If requested records pertaining to contract that had been awarded by State University of New York College at Farmingdale were not maintained by college, but were instead maintained by corporation to which contract was awarded, it was questionable whether Freedom of Information Law would apply to that entity. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7871.

Irrespective of where records, such as "official letters" from state agencies, from firms and others, may be kept by town supervisor, they are kept due to and in performance of supervisor's official duties and in his capacity as supervisor, and, therefore, such records fall within scope of Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8289.

Where members of library board of trustees were appointed by town board and library functioned as unit within town government, town board was required to promulgate appropriate rules and regulations applicable to town government, including Library, consistent with those adopted by Committee on Open Government and with Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8330.

While agency is not required to do so, it may have staff person observe applicant for records while records are being inspected since agencies have responsibility to ensure that custody and integrity of their records is maintained. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9209.

Even when different agency maintains same records as village, village records are be subject to Freedom of Information Law and village will be required to respond to request for such records. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9309.

Records maintained by village, irrespective of who or what agency might have prepared them, are village records under Freedom of Information Law; thus, village was required to respond to request for records relating to state Comptroller's recent audit of village, even though same records might be maintained by Comptroller. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-10108.

Freedom of Information Law is silent with respect to ability to amend or correct records that may contain inaccurate information. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12503.

Agencies of local government are not required to maintain most records permanently. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12589.

Insofar as records sought were maintained by or for university auxiliary services corporation they were, in essence, university's records, and university would be required to direct custodian of records to disclose them in accordance with Freedom of Information Law, or obtain them in order to disclose them to applicant to extent required by law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12656.

Town board has overall responsibility of ensuring compliance with Freedom of Information Law and records access officer has duty of coordinating responses to requests. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12681.

Memorandum marked "confidential" would be in legal custody of town clerk, regardless of its physical location (i.e., whether in clerk's "official file" or elsewhere). Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3889.

Records prepared by chair of town board are not property of that person; on contrary, they would be in legal custody of Town Clerk and would constitute records subject to rights conferred by Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3889.

Town Supervisor would have no greater right of access or control over records prepared by chair of town board than any other member of board. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3889.

23. Effect of other legal proceedings, generally

24. —Advisory opinions

Pursuant to policy adopted by committee, advisory opinion will not be prepared when it is known that litigation pertaining to FOIL has been commenced. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4140.

Committee on Open Government is authorized to render advisory opinions on issues arising under Freedom of Information Law; committee does not have authority to enforce compliance with law or to obtain records from other agencies in response to request; request for records should be directed to records access officer of agency maintaining record sought; however, Freedom of Information Law does not require agency to create or prepare record in response to request. Comm On Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4591.

25. —Committee on Open Government

Neither Committee on Open Government nor its staff has authority to compel agency to grant or deny access to records; further, committee is not empowered to obtain records on behalf of applicant. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4611.

Committee on Open Government is authorized to render advice on issues concerning New York Freedom of Information Law; Committee is not authorized to render advice with respect to other state or federal statutes; Freedom of Information Law pertains to rights of access to records maintained by units of state and local government; on other hand, federal statute, Freedom of Information Law pertains generally to records maintained by federal agencies such as Social Security Administration. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4864.

Committee on Open Government is authorized to render advice on issues concerning Freedom of Information Law; it is not generally responsibility of Committee to direct individuals to agencies that maintain records they seek. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4878.

Town boards are required to promulgate appropriate rules and regulations consistent with those adopted by Committee on Open Government and with Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7578.

Committee on Open Government (COOG) has neither jurisdiction nor resources to "investigate" practices of agencies; similarly, COOG is not empowered to compel agency to comply with law or grant or deny access to records. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12483.

Committee on Open Government does not have resources to publish opinions or distribute complete sets of opinions to interested persons; however, to attempt to enable people to view such opinions, they are sent to various law libraries across state. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-4133.

26. —Criminal proceedings

Although Freedom of Information Law deals with records generally, Criminal Procedure Law deals specifically with records involving situation in which criminal charges are dismissed in favor of accused. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4830.

27. —Department of Motor Vehicles (DMV)

Records concerning convictions, suspensions or revocations of driver's license, or accidents, other than those pertaining to alcohol related offenses are kept by motor vehicles department and are purged after 4 years; as such, records concerning violations, convictions or accidents would no longer exist after 4 years; records containing alcohol related offenses are kept for 10 years; with respect to other records, marriage records are kept by town or city clerks, depending where marriage took place; records pertaining to divorce, such as certificate of disposition, can be obtained from county clerk in county in which divorce was granted. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4852.

28. —Division of Housing and Community Renewal

Right of access to rent registration records are governed not by Freedom of Information Law, but rather by Emergency Tenant Protection Act, the New York City Administrative Code and Division of Housing and Community Renewal; information furnished to Division of Housing and Community Renewal is considered confidential only when request for confidentiality is expressly made by person furnishing information, and that if such information is requested by third party, agency has burden of demonstrating that person who furnished information requested confidentiality; once agency indicates that it will disclose records but fails to make records available, such action is equivalent of denial. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4738.

29. —Federal laws, generally

Audits of municipalities are generally available under Freedom of Information Law which requires disclosure of external audits, including, but not limited to, audits performed by comptroller and federal government. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4721.

Freedom of Information Law is generally applicable to records maintained by entities of state and local government in New York, including state agencies, police departments, office of governor and offices of mayors; different statute, federal Freedom of Information Act, applies to records maintained by federal agencies; further, each state has enacted its own version of access law; private entities, such as private corporations or law firms, are not agencies subject to Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4809.

Freedom of Information Law generally pertains to records maintained by entities of state and local government in New York; it does not apply to records maintained by federal agencies and, therefore, request for federal records should be directed to federal agency that maintains record sought. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4941.

Federal Freedom of Information Act applies only to records maintained by federal agencies and does not apply to requests for records maintained by state agencies; relevant law is state Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7633.

Disclosure of records identifiable to victim of sex offense is governed by CLS Civ R § 50-b, rather than Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12173.

30. —Judicial matters

Information contained in record of grievance submitted to Office of Grievance Committee against former attorney are subject to CLS Jud § 90(10); further, records may be disclosed only in conjunction with that statute, rather than Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4979.

31. —Mental health matters

Rights of access to mental health records are governed by Mental Hygiene Law rather than Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4821.

32. —New York Code of Rules and Regulations (NYCRR)

Initial responsibility to deal with requests under Freedom of Information Law is borne by agency's records access officer, whose designation and duties are prescribed under 21 NYCRR § 1401.2. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7578.

Regulations promulgated by Committee on Open Government (21 NYCRR Part 1401) indicate intent to enable public to contact records access officer for agency directly and to ensure that records access officer's name and phone number should be readily available. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8876.

Insofar as 8 NYCRR Part 84, as promulgated by Commissioner of Education, is more restrictive than Freedom of Information Law, it is out of date and void. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9443.

Under 21 NYCRR Part 1401, records access officer has duty of coordinating agency's response to requests under Freedom of Information Law, and request should ordinarily be directed to that person. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12438.

33. —Open Meetings Law

Grounds for withholding records appearing in Freedom of Information Law and grounds for entry into executive session appearing in CLS Pub O § 105(1) (Open Meetings Law) are not necessarily consistent; thus, even though records might be withheld in accordance with FOIL, it does not necessarily follow that meeting pertaining to those records may properly be closed or that it is reasonable to withhold them. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12405.

Reference materials pertaining to budgets, reserves and fund balances distributed to members of board of education at state-sponsored conference, which were reviewed in closed meeting of board, should have been made accessible for review in their entirety; board improperly discussed budget matters in executive session, and Freedom of Information Law exception pertaining to communications between or among state or local government officials did not apply. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3271.

34. —Personal Privacy Protection Act, generally

35. — —Birth, death and marriage records

Committee on Open Government is authorized to render advice on issues concerning New York Freedom of Information Law; Committee is not authorized to render advice with respect to other state or federal statutes; Freedom of Information Law pertains to rights of access to records maintained by units of state and local government; on other hand, federal statute, Freedom of Information Law pertains generally to records maintained by federal agencies such as Social Security Administration. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4864.

Although Freedom of Information Law generally governs rights of access to records, other statutes pertain specifically to birth, death, and marriage records; problem relative to those statutes is that rights of access are generally conditioned upon showing that request is made for judicial or other "proper purposes". Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4929.

Personal Privacy Protection Law applies to state agencies and does not apply to units of local government such as county; however, under Freedom of Information Law, agency may deny access to record that falls within one or more of grounds of denial, but is not generally required to do so; while agency's regulations or ordinances may be less restrictive than Freedom of Information Law with respect to right of access, they may not be more restrictive. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4678.

Personal Privacy Protection Law requires that state agencies make records available for inspection and copying to data subject, person to whom records pertain; however rights granted by Law do not apply to public safety agency records; accessible records are available for inspection and copying; therefore, if record is accessible, it may be inspected and if, after inspection copies are needed, applicant may be required to pay fee for copying. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4961.

When final vote is taken by agency, such as local conditional release commission, record must be prepared that indicates manner in which each member who voted cast his or her vote; ordinarily, records of votes will appear in minutes. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3784.

Thrust of CLS Pub O § 87(3)(a) ("open voting" requirement of Freedom of Information Law) is consistent with Legislative Declaration that appears at beginning of Open Meetings Law. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3784.

When record is known to be available from another source, it is not likely that agency can properly deny that record under any of the grounds for denial set forth in Freedom of Information Law. 1986 Committee on Open Government FOIL-AO-4310.

Under CLS Pub Off § 87(1)(a), if urban renewal agency is considered part of city's government, it should not have its own regulations but could implement Freedom of Information Law according to "uniform" regulations adopted by city, "governing body" of "public corporation". Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4450.

Freedom of Information Law is "general" law because it pertains generally to rights of access to records of entities of state and local government in New York; however, since Social Services Law deals with particular category of records and is "special" or specific statute, special statute prevails over general statute. Comm On Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4594.

If records sought are court records, Freedom of Information Law would not govern rights of access; however, court records may be available under other statutes which often confer broad rights of access to court records. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4679.

Advisory opinion, issued by Committee on Open Government, may be requested prior to commencement of litigation; however, there is no requirement that applicant for records seek advisory opinion. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4705.

Although Freedom of Information Law provides substantial rights of access, it deals generally with access to government records; when other statutes deal with specific records, those statutes prevail over general statute, such as Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4968.

If records are available as of right under different provision of law or by means of judicial determination, nothing in Freedom of Information Law can serve to diminish rights of access. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12421.

36. Format of records

If data is maintained on computers, agency would not be required to develop new programs or reprogram to extract data that might otherwise be available; if agency does not maintain records in format requested, Law would not require agency to prepare or produce records in such format. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4747.

Freedom of Information Law provides right to inspect and copy records, which means that person may inspect records and may, with pen and paper, copy contents of records; however, if applicant requests agency to provide photocopies of accessible records, Freedom of Information Law requires that agency prepare photocopies upon payment of, or offer to pay, requisite fees for photocopying; further, agency may require that request be made in writing; while agency is required to make photocopies, it is not required to provide records to applicants so that applicant may make photocopies. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4982.

Agency would be required to produce electronic information assuming that data sought is available under Freedom of Information Law, that it can be made available in format in which applicant requests it, and that applicant is willing to pay requisite fee. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12741.

If agency is able to scan records in order to transmit them via email, and doing so will not involve any effort additional to alternative methods of responding, it is required to do so. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-16572.

If New York City Department of Finance was able to make information about all mortgages and deeds filed in city during immediate past year available in electronic file format, as requested, and requester was willing to pay requisite fees, then it was required to do so; department's posting of information in question on its website did not constitute reasonable compliance with its obligation under Freedom of Information Law, where requester indicated that website was of no use to it because it needed access to entire file electronically so that it could make lists of various sorts and make comparisons of sets of data. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-16619.

Agency was required to provide photocopies of records if photocopies were requested, even though records were maintained in bound volumes; agency could suggest that requester inspect bound records, rather than obtain photocopies, but if requester was willing to pay for copies, agency was required to do so. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-16638.

37. Required records, generally

38. —Salary matters ($87(3)(b))

Records identifying public employees who work during given period, rates of pay and number of hours worked are available because those records are "relevant" to performance of duties; Freedom of Information Law deals specifically with payroll information. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4657.

