while in the employ of one of them and then in 1951 sustained some sort of shock to his back while carrying cinder blocks for the second employer. Stein v Arthur Venneri Co., 283 A.D. 902, 130 N.Y.S.2d 127, 1954 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5695 (N.Y. App. Div. 1954).

Where claimant originally suffered back injuries while employed by a certain corporation in 1944 and later sustained further accidental injuries to his back on two occasions in 1949 while employed by appellant, it was not error for the board to apportion compensation as between the corporation and the appellant without apportioning any part of it against a city for whom claimant worked in 1946 and 1947, it appearing that claimant made no claim of having sustained accidental injuries while employed by the city although on several occasions, during that time, he had felt pains in his back. Rizzo v Ilacqua, 11 A.D.2d 583, 200 N.Y.S.2d 766, 1960 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9935 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1960).

Recipient of public assistance who was injured while participating in workfare program sponsored by county, when working as mechanic at city public works department garage, was general employee of county and special employee of city for purposes of apportioning his workers' compensation claim equally between county and city. Kemp v City of Hornell, 250 A.D.2d 950, 672 N.Y.S.2d 537, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5678 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1998).

26. Judicial review

A claim involved the question of coverage of the claimant arising from the operation of two corporations. The award was reversed and the matter remitted where the record was inadequate to show whether the claimant was an employee of the appellant corporation or the other corporation at the time he was injured. Casey v Martin Contracting Co., 8 A.D.2d 877, 186 N.Y.S.2d 704, 1959 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8283 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1959).

Where a decision as to who was the employer of claimant at the time injuries were sustained rests on credibility of witnesses, the board's determination should not be disturbed. Castrovilla v Di Corrado, 12 A.D.2d 565, 206 N.Y.S.2d 619, 1960 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7268 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1960).

Where conflicting inferences arise from the evidence as to whether the person employing the injured compensation claimant was an independent contractor or a mere employee, himself, of another, resolution of the question is solely within the province of the board. Wheeler v Blake, 13 A.D.2d 602, 212 N.Y.S.2d 292, 1961 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11968 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1961).

Determination that claimant was employee and not independent contractor was interlocutory and not appealable to court. Karam v Exec. Charge/Love Taxi, 284 A.D.2d 599, 725 N.Y.S.2d 577, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6000 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2001).

Court upheld board's factual determination that respondent electrical contractor was sole employer of claimant who was injured while performing electrical maintenance and repairs at manufacturing plant owned and operated by alleged special employer, where claimant remained on respondent's payroll, respondent retained right to discharge him, respondent provided foreperson at manufacturing plant whom claimant considered to be his supervisor and, while claimant also worked with plant employee on projects designated by plant, there was no evidence that plant assumed any control over manner, details or ultimate result of his work. Oppedisano v Randall Elec., 285 A.D.2d 759, 728 N.Y.S.2d 570, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7377 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2001).

III. Employee

27. In general

The definition of "employee" in the Workmen's Compensation Law does not disturb common law distinctions between a servant or employee and an independent contractor, and its rules are operative in consideration of claims under this act. Litts v Risley Lumber Co., 224 N.Y. 321, 120 N.E. 730, 224 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 321, 1918 N.Y. LEXIS 883 (N.Y. 1918).

The issue of an employer-employee relationship is generally one of fact for the board. Gregg v Dallas & Mavis Forwarding Co., 32 A.D.2d 678, 299 N.Y.S.2d 499, 1969 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4079 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1969), aff'd, 26 N.Y.2d 906, 309 N.Y.S.2d 941, 258 N.E.2d 222, 1970 N.Y. LEXIS 1454 (N.Y. 1970).

Contention that claimant was not an employee at time of accident could not be raised for first time on appeal by employer where such contention was not raised before or considered by Workmen's Compensation Board. Daly v Opportunities for Broome, Inc., 48 A.D.2d 99, 367 N.Y.S.2d 851, 1975 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9554 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1975), rev'd, 39 N.Y.2d 862, 386 N.Y.S.2d 216, 352 N.E.2d 133, 1976 N.Y. LEXIS 2809 (N.Y. 1976).

Factors to be considered in Workers' Compensation Board's determination as to whether claimant is "special employee" include putative employer's right to control, method of payment, furnishing of equipment, right to discharge, and "relative nature of the work"; no factor is controlling and board's decision may be based on one or more factors. Vinciguerra v Carvel Corp., 127 A.D.2d 915, 512 N.Y.S.2d 274, 1987 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 43412 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1987).

Existence of employer-employee relationship is question of fact and finding of such relationship by Workers' Compensation Board will be affirmed if supported by substantial evidence, even if evidence to support contrary finding is also substantial. Davison v Holder, 137 A.D.2d 899, 524 N.Y.S.2d 871, 1988 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1642 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1988).

Evidence supported board's determination that claimant was newspaper's employee, not independent contractor, where claimant had written contract to operate as newspaper carrier within specified territory, he was provided with confidential subscribers' list, he had contractual duty to act promptly on subscribers' complaints and to promote circulation, he was required to deliver papers by certain time and to give newspaper advance notice of any additional help he might use, and his relationship with newspaper could be terminated if he failed to meet his obligations. Pittman v Poughkeepsie Journal, 140 A.D.2d 779, 527 N.Y.S.2d 658, 1988 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4666 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1988).

Negligence action to recover damages for personal injuries was barred by plaintiff's recovery of workers' compensation benefits where evidence that defendant exercised control and supervision over plaintiff supported conclusion that plaintiff was special employee of defendant as matter of law. Vargas v Tufaro Bus Co., 245 A.D.2d 366, 666 N.Y.S.2d 437, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12771 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1997).

Physician was outside employee of professional corporation and was acting in course of her employment at time of her death, for purposes of her husband's entitlement to workers' compensation death benefits, where she was fatally injured in car accident on way to hospital at which she was scheduled to be on call during 24-hour shift, corporation required her to treat patients at its offices on certain days and between certain hours and to be on call during shift at hospital once every 7 days, and it was physician's practice to be physically present at hospital during her on-call duty, although she was not so required. Egloff v Ob-Gyn Assocs., 245 A.D.2d 965, 667 N.Y.S.2d 116, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13637 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1997).

Personal injury action was barred by plaintiff's recovery of workers' compensation benefits where defendants exercised direction and control over plaintiff, who thus was their special employee. Adams v Virco Mfg. Corp., 251 A.D.2d 608, 675 N.Y.S.2d 550, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7918 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1998).

A stenographer or a secretary is not an employee entitled to compensation for injuries received in her employment under the workmen's compensation law. Arnold v Wright, 79 N.Y.S.2d 720, 1948 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2460 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1948).

28. Factors to consider

Source of a claimant's remuneration for services rendered is not solely controlling in determining employer-employee relationship. O'Brien v Oneida City Hospital, 15 A.D.2d 705, 223 N.Y.S.2d 730, 1962 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12029 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1962).

The Workers'Compensation Board properly found an employer-employee relationship, where the claimant worked as a sales manager at the employer's premises in return for a fixed weekly salary, labored exclusively for the employer, was prohibited from working for a competitor, and the employer retain the privilege of discharging the claimant for cause. Dubnoff v Feathers Sportswear, Inc., 90 A.D.2d 607, 456 N.Y.S.2d 177, 1982 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 18672 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1982).

Two tests are used to determine whether employer-employee relationship exists for workers' compensation purposes: control test and relative nature of work test. Davison v Holder, 137 A.D.2d 899, 524 N.Y.S.2d 871, 1988 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1642 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1988).

Among factors to be considered by Workers' Compensation Board in determining whether employer-employee relationship exists are employer's right to control work, method of payment, which party furnishes necessary equipment, right to discharge, and nature of work; decision may be based on any one or combination of factors, since no one factor is deemed dispositive. Gregg v Randazzo, 216 A.D.2d 747, 628 N.Y.S.2d 434, 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6588 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1995).

29. Determination by other agency or finding by court

In determining who is an "employee" within the meaning of the Workmen's Compensation Law, only decisions under this or similar laws, can be recognized as controlling. In re Rheinwald, 168 A.D. 425, 153 N.Y.S. 598, 1915 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8298 (N.Y. App. Div. 1915), limited, Kackel v Serviss, 180 A.D. 54, 167 N.Y.S. 348, 1917 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8073 (N.Y. App. Div. 1917).

Claimant was properly found not to be "employee" entitled to workers' compensation benefits, despite Unemployment Insurance Appeal Board's finding that he was "employee" for purpose of collecting unemployment insurance benefits, where administrative determination under one statute is not binding on another agency when same question arises under another statute. Simonelli v Adams Bakery Corp., 286 A.D.2d 805, 730 N.Y.S.2d 358, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8631 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2001).

There is no single test that may be applied to determine whether or not a certain individual is an employee within the meaning of the workmen's compensation law; one may be an employee under this law and not an employee within the meaning of the law of negligence. Miller v Garford Laboratories, Inc., 16 N.Y.S.2d 279, 172 Misc. 567, 1939 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2527 (N.Y. Mun. Ct. 1939), aff'd, 262 A.D. 838, 29 N.Y.S.2d 507, 1941 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6155 (N.Y. App. Div. 1941).

Individual can be "employee" for purpose of group insurance, as in CLS Ins § 4235(d), while not be considered "employee" for another purpose, such as for workers' compensation benefits under definition in CLS Work Comp § 2(4). Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 05-11-17.

30. Necessity of contract of employment

The words "employer" and "employee" as used in the common law understanding of those words denote a contractual relation, not a mere casual voluntary rendition of a slight service or favor rewarded by a gratuity. Ferro v Leopold Sinsheimer Estate, Inc., 256 N.Y. 398, 176 N.E. 817, 256 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 398, 1931 N.Y. LEXIS 1073 (N.Y. 1931).

A contract of employment is essential, and due process of law requires that such fact be determined judicially under the rules applicable to contracts generally. Evidence of agency must be clear and explicit. Kackel v Serviss, 180 A.D. 54, 167 N.Y.S. 348, 1917 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8073 (N.Y. App. Div. 1917).

The provisions of the contract of employment are not conclusive so as to preclude an examination to determine whether the actual relationship between the parties is such as to bring them within the relationship of employer and employee. Gordon v New York Life Ins. Co., 275 A.D. 135, 89 N.Y.S.2d 83, 1949 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3726 (N.Y. App. Div. 1949), rev'd, 300 N.Y. 652, 90 N.E.2d 898, 300 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 652, 1950 N.Y. LEXIS 1446 (N.Y. 1950).

An expert bulldozer operator who, without any specific words of hiring or rate of pay went out to work for his brother, a contractor, on a job for which his brother received pay, is the employee even in the absence of a specific contract of employment. Cecere v Cecere, 276 A.D. 798, 93 N.Y.S.2d 161, 1949 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3356 (N.Y. App. Div. 1949).

31. Owners, stockholders and executives as employees

The principal executive officer of a corporation which employs workmen in carrying on a hazardous occupation is not entitled to the benefits of the Work. Bowne v S. W. Bowne Co., 221 N.Y. 28, 116 N.E. 364, 221 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 28, 1917 N.Y. LEXIS 1264 (N.Y. 1917).

The words of former § 3 defining "employer" and "employee" were not clear, but they did not justify the conclusion that the distinction between higher executive officers of corporation and its workmen was obliterated. Workman in broad sense is one who works in any department of physical or mental labor, but, in common speech, is one who is employed in manual labor, such as artificer, mechanic or artisan, while employee in broad sense is one who receives salary or wages or other compensation from another, but in common speech is usually applied to clerks, laborers, etc., and not to higher officers of corporation. Bowne v S. W. Bowne Co., 221 N.Y. 28, 116 N.E. 364, 221 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 28, 1917 N.Y. LEXIS 1264 (N.Y. 1917).

An executive officer of a fraternal organization was properly found to have been an employee when he was injured while washing the walls of the clubroom. He had not excluded himself from compensation coverage. Benz v Knights of St. John Club, 304 N.Y. 802, 109 N.E.2d 343, 304 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 802, 1952 N.Y. LEXIS 994 (N.Y. 1952).

Although workmen's compensation claimant, as a union member, had been elected by other union members to a position on union executive board, he was not an employee of the union at the time of disabling incident, where he received no compensation or salary for his functions as a board member other than a minimal stipend, ordered by the union's bylaws, as reimbursement for expenses in connection with the board's monthly meetings, where his other services were gratuitous, where there was no employment agreement between him and the union, and where the union did not control his activities or have a right to discharge him. Nallan v Motion Picture Studio Mechanics Union, 40 N.Y.2d 1042, 391 N.Y.S.2d 853, 360 N.E.2d 353, 1976 N.Y. LEXIS 3229 (N.Y. 1976).

The superintendent or manager of a plant injured while in the discharge of his duties, is entitled to an award although he was the treasurer of the company and was paid a salary; it is the character of the employment which determines the right to relief under the workmen's compensation law and not the fact that the claimant is a stockholder and an officer of the employer. Berman v Reliance Metal Spinning & Stamping Co., 187 A.D. 816, 175 N.Y.S. 838, 1919 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6525 (N.Y. App. Div. 1919).

Evidence that mother had inherited a taxi business from her husband and taxi was operated by her son, together with other facts indicative of ownership by the mother, although there was evidence that the operation of the cab was on partnership basis, was sufficient to support the decision of the Workmen's Compensation Board. Piccinetti v Hirsch, 23 A.D.2d 924, 259 N.Y.S.2d 363, 1965 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4290 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1965).

Amendments to CLS Work Comp §§ 2(4) and 54(6), which excluded workers' compensation coverage for employee who is sole shareholder and executive officer of corporate employer unless employer affirmatively elects such coverage, are not applicable to workers' compensation insurance policies issued prior to effective date of amendments; prospective application of amendments was appropriate since amendments restricted right of employee who is sole shareholder and officer by requiring affirmative election for coverage. Lusardi v Lusardi, 167 A.D.2d 3, 570 N.Y.S.2d 376, 1991 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7222 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1991).

Shareholder and participating limousine driver in corporation providing dispatched car service was properly found to be employee of corporation, and thus was eligible for workers' compensation benefits. Savino v UTOG 2-Way Radio, 215 A.D.2d 964, 627 N.Y.S.2d 162, 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5605 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1995).

Sole proprietor of company that employed 3 to 12 workers was "self-employed employer" and not "employee" under workers compensation insurance policy where he had never elected to be included as employee for purposes of policy. Continental Ins. Co. v Estate of Benton, 896 F. Supp. 272, 1995 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 12681 (N.D.N.Y. 1995).

32. Partners, joint ventures and other business associates as employees

A partner is not an employee and entitled to compensation under the Work. Comp. Law though he draws a weekly allowance in payment for general work of the partnership in addition to his share of the profits. Le Clear v Smith, 207 A.D. 71, 202 N.Y.S. 514, 1923 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5899 (N.Y. App. Div. 1923).

A partnership created for the purpose of evading the workmen's compensation law is ineffective to prevent an actual employee from being treated as such for purposes of compensation. Sachkowsky v Gombert, 256 A.D. 1018, 11 N.Y.S.2d 244, 1939 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5903 (N.Y. App. Div. 1939).; People ex rel. Fein v Beatty, 14 N.Y.S.2d 260, 171 Misc. 1004, 1939 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2204 (N.Y. Magis. Ct. 1939).

A claimant who worked for the city under a rule (extra statutory) that a recipient of home relief should after receiving such charitable aid be required to work out the relief at the rate of one day for each five dollars received, is an employee of the city and entitled to compensation. Maiceo v Yonkers, 263 A.D. 914, 32 N.Y.S.2d 349, 1942 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7347 (N.Y. App. Div.), aff'd, 288 N.Y. 689, 43 N.E.2d 84, 288 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 689, 1942 N.Y. LEXIS 1532 (N.Y. 1942).

No relation of employer and employee existed where claimant was an automobile body repairman who entered into an arrangement with the owner of a welding shop with a division of the net profits on a basis of 60–40 percent and where the claimant furnished his own tools, purchased his own materials, had no regular hours and worked when and as he pleased. Geraci v Laloggia, 283 A.D. 1127, 131 N.Y.S.2d 666 (N.Y. App. Div. 1954).

Agreement between a corporation and two individuals to share profits and absorb losses did not affect the employer-employee relationship, where from the record it was clear that the corporation in carrying out its agreement with a general contractor needed additional heavy equipment and agreed with the two individuals to supply it, together with the necessary manpower, under the control and direction of the corporation. It was held that the evidence was abundantly clear that the corporation intended and in fact did retain control, supervision, and direction of the claimant and was in reality his employer. Johnson v Watson Bros. Gravel Bed, Inc., 23 A.D.2d 927, 259 N.Y.S.2d 269, 1965 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4295 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1965).

Granting of defendant taxi company's motion for a summary judgment on the issue of whether its drivers were employees or independent contractors was error where the factors under the common-law "control" test and the "relative nature of the work" test were not analyzed, and the action would be remanded for a full exploration of all facets of the employers' relationship to their drivers. Commissioners of State Ins. Fund v Lindenhurst Green & White Corp., 101 A.D.2d 730, 475 N.Y.S.2d 42, 1984 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 18356 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1984).

Workers' Compensation Board's decision that claimant was partner of third party and not his employee was supported by third party's testimony that their business agreement was for their mutual benefit, claimant's testimony that he supplied trucks to be used in enterprise which were thereafter leased to third party, evidence that claimant and third party jointly rented trailers as needed for their business, claimant's testimony that when other workers were hired to drive, he was also paid, and claimant's testimony that he was not prohibited from working elsewhere. Gregg v Randazzo, 216 A.D.2d 747, 628 N.Y.S.2d 434, 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6588 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1995).

For purposes of recovering workmen's compensation, a person cannot claim to be both employer and employee and a member of an employing partnership cannot be considered an employee of the firm. Graphic Arts Mut. Ins. Co. v Monello, 41 Misc. 2d 943, 246 N.Y.S.2d 645, 1963 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1776 (N.Y. Civ. Ct. 1963), rev'd, 44 Misc. 2d 588, 254 N.Y.S.2d 351, 1964 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1326 (N.Y. App. Term 1964).

33. Entertainers, performers and the like

A hotel having contracted with a social director for summer entertainment is liable for compensation to a dancer hired by the latter. Fishbane v Congress Operating Corp., 255 A.D. 738, 6 N.Y.S.2d 882, 1938 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4968 (N.Y. App. Div. 1938), aff'd, 280 N.Y. 611, 20 N.E.2d 560, 280 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 611, 1939 N.Y. LEXIS 1441 (N.Y. 1939).

Entertainers employed by the applicant through a booking agency and receiving lump sum weekly payments through their leader or agent from appellant, where each group of entertainers is employed for a week or possibly two weeks, are not employees of the defendant. In re Lansdowne Service, 263 A.D. 916, 32 N.Y.S.2d 175, 1942 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7354 (N.Y. App. Div. 1942).

An aerialist in a circus is an employee rather than an independent contractor. Torrence v Ringling Bros., Barnum & Bailey, 272 A.D. 986, 73 N.Y.S.2d 19, 1947 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4511 (N.Y. App. Div. 1947).

There is sufficient evidence to sustain an award of compensation, where a ballet dancer was injured while performing in a floor show at her employer's night club and there was evidence of the employer's supervision and control over the claimant as to the time and place of her presentation and in co-operating with its musical accompaniment. Berman v Barone, 275 A.D. 867, 88 N.Y.S.2d 327, 1949 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4829 (N.Y. App. Div. 1949).

A circus clown under some degree of supervision and control is an employee rather than an independent contractor, even though he was described as an independent contractor in the contract under which he was employed. Challis v National Producing Co., 275 A.D. 877, 88 N.Y.S.2d 731, 1949 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4858 (N.Y. App. Div. 1949).

Claimant, a professional model, was employed through employment agency. Agency exercised no control over her place or manner of work. However, her employer, who hired her to pose for pictures, had full direction and control of her services. Finding that claimant was employee sustained. Reyes v Cowles Magazine, Inc., 5 A.D.2d 708, 168 N.Y.S.2d 660, 1957 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3500 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1957), app. denied, 4 N.Y.2d 675, 1958 N.Y. LEXIS 1390 (N.Y. 1958).

Substantial evidence supported determination of Workers' Compensation Board that violinist was employee of opera company where violinist was on payroll of company, usual withholding taxes were deducted from her earnings, company had obligated itself to provide workers' compensation insurance for orchestra members, and company exercised significant control over violinist's hours and manner in which she was to perform. Mintiks v Metropolitan Opera Asso., 153 A.D.2d 133, 550 N.Y.S.2d 143, 1990 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 51 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), app. dismissed, 75 N.Y.2d 1005, 557 N.Y.S.2d 311, 556 N.E.2d 1118, 1990 N.Y. LEXIS 1008 (N.Y. 1990).

Supreme court properly denied an opera house's motion to dismiss an opera singer's action to recover damages for injuries she sustained when she fell from an elevated platform while performing at the opera house because the singer was not the opera house's "employee"; the singer was stipulated to be an employee of another employer because her services were provided to the opera house pursuant to a per-performance contractor's agreement entered into between her corporation and the opera house. White v Metropolitan Opera Assn., Inc., 148 A.D.3d 13, 44 N.Y.S.3d 412, 2017 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 90 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2017), dismissed, in part, 2019 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2404 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. May 10, 2019).

Legislative history indicates that the statutory definition of employees was intended to protect the vast majority of performers, who are not "stars," and that the statutory exception was designed to exclude those performers with the clout to negotiate the terms of their own engagements. White v Metropolitan Opera Assn., Inc., 148 A.D.3d 13, 44 N.Y.S.3d 412, 2017 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 90 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2017), dismissed, in part, 2019 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2404 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. May 10, 2019).

Plaintiff opera singer was an "employee" for purposes of the New York State Workers' Compensation Law; the singer was providing services in the performing arts at an opera house, he was not employed by any other employer covered by the statute, and the legislative history demonstrated that the New York State legislature intended to cover professional musicians and performing artists without regard to whether they were employees or independent contractors. Fouchecourt v Metro. Opera Ass'n, 537 F. Supp. 2d 629, 2008 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 25000 (S.D.N.Y. 2008).

34. Applicant for employment

An employee who had worked at the coal chutes of a railroad in a foreign state and who gave up his employment and was paid in full upon his statement that he desired to work for the railroad in this state, and who, having traveled upon a pass into this state, delayed for two days before applying for work here and was then told to report out the following morning to find out whether there was work for him, is not in the employment of the railroad although he is allowed to have supper and breakfast at the railroad boarding car so that when he is subsequently injured when returning to the boarding car for an unauthorized noonday meal, his injuries are not compensable. Brassard v Delaware & H. Co., 186 A.D. 647, 175 N.Y.S. 359, 1919 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6460 (N.Y. App. Div. 1919).

An applicant for work, claiming to be a machine operator, who was injured while adjusting a machine to do the work assigned to test his qualifications, was not an employee at the time of injury. Lederson v Cassidy & Dorfman, 195 A.D. 613, 187 N.Y.S. 50, 1921 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4804 (N.Y. App. Div. 1921).

Claimant was entitled to an award against the city where he answered the radio appeal of the city for men to shovel snow, was selected from the group of applicants and, in order to obtain a shovel, was taken into a firehouse where he fell through a hole in the floor. Ceo v Rochester, 268 A.D. 601, 52 N.Y.S.2d 98, 1944 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3223 (N.Y. App. Div. 1944).

There is sufficient evidence from which the board might draw the inference of employment where decedent had been given an opportunity to demonstrate whether he could operate a machine known as a digger. Domino v Madison County Constr. Co., 268 A.D. 840, 50 N.Y.S.2d 471, 1944 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3708 (N.Y. App. Div. 1944).

Claimant was properly awarded compensation where, having applied for a job, he was injured while polishing a lamp in a trial test. Smith v Venezian Lamp Co., 5 A.D.2d 12, 168 N.Y.S.2d 764, 1957 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3479 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1957).

An individual who is required to undergo a preemployment physical examination should not be considered an employee within the meaning of the Workers' Compensation Law with respect to injuries arising out of the preemployment physical examination. Rastaetter v Charles S. Wilson Memorial Hospital, 80 A.D.2d 608, 436 N.Y.S.2d 47, 1981 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10296 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1981).

35. Municipal and other government employees

A private of the state militia engaged in active service, is not an employee of the state within the workmen's compensation law. Goldstein v State, 281 N.Y. 396, 24 N.E.2d 97, 281 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 396, 1939 N.Y. LEXIS 1024 (N.Y. 1939).

A justice of the peace who is also a member of the town board, injured while working on a highway for the town, is not entitled to workmen's compensation inasmuch as his employment on the highway was illegal. Clarke v Russia, 283 N.Y. 272, 28 N.E.2d 833, 283 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 272, 1940 N.Y. LEXIS 872 (N.Y. 1940).

The contention that the Workmen's Compensation Law covers only those municipal employees actually engaged in hazardous employments and not those whose work is found to be incidental to such an employment, cannot be upheld, because by subd. 4 of this section, all of the employees in the service of an employer whose principal business is that of conducting a hazardous employment are brought within the protection of the statute and by § 3, subd. 1. gr. 17, such protection was extended to employees of a municipal corporation or other subdivision of the state. Leahy v New York, 285 N.Y. 443, 35 N.E.2d 34, 285 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 443, 1941 N.Y. LEXIS 1483 (N.Y. 1941).

Contra that a town superintendent of highways is not an employee of the town and not within the coverage of the Workmen's Compensation Law, see Youngman v Oneonta, 204 A.D. 96, 198 N.Y.S. 217, 1923 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9424 (N.Y. App. Div.), aff'd, 236 N.Y. 521, 142 N.E. 267, 236 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 521, 1923 N.Y. LEXIS 939 (N.Y. 1923).

An award to an elected superintendent of highways against a selfinsuring town, a member of a mutual insurance plan, is proper where the latter consented to bring the superintendent within the law. Clemens v Osceola, 257 A.D. 884, 12 N.Y.S.2d 97, 1939 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8283 (N.Y. App. Div. 1939).

An elective town superintendent of highways is an executive officer of a municipal corporation and is covered by the workmen's compensation law. Van Buren v Richmondville, 257 A.D. 1089, 14 N.Y.S.2d 697, 1939 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9209 (N.Y. App. Div. 1939).

A municipal employee is not made eligible for workmen's compensation under this section as the employee of one whose principal business is the carrying on of a hazardous employment merely because an incidental function of the bureau in which she is employed is storage and warehousing described as a hazardous occupation in group 13 of sub 1 of § 3 of the Workmen's Compensation Law. Clyde v New York, 275 A.D. 161, 89 N.Y.S.2d 105, 1949 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3733 (N.Y. App. Div. 1949).

Workers' Compensation Board properly determined that New York City Department of Housing Preservation and Development (HPD) was employer of claimant who was injured in fall while working as superintendent of apartment house, and was thus responsible for payment of his workers' compensation award, where claimant was hired by administrator appointed by court under CLS RPAPL Art 7-A after special proceeding commenced by HPD. Valverde v New York City Dep't of Housing Preservation & Dev., 154 A.D.2d 756, 546 N.Y.S.2d 203, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12409 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1989), app. dismissed, 77 N.Y.2d 833, 566 N.Y.S.2d 585, 567 N.E.2d 979, 1991 N.Y. LEXIS 87 (N.Y. 1991).

Public assistance recipient, assigned to work for New York City Sanitation Department as condition of continued receipt of such assistance under CLS Soc Serv § 164 and 18 NYCRR 385.12, was employee of city for purposes of Workers' Compensation Law and was thus barred from suing city for injuries sustained in fall from sanitation truck. Allen v New York, 147 Misc. 2d 62, 554 N.Y.S.2d 789, 1990 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 191 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1990).

36. —Firefighters

A uniformed city fireman of New York city is not an "employee" of the city within former § 3, subds. 4 and 5. Krug v New York, 196 A.D. 226, 186 N.Y.S. 727, 1921 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5506 (N.Y. App. Div. 1921), disapproved, Buckley v New York, 56 N.Y.2d 300, 452 N.Y.S.2d 331, 437 N.E.2d 1088, 1982 N.Y. LEXIS 3423 (N.Y. 1982).

Substantial evidence supported Workmen's Compensation Board's finding of employer-employee relationship between fair society and claimant, who was volunteer fireman, and who, inter alia, had been selected as chairman of fair's firemen's day activities and designated as fair society's superintendent for drum corps and music and for fire department activities for which he was paid $60, at time of his heart attack. McMorris v Montgomery County Agricultural Soc., 50 A.D.2d 644, 374 N.Y.S.2d 440, 1975 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12466 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1975).

Workers' Compensation Board properly determined that claimant, as 16-year-old member of junior corps of town fire department, became active member of department and was entitled to benefits provided by Volunteer Firefighters' Benefit Law following injury incurred while operating his vehicle in response to fire alarm, since members of junior corps were required to respond to alarms once school day was completed, they were under direction and control of chief of department, and their duties at scene were consistent with those of active firefighter save for certain limitations such as not entering building that is scene of fire; furthermore, given these facts, junior corps is not youth program and thus its members are not excluded from benefits by operation of CLS Gen Mun § 204-b. Elander v Pleasantville Fire Dist., 124 A.D.2d 388, 507 N.Y.S.2d 334, 1986 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 61399 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1986), app. denied, 69 N.Y.2d 608, 516 N.Y.S.2d 1023, 509 N.E.2d 358, 1987 N.Y. LEXIS 16376 (N.Y. 1987).

A citizen summoned by a state fire warden to fight a forest fire and who sustained injuries while riding to the fire in the warden's automobile is an employee since in this situation the Conservation Law creates by operation of law a contract of employment. Jones v State, 50 N.Y.S.2d 877, 183 Misc. 239, 1944 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2430 (N.Y. Ct. Cl. 1944), aff'd, 269 A.D. 920, 57 N.Y.S.2d 582, 1945 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4473 (N.Y. App. Div. 1945).

37. Minors

A boy thirteen or fourteen years old who runs occasional errands for the superintendent of a loft building for which he is given small gratuities out of the superintendent's own money is not an employee of the superintendent's employer. Ferro v Leopold Sinsheimer Estate, Inc., 256 N.Y. 398, 176 N.E. 817, 256 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 398, 1931 N.Y. LEXIS 1073 (N.Y. 1931).

A school boy engaged by the N. Y. A., injured while working on the school building is not an employee of the Board of Education, but rather is an employee of the N. Y. A. Sweet v Board of Education, 290 N.Y. 73, 48 N.E.2d 266, 290 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 73, 1943 N.Y. LEXIS 1140 (N.Y. 1943).

A six year old child whom the mother brought with her, when picking peas for the employer and who occasionally and for brief periods picked peas and put them in his mother's basket is not an employee. Craciola v Lewis, 233 A.D. 437, 253 N.Y.S. 752, 1931 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11319 (N.Y. App. Div. 1931).

A ten year old child who helped his mother pick beans for a cannery and who incurred an injury while being transported in a truck to another field is an employee for purposes of compensation. Moreno v Halstead Canning Co., 258 A.D. 832, 15 N.Y.S.2d 765, 1939 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7150 (N.Y. App. Div. 1939), reh'g denied, 258 A.D. 1002, 17 N.Y.S.2d 859, 1940 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8609 (N.Y. App. Div. 1940).

Finding that claimant, who was injured while helping launch large raft at YMCA summer camp, was YMCA employee and that her injury was accident within meaning of Workers' Compensation Law, was supported by evidence that she received reduction in camp tuition and free room and board in exchange for participating in counselor aide training program, her duties included helping counselors and supervising campers with whom she shared cabin, she was required to obtain working papers, YMCA provided her with all necessary equipment, and YMCA retained right to ask her to leave camp if her conduct became undesirable. Long v Schenectady County YMCA, 227 A.D.2d 723, 642 N.Y.S.2d 96, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5035 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1996).

38. Volunteer workers

Claimant, who voluntarily interjected himself into dangerous situation and began assisting fire fighters without any request on their part that he do so and only thereafter was given instructions by fire officials at scene and subsequently fell from roof and was injured, was purely a volunteer and not an employee entitled to workmen's compensation benefits, particularly where claimant had frequently in past come to aid of fire fighters without expectation or receipt of payment and fire chief on three occasions had ordered all nonmembers of department to leave fire limits and not to assist. Glamm v Amsterdam, Fire Dep't, 54 A.D.2d 996, 388 N.Y.S.2d 55, 1976 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 14956 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1976), aff'd, 42 N.Y.2d 1026, 398 N.Y.S.2d 1011, 369 N.E.2d 10, 1977 N.Y. LEXIS 2364 (N.Y. 1977).

Testimony of 15-year-old horse groom was sufficient to establish employer-employee relationship and to support award of workers' compensation following injury caused by stable owner's horse, despite owner's denial that he ever paid groom for services and his contention that groom was volunteer learning trade, where groom testified that he was initially given room and board for his work, he later received salary during racing season, he either lived with owner or was transported to stable by owner, he worked 4 to 6 hours per day, and he used owner's equipment under his direction. Le Myre v La Belle, 127 A.D.2d 955, 512 N.Y.S.2d 560, 1987 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 53419 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1987).

Fact that coverage was never contested in New York Workers' Compensation Board hearings did not resolve the question of whether a claimant was a volunteer, and thus eligible to receive an average weekly wage based on his engineering practice, or an employee of the New York State Olympic Regional Development Authority, and therefore only entitled to the actual value of the remuneration he received as a member of the ski patrol, N.Y. Workers' Comp. Law §§ 2(9), 14(6) (or, if not paid, the N.Y. Workers' Comp. Law § 15(6) statutory minimum. Fina v N.Y. State Olympic Reg'l Dev. Auth., 7 A.D.3d 939, 777 N.Y.S.2d 530, 2004 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7079 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2004).

39. Assistants engaged by employee or agent or employer

An independent contractor on a construction job, requested by a fellow contractor to assist him with the use of a derrick, is not the employee of his fellow contractor so as to permit him to claim workmen's compensation. Mandatto v Hudson Shoring Co., 229 N.Y. 624, 129 N.E. 933, 229 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 624, 1920 N.Y. LEXIS 828 (N.Y. 1920).

A claimant is the employee of the owner of an apartment house where the superintendent, who was requested by a tenant to take some trunks down to the cellar called upon the claimant to help him perform this work. Mosley v Estate of Moritz H. Rosenstein, Inc., 264 N.Y. 497, 191 N.E. 533, 264 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 497, 1934 N.Y. LEXIS 1541 (N.Y. 1934).

A corporation employer is liable to a niece helping her janitor uncle by running the elevator of the plant. Russell v 231 Lexington Ave. Corp., 266 N.Y. 391, 195 N.E. 23, 266 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 391, 1935 N.Y. LEXIS 1387 (N.Y. 1935).

A city having contracted with the owner of a team of horses to collect ashes at a fixed daily sum is liable for compensation to the latter's employee injured while substituting for him. Meyers v Rochester, 253 A.D. 852, 1 N.Y.S.2d 488, 1938 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8898 (N.Y. App. Div. 1938).

A claimant employed by a branch office of a manufacturing concern to canvass a certain district, the branch office manager being an employee of the concern and the claimant being paid directly from the head office, is an employee of the concern. In re Doyle, 263 A.D. 1036, 33 N.Y.S.2d 468, 1942 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7972 (N.Y. App. Div. 1942).

Where an employer engaged a carpenter and authorized him to obtain a helper, the latter is the employee of the employer rather than the carpenter where the latter was given detailed instructions from day to day as to the work to be done and on different occasions was assigned to various other jobs in addition to that for which he was originally engaged. Okun v Southern Bedding Accessories, Inc., 266 A.D. 929, 43 N.Y.S.2d 875, 1943 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5267 (N.Y. App. Div. 1943).

Claimant was an employee of defendant where defendant's lawyer-agent authorized another person to take charge of and operate a cab for the defendant and claimant was hired by that other person to drive the cab. Also there was proof that defendant filed federal forms showing wages and deductions made for claimant. Moskowitz v Granata, 9 A.D.2d 310, 193 N.Y.S.2d 744, 1959 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5597 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1959), reh'g denied, 10 A.D.2d 776, 200 N.Y.S.2d 366, 1960 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11016 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1960), app. denied, 8 N.Y.2d 705, 1960 N.Y. LEXIS 1759 (N.Y. 1960).

Where the compensation claimant, at the time of injury, was apparently exchanging services with a building janitor employed by respondents under a private agreement between the two janitors, and there was sufficient in the record to sustain a finding that he was not an employee of respondents, on the basis of which denial of an award could be affirmed, denial of compensation was nevertheless reversed because of a statement by the board found in the record, considered to be without foundation, as to the existence of such an arrangement between the two building superintendents. Lawn v Sheran, 11 A.D.2d 562, 199 N.Y.S.2d 739, 1960 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10195 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1960).

There was sufficient evidence to sustain a board finding that claimant was not an employee of a certain sales company but merely in the employ of its manager as a domestic worker hired as substitute for his regular housekeeper, notwithstanding claimant's testimony that she sometimes answered office calls and attended to certain other details of company business. Moore v Wassaic Sales, 19 A.D.2d 565, 239 N.Y.S.2d 745, 1963 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3815 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1963).

Where the superintendent of premises for his own convenience, employs his son as a substitute for him in the performance of his duties, the son is not an emergency employee of his father's employer, and is not relegated to relief under the workmen's compensation law, where he is injured while performing such duties. Paul v Mosberg Realty Corp., 37 N.Y.S.2d 766, 1942 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2096 (N.Y. City Ct. 1942).

Where an employer charges his employee with the performance of a certain duty and the force available therefor is not sufficient, or an emergency occurs which requires assistants the employee is impliedly authorized to call on others to assist him and they thereby become employees of the original employer. Paul v Mosberg Realty Corp., 37 N.Y.S.2d 766, 1942 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2096 (N.Y. City Ct. 1942).

40. Persons performing odd jobs or incidental services

An inmate of a charitable institution under no duty to work, but permitted to do odd jobs for small gratuities is not an employee within the meaning of the workmen's compensation law. Seymour v Odd Fellows' Home, 267 N.Y. 354, 196 N.E. 287, 267 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 354, 1935 N.Y. LEXIS 1224 (N.Y. 1935).

An inmate of the industrial home of the salvation army, employed at a compensation of three dollars per week, besides his board and lodging, and assigned to light work, which included sweeping, making beds and general porter work, and serving meals, is covered by subd. Hall v Salvation Army, 236 A.D. 199, 258 N.Y.S. 269, 1932 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5931 (N.Y. App. Div. 1932), aff'd, 261 N.Y. 110, 184 N.E. 691, 261 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 110, 1933 N.Y. LEXIS 1262 (N.Y. 1933).

Evidence that a handyman brought up bottles, tapped beer, helped in the kitchen, waited on tables and made himself generally useful, for which he received board, lodging, clothing and occasional money, justified a finding that an employer-employee relation existed. Goetz v Bleimeister Grill, 278 A.D. 882, 104 N.Y.S.2d 449, 1951 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5048 (N.Y. App. Div. 1951).

Purposes of N.Y. Workers' Comp. Law §§ 2(4), (5), and 50(8) and N.Y. Rac. Pari-Mut. Wag. & Breed. Law § 213-a, were served by requiring coverage by the New York Jockey Injury Compensation Fund of an exercise person, who was permitted full access to racing facilities based on his expired license, was entitled to be licensed, and was required to be licensed; the exercise person had attempted to apply for a license, but the licensing processes had been delayed due to a software problem. Adames v N.Y. Jockey Injury Comp. Fund, Inc., 15 A.D.3d 696, 788 N.Y.S.2d 726, 2005 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 909 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2005).

41. Watchmen, guards and the like

One merely engaged as a watchman and in no way exposed to hazards of his employer's business was not an "employee" within the contemplation of former § 3, subd. 4. Kehoe v Consolidated Tel. & Electrical Subway Co., 176 A.D. 84, 162 N.Y.S. 481, 1916 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9009 (N.Y. App. Div. 1916).

A night watchman, whose duties were to guard the premises against fire or depredations, to keep furnaces supplied with coal and to pour glue into vats, is an "employee" within the meaning of former § 3, sub 4, and when assaulted and injured while endeavoring to protect the plant, is entitled to an award. Hellman v Manning Sand Paper Co., 176 A.D. 127, 162 N.Y.S. 335, 1916 N.Y.

App. Div. LEXIS 8978 (N.Y. App. Div. 1916), aff'd, 221 N.Y. 492, 116 N.E. 1051, 221 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 492, 1917 N.Y. LEXIS 1339 (N.Y. 1917).

42. Persons performing part time or short term services

School bus operators employed by an operator of a garage and gasoline station who employed drivers on part-time basis to drive busses transporting school children pursuant to an agreement with a public school district were employees subject to unemployment insurance even though they worked only part-time and most of them had other full time jobs or were self-employed. In re Stotz, 281 A.D. 726, 117 N.Y.S.2d 767, 1952 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3358 (N.Y. App. Div. 1952).

Existence of an employer-employee relationship could be found from the hiring of claimant to "do a couple of days work" as paper hanger at $1.25 per roll of paper, the employer supplying the paste and paper and a ladder and claimant supplying his own brush and scissors. Alpern v Sunny Croft Colony, Inc., 12 A.D.2d 828, 209 N.Y.S.2d 341, 1961 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13373 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1961).

The evidence was sufficient to sustain a finding of employer-employee relationship where it appeared that claimant, a carpenter, had at previous times worked for the employer, a building contractor, off and on over a three-year period for $18 per day and, at the time of the accident, was employed for two or three days repairing some arches and floors when the employer requested him to install a cabinet, to be obtained from a certain factory, claimant being authorized to hire a helper in handling the cabinet. Kaplan v Yudin, 12 A.D.2d 828, 209 N.Y.S.2d 342, 1961 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13372 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), app. denied, 9 N.Y.2d 611, 1961 N.Y. LEXIS 1683 (N.Y. 1961).

Defendant, general contractor, was properly granted summary judgment in action under CLS Labor § 240(1) on ground that plaintiff was defendant's special employee and that action was barred by exclusive remedy provisions of CLS Workers' Compensation Law where plaintiff was general employee of temporary agency that had placed him with defendant, he reported to defendant's superintendent each day at construction site, superintendent directed, supervised, and controlled plaintiff's work, plaintiff's work was for benefit of defendant, temporary agency had no representative or employee present at work site and had no right to direct, supervise, or control plaintiff's work, and defendant had power to fire plaintiff and, except for plaintiff's personal tools, provided him with equipment he used. Adams v North-Star Constr. Co., 249 A.D.2d 1001, 672 N.Y.S.2d 166, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5179 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1998).

Employer-employee relationship existed, for workers' compensation purposes, between summer camp and its 15-year-old junior lifeguard where they entered into written contract for him to be paid $125 for summer in addition to food, lodging, transportation, and laundry services, he was listed in camp directory as member of waterfront staff and shared room with another staff member, he was supervised by head lifeguard (his uncle) and had responsibility for cleaning up waterfront and stacking and putting away lifejackets and equipment, and occasionally he was supervised while standing in shallow water with pole to assist persons who needed help. Kobre v Camp Mogen Avraham, 255 A.D.2d 636, 679 N.Y.S.2d 753, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11684 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1998).

Claimant injured while cutting firewood was not full-time employee entitled to workers' compensation benefits where alleged employer overcame presumption of compensability by testifying that claimant worked for him only occasionally as laborer, not cutter, and that on day of accident claimant asked him for free cords of wood and loan of chainsaw so that he could cut wood and sell it for his own profit, and claimant produced no pay stubs or tax forms to corroborate his claim of full-time employment. Walk v Glomann, 263 A.D.2d 757, 694 N.Y.S.2d 196, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8011 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1999).

43. Students, interns and the like

A hospital interne is an employee of the hospital under whose orders he acts, although he receives only lodging, board and uniforms for his services, and is entitled to compensation where he is injured in the performance of an autopsy in the ordinary course of administrative routine. Bernstein v Beth Israel Hospital, 236 N.Y. 268, 140 N.E. 694, 236 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 268, 1923 N.Y. LEXIS 881 (N.Y. 1923).

Employer-employee relationship existed when claimant, student at academy operated by employer, was injured while working on employer's farm where claimant, while working on farm, took orders from his supervisor who, in turn, had right to fire him, employer furnished necessary equipment, claimant kept track of his hours by punching time clock, he earned hourly wage that was paid as credit against his tuition, and he was eligible to receive cash bonus if he worked in excess of specified number of hours. La Celle v New York Conf. of Seventh-Day Adventists, 235 A.D.2d 694, 652 N.Y.S.2d 352, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 90 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), app. dismissed, 89 N.Y.2d 1085, 659 N.Y.S.2d 859, 681 N.E.2d 1306, 1997 N.Y. LEXIS 795 (N.Y. 1997), app. denied, 96 N.Y.2d 713, 729 N.Y.S.2d 440, 754 N.E.2d 200, 2001 N.Y. LEXIS 1402 (N.Y. 2001).

Claimant who continued to work part time as sales clerk while attending college was sufficiently connected to labor market to justify award of workers' compensation benefits. Prior v Wegmans Food Mkts., 246 A.D.2d 951, 667 N.Y.S.2d 852, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 736 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1998).

Part-time sales clerk's decision to remain in college rather than accept offer of full-time employment was reasonable and not tantamount to voluntary withdrawal from labor market. Prior v Wegmans Food Mkts., 246 A.D.2d 951, 667 N.Y.S.2d 852, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 736 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1998).

Workers' Compensation Board properly found that employer-employee relationship existed between claimant, doctoral candidate, and university, where claimant received full tuition waiver, biweekly stipend from which federal and state income taxes were withheld, and free health insurance coverage in exchange for her work as research assistant, and she testified that she performed her duties using equipment provided by university for at least 8 hours per day, including many weekends, under auspices of department faculty member who controlled type of experiments that claimant performed and could recommend that claimant be transferred from her position for unsatisfactory performance. Semus v University of Rochester, 272 A.D.2d 836, 710 N.Y.S.2d 128, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5948 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2000).

When a student was injured while acting as a student teacher at one of a school district's schools, and sued the district for personal injuries, the law was not so clear, under N.Y. Workers' Comp. Law §§ 2(4), 3(1) (Group 20-a) (Group 22), as to allow the trial court to determine, as a matter of law, that the student's suit was barred by workers' compensation immunity, under N.Y. Workers' Comp. Law §§ 11, 29(6), and such a decision should have awaited a determination by the Workers' Compensation Board. Santigate v Linsalata, 304 A.D.2d 639, 759 N.Y.S.2d 100, 2003 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3976 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2003).

Students of beauty culture during the period in which they practice upon the public, their customers paying a fee lower than that customarily charged by beauticians, are employees of the school within the meaning of this section. Miller v Garford Laboratories, Inc., 16 N.Y.S.2d 279, 172 Misc. 567, 1939 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2527 (N.Y. Mun. Ct. 1939), aff'd, 262 A.D. 838, 29 N.Y.S.2d 507, 1941 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6155 (N.Y. App. Div. 1941).

44. Persons subject to dual direction or control

A football referee was not an employee of the schools participating in the football game where he had been assigned as a referee by an association of football officials which worked with the association of schools. The claimant brought his own equipment and was paid an agreed fee out of gate receipts. The schools exercise no control over the manner in which the claimant performed his work and had no right to discharge him. O'Neil v Blasdell High School, 1 A.D.2d 854, 148 N.Y.S.2d 792, 1956 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6289 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1956).

There was substantial evidence to sustain a finding that the claimant, injured when she fell into the water from a diving board in a private lake on the hotel grounds was employed in connection with the operation of the hotel where it was found that she was employed as a governess to care for the children of the guests of the hotel as well as the children of the hotel owner. Moon v Greenberg, 4 A.D.2d 903, 166 N.Y.S.2d 875, 1957 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4293 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1957).

Where a truck driver was killed while driving a truck leased by a truck line which held an Interstate Commerce Commission permit, but which was individually owned by another who was the general employer of the driver, there was substantial evidence to support a finding that the driver was a special employee of the truck line as well as an employee of the lessor at the time of the fatal accident and to sustain charging an award of death benefits against both employers and their respective carriers. Donoghue v De Carolis, 15 A.D.2d 602, 222 N.Y.S.2d 398, 1961 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6978 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1961).

There was sufficient evidence to sustain a finding that claimant was an employee of appellant hospital where she sought and obtained registration with the hospital as an approved "patient-sitter," subject to call by the hospital when such work was available, paid on a per-hour basis either by the patient or the hospital while attending a patient, and the hospital exercised control over her activities and apparently reserved the right to terminate her employment by cancellation of registration. O'Brien v Oneida City Hospital, 15 A.D.2d 705, 223 N.Y.S.2d 730, 1962 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12029 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1962).

The Board could reasonably find that an injured stagehand was an employee of the theatre corporation, which was solely responsible for compensation payments, and not a joint or likewise a special employee of a producer who had leased the theatre for a term to begin a week later, and whose special equipment was being installed and placed by arrangement with the theatre owner, the injured workman having been hired by the theatre corporation to assist in this process. Donaldson v Select Theatre Corp., 16 A.D.2d 843, 227 N.Y.S.2d 501, 1962 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9969 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1962).

With respect to whether a heart attack suffered by a taxi drive arose out of and in course of his employment, where it occurred while he was helping a woman passenger who had flagged him down move from one apartment to another, involving a taxi fare charge of 65 cents but various trips up and down flights of stairs helping her to move articles of furniture and equipment for which she paid him an additional four dollars gratuity, a board finding that he was not in employ of the taxi company while engaged in this moving because he had left his vehicle unattended in violation of police regulations could not be sustained on the basis of evidence submitted. Brandmark v Frenat Service Corp., 17 A.D.2d 878, 233 N.Y.S.2d 289, 1962 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7311 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1962).

A workman was found to be an employee of a dairy company at the time of his death where, after being temporarily relieved from his regular delivery route, he was directed by his employer to substitute for another deliveryman whose business was licensed by the employer, but who owned his own truck and serviced his own customers. Campos v Imperial Farms, 39 A.D.2d 997, 333 N.Y.S.2d 579, 1972 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4148 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1972).

Where cab company controlled the activities and the cab company's business activity was directly benefitted by the work of the cab driver, driver was employee of the cab company even though he was driving a cab of an independent cab operator who leased space and hired services from the cab company. King v Kelley, 41 A.D.2d 798, 341 N.Y.S.2d 670, 1973 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4874 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1973).

Workers' Compensation Board's finding of dual and similar employment between injured worker's regular full-time job as legal secretary and office manager and part-time job as chairperson of election inspectors at polling place at which she was injured was sufficiently supported by board's conclusion that her duties in both positions were clerical in nature, involving tallying, filing and record keeping, despite full-time employer's contention that worker's duties as legal secretary involved great deal more skill and responsibility than her purely clerical duties as election inspector. Ribar v County of Suffolk, 125 A.D.2d 801, 510 N.Y.S.2d 25, 1986 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 63012 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1986).

Claimant was properly determined to be "special employee" of cake delivery service by Workers' Compensation Board where delivery service, not franchise owner of service's retail store which supplied cakes and delivery people on call to service, was responsible for payment of costs of cake delivered, and delivery was essential element of service's business. Vinciguerra v Carvel Corp., 127 A.D.2d 915, 512 N.Y.S.2d 274, 1987 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 43412 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1987).

45. Effect of time of injury on status as employee

A traveling salesman is injured in the course of his employment where he was injured while returning from Bridgeport to his home in Brooklyn and there is evidence that he went to Bridgeport intending to meet a customer. Fleur v Pilgrim Knitwear, Inc., 262 A.D. 787, 27 N.Y.S.2d 347, 1941 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5855 (N.Y. App. Div. 1941).

A casual porter is still an employee at the time of an accident even though it occurred after his regular hours of employment had terminated, where he often performed some services after hours and received remuneration therefor by way of refreshments. Boehm v D. A. Sokol Hall Holding Corp., 274 A.D. 954, 83 N.Y.S.2d 729, 1948 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4235 (N.Y. App. Div. 1948).

Where an employee is notified that his services are to be terminated at midnight the fact that an injury occurred some time after that hour when he was returning to his employment and on the employer's premises does not prevent an award of compensation where it appears that it was a common and well known practice for employees on the night shift to leave the premises during working hours on personal errands. Mesmer v Associated Colleges of Upper New York State, 277 A.D. 1082, 100 N.Y.S.2d 803, 1950 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4545 (N.Y. App. Div. 1950).

A death award was affirmed where decedent, a night watchman, was seen sitting alone in the basement of an unfinished building on employer's premises one and one-half hours after the end of his tour of duty and was found a few minutes later dead of a fractured skull. Proof that decedent was intoxicated did not foreclose possibility of another proximate cause of death. Malloy v Cauldwell Wingate Co., 284 A.D. 798, 135 N.Y.S.2d 445, 1954 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3502 (N.Y. App. Div. 1954), aff'd, 308 N.Y. 1031, 127 N.E.2d 867, 308 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 1031, 1955 N.Y. LEXIS 1257 (N.Y. 1955).

The evidence would sustain a finding that decedent's fatal accident arose out of and in course of his employment as a salesman and collector, rather than by reason of his purely personal action in driving his car home from work as a policeman employed by New York City, where it appeared that his police duties consisted in serving as guard at a dam outside the city limits on a 4:00 P.M. to midnight shift, but he was likewise employed by respondent on a commission basis to sell household articles and jewelry in his spare time at which work he was successful enough to make approximately $7,900 a year using his own car and operating from his own home, and the fatal accident occurred at 3:30 A.M. while he was driving toward home after making a business call. Carney v Senak New York Corp., 17 A.D.2d 170, 233 N.Y.S.2d 316, 1962 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7280 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1962).

A board decision that claimant was not an employee of respondent corporation at time he was injured while doing some electric work in the private residence of the corporation's president could not be based on its finding that he was performing a personal task at the time of injury, as it did not necessarily follow that employment status terminated when the corporation's president directed claimant to leave his work at the plant and take care of wiring the president's home, and the case must be remitted to the board for adequate findings. Carroll v Trans-Dyne Corp., 22 A.D.2d 739, 253 N.Y.S.2d 449, 1964 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2934 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1964).

Workers' compensation claimant was still employee of hotel, at which she was both floor supervisor and union delegate, when she was injured on January 26 where her employee card reflected termination date of January 31, her time cards and payroll records were maintained through January 28, she received paycheck dated February 1, and collective bargaining agreement provided that terminated union delegate would remain in employment status until date of hearing held to determine whether termination would be upheld. Wint v Hotel Waldorf Astoria, 251 A.D.2d 696, 674 N.Y.S.2d 146, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6458 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1998).

Pursuant to N.Y. Workers' Comp. Law §§ 2(3), (4), (5) and 50(8) and N.Y. Rac. Pari-Mut. Wag. & Breed. Law § 213-a, an exercise rider who injured his pelvis while working out a horse was a covered employee of the New York Jockey Injury Compensation Fund even though his license as an exercise rider had expired prior to the accident. Matter of McKenzie v New York Jockey Injury Compensation Fund, 27 A.D.3d 1003, 811 N.Y.S.2d 226, 2006 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3553 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2006).

46. Independent contractors, generally

An independent contractor may abandon his legal position temporarily and become an employee, and where he is injured in the course of such latter employment, he may receive compensation under this section. Powley v Vivian & Co., 169 A.D. 170, 154 N.Y.S. 426, 1915 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9000 (N.Y. App. Div. 1915).

The common law definition of an independent contractor applies to cases arising under this act. Duffy v Kedenburg, 278 A.D. 31, 103 N.Y.S.2d 457, 1951 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3729 (N.Y. App. Div. 1951).

In compensation cases, the principal factors to be considered in determining relationship as that of employee or independent contractor, are right to control, method of payment, furnishing of equipment, right to discharge, and the so-called relative nature of the work test. Grigoli v Nito, 11 A.D.2d 581, 200 N.Y.S.2d 511, 1960 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9932 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1960).

It is not fatal to the employer-employee relationship that the alleged employer withheld no income tax or social security payments from monies paid claimant and that some, and perhaps most, of the services rendered by claimant were professional in nature, she being a registered nurse. Kupfer v Du Pont, 19 A.D.2d 923, 243 N.Y.S.2d 863, 1963 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2975 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1963).

Evidence that employee was paid on an hourly basis in the same manner as other employees, that he utilized employer's lumber and tools and that his work assignments and activities while on the job were directed and controlled by the employer, established an employer-employee relationship despite the fact that no withholding or Social Security were taken from claimant's pay, no fringe benefits were accorded him, no set working hours were prescribed, and his tax returns indicated that he was "self-employed." Worth v C. T. Hubbell Lumber Corp., 29 A.D.2d 1025, 289 N.Y.S.2d 519, 1968 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4152 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1968).

Evidence in proceedings on petitions for workmen's compensation benefits was sufficient to support conclusions of Workmen's Compensation Board that limousine corporation, which granted limousine operators renewable franchise for term of two years in consideration of payment of nonrefundable sum of money, and which agreed to use its best efforts to provide 250 hours of business to operator each month, to handle reservations and dispatching, to provide uniforms, operations manuals, and in-service training, and to assist operators in obtaining and maintaining suitable limousines, exercised sufficient control over limousine operators to establish employer-employee relationship. Wittenstein v Fugazy Continental Corp., 59 A.D.2d 249, 399 N.Y.S.2d 314, 1977 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13554 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1977), app. denied, 43 N.Y.2d 648, 403 N.Y.S.2d 1026, 1978 N.Y. LEXIS 2614 (N.Y. 1978), app. denied, 43 N.Y.2d 647, 1978 N.Y. LEXIS 2610 (N.Y. 1978), app. denied, 43 N.Y.2d 647, 1978 N.Y. LEXIS 2594 (N.Y. 1978).

While principal factors to be considered by Workmen's Compensation Board in resolving factual issue of whether employer-employee relationship exists are right to control, method of payment, who furnishes equipment, right to discharge, and so-called "relative nature of the work" test, no single factor is conclusive and result can often turn on basis of any one or combination of the factors. Wittenstein v Fugazy Continental Corp., 59 A.D.2d 249, 399 N.Y.S.2d 314, 1977 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13554 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1977), app. denied, 43 N.Y.2d 648, 403 N.Y.S.2d 1026, 1978 N.Y. LEXIS 2614 (N.Y. 1978), app. denied, 43 N.Y.2d 647, 1978 N.Y. LEXIS 2610 (N.Y. 1978), app. denied, 43 N.Y.2d 647, 1978 N.Y. LEXIS 2594 (N.Y. 1978).

In workmen's compensation cases, the employment relation may be grounded upon proof of any one factor, such as right to control, method of payment, furnishing of equipment, right to discharge and the so-called relative nature of the work test; on the other hand, the status of independent contractor is established only by the convincing evidence that many indicia exist. Commissioners of State Ins. Fund v Kaplan, 89 Misc. 2d 610, 392 N.Y.S.2d 971, 1977 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1903 (N.Y. Civ. Ct. 1977).

The "relative nature of the work" test, in respect to determining whether a relationship is one of employment or independent contract, consists of an analysis of the facts to establish the character of the person's work, the extent to which the worker is engaged in a separate calling, how continuous or intermittent the work is, whether it is temporary or permanent, the importance of it to the employer's business, and the character of the relation to determine whether the particular employment should carry its own accident burden. Commissioners of State Ins. Fund v Kaplan, 89 Misc. 2d 610, 392 N.Y.S.2d 971, 1977 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1903 (N.Y. Civ. Ct. 1977).

47. —Control or supervision test generally

The fact that an independent contractor tolerates interference by the alleged employer with the conduct of the work and the labor provided by the contractor, does not transform his status to that of an employee. Dutcher v Victoria Paper Mills, 219 A.D. 541, 220 N.Y.S. 625, 1927 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10963 (N.Y. App. Div. 1927).

The control of the work which effects a master-servant relationship is control of the means and manner of performance as well as of the result; an independent contractor relationship exists where the person doing the work is subject to the will of the employer only as to the result, but not as to the means or manner of accomplishment. Mace v Morrison & Fleming, 267 A.D. 29, 44 N.Y.S.2d 672, 1943 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5961 (N.Y. App. Div. 1943), aff'd, 293 N.Y. 844, 59 N.E.2d 438, 293 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 844, 1944 N.Y. LEXIS 2262 (N.Y. 1944).

Where the employer may prescribe what may be done but not the time, place or manner in which it may be done, the person doing this work is an independent contractor and not an employee. Gordon v New York Life Ins. Co., 275 A.D. 135, 89 N.Y.S.2d 83, 1949 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3726 (N.Y. App. Div. 1949), rev'd, 300 N.Y. 652, 90 N.E.2d 898, 300 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 652, 1950 N.Y. LEXIS 1446 (N.Y. 1950).

Where an alleged employer has furnished equipment in furtherance of its business and exercised some supervision and control over the alleged employee, sharing in the profits, the question of existence of an employer-employee relationship is factual and its determination by the Board is final. Saitta v Namar, Inc., 14 A.D.2d 951, 221 N.Y.S.2d 147, 1961 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7891 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1961).

For a person to be held to be an employee rather than independent contractor under the above statute, some evidence of direction is sufficient but supervision is not an important element where the work is simple such as plowing a field or digging a grave. Piester v Traver, 24 A.D.2d 688, 261 N.Y.S.2d 333, 1965 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3556 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1965).

In the absence of conclusive evidence of hiring as an employee, there is no basis for a presumption that continual utilization of a professional person as a consultant destroys an original independent contractor status; accordingly, a decision by the Workers' Compensation Board that a psychiatrist employed as a consultant was an independent contractor and not an employee, was supported by substantial evidence in the record where the psychiatrist could control the number of hours which she would devote to treating referrals by the employer, where she knew she was not subjected to ordinary payroll tax withholdings, and where she had to submit vouchers for payments detailing her hours expended on behalf of the county. Mailepors v Dutchess County Dep't of Mental Hygiene, 85 A.D.2d 844, 446 N.Y.S.2d

General employee of elevator company was not, as matter of law, special employee of company's sub-contractor at time of injury, barring him from bringing suit against sub-contractor, where employee had been assigned by company to work with sub-contractor in drilling hole at construction site, utilizing company blueprints and specifications; notwithstanding that employee testified before trial that it was his job to assist sub-contractor in all work, question of fact remained as to whether company relinquished to sub-contractor right to direct and control employee in performance of work. Kinney v Kuhn, 122 A.D.2d 569, 504 N.Y.S.2d 948, 1986 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 59851 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1986).

Workers' Compensation Board properly ruled that claimants, who were injured while performing duties as adult newspaper carriers, were employees rather than independent contractors where, inter alia, employer required claimants to deliver newspapers by set hour each morning, employer fixed claimants' territories and provided them with route list containing specific instructions as to how to deliver newspapers to certain customers, employer handled customer complaints, and employer provided plastic bags and elastic bands for use in distribution process. Paolucci v Capital Newspapers, 229 A.D.2d 751, 645 N.Y.S.2d 603, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7844 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1996).

Workers' Compensation Board properly found that employer-employee relationship existed between member of ski patrol and ski resort where, inter alia, resort paid cost of operating ski patrol, provided workers' compensation coverage for ski patrol members, vaccinated members of patrol against Hepatitis-B at its own expense, retained right to discharge and discipline any member of patrol, and designated times that patrol inspected slopes, and although not paid salary per se, patrol members were given free skiing privileges for season and other benefits in exchange for their participation in patrolling slopes. Fitzpatrick v Holimont, Inc., 247 A.D.2d 715, 669 N.Y.S.2d 88, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1578 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), app. dismissed, 92 N.Y.2d 888, 678 N.Y.S.2d 587, 700 N.E.2d 1224, 1998 N.Y. LEXIS 2850 (N.Y. 1998), app. denied, 94 N.Y.2d 755, 701 N.Y.S.2d 711, 723 N.E.2d 566, 1999 N.Y. LEXIS 3904 (N.Y. 1999).

48. —Effect of contract terminlogy

Decedent had been employed for many years as custodian of a fire house. Thereafter, to permit decedent to draw a pension it was agreed that he would work as an independent contractor. Held: the formal terminology used by the parties was not controlling and decedent was an employee entitled to compensation. Dodd v North Patchogue Fire Dist., 286 A.D. 904, 142 N.Y.S.2d 153, 1955 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4473 (N.Y. App. Div. 1955).

Plaintiff was not defendant's special employee or coemployee, despite defendant's contention that its contract with property owner showed that it was responsible for hiring and firing of employees, since contract, as well as affidavit from defendant's general manager, indicated that defendant's authority was conditioned on approval from owner. Gonzalez v John B. Lovett Assoc., 228 A.D.2d 342, 644 N.Y.S.2d 249, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7267 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1996).

49. —Effect of mode of payment

Payment based upon the quantity of work done is not necessarily the test of an independent contract. Rogers v Bissell Lumber & Supply Co., 275 A.D. 1015, 91 N.Y.S.2d 708, 1949 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5494 (N.Y. App. Div. 1949).

Exchanges in which part of workers' compensation claimant's "wages" were paid by giving him goods and paying his truck registration fee would be considered wages as long as they were received with understanding that they were equivalent to wages; moreover, Workers' Compensation Board was free to credit testimony of claimant's wife that exchanges were wages despite putative employer's claim that they were loans. Davison v Holder, 137 A.D.2d 899, 524 N.Y.S.2d 871, 1988 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1642 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1988).

50. Independent contractors; particular applications, in general

Where a contractor remained after his contract had been completed, at the request of the officers of the company to assist in installing an engine under the direction of the engineer sent by the manufacturers to superintend its installation, he became a temporary employee, and the fact he brought two of his own men with him for whose services the company paid is immaterial. McNally v Diamond Mills Paper Co., 223 N.Y. 83, 119 N.E. 242, 223 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 83, 1918 N.Y. LEXIS 1159 (N.Y. 1918).. See also Bargey v Massaro Macaroni Co., 218 N.Y. 410, 113 N.E. 407, 218 N.Y. A helper for the installation of a factory engine is not an independent contractor. McNally v Diamond Mills Paper Co., 223 N.Y. 83, 119 N.E. 242, 223 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 83, 1918 N.Y. LEXIS 1159 (N.Y. 1918).. See also Huetten v Niagara Box Co., 256 N.Y. 562, 177 N.E. 141, 256 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 562, 1931 N.Y. LEXIS 1140 (N.Y. 1931).

One who contracts to drive the owner's horses in races at a stipulated price per race, but who in respect to the method to be pursued in making races and handling the horses, is subject to the orders of the owner, is an employee although he was to receive a lump sum price for each race. Pierce v Bowen, 247 N.Y. 305, 160 N.E. 379, 247 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 305, 1928 N.Y. LEXIS 1072 (N.Y. 1928).See also Rice v Stoneham, 254 N.Y. 531, 173 N.E. 853, 254 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 531, 1930 N.Y. An embalmer is not an independent contractor. Link v Kennedy, 256 N.Y. 565, 177 N.E. 142, 256 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 565, 1931 N.Y. LEXIS 1143 (N.Y. 1931).

An apartment house manager who was entitled to receive three percent of the gross rents and ten per cent of all service contracts is nevertheless an employee rather than an independent contractor. Morse v Miltwess Realty Co., 257 A.D. 882, 11 N.Y.S.2d 887, 1939 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8266 (N.Y. App. Div. 1939).

Where claimant was employed by the pastor of a church to fix the chimney of the church, and he agreed to do the work on a basis of $12 a day, but gave no definite price for the job, and the cement and stone were provided by the church, claimant was an employee and not an independent contractor. Notaro v Holy Cross Roman Catholic Church Soc., 260 A.D. 968, 23 N.Y.S.2d 301, 1940 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5637 (N.Y. App. Div. 1940).

An award of compensation is proper to one injured while posting bills for advertising entertainment for a theatre, where the claimant was paid by the day, and in some instances he was given instructions from the manager, who went with the claimant to the hospital after the injury. Murray v Kingsbridge Theatre, 269 A.D. 716, 53 N.Y.S.2d 543, 1945 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3428 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1945).See also Hamilton v Landau Amusement Corp., 262 A.D. 787, 27 N.Y.S.2d 1010, 1941 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5853 (N.Y. App. Div.), aff'd, 287 N.Y. 585, 38 N.E.2d 385, 287 N.Y. The board may properly find that an artist who produced sketches and illustrations used by the alleged employer in the conduct of its commercial art business is an employee rather than an independent contractor. De Saravi v Troeger-Phillips, Inc., 278 A.D. 877, 104 N.Y.S.2d 317, 1951 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5036 (N.Y. App. Div. 1951).

The Board could find that decedent was not an employee and not covered by workmen's compensation on evidence that he was a diamond expert buying diamonds for his "employer" all around the world with expenses paid by the employer and receiving $500 a month, with right in the employer to fire him but at the same time loaning the employer substantial sums of money refused to be listed as an employee or sustain tax withholdings and social security deductions, etc. Malek v Leon Tempelsman & Sons, 20 A.D.2d 737, 246 N.Y.S.2d 983, 1964 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4383 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1964).

Workers' Compensation Board properly awarded death benefits to deceased flight instructor's survivors based on existence of employer-employee relationship between instructor and air field where instructor was paid at fixed rate for actual time he gave lessons, students leased aircraft from air field, students paid air field for their instruction, air field controlled scheduling of instructor's test flights, air field furnished instructor office space and stenographic help, and air field retained right to discharge instructor. Richter v Buffalo Air Park, Inc., 125 A.D.2d 809, 509 N.Y.S.2d 914, 1986 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 63017 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1986).

In action for injuries sustained by plaintiff when he fell from roof of private residence under construction, defendant was entitled to summary judgment since evidence established that plaintiff was special employee of defendant at time and place of injury where it was uncontroverted that plaintiff reported to defendant on days and times directed by defendant's foreman, that foreman signed plaintiff's time sheets, that foreman told plaintiff what work to perform, that defendant supplied equipment and tools for work by plaintiff, and that defendant had sole right to control plaintiff's work at site. Jeffords v Professional Builders/Remodelers Group, Inc., Div. of Avmal Constr. Corp., 186 A.D.2d 989, 588 N.Y.S.2d 452, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11513 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1992).

Defendant, against whom the Commissioners of the State Insurance Fund brought suit for premiums under a policy of workmen's compensation insurance, exercised sufficient control over his so-called "buyers" to make them employees for purposes of workmen's compensation, where, inter alia, defendant solicited maintenance service accounts, negotiated a price for the work to be done, billed his customers, and serviced them through his regular employees until the accounts were "sold," and where, after the "sale," defendant continued to bill in his own name on his billhead, holding himself out to his accounts as an employer; moreover, the same result was mandated by the "relative nature of the work" test. Commissioners of State Ins. Fund v Kaplan, 89 Misc. 2d 610, 392 N.Y.S.2d 971, 1977 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1903 (N.Y. Civ. Ct. 1977).

51. —General laborer

A claimant employed as a laborer who also did blasting is an employee rather than an independent contractor where the employer furnished the tools and materials directed the claimant as to his duties and instructed him as to the work which was to be done. Thye v R. W. S. Corp., 253 A.D. 853, 1 N.Y.S.2d 498, 1938 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8901 (N.Y. App. Div. 1938).

