Proceeding to stay arbitration, commenced more than 20 days after petitioner was served with demand for arbitration, was barred by CLS CPLR § 7503(c) since petitioner's claim, that there was no physical contact between respondents' vehicle and allegedly offending vehicle, related to whether certain conditions of contract had been complied with and not whether parties had agreed to arbitrate, and thus such contention was outside exception articulated in Matter of Matarasso (Continental Casualty Company), 56 NY2d 264. Allstate Ins. Co. v Taylor, 271 A.D.2d 443, 706 N.Y.S.2d 135, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3802 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2000).

Petitioner's application to stay arbitration of uninsured motorist claim should have been brought within 20-day limitation period of CLS CPLR § 7503(c) where issue of physical contact with uninsured vehicle related to whether certain conditions of coverage were satisfied; thus, since proceeding was commenced more than 4 months after demand was served, it was untimely and should have been dismissed. Merchants Mut. Ins. Co. v Anemone, 271 A.D.2d 690, 707 N.Y.S.2d 865, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4517 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2000).

Issue of whether court erred in permanently staying arbitration of uninsured motorist claim, on ground that insurance policy was void ab initio, could be raised for first time on appeal as it presented issue of law which appeared on face of record and could not have been avoided if raised at proper juncture. Insurance Co. of N. Am. v Kaplun, 274 A.D.2d 293, 713 N.Y.S.2d 214, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9274 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2000).

Petition to stay arbitration of uninsured motorist claim was properly granted, without prejudice to service of new demand for arbitration should court in pending personal injury action determine that vehicle involved in collision with claimant's vehicle was stolen prior to accident and was being driven without permission at time of accident, as alleged by its owner and owner's insurer in personal injury action. Eagle Ins. Co. v Nowaz, 276 A.D.2d 628, 714 N.Y.S.2d 313, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10337 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2000).

In proceeding to stay arbitration of uninsured motorist claim, issue of fact existed as to whether cancellation of insurance on offending vehicle was invalid due to noncompliance with CLS Bank § 576 and, since such issue could not be properly litigated without joinder of alleged insurer of offending vehicle, hearing was warranted, preceded by order joining alleged insurer, as well as owner and driver of offending vehicle. Eagle Ins. Co. v Lucero, 276 A.D.2d 695, 716 N.Y.S.2d 317, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10880 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2000).

In proceeding to stay arbitration of uninsured motorist claim, it was abuse of discretion to grant respondents' motion to vacate their default in appearing or opposing petition where their counsel conceded at hearing that she was served with petition, and there was no evidence of reasonable excuse for default. State Farm Ins. Co. v Aroutiqunian, 284 A.D.2d 337, 725 N.Y.S.2d 885, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5630 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2001).

While specific venue provisions of CLS CPLR § 7502(a)(i) supersede general venue provisions for special proceedings (CLS CPLR § 506), CLS CPLR Art 5 procedures for changing venue were applicable to instant proceeding to stay arbitration of uninsured motorist claim; thus, in absence of motion or consent, court had no authority to sua sponte change venue. Phoenix Ins. Co. v Casteneda, 287 A.D.2d 507, 731 N.Y.S.2d 224, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9419 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2001).

Insurer would not be entitled to stay of arbitration if it had sufficient time to enforce its rights under policy to demand physical examination or oral examination and failed to exercise those rights; if insurer presents justifiable excuse for its failure, temporary stay of arbitration may be granted to allow insurer to obtain discovery, with either determination being made by court of competent jurisdiction. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 01-12-02.

90. —Stay warranted

Insurance company was entitled to stay of uninsured motorist arbitration to recover benefits for accident in which driver abandoned and fled offending vehicle and was never identified where insured did not file required statement under oath pertaining to hit and run accident until long after policy limit of 90 days had passed, and provided no reasonable excuse for such failure. Liberty Mut. Ins. Co. v Mancuso, 202 A.D.2d 428, 608 N.Y.S.2d 527, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1879 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1994).

Insurance company was entitled to permanent stay of arbitration of claim for uninsured motorist benefits where policy provided that company was entitled to reduce amount payable under uninsured motorist coverage by all sums paid to insured for workers' compensation, and insured had received workers' compensation benefits exceeding policy limit for uninsured motorist benefits. United States Fire Ins. Co. v Fotinakos, 203 A.D.2d 296, 609 N.Y.S.2d 672, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3138 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1994).

Insurance company was entitled to permanent stay of arbitration of uninsured motorist claim based on failure of insured to give timely notice of claim where insured had made numerous inquiries as to whereabouts of owner and driver of other vehicle involved in collision and as to existence of insurance coverage for such individuals, and results of those inquiries should have alerted him to fact that he had potential uninsured motorist claim. Nova Casualty Co. v Helmstadt, 204 A.D.2d 330, 611 N.Y.S.2d 271, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4510 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1994).

Court properly granted insurer's petition to stay arbitration of underinsured motorist claim, since plaintiff's decedent (insured) was not entitled to underinsured motorist benefits under excess policy issued by insurer where terms of supplementary uninsured motorist endorsement provided that insured's primary underinsurance coverage would be deducted from maximum amount he could recover under excess policy. Progressive Casualty Ins. Co. v Dursi, 206 A.D.2d 484, 615 N.Y.S.2d 998, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7457 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1994).

Court properly granted insurer's application to permanently stay arbitration of claim for underinsured motorist benefits where insured failed to offer any valid excuse for her failure to comply with notice requirements of policy. Travelers Ins. Co. v Littleton, 218 A.D.2d 661, 630 N.Y.S.2d 353, 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8280 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1995).

Court properly granted insurer's petition to permanently stay arbitration of uninsured motorist claim where there was prior unimpeached arbitration award in favor of insurer, and insurer agreed to submit to no more than one single arbitration relative to one single injury claimed to have been caused by one single uninsured motor vehicle involved in case. Aetna Casualty & Sur. Co. v Bonilla, 219 A.D.2d 708, 631 N.Y.S.2d 438, 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9533 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1995).

Insurer was entitled to permanent stay of arbitration of claim for underinsured motorist coverage where insured was aware of policy limitations of offending vehicle prior to trial and could have provided required notice before any possibility of prejudice to insurer's rights arose, and notice was not received by insurer until nearly 3 years after accident, with no reasonable excuse offered for delay. Nationwide Mut. Ins. Co. v Oglesby, 219 A.D.2d 771, 646 N.Y.S.2d 63, 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9253 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1995).

Supreme Court properly granted petition to permanently stay arbitration of uninsured motorist claim on evidence of permissive use of insured vehicle. Eagle Ins. Co. v Suarez, 223 A.D.2d 542, 636 N.Y.S.2d 1013, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 180 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1996).

Application to permanently stay arbitration of uninsured motorist claim was properly granted where insureds failed to comply with notice requirement in uninsured motorist endorsement of policy or establish valid excuse for their failure to do so; insureds' failing of claim for no-fault benefits did not satisfy notice requirement. Nationwide Ins. Co. v Bietsch, 224 A.D.2d 623, 639 N.Y.S.2d 707, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1388 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1996).

Insurer was not liable for uninsured motorist benefits to estate of decedent, who was killed while passenger in vehicle insured by insurer, where offset provision of uninsured motorist endorsement contained in insured's policy was enforceable, and amount of estate's settlement with insurer exceeded amount of uninsured motorist benefits payable under policy; thus, court should have granted insurer's motion to stay arbitration of uninsured motorist claim. American Mfrs. Mut. Ins. Co. v Lucenti, 228 A.D.2d 495, 644 N.Y.S.2d 294, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6622 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1996).

No effective cancellation of assigned risk automobile insurance policy was shown, and thus stay of arbitration of uninsured motorist claim should have been granted, where carrier who issued policy conceded at hearing before court that its final premium bill did not contain statement advising policyholder that payment could be made directly to insurance company or to "producer of record" as required by Rules of New York Automobile Insurance Plan § 14(E)(2)(b). State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. v McLean, 228 A.D.2d 510, 643 N.Y.S.2d 680, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6570 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1996).

Insurer was entitled to stay of arbitration of claim for uninsured motorist benefits where insured was injured while passenger in uninsured vehicle owned by his foster brother, who was "family member" within meaning of insured's policy, which excluded coverage to insured individual who was injured while occupying vehicle owned by "family member." New York Cent. Mut. Fire Ins. Co. v Prehoda by Prehoda, 231 A.D.2d 829, 647 N.Y.S.2d 66, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9350 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1996).

Court properly granted insurer's application to stay arbitration of uninsured motorist claim where insureds did not serve notice of intention to file such claim within 90 days after accident or as soon as practicable, having failed to diligently attempt to determine whether driver of other vehicle was insured, and then also failing to serve insurer with notice of intention as soon as they should have been aware that other vehicle was alleged to have been stolen. Country-Wide Ins. Co. v Aubry, 233 A.D.2d 189, 649 N.Y.S.2d 155, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11668 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1996).

Court erred in denying insurer's application to stay arbitration of underinsured motorist claim where insureds' notice to insurer of their intention to file claim under insured or underinsured motorist endorsement of their insurance policy was untimely as matter of law, and insurer's 3 ½ -month delay in giving notice of its disclaimer was not unreasonable in light of insureds' unexcused failure to complete and return requested forms. Liberty Mut. Ins. Co. v Dombroski, 235 A.D.2d 606, 651 N.Y.S.2d 711, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1997).

Insurer was entitled to stay of arbitration on underinsured motorist claim of passenger in insured car that had been involved in collision, since passenger's delay of more than one year in giving insurer written notice of her claim was unreasonable where she had been notified months earlier of low limits of liability on policy of other driver involved in collision, whose fault was apparent, and it was also apparent that other injured parties would seek recovery on same policy. Nationwide Ins. Co. v De Rose, 241 A.D.2d 607, 659 N.Y.S.2d 342, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7213 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1997).

Court improperly denied insurer's petition for permanent stay of arbitration and directed that arbitration proceed in accordance with insured's demand for supplemental uninsured motorist coverage where fact issue existed as to whether, under circumstances, notice of claim was given to insurer as soon as practicable 4 months after insured knew or should have known he had potential serious injury. Travelers Ins. Co. v DeLosh, 249 A.D.2d 924, 672 N.Y.S.2d 219, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5008 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1998).

Court erred in dismissing, without hearing, so much of insurer's petition to stay arbitration of uninsured motorist claim pending, inter alia, addition of second insurer as respondent and determination as to whether offending vehicle at issue was "uninsured," where insurer established prima facie case as to existence of insurance coverage for subject vehicle by, inter alia, production of police accident report which contained offending vehicle's insurance code designation, and letters proffered by insured from second insurer as to purported disclaimer of coverage merely raised fact issue as to whether second insurer's disclaimer was proper. Lumbermens Mut. Cas. Co. v Beliard, 256 A.D.2d 579, 682 N.Y.S.2d 430, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 14002 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1998).

Insurer was entitled to permanent stay of arbitration of underinsured motorist claim based on insured's substantial delay in providing notice of claim, failure to act with due diligence in ascertaining insurance status of other vehicles involved in collision, and lack of excuse for delay, where accident occurred on May 20, 1995, insured commenced action against 3 tortfeasors in June of 1996, she learned in June of 1997 that one tortfeasor was insured for "only $35,000," and she did not notify insurer of her underinsured motorist claim until July 8, 1997. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. v Adams, 259 A.D.2d 551, 686 N.Y.S.2d 438, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2212 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1999).

Insurer was entitled to permanent stay of arbitration of underinsured motorist claim where declarations page of car insurance policy contained single, combined limit of uninsured/underinsured motorist coverage, offset provision of policy was thus valid and enforceable, and amount to be offset equaled policy limit. General Accident Ins. Co. v Brown, 263 A.D.2d 542, 693 N.Y.S.2d 223, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8380 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1999).

Insured did not notify insurer of uninsured motorist claim "as soon as practicable" as required by liability policy, and thus insurer was entitled to permanent stay of arbitration of that claim, where insured was involved in motor vehicle accident with alleged uninsured vehicle in February 1997 but did not provide insurer with notice of her intent to file uninsured motorist claim until December 1997, 2 months after she received notice of disclaimer from tortfeasor's insurance company, and insured offered no evidence of any efforts to acquire information regarding insurance coverage. Eagle Ins. Co. v Bernardine, 266 A.D.2d 543, 699 N.Y.S.2d 85, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12285 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1999).

Insurer was entitled to stay of arbitration of uninsured motorist claim where such coverage would not attach under insured's liability policy unless and until it was established that offending vehicle was uninsured on date of accident, and thus insurer was not yet required to timely disclaim such coverage. Nationwide Ins. Co. v Sillman, 266 A.D.2d 551, 699 N.Y.S.2d 98, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12293 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1999).

Arbitration of uninsured motorist claim would be stayed, and case would be remitted to Supreme Court to conduct evidentiary hearing on issue of whether offending vehicle was insured on date of accident, where petitioning insurer of insured's vehicle proved prima facie case of existence of coverage of offending vehicle by producing police accident report containing offending vehicle's insurance code designation, and letter offered by offending vehicle's alleged insurer concerning purported disclaimer of coverage merely raised triable issue of fact as to whether disclaimer was proper. Nationwide Ins. Co. v Sillman, 266 A.D.2d 551, 699 N.Y.S.2d 98, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12293 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1999).

Court properly granted insurer's application to permanently stay arbitration of supplementary uninsured motorist benefits where insured offered no excuse for failure to comply with policy provision requiring as condition of payment of uninsured motorist benefits that "(i)f the insured ... brings any lawsuit against any person or organization legally responsible for the use of a motor vehicle involved in the accident, a copy of the summons and complaint or other process served in connection with the lawsuit shall be forwarded immediately to us by the insured or the insured's legal representative." Nationwide Mut. Ins. Co. v Vivas, 267 A.D.2d 105, 699 N.Y.S.2d 410, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12998 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1999).

Court properly granted insurer's motion to stay arbitration of claim for underinsured motorist benefits where relevant provision of insurance policy required that insured give notice of claim to insurer "as soon as practicable," insured provided notice of possible underinsurance claim more than 18 months after accident, and he failed to show that he acted with due diligence in ascertaining insurance status of offending vehicles. American Cas. Ins. Co. v Silverman, 271 A.D.2d 528, 705 N.Y.S.2d 676, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4034 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2000).

Former wife was not covered person entitled to supplementary uninsured motorist benefits under her former husband's insurance policy where policy provided such coverage only for "named insured and, while residents of the same household (the insured's) spouse and the relatives of either of (the named insured or spouse)," notwithstanding that former wife stored some belongings in her then-estranged husband's home, had key, and would visit to obtain clothing, since she admitted in sworn documents and in police accident report that she had been living separate and apart from her husband at time of accident and that her resident address was not marital address. Nationwide Ins. Co. v Smaller, 271 A.D.2d 537, 706 N.Y.S.2d 140, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4015 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2000).

Insurer was entitled to permanent stay of arbitration of uninsured motorist claim on basis of res judicata where insurer's prior petition to permanently stay arbitration of underinsured/uninsured motorist claim was granted on respondents' default in appearing, and respondents did not move to vacate default. Eagle Ins. Co. v Facey, 272 A.D.2d 399, 707 N.Y.S.2d 238, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5118 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2000).

Court properly granted petition to permanently stay arbitration of respondents' supplemental uninsured motorist claim where, immediately following accident, respondents were aware of severity of respondent's injuries and identity of culpable driver, but they waited 30 months before considering action against driver for damages and filing claim with petitioner, and respondents offered no reasonable explanation for their delay. Nationwide Mut. Ins. Co. v Steber, 272 A.D.2d 940, 712 N.Y.S.2d 712, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5195 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 2000).

Court properly granted insurer's petition for permanent stay of arbitration of claim for uninsured motorist benefits where insured failed to timely complete and return claim forms or to offer reasonable excuse for her failure to do so, which was condition precedent to coverage under policy, and insured's claim that insurer had not proffered such claim forms was contrary to insured's implicit admissions. New York Cent. Mut. Fire Ins. Co. v Daley, 273 A.D.2d 315, 709 N.Y.S.2d 849, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6540 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2000).

Although it was error for court to hold that insurance policy was void ab initio due to claimant's fraudulent concealment of material fact in applying for coverage, because insurer never cancelled policy under CLS Veh & Tr § 313, insurer was entitled to permanent stay of uninsured motorist claim on ground that claimant's participation in fraud barred his recovery of benefits under policy; claimant was not innocent party that CLS Veh & Tr § 313 was intended to protect. Insurance Co. of N. Am. v Kaplun, 274 A.D.2d 293, 713 N.Y.S.2d 214, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9274 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2000).

Court properly granted insurer's petition to permanently stay arbitration of claim for underinsured motorist benefits where policy endorsement required insured to "immediately" forward copies of summons and complaint to insurer in event that insured commenced lawsuit against tortfeasor, and it was undisputed that insured waited more than 2 ½ years after commencement of underlying lawsuit before forwarding to insurer copies of summons and complaint. Nationwide Ins. Co. v Shedlick, 274 A.D.2d 519, 711 N.Y.S.2d 181, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8202 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2000).

Insurer was entitled to stay of arbitration where insured had not sent it copy of summons and complaint in his pending action against uninsured motorist until 9 months after he demanded arbitration of his uninsured motorist claim, thus violating condition precedent to uninsured motorist coverage. Nationwide Mut. Ins. Co. v Charles, 275 A.D.2d 324, 712 N.Y.S.2d 578, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8571 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2000).

Arbitration claim against insurer was properly stayed where insured failed to demonstrate that there had been physical contact between his vehicle and vehicle that had assertedly "cut off" his vehicle, causing him to lose control, leave road, and strike building. Countrywide Ins. Co. v Colon, 279 A.D.2d 427, 720 N.Y.S.2d 71, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 882 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2001).

Insurer was entitled to permanent stay of arbitration demanded by insureds under supplementary uninsured/underinsured motorist (SUM) provision of their policy where (1) under that policy, insurer was entitled to offset any liability under SUM endorsement by amount received by insureds from tortfeasor's insurer, (2) limits of insureds' policy did not exceed amount received by them from tortfeasor's insurer, which paid full amount of tortfeasor's liability coverage, and (3) thus, insureds were not entitled to recover under their policy's SUM endorsement. Metropolitan Prop. & Cas. Ins. Co. v Barriga, 281 A.D.2d 200, 727 N.Y.S.2d 304, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2206 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2001).

Insurer's motion to stay arbitration would be granted to extent of remanding case to motion court to conduct framed issue hearing as to whether insured was involved in hit-and-run accident where insurer identified enough inconsistencies in insured's descriptions of accident to raise triable issues of fact as to exactly how accident happened and, specifically, whether another vehicle made contact with insured's motorcycle. Lumbermens Mut. Cas. Co. v Nespolini, 281 A.D.2d 365, 722 N.Y.S.2d 166, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3185 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2001).

Insurer was entitled to permanent stay of arbitration where (1) insured failed to file, within 90 days of accident, statement under oath that he had cause of action arising from accident with "hit-and-run vehicle" as required for coverage under uninsured motorist endorsement of insurance policy, (2) insured's unsworn and undated application for no-fault benefits was not such statement, (3) failure to comply with that requirement vitiated coverage, and (4) insurer timely disclaimed coverage on first learning of grounds for disclaimer. Legion Ins. Co. v Estevez, 281 A.D.2d 420, 721 N.Y.S.2d 273, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2115 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2001).

Insured was not entitled to vacatur of his default in failing to appear in opposition to insurer's petition to permanently stay arbitration of uninsured motorist claim where insured did not show reasonable excuse for his default. AIU Ins. Co. v Fernandez, 281 A.D.2d 542, 721 N.Y.S.2d 840, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2606 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2001).

Plaintiff was precluded from recovering uninsured motorist benefits, and thus court properly granted insurer's motion to stay arbitration of uninsured motorist claim, where insured failed to report alleged hit-and-run accident to police within 24 hours or as soon as reasonably possible, as insurance policy required. Gov't Emples. Ins. Co. v Snell, 286 A.D.2d 682, 729 N.Y.S.2d 779, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8445 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2001).

Judgment staying the arbitration of an insured's claim for uninsured motorist benefits was proper because the liability insurer failed to establish the absence of coverage and the record supported the trial court's finding that, due to the lack of notice of the claim arising from the underlying traffic accident, the liability insurer's disclaimer of coverage was invalid; further, since the owner and the driver of the vehicle involved in the underlying accident did not breach their obligation to provide the liability insurer with timely notice, the insured's failure to exercise his "independent right" under N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(a)(3) to give the liability insurer that notice did not require a different result. Matter of Allstate Ins. Co. v Berger, 47 A.D.3d 708, 851 N.Y.S.2d 584, 2008 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 238 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2008).

Petitioner provided the appellate court with an alternatve ground for affirmance where the trial court had granted petitioner's N.Y. C.P.L.R. art. 75 petition to stay uninsured motorist arbitration, as additional respondent failed to comply with N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(e) by providing a notice of disclaimer to the driver of its insured party's vehicle. Allstate Ins. Co. v Leach, 15 A.D.3d 649, 789 N.Y.S.2d 910, 2005 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2050 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2005).

Insurer's motion to stay arbitration of an uninsured motorist claim was properly granted and N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(d), requiring timely notice of denial of coverage after a notice of claim was filed, was properly found to be inapplicable because the insurer's denial of coverage was based on the insured's fraudulent misrepresentation that he was driving a covered vehicle during the accident. Since the denial was based on the fraudulent misrepresentation, the concerns of prejudice to the insured from the lack of timely notice were not present; the insurer's motion for a stay of arbitration was properly granted. Utica Mut. Ins. Co. v Reid, 22 A.D.3d 127, 799 N.Y.S.2d 509, 2005 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8469 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2005).

Permanent stay of the arbitration of insureds' uninsured motorist claim was properly ordered because the insureds failed to complete and return a sworn claim form and the insurer made a timely, sufficient denial of coverage and disclaimer, N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(d), within 30 days of the insureds' notice of intention to arbitrate. Matter of New York Cent. Mut. Fire Ins. Co. v Gonzalez, 34 A.D.3d 816, 825 N.Y.S.2d 132, 2006 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 14318 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2006).

91. — —By proof motorist or vehicle not underinsured

Insurer was entitled to permanently stay arbitration of claim for underinsured motorist benefits, even though policy at issue was ambiguous as to whether insured had purchased merely uninsured coverage or whether he had also purchased underinsured coverage, since policy had $10,000 limit for bodily injury for "each person" and $20,000 limit for "each accident," and policy covering other vehicle had limit of $25,000; under circumstances, underinsured coverage was unavailable by definition. Aetna Casualty & Surety Co. v Kunz, 182 A.D.2d 685, 582 N.Y.S.2d 272, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5989 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1992).

Court properly granted insurer's application to stay arbitration of uninsured motorist claim where bodily injury limits of insureds' policy were same as bodily injury limits of tortfeasor's policy, and thus tortfeasor's vehicle was not underinsured. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. v Roth, 206 A.D.2d 376, 613 N.Y.S.2d 713, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7091 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1994), app. denied, 84 N.Y.2d 812, 622 N.Y.S.2d 915, 647 N.E.2d 121, 1995 N.Y. LEXIS 33 (N.Y. 1995).

Court properly granted insurer's application to stay arbitration of uninsured motorist claim where bodily injury liability limits to insured's policy were equal to bodily injury liability limits of offending vehicle's policy. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. v Hollis, 228 A.D.2d 685, 646 N.Y.S.2d 29, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7439 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1996).

Court properly granted insurer's motion to permanently stay arbitration of underinsured motorist claim where policy at issue contained single combined $10,000 limit of uninsured and underinsured motorist coverage, entitling insurer to offset of $10,000, which was amount that insured recovered from tortfeasor. Travelers Ins. Co. v Holt, 235 A.D.2d 428, 652 N.Y.S.2d 97, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 166 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1997).

Insurer was entitled to permanent stay of arbitration of uninsured motorist claim where amount of insured's settlement with tortfeasor equaled amount of policy's supplementary uninsured motorist coverage, and policy's offset provision specified that supplementary uninsured motorist payments to insured would be offset by payments "from or on behalf of all persons that may be legally liable for the bodily injury sustained by the insured"; insurer was not equitably estopped from asserting offset provision by virtue of fact that it approved of insured's settlement with tortfeasor's insurer and remained silent as to offset provision. Liberty Mut. Ins. Co. v Staltare, 236 A.D.2d 539, 654 N.Y.S.2d 154, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1352 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1997).

Insurer was entitled to stay of arbitration where insured, who was injured in collision with vehicle driven by defendant in underlying negligence action, did not ascertain amount of defendant's policy limits until over one year after start of negligence action, and he failed to prove any reasonable excuse for his delay in notifying insurer of his claim for underinsurance benefits. Allstate Ins. Co. v Dewyea, 245 A.D.2d 667, 664 N.Y.S.2d 684, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12588 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1997).

Underinsured motorist endorsement of policy issue to underlying plaintiff's husband was not triggered, and thus insurer under that policy was entitled to permanent stay of arbitration, where bodily injury liability limits in that policy were equal to those limits in policy covering offending vehicle. Liberty Mut. Ins. Co. v D'Antonio, 266 A.D.2d 393, 697 N.Y.S.2d 532, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11499 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1999).

Since the tortfeasor's and the insurer's policy limits for bodily injury liability were identical, pursuant to N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(f)(2)(A), the tortfeasor's vehicle was not underinsured; consequently, the insurer's N.Y. C.P.L.R. art. 75 petition to permanently stay arbitration of the insured's claim for underinsured motorist benefits should have been granted. Matter of Clarendon Natl. Ins. Co. v Nunez, 48 A.D.3d 460, 850 N.Y.S.2d 639, 2008 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1059 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2008), aff'd sub. nom., Allstate Ins. Co. v Rivera, 12 N.Y.3d 602, 883 N.Y.S.2d 755, 911 N.E.2d 817, 2009 N.Y. LEXIS 1750 (N.Y. 2009).

Passenger was not entitled to supplementary uninsured/underinsured motorists benefits under an insurance company's policy because the insurance company's policy provided $300,000 in coverage for bodily injuries less amounts for property damage, while the tortfeasor's policy provided $300,000 for bodily injuries plus amounts for property damage; thus, the tortfeasor was not underinsured for purposes of N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(f)(2)(A). Matter of Automobile Ins. Co. of Hartford v Ray, 51 A.D.3d 788, 858 N.Y.S.2d 288, 2008 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4306 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2008).

92. — —By proof motorist or vehicle not uninsured

Insurance company was entitled to permanent stay of uninsured motorist arbitration since it came forward with proof that offending vehicle was insured, and insured failed to meet burden to then show that vehicle lacked insurance where (1) language of notice of cancellation did not comply with CLS Veh & Tr § 313 and implementing regulations, and (2) there was no showing that notice was duly addressed and mailed or that there was office procedure used in regular course of business that ensured likelihood that notice was addressed and mailed. Insurance Co. of North America v Castro, 163 A.D.2d 313, 557 N.Y.S.2d 442, 1990 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8270 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1990).

Insurer was entitled to permanently stay arbitration of uninsured motorist claim where it established that driver of offending vehicle was insured by other insurer, which failed to establish that it had properly cancelled offending vehicle's policy prior to accident; proof of cancellation was insufficient where (1) "cancellation mailing register" merely indicated that piece of mail was received by post office and addressed to offending driver, (2) assigned risk technician stated that she did not have copy of notice because file had been destroyed in accordance with standard office procedures, (3) certificate of mailing did not reflect whether alleged notice was received, or what its contents were, and (4) testimony of technician who produced specimen cancellation notice and testified as to mailing practices generally did not give testimony as to reason for cancellation of policy. Worldwide Underwriters Ins. Co. v Lumbermans Mut. Casualty Co., 181 A.D.2d 784, 581 N.Y.S.2d 93, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3701 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1992).

Insurance company was entitled to permanent stay of arbitration sought by its insured pursuant to uninsured motorist coverage where (1) insurance company met burden of showing identity of owner of offending vehicle, and that it was insured at time of accident, by offering police report and testimony of insured, who was able to recall license number of offending vehicle, and (2) insurer of offending vehicle produced no evidence to establish that offending vehicle was not registered to person it insured or that vehicle was driven without his consent. Allstate Ins. Co. v Rock, 183 A.D.2d 616, 584 N.Y.S.2d 36, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7462 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1992).

Automobile insurance company was entitled to temporary stay of uninsured motorist arbitration where (1) company presented Department of Motor Vehicles Form DP-37 (registration plate record) which showed that offending vehicle was insured by other insurance company, (2) other insurance company submitted no papers, and (3) insured merely submitted letter from other insurance company in which it disclaimed coverage; letter did not conclusively establish lack of coverage of offending vehicle and hearing was required. Eagle Ins. Co. v Tichman, 185 A.D.2d 884, 586 N.Y.S.2d 1010, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9974 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1992).

In proceeding to stay uninsured motorist claim arbitration, insurance company met its initial burden to show that offending vehicle had insurance coverage by copy of registration plate record from Department of Motor Vehicles which indicated insurance coverage for vehicle. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. v Fenelon, 202 A.D.2d 436, 608 N.Y.S.2d 709, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1888 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1994).

Court erred in denying petition to stay arbitration of uninsured motorist claim where record of Department of Motor Vehicles submitted by petitioner was sufficient to raise fact issue as to whether vehicle which allegedly was involved in underlying accident with respondents was insured at that time. Allstate Ins. Co. v Moore, 228 A.D.2d 437, 643 N.Y.S.2d 419, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6241 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1996).

Insurer's petition to stay arbitration of uninsured motorist claim was properly granted where insurer submitted records of Department of Motor Vehicles indicating that offending vehicle was insured and letter from another insurer admitting that it insured vehicle on date of accident, and insured offered nothing to contradict those facts. Interboro Mut. Indem. Ins. Co. v Quichiz, 238 A.D.2d 421, 657 N.Y.S.2d 352, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3850 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1997).

Arbitration of uninsured motorist claim would be stayed where hearing was required to determine whether alleged offending vehicle was insured on date of accident; thus, matter would be remitted to Supreme Court for that purpose. Allstate Ins. Co. v Frederick, 266 A.D.2d 283, 698 N.Y.S.2d 266, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11316 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1999).

Underlying plaintiff's insurer was entitled to permanent stay of arbitration of uninsured motorist claim where 41-day delay of underlying defendant's insurer in disclaiming coverage for its insured's vehicle was unreasonable, and thus insurance coverage for that vehicle still existed. Colonial Penn Ins. Co. v Pevzner, 266 A.D.2d 391, 698 N.Y.S.2d 310, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11547 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1999).

Purported insurer of driver of second vehicle involved in underlying collision was necessary party that plaintiff insurer of first driver's vehicle was entitled to have added as respondent to petition for stay of arbitration of policy's uninsured motorist endorsement where petitioner submitted DMV records and police accident report indicating that purported insurer was second driver's insurer at time of collision, and purported insurer's bald disclaimer of coverage merely created triable issue of fact as to validity of disclaimer. N.Y. Cent. Mut. Fire Ins. Co. v Rozenberg, 281 A.D.2d 330, 723 N.Y.S.2d 9, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3197 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2001).

Petitioner was properly granted permanent stay of arbitration of uninsured motorist benefits claim on ground that offending vehicle was insured at time of accident, where insurer of offending vehicle disclaimed coverage solely to its insureds based on their failure to comply with their obligation to give prompt written notice of accident, and such disclaimer was not effective as against petitioner's insureds. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. v Joseph, 287 A.D.2d 724, 732 N.Y.S.2d 66, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10044 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2001).

In a case dealing with a multi-vehicle collision, the exhaustion of the alleged tortfeasors' policy limits in satisfaction of prior claims did not render that vehicle uninsured for purposes of the uninsured motorist endorsement of the injured party's policy with his insurer; thus, the trial court rejected the injured party's argument that he was entitled to uninsured motorist arbitration with his insurer as the alleged tortfeasors' vehicle was not, in effect, uninsured under N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(f)(2), and it permanently stayed the arbitration. Lancer Ins. Co. v Nechamkus, 5 A.D.3d 599, 774 N.Y.S.2d 63, 2004 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2684 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2004).

93. — —By unauthorized settlement by insured

Insurance company was entitled to permanent stay of arbitration of underinsured motorist benefits where (1) policy provided that no bodily injury coverage would be furnished if insured settled with tortfeasor without consent of insurance company, and (2) insured settled with offending driver and signed release which stated that release did not include any underinsured motorist claim relating to insured's policy; since it was not clear whether release was intended to preserve insurance company's subrogation rights, insured's failure to obtain insurance company's consent was prejudicial given that litigation would be required to determine meaning of release. State Farm Mut. Ins. Co. v Lopez, 163 A.D.2d 390, 558 N.Y.S.2d 118, 1990 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8888 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1990).

Insurance company's papers in support of application to stay arbitration of underinsured motorist claim clearly informed plaintiff in writing of disclaimer of liability and complied with requirements of CLS Ins § 3420(d); in view of circumstances giving rise to disclosure of plaintiff's settlement with other driver without consent of insurance company, it could not be said that insurance company's actions constituted waiver of right to disclaim, as disclaimer was made as soon as insurance company became aware of relevant facts. Aetna Casualty & Surety Co. v Scirica, 170 A.D.2d 448, 565 N.Y.S.2d 557, 1991 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1426 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't), app. denied, 78 N.Y.2d 851, 573 N.Y.S.2d 465, 577 N.E.2d 1057, 1991 N.Y. LEXIS 953 (N.Y. 1991).

Insurer's application for permanent stay of arbitration of its denial of underinsured motorist benefits was properly granted where insured failed to obtain insurer's consent to settling his claim against, and releasing from all liability, motorist who allegedly caused his injuries, in contravention of pertinent policy provisions. Continental Ins. Co. v Canni, 192 A.D.2d 651, 596 N.Y.S.2d 471, 1993 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3866 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1993).

Court properly granted insurer's application to permanently stay arbitration of insured's claim for underinsured motorist benefits where insured prejudiced insurer's subrogation rights by signing general release in favor of tortfeasor, and petition to stay arbitration provided sufficient and timely notice of disclaimer on that ground. Glens Falls Ins. Co. v Smith, 221 A.D.2d 529, 634 N.Y.S.2d 395, 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11844 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1995), app. denied, 87 N.Y.2d 809, 642 N.Y.S.2d 195, 664 N.E.2d 1258, 1996 N.Y. LEXIS 267 (N.Y. 1996).

Insured's failure to obtain insurer's consent prior to settlement with driver of other vehicle warranted granting of insurer's application to permanently stay arbitration of claim for underinsured motorist benefits. Allstate Ins. Co. v Palermo, 226 A.D.2d 457, 641 N.Y.S.2d 51, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3551 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1996).

Court properly granted insurer's petition to permanently stay of uninsured motorist arbitration where it was undisputed that insured breached condition of her policy by instituting personal injury action against owner of other vehicle involved in accident without forwarding to insurer copy of summons and complaint. Allstate Ins. Co. v Kruger, 264 A.D.2d 443, 694 N.Y.S.2d 132, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8694 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1999).

Neither waiver nor estoppel applied to prevent insurer from staying arbitration of claim under supplementary uninsured/underinsured motorist (SUM) coverage of policy, since insurer's letter to insured's counsel, calling attention to requirement that all other available policy limits be exhausted before SUM coverage would be triggered, did not constitute waiver of other conditions of policy, and thus insurer was entitled to deny coverage on basis of insured's failure to obtain its consent before settling with other party. New York Cent. Mut. Fire Ins. Co. v Cavanagh, 265 A.D.2d 787, 697 N.Y.S.2d 193, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10942 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1999), app. denied, 94 N.Y.2d 760, 706 N.Y.S.2d 80, 727 N.E.2d 577, 2000 N.Y. LEXIS 110 (N.Y. 2000).

Insurer was entitled to stay of insured's arbitration seeking benefits under supplemental uninsured motorists (SUM) endorsement, since letter advising insurer that insured was injured in accident and might have potential claim under SUM endorsement was insufficient to apprise insurer of pendency and settlement of action, and insurer properly disclaimed coverage one day after learning that insured had prosecuted and settled action against other party. Nationwide Mut. Ins. Co. v Tarsia, 265 A.D.2d 936, 695 N.Y.S.2d 811, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10088 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't), app. denied, 94 N.Y.2d 757, 704 N.Y.S.2d 532, 724 N.E.2d 770, 1999 N.Y. LEXIS 4037 (N.Y. 1999).

94. —Stay not warranted

Where insurance policy undisputedly contained agreement to arbitrate, insurer's claim that maximum coverage of tortfeasor driver's policy exceeded petitioner's insurance coverage was not basis to permanently stay arbitration of petitioner's underinsured motorist claim. Steck v State Farm Ins. Co., 89 N.Y.2d 1082, 659 N.Y.S.2d 839, 681 N.E.2d 1285, 1996 N.Y. LEXIS 667 (N.Y.), reh'g denied, 88 N.Y.2d 1018, 649 N.Y.S.2d 384, 672 N.E.2d 610, 1996 N.Y. LEXIS 3045 (N.Y. 1996).

Insurer was not entitled to permanent stay of arbitration under uninsured motorist provision of motor vehicle insurance policy where (1) Department of Motor Vehicles form indicated that offending vehicle was registered several days prior to accident and that it was insured by specified company at that time, (2) owner of offending vehicle testified that he submitted no application for insurance and paid sum of money to person he didn't really know, for which he received insurance card, (3) representative of specified insurance company stated that several searches of computer records revealed no policy written to operator of offending vehicle or anyone with similar name, and (4) insurance company failed to come forward with additional evidence of insured status of offending vehicle. Allstate Ins. Co. v Holmes, 173 A.D.2d 260, 569 N.Y.S.2d 658, 1991 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7100 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1991).

Automobile insurance company was not entitled to stay arbitration of uninsured motorist claim, notwithstanding contention that insured failed to inform police that accident involved hit-and-run driver, where (1) insured testified that unknown vehicle hit vehicle he was driving after he swerved in attempt to avoid collision, (2) insured could not recall whether he told police that there was actual physical contact between vehicles, and (3) police report indicated only that accident occurred when insured swerved in attempt to avoid collision; policy did not require that insured notify police of actual physical contact with unknown vehicle, and insured's description of accident was sufficient. Aetna Casualty & Surety Co. v Laing, 173 A.D.2d 610, 570 N.Y.S.2d 190, 1991 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7615 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1991).

Insurer was not entitled to stay arbitration of uninsured motorist claim where insurer of offending vehicle could disclaim coverage since (1) vehicle had been stolen and was being driven by thief at time of accident, and (2) offending vehicle's owner had not left vehicle unattended in violation of CLS Veh & Tr § 1210(a) since acquaintance of owner remained in vehicle after owner left. Hartford Ins. Co. v Aquaviva, 179 A.D.2d 546, 578 N.Y.S.2d 568, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 477 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1992).

Insurer was not entitled to stay arbitration of underinsured motorist benefits claim by its insured, who was injured while riding in vehicle struck from behind, after insured had recovered full amount available under policy covering offending vehicle; insured was not required to exhaust underinsurance benefits of policy held by driver of vehicle in which she was passenger, since bodily injury coverage limits on driver's policy were less than such limits on offending vehicle, and thus underinsurance provisions on driver's policy were never triggered. Federal Ins. Co. v Reingold, 181 A.D.2d 769, 581 N.Y.S.2d 249, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3746 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't), app. denied, 80 N.Y.2d 755, 588 N.Y.S.2d 823, 602 N.E.2d 231, 1992 N.Y. LEXIS 3110 (N.Y. 1992).

Arbitration of underinsured motorist benefits should not have been permanently stayed in light of factual issue as to whether claims representative had been informed of offending driver's policy limit offer prior to insured's acceptance where insured allegedly sent copy of offer to representative and discussed matter over phone, and representative did not object to either settlement or issuance of general release; although policy stated that underinsured motorist coverage would not be provided if action was settled without insurer's consent, policy did not require insured to obtain written consent, and thus representative's silence could be deemed acquiescence. Aetna Casualty & Surety Co. v Crown, 181 A.D.2d 883, 581 N.Y.S.2d 418, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5249 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1992).

Court properly dismissed insurer's proceeding to stay arbitration of underinsured motorist claim arising out of accident in which insured and 2 friends were walking along road when automobile struck and injured them, where record showed that tortfeasor-driver had single policy limit of $300,000, whereas insurer offered bodily injury coverage limits of $250,000 per person and $500,000 per accident, since determination of whether vehicle is underinsured is made by comparing bodily injury limits of claimant's insurance policy with bodily injury limits of tortfeasor's policy, and court correctly found that $500,000 per accident limit of insured's policy was controlling and exceeded tortfeasor's single policy limit. Allstate Ins. Co. v Hager, 199 A.D.2d 383, 605 N.Y.S.2d 310, 1993 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12063 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1993), app. denied, 83 N.Y.2d 757, 615 N.Y.S.2d 874, 639 N.E.2d 415, 1994 N.Y. LEXIS 1333 (N.Y. 1994).

Court erroneously granted petitioner's motion to stay arbitration of uninsured motorist claim where (1) petitioner offered copy of police report identifying offending vehicle as having been insured by insurance company, and copy of Department of Motor Vehicles Registration Plate Record, (2) insurance company's underwriting manager testified that 5 separate searches of company's records revealed no evidence that any policy of insurance had ever been issued to individual in question, and (3) petitioner failed to overcome company's rebuttal of its prima facie case. Allstate Ins. Co. v Karadag, 205 A.D.2d 531, 614 N.Y.S.2d 24, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6000 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1994).

Court erred in permanently staying arbitration of uninsured motorist claim arising out of accident which occurred on August 6, 1990, since demand for arbitration dated June 24, 1992 was made within 90 days of date when offending vehicle became "uninsured," and thus was timely under policy, where offending vehicle was insured on date of accident but insurer disclaimed coverage on June 4, 1992 due to insured's failure to report claim or fact that he had been served with legal documents. Colonial Penn Ins. Co. v Morin, 206 A.D.2d 531, 614 N.Y.S.2d 765, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7580 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1994).

"Bobcat"—machine used for plowing snow or in connection with landscaping work—was "motor vehicle" being operated on "public highway" when its owner-operator was moving it "on the sidewalk" when it "slid right into the side of" county-owned bus; thus, county was not entitled to stay arbitration of uninsured motorist claim on grounds, inter alia, that uninsured bobcat was neither "motor vehicle" nor was being operated on "public highway." County of Westchester v Winstead, 231 A.D.2d 630, 647 N.Y.S.2d 536, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9471 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1996).

Court erred in permanently staying arbitration of insured's claim for underinsured motorist benefits where policy required that claim be made within 90 days "or as soon as practicable," and insured notified insurer of his claim immediately after determining that insurance on other vehicle was inadequate to compensate insured for his injuries. Allstate Ins. Co. v White, 231 A.D.2d 950, 647 N.Y.S.2d 640, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10921 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1996).

Petition under CLS CPLR Art 75 to permanently stay arbitration of uninsured motorist claim was properly dismissed without hearing where Department of Motor Vehicles document showed that insurance coverage applicable to offending vehicle had terminated several weeks before accident, there was additional proof that insurer had mailed valid notice of cancellation to vehicle owner, there was no evidence of any defect in cancellation, and mere speculation by counsel that insurer might have failed to mail premium bill to owner before cancellation did not raise triable issue of fact. Eagle Ins. Co. v Awawadeh, 245 A.D.2d 372, 665 N.Y.S.2d 590, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12878 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1997).

Insurer waived its right to insist on prior written notice of insured's settlement with tortfeasor in underlying action, and thus insurer was not entitled to stay arbitration of insured's underinsured motorist claim, where insurer denied that claim 6 days after accident and never retreated from that denial despite extensive efforts by insured's attorney to keep insurer informed concerning progress of underlying action and insured's continuing intent to pursue underinsurance claim. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. v Callisto, 255 A.D.2d 876, 680 N.Y.S.2d 39, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12063 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1998).

It was error to grant petition to permanently stay arbitration of uninsured motorist claim where there was one-year delay between date of accident and date insurer was notified, neither insured, offending driver, nor injured party presented any evidence showing reasonable excuse for delay, and insurer promptly (within 10 days of receiving notice of accident) disclaimed coverage. State Farm Ins. Co. v Archer, 256 A.D.2d 348, 681 N.Y.S.2d 338, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13188 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1998).

Plaintiff was entitled to supplementary uninsured motorist benefits in amount to be determined after arbitration proceedings as prescribed by insurance policy where deduction of $10,000 paid to other persons injured in accident left offending vehicle with only $290,000 in available coverage, which was less than $300,000 provided under single limit policy covering vehicle in which plaintiff was passenger; thus, court erred in granting insurer's motion to stay arbitration. New York Cent. Mut. Fire Ins. Co. v White, 262 A.D.2d 415, 691 N.Y.S.2d 134, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6271 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't), app. denied, 94 N.Y.2d 751, 699 N.Y.S.2d 6, 721 N.E.2d 22, 1999 N.Y. LEXIS 3471 (N.Y. 1999).

Petition to permanently stay arbitration of underinsured motorist claim should have been denied where claimant's uninsured motorist policy had limit of $100,000, which exceeded tortfeasor's policy limit of $25,000, and there was no applicable policy exclusion. Allstate Ins. Co. v DeMorato, 262 A.D.2d 557, 694 N.Y.S.2d 67, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7061 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1999).

Insurer was not entitled to permanent stay of arbitration of underinsured motorist claim where present case was indistinguishable from Matter of Federal Ins. Co. v Stechman, 192 AD2d 531, in which there was similar policy provision requiring insured to promptly forward to insurer copies of legal papers served in connection with any action brought by insured against owner or driver of offending vehicle, and Stechman court held that term "legal papers" was ambiguous, that compliance with that provision was not condition precedent to underinsured motorist coverage, and that insured's failure to comply did not result in forfeiture of right to underinsurance benefits. Nationwide Ins. Co. v Sobiesiuk, 263 A.D.2d 510, 691 N.Y.S.2d 925, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8108 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1999).

In proceeding by insurer to permanently stay arbitration of uninsured motorist claim, insurer's unsubstantiated conjecture that there might have been some defect in cancellation of policy covering offending vehicle did not warrant hearing on issue of whether that vehicle was insured on date of collision. Allstate Ins. Co. v Lopez, 266 A.D.2d 209, 697 N.Y.S.2d 684, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11116 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1999).

Son was resident of his mother's household and thus insured person under supplementary uninsured motorists endorsement to automobile liability policy issued to mother, and thus insurer was not entitled to stay of arbitration under CLS CPLR § 7503(b), where son had his own key to mother's house and was free to come and go at will, he kept clothing and received mail there, and he spent 3 to 4 nights per week there and remainder of his time at home of mother's former boyfriend; person may have more than one residence for insurance coverage purposes. Prudential Prop. & Cas. Ins. Co. v Galioto, 266 A.D.2d 926, 697 N.Y.S.2d 415, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11741 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1999).

Court improperly granted petition to permanently stay arbitration of uninsured motorist claim where parties' documents raised fact issues as to whether offending vehicle was uninsured within meaning of policy issued by petitioner insurer to respondent, and whether alleged insurer of offending vehicle had properly disclaimed coverage; it was improper for court to determine that offending vehicle was insured without joinder of alleged insurer of offending vehicle and additional proposed respondents and, if necessary, hearing. New York Cent. Mut. Fire Ins. Co. v Paillant, 269 A.D.2d 451, 702 N.Y.S.2d 883, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1402 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2000).

In uninsured motorist (UM) arbitration proceeding by petitioner who was injured in hit-and-run accident while driving car leased from respondent rental company which argued that, because petitioner signed rental agreement waiving UM benefits, it was absolved of providing UM benefits and insurer of petitioner's own vehicle was required to provide primary UM benefits although that vehicle was not involved in accident, court properly declined to permanently stay arbitration or, in alternative, join petitioner's insurer as additional respondent and direct petitioner to secure primary UM coverage from its insurer, because respondent, as self-insured automobile rental company, was required to provide primary UM benefits. ELRAC, Inc. v Edwards, 270 A.D.2d 414, 705 N.Y.S.2d 265, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2965 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2000).

In uninsured motorist (UM) arbitration proceeding by petitioner who was involved in collision with unknown driver while operating car that she rented from self-insured automobile rental company, court erred in permanently staying arbitration against respondent rental company on ground that parties' rental agreement waived personal injury and UM protection, and in directing that arbitration proceed against insurer of petitioner's own vehicle although that vehicle was not involved in accident, as respondent rental company was obligated by law to provide primary UM benefits and, consequently, waiver in rental agreement was unenforceable. ELARC, Inc. v Fajardo, 270 A.D.2d 415, 705 N.Y.S.2d 264, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2959 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2000).

Court properly denied petition to permanently stay uninsured motorist arbitration where, in response to petitioner's submission of copy of police accident report and "registration record expansion" from Department of Motor Vehicles (DMV) indicating that offending vehicle was insured by "Allstate," respondent submitted letter in which Allstate denied coverage, and letter from DMV stating that driving privileges of owner and operator of offending vehicle had been revoked because vehicle was uninsured, which was sufficient to establish that offending vehicle was uninsured at time of accident. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. v Youngblood, 270 A.D.2d 493, 705 N.Y.S.2d 619, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3252 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2000).

Insurer was not entitled to permanent stay of arbitration where respondent was "resident of the same household" as holder of policy issued by insurer and thus was insured person for purposes of uninsured motorist endorsement of that policy. Interboro Mut. Indem. Ins. Co. v Johannesen, 273 A.D.2d 237, 709 N.Y.S.2d 445, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6259 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2000).

Insurer waived its right to seek permanent stay of arbitration by participating in arbitration proceeding instead of moving to temporarily stay it. Interboro Mut. Indem. v Johnson, 273 A.D.2d 238, 709 N.Y.S.2d 833, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6260 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2000).

Insurer was not entitled to permanent stay of arbitration of uninsured motorist claim where direct contact between respondents' vehicle and unidentified hit-and-run vehicle is not necessary to satisfy physical contact requirement of CLS Ins § 5217, collision involved multiple vehicles, and accident originated from collision with unidentified vehicle. Allstate Ins. Co. v Basdeo, 273 A.D.2d 466, 710 N.Y.S.2d 111, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7404 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2000).

Insurer was not entitled to permanent stay of arbitration of uninsured motorist coverage dispute on ground that insured persistently failed to comply with certain policy conditions where there was no support in policy language for insurer's claims that (1) insured was required to provide both recorded statement and examination under oath, and (2) written proof of loss had to be given by insured personally, not by letter from counsel. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. v Hernandez, 275 A.D.2d 989, 713 N.Y.S.2d 618, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9545 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 2000).

Prior arbitration decision, awarding appellant maximum amount of tortfeasor's liability coverage, did not preclude appellant from pursuing arbitration of underinsured motorist claim against her insurance carrier, where parties to prior arbitration had consented to provision limiting collateral estoppel effect of that determination to appellant's damages claim against tortfeasor. State Farm Ins. Co. v Smith, 277 A.D.2d 390, 717 N.Y.S.2d 210, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12070 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2000).

In proceeding to permanently stay arbitration of uninsured motorist claim on ground that policy issued to other driver in Virginia provided coverage for accident, where Virginia insurer argued that it cancelled policy in question retroactively under Virginia law based on material misrepresentations in application for insurance (namely that owner-applicant resided in Virginia and subject vehicle would be principally garaged in Virginia when in fact owner resided and garaged vehicle in New York at all relevant times), court resolved conflict of law question regarding validity of retroactive cancellation in favor of applying Virginia law, which permitted retroactive cancellation; New York's governmental interests, when balanced against Virginia's significant contacts with contract and legitimate governmental interest in protecting honest policyholders from bearing burden of paying claim incurred by dishonest policyholders, was not sufficiently compelling to warrant application of New York law, which does not permit retroactive cancellation. Eagle Ins. Co. v Singletary, 279 A.D.2d 56, 717 N.Y.S.2d 351, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13230 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2000).

Insurer was not entitled to stay of arbitration of underinsured motorist claim, there being no merit in its claims that, inter alia, underinsurance was not covered under "supplementary uninsured motorist endorsement," where (1) endorsement defined "uninsured motor vehicle" as one having bodily injury liability insurance that was less than third-party bodily injury liability limit of insured's policy at time of accident, and (2) insurer's claims related to whether certain conditions of policy had been complied with and not whether parties had agreed to arbitration; insurer's motion to renew, in which it sought to adduce evidence that policy's declarations page would have expressly mentioned "underinsurance" coverage if insured had purchased it, was properly denied for lack of explanation as to why such evidence was not presented on original motion. Empire Ins. Co. v Busse, 281 A.D.2d 377, 722 N.Y.S.2d 543, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3208 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2001).

Rhode Island had most significant contacts with parties and subject automobile insurance policy, and thus Rhode Island's 10-day notice provision for cancellation of coverage based on nonpayment of premiums applied, rather than 15-day provision in CLS Veh & Tr § 313(1)(a), where (1) alleged insured was Rhode Island resident with Rhode Island driver's license and car registered in Rhode Island, (2) insurer, which was doing business in Rhode Island, issued insurance policy in Rhode Island through Rhode Island Assigned Risk Unit, (3) policy provided for application of Rhode Island law, (4) notice of cancellation adhered to Rhode Island law, and (5) New York was merely situs of accident and domicile of other parties involved; thus, notice of cancellation was effective, alleged insured did not have insurance coverage at time of accident, and another motorist's insurer was not entitled to stay of arbitration of uninsured motorist claim Integon Ins. Co. v Garcia, 281 A.D.2d 480, 721 N.Y.S.2d 660, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2385 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2001).

In proceeding to compel arbitration of claims for underinsured and uninsured motorist benefits under policies issued to petitioner and his parents, court properly denied petition with respect to uninsured benefits based on petitioner's failure to inform respondent insurer of his potential claim, but erred in denying petition with respect to underinsured motorist claim, because insurer was estopped from denying underinsured motorist coverage on ground that petitioner did not exhaust benefits payable under policy covering tortfeasor's vehicle where it failed to respond to numerous letters from petitioner concerning settlement of underinsured motorist claim, and it clearly had notice of that claim. Brasco v Nationwide Mut. Ins. Co., 283 A.D.2d 492, 724 N.Y.S.2d 488, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5030 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2001).

Court improperly stayed arbitration of uninsured motorist claim where insured showed that he acted with due diligence in ascertaining insurance status of vehicles involved in accident, and in providing timely notice to insurer. Cont'l Ins. Co. v Boyar, 284 A.D.2d 332, 725 N.Y.S.2d 564, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5651 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2001).

Insurer was not entitled to stay of underinsured motorist arbitration on ground that respondents colluded to wrongfully compromise its rights by deceptively allocating total proceeds of underlying personal injury action against tortfeasor to other family members who were also injured in accident, where there was no allegation that injuries sustained by settling family members were not severe enough to warrant their receipt of full amount of tortfeasor's policy, and advanced age of settling family members (who were in their 80's and much older than respondents) provided reason to allocate proceeds so that elderly parties were paid immediately. Travelers Prop. Cas. Co. v Schoenheimer, 177 Misc. 2d 825, 676 N.Y.S.2d 902, 1998 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 366 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1998).

Petitioner was not entitled to stay of arbitration of underinsurance claim arising out of December 1997 automobile collision, on ground that respondent failed to make underinsurance claim "as soon as practicable" and failed to timely notify petitioner of her underlying lawsuit against tortfeasor, where respondent's counsel made diligent efforts to ascertain tortfeasor's insurance coverage but tortfeasor's insurer failed to disclose that no excess coverage existed until October 12, 2000 after it offered to settle respondent's personal injury claim for policy limit of $100,000, and petitioner would not honor underinsurance claim until question of excess insurance was resolved; under circumstances, toll in CLS Ins § 3420(f)(2)(A) remained intact until respondent's counsel notified petitioner in September 2000 about tortfeasor's liability coverage and potential for underinsurance claim which awaited response concerning excess insurance. CGU Ins. Co. v Nardelli, 188 Misc. 2d 560, 729 N.Y.S.2d 365, 2001 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 233 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 2001).

Where an insurer provided absolutely no explanation for its delay in commencing its investigation, the delay was unreasonable as a matter of law under N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(d) and the trial court erred by granting the insured's N.Y. C.P.L.R. art. 75 petition to permanently stay the underinsured motorist arbitration sought by an insured. Progressive Northeastern Ins. Co. v Cirocco, 4 A.D.3d 530, 771 N.Y.S.2d 717, 2004 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1826 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2004).

Trial court properly denied a petition to stay arbitration of a claim for underinsured motorist benefits where the underinsured motorist benefits provision of the policy for the injured insured was triggered when the injured insured exhausted the bodily injury policy limits under the tortfeasor's policy, which was less than the liability coverage provided under the policy of the injured insured's insurer. The injured insured was not also required to exhaust the liability coverage limits under a separate policy for the tortfeasor prior to bringing a claim for underinsured motorist benefits. Liberty Mut. Ins. Co. v Doherty, 13 A.D.3d 629, 789 N.Y.S.2d 55, 2004 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 15758 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2004).

95. — —Waived by delay

Insurer's petition for stay of arbitration of underinsured motorist coverage was untimely were it was filed nearly 2 months after insured's request for arbitration; fact that insureds were unsuccessful in their request to have arbitration conducted by American Arbitration Association did not render entire request nullity so as to toll running of time to petition for stay. Gen. Accident Ins. Co. v Ramee, 157 A.D.2d 877, 549 N.Y.S.2d 880, 1990 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 46 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1990).

Insurer's application to stay uninsured motorist claim was properly dismissed since insurer was estopped to deny benefits on ground that insured settled with other tortfeasors without its consent where ground was raised for first time more than one year from date insurer had access to sufficient information to alert it to necessity of disclaimer based on particular policy exclusion invoked. Liberty Mut. Ins. Co. v Lapicola, 184 A.D.2d 322, 584 N.Y.S.2d 834, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8103 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1992).

Insurance company was not entitled to stay of arbitration of claim for uninsured motorist benefits, despite claim that insured was injured while operating automobile in violation of order of suspension, where insurance company had all information it needed to investigate status of insured's license at time it received claim, and it did not attempt to disclaim liability until 6 months later. Eagle Ins. Co. v Morel, 202 A.D.2d 1064, 609 N.Y.S.2d 128, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3556 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1994).

Insurance carrier, by failing to move to stay arbitration within 20-day period under CLS CPLR § 7503, forfeited its right to stay arbitration on ground that insured improperly failed to exhaust available primary underinsured motorist coverage from owner-operator of vehicle in which she was passenger before claiming excess coverage under carrier's policy. Aetna Casualty & Sur. Co. v Bondy, 203 A.D.2d 561, 611 N.Y.S.2d 33, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4224 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1994).

It was error to grant petitioner's application to stay arbitration of respondents' uninsured motorist claim where instant proceeding was not commenced until 2 months after petitioner was served with demand for arbitration under uninsured motorist provision of insurance policy in question, and valid arbitration agreement existed, conditions of which had not been complied with. Travelers Indem. Co. v Balthazar, 224 A.D.2d 303, 638 N.Y.S.2d 36, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1248 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1996).

Court erred in granting insurer's petition to permanently stay arbitration of underinsured motorist claim, even though insured settled his claim against third-party tortfeasor for maximum limit of tortfeasor's insurance without first obtaining insurer's consent, since insured made several efforts to obtain insurer's consent, to which insurer never responded. Allstate Ins. Co. v Sullivan, 230 A.D.2d 732, 646 N.Y.S.2d 359, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8271 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1996).

Court erred in granting insurer's application to stay arbitration of claim for uninsured motorist benefits, which was brought more than 20 days after it was served with demand for arbitration, where parties did not dispute that policy contained agreement to arbitrate, and insurer's claim, that there was no coverage under uninsurance provisions because there was no physical contact between insureds' vehicle and alleged offending vehicle, related to whether certain conditions of policy had been complied with and not whether parties had agreed to arbitrate, so that 20-day period under CLS CPLR § 7503 (c) applied. CNA Ins. Co. v Carsley, 243 A.D.2d 474, 663 N.Y.S.2d 92, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9636 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1997).

Issue of physical contact with uninsured vehicle related to whether certain conditions of coverage were satisfied, and thus insurer's application for stay of arbitration of uninsured motorist claim, instituted 7 months after insured demanded arbitration, was untimely and should have been denied. CNA Ins. Co. v Rosa, 253 A.D.2d 494, 676 N.Y.S.2d 500, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8896 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1998), app. denied, 92 N.Y.2d 818, 685 N.Y.S.2d 420, 708 N.E.2d 177, 1999 N.Y. LEXIS 2019 (N.Y. 1999).

Court should have denied insurer's application to permanently stay underinsured motorist arbitration where (1) it timely filed application for stay but failed to file proof of service within 15 days of expiration of 20-day limitations period, resulting in automatic dismissal of application 36 days after injured party's service of arbitration demand, and (2) it did not commence new proceeding within 15 days of automatic dismissal as required by CLS CPLR former § 306-b(a) then in effect. Travelers Indem. Company/Aetna Cas. & Sur. Co. v Roth, 258 A.D.2d 341, 685 N.Y.S.2d 228, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1340 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1999).

In action for injuries sustained by claimant when automobile struck his motorcycle, it was error for court to permanently stay arbitration of claim for supplementary uninsured motorist (SUM) benefits under policy issued to claimant's mother, on ground that claimant lived with his mother and qualified as "insured" under SUM endorsement of her policy which excluded coverage for bodily injury to "an insured incurred while occupying a motor vehicle owned by that insured if such motor vehicle is not insured for SUM coverage by the policy under which a claim is made," as insurer waived its right to invoke designated exclusion by failing to timely disclaim coverage on that basis under CLS Ins § 3420(d). Allstate Ins. Co. v Arpaia, 276 A.D.2d 628, 714 N.Y.S.2d 326, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10338 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2000).

Insurer's 34-day delay in disclaiming coverage was unreasonable; thus, it was improper to grant insurer's motion to stay arbitration of claim for supplemental uninsured motorist benefits. Brandon v Nationwide Mut. Ins. Co., 284 A.D.2d 886, 727 N.Y.S.2d 727, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6855 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2001), aff'd, 97 N.Y.2d 491, 743 N.Y.S.2d 53, 769 N.E.2d 810, 2002 N.Y. LEXIS 977 (N.Y. 2002).

No-fault insurance carrier was not entitled to stay of underinsurance arbitration proceeding based on injured party's failure to comply with mandate of policy that he submit medical reports, authorizations and proof of claim, and appear for deposition and physical examination prior to arbitration; insurance carrier waived condition precedent by failing to issue timely denial of coverage and failing to comply with 11 NYCRR § 216.5 where it requested insurance information for 18 months following notice of claim until demand for arbitration, but never requested additional discovery, and failed to offer explanation for its delay. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. v Urdahl, 170 Misc. 2d 841, 652 N.Y.S.2d 197, 1996 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 474 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1996).

Insurer was not entitled to stay of uninsured motorist arbitration pending disclosure where it had notice of potential underinsured claim since May of 1997 and became aware that such claim ripened in February of 1999, some 5 months prior to moving for stay; under circumstances, insurer waived any contractual rights to disclosure. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. v Aponte, 182 Misc. 2d 372, 702 N.Y.S.2d 747, 1999 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 486 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1999).

Respondent was estopped from claiming untimeliness as defense to application for temporary stay of arbitration of underinsured motorist claim, although petition for stay was not filed until 49 days after insurer received arbitration demand, where insurer refrained from filing petition to stay arbitration in reliance on letter (received on same day as demand) in which respondent's counsel stated he would not file arbitration demand for 30 days so that parties could engage in settlement discussions, and it promptly sought stay when it received notice from American Arbitration Association, scheduling date for arbitration. Peerless Ins. Co. v McDonough, 183 Misc. 2d 341, 705 N.Y.S.2d 787, 1999 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 644 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1999).

96. Judicial review of arbitrator's findings

Insurer's argument that arbitrator's award should be reduced by other insurance benefits which claimant received as compensation for injuries she suffered in accident, regardless of its merits, is not basis for vacating or modifying award. Commerce & Indus. Ins. Co. v Nester, 90 N.Y.2d 255, 660 N.Y.S.2d 366, 682 N.E.2d 967, 1997 N.Y. LEXIS 1374 (N.Y. 1997).

Court's holding, in proceeding to confirm arbitration award, that absence of agreement to arbitrate was not basis for vacating or modifying arbitration award, and that insurer lost its opportunity for appellate review of denial of its application to stay arbitration by participating in arbitration without seeking interim stay of effectuation of denial order, did not result in claimant improperly receiving windfall underinsurance benefits by estoppel; rather, insurer's responsibility to pay was based on judicial and arbitration decisions rendered after it had opportunity for full and fair hearing on its disclaimer of benefits. Commerce & Indus. Ins. Co. v Nester, 90 N.Y.2d 255, 660 N.Y.S.2d 366, 682 N.E.2d 967, 1997 N.Y. LEXIS 1374 (N.Y. 1997).

The MVAIC indorsement attached to policies of automobile liability insurance merely provides for recovery by insured of such damages as he might legally be entitled to recover from the uninsured or absent motorist, which damages are to be reached by arbitration in the event of inability to agree on their amount, and whatever amount the arbitrator awards is specifically made binding upon the parties, regardless of the fact that insured was killed as the result of the collision and the arbitrator's award amounts to only about one-sixth of expense of his funeral, there being no proof of partiality on the part of the arbitrator. Torano v Motor Vehicle Acci. Indemnification Corp., 19 A.D.2d 356, 243 N.Y.S.2d 434, 1963 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3121 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1963), aff'd, 15 N.Y.2d 882, 258 N.Y.S.2d 418, 206 N.E.2d 353, 1965 N.Y. LEXIS 1553 (N.Y. 1965).

In an action invovling an uninsured motorist's provision in insurance policy, carrier failed to demonstrate that $10,000 award included those medical and hospital expenses for which it reimbursed the claimant under the provision for expenses for medical services of $2,000, and furthermore the arbitrator's restatement of the award suggested that he allocated very little of the award to all of the claimant's medical and hospital expenses in view of the overall extensive damages and that the medical and hospital damages covered by the $2,000 medical expenses provision constituted no part of the indefinite small amount allocated by him to all medical and hospital damages in the total award. Hutchison v Hartford Acci. & Indem. Co., 34 A.D.2d 1010, 312 N.Y.S.2d 789, 1970 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4301 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1970).

In order to successfully reduce an arbitration award by the payments the insurance carrier made under the medical payment provision of the policy, the carrier must establish that specifically included in the total award were damages for those medical and hospital expenses for which it reimbursed the claimant; if the award does not include damages for medical and hospital expenses, or included damages for medical and hospital expenses other than those for which the carrier already paid the claimant under the medical payment provision, then the carrier may not set off such payments against the award. Hutchison v Hartford Acci. & Indem. Co., 34 A.D.2d 1010, 312 N.Y.S.2d 789, 1970 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4301 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1970).

Ins Law § 3420(f)(1), which provides for binding arbitration over disputes as to coverage of uninsured motorist liability insurance, did not bar an insurer from relitigating all of the issues involved in an arbitration arising out of a fatal hit-and-run accident, where the decedent had opted for supplementary uninsured motorist coverage over and above that mandated by the statute, rendering her subject to the superseding insurance policy indorsement, which specifically provided that arbitration awards exceeding the state's per person compulsory liability insurance limit would be nonbinding. Reichel v Government Employees Ins. Co., 107 A.D.2d 463, 487 N.Y.S.2d 99, 1985 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 49766 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't), aff'd, 66 N.Y.2d 1000, 499 N.Y.S.2d 385, 489 N.E.2d 1287, 1985 N.Y. LEXIS 18353 (N.Y. 1985).

Insurer's assertion that passenger in insured vehicle was splitting her cause of action did not require summary judgment for insurer in passenger's action for damages under uninsured motorist endorsement, although passenger's claim had previously been arbitrated by parties and had resulted in arbitration award which had been confirmed by court, since policy required passenger to arbitrate as initial remedy, court had confirmed award only to extent of $10,000 (under policy provision that award up to that amount was binding on parties), policy gave either party right to trial on awards exceeding $10,000, and arbitrator had assessed passenger's damages at $40,000. Pfeiffer v Allstate Ins. Co., 136 A.D.2d 532, 523 N.Y.S.2d 152, 1988 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 318 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1988).

Insurance company waived its contractual right to trial de novo of underinsured motorist claim in event of arbitration award exceeding $10,000 when it acquiesced in appointment of one arbitrator, as called for by rules of arbitral forum designated in insured's demand for arbitration, instead of 3 arbitrators, as called for in policy, and by otherwise failing to advise forum that dispute was to be arbitrated in accordance with policy and not rules of forum prescribed for binding arbitration. General Accident Ins. Co. v Giacomazzo by Giacomazzo, 204 A.D.2d 236, 612 N.Y.S.2d 43, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5623 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1994).

Underinsured motorist coverage endorsement of automobile insurance policy permitting either party to demand trial de novo if arbitration award exceeded New York's bodily injury liability limits was not unconscionable or against public policy, and was enforceable. Massachusetts Bay Ins. Co. v Lannon, 216 A.D.2d 954, 628 N.Y.S.2d 917, 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7347 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1995).

Insurer waived any claims as to alleged bias of arbitrator by proceeding with arbitration after learning of prior relationship between insured's counsel and one of arbitrators. Arner v Liberty Mut. Ins. Co., 233 A.D.2d 321, 649 N.Y.S.2d 185, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11657 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1996).

Standard automobile liability insurance provision, which permits trial de novo when arbitration panel awards claim for underinsurance benefits in excess of $10,000 "minimum limit for bodily injury liability," is unenforceable since (1) provision is against public policy goal of providing arbitration as expeditious and inexpensive forum, and (2) provision is unconscionable in view of lack of mutuality and clear absence of choice on part of policyholder. Hanover Ins. Co. v Losquadro, 157 Misc. 2d 1014, 600 N.Y.S.2d 419, 1993 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 244 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1993).

Where underinsured motorist provision of liability policy provided for arbitration and also provided that in certain circumstances either insured or insurer could demand trial following arbitration, court would reject insurer's request for trial by jury, since policy failed to so specify and court would not add to policy terms that did not exist. Povinelli v Royal Ins. Co., 171 Misc. 2d 826, 656 N.Y.S.2d 140, 1997 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 60 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1997).

97. —Confirmation of award

Under the circumstances, it was not unreasonable for carrier to agree, in arbitration of claim for lost earnings under no-fault law, that if claimant prevailed he would be entitled to $1,000 per month, less 20 percent statutory deduction, and in light of such agreement, arbitrator did not exceed powers in omitting to deduct social security disability payments from award for lost earnings. Government Employees Ins. Co. v Lombino, 57 A.D.2d 957, 394 N.Y.S.2d 898, 1977 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12236 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1977).

Arbitrator's finding that vehicle which struck and injured petitioner was within coverage of insurance policy was supported by the evidence and thus award could not be deemed irrational and was properly confirmed. James v Criterion Ins. Co., 59 A.D.2d 907, 399 N.Y.S.2d 142, 1977 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 14111 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1977).

Although arbitrator's determination to offset amount of damages awarded under supplementary uninsured motorist endorsement, by deducting amount insured had recovered from third party's insurer, may not have been legally correct, court did not err in refusing to vacate that portion of award in its entirety, as arbitrator's determination was in accordance with terms of policy and therefore had rational basis. Prudential Property & Casualty Ins. Co. v Carleton, 145 A.D.2d 492, 535 N.Y.S.2d 738, 1988 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13258 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1988).

In proceeding to confirm arbitration award pertaining to underinsured motorist coverage, claim of insurance company that arbitrator applied law of wrong state could not be entertained unless award was violative of public policy, was totally irrational, or exceeded specifically enumerated limit on powers of arbitrator. Barbee v Nationwide Mut. Ins. Co., 194 A.D.2d 604, 599 N.Y.S.2d 70, 1993 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5591 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1993).

Court erred in confirming uninsured motorist arbitration award where arbitrator named by insureds proceeded to make award after insurer failed to respond to request for appointment of its arbitrator within 30-day period specified therefor in insurance contract, since contract specifically provided for system of tripartite arbitration in which each party would select one arbitrator and 2 arbitrators would together agree on third, and adherence to such procedure was, in effect, condition precedent to arbitration process, on failure of which parties should have applied to court for appointment of second arbitrator so that third could thereafter be selected. Lassiter v CNA Ins. Co., 195 A.D.2d 362, 600 N.Y.S.2d 59, 1993 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7200 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1993).

It was error to confirm arbitrator's award and to enjoin insurer from proceeding with trial de novo of uninsured motorist claim where arbitration award, which far exceeded maximum permitted under mandatory automobile accident indemnification endorsement attacked to insured's policy, was rendered pursuant to supplementary uninsured/underinsured motorist insurance endorsement relied on by insurer; such supplemental coverage, which insured may opt to purchase at additional premium, permits increased award but also permits either party to seek trial de novo in certain situations, and since insured sought benefit of supplementary endorsement in form of increased award, he could not avoid applicability of trial de novo provision by claiming ignorance thereof and nonreceipt of written endorsement. Nationwide Mut. Ins. Co. v Alvarez, 207 A.D.2d 401, 615 N.Y.S.2d 723, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8187 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1994).

Court should have confirmed arbitrator's award of $190,000 under uninsured automobile endorsement of subject policy where policy provisions were ambiguous in that, on one hand, they appeared to limit recovery for bodily injury to $100,000 per person, but, on other hand, they also appeared to allow greater per person recovery where, as here, 2 or more people were injured in accident. Mostow v State Farm Ins. Cos., 216 A.D.2d 300, 628 N.Y.S.2d 146, 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5920 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1995), aff'd, 88 N.Y.2d 321, 645 N.Y.S.2d 421, 668 N.E.2d 392, 1996 N.Y. LEXIS 1169 (N.Y. 1996).

Court properly confirmed arbitration awards of $100,000 to each of 2 insureds, despite insurer's claim that such awards exceeded $10,000 per person policy limit, where insurer did not submit affidavit from person with personal knowledge to controvert insureds' claim that arbitrator was informed at hearing, without objection by insurer, that policy limits as to accident were $100,000 per person and $300,000 per accident. Sagona v State Farm Ins. Co., 218 A.D.2d 660, 630 N.Y.S.2d 352, 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8277 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1995).

Arbitrators had plenary jurisdiction to reform insurance policy to incorporate statutory standard for uninsured motorist coverage and then specifically enforce amended policy. Arner v Liberty Mut. Ins. Co., 233 A.D.2d 321, 649 N.Y.S.2d 185, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11657 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1996).

Arbitrator did not exceed his authority or rule irrationally in determining that policy coverage for "all sums that the insured ... shall be legally entitled to recover as damages from the owner or operator of an uninsured motor vehicle because of bodily injury sustained by the insured" included future economic loss as well as pain and suffering. Huntemann v Allstate Ins. Co., 272 A.D.2d 126, 708 N.Y.S.2d 851, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5435 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2000).

Court properly confirmed arbitration award which granted underinsured motorist benefits to petitioner, where respondent insurer contended that policy entitled it to offsets for Workers' Compensation benefits received by petitioner and settlement he received in underlying negligence action, but it failed to reconcile its position in earlier proceeding to stay arbitration that policy did not provide for offsets but only for "non-duplication" of certain benefits or recoveries, and arbitrator's award was consistent with non-duplication provision. Fazio v Allstate Ins. Co., 276 A.D.2d 696, 714 N.Y.S.2d 759, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10882 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2000).

Court would confirm arbitration award of $10,000 where petitioner was injured while one of 4 passengers in car involved in hit-and-run car accident, even though 2 of other passengers had been awarded damages in prior arbitration proceedings, which left only $2,500 of $10,000 per person, $20,000 per incident coverage available under uninsured motorist endorsement of policy for disposition of petitioner's claim and that of fourth passenger who also filed claim, since insurer was aware of but failed to consolidate multiple claims. Belizaire v Aetna Cas. & Sur. Co., 171 Misc. 2d 473, 654 N.Y.S.2d 982, 1997 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 21 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1997).

98. —Vacation of award

Court will vacate arbitration award in amount of $100,000 made to decedent's administrator on claim filed under uninsured motorists' provision of insurance policy covering decedent, where insured opted to purchase extra coverage, agreeing in "Supplemental Uninsured Motorists Coverage" indorsement superseding policy's standard provisions that arbitration award exceeding standard $50,000/$100,000 uninsured motorist limitation may be reviewed by either party in trial de novo; since arbitration award set insured's liability at $100,000, argument that award was made pursuant to standard uninsured motorists coverage indorsement of policy cannot be accepted. Reichel v Government Employees Ins. Co., 66 N.Y.2d 1000, 499 N.Y.S.2d 385, 489 N.E.2d 1287, 1985 N.Y. LEXIS 18353 (N.Y. 1985).

Where plaintiff who sustained injuries in automobile accident involving taxicab obtained arbitration award of $8,500 under uninsured motorist endorsement of her husband's automobile policy after commencing action against taxicab defendants and receiving no response from their insurer, and thereafter executed general release in favor of taxicab defendants on accepting late $3,000 settlement offer, court erred in vacating arbitration award based on mutual mistake as to insurance status of offending vehicle, since exclusive grounds for vacating arbitration award under CLS CPLR § 7511(b)(1) do not include newly discovered evidence. Desiderato v N & A Taxi, Inc., 190 A.D.2d 250, 597 N.Y.S.2d 958, 1993 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5018 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1993).

It was improper for arbitrator to list, as ground for denying insured's claim for lost wage benefits under no-fault provision of automobile policy, alleged untimeliness of insured's claim where insurer specifically denied claim solely on issue of insufficiency of insured's claim of lost earnings and did not mention subject of timeliness at any point prior to hearing. Aetna Cas. & Sur. Co. v Berson, 225 A.D.2d 983, 639 N.Y.S.2d 530, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2780 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1996).

Court properly denied insurer's application to vacate master arbitrator's award, which vacated arbitrator's decision denying insured's request for lost wage benefit under no-fault provision of automobile policy, where master arbitrator properly focused on record evidence in concluding that arbitrator acted irrationally by finding that insured failed to prove prima facie case. Aetna Cas. & Sur. Co. v Berson, 225 A.D.2d 983, 639 N.Y.S.2d 530, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2780 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1996).

Court erred in denying insurer's petition to vacate arbitration award and for trial de novo where policy in question granted either party right to trial de novo of any arbitration award that exceeded limits of required coverage for underinsured motorist benefits under CLS Ins § 3420(f), and arbitration award in instant case exceeded stated limits. Allstate Ins. Co. v Hendricks, 226 A.D.2d 527, 641 N.Y.S.2d 79, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4365 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1996).

Court did not err in vacating arbitration award and granting insurer trial de novo on claim for underinsured motorist benefits where, under terms of policy, each party had right to trial de novo if arbitration award, as here, exceeded certain stated limits. Izzo v Allstate Ins. Co., 228 A.D.2d 441, 643 N.Y.S.2d 642, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6220 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1996).

Court erred in denying insurer's motion to vacate $60,000 arbitration award in favor of insured since uninsured motorist coverage in parties' insurance police gave both parties opportunity to seek trial de novo when arbitrator's award exceeded limits of uninsured motorist coverage required by CLS Ins § 3420(f)(1), and that policy provision was consistent with Insurance Law and relevant public policy. McPolin v Allstate Ins. Co., 228 A.D.2d 602, 644 N.Y.S.2d 759, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7178 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1996).

Court properly vacated arbitration award and remitted matter to arbitrator for new determination on ground that it was "imperfectly executed" (CLS CPLR § 7511(b)(1)(iii)) where validity and applicability of offset provision of insurer's underinsurance endorsement was issue for judicial determination, and it was impossible to discern from face of arbitration award whether or not arbitrator intended to apply offset provision. Deckaj v State Farm Mut. Ins. Co., 230 A.D.2d 735, 646 N.Y.S.2d 173, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8299 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1996).

Insurer's belated discovery of form signed by insured, "waiving" increase in his uninsured motorist benefits in connection with earlier policy, which was never submitted to arbitrators, was not sufficient ground on which to vacate arbitration award. Arner v Liberty Mut. Ins. Co., 233 A.D.2d 321, 649 N.Y.S.2d 185, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11657 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1996).

Arbitrator did not exceed his authority by accepting medical documentation that postdated hearing, and thus court erred in granting insurer's motion to vacate award on that basis. Travelers Ins. Co. v Job, 239 A.D.2d 289, 658 N.Y.S.2d 585, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5592 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1997).

Arbitrators exceeded their authority by awarding $75,000 on claim for uninsured motorist benefits where underlying policy contained uninsured liability limits of $10,000 per person and $20,000 per accident. Brijmohan v State Farm Ins. Co., 239 A.D.2d 496, 658 N.Y.S.2d 52, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5384 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1997), aff'd, 92 N.Y.2d 821, 677 N.Y.S.2d 55, 699 N.E.2d 414, 1998 N.Y. LEXIS 1416 (N.Y. 1998).

In granting application to vacate underinsurance arbitration award, court created unauthorized "misapprehension" standard for judicial review of arbitration awards; vacatur of arbitrator's award is statutorily limited to occasions involving fraud, corruption, or bias, factors which were not present, or occasions when arbitrator exceeded his or her power, or so imperfectly executed it so that final and definite award was not made. Curley v State Farm Ins. Co., 269 A.D.2d 240, 702 N.Y.S.2d 305, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1566 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2000).

Court properly vacated arbitration award on ground that arbitrator exceeded his powers where arbitrator determined that insurer could raise "liability defense" based on issue of contact between vehicles, even though that issue had been waived as "contractual coverage defense," and after holding hearing on issue of liability, arbitrator determined that respondent failed to show that decedent's vehicle was struck by hit-and-run vehicle, and dismissed claim. Nationwide Ins. Co. v McDonnell, 272 A.D.2d 547, 708 N.Y.S.2d 146, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5816 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2000).

In proceeding to confirm award made by arbitrator who refused to recuse himself when asked to do so by respondent's counsel, it was proper for court to take judicial notice of rule 10 of Accident Claims Arbitration Rules of American Arbitration Association (AAA), which requires that decisions as to disqualifications of arbitrators for partiality are to be made by AAA and that its decisions are deemed to be conclusive; thus, it was proper to set aside award and direct parties to contact Santana v Country-Wide Ins. Co., 184 Misc. 2d 294, 714 N.Y.S.2d 854, 2000 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 183 (N.Y. App. Term 2000).

99. Miscellaneous

Plaintiff was entitled to supplementary underinsured motorist benefits under policy issued to her father where she was injured in 2-car accident and reached settlement with 2 offending vehicles, exhausting bodily injury coverage of one of them; under CLS Ins § 3420(f)(2), aggregation of limits of liability of both tortfeasors was not prerequisite to recovery of underinsurance, and thus defendant insurer was improperly granted summary judgment on basis that second vehicle, whose bodily injury coverage was same as bodily coverage under policy issued to plaintiff's father, was not "underinsured". S'Dao v National Grange Mut. Ins. Co., 87 N.Y.2d 853, 638 N.Y.S.2d 597, 661 N.E.2d 1378, 1995 N.Y. LEXIS 4441 (N.Y. 1995).

Insured was not entitled to supplementary uninsured/underinsured motorist (SUM) coverage because although an exclusion for failure to establish a serious injury was not referenced in N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(f)(2), Regulation 35-D, specifically N.Y. Comp. Codes R. & Regs. tit. 11, § 60-2.3(f), provided that such an exclusion should be included in policies with SUM coverage so that an insured had to establish a serious injury as defined in N.Y. Ins. Law § 5102(d); no indication in the legislative history was made that a serious injury exclusion only applied to mandatory uninsured motorist coverage in N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(f)(1) and not to SUM benefits in § 3420(f)(2). Raffellini v State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co., 9 N.Y.3d 196, 848 N.Y.S.2d 1, 878 N.E.2d 583, 2007 N.Y. LEXIS 3232 (N.Y. 2007).

As an insured violated a condition of her policy when she settled with an underinsured motorist for less than policy limits without her insurer's written consent, such that its subrogation rights were impaired, pursuant to N.Y. Ins Law § 3420(f)(2)(A), she forfeited her claim against her insurer for supplementary uninsured/underinsured benefits. Matter of Cent. Mut. Ins. Co. (Bemiss), 12 N.Y.3d 648, 884 N.Y.S.2d 222, 912 N.E.2d 54, 2009 N.Y. LEXIS 2548 (N.Y. 2009).

In a case involving multiple tortfeasors, when an insured settled with one of them in compliance with Condition 10 of N.Y. State Dept. Ins. Reg. 35-D (set forth in 11 NYCCR 60-2.3(f)), thereby also fulfilling the exhaustion requirement in Condition 9 of Reg. 35-D (§ 60-2.3(f)), she did not have to pursue a claim against the other tortfeasor in order to become eligible to collect up to the remaining limits of her supplementary uninsured/underinsured (SUM) policy. But having chosen to resolve her claim against the second tortfeasor, she was not free under the SUM endorsement to compromise the insurer's subrogation rights unilaterally. Matter of Cent. Mut. Ins. Co. (Bemiss), 12 N.Y.3d 648, 884 N.Y.S.2d 222, 912 N.E.2d 54, 2009 N.Y. LEXIS 2548 (N.Y. 2009).

Principles of res judicata and collateral estoppel did not entitle passenger in car (wife of insured) to summary judgment on issue of insurer's liability in action to recover under uninsured motorist endorsement, although court had confirmed arbitration award in her favor, where policy provided that arbitration award was binding only with regard to awards of up to $10,000 (and court had confirmed award only to that extent), policy called for court trial on all issues where award exceeded $10,000, arbitrator's award was for $40,000, and award failed to indicate whether passenger was comparatively negligent, or to what extent. Pfeiffer v Allstate Ins. Co., 136 A.D.2d 532, 523 N.Y.S.2d 152, 1988 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 318 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1988).

In action for judgment declaring that automobile insurance policy not having underinsured motorist endorsement included such coverage, court erred in finding that factual issue existed as to whether plaintiff and defendant insurer had entered into oral contract for underinsured motorist coverage, since plaintiff's cause of action was premised exclusively on impression that she had purchased such coverage based on reading of her application for insurance and policy itself. Terwilliger v American Motorists Ins. Co., 156 A.D.2d 805, 549 N.Y.S.2d 222, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 15538 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1989).

Court properly dismissed complaint seeking recovery for insurance broker's alleged failure to recommend that customer obtain coverage for underinsured motorists, where record established only that named insured, customer's mother, inquired of defendant whether she had good coverage for plaintiff to take car out of state, but did not specifically request coverage which would have provided protection in event of accident with underinsured motorist; while insurance broker acting as agent of customer has duty of reasonable care to customer to obtain requested coverage within reasonable time after request, or to inform customer of its inability to do so, broker owes no continuing duty to advise, guide or direct customer to obtain additional coverage. Erwig v Edward F. Cook Agency, Inc., 173 A.D.2d 439, 570 N.Y.S.2d 64, 1991 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7066 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1991).

In action by insureds against insurance broker for negligently failing to obtain supplemental uninsured motorist coverage to protect them in event of accident with underinsured vehicle, court properly granted broker's motion for summary judgment after injured plaintiff settled claim against other driver for $14,500, which was $500 less than coverage limit of other driver's policy, since CLS Ins § 3420(f)(2) provides that, as condition precedent to obligation of insurer to pay under supplementary uninsured motorist coverage, limits of liability of all bodily injury liability bonds or insurance policies applicable at time of accident must be exhausted. Andriaccio v Borg & Borg, 198 A.D.2d 253, 603 N.Y.S.2d 528, 1993 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10429 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1993).

Insurance brokers were entitled to summary judgment in action for negligence in procurement of insurance coverage where (1) plaintiffs failed to establish that they specifically requested amount of supplementary uninsured motorist coverage they wanted to procure, or that brokers made any specific representations as to coverage obtained, which was maximum amount required to be offered under CLS Ins § 3420, and (2) plaintiffs failed to establish that amount of supplementary coverage that they wanted brokers to procure for them was in fact available. Hjemdahl-Monsen v Faulkner, 204 A.D.2d 516, 611 N.Y.S.2d 309, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5291 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1994).

Petitioner was not entitled to recover under uninsured motorist provision of vehicle that he was driving for injuries sustained in accident where liability limits of policy that insured offending vehicle had been exhausted by time that petitioner made claim under that policy. Harley v CNA Ins. Co., 212 A.D.2d 614, 622 N.Y.S.2d 539, 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1461 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1995).

In action against 2 insurance companies to recover benefits under supplementary uninsured motorist insurance policy, plaintiffs were entitled to summary judgment on issue of liability as against company that was named in policy as providing coverage and essentially conceded that it insured plaintiffs, and such evidence was sufficient to establish entitlement to dismissal of action as against company whose logo appeared on policy, where there was no prohibition against "stacking" of supplementary uninsured motorist coverage provided by 2 separate insurance companies at time action was commenced. Losi v Crum & Forster Personal Ins. Co., 222 A.D.2d 489, 635 N.Y.S.2d 72, 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12785 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1995).

When automobile insurance policy provides "uninsured motorist" coverage in amount greater than statutory maximum, and premium is paid for additional coverage, such coverage is deemed to constitute supplementary uninsured motorist (i.e., underinsurance) coverage. Olochnowitz v Hopmeier-Evans-Gage Agency, 225 A.D.2d 853, 639 N.Y.S.2d 496, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2067 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1996).

Court correctly determined that decedent's administrator was entitled to uninsured motorist benefits by virtue of fact that vehicle in which decedent was riding had been stolen at time of accident causing his death. In re Prudential Prop. & Cas. Ins. Co., 236 A.D.2d 613, 654 N.Y.S.2d 159, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1568 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1997).

Plaintiffs involved in motor vehicle accident were not entitled to underinsurance benefits, either under policy actually issued to them or under policy that allegedly should have been issued to them, where, based on facial comparison of bodily injury liability limits under subject policies, limits of tortfeasor's policy were not less than those of plaintiffs' policy. Wilson v Hartford Accident & Indem. Co., 246 A.D.2d 593, 668 N.Y.S.2d 49, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 384 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1998).

Court should have dismiss action alleging defendant broker's breach of his promise to procure greater uninsured/underinsured coverage for plaintiff then he, in fact, obtained where explicit and unambiguous information included in insurance application, which plaintiff and broker signed, indicated that plaintiff requested statutory minimum underinsurance coverage. Key Y. Sung v Kyung Ip Hong, 254 A.D.2d 271, 678 N.Y.S.2d 116, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10070 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1998).

In action seeking uninsured motorist coverage arising from automobile accident that occurred in Bronx County, venue should have been retained in Bronx County even though neither party resided in Bronx County and defendant insurer sought transfer to Onondaga County, where eyewitness to accident and surgeon who treated injured plaintiff averred that they would be willing to testify in Bronx County but could not travel to Onondaga County, defendant did not identify any witnesses for whom Onondaga County would be more convenient, and facts of underlying accident were relevant because defendant did not concede liability. Oquendo v Nationwide Ins. Co., 270 A.D.2d 174, 705 N.Y.S.2d 347, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3310 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2000).

Motion to dismiss insurer's proceeding to permanently stay arbitration of uninsured motorist claim, as abandoned under CLS Unif Tr Ct Rls § 202.48, was properly denied in light of insurer's efforts to settle matter during unexplained 2-year delay after court directed it to settle order on notice, inter alia, directing hearing as to coverage of other vehicles involved in accident. Allstate Ins. Co. v Slomowicz, 285 A.D.2d 501, 728 N.Y.S.2d 179, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7060 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2001).

Pursuant to CLS Ins § 3420(f)(2), injured party who has underinsured motorist coverage may not pursue recovery of such benefits from own insurer until first recovering liability limits under tortfeasor's policy by settlement or judgment. Huth v Nationwide Ins. Co., 148 Misc. 2d 1003, 560 N.Y.S.2d 724, 1990 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 493 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1990).

Livery conveyance exclusion under uninsured motorist endorsement could not be upheld since (1) CLS Veh & Tr § 370(1)(b) requires that every person transporting passengers for hire in any motor vehicle have bond or insurance policy containing uninsured motorist coverage, (2) enforcement of exclusion would be contrary to CLS Ins § 3420(f)(1), which provides that uninsured motorist coverage applies to insured motor vehicle when insurer disclaims liability or denies coverage, and (3) enforcement of exclusion would be inconsistent with strong public policy underlying statutes providing for uninsured motorist coverage. Liberty Mut. Ins. Co. v Hogan, 150 Misc. 2d 456, 576 N.Y.S.2d 784, 1991 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 647 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1991), aff'd, 188 A.D.2d 378, 592 N.Y.S.2d 582, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 14312 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1992).

Stacking of 3 separate insurance policies providing for uninsured motorist coverage was permissible where (1) decedent was killed while passenger in motor vehicle which was neither registered nor insured, (2) one insurance company had issued policy to decedent which covered automobile owned by her and provided uninsured motorist coverage in amount of $50,000, (3) second insurance company had issued policy to decedent's parents which covered members of household (which included decedent, parents and brother) and provided uninsured motorist coverage in amount of $100,000, and (4) third insurance company had issued policy to decedent's brother which covered members of household and provided uninsured motorist coverage in amount of $50,000. Mackie v Metropolitan Ins. Co., 152 Misc. 2d 384, 577 N.Y.S.2d 193, 1991 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 656 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1991).

Motor vehicle owner was entitled to increased uninsured motorist coverage on date of accident where (1) owner went to his agent and asked that uninsured motorist coverage for 2 vehicles be increased from $10,000/$20,000, (2) agent stated that matter would be taken care of, but limits were only increased on vehicle not involved in accident, (3) owner did not recall receiving bill for increased coverage, did not look at renewal policies to see if increased coverage was reflected, and stated that he would not have understood policies if he had read them, and (4) insurance company failed to produce agent or other employees with knowledge of matter at hearing. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. v Guarascio, 153 Misc. 2d 485, 582 N.Y.S.2d 605, 1992 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 86 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1992).

Where an alleged tortfeasor's auto insurance company became insolvent, insureds' petition to compel their own insurer to arbitrate their claim for uninsured motorist benefits was not time-barred by N.Y. C.P.L.R. 213(2), as their claims against their insurer did not accrue until the New York Public Motor Vehicle Liability Security Fund denied coverage of their claims within the meaning of N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(f)(1). Matter of Progressive Northeastern Ins. Co. v Rogers, 90 A.D.3d 666, 934 N.Y.S.2d 451, 2011 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8778 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2011).

Proposed fraud and misrepresentation endorsement, whose purpose was to inform insureds that company could withhold benefits to first party insureds covered under uninsured motorist insurance, supplementary uninsured/underinsured motorist insurance (UM/SUM), and no-fault insurance if they committed fraud or material misrepresentation, was inconsistent with cancellation provisions of CLS Ins § 3426 and would impermissibly alter prescribed no-fault and UM/SUM endorsements established under CLS Ins Art 51 and §§ 3420(f)(1) and (2). Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 01-10-11.

If injured individual were entitled to recover under his brother's Supplementary Uninsured Motorist (SUM) Coverage, brother's insurer, at time of renewal, could not increase premium based on fact that individual's claim was filed (and paid) on brother's policy. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 04-10-10.

Insured who filed a breach of contact action against an insurer to recover damages under the supplementary underinsured provision of an automobile insurance policy was not required to prove that he sustained a serious injury within the meaning of N.Y. Ins. Law § 5102(d) because (1) N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(f)(2) did not include a serious injury threshold with respect to supplemental coverage; (2) the exclusion mandated by N.Y. Comp. Codes R. & Regs. tit. 11, § 60-2.3(f), concerning compensation for pain and suffering when there was no serious injury, found no support in N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(f)(2); and (3) under N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(a), a serious injury threshold requirement, which was less favorable than § 3420(f)(2) to the insured, could not be imposed by contract. Raffellini v State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co., 36 A.D.3d 92, 823 N.Y.S.2d 440, 2006 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12795 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2006), rev'd, 9 N.Y.3d 196, 848 N.Y.S.2d 1, 878 N.E.2d 583, 2007 N.Y. LEXIS 3232 (N.Y. 2007).

IX. Liability for Accident or Injury to Spouse

100. In general

Subdivision 3 of former § 167 [now § 3420(g)], in creating a cause of action by one spouse for injury sustained due to negligence of the other, carefully excludes automobile liability insurance coverage of such accidents unless expressly written into the policy, and cannot be regarded as a change in public policy with respect to the rule of nonliability for negligence as between a parent and an unemancipated minor child. Badigian v Badigian, 9 N.Y.2d 472, 215 N.Y.S.2d 35, 174 N.E.2d 718, 1961 N.Y. LEXIS 1279 (N.Y. 1961), overruled, Gelbman v Gelbman, 23 N.Y.2d 434, 297 N.Y.S.2d 529, 245 N.E.2d 192, 1969 N.Y. LEXIS 1627 (N.Y. 1969).

The provisions of subd. 3 of former § 167 [now § 3420(g)], relating to necessity of an express clause in an automobile liability insurance policy, if it is to be deemed to cover liability of the insured for death or injury sustained by his or her spouse, is automatically a mandatory part of every motor vehicle liability policy issued in New York. Employers' Liability Assurance Corp. v Aresty, 11 A.D.2d 331, 205 N.Y.S.2d 711, 1960 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7698 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1960), aff'd, 11 N.Y.2d 696, 225 N.Y.S.2d 764, 180 N.E.2d 916, 1962 N.Y. LEXIS 1428 (N.Y. 1962).

When defendant seeks indemnification from driver-spouse for injuries to passenger-spouse, exclusionary provision of Insurance Law relieves carrier of driver-spouse from its responsibility to defend or to pay such a claim. Sharlow v Nationwide Mut. Ins. Co., 47 A.D.2d 572, 362 N.Y.S.2d 618, 1975 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8656 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1975).

By simultaneous amendment of the Domestic Relations Law, Insurance Law, and Vehicle and Traffic Law, the Legislature intended to wipe out the bar to tort suits between spouses, but it did not intend to make insurers liable where the tort was the result of an automobile accident. Lamb v Liberty Mut. Ins. Co., 5 Misc. 2d 236, 161 N.Y.S.2d 703, 1941 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1356 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1941), aff'd, 263 A.D. 859, 32 N.Y.S.2d 788, 1942 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7062 (N.Y. App. Div. 1942).

Legislative intent in the 1937 amendment of subd. 3 former § 167 [now § 3420(g)] was to permit one spouse to maintain an action for negligence against the other, but to protect insurance carriers against collusive actions between husband and wife. Crilley v Allstate Ins. Co., 38 Misc. 2d 371, 238 N.Y.S.2d 125, 1963 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2408 (N.Y. Civ. Ct. 1963), rev'd, 50 Misc. 2d 1028, 271 N.Y.S.2d 484, 1966 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1760 (N.Y. App. Term 1966).

Insurance L former § 167, subdivision 3 [now § 3420(g)] is a limitation of the overall concept of Insurance L former § 312 [now § 4104] which is to provide the broadest possible compulsory insurance coverage for the operators of motor vehicles, and, as such should be narrowly construed. United States Fidelity & Guaranty Co. v Franklin, 74 Misc. 2d 506, 344 N.Y.S.2d 251, 1973 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1933 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1973), aff'd, 43 A.D.2d 844, 352 N.Y.S.2d 1009, 1974 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5979 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1974).

The legislative purpose behind the enactment of Insurance L former § 167, subdivision 3 [now § 3420(g)] was to protect insurance carriers against collusive actions between husband and wife. United States Fidelity & Guaranty Co. v Franklin, 74 Misc. 2d 506, 344 N.Y.S.2d 251, 1973 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1933 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1973), aff'd, 43 A.D.2d 844, 352 N.Y.S.2d 1009, 1974 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5979 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1974).

The simultaneous enactment of Insurance Law former § 167, subd 3 [now § 3420(g)], and Domestic Relations Law § 57, discloses a considered legislative intent to create a right of action theretofore denied and at the same time to protect insurance carriers for loss through collusive actions between husband and wife. Stone v Agricultural Ins. Co., 76 Misc. 2d 1021, 351 N.Y.S.2d 496, 1973 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1194 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1973).

Simultaneous enactment of statute permitting one spouse to maintain an action for personal injuries against the other for tortious conduct of the latter and enactment of statute that no policy of insurance be deemed to insure against liability of insured because of death or injuries to his or her spouse disclosed legislative intent to create right of action previously denied but at the same time to protect insurance carriers against collusive actions between husband and wife. Dunbar v Dunbar, 80 Misc. 2d 744, 364 N.Y.S.2d 699, 1975 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2251 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1975).

Trial court properly determined that an insurer was required to defend and indemnify the husband of a decedent, who was insured by the insurer, with respect to a cross claim by another driver in an underlying action, because N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(g) did not preclude liability insurance coverage on a third-party claim for contribution against an insured joint tortfeasor spouse of an injured person. Allstate Ins. Co. v Roberts, 299 A.D.2d 820, 749 N.Y.S.2d 352, 2002 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10888 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 2002).

Trial court should have granted an insurer's summary judgment motion concerning the insurer's duty to defend and indemnify the husband of a decedent with respect to a wrongful death cause of action brought for the benefit of the decedent's children, as there was no distinction in the plain language of Ins. Law § 3420(g) between a survival cause of action and a wrongful death cause of action, and Ins. Law § 3420(g) specifically excluded coverage with respect to any liability of an insured because of death of or injuries to his or her spouse. Allstate Ins. Co. v Roberts, 299 A.D.2d 820, 749 N.Y.S.2d 352, 2002 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10888 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 2002).

Insurer does not have to offer supplemental spousal liability insurance on policies covering only hired and nonowned automobiles, where such policy is not used for purposes of satisfying requirements of CLS Veh & Tr Art 6. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 03-07-28.

Insurer is not required to offer supplemental spousal liability (SSL) coverage on policy covering for-hire vehicle that is subject to CLS Veh & Tr Art 8. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 05-04-06.

If insurer issues one commercial automobile policy that provides liability insurance for both vehicles subject to CLS Veh & Tr Art 6 and vehicles that are not subject to Article 6, insurer may issue such endorsement specifying that endorsement applies only to vehicles subject to Article 6 so long as endorsement is clear and not misleading. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 05-04-06.

101. Constitutional considerations

The provisions of Ins Law § 167(3) [now § 3420], which operate to exclude coverage for liability of the insured to a spouse for personal injury or property damage unless the policy specifically provides for such coverage, do not violate either the due process or equal protection rights of insureds, because, although the statute does not require that insurance policies expressly give notice to the insured of the exclusion, ample notice of the exclusion is provided by the statutory provision itself, and since a rational basis exists for the legislature's determination to apply the exclusion only to spouses, and for any classification thereby created, in that the provision is designed to discourage collusive insurance claims between spouses involved in automobile accidents. Yankelevitz v Royal Globe Ins. Co., 59 N.Y.2d 928, 466 N.Y.S.2d 295, 453 N.E.2d 524, 1983 N.Y. LEXIS 3245 (N.Y. 1983).

Provision of Insurance Law that no policy shall be deemed to insure against liability of the insured because of death or injuries to his spouse unless express provision relating specifically thereto is included in the policy does not deny due process to injured spouses or deprive injured spouses of equal protection on theory that they are deprived of the right to claim damages against a financially secure defendant; statute merely requires that persons who desire coverage for liability with respect to injuries to their spouses must specifically contract for that coverage. Lauer v Claffey, 52 A.D.2d 275, 383 N.Y.S.2d 671, 1976 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11994 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1976).

Amendment of Domestic Relations Law § 57 to permit actions for damages between spouses provided a reasonable basis for the enactment of Insurance Law former § 167, subd 3 [now § 3420(g)] protecting insurance carriers from any attendant increase in liability without a commiserate increase in premium, and thus Insurance Law former § 167, subd 3 [now § 3420(g)] was not so broad as to violate equal protection. Perno v Exchange Mut. Ins. Co., 73 Misc. 2d 346, 342 N.Y.S.2d 298, 1973 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2059 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1973).

New York statute providing that no policy of insurance shall be deemed to insure against liability of insured because of death of or injuries to his or her spouse or because of injury to or destruction of property of his or her spouse unless express provision therefor is included in policy does not constitute a denial of equal protection. Dunbar v Dunbar, 80 Misc. 2d 744, 364 N.Y.S.2d 699, 1975 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2251 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1975).

102. Applicability of amendments to preexisting policies or actions

Under an amendment to subdivision 3 of former section 167 [now § 3420(g)] of the Insurance Law, which provided that the exclusion from automobile liability insurance coverage of an insured because of injuries to his spouse would apply only where the injured spouse, to be entitled to recover, must prove the culpable conduct of the insured spouse (L 1976, ch 616) and which amendment was to apply to all causes of action arising on or after August 1, 1976 (L 1976, ch 617), an insurer is not obligated to defend or indemnify its insured in a third-party action commenced on November 17, 1976 against the insured who was operating his automobile on May 30, 1976 when it was involved in a collision in which his wife sustained injuries, the wife having commenced an action against the operator of the other vehicle, the third-party plaintiff, in October, 1976. The provision establishing the effective date refers to the main cause of action which arises immediately upon the occurrence of the accident and it necessarily follows that the establishment of that date, insofar as it affects an insurer's obligation to respond to a third-party claim, is likewise limited to those situations where the main claim arises on or after August 1, 1976; for accidents occurring before that date third-party suits are excluded from coverage. Mandels v Liberty Mut. Ins. Co., 45 N.Y.2d 455, 410 N.Y.S.2d 62, 382 N.E.2d 762, 1978 N.Y. LEXIS 2270 (N.Y. 1978).

The provision that no policy of automobile liability insurance is deemed to insure against liability of an insured because of the death or injury to his or her spouse unless express provision is included in the policy applies to policies issued prior to the amendment. Standard Accident Ins. Co. v Newman, 2 Misc. 2d 348, 47 N.Y.S.2d 804, 1944 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1435 (N.Y. Sup. Ct.), aff'd, 268 A.D. 967, 51 N.Y.S.2d 767, 1944 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4462 (N.Y. App. Div. 1944).

Third-party action against injured passenger's spouse did not arise prior to determination as to liability on part of third-party plaintiff, or any payment by third-party plaintiff so as to entitle it to recovery against third-party defendant, and therefore, statute, which became effective subsequent to automobile accident but before third-party plaintiff's action arose, and which provided that exclusion for liability of insured because of injuries to insured's spouse would apply only where injured spouse, to be entitled to recovery, was required to prove culpable conduct of insured spouse, required insurer to represent third-party action brought against injured passenger's spouse. Hanozas v Gramas, 91 Misc. 2d 520, 398 N.Y.S.2d 204, 1977 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2346 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1977).

103. Applicability to policy or accident tracable to foreign state

Former § 167 [now § 3420] is not limited to accidents occurring in New York. An insurance company which had issued an automobile liability policy in New York to a New York resident was entitled to judgment declaring that it had no obligation to defend the insured against an action brought by her husband to recover damages for injuries he suffered in a Connecticut accident. New Amsterdam Casualty Co. v Stecker, 1 A.D.2d 629, 152 N.Y.S.2d 879, 1956 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5050 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1956), aff'd, 3 N.Y.2d 1, 163 N.Y.S.2d 626, 143 N.E.2d 357, 1957 N.Y. LEXIS 1002 (N.Y. 1957).

Where a policy of automobile liability insurance was issued to defendant husband in New York on June 19, 1957, but an indorsement changing his address to Connecticut was issued September 10, 1957, subd. 3 of former § 167 [now § 3420(g)] providing that no such policy shall insure against liability because of death or injuries of the insured's spouse unless it expressly so provides, was applicable to protect the insurer against liability for damages sustained by insured's wife in a Connecticut collision. Employers' Liability Assurance Corp. v Aresty, 11 A.D.2d 331, 205 N.Y.S.2d 711, 1960 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7698 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1960), aff'd, 11 N.Y.2d 696, 225 N.Y.S.2d 764, 180 N.E.2d 916, 1962 N.Y. LEXIS 1428 (N.Y. 1962).

Insurer was obligated to defend and indemnify estate of its insured against claim of insured's spouse and indemnity claim of rental car company, to extent that such claims sought to recover damages for bodily injury as defined in excess liability policy, since that policy was Florida policy subject to that state's laws, which did not prohibit inter-spousal negligence suits, and policy contained express provision extending coverage for "bodily injury" to one spouse caused by negligence of other spouse. Federal Ins. Co. v McCampbell, 247 A.D.2d 359, 668 N.Y.S.2d 627, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 880 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1998).

Under Massachusetts law a husband is not liable to his wife for tort. Such liability exists in New York (Domestic Relations Law, § 57) and the New York statute provides, with reference to liability policies of insurance, that no policy shall be deemed to insure a husband or wife against liability for death or injuries to a spouse unless the policy expressly states such coverage (Insurance Law, former § 167, subd. 3 [now § 3420(g)]) although Massachusetts law contains no such restriction upon insurance contracts; the complaint will not be dismissed since it is a proper case for a declaratory judgment. Bradford v Utica Mut. Ins. Co., 39 N.Y.S.2d 810, 179 Misc. 919, 1943 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1576 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1943).

Insurer had no obligation under automobile liability policy to defend insured in action instituted by wife for personal injuries sustained as passengers in insured's car, though accident occurred in Connecticut. Globe Indem. Co. v Anastasio, 5 Misc. 2d 238, 158 N.Y.S.2d 641, 1956 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1382 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1956).

An insurer executed and delivered an automobile liability policy to the defendant in New York City. The policy did not contain express provision that an injury to a spouse was covered. Held: the insurer was not obligated to defend the insured in a Connecticut action by the insured's wife against the insured based on injuries sustained by the wife while riding as a passenger in an automobile driven by the insured and involved in an accident in Connecticut. Merchants Indem. Corp. v Seward, 12 Misc. 2d 638, 177 N.Y.S.2d 212, 1958 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3147 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1958).

Policy issued to husband in New York did not cover injuries to wife in an automobile accident, in Connecticut, where the parties were residents of New York, at the time of the accident, though they had resided in Connecticut for a portion of the year. United States Casualty Co. v Georgopulo, 15 Misc. 2d 169, 181 N.Y.S.2d 728, 1958 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2422 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1958).

One may sue his or her spouse in this state for injuries sustained in a motor vehicle accident herein even though a statute provides that no policy of insurance shall be deemed to insure against any liability of an insured because of injuries to his or her spouse unless express provision relating thereto is included in the policy, notwithstanding such provision was not included in the policy, where the policy was issued in a sister state. Maryland Casualty Co. v Jacek, 156 F. Supp. 43, 1957 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 2723 (D.N.J. 1957).

N.Y. Ins Law § 3420(g) did not require that New Jersey law be incorporated to provide insurance coverage for spouse, where insurance policy issued in New York did not require coverage for driver's spouse who was injured in an auto accident while the couple was driving in New Jersey, but since New Jersey law permits interspousal claims and New York law requires insurers to provide at least minimum coverage for New York drivers while in other states, spouse alleged that she was covered by the New York policy, because the purpose of the statute is to protect New York drivers from penalties and sanctions in other states. Allstate Ins. Co. v Siano, 726 F. Supp. 422, 1989 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 14853 (E.D.N.Y. 1989).

104. Status of legal relationship between parties

The controlling consideration under former § 109, subd. 3-a [predecessor to former § 167, now § 3420], is the status of the parties at the time when the injury was sustained which is when the liability arose. Stonborough v Preferred Acci. Ins. Co., 292 N.Y. 154, 54 N.E.2d 342, 292 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 154, 1944 N.Y. LEXIS 1386 (N.Y. 1944).

The language of former § 109, subd. 3-a [predecessor to former § 167, now § 3420] as to insuring against liability for injuries to the spouse of an insured, is not broad enough to include a case where the parties marry during the pendency of the action. Stonborough v Preferred Acci. Ins. Co., 292 N.Y. 154, 54 N.E.2d 342, 292 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 154, 1944 N.Y. LEXIS 1386 (N.Y. 1944).

An insurer was not liable under its automobile liability policy where insured husband collided with automobile driven by his wife the day after an interlocutory decree of divorce had been entered dissolving the marriage but before the decree became final. Indemnity Ins. Co. v Murphy, 128 N.Y.S.2d 424, 205 Misc. 332, 1954 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2288 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1954).

Subdivision 3 of former § 167 [now § 3420(g)], excluding from liability insurance coverage death or injuries sustained by the insured's spouse unless specifically included in the policy, does not bar a claim against the insurer, because the policy is silent as to spouse coverage, by one who is not the legal wife or spouse of the insured, but merely his consort or concubine in a common-law relationship entered into since the 1933 abolition of common-law marriages in New York. United States Fire Ins. Co. v Cruz, 35 Misc. 2d 272, 230 N.Y.S.2d 779, 1962 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3192 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1962), aff'd, 18 A.D.2d 1137, 239 N.Y.S.2d 531, 1963 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5427 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1963).

A husband and wife could not be considered divorced, for purposes of determining applicability of Insurance Law section pertaining to coverage against liability of an insured because of injuries to his or her spouse, where judgment was not signed until after accident, and even though a hearing had been held before accident, and even though a hearing had been held before accident and judge had stated an inclination to grant the divorce. Longworth v Great American Ins. Co., 80 Misc. 2d 114, 362 N.Y.S.2d 762, 1974 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1853 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1974), modified, 55 A.D.2d 908, 390 N.Y.S.2d 602, 1977 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10149 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1977).

105. Particular language as extension of coverage to spouse

A definition of "spouse" in a husband's automobile liability insurance policy as meaning a spouse of the insured "if a resident of the same household," is not a declaration of coverage but merely a specification of added benefits which the wife would be entitled to receive were she a member of the insured's household, and accordingly does not entitle the wife to recover against the husband's insurer for injury sustained while riding as a passenger in his automobile after the spouses had separated and were living separate and apart. Crilley v Allstate Ins. Co., 18 A.D.2d 1012, 239 N.Y.S.2d 27, 1963 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4132 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1963), aff'd, 15 N.Y.2d 821, 257 N.Y.S.2d 939, 205 N.E.2d 863, 1965 N.Y. LEXIS 1593 (N.Y. 1965).

A husband's automobile liability insurance policy cannot be considered as containing an express provision, extending its coverage to his liability for injuries to his spouse under subd. 3 of former § 167 [now § 3420(g)] where she is living separate and apart from him by agreement at the time of injury and the definition of "spouse" in his insurance policy is limited to a "resident of the same household." Crilley v Allstate Ins. Co., 18 A.D.2d 1012, 239 N.Y.S.2d 27, 1963 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4132 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1963), aff'd, 15 N.Y.2d 821, 257 N.Y.S.2d 939, 205 N.E.2d 863, 1965 N.Y. LEXIS 1593 (N.Y. 1965).

If a motor vehicle liability insurer intends to limit spouse coverage of its policy so as to exclude coverage of the spouse of the named insured, it should do so in plain language, and a general definition of "spouse" in the "definitions" portion of the policy as being spouse of the named insured "if resident of the same household" will not be construed as excluding the insured's spouse while she is living separate and apart from him. Crilley v Allstate Ins. Co., 38 Misc. 2d 371, 238 N.Y.S.2d 125, 1963 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2408 (N.Y. Civ. Ct. 1963), rev'd, 50 Misc. 2d 1028, 271 N.Y.S.2d 484, 1966 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1760 (N.Y. App. Term 1966).

106. Exclusion of liability for injury to spouse, generally

In a husband's action for declaratory judgment, asserting his entitlement to legal representation and insurance coverage in a third-party action brought against him by his employer, the employer's insurer would not be required to represent or cover the husband where his wife had brought a personal injury action against the husband's employer based on an accident that occurred while she was a passenger in a car operated by her husband, and where Ins Law former § 167(3) [now § 3420(g)] would validly relieve the insurer of its obligations in this interspousal context. Yankelevitz v Royal Globe Ins. Co., 88 A.D.2d 934, 451 N.Y.S.2d 166, 1982 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 17280 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1982), aff'd, 59 N.Y.2d 928, 466 N.Y.S.2d 295, 453 N.E.2d 524, 1983 N.Y. LEXIS 3245 (N.Y. 1983).

Ins Law former § 167(3) [now § 3420(g)],which pertains to barring interspousal causes of action under insurance contracts, relieves an insurer from the obligation to defend the husband in a third-party action arising out of the wife's action for personal injury suffered in an automobile accident which occurred when she was riding in the husband's car, where the applicable insurance contract carefully spelled out the exact coverage with its limitations, conditions, and exclusions, and purported to provide "Comprehensive Automobile Liability Insurance." Yankelevitz v Royal Globe Ins. Co., 88 A.D.2d 934, 451 N.Y.S.2d 166, 1982 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 17280 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1982), aff'd, 59 N.Y.2d 928, 466 N.Y.S.2d 295, 453 N.E.2d 524, 1983 N.Y. LEXIS 3245 (N.Y. 1983).

In an action arising out of a one-car accident in which a wife who was a passenger in a car owned by her and operated by her husband sustained injuries, the vehicle's insurer would be entitled to a judgment declaring that no insurance coverage existed under the policy for the injuries, since Ins Law § 167(3) [now 3420] excludes from coverage interspousal claims unless the policy expressly declares that such coverage exists. American Motorists Ins. Co. v Salvatore, 102 A.D.2d 342, 476 N.Y.S.2d 897, 1984 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 18790 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1984).

Former § 167 [now § 3420] provides that no motor vehicle liability policy shall be deemed to insure against any liability of an insured for negligence to his or her spouse unless an express provision for such insurance is declared in the policy. Stonborough v Preferred Accident Ins. Co., 40 N.Y.S.2d 480, 180 Misc. 339, 1943 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1689 (N.Y. Sup. Ct.), aff'd, 266 A.D. 838, 43 N.Y.S.2d 512, 1943 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4758 (N.Y. App. Div. 1943).

No policy of automobile liability insurance is deemed to insure against liability of an insured because of the death of his or her spouse, unless express provision is included in the policy. Manhattan Cas. Co. v Cholakis, 133 N.Y.S.2d 90, 206 Misc. 287, 1954 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2752 (N.Y. Sup. Ct.), aff'd, 284 A.D. 1041, 137 N.Y.S.2d 612, 1954 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4505 (N.Y. App. Div. 1954).

In the absence of an express provision in the policy, insurer was not liable to insured's wife for injury, but was liable where "insured" was not the spouse of the person injured. Jacobs v United States Fidelity & Guaranty Co., 2 Misc. 2d 428, 152 N.Y.S.2d 128, 1956 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1918 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1956).

The law is well settled that no coverage is afforded to the spouse of the person insured in an automobile liability policy in the absence of specific provision and affirmative undertaking in the policy granting such coverage. Empire Mut. Ins. Co. v Title, 42 Misc. 2d 425, 248 N.Y.S.2d 182, 1964 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2071 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1964), aff'd, 23 A.D.2d 968, 259 N.Y.S.2d 1006, 1965 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5887 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1965).

Insurance Law former § 167, subd 3 [now § 3420(g)] absolves an insurer from defending an action where the liability of its insured is incurred because of the death or injuries to the spouse, unless there is an express provision to the contrary in the policy. Smith v Employer's Fire Ins. Co., 72 Misc. 2d 524, 340 N.Y.S.2d 12, 1972 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1334 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1972).

Trial court properly declared that an insurer was not obligated to defend and indemnify a policy holder for claims filed by the policy holder's wife arising from an automobile accident in Virginia, as the policy excluded interspousal claims, the insurer was not required to provide insurance coverage for injuries sustained by an insured's spouse, N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(g), and N.Y. Ins. Law § 5103(e), which required a carrier to provide the coverage minimally required by the state where the loss occurred, applied solely to the amount and type of coverage required by another state. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. v Harkins, 30 A.D.3d 502, 817 N.Y.S.2d 107, 2006 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7908 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2006).

107. Particular applications of exclusion

The son of an insured, who was involved in an accident while driving the insured's car, was not an insured under the policy by virtue of the provisions of subdivision (3) of former § 167 [now § 3420(g)], insofar, as injuries to his wife, a passenger in the car, was concerned. Glens Falls Ins. Co. v Wood, 9 A.D.2d 201, 193 N.Y.S.2d 147, 1959 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6124 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1959), aff'd, 8 N.Y.2d 409, 208 N.Y.S.2d 978, 171 N.E.2d 321, 1960 N.Y. LEXIS 858 (N.Y. 1960).

Husband, who was injured when vehicle operated by him was struck headon by another of his automobiles which was being negligently operated by his wife, was not a "qualified person" entitled to indemnity from motor vehicle accident indemnification corporation, where policy insuring automobiles was a standard automobile liability policy which contained no proviso insuring against any liability of insured because of injuries to his or her spouse or because of destruction of property of his or her spouse. Moffitt v Moffitt, 46 A.D.2d 944, 362 N.Y.S.2d 229, 1974 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3290 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1974).

In an action evolving out of an auto accident, wherein plaintiff insurer sought a declaration that the automobile liability insurance policy in question did not provide coverage to insured husband in connection with his wife's lawsuit for personal injuries, the insurer would not be liable to the husband, notwithstanding the insurer's failure to render timely notice of disclaimer, since the policy did not afford coverage for interspousal liability claims. Empire Mut. Ins. Co. v Fleischman, 106 A.D.2d 295, 483 N.Y.S.2d 9, 1984 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 21358 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1984).

Exemption under CLS Ins § 3420(g) did not apply to insured, who was owner of car involved in accident, which was being driven with his consent by his son-in-law, and father of plaintiff in underlying action, who was passenger in car. Empire Ins. Co. v Silbowitz, 243 A.D.2d 251, 663 N.Y.S.2d 7, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9284 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1997).

Insurer was entitled to summary judgment declaring that it was not required to defend or indemnify insured wife in underlying action for wrongful death of her husband, who was killed in traffic accident while he was passenger in car driven by wife, where underlying action was subject to operation of CLS Ins § 3420(g), which provides that "[n]o policy [of insurance]...shall be deemed to insure against any liability of an insured because of death of...his or her spouse...unless express provision relating specifically thereto is included in the policy," and policy contained no express language specifically extending coverage to interspousal liability. Government Emples. Ins. Co. v Pagano, 251 A.D.2d 452, 674 N.Y.S.2d 719, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6850 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1998).

Insurer was entitled to disclaim liability to the owner's father, who killed the owner's mother while operating his son's vehicle with his permission, on the ground that the father was an "insured" under the policy and that since the action was brought for the death of the father's wife, the action was one for the death of the spouse of "insured". General Accident Fire & Life Assurance Corp. v Katz, 3 Misc. 2d 328, 150 N.Y.S.2d 667, 1956 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2085 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1956).

Spousal negligence provision of CLS Ins § 3420(g) did not limit suit against vicariously liable owner of automobile where automobile had been loaned by owner to his employee and was being driven by employee's wife at time of single car accident. Love v Luft, 150 Misc. 2d 732, 569 N.Y.S.2d 899, 1991 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 217 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1991).

108. —Claim against spouse's employer or partner

A liability policy issued to an employee inured to the benefit of his employer in respect of a collision between the employee's car and another vehicle resulting in injury to the employee's wife and hence, the wife could sue the employer alleging that her husband, the employee, was negligent in the operation of his car in the course of his employment where the employee's policy included as "insured", "any person or organization legally responsible for the use thereof" and the provisions of this section did not apply. Catania v Hartford Acci. & Indem. Co., 4 A.D.2d 440, 166 N.Y.S.2d 389, 1957 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4429 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1957).

Despite fact that driver of automobile owned by corporation of which he was president was an additional insured under the corporation's liability policy, Insurance Law former § 167, subdivision 3 [now § 3420(g)] would permit action by insurer of corporation as subrogee in wife's action against corporation for injuries incurred in accident involving automobile while her husband was driving from bringing indemnity action against husband where policy did not contain a provision for coverage of spouse of insured. United States Fire Ins. Co. v Gould, 43 A.D.2d 462, 352 N.Y.S.2d 541, 1974 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5647 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1974).

It was irrelevant whether insurer acquired actual knowledge of property damage from primary insured or from another source, because plaintiffs, who were owners of covered property and additional insureds under policy, had independent duty to give timely written notice of claim against them; thus, further disclosure would serve no useful purpose, and award of summary judgment to insurer was not premature. American Mfrs. Mut. Ins. Co. v CMA Enters., 246 A.D.2d 373, 667 N.Y.S.2d 724, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 272 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1998).

Husband's claim to be indemnified against corporate employer's claim over against him for injuries sustained by his wife was excluded by former § 167 [now § 3420(g)] where the corporate employer and the husband were insured under a policy which contained no express coverage for the assured's spouse. Reis v Economy Hotels & Restaurants Purveyors, Inc., 4 Misc. 2d 146, 155 N.Y.S.2d 713, 1956 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1617 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1956).

Where partnership was named as defendant in spouse's negligence action, insurer was liable to members of the partnership other than the husband for any sums they might be legally obligated to pay as damages. Travelers Indem. Co. v Unger, 4 Misc. 2d 955, 158 N.Y.S.2d 892, 1956 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1316 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1956).

109. —Claim based on no-fault insurance provisions

The spousal exclusion clauses found in the Vehicle and Traffic Law (§ 388, subd 4) and the Insurance Law (former § 167, subd 3 [now § 3420(g)]), to the effect that no policy shall be deemed to insure against any liability of an insured because of injuries to his spouse, are inapplicable to payments made by an insurer under the no-fault insurance provisions (Insurance Law, former §§ 670-678 [now §§ 101 et seq.]) to the wife of the operator of a car which hit a utility pole since the no-fault law did not require payment because of any liabiity of the insured, but, rather, the obligation of the insured arose by reason of the law's provisions and their legislatively mandated incorporation into its policy with the insured; payment under no-fault is to be made irrespective of the insured's fault and liability whereas the statutory spousal exclusion is applicable only when an insured seeks indemnification for injuries to his spouse sustained as a result of his negligence. Liberty Mut. Ins. Co. v State, 94 Misc. 2d 676, 405 N.Y.S.2d 945, 1978 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2295 (N.Y. Ct. Cl. 1978).

110. —Claim for apportionment among tortfeasors

Court of Appeals decision permitting apportionment among joint or concurrent tort-feasors did not have the effect of limiting language of Insurance Law dealing with coverage for injury or death of spouse of the insured; absent express contractual provision relating thereto, insurer was not obligated to defend insured or indemnify him with respect to liability for injuries suffered by his spouse even though, spouse having brought action against insured and third parties, the third parties had asserted cross claim against the insured. Lauer v Claffey, 52 A.D.2d 275, 383 N.Y.S.2d 671, 1976 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11994 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1976).

Insurance Law former § 167, subd 3 [now § 3420(g)], prohibition excluding from insurance coverage any liability of insured because of injury to spouse would be reexamined by court in light of judicial decision permitting apportionment of liability between parties. Aetna Casualty & Surety Co. v Delosh, 73 Misc. 2d 275, 341 N.Y.S.2d 465, 1973 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2169 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1973).

In married couple's personal injury action arising out of automobile collision, defendant's counterclaim seeking apportionment of damages from plaintiff husband under rule of Dole v Dow Chemical Co. was not a cause of action based on husband's liability due to death or injury of spouse within meaning of Insurance Law former § 167, subd 3 [now § 3420(g)]. Raia v Cook, 75 Misc. 2d 610, 349 N.Y.S.2d 956, 1973 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1405 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1973).

111. —Claim for indemnity or involving spouse as third party defendant

While a married woman has, by statute, been given a right of action against her husband for any tortious act causing injury, insurer of husband was not, in the instant case, obligated to defend or indemnify him with regard to third-party action in which it was alleged that he was liable in whole or in part for injuries sustained by his wife while she was a passenger in car operated by him, since another statute specifically provides that no insurance policy shall be deemed to insure against any liability of an insured because of injuries to spouse "unless express provision relating specifically thereto is included in the policy," and since the subject policy contained no such provision. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. v Westlake, 35 N.Y.2d 587, 364 N.Y.S.2d 482, 324 N.E.2d 137, 1974 N.Y. LEXIS 1062 (N.Y. 1974).

While a married woman has a right of action against her husband for tortious acts causing injury, husband's insurer was not obligated to defend or indemnify him with regard to third-party action alleging that husband was liable in whole or in part for injuries sustained by wife while a passenger in car operated by husband, since Insurance Law former § 167 [now § 3420] specifically prohibits insurance against liability of an insured because of injuries to spouse "unless express provision relating specifically thereto is included in the policy," and since the subject policy contained no such provision. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. v Westlake, 35 N.Y.2d 587, 364 N.Y.S.2d 482, 324 N.E.2d 137, 1974 N.Y. LEXIS 1062 (N.Y. 1974).

Despite provisions of Insurance Law former § 167, subd 3 [now § 3420(g)], insurer was obligated to defend third-party claim, asserted under rule of Dole v Dow Chemical Co., alleging that insured was liable in whole or in part for injuries sustained by wife in collision with defendant/third party plaintiff. State Farm Mut. Auto Ins. Co. v Westlake, 43 A.D.2d 314, 351 N.Y.S.2d 147, 1974 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5962 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't), rev'd, 35 N.Y.2d 587, 364 N.Y.S.2d 482, 324 N.E.2d 137, 1974 N.Y. LEXIS 1062 (N.Y. 1974).

When defendant seeks indemnification from driver-spouse for injuries to passenger-spouse, exclusionary provision of Insurance Law relieves carrier of driver-spouse from its responsibility to defend or to pay such a claim. Sharlow v Nationwide Mut. Ins. Co., 47 A.D.2d 572, 362 N.Y.S.2d 618, 1975 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8656 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1975).

An insurance carrier, which is exempt from providing coverage to a plaintiff's culpable insured spouse under subdivision 3 of former section 167 [now § 3420(g)] of the Insurance Law, may maintain a cross claim for indemnification against the insured spouse, in the right of a vicariously liable coinsured; if no claim for indemnification were permitted the wrongdoer spouse would be protected from any liability, and the very possibility of fraud and collusion against which the statute seeks to guard would be a factor. Schwartz v S. Lipkin & Son, Inc., 76 A.D.2d 141, 430 N.Y.S.2d 356, 1980 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11741 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1980).

Plaintiff, insurer of owner of automobile that was being driven by insured of second insurer (defendant) when it became involved in accident resulting in injuries to driver's wife, was barred by CLS Ins § 3420(g) from recovering against defendant for amount plaintiff paid in settlement of wife's claim against owner of automobile since there was no provision in defendant's policy with driver expressly insuring him for injury claims by his wife. Firemen's Ins. Co. v Allstate Ins. Co., 171 A.D.2d 186, 575 N.Y.S.2d 378, 1991 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13467 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1991), app. denied, 79 N.Y.2d 756, 583 N.Y.S.2d 191, 592 N.E.2d 799, 1992 N.Y. LEXIS 1004 (N.Y. 1992).

Insurance company was not required to defend husband in action brought by wife without an express provision therefor in his policy, even though husband was brought into action as a third party defendant. Feinman v Bernard Rice Sons, Inc., 2 Misc. 2d 86, 133 N.Y.S.2d 639, 1954 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1888 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1954), aff'd, 285 A.D. 926, 139 N.Y.S.2d 884, 1955 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6125 (N.Y. App. Div. 1955).

Insurance Law former § 167, subd 3 [now § 3420(g)], applied to third party action by defendant in automobile accident case against plaintiff's husband who was driver of automobile in which she was riding at the time of the accident so that, although third party action could be maintained, husband's insurer had no obligation to defend. Perno v Exchange Mut. Ins. Co., 73 Misc. 2d 346, 342 N.Y.S.2d 298, 1973 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2059 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1973).

In personal injury action brought by wife arising out of automobile accident in which she was a passenger in a car driven by her husband, husband's insurer was obligated to defend husband in cross claim for indemnity brought by defendants. United States Fidelity & Guaranty Co. v Franklin, 74 Misc. 2d 506, 344 N.Y.S.2d 251, 1973 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1933 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1973), aff'd, 43 A.D.2d 844, 352 N.Y.S.2d 1009, 1974 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5979 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1974).

Defendant motorist's cross-claim for indemnity against husband for injuries to wife was not within provisions of Insurance Law former § 167, subd 3 [now § 3420(g)]. Stone v Agricultural Ins. Co., 76 Misc. 2d 1021, 351 N.Y.S.2d 496, 1973 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1194 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1973).

112. —Recovery which does not depend on proof of spouse's culpability

Passenger was not precluded by CLS Ins § 3420(g) from recovering underinsurance motorist benefits for injuries sustained in one-car accident which occurred when her husband fell asleep while driving her father's car, where she alleged that her father was negligent in entrusting car to her husband because he knew that her husband was too tired to drive and that full limit of insurance coverage purchased by her father was insufficient to compensate her fully for her injuries, as negligent entrustment is independent tort and her father's liability was therefore not purely vicarious; thus, insurer's application to permanently stay arbitration was properly denied. General Accident Ins. Co. v Elbaum, 236 A.D.2d 472, 653 N.Y.S.2d 659, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1215 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1997).

Subdivision 3 of former section 167 [now § 3420(g)] of the Insurance Law was amended so as to limit the presumptive exclusion of interspousal coverage to cases where the injured spouse must prove the culpable conduct of the insured spouse in order to recover; therefore, in an action for contribution against the defendant husband, following a judgment in favor of the defendant's wife, and dismissal of the husband's suit against plaintiffs, resulting from an automobile accident in which the wife sustained injury, the wife's insurance company was obligated to defend and indemnify the defendant husband, since the wife's recovery was not dependent upon proof of her husband's negligence. Ward v Accordino, 93 Misc. 2d 746, 403 N.Y.S.2d 438, 1978 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2129 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1978).

113. Other matters

Police officer was entitled to summary judgment against her own personal automobile insurance company in action against insurance company and city for judgment declaring right of officer to seek uninsured motorist benefits from one of defendants for injuries sustained when her police car was struck by uninsured vehicle, and insurance company's argument that its obligation was secondary to that of her employer, defendant city, would be rejected, since city was not obligated to, and did not, provide uninsured motorist coverage for police vehicles. Williams v New York, 144 A.D.2d 553, 534 N.Y.S.2d 222, 1988 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11944 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1988).

Plaintiff, who sued both individually and in her capacity as executrix of her deceased husband in wrongful death action that arose from motor vehicle accident, was entitled to retain attorney at her insurance company's expense to represent her on counterclaim in action since interests of plaintiff and insurance company were in conflict as to counterclaim where (1) accident occurred when automobile driven by plaintiff skidded on ice, swerved into defendant's lane and collided with his vehicle, and (2) defendant counterclaimed for apportionment of damages based on plaintiff's fault; it was to insurance company's advantage to concede that plaintiff was at fault, since it would not be obligated to pay any money on claim if plaintiff were found 100 percent at fault, and therefore conflict of interest existed. Gorman v Pattengell, 145 A.D.2d 411, 535 N.Y.S.2d 402, 1988 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12928 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1988).

Where a wife, while riding in a car driven by her husband was injured, as alleged, by reason of his negligent operation of the car with the consent of its owner who was named insured in a liability policy, sued the named insured taking the position that she was an "additional insured" under the terms of the policy, she and the named insured must be regarded as separately insured by separate policies and the insurer had no right of subrogation to her asserted cause of action. Barson v General Accident Fire & Life Assurance Corp., 42 Misc. 2d 381, 247 N.Y.S.2d 905, 1964 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2249 (N.Y. Sup. Ct.), reh'g denied, 41 Misc. 2d 1033, 246 N.Y.S.2d 868, 1964 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2083 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1964).

Former § 167 [now § 3420(g)] applies only in actions brought by a spouse against the insured spouse where such coverage is not expressly provided, and the law is well settled that denial of coverage to the insured where his spouse sues a third party must be expressly provided for in the policy, otherwise no right of subrogation arises. Barson v General Accident Fire & Life Assurance Corp., 42 Misc. 2d 381, 247 N.Y.S.2d 905, 1964 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2249 (N.Y. Sup. Ct.), reh'g denied, 41 Misc. 2d 1033, 246 N.Y.S.2d 868, 1964 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2083 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1964).

Former § 167 [now § 3420(g)] has no application to an action by a father, on behalf of his infant son, to recover damages for personal injuries suffered by the child and for medical expenses, loss of services, etc., incurred by the father and brought against the mother, the owner of the vehicle and its operator inasmuch as there is no prohibition in the law against one spouse suing the other. Such causes of action are authorized by General Obligations Law § 3-313, subd 2. Zelby v Omansky, 61 Misc. 2d 199, 304 N.Y.S.2d 899, 1969 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1096 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1969).

Insurance Law section providing that no policy shall be deemed to insure against any liability of an insured because of death or injuries to his or her spouse unless express provision relating specifically thereto is included in the policy was applicable to a homeowners liability policy and such provision was not applicable only to automobile liability insurance. Longworth v Great American Ins. Co., 80 Misc. 2d 114, 362 N.Y.S.2d 762, 1974 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1853 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1974), modified, 55 A.D.2d 908, 390 N.Y.S.2d 602, 1977 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10149 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1977).

An insurer under a homeowners policy was not liable to pay for costs of a wife's defense against husband's negligence suit for injuries or to indemnify her for loss where homeowners policy did not contain a specific provision for interspousal coverage. Longworth v Great American Ins. Co., 80 Misc. 2d 114, 362 N.Y.S.2d 762, 1974 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1853 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1974), modified, 55 A.D.2d 908, 390 N.Y.S.2d 602, 1977 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10149 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1977).

The administrator of a deceased wife could recover under an automobile liability policy, notwithstanding that the policy contained no express provision insuring against liability for injuries to spouse of insured, where the wife's death was negligently caused by the husband, since former § 109 [predecessor to former § 167, now § 3420] was enacted to prevent fraudulent actions between spouses at the expense of insurers, but its effect should not be enlarged by construing it to include the purpose of forestalling actions between other than spouses. General Acci. Fire & Life Assurance Corp. v Morgan, 33 F. Supp. 190, 1940 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 3047 (W.D.N.Y. 1940).

There is no definition in Insurance Law of "significant other" in relation to personal or commercial motor vehicle insurance. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 06-07-05.

Insurance Service Organization ("ISO") policy form used by most motor vehicle insurers and other policy forms used by largest motor vehicle insurers in New York do not define or use term "significant other," nor is Department of Insurance aware of such use in any other motor vehicle policy forms filed with and approved by Superintendent of Insurance. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 06-07-05.

X. Failure of Insured to Cooperate With Insurer

114. In general

The failure of the insured to co-operate with the insurer is a defense to an action under this Former § 167 [now § 3420]. Shafer v Utica Mut. Ins. Co., 248 A.D. 279, 289 N.Y.S. 577, 1936 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6135 (N.Y. App. Div. 1936).

Motion to withdraw as counsel is inappropriate means of testing propriety of insurance carrier's disclaimer of liability on ground of lack of cooperation by insured. Rusolo v Skate Odyssey, 109 A.D.2d 875, 487 N.Y.S.2d 67, 1985 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 47395 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1985).

Defendant in underlying vehicle collision case lacked standing to implead insurer where defendant was not insured of that third-party defendant and thus had no legally cognizable interest in relationship between codefendant and his insurer. Abdalla v El Emeri Yehia, 246 A.D.2d 373, 667 N.Y.S.2d 736, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 265 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1998).

Stranger to insurance contract acquires no right to enforce insurer's duty until judgment against insured has been rendered and remains unsatisfied. Abdalla v El Emeri Yehia, 246 A.D.2d 373, 667 N.Y.S.2d 736, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 265 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1998).

While the precommencement settlement discussions between insured's insurer and the injured party's counsel may establish that the insurer had notice of the accident and the injured party's claim under N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(a (3), neither those contacts nor the injured party's letter to insurer alleging that service had been obtained was sufficient to cure the insured's breach of the specific policy provision requiring the prompt forwarding of legal papers, and that breach justified the insurer's disclaimer of coverage. Fisher v Hanover Ins. Co., 288 A.D.2d 806, 733 N.Y.S.2d 761, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11500 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2001).

An issue as to non-cooperation between an insured motorist and his insurer can be raised in actions under former § 167 [now § 3420]. Spadaro v Newark Ins. Co., 40 Misc. 2d 1042, 244 N.Y.S.2d 249, 1963 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1531 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1963), aff'd in part and rev'd in part, 21 A.D.2d 226, 249 N.Y.S.2d 753, 1964 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3722 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1964).

While, under the provisions of the Safety Responsibility Act (Vehicle and Traffic Law, § 345) rights of an injured party are absolute, under subd. 5 of this section they are not absolute but subject to defenses which the insurer may have against insured, including a defense of insured's failure to cooperate with the insurer. Downing v Allstate Ins. Co., 43 Misc. 2d 215, 250 N.Y.S.2d 711, 1964 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1662 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1964).

Insurance companies could not disclaim coverage based on the noncooperation of the insured insulation company as to the individuals who had asbestos-related personal injuries and actions pending against the insulation company. Continental Cas. Co. v Employers Ins. Co. of Wausau, 839 N.Y.S.2d 403, 16 Misc. 3d 223, 237 N.Y.L.J. 92, 2007 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3336 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 2007), rev'd, 60 A.D.3d 128, 871 N.Y.S.2d 48, 2008 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9966 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2008).

The defense that the insured did not co-operate with the insurer in preparing the defense to an action by an injured person is a valid plea in an action under former § 109 [predecessor to former § 167, now § 3420]. Hoff v St. Paul-Mercury Indem. Co., 74 F.2d 689, 1935 U.S. App. LEXIS 3505 (2d Cir. N.Y. 1935).

115. Insurer's burden of proof, generally

The burden of proving lack of co-operation of the insured is placed upon the insurer, since the defense of lack of co-operation penalizes the plaintiff for the action of the insured over whom he has no control, and since the defense frustrates the policy of this state that innocent victims of motor vehicle accidents be recompensed for the injuries inflicted upon them. Thrasher v United States Liability Ins. Co., 19 N.Y.2d 159, 278 N.Y.S.2d 793, 225 N.E.2d 503, 1967 N.Y. LEXIS 1703 (N.Y. 1967).

In proving lack of co-operation of the insured, the insured must demonstrate that it acted diligently in seeking to bring about the insured's co-operation, that the efforts employed by the insurer were reasonably calculated to obtain the insured's co-operation and that the attitude of the insured, after his co-operation was sought, was one of wilful and avowed obstruction. Thrasher v United States Liability Ins. Co., 19 N.Y.2d 159, 278 N.Y.S.2d 793, 225 N.E.2d 503, 1967 N.Y. LEXIS 1703 (N.Y. 1967).

Automobile liability insurer's burden of proving lack of cooperation by its insured is a heavy one since a disclaimer penalizes the injured party for the alleged action of the insured and frustrates the New York policy that innocent victims of motor vehicle accidents be recompensed for injuries suffered by them. Alexander v Stone, 45 A.D.2d 216, 357 N.Y.S.2d 271, 1974 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4460 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1974).

In order to disclaim coverage on ground of insured's lack of cooperation, carrier must demonstrate (1) that it acted diligently in seeking to bring about insured's cooperation, (2) that its efforts were reasonably calculated to obtain insured's cooperation, and (3) that attitude of insured, after cooperation was sought, was one of willful and avowed obstruction. Pawtucket Mut. Ins. Co. v Soler, 184 A.D.2d 498, 584 N.Y.S.2d 192, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7684 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1992).

Although insurer who alleges violation of cooperation clause of insurance policy is not required to show that insured openly avowed his or her intent to obstruct insurer, insurer has very heavy burden to show that circumstances support inference that insured's failure to cooperate was deliberate. Mount Vernon Fire Ins. Co. v 170 E. 106th St. Realty Corp., 212 A.D.2d 419, 622 N.Y.S.2d 758, 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1629 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't), app. denied, 86 N.Y.2d 707, 632 N.Y.S.2d 500, 656 N.E.2d 599, 1995 N.Y. LEXIS 3516 (N.Y. 1995).

In order to prevail on defense of noncooperation, insurer must show that its insured has engaged in unreasonable and willful pattern of refusing to answer material and relevant questions or to supply material and relevant documents. James & Charles Dimino Wholesale Seafood v Royal Ins. Co., 238 A.D.2d 379, 656 N.Y.S.2d 325, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3844 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1997).

Insured's partial noncompliance with discovery was not so willful or extreme as to warrant extreme penalty of dismissal of action where, before commencement of suit, insured afforded insurer access to its corporate books and records, its president appeared for examination under oath at which he answered all questions posed by insurer, and produced a number of documents, including personal income tax returns and authorization permitting additional returns to be obtained from Internal Revenue Service; although some of insurer's demands for documents and information were still outstanding at time of commencement of suit, insured complied with outstanding requests and executed transcripts of examinations under oath about 4 months later. James & Charles Dimino Wholesale Seafood v Royal Ins. Co., 238 A.D.2d 379, 656 N.Y.S.2d 325, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3844 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1997).

Where an automobile liability insurer seeks a declaration of non-liability by reason of insured's failure to cooperate, the plaintiff insurer has the burden of establishing breach of such condition. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. v Brown, 40 Misc. 2d 694, 243 N.Y.S.2d 825, 1963 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1470 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1963), rev'd, 21 A.D.2d 742, 250 N.Y.S.2d 244, 1964 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3751 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1964).

Insurer failed to satisfy its burden to prove that insured breached policy's cooperation clause, and its declaratory judgment action was dismissed as premature, where only factual assertion evincing failure to cooperate was insured's nonappearance at his examination before trial and, after letter of warning was sent to insured, insurer and plaintiff in underlying action had stipulated that insured's deposition could proceed as late as 30 days prior to trial. Allstate Ins. Co. v Loester, 177 Misc. 2d 372, 675 N.Y.S.2d 832, 1998 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 280 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1998).

116. Sufficiency of proof in particular cases

This action is based on former § 109 [predecessor to former § 167, now § 3420], whereby a successful plaintiff is permitted to proceed against an obligor of a casualty policy in case execution against the assured is returned unsatisfied. Resistance to plaintiff's claim is predicated principally, if not wholly, on the ground of failure of co-operation on the part of the assured. . . . While agreement is accorded defendant's proposition that plaintiff can have no greater rights than the assured, and that the assured by lack of co-operation would have relieved the defendant from liability, yet, in accord with the opinion herein expressed, it is held that the defendant has failed to establish lack of co-operation and in consequence that policy for purposes of this action is in full force and effect. 1923 NY Law Jour. June 30. See also Roth v National Auto. Mut. Casualty Co., 202 A.D. 667, 195 N.Y.S. 865, 1922 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4954 (N.Y. App. Div. 1922), app. dismissed, 235 N.Y. 605, 139 N.E. 752, 235 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 605, 1923 N.Y. LEXIS 1329 (N.Y. 1923).

The failure of the insured to cooperate as a defense by the insurance company to the claim by the holder of an unsatisfied judgment against an insured cannot be sustained. Albert v Public Service Mut. Casualty Ins. Corp., 266 A.D. 284, 42 N.Y.S.2d 124, 1943 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3544 (N.Y. App. Div. 1943), aff'd, 292 N.Y. 633, 55 N.E.2d 507, 292 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 633, 1944 N.Y. LEXIS 1789 (N.Y. 1944).

In an action by a judgment creditor against the insurer of the judgment debtor, the evidence established that the insurer acted diligently in seeking to obtain the insured's co-operation and in fact did, in the first instance, obtain such co-operation, but that later the attitude of the insured was wilful and avowed obstruction. Campbell v Travelers Ins. Co., 35 A.D.2d 362, 317 N.Y.S.2d 444, 1970 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3172 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1970), aff'd, 33 N.Y.2d 667, 348 N.Y.S.2d 982, 303 N.E.2d 707, 1973 N.Y. LEXIS 1024 (N.Y. 1973).

Evidence established that insured willfully obstructed insurer's defense of underlying litigation by his continued absence where signed, postal service return receipt showed that he had received insurer's written correspondence, and testimony of insurer's claims representative (who engaged in several post-incident conversations with insured), showed that insured was made fully aware of contractual obligation to cooperate in defense of action. State Farm Fire & Casualty Co. v Imeri, 182 A.D.2d 683, 582 N.Y.S.2d 463, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5962 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1992).

Insurer was not entitled to judgment declaring that it was entitled to disclaim coverage on ground of insured's lack of cooperation where there was no post-claim communication by insurer to insured in which insured was apprised of continuing obligation to cooperate, since insureds could reasonably have believed they fulfilled their obligation to cooperate when they answered questions posed during investigator's fact-finding interview; absent compelling evidence which established that insureds knew they were to further participate in defense, their unexplained absence was insufficient to raise inference of willful noncooperation. Pawtucket Mut. Ins. Co. v Soler, 184 A.D.2d 498, 584 N.Y.S.2d 192, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7684 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1992).

Insurer would be required to defend and indemnify insured with respect to underlying personal injury action, despite insurer's contention that insured failed to cooperate as required by policy, where (1) insured's initial attitude was one of basic, if rather haphazard, cooperation, (2) insured informed insurer that he lacked personal knowledge of accident, and (3) insured never received any specific warning that failure to cooperate could lead to disclaimer of coverage. Mount Vernon Fire Ins. Co. v 170 E. 106th St. Realty Corp., 212 A.D.2d 419, 622 N.Y.S.2d 758, 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1629 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't), app. denied, 86 N.Y.2d 707, 632 N.Y.S.2d 500, 656 N.E.2d 599, 1995 N.Y. LEXIS 3516 (N.Y. 1995).

Liability insurer was properly granted summary judgment based on lack of cooperation of its insured, who willfully obstructed insurer's defense of underlying litigation by refusing to turn over documents and failing to appear at examination before trial or court-ordered pretrial settlement conferences, resulting in orders of preclusion being granted against insured and insured being held in contempt of court; insurer was not required to show prejudice to be entitled to summary judgment. Utica Mut. Ins. Co. v Gruzlewski, 217 A.D.2d 903, 630 N.Y.S.2d 955, 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8316 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1995).

Paragraph 5 of former § 167 [now § 3420(c)], in providing with respect to actions over by third persons against automobile insurers that where the insurer defends on basis of failure of the insured to cooperate the burden of proof as to failure to cooperate is upon the insurer, is not met by a mere allegation of the insurer that the insured gave it no notice of the accident for some two years. Karp v Aetna Casualty & Surety Co., 21 Misc. 2d 487, 201 N.Y.S.2d 421, 1959 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2322 (N.Y. Mun. Ct. 1959).

Although the motorist insured under a liability policy duly notified his insurer of being involved in an accident, he was guilty of failure to cooperate with the insurer where he neither turned over to the insurer the summons which he was later served with nor notified it that he had been served with such a summons, nor notified it of judgment taken against him. Clark v Utica Mut. Ins. Co., 31 Misc. 2d 1005, 222 N.Y.S.2d 239, 1961 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1899 (N.Y. Mun. Ct. 1961).

Where an injured person seeks to enforce a judgment obtained against an insured motorist against his liability insurer, the insurer cannot successfully defend against the claim on the ground of the insured's failure to cooperate in defense of the action if the insured has reasonably attempted to cooperate and the insurer has failed to disclaim liability within a reasonable time on the ground of failure to cooperate. Wallace v Universal Ins., Inc., 227 N.Y.S.2d 999 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1962), modified, 18 A.D.2d 121, 238 N.Y.S.2d 379, 1963 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4219 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1963).

Trial court erred in granting summary judgment to an insured as to an injured party's action under N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420, as the insurer failed to show that it used due diligence in attempting to gain an insured's cooperation in the action, or that the insured willfully obstructed the insurer's attempt to investigate the matter. Rucaj v Progressive Ins. Co., 19 A.D.3d 270, 797 N.Y.S.2d 79, 2005 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6997 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2005).

Tenant injured in assault had reasonable chance of recovering more than NYC Housing Authority's $500,000 self-insured retention, and thus Authority breached policy's cooperation clause by preventing insurer from settling, where law was unsettled as to whether circumstantial evidence alone would suffice to support finding that unidentified assailants were not residents or guests of housing development. New York City Hous. Auth. v Housing Auth. Risk Retention Group, Inc., 203 F.3d 145, 2000 U.S. App. LEXIS 1173 (2d Cir. N.Y. 2000).

Insurer's actions were not reasonably calculated to elicit insured's cooperation in settling underlying personal injury case where insurer's disclaimer did not suggest that insured could change its mind, allow settlement, and thereby restore coverage; instead, insurer's tone of disclaimer was final: "[d]ue to your obstructive conduct of this date relative to the above matter, this is to advise that the [insurer] must hereby disclaim any and all coverage obligations to you in this matter." New York City Hous. Auth. v Housing Auth. Risk Retention Group, Inc., 203 F.3d 145, 2000 U.S. App. LEXIS 1173 (2d Cir. N.Y. 2000).

Insured's failure to cooperate in agreeing to settlement with plaintiff in underlying personal injury case fell short of willful and avowed obstruction where insurer never attempted to persuade insured to cooperate and, had insurer quickly persuaded insured to alter its position, settlement negotiations might still have taken place; thus, insurer was precluded from disclaiming coverage for noncooperation. New York City Hous. Auth. v Housing Auth. Risk Retention Group, Inc., 203 F.3d 145, 2000 U.S. App. LEXIS 1173 (2d Cir. N.Y. 2000).

In an action under former § 167 [now § 3420], it was a question of fact for the jury whether or not the insured had breached his contract of insurance, by failing to cooperate with the insurer in the defense of a personal injury action and not appearing at the trial after having been served with a subpoena. Cyr v American Guarantee & Liability Ins. Co., 242 F.2d 8, 1957 U.S. App. LEXIS 2752 (2d Cir. N.Y. 1957).

117. —Disappearance of insured

Proof of absence meets the insurer's burden of proving failure to co-operate where a third party fails to come forward with an explanation or excuse. Shalita v American Motorists Ins. Co., 266 A.D. 131, 41 N.Y.S.2d 507, 1943 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3504 (N.Y. App. Div.), reh'g denied, 266 A.D. 885, 44 N.Y.S.2d 101, 1943 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5036 (N.Y. App. Div. 1943).

Where an automobile insurer is attempting to avoid liability to a judgment creditor of the insureds on the ground of breach of condition by insureds to cooperate in preparation, settlement, and defense of the action against them, insurer has the burden of proving breach of the cooperation provision and fails to meet that burden if it appears from the evidence that insureds were willing to cooperate in defense of the action but were finally lost track of by the insurer through lack of diligence on its part. Kehoe v Motorists Mut. Ins. Co., 20 A.D.2d 308, 246 N.Y.S.2d 827, 1964 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4351 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1964).

Although following an automobile accident the 72-year-old insured disappeared and could not be found despite a diligent search by the insurer, the insurance company could not disclaim liability based upon the insured's failure to co-operate, where following the commencement of the negligence action against the insured, he gave a statement to the company's representative and later willingly appeared and testified at plaintiff's examination before trial, but disappeared before signing the transcribed minutes. Pointing out that the insured had on prior occasions expressed a desire to commit suicide and that considering the circumstances of his disappearance the insured was probably dead, the court held that his unexplained disappearance was not enough to establish the defense of breach of the co-operation clause. Amatucci v Maryland Casualty Co., 25 A.D.2d 583, 267 N.Y.S.2d 41, 1966 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4974 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1966).

Insurer was entitled to disclaim coverage under fire insurance policy where it had been unable to locate insured and bring about his cooperation despite diligent efforts, including (1) making numerous telephone calls and personal visits to insured's last known residence and business addresses, (2) undertaking record searches of both New York and Texas Departments of Motor Vehicles, (3) conducting post office and prison index inquiries, (4) canvassing several establishments in area of insured's former place of business, (5) personally questioning insured's former employer, and (6) contacting Michigan authorities in pursuit of lead that insured had been issued traffic ticket in that state. State Farm Fire & Casualty Co. v Imeri, 182 A.D.2d 683, 582 N.Y.S.2d 463, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5962 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1992).

Insurer could not disclaim coverage on ground of insured's lack of cooperation where report prepared by private investigation firm hired by insurer to locate insured showed that insured did in fact timely respond to insurer's final notice, provided explanation for his prior unavailability, and pledged his full cooperation with investigation. Commercial Union Ins. Co. v Burr, 226 A.D.2d 416, 641 N.Y.S.2d 69, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3539 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1996).

118. —Effect of insurer's lack of diligence in locating insured

The defense of failure of the insured to cooperate was not allowed where the insured had given notice of the accident, forwarded summons and complaint in the action to the insurer and verified the answer prepared by it, although the insured could not be located at the time of trial, since insurer had made no efforts to locate the insured for almost two years before the trial. Apfel v London Guarantee & Acci. Co., 275 N.Y. 471, 11 N.E.2d 303, 275 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 471, 1937 N.Y. LEXIS 1459 (N.Y. 1937).

Where an injured person who has obtained judgment against an insured motorist seeks to enforce liability of the insurer, and the insurer seeks to avoid liability by reason of the insured's failure to cooperate in defense of the action, the burden of proving breach of the cooperation clause is upon the insurer, and this burden is not met by merely showing that the insurer's attorneys made some attempts to contact insured by telephone and letter but, after once contacting him and obtaining a written statement, failed to follow up obvious leads and keep contact with him. Wallace v Universal Ins. Co., 18 A.D.2d 121, 238 N.Y.S.2d 379, 1963 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4219 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't), aff'd, 13 N.Y.2d 978, 244 N.Y.S.2d 779, 194 N.E.2d 688, 1963 N.Y. LEXIS 939 (N.Y. 1963).

In an action by a judgment creditor of an automobile owner and operator against their insurer to recover the amount of damages awarded to him from the insurer, the collision giving rise to the damage having occurred in 1953, insurer was not entitled to disclaim on the ground of lack of cooperation by insureds where it had not itself exercised diligence and good faith in attempting to get cooperation from them, it appearing that assureds were apparently cooperating as late as 1960 but the insurer later lost track of them so that they were not available when the case against it came up for trial. Kehoe v Motorists Mut. Ins. Co., 20 A.D.2d 308, 246 N.Y.S.2d 827, 1964 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4351 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1964).

While field claims representative of automobile liability insurer for defendant motorist made first attempt to locate the defendant motorist three months after the accident at an address different from the one given by the motorist three days after the accident, the representative did not thereafter attempt to contact the motorist until two years later, the law firm retained by the insurer for the case only made four attempts to locate the motorist by mail and no effort was made to personally contact him and, when finally contacted, the motorist showed willingness to cooperate, the insured failed to establish the motorist's lack of cooperation and was not warranted in disclaiming coverage. Alexander v Stone, 45 A.D.2d 216, 357 N.Y.S.2d 271, 1974 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4460 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1974).

Insurer undertook diligent efforts to bring about insured's cooperation where it attempted to contact insured, personally and by mail, on numerous occasions over period of several months, and even retained services of private investigation firm for such purpose. Commercial Union Ins. Co. v Burr, 226 A.D.2d 416, 641 N.Y.S.2d 69, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3539 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1996).

Insurer failed to act diligently in seeking to bring about insured's cooperation in settling underlying personal injury case, and thus was precluded from disclaiming coverage, where insurer made no attempt to persuade insured that plaintiff had reasonable chance of success in his case, and insurer did not give insured opportunity to reconsider its position in opposing settlement. New York City Hous. Auth. v Housing Auth. Risk Retention Group, Inc., 203 F.3d 145, 2000 U.S. App. LEXIS 1173 (2d Cir. N.Y. 2000).

119. —False or conflicting statements by insured

An automobile liability insurer was entitled to a declaratory judgment against the insured of non-liability on the policy issued to him on the ground of his breach of the cooperation clause in the policy, where insured lied to it as to identity of the driver of the car at the time it was involved in a certain accident, stating that he was not himself the driver of the car. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. v Brown, 21 A.D.2d 742, 250 N.Y.S.2d 244, 1964 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3751 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1964).

Where defendant in reporting automobile accident to his insurer stated that he had been cut off by an unknown vehicle and caused to swerve and strike a light pole when actually he had fallen asleep at the wheel, declaratory judgment was granted that the insurer was not obligated to defend a negligence action brought against him by passengers in the car because the insured's conduct in giving false evidence in reporting the accident was a breach of the condition of the policy requiring cooperation. National Grange Mut. Ins. Co. v Austin, 23 A.D.2d 776, 258 N.Y.S.2d 439, 1965 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4464 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1965).

Where insured, in statement to plaintiff's attorneys, said that he was "going too fast to stop" and subsequently on examination before trial stated that he had seen plaintiff but "it was too late," insurer's defense of lack of co-operation was not established since there was no material variance between the statement given to plaintiff's attorneys and his examination before trial testimony, nor did it appear that the insured was ever told not to make any statement of facts to anyone other than his insurer and the statement which he did make was not an admission or assumption of liability. Greenhalgh v Commercial Ins. Co., 25 A.D.2d 916, 270 N.Y.S.2d 40, 1966 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4154 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1966).

Insurance company would not be required to defend and indemnify its insured in connection with incident in which insured's husband struck and killed pedestrian where (1) husband told insured and insurance company that he had struck deer, and insurance company paid for damage to insured's vehicles, and (2) insured and her husband did not inform insurance company of truth until after husband was convicted of leaving scene of incident without reporting. Lewis v Nationwide Mut. Ins. Co., 202 A.D.2d 816, 609 N.Y.S.2d 106, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2498 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1994).

It is not a defense in an action by an injured party against the insurer, pursuant to former § 109 [predecessor to former § 167, now § 3420], to recover on a judgment secured against a judgment-proof assured, that assured failed to comply with the terms of the policy in that, among other things, he failed to cooperate with the insurer in defense of the action by failing to advise the insurer of an admission made that he was "drowsing" at the wheel at the time of the accident, and that the defense was thereby prejudiced and the policy vitiated, where information as to drowsing was not withheld from any improper motive and insurer was put on notice of assured's "drowsing" before the action was commenced and answer interposed. Killeen v Preferred Acc. Ins. Co., 267 N.Y.S. 320, 149 Misc. 397, 1933 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1662 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1933), aff'd, 242 A.D. 725, 273 N.Y.S. 427, 1934 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6964 (N.Y. App. Div. 1934).

An automobile liability insurer, in order to sustain a defense against an action brought pursuant to subd. 5 of former § 167 [now § 3420(c)] by an injured person who has recovered judgment against insured, on the basis of nonliability because of insured's failure to cooperate in defense of the action, has the burden of establishing breach of the policy provisions as to cooperation by the insured, including lack of good faith by the insured, which must be proved and cannot be inferred from conflicting statements of the insured carelessly made to an investigator following the accident, if insured appears at the trial and wholly and fairly testifies as a witness to what occurred. Rivera v Merchants Mut. Casualty Co., 27 Misc. 2d 139, 210 N.Y.S.2d 577, 1960 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3304 (N.Y. Mun. Ct. 1960).

Wilful falsification of identity of vehicle operator and failure to reveal truth thereof, coupled with other falsifications for a period of 6 months constituted noncooperation with insurer, relieving insurer from liability. Sweet v United States Fire Ins. Co., 72 Misc. 2d 1022, 340 N.Y.S.2d 957, 1973 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2322 (N.Y. Civ. Ct. 1973).

Insurer's motion to stay arbitration of an uninsured motorist claim was properly granted and N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(d), requiring timely notice of denial of coverage after a notice of claim was filed, was properly found to be inapplicable because the insurer's denial of coverage was based on the insured's fraudulent misrepresentation that he was driving a covered vehicle during the accident. Since the denial was based on the fraudulent misrepresentation, the concerns of prejudice to the insured from the lack of timely notice were not present; the insurer's motion for a stay of arbitration was properly granted. Utica Mut. Ins. Co. v Reid, 22 A.D.3d 127, 799 N.Y.S.2d 509, 2005 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8469 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2005).

120. Burden of going forward with evidence

Upon a showing by the insurer of an absence of the insured which remains unexplained despite reasonable efforts to locate the insured, the burden of going forward with the proof and supplying the data necessary to repel the adverse inference must rest on the assured. Campbell v Travelers Ins. Co., 35 A.D.2d 362, 317 N.Y.S.2d 444, 1970 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3172 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1970), aff'd, 33 N.Y.2d 667, 348 N.Y.S.2d 982, 303 N.E.2d 707, 1973 N.Y. LEXIS 1024 (N.Y. 1973).

In action against insurance company for bad faith refusal to settle action against its insured, plaintiff has burden to prove that rejection by insurance company of offer of settlement within policy limits constituted deliberate, or at least reckless, decision to disregard interests of its insured. Roldan v Allstate Ins. Co., 149 A.D.2d 20, 544 N.Y.S.2d 359, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9736 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1989).

Under subd. 5 of former § 167 [now § 3420(c)], there can be no question but that an insurance company can plead defenses by reason of breaches of policy conditions on the part of its insured as against a judgment claimant's attempt to enforce the insurer's liability; and the burden of proof in establishing such breaches rests with the insurer after which the burden of going forward with evidence to explain the breach shifts to plaintiffs. Wallace v Universal Ins., Inc., 227 N.Y.S.2d 999 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1962), modified, 18 A.D.2d 121, 238 N.Y.S.2d 379, 1963 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4219 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1963).

121. Evidence

In action by teacher against emotionally handicapped student and his parents arising from incident in which student assaulted teacher in school, parents of student could have refused to sign authorization form which permitted their homeowner's insurance company to examine Family Court records pertaining to assault, and such refusal would not have been breach of obligation to cooperate, since CLS Family Ct Act § 380.1(3) permitted such refusal to disclose information. Holyoke Mut. Ins. Co. v Jason B., 184 A.D.2d 550, 585 N.Y.S.2d 61, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7820 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1992).

Insured engaged in willful conduct constituting material breach of policy, thus precluding his recovery under policy, where, without offering any explanation, he sought and obtained 6 adjournments of his examination under oath and then refused to submit to such examination unless insurer waived its right to assert affirmative defense of noncompliance with cooperation provision of policy. Sabel v Insurance Co. of N. Am., 251 A.D.2d 645, 676 N.Y.S.2d 478, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7926 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't), app. denied, 92 N.Y.2d 813, 681 N.Y.S.2d 474, 704 N.E.2d 227, 1998 N.Y. LEXIS 3723 (N.Y. 1998).

Insurer was obligated to indemnify the insureds in the underlying personal injury action arising from a motor vehicle accident because the insurer had sufficient information to support its alleged disclaimer of coverage on the basis of noncooperation, at the latest, as of September 20, 2010, but the insurer's delay in disclaiming coverage on January 20, 2011, was not as soon as was reasonably possible Robinson v Global Liberty Ins. Co. of N.Y., 164 A.D.3d 1385, 84 N.Y.S.3d 255, 2018 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6065 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2018).

In an action under former § 109 [predecessor to former § 167, now 3420] against an insurance carrier on the ground that the judgment against the insured is unsatisfied, where the defense is that insured failed to co-operate in defense of the prior action and is based on the fact that insured made a written statement after the accident which exonerated himself from liability, while, on trial of action, the insured testified to contrary facts which tended to establish that he was liable for the accident, the defendant has the right to introduce in evidence the written statement made by the insured for the purpose of showing lack of co-operation. Solomon v Preferred Acc. Ins. Co., 229 N.Y.S. 257, 132 Misc. 134, 1928 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 876 (N.Y. App. Term 1928).

In an action against an insurer under former § 167 [now § 3420], evidence of the extent of investigation by the insurer for the trial of the action was relevant and material on the question of insurer's good faith, in interposing special defense of noncooperation on part of the insured. Cyr v American Guarantee & Liability Ins. Co., 242 F.2d 8, 1957 U.S. App. LEXIS 2752 (2d Cir. N.Y. 1957).

122. Waiver of disclaimer of liability by insurer

In actions under former § 167 [now § 3420] to recover because of unsatisfied judgments procured by plaintiffs against defendant's assured, a waiver by the defendant of conduct of the assured in refusing to co-operate in preparing for trial did not constitute a waiver of assured's subsequent refusal to appear at the trial of the action, nor prevent the defendant from disclaiming liability on that account. Briskman v Glens Falls Indem. Co., 251 A.D. 319, 296 N.Y.S. 519, 1937 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6930 (N.Y. App. Div. 1937).

In an action by judgment creditors of an insured to recover the amounts of their judgments covered by an accident insurance policy under which defendant had disclaimed liability in an accident involving the operation of insured's automobile by insured's son, on the ground that insured had failed to co-operate with insurer, whether the act of the defendant in receiving a written statement from the insured amounted to a waiver of its right to claim this defense, is a question for the jury with the burden of proving lack of co-operation on the defendant and the burden of proving waiver on the plaintiff. Della-Posta v New York Casualty Co., 276 A.D. 770, 92 N.Y.S.2d 523, 1949 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3266 (N.Y. App. Div. 1949).

Automobile liability insurer for defendant motorist waived its right to disclaim coverage on ground of lack of cooperation when insurer proceeded to defend the negligence action against the motorist and continued thereafter for three years to manage the defense thereof without seriously attempting to locate the motorist. Alexander v Stone, 45 A.D.2d 216, 357 N.Y.S.2d 271, 1974 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4460 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1974).

Insurer's disclaimer of coverage based on insured's failure to give written notice of accident "as soon as is practical" was untimely as matter of law, where insurer did not advise insured that it was disclaiming coverage until almost 3 months after it received notice of injured party's suit against insured. Watson v Aetna Cas. & Sur. Co., 246 A.D.2d 57, 675 N.Y.S.2d 367, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8282 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1998).

In insureds' action for declaratory judgment, insurer's assertion of untimely notice of claim as defense in its answer was timely notice of its disclaimer of coverage. American Mfrs. Mut. Ins. Co. v CMA Enters., 246 A.D.2d 373, 667 N.Y.S.2d 724, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 272 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1998).

Delay of two months caused by an insurer's need to investigate a claim was reasonable; thus, the insured made out a prima facie case that its denial of coverage was timely under N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(d). Hermitage Ins. Co. v Arm-Ing, Inc., 46 A.D.3d 620, 847 N.Y.S.2d 628, 2007 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12527 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2007).

Declaration that insurers were obligated to pay a share of the settlement and defense costs in an underlying personal injury action was proper because, although the commercial general liability and garage policies at issue excluded coverage for the claim, the insurers' disclaimer, issued more than four months after receiving notification of the third-party action brought by a state insurance fund, was untimely as a matter of law, and no showing of prejudice was required under N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(d). State Ins. Fund v Am. Hardware Mut. Ins. Co., 64 A.D.3d 581, 882 N.Y.S.2d 300, 2009 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5658 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2009).

Insurer that took no action for over eight months to disclaim uninsured motorist coverage when passengers failed to return completed proof of claim forms did not disclaim coverage as soon as possible as required by N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(d); the passengers' failure to return the forms did not extend the insurer's time to disclaim or excuse its failure to do so. Matter of N.Y. Cent. Mut. Fire Ins. Co. v Aguirre, 7 N.Y.3d 772, 820 N.Y.S.2d 848, 854 N.E.2d 146, 2006 N.Y. LEXIS 1484 (N.Y. 2006).

123. Procedural matters

Issues of fact pertaining to opportunity of plaintiffs to conduct pretrial examination of insured out of state, whether insured might have been examined in New York State shortly before trial, whether conduct of insured in telephone conversation, and at other times, could be characterized as one of "willful and avowed obstruction" and whether illness of insured's mother restrained insured from attending examinations in New York State, precluded summary judgment in action against insurer based upon judgment entered against insured after defendant had disclaimed on its policy on ground of noncooperation. Van Opdorp v Merchants Mut. Ins. Co., 55 A.D.2d 810, 390 N.Y.S.2d 279, 1976 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 15614 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1976).

Court erred in permitting law firm retained by insurance company to withdraw as defense counsel for company's insured on ground that company was disclaiming coverage due to insured's lack of cooperation and had directed firm to withdraw since (1) record was devoid of proof regarding company's efforts to contact its insured, (2) nonaction, which was only factual basis for finding that insured failed to cooperate, did not demonstrate attitude of "willful and avowed obstruction" on part of insured, and (3) proper procedure for establishing insurance company's right to deny coverage was declaratory judgment action, not motion to withdraw as counsel. Flans v Martini, 136 A.D.2d 498, 523 N.Y.S.2d 819, 1988 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 434 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1988).

Cause of action based on insurance company's alleged breach of its contractual duty to indemnify its insured under automobile insurance policy against liability for bodily injury accrued when liability was imposed by judgment entered against insured. Roldan v Allstate Ins. Co., 149 A.D.2d 20, 544 N.Y.S.2d 359, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9736 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1989).

Cause of action based on insurance company's alleged bad faith refusal to settle litigation against its insured under automobile insurance policy against liability for bodily injury accrued when liability was imposed by judgment entered against insured since it was not until that date that liability in excess of policy limits was imposed on insured; further, court would reject contention that cause of action did not accrue until later date of final appellate court action on entry of judgment since cause of action did not allege violation of duty to defend but only of duty to indemnify or to settle in good faith. Roldan v Allstate Ins. Co., 149 A.D.2d 20, 544 N.Y.S.2d 359, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9736 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1989).

Six-year statute of limitations of CLS CPLR § 213(2) applied to causes of action against insurance company for breach of its contractual duty to indemnify its insured and for bad faith refusal to settle litigation against its insured under automobile insurance policy against liability for bodily injury. Roldan v Allstate Ins. Co., 149 A.D.2d 20, 544 N.Y.S.2d 359, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9736 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1989).

On causes of action against insurance company for breach of its contractual duty to indemnify its insured and for bad faith refusal to settle litigation against its insured under automobile insurance policy against liability for bodily injury, statute of limitations was suspended during period after court erroneously granted motion to vacate default judgment against insured and until such order was reversed. Roldan v Allstate Ins. Co., 149 A.D.2d 20, 544 N.Y.S.2d 359, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9736 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1989).

Insurance company was not entitled, under CLS CPLR § 3211(a)(7), to dismissal of causes of action for bad faith refusal to indemnify its insured and bad faith refusal to settle action against its insured since motion was addressed solely to adequacy of pleadings and did not put plaintiff to her proof. Roldan v Allstate Ins. Co., 149 A.D.2d 20, 544 N.Y.S.2d 359, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9736 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1989).

Insurance company was not entitled to dismissal of cause of action on ground that it constituted claim for punitive damages alone since complaint purported to state cause of action for fraud and alleged that insurance company issued automobile liability policy even though it never intended to honor covenants of policy, that representatives of insurance company made intentional misrepresentations to insured, and that insured justifiably relied on those representations. Roldan v Allstate Ins. Co., 149 A.D.2d 20, 544 N.Y.S.2d 359, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9736 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1989).

Insurance company was entitled to dismissal of cause of action which attempted to impose strict liability on it for its failure to settle underlying action against its insured within policy limits on proof that its policy was in effect and that it failed to accept offer within policy limits since liability for failure to settle within policy limits requires showing of bad faith. Roldan v Allstate Ins. Co., 149 A.D.2d 20, 544 N.Y.S.2d 359, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9736 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1989).

Court erred in dismissing, on res judicata grounds, counterclaim by defendant insurer against its insured (landlord) seeking to recover damages allegedly sustained as result of insured's failure to cooperate in settlement negotiations in tenant's action against it, since issue decided in previous declaratory judgment action between parties was whether insurance policy covered judgment rendered in favor of tenant, and issue raised in counterclaim was neither raised nor litigated in declaratory judgment action. Jefferson Towers, Inc. v Public Serv. Mut. Ins. Co., 195 A.D.2d 311, 600 N.Y.S.2d 41, 1993 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7119 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1993).

Insurer's delay in completing its investigation of claim does not excuse insured from timely commencing action since insured is bound by terms of policy either to commence action prior to expiration of limitations period or to obtain waiver or extension of such provision. Brown v Royal Ins. Co. of Am., 210 A.D.2d 279, 620 N.Y.S.2d 399, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12575 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1994).

Insurer was not entitled to summary judgment where there were fact issues as to whether insured's failure to cooperate with insurer in investigation of insurance claim, based on insured's failure to appear for continued examination under oath, was willful disregard of insured's policy obligations or was due to deteriorating physical and mental condition, and subsequent suspension from practice of law, of insured's former counsel; insurer failed to sustain its burden to prove that insured willfully refused to cooperate in investigation and to participate in examination under oath in violation of insurance contract where insured appeared at initial examination under oath but subsequently failed to submit to subsequent examinations, allegedly by reason of conduct of her incapacitated counsel. Baerga v Transtate Ins. Co., 213 A.D.2d 217, 623 N.Y.S.2d 587, 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2762 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1995).

Court erred in dismissing insurer's affirmative defense of failure to cooperate in action for breach of insurance contract where fact issue existed as to whether insured substantially performed his obligations under cooperation clause. Ashline v Genesee Patrons Coop. Ins. Co., 224 A.D.2d 847, 638 N.Y.S.2d 217, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1268 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1996).

Insured who made October 1996 claim under uninsured motorist endorsement would be directed to submit to physical examination by insurer's doctors, to submit to examination under oath, and to provide authorization for hospital and medical records and for no-fault, employment, and workers' compensation records where insurer had not obtained any medical information about him since April 1992. Travelers Ins. Co. v Lianides, 246 A.D.2d 490, 668 N.Y.S.2d 200, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 693 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1998).

Trial court should not have denied the insurer's petition to stay arbitration on the grounds that the disclaimer was untimely as a matter of law because the insurer's contention that the policy language expressed a lack of coverage did not require prompt disclaimer. Matter of Hartford Acc. & Indem. Co. v Dellegrazie, 2021 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 321 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2021).

In action under CLS Ins § 3420(a)(2), which authorizes direct action against insurer by injured person when judgment obtained against insured remains unsatisfied, plaintiff (subrogee of injured party) was entitled to summary judgment despite fact that insured did not transmit summons and complaint to insurer in underlying action by injured party, since insurer concededly had sufficient notice of accident and had ample opportunity to investigate, and there was no showing of willful obstruction by insureds or of efforts by insurer to enlist cooperation of insured. Wausau Ins. Co. v Home Indem. Co., 151 Misc. 2d 302, 573 N.Y.S.2d 247, 1991 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 392 (N.Y. Civ. Ct. 1991).

124. Other matters

It is a good defense to an action, brought under former § 109 [Predecessor to former § 167, now § 3420] by a person injured by an automobile of another, against an insurance company to recover the amount of the judgment which the injured person had recovered against the owner of the automobile, that the insured made an affidavit in effect that at the time of the injury the car was being used by the chauffeur for the chauffeur's own benefit, and that the insured after the injury failed to co-operate with the insurer in the defense of the action as required by the terms of the insurance policy. In such an action by an injured person, the insurer is entitled to assert any defense which it might have asserted in an action by the insured, and failure on the part of the insured to co-operate in the defense of the action would be a good defense to an action by the insured against the insurer. Under former § 109 [predecessor to former § 167, now § 3420] a right of action does not accrue to the injured person against the insurer on the ground that the insured is insolvent or has gone into bankruptcy, until an execution issued on a judgment recovered against the insured is returned unsatisfied by reason of the insolvency or bankruptcy of the insured. So where insurer cancels policy on ground that failure of insured to co-operate, which it has a right to do before a judgment is obtained by the injured person against the insured, the liability of the insurer ceases to exist, and no right of action survives to the injured person. Schoenfeld v New Jersey Fidelity & Plate Glass Ins. Co., 203 A.D. 796, 197 N.Y.S. 606, 1922 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7306 (N.Y. App. Div. 1922).

The "no-action" condition in an insurance policy did not bar an insured's cause of action based on the insurer's failure to defend the insured in a liability action brought against her by a third party, since the insured's action was for breach of contract, and not on the policy, and in denying the efficacy of the policy the insurer was precluded from raising such provision as a defense. Patterson v Allstate Ins. Co., 34 A.D.2d 1081, 312 N.Y.S.2d 147, 1970 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4264 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1970).

Insured, who submitted to examination under oath and agreed to provide insurer with certain documents but thereafter continuously refused to provide such documentation without explanation or excuse, materially breached policy that explicitly required him to provide information to insurer on request; mere fact that insurer participated in pretrial discovery pursuant to CLS CPLR Art 31 did not act as waiver of its right to assert breach. Cabe v Aetna Casualty & Surety Co., 153 A.D.2d 653, 544 N.Y.S.2d 862, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11055 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1989).

Insured who was involved in automobile accident did not breach insurance contract by settling his claim against insurer of other vehicle where insured settled only after his insurer rejected his underinsured motorist claim as "not valid"; by repudiating liability, insurer released insured from requirement that he obtain insurer's consent to accept settlement offer from other insurer. Automobile Ins. Co. v Stillway, 165 A.D.2d 572, 568 N.Y.S.2d 727, 1991 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4469 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1991).

Insured did not establish waiver of policy requirement of prior written consent to any proposed settlement based on insurer's failure to respond to letter written by insured's attorney to insurer stating that settlement offer "has been accepted, unless we receive objection from [insured] within ten days," where letter did not include copy of release that insured intended to issue upon acceptance of offer, which did not preserve insurer's subrogation rights. State Farm Auto. Ins. Co. v Blanco, 208 A.D.2d 933, 617 N.Y.S.2d 898, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10609 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1994), app. denied, 85 N.Y.2d 802, 624 N.Y.S.2d 373, 648 N.E.2d 793, 1995 N.Y. LEXIS 276 (N.Y. 1995).

Insured's refusal to accept legal representation at expense of insurance company, and her insistence on representing herself, constituted willful obstruction and violation of her duty to cooperate with insurance company; thus, insured would be directed to accept insurance company's choice of counsel in defence of underlying action. Atlantic Mut. Ins. Co. v Struve, 210 A.D.2d 112, 621 N.Y.S.2d 5, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12726 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1994), app. denied, 85 N.Y.2d 803, 624 N.Y.S.2d 373, 648 N.E.2d 793, 1995 N.Y. LEXIS 318 (N.Y. 1995).

Insurer was entitled to stay of arbitration of insured's claim for underinsurance coverage on basis that insured failed to comply with condition precedent to coverage by releasing her claim against tortfeasors and their insurer without her insurer's knowledge or consent in derogation of insurer's subrogation rights, despite insured's contention that consent to settlement condition applied on to uninsured motorist coverage and was not contained in underinsurance endorsement, where general conditions of policy expressly required notification and cooperation and required insured to do "whatever is necessary to enable" insurer to exercise its subrogation rights and "do nothing after loss to prejudice" those rights. Travelers Ins. Co. v Magyar, 217 A.D.2d 954, 629 N.Y.S.2d 900, 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8379 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1995).

Insured, as injured plaintiffs' employer and third-party defendant in plaintiffs' underlying action, was entitled to summary judgment declaring that its insurance carrier was obligated to provide for its defense and indemnification in underlying action where (1) insurer had permitted insured to select independent counsel in underlying action because insured's interests were at odds with its own, and (2) independent counsel's decision, to not oppose motion for summary judgment on common-law and contractual indemnification claims against insured in underlying action, was reasonable litigation strategy and thus did not constitute assumption of obligation without insurer's consent. Nelson Elec. Contr. Corp. v Transcontinental Ins. Co., 231 A.D.2d 207, 660 N.Y.S.2d 220, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8172 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), app. denied, 91 N.Y.2d 802, 667 N.Y.S.2d 682, 690 N.E.2d 491, 1997 N.Y. LEXIS 4102 (N.Y. 1997).

In action to enforce physical damage insurance policy following theft of insured's car, insurer was not entitled to summary judgment on ground that insured's failure to have timely obtained photo inspection of car after he purchased it resulted in suspension of insurance coverage under 11 NYCRR § 67.6, where insurer failed to satisfy its strict obligation to orally inform insured of urgent need for photo inspection pursuant to 11 NYCRR § 67.4(c)(1). Govan v Motor Ins. Corp./CIM Ins., 167 Misc. 2d 733, 643 N.Y.S.2d 883, 1996 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 191 (N.Y. App. Term 1996).

Insurer was not required to pay fire damage claim asserted under insured's business property/liability policy prior to determining insured's claim for business interruption loss under separate property and business policy, where arson was suspected cause of fire. Grand Metro Transit Mix Corp. v Michigan Mut. Ins. Co., 170 Misc. 2d 872, 652 N.Y.S.2d 691, 1996 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 489 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1996).

Insurer could not deny claim for lack of cooperation if insured did not produce its public adjuster for Examination Under Oath. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 01-09-04.

XI. Persons Entitled to Maintain Actions

125. In general

Specific mention of persons to whom a right of action is accorded implies exclusion of all others. Jackson v Citizens Casualty Co., 252 A.D. 393, 299 N.Y.S. 644, 1937 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5676 (N.Y. App. Div. 1937), aff'd, 277 N.Y. 385, 14 N.E.2d 446, 277 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 385, 1938 N.Y. LEXIS 993 (N.Y. 1938).

Subdivision (7) of former § 167 [now § 3420(b)], added by ch. 409 of the Laws of 1945, authorizes the giving of notice of claim against a liability policy by three classes of judgment creditors in addition to the injured person, namely contribution creditors, indemnity creditors, and assignees. Greyhound Corp. v General Acci. Fire & Life Assurance Corp., 19 A.D.2d 419, 243 N.Y.S.2d 870, 1963 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2987 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1963), aff'd in part and rev'd in part, 14 N.Y.2d 380, 251 N.Y.S.2d 958, 200 N.E.2d 625, 1964 N.Y. LEXIS 989 (N.Y. 1964).

An action by plaintiff, whose decedent perished aboard a tug that was lost off the coast of New Jersey, against an insurance company which had disclaimed coverage under its policy with decedent's employers on the basis of a provision in the policy warranting that the tug would not be operated outside the waters of Long Island Sound, and which had paid $95,000 into an escrow account after employers covenanted not to bring suit against the insurance company should have been dismissed since, under New York law, third parties are specifically prohibited from commencing direct actions against marine protection and indemnity insurers. Cowan v Continental Ins. Co., 86 A.D.2d 646, 446 N.Y.S.2d 412, 1982 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 15187 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1982).

New York does not permit direct suits against insurers prior to notice of entry of unsatisfied judgment against insured. Abbate v Medbrod, 109 A.D.2d 768, 486 N.Y.S.2d 282, 1985 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 47255 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1985).

Stranger to policy of marine protection and indemnity insurance is precluded from bringing action for judgment declaring extent of insurer's duty to defend. Dunn v American Home Assurance Co., 158 A.D.2d 505, 551 N.Y.S.2d 268, 1990 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1755 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1990).

Party injured in altercation with defendant was barred under doctrine of claim preclusion from bringing direct action under CLS Ins § 3420(b)(1) against homeowner's insurer of defendant and his parents to recover on any judgment obtainable against defendant where judgment had been entered on consent of insureds declaring that insurer had no duty to defend and/or indemnify them in any action against one or all of them arising out of incident. New York Cent. Mut. Fire Ins. Co. v Kilmurray, 181 A.D.2d 40, 585 N.Y.S.2d 599, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8576 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1992).

Insurance company was entitled to summary judgment dismissing action for loss of consortium by wife of pedestrian, who was struck by vehicle driven by insured and who settled with insurer for policy limit of $100,000 for "bodily injury," since derivative damages for loss of consortium and direct damages must be added together to determine limit of liability for bodily injury sustained by one person; there was no basis to conclude that wife's injuries constituted separate "bodily injury." Champagne v State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co., 185 A.D.2d 835, 586 N.Y.S.2d 813, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9924 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1992), app. denied, 81 N.Y.2d 704, 595 N.Y.S.2d 399, 611

N.E.2d 299, 1993 N.Y. LEXIS 240 (N.Y. 1993), overruled in part, Liberty Mut. Fire Ins. Co. v National Cas. Co., 90 A.D.3d 859, 935 N.Y.S.2d 319, 2011 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9104 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2011).

In third-party action by commercial tenant against insurance carrier that provided primary coverage to landlord, tenant was properly granted summary judgment declaring that it was additional insured under policy and that insurer must provide coverage for its liability in underlying personal injury action; fact that tenant agreed to indemnify landlord, pursuant to their lease agreement, did not absolve insurer of responsibility to provide coverage to tenant as additional insured under insurance contract. Austin v Juster Assocs., 222 A.D.2d 632, 636 N.Y.S.2d 356, 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13895 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1995).

Motion to intervene as defendant in insurer's action against insured for declaratory judgment was properly denied where proposed intervenor was stranger to insurance contract and thus had no right to enforce insurer's obligation until judgment against insured was rendered and remained unsatisfied. Tower Ins. Co. v Skate Key, Inc., 273 A.D.2d 158, 712 N.Y.S.2d 352, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7501 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2000).

Insurance is a contract of indemnity generally for the benefit of the insured and those in privity with him, and former § 109 [predecessor to former § 167, now § 3420] upon the grounds of sound public policy, extends indemnity against liability arising from the negligent operation of automobiles to and for the benefit of the persons injured. Bakker v Aetna Life Ins. Co., 265 N.Y.S. 231, 148 Misc. 162, 1933 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1606 (N.Y. Sup. Ct.), aff'd, 240 A.D. 880, 267 N.Y.S. 956, 1933 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6917 (N.Y. App. Div. 1933).

Unless a liability policy is issued for the express benefit of a claimant he has no rights thereunder except such as are created by former § 109 [predecessor to former § 167, now § 3420]. Pisciotta v Preston, 10 N.Y.S.2d 44, 170 Misc. 376, 1938 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2342 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1938).

An action under former § 167 [now § 3420] is exclusively vested in an injured person and is available to no other. Fertig v General Acc. Fire & Life Assurance Corp., 13 N.Y.S.2d 872, 171 Misc. 921, 1939 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2112 (N.Y. Mun. Ct. 1939), aff'd, 54 N.Y.S.2d 466, 183 Misc. 1038, 1940 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1352 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1940).

The general rule that one not a party to an insurance contract cannot sue thereon applies to marine protection and indemnity policies since they are not excluded from such rule by the terms of former § 167 [now § 3420] which extend the right to sue on insurance policies to certain other parties. Meridian Trading Corp. v National Auto. & Casualty Ins. Co., 45 Misc. 2d 847, 258 N.Y.S.2d 16, 1964 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1376 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1964).

Trial court erred in denying an insurer's summary judgment motion pursuant to N.Y. C.P.L.R. 3212 in a declaratory judgment action concerning insurance coverage for damages to property; the insured's property damage claim did not fall within the ambit of N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(d), and thus, absent proof that the insured was prejudiced by the alleged delay in disclaiming liability based on an exclusion in the insurance policy, the insurer was not estopped from making such a disclaimer, and the insurer made a prima facie showing of entitlement to judgment as a matter of law, and the insured failed to raise an issue of fact. Scappatura v Allstate Ins. Co., 6 A.D.3d 692, 775 N.Y.S.2d 162, 2004 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4953 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2004).

Although the individual asbestos injury related claimants acted prematurely in interposing their counterclaims against the insurance companies prior to obtaining judgments against the insured insulation company that remained unsatisfied for 30 days after serving notice of entry of the judgments on the insurance companies and on the insulation company or its attorney, pursuant to N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(a)(2), the insurance companies stood in a different position than the claimants who had to rely upon that statute for standing to sue. Thus, the insurance companies had the right to bring a declaratory judgment action. Continental Cas. Co. v Employers Ins. Co. of Wausau, 839 N.Y.S.2d 403, 16 Misc. 3d 223, 237 N.Y.L.J. 92, 2007 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3336 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 2007), rev'd, 60 A.D.3d 128, 871 N.Y.S.2d 48, 2008 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9966 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2008).

A claimant authorized by former § 167 [now § 3420] of the Insurance Law to bring suit against the insurer stands in the shoes of the insured and must abide by any applicable provisions of the policy. Florio v General Acci. Fire & Life Assurance Corp., 396 F.2d 510, 1968 U.S. App. LEXIS 6402 (2d Cir. N.Y. 1968).

Since an employee had not obtained a judgment against her employer, she lacked standing to seek declaratory relief against two insurance companies under N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420; therefore, the court granted the insurance companies' Fed. R. Civ. P. 12(b)(6) motion to dismiss. Vargas v Boston Chicken, Inc., 269 F. Supp. 2d 92, 2003 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 10900 (E.D.N.Y. 2003).

11 NYCRR § 216.9 (Regulation 64) applies when payment of $5,000 or more in settlement of third party liability claim is paid to claimant's attorney or other representative by insurer, whether directly by insurer or by its attorney, or by insured who is reimbursed by insurer. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 02-04-01.

126. Person with judgment for damage or injury

In an action under former § 109 [predecessor to former § 167, now § 3420], to recover on a policy of liability insurance specifically exempting from its coverage any injuries caused by any of the assured's elevators while in charge of any person under the age fixed by law for elevator attendants, the burden is on the plaintiff to plead and prove that the elevator at the time of the accident was being operated by a person of legal age. Carles v Travelers' Ins. Co., 238 A.D. 43, 263 N.Y.S. 29, 1933 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9413 (N.Y. App. Div.), reh'g denied, 239 A.D. 814, 263 N.Y.S. 976, 1933 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8590 (N.Y. App. Div. 1933).