One of few instances in which agency is required to create record involves list that identifies every employee by name, public office address, title and salary; every agency, including school districts, are required to prepare and maintain these lists. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4752.

Since definition of "agency" includes municipal entities, all municipalities are required to maintain records setting forth name, public office address, title and salary of every officer or public employee of agency. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4788.

Payroll record is required to be prepared and must include names, titles and salaries, except in rare circumstance in which disclosure of name would endanger person's life or safety. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4858.

All agencies, including school district, must maintain and make available on ongoing basis payroll record containing name, public office address, title and salary of the officer or employee of agency. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4905.

School district is required to maintain and make available list that includes current salaries and work locations of district employees, and current payroll record could be compared with previous payroll record to ascertain increases in administrators' salaries; therefore, district is required to disclose records reflective of salary increases, current salaries and identities in work locations of its employees. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4942.

School district is required to maintain record that includes name, title, salary and public office address (i.e., school) of all employees, including teachers. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7634.

Payroll record that identifies all agency officers or employees by name, public office address, title, and salary must be prepared to comply with Freedom of Information Law and must be disclosed upon request. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12305.

39. —Subject matter lists ($87(3)(c)), generally

Pursuant to Pub O § 87, an agency does not have discretion to determine whether or not it should prepare a subject matter list, notwithstanding an alleged lack of necessary personnel and financial resources, for the statute requires that such a list must be maintained. Comm on Open Govt FOIL-AO 3055.

When requesting records, specific nature and contents of each record must be provided or grounds for denial may apply. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4659.

Subject matter list or master index is different from records to which it refers, since it is categorization of kinds of records maintained by agency; such records themselves may be accessible or deniable, in whole or in part, under other provisions of Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12492.

40. —Answers to questions not required

41. — —In Individual document listing not required

Subject matter list is not intended to refer to each and every record kept by agency, but should refer to categories of agency's records, rather than individual records. 1986 Committee on Open Government FOIL-AO-4190.

As to request for index to files of New York City Police Department, under CLS Pub Off § 87(3)(c), agency's "subject matter list" must describe, by category, kinds of records maintained by an agency, list is not required to refer to each and every record of agency, and the agency is not required to prepare index describing particular records regarding particular case. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4458.

Under Freedom of Information Law, subject matter list is list of categories of records that agency maintains, not list or index that identifies each and every record of agency. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4797.

Subject matter list should be maintained by agencies on ongoing basis; further its contents must be made available; such list need not identify each and every record of agency, rather, subject matter list must indicate categories of records maintained by agency. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4858.

Each agency is required to maintain current "subject matter list", list of all categories of records that it maintains, and subject matter lists refer to categories of information and categories of records, respectively because they are not required to identify each and every record of agency or refer to records pertaining to particular individuals; although Committee on Open Government does not maintain copies of agencies' subject matter lists, lists are available from each agency. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4896.

Subject matter list is intended to indicate categories of records maintained by agency and there is no requirement in Freedom of Information Law that agency prepare index identifying records that it maintains concerning specific person. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4950.

"Subject matter list" required to be maintained under CLS Pub O § 87(3)(c) is not required to identify each and every record of agency; rather, it must refer, by category and in reasonable detail, to kinds of records maintained by agency. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8288.

Although there is nothing in Freedom of Information Law that requires that agency prepare list identifying each document in file, if request for file is granted and there is no indication that any aspect of file has been withheld, it may be assumed that entirety of file, at time of disclosure, was made available. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8378.

Subject matter list required by CLS Pub O § 87(3)(c) is not required to identify each and every record of agency; rather, it is required to identify by category and in reasonable detail, kinds of records maintained by agency. Although subject matter list is not prepared with respect to records pertaining to single individual, such list should be sufficiently detailed to enable individual to identify file category of record or records in which that person may be interested. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12483.

42. — —Law citations not required

When requesting records, applicant need not cite specific provision of law; rather, citing Freedom of Information Law and reasonably describing records sought should be adequate. It is not necessary to cite specific provision of law when requesting records; rather, citing Freedom of Information Law and reasonably describing records sought should be adequate. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4940.

43. — —Lists about education matters

City University of New York is neither required nor able to include notations concerning rights of access corresponding to categories of records included in subject matter lists, where it is often impossible to characterize category as available or deniable without exception. Comm On Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4555.

44. — —Lists about employment matters

There is no basis for denying access to computer tape or disc which contains New York State telephone directory for Albany, New York City, Long Island and Westchester since records sought contain names, public office addresses and public office telephone numbers of the New York State employees, and none of grounds for denial could appropriately be asserted. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4653.

45. — —Lists about law enforcement matters

All agencies, including police departments, must maintain reasonably detailed current list by subject matter, of all records in possession of agency and these subject matter lists will be available for disclosure; however, if police department does not maintain one or more of lists sought, Freedom of Information Law would not require that it create or prepare such lists in response to request; to extent that police department does maintain lists sought, they are likely to be available. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4660.

Records maintained by police department, to extent that they continue to exist, will be subject to rights conferred by Freedom of Information Law; that is not to suggest that all records will be accessible, but that they will be subject to rights of access granted by Law; as general matter, administrative manuals are accessible pursuant to CLS Pub O § 87(2)(g); however, those manuals prepared or used by law enforcement agencies may be accessible or deniable depending upon effects of disclosure. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4661.

While Freedom of Information Law does not apply to court records, many court records are available under other provisions of law and, as such, it is possible to make request to court that maintains records sought; further, autopsy report is likely to be maintained by office of medical examiner; request for records must reasonably describe records sought and must be sufficiently detailed so to enable agency officials to locate requested records. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4765.

Alternative to police department directory may be subject matter list which each agency is required to maintain under Freedom of Information Law; subject matter list prepared by agency is not required to consist of index of each and every record maintained by its agency, but rather it is intended to refer to categories or kinds of records maintained by agency. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4796.

Subject matter lists may not identify with specificity each record maintained by agency, but rather they are intended to describe kinds or categories of records maintained by agency; in addition to keeping case files at office of district attorney, records are also likely to be kept in relation to personnel matters, policies and procedures, correspondence, financial matters involving agency expenditures, as well as other records that do not deal specifically with cases of records found within case files. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4819.

Subject matter lists refer to general categories of records that agency maintains; subject matter list is not required to identify each and every record of agency or refer to records pertaining to particular individual; all agencies, including district attorney's office, are required to maintain subject matter lists and these lists must be made available to public. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4890.

46. — —Lists about prisons and prisoners

If records fall within the scope of both Personal Privacy Protection Law and Freedom of Information Law, requester should direct written requests to both records access officer and privacy compliance officer of department of correctional services and indicate that request is made under both laws. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4841.

Under Freedom of Information Law, requests for records kept at correctional facility may be directed to facility superintendent; Freedom of Information Law requires that applicant reasonably describe records sought and include sufficient detail to enable agency officials to locate records. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4845.

Requests should be directed to agency that maintains records sought; agency is not required to prepare or create record in response to request; therefore, if no statistics concerning stabbings at correctional facilities have been prepared, agency, when receiving such request, would not be obliged to create records containing such statistics. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4874.

Freedom of Information Law requires that applicant reasonably describe records sought, so, when making request, sufficient detail should be provided so to enable agency officials to locate records; further, regulations promulgated by Department of Correctional Services pursuant to Freedom of Information Law indicate that, for records kept at facility, request may be directed to facility superintendent. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4956.

Master list of all records in possession of Department of Correctional Services must be maintained and made available for inspection at each correctional facility. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-10055.

Under CLS Pub o § 87(3)(c) and regulations of Department of Correctional Services, master index must be maintained and made available for inspection at each facility. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12492.

47. — —Lists required regardless of document availability

Freedom of Information Law does not require that subject matter list indicate those records that must be made available and those that may be withheld. Comm on Open Govt FOIL-AO-3649.

"Subject matter list" is not intended to refer to every record maintained by agency; rather, it is intended to refer to types of records, by category, and in reasonable detail, kept by agency. Comm On Open Gov't FOIL-AO-3857.

Freedom of Information Law requires that every agency maintain reasonably detailed current list of records by subject matter, and subject matter list must refer by category to all agency records, and not only those considered to be accessible to public. 1986 Committee on Open Government FOIL-AO-4182.

One of few instances in which Freedom of Information Law requires agency to prepare record concerns "subject matter lists" which lists all records in possession of agency, whether or not available under Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4750.

If list of employees is maintained only on paper and agency lacks capacity to generate list electronically, it is not obliged to develop electronic database containing contents of list in order to accommodate applicant's request that list be provided in electronic form and e-mailed to him. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12105.

CLS Pub O § 87(3)(c) does not require that agency ascertain which among its records must be made available or may be withheld; law states that subject matter list must refer, in reasonable detail, to kinds of records maintained by agency, whether or not they are available. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2349.

48. — —Specificity of lists

When making request, sufficient detail should be included so to enable officials to locate records, such as names, dates, descriptions of events and similar details. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4737.

Freedom of Information Law requires that applicant reasonably describe record sought, so when making requests, sufficient detail should be included to enable agency officials to locate records. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4749.

Request must reasonably describe record sought and be sufficiently detailed to enable agency officials to determine records requested and to locate them. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4755.

Request for records should be directed to records access officer of agency that maintains records sought, and request should reasonably describe records sought so that there is sufficient detail to enable agency officials to locate records sought. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4762.

Request for records must reasonably be describe records sought and requests sent to agency involving records pertaining to requester, without more, would likely not meet requirements of Freedom of Information Law; when making request, sufficient detail should be included so to enable agency officials to locate records, such as names, dates, descriptions of events, docket numbers and similar identifying data. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4774.

Freedom of Information Law requires that applicant reasonably describe records sought so request should contain sufficient detail to enable agency officials to locate records. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4824.

Freedom of Information Law requires that applicant reasonably describe records sought so request should contain sufficient detail to enable agency offices to locate records. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4831.

When making requests for records, request should include sufficient detail to enable agency officials to locate records; requests should be directed to agency or agencies that maintain the record sought. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4833.

Request for records should be directed to records access officer and agency that maintains record sought and applicant must reasonably describe records sought and include sufficient detail to enable officials to locate records. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4865.

Applicant must reasonably describe record sought, so, when making requests, as much detail as possible should be provided to enable agency officials to locate records. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4877.

Applicant must reasonably describe record sought and include sufficient detail to enable officials to locate records. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4881.

Applicants for records should reasonably describe records sought and must provide sufficient information to enable agency officials to locate records. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4882.

Freedom of Information Law requires that request reasonably describe records sought so that when request is made to agency or court, sufficient detail should be included so to enable officials to locate records. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4922.

When making request for records, Freedom of Information Law requires that applicant reasonably describe records sought and should include sufficient detail to enable agency officials to locate records. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4924.

Freedom of Information Law requires that applicant reasonably describe records sought so when making request, sufficient detail should be included to enable agency officials to locate records sought. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4958.

Freedom of Information Law requires that applicant reasonably describe records sought and if agency can locate requested records based on terms of request, applicant has reasonably described such records; however, if agency cannot determine which records have been requested, standard of "reasonably describing" records is not met and in some instances, while records sought might exist, they may not be retrievable due to nature of agency's filing system; also, agency need not create or prepare record in response to request. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4970.

Request for records should be directed to agency that maintains records and such request should be addressed to agency's records access officer; Freedom of Information Law requires that applicant reasonably describe records sought and include sufficient detail to enable agency officials to locate records. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4974.

When making request, Freedom of Information Law does not require applicant identify records sought with specificity; rather, Law merely requires that request reasonably describe records sought and request meets the standard of reasonably describing when agency officials can locate records based on terms of request. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4975.

49. — —Writing requirement for lists

Requests for records should be made in writing and reasonably describe record sought; therefore, requests should include sufficient detail to enable agency officials to locate records. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4823.

Request for records should be made in writing and should reasonably describe records sought; therefore, when making request, sufficient detail should be included to enable agency officials to locate records. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4938.

Agency may always require that applicant request records in writing; when request is made applicant must reasonably describe record sought and if agency officials cannot determine which records have been requested, request likely did not meet "reasonably describe" standard and response to that effect should be given to applicant. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4955.