There was sufficient evidence to sustain a board finding that decedent was a town employee, rather than an independent contractor, in tearing down a certain shed under an arrangement with the town Superintendent of Highways that he was to receive $50 for tearing it down, though he was a mere laborer usually employed as a grave digger, not carried on the town payroll as an employee, and the town did not furnish him with any tools or exercise any particular degree of control over this special job. Tait v Delhi, 17 A.D.2d 667, 230 N.Y.S.2d 82, 1962 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8716 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1962), aff'd, 13 N.Y.2d 656, 240 N.Y.S.2d 988, 191 N.E.2d 466, 1963 N.Y. LEXIS 1193 (N.Y. 1963).

52. —Piece workers

Home workers making clothing, artificial flowers, etc., and paid by the piece are employees and not independent contractors; accidents to them are compensable. People ex rel. New York Lodge, B. P. O. E. v Purdy, 224 N.Y. 710, 121 N.E. 885, 224 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 710, 1918 N.Y. LEXIS 1117 (N.Y. 1918).See also Allied Mut. Liability Ins. Co. v De Jong, 209 A.D. 505, 205 N.Y.S. 165, 1924 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8667 (N.Y. App. Div. 1924).

Where claimant, having been employed by a manufacturer of awnings and having worked by the day the greater part of the time at piece work, was engaged by the owner of apartment houses to remove awnings, said owner retaining the right to discharge him and to control and direct the method of performing his work, said claimant was properly held to be an employee of the owner and not an independent contractor. Abromowitz v Hudson View Const. Co., 188 A.D. 356, 177 N.Y.S. 187, 1919 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7781 (N.Y. App. Div. 1919), aff'd, 228 N.Y. 509, 126 N.E. 898, 228 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 509, 1920 N.Y. LEXIS 959 (N.Y. 1920).

Appellant entered into an agreement with respondent to turn out certain material on a lathe at so much per piece. Appellant hired claimant to perform work at so much per piece. In the course of the work, claimant injured his eye. Appellant controlled the claimant, furnished equipment and had the power to discharge him. Held: the Board properly found that claimant was an employee of the appellee and that the appellant was not a subcontractor under § 56. On the latter issue, the Board found that the articles manufactured by the appellant were also being manufactured by the respondent. But the respondent was not manufacturing them pursuant to a contract with someone else but was manufacturing them and placing them on the market. So, an award against the appellant, an uninsured employer, was affirmed. Sutera v Horowitz, 9 A.D.2d 595, 189 N.Y.S.2d 262, 1959 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7467 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1959).

There is evidence to sustain a finding that an injured person was an employee rather than an independent contractor, where he was paid on a piecework basis, the materials and scaffolding used by him were furnished by the alleged employer who told him what to do, especially when taken with a statement by the employer that the injured employee was working for him, even though the employee was to be paid in a lump sum on the completion of the job. People v Manzo, 26 N.Y.S.2d 566, 1941 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1595 (N.Y. County Ct. 1941).

53. —Flooring workers

A linoleum layer employed by a dealer in floor coverings separately for each job and was paid a fixed price per yard for the linoleum laid, the dealer charging his customer the price of linoleum plus the cost of laying, is an independent contractor and no death benefits may be paid to the dependents of the linoleum layer where he was struck by an automobile while going from the job to the dealer's office. Lichtenager v Silverman, 260 N.Y. 667, 184 N.E. 138, 260 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 667, 1932 N.Y. LEXIS 862 (N.Y. 1932).See also Diester v Wolpert Realty Co., 256 N.Y. 650, 177 N.E. 178, 256 N.Y. Although there were certain factors which might indicate that carpet installer, over whom little supervision was exercised and who used his own tools and truck and hired help for himself when necessary was an independent contractor, there was substantial evidence to support finding that there was an employer-employee relationship between the alleged employer and the workmen's compensation claimant who did not hold himself out to the public as performing an independent service and who regularly devoted most if not all of his time to alleged employer's business. Reichenbach v Myrtle Floor Covering, Inc., 46 A.D.2d 714, 360 N.Y.S.2d 306, 1974 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3773 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1974).

54. —Window cleaners and installers

Claimant, a window washer, was injured when he fell while washing windows for a bar and grill. The Workmen's Compensation Board properly found that he was an employee of the grill owner and not an independent contractor where he was regularly employed by a window cleaning company but was injured on a holiday (Labor Day) while cleaning the windows of the bar and grill. Lukianchuk v M. Garz Restaurant, 305 N.Y. 769, 113 N.E.2d 156, 305 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 769, 1953 N.Y. LEXIS 1286 (N.Y. 1953).

The record sustained a finding of an employer-employee relationship as against a contention of the status of independent contractor of an installer of storm windows and screens. Zinserling v State Storm Window Co., 280 A.D. 1007, 116 N.Y.S.2d 797, 1952 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4554 (N.Y. App. Div. 1952).

55. —Heating and plumbing workers

A mechanic who repaired engines for water systems installed by a heating and plumbing contractor, and automobile trucks used by the firm, who handed in his bill for the gross amount without itemizing it and was paid at a rate per hour depending on the particular kind of service rendered, is an employee and not an independent contractor. Peck v Tassell & Fairbanks, 193 A.D. 604, 184 N.Y.S. 426, 1920 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5614 (N.Y. App. Div. 1920).

Decedent who was killed while engaged in repairing a boiler in an apartment house is an independent contractor and not an employee, where such decedent, although a steamfitter, was a steadily employed W.P.A. worker, and had never performed any work of any kind for the apartment house owner, and had agreed to repair the boiler for a specified lump sum. McCarthy v 2009 Lafontaine Ave. Corp., 259 A.D. 947, 529 A.D. 947, 19 N.Y.S.2d 809, 1940 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7392 (N.Y. App. Div. 1940).

56. —Auto mechanics

Substantial evidence supported determination of Workers' Compensation Board that worker was independent contractor rather than employee of used car dealer where worker had been engaged to perform specialized repair work on one automobile in his time off from full-time job with different employer, dealer did not know how to do work so he could not supervise or exercise control, no payment was due until repairs were completed, there was no withholding of wages for any purpose, worker was not listed by dealer as employee, worker furnished his own tools and worked when his time and work schedule permitted, there was no evidence of any right to discharge, and in event of disagreement relief could have been sought only through contract action; even if conflicting inferences could be drawn from evidence, findings of board would prevail. Estate of Scott v R. M. Stevenson Motors, Inc., 127 A.D.2d 953, 512 N.Y.S.2d 557, 1987 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 43437 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1987).

57. —Excavation and demolition

A contractor who agrees to excavate rock in a mill race under a mill to be paid by the mill operators at the rate of 10 per cent of the entire job, the contractor to furnish all labor, either by using men already in his employment, to take men from the employer's mill, or to hire others, and to furnish material is an independent contractor rather than an employee. Dutcher v Victoria Paper Mills, 219 A.D. 541, 220 N.Y.S. 625, 1927 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10963 (N.Y. App. Div. 1927).

One who is employed by an employer engaged in dismantling a power plant to cut away a portion of an electric generator with an acetylene torch under the direction of the employer, who designated the place where the cut should be made, is an employee rather than an independent contractor within the meaning of this section. Thompson v A. Mills Scrap Metals, 266 A.D. 806, 41 N.Y.S.2d 288, 1943 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4554 (N.Y. App. Div. 1943).

58. —Carpenter

Where a carpenter was employed by the pastor over two year period to do carpenter work around a church, the pastor supplying all the materials used except small items, and where the carpenter was employed by hour, he was an "employee" and not an independent contractor. Zeh v St. Francis De Sales R. C. Church, 288 N.Y. 511, 41 N.E.2d 926, 288 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 511, 1942 N.Y. LEXIS 1367 (N.Y. 1942).

An award for a carpenter was affirmed where claimant was injured while working at home of employer, the title to which was in his wife's name, over claims that carpenter was an independent contractor and that employer was not engaged in activity for "pecuniary gain". Reid v Rose, 306 N.Y. 880, 119 N.E.2d 588, 306 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 880, 1954 N.Y. LEXIS 1201 (N.Y. 1954).

A carpenter engaged to repair roofs and a veranda at odd times during evenings and Saturdays, who furnished part of the material and who received no directions from the owner before the work began or during the progress thereof except as to the roofs to be patched and places upon the veranda to be repaired, is an independent contractor and not an employee of the owner. Ball v Bertelle's Estate, 201 A.D. 768, 195 N.Y.S. 150, 1922 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6413 (N.Y. App. Div. 1922).

A carpenter engaged in business on his own account, employed to make alterations, who furnished from three to five men and material on both of which he received a profit, is an independent contractor, although on particular occasions, in his absence, directions were given by representatives of the owner as to particular places where he desired work to progress and the particular kind of work to be done. Bache v Salvation Army, 202 A.D. 17, 195 N.Y.S. 151, 1922 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4842 (N.Y. App. Div. 1922).

There is evidence to support a finding that a claimant is an employee, where he was engaged as a general handy man to do rough carpentry and tree trimming at a fixed amount per day, there being no estimated contract price for one particular job, and the employer furnished some tools which were unsatisfactory, whereupon the claimant used his own tools. Biatolbzski v Smith, 262 A.D. 1051, 30 N.Y.S.2d 254, 1941 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7187 (N.Y. App. Div. 1941).

A carpenter employed to apply shingles sold by a dealer and paid at a fixed rate per hundred feet may be found to be an employee rather than an independent contractor where there is an admission in the employer's first report of injury that the carpenter was an employee, even though the carpenter furnished his own car and equipment. Strawway v Stickler, 268 A.D. 944, 51 N.Y.S.2d 348, 1944 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4332 (N.Y. App. Div. 1944).

A carpenter, one of two engaged by the alleged employer to perform carpentry and some painting in the construction of living quarter additions to his place of business, there being no partnership agreement between the carpenters, is an employee rather than an independent contractor, where there is evidence of a reservation of control and there was no evidence that the carpenter was not subject to discharge at any time. Norris v Kaempfer, 274 A.D. 857, 81 N.Y.S.2d 808, 1948 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3697 (N.Y. App. Div. 1948).

Carpenter who had small cabinet-making business was employed from time to time by a general contractor and was asked by the latter to install some cabinets in the home of contractor's mother. No payment was to be made in cash but the contractor agreed to repair the foundation of a building on which the carpenter was working. Cabinetmaker's death in an automobile accident while contractor was driving him from site of work was an accident within the course of his employment. Wages may be paid by some special service and it was immaterial whether or not the employer's mother paid. Johansen v Gray, 283 A.D. 647, 130 N.Y.S.2d 35, 1954 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4753 (N.Y. App. Div. 1954).

Claimant was injured while working as a carpenter. He had entered into an agreement with contractor for a lump sum for performing certain work. He was designated therein as subcontractor. Claimant testified that he had been told that he would be covered by compensation. However, contractor's bookkeeper had not done so because he understood that claimant was covered. Contractor supplied materials, and had the right of control of manner of performance of claimant's work. There was some testimony that claimant could be dismissed. Held: on evidence, board properly determined that claimant was employee and not independent contractor. Klein v Sunrise Bldg. Co., 7 A.D.2d 805, 180 N.Y.S.2d 885, 1958 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3733 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1958), app. denied, 5 N.Y.2d 711, 1959 N.Y. LEXIS 2026 (N.Y. 1959).

A land company entered into a contract with an independent contractor for a specified price to do the carpentry work on a home which it was building on it's own land for the use of its superintendent. A carpenter employed on the project was killed. The widow was entitled to recover death benefits from the land company, since there was evidence that the superintendent for whom the house was being built directed the carpentry work in detail. Commissioner of Taxation & Finance v Ramapo Land Co., 9 A.D.2d 800, 192 N.Y.S.2d 834, 1959 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6139 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1959).

Claimant must be considered an independent contractor rather than an employee where it appeared that he was a carpenter by trade and his injuries were sustained by a fall from a scaffolding while working upon a house which he had contracted to purchase from respondent, part of the down payment on the purchase price to be made up of doing certain work in finishing the house at a specified price for each portion of such work, defendant furnishing the materials and some of the tools and claimant furnishing the remainder, there being no indication defendant exercised any control over the work or could have discharged claimant had it deemed fit. Biktjorn v Worley Homes, Inc., 12 A.D.2d 540, 206 N.Y.S.2d 744, 1960 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7236 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1960).

Decision of board affirmed that claimant was not employee of defendant where partnership of which claimant was member entered into contracts with defendant to do carpentry work for him on houses being constructed, each house being subject of a separate contract and agreed price being payable on a weekly basis, the claimant furnishing his own tools and making his own Social Security and income tax payments. Lawrence v Wheeler, 22 A.D.2d 983, 254 N.Y.S.2d 727, 1964 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2499 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1964).

The claimant was held to be an employee rather than an independent contractor under evidence that he severed a portion of one finger on a power saw while making cabinet covers for his employer in the basement of the claimant's house; that he was hired to make cabinet covers in his spare time for a specified sum; that he purchased the materials and did the work in his home with the exception of the preliminary measurement and the installation, and there was evidence that the employer's president directed the design and specifications of the work, the type of materials to be used and the means of installation of the covers. Wheeler v Victor Kayfetz Productions, 38 A.D.2d 667, 327 N.Y.S.2d 181, 1971 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2621 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1971).

Carpenter's employee, who had been hired to renovate building owned by real estate partnership, of which 2 partners were sole partners in law firm, was employee of law firm and thus covered by its workers' compensation policy where, inter alia, (1) real estate partnership was established for sole purpose of owning properties housing law firm's old and new offices, (2) other 2 partners in real estate partnership were merely names on deed to building, (3) law firm partners provided architectural plans and supplies for renovation project, and (4) claimant was paid by check prepared by law firm's secretary and signed by one of firm's partners. Rosenbaum v Lichtenstein, 168 A.D.2d 873, 564 N.Y.S.2d 543, 1990 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 15751 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1990).

59. —Driver, hauler or trucker

There was no employer-employee relationship between a farmer and a roofing contractor where the farmer agreed to haul logs with his own horses and tools for a fixed price and contractor, although he worked with farmer, did not direct the operations. Neff v Franklinville Roofing Co., 308 N.Y. 946, 127 N.E.2d 94, 308 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 946, 1955 N.Y. LEXIS 1182 (N.Y. 1955).

The owner of a truck is an employee rather than an independent contractor where he was retained to haul freight for the employer, the latter reserving the right of discharge at any time, and the employer mapped out the delivery routes, directed the trucker's movements and maintained close supervision over him, but allowed the trucker to carry freight for others only when he did not keep him busy, and where the employer took a certain percentage of the earnings of the truck and credited the trucker with the balance. Carriere v Syracuse Freight & Forwarding Co., 259 A.D. 764, 18 N.Y.S.2d 263, 1940 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6577 (N.Y. App. Div. 1940).

Midget auto race drivers competing for prizes are independent contractors rather than employees of the promoter. Duffy v Kedenburg, 278 A.D. 31, 103 N.Y.S.2d 457, 1951 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3729 (N.Y. App. Div. 1951).

Even under the common law test, a part-time helper working under the immediate direction and supervision of a truck driver would be regarded as an employee of the truck driver's employer. Hence, a part-time truck loader who worked from time to time over a period of two and a half years helping to load an employer's truck was not an independent contractor although he worked for others, was employed intermittently and was paid so much per load. Stone v Cohen Bros. & Sons, 282 A.D. 900, 124 N.Y.S.2d 822, 1953 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5369 (N.Y. App. Div.), amended, 282 A.D. 1080, 126 N.Y.S.2d 923, 1953 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5870 (N.Y. App. Div. 1953).

"Agent drivers" of laundry were employees and entitled to Workmen's Compensation where, although they furnished their own vehicle, the laundry fixed the prices charged customers took all money received and paid a commission therefrom and supervised the work and fixed the hours of the drivers. Schaimberg v Starbright Laundry, 285 A.D. 359, 137 N.Y.S.2d 516, 1955 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5485 (N.Y. App. Div. 1955).

Claimant's duties were to pick up and deliver cars purchased and sold by appellant. For pick up and delivery he was paid a flat fee. Each week he was paid a total of fees less withholding tax and social security contributions. While en route to deliver car to Virginia purchaser, from whom he was to collect amount of invoice plus driving charges, he sustained accidental injuries. There was no direct communication between the claimant and purchaser. All instructions were given to him by appellant, including instruction that, if he failed to collect amount of invoice, he was to return car in which event driving charges were to be paid by appellant. Held: there was ample evidence to support conclusion that claimant was an employee of the appellant. Kaufman v Car Wholesalers, Inc., 8 A.D.2d 562, 183 N.Y.S.2d 509, 1959 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9647 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1959).

Appellant was the owner of a highway tractor used principally for hauling loaded trailers for respondent. Pursuant to oral agreement, claimant operated the tractor and received 25 percent of gross receipts. Claimant would obtain check from respondent payable to the appellant and deliver it to the appellant. Claimant paid only his personal expenses on the road. Appellant had the absolute right to terminate claimant's services as a driver by withholding the vehicle from highways. Held: the board properly found that claimant was an employee of the appellant. Mead v Cole, 8 A.D.2d 904, 186 N.Y.S.2d 969, 1959 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8324 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1959).

Although claimant was regularly employed by one M., where, because of the odd and irregular hours of his employment he was able to do extra work for another, delivering grapes for the latter at a fixed price per box by using the truck of M. and paying the latter for gas, oil, and incidental expense, and delivered the grapes for the second employer according to names and addresses furnished by the latter, sometimes collecting money at the time of the delivery and being furnished with a helper by the second employer part of the time, it was not improper to consider him an employee of the latter and not an independent contractor with respect to injuries sustained while delivering grapes. Grigoli v Nito, 11 A.D.2d 581, 200 N.Y.S.2d 511, 1960 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9932 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1960).

Where deliverymen were paid according to number of deliveries per week and alleged employer testified with respect to discharge of former deliveryman that he did not deliver packages the way employer wanted them taken care of, sufficient direction and control over deliverymen was shown to establish employer-employee relationship. Lindboe v Tenenbaum's Meat Market, 24 A.D.2d 796, 263 N.Y.S.2d 787, 1965 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3232 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1965).

Board's decision determining claimant was an employee of appellant-employer and found that corporation had sufficient supervision and control over claimant to warrant establishing employer-employee relationship and under terms of the agreement, the corporation specified and retained control over the claimant's route, required that its name be affixed to the door panels of the tractor and did not permit claimant to accept other jobs without first consulting the corporation was supported by the evidence. Freeman v Custom Bilt Body, Inc., 35 A.D.2d 857, 315 N.Y.S.2d 213, 1970 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3576 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1970).

In a workers' compensation proceeding, evidence supported the finding of Workers' Compensation Board that an employer-employee relationship existed between a claimant cab driver and an owner of a licensed radio dispatching service that monitored and dispatched phone calls for independent cab owners, where the evidence indicated that the owner controlled the activities and work of the driver, maintained age standards for drivers receiving the service, and benefited from the driver's work. Ziegler v Fillmore Car Service, Inc., 83 A.D.2d 692, 442 N.Y.S.2d 276, 1981 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 15005 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), app. denied, 54 N.Y.2d 609, 1981 N.Y. LEXIS 4560 (N.Y. 1981).

Substantial evidence supported finding, under workers' compensation "control" test, of employer-employee relationship between garage owner and driver of wrecking truck where equipment used at time of accident (tow truck) was garage owner's, owner had provided driver with shirts with driver's name and owner's business name on them, and owner had agreed to pay driver certain set wage which (as driver's wife testified) included giving driver goods and paying driver's truck registration fee; moreover, under "relative nature of the work" test, towing or assisting disabled vehicles was important part of driver's work and was inseparable from it, and could not be considered type of work for which person would carry his own insurance. Davison v Holder, 137 A.D.2d 899, 524 N.Y.S.2d 871, 1988 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1642 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1988).

Evidence supported determination by Workers' Compensation Board that employer-employee relationship existed between corporation which operated radio dispatched limousine service and driver who leased limousine from its owner pursuant to arrangement whereby limousine owners purchased shares of stock in limousine service, entitling them to installation of corporate-owned dispatch radio and share of transportation calls, since limousine service controlled almost every aspect of driver's job, including screening and training drivers, enforcing minimum job standards, paying drivers' wages, and setting fares. Kurzyna v Communicar, Inc., 182 A.D.2d 924, 582 N.Y.S.2d 295, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5940 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), app. denied, 80 N.Y.2d 754, 587 N.Y.S.2d 906, 600 N.E.2d 633, 1992 N.Y. LEXIS 1807 (N.Y. 1992).

Evidence supported determination finding employer-employee relationship between participating limousine driver and corporation providing solicitation and dispatch service, even though driver was required to own his limousine and independently pay for insurance, gas, oil, and maintenance, where (1) pursuant to voucher system, if dispatcher assigned driver to voucher fare—as opposed to cash fare—driver was required to accept it or face monetary penalty, (2) driver was paid set percentage payment for such fares, and (3) corporation had complete control over solicitation and scheduling of voucher fares, as well as handling and processing of voucher payment system. Weingarten v XYZ Two Way Radio Service, Inc., 183 A.D.2d 964, 583 N.Y.S.2d 316, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6652 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), app. dismissed, 80 N.Y.2d 924, 589 N.Y.S.2d 311, 602 N.E.2d 1127, 1992 N.Y. LEXIS 3218 (N.Y. 1992).

Evidence that corporation providing dispatched car service had control over workday of limousine drivers was sufficient to justify determination that employer-employee relationship existed between claimant and corporation, and claimant was thus eligible for workers' compensation benefits. Banful v Skyline Credit Ride, 222 A.D.2d 871, 635 N.Y.S.2d 730, 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12901 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1995).

Workers' Compensation Board properly concluded that employer-employee relationship existed where corporation's principal applied for taxicab license for vehicle that claimant was driving at time of his accident, corporation did business as entity that provided claimant with cab and dispatched him to pick up his fares, and principal failed to appear and offer any evidence. Fisher v SDAM Mgmt. Inc., 284 A.D.2d 845, 727 N.Y.S.2d 724, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6743 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2001).

Bread deliverer was independent contractor rather than employee of wholesale bread company, and thus was not entitled to workers' compensation benefits, where (1) he responded to newspaper ad for distributor, (2) he complied with company's requirements that he be incorporated and that he provide van for deliveries, (3) his limited training consisted of being shown 2 bread delivery routes, (4) time for deliveries was fixed primarily by customers' schedules, (5) he did not display company logo on his clothing or van, (6) although he contacted company to adjust bread orders, his daily activities were not supervised, (7) he was free to expand his bread delivery routes, deliver other products, and hire associate as his own expense, (8) payments were made to his own corporation, and (9) his tax return indicated that he was self-employed. Simonelli v Adams Bakery Corp., 286 A.D.2d 805, 730 N.Y.S.2d 358, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8631 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2001).

In action to recover balance due for premiums on workmen's compensation policy issued by plaintiff to defendant-trucker, defendant was entitled to trial upon issue that owner-operators of trucks were independent contractors not covered by Workmen's Compensation Law. Employers Mut. Liability Ins. Co. v Bromley, 4 Misc. 2d 702, 158 N.Y.S.2d 669, 1957 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3643 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1957).

60. —Nurse

A trained nurse, engaged to render services to an injured employee in the hospital, under the general direction of the company's physician in charge of the case, is not an employee within the meaning of this section. In re Renouf, 254 N.Y. 349, 173 N.E. 218, 254 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 349, 1930 N.Y. LEXIS 1048 (N.Y. 1930).See also Beach v Velzy, 238 N.Y. 100, 143 N.E. 805, 238 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 100, 1924 N.Y. LEXIS 653 (N.Y. 1924),., and Litts v Risley Lumber Co., 224 N.Y. 321, 120 N.E. 730, 224 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 321, 1918 N.Y. LEXIS 883 (N.Y. 1918).

A practical nurse is not excluded from workmen's compensation on the ground that she was not an employee but rather was acting in a professional capacity, where she was required to be on duty twenty four hours a day seven days a week, to perform domestic services and act as a companion to her employer. Windishar v Warmack, 271 A.D. 855, 65 N.Y.S.2d 849, 1946 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3417 (N.Y. App. Div. 1946).

Claimant, a registered nurse, was held to be an employee rather than an independent contractor where her relationship with the alleged employer arose when she went home from a hospital where she worked with the latter to take care of her, at first being employed by the day but later became part of the household on a salary basis, performing duties other than nursing as well as taking care of the employer. Kupfer v Du Pont, 19 A.D.2d 923, 243 N.Y.S.2d 863, 1963 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2975 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1963).

A registered nurse and professor of nursing was properly held to be an employee within the meaning of the Workers' Compensation Law, where she spent approximately 15 hours per week teaching her nursing students, two-thirds of which were spent in a hospital engaged in nursing activities, and where she spent the bulk of her teaching hours demonstrating or actually doing nursing work in a hospital. Kessler v Board of Higher Education, 86 A.D.2d 908, 448 N.Y.S.2d 538, 1982 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 15579 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1982).

A licensed practical nurse, employed as such, was employed as a professional person to exercise her calling to the best of her ability according to her own discretion and had no right of action against her employer for failure to see that she was covered by workmen's compensation insurance against injuries sustained by a fall on an allegedly defective bathroom floor. *McCrory v Thomas, 40 Misc. 2d 904, 244 N.Y.S.2d 111, 1963 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1466 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1963), aff'd, 21 A.D.2d 753, 252 N.Y.S.2d 27, 1964 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5406 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1964).

61. —Painter

A painter who agreed to paint smoke stacks for a named amount, and to furnish the ropes, tackle, scaffolding, and implements is an independent contractor even though the alleged employer supplied the paint and an assistant, where the painter was free to proceed in the execution of the job entirely in accordance with his own ideas. Litts v Risley Lumber Co., 224 N.Y. 321, 120 N.E. 730, 224 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 321, 1918 N.Y. LEXIS 883 (N.Y. 1918).

Plaintiff, a painter, who had worked several years for a bank and was usually paid by the day or by the job and was subject to supervision of the bank, is not an independent contractor, and award of disability compensation should be made, where he sustained accidental injuries as a result of a fall from a ladder while engaged in painting a house owned by the bank. Knudstad v Emigrant Industrial Sav. Bank, 278 N.Y. 610, 16 N.E.2d 122, 278 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 610, 1938 N.Y. LEXIS 1433 (N.Y. 1938).

A painter employed to repaint a sign which he had previously painted and which had been used by the employer in advertising its business, will be deemed to be an employee rather than an independent contractor, where he had no employees, made no sub-contracts and did the work personally and it did not appear but that the employer retained control over the work. In re Rheinwald, 168 A.D. 425, 153 N.Y.S. 598, 1915 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8298 (N.Y. App. Div. 1915), limited, Kackel v Serviss, 180 A.D. 54, 167 N.Y.S. 348, 1917 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8073 (N.Y. App. Div. 1917).

One who agreed to paint a dwelling house for a fixed amount per hour is an independent contractor where he controlled his own time and work which was done at odd times, furnished ladders and brushes, and except for trifling directions, the homeowner exercised no supervision over the work. Empie v Cossart, 259 A.D. 941, 20 N.Y.S.2d 3, 1940 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7372 (N.Y. App. Div. 1940).See also Prince v Schwartz, 190 A.D. 820, 180 N.Y.S. 703, 1920 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4262 (N.Y. App. Div. 1920).

Where, for over 25 years, claimant had engaged in the business of washing and painting houses with compensation usually based on an hourly rate, the owner of the house furnishing the paint and the claimant furnishing his own equipment including ladders and brushes, the evidence established that claimant was an independent contractor. The fact that he computed his charge on an hourly basis did not conclusively establish an employment relationship. Vanderpool v Payne, 283 A.D. 829, 128 N.Y.S.2d 676, 1954 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5447 (N.Y. App. Div. 1954).

Where the decedent was a regular employee who undertook to do some work outside of his ordinary working hours for the purpose of painting the employer's premises, where, in furtherance of that project, the employee and another person signed an agreement with the employer to do the work at a stated lump sum price and to furnish their own equipment, and where, in the course of the project, the decedent suffered fatal injuries by reason of coming into contact with high voltage electrical wires, the decedent was an employee, not an independent contractor, at the time of the injury. Gannon v New York Wire Mills Corp., 53 A.D.2d 719, 384 N.Y.S.2d 57, 1976 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13488 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1976).

A plumber, although the regular employee of a plumbing contractor for forty hours per week, who agreed to install a gas pipe line during his spare time may be found to be an independent contractor, where the employer merely outlined the nature of the job to be done and agreed to pay therefor the prevailing rate for such work in the vicinity. Slawson v Trustees of School Dist., 278 A.D. 879, 104 N.Y.S.2d 535, 1951 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5043 (N.Y. App. Div. 1951).

There was sufficient evidence to sustain a finding by the board that decedent, a plumber, was working as an employee at the time he received the injury resulting in his death, not as an independent contractor, where, although he had originally been operating as an independent contractor, for four months prior to his death he had been treated and regarded as subject to direction and control of the "employer", with full access to his tools and supplies and with authority to call upon other employees for assistance, notwithstanding deceased still owned a truck bearing his own name, had his own billheads, and was not carried on appellant's books as an employee. Webster v Mason, 13 A.D.2d 355, 217 N.Y.S.2d 290, 1961 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9778 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1961).

63. —Salesperson

An authorized milk salesman operating on a designated route for a stated period terminable upon notice by the salesman and at will by the company is a servant of the company, and within the workmen's compensation law. Glielmi v Netherland Dairy Co., 254 N.Y. 60, 171 N.E. 906, 254 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 60, 1930 N.Y. LEXIS 1004 (N.Y. 1930).See also Dirisio v Caterino, 264 N.Y. 619, 191 N.E. 594, 264 N.Y. Salesmen paid solely by commission are employees. Bettinger v Federal Concrete Co., 268 N.Y. 655, 198 N.E. 542, 268 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 655, 1935 N.Y. LEXIS 1122 (N.Y. 1935).See also Jacobi v Supreme Junior Coat Co., 268 N.Y. 654, 198 N.E. 541, 268 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 654, 1935 N.Y. LEXIS 1121 (N.Y. 1935).

A claimant is an employee rather than an independent contractor where he was engaged to sell meat cutting machines, and although he worked on a commission, he drew against his commission weekly and the employer gave him lists of customers and contract forms and notices to post in the customers' places of business, so that they could get service and repairs from the employer, and further the purchasers' checks were made payable to the employer, the claimant reported to the employer each Saturday and made a written report of customers visited in addition to the fact that the claimant was given the prices at which the machines were to be sold and had no place of business of his own. Sanchez v Ross, 266 A.D. 930, 43 N.Y.S.2d 883, 1943 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5272 (N.Y. App. Div. 1943).

An automobile salesman on a commission basis is an independent contractor rather than the employee of the agency where he was paid no salary and his name was not carried on the payroll, he had no drawing account, received no allowance for expenses, was assigned to no particular territory, was free to sell cars wherever he pleased, and was not required to work on any particular day. Mace v Morrison & Fleming, 267 A.D. 29, 44 N.Y.S.2d 672, 1943 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5961 (N.Y. App. Div. 1943), aff'd, 293 N.Y. 844, 59 N.E.2d 438, 293 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 844, 1944 N.Y. LEXIS 2262 (N.Y. 1944).

A pushcart vendor is an employee rather than an independent contractor where the manufacturer of the products which he sold furnished the pushcart, prescribed the area in which he could operate, required that he sell at least $5 worth of products each day and that he pay for his products within twelve hours. Florio v Assael, 274 A.D. 1082, 85 N.Y.S.2d 624, 1949 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6148 (N.Y. App. Div. 1949).

After 18 years of being considered an employee, claimant's commissions schedule as a salesman was changed, he lost his desk space in employer's office, deductions for social security and income tax were discontinued and, after his injury, the employer claimed him to be an independent contractor. On the facts, the Board could properly find him to be an employee where he still used the company stationery, signed the employer's name with his own to letters, represented no other company, continued to have secretarial services, received his mail there and was injured while on his way to see about a new design for his employer. Waterbury v Dieges & Clust, 284 A.D. 912, 134 N.Y.S.2d 300, 1954 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4043 (N.Y. App. Div. 1954).

Claimant was the operator of a small garage and sold used automobiles for a sales agency located in an adjacent town. He received a commission of $50.00 for each car he sold which included his services in transporting the car. While transporting a car he was injured in an automobile accident. Held: claimant was an employee rather than an independent contractor. Williams v Nobbs & Williams, 286 A.D. 897, 141 N.Y.S.2d 901, 1955 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4462 (N.Y. App. Div. 1955).

A determination that claimant was an employee of the employer would not be overturned where it appeared that the alleged employer furnished him with a cart, together with ice cream, dry ice, and other supplies for selling ice cream products in New York City under an arrangement whereby the claimant could work at his pleasure and without limitation to any particular route or territory, except to return the cart and unsold ice cream at the end of each day and pay the employer 50 percent of the receipts, claimant having been injured by a third person's automobile in course of his business activities. Saitta v Namar, Inc., 14 A.D.2d 951, 221 N.Y.S.2d 147, 1961 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7891 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1961).

Temporary employee was "special employee" of defendant company with which she was placed by temporary employment agency where defendant's employees exclusively controlled and directed manner, details, and ultimate result of her work while she was on defendant's premises; thus, temporary employee's personal injury action was barred by Workers' Compensation Law. Causewell v Barnes & Noble Bookstores, 238 A.D.2d 536, 657 N.Y.S.2d 87, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4429 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1997).

Ice cream street vendors were independent contractors, and thus owner of ice cream trucks leased to them was not liable for workers' compensation premiums for them, where (1) owner's overall control of vendors' activities and owner's control over trucks were both minimal, (2) vendors had to obtain their own state or local business licenses, (3) vendors were free to buy supplies from any source, to sell to general public during any hours of their choice, and to develop and define their own sales territories, (4) they had to reconcile their sales independently with Internal Revenue Service, (5) they were responsible for daily operational upkeep of trucks, (6) method of compensation was left to vendors and their customers, and (7) owner and vendors had mutual power to terminate weekly leases. State Ins. Fund v

64. —Taxicab driver

In view of apparent legislative intent to insure that taxicab drivers have workers' compensation coverage, Workers' Compensation Board fairly interpreted CLS Work Comp § 2(3) as including corporations in business of leasing taxicab medallions. In re Clumber Transp. Corp., 160 A.D.2d 1186, 555 N.Y.S.2d 196, 1990 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4704 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1990).

Evidence supported conclusion of Workers' Compensation Board that taxi cab driver was employee of company that provided radio dispatch services to taxi operators where he testified that he was hired by company officer at company's offices, it was agreed that he would receive 40 percent of total of his daily bookings with remainder to be turned over to company dispatcher, company dispatcher told him what hours he would work and kept track of his movements at all times, he was told that he could not refuse jobs or turn off radio unless company directed him to do so, and company could fire him if he disobeyed. Scott v Manzi Taxi & Transp. Co., 179 A.D.2d 949, 579 N.Y.S.2d 225, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 847 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), app. denied, 80 N.Y.2d 752, 587 N.Y.S.2d 288, 599 N.E.2d 692 (N.Y. 1992).

State Insurance Fund lacked rational basis for its determination that doctors who utilized petitioner's facilities were petitioner's employees, and thus were potentially covered beneficiaries under petitioner's workers' compensation insurance policy, where (1) doctors had complete control over all aspects of their work except for their use of petitioner's offices, secretarial staff, and equipment, for which petitioner retained portion of their fees, (2) petitioner did not hire or fire doctors, supervise their work, dictate office hours, set billing rates, preclude outside practice, provide malpractice insurance, or pay unemployment insurance premiums or social security taxes for them, and (3) petitioner never received any workers' compensation, unemployment, or other employment claim from any doctor. For-Med Medical Group v New York State Ins. Fund, 207 A.D.2d 300, 615 N.Y.S.2d 399, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8372 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1994), app. denied, 85 N.Y.2d 802, 624 N.Y.S.2d 372, 648 N.E.2d 792, 1995 N.Y. LEXIS 210 (N.Y. 1995).

Neither the statutory language of N.Y. Workers' Comp. Law § 2(3)-(5), as amended by 1986 N.Y. Laws ch. 903, nor the legislative history of the amendment suggest, much less compel, the conclusion that the isolated leasing of a single taxi medallion by one taxi driver to another by itself automatically creates a statutory or common-law employer-employee relationship; thus a taxicab driver's leasing of a single taxi medallion to the claimant, who was also a taxicab driver, did not create a statutory or common-law employer-employee relationship within the meaning of N.Y. Workers' Comp. Law § 2(3)-(5), as amended by 1986 N.Y. Laws ch. 903, especially where the other taxicab driver did not control, direct, supervise, or have the power to terminate or hire the claimant. Singleton v Angora, 299 A.D.2d 620, 750 N.Y.S.2d 339, 2002 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10580 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2002).

65. —Woodsmen, gardner and the like

Woodsmen paid by the tract or cord are employees and not independent contractors and hence accidents to them are compensable. *Fancher v Boston Excelsior Co., 235 N.Y. 272, 139 N.E. 265, 235 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 272, 1923 N.Y. LEXIS 1176 (N.Y. 1923).See also Tsangournos v Smith, 183 A.D. 751, 171 N.Y.S. 256, 1918 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6014 (N.Y. App. Div. 1918).

The industrial board properly determined that decedent was an employee in spite of his description in his contract as an independent contractor, where he agreed to cut an unspecified amount of timber at four dollars a thousand feet and where the places and the trees were to be selected by the alleged employer. Vroman v Van Alstyne, 293 N.Y. 837, 59 N.E.2d 435, 293 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 837, 1944 N.Y. LEXIS 2257 (N.Y. 1944).

A gardner hired to care for a lawn and shrubbery and paid $140 per month to work two days a week on the property is an employee rather than an independent contractor where he used the tools of the property owner except for a lawn mower and the property owner regarded him as an employee, even though she gave no specific instructions about the work. Altieri v Morris, 275 A.D. 1009, 91 N.Y.S.2d 674, 1949 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5476 (N.Y. App. Div. 1949), aff'd, 301 N.Y. 522, 93 N.E.2d 77, 301 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 522, 1950 N.Y. LEXIS 876 (N.Y. 1950).

Claimant, regularly employed as a stock handler, owned a chain saw and cut and trimmed trees for others. A boat owner had pointed out to plaintiff trees that he wanted trimmed and directed claimant to do so. Claimant worked at an agreed hourly rate. Appellant had the right to discharge claimant at any time. Under circumstances, Board properly made award to claimant as employee. Eastman v Cottman, 7 A.D.2d 794, 180 N.Y.S.2d 785, 1958 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3718 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1958).

Substantial evidence supported determination of Workers' Compensation Board that claimant logger, who was severely injured when tree fell on him while he was cutting wood for timber company, was company's employee rather than independent contractor, where record demonstrated that claimant was supplied with bulldozer where necessary, was directed as to what type and size of trees to cut, and was subject to being discharged by company if his work was found unsatisfactory. Harvey v Allegany Timber & Land Co., 162 A.D.2d 775, 557 N.Y.S.2d 687, 1990 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7202 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1990).

66. Farm laborers, generally

Labor incidental to the operation of a farm is not a hazardous employment under the workmen's compensation law. Baum v Welden (1944) 267 App Div 1020, 267 App Div 1032, 48 NYS2d 305, revd on other grounds (1945) 294 NY 464, 63 NE2d 59.. See also Ackert v Delano, 246 A.D. 751, 283 N.Y.S. 957, 1935 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10056 (N.Y. App. Div. 1935), aff'd, 271 N.Y. 584, 3 N.E.2d 196, 271 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 584, 1936 N.Y. LEXIS 1308 (N.Y. 1936).

Claimant was injured while picking cherries at appellant's farm. Respondent had brought laborers, including claimant, to farm and he paid them and provided transportation. Appellant had agreed to pay compensation premium and his foreman provided ladders and pails, directed work and had right to discharge. Appellant never required any evidence from respondent of policy and never paid premium. Held: on facts, Board properly determined that employer-employee status existed between claimant and appellant. Kamenos v Masco, 6 A.D.2d 919, 175 N.Y.S.2d 679, 1958 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5229 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1958).

When an hourly laborer is employed by a genuine farmer, carrying on actual productive farming, to perform labor of any kind necessary for continued operation of the farm, and the labor is performed on the farm, he is a "farm laborer" and not within the coverage of the Workmen's Compensation Law. Allstate Ins. Co. v Kabes, 17 A.D.2d 1015, 233 N.Y.S.2d 806, 1962 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7000 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1962).

Claimant was not entitled to workers' compensation benefits, because deceased postmaster and chicken farmer was independent contractor, not employee, of farmers' cooperative with which he contracted to raise chickens owned by cooperative on his property, even though cooperative's service manager provided recommendations on how to care for chicks and often inspected chicken coops, where, inter alia, decedent owned and supplied building and equipment for raising chickens, insured premises against fire, at times had others help him raise chickens, received payment after flock was fully raised, which took about 12 weeks, and reported payments as farm income rather than wages or salary, and under contract cooperative had no right to fire him. Winglovitz v Agway, Inc., 246 A.D.2d 684, 667 N.Y.S.2d 509, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 107 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1998).

In an action against defendants as owners and operators of a farm for damages sustained by an infant as a farm laborer, plaintiff was clearly not in the class of employees required to be covered by workmen's compensation insurance and it was accordingly unnecessary to allege in the complaint that defendants did not carry such insurance. Empie v Entwhistle, 35 Misc. 2d 674, 230 N.Y.S.2d 648, 1962 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2870 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1962).

The exclusion of farm laborers and domestic servants from the scheme of the Work. Comp. Law may not be judicially declared an arbitrary classification, violating equal protection of the law. New York C. R. Co. v White, 243 U.S. 188, 37 S. Ct. 247, 61 L. Ed. 667, 1917 U.S. LEXIS 2105 (U.S. 1917).

67. Particular activities as farm labor

A claimant hired to do farm work, injured while driving a tractor which was operating a machine that removed tops from beets piled on the ground, was a farm laborer regardless of whether he was working for the farmer or a canning company for whose ultimate use the beets were grown. Pestlin v Haxton Canning Co., 299 N.Y. 477, 87 N.E.2d 522, 299 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 477, 1949 N.Y. LEXIS 959 (N.Y. 1949).

Cutting and storing ice for farm use is farm labor. Mullen v Little, 186 A.D. 169, 173 N.Y.S. 578, 1919 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5543 (N.Y. App. Div. 1919).

The owner of an automobile truck who received from a stock farmer twenty-five dollars a day for the use of the truck to bring garbage to the farmer's premises to feed hogs and who was injured while unloading truck, was at the time engaged in farm labor and is not entitled to award under Workmen's Compensation Law. Halletz v Wiseman, 193 A.D. 4, 183 N.Y.S. 112, 1920 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5499 (N.Y. App. Div. 1920).

Maintenance of a 19 acre city estate on which the owner raised chickens and cultivated a garden and sold broilers, surplus eggs and vegetables is not farm labor. Adams v Ross, 230 A.D. 216, 243 N.Y.S. 464, 1930 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8582 (N.Y. App. Div. 1930).

Care of poultry on a farm devoted to agriculture, stock raising and dairy produce, operated by a corporation conducting retail stores, is farm labor. Bennett v Stoneleigh Farms, Inc., 254 A.D. 790, 4 N.Y.S.2d 255, 1938 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7625 (N.Y. App. Div.), reh'g denied, 254 A.D. 914, 6 N.Y.S.2d 358, 1938 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8278 (N.Y. App. Div. 1938).

A claimant who suffers an injury while carrying ensilage to feed cows on a farm which had a large herd of cattle and on which the owner produced, pasteurized and sold milk is not entitled to compensation inasmuch as he is engaged in farm labor. Laduke v Martin, 261 A.D. 344, 25 N.Y.S.2d 622, 1941 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7323 (N.Y. App. Div.), aff'd, 287 N.Y. 546, 38 N.E.2d 221, 287 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 546, 1941 N.Y. LEXIS 2443 (N.Y. 1941).

One, injured in unloading hay into a hay pressing machine, is within the category of a "farm laborer", as well as within the category of "hazardous employment". Hadlock v Beers, 278 A.D. 1032, 106 N.Y.S.2d 806, 1951 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5605 (N.Y. App. Div. 1951).

The claimant had been working as an independent contractor filling silos in a certain neighborhood when he was approached by the foreman of the alleged employer and asked to fill the silos of his farm. During the course of this work, the claimant suffered an accident and since there was proof of supervision and control of the claimant by the foreman, the alleged employer was held liable for claimant's accident. Bemis v Friedman, 1 A.D.2d 860, 148 N.Y.S.2d 740, 1956 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6298 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1956).

Running a "mink farm" on 5 of 25 acres of land with only one of the remaining acres being used for agricultural purposes did not constitute the operation of a farm for the exclusion from coverage of the Workmen's Compensation Law. Vande v Mattison, 4 A.D.2d 910, 167 N.Y.S.2d 67, 1957 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4306 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1957).

68. —Maintenance and repair of farm buildings

There is sufficient evidence to support a finding that an employee was not a farm laborer and excluded from benefits under the workmen's compensation law where the employee was employed to remove metal sheeting from the roof of an obsolete building which the employer intended to put on buildings on his farm and the employer was engaged in the business of dealing in hay and operating a hay baling machine for pecuniary gain. Baum v Welden, 294 N.Y. 464, 63 N.E.2d 59, 294 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 464, 1945 N.Y. LEXIS 770 (N.Y. 1945).

Keeping farm machinery and buildings in repair is farm labor. Coleman v Bartholomew, 175 A.D. 122, 161 N.Y.S. 560, 1916 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8265 (N.Y. App. Div. 1916).

Slating of a barn roof by one customarily employed as a farm laborer is farm labor. Coleman v Bartholomew, 175 A.D. 122, 161 N.Y.S. 560, 1916 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8265 (N.Y. App. Div. 1916).

Where a farmer employed a neighbor to make repairs to his barn and the latter was injured by the collapse of staging used while placing slate on the roof, the employer was not at the time of the injury engaged in a hazardous employment, because, first, the employer was not engaged in structural carpentry, roofing or construction and repair of buildings for pecuniary gain, and, second, the employee was a farm laborer. Coleman v Bartholomew, 175 A.D. 122, 161 N.Y.S. 560, 1916 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8265 (N.Y. App. Div. 1916).

Where a farmer employed a neighbor who did occasional work as a carpenter to work by the hour in constructing a barn to replace a prior barn on the employer's farm which had been destroyed by fire, and the neighboring farmer was injured by a fall during the course of this work, he must be considered as working as a "farm laborer" at time of injury and not within the coverage of this Act. Allstate Ins. Co. v Kabes, 17 A.D.2d 1015, 233 N.Y.S.2d 806, 1962 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7000 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1962).

69. —Plowing

Appellants were farmers and neighbors of claimant who was also a farmer. Claimant, owner of rototiller, was hired by appellants to rototill a cornfield at $15.00 per hour. There was some evidence of direction of appellants although supervision could hardly be considered important in simple labor of plowing field. In course of work claimant was severely injured. The Board properly found that claimant was an employee and not an independent contractor. Denman v Many, 8 A.D.2d 576, 183 N.Y.S.2d 324, 1959 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9668 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1959), aff'd, 8 N.Y.2d 799, 202 N.Y.S.2d 16, 168 N.E.2d 250, 1960 N.Y. LEXIS 1283 (N.Y. 1960).

A workmen's compensation claimant who owned a rototiller which he used to cultivate land on his own dairy farm and also, from time to time, on other farms at a standard rate per hour or per acre, and who was injured while operating the machine on the farm of another under such an arrangement, was considered an employee while so operating the machine on the farm of another where such other told him where to work and in what order the fields should be handled, although not otherwise exercising any control over the manner of operating the machine. Denman v Many, 8 A.D.2d 576, 183 N.Y.S.2d 324, 1959 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9668 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1959), aff'd, 8 N.Y.2d 799, 202 N.Y.S.2d 16, 168 N.E.2d 250, 1960 N.Y. LEXIS 1283 (N.Y. 1960).

70. —Lumbering, logging and woodcutting

An employee, although his general occupation is that of a farm laborer, is engaged in a hazardous occupation, justifying an award under the Workmen's Compensation Law, in case of an accident where the principal business of the employer is that of farming, but he is also engaged in the business of milling for the purpose of pecuniary gain, and is the owner of a power driven milling machine. Hamilla v Gade, 278 N.Y. 502, 15 N.E.2d 438, 278 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 502, 1938 N.Y. LEXIS 1358 (N.Y. 1938).

An employee injured while cutting fire wood for domestic use from a farm that the employer was operating on shares is entitled to an award of compensation. Butterfield v Brown, 287 N.Y. 623, 39 N.E.2d 264, 287 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 623, 1941 N.Y. LEXIS 2494 (N.Y. 1941).

Exclusion as a farm laborer has been held to apply to an employee logging on a farm. Brockett v Mietz, 184 A.D. 342, 171 N.Y.S. 412, 1918 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6032 (N.Y. App. Div. 1918).

Employment as a chore and stable boy in a lumber camp is not farm labor. Posey v Moynehan, 195 A.D. 440, 186 N.Y.S. 753, 1921 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4772 (N.Y. App. Div. 1921).

Buzz sawing kindling wood for farm use is farm labor. King v Burlingame, 242 A.D. 499, 275 N.Y.S. 106, 1934 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6104 (N.Y. App. Div. 1934).

There is evidence to sustain a finding by the board that an employee was not a farm laborer, where the claimant was employed as a truck driver, mechanic and laborer and was injured in drawing logs from the premises of a third party to the employer's saw mill, and it further appears that the employer was engaged in several activities other than farming. Miles v Colegrove, 258 A.D. 1014, 16 N.Y.S.2d 988, 1940 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8647 (N.Y. App. Div.), aff'd, 284 N.Y. 609, 29 N.E.2d 929, 284 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 609, 1940 N.Y. LEXIS 1255 (N.Y. 1940).

The status of claimant employed to do general farm work is not altered by his cutting wood for kindling. Davis v Ryan, 262 A.D. 982, 30 N.Y.S.2d 17, 1941 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6775 (N.Y. App. Div. 1941), aff'd, 287 N.Y. 778, 40 N.E.2d 646, 287 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 778, 1942 N.Y. LEXIS 1794 (N.Y. 1942).

A claimant, who is not a regular farm hand, is not engaged in farm labor where his employer, although a farmer was engaged in a lumbering operation on land which he neither owned nor rented. Jorgensen v Beach, 277 A.D. 960, 99 N.Y.S.2d 669, 1950 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3995 (N.Y. App. Div. 1950).

71. —Threshing and milling

Threshing grain is not farming. White v Loades, 178 A.D. 236, 164 N.Y.S. 1023, 1917 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5842 (N.Y. App. Div. 1917).

A person, whose sole duty to his employers is feeding bundles of rye into a combined thresher and cleaner is not a farm laborer, within the meaning of former § 3, subd. 4, nor is he employed in "milling," within meaning of former § 2, group 29, where his employer's interest and conduct of milling business is confined solely to operation of thresher and cleaner. Vincent v Taylor Bros., 180 A.D. 818, 168 N.Y.S. 287, 1917 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9112 (N.Y. App. Div. 1917).

72. —Improvements on abandoned farms prior to development or sale

A claimant injured while pruning an apple tree on a deserted farm purchased by a contractor for the purpose of improving the place and eventually making a sale of the farm at a profit is not engaged in farm labor. O'Dell v Bowman, 189 A.D. 386, 179 N.Y.S. 592, 1919 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4675 (N.Y. App. Div. 1919).

A carpenter hired to do work on an abandoned farm which the employer intended to use as a summer home, a permanent home or as a real estate development is eligible for workmen's compensation. Dolan v Erdmann, 265 A.D. 895, 37 N.Y.S.2d 864, 1942 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6374 (N.Y. App. Div. 1942).

73. —Pasturization of milk

Claimant working on the farm of a milk pasteurizing firm and injured while cutting fire wood was not engaged in work incidental to the pasteurization and bottling business and hence is a farm laborer within subd. 4 of this section. In re Davis, 287 N.Y. 778, 40 N.E.2d 646, 287 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 778, 1942 N.Y. LEXIS 1794 (N.Y. 1942).

Pasteurization of milk by dairy farmers on their own farms is part of the preparation of their milk for market and is farm labor. Laduke v Martin, 261 A.D. 344, 25 N.Y.S.2d 622, 1941 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7323 (N.Y. App. Div.), aff'd, 287 N.Y. 546, 38 N.E.2d 221, 287 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 546, 1941 N.Y. LEXIS 2443 (N.Y. 1941).

General farm work performed on a farm maintained in connection with the employer's milk pasteurizing and bottling plant in an adjacent city is farm labor. Davis v Ryan, 262 A.D. 982, 30 N.Y.S.2d 17, 1941 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6775 (N.Y. App. Div. 1941), aff'd, 287 N.Y. 778, 40 N.E.2d 646, 287 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 778, 1942 N.Y. LEXIS 1794 (N.Y. 1942).

74. Domestic servants

A chauffeur repairing his employer's family touring car has domestic servant status, although he also operates his employer's business truck. Wincheski v Morris, 179 A.D. 600, 166 N.Y.S. 873, 1917 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7430 (N.Y. App. Div. 1917).

Domestic servants may by action of the employer under group 19 of § 3, and under § 50 be brought under the Act. Fostner v Morawitz, 215 A.D. 176, 213 N.Y.S. 202, 1926 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10932 (N.Y. App. Div. 1926).

Unless there is something more shown than a mere approval of selection and direction as to what a servant does in the domestic service of a husband and wife, there is no joint or individual responsibility on the part of a wife as an employer under the statute. Hence, merely because a wife was an active factor in the selection or management of a domestic servant did not mean when the domestic was injured in the course of her employment that she was an employee of the wife as well as the husband. North v Richards, 283 A.D. 21, 126 N.Y.S.2d 241, 1953 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2969 (N.Y. App. Div. 1953).

There was substantial evidence that claimant, a domestic, was an employee of corporation rather than of individual appellant at time of accident. Claimant went to work in appellant's home with knowledge and consent of corporation to care for president of corporation, who was disabled, and to permit appellant wife to take charge of operation of corporation for which she received no compensation. Insurance carrier had made audit of corporate books where claimant's name appeared as employee and had collected premiums based on her salary. Sabre v Marie Sheridan, Inc., 6 A.D.2d 953, 176 N.Y.S.2d 419, 1958 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5018 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1958).

Workers' Compensation Board properly found that employee had been in covered employment where (1) employee responded through agency to employer's advertisement for full-time live-in domestic, (2) employee testified that she was hired for advertised position and injured herself on her third day, (3) employer testified that employee was hired only for single evening of babysitting, and (4) employment agency personnel testified that employee was hired to fill advertised position until someone more suitable could be found; board could reasonably infer that full-time live-in arrangement contemplated by employer involved 40 or more hours of work per week. Williams v Geddes, 125 A.D.2d 796, 510 N.Y.S.2d 204, 1986 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 63009 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1986).

Workers' compensation claimant, who performed domestic services for corporation president at his home and injured her back while packing boxes for his move to another residence, was employee of corporation and was not engaged in dual employment for both corporation and president where she was paid and supplied with W-2 forms by corporation, and her responsibilities included provision of domestic services to president, notwithstanding facts that claimant began working at president's request and was paid in cash by president for several years before corporation began to pay her. Daughtrey v Enertex Computer Concepts, Inc., 149 A.D.2d 872, 540 N.Y.S.2d 560, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5020 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1989).

Workers' compensation claimant, who performed domestic services for corporation president at his home and injured her back while packing boxes for his move to another residence, was employee covered under corporation's insurance contract with its carrier where Workers' Compensation Board determined that she was employee of corporation and neither corporation nor insurance carrier came forward with effective exclusion for employees such as claimant. Daughtrey v Enertex Computer Concepts, Inc., 149 A.D.2d 872, 540 N.Y.S.2d 560, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5020 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1989).

A housewife who supplemented family income by working weekends serving at social affairs was within the definition of "employee" in subd. 4 of this section, as amended, where, although she was employed in the particular household on only one occasion and for a particular event, her employer took the precaution of taking out a special compensation liability insurance policy covering "in servants" for which he paid a special premium. Weiss v Laffman, 43 Misc. 2d 653, 251 N.Y.S.2d 833, 1964 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1568 (N.Y. Civ. Ct. 1964).

In insureds' action seeking coverage for liability for workers' compensation benefits to their live-in housekeeper who was injured in course of her employment, wherein insureds maintained that they voluntarily elected to cover housekeeper and thus brought her within class of workers covered by Workers' Compensation Law for purposes of endorsement provided for in their homeowners' insurance policy, ambiguity in endorsement arose because it was unclear whether second condition of endorsement (whether insured's employee was one for whom workers' compensation benefits "must be provided") was satisfied by existence of endorsement itself. Haber v St. Paul Guardian Ins. Co., 137 F.3d 691, 1998 U.S. App. LEXIS 2416 (2d Cir. N.Y. 1998).

New York State Insurance Law does not require insurance policy, which provides comprehensive personal liability insurance on one, 2-, 3-, or 4-family owner-occupied dwelling, to include workers' compensation coverage for domestic worker who works fewer than 40 hours per week for same policyholder. Insurance

Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 03-05-22.

Policyholder under comprehensive personal liability insurance for one, 2-, 3-, or 4-family owner-occupied dwelling may obtain workers' compensation coverage for domestic worker if policyholder elects to secure compensation to such employee by (1) "insuring and keeping insured the payment of such compensation in the state fund," or (2) "insuring and keeping insured the payment of such compensation with any stock corporation, mutual corporation or reciprocal insurer authorized to transact the business of workmen's compensation insurance in the state." Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 03-05-22.

75. Casual employment in and about one family owner occupied residence

An order of Appellate Division reversing the decision of the Workers' Compensation Board awarding benefits to claimant, would be reversed and the decision of the Board reinstated where there was substantial evidence before the Board upon which it could base its finding that claimant was not working in a "one family owner-occupied residence" even though it was the owner's intention to convert the house to a one-family residence, since the Board could conclude that the conversion process had not yet been completed when claimant was injured. Hill v Thompson, 61 N.Y.2d 1018, 475 N.Y.S.2d 373, 463 N.E.2d 1225, 1984 N.Y. LEXIS 4234 (N.Y. 1984).

There was substantial evidence to sustain a decision of the Board as to existence of an employer-employee relationship and that employment of claimant was in connection with business conducted by the employer for pecuniary gain where it appeared that the employer owned 16 acres of land purchased originally as a summer residence for her family but on which, as well as a large residence, there was a small cottage and living quarters in a garage which were rented out or offered for rent from time to time, and that claimant was employed as handyman or caretaker at $1.50 an hour and injured while helping to move furniture from the garage to the large house. Gallo v Scofield, 18 A.D.2d 1039, 238 N.Y.S.2d 459, 1963 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4180 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1963).

New York Workers' Compensation Board's finding that there was an employment relationship between a workers' compensation claimant and an employer was affirmed where the claimant was hired by the employer to perform tree removal and driveway work, the employer negotiated the job with the homeowner and was paid by the homeowner, the employer provided some of the equipment and materials for the job, and the employer paid the claimant. Marques v Salgado, 12 A.D.3d 817, 784 N.Y.S.2d 241, 2004 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13259 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2004).

The 1962 amendment of the definition of "employee" in subd. 4 of this section to exclude persons engaged in casual employment at yard work, household chores, etc., in and about a one family owner-occupied residence was designed to preclude claims for compensation by journeymen working around private homes, and the additional term "household chores" in this amendment, while seemingly broad enough to cover domestic services, when taken in full context does not exclude servants rendering such services from voluntary coverage. Weiss v Laffman, 43 Misc. 2d 653, 251 N.Y.S.2d 833, 1964 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1568 (N.Y. Civ. Ct. 1964).

IV. Employment

76. In general

The Work. Comp. Law applies only in case a workman is engaged in an employment carried on by an employer for pecuniary gain or in connection therewith. Dillon v Trustees of St. Patrick's Cathedral, 234 N.Y. 225, 137 N.E. 311, 234 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 225, 1922 N.Y. LEXIS 639 (N.Y. 1922).

For purposes of compensation, the law makes no distinction between a public and private employment. An employer's liability to pay compensation depends upon the employment and the right to payment depends on a work-connected injury. Perry v Cherry Valley, 307 N.Y. 427, 121 N.E.2d 402, 307 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 427, 1954 N.Y. LEXIS 973 (N.Y. 1954).

Workers' compensation insurance carrier would not be relieved of liability, even though garage owner's employment of wrecking truck driver might have violated tax laws and other statutes due to fact that no taxes were withheld from driver's wages and wages paid might have been below minimum wage, since any illegality did not inhere to work itself. Davison v Holder, 137 A.D.2d 899, 524 N.Y.S.2d 871, 1988 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1642 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1988).

77. Particular activities as trade or business carried on for pecuniary gain

Injuries to the chauffeur of a department store delivery truck, while repairing the pleasure car of his employer, are not received while engaged in a hazardous employment conducted for pecuniary gain. Wincheski v Morris, 179 A.D. 600, 166 N.Y.S. 873, 1917 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7430 (N.Y. App. Div. 1917).

The owners of dwelling house who boarded the local school teacher and accepted tourists as paying guests are not engaged in a trade of business for pecuniary gain within the meaning of the law. Empie v Cossart, 259 A.D. 941, 20 N.Y.S.2d 3, 1940 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7372 (N.Y. App. Div. 1940).

78. —Building maintenance, repair or construction

Where the employer's son was injured while on his way to procure painting materials to be used about a building owned by a corporation whose stock was owned entirely by the employer and his family, the building being used as a residence by the employer's family, an award of compensation cannot be sustained since the employer was not engaged in the repair of the building for pecuniary gain. Goldberger v Goldberger, 200 A.D. 190, 192 N.Y.S. 727, 1922 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8153 (N.Y. App. Div. 1922).

Claimant was an employee and was injured in work performed in a "business" carried on by the employer for a pecuniary gain where he was injured while repairing a ceiling in a bathroom occupied by the employer in a two-story dwelling which was connected by an open-air eating stand to the employer's restaurant. Smith v White, 3 A.D.2d 869, 161 N.Y.S.2d 440, 1957 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5888 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1957).

79. —Demolition and salvaging operations

A religious corporation which owns and carries on a cemetery, selling burial privileges and using the proceeds in supporting the cemetery, including salaries of employees, and any balance remaining for educational, religious and charitable purposes, is not engaged in a trade, business or occupation carried on for pecuniary gain within the meaning of former § 3, subd. 5. Dillon v Trustees of St. Patrick's Cathedral, 234 N.Y. 225, 137 N.E. 311, 234 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 225, 1922 N.Y. LEXIS 639 (N.Y. 1922).

A farm owner is not engaged in business for pecuniary gain in tearing down an old barn on the premises and salvaging the material, where it appears that this was being done to put the farm in condition for farming for a new tenant whose lease was about to begin. Millard v Townsend, 204 A.D. 132, 197 N.Y.S. 702, 1923 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9429 (N.Y. App. Div. 1923).

Where an employee was injured in the demolition of a bungalow, the fact that the ground upon which the bungalow stood was leveled off and used as a parking space within 6 months after the accident justifies the inference that the demolition was preparatory to devoting the space to a parking lot. Coppola v Tilyou, 271 A.D. 848, 65 N.Y.S.2d 619, 1946 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3388 (N.Y. App. Div. 1946), aff'd, 297 N.Y. 656, 76 N.E.2d 322, 297 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 656, 1947 N.Y. LEXIS 1131 (N.Y. 1947).

A city may not require as a condition to the issuance of a demolition permit, that each person engaged in such work be covered by accident insurance providing a stated weekly benefit if such persons are not covered by the Workmen's Compensation Law. 1965 Op St Compt No. 65–776.

80. —Operations not primiarily created to yield profit

A golf club incorporated under the Mem. Corp. Law, maintained exclusively for social purposes, and which distributes no dividends to its members, is not carrying on business for pecuniary gain within meaning of former § 3, subd. 5, and is not liable for the death of a cook in the kitchen of its restaurant. Francisco v Oakland Golf Club, 193 A.D. 573, 185 N.Y.S. 97, 1920 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5602 (N.Y. App. Div. 1920).

When an organization not primarily created for business engages in a profit yielding enterprise, the profits will be pecuniary gain or not, depending on the disposition made of them. Rugg v

Norwich Hospital Ass'n, 205 A.D. 174, 199 N.Y.S. 735, 1923 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4975 (N.Y. App. Div. 1923).

The workmen's compensation law is applicable notwithstanding the employer is a charitable corporation if it has elected voluntarily to bring the employment within the coverage of the law. Monteleone v Center Storage Warehouses, Inc., 68 N.Y.S.2d 369, 1946 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3367 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1946).See also Posey v Moynehan, 195 A.D. 440, 186 N.Y.S. 753, 1921 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4772 (N.Y. App. Div. 1921).

V. Compensation

81. In general

The term "compensation" as defined by subd. 6, and as used in § 28, as amended by L 1928 ch 754, means "the money allowance payable to an employee or to his dependents," and includes an allowance for death benefits. Davis v Rust, 231 A.D. 336, 247 N.Y.S. 309, 1931 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 16051 (N.Y. App. Div. 1931).

An award of compensation may not be made subsequent to the conviction of the employee of second degree murder and his sentence to life imprisonment, since the employee is then civilly dead. Pallas v Misericordia Hospital, 264 A.D. 1, 34 N.Y.S.2d 881, 1942 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4052 (N.Y. App. Div. 1942), aff'd, 291 N.Y. 692, 52 N.E.2d 590, 291 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 692, 1943 N.Y. LEXIS 1794 (N.Y. 1943).

"Compensation" as defined in this section means the money allowance payable to an employee. It does not include wages paid for value received. If any part of wages are to be deemed an advance payment, such part must necessarily be found gratuitous. If an injured employee returns to work and fully earns his hire there is nothing gratuitous to such an arrangement. In that case the employer gives him nothing; he merely pays for the worth of the services performed. The test is whether the employer paid for something he did not get in the way of service. Baker v Standard Rolling Mills, Inc., 284 A.D. 433, 131 N.Y.S.2d 739, 1954 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3420 (N.Y. App. Div. 1954).

Where the estate representative of the former owner of a supermarket had permitted the deceased husband of the benefits claimant to manage the business and had paid him for his services and business expenses, an employment relationship was created and maintained until the employee's accidental death, and having accepted the benefits of decedent's efforts, the estate was estopped from denying the existence of an employment relationship. Jimenez v Estate of Jimenez, 79 A.D.2d 798, 435 N.Y.S.2d 113, 1980 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 14204 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1980).

Substantial evidence supported Board's finding that claimant was an employee at the time of the accident where at the hearing claimant produced payroll stubs from the employer, a payroll check from the employer, a photostat of the check from the employer mailed to claimant showing Social Security withholdings, and where although being advised of hearing, employer did not appear. Kosak v Dana Group, Inc., 84 A.D.2d 631, 444 N.Y.S.2d 277, 1981 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 15746 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1981).

Definition of "advance payment of compensation" for purposes of CLS Work Comp § 25-a is no different than for CLS Work Comp § 28, since informal claims are treated same as formal awards under Workers' Compensation Law. Loiacono v Sears Roebuck & Co., 230 A.D.2d 351, 654 N.Y.S.2d 463, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2227 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1997).

82. Medical expenses

Medical expenses required by § 13 of this law to be furnished by the employer are not compensation within the meaning of subdivision 6 of this section. Friedman v Simon, 267 A.D. 17, 45 N.Y.S.2d 89, 1943 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5957 (N.Y. App. Div. 1943), aff'd, 293 N.Y. 720, 56 N.E.2d 732, 293 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 720, 1944 N.Y. LEXIS 2141 (N.Y. 1944).

Payments for drugs and medicines constitute payments of compensation. Cook v New York C. R., 270 A.D. 869, 60 N.Y.S.2d 342, 1946 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4370 (N.Y. App. Div.), aff'd, 296 N.Y. 576, 68 N.E.2d 872, 296 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 576, 1946 N.Y. LEXIS 1171 (N.Y. 1946).

Although medical expenses do not fit into definition of "compensation" under CLS Work Comp § 2(6), other provisions of Workers' Compensation Law refer to medical benefits as compensation, and thus medical expenses are included within concept of compensation for settlements reached under CLS Work Comp § 15(5-b). Cordell v Oneida Youth Div., 146 A.D.2d 362, 540 N.Y.S.2d 921, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6204 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), app. denied, 74 N.Y.2d 614, 547 N.Y.S.2d 848, 547 N.E.2d 103, 1989 N.Y. LEXIS 3160 (N.Y. 1989).

Payment of claimant's medical expenses was not "payment of compensation" for purposes of determining applicability of CLS Work Comp § 25-a. McQueen v New York State Div. of Parole, 245 A.D.2d 851, 666 N.Y.S.2d 317, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13193 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1997), app. denied, 92 N.Y.2d 802, 677 N.Y.S.2d 72, 699 N.E.2d 432, 1998 N.Y. LEXIS 1767 (N.Y. 1998).

Liability of employer's workers' compensation carrier for injured employee's future medical payments would be discharged, and liability would be transferred to Special Fund for Reopened Cases under CLS Work Comp § 25-a, where (1) accident occurred on October 18, 1984, last payment of compensation was made on November 19, 1984, and thus criterion of requisite passage of time was met, and (2) chiropractor's reports did not indicate change in claimant's condition, and thus did not constitute reopening of case so as to remove it from purview of statute. McQueen v New York State Div. of Parole, 245 A.D.2d 851, 666 N.Y.S.2d 317, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13193 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1997), app. denied, 92 N.Y.2d 802, 677 N.Y.S.2d 72, 699 N.E.2d 432, 1998 N.Y. LEXIS 1767 (N.Y. 1998).

Payment of medical expenses is not compensation, as compensation is defined by CLS Work Comp § 2(6). Hill v Eastman Kodak Co., 258 A.D.2d 861, 686 N.Y.S.2d 141, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1961 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1999).

Award of counsel fees may only be paid from lost wages, not from or as result of medical benefits award, as counsel fees must be paid from "compensation," which is defined in CLS Work Comp § 2(6) as "the money allowance payable to an employee or to his dependents." Cummins v N. Med. Family Physicians, 283 A.D.2d 861, 726 N.Y.S.2d 163, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5420 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), app. denied, 96 N.Y.2d 720, 733 N.Y.S.2d 372, 759 N.E.2d 371, 2001 N.Y. LEXIS 3088 (N.Y. 2001), limited, Matter of Shea v Icelandair, 63 A.D.3d 30, 876 N.Y.S.2d 225, 2009 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2484 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2009).

Under N.Y. Workers' Comp. Law § 2(9), the claimant's workers' compensation benefits were based on his actual wage without inclusion of health insurance payments that the employer made for his benefit. Kellish v Kellish Tire Sales, Inc., 12 A.D.3d 804, 784 N.Y.S.2d 238, 2004 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13280 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2004).