In actions against the insurer under a policy of automobile liability insurance, based on judgments recovered against an insured car owner for damages suffered by an infant when the owner approached his gasoline tank with a cigarette in his mouth and match in his hand to examine gauge, the father of infant has no claim against the defendant based on his judgment against the owner for expenses and loss of services where the policy covered only damages imposed on the owner by law for "bodily injury." Roche v United States Fidelity & Guaranty Co., 247 A.D. 335, 287 N.Y.S. 38, 1936 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8254 (N.Y. App. Div.), aff'd, 273 N.Y. 473, 6 N.E.2d 410, 273 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 473, 1936 N.Y. LEXIS 1485 (N.Y. 1936).

In personal injury actions arising out of a collision between a private vehicle and a fruit company vehicle owned by a leasing company that was insured by two insurance companies, a motion by the primary insurance company to dismiss the suit against it by plaintiffs, following judgment for them and against the other parties, as assignees of the fruit company's claim against the primary company, the trucking company, and the trucking company's excess insurer for neglecting to exercise good faith in the settlement negotiations and refusal to honor its obligation under the insurance contract to pay the amount due on the judgment, where plaintiffs stated a cause of action pursuant to Ins Law § 167 [now § 3420], in that their complaint sufficiently alleged notice to the primary insurance company of entry of the judgment in favor of plaintiffs, where plaintiffs thus were unsatisfied judgment creditors, and where even if the complaint did fail to allege the required notice, plaintiffs' affidavit in opposition to the primary insurance company's motion to dismiss remedied that defect. Fredericks v Home Indem. Co., 101 A.D.2d 614, 474 N.Y.S.2d 870, 1984 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 18154 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1984).

In action by accident victim to recover prior personal injury judgment directly from insurance company allegedly insuring car owned by judgment debtor who could no longer be located, insurer was not entitled to summary judgment where, although insurer denied having ever issued policy on car and plaintiff could offer no direct proof that any policy existed, jury question was presented based on indirect proof that insurance company had previously paid property damage claim in connection with same accident and had paid by check showing policy number, policy inception date, and name of issuing agent. Brown v Insurance Co. of North America, 123 A.D.2d 162, 511 N.Y.S.2d 149, 1987 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 39897 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1987).

In action by injured party against insurer pursuant to CLS Ins § 3420(b)(1), court properly granted plaintiff judgment against insurer in amount of $200,000, which was policy limit, even though insurer had already paid its insured $200,000 to cover loss to plaintiff, where insured had paid no part of that sum to plaintiff. Fisons Corp. v Lumbermens Mut. Cas. Co., 229 A.D.2d 925, 645 N.Y.S.2d 230, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8951 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1996).

Automobile insurer was entitled to summary judgment dismissing insured's action to recover no-fault benefits where insured, having previously elected arbitration forum, waived her right to commence action based on claims arising from same accident. Mack v State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co., 251 A.D.2d 1083, 675 N.Y.S.2d 575, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7206 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1998).

Trial court erred in denying defendants' motion to dismiss, pursuant to N.Y. C.P.L.R. 3211, a declaratory judgment action pursuant to N.Y. C.P.L.R. 3001 concerning insurance coverage; the action had to be dismissed a premature, as the injured party had failed to obtain a judgment against a tortfeasor as required by N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(a)(2). Lang v Hanover Ins. Co., 309 A.D.2d 1123, 766 N.Y.S.2d 915, 2003 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11242 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2003), aff'd, 3 N.Y.3d 350, 787 N.Y.S.2d 211, 820 N.E.2d 855, 2004 N.Y. LEXIS 3525 (N.Y. 2004).

Because a child was pursuing a personal injury action solely to obtain a judgment or settlement in order to proceed directly against a debtor's liability insurer under N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420, the action was permitted even after the debtor's discharge in bankruptcy; thus, the trial court erred in dismissing the action on the ground of discharge in bankruptcy. Pomerantz v In-Stride, Inc., 39 A.D.3d 522, 835 N.Y.S.2d 589, 2007 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4271 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2007).

Trial court properly denied an injured pedestrian's motion for summary judgment in his action to recover the amount of an unsatisfied judgment against an insured and granted the insurer's cross-motion for summary judgment because the insurer made a prima facie showing that the pedestrian failed to act diligently in attempting to ascertain the insurer's identity and in expeditiously notifying it of his claim, the pedestrian failed to raise a triable issue of fact in opposition, and the insurer was not required to cite the pedestrian's failure to provide notice in its disclaimer letter where the pedestrian did not notify the insurer of his claim until after the insured had done so. Glanz v New York Mar. & Gen. Ins. Co., 150 A.D.3d 704, 54 N.Y.S.3d 50, 2017 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3434 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2017).

Owner of a vehicle damaged in an accident with a tractor trailer lacked standing to file suit against the insurer of the tractor trailer for payment of his property damages claim because the vehicle owner had not obtained a judgment against the tractor trailer owner, which was a condition precedent to a direct suit against the insurer. Carr v Haas, 163 A.D.3d 1212, 80 N.Y.S.3d 716, 2018 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5175 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2018).

An insurance company, which had issued an indemnity policy against damages caused by a certain steamship was not liable on said policy to a person injured by the steamship prior to his obtaining judgment against the insured, since that person's only right against the insurance company was based on former § 167 [now § 3420] and he must take that right subject to such statutory provisions. Oakes v United States, 35 F. Supp. 868, 1940 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 2395 (E.D.N.Y. 1940).

Where a plaintiff was injured on insured's premises when he stepped into an open elevator shaft while being conducted by insured from the first to fifth floor, the plaintiff's rights under former § 167 [now § 3420] are to be measured by the protection and coverage afforded the insured under the terms and provisions of the policy. Lee v Aetna Casualty & Surety Co., 81 F. Supp. 1008, 1949 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 1779 (D.N.Y.), aff'd, 178 F.2d 750, 1949 U.S. App. LEXIS 2575 (2d Cir. N.Y. 1949).

Passengers maintaining personal injury claims in New York state courts against water taxi service, who had not yet obtained judgments, were barred by Ins § 3420 from intervening as defendants, either as of right or permissively, in water taxi service's marine insurer's declaratory judgment action against taxi service seeking to void or deny coverage under marine insurance policy, since granting intervention would circumvent judgment requirement of statute, prerequisite for actions by injured third parties against indemnity insurers, and create right not contemplated by state legislature. Hartford Fire Ins. Co. v Mitlof, 123 F. Supp. 2d 762, 2000 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 18200 (S.D.N.Y. 2000).

127. Person claiming right of subrogation

In an action by an excess insurer against a primary insurer seeking relief for the primary insurer's breach of its fiduciary duty in defending an underlying personal injury action, the lower court improperly treated the primary insurer's cross-motion for summary judgment as one to dismiss addressed to the face of the pleading, where there had been no disclosure, where there existed triable issues which could not be resolved solely upon the affidavits adduced, and where the pleadings raised serious issues involving ethical considerations in terms of the fiduciary obligations of the parties. Moreover, the court in denying the excess insurer's complaint in its own right, improperly held that the excess insurer could not proceed in its individual capacity and that any relief which could be sought was solely as subrogee of its insureds, where the primary insurer acted as fiduciary and owed a primary obligation to its insureds and to the excess insurer to exercise good faith in handling the defense of the underlying action, and where any right of action arising from the breach of fiduciary duty was the result of the independent and direct duty owed to the excess insurer and was not dependent upon equitable principles of subrogation. Hartford Acci. & Indem. Co. v Michigan Mut. Ins. Co., 93 A.D.2d 337, 462 N.Y.S.2d 175, 1983 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 17128 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1983), aff'd, 61 N.Y.2d 569, 475 N.Y.S.2d 267, 463 N.E.2d 608, 1984 N.Y. LEXIS 4181 (N.Y. 1984).

Release clause executed by injured pedestrian, which provided that receipt of payment from responsible driver's insurance company in "no way" reflected payment or release of obligation to pay "by any no-fault carrier no-fault payments" to pedestrian, was sufficient to protect subrogation rights of pedestrian's insurer; accordingly, driver was not entitled to summary judgment dismissing action brought by pedestrian's insurer to recover first-party payments made to pedestrian. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. v La Forte, 125 A.D.2d 563, 509 N.Y.S.2d 632, 1986 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 62855 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1986).

Premises liability insurer, which had paid judgment rendered against one of its insureds, could not maintain subrogation action for indemnification from others who were insured under same policy, even though such other insureds fell under exclusion in policy's coverage, where insurer had undertaken defense of all insureds in underlying action, and had solicited their cooperation, without informing them that it reserved right to seek subrogation against them. Weinreb v Weinreb, 140 A.D.2d 226, 528 N.Y.S.2d 74, 1988 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5383 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1988).

In action by leather tannery against manufacturer of spray booths used at tannery for damages caused by fire, in which tannery's insurance company was involved as subrogee of tannery, manufacturer was not entitled to summary judgment on ground that its insurance company and tannery's insurance company were part of same insurance company since (1) attorney's affirmation that insurance companies were under common management, which was only proof submitted by manufacturer on issue, was in inadmissible form since attorney was without personal knowledge, and (2) affidavit by officer of tannery's insurance company raised factual dispute sufficient to resist summary judgment where officer averred that, although companies were part of same group, they were distinct corporate entities. Fashion Tanning Co. v Fulton County Electrical Contractors, Inc., 142 A.D.2d 465, 536 N.Y.S.2d 866, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 95 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1989).

In personal injury action by employee of subcontractor against party who was both general contractor and owner of premises (defendant), insurance carrier for defendant was responsible for entire judgment rendered in favor of employee, regardless of fact that subcontractor as third party defendant was found partially responsible for injury, since insurer had no right of subrogation against subcontractor where subcontractor had obtained and paid for insurance coverage on behalf of defendant. Fowler v Stillwater Assoc., Ltd., 169 A.D.2d 226, 572 N.Y.S.2d 558, 1991 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10147 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1991).

Malpractice insurer of physician employed as professor at state medical school had standing under CLS Pub O § 17 to recover, as subrogee, costs of defending professor in medical malpractice action arising out of her state employment. Frontier Ins. Co. v State, 172 A.D.2d 13, 576 N.Y.S.2d 622, 1991 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 15072 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1991).

In arbitration proceeding, 3-year statute of limitations of CLS CPLR § 214(2), rather than 6-year statute of limitations, applied to claim by Motor Vehicle Accident Indemnification Corporation (MVAIC) against insurance company to recover for payments made to individual injured in motor vehicle accident involving automobile alleged to be insured by insurance company, since claims of MVAIC fell under principle of subrogation. Nationwide Mut. Ins. Co. v Motor Vehicle Accident Indemnification Corp., 190 A.D.2d 798, 593 N.Y.S.2d 561, 1993 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1438 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't), app. denied, 82 N.Y.2d 651, 601 N.Y.S.2d 581, 619 N.E.2d 659, 1993 N.Y. LEXIS 2198 (N.Y. 1993).

In arbitration proceeding, claim asserted by Motor Vehicle Accident Indemnification Corporation (MVAIC) against insurance company, for payments made by MVAIC to individual injured in motor vehicle accident involving automobile alleged to be insured by insurance company, was time-barred under CLS CPLR § 214(2) where proceeding was not commenced until more than 3 years after accident, although proceeding was commenced within 3 years of payment by MVAIC, since claims of MVAIC sounded in subrogation and were derivative in nature. Nationwide Mut. Ins. Co. v Motor Vehicle Accident Indemnification Corp., 190 A.D.2d 798, 593 N.Y.S.2d 561, 1993 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1438 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't), app. denied, 82 N.Y.2d 651, 601 N.Y.S.2d 581, 619 N.E.2d 659, 1993 N.Y. LEXIS 2198 (N.Y. 1993).

Defendant, whose negligence allegedly resulted in damages which were paid by plaintiff reinsurer, was entitled to summary judgment in action brought by reinsurer, as subrogee of original insured, since reinsurer had no contractual obligation to original insured and thus no subrogation rights. Reliance Ins. Co. v Aerodyne Eng'rs, 204 A.D.2d 944, 612 N.Y.S.2d 87, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5638 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1994).

In personal injury action arising out of accident that occurred in insured building, where general liability insurer denied coverage on ground that policy had been cancelled for nonpayment of premiums and building owners sued insurance broker for professional negligence and breach of contract stemming from alleged lack of insurance coverage, broker had standing to assert claims against liability insurer based on alleged deficiencies in notice of cancellation, since broker who negligently fails to procure coverage stands in shoes of insurer as concerns liability to insured. Macon v Arnlie Realty Co., 207 A.D.2d 268, 615 N.Y.S.2d 28, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8136 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1994).

Submission of defendant landlords in support of their motion for summary judgment in premises liability matter brought by insurer were insufficient where part of lease waiving subrogation specifically required clause in releasors' insurance policies stating that such waiver would not invalidate insurance. Public Serv. Mut. Ins. Co. v Windsor Place Corp., 238 A.D.2d 142, 655 N.Y.S.2d 947, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3102 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1997).

Insurer of third-party plaintiff who does not insure third-party defendant may assert its right of subrogation against that third-party defendant even if coinsurer insures both third-party defendant and third-party plaintiff. Fitch v Turner Constr. Co., 241 A.D.2d 166, 671 N.Y.S.2d 446, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3385 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1998).

Insurer's subrogation rights were not affected by fact that it asserted them through third-party action brought by parties named as additional insured, rather than primary insured, where there was no distinction in coverage provided to additional insured. Fitch v Turner Constr. Co., 241 A.D.2d 166, 671 N.Y.S.2d 446, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3385 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1998).

Under terms of both No-Fault Law and insurance policy at issue, parents of child injured when his bicycle was hit by car could not recover first-party benefits for basic economic loss under their own no-fault policy where that element of loss already had been fully discharged by payment to parents of full amount available for personal injury under no-fault policy of motorist's insurer. Pittel v State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co., 255 A.D.2d 303, 679 N.Y.S.2d 641, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11561 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1998).

Declaratory judgment action filed by an insurer against its insured which ended in default judgment against the insured did not preclude an injured party's independent suit under N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420, as the matter of the insurer's coverage of its insured had not been specifically litigated because the insured defaulted and there was no identity of issues between the present action and the prior decision in the declaratory judgment action; thus, the insurer was erroneously granted summary judgment in the injured party's action under § 3420. Zimmerman v Tower Ins. Co., 13 A.D.3d 137, 788 N.Y.S.2d 309, 2004 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 15125 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2004).

Doctrines of collateral estoppel and res judicata barred a general contractor's insurer from litigating the same issues already decided against its insured as subrogor, who in turn was barred from litigating the same issues decided against the subcontractor as its subrogor because the parties were afforded a full and fair opportunity to litigate the insurance coverage issues in the prior action. Nationwide Mut. Ins. Co. v U.S. Underwriters Ins. Co., 151 A.D.3d 504, 59 N.Y.S.3d 1, 2017 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4693 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2017).

Doctrines of collateral estoppel and res judicata barred a general contractor's insurer from litigating the same issues already decided against its insured as subrogor, who in turn was barred from litigating the same issues decided against the subcontractor as its subrogor because the parties were afforded a full and fair opportunity to litigate the insurance coverage issues in the prior action. Nationwide Mut. Ins. Co. v U.S. Underwriters Ins. Co., 151 A.D.3d 504, 59 N.Y.S.3d 1, 2017 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4693 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2017).

128. —Anti-subrogation rule

Exclusion in liability insurance policy for injuries to employees of "insured" suffered in course of employment was not applicable to plaintiff's accident, and thus anti-subrogation rule precluded defendant in underlying action from maintaining third-party action against plaintiff's employer (county board of cooperative educational services, or BOCES) where policy defined "insured" as organization "designated in the declarations" as insured, BOCES was not listed as named insured on declarations page, and it was instead listed as "co-insured with regard to general liability" under "special items." Goldsmith v Levittown Union Free Sch. Dist., 232 A.D.2d 451, 648 N.Y.S.2d 929, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10188 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1996).

Antisubrogation rule did not apply in premises liability matter between insurer and landlord where liability arose out of part of premises not leased to insured, and subject risk was not same one for which insured was covered. Public Serv. Mut. Ins. Co. v Windsor Place Corp., 238 A.D.2d 142, 655 N.Y.S.2d 947, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3102 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1997).

In action by injured construction worker under CLS Labor § 240(1), antisubrogation rule barred insurer's third-party complaint on behalf of landowner against contractor, up to amount of insurance policy limits, where construction contract between landowner and contractor contained standard indemnification clause in favor of landowner and required that contractor to obtain liability insurance coverage naming landowner as additional insured, and contractor obtained such coverage through policy issued by insurer. Kvandal v Westminster Presbyterian Soc'y, 238 A.D.2d 889, 660 N.Y.S.2d 774, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4679 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1997).

Antisubrogation rule precluding insured from interposing claim directly against coinsured did not apply to "pass through" situation in which defendant seeking contribution did not have same insurer as codefendants. Rook v 60 Key Centre, 242 A.D.2d 872, 662 N.Y.S.2d 670, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10413 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1997).

Antisubrogation rule required summary judgment dismissing third-party action for indemnification where both third-party plaintiff and third-party defendant were named insureds under 2 insurance policies issued by single insurer covering same risk, and thus such double representation created potential conflict of interest to extent that any judgment entered in favor of plaintiffs in main action was covered by limits of subject policies. Glick v Millman Goldberg Pressler Assocs., 263 A.D.2d 497, 692 N.Y.S.2d 745, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8126 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1999).

Third-party action by city against construction company did not violate antisubrogation rule where insurer had disclaimed coverage of city under general liability policy, city had participated in underlying litigation for 3 years and commenced third-party action against construction company before it sought coverage under policy, and thus danger of manipulation of litigation was not implicated. National Union Fire Ins. Co. v State Ins. Fund, 266 A.D.2d 518, 699 N.Y.S.2d 111, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12246 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1999).

129. Persons claiming right of contribution or indemnity

State was not entitled to summary judgment in its action for judgment declaring that liability insurer of contractor on highway construction project was required to indemnify it for damages it had paid to motorists injured because of absence of guardrail where evidence failed to establish (1) that construction contract and insurance policy were broad enough to require coverage by insurer with regard to guardrail in question irrespective of whether any work on guardrail was actually done by contractor, or (2) that contractor actually performed any work on guardrail in question. State v Hartford Acci. & Indem. Co., 140 A.D.2d 324, 527 N.Y.S.2d 823, 1988 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4623 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1988).

Antisubrogation rule barred insurer from seeking indemnification for its insured passenger in rental car involved in accident, for claims within policy limits for additional liability insurance purchased by insured, even though insurer was no longer obligated to defend insured against claims by other injured parties, where insurer had successfully moved to dismiss those claims against insured in attempt to structure its defense of insured so as to avoid application of antisubrogation rule and to protect its own interests, insurer was seeking to hold insured vicariously liable for driver's negligence, additional liability insurance provisions contained no exclusions for contractual indemnification, and insurer was seeking to pass incidence of loss from itself to insured and thus to avoid coverage purchased by insured. Ozturk v Taskiran, 245 A.D.2d 355, 665 N.Y.S.2d 420, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12777 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1997).

A third-party action by a city against a construction contractor for common law indemnification on a claim asserted against the city by an employee of the contractor who was injured during the course of construction of a dam on city land would be dismissed, where the city had exchanged its common law right to indemnification for the broader right of indemnity and insurance protection provided by the contractor under the parties' contract. Moreover, an insurer who provided coverage for both the city and the contractor would be equitably precluded from bringing a third-party action on behalf of its insured based on common-law rather than contractual indemnity in order to shift the loss to the contractor's employer's liability carrier. Covert v Binghamton, 117 Misc. 2d 1075, 459 N.Y.S.2d 721, 1983 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3251 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1983).

130. Assignee

The 1945 amendment adding subd. 7 to former § 167 [now § 3420(b)] was designed to clear existing doubt as to standing of "any assignee" of a person who had obtained a judgment for personal injury or property damage to maintain an action for contribution against some other party involved in the accident in question, even though such other party was a joint tortfeasor. Greyhound Corp. v General Acci. Fire & Life Assurance Corp., 19 A.D.2d 419, 243 N.Y.S.2d 870, 1963 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2987 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1963), aff'd in part and rev'd in part, 14 N.Y.2d 380, 251 N.Y.S.2d 958, 200 N.E.2d 625, 1964 N.Y. LEXIS 989 (N.Y. 1964).

Although an insurer established that a general contractor was not entitled to coverage as an additional insured since it was not named as such in the policy, the insurer failed to support its contention that an assignment of claims from its insured to the contractor was prohibited by N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420, N.Y. Gen. Oblig. Law § 13-101. Home Depot U.S.A., Inc. v National Fire & Mar. Ins. Co., 55 A.D.3d 671, 866 N.Y.S.2d 255, 2008 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7648 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2008).

Physician who treated injured insureds, who were covered by no-fault automobile insurance policies issued by defendant insurer, did not lack standing to enforce "authorization" directing insurer to pay no-fault benefits directly to him, and insurer was not entitled to dismissal of complaint, as "authorization" executed by injured insureds constituted assignment enabling physician to recover insurance proceeds applicable to medical services provided, and there was no claim that either party revoked or intended to revoke insureds' written instructions directing insurer to pay their insurance benefits directly to plaintiff. Gingold v State Farm Ins. Co., 168 Misc. 2d 62, 642 N.Y.S.2d 812, 1996 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 160 (N.Y. Civ. Ct. 1996).

Medical provider, as assignee of injured insured, had standing to sue insurance company to recover no-fault benefits for services performed on insured although assignment reserved provider's right to collect debt from insured if not collected from insurance company, where insurance company had written instructions from insured to pay her insurance benefits directly to medical provider, and there was no claim that she had revoked those instructions. Rehab. Med. Care of N.Y., PC v Travelers Ins. Co., 188 Misc. 2d 176, 727 N.Y.S.2d 247, 2001 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 53 (N.Y. App. Term 2001).

Where the assignee of the unexpired portion of an insurance policy failed to obtain the consent of the insurer to the assignment of the policy, an action may not be maintained under predecessor to § 3420. Mobilia v Security Taxpayers Mut. Ins. Co., 90 N.Y.S.2d 895, 1949 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2521 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1949), aff'd, 277 A.D. 985, 99 N.Y.S.2d 856, 1950 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4176 (N.Y. App. Div. 1950).

Shipowner/insurance claim assignee may sue to recover from vessel's property insurers, where assignee who purchased damaged, insured ship seeks repair cost of propeller and bottom plating damage suffered in grounding near Guyana, because CLS Ins Law § 3420 prevents only third party's recovery from marine liability insurer, not claim assignee's recovery from marine property insurer. Caribe Carriers, Ltd. v C. E. Heath & Co., 784 F. Supp. 1119, 1991 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 18436 (S.D.N.Y. 1991).

131. Priorities among competing claimants

Third-party plaintiffs were not third-party beneficiaries of vehicle insurance policy where policy did not express any intention to benefit third-party plaintiffs but instead, by its terms, afforded coverage only to named insured and 2 parties identified as additional insureds. Tilden Commer. Alliance v 2nd Edition Originals, 242 A.D.2d 702, 664 N.Y.S.2d 951, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9259 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1997).

Plaintiff, who secured summary judgment, was entitled to priority over another plaintiff, whose action was pending, insofar as the right to recover against the liability insurer of defendant was concerned. Case law going back to 1935 in New York and even earlier elsewhere makes clear that the right granted by former subdivision 7 [now § 3420(b)] does not alter the "first in time, first in right" principle, whether the priority is by way of judgment or by way of settlement. David v Bauman, 24 Misc. 2d 67, 196 N.Y.S.2d 746, 1960 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3672 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1960).

132. Direct action against insurer by injured party

Injured worker could not maintain direct action against his employer's workers' compensation and liability insurance carrier on basis of employee's assertions that his injuries were caused by insurance company's negligence that occurred while company was conducting safety inspections of work site in effort to reduce risk of loss under terms of insurance policy which permitted such inspections. Jansen v Fidelity & Casualty Co., 79 N.Y.2d 867, 581 N.Y.S.2d 156, 589 N.E.2d 379, 1992 N.Y. LEXIS 33 (N.Y. 1992).

State could maintain action against insurance company under CLS Nav § 190 even though in earlier action Special Term had determined that insurer was not liable to defend or indemnify insured—since state was not party to first action neither collateral estoppel nor "law of the case" doctrine was applicable. State v Travelers Indem. Co., 120 A.D.2d 251, 508 N.Y.S.2d 698, 1986 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 60012 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1986), app. dismissed, 70 N.Y.2d 669, 518 N.Y.S.2d 962, 512 N.E.2d 545, 1987 N.Y. LEXIS 17318 (N.Y. 1987).

Insurer and its general manager (acting on behalf of insured, who ran over 15-year-old plaintiff with tractor) were entitled to partial summary judgment in plaintiffs' action seeking recovery for unlawful practice of law in allegedly advising plaintiffs to wait until injured plaintiff reached age 21, at which time insurer would evaluate his injuries and "make a fair settlement," since CLS Jud § 476-a provides that only Attorney General or bar association is authorized to enforce statute in civil actions. Lawrence v Houston, 172 A.D.2d 923, 567 N.Y.S.2d 962, 1991 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4240 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1991).

Triable issues of fact precluding summary judgment were raised by plaintiffs who alleged that insurer and its general manager (acting on behalf of insured, who ran over 15-year-old plaintiff with tractor) fraudulently advised plaintiffs to wait until injured plaintiff reached age 21, at which time insurer would evaluate his injuries and "make a fair settlement," where plaintiffs alleged that delay in obtaining legal counsel resulted in failure to properly obtain and preserve evidence which could result in their inability to prevail at trial or in diminution of damages recovered, and that they were deprived of use of funds from settlement or from interest which could have been earned thereon. Lawrence v Houston, 172 A.D.2d 923, 567 N.Y.S.2d 962, 1991 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4240 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1991).

Triable issues of fact precluding summary judgment were raised by plaintiffs who alleged that insurer and its general manager (acting on behalf of insured, who ran over 15-year-old plaintiff with tractor) negligently misrepresented to plaintiffs that they should wait until injured plaintiff reached age 21, at which time insurer would evaluate his injuries and "make a fair settlement," since there were controverted issues with regard to alleged establishment of "special relationship" which imposed on defendants duty to exercise reasonable care to impart correct information, whether such information was false, and whether plaintiff relied on it to his detriment. Lawrence v Houston, 172 A.D.2d 923, 567 N.Y.S.2d 962, 1991 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4240 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1991).

Plaintiff injured in automobile collision was not entitled to summary judgment in declaratory judgment action against liability insurer of party allegedly at fault where (1) plaintiff was injured in September 1987, (2) plaintiff notified insurer of incident in February 1988, by which time the insured's policy with insurer had been cancelled, (3) despite further correspondence between plaintiff and insurer, insurer did not follow up on matter, (4) plaintiff brought action against insured in March 1989, (5) insured defaulted but did not send summons to insurer until default judgment was entered in January 1990, and (6) defendant disclaimed coverage; insurer raised factual questions regarding insured's default and failure to comply with policy obligations. Anderson v Colonial Penn Ins. Co., 179 A.D.2d 504, 578 N.Y.S.2d 199, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 451 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1992).

In action to recover from homeowner's insurer of neighboring property for emotional distress resulting from contamination of plaintiff's drinking water from oil spill thereon, court properly determined that defendant insurer, having disclaimed duty to defend neighboring landowner, was precluded from going behind underlying default judgment against landowner and raising defenses extending to merits of plaintiff's claim. Matychak v Security Mut. Ins. Co., 181 A.D.2d 957, 581 N.Y.S.2d 453, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4149 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), app. denied, 80 N.Y.2d 758, 589 N.Y.S.2d 309, 602 N.E.2d 1125, 1992 N.Y. LEXIS 3404 (N.Y. 1992).

In action to recover from homeowner's insurer of neighboring property for emotional distress resulting from contamination of plaintiff's drinking water from oil spill thereon, court did not err in determining that plaintiff, as subrogee, was not estopped from recovering on ground that defendant insurer's coverage disclaimer, leading to default judgment in underlying action against neighboring landowner, was product of its reliance on landowner's misrepresentation that plaintiff had purchased her property long after policy had expired, since there was no evidence of bad faith or collusion between plaintiff and landowner. Matychak v Security Mut. Ins. Co., 181 A.D.2d 957, 581 N.Y.S.2d 453, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4149 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), app. denied, 80 N.Y.2d 758, 589 N.Y.S.2d 309, 602 N.E.2d 1125, 1992 N.Y. LEXIS 3404 (N.Y. 1992).

In automobile accident case, court erred in directing alleged insurer of defendant to defend action on basis of plaintiffs' assertion that they were unable to locate defendant and that prior arbitration proceedings (in which plaintiffs had sought uninsured motorist benefits from their own carrier) had established that insurer was defendant's carrier, since insurer had not been party to prior proceedings, validity of its cancellation of defendant's policy had not been determined, and judgment in prior proceeding was not binding on insurer. Salgado v Sanon, 183 A.D.2d 708, 583 N.Y.S.2d 311, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6684 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1992).

In action by insurer of contractor sued by homeowners for extensive fire damage to their home during renovation work, seeking declaration of its obligations with respect to defense and indemnification of contractor, cross-motion by homeowners seeking declaration that insurer was obligated to defend contractor and indemnify it for any judgment ultimately awarded against contractor was premature since homeowners failed to satisfy condition precedent to maintenance of direct action against contractor's insurer pursuant to CLS Ins § 3420(a)(2) in that no judgment had yet been obtained against contractor which had gone unsatisfied for 30 days, and homeowners were mere strangers to insurance contract until such time. Mount Vernon Fire Ins. Co. v NIBA Constr., 195 A.D.2d 425, 600 N.Y.S.2d 936, 1993 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7625 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1993).

Insurance company was entitled to summary judgment dismissing injured party's action to recover on insurance policy under CLS Ins § 3420(b)(1) where defendants in underlying personal injury action admitted that vehicle insured by company was not involved in accident, and they failed to challenge company's disclaimer of liability. Yuska v State Farm Ins. Co., 203 A.D.2d 560, 611 N.Y.S.2d 203, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4339 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1994).

Default judgment in underlying personal injury action, entered on complaint alleging that vehicle insured by insurance company was involved in accident, did not preclude company from disclaiming liability on policy in action to recover on policy brought under CLS Ins § 3420(b)(1) where issue of identity of vehicle was not actually litigated in personal injury action. Yuska v State Farm Ins. Co., 203 A.D.2d 560, 611 N.Y.S.2d 203, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4339 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1994).

Action for judgment declaring that coverage for injury to plaintiff's son was provided by homeowner's policy issued to tortfeasor's mother was properly dismissed as premature, where no personal injury action had been commenced to recover damages against tortfeasor and his mother. Terry v Farmer's Ins. Co., 236 A.D.2d 829, 653 N.Y.S.2d 767, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1760 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1997).

Plaintiff, who claimed to have been injured at insured premises and obtained default judgment against insured on issue of liability, had standing to seek judgment declaring that insurer was obligated to defend and indemnify insured in underlying tort action; CLS Ins § 3420 only prohibits direct cause of action to recover money damages, not declaratory judgment action by plaintiff in underlying tort action. Watson v Aetna Cas. & Sur. Co., 246 A.D.2d 57, 675 N.Y.S.2d 367, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8282 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1998).

Insureds' causes of action against no-fault insurer for breach of contract and breach of covenant of good faith and fair dealing were duplicative and were properly dismissed for failure to allege any policy provision that insurer failed to perform, or insurer's awareness of falsity of independent medical examinations that were being supplied to it by nonparty. Odingo v Allstate Ins. Co.,

251 A.D.2d 81, 672 N.Y.S.2d 727, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6535 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't), app. denied, 92 N.Y.2d 810, 680 N.Y.S.2d 55, 702 N.E.2d 840, 1998 N.Y. LEXIS 3084 (N.Y. 1998).

Insureds' causes of action against no-fault insurer for violation of CLS Gen Bus § 349 were properly dismissed for failure to allege materially deceptive conduct on which insureds relied to their detriment. Odingo v Allstate Ins. Co., 251 A.D.2d 81, 672 N.Y.S.2d 727, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6535 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't), app. denied, 92 N.Y.2d 810, 680 N.Y.S.2d 55, 702 N.E.2d 840, 1998 N.Y. LEXIS 3084 (N.Y. 1998).

Construction company's insurer was entitled to summary judgment in homeowner's action against company and insurer where there was no proof that homeowner was named as additional insured on company's policy, and homeowner failed to satisfy condition precedent set forth in CLS Ins § 3420(b) since it had not obtained unsatisfied judgment against company. Castagna v Aiezza, 265 A.D.2d 364, 696 N.Y.S.2d 492, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10246 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1999).

Court properly denied petition under CLS Ins § 5218 and determined that petitioner could proceed against owner of vehicle named in police report, where petitioner testified that he was struck by hit-and-run vehicle which he identified from his own observation as white Acura, officer who responded to scene noted that vehicle's plate number "was obtained by witnesses who refused to give names," and plate number in question was assigned to white Acura insured by respondent insurer. Irizarry v Motor Vehicle Indemnification Corp., 287 A.D.2d 716, 732 N.Y.S.2d 54, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10031 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2001).

Motorist could initiate an action against a driver's purported insurer, under N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(a)(2), because (1) it was determined, in a prior proceeding, that the insurer insured the subject vehicle involved in the accident, necessarily entailing a finding that the insurer insured the vehicle's owner, (2) a strong presumption that the driver used the vehicle with the owner's permission, making the owner liable, was uncontested, and (3) N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(e) mandated coverage for permissive users. Creinis v Hanover Ins. Co., 59 A.D.3d 371, 872 N.Y.S.2d 544, 2009 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 740 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't), app. denied, 12 N.Y.3d 710, 881 N.Y.S.2d 660, 909 N.E.2d 583, 2009 N.Y. LEXIS 976 (N.Y. 2009).

Defendant was not entitled to dismissal of medical malpractice action on ground that his liability had been discharged in bankruptcy, although plaintiff had been permanently enjoined from proceeding against his personal assets, since contingent liability of his medical malpractice insurer was unaffected by discharge and thus plaintiff could continue action against defendant for purpose of determining his liability, as basis for seeking recovery from his insurer; furthermore, CLS Ins § 3420(a)(2) expressly condones direct recovery from liability insurer in event of insured's bankruptcy. Andriani v Czmus, 153 Misc. 2d 38, 580 N.Y.S.2d 123, 1992 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 7 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1992).

In an action pursuant to N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(a)(2), pursuant to the plain language of the insurance policy, the injured infant's injuries from exposure to lead paint while residing at the insureds' premises arose out of a single occurrence and constituted one loss; additionally, the plain language showed that the insurer intended to limit the number of policies that would be available to satisfy a judgment in a continuous exposure case. Thus, the limits of liability provision in the insurance policy applied and the insurer was liable only for the $300,000 it had deposited with the court pursuant to N.Y. C.P.L.R. 2601 and not for the entirety of the unsatisfied judgment, which was $555,000; therefore, the trial court properly granted the insurer's cross-motion for summary judgment dismissing the injured parties' claim against it for the entire judgment. Hiraldo v Allstate Ins. Co., 8 A.D.3d 230, 778 N.Y.S.2d 50, 2004 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7531 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2004), aff'd, 5 N.Y.3d 508, 806 N.Y.S.2d 451, 840 N.E.2d 563, 2005 N.Y. LEXIS 2698 (N.Y. 2005).

Because an insurer was not a party to a settlement agreement between a mother and the insured, no provision of N.Y. C.P.L.R. § 5003-a or N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(a)(2) provided for the entry of a judgment directly against the insurer in lieu of the insured. Paez v Varveris, 820 N.Y.S.2d 390, 12 Misc. 3d 101, 2006 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1592 (N.Y. App. Term 2006).

Injured party's declaratory action against an insurer, filed because the alleged tortfeasor had filed for bankruptcy, was properly dismissed because direct claims against an insurer under N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420 could only be brought after the injured party obtained a judgment against the alleged tortfeasor; the fact that the alleged tortfeasor had filed for and obtained a discharge in bankruptcy did not change that requirement because a judgment could be obtained against the alleged tortfeasor for the sole purpose of then bringing a § 3420 action. Lang v Hanover Ins. Co., 3 N.Y.3d 350, 787 N.Y.S.2d 211, 820 N.E.2d 855, 2004 N.Y. LEXIS 3525 (N.Y. 2004).

In action against the insurance company brought by the minor to recover the amount of the state court judgment against the insureds pursuant to N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(a)(2), the district court's grant of summary judgment to the minor was reversed with respect to its holding that the insurance company had to indemnify the wife insured because since the wife insured never complied with the notice provisions of the policy, the insurance company never became obligated to disclaim coverage as to her, and was not obligated to indemnify her against liability arising from the minor's accident. Webster v Mount Vernon Fire Ins. Co., 368 F.3d 209, 2004 U.S. App. LEXIS 8720 (2d Cir. N.Y. 2004).

When an injured party was a defendant in an insurer's declaratory judgment action, he was not entitled to bring a third-party action against an additional prospective insurer until in accordance with N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420, he had obtained a judgment against the tortfeasor, served the judgment upon the additional prospective insurer, and awaited payment for 30 days. Clarendon Nat'l Ins. Co. v Gonzalez, 233 N.Y.L.J. 125, 2005 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3385 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. June 30, 2005).

There was no allegation that the first insured had obtained an unsatisfied judgment against the other individual involved in her auto accident; nor was there a basis for ignoring the directive that a plaintiff must proceed against an insured before moving against his insurer. Thus, at present, the first insured had no standing to pursue a breach of contract claim against the insurance company. Patchen v Gov't Emplrs. Ins. Co., 759 F. Supp. 2d 241, 2011 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 1551 (E.D.N.Y. 2011).

Pursuant to N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(a)(2) and (b)(1), the estates of the decedents in the underlying action would be able to sue the insurer directly should they obtain a judgment in the underlying action that remained unsatisfied for thirty days. Sunbelt Rentals, Inc. v Charter Oak Fire Ins. Co., 839 F. Supp. 2d 680, 2012 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 37613 (S.D.N.Y. 2012).

"Third party liability claim" under 11 NYCRR § 216.9 (Regulation 64) refers to claim brought under liability insurance policy by party other than insured, where claimant is natural person. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 02-04-01.

Under 11 NYCRR § 216.6(c) (Regulation 64), in any case where claim is rejected, insurer is required to notify claimant, or claimant's authorized representative, in writing, of any applicable policy provision limiting claimant's right to sue insurer; however, New York court has held that insurer's failure to comply with § 216.6(c) of Regulation 64 when insurer is denied claim, without more, was not sufficient to estop insurer from relying on limitations period and policy. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 03-07-18.

Insurer may require third-party claimant to execute release before insurer will pay settled claim, as long as release comports with 11 NYCRR § 216.6(g) (Regulation 64) which prohibits insurer from requiring execution of release on first or third-party claim that is broader than scope of underlying settlement. NY Ins Dep't Gen Counsel, Opinion No. 11-04-01, 2011 NY Insurance GC Opinions LEXIS 12.

Creditor had standing to file cross-claims against a debtor's insurer seeking a declaration as to whether the debtor was liable to the creditor for negligence despite this provision since the creditor was a defendant in the suit. Kirschenbaum v Fed. Ins. Co., 505 B.R. 126, 2014 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 15478 (E.D.N.Y. 2014).

XII. Requirements for Disclaimer of Liability by Insurer

133. In general

Absent valid excuse, failure to satisfy insurance policy notice requirement vitiates coverage, but insurer who fails to timely disclaim liability or deny coverage "as soon as is reasonably possible," when required by CLS Ins § 3420(d), waives its affirmative defense of late notice. Allcity Ins. Co. v Jimenez, 78 N.Y.2d 1054, 576 N.Y.S.2d 87, 581 N.E.2d 1342, 1991 N.Y. LEXIS 4210 (N.Y. 1991).

Section of Insurance Law providing that an insurer disclaiming liability for death or injury arising out of any type of accident shall give written notice of disclaimer to the insured and the injured person or any other claimant contains no exclusion or exception with respect to disclaimers by excess insurance carriers. Preisch v Continental Casualty Co., 55 A.D.2d 117, 389 N.Y.S.2d 700, 1976 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 14553 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1976), app. denied, 41 N.Y.2d 802, 1977 N.Y. LEXIS 2978 (N.Y. 1977).

Notice of disclaimer sent by insurance company to third-party claimant which only specifies grounds of disclaimer against insured and driver but which does not specifically address basis for disclaimer against third-party claimant is inadequate for disclaimer as to claimant. Aetna Casualty & Surety Co. v Rodriguez, 115 A.D.2d 418, 496 N.Y.S.2d 956, 1985 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 54805 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1985).

Insurance company was not required to notify insured in writing of its denial of her claim for underinsured motorist benefits where insured never purchased or paid for such coverage; insurer's failure to disclaim coverage does not create coverage which policy was not written to provide, since to do so would impose liability on insurer for risk for which no premium was ever received. Maryland Casualty Co. v Hopkins, 142 A.D.2d 946, 530 N.Y.S.2d 370, 1988 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 14966 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't), app. denied, 73 N.Y.2d 702, 537 N.Y.S.2d 490, 534 N.E.2d 328, 1988 N.Y. LEXIS 3450 (N.Y. 1988).

Excess liability motor vehicle insurance carrier had duty to disclaim coverage even before it was informed that primary coverage had been exhausted where insured established that primary carrier's offer of its policy limit had been rejected. Cassara v Nationwide Mut. Ins. Co., 144 A.D.2d 974, 534 N.Y.S.2d 277, 1988 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 14471 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1988).

If liability insurer intends to disclaim liability or deny coverage for any incident, it must give written notice of disclaimer as soon as it is reasonably possible to do so, and it will be estopped from denying coverage if notice of disclaimer is unreasonably delayed. Commercial Union Ins. Cos. v Jedamich Enterprises, Inc., 146 A.D.2d 599, 536 N.Y.S.2d 523, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 447 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1989).

Court correctly determined that "yacht hull and protection and indemnity policy" constituted marine protection and indemnity insurance within meaning of CLS Ins § 1113(a)(21) and was therefore, by reason of CLS Ins §§ 2117(b)(3)(B) and 3420(i), exempt from requirements of CLS Ins § 3420(d) regarding prompt written notice of disclaimer of coverage. Dunn v American Home Assurance Co., 158 A.D.2d 505, 551 N.Y.S.2d 268, 1990 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1755 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1990).

Where CLS Ins § 3420(d) does not apply because automobile insurance policy was not issued or delivered in New York, estoppel of insurer's disclaimer of coverage may be sought only at common law, upon showing of prejudice. Zurich Ins. Co. v Travelers Indem. Co., 184 A.D.2d 454, 586 N.Y.S.2d 932, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8630 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1992), rev'd, 81 N.Y.2d 938, 597 N.Y.S.2d 933, 613 N.E.2d 965, 1993 N.Y. LEXIS 5203 (N.Y. 1993).

CLS Ins § 3420(d) does not apply where underlying claim does not involve death or bodily injury. Incorporated Village of Pleasantville v Calvert Ins. Co., 204 A.D.2d 689, 612 N.Y.S.2d 441, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5779 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1994).

No disclaimer of motor vehicle insurance coverage was required with regard to vehicle not insured under policy, even though driver of vehicle was "family member" of insured and thus was included under her policy as another insured, where she was not named insured and had no contractual relationship with insurer; thus, vehicle was not covered by policy in first instance. Smedes v Liberty Mut. Ins. Co., 206 A.D.2d 814, 615 N.Y.S.2d 138, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7965 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), app. denied, 84 N.Y.2d 812, 622 N.Y.S.2d 914, 647 N.E.2d 120, 1994 N.Y. LEXIS 4570 (N.Y. 1994).

Failure to disclaim coverage does not create coverage that automobile insurance policy was not written to provide. Lumbermens Mut. Casualty Co. v Aggesen, 209 A.D.2d 415, 618 N.Y.S.2d 441, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10940 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1994).

CLS Ins § 3420(d) does not preclude tardy insurer from disclaiming liability based on invalidity of entire contract. Interested Underwriters at Lloyd's v H.D.I III Assocs., 213 A.D.2d 246, 623 N.Y.S.2d 871, 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2801 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1995).

Duty of insurer to disclaim coverage promptly extends to those situations where disclaimer is based on insured's failure to provide timely notice of claim. Nationwide Ins. Co. v Freehill, 224 A.D.2d 532, 637 N.Y.S.2d 800, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1159 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1996).

Insurer's untimely denial of claim does not preclude defense that coverage limits of policy have been exhausted. Presbyterian Hosp. v General Accident Ins. Co. of Am., 229 A.D.2d 479, 645 N.Y.S.2d 516, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7785 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1996).

Insurer's notification to insured of decision to deny coverage within 5 days after its receipt of summons and complaint was not untimely. Centenniel Ins. Co. v Hoffman, 265 A.D.2d 629, 695 N.Y.S.2d 774, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10331 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1999).

Acts of sexual intercourse that formed basis of underlying psychiatric malpractice action did not constitute "accident" under CLS Ins § 3420(d), and thus statute did not entitle plaintiffs in underlying action to notice of malpractice insurer's disclaimer. Legion Ins. Co. v Singh, 272 A.D.2d 809, 708 N.Y.S.2d 183, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5933 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), app. denied, 95 N.Y.2d 768, 721 N.Y.S.2d 605, 744 N.E.2d 141, 2000 N.Y. LEXIS 3573 (N.Y. 2000).

Insurer was required to comply with provisions of CLS Ins § 3420(d) requiring timely notice of disclaimer where its grounds for disclaimer were based on exclusionary clauses without which there would be coverage. Columbia Cas. Co. v Nat'l Emergency Servs., 282 A.D.2d 346, 723 N.Y.S.2d 473, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4072 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2001).

Because the insured intentionally hit a guest at the insured's home, and because incident was not an occurrence as defined by the policy, a disclaimer pursuant to N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(d) was unnecessary; therefore, the insurer was not obligated to defend the insured in the underlying action. State Farm Fire & Cas. Co. v Whiting, 53 A.D.3d 1033, 862 N.Y.S.2d 420, 2008 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6011 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 2008).

Former N.Y. Insur. Law § 3420(d) (current version at § 3420(d)(2)), regarding a liability insurer's notice of disclaimer of coverage, applies to excess insurers. George Campbell Painting v National Union Fire Ins. Co. of Pittsburgh, PA, 92 A.D.3d 104, 937 N.Y.S.2d 164, 2012 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 249 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2012).

The State was entitled to summary judgment in an action for indemnity where an insurance company, whose policy covered a general contractor hired to repair bridges by the State, failed to timely disclaim coverage for one of the contractor's employees who was injured on the job. State v Gen. Star Indem. Co., 299 A.D.2d 537, 751 N.Y.S.2d 47, 2002 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11548 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2002), app. denied, 99 N.Y.2d 508, 757 N.Y.S.2d 818, 787 N.E.2d 1164, 2003 N.Y. LEXIS 201 (N.Y. 2003).

Where a demand for defense and indemnification had been brought by a party who was not an additional insured under the plain language of a limited general liability policy, the insurer had no duty to provide a timely disclaimer of coverage, since there was really no possible basis for coverage; therefore, a summary judgment imposing those obligations on the insurer was reversible error. Nat'l Union Fire Ins. Co. v Utica First Ins. Co., 6 A.D.3d 681, 775 N.Y.S.2d 175, 2004 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4924 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2004).

In a proceeding pursuant to N.Y. C.P.L.R. art. 75, the trial court erred by declining to stay, permanently, arbitration proceedings on a claim for uninsured motorist (UM) coverage; because the insured's injuries were the result of an intentional collision, not an accident, the insured was precluded from obtaining UM benefits, and because the insurer denied the claim based on a lack of coverage, not a policy exclusion, N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(d) did not require the insurer to issue a disclaimer. Allstate Ins. Co. v Massre, 14 A.D.3d 610, 789 N.Y.S.2d 206, 2005 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 535 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2005).

Trial court properly granted summary judgment to an insurer as to plaintiff's action seeking to recover a judgment against an insured in an underlying personal injury action, because neither plaintiff nor the insured ever notified the insurer of the accident, and thus the insurer had no duty to disclaim liability, and thus the N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(d) time limit for disclaiming coverage did not apply. Hernandez v Am. Tr. Ins. Co., 31 A.D.3d 343, 819 N.Y.S.2d 264, 2006 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9693 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2006), app. denied, 2006 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 14224 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't Nov. 16, 2006).

Because a collision was intentional, the insurer was not required by Insurance Law § 3420(d) to issue a disclaimer because its denial of coverage was based on a lack of coverage and not a policy exclusion. Matter of Travelers Indem. Co. v Cruz, 40 A.D.3d 362, 835 N.Y.S.2d 567, 2007 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6022 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2007).

Insurer's across-the-board denial of coverage may excuse insured party from providing notice of each individual claim. Texaco A/S (Den.) v Commercial Ins. Co., 160 F.3d 124, 1998 U.S. App. LEXIS 28240 (2d Cir. N.Y. 1998).

If insured could show to trier of fact that insurer issued "blanket denial" of coverage, insured would have been free, as matter of law (on receipt of such denial), to reasonably settle claims without notifying insurer or obtaining insurer's preauthorization. Texaco A/S (Den.) v Commercial Ins. Co., 160 F.3d 124, 1998 U.S. App. LEXIS 28240 (2d Cir. N.Y. 1998).

The purpose of N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(d) is to assist a consumer or claimant in obtaining an expeditious resolution to liability claims by requiring insurance companies to give prompt notification when a claim is being denied. First Fin. Ins. Co. v Jetco Contr. Corp., 1 N.Y.3d 64, 769 N.Y.S.2d 459, 801 N.E.2d 835, 2003 N.Y. LEXIS 3948 (N.Y. 2003).

As the reasonable timeliness of notice under N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(d) was an issue that was likely to recur and involved important public policy considerations, the appellate court certified two questions to the New York Court of Appeals: Under § 3420(d), could an insurer who discovered grounds for denying coverage wait to notify the insured of denial of coverage until after the insurer conducted an investigation into alternate, third-party sources of insurance benefitting the insured, although the existence or non-existence of alternate insurance sources was not a factor in its decision to deny coverage; and if an investigation into alternate sources was not a proper basis for delayed notification under § 3420(d), was an unexcused delay in notification of 48 days unreasonable as a matter of law. New York Univ. v First Fin. Ins. Co., 322 F.3d 750, 2003 U.S. App. LEXIS 4918 (2d Cir. N.Y. 2003).

Excess insurer's letter to insured was not disclaimer under New York law so as to potentially waive late notice defense not raised therein, although it denied current obligation to defend or indemnify, where it did not specifically disclaim coverage under policy if underlying coverage was exhausted. City of Utica v Genesee Mgmt., 934 F. Supp. 510, 1996 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 10723 (N.D.N.Y. 1996).

11 NYCRR § 216.6 (Reg. 64) and 11 NYCRR § 216.7 (Reg. 64) set forth time frames in which insurer must either pay claim for physical damage to vehicle, notify claimant that additional time is needed for investigation and state the reasons why, or reject claim. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 03-10-21.

There are no requirements by regulation of Superintendent of Insurance specifying language to be included in standard reservation of rights letter; it is responsibility of insurer issuing such letter to ensure that letter meets any requirements that may be provided by case law. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 05-02-18.

Reservation of rights letters should not be confused with disclaimer letters in which insurer notifies insured or other party of insurer's intent to deny coverage or disclaim liability; reservation of rights letters are usually not effective as disclaimer letters. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 05-02-18.

L 2008, ch 388 amendments to CLS Ins § 3420, which apply to any "liability policy issued or delivered in this state," include policies issued in New York but delivered outside of state. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 09-06-08.

CLS Ins § 3420 sets forth minimum requirements for liability policies, which includes prejudice rule (which prevents invalidation of claim due to untimely notice by insured, injured person or any other claimant unless failure to provide timely notice has prejudiced insurer); however, insurers may provide more liberal provisions in their policies to benefit their insureds, and thus may also include prejudice rule in other kinds of policies. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 09-06-08.

CLS Ins § 3420 applies to claims-made policies; however, L 2008, ch 388 recognizes distinctive nature of claims-made policies and does not allow for duplicate claims under multiple policy periods, or late claim under prior policy period. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 09-06-08.

Third party may not bring direct cause of action against New York insurer in foreign jurisdiction subsequent to denial for late notice if policy was delivered in foreign jurisdiction that requires judgment against, or settlement with, insured prior to initiation of such cause of action; CLS Ins § 3104(b) allows New York insurer to include in any policy of insurance issued for delivery in another jurisdiction any provision required by laws of such other jurisdiction applicable to such policy. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 09-06-08.

134. Application to accidents outside state

The exclusion of guest coverage in an insurance policy provided by a corporation renting motor vehicles did not violate subdivision 2 of former section 167 [now § 3420(e)] of the Insurance Law where a van was rented in New York by a New York resident who was to deliver the van three days later to the lessor in Maine, inasmuch as the mandatory provisions of subdivision 2 of former section 167 [now § 3420(e)], one of which required coverage for injuries suffered by a passenger in the vehicle (Vehicle and Traffic Law, § 311; 11 NYCRR 60.1), are applicable only to policies issued on vehicles principally garaged or used in this State and the vehicle in question was registered in Massachusetts and was only temporarily in New York. Travelers Indem. Co. v Ryder Truck Rental, Inc., 47 N.Y.2d 139, 417 N.Y.S.2d 53, 390 N.E.2d 771, 1979 N.Y. LEXIS 1992 (N.Y. 1979).

In view of the substantial relationship of accident to state, statute requiring that any disclaimer of liability or denial of coverage for death or bodily injury arising out of motor vehicle accident occurring within the state shall be given by written notice from insurer as soon as reasonably possible should be applied. Newman v Ketani, 54 A.D.2d 926, 388 N.Y.S.2d 128, 1976 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 14778 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1976).

The granting of a motion by plaintiff for summary judgment to the extent of declaring defendant insurer's disclaimer invalid was improper and a trial would be required, where plaintiff, who was involved in an out-of-state accident when the vehicle he was operating struck a light pole, was denied no-fault benefits more than five months after notifying defendant of the accident, on the ground that he had been under the influence of drugs and alcohol at the time of the accident since Ins Law § 167, which obligates the insurer to give written notice of disclaimer as soon as is reasonably possible, appears to be inapplicable to out-of-state accidents; whether plaintiff would be entitled to no-fault coverage will largely depend on the terms of the policy and further evidence as to the nature of the accident. Grening v Empire Mut. Ins. Co., 101 A.D.2d 550, 475 N.Y.S.2d 423, 1984 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 18294 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1984).

CLS Ins § 3420(d) did not apply to disclaimer where accident at issue occurred in Florida. Brennan v Liberty Mut. Fire Ins. Co.,

204 A.D.2d 675, 612 N.Y.S.2d 237, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5776 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1994).

In action by owner of leased car against its excess liability insurer, there was no merit in owner's claim that insurer could not properly be found to have disclaimed coverage under CLS Ins § 3420(d) because insurer did not notify injured person; by its terms, § 3420(d) applies only where insurance liability policy is delivered or issued for delivery in New York, and policy at issue was issued and delivered in Massachusetts. First City Acceptance Corp. v Gulf Ins. Co., 245 A.D.2d 649, 665 N.Y.S.2d 114, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12534 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1997).

Disclaimer notice provision in CLS Ins § 3420(d) did not apply to accident that occurred in New Jersey; by its terms, § 3420(d) applies only to accidents "occurring within this state." U.S. Fid. & Guar. Co. v New York Susquehanna & Western Ry. Co., 275 A.D.2d 977, 713 N.Y.S.2d 624, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9565 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 2000).

Statutory requirement of notice of disclaimer or denial of coverage as soon as reasonably possible following death or bodily injury arising out of motor vehicle accident occurring within the state was not intended to exempt insurer from coverage for accidents occurring outside state. Kasson & Keller, Inc. v Centennial Ins. Co., 79 Misc. 2d 450, 359 N.Y.S.2d 760, 1974 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1683 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1974).

Second level excess insurers' failure to promptly disclaim coverage under CLS Ins § 3420(d) did not constitute waiver of their defense, in first level excess insurer's action for contribution involving out-of-state accident, that first insurer had failed to promptly notify second insurers of loss since statute does not apply to out-of-state accidents that bear no substantial relation to New York. American Home Assurance Co. v Republic Ins. Co., 984 F.2d 76, 1993 U.S. App. LEXIS 1040 (2d Cir. N.Y.), cert. denied, 508 U.S. 973, 113 S. Ct. 2964, 125 L. Ed. 2d 664, 1993 U.S. LEXIS 4086 (U.S. 1993).

N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(d) was inapplicable where the accident that allegedly resulted in the death of an widow's husband occurred in Alabama since, but its plain terms, the statute applied only to accidents that occurred with the State of New York. Lemuel v Admiral Ins. Co., 414 F. Supp. 2d 1037, 2006 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 4903 (M.D. Ala. 2006), aff'd, 2007 U.S. App. LEXIS 380 (11th Cir. Ala. Jan. 9, 2007).

135. Declaratory actions regarding coverage or liability

Insured was not entitled to summary judgment declaring that insurance company was obligated to defend and indemnify in pending action against insured where fact issue existed as to whether insured's failure to give notice until commencement of underlying action, more than 2 years after incident, was reasonable under policy requiring notice "as soon as practicable." Cohoes Rod & Gun Club, Inc. v Firemen's Ins. Co., 134 A.D.2d 782, 521 N.Y.S.2d 836, 1987 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 50951 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1987).

Plaintiff insurance company was entitled to summary judgment declaring that defendant insurance company was obligated to share in defense of 2 individuals in underlying action, notwithstanding that those individuals never requested that defendant provide any defense and they denied that their actions were covered by defendant's policy, since allegations in underlying action fell squarely within scope of defendant's coverage and such allegations alone were sufficient to trigger defendant's duty to defend; whether or not 2 individuals were ultimately found not to have been acting within defendant's policy coverage was irrelevant in determining defendant's duty to defend. Zurich-American Ins. Cos. v Atlantic Mut. Ins. Cos., 139 A.D.2d 379, 531 N.Y.S.2d 911, 1988 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8478 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1988), aff'd, 74 N.Y.2d 621, 541 N.Y.S.2d 970, 539 N.E.2d 1098, 1989 N.Y. LEXIS 465 (N.Y. 1989).

In action seeking declaration that second insurance company was responsible for sharing with first insurance company in defense of 2 individuals in underlying civil actions, neither named insureds, which allegedly employed 2 individuals, nor individuals themselves, as putative insureds, were necessary parties who should have been joined in declaratory judgment action, since declaration sought would not impair or reduce available defense coverage afforded by first insurance company, which was currently defending individuals and its named insured (one employer), nor would such declaration impair or reduce available defense coverage afforded by second insurance company to its named insured (other employer). Zurich-American Ins. Cos. v Atlantic Mut. Ins. Cos., 139 A.D.2d 379, 531 N.Y.S.2d 911, 1988 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8478 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1988), aff'd, 74 N.Y.2d 621, 541 N.Y.S.2d 970, 539 N.E.2d 1098, 1989 N.Y. LEXIS 465 (N.Y. 1989).

Although first insurance company was entitled to summary judgment declaring that second insurance company was obligated to share in defense of 2 individuals in underlying civil actions, first company was not thereby entitled to reimbursement of ½ of its expenses in providing defense, since reasonable value of its attorneys' services presented fact issue and, in any event, extent of its recovery in that regard was controlled by coverage of parties' respective "other insurance" clauses, which was yet unresolved. Zurich-American Ins. Cos. v Atlantic Mut. Ins. Cos., 139 A.D.2d 379, 531 N.Y.S.2d 911, 1988 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8478 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1988), aff'd, 74 N.Y.2d 621, 541 N.Y.S.2d 970, 539 N.E.2d 1098, 1989 N.Y. LEXIS 465 (N.Y. 1989).

Court properly stayed insurance company's action seeking declaratory judgment that it was not obligated to defend or indemnify its insured under homeowner's policy in personal injury action by third party against insured and others, since complaint in personal injury action alleged not only cause of action for intentional assault, but also cause of action sounding in negligence. Allstate Ins. Co. v Kemp, 144 A.D.2d 853, 534 N.Y.S.2d 806, 1988 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11256 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1988).

Insurance company which issued policy to subcontractor in which general contractor was named as additional insured was estopped from denying coverage to general contractor where uncontested evidence showed that insurance company was informed that general contractor had required revised certificate of insurance with itself named as additional insured and that general contractor had relied on such certificate in permitting subcontractor to proceed with work. Bucon, Inc. v Pennsylvania Mfg. Asso. Ins. Co., 151 A.D.2d 207, 547 N.Y.S.2d 925, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 14183 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1989).

Insurance company was entitled to summary judgment declaring that it was liable for judgment in products liability action only to extent that judgment exceeded $1 million since its policy clearly and unambiguously stated that liability attached only after first $1 million was paid under insurance policy issued by other insurance company, which had since gone bankrupt and been liquidated. Steyr-Daimler-Puch AG. v Allstate Ins. Co., 151 A.D.2d 942, 543 N.Y.S.2d 538, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8861 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), app. denied, 74 N.Y.2d 617, 550 N.Y.S.2d 277, 549 N.E.2d 479, 1989 N.Y. LEXIS 3318 (N.Y. 1989).

Insurance company was not entitled to summary judgment declaring that it had no duty to defend or indemnify insureds in underlying personal injury action since question of fact existed as to whether notice of disclaimer was reasonable and timely where (1) delay in mailing notice covered 9-week period, and (2) although insurance company proffered confusion about which policy pertained as explanation for delay of 4 weeks, it failed to suggest any excuse for additional 5-week delay after it came to decision to disclaim. Massachusetts Bay Ins. Co. v Pendleton, 159 A.D.2d 770, 551 N.Y.S.2d 992, 1990 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2202 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1990).

Where automobile insurance policy was never intended to provide coverage to vehicle involved in accident, delay in service of notice of disclaimer did not preclude summary judgment in favor of insurance company in declaratory judgment action to determine obligations of various insurance companies with regard to underlying personal injury action. Liberty Mut. Ins. Co. v Aetna Casualty & Surety Co., 168 A.D.2d 121, 571 N.Y.S.2d 735, 1991 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8047 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1991).

Defendant insurance company was not entitled to summary judgment declaring that its policy did not cover underlying accident where (1) employee of plaintiff brought his 20-year-old son to work one day and, while operating truck owned by plaintiff, accident occurred and son sustained injury which required stitches, (2) employee and son notified plaintiff of injury on day of accident, (3) almost 2 years later, son sued plaintiff for $3 million, and (4) plaintiff notified insurance company immediately after service of summons; question of fact existed regarding timely notice since it did not appear that, on day of accident, employee or son stated that suit would follow, and son was not employee excluded from coverage. AMRO Carting Corp. v Allcity Ins. Co., 170 A.D.2d 394, 566 N.Y.S.2d 282, 1991 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2416 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1991).

Contractor and school district had standing to seek declaratory judgment regarding duty of insurance company to defend and indemnify them since both contractor and school district were insureds under policy issued by insurance company that provided coverage for claims asserted against them, and both established genuine dispute as to whether insurance company had duty to defend and indemnify that would not be resolved in underlying action; contrary result was not required by fact that both contractor and school district already had benefit of defense provided by other insurers. AAC Contracting v United Coastal Ins. Co., 193 A.D.2d 1085, 599 N.Y.S.2d 203, 1993 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5715 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1993).

Coverage was properly disclaimed under umbrella policy covering only "damages because of 'bodily injury' [or] 'property damage'...[c]aused by an 'occurrence'" where claims asserted in underlying action against insured were for economic loss resulting from insured's purported breach of contract. Direct Travel v Aetna Casualty & Sur. Co., 214 A.D.2d 484, 625 N.Y.S.2d 221, 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4556 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1995).

Although complaint did not allege inadequate lighting at scene of accident, insurer was put on notice of such claim where plaintiff's bill of particulars alleged that he slipped on ice that accumulated on uneven planking and that location was unlit, and he stated at depositions that "There were no lights there" and "It was fixed later on and they put lights there." City of New York v Consolidated Edison Co., 238 A.D.2d 119, 655 N.Y.S.2d 496, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2967 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1997).

Court properly awarded insured his costs in defending declaratory judgment action since insurers cast him in defensive posture by legal steps they took in trying to free themselves from their policy obligations. Empire Ins. Co. v Silbowitz, 243 A.D.2d 251, 663 N.Y.S.2d 7, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9284 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1997).

In insurers' action for declaratory judgment involving their duty to defend and indemnify insured, insurers were not precluded from introducing audiotapes of their investigator's interviews with insured's principal, even though those tapes for some reason were never played, where judicial hearing officer properly advised insurers that he would have to listen to tapes before deciding whether transcripts, which contained many omissions, fairly and accurately reflected subject conversations. Paramount Ins. Co. v Eli Constr. Gen. Contr., 245 A.D.2d 38, 665 N.Y.S.2d 857, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12526 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1997).

In action by owner of leased car against its excess liability insurer, involving issues of notice to insurer of accident and validity of insurer's disclaimer of coverage, New York law applied because New York had strongest interest in resolution of dispute, even though insurance contract was made in Massachusetts, where accident occurred in New York, parties to accident were New York residents, personal injury action was settled in New York, and owner chose to commence action against its insurer in New York. First City Acceptance Corp. v Gulf Ins. Co., 245 A.D.2d 649, 665 N.Y.S.2d 114, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12534 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1997).

Insurer was relieved of its duty to defend and indemnify insureds where insureds' first notice to insurer of underlying claim was given in their summons and complaint in present declaratory judgment action, which was served 9 months after start of underlying action and 2 years after insureds first learned of property damage asserted in underlying action. American Mfrs. Mut. Ins. Co. v CMA Enters., 246 A.D.2d 373, 667 N.Y.S.2d 724, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 272 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1998).

In declaratory judgment action by city transit authority concerning whether insurers were obligated to defend and indemnify it, as work site owner, in underlying personal injury action, insurer under general liability policy was entitled to summary judgment where policy named only authority's contractor as insured, and certificate of insurance stating that insurer would "endeavor" to give certificate holder advance notice of any cancellation of policy imposed no affirmative duties whatsoever. New York City Transit Auth. v Firemen's Fund Ins. Co., 251 A.D.2d 166, 673 N.Y.S.2d 906, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7322 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't), app. denied, 92 N.Y.2d 813, 680 N.Y.S.2d 906, 703 N.E.2d 764, 1998 N.Y. LEXIS 3694 (N.Y. 1998).

Plaintiffs, commercial tenant and its liability insurer, were entitled to summary judgment declaring that landlord and its liability insurer had to indemnify them for their payments in settlement of underlying action for water damage where plaintiffs submitted copy of indemnification agreement and judgment of indemnification in tenant's favor, landlord's insurer admitted that landlord's policy covered contractual indemnification, and defendants ignored merits of coverage claim and argued lack of privity of tenant's insurer and inapplicability of CLS Ins § 3420(b), neither of which had merit. American Motorists Ins. Co. v Greater New York Mut. Ins. Co., 255 A.D.2d 190, 680 N.Y.S.2d 10, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12478 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1998).

Insured was not entitled to declaration that insurer was obligated to defend and indemnify him in underlying personal injury action by his wife for 3 instances of assault where his conduct was not mere negligence and came within exclusion from his homeowner's policy for "an act or omission intended or expected to cause bodily injury...even if the bodily injury...is of a different kind or degree...than that intended or expected." Doyle v Allstate Ins. Co., 255 A.D.2d 795, 680 N.Y.S.2d 741, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12508 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1998).

In declaratory judgment action, insurer, which initially disclaimed coverage on grounds of late notices of "occurrence" and lawsuit, could amend its answer to add affirmative defense that underlying assault was never intended to be covered "occurrence" within scope of policy; CLS Ins § 3420(d), which requires insurance company to give prompt notice of grounds for disclaimer and precludes insurer from later disclaiming on grounds not initially asserted, was not applicable since statute applies only to policy exclusions and not to disclaimer based on lack of coverage. Agoado Realty Corp. v United Int'l Ins. Co., 260 A.D.2d 112, 699 N.Y.S.2d 335, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12358 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1999), modified, 95 N.Y.2d 141, 711 N.Y.S.2d 141, 733 N.E.2d 213, 2000 N.Y. LEXIS 1373 (N.Y. 2000).

In declaratory judgment action, court would dismiss insurer's affirmative defense that underlying assault was never intended to be covered "occurrence" within scope of policy, even though assault was intentional from standpoint of perpetrator, since it was "accident" from standpoint of insured inasmuch as policy defined "occurrence" as "accident" but did not exclude assault, either in definition of "occurrence" or as exclusion. Agoado Realty Corp. v United Int'l Ins. Co., 260 A.D.2d 112, 699 N.Y.S.2d 335, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12358 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1999), modified, 95 N.Y.2d 141, 711 N.Y.S.2d 141, 733 N.E.2d 213, 2000 N.Y. LEXIS 1373 (N.Y. 2000).

In declaratory judgment action, insurer, which initially disclaimed coverage on grounds of late notices of "occurrence" and lawsuit, was precluded by CLS Ins § 3420(d) from amending its answer to add affirmative defense based on policy exclusion of for bodily injury that was "expected or intended from the standpoint of the insured"; insurer waived its right to rely on exclusion by its failure to invoke such policy provision in its original notice of disclaimer. Agoado Realty Corp. v United Int'l Ins. Co., 260 A.D.2d 112, 699 N.Y.S.2d 335, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12358 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1999), modified, 95 N.Y.2d 141, 711 N.Y.S.2d 141, 733 N.E.2d 213, 2000 N.Y. LEXIS 1373 (N.Y. 2000).

In declaratory judgment action seeking coverage under commercial general liability policy for wrongful death action which alleged that negligent security caused fatal assault on tenant in insureds' building on May 19, 1996, insureds were not entitled to summary judgment as to insurer's affirmative defense based on late notice of "occurrence" received on June 20, 1997 where fact question existed as to insureds' alleged good-faith belief that no covered event had occurred until they were sued; although landlord was not given notice of murder until several days after it occurred, and landlord was not questioned by police, landlord's good-faith belief of nonliability was fact question. Agoado Realty Corp. v United Int'l Ins. Co., 260 A.D.2d 112, 699 N.Y.S.2d 335, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12358 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1999), modified, 95 N.Y.2d 141, 711 N.Y.S.2d 141, 733 N.E.2d 213, 2000 N.Y. LEXIS 1373 (N.Y. 2000).

In declaratory judgment action seeking coverage under commercial general liability policy for action brought against insureds based on incident that occurred on May 19, 1996, insureds were entitled to summary judgment as to affirmative defenses based on lack of timely notice of actual underlying lawsuit where, because of death of attorney designated to accept service on their behalf, insureds did not receive actual notice that claim had been made against them until they received summons and complaint in mail on June 9, 1997; insureds' prompt filing of notice on receipt of summons negated affirmative defenses as matter of law. Agoado Realty Corp. v United Int'l Ins. Co., 260 A.D.2d 112, 699 N.Y.S.2d 335, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12358 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1999), modified, 95 N.Y.2d 141, 711 N.Y.S.2d 141, 733 N.E.2d 213, 2000 N.Y. LEXIS 1373 (N.Y. 2000).

In action for judgment declaring that insurer had no duty to defend and indemnify insured in underlying action that did not involve death or bodily injury, insurer was not entitled to summary judgment where triable issue existed as to whether insured suffered prejudice as result of insurer's delay in disclaiming coverage. United States Fid. & Guar. Co. v Weiri, 265 A.D.2d 321, 696 N.Y.S.2d 200, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9642 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1999).

Hospital's liability insurers were entitled to summary judgment declaring that they properly disclaimed coverage in underlying federal lawsuit claiming First Amendment violations, defamation and tortious interference with business relations, wherein plaintiff alleged that hospital engaged in intentional and malicious conduct intended to injure his professional reputation in reaction to his suggestion that nurse-midwives be allowed to practice at hospital, as (1) public policy precluded insurance coverage for such claims, and (2) liability policies in question expressly excluded coverage for claims arising from interference with contract, punitive damages, malicious civil acts or omissions, and defamation. Town of Massena v Healthcare Underwriters Mut. Ins. Co., 281 A.D.2d 107, 724 N.Y.S.2d 107, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4180 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2001), aff'd in part, modified, 98 N.Y.2d 435, 749 N.Y.S.2d 456, 779 N.E.2d 167, 2002 N.Y. LEXIS 2729 (N.Y. 2002).

Summary judgment declaring that a primary insurer was required to defend and indemnify insureds in an underlying claim was proper because the provision at issue was ambiguous as to whether the insureds were covered by the policy, and the primary insurer did not issue a timely denial of coverage; the ambiguity in coverage was construed against the primary insurer, thus affording coverage under its policy to the insureds. Additionally, as the trial court properly determined, under the terms of the two policies at issue, the primary insurer's policy provided primary coverage and the policy of the excess insurer provided excess coverage. Liberty Mut. Fire Ins. Co. v National Cas. Co., 47 A.D.3d 770, 850 N.Y.S.2d 188, 2008 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 448 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2008).

While an insurer was required to give timely notice of disclaimer pursuant to N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(d), because a triable issue of fact existed regarding the date it received a company's notice of claim, neither party was entitled to summary judgment. 233 E. 17th St., LLC v L.G.B. Dev., Inc., 78 A.D.3d 930, 913 N.Y.S.2d 110, 2010 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8617 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2010).

In plaintiff worker's personal injury action after falling from a ladder, defendant/third-party plaintiff construction manager was incorrect that it was entitled to summary judgment on its claim seeking a declaration that defendant third-party insurer was obligated to indemnify the manager under an additional insured endorsement in a certain insurance policy based solely on the insurer's failure to issue a timely disclaimer, as it was not yet clear whether the claim fell outside the scope of the insurance policy's coverage portion, and if it did fall outside the scope of that portion of the policy, then disclaimer pursuant to N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(d) was unnecessary. Crespo v City of New York, 303 A.D.2d 166, 756 N.Y.S.2d 183, 2003 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1936 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2003).

Parties to a lawsuit involving an insurance company's insured had standing to challenge the timeliness of the insurance company's disclaimer, and the appellate court reversed the trial court's judgment granting the insurance company's motion for summary judgment on its claim that it did not have an obligation to defend or indemnify its insured because the issue of whether the disclaimer was timely was an issue of fact for trial. Colonial Coop. Ins. Co. v Desert Storm Constr. Corp., 305 A.D.2d 363, 757 N.Y.S.2d 894, 2003 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5156 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2003).

Since the insured's employee, in attacking the injured person, was not acting within the scope of his employment or on the insured's behalf, the act was not intended and was thus a covered occurrence under a general commercial liability policy; since the insurer conceded that its disclaimer, which was based upon an exclusion, was untimely, and since the incident otherwise fell within the coverage, the insurer was precluded from denying coverage based on that exclusion. Siagha v Nat'l Fire Ins. Co., 306 A.D.2d 60, 762 N.Y.S.2d 46, 2003 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6430 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2003), app. denied, 2 N.Y.3d 703, 778 N.Y.S.2d 462, 810 N.E.2d 915, 2004 N.Y. LEXIS 575 (N.Y. 2004).

When an insurer failed to timely disclaim coverage of its insured, under N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(d), based on a policy exclusion, it could not assert that exclusion, and the insured was entitled to summary judgment in an action seeking a declaration that the insurer was required to defend and indemnify it, because the insurer's denial of coverage was based on an exclusion, rather than an absence of coverage, which would not require the insurer to timely disclaim coverage. A. Servidone, Inc. v Commer. Underwriter's Ins. Co., 7 A.D.3d 942, 777 N.Y.S.2d 526, 2004 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7127 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), app. dismissed, 3 N.Y.3d 701, 785 N.Y.S.2d 28, 818 N.E.2d 670, 2004 N.Y. LEXIS 2207 (N.Y. 2004).

In a declaratory judgment action concerning defense obligations, N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(d) was not applicable to a notice of disclaimer between two coinsurers, so the notice given by defendant insurer to plaintiff insurer of its disclaimer of coverage to additional insureds was not untimely. Bovis Lend Lease LMB, Inc. v Royal Surplus Lines Ins. Co., 27 A.D.3d 84, 806 N.Y.S.2d 53, 2005 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 14220 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2005).

Insurer was obligated to defend and indemnify an insured for the obligations it assumed in a settlement agreement with an employee because the insurer did not timely disclaim coverage or deny liability under N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(d)(2), and was precluded from relying on a policy exclusion regarding indemnification agreements. RLI Ins. Co. v Smiedala, 96 A.D.3d 1409, 947 N.Y.S.2d 850, 2012 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4414 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 2012).

Insurer had no obligation to indemnify the insureds because the insurer's initial denial was timely, the insurer reserved its right to deny coverage if the vacatur of the default judgment against the insureds was reversed, and, thus, the insurer was not estopped from denying coverage to the insureds and refusing to continue to defend them in the underlying action; the insurer was not entitled to recover its defense costs because there was no express provision to that effect in the policy. American W. Home Ins. Co. v Gjonaj Realty & Mgt. Co., 2020 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8286 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2020).

It was irrelevant that under New York law an injured party may only assert a cause of action directly against a tortfeasor's liability insurer after the injured party has obtained a judgment against the tortfeasor-insured itself, pursuant to N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(a)(2); § 3420 did not bear on the situation where plaintiff insurer pursued a declaration of noncoverage against its insured and the injured tort claimants. U.S. Underwriters Ins. Co. v Landau, 679 F. Supp. 2d 330, 2010 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 3430 (E.D.N.Y. 2010).

Appeals court agreed that a circus client's insurer was to cover the circus as named under a written agreement between the circus and the client as an additional insured in underlying action by the client's caterer who fell, after the circus performed, in circus's tent used by the client for holiday party. Big Apple Circus, Inc. v Chubb Ins. Group, 305 A.D.2d 197, 760 N.Y.S.2d 428, 2003 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5449 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2003).

136. Reasonableness of delay in giving notice

The question of unreasonableness of an automobile insurer in making a disclaimer becomes a question of fact, or, if extreme, of law, depending upon the circumstances of the case which make it reasonable for the insurer to take more or less time to make, complete and act diligently on its investigation of its coverage or breach of conditions in the policy. Allstate Ins. Co. v Gross, 27 N.Y.2d 263, 317 N.Y.S.2d 309, 265 N.E.2d 736, 1970 N.Y. LEXIS 966 (N.Y. 1970).

The literal language of Insurance Law former § 167, subd 8 [now § 3420(d)] requires prompt notice of disclaimer after decision to do so, and by logical and practical exclusion, there is imported the obligation to reach the decision to disclaim liability or deny coverage promptly too, that is, within a reasonable time. Allstate Ins. Co. v Gross, 27 N.Y.2d 263, 317 N.Y.S.2d 309, 265 N.E.2d 736, 1970 N.Y. LEXIS 966 (N.Y. 1970).

Timeliness of insurer's disclaimer of liability is measured from time when insurer first learns of grounds for disclaimer or denial of coverage. Allcity Ins. Co. v Jimenez, 78 N.Y.2d 1054, 576 N.Y.S.2d 87, 581 N.E.2d 1342, 1991 N.Y. LEXIS 4210 (N.Y. 1991).

Carrier's 4 ½ -year delay in disclaiming coverage under business auto portion of comprehensive insurance policy was unreasonable as matter of law, and thus any purported exclusion of coverage would be construed against carrier. Jefferson Ins. Co. v Travelers Indem. Co., 92 N.Y.2d 363, 681 N.Y.S.2d 208, 703 N.E.2d 1221, 1998 N.Y. LEXIS 3664 (N.Y. 1998).

Insurers were not estopped by their delay from disclaiming any obligation to defend or indemnify an insured with respect to a claim arising out of the insured's purported sale of defective merchandise, where the insured was not prejudiced by the delay; Ins Law former § 167(8), [now § 3420(d)] which required notice of a disclaimer of liability "as soon as is reasonably possible," was inapplicable in that no death or bodily injury was claimed. Tel-Tru Mfg. Co. v North River Ins. Co., 90 A.D.2d 670, 456 N.Y.S.2d 287, 1982 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 18750 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1982).

In an action to declare that an injured employee was entitled to receive no-fault benefits from the insurer of a car owner who brought his car to the injured employee's employer for servicing, the employee was properly declared to be entitled to no-fault benefits where he was struck by the vehicle on the employer's lot while it was being moved by a fellow employee, and where the denial of coverage by the insurer, on the ground of a policy provision that excluded no-fault coverage for accidents arising out of servicing of the car unless the accident occurred off the business premises, was not timely as a matter of law. Nahmias v Merchants Mut. Ins. Co., 91 A.D.2d 680, 457 N.Y.S.2d 137, 1982 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 19556 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1982).

In an insurance company's declaratory judgment action arising out of a personal injury and wrongful death action in which defendant and her late husband had been struck by an automobile covered under an excess insurance policy, the insurer's failure to disclaim liability as soon as was reasonably possible, in violation of Ins Law § 167(8), precluded any consideration of the merits of the insurer's claim that it was not responsible, since conditions of the policy had been breached. Home Ins. Co. v Corcoran, 107 A.D.2d 561, 483 N.Y.S.2d 300, 1985 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 42570 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't), rev'd, 65 N.Y.2d 1035, 494 N.Y.S.2d 294, 484 N.E.2d 657, 1985 N.Y. LEXIS 16094 (N.Y. 1985).

Where insurance company provides no adequate explanation for not sending notice of disclaimer until approximately 2 ½ months after accident for which claim was filed, disclaimer would be declared invalid. Metropolitan Property & Liability Ins. Co. v State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co., 119 A.D.2d 558, 500 N.Y.S.2d 369, 1986 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 55484 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1986).

Insurer's delay in disclaiming liability was not unreasonable as matter of law so as to render disclaimer ineffective under CLS Ins § 3420(d) where action involved property insurance policy; statute applies only to insurance policies involving tort liability to injured third party, and no comparable notice requirement exists for actions involving property insurance policies. Interested Underwriters at Lloyd's v H.D.I III Assocs., 213 A.D.2d 246, 623 N.Y.S.2d 871, 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2801 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1995).

It was error to grant insured's motion for summary judgment declaring that insurers were required to defend and indemnify insured in personal injury action where fact issues existed as to whether notice of claim that insured sent to insurers was reasonable in light of policy provision requiring insured to notify insurers "promptly of an 'occurrence' that may result in a claim".90 8th Ave. Hous. Co. v Andover Cos., 219 A.D.2d 699, 631 N.Y.S.2d 434, 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9569 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1995).

Disclaimers of coverage made more than 2 months after insurer possesses all facts necessary to invoke exclusion are untimely as matter of law; reasonableness of insurer's delay of less than 2 months is generally fact issue not to be resolved in summary judgment motion. Utica Fire Ins. Co. v Spagnolo, 221 A.D.2d 921, 634 N.Y.S.2d 296, 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13406 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1995).

Reasonableness of any delay in disclaiming coverage of underinsured motorist claim must be judged from time when carrier is aware of sufficient facts to issue disclaimer. Allstate Ins. Co. v Ferrone, 232 A.D.2d 479, 648 N.Y.S.2d 936, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10165 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1996).

Defendants, insurance companies, should not have been granted summary judgment in action for breach of insurance contract where fact issue existed as to whether less than one month delay in disclaiming liability was reasonable. Murphy v Hanover Ins. Co., 239 A.D.2d 323, 657 N.Y.S.2d 740, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4591 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1997).

Plaintiffs were not entitled to judgment declaring that insurer's disclaimer of coverage, based on construction exclusion clause contained in policies, was untimely under CLS Ins § 3420(d) because it was issued more than 3 months after insurer learned facts underlying disclaimer, given paucity of information furnished by plaintiffs concerning accident despite insurer's efforts to ascertain such information. West 56th St. Assocs. v Greater N.Y. Mut. Ins. Co., 250 A.D.2d 109, 681 N.Y.S.2d 523, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13754 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1998), amended, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1194 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't Jan. 19, 1999).

Reasonableness of insurer's delay in issuing disclaimer of liability is determined from time at which insurer is aware of sufficient facts on which to base disclaimer. Mohawk Minden Ins. Co. v Ferry, 251 A.D.2d 846, 674 N.Y.S.2d 512, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7326 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1998).

Although reasonableness of insurer's delay in issuing disclaimer of liability generally is question of fact requiring consideration of totality of circumstances, long or unexplained delay will be found unreasonable as matter of law. Mohawk Minden Ins. Co. v Ferry, 251 A.D.2d 846, 674 N.Y.S.2d 512, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7326 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1998).

Insurer who filed to disclaim coverage as soon as reasonably possible cannot justify its failure to do so by insured's late notice. Mohawk Minden Ins. Co. v Ferry, 251 A.D.2d 846, 674 N.Y.S.2d 512, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7326 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1998).

Recent amendment to CLS Ins § 3420(f)(2)(A), requiring insurer to disclose within 45 days extent of coverage provided under its policy, does not apply retroactively. Travelers Prop. Cas. Corp. v Fusilli, 266 A.D.2d 48, 698 N.Y.S.2d 641, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11596 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1999).

Prompt notice of disclaimer was not required, where owner's insurance policy did not provide coverage because vehicle was operated without owner's consent. Allstate Indem. Co. v Nelson, 285 A.D.2d 545, 728 N.Y.S.2d 82, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7462 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2001).

Denial of insureds' summary judgment motion in declaratory judgment action was error because the insureds presented evidence that the insurer's delay in issuing a disclaimer of coverage was unreasonable, and that the insurer was precluded from disclaiming coverage based on a late notice of claim or a policy exclusion pursuant to N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(d); in opposition, the insurer failed to raise a triable issue of fact as to whether the delay was reasonably related to the completion of a necessary, thorough, and diligent investigation, or whether there was any other satisfactory explanation for the delay. Quest Bldrs. Group, Inc. v Deco Interior Constr., Inc., 56 A.D.3d 744, 868 N.Y.S.2d 149, 2008 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9005 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2008).

Trial court erred in denying an insurance company's motion pursuant to N.Y. C.P.L.R 7503 to permanently stay arbitration of an uninsured motorist claim; the offending vehicle was insured by another insurer at the time of an accident, because a livery exclusion in the other insurer's policy did not apply, and the other insurer failed to give a timely written notice of disclaimer as required by N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(d), as the other insurer had sufficient facts upon which to disclaim upon receipt of the initial report on November 15, 1999, and under the circumstances, it was unreasonable for the other insurer to have waited until March 28, 2000, to issue a disclaimer. Fed. Ins. Co. v Provenzano, 300 A.D.2d 485, 751 N.Y.S.2d 567, 2002 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12326 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2002).

Where the insurer had no duty to defend and indemnify the insured party because the act that was the basis of the underlying action did not occur on a date that was covered by the insurance policy, since no coverage was created in the first instance, the timely disclaimer provisions of N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(d) were inapplicable. Levin v G.T.J. Co., 306 A.D.2d 385, 760 N.Y.S.2d 868, 2003 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7135 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2003).

Due to an insurer's failure to timely disclaim coverage, it was obligated to defend an insured under a homeowner's policy with regard to bodily injuries she received as a result of a dog bite. Taking 45 days to send out a notice of disclaimer was unreasonable in as much as the insurer had all of the information about the claim, the injured child's residence at the insured home, and any additional information it required. Moore v Ewing, 9 A.D.3d 484, 781 N.Y.S.2d 51, 2004 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10120 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2004).

Because the insurer acted reasonably in investigating the corporation's claims regarding the personal injury accident, the insurer issued a timely disclaimer in compliance with N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(d). Laracuente v Mora, 784 N.Y.S.2d 921, 2 Misc. 3d 1012(A), 2004 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 413 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 2004).

Insurer's motion to stay arbitration of an uninsured motorist claim was properly granted and N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(d), requiring timely notice of denial of coverage after a notice of claim was filed, was properly found to be inapplicable because the insurer's denial of coverage was based on the insured's fraudulent misrepresentation that he was driving a covered vehicle during the accident. Since the denial was based on the fraudulent misrepresentation, the concerns of prejudice to the insured from the lack of timely notice were not present; the insurer's motion for a stay of arbitration was properly granted. Utica Mut. Ins. Co. v Reid, 22 A.D.3d 127, 799 N.Y.S.2d 509, 2005 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8469 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2005).

Trial court erred in granting partial summary judgment to a medial partnership in an action seeking indemnification from an insurer, as there was a triable issue of fact as to whether the insurer gave adequate and timely notice of its effort to deny coverage as required by N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(d). Elacqua v Physicians' Reciprocal Insurers, 21 A.D.3d 702, 800 N.Y.S.2d 469, 2005 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8789 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2005), app. dismissed, 6 N.Y.3d 844, 814 N.Y.S.2d 76, 847 N.E.2d 373, 2006 N.Y. LEXIS 622 (N.Y. 2006).

Where the construction company argued that it gave notice of claim to the insurer's agent and that the insurer's disclaimer was untimely under N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420, but the company did not prove that the agent was actually an agent of the insurer, the company could not assert untimely disclaimer under § 3420. Escobar v Colonial Indem. Ins. Co., 22 A.D.3d 633, 804 N.Y.S.2d 360, 2005 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11094 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2005).

Trial court properly declared that an insurance company had no duty to defend or indemnify defendants in an underlying personal injury action, because the company demonstrated that a disclaimer was timely for purposes of N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(d), as the grounds upon which teh insurance company denied coverage for untimely notice of the occurrence were not readily apparent until the company learned of defendants' misstatements concerning their role in managing a construction site, and established that defendants breached an insurance policy's cooperation clause by misstating their role. Sirius Am. Ins. Co. v TGC Constr. Corp., 37 A.D.3d 818, 830 N.Y.S.2d 773, 2007 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2302 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2007).

Insurer was not made aware of the insolvency of the insurance company for the driver who was involved in an auto accident with its insured as the basis for the uninsured motorist benefits claim for its insured until its insured filed papers in opposition to the insurer's petition to stay arbitration. The insurer then submitted reply papers promptly thereafter, which unequivocally disclaimed coverage on the ground that the insured failed to provide timely notice under the insurance policy, thereby satisfying the insurer's statutory obligation to timely disclaim under N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(d). Matter of State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. v Tubis, 38 A.D.3d 670, 831 N.Y.S.2d 520, 2007 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3336 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2007).

Insurer timely disclaimed coverage under homeowner's liability policy where it was first informed of accident in letter from insured's attorney dated 3 months after accident, letter did not mention homeowner's policy but rather named only automobile and umbrella policies and made claim against insurer for "excess coverage," and insured first made claim under homeowner's policy when she served complaint on insurer, at which time insurer promptly disclaimed coverage. Brabender v Northern Assurance Co. of Am., 65 F.3d 269, 1995 U.S. App. LEXIS 25357 (2d Cir. N.Y. 1995).

Insurer's prompt investigation into injured party's claim was an adequate justification for the 50-day delay in giving notice of disclaimer, and such delay was reasonable as a matter of law. Mount Vernon Fire Ins. Co. v Harris, 193 F. Supp. 2d 674, 2002 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 5996 (E.D.N.Y. 2002).

As to a personal injury and wrongful death claim brought against insureds, which fell under N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(d), whether the insurer should be estopped from disclaiming coverage depended in the first instance on how long the insurer had known of the accident and at what point it should have been aware of the information it asserted in support of its disclaimer. U.S. Underwriters Ins. Co. v Landau, 679 F. Supp. 2d 330, 2010 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 3430 (E.D.N.Y. 2010).

As to a personal injury and wrongful death claim brought against insureds, which fell under N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(d), the timeliness of the insurer's "independent contractor" disclaimer was an open question; at the summary judgment stage, the court could not discern the earliest point at which the insurer reasonably should have learned of the integral role played by the independent contractor in the accident. U.S. Underwriters Ins. Co. v Landau, 679 F. Supp. 2d 330, 2010 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 3430 (E.D.N.Y. 2010).

Underlying incident fell within the assault and battery exclusion of the policy, but also fell within the policy's general coverage for claims of personal injury arising out of an accidental occurrence, so, under N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(d), disclaimer was necessary when denial of coverage was based on a policy exclusion without which the claim was covered, and failure to comply with § 3420(d) precluded denial of coverage based on a policy exclusion. The appeals court held that to the extent that its Crouse W. Holding Corp. v Sphere Drake Ins. Co. decision was read to hold that compliance with § 3420(d) was not required in these circumstances, it was no longer to be followed. Penn-America Group, Inc. v Zoobar, Inc., 305 A.D.2d 1116, 759 N.Y.S.2d 825, 2003 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4773 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't), app. denied, 100 N.Y.2d 511, 766 N.Y.S.2d 164, 798 N.E.2d 348, 2003 N.Y. LEXIS 2329 (N.Y. 2003).

Three deliberate collisions caused in furtherance of an insurance fraud scheme were not a covered accidents; the insurer was not required by N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(d) to issue a disclaimer because its denial of coverage was based on a lack of coverage for the incident in the first instance, not an exclusion under the policy. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. v Laguerre, 305 A.D.2d 490, 759 N.Y.S.2d 531, 2003 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5387 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2003).

Trial court properly declared that an insurance company was obligated to defend and indemnify plaintiffs in an underlying personal injury action, because the evidence supported the finding that the company did not make a timely disclaimer of coverage as required by N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(d). Schulman v Indian Harbor Ins. Co., 40 A.D.3d 957, 836 N.Y.S.2d 682, 2007 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6437 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2007).

137. —Particular circumstances

Summary judgment was error in an insurer's action seeking a declaration that it was not obligated to defend a dental malpractice case against its insured based on the insured's non-cooperation because, inter alia, a fact question remained as to the time required for the insurer to evaluate the insured's conduct for purposes of disclaimer under N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(d); because the insured had punctuated periods of non-compliance with sporadic cooperation or promises to cooperate, some reasonably longer period for analysis may have been warranted. In this case, the reasonableness of an approximately two-month delay to analyze the pattern of obstructive conduct that permeated the insurer's relationship with its insured for almost six years presented a fact question that precluded summary judgment. Continental Cas. Co. v Stradford, 11 N.Y.3d 443, 871 N.Y.S.2d 607, 900 N.E.2d 144, 2008 N.Y. LEXIS 3387 (N.Y. 2008).

Neither workers' compensation carrier nor general liability carrier were entitled to summary judgment in former's action for payment of latter's share of costs and expenses incurred in settlement of personal injury action against their insured where triable issues were raised as to (1) whether general liability carrier had received timely notice of underlying personal injury claim and third-party action against insured, inasmuch as general liability carrier was first notified of proceedings only 2 days before stipulation of settlement was entered on record, and (2) whether delay in giving such notice was reasonable. Lumbermens Mut. Ins. Co. of Kemper Group of Ins. Cos. v Lumber Mut. Ins. Co., 148 A.D.2d 328, 538 N.Y.S.2d 542, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2383 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1989).

Plaintiff was not entitled to summary judgment declaring that defendant insurer had duty to defend and indemnify codefendants with respect to causes of action alleged in complaint, despite delay of almost 2 months in disclaiming coverage, where insured had given late notice of claim to insurer, and insurer submitted proof that, even though policy excluded claim based on Dram Shop violation, it was necessary to investigate validity of plaintiff's negligence claim and evaluate codefendant's reason for giving late notice before determination to disclaim could be made; reasonableness of delay in disclaiming coverage presented factual question. Wilczak v Ruda & Capozzi, Inc., 203 A.D.2d 944, 611 N.Y.S.2d 73, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4955 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1994).

Liability insurer failed to disclaim liability or deny coverage as soon as reasonably possible, as required by CLS Ins § 3420(d), where it had sufficient facts to disclaim approximately 9 months before it gave required notice; such delay was unreasonable as matter of law. Allegany Co-op Ins. Co. v Williams, 216 A.D.2d 894, 628 N.Y.S.2d 900, 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7212 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1995), app. denied, 87 N.Y.2d 806, 641 N.Y.S.2d 597, 664 N.E.2d 508, 1996 N.Y. LEXIS 94 (N.Y. 1996).

It was error to grant insurer's motion for summary judgment declaring that it had no duty to defend or indemnify insureds in underlying action where fact issue existed as to whether insurer gave written notice of disclaimer to insureds within reasonable time after identity of injured party became known to insurer. Utica Fire Ins. Co. v Spagnolo, 221 A.D.2d 921, 634 N.Y.S.2d 296, 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13406 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1995).

In action by plaintiffs who were injured while operating equipment leased by defendant to their employer, wherein employer (equipment lessee) was impleaded by defendant and subsequently demanded defense and indemnification coverage as additional insured under defendant's comprehensive liability policy, timeliness of insurer's disclaimer of coverage was properly measured as of date when equipment lessee demanded coverage rather than date when insurer made its "business decision" to name lessee as additional insured, where insurer made its decision retroactive to date of equipment lease. Nuzzo v Griffin Tech., 222 A.D.2d 184, 643 N.Y.S.2d 802, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6777 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1996), app. denied, 91 N.Y.2d 802, 666 N.Y.S.2d 564, 669 N.E.2d 534, 1997 N.Y. LEXIS 4164 (N.Y. 1997).

Insured landlord's reasonable belief that it was not required to notify insurer when it learned that tenant had been shot in its apartment building did not become unreasonable 2 weeks after shooting when victim told landlord's superintendent that he was going to sue, because even if that threat would have triggered notice provision if it had been made directly to landlord, superintendent's knowledge of threat could not be imputed to landlord in absence of evidence that superintendent's agency included handling of such information. Nalea Realty Corp. v Public Serv. Mut. Ins. Co., 238 A.D.2d 252, 656 N.Y.S.2d 613, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4045 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't), app. dismissed, 90 N.Y.2d 927, 664 N.Y.S.2d 260, 686 N.E.2d 1355, 1997 N.Y. LEXIS 3101 (N.Y. 1997).

In action by owner of leased car against its excess liability insurer, owner's failure to give insurer requisite timely written notice of accident was not excused by its giving of oral "telephonic notice" to selling agent of insurance policy. First City Acceptance Corp. v Gulf Ins. Co., 245 A.D.2d 649, 665 N.Y.S.2d 114, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12534 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1997).

In insurer's action for declaration that it was not obligated to defend and indemnify insureds in underlying third-party action for indemnification and contribution, insureds were entitled to summary judgment declaring that insurer was obligated to defend and indemnify them where insureds did not receive notice of insurer's disclaimer of liability until 90 days after insurer received notice of claim, and insurer failed to advance any concrete justification for its delay beyond alleging generally that it required time to investigate claim. Mohawk Minden Ins. Co. v Ferry, 251 A.D.2d 846, 674 N.Y.S.2d 512, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7326 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1998).

Insurer's delay in issuing denial letter was not necessarily reasonable, and thus insurer was not entitled to partial summary judgment dismissing insured's claim for underinsured motorist benefits, where (1) insured's first demand for limits of underinsured coverage available under policy was contained in her letter to insurer dated February 6, 1998, (2) insurer denied that demand in letter dated March 5, 1998, (3) insured notified insurer of potential underinsured motorist claim in letter dated July 11, 1995, (4) insured's counsel and insurer corresponded between July 11, 1995, and March 5, 1998, and (5) affidavit of insurer's representative in support of its summary judgment motion did not discuss reasonableness of delay. Hess v Nationwide Mut. Ins. Co., 273 A.D.2d 689, 709 N.Y.S.2d 701, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7222 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2000).

Insurer's disclaimer based on a contractual liability exclusion as well as an employer's liability exclusion was untimely under N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(d) because the insurer began investigating the grounds for disclaiming coverage as early as five months before its disclaimer, and its insurance administrator received a letter requesting that it defend and indemnify another party in the underlying action three months before the disclaimer. Rael Automatic Sprinkler Co., Inc. v Schaefer Agency, 52 A.D.3d 670, 861 N.Y.S.2d 100, 2008 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5586 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2008).

Insurer was obligated to defend and indemnify its insureds in the main action because, by failing to provide written notice of disclaimer of coverage to the insureds as additional insured, the insurer failed to comply with N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(d)(2); the fact that the tendering carrier provided untimely notice did not excuse the insurer's unreasonable delay in disclaiming coverage. The primary insurance carrier was not the real party in interest, such that the notice of disclaimer to it would have been rendered effective as against the insureds. Sierra v 4401 Sunset Park, LLC, 101 A.D.3d 983, 957 N.Y.S.2d 219, 2012 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8646 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2012), aff'd, 24 N.Y.3d 514, 25 N.E.3d 921, 2 N.Y.S.3d 8, 2014 N.Y. LEXIS 3324 (N.Y. 2014).

Additional insured was entitled to summary judgment on a coverage dispute because the only basis for the insurer's denial of the additional insured's demand was the same employee exclusion the insurer invoked three months earlier when it denied the insurer's demand, and under the circumstances, the insurer's 48-day delay in responding to the additional insures's demand was unreasonable, and the insurer failed to provide notice of its disclaimer of coverage as soon as is reasonably possible. Bowers v Grier, 185 A.D.3d 998, 128 N.Y.S.3d 279, 2020 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4395 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2020).

Question as to whether insurer had duty to defend or indemnify insured because of insured's failure to provide it with timely notice of accident, which resulted in injury to 16-year-old operator of insured's all-terrain vehicle, required trial where insured's allegation that he believed he had no responsibility for accident and that he was unaware there would be any claim against him until he was served with process presented clear question of fact as to whether failure of timely notice could be excused as result of good-faith, reasonable belief in nonliability. Progressive Casualty Ins. Co. v Jackson, 151 Misc. 2d 479, 573 N.Y.S.2d 556, 1991 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 419 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1991), aff'd, 181 A.D.2d 1035, 585 N.Y.S.2d 716, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4635 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1992).

In a declaratory judgment action filed by an insurer, the lower court's denial of summary judgment filed by the insurer was reversed because the insurer acted reasonably in not providing a disclaimer letter until a few months after receiving notice of the accident because the insurer did not know that the livery disclaimer was potentially applicable to the claim until receiving a report from its investigator and it was not unreasonable for the insurer to consult with counsel before sending the disclaimer letters. N.Y. Cent. Mut. Fire Ins. Co. v Majid, 5 A.D.3d 447, 773 N.Y.S.2d 429, 2004 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2511 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2004).

An insurer who delays in giving written notice of disclaimer bears the burden of justifying the delay. While N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(d) speaks only of giving notice "as soon as is reasonably possible," investigation into issues affecting an insurer's decision whether to disclaim coverage obviously may excuse delay in notifying the policyholder of a disclaimer; however, investigation into possible other sources of insurance is not an acceptable reason for delayed disclaimer. First Fin. Ins. Co. v Jetco Contr. Corp., 1 N.Y.3d 64, 769 N.Y.S.2d 459, 801 N.E.2d 835, 2003 N.Y. LEXIS 3948 (N.Y. 2003).

Insurer did not violate N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420 by taking 34 days to give written notice as soon as reasonably possible of its disclaimer of its insured's claim, pursuant to the parties' insurance agreement, because the insurer's investigation of the matter at issue was warranted and not unreasonable as a matter of law, including the insurer's assessment that the claim was sufficiently complex and that consultation with outside counsel was necessary, thus resulting in the 34-day delay. 105 St. Assocs., LLC v Greenwich Ins. Co., 507 F. Supp. 2d 377, 2007 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 67835 (S.D.N.Y. 2007).

138. — —Delay of less than 3 months

When claim is asserted against insurer under former § 167 [now § 3420], the insurer, if it does not intend to honor claim, is duty bound to disclaim as soon as reasonably possible, and hence delay was unreasonable where insurer did not disclaim for two months after its receipt of copy of summons and complaint against its insured. Appell v Liberty Mut. Ins. Co., 22 A.D.2d 906, 255 N.Y.S.2d 545, 1964 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2459 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1964), app. dismissed, 15 N.Y.2d 955, 259 N.Y.S.2d 844, 207 N.E.2d 517, 1965 N.Y. LEXIS 1519 (N.Y. 1965), aff'd, 17 N.Y.2d 519, 267 N.Y.S.2d 516, 214 N.E.2d 792, 1966 N.Y. LEXIS 1616 (N.Y. 1966).

Notice of disclaimer of liability by insurer was made "as soon as . . . reasonably possible" under CLS Ins § 3420 where it was made approximately 2 months after insurer received notice of claim, but delay was explained by fact that insurer postponed interviewing one insured because she had just given birth, and it was not unreasonable as matter of law for insurer to complete its investigation before deciding to disclaim liability. Norfolk & Dedham Mut. Fire Ins. Co. v Petrizzi, 121 A.D.2d 276, 503 N.Y.S.2d 51, 1986 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 58253 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't), app. denied, 68 N.Y.2d 611, 510 N.Y.S.2d 1025, 502 N.E.2d 1007, 1986 N.Y. LEXIS 20868 (N.Y. 1986).

Liability insurer's disclaimer of coverage was not timely, and thus court properly rendered judgment declaring that insurer was obligated to defend and indemnify insured where letter from prospective plaintiff's attorney, explaining all facts needed as basis for disclaimer, was received by insurer on March 20 and letter of disclaimer was not sent by insurer until May 23; delay of more than 2 months was unreasonable as matter of law. Farmers Fire Ins. Co. v Brighton, 142 A.D.2d 547, 530 N.Y.S.2d 215, 1988 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7311 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1988).

Insurer's delay in disclaiming coverage under motor vehicle policy was unreasonable as matter of law, and thus it was obligated to defend insured in injured passenger's action, where insurer was notified of accident in September 1991, it denied passenger's claim for no-fault benefits in November 1991 on basis of nonpermissive use, and it did not formally disclaim coverage until February 1993. Greater N.Y. Mut. Ins. Co. v Clark, 205 A.D.2d 857, 613 N.Y.S.2d 295, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6073 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), app. denied, 84 N.Y.2d 807, 621 N.Y.S.2d 516, 645 N.E.2d 1216, 1994 N.Y. LEXIS 3475 (N.Y. 1994).

Motor vehicle insurer's disclaimer of coverage was untimely as matter of law where insurer had all facts necessary to invoke exclusion for nonpermissive use on date that court held that operator was not permissive user as matter of law, and disclaimer was not made until more than 2 months later. Gill v Gouchie, 210 A.D.2d 954, 620 N.Y.S.2d 679, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13434 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1994), app. denied, 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3998 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't Mar. 17, 1995), app. denied, 86 N.Y.2d 701, 631 N.Y.S.2d 605, 655 N.E.2d 702, 1995 N.Y. LEXIS 2709 (N.Y. 1995).

Disclaimer issued by insurer was not unreasonably delayed, even though slightly more than 2 months elapsed between insurer's receipt of insured's claim and issuance of disclaimer, where claim letter and accompanying document submitted to insurer by insured's attorney did not on their face immediately alert insurer to possible grounds for disclaimer, and during period in question, insurer engaged in reasonably prompt, thorough, and diligent investigation of claim, and repeatedly and unsuccessfully attempted to have insured made available to provide written statement as required by policy. In re Prudential Property & Casualty Ins. Co., 213 A.D.2d 408, 623 N.Y.S.2d 336, 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2414 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1995).

More than 2-month unexplained delay by insurer in giving insured notice of disclaimer of liability was unreasonable as matter of law. Allstate Ins. Co. v Souffrant, 221 A.D.2d 434, 633 N.Y.S.2d 575, 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11835 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1995).

Insurance company acted "as soon as...reasonably possible" in denying coverage where (1) one day after receiving notice of claim, it issued reservation of rights letter informing insured that it could not make decision about coverage until it completed its investigation, (2) in one week, its claims adjuster obtained statement from insured's principal, visited accident scene, and requested approval of disclaimer from division office, and (3) it disclaimed coverage one week later, only 3 weeks after receiving notice of accident. Can-Am Roofing v American States Ins. Co., 229 A.D.2d 973, 645 N.Y.S.2d 253, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9020 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1996).

New York City was entitled to summary judgment declaring that insurer was obligated to defend and indemnify it in underlying action, as insurer knew all that it needed to know to disclaim when it received its investigator's first report, and its subsequent 83-day delay in disclaiming coverage could not be reasonably explained by need to further investigate underlying facts in that it knew that city notified insurance broker on day incident happened, it knew or should have known that broker was not city's agent, and it could have telephoned broker rather than waiting for second investigator's report to ascertain why broker did not notify it sooner. Mount Vernon Fire Ins. Co. v City of New York, 236 A.D.2d 296, 653 N.Y.S.2d 582, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1411 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1997).

Insurer was obligated to defend and, if necessary, indemnify insured, because insurer's delay in disclaiming coverage was unreasonable, where insurer had necessary information by mid-August 1994 to disclaim coverage based on insured's failure to provide timely notice of incident, yet it did not do so until it commenced present declaratory judgment action on November 1, 1994, insurer's October 6, 1994, reservation of rights letter was not written notice of disclaimer in compliance with CLS Ins § 3420(d), and insurer failed to offer adequate explanation for its delay in disclaiming coverage. Pennsylvania Millers Mut. Ins. Co. v Sorrentino, 238 A.D.2d 491, 657 N.Y.S.2d 62, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4033 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1997).

Period of 31 days that it took insurer's attorneys to review 500-page file and conduct legal research before notifying insured of disclaimer was not unreasonable for purposes of CLS Ins § 3420(d). DeSantis Bros. v Allstate Ins. Co., 244 A.D.2d 183, 664 N.Y.S.2d 7, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11375 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1997), app. denied, 91 N.Y.2d 808, 669 N.Y.S.2d 261, 692 N.E.2d 130, 1998 N.Y. LEXIS 283 (N.Y. 1998).

Neither insurer nor insureds were entitled to summary judgment in action seeking declaration that insurer had properly disclaimed liability and had no duty to indemnify insureds for supplementary underinsured motorist coverage where fact issue existed as to reasonableness of delay in disclaiming coverage as measured from 3 potential dates offered by parties, be it 42 days, 32 days, or 25 days. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. v Clift, 249 A.D.2d 800, 671 N.Y.S.2d 843, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4517 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1998).

In applying "as soon as is reasonably possible" language of CLS Ins § 3420(d), Appellate Division would not adopt bright-line rule, advocated by insurer, that any delay of 30 days or less is reasonable as matter of law; thus, reasonableness of insurer's delay of about 30 days in denying coverage of supplementary uninsured motorist benefits under policy was question of fact. Crowningshield v Nationwide Mut. Ins. Co., 255 A.D.2d 813, 680 N.Y.S.2d 302, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12512 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1998).

Insurer was entitled to permanent stay of arbitration of claim for underinsured motorist benefits where insured commenced lawsuit against tortfeasor without "immediately" forwarding copy of summons and complaint to insurer as required by supplementary uninsured motorists endorsement contained in policy; insurer did not waive its right to disclaim coverage by waiting 3 years after insured's commencement of lawsuit, where insured did not forward copy of summons and complaint to insurer until 2 ½ years after commencing lawsuit, and insurer gave insured written notice of disclaimer within 20 days of confirming his failure to timely forward copy of summons and complaint. Nationwide Ins. Co. v Lukas, 264 A.D.2d 778, 695 N.Y.S.2d 132, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9256 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1999).

Underlying plaintiff's insurer was entitled to permanent stay of arbitration of uninsured motorist claim where 41-day delay of underlying defendant's insurer in disclaiming coverage for its insured's vehicle was unreasonable, and thus insurance coverage for that vehicle still existed. Colonial Penn Ins. Co. v Pevzner, 266 A.D.2d 391, 698 N.Y.S.2d 310, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11547 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1999).

Insurer's disclaimer of coverage, made about 45 days after receiving notice of claim, satisfied requirements of CLS Ins § 3420(d) and was timely has matter of law. Sphere Drake Ins. Co., PLC v Block 7206 Corp., 265 A.D.2d 78, 705 N.Y.S.2d 623, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3259 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2000).

Delay of about 3 weeks in disclaiming coverage following completion of insurer's investigation was reasonable, and thus insurer was properly granted summary judgment declaring that it was not obligated to defend or indemnify driver of insurer's vehicle. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. v Daniels, 269 A.D.2d 860, 703 N.Y.S.2d 796, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1822 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 2000).

Insurer's disclaimer issued 2 months after receipt of notice of claim was not untimely where notice of disclaimer was issued one week after receipt of insurance investigator's final report following prompt, diligent, and good faith investigation of claim. 2540 Assocs. v Assicurazioni Generali, S.P.A., 271 A.D.2d 282, 707 N.Y.S.2d 59, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4090 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2000).

Reasonableness of insurer's delay of 52 days in disclaiming coverage was fact issue for trial; thus, court improperly granted insurer's summary judgment motion dismissing action to recover under insurance policy. Osterreicher v Home Mut. Ins. Co., 272 A.D.2d 926, 707 N.Y.S.2d 742, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5362 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 2000).

Liability insurer's disclaimer of coverage was timely where it was made within 2 weeks after insured admitted that he had misrepresented facts in his original report of incident. Nationwide Mut. Ins. Co. v Graham, 275 A.D.2d 1012, 713 N.Y.S.2d 602, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9608 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 2000).

Plaintiff was entitled to summary judgment declaring that defendant was obligated to indemnify plaintiff's insureds in underlying action where defendant's unexplained 42-day delay in disclaiming coverage was unreasonable as matter of law under CLS Ins § 3420(d), and although additional evidence submitted by defendant on later motion to reargue tended to explain part of delay, that evidence should have been submitted earlier and thus could not be relied on. Faas v N.Y. Cent. Mut. Fire Ins. Co., 281 A.D.2d 586, 722 N.Y.S.2d 173, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3079 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2001).

Insurer's 34-day delay in disclaiming coverage was unreasonable; thus, it was improper to grant insurer's motion to stay arbitration of claim for supplemental uninsured motorist benefits. Brandon v Nationwide Mut. Ins. Co., 284 A.D.2d 886, 727 N.Y.S.2d 727, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6855 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2001), aff'd, 97 N.Y.2d 491, 743 N.Y.S.2d 53, 769 N.E.2d 810, 2002 N.Y. LEXIS 977 (N.Y. 2002).

Insurer was obligated to defend and indemnify the insured in two underlying actions because the insurer failed to raise a triable issue of fact as to the timeliness of its disclaimer; the insurer had information to support a disclaimer two months earlier and its failure move earlier, without explanation, was not "as soon as possible" within the contemplation of N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(d). Continental Cas. Co. v Stradford, 46 A.D.3d 598, 847 N.Y.S.2d 631, 2007 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12577 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2007), aff'd in part, modified, 11 N.Y.3d 443, 871 N.Y.S.2d 607, 900 N.E.2d 144, 2008 N.Y. LEXIS 3387 (N.Y. 2008).

Under N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(d), a general liability insurer was not entitled to summary judgment on the issue of coverage, as a fact issue existed as to whether it should have been readily apparent to the insurer, from a bare reading of the complaint against its insured, that grounds for disclaimer of coverage existed, and it did not show as a matter of law that taking 56 days to issue a disclaimer was reasonable. Those Certain Underwriters at Lloyds, London v Gray, 49 A.D.3d 1, 856 N.Y.S.2d 1, 2007 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11743 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2007).

Because there was no explanation for an insurer's 34-day delay in disclaiming coverage, pursuant to N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(d), the delay was unreasonable as a matter of law; therefore, the underlying plaintiff was entitled to summary judgment, and the insurer was obligated to defend and indemnify a contractor in the underlying action. Sirius Am. Ins. Co. v Vigo Constr. Corp., 48 A.D.3d 450, 852 N.Y.S.2d 176, 2008 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1063 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2008).

Assignor's insurer's claim that a landlord failed to give notice of the claim as soon as reasonably practicable, as required by the policy, was rejected because the assignee's insurer demonstrated, prima facie, that assignor's insurer's 49-day delay in issuing a notice of disclaimer to the landlord was unreasonable as a matter of law, and that, consequently, it was precluded from disclaiming coverage based on the alleged lateness of the notice of claim; in opposition, the assignor's insurer failed to raise a triable issue of fact as to whether the delay was reasonably related to the completion of a necessary, thorough, and diligent investigation, or whether there was any other satisfactory explanation for the delay. 4815 Dev. Corp. v Harleysville Ins. Co. of N.Y., 103 A.D.3d 832, 962 N.Y.S.2d 258, 2013 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1175 (N.Y. App.

Div. 2d Dep't), app. denied, 21 N.Y.3d 859, 971 N.Y.S.2d 80, 993 N.E.2d 758, 2013 N.Y. LEXIS 1692 (N.Y. 2013).

Insurance company's 57-day delay in disclaiming coverage was unreasonable as a matter of law, and the appellate court affirmed the trial court's judgment that the insurance company was liable to defend and indemnify its insured in an underlying personal injury action where the plaintiff obtained a judgment against the insured because the insured did not answer the summons and complaint. Uptown Whole Foods, Inc. v Liberty Mut. Fire Ins. Co., 302 A.D.2d 592, 756 N.Y.S.2d 251, 2003 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1873 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2003).

Insurer was not entitled to summary judgment on an injured employee's action for a declaration that the insurer was obligated to defend and indemnify the employee's employer in a personal injury action as the insurer's disclaimer letter was sent 38 days after receipt of notice, creating an issue of fact whether that delay was reasonable. Potter v N. Country Ins. Co., 8 A.D.3d 1002, 778 N.Y.S.2d 805, 2004 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8154 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 2004).

Declaratory judgment to the effect that the insurer did not have a duty to defend or indemnify the insured in an underlying personal injury suit was proper because the insurer did not receive timely notice, and the insurer's two-week delay in giving notice of disclaimer was reasonable, within the meaning of N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(d), and thus, the insurer's disclaimer was timely, vitiating coverage under the subject policy. Lancer Ins. Co. v T.F.D. Bus Co., Inc., 18 A.D.3d 445, 795 N.Y.S.2d 70, 2005 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4777 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't), app. denied, 2005 N.Y. LEXIS 2480 (N.Y. Sept. 15, 2005), app. denied, 5 N.Y.3d 709, 803 N.Y.S.2d 30, 836 N.E.2d 1153, 2005 N.Y. LEXIS 2491 (N.Y. 2005), app. denied, 2005 N.Y. LEXIS 2531 (N.Y. Sept. 15, 2005).

Because only an investigation of the type ordered by an insurer would yield answers to questions that it needed in order to make a good faith decision regarding disclaimer under N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(d), and because the 30-day delay was due to the insured's refusal to cooperate in the investigation, the insured and the insurance broker were not entitled to summary judgment. Ace Packing Co., Inc. v Campbell Solberg Assoc., Inc., 41 A.D.3d 12, 835 N.Y.S.2d 32, 2007 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4370 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2007).

Because an insurer's 43-day delay in disclaiming coverage was unreasonable as a matter of law under N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(d), the trial court properly denied the insurer's motion for summary judgment and declared that it was obligated to defendant and indemnify the insureds in an underlying action. Delphi Restoration Corp. v Sunshine Restoration Corp., 43 A.D.3d 851, 841 N.Y.S.2d 684, 2007 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9593 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't), app. dismissed, 9 N.Y.3d 1002, 849 N.Y.S.2d 29, 879 N.E.2d 170, 2007 N.Y. LEXIS 3789 (N.Y. 2007).

Forty-two days an excess insurer took before disclaiming liability on an insured's claim was not unreasonable for purposes of N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(d) where the letter the excess insurer believed was its first notice of the claim presented circumstances that warranted further investigation of whether the notice was late and that investigation was pursued diligently. Tully Constr. Co., Inc. v TIG Ins. Co., 43 A.D.3d 1150, 842 N.Y.S.2d 528, 2007 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9986 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2007).

Insurer's delay of 48 days in notifying its policyholder that it would deny coverage was unreasonable as a matter of law under N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(d) because the delay was unexcused where the purpose was to investigate other possible sources of insurance. First Fin. Ins. Co. v Jetco Contr. Corp., 1 N.Y.3d 64, 769 N.Y.S.2d 459, 801 N.E.2d 835, 2003 N.Y. LEXIS 3948 (N.Y. 2003).

Insurer's extensive delays in issuing disclaimers were unreasonable as a matter of law because the basis of the disclaimers was apparent from the face of the notice of claim and accompanying correspondence and the insurer issued separate disclaimers to the insured 79 days and 85 days after it received the notice of claim. Black Bull Contr., LLC v Indian Harbor Ins. Co., 135 A.D.3d 401, 23 N.Y.S.3d 59, 2016 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2016).

Insurer was not entitled to a declaratory judgment in its favor where (1) the fact that the insured's notice of the occurrence for which coverage was sought was untimely was readily apparent to the insurer on the day on which the insured's principal told the insurer's agent that the principal had been aware of the accident more than four months prior to notifying the insurer, and (2) the insurer's 47 day delay in notifying the insured of its disclaimer of coverage, without an explanation of why such a delay was necessary, was unreasonable under N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(d). First Fin. Ins. Co. v City Wide Window Cleaning Co., 253 F. Supp. 2d 717, 2003 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 4665 (S.D.N.Y. 2003).

Although the insured party may have failed to provide timely notice of the occurrence, the insurer's delay of more than 60 days in disclaiming coverage was unreasonable as a matter of law under N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(d); the grounds for a disclaimer were readily apparent before the onset of the delay from the documents submitted to the insurer. Milbank Hous. Dev. Fund v Royal Indem. Co., 17 A.D.3d 280, 794 N.Y.S.2d 23, 2005 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4461 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2005).

Defendant, the subcontractor's insurer, did not waive applicability of the employer's liability exclusion, under the commercial general liability policy, because defendant's delay of thirty-one days to disclaim coverage was reasonable given the undisputed evidence that defendant conducted an immediate investigation and in light of the fact that New York courts had consistently held that an insurer must have been given reasonable time to adequately investigate a claim in order to determine whether it wished to disclaim coverage. Neth. Ins. Co. v United Specialty Ins. Co., 276 F. Supp. 3d 94, 2017 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 140403 (S.D.N.Y. 2017).

139. — —Delay of 3 months but less than 6 months

Notice of disclaimer which is not sent until more than 3 months after receipt of oral notice of accident upon which claim is based is unreasonably delayed and therefore ineffective where insurer not only acknowledges receipt of oral notice but also acknowledges that upon receipt thereof it acted to set up file on matter and investigated claim just as it would have done had notice been in written form. Aetna Casualty & Surety Co. v Rodriguez, 115 A.D.2d 418, 496 N.Y.S.2d 956, 1985 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 54805 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1985).

Summary judgment declaring that insurance company was obligated to defend insurance broker under broker's error and omissions policy would be affirmed since unexplained delay in providing notice of disclaimer of coverage, which was made over 4 months after claim was submitted, was unreasonable as matter of law under CLS Ins § 3420(d). Kleneic v White Lake Marine Corp., 144 A.D.2d 341, 533 N.Y.S.2d 909, 1988 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11195 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1988).

Disclaimer of coverage by excess liability insurance carrier with respect to insured's operation of nonowned motor vehicle was insufficient as it was not given "as soon as is reasonably possible" within meaning of CLS Ins § 3420(d) since there was unexplained and inexcusable delay of almost 4 months which was unreasonable as matter of law, regardless of whether insured had suffered prejudice by delay. Cassara v Nationwide Mut. Ins. Co., 144 A.D.2d 974, 534 N.Y.S.2d 277, 1988 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 14471 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1988).

Insurer would be required to defend insured in negligence action pending resolution of factual issues as to reasonableness of insurer's delay in giving notice of disclaimer where notice of disclaimer was given 5 months after assumption of defense of negligence action by insurer, and insurer claimed that it did not have facts which led to notice of disclaimer until several days before notice was sent. Commercial Union Ins. Cos. v Jedamich Enterprises, Inc., 146 A.D.2d 599, 536 N.Y.S.2d 523, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 447 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1989).

Insurance company failed to comply with CLS Ins § 3420(d) and was, therefore, required to defend and indemnify insured, where it received all necessary information on June 7 and failed to issue disclaimer until October 23, notwithstanding that insured had already recognized that its policy excluded causes of action set forth by injured party. Associated Mut. Ins. Co. v Samicaban, Inc., 178 A.D.2d 883, 577 N.Y.S.2d 737, 1991 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 16828 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1991).

It was error to conclude, as matter of law, that insurer's delay in denying claim for no-fault benefits was reasonable where (1) insured was involved in accident on January 27 and applied for benefits, (2) insurance company sent forms to health providers listed by insured on February 28, (3) insurance company received bills from hospital on April 10 and contacted hospital to request records, (4) insurance company received records on April 24, (5) insurance company requested toxicology report on May 9 and received report on June 2, (6) insurance company sent records to independent medical reviewing agency and received report back from it on July 6, and (7) on July 6, insurance company denied claim on basis that insured was intoxicated. Mirza v Allstate Ins. Co., 185 A.D.2d 303, 586 N.Y.S.2d 281, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9067 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1992).

Insurance company failed to timely notify insured of its disclaimer as required by CLS Ins § 3420(d) where company issued reservation of rights letter to insured on February 20 but gave no notice of disclaimer until it filed action on July 30 for declaratory judgment on disclaimer; neither short delay in interviewing insured nor conflicting indications as to whether insured's employee would pursue claim under CLS Labor § 240 justified delay. Nova Casualty Co. v Charbonneau Roofing, Inc., 185 A.D.2d 490, 585 N.Y.S.2d 876, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8977 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1992).

In action by pedestrian injured when struck by automobile driven by defendant's insured, even if pedestrian's insurer failed to give defendant insurer timely notice of accident pursuant to CLS Ins Art 51, defendant's 5-month delay in disclaiming coverage on ground of untimely notice was unreasonable as matter of law. Allstate Ins. Co. v Centennial Ins. Co., 187 A.D.2d 690, 590 N.Y.S.2d 272, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13413 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1992).

Even if insurer's June 1989 motion to stay arbitration of its insured's underinsured motorist claim served as notice of disclaimer predicated on insured's alleged settlement with tortfeasor without its consent, insurer's delay in disclaiming coverage was unreasonable as matter of law where record showed that it was aware of grounds for disclaimer in February 1989 and failed to provide excuse for its delay. Bernstein v Allstate Ins. Co., 199 A.D.2d 358, 605 N.Y.S.2d 354, 1993 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12137 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1993).

It was error to grant insurer's petition for stay of arbitration of uninsured motorist claim based on proof that insured had violated policy exclusion relating to injuries sustained while operating vehicle in violation of order of suspension or revocation, since insurer forfeited its right to disclaim coverage where it waited more than 4 months before issuing its disclaimer, and it failed to explain delay. Eagle Ins. Co. v Perez, 209 A.D.2d 695, 619 N.Y.S.2d 162, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11671 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1994).

Insurer would be required to defend and indemnify its insured under commercial general liability policy in underlying wrongful death action, even though claim at issue was second suit brought by same complainant, and insurer disclaimed coverage with regard to first suit due to policy exclusion, where complainant commenced second suit premised on different theories of negligence, insurer did not immediately deny coverage and assigned attorney to prepare and serve answer, and insurer did not disclaim coverage with regard to second suit until 5 months after it was commenced. Dependible Janitorial Servs. v Transcontinental Ins. Co., 212 A.D.2d 946, 622 N.Y.S.2d 632, 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2127 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), app. denied, 85 N.Y.2d 811, 631 N.Y.S.2d 287, 655 N.E.2d 400, 1995 N.Y. LEXIS 2100 (N.Y. 1995).

Insurer was entitled to summary judgment where insured gave no reasonable explanation for its failure to notify insurer until 5 months after slip-and-fall accident. Lukralle v Durso Supermarkets, 238 A.D.2d 318, 656 N.Y.S.2d 292, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3425 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1997).

Liability insurer's delay of almost 6 months in disclaiming coverage was unreasonable as matter of law. United States Fid. & Guar. Co. v Weiri, 265 A.D.2d 321, 696 N.Y.S.2d 200, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9642 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1999).

Insurer's 4-month delay in disclaiming coverage based on "pollution exclusion" contained in 2 commercial liability policies covering insured's municipal incinerator operations that had been delivered to insurer's parent corporation in Texas rendered disclaimer untimely as matter of law. American Ref-Fuel Co. v Employers Ins. Co., 265 A.D.2d 49, 705 N.Y.S.2d 67, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3253 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2000).

Insurer's delay in disclaiming coverage was unreasonable, even though insured failed to provide insurer with timely notice of claim in first instance, where no explanation was offered by insurer to justify its 4-month delay, and primary reason for disclaiming coverage was readily apparent on receipt of notice of claim. Wasserheit v New York Cent. Mut. Fire Ins. Co., 271 A.D.2d 439, 705 N.Y.S.2d 638, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3751 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2000).

In action by plaintiff who was injured on stairs at insureds' premises and thereafter sued defendant insurers to recover unsatisfied judgment against insureds, court properly granted summary judgment to plaintiff based on defendants' failure to disclaim coverage as soon as reasonably possible, where defendants initially notified plaintiff's attorney that they were denying coverage because their investigation revealed that stairs were free of defects, but after plaintiff obtained default judgment against insureds, they disclaimed coverage based on insureds' breach of policy condition requiring insureds to forward all papers and process, and they did not serve written notice of disclaimer of coverage until more than 4 months after copy of judgment with notice of entry was served on them. Oster v Aetna Cas. & Sur. Co., 283 A.D.2d 409, 724 N.Y.S.2d 198, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4694 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2001).

Insurer's 3 ½ -month delay in disclaiming coverage was unreasonable as matter of law where ground for disclaimer, city's failure to provide timely notice of its claim, was plain from face of pleadings sent with city's demand letter; further, having covered same claim on behalf of city's co-insured, insurer was equitably estopped from denying coverage to city. City of New York v Investors Ins. Co. of Am., 287 A.D.2d 394, 731 N.Y.S.2d 623, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9897 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2001).

Denial of an insurer's motion for summary judgment in a city's case seeking coverage was proper because the insurer's assertion of a late notice defense, made 92 days after receiving the city's summons and complaint, was not timely as a matter of law, and N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(d) protected an insured from an insurer's unreasonable delays in disclaiming coverage even where the underlying claim had been satisfied. City of New York v Welsbach Elec. Corp., 49 A.D.3d 322, 852 N.Y.S.2d 134, 2008 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1988 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2008).

Although N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(d) was applicable to an agent's tender of notice behalf of an insured, triable issues of fact existed as to the timeliness of the primary insurer's disclaimer—113 days after the notice—and as to whether the primary insurer acted reasonably in seeking to investigate further. Admiral Ins. Co. v State Farm Fire & Cas. Co., 86 A.D.3d 486, 927 N.Y.S.2d 629, 2011 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5952 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2011).

Excess insurer had no right to delay disclaiming coverage on grounds of late notice for four months while it investigated whether there were other grounds for disclaimer, because former N.Y. Insur. Law § 3420(d) (current version at § 3420(d)(2)) required it to provide the insureds written notice of the disclaimer as soon as reasonably possible. DiGuglielmo v. Travelers Prop. Cas., 6 A.D.3d 344 (2004), which held that under § 3420(d), an insurer was not required to disclaim on timeliness grounds before conducting an investigation into other possible grounds for disclaimer, was overruled. George Campbell Painting v National Union Fire Ins. Co. of Pittsburgh, PA, 92 A.D.3d 104, 937 N.Y.S.2d 164, 2012 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 249 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2012).

Disclaimer by insurance company of uninsured motorist benefits dated April 6, 1988 in response to claimant's notice for uninsured motorist benefits dated December 15, 1987 was untimely and void as matter of law in light of failure of insurance company to offer any explanation for approximate 4-month delay in issuance of disclaimer. Eagle Ins. Co. v Ruiz, 141 Misc. 2d 815, 535 N.Y.S.2d 294, 1988 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 705 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1988).

Trial court erred in denying summary judgment pursuant to N.Y. C.P.L.R. 3212 to a judgment in holder in an action against an insurer to collect on a judgment against an insured pursuant to N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(a)(2), as the insurer's delay of more than three months in disclaiming coverage was unreasonable. Varella v Am. Transit Ins. Co., 306 A.D.2d 464, 762 N.Y.S.2d 253, 2003 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7352 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2003).

When an excess insurer, who received notice of an accident for which coverage was sought over two years after the accident, did not provide formal notice of its disclaimer of liability for almost four months after it had information making the basis for its disclaimer of liability apparent, the delay in issuing the disclaimer was unreasonable as a matter of law, and the insurer was obligated to indemnify its insured. Mann v Gulf Ins. Co., 3 A.D.3d 554, 771 N.Y.S.2d 176, 2004 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 694 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2004).

Because a construction manager, as an additional insured under a subcontractor's insurance policy, was entitled to a defense when a subcontractor's employee was injured during the course of the subcontractor's work, pursuant to N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(d)(2), the insurer's four-month delay in disclaiming coverage was unreasonable as a matter of law. Hunter Roberts Constr. Group, LLC v Arch Ins. Co., 75 A.D.3d 404, 904 N.Y.S.2d 52, 2010 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5712 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2010).

District court properly granted summary judgment under Fed. R. Civ. P. 56 in favor of an insured in an insurance company's action under 28 U.S.C.S. § 2201 seeking a declaration that it had no duty to defend or indemnify the insured in an underlying personal injury action filed by a construction worker employee who was injured when scaffolding collapsed; the insurance company's disclaimer of coverage pursuant to an Employee Exclusion clause was untimely as a matter of law under N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(d) because the disclaimer was made four months after the insurance company knew all of the necessary facts to disclaim coverage. U.S. Underwriters Ins. Co. v City Club Hotel, LLC, 369 F.3d 102, 2004 U.S. App. LEXIS 8078 (2d Cir. N.Y. 2004).

Indemnity company's denial of coverage to the insured's employee was due to his use of the van without permission, and based on a policy exclusion, and because the permissive use requirement operated as a policy exclusion, a disclaimer was necessary pursuant to N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(d)(2). Despite receiving the automobile insurer's disclaimer letter, the indemnity company did not serve a disclaimer letter until 85 days after it became aware of the grounds for disclaimer, which was unreasonable as a matter of law; therefore, because the indemnity company failed to comply with N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(d)(2), it was precluded from now disclaiming coverage based on non-permissive use. Britt v General Star Indem. Co., 775 F. Supp. 2d 454, 2011 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 36178 (N.D.N.Y. 2011), rev'd, 494 Fed. Appx. 151, 2012 U.S. App. LEXIS 18389 (2d Cir. N.Y. 2012).

140. — —Delay of 6 months but less than one year

Delay by automobile insurer in making its disclaimer nearly 7 months after a letter of reservation of its rights, was unreasonable. Allstate Ins. Co. v Gross, 27 N.Y.2d 263, 317 N.Y.S.2d 309, 265 N.E.2d 736, 1970 N.Y. LEXIS 966 (N.Y. 1970).

Automobile liability insurer was obligated to defend and indemnify insured, despite fact that car involved in accident was not covered by policy, where policy covered insured as "covered person" regardless of what vehicle was used, subject to further provision excluding from coverage any vehicle other than insured's first covered vehicle, insured gave prompt notice of accident to insurer, and insurer failed to serve effective disclaimer for 7 months after accident; neither insurer's letter reserving rights to deny coverage nor insurer's commencement of declaratory judgment action against insured constituted effective disclaimer of coverage under statute. Progressive Casualty Ins. Co. v Conklin, 123 A.D.2d 6, 510 N.Y.S.2d 246, 1986 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 60650 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1986).

Insurer was obligated to defend and indemnify insureds in underlying personal injury action, despite insureds' breach of policy requirement that notice of accident be given "as soon as practicable," since (1) insurer delayed in informing insureds of its intent to disclaim coverage for period of over 6 ½ months, (2) grounds for disclaimer—untimeliness of notice and its lack of specificity—were readily apparent to insurer on its receipt of notice, and (3) insurer provided no explanation for its delay in light of reasons proffered in support of disclaimer. New York Cent. Mut. Fire Ins. Co. v Markowitz, 147 A.D.2d 461, 537 N.Y.S.2d 571, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1474 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1989).

Insurance company was estopped from disclaiming liability under motor vehicle insurance policy on basis of insured's settlement, without its consent, with driver of automobile in which insured was passenger where (1) insurance company sent letter to insured on November 27 in which it reserved right to make such disclaimer, and (2) insurance company issued disclaimer by letter dated May 18 of following year; delay was unreasonable as matter of law. Blee v State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co., 168 A.D.2d 615, 563 N.Y.S.2d 455, 1990 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 15991 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1990).

Insurer's 8-month delay in disclaiming coverage was unreasonable as matter of law in light of evidence that it did not investigate claim between time it received notice in April 1986 and time of disclaimer in December 1986, and in light of its July 1986 letter to another insurer discussing its willingness to discuss sharing of defense costs. Incorporated Village of Pleasantville v Calvert Ins. Co., 204 A.D.2d 689, 612 N.Y.S.2d 441, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5779 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1994).

Excess insurance carriers failed to provide timely disclaimer coverage as required by CLS Ins § 3420(d) by issuing disclaimer notice 8 months after receiving actual notice of claim without justifiable reason for delay. Grow-Kiewit-MK-Maclean Grove v Lexington Ins. Co., 232 A.D.2d 329, 649 N.Y.S.2d 18, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11202 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1996).

Insurers were obligated to defend and indemnify insured in underlying personal injury action, even though they may have had valid grounds for disclaimer, either on basis that insured's son's operation of vehicle was in connection with business or on basis that vehicle which he was operating had been furnished to him for his regular use, since there was no explanation for insurers' failure to assert those grounds for disclaimer until some 6 months after their learning of facts of underlying accident, and bodily injury liability coverage afforded to insured extended to liability potentially incurred by his son. Nigro v General Accident Ins. Co., 239 A.D.2d 474, 658 N.Y.S.2d 963, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5367 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1997).

Insurer's 10-month delay in providing notice of disclaimer to its insured was untimely as matter of law. Taradena v Nationwide Mut. Ins. Co., 239 A.D.2d 876, 659 N.Y.S.2d 646, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6234 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1997).

Insurer was entitled to summary judgment declaring that it was not obligated to defend and indemnify insureds in underlying personal injury action where insureds' 15-month delay in notifying insurer of accident was not excused by their allegedly good-faith, albeit mistaken, beliefs that (1) loss was not covered by insurance policy, (2) notification of their insurance agent was notification of insurer, and (3) their attorney had communicated with attorney for injured party. Travelers Indem. Co. v Worthy, 281 A.D.2d 411, 721 N.Y.S.2d 400, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2073 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2001).

Automobile insurer's 10-month delay in disclaiming underinsured motorist benefits, based on insured's alleged failure to timely notify insurer of circumstances of accident, was unreasonable as matter of law and waived insurer's right to assert such ground as justification for permanent stay of arbitration. Westchester Fire Ins. Co. v Imperiale, 157 Misc. 2d 721, 598 N.Y.S.2d 685, 1993 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 188 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1993).

When an insured sought its insurer's coverage of the insured's defense costs in an underlying personal injury action, the insurer's nine-month delay in giving the insured notice of its disclaimer of coverage, based on the insured's late notice of its claim, was unreasonable as a matter of law, under N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(d), because the reason for the disclaimer was apparent once the insurer received the claim, and the insurer offered no explanation for the delay in its notice, so the insured was entitled to summary judgment requiring the insurer to reimburse it for its defense costs. 79th Realty Co. v Wausau Ins. Cos., 7 A.D.3d 507, 776 N.Y.S.2d 96, 2004 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6495 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2004).

General liability (GL) insurers' disclaimer that was made 11 months after the getting the city's claim was untimely since it was not made within 4 months as required by N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(d). A timely disclaimer was required since the occurrence was covered but the GL insurers relied on an the automobile exclusion to disclaim coverage. City of New York v St. Paul Fire & Mar. Ins. Co., 21 A.D.3d 978, 801 N.Y.S.2d 362, 2005 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9191 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2005).

At the very most, the general contractor's claim was that since it tendered its defense to the insurer on August 16, 1999, the approximate eight months it took the insurer to formally disclaim should be unreasonable as a matter of law. However, its claim of an unreasonable eight month delay was defeated by the insurer's defense that insurers must be given "adequate and reasonable" time to investigate the accident and grounds for disclaimer, and moreover, such efforts to investigate were barred by the contractor's failure to cooperate. Palanquet v Weeks Marine, Inc., 333 F. Supp. 2d 58, 2004 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 17764 (E.D.N.Y. 2004), vacated, in part, 352 F. Supp. 2d 361, 2005 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 996 (E.D.N.Y. 2005).

141. — —Delay of more than one year

Insurance carrier waived policy exclusion for family members driving automobiles not owned by policyholder and thus was not entitled to permanent stay of arbitration of underinsured motorist claim asserted by policyholder's son, who was injured in collision with underinsured vehicle while driving his own car, where it waited more than one year to deny coverage, meanwhile subjecting policyholder's son to discovery demands and consenting to settlement of his action against driver of other car. Worcester Ins. Co. v Bettenhauser, 95 N.Y.2d 185, 712 N.Y.S.2d 433, 734 N.E.2d 745, 2000 N.Y. LEXIS 1375 (N.Y. 2000).

Insurance company was barred from disclaiming underinsured motorist coverage on basis of insured's failure to make timely claim where (1) insured was injured in motor vehicle accident in October 1988, (2) insured was first informed of limit of policy which covered offending vehicle in February 1990, (3) insured first notified insurance company in July 1991 of her intent to pursue underinsured motorist benefits and made formal notice of claim for benefits in August 1991, (4) in September 1991, insured responded to request by insurance company for explanation of delay in making claim, and (5) in December 1991, insured demanded arbitration, and insurance company commenced instant proceeding to stay arbitration in January 1992; insurance company never disclaimed coverage except inferentially by commencement of proceeding for stay, and such delay was unreasonable as matter of law. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. v Merrill, 192 A.D.2d 824, 596 N.Y.S.2d 554, 1993 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3726 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1993).

Insured was entitled to summary judgment declaring that insurer failed to timely disclaim underinsurance coverage where (1) accident occurred in November 1985, but insured did not realize that she had underinsurance coverage until 1988, and thus she did not file underinsurance claim until almost 3 years after accident and some time after offending driver had settled claim for limits of his policy, and (2) insurer's records indicated that it became aware of settlement in March 1987, and that it decided, within few days of receiving insured's claim in 1988, to disclaim coverage (on ground that notice of claim was untimely) based on information which it had been in possession of since March 1987. Ward v Corbally, Gartland & Rappleyea, 207 A.D.2d 342, 615 N.Y.S.2d 430, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8104 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't), app. denied, 84 N.Y.2d 812, 622 N.Y.S.2d 914, 647 N.E.2d 120, 1994 N.Y. LEXIS 4560 (N.Y. 1994).

Insurer's unexplained delay of more than 2 years in denying coverage was unreasonable as matter of law. Nationwide Ins. Co. v Freehill, 224 A.D.2d 532, 637 N.Y.S.2d 800, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1159 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1996).

Insurer was estopped from disclaiming liability on contractual indemnification claim where its failure to openly adopt "no coverage" position until middle of settlement negotiations, 3 years after agreeing to defend, was unreasonable. Zurich Ins. Co. v Lumbermen's Cas. Co., 233 A.D.2d 186, 649 N.Y.S.2d 660, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11691 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1996).

Insurer was required to defend and indemnify its insureds in underlying action since insurer never provided insureds with notice of disclaimer specifying ground on which disclaimer was predicated, and even if commencement of instant declaratory judgment action were sufficient notice of disclaimer, such delayed disclaimer was unreasonable as matter of law, as action was not brought for more than 2 years after commencement of underlying action and nearly 15 months after insurer's letter of reservation. Aetna Life & Cas. Co. v 57th St. Mgmt. Corp., 235 A.D.2d 379, 652 N.Y.S.2d 73, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 193 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't), app. denied, 90 N.Y.2d 803, 661 N.Y.S.2d 179, 683 N.E.2d 1053, 1997 N.Y. LEXIS 2228 (N.Y. 1997).

Insurer that assumed defense of personal injury action against insured for 4 years, without reserving right to disclaim coverage, was equitably estopped from denying coverage and thus not entitled to summary judgment in action seeking declaration that it did not have duty to defend or indemnify insured. American Transit Ins. Co. v Mendon Leasing Corp., 241 A.D.2d 436, 660 N.Y.S.2d 725, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8148 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1997).

More than 2-year delay in disclaiming coverage was unreasonable matter of law. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. v Grund, 243 A.D.2d 557, 662 N.Y.S.2d 845, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9799 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1997).

Insurer's unexplained delay of approximately one year before mentioning new grounds for disclaimer was unreasonable as matter of law, irrespective of whether insureds were prejudiced. Agoado Realty Corp. v United Int'l Ins. Co., 260 A.D.2d 112, 699 N.Y.S.2d 335, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12358 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1999), modified, 95 N.Y.2d 141, 711 N.Y.S.2d 141, 733 N.E.2d 213, 2000 N.Y. LEXIS 1373 (N.Y. 2000).

In action for judgment declaring that insurer was obligated to indemnify insured for liability and costs of defending underlying personal injury action, insurer's delay of over 3 years in disclaiming coverage on ground of late notice of claim was unreasonable, and thus insurer was barred from raising that defense. Consolidated Edison Co. v United States Fid. & Guar. Co., 263 A.D.2d 380, 693 N.Y.S.2d 31, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7813 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1999).

Internal memorandum, clearly reflecting lack of cooperation by building owner, provided date from which timeliness of insurer's disclaimer could be assessed, and thus it was unreasonable, as matter of law, for insurer to wait 4 years after its first notice of deposition was ignored before issuing disclaimer; insurer's purported need for further time to investigate lack of cooperation was, under circumstances, implausible. Allcity Ins. Co. v 601 Crown St. Realty Corp., 264 A.D.2d 315, 693 N.Y.S.2d 141, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8608 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1999).

Insurer's disclaimer issued over one year after it received notice of accident was untimely as matter of law, and thus court should have denied insurer's summary judgment motion in action seeking judgment declaring that insurer was not obligated to indemnify insured or to provide coverage for claims arising from automobile accident. Government Emples. Ins. Co. v Kolodny, 269 A.D.2d 564, 703 N.Y.S.2d 513, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2103 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2000).

Liability insurer's 17-month delay in disclaiming coverage was unreasonable, and barred it from denying liability. Impulse Enterprises/F & V Mech. Plumbing & Heating v St. Paul Fire & Marine Ins. Co., 282 A.D.2d 266, 723 N.Y.S.2d 177, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3602 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2001).

Insurer's 17-month delay in disclaiming coverage was unreasonable, and therefore disclaimer was ineffective regardless of whether insureds gave timely notice of claim. Columbia Cas. Co. v Nat'l Emergency Servs., 282 A.D.2d 346, 723 N.Y.S.2d 473, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4072 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2001).

Insurance company's action in not providing formal disclaimer of an insured's claim for supplemental uninsured motorists compensation until 20 months after it knew that the insured was not driving a vehicle listed in his policy was unreasonable as a matter of law. Great Am. Ins. Co. v Tomaino, 293 A.D.2d 944, 741 N.Y.S.2d 315, 2002 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4043 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), app. denied, 98 N.Y.2d 611, 749 N.Y.S.2d 2, 778 N.E.2d 553, 2002 N.Y. LEXIS 2315 (N.Y. 2002).

In an action pursuant to N.Y. C.P.L.R. 75 to compel arbitration of an uninsured motorist claim, the trial court properly stayed the arbitration and determined that an insurance company's disclaimer of coverage was invalid and of no force and effect; N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(d) provided that insurers had to give written notice as soon as was reasonably possible of a disclaimer of liability or denial of coverage to the insured and the injured person or any other claimant, and the insurer had the burden to explain any delay in providing notice of a disclaimer or denial of coverage, and the reasonableness of such delay was a question of fact which was determined upon the facts and circumstances of each case, and in the instant action the insurance company failed to provide any explanation for its 17 month delay in issuing a disclaimer, and as such, the delay was unreasonable as a matter of law. Cosgriff v Progressive Ins. Co., 303 A.D.2d 680, 757 N.Y.S.2d 319, 2003 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3145 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2003).

Because N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(d) required an insurer to give written notice as soon as was reasonably possible of a disclaimer of coverage, and because the insurer's explanation for a 19-month delay was unreasonable as a matter of law, the insured was entitled to summary judgment. Wood v Nationwide Mut. Ins. Co., 45 A.D.3d 1285, 845 N.Y.S.2d 641, 2007 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11555 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 2007).

Trial court erred in denying an insurer's motion for summary judgment on the insured's second counterclaim because the approximately two-year delay between the time the insurer reserved its right to disclaim or deny coverage and its commencement of a declaratory judgment action did not evince bad faith under former N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(d). State Farm Fire & Cas. Co. v Ricci, 96 A.D.3d 1571, 947 N.Y.S.2d 265, 2012 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4818 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 2012).

Insurer did not meet its obligations to investigate and timely respond to its insured's environmental cleanup claim, and, thus, waived its right to disclaim pursuant to N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(d); during the more than seven years between the insured's notice and the insurer's disclaimer of coverage, the insurer failed to make a coverage determination, but, instead, it responded to the insured's requests for coverage by promising to investigate the claims and then enumerating numerous possible grounds upon which it might opt to disclaim coverage at a later time. The insurer's boilerplate reservation of rights letters to the insured were legally insufficient and did not relieve the insurer of the a duty to make a prompt investigation and disclaimer of coverage. Travelers Indem. Co. v Orange & Rockland Utils., Inc., 242 N.Y.L.J. 41, 2009 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2617 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. Aug. 18, 2009), rev'd, 73 A.D.3d 576, 905 N.Y.S.2d 11, 2010 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4199 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2010).

Appeals court held bar's insurer was to defend and indemnify bar in patron's underlying action for bouncer injuries to her; insurer's three year delay to disclaim accident coverage under its assault and battery exclusion was unreasonable under N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(d). Penn-America Group, Inc. v Zoobar, Inc., 305 A.D.2d 1116, 759 N.Y.S.2d 825, 2003 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4773 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't), app. denied, 100 N.Y.2d 511, 766 N.Y.S.2d 164, 798 N.E.2d 348, 2003 N.Y. LEXIS 2329 (N.Y. 2003).

142. —Effect of delay in notifying insurer of accident

The plaintiff insurer was estopped from asserting its nonliability where it delayed five months from the time it learned about an accident involving its insured and further delayed two additional months after receiving the summons and complaint before it disclaimed liability. It was also held plaintiff had waived the defense of lack of timely notice of the accident by not communicating with its insured or investigating the accident within a reasonable time after receiving notice. Safeguard Ins. Co. v Trent, 29 A.D.2d 780, 287 N.Y.S.2d 894, 1968 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4555 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1968).

Pursuant to subd 8 of former § 167 [now § 3420(d)] of the Insurance Law, an insurer seeking to disclaim under a liability policy delivered or issued for delivery in New York must give written notice of such disclaimer as soon as is reasonably possible and the carrier may not rely upon an insured's failure to give timely notice, where the carrier itself has unreasonably delayed in making a disclaimer. Wright v Wright, 35 A.D.2d 895, 315 N.Y.S.2d 710, 1970 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3393 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1970), app. denied, 28 N.Y.2d 483, 1971 N.Y. LEXIS 1749 (N.Y. 1971).

Insurer which never disclaimed liability to insured or to injured person in accordance with statute could not avoid liability to injured person, who had obtained judgment in civil court in September, 1973, even where there was some delay on part of such person in giving notice to insurer, where insurer had ample opportunity after suit was commenced in May, 1973, to disclaim or deny coverage, but never did so. Richardson v Leatherbee Ins. Co., 47 A.D.2d 891, 367 N.Y.S.2d 263, 1975 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9304 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1975).

In a declaratory judgment action to determine the rights and obligations of the parties under two insurance policies, an insurance company's claim of noncoverage based on provisions of the policies concerning activity related to an automobile business was barred by reason of the company's untimely notice of disclaimer. However, claims of noncoverage on the grounds that defendant was not a named insured and was not qualified as a resident of the household of the policyholder and that the automobile operated by the defendant at the time of the accident was not listed as a vehicle covered under the policy, did not require the giving of a written notice of disclaimer and should have been permitted to proceed to trial. United Services Auto. Asso. v Meier, 89 A.D.2d 998, 454 N.Y.S.2d 319 (2d Dept 1982).

Insurer's 11-month delay in disclaiming coverage because of insureds' alleged untimely notice was unreasonable and therefore was itself untimely as matter of law. Kamyr, Inc. v St. Paul Surplus Lines Ins. Co., 152 A.D.2d 62, 547 N.Y.S.2d 964, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 14347 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1989).

Disclaimer by insurance company was timely where (1) insured was in accident with pedestrian on April 29, 1984, and insured was aware of pedestrian's injuries on that date, (2) insured did not notify insurance company of accident until April 23, 1985, several weeks after he was served with summons and complaint, (3) insurance company promptly hired investigator, who interviewed pedestrian on June 3, 1985 and prepared report on June 11, 1985, and (4) insurance company issued disclaimer on July 11, 1985. Silk v City of New York, 203 A.D.2d 103, 610 N.Y.S.2d 36, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3802 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't), app. denied, 84 N.Y.2d 810, 621 N.Y.S.2d 520, 645 N.E.2d 1220, 1994 N.Y. LEXIS 4378 (N.Y. 1994), app. denied, 84 N.Y.2d 810, 621 N.Y.S.2d 519, 645 N.E.2d 1219 (N.Y. 1994).

Insurer's 5-month delay in disclaiming coverage on ground of untimely notice was unreasonable as matter of law. Interboro Mut. Indem. Ins. Co. v Rivas, 205 A.D.2d 536, 613 N.Y.S.2d 191, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5923 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1994).

In action by owner of leased car against its excess liability insurer, insurer's disclaimer of liability was valid where its disclaimer letter disclosed that it did not receive notice of accident until about 20 months after accident, it cited lack of written notice, and it asserted prejudice in that it was "deprived of its right to investigate, obtain a separate defense, pursue the contract rights afforded under the lease and participat[e] in the defense and conclusion of the captioned matter"; in any event, insurer was not required to show actual prejudice in order to disclaim coverage for late or defective notice. First City Acceptance Corp. v Gulf Ins. Co., 245 A.D.2d 649, 665 N.Y.S.2d 114, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12534 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1997).

Insurer was not required to defend or indemnify insured regarding underlying action by insured's injured employee where insurer properly disclaimed coverage based on insured's failure to provide timely notice of claim, insured's delay of 2 years and 10 months in providing notice of claim was unreasonable as matter of law, insurer was not obligated to disclaim coverage until insured provided notice of accident or claim, and disclaimer in insurer's answer was timely notice of disclaimer. Roofing Consultants, Inc. v Scottsdale Ins. Co., 273 A.D.2d 933, 709 N.Y.S.2d 782, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6715 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't), app. denied, 95 N.Y.2d 770, 722 N.Y.S.2d 473, 745 N.E.2d 393, 2000 N.Y. LEXIS 3859 (N.Y. 2000).

Although the insured provided prompt notice to the insurance agents of the administrators' wrongful death claim, the agents failed to notify the insurer; therefore, because the insurer failed to provide a written disclaimer of coverage as soon as reasonably possible, as required by N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(d), it was obligated to defend and/or indemnify the insured in the underlying action. Tex Dev. Co. v Greenwich Ins. Co., 51 A.D.3d 775, 858 N.Y.S.2d 682, 2008 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4217 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2008).

An insurer who fails to comply with the requirements of subd. 8 of former § 167 [now § 3420(d)] by giving written notice of disclaimer of liability waives delay on the part of the assured and a plaintiff seeking damages against him in giving notice of the accident. Aetna Casualty & Surety Co. v Fireman's Fund Ins. Co., 40 Misc. 2d 813, 244 N.Y.S.2d 159, 1963 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1443 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1963).

An insurer who failed to give written notice of disclaimer to the insured or to the claimant waived any delay by either party in giving notice of the accident. Great American Ins. Co. v Schaefers, 47 Misc. 2d 522, 262 N.Y.S.2d 953, 1965 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1638 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1965).

Inasmuch as an insurer failed to specifically assert that the insured did not forward the complaint until the instant action was commenced, and failed to otherwise explain its 10-month delay in providing notice of disclaimer, it was precluded from disclaiming coverage on either theory. Paul M. Maint., Inc. v Transcon. Ins. Co., 300 A.D.2d 209, 755 N.Y.S.2d 3, 2002 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13319 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2002).

Insurer is precluded from disclaiming coverage of agency for losses suffered due to sexual abuse of foster children it placed, even if court were to find that agency gave insurer late notice of alleged abuse, because insurer's delay in disclaiming for late notice was also unreasonable and in violation of CLS Ins Law § 3420(d). Safeguard Ins. Co. v Angel Guardian Home, 946 F. Supp. 221, 1996 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 20120 (E.D.N.Y. 1996).

143. Particular circumstances leading to estoppel to disclaim liability

Insurer was not estopped from disclaiming coverage, and had no obligation to provide insured with legal defense, even though disclaimer was issued more than 6 months after insurer was notified of claim, where policy had been issued providing coverage for liability arising out of negligent operations or supervision in course of highway resurfacing project, and underlying negligence claim involved motorcycle accident on portion of highway where work had not yet begun; since policy never covered claim in first place, CLS Ins § 3420(d) did not apply. Employers Ins. of Wausau v County of Nassau, 141 A.D.2d 496, 530 N.Y.S.2d 157, 1988 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6312 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1988).

Insurer which disclaims liability solely on basis of insured's failure to cooperate may be estopped from later disclaiming liability on basis of insured's failure to provide timely notice of claim. Guberman v William Penn Life Ins. Co., 146 A.D.2d 8, 538 N.Y.S.2d 571, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2441 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1989).

Insurer was not estopped from disclaiming coverage under service station policy because of its unreasonable delay in notifying insureds of its intention to do so since actionable conduct alleged in underlying personal injury action—negligence in instructing third party as to use of motorcycle—did not arise from operation of service station, and thus it was not "exclusion" under policy which insurer had to disclaim within reasonable time or be subject to estoppel. American Home Assurance Co. v Aprigliano, 161 A.D.2d 357, 555 N.Y.S.2d 106, 1990 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5301 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1990).

Court erred in holding that liability insurer was not obligated to defend or indemnify its insured in personal injury action on ground that injured party had not timely notified it of action, since insurer's initial disclaimer was specifically based on its own insured's failure to notify it of action, and thus was not effective against injured party, and insurer was estopped from subsequently raising injured party's late notice as ground for disclaiming coverage; notice of disclaimer under CLS Ins § 3420(d) must promptly apprise claimant, with high degree of specificity, of ground or grounds on which disclaimer is predicated. United States Liab. Ins. Co. v Young, 186 A.D.2d 644, 588 N.Y.S.2d 640, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11318 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1992), app. denied, 81 N.Y.2d 711, 601 N.Y.S.2d 580, 619 N.E.2d 658, 1993 N.Y. LEXIS 1860 (N.Y. 1993).

Fact that liability insurer had undertaken defense of underlying personal injury action did not estop it from disclaiming any further defense or indemnification of insured, even though insurer failed to explain 8- or 10-month delay in ascertaining that scene of injury was not part of covered premises, where insureds did not show that they had been prejudiced by delay, and in fact insureds had benefited by receiving valuable albeit gratuitous legal representation from insurer during delay. Sedgwick Ave. Assocs. v Insurance Co., 203 A.D.2d 93, 610 N.Y.S.2d 39, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3771 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1994).

Employers' liability exclusion did not bar action in which injured plaintiffs' employer, who was impleaded by defendant for contribution and indemnity, sought defense and indemnification as additional insured under defendant's comprehensive liability policy, where insurer disclaimed coverage under that exclusion, without explanation, 4 months after employer sought coverage. Nuzzo v Griffin Tech., 222 A.D.2d 184, 643 N.Y.S.2d 802, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6777 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1996), app. denied, 91 N.Y.2d 802, 666 N.Y.S.2d 564, 669 N.E.2d 534, 1997 N.Y. LEXIS 4164 (N.Y. 1997).

In action by driver of insured car alleging that insurer wrongfully refused to provide him with defense in underlying personal injury action, insurer was not entitled to summary judgment based on driver's alleged failure to notify it of accident, where owner of car had provided required notice and insurer did not disclaim coverage against owner on such ground. Sweet v State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co., 223 A.D.2d 841, 636 N.Y.S.2d 196, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 85 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1996).

Neither insured nor insurer was entitled to summary judgment, where insured alleged that insurer failed to timely disclaim coverage, but it was uncontroverted that insurer would not have issued policy for roofing business, question of fact existed as to whether insured materially misrepresented to insurer's agent that its newly-formed business would be engaged in carpentry rather than roofing, and record did not establish whether work in question was being performed by insured's newly-formed business or by his pre-existing siding and roofing business. Morris v Merchants Mut. Ins. Co., 229 A.D.2d 992, 645 N.Y.S.2d 207, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9045 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1996).

Insurer who defends action on behalf of its insured with knowledge of defense to coverage is thereafter estopped from asserting that policy does not cover claim; recognition of such estoppel has as its basis detrimental reliance suffered by insured in loss of right to control its own defense, and therefore estoppel will lie only if insured has shown that it has been prejudiced by insurance carrier's actions. National Indem. Co. v Ryder Truck Rental, 230 A.D.2d 720, 646 N.Y.S.2d 169, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8258 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1996).

Insurer was estopped from denying coverage for third-party defendant, which was named insured along with third-party plaintiffs, where insurer failed to issue disclaimer under CLS Ins § 3420(d); thus, antisubrogration rule applied and court properly dismissed third-party complaint seeking indemnification and contribution. Hebert v Staltac Assocs., 231 A.D.2d 675, 647 N.Y.S.2d 858, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9673 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1996), app. denied, 89 N.Y.2d 808, 655 N.Y.S.2d 888, 678 N.E.2d 501, 1997 N.Y. LEXIS 182 (N.Y. 1997).

If insurer, by reason of its not having denied coverage on basis of "dishonest theft" exclusion, was estopped from asserting it as defense to action on jeweler's block policy, such estoppel did not relieve insured of burden of proving prima facie case—that is, that loss occurred and was covered event. Dato Jewelry v Western Alliance Ins. Co., 238 A.D.2d 193, 656 N.Y.S.2d 30, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3963 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't), app. denied, 90 N.Y.2d 805, 663 N.Y.S.2d 511, 686 N.E.2d 223, 1997 N.Y. LEXIS 2933 (N.Y. 1997).

Even if arbitrator misconstrued law in rejecting automobile accident victim's claim that absent timely disclaimer or denial of coverage by insurer under CLS Ins § 3420(d), on ground that he had not sustained "serious injury" under CLS Ins § 5102(d), he could recover for noneconomic loss even in absence of serious injury, victim's claim was academic where arbitrator's conclusion was neither arbitrary nor capricious, so as to justify vacating his award. iGravenese v 245 A.D.2d 507, 666 N.Y.S.2d 710.

Despite nebulous references to "risk of impaired health," "threat to human, animal and plant life," "health, safety and well-being," and the like, 2 underlying claims against insured were not "for death or bodily injury arising out of [an accident]" under CLS Ins § 3420(d), and thus liability insurer did not waive defense of lack of coverage by failing to timely assert pollution exclusion, where complaint in state action pleaded causes of action under Comprehensive Environmental Response, Compensation and Liability Act and for public nuisance, seeking reimbursement for damages to state's natural resources and costs of remediation as well as injunction directing nuisance abatement, and complaint in private action sought only to abate nuisance and to recover damages for cost of water pollution controls and diminution of property value. Merchants Mut. Ins. Co. v Allcity Ins. Co., 245 A.D.2d 590, 664 N.Y.S.2d 690, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12538 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1997).

Complaint alleging that, as result of pollution of plaintiffs' drinking water, they were at risk of disease because of exposure to identified toxins, pollutants, and contaminants, causing them to suffer emotional distress from fear of disease, might well be claim "for death or bodily injury arising out of [an accident]" under CLS Ins § 3420(d). Merchants Mut. Ins. Co. v Allcity Ins. Co., 245 A.D.2d 590, 664 N.Y.S.2d 690, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12538 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1997).

Liability insurer was not estopped from denying coverage, and did not waive its pollution exclusion defense, where insured's alleged reliance on insurer's initial undertaking of defense of insured in underlying action was subject to explicit reservation of rights stating that insurer would defend "at this time, pending further investigations and decisions on coverage at a later date following all investigations," and within reasonable time insurer issued express written disclaimer of coverage based, inter alia, on policy's pollution exclusion. Merchants Mut. Ins. Co. v Allcity Ins. Co., 245 A.D.2d 590, 664 N.Y.S.2d 690, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12538 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1997).

Insurer, as subrogee of construction company, was not collaterally estopped from asserting that defendant, based on contractual indemnification clause in subcontract between construction company and defendant, was liable for defense costs that insurer incurred in underlying personal injury action where trial court's determination in underlying action that construction company's application for indemnification from defendant was moot was not decision on merits that would collaterally estop either construction company or insurer as its subrogee, and insurer was not party to underlying action and did not have full and fair opportunity to litigate its claim therein. Michigan Mut. Ins. Co. v American & Foreign Ins. Co., 251 A.D.2d 141, 674 N.Y.S.2d 313, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6899 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1998).

Insurer's disclaimer of coverage was ineffective against injured party in automobile accident case, and insurer was estopped from raising injured party's late notice of claim as ground for disclaiming coverage, where insurer's notice of disclaimer under CLS Ins § 3420(d) was based only on insured's failure to notify it of claim. Eagle Ins. Co. v Ortega, 251 A.D.2d 282, 674 N.Y.S.2d 56, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6218 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1998).

Insurer was not estopped from denying coverage of insured wife in underlying action for wrongful death of her husband, who was killed in traffic accident while he was passenger in car driven by wife, where (1) policy never provided coverage for interspousal wrongful death claim, and thus prompt notice of disclaimer was not required, and (2) insurer did not engage in any conduct that would equitably estop it from denying coverage. Government Emples. Ins. Co. v Pagano, 251 A.D.2d 452, 674 N.Y.S.2d 719, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6850 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1998).

Doctrine of estoppel may not be invoked to create insurance coverage where none exists under policy. Penske Truck Leasing Co., L.P., v Home Ins. Co., 251 A.D.2d 478, 674 N.Y.S.2d 400, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6859 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1998).

Insurer was properly granted summary judgment declaring that it was entitled to be reimbursed for payments that it made to cover underlying tort plaintiff's economic loss where that result was required by terms of insurance policy pertaining to additional personal injury protection benefits and by subrogation principles. Foley v American Mfrs. Mut. Ins. Co., 255 A.D.2d 416, 680 N.Y.S.2d 562, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11998 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1998), app. dismissed, 93 N.Y.2d 999, 695 N.Y.S.2d 744, 717 N.E.2d 1081, 1999 N.Y. LEXIS 1887 (N.Y. 1999).

In action arising from motor vehicle collision wherein defendants counterclaimed against plaintiff but never notified plaintiff's insurer of existence of their counterclaim, fact that plaintiff's insurer received notice of counterclaim from plaintiff did not estop it from disclaiming coverage on counterclaim for failure to directly notify defendants of its disclaimer. Agway Ins. v Alvarez, 258 A.D.2d 487, 684 N.Y.S.2d 635, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 983 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1999).

Hospital was entitled to summary judgment declaring that its liability insurer had duty to defend and indemnify it in underlying medical malpractice action, although policy did not insure hospital at time alleged acts of malpractice occurred, where insurer had notice of facts which would have revealed that it did not cover claim against hospital when bill of particulars in underlying malpractice action was served, but it completely assumed defense of action for more than 11 years, until eve of trial. Brooklyn Hosp. Ctr. v Centennial Ins. Co., 258 A.D.2d 491, 685 N.Y.S.2d 267, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1048 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1999).

Liability insurer was not estopped from disclaiming coverage with respect to claim of injured party based on injured party's failure to give timely notice, where there was no evidence that injured party ever notified insurer of occurrence so as to trigger insurer's obligation to disclaim specifically based on failure to give timely notice. Dryden Mut. Ins. Co. v Brockman, 259 A.D.2d 947, 687 N.Y.S.2d 504, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3048 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1999).

Insurance carrier was not estopped from denying underinsured coverage where (1) insured did not notify it that she had been injured by automobile and had commenced action against driver until 3 days after she settled that action for full amount of driver's policy and gave driver general release that did not preserve insurer's right of subrogation, (2) initial notice to insurer did not even mention settlement negotiations or release, (3) subsequent letter written by insured's attorney, warning that arbitration would be demanded if insurer did not "discuss" underinsured claim, mentioned settlement offer by driver's carrier but portrayed status of negotiations as unaccepted offer pending insurer's investigation, and (4) insurer diligently responded by undertaking investigation of insured's injuries (which, insured claimed, estopped it from denying coverage) until, after 2 months, it learned of settlement and disclaimed coverage. USAA Cas. Ins. Co. v Kaufman, 261 A.D.2d 275, 690 N.Y.S.2d 269, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5501 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1999), app. denied, 94 N.Y.2d 758, 705 N.Y.S.2d 5, 726 N.E.2d 482, 2000 N.Y. LEXIS 1 (N.Y. 2000).

Insurer was estopped from raising injured party's alleged failure to provide timely notice of claim as ground for disclaiming coverage where its notice of disclaimer had denied coverage based only on insured's failure to provide timely notice. Utica Mut. Ins. Co. v Gath, 265 A.D.2d 805, 695 N.Y.S.2d 839, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9833 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1999).

Although insurer will be estopped from disclaiming coverage based on exclusion in policy if it has delayed unreasonably in issuing its disclaimer, insurer has no duty to disclaim where coverage does not exist. Nationwide Ins. Co. v Sillman, 266 A.D.2d 551, 699 N.Y.S.2d 98, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12293 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1999).

Insurer's mere statement that it would provide defense for corporation did estop insurer from denying coverage where (1) corporation's agent unilaterally made initial decision to look to insurer for coverage, without relying on insurer in any way, (2) corporation did not rely to its detriment on insurer by transferring control of its defense to insurer, and (3) thus, estoppel element of detrimental reliance was lacking. Martini v Lafayette Studio Corp., 273 A.D.2d 112, 710 N.Y.S.2d 39, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7176 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2000).

Liability insurer was equitably estopped from denying coverage of claim against insured by insured's employee injured vehicular accident where (1) insurer undertook defense of insured in employee's action under Federal Employers' Liability Act without reserving its rights under policy, (2) although insured was represented by attorneys of its choice, they shared information with insurer, provided insurer with status reports, conducted depositions with insurer's approval, and entered into settlement discussions with insurer's knowledge, and (3) insurer's first assertion of possible disclaimer on eve of settlement conference placed in jeopardy favorable settlement negotiated by insured's attorneys and forced insured to agree to litigate coverage issues in order to save settlement. U.S. Fid. & Guar. Co. v New York Susquehanna & Western Ry. Co., 275 A.D.2d 977, 713 N.Y.S.2d 624, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9565 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 2000).

Court properly entered summary judgment declaring that insurer was obligated to defend and indemnify insured where insurer's disclaimer of coverage was based only on insured's failure to notify it of claim, and was therefore not effective against injured party, who had given notice of claim. Legion Ins. Co. v Weiss, 282 A.D.2d 576, 723 N.Y.S.2d 235, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3766 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2001).

Insurer was estopped from raising plaintiff injured parties' allegedly late notice of claim as ground for disclaiming coverage where (1) disclaimer was based solely on insured's failure to notify insurer of claim, (2) plaintiffs, not insured, gave notice of claim, and (3) thus, disclaimer was not effective against plaintiffs. Hazen v Otsego Mut. Fire Ins. Co., 286 A.D.2d 708, 730 N.Y.S.2d 156, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8563 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2001).

Insurer was estopped from disclaiming insurance coverage to the general contractor, who was a named insured, on the basis of a policy exclusion because the insurer's letter to the named insured's insurance carrier disclaiming any duty did not suffice and the insurer was required to send written notice of its disclaimer directly to the named insured; the carrier's interests were not the same as the carrier. Harco Constr., LLC v First Mercury Ins. Co., 148 A.D.3d 870, 49 N.Y.S.3d 495, 2017 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1766 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2017).

Trial court properly granted the additional insureds' motion for summary judgment declaring that the insurer was obligated to defend and indemnify them in the underlying personal injury action and to reimburse them for all defense costs incurred in connection with the underlying action because the insurer's failure to provide timely written notice of disclaimer to the additional insureds rendered its disclaimer of coverage ineffective against them, the insurer failed to raise a triable issue of fact in opposition, and the insurer did not need to receive the contract documents in order to provide a disclaimer directly to the additional insureds based on an employee exclusion. AVR-Powell C Dev. Corp. v Utica First Ins. Co., 174 A.D.3d 772, 106 N.Y.S.3d 320, 2019 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5786 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2019).

Where the insurer failed to give the insured a timely notice of disclaimer of coverage for liability for personal injury and would therefore be precluded from claiming such noncoverage and would also be estopped from claiming noncoverage because it had paid a property damage claim, but where the insured had violated the law by selling the vehicle prior to the accident but permitted his registration to remain on it and did not give notice of the sale to the insurer, the insured was estopped from claiming the insurer was precluded or estopped from disclaiming coverage, since the insurer had been severely prejudiced by the insured's actions; and the insured's complaint for declaratory judgment that the insurer was liable under the policy would be dismissed for lack of merit. Blackmer v Travelers Indem. Co., 110 Misc. 2d 704, 442 N.Y.S.2d 923, 1981 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3145 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1981).

In an action resulting from an injury sustained in an accident involving respondent's automobile and an automobile driven by a thief, where the insurance contract covering the latter vehicle excluded coverage of the vehicle if operated without the permission of the owner, the defense of lack of permissive use was available to both the owner and insurer against the respondent but was contingent upon the issuance of written notice of the disclaimer of coverage, in that the vehicle was being operated in a situation in the nature of a policy exclusion, and failure by the insurer to give timely written notice of disclaimer precluded the insurer from asserting the defense of lack of permissive use regardless of whether the respondent was actually prejudiced by the failure. Insurance Co. of North America v Norris, 116 Misc. 2d 314, 455 N.Y.S.2d 190, 1982 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3876 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1982).

In action to determine insurance coverage of family automobile operated by owner's son while employed as pizza deliveryman, insurance company which insured automobile was required to provide coverage to pizza shop, regardless of proper interpretation of exclusion on which insurance company based disclaimer, since insurance company only sent disclaimer notices to persons injured in accident and did not send disclaimer notice to pizza shop. American Motorists Ins. Co. v Travelers Ins. Co., 158 Misc. 2d 257, 604 N.Y.S.2d 475, 1993 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 562 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1993).

Plaintiff's contention that the insurer failed to give timely notice of its denial of coverage with respect to a negligence cause of action, and thus that the insurer was estopped from asserting that a policy did not cover that cause of action, was found by the appellate court to be without merit, as there was no duty to give notice of disclaimer or denial of coverage with respect to any of the causes of action, because the alleged defamation upon which the underlying action was based was not within the ambit of section N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(d); defamation did not occur by accident, and, in the instant case, the insurer denied coverage, not because of a policy exclusion, but because defamation was not an occurrence, under the terms of the policy. Iafallo v Nationwide Mut. Fire Ins. Co., 299 A.D.2d 925, 750 N.Y.S.2d 386, 2002 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11000 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 2002).

Since defendant insurer was precluded from disclaiming coverage if it failed to send plaintiff injured party timely written notice of the disclaimer as required by N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(d), but the insurer claimed that it mailed a copy of its disclaimer of coverage to the former attorney of the injured party, and the injured party asserted that neither the injured party nor the former attorney ever received such a notice, there was a question of fact as to whether the disclaimer was ever sent to the injured party or the injured party's attorney, and the trial court, therefore, erred in granting the insurer summary judgment dismissing the injured party's complaint to recover the amount of a judgment that was obtained against the insured of the insurer. Fisco v Provident Wash. Ins. Co., 303 A.D.2d 451, 755 N.Y.S.2d 893, 2003 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2303 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2003).

Trial court properly searched the record and granted summary judgment to the insured in an action seeking a declaration that an insurance company was obligated to defend and indemnify the insured in an underlying personal injury action; the lateness of the notice of occurrence, which was the basis for the insurance company's denial of coverage, was evident on the fact of the underlying complaint and the insurance company provided no explanation for its own delay in promptly commencing such an investigation. Heegan v United Int'l Ins. Co., 2 A.D.3d 403, 767 N.Y.S.2d 861, 2003 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12896 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2003), app. denied, 2 N.Y.3d 704, 778 N.Y.S.2d 774, 811 N.E.2d 36, 2004 N.Y. LEXIS 646 (N.Y. 2004).

Because the casualty company did not timely provide the insureds with notice of its disclaimer and denial of coverage on the basis of a policy exclusion, pursuant to N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(d), the casualty company was estopped from disclaiming liability or denying coverage and was obligated to defend, indemnify, and reimburse the insureds for costs already incurred in the underlying personal injury action. Brighton Cent. Sch. Dist. v Am. Cas. Co., 19 A.D.3d 528, 800 N.Y.S.2d 415, 2005 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6908 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2005).

Subcontractor's insurer was estopped, under N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(d), from declining to defend and indemnify a general contractor who was an insured on the subcontractor's policy in an underlying suit filed by the subcontractor's employee because (1) the statute's prompt disclaimer requirement was triggered when the subcontractor's insurer was notified of the general contractor's claim by the general contractor's insurer on behalf of the general contractor, and (2) the subcontractor's insurer did not justify the insurer's delay of 45 to 50 days in disclaiming coverage. JT Magen v Hartford Fire Ins. Co., 64 A.D.3d 266, 879 N.Y.S.2d 100, 2009 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3687 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2009).

Second level excess insurers' subsequent refusal to contribute to settlement consummated between first level excess insurer and claimants did not constitute prejudicial delay which estopped second insurers from denying coverage in first insurer's action for contribution where first insurer had agreed to terms of its settlement with claimants before second insurers even received first insurer's notice of loss. American Home Assurance Co. v Republic Ins. Co., 984 F.2d 76, 1993 U.S. App. LEXIS 1040 (2d Cir. N.Y.), cert. denied, 508 U.S. 973, 113 S. Ct. 2964, 125 L. Ed. 2d 664, 1993 U.S. LEXIS 4086 (U.S. 1993).

Insurer is estopped from denying coverage of property damage caused to homeowners by negligence of insured builder, where homeowners achieved arbitration award in their favor against builder, and have independent right to proceed directly against insurer pursuant to Ins § 3420(a)(2), because insurer was informed of claim right from beginning, yet waited more than 6 months to disclaim coverage to its insured, and more than 21 months before informing homeowners of disclaimer. Frazier v Royal Ins. Co. of Am., 110 F. Supp. 2d 110, 2000 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 11724 (N.D.N.Y. 2000).

Defendant insurer failed to comply with N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(d) and thus had to defend its insured under the policy. It was unreasonable as a matter of law for the claims handler to undertake a coverage review, because the basis for the insurer's disclaimer—the communicable disease exclusion—was or should have been readily apparent at the onset of the delay. Koegler v Liberty Mut. Ins. Co., 623 F. Supp. 2d 481, 2009 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 33734 (S.D.N.Y. 2009).

It was not shown that the insurer of a construction project owner and its general contractor was the real party in interest to preclude application of the requirement for notice of disclaimer of coverage by insurer of subcontractor since the insurer was not a party to the action, and communications from the insurer to the subcontractor's insurer about the underlying claims of an employee of the subcontractor were not factually or legally conclusive that the insurer was the real party in interest. Pearson Capital Partners LLC v James River Ins. Co., 151 F. Supp. 3d 392, 2015 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 117183 (S.D.N.Y. 2015).

Owner of a construction project and its general contractor sufficiently alleged that the insurer of a subcontractor was required to give timely notice of disclaimer of coverage for injuries to the subcontractor's employee, since the owner and contractor alleged that the employee was injured in the scope of employment, and the policy of the subcontractor's insurer which included the owner and contractor as additional insureds did not require a showing of negligence or wrongdoing on the part of the subcontractor. Pearson Capital Partners LLC v James River Ins. Co., 151 F. Supp. 3d 392, 2015 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 117183 (S.D.N.Y. 2015).

144. —Prejudicial delay in communicating disclaimer

Court properly dismissed insurer's petition to permanently stay arbitration on sole ground that insured failed to give timely written notice of uninsured motorist's claim, where insurer never sent any notice of disclaimer, and only communication of its intent to disclaim was contained in petition to stay arbitration served nearly 8 months after it first received notice of accident and 4 months after it received complete record. Firemen's Fund Ins. Co. v Hopkins, 88 N.Y.2d 836, 644 N.Y.S.2d 481, 666 N.E.2d 1354, 1996 N.Y. LEXIS 677 (N.Y.), reh'g denied, 88 N.Y.2d 963, 647 N.Y.S.2d 716, 670 N.E.2d 1348, 1996 N.Y. LEXIS 2083 (N.Y. 1996).

Insured was entitled to summary judgment declaring that its insurer was obligated to defend and indemnify it in action based on Dram Shop Law where insurer did not notify injured party of its disclaimer of coverage until 2 months after it commenced declaratory judgment action against insured, and only excuse offered was conclusory allegation that injured party had attempted to evade service; insurer's delay was unreasonable as matter of law. National Casualty Co. v Levittown Events, Inc., 191 A.D.2d 543, 595 N.Y.S.2d 93, 1993 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2338 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1993).

Disclaimer of coverage was untimely, and thus was ineffective, where insurance company's internal memorandum, which summarized facts of accident and reason for disclaimer, preceded disclaimer by 4 ½ months. Consolidated Edison Co. v Hartford Ins. Co., 203 A.D.2d 83, 610 N.Y.S.2d 219, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3815 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1994).

Insurer's disclaimer of coverage in connection with slip and fall at building owned by insured was not effective where (1) notice of accident was given in July 1988, (2) final investigative report was received by insurer in December 1988, and (3) no steps were taken to disclaim until commencement of action in February 1989; although complaint was not forwarded to insurer until January 1989 and it did not receive formal opinion from its coverage counsel until January 1989, its claim manager admitted that he alone made disclaimer decisions, and investigative report was sufficient to allow claims manager to conclude that insured breached notice provisions of policy. Mount Vernon Fire Ins. Co. v Gatesington Equities, 204 A.D.2d 419, 611 N.Y.S.2d 893, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4815 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1994).

Insurer was estopped from disclaiming coverage where it failed to offer any explanation for its delay in issuing disclaimer based on policy exclusion until approximately one year after it was aware of sufficient facts to do so; nonwaiver agreement signed by insured, allowing insurer to deny coverage after investigation of accident and reserving insurer's right to disclaim based on insured's failure to timely notify insurer of occurrence, did not permit insurer to delay sending notice of disclaimer. Hanover Ins. Co. v Suffolk Overhead Door Co., 207 A.D.2d 428, 615 N.Y.S.2d 742, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8343 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1994).

Insurer was estopped from disclaiming coverage where it unreasonably delayed issuance of disclaimer of coverage for about one year after it acquired sufficient facts to issue it. Aetna Life & Cas. v Boucher, 238 A.D.2d 414, 656 N.Y.S.2d 316, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3840 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1997), overruled, Worcester Ins. Co. v Bettenhauser, 260 A.D.2d 488, 688 N.Y.S.2d 202, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3804 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1999).

Disclaimer of coverage was invalid, where insurer did not disclaim until discovery was complete and action appeared on trial calendar, and insurer did not refute insured's assertions of prejudice arising from failure to assert certain counterclaims which insured could have asserted. State Farm Ins. Co. v O'Brien, 242 A.D.2d 381, 661 N.Y.S.2d 997, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8469 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1997).

In third-party action by gasoline service station owner for declaration that its liability insurer had duty to defend and indemnify him in connection with underlying suit to recover cost of cleaning up underground gasoline leak, insurer did not waive its right to disclaim coverage where its disclaimer was not unreasonably delayed, owner failed to show how he was prejudiced by delay, and CLS Ins § 3420(d) did not apply, because underlying claim did not involve bodily injury or death. State v Ackley, 245 A.D.2d 668, 664 N.Y.S.2d 876, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12582 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1997).

Where underlying action against insured did not involve death or bodily injury, insurer's untimely disclaimer of coverage would nevertheless be given effect unless insured could demonstrate prejudice as result of delay. United States Fid. & Guar. Co. v Weiri, 265 A.D.2d 321, 696 N.Y.S.2d 200, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9642 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1999).

Subcontractor's insurer could not disclaim coverage to a property owner and a general contractor relating to a personal injury action because even if their notices of claims were late, no disclaimer was filed as to the owner, and the disclaimer as to the contractor was filed six to seven months later, which was unreasonable under N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(d). One Beacon Ins. v Travelers Prop. Cas. Co. of Am., 51 A.D.3d 1198, 856 N.Y.S.2d 737, 2008 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4022 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2008).

Trial court erred in granting an insured's motion for summary judgment because policy at issue contained clauses requiring the insured to provide prompt notice of both an occurrence implicating coverage and any ensuing legal action, the insured's failure to notify the insurer of the underlying action was unreasonable as a matter of law where its nonreceipt of the complaint flowed from its failure to appoint a new registered agent for service to replace a defunct one that had been named decades earlier, and the insurer's failure to affirmatively establish prejudice was of no moment where the no-prejudice rule applied. Kraemer Bldg. Corp. v Scottsdale Ins. Co., 136 A.D.3d 1205, 25 N.Y.S.3d 718, 2016 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1221 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), app. denied, 27 N.Y.3d 908, 56 N.E.3d 902, 36 N.Y.S.3d 622, 2016 N.Y. LEXIS 1664 (N.Y. 2016).

Insurer was equitably estopped from bringing action, on eve of trial, seeking declaration that it be relieved of any duty to defend or indemnify insured in underlying personal injury action since insurer had appeared and defended insured for prior 3 years, even though it could have withdrawn its defense on ground of noncoverage 3 months after receiving notice of personal injury action. Travelers Prop. Cas. v Weiner, 174 Misc. 2d 831, 666 N.Y.S.2d 392, 1997 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 558 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1997).

Commercial general liability insurer which, 15 months after it agreed to defend action, notified insured that it would not provide coverage because underlying claim was not made during policy period, was estopped from denying coverage; insured was prejudiced by insurer's conduct in advising insured that it was covered and not retracting that commitment for more than one year, lulling insured into not being concerned about need for other coverage. Martini v Lafayette Studios Corp., 177 Misc. 2d 383, 676 N.Y.S.2d 808, 1998 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 302 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1998).

Insurance company would be required to defend and indemnify insured in action arising from incident in which insured's automobile struck group of pedestrians, notwithstanding contention that insured acted intentionally and that policy excluded injuries resulting from intentional acts, since insurance company failed to give timely written notice of disclaimer as required by CLS Ins § 3420(d) where (1) insurance company was notified of incident in October 1987, (2) negligence action was commenced against insured in April 1988 and copy of papers was forwarded to insurance company in May 1988, and (3) disclaimer was issued in July 1988; insurance company submitted affidavit of attorney which stated that investigation was made extremely difficult due to ongoing police investigation of incident, but there was no affidavit from anyone with personal knowledge of investigation. Interboro Mut. Indem. Ins. Co. v Gatterdum (1990, 3d Dept) 163 App D iv 2d 788,, 558 N.Y.S.2d 749.

Because the instant matter did not involve a claim for death or bodily injury (N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(d)), the unexplained failure of defendants to promptly disclaim on the ground of untimely notification did not automatically estop them from relying upon such a disclaimer. Rather, reliance upon the untimely disclaimers would only have been estopped upon a showing of prejudice to plaintiff insured due to the delay. Only Natural, Inc. v Realm Natl. Ins. Co., 37 A.D.3d 436, 830 N.Y.S.2d 229, 2007 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1562 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2007).

Where the insurer gave notice of its disclaimer 78 days after receiving notice of the facts upon which its disclaimer was based, the disclaimer was untimely as a matter of law under N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(d); therefore, the trial court properly granted summary judgment in favor of the insured party in the insured party's action seeking defense and indemnification. Danna Constr. Corp. v Utica First Ins. Co., 17 A.D.3d 622, 794 N.Y.S.2d 72, 2005 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4354 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't), app. denied, 5 N.Y.3d 714, 806 N.Y.S.2d 165, 840 N.E.2d 134, 2005 N.Y. LEXIS 2744 (N.Y. 2005).

Project owner and its general contractor sufficiently alleged that an employer's liability exclusion in a policy issued by the insurer of a subcontractor whose employee suffered personal injuries did not apply, since the owner and contractor alleged that letters advising the insurer of the employee's accidents constituted sufficient notice of claims, and the insurer's failure to timely disclaim coverage precluded application of the exclusion. People v Nigohosian, 138 Misc. 2d 843, 525 N.Y.S.2d 556, 1988 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 204 (N.Y. Dist. Ct. 1988).

145. —Prior proceedings

Insurance company waived its right to disclaim coverage under policy where it participated in intercompany property damage arbitration on behalf of its insured and conceded coverage of offending vehicle. Government Employees Ins. Co. v Cusi, 163 A.D.2d 918, 558 N.Y.S.2d 430 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1990).

In action seeking declaration that insurance company was obligated to defend plaintiff in action arising from motor vehicle accident, insurance company was not collaterally estopped from denying coverage on basis of arbitration between it and company that insured other driver involved in accident since master arbitration agreement between insurance companies specifically provided that awards thereunder had no collateral estoppel effect. Kerins v Prudential Property & Casualty, 185 A.D.2d 403, 585 N.Y.S.2d 637, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8828 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1992).

Prior proceeding, which resulted in finding that offending vehicle was insured by insurer at time of traffic accident, did not collaterally estop insurer from asserting otherwise in present action, where prior finding of coverage was made on default in proceeding that involved potential financial exposure that was inconsequential compared to damages sought in negligence action. American Transit Ins. Co. v Val-Roc Trucking, 242 A.D.2d 469, 662 N.Y.S.2d 309, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8802 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1997).

146. Sufficiency of particular disclaimers

Insurer failed to properly and timely deny hospital's no-fault claim for medical payments for services provided to insured where it neither denied claim within 30 days after receiving it nor sought to extend that time frame by requesting verification on prescribed forms within 10 days of receiving hospital's completed application for no-fault payments, pursuant to 11 NYCRR § 65.15(g)(3) and CLS Ins § 5106(a). Presbyterian Hosp. v Maryland Cas. Co., 90 N.Y.2d 274, 660 N.Y.S.2d 536, 683 N.E.2d 1, 1997 N.Y. LEXIS 1358 (N.Y. 1997).

State Insurance Fund (SIF) was entitled to summary judgment declaring that it was not required to defend or indemnify fourth-party plaintiffs in third-party action where (1) SIF did not receive pleadings in third-party action until over 18 months after action was commenced, (2) within a few days of receiving pleadings, SIF sent written disclaimer notice to fourth-party plaintiffs based on their failure to comply with notice provision of policy requiring them to forward all legal papers to SIF, and (3) SIF's disclaimer letter was not defective merely because it was not sent to fourth-party plaintiffs' attorney. Almalabeh v Chelsea 19 Assocs., 273 A.D.2d 261, 708 N.Y.S.2d 700, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6539 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2000).

In a declaratory judgment action to determine whether an insurer was obligated to defend a driver of a car in a wrongful death action brought against the driver by the estate of a deceased passenger, the insurer would not be obligated to defend where the driver had given false statements to the insurer concerning his use of the car, and where car had been registered in the name of a third party, despite the fact that the insurer had delayed approximately 19 months in disclaiming. Creech v Knitter, 88 A.D.2d 985, 451 N.Y.S.2d 825, 1982 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 17376 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't), aff'd, 57 N.Y.2d 712, 454 N.Y.S.2d 709, 440 N.E.2d 794, 1982 N.Y. LEXIS 3640 (N.Y. 1982).

An insurer's letter sent to its insured's attorneys disclaiming coverage of claims under an insurance policy was proper where the letter clearly apprised the insureds of the reason for the denial of coverage. The transmittal of a letter from the insured's attorneys to the injured party's attorneys stating that the insurer had denied coverage complied with the requirements of Ins Law § 167(a) requiring the insured to notify the injured party of its insurer's denial of coverage, given that the insured had first received notice of the injured party's claim by service of a summons and complaint. New York Mut. Underwriters v O'Connor, 105 A.D.2d 994, 482 N.Y.S.2d 144, 1984 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 21085 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1984).

Disclaimer of insurance coverage was invalid as against injured third parties where only ground stated in disclaimer was that insured had failed to notify insurer of accident. Fabian v Motor Vehicle Accident Indemnification Corp., 111 A.D.2d 366, 489 N.Y.S.2d 581, 1985 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 51464 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1985).

Commencement of declaratory judgment action by insurer, seeking declaration that it had no duty to defend insureds under liability provision of homeowner's policy, constituted sufficient written notice of disclaimer of liability under CLS Ins § 3420. Norfolk & Dedham Mut. Fire Ins. Co. v Petrizzi, 121 A.D.2d 276, 503 N.Y.S.2d 51, 1986 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 58253 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't), app. denied, 68 N.Y.2d 611, 510 N.Y.S.2d 1025, 502 N.E.2d 1007, 1986 N.Y. LEXIS 20868 (N.Y. 1986).