Freedom of Information Law is not vehicle that requires governmental entity or public officer to answer questions; it is a vehicle that enables public to seek existing records. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4069.

Freedom of Information Law merely requires agencies to respond to requests for records; it does not oblige public officials to provide information by answering questions. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4582.

Freedom of Information Law is vehicle under which person may request records from agency; further agency is obliged to respond to such request, but Freedom of Information Law is not vehicle that requires agency officials to respond or prepare answers to questions. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4775.

To extent that requestor is requesting information, answers to questions or explanations rather than existing records, agency is not required to produce information in order to respond to request; records should be reasonably described so that agency officials are able to locate records sought by means of description and vague requests that are merely descriptions of events will not fulfill this requirement. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4857.

Three-member board of assessment review, as "public body" and "agency," was required to prepare minutes in accordance with CLS Pub O §§ 87(3)(a) and 106, including record of each member's vote. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3499.

50. —Voting matters

Each agency is required to maintain record of final vote of each member in every agency proceeding in which member votes. Committee on Open Government FOIL-AO-3387.

Freedom of Information Law requires that every agency maintain record of final vote of each member and every agency proceeding in which members vote, such that preliminary votes that do not result in majority may not be recorded; however, vote resulting in affirmative total of majority of membership of agency would be required to be recorded and indicated how each member voted, such that secret balloting by members of agency would be improper where voting resulting in majority could not be recorded indicating how each member voted. 1986 Committee on Open Government FOIL-AO-4281.

Freedom of Information Law has so-called "open vote" requirement which requires record to identify by name those who vote it in favor or against measure. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-1394; Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4610.

Because of "open vote" provision and Freedom of Information Law, and since committee of public body is considered to be "agency", when final vote is taken by committee, record must be prepared to indicate manner in which each member casts his or her vote. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-1396, Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4638.

When action is taken by formal vote at open or executive sessions, the Freedom of Information Law and the Open Meetings Law both require open voting and a record of the manner in which each member voted. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-6226 (1990).

When a final vote is taken by a public body, a record, presumably minutes, must be prepared which indicate the manner in which each member cast his or her vote, and such record is subject to access under the Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-6244 (1990).

While CLS Pub O § 87(3)(a) requires that agency maintain voting records indicating how each member cast his or her vote, because committees created by New York/New Jersey Harbor Estuary Program (HEP) are not agencies, New York Freedom of Information Law and its requirement concerning record of votes would not be applicable. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8324.

Vote of city's common council resulting in affirmative total of majority of membership must be recorded, indicating how each member voted; state legislature, in precluding secret ballot voting, sought to ensure that public has right to know how its representatives voted individually with respect to particular issues. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-10002.

Freedom of Information Law does not require agency to keep separate list of voting records of each individual so long as minutes indicate how each member cast his or her vote. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12040.

Board of elections is not required to include optional field to fill in voter's home phone number in addition to required voter registration information, but if phone numbers are included in computerized records maintained by board, they are accessible under Freedom of Information law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12067.

Board of College of Staten Island Association, Inc., which oversees allocation and expenditure of student activity fees, is subject to Open Meetings Law and Freedom of Information Law when electing directors; however, neither statute requires voting by roll call or specifies that results must be announced exactly when votes are cast, and both statutes are satisfied so long as record is prepared indicating each member's vote. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3502.

There is nothing in either Freedom of Information or Open Meetings Laws that specifies that vote must be accomplished by means of roll call or that vote be "announced exactly as the same time it is cast." Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-4264.

Freedom of Information Law finds that agency may deny access to record or portion thereof which if disclosed would endanger life or safety of any person; names of all agency employees are likely to be available except to extent that CLS Pub Off § 87(2)(f) applies. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4735.

All agencies, including Department of Correctional Services, are required to maintain payroll list in accordance with Freedom of Information Law; however, agency may withhold records or portions of records when disclosure would endanger life or safety of any person. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4894.

When requesting records from agency, applicant should request copies of records rather than information generally. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4977.

Any contract between agency and one or more public employees must be disclosed. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8511.

If record sought under Freedom of Information Law is payroll list required to be maintained pursuant to CLS Pub O § 87(3)(b), it must be disclosed, irrespective of its intended use for commercial or fundraising purposes. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9523.

Report required by law to be submitted to state legislature by state agency would be available from legislature pursuant to CLS Pub O § 88(2)(g) or would be available from agency pursuant to CLS Pub O § 87(2). Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12158.

Payroll record that identifies all officers or employees by name, public office address, title and salary must be prepared to comply with Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12776.

51. Requester's identity and purpose, generally

52. —Commercial purpose of request

Neither purpose for which record was requested nor status of requester as representative of union would be relevant to rights of access because if record is available under Freedom of Information Law, it should be made equally available to any person, notwithstanding one's status or interest. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4758.

Purpose for which request is made is generally irrelevant and ordinarily has no bearing upon rights of access because accessible records should be made equally available to any person, without regard to status or interest; however, agency may inquire with respect to purpose of request when request involves list of names and addresses to determine whether records would be used for commercial purpose and, therefore, whether disclosure would result in unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4818.

Status of applicant or the purpose for which requests for records is made are irrelevant to rights of access, and agency cannot inquire as to intended use of records; however, rights of access to list of names and addresses, or equivalent records, may be contingent upon possible commercial purpose for which request is made. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4879.

Restriction imposed by county, that recipient must certify that he/she will not use list of names and addresses for commercial or fund-raising purposes, was consistent with Freedom of Information Law, but restriction that recipient "will not sell, give or otherwise transmit" list of names and addresses was overbroad. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-16609.

53. —Litigant as requester

Pendency or possibility of litigation has no effect upon use of Freedom of Information Law or rights of access, even though requests are made by potential or actual litigant. Committee on Open Government FOIL-AO-3394.

Even though applicant may be litigant in court proceedings, he may nonetheless seek records under Freedom of Information Law as member of public. 1986 Committee on Open Government FOIL-AO-4184.

Litigant has same rights of access to records under Freedom of Information Law as any member of public, notwithstanding interest in records or status as inmate. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4586.

If record is available to public under Freedom of Information Law, it cannot be withheld solely because applicant is litigant or because records relate to litigation; however, file might nonetheless contain records consisting of attorney work product or material prepared for litigation, as well as records subject to attorney client privilege; these records would be specifically exempted from disclosure. Comm On Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4605.

Although litigant might be able to seek records by means of discovery or other disclosure devices, as member of public, records may be sought pursuant to Freedom of Information Law, notwithstanding status as litigant. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4725.

Requester's status as litigant does not affect rights when records are requested under Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4801.

Freedom of Information Law requires no showing of materiality, relevance, necessity or any other purpose as condition for asserting rights of access to records; moreover, while records may not be available to litigant by means of discovery because those records might not be material or relevant to litigation, those same records might be available to any member of the public who seeks records under Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4889.

Pendency of litigation does not affect either rights of public or litigant under Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7549.

Fact that requester's client may have been subject of investigation or complaint does not, in and of itself, constitute basis for denial of access to records or affect her right to seek records under Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12924.

54. —Prison inmate or convict as requester

Neither Freedom of Information Law nor regulations require that records be transferred from their usual locations to accommodate applicant at site convenient to applicant. While inmates may be indigent or unable to travel, agency is not required to make records available at other than its designated or customary locations. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8519.

CLS Civil R §§ 79 or 79-a, which deal with forfeiture of one's civil rights, do not provide basis for county district attorney's office to deny access to existing records concerning requestor's arrest and conviction; when person seeks records under Freedom of Information Law (FOIL), he or she is as member of public, and records accessible under FOIL must be made equally available to any person, without regard to status or interest. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-10079.

Freedom of Information Law does not require that accessible records be transferred from their usual locations to accommodate applicant at site convenient to applicant; thus, while inmates may be indigent or unable to travel, agency is not required to make records available at other than its designated or customary locations. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-10220.

Freedom of Information Law process does not differ for incarcerated person and person who is not incarcerated. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12156.

55. —Representative capacity of requester, generally

56. — —Companion or friend

Records were improperly withheld from requester where agency's reasons for denial were because of requester's reasons for wanting to review records and because companions of requester were also interested in reviewing records. Comm on Open Govt FOIL-AO-3637.

Where recluse makes request for records under Freedom of Information Law, he may view records at offices of agency, request photocopies by mail, in which case up to 25 cents per photocopy plus cost of postage could be charged, or may have friend or "volunteer" pick up or make copies. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8306.

57. — —Employee organization

With respect to status of recognized employee organization, FOIL does not distinguish among applicants for records, and employee organization does not enjoy any special or greater rights than public generally under FOIL. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4076.

58. — —Family member

Under Freedom of Information Law, agency may charge up to 25 cents per photocopy; however, agency may not assess fee for making request for search or labor unless statute other than Freedom of Information Law permits such fees to be assessed; in addition, CLS Pub Health § 18 generally grants access to medical records to subjects of those records, but subject can be charged for reasonable fee for labor; however, records cannot be withheld solely due to inability to pay. Comm On Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4609.

Government offices, such as Human Resources Administration or Department of Social Services, are "agencies" subject to Freedom of Information Law; however, private facility would not likely be required to comply with Freedom of Information Law; records concerning foster care are generally confidential, however, if requester is parent of child, it is likely that parent has rights of access to records pertaining to child; consequently, request for records should be given to agency or agencies that maintain records in which requester is interested. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4924.

Freedom of Information Law was inapplicable to request for "any paragraph of any law that verifies" special referee's ruling that requestor's wife could not represent her friend in matrimonial hearing even though friend had given her power of attorney, as such request essentially sought interpretation of law requiring judgment as to which of several provisions might be applicable. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12128.

59. — —Lobbyists

Lists of lobbyists registered with Temporary State Commission on Lobbying must be disclosed, irrespective of status or interest of applicant, or intended use of such lists. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4895.

60. — —News media

News media enjoy no special rights of access under Freedom of Information Law; if record is available, it must be made equally available to any person without regard to status or interest; if record may be withheld from public, it is equally deniable if it is requested by news media. Committee on Open Government FOIL-AO-3396.

Freedom of Information Law generally does not distinguish among applicants for records, and members of news media and their representatives enjoy no special rights. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12206.

61. — —Public officers

A member of a board of education need not observe the procedures required of the general public for obtaining access to tapes of school board meeting for official purposes unless expressly so provided in a board regulation. 1980 Op St Compt File #163.

If it is clear that records are requested in performance of one's official duties, request might not be viewed as having been made under Freedom of Information Law; in such situation, if request is reasonable, and in absence of board rule or policy to contrary, member of public body should not generally be required to resort to Freedom of Information Law in order to seek or obtain records. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7634.

If request is reasonable, and in absence of village board rule or policy to contrary, mayor or member of village board should not generally be required to resort to Freedom of Information Law in order to seek or obtain records. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8387.

In most instances, board member seeking records without consent or approval of majority of total board membership has same rights as member of public, unless there is some right conferred on board member by law or rule. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12288.

Member of town board acting unilaterally, without consent or approval of majority of total membership of board, has same rights as public generally (unless some right is conferred on board member by law or rule) to obtain information relating to incident involving death of town resident while in police custody. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3158.

62. — —Town board meeting attendees

Town board member, acting unilaterally without consent or approval of majority of total membership of board, has same rights as those accorded to member of public under Freedom of Information Law, unless there is some right conferred on board member by means of law or rule; in absence of any such rule, member seeking records could presumably be treated in same manner as public generally. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12692.

Town board's practice of distributing copies of minutes at no cost to persons in attendance at meetings, while charging for minutes to those who requested them on following day, did not violate Freedom of Information Law so long as no individual was being singled out and all who requested copies after meetings received same treatment. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2705.

Accessible records must be made equally available to any person without regard to status or interest; there is no requirement that reason for request be stated or that applicant identify person that he or she might be representing. Committee on Open Government FOIL-AO-3392.

Private organization has right to make request, under Freedom of Information Law, to receive town property assessment information stored on computer tape. 1986 Committee on Open Government FOIL-AO-4261.

When records are accessible under Freedom of Information Law, they should be made equally available to any person regardless of status or interest; moreover, assuming that it is available under Freedom of Information Law, condition of agreeing not to sue in order to receive records pertaining to study of contaminated wells could not be imposed; only if report was prepared solely for litigation would denial on that basis be justified. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4628.