Workers' Compensation Board erred when it denied an award of counsel fees in a settlement under N.Y. Workers' Comp. Law § 32 that awarded an employee medical and travel expenses, as such constituted "compensation" under N.Y. Workers' Comp. Law §§ 24 and 2(6) under a liberal interpretation of that term. Matter of Shea v Icelandair, 63 A.D.3d 30, 876 N.Y.S.2d 225, 2009 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2484 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2009).

Compensation includes medical expenses incurred by the injured employee. Semmen v Butterick Pub. Co., 166 N.Y.S. 993, 101 Misc. 285, 1917 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 644 (N.Y. App. Term 1917).; Goldflam v Kazemier & Uhl, Inc., 181 A.D. 140, 168 N.Y.S. 87, 1917 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9057 (N.Y. App. Div. 1917).

Payment of a doctor's bill is not within the definition of "compensation." Employers Liability Assurance Corp. v Fisher, 13 N.Y.S.2d 902, 1939 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2123 (N.Y. City Ct. 1939).

83. Other payments

Payments to statutory special funds where a deceased employee leaves no person legally entitled to compensation, does not constitute compensation within the meaning of the workmen's compensation law. Industrial Comm'r v McCarthy, 295 N.Y. 443, 68 N.E.2d 434, 295 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 443, 1946 N.Y. LEXIS 799 (N.Y. 1946).

Funeral expenses are included within the term "compensation" under subd. 6, and they are death benefits under § 16, subd. 1.

Donoho v Atlantic Basin Iron Works, 210 A.D. 535, 206 N.Y.S. 494, 1924 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6784 (N.Y. App. Div. 1924).

An award for serious facial disfigurement is compensation within the meaning of subdivision 6 of this section. Ulman v Jerome Glass & Shade Co., 266 A.D. 643, 44 N.Y.S.2d 641, 1943 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3639 (N.Y. App. Div. 1943).

Payment of compensation, under § 25 of the Workmen's Compensation Law, in anticipation of an award, although no award is made, constitutes a taking of compensation within § 29 of the Act, subd. 1, and 2 in accordance with the interpretation placed upon the term "compensation" by § 2, subd. 6, and § 25 of the Act, and so a third party action must be commenced before the expiration of one year from the date the action accrues to avoid an automatic assignment under § 29 subd. 1. Hatch v Cherry-Burrell Corp., 274 A.D. 234, 82 N.Y.S.2d 322, 1948 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3048 (N.Y. App. Div.), app. denied, 274 A.D. 869, 83 N.Y.S.2d 219, 1948 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3740 (N.Y. App. Div. 1948).

Schedule allowances should not be deemed exclusive when issue is treatment of smaller member as percentage loss of larger. Pedro v Liberty Lines Express, 246 A.D.2d 945, 667 N.Y.S.2d 859, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 751 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1998).

Substantial evidence supported Workers' Compensation Board's finding of 50 percent schedule loss of use of claimant's hand where board's medical examiner testified that although injury was directly sustained by claimant's thumb, resulting damage obviously diminished prehensile function of entire hand, and claimant was no longer able to grip objects with his hand. Pedro v Liberty Lines Express, 246 A.D.2d 945, 667 N.Y.S.2d 859, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 751 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1998).

CLS Gen Mun § 207-c benefits, which are in nature of disability benefits paid under statutory compulsion to compensate certain municipal employees for injuries incurred in performance of special work related to heightened risks and duties, are not "wages" within purview of CLS Work Comp § 15(3)(w) which pertains to nonschedule award for permanent partial disability, or CLS Work Comp § 15(5) which pertains to award for temporary partial disability. Lynch v South Nyack/Grand View Police Dep't, 276 A.D.2d 63, 716 N.Y.S.2d 732, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12251 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2000).

Findings that housing provided by an employer was not remuneration for an employee's services, but was intended to prevent the employee from having to incur extra living expenses while working away from his primary residences, and, thus, the housing was not included in the employee's wage under N.Y. Workers' Comp. Law § 2(9) were supported by substantial evidence; the evidence showed that the employer only furnished housing when the employee was away from his own residence, there was no evidence that workers who were not provided housing received higher salaries than those who did, and the employee admitted that he did not claim the value of the housing as income on his tax returns. Matter of Tangora v Volume Servs. Am., 32 A.D.3d 604, 820 N.Y.S.2d 158, 2006 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9831 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2006).

VI. Accidental Injury Generally

84. In general

The Work Comp Law does not afford compensation for injuries or misfortunes which merely are contemporaneous or coincident with the employment or collateral to it. Personal injury must be the result of the employment and flow from it as the inducing proximate cause. Alpert v Powers, 223 N.Y. 97, 119 N.E. 229, 223 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 97, 1918 N.Y. LEXIS 1162 (N.Y. 1918).

The wording of subdivision 7 does not warrant the argument that an infection is coupled with disease as something other than an accident or injury, though a possible concomitant; the intention was by the addition of these words to enlarge and not to narrow. Connelly v Hunt Furniture Co., 240 N.Y. 83, 147 N.E. 366, 240 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 83, 1925 N.Y. LEXIS 703 (N.Y. 1925).

It is necessary for an employee seeking to obtain compensation benefits to establish only that his injury was caused by an activity related to his job, whereas the doctrine of respondeat superior has clearly not received such wide application because of the requirement that the employee be under the control of the employer at the time of the injury. Lundberg v State, 25 N.Y.2d 467, 306 N.Y.S.2d 947, 255 N.E.2d 177, 1969 N.Y. LEXIS 938 (N.Y. 1969), reh'g denied, 26 N.Y.2d 883, 309 N.Y.S.2d 1032, 258 N.E.2d 223, 1970 N.Y. LEXIS 1897 (N.Y. 1970).

Whether particular event is accidental injury under Workmen's Compensation Law is to be determined, not by any legal definition, but by commonsense viewpoint of average man. Middleton v Coxsackie Correctional Facility, 38 N.Y.2d 130, 379 N.Y.S.2d 3, 341 N.E.2d 527, 1975 N.Y. LEXIS 2297 (N.Y. 1975).

An injury to be within protection of the Work. Comp. Law must be received while the workman is doing the duty he is employed to perform, and it must be one of the risks connected with the employment flowing therefrom as a natural consequence and directly connected with the work. In re Lauterbach, 189 A.D. 303, 178 N.Y.S. 480, 1919 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4650 (N.Y. App. Div. 1919).See also Magill v Cunard White Star, Ltd., 275 N.Y. 568, 11 N.E.2d 757, 275 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 568, 1937 N.Y. LEXIS 1549 (N.Y. 1937).

Injury and personal injury mean only accidental injuries as set forth in former § 3, subd. 7, and until it is shown that there has been an accident, something which is apart from the natural and inevitable results of proper performance of the duties of the employment, there is no foundation for the application of the statute. Scoville v Tolhurst Mach. Works, 193 A.D. 606, 184 N.Y.S. 608, 1920 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5615 (N.Y. App. Div. 1920), aff'd, 231 N.Y. 510, 132 N.E. 867, 231 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 510, 1921 N.Y. LEXIS 661 (N.Y. 1921).

Precedents are of little value in determining whether or not an injury arises out of and in the course of the employment. McGrinder v Sullivan, 264 A.D. 640, 37 N.Y.S.2d 1, 1942 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4223 (N.Y. App. Div. 1942), rev'd, 290 N.Y. 11, 47 N.E.2d 421, 290 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 11, 1943 N.Y. LEXIS 1131 (N.Y. 1943).

In a workmen's compensation case, the burden of proof is upon claimant to establish that there was an accidental injury connected with the employment. Finn v Merritt, Chapman & Scott, 20 A.D.2d 731, 246 N.Y.S.2d 839, 1964 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4371 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1964).

The board in its capacity as the arbiter of factual issues is to decide if a given incident constitutes an accident within the meaning of the Workmen's Compensation Law, and its determinations must be sustained if supported by substantial evidence. Connors v Secon Secur., Inc., 24 A.D.2d 674, 261 N.Y.S.2d 136, 1965 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3675 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), app. denied, 16 N.Y.2d 486, 1965 N.Y. LEXIS 2201 (N.Y. 1965).

To bring an accident with the exclusive jurisdiction of the Workmen's Compensation Law, it is sufficient if the accident arises logically out of the employment and the hazards of the way in and out are part of the employment. Sicktish v Vulcan Industries of Buffalo, Inc., 33 A.D.2d 975, 307 N.Y.S.2d 385, 1970 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5731 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1970).

The Workmen's Compensation Law does not require that there be an accidental injury arising out of and in the course of the employment in order to recover, but only that there be a disablement of the employee which resulted from services in the line of duty. Hoff v Williston Park, 50 A.D.2d 631, 374 N.Y.S.2d 756, 1975 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12443 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1975).

Workers' Compensation Board properly ruled that claimant's injuries were result of her deliberate intention to injure herself where, inter alia, accident occurred on straight section of road on clear and sunny day, road was dry, there was no evidence that claimant's automobile malfunctioned, and there were no skid marks to indicate she took evasive action, carrier's accident reconstructionist concluded that accident was not result of avoidance maneuver, there were reports and testimony of 2 psychiatrists, one of whom examined claimant and both of whom reviewed her psychiatric records—including her hospitalization for which she was discharged just 15 days prior to accident—reflecting that she suffered serious psychotic illness, characterized by paranoid delusions along with depressive symptoms, claimant had history of medication noncompliance and continued to have psychotic thoughts following her recent discharge, and both psychiatrists opined that patients with claimant's psychiatric illnesses were known to be suicidal and were of view that her accident was deliberate and nonaccidental, result of delusional and suicidal thinking. Mackenzie v Management Recruiters, 271 A.D.2d 822, 706 N.Y.S.2d 247, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4445 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), app. denied, 95 N.Y.2d 768, 721 N.Y.S.2d 605, 744 N.E.2d 141, 2000 N.Y. LEXIS 3586 (N.Y. 2000).

Workers' Compensation Board's denial of claim, concluding that claimant's development of consequential anxiety disorder as result of noncompensable asbestosis did not constitute accident or occupational disease, would be reversed and matter remitted for further proceedings since claimant's entitlement to compensation depended not on compensability of asbestosis alone but whether claimant was totally disabled by 2 inseparable causative agents, one of which was asbestosis, and Board did not determine extent of claimant's disability or inseparability of asbestosis and anxiety disorder. Fonda v Cambridge Filter Corp., 272 A.D.2d 787, 708 N.Y.S.2d 514, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5946 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2000).

Workers' Compensation Board improperly found that file clerk sustained accidental injury as result of repeated trauma from bending and kneeling involved in filing documents in bottom 2 rows of filing cabinet drawers since physical placement of file cabinets did not subject claimant to seriously adverse environmental condition, and her repeated act of kneeling to reach lower file cabinet drawers was not unexpected or unusual. Demir v Taxi & Limousine Comm'n, 272 A.D.2d 789, 708 N.Y.S.2d 731, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5938 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2000).

The whole field of damages for injuries caused by negligence outside of the employment is left untouched by the Work. Comp. Law excepting only where an employee is injured in the course of his employment, by one other than his employer. Royal Indem. Co. v J. G. White Engineering Corp., 198 N.Y.S. 264, 120 Misc. 332, 1923 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1542 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1923), aff'd, 208 A.D. 759, 202 N.Y.S. 950, 1924 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5455 (N.Y. App. Div. 1924).

85. "Accident" or "accidental" defined

The approved definition of an accident is "an unlooked for mishap or an untoward event which is not expected or designed" being limited so that "an act done deliberately and wilfully by a third party may be an accident from the viewpoint of the employer and employee." In re Heitz, 218 N.Y. 148, 112 N.E. 750, 218 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 148, 1916 N.Y. LEXIS 1054 (N.Y.), reh'g denied, 218 N.Y. 702, 113 N.E. 1057, 218 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 702, 1916 N.Y. LEXIS 1211 (N.Y. 1916).

An accidental event takes place without one's foresight or expectation and proceeds from an unknown cause, or is an unusual effect of a known cause, and therefore not expected. Woodruff v R. H. Howes Const. Co., 228 N.Y. 276, 127 N.E. 270, 228 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 276, 1920 N.Y. LEXIS 934 (N.Y. 1920).

An injury caused deliberately and willfully by a third party may be an "accidental injury" within the meaning of the statute from the viewpoint of the employer and employee. Spang v Broadway Brewing & Malting Co., 182 A.D. 443, 169 N.Y.S. 574, 1918 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7882 (N.Y. App. Div. 1918).

In determining whether a decision of the Board that death resulted from accidental injuries arising out of and in the course of employment is proper, the court will not use a legal definition; if the facts and circumstances, upon any reasonable hypothesis, sustain the conclusion that an average man would view the event as accidental, then the determination of the Board is final. Broderick v Liebmann Breweries, 277 A.D. 422, 100 N.Y.S.2d 837, 1950 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3076 (N.Y. App. Div. 1950).

An intentional, willful, wanton and malicious assault by an employer upon his employee during the course of the employment may not be an "accidental injury" over which the Workmen's Compensation Law has exclusive jurisdiction. Legault v Brown, 283 A.D. 303, 127 N.Y.S.2d 601, 1954 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4669 (N.Y. App. Div. 1954).

A firefighter's anxiety neurosis, that he believed he was a perfectionist who could not "roll with the punches," he felt that some of his fellow fire fighters were laughing at him because he was such a conscientious worker, and, most significant, he felt he was blamed for the death of an occupant of a burning house even though he was without fault, was an occupational disease under Work Comp Law § 3(2) but, if related to his occupation in general terms, the disorder might be accidental as defined in Work Comp Law § 2(7) and Work Comp Law § 10. Hennige v Fairview Fire Dist., 99 A.D.2d 158, 472 N.Y.S.2d 204, 1984 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 16534 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1984).

Term "accident" includes situations where mental injury is caused not by discrete, identifiable psychic trauma but by emotional distress over extended period of time, notwithstanding that job stress may have only been contributing cause of precipitation of claimant's preexisting mental condition. Cerami v City of Rochester Sch. Dist., 187 A.D.2d 763, 589 N.Y.S.2d 939, 590 N.Y.S.2d 306, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12629 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1992), rev'd, 82 N.Y.2d 809, 604 N.Y.S.2d 543, 624 N.E.2d 680, 1993 N.Y. LEXIS 3263 (N.Y. 1993).

Injuries resulting from a wanton and wilful assault by an employer upon his employee are not accidental injuries within the meaning of subdivision 7 of this section. Le Pochat v Pendleton (1946) 187 Misc 296, 63 NYS2d 313, affd (1947) 271 App Div 964, 68 NYS2d 594.See also Loftus v Columbia Ribbon & Carbon Mfg. Co., 61 N.Y.S.2d 102, 1945 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2719 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1945).

86. Definite time requirement; suddenness of cause or result

To establish time definiteness required of compensable accident under Workmen's Compensation Law, it is not decisive that claimant is unable to pinpoint exact date on which incident occurred. Middleton v Coxsackie Correctional Facility, 38 N.Y.2d 130, 379 N.Y.S.2d 3, 341 N.E.2d 527, 1975 N.Y. LEXIS 2297 (N.Y. 1975).

Concept of time definiteness required to establish accidental injury under Workmen's Compensation Law can apply to either cause or result, so that there can be accident where there is exposure to condition over protracted period during which victim succumbs to disease culminating in relatively sudden collapse. Middleton v Coxsackie Correctional Facility, 38 N.Y.2d 130, 379 N.Y.S.2d 3, 341 N.E.2d 527, 1975 N.Y. LEXIS 2297 (N.Y. 1975).

The element of suddenness, frequently regarded as essential to occurrence of an industrial accident, may be found in either the cause or result. Greensmith v Franklin Nat'l Bank, 21 A.D.2d 576, 251 N.Y.S.2d 875, 1964 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3215 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1964), aff'd, 16 N.Y.2d 973, 265 N.Y.S.2d 288, 212 N.E.2d 774, 1965 N.Y. LEXIS 1047 (N.Y. 1965).

The definite time requirement essential to proof of accidental injury within the meaning of the Workmen's Compensation Law may be satisfied by suddenness of either cause or result, and it is not decisive that a claimant is unable to specify the exact date on which the incident occurred. Stein v Schneider, 34 A.D.2d 1062, 312 N.Y.S.2d 95, 1970 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4231 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1970).

The definite time requirement essential to establish an accidental injury may be satisfied by suddenness of either cause or result. Suber v Hope's Windows, Inc., 38 A.D.2d 656, 327 N.Y.S.2d 294, 1971 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2611 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1971).

87. —Particular applications

The interpretation of what constitutes an accident should not be extended to fringe cases where there is no single incident which would be regarded as an accident by the common man. There must be some element of suddenness and some incident immediately noticeable. Hence, an acting village police chief sustained no compensable injury when he three days after directing traffic on a cold, sleety day, noticed that his fingers were stiffening but received no medical treatment until 13 days later when he was treated for an arthritic condition. Deyo v Piermont, Inc., 283 A.D. 67, 126 N.Y.S.2d 523, 1953 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2980 (N.Y. App. Div. 1953), modified, 283 A.D. 678, 127 N.Y.S.2d 856, 1954 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4880 (N.Y. App. Div. 1954).

Duties of claimant nurse employed by hospital, involved twisting, turning, pulling and pushing of right hand. Record disclosed nothing unusual on the day on which the Board established the happening of an accident resulting in epicondylitis and tendonitis. There must be some element of suddenness—something catastrophic—and some incident immediately noticeable. Award reversed and claim dismissed. Flynn v Memorial Hospital Center, 8 A.D.2d 926, 187 N.Y.S.2d 486, 1959 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8035 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1959).

A finding of accidental injury could not be sustained where it merely appeared that claimant, a tractor-trailer driver for 17 years, developed a chronic back pain allegedly as the result of bad springs on the truck and driving over rough roads, as there was no element of suddenness or any incident which could be regarded as an accident by the common man to which the condition could be attributed. Steindel v Gordon Baking Co., 9 A.D.2d 798, 192 N.Y.S.2d 909, 1959 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6136 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1959).

Workers' Compensation Board could properly find that employee suffered compensable accidental injury on basis of evidence that employee, who had preexisting arthritic condition resulting in loss of only 5 work days in preceding 2 ½ years, was subjected to seriously adverse climatic conditions which caused recurrent, totally disabling episodes of arthritis as result of accumulation of water in her workplace during one month and exposure to unseasonable cold during another; repeated trauma of exposure and onsets of severe aggravation were sufficiently time-definite to satisfy requirements of concept of accident. Lynch v Rockland County Dep't of Social Services, 124 A.D.2d 430, 507 N.Y.S.2d 529, 1986 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 61422 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1986).

Workers' Compensation Board properly found that claimant did not sustain accidental injury where her own testimony showed that she had been experiencing fatigue and other related symptoms for some 16 years, beginning one year after she began working at school, and she failed to show that she suffered any extraordinary event or injury on dates specified in her application for benefits. Knapp v Vestal Cent. Sch. Dist., 247 A.D.2d 667, 668 N.Y.S.2d 718, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 947 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1998).

Workers' Compensation Board properly ruled that claimant did not sustain accident where her alleged multiple chemical sensitivity condition developed gradually over period of time, there was no evidence to show existence of unusual environmental factor which caused her condition, and her own testimony and medical records showed significant history of allergies, sinus problems, and other ailments, all of which predated her employment. Marks v County of Tompkins, 274 A.D.2d 764, 711 N.Y.S.2d 554, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8102 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2000).

Director of research and publications, whose job required him to spend his work day sitting in work station at computer keyboard and monitor, sustained accidental injury in course of his employment where (1) by end of his first month on job, he had begun to experience pain in his neck and shoulders that radiated down to his arms and hands, (2) although his employer's president had promised that new computer with larger screen and ergonomically designed work station would be installed before start of his employment, they never were installed, (3) when claimant's condition did not improve with medical treatment, he left his employment after about 2 months. Farcasin v PDG Inc., 286 A.D.2d 840, 731 N.Y.S.2d 85, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8857 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2001).

Workers' Compensation Board's finding that the claim of the claimant involved an accidental injury that arose out of and in the course of employment was supported by substantial evidence in the form of the narrative report submitted by the insurance carrier's medical expert that part of the claimant's injury was attributable to stress-related problems at the claimant's job and the claimant's own testimony that highlighted that his stress emanated from his multiple job responsibilities. Matter of Tames v New York Med. Coll, 27 A.D.3d 917, 811 N.Y.S.2d 192, 2006 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2846 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2006).

88. Compensation for disease distinguished

The legislature did not intend to make compensation benefits for diseases as inclusive or as broad as those for accidental injuries; accordingly if a workman is disabled by disease, he must allege and prove that his disablement was the result of an "occupational" disease. Harman v Republic Aviation Corp., 298 N.Y. 285, 82 N.E.2d 785, 298 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 285, 1948 N.Y. LEXIS 795 (N.Y. 1948).

When a claimant alleged that the claimant developed prostate cancer as a result of exposure to toxins at a facility in Albany, New York while cleaning police vehicles involved in the World Trade Center clean-up operations, the New York Workers' Compensation Board erred in rejecting the claim on the basis that the claimant was exposed to toxins that were not a normal attribute of the claimant's work because the claimant's exposure to the toxins derived from the nature of the claimant's work, not from an environmental condition of the workplace. Matter of Renko v New York State Police, 185 A.D.3d 1198, 127 N.Y.S.3d 608, 2020 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3918 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2020).

89. —Disease as accidental injury; generally

A nonoccupational disease can be treated as an accidental injury for the purpose of an award only when an inception of the disease is assignable to a determinate or single act indentified in space or time, and is something catastrophic or extraordinary. Lerner v Rump Bros., 241 N.Y. 153, 149 N.E. 334, 241 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 153, 1925 N.Y. LEXIS 532 (N.Y. 1925).; Schwartz v Queensboro Farm Products, Inc., 78 N.Y.S.2d 863, 191 Misc. 778, 1948 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2337 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1948).

Nothing in Workmen's Compensation Law provision dealing with occupational diseases affects rights of employee to recover compensation with respect to disease to which said provision does not apply if the disease is accidental personal injury under said Law. Middleton v Coxsackie Correctional Facility, 38 N.Y.2d 130, 379 N.Y.S.2d 3, 341 N.E.2d 527, 1975 N.Y. LEXIS 2297 (N.Y. 1975).

The Work. Comp. Law does not insure against disease except where the disease or infection naturally and unavoidably results from an injury. Borgsted v Shults Bread Co., 180 A.D. 229, 167 N.Y.S. 647, 1917 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8139 (N.Y. App. Div. 1917).; Cavalier v Chevrolet Motor Co., 189 A.D. 412, 178 N.Y.S. 489, 1919 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4684 (N.Y. App. Div. 1919).

The contraction of a disease can be an accidental injury. Drew v Beyer, 33 A.D.2d 24, 304 N.Y.S.2d 788, 1969 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2885 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1969).

Teacher's allergy-related condition due to air problems in the building did not constitute an "occupational disease" within the meaning of N.Y. Workers' Comp. Law § 2(15) in that the teacher's disability did not arise from some distinctive feature of the teacher's employment, however the workers' compensation board needed to determine whether it was an accidental injury. Martin v Fulton City Sch. Dist., 300 A.D.2d 901, 754 N.Y.S.2d 676, 2002 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12425 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2002).

Workers' Compensation Law Judge finding that a worker, a seamstress, sustained a causally related occupational disease was supported by substantial evidence where the worker testified that she worked 40 hours per week sewing liners into baseball caps at an average rate of 16 boxes per day, each of which contained up to 72 caps, and that, although the majority of her day was spent seated at a sewing machine, after her work was completed on the caps, she was also required to lift and carry the boxes; the worker's treating physician testified that her injuries were attributable to extended periods of sitting, the repetitive motions of bending to retrieve the caps from the boxes located next to her, operating the sewing machine by foot pedal, as well as lifting and carrying the boxes. Ball v New Era Cap Co., 21 A.D.3d 618, 799 N.Y.S.2d 334, 2005 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8278 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2005).

90. Effect of preexisting condition making accident more likely or making results worse

When under former § 3, subd. 7, an employee having a disease receives an injury "arising out of and in the course of his employment" which accelerated disease and causes his death, the right to compensation is secured. Van Keuren v Dwight Divine & Sons, 179 A.D. 509, 165 N.Y.S. 1049, 1917 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6588 (N.Y. App. Div. 1917), aff'd, 222 N.Y. 648, 119 N.E. 1083, 222 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 648, 1918 N.Y. LEXIS 1534 (N.Y. 1918).

Mere physical aggravation of pre-existing condition caused by general activity is not an accident. Hence, where claimant suffered a bursitis condition in 1946 and aggravated this condition in 1948 by shoveling coal in the course of his employment, the 1948 incident could not be classified as an accident. Meyer v A. Hollander & Son, Inc., 285 A.D. 195, 136 N.Y.S.2d 326, 1954 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3308 (N.Y. App. Div. 1954).

The concept of industrial accident is distinct from that of occupational disease, an accident being a particular and unexpected event causing a specific physical consequence, though it is nonetheless an accident if the person who suffers the physical consequences has a physical weakness or disability which either makes the accident more likely to occur, or, if it occurs, makes the physical consequences worse. Walters v U. S. Vitamin Corp., 11 A.D.2d 280, 203 N.Y.S.2d 401, 1960 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8393 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1960), aff'd, 10 N.Y.2d 924, 223 N.Y.S.2d 874, 179 N.E.2d 713, 1961 N.Y. LEXIS 946 (N.Y. 1961).

In a workers' compensation action by an employee who had acute pharyngitis and bronchitis before his employer changed its manufacturing process, and who developed chronic bronchitis after the process was changed, the Workers' Compensation Board's determination that claimant had a continuing partial disability resulting from his employment was supported by substantial evidence and would be affirmed, notwithstanding the contention of the employer and its carrier that an occupational aggravation of a previously nonoccupational disease is not compensable, since the ultimate test is not initiation or precipitation of the disease itself, but whether the employment acts upon that disease so as to cause a disability that did not previously exist. Lemery v Flintkote Co., 105 A.D.2d 538, 481 N.Y.S.2d 482, 1984 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 20564 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1984).

Workers' Compensation Board's decision that employee's second injury was unrelated to first, and thus was time-barred due to filing of second claim more than 2 years after initial accident, was not supported by substantial evidence where no medical proof was offered in opposition to employee's medical proof that initial injury was competent producing cause of second injury. Emerson v American Broadcasting Co., 124 A.D.2d 377, 507 N.Y.S.2d 322, 1986 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 61391 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1986).

91. Nature of harm or mishap constituting accidental injury for statutory purposes

An injury caused by emotional stress or strain may be found to be accidental within the purview of the Workmen's Compensation Law. Eckhaus v Adeck Stores, Inc., 11 N.Y.2d 862, 227 N.Y.S.2d 680, 182 N.E.2d 287, 1962 N.Y. LEXIS 1275 (N.Y. 1962).

The injury, in order to be compensable, need not present a visible or external sign. Fowler v Risedorph Bottling Co., 175 A.D. 224, 161 N.Y.S. 535, 1916 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8257 (N.Y. App. Div. 1916).

To establish the fact of an accidental injury under the statute, in the absence of actual contusion, it is necessary to show that the initial cause, that is, the accident, naturally and unavoidably produced the results for which claim is made. Pinto v Chelsea Fibre Mills, 196 A.D. 221, 186 N.Y.S. 748, 1921 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5505 (N.Y. App. Div. 1921).

A heart attack may be the result of an accident within the meaning of this section without evidence of external trauma. Volinsky v Reliable Waste & Rag Co., 263 A.D. 221, 32 N.Y.S.2d 513, 1942 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6850 (N.Y. App. Div. 1942).

A compensable disability may be found to exist solely on the basis of a finding of psychic trauma causative of physical injury, without regard to whether there was any physical trauma at the time of the incident relied upon as an accident arising out of and in course of employment. Schwartz v Hampton House Management Corp., 14 A.D.2d 936, 221 N.Y.S.2d 286, 1961 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7870 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1961).

An accident is not compensable unless the employee suffers a physical bodily injury and injury solely to a medical device does not constitute a bodily injury, so that where an employee bumped his forehead and broke a lens in his eye glasses, but suffered no injury, the employer or carrier was not liable to replace the broken lens. Geiger v Bell Aerosystems Co. Div., 28 A.D.2d 178, 283 N.Y.S.2d 906, 1967 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3107 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1967).

Substantial evidence supported determination of Workers' Compensation Board that sexual discrimination and harassment against claimant at work precipitated anxiety neurosis disorder, constituting accidental injury, where (1) claimant, who was qualified motor vehicle operator but employed only as flagger, testified that she was only woman on job and was frequent target of ridicule and belittlement, and that coworkers had exposed themselves to her, used crude language and obscene gestures, stole her property, and tampered with her food and beverages, and (2) claimant's treating physician testified that she suffered from anxiety neurosis with physical manifestations, and both he and workers' compensation physician opined that her impairment was causally related to her employment. Smith v Steuben County Highway Dep't, 199 A.D.2d 590, 604 N.Y.S.2d 352, 1993 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11201 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1993).

Assembly-line worker who experienced severe chest pain in course of her employment and was transported to hospital emergency room was injured as result of accident, rather than occupational disease, even though she was later diagnosed as having chronic pain syndrome and costochondritis, and thus her claim for workers' compensation benefits was untimely under CLS Work Comp § 28, where her claim form referenced accident and described sudden and severe pain resulting from it, physicians' reports consistently related her injuries to accident, she never challenged finding of accident as cause, and there was no medical testimony as to whether her injuries were attributable to occupational disease. Aldridge v AC Rochester Prods., 251 A.D.2d 706, 674 N.Y.S.2d 444, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6455 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1998).

Workers' Compensation Board properly ruled that claimant did not sustain accidental injury in course of her employment where, after she registered complaints as to tobacco smoke, pipe-smoking coemployee was permitted to smoke only in his office with door closed, claimant was allowed to do her work in supervisor's office and was given flexible work hours enabling her to be an office when pipe-smoker was not there, physician specializing in fields of allergies and immunology testified that his examination of claimant disclosed that her physical complaints were entirely subjective in nature, eluding any objective methods of evaluation, and he further noted that while he was unable to determine cause of claimant's malady, he deemed her resulting disability "relatively mild" and suggested that slight obstructive pulmonary impairment from which she suffered, as well as her sensitivity to tobacco smoke, could be explained by her own 6-year history of smoking 2 packs of cigarettes per week. Keck v New York State Div. of Substance Abuse Servs., 252 A.D.2d 730, 675 N.Y.S.2d 400, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8142 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1998).

Ruling that grocery store manager sustained accidental injury was supported by evidence that he developed psychiatric disorder from working prolonged hours and taking on additional responsibilities, and by medical evidence that his condition was caused by job-related stress and not by personnel decision that threatened his job status. De Paoli v A&P, 257 A.D.2d 912, 684 N.Y.S.2d 47, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 487 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), app. dismissed, 93 N.Y.2d 920, 691 N.Y.S.2d 384, 713 N.E.2d 419, 1999 N.Y. LEXIS 1154 (N.Y. 1999), aff'd, 94 N.Y.2d 377, 704 N.Y.S.2d 527, 725 N.E.2d 1089, 2000 N.Y. LEXIS 81 (N.Y. 2000).

Workers' Compensation Board properly found that claimant, who twisted his back as he stood up and attempted to leave crowded meeting, aggravated his pre-existing back condition which constituted accident arising out of and in course of his employment as environmental service worker where pre-existing back condition did not cause him to seek medical treatment or to lose any significant time from work, and medical evidence indicated that he suffered acute change in his condition following accident in question. Sidaris v Brookhaven Mem'l Hosp., 271 A.D.2d 884, 706 N.Y.S.2d 775, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4656 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2000).

Accountant's undisputed testimony of harassment from supervisors and co-workers because of his whistle-blowing activities, lasting for 6 years, combined with medical testimony that his psychic condition was caused by work-related accidental injury, supported decision that he sustained compensable, accidental injury, notwithstanding conflicting medical testimony. Abdallah v New York City DOT, 279 A.D.2d 723, 719 N.Y.S.2d 198, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 248 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2001).

As there was evidence that a paramedic and similarly situated workers were routinely exposed to traumatic events, the New York Workers' Compensation Board's determination denying the paramedic benefits for an accidental injury under N.Y. Workers' Comp. Law § 2(7) was not disturbed. The paramedic developed post-traumatic stress disorder after the paramedic was the first to respond to an accident scene in which a man had been run over by a trash compactor truck at a landfill. Matter of Guess v Finger Lakes Ambulance, 28 A.D.3d 996, 812 N.Y.S.2d 393, 2006 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4535 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), app. denied, 7 N.Y.3d 707, 821 N.Y.S.2d 812, 854 N.E.2d 1276, 2006 N.Y. LEXIS 2478 (N.Y. 2006).

VII. Injury Arising out of or in the Course of Employment

92. In general

The words "arising out of and in the course of the employment" have a clear and definite meaning and an award can be made under the statute only when injuries arise out of both. Clark v Voorhees, 231 N.Y. 14, 131 N.E. 553, 231 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 14, 1921 N.Y. LEXIS 603 (N.Y. 1921).; Pierson v Interborough Rapid Transit Co., 184 A.D. 678, 172 N.Y.S. 492, 1918 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6636 (N.Y. App. Div. 1918), aff'd, 227 N.Y. 666, 126 N.E. 920, 227 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 666, 1920 N.Y. LEXIS 891 (N.Y. 1920).; Harris v Henry Cheney Hammer Corp., 221 A.D. 199, 223 N.Y.S. 738, 1927 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6407 (N.Y. App. Div. 1927).

An injury can rise "out of" employment only when it is related to the employment. The injury must be received while the workman is doing the duty he is employed to perform, and also as a natural incident of the work. Connelly v Samaritan Hospital, 259 N.Y. 137, 181 N.E. 76, 259 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 137, 1932 N.Y. LEXIS 917 (N.Y. 1932).

The words "arising out of and in the course of the employment" should be given a broad and liberal interpretation. McGrinder v Sullivan, 264 A.D. 640, 37 N.Y.S.2d 1, 1942 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4223 (N.Y. App. Div. 1942), rev'd, 290 N.Y. 11, 47 N.E.2d 421, 290 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 11, 1943 N.Y. LEXIS 1131 (N.Y. 1943).

The test of whether an injury arose out of claimant's employment is whether it arose as "a natural incident of the work," or was one of the risks connected with the employment flowing therefrom as a natural consequence and directly connected with the work. Slater v Pilch, 17 A.D.2d 340, 234 N.Y.S.2d 513, 1962 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6536 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1962).

An injury to be compensable must arise out of as well as in the course of employment. Hancock v Ingersoll-Rand Co., 21 A.D.2d 703, 249 N.Y.S.2d 243, 1964 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3864 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1964).

The course of employment is not limited to the actual production of goods or the running of machines nor is it confined to the exact hours of work. Sicktish v Vulcan Industries of Buffalo, Inc., 33 A.D.2d 975, 307 N.Y.S.2d 385, 1970 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5731 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1970).

Employee's injury while preparing for Christmas party at site off premises of employment is not in course of employment where employer has not given financial support for party, does not exercise control over event, cannot halt holding of party, and where only condition laid down by employer is that employee attending party must first check out and separate self from employment. Still v County of Dutchess, Dep't of Parole, 117 A.D.2d 844, 498 N.Y.S.2d 544, 1986 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 53119 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1986).

In ruling that unwitnessed death of claimant's decedent (apparently caused by arrhythmia due to multifocal coronary atherosclerosis) arose out of and in course of his employment as solid waste transfer station attendant, Workers' Compensation Board had rational basis for finding that employer did not overcome presumption of compensability (CLS Work Comp § 21) where proof on issue of whether decedent's job could be considered sedentary in nature included testimony that he sometimes had to walk up and down 40 to 50 steps to sweep up spilled material 2 to 3 times per day. Onody v County of Oswego, Dep't of Pub. Works, 223 A.D.2d 813, 636 N.Y.S.2d 180, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 69 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1996).

Workers' Compensation Board's finding that firefighter's injury was causally related to his employment did not automatically make firefighter eligible for future CLS Gen Mun § 207-a benefits. Lewis v City of Gloversville, 246 A.D.2d 804, 667 N.Y.S.2d 796, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 298 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1998).

Claimant was entitled to presumption that injury that occurred in course of his employment also arose out of that employment, and presumption could be rebutted only by substantial evidence to contrary. Vogel v Anheuser-Busch, 265 A.D.2d 705, 696 N.Y.S.2d 571, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10710 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1999).

There was lack of substantial evidence to support finding that iron worker sustained accidental injury in course of his employment so as to be entitled to workers' compensations benefits where there was conflict between worker's claim and his testimony, medical reports did not provide detail concerning circumstances of accident, and thus it was not clear how worker injured himself or on what date and at what job site injury occurred. Boone v Orange Steel Erectors Inc., 273 A.D.2d 629, 711 N.Y.S.2d 355, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7221 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), app. denied, 95 N.Y.2d 769, 722 N.Y.S.2d 472, 745 N.E.2d 392, 2000 N.Y. LEXIS 3820 (N.Y. 2000).

93. Injury in course of employment; employees on call or in residence

If a domestic servant lives and sleeps in the home of the master, accidental injuries incurred within the home, except under extraordinary circumstances, may fairly be said to arise out of and in the course of the employment, whether the servant is engaged in getting dressed or in any other personal activity which is necessary to performance of her duties. Martin v Plaut, 293 N.Y. 617, 59 N.E.2d 429, 293 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 617, 1944 N.Y. LEXIS 1271 (N.Y. 1944).

An employee, who as part of the contract of employment occupies a room on the premises, remains in the course of such employment while on premises, even though not at the moment performing any particular service to employer. Culver v Sevilla Home for Children, 262 A.D. 620, 30 N.Y.S.2d 917, 1941 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5440 (N.Y. App. Div. 1941).

If employee is required to live on premises by virtue of his contract or by reason of nature of his employment, any injury resulting from normal activities on premises is compensable. And where employee receives room and board as part pay under terms of employment contract and lives in quarters provided by practical matter is required. Galvez v Gold Coast Enterprises, Ltd., 23 A.D.2d 600, 256 N.Y.S.2d 436, 1965 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4869 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1965).

The death of a resident farm worker who was stabbed to death on his employer's premises following an altercation relating to the living quarters that were provided to decedent by his employer was properly determined to have been the result of an industrial accident that arose out of and in the course of decedent's employment, since, when an employer supplies living accommodations as part of wages, an employee's residence at the place provided by the employer is required, and any accident that befalls an employee on such premises will thus be presumed to have arisen out of and in the course of employment. Torres v Laurel Hill Nursery, 98 A.D.2d 904, 470 N.Y.S.2d 897, 1983 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 21225 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1983), aff'd, 64 N.Y.2d 895, 487 N.Y.S.2d 560, 476 N.E.2d 1005, 1985 N.Y. LEXIS 14139 (N.Y. 1985).

Evidence supported determination that unwitnessed one-car accident occurred in course of decedent's employment overseeing 5,000-acre tract of land and presumptively arose out of that employment, although decedent also operated contracting business that was located off of employer's premises, where decedent lived on employer's premises as part of his job responsibilities and was on call 24 hours/7 days per week, and accident occurred on employer's premises after he returned from contracting job to discuss property maintenance issues with employer's tenant. Blanchard v Eagle Nest Tenancy in Common, 285 A.D.2d 856, 728 N.Y.S.2d 296, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7548 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2001).

94. —Employees not required by employer to live in

The decedent, employed to clean up a restaurant during specified hours and permitted to sleep in a room over a restaurant, did not sustain a compensable accident when he fell at night while climbing the stairs to his room. The decedent slept in the attic for his own convenience and was not rendering any service to his employer at the time of his injury. Groff v Uzzilia, 1 A.D.2d 273, 149 N.Y.S.2d 651, 1956 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5929 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1956), aff'd, 2 N.Y.2d 840, 159 N.Y.S.2d 980, 140 N.E.2d 873, 1957 N.Y. LEXIS 1238 (N.Y. 1957).

Death of a former owner of bowling alleys, as the result of sleeping on a cot at the alleys, was not compensable where it was found upon sufficient evidence that there was no necessity for his sleeping on the premises and was not engaged in business for his employer while doing so, but acting for his own convenience. Charlton v Strand Recreation, Inc., 9 A.D.2d 809, 192 N.Y.S.2d 690, 1959 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6154 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1959).

If an employee is required to live on his employer's premises either by virtue of his contract of employment or by reason of the nature of the employment, any injury resulting from normal activities on the premises is compensable, but if he is on the premises solely out of kindness of the employer, such injuries are not compensable. Chapman v Kiamesha Concord, Inc., 15 A.D.2d 618, 222 N.Y.S.2d 435, 1961 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6839 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1961).

An award of compensation for injury sustained by a nurse was affirmed where it appeared that she lived on the employer's premises and was injured by a fall while en route to her room after visiting a co-employee who also lived on the premises, it appearing that she was in charge of the building all night four nights a week and, though not required to live on the premises, did so because she was frequently called during off hours to make reports, aid in emergencies, and perform various other duties. Carl v West Hill Sanitarium, 15 A.D.2d 703, 223 N.Y.S.2d 446, 1962 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12025 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1962).

Fatal automobile accident on grounds of employer's hospital did not arise out of and in course of decedent's employment where the accident occurred at 3:00 a.m. on day decedent was not on duty, and there was uncontradicted proof that the decedent-employee was not required to live on the premises but had voluntarily chosen to do so, and his duties were no different from those of similar employees living of the premises. Brooks v New York State Dep't of Correction Matteawan State Hospital, 26 A.D.2d 850, 273 N.Y.S.2d 1001, 1966 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3343 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1966).

95. —Injuries sustained during off-duty hours

An employee sustained injuries arising out of and in the course of his employment, where he was struck by an automobile as he was walking on a public highway between two buildings of his employer, one of which he slept in and in the other he performed his active duties, since the inference may be drawn that the decedent was within the precinct of his employment when the accident occurred. Meissner v Good Samaritan Hospital, 271 A.D. 1041, 68 N.Y.S.2d 506, 1947 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5757 (N.Y. App. Div.), app. dismissed, 296 N.Y. 1001, 73 N.E.2d 577, 296 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 1001, 1947 N.Y. LEXIS 1746 (N.Y. 1947).

Death benefits are properly payable where a porter, who was furnished room, board and laundry, as part of his compensation, fell in the bath tub in the building where he roomed. Madigan v United Hospital, 274 A.D. 1077, 85 N.Y.S.2d 475, 1949 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6135 (N.Y. App. Div. 1949).

An award of death benefits was upheld where the deceased employee worked for a sanitarium, receiving a salary plus board and room, and was fatally injured when he fell down the stairs while visiting a co-employee at night during a period when he was off duty. Lewis v River Crest Sanitarium Co., 277 A.D. 914, 99 N.Y.S.2d 65, 1950 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3830 (N.Y. App. Div. 1950), aff'd, 302 N.Y. 655, 98 N.E.2d 474, 302 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 655, 1951 N.Y. LEXIS 833 (N.Y. 1951).

Where claimant was the son of employer and employed as a chauffeur and companion subject to call 24 hours a day and obliged to live in employer's home, injuries suffered when he fell down stairs at employer's home at 4 o'clock in the morning after terminating a conversation with his father and intending to return to speak to his sister was sustained in the course of employment. Wiarda v Wiarda, 281 A.D. 999, 120 N.Y.S.2d 509, 1953 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4048 (N.Y. App. Div. 1953).

Decedent, a porter in a hospital, was furnished a room on the hospital premises and worked from 7:30 A.M. to 4:30 P.M. and he died as a result of a fall down the hospital stairway after coming in staggering drunk at 3:00 A.M. Held: decedent was not engaged in the regular course of his employment when he fell down the stairway since he fell, not while doing work, or on call of duty, but while off duty and because he was intoxicated. Commissioner of Taxation & Finance v Victory Memorial Hospital, 4 A.D.2d 895, 167 N.Y.S.2d 61, 1957 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4283 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1957).

Claimant, employed as week-end waiter at inn, was furnished meals and sleeping quarters. While returning from walk at night after work, he was injured on employer's premises in attempt to gain ingress to his quarters. Held: injury was compensable. Eixman v Rothman's East Norwich Inn, 6 A.D.2d 911, 175 N.Y.S.2d 675, 1958 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5218 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1958).

Award to resident employee is not necessarily barred because he was injured while performing a personal act on his day off or when not subject to call (restaurant pantryman and dishwasher partly paid by room and board on employer's premises injured by fall on stairway to kitchen to which he was going to prepare food for himself on day off). Galvez v Gold Coast Enterprises, Ltd., 23 A.D.2d 600, 256 N.Y.S.2d 436, 1965 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4869 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1965).

Where an employee who resided on his employer's premises slipped and caught his right arm between an elevator cable and car sustaining injuries resulting in amputation of his arm while attempting to retrieve money which he had secreted behind the elevator in the basement, it was properly held his injury was compensable. Clark v J. S. S. Realty Co., 26 A.D.2d 877, 276 N.Y.S.2d 39, 1966 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3303 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1966).

Vending route driver's injury did not arise out of and in course of his employment, and thus he was not entitled to workers' compensation benefits, where employer specifically instructed driver not to work on Saturdays and did not compensate him for Saturday overtime, driver still reported to work on Saturday and was injured during mugging while he was trying to enter company truck in employer's parking lot, and thus driver was working on his own personal time when he was mugged. Hall v All Seasons Servs., Inc., 255 A.D.2d 680, 679 N.Y.S.2d 456, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11698 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1998).

Although a hospital was aware that employees sometimes slept in the X-ray rooms between shifts, it was only an accommodation; therefore, the workers' compensation board properly ruled that a radiology associate, who was raped while sleeping in the X-ray room between shifts, did not sustain an accident arising out of and in the course of the associate's employment. Matter of Mattaldi v Beth Israel Med. Ctr., 29 A.D.3d 1192, 814 N.Y.S.2d 808, 2006 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6572 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2006).

A cleaning lady at a state hospital was not injured in the course of her employment when, while praying at Mass on Sunday (her day off), an inmate threw herself at claimant causing the injuries complained of. Johnstone v State, 122 N.Y.S.2d 734, 204 Misc. 239, 1952 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2309 (N.Y. Ct. Cl. 1952).

96. —Injuries sustained during off-duty hours; injuries in living quarters

An award is proper for the death of a chef employed for a definite term at a weekly wage together with room and board where at the end of the days work, he retired to a room provided for him and was suffocated by a fire occurring in the hotel. Injuries to a clerk, receiving a salary and maintenance at state hospital, and subject to 24-hour call, in getting out of the tub in his room, arise out of and in course of his employment, even though he had finished his duties for the day and had retired to his room. Wood's Estate v Kings Park State Hospital, 293 N.Y. 919, 60 N.E.2d 129, 293 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 919, 1944 N.Y. LEXIS 2327 (N.Y. 1944).

An award cannot be made to the janitress of an apartment house, who resided in one of apartments, for injuries received from plaster falling on her when at time of injury she was doing nothing for her employers nor anything incidental to her employment, but was serving, exclusively, her own purposes. In re Lauterbach, 189 A.D. 303, 178 N.Y.S. 480, 1919 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4650 (N.Y. App. Div. 1919).

An attendant in a home for children receiving a cash salary and room and board at the home suffers an injury arising out of and in the course of her employment where, after she had finished her day's work and retired for the night, she got out of bed to open a window, slipped on an oiled hardwood floor and fell and was injured. Culver v Sevilla Home for Children, 262 A.D. 620, 30 N.Y.S.2d 917, 1941 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5440 (N.Y. App. Div. 1941).See also Smith v New York, 261 A.D. 860, 24 N.Y.S.2d 750, 1941 N.Y. App. Div. One employed along with her husband as superintendent of an apartment suffers injuries in and out of the course of her employment when injured while attempting to close a window in the bedroom of her own apartment and there is evidence that the bedroom was used for office purposes in connection with the administration of the building. Berck v Postal, 271 A.D. 940, 67 N.Y.S.2d 371, 1947 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5302 (N.Y. App. Div. 1947).

A maid who lived in a separate hotel room across the hall from her employer, being subject to call by the employer, is injured in the course of her employment where she fell while preparing for bed. Watson v Lapp, 278 A.D. 877, 104 N.Y.S.2d 398, 1951 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5037 (N.Y. App. Div. 1951).

Where an employee was injured in her room which was furnished by the employer, and was required to be in her room at such time being subject to call day or night, a finding that the injury occurred in the course of her employment was proper. Watson v Lapp, 278 A.D. 877, 104 N.Y.S.2d 398, 1951 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5037 (N.Y. App. Div. 1951).

Claimant, a cook and dishwasher, worked 6 days per week between 9:00 A.M. and 9:00 or 10:00 P.M. in employer's restaurant. He was paid salary and was furnished room and board. He slept on premises. After retiring, he got up in night, fell on floor and sustained fracture of hip. Employer in answer in negligence action by claimant alleged that claimant's injuries arose out of and in course of employment and that employer had secured workmen's compensation for employees. Held: claimant's testimony as to contract of employment, employer's interpretation of such contract in answer in negligence action and fact of late hours of employment constituted substantial evidence that claimant's residence on premises was part of service and of benefit to employer. Award affirmed. Walker v Narolewski, 6 A.D.2d 735, 174 N.Y.S.2d 411, 1958 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5807 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1958), aff'd, 7 N.Y.2d 835, 196 N.Y.S.2d 709, 164 N.E.2d 726, 1959 N.Y. LEXIS 925 (N.Y. 1959).

Where a servant lives in her employer's household, certain personal activities are incident to the performance of her duties. Thus, where the maid and companion of an ailing employer was subject to call at all times and required to sleep in her employer's apartment, injuries which she sustained one night "while suffering from a heavy cold," when she "collapsed" upon arising from her bed, arose in course of her employment, even though she was only arising to take care of her cold. Outlaw v Parker, 9 A.D.2d 797, 192 N.Y.S.2d 692, 1959 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6133 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1959), app. denied, 7 N.Y.2d 709, 1960 N.Y. LEXIS 1610 (N.Y. 1960).

The accident from which injuries were sustained involved a risk so closely associated with employment as to be compensable where it appeared that claimant and her husband were jointly hired as janitors of a 12-family tenement house, receiving a rent free apartment as compensation for their services, living on the premises, subject to call 24 hours a day, there was no central heating and each tenant had to supply his own heat by means of a coal stove, and the injuries were sustained when claimant and her husband were cleaning their stove with liquid polish which exploded. Kosma v Blau, 12 A.D.2d 542, 206 N.Y.S.2d 751, 1960 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7239 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1960).

Where claimant was employed by his employer as a glass washer at $4.00 per day, plus room and board valued at $7.50 per week, with working hours from 6 p.m. to 2 a.m. six days a week, and not subject to call at other times, and sustained injuries while off duty by slipping on a melon rind in his basement quarters, his residency was for the employer's benefit as well as his own since his hours were long and his room and board were part of his pay, and his injury was compensable. Chapman v Kiamesha Concord, Inc., 15 A.D.2d 618, 222 N.Y.S.2d 435, 1961 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6839 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1961).

Where migrant worker was brought to New York from Puerto Rico to work on nursery premises under contract expressly requiring employer to provide housing, injuries suffered by worker when he fell down stairs in such housing on his day off arose out of and in course of his employment, inasmuch as provision of residence was part of consideration supporting worker's obligation to work. Feliciano v Woodlea Nursery, 57 A.D.2d 979, 394 N.Y.S.2d 109, 1977 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12272 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1977).

Where a janitress, as part of her compensation, was accorded free use of the basement of the premises as her home, and on returning home from shopping she fell into open hatchway in the basement, she suffered injuries out of and in the course of her employment. Shapiro v Employers' Liability Assurance Corp., 248 N.Y.S. 587, 139 Misc. 454, 1931 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1155 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1931).

97. —Injuries sustained during off-duty hours; injuries away from employer's premises

Where claimant was injured while returning from home, at the end of a rest period, to the hospital, she is not entitled to compensation for her injuries, notwithstanding that she was subject to call at any time while home, in case of emergency. Smith v Parkchester General Hospital, 293 N.Y. 824, 59 N.E.2d 182, 293 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 824, 1944 N.Y. LEXIS 2247 (N.Y. 1944).

Injury to the claimant's knee doing gymnastics did arise out of or in the course of his employment as a waiter at a summer camp who was required to live on the premises, where, during a 3-day break in the camp's program, he visited a neighboring camp's recreation hall where the injury occurred and award was proper. Di Perri v Boys Brotherhood Republic, Inc., 31 N.Y.2d 215, 335 N.Y.S.2d 405, 286 N.E.2d 897, 1972 N.Y. LEXIS 1133 (N.Y. 1972).

A resident employee of a boy's summer camp suffered a compensable injury when hurt in off-duty hours while using a recreation facility of an adjacent camp with the employer's knowledge and acquiescence, on grounds that the use of the facility on a regular basis by several boys' camp employees, including the claimant, carried the implied approval of the employer and was in fact an incidental adjunct to the employer's own facilities because of the habitual permitted use of the non-owned facility. Di Perri v Boys Brotherhood Republic, Inc., 31 N.Y.2d 215, 335 N.Y.S.2d 405, 286 N.E.2d 897, 1972 N.Y. LEXIS 1133 (N.Y. 1972).

Widow was not entitled to Workers' Compensation Board after her husband, who worked as accountant for private firm, suffered fatal heart attack while bowling for team sponsored by client of firm because, even if her husband's participation on bowling team inured to substantial benefit of his employer, there was no evidence of overt encouragement by employer. Dorosz v Green & Seifter, 92 N.Y.2d 672, 685 N.Y.S.2d 406, 708 N.E.2d 162, 1999 N.Y. LEXIS 35 (N.Y. 1999).

Death of a chauffeur who, while waiting for his employer, used his automobile for his own purposes with the consent of the employer and received injuries resulting in his death, though the employer testified that the decedent was in his employ all the time, day and night, is not compensable. Lansing v Hayes, 196 A.D. 671, 188 N.Y.S. 329, 1921 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5589 (N.Y. App. Div. 1921), aff'd, 233 N.Y. 614, 135 N.E. 940, 233 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 614, 1922 N.Y. LEXIS 1034 (N.Y. 1922).

Where the claimant was a nurse in charge of the child of her employer and was injured by a fall from her employer's bicycle while in Bermuda and the evidence is to the effect that she was on twenty-four hours a day duty and, therefore, remained in course of her employment, and that she had been urged by her employer "to get away for a while," an award lies. Clapham v David, 232 A.D. 458, 251 N.Y.S. 245, 1931 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13844 (N.Y. App. Div. 1931).

A pastry cook in a summer resort hotel who fell while returning a book to a fellow employee on the premises during her rest period during which she was on call is injured in the course of her employment. Caney v Straight, 274 A.D. 1077, 85 N.Y.S.2d 626, 1949 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6136 (N.Y. App. Div. 1949).

A chauffeur who drove his employer to his office at 4:30 in the afternoon and was instructed to return for him at 1 a.m., being free in the interim to follow his own devices, is injured in the course of his employment where he went to the house of a relative with the understanding that the employer would call him there earlier than 1 a.m. if he wanted him, and fell on the street near the relative's house. Duffy v Levine, 275 A.D. 735, 87 N.Y.S.2d 134, 1949 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4246 (N.Y. App. Div. 1949).

Decedent, employed as a chauffeur, caretaker and general handyman on twenty-four-hour call was struck by a car while crossing the street to mail a letter. The record sustains a finding that this was an incident of his employment. Collins v Archer Motor Co., 279 A.D. 1123, 112 N.Y.S.2d 522, 1952 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6037 (N.Y. App. Div. 1952), aff'd, 305 N.Y. 646, 112 N.E.2d 286, 305 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 646, 1953 N.Y. LEXIS 1207 (N.Y. 1953).

An employee at a cosmic ray study project in the Rocky Mountains had not separated himself from the course of his employment where he usually worked from early morning until late at night and lived in a dormitory miles from the nearest village. The employee, during a lull in the experiments, was injured while taking a hike. Rizzo v Syracuse University, 2 A.D.2d 644, 151 N.Y.S.2d 724, 1956 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5322 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1956).

The Workers' Compensation Board properly determined that the death of a claimant's decedent, who had been a tavern manager, had not arisen out of and in the course of his employment where, though the decedent had left the tavern at the end of his work day with the business's books, ostensibly so that he could work on them at home, his death had occurred when he was struck by a car approximately one hour after he left the business at a location that was remote from the tavern, from decedent's home, and from any branch of the tavern's bank, and that was not located on any direct route between such points, where the claimant's conjecture that decedent had been on a round- about route to the tavern's bank's night depository was negated by the proximity of a bank branch one half block from the tavern as well as by the testimony of a vice president at the tavern's bank who stated that the bank had no record of decedent's ever having made night deposits, where the claimant's further conjecture that decedent had been kidnapped by robbers and beaten on route to the bank and that he had then wandered into traffic was refuted by medical evidence which showed that decedent's injuries were limited to those he had sustained when he was struck by the car, and where, though a decedent who was last seen working is assumed to have continued such status to the time of a later fatal accident in the absence of countervailing evidence, and though claims are presumed to be compensible "in the absence of substantial evidence to the contrary" pursuant to Work Comp Law § 21(1), such presumptions were inapplicable in that decedent had not been working when he was last seen alive by the motorist who had hit him, and in that the presumption embodied in Work Comp Law § 21(1) does not totally relieve claimants from their burden of showing that injuries for which claims are made were sustained in the course of and arose out of the injured person's employment. Ryan v Trojan Bar & Grill, 98 A.D.2d 889, 470 N.Y.S.2d 877, 1983 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 21204 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1983), app. denied, 62 N.Y.2d 603, 1984 N.Y. LEXIS 7684 (N.Y. 1984).

98. Injury in course of employment; employees having no fixed place of employment

Claimant, a delivery boy, customarily picked up his papers at 12:30. On the day in question he started for his employer's place of business, taking his usual route. On the way he suffered an accident. Claimant was not entitled to compensation since he was not an "outside worker" and was not within the ambit of his employment until he picked up his papers for delivery. Taber v Abraham, 3 A.D.2d 776, 160 N.Y.S.2d 56, 1957 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6183 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1957).

Board properly ruled that injury sustained by claimant in fall down stairs at her home arose out of and in course of her employment as real estate salesperson, although "outside employees" are usually covered only from time they leave home until time they return, where claimant and other members of employer's sales force operated out of their own homes and cars, there was no requirement that they report to office before starting work, they were on call 24 hours per day for most part, and accident occurred as claimant was leaving her home to remove "lockbox" from piece of property that had been sold following business meeting at her home with carpet installer who performed assignments for her employer. McRae v Eagan Real Estate, 170 A.D.2d 900, 567 N.Y.S.2d 183, 1991 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2443 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1991).

Claimant was properly found to have sustained injury arising out of and in course of his employment while walking to job site where he was scheduled to commence asbestos removal project when he was struck by car since his employment consisted of traveling to various job sites to perform asbestos removal work for periods lasting anywhere from one day to several months, he was required to report to employer's main office in New Jersey once every month at most, and he contacted office by telephone only for purpose of receiving new work assignments. Carpio v R & J Insulation Co., 269 A.D.2d 678, 702 N.Y.S.2d 473, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1286 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), app. dismissed, 95 N.Y.2d 791, 711 N.Y.S.2d 157, 733 N.E.2d 229, 2000 N.Y. LEXIS 1064 (N.Y. 2000).

Workers' Compensation Board properly ruled that claimant's decedent was "outside employee" who was in course of his employment as plumbing supervisor at time of fatal accident, where he did not work at employer's premises but was assigned to work at various locations to which he reported to work each day, and fact that he had been assigned to same location for several months at time of accident did not require contrary conclusion. Estate of DeRosa v Evans Plumbing & Heating Co., 277 A.D.2d 619, 715 N.Y.S.2d 114, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11320 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2000), app. denied, 96 N.Y.2d 792, 725 N.Y.S.2d 642, 749 N.E.2d 211, 2001 N.Y. LEXIS 683 (N.Y. 2001), app. denied, 98 N.Y.2d 643, 744 N.Y.S.2d 758, 771 N.E.2d 830, 2002 N.Y. LEXIS 1029 (N.Y. 2002).

Claimant, truck driver, was properly awarded workers' compensation benefits as result of being injured when struck by car while crossing street from hotel on way to restaurant before commencing next trip since he was traveling employee with no fixed work site, it was reasonable and customary for him to have obtained meal prior to commencing new assignment, and he did not cross street in such reckless and unreasonable manner as to constitute deviation from employment. Hamm v USF Red Star, 284 A.D.2d 793, 727 N.Y.S.2d 714, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6603 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), app. denied, 97 N.Y.2d 602, 735 N.Y.S.2d 491, 760 N.E.2d 1287, 2001 N.Y. LEXIS 3283 (N.Y. 2001).

99. —Injuries sustained during preparation for work

One employed as supervisor of workmen on a real estate development, and required to use his own automobile which he kept in his own garage during the night, is not entitled to compensation for injuries incurred while cranking the automobile in preparation to go to his employer's property to commence his day's work. Grathwohl v Nassau Point Club Properties, Inc., 216 A.D. 107, 214 N.Y.S. 496, 1926 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9166 (N.Y. App. Div.), aff'd, 243 N.Y. 567, 154 N.E. 608, 243 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 567, 1926 N.Y. Workers' Compensation Board did not act arbitrarily or capriciously in finding no compensable injury arising out of or in course of employment where claimant's deceased suffered fatal heart attack while shoveling snow prior to commencing journey to work and where testimony of supervisor and coworker contradicted claimant's assertion that decedent was preparing to leave for outside breakfast meeting with client, and instead showed that decedent had prepared breakfast at home before attending office meeting at normal start of business day; board was not required to explain result that was different from prior case where prior case was not substantially similar. Maisel v Pepsi-Cola Bottling Co., 124 A.D.2d 332, 508 N.Y.S.2d 292, 1986 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 61360 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1986).

100. —Injuries sustained enroute to employers' place of business

A salesmanager who had charge of his employer's showroom and was charged with the duty of checking the cash at the end of closing hours each day, and who was furnished an automobile by his employer which was stored in the employee's garage, suffers injuries arising out of and in the course of his employment where upon leaving his residence to go to the employer's place of business to close for the day, he slipped in the driveway of his own premises and sustained injuries. Eaton v Webster Motors of Glens Falls, Inc., 265 A.D. 1025, 39 N.Y.S.2d 32, 1943 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6672 (N.Y. App. Div.), aff'd, 291 N.Y. 699, 52 N.E.2d 592, 291 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 699, 1943 N.Y. LEXIS 1799 (N.Y. 1943).

There was substantial evidence to sustain determination of the board that the decedent, an outside worker, had actually appeared at the store where he had been working on the day he was involved in an automobile accident and was traveling his customary route home. Bailey v Interstate Dep't Stores, 34 A.D.2d 1062, 312 N.Y.S.2d 469, 1970 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4230 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1970).

Workers' compensation benefits were properly awarded to claimant who at time of back injury was en route to work carrying materials which were required in her job, but for which no storage was provided at place of employment. Pistor v Pan American Airways, 165 A.D.2d 917, 560 N.Y.S.2d 527, 1990 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11055 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1990).

Workers' Compensation Board did not err in determining that claimant, casual truck driver whose union contract required him to report to employer's terminal facility within 2 hours after call indicating he was needed, sustained injuries arising out of and in course of employment in motor vehicle accident en route to terminal after call from employer's dock supervisor asking him to come as soon as possible due to manpower shortage, since claimant was engaged in special service involving undertaking of travel not associated with his normal work hours. Gray v Lyons Transp., 179 A.D.2d 985, 579 N.Y.S.2d 213, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 861 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1992).

Police officer, who was injured in car accident while driving to work, sustained compensable injury and was properly awarded workers' compensation benefits where he testified that he was en route to police station to begin his shift when he encountered "staggering" pedestrian who appeared intoxicated, officer told pedestrian to wait and that officer would send police car to assist him when he reached station, which was about one mile away, and officer then continued to station and was injured approximately 0.2 miles beyond encounter with pedestrian; since police officers are required to aid persons in danger even when off duty, officer would have driven to station to seek help even had he not been commuting. Callanan v Clarkstown, 191 A.D.2d 861, 594 N.Y.S.2d 859, 1993 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2359 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1993).

101. —Injuries during travel between living quarters and job site or sales call, in general

Decedent was in the course of his employment when, after being authorized to drive his car to an out-of-town garage for repairs, he spent the day visiting bars where he took orders for employer's products and later, while driving in the direction of the brewery but at a time when brewery was closed was killed in an automobile accident. Clynes v Dobler Brewing Co., 308 N.Y. 1022, 127 N.E.2d 863, 308 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 1022, 1955 N.Y. LEXIS 1252 (N.Y. 1955).

Evidence supported decision of Workers' Compensation Board that employee had a known and ratified second workplace in his dwelling so that injuries sustained while travelling home from his primary work place were compensable where employee was engineer laboratory technician who had suffered 2 prior heart attacks and had then set up work area at home to enable him to complete assignments on time, and where his supervisor testified that employee's work done at home benefited employer and was done with supervisor's permission. Fine v S.M.C. Microsystems Corp., 75 N.Y.2d 912, 554 N.Y.S.2d 827, 553 N.E.2d 1337, 1990 N.Y. LEXIS 645 (N.Y. 1990).

An outside man employed by a printing corporation in New York city sustained an injury arising out of and in the course of his employment, where he was injured by the so-called "Wall Street explosion" while on his way to call on a patron of his employer. Roberts v J. F. Newcomb & Co., 201 A.D. 759, 195 N.Y.S. 405, 1922 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6410 (N.Y. App. Div.), aff'd, 234 N.Y. 553, 138 N.E. 443, 234 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 553, 1922 N.Y. LEXIS 734 (N.Y. 1922).

A widow is entitled to compensation for the death of her husband who was an engineer and chief estimator employed by a construction company, where the decedent met his death while riding in his own car on his way from his home to his job. Williams v Arthur Gallow, Inc., 261 A.D. 765, 27 N.Y.S.2d 599, 1941 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7434 (N.Y. App. Div. 1941).

A traveling salesman, required to use his own automobile, and being entitled to reimbursement for its use in covering his territory, is entitled to compensation where, after having made arrangements to meet a customer, was injured in attempting to crank the automobile. Madelung v Dale Radio Co., 262 A.D. 784, 27 N.Y.S.2d 395, 1941 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5845 (N.Y. App. Div.), aff'd, 287 N.Y. 556, 38 N.E.2d 225, 287 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 556, 1941 N.Y. LEXIS 2450 (N.Y. 1941).

A foreman on a construction job is injured in the course of his employment where, the accident occurred when he was driving his own truck en route to the construction job and was carrying materials for use of his employer. Graf v Niels Iverson Lumber Co., 262 A.D. 787, 27 N.Y.S.2d 280, 1941 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5854 (N.Y. App. Div. 1941).

A salesman of automatic phonographs having no regular hours of employment is injured in the course of his employment where, after visiting a restaurant on a Sunday for the main purpose of inducing the proprietor to purchase a phonograph, he was struck on his way home by an automobile and injured. Mendelson v Modern Vending Co., 264 A.D. 966, 37 N.Y.S.2d 103, 1942 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5568 (N.Y. App. Div. 1942).See also Bollard v Engel, 278 N.Y. 463, 17 N.E.2d 130, 278 N.Y. A salesman killed on Monday morning en route from his home in Penn Yan to his employer's Binghamton office to turn in collections and to secure route cards for the week is injured in the course of his employment. Gottshall v United Utilities Specialty Co., 275 A.D. 736, 87 N.Y.S.2d 104, 1949 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4248 (N.Y. App. Div. 1949).See also Chetney v H. A. Manning Co., 273 N.Y. 82, 6 N.E.2d 105, 273 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 82, 1937 N.Y. LEXIS 1175 (N.Y. 1937).

Substantial evidence supported a finding that the decedent was an outside worker whose family was entitled to a death award where decedent was killed while driving his employer's car home to Lockport and where he had been engaged as a sales engineer travelling through western New York selling steam specialties. Williamson v W. J. Sommers Co., 283 A.D. 1131, 131 N.Y.S.2d 574, 1954 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6503 (N.Y. App. Div. 1954).

Employer, with its principal office in New York City, operated a large business with plants in many states. Decedent was hired in New York, was paid from New York office by checks drawn on New York bank and at time of accident was temporarily assigned for training to Virginia. He was required to live near his work and was paid an allowance toward expenses in addition to his salary. He was subject to reassignment from New York. Held: the Board properly assumed jurisdiction. And where decedent died as a result of injuries received in an automobile accident while on the way from temporary living quarters to his job site his injuries, resulting in death, arose out of and in the course of employment. Houghton v Babcock & Wilcox Co., 9 A.D.2d 575, 189 N.Y.S.2d 436, 1959 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7433 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), app. denied, 7 N.Y.2d 705, 1959 N.Y. LEXIS 1835 (N.Y. 1959).

Decedent was held to have been killed as the result of an accident arising out of and in course of his employment as an outside worker, and not as the result of intoxication, where he was a repairer of oil burners, furnished by his employer with a truck which he took home each night, and advised of his work assignments by telephone calls received at his home, checked out from a job at 5:35 P.M., and was killed at 7:05 P.M. on a direct route from the particular job to his home, which was about a 50-55 minute drive away, when his car struck a telephone pole. Fonze v Stuyvesant Oil Burner Corp., 10 A.D.2d 761, 197 N.Y.S.2d 496, 1960 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11206 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1960).

Award based on findings that bicycle was necessary part of employment of newsboy, because of distance to be travelled between route and place he had to pick up papers, and the height and weight of papers to be carried, and that injury to boy while riding bicycle from home to place where he picked up papers arose out of employment, was affirmed. Flynn v Newsday, Inc., 28 A.D.2d 1053, 284 N.Y.S.2d 112, 1967 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3188 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1967).

In an action arising from an automobile accident occurring at about 11:30 p.m. in the vicinity of a place where they were to instal electrical equipment, considering the relatively early hour at which the accident took place, the lack of evidence of intoxication, the fact that the two parties were returning to their motel when the accident occurred, and the fact that they were within a reasonable distance from the place where they were required to work, the board's finding that the employees were indulged in reasonable activity which could be considered an incident of the employment was supported by substantial evidence. Robards v New York Div. Electric Products, Inc., 33 A.D.2d 1067, 307 N.Y.S.2d 599, 1970 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5523 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1970).

Employee of landscaping and gardening business who was picked up on a particular corner each morning by the employer's truck and returned to that corner each evening was within the scope of his employment when he was struck and killed by an automobile immediately after disembarking from the truck where the only means of disembarking from such truck was by way of a ladder on the street side thereof. Devito v Imbriano, 39 A.D.2d 796, 332 N.Y.S.2d 577, 1972 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4573 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1972), aff'd, 33 N.Y.2d 757, 350 N.Y.S.2d 406, 305 N.E.2d 487, 1973 N.Y. LEXIS 978 (N.Y. 1973).