Automobile liability insurer was obligated to defend and indemnify insured, despite fact that car involved in accident was not covered by policy, where policy covered insured as "covered person" regardless of what vehicle was used, subject to further provision excluding from coverage any vehicle other than insured's first covered vehicle, insured gave prompt notice of accident to insurer, and insurer failed to serve effective disclaimer for 7 months after accident; neither insurer's letter reserving rights to deny coverage nor insurer's commencement of declaratory judgment action against insured constituted effective disclaimer of coverage under statute. Progressive Casualty Ins. Co. v Conklin, 123 A.D.2d 6, 510 N.Y.S.2d 246, 1986 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 60650 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1986).

Supreme Court properly declared that insurer's notice of disclaimer was effective as to injured third party, notwithstanding that disclaimer referred only to insured's failure to give notice of accident and omitted any challenge to sufficiency of notice given by injured party, where notice was first given by insured rather than injured party and thus any subsequent information provided by injured party was superfluous for notice purposes. Massachusetts Bay Ins. Co. v Flood, 128 A.D.2d 683, 513 N.Y.S.2d 182, 1987 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 44371 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't), app. denied, 70 N.Y.2d 612, 523 N.Y.S.2d 496, 518 N.E.2d 7, 1987 N.Y. LEXIS 19015 (N.Y. 1987).

Court of Claims properly held that state's insurance carrier was estopped from denying coverage, and had breached its duty to defend countyunder snow removal agreement, where insurer failed to cover entire settlement in motor vehicle accident case, it had exercised complete control over defense, and it failed to provide notice of partial disclaimer to county until first day of trial; county's actual participation in settlement did not vitiate its right to recover for breach, and further proof of reasonableness as to amount paid was not required. County of Sullivan v State, 137 A.D.2d 165, 528 N.Y.S.2d 227, 1988 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5002 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1988).

Disclaimer of coverage sent to insured who also happened to be claimant's guardian ad litem was valid under CLS Ins § 3420(d). Losi v Hanover Ins. Co., 139 A.D.2d 702, 527 N.Y.S.2d 458, 1988 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4546 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't), app. dismissed, 72 N.Y.2d 950, 533 N.Y.S.2d 54, 529 N.E.2d 422, 1988 N.Y. LEXIS 2659 (N.Y. 1988).

Claimant's insurer was entitled to stay of arbitration in motor vehicle accident case where it satisfied its burden of going forward to show that offending vehicle was insured by producing "FS-25" form from Department of Motor Vehicles, and proof of lack of coverage provided by second insurer (whose name was listed on form) consisted only of (1) affirmation from attorney with no personal knowledge, (2) handwritten memorandum from second insurer's employee stating, in conclusory fashion, that its records did not reflect policyholder named as on form, and (3) additional record that form's policy number was not used by second insurer during policy period cited. Allstate Ins. Co. v Rivera, 148 A.D.2d 393, 539 N.Y.S.2d 337, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3931 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1989).

Automobile insurer was not required by CLS Ins § 3420(d) to give timely written notice of disclaimer of coverage based on ground that individual involved in accident with underinsured motorist was not covered person under policy because he no longer resided in home of insured father since insurer had no contract of insurance with such individual. Fireman's Fund Ins. Co. v Freda, 156 A.D.2d 364, 548 N.Y.S.2d 319, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 15418 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1989).

Although insurer's notice of disclaimer misquoted language of exclusion in policy, it identified applicable policy exclusion and set forth factual basis for insurer's position that claim fell within policy exclusion with sufficient specificity to satisfy CLS Ins § 3420(d) mandate and purpose. Adams v Perry's Place, 168 A.D.2d 932, 564 N.Y.S.2d 1019, 1990 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 16470 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1990).

In action for declaration that insurer was obligated to defend individual insureds in underlying tort action against them, it was immaterial that insurer suggested in earlier correspondence with other parties that there might at some future point be disclaimer as to individual insureds, since written reservation of insurer is no substitute for notice of disclaimer required by CLS Ins § 3420(d); alleged failure of individual plaintiffs to give timely notice of claim was irrelevant since timely notice of disclaimer must be given even when reason for disclaimer is lack of timely notice by insured. All City Ins. Co. v Pioneer Ins. Co., 194 A.D.2d 424, 599 N.Y.S.2d 245, 1993 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6284 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1993).

In action by plaintiff who was injured on premises owned by defendant power authority which sought contribution and indemnification from plaintiff's employer, insurance carriers that provided general and employer's liability insurance to plaintiff's employer properly and timely disclaimed liability in third-party action based on their failure to receive timely notice of action, where they asserted untimely notice defense in their respective answers to third-party complaint. Thomson v Power Auth., 217 A.D.2d 495, 629 N.Y.S.2d 760, 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8122 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1995).

Any failure of insurer, in its disclaimer letter based on employee exclusion, to mention absence of particular party from additional insured endorsement was not waiver where there was no coverage in first instance; failure to disclaim cannot create coverage that policy was not written to provide. Rivera v St. Regis Hotel Joint Venture, 240 A.D.2d 332, 659 N.Y.S.2d 270, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6965 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1997).

In action by owner of leased car against its excess liability insurer, insurer's disclaimer of coverage was not defective merely because it cited wrong policy number where owner had 2 policies with insurer, both of which were relevant to present matter, owner never provided timely written notice of claim under either policy, owner was not specific in making its claim, and thus insurer should not be penalized for disclaiming under only one policy. First City Acceptance Corp. v Gulf Ins. Co., 245 A.D.2d 649, 665 N.Y.S.2d 114, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12534 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1997).

Insurer was entitled to summary judgment declaring that it was not obligated to defend and indemnify insureds in underlying personal injury action where injured party did not provide insurer with written notice of claim, and insurer was not required to cite that failure to notify in its letter disclaiming coverage. Travelers Indem. Co. v Worthy, 281 A.D.2d 411, 721 N.Y.S.2d 400, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2073 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2001).

Insurer's notice of disclaimer was not effective against plaintiff where it was based on its insureds' failure to timely notify it of accident and forward copies of pleadings, but it did not state that coverage was being denied due to plaintiff's failure to timely place it on notice of accident; plaintiff was entitled to summary judgment declaring that insurer was obligated to defend and indemnify its insureds in underlying action. Vanegas v Nationwide Mut. Fire Ins. Co., 282 A.D.2d 671, 723 N.Y.S.2d 516, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3978 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2001).

Letter sent by insurer to its insured, disclaiming coverage based on insured's failure to timely forward "suit papers," was ineffective to disclaim coverage of injured party based on injured party's failure to timely forward suit papers. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. v McGovern, 283 A.D.2d 582, 724 N.Y.S.2d 904, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5218 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2001).

Employer was not entitled to be defended or indemnified by the New York State Insurance Fund, its workers' compensation carrier, in a third-party action by a city in a premises liability case brought against the city by the employer's employee as the Fund timely provided its disclaimer within five days after first learning of the third-party action, almost a year after it was filed, in compliance with N.Y. Ins. Law §§ 3420(d) and 1108(c). Liberty Moving & Stor. Co., Inc. v Westport Ins. Corp., 55 A.D.3d 1014, 865 N.Y.S.2d 724, 2008 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7767 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2008), app. denied, 12 N.Y.3d 709, 881 N.Y.S.2d 18, 908 N.E.2d 926, 2009 N.Y. LEXIS 860 (N.Y. 2009).

Trial court properly entered a judgment favor of the insurers and against the insured in its action to recover damages for breach of an insurance contract because, with respect to a retaining wall that collapsed due to heavy rains, the policy excluded loss caused by flood and/or surface water, the claim did not arise out of an accident involving bodily injury or death, the insured failed to make the requisite showing of prejudice, and there was no basis to estop the insurers from relying on policy exclusions not detailed in their letter disclaiming coverage. Provencal, LLC v Tower Ins. Co. of N.Y., 138 A.D.3d 732, 30 N.Y.S.3d 138, 2016 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2529 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2016).

Notice from insurance company to its insured, which disclaimed or denied coverage in third party action, was insufficient to place injured party on notice of disclaimer. Kenyon v Security Ins. Co., 163 Misc. 2d 991, 626 N.Y.S.2d 347, 1993 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 621 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1993), aff'd, 206 A.D.2d 980, 616 N.Y.S.2d 133, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7871 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1994).

Liability insurer was not entitled to summary judgment dismissing claim for reimbursement based on insured's failure to give notice of claim "as soon as practicable," as required by policy, as letters wherein insurer merely expressed its reservations of rights, without expressly disclaiming liability or denying coverage, did not constitute notices of disclaimer of coverage. Guri v Atlanta Int'l Ins. Co., 169 Misc. 2d 952, 646 N.Y.S.2d 781, 1996 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 292 (N.Y. Civ. Ct. 1996), aff'd, 173 Misc. 2d 683, 663 N.Y.S.2d 765, 1997 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 460 (N.Y. App. Term 1997).

Insurer's disclaimer was invalid as to the injured party because the letter sent to the insured disclaimed coverage based upon the insured's failure to timely notify the insurer of the lawsuit, not the injured party's failure to give timely notice, thus, the trial court acted properly in permanently staying the arbitration. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. v Cooper, 303 A.D.2d 414, 756 N.Y.S.2d 87, 2003 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2167 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2003).

Since the insurer had no reasonable basis upon which to disclaim coverage under a general liability policy until the date that the insureds served the papers in the declaratory judgment action, coverage was timely denied when the insurer filed its answer. A.J. McNulty & Co. v Lloyds of London, 306 A.D.2d 211, 762 N.Y.S.2d 372, 2003 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7455 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2003).

Insurance carrier complied with the mandate of N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(d) when it rejected coverage for an accident on the basis of late notice by providing notice in a disclaimer letter to its policyholder and sending a copy to the injured party. The disclaimer was effective against the injured party, which, without explanation, did not notify the carrier of the accident until three years after the entry of judgment against the policyholder and seven years after the accident. Schlott v Transcon. Ins. Co., Inc., 41 A.D.3d 339, 838 N.Y.S.2d 559, 2007 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7946 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2007), app. denied, 9 N.Y.3d 817, 851 N.Y.S.2d 126, 881 N.E.2d 222, 2008 N.Y. LEXIS 20 (N.Y. 2008).

Summary judgment declaring that an insurance company was obligated to defend its insureds in an underlying case was proper because the insurance company failed to demonstrate that an investigation was necessary and that it diligently pursued and completed any investigation that was undertaken for purposes of disclaimer; the deposition testimony of its assistant manager of litigation established only that the assistant manager noted the late notice issue as soon as she reviewed the notice of claim, that she directed an investigator to obtain a signed nonwaiver agreement from the insured, and after the nonwaiver agreement was obtained, she retained counsel who commenced the declaratory judgment action. Without an affidavit of the assistant manager, an affidavit from the investigator, a copy of any investigative report, or a copy of a statement obtained from its insured, the insurance company failed to support its claimed explanation with proof the investigation was necessary and diligently performed. Quincy Mut. Fire Ins. Co. v Uribe, 45 A.D.3d 661, 845 N.Y.S.2d 434, 2007 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11862 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2007).

In action against the insurance company brought by the minor to recover the amount of the state court judgment he had obtained against the insureds pursuant to N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(a)(2), the district court's grant of summary judgment to the minor was affirmed with respect to its holdings that the insurance company was not obligated to indemnify the husband insured and was not estopped from denying coverage as to the minor because the insurance company's investigation was reasonably prompt, necessary, and undertaken in good faith, and thus its disclaimer as to the husband insured was not untimely, and the insurance company was not obligated to disclaim coverage as to the minor because he never provided notice of the occurrence. Webster v Mount Vernon Fire Ins. Co., 368 F.3d 209, 2004 U.S. App. LEXIS 8720 (2d Cir. N.Y. 2004).

Because injured party did not assert and independent claim against insurer, insurer's disclaimer against insured also served as a disclaimer against injured party. Mount Vernon Fire Ins. Co. v Harris, 193 F. Supp. 2d 674, 2002 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 5996 (E.D.N.Y. 2002).

Trial court erred in denying plaintiff's summary judgment motion pursuant to N.Y. C.P.L.R. 3212 in a declaratory judgment action concerning insurance coverage; defendant failed to satisfy the requirements of N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(d) in disclaiming coverage for an accident under a supplemental rental car insurance policy, as defendant's disclaimer letters quoted exclusions from the wrong insurance policy. Lancer Ins. Co. v Phila. Indem. Ins. Co., 12 A.D.3d 641, 786 N.Y.S.2d 191, 2004 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 14577 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2004).

Trial court properly denied an insurance company's summary judgment motion in plaintiff's action seeking to recover supplementary underinsured motorist coverage, because plaintiff presented a triable issue of fact on whether the company issued a timely disclaimer of coverage as required by Insurance Law § 3420(d) by presenting conflicting evidence as to when the insurance company first received notice of the accident and when it first became aware that plaintiff was operating her own vehicle at the time of the accident and therefore was subject to a policy exclusion. Ciasullo v Nationwide Ins. Co., 32 A.D.3d 889, 823 N.Y.S.2d 85, 2006 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10942 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2006).

In an insurance coverage dispute, notice of disclaimer of coverage sent to particular insured was sufficiently specific because it apprised the insured that the insurer was disclaiming coverage on the grounds of a policy auto exclusion. City of New York v W. Heritage Ins. Co., 98 F. Supp. 3d 557, 2015 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 27780 (E.D.N.Y. 2015).

147. Other matters

In action to recover no-fault billing from insurer for medical services rendered to allegedly injured motorist, hospital was not entitled to summary judgment based on insurer's failure to deny claim within 30 days or seek verification within 10 days after receipt of claim as prescribed by CLS Ins § 5106(a) and 11 NYCRR § 65.15(g)(3), where insurer's defense was premised on its assertion that injured person's condition and hospitalization were unrelated to automobile accident, and that medical treatment was excessive; insurer, despite its untimely disclaimer, may assert lack of coverage defense premised on fact or founded belief that alleged injury does not arise out of insured incident. 90 N.Y.2d 195, 659 N.Y.S.2d 246, 681 N.E.2d 413.

In hospital's action to recover no-fault medical payments for services and treatment provided to insured, insurer was precluded from raising statutory intoxication defense where it did not timely deny hospital's no-fault claim pursuant to 11 NYCRR § 65.15(g)(3) and CLS Ins § 5106(a); application of interpretive canon of "inclusio unius, exclusio alterius" and consideration of 11 NYCRR § 65.15(g)(5), which expressly excludes preclusion as remedy for insurer's failure to comply with 10-day notice requirement for statutory exclusions, impliedly recognizes availability of preclusion remedy under § 65.15(g)(3). Presbyterian Hosp. v

Maryland Cas. Co., 90 N.Y.2d 274, 660 N.Y.S.2d 536, 683 N.E.2d 1, 1997 N.Y. LEXIS 1358 (N.Y. 1997).

Employer's insurer was not required by N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(d) to make timely disclaimer of coverage in a contribution and indemnification claim because, inasmuch as the insured was a New Jersey business, the policy was neither actually "delivered" nor "issued for delivery" in New York. Preserver Ins. Co. v Ryba, 10 N.Y.3d 635, 862 N.Y.S.2d 820, 893 N.E.2d 97, 2008 N.Y. LEXIS 1483 (N.Y. 2008).

Nonresident risk retention group's disclaimer of coverage was not regulated by the Insurance Law because the statutory reference to an insurer's failure "to promptly disclose coverage" did not include the timely disclaimer requirement of N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(d)(2), as the prohibition on an unfair claim settlement practice based on a failure to promptly disclose coverage encompassed the mandates of N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(d)(1), not N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(d)(2), since the statutory text plainly qualified a reference to N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420, limiting the reference to an insurer's failure "to promptly disclose coverage pursuant to" N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(d) and (f)(2)(A), so the statute applied solely to those portions of N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(d) and (f) requiring a prompt disclosure of coverage-specific information. Nadkos, Inc. v Preferred Contrs. Ins. Co. Risk Retention Group LLC, 34 N.Y.3d 1, 132 N.E.3d 568, 108 N.Y.S.3d 375, 2019 N.Y. LEXIS 1642 (N.Y. 2019).

The trial court erred in refusing to stay arbitration of an uninsured motorist insurance claim at the request of the claimant's insurer, which claimed that an issue existed as to whether the driver who was at fault in the subject accident was in fact insured, on the asserted ground that the insurer had failed to issue a timely disclaimer of liability under Ins Law § 167(8), since the words "deny coverage" as used in the statute refer to denial of liability predicated upon an exclusion in the policy, and the possible existence of insurance on the allegedly uninsured vehicle would in no sense constitute an exclusion from coverage; instead, the absence of insurance was an essential prerequisite for the existence of coverage under the uninsured motorist endorsement, and Ins Law § 167(8) therefore did not apply to require a prompt notice of disclaimer by the insurer. Aetna Casualty & Surety Co. v Hines, 102 A.D.2d 725, 476 N.Y.S.2d 561, 1984 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 18889 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1984).

The trial court erred in denying an insured's motion to stay an uninsured motorist arbitration proceeding pending a hearing on the issue of whether or not the insurer had issued a policy of insurance with respect to the vehicle in question, on the asserted ground that the insurer had failed to give the notice of its disclaimer of liability required by Ins Law § 167(8), since insurers are not required to deny coverage under the statute, or otherwise to respond to claims, when they have no contract with a claimant with respect to the vehicle involved, and the insurer had demonstrated that a thorough search of its records, both for the alleged named insured and for an insurance number indicated on a purported identification card issued to such insured, had failed to disclose any insurance coverage for such person, and that the policy number submitted was not a number that would identify any policy issued by the insurer. Aetna Casualty & Surety Co. v Rodriguez, 102 A.D.2d 744, 476 N.Y.S.2d 879, 1984 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 18913 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1984).

Plaintiffs were not entitled to summary judgment in action to recover damages under "no-fault" provisions of certain automobile liability insurance policies, even though defendant insurer conceded that it failed to timely disclaim liability based on alleged failure of plaintiffs' assignors to notify it of accidents underlying disputed claims for "no-fault" insurance benefits, where there were issues of fact as to whether policies were issued to persons referred to in causes of action; insurer had no duty to disclaim or deny coverage where there was simply no coverage. Nyack Hosp. v State Farm Ins. Co., 150 A.D.2d 659, 541 N.Y.S.2d 531, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6933 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1989).

Insurance agent was not entitled to summary judgment in action for negligence where (1) client forwarded summons and complaint to agent on basis that it appeared to involve incident which occurred during period of insurance coverage, (2) insurance agent indicated that summons and complaint had been forwarded to insurance company and that claim had been taken care of, and (3) insurance agent subsequently returned all papers to client and stated that incident actually occurred prior to commencement of insurance coverage. General Sportwear Co. v Case, 158 A.D.2d 884, 551 N.Y.S.2d 678, 1990 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1882 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1990).

Insurer which issued "Fiduciary Liability Policy," which mistakenly contained several pages of insurer's standard form for another type of policy, could not be held liable for punitive damages merely because it simultaneously (1) contended that policy should be reformed by replacement of pages erroneously included, and (2) argued that provisions contained in erroneous pages, if applicable, would exclude coverage. Multiplan, Inc. v Federal Ins. Co., 179 A.D.2d 541, 579 N.Y.S.2d 45, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 518 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1992).

Insurer was required to provide notice of disclaimer of coverage to injured passenger under motor vehicle policy issued to owner of vehicle in which she was riding, despite insurer's contention that driver of vehicle was nonpermissive user and policy did not provide coverage for nonpermissive users, where nonpermissive use was not specifically denominated as exclusion under policy but appeared as definition of coverage; strong statutory presumption of permissive use would be deemed in force at time of accident so that subsequent finding of nonpermissive use negating coverage would require notice of disclaimer. Greater N.Y. Mut. Ins. Co. v Clark, 205 A.D.2d 857, 613 N.Y.S.2d 295, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6073 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), app. denied, 84 N.Y.2d 807, 621 N.Y.S.2d 516, 645 N.E.2d 1216, 1994 N.Y. LEXIS 3475 (N.Y. 1994).

Liability insurer's blanket statement that it "has all the classic delay problems to deal with," without more, was insufficient to demonstrate actual prejudice for purpose of establishing its contention of laches as defense to claim based on alleged deficiencies in insurer's notice of cancellation. Macon v Arnlie Realty Co., 207 A.D.2d 268, 615 N.Y.S.2d 28, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8136 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1994).

In action by plaintiff who performed surgery on insured person in 1993 automobile accident and thereafter sought to recover unpaid no-fault insurance benefits as her assignee, plaintiff was not entitled to summary judgment on ground that defendant insurer was precluded from defending action because its disclaimer of coverage was untimely, where defendant asserted that 1993 neck injury for which plaintiff sought benefits did not arise from 1987 automobile accident. Presbyterian Hosp. v Aetna Life & Cas. Co., 222 A.D.2d 492, 635 N.Y.S.2d 252, 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12788 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1995).

Absent controlling statutory provision, to extent that allegations of underlying complaints against insured placed those claims within pollution exclusion of insured's liability policy, insurer did not have to disclaim coverage in order to avoid coverage. Merchants Mut. Ins. Co. v Allcity Ins. Co., 245 A.D.2d 590, 664 N.Y.S.2d 690, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12538 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1997).

In action by owner of leased car against its excess liability insurer, Appellate Division could not view insurer as reinsurer and require it to prove actual prejudice in order for its disclaimer of coverage to be valid; holding in American Home Assur. Co. v International Ins. Co., 219 AD2d 143, that excess carriers were not entitled to same protection as primary insurers was reversed by Court of Appeals in American Home Assur. Co. v International Ins. Co., 90 NY2d 433. First City Acceptance Corp. v Gulf Ins. Co., 245 A.D.2d 649, 665 N.Y.S.2d 114, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12534 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1997).

In plaintiff's action against his insurer seeking additional personal injury protection (PIP) benefits, and against insurance agency for failure to timely advise him of existence of additional PIP coverage under his insurance policy, claim against insurance agency was rendered moot by court's ruling that insurer's disclaimer of coverage based on failure to give timely notice was untimely as matter of law; however, plaintiff was not ipso facto entitled to summary judgment against insurer, inasmuch as insurer disclaimed coverage on additional grounds that plaintiff's medical disability was not verified for entire period claimed, that full extent of his lost wages were included within basic economic loss, and that he had settled his negligence action against tortfeasor without protecting insurer's subrogation rights. Cardinell v Allstate Ins. Co., 258 A.D.2d 853, 686 N.Y.S.2d 155, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1947 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1999).

In action seeking declaration that plaintiff was not obligated to defend or indemnify its insured in underlying action, court erred in granting defendant's motion to amend its answer to include affirmative defense of improper notice of disclaimer under CLS Ins § 3420(d) where motion was brought on eve of trial, 4 years after service of answer, all facts on which defense was based were known to defendant from outset, and belated challenge to notice of disclaimer seriously prejudiced plaintiff by depriving it of opportunity to conduct discovery on issue. Excelsior Ins. Co. v Antretter Contr. Corp., 262 A.D.2d 124, 693 N.Y.S.2d 100, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6795 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1999).

In plaintiff's action seeking satisfaction of judgment in its favor against defendant's insured pursuant to "errors and omissions" policy, defendant was entitled to summary judgment on ground that plaintiff's claim was not related to "death or bodily injury" within scope of CLS Ins § 3420(d) where judgment was for economic injury arising from misfeasance of insured's employee, consisting of notarizing forged power of attorney. Fairmont Funding, Ltd. v Utica Mut. Ins. Co., 264 A.D.2d 581, 694 N.Y.S.2d 389, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8951 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1999).

Insurer was not required to disclaim uninsured motorist coverage where it had not been established that there was no insurance coverage on offending vehicle on date of accident. Allstate Ins. Co. v Frederick, 266 A.D.2d 283, 698 N.Y.S.2d 266, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11316 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1999).

Company listed in automobile insurance policy as owner/lessor of vehicle and named in policy as additional insured was entitled to partial summary judgment on its cause of action against insurer to recover as additional insured where (1) company, as owner of vehicle, had insurable interest for which insurer had provided coverage, (2) it was irrelevant that principal insureds had misrepresented their own interest in insured vehicle, and (3) thus, insurer improperly disclaimed liability as to company. BMW Fin. Servs. NA, Inc. v Hassan, 273 A.D.2d 428, 710 N.Y.S.2d 607, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7367 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't), app. denied, 95 N.Y.2d 767, 717 N.Y.S.2d 547, 740 N.E.2d 653, 2000 N.Y. LEXIS 3507 (N.Y. 2000), overruled in part, Admiral Ins. Co. v Joy Contrs., Inc., 19 N.Y.3d 448, 948 N.Y.S.2d 862, 972 N.E.2d 103, 2012 N.Y. LEXIS 1352 (N.Y. 2012).

Provision of CLS Ins § 3420(d) requiring timely notice of disclaimer was applicable, although policy was issued out of state and listed address of insured's corporate headquarters out of state, where policy expressly covered insureds and risks located in state. Columbia Cas. Co. v Nat'l Emergency Servs., 282 A.D.2d 346, 723 N.Y.S.2d 473, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4072 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2001).

Written disclaimer was not required under N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(d) in an underlying action involving a lessee's allegations of wrongful eviction/wrongful entry as the claims did not arise from death or bodily injury. 47 Mamaroneck Ave. Corp. v Hartford Fire Ins. Co., 50 A.D.3d 952, 857 N.Y.S.2d 610, 2008 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3491 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2008).

Finding that an insurer's failure to send its disclaimer notice to the plaintiff in the underlying personal injury case and to the insureds rendered the disclaimer invalid under N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(d) was error because the insureds lacked standing to assert the statutory violation as to the underlying plaintiff, and the insurer complied with the statute by sending the disclaimer notice to the insureds' insurance carrier. Cincinnati Ins. Cos. v Sirius Am. Ins. Co., 51 A.D.3d 1365, 856 N.Y.S.2d 800, 2008 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3934 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 2008).

Insurer's failure to issue a timely disclaimer of coverage under its general liability policy was not fatal to the insurer obtaining a declaratory judgment that it was not required to defend or indemnify plaintiffs in an underlying personal injury action; the insurer was not required to timely disclaim coverage because its denial of coverage was based on the lack of coverage rather than on a policy exclusion. Maxwell Plumb Mech. Corp. v Nationwide Prop. & Cas. Ins. Co., 116 A.D.3d 740, 983 N.Y.S.2d 600, 2014 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2352 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2014).

Montana risk retention group (RRG) was entitled to summary judgment as to a claim of failure to provide timely notice of disclaimer because (1) N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(d)(2) imposed a heightened standard requirement impairing an RRG's ability to operate on a nationwide basis without tailoring the RRG's policies to the specific requirements of every state in which the RRG did business, so N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(d)(2) was preempted by the Liability Risk Retention Act, and (2) N.Y. Ins. Law § 2601 did not include a violation of N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(d)(2) as an unfair claims settlement practice that was a permissible regulation of a nondomiciliary RRG, as N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(d)(2) was not within the scope of N.Y. Ins. Law §§ 2601 and 5904. Nadkos, Inc. v Preferred Contrs. Ins. Co. Risk Retention Group LLC, 162 A.D.3d 7, 76 N.Y.S.3d 528, 2018 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3154 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2018), aff'd, 170 A.D.3d 460, 93 N.Y.S.3d 834, 2019 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1642 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2019).

Neither party was entitled to summary judgment regarding the insurer's timely notice of disclaimer because there were questions of fact regarding whether the insurer's claims manager actually asked the insured if she knew of any prior biting events by the family dog, and whether the insurer failed to conduct a reasonable and prompt investigation into the potential applicability of the canine exclusion. Battisti v Broome Coop. Ins. Co., 163 A.D.3d 1091, 79 N.Y.S.3d 765, 2018 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4924 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2018).

In indemnification action against state, county was entitled to recover amount in excess of coverage provided by state's insurer under snow and ice agreement in which state agreed to conduct county's defense in underlying tort action, even though county failed to prove that it had been coerced into settling underlying action by counsel for insurer (who had informed county attorney on day trial was to begin that insurer was settling action and was disclaiming portion of liability, so that county would have to pay difference) since insurer's untimely disclaimer perpetrated actionable wrong on county which could be vicariously imputed to state due to nondelegable duty of its contractual liability to conduct defense, regardless of its employment of independent contractor (insurer's counsel) to do so. County of Sullivan v State, 135 Misc. 2d 810, 517 N.Y.S.2d 671, 1987 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2311 (N.Y. Ct. Cl. 1987), aff'd, 137 A.D.2d 165, 528 N.Y.S.2d 227, 1988 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5002 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1988).

In action to recover unpaid no-fault insurance medical benefits and legal fees, plaintiff was entitled to summary judgment where defendant insurer failed to pay or deny claim, or timely request verification from plaintiff, within 10 business days of its receipt of claim. Sehagal v American Transit Ins. Co., 178 Misc. 2d 407, 678 N.Y.S.2d 468, 1998 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 431 (N.Y. Civ. Ct. 1998).

Plaintiffs were not entitled to summary judgment dismissing an insured's affirmative defense on the ground it waived that defense under N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(d). As the defense alleged that plaintiffs' claim was subject to multiple self-insured retentions (SIRs) under the general liability policies, and the SIRs, which were contained in endorsements, did not implicate policy exclusions, the time requirements for disclaiming coverage under § 3420(d) were inapplicable. Roman Catholic Diocese of Brooklyn v National Union Fire Ins. Co. of Pittsburgh, Pa., 87 A.D.3d 1057, 930 N.Y.S.2d 215, 2011 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6432 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2011), aff'd, 21 N.Y.3d 139, 969 N.Y.S.2d 808, 991 N.E.2d 666, 2013 N.Y. LEXIS 1186 (N.Y. 2013).

Insured could not claim any benefit, in its action against insurer for remediation expenses, under theory that insurer had made "blanket denial" of coverage, where such expenditures were made prior to any receipt of such denial. Texaco A/S (Den.) v Commercial Ins. Co., 160 F.3d 124, 1998 U.S. App. LEXIS 28240 (2d Cir. N.Y. 1998).

Doctrine that liability insurer cannot raise, at trial, grounds for non-coverage that were not stated in its letter of disclaimer did not apply where insurer's defenses related to scope of insuring clause, not other conditions of coverage such as insured's timely reporting of claim. Continental Ins. Co. v Estate of Benton, 896 F. Supp. 272, 1995 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 12681 (N.D.N.Y. 1995).

Insured was not entitled to set deadline by which excess carrier had to raise its defenses to liability coverage or waive them. City of Utica v Genesee Mgmt., 934 F. Supp. 510, 1996 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 10723 (N.D.N.Y. 1996).

Homeowners' claim of untimely disclaimer came too late because it was not raised in the original complaint, and even if the claim had been timely the contention that the insurance company was required to disclaim failed on the merits under N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(d) since where the insurance company's policy limits were exhausted after application of the anti-stacking provision, no disclaimer was required; therefore, the insurance company's motion for summary judgment was granted. Greenidge v Allstate Ins. Co., 312 F. Supp. 2d 430, 2004 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 2391 (S.D.N.Y. 2004), aff'd, 446 F.3d 356, 2006 U.S. App. LEXIS 10362 (2d Cir. N.Y. 2006).

N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(d) requires that the insurer give notice as soon as reasonably possible of its "intention" to disclaim or deny coverage. The insurer would have been required to disclaim coverage only if it was contractually obligated to provide additional insured coverage to the general contractor, and that contractual obligation was not present. Palanquet v Weeks Marine, Inc., 333 F. Supp. 2d 58, 2004 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 17764 (E.D.N.Y. 2004), vacated, in part, 352 F. Supp. 2d 361, 2005 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 996 (E.D.N.Y. 2005).

The Bus Regulatory Reform Act and the regulations promulgated thereunder did not preempt application of N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420 in plaintiff insurer's action for reimbursement against defendant insured, an owner and operator of a bus company. Ins. Corp. v Monroe Bus Corp., 491 F. Supp. 2d 430, 2007 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 44489 (S.D.N.Y. 2007).

XIII. Insurer's General Defenses

148. In general

The words "under the terms of the policy" refer to every term of the policy which is obligatory upon the policyholder and which it the assured violated would bar recovery by him, and hence by the injured person suing under the policy. It seems that the legislature did not intend to deprive the insurance company of any defenses which it could have properly urged against the assured under the provisions of the policy, had he brought an action thereon. Roth v National Auto. Mut. Casualty Co., 202 A.D. 667, 195 N.Y.S. 865, 1922 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4954 (N.Y. App. Div. 1922), app. dismissed, 235 N.Y. 605, 139 N.E. 752, 235 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 605, 1923 N.Y. LEXIS 1329 (N.Y. 1923).

Before an insurance company is entitled to offer any defenses to a cause of action against the insured under former § 109 [predecessor to former § 167, now § 3420], it must show by affidavit or other proof that it is entitled to defend the action. Killeen v General Acc. Fire & Life Assurance Corp., 227 N.Y.S. 220, 131 Misc. 691, 1928 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 720 (N.Y. Sup. Ct.), aff'd, 224 A.D. 719, 229 N.Y.S. 875, 1928 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10667 (N.Y. App. Div. 1928).

149. Availability of particular defenses

In primary liability insurer's action to recover excess insurers' proportional shares of settlement negotiated in underlying wrongful death action, excess liability insurers were entitled to assert defense based on late notice without showing that they were prejudiced by delay; court's holding in Unigard Sec. ins. Co. v North Riv. Ins. Co., 79 NY2d 576, that breach of prompt-notice provisions in reinsurance policy is not ground for disclaiming coverage unless reinsurer can show that it was actually prejudiced by delay, does not apply to providers of excess liability insurance because excess insurers have little in common with reinsurers. American Home Assur. Co. v International Ins. Co., 90 N.Y.2d 433, 661 N.Y.S.2d 584, 684 N.E.2d 14, 1997 N.Y. LEXIS 1378 (N.Y. 1997).

Where the underlying tort action was commenced by an employee of a self-service gasoline filling station and alleged that as a result of plaintiff's negligence and breach of warranties she sustained serious permanent injuries due to exposure to toxic substances in the leaded gasoline sold at the station, which first manifested themselves in October, 1974, Special Term properly denied defendant's motion for summary judgment in that defendant insurer could not disclaim coverage on the asserted ground that the injuries alleged in the complaint manifested themselves before the effective date of its general liability policy, January 1, 1975, since the allegations can reasonably be read as asserting that while the injuries first manifested themselves in October, 1974, the continued exposure to toxic substances thereafter, including the period from January, 1975 until the employment terminated in January, 1976, aggravated existing injuries or caused additional injuries. Autotronic Systems, Inc. v Aetna Life & Casualty, 89 A.D.2d 401, 456 N.Y.S.2d 504, 1982 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 18394 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1982).

In action by plaintiffs who were injured while operating leased equipment, wherein lessor of equipment asserted third-party complaint alleging that accident was caused by lessee's negligent placement of equipment, and equipment lessee then demanded defense and indemnification coverage as additional insured under lessor's comprehensive liability policy, insurer was not entitled to summary judgment on ground that it did not insure lessee against its own negligence, where language of additional insured endorsement did not focus on precise cause of accidents, but rather focused on general nature of operation in course of which injury was sustained. Nuzzo v Griffin Tech., 222 A.D.2d 184, 643 N.Y.S.2d 802, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6777 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1996), app. denied, 91 N.Y.2d 802, 666 N.Y.S.2d 564, 669 N.E.2d 534, 1997 N.Y. LEXIS 4164 (N.Y. 1997).

Court erred in dismissing insurer's affirmative defense alleging arson in action for breach of insurance contract where evidence amply supported finding that insured had financial motive for arson, and there was ample testimony that blaze was deliberately set. Ashline v Genesee Patrons Coop. Ins. Co., 224 A.D.2d 847, 638 N.Y.S.2d 217, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1268 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1996).

Seemingly contrary dictum in Obercon v Glebatis, 89 AD2d 762, did not alter rule that defense of failure to use available seat belt has nothing to do with issues of liability or serious injury threshold. Carson v De Lorenzo, 238 A.D.2d 790, 657 N.Y.S.2d 469, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3944 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), app. denied, 90 N.Y.2d 810, 666 N.Y.S.2d 99, 688 N.E.2d 1381, 1997 N.Y. LEXIS 3628 (N.Y. 1997).

Insurer's submission of evidence of underwriting practices that it followed 2 years after it accepted insured's application for insurance, couple with conclusory deposition testimony of insurer's underwriter, was insufficient to meet its burden of proving, on its motion for summary judgment dismissing complaint, that insured's misrepresentations were material as matter of law; thus, materiality of insured's failure to disclose prior loss was question of fact for jury. Alfie's Original Souliers v Phoenix Assur. Co., 245 A.D.2d 179, 665 N.Y.S.2d 890, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13133 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1997).

In bringing legal malpractice action as assignee of insured, in which insurer asserted that counsel failed to advise insured of necessity of obtaining insurer's consent to settlement, insurer implicitly abandoned all other defenses that it might have raised to coverage under its excess professional liability policy, because it had to show that but for counsel's failure, insured would have received indemnification under that policy. Jones Lang Wootton USA v LeBoeuf, Lamb, Greene & MacRae, 243 A.D.2d 168, 674 N.Y.S.2d 280, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4053 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't), app. dismissed, 92 N.Y.2d 962, 683 N.Y.S.2d 172, 705 N.E.2d 1213, 1998 N.Y. LEXIS 4090 (N.Y. 1998).

Excess professional liability insurer ratified settlement and would not be allowed to evade its contractual duties to insured under terms of policy where insurer did not contend that terms of settlement were unreasonable, did not specify basis for its objection to settlement, implicitly abandoned its defenses to coverage by bringing legal malpractice action as insured's assignee, and embraced all benefits of settlement, thereby limiting its exposure to liability to amount fixed in settlement agreement and avoiding further litigation expense. Jones Lang Wootton USA v LeBoeuf, Lamb, Greene & MacRae, 243 A.D.2d 168, 674 N.Y.S.2d 280, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4053 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't), app. dismissed, 92 N.Y.2d 962, 683 N.Y.S.2d 172, 705 N.E.2d 1213, 1998 N.Y. LEXIS 4090 (N.Y. 1998).

Commercial property liability insurer was entitled to summary judgment declaring that it had no duty to indemnify corporate insured for property damage, where policy application contained false representations by corporation's officers and shareholders concerning extent of prior insurance claims, and insurer's underwriting practices with respect to applicants with similar histories established as matter of law that such misrepresentations were material. Philadelphia Indem. Ins. Co. v Mendon Ponds Tennis Club, Inc., 259 A.D.2d 957, 687 N.Y.S.2d 511, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3058 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1999).

Insurer may not insist on adherence to terms of its policy after it has repudiated liability on claim by sending letter disclaiming coverage, and it may not, after such repudiation, create grounds for its refusal to pay by demanding compliance with proof-of-loss provisions of policy; rather, it must stand or fall on defense on which it based its refusal to pay. State Farm Ins. Co. v Domotor, 266 A.D.2d 219, 697 N.Y.S.2d 348, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11114 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1999).

It is a question of fact whether the insurer by its acts or conduct or that of its representatives waived a forfeiture which would otherwise result from the non-payment of premiums. Lothrop v Allstate Life Ins. Co., 62 Misc. 2d 962, 310 N.Y.S.2d 631, 1970 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1786 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1970).

As a matter of public policy, practicing psychiatrist, who admitted that fornication "therapy" he administered to lesbian patient did not constitute medical practice, would be denied resort to the judicial process for purpose of recovering from malpractice insurer the costs and expenses he incurred in defending patient's suit, in which he was adjudicated as having indulged his concupiscentia medicus; to rule otherwise would be to indemnity immorality and to pay the expenses of prurience. Hartogs v Employers Mut. Liability Ins. Co., 89 Misc. 2d 468, 391 N.Y.S.2d 962, 1977 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1888 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1977).

Claim in arbitration for uninsured motorist benefits exists solely by reason of separate coverage required to be provided by CLS Ins § 3420 and is contractual in nature; therefore, 6-year statute of limitations applies rather than 3-year statute pertaining to personal injury actions, and this conclusion holds true in cases involving self-insurers. New York City Health & Hospitals Corp. v Degorter, 133 Misc. 2d 93, 506 N.Y.S.2d 644, 1986 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2972 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1986).

It would have been inequitable to allow insurance companies to interpose a defense of laches against the individual asbestos injury related claimants in any future action under N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(a)(2) where the insured insulation company sat on its right to bring a declaratory judgment action against the insurance companies to uphold the insulation company's right to operations coverage under insurance policies. This was especially so in light of the insulation company's having gone out of business and the claimants having had no right to bring their own actions when the insulation company failed to do so but rather had to wait until N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(a)(2) gave the claimants such a right; thus, claims by the claimants against the insurance companies had not occurred yet, and the claimants had not committed laches. Continental Cas. Co. v Employers Ins. Co. of Wausau, 839 N.Y.S.2d 403, 16 Misc. 3d 223, 237 N.Y.L.J. 92, 2007 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3336 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 2007), rev'd, 60 A.D.3d 128, 871 N.Y.S.2d 48, 2008 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9966 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2008).

Statute of limitations had not yet begun to run as to the individual asbestos injury related claimants because their claims against the insurance companies did not accrue under N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(a)(2) until after judgments were obtained against the insured insulation company. Continental Cas. Co. v Employers Ins. Co. of Wausau, 839 N.Y.S.2d 403, 16 Misc. 3d 223, 237 N.Y.L.J. 92, 2007 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3336 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 2007), rev'd, 60 A.D.3d 128, 871 N.Y.S.2d 48, 2008 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9966 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2008).

Under the direct action statute, N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420, a class of asbestos claimants stood in the shoes of a defaulted insured that had manufactured asbestos. Therefore, the insurer's equitable defenses against the insured, including the defense of laches, also applied to the claimants. Continental Cas. Co. v Employers Ins. Co. of Wausau, 60 A.D.3d 128, 871 N.Y.S.2d 48, 2008 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9966 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2008), app. denied, 13 N.Y.3d 710, 890 N.Y.S.2d 447, 918 N.E.2d 962, 2009 N.Y. LEXIS 4020 (N.Y. 2009).

150. Other matters

Insurer of lessor of automobiles, by payment on at least one instance of claim arising out of a short term lease, waived any right to assert policy exclusion of coverage for drive-yourself private passenger vehicles except leased on annual basis. Rosado v Eveready Ins. Co., 34 N.Y.2d 43, 356 N.Y.S.2d 8, 312 N.E.2d 153, 1974 N.Y. LEXIS 1587 (N.Y. 1974).

Where employer had rule that unauthorized persons were not allowed to ride in company vehicles, and employee violated the restriction, there was no liability coverage for injury to unauthorized person. Primeau v Insurance Co. of North America, 46 A.D.2d 459, 363 N.Y.S.2d 124, 1975 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8517 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1975).

Insured's default in declaratory judgment action brought by insurer to disclaim coverage did not estop nondefaulting injured third party from contesting that issue. American Motorists Ins. Co. v North Country Motors, Ltd., 57 A.D.2d 158, 393 N.Y.S.2d 799, 1977 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10941 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1977).

Person concerned with issue of insurance coverage cannot be deprived of opportunity to be heard on that point by default of another and doctrine of collateral estoppel or res judicata cannot be used to effectuate such an end. American Motorists Ins. Co. v North Country Motors, Ltd., 57 A.D.2d 158, 393 N.Y.S.2d 799, 1977 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10941 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1977).

Liability insurer of passenger injured in vehicle insured by another company was not collaterally estopped from litigating question of whether it was required to afford "no-fault" protection to passenger under policy which excluded such coverage if insured was occupying another vehicle for which there was other "no-fault" coverage, even though passenger's claim for "no-fault" coverage against driver's insurer had been denied in arbitration proceeding on basis that passenger was not covered by driver's policy, since passenger's insurer had not been party to such arbitration, and thus its interests were not represented. Eveready Ins. Co. v Asante, 153 A.D.2d 874, 545 N.Y.S.2d 585, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11802 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1989).

It was error to grant insureds' motion for summary judgment declaring that insurers were obligated to defend and indemnify insureds in underlying actions where fact issues existed as to whether notice requirement of CLS Veh & Tr § 313(2)(a) was applicable. Fitzsimons v Automobile Ins. Co., 221 A.D.2d 500, 633 N.Y.S.2d 591, 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11985 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1995).

Insurance carrier, which had issued liability insurance policy to defendant police officer's employer, was entitled to summary judgment declaring that it owed no duty to indemnify defendant for damages assessed against him in civil action for sexual battery, as public policy precluded such coverage where jury in underlying action had determined that defendant engaged in sexual intercourse with victim without her consent; harm to victim was inherent in nature of act performed, and resulting injuries (including pregnancy) were, as matter of law, intentionally caused within meaning of policy. Travelers Ins. Cos. v Stanton, 223 A.D.2d 104, 645 N.Y.S.2d 948, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8344 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), app. denied, 89 N.Y.2d 804, 653 N.Y.S.2d 543, 676 N.E.2d 72, 1996 N.Y. LEXIS 4407 (N.Y. 1996).

Defendant insurer was not entitled to summary judgment in action by plaintiff insurer for judgment declaring that defendant was co-insurer in connection with certain automobile accident claims where plaintiff submitted Department of Motor Vehicles Registration Plate Record (form DP-37) and police accident report, both of which indicated that defendant insured automobile in question, and affidavit of defendant's underwriter, who searched defendant's records, was insufficient to establish as matter of law that defendant did not insure automobile, and thus question of fact existed. Country Wide Ins. Co. v Allstate Ins. Co., 223 A.D.2d 664, 637 N.Y.S.2d 218, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 670 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1996).

Petition under CLS CPLR Art 75 to permanently stay arbitration of uninsured motorist claim was properly dismissed without hearing where Department of Motor Vehicles document showed that insurance coverage applicable to offending vehicle had terminated several weeks before accident, there was additional proof that insurer had mailed valid notice of cancellation to vehicle owner, there was no evidence of any defect in cancellation, and mere speculation by counsel that insurer might have failed to mail premium bill to owner before cancellation did not raise triable issue of fact. Eagle Ins. Co. v Awawadeh, 245 A.D.2d 372, 665 N.Y.S.2d 590, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12878 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1997).

Defendant insurer was entitled to summary judgment declaring that it was relieved of any obligation to indemnify plaintiffs in underlying personal injury action by patron who was struck by motor vehicle after consuming alcoholic beverages at plaintiffs' bar, where settlement agreement and general releases executed by injured party and plaintiffs provided that injured party would have no future recourse against plaintiffs in underlying action, regardless of whether plaintiffs obtained any recovery from their insurance carrier, and defendant insurer did not participate in this settlement. McDonough v Dryden Mut. Ins. Co., 276 A.D.2d 817, 713 N.Y.S.2d 787, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10100 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2000).

Student was not entitled to summary judgment in an action against an insurer to enforce a policy's additional insured provision to satisfy a default judgment because the insured did not lease the staircase the student was descending when he fell, the student was not an invitee of the insured at the time of the accident, and, as such, there was no causal relationship between the student's injury and the risk for which coverage was provided. Lissauer v GuideOne Specialty Mut. Ins., 161 A.D.3d 974, 76 N.Y.S.3d 216, 2018 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3454 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2018).

Where the assignee of a retail installment contract executed by a car owner in connection with its purchase brought action against the insurer of the automobile which had been determined a total loss for the amount due on the retail installment contract, the court granted a summary judgment in favor of the insurance company. The insurance company had sent to the owner a check, which was in excess of the amount owed on the car, drawn to the order of both the owner and the credit company. The owner cashed the check over her signature, without the signature of the credit company, and did not pay the credit company the amount due on the note. The court, in granting the summary judgment, said that it was not the insurance company's settlement with the owner that caused the damage in light of the fact that the settlement was for an amount in excess of the amount due on the car, but rather that the damage was caused by the owner in cashing the check and not paying off the note or by the bank in cashing the check without the proper endorsement. Ford Motor Credit Co. v Aetna Casualty & Surety Co., 64 Misc. 2d 413, 314 N.Y.S.2d 831, 1970 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1838 (N.Y. Civ. Ct. 1970).

Homeowners' insurer was not entitled to access to sealed files of criminal proceedings against youthful offenders, including certificates of disposition and plea allocution minutes, for use in avoiding defense and indemnification in underlying civil action against insured youths brought by criminal action complainant, where there was other evidence available to insurer, including oral depositions of insured youths and testimony by nonparty witnesses. People v John F., 174 Misc. 2d 540, 665 N.Y.S.2d 822, 1997 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 517 (N.Y. Dist. Ct. 1997).

Insurer, which was precluded from asserting any defenses in litigation to obtain no-fault benefits by reason of its failure to timely deny claim, was also precluded from challenging adequacy of showing of "medical necessity" of services for which payment was sought. Vinings Spinal Diagnostic, P.C. v Liberty Mut. Ins. Co., 186 Misc. 2d 287, 717 N.Y.S.2d 466, 2000 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 463 (N.Y. Dist. Ct. 2000).

XIV. Effect of Particular Policy Provisions or Conditions

151. Construction of particular terms in policy

State is entitled to indemnification pursuant to liability policy issued by insurer naming as insureds "Jones Beach State Parkway Authority [and] The People of the State of New York as interests may appear", since it is not unreasonable to read ambiguous phrase naming "The People of the State of New York as interests may appear" as insureds under policy and extending coverage to Long Island State Park and Recreation Commission and Department of Transportation for their acts or omissions with respect to Jones Beach State Parkway Authority; any ambiguity must be resolved against insurer which drafted contract. State v Home Indem. Co., 66 N.Y.2d 669, 495 N.Y.S.2d 969, 486 N.E.2d 827, 1985 N.Y. LEXIS 17199 (N.Y. 1985).

Mechanical failure and resulting delay of ambulance did not amount to "accident" under either customary definition of term or insurance policy's expanded definition, and thus there was no coverage under policy, where (1) there were no extraordinary factors that distinguish accidents from other merely unexpected events, i.e., trauma, violence, casualty, suddenness, or application of external force in which automobile was involved, and (2) there was no continuous or repeated exposure. Michaels v City of Buffalo, 85 N.Y.2d 754, 628 N.Y.S.2d 253, 651 N.E.2d 1272, 1995 N.Y. LEXIS 1123 (N.Y. 1995).

Meaning of word "sudden," as used in exception to pollution exclusion clauses of insurers' policies for "sudden and accidental" discharge of pollutants, includes temporal element which cannot be established merely by showing that release of pollutant had its onset at some particular point in time, but is only met by abrupt discharge of significant quantity of pollutant sufficient to have potentially damaging environmental effect. Northville Indus. Corp. v National Union Fire Ins. Co., 89 N.Y.2d 621, 657 N.Y.S.2d 564, 679 N.E.2d 1044, 1997 N.Y. LEXIS 306 (N.Y. 1997).

Although garage operator's use of premises was governed by "management agreement" rather than "lease," ambiguous "additional insured" endorsement which covered owner of building for liability arising out of ownership, maintenance and use of "leased" premises was construed to encompass owner's actual contractual relationship with garage operator, as any other interpretation would render extra coverage purchased by garage operator nugatory. ZKZ Assocs. LP v CNA Ins. Co., 89 N.Y.2d 990, 657 N.Y.S.2d 390, 679 N.E.2d 629, 1997 N.Y. LEXIS 302 (N.Y. 1997).

In asbestos insulation contractor's action to enforce defense and indemnification provisions of comprehensive general liability policies issued by defendant insurers, defendants did not establish as matter of law that asbestos was insured's "product" within meaning of product-hazards exclusion clause of policies even if insured did not manufacture or sell insulation it installed, on ground that insured necessarily "handled" asbestos during its operations as term "handled" is broadly understood, where term "named insured's products" was defined in policies as "goods or products manufactured, sold, handled or distributed by the named insured"; association of "handled" with words "manufacturer" and "seller" in same clause indicates that it should be given its commercial connotation, and be construed to refer only to products in which insured trades or deals. Frontier Insulation Contrs. v Merchants Mut. Ins. Co., 91 N.Y.2d 169, 667 N.Y.S.2d 982, 690 N.E.2d 866, 1997 N.Y. LEXIS 3722 (N.Y. 1997).

Because each claimant fell within a supplementary uninsured/underinsured motorists (SUM) endorsement's definition of an "insured," they were not "other persons" entitled to SUM coverage under N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420, or Regulation 35-D, which was codified at N.Y. Comp. Codes R. & Regs. tit. 11, § 60-2. Allstate Ins. Co. v Rivera, 12 N.Y.3d 602, 883 N.Y.S.2d 755, 911 N.E.2d 817, 2009 N.Y. LEXIS 1750 (N.Y. 2009).

Policies' self-insured retention (SIR) was not subject to the notice requirements of N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(d) because it did not bar coverage or implicate policy exclusions, but, rather focused on the extent of alleged liability under the various policies, and, thus, the insurer did not have to give notice of the SIR requirement because the SIR was not a basis for disclaimer or denial of coverage; the SIR, which was effectively a deductible to the policies, was not a basis for the denial of coverage, and, similarly, arguments pertaining to the appropriate methodology for allocating liability did not provide an exclusionary basis to evade coverage. Accordingly, § 3420(d) did not apply, and the insurer was not precluded from arguing that the underlying incidents of sexual abuse amounted to multiple occurrences, and that any liability should have been apportioned on a pro rata basis. Roman Catholic Diocese of Brooklyn v National Union Fire Ins. Co. of

In action seeking declaratory judgment that automobile insurance policy not having underinsured motorist endorsement included such coverage, court erred in concluding that phrase "out of state coverage" in supplementary coverage section of insurance application created ambiguity and could have been meant to apply to uninsured motorist coverage merely because language did not refer to any endorsement attached to policy, since policy was not ambiguous and clearly failed to provide underinsured motorist coverage in absence of endorsement. Terwilliger v American Motorists Ins. Co., 156 A.D.2d 805, 549 N.Y.S.2d 222, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 15538 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1989).

Insurer was entitled to summary judgment declaring that it was not required to defend and indemnify friend of insured's son (who had let mastpole slip while assisting son in securing boat on trailer) under homeowner's policy which defined insured as "any person or organization legally responsible for...[the] watercraft," even though removal of mast was necessary task and required participation of 2 people, since guest who assists custodian does not become "legally responsible" for watercraft; alternate construction to include any conduct related to operation of boat would materially alter clear meaning of policy language. Liberty Mut. Fire Ins. Co. v Home Ins. Co., 164 A.D.2d 857, 559 N.Y.S.2d 363, 1990 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10185 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1990), app. denied, 77 N.Y.2d 802, 567 N.Y.S.2d 643, 569 N.E.2d 446, 1991 N.Y. LEXIS 106 (N.Y. 1991).

Plaintiff came within definition of "real estate manager," and thus was additional insured under policy, where record showed that he managed building on behalf of title owner, even though he was being allowed to purchase building on installment basis in lieu of collecting wages. Morales v Allstate Ins. Co., 170 A.D.2d 419, 566 N.Y.S.2d 295, 1991 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2403 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1991).

Court properly concluded that terms and definitions of homeowner's insurance policy were sufficiently ambiguous to estop insurer from declining to defend and indemnify insured in underlying action arising out of injury sustained in building she had rented to another, since building was listed on declaration page of policy under heading "other insured locations," and word "not" was struck from caption "not rented to others" under which premises were listed as additional insured residence. Knudsen v Field, 185 A.D.2d 765, 586 N.Y.S.2d 950, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9939 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1992).

"Additional Insured" endorsement, which stated that "Persons Insured" provision was amended to include plaintiff but only with respect to liability arising out of operations performed for plaintiff by or on behalf of insured, applied to accident in which subcontractor of insured was injured while removing debris accumulated from insured's work for plaintiff; fact that accident may have been plaintiff's fault was immaterial. Consolidated Edison Co. v Hartford Ins. Co., 203 A.D.2d 83, 610 N.Y.S.2d 219, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3815 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1994).

"Service of suit" clause common to general liability policies issued by underwriters at Lloyds, London, which stated that insurer "at the request of the insured (or reinsured), will submit to the jurisdiction of any Court of competent jurisdiction within the United States," did not constitute "choice of forum" provision which would allow insured to commence action in forum of its choosing and preclude insurer from choosing forum by filing first, but rather indicated insurer's voluntary submission to jurisdiction of United States courts. Price v Brown Group, 206 A.D.2d 195, 619 N.Y.S.2d 414, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11916 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1994), app. denied, 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3992 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't Mar. 17, 1995).

Allegations that insured was negligent in permitting asbestos to be removed without adequate precaution and warning to plaintiffs could reasonably be interpreted to be "accident...neither expected nor intended from the standpoint of the Insured," and thus "occurrence" within meaning of policy. Miano v Hehn, 206 A.D.2d 957, 614 N.Y.S.2d 829, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7663 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1994).

Insured was entitled to summary judgment in action to declare that claim was covered by policy where policy expressly included coverage for recovery against insured on theory of implied contract, and underlying action against insured was limited to theories of unjust enrichment and quantum meruit, which are subsumed in claim for breach of implied contract. American Int'l Specialty Lines Ins. Co. v United States Olympic Comm., 219 A.D.2d 458, 631 N.Y.S.2d 40, 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9140 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1995).

Insured was improperly granted summary judgment declaring that coverage under homeowner's policy included "any personal property that was situate[d] in the barn, which would not normally be found in a barn," since policy specifically and unambiguously stated that coverage for insured's personal property "... [does] not include any barns or their contents." Kellar v Mid-Hudson Co-Operative Ins. Co., 233 A.D.2d 568, 649 N.Y.S.2d 96, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11437 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1996), app. dismissed, 89 N.Y.2d 982, 656 N.Y.S.2d 740, 678 N.E.2d 1356, 1997 N.Y. LEXIS 220 (N.Y. 1997).

Clause in professional liability policy that defined insured, in part, as "any lawyer...who was a former partner...of the firm [insured under the policy] or predecessor's firm(s)" included former partner who was disbarred after occurrence of events giving rise to claim as (1) term "any lawyer" did not clearly exclude persons who were no longer attorneys when professional liability claim was made against them, and (2) insurer submitted no intrinsic evidence to support its claim that attorney had to be member of Bar not only when policy was issued but when underlying action was commenced in order to "insured"; if insurer intended to exclude coverage for former attorney who had been disbarred, it should have stated that exclusion unambiguously. Oot v Home Ins. Co., 244 A.D.2d 62, 676 N.Y.S.2d 715, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8459 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1998).

Insured utility company's liability for resurfacing worker's injury in fall came within scope of additional insured endorsement of its liability policy where endorsement referred, inter alia, to "[w]ork or operations performed by you or on your behalf," and insured had contracted with worker's employer to perform resurfacing work after installation of utility lines; any negligence by resurfacing contractor in causing accident was not material to application of additional insured endorsement, which did not focus on precise cause of accident but on general nature of operation in course of which injury was sustained. Consolidated Edison Co. v United States Fid. & Guar. Co., 263 A.D.2d 380, 693 N.Y.S.2d 31, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7813 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1999).

Insurer was obligated to indemnify insured property owner for its liability in underlying personal injury action by employee of insured's excavation contractor, which was additional insured under insured's policy, where employee was injured because of placement of barricade, and although insurer claimed that such placement had nothing to do with "your [excavation contractor's] work" under additional insured endorsement, that precise argument had been made regarding virtually identical endorsement and rejected in Tishman Constr. Corp. v CNA Ins. Co., 236 AD2d 211. Consolidated Edison Co. v United States Fid. & Guar. Co., 266 A.D.2d 9, 697 N.Y.S.2d 620, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11171 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1999).

Dismissal of insured property owner's third-party claim against its excavation contractor, which was additional insured under insured's liability policy, and any resulting implication that owner was negligent in maintaining unsafe workplace for contractor's employees, had no bearing on issue of insurer's obligations to owner under additional insured endorsement limiting coverage to owner's liability arising from "your [excavation contractor's] work." Consolidated Edison Co. v United States Fid. & Guar. Co., 266 A.D.2d 9, 697 N.Y.S.2d 620, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11171 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1999).

Insurer's duty to provide coverage for asbestos-related bodily injury claims under policy that provided that coverage was triggered by "occurrence," defined as event which included "continuous or repeated exposure" to conditions that resulted in personal injury, was triggered by exposure, whether first or subsequent, but not by exposure "in residence"; trigger event was occurrence that resulted in injury (inhalation), not injury itself (actual onset of asbestosis). Lac D'Amiante du Quebec, Ltee (ASARCO) v Superintendent of Ins. (In re Liquidation of Midland Ins. Co.), 269 A.D.2d 50, 709 N.Y.S.2d 24, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6085 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2000), app. denied, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10264 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't Sept. 28, 2000), overruled in part, Matter of Liquidation of Midland Ins. Co., 16 N.Y.3d 536, 923 N.Y.S.2d 396, 947 N.E.2d 1174, 2011 N.Y. LEXIS 564 (N.Y. 2011).

Insurance policy covered convention center operating corporation for liability for personal injuries suffered at entranceway to convention center by persons who were on premises for purposes of attending licensee's conference, despite fact that entranceway was not included in "Space" licensee was licensed to use for conference, since entranceway was part of "right of passage" to such space, coverage under policy was not limited to injuries incurred in licensed "Space" itself, and person coming to attend corporation's conference had to go through entranceway to convention center in order to reach conference. New York Convention Ctr. Operating Corp. v Morris Cerullo World Evangelism, 269 A.D.2d 275, 704 N.Y.S.2d 211, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2098 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2000).

In construing term "business" in multiperil insurance policy as applied to domestic situation, court should resolve all ambiguities against insurer. Fox v 18-05 215 Street Owners, Inc., 145 A.D.2d 410, 535 N.Y.S.2d 386, 1988 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12954 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1988).

Employee was a pedestrian and not "occupying" the insured vehicle at the time of the accident and, as such, not entitled to supplementary uninsured/underinsured motorist coverage because the employee left the insured vehicle and walked across the street to go to his office, the accident occurred as the employee was walking back across the street, and the employee had yet to reach the insured vehicle; the employee had a mere intent to enter the insured vehicle and was not an occupant. J. Lawrence Constr. Corp. v Republic Franklin Ins. Co., 145 A.D.3d 761, 43 N.Y.S.3d 452, 2016 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8215 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2016).

Under New York law, multiple injuries are grouped as single "occurrence" when they arise out of same event of unfortunate character and occur close in time with no intervening agent. Dicola v American S.S. Owners Mut. Protection & Indem. Assoc. (In re Prudential Lines), 158 F.3d 65, 1998 U.S. App. LEXIS 24614 (2d Cir. N.Y. 1998).

All asbestos-related bodily claims against shipping line resulting from exposure to asbestos on particular ship could not be attributed to single "occurrence" where each claimant was separately exposed to asbestos at different points in time; thus, injuries arose from multiple occurrences, and single deductible would apply to each claim. Dicola v American S.S. Owners Mut. Protection & Indem. Assoc. (In re Prudential Lines), 158 F.3d 65, 1998 U.S. App. LEXIS 24614 (2d Cir. N.Y. 1998).

Shipping line had right to demand that liability insurance policy pay full coverage for each insurance claim in which underlying claimant suffered asbestos exposure and therefore asbestos injury during policy period where (1) policy's broad language covered "any loss [or] damage" which line becomes liable to pay resulting—presumably even in part—from injuries occurring during policy period, (2) there was no contractual intent to require allocation of liability among policies in first instance, and (3) there was no compelling policy or equitable considerations favoring allocation. Dicola v American S.S. Owners Mut. Protection & Indem. Assoc. (In re Prudential Lines), 158 F.3d 65, 1998 U.S. App. LEXIS 24614 (2d Cir. N.Y. 1998).

Term "certificate holder" on commercial form ("Certificate of Insurance") that provides evidence of workers compensation insurance or liability insurance is not synonymous with "additional insured." NY Ins Dep't Gen Counsel, Opinion No. 10-09-12, 2010 NY Insurance GC Opinions LEXIS 47.

152. "Claims" or "claims made"

In action seeking declaratory judgment as to coverage under liability policy issued to claims adjusting company as insured, insurance carrier was not entitled to summary judgment on ground that claim asserted by insured's client for which insured sought coverage was first asserted prior to inception of subject policy, since client's letter to insured on which carrier relied did not constitute "claim" under parties' contract where it did not mention damages or compensation but merely stated dissatisfaction with insured's past performance and warned that failure to correct deficiencies might lead to cancellation of claims adjusting contract; parties contemplated that "claim" would relate to assertion of legally cognizable damage, and would be demand that could be defended. Evanston Ins. Co. v GAB Business Services, Inc., 132 A.D.2d 180, 521 N.Y.S.2d 692, 1987 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 49530 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1987).

Liability insurer was not obligated to defend and indemnify residential landlord under "claims made" policy in damage suit brought by commercial subtenant during policy period where (1) alleged "wrongful acts" from which lawsuit arose occurred prior to effective date of policy, (2) retroactive coverage described in standard policy form was expressly dependent on policy declarations, and (3) from policy declarations listing "retroactive period" beginning at policy effective date, it was apparent that insured had not purchased coverage for claims arising prior to effective date of policy. 30 W. 15th St. Owners Corp. v Travelers Ins. Co., 165 A.D.2d 731, 563 N.Y.S.2d 784, 1990 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11189 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1990).

School was insured under comprehensive general liability policy purchased by swimming club which leased school's swimming pool, and thus insurer was obligated to defend and indemnify school in underlying action by minor who was injured when she dove into pool during club practice, notwithstanding fact that certificate of insurance naming school as insured was not issued until after accident, since policy was of "claims made" type, and both policy and certificate clearly and unambiguously stated effective dates encompassing date of accident. Dryden Cent. Sch. Dist. v Dryden Aquatic Racing Team, 195 A.D.2d 790, 600 N.Y.S.2d 388, 1993 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7286 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1993).

"Overspray" property damage claims were "occurrences" within meaning of policies, even though insured intended to paint bridge in question, since insured did not intend to cause resultant property damage, and insurers each assessed potential risks involved in insuring painting contract before insured's inception of work. Zurich Ins. Co. v White, 221 A.D.2d 700, 633 N.Y.S.2d 415, 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10724 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1995), app. denied, 88 N.Y.2d 804, 645 N.Y.S.2d 446, 668 N.E.2d 417, 1996 N.Y. LEXIS 1507 (N.Y. 1996), app. denied, 88 N.Y.2d 804, 645 N.Y.S.2d 446, 668 N.E.2d 417, 1996 N.Y. LEXIS 1506 (N.Y. 1996).

Where there was no pending claim or lawsuit against plaintiffs in connection with oil spill, general liability provision of policy had not been triggered and plaintiffs had no cause of action against insurer to indemnify them for cleanup costs for which they might be liable under CLS Nav Art 12. Ziankoski v Boonville Oil Co., 241 A.D.2d 951, 661 N.Y.S.2d 322, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7901 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1997).

Insured's action against its insurer to recover its oil spill cleanup costs was properly dismissed where policy agreement was "To indemnify the insured against loss the insured has or will become legally obligated to pay as a result of claims first made against the insured and reported to the Company, in writing, during the policy period...for pollution conditions," only $33,800 of such costs were so reported, and self-insured retention under policy was $50,000, which was greater than covered costs. Camalloy Wire, Inc. v National Union Fire Ins. Co. of Pittsburgh, Pa., 273 A.D.2d 123, 709 N.Y.S.2d 553, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7118 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't), app. denied, 95 N.Y.2d 763, 716 N.Y.S.2d 38, 739 N.E.2d 294, 2000 N.Y. LEXIS 2840 (N.Y. 2000).

On termination of coverage on claims-made errors and omission (E & O) insurance policy, insurer is required within 30 days after termination of coverage to advise its insured of automatic 60-day extended reporting period and to offer insured coverage for additional three-year extended reporting period ("tail" coverage). Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 06-02-01.

Beyond initial 60-day period following termination of claim-made policy for which there is no premium due, sole exception to requirement to pay premium money to receive tail coverage following termination of claims-made policy is when there is medical malpractice policy, under 11 NYCRR §§ 73.4 and 73.5; such exception is inapplicable to errors and omissions (E & O) policy. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 06-02-01.

Insurer that is subject to 11 NYCRR Part 73 (Regulation 121) must offer one-year extended reporting period on cancellation of claims-made liability insurance policy that was written with large deductible or self-insured retention under 11 NYCRR § 73.3(g)(8); however, insurer is exempt from notice requirement of 11 NYCRR § 73.3(e)(1) under 11 NYCRR § 73.2(d)(2)(i). Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 06-11-15.

Insurer that is subject to 11 NYCRR Part 73 (Regulation 121) and that must offer one-year extended reporting period on cancellation of claims-made liability insurance policy that was written with large deductible or self-insured retention must submit written acceptance of extended reporting period within 60 days from date of termination under 11 NYCRR § 73.3(e)(3)(i). Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 06-11-15.

Where claims-made liability insurance policy issued by unauthorized insurer on New York risk has been properly placed through excess line broker under CLS Ins § 2118 and 11 NYCRR Part 27 (Regulation 41), policy is exempt from 11 NYCRR Part 73 (Regulation 121) extended reporting period requirements. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 06-11-15.

Insurance company may choose to issue coverage for previously uninsured period on "claims-made" basis at premium commensurate with possible greater risk, but only with respect to unknown and unreported claims; such coverage must comply with 11 NYCRR Part 73 (Regulation 121). Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 07-04-14.

Coverage for events that occurred during contractually specified period of time that is prior to effective date of occurrence policy may not be issued to person who was previously self-insured and thus has uninsured exposure for prior acts oroccurrences. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 07-04-14.

153. "Intentional acts"

In action by manufacturer of mercury thermometers for declaration that insurers were obligated to indemnify it in completed actions arising from mercury spill, insured was not entitled to summary judgment since it could not be ascertained as matter of law whether insured intended or expected to cause damage that resulted from mercury spill, or if it was substantially certain that such damage would result from manner of operation of plant. Munzer v St. Paul Fire & Marine Ins. Co., 145 A.D.2d 193, 538 N.Y.S.2d 633, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1978 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1989).

Town's adoption of moratorium precluding excavation and removal of topsoil, earth, sand, clay or other soil substances constituted intentional and deliberate act, and thus was not "occurrence" as defined in insurance policy issued to town. Town of Grand Island v Hartford Fire Ins. Co., 206 A.D.2d 887, 614 N.Y.S.2d 831, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7811 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1994), reh'g denied, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10417 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't Sept. 30, 1994), app. denied, 84 N.Y.2d 810, 621 N.Y.S.2d 519, 645 N.E.2d 1219, 1994 N.Y. LEXIS 4390 (N.Y. 1994).

Insurance policy exclusion for acts or injuries expected or intended by insured precluded any liability on part of insurer as to causes of action for libel and slander asserted against insured. DiIorio v National Union Fire Ins. Co., 262 A.D.2d 347, 691 N.Y.S.2d 568, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6385 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1999).

Petition under CLS CPLR § 5227 to compel community college's general liability insurer to pay default judgment debt of college employee was properly dismissed where employee's acts of sexual abuse, sexual harassment, and unlawful imprisonment were intentional and thus were not "occurrence" under policy, and thus insurer had no duty to defend or indemnify employee in underlying action. Sormani v Orange County Community College, 263 A.D.2d 511, 693 N.Y.S.2d 624, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8101 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1999).

In an action under N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420, plaintiff, who was injured in an incident with the insured, was entitled to a declaration that the insurer had to indemnify the insured as an intentional acts exclusion did not apply as when the insured placed plaintiff in a defensive bear hug, it could not be foreseen that plaintiff would fall through a plate glass window. Clayburn v Nationwide Mut. Fire Ins. Co., 58 A.D.3d 990, 871 N.Y.S.2d 487, 2009 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 152 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2009).

"Accidental results" may flow from "intentional causes;" thus, in order to determine whether the result was intended, the "transaction as a whole" test should be applied by the fact finder when determining whether the term accident is applicable to a given situation, and regardless of the initial intent or lack thereof as it relates to causation, or the period of time involved, if the resulting damage could be viewed as unintended by the fact finder the total situation could be found to constitute an accident. Nat'l Grange Mut. Ins. Co. v Utica Mut. Ins. Co., 5 A.D.3d 1045, 773 N.Y.S.2d 692, 2004 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3227 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 2004).

Exclusion for intentional acts must be accorded a strict and narrow construction and a defendant bears the burden of proving that the loss alleged falls within the exclusion and that there is no reasonable interpretation of the exclusion that supports the claim of the plaintiff. Nat'l Grange Mut. Ins. Co. v Utica Mut. Ins. Co., 5 A.D.3d 1045, 773 N.Y.S.2d 692, 2004 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3227 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 2004).

More than a causal connection between the intentional act and the resultant harm is required to prove that the harm was intended. Nat'l Grange Mut. Ins. Co. v Utica Mut. Ins. Co., 5 A.D.3d 1045, 773 N.Y.S.2d 692, 2004 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3227 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 2004).

Neither party was entitled to summary judgment in plaintiff's action that was brought pursuant to N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(a)(2) seeking to recover damages awarded to plaintiff's insureds by a default judgment entered against defendant's insureds where there was an issue of fact as to whether the son of defendant's insureds intended to damage the building owned by plaintiff's insureds when the son ignited the vehicle in order to commit suicide because, although the evidence presented by both plaintiff and defendant established that the building was engulfed in flames before the son drove into it, defendant also presented evidence that the son intended to strike the building with a burning vehicle and thus intended to cause that fire as well. Nat'l Grange Mut. Ins. Co. v Utica Mut. Ins. Co., 5 A.D.3d 1045, 773 N.Y.S.2d 692, 2004 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3227 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 2004).

In ruling that it had subject matter jurisdiction over a N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420 coverage dispute between a creditor and a debtor's insurer under 28 U.S.C.S. §§ 1334(b) and 157, a bankruptcy court noted that the policies were property of the estate, the creditor's rights against the insurer were derivative of the debtor's rights, and disposition of the coverage question could have a collateral estoppel effect on an 11 U.S.C.S. § 523(a)(6) dischargeability issue. The definition of "willful and malicious" under § 523(a)(6) and "intentional" injuries under state insurance law appeared to be identical. Hough v Margulies (In re Margulies), 476 B.R. 393, 2012 Bankr. LEXIS 3768 (Bankr. S.D.N.Y. 2012).

154. "Relative," "family member" and such

Victim of hit-and-run automobile accident, who resided with his parents, was covered as insured under policy issued to corporation of which his parents were officers and shareholders, which defined insured to include relatives of named insured residing with insured, since this description conflicted with description of insured as corporation, which could not have such relatives or suffer personal injuries, and could lead average person, such as plaintiff's parents, to believe policy referred to their relatives. Buckner v Motor Vehicle Accident Indemnification Corp., 107 A.D.2d 1031, 486 N.Y.S.2d 496, 1985 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 42846 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't), rev'd, 66 N.Y.2d 211, 495 N.Y.S.2d 952, 486 N.E.2d 810, 1985 N.Y. LEXIS 17192 (N.Y. 1985).

Plaintiff was entitled to recover under both policies of liability insurance issued to insured, each of which covered separate automobile and provided family coverage to insured's son who drove automobile which struck plaintiff, even though each policy contained clause providing that if 2 or more policies "issued by us to you apply to the same accident," total limits of liability under all such polices would not exceed that of policy with highest limit of liability, since policies did not include any clear "no liability" or "escape" clause, and thus would be interpreted in insured's favor as required by ratable contribution provision of regulations (11 NYCRR 60.1 [g]). Steinberg v State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co., 181 A.D.2d 766, 581 N.Y.S.2d 87, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3738 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1992).

Insureds' son-in-law was "relative" of named insureds for purposes of policy exclusion. Nationwide Mut. Ins. Co. v Hodge, 224 A.D.2d 770, 636 N.Y.S.2d 946, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 758 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1996).

Court erred in denying defendant insurer's summary judgment motion declaring that it was not obligated to pay plaintiff amount of judgment entered in underlying action brought against insureds since policy in question specifically excluded coverage for bodily injuries sustained by resident relative of named insureds, and medical payments to any person regularly residing at insureds' premises, and plaintiff was renting room in one-family home owned by insureds, plaintiff's niece and her husband, and plaintiff sustained injuries when she slipped and fell in house. Artis v Aetna Cas. & Sur. Co., 256 A.D.2d 429, 681 N.Y.S.2d 604, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13506 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1998).

Court erred in determining that language "residents of your household" in homeowner's insurance policy was ambiguous, and in construing that language against defendant insurance company, thereby concluding that plaintiff's daughter was not resident of household of her father and stepmother when she was bitten by her stepmother's dog, where it was undisputed that for approximate 2-year period before incident, daughter regularly stayed with her father on alternate weekends from Friday to Sunday and one night each week, had bed, dresser, clothing, and toys at her father's home, and occasionally received mail there. Canfield v Peerless Ins. Co., 262 A.D.2d 934, 692 N.Y.S.2d 562, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7084 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't), app. denied, 94 N.Y.2d 757, 704 N.Y.S.2d 532, 725 N.E.2d 1094, 1999 N.Y. LEXIS 4022 (N.Y. 1999).

Plaintiffs were entitled to summary judgment declaring that $300,000 general liability limit, rather than $25,000 limit for family members, applied to accident that resulted in injuries to father of named insured, as defendant insurers failed to sustain their burden of proving that term "any family member" was not subject to more than one reasonable interpretation where "insured" was defined as including "a member of the insured's immediate family, including spouses and children," but "family member" was not defined. Gaetan v Firemen's Ins. Co., 264 A.D.2d 806, 695 N.Y.S.2d 608, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9400 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't), app. denied, 94 N.Y.2d 757, 704 N.Y.S.2d 532, 725 N.E.2d 1094, 1999 N.Y. LEXIS 4025 (N.Y. 1999).

Insured's grandson was not member of her "household" within meaning of homeowner's policy, and thus insured was entitled to summary judgment declaring that insurer was obligated to indemnify her for her liability in connection with grandson's fall on front stoop, where grandson and his mother lived in second floor apartment of insured's 2-family home, for which they paid rent, they received separate gas and electric bills, and their apartment had separate locked inner entrance door. General Assur. Co. v Schmitt, 265 A.D.2d 299, 696 N.Y.S.2d 72, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9666 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1999).

Son was resident of his mother's household and thus insured person under supplementary uninsured motorists endorsement to automobile liability policy issued to mother, and thus insurer was not entitled to stay of arbitration under CLS CPLR § 7503(b), where son had his own key to mother's house and was free to come and go at will, he kept clothing and received mail there, and he spent 3 to 4 nights per week there and remainder of his time at home of mother's former boyfriend; person may have more than one residence for insurance coverage purposes. Prudential Prop. & Cas. Ins. Co. v Galioto, 266 A.D.2d 926, 697 N.Y.S.2d 415, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11741 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1999).

Plaintiff who maintained separate apartment in same 2-family house as her mother was not resident of her mother's household within meaning of homeowner's insurance policy issued to her mother, and thus defendant insurer was entitled to judgment declaring that it was not obligated to defend and indemnify plaintiff in underlying personal injury action. Galanis v Travelers Prop. Cas., 277 A.D.2d 282, 715 N.Y.S.2d 80, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11705 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2000).

Defendant insurer was entitled to summary judgment declaring that plaintiff did not qualify as "family member" and thus was not "covered person" under underinsured motorist provision of policy issued to his father because he did not reside in his father's household at time of accident, where evidence established that he resided in New York with his mother whereas his father resided in Maryland and had additional residence in Vermont, terms of prior sentence of probation required him to reside and attend school in New York, and complaint in underlying action alleged that at all relevant times he resided in New York. Harris v American Protection Ins. Co., 277 A.D.2d 772, 716 N.Y.S.2d 758, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12218 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2000).

In action arising from allegedly accidental shooting that occurred at residence owned by shooter's grandmother, injured plaintiff was granted summary judgment declaring that shooter was covered "insured" under policy issued to his grandmother where he had his own room at her residence, he slept, showered and ate there, and he stored everything he owned there. Slayko v Security Mut. Ins. Co., 183 Misc. 2d 688, 705 N.Y.S.2d 528, 2000 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 68 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 2000), aff'd, 285 A.D.2d 875, 728 N.Y.S.2d 282, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7532 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2001).

Due to an insurer's failure to timely disclaim coverage, it was obligated to defend an insured under a homeowner's policy with regard to bodily injuries she received as a result of a dog bite, but the insurer was not obligated to defend the insured with regard to the medical expense claim asserted by the mother of the bitten child, which was considered derivative and required an actual insurable loss. Because the insurer was obligated to defend the insured as to the child's claims only as a matter of law as a result of its late notice of disclaimer, the exclusion for bodily injury to an insured applied to the mother's claims and barred any obligation to defend on the part of the insurer. Moore v Ewing, 9 A.D.3d 484, 781 N.Y.S.2d 51, 2004 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10120 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2004).

155. "Pollution" and environmental terms

Insurer failed to meet its burden of showing that umbrella policy's pollution exclusion clause, which defined pollutants as "smoke, vapors, soot, fumes, acids, sound, alkalies, chemicals, liquids, solids, gases, thermal pollutants, and all other irritants and Contaminants," also excluded coverage for lead paint injuries, where there was no language demonstrating drafter's intent to incorporate lead paint into pollution exclusion clause, and both umbrella policy and underlying commercial general liability policy contained general pollution exclusion but only underlying policy contained specific lead paint exclusion; furthermore, any ambiguity as to whether lead paint claims were excluded by umbrella policy's pollution exclusion had to be construed against insurer. Westview Assocs. v Guar. Nat'l Ins. Co., 95 N.Y.2d 334, 717 N.Y.S.2d 75, 740 N.E.2d 220, 2000 N.Y. LEXIS 2928 (N.Y. 2000).

In action to recover from homeowner's insurer of neighboring property for emotional distress resulting from contamination of plaintiff's drinking water from oil spill thereon, court did not err in determining that homeowner's policy had not expired when plaintiff suffered injury, notwithstanding contention that plaintiff's knowledge of elevated levels of hydrocarbons in her and her son's bodies and her consequent emotional distress all occurred after policy expired, since policy, in covering "occurrences" and defining such term to include continuous and repeated exposure to substantially similar conditions, did not require that "loss" occur during policy period. Matychak v Security Mut. Ins. Co., 181 A.D.2d 957, 581 N.Y.S.2d 453, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4149 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), app. denied, 80 N.Y.2d 758, 589

Although liquid manure is not "pollutant" or "contaminant" when properly applied (and confined) to cropland, it is properly classified as "waste material," "pollutant," or "contaminant" when substance has leached into groundwater and contaminated well on adjoining property. Space v Farm Family Mut. Ins. Co., 235 A.D.2d 797, 652 N.Y.S.2d 357, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 302 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1997).

Insured under commercial general liability policy was entitled to summary judgment declaring that insurer had to defend and indemnify it in underlying action for injuries resulting from exposure to toxic fumes released during insured's construction safety course when roofing membrane was applied with hot air gun during classroom demonstration, despite policy endorsement excluding "'[b]odily injury'...which would not have occurred in whole or in part but for the actual, alleged or threatened discharge, dispersal, seepage, migration, release or escape of pollutants at any time" and defining "pollutant" as "any solid, liquid, gaseous or thermal irritant or contaminant, including smoke, vapor, soot, fumes, acids, alkalis, chemicals and waste," where (1) average insured could reasonably interpret exclusion as applying only to environmental pollution, which was historical purpose of pollution exclusions, and not to bodily injury arising from use of product for its intended purpose, (2) fumes that caused underlying injury were part of normal roofing process, were confined to demonstration area, were inhaled in immediate vicinity, and thus were not result of "discharge, dispersal...release or escape of pollutants," and (3) term "pollutant" was ambiguous because there is virtually no substance or chemical in existence that is not "irritant or contaminant," and thus application of exclusion would lead to absurd results. Roofers' Joint Training, Apprentice & Educ. Comm. v Gen. Accident Ins. Co. of Am., 275 A.D.2d 90, 713 N.Y.S.2d 615, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9785 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 2000).

156. Terms relative to excess insurance

Insurer was liable for cumulative limits of 2 liability insurance policies in claim arising from automobile accident involving son of insureds where insureds were married couple residing in same household, they had purchased policies from same insurer to cover separately owned vehicles, policies were identical in covering son as household member, and each policy contained standard "other insurance" clause providing excess coverage; "two or more auto policies" clause did not cancel out requirement in "other insurance" clause that both policies should contribute ratably since former clause (1) stated that policies "apply to" same accident, and (2) lacked wording of "no liability" or "escape" clause. Carlino v Lumbermens Mut. Casualty Co., 74 N.Y.2d 350, 547 N.Y.S.2d 616, 546 N.E.2d 909, 1989 N.Y. LEXIS 3040 (N.Y. 1989).

Excess and primary carriers of insurance purchased by owner of leased van involved in underlying accident could recover against lessee's comprehensive liability insurer as primary coinsurer of owner-lessor under lessee's business auto policy with insurer, even though "other insurance" provision in business auto policy contained clause making its coverage "excess" for nonowned vehicles, where no limitation as to type of coverage (whether primary or excess) appeared in endorsement making owner-lessor additional insured; moreover, policy was designed to provide primary insurance for lessee and thus, after finding that owner-lessor was additional insured under that policy, it naturally followed that coverage of owner-lessor was also primary. Jefferson Ins. Co. v Travelers Indem. Co., 92 N.Y.2d 363, 681 N.Y.S.2d 208, 703 N.E.2d 1221, 1998 N.Y. LEXIS 3664 (N.Y. 1998).

Phrase "similar coverage for your work," in excess coverage provision of "other insurance" clause of commercial general liability policy, did not render that policy's coverage excess to third-party liability coverage provided by homeowner's policy, which was concededly excess with respect to commercial general liability policy, because third-party liability insurance under homeowner's policy was not similar to first-party property coverage enumerated in commercial general liability excess clause; thus, homeowner's insurer and commercial general liability insurer did not bear pro rata shares of cost of defending and indemnifying homeowner when third party was injured while performing construction work on home. Great N. Ins. Co. v Mount Vernon Fire Ins. Co., 92 N.Y.2d 682, 685 N.Y.S.2d 411, 708 N.E.2d 167, 1999 N.Y. LEXIS 23 (N.Y. 1999).

For purposes of excess liability coverage, use of word "also" in defining covered person as including family members evinced intent to incorporate descriptions contained in preceding paragraphs, which included permissive users of automobiles belonging to insured. Castricone v Riggi, 259 A.D.2d 815, 686 N.Y.S.2d 175, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2104 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1999).

Contractor's liability insurer was not entitled to summary judgment declaring that policy issued by subcontractor's insurer provided concurrent coverage for construction site injury where subcontractor's policy stated that it provided only excess coverage unless subcontractor's contract specifically required coverage to be primary, and such contract required only that contractor be both named and additional insured, with no provision requiring primary coverage. Hartford Fire Ins. Co. v Lo Brutto, 275 A.D.2d 525, 711 N.Y.S.2d 639, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8422 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2000).

Under "Liberalization Clause" that became effective prospectively on May 1, 1993, excess insurance policy did not incorporate terms of underlying "Multimedia Policy" regarding coverage for legal expenses in defending covered lawsuits where (1) excess policy was "occurrence" policy, (2) acts of false advertising that gave rise to liability commenced in April 1993, and (3) event that triggered attachment of coverage was occurrence that caused injury, not injury itself. Labatt Brewing Co. v Zurich Ins. Co., 281 A.D.2d 363, 723 N.Y.S.2d 17, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3151 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2001).

Insurance carrier was entitled to summary judgment declaring that it was not obligated to indemnify insured in underlying action pursuant to umbrella policy which provided coverage for insured's loss in excess of "the applicable underlying limit," where State Insurance Fund was not listed in policy's schedule of underlying insurance and thus unambiguous terms of umbrella policy required that State Insurance Fund be exhausted before it was triggered and, since State Insurance Fund provides unlimited coverage, umbrella policy was never triggered. Comm'rs of the State Ins. Fund v Aetna Cas. & Sur. Co., 283 A.D.2d 335, 728 N.Y.S.2d 6, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6271 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2001).

157. Exclusions or limitations, generally

Court did not err in finding that insurance company was required to defend and indemnify insured for damages to third party's house caused by insured's insulation; clause in policy excluding from coverage losses caused by withdrawal of product from market was inapplicable, since claim did not involve withdrawal of insured's product from market. Truax & Hovey, Ltd. v Aetna Casualty & Surety Co., 122 A.D.2d 563, 504 N.Y.S.2d 934, 1986 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 59840 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1986).

Insurer was entitled to summary judgment declaring that fixed monetary sum representing per person liability limit for bodily injury under automobile liability insurance policy did not apply separately to bodily injury claims of injured infant and to derivative claims for care and loss of services asserted by his parents since (1) derivative damages and direct damages are added together to determine limit of liability for bodily injury sustained by one person, (2) to construe policy to allow maximum limitation to each person damaged would require reordering of policy language, and (3) there was nothing ambiguous in policy language; fact that language of uninsured motorist rider attached to policy was more specific by stating that "all damages" included derivative claims did not create ambiguity in main policy. Redcross v Aetna Casualty & Surety Co., 146 A.D.2d 125, 539 N.Y.S.2d 146, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2808 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1989).

Insurer had no obligation to defend landlord in premises liability action where landlord admittedly provided room and board on premises to at least 3 persons, which violated express clause excluding coverage for medical payments and personal liability where premises were rented for residential use by more than 2 roomers or boarders, and there was no evidence to support landlord's claim that 3 boarders were not renters, but actually part of her extended family. Bates v Cole, 157 A.D.2d 813, 550 N.Y.S.2d 721, 1990 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1045 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1990).

Automobile insurer was not required to provide coverage for vehicle in which plaintiff's decedent was killed as passenger where policy excluded "other automobiles" furnished "for the regular use" of either named insured or member of his family, even though use of vehicle by driver, who was son of named insured, was incidental to his possession of it for asserted purpose of selling it for another, since vehicle was, in fact, available to him for as long as he wished, without restrictions placed on its use, and he did put vehicle to regular use. Egle v United Services Auto. Ass'n, 158 A.D.2d 661, 551 N.Y.S.2d 954, 1990 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2285 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1990).

IAS Court erred in determining that clause of comprehensive general liability policy, excluding coverage for defamation claims "in the course of or related to advertising," was rendered ambiguous by fact that insured was advertising agency where there was no ambiguous language in policy endorsement. Federal Ins. Co. v Tokio Marine & Fire Ins. Co., 175 A.D.2d 49, 572 N.Y.S.2d 306, 1991 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9898 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1991).

Exclusions in liability policy did not apply to action against insured for injuries sustained by injured party when he was struck by water softener tank which fell off push cart operated by employee of insured who was delivering tank to injured party's employer, where exclusions provided (1) that policy did not apply to movement of property by mechanical device other than hand truck, but did not limit meaning of hand truck, and (2) that policy did not apply to loading and unloading of insured's vehicle, but did not define term unloading. General Accident Ins. Co. v United States Fidelity & Guar. Co., 193 A.D.2d 135, 602 N.Y.S.2d 948, 1993 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9839 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1993).

Defendant insurer was entitled to summary judgment since insurance policies excluded damage to property of others while in care, custody or control of plaintiff insured, and thus insurer had right to disclaim and not defend when insured was sued for damage to rare coin consigned to it. Stack's Rare Coins v Federal Ins. Co., 199 A.D.2d 17, 604 N.Y.S.2d 108, 1993 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11182 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1993).

Insurer, which issued general liability policy to camp, was not obligated to defend or indemnify camp for injuries sustained when camper was struck by automobile driven by camp employee where policy excluded coverage for all bodily injury arising from ownership, maintenance, operation, or use of automobiles; despite allegation in underlying action of negligent supervision of campers by camp, automobile remained immediate and efficient cause of injury. New Hampshire Ins. Co. v Jefferson Ins. Co., 213 A.D.2d 325, 624 N.Y.S.2d 392, 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3290 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1995).

Insurer seeking to invoke exclusion under its policy must establish that exclusion applies in particular case, is expressed in clear and unmistakable language, and is subject to no other reasonable interpretation; any ambiguity in exclusion must be resolved against insurer and in favor of coverage. American Int'l Specialty Lines Ins. Co. v United States Olympic Comm., 219 A.D.2d 458, 631 N.Y.S.2d 40, 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9140 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1995).

Insurer was estopped from enforcing policy deductible where, inter alia, certificates of insurance were on form devised by Department of Transportation (DOT) which incorporated by reference detailed insurance specifications of public works contract that precluded such deductibles, from further recited that issuing company certified, under penalty of perjury, that no deductible would apply, and both DOT and insured (public works contractor) relied on those representations to their detriment. Zurich Ins. Co. v White, 221 A.D.2d 700, 633 N.Y.S.2d 415, 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10724 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1995), app. denied, 88 N.Y.2d 804, 645 N.Y.S.2d 446, 668 N.E.2d 417, 1996 N.Y. LEXIS 1507 (N.Y. 1996), app. denied, 88 N.Y.2d 804, 645 N.Y.S.2d 446, 668 N.E.2d 417, 1996 N.Y. LEXIS 1506 (N.Y. 1996).

Exclusion in jeweler's block policy for "[l]oss or damage to property while in or upon any automobile...unless, at time the loss or damage occurs, there is actually in or upon such vehicle, the Assured, or a permanent employee of the Assured, or a person whose duty it is to attend the vehicle" barred recovery where jewelry was left in locked car that insured's employee had momentarily exited to pay gas station attendant, and was stolen, in sight of frightened employee, by thieves using metal object to smash car windows. Cordova, Inc. v Lloyd's Underwriters, 228 A.D.2d 179, 643 N.Y.S.2d 543, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6270 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't), app. denied, 89 N.Y.2d 802, 653 N.Y.S.2d 279, 675 N.E.2d 1232, 1996 N.Y. LEXIS 4178 (N.Y. 1996).

Action for malicious prosecution fell within liability insurance policy exclusion of "an act or omission intended or expected to cause bodily injury or property damage," because malicious prosecution entails commencement of litigation for purpose of harassing another, harassment is calculated to produce, among other things, mental and/or emotional distress, and such harm is inherent part of intentional act. Tomain v Allstate Ins. Co., 238 A.D.2d 774, 656 N.Y.S.2d 470, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3953 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1997).

Exclusion in professional liability policy for "any claim based upon or arising out of the work performed by the Insured, with or without compensation, with respect to any...partnership, limited partnership, business enterprise or other venture...in which any Insured has any pecuniary or beneficial interest...unless such entity is named in the Declarations" did not unambiguously exclude coverage for client's underlying legal malpractice action against attorney merely because attorney at one point held mortgage on property owned by client (even if "pecuniary or beneficial" interest included that of creditor such as mortgagee) where attorney was no longer mortgagee at time claim was made. Oot v Home Ins. Co., 244 A.D.2d 62, 676 N.Y.S.2d 715, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8459 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1998).

Court erred in granting insurer's summary judgment motion declaring that it had no duty to defend or indemnify its insureds, motel bar and its owner, on basis of "alcoholic beverage" exclusion since underlying complaint alleged that insureds negligently failed "to properly supervise, manage and operate" establishment, and failed to afford underlying plaintiff "protection from the unlawful acts of another patron,"; such allegations were at least facially distinct from those relating to service of alcoholic beverages, and thus could not be said as matter of law to fall within exclusion. Dryden Mut. Ins. Co. v Harr, 247 A.D.2d 684, 668 N.Y.S.2d 730, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 941 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1998).

In action by primary insurer against excess insurer to recover amount paid in excess of policy limit in order to settle lawsuit against insured, primary insured was entitled to summary judgment where excess liability policy was to be triggered by loss in excess of "the retained limit," defined as "the total of the applicable limits of the underlying policies listed in Schedule A hereof, and the applicable limits of any other insurance collectible by the insured," and that language was correctly construed to include total of amounts specified for each of policies listed in Schedule A of category of coverage applicable to incident for which insured was sued, regardless of whether listed policies provided coverage and, if so, how much. State Ins. Fund v International Ins. Co., 251 A.D.2d 86, 673 N.Y.S.2d 680, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6541 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't), app. denied, 92 N.Y.2d 816, 684 N.Y.S.2d 187, 706 N.E.2d 1211, 1998 N.Y. LEXIS 4924 (N.Y. 1998).

Mere control over general area, without any ability to access particular portion thereof in which another's personal property is stored, is insufficient to confer kind of possession or control necessary to invoke liability insurance policy exclusion of damage to property in "care, custody or control" of insured. Schroeder v Hubbell, 251 A.D.2d 947, 674 N.Y.S.2d 853, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7735 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1998).

Exclusion in barn owner's general business liability insurance policy for damage to property in "care, custody or control" of insured did not apply to 800-square-foot area leased by plaintiff for storage of his personal belongings where leased area was surrounded by 8-foot-tall chicken-wire fence secured by padlock to which only plaintiff had key, owner was not authorized to move or otherwise exercise physical dominion over property within fenced area, and owner had not represented that he would guard or protect plaintiff's property from hazards. Schroeder v Hubbell, 251 A.D.2d 947, 674 N.Y.S.2d 853, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7735 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1998).

Insurer was entitled to judgment declaring that it was not obligated to defend and indemnify insured, which operated nursery school, in action alleging that 4-year-old girl student was "assaulted, battered and sexually molested" by 5-year-old boy student, where policy's "Molestation or Abuse Exclusion" clause excluded coverage for "any injury sustained by any person arising out of or resulting from molestation or abuse by" any employee or "any other person." New World Frontier, Inc. v Mount Vernon Fire Ins. Co., 253 A.D.2d 455, 676 N.Y.S.2d 648, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8844 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't), app. denied, 92 N.Y.2d 816, 684 N.Y.S.2d 187, 706 N.E.2d 1211, 1998 N.Y. LEXIS 4917 (N.Y. 1998).

Insurer was required to defend and indemnify defendant in underlying negligence action where (1) insurer relied on policy exclusion of liability "arising out of the ownership or operation of a vehicle while it is being used to carry persons or property for a fee," (2) that exclusion was unenforceable insofar as it was broader than that authorized by 11 NYCRR § 60-1.2(a), which provides that liability policy may exclude coverage for losses arising from use of motor vehicle "as a public or livery conveyance," (3) that regulation was designed to limit exclusion to vehicle being used as taxicab or otherwise being offered indiscriminately to general public and not limited to use by particular persons or on particular occasions, and (4) underlying defendant, at time of accident, was driving his personal vehicle to make delivery to customer on behalf of his employer. United Servs. Auto. Ass'n v Reid, 255 A.D.2d 990, 680 N.Y.S.2d 340, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12278 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1998).

Where lead-based paint liability exclusions in multi-peril insurance policies were valid and effectively excluded coverage for infant plaintiff's lead poisoning cause of action against owner and manager of multiple dwelling, insurer was entitled to summary judgment dismissing third-party complaint. Cartagena v Jin Lung Tang, 260 A.D.2d 337, 687 N.Y.S.2d 666, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3596 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1999).

Public policy was not violated by provision of social worker's professional liability policy that created $25,000 limitation on claims for sexual misconduct, and thus insurer was entitled to summary judgment declaring that limitation applied to action by patient asserting improper sexual relationship. American Home Assur. Co. v McDonald, 274 A.D.2d 70, 712 N.Y.S.2d 507, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8606 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2000).

Insurer's duty to indemnify insured under social worker's professional liability policy was not subject to $25,000 limitation on claims for sexual misconduct where plaintiff who asserted such misconduct in underlying action was individual patient of insured's partner, insured never met patient or participated in her treatment, partnership did not bill for services to patient, and allegations against insured pertained only to her supervision and operation of partnership matters. American Home Assur. Co. v McDonald, 274 A.D.2d 70, 712 N.Y.S.2d 507, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8606 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2000).

Blanket "criminal activity" exclusion contained in homeowner's liability policy which, on its face, applied to criminal activity of any kind or degree even if only alleged and even if resulting harm was unintended, was so overbroad that it rendered coverage illusory and thus was against public policy. Slayko v Sec. Mut. Ins. Co., 285 A.D.2d 875, 728 N.Y.S.2d 282, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7532 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2001), rev'd, 98 N.Y.2d 289, 746 N.Y.S.2d 444, 774 N.E.2d 208, 2002 N.Y. LEXIS 1902 (N.Y. 2002).

Social worker's professional liability policy which limited coverage to $25,000 in cases involving claims of sexual misconduct was not void contract of adhesion as (1) New York does not require social workers to purchase malpractice insurance, (2) policy was endorsed by National Association of Social Workers, and (3_ fact that challenged provision happened to benefit carrier in particular instance was not ground to set it aside as unconscionable. American Home Assur. Co. v Levy, 179 Misc. 2d 773, 686 N.Y.S.2d 639, 1999 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 66 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1999).

Insurance policy's exclusionary clause concerning acts "arising directly or indirectly out of instances, occurrences or allegations of criminal activity by the insured or by employees of the insured" was overly broad and against public policy. Slayko v Security Mut. Ins. Co., 183 Misc. 2d 688, 705 N.Y.S.2d 528, 2000 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 68 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 2000), aff'd, 285 A.D.2d 875, 728 N.Y.S.2d 282, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7532 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2001).

In plaintiffs' action against insurer pursuant to N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(b)(1) to recover the amount of a judgment previously determined to be owed to plaintiffs by the insured, court erred in denying that part of the insurer's cross-motion for summary judgment seeking dismissal of plaintiffs' claims for damages in excess of the applicable limit of coverage under the policy at issue. Matijiw v N.Y. Cent. Mut. Fire Ins. Co., 15 A.D.3d 875, 792 N.Y.S.2d 742, 2005 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1169 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't), app. denied, 19 A.D.3d 1185, 796 N.Y.S.2d 567, 2005 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6404 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 2005).

Supplemental uninsured/underinsured motorist policy provision containing a serious injury threshold requirement exclusion with reference to N.Y. Ins. Law § 5102(d) was valid and enforceable because the relevant regulations in N.Y. Comp. Codes R. & Regs. tit. 11, § 60-2.3(f) were not inconsistent with the serious injury threshold in N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(f)(2); § 3420(f)(2) did not expressly dispense with that requirement, and the regulations did not impose a requirement that was less favorable to the insured as the requirement was the same as that imposed on an injured plaintiff would have against an adequately insured driver and an uninsured driver. Meegan v Progressive Ins. Co., 43 A.D.3d 182, 838 N.Y.S.2d 748, 2007 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7225 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 2007).

Claim for coverage for securities frauds claims, arising from insured's sale of mutual funds and related products to investors who allegedly suffered emotional distress from loss of value of their investments, fell within exclusion contained in umbrella policy's "banks and financial institutions" endorsement applicable to claims seeking damages arising from diminishment in value of investments. First Investors Corp. v Liberty Mut. Ins. Co., 955 F. Supp. 274, 1997 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 2391 (S.D.N.Y. 1997), aff'd, 152 F.3d 162, 1998 U.S. App. LEXIS 18227 (2d Cir. N.Y. 1998).

Household residential exclusion in an insurance policy covering an ocean-going vessel does not violate New York's public policy. Ins. Co. of N. Am. v Zaglool, 526 F. Supp. 2d 361, 2007 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 90339 (E.D.N.Y. 2007).

There is nothing in Insurance Law or regulations promulgated thereunder that specifically restricts or otherwise limits exclusions that may be contained in excess liability or umbrella insurance policy in regard to toxic mold, or that would otherwise require special risk insurer to provide coverage for damage or loss resulting from mold, whether or not underlying policy contained exclusion; however, there are certain statutorily mandated coverages, such as certain types of motor vehicle insurance (including statutory automobile liability, no-fault insurance and uninsured motorist coverage) and workers' compensation insurance, where mold exclusion is not permitted because such exclusion is not specifically authorized. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 04-03-29.

Plaintiff's obligation to indemnify defendants in an underlying personal injury action was limited to the statutory minimum, as the savings clause in the policy provided for coverage up to the minimum amounts required by the financial responsibility law, N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(f)(1), it was in compliance with N.Y. Veh. & Traf Law §§ 311(4)(a), 341, and 345(b)(3), and did not violate public policy. Connecticut Indem. Co. v Hines, 40 A.D.3d 903, 837 N.Y.S.2d 183, 2007 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6375 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2007).

158. —Classification or exclusion of particular vehicles

Endorsement on policy issued to lessor of automobiles excluding coverage for drive-yourself private vehicles except vehicles leased on annual basis was contrary to law and to public policy of state to protect innocent victims of traffic accidents. Rosado v

Eveready Ins. Co., 34 N.Y.2d 43, 356 N.Y.S.2d 8, 312 N.E.2d 153, 1974 N.Y. LEXIS 1587 (N.Y. 1974).

Supreme Court properly declared that insurer was not entitled to disclaim coverage of rental automobile, and was obligated to defend and indemnify its insured (rental agency) and vehicle's lessee in personal injury action, even though policy defined covered vehicles as those rented on "short term basis (less than 12 months)" and vehicle involved in accident had been leased for 24-month term, since policy's limiting language amounted to exclusion and thus violated public policy underlying requirement of compulsory automobile insurance. Planet Ins. Co. v Bright Bay Classic Vehicles, Inc., 75 N.Y.2d 394, 554 N.Y.S.2d 84, 553 N.E.2d 562, 1990 N.Y. LEXIS 599 (N.Y. 1990).

Non-trucking-use exclusion from coverage in insurance policy obtained by owner of commercial vehicle, which did not expressly state that it was effective only if vehicle's lessee was required to obtain insurance coverage, violated New York law and public policy even if insurer established that its standard underwriting policy was to not issue policies containing such exclusion unless vehicle owner provided proof that vehicle's lessee had insurance coverage. Royal Indem. Co. v Providence Wash. Ins. Co., 92 N.Y.2d 653, 684 N.Y.S.2d 470, 707 N.E.2d 425, 1998 N.Y. LEXIS 4141 (N.Y. 1998).

Truck lessor's liability policy, executed in New York, excluding coverage of truck being used in business of any person or organization to whom truck is rented was invalid under New York law for failing to require the existence of other insurance sufficient to meet minimum standards of coverage established by financial responsibility laws. Randazzo v Cunningham, 56 A.D.2d 702, 392 N.Y.S.2d 740, 1977 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10864 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1977), aff'd, 43 N.Y.2d 937, 403 N.Y.S.2d 894, 374 N.E.2d 1245, 1978 N.Y. LEXIS 1833 (N.Y. 1978).

Trial court erred in granting summary judgment in declaratory relief action where policy provided coverage for hired vehicle "which is used under contract in behalf of . . . named insured" but excluded in its definition of persons insured "owner or lessee (of whom named insured is sublessee) of hired automobile . . . or any agent or employee of such owner or lessee" and plaintiffs failed to establish whether there was hiring within meaning of policy. Robert Cole Trucking Co. v Old Republic Co., 107 A.D.2d 1055, 486 N.Y.S.2d 527, 1985 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 42876 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1985).

Insurer could not be deemed to have provided insurance for rental vehicle driven by insured's son under provision covering occasional or infrequent use of vehicle not owned by family member of insured, even though insured's own vehicle for which policy was written was in process of being repaired, where rental vehicle was available to son for as long a period as he wished with no restrictions placed on its use; such provision is not intended as substitute for insurance on vehicles furnished for insured's regular use. Liberty Mut. Ins. Co. v Sentry Ins., 130 A.D.2d 629, 515 N.Y.S.2d 557, 1987 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 46644 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't), modified, in part, reh'g denied, 135 A.D.2d 508, 522 N.Y.S.2d 462, 1987 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 52467 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1987).

Provision of insurance policy, extending coverage to any vehicle owned by nonmember of insured's household and used by insured or insured's relative, so long as losses occurred while insured or member of his household did not have vehicle available at all times for his regular use, did not constitute exclusion from coverage but was expression of insurer's intent not to provide coverage to non-family member's car while insured or insured's relative had regular use thereof; thus, insurer was entitled to declaration of noncoverage, despite its failure to give timely disclaimers of coverage to plaintiffs, who were injured while passengers in vehicle driven by insured's son and owned by nonmember of insured's household, since insured's son had vehicle available at all times for his regular use. Schmidt v Prudential Ins. Co., 143 A.D.2d 997, 533 N.Y.S.2d 614, 1988 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10417 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1988), app. denied, 73 N.Y.2d 710, 541 N.Y.S.2d 764, 539 N.E.2d 592, 1989 N.Y. LEXIS 519 (N.Y. 1989).

Twelve-foot-by-31-foot barge was "watercraft" within meaning of exclusion contained in insurance policy, and thus insurance company had no duty to defend or indemnify under policy. Sloan Steel Erectors & Equipment Rental, Inc. v Illinois Union Ins. Co., 158 A.D.2d 984, 551 N.Y.S.2d 136, 1990 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1532 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1990).

Insurer was obligated to defendant insured, whose van was involved in collision which injured third party while it was being driven by auto repair shop employee, notwithstanding auto business exclusion in policy, since van was not "being used in the auto business" when accident occurred. Erie Ins. Group v Nationwide Mut. Fire Ins. Co., 190 A.D.2d 1086, 593 N.Y.S.2d 704, 1993 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1336 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1993).

Insurers, whose policies clearly excluded from coverage any "non-owned" "auto" or "vehicle" where such "auto" or "vehicle" was "furnished or available" for "a," or "any," family member's "regular use," were not obligated to defend or indemnify insured in underlying negligence actions brought following accident in which insured was driving vehicle which was leased by his father's company where father stated in his examination before trial that he was in charge of fleet of vehicles leased by his company, he regularly used vehicle in question for business and incidental personal purposes, he kept it either at his home or office, he had his own set of keys, he did not need anyone's permission to use it, and he drove it 60 to 70 percent of time. Liverzani v Amica Mut. Ins. Co., 214 A.D.2d 542, 624 N.Y.S.2d 637, 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3526 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1995).

Insurance carrier was entitled to summary judgment declaring that it was not obligated to provide coverage under policy issued to policyholders on their Ford Crown Victoria in connection with accident in which their son was driving Chevrolet Cavalier, where policy covering Ford Crown Victoria expressly and permissibly excluded family member's use of automobiles other than insured automobile. Marvul v Knecht, 216 A.D.2d 370, 628 N.Y.S.2d 171, 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6265 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't), app. denied, 86 N.Y.2d 710, 635 N.Y.S.2d 947, 659 N.E.2d 770, 1995 N.Y. LEXIS 4407 (N.Y. 1995).

Insurer for lessee of truck had no duty to indemnify lessor in motor vehicle action involving lessee and third party where lessee's policy showed that only specifically listed vehicles were provided coverage, and truck was not specifically listed vehicle. Ryder Truck Rental v Commercial Union Ins. Co., 232 A.D.2d 468, 648 N.Y.S.2d 939, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10207 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1996).

Exclusion of coverage when tractor was used to carry property "in any business" was not ambiguous, and thus coverage was afforded only in those limited instances when tractor was being used in personal activities of owner-operator, subject to compulsory bodily injury limit. Hanover Ins. Co. v Connor, 232 A.D.2d 925, 648 N.Y.S.2d 839, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11263 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1996).

Borrowed Nissan automobile did not qualify for coverage as temporary substitute auto under policy issued for insured's Chevrolet, where policy defined "temporary substitute auto" as one "used as a substitute for the owned auto...when withdrawn from normal use because of its breakdown, repair, servicing, loss or destruction," whereas insured's son had borrowed Nissan from friend rather than using his father's Chevrolet because Chevrolet was "old," experiencing "problems," and not reliable. Interboro Mut. Indem. Ins. Co. v GEICO, 250 A.D.2d 733, 674 N.Y.S.2d 52, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5823 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1998).

In personal injury action arising from traffic accident, insurers were entitled to summary judgment where policies contained unambiguous language excluding from coverage vehicle involved in accident, and thus insurers had no duty to deny coverage under CLS Ins § 3420(d). Gewirtz v State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co., 251 A.D.2d 286, 672 N.Y.S.2d 807, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6317 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1998).

Exclusionary clause of liability policy which permitted noncoverage where "any trailer covered by this policy is used with any automobile owned or hired by the insured and not covered by like insurance in the company" was, as against vehicle owners, invalid and contrary to public policy requiring mandatory insurance; additionally, exclusionary clause was contrary to antimonopoly legislation. Mt. Vernon Fire Ins. Co. v Travelers Indem. Co., 90

Misc. 2d 717, 395 N.Y.S.2d 948, 1977 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2139 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1977), modified, 63 A.D.2d 254, 407 N.Y.S.2d 23, 1978 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11342 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1978).

An insured's failure to pay the additional premium for one of four vehicles covered by a policy did not entitle the insurer to cancel the entire policy covering the other three vehicle, since the policy was severable or divisible in that it listed each vehicle separately, and assigned each a separate premium for separate coverages. Prudential Property & Casualty Ins. Co. v Pearce, 126 Misc. 2d 1044, 484 N.Y.S.2d 464, 1985 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2932 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1985), aff'd, 120 A.D.2d 597, 501 N.Y.S.2d 1015, 1986 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 56681 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1986).

Where crane mobile was not subject to motor vehicle registration on June 22, 1951 and (prior to revision of general liability manuals) it was not excluded or included in exceptions in general liability policy, court held it was not an automobile under the policy. Liberty Mut. Ins. Co. v Dooley Electric Co., 133 N.Y.S.2d 785, 1954 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2438 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1954).

In an insurer's suit for a judgment declaring it had no duty to indemnify or defend an insured for liability arising from an auto accident, summary judgment for the insurer based on the insured's failure to comply with N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(d)(2) was improper; because coverage was denied based on lack of inclusion, not an exclusion, the notice of disclaimer requirements in N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(d)(2) did not apply. NGM Ins. Co. v Blakely Pumping, Inc., 593 F.3d 150, 2010 U.S. App. LEXIS 2093 (2d Cir. N.Y. 2010).

159. —Employer liability

Comprehensive general liability insurance policy issued to company did not cover liability arising out of woman's accident while driving her father's car while engaged in company's business, although policy covered employees, since it excluded coverage for liability arising out of operation of automobiles in course of employment. Mead v Fidelity & Casualty Co., 155 A.D.2d 896, 547 N.Y.S.2d 491, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 14732 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1989).

Insurer of injured plaintiff's employer was not obligated to defend or indemnify owner of shipping terminal (portion of which employer had leased), even though endorsement naming owner as additional insured on employer's policy set forth entire terminal as designated premises, where accident did not occur on employer's leased portion and endorsement to include owner as additional insured was limited to liability arising out of employer's ownership, maintenance or use of part of terminal leased to employer. Gen. Accident Fire & Life Assur. Corp. v Travelers Ins. Co., 162 A.D.2d 130, 556 N.Y.S.2d 76, 1990 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6800 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1990).

Damage caused by corporation's vice-president when he inadvertently hit sprinkler head on wall of hotel room, releasing substantial quantity of water in room and other areas of hotel, was not covered by his homeowner's insurance policy, which excluded from personal liability coverage property damage "arising out of business pursuits of an insured," where vice-president was at time attending management seminar on behalf of corporation, which paid his travel and lodging expenses, since even if he was on break from seminar at time of incident, viewing transaction as whole he was pursuing business at time incident occurred. United Food Serv., Inc. v Fidelity & Casualty Co., 189 A.D.2d 74, 594 N.Y.S.2d 887, 1993 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2385 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1993).

Amendatory endorsement to insurance policy, which excluded liability for bodily injury to employee of insured arising out of performance of his work, did not apply to case since (1) exclusion did not apply to liability assumed under "incidental contract," (2) separate endorsement to policy expressly included contractor's contract with school district to perform asbestos removal on its high school building as incidental contract, (3) underlying action arose out of performance of that contract, and (4) school district was insured within meaning of policy, and person injured in underlying action was not district employee. AAC Contracting v United Coastal Ins. Co., 193 A.D.2d 1085, 599 N.Y.S.2d 203, 1993 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5715 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1993).

Provision in directors' and officers' liability policy, which covered claims arising from "a negligent act, error or omission," defined as "any negligent act, error or omission or breach of duty of [the] directors or officers while acting in their capacity as such," did not justify insurer's disclaimer of coverage on ground that allegedly intentional acts of self-dealing and fraud on part of individual defendants were excluded from coverage as non-negligent acts, since policy definition was susceptible of more than one meaning and could be understood to cover any breach of duty by directors or officers, not exclusively negligent breaches of duty. Volney Residence, Inc. v Atlantic Mut. Ins. Co., 195 A.D.2d 434, 600 N.Y.S.2d 707, 1993 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7601 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1993).

By its terms, employers' liability exclusion applied to action in which injured plaintiffs' employer, who was impleaded by defendant for contribution and indemnity, sought defense and indemnification as additional insured under defendant's comprehensive liability policy; policy exception for "liability assumed by the insured under a contract or agreement" was inapplicable as employer did not "assume" liability to its employees under its contract with defendant. Nuzzo v Griffin Tech., 222 A.D.2d 184, 643 N.Y.S.2d 802, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6777 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1996), app. denied, 91 N.Y.2d 802, 666 N.Y.S.2d 564, 669 N.E.2d 534, 1997 N.Y. LEXIS 4164 (N.Y. 1997).

Employer was entitled to summary judgment declaring that its insurer had obligation to defend it in action by former employees under federal Age Discrimination in Employment Act (ADEA), and insurer was obligated to reimburse employer for any reasonable sum paid in settlement of claim, where general liability policy and umbrella endorsement issued by insurer afforded coverage for nonintentional "disparate impact" discrimination claim alleged in underlying action; although law was unsettled as to whether "disparate impact" theory was applicable under ADEA, there was at least reasonable possibility that such claim would have been recognized as valid. American Mgmt. Ass'n v Atlantic Mut. Ins. Co., 168 Misc. 2d 971, 641 N.Y.S.2d 802, 1996 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 93 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1996).

Defendant insurer was entitled to summary judgment declaring that plaintiff insureds were not entitled to reimbursement for compensatory damages they had agreed to pay in settlement of underlying defamation action commenced by discharged employee arising from their statements assessing employee's job performance and explaining why she was discharged, as claimed defamation fell under policy's exclusion for damages stemming from oral disparagement of person's services if injury arose from any evaluation, defamation, humiliation or "other employment-related practices." Berman v General Accident Ins. Co. of Am., 176 Misc. 2d 13, 671 N.Y.S.2d 619, 1998 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 63 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1998).

Under New York law, exclusions in insured's claims-made directors' and officers' liability insurance policies concerning loss related to facts underlying claims reported in preexisting policies did not, by virtue of prior claims alleging misstatements regarding licensing agreement and related inquiry by Securities and Exchange Commission, preclude coverage for securities claim alleging earnings misstatements, where latter claim not only arose from facts that occurred exclusively during current policy period, but also described wrongs that were factually and legally distinct from prior claims. Home Ins. Co. v Spectrum Info. Techs., 930 F. Supp. 825, 1996 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 12849 (E.D.N.Y. 1996).

160. — —Employee bodily injury exclusion

In light of a clause in an employer's liability policy excluding from coverage bodily injury arising out of the maintenance of any automobile owned or operated by the insured, it was error to deny plaintiff insurer summary judgment declaring that it was not obligated to share with the employer's compensation insurer in the defense and payment of a third-party claim over against the employer by the manufacturer of a tire in an action for personal injury sustained by an employee while he was changing the tire, where the undisputed facts established that the employee was engaged in the maintenance of one of the employer's buses when he was injured, thus bringing the claim over within the policy exclusion. Pennsylvania Millers Mut. Ins. Co. v Manco, 63 N.Y.2d 940, 483 N.Y.S.2d 686, 473 N.E.2d 38, 1984 N.Y. LEXIS 4724 (N.Y. 1984).

In regard to third party claim for contribution or indemnity in action arising from death of farm employee when he was struck by vehicle while using farm tractor to pull vehicle from highway ditch near farm, insurance company could not disclaim coverage of owner and operator of farm under provision of policy which excluded "liability...resulting from bodily injury to a farm employee," since such language is not specific enough to exclude insured's liability on third party claim for contribution or apportionment. Kimball v Chautauqua Patrons' Ins. Ass'n, 158 A.D.2d 983, 550 N.Y.S.2d 968, 1990 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1531 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1990).

Insurance policy, which excluded coverage for "bodily injury to any employee of any named insured," applied to bar coverage to additional insured against claim by employee of primary insured. Tardy v Morgan Guar. Trust Co., 213 A.D.2d 296, 624 N.Y.S.2d 34, 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3028 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1995).

Policy exclusion for "bodily injury to any employee of any named insured" barred coverage to plaintiff as additional insured; further, that part of policy providing that exclusion was inapplicable where bodily injury "resulted solely from the negligence of the named insured" did not apply since plaintiff was "named" but "additional" insured. Consolidated Edison Co. v United Coastal Ins. Co., 216 A.D.2d 137, 628 N.Y.S.2d 637, 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6579 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1995), reh'g denied, app. denied, 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11272 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't Oct. 10, 1995).

Policy endorsement entitled "Employee Bodily Injury Exclusion" did not conflict with policy exclusion stating that policy did not cover claims for bodily injuries for which insured must pay because of liability assumed in contract or agreement other than "insured contract." Monteleone v Crow Constr. Co., 242 A.D.2d 135, 673 N.Y.S.2d 408, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5853 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1998), app. denied, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9725 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't Sept. 10, 1998), app. denied, 92 N.Y.2d 818, 684 N.Y.S.2d 489, 707 N.E.2d 444, 1998 N.Y. LEXIS 4344 (N.Y. 1998).

General liability insurer was entitled to summary judgment declaring that it had no duty to defend and indemnify its insured when insured was impleaded by defendant in underlying action by employee who was injured while operating allegedly defective machine, as plain meaning of policy exclusion for bodily injuries to "an employee of the insured arising out of and in course of employment of the insured" was to relieve insurer of liability when insured was sued or contribution was requested for damages arising out of bodily injury to its employees sustained in course of their employment. Milbin Printing, Inc. v Lumbermen's Mut. Cas. Ins. Co., 283 A.D.2d 467, 724 N.Y.S.2d 464, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5005 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2001).

Injuries to claimant infant, in utero, from lead poisoning allegedly due to city university's failure to remove lead paint from its building, where claimant's mother both lived and was employed as custodian, fell within employment exclusion provision of general liability insurance policy issued to university excluding coverage for bodily injury to employee of insured or child of such employee as consequence of employment. Oates v State, 157 Misc. 2d 618, 597 N.Y.S.2d 550, 1993 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 166 (Ct. Cl. 1993).

Provision of insurance policy excluding from coverage "bodily injury or property damage arising out of the actual, alleged or threatened discharge, dispersal, release or escape of pollutants: at or from premises owned, rented or occupied by the name insured" did not apply in action brought against insured by infant who sustained lead poisoning while residing at insured's premises since it was reasonable to interpret exclusion as applying only to claims for injuries based on industrial environmental pollution. General Accident Ins. Co. of Am. v Idbar Realty Corp., 163 Misc. 2d 809, 622 N.Y.S.2d 417, 1994 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 623 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1994), modified, 229 A.D.2d 515, 646 N.Y.S.2d 138, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7889 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1996).

161. —Homeowner liability

Summary judgment was properly granted to an insurance company where the homeowner's policy in question covered the son of the insureds only if he was a resident of his parents' household, and the evidence submitted by the parties established that he did not actually reside in his parents' household at the relevant time. D'Amico v Pennsylvania Millers Mut. Ins. Co., 52 N.Y.2d 1000, 438 N.Y.S.2d 290, 420 N.E.2d 88, 1981 N.Y. LEXIS 2235 (N.Y. 1981).

Insured was entitled to judgment declaring that insurer was obligated to defend and indemnify him with respect to counterclaim alleging that insured negligently entrusted dangerous instrumentality (3-wheel all-terrain vehicle) to his 14-year-old son, despite homeowner's policy exclusion of occurrences "arising out of the ownership, maintenance, or use of...a motor vehicle," since claim of negligent entrustment was not directly related to negligent operation of vehicle. Cone v Nationwide Mut. Fire Ins. Co., 75 N.Y.2d 747, 551 N.Y.S.2d 891, 551 N.E.2d 92, 1989 N.Y. LEXIS 4388 (N.Y. 1989), limited, Monarch Ins. Co. v Hetherly, 148 Misc. 2d 594, 560 N.Y.S.2d 745, 1990 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 475 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1990), limited, New Hampshire Ins. Co. v Jefferson Ins. Co., 213 A.D.2d 325, 624 N.Y.S.2d 392, 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3290 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1995).

Insurance carrier was entitled to summary judgment declaring that insured's son was not "insured person" under homeowner's policy and that it was therefore not required to defend or indemnify son in personal injury action brought by victims of shooting incident where (1) policy defined insured person to include any relative of named insured, if resident of his household, (2) insured's son had lived in apartment with friends for 2 months prior to shooting incident and had paid upcoming month's rent at apartment, and (3) insured stated that his son did not reside in his home on date of shooting incident and that son would not be allowed to move back home if he asked to do so. Allstate Ins. Co. v Gominiak, 147 A.D.2d 979, 537 N.Y.S.2d 411, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1438 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1989).

Homeowners were entitled to summary judgment declaring that homeowners' insurance carrier was both liable for property damage to homeowners' premises from fire and obligated to defend them in 2 actions brought against them on behalf of children who were injured or died in fire, notwithstanding facts that policy excluded claims "arising out of" business pursuit of insured, and co-insured wife was convicted of operating day-care service on premises without appropriate permits and approvals, since (1) insurer failed to submit any evidence establishing that property damage, which resulted from fire of unknown origin, arose out of alleged baby-sitting business conducted by wife, and (2) complaints in 2 underlying actions asserted that injuries sustained by children were caused by homeowners' negligent operation, maintenance, control and supervision of premises and did not arise out of wife's baby-sitting business. Allstate Ins. Co. v Noorhassan, 158 A.D.2d 638, 551 N.Y.S.2d 942, 1990 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2231 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1990).

Parents were not entitled to coverage under homeowners general liability insurance policy in intrafamilial action brought by their child alleging sexual, physical and psychological abuse and failure to provide proper parental and intrafamilial care and support since acts alleged did not constitute "accidental loss," which was only loss for which coverage was provided; moreover, as matter of public policy, homeowners liability insurance policy should not provide coverage to parents who abuse their children. Doe v Allstate Ins. Co., 187 A.D.2d 181, 596 N.Y.S.2d 603, 1993 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12885 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1993).

Insurance company had duty to defend its insured under homeowner's policy in action initiated by insured against third party for assault, in which third party counterclaimed for unlawful imprisonment, harassment, and menacing, even though policy excluded coverage for intentional or criminal acts if loss could be reasonably expected to result or was intended result of insured, where insurance company failed to establish that allegations of counterclaim fell within exclusion. Allstate Ins. Co. v DiBartolo, 209 A.D.2d 463, 618 N.Y.S.2d 828, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11555 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1994).

Insurer, which disclaimed coverage for loss sustained when portion of concrete slab foundation of insureds' house collapsed as result of "decomposing organic matter" within ground underneath foundation, was entitled to summary judgment in breach of contract action where proximate cause of insureds' loss was "earth movement," despite decomposition of buried organic materials, and insurer's policy specifically denominated "earth movement" as "excluded event" and further clearly stated that it did not insure that type of loss "regardless of the cause of the excluded event." Sheehan v State Farm Fire & Cas. Co., 239 A.D.2d 486, 658 N.Y.S.2d 61, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5346 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1997).

At time of their deaths from carbon monoxide poisoning, stepfather and his stepchild were no longer "relatives" within meaning of exclusionary clause in homeowner's policy issued to stepfather where his wife, who was child's adoptive mother, had died previously; to extent that stepchild had been relative of stepfather by affinity, that relationship had terminated on death of stepfather's wife. Randolph v Nationwide Mut. Fire Ins. Co., 242 A.D.2d 889, 662 N.Y.S.2d 650, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10441 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1997).

Insurer was obligated to defend and indemnify insured as third-party defendant in action brought by insured's husband against third-party plaintiff, who then sought contribution and indemnification from insured, notwithstanding that underlying incident resulted in injury to insured's husband and that he qualified as insured under homeowner's policy, which excluded from coverage injuries to named insureds, since policy was narrowly drafted to exclude from coverage only direct claims of bodily injury by insureds. Doyle v Pawtucket Mut. Ins. Co., 243 A.D.2d 603, 667 N.Y.S.2d 755, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10245 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1997).

Insurance carrier was entitled to summary judgment declaring that it was not obligated to defend and indemnify insured's son in tort action arising from his criminal act of firing 18 shots in direction of group of people, inflicting 5 wounds, because such conduct could not be considered "accident" under homeowners' and personal liability umbrella policies as matter of law. State Farm Fire & Cas. Co. v Torio, 250 A.D.2d 833, 673 N.Y.S.2d 696, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6034 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1998), app. denied, 92 N.Y.2d 819, 685 N.Y.S.2d 420, 708 N.E.2d 177, 1999 N.Y. LEXIS 2039 (N.Y. 1999).

Insurer was entitled to summary judgment declaring that it was not obligated to defend and indemnify insureds under homeowner's policy in connection with personal injury action arising from dog bite incident on premises, where insureds owned but did not reside at insured premises, policy defined insured premises as "residence premises," and policy only provided coverage if insured premises was used as residence by insureds. Metropolitan Prop. & Cas. Ins. Co. v Pulido, 271 A.D.2d 57, 710 N.Y.S.2d 375, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7426 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2000).

Adult stepchild who lived with his stepfather was not excluded from coverage under stepfather's homeowner's insurance policy as "relative" living in same household where stepchild's mother died prior to accident that gave rise to claim; once stepchild's mother died, bond of affinity terminated between stepchild and stepfather. Randolph v Nationwide Mut. Ins. Co., 170 Misc. 2d 364, 650 N.Y.S.2d 964, 1996 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 437 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1996), aff'd, 242 A.D.2d 889, 662 N.Y.S.2d 650, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10441 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1997).

Nothing in New York Insurance Law requires insurer to add endorsement to homeowner's insurance policy that extends liability insurance coverage to secondary residence located in state where insurer is not licensed; however, insurer is not prohibited from doing so, but may be subject to laws of other state. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 02-10-25.

162. —Business activity exclusion

Insurer was obligated to defend insureds in underlying action by infant, who was allegedly injured while under insureds' supervision and care, even though insurer established that insureds were engaged in "business pursuit" within meaning of policy exclusion when child was injured, since there was no evidence as to circumstances under which child allegedly sustained injury; thus, insurer failed to establish that alleged injury resulted from activities which fell solely under business pursuits exclusion and not under narrow exception to that exclusionary clause requiring that coverage be afforded for activities "unusual to nonbusiness pursuits." Hanover Ins. Co. v Cowan, 172 A.D.2d 490, 568 N.Y.S.2d 115, 1991 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4414 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1991).

Insurer was entitled to summary judgment declaring that it was not required to defend or indemnify insured in action for alleged assault and negligence arising from his participation in union picketing of his employer's plant, as alleged loss fell within "business pursuits" exclusion of homeowner's policy where insured was not only union member and worker at plant, but was also employed as union's local president; level of insured's compensation as union president (and fact that his compensation may have been suspended during strike) was irrelevant as long as he was entitled to payment for his work as union president. Salimbene v Merchants Mut. Ins. Co., 217 A.D.2d 991, 629 N.Y.S.2d 913, 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8428 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1995).

Business exception in homeowner's insurance policy applied to customer's slip and fall on homeowner's driveway while buying flowers, which homeowner was selling to passersby for $2 per bunch from folding table near front of her property, where policy defined "business" as "any full or part time activity of any kind engaged in for economic gain." Bragin v Allstate Ins. Co., 238 A.D.2d 773, 656 N.Y.S.2d 468, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3937 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1997).

Plaintiff who owned snowmobile was entitled to summary judgment declaring that his homeowners policy covered injuries sustained by friend who was driving snowmobile when it hit some indentations or ruts on his lawn; policy exclusion for activities "arising out of business pursuits of an insured" did not apply where (1) plaintiff averred that he acquired snowmobile for personal use, and not for purpose of wholesale car business that he operated from his garage, and (2) even assuming arguendo that he was engaged in business pursuit, his friend's activity fell within policy exception for "activities...usual to nonbusiness pursuits." Showler v American Mfrs. Mut. Ins. Co., 261 A.D.2d 896, 690 N.Y.S.2d 369, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4948 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1999).

Business pursuits exclusion of homeowners insurance policy applied where delivery service employee fell while making delivery to business that operated out of home, notwithstanding contention that fall was caused by construction work at home and not by business at home; relevant question was why delivery service employee was at home, and not why he fell. Velleman v Continental Ins. Co., 162 Misc. 2d 95, 616 N.Y.S.2d 146, 1994 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 361 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1994).

Exception to business pursuits exclusion of homeowners insurance policy, which excepted activities that were ordinarily incident to non-business pursuits, did not apply to situation where delivery service employee fell while making delivery to business that operated out of home, since regular and frequent deliveries and pickups by delivery service are not usual activities occurring at residence. Velleman v Continental Ins. Co., 162 Misc. 2d 95, 616 N.Y.S.2d 146, 1994 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 361 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1994).

General liability insurance policy issued to tavern owner may contain exclusion for liquor liability. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 02-04-30.

163. —Contractor liability

In an action brought by a subcontractor against its liability insurer for reimbursement of a sum for which the subcontractor had been backcharged by the general contractor as a result of costs incurred to repair certain structural defects arising from the subcontractor's failure to perform properly the construction work, the property damage was excluded by a provision in the policy that denied coverage for damage to the insured's own work, but not for damage to the work product of others. Adler & Neilson Co. v Insurance Co. of North America, 56 N.Y.2d 540, 449 N.Y.S.2d 957, 434 N.E.2d 1335, 1982 N.Y. LEXIS 3224 (N.Y. 1982).

General liability insurer of subcontractor had no obligation to subcontractor's workers' compensation insurer to reimburse latter after it had paid settlement to subcontractor's injured employee, who had sued contractor, which in turn had brought third-party action against subcontractor, where general liability policy excluded coverage for injury to employee or "any obligation of the insured to indemnify another because of damages arising out of such injury"; word "indemnification" was not ambiguous, and plain terms of provision expressly excluded liability under circumstances of case. North River Ins. Co. v United Nat'l Ins. Co., 81 N.Y.2d 812, 595 N.Y.S.2d 377, 611 N.E.2d 278, 1993 N.Y. LEXIS 87 (N.Y. 1993).

Builder's comprehensive liability insurer was properly granted summary judgment declaring that it was not obligated to defend and indemnify builder in underlying action by homeowners who alleged that builder failed to erect their homes in workmanlike manner by connecting them to contaminated ground water wells which posed risks to household fixtures and appliances as well as their families' health, where builder's insurance policy contained exclusion for property damage arising out of work performed by builder; such "work product" exclusion includes, not only mortar, bricks, wiring and pipes that comprise houses, but also numerous discretionary choices made in course of erecting houses, such as builder's choice of site. Basil Dev. Corp. v General Accident Ins. Co., 89 N.Y.2d 1057, 659 N.Y.S.2d 828, 681 N.E.2d 1274, 1997 N.Y. LEXIS 737 (N.Y. 1997).

Asbestos insulation contractor, which was held entitled to defense in underlying personal injury actions because its insurers failed to establish that claims in underlying actions fell wholly within product-hazards exclusion clause of policies, was not automatically entitled to declaration that insurers also had duty to indemnify it in all underlying actions, as insurer's duty to indemnify is broader than its duty to defend, and question of insurer's duty to indemnify must await ultimate determination of liability. Frontier Insulation Contrs. v Merchants Mut. Ins. Co., 91 N.Y.2d 169, 667 N.Y.S.2d 982, 690 N.E.2d 866, 1997 N.Y. LEXIS 3722 (N.Y. 1997).

Although heavy equipment lessee's commercial general liability policy evinced intention to pay third parties sums that insured became legally obligated to pay as damages, insurer was entitled to summary judgment in action by lessor of equipment that became damaged, allegedly due to insured's negligence, where policy excluded property rented by insured or in its care, custody, or control, and action was premature because policy did not allow third party to sue insurer until it had settled or obtained final judgment against insured, neither of which had yet occurred. Orange Handling v American Mfrs. Mut. Ins. Co., 245 A.D.2d 768, 665 N.Y.S.2d 469, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12936 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1997).

Liability insurer was entitled to summary judgment declaring that it was not obligated to defend and indemnify insured in underlying action for injuries sustained by subcontractor's employee who slipped and fell while standing on side of bathtub to remove tape left on wall of recently completed apartment in building still under construction, where policy contained "basic construction exclusion" clause which excluded liability for bodily injury arising out of construction or demolition operations in course of any job involving "new construction...of any load bearing wall, floor, ceiling or roof." West 56th St. Assocs. v Greater N.Y. Mut. Ins. Co., 250 A.D.2d 109, 681 N.Y.S.2d 523, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13754 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1998), amended, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1194 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't Jan. 19, 1999).

164. —Vehicle lessor liability

The exclusion of guest coverage in an insurance policy provided by a corporation renting motor vehicles did not violate subdivision 2 of former section 167 [now § 3420(e)] of the Insurance Law where a van was rented in New York by a New York resident who was to deliver the van three days later to the lessor in Maine, inasmuch as the mandatory provisions of subdivision 2 of former section 167 [now § 3420(e)], one of which required coverage for injuries suffered by a passenger in the vehicle (Vehicle and Traffic Law, § 311; 11 NYCRR 60.1), are applicable only to policies issued on vehicles principally garaged or used in this State and the vehicle in question was registered in Massachusetts and was only temporarily in New York. Travelers Indem. Co. v Ryder Truck Rental, Inc., 47 N.Y.2d 139, 417 N.Y.S.2d 53, 390 N.E.2d 771, 1979 N.Y. LEXIS 1992 (N.Y. 1979).

"Step down" endorsement to primary insurance purchased by owner of leased van did not limit carrier's liability to $10,000 where term "leased auto" was specifically defined in endorsement to mean vehicle that owner-lessor leased "under a lease agreement which requires the lessee to provide primary insurance for you," and where rental agreement between owner-lessor and lessee required owner to maintain $500,000 of primary coverage. Jefferson Ins. Co. v Travelers Indem. Co., 92 N.Y.2d 363, 681 N.Y.S.2d 208, 703 N.E.2d 1221, 1998 N.Y. LEXIS 3664 (N.Y. 1998).

Exclusionary clause in truck lessor's nontrucking use policy, providing "bobtail" coverage for truck cab use only and excluding coverage when trailer is attached to truck and is being used to carry property in any business, was invalid as against state's public policy requiring existence of insurance to meet minimum standards of liability coverage, and policy would accordingly be construed to provide coverage whether vehicle was being used in lessor's or lessee's business at time of accident. Planet Ins. Co. v Gunther, 160 Misc. 2d 67, 608 N.Y.S.2d 763, 1993 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 573 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1993).

165. —Liability for intentional act

Neighbors who had been shot by person insured under comprehensive personal liability homeowner's policy were collaterally estopped from relitigating insured's intent after insured was convicted of first degree manslaughter, attempted manslaughter and weapons offense, and thus insurer's liability to neighbors was precluded by policy provisions excluding injuries "expected" or "intended" or "caused intentionally" by insured; collateral estoppel effect of criminal findings was not nullified by fact that insured had established that he acted under extreme emotional disturbance. In re Nassau Ins. Co., 78 N.Y.2d 888, 573 N.Y.S.2d 447, 577 N.E.2d 1039, 1991 N.Y. LEXIS 817 (N.Y. 1991).

When third party perpetrates assault, basis of victim's claim for negligent failure to maintain safe premises against insured is assault; thus, insurance policy exclusion, providing that "no coverage shall apply...for any claim, demand or suit based on Assault and Battery, and Assault and Battery shall not be deemed an accident whether or not committed by or at the direction of the insured," applied, even though theory pleaded was insured's negligent failure to maintain safe premises, since operative act giving rise to any recovery was assault. Mount Vernon Fire Ins. Co. v Creative Hous., 88 N.Y.2d 347, 645 N.Y.S.2d 433, 668 N.E.2d 404, 1996 N.Y. LEXIS 1182 (N.Y. 1996).

Insured was entitled to summary judgment declaring that his insurance company had duty to indemnify him in negligence action arising from his altercation with bouncers at nightclub, where he was ejected from club, he returned with shotgun and fired round of buckshot at nightclub door, injuring patron inside, and he was arrested and pleaded guilty to attempted first degree assault, explaining at plea allocution that he only intended to damage door and did not think that anyone would be injured; patron's injuries were accidental result of insured's intentional act and thus were not within policy exclusion for "bodily injury... expected or intended" by insured. Barry v Romanosky, 147 A.D.2d 605, 538 N.Y.S.2d 14, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1994 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1989).

Court should have granted insurer's motion to dismiss complaint in action by injured plaintiffs to compel payment of unsatisfied default judgment against insured where policy specifically excluded coverage for bodily injuries "expected or intended by insured" and insured was convicted of first degree assault of plaintiffs, conclusively establishing that plaintiffs' injuries were intentionally caused by insured, and collaterally estopping plaintiffs from relitigating issue of intent. D'Arata v New York Cent. Mut. Fire Ins. Co., 152 A.D.2d 1004, 543 N.Y.S.2d 810, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9942 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1989), aff'd, 76 N.Y.2d 659, 563 N.Y.S.2d 24, 564 N.E.2d 634, 1990 N.Y. LEXIS 3484 (N.Y. 1990).

Incident for which insured was convicted of first degree manslaughter and attempted first degree manslaughter was not covered under comprehensive personal liability policy where police specifically provided that "This coverage does not apply to injury or destruction...caused intentionally by any insured over twelve years old." In re Nassau Ins. Co., 161 A.D.2d 146, 554 N.Y.S.2d 551, 1990 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4837 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1990), aff'd, 78 N.Y.2d 888, 573 N.Y.S.2d 447, 577 N.E.2d 1039, 1991 N.Y. LEXIS 817 (N.Y. 1991).

Insurance policy exclusion for intentionally caused harm applied to action alleging that president of insured company hired persons to assault and break both legs of another employee of company, that plan went awry, and that assailants killed employee, since physical injury to employee was inherent in hiring of persons to assault employee. Monter v CNA Ins. Cos., 202 A.D.2d 405, 608 N.Y.S.2d 692, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1951 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1994).

In action for judgment declaring that liability insurer had duty to defend plaintiff in $1 million personal injury action which arose from verbal confrontation with shop attendant who alleged that, when she began to walk away, plaintiff grabbed her arm and told her to "lighten up," insurer was not entitled to summary judgment based on policy's express exclusion for intentional bodily injury where (1) police incident report indicated that shop attendant was not injured and was not touched in any sexual or intimate location, (2) complaint in underlying action could be construed as alleging intentional offensive contact resulting in unintended serious harm not inherent in nature of such physical contact, and (3) complaint also alleged that emotional harm to shop attendant was negligently inflicted. Jubin v St. Paul Fire & Marine Ins. Co., 236 A.D.2d 712, 653 N.Y.S.2d 454, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1300 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1997).

Plaintiff was not entitled to summary judgment in action against insurance carrier which had improperly disclaimed coverage in underlying action against its insured based on policy exclusion for bodily injuries intentionally caused by insureds as (1) insurer's breach of duty to defend did not thereby create coverage, nor did its refusal to defend compel insured's default in underlying action, (2) contention that plaintiff's injury was intentionally caused was not defense to underlying action, and issue of whether plaintiff's injury was intentionally or negligently caused was not actually litigated in underlying action due to insured's default, and thus default judgment in underlying action had no collateral estoppel effect on issue of coverage, and (3) insurer was entitled to try to establish that it had no duty to indemnify (which is distinctly different from its duty to defend). Robbins v Michigan Millers Mut. Ins. Co., 236 A.D.2d 769, 653 N.Y.S.2d 975, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2046 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1997).

Assault and battery exclusion in bar's liability insurance policy excluded all 6 of insured's causes of action where 3 of them alleged that perpetrator intentionally struck patron in face with glass bottle, 3 of them inconsistently alleged that perpetrator carelessly and negligently struck patron in face with glass bottle, no additional facts were pleaded, and motion papers did not suggest any evidentiary support for conclusory characterization of perpetrator's conduct as negligent, or provide any explanation of how intrinsically intentional act of assault could be negligently performed. Sphere Drake Ins. Co. v 72 Centre Ave. Corp., 238 A.D.2d 574, 657 N.Y.S.2d 65, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4384 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1997).

Insurer, under liquor liability policy, was obligated to defend and indemnify insured in underlying action for injuries sustained in fight at insured's bar, even though insurer showed that assault and battery exclusion was customarily included in its commercial general liability and liquor liability policies, since insurer, by issuing binder that specifically noted exclusion as to commercial general liability coverage and not liquor liability coverage, created confusion as to exclusion's application to both coverages, and thus it would have been reasonable for insured to conclude based on binder that exclusion applied to commercial general liability coverage only. Crouse West Holding Corp. v Sphere Drake Ins. Co., PLC, 248 A.D.2d 932, 670 N.Y.S.2d 640, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2965 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't), app. dismissed, 252 A.D.2d 995, 1998 N.Y. Insurer had no duty to defend or indemnify insured for personal liability in connection with his molestation of 7-year-old boy where (1) homeowner's policy at issue excluded injuries "expected or intended by the insured," (2) although underlying action alleged insured's negligence in committing sexual acts without foreseeing possibility of injuring boy, without considering boy's age, and without first assessing consequences of his acts, gravamen of action was insured intentional acts, for which he had been convicted of first degree sexual abuse and endangering welfare of child, and (3) insured should not be allowed to receive insurance protection for sexually molesting child. Gibbs v CNA Ins. Cos., 263 A.D.2d 836, 693 N.Y.S.2d 720, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8278 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1999), app. denied, 1999 N.Y. LEXIS 3835 (N.Y. Nov. 23, 1999).

Insurer had no duty to defend or indemnify insured for personal liability in connection with his molestation of 7-year-old boy where (1) homeowner's policy at issue excluded injuries "expected or intended by the insured," (2) although underlying action alleged insured's negligence in committing sexual acts without foreseeing possibility of injuring boy, without considering boy's age, and without first assessing consequences of his acts, gravamen of action was insured intentional acts, for which he had been convicted of first degree sexual abuse and endangering welfare of child, (3) insured should not be allowed to receive insurance protection for sexually molesting child, and (4) amendment of complaint in underlying action to add causes of action based on negligent physical contact with boy was obvious manipulation of legal process for sole purpose of procuring coverage. Gibbs v General Accident Ins. Co., 263 A.D.2d 852, 693 N.Y.S.2d 719, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8263 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), app. denied, 94 N.Y.2d 755, 701 N.Y.S.2d 711, 723 N.E.2d 566, 1999 N.Y. LEXIS 3822 (N.Y. 1999).

In action by plaintiff who was injured when insured fired 20-gauge shotgun in his vicinity, exclusion in homeowner's policy for "intentional acts" did not apply where insured maintained that he was unaware that gun was loaded and insisted that shooting was accidental, he pleaded guilty to second degree assault admitting that he recklessly caused serious injury to plaintiff and, while he apparently intended to pull trigger, record was devoid of evidence that he intended harm or was aware that gun was loaded prior to its discharge. Slayko v Sec. Mut. Ins. Co., 285 A.D.2d 875, 728 N.Y.S.2d 282, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7532 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2001), rev'd, 98 N.Y.2d 289, 746 N.Y.S.2d 444, 774 N.E.2d 208, 2002 N.Y. LEXIS 1902 (N.Y. 2002).

Insurer was entitled to summary judgment in a coverage dispute because the town fire investigator, a county police arson squad investigator, and a private fire investigator all determined that the fire at the insured's property was intentionally set, and, as such, the policy's vandalism exclusion applied; subsection (d) of this statute did not apply because the insured's claims were for property damage. Swanson v Allstate Ins. Co., 150 A.D.3d 1299, 55 N.Y.S.3d 408, 2017 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4243 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't), app. denied, 30 N.Y.3d 903, 89 N.E.3d 519, 67 N.Y.S.3d 129, 2017 N.Y. Sexual misconduct provision of social workers' professional liability policy which limited coverage to $25,000 for all malpractice claims involving actual or alleged sexual misconduct violated public policy of New York and was unenforceable, although such provision was approved by Superintendent of Insurance and National Association of Social Workers. American Home Assur. Co. v McDonald, 182 Misc. 2d 716, 698 N.Y.S.2d 436, 1999 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 471 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1999), aff'd in part, modified, 274 A.D.2d 70, 712 N.Y.S.2d 507, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8606 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2000).

In action by plaintiff who was shot by defendant's insured after night of "partying" which included drinking alcoholic beverages and smoking marihuana, defendant was not entitled to disclaim coverage based on policy exclusion for intentional acts, where it submitted no proof to rebut plaintiff's allegation that insured was unaware gun was loaded when he pulled trigger, there was no proof that insured intended to actually shoot plaintiff, and it was irrelevant whether result of pulling trigger was foreseeable if shooting was not intended. Slayko v Security Mut. Ins. Co., 183 Misc. 2d 688, 705 N.Y.S.2d 528, 2000 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 68 (N.Y.

Where a creditor sought to declare a state court judgment nondischargeable under 11 U.S.C.S. § 523(a)(6) and alternatively sought to recover the unsatisfied judgment from the debtor's insurer, which alleged that its policies excluded coverage because the debtor's actions in injuring the creditor were intentional, a bankruptcy court declined to abstain under 28 U.S.C.S. § 1334(c)(1), as the coverage issue raised in the N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420 action could have a dispositive effect on the scope of the debtor's discharge and thus, it would affect the administration of the estate and the debtor's future. Although the coverage issue was controlled by state law, the issue was not a difficult one and coincided with the issue of dischargeability under federal bankruptcy law. Hough v Margulies (In re Margulies), 476 B.R. 393, 2012 Bankr. LEXIS 3768 (Bankr. S.D.N.Y. 2012).

Professional liability insurer's failure to give notice under Ins § 3420(d) that insurer intended to disclaim coverage for injuries allegedly caused by psychiatrist's sexual contact with patient did not estop insurer from denying coverage, where policies did not provide coverage for that type of intentional misconduct. Dodge v Legion Ins. Co., 102 F. Supp. 2d 144, 2000 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 4980 (S.D.N.Y. 2000).

166. —Liability for pollution

Despite policy exclusion of coverage for injuries or damage arising out of discharge or escape of pollutants, including waste, liability insurer was obligated to defend insured village in actions for injury and damage allegedly caused by discharge or overflow of raw sewage from municipal sewer system, since any risk of liability faced by village allegedly arose from flood-like nature of discharge rather than its "polluting" character; however, trial was necessary before any determination on issue of indemnification could be made. Incorporated Village of Cedarhurst v Hanover Ins. Co., 89 N.Y.2d 293, 653 N.Y.S.2d 68, 675 N.E.2d 822, 1996 N.Y. LEXIS 3583 (N.Y. 1996).

Insurers were entitled to summary judgment declaring that they had no duty to defend or indemnify insured town and village in landowners' actions alleging that town and village negligently failed to prevent and abate illegal disposal of noxious waste on their land by excavation contractor retained by landowners to regrade their properties, since pollution exclusion clauses of policies unambiguously excluded coverage of claims generated by dumping of waste materials onto complainants' properties as asserted in underlying complaints, irrespective of who was responsible for such acts. Town of Harrison v National Union Fire Ins. Co., 89 N.Y.2d 308, 653 N.Y.S.2d 75, 675 N.E.2d 829, 1996 N.Y. LEXIS 3582 (N.Y. 1996), reh'g denied, 89 N.Y.2d 1031, 658 N.Y.S.2d 246, 680 N.E.2d 620, 1997 N.Y. LEXIS 395 (N.Y. 1997).

In determining whether coverage was barred under general liability insurance policy which excluded coverage for damages arising out of discharge of environmental pollutants but contained exception to exclusion for "sudden and accidental" discharge of pollutants, insurer had burden of showing that underlying complaints alleged damages attributable to discharge of pollutant into environment, whereupon burden shifted to insured to show reasonable interpretation of underlying complaints potentially bringing claims within sudden and accidental discharge exception, or to proffer extrinsic evidence that discharge was in fact sudden and accidental. Northville Indus. Corp. v National Union Fire Ins. Co., 89 N.Y.2d 621, 657 N.Y.S.2d 564, 679 N.E.2d 1044, 1997 N.Y. LEXIS 306 (N.Y. 1997).

In action under CLS Nav Art 12 to recover costs incurred in cleanup of area contaminated by leakage of underground gasoline storage tank, court erred in granting summary judgment for defendant insurer on ground that leakage, which occurred over many years, did not fall within exception to policy's pollution exclusion clause, which provided that exclusion did not apply if discharge was "sudden and accidental," since there was no evidence in record to indicate that tank or property owners were aware of leakage until investigations by State Department of Transportation revealed gasoline contamination in area. State v Aetna Casualty & Sur. Co., 155 A.D.2d 740, 547 N.Y.S.2d 452, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13812 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1989).

In action by comprehensive general liability (CGL) insurer seeking declaration that it had no duty to defend and indemnify insured in underlying asbestos-related personal injury claims, court improperly held that pollution exclusion clause in CGL policy eliminated all coverage as matter of law since underlying complaints did not allege environmental pollution of land, water course, or atmosphere, but simply bodily injury sustained by ultimate product user; exclusion clause, as limited by "industry related activities," applied to environmental pollution from intentional discharge of pollutant in course of manufacturing or distribution activities by producer of product, not harm inflicted by product fully and finally launched into stream of commerce. Continental Casualty Co. v Rapid-American Corp., 177 A.D.2d 61, 581 N.Y.S.2d 669, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2737 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1992), aff'd, 80 N.Y.2d 640, 593 N.Y.S.2d 966, 609 N.E.2d 506, 1993 N.Y. LEXIS 81 (N.Y. 1993).

In declaratory judgment action by insured gas station operator to require insurer to defend it in underlying action brought by nearby property owners to recover damages for contamination discovered in 1990, allegedly caused by leakage of petroleum products from subsurface tank or pipe, insurer failed to establish that absolute pollution exclusion which had been included in policy for years commencing August 1, 1986 and 1987 was operative for 2 later policy years, where no endorsement listing absolute pollution exclusion was listed on garage liability declarations page of policy for later years, and assertion by insurer's attorney that endorsement should have been appended to each policy was not based on first-hand knowledge. Petr-All Petroleum Corp. v Fireman's Ins. Co., 188 A.D.2d 139, 593 N.Y.S.2d 693, 1993 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1324 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1993).

Pollution exclusion clause in comprehensive general liability policies issued to landowner, which excluded coverage for damage arising out of "discharge, dispersal, release or escape of smoke, vapors, soot, fumes, acids, alkalis, toxic chemicals, liquids or gases, waste materials or other irritants or pollutants into or upon land, the atmosphere or any other water course or body of water," exempted insurers from defending landowner in action by adjoining landowner seeking injunctive relief and damages for impairment of its land by "leachate contamination" from landfill. County of Columbia v Continental Ins. Co., 189 A.D.2d 391, 595 N.Y.S.2d 988, 1993 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3502 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), app. denied, 82 N.Y.2d 841, 606 N.Y.S.2d 591, 627 N.E.2d 512, 1993 N.Y. LEXIS 4306 (N.Y. 1993), aff'd, 83 N.Y.2d 618, 612 N.Y.S.2d 345, 634 N.E.2d 946, 1994 N.Y. LEXIS 1066 (N.Y. 1994).

Pollution exclusion clause of business liability policy barred insured landlord from obtaining defense or immunity from insurance company in action commenced by tenant against landlord for injuries caused by cigarette smoke, which allegedly seeped into tenant's premises from pool and billiard club in basement of building, where pollution exclusion clause stated that insurance company was not liable for physical or property damages caused by pollutants, and policy defined pollutant to include vapor, smoke and fumes. Demakos v Travelers Ins. Co., 205 A.D.2d 731, 613 N.Y.S.2d 709, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6610 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1994), overruled in part, Belt Painting Corp. v TIG Ins. Co., 293 A.D.2d 206, 742 N.Y.S.2d 332, 2002 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5146 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2002).

Insurance company was obligated to defend town, despite pollution-exclusion provisions of policy, where underlying actions by property owners did not allege that town was responsible for illegal dumping on property, but rather that town allowed properties to be used as illegal dump sites, negligently failed to enforce Public Health Law, county sanitary code, and other applicable laws, and failed to inspect and remedy contaminated landfill. Town of Harrison v National Union Fire Ins. Co., 219 A.D.2d 640, 631 N.Y.S.2d 420, 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9917 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1995), modified, 89 N.Y.2d 308, 653 N.Y.S.2d 75, 675 N.E.2d 829, 1996 N.Y. LEXIS 3582 (N.Y. 1996).

Provision of policy issued to village, which excluded coverage for claims arising from discharge or release of pollutants, was ambiguous as to whether raw sewage was encompassed within definition of waste where "raw sewage" was not explicitly listed in policy as pollutant, and policy term "waste" was subject to more than one reasonable interpretation; thus, insurer was obligated to defend and indemnify village in underlying action to recover damages for bodily injury and property damage resulting from overflow of village's sewage system. Incorporated Village of Cedarhurst v Hanover Ins. Co., 223 A.D.2d 528, 636 N.Y.S.2d 390, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 159 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't), modified, aff'd, 89 N.Y.2d 293, 653 N.Y.S.2d 68, 675 N.E.2d 822, 1996 N.Y. LEXIS 3583 (N.Y. 1996).

Liability insurer was entitled to summary judgment declaring that it was not obligated to defend and indemnify its insured, sewer commission that designed, constructed, and maintained sewage treatment plant pursuant to agreement between village and town, since there was no merit to insured's contention that policy's pollution exclusion clause did not apply to municipal insureds; determinative factor was whether particular entity was in fact responsible for pollution, regardless of whether polluter was commercial agency or otherwise. Tri-Municipal Sewer Comm'n v Continental Ins. Co., 223 A.D.2d 639, 636 N.Y.S.2d 856, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 412 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1996).

Oil-like asphalt sealant applied on roads by plaintiff construction company constituted pollutant within meaning of general liability insurance policy where it dispersed and contaminated waters and wildlife of creek upon its discharge; thus, defendant insurer was entitled to summary judgment in plaintiff's action for indemnification of costs of environmental cleanup based on policy's absolute pollution exclusion clause. Cannon Constr. Co. v Liberty Mut. Ins. Co., 227 A.D.2d 364, 642 N.Y.S.2d 88, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5273 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1996).

Underlying occurrences did not fall within exception to pollution exclusion in liability insurance policy where considerable litigation had established that exception was not operative unless occurrence was both "sudden" and "accidental," and insured failed to present any facts to support claim that subject pollution was sudden. Merchants Mut. Ins. Co. v Allcity Ins. Co., 245 A.D.2d 590, 664 N.Y.S.2d 690, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12538 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1997).

Plaintiff's general liability insurer was entitled to summary judgment declaring that policy's pollution exclusion applied to claims asserted in underlying action wherein injured party alleged that, after plaintiff's subcontractor removed furnace, airborne asbestos was released into his home; indoor air contamination can constitute environmental pollution. A-One Oil, Inc. v Massachusetts Bay Ins. Co., 250 A.D.2d 633, 672 N.Y.S.2d 423, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5556 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't), app. denied, 92 N.Y.2d 814, 683 N.Y.S.2d 174, 705 N.E.2d 1215, 1998 N.Y. LEXIS 4067 (N.Y. 1998), overruled in part, Belt Painting Corp. v TIG Ins. Co., 293 A.D.2d 206, 742 N.Y.S.2d 332, 2002 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5146 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2002).

Defendant, which was in business of fractionating whole blood plasma into component parts by use of refrigerated centrifuge machines, was entitled to summary judgment declaring that its casualty insurer was obligated to indemnify it for damages resulting from contamination of blood plasma by seepage of ethylene glycol which occurred in processing, as policy's pollution exclusion clause did not apply as matter of law to contamination by leakage within processing machine. Vigilant Ins. Co. v V.I. Techs., 253 A.D.2d 401, 676 N.Y.S.2d 596, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9189 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1998), app. dismissed, 93 N.Y.2d 999, 695 N.Y.S.2d 744, 717 N.E.2d 1081, 1999 N.Y. LEXIS 1841 (N.Y. 1999).

Insurance company was entitled to summary judgment declaring that it was not obligated to defend and indemnify insureds in underlying action to recover for property damage resulting from petroleum leakage into soil and groundwater, where policies at issue contained unambiguous total pollution exclusions with respect to property damage caused by pollutants. Tartan Oil Corp. v Clark, 258 A.D.2d 457, 684 N.Y.S.2d 600, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 806 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't), app. denied, 94 N.Y.2d 751, 699 N.Y.S.2d 6, 721 N.E.2d 22, 1999 N.Y. LEXIS 3476 (N.Y. 1999).

Liability insurer was entitled to summary judgment declaring that its insured was not entitled to defense and indemnity of pollution claim, where underlying complaint alleged that hazardous substances "from on and off-site were disposed of" during period when insured owned property in question, which satisfied basic requirement for application of policy's pollution coverage exclusion, and insured failed to offer any evidence to support its argument that alleged on-site disposal triggered "sudden and accidental" exception to policy exclusion. Bresky v Ace INA Holdings, Inc., 287 A.D.2d 912, 731 N.Y.S.2d 791, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9944 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2001).

Pollution exclusion clause in professional liability insurance policy did not apply to action by owner of condominium for carbon monoxide poisoning caused by furnace installed in utility closet in condominium since release of carbon monoxide from furnace is not occurrence that falls within public understanding of "pollution" and is not implicated by insurance policy's use of terms of art common in environmental law. Kenyon v Security Ins. Co., 163 Misc. 2d 991, 626 N.Y.S.2d 347, 1993 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 621 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1993), aff'd, 206 A.D.2d 980, 616 N.Y.S.2d 133, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7871 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1994).

167. Particular accidents as involving use of vehicle

There was no coverage under an insurance policy which covered only direct loss resulting from actual physical contact of a vehicle with the property covered under the policy under evidence that the property owner entered into an agreement with a party for the removal of some boilers from the building on the property, that the contractor attached one end of a 100 foot cable to its truck and hooked the other end to a boiler tank and proceeded to pull the tank from the building through the doorway, that in the process of dragging the tank, a barrel which supported a beam or an upright to a beam was dislodged causing the roof of the building to sag resulting in extensive damages. Backer v Newark Ins. Co., 33 A.D.2d 873, 305 N.Y.S.2d 858, 1969 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2550 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1969).

Where a car which the insured had undertaken to forward in the course of its forwarding business, was stolen while parked on a city street, which car had been locked and the key retained by the driver, the insurer was liable where the policy provided coverage against auto theft occurring while said automobile or other property was in the custody of the insured at a location stated in the indorsement or while temporarily removed therefrom in the ordinary course of the insured's business. Tadian v Continental Forwarding, Inc., 33 A.D.2d 334, 308 N.Y.S.2d 148, 1970 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5396 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't), aff'd, 27 N.Y.2d 930, 318 N.Y.S.2d 145, 266 N.E.2d 824, 1970 N.Y. LEXIS 949 (N.Y. 1970).

Bridge authority's general liability insurer was entitled to summary judgment declaring that it was not obligated to share in cost of settlements paid by bridge authority's automobile insurer to driver and passenger of car that struck bridge authority truck, which had been left standing on roadway of bridge by maintenance man to curb flow of traffic to nonoperational tollgates, as general liability insurance policy contained automobile exclusion clause and, while underlying complaint asserted negligence in operation of bridge as opposed to use of vehicle, accident arose out of use of stationary vehicle. United States Fire Ins. Co. v New York Marine & Gen. Ins. Co., 268 A.D.2d 19, 706 N.Y.S.2d 377, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2995 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2000).

Where plaintiff was injured by a carton falling from a truck during the process of unloading, since the accident occurred before the goods had finally come to rest in the premises of the consignee, the accident fell within the coverage of the policy dealing with the "use" of a truck. B & D Motor Lines, Inc. v Citizens Casualty Co., 43 N.Y.S.2d 486, 181 Misc. 985, 1943 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2255 (N.Y. City Ct. 1943), aff'd, 267 A.D. 955, 48 N.Y.S.2d 472, 1944 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5717 (N.Y. App. Div. 1944).

Where a dog owner's liability policy insured against hazards on designated premises and specifically included the ways immediately joining or adjoining it on land, the insurer's contention that although the policy might cover a driveway or walk immediately adjoining the premises it could be said to cover accidents occurring beyond the center of the roadway was of no avail in the absence of such a definitive limitation in the policy itself, and a jury verdict for the infant plaintiff bitten by the insured's dog only three feet from the sidewalk opposite his premises would not be set aside. Mercado v Rios, 47 Misc. 2d 589, 263 N.Y.S.2d 67, 1965 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1636 (N.Y. Civ. Ct. 1965).

Under policy provisions providing coverage for vehicles acquired during the policy period provided the insured notified the company during the policy period or within 30 days of the date of such acquisition, there was coverage where insured notified insurer of accident, which occurred during policy period, involving automobile acquired subsequent to the issuance of the policy. Travelers Indem. Co. v Gaitings, 61 Misc. 2d 558, 306 N.Y.S.2d 224, 1969 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 968 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1969).

Where cruiser was stolen from insured, was seized by police, who held the same as evidence, and the boat sank on two separate occasions while in police custody and was finally destroyed by the Army Corps of Engineers as a hazard to navigation, the insurer was liable despite a clause in the contract of insurance stating: "Warranted free from any claim for loss, damage or expense caused by or resulting from capture, seizure, arrest, restraint or detainment or the consequences thereof or of any attempt thereof, of any taking of the vessel by requisition or otherwise. Sciarrino v Glens Falls Ins. Co., 62 Misc. 2d 223, 308 N.Y.S.2d 165, 1970 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1922 (N.Y. Civ. Ct. 1970).

In an action to recover the amount of a loss suffered by plaintiff under a transportation policy insuring plaintiff against loss of goods "at and in transit," there was coverage under evidence that plaintiff, a dealer in antiquated documents decided to exhibit a number of rare documents, books and pamphlets at a show in California; that he shipped cartons in advance and intended to bring some more valuable items with him; that the items he intended to take along were packed in a case; which was placed in his car; that he then drove home, parked his car in front of the house, locked it and went to his apartment intending to leave the car overnight and continue to the airport the next morning when he was to board a plan to California taking the merchandise with him; and in the morning it was discovered that the car had been broken into and the case inside it had been stolen. Franklin v Washington General Ins. Corp., 62 Misc. 2d 965, 310 N.Y.S.2d 648, 1970 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1653 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1970), aff'd, 36 A.D.2d 688, 319 N.Y.S.2d 383 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1971).

Whether an interruption in actual transit is sufficient to remove the goods from coverage depends on the extent and purpose of the interruption and the context of the risk contemplated. The temporary interruption for purpose related to the carriage itself does not remove the property from transportation. The true test is whether the goods, even though temporarily at rest were still on their way with the stoppage being merely incidental to the main purpose of the delivery. Franklin v Washington General Ins. Corp., 62 Misc. 2d 965, 310 N.Y.S.2d 648, 1970 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1653 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1970), aff'd, 36 A.D.2d 688, 319 N.Y.S.2d 383 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1971).

Once the transportation of the goods has started the property remains under the protection of the policy during the ordinary delays in transportation incident to such movements and coverage is not confined to periods of actual movement, but includes periods of rest during the progress of the continuous undertaking. Franklin v Washington General Ins. Corp., 62 Misc. 2d 965, 310 N.Y.S.2d 648, 1970 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1653 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1970), aff'd, 36 A.D.2d 688, 319 N.Y.S.2d 383 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1971).

A woman who fell and was injured on a dangerous mound of snow that was created by a town's allegedly negligent snowplowing of a public highway with a rented truck was not entitled to compensation under the rental company's automobile liability insurance policy, which covered personal injuries caused by an accident resulting from the "use" of any of the trucks rented to the town, since the injury did not result from the town's "use" of the vehicle in that the sine qua non of plaintiff's action was the existence of a dangerous condition due to snow and ice, and the instrumentality by which such condition was created was irrelevant. Duroseau v Hempstead, 124 Misc. 2d 244, 474 N.Y.S.2d 935, 1984 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3186 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1984), aff'd, 117 A.D.2d 579, 498 N.Y.S.2d 51, 1986 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 52846 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1986).

168. Particular types of accidents as outside scope of policy

Commercial insurance policy clause, excluding coverage if "the [vehicle] is not being used exclusively in the business of the named insured...but this limitation shall not apply to a [vehicle] while en route, at the request of the named insured, to engage in such exclusive use and not transporting property for others," was applicable so as to deny coverage in accident that occurred after driver drove vehicle in opposite direction of any work-related function to visit friend following full completion of work day and duties; phrase "en route" was consistent with and buttressed strictly limiting phrase "used exclusively in the business," and did not operate here to undermine unqualified exclusion. Baughman v Merchants Mut. Ins. Co., 87 N.Y.2d 589, 640 N.Y.S.2d 857, 663 N.E.2d 898, 1996 N.Y. LEXIS 62 (N.Y. 1996).

For purpose of regulation which permits limitation of coverage of liability to others to a "lessee or borrower" of a vehicle where injuries are sustained in the process of "loading" or unloading, even if term "loading" were considered applicable to retarded child's boarding of school bus, such "loading" was completed at time of accident where child was ambulatory and was in bus starting to turn to sit in the seat when she fell backward out of bus and sustained personal injuries. Association for Help of Retarded Children, Inc. v Insurance Co. of North America, 59 A.D.2d 518, 397 N.Y.S.2d 109, 1977 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13297 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1977).

In actions grounded in negligence by restaurant patrons who sustained serious personal injuries as the result of an assault committed at the restaurant, wherein it was alleged that the restaurant negligently failed to take proper precautions to protect them, the restaurant's insurer is required to defend its insured despite the fact that the policy excludes claims arising out of assault, since the complaint contained a cause of action grounded in negligence and the insurer's obligation to defend is broader than its duty to pay, although if a judgment grounded solely in assault is obtained against the restaurant, the insurer will not be obligated to indemnify; moreover, even though the insurer delayed more than three years in giving the insured notice of disclaimer, and subdivision 8 of former section 167 [now § 3420(d)] of the Insurance Law estops an insurer from denying coverage for bodily injury for any type of accident occurring within the State where it fails to make a prompt disclaimer, the statute is inapplicable because the injuries occurred prior to its effective date, and the common law will not estop the insurer from disclaiming liability since no prejudice was shown by the delay. Western World Ins. Co. v Jean & Benny's Restaurant, Inc., 69 A.D.2d 260, 419 N.Y.S.2d 163, 1979 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11351 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't), app. dismissed, 48 N.Y.2d 653, 421 N.Y.S.2d 202, 396 N.E.2d 485, 1979 N.Y. LEXIS 2269 (N.Y. 1979).

Pursuant to Insurance Law § 3420[d], it is not necessary to show prejudice caused by insurer's delay in giving written notice of disclaimer; accordingly, where plaintiff insurance company or its adjuster has knowledge of facts governing exclusion in its policy as early as March 24, 1982, yet does not commence its declaratory judgment action until two years later, such delay is prejudicial to insured as matter of law and plaintiff insurer is estopped from disclaiming coverage. Dryden Mut. Ins. Co. v Michaud, 115 A.D.2d 150, 495 N.Y.S.2d 509, 1985 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 54412 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1985).

Liability insurer of passenger injured in vehicle insured by another company was entitled to summary judgment declaring that it was not required to afford her "no-fault" protection where passenger's policy did not provide "no-fault" coverage for injuries sustained by passenger while occupying another vehicle with respect to which "no-fault" coverage was in effect, and policy covering vehicle in which she was riding when injured provided "no-fault" coverage; even though "no-fault" coverage under vehicle's policy had been ruled excluded by arbitrator under provision governing liability coverage, "no-fault" endorsement was "internally complete and a distinct part of the insurance policy" and thus its coverage could not be qualified by liability portion of policy. Eveready Ins. Co. v Asante, 153 A.D.2d 874, 545 N.Y.S.2d 585, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11802 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1989).

Court erred in granting summary judgment to liability insurer in its action seeking declaration that it was not obligated to cover injuries attributable to assaults to which insured pleaded guilty in criminal proceedings, given policy disclaimer of coverage for bodily injury "expected or intended by the insured," since question of fact existed regarding insured's ability to form intent to commit acts complained of by virtue of his claim, supported by evidence from qualified psychiatrist, that he was suffering from schizoaffective disorder at time of assaults. Home Mut. Ins. Co. v Preston, 155 A.D.2d 932, 547 N.Y.S.2d 754, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 14788 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1989), app. dismissed, 75 N.Y.2d 947, 555 N.Y.S.2d 694, 554 N.E.2d 1282, 1990 N.Y. LEXIS 730 (N.Y. 1990).

Intentional assault by insured was not covered under insurance policy providing liability coverage only for bodily injury caused by occurrence, defined as "accident." Ward v Security Mut. Ins. Co., 192 A.D.2d 1000, 597 N.Y.S.2d 227, 1993 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4424 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), app. denied, 82 N.Y.2d 655, 602 N.Y.S.2d 803, 622 N.E.2d 304, 1993 N.Y. LEXIS 3090 (N.Y. 1993).

Insurers had no duty to defend and indemnify insured in third-party action brought against insured to recover for costs of clean-up of hazardous substances found at landfill operated by insured from 1957 to 1987, since (1) to be considered "sudden" within meaning of pollution exclusion clause of insured's policies, release or discharge must have occurred abruptly or quickly, and complaints did not so allege, but rather inferred that discharge occurred over long period of time, and (2) underlying complaint alleged that insured disposed of wastes at landfill site for number of years, making discharge on its face not "accidental" as required by pollution exclusion clause. County of Fulton v United States Fidelity & Guar. Co., 195 A.D.2d 864, 600 N.Y.S.2d 972, 1993 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7534 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1993).

Insurers had no duty to defend and indemnify insured in third-party action brought against insured to recover for costs of clean-up of hazardous substances found at landfill operated by insured from 1957 to 1987, since (1) to be considered "sudden" within meaning of pollution exclusion clause of insured's policies, release or discharge must have occurred abruptly or quickly, and complaints did not so allege, but rather inferred that discharge occurred over long period of time, and (2) underlying complaint alleged that insured disposed of wastes at landfill site for number of years, making discharge on its face not "accidental" as required by pollution exclusion clause. Under homeowners' policy, insurer was not required to defend or indemnify its insured in action alleging that insured wrongfully entered upon plaintiff's land and placed or erected earthen berms thereon, for which plaintiff sought damages, since (1) gravamen of complaint did not seek damages by reason of improper use of insured's property, (2) if it were determined that parcel was in fact insured's (insured answered and asserted, inter alia, that he had acquired parcel by adverse possession), there would be no need for indemnification, and likewise no duty to defend, and (3) if insured erred as to extent of his property, his acts in changing landscape of plaintiff's property were intentional, not accidental, and would not constitute "occurrence" within meaning of policy. People v Helinski, 203 A.D.2d 659, 610 N.Y.S.2d 376, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3837 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), app. denied, 84 N.Y.2d 804, 618 N.Y.S.2d 6, 642 N.E.2d 325, 1994 N.Y. LEXIS 3110 (N.Y. 1994).

Commercial general liability policy issued to contractor provided coverage for claim against contractor based on allegations that contractor was negligent in failing to build house entirely on owners' lot since placement of house partially on neighboring parcel was unintended result of contractor's intentional act to build house where it was, which was sufficient to establish that result was accidental for insurance coverage purpose; further, inasmuch as owners sought to recover for actual damage to their real property caused by contractor's negligent placement of house on property line, work product and loss of use exclusions relied on by insurer were inapplicable. Saks v Nicosia Contracting Corp., 215 A.D.2d 832, 625 N.Y.S.2d 758, 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4796 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1995).

Although vehicle that collided with individual was being operated by employee of garage that was named insured in "Garage Policy," bodily injury suffered did not result from "garage operations" within meaning of policy where, at time of accident, employee was using vehicle for purposes wholly unrelated to garage business. Empire Group Allcity Ins. Co. v Cicciaro, 240 A.D.2d 362, 658 N.Y.S.2d 112, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5801 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1997).

Bar owner's general liability insurance policy's exclusion of coverage of personal injury "arising from [a]ssault and battery committed by an insured, any employee of any insured, or any other person, whether committed by or at the direction of the insured" applied to customer's injuries, even if they resulted from bouncer's negligence, where injuries "arose from" assault and battery in altercation involving customers and bouncers. Tower Ins. Co. v Old Northern Blvd. Restaurant Corp., 245 A.D.2d 241, 666 N.Y.S.2d 636, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13418 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1997).

Bar owner's general liability insurance policy's exclusion of coverage of personal injury "arising from [a]ssault and battery committed by an insured, any employee of any insured, or any other person, whether committed by or at the direction of the insured" applied to customer's injuries, even if they resulted from bouncer's negligence, where injuries "arose from" assault and battery in altercation involving customers and bouncers. Tower Ins. Co. v Old Northern Blvd. Restaurant Corp., 245 A.D.2d 241, 666 N.Y.S.2d 636, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13418 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1997).

In insured's action for breach of commercial general liability policies and for declaration of its right to indemnification under those policies for its investigation and remediation costs in connection with environmental damage at commercial waste disposal sites, insurers' motion to dismiss was not jurisdictionally deficient, either because motion papers did not identify particular subdivision of CLS CPLR § 3211(a) relied on or because supporting affidavit contained no factual averments but merely served as vehicle for submission of complaint and its attachments, where notice of motion clearly indicated that dismissal was being sought on basis of documentary evidence in form of "absolute pollution exclusion" in policies appended to insured's complaint, documents submitted were sufficient to allow decision on that ground, and insured's responding papers showed that it had ample opportunity to raise, and did raise, substantive arguments that it believed were germane to resolution of motion. Schenectady Int'l v Employers Ins., 245 A.D.2d 754, 665 N.Y.S.2d 455, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12960 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1997).

In insured's action for breach of commercial general liability policies and for declaration of its right to indemnification under those policies for its investigation and remediation costs in connection with environmental damage at commercial waste disposal sites, complaint was properly dismissed on ground of documentary evidence under CLS CPLR § 3211(a) where policies contained "absolute pollution exclusion" of coverage for costs and expenses occasioned by release or dispersion of pollutants, regardless of nature or cause of discharge or culpability of insured, and nothing in exclusion or remainder of policy language was ambiguous as to whether coverage was provided for accidental discharges or when insured was not actual polluter. Schenectady Int'l v Employers Ins., 245 A.D.2d 754, 665 N.Y.S.2d 455, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12960 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1997).

Public policy considerations did not require that "absolute pollution exclusion" in commercial general liability policies be interpreted as inapplicable to case involving environmental damage at commercial waste disposal sites where insured's reliance on public policy concerns underlying former Insurance Law provision prohibiting insurers from offering coverage for certain pollution-related costs was misplaced, because interests that prompted enactment of that statute—desire "to assure that corporate polluters bear the full burden of their own actions spoiling the environment" and to eliminate availability of insurance coverage that might remove financial disincentives to engaging in such actions—did not militate against use of broader exclusion in subject insurance policies. Schenectady Int'l v Employers Ins., 245 A.D.2d 754, 665 N.Y.S.2d 455, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12960 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1997).

Servicing of ships was not included in general liability policy where insured represented on its application for insurance that its work was "boat builder" involving "construction of a vessel," and insurance policy listed classification of insurance as "boat or ship building"; thus, policy did not cover accident that occurred when worker was engaged in "unstepping" and later "restepping" mainmast of boat to permit it to pass through barge canal. Continental Ins. Co. v Estate of Benton, 896 F. Supp. 272, 1995 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 12681 (N.D.N.Y. 1995).

Three deliberate collisions caused in furtherance of an insurance fraud scheme were not a covered accidents; the insurer was not required by N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(d) to issue a disclaimer because its denial of coverage was based on a lack of coverage for the incident in the first instance, not an exclusion under the policy. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. v Laguerre, 305 A.D.2d 490, 759 N.Y.S.2d 531, 2003 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5387 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2003).

169. Ambiguities within policy

Any doubt as to the construction of an ambiguous insurance policy should be interpreted in favor of the insured. Birnbaum v Jamestown Mut. Ins. Co., 298 N.Y. 305, 83 N.E.2d 128, 298 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 305, 1948 N.Y. LEXIS 788 (N.Y. 1948).

Interpretation of insurance policy is issue of law which can be decided by Court of Appeals on appellate review when there are no questions of credibility and no inferences to be drawn from extrinsic evidence. State v Home Indem. Co., 66 N.Y.2d 669, 495 N.Y.S.2d 969, 486 N.E.2d 827, 1985 N.Y. LEXIS 17199 (N.Y. 1985).

Terms of underinsured motorist coverage, providing that $100,000 per person policy limit "is the amount of coverage for all damages due to bodily injury to one person" and that $300,000 limits of liability for "'Each Accident' is the total amount of coverage for all damages due to bodily injury to 2 or more persons in the same accident," were ambiguous where policy did not contain any language deeming $300,000 per accident limit "subject to" per-person limit; thus, policy terms would be construed in favor of insureds. Mostow v State Farm Ins. Cos., 88 N.Y.2d 321, 645 N.Y.S.2d 421, 668 N.E.2d 392, 1996 N.Y. LEXIS 1169 (N.Y. 1996).

Phrases "based on" and "arising out of," when used in insurance policy exclusion clauses, are unambiguous and legally indistinguishable. Mount Vernon Fire Ins. Co. v Creative Hous., 88 N.Y.2d 347, 645 N.Y.S.2d 433, 668 N.E.2d 404, 1996 N.Y. LEXIS 1182 (N.Y. 1996).

Policy requirement that insured give written notice of underinsurance claim "within 90 days or as soon as practicable" would be interpreted to mean "90 days from date insured knew or should reasonably have known that tortfeasor was underinsured or as soon as practicable, whichever was longer," not "90 days from accident or as soon as practicable, whichever was shorter"; notice provision drafted by insurer was ambiguous, and thus was construed against insurer. Metropolitan Prop. & Cas. Ins. Co. v Mancuso, 93 N.Y.2d 487, 693 N.Y.S.2d 81, 715 N.E.2d 107, 1999 N.Y. LEXIS 1296 (N.Y. 1999).

"Issued or delivered," in the context of N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(a), encompasses situations where both insureds and risks are located in New York. Carlson v American Intl. Group, Inc., 30 N.Y.3d 288, 89 N.E.3d 490, 67 N.Y.S.3d 100, 2017 N.Y. LEXIS 3280 (N.Y. 2017).

Court erred in declaring that plaintiff, company that merely transported equipment to work site, was "additional insured," defined under policy as "all general contractors and all tiers of sub-subcontractors,..." since terms "contractors" and "subcontractors" were ambiguous and court did not utilize evidence of insurance manual, incorporated by reference in construction contract, and change order to construction contract which provided that "others who merely transport, pick up, deliver or carry materials... to or from the Work Site shall not be considered Contractor(s), subcontractors or sub-subcontractors for purposes of insurance coverage." Higgins Erectors & Haulers, Inc. v Niagara Frontier Transp. Authority, 140 A.D.2d 982, 529 N.Y.S.2d 654, 1988 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6253 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't), app. dismissed, 73 N.Y.2d 851, 537 N.Y.S.2d 495, 534 N.E.2d 333, 1988 N.Y. LEXIS 3552 (N.Y. 1988).

Issue of fact existed as to whether insurance company had agreed to provide coverage to general contractor under policy issued to its insured, which was subcontractor hired to erect structural steel and metal roofing, since (1) contractual liability endorsement of policy ran only to subcontractor and not to general contractor, and (2) certificate of insurance which named general contractor as additional insured was evidence of company's agreement to provide coverage to general contractor but was neither conclusive proof of existence of such contract nor, in and of itself, contract to insure general contractor. Bucon, Inc. v Pennsylvania Mfg. Asso. Ins. Co., 151 A.D.2d 207, 547 N.Y.S.2d 925, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 14183 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1989).

Where insurance policy is ambiguous and no extrinsic evidence is offered from which jury could conclude that policy should be interpreted in favor of insurer, verdict in favor of insured should be directed as matter of law. Tri Town Antlers Foundation, Inc. v Fireman's Fund Ins. Co., 158 A.D.2d 908, 550 N.Y.S.2d 953, 1990 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1401 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't), aff'd, 76 N.Y.2d 841, 560 N.Y.S.2d 124, 559 N.E.2d 1283, 1990 N.Y. LEXIS 1983 (N.Y. 1990).

Absolute pollution exclusion endorsement providing that policy did not apply "to bodily injury or property damage arising out of the actual, alleged or threatened discharge, dispersal, release or escape of pollutants...which are at any time transported, handled, stored, treated, disposed of, or processed as waste" could be reasonably interpreted to apply only to instances of environmental pollution, and thus was ambiguous as to whether environment encompassed air within residential home through which asbestos fibers passed. Miano v Hehn, 206 A.D.2d 957, 614 N.Y.S.2d 829, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7663 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1994).

"Underinsured motorist" endorsement of insurance policy was not ambiguous on basis that it did not contain notice requirements included in "uninsured motorist" endorsement where it specifically stated that it was amendment to uninsured motorist endorsement which included requisite notice provisions. Nationwide Ins. Co. v O'Halloran, 209 A.D.2d 701, 619 N.Y.S.2d 159, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11680 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1994).

Subrogation provision of uninsured motorist provisions of policy could not be applied against insured where subrogation clause was ambiguous as to whether term "another" included named insured. American Mfrs. Mut. Ins. Co. v Sullivan, 219 A.D.2d 806, 632 N.Y.S.2d 49, 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10816 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1995).

Insurer was entitled to enforce "Paragraph B" of "Limit of Liability" portion of underinsurance endorsement, authorizing insurer to reduce damages payable under endorsement by amounts paid or payable to its insured for bodily injury under workers' compensation or disability benefit laws; because declarations page incorporated underinsurance endorsement by reference to its number, and endorsement unequivocally provided for offset for disability benefits received by insured, no ambiguity existed precluding enforcement of that provision. Exchange Ins. Co. v Skomski, 224 A.D.2d 948, 637 N.Y.S.2d 561, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1586 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1996).

Provision of automobile liability policy, which excluded coverage for newly acquired car "if there is other vehicle liability coverage on a newly acquired car," was not ambiguous with respect to existence of coverage for new truck purchased by insured and his son and operated by son, which was covered under separate insurance policy issued to son; thus, insurer was entitled to judgment declaring that policy issued to father did not apply to claim asserted by plaintiff, who was involved in collision with truck driven by son. Bucklin v State Farm Ins. Co., 234 A.D.2d 984, 651 N.Y.S.2d 822, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13753 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1996).

Homeowner's policy exclusion of coverage for bodily injury arising out of transmission of "communicable disease" by insured was neither ambiguous nor unduly broad, and thus insurer was entitled to summary judgment declaring that it had no duty to defend and indemnify plaintiff's action for personal injuries sustained as result of transmission of HIV infection to him by insured. Plaza v General Assur. Co., 244 A.D.2d 238, 664 N.Y.S.2d 444, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11722 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't

Insurance policy effective "from 12/31/88 midnight to 12/31/89 midnight" was in effect at time of accident occurring at 9:00 A.M. on December 31, 1988; word "midnight" was ambiguous, and such ambiguity would be construed against insurer so as to provide coverage as of termination of policy at 12:01 A.M. Mumuni v Eagle Ins. Co., 247 A.D.2d 315, 668 N.Y.S.2d 464, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1609 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't), app. dismissed, in part, app. denied, 92 N.Y.2d 940, 680 N.Y.S.2d 903, 703 N.E.2d 762, 1998 N.Y. LEXIS 3692 (N.Y. 1998).

Insurer was not entitled to permanent stay of arbitration of underinsured motorist claim where present case was indistinguishable from Matter of Federal Ins. Co. v Stechman, 192 AD2d 531, in which there was similar policy provision requiring insured to promptly forward to insurer copies of legal papers served in connection with any action brought by insured against owner or driver of offending vehicle, and Stechman court held that term "legal papers" was ambiguous, that compliance with that provision was not condition precedent to underinsured motorist coverage, and that insured's failure to comply did not result in forfeiture of right to underinsurance benefits. Nationwide Ins. Co. v Sobiesiuk, 263 A.D.2d 510, 691 N.Y.S.2d 925, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8108 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1999).

Where terms of personal liability umbrella policy were, at best, ambiguous as to whether particular accident would be covered, ambiguity would be construed against insurer, and matter would be remitted for entry of summary judgment declaring that policy provided coverage for accident. Allstate Ins. Co. v Young, 265 A.D.2d 278, 696 N.Y.S.2d 189, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9670 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1999).

Owner of apartment building was entitled to summary judgment declaring that defendant insurer was obligated to indemnify it for sums paid to settle underlying personal injury action, because fact that insurance was denominated as "owner's liability insurance" rather than "comprehensive liability insurance" did not raise any question as to parties' clear intent that owner be provided with insurance protecting it against liability claims for bodily injury arising from operations of elevator contractor and his subcontractors where elevator contractor, before commencing work on building, had contracted with owner to procure comprehensive liability insurance naming owner as additional insured. New York City Hous. Auth. v National Union Fire Ins. Co., 270 A.D.2d 123, 705 N.Y.S.2d 45, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2989 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2000).

Specially negotiated endorsement requiring that periodic "loss run" reports be sent to insurer under commercial general liability policy did not supersede policy provision requiring, as condition of coverage, that insured give insurer notice of any occurrence within 15 days of learning about it or as soon as was reasonably practicable thereafter where (1) endorsement provided that notice conditions "shall be amended by the addition of new paragraph (e)" set forth in endorsement, which thus purported only to add requirements to existing ones, (2) when endorsements were intended to supersede policy provisions, they included language stating that relevant provision "is deleted and replaced by the following," and (3) endorsement could reconciled with notice provisions by construing it as requiring insured to give insurer specified information irrespective of whether such information related to claim that was entirely within insured's self-insured retentions or was otherwise outside scope of coverage under policy. Steadfast Ins. Co. v Sentinel Real Estate Corp., 283 A.D.2d 44, 727 N.Y.S.2d 393, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5695 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2001).

Provision of social worker's professional liability policy which limited coverage to $25,000 whenever malpractice suit against insured involved actual or alleged "erotic physical contact" was unambiguous, although term "erotic physical contact" was not defined in policy; such term, given its normal or plain meaning, could be reasonably construed to mean "sexual contact." American Home Assur. Co. v Levy, 179 Misc. 2d 773, 686 N.Y.S.2d 639, 1999 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 66 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1999).

In insureds' action seeking coverage for liability for workers' compensation benefits to their live-in housekeeper who was injured in course of her employment, wherein insureds maintained that they voluntarily elected to cover housekeeper and thus brought her within class of workers covered by Workers' Compensation Law for purposes of endorsement provided for in their homeowners' insurance policy, ambiguity in endorsement arose because it was unclear whether second condition of endorsement (whether insured's employee was one for whom workers' compensation benefits "must be provided") was satisfied by existence of endorsement itself. Haber v St. Paul Guardian Ins. Co., 137 F.3d 691, 1998 U.S. App. LEXIS 2416 (2d Cir. N.Y. 1998).

Contra proferentem rule in which courts will interpret policy against insurer does not apply in actions by one insurer against another, or where party is both insurer and insured (as in marine protection and indemnity (P&I) clubs). Dicola v American S.S. Owners Mut. Protection & Indem. Assoc. (In re Prudential Lines), 158 F.3d 65, 1998 U.S. App. LEXIS 24614 (2d Cir. N.Y. 1998).

Shipping line was within its contract rights to designate one policy to pay all of any asbestos-exposure claim covered by that policy (subject of course to exhaustion of policy limits) where policy did not show clear intent to allocate policyholder's claim among policies in first instance and no contract or equitable consideration militated in favor of such allocation under circumstances of case. Dicola v American S.S. Owners Mut. Protection & Indem. Assoc. (In re Prudential Lines), 158 F.3d 65, 1998 U.S. App. LEXIS 24614 (2d Cir. N.Y. 1998).

170. Conflict between policy and statutory requirements

The exclusion of guest coverage in an insurance policy provided by a corporation renting motor vehicles did not violate subdivision 2 of former section 167 [now § 3420(e)] of the Insurance Law where a van was rented in New York by a New York resident who was to deliver the van three days later to the lessor in Maine, inasmuch as the mandatory provisions of subdivision 2 of former section 167 [now § 3420(e)], one of which required coverage for injuries suffered by a passenger in the vehicle (Vehicle and Traffic Law, § 311; 11 NYCRR 60.1), are applicable only to policies issued on vehicles principally garaged or used in this State and the vehicle in question was registered in Massachusetts and was only temporarily in New York. Travelers Indem. Co. v Ryder Truck Rental, Inc., 47 N.Y.2d 139, 417 N.Y.S.2d 53, 390 N.E.2d 771, 1979 N.Y. LEXIS 1992 (N.Y. 1979).