Reports of inspections constitute inter-agency or intra-agency materials that would be accessible or deniable depending upon their contents; rights of access to such reports should not differ or be distinguishable on basis of who may have requested report. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4641.

All applicants for information should be treated consistently and rules should be equally implemented, irrespective of identity or status of applicant or purpose for which request is made. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4686.

Town board member, "acting on his own", does not necessarily have right to obtain all town records "at any time for any reason." Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12910.

Agency may not condition request upon identification by requestor of name, telephone number, address, and motives of person who prompted inquiries. Committee on Open Government FOIL-AO-3392.

If record is accessible, it must be made available irrespective of purpose or reason for which request is made. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4471.

Purpose for which request is made, intended use of information, or status as litigants would not be relevant in determining rights of access because accessible records must be made equally available to any person, without regard to status or interests. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4751.

Purpose for which record is requested is generally irrelevant to its access; one instance when purpose for request may be relevant is when record involving listed names and addresses is used for commercial or fund-raising purposes. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4752.

Accessible records shall be made available to any person without regard to status or interest, so purpose for which records are requested is irrelevant to rights of access. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4794.

Upon receipt of request that reasonably describes records sought, agency is required to make requested records available except to extent that one or more grounds for denial applies; agency may not generally require individuals to supply additional information, such as social security number, before responding to request. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4822.

In situations in which agency has required that applicant state one reason for request, purpose for which record is sought is generally irrelevant to rights of access and agency may not require applicant to state reason or purpose for request. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4822.

Status of applicant or purposes for which records are requested is made are irrelevant to rights of access, and agency cannot inquire as to intended use of records. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4866.

Subject matter lists do not have to refer to each and every record maintained by agency; rather, it is intended to indicate categories of records maintained by agency; since subject matter list does not contain any personally identifiable information, and since its contents are clearly available, disclosure of subject matter lists cannot be conditioned upon demonstration of proof of date of birth or identification number; therefore, subject matter lists must be made available to any person, irrespective of applicant's status or interest. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4868.

Status or interest of applicant for records, or purpose for which request is made are irrelevant to rights of access; therefore, fact that applicant seeks to use records for commercial purpose has no effect on rights of access and request for license must be granted, even if request is made for commercial purpose; however, if request is made for list of names and addresses or its equivalent, purpose for which request is made may become relevant to rights of access based on unwarranted invasion of personal privacy, especially when that list may be used for commercial or fund raising purposes. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4926.

When records are available under Freedom of Information Law, they must be made equally available to any person, without regard to status or interest. Freedom of Information Law does not generally distinguish among applicants, and reason for which request is made is largely irrelevant to rights of access. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7637.

There is no provision of constitution or law that would authorize agency or representative to require that member of public "barter" in order to obtain information. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7936.

Email request that reasonably describes record sought should suffice under Freedom of Information Law; however, if applicant requests records that are accessible only to subject of those records, agency can require applicant to provide proof of identity and, until digital signatures are prevalent, email may be inadequate. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-11977.

When seeking records via email, requester is not obligated to include his or her name. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-16528.

B. Agencies Subject To Disclosure

63. In general

FOIL, as general matter, is applicable to records of state and local government in New York; it does not apply to records of private corporation. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-3998.

All records of agency are available, except to extent that records or portions thereof fall within one or more of grounds for denial in CLS Pub O § 87(2)(a) through (i); agency may withhold records to extent that disclosure would constitute unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4572.

Freedom of Information Law applies to entities of state and local government, while Personal Privacy Protection Law applies only to state agencies. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12592.

64. Building inspectors

Since information kept, held, filed, produced or reproduced for or by town would constitute "records" subject to rights of access granted by Freedom of Information Law, contract between town and private corporation would be available because none of grounds for denial would apply; similarly, town records reflective of building inspections are generally available. Comm On Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4601.

65. Courts and court-related entities. generally

66. —Administration of courts, including Office of Court Administration (OCA)

Administrative Board of New York State Courts is "agency" subject to requirements of Freedom of Information Law; Board performs administrative function and does not exercise judicial function within definition of "judiciary" in CLS Pub O § 86(1). Committee on Open Government FOIL-AO-3503.

Office of Court Administration, which is administrative arm of court system and not court itself, is "agency" required to comply with Freedom of Information Law. 1986 Committee on Open Government FOIL-AO-4212.

Freedom of Information Law pertains to records maintained units of state and local government, except state legislature and judiciary; court records are not subject to rights of access under Freedom of Information Law, but are governed by Judiciary Law. Comm On Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4590.

If request involves records related to sentencing, records sought would be maintained by court rather than "agency"; if this is so, Freedom of Information Law would not be applicable. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4598.

Although Freedom of Information Law does not apply to courts or court records, other provisions of law often grant the right of access to court records. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4667.

Freedom of Information Law is not applicable to courts or court records; further, federal Freedom of Information Act pertains only to records in possession of federal agencies; moreover, courts and court records fall outside of requirements of federal Freedom of Information Act. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4692.

Freedom of Information Law pertains to records maintained by local and state government, except judiciary and state legislature; as such, Law does not apply to courts or to federal agencies, such as drug enforcement agency; records of federal agencies are generally subject to rights of access in accordance with Freedom of Information Act, federal statute; records of court proceedings are likely maintained by court where proceeding took place and request should be directed to clerk of court. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4778.

Freedom of Information Law does not pertain to courts or court records; however, court records are generally available in accordance with relevant provisions of judiciary law and other statutes; copies of felony complaints and indictments may be maintained by office of District Attorney who prosecuted case and since district attorney's office is agency subject to Freedom of Information Law, request may be submitted under Freedom of Information Law to relevant district attorney's office for such records. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4799.

Since office of district attorney is "governmental entity" that performs "governmental function" for state and public corporation, county, it is agency required to comply with Freedom of Information Law; Freedom of Information Law does not apply to courts and court records, and such records are often available under other provisions of law, however, request for records should be submitted to clerk of appropriate court. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4802.

Courts and court records are not subject to Freedom of Information Law; however, other provisions of law may grant broad rights of access to court records. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4862.

Freedom of Information Law does not apply to courts or court records, or to records maintained by private attorney; nevertheless, court records are often available pursuant to other provisions of law, and requests for such records should be directed to clerk of appropriate court; pre-sentence reports are confidential with respect to public and may be made available to defendant only by court. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4865.

Although Freedom of Information Law does not apply to courts and court records, other provisions of law often grant broad rights of access to court records; therefore, it is suggested that requests should be made to clerk of appropriate court. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4873.

Freedom of Information Law does not apply to courts or court records, or to records maintained by attorney; nevertheless, court records are often available pursuant to other provisions of law, and such requests should be directed to clerk of appropriate court; pre-sentence reports are confidential with respect to public and may be made available to defendant only by court. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4881.

Freedom of Information Law does not apply to court or court records and though Freedom of Information Law is inapplicable, other provisions of law often grant significant rights of access to court records; where county court clerk has failed to respond to requests for records pursuant to Freedom of Information Law, requester should discuss matter with attorney or representative of prisoners' legal services. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4887.

67. Fire departments, generally

68. —Volunteers

Volunteer fire company is agency subject to provisions of FOIL. Comm On Open Gov't FOIL-AO-3934.

If "financial statement" is prepared by officials of volunteer fire company, it is assumed that statement would be available under Freedom of Information Law, and while certain aspects of interagency materials may be denied, those portions consisting of statistical or factual tabulations or data would be available. 1986 Committee on Open Government FOIL-AO-4175.

Volunteer fire company is "agency" that falls within provisions of Freedom of Information Law because volunteer fire company performs governmental function and, as such, its records are subject to rights of access granted by Freedom of Information Law; under Freedom of Information Law, all records of volunteer fire company are available except to extent that they fall within one or more grounds for denial of access. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4917.

Volunteer fire companies are subject to Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7640.

Volunteer fire companies created as private corporations are subject to Freedom of Information Law, and their financial records, as well as records reflective of response times, generally consist of factual data that must be disclosed. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9947.

Volunteer fire companies are subject to Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3904.

Franklin Square & Munson Fire District is public corporation (CLS Gen Const § 66, CLS Town § 174) required to comply with Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12,345.

Board of Fire Commissioners of a fire district is an "agency" subject to the requirements of the Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Govt FOIL-AO 2994.

If associated fire department does not contract with municipality or perform fire fighting services, but rather serves merely as independent benevolent association with voluntary membership, it might be found that it performs no governmental function and therefore falls outside scope of Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Govt FOIL-AO 3082.

While requests for recommendations contained within fire inspection reports may be deniable as intra-agency materials, names of fire inspectors and locations of inspections might be considered factual information available under Freedom of Information Law, and further, if inspectors maintain log or similar document which indicates locations of inspections, such document, which factually describes where inspector's day is spent, would likely be available, unless different ground for denial applies. 1986 Committee on Open Government FOIL-AO-4385.

If ambulance department is private, profit-making entity that is independent of government, its records would not be subject to Freedom of Information Law; however, when fire departments that are not-for-profit corporation contract with one or more municipalities where they exist by virtue of contractual relationship with government may have its records be subject to Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4644.

Medical information contained in ambulance run record of fire department could be withheld on ground that disclosure can constitute unwarranted invasion of personal privacy, except to extent that record refers to agency name and other information that has already been disclosed by means of motor vehicle accident report. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4786.

Since fire district is public corporation, it is "agency" subject to Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8538.

Fire district is public corporation and, therefore, is "agency" required to comply with Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2598.

Volunteer ambulance company performing its duties for ambulance district, which is itself public corporation, is subject to the Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12548.

Access to records of Slaterville Ambulance, Inc., which was formed by Slaterville Volunteer Fire Company, was governed by Freedom of Information Law, since members of ambulance corporation were also members of volunteer fire company, ambulance corporation was analogous to subsidiary of fire company, and same persons oversaw, used and administered their records. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3508.

Hospital which is part of New York City Health and Hospitals Corporation is "agency" required to comply with Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Govt FOIL-AO-3593.

New York City Health and Hospitals Corporation is agency required to comply with Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9189.

Hospital incident reports can be characterized as records that are specifically exempted from disclosure by state or federal statute. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4587.

Request made to obtain medical records from department of correctional services should be brought not under Freedom of Information Law but under CLS Pub Health § 18; § 18 provides rights that exceed those granted by Freedom of Information Law. Comm On Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4608.

Hospital is "agency" or part of agency and its records are subject to rights of access granted by Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4758.

Reports prepared by health network that are forwarded to town advisory committee are town records that fall within coverage of Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9247.

Board of managers of city hospital constitutes "public body" for purposes of Open Meetings Law and "agency" for purposes of Freedom of Information Law and is required to comply with both statutes. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9478.

Roswell Park Cancer Institute is required to comply with Freedom of Information Law since it is under management and control of Department of Health. Roswell Park Alliance Foundation is not required to comply with Freedom of Information Law since it is non-profit corporation, its employees are paid by Foundation and not by Roswell Park Cancer Institute or Department of Health, it employs its own attorneys and, like all not-for-profit corporations in New York, it is subject to oversight and filing requirements imposed by Office of Attorney General, and not Department of Health. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9667.

Health research not-for-profit corporation was "agency" subject to Freedom of Information law where corporation's essential purpose was to enhance functioning of state Health Department, and it would not exist but for its relationship with that agency. Even if entities in question (not-for-profit health research institute and university research foundation) were not "agencies," their records would fall within scope of Freedom of Information Law due to their relationships with state Department of Health and state university, respectively, both of which clearly were agencies. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12685.

Office of Medical Examiner is "agency" subject to FOIL. Comm On Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4171.

73. Housing authorities

Municipal housing authorities in New York are subject to Freedom of Information Law since CLS Pub Hous § 3(2) states that municipal housing authorities are public corporations. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12634.

74. Industrial developments and the like, generally

75. —Hudson River-Black River Regulatory District

Any documentation maintained by Hudson River-Black River Regulating District constitutes agency record subject to rights of access, and District is required to disclose its records to extent required by Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7917.