Finding that decedent was acting within the course of his employment when he was killed in the early morning hours in an automobile accident which occurred shortly after he left a client's home was substantiated by evidence that his job was to solicit automobile franchise dealers and salesmen to finance cars through his employer and to service existing accounts and that he was paid a salary but had an expense account for a company car and for entertaining clients. Heeb v Chrysler Credit Corp., 39 A.D.2d 987, 333 N.Y.S.2d 185, 1972 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4231 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1972).

102. — —Injured during personal trip home

Death of an engineer employed for 12 years as a job superintendent taking care of electrical installations at various places, as the result of the injuries sustained in an automobile accident while returning to work at a job at Dover, Delaware, following an all night visit to his home in Philadelphia, was not compensable, notwithstanding his employer knew that it was the engineer's practice to drive home to Philadelphia on a certain night each week and return to the job on the following morning, the trip being purely personal. Benjamin v Kaplan Electric Co., 9 N.Y.2d 801, 215 N.Y.S.2d 512, 175 N.E.2d 169, 1961 N.Y. LEXIS 1379 (N.Y. 1961).

Injuries of encyclopedia salesmen sustained in car accident while returning from a week-end trip to their homes in New York City to the area of their employment in upstate New York were compensable where week-end visits to homes were authorized by employer. Newman v Public Distributors, Inc., 282 A.D. 1086, 126 N.Y.S.2d 124, 1953 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5882 (N.Y. App. Div. 1953).

Decedent, an engineer for an electrical company, worked on various job sites. With the consent of its employer he was in the habit of going home on Wednesday night and returning Thursday morning. He was killed one Thursday morning while driving to the job site. Held: even though the decedent might be classified as an "outside worker" the trips home were personal. So, the accident did not arise out of and in the course of employment. Benjamin v Kaplan Electric Co., 8 A.D.2d 239, 187 N.Y.S.2d 310, 1959 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8001 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1959), aff'd, 9 N.Y.2d 801, 215 N.Y.S.2d 512, 175 N.E.2d 169, 1961 N.Y. LEXIS 1379 (N.Y. 1961).

103. — —Traveling home at employer?s expense

Where a salesman was driving on his way home outside his territory but sustained an automobile accident resulting in his death while still within his territory. There was proof that expenses to his home were paid by his employer, that he had materials belonging to the employer with him and that he prepared reports of sales at his home. Townsend v General Aniline & Film Corp., 284 A.D. 919, 134 N.Y.S.2d 415, 1954 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4056 (N.Y. App. Div. 1954).

Decedent's death arose in the course of his employment when he was killed on his way home from work where there was an agreement between the employer and the decedent's union that the employer would pay to each employee a flat rate of compensation for travelling expenses in order to get its employees to work outside the city. Croessman v R. J. Moran & Sons, Inc., 4 A.D.2d 712, 163 N.Y.S.2d 546, 1957 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5122 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1957).

Where the employee's death occurred while returning from his place of employment at his employer's expense, the accident arose out of and incident to his employment. It is not important that the workman was under no compulsion to use the afforded transportation or that he was not paid for the time when he was being transported. The important point is that the employee was returning from the place of work at the employer's expense. Michigan Mut. Liability Co. v State, 31 A.D.2d 780, 297 N.Y.S.2d 80, 1969 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4760 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't), aff'd, 25 N.Y.2d 647, 306 N.Y.S.2d 463, 254 N.E.2d 765, 1969 N.Y. LEXIS 964 (N.Y. 1969).

104. — —Travel between home and source of transit for work purposes

The death of a traveling salesman arises out of and in the course of his employment where it occurs while he is on his way from his home to take a train for the purpose of visiting customers. Harby v Marwell Bros., 203 A.D. 525, 196 N.Y.S. 729, 1922 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7238 (N.Y. App. Div. 1922), aff'd, 235 N.Y. 504, 139 N.E. 711, 235 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 504, 1923 N.Y. LEXIS 1211 (N.Y. 1923).

A door to door saleswoman is injured in the course of her employment, where she fell on an icy sidewalk between her home and the point where she expected to meet other canvassers and the "crew manager", who used an automobile to carry canvassers to work in a remote part of the city. Barbaric v Emulso Corp., 260 A.D. 819, 22 N.Y.S.2d 447, 1940 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4831 (N.Y. App. Div. 1940).

Claimant suffered injuries arising out of and in the course of her employment as organizer and sales representative of a concern engaged in the sale of encyclopedias, where she was injured in the vicinity of her residence while boarding a street car which would take her to a scheduled meeting of employees. Teshnor v F. E. Compton & Co., 263 A.D. 160, 32 N.Y.S.2d 266, 1942 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6833 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), modified, 263 A.D. 1028, 1942 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7947 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1942).

105. —Injuries during travel between living quarters and job site or sales call; effect of intervening stops or activities

Claimant, salesman, was entitled to compensation for injuries sustained in an automobile accident where he left his home in Rochester to go to Nashua, New Hampshire to pick up a new car he had purchased and while there, he received a call from his employer asking him to go to Natick, Massachusetts to transact some company business, which he did and was injured while on his way back to Rochester the following day. Mahoney v Michaels Stern & Co., 9 N.Y.2d 931, 217 N.Y.S.2d 97, 176 N.E.2d 104, 1961 N.Y. LEXIS 1240 (N.Y. 1961).

An outside salesman sustained a compensable injury when he, after staying at his mother's house overnight, backed car out into street, stopped it to clean the windshield and when he got out, stepped on a cat and fell. Schneider v Samuel Kaplan & Son, 284 A.D. 920, 134 N.Y.S.2d 372, 1954 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4059 (N.Y. App. Div. 1954).

Decedent was employed as an outside salesman engaged in a house to house selling. On the morning of the day of his accident he went with a co-employee to another town where he worked until afternoon and after stopping at a tavern was killed on the direct route to his home. Smith v United Utilities & Specialty Corp., 285 A.D. 1100, 139 N.Y.S.2d 343, 1955 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6768 (N.Y. App. Div. 1955).

A travelling trainee consultant who, after going to Hartford, Conn., checked in at a hotel, went to a restaurant for dinner and on her way back to the hotel to make out her daily reports, slipped on an icy sidewalk and was injured. Held: was in the course of her employment. Schreiber v Revlon Products Corp., 5 A.D.2d 207, 171 N.Y.S.2d 122, 1958 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6695 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1958).

Decedent was president and salesman for employer. Employer had account with retail store which bought through mail advertising. No salesman covered territory. During August, decedent's family was staying at hotel not far from village where store was located. On a Thursday he left New York and Board could find he intended to visit retail account of employer. When he reached village he was swept away by flash flood and drowned. When decedent usually visited his family on week-ends, he normally left New York on Friday. Perlmutter v Duchess Hosiery Corp., 5 A.D.2d 912, 171 N.Y.S.2d 170, 1958 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6733 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), app. denied, 4 N.Y.2d 677, 1958 N.Y. LEXIS 1456 (N.Y. 1958).

Where deceased was a salesman covering large territory to solicit customers for his employer's business, made at least one business call on the day of the fatal accident, thereafter stopped to see one relative and had dinner with his father and mother, leaving their home about 10:00 p.m. to return to his own home, and died within 10 miles of the latter at about 1:20 p.m. on a portion of highway he customarily used in returning to his home, having apparently fallen asleep at the wheel, the accident was deemed to have arisen out of and in the course of his employment. Lowery v Riss & Co., 10 A.D.2d 489, 200 N.Y.S.2d 679, 1960 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9912 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), app. denied, 8 N.Y.2d 707, 1960 N.Y. LEXIS 1801 (N.Y. 1960).

A disability award for injuries sustained when a station wagon, owned by claimant's employer and which claimant was driving, struck a utility pole, was sustained where it appeared that claimant was employed as chauffeur to make deliveries for his employer at any time and place either by truck or use of the station wagon, completed making deliveries with the station wagon at 6 p.m. on the day in question, stopped at a wayside restaurant for food, then took a nap in the station wagon beside the highway en route to the garage where the station wagon was kept, and the accident occurred at 11 p.m. or later, no substantial deviation from course of employment being shown or intoxication established. Sosnovich v Trefflich Bird & Animal Corp., 12 A.D.2d 538, 206 N.Y.S.2d 845, 1960 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7233 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1960), app. denied, 9 N.Y.2d 609, 1961 N.Y. LEXIS 1644 (N.Y. 1961).

Where an outside salesman for a wholesale drug concern worked out of his home with no fixed hours and was killed as the result of a car accident within a few blocks of his home shortly after midnight while on the direct route toward home, an award of death benefits was sustained notwithstanding he had done considerable drinking during the evening. O'Connor v Johnson & Johnson, 12 A.D.2d 846, 211 N.Y.S.2d 1, 1961 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13204 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), app. denied, 9 N.Y.2d 611, 1961 N.Y. LEXIS 1708 (N.Y. 1961).

The evidence was sufficient to sustain an award of death benefits for death of an automobile salesman where he was furnished with a demonstrator car which he kept at his home and used for business and personal purposes, left home intending to meet a prospective customer at employer's place of business and also to perform a personal errand, and, after performing both missions and while on his way home, suffered a coronary attack, lost control of the car, and sustained fatal injuries. Westlake v Emmick, 16 A.D.2d 726, 226 N.Y.S.2d 774, 1962 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10342 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1962).

There was substantial evidence from which the Board could find that death of an outside salesman for a manufacturer of chemicals and associated products in an automobile accident arose out of his employment where it appeared that he was allowed wide latitude in performance of his duties and, at the time of death, at 9:00 p.m. had been engaged most of the afternoon in a conference largely devoted to company advertising in a trade publication while simultaneously watching a baseball game on TV and doing some casual drinking with others present, and, at the time of death, was bound for a dinner engagement with the president of the publishing company. Post v Tennessee Products & Chemical Corp., 19 A.D.2d 484, 244 N.Y.S.2d 389, 1963 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2818 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1963), aff'd, 14 N.Y.2d 796, 251 N.Y.S.2d 32, 200 N.E.2d 213, 1964 N.Y. LEXIS 1094 (N.Y. 1964).

Where an employee's social activities are in connection with and incidental to his employer's business, such activities become part of his employment; thus, beneficiaries of district sales manager for insurance company who was killed in automobile accident on the way home from conducting a sales meeting were entitled to benefits despite fact that he and several salesmen had stopped off at several bars after the meeting. McGee v Allstate Ins. Co., 41 A.D.2d 866, 342 N.Y.S.2d 685, 1973 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4686 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1973).

Evidence supported finding that decedent's activities as he traveled to his employer's gas station were for employer's benefit and were within course of his employment, and therefore fatal bee sting that he received while driving his car was compensable, where he was responding to incident at employer's station when incident occurred and, in addition to responding to problems at employer's station, employer required him to conduct price surveys at competitors' stations almost daily, which task was regularly performed while he traveled between his home and station. Schuhl v Mobil Oil Corp., 268 A.D.2d 905, 702 N.Y.S.2d 436, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 847 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2000).

106. —Injuries sustained during break for meals or social gatherings

An employee, traveling on the business of his employer, who could select his own time for lunch and would be reimbursed for its expense is not entitled to compensation for a disability incurred while eating lunch. Johnson v Smith, 263 N.Y. 10, 188 N.E. 140, 263 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 10, 1933 N.Y. LEXIS 789 (N.Y. 1933)..

In the absence of evidence of infection in the course of his employment, no award of compensation may be given to a salesman infected by a typhoid fever carrier serving him in a restaurant. Johnson v Smith, 263 N.Y. 10, 188 N.E. 140, 263 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 10, 1933 N.Y. LEXIS 789 (N.Y. 1933).

Injury to an outside saleslady, who furnished her own lunch, which she obtained whenever she desired, occurring about noon, after she had made a call, and was proceeding to a nearby drug store to rest, and to get lunch, arises out of and in the course of her employment and is compensable. Laubeck v Toc's Products Co., 260 A.D. 966, 23 N.Y.S.2d 280, 1940 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5632 (N.Y. App. Div. 1940), aff'd, 286 N.Y. 577, 35 N.E.2d 927, 286 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 577, 1941 N.Y. LEXIS 2119 (N.Y. 1941).

A traveling salesman is not injured in the course of his employment when a chicken bone became lodged in his throat during a meal at a public restaurant. Baron v W. W. Norton & Co., 264 A.D. 802, 34 N.Y.S.2d 740, 1942 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4789 (N.Y. App. Div. 1942).

Decedent was employed by New York corporation engaged in renting construction machinery. Employer furnished decedent with automobile and paid his expenses. Employer had rented machinery to lessee in Florida and had sent decedent to supervise use thereof. While there, decedent had gone to restaurant for dinner with acquaintances and, while returning to lodgings, accident occurred resulting in decedent's death. Board properly found death did not arise out of and in course of employment. O'Connor v Complete Machinery & Equipment Co., 5 A.D.2d 741, 168 N.Y.S.2d 702, 1957 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3552 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1957), reh'g denied, 5 A.D.2d 797, 170 N.Y.S.2d 315, 1958 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7089 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1958), app. denied, 4 N.Y.2d 675, 1958 N.Y. LEXIS 1402 (N.Y. 1958).

While in Chicago in connection with promotion of employer's products, decedent went to Springfield to visit nightclub and, while returning to Chicago, was killed in automobile accident. On testimony of decedent's widow and woman who accompanied him to nightclub, board was warranted in finding that visit to nightclub was for purpose of advertising employer's product on radio interview on which it was customary to permit reference to patron's business. Award affirmed. On cross examination decedent's woman companion testified as to facts of radio broadcasts but declined to answer personal questions. Under circumstances, appellant not deprived of fair trial. Opportunity to cross-examine must be given on quasi-judicial hearing before administrative tribunal but not to more than a reasonable extent. Epstein v Cort Watch Co., 7 A.D.2d 663, 179 N.Y.S.2d 620, 1958 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4305 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1958), app. denied, 5 N.Y.2d 709, 1959 N.Y. LEXIS 1967 (N.Y. 1959).

Claimant, a salesman, was injured in a restaurant where he was having lunch. He had been assigned to drive sales manager to place of business of customers. And, while manager was waiting for customer, manager had directed claimant to go out for lunch. Board properly held accident arose out of and in the course of employment. Grosack v Hermann & Jacobs Corp., 8 A.D.2d 572, 183 N.Y.S.2d 507, 1959 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9662 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1959).

Decedent was sent to another city to demonstrate employer's products at a field day. His expenses were reimbursable by the employer. After working late, he undertook a journey to a restaurant some 10 miles from the motel where he was staying. Before reaching his destination, the automobile in which he was riding was in an accident which caused his death. Held: his death arose out of and in the course of employment. Kohl v International Harvester Co., 9 A.D.2d 597, 189 N.Y.S.2d 361, 1959 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7471 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1959).

Injuries sustained by outside salesman by tripping on a wire in entering a cafeteria to pick up a quick lunch before calling on his next customer was sufficiently closely related to time and place of work and promotion of the employer's business to be compensable. Haufler v Cambrook Fabrics Co., 20 A.D.2d 946, 249 N.Y.S.2d 109, 1964 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3931 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1964).

Where employee is killed while crossing street in bringing back his lunch so that he may continue working through lunch hour accident is in course of employment. Markowitz v Mack Markowitz, Inc., 22 A.D.2d 1001, 255 N.Y.S.2d 28, 1964 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2415 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1964).

Evidence sustained the Board's decision that claimant's deceased husband was killed within the scope of his employment in an automobile accident which occurred at 3:55 a.m. as the deceased was evidently on his way home after attending a party held at a restaurant in honor of two transferred co-employees, since the Board found the decedent was an outside worker and entitled to coverage until he returned home. Mansfield v General Adjustment Bureau, 27 A.D.2d 783, 277 N.Y.S.2d 224, 1967 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4864 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), aff'd, 20 N.Y.2d 881, 285 N.Y.S.2d 854, 232 N.E.2d 852, 1967 N.Y. LEXIS 1144 (N.Y. 1967).

An investment advisor and underwriter for mutual funds activities encompassing visiting persons at their offices and promoting good will which entailed social ventures to cocktail lounges and supper clubs and death as a result of automobile accident after returning from activities arose from his employment activities. Dunn v Supervised Investors Services, Inc., 34 A.D.2d 1067, 312 N.Y.S.2d 270, 1970 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4242 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), app. denied, 27 N.Y.2d 485, 1970 N.Y. LEXIS 2070 (N.Y. 1970).

Evidence including testimony that worker was employed as assistant superintendent at jobsite and, for duration of job, stayed at motel nearby where he frequently did bookkeeping, payroll and other paper work incidental to job during evenings, that worker and job superintendent drove in company truck to nearby tavern where they had something to eat and drink and that worker was killed in auto accident which occurred while they were proceeding in direction of motel permitted finding that worker met his death in accident which arose out of and in course of employment. Ahart v Preload Co., 57 A.D.2d 976, 394 N.Y.S.2d 104, 1977 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12267 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1977).

Evidence sustained a determination of the Workers' Compensation Board that an employee who died after jogging during his lunch hour on his employer's premises suffered a death that was causally related to and arose out of strenuous exertion engaged in while in the course of employment, where the record revealed that the employer furnished its employees with an athletic facility consisting of a gym, locker room, and showers, that membership in the club was voluntary and open to all employees, that the club's functions were controlled by its members, that the employer engaged a general overseer for the club, and that the employer acquiesced to the use of its names on shirts worn by club members and participated in an annual awards dinner for which it provided trophies. Vaccaro v Sperry Rand Corp., 83 A.D.2d 678, 442 N.Y.S.2d 243, 1981 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 14985 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1981).

A decision of the Workers' Compensation Board that claimant's injuries, sustained when she fell on the sidewalk after exiting her employer's premises on her way to lunch, arose out of and in the course of her employment would be affirmed since the fact that claimant's lunch hour had begun and she was exiting the premises in order to obtain her lunch did not necessarily remove her from the Workers' Compensation Law where claimant was only six steps away from the property line and along the normal route of ingress and egress at the time of her fall. Borelli v New York Tel. Co., 93 A.D.2d 940, 462 N.Y.S.2d 305, 1983 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 17834 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1983).

Employee sustained compensable injury when, after entering premises of his employer shortly before he was scheduled to report for work, he joined other employees in area containing picnic tables and grassy knoll which was provided by employer and sat cross-legged on grass for several minutes, and when he stood up to report for his shift, his left knee popped out of joint, since employee's injury occurred while he was on employer's premises, immediately prior to time he was required to commence work and while he was getting up to report for duty, such that employee was in course of his employment when injury occurred. Torio v Fisher Body Division-General Motors Corp., 119 A.D.2d

955, 501 N.Y.S.2d 485, 1986 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 55883 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1986).

Employer failed to meet "heavy burden" of rebuttal imposed by CLS Work Comp § 21, requiring employer to present substantial evidence that unwitnessed or unexplained accidents occurring in course of employment did not arise out of employment, where Workers' Compensation Board could reasonably infer that employee was eating her lunch in place provided by employer for that purpose, employee's smoking cigarette was activity consistent with purpose of eating area, and sudden bursting of her dress into flames was not caused by cigarette ash alone but was instead of unknown cause sufficient to establish risk incidental to employment. Iacovelli v New York Times Co., 124 A.D.2d 324, 507 N.Y.S.2d 922, 1986 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 61355 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1986).

Claimants' injuries in off-duty softball game arose in course of their employment where, inter alia, team members were required to wear uniforms paid for by entity formed at employer's initiative to promote employer's goals, hats supplied to players bore employer's logo, uniforms remained employer's property and had to be returned after player resigned from team, and practice schedules and printed materials encouraging employees to "play (employer) softball" were displayed on bulletin boards and in lounge areas at employer's premises. Eddy v Rochester-Genesee Reg'l Transp. Auth., 248 A.D.2d 769, 669 N.Y.S.2d 699, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2207 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1998).

107. —Injuries sustained in connection with maintenance or demonstration of employer's product

But an accident does not arise out of and in the course of the employment where an automobile salesman after demonstrating an automobile which he sold, then proceeded to a speak-easy and after drinking there took a friend for a ride for the purpose of demonstrating the same car. Pflug v Roesch & Klinck, Inc., 229 A.D. 54, 240 N.Y.S. 740, 1930 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10308 (N.Y. App. Div. 1930), aff'd, 256 N.Y. 564, 177 N.E. 142, 256 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 564, 1931 N.Y. LEXIS 1142 (N.Y. 1931).

An automobile salesman sustains injuries arising in and out of the course of his employment where an accident occurs while the salesman is teaching a customer to drive the automobile he had sold on behalf of the employer. Virrill v Derks Buick Co., 265 A.D. 895, 37 N.Y.S.2d 924, 1942 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6373 (N.Y. App. Div. 1942).

An award was properly made to the widow and minor children of an automobile salesman who sustained injuries which caused his death while demonstrating an automobile on a public highway. Hoyt v Nicholson Motors, 276 A.D. 1045, 95 N.Y.S.2d 614, 1950 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5665 (N.Y. App. Div. 1950).

A vacuum cleaner salesman was in the course of his employment when he was injured while cleaning the dust bag of the demonstration cleaner in his backyard. Avis v Electrolux Corp., 2 A.D.2d 717, 151 N.Y.S.2d 542, 1956 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5014 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), app. denied, 2 N.Y.2d 705, 1956 N.Y. LEXIS 1175 (N.Y. 1956).

108. —Injuries sustained in lodgings or home

No compensation is awardable to a traveling saleswoman for an injury while in a hotel where she was staying. Turner v Cathedral Pub. Co., 268 N.Y. 656, 198 N.E. 542, 268 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 656, 1935 N.Y. LEXIS 1123 (N.Y. 1935).

Claimant, a traveling salesman who was in a motel in Chicago in the course of his employment, while dressing hurriedly so that he could begin his drive to another city to which his duties took him, fell and sustained a back injury for which he was not entitled to compensation benefits; for his accident was attributable solely to his personal acts, and could not be attributed in any way to the environment into which he had been brought by his employment. Kaplan v Zodiac Watch Co., 20 N.Y.2d 537, 285 N.Y.S.2d 585, 232 N.E.2d 625, 1967 N.Y. LEXIS 1092 (N.Y. 1967).

The death of a traveling salesman does not arise in the course of his employment where he was killed in a hotel by gas escaping from a jet in his room. Kass v Hirschberg, Schutz & Co., 191 A.D. 300, 181 N.Y.S. 35, 1920 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4706 (N.Y. App. Div. 1920).

A truck driver engaged in long distance hauling is within the course of his employment at the time of his death where he rented a tourist cabin while engaged in a trip which required more than one day, and was asphyxiated by a defective heating apparatus in the tourist cabin. McLelland v International Paper Co., 269 A.D. 800, 55 N.Y.S.2d 56, 1945 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3905 (N.Y. App. Div.), app. dismissed, 294 N.Y. 967, 63 N.E.2d 597, 294 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 967, 1945 N.Y. LEXIS 1135 (N.Y. 1945).

A field worker and admissions counselor for a secretarial school whose duties required visits to various schools and colleges for the purpose of soliciting enrollments for the secretarial school which made arrangements with the different educational institutions for such visits, paying the employee's expenses, and undertaking to obtain hotel reservations, suffers injuries arising out of and in the course of her employment, where she died in a hotel fire, even though in that particular instance the employer had endeavored to obtain a hotel reservation but was unsuccessful and directed the employee to make her own arrangements. In re Buck's Estate, 277 A.D. 126, 98 N.Y.S.2d 734, 1950 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3011 (N.Y. App. Div. 1950).

An award for death of employee, in a hotel fire in Vermont, is proper where the decedent was required to make a call at his employer's store there the following morning, and usually made out reports to his employer at night, and there was no proof that decedent was engaged in his own pursuits at the time of the fire. Blake v Grand Union Co., 277 A.D. 914, 98 N.Y.S.2d 738, 1950 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3829 (N.Y. App. Div. 1950).

An award was properly made under a policy giving the location of business operations of the insured at the address of his shop and "elsewhere in N. Y. State" where an employee of a plumbing shop had been directed by his employer to wash the employer's car at his home and while pulling down the window for the employer's daughter in the home, the employee was injured. Walker v Cooper, 279 A.D. 946, 110 N.Y.S.2d 821, 1952 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5392 (N.Y. App. Div. 1952).

Claimant, sales representative for employer, had gone on business trip. On arrival at destination, he consulted physician who gave him sedative drug to alleviate nervous condition. Following day he made some business calls but on the day thereafter he did no work whatever and next morming he was found on floor of hotel room with fractured leg. There was medical evidence that he suffered from toxic psychosis due to use of sedative. Claimant must have slipped and fallen in room but fall was caused by effect of drug. Decision disallowing claim affirmed. Snowden v Devoe & Reynolds Co., 5 A.D.2d 1035, 173 N.Y.S.2d 140, 1958 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6193 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1958).

Injury sustained by a food demonstrator was compensable where the employer sent her 90 miles away to put on a food demonstration in a store for two days, reimbursing her for expenses, including lodging overnight, and she was injured by slipping on a highly waxed floor in a room which she engaged for the night, after completing her work for the first day. Regan v Food Store Demonstration, Inc., 12 A.D.2d 852, 209 N.Y.S.2d 962, 1961 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13213 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1961).

There was substantial evidence to sustain the Workers' Compensation Board's decision that the death of a wife of a president of a closely held corporation, who acted as the secretary and treasurer of the corporation and who worked in a room set aside for that purpose at the couple's home, arose out of and in the course of her employment, where the wife was killed when two men entered the home and raped and murdered her and another woman present, and when arrested, the assailants had three corporate checks signed by the decedent, and where the husband testified that his wife had telephoned the office concerning the payment of a corporate bill at about noon on the day of her death and that she had prepared a check on that day. Watson v Graphic Management Systems, 96 A.D.2d 619, 464 N.Y.S.2d 590, 1983 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 19165 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1983).

109. —Injuries sustained at or near job site or location of sales call

An employee was found to be in course of employment though he never filed a claim, never appeared before a board but accepted compensation for injuries sustained when, after finishing work for day, he left employer's premises and, while on property of another, was run down by a truck operated by his employer. Doca v Federal Stevedoring Co., 308 N.Y. 44, 123 N.E.2d 632, 308 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 44, 1954 N.Y. LEXIS 942 (N.Y. 1954), reh'g denied, 308 N.Y. 744, 125 N.E.2d 102, 308 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 744, 1955 N.Y. LEXIS 1017 (N.Y. 1955).

The place where an employer's contract is being performed is deemed the employer's plant and it is to be treated in its facilities for ingress and egress as would such facilities of the employer while the work is in progress. Downey v Vanderlinde Electric Corp., 276 A.D. 1044, 95 N.Y.S.2d 685, 1950 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5663 (N.Y. App. Div. 1950).

An employee was in the course of his employment when he was involved in an automobile collision at 2:40 A.M. where a record showed he had been making grocery deliveries to summer resorts and had called employer at 9:00 P.M. for instructions and was told to sleep in the car and resume deliveries in the morning. Although there was proof that employee had been in a drunken condition before accident, he was not positively identified and there was no other proof that he had been drinking. Moss v P. A. Trucking Co., 284 A.D. 675, 134 N.Y.S.2d 393, 1954 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3465 (N.Y. App. Div. 1954).

110. —Injuries sustained while being transported by employer or co-worker

The employer's report of the accident, together with the medical and surgical reports and the presumptions prescribed by § 21 are sufficient to support a finding that the claimant's injuries arose out of or in the course of his employment where the claimant, an insurance agent, was injured while riding in an automobile driven by another agent of his employer. Campana v Prudential Ins. Co., 267 A.D. 1007, 47 N.Y.S.2d 848, 1944 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6031 (N.Y. App. Div. 1944).

A claimant employed by an electrical construction contractor is entitled to compensation for injuries sustained in getting into a car made available to him by a fellow employee for the purpose of leaving the premises of a third party for which the employer was doing electrical work under contract. Downey v Vanderlinde Electric Corp., 276 A.D. 1044, 95 N.Y.S.2d 685, 1950 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5663 (N.Y. App. Div. 1950).

Employee of landscaping and gardening business who worked at different places each day according to where his employer had jobs and who was picked up in his employer's truck on a certain corner each day and dropped off at the same corner each evening was an outside employee and within the course of his employment when struck and killed by an automobile upon disembarking from his employer's truck at the end of the day. Devito v Imbriano, 39 A.D.2d 796, 332 N.Y.S.2d 577, 1972 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4573 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1972), aff'd, 33 N.Y.2d 757, 350 N.Y.S.2d 406, 305 N.E.2d 487, 1973 N.Y. LEXIS 978 (N.Y. 1973).

111. —U.S.O. personnel

An entertainer, engaged in touring camps in the United States Occupation Zone in Germany, who had been on a vacation accorded by the terms of her contract and while returning pursuant to an order from the manager of her unit to rejoin the rest of the troup, was injured when the automobile in which she was riding ran off the highway and struck a tree was found to have been injured after return to her employment and in the course thereof. Scott v U. S. O. Camp Shows, Inc., 298 N.Y. 896, 84 N.E.2d 808, 298 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 896, 1949 N.Y. LEXIS 1745 (N.Y. 1949).; Lyons v U. S. O. Camp Shows, Inc., 298 N.Y. 897, 84 N.E.2d 808, 298 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 897, 1949 N.Y. LEXIS 1746 (N.Y. 1949).

A theatrical manager for camp shows, who suffers an injury while on the way to a barber shop for a hair cut and shave while awaiting transportation back to an army camp after completing his business mission in a nearby town, is entitled to compensation. Block v Camp Shows, Inc., 272 A.D. 980, 72 N.Y.S.2d 681, 1947 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4487 (N.Y. App. Div. 1947).

An employee of one producing shows and arranging entertainment for troops overseas, among whose duties was to keep stage clothing and stage laundry cleaned and pressed, is injured in the course of his employment where he was injured in an automobile accident while travelling in an army truck to pick up laundry which it was necessary to have done by native housewives. Gianniny v Camp Shows, Inc., 272 A.D. 1089, 74 N.Y.S.2d 537, 1947 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5051 (N.Y. App. Div. 1947).

A member of a U.S.O. concert unit awaiting transportation back to the United States and injured while returning from a Red Cross club where he had performed, as the result of a fall into a shell hole while attempting to get out of the path of an oncoming automobile, suffers injuries arising out of and in the course of his employment. Polsky v U. S. O. Camp Shows, Inc., 272 A.D. 1094, 74 N.Y.S.2d 667 (N.Y. App. Div. 1947).

A musician in an U.S.O. troop organized in New York city and en route to the Pacific theatre is injured in the course of his employment when struck by an automobile while returning from a hotel where he had intended to see a fellow musician, while the troop was in San Francisco awaiting transportation, during which stay, the claimant was billeted at a hotel provided by the army, was required to be in uniform at all times, and to respect army regulations, and the members of the troop were encouraged to go sight-seeing and to keep posted on current events to be used for entertainment material, and further there was some evidence that the purpose of the employee's visit was to acquire music to be used in connection with the troop's entertainment. De Santis v U. S. O. Camp Shows, Inc., 275 A.D. 880, 88 N.Y.S.2d 732, 1949 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4867 (N.Y. App. Div. 1949).

112. Injury in course of employment; inside employee injured going to or from work

When employee advances to place where he is engaging in an act or series of acts which are part and parcel of entrance into employment premises, test of compensability is whether there is such relationship existing between accident and employment as to bring former within the range of latter or, stated differently, whether accident happened as an incident and risk of employment. Husted v Seneca Steel Service, Inc., 41 N.Y.2d 140, 391 N.Y.S.2d 78, 359 N.E.2d 673, 1976 N.Y. LEXIS 3212 (N.Y. 1976).

Work. Comp. Law makes distinction between injuries received at the plant or upon the premises of the employer and those received elsewhere. Etherton v Johnstown Knitting Mills Co., 184 A.D. 820, 172 N.Y.S. 724, 1918 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6692 (N.Y. App. Div. 1918).

The hazards of the way in and out of an employer's plant are part of the employment, and an accident caused thereby arises out of and in the course of the employment. Leatham v Thurston & Braidich, 264 A.D. 449, 35 N.Y.S.2d 887, 1942 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4179 (N.Y. App. Div. 1942), aff'd, 289 N.Y. 804, 47 N.E.2d 51, 289 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 804, 1943 N.Y. LEXIS 1202 (N.Y. 1943).

Employment is not limited to the exact moment when the workman reaches the place where he begins his work or to the moment when he ceases that work; it necessarily includes a reasonable amount of time and space before and after ceasing actual employment. Leatham v Thurston & Braidich, 264 A.D. 449, 35 N.Y.S.2d 887, 1942 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4179 (N.Y. App. Div. 1942), aff'd, 289 N.Y. 804, 47 N.E.2d 51, 289 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 804, 1943 N.Y. LEXIS 1202 (N.Y. 1943).

While the general rule is that risks of travel to and from work are not risks of employment, there are exceptions. Borders v E. H. Scull Co., 33 A.D.2d 870, 306 N.Y.S.2d 78, 1969 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2547 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1969).

While on the employer's premises, going to or coming from work, is generally considered an incident of the employment. Sicktish v Vulcan Industries of Buffalo, Inc., 33 A.D.2d 975, 307 N.Y.S.2d 385, 1970 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5731 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1970).

It is the general rule, although there are exceptions, that an employee does not enter into the course of his employment until he reaches the premises of his employer. Freebern v North Rockland CDA, 64 A.D.2d 300, 410 N.Y.S.2d 371, 1978 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12733 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1978).

Where claimant was injured on stairway used by employees as the sole method of ingress and egress between the place of employment and street level, claimant was entitled to benefits for injuries suffered in a stairway accident. Diaz v Plaza Hotel, 79 A.D.2d 804, 435 N.Y.S.2d 102, 1980 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 14213 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1980).

Accident which occurred while claimant was leaving work on employer's private roadway arose out of and in course of employment, despite employer's assertion that accident occurred on segment of roadway recently paved by county and ostensibly under municipal control, since roadway was sole route of ingress and egress from employer's parking lot. Maloney v Reynolds Metal, 141 A.D.2d 948, 530 N.Y.S.2d 294, 1988 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6724 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1988).

Evidence supported conclusion of Workers' Compensation Board that claimant's injury was not work related where he had been told by his employer that he would not be permitted to work if he wore certain shirt with offending language on it, he was given options of turning shirt inside out, covering it, purchasing another shirt, or going home to change shirt, and injury occurred en route back to work after he chose to go home to change shirt. Stagliano v New York Tel. Co., 172 A.D.2d 887, 568 N.Y.S.2d 476, 1991 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4207 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1991).

Workers' Compensation claimant's admission that accident occurred outside employer's premises and after working hours constituted substantial evidence supporting finding of Workers' Compensation Board that accident did not arise out of or in course of employment, since risk of travel to and from workplace is generally not in course of employment itself, and injuries occurring during such commuting are not compensable. Gibson v Creedmoor State Hosp., 190 A.D.2d 950, 593 N.Y.S.2d 601, 1993 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1092 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), app. denied, 82 N.Y.2d 655, 602 N.Y.S.2d 804, 622 N.E.2d 305, 1993 N.Y. LEXIS 3161 (N.Y. 1993).

Course of employment is not limited to exact time when employee commences his duties, but rather encompasses reasonable amount of time for employee to enter his place of employment prior to beginning of his shift. Rosen v First Manhattan Bank, 202 A.D.2d 864, 609 N.Y.S.2d 436, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2787 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), aff'd, 84 N.Y.2d 856, 617 N.Y.S.2d 455, 641 N.E.2d 1073, 1994 N.Y. LEXIS 2774 (N.Y. 1994).

Physician was outside employee of professional corporation and was acting in course of her employment at time of her death, for purposes of her husband's entitlement to workers' compensation death benefits, where she was fatally injured in car accident on way to hospital at which she was scheduled to be on call during 24-hour shift, corporation required her to treat patients at its offices on certain days and between certain hours and to be on call during shift at hospital once every 7 days, and it was physician's practice to be physically present at hospital during her on-call duty, although she was not so required. Egloff v Ob-Gyn Assocs., 245 A.D.2d 965, 667 N.Y.S.2d 116, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13637 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1997).

An employee is entitled to compensation, where he sustains injuries on his employer's premises while going to or leaving work. Pantolo v Lane, 56 N.Y.S.2d 227, 185 Misc. 221, 1945 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1990 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1945).

113. —Injuries in doorways, corridors, elevators or walkways maintained by employer

A workman, employed by the day for about eight months, who was excused from work by the superintendent because he had been drinking and tripped and fell as he started to leave, is injured within course of his employment. Kiernan v Friestedt Underpinning Co., 171 A.D. 539, 157 N.Y.S. 900, 1916 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9722 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1916).

A finding of an injury in the course of employment is justified where the claimant reached the door of his employer's premises and while holding the door knob for the purpose of opening the door, slipped and fell receiving injuries. Schiff v Bow-Made Coat Co., 264 A.D. 966, 37 N.Y.S.2d 58, 1942 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5566 (N.Y. App. Div. 1942).

An employee is injured in the course of her employment when, on the way to work, after turning from the sidewalk to mount the steps leading into her place of employment she slips and falls, thereby suffering injury. Cohn v Morningstar Nicol, Inc., 265 A.D. 579, 41 N.Y.S.2d 466, 1943 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6360 (N.Y. App. Div. 1943).

A laundress in a hospital who was injured when she slipped and fell as she left the hospital building through the employee's entrance which led to the public street, is injured in the course of her employment. Boettcher v University of Rochester, 266 A.D. 931, 43 N.Y.S.2d 956, 1943 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5275 (N.Y. App. Div. 1943).

An employee who attempted to enter the building where she was employed but found that the front door was locked and was injured when she slipped and fell on an icy sidewalk in proceeding to the rear entrance suffers injuries arising out of and in the course of her employment. Flanagan v Ward Leonard Electric Co., 274 A.D. 1081, 85 N.Y.S.2d 649, 1949 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6147 (N.Y. App. Div. 1949).

A claim for death benefits was not established by proof that decedent, employed on the fourth floor, was found on the stairs between the third and fourth floors about 10 minutes before his day's work was to begin. Finkelstein v Luna Clothing Co., 283 A.D. 1125, 129 N.Y.S.2d 506 (N.Y. App. Div. 1954).

Plaintiff who slipped and fell on steps as she was exiting building in which she worked at end of work day was still within course of her employment, for purposes of preclusion of her personal injury action by Workers' Compensation Law. Parrinello v Mancuso, 251 A.D.2d 856, 674 N.Y.S.2d 484, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7348 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1998).

Security guard, who injured his ankle while demonstrating boxing maneuver to co-worker while waiting for elevator to arrive after completing his scheduled employment shift and punching out on employer's time clock, was properly denied Workers' Compensation benefits where his own testimony showed that no further work was contemplated on day of accident, his boxing demonstration had no work-related purpose, and his injury was not caused by employer's failure to provide safe means of egress from place of employment. Bigley v J & R Music Elecs., 269 A.D.2d 667, 702 N.Y.S.2d 474, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1277 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2000).

114. —Injuries on other grounds owned by employer

The word the "premises" in this connection means, not any lands which the employer may own, but rather the immediate premises or grounds upon which the plant is located. Murphy v Ludlum Steel Co., 182 A.D. 139, 169 N.Y.S. 781, 1918 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7845 (N.Y. App. Div. 1918), aff'd, 227 N.Y. 634, 126 N.E. 915, 227 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 634, 1919 N.Y. LEXIS 809 (N.Y. 1919).

An employee's injury arose out of and in the course of employment when in order to return employer's tools he left work before quitting time and was struck by an automobile away from his area of work. Fishbane v Congress Operating Corp., 255 A.D. 738, 6 N.Y.S.2d 882, 1938 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4968 (N.Y. App. Div. 1938), aff'd, 280 N.Y. 611, 20 N.E.2d 560, 280 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 611, 1939 N.Y. LEXIS 1441 (N.Y. 1939).

Where a chemist, on his way to work, attempted to climb between the driver's cab and the body of a truck backed against a loading platform in front of the employer's building, the resulting injuries arose out of and in the course of his employment. Leatham v Thurston & Braidich, 264 A.D. 449, 35 N.Y.S.2d 887, 1942 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4179 (N.Y. App. Div. 1942), aff'd, 289 N.Y. 804, 47 N.E.2d 51, 289 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 804, 1943 N.Y. LEXIS 1202 (N.Y. 1943).

An employee is injured in the course of her employment where struck by an automobile while on her way to work and on the premises of the employer. Freshler v Grumman Aircraft Engineering Corp., 270 A.D. 967, 62 N.Y.S.2d 58, 1946 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4884 (N.Y. App. Div. 1946).

An employee who was struck and killed by lightning while on his employer's premises and en route to his place of work is injured in the course of his employment. Deziley v Semet-Solvay Co., 272 A.D. 985, 72 N.Y.S.2d 809, 1947 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4504 (N.Y. App. Div. 1947).

A subway train dispatcher was injured in the course of employment where, at the end of his tour of duty, he left his office to catch a subway train and slipped and fell eighteen feet from the office. Harrigan v New York City Transit Authority, 1 A.D.2d 635, 153 N.Y.S.2d 416, 1956 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4992 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), amended, 2 A.D.2d 795, 154 N.Y.S.2d 432, 1956 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4686 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1956).

Evidence sustained a finding that claimant's injury arose out of and in the course of his employment where he was injured when he fell upon ice on employer's premises, while enroute to exit gate, approximately 5 minutes after he had left his shift of employment notwithstanding the fact that he had gone to a salvage pile on employer's premises after leaving his job to pick up bundles of wood which he was carrying towards exist gate, and intending to leave same there until the following day when he could get permission to take same home. Gabriy v Iroquois Gas Corp., 3 A.D.2d 618, 157 N.Y.S.2d 991, 1956 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3431 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1956).

Claimant had not separated from his employment and was injured in the course of his employment when he left his watchman's job 20 minutes early when the relief man appeared, started for home, progressed only a short distance from his watchman's post, discovered that he had the keys to the watchman's shanty, started to return to give the relief man the keys and was struck by an automobile. McDermott v S. A. Healy Co., 4 A.D.2d 903, 166 N.Y.S.2d 869, 1957 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4295 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1957).

Injuries received in an automobile accident on premises owned by an employer between co-employees who are going to or from work have been deemed to arise out of and in the course of employment. Petrozzi v Passamonte, 32 A.D.2d 716, 300 N.Y.S.2d 183, 1969 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3926 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1969).

Award upheld under testimony that the claimant's automobile was parked in a parking lot provided for by the employer for its employees adjacent to its plant and, upon finishing work, the claimant left the building by the front door and was struck by a car while walking along a route she was compelled to follow in order to avoid other vehicles being driven and picking up other workers in front of the employer's factory, even though there was uncertainty as to whether the claimant was on the edge of parking lot or on the public sidewalk when struck. Lugo v Pelican Sportswear, Inc., 38 A.D.2d 632, 327 N.Y.S.2d 288, 1971 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2698 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1971).

Employer's instruction of employees to enter and leave employer's premises by way of doorway opening onto alleyway owned in part by employer and in part by owner of adjacent property caused the alleyway where injury occurred to become part of the employer's precincts under these circumstances. Schultz v Dermik Laboratories, 39 A.D.2d 989, 333 N.Y.S.2d 326, 1972 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4236 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1972).

Workers' Compensation Board did not err in finding that accident constituted incident and risk of employment where police station receptionist went out to front stoop of station in response to sound of outside explosion and was injured as result of smoke, fire, and vapor shooting out of manhole, since effort to flee building is reasonable reaction to nearby explosion. Mendez v New York, 154 A.D.2d 814, 546 N.Y.S.2d 478, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12721 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1989).

115. —Injuries in parking lots

A schoolteacher who, with permission of a fraternal organization and the principal of her school, parked her car in the fraternal organization's parking lot across the street from the school when she could not find a parking place on the street was entitled to workmen's compensation benefits when she slipped and fell in the parking lot and was injured, upon evidence she had parked in the lot for a period of four years prior to the accident and that the practice of parking in that lot was followed by other teachers, was known to her employer, and was of benefit to the employer. Elwood v Herkimer Cent. School, 20 N.Y.2d 869, 285 N.Y.S.2d 614, 232 N.E.2d 646, 1967 N.Y. LEXIS 1133 (N.Y. 1967).

Where, at the end of a day's work, plaintiff went to his employer's parking lot and entered the car of a co-employee who was to drive him home, he was thus within the precincts of the employment and exposed to the hazards when injured in the collision of an automobile operated by his co-employee, and the fact that a concurring purpose of the homeward trip was to enable the driver to pick up a motor which plaintiff had given him did not affect compensability. In such case the plaintiff's sole remedy is under the Workmen's Compensation Law. Doyle v Jennings, 26 N.Y.2d 957, 310 N.Y.S.2d 512, 258 N.E.2d 924, 1970 N.Y. LEXIS 1416 (N.Y. 1970).

Where employee in reporting to work made left turn on highway to enter plant parking lot and was struck by automobile going in opposite direction about a foot from driveway apron and the collision propelled automobile into parking lot where it struck a parked vehicle causing employee's automobile to overturn with resulting disabling injuries to employee, the left-hand turn was necessary to gain entrance to lot and Workmen's Compensation Board could find that accident arose out of and in the course of employment. Husted v Seneca Steel Service, Inc., 41 N.Y.2d 140, 391 N.Y.S.2d 78, 359 N.E.2d 673, 1976 N.Y. LEXIS 3212 (N.Y. 1976).

Injuries sustained by employee when, after leaving work and going to parking lot maintained by employer for benefit of employees and approximately 140 feet from plant exit, were sustained within the course of employment. Kwapich v Aluminum Co., 282 A.D. 972, 125 N.Y.S.2d 673, 1953 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5599 (N.Y. App. Div. 1953).

Injury sustained by an employee while walking along the margin of a parking lot maintained and kept up by her employer for accommodation of employees' cars are nonetheless to be considered as arising upon the employer's premises although the parking area is not owned by the employer but is actually part of a public street. Chadwick v Clark, 19 A.D.2d 679, 241 N.Y.S.2d 756, 1963 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3489 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1963).

Parking lot was a precinct of employment and injury sustained by county employee when she fell in the parking lot upon leaving work for the day arose out of and in the course of her employment even though lot was operated by city where the lot was operated particularly for employees of county and city and county encouraged its employees to use the lot by affirmative action. Van Deusen v County of Onondaga, 45 A.D.2d 793, 357 N.Y.S.2d 155, 1974 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4631 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1974).

Even though workmen's compensation claimant lost control of his vehicle after first collision in public street, subsequently colliding with vehicle in employer's parking lot, accident upon the employer's premises was not a purely personal act on the claimant's behalf, and thus award of benefits and finding that accident occurred in the course of employment were not precluded. Husted v Seneca Steel Service, Inc., 50 A.D.2d 76, 375 N.Y.S.2d 911, 1975 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11441 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1975), aff'd, 41 N.Y.2d 140, 391 N.Y.S.2d 78, 359 N.E.2d 673, 1976 N.Y. LEXIS 3212 (N.Y. 1976).

Where plaintiff collided with car owned by one defendant and driven by the other and both drivers were employees of aerospace corporation and accident occurred on parking lot maintained by such corporation for its employees, and at time of accident both drivers were leaving to have lunch off premises, plaintiff's exclusive remedy was workmen's compensation. Kanal v Missbach, 50 A.D.2d 528, 374 N.Y.S.2d 646, 1975 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12232 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1975).

Claimant's accident was properly held to have arisen out of and in the course of her employment and compensable where she slipped on snow while stepping out of a coworker's car that was parked in a privately owned lot adjacent to the employer's premises, inasmuch as claimant had arrived to commence her workday and was in the process of entering the employment premises when injured. Brooks v New York Tel. Co., 87 A.D.2d 701, 448 N.Y.S.2d 859, 1982 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 16036 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), aff'd, 57 N.Y.2d 643, 454 N.Y.S.2d 73, 439 N.E.2d 882, 1982 N.Y. LEXIS 3595 (N.Y. 1982).

Workers' Compensation Board's determination that employee's accident arose out of and in course of her employment was supported by fact that while walking through employer's parking lot on way to work she opened door of truck that was parked with its lights on and, after turning lights off, she closed door and experienced sharp lower-back pain, which was diagnosed as "right lateral disc lesion" that totally disabled her from work for 2 months. Purdy v Savin Corp., 135 A.D.2d 975, 522 N.Y.S.2d 700, 1987 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 52872 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1987).

Parking lot maintained by employer constitutes precincts of employment, and course of employment encompasses reasonable amount of time for employee to enter his place of employment prior to beginning of his shift. Lawton v Eastman Kodak Co., 206 A.D.2d 813, 616 N.Y.S.2d 412, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7984 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1994).

Claimant's accident in employer's parking lot arose out of and in course of his employment, even though claimant had been walking to lot's exit to eat at nearby restaurant before beginning work, since his right to park at lot arose exclusively as result of his employment, not because he was patron at restaurant. Lawton v Eastman Kodak Co., 206 A.D.2d 813, 616 N.Y.S.2d 412, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7984 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1994).

Medical secretary sustained compensable injury when stranger threw acid in her face as she was leaving her place of employment en route to parking garage in which she normally parked her car where her route was usual means of ingress and egress for employees, and employer failed to adduce adequate proof of personal motive for attack on secretary. Boston v Medical Servs. for Women, 215 A.D.2d 845, 626 N.Y.S.2d 320, 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4982 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), app. denied, 86 N.Y.2d 706, 632 N.Y.S.2d 499, 656 N.E.2d 598, 1995 N.Y. LEXIS 3457 (N.Y. 1995).

Claimant, inside employee, did not sustain causally related disability when he was injured in accident while walking in shopping center's parking lot after he stopped on his way home to purchase pen since there was no proof that he maintained home office or that he had work equipment in his home, his supervisor testified that he encouraged his employees to perform their work in office as much as possible, and employee provided pens to claimant. Bobinis v State Ins. Fund, 235 A.D.2d 955, 653 N.Y.S.2d 408, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 758 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1997).

Claimant's accident was properly found to be occurring within course of her employment when she slipped in parking garage floor en route to her job as certified surgical technician at hospital since hospital affirmatively encouraged its employees to park in facility where claimant was injured, parking was available at facility at reduced rate for hospital employees and payment of parking fees was deducted directly from employee paychecks, alternate parking could be accessed by permit only, for which there was waiting list, or was located at some distance from hospital, and facility where claimant was injured was located next door to hospital and was internally connected to hospital building. Thatcher v Crouse-Irving Mem'l Hosp., 253 A.D.2d 990, 678 N.Y.S.2d 161, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9749 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1998).

Parking lot maintained by claimant's employer constituted precincts of his employment, and course of his employment encompassed reasonable time for him to leave his place of employment. Vogel v Anheuser-Busch, 265 A.D.2d 705, 696 N.Y.S.2d 571, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10710 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1999).

An employee, injured through the negligence of a co-employee on the parking lot which the company maintained for its employees while both were arriving for work, is entitled to compensation. Pantolo v Lane, 56 N.Y.S.2d 227, 185 Misc. 221, 1945 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1990 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1945).

116. —Injuries in public streets, sidewalks and the like, in general

An award is not justified for the death of an employee from injuries received in the street on way from his place of employment to a restaurant. Clark v Voorhees, 231 N.Y. 14, 131 N.E. 553, 231 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 14, 1921 N.Y. LEXIS 603 (N.Y. 1921).

An employee is injured in the course of employment where, while entering the lower hall of the building she slipped and fell, even though the employer's plant was in a large building and the hallway in which the injury occurred was a public one. Ross v Howieson, 232 N.Y. 604, 134 N.E. 589, 232 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 604, 1922 N.Y. LEXIS 1189 (N.Y. 1922).

An award for a state worker, who fell while hurrying back from lunch, should not have been sustained where there was nothing to take the case out of the settled rule that an employee, injured while away from his employer's premises and while going to and from lunch, is not entitled to compensation except in special circumstances. Proof also failed to show sidewalk belonged to state. Jamison v New York State Temporary Com. on Agriculture, 308 N.Y. 683, 124 N.E.2d 321, 308 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 683, 1954 N.Y. LEXIS 1795 (N.Y. 1954).

While general rule is that accidents occurring on public highway away from place of employment and outside regular working hours do not arise out of and in the course of employment, as employee comes in closer proximity with employment situs there develops a gray area where risks of street travel merge with risks attendant with employment and where mere fact that accident took place on public road or sidewalk may not ipso facto negate right to compensation. Husted v Seneca Steel Service, Inc., 41 N.Y.2d 140, 391 N.Y.S.2d 78, 359 N.E.2d 673, 1976 N.Y. LEXIS 3212 (N.Y. 1976).

An employee who is injured by an accident in the street, while actually performing the services he is employed to perform, is covered by the Work. Comp. Law. Roberts v J. F. Newcomb & Co., 201 A.D. 759, 195 N.Y.S. 405, 1922 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6410 (N.Y. App. Div.), aff'd, 234 N.Y. 553, 138 N.E. 443, 234 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 553, 1922 N.Y. LEXIS 734 (N.Y. 1922).

An employee who is accidentally injured on the public street on his way to plant where he works is not in course of his employment under former § 3, subd. 4. Traynor v Buffalo, 208 A.D. 216, 203 N.Y.S. 590, 1924 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5015 (N.Y. App. Div. 1924).. See also Keller v Reis & Donovan, Inc., 195 A.D. 45, 185 N.Y.S. 741, 1921 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4693 (N.Y. App. Div. 1921), limited, MacClelland v Dodge Bros., 233 A.D. 504, 253 N.Y.S. 773, 1931 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11345 (N.Y. App. Div. 1931).

An injury does not occur in the course of employment where a night watchman was required, in going to and from his work, to pass over a railroad crossing and at the time of the accident, the railroad gates were down, but he entered the crossing and was killed. Harris v Henry Cheney Hammer Corp., 221 A.D. 199, 223 N.Y.S. 738, 1927 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6407 (N.Y. App. Div. 1927).. See also McMahon v B. T. & J. J. Mack, Inc., 220 A.D. 375, 222 N.Y.S. 79, 1927 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9310 (N.Y. App. Div. 1927).

An employee is not injured in the course of his employment where he fell five minutes after quitting time while attempting to board a truck owned by his employer while on his way home and in a public street a short distance from his employer's premises, the employer having forbidden the driver of the truck to carry passengers. Parisi v Whitmore, Rauber & Vicinus, 230 A.D. 140, 243 N.Y.S. 622, 1930 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8565 (N.Y. App. Div. 1930).

A hospital employee who was fatally injured on a public highway while en route to work at the hospital from the hospital annex where he was quartered is injured in the course of his employment. Meissner v Good Samaritan Hospital, 271 A.D. 1041, 68 N.Y.S.2d 506, 1947 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5757 (N.Y. App. Div.), app. dismissed, 296 N.Y. 1001, 73 N.E.2d 577, 296 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 1001, 1947 N.Y. LEXIS 1746 (N.Y. 1947).

An award was denied where the evidence sustained a finding that the claimant did not sustain an accident in the course of his employment when claimant was struck by another vehicle on the street outside of his employer's taxicab garage after claimant had parked his own automobile. Leandro v Key Maintenance Corp., 4 A.D.2d 730, 163 N.Y.S.2d 518, 1957 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5142 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1957).

The fact that an accident to an employee occurs on a sidewalk or public road should not per se negate his right to compensation. Brienza v Le Chase Constr. Co., 17 A.D.2d 83, 230 N.Y.S.2d 362, 1962 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8467 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1962).

As an employee reaches closer proximity to his place of employment a gray area develops where the risks of street travel merge with those of his employment, and, while the fact that the accident then takes place on a public road or sidewalk does not ipso facto negate compensability, it calls for exercise of fact-finding powers of the board in the light of circumstances of the particular case. Patti v Republic Aviation Corp., 20 A.D.2d 939, 248 N.Y.S.2d 978, 1964 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3919 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), app. denied, 14 N.Y.2d 488, 1964 N.Y. LEXIS 1888 (N.Y. 1964).

The general rule is that accidents occurring on the public highway, away from the place of employment and outside regular working hours, do not arise out of and in course of employment. Patti v Republic Aviation Corp., 20 A.D.2d 939, 248 N.Y.S.2d 978, 1964 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3919 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), app. denied, 14 N.Y.2d 488, 1964 N.Y. LEXIS 1888 (N.Y. 1964).

Injuries suffered by employee of an airline when he drove his automobile out of the parking lot and while traveling on "exit road", was in a collision, were not compensable under evidence that the road was owned, controlled and maintained by the New York Port Authority, that the airline exercised no domain over the road where the accident happened, and such road was used for access to the premises of the airline in common with the general public. Williams v Seaboard World Airlines, 33 A.D.2d 714, 305 N.Y.S.2d 30, 1969 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2872 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1969), app. denied, 27 N.Y.2d 484, 1970 N.Y. LEXIS 2052 (N.Y. 1970).

Accident did not arise out of and in course of employment where employee, when he left work, observed that coemployee was having trouble starting his car in vacant lot across street from employer's premises, lot was neither owned by nor controlled by employer, signs had been posted by employer in its warehouse advising employees not to park there, and where employee, together with other employees, helped push the disabled car into the street and then pushed it some distance up the street where employee was fatally injured by passing vehicle. Batorski v Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Co., 48 A.D.2d 718, 367 N.Y.S.2d 340, 1975 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9783 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), app. denied, 37 N.Y.2d 708, 1975 N.Y. LEXIS 2868 (N.Y. 1975).

In a workers' compensation case, the president of a retail liquor store corporation, who sustained head injuries when he fell down the stairs leading to a subway station near his home, was properly awarded benefits where he had an appointment with a customer on the morning in question. Weinstein v 16 East 58th Street Corp., 92 A.D.2d 678, 460 N.Y.S.2d 201, 1983 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 16953 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1983).

Plaintiff's injuries arose out of course of her employment, as matter of law, so that her sole remedy was under Workers' Compensation Law where (1) she was injured in accident which occurred while she was riding home from work as passenger in van owned by employer and operated by co-employee, (2) employer had formed van pool for monthly fee to assist its employees in transportation to and from work, (3) although driver was labeled independent contractor, terms of agreement established that he was under control of employer, and (4) driver had already applied for and received workers' compensation benefits in connection with accident. Schauder v Pfeifer, 173 A.D.2d 598, 570 N.Y.S.2d 179, 1991 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7648 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1991).

Substantial evidence supported determination that police officer did not sustain accidental injury in course of his employment where (1) officer was scheduled to work from 8:00 a.m. until 4:00 p.m., (2) officer's regular assignment was to work inside police station, although he might work outside station under certain circumstances, (3) officer was injured in motor vehicle accident while driving his own car to work at 7:30 a.m., and (4) accident occurred within geographic area where he worked as officer. Stead v Rockland County, 195 A.D.2d 668, 599 N.Y.S.2d 710, 1993 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6891 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1993).

117. — —Exception to general rule

General rule that employees do not enter into course of employment until they reach the premises or entrance to premises of their employer is subject to certain well-recognized exceptions, including those situations in which off-premises point at which injury occurs lies on only route, or at least normal route, employees must traverse to reach plant and therefore special hazards of that route becomes hazards of employment. Husted v Seneca Steel Service, Inc., 41 N.Y.2d 140, 391 N.Y.S.2d 78, 359 N.E.2d 673, 1976 N.Y. LEXIS 3212 (N.Y. 1976).

In a workers' compensation case, involving a 13-year-old newspaper carrier who was struck in the eye by a stone that was propelled by an automobile tire prior to picking up his newspapers at a box that was located at a certain street, the claim was properly disallowed where the carrier did not arrive at the fixed location to pick up his newspapers at the time of the accident, where the general rule was that employees are not within the scope of their employment while traveling to work, where the exception to the general rule, in the case of outside workers who have no fixed place of employment, was not applicable to a worker who is required to report to a fixed location before commencing work, and where, in any event, newspaper delivery boys are not outside workers. Barnard v Lockport Union Sun & Journal, Inc., 92 A.D.2d 663, 460 N.Y.S.2d 373, 1983 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 16931 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), app. denied, 60 N.Y.2d 552 (N.Y. 1983).

An inside employee in a printing plant who was injured when he was struck by an automobile immediately outside of the plant as he was proceeding to a parking area immediately after his work shift ended was properly determined to be entitled to workers' compensation benefits for his injuries where, though accidents occurring on public highways away from a place of employment and outside regular working hours are generally not considered to have arisen out of and in the course of employment, the accident nonetheless happened as an incident and risk of employment in that the claimant was exiting the plant premises along a normal route when the accident occurred, in that such normal route was marked by a special hazard as evidenced by the employer having obtained permission from the town in which the plant was located to erect and maintain a traffic light at such exit to protect its employees from the heavy vehicular traffic that traveled on the street passing in front of the plant, and in that the exit route was closely associated with the employer's premises. Buechi v Arcata Graphics, 97 A.D.2d 579, 468 N.Y.S.2d 65, 1983 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 20194 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1983).

The Workers' Compensation Board properly held that claimant's injury did not arise out of or in the course of his employment and properly denied benefits where, although claimant was required to bring his two-ton pickup truck to work for use on the job, the exception to the general rule that accidents which occur while an employee is on his way to or from work do not arise out of or in the course of his employment when an employee is required to bring his own vehicle to work for use during the work day did not apply inasmuch as claimant was engaged in completing a personal errand, driving his co-worker to pick up his car as a personal favor rather than commuting directly to work, and where the record lacked evidence that claimant's truck was, in fact, to be used on the job on the day he was injured. Stone v A.L.S. Constr. Co., 108 A.D.2d 1036, 485 N.Y.S.2d 605, 1985 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 43358 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), app. denied, 65 N.Y.2d 605, 493 N.Y.S.2d 1027, 482 N.E.2d 1229, 1985 N.Y. LEXIS 15768 (N.Y. 1985).

Workers' Compensation Board properly ruled that claimant, correction officer, sustained causally related injury when he slipped and fell on curb in front of main entrance to facility while en route to pickup his paycheck on his day off, especially since employer's document entitled "Paycheck Distribution Procedures" indicated that while arrangements could be made for employer to mail paychecks to employee's residence, expected procedure was for employees to pickup their paychecks in person. Dandola v New York City Dep't of Correction, 244 A.D.2d 729, 664 N.Y.S.2d 392, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11762 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1997).

Workers' compensation board properly determined that a worker sustained a compensable injury pursuant to N.Y. Workers' Comp. Law §§ 2(7) and 10, and awarded workers' compensation benefits; the worker was injured near his office in the World Trade Center during the September 11, 2001 terrorist attack, and the worker was in a "gray area" where the risks of travel to work merged with the risks of employment. Tompkins v Morgan Stanley Dean Witter, 1 A.D.3d 695, 766 N.Y.S.2d 923, 2003 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11603 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2003).

As an employee's accident was totally coincidental and not a work-related hazard, substantial evidence supported the New York Workers' Compensation Board's finding that the injuries and resulting death from being struck by a truck did not arise out of and in the course of the employee's employment, N.Y. Workers' Comp. Law §§ 2(7), (8); 10(1). There was no evidence that a special hazard existed at the off-premises location where the employee was struck; rather, the risk of being struck by vehicular traffic in this location was shared by the public in general and was not specific to this place of employment. Matter of Fiero v New York City Dept. of Hous. Preserv. & Dev., 34 A.D.3d 911, 823 N.Y.S.2d 290, 2006 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13025 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2006).

118. — —Within a certain distance of employer?s premises or entrance thereto

An employee who while on her way to work slips on snow and falls to the sidewalk, at a point three or four steps away from the front door of the employer's premises, does not suffer injuries arising out of and in the course of her employment. Amento v Bond Stores, Inc., 274 A.D. 863, 82 N.Y.S.2d 1, 1948 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3716 (N.Y. App. Div. 1948).

An inside worker, who fell while walking alongside the building of his employer while on the way to work but upon an areaway within the right-of-way of a city street, some 200 feet from the gateway through which he intended to enter his employer's premises, was not injured in the course of his employment. Pomakoy v American Locomotive Co., 277 A.D. 823, 97 N.Y.S.2d 354, 1950 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3429 (N.Y. App. Div. 1950).

Where a school crossing guard who worked only three short shifts daily and was customarily picked up by a police car at a particular intersection for transportation to the crossing to which she was regularly assigned was injured on her way from home to her second shift while walking toward her assigned crossing, but still some distance therefrom, the board was entitled to find that, when injured, she had not yet arrived where her employment began and accordingly not entitled to workmen's compensation. Nole v Trustees of Tuckahoe, 22 A.D.2d 716, 253 N.Y.S.2d 415, 1964 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3051 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1964), app. denied, 15 N.Y.2d 483, 1965 N.Y. LEXIS 1775 (N.Y. 1965).

Where employee of board of education was injured when, while driving to his place of his employment, his car was struck in rear by bus owned by the board and operated by board's employee, but collision occurred on public highway before plaintiff reached point where he was going to turn into board's premises, the Workmen's Compensation Law was not applicable. Martin v Board of Education, 50 A.D.2d 655, 374 N.Y.S.2d 817, 1975 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12483 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1975).

Assaults upon clerical employee in public stairway over which employer had no direct control were still compensable as occurring "within the concept of the precincts of employment" where first attack occurred within 20 feet of entrance to building in which she was employed and second attack occurred while she was proceeding to her office from railway platform located within complex in which she worked, and where route she chose to reach work site was normal and reasonable avenue of approach. Marquette v New York Tel. Co., 122 A.D.2d 479, 504 N.Y.S.2d 869, 1986 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 59764 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1986).

Workers' compensation claimant's injury arose out of or in course of her employment where she finished working at about 4:00 p.m., left building by main entrance, walked under canopy, turned left, and then fell as she walked along sidewalk in from of employer's building. Arana v Hillside Manor-Nursing Ctr., 251 A.D.2d 715, 674 N.Y.S.2d 445, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6473 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1998).

119. — —?Part and parcel? of employer?s entrance

Claimant, injured when she slipped and fell while crossing an alleyway adjacent to her place of employment, was entitled to benefits, notwithstanding that the alleyway was not owned by the employer nor was the employer under any duty to maintain the alleyway since a "gray" area exists where risks of street travel merge with the risks attendant with employment and when employee advances to the point where he is engaged in an act which is part and parcel of the entrance into the employee premises, the test is whether the accident happened as an incident and risk of employment. Neely v G. W. Morrison, Inc., 79 A.D.2d 803, 435 N.Y.S.2d 103, 1980 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 14212 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1980).

Court would reverse determination finding that claimant, office cleaner, did not sustain accidental injury arising out of and in course of her employment where she slipped on concourse floor in building while on her way to work on fourth floor, and there was no substantial evidence to support determination that she was not injured "in close proximity to her worksite" and that location of her fall "cannot be considered 'part and parcel' of entrance to the employer's premises." Moore v Ogden Allied, 284 A.D.2d 624, 726 N.Y.S.2d 752, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5985 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2001).

120. — —Between employer?s premises and parking lot

After claimant left employer's plant on way to employer's parking lot, located 2 blocks away and while on public sidewalk, he slipped and fell on broken glass which had fallen from window of plant. Award affirmed. Gaik v National Aniline Div., Allied Chemical & Dye Corp., 5 A.D.2d 1039, 173 N.Y.S.2d 409, 1958 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6202 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1958), app. denied, 7 A.D.2d 956, 182 N.Y.S.2d 1023, 1959 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9931 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1959), app. denied, 6 N.Y.2d 706, 1959 N.Y. LEXIS 1710 (N.Y. 1959).

Where decedent was presumably struck by an automobile and fatally injured as he crossed the street from a parking lot where he had left his car to report to his employment at a liquor store, death benefits were properly denied where the record disclosed that decedent used his car to drive to work for personal reasons and that he was not specifically instructed or required by his employer to bring his car to work. Hampton v Kelly, 33 A.D.2d 856, 305 N.Y.S.2d 895, 1969 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2616 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1969).

In Workers' Compensation proceeding, fact that claimant had crossed street to purchase lunch after leaving employer's office and then recrossed street on way to parking lot had no bearing on issue of whether he was proceeding on "normal" route between employer's office and parking lot since he was in fact on sidewalk between office and parking lot at time accident occurred. Jacobs v Dellwood Foods, 130 A.D.2d 848, 515 N.Y.S.2d 916, 1987 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 46857 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), app. denied, 70 N.Y.2d 608, 521 N.Y.S.2d 225, 515 N.E.2d 910, 1987 N.Y. LEXIS 18939 (N.Y. 1987).

Injury sustained by claimant when employer's truck ran over his foot occurred in course of employment, although accident occurred after work hours on public sidewalk, since presence of truck parked partly on sidewalk constituted special hazard, and claimant was proceeding between employer's office and parking lot at time; thus Workers' Compensation Board erred by reversing its prior decision granting claim. Jacobs v Dellwood Foods, 130 A.D.2d 848, 515 N.Y.S.2d 916, 1987 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 46857 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), app. denied, 70 N.Y.2d 608, 521 N.Y.S.2d 225, 515 N.E.2d 910, 1987 N.Y. LEXIS 18939 (N.Y. 1987).

121. — —After employee is completely separated from employment

The board properly found that an employee who was killed on his way home in his own car about eight o'clock in the evening had completely separated himself from his employment. Williams v Saratoga County Highway Dep't, 279 A.D. 962, 111 N.Y.S.2d 28, 1952 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5430 (N.Y. App. Div.), aff'd, 304 N.Y. 632, 107 N.E.2d 162, 304 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 632, 1952 N.Y. LEXIS 869 (N.Y. 1952).

Where a mentally deranged tenant of the apartment building in which employee worked as a caretaker deliberately ran down the employee on a public sidewalk adjacent to the apartment building while the employee was on his way to work and the employer had prior knowledge of a previous assault by the same person upon the employee, the unprovoked attack on the employee was not governed by the precinct of employment rule alone, and was found to have occurred in the course of employment. Harrison v N. Y. C. Housing Authority, 39 A.D.2d 1007, 333 N.Y.S.2d 714, 1972 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4166 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1972), aff'd, 32 N.Y.2d 754, 344 N.Y.S.2d 950, 298 N.E.2d 114, 1973 N.Y. LEXIS 1337 (N.Y. 1973).

Defendant was not acting in scope of her employment where she left her place of employment in downtown area of city at end of her workday and took shuttlebus to parking lot on outskirts of city, where she regularly packed her car, and accident occurred after she had exited parking lot and was traveling on ramp which connected perimeter road to main avenue. Jacobsen v Amedio, 218 A.D.2d 872, 629 N.Y.S.2d 863, 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8268 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1995).

Workers' compensation board properly found that a worker did not sustain an accidental injury arising out of and in the course of his employment as defined by N.Y. Workers' Comp. Law § 2; the worker was not fulfilling his duties as a security officer when he was hit by falling debris, as the worker had ended his shift and was leaving the premises, and the debris fell from a neighboring building. Anowai v Holiday Inn, 2 A.D.3d 994, 768 N.Y.S.2d 399, 2003 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13138 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2003).