Policy provision limiting uninsured motorist coverage to accidents occurring in state was void as against public policy of providing broad insurance coverage for members of public injured by motor vehicles. Insurance Co. of North America v Godwin, 46 A.D.2d 154, 361 N.Y.S.2d 461, 1974 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3442 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1974).

The absence of an obligation to defend in an automobile operator's insurance policy, even if not designed to subvert public policy, may be contrary to law since New York has a clearly announced policy relating to the obligation to defend in this context. Chrapa v Johncox, 60 A.D.2d 55, 401 N.Y.S.2d 332, 1977 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13963 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1977), app. dismissed, 44 N.Y.2d 836, 406 N.Y.S.2d 757, 378 N.E.2d 120, 1978 N.Y. LEXIS 2028 (N.Y. 1978), app. dismissed, 44 N.Y.2d 851, 1978 N.Y. LEXIS 4703 (N.Y. 1978).

Underage nonliability clause in motor vehicle insurance policy was invalid under CLS Veh & Tr § 345(b)(2) where it unconditionally excluded from coverage drivers under age 25 who operated insured vehicle with consent of named insured as owner. Mosca v Ford Motor Credit Co., 150 A.D.2d 656, 541 N.Y.S.2d 528, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7106 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1989).

The terms of an automobile liability policy which violate or limit free force and effect of former § 109 [predecessor to former § 167, now § 3420] are illegal. The policy will, nevertheless, be held valid and deemed to include provisions required by former § 109 [Now § 3420]. Travelers' Ins. Co. v Russo, 280 N.Y.S. 99, 155 Misc. 589, 1935 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1199 (N.Y. App. Term 1935).

Although former § 109 [predecessor to former § 167, now § 3420] provides for action "under terms of policy," the policy may not contain any provision, such as providing for payment to insured only on entry of final judgment, which would deprive injured person of rights expressly granted in statute. Youknot v United States Fidelity & Guaranty Co., 283 N.Y.S. 902, 158 Misc. 83, 1935 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1602 (N.Y. Sup. Ct.), aff'd, 245 A.D. 705, 281 N.Y.S. 968, 1935 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10429 (N.Y. App. Div. 1935).

The Insurance Law requires that each policy issued meet standard minimum requirements without regard to the legality of operation or the age of the operator, and no automobile lease arrangement may nullify these requirements. Aetna Casualty & Surety Co. v World Wide Rent-A-Car, Inc., 52 Misc. 2d 552, 276 N.Y.S.2d 401, 1966 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1176 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1966), modified, 28 A.D.2d 286, 284 N.Y.S.2d 807, 1967 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2928 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1967).

While an insurance policy ordinarily is merely a contract between the insurer and the insured, and the contract and the intent of the parties is controlling, when said policy is certified by the insurance company and filed with the Motor Vehicle Bureau to satisfy the requirements of a statute said contract ceases to be just a private contract because then the public interest is involved and the public interest supervenes and the policy then must conform to the requirements of the statute. Mills v Liberty Mut. Ins. Co., 60 Misc. 2d 1085, 304 N.Y.S.2d 801, 1969 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1337 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1969), rev'd, 36 A.D.2d 445, 321 N.Y.S.2d 230, 1971 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3983 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1971).

An intrafamily exclusion for bodily injuries to resident relatives of the insured contained in a recreational vehicle insurance policy would be declared void as against public policy, except as it might apply to any liability of one spouse for injuries to the other spouse, which could be validly excluded under Ins Law § 167(3) [now § 3420], and the insurer would be ordered to defend and indemnify the insureds in a bodily injury action by the insureds' son arising from a motor boat accident, since approval of the contested exclusions by the State Superintendent of Insurance was improper and involved an erroneous construction of the provisions of Ins Law §§ 167(1), 167(2) [now both § 3420], which express a policy that persons injured as a result of the use and operation of a vessel be protected against financially irresponsible users of such vessels, and since such public policy must take precedence over the general right of parties to a contract to dictate its terms when such contract is a policy of casualty insurance required by law. Allstate Ins. Co. v Anzalone, 119 Misc. 2d 222, 462 N.Y.S.2d 738, 1983 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3491 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1983).

The actual terms of a policy should not be disregarded as between an insured and insurer notwithstanding provisions of former § 109 [predecessor to former § 167, now § 3420] that a policy shall "be deemed to include the provisions required" and that "when any provision in such policy . . . is in conflict with the provisions required . . . the rights, duties and obligations of the insurer, the policyholder and the injured person shall be governed by the provisions of this section." Larkin v Munson S.S. Line, 100 F.2d 393, 1938 U.S. App. LEXIS 2659 (2d Cir. N.Y. 1938).

Where there is a conflict between the provisions in the policy and former § 109 [predecessor to former § 167, now § 3420] the rights, duties and obligations of an insurer, and the injured person and the policyholder are governed by the provisions of former § 109 [Now § 3420]. Eber Bros. Wine & Liquor Corp. v Firemen's Ins. Co., 30 F. Supp. 412, 1939 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 2047 (D.N.Y. 1939).

171. Period of limitation on actions contained in policy

An arbitrator who is to hear a controversy by a claimant against the MVAIC is not permitted to import a three-year time limitation into the contract by virtue of former § 167 [now § 3420]. De Luca v Motor Vehicle Accident Indemnification Corp., 17 N.Y.2d 76, 268 N.Y.S.2d 289, 215 N.E.2d 482, 1966 N.Y. LEXIS 1545 (N.Y. 1966).

The 1-year period of limitation for suit against an insurer in a merchandise floater insurance policy does not begin to run until the insured is in a position to institute action against the insurer. Hence, where a shipper sued a trucker for loss of goods, the trucker's third party complaint against this insurer should not have been dismissed though more than three years had elapsed since the loss and the policy provided that suit could not be brought unless commenced within twelve months "after the happening of the loss". The insurer had prompt notice of the theft but took three years to investigate and then, when the trucker was sued, disclaimed liability. Sassi v Jersey Trucking Service, Inc., 283 A.D. 73, 126 N.Y.S.2d 389, 1953 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2982 (N.Y. App. Div. 1953).

In an action for lost wages under no-fault insurance, an arbitrator's award that barred the claimant from receiving wage loss benefits after claimant had delayed 32 months in filing an application for wage loss, would be confirmed where the policy indorsement had required written notice as soon as reasonably practicable, and where there had been no reasonable basis for the delay. Prainito v Aetna Casualty & Surety Co., 91 A.D.2d 575, 457 N.Y.S.2d 64, 1982 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 19402 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1982).

A limitation in an automobile liability insurance policy of two years from the time the judgment against the insured has been entered in which to bring an action against the insurer for any loss under the policy is binding on an injured third person who sues the insurer under this section. The two-year period of limitation is not unreasonable nor restrictive of any rights conferred on an injured third person by predecessor to § 3420, as it existed in 1935. Matelsky v Globe Indem. Co., 294 N.Y.S. 588, 162 Misc. 326, 1937 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1594 (N.Y. App. Term 1937).

The statute of limitations on a liability policy, which required that an action should be commenced within twelve months after the loss, begins to run from the date of judgment on the policy and not from the date of the loss by virtue of former § 109 [precedessor to former § 167, now § 3420] Eber Bros. Wine & Liquor Corp. v Firemen's Ins. Co., 30 F. Supp. 412, 1939 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 2047 (D.N.Y. 1939).

172. Insurer's duty to defend

When insured has been sued, insurer does not satisfy its duty to defend merely by designating independent counsel to defend litigation. Feliberty v Damon, 72 N.Y.2d 112, 531 N.Y.S.2d 778, 527 N.E.2d 261, 1988 N.Y. LEXIS 1657 (N.Y. 1988).

In action for declaration as to obligation of insurance carrier to defend and indemnify insured for its liability for loss resulting from theft of property from its premises, court should have applied New Jersey law since New Jersey had most contacts with insurance policy under grouping of contacts concept where (1) policy was issued by New Jersey insurer to New Jersey corporation to insure against losses "happening anywhere," (2) loss occurred in New Jersey, and (3) plaintiff's liability for loss was litigated in New Jersey; fact that policy was placed through New York insurance broker which negotiated its terms was not sufficient contact with New York to preclude application of lex loci delicti commissi in favor of lex loci contractus. Regional Import & Export Trucking Co. v North River Ins. Co., 149 A.D.2d 361, 539 N.Y.S.2d 940, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4834 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1989).

Homeowners were not entitled to select counsel of their own choice in personal injury action against them which alleged negligent entrustment of all terrain vehicle (ATV) to homeowners' son and negligent operation of ATV, notwithstanding that their insurance company commenced declaratory judgment action to determine scope of its duty to defend and provide coverage under policy, since insurance company's interest in disproving negligent entrustment by homeowners did not conflict with homeowners' interest in defeating both negligent entrustment and negligence claims. Prudential Property & Casualty Ins. Co. v Godfrey, 169 A.D.2d 1035, 565 N.Y.S.2d 315, 1991 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 891 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1991).

Insurer was not obligated to defend insured in administrative proceedings, which sought only voluntary participation and negotiation, and did not threaten litigation, since such proceedings were not functional equivalent of lawsuits within meaning of policy. Borg-Warner Corp. v Insurance Co. of North America, 174 A.D.2d 24, 577 N.Y.S.2d 953, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 109 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), app. denied, 80 N.Y.2d 753, 587 N.Y.S.2d 905, 600 N.E.2d 632, 1992 N.Y. LEXIS 1631 (N.Y. 1992).

Court would apply New York law in action seeking declaration that insurers were obligated under various comprehensive liability insurance policies to defend and indemnify insured against underlying claims arising from its disposal of hazardous waste at 19 sites across county where (1) 7 of 19 contaminated sites were in New York, with balance scattered throughout country, (2) New York had unique policy-based interest in pollution exclusion clause, (3) insured chose New York as forum for action, and (4) insured had relied primarily on New York authority to support its arguments. Borg-Warner Corp. v Insurance Co. of North America, 174 A.D.2d 24, 577 N.Y.S.2d 953, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 109 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), app. denied, 80 N.Y.2d 753, 587 N.Y.S.2d 905, 600 N.E.2d 632, 1992 N.Y. LEXIS 1631 (N.Y. 1992).

In action brought by insurer for declaration that it had no duty to defend and indemnify its insured in underlying personal injury actions, insured was entitled to reimbursement for its legal expenses inasmuch as insurer cast insured in defensive posture, and insured prevailed on merits. Continental Casualty Co. v Rapid-American Corp., 177 A.D.2d 61, 581 N.Y.S.2d 669, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2737 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1992), aff'd, 80 N.Y.2d 640, 593 N.Y.S.2d 966, 609 N.E.2d 506, 1993 N.Y. LEXIS 81 (N.Y. 1993).

Insurer's duty to defend, once determined, extends to defense of entire action. Continental Casualty Co. v Rapid-American Corp., 177 A.D.2d 61, 581 N.Y.S.2d 669, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2737 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1992), aff'd, 80 N.Y.2d 640, 593 N.Y.S.2d 966, 609 N.E.2d 506, 1993 N.Y. LEXIS 81 (N.Y. 1993).

In declaratory judgment action by insured gas station operator to require insurer to defend it in underlying action brought by nearby property owners to recover damages for contamination allegedly caused by leakage of petroleum products from subsurface tank or pipe, court erred in considering facts extrinsic to complaint in underlying action, indicating that leak may have been caused by incident which occurred subsequent to period during which insurer provided coverage; in deciding whether insurer has duty to defend, court may consider extrinsic facts submitted by insured to show that coverage under policy may exist, but insurer cannot use extrinsic facts to show that there is no coverage. Petr-All Petroleum Corp. v Fireman's Ins. Co., 188 A.D.2d 139, 593 N.Y.S.2d 693, 1993 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1324 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1993).

In regard to insurance company's duty to defend, party's characterization of cause of action alleged in underlying complaint is not controlling; court will seek to determine nature of claims based on facts alleged. Curtis v Nutmeg Ins. Co., 204 A.D.2d 833, 612 N.Y.S.2d 256, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5158 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1994), app. dismissed, 84 N.Y.2d 1027, 623 N.Y.S.2d 182, 647 N.E.2d 454, 1995 N.Y. LEXIS 75 (N.Y. 1995), aff'd, 256 A.D.2d 758, 681 N.Y.S.2d 620, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13338 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1998).

In personal injury action arising from motor vehicle accident, plaintiff's motion to substitute defendants' insurer's in-house counsel as counsel for defendants would be denied, since Supreme Court lacked authority to direct insurer's attorney to appear as counsel on insurer's behalf where there was no evidence that insurer waived its right to control defense of underlying personal injury action; any application to compel insurer to fulfill its obligation to defend should have been brought against insurer and not against its attorney. Desriusseaux v Val-Roc Truck Corp., 230 A.D.2d 704, 646 N.Y.S.2d 161, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8304 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1996).

Regarding issue of insurer's duty to provide defense, it was immaterial that underlying personal injury action absolved defendant of all liability and thus relieved insurer of its duty of indemnity. City of New York v Consolidated Edison Co., 238 A.D.2d 119, 655 N.Y.S.2d 496, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2967 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1997).

Insurance companies that provided successive coverage to their insured were liable as coinsurers for costs of defending insured where payment of attorney fees that had been made by one insurer was not part of court-approved settlement of underlying action, and there was nothing in record to suggest agreement between insured and insurer discharging latter from its obligation to pay defense costs in that action; accordingly, insurers were required to share defense costs pro rata. Atlantic Mut. Ins. Co. v Greater N.Y. Mut. Ins. Co., 241 A.D.2d 427, 660 N.Y.S.2d 983, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8155 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1997), app. dismissed, 91 N.Y.2d 956, 671 N.Y.S.2d 716, 694 N.E.2d 885, 1998 N.Y. LEXIS 872 (N.Y. 1998).

In action for bad faith refusal to defend, insurer's disclaimer of coverage could not be said to have been made in bad faith where it was premised on apparently reasonable belief that notice requirements of policy had not been satisfied. Daus v Lumberman's Mut. Cas. Co., 241 A.D.2d 665, 659 N.Y.S.2d 584, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7337 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), app. denied, 90 N.Y.2d 812, 666 N.Y.S.2d 100, 688 N.E.2d 1382, 1997 N.Y. LEXIS 3669 (N.Y. 1997).

In action for judgment declaring that insurer was obligated to defend and indemnify party in underlying action, proper remedy, on resolution of coverage question in favor of insurer, would have been declaratory judgment rather than dismissal of complaint. Halali v Evanston Ins. Co., 245 A.D.2d 422, 666 N.Y.S.2d 676, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13102 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1997).

Court erred in granting insurers' motion for summary judgment declaring that they had no duty to defend insureds in underlying administrative matter before United States Environmental Protection Agency (EPA), on ground that such matter was not functional equivalent of suit within meaning of insurance policy, since letter from EPA to insureds demanded payment of large, specified sum of money and advised plaintiffs that interest would begin to accrue on that amount as of date of demand, filing of notice of lien was threatened, and insureds were given opportunity to be heard at conference with EPA's regional counsel and to attend with attorney. Carpentier v Hanover Ins. Co., 248 A.D.2d 579, 670 N.Y.S.2d 540, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2868 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1998).

Court properly declined to issue declaration regarding duty of second liability insurer to defend and indemnify insured in underlying personal injury action where that insurer's policy was not submitted to court. Eagle Ins. Co. v Rite-Way Auto Sch., Inc., 263 A.D.2d 526, 693 N.Y.S.2d 213, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8375 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1999).

Insurer's duty to defend is broader than its duty to indemnify and will be required unless insurer shows that allegations of complaint put that duty solely within policy exclusion. Gibbs v CNA Ins. Cos., 263 A.D.2d 836, 693 N.Y.S.2d 720, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8278 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1999), app. denied, 1999 N.Y. LEXIS 3835 (N.Y. Nov. 23, 1999).

Insurance companies were not released from their obligations to defend and indemnify under all policies in question, even though preliminary language was broad and included release of "all actions, causes of action (etc.)," where release immediately narrowed in scope on reference to specific policies. Lexington Ins. Co. v Combustion Eng'g, Inc., 264 A.D.2d 319, 693 N.Y.S.2d 146, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8661 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1999).

Extent to which insurer was obligated to bear costs of defending and indemnifying construction manager and owner of project in underlying tort action could not be determined on present record where record did not include copies of all insurance policies that might cover those parties for loss. Lehrer McGovern Bovis, Inc. v Component Assembly Sys., 266 A.D.2d 94, 698 N.Y.S.2d 648, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11675 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1999).

Insurer, which provided its insured with defense to underlying action, was not collaterally estopped, in context of instant declaratory judgment action, from relitigating issue of whether insured's conduct was intentional or negligent since insurance company, which was not party to underlying action, could not be said to have been in privity with insured, and insurance company could not have fully and fairly litigated issue of insured's conduct in underlying action without breaching both insurance contract and fiduciary duty to its insured. Failla v Nationwide Ins. Co., 267 A.D.2d 860, 701 N.Y.S.2d 161, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13575 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1999).

Court improperly granted plaintiffs' summary judgment motion declaring that defendant was obligated to indemnify plaintiffs for entire amount of judgment in underlying personal injury action where liability policy stated that "(t)he employment must be necessary or incidental to (insured's) work in a state or territory listed in ... Information Page," and there was nothing indicating that subject work in New York City was "incidental or necessary" to work in New Jersey, which was listed as state in policy. Chase Manhattan Bank, N.A. v Travelers Group, Inc., 269 A.D.2d 107, 702 N.Y.S.2d 60, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 956 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2000).

Where policies issued to contractor and subcontractor both afforded primary coverage by respective insurers to their insureds, and both policies required contribution by equal shares, insurers were required to share equally in obligation to defend insureds in underlying action for injuries to worker. Impulse Enterprises/F & V Mech. Plumbing & Heating v St. Paul Fire & Marine Ins. Co., 282 A.D.2d 266, 723 N.Y.S.2d 177, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3602 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2001).

Court properly granted insurer's motion to vacate default judgment against its insured after previous judgment, which had declared that insurer had no duty to defend of indemnify insured, had been reversed, and counsel for insured had been permitted to withdraw. Braddy v 601 Crown St. Corp., 282 A.D.2d 638, 724 N.Y.S.2d 71, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3986 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2001).

Social worker's professional liability insurer was not entitled to summary judgment declaring that its duty to defend insured in underlying lawsuit was governed by provision of policy which limited coverage to $25,000 when sexual misconduct was claimed because, if plaintiff in underlying lawsuit could prepare for and prosecute her malpractice action without alleging "erotic physical contact," then $25,000 limit would not apply. American Home Assur. Co. v Levy, 179 Misc. 2d 773, 686 N.Y.S.2d 639, 1999 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 66 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1999).

Directors' and officers' (D&O) liability policy may not include provision that places duty to defend on insured, rather than insurer. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 08-10-07.

173. —Question of fact

In an action by plaintiff insurer for a declaratory judgment that it had no duty to defend or indemnify defendant insured under separate but similar insurance policies, each known as a "Libel, Slander, Copyright, Piracy, Plagiarism, and Privacy Liability Policy," in a prior federal suit brought against the insured based upon claims of unfair competition, deceptive trade practices, consumer fraud and deceptive business practices, and common-law libel, plaintiff insurer failed to establish on defendant insureds' motion for summary judgment that, as a matter of law, it had no duty to defend the federal suit; it could not be said that the provisions of the insurance policies clearly negated plaintiff's duty to defend against every allegation asserted in the complaint in the federal suit, and, moreover, some of the claims against the insureds fell within the general inclusory provisions of the policies and were not unambiguously excepted from coverage by the policies' exclusions. Seaboard Surety Co. v Gillette Co., 64 N.Y.2d 304, 486 N.Y.S.2d 873, 476 N.E.2d 272, 1984 N.Y. LEXIS 5212 (N.Y. 1984).

Insurance companies were not entitled to summary judgment declaring that they had no obligation to defend asbestos insulation contractor pursuant to policies issued by them because claims in underlying actions fell wholly within product-hazards exclusion provisions of policies, where numerous plaintiffs in underlying actions alleged that insured's "negligent installation" of asbestos insulation caused their injuries, and no complaints in underlying actions specified that plaintiffs' injuries occurred only after insured had completed installation and departed from covered premises; product-hazards exclusion, by definition, does not apply to occurrences that allegedly take place while installation work is in progress because offending product (asbestos insulation) is not relinquished from insured's control until installation is complete. Frontier Insulation Contrs. v Merchants Mut. Ins. Co., 91 N.Y.2d 169, 667 N.Y.S.2d 982, 690 N.E.2d 866, 1997 N.Y. LEXIS 3722 (N.Y. 1997).

Insurer would be required to defend insured in negligence action pending resolution of factual issues as to reasonableness of insurer's delay in giving notice of disclaimer where notice of disclaimer was given 5 months after assumption of defense of negligence action by insurer, and insurer claimed that it did not have facts which led to notice of disclaimer until several days before notice was sent. Commercial Union Ins. Cos. v Jedamich Enterprises, Inc., 146 A.D.2d 599, 536 N.Y.S.2d 523, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 447 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1989).

Insurer had duty to defend its insured in underlying personal injury action where it could not be said as matter of law that there was no possible factual or legal basis on which insurer might eventually be held obligated to indemnify insured. Emery v Capital Mut. Ins. Co., 151 A.D.2d 854, 542 N.Y.S.2d 829, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7541 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1989).

In action seeking declaration that insurance company was required to defend and indemnify plaintiffs with respect to claim which arose after binder was issued by insurance agency, insurance company was not entitled to summary judgment, notwithstanding contention that insurance agency was discharged as insurance company's agent prior to issuance of binder, since there was evidence from which misleading conduct on part of insurance company could be inferred—conduct which might have created appearance that insurance agency had authority to issue binder. Lakeside Constr., Inc. v Depew & Schetter Agency, Inc., 154 A.D.2d 513, 546 N.Y.S.2d 136, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12731 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1989).

Insurer was not entitled to summary judgment dismissing action seeking declaration that it had duty to defend and indemnify insured with respect to insured's disposal of hazardous waste since fact issue existed as to whether unexpected migration of toxins constituted "occurrence" under policy. Borg-Warner Corp. v Insurance Co. of North America, 174 A.D.2d 24, 577 N.Y.S.2d 953, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 109 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), app. denied, 80 N.Y.2d 753, 587 N.Y.S.2d 905, 600 N.E.2d 632, 1992 N.Y. LEXIS 1631 (N.Y. 1992).

In action by teacher against emotionally handicapped student and his parents arising from incident in which student assaulted teacher in school, parents' homeowner's insurance company was not entitled to summary judgment declaring that it had no duty to defend and indemnify defendants, although policy excluded coverage for intentional acts and student had been declared person in need of supervision in Family Court proceeding, since Family Court proceeding was inadmissible against student or his interests. Holyoke Mut. Ins. Co. v Jason B., 184 A.D.2d 550, 585 N.Y.S.2d 61, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7820 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1992).

Insured was not entitled to summary judgment declaring that his insurer was obligated to defend him in underlying negligence action where fact issue existed as to whether he breached condition precedent in insurance contract based on insurer's claim that he intentionally concealed and misrepresented material facts, and engaged in fraudulent conduct in connection with his demand for coverage. Orr v Continental Casualty Co., 205 A.D.2d 599, 613 N.Y.S.2d 234, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6191 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1994).

It was error to grant insurer's motion for summary judgment declaring that it had no duty to defend physician where conduct alleged in underlying complaint could reasonably be construed as falling within coverage for any claim arising from rendering or failing to render professional services, and allegations of complaint did not cast pleading solely within policy exclusion of "Sexual Acts" and were not subject to no other interpretation. Chung v Physicians Reciprocal Insurers, 221 A.D.2d 907, 635 N.Y.S.2d 386, 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13384 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1995).

It was error to grant insurer's motion for summary judgment declaring that it had no duty to defend or indemnify insured under policy which provided that insurer would defend any suit against insured for damages caused by occurrence defined as accident, even though there was evidence that incident was intentional tort and thus would be excluded from coverage, since pleadings of underlying complaint could be read as alleging that injuries were negligently inflicted by insured. Merrimack Mut. Fire Ins. Co. v Carpenter, 224 A.D.2d 894, 638 N.Y.S.2d 234, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1517 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), app. dismissed, 88 N.Y.2d 1016, 649 N.Y.S.2d 382, 672 N.E.2d 608, 1996 N.Y. LEXIS 2749 (N.Y. 1996).

Insureds were not entitled to summary judgment to declare that insurer was obligated to defend and indemnify then in underlying negligence action, even though bank's drive-through window was permissible "operation" under lease, and accident "arising out of" the "use" of driving space outside bank when approaching window would be covered by policy naming landlord as additional insured, since there was no indication how far accident site was from drive-through window or where car was actually located when skidding began; as such, it could not be said as matter of law that accident arose out of use of bank's facilities. Moskowitz v Cigna Prop. & Cas. Co., 226 A.D.2d 179, 640 N.Y.S.2d 533, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3747 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1996).

Insurer was not entitled to summary judgment disclosing that it was not obligated to defend individual, to whom insured gave permission to repair his automobile, in actions arising from accident while individual was driving insured's automobile since insurer failed to show, as matter of law, that individual was not operating vehicle with insured's permission at time of accident. Hurtig v Arestia, 235 A.D.2d 520, 653 N.Y.S.2d 855, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 635 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1997).

It was error to grant summary judgment declaring that insurer was obligated to indemnify insured in underlying action where fact issues existed as to if and when plaintiff therein was exposed to lead paint as alleged, and whether any injury occurred as result of that exposure during insurer's policy period. Cepeda by Rodriguez v Varveris, 239 A.D.2d 536, 658 N.Y.S.2d 981, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5713 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1997).

Insured building owners were not entitled to declaratory judgment declaring that their insurer was required to defend and indemnify them in underlying personal injury action arising from stabbing, allegedly on owners' premises, where conflicting evidence on location of assault, and owner's statement that she believed that incident was criminal in nature and hence would not result in civil liability, raised questions of fact as to whether owners had reasonable, good-faith belief that claim for civil liability against them would not ensue; thus, case would be remanded because those issues could not be resolved on conflicting evidence in record. Rich Realty Co. v Public Serv. Mut. Ins. Co., 245 A.D.2d 60, 664 N.Y.S.2d 797, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12874 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1997).

In declaratory judgment action by city transit authority concerning whether insurers were obligated to defend and indemnify it, as work site owner, in underlying personal injury action, authority was not entitled to summary judgment against insurer under owners' protective policy where fact questions existed as to (1) whether policy covered particular project on which accident occurred, (2) if not, whether authority relied on certificate of insurance indicating that policy did cover that project, and (3) if so, whether such reliance was reasonable in view of certificate's provision that it was issued "for information only" and "does not confer any rights upon the certificate holder; also, insurer made no affirmative assurance of coverage other than certificate New York City Transit Auth. v Firemen's Fund Ins. Co., 251 A.D.2d 166, 673 N.Y.S.2d 906, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7322 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't), app. denied, 92 N.Y.2d 813, 680 N.Y.S.2d 906, 703 N.E.2d 764, 1998 N.Y. LEXIS 3694 (N.Y. 1998).

In order to determine whether insurer was obligated to defend and indemnify insured in underlying personal injury action, matter would be remitted for hearing on issues of whether insured's delay in notifying insurer of underlying incident was caused by insured's good faith belief that plaintiff in underlying action would not seek to hold him liable for his injuries and, if so, whether that belief was reasonable where Supreme Court did not hold such hearing, and issues could not be decided from record. Witriol v Travelers Ins. Group, 251 A.D.2d 497, 674 N.Y.S.2d 429, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6861 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1998).

Insured's evidence that he was constructing residence through his business and had employed injured party to work at site raised issue of fact, precluding summary judgment for insurer seeking declaration that it had no obligation to defend or indemnify in underlying injury action because policy was limited to insurance for business conduct. American States Ins. Co. v Paris, 265 A.D.2d 805, 695 N.Y.S.2d 642, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9832 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1999).

Court erred in granting insured's summary judgment motion declaring that insurer was obligated to insure and indemnify insured in underlying personal injury action where there was no evidence as to how or why underlying plaintiff, who was patron attempting to gain entry into insured's establishment, was allegedly assaulted by one of its employees, or as to degree of criminal assault to which employee allegedly pleaded guilty, and unprovoked intentional assault might not be covered under general liability policy in question; further, court's finding of alleged ambiguity in insurance policy as to term "accident," which resulted in policy being construed against insurer, was error. McKeown v Allcity Ins. Co., 272 A.D.2d 79, 707 N.Y.S.2d 321, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4892 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2000).

Court improperly granted plaintiffs' summary judgment motion declaring that defendant insurer was obligated to defend and indemnify plaintiffs' landlord in action for injuries sustained from lead-paint ingestion where fact issues existed as to timeliness of notice of claim and defendant's ensuing disclaimer. Dumet v TIG Ins. Co., 272 A.D.2d 111, 710 N.Y.S.2d 18, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5377 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2000).

Court properly denied insurer's summary judgment motion to declare that it was not obligated to defend estate of insured's brother, even though it was undisputed that brother was not "relative" as defined in policy because he did not reside in same household as insured, where insurer failed to show as matter of law that brother did not have implied permission to drive insured's vehicle, which was involved in accident. Progressive Ins. Cos. v Brouse, 272 A.D.2d 996, 708 N.Y.S.2d 673, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5145 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 2000).

It was error to grant insurer's summary judgment motion declaring that it had no duty to defend and indemnify insured in underlying action, even though insured did not inform insurer of accident that occurred on his premises until about 7 months after he received letter from attorney for plaintiff in underlying action advising him of occurrence, where insured contended that letter did not notify him that lawsuit would be commenced against him and that, as absentee landlord, he did not believe that he could be held liable for accident. Merrimack Mut. Fire Ins. Co. v Orsaeo, 274 A.D.2d 972, 711 N.Y.S.2d 819, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7681 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 2000).

174. —Duty found to exist

In action in which plaintiff, vice-president of corporation owning cooperative apartment building, sought declaration that defendant insurer, which insured corporation and its officers for damages resulting from defamatory statements made by them within course of their duties, was obligated to defend him in defamation action brought against him, partial summary judgment would be granted declaring that insurer was required to provide defense for plaintiff, and insurer could only be excused from defending plaintiff under policy exclusion if it could establish, as matter of law, that there was no possible factual or legal basis on which insurer might eventually be obligated to indemnify plaintiff under any provision in policy. Villa Charlotte Bronte, Inc. v Commercial Union Ins. Co., 64 N.Y.2d 846, 487 N.Y.S.2d 314, 476 N.E.2d 640, 1985 N.Y. LEXIS 14151 (N.Y. 1985).

Insurer had duty to defend insured corporation in asbestos case, even though insured, in claiming under policy with another insurer, asserted different theory as to when coverage was triggered for asbestos-related injury, since insured's actions vis-a-vis other insurer were irrelevant for purposes of determining rights and obligations with respect to insurer disclaiming coverage. Continental Casualty Co. v Rapid-American Corp., 80 N.Y.2d 640, 593 N.Y.S.2d 966, 609 N.E.2d 506, 1993 N.Y. LEXIS 81 (N.Y. 1993).

As "additional insured" under policy issued to garage operator, building owner was entitled to insurer-sponsored defense in action for injuries sustained by pedestrian who allegedly tripped and fell outside of building, as part of sidewalk where alleged accident occurred was necessarily used for access in and out of garage and was thus, by implication, "part of the premises" that garage operator was licensed to use. ZKZ Assocs. LP v CNA Ins.

Plaintiffs were entitled to judgment declaring that defendant insurer was obligated to defend and indemnify them in tenants' action to recover for injuries caused by ingestion of lead paint, pursuant to umbrella policy which provided additional coverage for certain claims not already covered by commercial general liability policy also issued by insurer, where (1) underlying policy specifically excluded coverage for lead paint injuries, but there was no incorporation-by-reference clause in umbrella policy, (2) umbrella policy specifically excluded injuries involving alcohol, asbestos and "pollution," but not lead paint, and (3) at most, insurer's interpretation presented ambiguity in umbrella policy to be resolved against insurer. Westview Assocs. v Guar. Nat'l Ins. Co., 95 N.Y.2d 334, 717 N.Y.S.2d 75, 740 N.E.2d 220, 2000 N.Y. LEXIS 2928 (N.Y. 2000).

Insurers were contractually required to defend and indemnify insureds when they were sued by one of their tenants for losses sustained in theft of diamonds from safety deposit boxes where insureds did not have keys to boxes, but merely controlled access into and provided independent security guard services for vault room where boxes were located, and thus exclusion provisions were not applicable since diamonds were neither in "care, custody or control" nor "physical control" of insureds. Empire Assocs. v North River Ins. Co., 224 A.D.2d 270, 637 N.Y.S.2d 417, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1059 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't), app. denied, 88 N.Y.2d 812, 649 N.Y.S.2d 379, 672 N.E.2d 605, 1996 N.Y. LEXIS 2962 (N.Y. 1996).

Insurer was obligated to defendant and indemnify insured as to third-party contribution claims where policy's exclusionary clause expressly referred only to insured's obligation to indemnify, with no reference to contribution. A.J. McNulty & Co. v National Union Fire Ins. Co., 226 A.D.2d 287, 642 N.Y.S.2d 860, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4524 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1996).

Nightclub's insurance carrier was properly directed to provide defense in lawsuit alleging that plaintiff was injured when agents of nightclub "negligently and carelessly escorted" him from club, although insurance policy excluded coverage for claims arising out of "assault and battery or out of any act or omission in connection with the prevention or suppression of such acts," as plaintiff's injuries may have resulted from unintentional acts by agents of nightclub, and underlying complaint did not allege that he was assaulted while being escorted from club, or that he was being escorted from club to prevent or suppress assault. Essex Ins. Co. v T-Birds Nightclub & Restaurant, 229 A.D.2d 919, 645 N.Y.S.2d 218, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8944 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1996).

Insurer was obligated, under terms of business owners' policy, to defend insureds in action brought against them by person who was injured while assisting in renovation of property, even if policy was not intended to cover injuries arising out of construction business, since renovation project was not so far removed from real estate business that insurer's interpretation of policy provisions on which it relied was only fair interpretation. Jadwiga Realty v General Accident Ins. Co. of Am., 232 A.D.2d 831, 648 N.Y.S.2d 758, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10537 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1996).

Policy exclusion for bodily injury due to winter sports or winter activities "that you sponsor" did not apply to skiing accident, even though insureds, who owned hotel, paid for lift tickets and provided round-trip transportation, along with lunch, to their guests who skied at nearby ski resort, since insureds did not pay any money to have their business advertised or promised in connection with ski trip; thus, insurer was obligated to defend insureds in underlying action. New Pines v North River Ins. Co., 233 A.D.2d 563, 649 N.Y.S.2d 250, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11456 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1996).

Insured, hospital, was entitled to summary judgment declaring that insurer was obligated to defend and indemnify it in underlying action by individual who visited its emergency room, received treatment with no further treatment contemplated, and slipped and fell on curb-side ramp on hospital's property since individual in question was no longer "patient" as defined by policy exclusion as being "natural person who seeks or receives any form of medical care from the insured." Westchester Square Med. Ctr. v ITT Hartford Ins. Group, 239 A.D.2d 297, 658 N.Y.S.2d 588, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5582 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't), app. denied, 90 N.Y.2d 928, 664 N.Y.S.2d 261, 686 N.E.2d 1356, 1997 N.Y. LEXIS 3120 (N.Y. 1997).

RICO claims asserted in federal court against attorneys and their former clients for preparing and filing fraudulent workers' compensation claims did not give attorneys reasonable basis to believe that they had breached professional duty to their former clients or to foresee that their clients would be asserting cross claims for malpractice against them in that federal action, and thus attorneys' insurer was obligated to defend them against those malpractice claims, where claims-made policy defined "claim" as demand for specific relief that could be defended, settled, and paid by insurer—not mere awareness of possibility that some wrongdoing had occurred. Purcigliotti v Risk Enter. Mgmt., 240 A.D.2d 205, 658 N.Y.S.2d 296, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6185 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1997).

Personal injuries that occurred at expanded portion of restaurant next door to original restaurant were covered under general liability portion of insurance policy, and thus insurer had to fulfill its duties to defend and indemnify insured, even though policy was amended to add expanded premises only after accident, where contrary result would have rendered meaningless provision defining "coverage territory" as "United States of America." Mazzuoccolo v Cinelli, 245 A.D.2d 245, 666 N.Y.S.2d 621, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13416 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1997).

It was irrelevant whether particular premises at which personal injuries occurred had been added to insurance policy at time of injuries where nothing in terms of general liability portion of policy limited its application to claims arising from occurrences at premises listed in policy, and limitation in property damage portion of policy to losses "to covered property at the premises described in the Declarations" could not be engrafted onto liability portion of policy. Mazzuoccolo v Cinelli, 245 A.D.2d 245, 666 N.Y.S.2d 621, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13416 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1997).

In action for judgment declaring that insurer was obligated to defend and indemnify party in underlying action, insurer did not show that coverage provided by binder was not on "claims-made" basis as matter of law, and thus insurer was not entitled to dismissal of complaint, where documentary evidence submitted by insurer was inconclusive, binder did not indicate type of coverage afforded, insurer failed to produce copy of applicable policy form which it claimed was identified in binder, and insurer submitted policy bearing completely different policy number from that identified in binder. Halali v Evanston Ins. Co., 245 A.D.2d 422, 666 N.Y.S.2d 676, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13102 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1997).

Insured company was entitled to summary judgment declaring that its liability insurer was required to defend it in underlying action for disparagement of another company's products, despite policy exclusion of advertising injury "arising out of oral or written publication of material, if done by or at the direction of the insured with knowledge of its falsity," where (1) complaint in underlying action alleged not only fraudulent intent but also violations of CLS Gen Bus §§ 349 and 350, which do not require proof of intentional or even reckless conduct, (2) there was sworn testimony that offending letter was published without knowledge of its falsity, and (3) because insurer might be obligated to indemnify insured for at least some causes of action asserted in underlying action, it had to defend insured on all causes of action asserted therein. Simply Lite Food Corp. v Aetna Cas. & Sur. Co. of Am., 245 A.D.2d 500, 666 N.Y.S.2d 714, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13290 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1997).

Plaintiff insurer was required to defend defendant building, owners, managing agent, and their employee in underlying action by 2 former employees alleging unprovoked assault by defendant employee, even though liability policy specifically excluded coverage for bodily injury "expected or intended from the standpoint of the insured," where it also specifically excepted from that exclusion bodily injury "resulting from the use of reasonable force to protect persons or property," and both answer to underlying complaint and letter from defendants to plaintiff—asking it to reconsider its denial of their request for defense in light of dismissal of criminal charges against defendant employee and offering to provide it with additional witness statements—gave plaintiff actual knowledge of facts proving reasonable possibility that defendant employee acted in self-defense against plaintiffs in underlying action. Firemen's Ins. Co. v 860 West Tower, 246 A.D.2d 401, 667 N.Y.S.2d 718, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 276 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1998).

Insurer was obligated to defend its insured since underlying action, alleging negligent, reckless, and careless conduct, fell within policy's coverage of accidental injury; evidence that insured intentionally injured underlying plaintiffs was insufficient to relieve insurer of its duty to defend, in view of contrary evidence that insured was intoxicated and did not intend to strike plaintiffs. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. v Van Dyke, 247 A.D.2d 848, 668 N.Y.S.2d 821, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1147 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1998).

Theater owner was entitled to summary judgment declaring that defendant security company's liability insurer was obligated to defend it in action by patron who was injured in altercation during show, even though defendant had breached its contractual duty to maintain comprehensive general liability policy naming theater as additional insured, where defendant had contractual duty to defend and indemnify theater for liability arising from its negligent performance of security services and its liability insurer was obligated to defend any lawsuit against it claiming damages for personal injury. National Amusements, Inc. v Scottsdale Ins. Co., 253 A.D.2d 396, 676 N.Y.S.2d 590, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9186 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1998).

Court erred in granting insurer's summary judgment motion declaring that it was not required to defend or indemnify its insured in underlying personal injury action on ground that because fire was intentionally set by insured, underlying plaintiff's injuries were not result of "accident" within meaning of insurance policy, since underlying plaintiff showed that insured did not intend to hurt him when insured intentionally set fire, and physical and/or emotional harm to another person was not inherent result of arson committed for insurance purposes; moreover, insured was not collaterally estopped by his criminal conviction of attempted second degree arson from denying intent to injure underlying plaintiff since intent to cause injury to person was not element of crimes with which insured was charged or crime to which he pleaded guilty. Allegany Co-Op Ins. Co. v Kohorst, 254 A.D.2d 744, 678 N.Y.S.2d 424, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10431 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1998).

Automobile insurance policy exclusion of any vehicle owned by any family member other than insured did not apply to accident involving insured's car that her son was driving and considering purchasing, absent evidence that son owned car on day of accident. Brown v Keefe, 255 A.D.2d 971, 680 N.Y.S.2d 38, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12237 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1998).

Automobile insurance policy exclusion of any vehicle furnished or available for "regular use" of any family member other than insured did not apply to accident involving insured's car that her son drove only once, on day of accident. Brown v Keefe, 255 A.D.2d 971, 680 N.Y.S.2d 38, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12237 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1998).

Court erred in finding that applications for insurance were "integral" part of subject insurance policy, and thus erred in declaring that insurer had no duty to defend or indemnify insureds in underlying personal injury action, where it was undisputed that policy contained no reference to applications, there was no evidence that applications were attached thereto, and policy specifically stated that it contained "all the agreements between (insurer and insureds) concerning the insurance afforded"; court ran afoul of parol evidence rule when it resorted to extrinsic evidence to limit scope of coverage unambiguously set forth in insurance policy. Metro-North Commuter R.R. Co. v Yonkers Contr. Co., 256 A.D.2d 32, 680 N.Y.S.2d 537, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13080 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1998), app. denied, 93 N.Y.2d 810, 694 N.Y.S.2d 632, 716 N.E.2d 697, 1999 N.Y. LEXIS 1404 (N.Y. 1999).

Defendants, corporate owner and individual owner/general contractor, were properly granted summary judgment declaring that plaintiff, which issued builder's risk insurance policy, was obligated to defend and indemnify defendants in underlying personal injury action, even though defendants were not name as insureds under terms of policy issued by plaintiff, since it was undisputed that policy was procured in order to insure against risks attendant to commercial construction project on specified parcel of property, it was character of property and project that was proposed to be undertaken thereon (both of which were properly identified) that defined risk, and identity of owner was comparatively unimportant; under circumstances, defendants were entitled to equitable reformation of policy to correct obvious inadvertent misidentification of named insured. New York Cas. Ins. Co. v Shaker Pine, 262 A.D.2d 735, 691 N.Y.S.2d 601, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6514 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1999).

Driving school's automobile liability insurer was obligated to defend and indemnify both school and its driving instructor in underlying action by student involved in traffic accident, even though theory of underlying action was that instructor was negligent in refusing student's request to postpone driving lesson due to inclement weather, where liability policy applied to injuries "resulting from the ownership, maintenance or use" of covered car, and operative fact giving rise to any recovery was student's operation of school's car. Eagle Ins. Co. v Rite-Way Auto Sch., Inc., 263 A.D.2d 526, 693 N.Y.S.2d 213, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8375 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1999).

Lessor was "indemnity" under insurance policy, and thus was entitled to be defended and indemnified by insurer to same extent and on same terms as would have obtained had lessor been named insured where, under general liability policy procured by lessee, insurer agreed to defend any claim or suit brought against "indemnity" under insured contract "to the same extent and on the same terms that we would defend if the 'indemnity' were the insured under the policy," and policy specifically included lease of premises as insured contract. Queens Office Tower Assocs. v General Mills Restaurant, Inc., 269 A.D.2d 223, 702 N.Y.S.2d 301, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1508 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2000).

Court improperly granted insurer's summary judgment motion declaring that it had no duty to defend or indemnify its insureds in underlying action alleging that child was injured as result of negligent care and supervision exercised by defendants while they were providing child care, despite insurer's contention that defendants were engaged in business of child care as to child and that such activity fell squarely within subject policy's express exclusion for coverage of injuries "(a)rising out of the business pursuits of an insured," where there was nothing in nature of child's injuries themselves implying that they could have been sustained only as result of conduct intrinsic to provision of child care. Tenkate v Moore, 274 A.D.2d 934, 711 N.Y.S.2d 587, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8264 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2000).

Insured under commercial general liability policy was entitled to summary judgment declaring that insurer had to defend and indemnify it in underlying action for injuries resulting from exposure to toxic fumes released during insured's construction safety course when roofing membrane was applied with hot air gun during classroom demonstration, despite policy endorsement excluding "'[b]odily injury'...which would not have occurred in whole or in part but for the actual, alleged or threatened discharge, dispersal, seepage, migration, release or escape of pollutants at any time" and defining "pollutant" as "any solid, liquid, gaseous or thermal irritant or contaminant, including smoke, vapor, soot, fumes, acids, alkalis, chemicals and waste," where (1) average insured could reasonably interpret exclusion as applying only to environmental pollution, which was historical purpose of pollution exclusions, and not to bodily injury arising from use of product for its intended purpose, (2) fumes that caused underlying injury were part of normal roofing process, were confined to demonstration area, were inhaled in immediate vicinity, and thus were not result of "discharge, dispersal...release or escape of pollutants," and (3) term "pollutant" was ambiguous because there is virtually no substance or chemical in existence that is not "irritant or contaminant," and thus application of exclusion would lead to absurd results. Roofers' Joint Training, Apprentice & Educ. Comm. v Gen. Accident Ins. Co. of Am., 275 A.D.2d 90, 713 N.Y.S.2d 615, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9785 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 2000).

Insurer was required to defend and indemnify insured law partners in underlying legal malpractice action against them where (1) at time of their insurance renewal application, they lacked actual or constructive knowledge that their former associate had mishandled personal injury case, (2) former associate concealed his misconduct, and there was no basis for imputing it to partners, and (3) thus, partner who inquired of his partners and associates at time of renewal application truthfully told insurer that no circumstances had been reported that would result in malpractice claim. Holloway v Sacks & Sacks, 275 A.D.2d 625, 713 N.Y.S.2d 162, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9278 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't), app. denied, 95 N.Y.2d 770, 722 N.Y.S.2d 473, 745 N.E.2d 394, 2000 N.Y. LEXIS 3912 (N.Y. 2000).

Plaintiffs were entitled to summary judgment declaring that defendant insurer was obligated to defend and indemnify them in personal injury action by relative who fell from ladder while staying at their home, where insurer disclaimed coverage on ground that injured relative was additional insured under plaintiffs' homeowner's policy, which excluded personal liability coverage for bodily injury to any insured, but uncontroverted evidence established that relatives' stay with plaintiffs, although prolonged, was only temporary and that they never intended to permanently reside in plaintiffs' home. Fiore v Excelsior Ins., 276 A.D.2d 895, 714 N.Y.S.2d 149, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10456 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2000), app. denied, 96 N.Y.2d 755, 725 N.Y.S.2d 280, 748 N.E.2d 1076, 2001 N.Y. LEXIS 245 (N.Y. 2001).

Lessor of car involved in accident was entitled to summary judgment declaring that insurer was obligated to defend and indemnify it in underlying action where (1) driver, as lessee under lease for period greater than 30 days (2 years), was owner of car under CLS Veh & Tr § 128, (2) thus, insurance regulations in 11 NYCRR § 60-1.1 applied, and (3) any attempt by insurer to disclaim coverage through language of limiting provision of insurance policy was unenforceable as against public policy. GE Capital Auto Lease, Inc. v Allstate Ins. Co., 281 A.D.2d 456, 722 N.Y.S.2d 549, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2400 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't), app. denied, 97 N.Y.2d 654, 737 N.Y.S.2d 54, 762 N.E.2d 932, 2001 N.Y. LEXIS 3472 (N.Y. 2001), app. denied, 98 N.Y.2d 671, 746 N.Y.S.2d 458, 774 N.E.2d 223, 2002 N.Y. LEXIS 1471 (N.Y. 2002).

Insurers were obligated to defend and indemnify insured in underlying action where insured showed good-faith, reasonable belief in its nonliability so as to excuse its 8-month delay in notifying insurers of accident; neither manner in which accident occurred, apparently trivial nature of injury, nor medical treatment rendered would have made prudent person believe that personal injury claim would be pursued. Abbey Richmond Ambulance Serv. v Northbrook Prop. & Cas. Ins. Co., 281 A.D.2d 501, 721 N.Y.S.2d 796, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4195 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't), app. denied, 96 N.Y.2d 897, 730 N.Y.S.2d 793, 756 N.E.2d 81, 2001 N.Y. LEXIS 1966 (N.Y. 2001).

Insured was entitled to summary judgment declaring that insurers were obligated to defend and indemnify it in underlying personal injury action where (1) insurers sent letter notifying insured that they would not defend it with respect to any causes of action that might be asserted against it arising from injuries sustained by one of its employees, (2) because that letter served as repudiation of insurers' liability, insured was excused from further compliance with its obligations under policy, (3) thus, insurers could not rely on insured's later noncompliance as defense to third-party action in which insured sought that insurers were obligated to defend and indemnify it in personal injury action by employee in which insured was impleaded. Am. Ref-Fuel Co. v Res. Recycling, Inc., 281 A.D.2d 573, 722 N.Y.S.2d 570, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3491 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2001).

Insurer of subcontractor had duty to defend and indemnify joint venturers (contractors) where subcontractor was contractually required to provide primary coverage, policy listed joint venturers as additional insureds and covered subcontractor's work, including equipment and materials connected with work, and plaintiff in underlying injury action alleged that he tripped over equipment belonging to subcontractor and located in its staging area. Impulse Enterprises/F & V Mech. Plumbing & Heating v St. Paul Fire & Marine Ins. Co., 282 A.D.2d 266, 723 N.Y.S.2d 177, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3602 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2001).

Plaintiff who was injured when insured recklessly fired shotgun in his vicinity was entitled to summary judgment declaring that defendant insurer had duty to defend and indemnify insured in underlying personal injury action, although blanket "criminal activity" exclusion contained in homeowner's liability policy unambiguously on its face shielded defendant from liability, where language employed by defendant in exclusion was so overbroad that it rendered coverage illusory, and thus exclusion was unenforceable as against public policy. Slayko v Sec. Mut. Ins. Co., 285 A.D.2d 875, 728 N.Y.S.2d 282, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7532 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2001), rev'd, 98 N.Y.2d 289, 746 N.Y.S.2d 444, 774 N.E.2d 208, 2002 N.Y. LEXIS 1902 (N.Y. 2002).

Court improperly granted summary judgment motion declaring that defendant, plaintiff's father's insurer, had no obligation to defend or indemnify plaintiff in underlying action where meaning of "covered motor vehicle" in policy was ambiguous, and thus such provision would be construed against defendant and in favor of coverage; while exclusions section of policy clearly limited coverage to only those vehicles listed in "Coverage Summary," defendant had not timely exclaimed and was thus estopped from doing so. Nationwide Mut. Ins. Co. v CNA Ins. Co., 286 A.D.2d 485, 729 N.Y.S.2d 760, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8269 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2001).

In personal injury action, defendant owner of leased premises was entitled to summary judgment declaring that insurer was required to defend and indemnify it where (1) lease required insured to procure insurance for benefit of "owner" of premises and defined "owner" as, inter alia, "the owner of the fee" of demised premises, and (2) insurance contract required insurer to defend and indemnify "any...organization with whom [insured] agreed, because of a written contract or agreement or permit to provide insurance." Wilson v Commer. Envelope Mfg. Co., 286 A.D.2d 731, 730 N.Y.S.2d 352, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8551 (N.Y. Security officer, who collided with concrete pillar while driving car out of indoor parking garage at owner's request, and his employer (which was legally responsible for his acts or omissions) were entitled to summary judgment declaring that defendant insurer was obligated to defend and indemnify them in personal injury action by car owner because (1) as permissive user of car, security guard was "an insured" under policy, and (2) "car business" exclusion did not apply to security guard, as he was not employed as parking attendant and had never previously been called on to drive car in course of his employment. *Nat'l Union Fire Ins. Co. v Progressive Ins. Co., 287 A.D.2d 697, 732 N.Y.S.2d 63, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10027 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2001).

Insurer of chase car involved in high speed chase resulting in fatal accident was responsible for primary defense and coverage of claim against passenger of that vehicle, who allegedly controlled its use and was father of owner and actual driver of vehicle, where son's policy covered any "family member" who used vehicle, which included person related by blood who was resident of household, and father and son resided together. Excelsior Ins. Co. v Progressive Cas. Ins. Co., 170 Misc. 2d 78, 649 N.Y.S.2d 331, 1996 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 392 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1996).

Insurance company, which issued insurance policies to insureds for both their primary and secondary residences, was obligated to defend and indemnify insureds in action brought by third party who was injured at insureds' secondary residence since policy on that residence was ambiguous as to its coverage, or lack thereof, for personal injury to third persons, and it did not specifically state that insureds did not have such coverage. Levy v AETNA Cas. & Sur. Co., 172 Misc. 2d 816, 658 N.Y.S.2d 939, 1997 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 215 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1997).

Insurer of driver of motor vehicle escorting tractor-trailer on highway would be obligated under standard automobile liability insurance policy to defend or pay out claims against its insured in lawsuit brought by New York State against insurer of tractor-trailer, whose driver caused damage to itself and to overpass structure on highway, and who sued owner of escort vehicle for indemnification, alleging that escort vehicle's driver failed to timely communicate with tractor-trailer's driver. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 07-09-17.

175. — —Based on allegations in complaint

In a personal injury action arising out of an automobile accident, the vehicle's insurer was obligated to defend the driver as well as the owner, even though the insurer itself reasonably concluded that the driver did not have the owner's permission and the jury ultimately so found, where the complaint alleged that the driver was operating the vehicle with the owner's permission and the issue of permission was not judicially resolved prior to trial. Colon v Aetna Life & Casualty Ins. Co., 66 N.Y.2d 6, 494 N.Y.S.2d 688, 484 N.E.2d 1040, 1985 N.Y. LEXIS 16992 (N.Y. 1985).

Insurance company was obligated to defend its insured in underlying action in which plaintiffs alleged that insured's paint business was nuisance and had caused them bodily injury and property damage, notwithstanding contention that there was no duty to defend as policy only covered unexpected and unintentional injuries and that alleged injury was caused by intentional acts, since underlying action alleged both intentional and negligent conduct. Collum v State Farm Fire & Casualty Co., 155 A.D.2d 581, 547 N.Y.S.2d 423, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 14398 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1989).

Insured, manufacturer of central station alarm monitoring equipment, was entitled to summary judgment in action for judgment declaring insurer's obligation to defend and indemnify it in third-party action brought by alarm installer whose customer's jewelry store had been burglarized where (1) it was undisputed that, contrary to one exclusionary endorsement, neither main suit nor third-party action sought recovery for property damage resulting from an act or omission on part of any guard or security system employed by insured, and (2) insurer as a matter of law failed to carry burden of showing that allegations in both main and third-party suits fell within other endorsement excluding coverage for liability arising out of alarm system's failure to perform as intended. AFA Protective Sys. v Atlantic Mut. Ins. Co., 157 A.D.2d 683, 549 N.Y.S.2d 783, 1990 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 508 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1990).

In action against state for injuries sustained by infant when she dove from tree stump into lake, in which state counterclaimed alleging that infant's parents were guilty of negligent supervision, court erred in granting summary judgment favorable to parents' homeowner's insurer on issue of whether insurer had duty to defend and indemnify parents, even though policy specifically excluded coverage for bodily injuries sustained by insured person, including infant, since liability at issue on state's counterclaim was not parents' liability to infant but rather parents' potential liability to state on claim of equitable apportionment. Allstate Ins. Co. v Pestar, 168 A.D.2d 931, 564 N.Y.S.2d 892, 1990 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 16469 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1990).

Insurer had duty as matter of law to defend insured under warehouseman's liability policy where there was no question that claims pleaded in complaint in underlying action were, on their face, covered under policy; it was irrelevant that questions of fact might exist as to whether loss would ultimately be found to fall within clause of policy that excluded certain types of losses, such as "mysterious disappearances," from coverage. North River Ins. Co. v ECA Warehouse Corp., 172 A.D.2d 225, 568 N.Y.S.2d 71, 1991 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4446 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1991).

Insurance brokers were entitled to summary judgment declaring that insurance company was under duty to defend them pursuant to policy of errors and omission insurance in action for failure to procure liability insurance for 1984 through 1986, notwithstanding that policy specifically excluded any claims attributable to acts which occurred before April 20, 1984, since it could not be determined from complaint in underlying action whether failure to obtain liability insurance occurred before or after April 20, 1984. K.M. Ins. Brokers v International Ins. Co., 180 A.D.2d 407, 579 N.Y.S.2d 81, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1069 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1992).

Supreme Court erred in declaring that liability insurer had no obligation to defend or indemnify insured county in personal injury action arising out of accident on highway under construction, even though Appellate Court found no basis for liability against contractor on summary judgment motion, since plaintiffs' amended complaint in underlying action raised new theory of liability by alleging that county was negligent in failing to properly monitor highway while under construction, which sufficiently invoked policy provision obligating insurer to provide coverage for acts or omissions of insured "in connection with [its] general supervision of such operations." Liberty Mut. Ins. Co. v County of Onondaga, 181 A.D.2d 1024, 581 N.Y.S.2d 970, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4623 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't), app. denied, 80 N.Y.2d 753, 587 N.Y.S.2d 905, 600 N.E.2d 632, 1992 N.Y. LEXIS 1649 (N.Y. 1992).

General contractor's comprehensive general liability insurance carrier had duty to defend and indemnify transit authority (general contractor's joint venturer and additional named insured under policy) in third-party action brought by subcontractor, after transit authority motorman commenced main action against general contractor and subcontractor alleging that injuries he sustained when dangling electrical conduit fell on train he was operating resulted from their negligence in performing contract with transit authority; allegations of third-part complaint, which incorporated complaint in main action, sufficiently set forth claim that could reasonably be said to fall within policy's coverage. New York City Transit Auth. v Aetna Casualty & Sur. Co., 207 A.D.2d 389, 615 N.Y.S.2d 709, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8190 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1994).

Defendant insurance company had duty, as matter of law, to defend driver of car where complaint alleged that car was owned by defendant's insured and was driven with owner's permission at time of accident, and where policy issued by defendant defined "insured" (for purposes of liability coverage) as "any person using your covered auto." Sweet v State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co., 223 A.D.2d 841, 636 N.Y.S.2d 196, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 85 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1996).

Garage owner was entitled to defense by insurer under insurer's obligations to owner as additional insured in policy held by garage operator where complaint in underlying action sought to charge both owner and operator with responsibility for accident due to defects on that part of sidewalk used by vehicles in order to enter garage, thereby triggering express coverage provided to owner. ZKZ Assocs. L.P. v CNA Ins. Co., 224 A.D.2d 174, 637 N.Y.S.2d 117, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 775 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1996).

Insurer was obligated to defend and indemnify county, as "additional insured," in underlying actions for injuries allegedly sustained in automobile accidents which occurred on resurfaced road where insured supplied materials and equipment for resurfacing project, its own employees operated equipment which controlled amount of emulsion and stone supplied to road surface, and some of allegations of negligence involved that work; at least part of county's potential liability arose from work by insured as defined by policy. County of Orange v Hartford Accident & Indem. Corp., 226 A.D.2d 578, 641 N.Y.S.2d 118, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4358 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1996).

Court properly declared that liability insurer had duty to defend landlords in action by tenant who alleged that she suffered injuries from ingesting lead paint in her rented apartment over 9-year period, as allegations in complaint in underlying action fell within scope or risks covered by subject policies, and insurer failed to meet its burden of proving that coverage was vitiated as matter of law by pollution exclusion clauses or by fact that portion of alleged injury may have occurred prior to effective dates of policies issued by insurer; however, because it could not be determined on record whether any injury occurred during effective dates of subject policies, declaration that insurer had duty to indemnify landlords was premature. General Accident Ins. Co. of Am. v IDBAR Realty Corp., 229 A.D.2d 515, 646 N.Y.S.2d 138, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7889 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1996).

In action for judgment declaring that employer's liability insurer had duty to defend plaintiff in $1 million personal injury action brought against him and his employer by attendant of gift shop located in hotel where plaintiff was staying, insurer was not entitled to summary judgment on ground that plaintiff was not "protected person" within meaning of employer's liability insurance policy, where complaint in underlying action alleged that plaintiff was employee of insured at time of incident and that he was acting within scope of his employment and in furtherance of insured's business when incident occurred. Jubin v St. Paul Fire & Marine Ins. Co., 236 A.D.2d 712, 653 N.Y.S.2d 454, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1300 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1997).

In action by plaintiff who obtained judgment in his favor in personal injury action wherein tortfeasor's insurance carrier disclaimed coverage based on exclusion for bodily injuries intentionally caused by its insured, allegations of complaint, together with tortfeasor's statements and his claim that he did not intend to hurt plaintiff, established as matter of law that insurance carrier was under duty to defend tortfeasor in underlying action despite evidence that intentional tort was committed. Robbins v Michigan Millers Mut. Ins. Co., 236 A.D.2d 769, 653 N.Y.S.2d 975, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2046 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1997).

Liability insurers and hotel owner's landscaping contractor breached their duties to defend hotel owner in underlying action for slip and fall where (1) service agreement between owner and contractor required contractor to assume defense of any action against owner "arising out of or connected with" that agreement and to procure insurance naming owner as additional insured, (2) contractor obtained insurance from insurers providing coverage for owner for liability arising from contractor's work, and (3) allegations of complaint brought action within scope of insurance policy and service agreement. Davidson v Hilton Hotels Corp., 266 A.D.2d 336, 698 N.Y.S.2d 297, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11563 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1999).

General contractor and owner, who were additional insureds under policy issued to defendant subcontractor, were entitled to summary judgment to extent of declaring that insurer was obligated to defend them in action to recover for injuries sustained by subcontractor's employee when he fell down stairs, because underlying complaint fell within scope of policy's coverage for bodily injury arising out of primary insured's work for additional insureds, and it set forth claims pursuant to, inter alia, CLS Labor § 240(1) such that additional insureds could be held liable despite lack of negligence on their part contributing to allegedly defective stairs. Pavarini Constr. Co. v Liberty Mut. Ins. Co., 270 A.D.2d 98, 704 N.Y.S.2d 72, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2825 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2000).

Insured contractor was entitled to summary judgment declaring that insurer was required to defend it in underlying arbitration proceeding where allegations against contractor in arbitration stated claims falling within policy coverage, notwithstanding assertion in arbitration of additional claims for breach of contract and fraud not covered by policy. Sentry Contr., Inc. v Traveler's Prop. Cas. Corp., 279 A.D.2d 355, 720 N.Y.S.2d 15, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 462 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2001).

Court erred in granting summary judgment declaring that plaintiff, underwriter of commercial general liability insurance policy, was not obligated to defend and indemnify defendant in underlying action where policy included coverage for "advertising injury," and underlying complaint expressly alleged that defendant's advertising activities violated manufacturer's trademark. Am. Mfrs. Mut. Ins. Co. v Quality King Distribs., 287 A.D.2d 527, 731 N.Y.S.2d 234, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9570 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2001).

Because the insureds' request for defense and indemnity did not constitute a request by a co-insurer for contribution, and because the proffered basis for the insurer's disclaimer was readily ascertainable from the face of the complaint in a coworker's underlying personal injury action, the insurer's disclaimer was untimely under N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(d). Fish King Enters. v Countrywide Ins. Co., 88 A.D.3d 639, 930 N.Y.S.2d 256, 2011 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6937 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2011).

176. — —Based on insurer's knowledge

Insurer has duty to defend where pleadings do not allege covered occurrence but insurer has actual knowledge of facts demonstrating that lawsuit does involve such occurrence; insurer cannot use third party's pleading as shield to avoid its contractual duty to defend its insured. Fitzpatrick v American Honda Motor Co., 78 N.Y.2d 61, 571 N.Y.S.2d 672, 575 N.E.2d 90, 1991 N.Y. LEXIS 644 (N.Y. 1991).

Insured was entitled to summary judgment declaring that insurers had duty to defend it in personal injury action alleging that it was negligent in "servicing and repairing" machine sold to customer where insurers disclaimed liability on ground that there was no coverage under policy's "completed operations hazard" exclusion, since insurers knew when they disclaimed liability that insured had been repairing machine immediately prior to accident; issue of whether or not insured had completed operations within definitional section of policy, while relevant to insurers' obligation to pay, was not decisive on their duty to defend. Suburban Bindery Equipment Corp. v Boston Old Colony Ins. Co., 150 A.D.2d 767, 541 N.Y.S.2d 613, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7294 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1989).

Insured was entitled to summary judgment declaring that insurers had duty to defend it in personal injury action alleging that it was negligent in "servicing and repairing" machine sold to customer where insurers disclaimed liability on ground that there was no coverage under policy's "completed operations hazard" exclusion, since insurers knew when they disclaimed liability that insured had been repairing machine immediately prior to accident; issue of whether or not insured had completed operations within definitional section of policy, while relevant to insurers' obligation to pay, was not decisive on their duty to defend. Suburban Bindery Equipment Corp. v Boston Old Colony Ins. Co., 150 A.D.2d 767, 541 N.Y.S.2d 613, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7294 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1989).

Court erred in granting insurer's summary judgment motion declaring that it was not obligated to defend its insured in underlying action where insurer first disclaimed coverage based on injured party's failure to provide timely notice in its June 14, 1994 disclaimer, but insurer, however, was fully aware of facts underlying its disclaimer on April 6, 1994, when it received notice of claim from injured party, and insurer's unexplained delay of over 2 months in disclaiming coverage as to injured party based on her untimely notice was unreasonable as matter of law. Prudential Prop. & Cas. Ins. v Persaud, 256 A.D.2d 502, 682 N.Y.S.2d 412, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13674 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1998).

Insurer under homeowner's policy had to defend and indemnify insured in underlying negligence action where insurer's desire for additional discovery, claiming that it was waiting for 2 "main" witnesses to be deposed, was not reasonable excuse for its 7-month delay in disclaiming coverage after unequivocal evidence surfaced that accident fell squarely within policy exclusion. North Country Ins. Co. v Tucker, 273 A.D.2d 683, 709 N.Y.S.2d 255, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7220 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2000).

Third-party defendant insurance carrier, which insured vehicles owned by renter of vehicle involved in collision, was obligated to defend driver of rental vehicle insofar as he was operating it with permission of renter-insured, although complaint contained no allegations bearing on question of whether rental vehicle qualified as "other motor vehicle" under terms of policy covering renter's own vehicles, as written report in which renter-insured stated that rental vehicle "was intended to be a substitute" for her own vehicle while it was being repaired, if ultimately established to be true, would bring occurrence within policy coverage. Pahl v Grenier, 277 A.D.2d 681, 715 N.Y.S.2d 124, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11963 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2000).

177. —Duty found to not exist

Liability insurer was entitled to summary judgment declaring that it had no obligation to defend its insured, owner of garden apartment complex, in suit brought by person claiming to have fallen on premises prior to effective date of insurer's policy, where there was no documentary proof of any contract to insure at earlier date and no premiums had been paid for such coverage; insured's assertion that insurer's agent had promised to provide coverage with earlier effective date was insufficient to preclude summary judgment. Dedvukaj v Allstate Ins. Co., 80 N.Y.2d 843, 587 N.Y.S.2d 587, 600 N.E.2d 218, 1992 N.Y. LEXIS 1599 (N.Y. 1992).

State Insurance Fund (SIF) was entitled to summary judgment declaring that it was not required to defend or indemnify fourth-party plaintiffs in third-party action where (1) SIF did not receive pleadings in third-party action until over 18 months after action was commenced, (2) within a few days of receiving pleadings, SIF sent written disclaimer notice to fourth-party plaintiffs based on their failure to comply with notice provision of policy requiring them to forward all legal papers to SIF, and (3) SIF's disclaimer letter was not defective merely because it was not sent to fourth-party plaintiffs' attorney. Almalabeh v Chelsea 19 Assocs., 273 A.D.2d 261, 708 N.Y.S.2d 700, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6539 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2000).

Court erred in determining that insurer had obligation to defend former owner of automobile involved in accident where that person was neither named insured nor operator of automobile when accident occurred. Beattie v Home Indem. Ins. Co., 170 A.D.2d 559, 566 N.Y.S.2d 335, 1991 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2312 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't), app. denied, 78 N.Y.2d 851, 573 N.Y.S.2d 69, 577 N.E.2d 60, 1991 N.Y. LEXIS 841 (N.Y. 1991).

Insurer was not obligated to defend and indemnify insured against underlying claims arising from insured's disposal of hazardous wastes since coverage was limited to property damage alleged to have occurred during policy period, and did not extend to damages occurring long after policies had expired. Borg-Warner Corp. v Insurance Co. of North America, 174 A.D.2d 24, 577 N.Y.S.2d 953, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 109 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), app. denied, 80 N.Y.2d 753, 587 N.Y.S.2d 905, 600 N.E.2d 632, 1992 N.Y. LEXIS 1631 (N.Y. 1992).

Insurer was entitled to summary judgment in action seeking declaration of its duty to defend and indemnify, even though insured alleged that he learned of accident one week after its occurrence and informed insurer's agent by telephone within 2 weeks, where policy required written notice of claim as soon as possible, agent denied telephonic notice, and written notice was not provided until 10 months after accident; whether or not telephonic notice was given, it did not constitute proper notice under policy. Elkowitz v Farm Family Mut. Ins. Co., 180 A.D.2d 711, 579 N.Y.S.2d 740, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1638 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1992).

Insurance company was entitled to summary judgment in action for declaration that it was not required to defend or indemnify insured in action arising from insured's attack on coworker where (1) insured pleaded guilty to second degree assault in connection with attack, (2) insured stated in allocution under oath that he walked over to coworker and hit him in face with his fist, that they then rolled around floor fighting, and that he struck coworker with metal sign post, (3) 6 years after plea and 5 years after commencement of civil action by coworker, insured successfully moved for writ of coram nobis to vacate conviction and substitute plea to second degree assault by recklessly causing physical injury, based on allegation that insured's conduct was unintentional and caused by influence of alcohol, and (4) counsel conceded that underlying purpose of motion was to increase likelihood that coworker would be compensated under insurance policy; insured's change in his story 6 years after attack was incredible as matter of law. Home Mut. Ins. Co. v Lapi, 192 A.D.2d 927, 596 N.Y.S.2d 885, 1993 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4033 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1993).

Court should have granted insurer's motion for summary judgment and declared that it did not have obligation to defend or indemnify insured in third-party action brought against insured by insured's affiliate where (1) insured's employee had been injured during course of his employment, (2) employee successfully applied for workers' compensation benefits under policy issued to insured by insurer, (3) employee thereafter commenced personal injury action against insured and its affiliate, with action dismissed as to insured based on Workers' Compensation Law, (4) affiliate commenced third-party action against insured, (5) insured failed to provide insurer with timely notice of pendency of personal injury action brought against insured by its employee, and (6) insured did not proffer reasonable excuse for its failure to so notify insurer; notice of employee's workers' compensation claim did not serve as notice of subsequent actions. 57th St. Management Corp. v Zurich Ins. Co., 208 A.D.2d 801, 617 N.Y.S.2d 852, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10027 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1994).

Tenant's insurance company was not required to defend and indemnify landlord in underlying action that arose from incident in which tenant's employee walked through freight elevator door opening on first floor and fell down elevator shaft where tenant leased fourth floor of landlord's building, and lease required tenant to obtain liability insurance protecting landlord and tenant from any liability whatsoever occasioned by accident on or about leased premises or any appurtenances thereto; injury did not occur on leased premises or any appurtenance thereto. Axelrod v Maryland Casualty Co., 209 A.D.2d 336, 619 N.Y.S.2d 10, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11609 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1994).

Defendant insurers were entitled to judgment declaring that they had no duty to defend and indemnify plaintiff under commercial general liability policy where they submitted insurance documents that conclusively established that plaintiff was not additional insured under policy on date of accident. ADF Constr. Corp. v Home Insulation & Supply, 237 A.D.2d 915, 656 N.Y.S.2d 1010, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3509 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1997).

Insured's delay of at least 16 months in notifying its liability insurer of action against insured for slip and fall on its property was unreasonable as matter of law, and thus insurer was entitled to summary judgment declaring that it was not required to defend and indemnify insured in underlying action. Colonial Woods Condo. v Hanover Ins. Co., 245 A.D.2d 329, 665 N.Y.S.2d 102, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12798 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1997).

Liability insurer's disclaimer of coverage was valid, and thus it had no duty to defend or indemnify insured, where insured failed to provide prompt notice of claim in violation of its obligations under policy, even if delay in notification caused no prejudice, and even if insurer had learned of underlying occurrence and subsequent claim from another source. Outlaw v City of New York, 245 A.D.2d 496, 666 N.Y.S.2d 700, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13269 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1997).

In third-party action by gasoline service station owner for declaration that its liability insurer had duty to defend and indemnify him in connection with underlying suit to recover cost of cleaning up underground gasoline leak, insurer was entitled to summary judgment where owner did not file notice of loss or otherwise notify insurer that leak had occurred until 1993 despite having been notified that he would be liable for cleanup costs shortly after cleanup efforts began in 1986. State v Ackley, 245 A.D.2d 668, 664 N.Y.S.2d 876, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12582 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1997).

Insurer was entitled to summary judgment dismissing action for judgment declaring that insurer was obligated to pay defense and indemnification costs to plaintiff in connection with settlement of underlying action where plaintiff had no right of subrogation against insured; thus, insurer was not obligated to tender its policy toward settlement. Ryder Truck Rental, Inc. v Countrywide Ins. Co., 251 A.D.2d 313, 672 N.Y.S.2d 802, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6220 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't), app. dismissed, 92 N.Y.2d 920, 680 N.Y.S.2d 460, 703 N.E.2d 272, 1998 N.Y. LEXIS 3090 (N.Y. 1998).

Truck leasing company, which claimed to be additional insured under "Business Automobile Policy," was not entitled to summary judgment declaring that insurer had duty to defend and indemnify it in underlying action by truck driver whose arm was crushed by truck's liftgate where (1) policy provided coverage to entities that leased vehicles "where required by contract," (2) although original lease agreement required lessee to procure and maintain automobile liability insurance and to list plaintiff lessor as additional insured on policy, lessee's trucking business was taken over another company (NCC) in 1992, (3) it was not until September 1993 that NCC executed assignment and assumption agreement transferring to NCC original lessee's rights under its lease with plaintiff, and (4) there were triable issues of fact as to whether NCC was required by contract to obtain insurance for plaintiff as of date of accident in August 1993 and whether there was oral contract between plaintiff and NCC before accident that obligated NCC to obtain such insurance. Penske Truck Leasing Co., L.P., v Home Ins. Co., 251 A.D.2d 478, 674 N.Y.S.2d 400, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6859 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1998).

Insurer was under no duty to defend or indemnify defendant in underlying negligence action, despite alleged representations by insurer's employee to defendant where insurer did not issue liability insurance policy to defendant; thus, because policy of insurance between insurer and alleged tortfeasor never existed, it could not be created by equitable estoppel. Eagle Ins. Co. v Punctual Express, Inc., 251 A.D.2d 536, 673 N.Y.S.2d 926, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7538 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't), app. denied, 92 N.Y.2d 814, 681 N.Y.S.2d 474, 704 N.E.2d 227, 1998 N.Y. LEXIS 4021 (N.Y. 1998).

Insured's failure to provide timely notice of loss, as required by insurance policy, precluded coverage under policy. YTSB Mgmt. Corp. v Westport Ins. Corp., 251 A.D.2d 571, 673 N.Y.S.2d 616, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7498 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1998).

Insurer was not obligated to defend and indemnify former owner of car in personal injury action arising from accident which occurred when car was being driven by new owner, notwithstanding plaintiff's assertion that former owner was liable to third parties as "owner" until new owner complied with CLS Veh & Tr §§ 2113(b) and 2116(a) and (b), where former owner, through his agent, had delivered possession of car to bona fide transferee and complied with all provisions of CLS Veh & Tr §§ 2113 and 2116 that were applicable to owners. Potter v Keefe, 261 A.D.2d 864, 690 N.Y.S.2d 361, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4898 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1999).

Court erred in declaring that plaintiff was obligated to defend and indemnify its insured against personal injury claims arising from automobile accident involving insured's brother, driver of insured's vehicle, where insured was not party to instant action, and plaintiff asserted that it had not raised any issue as to CLS Veh & Tr § 388. Progressive Ins. Cos. v Brouse, 272 A.D.2d 996, 708 N.Y.S.2d 673, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5145 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 2000).

Insurer was entitled to summary judgment declaring that sole claim in underlying litigation covered by subject policy was for property damage and that its duty to defend insured in that action would continue only until property damage claim was finally adjudicated or settled where insured effectively conceded that insurer was liable only for ruined garment damages, insured had its own independent counsel defending entire case, insured's claim of bad faith was based solely on insurer's settlement without insured's knowledge or consent, and policy gave insurer express prerogative to settle without insured's consent. Gerling Am. Ins. Co. v G.A. Braun, Inc., 273 A.D.2d 139, 710 N.Y.S.2d 896, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7160 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2000).

Insurer was not required to defend or indemnify insured regarding underlying action by insured's injured employee where insurer properly disclaimed coverage based on insured's failure to provide timely notice of claim, insured's delay of 2 years and 10 months in providing notice of claim was unreasonable as matter of law, insurer was not obligated to disclaim coverage until insured provided notice of accident or claim, and disclaimer in insurer's answer was timely notice of disclaimer. Roofing Consultants, Inc. v Scottsdale Ins. Co., 273 A.D.2d 933, 709 N.Y.S.2d 782, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6715 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't), app. denied, 95 N.Y.2d 770, 722 N.Y.S.2d 473, 745 N.E.2d 393, 2000 N.Y. LEXIS 3859 (N.Y. 2000).

Liability insurer had no duty to defend or indemnify insured for any claims against him by woman injured in slip and fall in bed of insured's pickup truck where (1) insured initially told insurer that woman fell while truck was parked and not moving and that he was not present at time of fall, (2) over one year later, after woman notified insurer that she intended to make liability claim against insured, insured told insurer that he was operating truck when woman fell, (3) insured's failure to make fair and truthful disclosures in reporting incident was breach of cooperation clause of insurance policy, and (4) insurer was not required to show prejudice as result of insured's lack of cooperation in order to prove its entitlement to summary judgment. Nationwide Mut. Ins. Co. v Graham, 275 A.D.2d 1012, 713 N.Y.S.2d 602, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9608 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 2000).

Insurer was entitled to summary judgment declaring that it was not obligated to defend and indemnify insureds in underlying personal injury action where insureds' 15-month delay in notifying insurer of accident was not excused by their allegedly good-faith, albeit mistaken, beliefs that (1) loss was not covered by insurance policy, (2) notification of their insurance agent was notification of insurer, and (3) their attorney had communicated with attorney for injured party. Travelers Indem. Co. v Worthy, 281 A.D.2d 411, 721 N.Y.S.2d 400, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2073 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2001).

Insurer was entitled to summary judgment declaring that it was not obligated to defend and indemnify insureds in underlying personal injury action where injured party did not provide insurer with written notice of claim, and insurer was not required to cite that failure to notify in its letter disclaiming coverage. Travelers Indem. Co. v Worthy, 281 A.D.2d 411, 721 N.Y.S.2d 400, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2073 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2001).

Insurer was properly granted summary judgment declaring that it was not obligated to defend or indemnify insured in underlying personal injury action where effective date of cancellation of insurance policy was November 19, 1994, and incident in question occurred on Nov. 28, 1994; even if reinstated coverage would have been in effect retroactively on Nov. 28, 1994, insurer showed, as matter of law, that insured's failure to advise it of potential claim was material misrepresentation which, if disclosed, would have resulted in determination not to reinstate policy. Hinderhofer v Daisy Mfg. Co., 286 A.D.2d 419, 729 N.Y.S.2d 512, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8115 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2001).

178. — —Due to nature of claim

It was inappropriate to grant summary judgment requiring insurance company to defend insured without having established obligation to indemnify where insured had not sought defense from insurance company and had retained private counsel to serve his interests in underlying action, and both parties stated on appeal that insurance company's obligations of defense and indemnification could not be separated. Sterner v Colonial Coop. Ins. Co., 156 A.D.2d 950, 549 N.Y.S.2d 537, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 16098 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1989).

Insurance company was entitled to declaratory judgment that it had no duty to defend or indemnify insured in underlying action which contained negligence and assault causes of action since (1) policy covered accidents and it was undisputed that insured's assault on plaintiff in underlying action was intentional, and (2) insurance company had no duty to provide disclaimer under CLS Ins § 3420(d). Royal Indem. Co. v Miller, 187 A.D.2d 956, 591 N.Y.S.2d 652, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13962 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1992), app. denied, 81 N.Y.2d 707, 597 N.Y.S.2d 937, 613 N.E.2d 969, 1993 N.Y. LEXIS 721 (N.Y. 1993).

Conclusory allegations in underlying complaint against insured, in which adjoining landowner sought injunctive relief and damages for impairment of its land by "leachate contamination" from insured's landfill, that landfill constituted continuing nuisance and continuing trespass warranting treble damages under CLS RPAPL § 853, did not obligate insurer to defend under personal injury liability coverage of comprehensive general liability policies for "wrongful entry or eviction or other invasion of the right of property," since (1) coverage under personal injury liability endorsement was limited to liability for purposeful acts aimed at dispossession of real property by someone asserting interest therein, and (2) extension of personal injury coverage to occurrences falling squarely within property damage coverage would render pollution exclusion of property damage coverage meaningless. County of Columbia v Continental Ins. Co., 189 A.D.2d 391, 595 N.Y.S.2d 988, 1993 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3502 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), app. denied, 82 N.Y.2d 841, 606 N.Y.S.2d 591, 627 N.E.2d 512, 1993 N.Y. LEXIS 4306 (N.Y. 1993), aff'd, 83 N.Y.2d 618, 612 N.Y.S.2d 345, 634 N.E.2d 946, 1994 N.Y. LEXIS 1066 (N.Y. 1994).

In action alleging that president of insured company hired persons to assault and break both legs of another employee of company, that plan went awry, and that assailants killed employee, insurance company would not be required to provide defense, notwithstanding fact that action alleged gross negligence, since allegation of gross negligence was totally inconsistent with allegation of intentional malicious assault, and intentionally caused harm was excluded by policy. Monter v CNA Ins. Cos., 202 A.D.2d 405, 608 N.Y.S.2d 692, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1951 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1994).

Court properly granted defendant insurer's summary judgment motion in action to recover damages due to defendant's refusal to defend or indemnify plaintiff in defamation action where complaint in underlying action alleged that defamatory words were uttered maliciously and with intent to injure, notwithstanding language within defendant's umbrella policy that included libel, slander, and defamation within definition of "injury," since both umbrella policy and plaintiff's general liability policy expressly excluded from coverage "injury or damage which is expected or intended by an insured." Hodgson v United Servs. Auto. Ass'n, 262 A.D.2d 359, 691 N.Y.S.2d 137, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6272 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1999).

Plaintiff, which issued commercial liability policy to lessee naming lessors as "additional insureds," was barred by anti-subrogation rule from bringing action to declare that defendant, lessors' insurance carrier, was obligated to share in defense or indemnification of lessors in underlying personal injury action brought against lessors and lessee. Insurance Co. of Evanston v Mid-Hudson Coop. Ins. Co., 271 A.D.2d 651, 706 N.Y.S.2d 457, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4521 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2000).

Insurer did not owe a duty to defend in the underlying personal injury action because the language of a specific endorsement and the declarations page stated the activities that were covered, the loss in question did not arise from activities within the classifications set forth on the declarations page, and, as such, coverage was lacking by reason of lack of inclusion; the classification limitation in the commercial general liability policy did not constitute an exclusion. Black Bull Contr., LLC v Indian Harbor Ins. Co., 135 A.D.3d 401, 23 N.Y.S.3d 59, 2016 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2016).

179. — — —Outside policy coverage

Insurer was not required to defend its insured in unfair competition proceeding brought by patent holder, even though general comprehensive liability policy covered "advertising injury" arising out of insured's "advertising activities," where patent holder's complaint alleged injury arising out of manufacture, importation, and sale of product which infringed holder's patents; moreover, price list circulated by insured and included in patent holder's complaint did not constitute "advertising activities," since it listed only prices and sizes of various products, and made no false, misleading, or deceptive claims that products were unique. A. Meyers & Sons Corp. v Zurich American Ins. Group, 74 N.Y.2d 298, 546 N.Y.S.2d 818, 545 N.E.2d 1206, 1989 N.Y. LEXIS 3008 (N.Y. 1989).

Coverage provided by "personal injury" endorsement in comprehensive general liability policies issued to county was not available for injuries arising from pollution-generated property damage, and thus insurers would not be required to provide representation and coverage for action against county alleging property damage resulting from leaching of toxic chemicals, where (1) action contained allegations of continuing nuisance, continuing trespass and invasion, (2) policy coverage was intended (as shown by torts enumerated in endorsement) to reach only purposeful acts undertaken by county, and (3) coverage for bodily injury and property damage contained exclusions for pollution-related injury or damage. County of Columbia v Continental Ins. Co., 83 N.Y.2d 618, 612 N.Y.S.2d 345, 634 N.E.2d 946, 1994 N.Y. LEXIS 1066 (N.Y. 1994).

Defendant insurers were entitled to summary judgment dismissing action for judgment declaring that they were obligated to defend and indemnify plaintiff in actions arising from accidental release of gasoline from 2 of plaintiff's petroleum storage facilities into groundwater, which then migrated underneath neighboring properties, as plaintiff failed to sustain its burden of showing that discharge of pollutants was "sudden" within meaning of exception to pollution exclusion clauses of defendants' policies where underlying complaints (and plaintiff's own version of occurrences) alleged that petroleum leaks occurred continuously over period of many years, suggesting opposite of suddenness. Northville Indus. Corp. v National Union Fire Ins. Co., 89 N.Y.2d 621, 657 N.Y.S.2d 564, 679 N.E.2d 1044, 1997 N.Y. LEXIS 306 (N.Y. 1997).

Insurer was not required to defend or indemnify a car owner and his sons under an automobile insurance policy where the policy only insured permissive users and sworn police statements rebutted the presumption that the driver was driving with the owner's consent and established a lack of permission for the driver to operate the vehicle. N.Y. Cent. Mut. Fire Ins. Co. v Nationwide Mut. Ins. Co., 307 A.D.2d 449, 761 N.Y.S.2d 730, 2003 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7694 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2003).

Insurance companies owed no duty to defend town in federal action for dumping of chemical and industrial wastes at landfill from 1970 to 1984, and in proceeding by Department of Environmental Conservation, since there was no "occurrence" within meaning of insurance policies where (1) insurance policies defined "occurrence" to require injury or damage that was neither expected nor intended, (2) complaint in federal action alleged that town knew or should have known that disposal of chemical and industrial wastes would result into their release into environment, and (3) town was aware of problems at landfill as early as 1969. County of Broome v Aetna Casualty & Sur. Co., 146 A.D.2d 337, 540 N.Y.S.2d 620, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5471 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), app. denied, 74 N.Y.2d 614, 547 N.Y.S.2d 848, 547 N.E.2d 103, 1989 N.Y. LEXIS 3164 (N.Y. 1989).

Insurers had no duty to defend or indemnify insureds in nuisance action alleging that environmental damage was caused when chemicals improperly buried by corporate insured at its facility were carelessly removed since comprehensive general liability policies defined "occurrence" as unexpected, unintentional accident, and it was alleged that insureds "knew or should have known that the manner in which wastes were disposed of would result in their release into the environment"; such allegation allowed for no interpretation that would bring it within coverage afforded by policies. Moreau v Orkin Exterminating Co., 165 A.D.2d 415, 568 N.Y.S.2d 466, 1991 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4275 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1991).

Liability arising out of long-term, intentional disposal of insured's industrial waste was not covered under "sudden and accidental" exception to pollution exclusion clause in insurance policies; further, in construing effect of second clause excepting discharges "which [are] neither intended nor expected," Supreme Court properly chose to read such clause out of exclusion rather than reading exclusion out of policy so that second clause was simply redundant surplusage and clarification that only unexpected and unintended discharges were excepted from exclusion. Borg-Warner Corp. v Insurance Co. of North America, 174 A.D.2d 24, 577 N.Y.S.2d 953, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 109 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), app. denied, 80 N.Y.2d 753, 587 N.Y.S.2d 905, 600 N.E.2d 632, 1992 N.Y. LEXIS 1631 (N.Y. 1992).

Insurer had no duty to defend and indemnify oil company in action for injuries sustained when plaintiffs' kerosene heater exploded due to allegedly contaminated kerosene where policy issued to oil company was automobile liability policy covering truck used by company to transport kerosene, policy applied to accidents "resulting from the ownership, maintenance or use of a covered auto," and oil company failed to demonstrate that plaintiff's injuries were so caused. U.S. Oil Refining & Marketing Corp. v Aetna Casualty & Surety Co., 181 A.D.2d 768, 581 N.Y.S.2d 822, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3737 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1992).

General liability insurance carrier for tenants was not required to defend or indemnify tenants in action by landlord which alleged conversion of furnishings and personal property of landlord since insurance policy did not cover liability for theft or conversion by insured or others. Holman v Transamerica Ins. Co., 183 A.D.2d 589, 584 N.Y.S.2d 23, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7430 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1992), aff'd, 81 N.Y.2d 1026, 599 N.Y.S.2d 913, 616 N.E.2d 499, 1993 N.Y. LEXIS 1709 (N.Y. 1993).

Insurance company was not required to indemnify supermarket in action alleging that supermarket solicited and abetted one of its employees to commit perjury, and that supermarket committed fraudulent misrepresentation and made false statements, where insurance policy required payment for damages attributable to bodily injury or property damage caused by "occurrence," which was defined as "an accident...which results in bodily injury or property damage." Dan's Supreme Supermarket v American Int'l Group, 210 A.D.2d 59, 619 N.Y.S.2d 47, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12441 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1994).

Insurers was not obligated to defend and indemnify golf club in action for injuries sustained when golf cart in which plaintiff was riding flipped over where policy provided coverage for risks associated with maintenance and operation of golf carts, and sole allegation of negligence was that club negligently and carelessly maintained cart path and area adjacent thereto in dangerous, hazardous, and unsafe condition; such allegation related to premises liability and not to operation or maintenance of golf cart, which was risk covered under policy. Montammy Golf Club v Bruedan Corp., 210 A.D.2d 591, 620 N.Y.S.2d 153, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11866 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1994).

Actions of insured's wife in turning vehicle around, accelerating, and striking decedent with enough force to crush his skull could not be deemed "an accident" within meaning of automobile insurance policy; thus, insurer was entitled to summary judgment declaring that it had no duty to defend and indemnify wife in wrongful death action. Allstate Ins. Allstate Ins. Co. v Bostic, 228 A.D.2d 628, 646 N.Y.S.2d 128, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7430 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1996).

Insurer had no duty to defend and indemnify insured since sexual molestation allegations in underlying action did not constitute accidental "occurrence" under policies issued to insured; inclusion of action sounding in negligent training and supervision did not alter fact that operative acts giving rise to any recovery were intentional sexual assaults. Public Serv. Mut. Ins. Co. v Camp Raleigh, Inc., 233 A.D.2d 273, 650 N.Y.S.2d 136, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12144 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1996), app. denied, 90 N.Y.2d 801, 660 N.Y.S.2d 554, 683 N.E.2d 19, 1997 N.Y. LEXIS 1575 (N.Y. 1997).

Acts alleged in underlying action sounding in sexual harassment, retaliatory discharge, and assault were intentional acts and thus did not constitute "occurrence" within meaning of general liability policies in question, which defined "occurrence" as "accident, including continuous or repeated exposure to substantially the same general harmful conditions"; thus, court properly granted insurer's summary judgment motion declaring that it had no duty to defend or indemnify insured. Green Chimneys Sch. for Little Folk v National Union Fire Ins. Co., 244 A.D.2d 387, 664 N.Y.S.2d 320, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11269 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1997).

Plaintiffs, insured's son and granddaughter, were residents in insured's household where it was uncontested that they had been living at insured premises for 2 years, they had no separate or other residence, they used that address as their own in school, police, and medical records, and they had no concrete plans of moving to any other specific residence; thus, court properly declared that insurer had no duty to defend or indemnify insured in underlying personal injury in action brought against him by plaintiffs since coverage under policy did not apply to liability for bodily injuries sustained by residents of insured's household who were relatives. Commercial Mut. Ins. Co. v Wagschall, 256 A.D.2d 300, 681 N.Y.S.2d 317, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13163 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1998).

Lease between school district (named insured) and childcare service (additional insured) did not constitute "insured contract" under policy which contained provision stating that its exclusions were not applicable if insured's liability arose under "insured contract"; thus, court erred in declaring that insurer had obligation to defend and indemnify school district in third-party action brought by childcare service against school district. State Ins. Fund v Hermitage Ins. Co., 256 A.D.2d 329, 681 N.Y.S.2d 354, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13168 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1998).

Insurer was properly granted summary judgment declaring that it was not obligated to defend or indemnify its insured in underlying action for injuries allegedly sustained in motor vehicle accident while underlying plaintiff was riding as passenger in taxicab driven by insured's employee since policy at issue did not cover injuries which "arose out of" automobile accidents, but instead was limited to premises liability. Steinblatt v Reco, 256 A.D.2d 571, 685 N.Y.S.2d 69, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 14031 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1998).

Court properly granted insurer's summary judgment motion declaring that it was not obligated to defend or indemnify its insured in underlying personal injury action, even though insured pled guilty to first degree reckless endangerment in criminal action based on same incident, where there were no facts in complaint or otherwise to suggest that incident was not result of intentional conduct, insured's statement during his deposition intimating that he did not intend to injure underlying plaintiff was conclusory, unsupported, and not credible as matter of law, and cause of action in complaint alleging negligence was conclusory and unsupported by any facts. Pennsylvania Millers Mut. Ins. Co. v Rigo, 256 A.D.2d 769, 681 N.Y.S.2d 414, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13334 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1998).

Insurer was entitled to summary judgment, and was properly declared not to be obligated to defend and indemnify its insured, where it submitted sufficient evidence to establish that injuries at issue were not caused by "occurrence" as defined in homeowners policy, and plaintiff failed to raise issue of fact with respect thereto. Diviney v Aetna Life & Cas. Co., 257 A.D.2d 643, 682 N.Y.S.2d 675, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 602 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1999).

Insurer was entitled to summary judgment declaring that it had no duty to defend or indemnify insured, under either workers' compensation or business owner's liability policy, in underlying action arising from sexual assaults allegedly committed by insured's employees; inclusion in underlying complaint of cause of action for negligent hiring, and other causes of action, did not alter fact that operative acts giving rise to recovery were alleged sexual assaults. General Accident Ins. Co. v 35 Jackson Ave. Corp., 258 A.D.2d 616, 685 N.Y.S.2d 774, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1437 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1999).

Motor vehicle insurer was entitled to summary judgment declaring that it was not obligated to provide defense in underlying action against motor vehicle passenger who leaned out of moving vehicle and shoved plaintiff from his bicycle, causing him to fall and sustain injuries, because passenger was not "insured person" as he was not "using" vehicle at time of accident and, moreover, his conduct amounted to intentional act and thus was excluded from coverage under policy in question. Morris v Allstate Ins. Co., 261 A.D.2d 457, 690 N.Y.S.2d 102, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4737 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1999).

Court should have granted plaintiff's summary judgment motion declaring that it was not obligated to defend or indemnify its insured in underlying action on basis of provision in insurance policy excluding coverage for injuries to insured's employees where, inter alia, defendant had obtained judgment in its favor in bankruptcy court by taking position that injured person was insured's employee, and Workers' Compensation Board had ruled that injured person was insured's employee. Excelsior Ins. Co. v Antretter Contr. Corp., 262 A.D.2d 124, 693 N.Y.S.2d 100, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6795 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1999).

Insurer was properly granted summary judgment declaring that it had no duty defend or indemnify named insured's adoptive son in underlying action arising from automobile accident since automobile in question did not fall under either category of being "newly acquired" car or "non-owned" car within meaning of insurance policy. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. v Bentley, 262 A.D.2d 739, 691 N.Y.S.2d 603, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6527 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1999).

Insurers should have been granted summary judgment declaring that they had no duty to defend or indemnify their insured in underlying wrongful death action since there was no coverage for decedent's injuries and death under provisions of insurance policies in light of fact that insured was convicted of causing death of decedent, who was unarmed, by shooting him once in abdomen and twice in back, with jury rejecting insured's justification defense. Hartford Cas. Ins. Co. v Pennington, 262 A.D.2d 1014, 692 N.Y.S.2d 534, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7225 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't), app. denied, 94 N.Y.2d 757, 704 N.Y.S.2d 532, 725 N.E.2d 1094, 1999 N.Y. LEXIS 4031 (N.Y. 1999).

Insurers were not required to defend or indemnify school district in connection with underlying action alleging that teacher had assaulted and sexually abused 3 students where operative acts of assault and sexual abuse were intentional and thus were not "occurrence" covered by policies, even though complaint in underlying action alleged only negligent hiring, retention, and supervision by school district, and even though teacher's conduct was beyond scope of his employment. Sweet Home Cent. Sch. Dist. v Aetna Commer. Ins. Co., 263 A.D.2d 949, 695 N.Y.S.2d 445, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7910 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1999).

Court erred in declaring that insurer was obligated to defend and indemnify its insured in underlying action for injuries allegedly caused by exposure to lead-based paint chips and flakes where "Coverage A" of policy provided that coverage was subject to all applicable exclusions in primary policy or policies, and primary policy, which was issued for same period as umbrella policy, stated that "this insurance does not apply to any liability or bodily injury or personal injury arising out of exposure to, ingestion of lead paint or any substance or matter containing lead paint or the residue of lead paint"; court's interpretation extending coverage for excluded loss under "Coverage B" of umbrella policy effectively negated clause incorporating exclusions in primary policy in "Coverage A" and left that provision without force and effect. Westview Assocs. v Guaranty Nat'l Ins. Co., 264 A.D.2d 307, 693 N.Y.S.2d 138, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8602 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1999), rev'd, 95 N.Y.2d 334, 717 N.Y.S.2d 75, 740 N.E.2d 220, 2000 N.Y. LEXIS 2928 (N.Y. 2000).

Court properly declared that insurer had no duty to defend or indemnify property management company sued by homeowners' association to recover funds allegedly embezzled by company's employee, since policy covered only damages incurred because of bodily injury or property damage cause by "occurrence," defined as accident; allegation of company's negligent hiring and supervision of employee was insufficient to actuate coverage. Shared-Interest Mgmt. Inc. v Travelers Prop. Cas. Corp., 265 A.D.2d 622, 695 N.Y.S.2d 632, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10318 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1999).

Insurer was entitled to summary judgment dismissing action for breach of advertising injury clause of commercial general liability policy where (1) policy covered claim for copyright infringement only insofar as such claim arose from insured's advertising of goods, products, or services, (2) complaint in underlying action, for which insured sought to recover its defense and settlement costs, alleged copyright infringement only by reason of insured's manufacture and sale of goods, and (3) no advertising injury having been alleged in underlying action, advertising injury clause did not apply. Quitman Mfg. Co. v Northbrook Nat'l Ins. Co., 266 A.D.2d 105, 698 N.Y.S.2d 469, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11660 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1999).

Insurer was not obligated to defend or indemnify its insured in underlying negligence action in which patron in insured's nightclub sought damages for injuries sustained when he was shot in parking lot of club by fellow patron who was intoxicated since assault and battery exclusion was part of both general liability policy and liquor liability policy covering insured's premises, and exclusions encompassed claims "arising out of" assault and battery caused by either intentional conduct or negligence of insured. Sphere Drake Ins. Co., PLC v Block 7206 Corp., 265 A.D.2d 78, 705 N.Y.S.2d 623, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3259 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2000).

Commercial liability insurer was properly granted summary judgment declaring that it was not obligated to defend or indemnify insureds in underlying personal injury action alleging that they negligently operated ride known as "the Whip," where insureds had purchased policy covering ride known as "the Moonwalk" and documentary evidence established that policy was not amended to include "Whip" ride prior to date of accident. Progressive Cas. Ins. Co. v Yodice, 276 A.D.2d 540, 714 N.Y.S.2d 715, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10151 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2000).

Insurer was not required to defend or indemnify insured in underlying action where (1) general commercial liability policy covered only bodily injury and property damage, (2) underlying action was for economic loss resulting from need to remove asbestos-containing adhesive from school, (3) underlying complaint alleged causes of action for lost profits, extra costs due to delay and performance of extra work, breach of contract, breach of warranty, negligence, negligent representation, fraud, and false advertising, and (4) plaintiff in underlying action did not own school at which adhesive was used, and thus did not seek to recover for property damage. Structural Bldg. Prods. Corp. v Business Ins. Agency, Inc., 281 A.D.2d 617, 722 N.Y.S.2d 559, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3055 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2001).

Insurer was not required to defend or indemnify insured in connection with underlying cause of action alleging that insured engaged in false advertising and misleading trade practices when it made written statements that its adhesive was asbestos-free where (1) "Advertising Liability Offense" section of general commercial liability policy provided coverage for damages from "advertising offense," (2) that term was defined as "injury incurred in the course of the [insured's] advertising activities" if injury arose from "libel, slander, defamation, violation of a right to privacy, piracy, unfair completion or infringement of copyright, title or slogan," and (3) underlying complaint did not allege any facts that would bring it within policy coverage so defined. Structural Bldg. Prods. Corp. v Business Ins. Agency, Inc., 281 A.D.2d 617, 722 N.Y.S.2d 559, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3055 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2001).

Insurance carrier was entitled to summary judgment declaring that it was not obligated to defend and indemnify cooperative corporation in underlying action by holder of "unsold shares" in apartment, alleging that cooperative's board of directors refused to allow her to sublease apartment, since "Directors and Officers Error or Omissions Liability Endorsement" from insurer expressly limited recovery to instances when officer or director was entitled to indemnification from corporation, or was legally liable for actual or asserted wrongful act, but no such showing could be made in instant case because no directors or officers were named as defendants in underlying action. 34th Ave. Apt. Corp. v Nationwide Mut. Ins. Co., 283 A.D.2d 604, 725 N.Y.S.2d 98, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5454 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2001).

Defendant insurer was entitled to summary judgment declaring that it was not obligated to defend and indemnify Toronto art dealer under policy issued to New York art dealer which covered New York dealer's employees for acts within scope of their employment, as it could not be said that New York dealer and Toronto dealer had employer-employee relationship with respect to underlying action, which arose from Toronto dealer's unsuccessful attempt to purchase certain painting at auction on New York dealer' behalf, where Toronto dealer worked exclusively from his own premises, had no fixed work hours, paid his own expenses, was not paid any salary and was not provided with insurance or training, and New York dealer did not exercise control over methods used by Toronto dealer but rather gave only general direction as to amount that Toronto dealer could spend on particular item. Curry v Atl. Mut. Ins. Co., 283 A.D.2d 937, 723 N.Y.S.2d 784, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4574 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't), app. denied, 96 N.Y.2d 721, 733 N.Y.S.2d 373, 759 N.E.2d 372, 2001 N.Y. LEXIS 3169 (N.Y. 2001).

Insurer was properly granted summary judgment declaring that it was not obligated to defend or indemnify insured for loss or liability stemming from oil seepage at or from insured's property since fuel oil was pollutant within meaning and scope of subject insurance policy's pollution exclusion clause. Crane v Reliance Nat'l Indem. Ins. Co., 287 A.D.2d 332, 731 N.Y.S.2d 375, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9639 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2001).

Because no judgment was entered in an underlying action against the insured, a non-party to the action and who was not operating the vehicle on the day of the accident in Maryland, because the underlying action was conclusive as to the identity of the vehicle's owner and operator, and because N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(d) did not apply to out-of-state accidents, the insurer was entitled to summary judgment due to a lack of coverage. Perkins v Allstate Ins. Co., 51 A.D.3d 647, 858 N.Y.S.2d 238, 2008 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4085 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2008).

Order declaring defendant insurer obligated neither to co-insure a contractor nor to reimburse plaintiff insurer for defense and indemnification was affirmed; the duty to disclaim as soon as reasonably possible under N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(d) was not triggered where the request was for contribution by a co-insurer. Plaintiff insurer received notice of the accident, conducted an investigation, undertook the defense of the lawsuit, and managed the defense on its own for four years, and had not been prejudiced by any late disclaimer by defendant insurer. AIU Ins. Co. v Investors Ins. Co., 17 A.D.3d 259, 793 N.Y.S.2d 412, 2005 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4282 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2005).

District Court properly declined to broaden Lavanant v General Acci. Ins. Co., 79 N.Y.2d 623, 584 N.Y.S.2d 744, 595 N.E.2d 819, 1992 N.Y. LEXIS 1534 (N.Y. 1992).

180. — — —Within particular exclusion

Insured's criminal conviction of second degree manslaughter for recklessly cleaning shotgun that resulted in accidental death of victim did not collaterally block civil litigation of issue whether victim's death could, in language of homeowner's liability policy, "reasonably be expected to result" from insured's acts since, under one reasonable syllogism, person may engage in behavior that involves calculated risk without expecting that accident will occur; thus, insurer was not entitled to summary judgment in its action seeking declaratory judgment that it had no duty to defend or indemnify insured. Allstate Ins. Co. v Zuk, 78 N.Y.2d 41, 571 N.Y.S.2d 429, 574 N.E.2d 1035, 1991 N.Y. LEXIS 820 (N.Y. 1991).

Harm that resulted to children from sexual assaults allegedly committed on them by baby-sitter's husband in his home was harm "intentionally caused" as matter of law within meaning of husband's homeowner's insurance policy, and thus insurer was not required to defend and indemnify husband and baby-sitter from whatever damages might be recovered in victims' lawsuit, since such harm was inherent in nature of acts alleged. Allstate Ins. Co. v Mugavero, 79 N.Y.2d 153, 581 N.Y.S.2d 142, 589 N.E.2d 365, 1992 N.Y. LEXIS 204 (N.Y. 1992).

Insurance carrier was entitled to summary judgment declaring that it was not obligated to defend insured in tort action based on, inter alia, respondeat superior, where plaintiff alleged that security guard employed at insured's nightclub "negligently, carelessly and recklessly" shot him, since (1) insurance policy unambiguously excluded suits based on assault and battery, and (2) claims against insured were all based on assault and battery, notwithstanding security guard's lack of intent to cause actual harm that resulted. U.S. Underwriters Ins. Co. v Val-Blue Corp., 85 N.Y.2d 821, 623 N.Y.S.2d 834, 647 N.E.2d 1342, 1995 N.Y. LEXIS 126 (N.Y. 1995).

Insurer was not required to defend or indemnify a car owner and his sons under an homeowner's insurance policy where the policy contained exclusions for criminal acts and for injury arising out of the use of a motor vehicle and the parents of the deceased, who died as a result of a car accident, noted in their complaint that the cause of action against the sons was based on their illegal providing of alcoholic beverages. N.Y. Cent. Mut. Fire Ins. Co. v Nationwide Mut. Ins. Co., 307 A.D.2d 449, 761 N.Y.S.2d 730, 2003 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7694 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2003).

Insurance carrier was entitled to summary judgment declaring that it had no duty to defend or indemnify city and city police department in underlying action alleging that police department was negligent in its handling of report of child abuse, where allegations in complaint fell within scope of exclusionary clause in insurance policy, stating that "This insurance does not apply to activities of any law enforcement personnel and/or agency." National Union Fire Ins. Co. v Pardo, 208 A.D.2d 702, 617 N.Y.S.2d 504, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9959 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1994).

In action by truck driver against restaurant for injuries he sustained when he fell though open trap door into basement while preparing to move shipment of beer into basement, insurer of truck's lessor would not be obligated to defend restaurant where policy barred coverage to anyone other than lessees, borrowers and employees of named insured while moving property to or from covered vehicle. Coburn v Aetna Casualty & Sur. Co., 212 A.D.2d 752, 623 N.Y.S.2d 599, 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2194 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1995).

Release of 750,000 gallons of pollutant through improperly installed elbow in underground piping system, and release of 1.2 million gallons of pollutant through pin-hole leak in pipe, were not "sudden" discharges within meaning of exception to pollution exclusion clause in comprehensive general liability insurance policy, and insurers were entitled to summary judgment declaring that they were not obligated to defend insured in actions arising from such discharges, where only claim as to temporal aspect of discharges was that leak occurred "for many months or years without detection" and "discharge occurred continuously over a number of years". Northville Indus. Corp. v National Union Fire Ins. Co., 218 A.D.2d 19, 636 N.Y.S.2d 359, 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13973 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1995), aff'd, 89 N.Y.2d 621, 657 N.Y.S.2d 564, 679 N.E.2d 1044, 1997 N.Y. LEXIS 306 (N.Y. 1997), in part, 1997 N.Y. LEXIS 31 (N.Y. Jan. 9, 1997).

Insurer was entitled to summary judgment declaring that it had no duty to defend insured under homeowner's policy in civil action in which rape victim sought to recover damages for physical and emotional injuries, as harm that resulted to victim from sexual assault fell within policy's exclusion of liability coverage for injuries "expected and intended by insured"; mere allegation in fifth cause of action of victim's complaint, that victim's injuries were "unintended results" of insured's intentional acts, did not convert cause of action from one sounding in intentional tort to one sounding in negligence so as to trigger insurer's duty to defend, especially since that cause of action alleged that victim was physically unable to consent at time of intentional acts. Pistolesi v Nationwide Mut. Fire Ins. Co., 223 A.D.2d 94, 644 N.Y.S.2d 819, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7251 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), app. denied, 88 N.Y.2d 816, 651 N.Y.S.2d 17, 673 N.E.2d 1244, 1996 N.Y. LEXIS 3306 (N.Y. 1996).

Insurer was entitled to summary judgment declaring that it was not obligated to defend or indemnify its insured in underlying action brought against insured for injuries sustained by police officer in process of arresting insured where insured was originally charged with second degree assault and subsequently pleaded guilty to third degree assault under CLS Penal § 120.00(2), and policy provided that there was no coverage for bodily injuries which were "expected or intended by the insured." Utica Fire Ins. Co. v Shelton, 226 A.D.2d 705, 641 N.Y.S.2d 864, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4590 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1996).

Insurer had no duty to defend, negotiate, settle, or indemnify village as to federal action brought against it, wherein it was found to have violated Federal Fair Housing Act when it amended zoning law to purposefully prohibit persons with AIDS from residing in boarding house, since policy exclusion denied coverage "[f]or damages arising out of or in any way connected with the actions of any administrative board...[that arises] out of...Land Use Planning; or Municipal Zoning." Village of Waterford v Reliance Ins. Co., 226 A.D.2d 887, 640 N.Y.S.2d 671, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3723 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1996).

Insurance company was entitled to summary judgment declaring that it had no duty to defend and indemnify insured's son in underlying personal injury action where company timely disclaimed liability on basis of unambiguous exclusion for "any vehicle, other than your covered auto, which is...owned by any family member." Allen v Commercial Union Ins. Cos., 232 A.D.2d 949, 649 N.Y.S.2d 354, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11238 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1996).

Insurer was entitled to summary judgment declaring that it had no duty to defend or indemnify insureds in underlying defamation action since such claim fell squarely within policy exclusion of knowingly false statements, underlying complaint being restricted to charges of malicious and purposeful intent; duty to defend could not be triggered by insureds' mere speculation that additional facts showing reckless or negligent defamation might be developed at later time. Transportation Ins. Co. v

Hugo Neu & Sons, Inc., 233 A.D.2d 234, 650 N.Y.S.2d 112, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11989 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1996).

Insurer was entitled to summary judgment declaring that it had no duty to defend or indemnify insured in underlying action where policy contained exclusion for damages arising from use of "motor vehicles or all other motorized land conveyances," and underlying action would not have been brought "but for" insured's use of bulldozer. St. Paul Fire & Marine Ins. Co. v Home Ins. Co., 233 A.D.2d 388, 650 N.Y.S.2d 567, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11563 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1996).

Insurer was not obligated to defend or indemnify insured in underlying defamation action alleging intentional, malicious conduct undertaken to cause injury to other party since policy in question specifically excluded from coverage injury that was expected or intended by insured. Gottlieb v New York Cent. Mut. Fire Ins. Co., 235 A.D.2d 394, 652 N.Y.S.2d 79, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 165 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1997).

Court erred in declaring that insurer was obligated to defendant insureds in underlying action alleging intentional infliction of emotional distress and prima facie tort since policy in question expressly provided that it did "not apply to bodily injury or property damage..which is expected or intended by the insured." Tranchina v Government Emples. Ins. Co., 235 A.D.2d 471, 652 N.Y.S.2d 1010, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 423 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1997).

Insurer was properly granted summary judgment declaring that it was not required to defend and indemnify insureds in underlying action to recover for alleged contamination of neighboring landowners' well by liquified cow manure that insureds had applied to their land as fertilizer since liquid manure constituted "waste material," "pollutant," or "contaminant" within meaning of pollution exclusion clause when, as was alleged in underlying action, substance had leached into groundwater and contaminated well on adjoining property. Space v Farm Family Mut. Ins. Co., 235 A.D.2d 797, 652 N.Y.S.2d 357, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 302 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1997).

Insurer was not obligated to defend or indemnify insured for intentional assault or intentional infliction of emotional distress where policy excluded coverage for bodily injury or property damage "which is expected or intended by any insured." Altamore v Aetna Cas. & Sur. Co., 238 A.D.2d 455, 657 N.Y.S.2d 903, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4038 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't), app. denied, 91 N.Y.2d 801, 666 N.Y.S.2d 563, 689 N.E.2d 533, 1997 N.Y. LEXIS 4109 (N.Y. 1997).

Court should have granted insurer's motion for summary judgment declaring that it was not obligated to defend or indemnify insureds' son in underlying personal injury action where policy provided that it did not "cover any bodily injury...which may reasonably be expected to result from the intentional or criminal acts of an insured person or which are in fact intended by an insured person," and it was clear underlying plaintiff's injuries were to be reasonably expected by insured's son when he punched and kicked underlying plaintiff in face. Allstate Ins. Co. v Ruggiero, 239 A.D.2d 369, 658 N.Y.S.2d 321, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5125 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1997).

Homeowner's policy exclusion of coverage for bodily injury arising out of transmission of "communicable disease" by insured was neither ambiguous nor unduly broad, and thus insurer was entitled to summary judgment declaring that it had no duty to defend and indemnify plaintiff's action for personal injuries sustained as result of transmission of HIV infection to him by insured. Plaza v General Assur. Co., 244 A.D.2d 238, 664 N.Y.S.2d 444, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11722 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1997), app. denied, 92 N.Y.2d 805, 677 N.Y.S.2d 781, 700 N.E.2d 320, 1998 N.Y. LEXIS 2292 (N.Y. 1998), cert. denied, 525 U.S. 1122, 119 S. Ct. 905, 142 L. Ed. 2d 903, 1999 U.S. LEXIS 773 (U.S. 1999).

It being contrary to public policy to insure against liability arising directly against insured from his or her violation of criminal statute, clause in grandmother's homeowners insurance policy excluding injuries "expected or intended by the insured" had to be construed as excluding coverage of liability for grandson's striking of another person where grandson was convicted of second degree assault for that act. Litrenta v Republic Ins., 245 A.D.2d 344, 665 N.Y.S.2d 679, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12808 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1997).

Court should have granted insurer's motion for summary judgment declaring that it did not have duty to defend or indemnify its insureds in underlying action, which alleged that "bouncers" employed by insureds' restaurant "did not control or stop" certain intoxicated patrons who "wrongfully, unlawfully, maliciously, and without valid reasons or probable cause (struck (plaintiff therein)) to and about his body," since any liability which might possibly have been imposed on restaurant fell squarely within terms of policy exclusion as to "claims arising out of Assault and Battery, whether caused...at the instigation of...or omission by the Insured (its) employees, patrons or any cause whatsoever." Dudley's Restaurant v United Nat'l Ins. Co., 247 A.D.2d 425, 670 N.Y.S.2d 36, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1099 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1998).

Insurer was not obligated to defend or indemnify its insured, condominium board, in action alleging that board was negligent in failing to rebuild condominium in timely manner following fire since property damage exclusion in policy provided that insurer would not cover any claim that was "directly or indirectly, based on or attributable to, arising out of, resulting from or in any manner related to...Property Damage including loss of use thereof." Board of Managers of Yardarm Condo. II v Federal Ins. Co., 247 A.D.2d 499, 669 N.Y.S.2d 332, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1485 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1998).

Insurer was entitled to summary judgment declaring that it had no duty to defend and indemnify insured in underlying action for assault, battery, negligent hiring, and negligent supervision where intentional assault fell within policy language excluding coverage for "bodily injury...expected or intended from the standpoint of the insured," and inclusion in underlying complaint of causes of action for negligent hiring and negligent supervision did not alter fact that operative act evoking any recovery was assault. Mattress Discounters, Inc. v United States Fire Ins. Co., 251 A.D.2d 384, 674 N.Y.S.2d 106, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6618 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't), app. denied, 92 N.Y.2d 817, 684 N.Y.S.2d 488, 707 N.E.2d 443, 1998 N.Y. LEXIS 4273 (N.Y. 1998).

Court improperly granted insured's summary judgment motion declaring that insurer was obligated to defend and indemnify its insured in underlying breach of contract action, and court should have granted insurer's cross-motion for summary judgment on its counterclaims seeking judgment declaring that it had no such duty to defend or indemnify where exclusion in insurance policy excluded property damage at issue in underlying action, and fact that another exclusion may have been inconsistent therewith was irrelevant. Sampson v Johnston, 272 A.D.2d 956, 708 N.Y.S.2d 210, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8118 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 2000).

Insurer was under no duty to defend and indemnify insured in underlying federal action where (1) complaint in that action, alleging claims of trademark infringement against insured, fell wholly within insurance policy exclusion of advertising injury "arising out of oral or written publication of material; if done by or at the direction of the insured with knowledge of its falsity," and (2) there was express finding in federal action, before it was settled, that insured was "serial infringer" that had "deliberately sought to confuse the public" by selling goods nearly identical to those of competitor. A.J. Sheepskin & Leather Co. v Colonia Ins. Co., 273 A.D.2d 107, 709 N.Y.S.2d 82, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6641 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2000).

Court erred in declaring that alcohol exclusion provision of insurance policy did not apply, and thus that insurer was obligated to defend or indemnify restaurant owner and its secretary in underlying action where secretary provided champagne to underage employees, including employee who was decorating restaurant after business hours for Christmas holidays and who subsequently operated motor vehicle in intoxicated state, resulting in fatal car accident; under circumstances, alcohol was furnished to minor in furtherance of business purpose. General Accident Ins. Group v C & H Pizza Corp., 284 A.D.2d 370, 726 N.Y.S.2d 133, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6083 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't), app. denied, 97 N.Y.2d 601, 735 N.Y.S.2d 490, 760 N.E.2d 1286, 2001 N.Y. LEXIS 3214 (N.Y. 2001), app. denied, 97 N.Y.2d

601, 735 N.Y.S.2d 490, 760 N.E.2d 1286, 2001 N.Y. LEXIS 3215 (N.Y. 2001), app. denied, 97 N.Y.2d 601, 735 N.Y.S.2d 490, 760 N.E.2d 1286, 2001 N.Y. LEXIS 3257 (N.Y. 2001).

Seller of mutual funds was "financial institution" within scope of Banks and Financial Institutions endorsement of comprehensive general liability (CGL) insurance policy, and thus emotional distress claims asserted in underlying actions were not covered under terms of excess policies which excluded such institutions, relieving insurer of duty to defend seller. First Investors Corp. v Liberty Mut. Ins. Co., 152 F.3d 162, 1998 U.S. App. LEXIS 18227 (2d Cir. N.Y. 1998).

As matter of law, Dishonesty Exclusion abrogated any coverage arising from Personal Injury Endorsement, and thus insurer had no duty to defend insureds, where underlying complaint alleged that insureds had provided, at their marina, ostensibly private compartments for bathing and changing while surreptitiously videotaping their female employees and patrons, some of whom were minor children, for subsequent public viewing at insureds' nearby bar; under any common definition of term, these were acts of quintessentially "dishonest character." Commercial Union Assur. Co. v Oak Park Marina, Inc., 198 F.3d 55, 1999 U.S. App. LEXIS 33803 (2d Cir. N.Y. 1999).

Mere fact that insureds got caught by victims of their alleged voyeuristic activity (resulting from installation of video cameras in changing rooms at insureds' marina) did not constitute "unintended...[subsequent] event" sufficient to make resulting damage to victims "accidental," and thus insureds' Bodily Injury Endorsement (which provided coverage for "any and all claims for which [the Assured] may be held liable for damages Commercial Union Assur. Co. v Oak Park Marina, Inc., 198 F.3d 55, 1999 U.S. App. LEXIS 33803 (2d Cir. N.Y. 1999).

181. —Insurer's right to control defense

Medical malpractice insurer was entitled to summary judgment in insured's fraud and breach of contract action for damages arising from unconsented-to settlement of claim following adverse verdict in underlying malpractice trial, despite insured's claim that his professional reputation was hurt by insurer's refusal to appeal, where policy unambiguously gave insurer unconditional right to settle any claim or suit without insured's consent, and settlement was within policy limits. Feliberty v Damon, 72 N.Y.2d 112, 531 N.Y.S.2d 778, 527 N.E.2d 261, 1988 N.Y. LEXIS 1657 (N.Y. 1988).

In actions arising from single car accident in which driver and one passenger were killed and other passenger was injured, court did not abuse its discretion in ordering that private attorney represent estate of driver both in action by passengers against estate and city for damages, and in action by estate against city for damages, and that attorney for driver's motor vehicle insurance carrier would act as consultant only, notwithstanding contention by motor vehicle insurance carrier that close family relationship between driver and passengers raised reasonable fear that family members would collude against it, since potential risk of collusion had to be weighed against actual risk of confusion, and court remained free to increase role of insurance carrier's attorney if collusion became evident during trial. Kallivokas v Athanasatos, 151 A.D.2d 396, 543 N.Y.S.2d 84, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8120 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1989).

In action for declaratory judgment in which general contractor obtained order to compel its insurance company to assume its defense in underlying action brought by owner of project, general contractor would be permitted to continue to choose its own counsel in underlying action where (1) underlying action sounded in both negligence, which was covered by insurance, and contract, which was not, (2) general contractor had attorney of its choice for 3 years because of insurance company's disclaimer, and (3) there were potential conflicts between general contractor and insurance company on how underlying case should be pursued. Major Builders Corp. v Commercial Union Ins. Co., 155 A.D.2d 267, 546 N.Y.S.2d 866, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13862 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1989).

Absent showing that there is conflict of interest between liability insurer and insured, insurer has right to control defense of action brought against insured. Desriusseaux v Val-Roc Truck Corp., 230 A.D.2d 704, 646 N.Y.S.2d 161, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8304 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1996).

There was no conflict of interest necessitating substitution of defendant's insurer-assigned counsel as defendant and his insurer shared single common interest in defeating plaintiff's claim, and defendant's disagreement with trial counsel regarding trial or settlement strategy did not warrant his retention of counsel of his choice at insurer's expense. Steinman v Silbowitz, 276 A.D.2d 299, 714 N.Y.S.2d 209, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10553 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2000).

182. —Insurer estopped from refusing to defend

Plaintiff was entitled to summary judgment declaring that homeowner's insurance carrier was obligated to defend and, if necessary, indemnify bartender who allegedly served liquor to visibly intoxicated individual, who thereafter drove his car into utility pole, injuring plaintiff, where bartender was insured individual under homeowner's policy, and insurance carrier denied coverage based solely on policy's "business pursuits" exclusion, but timely written notice of its disclaimer was not given to injured plaintiff. Markevics v Liberty Mut. Ins. Co., 97 N.Y.2d 646, 735 N.Y.S.2d 865, 761 N.E.2d 557, 2001 N.Y. LEXIS 3411 (N.Y. 2001).

Court erred in granting insured's motion for summary judgment declaring that insurer was estopped to discontinue defense of underlying personal injury action against insured where insurer discovered 1 ½ years after undertaking defense that plaintiff had allowed policy to lapse before accident by failing to pay premiums, since estoppel cannot be invoked to create coverage when there is no coverage under insurance policy because policy was not in existence at time of accident, and such rule applies even where insurer assumes control over defense of action for appreciable period of time before it disclaims obligation to defend or indemnify. Tantillo v U.S. Fidelity & Guaranty Co., 155 A.D.2d 970, 547 N.Y.S.2d 781, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 14843 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1989).

Court properly determined that, although employees of defendant Brooklyn Navy Yard (BNY) were negligent in connection with injuries sustained by plaintiff on portion of BNY premises leased by defendant tenant under lease which did not require tenant to indemnify BNY for BNY's own negligence, tenant's insurer was equitably estopped from denying coverage where it assumed BNY's defense pursuant to provision of lease requiring tenant to provide such defense, since construction of lease to require tenant to defend BNY but not to provide indemnification would create untenable conflict of interest in that it would permit insurer to control BNY's case, allow finding of BNY's negligence, which would clearly be in tenant's and insurer's interest, and thereafter raise such negligence as defense to BNY's indemnification claim. Donato v New York, 156 A.D.2d 505, 548 N.Y.S.2d 779, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 15664 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1989), app. denied, 75 N.Y.2d 709, 556 N.Y.S.2d 247, 555 N.E.2d 619, 1990 N.Y. LEXIS 953 (N.Y. 1990).

As general rule, where insurer defends action on behalf of its insured with knowledge of defense to coverage, it is thereafter estopped from asserting that policy does not cover claim, since notice of disclaimer must be timely to reserve insurer's right, while defending action, to claim that policy does not cover situation at issue. Hartford Accident & Indem. Co. v Carson C. Peck Mem'l Hosp., 162 A.D.2d 659, 558 N.Y.S.2d 959, 1990 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8184 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1990).

Insurer was equitably estopped from denying coverage where, despite its prompt receipt of underlying complaint, which clearly indicated that accident in question occurred outside of its coverage period, it nevertheless defended party in underlying action for more than 3 years before bringing instant judgment action, representing party in all pretrial matters and certifying matter as ready for trial. Indemnity Ins. Co. of N. Am. v Charter Oak Ins. Co., 235 A.D.2d 521, 653 N.Y.S.2d 135, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 726 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1997).

Insurer was equitably estopped from denying liability coverage to plaintiffs, who were defendants in underlying personal injury action, regardless of whether insurer knew of plaintiffs' request to be named as additional insureds under policy, where (1) insurer's agent provided plaintiffs with certificate naming them as additional insureds and allowed construction work to proceed in reliance on that certificate, (2) agency agreement specifically provided that agent was authorized to bind insurance, including any policy amendments, for plaintiffs, (3) agent had at least apparent authority to issue subject certificate, and (4) whether agent exceeded its authority or failed to follow proper procedures for adding insureds were matters between insurer and agent. Lenox Realty v Excelsior Ins. Co., 255 A.D.2d 644, 679 N.Y.S.2d 749, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11686 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1998), app. denied, 93 N.Y.2d 807, 691 N.Y.S.2d 2, 712 N.E.2d 1245, 1999 N.Y. LEXIS 1263 (N.Y. 1999).

In action by plaintiff liability insurer seeking declaratory judgment that defendant general liability carrier was obligated to defend and indemnify property owner in underlying premises liability actions, and to recover its costs of defending such actions, defendant was entitled to summary judgment because plaintiff, by assuming defense of underlying actions in 1989 and 1992 without asserting any policy defenses or reserving its right to deny coverage, was equitably estopped as matter of law from denying coverage in 1993 when, upon reviewing liability policy issued to tenant, it discovered that owner was not named as additional insured. Utica Mut. Ins. Co. v 215 W. 91st St. Corp., 283 A.D.2d 421, 724 N.Y.S.2d 758, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4705 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2001).

183. —Duty of excess insurer

Liability insurer for lessee of premises and liability insurer of property owners both had duty to defend action against owners for injuries sustained by person on premises where both policies contained clauses stating insurers were excess carriers; where multiple policies covering same risk purport to be excess, excess coverage clauses cancel each other out and each insurer must contribute in proportion to its insurance limit. Hausman v Royal Ins. Co., 153 A.D.2d 527, 544 N.Y.S.2d 605, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10868 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1989).

Liability insurer's failure to inform insured or insured's excess carrier of insured's possible exposure to liability in excess of primary policy limits on particular claim did not constitute breach of insurer's duty to carry out defense of claim in good faith where there was no evidence that insurer acted deliberately or even recklessly, nothing suggested that insurer put its own interests ahead of insured's, insurer kept insured informed of all relevant facts, and it was insured who had contractual obligation to notify excess carrier "as soon as practicable." Monarch Cortland v Columbia Cas. Co., 224 A.D.2d 135, 646 N.Y.S.2d 904, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8653 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1996), app. denied, 89 N.Y.2d 807, 655 N.Y.S.2d 887, 678 N.E.2d 500, 1997 N.Y. LEXIS 133 (N.Y. 1997).

Excess insurer was not obligated to defend underlying action where loss, including defense costs, could be covered by another policy; while primary insurer's "other insurance" clause provided it was primary unless another policy was also primary, excess insurer's policy provided that it was excess where loss was covered by another policy. Firemen's Ins. Co. v Federal Ins. Co., 233 A.D.2d 193, 649 N.Y.S.2d 700, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11808 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1996), app. denied, 90 N.Y.2d 803, 661 N.Y.S.2d 179, 683 N.E.2d 1053, 1997 N.Y. LEXIS 2244 (N.Y. 1997).

Construction manager and its general liability insurer were entitled to partial summary judgment declaring that sheetmetal contractor's liability insurance carrier was primary insurer required to defend and indemnify construction manager in action by masonry subcontractor's employee, who was injured while performing work that his employer was obligated to perform for sheetmetal contractor, where contractors and subcontractors were contractually required to purchase liability insurance naming construction manager as additional insured, and defendant insurer failed to produce proof that its policy was intended only to provide excess coverage. Tishman Interiors Corp. v Fireman's Fund Ins. Co., 236 A.D.2d 385, 653 N.Y.S.2d 367, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1003 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1997).

Insurance policy providing umbrella and excess coverage did not obligate insurer to defend insured in underlying action for false advertising or to reimburse insured for its attorney fees in defending that action where (1) there was primary insurance covering claims against insured, and thus umbrella coverage part of policy, which required insurer to provide defense, was not implicated, and (2) as to excess insurance coverage, policy in effect on date of insured's alleged acts of false advertising specifically excluded legal expenses from losses that insurer was required to pay. Labatt Brewing Co. v Zurich Ins. Co., 281 A.D.2d 363, 723 N.Y.S.2d 17, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3151 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2001).

184. Oral contract of insurance

The liability of an insurance company may arise on an oral contract made by its duly authorized agent (Hicks v British American Assur. Co. (1900) 162 NY 284, 56 NE 743), and the fact that a written policy was delivered after the accident does not prevent recovery. Giles v Commercial Casualty Ins. Co., 251 A.D. 919, 297 N.Y.S. 546, 1937 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8241 (N.Y. App. Div. 1937), aff'd, 278 N.Y. 480, 15 N.E.2d 71, 278 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 480, 1938 N.Y. LEXIS 1335 (N.Y. 1938).

The judgment against an insurer of the owner of an automobile under this section, will be reversed where the evidence fails to establish that defendant's soliciting agent had authority to bind the defendant by an oral agreement to insure or that the underwriting agent accepted the application. Caccamise v Metropolitan Casualty Ins. Co., 252 A.D. 521, 300 N.Y.S. 487, 1937 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5711 (N.Y. App. Div. 1937).

The statement of an agent to an owner that he was insured as of a day certain was equivalent to an oral contract of insurance, so that the said contract made between the owner and agent in behalf of defendant is presumed to contain provisions of former § 109 [predecessor to former § 167, now § 3420] and this plaintiff may avail himself of the benefits of such provisions and be reimbursed by the company for his damage. Searle v Southern Surety Co., 247 N.Y.S. 340, 138 Misc. 699, 1930 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1737 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1930).

A contract of insurance, even if not in writing, embraces all provisions required by statute to be contained in automobile liability policies certified as issued to provide financial responsibility coverage. Dembitzer v Gilliam, 44 Misc. 2d 487, 254 N.Y.S.2d 47, 1964 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1634 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1964).

Where one claiming to be the agent and representative for an automobile liability insurer apparently has authority from the company to accept premiums and issue policies, and to file "certificates of insurance" with the Motor Vehicle Bureau in its behalf, a motorist whose car injures a pedestrian is entitled to rely on his insurance coverage, although no written policy of insurance was ever issued or delivered by the company itself to the alleged insured. Dembitzer v Gilliam, 44 Misc. 2d 487, 254 N.Y.S.2d 47, 1964 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1634 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1964).

Where insurer was apprised of the insured's desire to be given coverage under a garage liability policy in a letter dated July 27, 1965 and from such date to April 5, 1967, the date of the trial, defendant had not disclaimed coverage, the insurer was required to defend the action brought against the insured. Moore v Fidelity & Casualty Co., 59 Misc. 2d 1012, 302 N.Y.S.2d 674, 1967 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1322 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1967), rev'd, 30 A.D.2d 560, 292 N.Y.S.2d 991, 1968 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3944 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1968).

In an action under predecessor to § 3420 where it appeared that an automobile liability policy did not cover the driver at the time of the accident, the plaintiff could not succeed on a claim of an oral contract of insurance rather than on the written contract where the oral contract asserted was entirely different from that set forth in the complaint The plaintiff did not seek reformation of the written contract and hence, recovery upon an oral contract not referred to in the pleadings was not permissible. Ireland v Firemen's Fund Indem. Co., 115 N.Y.S.2d 762, 1951 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2150 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1951), aff'd, 281 A.D. 1007, 121 N.Y.S.2d 364, 1953 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4075 (N.Y. App. Div. 1953).

185. Cancellation of policy

Automobile liability insurer would not be relieved of responsibility for collision which occurred during period between cancellation of insured's policy and retroactive reinstatement of coverage even though reinstatement was fraudulently induced by insured; however, court's holding—that insurer had right to cancel policy prospectively only—would not prevent insurer from seeking redress against insured for losses resulting from insured's misrepresentation. Liberty Mut. Ins. Co. v McClellan, 127 A.D.2d 767, 512 N.Y.S.2d 161, 1987 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 43248 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1987).

Notice of cancellation sent by automobile insurer to its insured was ineffective under CLS Veh & Tr former § 313(1)(a) where it failed to advise insured that proof of financial security was required to be maintained. Lumbermens Mut. Casualty Co. v Progressive Casualty Ins. Co., 168 A.D.2d 708, 563 N.Y.S.2d 566, 1990 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 14811 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1990).

Insurer did not effectively terminate assigned risk liability policy, even though insured was mailed renewal quote 6 weeks prior to policy's expiration but made no attempt to renew policy, and notice of cancellation was sent and filed appropriately, since renewal notice which preceded termination notice failed to inform insured that he could have remitted his premium to either insurer or producer of record, and renewal notice did not clearly set forth amount insured was required to remit to renew policy. Eveready Ins. Co. v Hadzovic, 182 A.D.2d 818, 582 N.Y.S.2d 508, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6397 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1992).

Insurance company was entitled to summary judgment declaring that it was not obligated to defend or indemnify its former insured in underlying personal injury action, despite claim that insurance company did not comply with CLS Veh & Tr § 313 in effecting termination of policy for nonpayment, since insurance company was not required to give notice of termination to Commissioner of Motor Vehicles where termination was for nonpayment for renewal policy offered after policy had been in effect for more than 6 months. Lloyd v Government Employees' Ins. Co., 204 A.D.2d 407, 612 N.Y.S.2d 47, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4813 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1994).

Insurance policy was not cancelled pursuant to New York Automobile Insurance Plan § 18, and thus insurance carrier was not required to provide notice of right to appeal pursuant to New York Automobile Insurance Plan § 19, where policy was not cancelled because of any problem with eligibility, but because insurance plan was being restructured and insured was obligated to obtain new policy, either on open market or by submission of new application to insurance plan. Liberty Mut. Ins. Co. v Gonzalez, 204 A.D.2d 642, 612 N.Y.S.2d 222, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5481 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't), app. denied, 84 N.Y.2d 811, 622 N.Y.S.2d 914, 647 N.E.2d 120, 1994 N.Y. LEXIS 4573 (N.Y. 1994).

Insurer was entitled to declaration that it cancelled defendant's policy prior to date of automobile accident and therefore was not required to defend defendant in action arising therefrom, although insurer's notice of cancellation was concededly improper because it was not in 12-point type as required by CLS Veh & Tr § 313, where record demonstrated that defendant had subsequently obtained automobile coverage from another insurance company, intending to replace cancelled automobile policy. Kaplan v Travelers Ins. Co., 205 A.D.2d 501, 612 N.Y.S.2d 658, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5973 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't), app. denied, 84 N.Y.2d 807, 621 N.Y.S.2d 516, 645 N.E.2d 1216, 1994 N.Y. LEXIS 3461 (N.Y. 1994).

Defendant insurer was entitled to summary judgment in action for judgment declaring that it was obligated to defend and indemnify plaintiff as its insured in action by injured party who was hit by plaintiff's car on October 16, where plaintiff's car was insured by defendant through October 15, defendant cancelled policy effective 12:01 a.m. on October 16 due to plaintiff's failure to pay premium, plaintiff's wife conceded that they received cancellation notice prior to October 15, defendant submitted sample cancellation notice to prove that it was in proper form, and common-law proof presented by defendant with regard to its office practice was sufficient to establish that notice of cancellation was properly mailed. Fogarty v Boston Old Colony Ins. Co., 222 A.D.2d 484, 635 N.Y.S.2d 647, 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12808 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1995).

Insurer created rebuttable presumption that notice of policy cancellation was received where it presented documentary evidence of its cancellation, together with testimony of employee who was knowledgeable about its cancellation procedures, to effect that such procedures were in conformity with statutory requirements of New York Automobile Insurance Plan. Lora v New York Cent. Mut. Fire Ins. Co., 232 A.D.2d 242, 648 N.Y.S.2d 91, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10100 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1996).

Insurer had no obligation to defend or indemnify owner or driver of vehicle where any insurance coverage was terminated at least 2 ½ months before accident. American Transit Ins. Co. v Val-Roc Trucking, 242 A.D.2d 469, 662 N.Y.S.2d 309, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8802 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1997).

Proceedings under CLS CPLR § 7503 to permanently stay arbitration of uninsured motorist claims were properly dismissed, because insurance policy was effectively canceled, where insurer, before mailing notice of cancellation, mailed insured bill that was in compliance with Rules of New York Automobile Insurance Plan § 14(E)(2); cancellation was not rendered ineffective by mere fact that notice of cancellation recited as unpaid amount that included installment that had come due after mailing of bill. Eagle Ins. Co. v Lopez, 245 A.D.2d 563, 667 N.Y.S.2d 64, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13394 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1997).

Insurer was not required to give insured 45 days notice of nonrenewal, because CLS Veh & Tr § 313(1)(a) did not apply, where insurer sent insured renewal quotation that insured failed to accept when he failed to pay his first renewal premium. Badagliacca v GEICO Gen. Ins. Co., 255 A.D.2d 536, 680 N.Y.S.2d 661, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12858 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1998).

Insurer was not required to file notice of termination with Department of Motor Vehicles under CLS Veh & Tr § 313(2)(a) where insurance policy had been in force for more than 6 months. Badagliacca v GEICO Gen. Ins. Co., 255 A.D.2d 536, 680 N.Y.S.2d 661, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12858 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1998).

Insurer's purported cancellation of policy on offending vehicle in accident was ineffective where offending vehicle was livery cab governed by financial security provisions of CLS Veh & Tr § 370, insurer elected to send insured additional notice of cancellation under CLS Veh & Tr § 313, and such additional notice could have caused insured confusion as to its duties under financial security provisions of Vehicle and Traffic Law. Travelers Prop. Cas. Corp. v Eagle Ins. Co., 273 A.D.2d 65, 708 N.Y.S.2d 406, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6335 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2000).

Trial court properly granted the insurer's motion to dismiss pursuant to N.Y. C.P.L.R. 3211 and denied the judgment creditors' motion for summary judgment pursuant to N.Y. C.P.L.R. 3212 in the judgment creditors' action pursuant to N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(b) to recover from the insurer an unsatisfied judgment against the insured party of the insurer; the insurer established that the insured party orally cancelled the liquor liability insurance policy just before the judgment creditors were injured on the insured party's premises, that the insurer waived strict compliance with the cancellation provisions of the policy, which provided for written notice of cancellation, and that the judgment creditors failed to adduce sufficient evidence to defeat the motion to dismiss and failed to establish their entitlement to summary judgment. Zachariades v Transcon. Ins. Co., 1 A.D.3d 509, 767 N.Y.S.2d 246, 2003 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12112 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2003).

186. Reformation of policy

The alteration or elimination of terms and conditions of coverage of policy will not be granted in an action for reformation by one named assured. Kerr v New Amsterdam Casualty Co., 276 N.Y. 648, 12 N.E.2d 803, 276 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 648, 1938 N.Y. LEXIS 1234 (N.Y.), reh'g denied, 278 N.Y. 566, 16 N.E.2d 105, 278 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 566, 1938 N.Y. LEXIS 1405 (N.Y. 1938).

It is not essential that the right to reformation be found in the statute. The failure of insured to demand reformation cannot deprive the beneficiary of this right. Equity will step in in aid of former § 109 [predecessor to former § 167, now § 3420], and do for the beneficiary what was fairly intended by the legislature when the statute was enacted. The principle that a statute in derogation of common law will be construed strictly is inapplicable. Tuzinska v Ocean Acci. & Guarantee Corp., 241 A.D. 598, 272 N.Y.S. 593, 1934 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8320 (N.Y. App. Div. 1934).

Supreme Court did not err in "converting" action from one for reformation of insurance policy to one for declaratory judgment where action was not truly conversion as contemplated by CLS CPLR § 103 but, rather, instance where court simply awarded relief to which insured was entitled, on basis of evidence adduced, under slightly different theory than that delineated in complaint; essentially, court amended complaint, sua sponte, to conform to proof presented and arguments advanced on motions. Olochnowitz v Hopmeier-Evans-Gage Agency, 225 A.D.2d 853, 639 N.Y.S.2d 496, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2067 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1996).

Owner and general contractor on construction project were entitled to amend complaint to assert cause of action for reformation of liability policy issued to subcontractor by defendant insurer where insurer had previously been aware of possible errors in policy endorsements that made plaintiffs additional insureds, and uncontradicted evidence established that scrivener's error had occurred. Ebasco Constructors, Inc. v Aetna Ins. Co., 260 A.D.2d 287, 692 N.Y.S.2d 295, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4347 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1999).

Owner and general contractor on construction project were entitled to summary judgment in action to reform liability policy issued to subcontractor by defendant insurer where obvious scrivener's error had occurred in endorsements listing plaintiffs as additional insureds, issuing agent's vice-president averred that she had discovered errors and reported them to insurer, and insurer offered only conclusory denials. Ebasco Constructors, Inc. v Aetna Ins. Co., 260 A.D.2d 287, 692 N.Y.S.2d 295, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4347 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1999).

Owner and general contractor on construction project were not entitled to attorney fees in action against subcontractor's liability insurer to reform policy with respect to endorsements listing plaintiffs as additional insureds in absence of showing that insurer had acted in bad faith in refusing to defend action against plaintiffs. Ebasco Constructors, Inc. v Aetna Ins. Co., 260 A.D.2d 287, 692 N.Y.S.2d 295, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4347 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1999).

Error may be mutual for purposes of reformation, even though insurer was not aware of error, where innocent mistake occurred as to named insured, and parties intended to cover risk. Cheperuk v Liberty Mut. Fire Ins. Co., 263 A.D.2d 748, 693 N.Y.S.2d 304, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8051 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1999).

XV. Nature and Amount of Recovery

187. In general

A complaint does not state a cause of action which alleges that the defendant issued its policy indemnifying plaintiffs to the extent of $5,000, against liability by reason of an accident resulting in injury or death to any person and providing that defendant would defend or settle all actions brought against assured to enforce a claim on account of any such action but would not be responsible for any unauthorized settlement made by assured; that thereafter actions were brought against plaintiffs for amounts largely exceeding the amount of insurance and that before trial it was ascertained and defendant was advised that said actions could be settled for $6,500; that defendant agreed that the actions should be settled and offered to pay $3,500 if plaintiffs would pay the balance, which they refused to do, insisting that the insurance company pay the full amount of its liability under the policy; that the defendant declined and insisted upon a trial which resulted in verdicts greatly exceeding the amount of the policy, which defendants paid in full, leaving a large balance which plaintiffs were forced to pay and demanding judgment for the difference between that amount and what it would have paid had the settlement been made. The insurance company in refusing to settle actions, did what it had the legal right to do under the terms of the policy and in the absence of allegations of negligence or suppression of facts or fraud or misrepresentation on the part of insurer plaintiffs cannot recover. Auerbach v Maryland Casualty Co., 236 N.Y. 247, 140 N.E. 577, 236 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 247, 1923 N.Y. LEXIS 879 (N.Y. 1923).

Punitive damages awarded against insured in underlying civil suit are not proper element of compensatory damages recoverable in suit against insurer for bad-faith refusal to settle underlying suit, regardless of how egregious insurer's conduct has been, since any award of punitive damages that might ensue is still directly attributable to insured's immoral and blameworthy behavior. Soto v State Farm Ins. Co., 83 N.Y.2d 718, 613 N.Y.S.2d 352, 635 N.E.2d 1222, 1994 N.Y. LEXIS 1034 (N.Y. 1994).

In action against insurer for costs incurred by insured in defense of civil action and amount of money (policy limit) paid in settlement thereof, court erred in allowing insured to amend its complaint to add cause of action seeking both compensatory damages (not confined to policy limit), and punitive damages for insurer's alleged bad-faith refusal to settle, since allegation of bad faith failure to settle, without more, does not give rise to claim for punitive damages; thus, order granting insured's motion to amend would be modified to delete that part of cause of action for punitive damages. AFIA v Continental Ins. Co., 140 A.D.2d 167, 527 N.Y.S.2d 420, 1988 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4663 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1988).

Proper standard for determining whether insurer's refusal to settle within policy limits was made in bad faith is whether it was "highly probable" that insured would be subjected to personal liability if severityof victim's injuries resulted in verdict in excess of policy limits. DiBlasi v Aetna Life & Casualty Ins. Co., 147 A.D.2d 93, 542 N.Y.S.2d 187, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7002 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1989).

Prima facie case was pleaded of insurer's bad faith in refusing to settle, and triable issues existed sufficient to survive insurer's motion for summary judgment, where reasonably prudent insurance adjuster or defense attorney should have realized that, due to fact that 22-year-old auto accident victim had sustained painful, permanent and progressive injury to her right elbow, it was "highly probable" that verdict would exceed policy limits of $25,000. DiBlasi v Aetna Life & Casualty Ins. Co., 147 A.D.2d 93, 542 N.Y.S.2d 187, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7002 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1989).

University was not entitled to summary judgment in its bad-faith claim against insurer arising from medical malpractice claim where (1) no discovery had taken place, (2) evidence that insurer had incorrectly denied its obligation to provide coverage for both university and faculty member (defendant in underlying action) did not constitute "extraordinary showing of a disingenuous or dishonest failure to carry out a contract" required to establish bad faith liability of insurer, (3) affidavits of university's attorney were opposed by affidavits of insurer's attorney, and (4) insurer contended that university actively manufactured record of bad faith. Crawford v Hospital of Albert Einstein College of Medicine, 159 A.D.2d 304, 552 N.Y.S.2d 582, 1990 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2697 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1990).

Court properly denied plaintiff's motion to increase ad damnum clause of complaint to amount beyond liability limits of her homeowner's insurance policy in action to recover for losses allegedly resulting from insurer's bad faith in refusing to settle her claim for loss of use of her home, including loss of her business, costs of refinancing her home, lost income, and miscellaneous costs for such things as postage and photocopying; plaintiff's claims were speculative, remote, and could not have been within contemplation of parties at time of insurance contract. 172 A.D.2d 585, 568 N.Y.S.2d 820.

Insurer and its general manager (acting on behalf of insured, who ran over 15-year-old plaintiff with tractor) were entitled to partial summary judgment in plaintiffs' action seeking recovery for bad faith in allegedly advising plaintiffs to wait until injured plaintiff reached age 21, at which time insurer would evaluate his injuries and "make a fair settlement," since bad faith does not provide independent basis for recovery. Lawrence v Houston, 172 A.D.2d 923, 567 N.Y.S.2d 962, 1991 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4240 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1991).

Insurer was not entitled to summary judgment in its action to recover $28,000 paid to its insureds by tortfeasor and tortfeasor's insurer in exchange for subrogation receipt in satisfaction of claim made on their homeowner's policy after their property and its contents had been demolished by truck owned and operated by tortfeasor, where $28,000 represented policy limits under policy, and insureds contended that they owed nothing to insurer because total of $90,000 received had not wholly covered their loss; insurer would be entitled to compensation from insureds only if they had received more than actual amount of damages suffered at hands of tortfeasor, which was factual issue that remained unresolved. Callicoon Coop. Ins. Co. v Osborne, 206 A.D.2d 796, 615 N.Y.S.2d 125, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7978 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1994).

Liability insurer was not obligated to pay preverdict interest in absence of express provision in policy giving rise to such obligation. Monarch Cortland v Columbia Cas. Co., 224 A.D.2d 135, 646 N.Y.S.2d 904, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8653 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1996), app. denied, 89 N.Y.2d 807, 655 N.Y.S.2d 887, 678 N.E.2d 500, 1997 N.Y. LEXIS 133 (N.Y. 1997).

Plaintiff, as injured party in one-car accident and assignee of car owner's claim against his insurer for bad faith failure to settle, stood in shoes of car owner and was estopped from contending that insurer acted in bad faith where its rejection of plaintiff's settlement offer was based on car owner's statements and other evidence that plaintiff and not owner had been driving at time of accident. Daus v Lumberman's Mut. Cas. Co., 241 A.D.2d 665, 659 N.Y.S.2d 584, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7337 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), app. denied, 90 N.Y.2d 812, 666 N.Y.S.2d 100, 688 N.E.2d 1382, 1997 N.Y. LEXIS 3669 (N.Y. 1997).

For purposes of action against liability insurer for bad faith failure to settle, it could not be said that settlement offers had come at time when all serious doubts about insured's liability had been removed in light of documentary evidence that raised question as to whether insured was driving car at time of accident. Daus v Lumberman's Mut. Cas. Co., 241 A.D.2d 665, 659 N.Y.S.2d 584, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7337 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), app. denied, 90 N.Y.2d 812, 666 N.Y.S.2d 100, 688 N.E.2d 1382, 1997 N.Y. LEXIS 3669 (N.Y. 1997).

Liability insurer was entitled to vacatur of $75,000 judgment against it for failure to defend its insured where insured had failed to disclose that her liability in underlying action had been resolved by postjudgment settlement for $12,000; insured's actions constituted misrepresentation and misconduct, and her nondisclosure was not excused by collateral source rule. Birsett v General Accident Ins. Co. of Am., 241 A.D.2d 683, 659 N.Y.S.2d 924, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7329 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1997).

In action brought by insurer seeking declaration that it was not obligated to continue paying certain of insured's medical costs, court should have granted insurer's summary judgment motion dismissing insureds' claim that insurer fraudulently induced them to discontinue personal injury action by pledging to "continue" full payment of medical expenses, while intending to subsequently reduce reimbursement to providers to less than full payment, since there was no sound basis to derive fraud claim from agreement, concededly honored pending only outcome of instant judicial proceedings, specifically turning on whether medical expenses were reasonable and necessary under specific body of law; even to extent that insureds read stipulation as requiring continuation of then-current payments, as contrasted with continuation of payments that were determined to be reasonable and necessary, that presented, at most, issue of contract interpretation rather than fraud, regardless of insurer's intentions when entering agreement. Massachusetts Bay Ins. Co. v Stamm, 256 A.D.2d 181, 683 N.Y.S.2d 20, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13723 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1998), app. denied, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5187 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't Apr. 27, 1999).

Liability insurer was entitled to summary judgment on insureds' claim of bad faith failure to settle personal injury action where insurer's settlement offers were predicated on (1) its view that parents' derivative claim regarding child's injuries was not separate claim under policy, and such view was confirmed by Appellate Division on prior appeal, and (2) its assertion that one claimant had not sustained serious injuries, which was later vindicated by jury verdict so finding. Redcross v Aetna Cas. & Sur. Co., 260 A.D.2d 908, 688 N.Y.S.2d 817, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4199 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1999).

Liability insurer was not entitled to summary judgment on insureds' claim of bad faith failure to settle personal injury action where issues of fact existed as to insurer's failure to keep insureds informed of settlement negotiations at time when insureds might have considered contributing difference between offer and demand in order to avoid potentially greater jury verdict. Redcross v Aetna Cas. & Sur. Co., 260 A.D.2d 908, 688 N.Y.S.2d 817, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4199 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1999).

In an action arising out of injuries sustained by plaintiff passengers when the vehicle in which they were riding was involved in an accident with another vehicle, and in which both drivers were at fault, plaintiffs would be entitled to a judgment declaring that the uninsured motorist coverage provided for by a policy issued by defendant, the insurer of the owner of the host vehicle, be applied to plaintiffs' benefit to the extent that the amount that had already been obtained by plaintiff through exhaustion of each vehicle owner's liability policy was less than the full value of compensatory damage to which plaintiffs might actually be entitled, since defendant's policy was void to the extent that it attempted to impose a reduction of underinsured motorist limits by the amount paid by the person jointly or severally liable with the underinsured motorist, which reduction has not been provided for by the Legislature in Ins Law § 3420(f), and since exhaustion of the total proceeds of the underlying insurance policies of all vehicles involved in the accident is not statutorily required as a predicate to being eligible for underinsured benefits; rather, a claimant may obtain underinsured motorist benefits as long as any tort-feasor's liability policy limits are less than the uninsured/underinsured motorist coverage and are fully exhausted by the injured party. Passaro v Metropolitan Property & Liability Ins. Co., 128 Misc. 2d 21, 487 N.Y.S.2d 1009, 1985 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2869 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1985), aff'd, 124 A.D.2d 647, 507 N.Y.S.2d 836, 1986 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 61949 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1986).

In action by liability insurer to recover amounts of insureds' deductible pursuant to provision of insurance policy permitting insurer to settle claims without insured's consent, court would not dismiss insurer's summary judgment motion on basis of insureds' assertions that insurer had settled claims in bad faith, since (1) insureds' assertions that insurer did not properly investigate claims prior to entering into settlements, and did not respond to requests for information about progress of settlement negotiations, were unsupported by proof in evidentiary form, (2) insureds offered no factual support for their contention that insurer failed to give due consideration to their interests in settling claims, and (3) insureds merely speculated that insurer had no incentive to settle claims fairly, and disposed of them in "half-hearted" manner, because insureds had decided not to renew their insurance policy with insurer. Commerce & Indus. Ins. Co. v North Shore Towers Management, 162 Misc. 2d 778, 617 N.Y.S.2d 632, 1994 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 447 (N.Y. Civ. Ct. 1994).

CLS CPLR § 5015(a)(3) did not support vacatur of judgment against insured entered upon settlement of underlying personal injury action, based on injured plaintiffs' refusal to provide insurer with their taxpayer identification numbers in accordance with insurer's policy of requesting such numbers to comply with its interpretation of 26 USCS § 6045(f) which purportedly requires insurers to provide Internal Revenue Service (IRS) with taxpayer identification numbers of attorneys to whom they issue payments, where insurer failed to present evidence of any ruling from IRS that § 6045(f) applies to payment of settlement accounts as well. Catania v Horsford, 181 Misc. 2d 740, 695 N.Y.S.2d 504, 1999 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 363 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1999).

Insurance company could not recover, in subrogation action seeking common-law indemnification from construction contractor, amount it paid in excess of bodily injury policy limits to satisfy judgment obtained against its insured, as its overpayment, made in absence of any legal liability or compulsion to do so, was purely voluntary payment. Travelers Ins. Co. v Nory Constr. Co., 184 Misc. 2d 366, 708 N.Y.S.2d 252, 2000 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 137 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 2000), app. dismissed, 281 A.D.2d 955, 722 N.Y.S.2d 209, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2693 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 2001), aff'd, 281 A.D.2d 956, 722 N.Y.S.2d 209, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2692 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 2001).

Under CLS CPLR § 5003-a(a), when action to recover damages has been settled, unless CLS CPLR § 5003-a(b) or (c) apply, defendant must pay all sums to plaintiff within 21 days of tender. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 02-07-23.

188. Particular items of recovery

Insurer's obligation to compensate for bodily injury does not extend to derivative claims for loss of services which occurred as result of physical injuries suffered by third person. Lavanant v General Acci. Ins. Co., 79 N.Y.2d 623, 584 N.Y.S.2d 744, 595 N.E.2d 819, 1992 N.Y. LEXIS 1534 (N.Y. 1992).

Term "bodily injury" in liability insurance policy was ambiguous, in that it was defined as "bodily injury, sickness or disease," and thus would be construed to include mental injury alone even though no physical injury or contact was involved. Lavanant v General Acci. Ins. Co., 79 N.Y.2d 623, 584 N.Y.S.2d 744, 595 N.E.2d 819, 1992 N.Y. LEXIS 1534 (N.Y. 1992).

Insurance carriers are liable for postjudgment interest only on portion of judgment which is covered by insurance policy, unless contract of insurance contains broader provision. Shnarch v Empire Mut. Ins. Co., 144 A.D.2d 795, 535 N.Y.S.2d 180, 1988 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11129 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1988), app. dismissed, 74 N.Y.2d 715, 543 N.Y.S.2d 402, 541 N.E.2d 431, 1989 N.Y. LEXIS 825 (N.Y. 1989).

Where arbitration under uninsured motorist endorsement for death of passenger in insured vehicle resulted in award for maximum coverage under policy, prejudgment interest from date of death until date of award could not be awarded since prejudgment interest is substantive and part of damages, and insurer could not be held responsible for amounts in excess of policy limits. Russo v Kemper Group, 146 A.D.2d 701, 537 N.Y.S.2d 200, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 640 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1989).

Supreme Court correctly determined that damages for severe emotional distress, humiliation and mental anguish, sought in special proceeding against defendant by Attorney General, were not within bodily injury coverage of defendant's insurance policy. Mesmer & Sons Dairy, Inc. v Hartford Ins. Group, 155 A.D.2d 955, 549 N.Y.S.2d 618, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 14825 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1989).

Victorious plaintiff in wrongful death action against insured was entitled to summary judgment against insurer for postjudgment interest on policy limit amount of $50,000 where evidence failed to establish that insurer had made tender of $50,000 after judgment was entered, which, under 11 NYCRR § 60-1.1(b), would have prevented postjudgment interest from accruing, and court would not assume that insurer's tender was unconditional or that release proposed by insurer was routine. Fama v Metropolitan Prop. & Cas. Ins. Co., 242 A.D.2d 663, 662 N.Y.S.2d 784, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9192 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1997).

Victorious plaintiff in wrongful death action against insured was not entitled to recover from insurer postjudgment interest based on entire amount of judgment, where insurer did not obligate itself under insurance policy to pay any postjudgment interest beyond that applicable to policy limit amount, and law did not require more. Fama v Metropolitan Prop. & Cas. Ins. Co., 242 A.D.2d 663, 662 N.Y.S.2d 784, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9192 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1997).

In action by owner of leased car against its excess liability insurer, owner was not entitled to prejudgment interest where it never complied with written notice provisions of policies and thus was in breach of contract. First City Acceptance Corp. v Gulf Ins. Co., 245 A.D.2d 649, 665 N.Y.S.2d 114, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12534 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1997).

Insured was not entitled to recover damages for emotional distress in action against her insurer for underinsured motorist benefits where (1) as general rule, there is no right to recover damages for emotional distress in breach of contract action in New York, and (2) attempt by insured's counsel to portray claim as relating solely to car accident was belied by language of complaint and insured's answer to insurer's interrogatories. Hess v Nationwide Mut. Ins. Co., 273 A.D.2d 689, 709 N.Y.S.2d 701, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7222 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2000).

In action under CLS Ins § 3420(a)(1) to enforce judgment obtained in personal injury action in which infant plaintiff was injured by truck owned by defendant's insured, defendant's duty to pay postjudgment interest on judgment ceased when defendant tendered or paid amount of policy limit where policy clearly provided that defendant's duty to pay interest ended "when [the insurer has] paid...the part of the judgment that is within [the insurer's] Limit of Insurance." Woodson v Am. Transit Ins. Co., 281 A.D.2d 282, 722 N.Y.S.2d 138, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2983 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2001).

Automobile liability insurer's offer to pay $50,000 policy limits, communicated to plaintiffs' counsel prior to trial of underlying wrongful death action constituted tender within meaning of 11 NYCRR § 60-1.1(b) sufficient to suspend accrual of interest on unsatisfied $1.8 million judgment for which insurer would have otherwise been liable. Fama v Metropolitan Prop. & Cas. Ins. Co., 169 Misc. 2d 872, 646 N.Y.S.2d 930, 1996 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 289 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1996), modified, 242 A.D.2d 663, 662 N.Y.S.2d 784, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9192 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1997).

Loss payment which insurer must make on private passenger automobile of current model year that has suffered total loss due to complete destruction or theft is reasonable purchase price on date of loss of new identical vehicle, less applicable deductible and allowance for depreciation, calculated in accordance with 11 NYCRR § 216.7(c)(3), unless this settlement method would result in lower loss payment than methods described in 11 NYCRR § 216.7(c)(1)(i), (ii) and (iii), in which case settlement method that results in higher loss payment among methods provided in 11 NYCRR § 216.7(c)(1)(i), (ii) and (iii) would be appropriate settlement method to calculate loss payment. NY Ins Dep't Gen Counsel, Opinion No. 11-02-01, 2011 NY Insurance GC Opinions LEXIS 1.

189. —Punitive damages

Plaintiff was not entitled to recover punitive damages from insurance company for allegedly defrauding its insured and for allegedly committing pattern of civil wrongs aimed at general public by having undeviating policy of improperly terminating insurance coverage, refusing to appear and to defend its insureds, refusing to honor judgments and refusing to pay full policy limits regardless of merits, since legislature has created different remedy for such public wrong by enacting CLS Ins § 2601. Roldan v Allstate Ins. Co., 149 A.D.2d 20, 544 N.Y.S.2d 359, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9736 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1989).

Punitive damages may not be recovered against insurer by beneficiary of life insurance policy in absence of allegation supporting finding of wanton dishonesty implying criminal indifference to civil obligations. Botway v American International Assurance Co., 151 A.D.2d 288, 543 N.Y.S.2d 651, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7503 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1989).

Liability insurer had no duty to provide coverage to stock brokerage for punitive damages rendered against it in 2 separate slander actions, one in federal court and other in Texas court, since New York public policy, which precludes insurance indemnification for punitive damages awards whether based on intentional or grossly negligent conduct, should not be applied any differently merely because punitive damages award happens to have been rendered in another jurisdiction. Zurich Ins. Co. v Shearson Lehman Hutton, Inc., 193 A.D.2d 1, 601 N.Y.S.2d 276, 1993 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8054 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1993), modified, aff'd, 84 N.Y.2d 309, 618 N.Y.S.2d 609, 642 N.E.2d 1065, 1994 N.Y. LEXIS 3380 (N.Y. 1994).

In action by insurer seeking declaration that it had no duty to provide coverage to defendant stock brokerage for punitive damages rendered against it in 2 separate out-of-state slander actions, one in federal court, brokerage's counterclaims for unfair and deceptive trade practices and for costs incurred in defending federal court action did not have to be dismissed on basis of New York public policy barring insurance indemnification for punitive damages awards, since insurer may have collected premium from brokerage for coverage of punitive damages. Zurich Ins. Co. v Shearson Lehman Hutton, Inc., 193 A.D.2d 1, 601 N.Y.S.2d 276, 1993 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8054 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1993), modified, aff'd, 84 N.Y.2d 309, 618 N.Y.S.2d 609, 642 N.E.2d 1065, 1994 N.Y. LEXIS 3380 (N.Y. 1994).

Although liability insurance carrier can be found liable for bad faith in not resolving claim within policy limits where it is highly probable that insured would be subject to personal liability, public policy of New York precludes insurer from writing coverage for punitive damages, and insurer accordingly cannot be found liable for bad faith in failing to pay punitive damages claim. Soto v State Farm Ins. Co., 155 Misc. 2d 447, 588 N.Y.S.2d 505, 1992 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 434 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1992), aff'd, 83 N.Y.2d 718, 613 N.Y.S.2d 352, 635 N.E.2d 1222, 1994 N.Y. LEXIS 1034 (N.Y. 1994).

190. —Costs and counsel fees

Award of insured's counsel fees, which included counsel's charges for prosecution of declaratory judgment action against insurance company as well as for defense of underlying automobile negligence action brought against insured, would be reduced to amount expended in defense of underlying action, since holder of insurance policy is not entitled to recover legal fees and expenses for prosecution of declaratory judgment action against insurer, but only for fees and expenses necessitated should he be cast in defensive posture by legal steps taken by insurer in effort to free itself from its policy obligations. Grasso v Country-Wide Ins. Co., 132 A.D.2d 451, 517 N.Y.S.2d 150, 1987 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 49017 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1987).

Insured was properly awarded reasonable costs and attorney's fees incurred in action commenced by insurer for declaratory judgment to avoid its obligation to defend and indemnify insured where, after commencing action, insurer abandoned action, admitted coverage and settled underlying action on behalf of insured. U.S. Underwriters Ins. Co. v Mesiftah Eitz Chaim, 210 A.D.2d 218, 620 N.Y.S.2d 5, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12355 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1994).

In action for breach of insurance contract arising from failure of insurer to timely defend insured in underlying tort action, insured could not recover counsel fees he incurred in seeking to compel insurer to comply with its duty to defend. Williams v Associated Mut. Ins. Co., 211 A.D.2d 865, 621 N.Y.S.2d 206, 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 37 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1995).

In action for breach of insurance contract arising from failure of insurer to timely defend insured in underlying tort action, insured could recover counsel fees he incurred in his direct effort to vacate default judgment entered as result of insurer's failure to defend. Williams v Associated Mut. Ins. Co., 211 A.D.2d 865, 621 N.Y.S.2d 206, 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 37 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1995).

Court properly awarded costs and attorney fees to insured because she was cast in defensive posture by liability insurer's commencement of action for judgment declaring policy void. Allegany Co-op Ins. Co. v Williams, 216 A.D.2d 894, 628 N.Y.S.2d 900, 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7212 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1995), app. denied, 87 N.Y.2d 806, 641 N.Y.S.2d 597, 664 N.E.2d 508, 1996 N.Y. LEXIS 94 (N.Y. 1996).

Plaintiffs were not entitled to recover costs and attorneys' fees for their prosecution of action in which defendant liability insurer was granted summary judgment declaring that it was not obligated to defend and indemnify them in underlying personal injury action by subcontractor's employee, because insurer's interposition of counterclaim was no more than prayer for declaration in its favor and, as such, was redundant and mere surplusage. West 56th St. Assocs. v Greater N.Y. Mut. Ins. Co., 250 A.D.2d 109, 681 N.Y.S.2d 523, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13754 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1998), amended, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1194 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't Jan. 19, 1999).

Insured's cause of action against insurer to recover attorney and expert fees arising from insurer's alleged breach of insurance contract was properly dismissed; insured may not recover expenses incurred in bringing affirmative action against insurer to settle its rights under insurance policy. Gold v Nationwide Mut. Ins. Co., 273 A.D.2d 354, 709 N.Y.S.2d 203, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7107 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2000).

Fact that insurer initially paid for insured's defense in underlying personal injury action did not preclude insured from recovering attorney's fees and costs incurred in subsequent declaratory judgment action whereby insurer sought reimbursement for defense and indemnification provided in underlying action; by commencing declaratory judgment action, insurer cast its insured in defensive posture by legal steps it took in unsuccessful effort to free itself from its policy obligations. United States Fid. & Guar. Co. v New York, Susquehanna & W. Ry. Corp., 277 A.D.2d 1026, 716 N.Y.S.2d 181, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11407 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 2000).

In action by village against insurance carrier for reimbursement for defense and settlement of underlying action by property owner against village arising from negligent issuance of building permit in area designated as official floodway, village was only entitled to reimbursement of attorneys' fees and expenses which were attributable to underlying action and was not entitled to attorneys' fees and expenses which were attributable to instant action for reimbursement. Village of Camden v National Fire Ins. Co., 155 Misc. 2d 607, 589 N.Y.S.2d 293, 1992 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 461 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1992), aff'd, 195 A.D.2d 1091, 603 N.Y.S.2d 781, 1993 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7801 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1993).

Where action to recover no-fault first-party benefits, interest and counsel fees was resolved when plaintiff accepted tender of payment by defendant in amount less than requested, amount of counsel fees to plaintiff was 20 percent of amount accepted by plaintiff, pursuant to 11 NYCRR § 65.16(c)(8)(ix). Dondysh v Lumbermans Mut. Ins. Co., 168 Misc. 2d 121, 645 N.Y.S.2d 388, 1996 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 240 (N.Y. App. Term 1996).

191. Division of recovered amount among numerous claimants

Where city was not in a position to maintain an action against automobile owner's insurer, under precedessor to § 3420, but it was reasonably expected that the city would take all necessary and proper steps, the city was a claimant within the meaning of the statute with respect of the fund which the insurer offered to pay into court for discharge from further liability. United States Fidelity & Guarantee Co. v Hotkins, 6 Misc. 2d 1027, 158 N.Y.S.2d 580, 1956 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1379 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1956).

Motion by insured to compel his judgment creditors to accept undertaking by his insurer on appeal in the amount of $6,000, was granted, where limits of liability of insurer was $20,000 for a single accident and the insurer had previously settled other claims for $14,000. O'Dwyer v Grove Service Corp., 15 Misc. 2d 154, 181 N.Y.S.2d 338, 1958 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2543 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1958), aff'd, 15 A.D.2d 457, 222 N.Y.S.2d 683, 1961 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7375 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1961).

192. Insurer's option to repair or replace

Where aircraft hull insurance policy specifically gave insurers option to either repair or replace, in money or in kind, the aircraft, which had stated value of $300,000, and which, after crash, would require $158,000 to repair, insureds were not entitled to claim "constructive total loss" by virtue of fact that projected cost of repair exceeded 50 percent of agreed value. Trimble-Waterman Associates v Certain Underwriters at Lloyd's, 41 N.Y.2d 934, 394 N.Y.S.2d 628, 363 N.E.2d 352, 1977 N.Y. LEXIS 1997 (N.Y. 1977).

Where the insurer made an election to repair or replace damaged or stolen property, such election created a new agreement with the insured under the terms of which the insurer agreed to return a repaired car to the insured. Eisenberg v Motors Ins. Corp., 62 Misc. 2d 1, 307 N.Y.S.2d 922, 1970 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1928 (N.Y. Civ. Ct. 1970).

Where an insurer elects to repair instead of making a cash payment to the insured for the value of an automobile or the value of the repairs, it also undertakes to return the property so repaired. Eisenberg v Motors Ins. Corp., 62 Misc. 2d 1, 307 N.Y.S.2d 922, 1970 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1928 (N.Y. Civ. Ct. 1970).

Where an insurance company, under the contract, has elected to repair an automobile, the obligation of the company is measured by the new contract, and it cannot cancel the old contract until it has fully performed the contract created by its election. Eisenberg v Motors Ins. Corp., 62 Misc. 2d 1, 307 N.Y.S.2d 922, 1970 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1928 (N.Y. Civ. Ct. 1970).

An arrangement by the insurer with a repair shop constituted an election where the policy provided that the insurance company, after loss, had three options (1) to pay for the loss in money; or (2) to repair or replace the damaged or stolen property; or (3) at any time before the loss was paid or the property was replaced, at its expense, to return any stolen property to the named insured with payment for any resultant damage thereto. Eisenberg v Motors Ins. Corp., 62 Misc. 2d 1, 307 N.Y.S.2d 922, 1970 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1928 (N.Y. Civ. Ct. 1970).

193. Contribution among tortfeasors and insurers

In an action between the separate liability insurers of a tractor and trailer, used in combination, which while negligently driven caused personal injuries to a number of bus passengers in a collision with a bus, where tractor-insurer settled with the bus passengers and trailer-insurer stipulated that settlements were reasonable and conceded its liability for contribution, the contribution of the trailer-insurer to total damages paid by tractor-insurer is in the ratio that the respective policy accident limits, rather than individual claim limits, bear to the total valid and collectible insurance. Travelers Ins. Co. v General Acci., Fire & Life Assurance Corp., 28 N.Y.2d 458, 322 N.Y.S.2d 704, 271 N.E.2d 542, 1971 N.Y. LEXIS 1254 (N.Y. 1971).

There was no error or unfairness in Appellate Division's declining to order sharing of defense costs in asbestos case between 2 insurers, with understanding that insurer could later obtain contribution from other applicable policies, where case had not yet been litigated; insured should not be denied initial recourse to carrier merely because another carrier might also be responsible. Continental Casualty Co. v Rapid-American Corp., 80 N.Y.2d 640, 593 N.Y.S.2d 966, 609 N.E.2d 506, 1993 N.Y. LEXIS 81 (N.Y. 1993).

In action primarily among insurers, to apportion liability for settlement in personal injury action involving truck leased to defendant and driven by defendant's employee, Appellate Division properly concluded that $1 million business auto policy issued to company which had contracted with defendant for trucking services provided excess coverage, not primary coverage, regardless of trial court's finding that truck driver was such company's "special employee," since truck was not owned, rented or used by company and thus did not trigger primary coverage under its business auto policy; under circumstances, policies issued to lessor and lessee of truck, each providing primary coverage, applied in full to settlement, with remaining liability apportioned among excess insurers. Federal Ins. Co. v Ryder Truck Rental, 82 N.Y.2d 909, 609 N.Y.S.2d 173, 631 N.E.2d 115, 1994 N.Y. LEXIS 2 (N.Y.), reh'g denied, 83 N.Y.2d 830, 612 N.Y.S.2d 103, 634 N.E.2d 599, 1994 N.Y. LEXIS 370 (N.Y. 1994).

Two primary coinsurers of owner of leased van involved in accident would share dollar-for-dollar in covering $900,000 loss where both policies had $500,000 limit of primary auto coverage and contained identical provision as to what constituted "our share"; policy issued by third insurer, which specifically described its coverage as excess insurance and defined its losses as those in excess of all other insurance that covered risk, was not reached. Jefferson Ins. Co. v Travelers Indem. Co., 92 N.Y.2d 363, 681 N.Y.S.2d 208, 703 N.E.2d 1221, 1998 N.Y. LEXIS 3664 (N.Y. 1998).

Excess coverage clauses cancelled each other out, and thus each of 2 insurers should contribute ratably to defense and, if necessary, to indemnification of insured (nurse) in underlying medical malpractice action, where one insurer had issued comprehensive general and professional liability policy to hospital which covered nurse as employee, and second insurer had issued to nurse comprehensive professional liability policy which also covered nurse for excess liability should he be found liable in underlying action; both policies covered same primary risk, even though they purported to be excess policies. Hospital Underwriters Mut. Ins. Co. v National Casualty Co., 150 A.D.2d 636, 541 N.Y.S.2d 512, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6925 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't), app. dismissed, 74 N.Y.2d 832, 546 N.Y.S.2d 340, 545 N.E.2d 630, 1989 N.Y. LEXIS 2854 (N.Y. 1989), app. denied, 75 N.Y.2d 704, 552 N.Y.S.2d 927, 552 N.E.2d 175, 1990 N.Y. LEXIS 124 (N.Y. 1990).

Insurance company which issued workers' compensation and employer's liability policy to subcontractor, and insurance company which issued comprehensive general liability policy to subcontractor would share equally in payment of settlement of claim by construction worker who fell from scaffolding where stipulation among parties stated that subcontractor was 100 percent at fault for accident and that property owner was free of fault. Hawthorne v South Bronx Community Corp., 165 A.D.2d 652, 560 N.Y.S.2d 30, 1990 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10933 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1990), aff'd, 78 N.Y.2d 433, 576 N.Y.S.2d 203, 582 N.E.2d 586, 1991 N.Y. LEXIS 4792 (N.Y. 1991).

Insurer which issued standard automobile policy to husband of operator of vehicle at fault had no duty to contribute toward satisfaction of judgment where (1) policy covered automobile owned by husband, (2) vehicle involved in accident was automobile leased by business owned by husband, (3) vehicle involved in accident was regularly available for use of operator, and (4) policy covered non-owned automobiles but excluded automobiles that were available for regular use. Liberty Mut. Ins. Co. v Aetna Casualty & Surety Co., 168 A.D.2d 121, 571 N.Y.S.2d 735, 1991 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8047 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1991).

Automobile policy from defendant insurer which provided that "insurance under this policy...shall be excess insurance over any other valid and collectible insurance, whether primary, excess or contingent" sufficiently indicated higher layer of coverage compared to policy of plaintiff insurer, which provided merely that "[t]his insurance is excess over other collectible insurance," and thus court improperly granted summary judgment to plaintiff, directing defendant to make pro rata contribution toward plaintiff's settlement with injured party. Farm Family Mut. Ins. Co. v Allstate Ins. Co., 179 A.D.2d 965, 579 N.Y.S.2d 207, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 857 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), app. denied, 80 N.Y.2d 756, 588 N.Y.S.2d 824, 602 N.E.2d 232, 1992 N.Y. LEXIS 3180 (N.Y. 1992).

Although where 2 insurance policies purport to provide coverage of same risk in excess of other available insurance, "excess" clauses cancel each other out, obligating each insurer to share ratably in settlement, exception exists where one policy is specifically shown to be excess of other excess policies and to offer only higher layer of coverage, but to so qualify policy must have plain language to that effect. Farm Family Mut. Ins. Co. v Allstate Ins. Co., 179 A.D.2d 965, 579 N.Y.S.2d 207, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 857 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), app. denied, 80 N.Y.2d 756, 588 N.Y.S.2d 824, 602 N.E.2d 232, 1992 N.Y. LEXIS 3180 (N.Y. 1992).

Insurer must contribute to expenses incurred by co-insurer's in-house counsel in defense of mutual insured. Travelers Ins. Co. v Commissioners of the State Ins. Fund, 227 A.D.2d 208, 642 N.Y.S.2d 867, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5171 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't), app. denied, 89 N.Y.2d 803, 653 N.Y.S.2d 280, 675 N.E.2d 1233, 1996 N.Y. LEXIS 4205 (N.Y. 1996).

Court erred in summarily declaring that insurers' contribution would be "ratable" rather than equal where there was no evidence as to provisions of subject policies on allocation of contribution of insurers. Aetna Cas. & Sur. Co. v National Union Fire Ins. Co., 228 A.D.2d 385, 645 N.Y.S.2d 5, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7454 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1996).

In negligence action by subcontractor's employee against contractor named as additional insured under subcontractor's general liability policy, contractor's third-party indemnification and contribution claims against subcontractor should have been dismissed by court, pro tanto, to extent of payments actually made by insurer to contractor, thereby vindicating antisubrogation rule while preserving contractor's rights to recover losses for which it was not actually compensated by insurer. Small v Yonkers Contr., 242 A.D.2d 378, 662 N.Y.S.2d 67, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8490 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1997).

Where defendant insurer first obtained arbitration award in amount of $19,969.34 against plaintiff, tortfeasor's insurer, for damage to its insured's vehicle resulting from multivehicle accident, and plaintiff then commenced interpleader action and deposited balance of proceeds under its insured's $300,000 policy into court because of insufficient insurance coverage to satisfy all claims, defendant's recovery was limited to its pro rata share of proceeds deposited into court in amount of $4,075, and it could not execute directly against plaintiff's assets to enforce prior arbitration award; plaintiff's liability was dependent on existence of coverage and, that coverage having been exhausted, plaintiff was not liable beyond its pro rata share. Boris v Flaherty, 242

A.D.2d 9, 672 N.Y.S.2d 177, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5011 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1998).

In determining responsibility of 3 insurance carriers that issued consecutive policies on building in which child suffered injuries due to continuous exposure to lead based paint, court erred in applying pro rata contribution analysis based on period of time on risk that each policy was in effect, rather than $^1/_3$ allocation pursuant to "other insurance" provisions in general liability section of policies, which provided for contribution by equal shares. American Empire Ins. Co. v PSM Ins. Cos., 259 A.D.2d 341, 687 N.Y.S.2d 32, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2767 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1999).

In action arising from automobile accident involving vehicle leased by defendant and his closely held corporation, excess coverage under defendant's excess liability policy had to be exhausted prior to contribution from his commercial catastrophe excess liability policy, in view of insurance binder of catastrophe policy, language of policy's "Other Insurance" provision, and its designation as "catastrophe" liability policy. Castricone v Riggi, 259 A.D.2d 815, 686 N.Y.S.2d 175, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2104 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1999).

Insurance company for subcontractor at construction site was estopped from seeking contribution from insurer for general contractor and property owner, toward settlement of action arising from construction site accident, where plaintiff insurance company had unqualifiedly assumed control of defense of general contractor and property owner, and had arbitrarily apportioned liability among insureds over objection of other insurer. Home Ins. Co. v Travelers Ins. Co., 156 Misc. 2d 479, 593 N.Y.S.2d 932, 1993 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 9 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1993).

Liability insurer that prevailed in contribution suit against second liability insurer, which had not participated in defense and indemnity of common insured in underlying personal injury action, was entitled to prejudgment interest under CLS CPLR § 5001(a) as matter of law. Royal Indem. Co. v Providence Wash. Ins. Co., 966 F. Supp. 149, 1997 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 9102 (N.D.N.Y. 1997).

194. Indemnity among tortfeasors and insurers

Public policy precludes insurance indemnification for punitive damage awards, whether punitive damages are based on intentional actions, or on actions which, while not intentional, amount to gross negligence, recklessness, wantonness, conscious disregard of rights of others, or for conduct so reckless as to amount to such disregard. Home Ins. Co. v American Home Products Corp., 75 N.Y.2d 196, 551 N.Y.S.2d 481, 550 N.E.2d 930, 1990 N.Y. LEXIS 90 (N.Y. 1990).

Conduct of brokerage house's executive, which resulted in punitive damage award in Georgia slander action, would support New York punitive damage award for purposes of determining insurer's duty to indemnify brokerage house under liability policy, despite plaintiff's purported failure to plead and prove special damages as required by New York law, where Georgia court found that statement at issue was made with "actual malice," which satisfies New York's legal standard for slander; New York court must ascertain whether conduct at issue exhibits degree of culpability necessary to sustain punitive award in New York, not whether form of evidence or method of proof acceptable to judgment state would be sufficient in New York. Zurich Ins. Co. v Shearson Lehman Hutton, Inc., 84 N.Y.2d 309, 618 N.Y.S.2d 609, 642 N.E.2d 1065, 1994 N.Y. LEXIS 3380 (N.Y. 1994).

Conduct of brokerage house's executive, which resulted in punitive damage award in Texas slander action, would support New York punitive damage award for purposes of determining insurer's duty to indemnify brokerage house under liability policy, despite plaintiff's purported failure to show that executive was not sufficiently highly placed to establish necessary level of corporate complicity under New York law, where Texas jury found that statements at issue were made with "actual malice," which satisfies New York's legal standard for slander. Zurich Ins. Co. v Shearson Lehman Hutton, Inc., 84 N.Y.2d 309, 618 N.Y.S.2d 609, 642 N.E.2d 1065, 1994 N.Y. LEXIS 3380 (N.Y. 1994).

Insurer would be required to indemnify insured for punitive damages awarded in Georgia slander action where Georgia law at time of action permitted jury to award "additional damages to deter the wrongdoer...or as compensation for the wounded feelings of the plaintiff," trial court charged jury that punitive damage award could include both punitive and compensatory elements, and there was evidence to support each element; only when damage award is of "punitive nature" is indemnification precluded by New York policy. Zurich Ins. Co. v Shearson Lehman Hutton, Inc., 84 N.Y.2d 309, 618 N.Y.S.2d 609, 642 N.E.2d 1065, 1994 N.Y. LEXIS 3380 (N.Y. 1994).

Where person driving car rented from self-insured rental company was involved in accident, causing injury to third person, rental company could not seek indemnification from renters to extent that damage fell below minimum insurance that company was required to provide for benefit of permissive users under CLS Veh & Tr § 370(1); however, indemnification clause of rental contract, if otherwise valid, was enforceable as to amounts exceeding statutory minimums. ELRAC, Inc. v Ward, 96 N.Y.2d 58, 724 N.Y.S.2d 692, 748 N.E.2d 1, 2001 N.Y. LEXIS 695 (N.Y. 2001).

In insured's action for judgment declaring that liability insurer had duty to indemnify it with respect to settlement reached by it in action for negligence and products liability, insured was not entitled to summary judgment based on court's holding that liability insurer had duty to defend it in underlying action as matter of law since (1) existence of duty to defend is not synonymous with duty to indemnify, (2) duty to indemnify is determined by actual basis for insured's liability to third person, and (3) issue of what portion of claim against insured, if any, was excluded from coverage under terms of policy had not been adjudicated. Apache Foam Products Div. of Millmaster Onyx Group of Kewanee Industries, Inc. v Continental Ins. Co., 139 A.D.2d 933, 528 N.Y.S.2d 448, 1988 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4199 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1988).

When judgment debtor, whose tort liability is purely derivative, has right to full indemnification from another judgment debtor, whose tort liability is primary, and where both judgment debtors are insured under policies which cover same risk, insurance furnished to passive tortfeasor is excess to that furnished to active tortfeasor. Liberty Mut. Ins. Co. v Aetna Casualty & Surety Co., 168 A.D.2d 121, 571 N.Y.S.2d 735, 1991 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8047 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1991).

In declaratory judgment action to determine obligations of various insurance companies with regard to underlying personal injury action, personal excess liability policy issued to husband of operator of vehicle at fault was layer of insurance to be used to satisfy judgment before most of policy issued to owner-lessor of vehicle, where policy issued to owner-lessor provided for $1 million in over-all coverage but only $100,000 coverage for lessee, since owner-lessor, which was passive tortfeasor, was entitled to full indemnification from operator, who was active tortfeasor. Liberty Mut. Ins. Co. v Aetna Casualty & Surety Co., 168 A.D.2d 121, 571 N.Y.S.2d 735, 1991 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8047 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1991).

Trucking company's insurer was required to reimburse manufacturer's insurer for ½ of settlement paid to injured worker who brought negligence action against both trucking company and manufacturer for injuries he sustained while unloading manufacturer's merchandise from trucking company's truck where (1) under "business auto policy" issued by manufacturer's insurer, trailer owner was additional insured, (2) under "trucker's policy" issued by trucking company's insurer, manufacturer was additional insured, (3) policy limits of policies were identical, and (4) terms of each policy specified that it was excess insurance; since different insurers provided coverage for same interest and against same risk, concurrent coverage existed. Federal Ins. Co. v Empire Mut. Ins. Co., 181 A.D.2d 568, 581 N.Y.S.2d 56, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3899 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1992).

New York State Insurance Fund was entitled to summary judgment dismissing action by contractor's insurance company for judgment declaring that state fund was obligated to reimburse insurer for costs it incurred in action against contractor by workers who sustained job-related injuries, where insurer claimed that state fund, as contractor's workers' compensation carrier, failed to fulfill its alleged contractual liability to defend contractor in workers' actions; in absence of common-law indemnity claim against contractor (which contractor's insurer was barred from asserting), insurer had no independent basis on which to seek contribution from state fund. Avalanche Wrecking Corp. v New York State Ins. Fund, 211 A.D.2d 551, 621 N.Y.S.2d 74, 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 531 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1995).

Plaintiff, as subcontractor's general liability insurer, was entitled to recoup from State Insurance Fund (subcontractor's employer's liability insurer) ½ of reasonable amounts it expended for defense and settlement of third-party action against subcontractor, as they were co-insurers of subcontractor in that they both insured subcontractor for damages arising out of bodily injury, and exclusion in employer's liability policy against contractually assumed indemnification claims did not bar coverage because included common-law liability and excluded contractual liability may co-exist; immediate trial was ordered pursuant to CLS CPLR § 3212(c) to determine reasonableness of plaintiff's decision to pay $125,000 of $185,000 settlement on behalf of subcontractor, as well as amount and reasonableness of defense costs paid by plaintiff. National Union Fire Ins. Co. v State Ins. Fund, 222 A.D.2d 369, 636 N.Y.S.2d 31, 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13761 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1995).

In personal injury action arising from accident that occurred when rented van was being operated by person who was not authorized by rental agreement to drive it, lessee of van was not entitled to summary judgment on lessor's counterclaim for contractual indemnification even though indemnity clause of parties' rental agreement did not comply with CLS Gen Bus § 396-z, as § 396-z did not apply where lessor had withdrawn portion of its counterclaim involving property damage to rented vehicle, and no other property claims were asserted. Layaw v Maguire Ford-Lincoln-Mercury, 219 A.D.2d 73, 639 N.Y.S.2d 544, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2788 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1996).

In action against hotel under CLS Labor § 240, brought by contractor's employee who was injured while working at hotel, coverage was not barred by exclusion against contractually-assumed indemnification claims in contractor's commercial general liability insurance policy, which named hotel as additional insured pursuant to contractual obligation to indemnify hotel for negligence of contractor, since included common-law liability and excluded contractual liability may coexist. White v Hotel D'Artistes, 230 A.D.2d 657, 646 N.Y.S.2d 793, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8624 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1996).

Insurer was entitled to summary judgment for indemnification from insurance agency that issued binder to insured providing coverage for nonowned vehicles where insurer thus became obligated to indemnify and defend insured for accident that occurred during effective period of binder, whereas policy later issued excluded coverage for nonowned vehicles. Bennacer v Travelers Ins. Co., 265 A.D.2d 823, 695 N.Y.S.2d 846, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9860 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1999), app. denied, 94 N.Y.2d 763, 708 N.Y.S.2d 52, 729 N.E.2d 709, 2000 N.Y. LEXIS 550 (N.Y. 2000).

General liability insurer was not obligated under its policy to pay judgment on behalf of construction company, and thus insurer was entitled to summary judgment declaring that State Insurance Fund was obligated—under workers' compensation and employers' liability policy that it issued to company covering common-law indemnification claims—to reimburse general liability insurer for money spent in settling underlying action, where city did not have valid contractual indemnification claim against company. National Union Fire Ins. Co. v State Ins. Fund, 266 A.D.2d 518, 699 N.Y.S.2d 111, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12246 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1999).

In personal injury action by worker at construction site in which defendant subcontractor asserted third-party action based on codefendant subcontractor's alleged breach of contractual obligation to have it named as additional insured on general liability insurance policy, summary judgment dismissing third-party complaint should have been granted to insurance broker which issued certificate of insurance naming defendant subcontractor as additional insured where (1) certificate contained disclaimer stating that it was issued for information only and did not confer any rights on certificate holder or extend or amend policy's coverage, (2) as such, certificate did not constitute contract to insure nor was it conclusive proof, standing alone, that such contract existed, and (3) while broker may have arguably breached its duty to its client, it could not be held liable to additional insured, to whom it owed no duty. St. George v W.J. Barney Corp., 270 A.D.2d 171, 706 N.Y.S.2d 24, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3305 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2000).

Third-party plaintiff was entitled to indemnification by third-party defendant for all damages caused by third-party defendant's negligent referral of underlying claim to wrong insurer—that is, costs of defense and indemnity equivalent to what insurer would have provided if it had been timely notified, and reasonable costs of prosecuting third-party action as reasonable effort to mitigate damages. Martini v Lafayette Studio Corp., 273 A.D.2d 112, 710 N.Y.S.2d 39, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7176 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2000).

Underlying plaintiff's injury was "caused intentionally by" insured under homeowner's liability policy, and thus insurer was entitled to judgment declaring that it had no duty of indemnification, where insured's intentional act was intended to cause injury, albeit less serious than that suffered, and it did not matter that amount of damages awarded was reduced by 20 percent for comparative negligence. Farina v Security Mut. Ins. Co., 273 A.D.2d 845, 709 N.Y.S.2d 304, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6886 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 2000).