76. —Festival Development Corporations (FDCs)

Festival Development Corporation (FDC) which was created by town board initially to deal with Woodstock Festival, and FDC's board of directors which consisted of 5 members of town board, were subject to same requirements of Open Meetings and Freedom of Information Laws as town board itself, as FDC was essentially alter ego of town board when it voted to use proceeds from festival to build new town hall. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3193.

77. —Local development corporations (LDCs)

Many of records of local development (LDC) would remain subject to Freedom of Information Law, even if corporation were not itself subject to that statute as not-for-profit corporation, where corporation performed government function and several members of its board served due to their status as city officials. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12386.

Local development corporation (LDC) would be required to comply with Freedom of Information Law, notwithstanding its status as not-for-profit corporation, if there is significant government control, i.e., if majority of LDC's board of directors consists of or is designated by government. If town official acting in his or her capacity as town official serves on local development corporation (LDC) board, records that he or she produces or receives in that capacity would be town records subject to rights conferred by Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12401.

Carthage Industrial Development Corporation (local development corporation) would constitute "agency" required to comply with Freedom of Information Law, since at least 7 of 9 members of corporation, who also serve as its board of directors, are appointed by or are government officials, and thus government agencies exercise substantial control over corporation. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-4267.

78. —New York State Technology Enterprise Corporation

New York State Technology Enterprise Corporation (NYSTEC) is not "agency" and is not required to comply with Freedom of Information Law, since NYSTEC is independent of government; no government agency or official has any control over corporation or authority to designate any person to NYSTEC's Board of Directors. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12603.

79. —Off-Tack Betting corporation (OTB)

In Committee's view, New York City OTB Corporation is agency subject to provisions of FOIL. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-3997.

80. —Port Authority of New York and New Jersey

As a bi-state entity, the Port Authority of New York and New Jersey is probably not subject to the Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Govt FOIL-AO 3061.

Port Authority of New York and New Jersey is not "agency" subject to Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Govt FOIL-AO-3586.

Since Port Authority is bi-state entity operating in New York and New Jersey, it is not subject to New York, New Jersey or federal freedom of information statutes. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7563.

81. —Urban development Corporation (UDC)

Urban Development Corporation is subject to Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8551.

82. —Woodstock Public Access Committee

Woodstock Public Access Committee is public body required to comply with Open Meetings Law and its records are subject to Freedom of Information Law since 5 members of committee are appointed by town board, and chair of committee and station manager are also appointed by town board. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9236.

An industrial development agency is an "agency" subject to the Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Govt FOIL-AO 3059.

Industrial development agencies incorporated under CLS N-PCL § 1411 constitute agencies subject to Freedom of Information Law to extent that agencies operate as extensions of government that carry out their duties in conjunction with government. Committee on Open Government FOIL-AO-3340.

Since state office of court administration is "agency" required to comply with Freedom of Information Law, if functions of city office of court administration are similar to those carried out by its state counterpart, it would be "agency" for purposes of Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4746.

Records held by court or court clerk fell outside scope of Freedom of Information Law; however, office of court administration is "agency" subject to Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4931.

Industrial development agency is subject to the requirements of the Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-6318 (1990).

Since industrial development agencies are public corporations, Montgomery County Industrial Development Agency is subject to Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8551.

Office of Court Administration is not court, but rather is "agency" and, therefore, is subject to Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9208.

Audiotape of judicial seminar/discussion conducted by Office of Court Administration was agency record subject to Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9403.

Records involving activities of Fort Totten Redevelopment Authority generally fall within coverage of Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2603.

Not-for-profit "Local Development Corporation" performed governmental function and was subject to Open Meetings Law and Freedom of Information Law, where 5 of its 9 permanent members were city officials (mayor, city manager, corporation counsel, comptroller, and chairman of Industrial Development Agency). Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2774.

83. Insurance entities

Neither New York Automobile Insurance Plan (Assigned Risk Plan, CLS Insurance § 5301) nor committee designated to administrator plan (CLS Insurance § 5302) is subject to Freedom of Information Law or Open Meeting Law. 1986 Committee on Open Government FOIL-AO-4306.

Private insurance company is not "agency" and records that it produces are not subject to Freedom of Information Law; however, when its records are submitted to agency, records are subject to rights granted by Freedom of Information Law; definition of "agency" excludes state legislature, as well as "judiciary", but Office of Court Administration is "agency" and its records are subject to Freedom of Information Law; similarly, records of division of budget are "agency records". Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4617.

84. Law and lawyers, generally

85. —District Attorney's office

District attorney's office records are subject to FOIL. Comm On Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4035.

Office of District Attorney is "agency" subject to Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4127.

Since office of district attorney is "governmental entity" that performs "governmental function" for state and public corporation, it is agency required to comply with Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4652.

Since office of district attorney is governmental entity that performs governmental functions for state and federal corporation, such as county, it is agency required to comply with Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4701.

Since district attorney's office is "governmental entity" that performs "governmental function" for state and public corporation, such as county, it is agency required to comply with Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4716.

Since office of district attorney is "governmental entity" that performs "governmental function" for state and public corporation, it is agency required to comply with Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4746.

Freedom of Information Law does not pertain to courts or court records; however, court records are generally available in accordance with relevant provisions of judiciary law and other statutes; copies of felony complaints and indictments may be maintained by office of District Attorney who prosecuted case and since district attorney's office is agency subject to Freedom of Information Law, request may be submitted under Freedom of Information Law to relevant district attorney's office for such records. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4799.

Since office of district attorney is "governmental entity" that performs "governmental function" for state and public corporation, county, it is agency required to comply with Freedom of Information Law; Freedom of Information Law does not apply to courts and court records, and such records are often available under other provisions of law, however, request for records should be submitted to clerk of appropriate court. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4802.

Since office of district attorney is "governmental entity" that performs "governmental function" for state and public corporation, it is agency required to comply with Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4865.

Subject matter lists refer to general categories of records that agency maintains; subject matter list is not required to identify each and every record of agency or refer to records pertaining to particular individual; all agencies, including district attorney's office, are required to maintain subject matter lists and these lists must be made available to public. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4890.

Office of district attorney is "agency" and, therefore, records maintained by office of district attorney are subject to rights of access granted by Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4902.

District Attorney's office is "agency" subject to Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4972.

Since office of District Attorney is governmental entity that performs governmental function for state and public corporation, it is agency required to comply with Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4976.

Records of an office of a district attorney are subject to rights granted by the Freedom of Information Law; however, records compiled for law enforcement purposes can be withheld to the extent that disclosure would result in harmful effects described in CLS Public Officers Law § 87(2)(e)(i-iv). Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-6220 (1990).

Police departments or offices of district attorneys constitute agencies required to comply with Freedom of Information Law; however, courts and court records are outside coverage of Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7538.

If District Attorney, as head of District Attorney's Office, is appeals person for purpose of Freedom of Information Law, only means of seeking review of his determination is through Article 78 proceeding. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9501.

86. —Legal aid societies

While legal aid societies which are agencies of local government may be subject to Freedom of Information Law, it appears that most are not "agencies" as defined in Freedom of Information Law and, as such, are not subject to law; although Freedom of Information Law does not apply to courts or court records, request can be made to court clerk of county in which case was heard for relevant court records. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4691.

If legal aid society is not "governmental agency", but rather, not-for-profit corporation, it would not be subject to Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4741.

While legal aid societies which are agencies of local government may be subject to Freedom of Information Law, most are not "agencies" as that term is defined in Freedom of Information Law and, as such, are not subject to that statute. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8384.

87. —Prosecutors

Office of City Prosecutor is "agency" required to comply with Freedom of Information Law; and thus records pertaining to city code violation complaint directed to City Prosecutor must be made available under FOIL. Comm on Open Govt FOIL-AO-3727.

Since office of special prosecutor, department of correction and office of district attorney are "agencies", presumably any requested records would be equally available or exempt from disclosure, irrespective of which agency maintains records. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4704.

88. —Public Defenders

County office of public defender is required to comply with Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12535.

If plan under CLS County Art 18-B involves services of public defender, records maintained by office of public defender would fall within scope of Freedom of Information Law, for that office would constitute "agency" as defined in CLS Pub O § 86(3). Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-4016.

Ordinarily, attorney or attorney's office does not constitute agency, and records maintained by attorney or his or her office will fall beyond coverage of Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7573.

The Erie County Bar Association and its Assigned Counsel Program are not "agencies" subject to Freedom of Information Law; however, if bar association, for example, or other organization maintains records for county, those records would constitute county records. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-4016.

While records of governmental entity required to adopt plan under CLS County Art 18-B are subject to Freedom of Information Law, records of individual attorney or private organization performing services under Article 18-B may or may not be subject to Freedom of Information Law, depending on nature of plan. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-4016.

If plan under CLS County Art 18-B involves services rendered by private attorneys or associations, those persons or entities would not constitute agencies subject to Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-4016.

89. Legislature of New York State

Members of state legislature are not required by FOIL to respond individually to requests. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4087.

Freedom of Information Law pertains to records maintained units of state and local government, except state legislature and judiciary; court records are not subject to rights of access under Freedom of Information Law, but are governed by Judiciary Law. Comm On Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4590.

Freedom of Information Law pertains to records maintained by local and state government, except judiciary and state legislature; as such, Law does not apply to courts or to federal agencies, such as drug enforcement agency; records of federal agencies are generally subject to rights of access in accordance with Freedom of Information Act, federal statute; records of court proceedings are likely maintained by court where proceeding took place and request should be directed to clerk of court. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4778.

90. Museums

Board of trustees of Suffolk County Vanderbilt Museum is "agency" required to comply with Freedom of Information Law; Board is also "public body" subject to Open Meetings Law. Committee on Open Government FOIL-AO-3676; OML-AO-1153.

If museum board of trustees is not governmental entity performing governmental or proprietary function for town, but rather is independent, nongovernmental, not-for-profit corporation, it would not be "agency". Comm On Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4596.

Not-for-profit Slate Valley Museum Foundation was "public body" whose records were subject to Freedom of Information Law, considering its nexus with Village of Granville, where it had more than 2 members, and it appeared to conduct public business and perform governmental function for Village of Granville, for which quorum was required. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3433.

91. Police departments

If record is accessible under Freedom of Information Law, it is available for both inspection and copying; further, when there has been intentional public disclosure of record, it is unlikely that there would be any basis for denial of subsequent requests for inspection or copying of that record; since police department's patrol guide is available for review at certain public location, copies of that record should be available from agency that maintains it. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4817.

Records of a Board of Police Commissions are subject to rights conferred by the Freedom of Information Law to the extent that records or portions thereof fall within one or ore grounds for denial under the provisions of CLS Public Officers Law § 87(2)(a-i). Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-6315 (1990).

Police departments or offices of district attorneys constitute agencies required to comply with Freedom of Information Law; however, courts and court records are outside coverage of Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7538.

92. Private corporations, generally

93. —Not-for-profit corporations

Not-for-profit corporation which, among other functions, operated tennis concessions at city parks was subject to Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9625.

Not-for-profit corporation that contracts with SUNY/Albany to carry out variety of functions, including operation of food service, campus bookstore and beverage vending, is required to comply with both Freedom of Information Law and Open Meetings Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-13068.

Research Foundation of City University of New York is subject to Freedom of Information Law and Open Meetings Law, even though foundation regards itself as private corporation under contract to university. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-13140.

If Southern Tier Economic Development Corporation (STED) is creation of government or if government has substantial control over its operations, it would fall within coverage of Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-13181.

When records involving Southern Tier Economic Development Corporation (STED) come into possession of member of its board who serves due to his or her government position, they would constitute agency records that fall within coverage of Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-13181.

Private not-for-profit agency that received majority of its funds from state Office of Alcoholism and Substance Abuse Services was local "drug abuse prevention council" under CLS Gen Mun § 239-u and, as such, constituted agency whose records fell within coverage of Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-16573.

Despite amendment to certificate of local recreation development corporation, which was intended to reduce number of city officials and designees on its board of directors so that they no longer comprised majority of board, many of corporation's records remained subject to Freedom of Information Law, and its meetings arguably remained subject to Open Meetings Law. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3234.

Chautauqua Institution Architectural Review Board, formed as not-for-profit corporation governed by special acts of state legislature, was not subject to Open Meetings or Freedom of Information Laws, since it was separate and distinct from government, it operated without financial assistance from government, and its land regulations were based on deed restrictions rather than assertion of any governmental authority. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3307.