122. —Injuries in public streets, sidewalks controlled or maintained by employer

A helper in a city hospital situated on an island owned by the city and occupied entirely by the institution, who, after completing her work for the day, prepared to leave the island to go to the city and while on her way from the nurses' home, fell and received injuries, due to the fact that snow had not been cleared off the sidewalk, is entitled to workmen's compensation law. Lynch v New York, 242 N.Y. 115, 151 N.E. 149, 242 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 115, 1926 N.Y. LEXIS 966 (N.Y. 1926).. See also Gillette v Rochester Vulcanite Paving Co., 249 N.Y. 608, 164 N.E. 602, 249 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 608, 1928 N.Y. LEXIS 967 (N.Y. 1928).

Where a state employee was injured on her way to work when she fell on the sidewalk in front of the state office building where she was employed, and it could not be said that responsibility for maintenance of the street rested upon someone other than the state, her injury occurred "within that reasonable distance" of her actual work required by law. Manville v New York State Dep't of Labor, 294 N.Y. 1, 59 N.E.2d 780, 294 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 1, 1944 N.Y. LEXIS 1258 (N.Y. 1944).

Where claimant was injured on her way to work and outside the employer's premises, she was nevertheless entitled to a compensation award upon a showing that the employer's premises were located on a little used access street, which, though it was a public street, was plowed out during snowstorms by the employer, with the consent of city authorities, to enable employees to get to work, and that claimant, on the date of injury, was driven to work by her husband in their car but had to alight and walk some distance to the entrance of the plant as the result of various cars being stuck in the snow, in course of which she sustained the injuries in question. Spennacchio v Delco Applicance Div., 11 A.D.2d 857, 202 N.Y.S.2d 912, 1960 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8537 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1960).

Where claimant was injured while waiting in what was substantially an alley, but had been dedicated and accepted as a public street, for the gates of his employer's place of business to be unlocked for entry of employees, his injuries were compensable as arising out of and in course of employment, there being no other means of ingress and egress to the employer's premises and the "street" being unimproved and generally used by the employer and others for storage of equipment, material, and debris to such extent as to be almost impassable. Brienza v Le Chase Constr. Co., 17 A.D.2d 83, 230 N.Y.S.2d 362, 1962 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8467 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1962).

Injuries sustained by a domestic servant in falling on an icy spot on a walk leading from her employer's premises to a public sidewalk could be found to be within the scope of her employment, although the employer did not have legal title to the property at the exact spot where the fall took place, he having exercised sufficient dominion over it as a route of access to his property by trying to keep it clear of ice and snow. Camaro v Starbuck, 19 A.D.2d 927, 244 N.Y.S.2d 42, 1963 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2982 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1963).

Injury to claimant, who worked inside employer's premises, occurring when claimant slipped and fell on snow and ice on the public sidewalk near the door of the employer's premises arose out of and in the course of her employment, where the employer was the sole tenant of the building, the building occupied the entire city block completely surrounded by sidewalks, and the employer was charged under its lease with maintaining the sidewalks adjacent to the building and removing the ice and snow therefrom. Reid v Coastal Abrasive & Tool Co., 26 A.D.2d 862, 273 N.Y.S.2d 954, 1966 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3363 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1966).

Where employee fell on a sidewalk owned by the city after her employment had ended for the day at a spot beyond the parking lot driveway, her claim was disallowed even though the employer's maintenance staff kept the sidewalk free of ice and snow during the winter as mandated by local law. Foss v Joseph P. Conroy, Inc., 38 A.D.2d 638, 327 N.Y.S.2d 235, 1971 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2664 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1971), app. denied, 30 N.Y.2d 481, 1972 N.Y. LEXIS 1890 (N.Y. 1972).

Injuries sustained by state employee who left her office when her workday had terminated, who walked to parking lot and entered her automobile, who exited from lot into circular road which surrounded the state campus complex of office buildings, and whose vehicle was struck by a vehicle driven by a coemployee about one mile from place of employment, did not arise out of and in course of state employee's employment, where state employees used roads within state campus in common with general public; and thus state employee's exclusive remedy was not under Workmen's Compensation Law and she could properly maintain personal injury action against coemployee. Groark v Miller, 48 A.D.2d 539, 371 N.Y.S.2d 503, 1975 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9937 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1975).

Thruway toll collector's death while he was traveling on thruway to report for work at his collection station did not arise out of, and did not occur in course of, his employment despite fact that collector was in uniform and possessed, as fringe benefit of his employment, a toll-free pass. Wojnar v New York State Thruway Authority, 56 A.D.2d 947, 392 N.Y.S.2d 511, 1977 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11356 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1977).

123. —Injuries sustained during arrival or departure outside normal working hours

A person employed as a conductor on a street surface railroad who, while returning to report for duty twelve minutes ahead of time, was struck and killed by a car of his employer when he alighted from another car on which he was returning to his work, was not at the time engaged in a hazardous employment and his dependents are not entitled to award. McCabe v Brooklyn H. R. Co., 177 A.D. 107, 162 N.Y.S. 741, 1917 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4707 (N.Y. App. Div. 1917).

A comptometer operator following a surgical operation unrelated to her employment had difficulty in walking and for that reason customarily remained at her desk when her working day ended for about one hour until her husband arrived to escort her home. Held: an award for injuries sustained was affirmed where claimant left her desk approximately one hour after the closing of working day and fell when she tripped over a loose wire displaced when the office was cleaned a few minutes earlier since the accident occurred as the employee was leaving her employer's premises with reasonable dispatch. Babkees v Electrolux Corp., 4 A.D.2d 710, 163 N.Y.S.2d 809, 1957 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5120 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), reh'g denied, 4 A.D.2d 842, 169 N.Y.S.2d 892, 1957 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4598 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1957), app. denied, 3 N.Y.2d 708, 1957 N.Y. LEXIS 1435 (N.Y. 1957).

Decedent, a truck driver for express agency, was employed at railroad yard. He was found on track where apparently, he had come into contact with third rail and died from electrocution. Although he had checked out by punching time clock, he had not completed his duties since he was required to leave his settlement papers at prescribed place before completing duties. Award affirmed. Roth v Railway Express Agency, Inc., 7 A.D.2d 664, 179 N.Y.S.2d 181, 1958 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4306 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1958), app. denied, 7 N.Y.2d 709, 1960 N.Y. LEXIS 1604 (N.Y. 1960).

Claimant's work as elevator operator started at 8:00 a.m. He customarily came to work earlier and changed into his uniform. He was not required to be on the premises until 8 and was not paid for the time prior to that hour. He had arrived at 7:30 a.m., changed into his uniform and left at once on personal errands. On the way back, a sign fell from the building and struck him. Held: injury did not occur in the course of or arise out of employment. Solomon v David Kay Corp., 7 A.D.2d 811, 180 N.Y.S.2d 888, 1958 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3744 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1958).

A cleaning lady regularly employed from 3 to 7 P.M. by a school district who fell on ice when she returned to the school at 8 A.M.

the next morning to return a package she had mistakenly taken from the building was injured out of and in the course of her employment. Scheper v Board of Education, 27 A.D.2d 612, 275 N.Y.S.2d 627, 1966 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2753 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1966).

Lifeguard, injured on way home in automobile, after being permitted to leave beach on account of rain and who was paid regular wages for day and was required to remain on standby duty in case of weather change, arose out of and in course of employment and was compensable. Donnell v Waccabuc Country Club, 29 A.D.2d 1022, 289 N.Y.S.2d 534, 1968 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4148 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1968).

Claimant's accident did not arise out of and in course of her employment where she was returning to work from personal errand on unpaid lunch hour at time of accident, and she was not subject to call at that time. Meyer v Wyoming County Health Dep't, 203 A.D.2d 876, 611 N.Y.S.2d 320, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4371 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1994).

124. Employer liability for risks of travel, generally

In determining whether risks of travel are also risks of the employment, the decisive test is whether it is the employment or something else that has sent the traveler forth upon the journey or brought exposure to its perils. Marks' Dependents v Gray (1929) 251 NY 90, 167 NE 181 questioned in Swartz v McDonald's Corp. (2001, Fla) 788 So 2d 937, 26 FLW S 350 and questioned in Gilbert v Publix Supermarkets (2001, Fla) 790 So 2d 1057, 26 FLW S 479).; Lepow v Lepow Knitting Mills, Inc., 288 N.Y. 377, 43 N.E.2d 450, 288 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 377, 1942 N.Y. LEXIS 1000 (N.Y. 1942).

The trend of decisions is to sustain an employee's claim for compensation where his employment sends him upon a journey which exposes him to the risks and perils incident thereto; under such circumstances lodging in a hotel is a contractual incident of the traveler's employment and he is protected from fire and other hazards which are risks incidental to his itinerary. In re Buck's Estate, 277 A.D. 126, 98 N.Y.S.2d 734, 1950 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3011 (N.Y. App. Div. 1950).

The decedent was killed in an accident arising out of and in the course of his employment, when the fatal automobile accident occurred while decedent was riding from temporary living quarters four or five miles away to the job site, while on temporary assignment away from his permanent place of residence. Lane v Ft. Neck Dredging Co., 28 A.D.2d 949, 281 N.Y.S.2d 622, 1967 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3474 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1967), aff'd, 22 N.Y.2d 965, 295 N.Y.S.2d 333, 242 N.E.2d 485, 1968 N.Y. LEXIS 1077 (N.Y. 1968).

Newspaper boy who was injured when he fell from his bicycle while en route from his home to pick up his newspapers for delivery on a rainy day was injured in the course of his employment where, although he was not required to use the bicycle in the performance of his duties, his employer knew that he did so and had instructed him that deliveries should be completed by 6:00 p.m. Birdsall v Peters, 46 A.D.2d 11, 361 N.Y.S.2d 64, 1974 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3625 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1974).

If an employee is required to have an automobile at the employment premises, an accident involving the use of it to reach those premises would be in the course of employment. Freebern v North Rockland CDA, 64 A.D.2d 300, 410 N.Y.S.2d 371, 1978 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12733 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1978).

Injury sustained by college lecturer while commuting between home and college is not in course of employment merely because at time of injury lecturer has briefcase containing published material which lecturer intends to use during commute in preparation for giving lecture at later date where lecturer's decision to work on lecture away from place of employment is matter of personal choice. Broich v New York State Union College of Optometry, 117 A.D.2d 868, 498 N.Y.S.2d 583, 1986 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 53141 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1986).

Workers' Compensation Board properly determined that claimant did not sustain accidental injury in course of his employment as service technician and salesperson, since his travel was purely personal and unrelated to his employment where he was involved in one-car accident while driving away from city in which his office and his apartment were situated, he had no customer appointments that evening but rather was scheduled to meet his supervisor either at his apartment or at his office, and he had blood alcohol level of .235 percent when accident occurred. Estate of Moritz v Ascar, Inc., 179 A.D.2d 909, 579 N.Y.S.2d 462, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 650 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1992).

Workers' Compensation Board properly determined that limousine driver's death occurred during course of his employment where he was shot to death while picking up limousine at repair shop pursuant to direction of its owner, instead of picking it up at owner's home as he usually did. Kurzyna v Communicar, Inc., 182 A.D.2d 924, 582 N.Y.S.2d 295, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5940 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), app. denied, 80 N.Y.2d 754, 587 N.Y.S.2d 906, 600 N.E.2d 633, 1992 N.Y. LEXIS 1807 (N.Y. 1992).

Claimant was not even tangentially engaged in employer's business of selling automobiles when he was injured in accident while driving to grocery store on Memorial Day holiday, although he was driving demonstrator vehicle provided to him by employer as incident of employment when accident occurred, where no benefit inured to employer which transformed claimant's purely personal use of vehicle into dual personal and business use for purposes of Workers' Compensation Law. Clark v R.I. Suresky & Sons, 236 A.D.2d 673, 653 N.Y.S.2d 441, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 965 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1997).

125. —Injury to employees performing work at home

Where an employee was injured while alighting in front of her home, from an automobile owned and operated by a friend, compensation will be denied even though she contended that she was taking one of the other occupants, an attorney, to her home in connection with her employer's business to show him a sample printed court record and brief. Crumpacker v Batavia Times Publishing Co., 290 N.Y. 679, 49 N.E.2d 628, 290 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 679, 1943 N.Y. LEXIS 1322 (N.Y. 1943).

The death of the president of a recording company, which occurred in an automobile accident while on his way home from a recording session, was compensable under evidence that the decedent used his home as a "place of employment", that he regularly took tapes home and there worked on them, that he had work equipment at his home in the form of a recorder owned by the corporation, and it was necessary and beneficial to the employer for him to perform work at home in view well as the custom in the trade. Hille v Gerald Records, 23 N.Y.2d 135, 295 N.Y.S.2d 645, 242 N.E.2d 816, 1968 N.Y. LEXIS 1055 (N.Y. 1968).

An injury is not compensable and does not arise in the course of employment where it appears that the employee, with the knowledge of but not by direction of his employer, took work to his house when he went home to his lunch and worked thereon while at home and that on his way back to his place of employment he fell in the street and received the injury for which he claims compensation. Scanlon v Herald Co., 201 A.D. 173, 194 N.Y.S. 663, 1922 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6280 (N.Y. App. Div. 1922).

Testimony by an office manager that due to the heavy volume of work it was necessary for her to take portions of it home, corroborated by an officer of the employer, does not oblige the board as a matter of law to find an extension of employment beyond the office and beyond office hours where the employee slipped on ice in the street while en route to her employment with a leather case containing material on which she had been working for the employer at home. Rothstein v Supply Mfg. Co., 277 A.D. 821, 97 N.Y.S.2d 56, 1950 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3422 (N.Y. App. Div. 1950).

An employee is injured in the course of his employment where he did considerable work at home and on the morning of a fatal heart attack he was required to use a stairway leading from a subway to the street. Kehoe v London Guarantee & Acci. Ins. Co., 278 A.D. 731, 103 N.Y.S.2d 72, 1951 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4508 (N.Y. App. Div. 1951), aff'd, 303 N.Y. 973, 106 N.E.2d 59, 303 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 973, 1952 N.Y. LEXIS 1404 (N.Y. 1952).

The general rule is that risks of travel to and from work are not risks of employment, and unless the employee's home is truly a second employment location in that more than occasional employment services are required to be rendered there, travel between work and home is not a risk of employment. Trent v Collin S.

Tuttle & Co., 20 A.D.2d 948, 249 N.Y.S.2d 140, 1964 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3933 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1964).

An exception to the rule that risks of travel to and from work are not risks of employment may exist where the employee performs work both in the office and at home. To come within such an exception, however, it must appear that the work was a special assignment for employer's benefit or there existed a pattern of taking work home with employer's knowledge. Borders v E. H. Scull Co., 33 A.D.2d 870, 306 N.Y.S.2d 78, 1969 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2547 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1969).

Where employee was injured while on his way home from work and later died as a result of such injury, award upheld under evidence that the project on which decedent was working was a substantial one and a deadline existed; that there were no set hours of work and that it was the accepted practice to take work home to complete it; and that this circumstance existed on the evening decedent was injured. Borders v E. H. Scull Co., 33 A.D.2d 870, 306 N.Y.S.2d 78, 1969 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2547 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1969).

Decedent's tailoring services at home for his employer were performed as an employee and his death while on his way home arose out of and in the course of that employment so that travel between work and home was, therefore, within the course of employment and an accident occurring therein is compensable. Gennarelli v Spruce-Up Cleaners, Inc., 34 A.D.2d 1075, 312 N.Y.S.2d 336, 1970 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4255 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1970).

For the purpose of determining whether an accident is within the coverage provided by workers' compensation, the mere fact that an employee performs work at home is not sufficient to engender coverage for travel between home and office; there must be evidence that the home is truly a place of employment. Freebern v North Rockland CDA, 64 A.D.2d 300, 410 N.Y.S.2d 371, 1978 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12733 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1978).

126. —Injury to employees making stops or performing errands at employer's direction

A motorman of a street railway, who had finished his work for the day, and was hurrying to catch a street car to go to an adjoining town to have his watch tested, as required by the rules of the employer when struck and killed by an automobile in the course of his employment. De Voe v New York S. Rys., 218 N.Y. 318, 113 N.E. 256, 218 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 318, 1916 N.Y. LEXIS 1074 (N.Y. 1916).. See also Kowalek v New York C. R. Co., 229 N.Y. 489, 128 N.E. 888, 229 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 489, 1920 N.Y. LEXIS 704 (N.Y. 1920).

A plumber's helper injured on the way to a neighboring village where he had promised to pick up his wife after his day's work is not entitled to compensation although his employer had requested him to take his tools along and do a trifling job in the village, which would not have been done at the cost of a special journey. Marks' Dependents v Gray, 251 N.Y. 90, 167 N.E. 181, 251 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 90, 1929 N.Y. LEXIS 692 (N.Y. 1929).

Where an employee on his way to his place of employment, after lunching at home, went to a store a short distance off his usual route and bought materials which his employer had directed him to procure to repair a machine at which he worked, and with them in his possession retraced his steps and, after regaining the route he was accustomed to take between his house and his place of work, fell and was injured, an award of compensation was improperly reversed. Schwimmer v Kammerman & Kaminsky, 262 N.Y. 104, 186 N.E. 409, 262 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 104, 1933 N.Y. LEXIS 920 (N.Y. 1933).. See also Crippen v Press Co., 254 N.Y. 535, 173 N.E. 854, 254 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 535, 1930 N.Y. LEXIS 1119 (N.Y. 1930).

A domestic servant who had been requested by her employer to stop at a store on her way to work receives injuries arising out of and in the course of her employment where the accident occurred while she was going to work and before she had deviated from her usual route to make the aforesaid stop. Kristianson v Lehman, 287 N.Y. 569, 38 N.E.2d 230, 287 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 569, 1941 N.Y. LEXIS 2459 (N.Y. 1941).. See also Goldman v Palmer & Oliver, Inc. (1950) 277 App Div 194, 98 NYS2d 793, reh and app den (1950) 277 App Div 953, 99 NYS2d 615., and Skolnick v Elgin Chair, Inc., 273 A.D. 833, 75 N.Y.S.2d 840, 1948 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4838 (N.Y. App. Div. 1948).

An injury does not arise in the course of employment where an employee of a confectionery store was sent by his employer to the police station to arrange for bail for a customer who was arrested in the saloon next door in which the employer had an interest, and was injured at the police station. Sabatelli v De Robertis, 192 A.D. 873, 183 N.Y.S. 796, 1920 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7574 (N.Y. App. Div. 1920), aff'd, 230 N.Y. 592, 130 N.E. 906, 230 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 592, 1921 N.Y. LEXIS 871 (N.Y. 1921).

One employed as a truck driver during the week and to guard the employer's premises on Sundays, who used an automobile of his own on Sunday to get spark plugs necessary for the operation of the truck and was injured in cranking his own motor, was held entitled to an award of compensation. Martin v Henry Card & Co., 193 A.D. 6, 183 N.Y.S. 88, 1920 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5500 (N.Y. App. Div. 1920).

Where a business agent collided with a tree while driving an automobile for the purpose of collecting dues, the injuries suffered in such collision arose out of and in the course of his employment. Wunch v Upper New York Movers Ass'n, 263 A.D. 768, 30 N.Y.S.2d 862, 1941 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4866 (N.Y. App. Div. 1941).

An employee whose duties included making calls outside the plant where he worked suffers injuries arising out of and in the course of his employment where he was injured while on his way to make such a call even though he was on the route which he customarily followed from his home to his place of employment. Goldman v Palmer & Oliver, Inc., 277 A.D. 194, 98 N.Y.S.2d 793, 1950 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3022 (N.Y. App. Div.), reh'g denied, 277 A.D. 953, 99 N.Y.S.2d 615, 1950 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3970 (N.Y. App. Div. 1950).

After leaving his home in the morning, the claimant was struck with a motor vehicle while crossing a street. He testified that by previous arrangement he was to meet a salesman of the employer and, in this respect, was corroborated by the salesman. Although there was evidence that the witnesses had made previous statements to the effect that the meeting place was to be the office of the employer and claimant had not deviated from his usual route to the office, an award was affirmed because credibility of witnesses is a matter for the Board to determine. Mayer v All Electronics, Inc., 1 A.D.2d 715, 146 N.Y.S.2d 793, 1955 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3732 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1955).

It being within the power of the board to accept or reject testimony and to determine credibility of witnesses, a finding of the board that claimant was not on a mission for his employer, a law firm, at the time he was injured in an automobile accident, would not be overturned, notwithstanding claimant's testimony that at the time of the accident he was on his way to keep an appointment at a residence near the place of the accident with a client of the firm on a matter of business, and the client's testimony that he was expecting someone from the firm to keep such an appointment, it appearing that claimant, at the time of the accident, had a woman with him in the car whom he had taken out to dinner and who was also supposed to be a client of the firm seeking advice from claimant. Gordon v Gordon, 11 A.D.2d 833, 202 N.Y.S.2d 566, 1960 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8503 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), app. denied, 8 N.Y.2d 710, 1960 N.Y. LEXIS 1894 (N.Y. 1960).

A finding that death did not arise out of and in course of employment was affirmed where it appeared that decedent, in making a swift business trip in his own car in his employer's interest, expecting to return home the same night, lingered at two or three points along the way home for food, drink, and conversations with friends, relationship of which to the employer's business was doubtful, and was killed between 2:30 and 4:00 a.m. when his car crashed over an unguarded embankment some four miles after his last stop and nine miles short of his home. Owen v Oneida, Ltd., 16 A.D.2d 1005, 229 N.Y.S.2d 325, 1962 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9087 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1962).

There was substantial evidence to support a finding that death of an employee in an automobile crash on his way home from his place of employment and while driving his own car was not in course of employment, although he sometimes did homework on records and papers of his employer and had some such papers with him at the time, and had been also requested by the general manager to pick up some air line tickets at the city airport, and the route on which the accident occurred intersected a street which could have taken him either to his home or the airport. Winters v Valley Farm Food Sales, 16 A.D.2d 1010, 229 N.Y.S.2d 501, 1962 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9094 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1962).

Death of an employee by drowning when he fell off a public dock could properly be considered as arising out of his employment where it appeared that he was employed as a laborer at a hotel on an isolated island at $50 a week plus room and board and was returning from a trip over to Long Island in the manager's motor boat to do some shopping and was attempting to help another employee moor the boat to the dock when he fell off and drowned. Roher v Cherry Grove Hotel & Restaurant, 20 A.D.2d 593, 245 N.Y.S.2d 173, 1963 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2651 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1963), app. denied, 14 N.Y.2d 485, 1964 N.Y. LEXIS 1775 (N.Y. 1964).

Although claimant, an executive secretary, was informed by an officer of her employer that he needed a certain report by 9:15 A.M. the following day "regardless of what she had to do to get it in," and, as a result, she worked on the report after quitting time until 10:45 P.M. and left home for the office 30 to 40 minutes earlier than usual next morning, a fall sustained when alighting from a bus on her way to the office could not be considered as compensable as a logical extension of the "special errand rule." Trent v Collin S. Tuttle & Co., 20 A.D.2d 948, 249 N.Y.S.2d 140, 1964 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3933 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1964).

Where an employee has been specifically directed by his employer to proceed on an errand for the employer rather than come to the place of employment in the morning, if the employee falls in his apartment before leaving it or if he falls on the steps leading from the inner lobby of the apartment house to an outer lobby from which the inner lobby is shut off by a door which is kept locked, such accident is not compensable since it occurred before the employee left his home and began his employment. Charak v Leddy, 23 A.D.2d 437, 261 N.Y.S.2d 486, 1965 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3525 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1965).

An inside and outside employee who was injured in explosion of restaurant where he was eating just prior to going to bank as instructed by employer to obtain cashier's checks for payment of parking fines incurred by claimant while using company car on company business was injured in an accident arising out of and in course of employment. Dolan v Crawford & Co., 41 A.D.2d 870, 342 N.Y.S.2d 859, 1973 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4693 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1973).

A Workmen's Compensation Board's finding that the death of decedent, who suffered a fatal heart attack while shoveling snow to get his car out of the driveway in order to travel to an audit that he was required to attend, arose out of and in the course of his employment was supported by substantial evidence where decedent was attempting to comply with a special direction of his superior to attend the crucial appointment despite hazardous weather conditions, where decedent would have remained home absent the special direction, and where employer would benefit from the special errand. Junium v A. L. Bazzini Co., 86 A.D.2d 690, 446 N.Y.S.2d 520, 1982 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 15236 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1982).

Claimant's accident occurred in course of her employment as home aide where she was asked by woman she normally worked for to clean home of woman's daughter without additional pay, and she was injured in vehicle accident during normal working hours while on way to daughter's home; even where activity is for private benefit of supervisor, injury sustained in course of that work may be compensable. Marthorne v Home Attendant Serv., 207 A.D.2d 939, 616 N.Y.S.2d 818, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8993 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1994).

Evidence established that claimant was injured while on special errand for employer, and thus was entitled to worker's compensation benefits, where employer enforced dress code and derived benefit from professional appearance of its employees, claimant arrived at work wearing denim suit and—although she had worn same suit previously without incident—she was instructed to change her clothes before she could continue her work, and she was injured in motor vehicle accident while returning home to change. Jennette v MCS Cannon, 211 A.D.2d 943, 621 N.Y.S.2d 229, 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 251 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1995).

127. —Injury to employees carrying employer's equipment or property

An injury to an employee carrying the employer's money while performing errand for employer while on route to or from the premises of employment outside regular work hours is compensable. Wilber v Fonda, J. & G. R. Co., 208 A.D. 249, 203 N.Y.S. 336, 1924 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5024 (N.Y. App. Div. 1924).. See also Grieb v Hammerle, 222 N.Y. 382, 118 N.E. 805, 222 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 382, 1918 N.Y. LEXIS 1468 (N.Y. 1918)., and McCarthy v Walsh Constr. Co., 254 N.Y. 608, 173 N.E. 887, 254 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 608, 1930 N.Y. LEXIS 1218 (N.Y. 1930).

An injury does not occur in the course of employment merely because the injured employee was carrying the day's cash receipts which he was required to take home every night and to deliver to his employer the following morning. Torres v Criterion Concessions, Inc., 259 A.D. 770, 18 N.Y.S.2d 402, 1940 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6589 (N.Y. App. Div.), aff'd, 284 N.Y. 615, 29 N.E.2d 932, 284 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 615, 1940 N.Y. LEXIS 1260 (N.Y. 1940).

An employee is not injured in the course of his employment where, having received the pay envelopes of all the employees he distributed all but one, which he attempted to leave at the employee's residence, but failing to find the employee at home, continued on to his home for the weekend in another city, intended to return and deliver the check on his way to work the following Monday morning, and he sustained injuries on the return trip. O'Keefe v A. Friederich & Son, 260 A.D. 818, 22 N.Y.S.2d 402, 1940 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4826 (N.Y. App. Div. 1940).. See also Chetney v H. A. Manning Co., 273 N.Y. 82, 6 N.E.2d 105, 273 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 82, 1937 N.Y. LEXIS 1175 (N.Y. 1937).

Where claimant was en route to pick up his employer's mail at the post office and from there he intended to proceed to his employer's office, the industrial board properly found that since he left his home on this mission he must be considered to be in the course of his employment. Worrall v Forest Hills Material Co., 267 A.D. 1021, 47 N.Y.S.2d 949, 1944 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6064 (N.Y. App. Div. 1944).

Award for injuries suffered by claimant while driving his personal automobile, with the company treasurer as a passenger, upheld on evidence of a concurrent business motive in the trip. Thompson v Tomivill Cleaners, Inc., 30 A.D.2d 1008, 294 N.Y.S.2d 184, 1968 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3123 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1968).

Claimant, a school librarian required to work at two different schools, is not entitled to workers' compensation benefits for injuries sustained when she fell on ice in her own driveway as she prepared to drive to work on a day when she was scheduled to spend a full day at one of the schools; the use of the automobile was not a requirement or condition of employment on the day in question, there is lack of substantial evidence that the school materials in claimant's automobile at the time of the accident would transform the use of the automobile into a special errand or an extension of the employment, and there was no connection established between the homework part of claimant's duties and the employment for the purpose of coverage. Freebern v North Rockland CDA, 64 A.D.2d 300, 410 N.Y.S.2d 371, 1978 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12733 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1978).

Workers' Compensation Board's conclusion that death occurred in course of employment was supported by evidence that truck driver was killed when his motorcycle was struck by van as he was routinely returning set of truck keys to his boss. Tunison v P.C. Richards & Son, 257 A.D.2d 856, 684 N.Y.S.2d 311, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 524 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1999).

128. —Injury to employees attending employer authorized classes, meetings or other functions

Where a store detective attended court for her employer and was injured on the way home from court, she suffered an injury in the course of her employment. Gibbs v R. H. Macy & Co., 214 A.D. 335, 212 N.Y.S. 428, 1925 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10513 (N.Y. App. Div. 1925), aff'd, 242 N.Y. 551, 152 N.E. 423, 242 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 551, 1926 N.Y. LEXIS 1078 (N.Y. 1926).

A student nurse, who had completed a special course in an affiliate hospital 2 days early by virtue of working overtime and was injured while en route from the affiliate hospital to her general hospital for the purpose of reporting and signing up for her vacation is injured in the course of her employment. Kwitkowski v Charles E. Wilson Memorial Hospital, 277 A.D. 802, 96 N.Y.S.2d 871, 1950 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3376 (N.Y. App. Div. 1950).

A claimant, employed as an assistant pressman, who sustained accidental injuries while attending trade school was entitled to an award where a union agreement required that apprentices attend the printing school during a stipulated period each week. Correll v Tutrone Printing Co., 277 A.D. 817, 97 N.Y.S.2d 106, 1950 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3410 (N.Y. App. Div. 1950).

Claimant, a tree surgery foreman, was required to attend a convention with all expenses paid by his employer. At an afternoon field session, claimant became hot and dirty and, before the evening session, he took a bath in his hotel and was injured in a fall in the tub. The board dismissed his claim on the ground that bathing was a purely personal act. But the court reversed. The two aspects of the work were in continuity, one exposing claimant to becoming physically dirty and the other requiring him to be neat in appearance. The employer provided the bath tub, and he used it in the course of employment. Miller v F. A. Bartlett Tree Expert Co., 3 A.D.2d 777, 160 N.Y.S.2d 308, 1957 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6184 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1957), aff'd, 3 N.Y.2d 654, 171 N.Y.S.2d 77, 148 N.E.2d 296, 1958 N.Y. LEXIS 1243 (N.Y. 1958).

Where a schoolteacher was injured while alighting from a motor vehicle in which she had been driven, by a coteacher, to a church where funeral services for a retired city Superintendent of Schools were to be conducted, testimony that it was the custom of the school district to permit the School Superintendent to delegate various teachers to attend such functions, where they occurred during school hours, and that claimant had been delegated, among others, to attend this one, was sufficient to establish that the accident arose out of and in the course of her employment. O'Donnell v Board of Education, 15 A.D.2d 600, 222 N.Y.S.2d 400, 1961 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6976 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1961).

That an employer, who does not sponsor or encourage a trip or consider it a business activity, receives some benefit from the trip, is insufficient to bring the trip within the scope of employment. Holding that trip of company vice-president to informal businessmen's meeting was not within the scope of employment. Tally v J. J. Newberry Co., 30 A.D.2d 898, 291 N.Y.S.2d 950, 1968 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3381 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1968), aff'd, 25 N.Y.2d 945, 305 N.Y.S.2d 156, 252 N.E.2d 634, 1969 N.Y. LEXIS 1050 (N.Y. 1969).

Award denied under evidence that claimant, employed as a clerk by the Workmen's Compensation Board, was injured on a Saturday morning when he slipped and fell on a sidewalk adjacent to the school building while on his way to the school for the purpose of taking an interdepartmental promotional examination scheduled by the Department of Civil Service even though the claimant's supervisor had asked claimant to take the examination. Costa v New York State Workmen's Compensation Board, 34 A.D.2d 585, 308 N.Y.S.2d 93, 1970 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5412 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1970).

Attendance at the particular place and incidental travel does not remove an employee from the employment even if voluntary, if such attendance was incidental to the ordinary employment and was undertaken at the employer's request. Bump v Central School Dist., 40 A.D.2d 243, 338 N.Y.S.2d 998, 1972 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2979 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1972).

Teacher killed in automobile accident when returning home from college course in which he enrolled voluntarily but with the approval and for the benefit of the school district was acting within the course of his employment for purposes of receiving death benefits. Bump v Central School Dist., 40 A.D.2d 243, 338 N.Y.S.2d 998, 1972 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2979 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1972).

Claimant, a hospital attendant in a state hospital who was injured in an automobile accident while driving to a practical nursing school at a time when she was on a one year fully paid educational leave of absence from her job came within "special errand" exception to rule that injuries incurred while traveling to and from work are not risks of employment where leave of absence was for mutual benefit, was encouraged by employer, claimant was required to return to work during vacations from school lasting more than 2 weeks, claimant had to maintain a specified grade level to remain in the program, and claimant could only train in the area in which she was engaged. Love v N. Y. S. Craig School, 42 A.D.2d 796, 345 N.Y.S.2d 710, 1973 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3780 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1973), aff'd, 34 N.Y.2d 680, 356 N.Y.S.2d 292, 312 N.E.2d 476, 1974 N.Y. LEXIS 1646 (N.Y. 1974).

Where employee was assigned to teach class at hospital away from his regular location of employment and was injured while en route home from teaching class at hospital, he was an outside employee for purposes of traveling to and from the hospital and thus his injury was compensable. Marciniak v Berlitz School of Languages, 43 A.D.2d 509, 353 N.Y.S.2d 536, 1974 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5546 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), app. dismissed, 34 N.Y.2d 843, 359 N.Y.S.2d 64, 316 N.E.2d 345, 1974 N.Y. LEXIS 1505 (N.Y. 1974).

Employee, who was vice president of employer corporation and who was en route to his home in a rental automobile furnished by his employer to pick up papers for business meeting later that evening when he was killed in automobile accident, was in course of his employment, and claimant was thus entitled to death benefits. Averick v Standard Industries, 46 A.D.2d 715, 360 N.Y.S.2d 302, 1974 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3775 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), app. denied, 35 N.Y.2d 645, 1974 N.Y. LEXIS 2388 (N.Y. 1974).

Where claimant was a county legislator and supervisor of the town of French Creek, where he received notice of a meeting of a legislative committee of which he was a member to be held at a specified time in a restaurant in the city of Jamestown, where he arrived at the time and place designated and, about an hour later, ascertained that the meeting had been cancelled, where he was reimbursed for travel expenses from his home to the would-be meeting site, where he elected to remain there for dinner, during the course of which he engaged in conversations with local businessmen relating to town and county affairs, and where he was subsequently injured in an automobile accident en route home, the accident suffered by claimant, an outside employee, arose in and out of the course of his employment as a county legislator. Lepkowski v Chautauqua County Legislature, 58 A.D.2d 704, 396 N.Y.S.2d 101, 1977 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12810 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1977).

Injuries sustained by a claimant in an automobile accident while the claimant, an employee of the State of New York, was returning to his home from a medical examination required by the State Employees Retirement System in connection with his application for accidental disability retirement benefits, arose out of and in the course of his employment; the claimant was responding to a direct order by a department of his employer and the medical examination was for the benefit of the State as evidentiary material. Augustine v New York State Elmira Correctional Facility, 64 A.D.2d 340, 410 N.Y.S.2d 141, 1978 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12742 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1978).

In a workers' compensation case, the sales manager of a retail store was properly determined to have sustained a compensable injury arising out of and in the course of his employment where he was involved in a one-car accident while driving on a direct route from his employer's dinner meeting, which he was required to attend, to his home, despite the fact that on his direct route home he made two stops to drop off fellow employees. Hernandez v Carpet, 91 A.D.2d 775, 457 N.Y.S.2d 1020, 1982 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 19669 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1982).

129. —Injury to employees traveling between various premises or facilities controlled by employer

Where a workman, employed in a factory, was sent by his employers to do some work in another factory across the street, which was under the management of the same firm, and while returning, after finishing work, slipped and fell on ice or snow in street, his injury arose out of and in the course of his employment. Grieb v Hammerle, 222 N.Y. 382, 118 N.E. 805, 222 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 382, 1918 N.Y. LEXIS 1468 (N.Y. 1918).; Redner v H. C. Faber & Son Co., 223 N.Y. 379, 119 N.E. 842, 223 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 379, 1918 N.Y. LEXIS 1194 (N.Y. 1918).

Injury sustained by employee while driving from business location to employee's home, which is second business location, is compensable where employee is driving on direct route to home office and briefcase in car contains material relating to business on which employee is planning to work. Weimer v Wei-Munch, Ltd., 117 A.D.2d 846, 498 N.Y.S.2d 547, 1986 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 53121 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1986).

Workers' Compensation Board properly determined that injury arose in course of claimant's employment as New York City transit police officer where claimant became ill while on duty, he told his supervisor and was directed to go home and report to transit authority clinic on following morning, and he was injured in automobile accident while driving his own vehicle to clinic; risk of travel to and from clinic was incident of employment since medical examination benefited employer by insuring that employees did not leave work due to frivolous or false claims of illness and that employees who were ill did not continue to work, thus endangering themselves and others. Pearson v New York City Transit Auth., 146 A.D.2d 849, 536 N.Y.S.2d 255, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 16863 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1989).

130. —Injury to employees performing job away from ordinary work place

An award is properly made to an employee who served as correspondent and general European news manager for United Press where he was injured in a fall from a train while on his way from London to Cobham and it appears that his work required him to be on duty twenty four hours a day, that on the day of his injury he had been ordered from London to Rome, Italy, and that he was on his way to his temporary home in Cobham where he kept a typewriter and portable radio in connection with his work. Miller v United Press Ass'ns, 263 A.D. 1034, 33 N.Y.S.2d 474, 1942 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7966 (N.Y. App. Div. 1942).

A serviceman, who volunteered to perform some emergency repair work during the Thanksgiving vacation period and was killed while returning home, was an outside worker at the time of his death, since the work performed on said day was beneficial to his employer. Monahan v Remington Rand, Inc., 9 A.D.2d 810, 192 N.Y.S.2d 900, 1959 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6157 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1959), app. denied, 7 N.Y.2d 709, 1960 N.Y. LEXIS 1593 (N.Y. 1960).

A claimant who was employed as a lawyer and office manager in a real estate management business who usually proceeded directly from his home to his employer's office but who on the morning in question was by his employer's specific direction going directly to a municipal office to perform some work there in preparation for a pending court proceeding, would be covered by the Workmen's Compensation Law from the time he left home until he returned. Charak v Leddy, 23 A.D.2d 437, 261 N.Y.S.2d 486, 1965 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3525 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1965).

The Board could reasonably find that the decedent's fatal automobile accident was employment-connected, where the decedent, as president and active manager of the entire operation of the employer corporation, which was engaged in the business of supplying meat products to restaurants, was killed while returning from a late appointment with the manager of a restaurant with whom the deceased had an appointment to arrange for the payment or part payment of a bill overdue to the employer corporation. Naples v Viandvende Corp., 27 A.D.2d 772, 277 N.Y.S.2d 182, 1967 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4891 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1967).

Award upheld for death by corporation's president in hotel suite in which decedent had been conducting business meetings for corporation. Burton v Broadcast Music Inc., 31 A.D.2d 557, 294 N.Y.S.2d 406, 1968 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2987 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1968), aff'd, 24 N.Y.2d 1016, 302 N.Y.S.2d 839, 250 N.E.2d 243, 1969 N.Y. LEXIS 1242 (N.Y. 1969).

Although a New York state police sergeant had spent two hours in a restaurant on his way home after discussing cases with a police magistrate, where there was no evidence of intoxication or of any drinking or other personal pursuits adding to the ordinary risk of travel, the mere lapse of time did not require the board to find a deviation from employment causative of the accident, and benefits because of the death of the sergeant as the result of injuries sustained when the automobile he was driving collided with a truck were properly paid. Pallas v New York State Police, 33 A.D.2d 528, 303 N.Y.S.2d 713, 1969 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3248 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1969).

A determination that an accident, resulting in the death of the employee, arose out of and in the course of the deceased's employment was upheld under evidence that, after completing a training program, he was ordered to report for work at a place some 80 miles away, and while en route to such place, he was killed in an automobile accident. Fish v Torrington Constr. Co., 38 A.D.2d 640, 327 N.Y.S.2d 195, 1971 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2669 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1971).

Finding that car salesman was injured in course of employment was supported by evidence that, in accordance with employer's policy and past practice, he drove car to home of his brother-in-law, who placed deposit on it, and that accident occurred as salesman was driving car back to dealership next morning to complete paperwork on sale; although salesman failed to produce documentary proof of brother-in-law's deposit, there was evidence that he had sold numerous vehicles to brother-in-law and other relatives in past. D'Accordo v Spare Wheels & Car Shoppe, 257 A.D.2d 966, 684 N.Y.S.2d 343, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 765 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1999).

An employee of an automobile sales and service agency who takes a car which the agency has serviced out on a road test, which could be made on any street or highway, and picks up a young lady along the way whom he intended to transport to a department store, is injured in the course of his employment upon being involved in an accident on the way to the department store. Travelers Ins. Co. v Stieglitz, 40 N.Y.S.2d 459, 1943 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1681 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1943).

131. —Injury to employees traveling at employer's expense or receiving travel allowance

An employee of a rapid transit company, given a pass entitling him to ride on the employer's trains in going to and from his work, is not injured out of and in the course of his employment where he is killed in a train collision while on his way to report for work. Tallon v Interborough Rapid Transit Co., 232 N.Y. 410, 134 N.E. 327, 232 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 410, 1922 N.Y. LEXIS 1135 (N.Y. 1922).

Employee of New York City Transit Authority who was injured at employer's station on return home from work did not sustain compensable injury under Workers' Compensation Law, even though she had been issued transportation pass entitling her to free travel on employer's subways, where injury occurred over one hour after she signed off work at different station, employer had not assumed any obligation to facilitate her travel to and from work, and employer did not derive any benefit from fact that employee used pass to travel to and from work. Lemon v New York City Transit Authority, 72 N.Y.2d 324, 532 N.Y.S.2d 732, 528 N.E.2d 1205, 1988 N.Y. LEXIS 1687 (N.Y. 1988).

Claimant, a carpenter, was employed from 8:00 A.M. to 4:30 P.M. and, in addition to his hourly wage, was paid expenses of 8¢ per mile for travel beyond certain territory in and about Buffalo. Having finished work and while driving on direct route to Buffalo at about 4:45 P.M. he sustained injuries in automobile accident within mileage zone. Board properly found that accident arose out of and in course of employment. De Pasquale v John W. Cowper Co., 6 A.D.2d 909, 175 N.Y.S.2d 833, 1958 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5215 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), app. denied, 5 N.Y.2d 707, 1958 N.Y. LEXIS 1607 (N.Y. 1958).

There was no merit in a contention that an accident did not arise out of and in the course of decedent's employment as musician where decedent, when killed in a car accident in Pennsylvania, was on his way from New York to Las Vegas under orders to report there by a specified date and was permitted to use his car to drive to an engagement even though his expenses were paid for travel by plane. Maisel v Berle, 11 A.D.2d 831, 202

N.Y.S.2d 562, 1960 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8500 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), reh'g denied, 11 A.D.2d 961, 206 N.Y.S.2d 568, 1960 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8118 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1960).

With respect to injuries sustained by claimant, a carpenter, while changing a tire on his own automobile some miles away from the job location where he was employed, a finding that the injury arose in course of his employment was justified where it appeared that, in addition to regular wages, he was paid one dollar per day for transportation from his home to the place of work, some 35 to 40 miles distant, not as a gratuity, but as an inducement to obtain his help. Macaluso v Alexander, Shumway & Utz Co., 11 A.D.2d 838, 203 N.Y.S.2d 106, 1960 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8509 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), app. denied, 8 N.Y.2d 708, 1960 N.Y. LEXIS 1850 (N.Y. 1960).

"Travel pay" regularly given each week to supervisory employees who are required to live away from home while working on a project at some distance from the employer's main office could be considered as making their travel to and from home over week ends incidental to their employment, rendering their accidental death in an automobile accident while returning to the job after a week end at home compensable. Frick v John W. Rouse Constr. Corp., 19 A.D.2d 685, 240 N.Y.S.2d 1017, 1963 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3501 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1963).

The survivors of an employee killed in an automobile accident while returning from a job site 120 miles from where he customarily worked was entitled to compensation, since the death occurred in an automobile driven by a fellow employee who furnished transportation to the decedent with the employer's knowledge and consent and all the employees were compensated for their travel time. Cornelius v Brock, 27 A.D.2d 604, 275 N.Y.S.2d 632, 1966 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2771 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1966).

Evidence sustained an award to an employee who checked service stations, where the employee had no fixed hours of employment but was paid mileage by his employer from the time he left home until he returned thereto, when the claimant was injured in an accident at 3:55 a.m. when he fell asleep while driving home, notwithstanding that claimant had called on the last service station at about 8:45 p.m., had a few drinks with friends, and had apparently pulled his car off the road and slept for a while, and then continued homeward. Durkee v Atlantic Refining Co., 27 A.D.2d 773, 277 N.Y.S.2d 184, 1967 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4893 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1967).

Where employees working at a construction site distant from their homes were given an additional per diem allowance in the form of a travel allowance, the act of traveling to and from the job site was brought within the employment, and therefore heirs of employee who was killed while returning from his home to the job site on a weekend were entitled to death benefits, since where travel is financed at least indirectly by the employer, the accident arises out of and in the course of the employment. Fisher v Otis Elevator Co., 28 A.D.2d 598, 279 N.Y.S.2d 769, 1967 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4166 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1967), aff'd, 22 N.Y.2d 665, 291 N.Y.S.2d 361, 238 N.E.2d 750, 1968 N.Y. LEXIS 1407 (N.Y. 1968).

An employee injured while following his employer's truck at the direction of his foreman in order to leave his baggage at the foreman's trailer for the night with intention of traveling to a new job site the following morning was injured in an accident which arose out of and in the course of his employment where the employer had furnished gasoline and dinner for the employee. Baldassare v Congel-Hazard, Inc., 33 A.D.2d 527, 303 N.Y.S.2d 603, 1969 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3247 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1969).

Award for death benefits affirmed under evidence that decedent was employed at a work site away from the headquarters of his employer, that he was killed while driving his own automobile from such job site towards home, that an expense allowance was provided when on job assignment far away from home and entailing considerable travel, and no accounting was required as to how the money was expended. Hubbell v Motif, Inc., 33 A.D.2d 854, 305 N.Y.S.2d 845, 1969 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2613 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1969).

Company vice-president's death from bacterial endocarditis, which is rare and deadly heart infection, was not proved to have been work related, for purposes of his widow's workers' compensation claim, even though he became ill while on business trip to England, lost consciousness during return flight, and died in hospital to which he was taken from airport, where (1) medical experts agreed that decedent's infection was caused by staphylococci bacteria, which are common both in United States and England, and (2) expert testimony was in conflict as to whether decedent contracted infection before or during his trip or on flight home from England. Spoerl v Armstrong Pumps, Inc., 251 A.D.2d 915, 674 N.Y.S.2d 833, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7753 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1998), app. denied, 92 N.Y.2d 820, 685 N.Y.S.2d 421, 708 N.E.2d 178, 1999 N.Y. LEXIS 2099 (N.Y. 1999).

Workers' Compensation Board did not fail to address issue of whether lack of proper medical care occasioned by company vice-president's business trip to England was compensable injury, regardless of whether he contracted lethal heart infection before or during his trip, where board concluded that decedent's initial symptoms were not consistent with diagnosis of bacterial endocarditis, thus rejecting widow's claim that lack of treatment for endocarditis was compensable injury. Spoerl v Armstrong Pumps, Inc., 251 A.D.2d 915, 674 N.Y.S.2d 833, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7753 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1998), app. denied, 92 N.Y.2d 820, 685 N.Y.S.2d 421, 708 N.E.2d 178, 1999 N.Y. LEXIS 2099 (N.Y. 1999).

132. —Injury to employees being transported by employer

Where a bricklayer was injured in an accident to an automobile truck which was furnished by his employer to carry him and other workmen from the house, which they were building, to and from the railroad station, the injury arose out of and in course of his employment. Littler v George A. Fuller Co., 223 N.Y. 369, 119 N.E. 554, 223 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 369, 1918 N.Y. LEXIS 1192 (N.Y. 1918).

Where an employee failed to report for work and the employer's son, with the father's consent, took his employer's automobile to get the employee and the latter was killed in driving back to the plant, the accident arose out of and in the course of the employment. Van Gee v Korts, 252 N.Y. 241, 169 N.E. 370, 252 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 241, 1929 N.Y. LEXIS 554 (N.Y. 1929).

Compensation will be awarded for injuries to an employee travelling to work in a conveyance furnished by the employer if the employer is bound by contract, express or implied, to furnish transportation. Van Gee v Korts, 252 N.Y. 241, 169 N.E. 370, 252 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 241, 1929 N.Y. LEXIS 554 (N.Y. 1929).. See also Distefano v Standard Shipbuilding Corp., 203 A.D. 145, 196 N.Y.S. 452, 1922 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7147 (N.Y. App. Div. 1922).

Where the employer's foreman requested a painter to work overtime to finish a job and agreed to take the painter home, the latter suffers injuries arising out of and in the course of his employment where he was injured while crossing the street after alighting from the foreman's car. Sihler v Lincoln-Alliance Bank & Trust Co., 280 N.Y. 173, 19 N.E.2d 1008, 280 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 173, 1939 N.Y. LEXIS 1304 (N.Y. 1939).

The issue of whether a custom is sufficiently established to render the transportation by an employer of employees to their place of work an incident of the employment is a question of fact for the Workmen's Compensation Board and the scope of review of the Court of Appeals is limited to whether there is substantial evidence in the record as a whole to support the determination. Holcomb v Daily News, 45 N.Y.2d 602, 412 N.Y.S.2d 118, 384 N.E.2d 665, 1978 N.Y. LEXIS 2364 (N.Y. 1978).

While transportation provided by an employer in isolated cases or on an infrequent basis may not be deemed to be an incident of employment, a frequent and regular practice of providing transportation indicates that the employer has implicitly assumed the responsibility of transporting his employees to work and at some point that practice may become so common and so associated with the employment that it must be seen as incidental to it; once that point is reached there is no meaningful distinction between transportation furnished by custom and that provided by contractual obligation and when accidents occur while employees are traveling to work, an employer who assumes the responsibility to transport his employees must likewise bear the responsibility for the risks encountered in connection with the transportation, especially when the employer is in exclusive control of the conveyance. Holcomb v Daily News, 45 N.Y.2d 602, 412 N.Y.S.2d 118, 384 N.E.2d 665, 1978 N.Y. LEXIS 2364 (N.Y. 1978).

Fatal injuries sustained by an employee who, while on his way to work, hailed a passing truck owned by his employer and during the ride to the employer's plant, accidentally fell from the truck, were compensable. Although the employer was not obligated by contract to furnish transportation to its employees, the Workmen's Compensation Board found that it was a common practice of the employer to transport its employees to and from work and that the practice was advantageous to the employer; those findings are supported by substantial evidence and are a sufficient basis for an award of compensation benefits. Holcomb v Daily News, 45 N.Y.2d 602, 412 N.Y.S.2d 118, 384 N.E.2d 665, 1978 N.Y. LEXIS 2364 (N.Y. 1978).

A person injured while riding on her employer's bus is not compelled to seek compensation under the Work. Comp. Law where said person was employed as a waitress in defendant's hotel, and as part of her pay had the right to ride on defendant's bus to and from an adjoining village, and was so injured while off duty. Roth v Adirondack Co., 193 A.D. 303, 183 N.Y.S. 717, 1920 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5545 (N.Y. App. Div. 1920).

An employee is injured in the course of his employment while riding on a bus owned by the employer which was used to transport employees for fare to and from the plant, it appearing that transportation of workers was necessary to keep the plant in operation. Peterson v Acme Electric Corp., 277 A.D. 820, 97 N.Y.S.2d 98, 1950 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3418 (N.Y. App. Div. 1950).

Decedent was laborer and union shop steward. In the latter capacity, he had considerable authority as to employees working on highway construction job. While enroute for purpose of getting man, who had no automobile, to work on job, decedent was killed in automobile accident. Held: the accident arose out of and in the course of employment. Bruno v John Arborio, Inc., 7 A.D.2d 824, 180 N.Y.S.2d 896, 1958 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3761 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1958).

The Board's decision that injury suffered by claimant, a chambermaid and waitress, did not arise out of and in course of employment, was supported by substantial evidence, where she claimed that her employer required her to leave the employer's premises on her day off and accordingly had employer's chauffeur take her in employer's car to another town where the chauffeur was to pick her up at a later hour, and, while there, she had difficulty in locating a ladies' room that was open and sustained a fall while searching for a private place in the darkness which would serve her purposes, the fact that the employer contributed transportation being purely voluntary. Bauman v Baltz, 20 A.D.2d 934, 248 N.Y.S.2d 941, 1964 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3911 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1964), aff'd, 17 N.Y.2d 493, 267 N.Y.S.2d 214, 214 N.E.2d 376, 1966 N.Y. LEXIS 1639 (N.Y. 1966).

Where by express or implied contract employer agrees to furnish transportation to or from work to employee who is injured during such transportation, compensation is warranted on ground that employment continues through time of injury. And in case at bar it was held that the finding of the Workmen's Compensation Board that transportation to and from work was consideration of employment contract was supported by substantial evidence. Brothers v Manhattanville Food Shop, Inc., 23 A.D.2d 605, 256 N.Y.S.2d 487, 1965 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4878 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1965).

Evidence in wife's claim to recover damages for wrongful death of her husband supported determination that husband, who was a state employee, who was riding as passenger in a truck which was owned by the State Department of Correction and which was being driven by fellow state employee, with mishap allegedly occurring during attempted delivery of tobacco to Clinton Diagnostic and Treatment Center, was acting in course of his employment when killed and, therefore, that wife's exclusive remedy was under Workmen's Compensation Law. Mohan v State, 46 A.D.2d 717, 360 N.Y.S.2d 298, 1974 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3777 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1974).

Where sergeant and three other policemen had use of county police department's car for their convenience to drive to their homes and back again, sergeant, on occasions, was assigned to work in field and drove directly from home to assignment area, all police department members were subject to recall when off duty and sergeant had the vehicle available for use in case of recall, injury sustained by officer while traveling home in police car after completing his tour of duty arose out of and in course of his employment for workmen's compensation purposes. Collier v County of Nassau, 46 A.D.2d 970, 362 N.Y.S.2d 52, 1974 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3321 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1974).

Since janitor service regularly provided its employees with transportation to worksites, service's employee was entitled to workers' compensation for injuries sustained while being transported even though he was not paid for time spent in transit and there was no contractual agreement requiring employer to provide transportation. Gay v American Janitor Service, 122 A.D.2d 402, 504 N.Y.S.2d 808, 1986 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 59716 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1986).

133. —Injury during travel motivated by both business and personal considerations

Where a General Electric employee was sent by his employer to attend on international conference in Paris, taking his wife with him, with permission for the two of them to take a week's vacation after the conference concluded, and was killed in a plane crash at the end of their vacation in Italy while flying from Milan to Paris, to pick up another plane scheduled to leave Paris for New York five hours after arrival of the plane which crashed, the Board could find that death was in course of returning to his employment and compensable rather than merely incidental to his vacation. Markoholz v General Electric Co., 13 N.Y.2d 163, 243 N.Y.S.2d 853, 193 N.E.2d 637, 1963 N.Y. LEXIS 954 (N.Y. 1963).

Claimant, employed by New York City accounting firm, was injured in the course of his employment when he left his assigned job in Binghamton on a weekend, went to New York, did not go home, but then decided to return to Binghamton and was on the direct way there when accident occurred. Neville v Arthur Andersen & Co., 284 A.D. 994, 135 N.Y.S.2d 349, 1954 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4351 (N.Y. App. Div. 1954).

Death of a salesman was compensable as within course of his employment where it occurred in an automobile accident while he was driving home to Kingston from a weekend trip to Albany, where his employer's plant was located, the purpose of the trip having been partly to take his wife to Albany for hospitalization because she was expecting a baby and partly to deliver to his employer certain collections which he had made from customers as part of his duties. Skinner v Tobin Packing Co., 17 A.D.2d 999, 233 N.Y.S.2d 900, 1962 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6975 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1962).

It is now settled that if a business motive concurs with a personal motive in causing a trip to be made, that trip is to be considered as within the course of employment. Skinner v Tobin Packing Co., 17 A.D.2d 999, 233 N.Y.S.2d 900, 1962 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6975 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1962).

Entertainment by decedent of collateral personal purpose in making boat trip across Hudson River would not bar an award if a business motive was a concurrent cause of the trip. Connor v A. M. F. Pinspotters, Inc., 24 A.D.2d 815, 263 N.Y.S.2d 834, 1965 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3130 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1965).

Decedent, who was employed by a foreign shipping company as a landing agent in New York, but was given a temporary assignment as tour leader of a Christmas excursion to Sweden, and while there visited his mother and was killed in an automobile accident which occurred after he had ended his holiday at his mother's home, and while he, his wife, and child were returning to Gothenburg, where he had work to do at the employer's office, was killed in the course of his employment, and the widow was entitled to an award of benefits for accidental death. Silfvernagel v Swedish American Line Agency, Inc., 26 A.D.2d 858, 274 N.Y.S.2d 447, 1966 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3357 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1966).

Workers' Compensation Board properly determined that claimant was within course of his employment as traveling sales manager at time of accident which occurred while he was en route to install snow tires on his wife's car since (1) he sometimes used his wife's car in his business travels and thus it was necessary to maintain her car so that it would remain available for his business use, and (2) it was undisputed that he was to continue on to work-related appointment after he had snow tires installed. Ferber v Des. L. Packaging Corp., 158 A.D.2d 826, 551 N.Y.S.2d 411, 1990 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1720 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1990).

134. —Injury in the course of personal or recreational activities during business travel, in general

An employee who went to South Africa on a mission for his employer and there died from malignant tertian malaria as the result of being bitten by a mosquito sustains a fatal accident arising out of and in the course of his employment, regardless of whether he was bitten during business hours. Lepow v Lepow Knitting Mills, Inc., 288 N.Y. 377, 43 N.E.2d 450, 288 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 377, 1942 N.Y. LEXIS 1000 (N.Y. 1942).

A writer and science editor for a magazine who was drowned while swimming to relieve his fatigue on a cross country automobile tour to gather material and write articles may have lost his life in an accident in the course of his employment but it did not arise out of the employment. Davis v Newsweek Magazine, 305 N.Y. 20, 110 N.E.2d 406, 305 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 20, 1953 N.Y. LEXIS 846 (N.Y. 1953).

A state senior compensation's claim examiner was killed in an accident arising out of and in course of his employment when he left a conference at the Plattsburg Elks Club at 1:00 A.M. and then "to get some air" on a hot night went for an auto ride which ended in a fatal collision with a telephone pole at 1:40 A.M. Daly v State Ins. Fund, 284 A.D. 174, 130 N.Y.S.2d 440, 1954 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3367 (N.Y. App. Div. 1954).

Claim for death benefit was disallowed where a factory superintendent visited the residence of the treasurer of his employer and was involved in an automobile accident thereafter. Evidence was strong that visit was purely social. Leigh v J. J. Dix, Inc., 284 A.D. 919, 134 N.Y.S.2d 494, 1954 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4055 (N.Y. App. Div. 1954).

Decision of Board disallowing death claim was reversed and matter remitted for further consideration where tax consultant, on trip to Miami arranged by employer, went for a short boat trip on a Sunday morning and drowned when the boat capsized. Schneider v United Whelan Drug Stores, 284 A.D. 1072, 135 N.Y.S.2d 875, 1954 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4602 (N.Y. App. Div. 1954).

Claimant, employed to drive truck for florist, was permitted to take truck home on Saturday nights if he had to work on Sunday. On way home he stopped at restaurant and, after 2 ½ hours, he left to drive back to employer's garage because he thought there would be no place to park near his house. While driving to garage he was in an accident. Claimant at time was in course of employment. Vafiades v Wenzel Florist, Inc., 5 A.D.2d 903, 171 N.Y.S.2d 54, 1958 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6715 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1958).

The Board could properly find that death of an employee arose out of and in the course of his employment, notwithstanding it occurred at about 2:00 a.m. in an automobile accident while he was returning from a round of taverns and night spots in an Ohio city, in the car of a fellow engineer, decedent having been specially sent to the locality by his New York employer and instructed to stay there until construction difficulties in connection with a new plant could be ironed out, and these difficulties having been under discussion throughout the entire day and evening. Meredith v United States Industrial Chemicals Co., 14 A.D.2d 955, 221 N.Y.S.2d 113, 1961 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7898 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1961).

Where an employer sends an employee away from home, the test as to whether specific activities are considered to be within the scope of employment or purely personal is their reasonableness, and it is not unreasonable for an employee to satisfy physical needs, including relaxation. Fleer v Glens Falls Ins. Co., 16 A.D.2d 186, 226 N.Y.S.2d 918, 1962 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10307 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1962).

Activities which are purely personal are not within the scope of employment, and the test as to whether a given activity engaged in by an employee sent away from home by his employer is within the risk of employment is reasonableness of such activity. Owen v Oneida, Ltd., 16 A.D.2d 1005, 229 N.Y.S.2d 325, 1962 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9087 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1962).

Although an employee, sent away from home on his employer's business, may indulge in any reasonable activity at the place to which he is sent with inherent risk considered an incident of his employment, injuries resulting from purely personal activities not related to employment are not compensable. Friedwald v New York State Ins. Dep't, 17 A.D.2d 670, 230 N.Y.S.2d 48, 1962 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8721 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1962).

Board's denial of death benefit affirmed where there was substantial evidence to sustain a finding that if decedent had gone to another community in order to inspect bridge for his employer, thereafter bowled in tournament there which was in no way associated with employment, and later after stopping at tavern, was returning to his home community to attend banquet also unconnected with employment and while he was en route, fatal accident occurred. Roberts v Star Landscape, Inc., 23 A.D.2d 610, 256 N.Y.S.2d 531, 1965 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4821 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1965).

Claimant, who was injured while in an automobile accident in San Juan, was entitled to compensation, where claimant was employed as an aircraft dispatcher at Idlewild International Airport and had taken the flight to Puerto Rico to become acquainted with actual flying conditions such as weather, communications, crew and aircraft performance, and sustained the injuries while taking a drive in an automobile with the pilot of the crew. Thurot v Trans Caribbean Airways, 29 A.D.2d 797, 287 N.Y.S.2d 588, 1968 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4628 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1968).

When employment takes employee far from home and excursions to nearby places are available and expected, then employment itself exposes employee to risk, and an accident under such circumstances is compensable. Young v Henry M. Young, Inc., 56 A.D.2d 941, 392 N.Y.S.2d 502, 1977 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11350 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1977).

135. — —Reasonableness of activity as related to employment

An engineer who was employed by a corporation with its principal office in New York City, to advise Israeli Government and who was shot and killed by an Arab while traveling in Palestine on a sightseeing tour was engaged in New York employment within the Workmen's Compensation Law. His tour was not unrelated to his employment. Lewis v Knappen Tippetts Abbett Engineering Co., 304 N.Y. 461, 108 N.E.2d 609, 304 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 461, 1952 N.Y. LEXIS 730 (N.Y. 1952).

An employee who upon completion of his work apparently had stopped at a bar and consumed large quantities of alcohol had so deviated from his employment that the Board might properly find his survivors were not entitled to death benefits allegedly arising out of an accident which took place when decedent's car left the road and struck a parking meter and telephone pole. Robinson v Greenport, 27 A.D.2d 599, 275 N.Y.S.2d 885, 1966 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2764 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1966).

Where an engineer working on an assignment for an indefinite period of time in Japan slipped and fell on an unlighted street as he and his wife were returning from shopping for American food, which was unobtainable in their neighborhood, the injury occurred within the scope of his employment since the injury occurred in a normal activity away from home. Matthews v Marine Transport Lines, Inc., 28 A.D.2d 195, 283 N.Y.S.2d 952, 1967 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3114 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1967), app. denied, 21 N.Y.2d 642, 1968 N.Y. LEXIS 1728 (N.Y. 1968).

Even if claimant's decedent, who was state employee and who was killed while riding as passenger in a state-owned truck, which was operated by a fellow employee, was out for an evening of relaxation at time of fatal accident his wife's remedy was under Workmen's Compensation Law since he was traveling on state business requiring his absence from home for two or three days and there was no showing of any unreasonable activity on his part. Mohan v State, 46 A.D.2d 717, 360 N.Y.S.2d 298, 1974 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3777 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1974).

Disallowance of claim on ground that accident did not arise out of and in course of employment was supported by evidence that claimant, while staying at hotel on employer's business, consumed number of alcoholic drinks, then scaled fence of padlocked pool and dove into partially-drained shallow end, breaking his neck. Grady v Dun & Bradstreet, 265 A.D.2d 643, 696 N.Y.S.2d 258, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10307 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1999).

136. — —Purely personal act

Claimant, a volunteer fireman attending fireman's convention as delegate, was injured while taking shower sometime prior to morning session. Claim for benefits properly disallowed, Board having found that claimant was engaged in purely a personal act. Seaman v Hewlett Fire Dep't, 8 A.D.2d 573, 183 N.Y.S.2d 408, 1959 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9664 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1959).

Injuries sustained by an employee while on an out-of-town assignment in taking a bath are not ordinarily considered as arising out of and in course of his employment, and the Board could properly find that injuries sustained by such an employee while taking a shower by slipping and falling in the tub were not compensable, notwithstanding his contention that he took the shower because his hands and face had become somewhat smeared by carbon paper used in making out his reports. Friedwald v New York State Ins. Dep't, 17 A.D.2d 670, 230 N.Y.S.2d 48, 1962 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8721 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1962).

137. —Effect of mode of travel and selection of route

An employee of an advertising agency who was injured while returning from a luncheon with two other employees the object of which was a discussion of the employer's business is injured in the course of her employment, even though she deviated from the route of her return a distance of one block to attend to an item of personal banking, as a result of which she was on the opposite side of the street at the time of her injury than she would have been had she proceeded directly back to the office. Oram v Byron G. Moon Co., 285 N.Y. 42, 32 N.E.2d 785, 285 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 42, 1941 N.Y. LEXIS 1527 (N.Y. 1941).

The failure of an employee to adopt the wisest course in furthering his employer's interest by remaining in a given city will not defeat his right to compensation where he is injured on a trip to an adjoining city while attempting to serve the employer's interest. Wolff v Miller Corsets, Inc., 266 A.D. 930, 43 N.Y.S.2d 957, 1943 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5270 (N.Y. App. Div. 1943).

Where a truck driver was making a trip for his employer from Buffalo to Sioux City, Iowa, and was killed when his truck ran off a road slightly off the regular route of travel between such points, but moving in the same direction, and his instructions did not require him to follow any special route, the accident was within the scope of employment. Hilliker v North American Van Lines, Inc., 12 A.D.2d 677, 207 N.Y.S.2d 753, 1960 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6743 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1960).

It does not matter that a claimant is not taking the best route to his business destination at the time of sustaining an injury, as long as he is heading in the general direction. Armstrong v Aero Mayflower Transit Co., 14 A.D.2d 958, 221 N.Y.S.2d 225, 1961 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7903 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1961).

Death of the piano player for an orchestra by drowning in a hotel bathtub while taking a bath was properly found to have been occasioned by his purely personal act, bearing no relationship to his employment as a musician, notwithstanding, at the time, the orchestra was on tour and stopping at hotels selected by its employer, the drowning having occurred somewhere between 7:30 and 9:30 a.m. and an analysis of decedent's blood showing a high alcohol content. Orpin v D. P. Bro. & Co., 15 A.D.2d 282, 223 N.Y.S.2d 366, 1962 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11990 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), aff'd, 12 N.Y.2d 749, 234 N.Y.S.2d 223, 186 N.E.2d 419, 1962 N.Y. LEXIS 938 (N.Y. 1962).

Use of 15 foot boat to cross Hudson River so as to avoid traffic was not bizarre and dangerous so as to avoid claim for death benefits arising out of decedent's drowning during boat trip. Connor v A. M. F. Pinspotters, Inc., 24 A.D.2d 815, 263 N.Y.S.2d 834, 1965 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3130 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1965).

138. Employer liability for injuries sustained during breaks, rest periods or meal times

Injuries sustained on entering or leaving employer's premises are compensable as incident to employment, and leaving for or returning from lunch falls into same category. Kanal v Missbach, 50 A.D.2d 528, 374 N.Y.S.2d 646, 1975 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12232 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1975).

Claimant, truck driver, was properly awarded workers' compensation benefits as result of being injured when struck by car while crossing street from hotel on way to restaurant before commencing next trip since he was traveling employee with no fixed work site, it was reasonable and customary for him to have obtained meal prior to commencing new assignment, and he did not cross street in such reckless and unreasonable manner as to constitute deviation from employment. Hamm v USF Red Star, 284 A.D.2d 793, 727 N.Y.S.2d 714, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6603 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), app. denied, 97 N.Y.2d 602, 735 N.Y.S.2d 491, 760 N.E.2d 1287, 2001 N.Y. LEXIS 3283 (N.Y. 2001).

In an action by an employee for breach of warranty as to wholesomeness of food eaten in his employer's restaurant, which food represented part of compensation for his services, it is a defense that the employment came within the Workmen's Compensation Law. Elson v Morhen Inn, Inc., 269 N.Y.S. 645, 150 Misc. 540, 1933 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1784 (N.Y. City Ct. 1933).. See also McKee v New York, 262 A.D. 983, 30 N.Y.S.2d 71, 1941 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6780 (N.Y. App. Div. 1941).

139. —Injuries during meal breaks

An award lies where a workman was injured by an automobile while sitting in the doorway of a factory during lunch hour. Domres v Syracuse Safe Co., 240 N.Y. 611, 148 N.E. 727, 240 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 611, 1925 N.Y. LEXIS 842 (N.Y. 1925).. See also Tannenbaum v Perfect Tailoring Co.', 243 N.Y. 577, 154 N.E. 612, 243 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 577, 1926 N.Y. LEXIS 853 (N.Y. 1926)., and Manor v Pennington, 180 A.D. 130, 167 N.Y.S. 424, 1917 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8089 (N.Y. App. Div. 1917).

Where an employee who, in order to reach the boarding house where he took his meals, was required to cross over 2,000 feet of land of his employer and also to cross railroad tracks on his employer's land, was struck and killed by a backing switch engine while crossing tracks on his way to his noonday meal, his death was accidental, and also arose out of and in the course of his employment. Bylow v St. Regis Paper Co., 179 A.D. 555, 166 N.Y.S. 874, 1917 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7431 (N.Y. App. Div. 1917).

A helper on a motor truck who was injured by an automobile when returning to the truck from a restaurant with food for himself and driver is injured in the course of his employment since he is aided by the presumption in § 21. Sztorc v James H. Stansbury, Inc., 189 A.D. 388, 179 N.Y.S. 586, 1919 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4676 (N.Y. App. Div. 1919).