Although neither public policy nor CLS Veh & Tr §§ 370 and 388 prohibited self-insured rental car agency from disclaiming any part of its liability to injured pedestrian that exceeded amount for which motor vehicle owners were required to be insured and from seeking indemnification for such sums under parties' agreement, public policy barred agency from obtaining indemnification from operator of rental car that hit pedestrian where agency's liability to pedestrian had been fixed settlement with pedestrian for sum that was less than required coverage. Snorac, Inc. v Skura, 273 A.D.2d 886, 709 N.Y.S.2d 311, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6952 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 2000).

Insurer was not required to defend or indemnify insured regarding underlying action by insured's injured employee where insurer properly disclaimed coverage based on insured's failure to provide timely notice of claim, insured's delay of 2 years and 10 months in providing notice of claim was unreasonable as matter of law, insurer was not obligated to disclaim coverage until insured provided notice of accident or claim, and disclaimer in insurer's answer was timely notice of disclaimer. Roofing Consultants, Inc. v Scottsdale Ins. Co., 273 A.D.2d 933, 709 N.Y.S.2d 782, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6715 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't), app. denied, 95 N.Y.2d 770, 722 N.Y.S.2d 473, 745 N.E.2d 393, 2000 N.Y. LEXIS 3859 (N.Y. 2000).

Insured was entitled to summary judgment declaring that insurer had to indemnify it in underlying personal injury action where additional insured clause of policy limited such coverage "to liability arising out of 'your work'...by or for you," and that language was broad enough to cover injury to carpentry subcontractor who fell on electrical cable at insured's construction site. Structure Tone, Inc. v Component Assembly Sys., 275 A.D.2d 603, 713 N.Y.S.2d 161, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9030 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2000).

Insurer was required to defend and indemnify insured law partners in underlying legal malpractice action against them where (1) at time of their insurance renewal application, they lacked actual or constructive knowledge that their former associate had mishandled personal injury case, (2) former associate concealed his misconduct, and there was no basis for imputing it to partners, and (3) thus, partner who inquired of his partners and associates at time of renewal application truthfully told insurer that no circumstances had been reported that would result in malpractice claim. Holloway v Sacks & Sacks, 275 A.D.2d 625, 713 N.Y.S.2d 162, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9278 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't), app. denied, 95 N.Y.2d 770, 722 N.Y.S.2d 473, 745 N.E.2d 394, 2000 N.Y. LEXIS 3912 (N.Y. 2000).

Liability insurer had no duty to defend or indemnify insured for any claims against him by woman injured in slip and fall in bed of insured's pickup truck where (1) insured initially told insurer that woman fell while truck was parked and not moving and that he was not present at time of fall, (2) over one year later, after woman notified insurer that she intended to make liability claim against insured, insured told insurer that he was operating truck when woman fell, (3) insured's failure to make fair and truthful disclosures in reporting incident was breach of cooperation clause of insurance policy, and (4) insurer was not required to show prejudice as result of insured's lack of cooperation in order to prove its entitlement to summary judgment. Nationwide Mut. Ins. Co. v Graham, 275 A.D.2d 1012, 713 N.Y.S.2d 602, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9608 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 2000).

In proceeding to vacate arbitration award which denied, as time-barred, petitioner's claim to recover for workers' compensation and medical expense benefits paid to employee of its insured who was injured in accident involving car insured by respondent, court correctly held that arbitrator's acceptance of respondent's statute of limitations defense was subject to judicial review under arbitrary and capricious standard, and that it was arbitrary and capricious of arbitrator not to follow clear precedent establishing that claims like petitioner's were subject to 3-year limitations period that commenced on date of petitioner's first payment to injured party, not on date of injury, and only precluded recovery of payments made more than 3 years prior to commencement of suit. State Ins. Fund v Country-Wide Ins. Co., 276 A.D.2d 432, 715 N.Y.S.2d 15, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10752 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2000).

In action arising from collision involving vehicle rented by insured while one of her 2 cars was being repaired, question of fact existed as to whether rental vehicle qualified as "other motor vehicle," precluding summary judgment on issue of insurance carrier's obligation to indemnify rental agency, where undisputed evidence showed that insured had picked up rental vehicle because one of her cars was to be undergoing repair work 2 days later and she planned to let her daughter use her other car at same time, raising issue as to which of her cars rental vehicle was intended to replace. Pahl v Grenier, 277 A.D.2d 681, 715 N.Y.S.2d 124, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11963 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2000).

Insurer was entitled to summary judgment declaring that it was not obligated to defend and indemnify insureds in underlying personal injury action where insureds' 15-month delay in notifying insurer of accident was not excused by their allegedly good-faith, albeit mistaken, beliefs that (1) loss was not covered by insurance policy, (2) notification of their insurance agent was notification of insurer, and (3) their attorney had communicated with attorney for injured party. Travelers Indem. Co. v Worthy, 281 A.D.2d 411, 721 N.Y.S.2d 400, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2073 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2001).

Insurer was entitled to summary judgment declaring that it was not obligated to defend and indemnify insureds in underlying personal injury action where injured party did not provide insurer with written notice of claim, and insurer was not required to cite that failure to notify in its letter disclaiming coverage. Travelers Indem. Co. v Worthy, 281 A.D.2d 411, 721 N.Y.S.2d 400, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2073 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2001).

Lessor of car involved in accident was entitled to summary judgment declaring that insurer was obligated to defend and indemnify it in underlying action where (1) driver, as lessee under lease for period greater than 30 days (2 years), was owner of car under CLS Veh & Tr § 128, (2) thus, insurance regulations in 11 NYCRR § 60-1.1 applied, and (3) any attempt by insurer to disclaim coverage through language of limiting provision of insurance policy was unenforceable as against public policy. GE Capital Auto Lease, Inc. v Allstate Ins. Co., 281 A.D.2d 456, 722 N.Y.S.2d 549, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2400 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't), app. denied, 97 N.Y.2d 654, 737 N.Y.S.2d 54, 762 N.E.2d 932, 2001 N.Y. LEXIS 3472 (N.Y. 2001), app. denied, 98 N.Y.2d 671, 746 N.Y.S.2d 458, 774 N.E.2d 223, 2002 N.Y. LEXIS 1471 (N.Y. 2002).

Insurers were obligated to defend and indemnify insured in underlying action where insured showed good-faith, reasonable belief in its nonliability so as to excuse its 8-month delay in notifying insurers of accident; neither manner in which accident occurred, apparently trivial nature of injury, nor medical treatment rendered would have made prudent person believe that personal injury claim would be pursued. Abbey Richmond Ambulance Serv. v Northbrook Prop. & Cas. Ins. Co., 281 A.D.2d 501, 721 N.Y.S.2d 796, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4195 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't), app. denied, 96 N.Y.2d 897, 730 N.Y.S.2d 793, 756 N.E.2d 81, 2001 N.Y. LEXIS 1966 (N.Y. 2001).

Insured was entitled to summary judgment declaring that insurers were obligated to defend and indemnify it in underlying personal injury action where (1) insurers sent letter notifying insured that they would not defend it with respect to any causes of action that might be asserted against it arising from injuries sustained by one of its employees, (2) because that letter served as repudiation of insurers' liability, insured was excused from further compliance with its obligations under policy, (3) thus, insurers could not rely on insured's later noncompliance as defense to third-party action in which insured sought that insurers were obligated to defend and indemnify it in personal injury action by employee in which insured was impleaded. Am. Ref-Fuel Co. v Res. Recycling, Inc., 281 A.D.2d 573, 722 N.Y.S.2d 570, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3491 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2001).

Plaintiff was entitled to summary judgment declaring that defendant was obligated to indemnify plaintiff's insureds in underlying action where defendant's unexplained 42-day delay in disclaiming coverage was unreasonable as matter of law under CLS Ins § 3420(d), and although additional evidence submitted by defendant on later motion to reargue tended to explain part of delay, that evidence should have been submitted earlier and thus could not be relied on. Faas v N.Y. Cent. Mut. Fire Ins. Co., 281 A.D.2d 586, 722 N.Y.S.2d 173, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3079 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2001).

Insurer was not required to defend or indemnify insured in underlying action where (1) general commercial liability policy covered only bodily injury and property damage, (2) underlying action was for economic loss resulting from need to remove asbestos-containing adhesive from school, (3) underlying complaint alleged causes of action for lost profits, extra costs due to delay and performance of extra work, breach of contract, breach of warranty, negligence, negligent representation, fraud, and false advertising, and (4) plaintiff in underlying action did not own school at which adhesive was used, and thus did not seek to recover for property damage. Structural Bldg. Prods. Corp. v Business Ins. Agency, Inc., 281 A.D.2d 617, 722 N.Y.S.2d 559, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3055 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2001).

Insurer was not required to defend or indemnify insured in connection with underlying cause of action alleging that insured engaged in false advertising and misleading trade practices when it made written statements that its adhesive was asbestos-free where (1) "Advertising Liability Offense" section of general commercial liability policy provided coverage for damages from "advertising offense," (2) that term was defined as "injury incurred in the course of the [insured's] advertising activities" if injury arose from "libel, slander, defamation, violation of a right to privacy, piracy, unfair completion or infringement of copyright, title or slogan," and (3) underlying complaint did not allege any facts that would bring it within policy coverage so defined. Structural Bldg. Prods. Corp. v Business Ins. Agency, Inc., 281 A.D.2d 617, 722 N.Y.S.2d 559, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3055 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2001).

In action for personal injuries sustained in fall on property owned by defendant and leased to plaintiff's employer, employer was not entitled to dismissal, under CLS CPLR § 3211(a)(7), of defendant's third-party complaint, which alleged causes of action for indemnification/contribution and breach of lease provision requiring employer to procure liability insurance naming owner as additional insured, where employer's arguments for dismissal —that plaintiff did not sustain "grave injury" as defined in CLS Work Comp § 11 and that employer did procure insurance naming owner as additional insured—raised defenses that were not germane to resolution of § 3211(a)(7) motion, focus of which is solely on sufficiency of allegations of complaint. Wilt v Brunswick Plaza L.L.C., 281 A.D.2d 840, 722 N.Y.S.2d 610, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2995 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2001).

In action for personal injuries sustained in fall on property owned by defendant and leased to plaintiff's employer, who moved for dismissal, under CLS CPLR § 3211(a)(7), of defendant's third-party complaint, which alleged causes of action for indemnification/contribution and breach of lease provision requiring employer to procure liability insurance naming owner as additional insured, even if motion were treated as one for summary judgment, it would have to be denied where there was no evidence that plaintiff's injuries arose "out of and in course of [her] employment" under CLS Work Comp § 10(1) or that defendant was being defended and indemnified by insurer that issued policy naming defendant as additional insured. Wilt v Brunswick Plaza L.L.C., 281 A.D.2d 840, 722 N.Y.S.2d 610, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2995 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2001).

Defendant insurer could not seek contribution from plaintiff insurer via defendant's excess policy where (1) that policy was expressly excess only as against primary coverage, (2) excess policy issued by plaintiff was expressly excess as against all coverage, including excess coverage, and (3) those insurance policy provisions were controlling, rather than insurance procurement provisions of subcontract between plaintiff general contractor and injured party's employer; thus, plaintiffs were entitled to summary judgment declaring that (1) defendant had to indemnify its insured for payment of any amount above plaintiff insurer's primary policy limit and within limits of defendant's policy necessary to satisfy judgment in underlying action, and (2) policy limits of defendant's excess policy had to be exhausted before plaintiff insurer would be obligated under its excess policy. Travelers Indem. Co. v Am. & Foreign Ins. Co., 286 A.D.2d 626, 730 N.Y.S.2d 231, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8595 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2001).

Plaintiff injured in motor vehicle accident involving taxi cab was entitled to summary judgment declaring that cab owner's insurer was required to provide liability insurance protection to owner under CLS Veh & Tr § 388 for any injuries sustained by plaintiff as result of cab passengers' negligence use of cab where (1) passengers' act of opening cab door in order to exit was "use and operation" of cab under § 388, (2) thus, owner would be liable for plaintiff's injuries if passengers' "use and operation" were negligent, and (3) under liability policy issued by insurer to owner, insurer was required to provide coverage to owner under such circumstances. Cohn v Nationwide Mut. Ins. Co., 286 A.D.2d 699, 730 N.Y.S.2d 152, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8548 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2001).

In personal injury action, defendant owner of leased premises was entitled to summary judgment declaring that insured was contractually bound to indemnify it where lease required insured to procure insurance for benefit of "owner" of premises and defined "owner" as, inter alia, "the owner of the fee" of demised premises. Wilson v Commer. Envelope Mfg. Co., 286 A.D.2d 731, 730 N.Y.S.2d 352, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8551 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2001), app. dismissed, 98 N.Y.2d 737, 751 N.Y.S.2d 840, 781 N.E.2d 904, 2002 N.Y. LEXIS 2834 (N.Y. 2002).

In personal injury action, defendant owner of leased premises was entitled to summary judgment declaring that insurer was required to defend and indemnify it where (1) lease required insured to procure insurance for benefit of "owner" of premises and defined "owner" as, inter alia, "the owner of the fee" of demised premises, and (2) insurance contract required insurer to defend and indemnify "any...organization with whom [insured] agreed, because of a written contract or agreement or permit to provide insurance." Wilson v Commer. Envelope Mfg. Co., 286 A.D.2d 731, 730 N.Y.S.2d 352, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8551 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2001), app. dismissed, 98 N.Y.2d 737, 751 N.Y.S.2d 840, 781 N.E.2d 904, 2002 N.Y. LEXIS 2834 (N.Y. 2002).

Plaintiff, which obtained liability insurance for its business through defendant insurance broker at excessive cost and with unwanted exclusion, allegedly due to defendant's fraudulent misrepresentations and negligence, was entitled to directed verdict against defendant on liability issue in action seeking indemnification for cost to settle action by insurer against plaintiff for nonpayment of premiums since defendant's negligence in understating plaintiff's payroll to insurer was proximate cause of plaintiff's injury; jury verdict that defendant was negligent in having bound plaintiff to insurance obtained, but that defendant's negligence was not proximate cause of plaintiff's injury, was defective since, if defendant had negligently bound plaintiff to insurance in question, that negligence without doubt was proximate cause of injury (obligation to pay insurer). Trans World Maintenance Services, Inc. v Accident Prevention Brokerage Corp., 148 Misc. 2d 518, 560 N.Y.S.2d 914, 1989 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 889 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1989), aff'd, 169 A.D.2d 519, 564 N.Y.S.2d 375, 1991 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 384 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1991).

Veterinary clinic was entitled to summary judgment declaring that its insurer was required to indemnify it for expenses of appealing jury verdict that found it liable for statements made about discharged veterinarian in form letter sent to more than 40 clients who requested that their pets' medical records be sent to discharged veterinarian at her new practice, where policy required insurer to defend any lawsuit seeking damages arising out of "advertising injury" caused in course of advertising "goods, products or services"; form letter in question involved advertising activity where it solicited continuation of business by calling attention to quality of care and services available at clinic. Berman v General Accident Ins. Co. of Am., 176 Misc. 2d 13, 671 N.Y.S.2d 619, 1998 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 63 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1998).

Insurance company which afforded premises owner coverage for bodily injury claims was not entitled to summary judgment on common-law indemnification claim against construction contractor, seeking to recoup amount it paid to satisfy personal injury judgment obtained against premises owner in excess of applicable policy limits, where it failed to prove, as matter of law, that premises owner was only vicariously liable under Labor Law, and that contractor was wholly responsible for causing accident in question. Travelers Ins. Co. v Nory Constr. Co., 184 Misc. 2d 366, 708 N.Y.S.2d 252, 2000 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 137 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 2000), app. dismissed, 281 A.D.2d 955, 722 N.Y.S.2d 209, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. Contractor was entitled to judgment in its third-party action, filed pursuant to N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420, seeking to compel an insurance fund to indemnify its insured, a subcontractor, in a suit in which the subcontractor was found liable for causing work-related injuries sustained by its employee; the fund's policy excluded only liability assumed under contract and did not exclude from coverage the subcontractor's contractual waiver of the defense in N.Y. Workers' Comp. Law § 11. Bowker v NVR, Inc., 39 A.D.3d 1162, 834 N.Y.S.2d 798, 2007 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4937 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't), app. denied, 42 A.D.3d 976, 838 N.Y.S.2d 456, 2007 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8278 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 2007).

In determining what constitutes payment under indemnity policy, test in New York is whether assured has actually in good faith sustained loss for which reimbursement is sought, and insurer's obligation to indemnify may not be avoided because of assured's insolvency; thus, indemnifiable payment entails (1) satisfaction of claim and (2) absorption of some loss thereby by insured, (3) both in good faith. Dicola v American S.S. Owners Mut. Protection & Indem. Assoc. (In re Prudential Lines), 158 F.3d 65, 1998 U.S. App. LEXIS 24614 (2d Cir. N.Y. 1998).

Under New York law, insurer's obligation to pay under indemnity policy "does not arise until after the insured suffers an actual monetary loss." Dicola v American S.S. Owners Mut. Protection & Indem. Assoc. (In re Prudential Lines), 158 F.3d 65, 1998 U.S. App. LEXIS 24614 (2d Cir. N.Y. 1998).

If on remand insured were able to establish to satisfaction of trier of fact that (1) insurer issued blanket denial of coverage, and (2) insured's remediation costs were in response to governmental compulsion, insured would be entitled to indemnity from insurer on those costs, not limited to sums incurred in settlement of lawsuits. Texaco A/S (Den.) v Commercial Ins. Co., 160 F.3d 124, 1998 U.S. App. LEXIS 28240 (2d Cir. N.Y. 1998).

195. Subrogation among tortfeasors and insurers

Although insurance company that has indemnified its insured is entitled to subrogation against tortfeasor responsible for loss, insurer has no right of subrogation against its own insured. Judge Motor Corp. v Graham, 144 A.D.2d 998, 534 N.Y.S.2d 303, 1988 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 14538 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1988).

Rule that insurer has no right of subrogation against its own insured did not apply to declaratory judgment action by insurance company to determine its rights and obligations under automobile insurance policy, even though insurance company postulated existence of right to be subrogated to rights of its insured against another who could be considered to be additional insured under policy, since case was declaratory judgment action, rather than subrogation action, and there was no possibility that action could result in monetary award against any insured party. Liberty Mut. Ins. Co. v Aetna Casualty & Surety Co., 168 A.D.2d 121, 571 N.Y.S.2d 735, 1991 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8047 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1991).

In action under CLS Labor § 240 in which defendant city was found vicariously liable as owner for injuries sustained by worker in course of performing work for contractor on public works project, insurer which issued separate insurance policies to contractor—one of which protected city from claims arising out of activities of contractor and one which provided general liability coverage to contractor with respect to its own activities—was not subrogated to city's right to contractual indemnification against contractor, so as to enable it to shift some of loss to contractor's workers' compensation carrier by paying claim under contractual indemnification provision of contractor's general liability policy, since insurer may not be subrogated to claim against its own insured where claim arises out of incident for which insurer's policy covers that insured. Prince v City of New York, 189 A.D.2d 33, 594 N.Y.S.2d 235, 1993 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2175 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't), aff'd sub. nom., North Star Reinsurance Corp. v Continental Ins. Co., 82 N.Y.2d 281, 604 N.Y.S.2d 510, 624 N.E.2d 647, 1993 N.Y. LEXIS 3898 (N.Y. 1993).

Plaintiff liability insurer, which on eve of trial of negligence action it was defending based on fall at insured's shopping center discovered that its policy contained exclusion for shopping center injuries, but which then settled action, acted as volunteer and was therefore precluded from seeking subrogation against defendant coinsurer, whose policy provided personal liability coverage for accident, since (1) even though plaintiff became legally obligated by having undertaken defense of action, its own mistakes and negligence gave rise to obligation to pay loss and such negligence could not create rights against third party, (2) plaintiff could not recover against defendant as equitable subrogee based solely on defendant's contractual liability because defendant was not negligent and did not cause insured's loss, and (3) there was no basis for finding of indemnity based on equitable estoppel because nothing that defendant did was relied on by plaintiff before it settled claim. National Union Fire Ins. Co. v Ranger Ins. Co., 190 A.D.2d 395, 599 N.Y.S.2d 347, 1993 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5787 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1993).

Insurer was entitled to summary judgment in amount of $7,000 as against injured insureds where (1) it paid $8,750 to insureds in settlement of their uninsured motorist claim and obtained release and trust agreement providing that it would be subrogated to insureds' rights against remaining tortfeasors, and that it would be reimbursed for settlement it paid to insureds from any judgment or settlement they obtained against any tortfeasor involved in accident whether or not that tortfeasor was uninsured motorist, and (2) insureds settled with third-party tortfeasor for $7,000 without protecting insurer's right to subrogation. Nationwide Mut. Ins. Co. v Sinclair, 217 A.D.2d 686, 629 N.Y.S.2d 812, 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8205 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1995).

In personal injury action by lessee of van that overturned while being driven by person who was not authorized by rental agreement, lessee was not entitled to summary judgment on lessor's counterclaim alleging that it was entitled to indemnification because lessee breached rental agreement by allowing unauthorized person to drive van; even though lessee was insured by same liability insurer as lessor, there was no inherent risk that insurer would be able to pass incidence of loss from itself to its insured by recouping insurance proceeds from its insured, and thus anti-subrogation rule did not apply, where indemnification clause of rental agreement limited indemnification by lessee to damages in excess of limits of liability provided for in liability insurance purchased by lessor, and lessor's right to be indemnified by lessee did not accrue until coverage under policy was exhausted. Layaw v Maguire Ford-Lincoln-Mercury, 219 A.D.2d 73, 639 N.Y.S.2d 544, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2788 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1996).

Court erred in dismissing subrogation action on ground that, in executing general release, plaintiff's insured failed to reserve plaintiff's subrogation rights against defendant since unambiguous reservation of insured's claim for underinsurance benefits from insurer encompassed reservation of insurer's right to subrogation. Hanover Ins. Co. v Finnerty, 225 A.D.2d 1054, 639 N.Y.S.2d 433, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2887 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1996).

In subrogation action, court properly denied plaintiff's motion to amend complaint to assert cause of action for implied indemnification. Hanover Ins. Co. v Finnerty, 225 A.D.2d 1054, 639 N.Y.S.2d 433, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2887 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1996).

Insurer could be subrogated to rights of property owner and general contractor—2 of its insureds—in its attempt to recoup from subcontractor claim that insurer had paid on behalf of property owner and general contractor, where insurer never undertook to insure subcontractor and did not do so. Fitch v Turner Constr. Co., 241 A.D.2d 166, 671 N.Y.S.2d 446, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3385 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1998).

Subrogation action commenced by town's insurance carrier, seeking to recover moneys paid to town for loss allegedly resulting from defendant's misconduct when she was employed as court clerk, accrued when town discovered that funds were missing and was sufficiently convinced of defendant's responsibility that it demanded and received her resignation, not when state audit subsequently revealed discrepancies in town's financial records and fixed town's liability therefor, as formal determination of town's liability to state was not condition precedent to its right of action against defendant. Utica Mut. Ins. Co. v Avery, 261 A.D.2d 802, 690 N.Y.S.2d 760, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5558 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), app. denied, 93 N.Y.2d 818, 697 N.Y.S.2d 566, 719 N.E.2d 927, 1999 N.Y. LEXIS 2977 (N.Y. 1999).

Subrogation action to recover benefits paid under general liability insurance policy issued to negligent parties was properly dismissed, even though notice of cancellation issued by defendant insurer of negligent parties did not comply with CLS Ins § 3426(c) and thus was ineffective, where insureds never obtained endorsement providing coverage for subject construction project as required by terms of policy, and there was no basis for application of waiver or estoppel against defendant insurer. Home Ins. Co. v North Am. Specialty Ins. Co., 273 A.D.2d 443, 709 N.Y.S.2d 624, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7423 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't), app. denied, 95 N.Y.2d 770, 722 N.Y.S.2d 473, 745 N.E.2d 393, 2000 N.Y. LEXIS 3874 (N.Y. 2000).

Landlord was entitled to summary judgment dismissing action by tenant's insurer for negligence and breach of contract where those claims were precluded by "waiver of subrogation" clause in insurance policy issued by insurer to tenant. Atl. Mut. Ins. Co. v Soiefer Bros. Realty Corp., 281 A.D.2d 441, 721 N.Y.S.2d 554, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2322 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2001).

In action brought by contractor's employee against building owner for injuries sustained while working at owner's building, contractor's insurer could not seek subrogation against contractor where contractor carried general liability policy naming owner as additional insured, which provided that contractor would hold owner harmless against all claims asserted by employees; as such, contractor's broad duty to indemnify owner under construction contract was insured by insurer. Leyden v Square Arch Realty Corp., 164 Misc. 2d 769, 626 N.Y.S.2d 352, 1995 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 176 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1995).

In subrogation action stemming from motor vehicle accident, defendant was not entitled to vacatur of default judgment entered against him on ground that he was improperly served with summons and complaint at his former address, as defendant was estopped from claiming improper service based on wrong address where he had failed to notify Department of Motor Vehicles in writing of his new address pursuant to CLS Veh & Tr § 505(5). USAA Cas. Ins. Co. v Singh, 171 Misc. 2d 960, 656 N.Y.S.2d 129, 1997 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 103 (N.Y. Civ. Ct. 1997), rev'd, 184 Misc. 2d 296, 714 N.Y.S.2d 627, 2000 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 181 (N.Y. App. Term 2000).

Insurer's subrogation action against defendants, seeking to recover additional personal injury protection benefits paid to its own insureds, was subject to 3-year statute of limitations applicable to underlying tort, and thus was time barred where it action was commenced nearly 6 years after date of accident. Nationwide Mut. Ins. Co. v Schwartz, 172 Misc. 2d 503, 660 N.Y.S.2d 623, 1997 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 287 (N.Y. App. Term 1997).

CLS Ins §§ 5104(b) and 5105(a) did not bar insurer's equitable subrogation claim to recover remaining amount in excess of nonrecoverable $50,000 (meaning, first $50,000 of no-fault benefits paid to its insured); statutes only apply to "first party benefits" paid by insurer to insured under insurance policy. Allstate Ins. Co. v Mazzola, 175 F.3d 255, 1999 U.S. App. LEXIS 8187 (2d Cir. N.Y. 1999).

If defendant driver and vehicle owner effected settlement and release of liability from injured passenger without consent from passenger's insurer, and with actual or constructive knowledge that insurer had already paid benefits to passenger and thus obtained subrogation rights, release did not preclude insurer's right of subrogation against defendants. Allstate Ins. Co. v Mazzola, 175 F.3d 255, 1999 U.S. App. LEXIS 8187 (2d Cir. N.Y. 1999).

196. —Anti-subrogation rule

Antisubrogation rule promulgated in Pennsylvania Gen. Ins. Co. v Austin Powder Co., 68 NY2d 465, bars claim of indemnity by excess and primary carriers of insurance purchased by owner of leased van against lessee's carrier. Jefferson Ins. Co. v Travelers Indem. Co., 92 N.Y.2d 363, 681 N.Y.S.2d 208, 703 N.E.2d 1221, 1998 N.Y. LEXIS 3664 (N.Y. 1998).

Self-insured car rental companies are not immune from antisubrogation principles; thus, indemnification clause in rental agreement which sought to disclaim self-insured car rental company's duty to provide primary insurance to renters up to statutory minimum liability limits, and to assign risk to renters themselves, was unenforceable to that extent. ELRAC, Inc. v Ward, 96 N.Y.2d 58, 724 N.Y.S.2d 692, 748 N.E.2d 1, 2001 N.Y. LEXIS 695 (N.Y. 2001).

In action arising under state construction contract wherein insurer, as state's subrogee, sought indemnification from contractor in connection with work-related injury sustained by contractor's employee, it was error to grant summary judgment to contractor, which had purchased owner's and contractor's protective liability policy as well as general contractor's liability policy from insurer pursuant to its contract with state, where contractor failed to come forward with evidentiary proof either that both policies covered same risk, or that insurer was seeking indemnification for claim arising from risk for which it had insured contractor, and that antisubrogation rule therefore applied. State v U.W. Marx, Inc., 209 A.D.2d 784, 618 N.Y.S.2d 135, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10863 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1994).

Plaintiff insurer was not entitled to declaratory judgment that defendant insurer was co-insurer of third party defendant in underlying personal injury action where (1) plaintiff was insurer of third party defendant at time of accident, and defendant was workers' compensation carrier for third party defendant at time of accident, and (2) insurer assumed defense of defendant and third party defendant in underlying action, and reached settlement which was approved by defendant; antisubrogation rule applied since double representation in underlying action created potential conflict of interest. National Union Fire Ins. Co. v State Ins. Fund, 213 A.D.2d 164, 623 N.Y.S.2d 558, 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2366 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1995).

"Antisubrogation rule" did not apply to preclude subcontractor's general liability carrier from recouping from State Insurance Fund, as subcontractor's employer's liability insurer, portion of monies expended to defend and settle general contractor's third-party action against subcontractor, as general contractor's insurance carrier, not general contractor, was real party in interest in prosecuting third-party action and, by causing third-party action to be commenced against subcontractor, general contractor's insurance carrier did not seek to recover from its own insured but rather from third-party stranger to its insurance policy. National Union Fire Ins. Co. v State Ins. Fund, 222 A.D.2d 369, 636 N.Y.S.2d 31, 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13761 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1995).

In action by plaintiffs who were injured while operating leased equipment, antisubrogation rule required dismissal of equipment lessor's third-party action alleging that accident was caused by lessee's negligent placement of equipment, where equipment lessee was covered as additional insured under lessor's comprehensive liability policy and, because of insurer's untimely disclaimer of coverage, both lessor and lessee were covered by same insurer for same risk despite their differing interests. Nuzzo v Griffin Tech., 222 A.D.2d 184, 643 N.Y.S.2d 802, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6777 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1996), app. denied, 91 N.Y.2d 802, 666 N.Y.S.2d 564, 669 N.E.2d 534, 1997 N.Y. LEXIS 4164 (N.Y. 1997).

Workers' compensation/employers' liability insurance carrier was entitled to summary judgment declaring that general liability insurer had no right of reimbursement with respect to settlement which it paid to contractor's employee in his personal injury action against owner of premises where accident occurred, where owner was named as additional insured on contractor's general liability policy; fact that general liability insurer refused to defend or indemnify owner in underlying personal injury action and owner therefore retained its own counsel and commenced third-party action against contractor, who was found 100 percent liable for its employee's injuries, did not render anti-subrogation rule inapplicable. National Cas. Co. v State Ins. Fund, 227 A.D.2d 115, 641 N.Y.S.2d 665, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4771 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't), app. denied, 88 N.Y.2d 813, 649 N.Y.S.2d 380, 672 N.E.2d 606, 1996 N.Y. LEXIS 3082 (N.Y. 1996).

In action under CLS Labor § 240(1) by contractor's employee who was injured in fall from elevated height while working at defendant's facility, defendant's third-party action against contractor was barred by antisubrogation rule where, in accordance with parties' contract, contractor had procured commercial general liability insurance policy wherein it was named insured and defendant was named as additional insured and, after commencement of action and defendant's third-party action, liability insurer agreed to provide legal representation to contractor and defendant. Cox v International Paper Co., 234 A.D.2d 757, 651 N.Y.S.2d 230, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12466 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1996).

Antisubrogation rule was applicable and precluded insurer from seeking, through subrogation of vehicle owner's rights, indemnification from driver of vehicle for any payments over $100,000 where insurer, having paid over one million dollars plus interest on behalf of vehicle owner in order to satisfy portion of underlying judgment, simultaneously insured both owner (for $1,000,000) and driver's employer (for $100,000 under "step down" endorsement) for same risk. Liberty Mut. Ins. Co. v Aetna Cas. & Sur. Co., 235 A.D.2d 523, 652 N.Y.S.2d 764, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 674 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't), app. denied, 89 N.Y.2d 817, 659 N.Y.S.2d 857, 681 N.E.2d 1304, 1997 N.Y. LEXIS 1330 (N.Y. 1997).

Underlying defendant's third-party action against insured was not barred by antisubrogation rule where underlying action arose from personal injury to insured's employee, insured's general liability policy excluded coverage for claims arising from personal injury to employee of insured, that exclusion rendered policy inapplicable to loss, and thus antisubrogation rule did not apply. Franklin v Stillwater Hydro Partners, L.P., 255 A.D.2d 998, 679 N.Y.S.2d 494, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12291 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1998).

Antisubrogation rule required summary judgment dismissing third-party action for indemnification where both third-party plaintiff and third-party defendant were named insureds under 2 insurance policies issued by single insurer covering same risk, and thus such double representation created potential conflict of interest to extent that any judgment entered in favor of plaintiffs in main action was covered by limits of subject policies. Glick v Millman Goldberg Pressler Assocs., 263 A.D.2d 497, 692 N.Y.S.2d 745, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8126 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1999).

Antisubrogation rule did not bar action by subrogor-builder's risk insurer seeking to hold defendants liable for damages alleged to have been negligently caused by burst water pipe where (1) policy did not name defendants as insureds, (2) "Additional Property Extension Endorsement" covered loss of "all materials, supplies, equipment and machinery intended for use in and to become a permanent part of construction work," (3) antisubrogation bar operated only to extent of defendants' insurable interest, which was limited to repairs necessitated by burst pipe, and (4) plain language of subrogation waiver endorsement precluded reading that it was self-executing, because it clearly contemplated that such waiver was executory and could only occur at instance of insured. St. Paul Fire & Marine Ins. Co. v L.E.S. Subsurface Plumbing Co., 266 A.D.2d 139, 699 N.Y.S.2d 31, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12324 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1999).

Car rental company was entitled to summary judgment declaring that it was entitled to indemnification by defendant in underlying personal injury action arising from car accident where indemnification clause in rental agreement was valid, company was not primary insurer of car renter, and thus antisubrogation rule did not apply; however, company was not entitled to indemnification by insurer where there was no contractual relationship between them. ELRAC, Inc. v American Home Assur. Co., 273 A.D.2d 344, 710 N.Y.S.2d 91, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7030 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2000), modified, 96 N.Y.2d 58, 724 N.Y.S.2d 692, 748 N.E.2d 1, 2001 N.Y. LEXIS 695 (N.Y. 2001).

Antisubrogation rule barred electrical contractor's third-party action against hotel owner for indemnification regarding its liability, if any, under CLS Labor § 200 or common law to electrician injured while working at hotel, to extent that any verdict for electrician did not exceed limits of liability insurance policy bought by contractor in which owner was named as additional insured, where same insurer covered owner and contractor for same risk—bodily injury caused by contractor's work—and thus there was potential conflict of interest. Yong Ju Kim v Herbert Constr. Co., 275 A.D.2d 709, 713 N.Y.S.2d 190, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9154 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2000).

In subrogation action by insurer which afforded premises owner coverage for bodily injury claims as well as affording construction contractor commercial general liability coverage, construction contractor failed to establish its entitlement to summary judgment on ground that antisubrogation rule barred common-law indemnification cause of action seeking to recoup amount paid by insurer to satisfy judgment obtained against premises owner in excess of applicable policy limits, where contract between premises owner and contractor was not included with parties' motion papers and thus it could not be determined whether such contract contained standard clause requiring contractor to indemnify premises owner such that "insured contract" would apply. Travelers Ins. Co. v Nory Constr. Co., 184 Misc. 2d 366, 708 N.Y.S.2d 252, 2000 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 137 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 2000), app. dismissed, 281 A.D.2d 955, 722 N.Y.S.2d 209, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2693 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 2001), aff'd, 281 A.D.2d 956, 722 N.Y.S.2d 209, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2692 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 2001).

Order granting car lessors a conditional indemnification (as agreed by lessee in rental agreement: an amount over and above the lessors' policy limits) against lessee (who was driving in course of employer's employment) and his employer for plaintiffs' car accident personal injuries was affirmed; under the circumstances, the anti-subrogation rule precluded the lessors from obtaining indemnification from the employee and employer only to the extent of the $50,000 coverage mandated by statute and actually provided by the lessors to the employee pursuant to the rental agreement; however, anti-subrogation principles did not bar the lessor from seeking indemnification for amounts exceeding $50,000. Dunn v Hurtt, 4 A.D.3d 884, 771 N.Y.S.2d 467, 2004 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1409 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't), app. denied, 3 N.Y.3d 601, 782 N.Y.S.2d 404, 816 N.E.2d 194, 2004 N.Y. LEXIS 1559 (N.Y. 2004).

197. Effect of receipt of Workers' Compensation award

Amount payable under arbitration award should have been reduced by amount of workmen's compensation award received by insured person, and fact that workmen's compensation would not be deducted from amount payable to "qualified person" claiming under former § 610 [now § 5210] of Insurance Law does not invalidate specific terms of the submission to arbitration under valid policy endorsement. Durant v Motor Vehicle Acci. Indemnification Corp., 15 N.Y.2d 408, 260 N.Y.S.2d 1, 207 N.E.2d 600, 1965 N.Y. LEXIS 1406 (N.Y.), reh'g denied, 16 N.Y.2d 716, 1965 N.Y. LEXIS 2307 (N.Y. 1965).

An insured under an automobile liability policy is entitled to receive payment of the amount of his medical expenses, under the medical expense provisions of the policy, despite the fact that such medical expenses were paid pursuant to his employer's coverage under the Workmen's Compensation Law, to the persons rendering the medical services. Rubin v Empire Mut. Ins. Co., 25 N.Y.2d 426, 306 N.Y.S.2d 914, 255 N.E.2d 154, 1969 N.Y. LEXIS 946 (N.Y. 1969).

Fact that workers' compensation insurance carrier was not entitled to offset under CLS Work Comp § 29(4), from future compensation payments to employee who was disabled in work-related auto accident, amount that employee recovered in uninsured motorist benefits under her own auto policy, did not give injured employee double recovery for same elements of loss because uninsured motorist coverage compensates for non-economic loss and economic loss in excess of basic economic loss, while workers' compensation benefits are limited to reimbursement for basic economic loss. Shutter v Philips Display Components Co., 90 N.Y.2d 703, 665 N.Y.S.2d 379, 688 N.E.2d 235, 1997 N.Y. LEXIS 3684 (N.Y. 1997).

Former § 109 [precedessor to former § 167, now § 3420] does not permit the subrogee of an injured person to maintain an action for moneys paid as compensation awards pursuant to provisions of Workmen's Compensation Law. Royal Indem. Co. v Travelers' Ins. Co., 244 A.D. 582, 280 N.Y.S. 485, 1935 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5877 (N.Y. App. Div. 1935), aff'd, 270 N.Y. 574, 1 N.E.2d 337, 270 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 574, 1936 N.Y. LEXIS 1635 (N.Y. 1936).

Workers' compensation insurance carrier was entitled to offset proceeds of claimant's uninsured motorist claim against future compensation; lien and offset provisions of CLS Work Comp § 29 are not by their terms specifically limited to actions against third-party tortfeasors. Shutter v Philips Display Components Co., 235 A.D.2d 904, 652 N.Y.S.2d 427, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 561 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), rev'd, 90 N.Y.2d 703, 665 N.Y.S.2d 379, 688 N.E.2d 235, 1997 N.Y. LEXIS 3684 (N.Y. 1997).

The complaint, in an action by an employer of an injured person for indemnification for payment by the employer to state of contributions required by Workmen's Compensation Law, § 15, subds. 8 and 9, must be dismissed, for former § 109 [precedessor to former § 167, now § 3420] does not require that a policy of insurance must indemnify any other than the injured person or his representative against loss in event of insured's insolvency. Knickerbocker Ice Co. v New York Indem. Co., 251 N.Y.S. 526, 140 Misc. 654, 1931 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1447 (N.Y. App. Term 1931).

Unpublished decision: Insurer was not obligated to defend or indemnify insureds in a state court suit for damage to a building adjacent to the insureds' property because the insureds did not timely notify the insurer about the potential claim; under former N.Y. Ins. Law § 3240(a)(4) (2002), the insurer could require notice to be provided as soon as reasonably possible, and no showing of prejudice was required. The insureds did not give notice until four months after damage to the building was shown to the insureds' construction manager, which was unreasonable under the circumstances. United Nat'l Ins. II. Requirements for Disclaimer of Liability by Insurer

3. Declaratory actions regarding coverage or liability

Unpublished decision: Disclaimer of coverage made nearly two months after a state court jury's verdict was untimely under N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(d)(2). The timeliness requirement applied to defendant insurer because plaintiff state insurance fund was its insured's subrogee, and thus, plaintiff had a real stake in the outcome and an interest in not being prejudiced by a belated denial of coverage. N.Y. State Ins. Fund v Mount Vernon Fire Ins. Co., 371 Fed. Appx. 207, 2010 U.S. App. LEXIS 8095 (2d Cir. N.Y. 2010).

4. Particular circumstances leading to estoppel to disclaim liability

5. —Prejudicial delay in communicating disclaimer

Unpublished decision: District court did not err in its conclusion that its disclaimer of coverage was untimely; defendant did not issue a disclaimer prior to providing a defense, during discovery, or even during the trial in the underlying case, but instead waited until over two years after it was notified about the case. N.Y. State Ins. Fund v Mount Vernon Fire Ins. Co., 2010 U.S. App. LEXIS 6733 (2d Cir. N.Y. Apr. 1, 2010).

I. General Considerations

1. Regulatory power of superintendent

The Insurance Law, while it does not give the superintendent specific authority to approve or disapprove particular indorsements, does impose upon him the duty to prevent violations of the law, and further duties when companies refuse to comply with the statutes. 1918 NY Ops Atty Gen Jan 22.

§ 3425. Certain property/casualty insurance policies; cancellation and renewal provisions; agents' contracts and brokers' accounts

* * * * *

(c) After a covered policy has been in effect for sixty days, or upon the effective date if the policy is a renewal, no notice of cancellation shall be issued to become effective unless required pursuant to a program approved by the superintendent as necessary because a continuation of the present premium volume would be hazardous to the interests of policyholders of the insurer, its creditors or the public, or unless it is based on one or more of the following:

(1) With respect to automobile insurance policies:

(A) nonpayment of premium, provided, however, that a notice of cancellation on this ground shall inform the insured of the amount due;

(B) suspension or revocation during the required policy period of the driver's license of the named insured or any other person who customarily operates an automobile insured under the policy, other than a suspension issued pursuant to subdivision one of section five hundred ten-b of the vehicle and traffic law or one or more administrative suspensions arising from the same incident which has or have been terminated prior to the effective date of cancellation; or

(C) discovery of fraud or material mis-representation in obtaining the policy or in the presentation of a claim thereunder.

(2) With respect to personal lines insurance policies:

(A) nonpayment of premium, provided, however, that a notice of cancellation on this ground shall inform the insured of the amount due;

(B) conviction of a crime arising out of acts increasing the hazard insured against;

(C) discovery of fraud or material misrepresentation in obtaining the policy or in the presentation of a claim thereunder;

(D) discovery of willful or reckless acts or omissions increasing the hazard insured against;

(E) physical changes in the property insured occurring after issuance or last annual anniversary date of the policy which result in the property becoming uninsurable in accordance with the insurer's objective, uniformly applied underwriting standards in effect at the time the policy was issued or last voluntarily renewed; or

(F) a determination by the superintendent that the continuation of the policy would violate or would place the insurer in violation of this chapter.

(3) The provisions of this subsection shall apply to each and every coverage or limit afforded under the policy.

* * * * *

(h) (1) Proof of mailing of a notice of cancellation, reduction of limits, substitution of policy form, elimination of coverages, conditioned renewal or of intention not to renew, or proof of the mailing of the reasons therefor, to the named insured at the address shown in the policy, shall be sufficient proof of the giving of notice and the giving of reasons required by this section.

(2) No notice of cancellation, reduction of limits, substitution of policy form, elimination of coverages, conditioned renewal or of intention not to renew, or notice of the reasons therefor, that fails to include a provision required by this section shall be an effective notice for purposes of this section.

(3) A copy of every notice of cancellation, reduction of limits, substitution of policy form, elimination of coverages, conditioned renewal or of intention not to renew, including the reasons therefor, or a summary of such notice, shall be mailed, delivered or transmitted to the insured's authorized agent or broker within seven days of the time such notice is mailed to the named insured. Electronic transmission or any other means of delivery or transmission of information commonly used by the insurer to communicate with agents or brokers shall be deemed sufficient for compliance with this paragraph. Failure to mail, deliver or transmit a copy of such notice to the insured's authorized agent or broker pursuant to this paragraph shall not render any such notice ineffective, provided that all of the other requirements of this section are met and shall not be considered failure to include a provision required by this section for purposes of paragraph two of this subsection.

(2) The superintendent shall collect, analyze and compile such reports with regard to the number of new insureds, non-renewed insureds and business written by each insurer in each rating territory of each such insurer and, in each case, the class of insureds (including age and sex) affected so that a statistical analysis of the results obtained pursuant to subsections (f) and (m) of this section, and the reasons in the aggregate for the non-renewal of policies shall be provided to the speaker of the assembly, the temporary president of the senate, the chair of the assembly insurance committee, and the chair of the senate insurance committee on or before June thirtieth, two thousand twenty and every two years thereafter.

(1) Paragraphs eight and nine of subsection (a), subsection (f) and subparagraphs (B) and (E) of paragraph one of subsection (j) of this section shall not apply to any new covered policy of automobile insurance voluntarily written on or after August first, nineteen hundred eighty-five and prior to January first, nineteen hundred eighty-six, and on or after August second, two thousand one and prior to the effective date of the property/casualty insurance availability act, and on or after June thirtieth, two thousand twenty-three, but the legal rights granted to insurers or policyholders under such provisions shall not be extinguished or impaired thereby.

(2) In lieu of such provisions, paragraph seven of subsection (a), subparagraph (A) of paragraph one of subsection (j) of this section and paragraph three of this subsection shall apply to such automobile insurance policies that are newly and voluntarily written to have an effective date on or after August first, nineteen hundred eighty-five and prior to January first, nineteen hundred eighty-six, and on or after August second, two thousand one and prior to the effective date of the property/casualty insurance availability act, and on or after June thirtieth, two thousand twenty-three.

(3) On and after August first, nineteen hundred eighty-five and prior to January first, nineteen hundred eighty-six, and on or after August second, two thousand one and prior to the effective date of the property/casualty insurance availability act, and on or after June thirtieth, two thousand twenty-three, no notice of nonrenewal or conditional renewal of such covered automobile insurance policies referred to in this subsection shall be issued to become effective during the required policy period unless it is based upon a ground for which the policy could have been cancelled or unless it is based upon one or more of the following grounds that occurred during the thirty-six month period ending on the last day of the fourth month preceding the month of the effective date of such notice of nonrenewal or conditional renewal:

* * * * *

(B) Where a named insured or any other person who operates a motor vehicle insured under the policy is individually or are aggregately involved in three or more vehicle accidents while operating a motor vehicle insured under the policy, resulting in either personal injury, or in property damage in excess of two hundred dollars. For the purpose of this paragraph any of the following occurrences involving a motor vehicle operated by a named insured or such other person shall not be considered an accident:

(i) such motor vehicle was struck in rear; or

(ii) such motor vehicle was struck while legally parked; or

(iii) only the operator of another motor vehicle involved in the accident was convicted of a crime, offense or violation contributing to the accident; or

(iv) the named insured or other operator of the motor vehicle insured under the policy, or the insurer thereof, was reimbursed by or on behalf of a person responsible for the accident or has a judgment against such person.

Where more than one motor vehicle in a household is insured by the same insurer, the number of accidents which would permit conditional renewal or non-renewal shall, as for the aggregate, be increased by two for each additional motor vehicle insured. For the purposes of this paragraph accidents occurring as a result of the use or operation of a motor vehicle in response to an emergency, where the operator was responding to a call of duty as a paid or volunteer member of any police or fire department, first aid squad, or of any law enforcement agency; or was performing any other governmental function in a public emergency, shall not be accidents which afford an insurer the right to cancel or to refuse to renew.

* * * * *

(s) With respect to automobile insurance, no insurer shall refuse to issue or renew a covered individually-owned private passenger policy solely on the ground that the motor vehicle to be insured under such policy shall be used for volunteer firefighting.

1. In general; constitutional questions

In construing phrase "the date as of which a covered policy is first issued," Court of Appeals held that "as of" refers to date mutually agreed upon by parties having some contractual significance, rather than merely referencing date of event, such as execution or delivery of policy; to simply apply common definition of term "issue," and hold that CLS Ins § 3425(a)(7) refers to policy's execution or delivery date, would effectively excise phrase "as of" from statute in derogation of canons of statutory construction, and would reduce certainty in policy coverage periods. Rosner v Metro. Prop. & Liab. Ins. Co., 96 N.Y.2d 475, 729 N.Y.S.2d 658, 754 N.E.2d 760, 2001 N.Y. LEXIS 1988 (N.Y. 2001).

In absence of nonrenewal, notice of cancellation for nonpayment of premium is required to terminate coverage for renewal term of policy protected by CLS Ins Law § 3425; public policy requires that burden of terminating coverage be placed affirmatively on insurer, rather than on insured, and it is not likely that legislature, while prescribing guaranteed continuity of coverage through mandatory renewals, and permitting cancellation only upon exclusive and enumerated grounds, would, at same time, permit insurers to avoid strictures of § 3425 by simple expedient of billing renewal premium and thereafter permitting coverage to terminate without notice of cancellation or grace period. Victor v Turner, 113 A.D.2d 490, 496 N.Y.S.2d 761, 1985 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 52946 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1985).

Whether farm owner insurance policy is "cover policy" within meaning of Insurance Law former § 167-a(1)(a) [now Insurance Law § 3425(a)(2), (3)] is factual question, and thus it was error to refuse admission of evidence concerning premium breakdown of policy, since policy on farm may include both residential and nonresidential contingencies, and fact that plaintiffs had not yet commenced actual income-generating farm activities does not change result. Pezzino v Chenango Cooperative Ins. Co., 116 A.D.2d 81, 500 N.Y.S.2d 193, 1986 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 50236 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1986).

Cancellation of a homeowner's property insurance policy was effective because, contrary to the homeowner's claim, N.Y. Ins. Law § 3425(c)(1)(A) was applicable to auto policies, and in any event, the record showed that the notice stated that a payment of $87 was necessary to keep the policy in effect. Kaufmann v Leatherstocking Coop. Ins. Co., 52 A.D.3d 1010, 861 N.Y.S.2d 423, 2008 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5296 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2008).

It is settled law that the statutory method of terminating coverage on notice is the sole and exclusive method by which automobile insurance coverage for which a certificate of insurance has been filed with the Commissioner of Motor Vehicles, can be canceled; cancellation notices must contain all information required by statute and failure to include the mandated information renders such notice fatally defective. Nationwide Mut. Ins. Co. v Liberty Mut. Ins. Co., 92 Misc. 2d 273, 401 N.Y.S.2d 675, 1976 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2882 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1976), aff'd, 43 N.Y.2d 810, 402 N.Y.S.2d 395, 373 N.E.2d 290, 1977 N.Y. LEXIS 2586 (N.Y. 1977).

The decision made by defendants insurers not to opt out of their automobile insurance policies prior to the effective date of the requirement in the no-fault law that all automobile policies in effect before August 1, 1973 be automatically renewable for three successive one-year periods (Insurance Law former, § 167-a [now § 3425]) without notice of three subsequent extensions of the automatic renewal provision through 1978, does not constitute a perpetual waiver of defendants' rights to cease doing business as insurance carriers in the State nor was such a procedure reasonably calculated to afford defendants due process in view of the subsequent extensions. People ex rel. Lewis v Safeco Ins. Co., 98 Misc. 2d 856, 414 N.Y.S.2d 823, 1978 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2896 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1978).

The power of the State to regulate insurance companies is subject to an insurer's entitlement to due process which prohibits a de facto taking of private property for public use, without just compensation, which may consist of regulations which arbitrarily, unreasonably and without sufficient public purpose, deprive the owner of the benefits of his property; the validity of the no-fault law and the automatic renewal provisions contained therein (Insurance Law, former § 167-a [now § 3425]) do not warrant compelling defendants to continue doing business as insurance carriers in the State since defendants are not seeking to reap the benefits of doing business here while "dumping" unprofitable automobile policies while retaining other more profitable areas of insurance coverage but rather are seeking to withdraw completely from conducting any insurance business in the State. People ex rel. Lewis v Safeco Ins. Co., 98 Misc. 2d 856, 414 N.Y.S.2d 823, 1978 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2896 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1978).

Insurer which cancels automobile insurance policy (CLS Insurance § 3425) on basis of suspension of driver's license (CLS Vehicle & Traffic § 510) arising out of reversed conviction for driving while impaired has engaged in unlawful discriminatory practice (CLS Executive § 296) since suspension must be deemed vitiated by reversal of conviction and is thus not valid basis for cancellation where insurer has not considered evidence of conduct leading to criminal charges independent of driving record disseminated by department of motor vehicles which improperly includes conviction and reversal. Brown v Fireman's Fund Ins. Co., 131 Misc. 2d 525, 500 N.Y.S.2d 500, 1986 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2556 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1986).

Insurance Law former § 167-a(4) and (6) [now § 3425(d)], requiring automatic renewal of most automobile insurance policies for specified periods, does not violate the Contract Clause of the United States Constitution, since regulation of the insurance industry, in order to provide adequate protection of the public, is a proper subject for the state's exercise of its police power. Country-Wide Ins. Co. v Harnett, 426 F. Supp. 1030, 1977 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 17467 (S.D.N.Y.), aff'd, 431 U.S. 934, 97 S. Ct. 2644, 53 L. Ed. 2d 252, 1977 U.S. LEXIS 1965 (U.S. 1977).

On renewal of insurance policy, insurance company may forward to insured declaration sheet; however, if there are any changes in policy, insurance company must send either new policy or new endorsements. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 00-01-09.

Policy insuring loss of, or damage to, real property used predominantly for residential purposes, and consisting of nonowner occupied 1-4 family dwellings, is considered personal lines subject to CLS Ins § 3425, not commercial risk insurance subject to CLS Ins § 3426. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 00-06-01.

Insurer may establish premium due date that is prior to CLS Ins § 3425 renewal policy's effective date and, after due date, may send notice of cancellation for non-payment of premium prior to effective date of policy; however, cancellation may not take effect prior to renewal policy's effective date. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 00-12-02.

Insurer is not required, prior to renewal of CLS Ins § 3425 covered policy, to provide written notice to named insured as to change in its premium payment installment schedule. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 00-12-02.

Superintendent of Insurance has not promulgated regulation under CLS Ins § 3425(m)(3)(D). Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 01-09-05.

Expiration of certain provisions of CLS Ins § 3425 did not change cancellation requirements of statute. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 01-09-05.

Statement in Circular Letter No. 21 (2001) that provisions of CLS Ins § 3425(j)(1)(A) were still applicable was not meant to imply that such provisions previously applied to automobile insurance policies. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 01-09-05.

Suspension by property/casualty insurer of sub-producers from writing new personal lines and new non-commercial automobile policies in certain geographic areas of New York does not count as "termination" because it constitutes geographic redlining and is illegal in New York under CLS Ins § 3429. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 02-05-05.

Statutory policy period for new automobile insurance policy subject to CLS Ins § 3425 that is voluntarily written on or after August 2, 2001 is 3 years under CLS Ins § 3425(m); further, insurer must also offer to continue policy through terminated producer for next one-year policy period, and thereafter, at insurer's specific request, insurer must offer to continue policy through terminated producer for remaining years of 3-year required policy period, but producer's rights are subject to continuation of policy, and insurer may cancel or non-renew policy as allowed under applicable provisions of CLS Ins § 3425 and, in such circumstance, is not required to make offers above-described. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 02-07-04.

Statutory policy period for covered policy of automobile insurance subject to CLS Ins § 3425 that was voluntarily written originally prior to August 2, 2001, and renewals thereof, is one year under CLS Ins § 3425(a)(8), and where producer agreement has been terminated, CLS Ins § 3425(j)(1)(B) requires insurer to offer to keep such policy in force through terminated producer for any remaining part of one-year required policy period, and thereafter, at insurer's specific request, insurer must continue to offer policy through terminated producer for 3 successive one-year policy periods, which commences within one year from date that termination notice was mailed or delivered; however, producer's rights are subject to continuation of policy, and insurer may cancel or non-renew policy as allowed under applicable provisions of CLS Ins § 3425 and, in such circumstance, is not required to make offers above-described. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 02-07-04.

Phrase "statutory extensions" found in CLS Ins § 3425(j)(1)(A) is historical and has no other significance or meaning today. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 02-10-23.

"Pay-As-You-Drive Insurance Policy" may not expire automatically if insured exceeds predetermined mileage, but does not pay additional premium; instead, insurer must issue notice of cancellation. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 02-11-02.

Whether New York authorized insurer may issue motor vehicle insurance policy whose premium is calculated by multiplying per mile fee, which incorporates rating factors (i.e., sex, marital status, age, driving history, etc.) of policyholder, by number of miles such policyholder drives would require submission of detailed proposal of such policy and its rating rules for review by Insurance Department. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 02-11-02.

Insurer may cancel automobile insurance policy for non-payment of installment fee, late payment fee, or reinstatement fee. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 03-04-31.

Nonrenewal and cancellation requirements in CLS Ins § 3425 apply to personal lines marine insurance. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 03-05-12.

CLS Ins §§ 3425 and 3426 do not contain general requirement that notices of cancellation or non-renewal of personal or commercial property/casualty insurance policies be sent by insurance companies to lenders of properties insured under policies; however, if particular policy were to name such lender as additional insured to whom notice of cancellation or notice must be given, then insurer would have to give notice in accordance with provisions of policy. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 04-03-22.

If notice is sent electronically (necessarily implying that recipient of notice has consented to accept notices from insurance company in electronic format), proof of mailing and delivery could also be in electronic format; there is no requirement that proof of mailing or delivery of electronic notice be in any particular format, although, in order to comply with "E-Sign" (Electronic Signatures in Global and National Commerce Act, 15 USCS §§ 7001-7031), it should be accurate and capable of verification so as to be reliable proof that indeed such notice was sent to intended recipient, whether recipient be named insured under insurance policy, or mortgagee or other lender of property insured. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 04-03-22.

Under CLS Ins § 3425(a)(7), insurer may not unilaterally impose any change in limits or diminution of coverage during required 3-year policy period, except in instance where insurer has right to cancel policy; at end of 3-year period, insurer may issue conditional renewal whereby continued coverage is offered only if insured accepts change in limits and/or diminution of coverage. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 04-04-06.

As condition for securing "inflation guard" or "guaranteed replacement cost" endorsements to homeowners' policies, insured may agree to allow changes to value assigned to property insured (and corresponding premium increases) during 3-year policy period. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 04-04-06.

Policies insuring one- to 4-family dwellings are subject to CLS Ins § 3425 whether or not they are owner-occupied. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 04-10-04.

If number of policies involved in insurer's rental property program constituted material number of policies written by insurer that are subject to CLS Ins § 3425, then insurer would have to submit plan for orderly reduction in accordance with CLS Ins § 3425(o), should insurer wish to cease writing program because it was no longer profitable; if such policies were homeowners insurance policies, as defined in CLS Ins § 2351, then insurer would have to comply with provisions of subsection (o) that are applicable to homeowners policies. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 04-10-04.

Authorized insurer may not base its refusal to issue or renew voluntary market personal lines automobile insurance policies solely on ground of advanced age of applicant or insured. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 04-11-08.

Authorized New York insurer may base its refusal to issue or renew voluntary market personal lines automobile insurance policies on factors that are not unfairly discriminatory, or violative of Insurance Law or public policy (which include race, creed, color, national origin, disability, sex and marital status of applicant or insured); permissible factors include being newly licensed driver, driving record, health status, employment status, and driving habits of applicant or insured, and age of vehicle. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 04-11-08.

CLS Ins §§ 3425(j)(1)(D) and 3426(k)(2) will be applicable on termination of agency agreement between agent and insurer, even though agreement provides that agency status is temporary and that agency is not Regular Agent of insurer. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 06-01-21.

CLS Ins § 3425 does not recognize concept of "converting" policies or "selling" renewal rights. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 07-07-13.

2. Required time periods for notices

Section 313 (subd 1) of the Vehicle and Traffic Law, which provides that where the cancellation of an automobile insurance policy is for nonpayment of premium 10 days' notice by the insurer shall be sufficient, is not impliedly repealed by an amendment to former section 167-a [now § 3425] of the Insurance Law, which states that payment to the insurer shall be timely if made within 15 days after the mailing to the insured of a notice of cancellation for nonpayment of premium, as, before there can be a repeal by implication, the conflict between the two statutes must be plain and unavoidable, and these statutes may be reconciled and therefore both remain in effect; the notice of cancellation may provide for a 10-day period (Vehicle and Traffic Law, § 313, subd 1), but the insured will have 15 days after the mailing to make the payment of the past due premium. Nassau Ins. Co. v Epps, 63 A.D.2d 473, 407 N.Y.S.2d 225, 1978 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11367 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1978).

Notice of cancellation of fire insurance policy was not rendered invalid for violation of statute which provided that payment of premium would be timely if made within 15 days after mailing to insured of a notice of cancellation for nonpayment of premium where notice was dated February 6, 1979, and stated that policy would be terminated at noon on February 21, 1979. Gannon v New York Mut. Underwriters, 78 A.D.2d 399, 435 N.Y.S.2d 163, 1981 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9649 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), aff'd, 55 N.Y.2d 641, 446 N.Y.S.2d 265, 430 N.E.2d 1318, 1981 N.Y. LEXIS 3225 (N.Y. 1981).

Recovery under "employee dishonesty" endorsement of property insurance policy was not barred by insured's failure to comply with policy provision requiring "a detailed, sworn proof of loss within 120 days of the date of discovery" where insured filed proof of loss within 60 days of insurer's demand therefor and thus was protected by CLS Ins § 3407(a). Klyn v Travelers Indem. Co., 273 A.D.2d 931, 709 N.Y.S.2d 780, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6801 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 2000).

Notice of cancellation of automobile liability policy mailed on November 14 to be effective November 29 at 12:01 A.M. did not provide 15-day notice required by statute. Nassau Ins. Co. v Lion Ins. Co., 89 Misc. 2d 982, 393 N.Y.S.2d 280, 1977 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2722 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1977).

Statute relating to cancellation for nonpayment of premium does not require that notice of cancellation of automobile liability policy be given any number of days before becoming effective but grants insured a 15-day grace period after mailing in which to pay premium. Hartford Accident & Indem. Co. v Krumbein, 91 Misc. 2d 112, 397 N.Y.S.2d 675, 1977 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2245 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1977).

Cancellation of an insurance policy is not effective until notice is received by the company, regardless of the intentions of the insured; even if the broker received notice of the insured's intention to cancel at the time the insurer claims, cancellation did not occur until the insurer received notice of the cancellation request since there is no presumption that an agent authorized to solicit insurance has authority to cancel policies on the insured's request and notice to an agent or broker is not notice to the company; therefore, as no proof has been offered that the broker was an agent authorized to receive notice of cancellation, the insurer's purported retroactive cancellation is ineffective. Truax v State Farm Ins. Cos., 101 Misc. 2d 1031, 422 N.Y.S.2d 592, 1979 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2805 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1979).

Insured's complaint for payment of medical bills under the Mandatory Personal Injury Protection Endorsement was dismissed as the claim was filed beyond the 45-day requirement of the Endorsement and the insured stipulated to the fact that the claim was filed late and that the policy was issued after April 5, 2002. Therefore, the insurer had no obligation to produce the policy to prove that the Endorsement was included at the time it was issued. Woolfson v Government Empls. Ins. Co., 862 N.Y.S.2d 794, 20 Misc. 3d 948, 240 N.Y.L.J. 40, 2008 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 4615 (N.Y. Civ. Ct. 2008).

Period of time to calculate and apply for two-for-one business credit is same current calendar year in which non-renewals and uptiered policies are made; there must be new business written that year to support any non-renewals and uptiering made that year in two-for-one ratio. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 00-06-07.

CLS Bank § 576, not CLS Veh & Tr § 313(1)(a), binds finance agencies regarding minimum notice required to be given prior to cancellation of noncommercial private passenger automobile policy. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 02-03-17.

Non-commercial pet insurance is considered "personal lines" insurance and thus is subject to 3-year required policy period under CLS Ins § 3425(a)(7). Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 02-05-12.

Statutorily required policy period for automobile insurance policy subject to CLS Ins § 3425 that was originally issued on or before August 1, 2001 is one year under CLS Ins § 3425(a)(8), and where producer agreement has been terminated, CLS Ins § 3425(j)(1)(B) requires insurer to offer to keep such policy in force for any remaining part of one-year required policy period, and thereafter, at specific request of insured, insurer shall continue to offer policy through terminated producer for 3 successive one-year policy periods, which commence within year following date of mailing or delivery to terminated producer of written notice of termination of such contract or account; however, producer's rights are subject to continuation of policy, and insurer may cancel or non-renew policy as permitted under applicable provisions of CLS Ins § 3425, and, in such circumstance, is not required to make offers above-described. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 02-10-23.

Required policy period for automobile insurance policy under CLS Ins § 3425 that was originally issued on or after August 2, 2001 is 3 years under CLS Ins § 3425(a)(7) and (m), and where producer agreement has been terminated, CLS Ins § 3425(j)(1)(A) states that insurer must offer to keep such policy in force for remainder of 3-year required policy period, and insurer must also offer to continue policy through terminated producer for at least its next one-year policy period that commences within one year following date of mailing or delivery to terminated agent or broker of written notice of termination of such contract or account; thereafter, at specific request of insured, insurer must offer to continue policy through terminated producer for remaining part of 3-year required policy period, and insurer may cancel or non-renew policy as permitted under applicable provisions of CLS Ins § 3425, and, in such circumstance, is not required to make offers above-described. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 02-10-23.

After notice of cancellation for nonpayment of premium applicable to voluntary market commercial property/casualty insurance policy has been issued, premium is considered paid as of postmark date unless cancellation notice specifies otherwise. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 03-01-40.

Effective date of cancellation may not be effective date of renewal, which is expiration date of expiring policy, because that would constitute retroactive cancellation in violation of CLS Ins § 3425. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 05-09-15.

CLS Gen Const § 20 does not apply to CLS Ins § 3425(b) for notice of cancellation. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 06-07-11.

Notice of cancellation may be mailed on 60th day of statutory period, but insurer must be acting in accordance with its uniformly applied underwriting rules for cancellations. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 06-07-11.

CLS Gen Const § 20 applies to time periods established by CLS Ins § 3425(d) for conditional renewals, nonrenewals, and substitutions of policy forms. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 06-07-11.

CLS Ins § 3425(d)(1) (45- to 60-day notice requirement) is applicable when insured's policy coverage is about to expire, and insurer either renews with change of limits or elimination of any coverage or non-renews policy, while CLS Ins § 3425(d)(2) (20-day notice) is applicable not when policy period is about to expire, but when insurer has right to cancel policy under CLS Ins § 3425(b) or (c). Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 07-01-05.

Homeowner's policy may be non-renewed only at end of its 3-year required policy period, unless non-renewal is based on ground for which insurer could have canceled policy. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 07-06-02.

For purposes of sending out non-renewal notice, 3-year required policy period for new homeowners' policy is measured from effective date of policy. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 07-07-06.

Insurer may non-renew homeowners insurance policy 3 years from date when insurer issued homeowners insurance policy, but only after providing timely notice to insured as required by Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 07-07-13.

Insurer that issues homeowners, renters or commercial lines insurance policy containing "inflation-guard" endorsement, whereby value of covered property is automatically adjusted depending on formula specified in policy, is not required to issue conditional renewal notice to insurance agent, broker or insured each year advising of specific dollar amount of resulting increase in coverage, if any, because any increase in coverage would be arising from terms of policy itself. NY Ins Dep't Gen Counsel, Opinion No. 10-09-11, 2010 NY Insurance GC Opinions LEXIS 46.

If insured's bank declines insured's debit card payment because of insufficient funds, insurer must notify insured that policy was canceled due to nonpayment of premium pursuant to CLS Ins § 3425(b), and notice of cancellation must provide at least 15 days' notice pursuant to CLS Veh & Tr § 313(1)(a). NY Ins Dep't Gen Counsel, Opinion No. 11-05-02, 2011 NY Insurance GC Opinions LEXIS 16.

If insured pays premium by debit card, and there are sufficient funds in insured's account, but insurer declines insured's debit card payment for some other reason, insurer must send insured notice of cancellation that specifies reason that policy was canceled pursuant to CLS Ins § 3425(b), and such notice must provide at least 20 days' notice pursuant to CLS Veh & Tr § 313(1)(a). NY Ins Dep't Gen Counsel, Opinion No. 11-05-02, 2011 NY Insurance GC Opinions LEXIS 16.

3. Sufficiency of particular nonrenewal or cancellation notices

An uninsured motorist claim seeking to direct the insurer to indemnify its insured under an allegedly cancelled policy against claims arising out of an automobile accident was properly dismissed where there was sufficient admissible proof of the office practice and procedure followed by the insurer together with proof that the particular cancellation notice was mailed to its insured prior to the date of the accident. Empire Mut. Ins. Co. v

Kohulka, 55 N.Y.2d 837, 447 N.Y.S.2d 703, 432 N.E.2d 596, 1982 N.Y. LEXIS 3046 (N.Y. 1982).

A judgment permanently staying arbitration demanded under the terms of an uninsured motorist endorsement after a finding that the policy issued had not been cancelled would be reversed, where the absence of a statement in the notice of cancellation informing the insured of the 15-day grace period provided by Ins Law § 167-a [now § 3425] did not render the notice invalid, inasmuch as no statutory provision, rule or regulation mandated the inclusion of such a statement, and inasmuch as a circular letter by the Superintendent of Insurance attempting to impose such a requirement did not constitute an official regulation because it was never filed in the office of the Department of State and was not contained in the Official Compilation of Codes, Rules and Regulations of the State of New York. In re Midwest Mut. Ins. Co., 96 A.D.2d 530, 464 N.Y.S.2d 838, 1983 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 19051 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1983), aff'd, 62 N.Y.2d 703, 476 N.Y.S.2d 538, 465 N.E.2d 45, 1984 N.Y. LEXIS 4307 (N.Y. 1984).

The arbitration of an uninsured motorist claim was improperly stayed on the asserted ground that the fault party's insurer's purported cancellation of such party's policy was invalid in that the notice of cancellation made no reference to the right to a "review" as provided for under applicable rules of the New York Automobile Insurance Plan because the notice apprised the insured of his right to "appeal" to the Committee of the plan; given the synonymous meaning of the words "review" and "appeal," the insurer substantially complied with the regulations. In re State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co., 104 A.D.2d 495, 479 N.Y.S.2d 83, 1984 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 19938 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1984).

Insurer complied with CLS Ins § 3425 in stating its reasons for nonrenewal of automobile insurance policy when it listed 2 accidents and 2 convictions, gave their specific dates, and named source of information; insurer did not have initial burden of coming forward with proof of veracity of statements since absence of any evidence negating veracity was sufficient for compliance. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. v Yung Shik Na, 123 A.D.2d 873, 507 N.Y.S.2d 474, 1986 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 60985 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1986).

Insurance company was not entitled to summary judgment dismissing judgment creditor's action to collect judgment entered against company's insured based on attempted cancellation of insured's policy for nonpayment of premium since cancellation notice failed to inform insured of her right to review by committee of Assigned Risk Plan; premium finance company which sent notice was not acting as insured's agent under finance agreement when it attempted to cancel her policy for nonpayment. Roth v Aetna Life & Casualty Ins. Co., 128 A.D.2d 514, 512 N.Y.S.2d 447, 1987 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 44207 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1987).

Insurer failed to establish that cancellation of automobile liability insurance policy was valid where bill mailed to insured prior to issuance of notice of cancellation was not offered into evidence, insurer had not retained copy thereof, and thus it could not be shown that bill complied with New York Automobile Insurance Plan Rules § 14(E)(2); right to cancel policy on notice for nonpayment of premium is contingent on mailing of proper bill, since premium does not otherwise become due and owing. Eveready Ins. Co. v Mitchell, 133 A.D.2d 210, 519 N.Y.S.2d 19, 1987 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 49716 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1987).

Notice of cancellation of insurance was ambiguous where it relied on generalized and incomplete language which could have referred to any of 3 different clauses of former CLS Ins § 167-a(3)(b), now CLS Ins § 3425(c)(2), and it left blank a box which would have indicated with code that insurer was cancelling policy on specific statutory grounds. Olshan v Greater New York Mut. Ins. Co., 181 A.D.2d 645, 582 N.Y.S.2d 18, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5188 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1992).

Motorcycle insurance policy remained in force as of date of accident where insurance company failed to comply with strict statutory notice of termination requirements set forth in CLS Veh & Tr § 313(1)(a), even though insured permitted his registration to lapse prior to date of accident. Public Serv. Mut. Ins. Co. v Foley, 190 A.D.2d 800, 593 N.Y.S.2d 847, 1993 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1527 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't), app. dismissed, 82 N.Y.2d 712, 602 N.Y.S.2d 808, 622 N.E.2d 309, 1993 N.Y. LEXIS 5264 (N.Y. 1993).

Notice of termination of automobile insurance policy was sufficiently specific to satisfy requirements of CLS Ins § 3425(b) where notice informed policyholder that it had rejected her insurance application due to her age and excessive odometer reading of vehicle she wished to insure. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. v Cherian, 202 A.D.2d 434, 608 N.Y.S.2d 708, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1887 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1994).

Notice of cancellation of automobile insurance was effective where it was filed with Department of Motor Vehicles prior to date of accident, even though it was not filed within 30 days of cancellation. Allcity Ins. Co. v Rodriguez, 212 A.D.2d 405, 622 N.Y.S.2d 43, 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1391 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1995).

Cancellation of homeowners' policy was not conditional, and therefore invalid, merely because notice of cancellation gave plaintiffs 15 days to pay amount due to avoid termination of coverage. Pardo v Central Coop. Ins. Co., 223 A.D.2d 832, 636 N.Y.S.2d 184, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 103 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1996).

Insurer's notice of cancellation for nonpayment of premium was ineffective under CLS Veh & Tr § 313 where it incorrectly stated that civil penalty for lapse of insurance was $4 per day, rather than $6 per day, and also failed to provide insured with notice of insurer's intent not to renew policy at least 20 days prior to renewal date; thus, automobile liability policy, which was not "covered policy" within meaning of cancellation and renewal requirements of CLS Ins § 3425 because it had not been issued to "natural person" for nonbusiness purposes, remained in effect after its natural expiration date. American Home Assur. Co. v Chin, 269 A.D.2d 24, 708 N.Y.S.2d 453, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6082 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2000).

Defendants, insurance company and its agent, were properly granted summary judgment in action seeking to declare that automobile insurance policy was in full force and effect on date of accident where policy cancellation notice plainly recited that policy would be canceled if total premium due was not paid on or before certain date, and insured failed to make such payment prior to that date; insured's history with defendants, which included series of policy cancellations and reinstatements, did not, by itself, raise fact issue as to equitable estoppel since insured acknowledged both receipt of cancellation notice and that she understood import thereof. Ferber v Farm Family Cas. Ins. Co., 272 A.D.2d 747, 707 N.Y.S.2d 545, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5699 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2000).

Insured's position that it never received notice of cancellation of property insurance policy was insufficient to rebut presumption of receipt raised by affidavit of insurer's small business underwriter, who stated that on January 10, 1989, based on insurer's failure to receive original premium finance agreement from finance company or any premiums, she personally sent, by certified mail, copy of notice of cancellation to insured and to premium finance company at their addresses as they appeared on declaration page of policy, which affidavit had attached notice dated January 10, 1989, canceling policy as of 12:01 a.m. on January 28, 1989, and certified mailing list date stamped January 10, 1989. 8112-24 18th Ave. Realty Corp. v Aetna Cas. & Sur. Co., 240 A.D.2d 287, 659 N.Y.S.2d 17, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6659 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1997).

Broker's possession of sufficient funds, in form of returned unearned premiums from prior insurer, to pay premium would not be imputed to insurer under CLS Ins § 2121(a) where broker had returned those premiums well before issuance of subject policy, and nothing in documentary evidence submitted by insured showed that those premiums were payments in return for, or referable to, such policy; even if broker, insured, and insured's funding company had such private understanding, it could not bind insurer, who even after issuing policy was stranger to such prior transactions between insured and its fiduciaries as to funds which they held on insured's behalf. 8112-24 18th Ave. Realty Corp. v Aetna Cas. & Sur. Co., 240 A.D.2d 287, 659 N.Y.S.2d 17, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6659 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1997).

Insurance company improperly cancelled homeowner's policy during term of policy based on loss history of insured since such reason is not listed in CLS Ins § 3425(c)(2) as permissible reason for cancellation during term of policy; thus, insurance company would be required to pay for loss which occurred after cancellation and before end of term of policy where insured obtained replacement policy, but loss was not covered by replacement policy. Fireman's Fund Ins. Co. v Hartford Casualty Ins. Co., 162 Misc. 2d 365, 616 N.Y.S.2d 874, 1994 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 411 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1994).

Notice of cancellation sent to insured, which contained statement that proof of financial security must be maintained and notice of certain punitive aspects should insured fail to comply, was valid even though it erroneously advised insured that civil penalty for failure to maintain financial security was $4 per day rather than $6 per day; all essential and necessary elements of notice required by law were given to insured. Foster v Abrams, 167 Misc. 2d 909, 640 N.Y.S.2d 417, 1996 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 83 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1996), modified, aff'd, 242 A.D.2d 952, 662 N.Y.S.2d 899, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10561 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1997).

Policy cancellation letter was not effective to cancel an insured's motorcycle policy and the insurer did not show there was no genuine issue of material fact to warrant summary judgment for it; the insured made the motorcycle available for inspection as required by New York Automobile Insurance Plan § 18.2.6 by a certain date. The insurer's receipt of the inspection photos by that date was not the test; so the cancellation letter was not effective under N.Y. Ins. Law § 3425(b) and N.Y. Veh. and Traf. Law § 313(1)(a) since the policy was in its first 60 days and the insured did not state a valid reason for cancellation. Pascal v Carco Group, 782 N.Y.S.2d 187, 5 Misc. 3d 411, 2004 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1452 (N.Y. Civ. Ct. 2004).

Insured's alleged failure to provide the name of the insurance carrier to a vehicle inspector did not negate the fact that the insured had made the car "available" for inspection as required by New York Insurance Plan § 18.2.6. Pascal v Carco Group, 782 N.Y.S.2d 187, 5 Misc. 3d 411, 2004 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1452 (N.Y. Civ. Ct. 2004).

Insurer sending notice of cancellation for non-payment of premium of motor vehicle liability insurance coverage must add, to total amount that must be paid to avoid cancellation, one-dollar motor vehicle law enforcement fee charged policyholder in its statement of amount due; it is not practical to send separate written notice to policyholder to pay one-dollar fee, nor to send another declarations page of policy to accomplish same. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 00-07-14.

Automobile insurance policy may be effectively canceled when effective date of notice of cancellation falls on same day as renewal policy's effective date or after. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 01-01-07.

Insurer may nonrenew or conditionally renew automobile insurance policy, initially written on or after August 2, 2001, under one of specified reasons in CLS Ins § 3425(m)(3) on renewal date of policy, even though 3-year required policy period has not expired. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 01-09-05.

Insurer may nonrenew automobile policy subject to CLS Ins § 3425 for any reason not otherwise prohibited by law, in accordance with insurer's uniformly applied underwriting rules, on expiration of policy's 3-year required policy period; specifically, insurer may specify as reason that insurer's agent no longer represents insurer. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 01-09-05.

Under CLS Ins §§ 3425 and 3426, notice of cancellation for non-payment does not have to specify amount due in order for cancellation to be effected. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 02-01-06.

Insurer may nonrenew personal lines policy based on insured's failure to complete self-inspection survey of insured's residence as required by insurer. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 02-08-09.

"Mileage pattern" is not sufficiently specific to satisfy CLS Ins § 3425(d)(1). Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 02-09-25.

Insurer that sells non-commercial automobile insurance via telephone is required, under 11 NYCRR Part 218 (Regulation 90), to provide applicant that it has denied coverage with written notice of refusal to issue coverage. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 03-07-08.

Where producer-insurer contract has been terminated, insurer must offer to keep personal lines insurance policy in force for remainder of 3-year required policy period, and insurer must offer to continue policy through terminated producer for at least its next one-year policy period that commences within one year following date that termination notice is delivered to producer; thereafter, at insured's specific request, insurer must offer to continue policy through terminated producer for any remaining part of 3-year required policy period. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 03-08-21.

Insurer could not cancel homeowners' policy mid-term based on "physical changes in the property insured occurring after issuance or last annual anniversary date of the policy which result in the property becoming uninsurable in accordance with the insurer's objective, uniformly applied underwriting standards in effect at the time the policy was issued or last voluntarily renewed" where premises became unoccupied, policy was subsequently renewed, and insurer, pursuant to its uniformly applied underwriting standards, would not issue new homeowners' policy because premises were unoccupied; assuming that property becoming unoccupied was physical change, it had occurred prior to last annual anniversary date. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 04-04-21.

Under CLS Ins § 3425, nonpayment cancellation notice is not valid if it fails to state amount due on face of notice, but refers insured to premium statement that accompanies notice, which states amount due; fact that CLS Veh & Tr § 313 might have different language is not determinative. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 06-01-12.

Insurance agent is not prohibited from verbally communicating to insured, more than 60 days before homeowner's policy's expiration date, that insurer will not renew policy; such communication, however, does not effectuate non-renewal. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 07-06-02.

Otherwise valid notice of cancellation for nonpayment of premium of non-commercial package policy, which includes homeowners, automobile, and umbrella liability insurance, is effective if, after notice is mailed, insurer receives check from insured in payment of premium and informs agent that policy will be reinstated, but check is thereafter dishonored. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 09-12-02.

4. —Notice to loss payee

A policy of automobile collision insurance was effectively canceled as to all parties, including secured party under a loss payable clause, by a premium finance agency under power of attorney from the insured where the premium finance agency gave the requisite statutory notices, which notices did not include notice to loss payee. Dyer v Great Eastern Ins. Co., 41 A.D.2d 581, 340 N.Y.S.2d 3, 1973 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5250 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1973).

Notice of cancellation of policies of insurance is not required by statute to be delivered to a loss payee. Dyer v Great Eastern Ins. Co., 41 A.D.2d 581, 340 N.Y.S.2d 3, 1973 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5250 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1973).

Where the insured had granted a premium finance agency the authority to cancel an automobile liability policy for nonpayment of premiums, that agency could properly cancel the policy without giving notice to a named loss payee and pursuant to Banking Law § 576 effectively terminated the obligations and rights between the insurer and insured. Dyer v Great Eastern Ins. Co., 41 A.D.2d 581, 340 N.Y.S.2d 3, 1973 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5250 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1973).

5. —Notice to commissioner of motor vehicles

In the absence of proof as to filing by insurer of notice of finance company's cancellation with commissioner of motor vehicles, notice of cancellation of automobile policy was ineffective. Geoghegan v Empire Mut. Ins. Co., 52 A.D.2d 836, 382 N.Y.S.2d 826, 1976 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12660 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't), app. denied, 39 N.Y.2d 711, 1976 N.Y. LEXIS 3456 (N.Y. 1976).

In an insured's declaratory judgment action, after an accident that occurred one month after cancellation of his automobile insurance policy, cancellation would be valid where the insured had failed to meet his obligations under a premium finance agreement with a premium service corporation, where the notice of cancellation only had to provide the date on which the policy would be cancelled, where the insured had not been entitled to two separate periods in which to cure his default, where the insurer had not been liable for the failure of the premium service corporation to return moneys in excess of the financed amount, and where it was no longer necessary to file a notice of cancellation with the commissioner of motor vehicles. Ward v Gresham, 92 A.D.2d 468, 459 N.Y.S.2d 48, 1983 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 16669 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't), aff'd, 59 N.Y.2d 878, 465 N.Y.S.2d 931, 452 N.E.2d 1259, 1983 N.Y. LEXIS 3210 (N.Y. 1983).

If the policy of insurance is canceled by the insurer pursuant to § 313 of the Vehicle and Traffic Law, then a late filing of the notice of cancellation with the Commissioner of Motor Vehicles will not operate to vitiate the effect of such cancellation provided the accident happened more than 10 days after the filing of the FS-4 with the Department of Motor Vehicles. Theodore v Hartford Accident & Indem. Co., 60 Misc. 2d 991, 304 N.Y.S.2d 688, 1969 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1142 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1969).

An automobile insurance carrier cannot in New York terminate an automobile policy on notice to the insured without also giving prior notice to the State Motor Vehicle Commissioner. Craine v New Hampshire Ins. Co., 64 Misc. 2d 86, 314 N.Y.S.2d 237, 1970 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1427 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1970).

Conditional notice requirements of N.Y. Ins. Law § 3425 did not apply to an insured's claim based on an insurer's annual increases in premiums and coverage because the policy provided that the insurer could condition annual renewal on the payment of increased premiums based on currents cases and values. Spagnola v Chubb Corp., 574 F.3d 64, 2009 U.S. App. LEXIS 16679 (2d Cir. N.Y. 2009).

6. Notification requirements for policy with more than one named insured

Where automobile liability policy provided that the insurance afforded applied separately to each insured against whom claim is made or suit is brought, the unilateral act of one "named insured" without notice to the other "named insured" could not cancel or terminate the obligation of the insurer to the second "named insured." Broquedis v Employers Mut. Liability Ins. Co., 45 A.D.2d 591, 360 N.Y.S.2d 735, 1974 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3746 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1974).

Where automobile liability insurer mistakenly relied on former husband's request to delete the former wife as a "named insured" under liability policy and the insurer did not give the former wife 45 days' notice of nonrenewal prior to anniversary date of policy, the insured's termination of coverage of the former wife, a "named insured," was a nullity. Broquedis v Employers Mut. Liability Ins. Co., 45 A.D.2d 591, 360 N.Y.S.2d 735, 1974 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3746 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1974).

Where automobile liability insurer had previously issued policy to owner on his automobile in owner's own name, and had issued a motor vehicle department insurance certificate certifying it had issued required statutory policy to owner which certificate enabled owner to register and operate his car on state streets, insurer would be estopped from denying coverage on basis that owner's father, who had become "named insured" under automobile policy which included coverage for his son's car, had cancelled such insurance, particularly in light of fact that son was never notified of the cancellation. Government Employees Ins. Co. v Employers Commercial Union Ins. Co., 88 Misc. 2d 132, 387 N.Y.S.2d 52, 1976 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2599 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1976), aff'd, 62 A.D.2d 123, 404 N.Y.S.2d 652, 1978 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10427 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1978).

Where father, as named insured on policy covering both his own and his son's cars, purported to cancel as to son without son's consent, son, never having received notice of the cancellation, remained covered. Government Employees Ins. Co. v Employers Commercial Union Ins. Co., 88 Misc. 2d 132, 387 N.Y.S.2d 52, 1976 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2599 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1976), aff'd, 62 A.D.2d 123, 404 N.Y.S.2d 652, 1978 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10427 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1978).

7. Proof of mailing of notices

Documentary evidence that, inter alia, the Department of Motor Vehicles received copy of notice of termination of automobile insurance addressed to car owner, and that termination notice had been sent to car owner at its last known address of record, and returned with indication that owner had moved, established insurer's full compliance with requirement of Insurance Law that notice of termination of insurance be mailed to named insured at address shown on policy at least 20 days prior to effective date of cancellation, and that liability insurance had been properly cancelled. Leatherby Ins. Co. v Scott, 51 A.D.2d 519, 378 N.Y.S.2d 399, 1976 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10716 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1976).

In action against insurance company for breach of homeowners' policy, company was properly granted summary judgment on ground that policy had been canceled prior to date of fire that damaged plaintiffs' home, since company satisfied its burden of proving that cancellation notice was properly mailed to plaintiffs where it submitted (1) affidavits setting forth its standard operating procedure for insuring that cancellation notices were properly mailed, including verification by postal employee that names and addresses of policyholders on computer-generated list provided by company actually appeared in window of envelopes, and (2) certificate of mailing showing that cancellation notice addressed to plaintiffs was actually received by post office. Strohschein v Northern Assurance Co., 136 A.D.2d 625, 523 N.Y.S.2d 596, 1988 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 439 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1988).

In action against insurer and premium finance company to recover proceeds of commercial risk insurance policy, defendants were not entitled to summary judgment on basis that plaintiff's policy had been cancelled due to nonpayment of premiums, since issue of fact existed as to whether cancellation notice was sufficiently timely under CLS Bank § 576 to afford plaintiff appropriate opportunity to cure delinquency, where insurer submitted "file copy" of its notice of intent to cancel and 2 pages of ledger entries logging outgoing mail on date notice supposedly was sent, but plaintiff denied receipt of purported mailing. 1395 Second Ave. Restaurant v All City Ins. Co., 207 A.D.2d 271, 615 N.Y.S.2d 358, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8124 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1994).

Insurer failed to show that it mailed cancellation notice to insureds where (1) both insureds and mortgage company denied ever having received notice allegedly mailed to them, (2) insurer's employee, who had personal knowledge of alleged mailings, testified as to usual procedure for mailing such notices, but testimony did not show that procedures were geared so as to ensure likelihood that notice was always properly addressed and mailed, and (3) insurer failed to present testimony of 2 personally-involved employees who were specifically named on mailing receipts. Colon v Nationwide Mut. Fire Ins. Co., 211 A.D.2d 579, 621 N.Y.S.2d 608, 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 546 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1995).

Court erred in declaring that plaintiffs were covered by automobile insurance policy issued by defendant as to accident in question where defendant, through testimony of 2 knowledgeable employees, introduced copy of notice of cancellation it sent to plaintiffs prior to accident, along with properly endorsed postal service certificate of mailing, both generated and retained in ordinary course of business. Jones v Allstate Ins. Co., 221 A.D.2d 596, 634 N.Y.S.2d 176, 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12442 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1995).

In action to recover proceeds under homeowners' policy, where insurer claimed that policy had been canceled for nonpayment of premiums, and satisfied its burden of proving that notice of cancellation was properly mailed to plaintiffs based on direct proof of mailing of actual notice, proof of insurer's regular office mailing procedures was not required to obtain summary judgment. Pardo v Central Coop. Ins. Co., 223 A.D.2d 832, 636 N.Y.S.2d 184, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 103 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1996).

In action to recover proceeds under homeowners' policy, where insurer claimed that policy had been canceled for nonpayment of premiums, affidavit of insurer's vice-president was sufficient to show that insurer mailed notice of cancellation on stated date, especially where insurer produced certificate of mailing that listed plaintiffs' address and was date-stamped on stated date. Pardo v Central Coop. Ins. Co., 223 A.D.2d 832, 636 N.Y.S.2d 184, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 103 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1996).

In action to recover proceeds under homeowners' policy, where insurer claimed that policy had been canceled for nonpayment of premiums and met its burden of proving that cancellation notice was properly mailed to plaintiffs, plaintiffs' contention that they never received notice was insufficient to rebut presumption that they received notice. Pardo v Central Coop. Ins. Co., 223 A.D.2d 832, 636 N.Y.S.2d 184, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 103 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1996).

In action to recover proceeds under homeowners' policy, where insurer claimed that policy had been canceled for nonpayment of premiums and met its burden of proving that cancellation notice was properly mailed to plaintiffs, fact that plaintiffs' post office box number was omitted from notice of cancellation, although contained on declaration page of policy, was insufficient to rebut presumption that plaintiffs received notice, absent any evidence to indicate that notice was not received by them due to missing box number. Pardo v Central Coop. Ins. Co., 223 A.D.2d 832, 636 N.Y.S.2d 184, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 103 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1996).

In action to recover proceeds under homeowners' policy, where insurer claimed that policy had been canceled for nonpayment of premiums, plaintiffs' denial of receipt of notice of cancellation was belied by evidence that, after cancellation and before occurrence of fire that destroyed plaintiffs' home, plaintiff visited insurance agent at his office and offered to make payment to reinstate policy. Pardo v Central Coop. Ins. Co., 223 A.D.2d 832, 636 N.Y.S.2d 184, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 103 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1996).

Insurer created rebuttable presumption that notice of policy cancellation was received where it presented documentary evidence of its cancellation, together with testimony of employee who was knowledgeable about its cancellation procedures, to effect that such procedures were in conformity with statutory requirements of New York Automobile Insurance Plan. Lora v New York Cent. Mut. Fire Ins. Co., 232 A.D.2d 242, 648 N.Y.S.2d 91, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10100 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1996).

Insurer was not entitled to summary judgment dismissing action on homeowner's policy, based on insured's alleged failure to submit sworn proof of loss within 60 days after receiving demand to do so by insurer, even though insurer claimed to have received proof of loss by FAX on April 16, 12 days after expiration of 60-day period, where (1) insured's public adjuster averred that he mailed completed proof of loss forms to insurer on March 7, which was same date as that of insured's notarized signature on those forms, and (2) insurer did not conclusively prove that it supplied blank proof of loss forms with its February 3 demand letter as required by CLS Ins § 3407. Ingarra v General Accident/PG Ins. Co., 273 A.D.2d 766, 710 N.Y.S.2d 168, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7460 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2000).

Commercial property insurance policy was properly canceled by insurer through its agent, and thus insurer did not breach insurance contract by disclaiming coverage for damage by fire, where (1) agent's mailing of notice of cancellation was proved by deposition testimony of agent's president, certificate of mailing, and mailing ledger signed and date-stamped by United States Postal Service employee, and (2) insured did not rebut presumption of delivery raised by proof of mailing. Residential Holding Corp. v Scottsdale Ins. Co., 286 A.D.2d 679, 729 N.Y.S.2d 776, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8448 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2001).

8. Effect of insurer's acceptance of late premiums

Insurer would be estopped from asserting defense of cancellation against claim filed by insured under provisions of its homeowner's policy, even though insurer complied with relevant provisions of Insurance Law in attempting to cancel policy and in giving notice of cancellation, where insured's dilatory premium had been time stamped and posted by way of certified mail prior to alleged date of loss, where insurer had previously accepted premium following first notice of cancellation and thereby assured insured that future late payments would likewise be accepted, where language in cancellation notice indicated that carrier would entertain late payments, and where insurer's adjuster who interviewed insured two weeks after reported claim made no reference to policy cancellation or to receipt of late premiums. Weiner v Government Employees Ins. Co., 52 A.D.2d 844, 382 N.Y.S.2d 814, 1976 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12678 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1976).

9. Miscellaneous

Insurer's attempt to cancel automobile insurance policy for "failure to remedy material defects," consisting of insured's failure to provide certain information on insurance application, was ineffective where notice of cancellation was given more than 60 days after effective date of policy, policy expressly prohibited insurer from exercising right of cancellation after policy had been in effect for 60 days with certain exceptions, and "failure to remedy material defects" was not listed among exceptions; ambiguities in contracts of insurance are to be strictly construed against insurer, and if insurer contractually limits its right of cancellation beyond what is otherwise required by law, contract takes precedence. De Urbaez v Lumbermens Mut. Casualty Co., 68 N.Y.2d 930, 510 N.Y.S.2d 78, 502 N.E.2d 993, 1986 N.Y. LEXIS 20882 (N.Y. 1986).

Where personal lines policy was executed or delivered after policy's stated effective date, policy period under CLS Ins § 3425(a)(7) was triggered on policy's effective date. Rosner v Metro. Prop. & Liab. Ins. Co., 96 N.Y.2d 475, 729 N.Y.S.2d 658, 754 N.E.2d 760, 2001 N.Y. LEXIS 1988 (N.Y. 2001).

In an action by an insured to recover for breaches of hospital and life insurance policies that allegedly occurred when the policies were canceled for a default in premiums, plaintiff's cause of action for compensatory damages would be dismissed, where plaintiff sustained no loss that would entitle him to benefits under the policies, but plaintiff's cause of action for a declaration that the policies remained in effect would be allowed to stand. Topiwala v New York Life Ins. Co., 95 A.D.2d 746, 464 N.Y.S.2d 184, 1983 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 18647 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't), app. dismissed, 60 N.Y.2d 859, 1983 N.Y. LEXIS 6525 (N.Y. 1983).

Insurer properly cancelled automobile liability policy which it had issued at low "fleet rate" to purported lessor of automobiles since purported lessor did not obtain insurable interest in vehicles by virtue of "short-form trust agreement" and lease-back arrangement with owners of vehicles by which it attempted to create equitable interest in itself as means of circumventing provisions of Insurance Law in order to obtain low group rates on automobile liability insurance for owners of vehicles; insurer was entitled to summary judgment in action by purported lessor to enforce policy and to recover damages for cancellation, even though insurer could not escape liability for claims which arose during precancellation period. National Superlease, Inc. v Reliance Ins. Co., 123 A.D.2d 608, 507 N.Y.S.2d 16, 1986 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 60759 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1986), app. denied, 69 N.Y.2d 611, 517 N.Y.S.2d 1026, 511 N.E.2d 85, 1987 N.Y. LEXIS 16859 (N.Y. 1987).

In action for judgment declaring that insurer was obligated under homeowners' insurance policy to pay any judgment rendered against homeowners in pending action arising out of fire at their premises, trial court properly determined that insurer was not insurer of subject premises on date in question and that it owed no duty to defend and indemnify homeowners, based on testimony by insurer's employee as to insurer's regular procedure for producing and sending out notices of cancellation, which raised presumption that notice of cancellation sent to homeowners in instant case was in fact received by them approximately 10 months before fire; homeowners failed to rebut presumption by presenting evidence that insurer's procedure was either not followed or carelessly followed. Ramos v De Mond, 127 A.D.2d

751, 512 N.Y.S.2d 143, 1987 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 43235 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1987).

Fact that suspension of insured's driver's license was merely "administrative," as defined in CLS Ins § 3425, did not preclude automobile insurers from invoking policy provision excluding uninsured motorist coverage to insured, who was injured while operating vehicle in violation of order of suspension, since § 3425 precludes insurer from canceling or failing to renew policy based on administrative suspension but does not extend to operation of exclusionary clauses in policies. Bouloukos v First Sec. Ins. Corp., 167 A.D.2d 366, 561 N.Y.S.2d 793, 1990 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13626 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1990).

While New York's compulsory automobile insurance laws provide only for prospective cancellation of automobile insurance policies, thus abrogating insurer's common-law right to void policy from its inception on ground that it was obtained through fraud or misrepresentation, such rule is designed to protect innocent victims of motor vehicle accidents and does not bar action to void policy ab initio where it is alleged that claimant himself participated in fraudulent issuance of policy. Travelers Indem. Co. v Avelino, 191 A.D.2d 229, 594 N.Y.S.2d 249, 1993 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2133 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1993).

In personal injury action arising out of accident that occurred in insured building, where general liability insurer denied coverage on ground that policy had been cancelled for nonpayment of premiums and building owners sued insurance broker for professional negligence and breach of contract stemming from alleged lack of insurance coverage, broker had standing to assert claims against liability insurer based on alleged deficiencies in notice of cancellation, since broker who negligently fails to procure coverage stands in shoes of insurer as concerns liability to insured. Macon v Arnlie Realty Co., 207 A.D.2d 268, 615 N.Y.S.2d 28, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8136 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1994).

Liability insurer's blanket statement that it "has all the classic delay problems to deal with," without more, was insufficient to demonstrate actual prejudice for purpose of establishing its contention of laches as defense to claim based on alleged deficiencies in insurer's notice of cancellation. Macon v Arnlie Realty Co., 207 A.D.2d 268, 615 N.Y.S.2d 28, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8136 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1994).

In action to recover proceeds under homeowners' policy which was canceled for nonpayment of premiums, summary judgment in favor of defendants was not precluded by plaintiffs' claim that policy was renewed when they tendered $150 to defendant insurance agent as payment for homeowners' insurance, where insurer had previously declined to reinstate policy and insurance agent had told plaintiffs that they would have to find another agent to obtain coverage, and insurance agent contended that $150 payment was for plaintiffs' auto insurance policy. Pardo v Central Coop. Ins. Co., 223 A.D.2d 832, 636 N.Y.S.2d 184, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 103 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1996).

Insurer was entitled to summary judgment dismissing action to recover benefits of fire insurance policy where its cancellation notice complied with CLS Ins § 3425(b), insured did not deny that he received cancellation notice or that he thereafter received and cashed refund of unearned premium, and property was destroyed by fire nearly 4 months after termination date of policy. Tannenbaum v Republic Ins. Co., 249 A.D.2d 460, 671 N.Y.S.2d 520, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4312 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't), app. denied, 92 N.Y.2d 810, 680 N.Y.S.2d 55, 702 N.E.2d 840, 1998 N.Y. LEXIS 3094 (N.Y. 1998).

Insurer was not entitled to summary judgment dismissing action on homeowner's policy, based on insured's allegedly willful failure to cooperate, where insured submitted to examination under oath, supplied documents and records, offered what he believed were reasonable substitutes for discarded documents destroyed in water damage incident that was basis for his claim, and tried to explain his position regarding items that he could not, or would not, produce. Ingarra v General Accident/PG Ins. Co., 273 A.D.2d 766, 710 N.Y.S.2d 168, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7460 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2000).

Insurer was not entitled to summary judgment dismissing action on homeowner's policy, based on insured's alleged fraud or concealment in his claims, even though insured's proof of loss and estimate included claims for damages to second floor of his townhouse, which floor was not damaged in present water damage incident, and insurer argued that some damages presently claimed resulted from prior water damage incident, where insured explained that he had no records from prior incident, that those records might have been among those destroyed or discarded as result of current damage, and that he did not go over proof of loss as carefully as he should have. Ingarra v General Accident/PG Ins. Co., 273 A.D.2d 766, 710 N.Y.S.2d 168, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7460 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2000).

Insureds who settled their breach of contract action against their property insurer were entitled to dismissal of insurer's interpleader action against them where (1) at time of stipulation of settlement, insurer knew that other parties had potential claims on insurance proceeds, but insurer chose to settle and obtained releases only from subject insureds and their attorney, (2) insurer had not sought to vacate stipulation but merely obtained temporary restraining order in interpleader action that prevented parties to stipulation from entering judgment in breach of contract action, and (3) insurer would not be allowed to use interpleader action to circumvent stipulation. Charter Oak Fire Ins. Co. v Borrelli, 273 A.D.2d 797, 709 N.Y.S.2d 299, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6702 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 2000).

Property insurer that brought interpleader action was not entitled to order discharging it from liability to insureds and their attorney in exchange for its deposit of $323,000 with county treasurer where (1) by stipulation of settlement in insureds' breach of contract action against insurer, that sum was owed directly to insureds and their attorney, (2) any amounts disbursed to county treasurer or other possible claimants would diminish amount of proceeds that insureds and their attorney would receive, and (3) stipulation would not be altered without showing of sufficient cause to invalidate contract, such as fraud, collusion, mistake, or accident. Charter Oak Fire Ins. Co. v Borrelli, 273 A.D.2d 797, 709 N.Y.S.2d 299, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6702 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 2000).

Property insurer that brought interpleader action was not entitled to vacatur of judgment entered in insureds' breach of contract action against it where insurer did not move to vacate stipulation of settlement entered in breach of contract action, and there was no impediment to entry of judgment on stipulation; rather, insureds were entitled to dismissal of interpleader action. Charter Oak Fire Ins. Co. v Borrelli, 273 A.D.2d 797, 709 N.Y.S.2d 299, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6702 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 2000).

Recovery under "employee dishonesty" endorsement of property insurance policy was not barred by provision excluding coverage for "salaries, commissions, fees, bonuses, . . . or other benefits earned in the normal course of employment" where (1) insured's comptroller embezzled funds from payroll account over which he had sole control by secretly and fraudulently paying himself unauthorized and excessive salary, commissions, and bonuses, (2) policy protected against embezzlement or theft by employees, and (3) comptroller committed pure embezzlement. Klyn v Travelers Indem. Co., 273 A.D.2d 931, 709 N.Y.S.2d 780, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6801 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 2000).

Provision of lease releasing landlord from liability was ineffective by its own terms where it provided that "In the event that Lessee suffers loss or damage for which Lessor would be liable, and Lessee carries insurance which covers such loss or damage and such insurance policy or policies contain a waiver of subrogation against the Landlord, then in such event Lessee releases Lessor from any liability with respect to such loss or damage," and although relevant property insurance policy authorized insured to "waive your rights against another in writing...[p]rior to a loss," it did not contain any language that effected waiver of subrogation against landlord. Continental Ins. Co. v 115-123 West 29th St. Owners Corp., 275 A.D.2d 604, 713 N.Y.S.2d 38, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9029 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2000).

Landlord was entitled to summary judgment dismissing action by tenant's insurer for negligence and breach of contract where those claims were precluded by "waiver of subrogation" clause in insurance policy issued by insurer to tenant. Atl. Mut. Ins. Co. v

Soiefer Bros. Realty Corp., 281 A.D.2d 441, 721 N.Y.S.2d 554, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2322 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2001).

Neither party was entitled to summary judgment in action to recover under commercial property insurance policy issued to plaintiff's former tenant, even though plaintiff was named as loss payee under property coverage portion of policy, where record contained only some provisions of policy applicable to loss payee under property coverage portion of policy and contained none of common policy conditions and commercial property conditions applicable to property coverage. White v Commercial Union Ins. Co., 281 A.D.2d 877, 722 N.Y.S.2d 193, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2744 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 2001).

Insurance agency was entitled to summary judgment dismissing action for breach of contract and breach of duty to procure appropriate insurance coverage for plaintiff's business where (1) defendant's agent made unsolicited call at plaintiff's store and offered to procure business owner's insurance policy, (2) plaintiff never requested any specific coverage, allegedly relying on expertise of agent, (3) after plaintiff bought policy that excluded coverage for employee dishonesty, plaintiff's employee stole money from store, (4) parties had no special relationship that would entitle plaintiff to rely on agent's representations that new policy was "a better policy" than plaintiff's existing policy, and (5) once plaintiff received declarations pages and insurance policy showing coverage, plaintiff had conclusive presumptive knowledge of terms and limits of policy. Chase's Cigar Store v Stam Agency, 281 A.D.2d 911, 722 N.Y.S.2d 320, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2724 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 2001).

Insured was entitled to summary judgment in action to recover on fire insurance policy where, on renewal of policy, insurer failed to inform insured of changes in vacancy exclusion clause that reduced coverage, and thus insurer was bound by coverage provided under policy as originally issued. Janes v N.Y. State Cent. Mut. Ins. Co., 281 A.D.2d 982, 722 N.Y.S.2d 669, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2817 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 2001).

Property insurance policy, which was canceled on January 28, 1989, was not revived by insurer's mistaken June 15, 1989, payment of insured's claim for March 31, 1989, loss. 8112-24 18th Ave. Realty Corp. v Aetna Cas. & Sur. Co., 240 A.D.2d 287, 659 N.Y.S.2d 17, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6659 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1997).

In action by plaintiffs who sued their current insurance carrier after their house burned down and insurance carrier refused to pay more than ½ of their loss on ground that their former insurance carrier was liable for remainder of loss because it did not effectively cancel earlier policy covering house, defendant insurer (as replacing insurer) had cause of action against plaintiffs' former insurer as though earlier policy remained in effect. Iaia v Graphic Arts Mut. Ins. Co., 175 Misc. 2d 838, 670 N.Y.S.2d 683, 1997 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 679 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1997).

In action by plaintiffs whose current insurance carrier refused to pay more than ½ of their casualty loss on basis that their former insurance carrier did not effectively cancel earlier policy covering same property and therefore was liable for remainder of loss, former insurer was not entitled to summary judgment dismissing claims for penalties and attorney's fees because, having improperly attempted to terminate plaintiffs' policy in violation of CLS Ins § 3425 and then forcing plaintiffs to bear cost of litigating case, it clearly failed to eliminate any triable issues of fact regarding those claims. Iaia v Graphic Arts Mut. Ins. Co., 175 Misc. 2d 838, 670 N.Y.S.2d 683, 1997 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 679 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1997).

Homeowner's insurer did comply with 11 NYCRR § 216.6(c) where it did not issue denial of claim within 15 business days, notify insured of need for additional time, or present reasons for position that additional time would be needed. Eveleno v Colonial Penn Ins. Co., 188 Misc. 2d 454, 728 N.Y.S.2d 907, 2001 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 218 (N.Y. Civ. Ct. 2001).

"Non-waiver agreement" providing that insurer and insured under homeowner's policies agreed that "any action taken to investigate any circumstance connected with the claim, the issuance or status of the insurance, the ascertainment of value and loss of any other matter related thereto, shall not be construed to waive, modify, invalidate or forfeit any of their rights under the policy (ies)" did not satisfy requirements of 11 NYCRR § 216.6(c), relating to timely notification of acceptance or rejection of claims, did not allow insurer to unreasonably delay rights of insured to detriment of insured, and was not waiver of insured's right to insist on compliance with regulations. Eveleno v Colonial Penn Ins. Co., 188 Misc. 2d 454, 728 N.Y.S.2d 907, 2001 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 218 (N.Y. Civ. Ct. 2001).

Failure of insurer to promptly disclaim coverage under specific exclusion, in homeowner's policy covering collapsed pool, of damage caused by low water level violated standards for prompt, fair, and equitable settlements set forth in CLS Ins § 2601 and 11 NYCRR § 216.6 and precluded insurer from denying coverage where insured did not breach policy condition, dynamic situation such as pool collapse requires rapid investigation and repair to avoid further damage, and insurer could have obtained additional time by merely sending notice to insured. Eveleno v Colonial Penn Ins. Co., 188 Misc. 2d 454, 728 N.Y.S.2d 907, 2001 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 218 (N.Y. Civ. Ct. 2001).

Property insurer's disclaimer of coverage was valid and enforceable where it was based on clear and unambiguous policy language excluding coverage if insured's building were vacant for 60 consecutive days before loss, and record showed that building was vacant, within meaning of policy, for requisite period. Nicholas J. Masterpol, Inc. v Travelers Ins. Cos., 273 A.D.2d 817, 711 N.Y.S.2d 88, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6714 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 2000).

Property insurer was entitled to summary judgment dismissing insured's action on policy where insured had conclusive presumptive knowledge of terms of policy before loss and took no action to close gap in coverage resulting from vacancy exclusion, and insured's request for insurance neither triggered duty of insurer to recommend coverage in event of vacancy nor relieved insured of its duty to read policy, which contained express exclusion for vacancy. Nicholas J. Masterpol, Inc. v Travelers Ins. Cos., 273 A.D.2d 817, 711 N.Y.S.2d 88, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6714 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 2000).

Plaintiff's contract claim for misappropriation of policy "expirations" should not have been dismissed because the amended complaint set forth the terms allegedly breached and defendants did not contend that any provision of the agreement negated such claim, and plaintiff's claims for commissions allegedly owed, including claims for unpaid commissions during the 90-day period after plaintiff's receipt of defendants' notice of termination, override commissions owed pursuant to an addendum to the agreement, and commissions owed pursuant to N.Y. Ins. Law § 3425(j), were insufficiently pleaded under N.Y. C.P.L.R. 3013, and plaintiff did not cure the defect, so plaintiff was granted leave to amend its breach of contract cause of action solely as to the commissions' claims. Automobile Coverage, Inc. v American Intl. Group, Inc., 42 A.D.3d 405, 839 N.Y.S.2d 916, 2007 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8787 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2007).

Private passenger automobile insurance coverage and homeowner's insurance coverage can be bound on Internet by authorized New York insurer following completion on Internet of electronic application that has been electronically signed by applicant; it is acceptable for insurer that binds such insurance coverage on Internet to give insured option to print insurance binder off Internet, and insurer need not separately file electronic version of binder that will be transmitted over Internet. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 00-05-15.

As to those insurance policies which are subject to Insurance Department Regulation No. 90 (fire insurance, fire and extended coverage insurance, and private passenger automobile insurance subject to CLS Ins § 3425), if insurer chooses to send more than one notice of refusal to issue coverage, all notices of refusal to issue coverage mailed or delivered to applicant by insurer, including notice over Internet, must contain anti-redlining notice as prescribed in regulation; neither anti-redlining statute nor regulation applies to homeowner's insurance, and redlining statement is not required in connection with such policies. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 00-05-15.

As to those insurance policies which are subject to Insurance Department Regulation No. 90 (fire insurance, fire and extended coverage insurance, and private passenger automobile insurance subject to CLS Ins § 3425), notices of refusal to issue coverage must be mailed or delivered to applicant, which can be done by electronic means if applicant consents to use of electronic technology, not more than 30 days after application is received by insurance agent or broker; regulatory requirements for mailing or delivery of notice of refusal to issue does not apply to homeowner's policies. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number.

It constitutes prohibited discrimination in benefits under CLS Insurance Law Art 23 where insurer offers more limited choice of premium installment payment plans to its new applicants (who deal with insurer through agents who have neither preferred agent nor exclusive agent contracts) than is made available to other new applicants (who deal with insurer through preferred or exclusive agents); status of agent is not valid underwriting criteria. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 00-07-12.

Insurer that offers only paid-in-full payment option to certain policyholders on renewal, based on underwriting criteria, may or may not be violating law; if criteria used by insurer constitutes discrimination in benefits or is prohibited by law, its use would violate applicable law, but if insurer can show that criteria used relates to risk being insured, there would be no violation of law. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 00-07-12.

Insurer that limits choice of premium installment payment plans, which were previously available to insured, on renewal or continuance of insured's policy, and after insured's agent or broker was terminated by insurer, violates policy continuation and renewal rights of affected insureds in contravention of CLS Ins § 3425(j). Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 00-07-12.

New York Insurance Law neither authorizes nor prohibits insurers from charging fees with relation to installment premium payment plan; although installment fees are not part of insurer's premium schedule, which must be filed with and approved by Insurance Department, schedule of such fees should be submitted to Department, along with policy forms, for informational purposes. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 00-07-18.

Insurer may cancel policy for non-payment of installment fees, so long as insured had been made aware of contractual obligation to pay such fees. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 00-07-18.

Insurer may cancel policy, under CLS Ins §§ 3425(a)(10) and 3426(a)(3), if insured fails to pay billing and late fees, so long as insured is aware of its contractual obligation to pay fees. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 01-01-05.

On agency billed premiums, agent or broker may not request nonpayment cancellation from insurer if agency has remitted premium, but insured has not paid agency; further, agent or broker may not request nonpayment cancellation from insurer if agency collected premium payment check from insured, remitted producer's check to insurer, and insured's check to producer was subsequently dishonored by bank for insufficient funds or stop payment. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 01-01-09.

Policy is obtained primarily for "personal, family or household" purposes under Regulation 169 if majority of premium is attributable to such purposes and insured is individual; in certain circumstances, insurance policies that are subject to CLS Ins § 3425 are not primarily for "personal, family, or household purposes," and thus privacy notices would not be mandated by regulation. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 01-04-11.

Open cargo policy to be purchased by shipper's agent that provided coverage to all of its shipping customers whom elected to buy coverage would constitute impermissible group policy in violation of CLS Ins § 3425. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 01-06025.

Insurer is not permitted under CLS Ins § 3425 from canceling policyholder's personal umbrella liability policy because underlying automobile liability coverage has been canceled by policyholder. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 01-08-09.

Insurance Law does not require homeowners insurance policy to provide pollution coverage, whether such coverage arises from discharge of oil from homeowner's above-ground or underground oil tank or otherwise, for damage to insured's own property. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 01-10-15.

Insurer's obligation under CLS Ins § 3425(j) to continue to offer automobile insurance policy through terminated insurance agent or broker is otherwise subject to insurer's right to nonrenew or cancel policy in accordance with other provisions of CLS Ins § 3425. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 01-09-05.

Under CLS Ins §§ 3425 and 3426, insurance policy may be canceled for non-payment of late payment fee, reinstatement fee, or premium installment fee. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 02-01-06.

Under CLS Ins §§ 3425 and 3426, effective date of cancellation for non-payment may be same as policy's inception or renewal date. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 02-01-06.

Except as to assigned risk automobile insurance policy, insurance agent or broker that advances premium payment for its insured may not order insurer to cancel policy when insured fails to reimburse agent or broker for premium advanced. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 02-01-06.

Policy is obtained primarily for "personal, family or household" purposes under Regulation 169 (11 NYCRR § 420.0-420.24) if majority of premium is attributable to such purposes and insured is individual; in certain circumstances, insurance policies that are subject to CLS Ins § 3425 are not primarily for "personal, family, or household purposes" and thus privacy notices would not be mandated by regulation. Insurance Department, Privacy Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 01-04-11.

Pursuant to 11 NYCRR §§ 154.2 and 154.3 (Regulation 150), automobile insurance policy that has 3-year required policy period under CLS Ins § 3425 may be "uptiered" by insurer only at end of required policy period, not on interim anniversary dates. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 02-02-28.

Executed letter agreement between insurer and producer cannot limit termination rights of sub-producers provided by CLS Ins § 3425(j)(1)(C) regarding new business by terminated sub-producers. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 02-05-05.

If sub-producer becomes insolvent, abandons business, or commits gross or willful misconduct, or fails to pay over to insurer monies due to insurer after written demand, and if such acts are committed subsequent to termination but during period requiring acceptance of new business, insurer's obligation to continue to accept new business for 120-day period following date of notice of termination would not continue to apply on insurer providing notice to sub-producer. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 02-05-05.

Material change in covered pet's health does not constitute physical change in property as ground for cancellation of policy; however, if pet develops condition during term of policy that insurer considers as being "uninsurable in accordance with the insurer's objective, uniformly applied underwriting standards," and policy specifically excludes that condition, it could be considered to be physical change under CLS Ins § 3425(c)(2)(E), and thus ground for cancellation of policy. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 02-05-12.

Depending on type of insurance sold and agent's contract, insurer generally must pay full first year commission on insurance policy sold by licensed insurance agent who has terminated agency relationship with general agent before all premium payments have been made by insured. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 02-06-25.

Under CLS Ins § 3425(j)(1)(A), if insurer were to terminate its agent in first year of 3-year required policy period of personal lines insurance policy, insurer must offer to insured option to renew policy through terminated agent for at least policy's second year. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 02-06-26.

If insured were to request that insurer renew insurance policy's third year of 3-year required policy period through terminated agent, insurer must renew policy's third year through terminated agent. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 02-06-26.

Insurer may non-renew or conditionally renew 2 percent of its business written on or before August 1, 2001 based on total number of insurer's covered policies in force at last year's-end of each year in each of insurer's rating territories in use in New York. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 02-06-32.

Insurer may non-renew or conditionally renew one additional policy written in territory on or before August 1, 2001, in excess of 2 percent limit, for every 2 new automobile policies written on or after August 2, 2001, in that particular territory. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 02-06-32.

Insurer is required to submit CLS Ins § 3425(m)(2) data in its 2001 year end report. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 02-07-04.

Under CLS Ins § 3425, as to personal lines insurance policy, same requirements that apply to automobile insurance policies originally issued on or after August 2, 2001 apply to personal lines insurance policies, with only difference that those rules apply to all personal lines insurance policies no matter when such personal lines insurance policies were originally issued. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 02-10-23.

Under CLS Ins § 3425(j)(1)(B), "the insurer shall...at the specific request of the insured, offer to continue the policy through the terminated agent or broker for three successive one year policy periods"; insured need only make such request once, at appropriate time. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 02-10-23.

Under CLS Ins § 3425(j)(1)(B), "the insurer shall...at the specific request of the insured, offer to continue the policy through the terminated agent or broker for three successive one year policy periods"; there is no statutorily mandated format or method of service for making such request. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 02-10-23.

ABC Casualty Insurance Company could amend its by-laws to require ABC Bureau membership for new business but not for renewals. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 02-11-06.

ABC Casualty Insurance Company could amend its by-laws to cease requiring ABC Bureau membership in certain states. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 02-11-06.

ABC Casualty Insurance Company could amend its by-laws to require ABC Bureau membership for certain kinds of insurance but not for automobile or homeowners policies. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 02-11-06.

If ABC Casualty Insurance Company amended its by-laws so that it was no longer insurer that was organized for sole and exclusive purpose of providing insurance policies to members of organization, it would no longer be able to use CLS Ins § 3425(g) as basis for non-renewal of automobile liability policy. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 02-11-06.

Environmental protection insurance policy written to homeowner who is natural person that constitutes covered policy of personal lines insurance under CLS Ins § 3425(a)(2) may not be written in Free Trade Zone, and thus is not excepted from New York filing requirements; such policy does not constitute Class 2 risk. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 02-11-15.

Total number of policies in-force at year-end 2001 and for subsequent years for purposes of 2 percent rule under CLS Ins § 3425(f), includes both policies that were written prior to August 1, 2001 and policies that were written after August 1, 2001, even though those written after August 1, 2001 are not subject to 2 percent rule; similarly, total number of policies in-force at year-end 2001 and for subsequent years for purposes of two-for-one calculation, includes policies written after August 1, 2001, even though those written after August 1, 2001 can not be non-renewed under two-for-one rule. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 03-03-03.

Insurance Regulation 150 (11 NYCRR § 154), in § 154.3(e) provides that 2-for-one new business credit in CLS Ins § 3425(f)(2) shall apply to 2 percent and 3 percent limitations in that for every 2 new policies written, insurer may either non-renew or conditionally renew one additional policy in excess of 2 percent limitations or may uptier one additional policy in excess of 3 percent limitation. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 03-03-03.

Regarding requirement to continue to offer policy through terminated agent or broker under CLS Ins § 3425(j)(1)(B), insurer, if it does not receive specific request from insured to continue to renew policy through terminated agent or broker, may, on renewal, continue policy with another agent or broker or directly with insured and not pay any further commission to terminated agent/broker; there is no statutorily mandated format or method of service for making this request, and thus insurer may not required to request be in writing. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 03-03-03.

Whether insurer made automobile insurance policy, which is subject to CLS Ins § 3425, to exclude collision coverage for particular driver depends, in part, on insurer obtaining insured's signature acknowledging that collision coverage is not provided when specific individual drives motor vehicle. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 03-04-20.

Insurance Department Circular Letter No. 4 (1984) is still in effect and is based on statutory language contained in CLS Ins § 3425(j); see also CLS Ins § 3425(m) and (n) for new additional requirements. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 03-04-21.

Under New York law, automobile liability policy that satisfies financial responsibility requirements of Vehicle and Traffic Law cannot be voided ab initio even if fraudulently obtained; thus, coverage would exist until policy was canceled in accordance with statutorily mandated procedure. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 03-05-03.

There is no statutory prohibition against insurer renewing non-commercial motor vehicle policy with premium change within applicable statutorily required policy period of renewal. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 03-08-18.

Policy issued outside New York on excess line basis insuring not-for-profit organization and affiliated agencies would not be permissible in regard to New York members since, as group policy, aggregate limit is not allowed. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 03-08-15.

Insurer may non-renew personal automobile insurance policy originally issued February 23, 2001 for reason that insurer terminated its non-exclusive relationship with insured's agent in July of 2002. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 04-03-03.

Insurer may request insured to complete medical statement as precondition to increasing coverage limit of her umbrella insurance policy only if information that insurer seeks from insured is relevant to underwriting risk for which insured seeks increased umbrella policy coverage. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 04-06-20.

It cannot be said that in every case property becoming unoccupied is result of willful or reckless acts or omissions so as to permit cancellation of homeowners' policy under CLS Ins § 3425 or § 3426(c)(1)(D). Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 04-04-21.

Fact that insured became ill and went into hospital, and it was unclear whether she was going to be returning to premises, would not be considered willful or reckless so as to permit cancellation of homeowners' policy under CLS Ins § 3425 or § 3426(c)(1)(D). Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 04-04-21.

Under CLS Ins § 3425(h)(3), insurer must send copy of notice of cancellation, reduction of limits, substitution of policy form, elimination of coverage, conditioned renewal or intention not to renew to insured and insured's broker in transaction where insured's broker places business through agent; however, copies need not be sent to agent. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 04-07-16.

When insurer cancels policy of homeowners insurance within first 60 days it is in effect, and property loss occurs after cancellation notice is issued but prior to effective date of cancellation, insurer may subsequently deny payment on insured's claim based on material misrepresentation in inception of policy, when insurer was aware of such facts at time it chose to prospectively cancel coverage. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 04-08-13.

There is no provision of Insurance Law which governs whether insurer, having elected to cancel coverage prospectively under CLS Ins § 3425, may subsequently decide instead to rescind coverage under CLS Ins § 3105, thereby declining coverage on loss occurring during period coverage remained in effect under prospective cancellation. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 04-08-13.

Cancellation under CLS Ins § 3425 or § 3426 would terminate contract on specific date prospectively, whereas rescission under CLS Ins § 3105 would nullify contract as if it had never existed; these are distinct and separate remedies that insurer may elect and no minimum notice for rescission is mandated. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 04-08-13.

Neither CLS Ins § 3425 nor § 3426 expressly precludes use of rescission by insurer. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 04-08-13.

CLS Ins § 3425(c)(1)(B) permits insurance company to cancel automobile policy if driver's license of named insured, or any other person who customarily operates automobile insured under policy, is suspended or revoked during policy period subject to certain exceptions; in addition, insurer may also non-renew policy pursuant to CLS Ins § 3425. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 04-09-02.

Agent or broker, not licensed as premium finance agency, who has advanced premium payments for insured may neither cancel nor request insurer to cancel policy because insured defaults in making payments to agent or broker. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 04-09-08.

Section 18(4) of Rules of New York Automobile Insurance Plan (2001) permits producer to order cancellation if insured's check is dishonored because producers are required under Plan to make immediate payment to insurer on receipt of payment by insured; Plan, in effect, requires (rather than permits) producer to advance premium payment when it has received payment in form of check that has not yet cleared in producer's premium account, and thus it expressly provides for cancellation in event that bank on which it was drawn subsequently dishonors insured's check. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 04-09-08.

Assigned risk automobile insurance policies are not subject to CLS Ins § 3425 or § 3426. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 04-09-08.

Eight-day maximum for acquiring mandatory photo inspection applies only to insurers who, under CLS Ins § 3425, must be required to provide automobile physical damage coverage on additional or replacement vehicle and elected to provide 3-day deferral by filing policy endorsement with Superintendent of Insurance; furthermore, it only applies to automobiles insured by insurer for at least 12 months prior to replacement date. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 04-11-11.

If insured's act or omission results in insignificant or minor increase in risk, it should not trigger cancellation of homeowners policy under CLS Ins § 3425(c)(2)(D) or (E) on grounds that it was willful or reckless. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 04-11-20.

Both swimming pools and trampolines are fairly common household additions and even if hazard could be increased by their addition, one cannot generally characterize such addition as being "reckless" within meaning of CLS Ins § 3425(c)(2)(D); however, failure of insured to take ordinary and proper safety precautions, such as having fence around pool or trampoline, may constitute reckless behavior if insured, after being notified of increased hazard or danger, fails or refuses to take measures to ensure safety of pool or trampoline. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 04-11-20.

Insurer should not characterize mere addition of swimming pool or trampoline as being "willful" under CLS Ins § 3425(c)(2)(D) in absence of insurer having specifically advised insured that insurer would not insure such risk; moreover, if policy contains specific exclusion, as many do for trampolines, there would not appear to be any greater hazard insured against. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 04-11-20.

Addition of above-ground swimming pool or trampoline would not be physical change in property under CLS Ins § 3425(c)(2)(E) since there has been no change to dwelling or other permanent structure; however, in-ground pool would be physical change. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 04-11-20.

Addition of in-ground swimming pool would be grounds for cancellation under CLS Ins § 3425(c)(2)(E), provided however, that insurer considers such risk to be uninsurable in accordance with insurer's objective, uniformly applied underwriting standards in effect at time when policy was issued or last voluntarily renewed; however, since insurers commonly insure properties that have in-ground pools, there is usually no reason for insured to suspect that insurer would consider that addition of pool would make risk uninsurable, and thus it may be advisable that insurer initially advise insured that risk would become uninsurable if pool were added. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 04-11-20.

Mere addition of home business would not in of itself be either reckless or willful act within meaning of CLS Ins § 3425(c)(2)(D); however, size and scope of business would clearly be relevant factor, and if insured conducted business in manner that was unsafe or unlawful or where insurer has advised insured that business would violate insurer's underwriting guidelines, or if insured has reason to suspect that operation of such business would violate underwriting guidelines, then such conduct may be reckless or willful. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 04-11-20.

With respect to CLS Ins § 34252(c)(2)(E), mere addition of home business would not constitute physical changes in property except if there have been alterations to property, which changes would result in property becoming uninsurable in accordance with insurer's objective, uniformly applied underwriting standards in effect at time when policy was issued or last voluntarily renewed. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 04-11-20.

Terminated agency contract between insurer and terminated agent may set forth specified commission rates; however, agent's rights to continue to collect commissions following termination of contract are controlled by CLS Ins § 3425(j)(1)(D) at "the insurer's prevailing commission rate," unless contract provides for higher amount. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 04-12-22.

With regard to 15-day grace period, premium is generally considered paid as of date of postmark. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 05-02-11.

Under "postal acceptance rule," premium is generally considered paid as of date of postmark, unless insurer requires payment by particular method or otherwise limits payment methods. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 05-02-19.

CLS Ins § 3425(j) provides terminated insurance agent with certain rights regarding business that it produced for insurer; however, under CLS Ins § 3425(m), different provisions of § 3425(j) apply based on when policy was first written. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 05-02-30.

Agent's rights under CLS Ins § 3425(j) neither enhance nor diminish rights accorded to insureds or insurers under CLS Ins § 3425; thus, insured may cancel or non-renew policy that had been placed by terminated agent at any time at his or her discretion, and insurer may cancel or non-renew policy that had been placed by terminated agent based on any of grounds, and in manner, provided by other applicable provisions of § 3425, unimpeded by § 3425(j). Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 05-02-30.

CLS Ins § 3425(j) does not place affirmative obligation on part of insurer to send additional letter to insured whose producer has been terminated by insurer, notifying insured of right to specifically request renewal through terminated agent or broker beyond initial time period provided by § 3425(j), provided that insurer has satisfied notification requirements required by § 3425(j) when insured's producer was terminated. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 05-03-08.

Insurer may not refuse to issue or renew personal lines automobile or homeowners insurance policy solely on ground of advanced age of applicant or insured; however, insurer may consider age in conjunction with other relevant factors (e.g., health of applicant or insured) when underwriting particular risk. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 04-10-07.

Insurer may refuse to issue or renew travel insurance policy solely on ground of advanced age of applicant or insured; however, insurer may such underwriting decision must not be unfairly discriminatory, and must be based on sound actuarial principles or related to actual or reasonably anticipated experience. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 04-10-07.

Whether 70-year-old applicant will pay more or less than, or same amount as, 45-year-old applicant for same insurance policy depends on rating classifications (which must be, inter alia, supported by and reflective of actuarially sound statistical data) of insurer that is underwriting risk. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 04-10-07.

Policy originally written between /2001 and 6/25/2003 will have required policy period renewal date that falls outside 3-year required policy period; after 3-year required policy period, such policy, if renewed, becomes subject to one-year required policy period of CLS Ins § 3425, including CLS Ins § 3425(j)(1)(B) requirements where insurer must offer to continue policy through terminated agent for 3 successive one-year policy periods, which commence one year from date when termination notice was mailed or delivered. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 05-02-30.

Insurer may cancel entire insurance policy for non-payment of premium when annual premium for original policy already in effect has been paid but additional premium billed, due to increase in amount of building fire coverage, has not been paid; however, insurer may not cancel entire automobile policy when additional premium is due is for addition of physical damage coverage to liability-only policy or addition of additional automobile. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 05-05-22.

Provision in agency agreement purporting to waive rights contained in CLS Ins §§ 3425(j) and 3426(k) is invalid. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 06-01-21.

Producer's rights under CLS Ins § 3425(j)(1)(D) or § 3426(k)(2) for particular policy are subject to continuation of policy; insurer may cancel or non-renew policy as permitted under CLS Ins § 3425 or § 3426, or insured may cancel policy. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 06-01-21.

Insurer may non-renew non-commercial or commercial automobile insurance policy should insured repeatedly make late payments, in accordance with CLS Ins §§ 3425(f) and 3426(e), respectively. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 06-02-07.

Under CLS Ins §§ 3425 and 3426, insurer generally may non-renew policy for any legitimate underwriting reason not prohibited by law, and non-renewal based on late payment is not prohibited by law. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 06-02-07.

Motor vehicle insurance policy may be cancelled for nonpayment of Motor Vehicle Law Enforcement Fee, since failure to pay such fee would be failure by insured to discharge obligation in connection with payment of premium, within meaning of both CLS Ins §§ 3425 and 3426. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 06-04-03.

Although New York Automobile Insurance Plan rules do not contain definition of nonpayment of premium similar to that contained in CLS Ins §§ 3425 and 3426, Plan rules would be construed so as to permit insurer to cancel policy for failure to pay Motor Vehicle Law Enforcement Fee with premium. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 06-04-03.

When insurer obtains "take-out" credit for policy that had been written in New York Automobile Insurance Plan, current rules of Plan require insurer to pay insurance producer no less than Plan rate of commission on every renewal of policy, subject to certain limitations. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 06-02-12.

CLS Ins § 3425(j) establishes minimum amount of commission that insurer may pay to terminated producer, not maximum; insurer may always agree by contract or otherwise to pay more than amount required by § 3425(j). Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 06-02-12.

Under CLS Ins § 2351(a), renter policies are not homeowners policies for purposes of reporting homeowners policies in force under Regulation 154 (11 NYCRR Part 19; implementing CLS Ins § 3425(o)); however, mobile home policies are homeowners policies for purposes of such reporting requirements. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 06-04-16.

Renters policy issued to person insures renter's property but does not insure real property itself; thus, renters policy is not homeowners policy under CLS Ins § 3425(2)(A), (B) and (C), which covers "loss of or damage to real property used predominantly for residential purposes." Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 06-04-16.

If mobile home is affixed to land, whether or not owned by insured mobile home owner, it is real property; however, even where mobile home is not affixed to land, mobile home owner has insurable interest in residential unit in which insured resides—that is, mobile home itself—since, as defined in CLS Ins § 3401, insurable interest shall include any lawful and substantial economic interest in safety or preservation of property from loss, destruction pecuniary damage, and thus fulfills requirements of CLS Ins § 3425(a)(2)(B) and (C), and CLS Ins § 2351(a). Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 06-04-16.

For purposes of meeting reporting requirements of Regulation 154 and CLS Ins § 3425(o)(2)(C), calculations are based on number of "homeowners policies in force"; although single policy may cover multiple dwellings, plain language of statute refers to number of actual policies issued. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 06-04-16.

Except with respect to assigned risk automobile insurance policy, insurer may not cancel policy for non-payment of premium when insured's check that had been deposited in insurance producer's sweep account was dishonored and insurer had already withdrawn funds representing premium from producer's account. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 06-05-12.

After cancellation notice for non-payment has been issued, premium is generally considered paid as of date it is postmarked. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 06-07-08.

After cancellation notice for non-payment has been issued, premium is generally considered paid as of date when insured transmits payment electronically to insurer or agent or broker authorized to receive such payment. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 06-07-08.

CLS Ins § 3425(e) restricts nonrenewal or conditional renewals and not cancellation of personal lines insurance policies to 3-year required policy period. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 06-07-11.

On completion of 3-year required policy period (unless policy provides for greater period), insurer may issue notice of nonrenewal or conditional renewal for any reason, including reasons not listed in CLS Ins § 3425(c)(2); however, reasons must not otherwise be prohibited by law (such as race, religion, etc.) or by policy terms, and must be in accordance with insurer's uniformly applied underwriting rules. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 06-07-11.

Renewal of homeowner's policy that includes increase in windstorm deductible from 2 percent to 5 percent constitutes conditional renewal under CLS Ins § 3425(d)(1). Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 06-08-17.

Under CLS Ins § 3425(d)(1), insurer must specifically call change in windstorm deductible in homeowner's policy to attention of insured and provide reasons for such change. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 06-08-17.

For conditional renewal to be issued to become effective during 3-year required policy period for homeowner's policies, it may be based only on ground for which policy could have been cancelled; at end of required policy period, conditional renewal may be issued for any reason not prohibited by law and which is in accordance with insurer's uniformly applied underwriting guidelines. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 06-08-17.

Excess line insurer may not unilaterally amend homeowners' insurance policy to include deductible for windstorm hazard after policy has been in effect for more than 60 days. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 06-10-07.

Notice of cancellation that includes premium amount not yet due is premature to be combined within amount that may cause policy to be cancelled; any amount not yet due does not provide legal grounds to cancel for nonpayment of premium and violates CLS Ins § 3425(c)(1)(A). Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 06-12-08.

If motor vehicle policy provides liability insurance coverage in satisfaction of financial responsibility requirements of Vehicle and Traffic Law, insurer may cancel or non-renew policy prospectively for insured's misrepresentation of facts, but may not void it retroactively; where there is policy with both liability and physical damage coverage, some New York courts have also prohibited insurer from voiding entire policy ab initio. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 06-12-11.

Nothing under CLS Ins § 3425(j)(1)(D) prohibits terminated agent or broker from suing for commissions earned on policies continued after its contract with insurer was terminated. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 06-12-12.

Licensed insurance broker may remove herself from representing and/or servicing client's account mid-term, absent contractual agreement to contrary. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 06-12-19.

Where agent-insurer contract was terminated 3 years earlier, insurer may now notify insured, whose personal lines insurance policy is nearing end of its 3-year required policy period, that coverage will be renewed through different agent unless insured requests cancellation of policy. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 06-12-20.

As an insurer could have rescinded a homeowners insurance policy based on material misrepresentations regarding prior loss claims by the insureds, which would have rendered the policy void ab initio under N.Y. Ins. Law § 3105(b), but it instead chose to cancel the policy under N.Y. Ins. Law § 3425, the insurer had to cover the insureds' property loss that occurred prior to the cancellation; further, as the insurer was aware of the material misrepresentations and it chose the cancellation route, it could not seek indemnification from the insurance agency that had secured the policy, as the insurer's own actions in cancelling rather than rescinding the policy were the proximate cause of its damages. Stein v Security Mut. Ins. Co., 38 A.D.3d 977, 832 N.Y.S.2d 679, 2007 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2242 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2007).

Insurance policy may be cancelled for non-payment of fire insurance fee if insurer complies with CLS Ins § 3425 or § 3426, which set forth cancellation and renewal provisions for most non-commercial property/casualty insurance policies and commercial lines property/casualty insurance policies, respectively. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 07-02-09.

Workers' compensation policy may be cancelled for non-payment of state assessment fee and Workers' Compensation Security Fund surcharge if insurer complies with CLS Work Comp § 54(5), which governs cancellation and termination of workers' compensation insurance contracts. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 07-02-09.

Insurer transacting business in New York may not increase automobile insurance policy premium as result of violation of CLS Veh & Tr § 1192-a, since individual under age of 21 is not necessarily legally intoxicated or impaired if individual's blood alcohol content (BAC) is between 0.02 percent and 0.07 percent and thus CLS Ins § 2335 would not apply; however, insurer may cancel policy under CLS Ins § 3425(c)(1)(B), if underage driver's license is revoked or suspended as result of violation and driver is named insured under policy or person who customarily operates vehicle insured under policy. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 07-05-08.

Neither Insurance Law nor regulations promulgated thereunder impose time limit on how long insurer may withhold broker's earned commission; contract between broker and insurer should determine answer to such question. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 07-12-02.

If personal lines package policy contains both personal automobile and homeowners coverage, automobile insurance is subject to minimum one-year required policy period, and homeowners policy is subject to minimum 3-year required policy period. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 07-12-08.

If personal lines package policy contains both personal automobile and homeowners coverage, automobile coverage may be non-renewed at one-year anniversary date, assuming that all other statutory requirements for non-renewal are met, and homeowners coverage continues for full 3-year required policy period. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 07-12-08.

If personal lines package policy contains both personal automobile and homeowners coverage, applicable policy term does not depend on whether greater part of premium is attributable to auto coverage or to homeowners coverages. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 07-12-08.

Property/casualty insurer may rely on (among other legitimate underwriting criteria related to risk insured) length of time that insured has renewed his or her coverage, and advanced age of policyholder, when deciding to renew insured homeowner's policy. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 08-02-07.

As long as insurer defines "advanced age" within generally accepted meaning of term, Insurance Department would not object to insurer's using of advanced age as favorable criterion to renew. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 08-02-07.

CLS Ins § 3425(d)(1) does not require conditional renewal notice when covered vehicle reaches 10 years of age, in case where non-commercial automobile insurance policy states that OEM replacement parts, where available, must be used for claims for covered losses occurring to insured vehicle under 10 years of age, since there is no change in policy coverage or limits; rather, change occurs solely as result of operation of specific policy language. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 08-02-09.

"Two percent rule" set forth in CLS Ins § 3425(f)(1), which limits to 2 percent per calendar year number of personal lines automobile insurance policies that insurer may non-renew or conditionally renew based on reduction or elimination of coverage, is not applicable to commercial automobile insurance policies governed by CLS Ins § 3426. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 08-04-36.

Private passenger automobiles used predominantly for commercial purposes and written on commercial policies are governed by CLS Ins § 3426, and are not subject to "2 percent rule" prescribed in CLS Ins § 3425(f)(1); applicability of statutes depends on principal use of vehicle, not classification of motor vehicle. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 08-04-36.

Certain personal lines automobile insurance policies that carry surcharge for business use factor are governed by CLS Ins § 3425, and thus are subject to "2 percent rule." Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 08-04-36.

Superintendent of Insurance does not have authority to permit insurer in latter stages of run-off to effect phased non-renewal of its remaining New York private passenger automobile policies in excess of otherwise applicable annual 2-percent limit unless, under CLS Ins § 3425(c), Superintendent determines that continuation of insurer's business will be hazardous to interests of public or insurer's policyholders or creditors, or insurer relinquishes its relevant licenses under CLS Ins § 1105. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 08-06-06.

There is nothing in legislative history to suggest that CLS Ins § 3425(o) is intended to trump or supersede CLS Ins § 3425(f). Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 08-06-06.

Fees charged by insurance companies when policyholders elect to pay their premiums in installments do not constitute interest payments that could potentially render transaction usurious, assuming premium installment fee is flat fee unrelated to amount of premium. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 08-07-25.

Insurer may not cancel homeowner's insurance policy based solely on notification by bank of impending or commenced foreclosure action, because foreclosure filing is not one of permissible grounds for cancellation set forth in CLS Ins § 3425(c)(2). Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 08-09-02.

With respect to CLS Ins § 3425(c)(2)(D), filing of foreclosure action does not constitute "willful or reckless act or omission" or "increas[e] the hazard insured against"; if there is any significant change in risk insured, it flows not from foreclosure action filing itself but from some other cause or causes related to particular circumstances. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 08-09-02.

Insurer is not statutorily required to inform agent that policy will not be reinstated where, after notice of cancellation for nonpayment of premium is mailed, insurer receives check from insured in payment of premium and informs agent that policy will be reinstated, but check is thereafter dishonored. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 09-12-02.

With respect to personal lines insurance policy, if insurer terminates its contract with agent during policy's first year, and insured specifically requests to continue policy through terminated agent until conclusion of 3-year required policy period, insurer must offer to continue policy through terminated agent for any remaining part of 3-year required policy period, and absent any agreement to contrary, pay agent prevailing commission rate. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 10-01-05.

If insurer re-tiers property/casualty policy upon renewal, producer need not disclose compensation pursuant to Regulation 194 unless purchaser requests more information about producer's compensation within requisite time frames set forth in 11 NYCRR § 30.5(e). NY Ins Dep't Gen Counsel, Opinion No. 10-12-12, 2010 NY Insurance GC Opinions LEXIS 88.

Insurer could issue notice of cancellation of property/casualty insurance policy to insured for non-payment of premium (subject to any grace period or other minimum requirements for cancellation) and return premium funds to insurance producer, where insured provided check to producer for payment of premium, producer deposited check into producer's sweep account with no intention of advancing premium or making any type of loan to insured, check was subsequently dishonored after insurer withdrew premium funds from producer's sweep account, and producer asked insurer to return funds that insurer withdrew from producer's account. NY Ins Dep't Gen Counsel, Opinion No. 11-01-03, 2011 NY Insurance GC Opinions LEXIS 30.

If insured attempts to pay premium by debit card at office of insurance agent and agent provides payment confirmation number to insured, but insurer declines insured's debit card payment for insufficient funds or for any other reason, insurer must send notice of cancellation, or summary of such notice, to insurance agent pursuant to CLS Ins § 3425(h)(3). NY Ins Dep't Gen Counsel, Opinion No. 11-05-02, 2011 NY Insurance GC Opinions LEXIS 16.

Insurer that cancels insurance policy in accordance with CLS Ins § 3425 is not required to provide cancellation notices to all insurance agents and brokers that may be within chain of producers of policy; insurer need only provide cancellation notice to insured and to authorized insurance agent or broker that insured designates to receive information on insured's behalf. Notes to Decisions

Insurance agents failed to state cause of action to recover damages for wrongful termination by insurer on ground that termination was due to geographic location since employment contracts were terminable at will by either party, remedy for termination of agent's contract on such ground is administrative, and Insurance Law does not create private right of action or provide for compensatory remedy for agents whose contracts are so terminated. 4216. Group life insurance; premium requirements; notice of conversion; filing of compensation
4237. Blanket accident and health insurance

HISTORY:

Add, L 1984, ch 367, § 1; amd, L 1998, ch 65, § 10, eff April 1, 1999 (see 1998 and 2003 notes below).

§ 4216. Group life insurance; premium requirements; notice of conversion; filing of compensation

(a) (1) In this chapter:

(A) "Group life insurance" means that form of life insurance covering any one of the groups specified in subsection (b) hereof, which is written under a policy issued to the policyholder as hereinafter defined, and which in all other respects conforms to the requirements of subsection (b) hereof.

(B) "Certificate holder," as used in relation to a group life insurance policy, means the person to whom a certificate evidencing such insurance is issued under any such policy, as hereinafter provided.

* * * * *

(b) Any life insurance company authorized to do business in this state may deliver in this state policies of group life insurance only as follows:

* * * * *

(7) A policy insuring the members of one or more troops or units of the state troopers or state police of any state, issued to the commanding officer of the state troopers or state police, who shall be deemed the policyholder, the premium on which is to be paid by the members insured; or a policy covering the members of one or more duly incorporated police officers' benevolent associations or of one or more associations or organizations of uniformed firefighters or volunteer firefighters or volunteer ambulance workers which association or organization shall have been in existence for at least two years prior to the issuance of such policy and which shall have twenty-five members at the time of the issuance of such policy, which shall be issued to such association or to a trustee or trustees of a fund established, or participated in, by one or more of such associations or organizations as the policyholder. If the opportunity to take such insurance is offered to all eligible members of a unit of such state troopers or state police, or to all eligible members of such incorporated police officers' benevolent association or of an association or organization of uniformed firefighters, volunteer firefighters, then not less than fifty percent of such members or, if less, fifty or more of such members may be so insured. If the insurance is limited to those eligible members who are employed as state troopers, police officers, firefighters or volunteer ambulance workers, then not less than sixty percent or five hundred of such members, whichever is less, may be so insured. Such policy shall provide for the payment of benefits, except policy dividends, to the person insured or to some beneficiary or beneficiaries, other than such commanding officer or such association or any of its officials, as such, and shall also provide for the issuance of a certificate to the policyholder for delivery to the person insured or to such beneficiary, as evidence of such insurance. For the purposes of this paragraph any association currently holding premium dividends as a result of policies issued under this section shall be permitted to maintain said dividends for the general purposes of the entire membership. For the purposes of this paragraph the term "eligible members of an association of volunteer firefighters or volunteer ambulance workers" means members who perform services in fire-fighting duties or members of a volunteer exempt fire benevolent association who are entitled to benefits from the expenditures of foreign fire insurance tax moneys, including, inactive exempt volunteer firefighters as defined by section two hundred of the general municipal law or in ambulance-related duties, respectively. The amounts of insurance may be based upon a plan which permits a limited number of selections by the members if the selections offered utilize a consistent pattern of grading the amounts of insurance for individual group members so that the resulting pattern of coverage is reasonable.

For employers principally located within the state covered under such a group policy on the effective date of this act, this act shall apply to all certificate holders of that employer on the anniversary date of the effective date of coverage of the employer under the policy occurring on or after January first, nineteen hundred eighty-seven.

§ 19. This act shall take effect January first, nineteen hundred eighty-six and shall be applicable to all policies and contracts issued or delivered on or after such date and to all certificates except as stated in section eighteen of this act, issued or delivered on or after such date, regardless of the effective date of the policies or contracts. Laws 1996, ch 491, § 1, eff Aug 8, 1996, provides as follows:

Section 1. Legislative intent. The legislature hereby finds and declares that assisting employers in developing innovative means of financing employee health and other benefits is in the best interest of the working people of this state. This legislation is intended to achieve that goal by authorizing businesses to purchase insurance on the lives of their employees in order to fund employee benefit plans which provide retirement, health and life insurance and deferred compensation benefits, a product known as corporate or trust-owned life insurance (COLI/TOLI). This legislation is not intended to authorize what is known as "leveraged" COLI, under which an employer borrows against the policies to pay all or most of the cost of the insurance, and then benefits from both the federal income tax deductibility of the interest on that indebtedness and from the tax-free death benefits paid to it upon the death of the insureds.

Laws 1998, ch 559, § 3, eff Aug 5, 1998, provides as follows:

§ 3. This act shall take effect immediately and shall apply to all policies and certificates of insurance written, renewed or amended on or after such date.

Amendment Notes 2010. Chapter 515, § 1 amended:

2008. Chapter 306, § 2 amended:

By redesignating entire sub (i), par (2) as sub (i), par (2), opening par and adding the matter in italics.

By adding sub (i), par (2), subpar (A).

By adding sub (i), par (2), subpar (B).

2002. Chapter 13, § 5 amended:

Sub (e) by deleting at fig 1 "or" and adding the matter in italics.

2002. Chapter 542, § 1 amended:

Sub (f) by deleting at fig 1 "except a policy issued in accordance with paragraph eleven of subsection (b) hereof", at fig 2 "such", at fig 3 "insured at the time application is made for spouse coverage", at fig 4 "four", at fig 5 "hereof" and adding the matter in italics.

The 2018 amendment by ch 476, § 231, in (b)(7), substituted "police officers' " for "policemen's" and "firefighters" for "firemen" in the first and second sentence, and substituted "police officers, firefighters" for "policemen, firemen" in the third sentence.

1. In general

The new provisions introduced into former § 204 [now § 4216] by 1958 amendment, requiring approval by the Superintendent of Insurance of policy forms and rates for credit insurance to assure that rates were not unreasonable in relation to benefits provided were aimed at correcting abuses in this field of insurance whereby premium rates were often excessive and there was a great variance in rates without apparent reason. Old Republic Life Ins. Co. v Thacher, 12 N.Y.2d 48, 234 N.Y.S.2d 702, 186 N.E.2d 554, 1962 N.Y. LEXIS 891 (N.Y. 1962).

With reference to a group insurance policy under former § 204 [now § 4216], where the policy defines a "contributing employer" as an employer who contributed to the group insurance fund, and the "employee" as one actively engaged in "the business of the contributing employer," and an "employee" includes a proprietor, a pharmacy was the contributing employer, and the proprietor, who became disabled while he still owned the pharmacy, was covered by the policy and after a sale, when the pharmacy continued to contribute to the group insurance fund, under the policy, the former proprietor remained a disabled employee. Halpern v John Hancock Mut. Life Ins. Co., 33 A.D.2d 981, 307 N.Y.S.2d 273, 1970 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5746 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1970).

Policies of group creditor life insurance issued by insurance companies to a seller of mutual fund purchase plans were group life insurance policies as defined in former § 204 [now § 4216]. Cutler v Hartford Life Ins. Co., 51 Misc. 2d 286, 272 N.Y.S.2d 939, 1966 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1712 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1966), aff'd, 28 A.D.2d 730, 282 N.Y.S.2d 97, 1967 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3666 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1967).

A master policy of group insurance under former § 204 [now § 4216] constituted the contract of insurance between the individual insured members of the American Dental Association, and the insurer, whereas the certificate issued to the individual insured in New York was merely evidence of that insurance. Kahn v Great-West Life Assurance Co., 61 Misc. 2d 918, 307 N.Y.S.2d 238, 1970 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1940 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1970).

Cases construing Insurance L former § former 204, subd 3 [now §§ 3220, 4216] [now §§ 3220, 4216] apply equally to Insurance L former § 162, subd 5 [now § 3221]. Antinora v Nationwide Life Ins. Co., 76 Misc. 2d 599, 350 N.Y.S.2d 863, 1973 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1556 (N.Y. County Ct. 1973).

In the case of coverage under separate group policies, $15,000 limit contained in Insurance Law § former 204, subd 1(c) [now § 4216] would not seem to apply unless it could be shown that some public policy prohibited coverage on two or more policies. Fobare v Mohawk Nat'l Bank, 77 Misc. 2d 210, 352 N.Y.S.2d 138, 1974 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1108 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1974).

2. Treatment of policies having extraterritorial contacts

Under former § 204 [now § 4216], New York may regulate a certificate of insurance issued for delivery in New York, but not a group policy issued in Illinois. Kahn v Great-West Life Assurance Co., 61 Misc. 2d 918, 307 N.Y.S.2d 238, 1970 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1940 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1970).

Where national association of manufacturers and manufacturers' group insurance trust fund were organized under Illinois law, they were parties to master group policy and intended that the law of Illinois should control, the Illinois law, rather than former § 204 [now § 4216], governed in determining liability of the association and fund for alleged negligence in failing to notify an employee of a New York employer, who was a member of association, of his right to convert expired group life insurance. Reger v National Ass'n of Bedding Mfrs. Group Ins. Trust Fund, 83 Misc. 2d 527, 372 N.Y.S.2d 97, 1975 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2936 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1975).

Where employee was a resident of New York as was the plaintiff beneficiary of group life insurance, premiums were paid by the New York employer and certificate of insurance was delivered in New York, the contacts in Illinois were the creation of the trust fund acting on behalf of insurer, delivery of master policy, and the fund and association of manufacturers were Illinois corporations, and the situs of alleged tort in failing to notify the employee of his right to convert expired group insurance, weighing the contacts with New York's policy mandating notification to protect insureds and their beneficiaries vis-a-vis Illinois nonpolicy established that New York had the paramount interest in the litigation supporting application of New York law, and hence former § 204 [now § 4216]. Reger v National Ass'n of Bedding Mfrs. Group Ins. Trust Fund, 83 Misc. 2d 527, 372 N.Y.S.2d 97, 1975 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2936 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1975).

Where insured decedent and beneficiary were domiciliaries of New York and decedent paid premiums on group policy by mailing them from New York to Missouri upon a policy issued in Missouri by a Missouri corporation to its parent, a Delaware corporation doing business in Missouri, New York law (former § 204 [now § 4216]) would be applied to beneficiary's claim under policy pursuant to the grouping of contacts theory. Oakley v National Western Life Ins. Co., 294 F. Supp. 504, 1968 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 7959 (S.D.N.Y. 1968).

3. Classification of employees or members based on age

An insurer is obliged to insure either all of the employees of an employer, or else all employees of a class "determined by conditions pertaining to the employment" where the case is not one of those specified in former § 101-a, subd. 2 [predecessor to former § 204, now § 4216], and the age of an employee is not a "condition pertaining to employment," but rather a condition pertaining to the employee himself. Dudrey v Equitable Life Assurance Soc., 10 N.Y.S.2d 639, 170 Misc. 418, 1939 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1619 (N.Y. App. Term 1939).

It is unlawful under former § 204 [now § 4216] for an insurer, in issuing a policy of group life insurance, to attempt to exclude from coverage of the policy employees over a certain age. Dudrey v Equitable Life Assurance Soc., 10 N.Y.S.2d 639, 170 Misc. 418, 1939 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1619 (N.Y. App. Term 1939).

If grandchild is dependent on grandparent, grandparent may add grandchild as insured individual. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 03-01-44.

4. Conversion from group to individual coverage

Under subd. 3 of former § 204 [now § 4216(a)(8)], coverage of a certificate holder under a policy of group life insurance continued for 90 days after termination of employment, and his death during that period entitled the beneficiary to recover death benefits, no notice having been given to the certificate holder of his conversion privileges. Payne v Equitable Life Assurance Soc., 14 A.D.2d 266, 220 N.Y.S.2d 493, 1961 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8258 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1961), aff'd, 11 N.Y.2d 1006, 229 N.Y.S.2d 752, 183 N.E.2d 763, 1962 N.Y. LEXIS 1151 (N.Y. 1962).

Where insured did not take advantage of opportunity afforded him to convert his life policy from group coverage provided in connection with his employment to direct insurance, insured suffered from no disability during his employment which would have extended his opportunity to convert policy, insured received timely notice of opportunity to convert under former § 204 [now § 4216], and insured further failed to convert policy even after his employer extended time to apply for conversion to direct insurance, insured was not covered by any direct insurance policy. Bergin v Guardian Life Ins. Co., 53 A.D.2d 582, 384 N.Y.S.2d 838, 1976 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13224 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1976).

In an action to recover on a policy issued under the Federal Employees' Group Life Insurance Act (5 USCS §§ 8701 et seq.), plaintiff's deceased, a federal employee, was not covered when he died approximately 40 days after his employment had terminated because the employer policy's notice of conversion granting its terminated employee an additional 15 days in which to exercise his rights to obtain an individual policy without producing evidence of insurability did not also extend coverage pursuant to the provisions of the statute, the regulations attendant thereto, or the policy beyond the 31-day grace period set forth in those regulations and policies, and because the omission of a notice of conversion upon termination requirement constitutes a constant choice and inasmuch as it conflicts with New York law, it pre-empts such legislation. Reinisch v Metropolitan Life Ins. Co., 97 A.D.2d 135, 469 N.Y.S.2d 767, 1983 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 20343 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1983), app. dismissed, 62 N.Y.2d 617, 501 N.Y.S.2d 1029, 492 N.E.2d 1236, 1984 N.Y. LEXIS 5214 (N.Y. 1984).

In an action under former § 204 [now § 4216] on a group policy, which provided that, on termination of active employment, the policy should automatically terminate unless the employee within 31 days after such termination shall apply for an individual policy, evidence held to show that deceased employee, who had not applied for an individual policy after failing to report for work, quit work because of a strike and not because of illness, and his beneficiary was therefore not entitled to recover on the policy. Under a group policy providing that, on termination of active employment by an insured employee, his insurance shall automatically terminate and the insurer be released from further liability thereon, unless within 31 days of the termination of his employment he applies for and pays the premium on an individual policy, an insured employee is bound to know his rights as respects demanding an individual policy on leaving his employment, and no cancellation by the company is necessary. Chrosniak v Metropolitan Life Ins. Co., 201 N.Y.S. 211, 121 Misc. 453, 1923 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1235 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1923), aff'd, 209 A.D. 846, 204 N.Y.S. 898, 1924 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9199 (N.Y. App. Div. 1924).

Subdivision 3 of former § 204 [now §§ 4216, 3220], extending coverage under group life insurance policies after it would otherwise terminate under stated conditions, being applicable only to such policies thereafter issued, had no application to a group policy issued in 1933. Ogrodowski v Aetna Life Ins. Co., 36 Misc. 2d 318, 232 N.Y.S.2d 653, 1962 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2569 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1962).

CLS Ins § 4216(d) is preempted by Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974, 29 USCS §§ 1001 et seq. (ERISA), when applied to employers who provide group insurance with conversion privilege as part of ERISA benefit plan, since state statute intrudes into area that Congress intended to be fully occupied by federal statute, and each statute sets forth different scheme for providing notice of plan benefits; moreover, state statute is not saved by ERISA's savings clause as law that "regulates insurance" since state statute is not specifically directed toward insurance industry and it does not dictate any terms of insurance contract itself. Howard v Gleason Corp., 901 F.2d 1154, 1990 U.S. App. LEXIS 6002 (2d Cir. N.Y. 1990).

5. —Policyholder's duty to notify insured of conversion right

Where decedent, in his lifetime, was issued a certificate of life insurance under a group insurance policy issued to the trustee of a labor union of which he was a member, and stopped working on December 30, 1958, to enter a hospital where he died on May 14, 1959, becoming ineligible for coverage under the insurance policy April 1, 1959, because his employer was thereafter making no contributions toward his insurance, but was not notified of his lack of coverage and conversion rights, under subd. 3 of former § 204 [now §§ 4216, 3220], extending the conversion privilege of such a certificate holder for 90 days after termination of coverage in the absence of notice given to him by the insurer concerning his conversion privileges, the policy was still in effect as to decedent at date of his death. De Ville v Continental Assurance Co., 8 N.Y.2d 1080, 207 N.Y.S.2d 453, 170 N.E.2d 457, 1960 N.Y. LEXIS 956 (N.Y. 1960).

Under former § 161, subd. 1, par. [e] [now § 3220] and former § 204, subd. 1, par. [d] [now § 4216 of this law as amended, group life insurance policies issued to trustees of union welfare funds must give certificate holders who become ineligible for coverage a conversion privilege period of 31 days with coverage during that time, and they must be notified of the conversion privilege or the period is extended to 90 days, and any provision in a group policy contravening these provisions is invalid. De Ville v Continental Assurance Co., 10 A.D.2d 386, 199 N.Y.S.2d 876, 1960 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10395 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't), aff'd, 8 N.Y.2d 1080, 207 N.Y.S.2d 453, 170 N.E.2d 457, 1960 N.Y. LEXIS 956 (N.Y. 1960).

As to certain types of group insurance, such as policies issued to labor union trustees, the amendments of 1940, 1947, and 1948 of former §§ 161 and 204 [now §§ 3220 and 4216] of this act practically made obsolete policy provisions which simply grant a 31-day conversion privilege following termination of eligibility of a certificate holder, and an insurer issuing a group policy in this category which fails to notify a member of conversion rights within the stated period for conversion assumes the risk of the certificate holder's death within 90 days. De Ville v Continental Assurance Co., 10 A.D.2d 386, 199 N.Y.S.2d 876, 1960 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10395 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't), aff'd, 8 N.Y.2d 1080, 207 N.Y.S.2d 453, 170 N.E.2d 457, 1960 N.Y. LEXIS 956 (N.Y. 1960).

Group insurer was not liable under former § 204 [now § 4216] to employee's estate for death benefits since the group policy had terminated upon employee's cessation of active work and had not been kept alive by employer's continuation of coverage during employee's disability; failure of employer to give notice to employee of such termination, of employer's election to discontinue coverage and of employee's conversion rights under the policy constituted a breach of duty to employee rendering employer liable for the death benefits. McGinnis v Bankers Life Co., 39 A.D.2d 393, 334 N.Y.S.2d 270, 1972 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3969 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1972).

A motion for summary judgment requiring the insurer to pay over proceeds of a group insurance policy was granted as former § 204 [now § 4216] required the employer to give employees knowledge of their right to convert from group insurance to individual life insurance after termination of employment and if the insured failed to give notice, the conversion was extended to 90 days and the policy deemed amended at least to the extent of fixing the conversion privilege period of 90 days so that a notice set two days after the insured's death thereby made the group life policy still effective. Miller v Metropolitan Life Ins. Co., 64 Misc. 2d 658, 315 N.Y.S.2d 353, 1970 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1208 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1970).

Where employer does not have knowledge or is not in control of event triggering employee's conversion rights under group life policy, employer is not in position to notify employee of his or her rights under policy and thus employer is not liable under former § 204 [now § 4216] for its failure to act in absence of such information. Van Ostrand v National Life Assurance Co., 82 Misc. 2d 829, 371 N.Y.S.2d 51, 1975 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2819 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1975).

Where other employees' knowledge of employee's divorce and involvement in divorce proceedings was not acquired in scope of their employment nor was it their duty to report such information to employer, fact that other employees had such knowledge was not sufficient notice to justify imposition of liability on employer for its failure to inform employee, under former § 204 [now § 4216], of her conversion rights under group life policy upon her divorce with respect to policy taken out on life of employee's spouse. Van Ostrand v National Life Assurance Co., 82 Misc. 2d 829, 371 N.Y.S.2d 51, 1975 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2819 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1975).

Neither Illinois nor New York law, under former § 204 [now § 4216], would extend the employer's common-law duty of due care in insurance matters pertaining to notification of conversion privileges, and hence, national association of manufacturers, and group insurance trust fund, organized under Illinois law, were not liable for alleged negligence in failing to notify plaintiff's decedent, who had been employed by a New York employer which was a corporate member of the association, of privilege of conversion upon expiration of the group insurance when decedent's employer quit business. Reger v National Ass'n of Bedding Mfrs. Group Ins. Trust Fund, 83 Misc. 2d 527, 372 N.Y.S.2d 97, 1975 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2936 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1975).

While parties stipulated that group insurance coverage was part of a "compensation package" and not a negotiated fringe benefit, such benefits are commonly a substitute for direct cash wages and cannot be classified as mere gratuity, in determining whether national association of manufacturers and manufacturers' group trust fund who acted for group insurer, were negligent in failing to notify an employee of a member of association of his conversion rights upon expiration of the group insurance under former § 204 [now § 4216]. Reger v National Ass'n of Bedding Mfrs. Group Ins. Trust Fund, 83 Misc. 2d 527, 372 N.Y.S.2d 97, 1975 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2936 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1975).

Under former § 204 [now § 4216], an employer is liable for failure to notify an insured employee of his conversion rights under a group plan. Reger v National Ass'n of Bedding Mfrs. Group Ins. Trust Fund, 83 Misc. 2d 527, 372 N.Y.S.2d 97, 1975 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2936 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1975).

Under New York law former § 204 [now § 4216], the absence of affirmative notification subsequent to the termination of employment conferred upon deceased the right to convert for 90 days after the termination of coverage, and death before the expiration of 90-day period is deemed the exercise of the right of conversion. Oakley v National Western Life Ins. Co., 294 F. Supp. 504, 1968 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 7959 (S.D.N.Y. 1968).

Under standard laid down by U.S. Supreme Court, § 4216(d) does not "regulate insurance" and therefore does not come within saving clause of ERISA. Howard v Gleason Corp., 716 F. Supp. 740, 1989 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 8428 (W.D.N.Y. 1989), aff'd, 901 F.2d 1154, 1990 U.S. App. LEXIS 6002 (2d Cir. N.Y. 1990).

Employer's group insurance plan was "employee benefit plan" within scope of ERISA; employer's duty to inform insured employee (plaintiff's deceased) of his conversion option was not one-time obligation to which ERISA does not apply, rather conversion option is but one small aspect of overall insurance program offered to corporation and its employees and employees of subsidiaries, and group insurance plan as a whole requires ongoing oversight and administration, thus was employee benefit plan within ERISA. Howard v Gleason Corp., 716 F. Supp. 740, 1989 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 8428 (W.D.N.Y. 1989), aff'd, 901 F.2d 1154, 1990 U.S. App. LEXIS 6002 (2d Cir. N.Y. 1990).

6. Rights of beneficiary

Where the certificate issued to an employee under a group policy taken out by an employer named the employee's wife as beneficiary, a subsequent indorsement on the policy authorizing the insured to change the beneficiary, and providing that, if any employee should survive the beneficiary the insurance should be paid to his executors, administrators or assigns, was held not to affect the beneficiary's rights without her consent, notwithstanding the policy was renewed from year to year. Under Surrogate's Court Act, § 202 and Decedent's Estate Law, § 100, the proceeds of the husband's life policy naming his wife, who predeceased him as beneficiary were part of the personal estate of the wife and passed to her personal representatives. In re Johnson's Estate, 208 N.Y.S. 655, 124 Misc. 498, 1925 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 700 (N.Y. Sur. Ct. 1925).

A beneficiary under an employee's term group life insurance policy under which the insured agreed not to change the beneficiary was not entitled to the proceeds of a new policy which replaced the old policy when a new master policy was issued under which the insured was permitted to redesignate a new beneficiary in the absence of a showing that such new designation was not in good faith and with the purpose of frustrating the rights of the first beneficiary. Frey v Feller, 127 N.Y.S.2d 302, 1953 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2558 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1953).

7. Credit insurance

The standards laid down in former §§ 154 [now § 3201] and 204 [now § 4216] of the Insurance Law, as amended, for guidance of the Superintendent of Insurance in approving or disapproving credit life insurance premiums, that the rates shall not be unreasonable in relation to the benefits provided, are as specific and clear as other statutory standards which have been upheld, and there is accordingly no basis for a contention of unconstitutional delegation of legislative power. Old Republic Life Ins. Co. v Wikler, 9 N.Y.2d 524, 215 N.Y.S.2d 481, 175 N.E.2d 147, 1961 N.Y. LEXIS 1285 (N.Y. 1961).

Under the authority conferred on the Superintendent of Insurance by former §§ 154 [now § 3201] and 204 [now § 4216] of the Insurance Law, as amended, to disapprove premium rates on credit life insurance which are unreasonable in relation to benefits and to prescribe regulations applicable to such insurance policies, it is well within his statutory powers to suggest reasonable rates as sort of a guide for insurers in applying for approval of rates, while affording them freedom to show that higher rates would not be unreasonable, as done in his Regulation 27A. Old Republic Life Ins. Co. v Wikler, 9 N.Y.2d 524, 215 N.Y.S.2d 481, 175 N.E.2d 147, 1961 N.Y. LEXIS 1285 (N.Y. 1961).

In proceedings challenging the validity of a regulation providing for the allocation of dividends earned on credit life insurance policies, the regulation was properly invalidated, where it had not been demonstrated that the regulation was consistent with, and could reasonably be implied from, the relevant statutes, Ins Law §§ 154, 204, where the allocation of dividends could not be reasonably inferred from the power given in those statutes to the superintendent to regulate and approve premium rates, and where, rather than promulgating regulations to clarify and implement the legislative policy, the superintendent had forged a new policy not reasonably implied from the statutes and in contradistinction to their history. Mazgulski v Lewis, 63 N.Y.2d 992, 483 N.Y.S.2d 1011, 473 N.E.2d 261, 1984 N.Y. LEXIS 4749 (N.Y. 1984).

Former sections 154 [now § 3201] and 204 [now § 4216] of the Insurance Law cannot be read together as authorizing the writing of mortgage indemnity insurance, since these sections deal with life insurance only. Schwartz v Lefkowitz, 21 A.D.2d 13, 247 N.Y.S.2d 716, 1964 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4182 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), app. denied, 14 N.Y.2d 489, 1964 N.Y. LEXIS 1911 (N.Y. 1964).

Automobile dealer that is not licensed as insurance agent or broker may make group credit life insurance available to its customers, but may not sell individual credit life insurance.

There is no specific insurance license limited to selling only credit life insurance. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 06-03-15.

One must be licensed as life insurance agent in order to sell credit life insurance. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 06-03-15.

8. Authorization for particular public bodies to procure insurance

A water district which has commissioners may not purchase group life insurance under former § 204 [now § 4216] for its employees. 1960 Ops St Compt File #454.

Foreign embassy or consulate qualifies as employer for purposes of qualifying for group health or group life insurance policy. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 05-05-30.

9. —City

Peremptory mandamus will not lie to compel a city comptroller to pay a claim against the city unless it appears without contradiction that it is his clear legal duty to pay. Inadequacy of the record in failing to set forth facts needful to a determination precludes the Court of Appeals from examining the question as to the power of the city of Schenectady to take out group life insurance under predecessor to former § 204 [now § 4216] for the benefit of its employees who may thereafter die or become disabled while in the service of the city. People ex rel. Terbush & Powell, Inc. v Dibble, 231 N.Y. 593, 132 N.E. 901, 231 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 593, 1921 N.Y. LEXIS 755 (N.Y. 1921).

Under former § 204 [now § 4216] a city may not pay any portion of group life insurance premiums for its employees, but may pay all or part of the medical, surgical, and hospital insurance premiums for retired officers and employees, provided they have retired subsequent to the city's adoption of such plan. 1964 Ops St Compt #786.

10. —Municipal corporation

Municipal corporations, including school districts, may, upon written authorization from an employee, make payroll deductions for premiums on group insurance. While a municipal corporation, under former § 204 [now § 4216], may contract for group life insurance for not less than 1,000 employees, it may not contribute any part of the premiums therefor. 1959 Ops St Compt File #73.

A life insurance company may not issue a group insurance policy to a contracting municipality under former § 204 [now § 4216] unless the premiums thereon are to be paid by the insured municipal employees. 1964 Ops St Compt #128.

General Municipal L § 93 does not authorize school district to pay full cost of participation by nonsalaried board member in group medical, dental and life insurance policies. Opinions of Commissioner of Education No. 8736.

11. —Town

Subject to the provisions of § former 221 [now § 4235] of the Insurance Law, a town may pay for group accident and health insurance for its employees. A town may not, however, expend town funds for premiums on group life insurance for its employees. 1952 Ops St Compt File #5778.

A town may provide hospitalization, medical and surgical insurance for town officers and employees, but may not provide disability insurance or group insurance except in accordance with certain minimum requirements. 1964 Ops St Compt #244.

A town may not pay the premiums on group life insurance for only its police force of eleven members, since the total number of employees covered would then be less than twenty-five. 1968 Ops St Compt File #58.

Under former § 204 [now § 4216], a town may provide group life insurance coverage and pay the premiums thereon for all town policemen and certain town highway employees when the total number covered exceeds twenty-five, provided the classifications are reasonable and all eligible members of each class are covered. 1968 Ops St Compt File #58.

A town may purchase group life insurance for all of its officers and employees. 1975 Ops St Compt File #57.

12. Miscellaneous

Where a policy of group life insurance conforms to the applicable requirements of former § 204 [now § 4216], the insurer is not acting improperly in terminating the policy for nonpayment of premiums by the representative of the group after the president of the corporation which took out the policy, as its president, has objected to the premiums as too high and announced that it would pay no more premiums and cancel the policy unless payments were reduced. Schwartz v Mutual Ben. Life Ins. Co., 28 Misc. 2d 367, 212 N.Y.S.2d 359, 1961 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3341 (N.Y. Sup. Ct.), aff'd, 14 A.D.2d 754, 218 N.Y.S.2d 526, 1961 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8449 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1961).

Regulations promulgated by the state Superintendent of Insurance requiring policyholders to apply dividends for the benefit of the debtor-insureds who paid the premiums exceeded the superintendent's power to regulate and approve premium rates and were void, but regulations preventing long-term financing of credit insurance premiums were a function of the superintendent's power to regulate and supervise premium rates and therefore were valid. Mazgulski v Lewis, 118 Misc. 2d 600, 462 N.Y.S.2d 84, 1982 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 4105 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1982), aff'd, 96 A.D.2d 1151, 467 N.Y.S.2d 108, 1983 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 22966 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1983), aff'd, 96 A.D.2d 1154, 467 N.Y.S.2d 108, 1983 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 23142 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1983).

Former § 204 [now § 4216] was referred to in connection with holding that an employee was covered by group insurance under policies issued to his employer and all premiums which were paid by the employer in the $15,000 coverage class of department heads, as against $5,000 for all other employees, where he had been appointed head of department and was performing as such prior to his death without notice of this change to the insurer or increase of premium payments by the employer. Korzinek v Postal Life Ins. Co., 224 F. Supp. 1001, 1964 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 6871 (S.D.N.Y. 1964).

No prohibited conflict of interest exists where a village police justice sells group hospitalization and life insurance to the village in which he is such officer for the benefit of its employees and officers. 1967 Ops St Compt File #397.

Insurers may pay incentive compensation for bonus over commission to agents, general agents, and brokers for sale of group life insurance and group annuities, but such incentive compensation for sale of group life insurance must be filed with Insurance Department under CLS Ins § 4216(e); there is no filing requirement under CLS Insurance Law for incentive compensation for sale of group annuities. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 02-05-06.

It would constitute doing insurance business where New York corporation obtained group credit life insurance policy from authorized insurer to cover portion of its loan and then entered into agreement with debtor to forgive remainder of loan in event of debtor's death; under circumstances, corporation would have to be licensed under CLS Ins § 1102. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 02-05-14.

Association may not purchase group life insurance policy to cover its members and have insured members designate it as beneficiary under policy; such designation would be contrary to CLS Ins § 4216(b)(12)(D). Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 02-11-23.

Association may purchase group life insurance policy and have its insured members designate their estate as beneficiary, in anticipation that member will designate association as recipient of policy proceeds; however, if association were to require such designation in member's will, it would be viewed as subterfuge to avoid CLS Ins § 4216(b)(12)(D). Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 02-11-23.

Grandparent may include his or her grandchild as insured under group life insurance policy if grandchild is dependent on grandparent. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 03-01-44.

Where employer requires no contribution to employees to cover themselves or their dependents, employee may not waive employer sponsored group life insurance. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 04-08-08.

Insurance Department does not object to insurer using Standard Industrial Code (SIC) or its successor North American Industry Classification System (NAICS) so long as such use by some insurers appropriately stratifies insureds and complies with requirements of CLS Ins §§ 4216, 4224, and 4235. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 05-03-34.

CLS Ins § 3220(c)(1) does not serve to override prohibition in CLS Ins § 4216(b)(1). Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 05-10-17.

Prohibition in CLS Ins § 4216(b)(1) of employer receiving benefits under group policy would prevent assignments of policy benefits to employer/policyholder. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 05-10-17.

1. Plan for purchase of stock or securities

A periodic payment plan for the purchase of stock which makes the option of termination, supported by consideration, personal to the plan holder and stipulates for an obligation of his estate to complete the payment in the event of his death, is fairly within the statutory authorization under former § 204 [now § 4216] for group insurance. 1953 NY Ops Atty Gen Apr 17.

Where a periodic purchase plan for securities, considered in an earlier opinion of June 3, 1952, was revised so as to impose an obligation on the plan holder's estate for unpaid installments of kind for which group insurance under former § 204 [now § 4216] is authorized, such a periodic payment plan was not invalid. 1953 NY Ops Atty Gen Apr 17.

§ 4237. Blanket accident and health insurance

(a) (1) Any policy or contract of insurance against death or injury resulting from accident which insures a group of persons conforming to the requirements of one of the subparagraphs (A) through (F) of paragraph three hereof shall be deemed a blanket accident policy.

(2) Any policy or contract which insures a group of persons conforming to the requirements of subparagraph (C), (E) or (F) of paragraph three hereof against total or partial disability, excluding such disability from accident, shall be deemed a blanket health insurance policy.

(3) Any policy or contract of insurance which combines the coverage of blanket accident insurance and of blanket health insurance on such a group of persons shall be deemed a blanket accident and health insurance policy:

(A) Under a policy or contract issued to any railroad, steamship, motorbus or airplane carrier of passengers, which shall be deemed the policyholder, a group defined as all persons who may become such passengers may be insured against death or bodily injury either while, or as a result of, being such passengers.

(B) Under a policy or contract issued to an employer, who shall be deemed the policyholder, covering any group of employees defined by reference to exceptional hazards incident to such employment, insuring such employee against death or bodily injury resulting while, or from, being exposed to such exceptional hazards.

(C) Under a policy or contract issued to an institution of higher education, as defined in the higher education act of 1965, 20 U.S.C. § 1001, other school, or other institution of learning or to the head or principal thereof, who or which shall be deemed the policyholder, provided, with respect to a policy or contract issued to an institution of higher education, the policy or contract shall be a policy or contract:

(i) of hospital, medical, or surgical expense insurance that meets the requirements of section three thousand two hundred forty of this chapter;

(ii) that provides limited scope dental or vision benefits meeting the definition of "excepted benefits" set forth in section 2791 of the public health service act, 42 U.S.C. § 300gg-91(c); or

(iii) as described in item (ii), (iii) or (iv) of subparagraph (B) of paragraph one of subsection (a) of section three thousand two hundred forty of this chapter.

(D) Under a policy or contract issued in the name of

(i) any county, city, town, village or fire district,

(ii) any duly organized fire department, or fire company, of any such municipal corporation or fire district, whether or not any such corporation has been incorporated under any general or special law,

(iii) any fire corporation incorporated under or subject to the provisions of section one thousand four hundred two of the not-for-profit corporation law, or any general or special law, if such corporation is by law under the general control of, or recognized as a fire corporation by, the governing board of a city, town, village or fire district, which municipal corporation, fire district, fire department, fire company or fire corporation, as the case may be, shall be deemed the policyholder, covering all, but not less than twenty-five, volunteer members of such department, company or corporation. A district corporation which has the general powers of and operates as a fire district shall be considered a fire district for the purposes of this paragraph. A volunteer firefighter whose services are offered and accepted pursuant to the provisions of section two hundred nine-i of the general municipal law shall be deemed a volunteer member of any such fire department, fire company or fire corporation except for the purpose of determining the minimum number of twenty-five volunteer members for which any such policy or contract must provide coverage. Any such policy or contract issued to a municipal corporation or a fire district shall be subject to any limitations on the amount, coverage or benefits as are set forth in any applicable general, special or local law or city or village charter.

(E) Under a policy or contract issued to and in the name of an incorporated or unincorporated association of persons having a common interest or calling, which association shall be deemed the policyholder, having not less than fifty members, covering all the members of such association or if part or all of the premium is to be derived from funds contributed by the insured members and if the opportunity to take such insurance is offered to all eligible members, then such policy must cover not less than seventy-five percent of any class or classes of members determined by conditions pertaining to membership in the association.

(F) Under a policy or contract issued to insure; (i) any other substantially similar group approved by the superintendent as eligible for insurance under a blanket accident and health insurance policy or contract; or (ii) any other group approved by the superintendent upon a finding that: (I) there is a common enterprise or economic or social affinity or relationship; (II) the premiums charged are reasonable in relation to the benefits provided; and (III) the issuance of the policy would result in economies of acquisition or administration, would be actuarially sound, and would not be contrary to the best interest of the public. The superintendent shall promulgate regulations setting forth any such groups that have been accepted as qualifying pursuant to this subparagraph.

(b) All benefits under any blanket accident, blanket health or blanket accident and health insurance policy shall be payable to the person insured, or to his designated beneficiary or beneficiaries, or to his estate, except that if the person insured be a minor, such benefits may be made payable to his parent, guardian, or other person actually supporting him, or to a person or persons chiefly dependent upon him for support and maintenance.

(c) This section shall not affect the legal liability of policyholders for the death of or injury to, any such member of such group.

(d) (1) Any dividend hereafter apportioned on any participating blanket insurance policy, or any rate reduction hereafter made or continued on any non-participating blanket policy for the first or any subsequent year of insurance under any such policy heretofore or hereafter issued under item (ii) of subparagraph (F) of paragraph three of subsection (a) of this section may be applied to reduce the policyholder's part of the cost of such policy, except that the excess, if any, of the insured's aggregate contribution under the policy over the net cost (gross premium less dividends or rate reductions) of the insurance shall be applied at the discretion of the insurer either as a cash payment to the insured or to reduce the insured's premium, unless the insured assigns the dividend or rate reduction to the policyholder. If a dividend or rate reduction is payable upon termination of the policy the insurer shall either make payment to the insured or to the policyholder upon receipt of a certification from the policyholder that the dividend or rate reduction will be distributed by the policyholder to the insureds or applied to reduce the insured's premium.

(2) The provisions of paragraph one of this subsection shall apply to New York residents insured under a policy issued in any other jurisdiction to a group which is not of the type described in subparagraphs (A) through (E) and item (i) of subparagraph (F) of paragraph three of subsection (a) of this section.

(e) (1) For the purposes of any policy or contract of insurance issued pursuant to this section, the term "employees" may include officers, managers, employees and retired employees of the employer, and of subsidiary or affiliated corporations of a corporate employer; and the individual proprietors, partners, employees and retired employees of affiliated individuals and firms controlled by the insured employer through stock ownership, contract or otherwise; and the individual proprietor or partners if the employer is an individual proprietorship or partnership.

(2) For purposes of subparagraph (B) of paragraph three of subsection (a) of this section, the term "employees" may also include the directors of the employer, and of subsidiary or affiliated corporations of a corporate employer.

Amendment Notes: The 2015 amendment by ch 461, § 3, rewrote (a)(3)(C), which formerly read: "Under a policy or contract issued to a college, school, or other institution of learning or to the head or principal thereof, who or which shall be deemed the policyholder."

The 2018 amendment by ch 476, § 232, substituted "firefighter whose services are offered" for "fireman whose services are offered" in the third sentence of (a)(3)(D)(iii).

The 2020 amendment by ch 55, § 2, (Part XX, Subpart K), added "(iii) or (iv)" in (a)(3)(C)(iii).

Notes to Decisions

Nonparticipating provider physician practicing in Pennsylvania was not intended third-party beneficiary entitled to enforce insurance contract between State of New York and insurer where insurance contract was intended to benefit state employees by providing them and their dependents with medical insurance, policy excluded nonparticipating providers from receiving direct benefits, and nonparticipating providers were to be paid directly by patients and had no relationship with insurer. Cole v Metropolitan Life Ins. Co., 273 A.D.2d 832, 708 N.Y.S.2d 789, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6843 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 2000).

Patients' assignments of their rights to New York State employees' group medical insurance payments to nonparticipating provider physician practicing in Pennsylvania were void and could not confer standing on physician to sue insurer for such payments where insurance policy contained clear language declaring invalidity of such assignments. Cole v Metropolitan Life Ins. Co., 273 A.D.2d 832, 708 N.Y.S.2d 789, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6843 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 2000).

This section is not applicable to group insurance. Bacchi v Continental Casualty Co., 53 Misc. 2d 796, 279 N.Y.S.2d 1008, 1967 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1865 (N.Y. Sup. Ct.), aff'd, 28 A.D.2d 970, 283 N.Y.S.2d 278, 1967 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7585 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1967).

Health plan was not (1) required to cover one-person groups under N.Y. Ins. Law §§ 3216(g)(2)(B), 3221(p)(3)(A), since "group" meant more than one person under N.Y. Ins. Law § 4235, (2) N.Y. Ins. Law § 4237 blanket policy, (3) N.Y. Ins. Law § 3216(g)(2) individual plan, or (4) terminated, so statutory termination notice to solo member "group" was not required. Bentley v JLT Servs. Corp., 18 A.D.3d 205, 794 N.Y.S.2d 46, 2005 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4763 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2005), app. denied, 2005 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8742 (N.Y. A blanket accident insurance policy issued to a fire district pursuant to the provisions of former § 222(1)(d) [now § 4237(a)(3)(D)] of the Insurance Law cannot cover the ladies auxiliary of the fire company. 1967 Ops St Compt File #318.

Certain benefits provided by non-profit corporation, including accidental death and dismemberment insurance, group dental expense, and vision services coverage under blanket accident and health insurance policies that were presumably underwritten by one or more New York authorized insurers, would be in violation of New York Insurance Law if offered for sale in New York; thus, program could not be offered for sale in New York. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 03-03-28.

Group or blanket medical expense insurance policy, which insures 300 or more persons, may not exclude or limit coverage for individuals that elect such coverage during first 30 days of their eligibility, unless such policy meets criteria of listed exception, and such restriction, and its exceptions, apply equally to both students and employer/employee medical expense insurance policies regardless of their designation as group or blanket policies; thus, policy limitations and exceptions of 11 NYCRR § 52.16(f) would be applicable to mandatory accident and health insurance policies issued to New York State colleges covering 300 or more students each. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 03-07-22.

If health care organization desires to be recognized as "discretionary" group in accordance with CLS Ins § 4237(a)(3)(F), application for such recognition indicating how it meets requirements thereunder should be submitted to Department. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 04-08-25.

4522. Exemptions of certain organizations

HISTORY:

Add, L 1984, ch 367, § 1, eff Sept 1, 1984.

§ 4522. Exemptions of certain organizations

(a) Except as provided in subsection (b) hereof the following societies, corporations, unincorporated associations, and other organizations shall be exempt from the provisions of this chapter requiring the obtaining of a license to do an insurance business and from all other requirements of this chapter except those provided in subsections (c) and (d) hereof and except section three thousand two hundred nine and the provisions of article seventy-four of this chapter:

(1) Organizations of workmen of the same trade or of several allied trades maintained for the purpose of securing by united action the most favorable conditions as regards wages, hours and conditions of labor, and the protection of their individual rights in the prosecution of their trade or trades.

(2) Organizations which limit their membership to the employees of a particular city or town, or of a designated business corporation or firm, or of one or more business corporations or firms having business interests in common, except as otherwise provided in subsection (f) of section one thousand one hundred eight of this chapter. Any such organization which limits its membership to the employees of a corporation having more than five thousand employees may provide for hospital, surgical and medical benefits for the employee, his or her spouse, and his or her child or children not over eighteen years of age.

(3) Organizations of a religious, charitable, benevolent or fraternal character, which are not organized or maintained primarily for the purpose of providing insurance benefits, and which have not more than fifteen hundred members who are or may be entitled to any insurance benefits unless the organization obligates itself to pay a death benefit of more than five hundred dollars on the death of any one member, or disability benefits of more than three hundred fifty dollars to any one person in any one year, or both.

(4) Organizations which limit their membership to persons engaged in one or more occupations in the same or similar lines of business and which, together with their legal predecessors or affiliated bodies continuously paid or provided for the payment of death or disability benefits to their members for a period of not less than fifteen years prior to January first, nineteen hundred forty.

(5) Any organization of a religious, charitable, benevolent or fraternal character, which is not organized or maintained primarily for the purpose of providing insurance benefits, which have furnished hospital benefits to its members under a plan where the maximum charge for such benefits is not in excess of two dollars per annum and which was in operation for ten years prior to March first, nineteen hundred forty-one, or which obligates itself to pay a death benefit of not more than one hundred dollars on the death of any one member, and has been in operation for more than twenty-five years prior to March first, nineteen hundred fifty.

(6) Organizations which limit their membership to members of a fraternal benefit society organized under the provisions of this chapter and which provide either cemetery benefits, or funeral benefits not in excess of seventy-five dollars for any one interment, or both, for such member, his or her spouse or his or her child or children not over twenty-one years of age.

(b) The foregoing exemptions shall not apply to:

(1) any organization which is incorporated or organized under the laws of, or has its principal office or headquarters in, any province or country outside of the United States,

(2) any organization, except one specified in paragraph two of subsection (a) hereof, which makes or issues annuity contracts,

(3) any organization of any of the kinds specified in paragraph two, three or five of subsection (a) hereof if it gives or allows, or promises to give or allow, to any person any compensation for procuring new members, or

(4) any subordinate lodge of any society providing insurance benefits to its members.

(c) The superintendent may require from any organization claiming exemption under subsection

(a) hereof, by examination in accordance with section three hundred ten of this chapter, or otherwise, such information as will enable him to determine whether such organization is exempt under this section.

(d) No organization of the kinds hereinbefore specified which obligates itself to pay life insurance or accident or health or disability insurance benefits to its members shall make, issue or deliver in this state any certificate or other written evidence of such obligation unless the same shall have conspicuously printed on the first page thereof in bold-faced type not smaller than ten point the following statement: "This organization does not operate under the supervision of the New York State Department of Financial Services."

Notes to Decisions

A union and employer welfare fund set up to cover thousands of employees employed in different states is not exempt, under this section, from auditing and examination by the New York Insurance Department, where a substantial number of the employees covered are New York residents, in view of the specific provisions of former Art. III-A [now Art. 44] of this law. People v Automobile Transporters Welfare Fund, 17 A.D.2d 448, 235 N.Y.S.2d 702, 1962 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6290 (N.Y. Advice by the Insurance Department, that fraternal club could escape the provisions of this section by splitting up its membership, does not estop the department to enforce the prohibitions of this section after such split-up of membership. Registered not-for-profit American religious organization incorporated with under 500 voluntary members (no one was compensated to procure members) was required to be licensed under CLS Ins § 1102(a) unless it fell within one of exemptions under CLS Ins § 4522(a). Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 00-04-04.

Self-funded health plan operated by religious organization that provided benefits to its employees and volunteers would not be exempt from New York's insurance regulation by virtue of CLS Ins § 4522(a)(3); however, if employees and volunteers were also members, and if organization provided benefits to its members, those employees and volunteers could also receive benefits. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 02-09-20.

Association may not purchase group life insurance policy to cover its members and have insured members designate it as beneficiary under policy; such designation would be contrary to CLS Ins § 4216(b)(12)(D). Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 02-11-23.

Association may purchase group life insurance policy and have its insured members designate their estate as beneficiary, in anticipation that member will designate association as recipient of policy proceeds; however, if association were to require such designation in member's will, it would be viewed as subterfuge to avoid CLS Ins § 4216(b)(12)(D). Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 02-11-23.