Not-for-profit corporation known as Clarence Senior Citizens, Inc. is subject to Freedom of Information and Open Meetings Laws; its directors are appointed by majority of Clarence Town Board, number of directors can be increased or decreased by Clarence Town Board, its directors can be removed for cause by majority of members of its board and majority of Clarence Town Board, and its directors can be removed without cause only by Clarence Town Board. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3483.

New York Public Library, founded in 1895 by Astor, Lenox and Tilden foundations to provide "private philanthropy for the public good," is private not-for-profit institution not subject to Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3579.

Corporation is not governmental entity even though it has relationship with government; as such, its records are not subject to Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4613.

Since Freedom of Information Law generally applies to governmental entities, private corporation is not subject to Law; furthermore, there is no state statute that generally requires private corporations to respond to requests for records. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4615.

Private insurance company is not "agency" and records that it produces are not subject to Freedom of Information Law; however, when its records are submitted to agency, records are subject to rights granted by Freedom of Information Law; definition of "agency" excludes state legislature, as well as "judiciary", but Office of Court Administration is "agency" and its records are subject to Freedom of Information Law; similarly, records of division of budget are "agency records". Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4617.

Although it consists largely of government employees, Police Benevolent Association of City of New York, Inc., is private organization not subject to Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-16577.

94. Schools and related activities, generally

95. —Board of Cooperative Educational Services (BOCES)

Agency need not create or prepare record in response to request; therefore, if board of co-operative educational services does not maintain statistical data involving race, ethnicity or sex, it is not required to prepare data on behalf of request. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4914.

96. —City University of New York (CUNY)

Personnel and budget committees created under City University of New York bylaws must comply with both Freedom of Information and Open Meetings Laws, although much of their deliberative process may be conducted in executive session under CLS Pub O § 105(1)(f) and their recommendations can likely be withheld in great measure under CLS Pub O § 87(2)(g). Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12284.

Even if Research Foundation of City University of New York (CUNY) had no independent responsibility to comply with Freedom of Information (FOIL), its records fell within coverage of FOIL; foundation administered all grants and contracts awarded to CUNY faculty and staff for research, training, education and services pursuant to state-approved agreement with CUNY and, while foundation was legally and financially separate from CUNY, it performed governmental function based on its nexus with CUNY and degree of control exercised by CUNY over its 17-member board. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3398.

97. —Community colleges

Student government association of community college is "agency" subject to Freedom of Information Law. Committee on Open Government FOIL-AO-3500.

Community college is "agency" under Freedom of Information Law and community college's records are subject to rights of access under Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4629.

Payroll record, which is required to be compiled, identifies faculty as part-time at community college; furthermore, it is implicit that payroll record required to be compiled pursuant to CLS Pub O § 87(3)(b) be current; if payroll record has not been prepared, proceeding could likely be commenced pursuant to CLS CPLR Article 78 to compel agency to perform duty that is required to be performed by law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4656.

Since community colleges are governmental entities performing governmental function, report concerning allegation of plagiarism is subject to rights of access granted by Freedom of Information Law; Federal Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act generally prohibits educational agency from disclosing "education records" identifiable to student without student's consent; therefore, to extent that Federal Act prohibits disclosure, records concerning allegation of plagiarism would be specifically exempted from disclosure by federal statute. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4904-A.

Suffolk Community College Association, Inc., was subject to Freedom of Information Law since association would not have existed but for its relationship with college. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8386.

98. —State University of New York (SUNY), generally

State University Construction Fund is "agency" required to comply with Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Govt FOIL-AO-3589.

New York State library is part of state education department and state university libraries are within state university; in both instances, those libraries are parts of agency and consequently, are subject to Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4663.

Clinical management practice program at state university is operated by and on behalf of state university and certain of its components and is "agency" because state university and components fall under this definition; further, records of or pertaining to clinical management practice plan are maintained by officers and employees of state university and therefore such records are subject to rights granted by Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4763.

State University of New York is "agency" required to comply with Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7871.

State university foundation was "agency" subject to Freedom of Information Law where foundation's purpose was "to serve the University," foundation could not carry out its duties without approval of university officials, and it was "integral part" of university; moreover, offices of foundation were located at university, and utilized university space. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12685.

Brockport Student Government at SUNY College at Brockport is agency subject to Freedom of Information Law since student government is involved in performing governmental function for, on behalf of or in conjunction with State University. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2599.

99. —Teachers' retirement system

Teachers' retirement system is governmental entity performing governmental or proprietary function for state and school districts, which are municipal entities; as such, it is agency required to comply with Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4699.

School district as well as entities operating under aegis of district can be characterized as "agency" subject to requirements of Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Govt FOIL-AO-3456.

While inter-agency or intra-agency materials may be withheld, portions of such materials consisting of statistical or factual information, instructions to staff that affect public or final agency policy determinations must be made available; however, if teacher who may have reached "conclusions" had no authority to make final agency determination, conclusions might not be considered "final", and even if these "conclusions" were used in making final determination, they could be denied. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4571.

Ratings of school teachers could be characterized as "intra-agency materials", and extent to which they may be accessible or deniable is largely dependent upon specific content of individual records since extent to which individual forms contain opinions and facts differs from one form to next. Comm On Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4592.

Freedom of Information Law pertains to records of agencies of state and local government; community colleges throughout state are "agencies" subject to requirements of Freedom of Information Law. Comm On Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4593.

Unsatisfactory lesson observation reports, pertaining to named teachers, would constitute intra-agency material that would be available or deniable, in whole or in part, based upon specific contents; however, individual rating reports, which also pertain to named teachers, could be accessible since social security numbers, file numbers, and possibly those reasons which were merely opinions, could be masked out and would therefore not be an unwarranted invasion of personal privacy; individual rating reports are accessible under Freedom of Information Law as long as they are final agency determinations. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4642.

Freedom of Information Law pertains generally to records of agency which includes entities of state and local governments such as school districts; while law provides statutory guidance concerning access to records of agencies, it makes no specific reference to records of school district; if record is final and does not identify particular students, it appears it would be accessible; to extent that such report might identify particular student or students, those aspects of report would be required to be kept confidential pursuant to federal law; in addition, if state education department maintains report, presumably it would be equally available from department and district. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4714.

Head of agency must designate appeals officer or body, who must be identified by name, title, business address and business telephone number; further, records access officer shall not be appeals officer. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4723.

Every agency, including school districts, are required to prepare and maintain certain lists; school district contains records of name classroom teachers, as those separate and distinct from payroll record, such record is available, however, if school district does not maintain such lists, Law would not require school district to create or prepare such lists based on request. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4752.

Terms of settlement and contract between school district and teacher would result in permissible rather than unwarranted invasion of personal privacy; such records are relevant to performance of official duties of school board and teacher, and, furthermore, it is clear that contracts between public employers and their employees are accessible because they represent terms and conditions under which public moneys are expended and public duties are performed. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4861.

Assuming that school district or high school maintains copy of yearbook, yearbook constitutes "record" that falls within scope of rights conferred by Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9618.

100. Transit authorities

Transit authority is required to disclose records to extent that records sought are accessible pursuant to Freedom of Information Law, and that it would be authorized to disclose as "routine use" of Personal Privacy Protection Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4964.

101. Utilities

While a public utility might be regulated by government, it is not a governmental entity performing a government function and consequently is not subject to rights of access granted by the Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Govt FOIL-AO 3019.

102. Other and miscellaneous agencies

Pursuant to § 60 of Town Law, town board meets requirements as "governing body" and is thus, pursuant to § 87 of FOIL, required to promulgate appropriate regulations applicable to all agencies in town government consistent with regulations of Committee on Open Government. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4085.

If documents are kept for town by its attorney in conjunction with representation of town official, they are records subject to rights granted by Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4753.

Information contained in state child abuse central registrar is confidential pursuant to Social Services Law and any rights applicant may have to information in register would be conferred by Social Services Law, rather than Freedom of Information Law or Personal Privacy Protection Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4980.

Crime Stoppers of Jefferson County, Inc., a not-for-profit corporation, was not subject to FOIL in that it was not a governmental agency. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-6113 (1990).

Office of Public Administrator constitutes agency required to comply with Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9358.

Special Funds Conservation Committee, which is affiliated with New York Compensation Rating Board and is headed by individual appointed by Chairman of Workers' Compensation Board, is not governmental entity and thus is not "agency" subject to Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9825.

If advisory commissions were created by town resolution, it would be likely that they were not agencies; on other hand, if commission were created by local law, for example, and performs necessary function in decision-making process, it would be subject to Open Meetings Law as "public body" and would constitute

"agency" subject to Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12641.

Mohawk & Hudson River Humane Society is not agency responsible for complying with Freedom of Information Law (FOIL); while some of its records may fall within scope of FOIL if they are "kept, held, filed, produced or reproduced...for an agency," responsibility to comply with FOIL does not involve society itself, but rather government agency whose records are maintained by society on its behalf. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3490.

Freedom of Information Law does not apply to New York State Ethics Commission. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3664.

C. Disclosure Requests

1. Generally

103. In general

For records kept by correctional facility, regulations of Department of Correctional Services indicate that request may be directed to facility superintendent; for records kept at Department's central offices in Albany, request may be sent to Deputy Superintendent for Administration. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4005 and 4006.

There is nothing in Freedom of Information Law that requires that hearing must be held when appeal of decision denying disclosure of records is made, and applicant, as general matter, merely indicates that denial of records was made by records access officer or by means of failure to respond to request on timely basis; moreover, there is nothing in law or regulations providing that appeals officer is bound to provide reasons for denial initially offered by records access officer, nor is there anything that binds court to reasons for denial stated by agency when it reviews matter in judicial proceeding. 1986 Committee on Open Government FOIL-AO-4302.

All records of agency are available, except to extent that records or portions thereof fall within one or more of grounds for denial appearing in CLS Pub O § 87(2)(a) through (i); failure of agency to respond within designated time of 5 days results in denial of access that may be appealed to head of agency or whomever is designated to determine appeals, and that person or body has 10 business days from receipt of appeal to render determination; contention that agency has insufficient manpower to comply with request for information is not valid defense. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4570.

Request for records should be directed to records access officer of agency or agencies that would maintain records which are requested; records sought should be reasonably described in sufficient detail so agency officials can locate them; all records of agency are available, except to extent that records or portions thereof fall within CLS Pub O § 87(2)(a) through (i). Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4579.

Once plans for relevant documentation are in possession of town they fall within scope of Freedom of Information Law and even though plans may be "preliminary" communications, those factors do not necessarily indicate that records can be withheld. Comm On Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4596.

Where person seeking records requests cases pertaining to particular geographical area and to certain criminal charges, education department may deny access to records if department keeps records by means of names and subject matter and could not locate records based on requester's qualifiers. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4631.

Request for records should reasonably describe records sought so to enable agency officials to locate records; request for records in question should be directed to facility superintendent. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4695.

Freedom of Information Law does not generally distinguish among applicants, and rights conferred by that statute are conferred on applicants for records as members of public. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7554.

While agency cannot require that appointment be made with respect to every request under Freedom of Information Law, applicant for accessible records should be able to make appointment to inspect those records during regular business hours when agency has regular business hours. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8347.

While board may choose to furnish information or records during meeting, it may require that request be made in accordance with its rules and regulations adopted under Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8449.

When agency determines that it maintains requested records and has retrieved records sought, it is reasonable for agency to indicate that applicant must respond in some manner as to his or her preference, schedule, or desire to pay fee for copies within reasonable time. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9491.

Member of public may not designate date or dates on which he or she seeks to review records, and thus if requested records will be in use by staff on particular date or during particular period of time, agency is not required to alter its schedule or work plan. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12206.

If electronic information can be extracted or generated with reasonable effort, and if that effort involves less time and cost to agency than engaging in manual deletions, agency should follow more reasonable and less costly and labor intensive course of action. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12565.

Office of District Attorney cannot limit requester's ability to inspect records to period less than its regular business hours. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12737.

If request involves variety of items, while applicant may ask that certain records be made available sooner than others, applicant may not require agency to make records available in certain order. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12737.

Requests made under Freedom of Information Law should themselves generally be disclosed, except where request includes intimate personal information, in which case identifying details may be withheld. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-13471.