An employee in a fall while weighing herself upon returning from lunch eaten on the employer's premises, and before resuming work, is injured in the course and as an incident of her employment. Reynolds v Oswego Falls Corp., 264 A.D. 965, 37 N.Y.S.2d 167, 1942 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5563 (N.Y. App. Div. 1942).

Injuries sustained by claimant when she struck her eye while combing her hair, preparatory to going to lunch are not compensable. Where the injury arises from the personal carelessness or negligence of the claimant in the performance of a personal act wholly disassociated from the employment and where the danger or risk involved is in no way connected with the place of employment or claimant's presence there, the injury does not arise out of the employment within the intent and purpose of this law. Shultz v Nation Associates, Inc., 281 A.D. 915, 119 N.Y.S.2d 673, 1953 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3762 (N.Y. App. Div. 1953).

With respect to a truck driver's death from carbon monoxide poisoning resulting from his use of a charcoal burning heater, improvised from two cans, while resting in the truck during his lunch hour, the fact that the incident occurred during the lunch hour and while the employee was resting would not prevent it from being considered as arising out of his employment where he was regularly permitted to eat and rest in the truck during the usual lunch hour, and this practice was beneficial to the employer. Barrett v Al Charyn, Inc., 13 A.D.2d 863, 214 N.Y.S.2d 533, 1961 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11065 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1961), aff'd, 11 N.Y.2d 849, 227 N.Y.S.2d 673, 182 N.E.2d 282, 1962 N.Y. LEXIS 1267 (N.Y. 1962).

Injuries sustained by employee as a result of attempt to execute a dance step on self-service elevator while returning from company cafeteria were compensable. Bletter v Harcourt, Brace & World, Inc., 30 A.D.2d 601, 290 N.Y.S.2d 59, 1968 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3919 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1968), aff'd, 25 N.Y.2d 755, 303 N.Y.S.2d 510, 250 N.E.2d 572, 1969 N.Y. LEXIS 1215 (N.Y. 1969).

Decision of Board denying compensation solely on finding that decedent was off employer's premises was inadequate for judicial review where it appeared that employee had been left alone on premises during lunch period, with understanding that he would remain in charge but that he was free to leave, and that it was customary for employees to cross street where fatal injury occurred. Wood v New York State Dep't of Environmental Conservation, 46 A.D.2d 961, 361 N.Y.S.2d 751, 1974 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3309 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1974).

Inside employees having fixed period of time for lunch are not in course of employment while off employment premises for purpose of eating or otherwise during lunch period but where otherwise inside employee is on duty during lunch hour period, mere fact that he is off premises at time of injury is not controlling. Wood v New York State Dep't of Environmental Conservation, 46 A.D.2d 961, 361 N.Y.S.2d 751, 1974 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3309 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1974).

Since it was in employer's interest to provide kitchen facilities within fire station, altercation over seating arrangements in the station kitchen must be deemed to have occurred in course of fireman's employment. Macinski v Johnson City, 57 A.D.2d 974, 394 N.Y.S.2d 101, 1977 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12264 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1977).

Evidence supported finding by Workers' Compensation Board that claimant hit by car in front of workplace during her lunch break was injured during course of employment where record showed that decedent did not have fixed lunch period but went to lunch when it was convenient and was paid set weekly wage without reference to her lunch schedule, since it could be inferred that decedent's lunch break was defined by requirements of her sales position and was thus premised on employer's convenience. Harford v Widensky's, Inc., 154 A.D.2d 821, 546 N.Y.S.2d 485, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12699 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1989).

Evidence supported determination of Workers' Compensation Board that claimant's injury, which occurred when she tripped in pothole while walking on public street on her unpaid lunch hour, resulted from personal act unrelated to her employment although accident occurred in close proximity to her workplace, where she left employer's premises to smoke cigarette because employer had strict policy against smoking on premises. Roggero v Frontier Ins. Group, 250 A.D.2d 1011, 673 N.Y.S.2d 260, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5931 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1998).

Lunch time injuries generally occur beyond scope of employment unless employer continues to exercise authority over employee during lunch break. Smith v City of Rochester, 255 A.D.2d 863, 681 N.Y.S.2d 371, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12815 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1998).

140. —Injuries during meal breaks; travel between employer's premises and other sites

Death of an employee was not compensable where it occurred while he was employed on a construction project a considerable distance from his home and furnished with a house to live in on the work site, at which he, and other employees, cooked their own meals for a time but finally decided to take their meals at a restaurant about two miles away, and death resulted when the deceased employee accidentally fell from a jeep owned by the employer while returning from lunch at the restaurant. Guido v Terrarube Const. Corp., 10 N.Y.2d 858, 222 N.Y.S.2d 690, 178 N.E.2d 913, 1961 N.Y. LEXIS 994 (N.Y. 1961).

Claimant who was let out of a village truck by his immediate superior at a street corner at 11:45 A.M., and told that he would be picked up after lunch at that corner, and who, while proceeding across the street to the corner in question, was struck by an automobile was on his master's business, and acting in his employer's interest when the accident happened. Sheehan v Board of Trustees, 256 A.D. 148, 9 N.Y.S.2d 235, 1939 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4660 (N.Y. App. Div.), app. dismissed, 281 N.Y. 613, 22 N.E.2d 175, 281 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 613, 1939 N.Y. LEXIS 1076 (N.Y. 1939).

A janitor who resided across the street from his place of employment is not injured in the course of his employment where he was struck by an automobile while returning to the apartment to look after the fires after having previously gone home for supper. Wischman v Berrick-Meyer, 259 A.D. 941, 18 N.Y.S.2d 301, 1940 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7370 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1940).

Where a retail furniture salesman who worked on commission, according to custom and with his employer's permission left his employer's store at about four P.M., and walked about one block to a tavern where he had some lunch, and while returning to the store, shortly after five P.M., slipped on the ice, fell and was injured, such accident did not arise out of and in the course of his employment. Layton v Spear & Co., 261 A.D. 856, 24 N.Y.S.2d 793, 1941 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7786 (N.Y. App. Div.), modified, 261 A.D. 1010, 26 N.Y.S.2d 608, 1941 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8536 (N.Y. App. Div. 1941).

Where the captain of a barge left home to return to the barge and his body was found in the water several weeks later without his having returned to the barge, his death was not compensable. Swanson v Val Line, Inc., 262 A.D. 788, 27 N.Y.S.2d 354, 1941 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5856 (N.Y. App. Div. 1941), aff'd, 289 N.Y. 544, 43 N.E.2d 526, 289 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 544, 1942 N.Y. LEXIS 1122 (N.Y. 1942).

An injury to a grocery clerk, going home for supper during regular working hours at the direction of the employer who ordered overtime work, by a fall in front of her home is in the course of her employment. Ross v Sunrise Food Exchange, 273 A.D. 833, 75 N.Y.S.2d 897, 1948 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4837 (N.Y. App. Div. 1948).

Boiler firemen who, following a well known practice for night shift employees, left their employment and journeyed to the village to take refreshments are injured in the course of their employment where, after they entered their employer's premises, their car went into a ditch resulting in injuries to both employees. Mesmer v Associated Colleges of Upper New York State, 277 A.D. 1082, 100 N.Y.S.2d 803, 1950 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4545 (N.Y. App. Div. 1950).

Claimant, a chief of police, customarily drove his police car home to lunch. He was injured in a fall in his back yard while he was on his way to the car to return to work. There was conflicting evidence that he was playing ball when he was injured. The board merely found that the history of the accident was in conflict and that it did not arise out of claimant's employment. The matter was remanded to make proper findings. McCaffrey v Pelham Manor Police Dep't, 3 A.D.2d 772, 160 N.Y.S.2d 259, 1957 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6177 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1957).

Employer's premises consisted of 2 buildings separated by a brook over which bridge was built as continuation of sidewalk. Claimant left one of employer's buildings to go to lunch and, while walking to her car, she crossed sidewalk over bridge and fell on ice and snow. Title to property was not in employer. City maintained bridge. Board properly found that claimant did not sustain injury arising out of and in course of her employment as risk of public sidewalk was risk to which all pedestrians were exposed. Diviyak v Leon F. Swears, Inc., 6 A.D.2d 943, 175 N.Y.S.2d 805, 1958 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5266 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1958).

Claimant, a janitor, had completed his work at employer's branch office and had left to go home for lunch before returning to main office. While traveling on Route between employer's offices he was injured. Board found that claimant was not outside worker and that accident occurred during his lunch hour when he was not engaged in performance of service for employer. Williams v Edgewater Sav. & Loan Asso., 7 A.D.2d 678, 179 N.Y.S.2d 308, 1958 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4328 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1958).

Decedent was employed as a laborer and was furnished a house on the construction site by his employer. He ate no meals in the house. With permission of his employer, he used its jeep to travel to a nearby restaurant off the construction site. On returning from lunch, he fell out of the jeep and fractured his skull and died. Held: the accident did not arise out of and in the course of employment. Decedent paid for his own meals, could eat where he pleased and his lunch time was his own. The permission to use the jeep was not a part of the employment. Guido v Terra-Rube Const. Corp., 7 A.D.2d 554, 184 N.Y.S.2d 962, 1959 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8959 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1959), aff'd, 10 N.Y.2d 858, 222 N.Y.S.2d 690, 178 N.E.2d 913, 1961 N.Y. LEXIS 994 (N.Y. 1961).

The evidence was considered insufficient to show that a department store buyer's death, due to being struck by a hit-and-run driver while crossing back to the store from a nearby restaurant where he had just had his dinner to put in his usual one day a week evening's work as a store executive, arose out of and in course of his employment. Purcell v Hearn's Dep't Store, 17 A.D.2d 886, 233 N.Y.S.2d 375, 1962 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7324 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1962).

Where a taxi driver had a work schedule from 3 P. M. to 1 A. M. daily and usually ate dinner about 7 o'clock at some eating place near his last place of call, injuries sustained by him by slipping on a piece of butter on a cafeteria floor near the place of destination of his last passenger could be considered as work-connected and compensable because of the mobile nature of his work and the necessity of stopping occasionally to eat or answer calls of nature. Relkin v National Transp. Co., 18 A.D.2d 137, 238 N.Y.S.2d 575, 1963 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4166 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), app. denied, 13 N.Y.2d 593, 1963 N.Y. LEXIS 1871 (N.Y. 1963).

Injury sustained by claimant, an office worker, from a fall in the street while returning to the employer's premises from lunch at a restaurant two blocks away at which most of the employees habitually lunched because they had only a half-hour lunch period and the employer paid the restaurant's bills for lunches supplied to them, could be regarded as arising out of and in course of her employment where it appeared that this arrangement was in the employer's interest in cutting down interruptions of employment. Goldberg v Gold Medal Farms, Inc., 18 A.D.2d 951, 237 N.Y.S.2d 656, 1963 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4443 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1963).

Where decedent was killed when his car collided with a train at a railroad crossing near the plant where he worked as he was returning, with two co-employees, from having "lunch" at a nearby restaurant, according to custom permitted by his employer, it was within the fact-finding powers of the Board to find that death did not arise from a risk attendant upon his employment where he could have parked his car in either of two parking places near the plant without necessity of crossing the railroad tracks. Patti v Republic Aviation Corp., 20 A.D.2d 939, 248 N.Y.S.2d 978, 1964 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3919 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), app. denied, 14 N.Y.2d 488, 1964 N.Y. LEXIS 1888 (N.Y. 1964).

The Board could properly find that wrist injuries sustained by claimant in a fall when alighting from her car in the parking lot of the shopping center where she worked, upon return to work after having supper at home, arose out of and in course of her employment, the parking lot being essentially part of the employer's premises because employees as well as customers were permitted to park there without charge, though claimant's employer had no ownership or control over the area. Berry v B. Gertz, Inc., 21 A.D.2d 708, 249 N.Y.S.2d 285, 1964 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3871 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1964).

Where after a payroll robbery an employer began to pay his employees' wages by checks over the strenuous objection of their labor union on the ground of the inconvenience involved and the employer agreed with the union that employees taking their checks to a bank would have slight tardiness after their lunch hours on payday overlooked, an employee who was injured on a payday while crossing a street in returning from the bank where he had cashed his check was held to be engaged in an activity sufficiently related to the employment to entitle him to workmen's compensation. Watson v American Can Co., 23 A.D.2d 423, 261 N.Y.S.2d 306, 1965 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3522 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1965), aff'd, 18 N.Y.2d 758, 274 N.Y.S.2d 683, 221 N.E.2d 463, 1966 N.Y. LEXIS 1072 (N.Y. 1966).

Correction officer's injury in traffic accident while driving his own vehicle to work and after stopping at restaurant for lunch was not incurred in course of his employment, and thus he was properly denied workers' compensation benefits, even though accident occurred only about one mile from correction facility entrance, where his employer neither encouraged him to buy his lunch at restaurant in question nor derived any benefit therefrom, officer was not engaged in special errand at time of accident, and trip to restaurant did not serve dual purpose in absence of proof that it was necessary to carry out function of employment. Coningsby v New York State Dep't of Corrections, 245 A.D.2d 1009, 667 N.Y.S.2d 101, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13569 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1997).

Parking monitor's fall on wet floor in front of elevator leading out of restaurant from which she was returning to work during unpaid lunch break occurred beyond scope of her employment where she had discretion over timing and location of her lunch breaks, and her employer neither suggested that she buy lunch at that particular restaurant nor derived any benefit from her decision to do so. Smith v City of Rochester, 255 A.D.2d 863, 681 N.Y.S.2d 371, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12815 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1998).

141. —Injuries in the course of personal errands on employer's premises

An employee who, in performance of his duties, carried certain articles from one room to another and on his way back stepped a few feet out of his direct course to ask a fellow-employee for a chew of tobacco, and, on leaving, slipped on a greasy floor, fell and received injuries, is entitled to compensation, where no objection had been made by the employer to employees chewing while at work. Wickham v Glenside Woolen Mills, 252 N.Y. 11, 168 N.E. 446, 252 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 11, 1929 N.Y. LEXIS 521 (N.Y. 1929).

An employee who, during working hours, went to the basement of the plant to set a bottle of tea upon a boiler to keep it hot for the mid-day meal, and, while on her way back, slipped and fell, is injured in the course of and through an accident arising out of her employment. Etherton v Johnstown Knitting Mills Co., 184 A.D. 820, 172 N.Y.S. 724, 1918 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6692 (N.Y. App. Div. 1918).

An employee sustained an injury arising out of and in the course of her employment, when during her luncheon hour she went down on one of the employer's passenger elevators from the floor on which she worked, on a personal errand, and was injured by reason of the operator's negligence as she was about to leave the elevator. Martin v Metropolitan Life Ins. Co. (1921) 197 App Div 382, 189 NYS 467, affd (1922) 233 NY 653, 135 NE 956.. See also Ross v Howieson, 232 N.Y. 604, 134 N.E. 589, 232 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 604, 1922 N.Y. LEXIS 1189 (N.Y. 1922).

One employed as a millinery trimmer injured while attempting to open a bottle of soft drink is injured in the course of her employment, where it is customary for employees to drink beverages during working hours and the employer recognized and permitted this custom. Moldove v Rosenhien Co., 266 A.D. 931, 43 N.Y.S.2d 888, 1943 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5273 (N.Y. App. Div. 1943).

Finding that worker had not deviated from course of his employment was supported by substantial evidence and was thus conclusive where worker, leaving on personal errand 3 ½ hours before end of his shift, found his normal exit route locked and unattended, decided to climb over fence because plant's front gate was too far away, and injured himself while climbing fence; accident occurred on employer's property, and "course of employment" includes reasonable amount of time for employees to leave premises after ceasing work. Voight v Rochester Products Div., GMC, 125 A.D.2d 799, 509 N.Y.S.2d 908, 1986 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 63011 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1986).

Evidence supported decision of Workers' Compensation Board that claimant sustained accidental injury arising out of and in course of his employment where it was shown that (1) while waiting for co-worker so that he could begin new work assignment, claimant was injured when he attempted to clean his own chainsaw on employer's wire wheel grinder, (2) claimant stated that he had borrowed employer's chainsaw and was asked to clean and return it, and that he decided that he could clean both employer's and his own chainsaw during slack time, and (3) claimant further stated that it was common practice to borrow employer's equipment for personal use and to use employer's on-premises equipment without permission. Smith v Paul Smith's College, 186 A.D.2d 320, 587 N.Y.S.2d 802, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10807 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1992).

142. —Injuries in the course of personal errands away from the employer's premises during working hours

An employee engaged in cleaning and repairing scales on the employer's premises is not injured in the course of his employment when struck by a car while returning to the employer's premises after going across the street for cigarettes for his own use. Johnson v Sanitary Scale Co., 278 A.D. 878, 104 N.Y.S.2d 274, 1951 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5040 (N.Y. App. Div. 1951).. See also Richards v Creamer, 267 A.D. 928, 46 N.Y.S.2d 769, 1944 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5554 (N.Y. App. Div. 1944).

Claimant was employed as a patrolman on a housing project between the hours of 3:00 p.m. to 11:00 p.m. At about 6:00 p.m. on the day of the accident he crossed a public street adjacent to the premises of his employer to get a newspaper, and while returning he was struck by an automobile. Claimant had been accustomed to getting newspapers daily from the same source across the street, and this custom was known to the employer. Held: claimant sustained an accidental injury arising out of and in the course of his employment. Redfield v Boulevard Gardens Housing Corp., 4 A.D.2d 906, 167 N.Y.S.2d 59, 1957 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4300 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), app. denied, 3 N.Y.2d 710, 1957 N.Y. LEXIS 1485 (N.Y. 1957).

Accident arose in the course of employment under evidence that claimant received permission from his foreman to cross the street and use a telephone, there being no telephone facilities at the site of the work; that it was the custom to permit employees to use the telephone across the street when authorization had been granted; and the claimant was struck and injured while crossing the street after making the telephone call. Strohmeyer v B. S. & W. Builders, Inc., 33 A.D.2d 1070, 307 N.Y.S.2d 525, 1970 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5527 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1970).

There was no causal connection between fatal motor vehicle accident and worker's employment where worker had been assigned to complex of apartment buildings, he did not have to use vehicle or go outside fenced-in area surrounding all 3 buildings in performance of his job, he was killed during working hours while traveling away from complex in vehicle about one block from site, and no reason was given for his presence off site. McCoy v New York City Hous. Auth., 205 A.D.2d 902, 613 N.Y.S.2d 476, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6268 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1994).

143. —Injuries during rest periods or breaks while away from employer's premises

Where the claimant was employed as night man in a garage and was obliged to work twelve consecutive hours without relief, and it was his custom to leave the garage and go to a nearby restaurant for coffee, which privilege was permitted by his employer, and while on his way to obtain coffee, the car driven by him came in collision with another car, resulting in injuries, such injuries did not arise out of and in course of his employment. Lovett v Buck, 285 N.Y. 526, 32 N.E.2d 824, 285 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 526, 1941 N.Y. LEXIS 1563 (N.Y. 1941).

Where an employee of an elevated railroad company during a two-hour period off duty was injured by the collision of two trains, while on his way from the terminal, where he had just finished his tour of duty, to his dentist's, injury did not arise "out of and in the course of" his employment, as provided under Work. Pierson v Interborough Rapid Transit Co., 184 A.D. 678, 172 N.Y.S. 492, 1918 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6636 (N.Y. App. Div. 1918), aff'd, 227 N.Y. 666, 126 N.E. 920, 227 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 666, 1920 N.Y. LEXIS 891 (N.Y. 1920).

A man employed to carry a sign in the vicinity of the employer's store is injured in the course of his employment where he sustained injury on the sidewalk in front of his employer's premises while about to go across the street to an open air restaurant for coffee as was his custom each morning with the consent of the employer. Karl v Fair Shoe Repair, Inc., 269 A.D. 800, 55 N.Y.S.2d 1, 1945 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3908 (N.Y. App. Div. 1945).

An elevator operator is entitled to an award of compensation where she was injured during a rest period for which she was paid and during which she was permitted to leave the employer's premises when hit by a motor bus while crossing the street outside the employer's premises. Sullivan's Estate v Motor Realty Corp., 272 A.D. 986, 73 N.Y.S.2d 276, 1947 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4510 (N.Y. App. Div. 1947).. See also Rucker v Massau-Beekman Realty Corp., 272 A.D. 982, 73 N.Y.S.2d 275, 1947 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4492 (N.Y. App. Div. 1947).

A closely supervised "coffee break" is not an interruption of employment. A secretary was properly awarded compensation where, in the middle of the afternoon, she went across the street for coffee and while returning to work tripped and suffered injuries. Caporale v Department of Taxation & Finance, 2 A.D.2d 91, 153 N.Y.S.2d 738, 1956 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4692 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1956), aff'd, 2 N.Y.2d 946, 162 N.Y.S.2d 40, 142 N.E.2d 213, 1957 N.Y. LEXIS 1123 (N.Y. 1957), limited, Balsam v New York State Div. of Employment, 24 A.D.2d 802, 263 N.Y.S.2d 849, 1965 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3241 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1965).

Injury received while returning from permitted coffee break outside employer's building was compensable. Bodensky v Royaltone, Inc., 5 A.D.2d 733, 168 N.Y.S.2d 908, 1957 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3538 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1957).

A compensation award was sustained, although the case was a close one, as to which, it was said, reasonable minds could differ, where a night watchman, who had permission to go to a restaurant to get coffee, was assaulted and injured on the way back from an attempt to get some coffee at a tavern across from the restaurant, where he drank a coke, coffee not being obtainable there. Kapuscinski v John P. Picone, Inc., 9 A.D.2d 994, 194 N.Y.S.2d 571, 1959 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5314 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1959), app. denied, 7 N.Y.2d 710, 1960 N.Y. LEXIS 1644 (N.Y. 1960).

Coffee break rule which rests essentially on theory of constructive control of employee by employer during off-premises activity should not be extended to case where stenographer departed from premises during coffee break but went to bank to cash personal check and fell on bank's floor. Balsam v New York State Div. of Employment, 24 A.D.2d 802, 263 N.Y.S.2d 849, 1965 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3241 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1965).

Death of employee in automobile accident, during working hours, about 2 ½ miles from place of employment, was compensable where there was ample evidence from which the board could find that decedent was on his coffee break, (there was no coffee at his place of employment) which, although not an everyday occurrence, was an accepted practice known and acquiesced in by his employer and during which time decedent was paid, for which permission to leave the grounds was consistently granted, and the absence of any duration was reported to his supervisor. Walker v New York, 31 A.D.2d 703, 295 N.Y.S.2d 828, 1968 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2576 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1968).

Death arose in course of decedent's employment, and thus his mother was not entitled to workers' compensation death benefits, where (1) decedent took short break from work and went from his employer's rented third floor to roof of 4-story building with coworker, who smoked cigarette, (2) decedent's fall from roof on very windy day was unwitnessed, (3) employer testified that employees could take their breaks anywhere inside or outside building, although they had to smoke outside, (4) employer neither expressly authorized nor expressly prohibited use of roof, and (5) although locked door might have justified inference that access to roof was prohibited by someone while door remained locked, it was not reasonable to infer that prohibition continued after door was unlocked, as it was before decedent's fall, or that employer had ever imposed such prohibition. Kouvatsos v Line

Masters, Inc., 281 A.D.2d 769, 722 N.Y.S.2d 118, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2920 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2001).

144. —Injuries during rest periods or breaks while on employer's premises

Where a workman was killed during a temporary cessation of work, the assumption arises that he was killed by an accident arising out of and in course of employment. Norris v New York C. R. Co., 246 N.Y. 307, 158 N.E. 879, 246 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 307, 1927 N.Y. LEXIS 878 (N.Y. 1927).. See also Corrina v De Barbieri, 247 N.Y. 357, 160 N.E. 397, 247 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 357, 1928 N.Y. LEXIS 1079 (N.Y. 1928).

A stableman while seeking fresh air received injuries which were incidental to his employment and hence compensable. Montgomery v Bartholomay Milk Co., 260 N.Y. 664, 184 N.E. 137, 260 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 664, 1932 N.Y. LEXIS 860 (N.Y. 1932).

An award is proper where an employee falls from a roof upon which he had gone for air and a smoke. McLelland v International Paper Co. (1945) 269 App Div 800, 55 NYS2d 56, app dismd (1945) 294 NY 967, 63 NE2d 597.. See also Fischer v R. Hoe & Co., 224 A.D. 335, 230 N.Y.S. 755, 1928 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10000 (N.Y. App. Div. 1928).

Employee sustained compensable injury when, after entering premises of his employer shortly before he was scheduled to report for work, he joined other employees in area containing picnic tables and grassy knoll which was provided by employer and sat cross-legged on grass for several minutes, and when he stood up to report for his shift, his left knee popped out of joint, since employee's injury occurred while he was on employer's premises, immediately prior to time he was required to commence work and while he was getting up to report for duty, such that employee was in course of his employment when injury occurred. Torio v Fisher Body Division-General Motors Corp., 119 A.D.2d 955, 501 N.Y.S.2d 485, 1986 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 55883 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1986).

145. —Employer liability for injuries during recreational or social activities

Recreation may be so bound up with employment that a resulting injury will be deemed compensable as one arising out of and in course of employment. Wilson, 298 N.Y. 468, 84 N.E.2d 781, 298 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 468, 1949 N.Y. LEXIS 1006 (N.Y. 1949).. See also 1949 Ops St Compt, File #4042.

A chief of police who, while engaged in the investigation of a burglary, went to the barracks of the state police in order to get a state trooper to assist him, and while waiting for the trooper, participated in a soft ball game in which he was injured, does not sustain injuries arising out of and in the course of his employment. Donnelly v Smithtown, 260 A.D. 819, 22 N.Y.S.2d 332, 1940 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4830 (N.Y. App. Div. 1940).

A town superintendent of highways killed when he accidentally fired a shot gun which he was carrying while crossing a fence into a cemetery was in the course of his employment where town attorney had recently advised that cemetery was abandoned and was in the care of the town and highway department had the equipment necessary to maintain the cemetery. McConnell v Whitestown, 285 A.D. 1098, 139 N.Y.S.2d 305, 1955 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6765 (N.Y. App. Div.), reh'g denied, 285 A.D. 1209, 141 N.Y.S.2d 920, 1955 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7171 (N.Y. App. Div. 1955).

With respect to injury sustained by claimant in a fall while descending the stairway of his brother-in-law's summer home on a Saturday evening, although it was claimed that claimant was there, as chartering manager of a steamship corporation, of which his brother-in-law was president, on business, a Board finding that he was present merely as a social guest and not in course of employment rested upon credibility of the testimony and would not be disturbed. Manolakis v Edison S. S. Corp., 15 A.D.2d 845, 224 N.Y.S.2d 519, 1962 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11418 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1962).

The death of claimant, a hockey coach, while he was jogging near his home after he had worked out by lifting weights, did not arise out of and in the course of his employment, even though claimant's employer might have preferred a coach in good physical shape, where excellent physical condition was not a condition of employment, and where there was no suggestion that the contract of employment would have been terminated had claimant reported to work without having engaged in strenuous physical exercise while awaiting the opening of training camp; how an individual maintains his health, apart from a contractual obligation to engage in certain exercises intended to better prepare himself for his employment obligation, is a noncompensable personal act. Wilson v Detroit Hockey Club, Inc., 104 A.D.2d 168, 483 N.Y.S.2d 819, 1984 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 20609 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1984), aff'd, 66 N.Y.2d 848, 498 N.Y.S.2d 365, 489 N.E.2d 252, 1985 N.Y. LEXIS 18301 (N.Y. 1985).

Workers' Compensation Board properly rejected claimant's argument that injuries sustained by her while rollerskating during her lunch hour arose out of her employment because she had been encouraged to engage in physical activity during her lunch hour as part of smoking cessation program sponsored by her employer, where evidence showed that claimant voluntarily decided to go rollerskating on day of accident, she used her own skates and had skated regularly prior to joining smoking cessation program, and smoking cessation program merely suggested that participants engage in some activity of their own choosing as alternative to smoking. Williams v New York State Dep't of Health, 145 A.D.2d 882, 536 N.Y.S.2d 218, 1988 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13771 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1988).

Substantial evidence supported determination of Workers' Compensation Board that death of employee who was killed in crash of employer-owned helicopter following golf outing did not arise out of or in course of employment where employee (president and board chairman of employer) used helicopter for personal use, golf outing was for personal recreation of group of golfers who were friends, no business was transacted or discussed during outing, and employee had personally paid bills for outing. Peckham v Peckham Materials Corp., 146 A.D.2d 893, 536 N.Y.S.2d 873, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 94 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1989).

Evidence supported determination that female teacher's injury in donkey basketball game was accidental injury in course of her employment, even though teacher was not required to participate in game and was not compensated therefor, where teacher agreed to play after principal expressed his concern that game might be canceled due to insufficient number of volunteers, he encouraged teachers in general (and female teachers in particular) to volunteer, and teacher volunteered believing that her participation would be beneficial at such time as she sought tenure; principal's conduct was neither passive or incidental, but was overt encouragement sufficient for Workers' Compensation Board to conclude that school sponsored game. Midley v Romulus Cent. School Dist., 184 A.D.2d 925, 584 N.Y.S.2d 948, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8198 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1992).

Claimant was not entitled to workers' compensation benefits for injury sustained while participating in basketball game during picnic which was organized by coffee club made up of claimant's co-workers since (1) employer's acquiescence in use of its stationery and telephone lines to organize picnic was insufficient to establish employer sponsorship, (2) employer required that employees take leave to participate in picnic, (3) employer's acquiescence in existence of coffee club did not serve as basis for compensability given that employer did not also encourage club's organization of picnic, and (4) fact that employer gained some general benefit from picnic in form of increased morale and efficiency was not basis for finding of compensability. Farnan v New York State Dep't of Social Servs., 187 A.D.2d 864, 589 N.Y.S.2d 713, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12880 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1992).

146. —Injuries in the course of participation in employer sponsered games, leagues and the like

The Compensation Law does not cover employees who organized a baseball league without suggestion or encouragement from the management, played games on their own time at a public park distant from the plant, provided their own transportation, and were subject to wage deduction if late for work after playing or practicing, it further appearing that all organizational details and arrangements affecting the games were handled by employees, and that they procured the equipment, even though the employer paid for the equipment and permitted conferences relating to the contests on company time. Wilson v General Motors Corp., 298 N.Y. 468, 84 N.E.2d 781, 298 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 468, 1949 N.Y. LEXIS 1006 (N.Y. 1949).

An injury occurring during a game played on the employer's premises under the employer's supervision during the employees' lunch hour is compensable. Brown v United Services for Air, Inc., 298 N.Y. 901, 84 N.E.2d 810, 298 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 901, 1949 N.Y. LEXIS 1749 (N.Y. 1949).

Injuries sustained in a soft ball game by a member of an athletic association open only to employees arose out of the course of employment where all of the activities of the association, which were conducted on the employer's property, were obviously carried out with the sole purpose of providing an integrated plan of recreational activity in which the employer was dominant, and however beneficient to the employees such plan may have been, its primary motivation was the furtherance of employee relations and the building of an esprit de corps and good will redounding to the employer's benefit. Tedesco v General Electric Co., 305 N.Y. 544, 114 N.E.2d 33, 305 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 544, 1953 N.Y. LEXIS 798 (N.Y. 1953).

An employee of the General Electric Company and a member of the G. E. Athletic Association (a membership corporation) was entitled to compensation from his employer for a broken ankle received in a soft-ball game held on the company property but under the auspices of the membership corporation. Matter of Wilson, 298 N.Y. 468, 84 N.E.2d 781, 298 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 468, 1949 N.Y. LEXIS 1006 (N.Y. 1949)) was distinguished on the ground that the activities were on the premises, the financial support was substantial, the employer's control was dominant, the employer was benefited and could stop the program. Tedesco v General Electric Co., 305 N.Y. 544, 114 N.E.2d 33, 305 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 544, 1953 N.Y. LEXIS 798 (N.Y. 1953).

An employee injured while playing baseball on the factory team in a public park after working hours is injured in the course of his employment where the employer furnished uniforms and equipment, permitted team members to practice on working time, scheduled games against other factory teams, and placed his name on the player's uniforms. Fishman v Lafayette Radio Corp., 275 A.D. 876, 89 N.Y.S.2d 563, 1949 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4855 (N.Y. App. Div. 1949).. Employer, engaged in selling aluminum storm windows and doors, sponsored a baseball team made up of its employees for advertising purposes. Injuries of salesman sustained while playing on such baseball team were compensable. Tobias v Stormco Co., Inc., 282 A.D. 1087, 126 N.Y.S.2d 120, 1953 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5884 (N.Y. App. Div. 1953).

The claimant was in the course of his employment when he was injured while playing softball in an interdepartmental league game. He had finished his work, gone home and then returned to play in the game. The game was held on premises owned by the employer, the employer gave the league substantial financial support and could halt the program at any time. Sorino v Remington Rand, Inc., 1 A.D.2d 720, 147 N.Y.S.2d 34, 1955 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3738 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1955).

Injuries sustained by an employee while playing on a company sponsored baseball team were compensable where the team was entirely composed of employees, the employer supplied the equipment and paid expenses, and the team was named after the employer company, sponsored by it, and the employer's name likewise appeared on uniforms and jackets. McCarty v Dahlstrom Metallic Door Co., 12 A.D.2d 673, 207 N.Y.S.2d 713, 1960 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6735 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1960).

Claimant's breaking of an ankle while playing softball as a member of an interdepartmental softball league organized and encouraged by his employer arose out of and in course of employment, where it appeared that the employer contributed large sums to this and other activities programs for employees and directed and encouraged such activities, including the obtaining of permits for use of ball fields. Nahabedian v Equitable Life Ins. Co., 16 A.D.2d 713, 226 N.Y.S.2d 881, 1962 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10320 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1962).

Injuries sustained by claimant while playing softball in an industrial softball league did not arise out of his employment where it was undisputed that the employer's personnel manager, upon being asked for assistance by a couple of employees in setting up a softball team, told them that the employer would do nothing more than to give initial financial assistance, that the employees must assume full responsibility for the team's activities, and that no contribution was made by the employer except a small amount for uniforms and equipment without any gain or business advantage sought through the softball activities of the employees. Iacovino v National Biscuit Co., 18 A.D.2d 741, 235 N.Y.S.2d 511, 1962 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6178 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1962).

There was substantial evidence to sustain a board finding that injuries sustained were in course of employment, notwithstanding the accident occurred in course of a Saturday softball game being played in a public park, where claimant was an outside salesman for his employer and employed on a six-day week basis and the softball game was part of a recreational activity sponsored and controlled by the employer in connection with sales promotion efforts. Sargeant v Tilo Roofing Co., 18 A.D.2d 1037, 238 N.Y.S.2d 645, 1963 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4176 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1963).

Claimant was injured in course of employment where the injury occurred while he was playing on an employee's baseball team sponsored by the employer, the league dues for which were paid by employer, who likewise supplied uniforms bearing identifying initials, and the players were recruited on company time and employees were sometimes excused early to take part in games witnessed by other employees. Rafti v Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Smith, Inc., 20 A.D.2d 592, 245 N.Y.S.2d 223, 1963 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2649 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1963), aff'd, 15 N.Y.2d 497, 254 N.Y.S.2d 109, 202 N.E.2d 556, 1964 N.Y. LEXIS 890 (N.Y. 1964).

Death of an employee in a one-car accident while en route to a bowling match did not arise in course of employment although the bowling match which he intended to take part in was part of bowling league activities encouraged by decedent's employer, which furnished shirts with special insignia for participating employees, where the employer did not otherwise contribute to costs, control activities, all matches were played after hours and off the premises, and team members were not all employees of the employer. Jablonski v General Motors Acceptance Corp., 22 A.D.2d 724, 254 N.Y.S.2d 168, 1964 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2985 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1964).

Affirming an award to a claimant injured while participating in a county softball league, the court rejected the contention that in sponsoring the league there was no business advantage of benefit to the employer by stating that this is not the sole test as to whether the sport has such a connection with employment as to support an award of compensation. Sillitto v E. J. Meyer Memorial Hospital, 29 A.D.2d 822, 287 N.Y.S.2d 335, 1968 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4605 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), app. denied, 21 N.Y.2d 646, 1968 N.Y. LEXIS 1840 (N.Y. 1968).

Injury sustained while playing in a regularly scheduled softball game of a softball league sponsored and encouraged by the employer was sustained in the course of his employment and thus compensable. Esposito v Western Electric Co., 30 A.D.2d 750, 291 N.Y.S.2d 378, 1968 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3608 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1968).

A claim for benefits by a town policeman who chose to participate in a public recreational activity, which general activity was sponsored by his employer, was dismissed against the municipality and the court did not find support for any employer-employee relationship as to the softball league or as to the particular team to which the policeman belonged and his employment was entirely unrelated with the creation of the activity or his particular participation in it. Carpenter v New Castle, 35 A.D.2d 16, 312 N.Y.S.2d 650, 1970 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4099 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1970), aff'd, 29 N.Y.2d 760, 326 N.Y.S.2d 561, 276 N.E.2d 623, 1971 N.Y. LEXIS 975 (N.Y. 1971).

Evidence supported board's finding that injury sustained by claimant in evening softball game played in public park was compensable because his participation was sponsored by his employer, where claimant was employed by insurance company and was playing in league composed entirely of insurance company employees at urging of his employer, who deemed such peer-group activities as good for business; fact that claimant's employer was small family enterprise increased significance of fact that it had purchased claimant's softball uniform featuring its logo on back, and diminished relevance of fact that injury occurred off premises and after hours. Diem v Diem & Buerger Ins. Co., 146 A.D.2d 840, 536 N.Y.S.2d 246, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 20 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1989).

147. —Injuries during lunch-hour games conducted with employer's knowledge

The fracture of an ankle when the claimant slipped and fell on his employer's premises while playing volley ball during the lunch period where it was customary for claimant and other employees to play the game each day and it was done with the knowledge and consent of the employer and an official participated is an incident of the employment so as to justify an award of compensation. Brown v United Services for Air, Inc., 298 N.Y. 901, 84 N.E.2d 810, 298 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 901, 1949 N.Y. LEXIS 1749 (N.Y. 1949).

A fifteen-year-old high school student who was employed with other students to pick apples on the employer's farm suffers an injury arising out of and in the course of his employment where he was injured while playing in a hayloft during his lunch hour and it was known to the employer that such play was customary among the students. Hinkley v Kuchler, 272 A.D. 986, 72 N.Y.S.2d 741, 1947 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4508 (N.Y. App. Div. 1947).

Where claimant while engaged in playing touch football during his lunch hour with other employees outside employer's plant tripped as he tried to catch pass and injured his right hand when it went through plate glass window, held that there was substantial evidence to sustain board's determination that the accident did not arise out of the employment since the athletic activity was strictly voluntary, the claimant being free to do as he pleased during lunch hour. Beiring v Niagara Frontier Transit System, Inc., 23 A.D.2d 611, 256 N.Y.S.2d 365, 1965 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4823 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), app. denied, 15 N.Y.2d 485, 1965 N.Y. LEXIS 1861 (N.Y. 1965).

The employer's contention that claimant's accidental injury when he slipped and fell against the factory wall while playing handball with coemployees, including his foreman, during their lunch period did not arise out of and in the course of his employment was without merit, where there was evidence the employees played regularly and the plant manager testified that although ball playing had been forbidden by a prohibitors sign, the company knew the men continued to play during their lunch hour. Ruiz v Deldan Design, Inc., 27 A.D.2d 774, 277 N.Y.S.2d 90, 1967 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4895 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1967).

148. —Injuries in connection with use of employer's recreational facilities or equipment

A claimant sustained a non-compensable injury when he hurt himself while diving into a fenced off swimming pool maintained in the rear of the employer's combination business and residential premises. The employer let his employees use the pool during their lunch hours and after work. Claimant sustained his injuries at 5:30 P.M., after working hours. Employer derived no substantial direct benefit from the activity beyond the intangible value of improvement in employee health and morale which is common to all kinds of recreation and social life. Congdon v Klett, 307 N.Y. 218, 120 N.E.2d 796, 307 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 218, 1954 N.Y. LEXIS 983 (N.Y. 1954).

Death benefits were properly allowed where a laborer drowned in a lake on his day off, the lake being entirely surrounded by the camp at which deceased was employed and part of the employer's premises. Leonard v Peoples Camp Corp., 9 N.Y.2d 652, 212 N.Y.S.2d 69, 173 N.E.2d 46, 1961 N.Y. LEXIS 1537 (N.Y. 1961).

A golf caddy injured during a practice game with other caddies suffers injuries arising out of and in the course of his employment where, though not required to play, he and the other caddies were encouraged to play one morning a week and at the time of the injury, the caddies were under the rule and supervision of the caddy master. Piusinski v Transit Valley Country Club, 259 A.D. 765, 18 N.Y.S.2d 316, 1940 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6579 (N.Y. App. Div.), aff'd, 283 N.Y. 674, 28 N.E.2d 401, 283 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 674, 1940 N.Y. LEXIS 1113 (N.Y. 1940).

A locker boy, having the permission to use a swimming pool maintained upon the premises during his lunch hour and after working hours, is entitled to compensation for injuries suffered during his recreation hour when he slipped from a ladder leading to the diving board. Dowen v Saratoga Springs Com., 267 A.D. 928, 46 N.Y.S.2d 822, 1944 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5556 (N.Y. App. Div. 1944).

Claimant was in the course of his employment when, during off-duty period, he used one of employer's canoes for recreational purposes and the canoe capsized and he was drowned. Simons v Hedges, 286 A.D. 1044, 144 N.Y.S.2d 828, 1955 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5103 (N.Y. App. Div. 1955).

Death by drowning of an employee who fell off a dam being constructed by his employer into the St. Lawrence River while fishing after working hours did not arise out of and in the course of his employment where his work day had already ended and such recreational privileges as fishing off the dam were not held out to induce his employment or as part of the employment arrangement. Petrie v Kiewit-Johnson & Johnson, 15 A.D.2d 696, 223 N.Y.S.2d 256, 1962 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12014 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1962).

Where decedent was doing job for employer at camp on island and employer gave him permission to stay on the island and to use a boat that was there, it was held that fishing and boating were a reasonable recreational activity for decedent under the circumstances and that death of decedent by drowning during such activity was compensable. Dow v Collins, 22 A.D.2d 250, 254 N.Y.S.2d 554, 1964 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2496 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1964), app. denied, 15 N.Y.2d 487, 1965 N.Y. LEXIS 1918 (N.Y. 1965).

149. —Injuries in the course of employer sponsered picnics, parties or other social events

Employer's dinner dance intended to promote salesmen motivation is deemed to be part of the employment; therefore widow of employee who became ill while dancing at party and died at home later that night of a coronary occlusion was entitled to workmen's compensation benefits. Chorley v Koerner Ford, Inc., 19 N.Y.2d 242, 279 N.Y.S.2d 4, 225 N.E.2d 737, 1967 N.Y. LEXIS 1662 (N.Y. 1967).

A newsboy drowned at a picnic for carrier boys arranged by his employer was in the course of his employment at his death, inasmuch as it was apparent that the picnic was maintained for the purpose of developing better service and greater interest on the part of the newspaper carriers. Fagen v Albany Evening Union Co., 261 A.D. 861, 24 N.Y.S.2d 779, 1941 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7801 (N.Y. App. Div. 1941).. See also 1949 Ops St Compt, File #4042.

An award was proper where an employee was injured while returning from an annual picnic sponsored and paid for by the employer to promote better employer-employee relationships. Dodge v Wm. J. Keller, Inc., 279 A.D. 959, 111 N.Y.S.2d 27, 1952 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5422 (N.Y. App. Div.), aff'd, 304 N.Y. 792, 109 N.E.2d 85, 304 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 792, 1952 N.Y. LEXIS 985 (N.Y. 1952).

Decedent was killed in automobile accident on way home from party given by association of fellow employees. Legault v Kraft Foods Co., 5 A.D.2d 712, 168 N.Y.S.2d 626, 169 N.Y.S.2d 736, 1957 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3505 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1957).

At a party given by his employer, decedent engaged in a contest in which intoxicating liquors, furnished by the employer, were drunk by the cupfull. Shortly after he was taken home, decedent was found dead due to pulmonary edema and acute alcoholism. While occurrence took place on the premises of employer, there was no basis for finding for claimant, since decedent's intoxication was the result of excessive personal use of alcohol which departed from any rational relationship to his work. Herman v Greenpoint Barrel & Drum Reconditioning Co., 9 A.D.2d 572, 189 N.Y.S.2d 353, 1959 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7427 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1959), aff'd, 8 N.Y.2d 880, 203 N.Y.S.2d 922, 168 N.E.2d 721, 1960 N.Y. LEXIS 1159 (N.Y. 1960).

Where an employee died after entering into a drinking competition with a coemployee at a holiday party given by their employer on his premises, for which the employer furnished quantities of intoxicating liquor and food, and the Compensation Board found that decedent died as the result of large quantities of liquor consumed, the Appellate Division's finding that intoxication was the result of excessive personal use of alcohol and had no rational relationship to the employment was upheld. Herman v Greenpoint Barrel & Drum Reconditioning Co., 9 A.D.2d 572, 189 N.Y.S.2d 353, 1959 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7427 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1959), aff'd, 8 N.Y.2d 880, 203 N.Y.S.2d 922, 168 N.E.2d 721, 1960 N.Y. LEXIS 1159 (N.Y. 1960).

Where an employer organizes and finances a picnic for employees, designed to promote their good will, an employee who is injured while attending the picnic can be considered as injured in course of employment, notwithstanding the picnic is held on a Sunday and of the employer's premises with the employees furnishing their own transportation. Mack v State Street Mill Bargain Center, Inc., 17 A.D.2d 1006, 233 N.Y.S.2d 810, 1962 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6985 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1962).

Where decedent's death was result of fall down elevator shaft during course of altercation at his employer's Christmas party, holding of Workmen's Compensation Board panel that "although the accidental death may have arisen in the course of employment, it did not arise out of the employment" held to have been supported by substantial evidence and not to be erroneous as a matter of law. Rodriguez v Paris Queen Bags, Inc., 23 A.D.2d 606, 256 N.Y.S.2d 398, 1965 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4817 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1965).

Where a town supervisor while acting as host at a picnic and party at a camp of the town clerk, fell from a boat and was drowned, it was held that the decedent did not arrange the outing in his capacity as supervisor, and that since he was an elected municipal official the reasons which make an accident at a picnic sponsored by a business corporation compensable do not apply to this case. De Carlo v Lowville, 24 A.D.2d 678, 261 N.Y.S.2d 163, 1965 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3622 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1965), aff'd, 21 N.Y.2d 872, 289 N.Y.S.2d 215, 236 N.E.2d 488, 1968 N.Y. LEXIS 1558 (N.Y. 1968).

Decedent's fatal automobile accident did not arise out of and in the course of his employment, where his attendance at a picnic conducted by the teachers' association was voluntary and there was no showing of any sponsorship, participation, or contribution by the employer. Gillard v North Syracuse Cent. School, 28 A.D.2d 1022, 283 N.Y.S.2d 687, 1967 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3264 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1967).

Employee's death arose out of and in course of employment where the death was causally related to his participation in ball game at annual management club picnic, and where employer, while not dominating management club, encouraged it by financial contributions, and clearly benefitted from opportunity to address the annual meeting on past performance and future expectancy and from the regular monthly meetings of the management club, by an educational program and discussion of company problems. Gore v New York Air Brake Co., 33 A.D.2d 851, 305 N.Y.S.2d 814, 1969 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2608 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1969).

Death of employee in attendance at retirement dinner for coworker was within the course of his employment where function was paid for by employer, out of town coworkers attended and were reimbursed for their expenses by the employer, and company officials associated with retiree were present at the dinner. McNamara v Kidder Peabody & Co., 42 A.D.2d 183, 346 N.Y.S.2d 37, 1973 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3771 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1973).

Where employees of state liquor authority used office time and facilities for preparation and posting of notices, and for sale of tickets, with respect to annual picnic planned by employees and held after working hours, such evidence of employer participation in picnic was inadequate to be substantial evidence supporting finding that accident to office employee at picnic arose out of and in course of employment, despite fact that deputy commissioner and some other executive officers had donated sum of $10 each to cost of picnic while male employees were permitted to purchase tickets at sum of only $4 each and female employees were permitted to pay only sum of $3 each. Dapp v New York State Liquor Authority, 50 A.D.2d 250, 377 N.Y.S.2d 677, 1975 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11489 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1975).

Evidence supported decision of Workers' Compensation Board that claimant's injury constituted accident arising out of and in course of employment where it was shown that claimant was injured while participating in "tug of war" contest at employer's annual picnic, that picnic was organized during business hours, and that employee participation therein was overtly encouraged by supervisor to promote morale and esprit de corps. Briand v New York State Dep't of Environmental Conservation, 186 A.D.2d 308, 587 N.Y.S.2d 458, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10600 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1992).

150. Employee injuries caused by horseplay or pranks; generally

To be victimized by a prank perpetrated by a co-employee is an incident of the employment, as something reasonably to be expected, and an employee so injured is entitled to compensation benefits if the board is satisfied that the acts were incidental to the employment. Burns v Merritt Engineering Co., 302 N.Y. 131, 96 N.E.2d 739, 302 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 131, 1951 N.Y. LEXIS 758 (N.Y. 1951).

An award of compensation in horseplay cases should not depend upon evidence of foreseeability. Burns v Merritt Engineering Co., 302 N.Y. 131, 96 N.E.2d 739, 302 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 131, 1951 N.Y. LEXIS 758 (N.Y. 1951).

The risk of liability for compensation of the employer does not necessarily stop with a warning to cease horseplay. Montpetit v Standard Shade Roller Corp., 277 A.D. 1066, 100 N.Y.S.2d 640, 1950 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4511 (N.Y. App. Div. 1950).

It is reasonable and natural for workers to indulge in momentary diversions to play a prank, and, when this occurs on the employer's premises, with a tempting instrumentality furnished by the employer and readily available, it becomes a risk of the employment and part and parcel thereof. Piatek v Plymouth Rock Provision Co., 15 A.D.2d 405, 224 N.Y.S.2d 634, 1962 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11372 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1962).

Newly appointed deputy sheriff was not acting within course of his employment when he killed himself during game of Russian Roulette, and therefore his estate was not entitled to workers' compensation benefits, notwithstanding fact that he had been called to duty before final day of firing range training, since (1) earlier training had specifically covered information as to direction in which gun chamber rotated, and (2) conduct in playing game was highly dangerous and could not be dismissed as merely common, playful prank or trifling act of foolery. Gibbs v Orange County Sheriff's Dep't, 149 A.D.2d 845, 540 N.Y.S.2d 35, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4876 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1989).

151. —Injury to employee who instigates horseplay

An employee who initiates or instigates a particular bit of horseplay is not entitled to the protection of the statute unless the prankish act has long been a part of the employment. Ognibene v Rochester Mfg. Co., 298 N.Y. 85, 80 N.E.2d 749, 298 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 85, 1948 N.Y. LEXIS 804 (N.Y. 1948).. See also Industrial Comm'r v McCarthy, 295 N.Y. 443, 68 N.E.2d 434, 295 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 443, 1946 N.Y. LEXIS 799 (N.Y. 1946).

A 16-year-old employed as a "gas jockey" at a service station was entitled to workers' compensation for injuries he sustained at work when he tossed a lighted match into a bucket containing a residue of oil, gasoline, and grease in order to demonstrate to a friend a "trick" he had learned from a fellow employee, since injuries or deaths arising from employee horseplay are compensable under the Workers' Compensation Law if they result from conduct which may reasonably be regarded as an incident of employment; given claimant's age and the fact that the injury occurred during an idle period and resulted from curiosity about materials related to his work, the Workers' Compensation Board was warranted in concluding that the incident which caused claimant's injuries was employment-related. Moreover, where there was testimony that at least two other workers at the station had previously engaged in the same conduct, the Board's determination that it was cumulative horseplay, and not an isolated incident, was supported by substantial evidence. Lubrano v Malinet, 65 N.Y.2d 616, 491 N.Y.S.2d 148, 480 N.E.2d 737, 1985 N.Y. LEXIS 14695 (N.Y. 1985).

The fact that an employee initiated or took part in the initiation of horseplay does not bar him from an award where the horseplay subsequently results in injury to him. Montpetit v Standard Shade Roller Corp., 277 A.D. 1066, 100 N.Y.S.2d 640, 1950 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4511 (N.Y. App. Div. 1950).

152. —Injury resulting from pranks during slack periods or near quitting time

Where a claimant, while engaged in the performance of his duties in his employer's factory was struck in the eye by an apple which one of his fellow servants, a boy, threw at another boy, in consequence of which the claimant lost the better part of the sight of the eye, he is entitled to compensation as the accident was one arising out of and in the course of the employment. Leonbruno v Champlain Silk Mills, 229 N.Y. 470, 128 N.E. 711, 229 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 470, 1920 N.Y. LEXIS 702 (N.Y. 1920).. See also Verschleiser v Joseph Stern Son, Inc., 229 N.Y. 192, 128 N.E. 126, 229 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 192, 1920 N.Y. LEXIS 674 (N.Y. 1920).

An employee who was engaged in piling lumber adjacent to a river is not injured in the course of his employment where he interrupts his work to participate in the prank of pushing an old wagon over the river bank into the river, in the course of which his clothing became entangled with the wagon and he was thrown into the river and drowned. Gaurin v Bagley & Sewall Co., 298 N.Y. 511, 80 N.E.2d 660, 298 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 511, 1948 N.Y. LEXIS 1110 (N.Y.), reh'g denied, 298 N.Y. 619, 81 N.E.2d 355, 298 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 619, 1948 N.Y. LEXIS 1188 (N.Y. 1948).

A claimant does not receive an injury in the course of his employment where he playfully pulled the cap over another employee's eyes and a file held in the hand of another employee flew from its handle when he readjusted his cap and struck the claimant in the eye. Frost v H. H. Franklin Mfg. Co., 204 A.D. 700, 198 N.Y.S. 521, 1923 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9555 (N.Y. App. Div.), aff'd, 236 N.Y. 649, 142 N.E. 319, 236 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 649, 1923 N.Y. Young lads whose jobs call for expenditure of physical energy cannot be expected during slack periods, to sit in idleness but the employer must expect that they will engage in some form of activity. A seventeen-year-old boy working with a group of employees of his own age suffered a compensable accident when, during a slack period, he was attempting to show his strength by bending a steel bar which struck him in the eye. Meigel v General Foods Corp., 2 A.D.2d 945, 156 N.Y.S.2d 420, 1956 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3978 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1956), reh'g denied, 3 A.D.2d 685, 159 N.Y.S.2d 956, 1957 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6639 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1957), app. denied, 2 N.Y.2d 710, 1957 N.Y. LEXIS 1619 (N.Y. 1957).

153. —Injuries from other particular incidents of horseplay

One employed as a handyman, janitor and carpenter while working under the employer's orders in a house who suffered an injury when he saw and lighted a firecracker is entitled to an award of compensation. Pedersen v Nelson, 267 A.D. 843, 45 N.Y.S.2d 784, 1944 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5069 (N.Y. App. Div. 1944).

An award of compensation is improper where the employee suffered a heart attack due to anger and excitement resulting from jokes played upon him including the tying of his sweater into knots, and where the jokes were no part of the employment and there was no proof of any violence. Price v O'Connell Electric Co., 271 A.D. 852, 65 N.Y.S.2d 836, 1946 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3407 (N.Y. App. Div. 1946).

A seventeen-year-old-office boy killed by a co-worker of the same age suffers fatal injuries arising out of and in the course of his employment where both boys were playing with a loaded revolver during the period when one of them was acting as a receptionist and several such revolvers were kept in an unlocked drawer in the receptionist's desk to be used by the receptionist if the occasion required. Lang v Franklin R. S. Co., 272 A.D. 988, 73 N.Y.S.2d 1, 1947 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4516 (N.Y. App. Div. 1947).. But see Culhane v Economical Garage Co., 188 A.D. 1, 176 N.Y.S. 508, 1919 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7127 (N.Y. App. Div. 1919).

An injury is incidental to and arises out of and in the course of employment where the claimant was injured by slipping and falling on a slippery floor while engaged in a playful "tussle" with a fellow employee. Sewell v Henry Johnson Auto Body Shop, 274 A.D. 657, 274 A.D. 957, 83 N.Y.S.2d 795, 1948 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4246 (N.Y. App. Div. 1948).

An award of compensation is proper where an employee was injured when a fellow employee threw gasoline upon him which he mistook for water and the gasoline ignited. Montpetit v Standard Shade Roller Corp., 277 A.D. 1066, 100 N.Y.S.2d 640, 1950 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4511 (N.Y. App. Div. 1950).

Claimant had suffered 2 prior accidents resulting in injuries to his back. Thereafter, while claimant was on employer's premises on way to lunch, fellow employee slapped him on back. Period of disability began on that day and said blow precipitated disability. Finding that accident did not arise out of and in course of employment was not supported by substantial evidence. Decision dismissing last claim and charging all disability to the 2 prior accidents reversed. Kratochvil v Delta Jewelry Corp., 5 A.D.2d 1044, 173 N.Y.S.2d 329, 1958 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6208 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1958).

Injuries to claimant, 17, who was employed as messenger, which injuries were sustained when he was struck in eye by metal paper clip which he was attempting to shoot out of window by means of rubber band, were compensable. The accident arose out of and in the course of employment. Johnson v Loew's, Inc., 7 A.D.2d 795, 180 N.Y.S.2d 826, 1958 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3719 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1958), aff'd, 8 N.Y.2d 757, 201 N.Y.S.2d 775, 168 N.E.2d 111, 1960 N.Y. LEXIS 1291 (N.Y. 1960).

The Board was justified in finding that death of an employee in a meat processing plant was compensable where it resulted from a burst bowel caused by a fellow employee's application of a compressed air hose to decedent's anus during a lunch break period on the employer's premises where the air hose was used for cleaning purposes, and the fact that, shortly prior to this fatal accident, decedent had playfully aimed the same air hose at the co-employee's stomach as a bit of "horseplay" was immaterial decedent having ceased his part in the horseplay before his co-employee resumed it in the more dangerous fashion. Piatek v Plymouth Rock Provision Co., 15 A.D.2d 405, 224 N.Y.S.2d 634, 1962 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11372 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1962).

Plaintiff's behavior was outside scope of Workers' Compensation Law, even if his supervisor continued to exercise authority over him during lunch break and ensuing ride in supervisor's van, co-worker performed stunt involving his leaning backward outside van door while vehicle was moving, co-worker then returned to his seat and switched places with plaintiff, who attempted same stunt, whereupon he lost his balance, fell outside van, and was injured. Gladwell v C & S Communs., 224 A.D.2d 775, 637 N.Y.S.2d 502, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 763 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1996).

154. Employer liability for injuries to employees by persons other than fellow employees

Assaults are accidents arising out of the employment within the meaning of the Work. Muller v H. & A. Cohen, Inc., 186 A.D. 845, 174 N.Y.S. 736, 1919 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5887 (N.Y. App. Div. 1919).

Workers' Compensation Board's decision that shooting of decedent by his former friend and attorney, who was not fellow employee, in his employer's parking lot arose in course of his employment was arbitrary and would be annulled for lack of supporting evidence where board relied on hearsay testimony by interested party who lacked any personal knowledge of matter and rejected detailed, consistent, first-hand testimony by witnesses with no motive to prevaricate, and subject matter of conversation that led to shooting was decedent's personal bankruptcy, which had no discernible connection with his employer. Russo v HRT, Inc., 246 A.D.2d 933, 667 N.Y.S.2d 854, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 761 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), app. denied, 91 N.Y.2d 815, 676 N.Y.S.2d 128, 698 N.E.2d 957, 1998 N.Y. LEXIS 1365 (N.Y. 1998).

155. —Bar and restaurant personnel

Whether a bartender, who was assaulted on his way home after work by a person with whom he had an altercation in attempting to maintain order in the bar, is injured in the course of his employment within the meaning of subdivision 4 of this section is a debatable matter of fact and the court of appeals cannot upon appeal direct the conclusion contrary to that reached by the board as a matter of law. McGrinder v Sullivan, 290 N.Y. 11, 47 N.E.2d 421, 290 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 11, 1943 N.Y. LEXIS 1131 (N.Y. 1943).

A claim by a restaurant dishwasher-counterman for compensation for head injuries sustained when assaulted by patrons of the restaurant on a certain date aggravating a pre-existing cerebral pathology and precipitating epilepsy, was supported by substantial evidence as to occurrence of the incident where not only did the claimant testify to it but the employer admitted that it had happened and a police report showed that claimant was taken to the hospital. Corso v Bruckner Diner, Inc., 20 A.D.2d 944, 248 N.Y.S.2d 1010, 1964 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3928 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1964).

156. —Cab drivers and other transportation employees

A checker in the business of freight transportation, who was shot and killed by an unidentified stranger while engaged in the regular course of his employment, is injured in the course of his employment. Moran v Moran Transp. Lines, 264 A.D. 966, 37 N.Y.S.2d 142, 1942 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5567 (N.Y. App. Div. 1942), modified, 266 A.D. 763, 41 N.Y.S.2d 957, 1943 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4308 (N.Y. App. Div. 1943).

A taxi driver shot and killed by a passenger who bore the decedent a personal grudge is not entitled to an award of compensation because the accident did not arise out of his employment. Ramos v Taxi Transit Co., 276 A.D. 101, 92 N.Y.S.2d 744, 1949 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3120 (N.Y. App. Div. 1949), aff'd, 301 N.Y. 749, 95 N.E.2d 625, 301 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 749, 1950 N.Y. LEXIS 1042 (N.Y. 1950).

A cab driver struck and severely injured by a passenger in an argument over the amount of the fare had been accidentally injured in the course of his employment. Torosian v Nash Cab, Inc., 27 A.D.2d 767, 277 N.Y.S.2d 112, 1967 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4883 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1967).

Injury sustained as a result of slipping while emerging from tub shower to mat on the bathroom floor was not sustained in the course of employment although claimant, a deputy court clerk, testified that prior thereto he had made some necessary adjustments to his stenotype machine, changing the ink ribbon thereof, as a result of which he got ink on his hands and arms and "probably" on his face and body, this being the reason for taking a bath. Covel v New York State Court of Claims, 30 A.D.2d 736, 291 N.Y.S.2d 384, 1968 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3585 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1968).

157. —Janitors and building managers

An award lies to the dependents of a janitor killed by a gangster's stray bullets while out sweeping the stoop in front of the premises where he was employed. Greenberg v Voit, 250 N.Y. 543, 166 N.E. 318, 250 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 543, 1929 N.Y. LEXIS 926 (N.Y. 1929).. See also Santos v Guemes, 270 A.D. 1057, 63 N.Y.S.2d 61, 1946 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5300 (N.Y. LEXIS 1138 (N.Y. 1931).

A janitor suffers fatal injuries arising out of and in the course of his employment where he chased a negro, who had entered the basement where the decedent was working, out of the apartment house and was stabbed and killed. Pendl v Haenel, 229 A.D. 52, 241 N.Y.S. 59, 1930 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10307 (N.Y. App. Div.), app. dismissed, 254 N.Y. 606, 173 N.E. 886, 254 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 606, 1930 N.Y. LEXIS 1216 (N.Y. 1930).See also Ruppert v Plattdeutsche Volksfest Verein, 263 N.Y. 338, 189 N.E. 240, 263 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 338, 1934 N.Y. LEXIS 1280 (N.Y. 1934).; Martucci v Hills Bros. Co., 171 A.D. 370, 156 N.Y.S. 833, 1916 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9428 (N.Y. App. Div. 1916).; O'Brien v Shore Road Hospital, 275 N.Y. 570, 11 N.E.2d 758, 275 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 570, 1937 N.Y. LEXIS 1551 (N.Y. 1937).

One employed as a manager of a building used as a rooming house, which was frequented by unsavory characters, is entitled to compensation when assaulted in front of the building as he was about to depart on an errand in connection with his employment and there was evidence from which it might be inferred that the assault arose out of management of the property. Israel v Ramble Properties, Inc., 269 A.D. 1006, 58 N.Y.S.2d 388, 1945 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5009 (N.Y. App. Div. 1945).

Decedent's death arose out of and in the course of his employment where decedent, a manager of his employer's hotel had an argument with one of the guests over the use of an electric fan in the guest's room which finally resulted in his death from a knife stab. Tivoli v 141 West 110th Street Corp., 4 A.D.2d 915, 166 N.Y.S.2d 873, 1957 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4316 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1957), app. denied, 4 N.Y.2d 674, 1958 N.Y. LEXIS 1355 (N.Y. 1958).

Even though the motive for an assault resulting in death of an apartment house superintendent might have been robbery rather than anything to do with his employment, where he was subject to call 24 hours a day and his duties often required him to travel through an intervening courtyard to some extent removed from public view, assault by a footpad was one of the perils of his employment, and a decision of the Board denying death benefits on the ground that the assault did not arise out of his employment could not be sustained. Toro v 1700 First Ave. Corp., 16 A.D.2d 852, 227 N.Y.S.2d 605, 1962 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9983 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1962), aff'd, 12 N.Y.2d 1001, 239 N.Y.S.2d 130, 189 N.E.2d 625, 1963 N.Y. LEXIS 1358 (N.Y. 1963).

158. —Watchmen, guards and the like

A night watchman employed by a corporation engaged in the business of furnishing its subscribers with protection against burglary, whose duty it was to patrol the streets in a given section of the city, try doors and keep watch until relieved, and who, while engaged in this work, was killed by a shot fired by a police officer then in pursuit of burglars dies in the performance of his duty and from a peril arising out of and in the course of his employment. Heidemann v American Dist. Tel. Co., 230 N.Y. 305, 130 N.E. 302, 230 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 305, 1921 N.Y. LEXIS 836 (N.Y. 1921).

An accidental injury arising out of and in the course of employment occurs where a night watchman, was found murdered on the employer's premises and robbery of his wages was the apparent motive. Lanni v Amsterdam Bldg. Co. (1926) 217 App Div 278, 216 NYS 763, appeal after remand (1927) 221 App Div 824, 224 NYS 840.. An employee is injured in the course of his employment when he was assaulted where such assault was a continuation of and directly related to an altercation which had taken place in the employee's place of employment a short time before and the employee was not the aggressor. Longoria v Langner, 271 A.D. 762, 64 N.Y.S.2d 509, 1946 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2890 (N.Y. App. Div. 1946).

An employee who was accidentally shot by a third party while on the employer's premises during the lunch period suffers accidental injuries arising out of and in the course of the employment. Groppe v J. C. Penney Co., 272 A.D. 851, 70 N.Y.S.2d 173, 1947 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3899 (N.Y. App. Div. 1947).

No industrial accident was sustained by claimant who, while an employee of summer hotel, awoke one night with an extensive laceration of her nose. Claimant's dog was in room with her and claimant testified that either dog had bitten her or an unknown person had assaulted her. Physician said injury was not caused by dog bite. There was no evidence of assault. Reed v Loon Lake Hotel, 283 A.D. 763, 128 N.Y.S.2d 112, 1954 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5176 (N.Y. App. Div. 1954).

Claimant, a dancer in a musical play, was invited by his employer to a party for the cast on the night of the play's final performance to be held on the stage after the curtain had rung down. At the party, the claimant was unjustifiably assaulted by a drunken guest who had been invited by the employer and whose condition was known to the employer. Held: claimant's injuries arose out of and in the course of employment. Claim of Claim of Martin v C. A. Productions Co., 9 A.D.2d 550, 189 N.Y.S.2d 528, 1959 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7393 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1959), rev'd, 8 N.Y.2d 226, 203 N.Y.S.2d 845, 168 N.E.2d 666, 1960 N.Y. LEXIS 1070 (N.Y. 1960).

There was no basis for a finding that the cause of injury to claimant was the direct result of a work-connected quarrel with a fellow employee where it appeared that claimant was employed as a truck driver delivering and picking up beer cases, and, on the occasion in question, had an argument with his helper over the manner in which the cases were loaded on the truck; that claimant struck the helper twice and they then agreed to go to a quiet spot in a park some blocks away and settle the matter by a fist fight; that several people congregated as the result of the fray and a police officer then in plain clothes attempted to break it up; and that claimant was shot by the police officer in the resultant melee. Schneck v Piel's Brewery, 11 A.D.2d 826, 202 N.Y.S.2d 569, 1960 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8492 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1960).

Board's finding that claimant's injury did not arise out of and in course of his employment could not be disturbed where it appeared that it resulted from a tussle between him and a free lance workman who was not a coemployee, following months of growing animosity between them, after which claimant had threatened to "get" his assailant, during a knife fight after an exchange of angry words and epithets. Jiminez v Egenhauser, 16 A.D.2d 720, 229 N.Y.S.2d 206, 1962 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10331 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1962).

The activities of a milkman in taking a friend on his route so the two of them could test their guns by shooting at crows were not "an incident of his employment" and "did not arise out of employment"; and the milkman was properly denied benefits for injuries sustained when his friend's gun accidentally discharged as the men rode in the truck. Tyler v Gilbert, 29 A.D.2d 591, 285 N.Y.S.2d 452, 1967 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2766 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1967).

Import manager was in the course of his employment when he was shot in head by unknown assailant in his apartment building, where import manager was journeying home at conclusion of his business meeting to call supervisor and to do additional work until end of working day and employer knew that import manager regularly worked at home and approved of his practice of working at home when returning to office after an outside trip would be impractical. Levi v Interstate Photo Supply Corp., 46 A.D.2d 951, 362 N.Y.S.2d 70, 1974 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3298 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1974).

The Workers' Compensation Board properly determined that the death of a mental health technician who was stabbed on a public street by a former mental patient with whom the technician had worked arose out of and in the course of decedent's employment where the mental patient, while being subdued after a violent episode, had threatened to kill decedent, where, though the actual killing took place three years after the original threat, the mental patient had in the interim openly harassed decedent and his family on several occasions and had repeated his threat to kill him, and where, though the ultimate attack did not occur on or near the employer's premises, the board's finding that the fatal assault had its genesis at the place of employment and was merely consummated later was supported by substantial evidence and not merely by conjecture. Masek v St. Vincent's

Medical Center, 97 A.D.2d 580, 467 N.Y.S.2d 925, 1983 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 20195 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1983).

Workers' Compensation Board properly determined that disabling wound sustained by claimant was intentionally inflicted by his wife, and arose from their purely personal differences without any nexus to his employment as police officer or performance of his job duties, even though claimant was on duty at time of incident, where claimant's wife shot him with his service revolver during domestic dispute that erupted during their lunch together. Robinson v Village of Catskill Police Dep't, 209 A.D.2d 748, 617 N.Y.S.2d 975, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10832 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1994), app. denied, 85 N.Y.2d 810, 628 N.Y.S.2d 53, 651 N.E.2d 921, 1995 N.Y. LEXIS 1460 (N.Y. 1995).