Component of accident and health coverage conferred by charitable organization would be insurance contract, and thus would trigger requirement that charitable organization have license to do insurance business, where it conferred benefit of up to $2,000 accident and health coverage for its volunteers when they travel, covering health injuries and medical costs, with additional accident and health insurance for its volunteers provided by insurer, since there would be benefit of pecuniary value dependent on happening of fortuitous event. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 04-03-07.

Tax exempt status of Multiple Employer Welfare Arrangement (MEWA), or of its constituent members, would not serve to exempt it from applicable requirements of Insurance Law. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 05-01-07.

Organization composed of individuals who have direct financial responsibility in construction industry, or who are employed by entities that have capital invested in construction industry, does not qualify for exemption from applicable licensing requirements for medical insurers because it is not primarily charitable organization and does not otherwise qualify for any other exemption under Insurance Law, even though it is incorporated under Not-For-Profit Corporation Law and is exempt from federal taxes under Internal Revenue Code § 501(c)(6). Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 07-05-19.

Agency Opinions

The voluntary association of a benevolent description, having less than five hundred members, organized in this state thirteen years ago and doing business here at time L 1911 c 198 went into effect, and providing for a death benefit of not more than one hundred dollars and a disability benefit of not more than one hundred and fifty dollars to any one person in any one year is exempt from the provisions of former Art. 7. 1911 NY Ops Atty Gen Oct. 31.

The right of an unauthorized foreign fraternal benefit society to do business in this state does not depend upon the amount of benefits paid but does depend upon question of whether said society falls within first provisions of former § 245 [predecessor to former § 466, now § 4522], and that amount of benefits paid applies only to associations of local lodges of society now doing business in the state and to domestic lodges of purely charitable and benevolent description. 1911 N.Y. Op. Att'y Gen. No. 603.

An unincorporated club which prior to Jan. 2, 1913, has had disability and death insurance feature connected with membership therein may not organize as a membership corporation and retain insurance features although claiming its activities to be purely for benevolent purposes. 1913 N.Y. Op. Att'y Gen. No. 680.

Membership corporations organized pursuant to Membership Law and engaged in business of rendering aid to members limited to amount specified in subd. (c) of former § 245 [predecessor to former § 466, now § 4522] are prohibited from advertising furnishing of insurance benefits generally. They are not presumed to deal with public generally, but such business is merely incident to business of corporations. Such corporations may issue certificates of membership to members in which there appears description of benefits promised for amounts paid. 1914 N.Y. Op. Att'y Gen. No. 178.

The Buffalo Police Mutual Aid and Benefit Association is the kind of organization contemplated by former § 245, subd. (c) [predecessor to former § 466, now § 4522]. 1939 N.Y. Op. Att'y Gen. No. 309.

The plain language of Section 514 of Public Law 93-406 indicates that, as of January 1, 1975, neither the employee benefit plans proposed by Warner-Lambert and First National City Bank, nor the trusts to be established pursuant thereto, nor the voluntary employees' beneficiary associations they will constitute, are subject to regulation under the New York State Insurance Law as "doing an insurance business." The clear intention of Public Law 93-406 is to pre-empt state insurance regulatory provisions as they relate to the plans in question and to substitute its own scheme of supervision. 1975 NY Ops Atty Gen Jan 31.

HISTORY:

Add, L 1984, ch 367, § 1, eff Sept 1, 1984.

§ 9104. Fire insurance premium tax on foreign and alien insurers

(a) Except in the cities of New York and Buffalo, there shall be paid by every foreign and alien fire insurance corporation, association or individuals which insure property against loss or damage by fire, except foreign mutual fire insurance companies, on or before the first day of March the sum of one dollar and eighty cents upon the hundred dollars, and at that rate, upon the amount of all premiums which during the year, or part of a year, ending on the last preceding thirty-first day of December, shall have been received by any such insurer for any insurance against loss or damage by fire written by it upon property situated within each city, village, fire district, or fire alarm district, or fire protection district to:

(1) the treasurer or other fiscal officer of the fire department affording fire protection in such city, village, fire district, fire alarm district, or fire protection district, or

(2) if any such fire department does not have a treasurer or other fiscal officer then to the fiscal officer of the authorities having jurisdiction and control of such fire department, or

(3) to such other person or entity as shall be designated in any special law to receive the premium tax, and

(4) if such payment is made to the treasurer or other fiscal officer of a fire department or fiscal officer of authorities having jurisdiction and control of such fire department, such treasurer or fiscal officer shall on or before the fifteenth day of March in each year distribute the amount so received to the fire companies constituting the fire department if such fire department is constituted of more than one fire company.

(b) There shall also be paid to the treasurer of the Firemen's Association of the State of New York, on or before the first day of March in each year, by each such insurer, for the support and maintenance of the firemen's home at Hudson, New York, the sum of twenty cents upon the hundred dollars, and at that rate, upon the amount of all premiums upon which a fire insurance premium tax is payable as aforesaid.

(c) Each insurer required to pay a tax pursuant to this section shall, at the time of paying such tax, file with the person to whom the tax is required to be paid a report, subscribed and affirmed by the person making it as true under the penalties of perjury, setting forth the aggregate amount of premiums upon which the tax is payable.

(d) Corporations, associations or individuals required to pay a fire insurance premium tax by this section may elect to pay such tax to the superintendent, which shall be distributed by him as prescribed in this section, except that such distribution shall be made with the distribution required by section nine thousand one hundred five of this article after adding any earnings and deducting the expenses as specified in such section.

(e) Every agent for any such insurer writing a policy of fire insurance upon property in this state shall report to the insurer the name of the city, village, fire district or fire alarm district or fire protection district in which the property insured is situated, and, if the property insured is situated in territory not protected by any fire department or fire company, that fact shall be reported.

(f) Except as otherwise provided in any special law, and except as to the Firemen's Association of the State of New York, such tax shall be used for the benefit of, as determined by the members thereof:

(1) the fire company receiving the same, but this shall not preclude the payment by a fire company of all or a part of such tax so received to the fire department of which it is a part, or

(2) the fire department when such tax is not required under paragraph four of subsection (a) of this section to be distributed to fire companies.

(g) The provisions of this section shall not be changed, modified or amended by any charter, local law, ordinance, resolution or regulation.

(h) Those provisions of subsections (a) and (e) of this section which require the determination of the city, village, fire district, fire alarm district or fire protection district within which an insured property is located shall not apply to policies which insure motor vehicles, provided that:

(1) the insurer allocates the tax to be paid on fire premiums received from such policies by city, village, fire district, fire alarm district or fire protection district using a percentage of allocation which is based upon the amounts of tax to be paid on all other fire premiums; and

(2) the insurer has received the approval of the superintendent to use this percentage of allocation.

1. In general

Former § 133 [now § 9104], in regard to percentage tax collected from foreign fire insurance companies in cities, seems to provide that first claim upon such moneys is for relief of exempt or veteran volunteer firemen, administered through organized firemen's relief or benevolent societies having requisite authority. Exempt Fireman's Ass'n v Little Falls, 148 A.D. 440, 132 N.Y.S. 798, 1911 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 223 (N.Y. App. Div. 1911).

The tax provisions of the Insurance Law are clearly intended to apply to the state outside of cities of New York and Buffalo. Drennan v Hampton, 191 A.D. 576, 181 N.Y.S. 777, 1920 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4760 (N.Y. App. Div. 1920), aff'd, 232 N.Y. 576, 134 N.E. 578, 232 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 576, 1922 N.Y. LEXIS 1155 (N.Y. 1922).

The provisions of former § 134 [now § 9104] are not limited in their application to local resident agents but apply to all agents of insurance companies writing contracts of insurance within state. Fire Dep't of East Rochester v Barley, 133 N.Y.S. 539, 73 Misc. 628, 1911 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 571 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1911).

Provisions of insurance law governing fire department tax on premiums paid on policies of foreign and alien fire insurance companies do not create a preference among the recipients of the tax moneys. Crohn v Firemen's Benevolent Fund Ass'n, 79 Misc. 2d 536, 359 N.Y.S.2d 599, 1973 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1279 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1973), aff'd, Crohn v Firemen's Benevolent Fund Asso., 45 A.D.2d 955, 359 N.Y.S.2d 247, 1974 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4168 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1974).

Sections of Insurance Law providing for two percent fire insurance "tax" to be paid by all foreign and alien fire insurers other than mutual fire insurers were constitutionally valid, even though initial responsibility for collecting and allocating "tax" among proper fire departments, the intended benficiaries of the subject levies, was on taxed fire insurers. Greenville Fire Co. No. 1 v Aetna Casualty & Surety Co., 92 Misc. 2d 402, 399 N.Y.S.2d 985, 1977 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2558 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1977), aff'd, 63 A.D.2d 725, 405 N.Y.S.2d 310, 1978 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11654 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1978).

Foreign fire insurance tax moneys may not be used for purpose of making interest-free loans to pay for volunteer firemen. 1987 Op St Compt No. 87-88.

With respect to fire department's pro rata distribution of foreign fire tax monies to its fire companies, "active member" of fire company is member who participates in firefighting and is subject to call for whatever duties may be assigned to him under rules and regulations of fire department or company of which he is member. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 08-04-10.

2. Duty to collect and pay over funds

Disbursement of funds derived from tax on premiums of policies of fire insurance was in discretion of treasurer of village fire department for use and benefit of all components thereof, and order directing treasurer of village fire department to pay portion of such funds to either treasurer of paid fire department or to village treasurer therefore went beyond scope of applicable law. Wilcox v Schenck, 52 A.D.2d 349, 383 N.Y.S.2d 918, 1976 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12028 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1976).

Moneys received by treasurer of a fire district from the fire insurance tax must be paid over to the volunteer fire company for its use. 1954 Ops St Compt File #6591.

Monies received pursuant to this section [now § 9104] must be paid to the fire companies furnishing fire protection to the territory for which such money is received. 1955 Ops St Compt File #7205.

Where a fire protection district is protected by a contract with a village, moneys received pursuant to this section [now § 9104] should be paid over to the fire company or department furnishing the protection 1954 Ops St Compt File #6891; 1957 Ops St Compt File #57-301.

A city must apportion and pay over to the fire companies moneys received pursuant to this section [now § 9104] but need not apportion and pay over moneys received pursuant to Insurance Law § 554 [now § 9105]. 1957 Ops St Compt File #602.

Where a fire protection district is protected by contract with three village fire departments or companies, insurance premium tax moneys received by a town supervisor should be distributed to all three. 1968 Ops St Compt File #281.

Foreign or alien insurer is required to pay both fire insurance premium tax and fire insurance fee. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 09-10-01.

Under CLS Ins § 9104, foreign or alien insurer may elect to pay fire insurance premium tax to Superintendent of Insurance, but under CLS Ins § 9108, insurer must pay fire insurance fee to Superintendent. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 09-10-01.

Because the supreme court properly determined that the actual number of calls a firefighter responded to was not determinative of the manner in which the city had to distribute tax monies, there was no error in its pro rata disbursement of the monies. Hennessy v G.S. Mink Steamer & T. Claxton Hose Co. No. 2, Auxiliary Inc., 182 A.D.3d 830, 122 N.Y.S.3d 784, 2020 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2342 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2020).

3. Particular groups or entities to whom funds must be paid over

Chief financial officer of city that lacked fire department treasurer was proper recipient of future tax proceeds to which city firefighters were entitled, generated pursuant to CLS Ins §§ 9104 and 9105, where proceeds were to be divided between paid firemen and volunteer firemen on pro rata basis as determined by referee, pursuant to requirements of statute. Poughkeepsie v Poughkeepsie Associated Fire Dep't, 125 A.D.2d 522, 509 N.Y.S.2d 601, 1986 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 62827 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1986), app. dismissed, 69 N.Y.2d 1038, 517 N.Y.S.2d 1031, 511 N.E.2d 90, 1987 N.Y. LEXIS 17262 (N.Y. 1987), app. dismissed, 80 N.Y.2d 891, 587 N.Y.S.2d 901, 600 N.E.2d 628, 1992 N.Y. LEXIS 1817 (N.Y. 1992).

Amendment of city charter by local law, which precluded paid firefighters from sharing ratably with volunteers in proceeds of 2 percent tax imposed on certain insurance carriers under CLS Ins §§ 9104 and 9105, was authorized under Municipal Home Rule Law and thus constituted valid state-legislated preference since (1) CLS Mun H R § 10 permits legislation that is inconsistent with CLS Ins §§ 9104 and 9105 insofar as it alters beneficiaries of proceeds of 2 percent tax, (2) under Municipal Home Rule Law, local problems are to be dealt with locally, and (3) issue of beneficiaries under CLS Ins §§ 9104 and 9105 is primarily one of local concern. Van Orman v Slade, 126 A.D.2d 282, 513 N.Y.S.2d 867, 1987 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 41229 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1987).

Professional firefighters and their union were not entitled to a portion of taxes collected pursuant to N.Y. Ins. Law §§ 9104 and 9105 on certain fire insurance premiums, because the proceeds of the subject taxes were only to be used for the care and relief of disabled or indigent volunteer and exempt firemen and their families. Town of Mamaroneck Prof'l Firefighters Ass'n v Volunteer & Exempt Firemen's Benevolent Ass'n, 292 A.D.2d 375, 738 N.Y.S.2d 93, 2002 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2221 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2002).

Under N.Y. Ins. Law §§ 9104(a)(1)-(3), 9105(d)(2)(B)-(D), the exempt association recipient of the two percent funds had discretion, not a requirement, how to disburse the funds for the benefit of its members (for the assistance of disabled or indigent members and their families, and the promotion of the welfare of the volunteer fire service in the fire district) and so was not required to pay a share to a local fireman's union. Watt v Richardson, 6 A.D.3d 1117, 776 N.Y.S.2d 418, 2004 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6300 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't), app. denied, 9 A.D.3d 920, 779 N.Y.S.2d 799, 2004 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9604 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 2004), app. denied, 3 N.Y.3d 735, 786 N.Y.S.2d 808, 820 N.E.2d 287, 2004 N.Y. LEXIS 2526 (N.Y. 2004).

Because both paid and volunteer firefighters were entitled to share in the distribution of foreign fire insurance tax moneys on premiums received from the state pursuant to N.Y. Ins. Law §§ 9104(a), 9105(a)(1), (b)(1), the trial court should have declared the rights of the parties. Hahn v Garrett, 27 A.D.3d 1103, 810 N.Y.S.2d 705, 2006 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3202 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 2006).

While an emergency rescue and first aid squad within a village fire department is not entitled to receive foreign fire insurance tax moneys, such tax moneys may be expended for the use and benefit of a fire department or company receiving the same, as determined by the members. This would include the purpose of an emergency rescue squad, if the membership of the department or company reasonably determined that the expenditure is for the use and benefit of the department or company. Members of emergency and rescue first aid squads, as members of the fire department or company, may participate in the decision. 1990 Op St Compt 90-34.

Assuming there is no special act providing otherwise, fire district treasurer would be proper recipient of foreign fire insurance tax moneys if fire district fire department has no treasurer. 1999 Op St Compt No. 99-7.

A city may enact a local law superseding the provisions of a special act of the State Legislature with respect to designation of the recipients of foreign fire insurance tax proceeds. 1985 Op St Comp 85-2.

4. —Benevolent associations

A 1939 enactment which allocated to the Exempt Firemen's Association of the City of Kingston funds formerly payable to disbanded volunteer fire companies of Kingston, did not exempt the Board of Trustees of the Kingston Fire Department from application of Ins Law §§ 553, 554 [now §§ 9104, 9105], providing for payment of a designated percentage of premiums received for fire insurance by foreign insurance corporations to the treasurer of the fire department of every organized territory afforded protection by any fire department, and which entitle, in the absence of an express legislative enactment to the contrary, all firemen in a particular city, including paid firemen, to share ratably in the funds collected; thus, full-time paid firemen of the City of Kingston were entitled to share with volunteer firemen the two percent tax levied by Ins Law §§ 553, 554. Renn v Kimbark, 51 N.Y.2d 189, 433 N.Y.S.2d 71, 412 N.E.2d 1298, 1980 N.Y. LEXIS 2641 (N.Y. 1980).

In an action for declaratory and injunctive relief brought by a firemen's association seeking to prevent a firemen's union from limiting participation in tax funds under Ins Law §§ 553 and 554 [now §§ 9104, 9105] to indigent members of the union, the trial court's order limiting participation to union members would be reversed and the union would be required to use the monies in question for the care of indigent firemen irrespective of their membership in the union where the special enactment did not limit the beneficiary clause of indigent and disabled firemen to union members and where a union by-law limiting use of tax funds to union members was not valid and could not be used to bar distribution of funds to the association, which was comprised of former members of the union. Uniformed Fire Officers Ass'n v Mutual Aid Ass'n, 82 A.D.2d 916, 440 N.Y.S.2d 706, 1981 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 14635 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1981).

Where by special statute the Firemen's Benevolent Fund Association of the Village of Herkimer was designated as the recipient of funds collected from the taxes on businesses or policies of foreign fire insurance companies doing business within the corporate limits of the village, that organization was the proper recipient for moneys collected pursuant to §§ 553 and 554 of the Insurance Law [now §§ 9104 and 9105]. Abeline v Firemen's Benevolent Fund Ass'n, 55 Misc. 2d 406, 285 N.Y.S.2d 644, 1967 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1006 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1967).

Fireman's benevolent association, which was formed with the consent of the city after December 31, 1939, was the proper distributee of the tax revenues, since the funds were intended to be used for the fire department and its members rather than for general tax purposes. Watertown Firemen's Benevolent Ass'n v Watertown, 134 N.Y.S.2d 465, 1953 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2715 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1953).

A village treasurer may not transfer custody of foreign fire insurance tax moneys to a fireman's association unless authorized or required by special law, but the treasurer may pay such moneys to the association if the membership of a village fire department determines that the expenditure is for the use and benefit of the department. 1982 Ops St Compt 82-239 is superseded to the extent that it is inconsistent with this opinion. 1990 Op St Compt 90-20.

Any exempt firemen's association which may be established in village of Larchmont may not share in the proceeds of the foreign fire insurance premium taxes without statutory authority therefor. 1953 Ops St Comp File #6294.

5. —Paid corps

Moneys paid by agents of foreign fire insurance companies, pursuant to the requirements of former § 133 [now § 9104], should be apportioned among several companies which have been recognized by the common council of the city of Oneida as members of the fire department of said city. Volunteer companies have no preference under the statute over paid companies. Cary v Oneida, 158 A.D. 773, 144 N.Y.S. 57, 1913 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8084 (N.Y. App. Div. 1913).

Because a union was neither a fire company nor a fire department, it was ineligible to receive the distributions; the city treasurer, who, as the fiscal officer of the city, was the person having jurisdiction and control of the paid firefighters, was the appropriate recipient of the paid firefighters' share. Hennessy v G.S. Mink Steamer & T. Claxton Hose Co. No. 2, Auxiliary Inc., 182 A.D.3d 830, 122 N.Y.S.3d 784, 2020 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2342 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2020).

L 1864 ch 140, which incorporated the fire department of the city of Rochester, in order to accumulate a fund for relief of certain indigent members of said fire department, was intended to comprehend, within scope of relief it was designed to afford, members of former volunteer companies as well as members of paid department that succeeded them; and legislature did not intend to modify or abridge rights of such corporation by former § 133 [now § 9104] or by amendments of charter of city of Rochester in 1879, but it is entitled to receive moneys derived from two per cent tax upon local premiums of foreign insurance companies demanded by former § 133. Egbert F. Ashley Co. v Fire Dep't of Rochester, 133 N.Y.S. 591, 73 Misc. 636, 1911 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 573 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1911).

A corporation organized under the Membership Corporation Law and comprised of all paid firemen of the City of Amsterdam could not maintain an action to require the treasurer of that city to pay over to it all taxes levied upon foreign fire insurance companies under this section [now § 9104] and § 554 [now § 9105], as it was not a person designated by any "special law" to receive such funds. Amsterdam Permanent Firemen's Asso. v Amsterdam, 40 Misc. 2d 323, 242 N.Y.S.2d 950, 1963 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1627 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1963).

The tax imposed on foreign fire insurance pursuant to Insurance Law §§ 553, 554 [now §§ 9104 and 9105] applies not only to volunteer but also to municipally paid fire departments, and for the Firemen's Benevolent Association to be entitled to receive any portion of the tax moneys, the creation and designation of such association must be by special law or enactment. Eisinger v Stern, 57 Misc. 2d 16, 290 N.Y.S.2d 979, 1968 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1396 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1968).

Notwithstanding case law to the contrary with respect to other municipalities, paid firemen of the City of Kingston are not entitled to share the 2% tax levied by sections 553 and 554 of the Insurance Law [now §§ 9104 and 9105] on fire insurance premiums paid by insureds to foreign insurance companies for insurance coverage on properties within the city, since by special laws (L 1879, ch 325, § 1; L 1939, ch 734) the Legislature expressed an intent that all such tax moneys allocable to the City of Kingston must be exclusively applied to the use and benefit of volunteer firemen and the representative of disbanded volunteer companies and that no portion thereof be used to benefit paid firemen. Renn v Kimbark, 92 Misc. 2d 810, 401 N.Y.S.2d 941, 1977 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2615 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1977), aff'd, 70 A.D.2d 994, 418 N.Y.S.2d 160, 1979 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12633 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1979).

Paid firemen in fire district in which foreign fire insurance tax moneys are distributed to an exempt volunteer fireman's benevolent association are entitled to share in use of such moneys on pro rata basis in accordance with membership unless special legislation establishing association and authorizing it to receive such moneys expressly excludes them. 1986 Op State Compt No. 86-16.

6. —Volunteer corps

In an action pursuant to Ins Law §§ 553 and 554 [now §§ 9104, 9105] to recover monies collected for the benefit of firefighters, defendants could not, by amendment, qualify the class of beneficiaries by limiting it to volunteers where no such restriction appeared in the legislative enactment creating the fund, where fund eligibility was broadly defined by the legislature and was not related to an organization's function or purpose as articulated in the special enactment creating it, and where the special enactment in the instant case created a benevolent association for the purpose of receiving the insurance tax monies and distributing them for the benefit of indigent firemen and their families, but not for the purpose of regulating the class of beneficiaries. Bruno v Walder, 82 A.D.2d 903, 440 N.Y.S.2d 703, 1981 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 14613 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't), dismissed, 55 N.Y.2d 748, 1981 N.Y. LEXIS 8549 (N.Y. 1981).

Where a village has supplanted a volunteer fire department with a paid fire department and the volunteer companies have been inactive for many years, such companies are not entitled to share in the distribution of the fire insurance premium tax. 1956 Ops St Compt File #7987.

A volunteer fire company may share the proceeds from the tax on premiums collected by foreign insurance companies. 1957 Ops St Compt File #57-301.

Where foreign fire insurance tax monies are distributed in accordance with CLS Ins Law §§ 9104 and 9105, monies must be allocated between or among volunteer fire companies of a multi-company fire department in proportion to active membership of each company. Ops St Compt 89-53.

Supreme court properly denied volunteer fire companies' motion for partial summary judgment by determining that the tax monies distributed to the paid firefighters were for their use and benefit as a whole, rather than the fire department as an entity, because the statute indicated that the distribution had be used solely for the benefit of the members of the fire companies, as determined by the members of the companies. Hennessy v G.S. Mink Steamer & T. Claxton Hose Co. No. 2, Auxiliary Inc., 182 A.D.3d 830, 122 N.Y.S.3d 784, 2020 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2342 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2020).

7. Particular purposes for which funds may be used

A city council charged with the power and duty of expending two per cent foreign insurance tax receipts may not delegate such power and duty, but may seek the advice of fire department members. Two percent foreign insurance tax receipt must be expended for the use and benefit of the fire department. The determination of what expenditures are for the use and benefit of the fire department rests in the discretion of the city council, within prescribed bounds. 1969 Ops St Compt File #904.

A village treasurer may not transfer custody of foreign fire insurance tax moneys to a fireman's association unless authorized or required by special law, but the treasurer may pay such moneys to the association if the membership of a village fire department determines that the expenditure is for the use and benefit of the department. 1982 Ops St Compt 82-239 is superseded to the extent that it is inconsistent with this opinion. 1990 Op St Compt 90-20.

Except as provided by special act, foreign fire insurance tax moneys may be expended for any purpose, other than illegal purpose or purpose contrary to public policy, which members of fire department or company, as case may be, determine to be for benefit of fire department or company. 1999 Op St Compt No. 99-7.

A fire department, municipal or fire district treasurer should not permit the expenditure of foreign fire insurance tax moneys for a purpose which he, in good faith, believes to be illegal or improper. However, with respect to other proposed expenditures which have been approved by a majority of the members of the fire department, he is not authorized to veto the expenditure by refusing to release the moneys. 1981 Op St Comp File #81-389.

Pre-existing city charter provisions governing distribution and use of foreign fire insurance tax moneys remain operative following effective date of Laws of 1988, Chapter 223, which amends CLS Ins Law §§ 9104 and 9105, as provisions in §§ 9104(g) and 9105(e) providing that provisions of these sections shall not be changed, modified or amended by any charter, local law, ordinance, resolution or regulation, as these provisions refer only to future adoption of local laws, and not to existing city charter. Ops St Comp 90-8.

8. —Arbitration and other legal fees

If issues arise which directly relate to care and relief of indigent or disabled firefighters and their families and which necessarily require services of accountant or attorney, volunteer and exempt firemen's benevolent association may use foreign fire insurance tax moneys to pay for those services. 1995 Op St Compt No. 95-26.

9. —Care and relief of indigent

The Volunteer and Exempt Firemens' Benevolent Association of Hicksville may expend foreign fire insurance tax monies to provide death benefits to family members of deceased volunteer firefighters, and to fund retirement benefits to indigent or disabled volunteer firefighters, without regard to whether the deceased firefighters were, or the indigent or disabled firefighters are, members of the Association. 1991 Op St Compt No. 91-59.

The Fishkill Exempt Firemans' Benevolent Association may expend foreign fire insurance tax moneys to pay debts incurred in the operation of a volunteer firefighter's business if the Association determines, based on the entire financial circumstances of the firefighter and his or her family, that the firefighter is indigent and that the expenditure will provide personal financial relief to the firefighter and his or her family. 1992 Op St Compt No. 92-7.

Florida Fire Department Volunteer Exempt Firemen's Benevolent Association may expend foreign fire insurance tax moneys, or any interest earned thereon, to provide college scholarships to disabled or indigent volunteer firefighters and their families; scholarships must be available to all firefighters for whose benefit Association was established, without regard to actual membership in Association. 1993 Op St Compt No. 93-9.

Volunteer and exempt firemen's benevolent association may expend foreign fire insurance tax moneys to rent meeting room if purpose of meeting relates to care and relief of indigent or disabled volunteer firefighters and their families, and rental paid should be no more than fair market value, with room rented only if association's own facilities are inadequate. 1995 Op St Compt No. 95-26.

If volunteer and exempt firemen's benevolent association does not have adequate storage capacity for retention of necessary records relating to care and relief of indigent or disabled volunteer firefighters and their families, it may expend foreign fire insurance tax moneys for reasonable cost of obtaining storage space. 1995 Op St Compt No. 95-26.

Volunteer and Exempt Fireman's Benevolent Association of City of Glen Cove may not expend foreign fire insurance tax moneys to provide benefit to member of Association solely by reason of death of his or her spouse. 1997 Op St Compt No. 97-4.

Benevolent association that is authorized to use foreign fire insurance tax moneys for care and relief of disabled or indigent volunteer and exempt firefighters and their families may expend such moneys to make nominal contribution to charitable organizations designated by family of deceased volunteer firefighter, as memorial in honor of deceased firefighter, made for purpose of lessening grief of, or providing comfort to, firefighter's family. 1999 Op St Compt No. 99-3.

Montgomery Fire Department Volunteer Exempt Firemen's Benevolent Association may expend fire insurance tax moneys to rent room in which to meet, if meetings are for purpose of providing care and relief to disabled or indigent volunteer firemen and their families. Ops St Compt 89-11.

Moneys received by the Volunteer and Exempt Firemen's Benevolent Association of Baldwin from the taxes imposed by Insurance Law, §§ 553 and 554 [now §§ 9104, 9105] must be used for the care and relief of indigent and disabled volunteer and exempt firemen and their families, without regard to whether such firemen are members of the Association. Opn No. 78-912 superseded to the extent inconsistent. 1981 Op St Comp File #81-392.

10. —Death benefits

The Volunteer and Exempt Firemens' Benevolent Association of Hicksville may expend foreign fire insurance tax monies to provide death benefits to family members of deceased volunteer firefighters, and to fund retirement benefits to indigent or disabled volunteer firefighters, without regard to whether the deceased firefighters were, or the indigent or disabled firefighters are, members of the Association. 1991 Op St Compt No. 91-59.

A volunteer firemen's benevolent association may pay a death benefit to the family of a deceased volunteer fireman in an amount above $500. 1984 Op St Comp File #84-36.

11. —Equipment for fire department

Local law which purported to authorize spending of tax proceeds paid by foreign and alien fire insurance companies under CLS Ins §§ 9104 and 9105 on maintaining and purchasing equipment for municipal fire department was unconstitutional exercise of power since such proceeds are intended by legislature for personal use and benefit of municipal fire department members and cannot be used for general purposes that are normally considered municipal charges, and legislature preempted any local exercise of police power. MacIsaac v Poughkeepsie, 158 A.D.2d 140, 558 N.Y.S.2d 667, 1990 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7900 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), app. denied, 76 N.Y.2d 714, 564 N.Y.S.2d 717, 565 N.E.2d 1268, 1990 N.Y. LEXIS 4446 (N.Y. 1990), app. dismissed, 80 N.Y.2d 891, 587 N.Y.S.2d 901, 600 N.E.2d 628, 1992 N.Y. LEXIS 1817 (N.Y. 1992).

While this section [now § 9104] and § 554 [now § 9105] failed to enumerate the specific purposes for which proceeds of the tax levied upon foreign fire insurance companies may be expended, it specifically says that such money is to be used for the benefit of the fire department and all companies comprising it and obviously did not intend that these tax proceeds be used for purchase of equipment, but rather that they be used for the benefit of all members of the fire department. Amsterdam Permanent Firemen's Asso. v Amsterdam, 40 Misc. 2d 323, 242 N.Y.S.2d 950, 1963 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1627 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1963).

Moneys received by the treasurer of the city of Little Falls, pursuant to section 553 [now § 9104] of the Insurance Law, may not be used to purchase additional equipment for the fire department. 1947 Ops St Compt 204.

While an emergency rescue and first aid squad within a village fire department is not entitled to receive foreign fire insurance tax moneys, such tax moneys may be expended for the use and benefit of a fire department or company receiving the same, as determined by the members. This would include the purpose of an emergency rescue squad, if the membership of the department or company reasonably determined that the expenditure is for the use and benefit of the department or company. Members of emergency and rescue first aid squads, as members of the fire department or company, may participate in the decision. 1990 Op St Compt 90-34.

Unless otherwise provided by special act, members of volunteer fire department or, if department is comprised of several companies, members of each company, may determine to use foreign fire insurance tax moneys to purchase personal computer to be used for department purposes and to pay for ceremony to dedicate new fire house and new fire apparatus. 1995 Op St Compt No. 95-14.

Exempt firemen's benevolent association may not expend foreign fire insurance tax moneys to purchase exercise equipment for use generally by members of fire department. 1995 Op St Compt No. 95-22.

Unless otherwise provided by special act, members of volunteer fire department may determine to use foreign fire insurance tax monies to make reasonable expenditures to remodel and purchase appliances for firehouse kitchen. 1997 Op St Compt No. 97-20.

Unless otherwise provided by special act, volunteer fire department may use foreign fire insurance tax monies under CLS Ins §§ 9104 and 9105 to purchase personal computer, facsimile machine and refrigerator for fire department use. 2001 Opns St Comp No. 01-6.

12. —Investments

Under this section [now § 9104], the Amsterdam city treasurer must use the tax receipts from the tax on foreign insurers for the benefit of all fire department members and not simply turn them over to a pension fund participation in the benefits of which has become restricted to only a few members, but plaintiff membership corporation's demand that the monies be turned over to it could not be granted because it was not organized under a special law for that purpose. Amsterdam Permanent Firemen's Asso. v Amsterdam, 40 Misc. 2d 323, 242 N.Y.S.2d 950, 1963 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1627 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1963).

It is inadvisable for volunteer and exempt firemen's benevolent association to invest foreign fire insurance tax moneys by loaning moneys to fire department having essentially same membership as association. 1995 Op St Compt No. 95-26.

13. —Miscellaneous purposes

Proceeds from the tax on premiums collected by foreign fire insurance companies may be used by a city to purchase for members of the city fire department items of comfort and convenience. 1957 Ops St Compt File #57-269.

Foreign fire insurance tax monies may not be expended to purchase annuities for benefit of members of volunteer fire company since such purchase would be tantamount to making direct cash payment. 2004 Op St Compt No. 04-5.

Volunteer fire department may not expend foreign fire insurance tax monies to reimburse active members of department for mileage expenses incurred in performing firemanic duties. 2005 Op St Compt No. 05-2.

Except as otherwise provided by special act, members of fire department or, in case of multi-company fire department, members of each company, must determine how foreign fire insurance tax moneys are to be used for benefit of department or company, however, treasurer having custody of these moneys should not permit expenditures for illegal or improper purposes; moneys may be expended by treasurer for purposes of paying for publication of fire department or company newsletter. Ops St Compt 89-16.

14. —Improvements to real property

Volunteer and exempt firemen's benevolent association may not expend foreign fire insurance tax moneys to pay for improvements to fire department's headquarters. 1995 Op St Compt No. 95-26.

Unless otherwise provided by special act, members of volunteer fire department may determine to use foreign fire insurance tax monies to make reasonable expenditures to remodel and purchase appliances for firehouse kitchen. 1997 Op St Compt No. 97-20.

15. —Insurance

Moneys received pursuant to Insurance Law §§ 553 and 554 [now §§ 9104, 9105] may be used for the purchase of accident insurance which pays benefits in addition to those available under the Workmen's Compensation Law and the Volunteer Firemen's Benefit Law. 1957 Ops St Compt File #602.

The Exempt Firemen's Benefit Association of the City of Long Beach may not purchase accident and life insurance with foreign fire insurance moneys for all exempt and volunteer firemen, because it may only use such money to aid disabled and indigent exempt and volunteer firemen, whether members of the Association or not. 1967 Ops St Compt File #752.

Moneys received by an exempt volunteer firemen's benevolent association from the taxes imposed by sections 553 and 554 of the Insurance Law [now §§ 9104, 9105] may be expended to purchase a group life insurance policy for all volunteer and exempt volunteer firemen without regard to membership in the association, provided that the participating firemen are required to designate family members as beneficiaries. 1983 Op St Comp File #83-120.

16. —Recreation

Unless otherwise provided by special acts, members of volunteer fire department or, if department is comprised of several companies, members of each company, may determine to use foreign fire insurance tax moneys to make reasonable expenditures to purchase furniture for recreation room and trophy case for meeting room for department use. 1997 Op St Compt No. 97-14.

Unless otherwise provided by special act, members of volunteer fire department may use foreign fire insurance tax monies to make reasonable expenditures to fund fire department softball, billiard and bowling teams, and to pay for expenses for department's annual fund-raising drive. 2002 Op St Compt No. 02-13.

17. Enforcement of reporting requirement

Superintendent of insurance has the exclusive power to enforce sections of Insurance Law providing for two percent fire insurance "tax" to be paid by all foreign and alien fire insurers except mutual fire insurers, and Superintendent has duty to enforce statutory directives, including requirement that every agent for any insurer shall report to the insurer the name of the correct city, village or fire district in which insured is situated. Greenville Fire Co. No. 1 v Aetna Casualty & Surety Co., 92 Misc. 2d 402, 399 N.Y.S.2d 985, 1977 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2558 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1977), aff'd, 63 A.D.2d 725, 405 N.Y.S.2d 310, 1978 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11654 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1978).

Volunteer fire company did not, either individually or in a class action, have capacity to bring action charging fire insurers with failing to maintain adequate record-keeping procedures to insure accurate allocation among state's fire districts of two percent fire insurance "tax" imposed under sections [now §§ 9104, 9105] of Insurance Law, unless superintendent of insurance would both refuse to investigate complaints and take steps to remedy situation in the event that complaints were well founded and unless fire company would seek and would be denied mandamus relief sought against superintendent of insurance for failure to carry out his responsibility. Greenville Fire Co. No. 1 v Aetna Casualty & Surety Co., 92 Misc. 2d 402, 399 N.Y.S.2d 985, 1977 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2558 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1977), aff'd, 63 A.D.2d 725, 405 N.Y.S.2d 310, 1978 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11654 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1978).

18. Tax on risks insured within New York City

A contract of indemnity by which a foreign corporation doing business in New York City assumes part of risks of a domestic company, but receives no premium from insured, is not "insurance against loss or injury by fire" within meaning of § 799 of greater New York charter, requiring every person acting in city as agent for such corporation, to pay certain percentages of premiums to fire commissioner. Adamson v Schreiner, 225 N.Y. 713, 122 N.E. 876, 225 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 713, 1919 N.Y. LEXIS 1250 (N.Y. 1919).

Former § 133 to § 135 [now § 9104] have no application in an action brought by fire commissioner of New York City against agent of foreign insurance company to recover percentage of premiums received by defendant on policies on property in New York. Drennan v Hampton, 191 A.D. 576, 181 N.Y.S. 777, 1920 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4760 (N.Y. App. Div. 1920), aff'd, 232 N.Y. 576, 134 N.E. 578, 232 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 576, 1922 N.Y. LEXIS 1155 (N.Y. 1922).

Under the greater New York charter, § 799, an agent of a foreign fire insurance company must pay tax of two per cent on premiums on fire policies effected on property within city, without deduction of premiums on reinsurance effected by him as such agent. So long as provisions in greater New York charter §§ 798, 799, relative to taxation of premiums received by fire insurance companies apply equally to all in same situation, they are not unconstitutional because another statute applying to other localities may be different. Drennan v Hampton, 191 A.D. 576, 181 N.Y.S. 777, 1920 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4760 (N.Y. App. Div. 1920), aff'd, 232 N.Y. 576, 134 N.E. 578, 232 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 576, 1922 N.Y. LEXIS 1155 (N.Y. 1922).

19. Miscellaneous

The Firemen's Association had the right to receive money collected under Insurance Law § 553 [now § 9104], but plaintiff's complaint was sufficient to raise an issue of whether the defendant had the right to receive money collected under § 554 of the Insurance Law [now § 9105], and whether moneys received under § 553 were properly used. Niagara Falls Fire Dep't Mut. Aid Ass'n v Exempt Firemen's Ass'n, 25 A.D.2d 484, 266 N.Y.S.2d 627, 1966 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5120 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1966).

In the absence of express repeal of defendant fire department's rights under its organizing laws, or other declaration to contrary, purpose of legislature to continue those rights and benefits to it as they had theretofore existed, is inevitable inference and it is evidently intended by legislature and also apparently confirmed by subsequent placing in statute law of provisions wherein legislature clearly recognized existing rights of volunteer companies by providing for maintenance of Firemen's Home at Hudson, N. Y., by them conducted. Egbert F. Ashley Co. v Fire Dep't of Rochester, 133 N.Y.S. 591, 73 Misc. 636, 1911 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 573 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1911).

By changing its membership requirements from members of any fire company to volunteer members the Firemen's Benevolent Fund Association of the City of Mount Vernon did not unlawfully discriminate against professional firemen individually or as a class. Crohn v Firemen's Benevolent Fund Ass'n, 79 Misc. 2d 536, 359 N.Y.S.2d 599, 1973 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1279 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1973), aff'd, Crohn v Firemen's Benevolent Fund Asso., 45 A.D.2d 955, 359 N.Y.S.2d 247, 1974 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4168 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1974).

Where a conflict exists between the provisions of §§ 553 and 554 [now §§ 9104, 9105] of the Insurance Law and § 151 of the Lockport City Charter, the charter provision must be followed and the city cannot, by local law, change the pertinent charter provisions. 1961 Ops St Compt #128.

Pro rata distribution of foreign fire tax constitutes distribution that is made on proportionate or percentage basis. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 07-05-22.

Insurer is not required to list on fire insurance policy names and addresses of fire departments to which fire insurance fee or fire insurance premium tax is to be distributed. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 09-10-01.

Fire insurance premium tax paid under CLS Ins § 9104 is levied only on that portion of premium that covers peril of fire. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 09-10-01.

17. Miscellaneous

1. In general

In a fire department consisting of both paid and volunteer firemen, the paid firemen are entitled to receive an equitable share of foreign fire insurance tax moneys. 1979 Op St Compt File #813.

2. Duty to collect and pay over funds

An incorporated firefighters' benevolent association has no power to collect and receive fire insurance premium tax moneys imposed on foreign insurance companies unless specially authorized by a special law. 1958 NY Ops Atty Gen Dec 31.

A fire district treasurer must apportion and pay over all of the tax received under Insurance Law, § 553 [now § 9103] to the treasurer or treasurers of the fire company or companies constituting the fire district, to be used by that company or those companies for the use and benefit of the fire department and the company or companies comprising the department, whereas the tax received by the fire district treasurer under Insurance Law, § 554 [now § 9105] must be applied for the use and benefit of the fire department as such, which use is to be designated by the board of fire commissioners and if any portion or all of the tax under § 554 is not required by the fire district commissioners to be applied by them for the use and benefit of the fire department as such, then the fire district treasurer should apportion and pay over that tax, or the balance thereof, to the treasurer or treasurers of the fire company or fire companies constituting the fire department, to be used by them for the statutory purpose. The statutory direction to "apportion and pay over" does not require that the funds be distributed equally among the several fire companies constituting the fire district. The apportionment is based upon a determination by the treasurer of the fire district, which determination cannot be arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable. 1976 NY Ops Atty Gen August 23.

Where a village fire department consists of several volunteer fire companies, the treasurer of the fire department is not required to apportion foreign fire insurance tax moneys equally among the several companies; he may apportion such moneys in any equitable manner, such as on the basis of membership in each company. 1979 Op St Compt File #102.

3. Particular groups or entities to whom funds must be paid over

4. —Benevolent associations

A benevolent association incorporated under the Not-For-Profit Corporation Law may be dissolved pursuant to that statute without the consent of the State Legislature. Before a benevolent association can receive monies under sections 553 and 554 [now §§ 9104, 9105], it must be authorized by the State Legislature. 1979 Op St Compt File #676.

5. —Volunteer corps

Discussion of payment over to a newly incorporated exempt volunteer firemen's moneys held by a volunteer fire company the members of which are also eligible for membership in the benevolent association. 1978 Op St Compt File #304.

Where a village fire department does not have a treasurer and no person has been designated in a special law as the recipient of the tax moneys derived from the tax imposed by these sections [now §§ 9104, 9105], such moneys should be paid to the village treasurer. 1981 Op St Compt File #81-129.

A fire company or department which is not actively providing fire fighting services is not entitled to the foreign fire insurance tax moneys due to the fire district in which it is located. Such moneys should be paid to the fire department which is obligated by contract to provide fire protection to the district. 1982 Op St Compt File #82-56.

6. Particular purposes for which funds may be used

7. —Arbitration and other legal fees

Use of proceeds from the foreign fire insurance premium tax to pay for expenses related to arbitration in a village where only part of the fire department consists of paid professional firemen is improper. 1979 Op St Compt File #238.

The Medina Firemen's Benevolent Association may not use moneys paid to it from the tax on foreign fire insurance premiums to defray the cost of arbitration or the legal fees related to arbitration proceedings between the village and its paid firemen. 1979 Op St Compt File #238-A.

A fire department fire company which has received foreign fire insurance tax moneys from the fire department may expend such moneys to pay legal fees incurred in connection with a law suit brought against the company provided that it is determined by the members of the company that such expenditure is for the use and benefit of the company. 1980 Op St Compt File #536.

8. —Care and relief of indigent

The Deer Park Volunteer Exempt Firemen's Association may expend foreign fire insurance tax moneys only for the care and relief of disabled or indigent volunteer and exempt volunteer firemen and their families. 1979 Op St Compt File #285-A.

The Volunteer and Exempt Firemen's Benevolent Association of East Norwich may expend foreign fire insurance tax moneys to purchase gravestones for deceased volunteer and exempt firemen only where such firemen were indigent at the time of their death. 1979 Op St Compt File #379.

The Volunteer and Exempt Firemen's Benevolent Association of Inwood may expend foreign fire insurance tax proceeds only for the care and relief of disabled or indigent volunteer and exempt firemen and their families. 1979 Op St Compt File #628.

The Valley Stream Volunteer and Exempt Firemen's Benevolent Association may expend foreign fire insurance tax moneys only for the care and relief of disabled and indigent volunteer and exempt firemen and their families. 1981 Op St Compt File #81-29.

The Grand Island Volunteer Firemen's Benevolent Association may expend foreign fire insurance moneys only for the care and relief of disabled or indigent volunteer and exempt volunteer firemen and their families and, thus, may not use such moneys to purchase jackets for firemen. 1981 Op St Compt File #81-143.

Interest earned on foreign fire insurance tax moneys which have been invested by an exempt volunteer firemen's benevolent association may be expended only for the care and relief of disabled or indigent volunteer firemen and their families or for such other purposes, if any, authorized by the legislation creating the association. 1982 Op St Compt File #82-334.

9. —Equipment for fire department

The members of a fire department may not be compelled to use foreign fire insurance tax moneys to purchase equipment for the fire department. However, if they decide on their own to use the moneys for such purpose, the moneys may be so expended by the department or municipal treasurer. 1979 Op St Compt File #680.

The Volunteer and Exempt Firemen's Benevolent Association of Briarcliff Manor may not expend foreign fire insurance tax moneys to purchase an air conditioner for the recreation room in the central firehouse—such moneys may be expended only for the relief of disabled and indigent volunteer firemen and their families. 1980 Op St Compt File #704.

A fire department may expend foreign fire insurance tax proceeds to help construct a fireman's training tower provided that the members of the fire department and the department treasurer determine that such expenditure is for the use and benefit of the department. 1981 Op St Compt File #81-49.

Foreign fire insurance tax moneys may be expended for the purchase of new beds for the fire house where the members of the fire department have determined that such expenditure is for the use and benefit of the department. 1982 Op St Compt File #82-25.

10. —Investments

The Volunteer and Exempt Firemen's Benevolent Association of West Hempstead may invest foreign fire insurance fund moneys in the manner authorized by section 11-2.2 of the EPTL. Whether such moneys may be invested in a mutual insurance company pursuant to the provisions of section 76 of the Insurance Law [now § 1307] depends upon whether such investment meets the criteria set forth in section 11-2.2. 1979 Op St Compt File #859.

A firemen's benevolent association may invest foreign fire insurance fund moneys in accordance with the prudent man standard set forth in EPTL, § 11-2.2. Whether such moneys may be invested in an interest bearing note or bond secured by a first mortgage on real property owned by the benevolent association depends upon whether such investment meets the prudent man standard of section 11-2.2. 1982 Op St Compt File #82-366.

A fire district may finance the acquisition of real property by issuing a statutory installment bond payable in ten years to a volunteer-exempt volunteer firemen's benevolent association. The association may use foreign fire insurance tax monies to purchase such bond provided such purchase complies with the prudent man rule set forth in section 11-2.2 of the Estates, Powers and Trusts Law. 1983 Op St Compt File § 83-159.

11. —Miscellaneous purposes

Fire district moneys may not be expended in connection with a program designed to insure that all homeowner's in the district correctly designate the fire district in which they reside on their homeowner's insurance policies. 1979 Op St Compt File #324.

The City of Corning may expend foreign fire insurance fund moneys to reimburse the Corning Fire Fighters Association for losses which the Association incurred in a fund raising event, provided that it is determined by the members of the fire department and the city treasurer that such expenditure is for the use and benefit of the fire department. All prior opinions inconsistent with this opinion are hereby superseded. 1979 Op St Compt File #627.

Foreign fire insurance tax moneys may be used by the fire department to purchase dress uniforms, including the purchase at cost of uniforms from firemen who have previously purchased uniforms with their own moneys. 1979 Op St Compt File #814.

The Morton Club Beneficiary Association, Inc., may not expend foreign fire insurance tax moneys to purchase a copying machine to be used for purposes of the association. 1980 Op St Compt File #87.

The Volunteer and Exempt Firemen's Benevolent Association of Roslyn may not expend foreign fire insurance tax moneys to provide a monthly gasoline allowance to the volunteer members of the fire department to defray their expenses in responding to fire calls. 1980 Op St Compt File #450.

Foreign fire insurance tax moneys may not be expended for direct cash payments to paid or volunteer firemen. 1982 Op St Compt File #82-10.

12. —Unspecified purposes

13. —Improvements to real property

Foreign fire insurance tax moneys may be used by a volunteer fire company to construct an addition to the fire house to be used for recreational purposes. 1979 Op St Compt File #303.

The Glenham Fire District may expend foreign fire insurance tax moneys to purchase a walk-in cooler for a fire company provided that it is determined by the members of the department and the department or district treasurer, as the case might be, that such expenditure is for the use and benefit of the fire department. 1980 Op St Compt File #506.

An incorporated volunteer fire company may expend funds received from donations and foreign fire insurance taxes to erect an addition to a firehouse and then donate this addition to the fire district. 1980 Op. St. Compt. No. 80–627.

The Plainview Volunteer and Exempt Firemen's Benevolent Association may expend foreign fire insurance tax moneys only for the care and relief of disabled or indigent volunteer and exempt firemen and their families and, thus, may not purchase a fire station. 1981 Op St Compt File #81-63.

14. —Insurance

Purchase by a volunteer fire department of insurance covering disability or death of a volunteer fireman resulting from non-firemanic activity is not proper use of funds received pursuant to Insurance Law §§ 553, 554 [now §§ 9104, 9105]. 1970 NY Ops Atty Gen May 13.

Foreign fire insurance fund moneys may be expended for the purchase of premiums on a group life insurance policy for the benefit of members of a fire department. 1978 Op St Compt File #401.

Discussion of the purchase of life insurance for volunteer firemen with fire district moneys, moneys of a volunteer fireman's benevolent association and foreign fire insurance fund moneys. 1978 Op St Compt File #909.

Foreign fire insurance tax proceeds may be paid by the treasurer of a fire department into a trust fund which is established, pursuant to the provisions of the trust agreement, for the purpose of providing a death benefit to the families of deceased members of the fire department provided that the members of the fire department and the department treasurer determine that this is for the use and benefit of the fire department. 1980 Op St Compt File #119.

The members of a paid fire company within a village fire department may spend their share of foreign fire insurance tax proceeds for the establishment of an optical and eye care program for members of the company and their families if the members of the company determine that such expenditure is for the use and benefit of the company. 1980 Op St Compt File #625.

Foreign fire insurance tax moneys may be expended for the purchase of group life insurance for the members of a fire department. 1982 Op St Compt File #82-356.

Exempt volunteer firemen who no longer are active in providing fire-fighting services may not be included in a group life insurance policy purchased for an association or organization of volunteer firemen. 1983 Op St Compt File #83-232.

15. —Recreation

The Centerport Volunteer Exempt Firemen's Benevolent Association may not expend foreign fire insurance tax moneys to compensate two paid dispatchers for loss of salary incurred while the dispatchers are attending a social affair held by the benevolent association. 1979 Op St Compt File #697.

A fire department fire company which has received foreign fire insurance tax moneys from the fire department may expend such moneys to pay for a band for a parade provided that it is determined by the members of the company that such expenditure is for the use and benefit of the company. 1980 Op St Compt File #536.

A fire department may expend foreign fire insurance tax proceeds to help make payments on a tract of land purchased by the department for a fireman's park, to help develop such tract of land, provided that the members of the fire department and the department treasurer determine that such expenditure is for the use and benefit of the department. 1981 Op St Compt File #81-49.

The Plainview Volunteer and Exempt Firemen's Benevolent Association may expend foreign fire insurance tax moneys only for the care and relief of disabled or indigent volunteer and exempt firemen and their families and, thus, may not purchase real property to be used by firemen for recreational purposes. 1981 Op St Compt File #81-63.

The Pine Hill Hose Company may expend foreign fire insurance fund moneys for an installation dinner if it is determined by the members of the fire department and the fire district or fire department treasurer, as the case may be, that such expenditure is for the use and benefit of the fire department. In the absence of an internal fire company requirement, such expenditure need not be approved by inactive members of the company. The type of notice of the time and place of the vote on the expenditure is a matter of internal fire company policy. 1981 Op St Compt File #81-146.

Foreign fire insurance tax moneys may be used to finance a party to which non-members of the department will be invited provided the members of the department determine that such expenditure is for the use and benefit of the fire department. 1982 Op St Compt File #82-10.

Money received by a fire department from the proceeds of the fire department tax on premiums on policies of foreign and alien fire insurance companies should be expended for the benefit of the department. 1955 NY Ops Atty Gen June 9 (informal).

An exempt volunteer firemen's benevolent association created by special act of the State Legislature and authorized to receive foreign fire insurance tax moneys may expend such moneys only for the purposes authorized by the special act while a fire department, fire district or municipal treasurer receiving such moneys may expend them for any purpose which the members of the fire department and the department, district or municipal treasurer, as the case might be, determine to be for the use and benefit of the department. 1980 Op St Compt File #786.

A municipal treasurer may pay over foreign fire insurance tax moneys to the treasurer of a firemen's association which does not consist of all members of the fire department provided the moneys will be expended for a purpose which the members of the entire fire department determine will be for the use and benefit of the department. 1982 Op St Compt File #82-239.

§ 9105. Fire insurance premium tax; foreign mutual fire insurance companies

(a) (1) Every mutual fire insurance company or association authorized to do business in this state pursuant to section four thousand one hundred eight of this chapter shall pay to the superintendent on or before the fifteenth day of February of each year a tax of two per centum on all gross premiums collected or received by it or them for direct insurance against loss or injury upon property situated within this state during the preceding year ending the thirty-first day of December.

(2) The tax shall be determined after deducting from such gross premiums, premiums upon policies not taken; premiums returned on cancelled policies; and any dividends or refunds or returns paid to policyholders or applied in part payment of any renewal premium during such year.

(b) (1) Every such mutual fire insurance company or association whose business is confined chiefly to the insurance of sprinklered risks and which is conducted solely for the benefit and protection of its members and which pays no commissions or brokerages for the acquirement of its business, in lieu of all other taxes on premiums, shall pay to the superintendent on or before the fifteenth day of February of each year a tax at the rate of two per centum on all gross premiums upon policies on risks located in this state in force on the thirty-first day of December next preceding.

(2) The tax shall be determined after deducting from such gross premiums the dividends and returns and the unused or unabsorbed portion of such gross premiums computed at the average rate of such dividends and returns and the unused or unabsorbed portion of such gross premiums actually paid to policyholders or applied in part payment of any renewal premiums on its annual policy expiring during such year.

(c) (1) On or before the fifteenth day of February of each year every mutual fire insurance company or association shall file with the superintendent a statement showing the aggregate amount of gross premiums collected for insurance against loss or injury and the several items of deduction referred to under paragraph two of subsection (a) hereof, and specifying the aggregate amounts of such gross premiums so collected and the deductions therefrom by city, village, fire district, fire alarm district, or fire protection district in which the property covered by such insurance is located.

(2) In the case of a mutual fire insurance company or association whose business is confined chiefly to the insurance of sprinklered risks and which is conducted solely for the benefit and protection of its members and which pays no commissions or brokerages for the acquirement of its business, such statement shall, in lieu of the information required pursuant to paragraph one hereof, specify by city, village, fire district, fire alarm district, or fire protection district:

(A) the aggregate amount of such gross premiums upon policies on risks located in this state in force at last year-end; and

(B) the dividends and returns and the unused or unabsorbed portion of such aggregate amount of gross premiums, computed at the average rate of such dividends and returns and the unused or unabsorbed portion of such gross premiums, actually paid or applied in part payment of any renewal premiums on its annual policies expiring during such year.

(3) Those provisions of this subsection which would require the determination of the city, village, fire district, fire alarm district or fire protection district in which an insured property is located shall not apply to policies which insure motor vehicles provided that:

(A) the mutual fire insurance company or association allocates the gross premiums and deductions, subject to the tax required by this section, received from such policies by city, village, fire district, fire alarm district or fire protection district using a percentage of allocation which is based upon the amounts of all other premiums required to be reported by this section; and

(B) the mutual fire insurance company or association has received the approval of the superintendent to use this percentage of allocation.

(d) (1) The amount of all monies which were received by the superintendent on or before the first day of April in each year under the provisions of this section or section nine thousand one hundred four of this article shall be distributed by him not later than the first day of July in such year, after adding any earnings resulting from the investment of such monies and deducting the expenses of collection and distribution. Ten percent of such remaining monies received under this section shall be paid to the treasurer of the Firemen's Association of the State of New York for the support and maintenance of the firemen's home at Hudson, New York, and the balance shall be paid as specified in paragraph two hereof, in amounts which will be that proportion of the balance so to be distributed which the total amount of fire insurance business written by foreign mutual fire insurance companies on property situated in such locality bears to the total amount of fire insurance business written by foreign mutual fire insurance companies on property situated in any and all of the protected localities in the state having treasurers or other fiscal officers as designated in paragraph two hereof afforded fire protection by a fire department or fire company and upon which the tax provided in this section has been paid.

(2) Such payment shall be made[:][*]

(A) in the city of New York to the fire commissioner as treasurer of the fire department of the city of New York, and

(B) to the treasurer or other fiscal officer of the fire department affording fire protection in each city, village, fire district, fire alarm district, or fire protection district, or

(C) if any such fire department does not have a treasurer or other fiscal officer then to the fiscal officer of the authorities having jurisdiction and control of such fire department, or

(D) to such other person or entity as shall be designated in any special law to receive such tax, and

(E) if such payment is received by the treasurer or other fiscal officer of a fire department or fiscal officer of authorities having jurisdiction and control of such fire department, such treasurer or fiscal officer shall on or before the fifteenth day of July in each year distribute the amount so received to the fire companies constituting the fire department if such fire department is constituted of more than one fire company.

(3) Except as otherwise provided in any special law, and except as to the Firemen's Association of the State of New York, such tax shall be used for the benefit of, as determined by the members thereof:

(A) the fire company receiving the tax, but this shall not preclude the payment by a fire company of all or a part of such tax to the fire department of which it is a part, or

(B) the fire department when such tax is not required under subparagraph (E) of paragraph two of this subsection to be distributed to fire companies.

(e) The provisions of this section shall not be changed, modified or amended by any charter, local law, ordinance, resolution or regulation.

1. In general

Provisions of insurance law governing fire department tax on premiums paid on policies of foreign and alien fire insurance companies do not create a preference among the recipients of the tax moneys. Crohn v Firemen's Benevolent Fund Ass'n, 79 Misc. 2d 536, 359 N.Y.S.2d 599, 1973 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1279 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1973), aff'd, Crohn v Firemen's Benevolent Fund Asso., 45 A.D.2d 955, 359 N.Y.S.2d 247, 1974 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4168 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1974).

Sections of Insurance Law providing for two percent fire insurance "tax" to be paid by all foreign and alien fire insurers other than mutual fire insurers were constitutionally valid, even though initial responsibility for collecting and allocating "tax" among proper fire departments, the intended beneficiaries of the subject levies, was on taxed fire insurers. Greenville Fire Co. No. 1 v Aetna Casualty & Surety Co., 92 Misc. 2d 402, 399 N.Y.S.2d 985, 1977 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2558 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1977), aff'd, 63 A.D.2d 725, 405 N.Y.S.2d 310, 1978 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11654 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1978).

The term "fire department" as used in Insurance Law §§ 553 and 554 [now §§ 9104, 9105] includes an incorporated volunteer fire company obligated by contract to serve a fire protection district. 1957 Ops St Compt File #57-301.

Foreign fire insurance tax moneys may not be used for purpose of making interest-free loans to pay for volunteer firemen. 1987 Op St Compt No. 87-88.

With respect to fire department's pro rata distribution of foreign fire tax monies to its fire companies, "active member" of fire company is member who participates in firefighting and is subject to call for whatever duties may be assigned to him under rules and regulations of fire department or company of which he is member. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 08-04-10.

2. Duty to apportion and pay over funds

Because the supreme court properly determined that the actual number of calls a firefighter responded to was not determinative of the manner in which the city had to distribute tax monies, there was no error in its pro rata disbursement of the monies. Hennessy v G.S. Mink Steamer & T. Claxton Hose Co. No. 2, Auxiliary Inc., 182 A.D.3d 830, 122 N.Y.S.3d 784, 2020 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2342 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2020).

Payments by cities of proportionate shares of tax on foreign fire insurance premiums to firemen's organizations entitled thereto are required by law and such payments are not unconstitutional gifts. 1946 Ops St Compt 33.

Moneys received on behalf of a fire protection district should be paid to fire departments of fire districts providing protection. 1954 Ops St Compt File #7013.

Pro rata distribution of foreign fire tax constitutes distribution that is made on proportionate or percentage basis. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 07-05-22.

3. Entities and organizations entitled to receive funds

Chief financial officer of city that lacked fire department treasurer was proper recipient of future tax proceeds to which city firefighters were entitled, generated pursuant to CLS Ins §§ 9104 and 9105, where proceeds were to be divided between paid firemen and volunteer firemen on pro rata basis as determined by referee, pursuant to requirements of statute. Poughkeepsie v Poughkeepsie Associated Fire Dep't, 125 A.D.2d 522, 509 N.Y.S.2d 601, 1986 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 62827 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1986), app. dismissed, 69 N.Y.2d 1038, 517 N.Y.S.2d 1031, 511 N.E.2d 90, 1987 N.Y. LEXIS 17262 (N.Y. 1987), app. dismissed, 80 N.Y.2d 891, 587 N.Y.S.2d 901, 600 N.E.2d 628, 1992 N.Y. LEXIS 1817 (N.Y. 1992).

Professional firefighters and their union were not entitled to a portion of taxes collected pursuant to N.Y. Ins. Law §§ 9104 and 9105 on certain fire insurance premiums, because the proceeds of the subject taxes were only to be used for the care and relief of disabled or indigent volunteer and exempt firemen and their families. Town of Mamaroneck Prof'l Firefighters Ass'n v Volunteer & Exempt Firemen's Benevolent Ass'n, 292 A.D.2d 375, 738 N.Y.S.2d 93, 2002 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2221 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2002).

Under N.Y. Ins. Law §§ 9104(a)(1)-(3), 9105(d)(2)(B)-(D), the exempt association recipient of the two percent funds had discretion, not a requirement, how to disburse the funds for the benefit of its members (for the assistance of disabled or indigent members and their families, and the promotion of the welfare of the volunteer fire service in the fire district) and so was not required to pay a share to a local fireman's union. Watt v Richardson, 6 A.D.3d 1117, 776 N.Y.S.2d 418, 2004 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6300 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't), app. denied, 9 A.D.3d 920, 779 N.Y.S.2d 799, 2004 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9604 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 2004), app. denied, 3 N.Y.3d 735, 786 N.Y.S.2d 808, 820 N.E.2d 287, 2004 N.Y. LEXIS 2526 (N.Y. 2004).

Because both paid and volunteer firefighters were entitled to share in the distribution of foreign fire insurance tax moneys on premiums received from the state pursuant to N.Y. Ins. Law §§ 9104(a), 9105(a)(1), (b)(1), the trial court should have declared the rights of the parties. Hahn v Garrett, 27 A.D.3d 1103, 810 N.Y.S.2d 705, 2006 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3202 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 2006).

Where a fire protection district is protected pursuant to contract by two village fire departments, moneys received by the town supervisor pursuant to this section [now § 9105] should be distributed to the two fire departments. 1954 Ops St Compt File #6788.

Where a fire protection district is protected by contract with three village fire departments or companies, insurance premium tax moneys received by a town supervisor should be distributed to all three. 1968 Ops St Compt File #281.

While an emergency rescue and first aid squad within a village fire department is not entitled to receive foreign fire insurance tax moneys, such tax moneys may be expended for the use and benefit of a fire department or company receiving the same, as determined by the members. This would include the purpose of an emergency rescue squad, if the membership of the department or company reasonably determined that the expenditure is for the use and benefit of the department or company. Members of emergency and rescue first aid squads, as members of the fire department or company, may participate in the decision. 1990 Op St Compt 90-34.

Assuming there is no special act providing otherwise, fire district treasurer would be proper recipient of foreign fire insurance tax moneys if fire district fire department has no treasurer. 1999 Op St Compt No. 99-7.

A city may enact a local law superseding the provisions of a special act of the State Legislature with respect to designation of the recipients of foreign fire insurance tax proceeds. 1985 Op St Comp 85-2.

4. —Benevolent associations

A 1939 enactment which allocated to the Exempt Firemen's Association of the City of Kingston funds formerly payable to disbanded volunteer fire companies of Kingston, did not exempt the Board of Trustees of the Kingston Fire Department from application of Ins Law §§ 553, 554 [now §§ 9104, 9105], providing for payment of a designated percentage of premiums received for fire insurance by foreign insurance corporations to the treasurer of the fire department of every organized territory afforded protection by any fire department, and which entitled, in the absence of an express legislative enactment to the contrary, all firemen in a particular city, including paid firemen, to share ratably in the funds collected; thus, full-time paid firemen of the City of Kingston were entitled to share with volunteer firemen the two percent tax levied by Ins Law §§ 553, 554 [now §§ 9104, 9105]. Renn v Kimbark, 51 N.Y.2d 189, 433 N.Y.S.2d 71, 412 N.E.2d 1298, 1980 N.Y. LEXIS 2641 (N.Y. 1980).

It was correctly determined that firemen's association was not entitled to judgment, but court should have granted a declaration of the rights of the parties, i.e., declared that payments of money collected under Insurance Law § 554 [now § 9105] had been properly made to the defendant Exempt Volunteer Firemen's Association pursuant to statute. Batavia Paid Firemen's Benevolent Ass'n v Stewart, 34 A.D.2d 1087, 312 N.Y.S.2d 750, 1970 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4373 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't), app. denied, 27 N.Y.2d 485, 1970 N.Y. LEXIS 2059 (N.Y. 1970).

Where by special statute the Firemen's Benevolent Fund Association of the Village of Herkimer was designated as the recipient of funds collected from the taxes on businesses or policies of foreign fire insurance companies doing business within the corporate limits of the village, that organization was the proper recipient for moneys collected pursuant to §§ 553 and 554 of the Insurance Law [now §§ 9104, 9105]. Abeline v Firemen's Benevolent Fund Ass'n, 55 Misc. 2d 406, 285 N.Y.S.2d 644, 1967 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1006 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1967).

In an action to determine the ownership of a fund arising from taxes collected upon premiums written by foreign fire insurance companies, the fireman's benevolent association, which was formed with the consent of the city after December 31, 1939, was the proper distributee of the tax revenues, since the funds were intended to be used for the fire department and its members rather than for general tax purposes. Watertown Firemen's Benevolent Ass'n v Watertown, 134 N.Y.S.2d 465, 1953 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2715 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1953).

Any exempt firemen's association which may be established in village of Larchmont may not share in the proceeds of the foreign fire insurance premium taxes without statutory authority therefor. 1953 Ops St Compt File #6294.

A village treasurer may not transfer custody of foreign fire insurance tax moneys to a fireman's association unless authorized or required by special law, but the treasurer may pay such moneys to the association if the membership of a village fire department determines that the expenditure is for the use and benefit of the department. 1982 Ops St Compt 82-239 is superseded to the extent that it is inconsistent with this opinion. 1990 Op St Compt 90-20.

5. —Paid corps

In an action for declaratory and injunctive relief brought by a firemen's association seeking to prevent a firemen's union from limiting participation in tax funds under Ins Law §§ 553 and 554 [now §§ 9104, 9105] to indigent members of the union, the trial court's order limiting participation to union members would be reversed and the union would be required to use the monies in question for the care of indigent firemen irrespective of their membership in the union where the special enactment did not limit the beneficairy clause of indigent and disabled firemen to union members and where a union by-law limiting use of tax funds to union members was not valid and could not be used to bar distribution of funds to the association, which was comprised of former members of the union. Uniformed Fire Officers Ass'n v Mutual Aid Ass'n, 82 A.D.2d 916, 440 N.Y.S.2d 706, 1981 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 14635 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1981).

Amendment of city charter by local law, which precluded paid firefighters from sharing ratably with volunteers in proceeds of 2 percent tax imposed on certain insurance carriers under CLS Ins §§ 9104 and 9105, was authorized under Municipal Home Rule Law and thus constituted valid state-legislated preference since (1) CLS Mun H R § 10 permits legislation that is inconsistent with CLS Ins §§ 9104 and 9105 insofar as it alters beneficiaries of proceeds of 2 percent tax, (2) under Municipal Home Rule Law, local problems are to be dealt with locally, and (3) issue of beneficiaries under CLS Ins §§ 9104 and 9105 is primarily one of local concern. Van Orman v Slade, 126 A.D.2d 282, 513 N.Y.S.2d 867, 1987 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 41229 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1987).

Because a union was neither a fire company nor a fire department, it was ineligible to receive the distributions; the city treasurer, who, as the fiscal officer of the city, was the person having jurisdiction and control of the paid firefighters, was the appropriate recipient of the paid firefighters' share. Hennessy v G.S. Mink Steamer & T. Claxton Hose Co. No. 2, Auxiliary Inc., 182 A.D.3d 830, 122 N.Y.S.3d 784, 2020 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2342 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2020).

The tax imposed on foreign fire insurers pursuant to Insurance Law §§ 553, 554 [now §§ 9104, 9105] applies not only to volunteer but also to municipally paid fire departments, and for the Firemen's Benevolent Association to be entitled to receive any portion of the tax moneys, the creation and designation of such association must be by special law or enactment. Eisinger v Stern, 57 Misc. 2d 16, 290 N.Y.S.2d 979, 1968 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1396 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1968).

Notwithstanding case law to the contrary with respect to other municipalities, paid firemen of the City of Kingston are not entitled to share the 2% tax levied by sections 553 and 554 [now §§ 9104, 9105] of the Insurance Law on fire insurance premiums paid by insureds to foreign insurance companies for insurance coverage on properties within the city, since by special laws (L 1879, ch 325, § 1; L 1939, ch 734) the Legislature expressed an intent that all such tax moneys allocable to the City of Kingston must be exclusively applied to the use and benefit of volunteer firemen and the representative of disbanded volunteer companies and that no portion thereof be used to benefit paid firemen. Renn v Kimbark, 92 Misc. 2d 810, 401 N.Y.S.2d 941, 1977 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2615 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1977), aff'd, 70 A.D.2d 994, 418 N.Y.S.2d 160, 1979 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12633 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1979).

Paid firemen in fire district in which foreign fire insurance tax moneys are distributed to an exempt volunteer fireman's benevolent association are entitled to share in use of such moneys on pro rata basis in accordance with membership unless special legislation establishing association and authorizing it to receive such moneys expressly excludes them. 1986 Op State Compt No. 86-16.

6. —Volunteer corps

In an action pursuant to Ins Law §§ 553 and 554 [now §§ 9104, 9105] to recover monies collected for the benefit of firefighters, defendants could not, by amendment, qualify the class of beneficiaries by limiting it to volunteers where no such restriction appeared in the legislative enactment creating the fund, where fund eligibility was broadly defined by the legislature and was not related to an organization's function or purpose as articulated in the special enactment creating it, and where the special enactment in the instant case created a benevolent association for the purpose of receiving the insurance tax monies and distributing them for the benefit of indigent firemen and their families, but not for the purpose of regulating the class of beneficiaries. Bruno v Walder, 82 A.D.2d 903, 440 N.Y.S.2d 703, 1981 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 14613 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't), dismissed, 55 N.Y.2d 748, 1981 N.Y. LEXIS 8549 (N.Y. 1981).

A volunteer fire company may share the proceeds from the tax on premiums collected by foreign insurance companies. 1957 Ops St Compt File #57-301.

Where foreign fire insurance tax monies are distributed in accordance with CLS Ins Law §§ 9104 and 9105, monies must be allocated between or among volunteer fire companies of a multi-company fire department in proportion to active membership of each company. Ops St Compt 89-53.

Supreme court properly denied volunteer fire companies' motion for partial summary judgment by determining that the tax monies distributed to the paid firefighters were for their use and benefit as a whole, rather than the fire department as an entity, because the statute indicated that the distribution had be used solely for the benefit of the members of the fire companies, as determined by the members of the companies. Hennessy v G.S. Mink Steamer & T. Claxton Hose Co. No. 2, Auxiliary Inc., 182 A.D.3d 830, 122 N.Y.S.3d 784, 2020 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2342 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2020).

7. Purposes for which funds may be used

Plaintiff association was incorporated in 1911 as a membership corporation comprising all of the paid firemen of the City of Binghamton and was authorized by 1911 Act to receive and disburse "the foreign fire insurance tax" provided by §§ 553, 554 [now §§ 9104, 9105] of the Insurance Law. A 1912 Act repealed the 1911 Act. This Act provided for the establishment of a pension fund and required the association to pay into the fund all of its properties, securities and moneys collected from the tax. In 1935 the city entered the State Employees' Retirement System and amended the 1912 Act by providing that no member of the fire department appointed after January 1, 1935 should receive any benefits from the 1912 pension fund. Although the association filed an action for a declaratory judgment that the words in §§ 553, 554 [now §§ 9104, 9105] of the Insurance Law respecting payment of the tax "for the use and benefit of the fire department" must be construed as intending the use of the proceeds for the benefit of all of the members of the fire department, the plain language of the fire tax statute and that of the 1912 Act establishing the pension fund cannot be so construed, since it is clear that the pension fund can only be properly used for the express purposes provided by the 1912 Act. Binghamton Fireman's Benevolent Asso. v McElhill, 9 A.D.2d 255, 192 N.Y.S.2d 583, 1959 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6126 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1959).

A city council charged with the power and duty of expending two per cent foreign insurance tax receipts may not delegate such power and duty, but may seek the advice of fire department members. Two percent foreign insurance tax receipt must be expended for the use and benefit of the fire department. The determination of what expenditures are for the use and benefit of the fire department rests in the discretion of the city council, within prescribed bounds. 1969 Ops St Compt File #904.

A village treasurer may not transfer custody of foreign fire insurance tax moneys to a fireman's association unless authorized or required by special law, but the treasurer may pay such moneys to the association if the membership of a village fire department determines that the expenditure is for the use and benefit of the department. 1982 Ops St Compt 82-239 is superseded to the extent that it is inconsistent with this opinion. 1990 Op St Compt 90-20.

While an emergency rescue and first aid squad within a village fire department is not entitled to receive foreign fire insurance tax moneys, such tax moneys may be expended for the use and benefit of a fire department or company receiving the same, as determined by the members. This would include the purpose of an emergency rescue squad, if the membership of the department or company reasonably determined that the expenditure is for the use and benefit of the department or company. Members of emergency and rescue first aid squads, as members of the fire department or company, may participate in the decision. 1990 Op St Compt 90-34.

Except as provided by special act, foreign fire insurance tax moneys may be expended for any purpose, other than illegal purpose or purpose contrary to public policy, which members of fire department or company, as case may be, determine to be for benefit of fire department or company. 1999 Op St Compt No. 99-7.

A fire department, municipal or fire district treasurer should not permit the expenditure of foreign fire insurance tax moneys for a purpose which he, in good faith, believes to be illegal or improper. However, with respect to other proposed expenditures which have been approved by a majority of the members of the fire department, he is not authorized to veto the expenditure by refusing to release the moneys. 1981 Op St Comp File #81-389.

Pre-existing city charter provisions governing distribution and use of foreign fire insurance tax moneys remain operative following effective date of Laws of 1988, Chapter 223, which amends CLS Ins Law §§ 9104 and 9105, as provisions in §§ 9104(g) and 9105(e) providing that provisions of these sections shall not be changed, modified or amended by any charter, local law, ordinance, resolution or regulation, as these provisions refer only to future adoption of local laws, and not to existing city charter. Ops St Comp 90-8.

8. —Arbitration and other legal fees

If issues arise which directly relate to care and relief of indigent or disabled firefighters and their families and which necessarily require services of accountant or attorney, volunteer and exempt firemen's benevolent association may use foreign fire insurance tax moneys to pay for those services. 1995 Op St Compt No. 95-26.

9. —Care and relief of indigent

The Fishkill Exempt Firemans' Benevolent Association may expend foreign fire insurance tax moneys to pay debts incurred in the operation of a volunteer firefighter's business if the Association determines, based on the entire financial circumstances of the firefighter and his or her family, that the firefighter is indigent and that the expenditure will provide personal financial relief to the firefighter and his or her family. 1992 Op St Compt No. 92-7.

Florida Fire Department Volunteer Exempt Firemen's Benevolent Association may expend foreign fire insurance tax moneys, or any interest earned thereon, to provide college scholarships to disabled or indigent volunteer firefighters and their families; scholarships must be available to all firefighters for whose benefit Association was established, without regard to actual membership in Association. 1993 Op St Compt No. 93-9.

Volunteer and exempt firemen's benevolent association may expend foreign fire insurance tax moneys to rent meeting room if purpose of meeting relates to care and relief of indigent or disabled volunteer firefighters and their families, and rental paid should be no more than fair market value, with room rented only if association's own facilities are inadequate. 1995 Op St Compt No. 95-26.

If volunteer and exempt firemen's benevolent association does not have adequate storage capacity for retention of necessary records relating to care and relief of indigent or disabled volunteer firefighters and their families, it may expend foreign fire insurance tax moneys for reasonable cost of obtaining storage space. 1995 Op St Compt No. 95-26.

Montgomery Fire Department Volunteer Exempt Firemen's Benevolent Association may expend fire insurance tax moneys to rent room in which to meet, if meetings are for purpose of providing care and relief to disabled or indigent volunteer firemen and their families. Ops St Compt 89-11.

Moneys received by the Volunteer and Exempt Firemen's Benevolent Association of Baldwin from the taxes imposed by Insurance Law, §§ 553 and 554 [now §§ 9104, 9105] must be used for the care and relief of indigent and disabled volunteer and exempt firemen and their families, without regard to whether such firemen are members of the Association. Opn No. 78-912 superseded to the extent inconsistent. 1981 Op St Comp File #81-392.

10. —Death benefits

The Volunteer and Exempt Firemens' Benevolent Association of Hicksville may expend foreign fire insurance tax monies to provide death benefits to family members of deceased volunteer firefighters, and to fund retirement benefits to indigent or disabled volunteer firefighters, without regard to whether the deceased firefighters were, or the indigent or disabled firefighters are, members of the Association. 1991 Op St Compt No. 91-59.

The Volunteer and Exempt Firemens' Benevolent Association of Hicksville may expend foreign fire insurance tax monies to provide death benefits to family members of deceased volunteer firefighters, and to fund retirement benefits to indigent or disabled volunteer firefighters, without regard to whether the deceased firefighters were, or the indigent or disabled firefighters are, members of the Association. 1991 Op St Compt No. 91-59.

Volunteer and Exempt Fireman's Benevolent Association of City of Glen Cove may not expend foreign fire insurance tax moneys to provide benefit to member of Association solely by reason of death of his or her spouse. 1997 Op St Compt No. 97-4.

Benevolent association that is authorized to use foreign fire insurance tax moneys for care and relief of disabled or indigent volunteer and exempt firefighters and their families may expend such moneys to make nominal contribution to charitable organizations designated by family of deceased volunteer firefighter, as memorial in honor of deceased firefighter, made for purpose of lessening grief of, or providing comfort to, firefighter's family. 1999 Op St Compt No. 99-3.

11. —Equipment for fire department

Local law which purported to authorize spending of tax proceeds paid by foreign and alien fire insurance companies under CLS Ins §§ 9104 and 9105 on maintaining and purchasing equipment for municipal fire department was unconstitutional exercise of power since such proceeds are intended by legislature for personal use and benefit of municipal fire department members and cannot be used for general purposes that are normally considered municipal charges, and legislature preempted any local exercise of police power. MacIsaac v Poughkeepsie, 158 A.D.2d 140, 558 N.Y.S.2d 667, 1990 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7900 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), app. denied, 76 N.Y.2d 714, 564 N.Y.S.2d 717, 565 N.E.2d 1268, 1990 N.Y. LEXIS 4446 (N.Y. 1990), app. dismissed, 80 N.Y.2d 891, 587 N.Y.S.2d 901, 600 N.E.2d 628, 1992 N.Y. LEXIS 1817 (N.Y. 1992).

Unless otherwise provided by special act, members of volunteer fire department or, if department is comprised of several companies, members of each company, may determine to use foreign fire insurance tax moneys to purchase personal computer to be used for department purposes and to pay for ceremony to dedicate new fire house and new fire apparatus. 1995 Op St Compt No. 95-14.

Exempt firemen's benevolent association may not expend foreign fire insurance tax moneys to purchase exercise equipment for use generally by members of fire department. 1995 Op St Compt No. 95-22.

Unless otherwise provided by special act, members of volunteer fire department may determine to use foreign fire insurance tax monies to make reasonable expenditures to remodel and purchase appliances for firehouse kitchen. 1997 Op St Compt No. 97-20.

Unless otherwise provided by special act, volunteer fire department may use foreign fire insurance tax monies under CLS Ins §§ 9104 and 9105 to purchase personal computer, facsimile machine and refrigerator for fire department use. 2001 Opns St Comp No. 01-6.

12. —Insurance

Moneys received pursuant to Insurance Law §§ 553 and 554 [now §§ 9104, 9105] may be used for the purchase of accident insurance which pays benefits in addition to those available under the Workmen's Compensation Law and the Volunteer Firemen's Benefit Law. 1957 Ops St Compt File #602.

The Exempt Firemen's Benefit Association of the City of Long Beach may not purchase accident and life insurance with foreign fire insurance moneys for all exempt and volunteer firemen, because it may only use such money to aid disabled and indigent exempt and volunteer firemen, whether members of the Association or not. 1967 Ops St Compt File #752.

Volunteer and exempt firemen's benevolent association may not expend foreign fire insurance tax moneys to pay for improvements to fire department's headquarters. 1995 Op St Compt No. 95-26.

Moneys received by an exempt volunteer firemen's benevolent association from the taxes imposed by sections 553 and 554 of the Insurance Law may [now §§ 9104, 9105] be expended to purchase a group life insurance policy for all volunteer and exempt volunteer firemen without regard to membership in the association, provided that the participating firemen are required to designate family members as beneficiaries. 1983 Op St Comp File #83-120.

13. —Investments

It is inadvisable for volunteer and exempt firemen's benevolent association to invest foreign fire insurance tax moneys by loaning moneys to fire department having essentially same membership as association. 1995 Op St Compt No. 95-26.

14. —Miscellaneous purposes

Proceeds from the tax on premiums collected by foreign fire insurance companies may be used by a city to purchase for members of the city fire department items of comfort and convenience. 1957 Ops St Compt File #57-269.

Foreign fire insurance tax monies may not be expended to purchase annuities for benefit of members of volunteer fire company since such purchase would be tantamount to making direct cash payment. 2004 Op St Compt No. 04-5.

Volunteer fire department may not expend foreign fire insurance tax monies to reimburse active members of department for mileage expenses incurred in performing firemanic duties. 2005 Op St Compt No. 05-2.

Except as otherwise provided by special act, members of fire department or, in case of multi-company fire department, members of each company, must determine how foreign fire insurance tax moneys are to be used for benefit of department or company, however, treasurer having custody of these moneys should not permit expenditures for illegal or improper purposes; moneys may be expended by treasurer for purposes of paying for publication of fire department or company newsletter. Ops St Compt 89-16.

A fire district may finance the acquisition of real property by means of issuance of a statutory installment bond payable in ten years to a volunteer exempt volunteer firemen's benevolent association. The association may use foreign fire insurance tax monies to purchase such bond provided such purchase complies with the prudent man rule set forth in section 11-2.2 of the Estates, Powers and Trusts Law. 1983 Op St Compt File § 83-159. A volunteer firemen's benevolent association may pay a death benefit to the family of a deceased volunteer fireman in an amount above $500. 1984 Op St Comp File #84-36.

15. —Recreation

Unless otherwise provided by special acts, members of volunteer fire department or, if department is comprised of several companies, members of each company, may determine to use foreign fire insurance tax moneys to make reasonable expenditures to purchase furniture for recreation room and trophy case for meeting room for department use. 1997 Op St Compt No. 97-14.

16. Enforcement of reporting requirement

Superintendent of insurance has the exclusive power to enforce sections of Insurance Law providing for two percent fire insurance "tax" to be paid by all foreign and alien fire insurers except mutual fire insurers, and Superintendent has duty to enforce statutory directives, including requirement that every agent for any insurer shall report to the insurer the name of the correct city, village or fire district in which insured is situated. Greenville Fire Co. No. 1 v Aetna Casualty & Surety Co., 92 Misc. 2d 402, 399 N.Y.S.2d 985, 1977 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2558 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1977), aff'd, 63 A.D.2d 725, 405 N.Y.S.2d 310, 1978 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11654 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1978).

Volunteer fire company did not, either individually or in a class action, have capacity to bring action charging fire insurers with failing to maintain adequate record-keeping procedures to insure accurate allocation among state's fire districts of two percent fire insurance "tax" imposed under sections of Insurance Law, unless superintendent of insurance would both refuse to investigate complaints and take steps to remedy situation in the event that complaints were well founded and unless fire company would seek and would be denied mandamus relief sought against superintendent of insurance for failure to carry out his responsibility. Greenville Fire Co. No. 1 v Aetna Casualty & Surety Co., 92 Misc. 2d 402, 399 N.Y.S.2d 985, 1977 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2558 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1977), aff'd, 63 A.D.2d 725, 405 N.Y.S.2d 310, 1978 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11654 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1978).

17. Tax on risks insured within New York City

A contract of indemnity by which a foreign corporation doing business in New York City assumes part of risks of a domestic company, but receives no premium from insured, is not "insurance against loss or injury by fire" within meaning of § 799 of greater New York charter, requiring every person acting in city as agent for such corporation, to pay certain percentages of premiums to fire commissioner. Adamson v Schreiner, 225 N.Y. 713, 122 N.E. 876, 225 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 713, 1919 N.Y. LEXIS 1250 (N.Y. 1919).

Under the greater New York charter, § 799, an agent of a foreign fire insurance company must pay tax of two per cent on premiums on fire policies effected on property within city, without deduction of premiums on re-insurance effected by him as such agent. So long as provisions in greater New York charter §§ 798, 799, relative to taxation of premiums received by fire insurance companies apply equally to all in same situation, they are not unconstitutional because another statute applying to other localities may be different. Drennan v Hampton, 191 A.D. 576, 181 N.Y.S. 777, 1920 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4760 (N.Y. App. Div. 1920), aff'd, 232 N.Y. 576, 134 N.E. 578, 232 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 576, 1922 N.Y. LEXIS 1155 (N.Y. 1922).

18. Other matters

The Firemen's Association had the right to receive money collected under Insurance Law § 553 [now § 9104] but plaintiff's complaint was sufficient to raise an issue of whether the defendant had the right to receive money collected under § 554 [now § 9105] of the Insurance Law, and whether moneys received under § 553 were properly used. Niagara Falls Fire Dep't Mut. Aid Ass'n v Exempt Firemen's Ass'n, 25 A.D.2d 484, 266 N.Y.S.2d 627, 1966 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5120 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1966).

Volunteer firemen had no preference over paid firemen of village as to sharing in benefits of funds collected from tax on premiums of policies of fire insurance. Wilcox v Schenck, 52 A.D.2d 349, 383 N.Y.S.2d 918, 1976 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12028 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1976).

By changing its membership requirements from members of any fire company to volunteer members the Firemen's Benevolent Fund Association of the City of Mount Vernon did not unlawfully discriminate against professional firemen individually or as a class. Crohn v Firemen's Benevolent Fund Ass'n, 79 Misc. 2d 536, 359 N.Y.S.2d 599, 1973 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1279 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1973), aff'd, Crohn v Firemen's Benevolent Fund Asso., 45 A.D.2d 955, 359 N.Y.S.2d 247, 1974 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4168 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1974).

1. In general

Legislative intention as expressed is to impose only one tax of two per cent on foreign mutual fire companies, and that one is collected by the state superintendent of insurance. 1946 NY Ops Atty Gen Aug 16.

In a fire department consisting of both paid and volunteer firemen, the paid firemen are entitled to receive an equitable share of foreign fire insurance tax moneys. 1979 Op St Compt File #813.

2. Duty to apportion and pay over funds

A fire district treasurer must apportion and pay over all of the tax received under Insurance Law, § 553 [now § 9104] to the treasurer or treasurers of the fire company or companies constituting the fire district, to be used by that company or those companies for the use and benefit of the fire department and the company or companies comprising the department, whereas the tax received by the fire district treasurer under Insurance Law, § 554 [now § 9105] must be applied for the use and benefit of the fire department as such, which use is to be designated by the board of fire commissioners and if any portion or all of the tax under Insurance Law, § 554 [now § 9105] is not required by the fire district commissioners to be applied by them for the use and benefit of the fire department as such, then the fire district treasurer should apportion and pay over that tax, or the balance thereof, to the treasurer or treasurers of the fire company or fire companies constituting the fire department, to be used by them for the statutory purpose. The statutory direction to "apportion and pay over" does not require that the funds be distributed equally among the several fire companies constituting the fire district. The apportionment is based upon a determination by the treasurer of the fire district, which determination can not be arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable. 1976 NY Ops Atty Gen August 23.

Discussion of payment over to a newly incorporated exempt volunteer firemen's benevolent association of unexpended foreign fire insurance fund moneys held by a volunteer fire company the members of which are also eligible for membership in the benevolent association. 1978 Op St Compt File #304.

Where a village fire department consists of several volunteer fire companies, the treasurer of the fire department is not required to apportion foreign fire insurance tax moneys equally among the several companies; he may apportion such moneys in any equitable manner, such as on the basis of membership in each company. 1979 Op St Compt File #102.

3. Entities and organizations entitled to receive funds

4. —Benevolent associations

Where a legally organized firemen's benevolent association does not exist, moneys received by a village under Insurance Law § 554 [now § 9105] must be used for the benefit of the fire department and not for the benefit of the village. 1958 NY Ops Atty Gen Dec 30 (informal).

An incorporated fire fighters benevolent association has no power to collect and receive fire insurance premium tax moneys imposed on foreign insurance companies unless specially authorized by a special law. 1958 NY Ops Atty Gen Dec 31.

A benevolent association incorporated under the Not-For-Profit Corporation Law may be dissolved pursuant to that statute without the consent of the State Legislature. Before a benevolent association can receive monies under sections 553 and 554 [now §§ 9104, 9105] it must be authorized by the State Legislature. 1979 Op St Compt File #676.

A by-law of a volunteer and exempt firemen's benevolent association cannot qualify eligibility for benefits from foreign fire insurance tax moneys on membership in the association where the special legislation creating the association contains no such qualification. 1983 Op St Compt File #83-33.

Where a village fire department does not have a treasurer and no person has been designated in a special law as the recipient of the tax moneys derived from the tax imposed by these sections [now §§ 9104, 9105], such moneys should be paid to the village treasurer. 1981 Op St Compt File #81-129.

A fire company or department which is not actively providing fire fighting services is not entitled to the foreign fire insurance tax moneys due to the fire district in which it is located. Such moneys should be paid to the fire department which is obligated by contract to provide fire protection to the district. 1982 Op St Compt File #82-56.

5. Purposes for which funds may be used

6. —Arbitration and other legal fees

Use of proceeds from the foreign fire insurance premium tax to pay for expenses related to arbitration in a village where only part of the fire department consists of paid professional firemen is improper. 1979 Op St Compt File #238.

The Medina Firemen's Benevolent Association may not use moneys paid to it from the tax on foreign fire insurance premiums to defray the cost of arbitration or the legal fees related to arbitration proceedings between the village and its paid firemen. Opn No. 79-238 superseded. 1979 Op St Compt File #238-A.

A fire department fire company which has received foreign fire insurance tax moneys from the fire department may expend such moneys to pay legal fees incurred in connection with a law suit brought against the company provided that it is determined by the members of the company that such expenditure is for the use and benefit of the company. 1980 Op St Compt File #536.

7. —Care and relief of indigent

The Deer Park Volunteer Exempt Firemen's Association may expend foreign fire insurance tax moneys only for the care and relief of disabled or indigent volunteer and exempt volunteer firemen and their families. 1979 Op St Compt File #285-A.

The Volunteer and Exempt Firemen's Benevolent Association of Inwood may expend foreign fire insurance tax proceeds only for the care and relief of disabled or indigent volunteer and exempt firemen and their families. 1979 Op St Compt File #628.

The Valley Stream Volunteer and Exempt Firemen's Benevolent Association may expend foreign fire insurance tax moneys only for the care and relief of disabled and indigent volunteer and exempt firemen and their families. 1981 Op St Compt File #81-29.

The Plainview Volunteer and Exempt Firemen's Benevolent Association may expend foreign fire insurance tax moneys only for the care and relief of disabled or indigent volunteer and exempt firemen and their families. 1981 Op St Compt File #81-63.

The Grand Island Volunteer Firemen's Benevolent Association may expend foreign fire insurance moneys only for the care and relief of disabled or indigent volunteer and exempt volunteer firemen and their families. 1981 Op St Compt File #81-143.

Interest earned on foreign fire insurance tax moneys which have been invested by an exempt volunteer firemen's benevolent association may be expended only for the care and relief of disabled or indigent volunteer firemen and their families or for such other purposes, if any, authorized by the legislation creating the association. 1982 Op St Compt File #82-334.

8. —Death benefits

The Volunteer and Exempt Firemen's Benevolent Association of East Norwich may expend foreign fire insurance tax moneys to purchase gravestones for deceased volunteer and exempt firemen only where such firemen were indigent at the time of their death. 1979 Op St Compt File #379.

9. —Equipment for fire department

The members of a fire department may not be compelled to use foreign fire insurance tax moneys to purchase equipment for the fire department. However, if they decide on their own to use the moneys for such purpose, the moneys may be so expended by the department or municipal treasurer. 1979 Op St Compt File #680.

The Glenham Fire District may expend foreign fire insurance tax moneys to purchase a walk-in cooler for a fire company provided that it is determined by the members of the department and the department or district treasurer, as the case might be, that such expenditure is for the use and benefit of the fire department. 1980 Op St Compt File #506.

A fire department may expend foreign fire insurance tax proceeds to help construct a fireman's training tower provided that the members of the fire department and the department treasurer determine that such expenditure is for the use and benefit of the department. 1981 Op St Compt File #81-49.

The Grand Island Volunteer Firemen's Benevolent Association may expend foreign fire insurance moneys only for the care and relief of disabled or indigent volunteer and exempt volunteer firemen and their families and, thus, may not use such moneys to purchase jackets for firemen. 1981 Op St Compt File #81-143.

Foreign fire insurance tax moneys may be expended for the purchase of new beds for the fire house where the members of the fire department have determined that such expenditure is for the use and benefit of the department. 1982 Op St Compt File #82-25.

10. —Insurance

Purchase by a volunteer fire department of insurance covering disability or death of a volunteer fireman resulting from non-firemanic activity is not proper use of funds received pursuant to Insurance Law §§ 553, 554 [now §§ 9104, 9105]. 1970 NY Ops Atty Gen May 13.

Foreign fire insurance fund moneys may be expended for the purchase of premiums on a group life insurance policy for the benefit of members of a fire department. 1978 Op St Compt File #401.

Discussion of the purchase of life insurance for volunteer firemen with fire district moneys, moneys of a volunteer fireman's benevolent association and foreign fire insurance fund moneys. 1978 Op St Compt File #909.

The Mutual Aid Association of the Paid Fire Department of the City of Yonkers may not expend foreign fire insurance tax moneys to pay the firefighter's shares of health insurance provided by the city. 1980 Op St Compt File #58.

Foreign fire insurance tax proceeds may be paid by the treasurer of a fire department into a trust fund which is established, pursuant to the provisions of the trust agreement, for the purpose of providing a death benefit to the families of deceased members of the fire department provided that the members of the fire department and the department treasurer determine that this is for the use and benefit of the fire department. 1980 Op St Compt File #119.

The members of a paid fire company within a village fire department may spend their share of foreign fire insurance tax proceeds for the establishment of an optical and eye care program for members of the company and their families if the members of the company determine that such expenditure is for the use and benefit of the company. 1980 Op St Compt File #625.

Foreign fire insurance tax moneys may be expended for the purchase of group life insurance for the members of a fire department. 1982 Op St Compt File #82-356.

Exempt volunteer firemen who no longer are active in providing fire-fighting services may not be included in a group life insurance policy purchased for an association or organization of volunteer firemen. 1983 Op St Compt File #83-232.

11. —Investments

The Volunteer and Exempt Firemen's Benevolent Association of West Hempstead may invest foreign fire insurance fund moneys in the manner authorized by section 11-2.2 of the EPTL. Whether such moneys may be invested in a mutual insurance company pursuant to the provisions of section 76 of the Insurance Law depends upon whether such investment meets the criteria set forth in section 11-2.2. 1979 Op St Compt File #859.

Interest earned on foreign fire insurance tax moneys which have been invested by an exempt volunteer firemen's benevolent association may be expended only for the care and relief of disabled or indigent volunteer firemen and their families or for such other purposes, if any, authorized by the legislation creating the association. 1982 Op St Compt File #82-334.

A firemen's benevolent association may invest foreign fire insurance fund moneys in accordance with the prudent man standard set forth in EPTL, § 11-2.2. Whether such moneys may be invested in an interest bearing note or bond secured by a first mortgage on real property owned by the benevolent association depends upon whether such investment meets the prudent man standard of section 11-2.2. 1982 Op St Compt File #82-366.

12. —Miscellaneous purposes

Discussion of use of foreign fire insurance moneys by the Deer Park Volunteer Firemen's Association to pay the cost of maintaining the association's headquarters. 1978 Op St Compt File #285.

Fire district moneys may not be expended in connection with a program designed to insure that all homeowner's in the district correctly designate the fire district in which they reside on their homeowner's insurance policies. 1979 Op St Compt File #324.

The City of Corning may expend foreign fire insurance fund moneys to reimburse the Corning Fire Fighters Association for losses which the Association incurred in a fund raising event, provided that it is determined by the members of the fire department and the city treasurer that such expenditure is for the use and benefit of the fire department. All prior opinions inconsistent with this opinion are hereby superseded. 1979 Op St Compt File #627.

Foreign fire insurance tax moneys may be used by the fire department to purchase dress uniforms, including the purchase at cost of uniforms from firemen who have previously purchased uniforms with their own moneys. 1979 Op St Compt File #814.

§ 9108. Fire insurance fee

(a) Every insurance company authorized to do business in this state shall collect, in addition to the applicable premium charge, a fire insurance fee, separately identified and charged to each policyholder, from each such holder of a policy issued in the state or for delivery in the state for coverage of peril of fire, excluding a policy for protection of household furnishings and/or policies issued to protect one or two-family residential structures, schools, churches and hospitals.

(b) (1) The fee is hereby imposed at the rate of one and one-quarter per centum on the gross direct premium written on property or risks located in this state, provided, however, no fee shall be imposed on a policy to insure against peril of inland marine, ocean marine, automobile, or aircraft physical damage. Such fees shall be paid quarterly by insurance companies to the superintendent, after deducting from such gross premiums, (i) premiums upon policies not taken and (ii) premiums returned on cancelled policies, as follows: April fifteenth, July fifteenth, October fifteenth, and January fifteenth to reflect the net collections for the quarters ending March thirty-first, June thirtieth, September thirtieth, and December thirty-first, respectively.

(2) On or before the fifteenth day of February of each year, every insurance company required to collect the fee imposed by this section shall file with said superintendent an annual statement in a manner the superintendent shall prescribe, which statement shall show the aggregate amount of gross premiums and premium deposits and assessments collected during the immediately preceding year for insurance against loss or injury and the several items of deduction referred to under items (i) and (ii) of paragraph one of this subsection.

(c) In case any such company shall neglect or refuse to make and file such statement or pay over moneys collected from the fee imposed by this section, the provisions of section nine thousand one hundred nine of this article shall apply.

(d) All moneys received by the superintendent shall be paid into the code enforcement account by the tenth day of the month following receipt of such moneys.

(e) The fees imposed by this section shall be applicable to said policies issued or renewed on or after July first, nineteen hundred eighty-two.

For those homeowners and commercial multiple peril policies for which actual fire portion cannot be determined, accepted fire portions of premium are 35 and 50 percent, respectively, that are then levied for fire insurance fee under CLS Ins § 9108. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 06-09-01.

For those homeowners and commercial multiple peril policies for which actual fire portion cannot be determined, fire insurance fee is not levied on portion of premium applied to coverage for equipment breakdown since there is no coverage for peril of fire in coverage. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 06-09-01.

Under CLS Ins § 9108, fire insurance fee does not apply to excess line insurance companies in New York; however, excess line premium tax paid by broker does include component representing fire premium tax. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 06-11-10.

Word "churches" as used in CLS Ins § 9108(a) is not limited to Christian houses of worship and encompasses other houses of worship including, but not limited to, synagogues and mosques; to limit definition of "churches" solely to mean Christian houses of worship would violate CLS NY Const Art I § 3. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 06-12-06.

Under Insurance Law and Workers' Compensation Law, fire insurance fee, state assessment fee, and Workers' Compensation Security Fund surcharge each must be separately stated on declarations page of insurance policy; there is no requirement that they be separately stated on premium notice. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 07-02-09.

Fire insurance fee may not be used as basis for agent's commission, while state assessment fee and Workers' Compensation Security Fund surcharge do not count toward that of part of premium intended to fund commissions. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 07-02-09.

Insurance policy may be cancelled for non-payment of fire insurance fee if insurer complies with CLS Ins § 3425 or § 3426, which set forth cancellation and renewal provisions for most non-commercial property/casualty insurance policies and commercial lines property/casualty insurance policies, respectively. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 07-02-09.

On cancellation of policy by insured, fire insurance fee and state assessment fee must be refunded by insurer on same basis as any other return of premium. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 07-02-09.

Fire insurance fee and Workers' Compensation Security Fund surcharge are not subject to premium tax, but state assessment fee is subject to premium tax. NY Ins Dep't Gen Counsel, Opinion No. 07-02-09.

Under CLS Ins § 9104, foreign or alien insurer may elect to pay fire insurance premium tax to Superintendent of Insurance, but under CLS Ins § 9108, insurer must pay fire insurance fee to Superintendent. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 09-10-01.

Insurer is not required to list on fire insurance policy names and addresses of fire departments to which fire insurance fee or fire insurance premium tax is to be distributed. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 09-10-01.

Homeowner's policy is not subject to fire insurance fee if policy covers only one- or 2-family residential structures, but homeowner's policy that covers 3-family or more residential structures is subject to fire insurance fee. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 09-10-01.

Lender's property reporting (LPR) policy is subject to fire insurance fee under CLS Ins § 9108, even though policy is issued to lender. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 09-10-03.

ARTICLE 16 Selection of Jurors

Section
517. Excuses and postponements
519. Right of juror to be absent from employment

HISTORY:
Add, L 1977, ch 316, § 2, eff Jan 1, 1978.

§ 517. Excuses and postponements

(a) (1) Except as otherwise provided in paragraph two of this subdivision, the commissioner of jurors may, in his or her discretion, on the application of a prospective juror who has been summoned to attend, excuse such prospective juror from a part or the whole of the time of jury service or may postpone the time of jury service to a later day during the same or any subsequent term of the court, provided that if the prospective juror is a breastfeeding mother and submits with her application a note from a physician indicating that the prospective juror is breastfeeding, the commissioner shall excuse the prospective juror or postpone the time of jury service. The application shall be presented to the commissioner at such time and in such manner as he or she shall require, except that an application for postponement of the initial date for jury service may be made by telephone.

(2) An application for postponement of jury service shall be granted hereunder provided: (i) such service has not already been postponed or excused, (ii) the application is made at such time and in such manner as the commissioner of jurors requires, and (iii) the postponement is to a date certain when the court is in session not more than six months after the date on which such service otherwise is to commence and such date is selected by the prospective juror, provided that if the prospective juror is a breastfeeding mother, the postponement date may be a date certain up to two years after the date on which such service otherwise is to commence.

(b) A person whose application has been denied by the commissioner, or who has not applied to the commissioner for an excuse or postponement, may apply to the trial court, or to the court having supervision of the grand jury, as the case may be, which may, in its discretion, excuse such person from a part or the whole of the time of jury service, or may postpone the time of jury service to a later day during the same or any subsequent term of the court. If the applicant cannot personally attend, he or she shall send the summons and application by a person capable of making the necessary proof in relation to the application.

(c) In determining whether an application for excusal should be granted, the commissioner or the court shall consider whether the applicant has a mental or physical condition that causes him or her to be incapable of performing jury service or there is any other fact [which] indicates that attendance for jury service in accordance with the summons would cause undue hardship or extreme inconvenience to the applicant, a person under his or her care or supervision, or the public. Except as provided in paragraph two of subdivision (a) of this section, in determining whether an application for postponement should be granted, the commissioner or the court shall be guided by standards promulgated by the chief administrator of the courts.

Notes to Decisions

Trial court did not err in questioning prospective jurors about hardship due to work commitments and family obligations because the only inquiry by the court was whether, given the length of the trial, any particular hardship would prevent them from serving, the questioning focused on matters that were extraneous to their fitness to serve, there had been no inquiry into whether they were fit to serve, and the trial judge and commissioner of jurors had authority to excuse prospective jurors from service based on undue hardship or extreme inconvenience. People v King, 27 N.Y.3d 147, 50 N.E.3d 869, 31 N.Y.S.3d 402, 2016 N.Y. LEXIS 427 (N.Y. 2016).

Defendant's motion to suspend the procedures for automatic postponement of jury service upon request in N.Y. Jud. Law § 517(a)(2) and N.Y. Codes R. & Regs. tit. 22, § 126- aa(1) was denied, because even assuming the court had the power to grant such a motion, defendant failed to demonstrate a sufficient need for such an order, as prospective jurors, who had already received summonses to attend on the date scheduled for trial, had no reason to believe that they would be called for this case, the Commissioner of Jurors gave out no advance information on when particular cases were scheduled to begin, and there was no basis to conclude that prospective jurors, in large numbers or of any particular group, would be trying to postpone service in order to avoid this case. People v Taylor, 192 Misc. 2d 786, 747 N.Y.S.2d 337, 2002 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1162 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 2002).

Because the trial court complied with N.Y. Jud. Ct. Acts Law § 517(b), (c), and N.Y. Comp. Codes R. & Regs. tit. 22, § 128.6-a before excusing prospective jurors for undue hardship, and because defense counsel had no right to participate in the court's discretionary decisions, the jury pool was not unconstitutionally narrowed and defendant's right to counsel was not abrogated. People v Heckstall, 45 A.D.3d 907, 845 N.Y.S.2d 488, 2007 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10969 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2007), app. denied, 10 N.Y.3d 765, 854 N.Y.S.2d 327, 883 N.E.2d 1262, 2008 N.Y. Defendant's contention that the trial court's jury selection procedure violated his right to a jury selected in accordance with the law was unpreserved for appellate review because defendant did not object to the procedure, and the procedure did not fit within the "mode of proceedings" exception to the preservation requirement; pursuant to N.Y. Jud. Ct. Acts Law § 517(b) and N.Y. Comp. Codes R. & Regs. tit. 22, § 128.6-a, a trial court had discretion on the matter of excusing jurors. [Expires and repealed April 1, 2006] § 4. Notwithstanding any other provision of law, references to "forty dollars" in section 519 and subdivision (a) of section 521 of the judiciary law shall not apply where a juror subject to those provisions of law serves in a town or village court, and shall be replaced by: (i) "ten dollars", as of the effective date of this section; (ii) "fifteen dollars", as of one year after such effective date; and (iii) "twenty-five dollars", as of two years after such effective date. Where the provisions of this act would result in a juror in a town or village justice court receiving a smaller allowance from the state on account of jury service than he or she would have been entitled to receive for such service from the appropriate town or village on the day immediately preceding the effective date of this act, the amount specified in this section shall equal the amount of such larger allowance.

Notes to Decisions

Probationary employee's termination without hearing was proper even though it occurred one year and 6 days after he began his employment, since his one-year probationary period was extended for 23 days he spent on jury during his first year of work; extension of probationary period, under circumstances, was not penalty as contemplated by Judiciary Law § 519. Petitioner's proceeding to compel his reinstatement to employment with the New York State Office of Parks and Recreation was properly dismissed, where petitioner was terminated at the end of his probationary term, which had been extended pursuant to regulatory authority to reflect his absence while on jury duty; such extension was not a "penalty" within the intendment of Jud Law § 519. § 2. Definitions

Whenever used in this chapter:

1. "Department" means the department of labor of the state of New York.

2. "Commissioner" means the commissioner of labor of the state of New York.

3. "Board," as determined by the context, shall mean either the workmen's compensation board or the industrial board of appeals of the state of New York.

4. "Rule" means any rule or regulation made by the industrial commissioner and any amendment or repeal thereof.

5. "Employee" means a mechanic, workingman or laborer working for another for hire.

6. "Employer" means the person employing any such mechanic, workingman or laborer, whether the owner, proprietor, agent, superintendent, foreman or other subordinate.

7. "Employed" includes permitted or suffered to work.

8. "Person" includes a corporation or a joint-stock association.

8-a. "Agent" of a corporation includes, but is not limited to, a manager, superintendent, foreman, supervisor or any other person employed acting in such capacity.

9. "Factory" includes a mill, workshop or other manufacturing establishment where one or more persons are employed at manufacturing, including making, altering, repairing, finishing, bottling, canning, cleaning or laundering any article or thing, in whole or in part, and includes all buildings, sheds, structures or other places used for or in connection therewith, except (a) dry dock plants engaged in making repairs to ships and (b) power houses, generating plants and other structures owned or operated by a public service corporation or a municipal corporation other than construction or repair shops, subject to the jurisdiction of the public service commission and (c) structures, operated as refrigerated warehouses for the handling, packing, refrigeration and storage of fruits and vegetables and which are subject to the jurisdiction of or licensed by the department of agriculture and markets, also structures used in cleaning or packing celery. The provisions of this chapter affecting structural changes and alterations shall not apply to factories or to any buildings, sheds or other places used for or in connection therewith where less than six persons are employed at manufacturing except as otherwise prescribed by the rules.

10. "Factory building" means a building, shed or structure which, or any part of which, is occupied by or used for a factory, and in which at least one-tenth or more than twenty-five of all the persons employed in the building are engaged in work for a factory, but shall not include a building in a city having a population of more than one million, used exclusively by one employer and in which not more than one-tenth of all the persons employed therein are engaged in work for a factory and which, except for such factory work, would be classified as a mercantile establishment. The provisions of this chapter shall apply to any part of a building occupied or used as a factory, except as otherwise provided by this subdivision.

11. "Mercantile establishment" means a place where one or more persons are employed in which goods, wares or merchandise are offered for sale and includes a building, shed or structure, or any part thereof, occupied in connection with such establishment. The provisions of this chapter affecting structural changes and alterations shall not apply to mercantile establishments where less than six persons are employed except as otherwise prescribed by the rules.

12. "Place of public assembly" shall include (1) a theatre, (2) moving picture house, (3) assembly halls maintained or leased for pecuniary gain where one hundred or more persons may assemble for amusement or recreation, except (a) halls owned by churches, religious organizations, granges, and public association and free libraries as defined by section two hundred fifty-three of the education law, and (b) hotels having fifty or more rooms.

13. "Public building" shall include a factory building, an office building, a mercantile building, a hotel building, a theatre building, a warehouse building, an apartment building, a state or municipal building, a school, a college or university building, a building containing a place of public assembly maintained or leased for pecuniary gain, or any other building more than one story high except a dwelling house less than three stories high or occupied by less than three families.

14. All references to male employees in this chapter shall be deemed to include female employees.

15. "Minor" means any person who has not attained the age of eighteen years.

16. "Domestic worker" shall mean a person employed in a home or residence for the purpose of caring for a child, serving as a companion for a sick, convalescing or elderly person, housekeeping, or for any other domestic service purpose. "Domestic worker" does not include any individual (a) working on a casual basis, (b) who is engaged in providing companionship services, as defined in paragraph fifteen of subdivision (a) of section 213 of the fair labor standards act of 1938, and who is employed by an employer or agency other than the family or household using his or her services, or (c) who is a relative through blood, marriage or adoption of: (1) the employer; or (2) the person for whom the worker is delivering services under a program funded or administered by federal, state or local government.

17. All references to labor law, chapter, article or section shall be deemed to include any rule, regulation or order promulgated thereunder or related thereto.

18. "Farm laborer" shall mean any individual who works on a farm and is an employee under article nineteen of this chapter. Members of an employer's immediate family who are related to the third degree of consanguinity or affinity shall not be considered to be employed on a farm if they work on a farm out of familial obligations and are not paid wages, or other compensation based on their hours or days of work.

Editor's Notes: Laws 2010, ch 481, § 1, eff Nov 29, 2010, provides as follows:

Section 1. Legislative findings and intent. Many thousands of domestic workers are employed in New York state as housekeepers, nannies, and companions to the elderly. The labor of domestic workers is central to the ongoing prosperity that the state enjoys, and yet, despite the value of their work, domestic workers do not receive the same protection of many state laws as do workers in other industries. Domestic workers often labor under harsh conditions, work long hours for low wages without benefits or job security, are isolated in their workplaces, and are endangered by sexual harassment and assault, as well as verbal, emotional and psychological abuse. Moreover, many domestic workers in the state of New York are women of color who, because of race and sex discrimination, are particularly vulnerable to unfair labor practices. Additionally, domestic workers are not afforded by law the right to organize labor unions for the purpose of collective bargaining.

The legislature finds that because domestic workers care for the most important elements of their employers' lives, their families and homes, it is in the interest of employees, employers, and the people of the state of New York to ensure that the rights of domestic workers are respected, protected, and enforced.

Laws 2010, ch 564, § 1, eff April 9, 2011, provides as follows:

Section 1. This act shall be known and may be cited as the "wage theft prevention act".

Laws 2020, ch 58, § 8 (Part II), eff April 3, 2020, provides:

§ 8. This act shall take effect immediately and shall be deemed to have been in full force and effect on and after January 1, 2020.

Amendment Notes: 2010. Chapter 481, § 2 amended:
By adding sub 16 [first setout].
2010. Chapter 564, § 2 amended:
By adding sub 16 [second setout].
The 2020 amendment by ch 58, § 1 (Part II), redesignated former 16 [second setout] as 17; and added 18.

1. In general

Statute imposing absolute liability upon contractors, owners and their agents for supplying defective equipment in connection with erection of structures applies to those "employed" in erecting structures and, though term is defined as applying to persons who are "permitted or suffered to work," a definition which may be broad enough to encompass one who comes upon premises to give advice in connection with construction, term also applies to "employees," defined as "a mechanic, working man or laborer working for another for hire," and an individual cannot, therefore, come within terms of statute unless he is both "employed" and an "employee." Yearke v Zarcone, 57 A.D.2d 457, 395 N.Y.S.2d 322, 1977 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11823 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't), app. denied, 43 N.Y.2d 643, 1977 N.Y. LEXIS 4959 (N.Y. 1977).

Injured worker's action for common-law negligence and violations of CLS Labor §§ 200, 240(1), and 241(6) was not barred on ground that defendant city was not "owner" within meaning of Labor Law where injury occurred at city school when worker slipped and fell from I-beam onto top of boiler in attempt to replace boiler cap. Pasquale v City of Buffalo, 255 A.D.2d 874, 680 N.Y.S.2d 140, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12061 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1998).

Two restaurant owners could be considered jointly liable for wage payments that were owed to a former employee for work the employee performed for a restaurant that had belonged to the owners, because, under a totality of circumstances, the owners had exercised control over the restaurant. Padilla v Manlapaz, 643 F. Supp. 2d 302, 2009 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 75186 (E.D.N.Y. 2009).

A water filtration plant operator is not prohibited from working in excess of eight hours a day, forty hours a week. 1967 Ops St Compt File #184.

Workingmen, laborers, or mechanics employed by a town may not be permitted or required to work in excess of eight hours a day, five days a week, as such, except in situations involving extraordinary emergencies. 1967 Ops St Compt File #742.

2. Employee

Section 701 contains its own definition of the term "employees" and is not controlled by the prior definition in § 2. Metropolitan Life Ins. Co. v New York State Labor Relations Bd., 280 N.Y. 194, 20 N.E.2d 390, 280 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 194, 1939 N.Y. LEXIS 1309 (N.Y. 1939).

An employee within the meaning of § 2 does not include a factory superintendent and such superintendent is not entitled to be paid his wages in accordance with § 196. In re Wright Metal, Inc., 283 N.Y. 47, 27 N.E.2d 428, 283 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 47, 1940 N.Y. LEXIS 946 (N.Y. 1940).

A child camper at a wholly charitable summer camp who dried dishes as a camp chore, for which he received no payment, was not an employee within the meaning of § 130. Bernal v Baptist Fresh Air Home Soc., 275 A.D. 88, 87 N.Y.S.2d 458, 1949 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3712 (N.Y. App. Div.), aff'd, 300 N.Y. 486, 88 N.E.2d 720, 300 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 486, 1949 N.Y. LEXIS 1380 (N.Y. 1949).

Injured worker's action for common-law negligence and violations of CLS Labor §§ 200, 240(1), and 241(6) was not barred on ground that worker was employee of defendant school board where worker was employee of school's boiler maintenance contractor, and board's reliance on 1988 decision by State Department of Labor in unrelated matter was misplaced. Pasquale v City of Buffalo, 255 A.D.2d 874, 680 N.Y.S.2d 140, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12061 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1998).

Defendant was entitled to summary judgment dismissing Labor Law claims where plaintiff's decedent volunteered to assist defendant and defendant's decedent in construction of barn, there was no evidence of compensation or fulfillment of prior obligation, and silence of defendant's decedent during private investigator's interview of third party was not admission by silence, absent evidence that defendant's decedent was given opportunity to speak. Schwab v Campbell, 266 A.D.2d 840, 697 N.Y.S.2d 424, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11778 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1999).

Plaintiff, who was sole shareholder, officer and director of defendant corporation and owner of building where accident occurred, was not "working for another for hire" within meaning of CLS Labor § 2(5) and, as such, was not in class of persons protected by CLS Labor §§ 200, 240(1) and 241(6). Scott v Scott's Landing, Inc., 277 A.D.2d 918, 715 N.Y.S.2d 135, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11369 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 2000), app. denied, 96 N.Y.2d 705, 723 N.Y.S.2d 132, 746 N.E.2d 187, 2001 N.Y. LEXIS 271 (N.Y. 2001).

Trial court's denial of a trustee's summary judgment motion dismissing a contractor's N.Y. Lab. Law § 240(1) claim was error because, although the contractor was injured while building a shed in return for his inclusion in a hunting trip organized by the trustee, the contractor was a volunteer and therefore not entitled to the protection afforded by § 240. Stringer v Musacchia, 46 A.D.3d 1274, 848 N.Y.S.2d 762, 2007 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13212 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2007), aff'd, 11 N.Y.3d 212, 869 N.Y.S.2d 362, 898 N.E.2d 545, 2008 N.Y. LEXIS 3248 (N.Y. 2008).

Because a worker was a friend of first property owner and had offered to install a metal roof in exchange for the owners performing construction work on the worker's residence, he did not fall within the protections of the Labor Law pursuant to N.Y. Lab. Law § 2(5), (7) as a volunteer and, thus, could not pursue N.Y. Lab. Law §§ 240(1) and 241(6) claims. Fuller v Spiesz, 53 A.D.3d 1093, 861 N.Y.S.2d 896, 2008 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5884 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 2008).

Defendant, a rental property owner and plaintiff's mother, was not entitled to summary judgment on plaintiff's Labor Law claims because defendant directed plaintiff on what to do when he inspected the rental property's chimney, had previously paid plaintiff for repairs, and would have paid plaintiff if he had carried out the chimney repairs, and, as such, a triable issue of fact existed as to whether plaintiff was a volunteer or an employee at the time of his fall from a ladder. Doskotch v Pisocki, 168 A.D.3d 1174, 90 N.Y.S.3d 667, 2019 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 45 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2019).

The word "employees," as used in Penal Law, § 1272, must be given its ordinary and common meaning and not the definition thereof as contained in Labor Law, § 2, subd. 5. People ex rel. Furnice v Garlock, 11 N.Y.S.2d 82, 170 Misc. 686, 1939 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1692 (N.Y. Magis. Ct. 1939).

Persons employed as efficiency engineers to do work of a highly technical character are not employees within the spirit and intent of the Labor Law. People v Rowan, 38 N.Y.S.2d 648, 179 Misc. 225, 1942 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2223 (N.Y. Magis. Ct. 1942).

A professional carpenter who volunteers to help a neighbor in the erection of a garage on the neighbor's property, without pay, is not within the definition of employee in subd. 5 of this section. Cann v Dening, 216 N.Y.S.2d 164 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1961).

Evidence raised a triable issue of fact about whether an injured party who was hurt while using a scaffold to work on a homeowner's garage was a volunteer who was not protected by N.Y. Lab. Law § 240, or was protected by § 240 because he was an employee, and the trial court properly denied the injured party's motion for summary judgment on his claim that the homeowner was liable, as a matter of law, under § 240. Curatolo v Postiglione, 2 A.D.3d 480, 767 N.Y.S.2d 894, 2003 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13069 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2003).

In an action seeking damages for personal injuries sustained by a volunteer fireman, said volunteer was not an employee or employed at the scene of a fire, was not a mechanic, workingman or laborer working for another for hire, nor was one permitted or suffered to work at the place of the occurrence, and as such, he could not be considered to have been within the class of persons employed therein or lawfully frequenting the premises entitled to the protection afforded by the flat and unvarying duty imposed by N.Y. Lab. Law §§ 200, 240(1), and 241(6). Green v Peterson, 13 A.D.3d 1157, 787 N.Y.S.2d 759, 2004 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 16344 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 2004).

Plaintiff work experience program participant fell from a scaffolding, received workers' compensation, and sued defendant State under N.Y. Lab. Law § 240(1). Summary judgments were not granted because there was an issue whether the participant was a special employee of the State so as to be barred by workers' compensation exclusivity provisions. Bounds v State of New York, 24 A.D.3d 1212, 809 N.Y.S.2d 314, 2005 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 14428 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 2005).

Owner was not entitled to summary judgment on an injured worker's causes of action for negligence and violations of the Labor Law because triable issues of fact existed as to whether the worker was an employee under the Labor Law, and as to whether he suffered a "grave injury" under the Workers' Compensation Law. Paredes v 1668 Realty Assoc., LLC, 110 A.D.3d 700, 972 N.Y.S.2d 304, 2013 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6309 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2013).

Subcontractor's employee filing a negligence/labor law action under an assumed name did not prejudice the general contractor (GC) or property owner because, inter alia, neither the GC nor the owner knew the employee prior to his action, the assumed name was how the employee was known in the profession, and the assumed name did not sever the protections afforded the employee by the Labor Law; the employee was a Brazilian national without status in the United States. Bessa v Anflo Indus., Inc., 2014 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 5885 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 2014), app. dismissed, 148 A.D.3d 974, 51 N.Y.S.3d 102, 2017 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1974 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2017).

Use of an assumed name by a subcontractor's worker when filing a Labor Law action against a general contractor (GC) and owner of the lot where the worker was injured did not prejudice the GC or the owner because the worker was known by the assumed name in the profession, and the use of an assumed name did not sever the protections afforded the worker by the Labor Law, which existed to protect all employees and the protection existed independently of an immigrant employee's work status. Bessa v Anflo Indus., Inc., 49 Misc. 3d 587, 10 N.Y.S.3d 835, 2015 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1418 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 2015), aff'd in part, modified, 148 A.D.3d 974, 51 N.Y.S.3d 102, 2017 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1974 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2017).

A man who is given board and lodging upon the understanding that he will do work about a building is "working for another for hire." Osborne v Salvation Army, 107 F.2d 929, 1939 U.S. App. LEXIS 2858 (2d Cir. N.Y. 1939).

3. Employed

The definition of employed in subsection 7 is applicable to § 133, which prohibits the employment of minors. Ludwig v Lowe, 29 A.D.2d 267, 287 N.Y.S.2d 202, 1968 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4958 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1968), aff'd, 25 N.Y.2d 853, 303 N.Y.S.2d 871, 250 N.E.2d 866, 1969 N.Y. LEXIS 1175 (N.Y. 1969).

A 13-year-old infant-plaintiff who was injured while, voluntarily and without compensation, assisting his defendant-half brother in the construction of a house which the defendant was building for himself, is not within the meaning of the term "employed" in subsection 7. Ludwig v Lowe, 29 A.D.2d 267, 287 N.Y.S.2d 202, 1968 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4958 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1968), aff'd, 25 N.Y.2d 853, 303 N.Y.S.2d 871, 250 N.E.2d 866, 1969 N.Y. LEXIS 1175 (N.Y. 1969).

Defendants were not entitled to summary judgment dismissing causes of action under CLS Labor §§ 240(1) and 241(6) where they failed to prove as matter of law that plaintiff was not "employed" at their construction project, given broad definition of that term in CLS Labor § 2(7) as including all persons "permitted or suffered to work" on the job. Peglow v L & A Builders, 251 A.D.2d 1015, 674 N.Y.S.2d 202, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7040 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1998).

Defendant was entitled to summary judgment dismissing Labor Law claims where plaintiff's decedent volunteered to assist defendant and defendant's decedent in construction of barn, there was no evidence of compensation or fulfillment of prior obligation, and silence of defendant's decedent during private investigator's interview of third party was not admission by silence, absent evidence that defendant's decedent was given opportunity to speak. Schwab v Campbell, 266 A.D.2d 840, 697 N.Y.S.2d 424, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11778 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1999).

The word "employed" means "engaged in" and applies to an employer or person working for himself if he is engaged in acts constituting manufacturing. Caroli v Saxl, 81 N.Y.S.2d 213, 192 Misc. 887, 1948 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2735 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1948).

State was not liable under N.Y. Lab. Law § 241(6) for injuries that occurred while the injured claimant was performing excavation and repairs on a state highway where the injured claimant was not within the class of persons afforded protection under the statute. The injured claimant and the company with which the injured claimant was employed trespassed on the highway in performing repairs on it because the company did not obtain a highway work permit in violation of state law, and thus, the injured claimant was not a person "employed" at a worksite within the meaning of N.Y. Lab. Law § 2(7). Morton v State, 13 A.D.3d 498, 788 N.Y.S.2d 124, 2004 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 15575 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2004), app. dismissed, 5 N.Y.3d 783, 801 N.Y.S.2d 802, 835 N.E.2d 662, 2005 N.Y. LEXIS 1496 (N.Y. 2005), aff'd, 15 N.Y.3d 50, 904 N.Y.S.2d 350, 930 N.E.2d 271, 2010 N.Y. LEXIS 1148 (N.Y. 2010).

4. Factory

A tugboat is neither a factory nor "mill, workshop or other manufacturing or business establishment." Shannahan v Empire Engineering Corp., 204 N.Y. 543, 98 N.E. 9, 204 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 543, 1912 N.Y. LEXIS 796 (N.Y. 1912).

Plants for the cold storage of apples are factories within the meaning of subd. 9 of § 2. Red Hook Cold Storage Co. v Department of Labor, 295 N.Y. 1, 64 N.E.2d 265, 295 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 1, 1945 N.Y. LEXIS 746 (N.Y. 1945).

A building which is occupied on the ground floor by stores and on the other floors by offices, mercantile establishments and factories, in which 96 out of 390 people are engaged in factory work, is a factory within the meaning of this law. Scheier v Mitchell, 188 A.D. 182, 176 N.Y.S. 597, 1919 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7137 (N.Y. App. Div. 1919).

A building consisting of a cellar and five stories is a factory within the meaning of this section where the three top floors are occupied by a tenant engaged in manufacture of chemicals and perfumery sachets and employing about ten people at labor, and the second story is occupied by tenants engaged in towel supply and printing business and employing about five men. Davis Bros. Realty Corp. v Harte, 195 A.D. 403, 186 N.Y.S. 324, 1921 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4760 (N.Y. App. Div. 1921).

A powerhouse was not a factory, and part of the powerhouse used for making minor repairs was not an independent construction or repair shop, within the meaning of this section. People v New York C. R. Co., 211 A.D. 195, 206 N.Y.S. 743, 1924 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9908 (N.Y. App. Div. 1924).

The provisions in this statute relative to manufacturing do not apply where less than six persons are employed under the provisions of subd. 9. People ex rel. Strosahl v Cross & Brown Co., 232 A.D. 587, 251 N.Y.S. 138, 1931 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13895 (N.Y. App. Div. 1931).

A portion of a building wherein articles of clothing are altered and finished is a factory within the meaning of this act. 1556 Broadway Corp. v Walsh, 241 A.D. 859, 271 N.Y.S. 761, 1934 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10079 (N.Y. App. Div. 1934).

An employer was operating a factory, within the meaning of § 2 subd. 9, where it appears that its operations consisted of excavating sand and gravel from a deposit, the raw material being both altered and cleaned during its progress from the deposit to the final storage bins. Kast v Lacona Sand & Gravel Co., 250 A.D. 679, 295 N.Y.S. 242, 1937 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8432 (N.Y. App. Div. 1937).

A building used by different tenants in their business of assorting and bailing waste materials which they collected from various factories was not a tenant factory building within the purview of the Labor Law. Dell'Olio v Mastronardi, 267 A.D. 829, 45 N.Y.S.2d 743, 1944 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5001 (N.Y. App. Div. 1944).

A railroad company is not a "factory," within the meaning of § 2, subd. 9, and § 161, providing for one day of rest in seven, from the mere fact that an employee loaded coal on a tender and watered the only locomotive of the railroad, cleaned the firebox, removed the ashes and wiped dust from the driving rods. People v Middletown & U. R. Co., 8 N.Y.S.2d 193, 169 Misc. 773, 1938 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2174 (N.Y. City Ct. 1938).

A farm is not included within the statutory definition of a factory. Shrader v State, 46 N.Y.S.2d 199, 1944 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1606 (N.Y. Ct. Cl. 1944).

A commercial ice house is a factory within the meaning of the section requiring dangerous machines to be guarded. Rabe v Consolidated Ice Co., 113 F. 905, 1902 U.S. App. LEXIS 4013 (2d Cir. N.Y. 1902).

Under this section a machine for mixing asphalt, and stone for use in highway construction was a "factory." Continental Public Works Co. v Stein, 232 F. 559, 1916 U.S. App. LEXIS 1848 (2d Cir. N.Y. 1916).

"Factory" under this section included an open yard in which sandblasting was done. Pieczonka v Pullman Co., 89 F.2d 353, 1937 U.S. App. LEXIS 3477 (2d Cir. N.Y. 1937).

5. —Manufacturing

There must be some manufacturing in an establishment to bring it within the definition of "factory" as that word is used in this section. People v R. F. Stevens Co., 178 A.D. 306, 165 N.Y.S. 39, 1917 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6440 (N.Y. App. Div.), app. dismissed, 221 N.Y. 622, 117 N.E. 1079, 221 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 622, 1917 N.Y. LEXIS 1484 (N.Y. 1917).

An allegation in a complaint that the premises were used by the defendant for manufacturing is sufficiently established where it appears that they were used to manufacture theatrical costumes for the defendant under the direction of a person who was paid a salary for such work. Ursprung v Winter Garden Co., 183 A.D. 718, 169 N.Y.S. 738, 1918 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7927 (N.Y. App. Div. 1918).

Watch repairing, jewelry designing, and servicing adding machines and typewriters on the premises, all are manufacturing within the meaning of this section, while conduct of a multigraphing business, engraving, and making occasional minor repairs to check-writing machines incidental to selling such machines are not. Caroli v Saxl, 81 N.Y.S.2d 213, 192 Misc. 887, 1948 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2735 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1948).

6. Mercantile establishment

A restaurant is not a mercantile establishment. People ex rel. Hertzberger v John R. Thompson Co., 230 A.D. 75, 243 N.Y.S. 618, 1930 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8549 (N.Y. App. Div.), aff'd, 255 N.Y. 530, 175 N.E. 300, 255 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 530, 1930 N.Y. LEXIS 727 (N.Y. 1930).

Court properly held that residential portion of building from which plaintiff's decedent, window washer, fell, did not constitute "mercantile establishment" within meaning of CLS Labor § 2(11), as that law existed in 1922 when subject premises underwent renovation; thus, rules than applicable to mercantile establishments, including rule requiring provision of safety devices for protection of window cleaners, did not affect premises in question much less give rise to continuing proprietary obligation on which plaintiff would premise his recovery (NYC Admin Code §§ 27-127, 27-128). Aviles v Crystal Mgmt., 253 A.D.2d 607, 677 N.Y.S.2d 330, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9338 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1998), app. denied, 93 N.Y.2d 804, 689 N.Y.S.2d 16, 711 N.E.2d 201, 1999 N.Y. LEXIS 710 (N.Y. 1999).

7. Place of public assembly

A bar and grill was not a public place within the meaning of § 2(12) of the Labor Law, and the respondent building inspector could not limit the occupancy of petitioner's premises and justify this action by citing former § 110 of the Labor Law and appropriate sections of the State Standard Building Code for Places of Public Assembly. Rapaport v Messina, 47 Misc. 2d 394, 262 N.Y.S.2d 815, 1965 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1663 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1965).

A fire district may not lawfully permit the use of its assembly hall for a rally by a political party. 1967 Ops St Compt File #788.

8. Public building

A building consisting of fifty-three apartments is a public building within the meaning of this section. Pollard v Trivia Bldg. Corp., 291 N.Y. 19, 50 N.E.2d 287, 291 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 19, 1943 N.Y. LEXIS 1057 (N.Y. 1943).

Where the facts were conceded, the question of whether a building was a public building became one of law. Vooth v Castroviejo, 133 N.Y.S.2d 287, 206 Misc. 85, 1954 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2174 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1954), aff'd, 285 A.D. 867, 137 N.Y.S.2d 829, 1955 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5877 (N.Y. App. Div. 1955).

Law School's claim for restitution arising from installation of asbestos at its premises was not subject to dismissal on ground that school was private institution and thus failed to meet requirement that abatement of asbestos condition be immediately necessary to satisfy need of "public" decency, health, or safety since CLS Labor § 2(13) defines "public building" as including school, college or university building. Brooklyn Law School v Raybon, Inc., 143 Misc. 2d 237, 540 N.Y.S.2d 404, 1989 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 207 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1989), rev'd, 175 A.D.2d 56, 572 N.Y.S.2d 312, 1991 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9902 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1991).

9. Employer

Where plaintiffs moved to certify a class action, alleging that defendants violated requirements of Labor Law § 196-d and Department of Labor's wage orders relating to tips governed by § 196-d, factual issues relating to whether defendants could be deemed employers of wait staff precluded finding of summary judgment in favor of either party. Cornejo v Eden Palace Inc., 2020 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2317 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 2020).

Since there were no allegations in the complaint from which it could reasonably be inferred that the construction company and its president had any control over the work performed by plaintiffs or the payment of their wages, the company and its president were not plaintiffs' employer within the meaning of the New York Labor Law. Barragan-Aquino v East Port Excavation & Utils. Contrs., Inc., 2014 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 36274 (E.D.N.Y. Mar. 18, 2014).

46. —Summary judgment in favor of general contractor

General contractor was entitled to summary judgment on a claim under this statute by a subcontractor's employee because the evidence established that the alleged dangerous condition arose from the methods of the subcontractor and the general contractor did not exercise supervisory control over the removal of the tree or any aspect of the activities of the subcontractor's employee. Krencik v Oakgrove Constr., Inc., 186 A.D.3d 1006, 129 N.Y.S.3d 567, 2020 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4722 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 2020).

Notes to Unpublished Decisions

1. Employee

Unpublished decision: Plaintiff was an "employee" for purposes of the provisions of N.Y. Lab. Law §§ 2, 190, 651, as he worked for defendants as a project manager's assistant, construction worker, and laborer. Ho v Target Constr. of NY, Corp., 2011 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 33365 (E.D.N.Y. Mar. 28, 2011).

Analysis

1. Factory
2. —Manufacturing
3. Mercantile establishment
4. Place of public assembly
5. Public building

1. Factory

2. —Manufacturing

"Employed at manufacturing" as used in subd. 9 means employed at labor in a workshop, and a building in which rags are sorted and baled is subject to the rules of the industrial board as to fireproof exits. 1928 N.Y. Op. Att'y Gen. No. 113.

A powerhouse for rapid transit lines formerly owned by Interboro Rapid Transit Co. but now owned by New York City and operated by the board of transportation comes within the definition of "factory" in the Labor Law since it no longer is excluded by the exemption relating to public service corporations under the jurisdiction of the public service commission. The Labor Law applies to municipal corporations. 1943 N.Y. Op. Att'y Gen. No. 318.

3. Mercantile establishment

Mercantile establishment means a place where one or more persons are employed in which goods, wares or merchandise are offered for sale. 1926 N.Y. Op. Att'y Gen. No. 108.

A building used to some extent as a storage warehouse which has nevertheless parts thereof which are used as mercantile establishments is, as to such parts, a mercantile establishment. 1928 N.Y. Op. Att'y Gen. No. 188.

4. Place of public assembly

Fire district property may constitute a place of public assembly within subd. 12 of § 2, and thus be subject to this article of the Labor Law. 1962 NY Ops Atty Gen July 13.

The Town Hall of the Town of Allegany, Cattaraugus County, is not a "place of public assembly", as defined in the meaning of Article 17 of the Labor Law. 1966 NY Ops Atty Gen Aug 10.

Use of part of town hall as a commercial theatre at nominal rental is prohibited under the Constitution. 1970 NY Ops Atty Gen Dec 16.

5. Public building

A building of a fraternal order, containing an auditorium, rented to the public for pecuniary gain and also a public garage, is subject to the public safety provisions of the Labor Law and the rules made pursuant thereto. 1927 N.Y. Op. Att'y Gen. No. 324.

A rural community building containing an assembly hall in which one hundred or more persons may assemble, which hall is rented to churches, fraternal organizations, etc., for events at which admission is charged, is maintained for pecuniary gain, although the net proceeds are used solely for public good in maintaining and developing property, and it is therefore subject to the safety provisions of the state standard building code. 1930 N.Y. Op. Att'y Gen. No. 330.

An unused factory is a "public building" if more than one story high. 1945 NY Ops Atty Gen Jul 19.

ARTICLE 2 The Department of Labor

Section
27-a. Safety and health standards for public employees
27-b. Duty of public employers to develop and implement programs to prevent workplace violence
27-c. Duty of public employers to develop operation plans in the event of certain declared public health emergencies.

HISTORY:
Add, L 1921, ch 50.

§ 27-a. Safety and health standards for public employees

1. Definitions. As used in this section:

a. [Eff until enactment of legislation by the state of New Jersey] "Employer" means the state, any political subdivision of the state, a public authority or any other governmental agency or instrumentality thereof.

a. [Eff upon enactment of legislation by the state of New Jersey] "Employer" means the state, any political subdivision of the state, a public authority, a bi-state authority utilizing its own police officers or firefighters or any other governmental agency or instrumentality thereof.

b. "Employees" means persons permitted to work by an employer.

c. "Authorized employee representative" means an employee authorized by the employees or the designated representative of an employee organization recognized or certified to represent the employees pursuant to article fourteen of the civil service law.

d. [Eff until enactment of legislation by the state of New Jersey] "Public employee" means any employee of the state, any political subdivision of the state, a public authority or any other governmental agency or instrumentality.

d. [Eff upon enactment of legislation by the state of New Jersey] "Public employee" means any employee of the state, any political subdivision of the state, a public authority, a bi-state authority utilizing its own police officers or firefighters or any other governmental agency or instrumentality.

e. "System components" means life safety harness, belts, ascending devices, carabiners, descent control devices, rope grab devices and snap-links.

2. Application. A safety or health standard promulgated under the provisions of this section shall apply to every public employee and the commissioner shall have exclusive authority to enforce such standard in accordance with the provisions of this chapter, notwithstanding any other safety or health standard or any other provision in this chapter or in any other general, local or special law or charter. However, this section shall not supersede any inconsistent provision of the education law, as applied to any school building certified by the commissioner of education as being in compliance with such law, and the regulations promulgated pursuant thereto, on the effective date of this section, or as applied to any application for certification which is pending before the effective date of this section.

3. Duties. a. Every employer shall: (1) furnish to each of its employees, employment and a place of employment which are free from recognized hazards that are causing or are likely to cause death or serious physical harm to its employees and which will provide reasonable and adequate protection to the lives, safety or health of its employees; and (2) comply with the safety and health standards promulgated under this section. In applying this paragraph, fundamental distinctions between private and public employment shall be recognized.

b. Every employee shall comply with the safety and health standards and all rules, regulations and orders issued pursuant to this section which are applicable to his own actions and conduct.

c. The state shall promulgate a plan for the development and enforcement of occupational safety and health standards with respect to public employers and employees, in accordance with section eighteen (b) of the United States Occupational Safety and Health Act of 1970 (Public Law 91-596) which provides: "(b) Any State which, at any time, desires to assume responsibility for development and enforcement therein of occupational safety and health standards relating to any occupational safety or health issue with respect to which a Federal standard has been promulgated under section 6 shall submit a State plan for the development of such standards and their enforcement."

4. Safety and health standards. a. The commissioner shall by rule adopt all safety and health standards promulgated under the United States Occupational Safety and Health Act of 1970 (Public Law, 91-596) which are in effect on the effective date of this section, in order to provide reasonable and adequate protection to the lives, safety and health of public employees and shall promulgate and repeal such rules and regulations as may be necessary to conform to the standards established pursuant to such act or pursuant to paragraph b of this subdivision.

b. Notwithstanding the provisions of paragraph a of this subdivision, the commissioner, in consultation with the state occupational safety and health hazard abatement board, shall promulgate rules and regulations recommended to him by such board which establish standards whenever such board finds (i) that no federal standard exists for the particular condition being addressed and that such a standard is necessary for the protection of the public employees at risk, or (ii) a federal standard exists, but conditions in public workplaces in this state require a different standard, and such state standard will be at least as effective in providing safe and healthful places of employment as the federal standard.

c. Except for an employer located in a city with a population of over one million, any employer who employs a firefighter determined to be at risk of entrapment at elevations pursuant to regulations promulgated by the commissioner, shall provide emergency escape systems for use by such firefighter. The commissioner shall by rule identify the codes, standards and recommended practices of the National Fire Protection Associationand other appropriate standards approved by the commissioner as are appropriate to the nature of the risk to which the firefighter shall be exposed and shall, at a minimum, include in such rule language requiring employers to (1) identify whether firefighters employed by them would be exposed to the hazard of entrapment at elevated surfaces; (2) identify those firefighters who would be exposed to the hazard; and (3) determine the appropriate emergency escape systems to address the hazard. Such emergency escape systems shall be adequate to protect the health and safety of the firefighter. The employer shall ensure that the firefighter is instructed in the proper use of the emergency escape systems. As used in this subdivision, the term "entrapment at elevations" shall mean a situation where a fire or other emergency conditions require a firefighter inside a structure to immediately exit the structure but where such conditions make the normal route of exit unusable, thereby requiring the firefighter to exit the structure from an opening that is not designed as an exit and is above the ground floor or at an elevation above the surrounding terrain that would reasonably be expected to cause injury to a firefighter exiting by means of this opening without any emergency escape systems. As used in this subdivision, the term "emergency escape system" shall mean safety ropes and system components and any other system that (1) is compliant with the codes, standards and recommended practices of the National Fire Protection Association or other appropriate standard identified by the commissioner through regulation, as a means of emergency self-rescue from an above grade, immediately hazardous environment, (2) has been certified by a nationally recognized safety testing and certification organization, and (3) the commissioner has recognized through regulation.

In order to ensure the adequacy of the emergency escape systems, the employer must routinely inspect and ensure that:

(1) Existing emergency escape systems meet the codes, standards and recommended practices adopted by the commissioner.

(2) Existing emergency escape systems still perform their function and to identify any of their limitations such as but not limited to:

(i) Checking the labels or stamps on the equipment; and

(ii) Checking any documentation or equipment specifications; and

(iii) Contacting the supplier or the approval agency;

(3) Firefighters are informed of the limitations of emergency escape systems;

(4) Firefighters are not allowed or required to use any emergency escape systems beyond their limitations;

(5) Existing and new emergency escape systems have no visible defects that limit their safe use;

(6) Emergency escape systems are used, cleaned, maintained and stored according to manufacturer's instructions;

(7) The firefighter is instructed in identifying to the employer any defects that the firefighter may find in emergency escape systems; and

(8) Any identified defects are corrected or immediate action is taken by the employer to eliminate the use of this equipment.

d. Any person who may be adversely affected by a standard issued under this section may, within thirty days after the effective date of such standard, commence a proceeding for judicial review pursuant to article seventy-eight of the civil practice law and rules.

5. Inspections. a. Any employee or representative of employees who believes that a violation of a safety or health standard exists, or that an imminent danger exists, may request an inspection by giving notice to the commissioner of such violation or danger. Such notice and request shall be in writing, shall set forth with reasonable particularity the grounds for the notice, shall be signed by such employee or representative of employees, and a copy shall be provided by the commissioner to the employer or the person in charge no later than the time of inspection, except that on the request of the person giving such notice, his name and the names of individual employees or representatives of employees shall be withheld. Such inspections shall be made forthwith.

b. A representative of the employer and an authorized employee representative shall be given the opportunity to accompany the commissioner during an inspection for the purpose of aiding such inspection. Where there is no authorized employee representative, the commissioner shall consult with a reasonable number of employees concerning matters of safety and health in the workplace.

c. The authority of the commissioner to inspect a premises pursuant to such an employee complaint shall not be limited to the alleged violation contained in such complaint. The commissioner may inspect any other area of the premises in which he has reason to believe that a violation of this section exists.

d. No employee who accompanies the commissioner on an inspection shall suffer any reduction in wages.

e. The commissioner may, upon his own initiative, conduct an inspection of any premises occupied by a public employer if he has reason to believe that a violation of this section has occurred or if he has a general administrative plan for the enforcement of this section, including general schedule inspections, which provide a rational administrative basis for such inspecting. Within ninety days of enactment of this paragraph the commissioner shall publish the general administrative plan and shall adopt regulations on the conduct of inspections in locker rooms and other areas involving the personal property and privacy rights of public employees.

f. Any information obtained by the commissioner under this section shall be obtained with a minimum burden upon the employers.

5-a. Notwithstanding any other provisions of law, when a request for an inspection has been made in a situation where there is an allegation of an imminent danger such that an employee would be subjecting himself or herself to serious injury or death because of the hazardous condition in the workplace, the inspection shall be given the highest priority by the department and shall be carried out immediately.

6. Enforcement procedures. a. If the commissioner determines that an employer has violated a provision of this section, or a safety or health standard or regulation promulgated under this section, he or she shall with reasonable promptness issue to the employer an order to comply which shall describe particularly the nature of the violation including a reference to the provision of this section, standard, regulation or order alleged to have been violated, shall fix a reasonable time for compliance and may establish the penalty to be assessed for failure to correct the violation by the time fixed for compliance. An employer who fails to correct a non-serious violation by the time fixed for compliance may be assessed a civil penalty of up to fifty dollars per day until the violation is corrected. An employer who fails to correct a serious violation by the time fixed for compliance may be assessed a civil penalty of up to two hundred dollars per day until the violation is corrected. Pursuant to section 18(k) of the United States Occupational Safety and Health Act of 1970 (Public Law, 91-596), a serious violation shall be deemed to exist in a place of employment if there is a substantial probability that death or serious physical harm could result from a condition which exists, or from one or more practices, means, methods, operations, or processes which have been adopted or are in use, in such place of employment unless the employer did not, and could not with the exercise of reasonable diligence, know of the presence of the violation. A non-serious violation shall be defined as any violation that does not fall under the definition of serious violation. The commissioner shall not assess a penalty against an employer for failure to correct a violation of a standard which is the subject of an application for a temporary order granting a variance or a violation which is the subject of a petition to modify an order to comply, provided however, that upon issuance by the commissioner of a determination denying such variance or petition to modify, or upon expiration of a temporary variance or modified compliance period, the time fixed for compliance shall recommence and the employer become liable for the penalties provided herein.

b. Where the commissioner issues to an employer an order to comply, the employer shall post such order or a copy thereof in a conspicuous place at or near each place of violation cited in the order, where it is clearly visible to affected employees. The commissioner shall make such order available to employee representatives.

c. Any employer, or other party affected by a determination of the industrial commissioner issued pursuant to this section may petition the industrial board of appeals for review of such determination in accordance with section one hundred one of this chapter. Judicial review of the decision of the industrial board of appeals may be obtained by any party affected by such decision by commencing a proceeding pursuant to article seventy-eight of the civil practice law and rules within sixty days after such decision is issued.

d. If the time for compliance with an order of the commissioner issued pursuant to this section has elapsed, and the employer has not complied with the provisions of the order, the commissioner shall seek judicial enforcement of such order by commencing a proceeding pursuant to article seventy-eight of the civil practice law and rules. Where an employer has complied with an order in all respects other than the payment of a penalty imposed pursuant to this subdivision, the commissioner may file with the county clerk of the county where the employer has its place of business the order of the commissioner continuing the amount of civil penalty found to be due. The filing of such order shall have the full force and effect of a judgment duly docketed in the office of such clerk. The order or decision may be enforced by and in the same manner, and with like effect, as that prescribed by the civil practice law and rules for the enforcement of a money judgment.

6-a. Form of complaints. The department shall establish a dedicated webpage and hotline through which any public employee under the jurisdiction of this section or contractor as defined by the chapter which added this subdivision may report alleged or believed violations of any state law, regulation, rule or guidance related to occupational health and safety involving a communicable disease, including but not limited to the novel coronavirus COVID-19. Such webpage and hotline shall allow individuals to report alleged or believed violations anonymously.

7. Injunction proceedings. a. The supreme court of the state shall have jurisdiction, upon petition of the industrial commissioner, pursuant to the civil practice law and rules to restrain any conditions or practices in any place of public employment which are such that a danger exists which could reasonably be expected to cause death or serious physical harm immediately or before the imminence of such danger can be eliminated through the abatement procedures otherwise provided for by this section. Such proceeding shall be brought in the county in which the violation is alleged to exist. Any order issued under this section may require such steps to be taken as may be necessary to avoid, correct or remove such imminent danger and prohibit the employment or presence of any individual in locations or under conditions where such imminent danger exists, except individuals whose presence is necessary to avoid, correct, or remove such imminent danger or to maintain the capacity of a continuous process operation to resume normal operations without a complete cessation of operations, or where a cessation of operations is necessary, to permit such to be accomplished in a safe and orderly manner. The employer may contest such order pursuant to the civil practice law and rules.

b. Whenever and as soon as an inspector concludes that conditions or practices described in paragraph a of this subdivision exist in any place of public employment, he shall inform the affected employees and employers of the danger and that he is recommending to the industrial commissioner that relief be sought.

c. If the industrial commissioner fails to seek relief under this section within forty-eight hours of being notified of such condition, any employee who may be injured by reason of such failure, or the authorized employee representative of such employees, may seek injunctive relief as provided in paragraph a of this subdivision.

8. Variances. a. Any employer may apply to the commissioner for a temporary order granting a variance from a standard or any provision thereof promulgated under this section. Such temporary order shall be granted only if the employer files an application which meets the requirements of paragraph b of this subdivision and establishes that (1) he is unable to comply with a standard by its effective date because of unavailability of professional or technical personnel or of materials and equipment needed to come into compliance with the standard or because necessary construction or alteration of facilities cannot be completed by the effective date, (2) he is taking all available steps to safeguard employees against the hazards covered by the standard, and (3) he has an effective program for coming into compliance with the standard as quickly as practicable. Any temporary order issued under this subdivision shall prescribe the practices, means, methods, operations and processes which the employer must adopt and use while the order is in effect and state in detail his program for coming into compliance with the standard. Such a temporary order may be granted only after notice to employees and an opportunity for a hearing, provided the commissioner may issue one interim order to be effective until a decision is made on the basis of the hearing. No temporary order may be in effect for longer than the period needed by the employer to achieve compliance with the standard or one year, whichever is shorter, except that such an order may be renewed not more than twice so long as the requirements of this subdivision are met and if an application for renewal is filed at least ninety days prior to the expiration date of the order. No interim renewal of an order may remain in effect longer than one hundred and eighty days.

b. An application for a temporary variance order shall contain: (1) a specification of the standard or portion thereof from which the employer or owner seeks a variance; (2) a representation by the employer, supported by representations from qualified persons who have firsthand knowledge of the facts represented, that he is unable to comply with the standard or portion thereof and a detailed statement of the reasons therefor; (3) a statement of the steps he has taken and will take, with specific dates, to protect employees against the hazard covered by the standard; (4) a statement of when he expects to be able to comply with the standard and what steps he has taken and what steps he will take, with dates specified, to come into compliance with the standard; and (5) a certification that he has informed his employees of the application by giving a copy thereof to their authorized representative, posting a statement giving a summary of the application and specifying where a copy may be examined at the place or places where notices to employees are normally posted, and by other appropriate means. A description of how employees have been informed shall be contained in the certification. The information to employees shall also inform them of their right to petition the commissioner for a hearing. The commissioner is also authorized to grant a variance from any standard or portion thereof whenever he determines that such variance is necessary to permit an employer to participate in an experiment approved by him designed to demonstrate or validate new and improved techniques to safeguard the health or safety of workers.

c. Any affected employer may apply to the commissioner for a rule or order for a variance from a standard promulgated under this section. Affected employees shall be given notice of each such application and an opportunity to participate in a hearing. The commissioner shall issue such rule or order if he determines on the record, after opportunity for an inspection where appropriate and a hearing, that the proponent of the variance has demonstrated by a preponderance of the evidence that the conditions, practices, means, methods, operations or processes used or proposed to be used by an employer will provide employment and places of employment which are as safe and healthful as those which would prevail if he complied with the standard. The rule or order so issued shall prescribe the conditions the employer must maintain, and the practices, means, methods, operations and processes which he must adopt and utilize to the extent they differ from the standard in question. Such a rule or order may be modified or revoked upon application by an employer, any employee or employee representative, or by the commissioner on his own motion, in the manner prescribed for its issuance under this subdivision at any time after six months from its issuance.

d. Any person, who may be adversely affected by a rule or order issued under this subdivision may challenge the validity or applicability of such rule or order by commencing, within sixty days, a proceeding pursuant to article seventy-eight of the civil practice law and rules.

9. Recordkeeping. a. In accordance with the commissioner's regulations, each employer shall make, keep and preserve, and make available to the commissioner such records regarding his activities relating to this section as the commissioner deems necessary or appropriate for developing information regarding the causes and prevention of occupational accidents and illness. Such regulations may include provisions requiring employers to conduct periodic inspections. The commissioner shall also issue regulations requiring that employers, through posting of notices, training or other appropriate means, keep their employees informed of their protections.

b. The commissioner shall prescribe regulations requiring employers to maintain accurate records and to make public periodic reports of work-related deaths, and injuries and illnesses other than minor injuries requiring only first aid treatment and which do not involve lost time from work, medical treatment, loss of consciousness, restriction of work or motion or transfer to another job.

c. The commissioner shall issue regulations requiring employers to maintain accurate records of employee exposures to potentially toxic materials or harmful physical agents which the regulation requires to be monitored or measured. Such regulations shall provide employees or their representatives with an opportunity to observe such monitoring or measuring and have access to the records thereof. Such regulations shall also make appropriate provisions for each employee or former employee to have access to such records as will indicate his own exposure to toxic materials or harmful physical agents. Each employer shall promptly notify any employee who has been or is being exposed to toxic materials or harmful physical agents in concentrations or at levels which exceed those prescribed by any safety and health standard promulgated under this section, and shall inform any employee who is being exposed of the corrective action being taken and the time limit for correction.

10. Discrimination against employees. a. No person shall discharge, or otherwise discipline, or in any manner discriminate against any employee because such employee has filed any complaint or instituted or caused to be instituted any proceeding under or related to this section or has testified or is about to testify in any such proceeding, or because of the exercise by such employee on behalf of himself or others of any right afforded by this section.

b. Any employee who believes that he has been discharged, disciplined, or otherwise discriminated against by any person in violation of this subdivision may, within thirty days after such violation occurs, file a complaint with the commissioner alleging such discrimination. Upon receipt of such complaint, the commissioner shall cause such investigation to be made as he deems appropriate, and shall, if requested withhold the name of the complainant from the employer. If upon such investigation, the commissioner determines that the provisions of this subdivision have been violated, he shall request the attorney general to bring an action in the supreme court against the person or persons alleged to have violated the provisions of this subdivision. In any such action the supreme court shall have jurisdiction, for cause shown, to restrain violations of this subdivision and order all appropriate relief, including rehiring or reinstatement of the employee to his former position with all back pay.

c. Within ninety days of this receipt of a complaint filed under this subdivision the commissioner shall notify the complainant and his representative by registered mail of his determination.

d. Nothing in this subdivision shall be deemed to diminish the rights of any employee under any law, rule or regulation or under any collective bargaining agreement.

11. Wherever notice is required to be given to an authorized employee representative under this section, notice shall be given to all organizations representing employees at the worksite in question. Notice should be given to the office of the employee representative as well as to the representative at the worksite. Representatives who wish this dual notice must inform the department of the person who is to be notified. Such notice shall be in writing unless the inspection is being conducted under subdivision five-a of this section.

12. The commissioner may initiate voluntary compliance programs, including, but not limited to, a public employee consultation program to provide on-site consultation to public employers desiring such services as an adjunct to the commissioner's inspections pursuant to this section. Whenever an on-site consultation is performed under this subdivision, a report shall be issued of any findings of noncompliance with the regulations promulgated under this section and the report shall be made public.

13. Regulations. The commissioner may promulgate such procedural regulations as he shall consider necessary and proper to effectuate the purposes and provisions of this section.

14. A commission to report on the operation and effect of this section is hereby established. a. Such commission shall examine the incidence of work related injuries, the incidence of injuries to the public, and the effect of this section upon insurance costs of public employers. Such commission shall be empowered to recommend additional or corrective legislation to advance the purposes of this section.

b. Such commission shall be composed of three members, one of whom shall be chosen by the speaker of the assembly, one of whom shall be chosen by the temporary president of the senate, and one of whom shall be chosen by the governor.

c. Members of the commission shall serve without compensation, except for expenses reasonably incurred in the discharge of their duties under this subdivision.

d. The commission shall issue an interim report to the legislature and the governor, which report shall be issued one year after the effective date of this section. A final report shall be issued two years after such effective date.

15. New York state occupational safety and health hazard abatement board; creation and procedure. a. The New York state occupational safety and health hazard abatement board is hereby created to have and exercise the powers, duties and prerogatives provided by the provisions of this subdivision.

b. The membership of the board shall consist of five persons appointed by the governor of whom one shall be upon the recommendation of the temporary president of the senate, one upon the recommendation of the speaker of the assembly, and one upon the recommendation of the state comptroller. Members shall serve at the pleasure of the governor, and the governor may replace any member in accordance with the provisions contained herein for the appointment of members.

The governor shall designate one of the members to serve as chairman. The board shall act by a majority vote of its members, and a quorum to conduct business shall consist of three members. Any determination of the board shall be evidenced by a certification thereof executed by all the members present and voting. Each member of the board shall be entitled to designate a representative to attend meetings of the board in his place, and to vote or otherwise act on his behalf in his absence. Such representative shall not be authorized to delegate any of his duties or functions to any other person. Notice of such designation shall be furnished in writing to the board by the designating member. A representative shall serve at the pleasure of the designating member during the member's term of office.

c. No elected public officer or public employee shall be eligible for appointment as a member of the board.

d. The members of the board and their representatives shall serve without salary or per diem allowance but shall be entitled to reimbursement for actual and necessary expenses incurred in the performance of their official duties pursuant to this section, provided however that such members and representatives are not, at the time such expenses are incurred, public employees or public officers otherwise entitled to such reimbursement.

e. The board shall meet at least four times a year with at least one meeting in each calendar quarter. The chairman shall designate the days of meeting, and shall provide each member with at least three weeks written notice of the date of such meeting.

f. Staff services for the board shall be performed insofar as practicable, by personnel of the department of labor. Additional professional and technical services may be secured from other state departments or agencies, with the consent of the head of such department or agency.

16. New York state occupational safety and health hazard abatement board; powers and duties.

(A) a. The board created pursuant to subdivision fifteen of this section shall have the power, and it shall be its duty to receive, review and act upon applications for funding of capital projects designed to abate occupational safety and health hazards which have been found by the commissioner to violate the provisions of this section or which have been identified in a report of the public employee consultation program. The board shall fund seventy-five percent of the cost of any capital abatement project necessary to comply with an order issued by the commissioner pursuant to the provisions of this section or with a recommendation for hazard abatement issued by the public employee consultation program.

b. In determining the order in which applicants shall receive grants from the fund, and the amount of such funding, the board shall consider the following factors:

(1) the degree of possible physical harm which the hazard to be abated could inflict on the public employees and other citizens at risk;

(2) the imminent nature of the possible infliction of harm;

(3) the number of public employees and other citizens at risk;

(B) a. The board shall have the power, and it shall be its duty to receive, review, and act upon applications for funding for programs designed to provide occupational safety and health training and education for employees pursuant to the provisions of article twenty-nine of this chapter.

b. The board shall, by the promulgation of rules and regulations, establish procedures and criteria that are necessary and appropriate to carry out the provisions of article twenty-nine of this chapter, which shall include criteria for the evaluation and selection of applications for grants and the auditing of performance thereunder.

(C) a. The board may require as part of such applications made pursuant to the provisions of this subdivision such information as it deems necessary and shall act upon such applications within a reasonable time. The board shall furnish the state budget director, state industrial commissioner, state comptroller, temporary president of the senate and speaker of the assembly with a copy of each application within three days following receipt thereof by the board.

b. That a employer has applied for funds pursuant to the provisions of this subdivision shall not relieve that employer of the obligation to correct any violation of this section by variance or other means.

(D) a. The board, in the formulation of standards pursuant to paragraph b of subdivision four of this section, shall have the power to conduct public hearings, administer oaths and take sworn or unsworn testimony at such hearings. The board may, by subpoena issued by the chair, compel the attendance of witnesses and the production of all books, records and other evidence relative to any matter under inquiry in the formulation of such standards.

b. The board may contract with occupational health professionals and industrial safety engineers to provide expert assistance in the formulation of standards pursuant to paragraph b of subdivision four of this section.

c. The board is authorized, after public hearings, to recommend standards to the commissioner. The board, in addition to acting on its own initiative, shall review, consider and make recommendations regarding requests for new standards presented to such board by public employers, employees or authorized employee representatives.

1. In general

Evidence supported finding by Industrial Board of Appeals that New York City Transit Authority violated regulation requiring it to maintain written hazard communication program, including list of hazardous chemicals known to be present, where Authority had developed computerized chemical inventory system, but did not have written list of hazardous chemicals available at particular facilities. New York City Transit Auth. v New York State DOL, 88 N.Y.2d 225, 644 N.Y.S.2d 463, 666 N.E.2d 1336, 1996 N.Y. LEXIS 310 (N.Y. 1996).

In an Article 78 proceeding seeking to prevent the scheduled closing of a correctional facility petitioner's motion for a preliminary injunction would be denied, since it is not within the scope of judicial power to question the wisdom of the administrative decision to close a correctional facility as part of an overall capital expansion plan and petitioner's efforts to enforce a generalized statutory right to safe working conditions is pursuant to Labor Law § 27-a would require the judiciary to involve itself in decision-making process of the executive branch; the commissioner was acting within his jurisdiction whether by virtue of the authority granted to him by the Correction Law or at the behest of the Governor and the remedy of prohibition would not lie. Additionally, the remedy of mandamus would not be available in the continued operation of the facility was not a purely ministerial act. New York State Inspection, etc., Dist. Council 82, etc. v Cuomo, 103 A.D.2d 312, 480 N.Y.S.2d 1, 1984 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 19280 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't), app. denied, 63 N.Y.2d 895, 483 N.Y.S.2d 210, 472 N.E.2d 1038, 1984 N.Y. LEXIS 4695 (N.Y. 1984), app. denied, 63 N.Y.2d 607, 1984 N.Y. LEXIS 5428 (N.Y. 1984), aff'd, 64 N.Y.2d 233, 485 N.Y.S.2d 719, 475 N.E.2d 90, 1984 N.Y. LEXIS 4858 (N.Y. 1984).

The State Industrial Board of Appeals properly revoked a decision of the Commissioner of Labor holding that the absence or nonfunctioning of automatic tear gas dispensing systems in certain correctional facilities did not constitute a violation of Labor Law § 27-a, pursuant to which public employees have the right to work in an environment as free from hazards and risks to their safety as is practicable. However, the Board also properly acknowledged that whether to include such a system as part of a correctional facility was a policy decision for the Department of Correctional Services, and properly refused to require the installation of such systems in those facilities in which a system had not previously been installed. Although there was evidence that members of petitioner union, representing corrections officers, had relied on the systems, and that the nonfunctioning of the systems might have contributed to injuries being suffered by petitioner's members in at least one disturbance, the evidence also showed that, when automatic systems were not in place, a manual tear gas dispensing system was sufficient to provide for the safety of petitioner's members. New York State Inspection, Security & Law Enforcement Emples., Dist. Council 82 v New York State Industrial Bd. of Appeals, 103 A.D.2d 489, 481 N.Y.S.2d 884, 1984 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 19965 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1984).

Court improperly granted preliminary injunction prohibiting New York City Transit Authority from deploying transit police officers at 2 of its facilities on ground that dangerous conditions existed in violation of right to safe workplace under CLS Labor § 27-a, since matter involved political question beyond scope of judicial review and plaintiffs did not demonstrate that specific conditions, ranging in severity from lack of emergency exits to insufficient locker space, were "extraordinary or emergency circumstances" warranting judicial intervention. McKechnie v New York City Transit Police Dep't of New York City Transit Authority, 130 A.D.2d 466, 515 N.Y.S.2d 48, 1987 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 46437 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1987).

Evidence supported Industrial Board of Appeals' decision to eliminate entire penalty imposed on village for failure to abate violations of Public Employee Safety and Health Act (CLS Labor § 27-a) where Commissioner of Labor did not directly notify principal elected official of village of violations and penalty assessments, and first official written notice of penalty assessment was not issued until 14 months after notice to comply was mailed, despite requirement that civil penalty bills be sent out quarterly. Hudacs v Village of Watkins Glen, 208 A.D.2d 181, 622 N.Y.S.2d 384, 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1389 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1995).

Restriction in CLS Labor § 27-a of right to attend workplace inspections to persons who are otherwise entitled to be present at workplace does not violate equal protection clauses of federal and state constitutions; such restriction is rationally related to legitimate governmental objective of limiting potential for disruption of workplace by intrusion of outsiders. Stone v Sweeney, 266 A.D.2d 103, 698 N.Y.S.2d 645, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11656 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1999), app. denied, 94 N.Y.2d 761, 707 N.Y.S.2d 142, 728 N.E.2d 338, 2000 N.Y. LEXIS 233 (N.Y. 2000).

In action against employer for exposure of employees to dangerous substances, charge to jury on issue of whether employer violated 29 USCS §§ 651 et seq. and CLS Labor § 27-a was inadequate where plaintiffs alleged that they had been exposed to harmful substances in their work place from start of their employment in 1970s and early 1980s, and thus jury should have been instructed as to date on which allegedly violated regulations became binding on employer. Aguirre v Long Island R.R. Co., 286 A.D.2d 658, 730 N.Y.S.2d 122, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8549 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2001).

New York City Economic Development Corporation (EDC) was not the firefighter's employer, and thus, the statute was inapplicable to that defendant; the firefighter failed to establish, prima facie, that EDC created the allegedly defective condition or had actual or constructive notice of the condition. Shea v New York City Economic Dev. Corp., 161 A.D.3d 803, 76 N.Y.S.3d 564, 2018 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3098 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2018).

School districts had standing to bring an Article 78 proceeding seeking to review various acts performed by the Department of Labor in connection with the enactment of the State Occupational Safety and Health Act, specifically, challenging the promulgation of 12(c) NYCRR part 800, challenging the denial of a Freedom of Information Law request to examine a set of the Occupational Safety and Health Standards for public employees, and also challenging the promulgation of the record-keeping requirement pursuant to such rules and regulations without prior resort to a rule-making proceeding. The school districts' contention that 12(c) NYCRR part 800 is invalid was without merit, the Industrial Commissioner having been specifically directed by Labor Law § 27-a(4)(a) to adopt all federal safety and health standards rather than only those found, in his discretion, to be applicable to the public sector. However, the Industrial Commissioner, in adopting the federal OSHA standards improperly did so by incorporating them by reference rather than by setting them forth fully in the official compilation of the State rules and regulations. The school districts' third cause of action, relating to the promulgation of record-keeping requirements without initially undertaking a rule-making proceeding, was not ripe for determination since a proceeding had subsequently been commenced. New York State Coalition of Public Employers v New York State Dep't of Labor, 110 Misc. 2d 215, 441 N.Y.S.2d 878, 1981 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3067 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1981), modified, 89 A.D.2d 283, 456 N.Y.S.2d 465, 1982 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 18376 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1982).

Under mandatory access provisions of Public Employee Safety and Health (PESH) Act, petitioners were entitled to review entire logs and summaries of all recordable occupational injuries and illnesses in all 17 offices of Department of Labor and, absent showing that unwarranted invasion of personal privacy would result if identity of employees were disclosed, respondents' decision to redact certain identifying information from Occupational Injury Logs constituted erroneous interpretation of law, lacked reasonable basis, and would be annulled. Goldstein v State, 188 Misc. 2d 524, 728 N.Y.S.2d 891, 2001 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 203 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 2001).

There is no conflict between the New York General Duty Clause, N.Y. Lab. Law § 27-a(3), and the New York Workplace Violence Protection Act (WVPA), N.Y. Lab. Law § 27-b. The General Duty Clause includes provisions regarding workplace safety in general, whereas the WVPA addresses the specific issue of workplace violence. Matter of City of New York v Commissioner of Labor, 917 N.Y.S.2d 834, 31 Misc. 3d 398, 2011 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 307 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 2011), aff'd, 100 A.D.3d 519, 954 N.Y.S.2d 72, 2012 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7822 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2012).

Labor Law § 27-a(3)(a)(1), requiring employers to furnish their employees with safe places to work, encompasses physical and environmental hazards in the workplace, not the use to which a room is put. Williams v City of New York, 304 A.D.2d 562, 758 N.Y.S.2d 349, 2003 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3735 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2003), aff'd, 2 N.Y.3d 352, 779 N.Y.S.2d 449, 811 N.E.2d 1103, 2004 N.Y. LEXIS 1027 (N.Y. 2004).

2. Who is "employee"

Volunteer firefighters are included in definition of "employees" contained in Public Employee Safety and Health Act (CLS Labor § 27-a(1)(b)). Hartnett v Ballston Spa, 152 A.D.2d 83, 547 N.Y.S.2d 902, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13870 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1989), app. dismissed, 75 N.Y.2d 863, 552 N.Y.S.2d 919, 552 N.E.2d 167, 1990 N.Y. LEXIS 282 (N.Y. 1990), app. denied, 75 N.Y.2d 711, 557 N.Y.S.2d 309, 556 N.E.2d 1116, 1990 N.Y. LEXIS 1041 (N.Y. 1990).

Industrial Board of Appeals had rational basis to conclude that service of notice and order on village fire chief did not comply with service requirements of Public Employee Safety and Health Act (CLS Labor § 27-a) because fire chief was mere "employee" and there was no assurance that he would notify village officials, whereas direct notice to principal elected official of village would assure notification to accountable village officer who could enforce compliance; Labor Commissioner failed to prove that grant of authority to fire chief under CLS Vill § 10-1018 was broad enough to authorize fire chief to act on behalf of village, and that actual notice to fire chief constituted constructive notice to village. Hudacs v Village of Watkins Glen, 208 A.D.2d 181, 622 N.Y.S.2d 384, 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1389 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1995).

Employer's alleged violations of OSHA and its regulations and this statute did not constitute negligence per se; neither the child nor his mother during her pregnancy belonged to the class intended to be protected by OSHA or its implementing regulations or this statute because neither the child nor his mother during the pregnancy were employees. Campanelli v Long Is. Light. Co., 164 A.D.3d 1416, 84 N.Y.S.3d 531, 2018 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6244 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2018).

3. Rules and regulations

Penalty-assessment guidelines in Labor Department's Field Operations Manual, applying to violations of Public Employee Safety and Health Act, did not constitute rule or regulation required by CLS NY Const Art IV § 8 and CLS St Adm P Act § 102(2)(b)(i) to be filed with Secretary of State and published in State Register, since guidelines did not establish rigid, numerical policy, but encompassed both fixed and variable factors to be considered on case-by-case analysis, with ultimate amount of penalty dependent on inspectors' independent exercise of their professional judgment. New York City Transit Auth. v New York State DOL, 88 N.Y.2d 225, 644 N.Y.S.2d 463, 666 N.E.2d 1336, 1996 N.Y. LEXIS 310 (N.Y. 1996).

Penalty-assessment guidelines in Labor Department's Field Operations Manual, applying to violations of Public Employee Safety and Health Act, did not constitute rule or regulation required by CLS NY Const Art IV § 8 and CLS St Adm P Act § 102(2)(b)(i) to be filed with Secretary of State and published in State Register, since CLS Labor § 27-a(6) authorizes imposition of penalties for violations of Act or standards promulgated thereunder, but does not mandate promulgation of regulations regarding penalties to be imposed, permitting Labor Department to opt in favor of imposition of penalties on case-by-case basis. New York City Transit Auth. v New York State DOL, 88 N.Y.2d 225, 644 N.Y.S.2d 463, 666 N.E.2d 1336, 1996 N.Y. LEXIS 310 (N.Y. 1996).

The Industrial Commissioner of the Department of Labor, acting under the mandate of Labor Law § 27-a that the Commissioner "adopt all safety and health standards promulgated under the United States Occupational Safety and Health Act of 1970 (OSHA) in order to provide reasonable and adequate protection to the lives, safety and health of public employees," validly adopted all OSHA standards although many of the standards did not apply to public employees and could have been redacted; however, to the extent that the standards were incorporated by reference in the regulations, they were improperly adopted in violation of the New York Constitution Art IV, § 8, which requires that the text of such departmental regulations be filed and published. New York State Coalition of Public Employers v New York State Dep't of Labor, 89 A.D.2d 283, 456 N.Y.S.2d 465, 1982 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 18376 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1982), aff'd, 60 N.Y.2d 789, 469 N.Y.S.2d 679, 457 N.E.2d 785, 1983 N.Y. LEXIS 3478 (N.Y. 1983).

Plaintiffs may not use a violation of the New York City Police Patrol Guide as a predicate to establish a violation of N.Y. Lab. Law § 27-a(3) and then use that § 27-a(3) violation as a predicate for a N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 205-e claim. Forster v City of

New York, 309 A.D.2d 578, 765 N.Y.S.2d 598, 2003 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10579 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2003), app. denied, 1 N.Y.3d 583, 776 N.Y.S.2d 213, 808 N.E.2d 348, 2004 N.Y. LEXIS 35 (N.Y. 2004).

Police department training lessons and videos, which are not part of a duly enacted body of law or regulations imposing clear legal duties, fail to provide a predicate for alleging a N.Y. Lab. Law § 27-a(3) violation as a ground for N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 205-e liability. Forster v City of New York, 309 A.D.2d 578, 765 N.Y.S.2d 598, 2003 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10579 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2003), app. denied, 1 N.Y.3d 583, 776 N.Y.S.2d 213, 808 N.E.2d 348, 2004 N.Y. LEXIS 35 (N.Y. 2004).

State commissioner of labor was not required under N.Y. Lab. Law § 27-a(4)(B) to promulgate all regulations recommended by the state occupational safety and health board but was required to do so after "consultation with" the board and only after the board had made recommendations consistent with statutory directives, including a showing of necessity; the commissioner properly identified her specific concerns about the board's proposal regarding a safety standard recommended in 2004 and returned it for further consideration and the required statutory findings. Matter of Toussaint v Angello, 38 A.D.3d 298, 832 N.Y.S.2d 503, 2007 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2778 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2007).

City department of juvenile justice argued that New York Industrial Board of Appeals improperly issued it a notice of violation (NOV) under N.Y. Lab. Law § 27-a(3) instead of the New York Workplace Violence Protection Act (WVPA), N.Y. Lab. Law § 27-b. This claim failed because at the time the NOV was issued, no regulations implementing the WVPA had been adopted. Matter of City of New York v Commissioner of Labor, 917 N.Y.S.2d 834, 31 Misc. 3d 398, 2011 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 307 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 2011), aff'd, 100 A.D.3d 519, 954 N.Y.S.2d 72, 2012 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7822 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2012).

City was not entitled to administrative relief because the Commissioner of Labor had authority to adopt regulations and issue citations to enforce the Workplace Violence Prevention Act via the Public Employee Safety and Health Act to fill in the interstices in the legislative product and the requirements for employee participation did not constitute employee veto or control over workplace evaluations or prevention programs, left room for collective bargaining, and did not violate the Taylor Law. Matter of City of New York v Commissioner of Labor, 991 N.Y.S.2d 832, 44 Misc. 3d 612, 2014 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2605 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 2014).

4. Representation of employees

Refusal of State Department of Labor (DOL) to allow National Employment Law Project, Inc., as chosen representative of public assistance workers in Work Experience Program (WEP) under CLS Soc Serv § 336-c, to be present for all phases of DOL's processing of workers' complaints of safety and health violations under CLS Labor § 27-a, made applicable to WEP workers by CLS Soc Serv § 330(5), was not arbitrary where it was consistent with express terms of CLS Labor § 27-a(5)(b), which provides that employees shall be represented on such inspections by "authorized employee representative," defined in CLS Labor § 27-a(1)(c) to mean only employees and union representatives. Stone v Sweeney, 266 A.D.2d 103, 698 N.Y.S.2d 645, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11656 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1999), app. denied, 94 N.Y.2d 761, 707 N.Y.S.2d 142, 728 N.E.2d 338, 2000 N.Y. LEXIS 233 (N.Y. 2000).

Trial court erred in enjoining the lay off of two employees, even though all staffing reductions that affected the working conditions of employees represented by the union were not beyond judicial review since N.Y. Lab. Law § 27-a(7)(c) established automatic standing for unions to enjoin working conditions that were hazardous, or presented an imminent danger, if the New York Industrial Commissioner failed to seek relief; the union did not show that a danger existed that could reasonably be expected to cause death or serious physical harm immediately or before the imminence of such danger could be eliminated through the abatement procedures with respect to the two employees. Matter of Civil Serv. Empls. Assn., Inc., Local 1000, AFSCME, AFL-CIO v County of Erie, 43 A.D.3d 1341, 843 N.Y.S.2d 203, 2007 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10240 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 2007).

5. Private action for violation

Court should have dismissed proposed class action brought by plaintiffs, public-assistance recipients assigned under New York City's Work Experience Program (WEP) to clean streets and remove debris in WEP assignments under supervision of City's Departments of Transportation and Sanitation, claiming that their assignments violated United States Occupational Safety and Health Administration standards, where plaintiffs did not dispute that they had not availed themselves of administrative procedures set forth in Labor Law to raise such claims. Capers v Giuliani, 253 A.D.2d 630, 677 N.Y.S.2d 353, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9331 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1998).

State employee did not have a private right of action against the State of New York, pursuant to N.Y. Lab. Law §§ 27-a or 200, on her claim that her rights under state and federal health and safety statutes and regulations were violated, and trial court dismissed that claim and claims that the employee was subjected to unfair labor practices because the employee complained about a co-worker's hygiene. Shaw v Baldowski, 192 Misc. 2d 635, 747 N.Y.S.2d 136, 2002 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 835 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 2002).

6. —Time limits

Action under Public Employee Safety and Health Act (CLS Labor § 27-a) is manifestly one to recover on liability created by statute, to which 3-year statute of limitations under CLS CPLR § 214(2) applies. Hartnett v New York City Transit Auth., 86 N.Y.2d 438, 633 N.Y.S.2d 758, 657 N.E.2d 773, 1995 N.Y. LEXIS 3564 (N.Y. 1995).

Thirty-day time period of CLS Labor § 27-a(10)(b) for filing discrimination complaint with Commissioner of Labor is waivable by Commissioner; however, commissioner's discretion to decide which late filings he or she will decline to accept for investigation is not unrestrained, and commissioner's actions remain subject to judicial scrutiny for arbitrary and abusive exercise of discretion. Hartnett v New York City Transit Auth., 86 N.Y.2d 438, 633 N.Y.S.2d 758, 657 N.E.2d 773, 1995 N.Y. LEXIS 3564 (N.Y. 1995).

7. —Relationship to General Municipal Law § 205-e

City was entitled to summary judgment dismissing complaint by city employee who alleged that, after recuperating from unrelated injury, he was returned to duty in inappropriate work assignment where he was attacked by prisoner and injured because, assuming arguendo that violation of CLS Labor § 27-a(3) could constitute valid predicate for cause of action under CLS Gen Mun § 205-e, such claim was not within ambit of § 27-a(3). Sciangula v City of New York, 250 A.D.2d 833, 673 N.Y.S.2d 454, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6000 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1998).

Alleged violation of CLS Labor § 27-a, which imposes legal duty on public employers to provide safe workplace for their employees, was sufficient predicate for CLS Gen Mun § 205-e claim asserted by police officer who was injured when motor vehicle collision caused his knee to come into contact with sharp protruding edge of unpadded computer console mounted off floor between driver and front passenger seats in his radio motor patrol car, which was responding to emergency call; court properly denied city's motion for summary judgment, as issue of fact existed whether unpadded computer console was "recognized hazard" within meaning of § 27-a, where city possessed all factual information regarding computer console and failed to disclose it. Balsamo v City of New York, 287 A.D.2d 22, 733 N.Y.S.2d 431, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11029 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2001).

Denial of city's cross motion for summary judgment dismissing police officer's cause of action to recover damages for injuries resulting from traffic accident pursuant to N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 205-e based on a violation of N.Y. Lab. Law § 27-a was affirmed, where trial court properly determined that an issue of fact existed as to whether the unpadded computer console was a "recognized hazard" within the meaning of N.Y. Lab. Law § 27-a, as the city possessed all of the factual information regarding the computer console and failed to disclose it. Balsamo v City of New York, 287 A.D.2d 22, 733 N.Y.S.2d 431, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11029 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2001).

N.Y. Lab. Law § 27-a is applicable to the uniformed services and the safety or protective equipment provided to them; therefore, inasmuch as § 27-a imposes a clear legal duty on public employers to provide a safe workplace for their employees, and an expansive interpretation is consistent with the over-all goal of N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 205-e, a violation of N.Y. Lab. Law § 27-a may constitute a sufficient predicate for a claim pursuant to N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 205-e which is based on an allegation of a workplace safety violation. Balsamo v City of New York, 287 A.D.2d 22, 733 N.Y.S.2d 431, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11029 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2001).

Jury verdict entered in favor of the police officer for injuries was affirmed because the police officer had provided sufficient evidence for a rational jury to conclude that the city had violated N.Y. Lab. Law § 27-a when it gave the officer a horse to ride that presented a recognized hazard. The officer's commanding officer knew of at least three prior incidents when the horse had acted in an unprovoked manner, causing injuries to the rider. Campbell v City of New York, 31 A.D.3d 594, 819 N.Y.S.2d 294, 2006 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9389 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2006).

Although a police officer's action for common-law negligence was denied based on the firefighter's rule, there was a triable issue of fact as to the city's actual or constructive notice of the alleged sidewalk defect under N.Y. Lab. Law § 27-a(3)(a)(1); consequently, the city's motion for summary judgment in officer's cause of action under N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 205-e was denied. Marsillo v City of New York, 844 N.Y.S.2d 673, 17 Misc. 3d 612, 2007 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 6540 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 2007).

In a wrongful death action filed against a city under N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 205-e, a locker room where an inmate stole a gun with which he killed two police officers was not an unsafe place of employment within the meaning of N.Y. Labor Law § 27-a(3)(a)(1); the alleged hazard was not the locker room's physical condition but the practice of holding prisoners in close proximity to lockers where firearms were kept. Williams v City of New York, 304 A.D.2d 562, 758 N.Y.S.2d 349, 2003 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3735 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2003), aff'd, 2 N.Y.3d 352, 779 N.Y.S.2d 449, 811 N.E.2d 1103, 2004 N.Y. LEXIS 1027 (N.Y. 2004).

City was not liable in a wrongful death action filed under N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 205-e by survivors of two police officers who were shot by an inmate who stole a gun from a locker while he was being detained in a detective squad locker room; the hazard presented by the necessity to transport and detain prisoners was sufficiently and properly diminished by the city so as to fulfill its duty to the officers under N.Y. Labor Law § 27-a(3). Williams v City of New York, 304 A.D.2d 562, 758 N.Y.S.2d 349, 2003 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3735 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2003), aff'd, 2 N.Y.3d 352, 779 N.Y.S.2d 449, 811 N.E.2d 1103, 2004 N.Y. LEXIS 1027 (N.Y. 2004).

City and police department were not entitled to summary judgment dismissing a police officer's suit alleging she was injured while loading barriers onto an unsafe police flatbed truck that was improperly equipped, as this section set forth an objective, clear legal duty that could serve as a predicate for a claim under N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 205-e. Gammons v City of New York, 24 N.Y.3d 562, 25 N.E.3d 958, 2 N.Y.S.3d 45, 2014 N.Y. LEXIS 3440 (N.Y. 2014).

8. Evidence

Firefighter was not entitled to a new trial on his cause of action predicated upon a violation of this statute because a fair interpretation of the evidence supported a finding that the torn carpeting, upon which the firefighter tripped and sustained injuries while performing his assigned duties, was not a hazard likely to cause death or serious physical harm. Annunziata v City of New York, 175 A.D.3d 438, 107 N.Y.S.3d 355, 2019 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6122 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2019).

§ 27-b. Duty of public employers to develop and implement programs to prevent workplace violence

1. Purpose. The purpose of this section is to ensure that the risk of workplace assaults and homicides is evaluated by affected public employers and their employees and that such employers design and implement workplace violence protection programs to prevent and minimize the hazard of workplace violence to public employees.

2. Definitions. For the purposes of this section:

a. "Employer" means: (1) the state; (2) a political subdivision of the state, provided, however that this subdivision shall not mean any employer as defined in section twenty-eight hundred one-a of the education law; (3) a public authority, a public benefit corporation, or any other governmental agency or instrumentality thereof; and (4) an authorized agency as defined in paragraph (a) of subdivision ten of section three hundred seventy-one of the social services law that accepts children adjudicated delinquent under article three of the family court act.

b. "Employee" means a public employee working for an employer.

c. "Workplace" means any location away from an employee's domicile, permanent or temporary, where an employee performs any work-related duty in the course of his or her employment by an employer.

d. "Supervisor" means any person within an employer's organization who has the authority to direct and control the work performance of an employee, or who has the authority to take corrective action regarding the violation of a law, rule or regulation to which an employee submits written notice.

e. "Retaliatory action" means the discharge, suspension, demotion, penalization, or discrimination against any employee, or other adverse employment action taken against an employee in the terms and conditions of employment.

3. Risk evaluation and determination. Every employer shall evaluate its workplace or workplaces to determine the presence of factors or situations in such workplace or workplaces that might place employees at risk of occupational assaults and homicides. Examples of such factors shall include, but not limited to:

a. working in public settings (e.g., social services or other governmental workers, police officers, firefighters, teachers, public transportation drivers, health care workers, and service workers);

b. working late night or early morning hours;

c. exchanging money with the public;

d. working alone or in small numbers;

e. uncontrolled access to the workplace; and

f. areas of previous security problems.

4. Written workplace violence prevention program. Every employer with at least twenty full time permanent employees shall develop and implement a written workplace violence prevention program for its workplace or workplaces that includes the following:

a. a list of the risk factors identified in subdivision three of this section that are present in such workplace or workplaces;

b. the methods the employer will use to prevent incidents of occupational assaults and homicides at such workplace or workplaces, including but not limited to the following:

(1) making high-risk areas more visible to more people;

(2) installing good external lighting;

(3) using drop safes or other methods to minimize cash on hand;

(4) posting signs stating that limited cash is on hand;

(5) providing training in conflict resolution and nonviolent self-defense responses; and

(6) establishing and implementing reporting systems for incidents of aggressive behavior.

5. Employee information and training. a. Every employer with at least twenty permanent full time employees shall make the written workplace violence prevention program available, upon request, to its employees, their designated representatives and the department.

b. Every employer shall provide its employees with the following information and training on the risks of occupational assaults and homicides in their workplace or workplaces at the time of their initial assignment and annually thereafter:

(1) employees shall be informed of the requirements of this section, the risk factors in their workplace or workplaces, and the location and availability of the written workplace violence prevention program required by this section; and

(2) employee training shall include at least: (a) the measures employees can take to protect themselves from such risks, including specific procedures the employer has implemented to protect employees, such as appropriate work practices, emergency procedures, use of security alarms and other devices, and (b) the details of the written workplace violence prevention program developed by the employer.

6. Application. a. Any employee or representative of employees who believes that a serious violation of a workplace violence protection program exists or that an imminent danger exists shall bring such matter to the attention of a supervisor in the form of a written notice and shall afford the employer a reasonable opportunity to correct such activity, policy or practice. This referral shall not apply where imminent danger or threat exists to the safety of a specific employee or to the general health of a specific patient and the employee reasonably believes in good faith that reporting to a supervisor would not result in corrective action.

b. If following a referral of such matter to the employee's supervisor's attention and after a reasonable opportunity to correct such activity, policy or practice the matter has not been resolved and the employee or representative of employees still believes that a violation of a workplace violence prevention program remains, or that an imminent danger exists, such employee or representative of employees may request an inspection by giving notice to the commissioner of such violation or danger. Such notice and request shall be in writing, shall set forth with reasonable particularity the grounds for the notice, shall be signed by such employee or representative of employees, and a copy shall be provided by the commissioner to the employer or the person in charge no later than the time of inspection, except that on the request of the person giving such notice, such person's name and the names of individual employees or representatives of employees shall be withheld. Such inspection shall be made forthwith.

c. A representative of the employer and an authorized employee representative shall be given the opportunity to accompany the commissioner during an inspection for the purpose of aiding such inspection. Where there is no authorized employee representative, the commissioner shall consult with a reasonable number of employees concerning matters of safety in the workplace.

d. The authority of the commissioner to inspect a premises pursuant to such an employee complaint shall not be limited to the alleged violation contained in such complaint. The commissioner may inspect any other area of the premises in which he or she has reason to believe that a serious violation of this section exists.

e. No employer shall take retaliatory action against any employee because the employee does any of the following:

(1) makes an application pursuant to paragraph a of this subdivision;

(2) requests an inspection as authorized in paragraph b of this subdivision;

(3) accompanies the commissioner as authorized in paragraph c of this subdivision;

f. The commissioner may, upon his or her own initiative, conduct an inspection of any premises occupied by an employer if he or she has reason to believe that a violation of this section has occurred or if he or she has a general administrative plan for the enforcement of this section, including a general schedule of inspections, which provide a rational administrative basis for such inspecting. Within one hundred twenty days of the effective date of this paragraph the commissioner shall adopt rules and regulations implementing the provisions of this section.

g. Any information obtained by the commissioner pursuant to this subdivision shall be obtained with a minimum burden upon the employers.

h. When a request for an inspection has been made in a situation where there is an allegation of an imminent danger such that an employee would be subjecting himself or herself to serious injury or death because of the hazardous condition in the workplace, the inspection shall be given the highest priority by the department and shall be carried out immediately.

HISTORY:

Add, L 2006, ch 82, § 2, eff March 4, 2007 (see 2006 note below); amd, L 2011, ch 504, § 2, eff Jan 21, 2012 (see 2011 note below).

Prior Law: Former § 27-b, add, L 1965, ch 803, § 50; repealed, L 1975, ch 756, § 2, eff Aug 9, 1975 (see note below).

Editor's Notes: Laws 1975, ch 758, amended Laws 1975, ch 756, so as to change the effective date of the repeal of this section from July 1, 1975 to August 9, 1975.