104. "Continuous basis" requests

Freedom of Information Law is applicable only to existing records; and thus request to be provided, "on continuing basis," with all reports of particular state agency cannot be construed as request made under FOIL. Comm on Open Govt FOIL-AO-3538.

105. Form of request, generally

106. —Faxed requests

Absent judicial determination to contrary and assuming that such request is directed to appropriate person, i.e., records access officer, there is no basis to refuse to accept request for records under Freedom of Information Law made by means of fax transmission. Claim that agency can refuse to accept request for records under Freedom of Information Law made by fax transmission based on CLS CPLR § 2103 would be misplaced, since that provision deals with service of papers in legal proceeding and does not pertain or refer to request made to governmental entity under Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9232.

County police department could validly require that requests be made under Freedom of Information Law by submitting them either in person or by mail, rather than by fax transmission, where department's 5 fax machines served specific law enforcement functions and department received approximately 100,000 requests annually since receipt of requests by fax could have severe negative impact on ability of department to engage in authorized interdepartmental fax communications. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9312.

Public body may not determine to accept requests for records under Freedom of Information Law only if they are faxed to public body. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9547.

Agency must accept document requests made via fax machine, unless use of machine adversely impacts on agency's capacity to carry out its duties. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-10193.

Agency must accept requests made via fax machine, unless use of such machine adversely impacts on agency's capacity to carry out its duties. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-13094.

107. —Law cites not required

No provision of Freedom of Information Law requires that applicant cite particular provision within Public Officers Law in order to justify request for records. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9267.

108. —Writing requirement

Any written request for records that reasonably describes records sought should be sufficient, but failure to complete form prescribed by agency cannot serve to delay response to request or deny request. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4686.

Agency may require that request be made in writing and that request must contain sufficient detail to enable agency officials to locate and identify records sought. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7566.

Agencies may require that requests for records be made in writing, although they may choose to accept oral requests for records and act in informal manner in their responses to requests for records. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2791.

Although an agency may require that a request be made in writing, an applicant is not required to complete a form prescribed by the agency. Comm on Open Govt FOIL-AO 3023.

There is nothing in Freedom of Information Law that refers to any particular form that must be used in making request, and failure to complete form prescribed by agency cannot be considered valid basis for delaying or denying request. Committee on Open Government FOIL-AO-3353.

Failure to complete form prescribed by agency cannot constitute valid basis for delay or denying request for records under Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Govt FOIL-AO-3607.

Although agency may require that request for record be in writing, Freedom of Information Law does not require that particular form be used when requesting records; however, if requirement that request be made on agency prevents requested records from being made available within 5 business days of initial written request, requirement is unnecessarily restrictive, and if agency fails or refuses to respond to individual's request merely because agency request form is not completed, agency violates Freedom of Information Law. 1986 Committee on Open Government FOIL-AO-4344.

Failure to use "actual form" as opposed to photocopy when requesting records from agency cannot constitute valid basis for delaying response to request or denying request. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4655.

Any written request for records that reasonably describes records sought should be sufficient, but failure to complete form prescribed by agency cannot serve to delay response to request or deny request. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4686.

While agency may require that requests be in writing and that request reasonably describe records sought, there is no provision in Freedom of Information Law requiring or allowing agency to require particular language or wording in request for records; also, Freedom of Information Law is to facilitate public to gain access to records without regard to whether requester accurately cites relevant provisions of Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4782.

Any written request for records that reasonably describes records sought should suffice and failure to complete form prescribed by agency cannot serve to delay response or deny request for records; standard form may be utilized except to extent that it unnecessarily serves to delay response or deny request for records. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4875.

Although agency may require that request be made in writing or may make records available upon oral request, Freedom of Information Law is silent concerning use of standard forms; accordingly, any written request that reasonably describes records sought should suffice. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4920.

Town Clerk's requirement that a preprinted form be used to request documents and that a signature appear on such form was improper in that any request made in writing that reasonably describes the records sought would be adequate. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-6219 (1990).

While agency may not require that applicant complete request form prescribed by agency, it may require that request be made in writing in accordance with CLS Pub O § 89(3). Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8448.

Use of standard forms for Freedom of Information Law requests is inappropriate to extent it unnecessarily delays response to request for records, or results in denial of request. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-10004.

Parties may validly agree not to speak about settlement or agreement; however, Freedom of Information Law pertains to records, not to speech. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-13371.

City of Yonkers could not require those seeking records via email to use city's Freedom of Information request form, although use of prescribed form would likely be of benefit to people seeking city records. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-16607.

Agency may not require that request under Freedom on Information Law be made on prescribed form since use of standard forms is inappropriate to extent that it unnecessarily serves to delay response to or deny request for records; any written request that reasonably describes records sought should suffice. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2222.

109. Limit on number of records being requested

There is no statutory limitation on number of records that may be requested in single application for records, and there is no requirement that each record sought must be requested separately. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12,348.

Copies of land records in electronic form were available under Freedom of Information Law to land records company, or to any person, although almost 5 million images of deeds and mortgages, plus indices to such records, were involved; requested records already existed in electronic form, and "extensive programming" was not required. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-16560.

110. Requests for mailed records

Nothing in Freedom of Information Law or regulations promulgated by Committee on Open Government specifically deals with requests made and responses given by mail; however, due to size of state, inability of some people to physically travel to locations where records are kept, reality that many people work and cannot travel to those locations, and in view of intent of law, it is implicit that agencies must respond to requests by mail. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8536.

To give reasonable effect to Freedom of Information Law and its intent, agencies are required to mail records to applicants. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-13548.

111. Requests for photocopied records

Agency may not require applicant to make appointment to view or obtain records at its offices; further, assuming that applicant remits appropriate fee for copies, plus postage if it chooses to include such charge, agency would be required to send records accessible under Freedom of Information Law to applicant. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8536.

Ability of an agency to prohibit use of requestor's own copying or scanning equipment is dependent on reasonableness of prohibition considering physical arrangements of agency's premises and its staffing requirements or needs. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-10072.

It was unreasonable for inmate records coordinator or Department of Correctional Services to require, as matter of policy, that authorization to disclose inmate records bear original signature, where authorization was notarized; if photocopy is admissible in judicial proceeding for evidentiary purposes, it should be equally acceptable for purpose of authorizing disclosure under Freedom of Information or Personal Privacy Protection Laws. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-10345.

112. Specificity of request for disclosure, generally

113. —Not sufficiently specific request

Request for copies of all "records" in possession or control of city or any "agency" thereof in which there is not any mention, reference of illusion to particular theater, does not reasonably describe records sought. Comm on Open Govt FOIL-AO-3526.

Request for letters sent to town, or to particular office, officer or department of town government, within specific week or month, would "reasonably describe" records sought in accordance with Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Govt FOIL-AO-3598.

Whether request reasonably describes records sought may be dependent upon terms of request, as well as nature of agency's filing or record-keeping system. Division of Human Rights was not required to review 14-volume set of materials containing variety of information, which process would take weeks, in order to reply to request for all policy statements of Division that were currently in effect pertaining to employment discrimination under Human Rights Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7584.

If request under Freedom of Information Law involves minutes of agency insofar as they deal with particular subject, and if minutes are not topically indexed, agency staff would not be required to review all of minutes in effort to locate particular items within them. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8288.

Even assuming that request for vouchers of persons paid in specific judicial district through Family Court including experts, investigators, law guardians, attorneys and like involved records of Office of Court Administration, rather than courts records (which are not available under Freedom of Information Law), it appeared that request did not reasonably describe records sought as thousands of vouchers were filed each year but were not filed by judicial district. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9208.

Request for "all information kept regarding [my] property" did not reasonably describe records sought if town maintained records falling within scope of such request in number of locations or departments and by means of different filing systems within those departments; moreover, if records were kept chronologically, it might not be possible to locate them by means of name or address. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-10280.

114. —Sufficiently specific request

Request for record concerning street repairs and risks of pending lawsuit identified location of repairs as well as time period during which repairs were made "reasonably described" records. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4675.

It appeared that minutes of meetings held by industrial development agency could be readily retrieved and that request for minutes covering period of 3 years would reasonably describe records sought by applicant. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8288.

If case records identify police officer or officers who prepared complaint follow-up report ("DD5), then police department has ability to locate that officer and acquire activity log for purpose of determining rights of access to portions pertaining to case; if so, then request reasonably describes records, as required by Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-10038.

If speeding tickets issued within particular time frame can be retrieved by means of name of trooper who issued them, request for all such tickets issued within that period, for purpose of ascertaining whether officer issues citations "all at 75 mph," would meet standard imposed by law because, on receipt of tickets, applicant could review and analyze them himself. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-10343.

Applicants request for city police Field Interview Forms (FIFs), despite volume of material, met requirement of "reasonably describing" records and could not be rejected due to its breadth. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12565.

Freedom of Information Law requires that person requesting records must "reasonably describe" records sought so agency officials can locate records; however, certain records may justifiably be withheld if information sought includes other people in addition to requester because that would cause unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4574.

Request for records should be directed to records access officer of agency or agencies that would maintain records which are requested; records sought should be reasonably described in sufficient detail so agency officials can locate them; all records of agency are available, except to extent that records or portions thereof fall within CLS Pub O § 87(2)(a) through (i). Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4579.

When requesting transcript of hearing before parole board, request should be directed to agency which maintains such records—division of parole; however, while making such requests, sufficient detail should be provided as to enable agency officials to locate records. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4634.

Freedom of Information Law states that agency may require that request for records be in writing, and that request reasonably describe records sought; any written request that reasonably describes records sought should suffice; moreover, failure to complete form prescribed by agency cannot constitute valid basis for delaying response to request or denying access to records. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4646.

When requesting records, specific nature and contents of each record must be provided or grounds for denial may apply. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4659.

Freedom of Information Law requires each agency to have "records access officer" to whom requests may be directed and who has duty of coordinating agency's response to request for records; therefore, requests should be sent to "records access officer" in relevant agency; request should be made in writing and should reasonably describe record so that there is sufficient detail to enable agency officials to locate records. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4693.

When making requests under Freedom of Information Law, requests should be for existing records rather than information and should be as specific as possible in describing records so that agency officials can identify and locate records sought. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4884.

When making request, Freedom of Information Law does not require applicant to identify records sought with specificity; rather, law merely requires that request reasonably describe records sought and that request meets the standard of reasonably describing when agency officials can locate records based on terms of request. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4975.

Whether request under Freedom of Information Law reasonably describes records sought may be dependent on terms of request, as well as nature of agency's filing system. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7509.

Journalist or member of public cannot require a portion of police report by referring to specific incident; rather, applicant could request report or reports as they pertain to particular days or dates. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8546.

Applicant is not required to identify with particularity exactly which record, or perhaps which portion of record, he or she may be interested in reviewing; thus, journalist or member of public cannot require a portion of a report by referring to a specific incident, but can, instead, request report or reports as they pertain to particular days or dates. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9455.

Requests for oaths of office, which may be filed with respect to some individuals, are filed chronologically; thus, requestor must include year in which oath was filed in order to locate and obtain copies of those records. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9991.

To extent that records sought from village could be located with reasonable effort, request reasonably described them; however, to extent that records were not maintained in manner that permitted their retrieval except by reviewing perhaps thousands of records individually in effort to locate those falling within scope of request, request was too broad. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-10108.

Request for "911 police radio dispatch tapes" generated over 10 years earlier, and citing certain date, likely would meet standard of reasonably describing records if directed to small police department; on other hand, if 911 calls are received in different locations, due, for example, to size or population of county, request of that nature might not meet standard of reasonably describing records. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12589.

Identifying records that indicate "criticism" might, in some circumstances, be problematic, and such request may not, at least in part, reasonably describe records sought under Freedom of Information Law. Requests for "any and all memorandum, resolutions, draft resolutions, correspondence or press releases calling for the holding of legislative hearings into any of the controversies surrounding" named county executive and district attorney would meet requirement of reasonably describing records; on other hand, if such records were not maintained in manner that permitted their retrieval except by reviewing perhaps hundreds or even thousands of records individually in effort to locate those falling within scope of request, to that extent, requests would not meet standard reasonably describing records. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12631.