Medical secretary sustained compensable injury when stranger threw acid in her face as she was leaving her place of employment en route to parking garage in which she normally parked her car where her route was usual means of ingress and egress for employees, and employer failed to adduce adequate proof of personal motive for attack on secretary. Boston v Medical Servs. for Women, 215 A.D.2d 845, 626 N.Y.S.2d 320, 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4982 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), app. denied, 86 N.Y.2d 706, 632 N.Y.S.2d 499, 656 N.E.2d 598, 1995 N.Y. LEXIS 3457 (N.Y. 1995).

Workers' Compensation Board improperly ruled that claimant's injury arose out of and in course of her employment as podiatrist's assistant where undisputed evidence showed that claimant was on break at her place of employment when her sister entered room and repeatedly struck her with hammer, such assault stemmed from purely personal differences between claimant and her sister and was unrelated to claimant's work or performance of her job duties, and there were no previous violent incidents. McMillan v Dodsworth, 254 A.D.2d 619, 679 N.Y.S.2d 722, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11212 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1998).

Even if plaintiff were special employee of defendant, defendant was entitled to summary judgment dismissing complaint based on defendant's failure to protect plaintiff from assailant where plaintiff had received workers' compensation benefits for his injuries. Walls v Krasdale Foods, Inc., 266 A.D.2d 5, 697 N.Y.S.2d 612, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11154 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1999).

160. Employer liability for assaults and injuries inflicted by fellow employees

An award is justified where employee is injured unintentionally by a co-employee where the injury arose out of and in the course of his employment. In re Heitz, 218 N.Y. 148, 112 N.E. 750, 218 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 148, 1916 N.Y. LEXIS 1054 (N.Y.), reh'g denied, 218 N.Y. 702, 113 N.E. 1057, 218 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 702, 1916 N.Y. LEXIS 1211 (N.Y. 1916).

Workers' Compensation Board was within its fact-finding province to reject testimony of co-worker who attacked decedent as to his personal motive for homicide, and to conclude that police investigator's testimony that assault was motivated by robbery was insufficient to overcome statutory presumption that dispute was work-related (CLS Work Comp § 21), in light of record evidence that decedent and co-worker had no social ties outside of work, and may have been engaged in dispute over loan of money (which practice was condoned by their employer). Rosen v First Manhattan Bank, 84 N.Y.2d 856, 617 N.Y.S.2d 455, 641 N.E.2d 1073, 1994 N.Y. LEXIS 2774 (N.Y. 1994).

An employee who was, without provocation, assaulted while engaged in his regular work by a co-employee is injured in the course of his employment. Labozetta v Elite Laundry, Inc., 265 A.D. 900, 38 N.Y.S.2d 5, 1942 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6394 (N.Y. App. Div. 1942).; Meimroth v Elk Transp. Co., 263 A.D. 917, 32 N.Y.S.2d 168, 33 N.Y.S.2d 387, 1942 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7356 (N.Y. App. Div.), aff'd, 288 N.Y. 716, 43 N.E.2d 95, 288 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 716, 1942 N.Y. LEXIS 1551 (N.Y. 1942).; Levy v World-Telegram, 259 A.D. 943, 19 N.Y.S.2d 890, 1940 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7380 (N.Y. App. Div. 1940), aff'd, 285 N.Y. 533, 32 N.E.2d 827, 285 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 533, 1941 N.Y. LEXIS 1569 (N.Y. 1941).; Burke v Towner Bros., 203 A.D. 384, 196 N.Y.S. 783, 1922 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7205 (N.Y. App. Div. 1922).

Injuries sustained as a result of an unprovoked or an unjustifiable assault by a fellow worker are compensable where the assault stems from a quarrel relating to the employer's business; but where the altercation is an independent affair or a private dispute having no connection with the master's business, or if the injured employee is the aggressor and initiates the quarrel, his injuries are not compensable as an industrial accident. Mazarredo v Levine, 274 A.D. 122, 80 N.Y.S.2d 237, 1948 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3023 (N.Y. App. Div. 1948).

Substantial evidence supported Board's finding that decedent's death was incidental to his employment where the fatal assault upon decedent occurred while decedent was attempting to report to work, and where there was no evidence of any wilful intent on decedent's part. Isaacson v Samson Window Corp., 84 A.D.2d 643, 444 N.Y.S.2d 293, 1981 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 15766 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1981).

An employee may bring an action against the employer for personal injuries sustained as a result of a wilful assault committed by a fellow employee, such action not being barred by the Workman's Compensation Act, which covers accidental injury. Quinn v S. A. Healy Co., 140 N.Y.S.2d 925, 1955 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2458 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1955).

161. —Compensation to aggressors or instigators

Where the claimant, who remained at work for his employer while other employees were on strike, was assaulted and injured by striker while in the street on his way to work, he is not entitled to an award, since injury did not happen in course of his employment. Redner v H. C. Faber & Son Co., 223 N.Y. 379, 119 N.E. 842, 223 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 379, 1918 N.Y. LEXIS 1194 (N.Y. 1918).; Littler v George A. Fuller Co., 223 N.Y. 369, 119 N.E. 554, 223 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 369, 1918 N.Y. LEXIS 1192 (N.Y. 1918).; Lampert v Siemons, 235 N.Y. 311, 139 N.E. 278, 235 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 311, 1923 N.Y. LEXIS 1183 (N.Y. 1923).; See also Douglas v Kenn-Well Contracting Co., 249 N.Y. 609, 164 N.E. 603, 249 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 609, 1928 N.Y. LEXIS 968 (N.Y. 1928).

Where an employee in a lumber mill was accidentally struck by a rail which was being handled by a fellow servant which caused the claimant to become angry whereupon he kicked the co-employee who in turn retaliated, inflicting physical injuries upon the claimant, an award of compensation will be denied. Griffin v A. Roberson & Son, 176 A.D. 6, 162 N.Y.S. 313, 1916 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8975 (N.Y. App. Div. 1916).. See also Stein v Williams Printing Co., 195 A.D. 336, 186 N.Y.S. 705, 1921 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4743 (N.Y. App. Div. 1921).

Where death or injury is a by-product of associating men in close contacts, compensation awards are proper even to aggressors. Commissioner of Taxation & Finance v Bronx Hospital, 276 A.D. 708, 97 N.Y.S.2d 120, 1950 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4950 (N.Y. App. Div. 1950).

The workmen's compensation law contains no defense that an aggressor or participant is to be denied recovery in horse play cases or in those of malicious assaults; its insertion is purely judicial and sustained only by the court's conclusion that culpable persons should not benefit by their own wrong—the very defense that the compensation act rejects. Commissioner of Taxation & Finance v Bronx Hospital, 276 A.D. 708, 97 N.Y.S.2d 120, 1950 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4950 (N.Y. App. Div. 1950).

Decedent did not sustain an accident arising out of and in the course of his employment where he died as a result of a stab wound inflicted by a coworker on the employer's premises where proof showed that decedent had been drinking whiskey at the plant prior to the incident and thereafter began to abuse the assailant. Zimmerman v Comet Container Corp., 4 A.D.2d 724, 163 N.Y.S.2d 433, 1957 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5135 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1957).

162. —Injuries inflicted by striking or picketing employees

An injury by a striker or strike sympathizer to a strike breaker off of the employer's premises is compensable where the injured employee is subject to call at all hours. Crippen v Press Co., 254 N.Y. 535, 173 N.E. 854, 254 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 535, 1930 N.Y. LEXIS 1119 (N.Y. 1930).

An employee is injured in the regular course of his employment where, as he was about to enter a motor vehicle provided by his employer to transport him to work, he was assaulted by 4 strikers. Desmarais v M. F. C. Shoring & Foundation Co., 264 A.D. 964, 37 N.Y.S.2d 170, 1942 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5557 (N.Y. App. Div. 1942).

An employee who is assaulted by strikers is not entitled to compensation where it appears that the employee's status as an employee had been terminated when he left the employer's premises. Walsh v Russeks Fifth Ave., 266 A.D. 760, 41 N.Y.S.2d 145, 1943 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4297 (N.Y. App. Div. 1943).

Injuries received by an employee who, while leaving employer's building, was assaulted by other employees picketing the building, were compensable. Cutie v Doge Co., 1 A.D.2d 857, 148 N.Y.S.2d 735, 1956 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6294 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), app. denied, 1 N.Y.2d 642, 1956 N.Y. LEXIS 1368 (N.Y. 1956).

163. —Injuries inflicted by employees known to be disruptive; intoxicated or the like

An employee was shot by the fireman in charge of the employer's boiler room as the result of an altercation regarding the leaving of pop bottles in the boiler room where the employees customarily ate their lunch, suffers an injury arising out of and in the course of his employment, where the fireman had threatened to resign unless the superintendent discharged the claimant. Humphrey v Tietjen & Steffin Milk Co., 235 A.D. 470, 257 N.Y.S. 768, 1932 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7991 (N.Y. App. Div. 1932), aff'd, 261 N.Y. 549, 185 N.E. 733, 261 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 549, 1933 N.Y. LEXIS 1363 (N.Y. 1933).

An award of compensation is proper to the dependents of an employee who died as a result of an assault committed upon him by a co-employee who had been convicted of murder second degree, where the altercation arose out of and in the course of the employment and the co-employee was the aggressor. Fasulo v Denning's Point Brick Works, 262 A.D. 787, 27 N.Y.S.2d 347, 1941 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5852 (N.Y. App. Div. 1941).

Where the claimant was injured in a wash room on the employer's premises during a fight with a coemployee and the evidence showed that the claimant previously had trouble with other employees and threats were directed against him because of turning out more work than they did the evidence was held to sustain the board's finding that the acts of the claimant at the time of the fight were incident to and a risk of employment, and that his injuries arose out of and in the course of employment (he not having initiated or instituted the assault). Vesper v Colonial Radio Corp., 274 A.D. 859, 81 N.Y.S.2d 794, 1948 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3702 (N.Y. App. Div. 1948).

Employee suffered accident when he was assaulted by co-employee who hit him on head, knocked him down and kicked him in the head. Held: there was ample evidence to support finding of causal relation between accident and employee's mental illness. Chicklowski v Hotel Syracuse, Inc., 5 A.D.2d 704, 168 N.Y.S.2d 641, 1957 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3493 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1957).

Claimant, who had been hospitalized for mental illness on 3 occasions and who frequently annoyed fellow workers, used insulting language to fellow employees who thereupon assaulted claimant. Held: assault arose out of and in the course of employment. The employer had notice that mental peculiarity of claimant was having effect on employees and thus it became condition of employment. Bennett v Dreier Structural Steel Co., 8 A.D.2d 178, 186 N.Y.S.2d 776, 1959 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8209 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1959), aff'd, 9 N.Y.2d 668, 212 N.Y.S.2d 79, 173 N.E.2d 53, 1961 N.Y. LEXIS 1548 (N.Y. 1961).

164. —Off premises injuries as continuation of work related conflicts

Where the death of a superintendent occurs through the blow of a discharged employee as he left the building after the close of work, the injury arises out of and in the course of the employment where the quarrel outside the mill was merely a continuation of one begun within. Field v Charmette Knitted Fabric Co., 245 N.Y. 139, 156 N.E. 642, 245 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 139, 1927 N.Y. LEXIS 600 (N.Y. 1927).

In workers' compensation proceeding, evidence supported conclusion that assault occurred in course of decedent's employment, although his death actually occurred in 18th floor stairwell that was not technically part of employer's premises, where decedent was approached by his attacker (who was his co-worker) in lobby of building where employer's offices were located on arriving for his scheduled tour of duty, and decedent and co-worker rode together on elevator, which was customary route to employer's 17th floor offices. Rosen v First Manhattan Bank, 84 N.Y.2d 856, 617 N.Y.S.2d 455, 641 N.E.2d 1073, 1994 N.Y. LEXIS 2774 (N.Y. 1994).

An award for injuries resulting from an assault by a fellow employee is proper where the quarrel first began in the plant, and the assault outside was a continuance of the early difficulty. Collins v Arobol Mfg. Co., 269 A.D. 915, 57 N.Y.S.2d 504, 1945 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4451 (N.Y. App. Div. 1945).

An assault instigated by a discussion of union matters on the employer's premises during working hours where such matters had previously been discussed with the knowledge and acquiescence of the employer was not, as a matter of law, a purely personal attack and the Board could validly find the assault arose out of and during the course of employment. Williams v Leonard Electric Co., 27 A.D.2d 780, 277 N.Y.S.2d 228, 1967 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4858 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1967).

A claimant injured when a co-employee threw a chemical solution in his eyes after they had finished their day's work and had walked outside some 20 feet to the curb of the sidewalk was properly awarded compensation benefits for disability, upon evidence of a prior argument between the employees during working hours at which time the co-employee threatened claimant. The court held no reasonable opportunity had been offered for the assaulted man to separate himself from the job site with its animosities and dangers. De Boer v Looney, 60 Misc. 2d 673, 303 N.Y.S.2d 607, 1969 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1323 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1969), aff'd, 34 A.D.2d 674, 311 N.Y.S.2d 832, 1970 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5065 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1970).

165. —Injuries resulting from long-standing animosities

Decedent and another were officers of corporation organized by them. After some time, during which venture had great success, differences developed between them which culminated in killing of decedent by his fellow officer who thereafter killed himself. Board properly found that decedent's death was result of his employment, incident having happened on employer's premises between employees involving business relationship. Muscott v Janice Stores Corp., 6 A.D.2d 921, 175 N.Y.S.2d 746, 1958 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5233 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1958).

Where on the morning following an altercation between co-employees, claimant's decedent was shot by a fellow employee on his employer's premises, and evidence revealed there had been a continually increasing animosity between these co-workers for nearly two years, claimant widow was awarded death benefits upon a finding that the death was accidental and arose out of and in the course of employment, notwithstanding the employer's assertion that the award was not sustainable under the so-called "cooling off period" doctrine. Ward v Typhoon Air Conditioning Co., 27 A.D.2d 785, 277 N.Y.S.2d 315, 1967 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4835 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1967).

Issue of whether concert violinist's death "arose out of" her employment would be remitted to Workers' Compensation Board where (1) violinist was sexually assaulted and murdered during break in performance at concert hall by stagehand employed by hall, (2) board, having determined that assault occurred "in the course of" her employment, relied on presumption in favor of compensability as basis for its decision that violinist's death also "arose out of" her employment, and (3) circumstances of attempted rape and murder, as well as fact that violinist had never met stagehand, supported inference that motivation for attack was unrelated to either stagehand's or violinist's employment, and that stagehand chose his victim arbitrarily. Mintiks v Metropolitan Opera Asso., 153 A.D.2d 133, 550 N.Y.S.2d 143, 1990 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 51 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), app. dismissed, 75 N.Y.2d 1005, 557 N.Y.S.2d 311, 556 N.E.2d 1118, 1990 N.Y. LEXIS 1008 (N.Y. 1990).

166. —Injuries arising out of jealousy or social matters

Where a waitress employed by a lunch company was shot and killed by a negro employed by the same company because she refused invitations to go out with him, the murder, while it arose during the course of the employment does not arise out of it. Scholtzhauer v C. & L. Lunch Co., 233 N.Y. 12, 134 N.E. 701, 233 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 12, 1922 N.Y. LEXIS 832 (N.Y. 1922).. See also Schlener v American News Co., 240 N.Y. 622, 148 N.E. 732, 240 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 622, 1925 N.Y. LEXIS 850 (N.Y. 1925)., and Chaloux v Royal Knitting Co., 256 N.Y. 567, 177 N.E. 143, 256 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 567, 1931 N.Y. LEXIS 1147 (N.Y. 1931).

It cannot reasonably be said that an injury arose out of and in the course of employment where claimant, a waitress, was assaulted without cause or provocation by a former fellow employee who had been discharged for reasons not related to the improper advances he had made to claimant while at work, which she refused, threatening to report him to their employer, the assault occurring when he visited the place of employment after having returned earlier and threatened claimant if she told on him. Pryor v Presbyterian Home for Aged Women, 9 N.Y.2d 869, 216 N.Y.S.2d 691, 175 N.E.2d 823, 1961 N.Y. LEXIS 1291 (N.Y. 1961).

Injuries sustained by a female employee when attacked by a co-employee who apparently was jealous of attentions paid to the claimant by a third co-employee of the opposite sex, arise out of and in the course of the employment. Katz v Reissman Rothman Corp., 261 A.D. 862, 24 N.Y.S.2d 807, 1941 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7804 (N.Y. App. Div. 1941).

With respect to an assault and stabbing occurring at a Christmas party given by an employer for all his employees as a regular annual affair, there was held to be sufficient connection between the occurrence and the injuries sustained by claimant to sustain an award where it appeared that there was considerable drinking and dancing at the party by all employees and the stabbing took place because a fellow employee became jealous of claimant for dancing too much with one of the female employees. Torres v Triangle Handbag Mfg. Co., 13 A.D.2d 559, 211 N.Y.S.2d 992, 1961 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12181 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1961).

Evidence supported determination of Workers' Compensation Board that claimant's injury was not compensable where claimant testified that she fell and injured her knee when co-worker grabbed her by her collar during discussion of co-worker's daughter, and co-worker testified that injury occurred as result of discussion with claimant over co-worker's "personal business." Closson v Dutchess County Sheriff's Dep't, 179 A.D.2d 861, 577 N.Y.S.2d 976, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 71 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1992).

167. —Other injuries inflicted by co-workers in the course of employment

Where an oiler of machinery, when accused by his foreman of supplying too much oil to a machine, called the foreman a liar, whereupon the foreman struck him in the face, shattering his glasses and injuring his eye so that he lost the sight thereof, the injury is an accidental one arising out of and in the course of employment. Knocks v Metal Package Corp., 231 N.Y. 78, 131 N.E. 741, 231 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 78, 1921 N.Y. LEXIS 611 (N.Y. 1921).

A busboy was in the course of his employment when, after arguing with another busboy about working conditions, he told his superior he was quitting, removed apron and left the premises but came back, resumed argument and during ensuing fight, fell down a flight of stairs. Lee Loh Young v Famous Trading Corp., 307 N.Y. 901, 123 N.E.2d 254, 307 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 901, 1954 N.Y. LEXIS 1581 (N.Y. 1954).

Death of decedent arose out of the employment where he was shot by a co-employee with whom decedent had argued the day before the shooting relative to an argument the co-employee had had with female employees. Seymour v Rivera Appliances Corp., 28 N.Y.2d 406, 322 N.Y.S.2d 243, 271 N.E.2d 224, 1971 N.Y. LEXIS 1248 (N.Y. 1971).

A claimant was injured in the course of his employment where he was assaulted by a fellow-workman while preparing to begin work. Janschewsky v E. W. Bliss Co., 198 A.D. 8, 189 N.Y.S. 154, 1921 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8030 (N.Y. App. Div. 1921).

An employee, assigned to the projection booth in a theater with another to operate the projection machine, will be deemed to have been injured in the course of his employment, where apparently he was killed by the co-employee during the course of the performance, being found dead in the booth by a police officer who also found the co-worker operating the projection machine. Klein v Queens Theatre, 261 A.D. 1024, 25 N.Y.S.2d 826, 1941 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8588 (N.Y. App. Div. 1941).

An employee who, while engaged in his regular employment, is injured in a fight with a fellow employee arising over a dispute concerning the work, is entitled to compensation where there is evidence that the claimant was not the aggressor. Wilson v American Valve Co., 268 A.D. 841, 50 N.Y.S.2d 356, 1944 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3712 (N.Y. App. Div.), reh'g denied, 268 A.D. 935, 51 N.Y.S.2d 747, 1944 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4309 (N.Y. App. Div. 1944).

A Western Union messenger boy, newly hired as such, who is injured in a fight with another messenger boy suffers injuries arising out of and in the course of his employment where it appears that a difference in opinion of the boys as to their relative pugilistic ability, and the desire for dominance and respect within the ranks of their fellow employees apparently led to the contest rather than reasons personal to them. Chanin v Western Union Tel. Co., 271 A.D. 763, 64 N.Y.S.2d 670, 1946 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2896 (N.Y. App. Div. 1946).

Death benefits and funeral expenses were properly awarded where within a few seconds after a fist fight in an argument with a fellow employee, over the work of an assistant, the decedent collapsed and died of an emotional trauma of the heart. Commissioner of Taxation & Finance v Bronx Hospital, 276 A.D. 708, 97 N.Y.S.2d 120, 1950 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4950 (N.Y. App. Div. 1950).

An award of death benefits for a seventy year old hotel cook who died from a heart attack due to shock and emotional strain following an assault upon his assistant and himself by a co-worker whom they refused to provide with food after the supper hour, is proper even though the decedent had suffered a pre-existing heart condition. Krawczyk v Jefferson Hotel, 278 A.D. 731, 103 N.Y.S.2d 40, 1951 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4509 (N.Y. App. Div. 1951).

Award upheld under evidence that the incident arose out of conversation between workers during some idle moments near the end of the work day, a natural diversion for employees whose field assignments have been completed; and that the claimant was injured when a fellow-employee became irritated at a statement claimant had made and threw a pack of cards, striking claimant in the eye resulting in the injury. Greisman v New York State Department of Transp., 33 A.D.2d 1086, 307 N.Y.S.2d 733, 1970 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5479 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), app. denied, 26 N.Y.2d 612, 1970 N.Y. LEXIS 1791 (N.Y. 1970).

Court would affirm determination awarding claimant workers' compensation benefits as result of anxiety depression precipitated by co-worker's disparaging racial remarks and taunts concerning claimant's infertility; such remarks constituted more than usual irritations and differences to which all workers are occasionally subject, and fact that claimant was particularly sensitive about her infertility did not undermine award of benefits. Kaliski v Fairchild Republic Co., 151 A.D.2d 867, 542 N.Y.S.2d 841, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7513 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), app. dismissed, 75 N.Y.2d 765, 551 N.Y.S.2d 907, 551 N.E.2d 108, 1989 N.Y. LEXIS 4433 (N.Y. 1989), aff'd, 76 N.Y.2d 1002, 564 N.Y.S.2d 714, 565 N.E.2d 1265, 1990 N.Y. LEXIS 4507 (N.Y. 1990).

Evidence sustained determination of Workers' Compensation Board as to nexus and compensability of injury sustained by claimant in assault by co-employee, despite employer's contention that assault was motivated by long-standing animosity between claimant and co-employee arising outside scope of employment, where claimant was assaulted by co-employee because he supposedly spoke rudely to 2 friends of co-employee, who had approached claimant because of his office position and asked to speak to co-employee. Privatera v Yellow Cab Co., 158 A.D.2d 835, 551 N.Y.S.2d 419, 1990 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1824 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1990).

Employee's death occurred within course of his employment where (1) on arrival at office building at which he worked, employee was approached by coemployee, (2) instead of going to 17th floor, on which his office was located, employee and coemployee rode elevator to 18th floor and then went to stairwell, (3) coemployee asked employee for $200 loan, but employee refused, (4) coemployee became infuriated and murdered employee, and (5) there was no evidence of personal animosity. Rosen v First Manhattan Bank, 202 A.D.2d 864, 609 N.Y.S.2d 436, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2787 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), aff'd, 84 N.Y.2d 856, 617 N.Y.S.2d 455, 641 N.E.2d 1073, 1994 N.Y. LEXIS 2774 (N.Y. 1994).

168. —Other injuries

Where a person employed to drive a truck and to unload same made an attack upon another employee similarly engaged, owing to quarrel in respect to priority in unloading, and was killed as a result of a blow inflicted by his fellow employee, his death is not compensable. Stillwagon v Callan Bros., Inc., 183 A.D. 141, 170 N.Y.S. 677, 1918 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5086 (N.Y. App. Div.), aff'd, 224 N.Y. 714, 121 N.E. 893, 224 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 714, 1918 N.Y. LEXIS 1122 (N.Y. 1918).

Where death resulted from an assault by co-employees on decedent following an altercation between them concerning stakes held by decedent on a bet, it arose out of a personal matter and had no relationship to the employment. Pecoraro v Russell-Miller Milling Co., 9 A.D.2d 992, 194 N.Y.S.2d 594, 1959 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5312 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1959).

In personal injury action between park employees, defendant was not entitled to summary judgment, on ground that accident occurred within course of his employment and, thus, that workers' compensation was plaintiff's sole remedy, where defendant's vehicle struck plaintiff's bicycle just outside park entrance as plaintiff was leaving park for lunch-hour ride and defendant was turning into park on returning from lunch, park was open to the public, all park visitors used entrance road in same manner, and thus defendant failed to show that accident was causally related to special risk of employment not shared by the public. Geiss v Mitchell, 251 A.D.2d 1067, 674 N.Y.S.2d 220, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7169 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1998).

169. Injuries in the course of employment; abandonment of employment

Disregard for the precise terms of employment does not necessarily constitute abandonment thereof. Burns v Merritt Engineering Co., 302 N.Y. 131, 96 N.E.2d 739, 302 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 131, 1951 N.Y. LEXIS 758 (N.Y. 1951).. See also Martucci v Hills Bros. Co., 171 A.D. 370, 156 N.Y.S. 833, 1916 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9428 (N.Y. App. Div. 1916).

Where an employee when last seen prior to his death was in the course of his employment, the burden of showing a deviation from the employment is cast upon those who assert it. Tushinsky v National Broadcasting Co., 265 A.D. 301, 38 N.Y.S.2d 608, 1942 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5739 (N.Y. App. Div. 1942), reh'g denied, 266 A.D. 700, 41 N.Y.S.2d 222, 1943 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3939 (N.Y. App. Div. 1943), app. dismissed, 292 N.Y. 595, 55 N.E.2d 369, 292 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 595, 1944 N.Y. LEXIS 1754 (N.Y. 1944).

A slight and momentary deviation from claimant's work routine may be acceptable if for an accustomed and accepted purpose, but purely personal activity is not within the statute even though it incidentally benefits the employer. Hancock v Ingersoll-Rand Co., 21 A.D.2d 703, 249 N.Y.S.2d 243, 1964 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3864 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1964).

There was no deviation from employment where decedent, who conducted his work as an insurance agent both at his home and at his office, was killed in an automobile accident while on his way from his office to his home for the purpose of continuing work begun at his office. O'Brien v Metropolitan Life Ins. Co., 39 A.D.2d 990, 333 N.Y.S.2d 450, 1972 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4238 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1972).

Workers' Compensation Board properly determined that claimant employed as police station receptionist had not abandoned or deviated from her employment when, in response to sound of outside explosion, she went out to front stoop of station and was injured as result of smoke, fire, and vapor shooting out of manhole, where claimant stated that she "wanted to see what was happening" and "went to investigate," did not take her coat with her, and returned to her work station after standing on stoop for only one minute. Mendez v New York, 154 A.D.2d 814, 546 N.Y.S.2d 478, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12721 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1989).

170. —Deviation from route of employment travel for personal purposes

Departure from the course of an employment does not always depend entirely on whether an employee, in making a business trip, was on the route to or from the place where the business was to be transacted. It may also consist of a deviation from the procedure which would normally be followed in accomplishing the business errand, where the death or disability has been the consequence of the deviation. So, a workmen's compensation death claim was dismissed where a bookkeeper was sent out of town, finished his work, started back home, stopped at a relative's for dinner, went to a tavern, returned to the relative's for cards and then was killed at 5:30 A.M. driving home. Pasquel v Coverly, 4 N.Y.2d 28, 171 N.Y.S.2d 848, 148 N.E.2d 899, 1958 N.Y. LEXIS 1155 (N.Y. 1958).

A musician traveling on a good will tour is injured within the scope of his employment even though he may have been purchasing gifts for his personal use; such a slight deviation does not alter the general course of the journey. Tushinsky v National Broadcasting Co., 265 A.D. 301, 38 N.Y.S.2d 608, 1942 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5739 (N.Y. App. Div. 1942), reh'g denied, 266 A.D. 700, 41 N.Y.S.2d 222, 1943 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3939 (N.Y. App. Div. 1943), app. dismissed, 292 N.Y. 595, 55 N.E.2d 369, 292 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 595, 1944 N.Y. LEXIS 1754 (N.Y. 1944).

A state employee sustains injuries in the course of his employment where he was injured while returning to his home at Kirkwood, New York, in a car engaged by state authorities for the purpose of taking him from his home to Binghamton to sign the payroll and receive his wages, even though after receiving his wages, he engaged in personal matters for a period in excess of that for which the state paid. Callan v State Highway Dep't, 266 A.D. 927, 44 N.Y.S.2d 174, 1943 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5260 (N.Y. App. Div. 1943), aff'd, 293 N.Y. 743, 56 N.E.2d 742, 293 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 743, 1944 N.Y. LEXIS 2156 (N.Y. 1944).

An insurance adjuster who was injured at 3 a.m. while driving a company truck which he was permitted to use for his own private purposes after he had visited his niece after having made his last business call between 7 and 8 p.m. the preceding evening does not suffer injuries arising out of and in the course of his employment. Applegate v Accident & Casualty Ins. Co., 277 A.D. 1073, 100 N.Y.S.2d 636, 1950 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4523 (N.Y. App. Div. 1950).

The manager of a golf club was not in the course of his employment when he left the clubhouse in his own car, went to a bank, then visited his wife's parents, and injured his hand while changing a tire on his way home. Weaver v Knollwood Country Club, 283 A.D. 1124, 131 N.Y.S.2d 482, 1954 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6492 (N.Y. App. Div. 1954).

Where decedent, employed on a poultry farm for various duties, was killed one evening when the farm station wagon operated by him left the highway after he had delivered eggs to certain customers and was on a direct route back to the farm, his death was nonetheless in course of his employment even though at one stage he had deviated from the direct route to inquire about progress of repairs on his own automobile, which he sometimes likewise used in delivering eggs for the farm. Sullivan v L'Heureux, 18 A.D.2d 1116, 239 N.Y.S.2d 56, 1963 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4017 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), app. denied, 13 N.Y.2d 595, 1963 N.Y. LEXIS 1943 (N.Y. 1963).

Injury sustained by claimant, a maintenance man, in an automobile accident, could be found to have been sustained in course of his employment where he was using a company car to take mail from the plant to the post office some three miles away, had general permission to use the car for his private purposes when he saw fit, and the accident occurred while he was on his way to his home from the post office to deliver a loaf of bread, following which he returned to the plant. Murano v Chrysler Corp., 19 A.D.2d 942, 244 N.Y.S.2d 464, 1963 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2845 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1963).

Inside employee was not in scope of his employment where, on his way home from "special errand" for his employer, he deviated from his course to meet individual with whom he had sexual relations prior to being murdered by that individual. Oehley v Syracuse Boys Club, 151 A.D.2d 825, 542 N.Y.S.2d 799, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7534 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1989).

171. —Abandonment of site of employment

A special policeman employed to maintain order at a picnic grounds, including the arrest of disturbers of the peace, does not abandon or interrupt his employment by pursuing disorderly patrons who, after causing a disturbance on the grounds, left in an automobile. Where he was killed in attempting to halt the car, his death arose out of and in the course of his employment within the meaning of this chapter. Ruppert v Plattdeutsche Volksfest Verein, 263 N.Y. 338, 189 N.E. 240, 263 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 338, 1934 N.Y. LEXIS 1280 (N.Y. 1934).

A night watchman, employed to guard a dock which is being repaired, who leaves the dock to visit the owner of a boat fastened nearby, and, while attempting to return, is injured voluntarily abandons his employment and is not injured as a natural incident of his work. King v State Ins. Fund, 184 A.D. 453, 171 N.Y.S. 1032, 1918 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6134 (N.Y. App. Div. 1918).. See also Berg v Great Lakes Dredge & Dock Co., 173 A.D. 82, 158 N.Y.S. 718, 1916 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10382 (N.Y. App. Div. 1916).

Evidence supported determination that claimant's decedent had sustained accidental injury in course of employment where supervisor directed decedent to leave his place of employment with several co-workers to perform an activity for private benefit of supervisor, which was done with knowledge of employer, and he died as result of injury sustained while using employer's equipment. Davis v Alpha Apple, Inc., 184 A.D.2d 893, 585 N.Y.S.2d 550, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7964 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1992).

Claimant's actions did not constitute deviation from employment, and instead arose out of and in course of his employment for workers' compensation purposes, where he was employed as security guard, and he was injured when he slipped while moving his vehicle in parking lot of department store to which he had been assigned. Fullone v Borg-Warner Corp., 207 A.D.2d 931, 616 N.Y.S.2d 558, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8814 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1994).

172. —Abandonment of duties of employment

Where a bartender at a fraternal lodge of which he was also a member was injured while dancing with a woman guest, claimant stepped out of his employment and became a member of lodge when he started to dance and claim properly disallowed. Huhn v Freeport Lodge B. P. O. E., 266 A.D. 55, 41 N.Y.S.2d 231, 1943 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3490 (N.Y. App. Div. 1943).

An award for the death of a garage employee killed while driving a customer's car a mile away from the garage must be reversed where it appeared that the employer furnished no pick-up or delivery service and the employee's sole duties were to park and move automobiles inside the garage. Wydth v Shapiro, 277 A.D. 913, 98 N.Y.S.2d 543, 1950 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3828 (N.Y. App. Div. 1950).

There was sufficient evidence to sustain a board finding that a taxicab driver, who sustained injuries in course of a physical altercation with another cab driver, had abandoned his employment when he left his cab standing at the curb with a passenger in it and got out to pursue the argument with the other driver, warranting a denial of a compensation award. Adelstein v Bellride Transp. Corp., 15 A.D.2d 690, 223 N.Y.S.2d 554, 1962 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12004 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1962).

Substantial evidence supported the board's finding that a workman had left his employment without just cause where, due to illness of his wife, not proved by medical evidence, he failed to work one evening a week as required by his employer, and was thus discharged. Rosenberg v Levine, 39 A.D.2d 1004, 333 N.Y.S.2d 597, 1972 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4162 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1972).

Decedent had not deviated from employment at time of accident where decedent engaged in theft of copper downspout from building's exterior while waiting while necessary work material to arrive; board is accorded wide latitude in construing what constitutes reasonable activities of outside workers and, although conduct in removing copper downspout may be criminal, activity is reasonable where employer's foreman confirms that removal of items is common practice in industry and that employees were not fired for engaging in such activities. Richardson v Fiedler Roofing, Inc., 112 A.D.2d 551, 491 N.Y.S.2d 489, 1985 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 55909 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1985), aff'd, 67 N.Y.2d 246, 502 N.Y.S.2d 125, 493 N.E.2d 228, 1986 N.Y. LEXIS 18049 (N.Y. 1986).

Since a widow conceded that her husband was found dead in his vehicle after he left a meeting with a client to move the vehicle from a no-parking area, substantial evidence supported the workers' compensation board's decision that the husband was engaged in a personal activity when he died, thereby rebutting the N.Y. Workers' Comp. Law § 21(1) presumption that his death arose out of his employment, thereby defeating the causation required for an award of workers' compensation death benefits under N.Y. Workers' Comp. Law § 2(7). Even though the employer had appealed a workers' compensation law judge's decision to award benefits on the argument that it was improperly denied the opportunity to acquire the husband's medical records and to obtain a medical opinion as to the issue of causality, the board was not restricted to deciding only that evidentiary issue and it properly disallowed the claim on the basis of a lack of causality because the board had continuing jurisdiction under N.Y. Workers' Comp. Law § 123 from prior administrative appeals by the widow to challenge denials of her claim; that continuing jurisdiction allowed the board to disallow the widow's claim since the widow's prior appeals challenged the workers' compensation judge's decisions that causation was lacking. Matter of Nwoko v City of New York, 29 A.D.3d 1070, 814 N.Y.S.2d 386, 2006 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5889 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2006).

173. Employer liability for injury to employees rendering emergency aid

A death benefit award was sustained where decedent, suffering from a severely diseased heart, died while attempting to fix a faulty steampipe. Proof showed that death was caused by strain produced by the emergency. Sleator v National City Bank, 309 N.Y. 708, 128 N.E.2d 415, 309 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 708, 1955 N.Y. LEXIS 1443 (N.Y. 1955).

A taxi driver is injured in the course of his employment where he is injured attempting to stop a runaway horse, inasmuch as the runaway was a potential menace to the employer's property. Bernadine v National Transp. Co., 266 A.D. 927, 43 N.Y.S.2d 866, 1943 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5261 (N.Y. App. Div. 1943).

174. —Emergency involving co-worker

Where a construction employee went to the assistance of an endangered employee and was injured while attempting to release him, the accident arose out of and in the course of the employment. Waters v William J. Taylor Co., 218 N.Y. 248, 112 N.E. 727, 218 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 248, 1916 N.Y. LEXIS 1063 (N.Y. 1916).. See also Sassano v Paino, 226 N.Y. 699, 123 N.E. 888, 226 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 699, 1919 N.Y. LEXIS 1079 (N.Y. 1919).; Mariano v Krasnoger Bros., 228 N.Y. 609, 127 N.E. 916, 228 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 609, 1920 N.Y. LEXIS 1085 (N.Y. 1920).

Truckmen, employed by a dealer in gasoline and oil to transport these products to local retail stations, are killed in the course of their employment where one of the truckmen had gone to the top of a tank and fell into a manhole located on the tank top and the second truckman went to his assistance, both men being asphyxiated. Dunn v Hambleton Terminal Corp., 257 A.D. 1095, 14 N.Y.S.2d 671, 1939 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9228 (N.Y. App. Div. 1939).

An employee injured while crossing the highway is injured in the course of his employment as a truck driver, where on seeing another truck belonging to his employer parked at a filling station, he stopped on the opposite side of the highway, intending to inquire if the other driver needed assistance, but before crossing had learned there was no need for his aid, and then started to cross in response to an invitation from the other driver, to have a drink. Van Buren v M. Vener Trucking Corp., 258 A.D. 1016, 16 N.Y.S.2d 884, 1940 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8653 (N.Y. App. Div. 1940).

175. —Emergency involving others

Where a chauffeur was killed in a collision while chasing an escaping criminal by order of a policeman, the danger was incidental to the management of the car and the pursuit is a risk of the employment covered by the Workmen's Compensation Law. Babington v Yellow Taxi Corp., 250 N.Y. 14, 164 N.E. 726, 250 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 14, 1928 N.Y. LEXIS 983 (N.Y. 1928).. See also Heidemann v American Dist. Tel. Co., 230 N.Y. 305, 130 N.E. 302, 230 N.Y. An assistant mill foreman who died from overexertion while running from the plant to his home which he believed to be on fire suffered an accident arising out of and in the course of his employment, where the employer owned all the residences in the hamlet where the plant was located. Andrews v Emporium Forestry Co., 250 N.Y. 592, 166 N.E. 336, 250 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 592, 1929 N.Y. LEXIS 986 (N.Y. 1929).

Where a flagman at a place where a highway crossed his employer's railroad was killed on another railroad, which paralleled that of his employer, in an attempt to rescue children on said tracks of the latter railroad, the accident did not arise out of and in the course of his employment, where the tracks on which he was killed were protected by another flagman and gateman. Priglise v Fonda, J. & G. R. Co., 192 A.D. 776, 183 N.Y.S. 414, 1920 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7552 (N.Y. App. Div. 1920).

The manager of a restaurant sustained an accident arising out of and in the course of his employment, where in seeking to quell a disturbance he was instructed by a superior to seize a certain person and hold him for the police, and in attempting to do so chased the man out on the sidewalk and in an attempt to catch him climbed on top of a car parked near curb, jumped down, and was injured. Rasmusser v Diplomat Bar & Grill, Inc., 260 A.D. 965, 23 N.Y.S.2d 209, 1940 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5629 (N.Y. App. Div. 1940).

Claimant, a bakery sales manager, who, while returning in a bakery uniform from work in one city to his place of employment in another, was flagged down, stopped to help a motorist with a disabled car, was hit by another car while standing off the road near disabled car. Employer had stressed good public relations. Held: award affirmed. Morningstar v Corning Baking Co., 6 A.D.2d 128, 176 N.Y.S.2d 388, 1958 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5197 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), app. denied, 5 N.Y.2d 707, 1958 N.Y. LEXIS 1619 (N.Y. 1958).

176. —Fire fighting activities

A thirteen-year-old helper on a truck who was burned while attempting to extinguish a gutter fire which he thought was menacing his employer's truck is entitled to an award of compensation. Todzia v Marzocca, 272 A.D. 1089, 74 N.Y.S.2d 582, 1947 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5049 (N.Y. App. Div. 1947).

An award to a paper mill employee who, in addition to his regular duties, was chief of the fire brigade of the employer's plant, will be sustained, where the claimant was injured while fighting a fire at the plant even though he was a member of a municipal volunteer fire company and the employer claimed at the time of his injury he was acting in that capacity. Zgrodek v National Gypsum Co., 275 A.D. 1014, 91 N.Y.S.2d 676, 1949 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5491 (N.Y. App. Div. 1949).

A town which is neither a "fire town" nor a "fire district", both as defined by the Conservation Law, is responsible for workmen's compensation benefits payable for injuries occasioned to persons employed by the town supervisor to fight forest or muck fires. 1960 Ops St Compt File #437.

177. —Fire fighting activities; volunteer firemen

Death of a member of a local volunteer fire department killed in extinguishing fire on his employer's premises not during his regular working hours was not compensable. In re Cole, 189 A.D. 306, 178 N.Y.S. 451, 1919 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4651 (N.Y. App. Div. 1919).

All of the members of a volunteer fire department of a fire district are entitled to the same privileges regardless of whether they reside within or without the district, including protection under the provisions of § 205 of the General Municipal Law and the provisions of the Workmen's Compensation Law. 1952 Ops St Compt File #5803.

A village employee, injured in performance of his duty as a volunteer fireman, is not entitled to the excess benefits provided for volunteer firemen under this law when he is receiving full pay as a village employee by reason of sick leave. 1955 Ops St Compt File #7703.

178. Other particular injuries as incurred in course of employment

A resident employee of a boys' summer camp suffered a compensable injury when hurt in off-duty hours while using a recreational facility of an adjacent camp with the employer's knowledge and acquiescence, on grounds that the use of the facility on a regular basis by several boys' camp employees, including the claimant, carried the implied approval of the employer and was in fact an incidental adjunct to the employer's own facilities because of the habitual permitted use of the non-owned facility. Di Perri v Boys Brotherhood Republic, Inc., 31 N.Y.2d 215, 335 N.Y.S.2d 405, 286 N.E.2d 897, 1972 N.Y. LEXIS 1133 (N.Y. 1972).

One employed as a handy man, chauffeur and manager of the employer's apartment building is injured in the course of his employment where, while proceeding to his employer's home after performing duties at the apartment building and collecting rents, he fell on the stairs of a porch of the employer's private home. Lynch v Chilvers, 272 A.D. 1091, 74 N.Y.S.2d 540, 1947 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5060 (N.Y. App. Div. 1947).

Claimant sustained compensable injury within course of her employment when, during her vacation, she slipped and fell on stairs at employer's district office while she was picking up her paycheck since it was mandatory that employees, or authorized person, pick up their paychecks, even if employee was on vacation, and it was employer's policy that paychecks could not be mailed. Berry v New York City Bd. of Educ., 239 A.D.2d 637, 657 N.Y.S.2d 786, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4528 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1997).

Workers' Compensation Board properly ruled that claimant did not sustain causally related disability, despite his contention that he was injured as a result of fall at work, where he had requested reimbursement from Crime Victims Board for treatment of his injuries, his physician had noted in claimant's medical history that claimant had been injured when he was assaulted and "struck with a bat in the knee," and claimant did not mention his injuries to his employer or co-workers at time they were allegedly sustained and did not request his employer to prepare accident report. Hildenbrandt v Transportation Mfg. Co., 244 A.D.2d 658, 664 N.Y.S.2d 174, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11485 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1997).

Workers' Compensation Board properly ruled that death of claimant's decedent from overdose of narcotic drug did not arise out of and in course of his employment as medical resident in program for anesthesiology, even though decedent was referred to assessment program for treatment of suspected drug and alcohol abuse, where documentary evidence as to such treatment provided no detail regarding history or nature of decedent's alleged addiction, decedent and claimant both steadfastly denied that decedent had drug or alcohol problem, and there was no medical evidence or testimony by treating physician as to decedent's apparent illness. Gedon v University Med. Residents Servs. P.C., 252 A.D.2d 744, 677 N.Y.S.2d 397, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8309 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), app. denied, 92 N.Y.2d 817, 684 N.Y.S.2d 488, 707 N.E.2d 443, 1998 N.Y. LEXIS 4293 (N.Y. 1998).

Finding that the claimant in a workers' compensation action was permanently partially disabled was improper where he did not demonstrate that his lung condition was attributable to a distinctive feature of his job as a delivery truck driver; rather, his affliction appeared to have been a result of the specific environment in which he worked. Engler v UPS, 1 A.D.3d 854, 767 N.Y.S.2d 496, 2003 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12602 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2003).

Appeals court's prior decisions did not foreclose workers' compensation board from considering other compensable scenarios where compelling factual circumstances warranted. Palmer v

N.Y. State Div. for Youth, 2 A.D.3d 1123, 768 N.Y.S.2d 694, 2003 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13524 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2003), app. denied, 2 N.Y.3d 705, 780 N.Y.S.2d 310, 812 N.E.2d 1260, 2004 N.Y. LEXIS 932 (N.Y. 2004).

Workers' compensation board's decision to award benefits for an injury an employee suffered going to an insurer's routine review (that was not for medical treatment) of a prior workers' compensation claim was proper; the appeals court agreed that the injury was a work-related consequential injury even though the injury did not occur while en route to obtaining causally related medical treatment because (1) the employee's purpose for traveling to the meeting was wholly related to the employee's prior claim, (2) the meeting was scheduled at the insurer's request and for the insurer's sole benefit, and (3) the employee would not have incurred the injuries had the insurer not requested the meeting. Palmer v N.Y. State Div. for Youth, 2 A.D.3d 1123, 768 N.Y.S.2d 694, 2003 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13524 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2003), app. denied, 2 N.Y.3d 705, 780 N.Y.S.2d 310, 812 N.E.2d 1260, 2004 N.Y. LEXIS 932 (N.Y. 2004).

179. —Injuries caused by fires, stoves and other heating or cooking apparatus

An award does not lie where a night watchman was found dead on the premises in a bed furnished for his use by the employer and death was caused by gas escaping from a stove used by him in preparing his food. Commissioner of Taxation & Finance v Fure, 264 N.Y. 678, 191 N.E. 623, 264 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 678, 1934 N.Y. LEXIS 1720 (N.Y. 1934).

Loss of an eye through a spark from a fire which the employee had kindled to warm himself and his fellow-workers on a cold day, is from an injury arising out of and in the course of employment. Malandrino v Southern N. Y. P. & R. Corp., 190 A.D. 780, 180 N.Y.S. 735, 1920 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4248 (N.Y. App. Div. 1920).

It cannot be said as a matter of law that injuries caused as the result of a fire which the employee built in a mortar tub to warm himself while working upon a scaffold did not arise from the employee's employment. Strand v Harris Structural Steel Co., 260 A.D. 516, 23 N.Y.S.2d 630, 1940 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4643 (N.Y. App. Div. 1940), amended, 261 A.D. 847, 25 N.Y.S.2d 1009, 1941 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7749 (N.Y. App. Div. 1941).

180. —Injuries caused by falling objects

A workman, engaged in excavating beside a building and injured by a falling piece of cornice therefrom, is entitled to compensation. Filitti v Lerode Homes Corp., 244 N.Y. 291, 155 N.E. 579, 244 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 291, 1927 N.Y. LEXIS 1056 (N.Y. 1927).. See also McCarter v La Rock, 240 N.Y. 282, 148 N.E. 523, 240 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 282, 1925 N.Y. LEXIS 730 (N.Y. 1925), limited, De Angelis v Garfinkel Painting Co., 20 A.D.2d 162, 245 N.Y.S.2d 485, 1963 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2576 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1963).

A death benefit award was sustained where pipefitter sustained an accident in 1950 when a plank from an overhead beam fell on his head and a month later, due to the nature of heavy and awkward work he performed on that day, died from a rupture of the aneurysm of the middle cerebral artery. Edwards v Carborundum Co., 284 A.D. 1076, 136 N.Y.S.2d 19, 1954 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4608 (N.Y. App. Div. 1954), reh'g denied, 285 A.D. 987, 139 N.Y.S.2d 285, 1955 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6384 (N.Y. App. Div. 1955).

It was proper to rule that claimant did not sustain accident arising out of and in course of employment where he conceded that when incident occurred, he did not complain of any injury to his supervisor, who was nearby, claimant continued to work until he was laid off and did not seek medical treatment or report injury to employer until several weeks later, and employer's project superintendent, who conducted investigation after claimant reported injury, found no one present at time of incident who could substantiate claimant's claim that shower stall he was carrying fell on his leg and injured his knee. Marshall v Murnane Assocs., 267 A.D.2d 639, 699 N.Y.S.2d 585, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12761 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1999), app. denied, 94 N.Y.2d 762, 707 N.Y.S.2d 622, 729 N.E.2d 341, 2000 N.Y. LEXIS 825 (N.Y. 2000).

181. —Injuries caused by falling objects; objects from premises outside employer's control

An injury to a workman, while at work on a building being erected by his employer, from flying fragments of a shell which had been preserved on adjoining premises as a war souvenir, and exploded, is not an accidental injury "arising out of . . . employment" within the meaning of this section. Statute requires that there shall be some causal connection between employment and accident causing injuries. McCarter v La Rock, 240 N.Y. 282, 148 N.E. 523, 240 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 282, 1925 N.Y. LEXIS 730 (N.Y. 1925), limited, De Angelis v Garfinkel Painting Co., 20 A.D.2d 162, 245 N.Y.S.2d 485, 1963 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2576 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1963).

Where an object falls from adjoining premises and injury results, the injury arises "out of and in the course of the employment." Filitti v Lerode Homes Corp., 244 N.Y. 291, 155 N.E. 579, 244 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 291, 1927 N.Y. LEXIS 1056 (N.Y. 1927).. See also State Industrial Comm'r v Leff, 265 N.Y. 533, 193 N.E. 307, 265 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 533, 1934 N.Y. LEXIS 1147 (N.Y. 1934).

An injury arises out of and in the course of employment where an iron pipe full of hot emery dropped from the eighth floor of the building in which the employer occupied a lower floor, and set fire to the employee's clothing even though the pipe fell from the place of business of a third person which had no connection with or relation to the employer's business. Bandassi v Molla, 200 A.D. 266, 192 N.Y.S. 776, 1922 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8166 (N.Y. App. Div.), aff'd, 234 N.Y. 554, 138 N.E. 444, 234 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 554, 1922 N.Y. LEXIS 735 (N.Y. 1922).

182. —Injuries sustained during cleaning up activities

A carpenter who had been handling chalk in the course of his employment and who went to the washroom before the closing of the days work to wash his hands, was at that time in the discharge of his duties and in the course of his employment. Mariano v Krasnoger Bros. (1919) 190 App Div 65, 179 NYS 314, mod (1920) 228 NY 609, 127 NE 916.. See also Sexton v Public Service Com., 180 A.D. 111, 167 N.Y.S. 493, 1917 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8109 (N.Y. App. Div. 1917).

Where member of Workmen's Compensation Board fell in bathtub after day's session was ended, disability occurred as a result of a personal act and was noncompensable. Paduano v New York State Workmen's Compensation Bd., 30 A.D.2d 1009, 294 N.Y.S.2d 318, 1968 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3124 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1968), aff'd, 25 N.Y.2d 669, 306 N.Y.S.2d 476, 254 N.E.2d 776, 1969 N.Y. LEXIS 976 (N.Y. 1969).

183. —Injuries sustained during waiting periods

Claimant was in the course of his employment where, after reporting to work, he was told to wait until another operation had been completed, and while waiting was injured when he attempted to repair the car of a fellow employee. Ingraham v Lane Constr. Corp., 309 N.Y. 899, 131 N.E.2d 577, 309 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 899, 1955 N.Y. LEXIS 1638 (N.Y. 1955).

Where a livery stable employee who was thrown from his vehicle as he returned from a trip wrapped a robe about himself, sat down to await a passing conveyance and fell asleep suffering as a result of the exposure incident thereto a frozen foot, the injury arose out of and in the course of the employment. Cleveland v Rice, 209 A.D. 257, 204 N.Y.S. 423, 1924 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8602 (N.Y. App. Div.), aff'd, 239 N.Y. 530, 147 N.E. 182, 239 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 530, 1924 N.Y. LEXIS 540 (N.Y. 1924).. Decedent, driver of tractor-trailers, died of carbon monoxide poisoning while sleeping in his own car on employer's lot waiting for opportunity and proper seniority to get assignment of work. He had traveled from home in New Jersey to Detroit and then to Buffalo at direction of employer. Death arose out of and in the course of employment. Alwine v Haines Car-Riers, Inc., 5 A.D.2d 892, 171 N.Y.S.2d 124, 1958 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6700 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), app. denied, 4 N.Y.2d 676, 174 N.Y.S.2d 1025, 1958 N.Y. LEXIS 1427 (N.Y. 1958).

Where an employee, as part of his duties, is directed to remain in a particular place or locality until directed otherwise or for a specified length of time, the rule applied is simply that the employee is not expected to wait immobile, but may indulge in any reasonable activity at that place, and if he does so the risk inherent in such activity is an incident of his employment. Robards v New York Div. Electric Products, Inc., 33 A.D.2d 1067, 307 N.Y.S.2d 599, 1970 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5523 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1970).

Workers' Compensation Board properly determined that concert violinist's death occurred "in course of" her employment where she was sexually assaulted and murdered during break in performance of ballet in which she was member of orchestra; violinist's activity in leaving orchestra pit to locate dancer-choreographer during break between performances was reasonable and did not constitute deviation from her employment. Mintiks v Metropolitan Opera Asso., 153 A.D.2d 133, 550 N.Y.S.2d 143, 1990 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 51 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), app. dismissed, 75 N.Y.2d 1005, 557 N.Y.S.2d 311, 556 N.E.2d 1118, 1990 N.Y. LEXIS 1008 (N.Y. 1990).

184. —Injuries sustained during return to workplace outside regular duty hours

Death of a taxicab driver killed on the way back to his cab after having gone to the garage to collect his pay check after taking his cab from the garage and parking it, occurs in the course of and out of his employment. Younger v Motor Cab Transp. Co., 260 N.Y. 396, 183 N.E. 863, 260 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 396, 1933 N.Y. LEXIS 768 (N.Y. 1933).. See also Cunningham v Hunterspoint Lumber & Supply Co., 256 N.Y. 574, 177 N.E. 146, 256 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 574, 1931 N.Y. LEXIS 1154 (N.Y. 1931).; Commissioner of Taxation & Finance v Bergin, 262 N.Y. 673, 188 N.E. 115, 262 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 673, 1933 N.Y. LEXIS 1204 (N.Y. 1933).

Injuries sustained by one who had worked for his employer for several years but who was laid off when work was slack, his tools, however, remaining at the place of work during the period of his layoff, and who while going to the place of work following instructions by the foreman to return for work in a few days was drowned as the result of an explosion on the steamboat on which he was traveling, were accidental injuries arising out of and in the course of his employment. Buchignani v Ronald Taylor Co., 281 N.Y. 707, 23 N.E.2d 540, 281 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 707, 1939 N.Y. LEXIS 1155 (N.Y. 1939).

Where a yard engineman after turning in his engine and his slip showing that his run had been completed walks along the tracks for a distance and enters on a right of way of an elevated railroad conducted by his employer, for the purpose of catching a passing freight train in order to arrive at a certain place to collect his pay, and is struck and killed by such train, his injuries do not arise out of and in the course of his employment since he was not employed on the line where the accident happened. Ames v New York C. R. Co., 178 A.D. 324, 165 N.Y.S. 84, 1917 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6448 (N.Y. App. Div. 1917).

Where a clerk in a wholesale hardware establishment had departed at five thirty-five, his quitting time being five-thirty, but, remembering that companions with whom he usually went home were still in the building, returned, and while in search of them was killed the accident did not arise out of his employment, as his act of returning and other acts thereafter were voluntary, and therefore not compensable. Urban v Topping Bros., 184 A.D. 633, 172 N.Y.S. 432, 1918 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6618 (N.Y. App. Div. 1918).

A chamber maid who several days after quitting work returned to the defendant's hotel to collect wages due was not an employee at that time and an injury then suffered when she fell down stairs does not arise in the course of her employment. Olson v Hulbert-Sherman Hotel Co., 210 A.D. 537, 206 N.Y.S. 427, 1924 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6785 (N.Y. App. Div. 1924).

Injuries received after working hours while the employee was en route from the office of the employer, located about three blocks from the place of employment, where he had gone to obtain his pay check are not compensable. Fisher v Burns Bros. Coal Co., 264 A.D. 964, 37 N.Y.S.2d 168, 1942 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5559 (N.Y. App. Div. 1942).

An employee having no duties requiring presence on the public streets, who after leaving the employer's plant for home decided to return to determine whether the public address system which she was supposed to look after had been turned off was held as a matter of law not entitled to compensation for injuries sustained in falling as she turned around. Milberg v Behr-Manning Corp., 274 A.D. 862, 82 N.Y.S.2d 16, 1948 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3714 (N.Y. App. Div. 1948).

A butcher who went to his employer's plant, which was closed because of the meat shortage to obtain his previous week's pay and then waited an hour to see his employer about returning to work the next week, does not suffer injuries arising in the course of and out of his employment where he fell after having talked to his employer and having gone to the men's room. Piekut v Philip Fleischer, Inc., 276 A.D. 702, 97 N.Y.S.2d 767, 1950 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4949 (N.Y. App. Div. 1950).

The evidence was sufficient to sustain a finding that claimant's accident arose out of and in course of his employment, although he had not worked for his employer for two and one-half working days prior to its occurrence, because of illness, where the accident occurred while he was looking around the premises on which he had been employed in order to advise the foreman that he would need a few weeks of rest before returning to work, having previously been advised by his employer to return to work as soon as he was able, and the accident consisted of falling over a ladder in the boiler room area of the premises while still looking for the foreman to explain his inability to return to work earlier. Bardes v East River Housing Corp., 14 A.D.2d 939, 221 N.Y.S.2d 51, 1961 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7874 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1961).

Where a claimant, seeking compensation for injuries sustained when struck by an automobile on a public street on his way home from his place of employment, contends that he was going home to get keys with which to return to the employer's premises and lock up certain valuables, he has the burden of proving that such was the reason for the trip, and whether it was rests within the fact-finding power of the Board, whose disbelief in his contention in the absence of supporting evidence would not be overturned. Rothschild v Flatbush Jewish Center, 18 A.D.2d 1045, 238 N.Y.S.2d 581, 1963 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4189 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1963).

Workers' Compensation Board properly ruled that claimant, correction officer, sustained causally related injury when he slipped and fell on curb in front of main entrance to facility while en route to pickup is paycheck on his day off, especially since employer's document entitled "Paycheck Distribution Procedures" indicated that while arrangements could be made for employer to mail paychecks to employee's residence, expected procedure was for employees to pickup their paychecks in person. Dandola v New York City Dep't of Correction, 244 A.D.2d 729, 664 N.Y.S.2d 392, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11762 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1997).

A waitress who after changing to street clothes was on her way out at the end of her working day was injured upon returning to the dressing room for the purpose of borrowing money from a fellow employee is not injured within the course of her employment, so as to prevent her from maintaining a negligence action against the employer. Jones v Herbert Equities, Inc., 60 N.Y.S.2d 88, 186 Misc. 163, 1946 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1826 (N.Y. App. Term), aff'd, 270 A.D. 922, 62 N.Y.S.2d 612, 1946 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4653 (N.Y. App. Div. 1946).

185. —Injuries sustained in the course of activities performed outside usual working hours

Where an employee, at the request of his employer and after his regular working hours, renders service which, if it had been performed during working hours, would have been incidental to his employment, such service is part of his employment within the meaning of the Work. Comp. Law. Grieb v Hammerle, 222 N.Y. 382, 118 N.E. 805, 222 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 382, 1918 N.Y. LEXIS 1468 (N.Y. 1918).. See also Jessup v Wrigley, 250 N.Y. 563, 166 N.E. 325, 250 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 563, 1929 N.Y. LEXIS 951 (N.Y. 1929).; Clow v B. F. Keith's Fordham Theater, 247 N.Y. 583, 161 N.E. 191, 247 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 583, 1928 N.Y. LEXIS 1184 (N.Y. 1928).

The claimant was not injured in the course of her employment where, employed as a laundress, she was given privilege, as part compensation for her work, of using plant of employer after hours to do her own laundry, and while so engaged she injured her wrist. Daly v Bates & Roberts, 224 N.Y. 126, 120 N.E. 118, 224 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 126, 1918 N.Y. LEXIS 864 (N.Y. 1918).

A watchman at a canal terminal is injured in the course of his employment where a taxicab in which he was riding on his way home was accidentally driven into the canal before leaving the premises of the terminal resulting in the death of the watchman, even though after finishing his work before calling the cab, the employee changed his clothes, washed up and sat down for awhile. Schwartz v State, 251 A.D. 634, 297 N.Y.S. 815, 1937 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7013 (N.Y. App. Div. 1937), aff'd, 277 N.Y. 567, 13 N.E.2d 476, 277 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 567, 1938 N.Y. LEXIS 1051 (N.Y. 1938).

A brewery worker employed as an all around man is entitled to compensation where, while engaged in his regular occupation within the premises of the employer he tripped and fell on stairs leading to the washroom, even though he ordinarily would have finished his work before the accident happened. O'Grady v Fidelio Brewery, Inc., 257 A.D. 880, 11 N.Y.S.2d 996, 1939 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8258 (N.Y. App. Div. 1939).

A truck driver is injured in the course of his employment where his injury occurred on the route from his employer's premises where he had unloaded to the garage where the truck was kept at the end of the day, even though the accident occurred sometime later than the period required to return to the garage and an examination after the truck driver's death revealed alcohol in his brain, a witness having testified that the truck was being driven in a proper manner just before the accident. Grabusch v Western Beer Corp., 263 A.D. 1027, 33 N.Y.S.2d 463, 1942 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7946 (N.Y. App. Div. 1942).

One employed by a hospital as a seamstress who, along with other employees, was permitted to use the laundry facilities of the hospital during lunch hour, is not injured in the course of her employment when, while using such facilities, she burns her right arm, even though there was evidence that the article the claimant was ironing at the time of her injury was not her personal laundry. Mermelstein v Beth Israel Hospital, 270 A.D. 968, 62 N.Y.S.2d 53, 1946 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4887 (N.Y. App. Div. 1946).

An award of compensation for death of a carpenter who worked regularly on the day shift and died from burns suffered in a fire at the plant at 3:30 a.m., where in addition to decedent's hearsay statements that he was returning to work, there was proof that he received a telephone call before his statement to a member of his family that he had to go to work, that he was seen in the plant with his lunch and in his work clothes, that he had worked some hours on the day before the accident in the department in which he said he was going to work, and on at least one previous occasion he had checked in for work at 5:42 a.m. Jones v Acme Steel Corp., 278 A.D. 595, 101 N.Y.S.2d 785, 1951 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4060 (N.Y. App. Div. 1951).. See also Van Riper v Newman, 250 A.D. 801, 294 N.Y.S. 130, 1937 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9054 (N.Y. App. Div. 1937).

Decedent, porter in employer's bar and restaurant, fell down stairs and died. Decedent's ordinary work was finished at time of fall but there was testimony by employer that decedent frequently stayed around and made himself useful. Testimony was sufficient to sustain finding that decedent's activity at time of death was reasonably incidental to employment. Kier v Baugh, 5 A.D.2d 1023, 173 N.Y.S.2d 325, 1958 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6177 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), reh'g denied, 6 A.D.2d 947, 176 N.Y.S.2d 250, 1958 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5273 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1958), app. denied, 5 N.Y.2d 707, 1958 N.Y. LEXIS 1614 (N.Y. 1958).

A cab driver who, after checking in his cab at the employer's garage, found that he had forgotten his photograph, and, being told that the cab was in the alley, slipped and fell on the driveway crossing, which was part of the garage facilities, sustaining injuries, in attempting to locate the cab and get his photograph, was injured in course of employment. Moskowitz v Granata, 9 A.D.2d 310, 193 N.Y.S.2d 744, 1959 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5597 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1959), reh'g denied, 10 A.D.2d 776, 200 N.Y.S.2d 366, 1960 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11016 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1960), app. denied, 8 N.Y.2d 705, 1960 N.Y. LEXIS 1759 (N.Y. 1960).

Where an employer authorizes an employee to do certain repair work for the benefit of a fellow employee, it may be implied that the authorization extends to doing the work properly, even though this requires work beyond the usual working hours, so that injuries sustained in course of continuing the particular work after hours may be considered within the scope of employment. Lippman v Biennier Transp. Co., 12 A.D.2d 681, 207 N.Y.S.2d 867, 1960 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6755 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1960), aff'd, 10 N.Y.2d 757, 219 N.Y.S.2d 608, 177 N.E.2d 50, 1961 N.Y. LEXIS 1113 (N.Y. 1961).

Where claimant was employed on a day-to-day basis, and on the day in question, was told that there was no work and, as he was leaving his ordinary place of employment he saw another employee working and volunteered to assist him at which time the injury was sustained, an award was upheld as the board could reasonably find that the injury was sustained in the course of employment. Laird v Springer, 31 A.D.2d 682, 295 N.Y.S.2d 872, 1968 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2609 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1968).

In a workers' compensation case involving an employee who was injured at a picnic organized by several coemployees, the board properly found that the injuries arose out of and in the course of employment where arrangements for the picnic were initiated by the employer's manager in order to boost morale, where the employer contributed toward the picnic, and where announcements of the picnic were made over the employer's public address system. Lingyak v J. C. Penney Co., 89 A.D.2d 655, 453 N.Y.S.2d 264, 1982 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 17772 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1982).

While employer may have indirectly benefited from accountant's voluntary membership on weekly bowling team sponsored by one of his clients, Workers' Compensation Board correctly concluded that his fatal heart attack resulted from voluntary participation in off-duty athletic activity. Dorosz v Green & Seifter, 250 A.D.2d 931, 672 N.Y.S.2d 948, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5681 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1998), aff'd, 92 N.Y.2d 672, 685 N.Y.S.2d 406, 708 N.E.2d 162, 1999 N.Y. LEXIS 35 (N.Y. 1999).

Claimant's knee injury while playing basketball with co-workers at gym on his employer's premises after his shift had ended was properly found to have arisen out of and in course of his employment where employer provided all equipment and employed coordinator who managed gym and employer's programs, employer offered incentives for using gym whereby employees could earn points toward gift certificates, movie tickets, and other benefits, employer also distributed flyers promoting use of gym, and claimant testified that one of those flyers referred to basketball. Baker v Sentry Group, 269 A.D.2d 668, 703 N.Y.S.2d 299, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1278 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2000).

186. —Injuries sustained in the course of activities performed outside usual working hours; off-duty law enforcement personnel

A city policeman who checked in and out of the station house at start and end of the day and who was responsible for keeping order even when off duty was not entitled to compensation when he broke his leg after tripping on a curb in getting out of the car of a friend who had driven him home after he checked out. Blackley v Niagara Falls, 284 A.D. 51, 130 N.Y.S.2d 77, 1954 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3337 (N.Y. App. Div. 1954).

Road laborer who was injured while attempting to wash himself in stream while waiting for truck to pick up road crew at end of day was injured in manner reasonably incidental to his employment. Putnam v New York State Dep't of Public Works, 24 A.D.2d 801, 263 N.Y.S.2d 796, 1965 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3239 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1965).

Injury was compensable under evidence that an off-duty patrolman, employed by a housing authority, saw two men stealing tires from a parked automobile and was injured while attempting to apprehend them. Washington v New York City Hous. Auth., 31 A.D.2d 700, 295 N.Y.S.2d 845, 1968 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2574 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1968), aff'd, 24 N.Y.2d 912, 301 N.Y.S.2d 642, 249 N.E.2d 481, 1969 N.Y. LEXIS 1335 (N.Y. 1969).

Where city correction officer was injured while off duty in attempting to pursue thieves he observed robbing a cash register, such injuries were compensable. Quinlan v New York, 33 A.D.2d 714, 305 N.Y.S.2d 4, 1969 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2871 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1969).

Whether or not off-duty police officer, who, upon hearing noise at his front door while resting at home, ran out of house and, upon discovering that his door had been vandalized, chased two boys standing outside and fell and injured himself, had "probable cause" to arrest boys would go only to legality of arrest and would not be conclusive as to whether or not policeman was in course of his employment when he acted, for purposes of recovering workmen's compensation. Kelly v County of Nassau, 58 A.D.2d 681, 395 N.Y.S.2d 733, 1977 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12783 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1977).

Workmen's Compensation Board's decision that claimant, who was not on active duty at time, was nonetheless acting as policeman at time he sustained injuries in fall while chasing boys standing outside his house after front door to house was vandalized was supported by substantial evidence. Kelly v County of Nassau, 58 A.D.2d 681, 395 N.Y.S.2d 733, 1977 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12783 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1977).

Issue of whether workmen's compensation claimant, a police officer, was involved in personal activity at time of accident, which occurred when he, upon hearing noise at his front door while resting at home while off active duty, ran out of house and, upon discovering that his door had been vandalized, chased two boys standing outside and fell and injured himself, was factual and Workmen's Compensation Board's decision that claimant was acting as policeman at time was conclusive. Kelly v County of Nassau, 58 A.D.2d 681, 395 N.Y.S.2d 733, 1977 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12783 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1977).

187. —Injuries sustained in connection with seeking or receiving first aid or medical treatment

Where an employee had a dispute with her boss with regard to her work and as a result fainted, she is not entitled to compensation for injuries when ammonia was thrown in her face by a co-employee to revive her, since although the injuries arose in the course of her employment, they did not rise out of such employment. Saenger v Locke, 220 N.Y. 556, 116 N.E. 367, 220 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 556, 1917 N.Y. LEXIS 1003 (N.Y. 1917).. See also Culhane v Economical Garage, Inc., 195 A.D. 108, 186 N.Y.S. 454, 1921 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4705 (N.Y. App. Div. 1921).

Where a nurse employed in a hospital operated by New York city at a fixed salary "with board and maintenance and proper medical and surgical attention," became ill and entered the nurses' infirmary where she was given injections of a morphine solution which had been pronounced by a supervisor to be unfit for use, and through an infection resulting from the injections of the impure solution practically lost the use of an arm, the risk of such an injury was not incidental to a nurses' employment, and consequently, the injury did not arise out of and in the course of her employment. Volk v New York, 284 N.Y. 279, 30 N.E.2d 596, 284 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 279, 1940 N.Y. LEXIS 835 (N.Y. 1940), limited, Garcia v Iserson, 42 A.D.2d 776, 346 N.Y.S.2d 572, 1973 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3696 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1973), overruled, Garcia v Iserson, 33 N.Y.2d 421, 353 N.Y.S.2d 955, 309 N.E.2d 420, 1974 N.Y. LEXIS 1700 (N.Y. 1974).