Laws 2006, ch 82, §§ 1, 3–5, eff March 4, 2007, provides as follows:

Section 1. Legislative findings. The legislature finds and declares that workplace assaults and homicides are a serious public health problem that demands the attention of the state of New York. During the last decade, homicide was the third leading cause of death for all workers and the leading cause of occupational death for women workers. Workplace violence presents a serious occupational safety hazard for workers, but many employers and workers may be unaware of the risk. Moreover, the hazard of workplace violence is not currently addressed by any specific federal or state statute and regulation. It is critical to the maintenance of a productive workforce that employers and workers evaluate their workplaces to determine the risk of violence and to develop, and implement programs to minimize the hazard. Experience has shown that when employers evaluate the safety and health hazards in their workplaces and implement employee protection programs, the incidence of workplace injuries is reduced. The legislature, therefore, further finds and declares that the public health, safety and welfare would be advanced by enactment of a law to require that employers develop and implement workplace violence protection programs designed to minimize the danger to employees of workplace violence.

§ 3. The provisions of this act shall not diminish the rights of employees pursuant to any law, rule, regulation or collective bargaining agreement.

§ 4. Nothing in this act shall change or alter an agency's obligation to comply with workplace safety standards as set forth by the joint commission on accreditation of healthcare organizations. Any provision of this act which jeopardizes an agency's receipt of federal Medicaid and Medicare reimbursement shall be null and void with regard to such agency.

§ 5. This act shall take effect on the two hundred seventieth day after it shall have become a law; provided, however, that effective immediately, the addition, amendment and/or repeal of any rule or regulation necessary for the implementation of this act on its effective date is authorized and directed to be made and completed on or before such effective date (Amd, L 2006, ch 542, § 1, eff Aug 16, 2006.).

Laws 2006, ch 542, § 2, eff Aug 16, 2006, amended Laws 2006, ch 82, § 5, so as change the effective date of this section from Oct 5, 2006 to March 4, 2007.

Laws 2011, ch 504, §§ 1 and 3, provide:

Section 1. This act shall be known and may be cited as the "juvenile justice worker protection act."

§ 3. This act shall take effect on the one hundred twentieth day after it shall have become a law; provided, however, that effective immediately, the addition, amendment and/or repeal of any rule or regulation necessary for the implementation of this act on its effective date is authorized and directed to be made and completed on or before such effective date.

Amendment Notes: Laws 2011. Chapter 504, § 2 amended:

Sub 2, par a by deleting at fig 1 "and" and adding the matter in italics.

Repeal Notes: [1975] The substance of section 27-b of the Labor Law repealed by this act is incorporated in the new sections of the act, with certain modifications.

Notes to Decisions

City department of juvenile justice argued that New York Industrial Board of Appeals improperly issued it a notice of violation (NOV) under N.Y. Lab. Law § 27-a(3) instead of the New York Workplace Violence Protection Act (WVPA), N.Y. Lab. Law § 27-b. This claim failed because at the time the NOV was issued, no regulations implementing the WVPA had been adopted. Matter of City of New York v Commissioner of Labor, 917 N.Y.S.2d 834, 31 Misc. 3d 398, 2011 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 307 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 2011), aff'd, 100 A.D.3d 519, 954 N.Y.S.2d 72, 2012 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7822 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2012).

There is no conflict between the New York General Duty Clause, N.Y. Lab. Law § 27-a(3), and the New York Workplace Violence Protection Act (WVPA), N.Y. Lab. Law § 27-b. The General Duty Clause includes provisions regarding workplace safety in general, whereas the WVPA addresses the specific issue of workplace violence. Matter of City of New York v Commissioner of Labor, 917 N.Y.S.2d 834, 31 Misc. 3d 398, 2011 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 307 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 2011), aff'd, 100 A.D.3d 519, 954 N.Y.S.2d 72, 2012 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7822 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2012).

City was not entitled to administrative relief because the Commissioner of Labor had authority to adopt regulations and issue citations to enforce the Workplace Violence Prevention Act via the Public Employee Safety and Health Act to fill in the interstices in the legislative product and the requirements for employee participation did not constitute employee veto or control over workplace evaluations or prevention programs, left room for collective bargaining, and did not violate the Taylor Law. Matter of City of New York v Commissioner of Labor, 991 N.Y.S.2d 832, 44 Misc. 3d 612, 2014 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2605 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 2014).

Dismissal of a state investigator's First Amendment claim brought pursuant to 42 U.S.C.S. § 1983 did not alter the inves-tigator's opportunity under N.Y. Lab. Law § 27-b(6)(e) and N.Y. Exec. Law. § 55 to seek protection from the retaliatory acts he alleged. D'Olimpio v Crisafi, 718 F. Supp. 2d 340, 2010 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 59563 (S.D.N.Y. 2010), aff'd, 462 Fed. Appx. 79, 2012 U.S. App. LEXIS 3278 (2d Cir. N.Y. 2012).

State investigator's speech regarding a coworker's alleged misconduct contained in his Workplace Incident Reports and his complaint to the New York Inspector General were unprotected by the First Amendment because these statements were required by law, specifically N.Y. Lab. Law § 27-b(6)(a) and N.Y. Exec. Law § 55(1). D'Olimpio v Crisafi, 718 F. Supp. 2d 340, 2010 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 59563 (S.D.N.Y. 2010), aff'd, 462 Fed. Appx. 79, 2012 U.S. App. LEXIS 3278 (2d Cir. N.Y. 2012).

Codes, Rules and Regulations:

Department of labor: public employee workplace violence prevention programs. 12 NYCRR § 800.6.

§ 27-c. Duty of public employers to develop operation plans in the event of certain declared public health emergencies.

1. Definitions. For the purposes of this section:

a. "Personal protective equipment" shall mean all equipment worn to minimize exposure to hazards, including gloves, masks, face shields, foot and eye protection, protective hearing devices, respirators, hard hats, and disposable gowns and aprons.

b. "Public employer" or "employer" shall mean the state of New York, a county, city, town, village or any other political subdivision or civil division of the state, a public authority, commission or public benefit corporation, or any other public corporation, agency, instrumentality or unit of government which exercises governmental power under the laws of this state, provided, however, that this subdivision shall not include any employer as defined in section twenty-eight hundred one-a of the education law.

c. "Contractor" shall mean an individual performing services as party to a contract awarded by the state of New York or any other public employer defined in paragraph b of this subdivision.

d. "Essential" shall refer to a designation made that a public employee or contractor is required to be physically present at a work site to perform his or her job.

e. "Non-essential" shall refer to a designation made that a public employee or contractor is not required to be physically present at a work site to perform his or her job.

f. "Communicable disease" shall mean an illness caused by an infectious agent or its toxins that occurs through the direct or indirect transmission of the infectious agent or its products from an infected individual or via an animal, vector or the inanimate environment to a susceptible animal or human host.

g. "Retaliatory action" shall mean the discharge, suspension, demotion, penalization, or discrimination against any employee, or other adverse employment action taken against an employee in the terms and conditions of employment.

2. Each public employer in the state of New York shall prepare a plan for the continuation of operations in the event that the governor declares a public health emergency involving a communicable disease. Such plans shall follow the provisions for review and publication as prescribed in subdivision four of this section.

3. The operations plan required by this section shall include, but not be limited to:

a. A list and description of positions and titles considered essential in the event of a state-ordered reduction of in-person workforce, and a justification of such consideration for each position and title included.

b. A specific description of protocols the employer will follow in order to enable all non-essential employees and contractors to telecommute including, but not limited to, facilitating or requesting the procurement, distribution, downloading and installation of any needed devices or technology, including software, data, office laptops or cell phones, and the transferring of office phone lines to work or personal cell phones as practicable or applicable to the workplace.

c. A description of how the employer will, to the extent possible, stagger work shifts of essential employees and contractors in order to reduce overcrowding on public transportation systems and at worksites.

d. A description of the protocol the employer will implement in order to procure the appropriate personal protective equipment for essential employees and contractors, based upon the various tasks and needs of such employees and contractors in a quantity sufficient to provide at least two pieces of each type of personal protective equipment to each essential employee and contractor during any given work shift over at least six months. Such description shall also include a plan for storage of such equipment to prevent degradation and permit immediate access in the event of an emergency declaration.

e. A description of the protocol in the event an employee or contractor is exposed to a known case of the communicable disease that is the subject of the public health emergency, exhibits symptoms of such disease, or tests positive for such disease in order to prevent the spread or contraction of such disease in the workplace. Such protocol shall also detail actions to be taken to immediately and thoroughly disinfect the work area of any employee or contractor known or suspected to be infected with the communicable disease as well as any common area surface and shared equipment such employee or contractor may have touched, and the employer policy on available leave in the event of the need of an employee to receive testing, treatment, isolation, or quarantine. Such protocol shall not involve any action that would violate any existing federal, state, or local law, including regarding sick leave or health information privacy.

f. A protocol for documenting precise hours and work locations, including off-site visits, for essential employees and contractors. Such protocol shall be designed only to aid in tracking of the disease and to identify the population of exposed employees and contractors in order to facilitate the provision of any benefits which may be available to certain employees and contractors on that basis.

g. A protocol for how the public employer will work with such employer's locality to identify sites for emergency housing for essential employees in order to further contain the spread of the communicable disease that is the subject of the declared emergency, to the extent applicable to the needs of the workplace.

4. Once drafted, each public employer shall present the plan described in this section to all applicable duly recognized or certified representatives of the employer's employees, who shall then be granted an opportunity to review the plan and make recommendations, if any, provided that nothing shall preclude such representatives from making such recommendations prior to the draft being completed. The employer must consider and respond to such recommendations in writing within a reasonable timeframe. A copy of the final version of such plan shall then be published in a clear and conspicuous location, and in the employee handbook, to the extent that the employer provides such handbook to its employees, and in a location accessible on either the employer's website or on the internet accessible by employees. No employer shall take retaliatory action or otherwise discriminate against any employee for making suggestions or recommendations regarding the content of the plan.

5. The department shall establish procedures to allow for public employees or contract workers to contact and inform the department of any alleged or believed violations of any of the provisions described in this section.

6. Nothing in this section shall be deemed to impede, infringe, diminish or impair the rights of a public employee or employer under any law, rule, regulation or collectively negotiated agreement, or the rights and benefits which accrue to employees through collective bargaining agreements, or otherwise diminish the integrity of the existing collective bargaining relationship.

ARTICLE 7 General Provisions

Section
201-g. Prevention of sexual harassment.
202-l. Leave of absence for volunteer emergency responders

HISTORY:
Add, L 1921, ch 50.

§ 201-g. Prevention of sexual harassment.

1. The department shall consult with the division of human rights to create and publish a model sexual harassment prevention guidance document and sexual harassment prevention policy that employers may utilize in their adoption of a sexual harassment prevention policy required by this section.

a. Such model sexual harassment prevention policy shall: (i) prohibit sexual harassment consistent with guidance issued by the department in consultation with the division of human rights and provide examples of prohibited conduct that would constitute unlawful sexual harassment; (ii) include but not be limited to information concerning the federal and state statutory provisions concerning sexual harassment and remedies available to victims of sexual harassment and a statement that there may be applicable local laws; (iii) include a standard complaint form; (iv) include a procedure for the timely and confidential investigation of complaints and ensure due process for all parties; (v) inform employees of their rights of redress and all available forums for adjudicating sexual harassment complaints administratively and judicially; (vi) clearly state that sexual harassment is considered a form of employee misconduct and that sanctions will be enforced against individuals engaging in sexual harassment and against supervisory and managerial personnel who knowingly allow such behavior to continue; and (vii) clearly state that retaliation against individuals who complain of sexual harassment or who testify or assist in any proceeding under the law is unlawful.

b. Every employer shall adopt the model sexual harassment prevention policy promulgated pursuant to this subdivision or establish a sexual harassment prevention policy to prevent sexual harassment that equals or exceeds the minimum standards provided by such model sexual harassment prevention policy. Such sexual harassment prevention policy shall be provided to all employees in writing as required by subdivision two-a of this section. Such model sexual harassment prevention policy shall be publicly available and posted on the websites of both the department and the division of human rights.

2. The department shall consult with the division of human rights and produce a model sexual harassment prevention training program to prevent sexual harassment in the workplace.

a. Such model sexual harassment prevention training program shall be interactive and include: (i) an explanation of sexual harassment consistent with guidance issued by the department in consultation with the division of human rights; (ii) examples of conduct that would constitute unlawful sexual harassment; (iii) information concerning the federal and state statutory provisions concerning sexual harassment and remedies available to victims of sexual harassment; and (iv) information concerning employees' rights of redress and all available forums for adjudicating complaints.

b. The department shall include information in such model sexual harassment prevention training program addressing conduct by supervisors and any additional responsibilities for such supervisors.

c. Every employer shall utilize the model sexual harassment prevention training program pursuant to this subdivision or establish a training program for employees to prevent sexual harassment that equals or exceeds the minimum standards provided by such model training. Such sexual harassment prevention training shall be provided to all employees on an annual basis.

2-a.

a. Every employer shall provide his or her employees, in writing in English and in the language identified by each employee as the primary language of such employee, at the time of hiring and at every annual sexual harassment prevention training provided pursuant to subdivision two of this section, a notice containing such employer's sexual harassment prevention policy and the information presented at such employer's sexual harassment prevention training program.

b. The commissioner shall prepare templates of the model sexual harassment prevention policy created and published pursuant to subdivision one of this section and the model sexual harassment prevention training program produced pursuant to subdivision two of this section. The commissioner shall determine, in his or her discretion, which languages to provide in addition to English, based on the size of the New York state population that speaks each language and any other factor that the commissioner shall deem relevant. All such templates shall be made available to employers in such manner as determined by the commissioner.

c. When an employee identifies as his or her primary language a language for which a template is not available from the commissioner, the employer shall comply with this subdivision by providing that employee an English-language notice.

d. An employer shall not be penalized for errors or omissions in the non-English portions of any notice provided by the commissioner.

3. The commissioner may promulgate regulations as he or she deems necessary for the purposes of carrying out the provisions of this section.

4. Beginning in the year two thousand twenty-two, and every succeeding four years thereafter, the department in consultation with the division of human rights shall evaluate, using the criteria within this section, the impact of the current model sexual harassment prevention guidance document and sexual harassment prevention policy. Upon the completion of each evaluation the department shall update the model sexual harassment prevention guidance document and sexual harassment prevention policy as needed.

L 2018, ch 57, § 1 (Part KK, Subpart E), effective October 9, 2018; L 2019, ch 160, §§ 11, 14, effective August 12, 2019.

Editor's Notes Laws 2018, ch 57, § 2 (Part KK, Subpart E), eff October 9, 2018, provides:

§ 2. This act shall take effect on the one hundred eightieth day after it shall have become a law. Effective immediately, the department of labor, in consultation with the division of human rights, is authorized to create the model sexual harassment prevention policy and the model sexual harassment prevention training program required to be created and published pursuant to section 201-g of the labor law as added by section one of this act.

Laws 2019, ch 160, § 16, eff August 12, 2019, provides:

§ 16. This act shall take effect immediately, provided, however:

(a) Sections one of this act shall take effect on the one hundred eightieth day after it shall have become a law.

(b) Sections one-a, two, three, four, five, seven, eight and nine of this act shall take effect on the sixtieth day after it shall have become a law.

(c) Section thirteen of this act shall take effect one year after it shall have become a law.

(d) Sections one, one-a, two, three, four, five, six and thirteen shall only apply to claims filed under such sections on or after the effective date of such sections.

(e) Effective immediately, the addition, amendment and/or repeal of any rule or regulation necessary for the implementation of this act on its effective date are authorized and directed to be made and completed on or before such effective date.

Amendment Notes The 2019 amendment by ch 160, § 11, added "as required by subdivision two-a of this section" in the second sentence of 1(b); and added 2(a).

The 2019 amendment by ch 160, § 14, added 4.

§ 202-l. Leave of absence for volunteer emergency responders

1. During the time that an emergency exists following a declaration of such emergency pursuant to section twenty-four or twenty-eight of the executive law, an employee may request and shall be granted a leave of absence from his or her employer while engaged in the actual performance of his or her duties as, (a) a volunteer firefighter, or (b) an enrolled member of a volunteer ambulance service pursuant to article thirty of the public health law unless the employer determines that the employee's absence would impose an undue hardship on the conduct of the employer's business as defined by paragraph (d) of subdivision ten of section two hundred ninety-six of the executive law.

2. Subdivision one of this section shall apply only when:

(a) The employer has previously received written documentation from the head of the employee's volunteer fire department or volunteer ambulance service, as applicable, notifying the employer of the employee's status as a volunteer firefighter or member of a volunteer ambulance service; and

(b) The employee's duties as a volunteer firefighter or member of a volunteer ambulance service are related to the declared emergency.

3. The entire period of the authorized leave of absence granted pursuant to this section shall either be unpaid excused leave for employees who are subject to the overtime provisions of this chapter, the federal fair labor standards act and regulations promulgated thereunder, or may otherwise be charged against any other leave to which such employee is entitled, as determined by the employee.

4. Upon the employer's request, an employee who has been granted a leave of absence in accordance with this section shall provide his or her employer with a notarized statement from the head of the volunteer fire department or volunteer ambulance service, as applicable, certifying the period of time, or times, that said employee responded to any emergency pursuant to this section.

5. Nothing set forth in this section shall be construed to impede, infringe or diminish the rights and benefits which accrue to employees through bona fide collective bargaining agreements, or otherwise diminish the integrity of the existing collective bargaining relationship.

6. As used in this section, employer does not include the state. Nothing set forth in this section shall be construed as superseding, limiting, or otherwise affecting the provisions of section eighty-two-a of the civil service law, providing for authorized absences for public officers and employees of the state.

Amendment Notes The 2014 amendment by ch 376, § 1, in 2(a), added "volunteer" following "employee's" and substituted "and" for "or" at the end.

ARTICLE 8 Public Work

Section
220. Hours, wages and supplements
220-h. Occupational Safety and Health Administration (OSHA) construction safety and health course

HISTORY:
Add, L 1921, ch 50.

§ 220. Hours, wages and supplements

* * * * *

3. (a) The wages to be paid for a legal day's work, as hereinbefore defined, to laborers, workmen or mechanics upon such public works, shall be not less than the prevailing rate of wages as hereinafter defined. Serving laborers, helpers, assistants and apprentices shall not be classified as common labor and shall be paid not less than the prevailing rate of wages as hereinafter defined. No employee shall be deemed to be an apprentice unless he is individually registered in an apprenticeship program which is duly registered with the commissioner of labor in conformity with the provisions of article twenty-three of this chapter. The wages to be paid for a legal day's work, as hereinbefore defined, to laborers, workmen or mechanics upon any material to be used upon or in connection therewith, shall be not less than the prevailing rate for a day's work in the same trade or occupation in the locality within the state where such public work on, about or in connection with which such labor is performed in its final or completed form is to be situated, erected or used. Such contracts shall contain a provision that each laborer, workman or mechanic, employed by such contractor, subcontractor or other person about or upon such public work, shall be paid the wages herein provided.

(b) The supplements, as hereinafter defined, to be provided to laborers, workmen or mechanics upon such public works, shall be in accordance with the prevailing practices in the locality, as hereinafter defined. Serving laborers, helpers, assistants and apprentices shall not be classified as common labor and shall be provided supplements in accordance with the prevailing practices as hereinafter defined. No employee shall be deemed to be an apprentice unless he is individually registered in an apprenticeship program which is duly registered with the industrial commissioner in conformity with the provisions of article twenty-three of this chapter. The supplements, as hereinafter defined, to be provided to laborers, workmen or mechanics upon any material to be used upon or in connection therewith, shall be in accordance with the prevailing practices in the same trade or occupation in the locality within the state where such public work on, about or in connection with which such labor is performed in its final or completed form is to be situated, erected or used. Such contracts shall contain a provision that each laborer, workman or mechanic, employed by such contractor, subcontractor or other person about or upon such public work, shall be provided the supplements as required in this article.

(c) It shall be the duty of the fiscal officer, as defined in this section, to ascertain and determine the schedules of supplements to be provided and wages to be paid workers, laborers and mechanics on such public work, prior to the time of the advertisement for bids, and such schedules shall be annexed to and form a part of the specifications for the work. Such fiscal officer shall file with the department having jurisdiction such schedules prior to the time of the commencement of the advertisement for bids on all public works proposed to be constructed. The term "contract" as used in this article also shall include reconstruction and repair of any such public work, and any public work performed under a lease, permit or other agreement pursuant to which the department of jurisdiction grants the responsibility of contracting for such public work to any third party proposing to perform such work to which the provisions of this article would apply had the department of jurisdiction contracted directly for its performance, or where there is no lease, permit or other agreement and ownership of a public work is intended to be assumed by such public entity at any time subsequent to completion of the public work.

(d) (i) Any person that participates in a public works project in the capacity of a contractor or subcontractor and who wilfully fails to pay or provide the prevailing rate of wage or supplements and:

(1) such failure results in underpayments, which in the aggregate amount to all workers employed by such person, results in an amount less than twenty-five thousand dollars, shall be guilty of a class A misdemeanor;

(2) such failure results in underpayments, which in the aggregate amount to all workers employed by such person, result in an amount greater than twenty-five thousand dollars, that person shall be guilty of a class E felony;

(3) such failure results in underpayments, which in the aggregate amount to all workers employed by such person, result in an amount greater than one hundred thousand dollars, that person shall be guilty of a class D felony; or

(4) such failure results in underpayments, which in the aggregate amount to all workers employed by such person, result in an amount greater than five hundred thousand dollars, that person shall be guilty of a class C felony.

(ii) Disposition for violations of this section shall be in accordance with the penal law. Fines upon conviction for any violation of this section shall be in accordance with the penal law.

(iii) In addition to the penalties set forth above, any such person convicted of a second offense under subparagraph (i) of this paragraph within five years shall disgorge profits and shall not be entitled to receive any monies due and owing on the contract or subcontract; nor shall any officer, agent or employee of the department of jurisdiction or its financial officer pay to such person any such monies. Notwithstanding the foregoing, the department of jurisdiction may release monies due and owing on the contract or subcontract which have not been withheld pursuant to section two hundred twenty-b of this article for the sole purpose of satisfying the contractor's or subcontractor's obligations under the contract or subcontract to third parties who were not themselves involved in the violations giving rise to the subsequent offense. For the purposes of this subdivision, third parties shall include, but not be limited to, contractors, subcontractors, materialmen, and funds, plans, and programs providing pension, health, and welfare benefits to workmen, laborers, and mechanics employed pursuant to such contract or subcontract. The department of jurisdiction may release such monies upon the application of the contractor provided that no monies shall be released without the written approval of the fiscal officer or by order of a court of competent jurisdiction.

(iv) In addition to the penalties set forth above, every contract for a public work project shall contain a term stating that the filing of payrolls in a manner consistent with subdivision three-a of this section is a condition precedent to payment of any sums due and owing to any person for work done upon the project.

(e) The commissioner shall ensure that all supplements due under this article shall be paid to or on behalf of an employee. The commissioner shall require proof that the pension plan for which any supplement has been paid is qualified as a bona fide plan by the United States internal revenue service. Acceptable proof shall be shown by submission of a determination letter issued by the United States internal revenue service.

Revision Notes: [1966, ch 976] This act was prepared under the direction of the New York State Department of Labor and was introduced at its request.

Editor's Notes See 1962 note under § 220-b.

See 1980 note below.

Laws 1947, ch 851, § 1, provides as follows:

§ 1. It is the policy of this state as provided in section seventeen of article one of the constitution to restrict the labor of laborers, workmen and mechanics employed upon public work performed by the state and its subdivisions to a maximum of eight hours per day and five days per week, except in cases of extraordinary emergency. It is hereby recognized that there are two types of extraordinary emergency: (1) a sudden or unexpected occurrence or condition calling for immediate action and (2) a continuing emergency, more general in character and arising out of economic or social conditions.

Provision for allowing additional hours of labor upon public work during the first type of emergency is specifically made in the labor law.

In the wake of world war II, an emergency of the second type now exists. In many areas of the state sufficient laborers, workmen and mechanics cannot be employed to carry on public work expeditiously, for the reason that on such public work labor is restricted to eight hours per day and five days per week, while on federal work and private work in the same vicinity employment is available, and upon such federal and private work laborers, workmen and mechanics are permitted to work more hours per day and more days per week and hence are able to earn a larger amount of money than on such public work. As a result, important public work is being delayed, particularly that involving highways, which have already been subjected to long years of neglect and the construction and reconstruction of which is not only seasonal but subject to delay caused by inclement weather.

It is hereby declared to be in the interest of the people of this state, as well as in the interest of the laborers, workmen and mechanics who earn their living on construction work, and in conformance with the public policy of this State to permit laborers, workmen and mechanics to work more than eight hours per day and more than five days per week on public work in cases of extraordinary emergency, whether such emergency be of the first or of the second type discussed herein. Therefore, the necessity for the enactment of this act is hereby declared as a matter of legislative determination.

Laws 1980, ch 695, § 4, eff August 29, 1980, provides as follows:

§ 4. This act shall take effect on the sixtieth day after it shall have become a law provided, however, that the provisions of subdivision eight of section two hundred twenty, subdivision two of section two hundred twenty-b and subdivision five of section two hundred thirty-five of the labor law, as amended by sections one, two and three of this act shall only be construed to require the payment of interest in the manner provided for in such respective subdivisions upon underpayments in the payment of wages and/or supplements occurring on and after such effective date, provided, further that where payments upon an underpayment which occurred prior to the effective date of this act is not made until a time subsequent to such effective date interest in the manner provided for in such subdivisions shall accrue on such underpayment from the effective date of this act and shall continue until payment of the underpayment.

Laws 1980, ch 696, § 5, eff August 29, 1980, provides as follows:

§ 5. This act shall take effect on the sixtieth day after it shall have become a law, provided, however, that the provisions of subdivision eight of section two hundred twenty, subdivision two of section two hundred twenty-b and subdivision five of section two hundred thirty-five of the labor law as amended by sections one, two and four of this act shall only be construed to authorize the imposition of civil penalties in the manner provided for in such respective subdivisions upon underpayments in the payment of wages and/or supplements occurring on and after such effective date.

Laws 1983, ch 447, §§ 1, 9 eff July 15, 1983, provide as follows:

Section 1. Legislative findings and intent. Because the constitution of the state of New York requires workers on public works projects to be compensated at a rate of wage not less than that prevailing in the locality in which the work is done, and because collective bargaining has been recognized as the most efficient and effective means of achieving competitive wage agreements, the legislature finds and declares it to be in the public interest that determinations of prevailing wages shall be made in accordance with the rates of wages paid pursuant to collective bargaining agreements in the locality in which the work is done.

§ 9. This act shall take effect immediately and shall apply to all public works contracts sent out to bid on or after such date.

Laws 1985, ch 137, §§ 1, 11 eff Jan 1, 1986, provide as follows:

Section 1. Legislative findings. The enactment of chapter four hundred forty-seven of the laws of nineteen hundred eighty-three served to significantly revamp and update the process and procedure for prevailing wage compliance for public works projects in New York state. In a further effort to safeguard the rights of the workers of the state provided by article eight of the labor law, the legislature finds it necessary to supplement and reorganize the state's enforcement capabilities with respect to such article.

§ 11, This act shall take effect January first, nineteen hundred eighty-six and shall apply to all public works contacts sent out to bid on or after such date.

Laws 1993, ch 162, § 3, eff Dec 25, 1993, provides as follows:

§ 3. This act shall take effect on the one hundred eightieth day after it shall have become a law, provided however, that effective immediately, the addition, amendment and/or repeal of any rules or regulations necessary for the implementation of this act on its effective date is authorized and directed to be made and completed on or before such effective date.

Laws 2007, ch 629, § 2, eff Feb 24, 2008, provides as follows:

§ 2. This act shall take effect on the one hundred eightieth day after it shall have become a law. Effective immediately, the addition, amendment and/or repeal of any rules or regulations necessary for the implementation of this act on its effective date is authorized to be made and completed on or before such effective date.

Laws 2007, ch 678, § 5, eff Oct 27, 2007, provides as follows:

§ 5. This act shall take effect on the sixtieth day after it shall have become a law, and shall apply to all contracts or other agreements entered into on or after such date (Amd, L 2012, ch 389, § 1, eff Aug 17, 2012.).

Laws 2008, ch 7, § 11, eff April 27, 2008, provides as follows:

§ 11. This act shall take effect on the ninetieth day after it shall have become a law and shall apply to all contracts entered into on or after such effective date, except as to subparagraph (iv) of paragraph (d) of subdivision 3 of section 220-a of the labor law, as added by section two of this act, which shall apply to all contracts advertised or solicited after such effective date. (Amd, L 2008, ch 8, § 8, eff April 27, 2008.).

Laws 2008, ch 8, § 9, eff April 27, 2008, provides as follows:

§ 9. This act shall take effect on the same date and in the same manner as a chapter of the laws of 2007, amending the labor law and the general municipal law relating to guaranteeing payment of prevailing wages to the workers of New York state, as proposed in legislative bills numbers S. 5506-A and A. 8582-A, takes effect; provided, however that the amendments to subparagraphs (iii) and (iv) of paragraph a of subdivision 3-a of section 220 of the labor law made by section three-a of this act shall take effect on the same date and in the same manner as chapter 629 of the laws of 2007, takes effect, when upon such date the provisions of section three of this act shall expire and be deemed repealed.

Laws 2012, ch 389, § 1, eff Aug 17, 2012, amended L 2007, ch 678, § 5 so as to delete the expiration date applicable to sub 2 and to sub 3, par c.

Laws 2019, ch 744, § 4, eff June 23, 2020, provides:

§ 4. This act shall take effect on the one hundred eightieth day after it shall have become a law and shall only apply to public work contracts entered into on or after such effective date.

Laws 2020, ch 86, § 6, eff June 23, 2020, provides:

§ 6. This act shall take effect on the same date and in the same manner as a chapter of the laws of 2019, amending the labor law relating to additional information provided to employees on public work contracts, as proposed in legislative bills numbers S. 5679-A and A. 2101-A, takes effect.

Amendment Notes 2011. Chapter 62, § 104 (Part A) amended:

Sub 3, par (d), subpar (i), cl (1) by deleting at fig 1 "and upon conviction shall be punished for such first offense by a fine of five hundred dollars or by imprisonment for not more than thirty days, or both fine and imprisonment; for a second offense by a fine of one thousand dollars, and in addition thereto the contract on which the violation has occurred shall be forfeited; and no such person or corporation shall be entitled to receive any sum nor shall any officer, agent or employee of the state, municipal corporation or commission or board appointed pursuant to law pay the same or authorize its payment from the funds under his charge or control to any person or corporation for work done upon any contract, on which the contractor has been convicted for second offense in violation of the provisions of this section." and adding the matter in italics.

By adding sub 3, par (d), subpar (i), cls (2)–(4).

By adding sub 3, par (d), subpar (ii).

By designating sub 3, fifth undesignated par as sub 3, par (e).

2008. Chapter 7, § 3 amended:

By designating part of sub 3-a, par a as sub 3-a, par a, subpar (i).

2008. Chapter 7, § 4 amended:

By adding sub 3-a, par d.

2008. Chapter 7, § 6 amended:

Sub 7 by deleting at fig 1 "or corporation" and adding the matter in italics.

Sub 7-a by deleting at fig 1 "willfullness", at fig 2 "for the purposes of", at fig 3 "of the last undesignated" and adding the matter in italics.

Sub 8, closing par by deleting at fig 1 "or corporation" and adding the matter in italics.

2008. Chapter 7, § 7 amended:

Sub 9 by deleting at fig 1 ", or corporation", at fig 2 "for a first offense by a fine of five hundred dollars or by imprisonment for not more than thirty days, or by both such fine and imprisonment; for a second offense by a fine of one thousand dollars,", at figs 3 and 4 "or corporation" and adding the matter in italics.

2008. Chapter 8, § 2 amended:

Sub 3, par (d), subpar (iii) by deleting at fig 1 "without the written approval of the fiscal officer or by order of a court of competent jurisdiction" and adding the matter in italics.

Sub 3, par (d), subpar (iv) by deleting at fig 1 "no officer, agent or employee of the state, municipal corporation or commission or board appointed pursuant to law is authorized to pay or direct payment of any sums due and owing to any person for work done upon any project, on which the person has failed to file payrolls as specified in subdivision three-a of this section or where payment is prohibited pursuant to subparagraph (iii) of this paragraph" and adding the matter in italics.

2008. Chapter 8, § 3-a amended:

Sub 3-a, par a, subpar (iii) by deleting at fig 1 "five" and adding the matter in italics.

Sub 3-a, par a, subpar (iv) by deleting at figs 1 and 2 "certified" and adding the matter in italics.

2008. Chapter 8, § 4 amended:

By repealing former sub 5, par l.

By redesignating form sub 5, par m as sub 5, par l.

2008. Chapter 591, § 1 amended:

By adding sub 3-a, par e.

2008. Chapter 63, § 1 amended:

Sub 3-a, par a, subpar (ii) by deleting at figs 1–3 "department", at figs 4–6 "commissioner" and added the matter in italics.

2007. Chapter 678, § 1 amended:

Sub 2 by deleting at figs 1, 3, 6, 8, 11, 12 and 14 "workmen", at fig 2 "workman", at figs 4, 5, 7, 9, 10, 13 and 15 "industrial" and adding the matter in italics.

The 2019 amendments by ch 744, §§ 1–3, added the 3(e)(i) designation; added 3(e)(ii); rewrote 3-a(a)(ii); in 3-a(a)(iii), added the second, sixth, and seventh sentences, added "commissioner, or the fiscal officer" in the eight sentence; in 6, added "including information regarding the amounts to be paid per hour for each supplement provided for each particular job classification" in the first sentence and added the third sentence; and made stylistic changes.

The 2020 amendments by ch 86, §§ 2–5, deleted the (3)(e)(i) designation; deleted former (3)(e)(ii); in the first paragraph of (3-a)(a)(ii), substituted "rates of wages" for "rate of wage" in the fourth sentence, rewrote the fifth and ninth sentences and deleted the former sixth sentence; rewrote the second sentence of (3-a)(a)(iii); in 6, deleted "including information regarding the amounts to be paid per hour for each supplement provided for each particular job classification" at the end of the first sentence and deleted the former second sentence; and added the second and third sentences of (3-a)(c).

Repeal Notes; [1969] Subdivision 3-b of § 220 of the Labor Law establishing the Public Work Advisory Board, was repealed by this act. The Board is reconstituted by the new subdivision 3-b added by this act.

1. In general

Provisions of CLS Labor § 220 which do not permit trainees registered in programs of federal Department of Labor to be paid wages less than journey-level workers are not preempted by federal regulations, despite stated policy of Federal-Aid Highway Act (23 USCS §§ 101 et seq.) to "fully utilize" all available training and skill improvement opportunities for designated workers, since "full utilization" policy declaration (23 CFR § 230.107(b)) neither mandates that states use federally trained workers nor constitutes limitation on range of programs which state may use so long as state achieves its affirmative action training goal. Tap Electrical Contracting Service, Inc. v Hartnett, 76 N.Y.2d 164, 556 N.Y.S.2d 988, 556 N.E.2d 427, 1990 N.Y. LEXIS 1308 (N.Y. 1990).

Requirement under CLS Labor § 220 that employer pay workers registered in federal training programs journey-level wages did not conflict with either prevailing wage requirements of Davis-Bacon Act (40 USCS § 276a) or training program's exemption for federal trainees from requirements of act(23 USCS § 113(c)) since CLS Labor § 220 does not purport to raise minimum wage paid to federal trainees and merely requires that state-registered trainees be hired instead of federal trainees. Tap Electrical Contracting Service, Inc. v Hartnett, 76 N.Y.2d 164, 556 N.Y.S.2d 988, 556 N.E.2d 427, 1990 N.Y. LEXIS 1308 (N.Y. 1990).

N.Y. Lab. Law § 220 prevailing wage law mandate did not apply to all charter school projects because only four public entities were identified under § 220(2): the state, a public benefit corporation, a municipal corporation, or a commission; the statute did not expressly apply to educational corporations, and that included charter schools. NY Charter School v Smith, 15 N.Y.3d 403, 914 N.Y.S.2d 696, 940 N.E.2d 522, 2010 N.Y. LEXIS 2950 (N.Y. 2010).

Section 220 of the Labor Law must be accorded a liberal construction. Long Island Lighting Co. v Industrial Comm'r, 40 A.D.2d 1003, 338 N.Y.S.2d 751, 1972 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3063 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1972), app. dismissed, 32 N.Y.2d 646, 342 N.Y.S.2d 852, 295 N.E.2d 652, 1973 N.Y. LEXIS 1452 (N.Y. 1973), aff'd, 34 N.Y.2d 725, 357 N.Y.S.2d 493, 313 N.E.2d 787, 1974 N.Y. LEXIS 1607 (N.Y. 1974).

Provisions of Labor Law mandating inclusion in contracts to which public entity is party a clause that wages to be paid shall not be less than prevailing rate of wages and requiring that applicable wage schedule be annexed to work specifications before advertising for bids seek to insure that workmen on public projects will receive adequate wages and to afford protection to contractor by giving him some foreknowledge of potential labor cost when bidding on project. Brang Co. v State University Constr. Fund, 47 A.D.2d 178, 365 N.Y.S.2d 914, 1975 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8739 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1975).

Request for writ of mandate or declaratory relief brought by several contractors and contractors' associations to challenge Commissioner of Labor's administration of CPL Labor § 220 was properly dismissed; plaintiffs lacked standing to bring suit since they did not demonstrate any injury or harmful effect on themselves stemming from alleged misadministration, and they pleaded no justiciable controversy since they presented no specific set of facts for court to consider. Associated General Contractors, New York State Chapter, Inc. v Roberts, 122 A.D.2d 406, 505 N.Y.S.2d 220, 1986 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 59719 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1986).

Commissioner properly determined that employer willfully failed to pay prevailing wages in violation of CLS Labor § 220, in that employer knew or should have known that 2 of its employees who operated equipment for substantial portion of work week were being paid as laborers rather than as equipment operators, since there was nothing irrational in commissioner's interpretation and application of statutory term "willfully," and employer's good faith in cooperating with investigation and in promptly remedying violation did not preclude finding of willfulness. In re Cam-Ful Industries, Inc., 128 A.D.2d 1006, 513 N.Y.S.2d 539, 1987 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 44654 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1987).

Evidence sustained determination by Commissioner of Labor that petitioner willfully failed to pay prevailing wages and supplements to 8 employees by classifying them as laborers and carpenters rather than as plumbers, since evidence showed that petitioner knew or should have known that employees were performing plumbing work while they were classified and paid lower wages as laborers and carpenters; "willful" does not imply criminal intent to defraud, but requires only that petitioner acted knowingly, intentionally, or deliberately. Frey & Campbell, Inc. v Hartnett, 139 A.D.2d 928, 527 N.Y.S.2d 1022, 1988 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4188 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1988).

"Trade or occupation" classifications and prevailing wage determinations made by Department of Labor for public work project, pursuant to CLS Labor § 220, were not subject to rule promulgation requirements of State Administrative Procedure Act, since they were established on case-by-case analysis of work to be performed and thus did not constitute rule or regulation requiring filing under CLS St Adm P Act § 102; moreover, CLS Labor § 220 adequately outlines department's classification requirements, and thus rule promulgation of classification process is unnecessary. GE v N.Y. State Dep't of Labor, 154 A.D.2d 117, 551 N.Y.S.2d 966, 1990 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1881 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), aff'd, 76 N.Y.2d 946, 563 N.Y.S.2d 764, 565 N.E.2d 513, 1990 N.Y. LEXIS 3416 (N.Y. 1990).

In regard to application of CLS Labor § 220, there is no statutory requirement that state be direct party to challenged contract since wage and supplement provisions apply broadly to laborers, workers or mechanics on public works. Bridgestone/Firestone, Inc. v Hartnett, 175 A.D.2d 495, 572 N.Y.S.2d 770, 1991 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10424 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1991).

Commissioner of Labor was preempted by Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974, 29 USCS §§ 1001 et seq. (ERISA) from collecting supplemental benefits pursuant to CLS Labor § 220 on public works contract incorporating schedule that listed supplemental benefits item by item, which is impermissible, despite fact that Labor Department's audit procedures were based on "total package" approach, by which department's investigators totaled amounts listed on schedule and compared that figure to total amount of supplements paid by subcontractor. Beltrone Constr. Co. v McGowan, 260 A.D.2d 870, 688 N.Y.S.2d 783, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4217 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1999).

After the New York State Department of Labor found that a first contractor was a substantially-owned affiliated entity of a second contractor within the meaning of N.Y. Lab. Law §§ 220-b(3)(b), 220(5)(g), a preliminary injunction enjoining enforcement of the Department's debarment order against the first contractor was erroneously granted, as the first contractor failed to demonstrate the likelihood of success on its claim that the Department's determination was arbitrary and capricious given that (1) the first contractor's owner was the son of the second contractor's owner; (2) both contractors shared office equipment and a secretary and were in the same building; and (3) the first contractor, after the second contractor was debarred, hired one of the second contractor's former employees and began bidding on projects of the type formerly bid upon by the second contractor. Bistrian Materials, Inc. v Angello, 296 A.D.2d 495, 747 N.Y.S.2d 97, 2002 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7513 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2002).

Contractor had standing to bring a claim under N.Y. Pub. Health Law § 2818 because the contractor had bid unsuccessfully for the electrical work on the construction project, a new hospital; therefore, the contractor sustained an injury-in-fact since it lost the opportunity to perform the electrical work for the new hospital, and to benefit financially. Furthermore, the contractor was within the zone of interests protected by § 2818 since it bid for the contract at the prevailing wage rates, consistent with N.Y. Lab. Law art. 8. Maraia v Orange Regional Med. Ctr., 63 A.D.3d 1113, 882 N.Y.S.2d 287, 2009 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5346 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2009).

The Immigration Reform and Control Act of 1986 did not preempt New York Labor Law with regard to the payment of the prevailing wage to workers under New York Labor Law article 8. Pineda v Kel-Tech Constr., Inc., 832 N.Y.S.2d 386, 15 Misc. 3d 176, 237 N.Y.L.J. 20, 2007 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 103 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 2007).

Trial court should have dismissed defendant's counterclaims for underpayment of wages where no private right of action for the underpayment of wages exists under N.Y. Lab. Law § 220 until an administrative determination in the employee's favor has been made and has gone unreviewed or has been affirmed, and the record revealed that an audit by the state labor department was still ongoing nearly three years after the counterclaims were asserted. Marren v Ludlam, 14 A.D.3d 667, 790 N.Y.S.2d 146, 2005 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 795 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't), app. dismissed, 5 N.Y.3d 824, 804 N.Y.S.2d 38, 837 N.E.2d 737, 2005 N.Y. LEXIS 2538 (N.Y. 2005).

No private cause of action for underpayment of wages existed under N.Y. Lab. Law § 220 until an administrative determination in the employee's favor was made and went unreviewed or was affirmed, and, moreover, such private right of action belonged only to those employees who had gone underpaid; where a subcontractor brought suit against a general contractor for breach of contract, the general contractor had no standing to assert an affirmative defense based on its allegation that the subcontractor had failed to pay its employees in accordance with the prevailing wage provision of N.Y. Lab. Law § 220. P & T Iron Works v Talisman Contr. Co., 18 A.D.3d 527, 795 N.Y.S.2d 306, 2005 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5094 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2005).

CLS Labor § 220 is not preempted by National Labor Relations Act (29 USCS §§ 151 et seq.) since federal statute is concerned with ensuring equitable bargaining process, not with substantive terms that may emerge from bargaining, and state statute (which establishes minimum labor standards) affects union and nonunion employees equally, and neither encourages nor discourages collective-bargaining processes. General Elec. Co. v New York State Dep't of Labor, 891 F.2d 25, 1989 U.S. App. LEXIS 18243 (2d Cir. N.Y. 1989), cert. denied, 496 U.S. 912, 110 S. Ct. 2603, 110 L. Ed. 2d 283, 1990 U.S. LEXIS 2851 (U.S. 1990).

As matter of law, labor union was not intended third-party beneficiary of provision of collective bargaining agreement that purportedly bound contractor to make fund payments to union's employee benefit plan, as such provision was nothing more than promise to uphold provisions of CLS Labor §§ 220 and 220-d. Plumbing Indus. Bd. Plumbing Local Union No. 1 v L & L Masons, 927 F. Supp. 645, 1996 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 5168 (S.D.N.Y. 1996), aff'd sub. nom., Plumbing Indus. Bd., Plumbing Local Union No. 1 v E.W. Howell Co., 126 F.3d 61, 1997 U.S. App. LEXIS 24047 (2d Cir. N.Y. 1997).

2. Purpose

By enactment of this section, the legislature intended to impose upon the state and its municipal corporations or civil subdivisions the same obligations to pay the prevailing rate of wages to laborers, workmen and mechanics upon its public works in ungraded or noncompetitive employment in classified public service, that it imposes upon persons or corporations constructing public works by contract with the state or a civil division thereof. Gaston v Taylor, 274 N.Y. 359, 9 N.E.2d 9, 274 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 359, 1937 N.Y. LEXIS 854 (N.Y. 1937).

§ 220 discloses basic underlying policy that persons employed on public works shall receive prevailing rate of wages which is received by those doing the same work outside public employment; this is attempt to insure that persons engaged on public works are not penalized by receiving lower rate of wages. Kelly v Beame, 15 N.Y.2d 103, 256 N.Y.S.2d 329, 204 N.E.2d 491, 1965 N.Y. LEXIS 1649 (N.Y. 1965).

City of Rochester ordinance providing for preference to bidders on municipal contracts where bidders' employees participate in state approved apprenticeship program for certain trades, is invalid as violative of Gen Mun Law § 103 and similar legislative enactments requiring competitive bidding; although state's public policy embodied in Labor Law §§ 220, 810 and 817, is to encourage sound apprenticeship training standards and to equalize minimum labor costs between union contractors and nonunion employers, apprenticeship programs are undertaken voluntarily, and prevailing rate of wages statute is fulfilled when contractor pays in cash, totally or partially, cost of prevailing supplemental benefits to his employees; predominent purpose of legislature was protection of public fisc by requiring competitive bidding, and while apprentice training is desirable end, it was not intended to affect qualification of an otherwise responsible low bidder. Associated Builders & Contractors, Inc. v Rochester, 67 N.Y.2d 854, 501 N.Y.S.2d 653, 492 N.E.2d 781, 1986 N.Y. LEXIS 17597 (N.Y. 1986).

The purpose of the statute was to require the state and its subdivisions to fix a minimum rate of wage to be paid upon public works projects and thereby eliminate the necessity of compelling a laborer to make complaint to the industrial commissioner, under subd. 7 of this section, and thereafter to await determination thereon by the industrial commissioner before he might bring an action. Corti v Wexler, 287 N.Y.S. 243, 159 Misc. 116, 1936 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1084 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1936).

This section is designed to provide mechanics, laborers, and workmen a rate of pay commensurate with rates paid to a majority of employees in private industry engaged on public work in the same locality. Dinan v Patterson, 83 N.Y.S.2d 834, 193 Misc. 92, 1948 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3454 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1948), aff'd, 275 A.D. 801, 88 N.Y.S.2d 917, 1949 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4538 (N.Y. App. Div. 1949).

While the prime purpose in enacting this section is to provide protection against possible injustice on the part of contractors in dealing with laborers and mechanics, under § 210 any citizen may maintain a mandamus proceeding to compel certification of a proposed schedule of wage rates and supplemental benefits, including the successful bidder on a public contract. Gottlieb Contracting, Inc. v Beame, 41 Misc. 2d 1097, 247 N.Y.S.2d 237, 1964 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2110 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1964).

3. Constitutionality

A contract for street improvement is not invalid because it requires bidders to observe the provisions of the Labor Law, a part of which was declared unconstitutional before the bids were made, where the contract only provided for compliance with the provisions of the laws which were enforced when the price for the work was not increased by reason of such provision and the contract would stand unimpaired if the unconstitutional part of the labor were eliminated therefrom. People ex rel. North v Featherstonhaugh, 172 N.Y. 112, 64 N.E. 802, 172 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 112, 1902 N.Y. LEXIS 657 (N.Y. 1902).

This section is not violative of the N. Y. Const., in so far is it requires payment of the "prevailing rate" of wages on public works, on the ground that it is unintelligible; there is no constitutional immunity against ambiguous contractual obligations. Campbell v New York, 244 N.Y. 317, 155 N.E. 628, 244 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 317, 1927 N.Y. LEXIS 1059 (N.Y. 1927).

Section 220 is a valid exercise of legislative power. Rooney v McGoldrick, 280 N.Y. 632, 20 N.E.2d 1009, 280 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 632, 1939 N.Y. LEXIS 1453 (N.Y. 1939).

By requiring that each public works contract entered into with a governmental entity include a provision mandating that prevailing wages be paid to everyone employed on that project, the New York Legislature did not unduly interfere with a self-employed electrician and business owner's freedom of contract or deprive him of property without due process. The business owner had the choice of entering into public works contracts with two municipalities and pay prevailing wages or refusing to enter into those contracts; furthermore, the Legislature did not unconstitutionally delegate its power by allowing the New York State Department of Labor to rely on collective bargaining agreements in setting prevailing wage rates. Matter of Nash v New York State Dept. of Labor, 34 A.D.3d 905, 824 N.Y.S.2d 438, 2006 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13011 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2006), app. denied, 8 N.Y.3d 803, 830 N.Y.S.2d 700, 862 N.E.2d 792, 2007 N.Y. LEXIS 247 (N.Y. 2007).

Section 83-4.0 of the Administrative Code of the City of New York, which provides that workmen on excavations made in city streets shall be paid at "the prevailing scale of union wages" differs from this section in that no method is prescribed for determining the specified scale and therefore the statute is subject to attack for vagueness. Larkin v Consolidated Tel. & Electrical Subway Co., 85 N.Y.S.2d 631, 193 Misc. 1001, 1949 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1683 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1949).

When public policy has been established by the Legislature, and it has spoken by statute as to what it shall be, the court cannot invoke its opinion otherwise unless there is a flagrant violation of the Constitution or common law, and it is then, and only in rare instances, that the court may declare and determine public policy. Accordingly, section 220 of the Labor Law, which requires that public works contractors pay whatever prevailing labor rates and supplements the Industrial Commissioner of the State of New York might determine during the time the work is being performed, is not an impairment of contracts in violation of article I (§ 10, cl 1) of the United States Constitution when the contracts are entered into in legal contemplation that a change might be made in the prevailing rate of wages, nor is § 220 contrary to public policy in that it undermines principles of mutuality and comity in commercial transactions; it is virtually an unrealistic legal theory to enforce an equity complaint of overreaching by the State in public bid contracts, since the bidding process has to be a "take it or leave it" proposition. Meaott Constr. Corp. v Ross, 100 Misc. 2d 767, 420 N.Y.S.2d 118, 1979 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2543 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1979), aff'd, (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1980).

4. Retroactive application

The 1966 and 1967 amendments to Labor Law § 220(3) may not be applied retroactively to a contract executed prior to the effective date of the Amendments. Deutsch v Catherwood, 31 N.Y.2d 487, 341 N.Y.S.2d 600, 294 N.E.2d 193, 1973 N.Y. LEXIS 1455 (N.Y. 1973).

1989 amendments to CLS Labor §§ 220(8) and 220-b(2)(f), which authorized Commissioner of Labor to file administrative order against employer with county clerk and stated that order would have same effect as judgment, could be applied retroactively to enforce 1987 administrative order against employer since amendments were remedial legislation which created no new substantive bases of liability, effected no change in prevailing standard of review before administrative agency, and did not curtail or limit employer's right to review. Unicorn Developers, Ltd. v Commissioner of Labor, 190 A.D.2d 807, 593 N.Y.S.2d 849, 1993 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1445 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1993).

1989 amendments to CLS Labor §§ 220(8) and 220-b(2)(f), which authorized Commissioner of Labor to file administrative order against employer with county clerk and stated that order would have same effect as judgment, could be applied retroactively to enforce 1987 administrative order against employer without violating any due process considerations. Unicorn Developers, Ltd. v Commissioner of Labor, 190 A.D.2d 807, 593 N.Y.S.2d 849, 1993 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1445 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1993).

Notice of new enforcement policies adopted by Department of Labor regarding payment of prevailing supplements on behalf of workers into ERISA-qualified benefit plans merely communicated to contractors that CLS Labor § 220 violations occurring after grace period would be prosecuted as willful, and thus Article 78 court properly dismissed petitioners' claim that investigating past practices which had always violated § 220, but were unregulated due to perceived procedural constraint, constituted improper retroactive application of law. HMI Mech. Sys. v McGowan, 277 A.D.2d 657, 716 N.Y.S.2d 426, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11964 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2000), app. denied, 96 N.Y.2d 705, 723 N.Y.S.2d 131, 746 N.E.2d 186, 2001 N.Y. LEXIS 280 (N.Y. 2001).

This subdivision creates no new remedy, being rather procedural, and therefore may be applied retroactively. Evadan Realty Corp. v Patterson, 78 N.Y.S.2d 114, 192 Misc. 850, 1948 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2229 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1948), aff'd, 276 A.D. 751, 92 N.Y.S.2d 504, 1949 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3165 (N.Y. App. Div. 1949), limited, Nolan v New York City Housing Authority, 99 N.Y.S.2d 307, 199 Misc. 599, 1950 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1931 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1950).

1989 amendments to CLS Labor §§ 220 and 220-b, allowing Commissioner of Labor to enter as money judgments administrative orders fixing amounts due laborers and others employed on public works for nonpayment or underpayment of prevailing wages without need to acquire wage claim assignments from affected employees or bring plenary actions to obtain judgments, would not be applied retroactively to permit entry as judgment of 1987 administrative order assessing civil penalty against petitioner and its subcontractor for willful failure to pay prevailing wages since such retroactive application would impair due process by depriving petitioner of right to assert defenses, such as statute of limitations under CLS Labor § 220(8). Unicorn Developers, Ltd. v Commissioner of Labor, 147 Misc. 2d 717, 556 N.Y.S.2d 811, 1990 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 273 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1990).

5. Public works contracts

In an Article 78 proceeding to challenge the city's award of contracts for the supply of coal and coke to a competitor of a fuel service company, the company's petition would be dismissed where the city's alleged failure to include wage schedules in the bid and contract specifications would not render the contracts completely void, where it had been doubtful whether the contracts had come within the purview of "public work" and "building service work" contracts (Labor Law §§ 220 and 231), and where the competitor had contended that the wage rates for itself, and for the fuel service company, would have been the same in that both companies were parties to the same labor contract with the union. Public Fuel Service, Inc. v New York, 92 A.D.2d 451, 458 N.Y.S.2d 593, 1983 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 16639 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1983).

Manufacturer's replacement of warranted goods used in public works project constituted public works contract subject to prevailing wage rate requirement of CLS Labor § 220. Bridgestone/Firestone, Inc. v Hartnett, 175 A.D.2d 495, 572 N.Y.S.2d 770, 1991 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10424 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1991).

Lack of competitive bidding in connection with manufacturer's replacement of roof on state-owned building did not bar its consideration as public works contract. Bridgestone/Firestone, Inc. v Hartnett, 175 A.D.2d 495, 572 N.Y.S.2d 770, 1991 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10424 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1991).

Under public works contract that contractor entered into with city, subcontractor's invoices did not constitute an account stated because it failed to satisfy the condition precedent for payment, namely, the submission of payroll reports. High Tech Enters. & Elec. Servs. of NY, Inc. v Expert Elec., Inc., 113 A.D.3d 546, 980 N.Y.S.2d 387, 2014 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 442 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2014).

Section 220(3) has no application to work on materials entering into construction of public works project where work is not done at site of project and such work is not customarily done there. Garofano Const. Co. v New York, 43 N.Y.S.2d 26, 180 Misc. 539, 1943 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2102 (N.Y. App. Term), aff'd, 266 A.D. 960, 44 N.Y.S.2d 682, 1943 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5475 (N.Y. App. Div. 1943).

Commissioner's decision to cancel a contract with a floor covering installer to perform government projects after discovering that the installer's bid was below the prevailing wage rate required for state contracts, and not permitting modification of the proposal was rational, and the trial court properly dismissed the installer's N.Y. C.P.L.R. art. 78 petition seeking an injunction to prevent the cancellation. Taub's Carpet & Tile Corp. v Ringler, 1 A.D.3d 730, 766 N.Y.S.2d 646, 2003 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11734 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2003).

N.Y. Lab. Law § 220(3) did not include contracts for the sale of goods used in public works projects, and where a steel company acted solely as materials supplier, supplying shop-painted structural steel for a public works project, its workers were not subject to prevailing wage laws; a trial court's order dismissing a proceeding brought by a union representative pursuant to N.Y. C.P.L.R. art. 78 against a transportation department, seeking review of the transportation department's denial of the union representative's request under the Freedom of Information Law, N.Y. Pub. Off. Law art. 6, for the steel company's payroll records, was affirmed. Ramaglia v N.Y. State DOT, 5 A.D.3d 909, 773 N.Y.S.2d 167, 2004 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2560 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), app. denied, 3 N.Y.3d 601, 782 N.Y.S.2d 405, 816 N.E.2d 195, 2004 N.Y. LEXIS 1595 (N.Y. 2004).

A resolution by a county requiring all bidders on county public works contracts to participate in an approved apprentice training program is of questionable propriety. 1982 Op. St Compt File #82-128.

6. —What is "public work"

Installation of telecommunications system which required degree of construction-like labor and was installed in public building for use by public employees was "public work" within meaning of CLS Labor § 220; question as to what constitutes "public work" focuses on purpose or function of project. Twin State CCS Corp. v Roberts, 72 N.Y.2d 897, 532 N.Y.S.2d 746, 528 N.E.2d 1219, 1988 N.Y. LEXIS 1663 (N.Y. 1988).

Letterers and sign painters employed by the City of New York are engaged in "public work" and are entitled to the prevailing rate of wages. Miele v Joseph, 280 A.D. 408, 113 N.Y.S.2d 689, 1952 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3489 (N.Y. App. Div. 1952), aff'd, 305 N.Y. 667, 112 N.E.2d 764, 305 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 667, 1953 N.Y. LEXIS 1219 (N.Y. 1953).

Project to construct low and moderate income housing units pursuant to CLS Priv Hous Fin Art XIX was not public works project within parameters of CLS Labor § 220 so as to require payment of prevailing wages since there was no public use of project, no public ownership, no public access and no public enjoyment. Vulcan Affordable Housing Corp. v Hartnett, 151 A.D.2d 84, 545 N.Y.S.2d 952, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12423 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1989).

Contract to lease privately-owned, but not yet built, facility to provide office space for county agency did not constitute public work project, and thus Commissioner of Labor erred in determining that building owner and general contractor failed to pay construction workers prevailing rate of wages, where owner's goal was to make profit, owner retained all risks and benefits of ownership, building was to be constructed on privately-owned property and, once completed, it would be privately owned. 60 Market Street Assoc. v Hartnett, 153 A.D.2d 205, 551 N.Y.S.2d 346, 1990 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 903 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), aff'd, 76 N.Y.2d 993, 564 N.Y.S.2d 713, 565 N.E.2d 1264, 1990 N.Y. LEXIS 4424 (N.Y. 1990).

"Home for Parenting Adolescents" built by petitioner was not public works project subject to prevailing wage requirements of CLS Labor Art 8 where petitioner privately developed facility and privately owned it, notwithstanding that state provided financial assistance to petitioner; public purpose behind financing scheme should not be confused with private purpose or function of venture itself. Cattaraugus Community Action, Inc. v Hartnett, 166 A.D.2d 891, 560 N.Y.S.2d 550, 1990 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12133 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1990).

Issue of what is public works contract, in regard to determination as to whether CLS Labor § 220 applies to project, is essentially question of statutory reading and analysis, and therefore determination of Commissioner of Labor of such issue is not entitled to special deference. National R. Passenger Corp. v Hartnett, 169 A.D.2d 127, 572 N.Y.S.2d 386, 1991 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9549 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1991).

Construction of railroad line by Amtrak and state was not public works project subject to prevailing wage rate provisions of CLS Labor § 220 since (1) Amtrak's purpose in entering into contract with state to build railroad line was to enhance its nongovernmental function of providing efficient and eventually profitable passenger train service, and (2) Amtrak retained ownership of railroad lines that were subject of contract, bore risk of future financial losses or destruction, was entitled to all future profits, and retained authority to condition public's use of railroad lines on purchase of ticket. National R. Passenger Corp. v Hartnett, 169 A.D.2d 127, 572 N.Y.S.2d 386, 1991 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9549 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1991).

Significant partial and even complete governmental funding of improvement is insufficient to convert private project into public works project; public purpose of funding scheme may be distinguished from essentially private purpose of venture itself. National R. Passenger Corp. v Hartnett, 169 A.D.2d 127, 572 N.Y.S.2d 386, 1991 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9549 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1991).

Renovation of former classroom building located on state university campus was properly determined by Commissioner of Labor to benefit public as "public works" project subject to prevailing wage law where, inter alia, building was to be leased, not sold, as hotel and conference center, all renovations were subject to approval of state Office of General Services and university to ascertain that needs of public were met, and there was guaranteed public access to building on at least one day per month. Sarkisian Bros., Inc. v Hartnett, 172 A.D.2d 895, 568 N.Y.S.2d 190, 1991 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4258 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), app. denied, 78 N.Y.2d 859, 575 N.Y.S.2d 456, 580 N.E.2d 1059, 1991 N.Y. LEXIS 4177 (N.Y. 1991).

Replacement of roofing material on armory, which was state-owned public building, pursuant to warranty and for benefit of public employees, constituted public works project. Bridgestone/Firestone, Inc. v Hartnett, 175 A.D.2d 495, 572 N.Y.S.2d 770, 1991 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10424 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1991).

Highway work permits issued by Department of Transportation (DOT) pursuant to 17 NYCRR § 125.2(a) for construction of privately financed frontage road on publicly owned land was not sufficient to label project "public work" within meaning of CLS Labor § 220-d, and project did not satisfy public works contract requirement of CLS Labor § 220, where it was undisputed that DOT was not party to any contract for construction of project; thus, court would annul Commissioner of Labor's determination that petitioner was required to pay prevailing wage and wage supplements. Pyramid Co. v New York State DOL, 223 A.D.2d 285, 645 N.Y.S.2d 633, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7970 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1996).

Despite its ancillary use as training exercise for public school construction technology students, construction of school building qualified as "public work" project in that primary purpose of work performed by both building contractors and unpaid students was construction of office building that would benefit school district, its employees and general public. Onondaga-Cortland-Madison Bd. of Coop. Educ. Servs. v McGowan, 285 A.D.2d 36, 728 N.Y.S.2d 109, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6242 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2001).

Willful failure to pay prevailing wages claim failed as Brukhman v. Giuliani, 727 N.E.2d 116 (N.Y. 2000), controlled, and the repair of City vessels that the workers were engaged in was not a public work under N.Y. Lab. Law § 220(3) since more than just public purpose or function was required to determine that project was public work; the prevailing wage law was limited to those workers employed in the construction, repair and maintenance work of fixed structures, and did not apply to workers who were servicing a commodity owned by the City. De La Cruz v Caddell Dry Dock & Repair Co., Inc., 95 A.D.3d 297, 942 N.Y.S.2d 61, 2012 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2632 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2012), rev'd, 21 N.Y.3d 530, 975 N.Y.S.2d 371, 997 N.E.2d 1223, 2013 N.Y. LEXIS 1731 (N.Y. 2013).

Construction, repair, and maintenance of a charter school was subject to the prevailing wage law, N.Y. Lab. Law § 220 et seq., because a charter agreement was a contract by and between a public entity and a third party, and the Charter Schools Act, N.Y. Educ. Law § 2850 et seq., was intended to benefit the public; thus, work done on charter school facilities were public works projects. N.Y. Educ. Law § 2854(1)(b) did not exempt charter schools from provisions that required payment of the prevailing rate of wage to those engaged on projects for public work. Matter of Foundation for a Greater Opportunity v Smith, 860 N.Y.S.2d 734, 20 Misc. 3d 453, 2008 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3075 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 2008), rev'd, 61 A.D.3d 1091, 875 N.Y.S.2d 643, 2009 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2452 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2009).

N.Y. Lab. Law § 220 prevailing wage provisions did not apply to contracts for the construction, renovation, repair, and maintenance of charter schools because the agreements under which the charter schools operated were not contracts between a public entity and another party, or by a third party for the benefit of a public entity, which involved the employment of laborers, workers, or mechanics on a public works project, as was required under the first prong of the Erie County test; under the Charter Schools Act, N.Y. Educ. Law art. 56, charter schools had unique characteristics that distinguished them from the public entities enumerated in the prevailing wage law. Most of the provisions of the charter agreements addressed administrative matters involving the operation of the school, and the requirement that the charter agreement also contain information regarding the facilities to be used did not transform it into a contract for the construction, renovation, or repair of a public works project. Matter of N.Y. Charter Sch. Ass'n v Smith, 61 A.D.3d 1091, 875 N.Y.S.2d 643, 2009 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2452 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2009), aff'd, 15 N.Y.3d 403, 914 N.Y.S.2d 696, 940 N.E.2d 522, 2010 N.Y. LEXIS 2950 (N.Y. 2010).

Office of General Services (OGS) was unauthorized to include a provision requiring payment of a prevailing wage in a lease because the lease did not involve public work as required by N.Y. Lab. Law § 220; further, by including the prevailing wage clause in the lease, the OGS was violating the separation of powers doctrine. Ellicott Group, LLC v State of N.Y. Exec. Dept. Off. of Gen. Servs., 85 A.D.3d 48, 922 N.Y.S.2d 894, 2011 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3401 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 2011).

Contracts for purchase of commodities not "public work" within meaning of these Labor Law provisions. 1947 Ops St Compt 293.

A contract which is entered into between a town and a contractor for the construction of curbs and gutters in one section of a town, the real property owners of which section are assessed for the cost, is a contract for "public work" for the purposes of section 220 of the Labor Law and must contain a stipulation as to hours. 1956 Ops St Compt File #8255.

7. —Prevailing wage requirement

Volunteer fire department, general contractor, and subcontractors were entitled to N.Y. C.P.L.R. art. 78 relief because prevailing wage law, N.Y. Lab. Law § 220(2), did not apply where the volunteer fire department was not public agency, and the service agreements at issue did not include any provision contemplating the construction of a new firehouse. Matter of M.G.M. Insulation, Inc. v Gardner, 20 N.Y.3d 469, 962 N.Y.S.2d 600, 985 N.E.2d 911, 2013 N.Y. LEXIS 132 (N.Y. 2013).

Though a city comptroller properly determined that a contractor that had been hired to remove and dispose of sewer deposits had violated Labor L § 220 by failing to pay prevailing wages and to provide prevailing supplemental benefits to its employees in connection with the subject public works contracts, the comptroller's determination that the contractor's violations had been willful would be reversed, and the comptroller's imposition of a five-year sanction under Labor L § 220-b(3)(b) and award of a penalty and interest would be vacated, where the record showed that the contractor had been apprised by various agency officials in connection with both the current and prior contracts that Labor L § 220 did not apply to sewer cleaning contracts, and that, when the contractor had sought an opinion from the comptroller's office on such question, no response had been forthcoming, so that the contractor's actions did not constitute a knowing or intentional violation of the statute, and where the contractor had exhibited good faith in attempting to comply with the statute, the violation at issue had not been substantial, and the contractor had not engaged in any previous similar violations, so that the award of a civil penalty and interest was unwarranted under the terms of Labor L § 220(8). Sewer Environmental Contractors, Inc. v Goldin, 98 A.D.2d 606, 469 N.Y.S.2d 339, 1983 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 20886 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1983).

Court would reject contention that prevailing wage law, CLS Labor § 220, does not apply to small public projects; thus, court would affirm order directing petitioner to pay about $5,000 in additional wages, together with interest and penalties, to employees involved in several public works contracts, although only one contract exceeded $3,140. Door Specialties, Inc. v Commissioner of Labor, 158 A.D.2d 923, 551 N.Y.S.2d 88, 1990 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1424 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1990).

Because no private right of action existed to enforce contracts requiring payment of prevailing wages pursuant to the Federal Davis-Bacon Act, 40 U.S.C.S. § 3142 et seq., the trial court properly dismissed the workers' N.Y. Lab. Law § 220 causes of action to recover wages and benefits for work performed on certain federally-funded projects. Gawez v Inter-Connection Elec., Inc., 44 A.D.3d 898, 845 N.Y.S.2d 367, 2007 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11250 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2007).

Department's finding that an employer operating a water treatment plant failed to pay prevailing wages and supplements was proper because, in light of the beneficent purpose of N.Y. Lab. Law § 220 to ensure that contractors engaged in public works projects pay wages and supplements at a rate not less than the prevailing rate in area, that statute applied; nowhere in the special legislation of 2002 N.Y. Laws, 206 did it state that it superceded the constitutionally protected prevailing wage and supplement requirements embodied in N.Y. Lab. Law § 220. In fact, it clarified that every agreement entered into between the city and a private entity, for the construction of a water filtration or wastewater treatment facility, shall have required the payment of all applicable prevailing wages. Matter of Earth Tech, Inc. v Angello, 47 A.D.3d 1080, 851 N.Y.S.2d 658, 2008 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 267 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2008).

Because a contract between a fire department and a general contractor contemplated the employment of laborers, workers, or mechanics, because the fire department was under a village's control, and because the construction of a new fire station qualified as a public work project, it was subject to the prevailing wage requirements of N.Y. Lab. Law § 220; accordingly, they were not entitled to N.Y. C.P.L.R. art. 78 relief. Matter of M.G.M. Insulation, Inc. v Gardner, 86 A.D.3d 812, 927 N.Y.S.2d 242, 2011 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5877 (N.Y. Shareholder was not entitled to N.Y. C.P.L.R. art. 78 relief because N.Y. Lab. Law § 220, the prevailing wage law, was not preempted by federal law, and the evidence of significant discrepancies between the certified payroll records that the corporation submitted to the Department of Labor and the actual wages received by the employees supported a finding that the corporation failed to pay prevailing wages and supplements. Matter of Pascazi v Gardner, 106 A.D.3d 1143, 966 N.Y.S.2d 528, 2013 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3062 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), app. dismissed, 21 N.Y.3d 1057, 974 N.Y.S.2d 27, 996 N.E.2d 907, 2013 N.Y. Because an alleged prevailing wage violation is an issue within the exclusive province of the Office of the Comptroller of the City of New York and there had been no final determination by the Comptroller, the trial court erred in dismissing a third-party cause of action alleging breach of contract on the ground that the third-party defendants had a legal right to withhold payment by reason of a prevailing wage violation. Gym Door Repairs, Inc. v Astoria Gen. Contr. Corp., 144 A.D.3d 1093, 43 N.Y.S.3d 381, 2016 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7889 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2016).

Prevailing wage laws did not apply to construction work for a lessee of state-owned racetracks and facilities because there was not substantial evidence showing that the project was paid for by public funds, that the funds retained any public characteristic, or that they could be traced back to a public source. W.M. Schultz Constr., Inc. v Musolino, 147 A.D.3d 1259, 47 N.Y.S.3d 773, 2017 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1407 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), app. denied, 30 N.Y.3d 903, 89 N.E.3d 518, 67 N.Y.S.3d 128, 2017 N.Y. LEXIS 3099 (N.Y. 2017).

In an Article 78 proceeding brought by petitioner, an organization composed of representatives of labor and management in the electrical industry, seeking to require the mayor to incorporate within a city's standard form of contracts for the fabrication and installation of telecommunications facilities a provision requiring the payment of salaries at not less than the prevailing rate of wages for certain classes of employment in public works under Labor Law § 220(3) and the New York State Constitution Art I § 17, the petition would be granted where, although such provision is generally inapplicable to contracts for the purchase of goods, and the cost of labor is substantially less than the cost of the equipment, the test of the applicability of § 220 should be whether there are persons within the enumerated classes of employment engaged in public work and not determined by an arbitrary numerical ratio of labor to material. Joint Industry Bd. of Electrical Industry v Koch, 114 Misc. 2d 868, 452 N.Y.S.2d 488, 1982 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3579 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1982).

Davis-Bacon Act (40 USCS § 276a et seq.) preempts prevailing state wage act (CLS Labor § 220) on housing project that is entirely federally funded; thus, plaintiffs could not recover prevailing state wages for labor performed on 5 fully federally funded public work projects where 3 of contracts contained language that mirrored 24 CFR § 965.101. Majstrovic v R. Maric Piping, Inc., 171 Misc. 2d 429, 655 N.Y.S.2d 285, 1997 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 22 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1997).

Laborers could not assert private right of action against employer for value of their services and work performed on federally funded work projects where wage rate was determined by Davis-Bacon Act (40 USCS § 276a et seq.), which preempted state law, since Act did not expressly authorize private right of action in favor of wage earners aggrieved by violation of Act; even if Act did not preempt state law, CLS Labor § 220 did not provide private right of action. Majstrovic v R. Maric Piping, Inc., 171 Misc. 2d 429, 655 N.Y.S.2d 285, 1997 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 22 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1997).

State Department of Labor Commissioner's decision that a contractor failed to pay the prevailing wages and supplements on five public works projects, that such failure was willful, and that the contractor was liable to pay principal sums in wages and in supplements with interest, as well as a civil penalty, was supported by substantial evidence; further, said failure to pay the prevailing wages constituted a single willful violation of N.Y. Lab. Law § 220. Chesterfield Assocs. v N.Y. State Dep't of Labor, 3 A.D.3d 491, 771 N.Y.S.2d 139, 2004 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 282 (N.Y. Because the parties' lease did not constitute "a public work project" within the meaning of N.Y. Lab. Law § 220, a county could not prevail on its action for a preliminary injunction under N.Y. C.P.L.R. art. 63 enjoining the landlord from continuing to violate the prevailing wage provision of their lease agreement. County of Suffolk v Coram Equities LLC, 233 N.Y.L.J. 54, 2005 N.Y. Misc. In the construction of a town garage, the prevailing rate of wage law applies. 1947 Ops St Compt 140.

8. Authorities, commissions, and districts

Statute concerning hours and wages under public contracts applied to construction project under contract with Power Authority of State of New York. G & G Erectors, Inc. v Levine, 48 A.D.2d 960, 369 N.Y.S.2d 40, 1975 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10253 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1975).

9. Manufacturers

The phrase "self contractor or other person dealing or contracting to do a whole or part of the work in" does not include a manufacturer entering into an agreement with a municipal contractor for the manufacturer of doors, windows and other woodwork for a building. Such a contract constitutes a mere purchase of material. Bohnen v Metz, 126 A.D. 807, 111 N.Y.S. 196, 1908 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3451 (N.Y. App. Div.), aff'd, 193 N.Y. 676, 87 N.E. 1122, 193 N.Y. In a suit to foreclose a mechanic's lien, it appears that the plaintiff contracted to manufacture, and install in a theatre gas and electric fixtures, and evidence shows that they were all specially designed with reference to general decorative scheme and architecture of building and to harmonize with one another, and were manufactured by plaintiff from such designs, labor of designing, manufacturing and installing such fixtures and furnishing of fixtures constitutes performance of labor and furnishing of materials "for improvement of real property" within the meaning of this section. Wahle-Phillips Co. v Fifty-Ninth St.-Madison Ave. Co., 153 A.D. 17, 138 N.Y.S. 13, 1912 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9208 (N.Y. App. Div. 1912), aff'd, 214 N.Y. 684, 108 N.E. 1110, 214 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 684, 1915 N.Y. LEXIS 1399 (N.Y. 1915).

10. Municipal corporations

The term public work includes work done by a municipal corporation itself as well as that done for a municipal corporation by a contractor. McAvoy v New York, 52 A.D. 485, 65 N.Y.S. 274, 1900 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1630 (N.Y. App. Div. 1900), aff'd, 166 N.Y. 588, 59 N.E. 1125, 166 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 588, 1901 N.Y. LEXIS 1307 (N.Y. 1901).

11. Utilities

Where town and public utility entered into contract for installation of light standards which were to remain the property of the utility, but the contract provided for purchase of the standards at any time by the town and reimbursement of the utility according to a formula in the event that the use of the standards was discontinued, the contract was a public works contract subject to the requirement that the utility pay laborers on the project the prevailing wage. Long Island Lighting Co. v Industrial Comm'r, 40 A.D.2d 1003, 338 N.Y.S.2d 751, 1972 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3063 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1972), app. dismissed, 32 N.Y.2d 646, 342 N.Y.S.2d 852, 295 N.E.2d 652, 1973 N.Y. LEXIS 1452 (N.Y. 1973), aff'd, 34 N.Y.2d 725, 357 N.Y.S.2d 493, 313 N.E.2d 787, 1974 N.Y. LEXIS 1607 (N.Y. 1974).

In dispute as to whether contract between public utility and town for installation of lighting standards was a public works contract, it was within the competence of the industrial commissioner to determine whether the utility's employees were performing work in the field surveyed by him and to find the classification of the jobs involved. Long Island Lighting Co. v Industrial Comm'r, 40 A.D.2d 1003, 338 N.Y.S.2d 751, 1972 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3063 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1972), app. dismissed, 32 N.Y.2d 646, 342 N.Y.S.2d 852, 295 N.E.2d 652, 1973 N.Y. LEXIS 1452 (N.Y. 1973), aff'd, 34 N.Y.2d 725, 357 N.Y.S.2d 493, 313 N.E.2d 787, 1974 N.Y. LEXIS 1607 (N.Y. 1974).

12. Employees protected

A city comptroller properly determined that a plumbing corporation, in its performance of five public work contracts with a city Board of Education, had wilfully violated Labor Law § 220 by failing to pay the prevailing wage and supplemental benefits to an employee where, though the plumbing company labelled the subject employee as a "gofer," a job title not appearing on the schedule of wages and benefits, as its basis for compensating the employee at a rate substantially lower than any of the scheduled rates, the company's description of the employee's duties, which entailed unskilled physical labor, as well as the claims examiner's observations, made it clear that the employee was a laborer, the prevailing wage for which position appeared on the schedule. Dadson Plumbing Corp. v Goldin, 104 A.D.2d 346, 479 N.Y.S.2d 348, 1984 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 19816 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1984), modified, 66 N.Y.2d 713, 496 N.Y.S.2d 731, 487 N.E.2d 558, 1985 N.Y. LEXIS 17255 (N.Y. 1985).

Substantial evidence supported determination that mason hired by public works contractor was employee, not independent contractor, and thus entitled to prevailing wage and wage supplements where (1) mason had no contract with contractor, did not hold himself out to public as independent contractor, had never worked as subcontractor on public works project, had no other employees, and worked for no other employer during his engagement with contractor, and (2) subcontractors on project worked for fixed price to be paid at conclusion of project, but mason was to be paid at periodic rate for number of days and half days actually worked. LBS of Frankfort, Inc. v Hudacs, 185 A.D.2d 476, 586 N.Y.S.2d 333, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8971 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1992).

Evidence supported determination of Commissioner of Labor as to job classifications of workers who had not been paid prevailing wages where commissioner relied on testimony of department investigator as well as on testimony of workers as to work they actually performed, and local union representatives testified as to designations adopted by commissioner; employer's reliance on work performed by replacement subcontractor was appropriately rejected where such work was performed during different phase of construction than that of employer. Agency Constr. Corp. v Hudacs, 205 A.D.2d 980, 613 N.Y.S.2d 974, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7039 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1994).

For purposes of determining payment of prevailing wages and supplements, question of appropriate classification of work performed is matter within expertise of Commissioner of Labor and will not be disturbed without clear showing that classification does not reflect nature of work actually performed. Marangos Constr. Corp. v New York State Dep't of Labor, 216 A.D.2d 758, 628 N.Y.S.2d 451, 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6543 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1995).

Determination of Commissioner of Labor that contractor should have paid prevailing sheet metal worker's wage for portion of construction project that involved installation of copper roofing was supported by testimony of contractor's employees that project required them to cut, fabricate, lay, nail and solder 14-gauge copper sheeting to sloped portions of roof, and testimony of wage investigator that prevailing practice in area was to classify employees performing such work as sheet metal workers. Marangos Constr. Corp. v New York State Dep't of Labor, 216 A.D.2d 758, 628 N.Y.S.2d 451, 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6543 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1995).

All laborers employed by a village must be paid at least the prevailing rate of wage in the locality for the particular type of work they are performing. 1954 Ops St Compt File #7009.

Employees of a subcontractor could proceed on contractual claims against the general contractor as third-party beneficiaries of a New York public works contract that expressly incorporated this section's prevailing wage requirement because the contract mentioned subcontractors' employees and New York case law allows such claims. Fact issues precluded summary judgment as to work performed at a shop outside New York; its nature and extent was unclear, and the accuracy of time records was disputed. Solouk v European Copper Specialties, Inc., 2019 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 81267 (S.D.N.Y. May 2, 2019).

13. —Foremen; supervisors

A foreman of bridgemen and riveters is a workman within the meaning of this section providing that "laborers, workmen or mechanics" upon public works shall be paid the prevailing rate of wages therefor, and is entitled to the prevailing rate of pay for foremen in the locality. Austin v New York, 258 N.Y. 113, 179 N.E. 313, 258 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 113, 1932 N.Y. LEXIS 1160 (N.Y. 1932).

Labor Commissioner properly required contractor on public work project to pay employee who was performing both supervisory and nonsupervisory duties prevailing wage rate under CLS Labor § 220 for portion of his time that he was doing nonsupervisory work, since employee's nonsupervisory duties were clearly covered by statute and he could not be excluded from coverage merely because he performed some supervisory functions in addition thereto. Tenalp Constr. Corp. v Roberts, 141 A.D.2d 81, 532 N.Y.S.2d 801, 1988 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9316 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1988).

Failure of experienced public works contractor to pay prevailing rates of pay for carpenters to employee who was hired both as superintendent and carpenter constituted willful violation of CLS Labor § 220; employee did not cease to be carpenter merely because he supervised other carpenters, and contractor knew or should have known that it was obligated to pay him as carpenter. Tenalp Constr. Corp. v Roberts, 141 A.D.2d 81, 532 N.Y.S.2d 801, 1988 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9316 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1988).

This section relates to laborers and is inapplicable to an office appliance operator and supervisor of tabulating machinery employed by the city of New York. Weiselberg v McNamara, 97 N.Y.S.2d 224, 198 Misc. 48, 1950 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1631 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1950), rev'd, 278 A.D. 694, 103 N.Y.S.2d 1014, 1951 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4386 (N.Y. App. Div. 1951).

14. —Apprentices; trainees

Where record was deficient for lack of administrative determination relative to whether employees had been employed initially as apprentices or as electricians, proceeding would be remitted for such determination. Deutsch v Catherwood, 31 N.Y.2d 487, 341 N.Y.S.2d 600, 294 N.E.2d 193, 1973 N.Y. LEXIS 1455 (N.Y. 1973).

Under CLS Labor § 220, contractors involved in state-funded project were required to pay journey-level rather than apprentice-level wages to federal trainees not registered in state-approved apprentice programs, although federal trainee programs were virtually identical to state-approved programs and were consistent with state labor law policy of reducing discrimination in construction industry. Monarch Electrical Contracting Corp. v Roberts, 70 N.Y.2d 91, 517 N.Y.S.2d 711, 510 N.E.2d 795, 1987 N.Y. LEXIS 16799 (N.Y. 1987).

Rule that trainees registered in programs of federal Department of Labor may not be substituted by contractors and paid wages less than journey-level workers applies not only to state-funded projects but also to jointly-funded projects since CLS Labor § 220 unambiguously authorizes only 2 categories of employees—journeymen and apprentices—and makes no provision for third category. Tap Electrical Contracting Service, Inc. v Hartnett, 76 N.Y.2d 164, 556 N.Y.S.2d 988, 556 N.E.2d 427, 1990 N.Y. LEXIS 1308 (N.Y. 1990).

Where claimants were hired and compensated at the rate then prevailing for apprentices, but none of them had been registered in accordance with Labor Law § 220(3), an amendment to such statute to provide that no employee should be deemed to be an apprentice unless he was individually registered in the apprenticeship program did not result in their being underpaid since the amendment to the statute could not be applied retroactively. Deutsch v Catherwood, 37 A.D.2d 399, 325 N.Y.S.2d 953, 1971 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2987 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1971), modified, 31 N.Y.2d 487, 341 N.Y.S.2d 600, 294 N.E.2d 193, 1973 N.Y. LEXIS 1455 (N.Y. 1973).

Where individuals hired and paid by employer on construction project under contract with Power Authority of State of New York as apprentices were not registered with State, statute relating to hours and wages under public contracts required that they be paid as journeymen. G & G Erectors, Inc. v Levine, 48 A.D.2d 960, 369 N.Y.S.2d 40, 1975 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10253 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1975).

Employer on construction project under contract with Power Authority of State of New York was obligated to determine status of apprentices furnished by local union. G & G Erectors, Inc. v Levine, 48 A.D.2d 960, 369 N.Y.S.2d 40, 1975 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10253 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1975).

Application to employer on construction project under contract with Power Authority of State of New York of statute providing that apprentices will be permitted to work as such only when they are registered, individually, under a bona fide program registered with New York State Department of Labor did not deprive employer of property without due process of law. G & G Erectors, Inc. v Levine, 48 A.D.2d 960, 369 N.Y.S.2d 40, 1975 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10253 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1975).

The Industrial Commissioner could reasonably require participation in an approved apprenticeship training program as a supplement to the award of a public works construction contract let out to bid, and rejection of a low bid because it lacked proof that the bidder's employees were covered by an apprentice training program as required by the bid specifications was therefore proper. Skyway Roofing of Troy, Inc. v County of Rensselaer, 79 A.D.2d 1078, 436 N.Y.S.2d 103, 1981 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10006 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), app. denied, 53 N.Y.2d 606, 1981 N.Y. LEXIS 3483 (N.Y. 1981).

In a proceeding to vacate a determination of the Commissioner of Labor, in which it was found that petitioner electrical contracting company had willfully violated Labor Law § 220(3-e) by paying an employee as an apprentice rather than at the prescribed rate for an electrician during a period in which the employee was not individually registered as an apprentice, the petition would be granted where the record was clear that, as part of an affirmative action program, the employee in question was assigned to petitioner as an apprentice by the local labor council, whose director erroneously believed that because of the nature of the program involved it would be permissible to file a covering individual apprenticeship agreement after completion of the employee's probationary period, and where there was nothing to suggest that petitioner did not act in good faith on the basis of the assurance received from the director, a man with extensive experience regarding apprenticeship programs. In re Tap Electrical Contracting Service, Inc., 104 A.D.2d 548, 480 N.Y.S.2d 215, 1984 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 20006 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1984).

Determination that subcontractor willfully failed to pay its employee prevailing wages in violation of CLS Labor § 220 was supported by testimony that subcontractor's president and principal shareholder knew difference between journeyman and apprentice, but subcontractor paid employee as apprentice when in fact he did work of journeyman. J. E. Roze Assoc., Inc. v Department of Labor, 143 A.D.2d 510, 533 N.Y.S.2d 43, 1988 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10749 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1988).

Determination that subcontractor willfully ignored requirement that apprentice be enrolled in registered training program was supported by evidence that such requirement was known to subcontractor's former co-owner and its present superintendent, whose acts and knowledge could be imputed to subcontractor. J. E. Roze Assoc., Inc. v Department of Labor, 143 A.D.2d 510, 533 N.Y.S.2d 43, 1988 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10749 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1988).

Even if petitioner's apprenticeship program was employee welfare benefit program within meaning of Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974 (29 USCS §§ 1001 et seq.), program would be not be exempt from application of prevailing wage and compensation requirements of CLS Labor §§ 220 and 220-b. J.F.B. Painting & Supply v Hudacs, 210 A.D.2d 805, 620 N.Y.S.2d 612, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13279 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1994).

In Article 78 proceeding alleging that prevailing wage provisions of CLS Labor § 220 did not apply construction of public school building because project was training exercise for unpaid student trainees who were not employees, court held that project was "public work," but annulled determination that petitioner was required to pay its students prevailing wages, as respondent labor commissioner lacked rational basis to treat petitioner's students as employees. Onondaga-Cortland-Madison Bd. of Coop. Educ. Servs. v McGowan, 285 A.D.2d 36, 728 N.Y.S.2d 109, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6242 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2001).

Union's request for a declaratory judgment that a statutory provision for prevailing wages applied to glazier apprentices enrolled in a bona fide apprenticeship program should not have been dismissed, as the determination by the New York State Department of Labor that the work performed by apprentices was that of ironworkers and not of glaziers was unreasonable, arbitrary, and capricious. International Union of Painters & Allied Trades v New York State Dept. of Labor, 147 A.D.3d 1542, 47 N.Y.S.3d 819, 2017 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1134 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't), in part, 30 N.Y.3d 1028, 91 N.E.3d 1180, 69 N.Y.S.3d 201, 2017 N.Y. LEXIS 3937 (N.Y. 2017), rev'd, 32 N.Y.3d 198, 112 N.E.3d 1259, 88 N.Y.S.3d 136, 2018 N.Y. LEXIS 2968 (N.Y. 2018).

Deference to the New York State Department of Labor's interpretation of the prevailing wage statute to glazier apprentices was not warranted because its interpretation was contrary to the plain meaning of the statutory language, and an understanding of specialized knowledge and underlying practices was not at stake. International Union of Painters & Allied Trades v New York State Dept. of Labor, 147 A.D.3d 1542, 47 N.Y.S.3d 819, 2017 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1134 (N.Y. LEXIS 2968 (N.Y. 2018).

Court declared that glazing contractors could compensate apprentices registered and enrolled in a bona fide apprenticeship program pursuant to the applicable apprentice rates posted by the New York State Department of Labor on taxpayer financed projects, based on the plain statutory language. International Union of Painters & Allied Trades v New York State Dept. of Labor, 147 A.D.3d 1542, 47 N.Y.S.3d 819, 2017 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1134 (N.Y. LEXIS 2968 (N.Y. 2018).

State's proposed deregistration of apprenticeship training program (ATP) administered by employee benefit plan covered by Employee Retirement Income and Security Act (ERISA) was not means of enforcing prevailing wage provisions of CLS Labor § 220, and thus ERISA did not preempt state's proposed action under statute and regulations governing ATP standards, despite state's reliance on violations of CLS Labor § 220 in support of its proposed deregistration, since CLS Labor § 220 does not regulate ATPs, and such violations of § 220 were just part of array of federal and state violations listed as appropriate grounds for deregistration. Joint Apprenticeship & Training Council of Local 363 v New York State Dep't of Labor, 984 F.2d 589, 1993 U.S. App. LEXIS 1318 (2d Cir. N.Y. 1993).

15. —Civil service employees

A workman cannot be taken from his civil service grade by the provision of this section requiring payment of the prevailing rate of wages to laborers, workmen or mechanics upon public works. Wood v New York, 274 N.Y. 155, 8 N.E.2d 316, 274 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 155, 1937 N.Y. LEXIS 829 (N.Y. 1937).

Manual workers engaged in maintenance work on a city owned subway system and employed in classified civil service, under the title of "structure maintainers," in ungraded positions entered into without competitive examinations are laborers, workmen and mechanics employed upon public works within the meaning of this section. Gaston v Taylor, 274 N.Y. 359, 9 N.E.2d 9, 274 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 359, 1937 N.Y. LEXIS 854 (N.Y. 1937).

Men employed under civil service as maintenance men who did work of skilled plumbers, carpenters and other craftsmen were not entitled to the wages of such skilled crafts for if the courts were to determine his rights to the pay of the higher class it would create a conflict with the civil service provisions regarding examination and appointment in order to advance to a higher class. Flannery v Joseph, 300 N.Y. 149, 89 N.E.2d 869, 300 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 149, 1949 N.Y. LEXIS 897 (N.Y. 1949).

Civil Service stationary firemen employed by the City of New York were entitled to the prevailing rate of wages mandated by this section to be paid to "laborers, workmen or mechanics" on public works where, among their other duties, they were regularly required to make repairs on boilers. Golden v Joseph, 307 N.Y. 62, 120 N.E.2d 162, 307 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 62, 1954 N.Y. LEXIS 1001 (N.Y. 1954).

Carriage upholsterers employed by N.Y.C. were entitled to have their wages fixed at the prevailing rate where they had been classified by the Municipal Civil Service Commission in part 38 of the competitive class in a salary grade at the prevailing rate of wages. Don v Joseph, 1 N.Y.2d 708, 150 N.Y.S.2d 809, 134 N.E.2d 74, 1956 N.Y. LEXIS 977 (N.Y. 1956).

Civil Service Law principles of merit and fitness were not violated by application of prevailing wage rate mandate of CLS Labor § 220 to workers hired by county Board of Cooperative Educational Services (BOCES) for public work project in connection with agreement between BOCES and member school district, as workers were ungraded employees of BOCES and thus awarding them increases in remuneration to level of prevailing wage rates would not effectively grant them promotion to above-grade salary levels. Cayuga-Onondaga Counties Bd. of Coop. Educ. Servs. v Sweeney, 89 N.Y.2d 395, 654 N.Y.S.2d 92, 676 N.E.2d 854, 1996 N.Y. LEXIS 3601 (N.Y. 1996), reh'g denied, 89 N.Y.2d 1031, 658 N.Y.S.2d 246, 680 N.E.2d 620, 1997 N.Y. LEXIS 382 (N.Y. 1997).

There can be no thwarting of the legislative purpose to secure to civil service employees the prevailing per diem rate through the device of limiting the number of days men may work, and then, by the subterfuge of an annual salary, substituting others not similarly qualified, at a lower wage. Hence, a city could not by means of a budget limiting the number of days for employment of crane enginemen (electric) to 250 days per year relieve itself from liability through the employment of provisional employees for the rest of the year at a lower rate when there was actually sufficient work to occupy men for 313 days each year at a fixed annual salary. However, relief was denied to petitioners upon a finding that they had acquiesced in the wrong. Kunz v New York, 286 A.D. 252, 142 N.Y.S.2d 451, 1955 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4022 (N.Y. App. Div. 1955), aff'd, 3 N.Y.2d 834, 166 N.Y.S.2d 76, 44 N.E.2d 721, 1957 N.Y. LEXIS 929 (N.Y. 1957).

Sanitary district employees who attended labor department hearings concerned with improvement of their jobs as collectors of garbage because in good faith they believed under the circumstances presented that they had to go to a judicial tribunal as witnesses did not violate the Civil Service Law statutory provision prohibiting strikes by public employees. Rosenberger v Sanitary Dist., 28 A.D.2d 892, 282 N.Y.S.2d 879, 1967 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3516 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1967), aff'd, 22 N.Y.2d 815, 292 N.Y.S.2d 911, 239 N.E.2d 652, 1968 N.Y. LEXIS 1265 (N.Y. 1968).

Bridge painters' claim for increased wages while employed by New York State throughway authority, alleging that they were being paid less than the prevailing wage rate in the locality, would be dismissed where they were employed in graded positions of the civil service, in which case Labor Law § 220 does not apply. Casey v Catherwood, 34 A.D.2d 806, 311 N.Y.S.2d 562, 1970 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4826 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1970), aff'd, 28 N.Y.2d 702, 320 N.Y.S.2d 750, 269 N.E.2d 408, 1971 N.Y. LEXIS 1483 (N.Y. 1971).

Under Education Law § 2503(5), school board properly reclassified certain employees from ungraded to graded competitive class, even though by virtue of reclassification said employees would receive a lower wage rate than that prevailing in community for the same work, since Labor Law § 220 does not apply to graded class employees. Buffalo Bldg. Trades Council v Bd. of Educ., 43 A.D.2d 796, 350 N.Y.S.2d 252, 1973 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2902 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1973), app. dismissed, 34 N.Y.2d 667, 1974 N.Y. An electrician who is appointed as such as a result of passing civil service examination for electrical inspector, is entitled to the prevailing rate of wages in the locality, in accordance with subd. 3 of this section. Lent v New York, 269 N.Y.S. 201, 150 Misc. 291, 1934 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1065 (N.Y. App. Term), aff'd, 242 A.D. 764, 275 N.Y.S. 342, 1934 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7330 (N.Y. App. Div. 1934).

A cable splicer who was appointed from a civil service list, is not entitled to compensation at the prevailing rate of wage for electricians, notwithstanding he is performing the duties of electrician, where it appears that the position of electrician is in the competitive class under civil service rules, and that the employee has never qualified therefor. Manning v New York, 268 N.Y.S. 807, 150 Misc. 292, 1934 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1050 (N.Y. App. Term 1934).

Employees of the Port Authority are not subject to the Civil Service provision of the New York State Constitution or to the laws enacted pursuant thereto. Agesen v Catherwood, 55 Misc. 2d 744, 286 N.Y.S.2d 969, 1968 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1827 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1968), rev'd, 32 A.D.2d 416, 303 N.Y.S.2d 987, 1969 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3261 (N.Y. A municipal employee in a graded position in the non-competitive class of civil service may not obtain fixation of his wages by invoking the prevailing rate-of-wages formula and incidental remedial procedures provided by § 220 of the Labor Law. Favreau v Catherwood, 62 Misc. 2d 432, 308 N.Y.S.2d 715, 1970 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1957 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1970).

A board of education may not employ a painter on an annual salary at less than the prevailing wage scale except where such position is in the graded competitive civil service, subject to call at all hours, or in seasonable employment. 1954 Ops St Compt File #7026.

16. —Mechanics

Employees of the board of transportation of the City of New York engaged in manual and mechanical work, whose positions are classified in the graded service of the competitive class are not entitled to the statutory prevailing rate of wages. Otherwise the constitutional and statutory provisions affecting civil service would be nullified. But while in the ungraded service, they were entitled to the prevailing rate of wages. Corrigan v Joseph, 304 N.Y. 172, 106 N.E.2d 593, 304 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 172, 1952 N.Y. LEXIS 767 (N.Y.), reh'g denied, 304 N.Y. 759, 108 N.E.2d 618, 304 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 759, 1952 N.Y. Auto enginemen employed by the City of New York to operate its motor vehicles, to maintain such vehicles and to help load and unload them are not laborers, workmen or mechanics (sub 3) entitling them to the statutory prevailing rate of pay. Dinan v Joseph, 304 N.Y. 696, 107 N.E.2d 602, 304 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 696, 1952 N.Y. LEXIS 907 (N.Y. 1952), reh'g denied, 307 N.Y. 935, 123 N.E.2d 577, 307 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 935, 1954 N.Y. LEXIS 1611 (N.Y. 1954).

Machinists or mechanics engaged in public work were required to work eight hours daily and the city was under a statutory duty to pay them wages therefor at such rates as were fixed by the comptroller of the City of New York. McElroy v New York, 50 Misc. 2d 223, 270 N.Y.S.2d 113, 1966 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1932 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1966), aff'd, 29 A.D.2d 737, 287 N.Y.S.2d 352, 1968 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5465 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1968).

17. —Police and firemen

The provisions providing that eight hours shall constitute a legal daily work does not apply to uniformed members of the fire department of the city of New York receiving annual salaries and not wages. It does not apply to persons holding offices or positions in the public service. People ex rel. Sweeney v Sturgis, 78 A.D. 460, 79 N.Y.S. 969, 1903 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 66 (N.Y. App. Div.), aff'd, 175 N.Y. 470, 67 N.E. 1088, 175 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 470, 1903 N.Y. LEXIS 1017 (N.Y. 1903).

In a village of less than 5,000 inhabitants employing four or more policemen at annual salaries additional compensation may not be paid such policemen for working more than eight hours per day. 1945 Ops St Compt 47.

18. —School employees

School district employees hired by county Board of Cooperative Educational Services (BOCES) for public work project, in connection with agreement between BOCES and member school district, did not fall within common-law exemption from statutory prevailing wage rate mandate for classified and graded public employees, where such workers were classified by county civil service commission as temporary seasonal employees. Cayuga-Onondaga Counties Bd. of Coop. Educ. Servs. v Sweeney, 89 N.Y.2d 395, 654 N.Y.S.2d 92, 676 N.E.2d 854, 1996 N.Y. LEXIS 3601 (N.Y. 1996), reh'g denied, 89 N.Y.2d 1031, 658 N.Y.S.2d 246, 680 N.E.2d 620, 1997 N.Y. LEXIS 382 (N.Y. 1997).

The position of school janitor is not within the provisions of this section as to prevailing rate of wages. Farrell v Board of Education, 113 A.D. 405, 98 N.Y.S. 1046, 1906 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1436 (N.Y. App. Div. 1906).

School bus drivers and matrons employed by private bus companies, which transport handicapped children to school pursuant to a contract with the Board of Education of the City of New York, are not "laborers, workmen or mechanics" in the employ of a contractor or subcontractor engaged in the construction, replacement, maintenance and repair of public works and, therefore, are not entitled to protection under provisions of the Labor Law and State Constitution requiring that contracts with the State or municipalities include provisions for wages to be paid to employees of contractors and subcontractors involved in public works projects at the prevailing wage rate (Labor Law § 220(3); NY Const, art I, § 17) and, accordingly, the Board is not bound by law to include any provision in the contracts with the bus companies setting a standard of wages or other labor clauses. Varsity Transit, Inc. v Saporita, 98 Misc. 2d 255, 413 N.Y.S.2d 868, 1979 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2071 (N.Y. Sup. Ct.), aff'd, 71 A.D.2d 643, 418 N.Y.S.2d 667, 1979 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12868 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1979).

19. —State institution employees

The armory of a regiment of the National Guard of the state of New York is a state institution and this section is not applicable to a laborer employed in such armory since it expressly provides that it is not applicable to employees of the state institutions. Burns v Fox, 98 A.D. 507, 90 N.Y.S. 254, 1904 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3587 (N.Y. App. Div. 1904).

20. —Public authority and commission employees

The Port of New York Authority is not required to pay its "direct" employees the prevailing rate of wages pursuant to Labor Law § 220(2), since the Authority was created by an interstate compact between New York and New Jersey and cannot be regulated by unilateral legislation of one of those two states. Agesen v Catherwood, 32 A.D.2d 416, 303 N.Y.S.2d 987, 1969 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3261 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1969), aff'd, 26 N.Y.2d 521, 311 N.Y.S.2d 886, 260 N.E.2d 525, 1970 N.Y. LEXIS 1677 (N.Y. 1970).

Coverage under CLS Labor § 220(2) includes laborers involved in public works projects within state pursuant to contracts with public or governmental entities, and therefore included as "commission appointed pursuant to law," Niagara Falls Bridge Commission, even though it was created solely under federal law. Stephens & Rankin, Inc. v Hartnett, 160 A.D.2d 1201, 555

N.Y.S.2d 208, 1990 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4728 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1990).

Where bridge and tunnel authority, a public benefit corporation, had approved its employee's application for transfer to sanitation department, authority was estopped to deny equal pay for equal performance by providing, after his transfer, that higher wage rate for period beginning before his transfer would apply only to persons still employed by authority. Petrocchi v Ronan, 81 Misc. 2d 741, 367 N.Y.S.2d 178, 1975 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2464 (N.Y. Civ. Ct. 1975).

21. Overtime

CLS Labor § 220(2) does not provide dispensation from paying overtime wages for work on sixth working day in one week to employees who do not work more than 40 hours during week; plain meaning of statute is that laborers shall not be required to work on more than 5 days in one week, and if they work on sixth day they are entitled to overtime pay. Green Island Constr. Co. v Roberts, 139 A.D.2d 907, 527 N.Y.S.2d 1021, 1988 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4073 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1988).

Contractor would be held accountable for its failure to pay overtime, despite its asserted reliance on project supervisor who never advised it of overtime work, since contractor was fully accountable for noncompliance of its supervisor. Marangos Constr. Corp. v New York State Dep't of Labor, 216 A.D.2d 758, 628 N.Y.S.2d 451, 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6543 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1995).

The provisions of this section limiting hours of labor were not intended to apply to a case where a workman by accident or oversight labors beyond the prescribed limit nor were they intended to prevent a workman who had worked eight hours a day upon the work of the municipality from working overtime upon work of private customers. People ex rel. Hausauer-Jones Printing Co. v Zimmerman, 109 N.Y.S. 396, 58 Misc. 264, 1908 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 326 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1908).

In action to recover compensation for overtime work allegedly performed by auto mechanics and machinists in employ of City of New York, though there was no question that defendant, in violation of Labor Law § 162, illegally denied them 15 minutes of lunch time which they otherwise were entitled to, plaintiffs could not recover the value thereof since under the statute they were given no right of action for any violation thereof and, moreover, loss of the 15 minutes was counterbalanced by their work time being correspondingly shortened in that they were permitted to leave their employment at 4:30 p.m. instead of 4:45 p.m. McElroy v New York, 50 Misc. 2d 223, 270 N.Y.S.2d 113, 1966 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1932 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1966), aff'd, 29 A.D.2d 737, 287 N.Y.S.2d 352, 1968 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5465 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1968).

In § 220 of the Labor Law word "work" means physical or mental exertion controlled or required by the employer and pursued necessarily and primarily for the benefit of the employer or his business and word "work time" therefore means such times during which the employee is necessarily required to be on duty at his place of work; but it does not include a lunch period where the employee during that period, though relieved of all duties and not restricted to the employer's premises, nevertheless has his lunch at his place of employment because the time allotted therefor does not permit him to have such meal elsewhere without running the risk of disciplinary action or penalties for belated resumption of work. McElroy v New York, 50 Misc. 2d 223, 270 N.Y.S.2d 113, 1966 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1932 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1966), aff'd, 29 A.D.2d 737, 287 N.Y.S.2d 352, 1968 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5465 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1968).

Plaintiffs were chargeable with notice of the limitations upon overtime work as imposed by § 220 of the Labor Law, and therefore may not invoke the aid of the court to secure payment for work performed in violation of law. McElroy v New York, 50 Misc. 2d 223, 270 N.Y.S.2d 113, 1966 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1932 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1966), aff'd, 29 A.D.2d 737, 287 N.Y.S.2d 352, 1968 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5465 (N.Y. Determination of comptroller in settlement of dispute, that overtime should be paid in cash in accordance with stated schedule, vested sums earned and thus, estate of deceased city employee was entitled to recover for overtime earned by deceased. Lombardi v New York, 78 Misc. 2d 1057, 359 N.Y.S.2d 154, 1974 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1557 (N.Y. Sup. Ct.), modified, 46 A.D.2d 750, 361 N.Y.S.2d 1, 1974 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3641 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1974).

A town may, under certain circumstances, provide for payment of premium compensation to highway employees for work performed prior to the general starting time and/or work performed after the general quitting time, although the work actually performed does not exceed eight hours per day. 1968 Ops St Compt File #488.

A water filtration plant operator is not prohibited from working in excess of eight hours a day, forty hours a week. 1967 Ops St Compt File #184.

A municipal corporation may not hire a laborer, workman or mechanic in two or more capacities if the effect, thereof, is to require work in excess of eight hours per day or five days per week. 1960 Ops St File #617.

22. —Willful violations

Commissioner of Labor properly ruled that employer's violation of overtime pay provision of Labor Law was willful where employer's overtime pay policy was identical to policy previously held unlawful by commissioner in another administrative proceeding to which employer was party; it was of no consequence that commissioner's later determination was made before earlier ruling was reviewed by Appellate Division. Hull-Hazard, Inc. v Roberts, 74 N.Y.2d 710, 543 N.Y.S.2d 383, 541 N.E.2d 412, 1989 N.Y. LEXIS 678 (N.Y. 1989).

Evidence supported determination by Commissioner of Labor that violation of CLS Labor § 220 was willful where (1) contractor decided not to pay overtime for sixth day of work to employees who did not work more than 40 hours during week based its conclusion that federal wage schedule superseded requirements of state law, (2) contractor's corporate officers discussed overtime issue but failed to seek advice of counsel or labor department representatives, and (3) contractor had sufficient experience with public work contracts to know that federal overtime provisions were inapplicable. Green Island Constr. Co. v Roberts, 139 A.D.2d 907, 527 N.Y.S.2d 1021, 1988 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4073 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1988).

Evidence supported determination of Commissioner of Labor that contractor willfully failed to pay overtime where contractor failed to submit time cards for employees who worked on project, and commissioner relied on testimony of employees regarding hours worked, weekly work routine, and number of hours spent on particular portion of project; if contractor fails to maintain proper records and alternate method is employed by commissioner to determine number of hours worked, contractor has burden of demonstrating unreasonableness of commissioner's conclusion. Marangos Constr. Corp. v New York State Dep't of Labor, 216 A.D.2d 758, 628 N.Y.S.2d 451, 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6543 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1995).

Determination of Commissioner of Labor that contractor willfully failed to pay overtime was not arbitrary and capricious, since experienced contractor should have known that employees were not being paid overtime on days they worked more than 7 hours, and should also have been aware of requirements of CLS Labor Art 8, where it had been subject of several wage-related investigations in past, and had previously consented to finding of nonwillful violation relating to underpayment of wages. Marangos Constr. Corp. v New York State Dep't of Labor, 216 A.D.2d 758, 628 N.Y.S.2d 451, 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6543 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1995).

23. —Extraordinary emergency exception

This section contemplates that any order determining prevailing rate of wages may be modified. Carder Realty Corp. v Andrews, 239 A.D. 618, 269 N.Y.S. 596, 1934 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10903 (N.Y. App. Div. 1934).

City of New York was prohibited from permitting or requiring machinists or mechanics to work more than eight hours a day except in case of extraordinary emergency or upon dispensation by the industrial commissioner, in which case overtime work would be compensable at premium wage rates. McElroy v New York, 50 Misc. 2d 223, 270 N.Y.S.2d 113, 1966 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1932 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1966), aff'd, 29 A.D.2d 737, 287 N.Y.S.2d 352, 1968 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5465 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1968).

A village may not require employees of the labor class to work more than eight hours a day or more than five days a week except in cases of extraordinary emergency. 1945 Ops St Compt 383.

Except in an emergency a town laborer may not be employed over eight hours per day for five days in a week; no agreement may be entered into for increased compensation for overtime work. 1946 Ops St Compt 184.

A village employee may be required to work more than 8 hours per day during an emergency; and may be paid overtime compensation where the village board has provided for the payment of such overtime compensation by local law, resolution or rule. 1959 Ops St Compt File #1031.

The authority to have highway employees work overtime in an emergency rests with the superintendent of highways. However, the supervisor may refuse to issue checks for the compensation of such employees where he has personal knowledge of an illegality in the payroll, e.g. employees working more than forty hours, where there was in fact no emergency or where the town board has not provided for payment of overtime compensation by resolution or rule pursuant to section 90 of the General Municipal Law. 1960 Ops St Compt File #660.

Employees of the Board of Education of a school district may not work more than eight hours per day or five days per week except in emergency, and may be eligible for overtime pay under § 90 of the General Municipal Law. 1961 Ops St Compt #588.

Workingmen, laborers, or mechanics employed by a town may not be permitted or required to work in excess of eight hours a day, five days a week, as such, except in situations involving extraordinary emergencies. 1967 Ops St Compt File #742.

24. —Particular emergencies

Installation of an extra pump by a city whose inhabitants are dependent for their water supply upon a single pump which was kept in almost continuous operation is within the exception providing for extraordinary emergency caused by fire, flood or danger to life or property. People ex rel. Usoy v Waring, 52 A.D. 36, 64 N.Y.S. 865, 1900 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1535 (N.Y. App. Div. 1900).

Under this section, making eight hours a legal day's work for all employees engaged in public works, save in specially excepted cases and except as slightly modified with respect to New York City employees by § 884-4.0 of the New York City Administration Code, in the absence of application of one of the exceptions the city could not legally engage in the practice of requiring certain workers in its Department of Public Works to work in excess of eight hours per day by allowing them compensatory time off rather than overtime pay, regardless of emergency conditions due to shortage of budgeted funds. Del Gaudio v Zurmuhlen, 29 Misc. 2d 84, 213 N.Y.S.2d 157, 1961 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3228 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1961).

25. Prevailing wage

Failure to annex prevailing rate schedule to work specifications did not relieve contractor of its obligation to pay prevailing wages. Twin State CCS Corp. v Roberts, 72 N.Y.2d 897, 532 N.Y.S.2d 746, 528 N.E.2d 1219, 1988 N.Y. LEXIS 1663 (N.Y. 1988).

The "prevailing rate of wages" requirement of Labor Law § 220 was not applicable to private construction projects financed by industrial development agencies through the issuance of tax-exempt industrial revenue bonds, since such projects were not "public works" projects within the meaning of the statute, and the conveyance of legal title to such a public agency with a simultaneous leaseback to the private company was merely a mechanism to facilitate financing, and neither the fact that the agency held formal title to the project nor the fact that certain tax exemptions were accorded to the project could transform what was essentially a private venture into something that could be deemed public. Erie County Industrial Dev. Agency v Roberts, 94 A.D.2d 532, 465 N.Y.S.2d 301, 1983 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 18503 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1983), aff'd, 63 N.Y.2d 810, 482 N.Y.S.2d 267, 472 N.E.2d 43, 1984 N.Y. LEXIS 4635 (N.Y. 1984).

CLS Mental Hygiene § 41.34, providing that community residents shall be deemed family unit for purpose of local laws and ordinances, does not require that employees of contractor working on such building be compensated under CLS Labor § 220 for prevailing wages on residential construction rather than higher wages for general construction; Department of Labor could properly conclude that construction of community or group residence for up to 12 persons fits within general construction schedule rather than within residential rate schedule applicable to construction of 1-family, 2-family, row or garden-type housing. C.E.L. Lumber, Inc. v Roberts, 109 A.D.2d 1002, 486 N.Y.S.2d 481, 1985 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 47494 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1985).

Although public works contractor may satisfy its obligation under CLS Labor § 220(3) by supplying its employees with cash equivalent of cost of obtaining prevailing benefits, by providing equivalent benefits plan, or by combination of benefits and cash equal to cost of prevailing benefits, it may not do so by substituting different type of benefit for scheduled benefit or by substituting increase in one of scheduled benefits. A. L. Blades & Sons, Inc. v Roberts, 136 A.D.2d 926, 524 N.Y.S.2d 912, 1988 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1364 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't), app. denied, 72 N.Y.2d 803, 532 N.Y.S.2d 368, 528 N.E.2d 520, 1988 N.Y. LEXIS 1810 (N.Y. 1988).

Department of Labor's determination of prevailing wage schedule for tele-data installation work on public work contracts, which merged existing separate categories for voice telecommunications work and data telecommunications work into since category of "telecommunications worker-voice, data, video," did not comply with CLS Labor § 220(3) because it was equivalent of unapproved apprentice program where it involved progression through step rates was dependent on mastery of skills acquired during on-the-job training and formal course work, not solely on longevity. Local 363, IBEW v New York State DOL, 230 A.D.2d 440, 659 N.Y.S.2d 518, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6707 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1997).

The Commissioner of Labor of the State of New York erred in adopting that part of the recommendation of a hearing officer which found that the petitioner corporation failed to pay the prevailing wages and supplements to its employees pursuant to N.Y. Lab. Law § 220, because a heating contractor was the contractor on the project in question, and the corporation and the heating contractor were separate and distinct entities. Capstone Enters. of Port Chester, Inc. v McGowan, 289 A.D.2d 402, 735 N.Y.S.2d 145, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12255 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2001).

Administrative Law Judge's conclusion (adopted by comptroller) that there should be differential between prevailing wage rates assigned 2 groups of elevator mechanics, was not arbitrary and capricious where one group was principally employed in ordinary maintenance and other in non-routine repairs. Local 237, Int'l Bhd. of Teamsters v Comptroller of the City of New York, 259 A.D.2d 314, 686 N.Y.S.2d 420, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2420 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1999).

Judgment entered in favor of the property owner was affirmed because the property owner was not required, under the terms of the lease agreement that the owner had with the county, to pay a prevailing wage rate under N.Y. Lab. Law § 220 during the construction phase of the building. Pursuant to § 220, the construction of the building, being done at the owner's own expense, could not be considered a public works project. County of Suffolk v Coram Equities, LLC, 31 A.D.3d 687, 821 N.Y.S.2d 215, 2006 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9566 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2006).

Dismissal of union employee's application for review of decision partially denying a Freedom of Information Law request was proper because the information sought, the names and addresses of non-union employees, implicated significant privacy interests, and the information provided, the titles and wage rates with employee names and addresses redacted, was sufficient to ensure compliance with prevailing wage requirements. Matter of Massaro v New York State Thruway Auth., 111 A.D.3d 1001, 974 N.Y.S.2d 636, 2013 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7216 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2013).

This section does not preclude particular localities from going beyond wages and hours fixed by state legislation for the state as a whole in fixing minimum wages to be paid by bidders on local public works projects. McMillen v Browne, 40 Misc. 2d 348, 243 N.Y.S.2d 293, 1963 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1785 (N.Y. Sup. Ct.), aff'd, 20 A.D.2d 531, 244 N.Y.S.2d 833, 1963 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2692 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1963).

Motion to dismiss an action challenging the prevailing wages was denied because the record did not establish whether or how the Comptroller of the City of New York investigated the work in question, what evidence he weighed, what evidence he relied on, and whether he used engineering expertise and exercised his fiscal officer's discretion; the record was grossly imprecise as to what data the parties submitted directly to the Comptroller regarding the distinctions between trades. Matter of New York Ind. Contrs. Alliance v Liu, 981 N.Y.S.2d 246, 43 Misc. 3d 443, 2013 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 6469 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 2013).

Petitioners, a union and an employers association, had standing to challenge a city comptroller's reclassification of asphalt pavers and concrete pavers into a single trade for purposes of the prevailing wage schedules, as petitioners showed this reclassification caused union members to lose public work and association members to lose bids on public works projects. Matter of New York Ind. Contrs. Alliance v Liu, 49 Misc. 3d 478, 15 N.Y.S.3d 544, 2014 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 5959 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 2014).

Comptroller's reclassification of asphalt pavers and concrete pavers into a single trade for purposes of the prevailing wage schedules was reversed as arbitrary, as he failed to justify his revocation of precedent distinguishing between asphalt and concrete in the paving and roadbuilding trade classifications in favor of a subclassification based the use of a paving machine. Matter of New York Ind. Contrs. Alliance v Liu, 49 Misc. 3d 478, 15 N.Y.S.3d 544, 2014 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 5959 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 2014).

Under state's "benefit neutral" total package enforcement approach to enforcement of prevailing wage law (CLS Labor § 220) whereby employer may provide supplemental benefits in any form or combination so long as sum total is not less than locally prevailing benefits, preemption by Employee Retirement Income Security Act (ERISA) does not occur. Burgio & Campofelice, Inc. v New York State DOL, 107 F.3d 1000, 1997 U.S. App. LEXIS 4656 (2d Cir. N.Y. 1997).

Prevailing wage law (CLS Labor § 220) is not preempted by Employee Retirement Income Security Act (ERISA) on basis that it creates "alternative enforcement mechanism" for ERISA plan obligations, as employer's obligation does not arise under ERISA or collective bargaining agreement providing for ERISA benefits, but directly under Labor § 223. Burgio & Campofelice, Inc. v New York State DOL, 107 F.3d 1000, 1997 U.S. App. LEXIS 4656 (2d Cir. N.Y. 1997).

26. —Action for failure to pay

Substantial evidence showed that public works contractor underpaid employees by failing to keep proper records as to number of hours worked where engineer's summaries detailed discrepancies relating to payrolls in light of employer's failure to keep proper records. D.D.G. General Contracting Corp. v Hartnett, 149 A.D.2d 819, 540 N.Y.S.2d 344, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4880 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1989).

Substantial evidence showed that public works contractor failed to pay prevailing hourly wages and supplements to 3 employees where calculations on PW-11 forms compared with prevailing wage schedule revealed that incorrect hourly wages were paid to them. D.D.G. General Contracting Corp. v Hartnett, 149 A.D.2d 819, 540 N.Y.S.2d 344, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4880 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1989).

Substantial evidence did not support calculation of underpaid wages to 8 employees of public works contractor where Department of Labor, without explanation, utilized hours listed on engineer's summaries for some employees and hours listed on certified payroll for other employees. D.D.G. General Contracting Corp. v Hartnett, 149 A.D.2d 819, 540 N.Y.S.2d 344, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4880 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1989).

In proceeding to annul labor commissioner's finding that subcontractor violated prevailing wage requirements of CLS Labor § 220(3) in connection with installation of telecommunications system on campus of state university, subcontractor failed to show that classification of workers as "electrician/telephone installers" was unsupported by evidence because of commissioner's inability to determine specific duties of each worker since (1) work was limited to installation of telecommunications system, (2) classification of trades or occupations is within expertise of commissioner, (3) it was permissible for commissioner to look at local collective bargaining agreement between electricians' union and contractors' association to establish job duties of classification, and (4) commissioner properly concluded that each worker was entitled to receive at least wage rate for lowest of 4 rates specified in collective bargaining agreement. Sierra Telcom Servs., Inc. v Hartnett, 174 A.D.2d 279, 579 N.Y.S.2d 753, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 909 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), app. dismissed, 79 N.Y.2d 1039, 584 N.Y.S.2d 448, 594 N.E.2d 942, 1992 N.Y. LEXIS 1463 (N.Y. 1992), app. dismissed, 79 N.Y.2d 1039, 584 N.Y.S.2d 448, 594 N.E.2d 942, 1992 N.Y. LEXIS 1511 (N.Y. 1992), app. denied, 80 N.Y.2d 756, 588 N.Y.S.2d 824, 602 N.E.2d 232, 1992 N.Y. LEXIS 3179 (N.Y. 1992), app. denied, 80 N.Y.2d 757, 588 N.Y.S.2d 825, 602 N.E.2d 233, 1992 N.Y. LEXIS 3210 (N.Y. 1992), cert. denied, 507 U.S. 972, 113 S. Ct. 1413, 122 L. Ed. 2d 784, 1993 U.S. LEXIS 1979 (U.S. 1993).

In workers' action to recover prevailing wages and benefits on payment bond under CLS Labor §§ 220 and 220-g, even if motion court properly ignored workers' affidavits because they contradicted, without explanation, their month-old deposition testimony, and that workers thus failed to raise triable issue of fact in response to surety's prima facie showing that they participated in their employer's payroll kickback scheme, surety still was not entitled to summary judgment dismissing workers' claims where public policy, implemented by CLS Labor Art 8, of ensuring payment of prevailing wages on public construction contracts was paramount to surety's interest in avoiding liability for obligations imposed on it without its consent. Sullivan v International Fid. Ins. Co., 255 A.D.2d 128, 679 N.Y.S.2d 391, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11710 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1998).

Construction company failed to pay prevailing wages and supplements as required by CLS Labor § 220(3), even though methodology used by investigator was imperfect, where that methodology was necessitated by absence of comprehensive payroll records from construction company. TPK Constr. Co. v Dillon, 266 A.D.2d 82, 700 N.Y.S.2d 672, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11646 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1999).

In proceeding for construction company's failure to pay prevailing wages as required by CLS Labor § 220(3), company was entitled to credit against sums underpaid where employee from its payroll department testified that particular retroactive payment by company was for work on subject project, and there was no contrary evidence. TPK Constr. Co. v Dillon, 266 A.D.2d 82, 700 N.Y.S.2d 672, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11646 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1999).

Contractor's counterclaim seeking damages for subcontractor's failure to pay the prevailing wage was properly dismissed, as there was no private right of action for underpayment of wages until there had been an administrative determination that was either unreviewed or affirmed in the employees' favor. Further, the private right belonged only to the employees who had been underpaid. High Tech Enters. & Elec. Servs. of NY, Inc. v Expert Elec., Inc., 113 A.D.3d 546, 980 N.Y.S.2d 387, 2014 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 442 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2014).

Trial court properly granted the corporation's motion to dismiss the former employees' second through fifth causes of action in a case where the former employees claimed that the corporation did not pay them the prevailing wages they were entitled to under N.Y. Lab. Law § 220 regarding their work on various public work projects, as they did not identify the contracts that the corporation allegedly breached; however, the trial court erred in denying the former employees' motion for leave to serve a second-amended complaint in light of the lack of prejudice to the corporation and the possibility that the former employees' claims had merit. Maldonado v Olympia Mech. Piping & Heating Corp., 8 A.D.3d 348, 777 N.Y.S.2d 730, 2004 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7892 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2004).

Trial court's dismissal of a laborer's claims under N.Y. Lab. Law § 220, seeking recovery of prevailing wages that were allegedly not paid by an employer, was proper where there was no showing of an administrative determination that was resolved in the employee's favor that was either affirmed or unreviewed; further, there were factual disputes regarding whether there was an underpayment of wages, and no common-law breach of contract claim had been stated. Dragone v Bob Bruno Excavating, Inc., 45 A.D.3d 1238, 847 N.Y.S.2d 251, 2007 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12201 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2007).

The employees of the subcontractor are third-party beneficiaries of the prevailing wage promise in the prime contract and should be permitted to allege that the general contractor breached that obligation. Wrobel v Shaw Envtl. & Infrastructure Eng'g of N.Y., P.C., 56 Misc. 3d 798, 53 N.Y.S.3d 898, 2017 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1742 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 2017).

A general contractor has a duty, under N.Y. Lab. Law § 220, to commit its subcontractors to paying a prevailing wage. Wrobel v Shaw Envtl. & Infrastructure Eng'g of N.Y., P.C., 56 Misc. 3d 798, 53 N.Y.S.3d 898, 2017 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1742 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 2017).

As between the general contractor, who may choose with whom it subcontracts, and the laborers under the subcontract, New York Labor Law makes clear that the general contractor should bear the risk that it has hired a subcontractor who fails to pay a prevailing wage. Wrobel v Shaw Envtl. & Infrastructure Eng'g of N.Y., P.C., 56 Misc. 3d 798, 53 N.Y.S.3d 898, 2017 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1742 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 2017).

Under a public works contract, plaintiff employees of a subcontractor were permitted to assert a breach of contract claim against defendant general contractor because plaintiffs were third-party beneficiaries of the contract's prevailing wage promise and were therefore permitted to allege that defendant breached that obligation. The trial court refused to enforce the negation clause in the prime contract, because it would eliminate plaintiffs' common-law right as third-party beneficiaries of the prime contract to enforce the prevailing wage requirement which would be against the public policy expressed in N.Y. Lab. Law § 220. Wrobel v Shaw Envtl. & Infrastructure Eng'g of N.Y., P.C., 56 Misc. 3d 798, 53 N.Y.S.3d 898, 2017 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1742 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 2017).

27. — —Willfulness

Substantial evidence existed to support determination by Commissioner of Labor that employer willfully violated CLS Labor § 220 in underpaying prevailing wages and supplements to 3 employees who employer had classified as "trainees" where employer adhered to its own policy of hiring federal trainees at wages less than journey level after it was expressly notified that it was not conforming to department's policy. Tap Electrical Contracting Service, Inc. v Hartnett, 76 N.Y.2d 164, 556 N.Y.S.2d 988, 556 N.E.2d 427, 1990 N.Y. LEXIS 1308 (N.Y. 1990).

Evidence sustained administrative finding that contractor willfully violated CLS Labor § 220 by paying workers at laborer rate rather than at higher ironworker rate for job of tying steel rods since both sides offered credible proof on issue of whether tying steel rods is job for laborers or ironworkers and contractor knew or should have known that workers were entitled to ironworkers' wages since they were paid at ironworker rate for some but not all hours. Hull-Hazard, Inc. v Roberts, 129 A.D.2d 348, 517 N.Y.S.2d 824, 1987 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 44912 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1987), aff'd, 72 N.Y.2d 900, 532 N.Y.S.2d 748, 528 N.E.2d 1221, 1988 N.Y. LEXIS 1666 (N.Y. 1988).

Commissioner of Labor properly found that contractor had failed to pay prevailing wages and supplements under public works contract in willful violation of CLS Labor § 220(3), even though contractor had commenced litigation against commissioner on ground that she lacked authority to enforce new pay rates on ongoing projects, where contractor unilaterally refused to pay new rates, instead of seeking stay or other injunctive relief to prevent implementation; thus, contractor acted knowingly, intentionally and deliberately in choosing not to pay higher rates until judicially ordered to do so, which constituted willful failure. Hull-Hazard, Inc. v Roberts, 136 A.D.2d 872, 524 N.Y.S.2d 848, 1988 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 585 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), app. denied, 72 N.Y.2d 805, 532 N.Y.S.2d 755, 528 N.E.2d 1228, 1988 N.Y. LEXIS 2775 (N.Y. 1988), modified, 74 N.Y.2d 710, 543 N.Y.S.2d 383, 541 N.E.2d 412, 1989 N.Y. LEXIS 678 (N.Y. 1989).

Determination that subcontractor committed willful violations of CLS Labor § 220(3) by failing to pay overtime specified in prevailing wage rate schedule in connection with project to remove asbestos and reinsulate mechanical systems at public school was supported by testimony from subcontractor's president admitting that although company had performed 110 previous public works projects, he never reviewed prevailing wage rates attached to general contractor's contract, never paid overtime rates contained therein, and never examined Labor Law. Tru-Temp Industrial Insulation Co. v Hartnett, 155 A.D.2d 820, 547 N.Y.S.2d 941, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 14371 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1989).

Evidence supported labor commissioner's finding that petitioner willfully failed to pay prevailing wages and supplements on public works project since petitioner, which had previously performed public works projects and whose officers were knowledgeable regarding prevailing wage law, should have known that employees on project in question were not being paid prevailing wages and that its payroll records were not authentic. Mid Hudson Pam Corp. v Hartnett, 156 A.D.2d 818, 549 N.Y.S.2d 835, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 15879 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1989).

Substantial evidence supported finding by Commissioner of Labor that employer had willfully failed to pay prevailing wages and supplements, despite employer's contention that underpayments were due to inexperience of job superintendent whose construction background was acquired in other states and who had not been involved in project governed by prevailing wage rate law, where employer was highly experienced public work contractor, it knew that superintendent was not knowledgeable about wage rate system, it made no effort to instruct or supervise superintendent, and superintendent submitted daily and weekly reports to employer containing coded entries identifying, inter alia, each worker's classification and specific task performed. D. A. Elia Constr. Corp. v State, 180 A.D.2d 881, 579 N.Y.S.2d 768, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1497 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), app. denied, 80 N.Y.2d 752, 587 N.Y.S.2d 287, 599 N.E.2d 691 (N.Y. 1992).

Substantial evidence supported determination that public works contractor acted willfully in failing to pay prevailing wages and wage supplements where contractor claimed confusion surrounding prevailing wage schedule issued by Department of Labor but failed to resolve confusion and merely assumed that compliance with national agreement between laborers' union and pipeline association would be sufficient. Otis Eastern Service, Inc. v Hudacs, 185 A.D.2d 483, 586 N.Y.S.2d 348, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8949 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1992).

Underpayments of prevailing wages and supplements were not accidental and de minimis where (1) prevailing rate schedules were incorporated into contracts, and (2) although underpayment amounts were concededly small in relation to value of contracts, their duration extended over many months. Nelson's Lamp Lighters v Hudacs, 204 A.D.2d 814, 611 N.Y.S.2d 714, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5176 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1994).

Finding that experienced public works contractors knew or should have known that they were violating prevailing wage law, and that violation was thus willful, was supported by evidence that contractors continued to adhere to their classifications after being given notice that they were improper, and thereby placed themselves in direct conflict with position of Commissioner of Labor. Waterway Constr. Corp. v Sweeney, 248 A.D.2d 256, 670 N.Y.S.2d 429, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2662 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1998).

Substantial evidence supported the New York State Department of Labor's finding that a self-employed electrician and business owner violated the prevailing wage rate laws by not paying his employees journeyman electrician wages of $25 per hour plus supplemental benefits on two public works projects and that the underpayment was willful. The classification of the employees as journeymen electricians was supported by substantial evidence because they performed the same work designated for journeyman electricians under a collective bargaining agreement; substantial evidence also supported the finding of willfulness because the business owner had worked on public works projects before and knew that the wage rates were higher. Matter of Nash v New York State Dept. of Labor, 34 A.D.3d 905, 824 N.Y.S.2d 438, 2006 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13011 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2006), app. denied, 8 N.Y.3d 803, 830 N.Y.S.2d 700, 862 N.E.2d 792, 2007 N.Y. LEXIS 247 (N.Y. 2007).

New York Bureau of Public Works' determination that workers who built a scaffold performed carpentry work and were intentionally underpaid by their employer was supported by substantial evidence. Consol. Masonry Contrs., Inc. v Angello, 2 A.D.3d 997, 770 N.Y.S.2d 134, 2003 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13144 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2003).

Determination that the employer's failure to pay prevailing wages was willful was confirmed where the finding of willfulness arose from the employer's payment of all work at the lower glaziers' rate, including tasks such as affixing ceiling tiles and cleaning windows, and a review of the record demonstrated that substantial evidence supported the New York Department of Labor's determination that an experienced contractor such as the employer knew or should have known that this work was usually performed by carpenters and laborers. Lantry v State, 12 A.D.3d 864, 785 N.Y.S.2d 758, 2004 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13795 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2004), aff'd, 6 N.Y.3d 49, 810 N.Y.S.2d 729, 844 N.E.2d 276, 2005 N.Y. LEXIS 3347 (N.Y. 2005).

Commissioner of Labor properly determined that a contractor willfully failed to pay its workers prevailing wages and supplements with respect to installation of a new roof on a high school building, as the contractor had decades of experience and knowingly used an expired wage rate schedule. Matter of Central City Roofing Co., Inc. v Musolino, 136 A.D.3d 1186, 25 N.Y.S.3d 433, 2016 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1218 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2016).

28. —Determination of prevailing wages

The provision of subdivision 7 of this section requiring the Comptroller to make a rate determination within 6 months after the filing of a verified complaint are directory and not mandatory. Guercio v Gerosa, 8 A.D.2d 250, 186 N.Y.S.2d 458, 1959 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8361 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1959), aff'd, 8 N.Y.2d 1104, 209 N.Y.S.2d 785, 171 N.E.2d 873, 1960 N.Y. LEXIS 895 (N.Y. 1960).

Whether particular undertaking constitutes electrician's work for purpose of wages provisions of CLS Labor § 220 is matter within expertise of Department of Labor. Nelson's Lamp Lighters v Roberts, 136 A.D.2d 810, 523 N.Y.S.2d 643, 1988 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 259 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), app. denied, 73 N.Y.2d 702, 537 N.Y.S.2d 490, 534 N.E.2d 328, 1988 N.Y. LEXIS 3453 (N.Y. 1988).

Subcontractor found to have violated CLS Labor § 220(3) by failing to pay overtime specified in prevailing wage rate schedule in connection with project to remove asbestos and reinsulate mechanical systems at public school was properly denied credit for cost of health insurance benefits provided to one of project's employees, since benefit payments were not reflected in subcontractor's certified payroll. Tru-Temp Industrial Insulation Co. v Hartnett, 155 A.D.2d 820, 547 N.Y.S.2d 941, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 14371 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1989).

In proceeding against contractor for violating CLS Labor § 220(3) by failing to pay prevailing asbestos worker wage rates in connection with project to remove asbestos and reinsulate mechanical systems at public school, hearing officer did not err in determining that contractor's foreman should have been paid asbestos workers' wages, since foreman remained laborer where only $^1/_3$ of his time was spent in supervisory functions. Tru-Temp Industrial Insulation Co. v Hartnett, 155 A.D.2d 820, 547 N.Y.S.2d 941, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 14371 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1989).

In proceeding to collect back wages and civil fines due by reason of petitioner's failure to pay prevailing wages and supplements on public works project, Commissioner of Labor properly disallowed any use of payments entered in taxable adjustment column (TAC) of petitioner's payroll analysis, which allegedly represented payment to employees of difference between regular wages and required prevailing wages, where several employees testified that TAC payments were not for prevailing wages, and although petitioner's president testified to contrary, he lacked records to support claim and admitted on cross-examination that TAC payments were used for other purposes. Mid Hudson Pam Corp. v Hartnett, 156 A.D.2d 818, 549 N.Y.S.2d 835, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 15879 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1989).

In proceeding resulting in order requiring payment of back wages and civil fines due by reason of petitioner's failure to pay prevailing wages and supplements on public works project, recreation of petitioner's payroll records to add workers and compute underpayments was not arbitrary and speculative where, although petitioner was experienced public contractor and aware of prevailing wage statutes, its records were so incomplete that it was impossible to bring them to statutorily mandated standard of record keeping, thus entitling Commissioner of Labor to make just and reasonable inferences in awarding damages to employees even though results might be approximate. Mid Hudson Pam Corp. v Hartnett, 156 A.D.2d 818, 549 N.Y.S.2d 835, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 15879 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1989).

Court properly dismissed Article 78 proceeding to review determination of Department of Labor which established prevailing wage rate on public work project performed for New York Power Authority, pursuant to CLS Labor § 220, since there was rational basis for department to conclude that rewinding of off-line generators was performed by electricians, not "winders"; determination of "trade or occupation" under § 220 is matter within department's expertise. GE v N.Y. State Dep't of Labor, 154 A.D.2d 117, 551 N.Y.S.2d 966, 1990 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1881 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), aff'd, 76 N.Y.2d 946, 563 N.Y.S.2d 764, 565 N.E.2d 513, 1990 N.Y. LEXIS 3416 (N.Y. 1990).

CLS Labor § 220(5) does not unconstitutionally delegate legislative power to private parties by allowing Department of Labor to rely on collective bargaining agreements in determining wages since (1) use of collective bargaining agreement to set prevailing wage rates is reasonably necessary to accomplish legislature's mandate that workers receive prevailing wage, (2) parties who negotiate collective bargaining agreements may establish prevailing wage for public works in given locality only when employer employs at least 30 percent of workers engaged in that kind of work in that locality, and (3) 30 percent requirement provides safeguard to place any delegation within constitutional limits. GE v N.Y. State Dep't of Labor, 154 A.D.2d 117, 551 N.Y.S.2d 966, 1990 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1881 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), aff'd, 76 N.Y.2d 946, 563 N.Y.S.2d 764, 565 N.E.2d 513, 1990 N.Y. LEXIS 3416 (N.Y. 1990).

In Article 78 proceeding, court would not annul labor commissioner's finding that subcontractor violated prevailing wage requirements of CLS Labor § 220(3) in connection with its installation of telecommunications system on campus of state university on ground that university failed to classify workers to be employed on project or to provide description of work to be performed as required by § 220(3-a), since "request for proposal" sent by university to bidders on project described project's system and cable requirements, operational tests, and other work in sufficient detail to comply with statute. Sierra Telcom Servs., Inc. v Hartnett, 174 A.D.2d 279, 579 N.Y.S.2d 753, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 909 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), app. dismissed, 79 N.Y.2d 1039, 584 N.Y.S.2d 448, 594 N.E.2d 942, 1992 N.Y. LEXIS 1463 (N.Y. 1992), app. dismissed, 79 N.Y.2d 1039, 584 N.Y.S.2d 448, 594 N.E.2d 942, 1992 N.Y. In Article 78 proceeding, court would not annul agency's finding that subcontractor violated prevailing wage requirements of CLS Labor § 220(3) on ground that agency's adoption of wage rates set forth in local collective bargaining agreement between union and contractors' association represented unconstitutional delegation of legislative power to private parties; § 220(5), which requires that employer under collective bargaining agreement employ at least 30 percent of workers engaged in same trade or occupation in locality before wage provisions of agreement may be used, provides sufficient standard to overcome constitutional objection.

Substantial evidence supported determination that public works contractor failed to pay prevailing wages and wage supplements to 28 workers by improperly classifying them as general laborers and welder helpers, rather than as intermediate laborers, where Department of Labor rejected national agreement between laborers' union and pipeline association, accepted local contract as applicable, and found that workers did enough work with pipe to qualify as "pipe men." Otis Eastern Service, Inc. v Hudacs, 185 A.D.2d 483, 586 N.Y.S.2d 348, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8949 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1992).

Court properly dismissed Article 78 petition to annul city comptroller's decision establishing prevailing wage classification on work project for department of city planning, since (1) comptroller had rational basis for concluding that job requirements for installation of cables on project were consistent with requirements of comptroller's "telephone installer" job category, in that both jobs involved installation of low-voltage cables, and (2) comptroller properly applied wage rate set forth in Communications Workers of America (CWA) bargaining agreement based on surveys which indicated that more than 30 percent of telephone installers in locality belonged to CWA union. Joint Indus. Bd. of the Elec. Indus. v Schaffer, 205 A.D.2d 310, 613 N.Y.S.2d 11, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5818 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1994).

Determination that the employer failed to pay prevailing wages and supplements was confirmed where substantial evidence supported the New York Department of Labor's decision to adopt the ironworkers' prevailing wage rate because (1) the employer's evidence did not purport to establish that the actual percentage of relevant workers subject to either the ironworkers' or the glaziers' collective bargaining agreement was less than 30 percent, (2) the Department relied upon a jurisdictional agreement between the carpenters' and ironworkers' unions granting the ironworkers jurisdiction over the installation of preglazed windows and curtain wall frames, the ironworkers' constitution, and the employer's own description of the work, and (3) there was testimony from an officer of a glazier company that the glaziers' union had a minimal local presence at the time the work was performed, the ironworkers' union provided a list of companies that used ironworkers to perform the work at issue, and survey evidence indicated that ironworkers installed preglazed windows. Lantry v State, 12 A.D.3d 864, 785 N.Y.S.2d 758, 2004 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13795 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2004), aff'd, 6 N.Y.3d 49, 810 N.Y.S.2d 729, 844 N.E.2d 276, 2005 N.Y. Employers' association had standing to challenge the classification of work by the Comptroller of the City of New York and his prevailing wages because subsection (6) did not prohibit its claim, which either was integral to contesting the determination of the prevailing wages for a trade or occupation or was outside the scope of the statute; subsection (6) does not exclude other means or grounds for contesting the Comptroller's determinations. Matter of New York Ind. Contrs. Alliance v Liu, 981 N.Y.S.2d 246, 43 Misc. 3d 443, 2013 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 6469 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 2013).

Motion to dismiss an employers' association's action challenging the classification of work by the Comptroller of the City of New York and his prevailing wages for lack of standing was denied because the association showed that it represented and would promote the interests and objectives that the petitions sought to effect and maintained a stake in the petitions' adjudication; the activity and interest of the association's membership were representative of the petitions' claims. 29. — —Burden of proof

Employer contesting prevailing wage rate determination who submits no evidence beyond conclusory allegations concerning number of workers employed subject to collective bargaining agreement, number of workers employed in locality covered by agreement, or wage rates for workers other than those adopted by commissioner of labor fails to meet burden of proving that less than 30 percent of workers in locality are subject to wage rate adopted by commissioner. Liquid Asphalt Distributors Asso. v Roberts, 116 A.D.2d 295, 501 N.Y.S.2d 483, 1986 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 50907 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1986).

Commissioner of Labor is not required to conduct surveys to determine whether at least 30 percent of workers in given locality are subject to collectively bargained wage rate prior to adopting such as prevailing wage rate for workers on public projects; burden is on employers who contest prevailing wage rates to show that, in fact, less than 30 percent of workers in given locality are subject to wage rate adopted. Liquid Asphalt Distributors Asso. v Roberts, 116 A.D.2d 295, 501 N.Y.S.2d 483, 1986 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 50907 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1986).

Court would not annul determination of Department of Labor which established prevailing wage rate on public work project under CLS Labor § 220 based on employer's failure to file its own classification of workers and statement of work to be performed by each classification, since technical specifications filed by employer sufficiently complied with statute, and employer's failure to strictly comply with statute had no material effect on department's duty to make proper classification. GE v N.Y. State Dep't of Labor, 154 A.D.2d 117, 551 N.Y.S.2d 966, 1990 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1881 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), aff'd, 76 N.Y.2d 946, 563 N.Y.S.2d 764, 565 N.E.2d 513, 1990 N.Y. LEXIS 3416 (N.Y. 1990).

Dismissal of petitioner's application to review determinations of respondent establishing prevailing wage rates was affirmed because reading together N.Y. Lab. Law § 220(5) and (6) did not support shifting the initial burden to respondent and respondent failed to show that the collective bargaining agreements (CBAs) were not made with a bona fide labor organization, that incorrect data was used from the CBAs, or that the 30 percent threshold was not met. Matter of Suit-Kote Corp. v Rivera, 137 A.D.3d 1361, 26 N.Y.S.3d 642, 2016 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1533 (N.Y. 30. — —Method of determination Determination of prevailing rate of wages must be annulled, where decision was based upon reports of investigators and claimant-employee received no statement of facts disclosed and was given no opportunity to controvert conclusions based thereon. Heaney v McGoldrick, 286 N.Y. 38, 35 N.E.2d 641, 286 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 38, 1941 N.Y. LEXIS 1472 (N.Y. 1941).

Economic security and larger annual income of men in steady employ throughout the year should not be reflected in difference of daily wages. Watson v McGoldrick, 286 N.Y. 47, 35 N.E.2d 645, 286 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 47, 1941 N.Y. LEXIS 1473 (N.Y. 1941).

In determining the prevailing rate of wages to be paid maintenance men employed in city owned buildings it was error to exclude from consideration the wages paid maintenance men employed by private transportation companies on the ground that the business of their employers was in a different field; nature of the employees' duties and not the nature of the employer's business determines if they are in the same trade or occupation. Flannery v Joseph, 300 N.Y. 149, 89 N.E.2d 869, 300 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 149, 1949 N.Y. LEXIS 897 (N.Y. 1949).

In determining the prevailing rate of wages to be paid maintenance men in city owned buildings it was error to exclude proof that maintenance men in private apartment houses generally receive large tips for if it could be shown that their actual pay bears no relation to the nature of their work because of the large additional income their income could not be included in the survey of prevailing wages. Flannery v Joseph, 300 N.Y. 149, 89 N.E.2d 869, 300 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 149, 1949 N.Y. LEXIS 897 (N.Y. 1949).

To set the prevailing wage, classifying the installation of pre-glazed windows to concrete as ironwork rather than as glazier work under N.Y. Lab. Law § 220(5)(a) on a public school project was proper. Where both unions claimed jurisdiction, the Department of Labor properly used their collective bargaining agreements, the nature of the work, jurisdictional agreements, and other historic indices rather than surveying actual trade practices. Lantry v State, 6 N.Y.3d 49, 810 N.Y.S.2d 729, 844 N.E.2d 276, 2005 N.Y. LEXIS 3347 (N.Y. 2005).

Actual practice evidence is generally not relevant to the process of classifying work under N.Y. Lab. Law § 220(5)(a). Lantry v State, 6 N.Y.3d 49, 810 N.Y.S.2d 729, 844 N.E.2d 276, 2005 N.Y. LEXIS 3347 (N.Y. 2005).

Commissioner of the New York Department of Labor must classify work under N.Y. Lab. Law § 220(5)(a) in order to determine the pertinent locality because N.Y. Lab. Law § 220(5)(d) defines "locality" as "such areas of the State of New York described and defined for a trade or occupation in current collective bargaining agreements between bona fide labor organizations and employers of the private sector, performing public and private work. Because a trade classification determines the relevant collective bargaining agreement governing a wage rate, the locality cannot be ascertained until after the Commissioner classifies the work. Lantry v State, 6 N.Y.3d 49, 810 N.Y.S.2d 729, 844 N.E.2d 276, 2005 N.Y. LEXIS 3347 (N.Y. 2005).

Interpretation of N.Y. Lab. Law § 220 by the New York State Department of Labor as to prevailing wage requirements limiting the payment of apprentice wages on public work projects to apprentices who are performing tasks that are within the respective trade classifications of the approved apprenticeship programs in which they are enrolled was rational and upheld. International Union of Painters & Allied Trades, Dist. Council No. 4 v New York State Dept. of Labor, 32 N.Y.3d 198, 112 N.E.3d 1259, 88 N.Y.S.3d 136, 2018 N.Y. LEXIS 2968 (N.Y. 2018).

N.Y. Lab. Law § 220(3-e) supports the New York State Department of Labor's (DOL's) interpretation by requiring that the ostensible apprentice who is not in fact appropriately registered be paid journey worker's wages for the classification of work actually performed; the DOL's analysis is not an arbitrary and irrational interpretation of the statute, unsupported by the statutory language and is eminently reasonable. International Union of Painters & Allied Trades, Dist. Council No. 4 v New York State Dept. of Labor, 32 N.Y.3d 198, 112 N.E.3d 1259, 88 N.Y.S.3d 136, 2018 N.Y. LEXIS 2968 (N.Y. 2018).

In computing the prevailing rate of wages under this section additional compensation paid by private employers for night shifts and Sunday work must be considered when it is shown that city employees in comparable employment also work during these periods. Smith v Joseph, 275 A.D. 201, 88 N.Y.S.2d 818, 1949 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3741 (N.Y. App. Div.), aff'd, 300 N.Y. 516, 89 N.E.2d 248, 300 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 516, 1949 N.Y. LEXIS 1402 (N.Y. 1949).

In determining the prevailing rate of pay for laborers in a Broome County tunnel project, the Industrial Commissioner could not determine the prevailing rate of pay in several counties for common laborers and then take the wage differential in Queens and Bronx counties between common laborers and tunnel workers and apply that differential proportionately to the Broome County figure for common laborers. In re Application of Armco Drainage & Metal Products, Inc., 285 A.D. 236, 136 N.Y.S.2d 242, 1954 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3314 (N.Y. App. Div. 1954).

In an Article 78 proceeding to review redeterminations of prevailing rates of wages and supplements to be paid under a public works contract for the construction of a village's water pollution control plant, the redeterminations would be annulled where they had been based on wages in the county as a whole, rather than wages paid either in the village itself or in the town in which the village had been located, and where there had been no proof that union members had constituted a majority of construction workers in either the village or the town. Nalews, Inc. v Ross, 88 A.D.2d 1035, 452 N.Y.S.2d 701, 1982 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 17455 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1982).

In an Article 78 proceeding to review the establishment of prevailing rates of wages and supplements to be paid by contractors who entered into public construction contracts with the state, the labor commissioner's determination of prevailing rates would be annulled where the commissioner had established a union wage rate as a prevailing wage, where the commissioner had attempted to supply the total number of workers in each job classification by applying national percentages to census figures, and where the commissioner could not show the percentage of unionized workers in each category in that the total numbers of workers in the applicable job categories could not be shown. Hull-Hazard, Inc. v Roberts, 91 A.D.2d 741, 457 N.Y.S.2d 990, 1982 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 19624 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1982).

Court would affirm determination by Labor Commission that work performed by contractor under public works contract in converting 2 structures, used as residences for security guards, into prison administration buildings did not fall within definition of "residential construction" contained in prevailing rate schedule published by New York State Department of Labor-Bureau of Public Works, defined as "construction of one-family, two-family, row housing or garden type apartments," since it was reasonable for commissioner to determine that use for which structures were being renovated was controlling use, not their former character, and that nature of work contracted for thus required contractor to pay its workers at prevailing wage for "building" construction. Fra-Dee Constr., Inc. v Roberts, 132 A.D.2d 924, 518 N.Y.S.2d 259, 1987 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 49376 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't), app. denied, 70 N.Y.2d 611, 523 N.Y.S.2d 495, 518 N.E.2d 6, 1987 N.Y. While substantial evidence supported determination that subcontractor willfully failed to pay prevailing wages and supplements in violation of CLS Labor § 220, matter would be remitted for reassessment of amount of underpayment where assessment failed to credit subcontractor for making any payments to his workers even though some such payments were made, and where last day of work was computed as being one week after actual final working day; additionally, there was no rational basis for inferring that whenever inspector's report indicated that any workers were doing work on project, all workers were present, even when inspector's report specifically indicated that lesser number of workers were present. John Schepanski Roofing & Gutters v Roberts, 133 A.D.2d 757, 520 N.Y.S.2d 46, 1987 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 51799 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1987).

Commissioner of Labor's finding that electrical contractor had willfully underpaid its employees by classifying work performed as something other than electrical work would not be affected by fact that evidence supporting determination came from biased source (local representative of electricians' union) since, under CLS Labor § 220, prevailing wages are defined by reference to collective bargaining agreements struck by labor organizations. Nelson's Lamp Lighters v Roberts, 136 A.D.2d 810, 523 N.Y.S.2d 643, 1988 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 259 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), app. denied, 73 N.Y.2d 702, 537 N.Y.S.2d 490, 534 N.E.2d 328, 1988 N.Y. LEXIS 3453 (N.Y. 1988).

In proceeding against contractor for violating CLS Labor § 220(3) by failing to pay prevailing asbestos worker wage rates in connection with project to remove asbestos and reinsulate mechanical systems at public school, consideration of local union wage scales was not rendered inappropriate by fact that only small percentage of asbestos workers in locality were unionized. Tru-Temp Industrial Insulation Co. v Hartnett, 155 A.D.2d 820, 547 N.Y.S.2d 941, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 14371 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1989).

In proceedings to review determinations of Commissioner of Labor that public contractors failed to pay prevailing wages and supplements to workers on Department of Transportation bridge projects, pursuant to contracts requiring that employees be paid prevailing wage in locality of each project as established by collective bargaining agreements between employers and unions in project area applying to at least 30 percent of workers in locality, there was no merit to contractors' contention that they could not be held liable for wage rates set in collective bargaining agreements to which they were not parties, since statutory reliance on collective bargaining agreements has been accepted as reasonably necessary to accomplish legislature's mandate to insure that workers receive prevailing wages. Naftilos Painting & Sandblasting, Inc. v Hartnett, 173 A.D.2d 964, 569 N.Y.S.2d 474, 1991 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5614 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1991).

Under N.Y. Lab. Law § 220(3), (5)(a), an employer should have classified certain work as plumber's work, even though it may have generically fit within the literal description of "building laborer," as a distinction was made between work performed within five feet of a building, which was paid at the plumber's rate, and work performed beyond this five-foot perimeter, which could be paid at the building laborer's rate. Matter of CNP Mech., Inc. v Angello, 31 A.D.3d 925, 818 N.Y.S.2d 657, 2006 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9225 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2006), app. denied, 8 N.Y.3d 802, 830 N.Y.S.2d 698, 862 N.E.2d 790, 2007 N.Y. LEXIS 99 (N.Y. 2007).

In a N.Y. Lab. Law § 220 proceeding, a city comptroller had properly established the prevailing wage rate for the title of a Supervisor Highway Repairer (SHR) because as part of the SHRs' supervisory duties, they were hands-on workers who performed "related" manual labor in instructing new employees and, thus, faced the same risks as their crew; substantial evidence supported the comptroller's finding as it was made after a thorough investigation that included a comparison of the civil service job specification and collective bargaining agreements, field surveys of private and public sectors in other cities, and a survey of private sector interviewees. Matter of Hanley v Thompson, 41 A.D.3d 207, 838 N.Y.S.2d 59, 2007 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7373 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2007).

Comptroller's prevailing wage schedule for furniture movers was error, and was properly annulled in an N.Y. C.P.L.R. art. 78 proceeding, because, by ignoring data from his own survey and instead blindly adopting a union local's rates under a collective bargaining agreement (CBA), the comptroller failed to comply with the statutory mandate to determine the wage "to be prevailing" under N.Y. Lab. Law § 230(6), meaning the actual prevailing wage; in the face of survey results showing much lower wages than those in the CBA, it was improper for the comptroller to graft onto N.Y. Lab. Law art. 9 the 30 percent rule set forth in N.Y. Lab. Law § 220(5)(a). Matter of Metropolitan Movers Assn., Inc. v Liu, 95 A.D.3d 596, 944 N.Y.S.2d 529, 2012 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3722 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2012).

Trial court did not abuse its discretion in denying N.Y. C.P.L.R. 408 disclosure in a proceeding challenging respondent's prevailing wage rates because petitioner sought, among other things, extensive disclosure from numerous nonparties, some of which were not even identified and in light of the exceedingly broad and undefined nature of the information sought, together with the almost certain unduly protracted delay that would result, the reviewing court upheld the denial. Matter of Suit-Kote Corp. v Rivera, 137 A.D.3d 1361, 26 N.Y.S.3d 642, 2016 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1533 (N.Y. The Industrial Commissioner's procedure for determining the prevailing rate of wages in a locality by maintaining a list of 57 geographical areas with current union wage rates for each area is improper, pursuant to § 220(3, 5, [a, d]) of the Labor Law, which is mandatory and explicit as to procedure; the commissioner is not free to select geographic areas at will or to determine the prevailing rate of wages in any manner other than that prescribed in the statute. F.G. Compagni Constr. Co. v Ross, 103 Misc. 2d 313, 425 N.Y.S.2d 767, 1980 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2115 (N.Y. Sup. Ct.), modified, (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1980).

In an Article 78 proceeding brought by petitioner, an organization composed of representatives of labor and management in the electrical industry, seeking to require the mayor to incorporate within a city's standard form of contracts for the fabrication and installation of telecommunications facilities a provision requiring the payment of salaries at not less than the prevailing rate of wages for certain classes of employment in public works under Labor Law § 220(3) and the New York State Constitution Art I § 17, the petition would be granted where, although such provision is generally inapplicable to contracts for the purchase of goods, and the cost of labor is substantially less than the cost of the equipment, the test of the applicability of § 220 should be whether there are persons within the enumerated classes of employment engaged in public work and not determined by an arbitrary numerical ratio of labor to material. Joint Industry Bd. of Electrical Industry v Koch, 114 Misc. 2d 868, 452 N.Y.S.2d 488, 1982 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3579 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1982).

Although the annualization regulation may have an economic impact on contractors who perform public work, it does not compel them to pay the prevailing supplements in cash or make matching contributions to their employee benefit plan for private work; thus, the annualization regulation does not violate N.Y. Lab. Law § 220 and it is not preempted by the National Labor Relations Act, 29 U.S.C.S. §§ 151-169. Chesterfield Assocs. v N.Y. State Dep't of Labor, 3 A.D.3d 491, 771 N.Y.S.2d 139, 2004 N.Y. New York City Comptroller's determination of the prevailing wages applicable to movers did not withstand challenge by the movers in a proceeding pursuant to N.Y. C.P.L.R. 7803, as the Comptroller's reliance on a collective bargaining agreement and the 30 percent formula embodied in N.Y. Lab. Law § 220 was improper; rather, the determination should have been based on N.Y. Lab. Law § 230, which was specifically applicable to movers. Matter of Metropolitan Movers Assn., Inc. v Liu, 919 N.Y.S.2d 822, 32 Misc. 3d 175, 2011 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1415 (N.Y. Sup. 31. — —Timeliness of objection

In proceeding against subcontractor for violating CLS Labor § 220(3) by failing to pay overtime specified in prevailing wage rate schedule in connection with project to remove asbestos and reinsulate mechanical systems at public school, subcontractor's challenge to use of prevailing wage rate schedule was untimely since it was made more than one year after it had received notice of violations. Tru-Temp Industrial Insulation Co. v Hartnett, 155 A.D.2d 820, 547 N.Y.S.2d 941, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 14371 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1989).

In proceeding against contractor for violating CLS Labor § 220(3) by failing to pay prevailing asbestos worker wage rates in connection with project to remove asbestos and reinsulate mechanical systems at public school, contractor's challenge to use of prevailing wage rate schedule was untimely since it was made more than one year after schedule had become binding. Tru-Temp Industrial Insulation Co. v Hartnett, 155 A.D.2d 820, 547 N.Y.S.2d 941, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 14371 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1989).

32. — —Modification

An order directing payment of prevailing rate of wages may provide for payment to employees "who may hereafter be employed" by the contractor. Such order binds the contractor to pay said rate until the order of determination is modified. Application for modification of such order must be made upon a verified complaint in writing. Carder Realty Corp. v Perkins, 237 A.D. 152, 261 N.Y.S. 819, 1932 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5295 (N.Y. App. Div. 1932), aff'd, 261 N.Y. 634, 185 N.E. 770, 261 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 634, 1933 N.Y. LEXIS 1443 (N.Y. 1933).

In an Article 78 proceeding brought by contractors engaged in public construction to annul certain prevailing wage and supplement redeterminations issued pursuant to Labor § 220 by the Industrial Commissioner and seeking vacatur of certain notices to withhold payment of monies issued on the basis of the contested redeterminations, the trial court correctly ruled that the Commissioner's failure to comply with statutory procedures in ascertaining prevailing wages and supplements vitiated the redeterminations, and that certain 1978 amendments to Labor § 220 were not to be applied retroactively in relation to a contract executed before their effective date so as to excuse the failure of the Commissioner to provide the contractor with notice and hearing and to justify his initiation of a redetermination without a request by the contracting municipality. However, the court's annulment of the notices to withhold payment of monies was premature since the contractors had failed to pursue the administrative remedy provided by Labor § 220-b(2). F. G. Compagni Constr. Co. v Ross, 79 A.D.2d 831, 435 N.Y.S.2d 144, 1980 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 14230 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1980)).

Commissioner of labor has authority to issue prevailing wage and supplement schedules on annual basis relative to ongoing public works projects pursuant to CLS Labor § 220, and amendments to statute which eliminated specific reference to redetermined rates and their enforcement in existing contracts were not intended to eliminate commissioner's authority to update rates and apply them to pre-existing contracts. General Bldg. Contractors, Inc. v Roberts, 118 A.D.2d 173, 504 N.Y.S.2d 292, 1986 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 54132 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1986).

33. Wage schedules

Where plaintiff constructed buildings for defendant under a contract in which he agreed to pay workmen on the jobs the prevailing rate of wages, and a schedule of wage rates was made a part of the contract, and during the progress of the work the prevailing wage rates increased, and although plaintiff would have been able to obtain labor at the rates specified in the schedule, the defendant required that wages be paid at the increased prevailing rates, such action on part of defendant in requiring the increased rates to be paid did not amount to a breach of contract on his part. D. M. W. Contracting Co. v Board of Education, 259 A.D. 1081, 21 N.Y.S.2d 299, 1940 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8089 (N.Y. App. Div. 1940), aff'd, 285 N.Y. 591, 33 N.E.2d 254, 285 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 591, 1941 N.Y. LEXIS 1611 (N.Y. 1941).

A subcontractor on a state job could not recover the difference between the wages paid by him to certain employees and the higher rates fixed by the Industrial Commissioner as the prevailing hour wage rates since the state was not liable for a breach of contract because of the effect on the contract of the rulings of the Industrial Commissioner on what were the prevailing wages for particular work under this section. Armco Drainage & Metal Products, Inc. v State, 4 A.D.2d 366, 165 N.Y.S.2d 276, 1957 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4710 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1957).

Even though public entity neglected to perform its statutory obligation of annexing applicable wage schedule to work specifications before advertising for bids on university project, where contractor neglected to take advantage of information obtainable by law concerning requirement of party who contracts with public entity to pay prevailing rate of wages before submitting bid that did not take into account prevailing wage rate, agreed to perform work and failed to object before signing contract promising to pay prevailing rate, contractor could not seek to recover for difference between prevailing wage rate it was required to pay workmen and wage rate it had anticipated paying workmen at time of bid. Brang Co. v State University Constr. Fund, 47 A.D.2d 178, 365 N.Y.S.2d 914, 1975 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8739 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1975).

Contractor may not obtain reimbursement from public entity for increased labor cost due to subsequent increases in prevailing wage rate schedule during project, despite fact that proper lower rates were originally included by schedule in contract with public entity. Brang Co. v State University Constr. Fund, 47 A.D.2d 178, 365 N.Y.S.2d 914, 1975 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8739 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1975).

In proceedings to review determinations of Commissioner of Labor that public contractors failed to pay prevailing wages and supplements to workers on Department of Transportation bridge projects, there was no merit to contractors' contention that determinations were not supported by substantial evidence because they relied on wage rate schedules supplied by commissioner which had expired, since contractors were required by CLS Labor § 220(3) and (5) to pay "prevailing rate of wage," and any alleged failure of commissioner to supply wage rate schedules could not relieve them from paying prevailing wage rate. Naftilos Painting & Sandblasting, Inc. v Hartnett, 173 A.D.2d 964, 569 N.Y.S.2d 474, 1991 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5614 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1991).

Evidence supported finding that contractor had notice of updated prevailing wage schedule, despite contractor's assertion that it did not learn of August 1987 schedule until August 1988, and was thus not obligated to pay higher wages until 30 days after it received schedule, where architect's progress notes for November 1987 meeting indicated that updated schedule was disseminated to all contractors, and contractor's project manager received and reviewed progress notes and took no exception to notes. Nelson's Lamp Lighters v Hudacs, 204 A.D.2d 814, 611 N.Y.S.2d 714, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5176 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1994).

Contractor had no claim against the state where subcontractor paid higher wages for job classifications than he was required to pay, since such payments were voluntarily made and under the contract the State Department of Labor was to fix rates paid to classifications other than those designated in the bid proposal. Armco Drainage & Metal Products, Inc. v State, 3 Misc. 2d 803, 156 N.Y.S.2d 90, 1956 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1504 (N.Y. Ct. Cl. 1956), aff'd, 4 A.D.2d 366, 165 N.Y.S.2d 276, 1957 N.Y. App. Div. A resolution of the board of estimate which was merely the first step to the regrading of the position of climber-pruner under the career and salary plan had no effect on prior classification of that position in force up to the date that the resolution was approved by the State Civil Service Commission. Hence, petitioners were entitled to the prevailing wages as determined under Labor Law. Auguti v Board of Estimate, 9 Misc. 2d 346, 169 N.Y.S.2d 670, 1957 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2078 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1957).

Where public housing authority advertises for bids for construction project, schedule of supplements to be provided and wages to be paid workmen, laborers and mechanics must be prepared by city treasurer rather than project manager of housing authority, as the city treasurer is the "fiscal officer" if the city is involved in operation of the project at all. Empire State Chapter of Associated Builders & Contractors, Inc. v Rome Housing Authority, 72 Misc. 2d 910, 339 N.Y.S.2d 847, 1972 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1375 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1972).

Two personnel orders—reclassifying certain positions, revising, and/or removing salary, time, and leave—had to be annulled as violative of N.Y. Civ. Serv. Law § 20, N.Y. Lab. Law § 220, and N.Y. Const. art. V, § 6 because they affected both new and incumbent employees without notice, hearing, or a determination confirming the adherence to state-wide standards of merit and fitness. Matter of DeMartino v City of New York, 948 N.Y.S.2d 552, 36 Misc. 3d 653, 2012 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3195 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 2012).

The specifications for a public work advertised for competitive bidding should include schedules of prevailing wages and supplements for the laborers, mechanics and workmen to be employed, based upon the classifications of these trades and occupations furnished to the village fiscal officer by the advisory board to the industrial commissioner. 1968 Ops St Compt File #447.

34. Wage supplements

"Cost of living" bonuses paid to employees of the City of New York should be included in computing salary actually received even though such bonuses were not considered for retirement purposes. Driesbach v New York, 1 N.Y.2d 272, 152 N.Y.S.2d 271, 135 N.E.2d 32, 1956 N.Y. LEXIS 879 (N.Y.), reh'g denied, 2 N.Y.2d 756, 1956 N.Y. LEXIS 1313 (N.Y. 1956).

Laborers employed by the City of New York settled their prevailing rate of wages claims under an agreement which provided for a 5-day week and the same vacation allowance theretofore used. Previously, the laborers worked a 6-day week and received a vacation allowance of 4 work weeks and one day, amounting to 25 days. Under the new agreement, the laborers were not entitled to 25 days vacation allowance but only to 21 days. Trainor v New York, 2 N.Y.2d 761, 157 N.Y.S.2d 970, 139 N.E.2d 149, 1956 N.Y. LEXIS 653 (N.Y. 1956).

Labor Law § 220(3), which requires that supplemental fringe benefits be provided to employees engaged in public works projects "in accordance with the prevailing practices in the same trade or occupation in the locality within the state" in which the public work is located, is satisfied where employees are given cash, or a combination of benefits and cash, equivalent to the cost of obtaining the prevailing benefits, or are provided an equivalent benefits plan. Thus, the Comptroller of the City of New York erred in determining that an employer on a public works contract violated Labor Law § 220(3) by failing to provide its laborers and electricians with the prevailing supplemental benefits from the Comptroller's benefit schedule, or with an equivalent benefits plan, where the employer's compliance was evaluated under the erroneous standard that cash payments could not be a means of providing the prevailing supplements. There was nothing unreasonable in the Labor Commissioner's determination that the only way to be sure that a construction contractor was not getting too much prevailing wage credit for pension contributions on behalf of its employees was by applying the annualization regulation, N.Y. Comp. Codes tit. 12, § 220.2(d), dividing the contributions by the total annual hours worked on both public and private work and only then multiplying the quotient by the total annual hours worked on the public project in question. LEXIS 3641 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1974), aff'd, 38 N.Y.2d 727, 381 N.Y.S.2d 38, 343 N.E.2d 756, 1975 N.Y. LEXIS 2317 (N.Y. 1975).

In a proceeding before the Industrial Commission, evidence supported the determination by the commissioner that payment by a development corporation which had been awarded a contract by the Department of Transportation for the construction of a portion of a highway of "supplementary employment benefits" in the form of continued premium payments for life and health insurance during eligible periods of unemployment did not constitute compliance with the article of the Labor Law providing for payment to workers of supplements by a party awarded a contract with the state; such supplements were required to be paid in cash, despite the fact that the extended health and life insurance protection may have represented greater benefits for the workers. Lancaster Development, Inc. v Ross, 82 A.D.2d 1013, 442 N.Y.S.2d 180, 1981 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 14748 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1981).

Under Labor Law § 220 a city was required to pay plaintiff the prevailing hourly wage rate (that rate paid to the majority of local private industry laborers performing similar work), and could not offset plaintiff's reimbursement by the amount of "supplemental" benefits already paid to him; however, the city would not be required to recompute past vacation and sick leave payments at the higher hourly rate, since these are "supplements" over and above what is commonly provided by the private sector. Mescia v New York, 107 A.D.2d 586, 483 N.Y.S.2d 316, 1985 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 42584 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1985).

In assessing liability of public works contractor for failure to provide supplements pursuant to operative schedule, Commissioner of Labor did not err in failing to calculate average hourly cost of contractor's employee health plan by dividing contractor's annual payment by number of hours worked on particular public project, since health benefits extended throughout entire year, whether employees worked or not, and hourly cost of such benefits should be similarly calculated. Janik Paving & Constr., Inc. v Roberts, 132 A.D.2d 978, 518 N.Y.S.2d 509, 1987 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 49449 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1987).

Substantial evidence existed to support determination by Commissioner of Labor that employer willfully underpaid prevailing vacation and holiday rate in violation of CLS Labor Art 8 where employer conceded that it utilized incorrect formula to compute rate of pay and it improperly credited itself for benefits paid over prevailing supplement for apprenticeship benefits. Tap Electrical Contracting Service, Inc. v Hartnett, 156 A.D.2d 612, 549 N.Y.S.2d 118, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 16440 (N.Y. This section cannot be interpreted as requiring a particular contractor to furnish the same wage "supplements" as are required of similar contractors whose employees are members of a different union, but merely that he furnish equal or equivalent benefits to those received by a majority of employees in the same industry and category. Gottlieb Contracting, Inc. v Beame, 41 Misc. 2d 1097, 247 N.Y.S.2d 237, 1964 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2110 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1964).

Even though right to annual leave, including accrued annual leave, was bargained-for benefit and enforceable as a contractual obligation of city, in absence of provision in bargaining agreement for cash payments or a statute authorizing payment, deceased sewage treatment employee's estate was not entitled to cash in lieu of employee's unused annual leave. Lombardi v New York, 78 Misc. 2d 1057, 359 N.Y.S.2d 154, 1974 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1557 (N.Y. Sup. Ct.), modified, 46 A.D.2d 750, 361 N.Y.S.2d 1, 1974 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3641 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1974).

Under section 220 of the Labor Law, which provides that the wages to be paid to workers on public works projects shall not be less than the prevailing rate as defined therein, and that the supplements to be provided to such workers are to be in accordance with prevailing practice in the locality, and which defines "supplements" as "all remuneration for employment paid in any medium other than cash, or reimbursement for expenses, or any payments which are not 'wages' . . . including . . . health, welfare, non-occupational disability . . . and life insurance", the City of New York, upon a finding that the predominant number of contractors in the locality provide health plans for their employees, could properly require bidders on a public works project to provide a health plan for their employees, and reject a bid by a contractor who paid supplemental funds to its employees instead of securing a health plan for them. Pilot Mechanical Corp. v Carroll, 94 Misc. 2d 437, 404 N.Y.S.2d 839, 1978 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2265 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1978).

A resolution of the Rensselaer County Legislature requiring contractors bidding upon construction work for the county to have an approved apprentice training program as well as an approved health and hospital plan and an approved pension plan for their employees, is not unconstitutional, and, accordingly, even though petitioner submitted the low bid for roof repairs to the county jail, the contract was properly awarded to the second lowest bidder because petitioner does not have an approved apprentice training program; the determination that a contractor provide an apprentice training program is reasonable, required by law (Labor Law, § 220) and further approved as public policy of the State. Skyway Roofing of Troy, Inc. v County of Rensselaer, 103 Misc. 2d 750, 426 N.Y.S.2d 959, 1980 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2190 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1980), aff'd, 79 A.D.2d 1078, 436 N.Y.S.2d 103, 1981 N.Y. App. Div. 35. —Effect of ERISA

Federal Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974 (ERISA) (29 USCS §§ 1001 et seq.) did not preempt CLS Labor Art 8 regarding latter's regulation of rate of vacation and holiday payments where employer did not provide its employees with vacation and holiday supplements through a plan but, rather, paid them through its payroll. Tap Electrical Contracting Service, Inc. v Hartnett, 156 A.D.2d 612, 549 N.Y.S.2d 118, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 16440 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1989), app. dismissed, 75 N.Y.2d 835, 552 N.Y.S.2d 922, 552 N.E.2d 170, 1990 N.Y. LEXIS 132 (N.Y. 1990), app. dismissed, 75 N.Y.2d 836, 552 N.Y.S.2d 922, 552 N.E.2d 170, 1990 N.Y. LEXIS 130 (N.Y. 1990), modified, 76 N.Y.2d 164, 556 N.Y.S.2d 988, 556 N.E.2d 427, 1990 N.Y. LEXIS 1308 (N.Y. 1990).

Commissioner of Labor's order requiring public works contractor "either to bring [its Employee Retirement Income Security Act (ERISA) (29 USCS §§ 1001 et seq.) supplements] into conformity with those prevailing in the locality...or to make up the difference through cash payments to [its] employees" was preempted by ERISA. Tap Elec. Contracting Serv. v Hartnett, 207 A.D.2d 547, 616 N.Y.S.2d 86, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8533 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1994), app. dismissed, 85 N.Y.2d 857, 624 N.Y.S.2d 374, 648 N.E.2d 794, 1995 N.Y. LEXIS 310 (N.Y. 1995), cert. denied, 516 U.S. 812, 116 S. Ct. 61, 133 L. Ed. 2d 24, 1995 U.S. LEXIS 5372 (U.S. 1995).

Portion of CLS Labor § 220 dealing with "supplements" was preempted by Employee Retirement Income Security Act, 29 USCS §§ 1001 et seq. (ERISA) where it was intent of out-of-state corporation and local union in their collective bargaining agreement to have those supplemental benefits which were incorporated into agreement apply as equally as possible to all employees, regardless of state or locality in which employees might be working; CLS Labor § 220 conflicted with ERISA regarding such agreement because state statute requires ex-locality employers either to bring pension and welfare plans into conformity with those prevailing in locality, or to make up difference through cash payments to employees. General Elec. Co. v New York State Dep't of Labor, 891 F.2d 25, 1989 U.S. App. LEXIS 18243 (2d Cir. N.Y. 1989), cert. denied, 496 U.S. 912, 110 S. Ct. 2603, 110 L. Ed. 2d 283, 1990 U.S. LEXIS 2851 (U.S. 1990).

Wage provisions of CLS Labor Law § 220 not relating to supplements are valid and severable from invalid provisions, where federal appeals court held that provisions relating to supplements were preempted by ERISA, because the remaining, valid provisions will continue to promote the goal of maintaining adequate wages on public works projects and equalizing competition for such projects. General Elec. Co. v New York State Dep't of Labor, 742 F. Supp. 80, 1990 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 6957 (S.D.N.Y. 1990), aff'd in part and rev'd in part, 936 F.2d 1448, 1991 U.S. App. LEXIS 14870 (2d Cir. N.Y. 1991).

Whether an employer on a public works project had avoided liability for contribution obligations under the Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974 as to designated core employees by meeting contractual requirements for private plans and paying cash supplements to the designated employees under this section could not be decided on summary judgment because factual disputes existed, including a dispute as to whether employees had been properly designated as core under the contract's terms. Cent. N.Y. Laborers' Health & Welfare Fund v Fahs Constr. Grp., 170 F. Supp. 3d 337, 2016 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 38270 (N.D.N.Y. 2016).

36. Waiver of rights

A municipal corporation may not knowingly violate this section and where payments in violation of such provisions have been made to contractors with knowledge that they worked their men more than eight hours while engaged in performance of such work, the corporation cannot be credited with such payments against the surety for the contractor who is in default, nor can the municipality waive violation of the statute to the extent of compensating the contractor for work done and materials furnished on the basis of quantum meruit. Signed releases from employees accepting sum as full settlement of earnings at established prevailing rate are unenforceable since releases are contrary to both legislative intent and public policy; court will not approve receipt and release forms obtained from workers who worked on public project for less than amount found to be due and payable under prevailing wage rate schedule. John F. Cadwallader, Inc. v New York State Dep't of Labor, 112 A.D.2d 577, 491 N.Y.S.2d 511, 1985 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 55927 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1985).

A release by a civil service employee was invalid where it covered claims arising by reason of services heretofore rendered and for difference in wages heretofore received where the employee's claim was based on the wrongful act of the city in not making employment available. This latter question was not contemplated by the parties nor involved in the controversy terminated by the releases. Kunz v New York, 126 N.Y.S.2d 588, 204 Misc. 1027, 1953 N.Y. Misc. 37. Procedural matters

After a proceeding pursuant to CPLR Article 78 to, inter alia, compel respondents to comply with Labor Law § 220 when contracting for work on a public works project which involved the construction of a municipal parking garage, the appeal would be dismissed where the parties informed the court that construction of the garage had been completed and therefore the issues presented to the court had been rendered moot. Place v White Plains, 81 A.D.2d 660, 438 N.Y.S.2d 367, 1981 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11183 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't), app. dismissed, 54 N.Y.2d 605, 1981 N.Y. LEXIS 4451 (N.Y. 1981).

Commissioner of Labor was not precluded from finding that petitioner's failure to pay prevailing wages and supplements on public work project was "willful" on ground that Department of Labor did not promptly notify petitioner of violation in writing, in accordance with its procedure manual, since petitioner was orally advised more than once of prevailing wage violations and correct wages to be paid but continued to adhere to its payment practices; furthermore, petitioner's contention that, as out-of-state contractor it had no reason to know of prevailing wage requirements, was belied by terms of its subcontract which expressly related thereto. Respondent's withholding of payment of moneys due petitioner under public works contract, after petitioner refused to comply within 10 days with respondent's request for payroll records, was improperly characterized as lien which could be discharged by posting undertaking pursuant to Lien Law; to allow petitioner to vacate notice to withhold payment by posting undertaking would undermine respondent's ability to require compliance with CLS Labor § 220(3-a)(c). Notice issued by Department of Labor (DOL) relative to CLS Labor § 220 provisions regarding payment of prevailing supplements into ERISA-qualified benefit plans was not invalid or unenforceable because not formally adopted pursuant to State Administrative Procedure Act rule-making procedures, where it merely informed contractors on public works projects of DOL's new enforcement policies, it relied on existing regulations and laws for its stated conclusions, and it thus fell within exception of CLS St Adm P Act § 102(2)(b)(iv). Commissioner of Labor properly imputed its finding of a contractor's willfulness for failing to pay prevailing wages to its workers to a "substantially owned-affiliated entity" because the shareholders of both entities were members of the same family, and the contractor essentially used the entity's workers as its own field staff. In a class action suit brought by former and current employees seeking to recover unpaid prevailing wages for their work on various public works projects under State of New York law, the employer's motion to strike the employees' economic expert was denied because none of the employer's challenges warranted exclusion of the expert's testimony or report at trial since the challenges went to the weight of the testimony, not its admissibility. Ramos v SimplexGrinnell LP, 796 F. Supp. 2d 346, 2011 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 65593 (E.D.N.Y. 2011), vacated, 773 F.3d 394, 2014 U.S. App. LEXIS 22791 (2d Cir. N.Y. 2014).

38. —Notice of claim

Three-month notice of claim requirement under CLS Educ § 3813(1) for statutory or nonjudicial proceedings involving school districts, school boards, and boards of cooperative educational services does not apply to proceedings initiated by Commissioner of Labor to enforce prevailing wage payment requirements for public work projects under CLS Labor § 220. Cayuga-Onondaga Counties Bd. of Coop. Educ. Servs. v Sweeney, 89 N.Y.2d 395, 654 N.Y.S.2d 92, 676 N.E.2d 854, 1996 N.Y. LEXIS 3601 (N.Y. 1996), reh'g denied, 89 N.Y.2d 1031, 658 N.Y.S.2d 246, 680 N.E.2d 620, 1997 N.Y. LEXIS 382 (N.Y. 1997).

39. —Statute of limitations

In a proceeding brought by a public works contractor to annul a wage rate redetermination made by the Industrial Commissioner pursuant to Labor L § 220, an order of the lower court that reversed the judgment vacating the redetermination and the accompanying wage withholding orders would be affirmed, where the contractor received notice of the redetermination a few days after it was made and received prompt notice of wage withholding orders served on the relevant public officials but did not commence the proceeding until after the four-month statute of limitations contained in CPLR § 217 had expired, and since § 217 was appropriate limitations period to be applied to the proceeding. A.J. Cerasaro, Inc. v Ross, 60 N.Y.2d 946, 471 N.Y.S.2d 49, 459 N.E.2d 158, 1983 N.Y. LEXIS 3578 (N.Y. 1983).

Contractor's Article 78 proceeding to challenge Commissioner of Labor's classification of its telephone installers as "electricians" and commissioner's order to pay such employees according to prevailing rate schedule was timely where brought within 4 months of issuance of commissioner's determination; although contractor had previously received prevailing rate schedule which indicated that telephone installers were classified as electricians, classification did not become effective as to its employees, nor was it aggrieved by classification, until commissioner's determination was issued. Twin State CCS Corp. v Roberts, 72 N.Y.2d 897, 532 N.Y.S.2d 746, 528 N.E.2d 1219, 1988 N.Y. LEXIS 1663 (N.Y. 1988).

One-year statute of limitations under CLS Educ § 3813(2-b) for statutory or nonjudicial proceedings involving school districts, school boards, and boards of cooperative educational services does not apply to proceedings initiated by Commissioner of Labor to enforce prevailing wage payment requirements for public work projects under CLS Labor § 220. Cayuga-Onondaga Counties Bd. of Coop. Educ. Servs. v Sweeney, 89 N.Y.2d 395, 654 N.Y.S.2d 92, 676 N.E.2d 854, 1996 N.Y. LEXIS 3601 (N.Y. 1996), reh'g denied, 89 N.Y.2d 1031, 658 N.Y.S.2d 246, 680 N.E.2d 620, 1997 N.Y. LEXIS 382 (N.Y. 1997).

A proceeding to annul wage redeterminations of the Industrial Commissioner, made pursuant to § 220 of the Labor Law, which implements the constitutional mandate (NY Const, art I, § 17) that "[n]o laborer, workman or mechanic, in the employ of a contractor engaged in the performance of any public work * * * shall be paid less than the rate of wages prevailing in the same trade or occupation in the locality within the state where such public work is to be situated, executed or used", affecting contracts entered into prior to the effective date of chapter 336 of the Laws of 1978, which amended section 220 prospectively, must be commenced within four months of the notice of entry of the determination (CPLR 217), since in the absence of judicial proceedings the order of the Industrial Commissioner was final and enforceable insofar as the withholding of contract payment is concerned; the lack of underlying compliance to invoke the 30-day Statute of Limitations contained in former subdivision 8 of section 220 of the Labor Law does not establish that CPLR 217 is inapplicable, since the fact that the finality of the order of redetermination was subject to attack and the statutory infirmities were such as to bar the start of its own short Statute of Limitations does not establish that there was not otherwise a final determination subject to CPLR article 78 review. Schultz Constr., Inc. v Ross, 76 A.D.2d 151, 431 N.Y.S.2d 144, 1980 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11743 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1980), app. dismissed, 52 N.Y.2d 897, 437 N.Y.S.2d 307, 418 N.E.2d 1325, 1981 N.Y. LEXIS 2147 (N.Y. 1981), aff'd, 53 N.Y.2d 790, 439 N.Y.S.2d 919, 422 N.E.2d 579, 1981 N.Y. LEXIS 2414 (N.Y. 1981), aff'd, 53 N.Y.2d 792, 439 N.Y.S.2d 919, 422 N.E.2d 579, 1981 N.Y. LEXIS 2415 (N.Y. 1981).

An article 78 proceeding to annul a prevailing-wage redetermination issued under Labor Law § 220 must be commenced, in accordance with CPLR § 217, within four months of the notice of entry of the determination. A.J. Cerasaro, Inc. v Ross, 94 A.D.2d 943, 464 N.Y.S.2d 70, 1983 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 18410 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't), aff'd, 60 N.Y.2d 946, 471 N.Y.S.2d 49, 459 N.E.2d 158, 1983 N.Y. LEXIS 3578 (N.Y. 1983).

Article 78 proceeding challenging determination of prevailing wage rate schedule and classification of subcontractor's employees as sheet metal workers was time barred by 4-month period of CLS CPLR § 217 where it was undisputed that proceeding was commenced more than one year after subcontractor received prevailing wage rate schedule, notwithstanding that subcontractor received such schedule after work was completed; further, notice of hearing issued by Department of Labor within 4-month period did not toll limitation period since hearing was held solely to determine whether subcontractor had complied with wage rate schedule. North Country Installers v Commissioner of Labor, 135 A.D.2d 1039, 522 N.Y.S.2d 974, 1987 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 52906 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1987).

The three months' period of limitations begins to run once there is final determination of the prevailing rate for any particular period of time, and does not run from the time that entire period of employment of a particular employee is covered by the final orders determining the prevailing rate. Filloramo v Carder Realty Corp., 284 N.Y.S. 240, 157 Misc. 662, 1935 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1628 (N.Y. App. Term 1935), aff'd, 248 A.D. 865, 291 N.Y.S. 394, 1936 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7754 (N.Y. App. Div. 1936).

40. —Sufficiency of complaint

In an action by engineers who were formerly employed by the defendant to recover the difference between the amount paid them by the defendant and the alleged prevailing rate of wages, the complaint was properly dismissed for failure to allege compliance with statutory requirements for ascertainment of prevailing rate of wages by the comptroller. Olsen v Brooklyn Ash Removal Co., 268 N.Y. 693, 198 N.E. 561, 268 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 693, 1935 N.Y. LEXIS 1155 (N.Y. 1935).

Where the plaintiff did not allege or prove that the city comptroller had made an investigation to determine the prevailing wage rate and filed an order fixing said rate and where the plaintiff had not been paid in accordance with such order his complaint was dismissed. Cirillo v New York, 287 N.Y. 641, 39 N.E.2d 273, 287 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 641, 1941 N.Y. LEXIS 2510 (N.Y. 1941).

Where there was no proof of compliance with this section an action to foreclose a lien for the amount alleged to be the difference between the wages paid plaintiff and the prevailing rate was dismissed. Anderson v New York, 243 A.D. 731, 277 N.Y.S. 548, 1935 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7993 (N.Y. App. Div. 1935).

An auto machinist, employed in labor class of civil service in department of sanitation of New York city, in order to maintain actions under § 220, must allege and prove that comptroller of New York city has, on his own initiative or on verified complaint of interested party, made an investigation to determine prevailing rate of wages, and that he as a machinist was not paid in accordance with rate fixed. Cirillo v New York, 10 N.Y.S.2d 472, 170 Misc. 230, 1939 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1593 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1939), aff'd, 259 A.D. 717, 19 N.Y.S.2d 151, 1940 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6385 (N.Y. App. Div. 1940).

"Verified complaint" referred to in § 220, subd. 8, is original verified complaint in proceeding, rather than complaint of plaintiff. McKibbin v New York, 51 N.Y.S.2d 50, 182 Misc. 671, 1944 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2460 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1944), aff'd, 269 A.D. 696, 53 N.Y.S.2d 474, 1945 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3352 (N.Y. App. Div. 1945).

Where laborer's three previous complaints concerning prevailing wage rates had been settled with city comptroller without filing of complaint with Industrial Commission, laborer's fourth complaint, filed with the comptroller, was valid complaint. Petrocchi v Ronan, 81 Misc. 2d 741, 367 N.Y.S.2d 178, 1975 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2464 (N.Y. Civ. Ct. 1975).

Private contractors were granted summary judgment on the workers' N.Y. Lab. Law § 220(2) claims for overtime wages where there was no indication that they had exhausted their administrative remedies as required by N. Y. Lab. Law § 220(7)-(9). Almazo v M.A. Angeliades, Inc., 2015 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 152698 (S.D.N.Y. Nov. 10, 2015).

In a class action suit brought by former and current employees seeking to recover unpaid prevailing wages for their work on various public works projects under State of New York law, the employer's motion for summary judgment on the grounds that the employees have failed to submit the intended public works contracts underlying their claims was denied because there was no need to refer to the contracts to determine the wage rate to be paid as that amount was published, thus, the contracts were collateral, and therefore secondary evidence. Ramos v SimplexGrinnell LP, 796 F. Supp. 2d 346, 2011 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 65593 (E.D.N.Y. 2011), vacated, 773 F.3d 394, 2014 U.S. App. LEXIS 22791 (2d Cir. N.Y. 2014).

In a class action suit brought by former and current employees seeking to recover unpaid prevailing wages for their work on various public works projects under State of New York law, the employer's motion for summary judgment was granted on the employees' claim for failure to pay wages in violation of N.Y. Lab. Law §§ 190-198 because those statutory sections did not apply and the employees were merely trying to improperly seek liquidated damages and attorneys' fees by recasting their third-party beneficiary claims under N.Y. Lab. Law § 220 as statutory wage claims enforceable under those inapplicable enforcement provisions. Ramos v SimplexGrinnell LP, 796 F. Supp. 2d 346, 2011 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 65593 (E.D.N.Y. 2011), vacated, 773 F.3d 394, 2014 U.S. App. LEXIS 22791 (2d Cir. N.Y. 2014).

Former employee's claim against a security contractor for unpaid overtime was barred by the employee's failure to exhaust the condition precedent under N.Y. Lab. Law § 220(8). Goodman v Port Auth. of N.Y. & N.J., 850 F. Supp. 2d 363, 2012 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 26401 (S.D.N.Y. 2012).

41. —Class actions

In employees' action to recover prevailing wage rate under CLS Labor § 220, class would be limited to employees of primary employer and not expanded to include employees of its subcontractors where plaintiffs failed to prove existence of any employees of subcontractors, much less any who were paid less than prevailing rate of wages and benefits, and sole employees identified by complaint were those of primary employer. Pesantez v Boyle Envtl. Servs., Inc., 251 A.D.2d 11, 673 N.Y.S.2d 659, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6382 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1998).

In employees' action to recover prevailing wage rate under CLS Labor § 220, requirements for certification of class under CLS CPLR §§ 901 and 902 were met where, inter alia, (1) employer's certified payroll records listed over 100 employees who worked on project in question, (2) named plaintiffs identified about 80 such workers, (3) joinder of all employees was impractical, (4) all proposed class members worked on same project, were due prevailing rates of wages and benefits, and were allegedly underpaid, (5) plaintiffs showed interest in action, (6) plaintiffs' counsel showed level of competence ensuring that they could fairly and adequately represent class members, and (7) any persons who wished to pursue punitive claims under CLS Labor § 198 could opt out of class. Pesantez v Boyle Envtl. Servs., Inc., 251 A.D.2d 11, 673 N.Y.S.2d 659, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6382 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1998).

In employees' action to recover prevailing wage rate under CLS Labor § 220, class action would be best method of adjudicating controversy where amount of potential recovery of each individual was small, liability of primary employer's subcontractor and subcontractor's surety was only contingent on remaining defendants' failure to pay prevailing rate, many proposed class members had not sought relief in administrative proceeding under CLS Labor § 220(7) and (8), most individual differences could be resolved by documentary evidence of payroll checks and time sheets, and thus there would be no serious problems in managing claims of maximum of 300 individuals. Pesantez v Boyle Envtl. Servs., Inc., 251 A.D.2d 11, 673 N.Y.S.2d 659, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6382 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1998).