The death of an employee caused by his mistakenly swallowing a poison tablet instead of one containing a mild sedative prescribed by his physician after an operation, made necessary by an injury received in the course of and growing out of his employment, cannot be held to be one of the risks connected with the employment, flowing therefrom as a natural consequence and directly connected with the work, in the absence of evidence that the accident which befell the decedent and the amputation which followed were sufficient to derange his mind or to affect his eyesight. Brown v New York State Training School for Girls, 285 N.Y. 37, 32 N.E.2d 783, 285 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 37, 1941 N.Y. LEXIS 1526 (N.Y. 1941).

A reaction to an injection of antitoxin made by the employer's physician on the employer's premises and suffered by the claimant under the employer's direction is an injury arising out of and in the course of the employment. Sanders v Children's Aid Soc., 238 A.D. 746, 265 N.Y.S. 698, 1933 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9609 (N.Y. App. Div.), aff'd, 262 N.Y. 655, 188 N.E. 107, 262 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 655, 1933 N.Y. LEXIS 1184 (N.Y. 1933).

Where the decedent, while returning to his home from the office of the company doctor, where he was receiving medical treatment for injuries sustained in the course of his employment, sustained accidental injuries in an automobile accident which resulted in his death, the board properly found that the death of the decedent was in consequence of his accident in the course of his employment. John v Fairmont Creamery Co., 268 A.D. 840, 50 N.Y.S.2d 253, 1944 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3711 (N.Y. App. Div. 1944).

The death of a worker as a result of injection with "improper flu ingredients" during a swine flu program at the employer's plant did not arise out of and in the course of her employment, since the program was voluntary and had been made available to the public at no charge. Stabel v Westinghouse Electric Corp., 79 A.D.2d 842, 435 N.Y.S.2d 549, 1980 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 14241 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1980).

Although both physician and patient were employed by same company, neither was acting within scope of his employment at time of treatment for purpose of determining whether exclusive remedy provision of Workers' Compensation Law barred medical malpractice action where (1) treatment occurred in hospital emergency room serving general public, (2) physician was not required as part of his employment to treat employees off company premises or to personally oversee employees' treatment by other doctors or hospitals, (3) physician was not required to go to hospital and had no intention of doing so until he was called by hospital to treat patient as specialist, (4) after treating patient, physician wrote prescription on pad bearing address and telephone number of his private medical practice and instructed patient to see him at his "office," meaning either his office at company's plant or his private office, whichever was more convenient to patient, and (5) hospital record reflected that patient was to follow up with physician as his "PMD," meaning personal or private medical doctor. Litwak v Our Lady of Victory Hosp., 238 A.D.2d 879, 660 N.Y.S.2d 912, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4664 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1997).

Medical malpractice action was not barred by Workers' Compensation Law as exclusive remedy, even though both physician and patient were employed by same company, where neither was acting within scope of his employment at time of treatment. Litwak v Our Lady of Victory Hosp., 238 A.D.2d 879, 660 N.Y.S.2d 912, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4664 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1997).

The failure of plaintiff's former employer, a medical clinic, to diagnose plaintiff's lung cancer from X-rays taken during routine medical examinations conducted by the clinic as part of plaintiff's employment, which failure to act allegedly aggravated plaintiff's condition, caused an "accidental injury" arising solely from the employment relationship, for which the Workers' Compensation Law provided the exclusive remedy. Le Savoy v Harnes, 127 Misc. 2d 9, 484 N.Y.S.2d 988, 1984 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3720 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1984).

188. —Injuries due to falls

Where a teamster while driving over smooth pavement fell from his seat and was killed as a result of the wheels passing over his body and there is no evidence of intoxication or that the fall was intentional, an award under the Workmen's Compensation Law is proper. Daly v United States Trucking Co., 248 N.Y. 515, 162 N.E. 506, 248 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 515, 1928 N.Y. LEXIS 1306 (N.Y. 1928).

An apartment owner's relief elevator operator who acted as an emergency operator during a strike and was paid therefor by a union, was killed when he fell down an elevator shaft. An award against the apartment house owner was proper. Coburn v Lenfin Realty Corp., 305 N.Y. 669, 112 N.E.2d 765, 305 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 669, 1953 N.Y. LEXIS 1220 (N.Y. 1953).

The death of a foreman of motor trucks caused by a fall while the truck was in motion arises out of and in the course of his employment where he and another driver were taking a loaded truck from one point to another and the decedent, who was dozing at the time, was thrown from the truck as the driver made a sudden turn. McCloskey v Richard Hellman, Inc., 196 A.D. 674, 187 N.Y.S. 834, 1921 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5590 (N.Y. App. Div. 1921).

Where a foreman painter while working on a pier was asked the whereabouts of another workman, and as he motioned with his hand he took a step backward, fell and struck his head on a propeller which was lying on the pier and subsequently died from such fall, such person died as a result of an accidental injury arising out of and in the course of his employment. Aanonsen v Jakobson & Peterson, Inc., 260 A.D. 967, 23 N.Y.S.2d 482, 1940 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5635 (N.Y. App. Div. 1940).

A schoolteacher is entitled to compensation for a fall occasioned by collision with a dog running on the school grounds, the accident having occurred approximately three feet from the school door. Taylor v Board of Education, 263 A.D. 1033, 33 N.Y.S.2d 724, 1942 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7964 (N.Y. App. Div. 1942).

A carpenter who accidentally fell into a well hole on the premises of a building operation while receiving instructions from his employer is injured in the course of his employment where it appears that the employee could not have performed the required service for his employer unless he received such instructions. West v Wood, 266 A.D. 705, 40 N.Y.S.2d 156, 1943 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3961 (N.Y. App. Div. 1943).

Where a new employee, handling heavy tar paper in a hot warehouse, where tar was melting and the fan was not working, collapsed and fell to a concrete floor, fracturing his skull, and there was no evidence of casual illness, it is error to deny him compensation because he did not fall from a height or strike an obstacle in falling and because the injury therefore did not arise out of the employment. Zygmont v Certain-Teed Products Corp., 269 A.D. 15, 53 N.Y.S.2d 771, 1945 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2908 (N.Y. App. Div. 1945).

Claimant was injured in the course of her employment when she fell while turning in washroom to speak to co-worker while washing her hands which had become dirtied in her employment. Williams v Endicott Johnson Corp., 284 A.D. 920, 134 N.Y.S.2d 419, 1954 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4058 (N.Y. App. Div. 1954).

Award for death benefits was affirmed where employee fell from a ladder and died from a ruptured aneurysm of the brain. Baker v Gorden, 1 A.D.2d 708, 146 N.Y.S.2d 829, 1955 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3718 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1955).

A death claim was dismissed where evidence showed only that decedent was sitting on a water main doing construction work and was next seen on the ground below the main suffering from a ruptured aneurysm. The only evidence that decedent had slipped and suffered the aneurysm when he hit the ground was belated and interested hearsay testimony. Bonomi v Poirier & McLane Corp., 1 A.D.2d 302, 149 N.Y.S.2d 616, 1956 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5936 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1956).

Decedent had been assigned to job on roof of plant by foreman. Short time later he left job site and several hours later he was found unconscious lying on floor of plant below opened window on roof. It was common for workmen to go to maintenance shop for material or tools. Accident being unwitnessed, statutory presumptions must be given consideration. Evidence permitted inference that decedent fell from cat walk through opened window while within employment and only short distance from job, hazard was on premises and decedent sustained injuries within hours of his regular employment. Barker v General Motors Corp., 5 A.D.2d 1031, 173 N.Y.S.2d 42, 1958 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6188 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1958).

The board was not required to accept testimony of claimant that he sustained injuries as the result of a fall in course of his employment, where he told three conflicting stories as to how the alleged fall happened. Amado v Torres, 9 A.D.2d 832, 192 N.Y.S.2d 689, 1959 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6194 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1959).

Although an autopsy on the deceased disclosed .21 percent by weight of alcohol in his blood, which is a percentage medically considered sufficient to cause intoxication, the Board could find his death to have arisen out of his employment rather than by reason of intoxication where he was a milk delivery man driving a delivery truck which had to be operated standing up next to an open door and death was caused by falling through the door and onto the highway on a straight level stretch of highway. Van De Water v Emmadine Farms, Inc., 18 A.D.2d 1119, 239 N.Y.S.2d 182, 1963 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4022 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1963).

Finding that injury occurred in course of employment was supported by claimant's testimony that, as he entered his office in morning, he tripped over waste basket, struck his head on desk or table, lost consciousness, and had no memory of rest of day until late afternoon; claimant's lack of memory did not constitute inconsistency in his testimony, and employer presented no testimony from any employee who recalled seeing claimant during relevant time period. Watson v Ebasco Services, 140 A.D.2d 747, 527 N.Y.S.2d 628, 1988 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4727 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1988).

Hotel floor supervisor's claim for workers' compensation benefits would not be disallowed under CLS Work Comp § 10 where (1) her injury occurred one week after altercation with another employee that led to supervisor's termination, and (2) relationship between altercation and injury, which occurred when she returned to pick up her paycheck and slipped and fell on stairs, was tenuous at best. Wint v Hotel Waldorf Astoria, 251 A.D.2d 696, 674 N.Y.S.2d 146, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6458 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1998).

Death arose in course of decedent's employment, and thus his mother was not entitled to workers' compensation death benefits, where (1) decedent took short break from work and went from his employer's rented third floor to roof of 4-story building with coworker, who smoked cigarette, (2) decedent's fall from roof on very windy day was unwitnessed, (3) employer testified that employees could take their breaks anywhere inside or outside building, although they had to smoke outside, (4) employer neither expressly authorized nor expressly prohibited use of roof, and (5) although locked door might have justified inference that access to roof was prohibited by someone while door remained locked, it was not reasonable to infer that prohibition continued after door was unlocked, as it was before decedent's fall, or that employer had ever imposed such prohibition. Kouvatsos v Line Masters, Inc., 281 A.D.2d 769, 722 N.Y.S.2d 118, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2920 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2001).

189. —Injuries due to falls; fall caused by disease

In order to have an accident which occurs by reason of a fall caused by disease, compensable, there must be something in the position or surroundings of employee, some risk specially assignable to employment. Andrews v L. & S. Amusement Corp., 253 N.Y. 97, 170 N.E. 506, 253 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 97, 1930 N.Y. LEXIS 805 (N.Y. 1930).; Frankel v National 5, 10 & 25 Cent Stores, 268 N.Y. 509, 198 N.E. 378, 268 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 509, 1935 N.Y. LEXIS 985 (N.Y. 1935).; Connelly v Samaritan Hospital, 259 N.Y. 137, 181 N.E. 76, 259 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 137, 1932 N.Y. LEXIS 917 (N.Y. 1932).

An employee in a laundry, who, due to a cardiac condition, fell while doing her work and in falling struck a table which was part of the equipment of the laundry, sustaining injuries, is entitled to compensation. Her injuries arose "out of" her employment. Connelly v Samaritan Hospital, 259 N.Y. 137, 181 N.E. 76, 259 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 137, 1932 N.Y. LEXIS 917 (N.Y. 1932).

Death does not occur from an accident in the course of the employment where the decedent, working on the bank of a stream, was sent upstream a short distance for a purpose incidental to his employment and was found drowned in five feet of water where there was no embankment, it having been no part of his job to enter the water and the evidence showed that he was subject to fits and had suffered one a short time before his death. Minerly v Kingsbury Const. Co., 191 A.D. 618, 181 N.Y.S. 901, 1920 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4769 (N.Y. App. Div. 1920).

Person employed as carpenter who, during his meal hour, was injured by burning his hand on a stove on his employer's premises owing to the fact that he was seized with a spell of dizziness to which malady he had been subject for two years, is not entitled to an award. There was nothing in environment or nature of work which caused the accident but claimant's malady overtook him without reference to his employment. Neuberger v Third A. R. Co., 192 A.D. 781, 183 N.Y.S. 348, 1920 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7553

(N.Y. App. Div. 1920).; Manor v Pennington, 180 A.D. 130, 167 N.Y.S. 424, 1917 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8089 (N.Y. App. Div. 1917).

Where claimant, a laborer, was employed in a shanty checking the weight of trucks on a scale outside the shanty fell while sitting on a bench warming his feet on an electric heater, to a concrete floor covered in part with corrugated paper, there was no basis for an award in the light of medical proof that claimant suffered from generalized arteriosclerosis of a nonoccupational origin which caused him to lose consciousness and fall. Montanari v Lehigh Portland Cement Co., 282 A.D. 1082, 126 N.Y.S.2d 180, 1953 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5873 (N.Y. App. Div. 1953).

Two weeks after a part-time luncheonette counter man was discharged from a hospital after a fall in his employment, he collapsed in a subway and later died from an epidural hemorrhage. But the Board failed to find in granting death award that first fall was an accident or whether it came about as a result of a fainting spell induced by internal causes. Matters remitted to Board. McCann v Hyal Luncheonette Co., 284 A.D. 1079, 135 N.Y.S.2d 823, 1954 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4614 (N.Y. App. Div. 1954).

The head keeper of a county penitentiary was not entitled to a compensation award on the theory that when his left knee unexplainedly "went down", it was the result of traumatic arthritis arising in the course of his employment. There was no basis for finding that keeper's employment was such as to produce disease as a natural incident thereof. Newton v County of Erie, 7 A.D.2d 29, 180 N.Y.S.2d 163, 1958 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4034 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1958).

Workers' compensation death benefits claimant was not entitled to rely on the presumption of compensability under N.Y. Workers' Comp. Law § 21(1) because her decedent's death was not unexplained or unwitnessed, in that an individual saw the decedent collapse to the ground, the death certificate listed the cause of death as arteriosclerotic heart disease, an autopsy also revealed that the decedent died of heart disease, and the independent report of a heart disease expert opined that the decedent's death was not work related and was likely caused by severe coronary atherosclerosis. Thus, the Workers' Compensation Board's denial of the underlying claim in the absence of any prima facie proof that the decedent's death arose out of and in the course of employment, as required by N.Y. Workers' Comp. Law §§ 2(7) and 10(1), was supported by substantial evidence. Matter of Crapo v City of Buffalo, 24 A.D.3d 838, 805 N.Y.S.2d 180, 2005 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13555 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2005).

190. Injuries due to clothing, etc.

An injury arises out of and in the course of employment where an iron pipe full of hot emery dropped from the eighth floor of the building in which the employer occupied a lower floor, and set fire to the employee's clothing even though the pipe fell from the place of business of a third person which had no connection with or relation to the employer's business. Bandassi v Molla, 200 A.D. 266, 192 N.Y.S. 776, 1922 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8166 (N.Y. App. Div.), aff'd, 234 N.Y. 554, 138 N.E. 444, 234 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 554, 1922 N.Y. LEXIS 735 (N.Y. 1922).

The finding that burns suffered by decedent when his clothing caught fire from welding spark in course of employment set up infection which was transmitted to kidneys, and that diseased condition of kidneys was factor in causation of employee's death was supported by substantial medical evidence. And it was proper for impartial specialist to report to Board that there was direct causal relationship between accident which caused burn and employee's death, where employer had adequate opportunity to cross-examine specialist. Garner v Allegheny Ludlum Steel Corp., 6 A.D.2d 363, 176 N.Y.S.2d 734, 1958 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5004 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1958).

Where employye worked in a wet area and his shoes became wet and stiff and the following day he felt an irritation and burning sensation on his left fourth toe as the result of the wet, tight and pinching shoes, which condition worsened and resulted in amputation of left leg below the knee due to gangrene, finding that claimant sustained an accidental injury arising out of and in the course of employment was sustained although claimant had a preexisting vascular disease. Bumpus v Eastern Greyhound Bus Corp., 30 A.D.2d 733, 291 N.Y.S.2d 540, 1968 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3580 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1968).

Claimant did not sustain causally related disability when she injured her lower back while bending over to tie her shoe during break from work as social welfare client examiner. Williams v Schenectady County Dep't of Social Servs., 232 A.D.2d 677, 648 N.Y.S.2d 180, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10019 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1996), overruled in part, Camino v Chappaqua Transp., 19 A.D.3d 856, 796 N.Y.S.2d 736, 2005 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6735 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2005).

191. —Injuries incurred while pursuing personal projects during working hours

An injury to an employee through some act of his own, not incident to his employment, and not authorized or induced by his employer in connection with his employment, does not arise out of and in the course of his employment. Gifford v T. G. Patterson, Inc., 222 N.Y. 4, 117 N.E. 946, 222 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 4, 1917 N.Y. LEXIS 805 (N.Y. 1917).

A person employed at a weekly wage to operate a gas filling station with permission to operate service station in connection therewith for his own profit, is not entitled, under the Workmen's Compensation Law to compensation for injuries received as a result of an explosion of an air-compressor tank installed by himself for use in servicing cars. Johnson v Roosevelt Memorial Asso., 259 N.Y. 641, 182 N.E. 216, 259 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 641, 1932 N.Y. LEXIS 1124 (N.Y. 1932).; Dunn v University of Rochester, 266 N.Y. 362, 194 N.E. 856, 266 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 362, 1935 N.Y. LEXIS 1382 (N.Y. 1935).; Bederman v McNamara, 268 N.Y. 510, 198 N.E. 379, 268 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 510, 1935 N.Y. LEXIS 986 (N.Y. 1935).

Personal activities of employees unrelated to employment, remote from the place of work and its risks, yielding neither advantage or benefit to the employer are not within the compensation law though the employer may acquiesce therein or contribute financial aid thereto. Wilson v General Motors Corp., 298 N.Y. 468, 84 N.E.2d 781, 298 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 468, 1949 N.Y. LEXIS 1006 (N.Y. 1949).

A "handyman" employed in an automobile machine shop was injured in the course of his employment when he was hit in the eye by a spring steel clip which he was fashioning for his own car during slack time before quitting time. Proof showed that employer permitted use of tools on personal projects during slack hours, supplied parts therefor, and required employee to remain until quitting time. Penzara v Maffia Bros., 307 N.Y. 15, 119 N.E.2d 570, 307 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 15, 1954 N.Y. LEXIS 1006 (N.Y. 1954).

A claimant employed as owner and driver of a truck under an agreement whereby all repairs to the truck were to be made on the time of the employee at his expense and that he was not to be paid for his personal services unless he was actually employed and then by the hour, is not injured in the course of his employment where, while repairing a hoist on the dump truck, some part of the hoisting apparatus broke, causing the body of the truck to fall on the claimant resulting in injury to him. Clawson v Cleghorn, 264 A.D. 965, 37 N.Y.S.2d 105, 1942 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5562 (N.Y. App. Div. 1942).; Kingsley v Donovan, 169 A.D. 828, 155 N.Y.S. 801, 1915 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5083 (N.Y. App. Div. 1915).

A hospital waiter and assistant cook amputated two fingers while allegedly cutting a lemon with a cleaver. Held: the evidence disclosed that the injury did not arise out of and in the course of employment but rather resulted from a personal act which was performed solely for the waiter's benefit and which was unrelated to any service for the hospital. Medina v Shore Road Hospital, 4 A.D.2d 974, 167 N.Y.S.2d 637, 1957 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3912 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1957).

A gunshot wound suffered by a farm laborer did not arise "out of" his work in spreading manure with a tractor where the shot came from a rifle which he was carrying along on the tractor, without his employer's knowledge or consent, for the purpose of shooting woodchucks, the rifle having been accidentally discharged when it fell off the tractor and struck the ground. Slater v Pilch, 17 A.D.2d 340, 234 N.Y.S.2d 513, 1962 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6536 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1962).

The claimant's decision to wear a jacket for warmth and in particular to take one readily available instead of asking his employer for one does not remove him from employment and the act does arise out of the employment. Himes v Tobin Packing Co., 30 A.D.2d 1030, 294 N.Y.S.2d 261, 1968 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3062 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1968), app. denied, 23 N.Y.2d 644, 1969 N.Y. LEXIS 2097 (N.Y. 1969).

Change of claimant from personal shoes to special work shoes, during which change claimant felt a sharp pain down his left leg, was not attributable solely to personal act of claimant and arose out of and in the course of his employment where such a change was a reasonable incident of employment of claimant as a machine operator, and bore a direct relation to it. Mazur v New Process Gear Div., Chrysler Corp., 45 A.D.2d 784, 356 N.Y.S.2d 728, 1974 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4685 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1974).

192. —Injuries incurred while removing property from employer's premises

An employee is injured in the course of his employment while moving furniture from a storeroom, even though the particular piece involved had been given to him. Burton v Mallouk, 268 A.D. 935, 51 N.Y.S.2d 131, 1944 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4310 (N.Y. App. Div. 1944).

An injury suffered by an employee when, at the close of his days work, he entered a cellarway to clean refuse wood which he contemplated taking home for fuel, is in the course of his employment, where this was done with the knowledge and at the request of the employer. Frederickson v Ledkote Products Co., 270 A.D. 970, 62 N.Y.S.2d 134, 1946 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4893 (N.Y. App. Div. 1946).

Evidence sustained the board's finding that claimant's injuries arose out of and in the course of his employment where he was injured, while packing his household goods for removal from house, provided by his employer for his residence while employed as assistant manager of employer's nearby dog kennels, on the last day of such employment even though his actual work at the kennels was terminated before his injuries. Maley v Chisholm, 3 A.D.2d 615, 158 N.Y.S.2d 41, 1956 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3427 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1956), app. denied, 2 N.Y.2d 709, 1957 N.Y. LEXIS 1594 (N.Y. 1957).

193. —Injuries in the course of work performed at private residence or other premises of employer, supervisor or the like

The insurance carrier is liable for injury to a business employee detailed to a job at a private residence. Jaabeck v Theodore A. Crane's Sons Co., 238 N.Y. 314, 144 N.E. 625, 238 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 314, 1924 N.Y. LEXIS 683 (N.Y. 1924).

Where an employee was injured while cranking an automobile by direction of the master at the latter's home, an award is proper. MacDonald v Grand Battery & Ignition Service, 254 N.Y. 605, 173 N.E. 886, 254 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 605, 1930 N.Y. LEXIS 1215 (N.Y. 1930).; Jaabeck v Theodore A. Crane's Sons Co., 238 N.Y. 314, 144 N.E. 625, 238 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 314, 1924 N.Y. LEXIS 683 (N.Y. 1924).

Where a claimant, employed by a partnership, was injured while working at the residence of one of the partners, the accident does not arise out of his employment. Reed v Mapstone Bros., 205 A.D. 767, 200 N.Y.S. 304, 1923 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5137 (N.Y. App. Div. 1923).; See also Collier v Dangard, 256 N.Y. 561, 177 N.E. 141, 256 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 561, 1931 N.Y. LEXIS 1139 (N.Y. 1931).

An uninsured theater owner is not liable for injury to a stage mechanic while doing carpentry work at the home of the theater's manager. Twitchell v Wagner Productions, Inc., 228 A.D. 870, 240 N.Y.S. 926, 1930 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13818 (N.Y. App. Div. 1930), aff'd, 255 N.Y. 612, 175 N.E. 335, 255 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 612, 1931 N.Y. LEXIS 745 (N.Y. 1931).

Two sisters, owners of a building, are liable for compensation to their janitor injured while working in an antique shop conducted by one of them. CHURCH v MITTELSTAEDT, 255 A.D. 903, 255 A.D. 904, 7 N.Y.S.2d 749, 1938 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5821 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1938), aff'd, 280 N.Y. 613, 20 N.E.2d 560, 280 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 613, 1939 N.Y. LEXIS 1442 (N.Y. 1939).

One employed as handy man, chauffeur and manager of the employer's apartment building is injured in the course of his employment where, while proceeding to his employer's home after performing duties at the apartment building and collecting the rents, he fell on the stairs of a porch of the employer's private home. Lynch v Chilvers, 272 A.D. 1091, 74 N.Y.S.2d 540, 1947 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5060 (N.Y. App. Div. 1947).

An award was proper where decedent was drowned while fishing in the employer's private pond on behalf of and pursuant to the orders and instructions of his employer to catch fish for the employer's family. Gregor v Cooper, 279 A.D. 960, 111 N.Y.S.2d 190, 1952 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5426 (N.Y. App. Div. 1952).

Where claimant was regularly employed as a maintenance man on a weekly salary basis for a 40-hour week by a real estate corporation leasing out property to manufacturing and commercial tenants, but his injuries were sustained while helping another employee working for one of the tenants with some Sunday remodeling work at $2 an hour, under an agreement with such other employee, and the real estate corporation had no obligation to maintain the particular premises or perform such work in connection with them, he could not be considered an employee of the real estate corporation in doing such work. Dahoda v Simmons, 11 A.D.2d 842, 203 N.Y.S.2d 167, 1960 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8516 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1960).

A claimant employed as bartender and waitress in a hotel in a small community, who was injured while taking care of one of her employer's horses kept on his farm and sometimes used by guests, was injured in course of employment where the employer himself conceded that her injuries were sustained in course of employment. Hartwell v Whitman, 15 A.D.2d 971, 225 N.Y.S.2d 598, 1962 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10990 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1962).

Upon appeal by an employer and its insurance carrier from a decision holding that claimant sustained an accidental injury within the scope of his employment, the board's decision was reversed, upon evidence that the claimant, a general handyman at a varnish company's plant, was injured as he was cutting tree branches at the personal dwelling of the president of the company on a Saturday. McDermott v Giles Varnish Co., 27 A.D.2d 781, 277 N.Y.S.2d 181, 1967 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4860 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1967).

194. —Injuries in the course of seeking additional employees for employer

Where a town highway foreman sustained injuries resulting in his death while riding with the town superintendent of highways, and in assisting the superintendent in procuring men and material for the performance of the work was incidental to his employment as foreman, and an award of compensation is proper. Lanigan v Saugerties, 180 A.D. 227, 167 N.Y.S. 654, 1917 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8141 (N.Y. App. Div. 1917), aff'd, 223 N.Y. 685, 119 N.E. 1053, 223 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 685, 1918 N.Y. LEXIS 1396 (N.Y. 1918).

A head bartender is injured in the course of his employment where at the time he was proceeding to another city to take the preliminary steps necessary to engage a bartender for his employer. Cavallaro v Elmira Hotel Operating Corp., 271 A.D. 941, 67 N.Y.S.2d 280, 1947 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5306 (N.Y. App. Div. 1947).

195. —Injuries due to explosions

Where the claimant, while walking along a railroad track in the regular course of his employment, struck with a hammer which he was carrying, a torpedo on the track, which exploded causing a piece of the metal to enter his eye, suffers accidental injuries arising out of and in the course of his employment. Miles v Gibbs & Hill, Inc., 250 N.Y. 590, 166 N.E. 335, 250 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 590, 1929 N.Y. LEXIS 984 (N.Y. 1929).

A person employed as a chauffeur who was injured by the explosion of a percussion cap which a fellow servant brought upon the premises and with which he was experimenting, is not entitled to an award under the workmen's compensation law. Laurino v Donovan, 183 A.D. 168, 170 N.Y.S. 340, 1918 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5030 (N.Y. App. Div. 1918).; De Filippis v Falkenberg (1915) 170 App Div 153, 155 NYS 761, affd (1916) 219 NY 581, 114

NE 1064.; See also Laurino v Donovan (1919) 186 App Div 387, 173 NYS 619, affd (1919) 226 NY 700, 123 NE 875., and Fischer v R. Hoe & Co., 224 A.D. 335, 230 N.Y.S. 755, 1928 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10000 (N.Y. App. Div. 1928).

An award of death benefits is properly made where claimant's husband was a policeman and was killed while lighting a bomb under the direction of the chief of police during an air raid warning. Williams v Granville, 268 A.D. 944, 51 N.Y.S.2d 728, 1944 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4333 (N.Y. App. Div. 1944).

A farmhand, who, while sweeping up the floor of a cow barn, noticed an object which turned out to be a dynamite cap on the floor which he picked up and which exploded, injuring him, suffers injuries arising out of and in the course of his employment. Franck v Allen, 270 A.D. 960, 61 N.Y.S.2d 728, 1946 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4859 (N.Y. App. Div. 1946).

196. —Injuries resulting from storms and other natural conditions

Where an employee engaged in working upon a parkway was directed by the foreman to remain during a thunderstorm and was killed by lightning while standing under a tree for shelter from the storm, such accident was a result of special risk incidental to the employment of decedent and arose "out of" his employment. Madura v New York, 238 N.Y. 214, 144 N.E. 505, 238 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 214, 1924 N.Y. LEXIS 670 (N.Y. 1924).; See also People v One Box Containing 15 Bottles of G. R. Whisky, 238 N.Y. 556, 144 N.E. 889, 238 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 556, 1924 N.Y. LEXIS 727 (N.Y. 1924).; Many v Bradford, 266 N.Y. 558, 195 N.E. 199, 266 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 558, 1935 N.Y. LEXIS 1445 (N.Y. 1935)., and Giovine v United Hebrew Cemetery, 263 A.D. 772, 30 N.Y.S.2d 929, 1941 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4880 (N.Y. App. Div. 1941).

Where a husband and his wife jointly employed as butler and housekeeper at their employer's summer home were drowned in an attempt to get to the mainland during a hurricane, the board properly found that their deaths were primarily due to their being placed in a zone of danger by virtue of their employment location. Commissioner of Taxation & Finance v Burghard, 262 A.D. 783, 27 N.Y.S.2d 401, 1941 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5841 (N.Y. App. Div. 1941).

197. —Injuries due to burns

An award of compensation will not be set aside on the ground that fatal burns were not sustained in the course of employment where the employee, a night watchman, worked in a shanty and his body was discovered on the floor about 6 feet from a cot which he occupied the decedent having suffered a slight burn on his right wrist, and the whole center of the mattress on the cot was burned and charred, the floor was littered with cigarette butts, there was evidence that the decedent's death resulted from carbon monoxide poisoning and there were traces of grain alcohol in the decedent's liver. McKenna v Atlas Contractors Equipment Corp., 300 N.Y. 317, 90 N.E.2d 479, 300 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 317, 1950 N.Y. LEXIS 861 (N.Y. 1950).. See also Commissioner of Taxation & Finance v Brookshire Constr. Co., 275 N.Y. 578, 11 N.E.2d 762, 275 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 578, 1937 N.Y. LEXIS 1558 (N.Y. 1937).

Where an employee in an oil refinery went to a dressing room furnished for the use of workmen and met his death by fire communicated to his shirt which was saturated with inflammable oil, apparently by a lighted Bunsen burner occasionally used for heating oil or glue, an award under Workmen's Compensation Law is justified. Chludzinski v Standard Oil Co., 176 A.D. 87, 162 N.Y.S. 225, 1916 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8964 (N.Y. App. Div. 1916).

Claimant, who suffered burns when his eye shade ignited when he was lighting his cigar suffered an injury arising out of his employment because the claimant had to work under artificial light, wore an eye shade on doctor's advice and was permitted to smoke while working. Petrie v Crucible Steel Co., 4 A.D.2d 905, 166 N.Y.S.2d 780, 1957 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4298 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), app. denied, 4 A.D.2d 991, 167 N.Y.S.2d 1020, 1957 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3862 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1957), app. denied, 4 N.Y.2d 674, 1958 N.Y. LEXIS 1351 (N.Y. 1958).

198. —Miscellaneous injuries incurred while moving about employer's premises

Where a room in a building occupied by a workman employed by the owner is rendered dangerous by some act or condition due to his occupancy and not inherent in the place itself, injury or death, occasioned thereby, does not come within the intent or purpose of the workmen's compensation law. Pisko v Mintz, 262 N.Y. 176, 186 N.E. 434, 262 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 176, 1933 N.Y. LEXIS 931 (N.Y. 1933).; Kowalek v New York C. R. Co., 229 N.Y. 489, 128 N.E. 888, 229 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 489, 1920 N.Y. LEXIS 704 (N.Y. 1920).; and see also Briskin v Hyman, 236 N.Y. 522, 142 N.E. 268, 236 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 522, 1923 N.Y. LEXIS 941 (N.Y. 1923).

A finding that injuries suffered by a teacher attending a meeting of the local teachers' association in an auditorium in one of the school buildings, did not occur in the course of her employment, cannot be set aside upon review where there is substantial evidence to support the board's finding of facts. Dearing v Union Free School, 297 N.Y. 886, 79 N.E.2d 280, 297 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 886, 1948 N.Y. LEXIS 986 (N.Y. 1948).

Claimant, who while working for his employer and making his rounds on the different floors of the employer's premises for the purpose of distributing towels, picked up a metal tag and attempted to hand it to a coemployee who was on an elevator, and in doing so claimant's right arm was caught in the elevator gate and injured, is injured in course of his employment. Schneider v Masback Hardware Co., 260 A.D. 823, 22 N.Y.S.2d 404, 1940 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4840 (N.Y. App. Div. 1940).

An injury suffered by one employed to repair aircraft and aircraft engines for an employer engaged in the business of giving flying lessons and conducting a welding school arises out of and in the course of the employee's employment, where when injured, the employee was helping a student start his car on the premises of the employer and it was customary for such assistance to be rendered. Pawela v Niagara from The Air, Inc., 264 A.D. 962, 37 N.Y.S.2d 66, 1942 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5551 (N.Y. App. Div. 1942).

An employee of an employer interested in establishing a flying school and who was the lessee of a flying field, is injured in the course of his employment where, having been sent by his employer to paint two doors on a hanger located on the flying field was struck by an aeroplane while on the run-way. Conant v Rodger, 266 A.D. 759, 41 N.Y.S.2d 71, 1943 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4294 (N.Y. App. Div. 1943).

A claimant is injured in the regular course of her employment where, while on her way to punch a time clock, she walked upon a conveyor and a co-worker pulled a switch starting it in motion which resulted in injuries to the claimant. Di Sapio v Burdsall, 272 A.D. 981, 72 N.Y.S.2d 742, 1947 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4491 (N.Y. App. Div. 1947).

199. —Miscellaneous injuries

Where a driver of a delivery wagon, whose duties consisted of assisting in the delivery of goods when necessary, does not suffer injuries arising out of or in the course of his employment where he fell from a ladder while assisting in adjusting a window box in a house. Glatzl v Stumpp, 220 N.Y. 71, 114 N.E. 1053, 220 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 71, 1917 N.Y. LEXIS 941 (N.Y. 1917).

Injuries received by one in charge of a horse drawn truck in the course of loading and unloading, hitching and unhitching the horse, feeding and caring for the horse as well as injuries suffered when the horse is moving or the employee is upon the truck, are compensable. Smith v Price, 168 A.D. 421, 153 N.Y.S. 221, 1915 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8233 (N.Y. App. Div. 1915).

Death of a "helper" on a delivery truck killed by a fall when he jumped off the truck in order to drive off boys who were hanging to the rear of the vehicle arose out of and in the course of his employment. Hendricks v Seeman Bros., 170 A.D. 133, 155 N.Y.S. 638, 1915 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5029 (N.Y. App. Div. 1915).

A restaurant counterman suffers fatal injuries arising in the course of and out of his employment where his employer directed him to stay in the restaurant after closing time while the employer went to get him a room for the night in a nearby hotel and it appears that the decedent was a competent counterman and there was a scarcity of such workmen and the employer was interested in securing lodgings for the deceased so that he would be in shape to work the next morning. Turner v Papadan, 275 A.D. 734, 87 N.Y.S.2d 184, 1949 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4242 (N.Y. App. Div. 1949).

A farmhand who drank bottled airplane fuel under the impression it was wine left in the cab of the truck used to convey him to and from his employer's farm is entitled to compensation where it appears that the presence of wine on or about the farm for the refreshment of farm laborers was customary. Jakubowski v Youngs, 278 A.D. 598, 101 N.Y.S.2d 771, 1951 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4067 (N.Y. App. Div. 1951).

Deceased employer was court clerk but he also rented summer bungalows. Claimant, employed before and after renting season as handy man, was injured in course of work which consisted of making repairs and painting. Insurance policy did not expressly limit itself to domestic help. Although, employer's business was stated to be court clerk, policy included all business operations conducted from beach residence of employer. Therefore, painting work in connection with employer's business must be deemed covered. Handyman was intended to be included in "outservant". And handyman working in care of building is in hazardous occupation and, if work was being done in employer's place, it is deemed covered. Spazianto v Estate of Bruno, 7 A.D.2d 671, 179 N.Y.S.2d 183, 1958 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4317 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1958), app. denied, 5 N.Y.2d 711, 1959 N.Y. LEXIS 2017 (N.Y. 1959).

Injuries sustained by claimant arose out of and in the course of his employment, although they were not sustained upon the premises of the employer, where claimant was standing by at the time watching the loading of a tractor upon a truck to be taken to a wood lot for cutting of timber under contract for his alleged employer, and claimant had been assigned to go along and help with the work. Hudson v Reynolds Lumber Co., 12 A.D.2d 541, 206 N.Y.S.2d 630, 1960 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7237 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1960).

Claimant's injury was not sustained in course of his employment where his employment was as business agent for a small union, he had his office in his home, and the injury was sustained when he was called to the house from some yard work he was doing outside for his own benefit to answer an after-dinner phone call relating to union business and hurt his ankle on stepping down from the house to the lawn to resume his work there. Johnson v Tile & Marble Helpers, 18 A.D.2d 955, 237 N.Y.S.2d 814, 1963 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4385 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1963).

Claimant's myocardial infarction which, according to medical testimony, was brought on by emotional stress during an extended hearing of charges against him brought by the labor union of which he was an officer and arising out of his support of an unauthorized wildcat strike clearly arose out of his employment as vice-president of the union, notwithstanding he was suspended pending trial from performance of duties, where he had not been removed from the payroll nor separated from his employment. Hamilton v Transport Workers Union, 21 A.D.2d 434, 251 N.Y.S.2d 104, 1964 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3322 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1964), aff'd, 16 N.Y.2d 696, 261 N.Y.S.2d 892, 209 N.E.2d 550, 1965 N.Y. LEXIS 1292 (N.Y. 1965).

An injury sustained by the chief engineer, chief physicist, and chief scientist of an employer which built instruments connected with the undercarriage of jet aircrafts arose out of and in the course of his employment, when he was injured as technical curiosity prompted him to stoop to inspect the undercarriage of a passing jet aircraft while at an airport awaiting his return flight from a technical symposium. The board's finding that claimant's act was a reasonable incident of his employment was said to be a question of fact. Dreyfus v Philips Laboratories, 28 A.D.2d 1033, 283 N.Y.S.2d 765, 1967 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3282 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1967).

Award in heart case upheld where there was evidence of strenuous exertion. Posik v William Isherwood, Inc., 32 A.D.2d 867, 302 N.Y.S.2d 92, 1969 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3633 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1969).

The court affirmed the Workmen's Compensation Board determination that claimant, a nurse, contracted tuberculosis in the course of her employment and thus was entitled to benefits where, although the claimant could not identify a specific contact with a tubercular patient and the hospital records did not reveal any such contact, the claimant testified that in the course of her duties she worked in every room in the hospital and was in contact with tuberculosis patients. The court commented that there were unquestionably tuberculosis patients in the hospital during the period of the claimant's employment with whom she could have had contact. Shepard v Tioga General Hospital, 35 A.D.2d 764, 314 N.Y.S.2d 863, 1970 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3660 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1970).

Workers' Compensation Board properly ruled that the employee sustained a causally-related occupational disease that was not time-barred because the record established that the employee's non-disabling back condition was aggravated by the repetitive nature of her job duties, a distinctive feature of her work that she performed over the course of many years, and given that the employee was not incapacitated by the injury to her lower back that occurred during the subject incident and continued working thereafter, the Board could reasonably conclude that she did not sustain an accidental injury within the meaning of the Workers' Compensation Law at such time. Matter of Scott v Bimbo Bakeries USA, Inc., 171 A.D.3d 1421, 96 N.Y.S.3d 769, 2019 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3127 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2019).

Member of the New York Army National Guard who sustained personal injuries while attending a regularly scheduled drill of his unit at a state armory, was in the employ of the State of New York at the time of his injury, and his compensation for alleged injuries could be sought only as provided for by the Workmen's Compensation Laws or whatever provisions are otherwise provided under the military law of the state, and he was not free to sue the state in a tort action. Sadowski v State, 51 Misc. 2d 832, 274 N.Y.S.2d 368, 1966 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1393 (N.Y. Ct. Cl. 1966).

200. Injuries in the course of employment; effect of violation of employer's rules or instructions

Violation of a rule not promulgated but which under the circumstances might reasonably be implied does not bar compensation benefits on the ground of abandonment of employment. Burns v Merritt Engineering Co., 302 N.Y. 131, 96 N.E.2d 739, 302 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 131, 1951 N.Y. LEXIS 758 (N.Y. 1951).

Disregard of the precise rules of employment does not necessarily constitute an abandonment thereof nor does violation of a rule not promulgated but which under the circumstances might reasonably be implied bar compensation benefits. Burns v Merritt Engineering Co., 302 N.Y. 131, 96 N.E.2d 739, 302 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 131, 1951 N.Y. LEXIS 758 (N.Y. 1951).; See also Jenczewski v Aluminum Co. of America, 199 A.D. 156, 191 N.Y.S. 392, 1921 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6628 (N.Y. App. Div. 1921).

The existence of general rules restricting the scope of employees' activities without special permission, is no bar to a compensation award for injuries sustained in other activities without special permission, along the line of the regular activities of the particular employee, where such rules have been habitually disregarded with the employer's knowledge and acquiescence. Mason v Lit Realty Co., 16 A.D.2d 715, 226 N.Y.S.2d 895, 1962 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10323 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1962).

Inasmuch as an employee violated an employer's rules against political activity in the workplace, the employee's demotion was a lawful personnel decision undertaken in good faith; therefore, pursuant to N.Y. Workers' Comp. Law § 2(7), the employee was not entitled to workers' compensation benefits. Pitchford v N.Y. State Dep't of Corr. Servs., 305 A.D.2d 821, 758 N.Y.S.2d 545, 2003 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5522 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2003).

201. —Violation of public statute, ordinance or the like

The Workmen's Compensation Law does not deprive an employee or his dependents of its benefits because the acts of the employee in causing the injury may be in violation of a public statute, ordinance or regulation. A death claim was proper where the employee was killed in a collision after driving employer's car too fast around a curve and partly in the wrong traffic lane. Chaffee v Effron, 1 A.D.2d 197, 149 N.Y.S.2d 115, 1956 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6261 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1956).

Decedent had not deviated from employment at time of accident where decedent engaged in theft of copper downspout from building's exterior while waiting for necessary work material to arrive; board is accorded wide latitude in construing what constitutes reasonable activities of outside workers and, although conduct in removing copper downspout may be criminal, activity is reasonable where employer's foreman confirms that removal of items is common practice in industry and that employees were not fired for engaging in such activities. Richardson v Fiedler Roofing, Inc., 112 A.D.2d 551, 491 N.Y.S.2d 489, 1985 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 55909 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1985), aff'd, 67 N.Y.2d 246, 502 N.Y.S.2d 125, 493 N.E.2d 228, 1986 N.Y. LEXIS 18049 (N.Y. 1986).

New York Uninsured Employers' Fund asserted that a claimant's illegal activity in picking up street hails removed his actions from the scope of his employment as a taxicab driver. As the uninsured dispatch company that employed him knew of and at least tolerated this violation of the New York City Taxi and Limousine Commission rules, it would not be heard to argue that the claimant's conduct was outside the scope of employment, thus precluding him from receiving workers' compensation benefits Matter of Nkrumah v Thomas, 61 A.D.3d 1325, 877 N.Y.S.2d 515, 2009 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3312 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2009).

202. —Violation of rule against smoking

An injury arose out of and in the course of employment where the decedent met death while smoking in violation of the orders of the employer while using inflammable paint remover. State Treasurer v Ulysses Apartments, Inc., 232 A.D. 393, 250 N.Y.S. 190, 1931 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13822 (N.Y. App. Div. 1931).; See also MacEchko v Bowen Mfg. Co., 179 A.D. 573, 166 N.Y.S. 822, 1917 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7424 (N.Y. App. Div. 1917)., and Chila v New York C. R. Co., 251 A.D. 575, 297 N.Y.S. 850, 1937 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7000 (N.Y. App. Div.), aff'd, 275 N.Y. 585, 11 N.E.2d 766, 275 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 585, 1937 N.Y. LEXIS 1565 (N.Y. 1937).

Claimant's injuries did not arise out of and in the course of his employment, and were not compensable, where occasioned by his violation of employer's strict "no-smoking" rule. Boggan v Abby Finishing Co., 11 A.D.2d 591, 200 N.Y.S.2d 488, 1960 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9948 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1960).

203. —Violation of rule against drinking liquor

A violation of an employer's no drinking rule under penalty of dismissal may not be treated any differently for purposes of compensation than the violation of any other rule designed to improve plant efficiency and to safeguard employees. Burns v Merritt Engineering Co., 302 N.Y. 131, 96 N.E.2d 739, 302 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 131, 1951 N.Y. LEXIS 758 (N.Y. 1951).

An employee suffers an injury arising in the course of and out of his employment where, five minutes before closing time, he drank carbon tetrachloride from a bottle labeled gin at the invitation of a co-employee as a practical joke, even though the employer's contract with the employee's union provided that possession of liquor was forbidden and constituted cause for dismissal. Burns v Merritt Engineering Co., 302 N.Y. 131, 96 N.E.2d 739, 302 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 131, 1951 N.Y. LEXIS 758 (N.Y. 1951).

204. —Violation of rule regarding leaving work site or post

A uniformed guard was injured in the course of his employment when, after leaving his post against rules to go to a restaurant, his immediate superior came after him, ordered him back to the job and while both were returning to employer's premises, guard was assaulted by his superior in a quarrel relating to the employer's business. Gray v Daily News, 284 A.D. 911, 134 N.Y.S.2d 448, 1954 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4041 (N.Y. App. Div. 1954).

A rule of employer that elevator operators could not leave their cars without obtaining permission from the supervisor was interpreted as relating only to the procedure to be followed by an employee in leaving his car and the fact that an elevator operator had left his car unattended at the time of the accident did not show a deviation from employment. Commissioner of Taxation & Finance v Hotel Waldorf Astoria Corp., 1 A.D.2d 858, 148 N.Y.S.2d 720, 1956 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6295 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1956).

Where an employee at a subway newsstand, upon being advised that there was a fire, left the stand and walked to the edge of the platform and was struck and instantly killed by a subway train while looking down the track, a finding of the Board denying death benefits because deceased allegedly violated a rule against leaving the stand and was only seeking to satisfy his own curiosity, could not be sustained, there being no clear evidence that there was such a rule, or, that if there were, decedent was advised of it. Feldman v A. B. C. Vending Corp., 16 A.D.2d 189, 226 N.Y.S.2d 892, 1962 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10308 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1962), aff'd, 12 N.Y.2d 223, 238 N.Y.S.2d 667, 188 N.E.2d 905, 1963 N.Y. LEXIS 1378 (N.Y. 1963).

205. —Violation of other rules or instructions

Where death benefits were claimed for death of a truck driver due to carbon monoxide asphyxia from using an improvised charcoal burner in the truck made out of two cans, wherein the defense was that decedent had been prohibited to use such heater, an award was affirmed on the ground that the rule had been habitually disregarded with the employer's knowledge and acquiescence. Barrett v Al Charyn, Inc., 11 N.Y.2d 849, 227 N.Y.S.2d 673, 182 N.E.2d 282, 1962 N.Y. LEXIS 1267 (N.Y. 1962).

An employee who was injured while disobeying the instructions of his superiors because of the fact that due to his deafness he misunderstood said instructions, but proceeded to act in good faith with intent to benefit his employer, is entitled to compensation. Greeney v Haberle-Crystal Spring Brewing Co., 190 A.D. 785, 180 N.Y.S. 648, 1920 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4250 (N.Y. App. Div. 1920).

An injury resulting in the death of a 15-year-old employee does not arise out of and in the course of her employment within the meaning of former subdivision 7 of § 3, where she met her death while operating a freight elevator contrary to orders, solely to save the effort of climbing stairs to reach the fourth floor of the building where she worked. Hamberg v Flower City Specialty Co., 202 A.D. 113, 195 N.Y.S. 170, 1922 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4864 (N.Y. App. Div. 1922).

Where an employee collected stones and placed them in a wagon attached to a tractor and, in violation of the orders of his employer, started to drive the tractor to dump the stones, and the tractor overturned injuring the employee, an award of compensation is proper since the use of the tractor was but an incident of the principal job of removing and carting away the stones so that the claimant performed his work in a forbidden manner, rather than performing work which had been forbidden. Ricci v Katz, 267 A.D. 928, 46 N.Y.S.2d 781, 1944 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5553 (N.Y. App. Div. 1944).

206. Overexertion, excitement or stress as accidental injury

A heart injury such as coronary occlusion or thrombosis when brought on by overexertion or strain in the course of daily work is compensable, although a pre-existing pathology may have been contributing factor. Masse v James H. Robinson Co. (1950) 301 NY 34, 92 NE2d 56 criticized in Fagan v Dell'Isola (2006, Guam) 2006 Guam 11, 2006 Guam LEXIS 12).; Gioia v A. J. Courtmel Co., 283 A.D. 40, 126 N.Y.S.2d 94, 1953 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2975 (N.Y. App. Div. 1953), reh'g denied, 283 A.D. 677, 127 N.Y.S.2d 808, 1954 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4878 (N.Y. App. Div. 1954).

A heart attack may be a compensable accident even though it is caused by a strain which is imposed by the usual nature of the employee's work. However, the regular job activity of the employee must entail a greater exertion than the ordinary wear and tear of life. Hence, an award for death benefits was reversed where the employee had a chronic rheumatic heart condition and died of heart failure when placing some tools on a truck. The medical opinion did not connect any unusual strain occurred in placing the tools on the truck with the death. Burris v Lewis, 2 N.Y.2d 323, 160 N.Y.S.2d 853, 141 N.E.2d 424, 1957 N.Y. LEXIS 1207 (N.Y. 1957).

Heart cases where it is usually required to show some special effort as a precipitating cause of the attack stand in a class by themselves, but they do so because their generalized nature makes it difficult actually to attribute the attack to the work; this rule therefor does not apply where the usual effort is shown to have caused a specific failure in a specific artery. Kayser v Erie County Highway Dep't, 276 A.D. 789, 92 N.Y.S.2d 612, 1949 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3332 (N.Y. App. Div. 1949).

When a compensation award in a heart case is based on unusual strain or exertion in a regular activity, it must nevertheless be shown that the activity was more than ordinary wear and tear of life and that the heart attack was caused by such unusually hard work. Stang v J. Pechman & Co., 7 A.D.2d 245, 181 N.Y.S.2d 952, 1959 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9976 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), amended, 8 A.D.2d 665, 185 N.Y.S.2d 773, 1959 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9049 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1959).

Ordinary strenuous work is sufficient to constitute a heart accident. Stengel v Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Co., 14 A.D.2d 949, 221 N.Y.S.2d 157, 1961 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7890 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1961).

A heart injury due to unusual effort over a period of several days may be found to be accidental. Murphy v Howard & Schaffer, Inc., 17 A.D.2d 882, 233 N.Y.S.2d 339, 1962 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7317 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1962).

An award of death benefits cannot be predicated on a mere finding that decedent's work contributed to his death from a coronary attack because the work he was doing was too heavy for him. Bosted v Larsen Baking Co., 19 A.D.2d 924, 244 N.Y.S.2d 3, 1963 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2977 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1963).

It is settled that an injury caused by emotional stress or strain may be found to be accidental within the contemplation of this law. Lobman v Bernhard Altmann Corp., 19 A.D.2d 931, 244 N.Y.S.2d 425, 1963 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2882 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1963), aff'd, 15 N.Y.2d 506, 254 N.Y.S.2d 113, 202 N.E.2d 559, 1964 N.Y. LEXIS 896 (N.Y. 1964).

Whether or not there was excessive work activity resulting in the death of the employee was for the board to decide and the court has no alternative but to affirm. Bosted v Larsen Baking Co., 32 A.D.2d 870, 301 N.Y.S.2d 227, 1969 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3638 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1969).

An accident may be the result of continuous strenuous physical effort which contributes to the ultimate, and subsequent, heart injury and overt symptoms are not a prerequisite to the recovery of benefits. Jamroz v Refined Syrups & Sugars, Inc., 33 A.D.2d 859, 305 N.Y.S.2d 916, 1969 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2620 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1969).

There was substantial evidence in record to support finding of Workmen's Compensation Board that, although decedent's work activities may have been routine at times and not precipitous of excessive strain, activities of decedent on day in question involved undue stress and strain that went beyond ordinary wear and tear of life and aggravated claimant's preexisting coronary condition so as to cause death and allow recovery on basis of an accident arising out of and in course of employment. Lagona v Starpoint Cent. School, 50 A.D.2d 236, 377 N.Y.S.2d 680, 1975 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11485 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1975), aff'd, 40 N.Y.2d 1034, 391 N.Y.S.2d 855, 360 N.E.2d 355, 1976 N.Y. LEXIS 3221 (N.Y. 1976).

Even in case of a man with an insufficient cardiac reserve, if actual work done is found by substantial evidence to have precipitated a cardiac event which caused death, a sufficient factual relationship may be found between strain of work and result to be deemed an accident within scope of compensation laws. Lagona v Starpoint Cent. School, 50 A.D.2d 236, 377 N.Y.S.2d 680, 1975 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11485 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1975), aff'd, 40 N.Y.2d 1034, 391 N.Y.S.2d 855, 360 N.E.2d 355, 1976 N.Y. LEXIS 3221 (N.Y. 1976).

Even if personnel decision involving promotion for which claimant volunteered fell within meaning of CLS Work Comp § 2(7), Workers' Compensation Board properly applied standard generally applicable in determining claims for mental injury based on work-related stress, and thus claimant was properly awarded workers' compensation benefits since personnel decision contributed only indirectly by requiring him to take on increased responsibilities that ultimately created stress. Brickner v N.Y. State DOT, 284 A.D.2d 829, 727 N.Y.S.2d 523, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6871 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2001), app. denied, 98 N.Y.2d 601, 744 N.Y.S.2d 761, 771 N.E.2d 834, 2002 N.Y. LEXIS 955 (N.Y. 2002).

207. —Usual work test; greater exertion than ordinary wear and tear of life generally

In heart cases, the "usual work" test has lost most if not all its former significance and has gradually been discarded by an increasing line of cases ending with Masse v James H. Robinson Co., 301 N.Y. 34, 92 N.E.2d 56, 301 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 34, 1950 N.Y. LEXIS 839 (N.Y. 1950).

Where decedent died from a heart attack brought on by unusual effort and activity while engaged in his employment, his death was caused by an accidental injury which arose out of and in the course of his employment. Weiss v Buffalo Scale Co., 262 A.D. 979, 30 N.Y.S.2d 24, 1941 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6767 (N.Y. App. Div. 1941).

The fact of "unusual work" is no longer decisive in cases where employees sustained heart attacks. Strain or unusual effort may be found even though the work, generally considered, is no different from that which the claimant has been doing over some period of time. The element of over-exertion or strain is one of fact to be determined, not by any catch phrase, but by the peculiar circumstances of the individual case. Gioia v A. J. Courtmel Co., 283 A.D. 40, 126 N.Y.S.2d 94, 1953 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2975 (N.Y. App. Div. 1953), reh'g denied, 283 A.D. 677, 127 N.Y.S.2d 808, 1954 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4878 (N.Y. App. Div. 1954).

The finding of extraordinary effort is not needed to establish an "accident" in the case of an actual rupture of blood vessels. Reed v Brookhiser, 8 A.D.2d 895, 186 N.Y.S.2d 815, 1959 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8311 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1959).

In a heart case, the test of relationship to employment is not whether the strain to which the heart attack is attributed was unusual compared to that normally present in the claimant's regular tasks, and it is sufficient if the performance of the work in question involved exceptional strain so great as to affect the heart. Sczesniak v Whitney, 12 A.D.2d 366, 211 N.Y.S.2d 581, 1961 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12273 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1961).

A board finding in connection with a death benefits award in a heart case merely that decedent was doing work sufficiently exerting to bring on the attack and that his heart condition had already reached a stage at which his usual work was difficult for him was reversed and remanded for failure of the Board to apply the proper test of whether his work at the time was sufficiently strenuous to require more than normal exertion. Traversone v Lee Bros. Storage, Inc., 17 A.D.2d 175, 233 N.Y.S.2d 328, 1962 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7282 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1962).

While it is true that the "usual work" test of accidental injury has lost most, if not all, of its former significance, there still remains a question as to whether the regular job activity itself entails greater exertion than ordinary wear and tear of life. Lerner v Terrycab Co., 20 A.D.2d 615, 245 N.Y.S.2d 565, 1963 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2612 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1963).

Where board could properly find that decedent's activities on day upon which he suffered heart attack constituted arduous work, fact that he was performing his usual activities is not controlling as to the question of whether his resulting death is compensable. Post v Wallauer Paint Co., 22 A.D.2d 981, 254 N.Y.S.2d 720, 1964 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2541 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1964).

A heart attack brought on by overexertion or strain and suffered in the course of employment, is compensable only if the regular job activity shall entail greater exertion than the ordinary wear and tear of life, and the heart attack shall have been produced by the "unusually hard" work thus demanded. Schuren v Wolfson, 33 A.D.2d 601, 304 N.Y.S.2d 510, 1969 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3021 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1969), rev'd, 30 N.Y.2d 90, 330 N.Y.S.2d 368, 281 N.E.2d 169, 1972 N.Y. LEXIS 1483 (N.Y. 1972).

To constitute "strenuous work" so as to sustain an award for death resulting from a heart attack, the activities involved must from the standpoint of the average man be sufficiently arduous to entail "greater exertion than the ordinary wear and tear of life." McCormick v Green Bus Lines, Inc., 33 A.D.2d 630, 304 N.Y.S.2d 807, 1969 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2992 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1969), rev'd, 29 N.Y.2d 246, 326 N.Y.S.2d 557, 276 N.E.2d 619, 1971 N.Y. LEXIS 965 (N.Y. 1971).

Substantial medical evidence supported Board's determination that claimant's myocardial infarction, which occurred while claimant was performing his job duties as an automobile parts delivery man, was not causally related to claimant's work since Board is not required to find compensability or hold that strenuous effort is a proximate cause of subsequent cardiac events merely because such an event occurs during work duties. Fitch v Jake Nussbaum Auto Parts, Inc., 84 A.D.2d 639, 444 N.Y.S.2d 287, 1981 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 15759 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1981).

208. —Assuming new duties requiring greater effort

Two weeks after a cloth cutter began to do heavier work which required greater effort and exertion, during which period he worked at least one hour overtime each day, he suffered a coronary infarction which medical testimony showed was causally related to his employment. Award for death benefits affirmed. Hochman v Salable Coat Co., 2 A.D.2d 623, 151 N.Y.S.2d 806, 1956 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5473 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1956).

Claimant, who had been engaged in a sedentary occupation, took a job as material handler. On the fourth day he died of a heart attack. In view of the heavier work and medical proof to indicate that it contributed to his death, the award was confirmed. Valente v Ford Motor Co., 3 A.D.2d 801, 160 N.Y.S.2d 199, 1957 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6085 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), app. denied, 3 N.Y.2d 705, 1957 N.Y. LEXIS 1333 (N.Y. 1957).

There was sufficient evidence to sustain a finding that an employee's death was due to heart attack occasioned by an "accident" in course of employment where it appeared that, prior to his death, he had been operating a very heavy and powerful bulldozer on construction operations as a "push cat" operator for only two weeks, following previous work as an oiler, that he began to develop cardiac symptoms shortly after he started as a push cat operator and finally, on a day when special difficulties were encountered because of wet soil complained of illness at the end of the day's work and died within a few hours thereafter. Hudson v Waddington Constr., 14 A.D.2d 463, 217 N.Y.S.2d 130, 1961 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10158 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1961).

Evidence that, on the day of the alleged accident causing a back injury, plaintiff was using a chip hammer which weighed about 35 pounds and had to be picked up and down, the hammer being of a different and heavier type than customarily used by him and requiring different handling, and had to quit work and go to the hospital because he was suffering such pains in his back, was sufficient to sustain a disability award for the back injury. Chadburn v Drachman Demolition Co., 17 A.D.2d 1008, 233 N.Y.S.2d 902, 1962 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6990 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1962).

Evidence support conclusion that decedent's fatal heart attack was causally related to his employment with county sheriff's department as Operations Lieutenant at local jail, despite existence of other contributing conditions, where several witnesses testified to stressful working conditions under which decedent was required to function and how those conditions, coupled with shift change, manifested in physical symptoms, and medical testimony from decedent's attending physician and impartial cardiologist unequivocally supported those observations, resulting in their conclusion that change in shift after 11 years was stressful and that such stress was significant contributing cause of decedent's heart attack. Joslyn v Oneida County Sheriff's Dep't, 267 A.D.2d 891, 700 N.Y.S.2d 548, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13610 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1999).

Claimant, grade C business development officer required to bring in commercial loans, was properly found not to have sustained compensable injury based on work-related stress, anxiety, and depression where his supervisor testified that as result of claimant's lack of accounting background, she initially viewed standard goal for grade C business development officers as unrealistic for claimant and thus set significantly lower goal for him for 1995 in order to provide him with period to adjust or complete additional course work, and supervisor, after realizing that she did not have discretion to depart from standard goals set by employer, advised claimant in September 1995 that he would be expected to meet standard goal for position in question beginning in 1996. Chaousy v Marine Midland Bank, 269 A.D.2d 625, 702 N.Y.S.2d 703, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1106 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2000).

209. —Climbing ladders or stairs

A blacksmith with a pre-existing heart condition who regularly climbed 3 flights of stairs in the course of his employment and suffered a fatal heart attack while climbing them at quitting time does not sustain an accidental injury under this section. Arberger v International Hydro-Electric Corp., 256 A.D. 1019, 10 N.Y.S.2d 490, 1939 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5904 (N.Y. App. Div. 1939).

A janitress who climbed four flights of stairs three times within a twenty minute interval and suffered a coronary occlusion, sustains an accidental injury under this section. McCormack v Wood Harmon Warranty Corp., 263 A.D. 914, 32 N.Y.S.2d 145, 1942 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7346 (N.Y. App. Div.), aff'd, 288 N.Y. 614, 42 N.E.2d 613, 288 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 614, 1942 N.Y. LEXIS 1459 (N.Y. 1942).

A waiter employed to serve drinks at a party requiring that he descend about fifteen to twenty steps to the bar and to climb the same steps after the order was filled suffers an accidental injury where he sustained a fatal heart condition and it appears that his ordinary occupation was not strenuous but that on the night in question he was subjected to an unusual and excessive expenditure of effort. Mark v Myrod Amusement Corp., 267 A.D. 844, 45 N.Y.S.2d 748, 1944 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5074 (N.Y. App. Div. 1944).

The activities of a 64-year old plumber with existing arteriosclerosis in walking to the top of a 6-floor building with 55 lbs of equipment on a hot day and there working with a burning torch causing an acute left ventricular failure was an accident within the meaning of this law. Gillar v Jarcho Bros., Inc., 282 A.D. 968, 125 N.Y.S.2d 465, 1953 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5595 (N.Y. App. Div. 1953).

After making several trips from the main level of a building to the basement, a housing project building superintendent with a pre-existing cardiac condition collapsed and died. Award for death benefits affirmed. Snyder v New York State Vererans Emergency Housing Project, 1 A.D.2d 712, 146 N.Y.S.2d 781, 1955 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3727 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1955).

An employee who suffered a heart attack while doing his regular work could be found to have sustained a compensable accident where the work entailed a heavy physical strain. The employee was making 15 or 20 trips daily up and down the fourteen stories of a building he was working in. Fisher v Buffalo Electric Co., 2 A.D.2d 612, 151 N.Y.S.2d 959, 1956 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5455 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1956).

Decedent, employed as inspector of buildings, was required to climb several flights of stairs in course of duties. He suffered a coronary occlusion and died. Board properly found that occurrence of accidental injury had not been established. Cunningham v New York City Housing Administration, 5 A.D.2d 1032, 173 N.Y.S.2d 168, 1958 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7347 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1958).

There was ample evidence to show that death was attributable to a heart condition induced by exertion, with nothing to indicate that ingestion of alcohol had any significant effect, where it appeared that deceased, a construction laborer, carried tools up 13 flights of stairs twice on the same day because of inability to use the elevator, the temperature on that day was over 92 degrees, and was observed to be "sick and white" before he went home to rest, then went to the hospital after imbibing 12 drinks of gin. Corso v Tandy & Allen Associates, 10 A.D.2d 741, 197 N.Y.S.2d 510, 1960 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11180 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1960).

There was substantial evidence to support a death benefit award where it appeared that, since December 30, 1953, decedent had been suffering from heart disease but nevertheless continued to work as night watchman in a carpet mill, which work required him to climb a number of flights of stairs each hour and walk a half mile to punch time clocks at 10 different stations and that, at the time he suffered the heart attack, he was climbing stairs on the third trip, having climbed 22 flights in the previous two and a quarter hours, suffered a heart attack, fell down stairs, and struck his head. Brandes v Mohawk Carpet Mills, Inc., 11 A.D.2d 878, 202 N.Y.S.2d 580, 1960 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8410 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1960).

An award of death benefits was reversed, as not based on any showing of undue strain in course of employment, where it merely appeared that decedent, a carpenter working on a construction job, after climbing a flight of steps carrying his tools, which weighed six to seven pounds, went back to his car and collapsed and died while reparking it. Bloom v Israel Cohen & Son, 16 A.D.2d 841, 227 N.Y.S.2d 747, 1962 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9965 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1962).

On the basis of conflicting medical testimony, the Board could find that decedent's death from a myocardial infarction on July 15, 1960, was causally related to overexertion on June 24 while inspecting, in course of employment, on a brisk day, a certain power project over a two and one-half hour period which involved climbing and descending ladders and negotiating rough and uneven terrain. Maurin v N. Y. S. Dep't of Labor, 17 A.D.2d 880, 233 N.Y.S.2d 336, 1962 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7314 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1962), app. denied, 12 N.Y.2d 645, 1963 N.Y. LEXIS 1513 (N.Y. 1963).

A fatal heart attack sustained by a 35-year-old employee after ascending a 50-foot ladder following work with a three-man crew raising 35-pound galvanized sheets to a scaffold by means of a pulley could properly be found to be compensable. Pickhardt v C. H. Heist Ohio Corp., 20 A.D.2d 737, 246 N.Y.S.2d 850, 1964 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4382 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), app. denied, 14 N.Y.2d 484, 1964 N.Y. LEXIS 1739 (N.Y. 1964).

Where it appeared that deceased had been under medical care for a heart condition since 1956 and had suffered a coronary occlusion on January 31, 1958 requiring hospitalization for four weeks, the Board could find that claimant had not sustained an industrial accident but that his subsequent fatal heart attack was due to natural progression of an underlying coronary disease, notwithstanding contention that he suffered extraordinary strain in climbing subway stairs in getting to work on the day of his death. Schwarz v Benedict & Benedict, 21 A.D.2d 921, 251 N.Y.S.2d 175, 1964 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3353 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1964).

Where death occurred very shortly after pipefitter ascended ladder with 5 pound pipe wrench, and claimant's medical consultant testified that activities just prior to death entailed more than ordinary exertion, although carrier's medical witness testified to contrary, board's finding that there was a causal relation between death and work performed by decedent was supported by substantial evidence. Viola v Macander Corp., 28 A.D.2d 1025, 284 N.Y.S.2d 109, 1967 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3270 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), app. denied, 21 N.Y.2d 641, 1967 N.Y. LEXIS 1845 (N.Y. 1967).

Evidence that door-to-door solicitor collapsed and died after climbing four flights of stairs while carrying an 11-pound fibreboard case to deliver certain merchandise previously ordered by a customer sustains finding of board that such activity constituted an "unusual strain and exertion" and was "arduous and of sufficient effect to precipitate the vascular demise" and that accordingly "claimant sustained an accidental injury arising out of and in the course of his employment." Rothstein v Fuller Brush Co., 30 A.D.2d 748, 291 N.Y.S.2d 245, 1968 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3605 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1968).

Death benefits were properly paid to survivors of a plumber who died at home on a Sunday following a heart attack, where evidence revealed that the previous Friday decedent had performed strenuous work involving climbing 14 to 16 flights of stairs three times carrying tool and pipe which weighed from 2 to 70 pounds. The court rejected the argument that recovery could not be had in heart attack cases unless the attack followed as an "immediate result" of the exertion, holding that immediate result had never been a prerequisite to recovery. Wynn v Paramount Plumbing Co., 33 A.D.2d 529, 303 N.Y.S.2d 820, 1969 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3249 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1969).

210. —Delivery work

A truck driver who exerted himself carrying a trunk up three flights of stairs and as the result of which suffered a lung hemorrhage and aggravated a pre-existing pulmonary tuberculosis sustains an accidental injury under this section. Jacques v Railway Express Agency, Inc., 272 A.D. 987, 72 N.Y.S.2d 710, 1947 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4514 (N.Y. App. Div. 1947).

A delivery truck helper who carried a case of beer weighing 60 pounds over a snow and ice covered driveway, as the result of which he suffered a fatal coronary occlusion sustains an accidental injury. Serie v F. & M. Schaefer Brewing Co., 273 A.D. 833, 76 N.Y.S.2d 50, 1948 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4839 (N.Y. App. Div. 1948).

Proof that the heat of the sun and the effort involved in delivering loads of brick contributed to a death caused by heart disease was sufficient to sustain an award. Murphy v General Builders Supply Corp., 282 A.D. 898, 125 N.Y.S.2d 66, 1953 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5366 (N.Y. App. Div. 1953).

Evidence that an employee worked fourteen hours delivering cases of beer, suffered a coughing spell during the course of this employment and died of a coronary infarction shortly after arriving home was sufficient to sustain award for death benefits. Cafiero v P. Ballantine & Sons, 1 A.D.2d 527, 151 N.Y.S.2d 862, 1956 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5422 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), app. denied, 2 N.Y.2d 705, 1956 N.Y. LEXIS 1178 (N.Y. 1956).

A drug store clerk was fully able to work, despite a heart condition. One day he was called upon to deliver some medicine in a hurry and ran up five flights of stairs to do so. Award for heart attack affirmed. Unger v Reid & Snyder, Inc., 3 A.D.2d 780, 160 N.Y.S.2d 400, 1957 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6188 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1957).

Claimant, who operated a milk route, was put to unusual strain and effort because of manner in which truck was loaded and while working felt choking and had sensation in substernal area. Subsequent examination by doctor found him to be suffering from heart failure. Award affirmed. Sanders v Samuel Adler, Inc., 5 A.D.2d 1028, 173 N.Y.S.2d 322, 1958 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6183 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1958).

Where claimant, regularly assigned to clerical work for his employer in the hardware supply business, also made deliveries of materials when the employer was short of help, and suffered an acute heart attack on a hot day while delivering 30 cases of tile to a customer, each weighing 75 pounds, the facts presented a "classic" case of industrial accident heart attack for which the Workmen's Compensation Board could properly award compensation, notwithstanding some inconsistencies and vagaries in testimony of medical witnesses.