Although plaintiff class of employees could proceed on its common-law breach of contract claims for underpayment of wages and benefits, issue of whether class could proceed on its claims under CLS Labor § 220 would be remanded to IAS Court for development of record and for decision where record did not allow review of extent and status of underlying administrative proceeding. Pesantez v Boyle Envtl. Servs., Inc., 251 A.D.2d 11, 673 N.Y.S.2d 659, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6382 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1998).

Former and current employees' motion for class certification was granted with regard to seeking to recover unpaid prevailing wages for their work on various public works projects against an employer under State of New York law because under Fed. R. Civ. P. 23, they established: numerosity by alleging that the class consists of at least 400 members; the requirement of commonality was satisfied as their claim, that the proposed class members were denied prevailing wages by the employer, raised common questions of law and fact; as to typicality, they each performed similar work for the employer, were subject to the same payroll procedures of defendant, and were not paid prevailing wages to which they were entitled; a law firm was chosen to satisfy the adequate representation requirement; common questions of law and fact relevant to all class members predominated over individualized issues as, although the putative class members earned prevailing wages at different rates and some worked more hours than others, those differences do not predominate over the main issue: whether the employer systematically failed to pay its employees the prevailing wages due them; and a class action was superior to other means of adjudication. Ramos v SimplexGrinnell LP, 796 F. Supp. 2d 346, 2011 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 65593 (E.D.N.Y. 2011), vacated, 773 F.3d 394, 2014 U.S. App. LEXIS 22791 (2d Cir. N.Y. 2014).

42. —Investigation

Under subd. 8 of this section a city officer making investigation is no longer the agent of the city but the representative of the state, empowered to determine dispute impartially. Gaston v Taylor, 274 N.Y. 359, 9 N.E.2d 9, 274 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 359, 1937 N.Y. LEXIS 854 (N.Y. 1937).

Employees who initiate investigation and employers who must pay rate determined thereby are the persons "affected" by investigation who are entitled to notice. Heaney v McGoldrick, 286 N.Y. 38, 35 N.E.2d 641, 286 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 38, 1941 N.Y. LEXIS 1472 (N.Y. 1941).

The requirement for service of certain notices provided for in Labor Law § 220(5)(f), Village Law § 341-b, and General Municipal Law § 50-e are inapplicable to actions brought pursuant to Labor Law § 220(8). Bucci v Port Chester, 22 N.Y.2d 195, 292 N.Y.S.2d 393, 239 N.E.2d 335, 1968 N.Y. LEXIS 1341 (N.Y. 1968).

A trade union was not an interested person within the meaning of this section and could not compel the fiscal officer of a school district to make an investigation of alleged violations of the prevailing wage law where the school district undertook to repair its property by using its own maintenance employees who were paid their regular wages which were lower than the prevailing wages paid to tradesmen for similar work. Yerry v Goodsell, 4 A.D.2d 395, 166 N.Y.S.2d 224, 1957 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4685 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1957), aff'd, 4 N.Y.2d 999, 177 N.Y.S.2d 514, 152 N.E.2d 535, 1958 N.Y. LEXIS 927 (N.Y. 1958).

In Article 78 proceeding for review of labor commissioner's finding that subcontractor violated prevailing wage requirements of CLS Labor § 220(3) in connection with its performance of public work project, court would not annul commissioner's finding on ground that labor department's investigation was unlawful because it was initiated as result of complaint by subcontractor's competitor since (1) CLS Labor § 220(7) permits commissioner to initiate compliance investigations, and (2) instant investigation, while prompted by letter from unsuccessful bidder, was initiated by Director of Bureau of Public Work, as commissioner's designee. Sierra Telcom Servs., Inc. v Hartnett, 174 A.D.2d 279, 579 N.Y.S.2d 753, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 909 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), app. dismissed, 79 N.Y.2d 1039, 584 N.Y.S.2d 448, 594 N.E.2d 942, 1992 N.Y. LEXIS 1463 (N.Y. 1992), app. dismissed, 79 N.Y.2d 1039, 584 N.Y.S.2d 448, 594 N.E.2d 942, 1992 N.Y. LEXIS 1511 (N.Y. 1992), app. denied, 80 N.Y.2d 756, 588 N.Y.S.2d 824, 602 N.E.2d 232, 1992 N.Y. LEXIS 3179 (N.Y. 1992), app. denied, 80 N.Y.2d 757, 588 N.Y.S.2d 825, 602 N.E.2d 233, 1992 N.Y.

LEXIS 3210 (N.Y. 1992), cert. denied, 507 U.S. 972, 113 S. Ct. 1413, 122 L. Ed. 2d 784, 1993 U.S. LEXIS 1979 (U.S. 1993).

Evidence of contractor's cooperation when violations of prevailing wages and supplements were brought to its attention by investigators did not preclude finding of willfulness. Nelson's Lamp Lighters v Hudacs, 204 A.D.2d 814, 611 N.Y.S.2d 714, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5176 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1994).

Finding that an employer underpaid employees was affirmed in an N.Y. C.P.L.R. art. 78 proceeding because, inter alia, any prejudice to the employer from the department's delay in the investigation was greatly ameliorated by the hearing officer's finding that the employer's account of its contacts with officials was credible, and that employer was left to understand that its proposed supplemental benefit credit was acceptable; the fact that the advice the employer received from department officials concerning the calculation of the prevailing wage may have been erroneous was not a basis for barring the department from performing its essential function. While the department was undoubtedly remiss in the manner in which it conducted the investigation, and was largely responsible for the extended amount of time it took to complete it, those failings did not relieve the employer of the contractual obligations to pay its employees the prevailing wage. Matter of Pegasus Cleaning Corp. v Smith, 73 A.D.3d 1328, 905 N.Y.S.2d 666, 2010 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4018 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), app. denied, 15 N.Y.3d 714, 913 N.Y.S.2d 643, 939 N.E.2d 809, 2010 N.Y. LEXIS 3469 (N.Y. 2010).

Six-month period for concluding compliance investigation under CLS Labor § 220(7) does not apply to investigation under CLS Labor § 220-b where withholdings have been directed pending final determination. Palmer Constr., Inc. v Hines, 154 Misc. 2d 248, 584 N.Y.S.2d 271, 1992 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 222 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1992).

43. —Hearing

Provision of Labor Law that any corporation wilfully refusing to pay wage rates determined by administrative order is guilty of a misdemeanor must be read in conjunction with provision of Labor Law permitting a public authority to cause an investigation to be made to determine the prevailing wage rate and provision that before making an order or determination on an investigation made on his own initiative a fiscal officer shall order a hearing at which the affected party shall be given an opportunity to be heard. Expert Electric, Inc. v Goldin, 51 A.D.2d 763, 380 N.Y.S.2d 50, 1976 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11324 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1976).

Although contract for electrical work for New York City Department of Water Resources bore legend that wage rates and supplemental benefits to be paid were those in effect at time work was being performed, provision of Labor Law requiring an opportunity for hearing before a wage order was made on a fiscal officer's own initiative was deemed part of the contract and, hence, absent notice or hearing, fiscal officer's unilateral promulgation of higher wage rate was not binding on contractor. Expert Electric, Inc. v Goldin, 51 A.D.2d 763, 380 N.Y.S.2d 50, 1976 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11324 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1976).

Basic issue to be determined by hearing officer on complaints by contractor's employees was contradiction between records of contractor, which had been awarded contracts by city, and testimony of employees as to hours worked and wages paid, and it was function of comptroller and his hearing officer to determine where truth lay. Parallel Plumbing & Heating Co. v Goldin, 56 A.D.2d 779, 393 N.Y.S.2d 1, 1977 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11051 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't), app. denied, 42 N.Y.2d 809, 1977 N.Y. LEXIS 3872 (N.Y. 1977).

The hearing provisions of section 220 of the Labor Law, relating to the prevailing wages to be paid under public works contracts, which require an investigation into prevailing wage rates when a complaint is filed or on the fiscal officer's own initiative (subd 7) and which require that a hearing be held before the fiscal officer proceeds under a complaint or before he makes any order or determination upon an investigation conducted on his own initiative (subd 8), do not apply only to initial wage rate determinations made prior to the letting of contracts but also apply to redeterminations of wage rates made during the pendency of contracts. Ballard Constr., Inc. v Ross, 63 A.D.2d 99, 406 N.Y.S.2d 904, 1978 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11320 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), app. denied, 45 N.Y.2d 713, 1978 N.Y. LEXIS 3256 (N.Y. 1978).

Section 220 of the Labor Law, as amended by chapter 752 of the Laws of 1975, which provides that contractors on public works contracts shall pay the prevailing rate of wages which, pursuant to the terms of said contracts, may be redetermined after a contract is let, is reasonable, is not in contravention of public policy, does not offend basic contract principles, and does not constitute an impairment of contract obligations in violation of the contract clause of the United States Constitution. Meaott Constr. Corp. v Ross, 76 A.D.2d 137, 431 N.Y.S.2d 207, 1980 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11740 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1980).

Employer's good faith in cooperating with investigation and promptly remedying violation did not preclude finding of willful failure to pay prevailing wages and supplements in violation of CLS Labor § 220. Gross Plumbing & Heating Co. v Department of Labor, 133 A.D.2d 524, 519 N.Y.S.2d 896, 1987 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 50002 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1987).

Commissioner of Labor could rationally imply willfulness on part of nonunion electrical contractor in determining that contractor had underpaid its employees by classifying work performed as something other than electrical work where contractor's most persuasive evidence (affidavits from its employees, contract specifications, and fact that department of jurisdiction neglected to ascertain classification of workers on project) was not introduced at hearing; willfulness could be implied from evidence before commissioner, including contractor's past public works experience. Nelson's Lamp Lighters v Roberts, 136 A.D.2d 810, 523 N.Y.S.2d 643, 1988 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 259 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), app. denied, 73 N.Y.2d 702, 537 N.Y.S.2d 490, 534 N.E.2d 328, 1988 N.Y. LEXIS 3453 (N.Y. 1988).

Basis for hearing officer's conclusion regarding length of employee's employment was unclear, and thus proceeding under CLS Labor §§ 200 et seq. would be remanded, where employee said she worked 6 months, contractor said she worked 6 weeks, and it was impossible to ascertain from record how officer decided her employment lasted 12 weeks. Canarsie Plumbing & Heating Corp. v Goldin, 151 A.D.2d 331, 542 N.Y.S.2d 588, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8014 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1989).

In proceeding resulting in order requiring payment of back wages and civil fines due by reason of petitioner's failure to pay prevailing wages and supplements on public works project, testimony of Department of Labor (DOL) wage investigator was not incompetent or incredible because he lacked adequate contemporarily made log and records, where it was shown that despite incompleteness of petitioner's payroll records, wage investigator was able to compile list of names of persons believed to have worked on project, that 2 employees filed complaints with DOL and identified additional employees who worked on project but whose names did not appear on payroll records, that investigator interviewed others on telephone who also worked on project and was able to compile schedules of days and number of hours they worked, and that using such information, investigator formulated methodology to determine how much compensation was due. Mid Hudson Pam Corp. v Hartnett, 156 A.D.2d 818, 549 N.Y.S.2d 835, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 15879 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1989).

Where employer fails to keep accurate payroll records as required by CLS Labor § 220(3-a), Commissioner of Labor is permitted to calculate back wages due to employees by using best available evidence, and shift burden of negating reasonableness of Commissioner's calculations to employer. Mid Hudson Pam Corp. v Hartnett, 156 A.D.2d 818, 549 N.Y.S.2d 835, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 15879 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1989).

Court would affirm determination that contractor failed to pay 5 employees schedule "A" electrician wages, despite contractor's assertion that work performed did not fit appropriate description set forth in collective bargaining agreement, since Comptroller's electrical engineers demonstrated that employees performed "A" electrician work, and contractor did not refute such testimony with its own expert witnesses despite opportunity to do so. A. S. Reynolds Electric Co. v Golden, 161 A.D.2d 303, 555 N.Y.S.2d 79, 1990 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5257 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1990).

Evidence did not support determination of Commissioner of Labor that contractor's 2 violations of Prevailing Wage Law were willful where contractor had no prior violations and had not received prior warning about conduct complained of, and commissioner presented neither proof to rebut contractor's assertion that violations in question were unintentional nor evidence demonstrating that violations were so blatant that any experienced contractor would have recognized them as such. Fast Trak Structures, Inc. v Hartnett, 181 A.D.2d 1013, 581 N.Y.S.2d 505, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4608 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1992).

At hearing conducted by Department of Labor to determine whether contractor on public work project has paid prevailing rate of wages and supplements, contractor may validly stipulate that project was public work project. Mailand Farms v Hartnett, 204 A.D.2d 326, 204 A.D.2d 327, 612 N.Y.S.2d 606, 612 N.Y.S.2d 954, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4504 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1994).

Department of Labor has statutory power to determine issues raised at hearing conducted by it to determine whether contractor of public work project has paid prevailing rate of wages and supplements, and this power includes power to determine questions of fact on which Department of Labor's jurisdiction is based, such as whether project was public work project. Mailand Farms v Hartnett, 204 A.D.2d 326, 204 A.D.2d 327, 612 N.Y.S.2d 606, 612 N.Y.S.2d 954, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4504 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1994).

Court would modify determination by annulling finding that employer failed to pay prevailing wage for work of 2 employees as technical engineers where there was no proof that either employee performed work of technical engineer. Passucci Gen. Constr. Co. v Hudacs, 221 A.D.2d 987, 633 N.Y.S.2d 903, 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13484 (N.Y. Determination finding that contractor was vicariously liable for willful violation by its subcontractor of CLS Labor § 220 in failing to pay prevailing wages and benefits to 57 of its employees was supported by evidence including testimony of Labor Department's investigator and subject employees. Asbestos Indus. of Am. v New York State DOL, 224 A.D.2d 414, 637 N.Y.S.2d 750, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 870 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1996).

44. — —Effect of 1978 amendment

The 1978 amendment to section 220 of the Labor Law (L 1978, ch 336), which implements the constitutional mandate (NY Const, art I, § 17) that "[n]o laborer, workman or mechanic, in the employ of a contractor engaged in the performance of any public work * * * shall be paid less than the rate of wages prevailing in the same trade or occupation in the locality within the state where such public work is to be situated, executed or used", and which, prior to its amendment, required a hearing prior to an upward redetermination of wages with due notice to any affected contractors, is not to be applied retroactively so as to eliminate the requirement of a hearing for contracts entered into prior to the amendment's effective date; the result of retroactivity would be the imposition upon the contractor of unilateral determinations by the Industrial Commissioner and the withholding of contract payments, and since the Legislature stipulated to an effective date 60 days after the enactment of the amendment and thus delayed the impact of the amendment upon contractors, no intent is perceived to affect those contracts in existence at the time of the amendment. Schultz Constr., Inc. v Ross, 76 A.D.2d 151, 431 N.Y.S.2d 144, 1980 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11743 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1980), app. dismissed, 52 N.Y.2d 897, 437 N.Y.S.2d 307, 418 N.E.2d 1325, 1981 N.Y. LEXIS 2147 (N.Y. 1981), aff'd, 53 N.Y.2d 790, 439 N.Y.S.2d 919, 422 N.E.2d 579, 1981 N.Y. LEXIS 2414 (N.Y. 1981), aff'd, 53 N.Y.2d 792, 439 N.Y.S.2d 919, 422 N.E.2d 579, 1981 N.Y. LEXIS 2415 (N.Y. 1981).

An amendment to subdivision 8 of section 220 of the Labor Law, effective August 18, 1978, which provides that a hearing is only required before an order or determination is made in connection with a compliance investigation to determine if a public works contractor has been paying the prevailing wage and not where a redetermination of wage rate schedules and supplemental benefits is made, is not to be applied retroactively since the amendment took effect on the 60th day after it became a law, thereby negating a legislative intent that the amendment be applied retroactively and, furthermore, an amendment only has prospective applications unless its language clearly indicates that a contrary interpretation is to be applied; accordingly, the proceeding to review the practice of respondent Industrial Commissioner of delivering new prevailing wage rates to petitioners contractors after commencement of work on public works projects, states a cause of action. A. L. Blades & Sons, Inc. v Ross, 99 Misc. 2d 684, 416 N.Y.S.2d 690, 1979 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2314 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1979), aff'd, 76 A.D.2d 151, 431 N.Y.S.2d 144, 1980 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11743 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1980).

Pursuant to a 1978 amendment to subdivisions 7 and 8 of section 220 of the Labor Law, a hearing is no longer required before a redetermination of the prevailing rate of wages to be paid to laborers, workmen or mechanics under public works contracts is issued by the Industrial Commissioner; however, a hearing is required when the matter in controversy is whether the contractor or subcontractor engaged in public work is paying the prevailing rate to his employees. Schultz Constr., Inc. v Ross, 99 Misc. 2d 1043, 419 N.Y.S.2d 32, 1979 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2386 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1979), modified, 76 A.D.2d 151, 431 N.Y.S.2d 144, 1980 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11743 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1980).

Redeterminations of contractual wage rates and supplements issued by the Industrial Commissioner are improper since they were not requested by the town that is a party to the contract and were issued without notice or a hearing, all of which, the request, notice, and a hearing, were required by section 220 of the Labor Law, prior to its 1978 amendment; the contract was executed prior to the effective date of the amendment and amendments permitting redeterminations without a request and without notice and a hearing (Labor Law, § 220, subds 3, 7, 8) are not to be given retroactive application; any determination made absent notice and hearing is invalid pursuant to former section 220 of the Labor Law; therefore, the redetermination must be vacated. F.G. Compagni Constr. Co. v Ross, 103 Misc. 2d 313, 425 N.Y.S.2d 767, 1980 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2115 (N.Y. Sup. Ct.), modified, (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1980).

1978 amendment of CLS Labor § 220, which eliminated requirement of hearing in wage redetermination case, did not take away implied authority of city comptroller to hold such hearing. Local 32B-32J, Service Employees Int'l Union v Holtzman, 149 Misc. 2d 666, 565 N.Y.S.2d 392, 1990 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 688 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1990).

45. — —Fairness; due process

An administrative determination by the comptroller of the City of New York, which found that a construction company had wilfully violated Labor Law § 220, would be annulled where notes on the file jacket that contained the original claim examiner's notes on the investigation made prior to the hearing indicated that the hearing examiner engaged in ex parte contacts with the comptroller's trial counsel before the hearing began. Signet Constr. Corp. v Goldin, 99 A.D.2d 431, 470 N.Y.S.2d 396, 1984 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 16584 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1984).

Contractor received fair hearing in dispute regarding payment of required wages and benefits under public works contract, even though it did not have opportunity to cross-examine employees, where portions of employees' hearsay statements were corroborated by other testimony and by their rate of pay. Canarsie Plumbing & Heating Corp. v Goldin, 151 A.D.2d 331, 542 N.Y.S.2d 588, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8014 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1989).

Hearing officer's denial of petitioner's request for subpoena duces tecum did not warrant annulment of agency's determination that petitioner violated prevailing wage requirements of CLS Labor § 220(3) since (1) agency gave petitioner its complete file containing all information relevant to compliance investigation, and (2) relevant matter not initially made available to petitioner was later produced on request. Sierra Telcom Servs., Inc. v Hartnett, 174 A.D.2d 279, 579 N.Y.S.2d 753, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 909 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), app. dismissed, 79 N.Y.2d 1039, 584 N.Y.S.2d 448, 594 N.E.2d 942, 1992 N.Y. LEXIS 1463 (N.Y. 1992), app. dismissed, 79 N.Y.2d 1039, 584 N.Y.S.2d 448, 594 N.E.2d 942, 1992 N.Y. LEXIS 1511 (N.Y. 1992), app. denied, 80 N.Y.2d 756, 588 N.Y.S.2d 824, 602 N.E.2d 232, 1992 N.Y. LEXIS 3179 (N.Y. 1992), app. denied, 80 N.Y.2d 757, 588 N.Y.S.2d 825, 602 N.E.2d 233, 1992 N.Y. LEXIS 3210 (N.Y. 1992), cert. denied, 507 U.S. 972, 113 S. Ct. 1413, 122 L. Ed. 2d 784, 1993 U.S. LEXIS 1979 (U.S. 1993).

Delay of 3 years in conducting prevailing wage hearing did not satisfy requirement of CLS Labor § 220(8) that such hearing be conducted "expeditiously"; thus, employer would not be obligated to pay interest for Department of Labor's unreasonable delay. Passucci Gen. Constr. Co. v Hudacs, 221 A.D.2d 987, 633 N.Y.S.2d 903, 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13484 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1995), app. denied, 87 N.Y.2d 811, 644 N.Y.S.2d 144, 666 N.E.2d 1058, 1996 N.Y. LEXIS 636 (N.Y. 1996).

Delay of 3 years in conducting prevailing wage hearing did not deprive employee of due process. Passucci Gen. Constr. Co. v Hudacs, 221 A.D.2d 987, 633 N.Y.S.2d 903, 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13484 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1995), app. denied, 87 N.Y.2d 811, 644 N.Y.S.2d 144, 666 N.E.2d 1058, 1996 N.Y. LEXIS 636 (N.Y. 1996).

It did not violate due process during hearing on prevailing wages and supplements on public works project to include evidence of work performed on subcontracts not specifically mentioned in notice of hearing since that notice indicated that hearing would concern entire project and that hearing officer's report would include "any other issues raised by the testimony and evidence at the hearing." Waterway Constr. Corp. v Sweeney, 248 A.D.2d 256, 670 N.Y.S.2d 429, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2662 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1998).

Petitioner received adequate notice prior to hearing on charges that it failed to pay prevailing wage rates to workers on construction project where (1) notice related pertinent facts disclosed through investigation, and stated charges to be resolved, and (2) while it did not specifically indicate petitioner's predecessor by name, it set forth CLS Labor § 220-b(3)(b) which, in substance, advised petitioner that final determination of violation by its predecessor could be considered. Alca Indus., Inc. v McGowan, 258 A.D.2d 704, 685 N.Y.S.2d 814, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 947 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), app. denied, 93 N.Y.2d 807, 691 N.Y.S.2d 1, 712 N.E.2d 1244, 1999 N.Y. LEXIS 1251 (N.Y. 1999).

Hearing officer's denial of public works contractor's request for adjournment of hearing on its alleged failure to pay prevailing wages and supplements was not denial of due process where contractor's president had notice of charges and was given opportunity to participate in hearing, but merely wrote letter requesting adjournment and made no inquiry as to whether it had been granted or denied. General Design & Dev. Inc. v McGowan, 260 A.D.2d 740, 687 N.Y.S.2d 808, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3688 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1999).

46. —Appeal

In an action by public employees pursuant to Labor Law § 220 for recovery of the difference between the sum actually paid and the amount which should have been paid as wages, the term "final determination" within three months of which plaintiff must bring his action, refers to an event that puts an end to any pending attack upon the determination of the fiscal officer of the prevailing rate, whether it be the original attack in an Article 78 proceeding or a subsequently launched attack by way of a motion for reargument or an appeal. Bucci v Port Chester, 22 N.Y.2d 195, 292 N.Y.S.2d 393, 239 N.E.2d 335, 1968 N.Y. LEXIS 1341 (N.Y. 1968).

In proceeding to review determination of Department of Labor which established prevailing wage rate on public work project pursuant to CLS Labor § 220, court would dismiss, as premature, petitioner's contention that department's determination improperly required petitioner, who was potential bidder on project, to provide supplements under part of § 220 preempted by Employee Retirement Income Security Act (29 USCS § 1001 et seq.), since prevailing rate determination was made before any contractual wage or supplement requirements attached to project. GE v N.Y. State Dep't of Labor, 154 A.D.2d 117, 551 N.Y.S.2d 966, 1990 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1881 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), aff'd, 76 N.Y.2d 946, 563 N.Y.S.2d 764, 565 N.E.2d 513, 1990 N.Y. LEXIS 3416 (N.Y. 1990).

Commissioner of Labor was entitled to dismissal of proceeding brought by corporation for declaration that construction project was not public work, and that it was therefore not required to pay prevailing wages, since corporation had failed to exhaust its administrative remedies where (1) prior to start of work, Department of Labor (DOL) informed corporation that it was required to pay prevailing wages, and (2) at time corporation commenced action, DOL had not conducted investigation to determine whether there had been underpayments, nor had hearing been scheduled concerning possible violations; court would reject contention that exhaustion would be futile, since no final determination had been made by DOL, and position taken by counsel to DOL and investigators in Bureau of Public Works could not be ascribed to commissioner. Pyramid Co. v Hudacs, 193 A.D.2d 924, 597 N.Y.S.2d 816, 1993 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4860 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1993).

Article 78 petition to review determination of Commissioner of Labor, which found that petitioner had committed various violations of CLS Labor § 220, was properly dismissed as stipulation whereby petitioner acknowledged that it had willfully violated § 220 constituted substantial evidence to support commissioner's determination. G.A. Contractors v New York State DOL, 222 A.D.2d 673, 635 N.Y.S.2d 688, 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13938 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1995).

Although the sureties were entitled to summary judgment when the laborers did not exhaust their administrative remedies in an action to recover on a surety bond under Labor Law §§ 220, 220-g, they were not entitled summary judgment on the laborers' common-law claims for underpayment of wages and for class action certification under N.Y. C.P.L.R. 901(a). Brandy v Canea Mare Contr., Inc., 34 A.D.3d 512, 825 N.Y.S.2d 230, 2006 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13497 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2006).

It was apparent that the intent of the legislature under this section was to give a defeated party a period of thirty days during which his appeal may be taken. Rainville v Keil, 266 N.Y.S. 867, 148 Misc. 795, 1933 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1352 (N.Y. County Ct. 1933).

Statute making it a misdemeanor for person or corporation to permit or require the working of more than eight hours of work for a day's labor in performance of contract with municipality does not lie within the jurisdiction of an administrative agency and does not require exhaustion of administrative remedies prescribed by another subdivision making it misdemeanor to violate final order of fiscal officer after hearing in connection with complaint. People v Firelands Sewer & Water Constr. Co., 86 Misc. 2d 570, 382 N.Y.S.2d 874, 1976 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2489 (N.Y. Town Ct. 1976).

47. — —Reviewability

Contractor's Article 78 challenge to determination of Commissioner of Labor that, due to contemporaneous and similar willful violations of CLS Labor § 220, contractor should be debarred from bidding on future public work contracts was ripe for judicial review, even though commissioner had not yet rendered new, formal or extended debarment order based on violations that occurred after first violation, since, under CLS Labor § 220-b, debarment occurs by operation of law on determination of second willful failure to comply with CLS Labor Art 8. Hull Corp. v Hartnett, 77 N.Y.2d 475, 568 N.Y.S.2d 884, 571 N.E.2d 54, 1991 N.Y. LEXIS 361 (N.Y. 1991).

A determination of the commissioner of labor that a municipal contractor is violating this section is not a final determination, and hence certiorari does not lie to review it. Keystone State Const. Co. v Williams, 152 A.D. 575, 137 N.Y.S. 405, 1912 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10386, 1912 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8586 (N.Y. App. Div. 1912), aff'd, 207 N.Y. 767, 101 N.E. 1107, 207 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 767, 1913 N.Y. LEXIS 1464 (N.Y. 1913).

In employees' action to recover prevailing wage rate under CLS Labor § 220, employer's alleged successor in interest was not aggrieved party entitled to appeal, even though it filed notice of appeal, where it did not appear in opposition to employees' motion (to, inter alia, certify class) or make any cross motion. Pesantez v Boyle Envtl. Servs., Inc., 251 A.D.2d 11, 673 N.Y.S.2d 659, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6382 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1998).

48. —Recovery of wages

The statutory remedy for the recovery of the difference between wages paid a workman and the prevailing wages which he should have been paid under the contract between his employer and a public body is not exclusive. The contract was for his benefit and he may maintain an ordinary contract action. Fata v S. A. Healy Co., 289 N.Y. 401, 46 N.E.2d 339, 289 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 401, 1943 N.Y. LEXIS 1159 (N.Y. 1943).

The words in § 220, subd. 8, which permit the complainant "or any other person affected" to recover the difference between the wages at the rate paid and at the prevailing rate from the time of filing the complaint with the municipal fiscal officer do not include an employee of the same designation who files no complaint. Accordingly a wireman who filed no complaint is not entitled to judgment for the differential from the time of filing of complaints by five other wiremen; the plaintiff's failure to file prevents recovery of benefits antecedent to order of fiscal officer determining the prevailing rate of wages. Campbell v New York, 291 N.Y. 461, 52 N.E.2d 949, 291 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 461, 1943 N.Y. LEXIS 1017 (N.Y. 1943).

Where statutory requirement that applicable wage schedule be annexed to work specifications before advertising for bids was ignored by both contractor and public entity before contract for university project was executed, no liability on part of public entity for difference between prevailing wage rate contractor was required to pay its workmen and wages it had anticipated paying workmen at time of bid could arise on theory of contractual breach. Brang Co. v State University Constr. Fund, 47 A.D.2d 178, 365 N.Y.S.2d 914, 1975 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8739 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1975).

Hearing officer's assessment of punitive interest rate at 10 percent on $181,342.52 in unpaid wages resulting from contractor's failure to pay its workers at prevailing wage for building construction was improper where officer found that contractor's violation was not willful, but was caused by inexperience, and was first violation; under circumstances, rate should be set at 6 percent. Fra-Dee Constr., Inc. v Roberts, 132 A.D.2d 924, 518 N.Y.S.2d 259, 1987 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 49376 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't), app. denied, 70 N.Y.2d 611, 523 N.Y.S.2d 495, 518 N.E.2d 6, 1987 N.Y. LEXIS 19005 (N.Y. 1987).

In contractor's action against town to recover for increased wages contractor was compelled to pay its workers on town's public works project, after being cited by Department of Labor for failing to pay prevailing wage rates as required by CLS Labor § 220, town could not be held liable on theory of breach of contract or negligent performance of contractual duty based on town's failure to apply for wage schedule or to annex schedule to bid specifications since those omissions occurred prior to formation of contract and contractor itself had assumed responsibility for preparing agreement based on representations as to its experience in such matters. E. Williamson Roofing & Sheet Metal Co. v Parish, 139 A.D.2d 97, 530 N.Y.S.2d 720, 1988 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11231 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1988).

In contractor's action against town to recover for increased wages contractor was compelled to pay its workers on town's public works project, after being cited by Department of Labor for failing to pay prevailing wage rate as required by CLS Labor § 220, town could not be held liable on theory of unjust enrichment, even though town had received benefit of work performed at less than prevailing rate, since (1) there was no claim that town knew that contractor would perform contract by paying less than prevailing wages, (2) contractor was experienced in such matters and knew or should have known of wage requirement, and (3) to allow such recovery would circumvent CLS Labor § 220, designed to serve public good, and impose fiscal burden on town and its taxpayers, who are intended beneficiaries of statutory scheme. E. Williamson Roofing & Sheet Metal Co. v Parish, 139 A.D.2d 97, 530 N.Y.S.2d 720, 1988 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11231 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1988).

Express language of CLS Labor § 220 imposes no liability on governmental entity for failing to determine classification of workers to be employed on public works project and for mistakenly accepting contractor's bid based on less than applicable prevailing wage, and statute does not create any remedy in nature of plenary action for benefit of contractor who was subsequently ordered to pay prevailing wage rate; to allow contractor to sue local government to recoup additional moneys it expended to comply with statute would reward contractor for its own violation of statute, would subvert statutory scheme of placing all bidders on equal footing, and would impose unwarranted burden on municipality and its taxpayers. E. Williamson Roofing & Sheet Metal Co. v Parish, 139 A.D.2d 97, 530 N.Y.S.2d 720, 1988 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11231 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1988).

City defendant should have been granted summary judgment in subcontractor's action to recover mechanic's lien, which it filed under CLS Lien § 25(3) against amount of escrow funds held by city to pay general contractor on public improvement contract, since city's prevailing wages lien, filed against same funds relating to wages owed to general contractor's employees under CLS Labor § 220(7), had priority over subcontractor's mechanic's lien, and there had never been enough money in escrow account to satisfy even senior lien, let alone pay anything to subcontractor, so that any delay in ruling on prevailing wages claim could not have prejudiced subcontractor. Giant Supply Corp. v City of New York, 248 A.D.2d 231, 670 N.Y.S.2d 29, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2601 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1998).

Because there was no proof that any administrative determination had been rendered, pursuant to N.Y. Lab. Law § 198, an employer was entitled to summary judgment in an employee's action alleging the employer's failure to pay prevailing wages under N.Y. Lab. Law § 220. Winsch v Esposito Bldg. Specialty, Inc., 48 A.D.3d 558, 852 N.Y.S.2d 199, 2008 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1318 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2008).

In an action by a cable splicer employed by New York city to recover the difference between the wages received by him and the alleged prevailing rate of wages in outside employment in the same occupation for a certain period, the plaintiff failed to supply evidence, that the majority of cable splicers in New York city, or at least forty per centum of them, receive said wages, or that the average wage paid such cable splicers was said rate, which is a statutory requirement for the prevailing rate under subd. 5 of this section. In the absence of such proof the court cannot make a determination of the prevailing rate, nor has the plaintiff shown determination of wage rate by the comptroller under subds. 7 or 8. Ipsmiller v New York, 275 N.Y.S. 827, 153 Misc. 627, 1934 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1838 (N.Y. Mun. Ct. 1934).

Where the value of vacations and pension benefits were wrongfully deducted from the prevailing rate of wages to be paid to welders employed by the City of New York the employees could not recover such deductions unless they complied with the provisions of this section for the remedy provided by the statute is exclusive. Jung v New York, 6 Misc. 2d 200, 76 N.Y.S.2d 235, 1947 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1941 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1947).

Where a housing authority of a city in its budget fixed the pay of maintenance men at the prevailing rate instead of a stated amount, a maintenance man could recover retroactive pay, though he had not brought a proceeding to have his wages accord with the prevailing rate, but the recovery was limited to those months in which he signed the payroll under protest. Montebello v New York City Housing Authority, 13 Misc. 2d 180, 175 N.Y.S.2d 446, 1958 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3387 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1958).

Under subdivision 8 of this section, the right to sue for retroactive pay is limited to those who have initiated proceedings to have their wages accord with the prevailing rate. Montebello v New York City Housing Authority, 13 Misc. 2d 180, 175 N.Y.S.2d 446, 1958 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3387 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1958).

Surety's claim, under performance bond in trust fund representing amount owed to contractor on public works project, did not have priority over claim of New York Department of Labor under prevailing wage law (CLS Labor § 220). Titan Indem. Co. v Triborough Bridge & Tunnel Auth., 135 F.3d 831, 1998 U.S. App. LEXIS 1247 (2d Cir. N.Y. 1998).

49. —Penalties

Imposition of civil penalty is not proper where record discloses that petitioner was small contracting business, and that this was its first public works project, and where petitioner promptly complied upon notification of underpayment. C.E.L. Lumber, Inc. v Roberts, 109 A.D.2d 1002, 486 N.Y.S.2d 481, 1985 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 47494 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1985).

Contractor failed to show that 10 percent interest and 20 percent penalty imposed by Commissioner of Labor were shocking to one's sense of fairness for violation of CLS Labor § 220 in improperly computing overtime and failing to pay prevailing wages and supplements, even though overtime violation was not willful and contractor had challenged wage and supplement rates in separate proceeding, since (1) commissioner was entitled to consider number of factors in imposing penalty, (2) maximum interest and penalty were not imposed, and (3) amounts were based on contractor's decisions not to comply with Labor Department's directives or obtain judicial stay while seeking court review. Hull-Hazard, Inc. v Roberts, 136 A.D.2d 872, 524 N.Y.S.2d 848, 1988 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 585 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), app. denied, 72 N.Y.2d 805, 532 N.Y.S.2d 755, 528 N.E.2d 1228, 1988 N.Y. LEXIS 2775 (N.Y. 1988), modified, 74 N.Y.2d 710, 543 N.Y.S.2d 383, 541 N.E.2d 412, 1989 N.Y. LEXIS 678 (N.Y. 1989).

Civil penalty and interest were properly imposed on public works contractor for failing to pay prevailing hourly wages and supplements to employees, and underpaying employees by failing to keep accurate records of number of hours worked, since contractor was experienced public works contractor and was notified on several occasions of discrepancies. D.D.G. General Contracting Corp. v Hartnett, 149 A.D.2d 819, 540 N.Y.S.2d 344, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4880 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1989).

Employer's willful violation of CLS Labor § 220 in employing excessive number of apprentices in violation of applicable apprentice ratio as required by prevailing wage schedule in public works contract could not, in itself, constitute basis for employer's debarment. Tap Electrical Contracting Service, Inc. v Hartnett, 156 A.D.2d 612, 549 N.Y.S.2d 118, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 16440 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1989), app. dismissed, 75 N.Y.2d 835, 552 N.Y.S.2d 922, 552 N.E.2d 170, 1990 N.Y. LEXIS 132 (N.Y. 1990), app. dismissed, 75 N.Y.2d 836, 552 N.Y.S.2d 922, 552 N.E.2d 170, 1990 N.Y. Employer was properly barred from bidding on or being awarded any public work contract where Commissioner of Labor properly determined that employer had willfully violated CLS Labor Art 8 by underpaying wages and benefits, and determination was the second such final determination rendered against employer within 6 years. Tap Electrical Contracting Service, Inc. v Hartnett, 156 A.D.2d 612, 549 N.Y.S.2d 118, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 16440 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1989), app. dismissed, 75 N.Y.2d 835, 552 N.Y.S.2d 922, 552 N.E.2d 170, 1990 N.Y. LEXIS 132 (N.Y. 1990), app. dismissed, 75 N.Y.2d 836, 552 N.Y.S.2d 922, 552 N.E.2d 170, 1990 N.Y. It was proper to bar contractor from bidding on or being awarded any public work contract for 5 years based on second final determination of willful violation of CLS Labor § 220 within 6-year period. Tap Elec. Contracting Serv. v Hartnett, 207 A.D.2d 547, 616 N.Y.S.2d 86, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8533 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1994), app. dismissed, 85 N.Y.2d 857, 624 N.Y.S.2d 374, 648 N.E.2d 794, 1995 N.Y. LEXIS 310 (N.Y. 1995), cert. denied, 516 U.S. 812, 116 S. Ct. 61, 133 L. Ed. 2d 24, 1995 U.S. LEXIS 5372 (U.S. 1995).

Determination that failure to pay prevailing wages was willful was supported by facts that employer's owner was present nearly every day that employees worked at site, he acknowledged that he was familiar with prevailing wage requirement, and that, as experienced public work contractor, he knew or should have known that he was required to pay prevailing wage to employees for work as rodman or laborer. Passucci Gen. Constr. Co. v Hudacs, 221 A.D.2d 987, 633 N.Y.S.2d 903, 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13484 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1995), app. denied, 87 N.Y.2d 811, 644 N.Y.S.2d 144, 666 N.E.2d 1058, 1996 N.Y. LEXIS 636 (N.Y. 1996).

In a prevailing wage dispute, as nearly two years elapsed between the initial complaint of a former employee and the issuance of the first set of audits, those audits was unsupported by a shred of evidence, and the entire initial investigatory time period was unreasonably delayed by a wage investigator, the employer should not have been charged any pre-hearing interest under N.Y. Lab. Law § 220-b. Matter of CNP Mech., Inc. v Angello, 31 A.D.3d 925, 818 N.Y.S.2d 657, 2006 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9225 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2006), app. denied, 8 N.Y.3d 802, 830 N.Y.S.2d 698, 862 N.E.2d 790, 2007 N.Y. LEXIS 99 (N.Y. 2007).

Where, in light of the employer's failure to produce complete and accurate records, the Hearing Officer was permitted to make just and reasonable inferences using the best available evidence to calculate the amount of underpayments, even though the results may be approximate, there was substantial evidence to support the Commissioner's conclusion that the employer willfully violated N.Y. Lab. Law § 220; thus, the 25% civil penalty imposed was not so disproportionate to the underlying offenses as to be shocking to one's sense of fairness. Matter of Scuderi v Gardner, 103 A.D.3d 645, 960 N.Y.S.2d 132, 2013 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 730 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2013).

Commissioner of Labor properly imposed interest on the underpaid wages to a contractor's workers, as it was based on the statutory rate, a significant period of delays was attributable to the contractor, and delays attributable to the Commissioner of Labor were not unreasonable or unfair. Matter of Central City Roofing Co., Inc. v Musolino, 136 A.D.3d 1186, 25 N.Y.S.3d 433, 2016 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1218 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2016).

Commissioner of Labor's imposition of the maximum percentage of an additional civil penalty on a contractor who failed to pay its workers the prevailing wage was not reasonable, as the individuals involved had no actual knowledge of the violations, the contractor's actions were not motivated by bad faith, and the penalty was disproportionate to the underlying offenses. Matter of Central City Roofing Co., Inc. v Musolino, 136 A.D.3d 1186, 25 N.Y.S.3d 433, 2016 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1218 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2016).

50. Under former Penal Law § 1271

It is error to hold defendant street car company to be negligent if motorman and conductor worked over 10 hours on day of accident where route does not lie principally within corporate limits of first or second class city, there being no proof that they had worked 16 hours in violation of this section. Gleason v Hudson V. R. Co., 143 A.D. 884, 128 N.Y.S. 759, 1911 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 948 (N.Y. App. Div. 1911).

Unpublished decision: The former president of the debtor lacked standing to seek relief against the New York Department of Labor (DOL) for its action to enforce the wage violation penalties under N.Y. Lab. Law § 220 against the corporate debtor, and the DOL had a good faith basis to believe its acts were protected by the police power exception. In re Fiber Optek Interconnect Corp., 2009 Bankr. 1. In general

Investigation and enforcement of compliance with New York prevailing wage law is not preempted by Employee Retirement Income Security Act. 1998 NY Ops Atty Gen F 98-7.

Projects or construction, renovation, or repair of building for charter school generally will be subject to CLS Labor § 220 et seq. N.Y. Op. Att'y Gen. No. 2000-F3, 2000 N.Y. AG LEXIS 40.

2. Public works contracts

3. —What is "public work"

Work performed by or for a real estate subdivision owner is not public work under this section. 1961 NY Ops Atty Gen July 24.

Section 220 is applicable to the construction of a fire house by a fire district. 1941 NY Ops Atty Gen Jan. 3.

4. Authorities, commissions, and districts

Public work contracts let by water commissioners, come within the purpose and purview of this article, subject to the limitation of time excepting such contracts from operation of exception to such article provided in this section. 1934 N.Y. Op. Att'y Gen. No. 334.

The Triborough bridge authority is a public benefit corporation performing a governmental function which is an agency or instrumentality of the state or of New York city or both, and as such, subd. 2 is applicable to work of construction undertaken by said authority. 1934 N.Y. Op. Att'y Gen. No. 348.

Operations of the Lake Champlain bridge commission in construction of Rouses Point bridge are subject to the provisions of this section. 1936 N.Y. Op. Att'y Gen. No. 218.

This article applies to Thousand Island bridge authority. 1937 N.Y. Op. Att'y Gen. No. 257.

Contract between water district and owner and developer of land for construction of water service is a contract for public work even though the actual work may be done by independent contractor hired by the developer. 1939 N.Y. Op. Att'y Gen. No. 271.

Agreement between Water Authority, a public benefit corporation, and developer of real property which involves installation of water mains on property of developer which are to be connected to the Authority's water mains so as to supply public water to said property is a contract for public work even though the actual work is performed by developer or an independent contractor engaged by him. 1966 NY Ops Atty Gen Jan 17.

Labor Law, § 220 applies to public works contracts awarded by Interstate Commission for work to be performed on Commission property located in the State of New York. 1973 NY Ops Atty Gen Oct 30.

5. Manufacturers

The provisions of Labor Law as to hours and wages do not apply to a manufacturer within the state who is engaged in fabricating materials for use in or upon work contracted to be done for state or any of its civil divisions, unless such manufacturer is himself the contractor or unless he is actually concerned in affixing the material to the completed structure. 1930 N.Y. Op. Att'y Gen. No. 339.

The spirit and purpose of this statute would seem to cover a situation, where a subcontractor to erect iron work on public building sublets fabrication thereof to a wholly owned and controlled subsidiary corporation which later does not obey the provisions of the Labor Law as to hours and wages on public work. 1931 N.Y. Op. Att'y Gen. No. 93.

6. Municipal corporations

These sections relating to eight hour day and preference to citizens of state in public work contracts are applicable to "school districts" as municipal corporations. 1932 N.Y. Op. Att'y Gen. No. 257.

7. Employees protected

8. —Mechanics

Mechanics who are regularly employed in state institutions are protected by the provisions of this section relative to hours of labor, etc. 1913 N.Y. Op. Att'y Gen. No. 453.

A motor equipment repairman at Matteawan State Hospital is a mechanic and is not entitled to payment or compensatory time off in lieu thereof for overtime service performed in that institution. 1946 NY Ops Atty Gen Feb 26.

Where a central school district desires to carry on repair with labor employed directly, no contract being let for labor, the employees working on such project are entitled to the benefits of the Labor Law relating to hours of labor and prevailing rate of wages. 1959 NY Ops Atty Gen Apr. 9 (informal).

Heavy duty equipment operators of a town highway department are workmen or mechanics for purposes of section 220(2). 1984 Op St Compt File #84-13.

9. —School employees

This section has no application in fixing the annual salaries of laborers, workmen or mechanics in employ of a board of education. 1921 N.Y. Op. Att'y Gen. No. 61.

10. —State institution employees

Employees of the state reservation at Niagara acting as police, and wearing uniforms and badges, are not subject to the provisions of this section. 1910 N.Y. Op. Att'y Gen. No. 805.

Men "regularly employed" in state institutions may be placed on "construction, additions and improvements" without coming under the general provisions of the eight hour law. 1910 N.Y. Op. Att'y Gen. No. 806.

A fireman at a state prison may be legally appointed to perform duty for more than eight hours a day, as the provisions of Labor Law do not restrict the hours of labor of an employee in a state institution. 1911 N.Y. Op. Att'y Gen. No. 612.

An eight-hour day and the prevailing rate of wage as provided for by this section apply to employees engaged pursuant to Pub. Bldgs. Law, § 18. 1933 N.Y. Op. Att'y Gen. No. 354.

Where the board of supervisors of a county desire to carry on construction with labor employed directly, letting contracts for materials only, employees working on such project are entitled to the benefits of this article relating to hours of labor and prevailing rate of wages. 1936 N.Y. Op. Att'y Gen. No. 289.

11. Overtime

12. —Extraordinary emergency exception

In case of "extraordinary emergency" under this section, a state engineer may direct employment of men over eight hours if emergency requires immediate action. 1909 N.Y. Op. Att'y Gen. No. 407.

The commissioner of labor is not empowered by the Labor Law to issue an order permitting a contractor engaged on work under contract with a municipality to work his men more than eight hours a day, even though, in the opinion of the commissioner, an extraordinary emergency exists. 1911 N.Y. Op. Att'y Gen. No. 552.

13. —Particular emergencies

Delay to canal traffic caused by early freezing of barge canal is not an "extraordinary emergency" warranting a permit to a contractor to exceed legal working day of eight hours. 1927 N.Y. Op. Att'y Gen. No. 89.

Loss to boatmen of time sufficient to complete one whole round trip of barge canal would not constitute an "extraordinary emergency" within the meaning of this section. 1927 N.Y. Op. Att'y Gen. No. 98.

Contractors constructing bridges for the use of highways are permitted to make up time lost because of inclement weather by working employees more than eight hours a day and more than five days a week. 1938 N.Y. Op. Att'y Gen. No. 260.

Business convenience or pecuniary advantage is not an "extraordinary emergency." 1939 N.Y. Op. Att'y Gen. No. 239.

General weather and labor conditions prevailing in a locality where work is to be performed cannot give rise to a situation constituting an "extraordinary emergency." 1939 N.Y. Op. Att'y Gen. No. 239.

War is not an extraordinary emergency within the meaning of the Labor Law affecting suspension of eight-hour-day rule. 1917 N.Y. Op. Att'y Gen. No. 401.

Discussion of underpayment of overtime compensation to town highway department employees and payment of correct amount as recomputed. 1979 Op St Compt File #199.

14. Prevailing wage

15. —Determination of prevailing wages

16. — —Modification

Pursuant to this section when the industrial commissioner has determined the prevailing rate of wage which becomes effective as to work done and work to be done, this does not necessarily mean that the industrial commissioner may not at a subsequent time hold hearings to ascertain whether there has been a change in the prevailing rate of wage for that type of labor in that locality. 1933 N.Y. Op. Att'y Gen. No. 412.

17. Procedural matters

18. —Appeal

19. — —Reviewability

Final determination reduces disputed wages to prevailing rate of wages due and owing, thereby authorizing withholding of such wages by comptroller pursuant to this section. 1933 N.Y. Op. Att'y Gen. No. 165.

Duly filed mechanics' liens against public improvement contracts for the difference between the wages actually paid and the prevailing rate of wage as fixed by the order of the industrial commissioner, where the order of commissioner is awaiting final determination by the courts on appeal, must be recognized by the comptroller and progress payments withheld until such liens are discharged. 1934 N.Y. Op. Att'y Gen. No. 125.

Until "final determination" is made, the comptroller has no authority to withhold an installment or progress payments from a contractor. A subcontractor's default does not relieve the general contractor of the duty to pay the wages of all employees on job. 1934 N.Y. Op. Att'y Gen. No. 128.

20. —Recovery of wages

Where a contractor performing extra work by force account for the state in a locality where a wage agreement in effect provides for the employer's payment of such taxes as those imposed upon employees for social security purposes under the Internal Revenue Code, the contractor is entitled to reimbursement from the state for taxes so paid as part of the cost of performing extra work. 1961 NY Ops Atty Gen Apr 11.

21. Under former Penal Law § 1271

Railroad corporation contracting to do work connected with building of bridges upon spur track or switch upon state property to connect state institution with its main line cannot be relieved from compliance with eight-hour provision of Labor Law. 1916 N.Y. Op. Att'y Gen. No. 138.

§ 473. Certificate of compliance with requirements of law

1. The enforcing authority shall ascertain by inspection whether places of public assembly conform to the requirements of this article and the rules adopted thereunder. If such places are found to so conform, he or it shall issue a certificate of compliance to that effect. Such certificate shall be conspicuously posted on the premises. Before any certificate of compliance shall be issued to a place of public assembly erected after the first day of October, nineteen hundred and twenty-two, plans for such building shall be filed with the industrial commissioner or with the local enforcing authority for approval, and such plans shall not be approved unless they conform to the provisions of this article and the rules adopted thereunder. The industrial commissioner shall not require the filing of plans before the issuance of a certificate of compliance for a place of public assembly erected before July first, nineteen hundred sixty-three over which enforcement jurisdiction was delegated to the industrial commissioner on such date, nor for a place of public assembly which may be transferred to his jurisdiction pursuant to paragraph (b) of section four hundred seventy-two of this article.

2. A fee not to exceed one hundred dollars shall be charged to and collected from the owner, lessee or person conducting the place of assembly for each inspection, but not more than two hundred dollars in any one year shall be so charged or collected, in respect of the same premises, except that no fee shall be charged for inspection of buildings operated as a public place of assembly by any political subdivision or by an agricultural society or association receiving state aid; provided, however, that no fee shall be charged to or collected from a volunteer fire company or an organization of veterans for the inspection of any place of public assembly operated by such a volunteer fire company or organization of veterans.

527. Valid original claim

HISTORY:
Add, L 1944, ch 705, § 1.

TITLE 2 Definitions

HISTORY:
Add, L 1944, ch 705, with substance transferred from § 502.

§ 527. Valid original claim

1. Basic condition. "Valid original claim" is a claim filed by a claimant who meets the following qualifications: (a) is able to work, and available for work; (b) is not subject to any disqualification or suspension under this article; (c) his or her previously established benefit year, if any, has expired; (d) has been paid remuneration by employers liable for contributions or for payments in lieu of contributions under this article, other than employers from whom the claimant lost employment and for which the commissioner makes a determination disqualifying the claimant for misconduct pursuant to subdivisions three and six of section five hundred ninety-three of this article, for employment during at least two calendar quarters of the base period, with remuneration of one and one-half times the high calendar quarter remuneration within the base period and with at least two hundred twenty-one times the minimum wage established under subdivision one of section six hundred fifty-two of this chapter rounded down to the nearest one hundred dollars of such remuneration being paid during the high calendar quarter of such base period. For purposes of this section, the remuneration in the high calendar quarter of the base period used in determining a valid original claim shall not exceed an amount equal to twenty-two times the maximum benefit rate as set forth in subdivision five of section five hundred ninety of this article for all individuals.

2. Alternate condition. (a) An individual who is unable to file a valid original claim in accordance with subdivision one of this section, files a valid original claim by meeting the qualifications enumerated in paragraphs (a), (b) and (c) of subdivision one of this section and by having been paid remuneration by employers liable for contributions or for payments in lieu of contributions under this article, other than employers from whom the claimant lost employment and for which the commissioner makes a determination disqualifying the claimant for misconduct pursuant to subdivisions three and six of section five hundred ninety-three of this article, for employment during at least two calendar quarters of the base period, with remuneration of one and one-half times the high calendar quarter remuneration within the base period and with at least two hundred twenty-one times the minimum wage established under subdivision one of section six hundred fifty-two of this chapter rounded down to the nearest one hundred dollars of such remuneration being paid during the high calendar quarter of such base period. For purposes of this section, the remuneration in the high calendar quarter of the base period used in determining a valid original claim shall not exceed an amount equal to twenty-two times the maximum benefit rate as set forth in subdivision five of section five hundred ninety of this article for all individuals.

(b) An individual who is able to file a valid original claim in accordance with subdivision one of this section, may make an application to the commissioner to determine his or her entitlement to benefits and benefit rate pursuant to paragraph (a) of this subdivision under the following conditions:

(i) The claimant must file such application within ten days of the date the monetary determination was mailed by the department.

(ii) In those circumstances where a wage data report in relation to the alternate condition is not due or has not been received, the claimant must provide proof of remuneration paid for such quarter to the commissioner's satisfaction in order for the claimant's application to be considered.

(iii) Under those circumstances where such application results in the claimant being able to file a valid original claim under the basic condition and the alternate condition, the claimant may select the condition to be utilized.

3. Disability. In the case of a claimant who did not file a valid original claim solely because the claimant was not paid sufficient remuneration and who received workers' compensation payments or any benefits paid pursuant to the volunteer firefighters' benefit law during the base period specified in subdivision one of section five hundred twenty of this article, said period shall be extended. The term of the extension shall be equivalent to the number of calendar quarters during which the claimant received such payments, but shall not exceed two calendar quarters.

4. General condition. A valid original claim may be filed only in a week in which the claimant has at least one effective day of unemployment.

5. Utilization of wage credits. Remuneration used to establish a valid original claim pursuant to subdivision one, two or three of this section, may not be considered for the purpose of establishing a subsequent valid original claim except as provided by section five hundred twenty-eight of this article.

6. Work requirement. An individual who has filed a previous valid original claim pursuant to this section must have worked in employment and been paid remuneration for such work since the beginning of such previous claim in an amount equal to at least ten times the claimant's weekly benefit rate in order to be able to file a subsequent valid original claim.

4. Fifteen weeks alternative requirement
5. Average remuneration requirements
6. Part-time employment
7. Seasonal employment

1. In general

Where administrative statute is susceptible of more than one reasonable interpretation, construction adopted by enforcing agency must be adopted if it is not strained or unnatural. Eisenstark v Levine, 46 A.D.2d 606, 364 N.Y.S.2d 585, 1975 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8554 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1975).

Amendment of CLS Labor § 527 permitting extension of base period in instances where claimants have received workers' compensation benefits during base periods is not retroactively effective to claims filed prior to effective date. In re Claim of Hagan, 109 A.D.2d 1039, 487 N.Y.S.2d 158, 1985 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 47517 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1985).

Unemployment Insurance Appeal Board properly determined that claimant had insufficient weeks of employment in her base period and was therefore not entitled to unemployment insurance benefits where claimant was absent from work due to pregnancy-related disability and worked only 7 weeks during base period; payments made to claimant by her employer pursuant to their contractual arrangement for paid maternity leave did not constitute remuneration for work under CLS Labor § 517, and regulation providing that week of employment includes any statutory week during which employee is on "paid leave" (12 NYCRR § 470.2) was inapplicable. In re Claim of Bachuretz, 140 A.D.2d 785, 527 N.Y.S.2d 887, 1988 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4676 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1988).

Claimant was not entitled to unemployment insurance benefits since he was credited with only 5 weeks of employment for one-year base period, and thus did not meet statutory requirements of CLS Labor § 527(1) or (2), where he was laid off and received weekly severance payments for 34.75 weeks, and he applied for unemployment benefits after termination of severance payments; claimant performed no work for employer during period he received severance payments, and therefore such payments could not be converted into "weeks of employment" within meaning of CLS Labor § 524. In re Claim of Baxter, 159 A.D.2d 845, 552 N.Y.S.2d 711, 1990 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2904 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1990).

Base period extension authorized by CLS Labor § 527(3) is intended to mitigate hardship of claimant who is unable to file valid employment claim due to injury on job, and does not allow claimant to extend his base period to use weeks of employment and wages previously used to establish valid claim. In re Gagnier, 174 A.D.2d 3, 577 N.Y.S.2d 961, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 66 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), app. denied, 79 N.Y.2d 758, 584 N.Y.S.2d 446, 594 N.E.2d 940, 1992 N.Y. LEXIS 1264 (N.Y. 1992).

Claimant was ineligible to receive unemployment compensation benefits because he had insufficient weeks of covered employment where his base period included period during which he received workers' compensation benefits, and period after he was discharged and before he was reinstated pursuant to resolution of grievance; neither period constituted covered employment as he did not actually perform work for employer during such periods. In re Claim of Abul Barkat Mahmud, 196 A.D.2d 931, 601 N.Y.S.2d 976, 1993 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8686 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1993).

Claimant, employed as video producer at United Nations during relevant period, was ineligible to receive unemployment insurance benefits because he lacked requisite number of weeks of employment by covered employer; United Nations was not covered employer under Labor Law. In re Claim of Tereshchuk, 235 A.D.2d 896, 653 N.Y.S.2d 170, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 537 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1997).

Unemployment Insurance Appeal Board's determination that CLS Gen Mun § 207-c payments made by claimant's employer did not constitute workers' compensation benefits which would extend claimant's base period under CLS Labor § 527(3) was not irrational or unreasonable, and thus supported finding that claimant lacked sufficient weeks of employment to file valid original claim. In re Claim of Rain, 250 A.D.2d 919, 672 N.Y.S.2d 514, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5370 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1998).

Petitioner lacked sufficient weeks of covered employment to file valid original claim for unemployment insurance benefits where he indicated on his October 1999 original claim that his last employment ended in August 1998, and thus he had covered employment in only one calendar quarter of base period and none in alternate base period. In re Claim of Badrajan, 275 A.D.2d 830, 713 N.Y.S.2d 99, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9203 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2000).

Plain meaning of the beginning phrase of the second sentence-"for purposes of this section"-is to make that sentence applicable to the entire section, thus capping "high calendar quarter earnings" to determine both whether a valid original claim exists and to calculate whether a claimant's earnings exceed that figure; thus, the Unemployment Insurance Appeal Board properly found that the claimant was ineligible to receive unemployment insurance benefits because the claimant was unable to file a valid original claim pursuant to N.Y. Lab. Law § 527 because the Board added the claimant's capped third quarter earnings of $8,910 to the fourth quarter earnings of $4,098, resulting in $13,008, less than the required $13,365 needed to file a valid original claim. In re Claim of Wojnar, 5 A.D.3d 899, 772 N.Y.S.2d 759, 2004 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2561 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2004).

Appeal board properly found that a worker was ineligible to receive unemployment insurance benefits for a specific week; the worker failed to request benefits for that week, and failed to make a request for use of an alternate base period within 10 days of the date of the monetary determination as required by N.Y. Lab. Law § 527(2)(b)(i). In re Claim of Saluk, 8 A.D.3d 923, 779 N.Y.S.2d 268, 2004 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8829 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2004).

Board's determination that a claimant was not eligible for unemployment insurance, because he was unable to file subsequent valid original claim pursuant to N.Y. Lab. Law § 527, was confirmed; his subsequent claim was based on fraudulent statement of income from his dissolved corporation after his corporation was dissolved and his corporation had not paid unemployment insurance premiums on any of his actual wages before the corporation was dissolved. In re Claim of Mazurkiewicz, 13 A.D.3d 770, 786 N.Y.S.2d 245, 2004 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 14983 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2004).

Since a worker voluntarily and without good cause quit the last employment he held before filing his unemployment claim, a part-time position, he lacked the total unemployment which was a prerequisite to eligibility for benefits; the worker's act of quitting his last, part-time position under disqualifying circumstances precluded a finding, necessary for benefits eligibility, that he was totally unemployed for purposes of a benefits claim. In re Claim of Rose, 19 A.D.3d 752, 796 N.Y.S.2d 718, 2005 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6175 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2005).

Claimant's request for unemployment benefits was properly denied because claimant was terminated from the first position at issue for the claimant's own misconduct and claimant had only worked at the second position for a few months. Claimant thus did not meet the remuneration requirements of N.Y. Lab. Law § 527. Matter of Snyder (Commissioner of Labor), 32 A.D.3d 1145, 822 N.Y.S.2d 165, 2006 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11575 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2006).

Unemployment Insurance Appeal Board was allowed to disregard the testimony of a claimant and her husband as to the legitimacy of her on call employment with the husband's paving business; thus, substantial evidence supported the inference that such employment was, in fact, contrived for the purpose of collecting unemployment insurance benefits. Matter of Wisinski (Commissioner of Labor), 23 A.D.3d 739, 803 N.Y.S.2d 277, 2005 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11676 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2005).

2. Ability and availability for work

An order of the Appellate Division, which refers to decision of the board upholding claimant's entitlement to unemployment insurance benefits, would be reversed and the matter remanded for determination of claimant's eligibility pursuant to Labor Law § 527 where, although no medical eveidence was presented, there was substantial evidence to support the board's finding that claimant was an alcoholic and where the board acted within its discretion in determining claimant's discharge to be the result of illness rather than misconduct. In re Claim of Francis, 56 N.Y.2d 600, 450 N.Y.S.2d 471, 435 N.E.2d 1086, 1982 N.Y. LEXIS 3276 (N.Y. 1982).

Where a claimant for unemployment insurance benefits was uncertain whether his respiratory condition, greatly restricting his physical activities, disqualified him for unemployment benefits under this section and § 591, and likewise whether it was sufficiently serious to entitle him to disability benefits under Federal Social Security, and, without intent to defraud, applied to both agencies for benefits, but the Social Security Administration declined to make available the medical data made available to it by turning it over to the Industrial Commissioner, he should be given a further opportunity to present medical evidence to the Commissioner. In re Claim by Roehsler, 19 A.D.2d 927, 243 N.Y.S.2d 971, 1963 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2981 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1963).

An unemployment insurance award may not be granted if the only reason for unemployment is the lack of transportation facilities. Leon v Porta Aluminum, Inc., 25 A.D.2d 925, 270 N.Y.S.2d 233, 1966 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4102 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1966).

Claimant was not available for work when she sought unemployment benefits where she was modern dancer who was British national and was admitted to United States under H-1 visa, visa only allowed her to work for single employer, and thus she could not have legally accepted any other offer of employment after she was laid off without amendment to her visa. In re Claim of Diamond, 210 A.D.2d 835, 620 N.Y.S.2d 595, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13274 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1994).

Claimant was ineligible to receive unemployment insurance benefits where she was suspended with pay throughout 52-week period preceding her application for benefits, during which time she performed no services for her employer. In re Claim of Odell, 233 A.D.2d 663, 649 N.Y.S.2d 735, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11712 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1996).

Canadian national who had "Trade NAFTA visa" (TN visa) that allowed her to work for specific employer was ineligible to receive unemployment insurance benefits after her employment with that employer ended, because she was not legally authorized to work for any other employer without obtaining another TN visa and thus she was unavailable for work when she sought benefits. In re Claim of Graif, 250 A.D.2d 1012, 673 N.Y.S.2d 261, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5920 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1998).

Claimant was properly considered not available for employment since she was not authorized to work in United States due to expiration of her work authorization card from Immigration and Naturalization Service. In re Claim of Gibei, 284 A.D.2d 784, 727 N.Y.S.2d 189, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6608 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2001).

Where appellant claimant failed to offer documentation in support of the claimant's assertion that the claimant had valid authorization to work from the Immigration and Naturalization Service, substantial evidence supported the unemployment insurance appeal board's denial of benefits on the ground that the claimant was unavailable for employment within the meaning of N.Y. Lab. Law § 527(1)(a), and, thus, was ineligible for benefits. In re Claim of Okumakpeyi, 295 A.D.2d 828, 744 N.Y.S.2d 545, 2002 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6801 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2002).

Claim for unemployment insurance benefits was properly denied because the claimant, who had been incarcerated for the year following his termination from employment, did not have sufficient earnings in his base period to qualify to file a valid original claim for benefits, as set forth in N.Y. Lab. Law §§ 520 and 527. Further, even if the claimant's application was backdated one year, his incarceration made him unavailable for work and, thus, unable to satisfy the criteria for filing a valid original claim for benefits. Matter of Nieblas (Commissioner of Labor), 21 A.D.3d 1193, 801 N.Y.S.2d 102, 2005 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9266 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2005).

Substantial evidence did not support the Unemployment Insurance Appeal Board's decision finding the claimant was ineligible for benefits due to unavailability because the claimant, a victim of domestic violence, was willing and able to work during the period in issue but was prevented from leaving her home to get to work due to her justifiable fear of further violence by her former boyfriend. Matter of Derfert (Commissioner of Labor), 150 A.D.3d 1515, 54 N.Y.S.3d 759, 2017 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3952 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2017).

3. Twenty weeks requirement

Holding that claimant was ineligible for benefits on ground she did not have 20 weeks covered employment in base period, since at no time as singer did she work in New York, was properly overruled where she was hired by opera company as dresser and, after 2 weeks' work in New York, she went on tour with company and thereafter she was promoted to singer with written contract until company abandoned; claimant's employment was viewed in its entirety; there was no break in services and she received pay continuously either as dresser or singer during base period; fact that she signed written agreement was merely because it was required by union. Claim by Barnes, 5 A.D.2d 745, 168 N.Y.S.2d 799, 1957 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3560 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1957).

Claimant did not qualify for unemployment benefits since she did not have at least 20 weeks of employment in the 52-week period preceding the filing of claim. where claimant filed for benefits on April 21, 1958 and she last worked on July 22, 1955. Claim for Benefits by Gettinger, 9 A.D.2d 586, 189 N.Y.S.2d 453, 1959 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7449 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1959).

As to whether an applicant for benefits had the required number of weeks of employment in the 52 weeks preceding filing of his claim, the Appeal Board could decline to consider as constituting weeks of employment two weeks in which claimant, a salesman, actually picked up a couple of orders for his employer or former employer following termination of employment with two weeks' extra pay which, at the time, was designated as severance pay although later alleged to constitute vacation pay. Claim by Politzer, 11 A.D.2d 839, 203 N.Y.S.2d 133, 1960 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8511 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1960).

Finding that unemployment compensation claimant did not have the requisite number of weeks of covered employment to qualify for benefits, was supported by evidence. In re Schneiderman, 12 A.D.2d 678, 207 N.Y.S.2d 831, 1960 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6745 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1960).

A claimant was properly denied unemployment benefits where he failed to show he did not have at least 20 weeks of covered employment in his base period. Mitagstein v Catherwood, 32 A.D.2d 584, 299 N.Y.S.2d 63, 1969 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4207 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1969).

A decision of the Unemployment Insurance Appeal Board determining that claimant-musician was ineligible to receive benefits because he did not have at least 20 weeks of covered employment in his base period was not justified as the amount of compensation (union scale) and the liability of employer were unconditionally established as of the dates of the respective rehearsals, two of which were within the first quarter and the rehearsal wages were earned when each rehearsal took place and were not dependent as to amount or liability on any future event. Jory v Catherwood, 34 A.D.2d 260, 312 N.Y.S.2d 383, 1970 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4610 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1970).

Claimant who had 17 weeks of covered employment for her base period and who received 14 days of paid vacation when her employment was terminated was not entitled to have the additional 14 days included for purposes of determining whether she had worked at least 20 weeks as required for unemployment insurance benefits; a "week of employment" does not include a period beyond the employment when the claimant did not do some work in her employment in that period. Caltabiano v Levine, 50 A.D.2d 979, 376 N.Y.S.2d 228, 1975 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11944 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1975).

Testimony by unemployment insurance claimant, who was president and major stockholder of his employer, that he originally drew money claimed to be wages because he feared that he would not otherwise recover money which he had loaned to or invested in the corporation sustained finding that claimant did not receive sufficient wages from his employment during at least 20 weeks of his base period to enable him to file a valid original claim and that he had made willful false statements to obtain benefits. Caporale v Levine, 53 A.D.2d 711, 384 N.Y.S.2d 63, 1976 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13480 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1976).

Showing that, although unemployment insurance claimant did not have 20 weeks of employment in the year preceding his claim, he did have at least 15 weeks of employment in the year preceding the date of his claim and at least 40 weeks during the two years preceding the claim did not entitle claimant to benefits under the special unemployment assistance program. Liebowitz v Levine, 53 A.D.2d 769, 384 N.Y.S.2d 247, 1976 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13546 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1976).

Claimant lacked sufficient weeks of employment in her base period where she had voluntarily resigned from her job on January 3, received dismissal pay until November 5, and applied for benefits on December 6, and thus had been employed during only 5 of 52 weeks preceding her application; fact that her former employer labeled her dismissal payments as "salary continuance" was not dispositive. In re Claim of Mercurio, 241 A.D.2d 662, 661 N.Y.S.2d 56, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7360 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1997).

Evidence supported denial of benefits where claimant did not dispute that he worked only about 10 weeks during 52-week period prior to filing claim. In re Claim of Rodriguez, 257 A.D.2d 759, 683 N.Y.S.2d 341, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1999).

4. Fifteen weeks alternative requirement

Where claimant did not have the requisite 15 weeks for a "valid original claim" under subd. 2 of this section, the Appeal Board was justified in denying her application to predate her claim one week, notwithstanding her assertion of unfamiliarity with the mechanics of this law and she was 65 years old and wanted to rest a little longer before returning to work, where her physician had certified her ability to return to work about 10 days before she started looking for it. Claim for Benefits by Silver, 15 A.D.2d 839, 224 N.Y.S.2d 941, 1962 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11408 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1962).

Claimant was not entitled to unemployment insurance benefits since she only had 11 weeks of actual employment during base period, rather than required 15 weeks, notwithstanding argument that 4 weeks of absences charged to claimant's annual leave accruals should have been credited as actual weeks of employment, since employer properly later restored leave credits to claimant and paid her for that period. In re Claim of Luxenberg, 149 A.D.2d 778, 539 N.Y.S.2d 571, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4373 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1989).

Claimant was not entitled to unemployment insurance benefits because she failed to comply with registration requirements where (1) she was paid disability benefits from May, 1990 until September, 1990 because of difficulties during pregnancy, (2) she initially testified that her husband went to local unemployment insurance office without her in September, 1990 and was mistakenly told that she was ineligible for unemployment insurance benefits until she actually received her last disability check, (3) she offered no explanation for her failure to go to office in September, 1990 and stated that she first went to office in February, 1991 when she filed for benefits, (4) she testified that she was at office in September, 1990 only after she was confronted with previous statement she made to such effect, and (5) Unemployment Insurance Appeal Board ruled that claimant did not go to unemployment insurance office until February, 1991 and that, therefore, she had insufficient number of weeks of covered employment in base period. In re Claim of Gutowitz, 193 A.D.2d

1041, 598 N.Y.S.2d 575, 1993 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5339 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1993).

Substantial evidence supported determination that claimant was not entitled to unemployment insurance benefits because he did not have sufficient weeks of covered employment to file valid original claim where claimant was officer of corporation that sold yarn on retail and wholesale basis, and he admitted that he drew no salary during corporation's last year of business and, in fact, had drawn no salary during 4 or 5 years preceding corporation's dissolution. In re Claim of Strauch, 193 A.D.2d 1044, 598 N.Y.S.2d 385, 1993 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5336 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1993).

Claimant did not have sufficient weeks of covered employment to file valid original claim where she went on maternity/disability leave on August 11, 1994 but did not file claim for unemployment insurance benefits until May 16, 1995; claimant could not backdate her claim to May 1, 1995 on ground that she was available to return to work as of that date, but that her employer did not respond to her inquiries as to work until May 15, 1995, since she gave written statement to local unemployment office explaining that she delayed her application because she was seeking additional disability benefits from workers' compensation. In re Claim of Franklin, 232 A.D.2d 719, 647 N.Y.S.2d 1020, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9985 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1996), app. denied, 89 N.Y.2d 806, 654 N.Y.S.2d 717, 677 N.E.2d 289, 1997 N.Y. LEXIS 51 (N.Y. 1997).

5. Average remuneration requirements

Subdivision of unemployment insurance statute providing for use, in computation of average weekly wage, of only those weeks in which $30 [now $40] was actually earned, providing there are as few as 15 of such weeks, does not make provision for an elective qualification, but is remedial, establishing criteria for qualification only by claimants unable to satisfy conditions of first subdivision, which establishes "Basic condition" to qualify. Eisenstark v Levine, 46 A.D.2d 606, 364 N.Y.S.2d 585, 1975 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8554 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1975).

Where unemployment insurance claimant's earnings for 20 weeks of employment came to $790.46, so that her average earnings in each of those weeks was more than $39, her continuance in employment at reduced wages after June 9, 1975, which fell into the approximate middle of her base period, did not invalidate her claim to qualification under basic condition; having thus qualified under the basic condition, average for her entire base period was properly used to determine her average weekly wage since she had less than 20 weeks of actual earnings of $30 [now $40] or more. Eisenstark v Levine, 46 A.D.2d 606, 364 N.Y.S.2d 585, 1975 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8554 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1975).

Denial of a former employee's claim for unemployment benefits was proper because the record revealed that the former employee did not have sufficient earnings in either his base period or alternate base period to file a valid original claim pursuant to N.Y. Lab. Law § 527; the former employee earned $11,664 during one quarter while working for the employer, but did not have any earnings thereafter. The former employee did not have earnings during at least two calendar quarters of the base period, with remuneration of one and one-half times the high calendar quarter earnings within the base period as required by N.Y. Lab. Law § 527(1)(d), and further did not have any earnings during any of the quarters in his alternate base period. Matter of Stennett v Commissioner of Labor, 54 A.D.3d 478, 862 N.Y.S.2d 649, 2008 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6356 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2008).

Unemployment Insurance Appeal Board properly determined that a lump sum award made to an unemployment insurance claimant for back pay did not establish a valid original claim under N.Y. Lab. Law § 527 because such remuneration was credited to the claimant on the day that he received the check, under N.Y. Lab. Law § 516, and thus, the amount did not constitute earnings during the appropriate base periods established for the claimant's claim, which preceded the date that he received the lump sum payment. In re Claim of Paterson, 14 A.D.3d 751, 786 N.Y.S.2d 859, 2005 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 92 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2005).

Because an employee did not show good cause for failing to timely comply with an administrative law judge's decision, pursuant to N.Y. Comp. Codes R. & Regs. tit. 12, § 461.8, the employee's application to reopen was properly denied; because the employee did not have sufficient earnings in the base period, the employee did not qualify to file a valid original claim under Labor Law § 527. Matter of Bellamy (New York City Bd. of Educ.-Commissioner of Labor), 34 A.D.3d 891, 823 N.Y.S.2d 584, 2006 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13050 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2006), app. dismissed, 8 N.Y.3d 842, 830 N.Y.S.2d 701, 862 N.E.2d 793, 2007 N.Y. LEXIS 839 (N.Y. 2007).

Substantial evidence supported the determination of the New York Unemployment Insurance Appeal Board that appellant did not have sufficient earnings in appellant's base period to file a valid original claim under N.Y. Lab. Law § 527; appellant failed to earn, in the base period under N.Y. Lab. Law § 520(1) and alternate base period under N.Y. Lab. Law § 520(2), one and one-half times the highest quarterly earnings in those periods, and the Board properly excluded, pursuant to N.Y. Lab. Law § 517(2)(b), from its calculations the compensation that appellant received as a foster parent since no taxes were withheld and appellant did not provide a breakdown of the amount purportedly paid to appellant for those services. Matter of Sotomayor v Commissioner of Labor, 34 A.D.3d 957, 823 N.Y.S.2d 622, 2006 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13266 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2006).

Although an employee was entitled to take advantage of the extended base period provided by N.Y. Lab. Law § 527(3), because the employee received less than the required 1-½ times the amount received during the highest calendar quarter required by § 527(1)(d), the employee was unable to file a valid original claim for unemployment insurance benefits. Matter of Fiorino (Commissioner of Labor), 34 A.D.3d 892, 823 N.Y.S.2d 294, 2006 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13051 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2006).

6. Part-time employment

Claimant, who held part-time employment two evenings per week subsequent to her discharge as a full-time teacher, was not entitled to claim benefits under Federal Special Unemployment Assistance Program where her part-time employment was covered under state law and entitled her to receive partial benefits equal to one-half of her benefit rate. Swyer v Levine, 52 A.D.2d 707, 382 N.Y.S.2d 590, 1976 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12388 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1976).

Lump-sum payment of $2,000 made to retired attorney by his former municipal employer did not constitute continuance on the public payroll for purposes of determining the retired attorney's eligibility for unemployment insurance benefits. Liebowitz v Levine, 53 A.D.2d 769, 384 N.Y.S.2d 247, 1976 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13546 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1976).

Limited employment may not always result in total disqualification to receive unemployment insurance benefits. People v Brandow, 53 A.D.2d 998, 386 N.Y.S.2d 123, 1976 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 15791 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1976).

Substantial evidence failed to establish that unemployment insurance claimant wilfully made false statements to obtain benefits, where evidence, inter alia, disclosed that claimant had consistently reported number of days he worked at corporation, there was no assertion that he understated the extent of those efforts and interviews between claimant and administrative employees demonstrated a forthright disclosure of claimant's involvement with corporation. People v Brandow, 53 A.D.2d 998, 386 N.Y.S.2d 123, 1976 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 15791 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1976).

Substantial evidence supported determination of Unemployment Insurance Appeal Board that claimant, when residing in New York State, and receiving benefits, generally worked at corporation's New York City office one day each week, was not totally unemployed, since claimant was compensated on an annual basis, receiving payments while in Florida, and was not merely working on a daily basis, notwithstanding that claimant made no claim for benefits while residing in Florida. People v Brandow, 53 A.D.2d 998, 386 N.Y.S.2d 123, 1976 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 15791 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1976).

Claimant who had been employed on part-time basis for approximately 5 years did not have valid original claim, and thus was ineligible to receive unemployment insurance benefits, where her earnings from covered employment were less than $80 per week (except for 2 weeks) during base period of previous 52 weeks; $7 per week earned running errands for elderly neighbor did not constitute covered employment under CLS Labor § 560, and hence did not bear on claimant's eligibility to receive benefits, since neighbor did not pay claimant $300 or more in any calendar quarter during base period. In re Claim of Infortunio, 132 A.D.2d 803, 517 N.Y.S.2d 343, 1987 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 49304 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1987).

7. Seasonal employment

Record supported determination of Unemployment Insurance Appeal Board, disqualifying claimant from receiving benefits on ground that duration of his employment through June of each year was contrived in order to establish his eligibility for unemployment insurance benefits, where (1) claimant performed office services for tax preparation business owned and operated by his wife, (2) record showed repeated pattern each year in which tax preparation business virtually ceased operation after April 15 and claimant's wife thereafter had to utilize her personal funds to pay claimant's salary, and (3) claimant was paid for several weeks in advance on several occasions, and twice received vacation pay before ending his employment in July. In re Claim of Turco, 156 A.D.2d 797, 549 N.Y.S.2d 217, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 15493 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1989), app. denied, 76 N.Y.2d 703, 559 N.Y.S.2d 239, 558 N.E.2d 41, 1990 N.Y. LEXIS 1320 (N.Y. 1990).

Agency Opinions

1. Seasonal employment

A village may not contract out the hiring of school crossing guards to a private entity or agency. If the village hires school crossing guards for the school year, it is liable for unemployment insurance benefits to such crossing guards in the summer when school is not in session, provided that the crossing guards are otherwise eligible pursuant to Labor Law § 527(1). 1977 NY Ops Atty Gen Oct 26.

ARTICLE 20-C Retaliatory Action by Employers

Section
740. Retaliatory personnel action by employers; prohibition

HISTORY:

Add, L 1984, ch 660, § 2, eff Sept 1, 1984 and applies to any retaliatory personnel actions taken on or after Sept 1, 1984.

§ 740. Retaliatory personnel action by employers; prohibition

1. Definitions. For purposes of this section, unless the context specifically indicates otherwise:

(a) "Employee" means an individual who performs services for and under the control and direction of an employer for wages or other remuneration.

(b) "Employer" means any person, firm, partnership, institution, corporation, or association that employs one or more employees.

(c) "Law, rule or regulation" includes any duly enacted statute or ordinance or any rule or regulation promulgated pursuant to any federal, state or local statute or ordinance.

(d) "Public body" includes the following:

(i) the United States Congress, any state legislature, or any popularly-elected local governmental body, or any member or employee thereof;

(ii) any federal, state, or local judiciary, or any member or employee thereof, or any grand or petit jury;

(iii) any federal, state, or local regulatory, administrative, or public agency or authority, or instrumentality thereof; or

(iv) any federal, state, or local law enforcement agency, prosecutorial office, or police or peace officer.

(e) "Retaliatory personnel action" means the discharge, suspension or demotion of an employee, or other adverse employment action taken against an employee in the terms and conditions of employment.

(f) "Supervisor" means any individual with an employer's organization who has the authority to direct and control the work performance of the affected employee; or who has managerial authority to take corrective action regarding the violation of the law, rule or regulation of which the employee complains.

(g) "Health care fraud" means health care fraud as defined by article one hundred seventy-seven of the penal law.

2. Prohibitions. An employer shall not take any retaliatory personnel action against an employee because such employee does any of the following:

(a) discloses, or threatens to disclose to a supervisor or to a public body an activity, policy or practice of the employer that is in violation of law, rule or regulation which violation creates and presents a substantial and specific danger to the public health or safety, or which constitutes health care fraud;

(b) provides information to, or testifies before, any public body conducting an investigation, hearing or inquiry into any such violation of a law, rule or regulation by such employer; or

(c) objects to, or refuses to participate in any such activity, policy or practice in violation of a law, rule or regulation.

3. Application. The protection against retaliatory personnel action provided by paragraph (a) of subdivision two of this section pertaining to disclosure to a public body shall not apply to an employee who makes such disclosure to a public body unless the employee has brought the activity, policy or practice in violation of law, rule or regulation to the attention of a supervisor of the employer and has afforded such employer a reasonable opportunity to correct such activity, policy or practice.

4. Violation; remedy. (a) An employee who has been the subject of a retaliatory personnel action in violation of this section may institute a civil action in a court of competent jurisdiction for relief as set forth in subdivision five of this section within one year after the alleged retaliatory personnel action was taken.

(b) Any action authorized by this section may be brought in the county in which the alleged retaliatory personnel action occurred, in the county in which the complainant resides, or in the county in which the employer has its principal place of business.

(c) It shall be a defense to any action brought pursuant to this section that the personnel action was predicated upon grounds other than the employee's exercise of any rights protected by this section. It shall also be a defense that the individual was an independent contractor.

(d) Notwithstanding the provisions of paragraphs (a) and (c) of this subdivision, a health care employee who has been the subject of a retaliatory action by a health care employer in violation of section seven hundred forty-one of this article may institute a civil action in a court of competent jurisdiction for relief as set forth in subdivision five of this section within two years after the alleged retaliatory personnel action was taken. In addition to the relief set forth in that subdivision, the court, in its discretion, based upon a finding that the employer acted in bad faith in the retaliatory action, may assess the employer a civil penalty of an amount not to exceed ten thousand dollars, to be paid to the improving quality of patient care fund, established pursuant to section ninety-seven-aaaa of the state finance law.

5. Relief. In any action brought pursuant to subdivision four of this section, the court may order relief as follows:

(a) an injunction to restrain continued violation of this section;

(b) the reinstatement of the employee to the same position held before the retaliatory personnel action, or to an equivalent position;

(c) the reinstatement of full fringe benefits and seniority rights;

(d) the compensation for lost wages, benefits and other remuneration; and

(e) the payment by the employer of reasonable costs, disbursements, and attorney's fees.

6. Employer relief. A court, in its discretion, may also order that reasonable attorneys' fees and court costs and disbursements be awarded to an employer if the court determines that an action brought by an employee under this section was without basis in law or in fact.

7. Existing rights. Nothing in this section shall be deemed to diminish the rights, privileges, or remedies of any employee under any other law or regulation or under any collective bargaining agreement or employment contract.

HISTORY:

Add, L 1984, ch 660, § 2, eff Sept 1, 1984 and applies to any retaliatory personnel actions taken on or after Sept 1, 1984; amd, L 2002, ch 24, § 2, eff April 2, 2002; L 2006, ch 442, §§ 12, 13, eff Nov 1, 2006; L 2019, ch 684, § 1, effective December 20, 2019.

N.Y. Lab. Law § 741, which offers exceptional and specialized whistleblower protection over and above the generalized protection afforded by N.Y. Lab. Law § 740, is meant to safeguard only those employees who are qualified by virtue of training and/or experience to make knowledgeable judgments as to the quality of patient care and whose jobs require them to make these judgments. Reddington v Staten Is. Univ. Hosp., 11 N.Y.3d 80, 862 N.Y.S.2d 842, 893 N.E.2d 120, 2008 N.Y. LEXIS 1932 (N.Y. 2008).

Court should have granted employer's motion to strike employee's jury demand in action for wrongful discharge in violation of CLS Labor § 740(2)(a) and (c), in which employee sought compensatory damages under CLS Labor § 740(5), since latter section explicitly provides that relief may be awarded by court, rather than jury. Scaduto v Restaurant Assoc. Industries, Inc., 180 A.D.2d 458, 579 N.Y.S.2d 381, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1298 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1992).

Time-barred retaliatory discharge cause of action in amended complaint did not relate back to dismissed causes of action for breach of contract and negligence asserted in original complaint, so as to be considered timely under CLS CPLR § 203(e), even though plaintiff sought redress for her termination from employment in both complaints, since retaliatory discharge cause of action was based on different theory and involved different factual allegations than those involved in original complaint. Perez v Wegman Cos., 181 A.D.2d 1010, 581 N.Y.S.2d 502, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4605 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't), app. denied, 80 N.Y.2d 753, 587 N.Y.S.2d 904, 600 N.E.2d 631, 1992 N.Y. LEXIS 1757 (N.Y. 1992).

Service of process on Attorney General's office was sufficient to acquire personal jurisdiction over Division for Youth in action by former probationary teacher at youth detention facility who alleged retaliatory discharge since (1) instant matter was action rather than proceeding, (2) neither CLS Labor § 740 nor CLS Civ S § 75-b required dual service, and (3) there was no specific legislation pertaining to Division of Youth which required personal service in order to confer jurisdiction. Hanley v New York State Executive Dept., Div. for Youth, 182 A.D.2d 317, 589 N.Y.S.2d 366, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12138 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1992).

In action brought against hospital personnel for defamation, conspiracy, loss of consortium and wrongful termination of employment, court properly allowed plaintiff to amend complaint to assert that cause of action for wrongful termination was based on CLS Labor § 740 since original complaint alleged that plaintiff was fired in retaliation for her report of medical misconduct constituting hazard to public health and safety; defendants were not prejudiced on ground that statute carries severe remedies, including reinstatement, and that defendants acted under assumption that plaintiff would not seek reinstatement in replacing her as director nursing, since defendants allowed 2 years to elapse without replacing director of nursing. Kraus v Brandstetter, 185 A.D.2d 302, 586 N.Y.S.2d 269, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9035 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1992).

In action by truck driver against his former employer arising from his termination after he refused to keep log book in manner required by employer, truck driver was barred by one-year statute of limitations of CLS Labor § 740(4)(a) from amending his complaint to assert new cause of action alleging violation of § 740(2)(c) based on alleged discrimination and retaliation against him for refusal to comply with record keeping policy in violation of federal regulations, since proposed cause of action was based on different theory and facts than those which constituted earlier cause of action for age discrimination, and thus did not relate back to original complaint. Brown v Vail-Ballou Press, Inc., 188 A.D.2d 972, 592 N.Y.S.2d 78, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 14755 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1992).

Neither res judicata nor collateral estoppel barred action brought pursuant to CLS Labor § 740, alleging that plaintiff had been discharged after he attempted to enforce standards of Occupational Safety and Health Act at his place of employment, notwithstanding that plaintiff had already unsuccessfully brought proceeding before Occupational Safety and Health Administration alleging retaliatory discrimination, since (1) defendant failed to submit plaintiff's complaint in prior proceeding, and thus court could not determine if identity of issues existed, (2) instant action was based at least in part on conduct that took place after filing of complaint in prior proceeding and (3) prior complaint had been summarily dismissed without evidentiary hearing, depriving plaintiff of opportunity to employ procedures substantially similar to those utilized in court of law. Heinitz v Standard Constr., 202 A.D.2d 843, 609 N.Y.S.2d 102, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2496 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1994).

Defendant was properly granted summary judgment in claim brought under CLS Labor § 740 where plaintiff's submissions failed to satisfy requirement of "actual" violation of law, and defendant showed that plaintiff had received warning, which he acknowledged, in connection with his use of racial slurs and racially provocative language as to or directed at fellow employees, that despite warning, he failed to refrain from such conduct, and that employment was terminated for that reason. Capobianco v AMEX, 233 A.D.2d 189, 649 N.Y.S.2d 688, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11814 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1996), app. denied, 89 N.Y.2d 810, 657 N.Y.S.2d 403, 679 N.E.2d 642, 1997 N.Y. LEXIS 333 (N.Y. 1997).

In employee's action under CLS Labor § 740 against private employer, city, and director of city agency for retaliation against employee for "blowing the whistle" on unlawful practice, employee was not required to serve notice of claim on director for his allegedly retaliatory acts that were clearly beyond scope of his employment. Gorgone v Capozzi, 238 A.D.2d 308, 656 N.Y.S.2d 49, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3388 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1997), app. denied, 95 N.Y.2d 767, 717 N.Y.S.2d 547, 740 N.E.2d 653, 2000 N.Y. LEXIS 3510 (N.Y. 2000).

In "Whistle Blower" action by plaintiff who allegedly was terminated from her position as nurse in retaliation for reporting her concerns that nursing home personnel violated CLS Pub Health § 2962 by failing to take appropriate resuscitation measures in case of elderly patient, court properly granted defendants' motion to compel disclosure of information or documents relating to any charge or complaint filed against plaintiff or respecting any investigation concerning her care, treatment and death of patient in question; even if plaintiff was protected by any statutory or regulatory privilege barring disclosure of requested materials, she waived her privilege by placing her actions regarding patient's treatment into issue. Marten v Eden Park Health Servs., 250 A.D.2d 44, 680 N.Y.S.2d 750, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12486 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1998).

Plaintiff failed to state action under CLS Labor § 740(7) on basis of conclusory allegations that defendant violated its federal and state tritium distribution licenses by failing to perform certain tests and to impose governing regulatory standards on its foreign vendor. Pail v Precise Imports Corp., 256 A.D.2d 73, 681 N.Y.S.2d 498, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13069 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1998).

In Article 78 proceeding alleging bad faith-termination of petitioner's public employment in violation of CLS Civ S § 75-b, defendants were not entitled to directed verdict, and new trial would be granted, even though petitioner was provisional at-will employee, where he presented evidence that termination was related to his report to Community Service Board that his superior had acted improperly toward him and 2 other employees. Sisson v Lech, 266 A.D.2d 858, 697 N.Y.S.2d 805, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11823 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1999).

Defendant, university medical college, was improperly granted summary judgment in action brought under "Whistleblower Statute" (CLS Labor § 740) where plaintiff physician's contention that professional colleague was practicing medicine while impaired by mental defect, which represented danger to his patients, was supported by affidavits of senior nursing staff members that colleague was suspicious, hostile, and erratic, and that patient care was substandard as result, and defendant's suggestion that its investigation revealed that there was no substance to plaintiff's complaints was not supported by affidavits or documentation, merely asserting that any material relating to its investigation was privileged. Finkelstein v Cornell Univ. Med. College, 269 A.D.2d 114, 702 N.Y.S.2d 285, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 970 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2000).

Plaintiff, physician at university medical college, was not collaterally estopped from bringing action under CLS Labor § 740 against college, which allegedly terminated plaintiff's faculty appointment and transferred him to another hospital for asserting that colleague was practicing medicine while impaired by mental defect, Finkelstein v Cornell Univ. Med. College, 269 A.D.2d 114, 702 N.Y.S.2d 285, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 970 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2000).

In action, inter alia, to permanently enjoin defendant for taking any "retaliatory personnel action" against plaintiff in violation of CLS Labor § 740, court improperly granted plaintiff's motion to restrain defendant from discharging plaintiff from his employment pending trial of action where plaintiff's claims that if he lost his position as faculty member with defendant, he would have no one to support him, he would be unable to live in New York metropolitan area, and would be unable to prosecute instant action, were wholly speculative and conclusory. Khan v State Univ. of N.Y. Health Science Ctr., 271 A.D.2d 656, 706 N.Y.S.2d 192, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4534 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2000).

Dismissal of CLS Labor § 740 claim was premature prior to disclosure of information by defendant hospital and doctor concerning 2 surgical patients, in action alleging that defendants had taken retaliatory personnel action for plaintiff's expressions of concern about quality of care patients had received. Bordan v North Shore Univ. Hosp., 275 A.D.2d 335, 712 N.Y.S.2d 155, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8697 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2000).

Plaintiff in action against hospital and doctor under "whistleblower's law" (CLS Labor § 740) was not entitled to disclosure concerning doctor's prior involvement in disciplinary proceeding where plaintiff did not allege that defendants' retaliatory personnel action resulted from disclosure or threatened disclosure of such proceeding or of charges underlying it. Bordan v North Shore Univ. Hosp., 275 A.D.2d 335, 712 N.Y.S.2d 155, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8697 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2000).

Action commenced in May 1996, alleging that respondents retaliated against police sergeant for his "whistle-blowing" activity by actively preventing his promotion to lieutenant during life of preferred eligible list until its expiration by operation of law, was not time barred by applicable one year limitations period under CLS Labor § 740(4)(a) and CLS Civ S § 75-b(3)(c) because eligibility list did not expire until June or July of 1996, and thus alleged retaliatory conduct continued throughout year prior to commencement of action. Dobson v Loos, 277 A.D.2d 1013, 716 N.Y.S.2d 220, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11441 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 2000).

Although employment relationship is presumed to be hiring at will that is terminable at any time by either party, absent agreement establishing fixed duration, legislature, by enacting Whistleblower law, changed rule to extent of prohibiting retaliatory discharges in certain situations. Vella v United Cerebral Palsy, Inc., 141 Misc. 2d 976, 535 N.Y.S.2d 292, 1988 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 725 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1988).

Plaintiff's attempt to withdraw meritless retaliatory discharge claim prior to judgment did not circumvent statutory waiver provision of CLS Labor § 740(7), nor would allowing him to serve amended complaint dropping retaliatory discharge claim nullify his initial waiver or preclude award of attorney's fees, costs and disbursements to defendant under CLS Labor § 740(6). Rotwein v Sunharbor Manor Residential Health Care Facility, 181 Misc. 2d 847, 695 N.Y.S.2d 477, 1999 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 333 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1999).

Although an employee's complaint did not specifically state that his wrongful discharge claim was brought under the whistle blower statute, N.Y. Lab. Law § 740, the failure to allege that was not fatal to the pleading because it was clear that the claim was brought thereunder where the employee contended that he was wrongfully discharged after having reported violations of law by a fellow stockbroker to his employer. Feinman v Morgan Stanley Dean Witter, 193 Misc. 2d 496, 752 N.Y.S.2d 229, 2002 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1535 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 2002).

Because a police officer did not serve a notice of a retaliation claim against a city until well beyond the 90-day period in N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(1)(a) and outside the one-year statute of limitations in N.Y. Lab. Law § 740(4)(a) and N.Y. Civ. Serv. Law § 75-b(3)(c), the city's motion to dismiss should have been granted in its entirety. Thomas v City of Oneonta, 90 A.D.3d 1135, 934 N.Y.S.2d 249, 2011 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8536 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2011).

Former employee's claim for wrongful discharge in violation of CLS Labor Law § 740 is denied summarily, because (1) employee failed to file claim with Employment Relations Board, which has exclusive jurisdiction to adjudicate unfair labor practices claims, and (2) even if court had jurisdiction, claim was without merit since there is no evidence that alleged blacklist was circulated for purpose of preventing him from obtaining other employment, or that employee was blacklisted because he exercised protected right. Hogan v 50 Sutton Place S. Owners, Inc., 919 F. Supp. 738, 1996 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 4010 (S.D.N.Y. 1996).

In a whistle blower action, the court granted plaintiff's motion to compel defendant employer to produce performance evaluations of certain employees who had not been terminated, because such documents could test the merits of defendant's claim that it fired plaintiff for substandard work performance rather than for engaging in protected activities. McMahon v New York Organ Donor Network, Inc, 52 Misc. 3d 201, 28 N.Y.S.3d 282, 2016 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1034 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 2016).

Former employee's claim under CLS Labor § 740, alleging that he was fired for reporting kickback scheme which violated federal racketeering laws, was not tolled while his administrative charges were pending in state and federal civil rights agencies, because his whistleblower claim was based on different theory and different facts from his discrimination claims. Gray v Shearson Lehman Bros., 947 F. Supp. 132, 1996 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 18104 (S.D.N.Y. 1996).

Labor § 740(4)(a) does not support loss of consortium claim by spouse of employee. Goldman v MCL Cos. of Chicago, 131 F. Supp. 2d 425, 2000 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 18509 (S.D.N.Y. 2000).

Plaintiff's omission of her N.Y. Labor Law § 740 claim from her amended complaint did not immunize her claims from the waiver provision in N.Y. Labor Law § 740(7). Reddington v Staten Island Univ. Hosp., 373 F. Supp. 2d 177, 2005 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 12029 (E.D.N.Y. 2005), aff'd, in part, 511 F.3d 126, 2007 U.S. App. LEXIS 28881 (2d Cir. N.Y. 2007).

Plaintiffs a cause of action under New York's Whistle blower Act, N.Y. Labor Law § 740 did not act as a waiver of her federal claim under the Age Discrimination in Employment Act, 29 U.S.C.S. § 623, because federalism issues were implicated, and likewise, plaintiff's state law whistle blower claims did not require waiver of her state law age discrimination claims under N.Y. Exec. Law § 290, because "differentiated facts" under laid the plaintiff's age discrimination claim versus her whistle blower claim. Reddington v Staten Island Univ. Hosp., 373 F. Supp. 2d 177, 2005 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 12029 (E.D.N.Y. 2005), aff'd, in part, 511 F.3d 126, 2007 U.S. App. LEXIS 28881 (2d Cir. N.Y. 2007).

In former volunteer firefighters' 42 U.S.C.S. § 1983 suit alleging that they were retaliated against, in violation of U.S. Const. amend. I, for reporting their fire company's safety violations to state and federal agencies, the firefighters' claim under N.Y. Exec. Law § 740, which concerned the State Board of Social Welfare, was dismissed on summary judgment because it was entirely irrelevant to the case; while it seemed likely that the firefighters intended to invoke N.Y. Lab. Law § 740, because they did not clarify the issue, despite the company's expressed confusion and arguments for dismissal of the claim, the claim was deemed withdrawn. Shanks v Vill. of Catskill Bd. of Trs., 653 F. Supp. 2d 158, 2009 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 79018 (N.D.N.Y. 2009).

Employee's pro se complaint under N.Y. Lab. Law § 740 was not completely barred by the one-year statute of limitations period, because, although some adverse employment action had been taken outside of the limitations period, the employee had received a letter from the employer that they did not intend to renew his appointment within one year of filing his complaint, and not all of the employee's claims were time-barred. Geldzahler v N.Y. Med. College, 663 F. Supp. 2d 379, 2009 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 96465 (S.D.N.Y. 2009).

Employee's claims for violations of N.Y. Lab. Law §§ 740 and 741 survived a motion to dismiss because the employee had adequately stated a belief that the employer, a college, had potentially violated laws and regulations, by the methods it used on patients and the way that dental residents were trained. Geldzahler v N.Y. Med. College, 663 F. Supp. 2d 379, 2009 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 96465 (S.D.N.Y. 2009).

To the extent that an employee was attempting to state a cause of action under state law for a retaliatory personnel action, the determination concerning whether or not the employee had a claim was best left to the decision of a state court. Schultz v Tribune Co., 2009 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 93590 (E.D.N.Y. Oct. 7, 2009), aff'd, 418 Fed. Appx. 26, 2011 U.S. App. LEXIS 7571 (2d Cir. N.Y. 2011).

Plaintiff surgeon's claim that his termination from his position as the director of a residency program at defendant medical college violated N.Y. Lab. Law § 740 was time-barred under N.Y. Lab. Law § 740(4)(a) because the action was filed more than one year after the termination. Geldzahler v New York Med. College, 746 F. Supp. 2d 618, 2010 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 105182 (S.D.N.Y. 2010).

United States District Court for the Eastern District of New York follows the reasoning of the Eleventh, Third, and Ninth Circuits and declines to follow the logic of the Eighth Circuit with regard to the issue of express preemption of state whistleblower claims under the Airline Deregulation Act of 1978, 49 U.S.C.S. § 42121. Ulysse v AAR Aircraft Component Servs., 841 F. Supp. 2d 659, 2011 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 152058 (E.D.N.Y. 2011).

United States District Court for the Eastern District of New York concludes that although the United States Congress intends to occupy the entire field of air safety, N.Y. Lab. Law § 740 does not interfere with federal laws and regulations sufficiently to fall within the scope of the preempted field. Ulysse v AAR Aircraft Component Servs., 841 F. Supp. 2d 659, 2011 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 152058 (E.D.N.Y. 2011).

Employee's motion for remand was granted with regard to his whistleblower complaint against his former employer, an airline, because complete preemption did not exist since the N.Y. Lab. Law § 740 claim was not related to a service of an air carrier within the express terms of the preemption provision of the Airline Deregulation Act of 1978, 49 U.S.C.S. § 41713(b)(1), and the United States District Court for the Eastern District of New York chooses to follow the reasoning of the Eleventh, Third, and Ninth Circuits and declines to follow the logic of the Eighth Circuit with regard to the issue of express preemption of state whistleblower claims under the Airline Deregulation Act of 1978, 49 U.S.C.S. § 42121; plus, diversity of citizenship did not exist between the parties. Ulysse v AAR Aircraft Component Servs., 841 F. Supp. 2d 659, 2011 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 152058 (E.D.N.Y. 2011).

United States District Court for the Southern District of New York finds persuasive the reasoning of Kramsky v. Chetrit Group, LLC, 2011 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 63138, and other authorities construing this statute as not requiring waiver of any federal claims; thus, plaintiff did not waive his right to bring an action under the Family Medical Leave Act (FMLA) when he also filed a retaliation claim against defendants so there was no basis for dismissing the FMLA action. Hettler v Entergy Enters., 15 F. Supp. 3d 447, 2014 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 57234 (S.D.N.Y. 2014).

Claims by former employees for adult day care center were time-barred because suit was filed more than two years after alleged retaliatory actions. United States ex rel. Lee v N. Adult Daily Health Care Ctr., 205 F. Supp. 3d 276, 2016 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 121136 (E.D.N.Y. 2016).

2. Parties

Contractor that operated nuclear facility owned by federal government was not shielded from liability under CLS Labor § 740 by virtue of supremacy clause of United States Constitution since § 740 does not "directly" regulate federal facility nor interfere with federal goals, and Congress did not intend to exclusively occupy field of whistleblower protection. Bordell v General Elec. Co., 164 A.D.2d 497, 564 N.Y.S.2d 802, 1990 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 15811 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1990).

Retaliatory discharge action brought by former probationary teacher at youth detention facility was governed by standards set forth in CLS Civ S § 75-b and not by CLS Labor § 740 since plaintiff was "public employee" within meaning of § 75-b notwithstanding fact that she was probationary teacher. Hanley v New York State Executive Dept., Div. for Youth, 182 A.D.2d 317, 589 N.Y.S.2d 366, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12138 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1992).

Court should have dismissed complaint alleging that defendant wrongfully terminated plaintiff's employment as nurse discharge planner because she reported abuse of elderly patient by personal care worker/home aide employed by third party, which occurred in patient's home while patient was in care of her family and personal care worker/home health aide, as abuse that plaintiff allegedly reported was not activity of defendant or any of its employees, but rather was act of personal care worker/home health aide employed by third party who was not party to plaintiff's action. Radice v Elderplan, Inc., 217 A.D.2d 690, 630 N.Y.S.2d 326, 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8209 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1995).

New York State Air National Guard Active Guard/Reserve officer's claim under N.Y. Lab. Law § 740, alleging that he was the subject of a retaliatory discharge when he was informed that upon the expiration of his tour, his position would not be renewed, should have been dismissed by a trial court where there was federal control over the military, including the National Guard pursuant to N.Y. Mil. Law § 42; the legislature did not intend the term "employee" as used in N.Y. Lab. Law § 740(1)(a) to include the officer. Matter of Figueroa v Maguire, 37 A.D.3d 829, 831 N.Y.S.2d 248, 2007 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2372 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2007).

Chief executive officer and sole shareholder of corporate employer was proper party in his individual capacity in action under CLS Labor § 740 where defendants did not proffer any admissible evidence or sworn pleading to support their position that such individual was not employer, and he testified at his deposition that he informed plaintiff that he was lowering plaintiff's salary because he himself was taking bigger part of it. Granser v Box Tree S., 164 Misc. 2d 191, 623 N.Y.S.2d 977, 1994 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 651 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1994).

If "supervisor" is individual who performs services under control and direction of employer for wages or other remuneration, supervisor is protected under CLS Labor § 740(2). Granser v Box Tree S., 164 Misc. 2d 191, 623 N.Y.S.2d 977, 1994 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 651 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1994).

Plaintiff surgeon's claim that defendants, a medical college, a supervisor, and a new program director, violated N.Y. Lab. Law § 740 when they failed to renew his faculty position and removed him from all resident supervision and education was not cognizable because the surgeon, who continued to teach on a voluntary basis after he was terminated from his position as the director of a residency program, was not an employee under § 740(1)(a) and did not receive a salary from the medical college when his faculty appointment was not renewed. Geldzahler v New York Med. College, 746 F. Supp. 2d 618, 2010 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 105182 (S.D.N.Y. 2010).

Plaintiff's claims against the medical defendants for violations under the statutes failed because the medical defendants were neither plaintiff's employers nor public employers. Gorman v Rensselaer Cnty., 98 F. Supp. 3d 498, 2015 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 33908 (N.D.N.Y. 2015).

3. Election of remedies

While an employee's N.Y. Lab. Law § 740 claim was time-barred, the waiver provision of § 740(7) did not bar a N.Y. Lab. Law § 741 claim as § 741 expressly relied on and incorporated N.Y. Lab. Law § 740 for purposes of enforcement as N.Y. Lab. Law § 741 did not explicitly create a private right of action; no election of remedies was thus implicated when the two sections were pleaded together. Reddington v Staten Is. Univ. Hosp., 11 N.Y.3d 80, 862 N.Y.S.2d 842, 893 N.E.2d 120, 2008 N.Y. LEXIS 1932 (N.Y. 2008).

Plaintiff's assertion of cause of action based on CLS Labor § 740 did not require dismissal of actions for defamation, conspiracy, and loss of consortium, notwithstanding that statute provides for waiver of other rights and remedies, since waiver only applies to other causes of action relating to retaliatory discharge, and other causes of action were independent of retaliatory discharge. Kraus v Brandstetter, 185 A.D.2d 302, 586 N.Y.S.2d 269, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9035 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1992).

Tort causes of action relating to retaliatory discharge were barred by plaintiff's election to assert action under CLS Labor § 740. Pipas v Syracuse Home Ass'n, 226 A.D.2d 1097, 641 N.Y.S.2d 768, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5571 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't), app. denied, 88 N.Y.2d 810, 649 N.Y.S.2d 377, 672 N.E.2d 603, 1996 N.Y. LEXIS 2759 (N.Y. 1996).

Paramedic seeking to recover from hospital under state (CLS Labor § 740) and federal (42 USCS § 1395dd(i)) "whistleblower" acts would not be heard to assert any right he might have had to opt for litigation where he had served demand for arbitration under parties' contract, had participated fully in arbitration process, and never sought to withdraw his demand for arbitration, which resulted in award for hospital; hospital's motion to compel arbitration and stay action was properly granted. Strattner v Cabrini Med. Ctr., 257 A.D.2d 549, 682 N.Y.S.2d 594, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 674 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1999).

Action against hospital for breach of contract was properly dismissed under CLS Labor § 740(7) where it arose from plaintiff's § 740 action against hospital and doctor. Bordan v North Shore Univ. Hosp., 275 A.D.2d 335, 712 N.Y.S.2d 155, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8697 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2000).

Action against doctor for tortious interference with contract should not have been dismissed pursuant to CLS Labor § 740(7) where it was separate and independent from plaintiff's § 740 claim. Bordan v North Shore Univ. Hosp., 275 A.D.2d 335, 712 N.Y.S.2d 155, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8697 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2000).

Second through eighth causes of action set forth in the claimant's amended complaint should have been dismissed, and, thus, leave to file the amended complaint should not have been granted; all of those claims arose from the claimant's allegedly unlawful discharge and because the claimant commenced his unlawful discharge action under N.Y. Lab. Law § 740(4), the claimant elected his remedies under that statutory section, which meant that pursuant to N.Y. Lab. Law § 740(7), he waived his right to pursue remedies available under other legal provisions. Pipia v Nassau County, 34 A.D.3d 664, 826 N.Y.S.2d 318, 2006 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13868 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2006).

Trial court should have dismissed a physician's claim that an employer and supervisors violated N.Y. Exec. Law § 296 and the New York City, N.Y., Admin. Code § 8-107 by terminating him in retaliation for his complaints about the favoritism shown towards other employees because, by commencing an action under N.Y. Lab. Law § 740(4), the physcian's elected remedies, waiving other causes of action relating to the alleged retaliatory discharge, irrespective of the disposition of such claims. Deshpande v TJH Med. Servs., P.C., 52 A.D.3d 648, 861 N.Y.S.2d 697, 2008

N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5563 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2008), app. denied, 12 N.Y.3d 704, 879 N.Y.S.2d 50, 906 N.E.2d 1084, 2009 N.Y. LEXIS 293 (N.Y. 2009), overruled in part, Webb-Weber v Community Action for Human Servs., Inc., 23 N.Y.3d 448, 992 N.Y.S.2d 163, 15 N.E.3d 1172, 2014 N.Y. LEXIS 1049 (N.Y. 2014).

Labor Law § 740(7), an election of remedies provision, which is incorporated into actions against public employers under Civil Service Law § 75-b(3)(c), does not extend to exclude a potential 42 U.S.C.S. § 1983 cause of action. Frank v State of New York, Off. of Mental Retardation & Dev. Disabilities, 86 A.D.3d 183, 924 N.Y.S.2d 634, 2011 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4504 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2011).

Assertion of third cause of action for retaliatory firing under CLS Labor § 740, in complaint also alleging common law breach of contract and violation of Human Rights Law (CLS Exec § 296), technically required dismissal of first 2 causes of action since institution of action for retaliatory firing is "deemed a waiver of the rights and remedies available under any other contract, collective bargaining agreement, law, rule or regulation or under the common law" by CLS Labor § 740(7). Gonzalez v John T. Mather Memorial Hosp., 147 Misc. 2d 1082, 559 N.Y.S.2d 467, 1990 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 388 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1990).

Statutory waiver provision of CLS Labor § 740(7) barred breach of contract claims alleging failure to give 30 days' notice of termination and failure to hold hearing prior to termination. Rotwein v Sunharbor Manor Residential Health Care Facility, 181 Misc. 2d 847, 695 N.Y.S.2d 477, 1999 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 333 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1999).

Statutory waiver provision of CLS Labor § 740(7) did not apply to defamation claims based on alleged statements made by defendant health care facility after plaintiff's discharge relating to plaintiff's application for medical privileges at another health care facility. Rotwein v Sunharbor Manor Residential Health Care Facility, 181 Misc. 2d 847, 695 N.Y.S.2d 477, 1999 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 333 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1999).

Employee's claims for wrongful discharge due to his having reported a fellow stockbroker's violations of law were dismissed pursuant to a motion by his employer, pursuant to N.Y. C.P.L.R. 3211(a), where one claim was brought under the whistle blower statute, N.Y. Lab. Law § 740, and it was barred by the one-year limitations period contained in § 740(4)(a), and further, it did not affect public health or safety as required by § 740(2)(a); the other claim, which was based on age discrimination, was deemed waived due to exclusivity of § 740(7), where it arose from the same set of facts. Feinman v Morgan Stanley Dean Witter, 193 Misc. 2d 496, 752 N.Y.S.2d 229, 2002 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1535 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 2002).

Once a fired employee had made a claim of retaliatory discharge, even though it was insufficiently pled, the waiver of other causes of action became effective and remained effective, and an amendment of the employee's pleadings to remove the statutory whistleblowing claim would not operate to cancel the waiver. Owitz v Beth Israel Med. Ctr., 781 N.Y.S.2d 626, 1 Misc. 3d 912(A), 2004 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 75 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 2004).

Public employee waived his right to pursue a wrongful termination claim under the Civil Service Law statute concerning retaliatory action by public employers because the employee elected to initially commence the action pursuant to this statute but withdrew the claim. Castro v City of New York, 994 N.Y.S.2d 798, 45 Misc. 3d 805, 2014 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3923 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 2014), rev'd, 141 A.D.3d 456, 36 N.Y.S.3d 113, 2016 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5472 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2016).

Where employers argued that a former employee waived her N.Y. Lab. Law § 741 claim by including a time-barred N.Y. Lab. Law § 740 claim in her original complaint and that the employee, who had worked as the director of a hospital's international patient program, was not an employee within the meaning of N.Y. Lab. Law § 741, questions regarding the scope of N.Y. Lab. Law § 740(7)'s waiver provision and N.Y. Lab. Law § 741(1)(a)'s definition of an employee were certified to the New York Court of Appeals because the New York Court of Appeals had never discussed § 741, there was a split of authority between lower New York state courts and some federal district courts regarding the scope of N.Y. Lab. Law § 740(7)'s waiver provision, the laws applicable to health care service workers were of great importance to the public policy of New York, and a decision from the New York Court of Appeals would resolve the employee's N.Y. Lab. Law § 741 claim. Reddington v Staten Island Univ. Hosp., 511 F.3d 126, 2007 U.S. App. LEXIS 28881 (2d Cir. N.Y. 2007).

Claim of former employee of physicians alleging that she was discharged for reporting hazards to public health and safety is dismissed, where plaintiff brought federal qui tam claim arising out of same occurrence, because qui tam claims and New York's "whistleblower" Act (CLS Labor Law § 740) claims are incompatible, but plaintiff's state law claim is dismissed without prejudice to any state-court suit were plaintiff to elect to proceed under § 740 in state court in lieu of pursuing inconsistent qui tam claim in federal court. United States ex rel. Mikes v Straus, 853 F. Supp. 115, 1994 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 7116 (S.D.N.Y. 1994).

Pursuant to CLS Labor § 740(7), plaintiff abandoned claim for unpaid benefits allegedly due under contract with his former employer by electing to proceed under "whistle blower" statute. McGrane v Reader's Digest Ass'n, 863 F. Supp. 183, 1994 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 14253 (S.D.N.Y. 1994), aff'd, 60 F.3d 811, 1995 U.S. App. LEXIS 20330 (2d Cir. N.Y. 1995).

Former employee's claim of termination in violation of the employee handbook was dismissed because the commencement of an action pursuant to N.Y. Lab. Law § 740 constituted a waiver of any claim based on a collective bargaining agreement or employee contract. Rohlehr v Brookdale Univ. Hosp. & Med. Ctr., 390 F. Supp. 2d 207, 2005 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 29604 (E.D.N.Y. 2005).

When a plaintiff commences an action asserting a claim for relief pursuant to N.Y. Lab. Law § 740, he waives all claims that arise out of the same retaliatory action on which the § 740 claim is based. Dismissal of the § 740 claim does not negate the § 740(7) waiver. Rohlehr v Brookdale Univ. Hosp. & Med. Ctr., 390 F. Supp. 2d 207, 2005 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 29604 (E.D.N.Y. 2005).

Where plaintiff nurse's complaint alleged a whistleblower claim against defendant healthcare facility pursuant to N.Y. Lab. Law § 740, as well as New York State and federal discrimination claims on account of plaintiff's alleged disabilities under N.Y. Exec. Law § 290 and 42 U.S.C.S. § 12101, because the anti-discrimination statutes sought to protect against wrongs completely separate from those sought to be protected by § 740, there was no waiver of any such claims. Barker v Peconic Landing at Southold, Inc., 885 F. Supp. 2d 564, 2012 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 105988 (E.D.N.Y. 2012).

Former employee's FMLA and intentional infliction of emotional distress (IIED) claims were not barred by his filing of a claim under New York's Whistleblower Act because under the Act's waiver provision, the issue was whether the employee's additional claims protected against the same wrong that was prohibited by the Act, and the employee's FMLA and IIED claims were not related to his reporting of the employer's alleged violations of the law under the Act. Barber v Von Roll U.S.A., Inc., 2015 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 112198 (N.D.N.Y. Aug. 25, 2015).

Where an employee filed a claim under New York's Whistleblower Act, a determination of whether an employee's additional employment discrimination claims were barred by the Act's election of remedies provision was determined by looking at whether the employee's additional claims protected against the same wrong that was prohibited by the Act. Barber v Von Roll U.S.A., Inc., 2015 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 112198 (N.D.N.Y. Aug. 25, 2015).

4. Requirement that employer commit "violation of law"

Court properly dismissed action under "whistleblowers' statute" (CLS Labor § 740) alleging that plaintiff was discharged in retaliation for reporting to Department of Energy (DOE) that several of his coworkers might have been exposed to radiation levels sufficient to trigger DOE's mandatory reporting requirements, where employer did not actually violate any law, rule or regulation affecting public health and safety. Bordell v GE, 88 N.Y.2d 869, 644 N.Y.S.2d 912, 667 N.E.2d 922, 1996 N.Y. LEXIS 693 (N.Y. 1996).

Former employee, who was the chief operating officer (COO) of a non-profit corporation, sufficiently stated a claim under the whistleblower statute because the complaint asserted the COO was terminated after sanctions and violations were issued against the non-profit by public bodies as a result of her reports of the non-profit's policies and practices; for pleading purposes, the complaint did not have to identify the specific "law, rule, or regulation" the non-profit allegedly violated. Webb-Weber v Community Action for Human Servs., Inc., 23 N.Y.3d 448, 992 N.Y.S.2d 163, 15 N.E.3d 1172, 2014 N.Y. LEXIS 1049 (N.Y. 2014).

In action pursuant to Whistleblower Law brought by coordinator of employment services who claimed that she was discharged because of her objection to, and refusal to participate in, her employer's alleged fraudulent billing of city for placements it never made, complaint met requirement of alleging violation of law since it set forth facts which, if established, would constitute crime of larceny. Remba v Federation Employment & Guidance Service, 149 A.D.2d 131, 545 N.Y.S.2d 140, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10871 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1989), aff'd, 76 N.Y.2d 801, 559 N.Y.S.2d 961, 559 N.E.2d 655, 1990 N.Y. LEXIS 1460 (N.Y. 1990).

Under CLS Labor § 740, employee's mere good-faith reasonable belief that activity, policy, or practice of employer is in violation of law, rule, or regulation is insufficient; statute requires proof of actual violation of law, rule, or regulation. Bordell v General Elec. Co., 208 A.D.2d 219, 622 N.Y.S.2d 1001, 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2376 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't), app. dismissed, 85 N.Y.2d 1032, 631 N.Y.S.2d 290, 655 N.E.2d 403, 1995 N.Y. LEXIS 2177 (N.Y. 1995), aff'd, 88 N.Y.2d 869, 644 N.Y.S.2d 912, 667 N.E.2d 922, 1996 N.Y. LEXIS 693 (N.Y. 1996).

Plaintiffs, who were discharged from their employment as armed guards for refusing to work with pistol permits which they believed to be invalid in Suffolk County, failed to state action under CLS Labor § 740 based on allegation that they were informed that their permits were invalid because their employer had moved its base of operations from Nassau to Suffolk County, since CLS Penal § 400.00(6) provides that license to carry or possess pistol or revolver shall be effective "throughout the state." Hughes v Gibson Courier Servs. Corp., 218 A.D.2d 684, 630 N.Y.S.2d 552, 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8709 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1995).

Without authorization from legislature, scope of "whistleblower law" (CLS Labor § 740) cannot be expanded to provide remedy to employees who merely allege perceived or implied threats to disclose activity, policy or practice of employer that is in violation of law, rule, or regulation. Roach v Computer Assocs. Int'l, 224 A.D.2d 676, 638 N.Y.S.2d 699, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1884 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1996).

Former employee, who enrolled her children in employer's day care center, failed to state action for violation of "whistleblower law" (CLS Labor § 740) where employee alleged no actual disclosure of and no threat to disclose any violations occurring in day care center to supervisor or public body. Roach v Computer Assocs. Int'l, 224 A.D.2d 676, 638 N.Y.S.2d 699, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1884 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1996).

Plaintiff must show actual violation of law to sustain action under CLS Labor § 740, not merely that employee had reasonable belief that law, rule, or regulation had been violated. Green v Saratoga A.R.C., 233 A.D.2d 821, 650 N.Y.S.2d 441, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12178 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1996).

The trial court erred in denying a university's summary judgment motion in plaintiff's N.Y. Labor Law § 740 action, sometimes know as the whistleblower's law, because the university established that during the period relevant to the plaintiff's complaints of unsafe conditions, the university's laboratories were not found to be in violation of any safety or health standards promulgated under the United States Occupational Safety and Health Act of 1970, or any regulations promulgated by the Department of Labor, and the plaintiff failed to allege an actual violation of any specific law, rule, or regulation in his complaint. Khan v State Univ. of N.Y. Health Sci. Ctr., 288 A.D.2d 350, 734 N.Y.S.2d 92, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11265 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2001).

Employers were entitled to summary judgment on the employee's N.Y. Lab. Law § 740 whistle blower cause of action; the employee failed to raise a triable issue of fact to refute the prima facie showing by the employers that they did not engage in any activity or practice that constituted an actual violation of a law, rule, or regulation. Mazzacone v Corlies Assoc., 21 A.D.3d 1066, 802 N.Y.S.2d 182, 2005 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9551 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2005).

Nurse manager failed to submit sufficient evidence of an actual violation of law to entitle her to judgment as a matter of law on her N.Y. Lab. Law § 740 cause of action as an investigation of the state department of health regarding the nurse manager's claims that surgical instruments were not properly sterilized resulted in a finding that the former employer had not violated any applicable regulation. Berde v North Shore-Long Is. Jewish Health Sys., Inc., 50 A.D.3d 834, 855 N.Y.S.2d 656, 2008 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3388 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2008).

Dismissal of a physician's cause of action alleging wrongful employment termination in violation of N.Y. Lab. Law § 740 was proper because the physician failed to allege an activity or practice of the employer which violated a law, rule, or regulation with the requisite particularity and specificity necessary to support that claim. Deshpande v TJH Med. Servs., P.C., 52 A.D.3d 648, 861 N.Y.S.2d 697, 2008 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5563 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2008), app. denied, 12 N.Y.3d 704, 879 N.Y.S.2d 50, 906 N.E.2d 1084, 2009 N.Y. LEXIS 293 (N.Y. 2009), overruled in part, Webb-Weber v Community Action for Human Servs., Inc., 23 N.Y.3d 448, 992 N.Y.S.2d 163, 15 N.E.3d 1172, 2014 N.Y. LEXIS 1049 (N.Y. 2014).

Defendant established its entitlement to judgment as a matter of law on the causes of action asserted pursuant to the whistleblower statute by demonstrating that neither plaintiff's communications involved actual violations of law or regulation; expert testimony was necessary to establish the levels of formaldehyde the aroma encapsulate was capable of releasing, and plaintiff was not qualified to render such an opinion. Kamdem-Ouaffo v Pepsico, Inc., 133 A.D.3d 825, 21 N.Y.S.3d 150, 2015 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8790 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2015), app. denied, 27 N.Y.3d 902, 51 N.E.3d 565, 32 N.Y.S.3d 54, 2016 N.Y. LEXIS 740 (N.Y. 2016).

Mere belief by employee that violation of law, rule or regulation has occurred is not sufficient to invoke protection of CLS Labor § 740(2)(a). Kern v De Paul Mental Health Services, Inc., 139 Misc. 2d 970, 529 N.Y.S.2d 265, 1988 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 296 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1988), aff'd, 152 A.D.2d 957, 544 N.Y.S.2d 252, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9848 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1989).

Violation of "law, rule or regulation," as used in CLS Labor § 740, is not limited to violation of criminal nature, but also includes violations of civil statutes and regulations since terms "rule" and "regulation" are not usually used to refer to criminal statutes but, in their ordinary meaning, relate to administrative rules or regulations. Vella v United Cerebral Palsy, Inc., 141 Misc. 2d 976, 535 N.Y.S.2d 292, 1988 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 725 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1988).

Former employee's motion for leave to replead under N.Y. C.P.L.R. 3211(e) was properly denied, as the employee failed to set forth good ground to support a N.Y. Lab. Law § 740 cause of action; the employee failed to allege an actual violation of a regulation, as the employers never implemented the revised plan that allegedly would have violated the regulation. Nadkarni v N. Shore-Long Island Jewish Health Sys., 21 A.D.3d 354, 799 N.Y.S.2d 574, 2005 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8237 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2005).

Employee's complaint alleging violations of N.Y. Labor Law § 740 by an employer and the employer's executives was dismissed because, other than a conclusory allegation that an executive was not allowed to engage in nepotism, under "Head Start Law," the complaint (1) cited no law, rule, or regulation allegedly actually violated, and (2) made no allegation that the employer's or executives' conduct was a substantial and specific danger to the public health or safety, as the complained of conduct related mainly to alleged financial improprieties. Klein v Metropolitan Child Servs., Inc., 100 A.D.3d 708, 954 N.Y.S.2d 559, 2012 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7608 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2012).

Current and former employees of automobile component manufacturer stated cause of action under CLS Labor § 740 ("whistleblower statute") by alleging that employer violated provisions of National Traffic and Motor Vehicle Safety Act governing defects and noncompliance in automobile components and notification of defects and noncompliance (49 USCS §§ 30116 and 30118) with respect to systematic defects in vehicle components known as "Carter RFI Module" and "Ford ISO Relay". Clarke v TRW, Inc., 921 F. Supp. 927, 1996 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 4659 (N.D.N.Y. 1996).

Current and former employees of automobile component manufacturer did not state cause of action under CLS Labor § 740 ("whistleblower statute") for reporting that employer's practices violated regulations promulgated under federal National Traffic and Motor Vehicle Safety Act statutes where regulations relied on applied to finished vehicles only, not component parts. Clarke v TRW, Inc., 921 F. Supp. 927, 1996 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 4659 (N.D.N.Y. 1996).

Nurses employed by private entity, who claimed that they were fired for speaking out about operation of county mental health department, but not for any criticism of their own employer, failed to state claim under Labor § 740. Berweger v County of Orange, 121 F. Supp. 2d 334, 2000 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 16616 (S.D.N.Y. 2000).

5. Requirement of danger to public health or safety

CLS Labor § 740(2)(c), like CLS Labor § 740(2)(a), is triggered only by violation of law, rule, or regulation that creates and presents substantial and specific danger to public health and safety; fraudulent billing practices was not type of violation contemplated by statute. Remba v Federation Employment & Guidance Serv., 76 N.Y.2d 801, 559 N.Y.S.2d 961, 559 N.E.2d 655, 1990 N.Y. LEXIS 1460 (N.Y. 1990).

Whistleblower Law requires that there be not only actual, as opposed to possible, violation of law, but also that there be actual and substantial present danger to public health; reasonable belief as basis for protection under statute will not suffice. Remba v Federation Employment & Guidance Service, 149 A.D.2d 131, 545 N.Y.S.2d 140, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10871 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1989), aff'd, 76 N.Y.2d 801, 559 N.Y.S.2d 961, 559 N.E.2d 655, 1990 N.Y. LEXIS 1460 (N.Y. 1990).

Both subdivisions (2)(a) and (c) of CLS § 740 require that violation of law create and present substantial and specific danger to public health or safety, even though only subdivision (2)(a) has specific language that so states, since legislature's manifest intent and ordinary principles of statutory construction mandate similar conclusion with regard to subdivision (2)(c). Remba v Federation Employment & Guidance Service, 149 A.D.2d 131, 545 N.Y.S.2d 140, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10871 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1989), aff'd, 76 N.Y.2d 801, 559 N.Y.S.2d 961, 559 N.E.2d 655, 1990 N.Y. LEXIS 1460 (N.Y. 1990).

Plaintiff's claim under "whistleblower statute," CLS Labor § 740, was properly dismissed where defendant's alleged illegalities consisted of neglect of certain patient, failure to report incident of patient neglect, improper deletion of entry concerning such incident, and improper attempt to persuade plaintiff to change her entry to delete reference to incident; while such illegalities may have presented danger to individual patient, they did not create substantial and specific danger to public health and safety. Kern v De Paul Mental Health Servs., 152 A.D.2d 957, 544 N.Y.S.2d 252, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9848 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't), app. denied, 74 N.Y.2d 615, 549 N.Y.S.2d 960, 549 N.E.2d 151, 1989 N.Y. LEXIS 3200 (N.Y. 1989).

Employee failed to state cause of action under whistleblower's statute, CLS Labor § 740, based on allegations that he was wrongfully discharged due to his discovery of and refusal to participate in fiscal "improprieties" of employer, since allegations of fiscal improprieties did not portend substantial and specific danger to public health or safety. Lamagna v New York State Ass'n for Help of Retarded Children, Inc., 158 A.D.2d 588, 551 N.Y.S.2d 556, 1990 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1973 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1990).

Evidence established violation of CLS Labor § 740 where plaintiff was discharged as vice-president of nursing after she reported that attending physician failed to properly perform and document bronchoscopic procedures on several patients, or failed to obtain appropriate informed consents from patients, thereby violating 10 NYCRR §§ 405.7(b)(9) and 405.10, which created substantial and specific danger to public health and safety. Kraus v New Rochelle Hosp. Medical Ctr., 216 A.D.2d 360, 628 N.Y.S.2d 360, 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6175 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't), app. dismissed, 86 N.Y.2d 885, 635 N.Y.S.2d 950, 659 N.E.2d 773, 1995 N.Y. LEXIS 4393 (N.Y. 1995).

Defendant, intermediate care facility for developmentally disabled clients, was properly granted summary judgment in action brought under CLS Labor § 740(2), even if defendant violated its own personnel policy or 14 NYCRR § 633.7 requiring implementation of that policy, where plaintiff failed to show that alleged violation threatened health or safety of public-at-large, notwithstanding that alleged misconduct may have posed danger to certain individual residents of facility. Green v Saratoga A.R.C., 233 A.D.2d 821, 650 N.Y.S.2d 441, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12178 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1996).

Defendants were entitled to partial summary judgment dismissing cause of action for violation of CLS Labor § 740 where plaintiff failed to show that defendants' allegedly unlawful billing practices "create[d] and present[ed] a substantial and specific danger to the public health or safety" under CLS Labor § 740(2)(a). Smith v Angel Guardian Home, 263 A.D.2d 476, 692 N.Y.S.2d 724, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7881 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1999).

Trial court erred in denying the health care corporation's and medical center's motion to dismiss the claimant's N.Y. Lab. Law § 740(4) action against them, as the claimant did not alleged that their conduct created a substantial and specific danger to public health, as was required. Pipia v Nassau County, 34 A.D.3d 664, 826 N.Y.S.2d 318, 2006 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13868 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2006).

In action brought against mental health facility under CLS Labor § 740 for retaliatory discharge following employee's disclosure of what she thought was nonconsensual sexual activity between male and female residents, facility was entitled to summary judgment to dismiss where (1) employee admitted during examination before trial that she did not know whether activity she observed was nonconsensual but had merely assumed such was true from female resident's disability, (2) all credible evidence indicated that sexual contacts in question were in fact consensual despite female resident's limitations, and (3) even if consensual sexual intercourse violated in-house rules and regulations, such violation could not be said to create substantial and specific danger to public health or safety. Kern v De Paul Mental Health Services, Inc., 139 Misc. 2d 970, 529 N.Y.S.2d 265, 1988 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 296 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1988), aff'd, 152 A.D.2d 957, 544 N.Y.S.2d 252, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9848 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1989).

Employee established prima facie case of retaliatory action under CLS Labor § 740 based on her termination from employment for "excessive absenteeism" during 3-month probationary period after she filed complaint with county health officials concerning employer's failure to maintain smoke-free work area for nonsmoking employees, since exposure of office employees to secondhand smoke constitutes substantial and specific danger to public health or safety within meaning of statute, especially given CLS Pub Health § 1399-o, and county laws, regulating smoking in workplace. Bompane v Enzolabs, Inc., 160 Misc. 2d 315, 608 N.Y.S.2d 989, 1994 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 58 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1994).

Application of CLS Labor § 740 is not limited to situations where unsafe practice or condition complained of poses large-scale threat to public at large; anything causing risk to workers who are part of public can constitute legal infraction making statute applicable. Bompane v Enzolabs, Inc., 160 Misc. 2d 315, 608 N.Y.S.2d 989, 1994 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 58 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1994).

Employee's sworn statements as to his observations of dangerous unlawful conditions, including absence of fire exit signs, was sufficient showing of violations which presented actual and substantial present danger to public health to support action under CLS Labor § 740; purpose of § 740 is not served by requiring employees with personal knowledge of obviously dangerous unlawful conditions to submit additional proof of existence of conditions to state cause of action under § 740. Granser v Box Tree S., 164 Misc. 2d 191, 623 N.Y.S.2d 977, 1994 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 651 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1994).

Employee whose employer allegedly fired him for accepting elective position as mayor could not maintain action under CLS Labor § 740 (whistleblower law), since § 740 is limited to matters involving health or safety hazards. Ribando v Silhouette Optical, 871 F. Supp. 675, 1994 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 18713 (S.D.N.Y. 1994).

When a pharmacist with an ownership interest in a healthcare company could return to work after surgery, and the company's president refused to permit him to return full-time, causing him to resign, his discrimination and retaliation claims could proceed against the president because employees could sue individuals for alleged discrimination if they had an ownership interest or the power to do more than carry out personnel decisions made by others where the discrimination occurred. When a pharmacist with an ownership interest in a healthcare company could return to work after surgery, and the company's president refused to permit him to return full-time, causing him to resign, his discrimination and retaliation claims could proceed against the president because employees could sue individuals for alleged discrimination if they had an ownership interest or the power to do more than carry out personnel decisions made by others where the discrimination occurred. Magnotti v Crossroads Healthcare Mgmt., LLC, 126 F. Supp. 3d 301, 2015 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 118194 (E.D.N.Y. 2015)

When a pharmacist with an ownership interest in a healthcare company could return to work after surgery, and the company's president refused to permit him to return full-time, causing him to resign, the failure to employ a full-time supervising pharmacist did not present a substantial and specific danger to the public health or safety, and since the pharmacist alleged no inherent danger or actual adverse consequences from the company's actions, he did not state a whistleblower claim. Magnotti v Crossroads Healthcare Mgmt., LLC, 126 F. Supp. 3d 301, 2015 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 118194 (E.D.N.Y. 2015).

Employer's alleged overbilling of customers and irregular business practices did not constitute danger to public health and safety, and, thus, employee who was allegedly discharged for objecting to employer's improper activities was not protected by Labor § 740(2)(a). Schultz v North Am. Ins. Group, 34 F. Supp. 2d 866, 1999 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 1410 (W.D.N.Y. 1999).

6. —Sufficiency of complaint

In action pursuant to Whistleblower Law brought by coordinator of employment services who claimed that she was discharged because of her objection to, and refusal to participate in, her employer's alleged fraudulent billing of city for placements it never made, complaint failed to meet requirement that it allege violation of law which would create and present substantial and specific danger to public health or safety. Remba v Federation Employment & Guidance Service, 149 A.D.2d 131, 545 N.Y.S.2d 140, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10871 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1989), aff'd, 76 N.Y.2d 801, 559 N.Y.S.2d 961, 559 N.E.2d 655, 1990 N.Y. LEXIS 1460 (N.Y. 1990).

Employee failed to state cause of action under CLS Labor § 740 (so-called "Whistleblowers' Statute") despite her allegation that she was terminated from employment in retaliation for disclosing allegedly illegal acts of her supervisors, since there was no allegation that reported unlawful activity represented "substantial and specific danger to public health or safety." Leibowitz v Bank Leumi Trust Co., 152 A.D.2d 169, 548 N.Y.S.2d 513, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 15216 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1989).

Employee's allegations of retaliation did not support claim under CLS Labor § 740(2)(a) where employee merely reported theft by coemployee and did not "blow the whistle" on any improper policy or practice of employer that posed any threat to health or safety of public. Gorgone v Capozzi, 238 A.D.2d 308, 656 N.Y.S.2d 49, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3388 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1997), app. denied, 95 N.Y.2d 767, 717 N.Y.S.2d 547, 740 N.E.2d 653, 2000 N.Y. LEXIS 3510 (N.Y. 2000).

Former employee's counterclaim against former employer for retaliation in violation of CLS Labor § 740 failed to state cause of action where (1) employee claimed that he was fired because he filed complaint with National Labor Relations Board accusing his union of failing to negotiate over workers' compensation pilot program and that such failure violated unspecified law, and (2) even if union's failure to negotiate matter that should have been subject of collective bargaining were statutory or regulatory violation by employer, alleged wrongdoing did not pose "a substantial and specific danger to the public health or safety" under CLS Labor § 740(2)(a). Vail-Ballou Press, Inc. v Tomasky, 266 A.D.2d 662, 698 N.Y.S.2d 98, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11400 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1999).

Trial court erred in denying the motion to dismiss filed by the health care corporation and the medical center in a case where the claimant alleged that their termination of his employment violated N.Y. Lab. Law § 740(2); he was required to allege that the conduct of which he complained created a substantial and specific danger to the public health, and, instead, he asserted that they violated the law through their allegedly improper and corrupt purchasing practices. Pipia v Nassau County, 34 A.D.3d 664, 826 N.Y.S.2d 318, 2006 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13868 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2006).

Because the practices about which an employee complained related to the privacy of confidential information, they did not threaten public health and safety; accordingly, they did not sustain a cause of action under N.Y. Lab. Law § 740. Tomo v Episcopal Health Servs., Inc., 85 A.D.3d 766, 925 N.Y.S.2d 563, 2011 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4946 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2011).

In an action to recover damages for retaliatory personnel action, defendants' motion to dismiss the complaint was improperly granted as the complaint sufficiently stated a cause of action because it alleged that plaintiff was offered a promotion at a care facility; that she pointed out that she would be under the supervision of an individual who was not authorized to supervise her; that, after she declined to accept the promotion, she was discharged from her position as head of nursing, and another nurse was given the position that plaintiff had turned down; and that supervision of a nurse in clinical activities by an unauthorized person would, under the circumstances alleged, cause a substantial and specific danger to public health. Fough v August Aichhorn Ctr. for Adolescent Residential Care, Inc., 139 A.D.3d 665, 30 N.Y.S.3d 677, 2016 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3408 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2016).

Trial court properly granted an employer's motion to dismiss an employee's action to recover damages for violations of the Labor Law because the violations complained of did not create and present a substantial and specific danger to the public health or safety where the employee alleged that the employer retaliated against him when he alerted his supervisors about violations of laws and regulations relating to obtaining a custom broker's license under federal law and regulations, and the employer's alleged violation of one Labor Law section could not form the basis for a violation of the other section. Starikov v CEVA Frgt., LLC, 153 A.D.3d 1377, 61 N.Y.S.3d 311, 2017 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6553 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2017).

Supreme court properly granted an employer's motion to dismiss an employee's action alleging a violation of the whistleblower statute because the complaint failed to allege any substantial and specific danger to the public health or safety resulting from a violation. Coyle v College of Westchester, Inc., 166 A.D.3d 722, 87 N.Y.S.3d 242, 2018 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7676 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2018).

Supreme court providently exercised its discretion in denying an employee's motion for leave to renew her opposition to an employer's motion to dismiss the cause of action alleging a violation of the statute because the new evidence the employee tendered would not change the prior determination to grant the employer's motion to dismiss. Coyle v College of Westchester, Inc., 166 A.D.3d 722, 87 N.Y.S.3d 242, 2018 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7676 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2018).

In action for damages for retaliatory discharge brought under Whistleblower law, defendant employer was entitled to dismissal of complaint for failure to state cause of action where complaint alleged wrongful payments and overpayments to vendor of plumbing fixtures but failed to allege that such payments created substantial and specific damage to public health. Vella v United Cerebral Palsy, Inc., 141 Misc. 2d 976, 535 N.Y.S.2d 292, 1988 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 725 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1988).

Former law firm associate, allegedly terminated for insisting that activities of fellow associate be reported to disciplinary committee, failed to state cause of action for wrongful discharge under CLS Labor § 740 since he had not asserted violation thereof in his pleading, and in any event alleged refusal to report associate did not constitute statutorily required activity, policy or practice of employer presenting substantial and specific danger to public health or safety. Wieder v Skala, 144 Misc. 2d 346, 544 N.Y.S.2d 971, 1989 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 495 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1989), aff'd, 167 A.D.2d 265, 562 N.Y.S.2d 930, 1990 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 14247 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1990).

Employer was entitled to dismissal of action for alleged violation of CLS Labor § 740 (Whistleblower Law) wherein plaintiff asserted that she was fired because she refused to accept blame for falsifying medical records of certain patient, as case arose out of plaintiff's effort to protect her own nursing license and reputation, not to protect public. Paul v Aurora Med. Group, P.C., 176 Misc. 2d 11, 670 N.Y.S.2d 747, 1998 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 76 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1998).

Defendant health care facility was entitled to summary judgment on CLS Labor § 740 retaliatory discharge claim asserted by plaintiff whose medical privileges were terminated after he failed to follow allegedly unlawful directions not to bill families of residents for services covered by Medicare, where there was no evidence that defendant controlled and directed care and treatment provided to residents by plaintiff, plaintiff never received any remuneration or other benefit from defendant, and there was no evidence of written employment contract between plaintiff and defendant; furthermore, defendant's alleged bill collection direction did not constitute actual "violation of law, rule or regulation" and, even if it did, it did not present "substantial and specific danger" to public health and safety. Rotwein v Sunharbor Manor Residential Health Care Facility, 181 Misc. 2d 847, 695 N.Y.S.2d 477, 1999 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 333 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1999).

Because a client pleaded sufficient facts establishing an attorney-client relationship and breach of the attendant duties, including, a lost right of recovery under N.Y. Lab. Law § 740, there was no basis to dismiss the client's legal malpractice action against an attorney under N.Y. C.P.L.R. 3211(a)(7), (1). Hayes v Bello, 881 N.Y.S.2d 609, 23 Misc. 3d 534, 2009 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 286 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 2009).

Trial court properly granted summary judgment pursuant to N.Y. C.P.L.R. 3212 to a health care company in an employee's wrongful termination action; the alleged misconduct reported by the employee, co-worker's failure to perform medical tests, was not sufficiently harmful to warrant protection under a whistleblower act, N.Y. Lab. Law § 740(2)(a), as the patient suffered no serious adverse consequences, and therefore the alleged misconduct did not establish the requisite threat to public health and safety. Peace v KRNH, Inc., 12 A.D.3d 914, 785 N.Y.S.2d 547, 2004 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13798 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2004), app. denied, 4 N.Y.3d 705, 792 N.Y.S.2d 898, 825 N.E.2d 1093, 2005 N.Y. LEXIS 155 (N.Y. 2005).

Proposed complaint alleging cause of action under CLS Labor Law § 740 based upon violation of federal motor vehicle safety statutes as predicate acts will not be dismissed, because allegations of systematic defects in manufacture of both fuel outlet nozzle modules and electro-mechanical relay switches are sufficiently related to motor vehicle safety to plead violations of statutes, and allegations that violations could lead to gasoline fires and loss of vehicle brake control provide element of specific and substantial risk to public health and safety. Clarke v TRW, Inc., 921 F. Supp. 927, 1996 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 4659 (N.D.N.Y. 1996).

Former employer correctly contended that the employee's complaint failed to state a claim upon which relief could be granted because N.Y. Lab. Law § 740 was triggered only by a violation of a law, rule, or regulation that created and presented a substantial and specific danger to the public health and safety; the complaint alleged that the employee was retaliated against for asserting his right to engage in union activities, but he did not allege that the employer violated any law, rule, or regulation designed to protect public health or safety, or that the employer's retaliation against him posed such a threat. Therefore, the employer was entitled to summary judgment on the § 740 claim. Rohlehr v Brookdale Univ. Hosp. & Med. Ctr., 390 F. Supp. 2d 207, 2005 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 29604 (E.D.N.Y. 2005).

Medical center's motion for summary judgment on the doctor's whistleblower claim under New York's Whistleblower law, N.Y. Lab. Law § 740 where the doctor made a number of complaints to his supervisors, if it was true that the loading dock was set up that all incoming and outgoing materials entered and exited through the same loading dock, which was never cleaned, it was clear that the conditions of the loading dock violated N.Y. Comp. Codes R. & Regs. tit. 14, § 1.1 et seq., and hospital food passing through a loading dock allegedly covered with rodents, toxins, and human waste raised a substantial and specific danger to public health and safety. Calabro v Nassau Univ. Med. Ctr., 424 F. Supp. 2d 465, 2006 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 24069 (E.D.N.Y. 2006).

Plaintiff nurse's allegations regarding drug use and theft by defendant healthcare facility's staff were sufficient to state a claim that plaintiff reported conduct under N.Y. Lab. Law § 740(2)(a) that was in actual violation of law, and which presented a substantial threat to public health or safety. Barker v Peconic Landing at Southold, Inc., 885 F. Supp. 2d 564, 2012 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 105988 (E.D.N.Y. 2012).

Former employee did not state a violation of New York's Whistleblower Act because his allegations indicated only that a coworker made verbal threats to other coworkers and displayed inappropriate images and ammunition on his desk, but the coworker's conduct, while inappropriate and harassing to his coworkers, simply did not rise to the level of danger to public health and safety required by the statute Barber v Von Roll U.S.A., Inc., 2015 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 112198 (N.D.N.Y. Aug. 25, 2015).

Former employee, who contacted department of labor with complaints about his wages, including complaints that paychecks bounced and that certain deductions, such as union dues and court ordered spousal support, could not maintain suit because wage-and-hour practices he reported did not present substantial and specific danger to the public health or safety. Humphrey v RAV Investigative & Sec. Servs., 169 F. Supp. 3d 489, 2016 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 31780 (S.D.N.Y. 2016).

7. Requirement that employee report danger

Trial court properly dismissed a director's Labor Law causes of action against a corporation because the allegations were insufficient to establish that the director was an employee of the corporation as defined in N.Y. Lab. Law § 740(1)(a), and, moreover, the complaint, which claimed that the corporation retaliated against the director after he insisted that certain documents filed with the Securities and Exchange Commission be corrected, did not allege a violation which would threaten the health or safety of the public at large; since the director asserted causes of action pursuant to § 740, he waived other causes of action relating to the alleged retaliatory action. The trial court properly denied that branch of the corporation's motion which was for an attorney's fee. Garner v China Natural Gas, Inc., 71 A.D.3d 825, 898 N.Y.S.2d 49, 2010 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2028 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't), app. denied, 15 N.Y.3d 703, 906 N.Y.S.2d 816, 933 N.E.2d 215, 2010 N.Y. LEXIS 1372 (N.Y. 2010).

Former employee's complaint sufficiently stated a claim for wrongful termination under N.Y. Lab. Law § 740 under circumstances in which the former employee alleged that the former employer terminated her employment in retaliation for her report of suspected child abuse which, she argued, fulfilled her reporting obligations under N.Y. Soc. Serv. Law § 413; the parties in this case had a legal duty under § 413 to report the suspected child abuse or maltreatment committed by a third party and there was no requirement that there be a large-scale threat, or multiple potential or actual victims for purposes of a protected activity in a wrongful termination claim under § 740. The former employee's allegation that the former employer actively discouraged the reporting of suspected child abuse or maltreatment was sufficient to state a claim under § 740(2), as the alleged inaction might have resulted in further abuse or maltreatment. Villarin v Rabbi Haskel Lookstein School, 96 A.D.3d 1, 942 N.Y.S.2d 67, 2012 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2633 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2012).

Former employee has 45 days to supplement his pleadings to attempt to state claim, where defendant magazine hired him as fraud investigator, but allegedly prevented him from pursuing various reports of financial wrongdoing in ways he thought were appropriate and fired him for continuing to raise issue, and employee hints that information he possesses that was somehow suppressed suggests risks involving food products arising form improper behavior on part of magazine, because employee's reliance on state "whistle blower" statute, NYCLS Labor Law § 740, must fail unless he can show that he reported or wished to report substantial and specific danger to public health or safety. McGrane v Reader's Digest Ass'n, 822 F. Supp. 1044, 1993 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 7133 (S.D.N.Y. 1993).

Claim of former fraud investigator against former employer, alleging violation of whistle blower statute, is dismissed, where plaintiff alleged he was forced to resign for attempting to pursue various reports of financial wrongdoing and assertedly hazardous behavior, because plaintiff failed to provide evidence of specific reports made by him personally and communicated to others, for which he may have been penalized, concerning any substantial and specific danger to public health or safety. McGrane v Reader's Digest Ass'n, 863 F. Supp. 183, 1994 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 14253 (S.D.N.Y. 1994), aff'd, 60 F.3d 811, 1995 U.S. App. LEXIS 20330 (2d Cir. N.Y. 1995).

Auditor/fraud investigator, who allegedly was forced to resign for attempting to pursue various reports of financial wrongdoing, could not maintain action under "whistle blower" statute (CLS Labor § 740) where he failed to provide evidence of specific reports made by him personally, for which he may have been penalized, concerning substantial and specific danger to public health or safety; while such reports in written form are not required by statute, it was implausible that plaintiff should have retained no copies of letters or memoranda sent by him to anyone, claiming that substantial specific health or safety hazards existed requiring urgent action. McGrane v Reader's Digest Ass'n, 863 F. Supp. 183, 1994 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 14253 (S.D.N.Y. 1994), aff'd, 60 F.3d 811, 1995 U.S. App. LEXIS 20330 (2d Cir. N.Y. 1995).

8. What constitutes "retaliatory" action

County board's meeting to consider plaintiff's termination from his position as county manager did not constitute adverse personnel action under CLS Labor § 740 or CLS Civ S § 75-b where no official action was taken as to plaintiff's position at such meeting, even if statements made by elected supervisor at meeting created impression that plaintiff would not be reappointed. Higgs v County of Essex, 232 A.D.2d 815, 648 N.Y.S.2d 787, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10542 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1996).

Neither CLS Labor § 740 nor CLS Civ S § 75-b provide remedy to employees to merely allege perceived or implied threats. Higgs v County of Essex, 232 A.D.2d 815, 648 N.Y.S.2d 787, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10542 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1996).

Employer's decision to transfer assistant store manager to different store, with no apparent loss of wages or benefits, was not "retaliatory personnel action" under CLS Labor § 740(1)(e), absent any identifiable right of assistant manager to work in store of his choice. Gorgone v Capozzi, 238 A.D.2d 308, 656 N.Y.S.2d 49, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3388 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1997), app. denied, 95 N.Y.2d 767, 717 N.Y.S.2d 547, 740 N.E.2d 653, 2000 N.Y. LEXIS 3510 (N.Y. 2000).

Allegation that county personnel officials took extraordinary measures to preclude police sergeant's appointment as lieutenant during life of preferred eligible list, until its expiration by operation of law, sufficiently alleged retaliatory action in violation of CLS Labor § 740(1)(e) and CLS Civ S § 75-b(1)(d) and (2)(a). Dobson v Loos, 277 A.D.2d 1013, 716 N.Y.S.2d 220, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11441 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 2000).

Fact that no enforcement action was taken against employer as result of employee's report to authorities has no bearing on whether employee's dismissal for making report is remediable under CLS Labor § 740. Bompane v Enzolabs, Inc., 160 Misc. 2d 315, 608 N.Y.S.2d 989, 1994 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 58 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1994).

Owner of hotel-restaurant business was not entitled to summary judgment in action alleging violation of CLS Labor § 740 where fact issue existed as to whether plaintiff, or reasonable person in his position, would find demotion from manager to chef so intolerable as to constitute constructive discharge. Granser v Box Tree S., 164 Misc. 2d 191, 623 N.Y.S.2d 977, 1994 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 651 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1994).

Plaintiff stated cause of action for constructive discharge under CLS Labor § 740 based on his alleged retaliatory demotion from general manager to chef, causing him to leave his position, after he threatened to disclose various health and safety violations to municipal authorities. Granser v Box Tree S., 164 Misc. 2d 191, 623 N.Y.S.2d 977, 1994 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 651 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1994).

Trial court erred in denying an employer's summary judgment as to plaintiff's action under N.Y. Lab. Law § 740, because the employer established that plaintiff left his employment voluntarily, and that there was thus no retaliatory discharge of plaintiff based on alleged whistleblowing activity, and established that plaintiff failed to disclose, or threaten to disclose, the alleged illegal activity to a supervisor or public body prior to the end of the employment relationship, because the employer established that although plaintiff told a night dispatcher of the alleged illegal activity, the night dispatcher was not a supervisor. McNally v Swift Transp. Co., Inc., 35 A.D.3d 1238, 827 N.Y.S.2d 395, 2006 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 15503 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 2006).

Terminated coordinator's claims are not barred by Labor § 740(7), even though she previously settled case alleging employer fired her in retaliation for reporting illegal pharmaceutical contributions to accrediting agency, where current claims assert (1) retaliation for reporting discriminatory hiring practices, (2) disparate impact discrimination against non-Jewish job applicants, and (3) breach of employment contract regarding back pay and vacation, because § 740(7) waiver provision applies only to rights and remedies concerning whistleblowing as defined in § 740. Collette v St. Luke's Roosevelt Hosp., 132 F. Supp. 2d 256, 2001 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 1905 (S.D.N.Y. 2001).

9. Damages

Plaintiff who was discharged as vice-president of nursing in violation of CLS Labor § 740 should have been reinstated to her position; moreover, trial court's award of lost future earnings and fringe benefits was unauthorized by statute. *Kraus v New Rochelle Hosp. Medical Ctr., 216 A.D.2d 360, 628 N.Y.S.2d 360, 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6175 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't), app. dismissed, 86 N.Y.2d 885, 635 N.Y.S.2d 950, 659 N.E.2d 773, 1995 N.Y. LEXIS 4393 (N.Y. 1995).

Because a city and its supervisors offered no justification for the denial of predetermination interest in an employee's N.Y. Civ. Serv. Law § 75-b action, and because the record supported the employee's request for reinstatement, pursuant to N.Y. Lab. Law § 740(5) and N.Y. Civ. Serv. Law § 77, the trial court erred in failing to award them. Tipaldo v Lynn, 76 A.D.3d 477, 907 N.Y.S.2d 177, 2010 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6567 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2010), aff'd, 26 N.Y.3d 204, 42 N.E.3d 670, 21 N.Y.S.3d 173, 2015 N.Y. LEXIS 3505 (N.Y. 2015).

Punitive damages may not be recovered in action under CLS Labor § 740. Bompane v Enzolabs, Inc., 160 Misc. 2d 315, 608 N.Y.S.2d 989, 1994 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 58 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1994).

Punitive damages are not available under CLS Labor § 740. Granser v Box Tree S., 164 Misc. 2d 191, 623 N.Y.S.2d 977, 1994 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 651 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1994).

Defendants' request for attorneys' fees under N.Y. Labor Law § 740(6) was denied because there had been no discovery as to the nature of the plaintiff's claim. Reddington v Staten Island Univ. Hosp., 373 F. Supp. 2d 177, 2005 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 12029 (E.D.N.Y. 2005), aff'd, in part, 511 F.3d 126, 2007 U.S. App. LEXIS 28881 (2d Cir. N.Y. 2007).

10. Defenses and counterclaims

Plaintiff in action under Whistleblower Statute cannot recover if he is found to be accomplice in illegal acts of employer; thus, former employer was entitled to additional discovery with respect to whether plaintiff bore some responsibility for acts attributed to employer's former president which created substantial and specific risk of injury to general public and led to death of one individual. DaSilva v Clarkson Arms, Inc., 189 A.D.2d 619, 592 N.Y.S.2d 319, 1993 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 180 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1993).

Plaintiffs, who were discharged from their employment as armed guards for refusing to work with pistol permits which they believed were invalid, could not invoke doctrine of collateral estoppel to bar defendants from arguing that permits were valid because administrative law judge had previously determined, in context of unemployment benefits proceeding, they were not represented by counsel, and there was no indication that they were aware that unemployment benefits award might later be used in attempt to show liability in retaliatory discharge action. Hughes v Gibson Courier Servs. Corp., 218 A.D.2d 684, 630 N.Y.S.2d 552, 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8709 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1995).

In action for wrongful termination under CLS Labor § 740, inter alia, order denying defendant's motion to add counterclaims for breach of fiduciary duty and fraud except those based on plaintiff's alleged falsifications of his time records would be modified to allow allegations of false time records to proceed under counterclaim for fraud only. Rodgers v Lenox Hill Hosp., 239 A.D.2d 140, 657 N.Y.S.2d 616, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4643 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1997).

As New York did not recognize a tort for wrongful discharge from an employment at will and no discriminatory motive was alleged, an employee's only possibly viable claim alleging that the employee was wrongfully discharged because the employee would not commit unlawful and unethical acts was one for retaliatory discharge under N.Y. Lab. Law § 740; however, such a claim was time-barred under the one-year limitations period of § 740(4)(a). Russek v Dag Media, Inc., 47 A.D.3d 457, 851 N.Y.S.2d 399, 2008 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 327 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2008).

In action alleging termination in violation of whistleblowers' statute, CLS Labor § 740, counterclaim alleging that plaintiff breached fiduciary duty would be dismissed since defendant had previously moved to dismiss on ground (found to have merit) that federal agencies had exclusive jurisdiction over matter because it involved operation of nuclear research laboratory subject to federal regulations; defendant would not be permitted to reverse its position by asserting that state court was appropriate forum to initiate inquiry into issues presented by its counterclaim. Bordell v General Electric Co., 147 Misc. 2d 475, 556 N.Y.S.2d 234, 1990 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 281 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1990).

Employer's evidence of employee's alleged "pre-hire deceit" in stating in response to question on employment application relating to current employment "temp position" was no defense to action under CLS Labor § 740 since alleged misinformation supplied by employee was not material, was not made to induce employment, and was not relied on by employer in hiring her. Bompane v Enzolabs, Inc., 160 Misc. 2d 315, 608 N.Y.S.2d 989, 1994 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 58 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1994).

Absentee employer many not avoid liability under CLS Labor § 740 by delegating to its employee responsibility for enforcement of safety laws, nor would such delegation render employee "accomplice" in employer's failure to comply with law. Granser v Box Tree S., 164 Misc. 2d 191, 623 N.Y.S.2d 977, 1994 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 651 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1994).

There is no exception under CLS Labor § 740 for employees who may initially participate in alleged unlawful activity and then subsequently refuse to engage in such activities and seek protection of statute. Granser v Box Tree S., 164 Misc. 2d 191, 623 N.Y.S.2d 977, 1994 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 651 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1994).

11. Attorneys' fees

As an employee's complaint for retaliatory discharge and amended complaint for prima facie tort were time-barred and without basis in law and fact, it was proper to award an employer reasonable attorneys fees and costs under N.Y. Lab. Law § 740(6). Russek v Dag Media, Inc., 47 A.D.3d 457, 851 N.Y.S.2d 399, 2008 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 327 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2008).

Trial court erred in awarding an employer attorneys' fees and costs in an employee's action to recover damages for unlawful termination because her action could not reasonably be characterized as being without basis in law or in fact where, while the employer's evidence indicated that the employee had numerous conflicts with other hospital staff and failed to improve despite opportunities to do so, the employee's annual performance evaluations did not indicate a risk of dismissal until after she complained to upper management about ongoing sterility problems in the operating room. Berde v North Shore-Long Is. Jewish Health Sys., Inc., 162 A.D.3d 624, 78 N.Y.S.3d 402, 2018 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3962 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2018).

Notes to Unpublished Decisions

Analysis

1. Generally; procedural questions
2. Defenses and counterclaims

1. Generally; procedural questions

Unpublished decision: Complaint alleging retaliatory termination in violation of the whistleblower statute was barred by the one-year statute of limitations at N.Y. Lab. Law § 740(4)(a) because the employee's cause of action accrued on the day when he was notified of his suspension pending discharge; his notice of suspension and his ultimate discharge were properly viewed as one personnel action. Dykstra v Wyeth Pharms., Inc., 454 Fed. Appx. 20, 2012 U.S. App. LEXIS 141 (2d Cir. N.Y. 2012).

2. Defenses and counterclaims

Unpublished decision: Even though plaintiff employee may have been in contact with the EEOC prior to April 2003, he did not file any formal charge until that time, thus, all pre-June 2002 conduct by defendant employer was time-barred as to claims under Title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964, 42 U.S.C.S. § 2000e et seq., and N.Y. Lab. Law § 740. Antonmarchi v Consol. Edison Co. of N.Y., 514 Fed. Appx. 33, 2013 U.S. App. LEXIS 5164 (2d Cir. N.Y.), cert. denied, 571 U.S. 1098, 134 S. Ct. 790, 187 L. Ed. 2d 601, 2013 U.S. LEXIS 8982 (U.S. 2013).

HISTORY:
Add, L 1942, ch 424.

§ 2.00. Definitions

As used in this chapter:

1. The term "municipality" shall mean a county, city, town or village.

2. The term "school district" shall mean any school district, except the school districts of the cities of New York, Buffalo, Rochester, Syracuse and Yonkers.

2-a. The term "city school district" shall mean the city school district of a city having less than one hundred twenty-five thousand inhabitants, according to the latest federal census.

2-b. The term "school district in a city" shall mean any school district which is coterminous with, or partly within, or wholly within, a city having less than one hundred twenty-five thousand inhabitants, according to the latest federal census.

2-c. The term "board of cooperative educational services" shall mean any board of cooperative educational services, as defined in section nineteen hundred fifty of the education law, and such board shall, solely for the purpose of contracting indebtedness pursuant to section 25.00 of this chapter, be deemed to be a school district.

3. The term "district corporation" shall mean

(a) A fire district

(b) A river improvement, river regulating or drainage district established by or under the supervision of the department of conservation, or

(c) Any other territorial division of the state, other than a municipality or a school district, which as of December thirty-first, nineteen hundred thirty-eight, possessed the power to

(1) Contract indebtedness in its own name, and

(2) Levy taxes or benefit assessments upon real estate or require the levy of such taxes or assessments.

4. The term "finance board" shall mean

(a) In the case of counties, the board of supervisors.

(b) In the case of cities:

(1) The board of estimate, board of estimate and apportionment or board of estimate and contract in any city in which, as of the effective date of this chapter, such body had the power to authorize the issuance of bonds or notes without the approval, in any case, of the council, common council or board of aldermen.

(2) The council, common council or board of aldermen in any city in which, as of the effective date of this chapter, such body had the power to authorize the issuance of bonds or notes without the approval, in any case, of the board of estimate or board of estimate and apportionment or board of estimate and contract.

(3) The council, common council or board of aldermen and the board of estimate, board of estimate and apportionment or board of estimate and contract, in any city in which, as of the effective date of this chapter, the council, common council or board of aldermen had the power to authorize the issuance of all bonds or notes or bonds or notes for certain objects or purposes only with the approval of the board of estimate, board of estimate and apportionment or board of estimate and contract. In such a city, action by the finance board shall be initiated by the council, common council or board of aldermen.

(c) In the case of towns, the town board.

(d) In the case of villages, the village board.

(e) In the case of school districts, the board of education or board of trustees; in the case of common school districts having one trustee, such trustee.

(f) In the case of district corporations, the governing board or body, except that in the case of river regulating districts the action of the governing board or body thereof shall be subject to the approval of the water power and control commission in relation to the authorization, term, form and contents of bonds and capital notes. Nothing contained in this subdivision shall be construed to affect the power of (a) the executive of a county to veto the acts of the board of supervisors or (b) the executive of a city to veto the acts of the council, common council or board of aldermen, or of the board of estimate, board of estimate and apportionment or board of estimate and contract, when such bodies are acting alone or jointly or (c) the executive of a village to veto the acts of the board of trustees.

5. The term "chief fiscal officer" shall mean:

(a)(1) In the case of counties operating under (1) an alternative form of county government or charter enacted as a state statute or adopted under the alternative county government law or by local law, or (2) the optional county government law, the official designated in such statute, consolidated law or local law as the chief fiscal officer, or, if no such designation is made therein, the official possessing powers and duties similar to those of a county treasurer under the county law as shall be designated by local law.

(2) In the case of counties not included in subparagraph (1) of this paragraph, the treasurer, except that, in the case of such counties having a comptroller, it shall mean the comptroller.

(b) In the case of cities, the comptroller; if a city does not have a comptroller, the treasurer; if a city has neither a comptroller nor a treasurer, such official possessing powers and duties similar to those of a city treasurer as the finance board shall, by resolution, designate. A certified copy of such designation shall be filed with the state comptroller and shall be a public record.

(c) In the case of towns, the town supervisor; if a town has more than one supervisor, the presiding supervisor.

(d) In the case of villages, the village treasurer.

(e) In the case of school districts, the chairman or president of the school board; in the case of common school districts having a sole trustee, such trustee.

(f) In the case of fire districts, the district treasurer; in the case of other district corporations, such official as the finance board shall, by resolution, designate. A certified copy of such designation shall be filed with the state comptroller and shall be a public record.

5-a. The term "chief executive officer" shall mean:

(a) In the case of counties, the chairman of the board of supervisors, except that in those counties having a county administrator, director, executive, manager or president, it shall mean such latter officer.

(b) In the case of cities, the mayor, except that in those cities having a city manager, it shall mean such city manager.

(c) In the case of towns, the supervisor or presiding supervisor.

(d) In the case of villages, the mayor, except that in those villages having a president or manager, it shall mean such latter officer.

(e) In the case of school districts, the chairman or president of the school board; in the case of common school districts having a sole trustee, such trustee.

(f) In the case of fire districts, the chairman of the board of commissioners; in the case of other district corporations, the chairman of the board of commissioners or other comparable officer of the finance board of such district corporation.

6. The term "obligations" shall mean bonds or notes.

7. The term "average assessed valuation" shall mean the average assessed valuation of the real property within a municipality, school district or fire district subject to taxation for any purpose by such municipality, school district or fire district as determined by averaging the assessed valuation of such real property in the last completed assessment roll and the four preceding assessment rolls of such municipality, school district or fire district. If less than five assessment rolls have been prepared for a municipality, school district or fire district, the average assessed valuation shall be determined by averaging the assessed valuation in the last completed assessment roll and all the preceding assessment rolls of such municipality, school district or fire district. For the purpose of contracting indebtedness or for the purpose of preparing debt statements, the assessment rolls referred to in this subdivision shall mean such assessment rolls as completed, verified and filed by the assessors.

7-a. The term "average full valuation" shall mean the valuation of taxable real estate of a municipality or of a school district in a city which is derived by dividing the assessed valuations of taxable real estate on the last completed and the four preceding assessment rolls by the equalization rates established by the authorized state officer or agency for such rolls or, in the case of school districts, by the city and town rates so established for the rolls on which the school district rolls were based. In a county the average full valuation of taxable real estate thereof shall be derived by dividing the assessed valuations of taxable real estate on the last completed and four preceding assessment rolls of the cities and towns therein by the equalization rates established for such rolls; provided, however, in a county having a county department of assessment the state equalization rates established for the cities and towns therein on the basis of the county roll shall be applied to the appropriate portions of the county roll. The sum of the quotients thus obtained shall be divided by five. In such computations the last completed assessment roll shall be the latest roll for which a state equalization rate shall have been established, or in the case of school districts the last completed assessment roll thereof shall be the latest school district roll for all parts of which the equalization rates to be applied thereto shall have been established. In addition to the foregoing, where real estate on the assessment roll is partially exempt under the provisions of title two-a of article four of the real property tax law, an assessment roll shall not be deemed to be completed until a railroad ceiling, or, if a railroad ceiling has not been certificated, an estimated railroad ceiling established in accordance with the provisions of such title shall have been applied thereto.

Where, after the creation of a new municipality or school district in a city, or after a consolidated school district shall have been created by the consolidation of a school district in a city and one or more other school districts.

1. There is no completed assessment roll or rolls of the municipality or school district as so created, the average full valuation of taxable real estate thereof shall be determined from the last completed assessment roll or rolls upon which the real estate included in the municipality or school district was assessed for city, town or school district purposes, as the case may be, or

2. There are assessment rolls of the municipality or school district as so created which have been completed for at least one year but less than five years, the average full valuation of the taxable real estate of the municipality or school district shall be determined from the last completed assessment roll or rolls and the preceding assessment roll or rolls, if any, of the municipality or district, which were completed after such creation.

Where after the boundaries of a municipality or school district in a city shall have been altered so that real estate subject to taxation for municipal or school district purposes, as the case may be, shall have been thereby added to or subtracted from the area of the municipality or school district,

1. There is no completed assessment roll of the municipality or school district as so altered, the average full valuation of the taxable real estate of the municipality or school district shall be determined from the last completed assessment roll or rolls and the four preceding assessment rolls upon which the real estate included in the municipality or school district after such alteration was assessed prior to such alteration for city, town or school district purposes, as the case may be, or

2. There are assessment rolls of the municipality or school district as so altered which have been completed for at least one year but less than five years, the average full valuation of taxable real estate of the municipality or school district shall be determined from the last completed assessment roll or rolls and the four proceeding assessment rolls upon which the real estate included in the municipality or school district after such alteration was assessed prior to such alteration for city, town or school district purposes, as the case may be.

For the purpose of contracting indebtedness or for the purpose of preparing debt statements, the assessment rolls referred to in this subdivision shall mean such assessment rolls as completed, verified and filed by the assessors.

8. The terms "real property" or "real estate" shall mean such terms as defined in section two* of the tax law, as amended from time to time.

9. The term "capital improvement" shall mean:

(a) Any physical public betterment or improvement or any preliminary studies and surveys relative thereto, or

(b) Land or rights in land, or

(c) Any furnishings, machinery, apparatus or equipment for any physical betterment or improvement when such betterment or improvement is first constructed or acquired, or

(d) Any combination of items (a), (b) and (c).

10. The term "annual budget" shall mean the annual budget or estimate, as finally adopted, of a municipality, school district or district corporation which is required by law to adopt an annual budget or estimate of the expenditures to be made during a current or ensuing fiscal year for the general support or for the expenses of the government of such municipality, school district or district corporation during such fiscal year.

11. The term "budgetary appropriation" shall mean an appropriation for a specific object or purpose in the annual budget as finally adopted or in the annual ordinance, resolution or local law of a municipality, school district or district corporation making appropriations for the general support or expenses of the government thereof, which appropriation is to be paid from taxes or assessments or from other current revenues or from the proceeds of notes issued in anticipation of the collection of such taxes, assessments or other current revenues.

12. The term "voting strength" shall mean the aggregate number of votes which all the members of the finance board are entitled to cast. If the finance board consists of more than one body, the term shall mean, in relation to each body, the aggregate number of votes which all the members of such body are entitled to cast.

13. The term "housing authority" shall mean an "authority" as that term is defined in section three of the public housing law, as amended from time to time.

14. The term "local share of safety net assistance" shall mean that term as defined in section ninety-three of the social services law, as amended from time to time.

15. The terms "solvent fund or system" or "solvent," in referring to a pension or retirement system or fund, shall mean a pension or retirement system or fund which is on an actuarial reserve basis with current payments to the reserve adequate to provide for all current accruing liabilities.

16. The term "assessment" shall mean any charge based in whole or in part on benefits (other than real estate taxes, water or sewer charges, rents or rates) against a parcel of real property for any capital improvement, for any work or service, for operation and maintenance, or for debt service.

17. The term "resolution" shall mean resolution, act or ordinance.

18. The term "renewal" as applied to a note, shall mean a note the date of payment of which has been extended or a note issued for the purpose of securing money for the redemption of an outstanding note. The proceeds of such renewal note shall be applied only to the redemption of the note for the renewal of which it was issued.

19. The term "fiscal year" shall mean the fiscal year provided by law for a municipality, school district or district corporation, or if no fiscal year is so provided, such fiscal year as shall be determined by resolution of the finance board of such municipality, school district or district corporation. A statement of such determination shall be filed with the state comptroller and shall be a public record.

20. The term "class," as applied to the terms "objects or purposes", "capital improvements" or "equipment", shall mean an unspecified number of items, the description of which is contained in a single subdivision, other than subdivision thirty-five of paragraph a of section 11.00 of this chapter, notwithstanding the fact that such subdivision may be drafted in the singular number.

*Now in Real P Tax Law § 102, sub 12, which has substance transferred from Tax Law § 2, sub 6.

21. The term "full valuation", when used in relation to real property subject to taxation by a school district, shall mean the valuation which is derived by dividing the appropriate portions of the assessed valuation of the real property concerned, as shown by the last completed assessment roll of the school district, by the city and town equalization rates established by the authorized state officer or agency for the rolls on which such school district roll was based. Where, in the case of a newly created school district, there is no completed assessment roll of such school district in existence, full valuation shall be determined from the last completed assessment roll or rolls upon which the real property included within the district was assessed for school purposes prior to such creation. In such computations the last completed assessment roll shall be the latest roll for all parts of which the equalization rates to be applied thereto shall have been established. In addition to the foregoing, where real estate on the assessment roll is partially exempt under the provisions of title two-a of article four of the real property tax law, an assessment roll shall not be deemed to be completed until a railroad ceiling, or, if a railroad ceiling has not been certificated, an estimated railroad ceiling established in accordance with the provisions of such title shall have been applied thereto.

21-a. The term "full valuation", when used in relation to real property subject to taxation by a fire district, shall mean the valuation which is derived by dividing the assessed valuation of the real property concerned, as shown by the last completed assessment roll for the fire district, by the town equalization rate established by the authorized state officer or agency for such roll. Where, in the case of a newly-created fire district, there is no completed assessment roll for such fire district, full valuation shall be determined from the last completed assessment roll upon which the real property included within the district was assessed for town purposes prior to such creation. Where, after the boundaries of a fire district shall have been changed so that real property subject to taxation for fire district purposes shall have been thereby added to or subtracted from the area of the fire district, there is no completed assessment roll for the fire district as so changed, full valuation shall be determined from the last completed assessment roll upon which the real property included in the fire district after such change was assessed prior to such change for town or fire district purposes, as the case may be. For the purpose of contracting indebtedness or for the purpose of preparing debt statements, the assessment rolls referred to in this subdivision shall mean such assessment rolls as completed, verified and filed by the assessors. Where two or more fire districts consolidate to form one fire district the consolidated fire district, for the purpose of this subdivision, shall not be deemed a newly-created fire district, but shall be deemed an existing fire district and its full valuation shall be determined accordingly.

22. The term "specific" as applied to the terms "object or purpose", "capital improvement" or "equipment" shall mean a single item, or a specified number of items, the description of which is contained in a single subdivision of paragraph a of section 11.00 of this chapter.

23. Urban renewal. The term "urban renewal" shall mean that term as defined in the general municipal law.

24. The term "financially responsible party" shall mean a person or persons other than the issuer, as determined by the finance board, or in the case of the city of New York, the mayor and the comptroller, to have sufficient net worth and liquidity to (a) purchase and pay for on a timely basis, under the terms of an agreement with the issuer, all of the bonds and notes which may be tendered for repurchase or redemption pursuant to the terms of the bonds or notes by the holders thereof, or (b) advance funds on a timely basis on behalf of a municipality, school district or district corporation to pay bonds, notes or other evidences of indebtedness of such public body on their date or dates of maturity or redemption.

25. The term "governing body" of a municipality or school district shall mean the finance board or its duly authorized designee pursuant to section 56.00 of this chapter.

26. The term "interest" shall mean any payments, however designated, for the use of borrowed money. Interest shall include, but not be limited to, accretions to the value of bonds, notes or other obligations in amounts projected as of their dates of issuance, capital appreciation to bonds, notes or other obligations in amounts projected as of their dates of issuance and any similar payments whether scheduled to be made periodically or at the maturity or prior redemption of bonds, notes or other obligations.

27. The term "face value at maturity" shall mean all interest, principal and other payments due to the holders of bonds, notes or other obligations at their maturity or prior redemption, provided however, that current interest on bonds, notes or other obligations on which interest is payable at least annually shall be excluded.

Commission Note: Originally the definition of the term "average assessed valuation" in subdivision 7 followed the method of computation set forth in § 4 of article 8 of the State Constitution. This subdivision clarified the situation where a parcel of property was subject to taxation for certain purposes and not others, such as real property owned by a person who performed military or naval services for the United States and who purchased such real property with the proceeds of a bonus or pension granted him by the United States or the State of New York for such services. Such real property was to be included in determining the average assessed valuation of the municipality, school district or district corporation which subjected it to taxation for any purpose. It was also the intent of this subdivision that in any case in which a parcel of real property was removed from the tax roll of a municipality, school district or district corporation during the period in which a tax lien on such property was held by any municipality, school district or district corporation, such real property should be included in computing the average assessed valuation of the municipality, school district or district corporation from whose tax roll such property had been removed.

While the term "capital improvement" is used in several places in the Local Finance Law, subdivision 9 was primarily designed to implement § 11 of article 8 of the State Constitution by defining the term "capital improvement". Such term has been used in that constitutional provision without being defined.

The term "budgetary appropriation" was defined in subdivision 11 so as to clearly indicate the type of appropriation for debt service and other current expenses, generally contained in the annual "budget" of a municipality, as the term "budget" is commonly understood.

Throughout this act there are numerous references to the fiscal year of municipalities, school districts or district corporations. The definition of the term "fiscal year" was intended to aid municipalities and district corporations which do not have a fixed fiscal year or which operate under different fiscal years for various purposes. Such municipalities and district corporations are empowered to select a fiscal year for the purposes of this chapter.

Revision Notes: [1944 Revision] Subd 3. The definition of a district corporation was taken from New York Constitution, Article VIII, section 3. The Commission was of the opinion that the Constitution had reference to those units which possessed power to contract indebtedness in their own names. Hence the insertion of the words "in its own name" in subdivision three.

Subd 11. The 1944 amendment to this section was intended to make the definition of "budgetary appropriation" apply to appropriations by all units whether they adopted an annual budget (as defined by the Local Finance Law) or not.

Subd 16. The Commission believed that the definition of "assessments" should be clarified to refer to those charges based in whole or in part on benefits, and that the definition should be expanded to cover clearly "operation and maintenance" and "debt service."

[1945 Revision] Subd 5, sub-pars b and f. These provisions were amended to provide that, in the case of a city which had neither a comptroller nor a treasurer and in the case of a district corporation other than a fire district, the designation of an official to be the chief fiscal officer should be accomplished by resolution and that the filing of such designation with the State Comptroller should be done by filing a certified copy thereof.

1. In general; municipality

While a water district, for special objects of certain statutes, has been included, as a matter of convenient reference, within the terms "municipal corporation" or "municipality," it is essentially and only "a special administrative area." Kenwell v Lee, 261 N.Y. 113, 184 N.E. 692, 261 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 113, 1933 N.Y. LEXIS 1263 (N.Y.), reh'g denied, 262 N.Y. 563, 188 N.E. 65, 262 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 563, 1933 N.Y. LEXIS 1084 (N.Y. 1933).

Plaintiff fire and water district is a political, territorial and civil division of the State, designated a "district", public corporation (Local Finance Law, § 2.00, subd 3, par [c]; General Construction Law, § 66, subd 3), created for a public purpose, supported by public funds, governed by parties deriving their authority from government, possessing the power to contract indebtedness and levy taxes but having no independent sovereignty of its own, and as such, it falls under the jurisdiction of the County Civil Service Commission operating within its territorial area and must therefore make all appointments and promotions of employees from a civil service list. Hyde Park Fire & Water Dist. v County of Dutchess, 97 Misc. 2d 104, 410 N.Y.S.2d 783, 1978 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2755 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1978).

New York regional off-track betting corporation was not a "municipality" for purposes of N.Y. Local Fin. Law § 85.80 that was allowed to declare bankruptcy without obtaining prior approval, and its petition under Chapter 9 of the Bankruptcy Code was dismissed pursuant to 11 U.S.C.S. § 921(c) because it did not obtain proper approval before it declared bankruptcy. Although the Suffolk County (New York) Legislature issued a resolution which authorized the corporation to declare Chapter 9 bankruptcy, it exceeded its authority when it did so. Where the president of a central school district board of education is a director of a bank, a prohibited interest in contract does not occur when the district (1) designates the bank as a depository and (2) sells obligations to the bank in accordance with Local Finance Law, § 60.10. 1972 Ops St Compt File #747.

A central high school district may issue tax anticipation notes. 1976 Ops St Compt File #507.

Board of governors of public hospital has no power to contract indebtedness to obtain funds for hospital purposes. It does have authority to employ professional fund raisers. 1965 Ops St Compt File #452.

4. —Fire district

Terms "fire district" and "district corporation," as used in CLS Loc Fin § 102.00 are not mutually exclusive since CLS Loc Fin § 2.00(3) provides that term "district-corporation" includes fire district. Ops St Compt 89-35.

6. Assessed value

Real property which is bid in by the city treasurer at a tax sale or against which the city holds and owns tax liens, although exempt from annual city taxes by the city charter, is nevertheless subject to taxation and may be included in computing the average assessed valuation for purposes of determining the city's debt limit. L. L. F. Realty Co. v Fuchs, 273 A.D. 111, 75 N.Y.S.2d 356, 1947 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2941 (N.Y. App. Div. 1947).

Although New York Comptroller was required to use equalization rates established by New York Office of Real Property Services (ORPS) to determine if village had exceeded taxing authority, neither N.Y. Gen. Constr. Law § 61 nor N.Y. Local Fin. Law § 2.00(7-a) required the comptroller to use equalization rates in effect on or before date village adopted its budget, and comptroller's decision to use uncorrected ORPS rates was arbitrary and irrational where ORPS had corrected rates after village adopted its budget and village called those corrections to comptroller's attention before he made his decision. Inc. Vill. of W. Hampton Dunes v McCall, 289 A.D.2d 837, 734 N.Y.S.2d 689, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12311 (N.Y. TITLE 1 Power to Contract Indebtedness and Periods of Probable Usefulness

HISTORY:
Add, L 1942, ch 424.

§ 11.00. Periods of probable usefulness

a. A municipality, school district or district corporation may not contract indebtedness for any object or purpose for a period longer than the period of probable usefulness set forth below for such object or purpose, provided, however, that for purposes of selling bonds or notes evidencing indebtedness contracted for any two or more objects or purposes, or any combination thereof, for which the periods of probable usefulness as determined pursuant to this section are not all the same, such indebtedness may be contracted for a period no longer than the weighted average period of probable usefulness of the objects or purposes. Unless the context requires otherwise, whenever the phrase "period of probable usefulness" is used in this chapter, it shall include weighted average period of probable usefulness. For purposes of this chapter, indebtedness contracted for an object or purpose (or class of objects or purposes) shall be deemed to be contracted for no longer than the period of probable usefulness of such object or purpose (or class of objects or purposes) irrespective of whether such indebtedness is combined with indebtedness contracted for other objects or purposes (or classes of objects or purposes) for purpose of sale and the combined indebtedness is contracted for the weighted average period of probable usefulness of all of the objects or purposes (or classes of objects or purposes) for which it is contracted. Weighted average period of probable usefulness shall be determined by the governing body by computing the sum of the products derived from multiplying the dollar value of the portion of the proceeds of the indebtedness expected to be received for each object or purpose (or class of objects or purposes) by the period of probable usefulness, or, if less, the maximum authorized maturity of indebtedness to be contracted for such object or purpose (or class of objects or purposes), as determined by the bond resolution authorizing such indebtedness, and dividing the resulting sum by the dollar value of the proceeds expected to be received by the municipality, school district or district corporation from the combined indebtedness. Preliminary costs of surveys, maps, plans, estimates, and hearings in connection with a capital improvement, and costs incidental to such improvement, including but not limited to legal fees, printing or engraving, publication of notices, taking of title, apportionment of costs, and interest during construction, shall be deemed part of the cost of the object or purpose in connection with which they are incurred. Where a municipality is authorized by law to pay to the state or a county all or part of the cost of a capital improvement, the period of probable usefulness determined in this paragraph for a like capital improvement shall be the period of probable usefulness for the municipality's share of the cost of such capital improvement. The period of probable usefulness of each such object or purpose is hereby determined to be as follows:

The acquisition or construction of buildings not included in any other subdivision hereof, whether or not including grading or improvement of the site, original furnishings, equipment, machinery or apparatus required for the purposes for which such buildings are to be used, as follows:

(a) Class "A" (fireproof and certain fire resistant) buildings.

(1) Buildings, the walls of which are constructed of brick, stone, concrete, metal or other incombustible material, and in which there are no wooden beams or lintels, except wood glue laminated structural members, and in which the floors, roofs, stairhalls, and other means of vertical communication between floors and their enclosures are built entirely of brick, stone, metal or other incombustible materials, and in which no woodwork or other inflammable material is used in any of the rough partitions, floor or ceiling structures, or

(2) Buildings, not more than one story above the ground, the outer walls of which are constructed of brick, stone, concrete, metal, stucco or other fire-resisting material and which are to be used as school houses by school districts wholly outside of a city, thirty years.

(b) Class "B" (fire-resistant) buildings. Buildings, the outer walls of which are constructed of brick, stone, concrete, metal, stucco or other fire-resisting material, twenty-five years.

(c) Class "C" buildings. Buildings which are neither class "A" nor class "B", as defined in items (a) and (b) above, including any such building which is rebuilt or altered so that it, together with any addition or vertical or other extension, is not fireproof or fire-resisting, as thus defined, fifteen years.

12. Additions to or conversion of buildings.

(a)(1) The construction of an addition or additions to or the reconstruction of a class "A" building, whether or not such construction or reconstruction includes grading or improvement of the site, twenty-five years, except as hereinafter provided; the conversion of a class "B" or class "C" building into a class "A" building, whether or not such conversion includes grading or improvement of the site, twenty-five years. If indebtedness has been contracted or is to be contracted with a maximum maturity of over twenty-five years, but not to exceed thirty years, to finance the cost of acquisition or construction of a class "A" building and if more than twenty-five annual installments of principal on the indebtedness evidenced or to be evidenced by bonds or notes have not matured, then the foregoing twenty-five year period of probable usefulness for the construction of an addition to such class "A" building shall be increased by the number of years over twenty-five as there are unmatured annual installments of principal on such indebtedness which has been or is to be contracted for the class "A" building; provided that such addition is to be constructed to meet the construction standards of the class "A" building to which it is an addition. The maximum maturity of such indebtedness for the class "A" building shall be measured from the date of the bonds or from the date of the first bond anticipation note issued in anticipation of such bonds, whichever is the earlier.

(2) The construction of an addition or additions to or the reconstruction of a class "B" building or the conversion of a class "C" building into a class "B" building, whether or not such construction, reconstruction or conversion includes grading or improvement of the site, fifteen years.

(3) The construction of an addition or additions to or the reconstruction of a class "C" building, whether or not such construction or reconstruction includes grading or improvement of the site, ten years.

(b) The periods of probable usefulness set forth in item (a) above shall include original furnishings, equipment, machinery or apparatus required for the purposes for which such additions to such buildings or for which such reconstructed or converted buildings are to be used.

(c) A building which is to be attached to an existing building or buildings shall be deemed to be a new building and not an addition if the probable useful life thereof is not dependent upon the useful life of such existing building or buildings.

(d) The terms "class 'A' building," "class 'B' building" and "class 'C' building," as used in this subdivision, shall mean such buildings as they are described in subdivision eleven of this paragraph.

12-a. Demolition and repair of buildings. The demolishing or repair of any (a) privately owned building or structure that poses a significant threat to public health or safety, five years, or (b) municipally owned structure or building, or any building or structure owned by a school district or district corporation, whenever the same is no longer of any use or value or has become dangerous or detrimental to human life, health or safety, ten years.

25. Police and fire alarm systems and signal systems. The purchase or installation of a fire or police alarm, telegraph or telephone system or any other system of communication or transmission, or additions thereto, ten years.

26. Fire, police and ferry boats. The acquisition of a fire or police boat, propelled by mechanical power, ten years. The acquisition of a ferry boat, propelled by mechanical power, thirty-five years.

27. Fire-fighting vehicles and apparatus. The purchase of a motor vehicle used for fighting fires, other than a passenger vehicle having a seating capacity of less than ten persons, whether or not including apparatus used in connection with such motor vehicle, or the purchase of such apparatus alone, if the estimated cost thereof, as set forth in the resolution authorizing the issuance of obligations therefor, is five thousand dollars or less, five years; if the estimated cost thereof is in excess of five thousand dollars, ten years; if the estimated cost thereof is in excess of fifty thousand dollars, twenty years.

27-a. Ambulances. The purchase of a motor vehicle which is specially designed for use for the treatment, care or transport of sick or injured persons, whether or not including equipment or furnishings used in connection with such a vehicle, ten years, or the purchase of original equipment or furnishings for such a vehicle or the replacement of equipment or furnishings for such a vehicle, five years.

28. Machinery and apparatus for construction and maintenance. The purchase of machinery or apparatus to be used for constructing, reconstructing, repairing, maintaining or removing the snow and ice from, any physical public betterment or improvement, other than machinery or apparatus which is to be permanently attached to or to form a part of any such betterment or improvement, five years if the cost is fifteen thousand dollars or less; ten years if the cost is over fifteen thousand dollars, but less than thirty thousand dollars; fifteen years if the cost is thirty thousand dollars or over.

29. Motor vehicles. The purchase of a motor vehicle, five years. The term "motor vehicle," as used in this subdivision, shall mean a vehicle propelled by any power other than muscular power, except

(a) a passenger vehicle, other than a school bus, having a seating capacity of less than ten persons,

(b) a vehicle used for fighting fires,

* * * * *

(d) machinery or apparatus for which a period of probable usefulness has been determined by subdivision twenty-eight of this paragraph, and

(e) a vehicle which is specially designed for use for the treatment, care or transport of sick or injured persons.

29-a. Transit motor vehicles. The purchase of municipally owned omnibus or similar surface transit motor vehicles, ten years.

30. Water meters. The purchase or installation of a water meter, twenty years; the replacement of such water meter, twenty years. Provided, however, that if such purchase or installation is incidental to and in connection with the acquisition, construction or reconstruction of or addition to a water supply or distribution system, such purchase or installation of such water meter shall have the same period of probably[*] usefulness as may be determined for such acquisition, construction or reconstruction of or addition to such system.

* * * * *

32. Equipment, machinery, apparatus or furnishings. The acquisition of original equipment, machinery, apparatus or furnishings for any physical public betterment or improvement or required for the purposes for which the physical public betterment or improvement is to be used, not included in any other subdivision hereof, five years; the replacement of such equipment, machinery, apparatus or furnishings, whether or not the original acquisition thereof is included in any other subdivision hereof, five years, unless a longer period for the replacement thereof is prescribed in another subdivision hereof, in which case such other subdivision shall be applicable.

* * * * *

35. Unspecified betterments and improvements. The acquisition, construction or reconstruction of or addition to any physical public betterment or improvement not included in any other subdivision hereof, five years; if the useful life of a physical public betterment or improvement classified as a capital asset under generally accepted accounting principles for municipalities has been determined to be at least ten years by an appropriate engineering, architectural or other professional, ten years; if the useful life of a physical public betterment or improvement classified as a capital asset under generally accepted accounting principles for municipalities has been determined to be at least fifteen years by an appropriate engineering, architectural or other professional, fifteen years.