With regard to request under Freedom of Information Law for minutes of meetings, it appeared that minutes of meetings could be readily retrieved and that request for minutes covering period of 3 years would reasonably describe records; however, with regard to request for minutes insofar as they dealt with particular subject, and if minutes were not topically indexed, agency staff would not be required to review all of minutes in effort to locate particular items within them. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2349.

115. Time element of request

School district regulation providing that public records could only be seen between 3 and 4 p.m. on day school offices were open is unduly restrictive and invalid under Freedom of Information Law; if agency maintains regular business hours, it is required to accept requests and produce records during those hours. Comm on Open Govt FOIL-AO-3664.

Although Freedom of Information Law provides direction concerning time and manner in which agency must respond to requests, it does not include any provision that specifies period within which records must be disclosed. While agency must grant access to records, deny access or acknowledge receipt of request within 5 business days, when such acknowledgement is given, there is no precise time period within which agency must grant or deny access to records. When agency acknowledges receipt of request because more than 5 business days may be needed to grant or deny request, so long as it provides approximate date indicating when request will be granted or denied and that date is reasonable in view of attendant circumstances, agency acts in compliance with law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7509.

When agency has regular business hours, it must accept requests during those hours; however, for variety of reasons, agency may reasonably limit time in which applicant may inspect or copy records. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8347.

Insofar as town offices operate during regular business hours, public should have opportunity to request and review records during those hours; if there are no regular business hours, appointment procedure must be devised. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8489.

Member of public may not designate date or dates on which he or she seeks to review records. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12737.

When records are being used by agency staff, agency may delay disclosure; however, when they are no longer in use, there would be no valid reason for continuing such delay. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12754.

2. Disclosure Fees

116. In general

Assuming that information sought would not involve the creation of a record, fees for producing records should be based upon the actual cost of reproduction. Comm on Open Govt FOIL-AO 3113.

Committee on Open Government is not authorized to advise as to propriety of fees set by governmental entities that are not subject to Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4103.

If fees are prescribed by statute, they are valid even though they are in excess of fees prescribed by Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4641.

Freedom of Information Law limits fees that agencies may charge when records are requested, except when different fee is otherwise prescribed by statute; since city administrative code is not statute enacted by state legislature, fee imposed by code is not valid under Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4911.

City's department of law acted reasonably when it informed applicant that she should either arrange appointment to view requested materials or arrange payment of fee required to make copies of materials within 10 days by contacting particular individual who was identified by name and phone number and, further, that failure to do so would be deemed withdrawal of request. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9491.

There is nothing in Freedom of Information Law that requires agencies to make records available online via Internet; when they choose to do so, they would be acting above and beyond responsibilities imposed on them by law, and in such cases, provisions in Freedom of Information Law pertaining to fees do not apply. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12975.

If record is available in its entirety, requester would have right to inspect it free of charge; however, if some aspects of record may properly be withheld, requester must pay established fee and agency would be obliged to disclose those portions of records after having made appropriate deletions from copy of record. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-13366.

Prohibition of use of one's own digital camera to copy records accessible under Freedom of Information Law (FOIL) would be unreasonable and inconsistent with FOIL, and no fee may be charged when one's own camera is used; unlike bringing one's own photocopier, there would be no use of agency's space or electricity, and there would be no distinction in terms of agency's efforts in retrieving records between more traditional inspection of records and use of camera. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-16504.

117. Certification fees

City clerk may not impose fee for making request under Freedom of Information Law, for search or for certification, unless statute other than Freedom of Information Law permits such fees to be assessed. 1986 Committee on Open Government FOIL-AO-4333.

Freedom of Information Law, and regulations promulgated thereunder, direct that agency may not charge more than 25 cents per page for photocopies, except when different fee is otherwise prescribed by statute, and no fee may be charged for certification of requested records or certified statements that requested records cannot be located, except as otherwise prescribed by statute. 1986 Committee on Open Government FOIL-AO-4344.

118. Computer costs

The fee for producing computer documents should be based solely on the actual cost of reproduction. FOIL-AO-3012.

Agency cannot include in computation of "actual costs" of reproducing records that cannot be photocopied such considerations as insurance, maintenance or personnel costs, but may include computer time if agency is billed on that basis, cost of paper used to prepare printout, cost of compute tape if tape itself is reproduced, and similar costs that are not "fixed" costs of agency. 1986 Committee on Open Government FOIL-AO-4241.

If agency chooses to engage in development of new or altered computer programs in order to retrieve requested information that could not otherwise be compiled, it would be acting beyond requirements of Freedom of Information Law and, therefore, could charge for such service based upon considerations separate from provisions concerning assessment of fees described in CLS Pub O § 87(1)(b)(iii). Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7595.

Absent contrary statutory authority, agency may charge maximum of 25 cents per photocopy up to 9 by 14 inches; in case of electronic information, agency may charge fee based on actual cost of reproduction, which would involve cost of computer time, plus cost of information storage medium (i.e., computer tape) to which data is transferred, or cost of paper when printout is prepared. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7624.

It is likely that fee for reproducing computer tape, assuming that its contents are wholly available under law, would involve cost of computer time, plus cost of information storage medium (i.e., computer tape) to which data is transferred. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7630.

Where applicant requests inspection of records, agency may not prepare computer printouts of information and then seek to collect fee for printouts; agency should either make records available for inspection at no charge or, if computer printout has to be generated, agency should inform applicant in advance what fee will be. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8343.

Fee of $250 sought to be charged by county appeared to be excessive and inconsistent with Freedom of Information Law and its judicial interpretation where county intended to charge that amount for making its budget available on computer disk based on costs for workers' time in getting data, computer time and overhead costs. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8525.

Fee of $750 sought to be charged by county for computer digitized map, which could fit on single diskette, appeared to be excessive and inconsistent with Freedom of Information Law and its judicial interpretation. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8528.

$250 fee charged by City of Ithaca for copy of its municipal codes and regulations on computer disk appeared to be excessive and inconsistent with Freedom of Information Law; fee for reproducing electronic information involves cost of computer time, plus cost of information storage medium (i.e., computer tape or disk) to which data is transferred. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9830.

If applicant requests computer printout of records from which appropriate deletions must be made, applicant can be charged up to 25 cents per photocopy for duplication of printouts up to 9 by 14 inches in size. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-10213.

Fee for "machine-readable" copy of portion of registered voter roster of $11 ($1 for disk media plus $10 "setup" fee), plus $.005 per voter, was inappropriate and inconsistent with law; there was no basis to charge "setup" fee or fee determined by number of names produced. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12092.

Where county generated paper document from information stored in computer, rather than merely photocopying existing record, it could assess its fee based on actual cost of producing that document. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12127.

If New York City Department of Environmental Protection (DEP) is required by NYC Admin Code § 24-707 to print entire contents of its Citywide Facility Inventory Database (CFID), equivalent information must also be made available in electronic format, assuming that conversion of format can be accomplished, that data sought is available under FOIL, that data can be transferred from format in which it is maintained to format in which it is requested, and if applicant is willing to pay actual cost of reproduction. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12559.

City would be obliged to provide information regarding race and ethnicity contained on police Field Interview Forms (FIFs) if city had ability to computer generate such data, if it had capacity to segregate that data from items that need not be disclosed, and if applicant were willing to pay actual cost of reproduction as envisioned by CLS Pub O § 87(1)(b)(iii). Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12565.

119. Indigence of document requester

Despite fact that party who requests record is an indigent person, agency may charge up to 25 cents per photocopy when making records available under the Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Govt FOIL-AO 3022.

There is nothing in Freedom of Information Law that pertains to waiver of fees for photocopies, as such, and despite applicant's status as inmate and indigent person, Freedom of Information Law does not require that fees be waived. 1986 Committee on Open Government FOIL-AO-4318.

Agency may charge a fee for copies of medical records made available under FOIL notwithstanding the requester's indigency. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-6107 (1990).

Agency may assess fees for copies of records sought under Freedom of Information Law even when applicant for records demonstrates that he or she is unable to pay; when records are accessible, requestor may inspect them at no charge. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12047.

There is nothing in Freedom of Information Law that requires that agency waive fees, irrespective of status of applicant for records; further, agency may charge its established photocopying fees even though applicant is indigent inmate. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12702.

120. Maximum charge not to exceed 25 cents per photocopy, generally

121. —Effect of local enactment or policy, generally

122. — —Ordinance cannot create exception

Only act of state legislature would permit assessment of photocopy fee higher then 25 cents per copy; therefore, local ordinance could not validly raise fee for copies beyond 25 cents per photocopy. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4668.

123. — —Regulations of New York City

Fee of $5 for photocopy, levied by New York City Department of Buildings pursuant to provision of City Administrative Code, is invalid under Freedom of Information Law, since City Administrative Code cannot be considered "statute" that could be cited to exempt records from disclosure. Comm on Open Govt FOIL-AO-3445.

Freedom of Information Law allows agency to charge up to $.25 cents per photocopy or actual cost of reproducing records that cannot be photocopied, unless another statute permits higher fee to be assessed; Freedom of Information Law makes no reference to capacity to charge for personnel costs, search time, or time needed to evaluate contents of records in terms of rights of access; however, after October 15, 1982, only act of state legislature or statute permit assessment of search fee, fee higher than $.25 cents per photocopy or fee that exceeds actual cost of reproduction; New York City Administrative Code is not viewed as statute that exempts records from Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4588.

Insofar as regulations, local enactment or policy authorize assessment of fee other than maximum fee of 25 cents per photocopy, such would be invalid. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7637.

Only act of state Legislature (i.e, statute) would permit assessment of fee higher than 25 cents per photocopy, fee that exceeds actual cost of reproducing records that cannot be photocopied, (i.e., electronic information), or any other fee, such as fee for "administration," search or overhead costs. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3799.

124. —Effect of specific state statutes, generally

125. — —Public Officers Law

CLS Pub O § 66-a (statute separate from Freedom of Information Law) authorizes Division of State Police to charge $15 for search and copy of accident reports. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12409.

CLS Pub O § 66-a permits State Police to charge $15 for report rather than 25 cents per page authorized under CLS Pub O § 87(1)(b)(iii). Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12844.

126. — —Vehicle and Traffic Law

Only act of state legislature, statute, would permit assessment of fee higher than 25 cents for photocopy; however, since Vehicle and Traffic Law authorizing copying fee of $3.50 for accident reports applies to particular record in possession of department of motor vehicles only, other agencies, such as municipal police departments, cannot unilaterally adopt the policy or regulations authorizing fees in excess of 25 cents for photocopy without specific statutory authority to do so. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4768.

Department of Motor Vehicles is authorized to charge more than twenty-five cents ($.25) per photocopy of records in that CLS Vehicle and Traffic Law § 202(2)(3) specifies the fees to be charged by the Department. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-6265 (1990).

Fee of $10.00 charged by county sheriff's department for copy of accident report, even if authorized by county board of supervisors, was invalid. CLS Veh & Tr § 202 which authorizes copying fee of $15.00 for accident reports obtained from Department of Motor Vehicles (DMV) and one dollar per page for copies of other records, and authorizes DMV to collect fees for searching for records, does not authorize other agencies (such as municipal police or sheriff's departments) to charge more than 25 cents per copy when accident reports are requested under Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12263.

Under amendment to FOIL (L 1982 ch 73), only act of state Legislature—statute—would permit assessment of fee higher than 25 cents per photocopy, fee that exceeds actual cost of reproducing records that cannot be photocopied, or any other fee, such as fee for search. Since CLS Veh & Tr § 202 pertains to particular records in possession of Department of Motor Vehicles only, other agencies, such as municipal police or sheriff's departments, cannot unilaterally adopt policy or regulations authorizing fees in excess of 25 cents per photocopy or other fees without specific statutory authority to do so. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12409.

Agency may not charge file search fee nor may agency, by other means, charge additional fees or raise costs of obtaining copies beyond amounts indicated in Freedom of Information Law unless so authorized by state or federal statute to do so. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4838.

Fees assessed by county clerks pursuant to CLS CPLR §§ 8018-8021 may exceed those permitted under Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-10376.

Prior to October 15, 1982, local law, ordinance, or regulation establishing fee in excess of 25 cents per photocopy or higher than actual cost of reproduction was valid; however, currently under Freedom of Information Act, only act of state legislature, statute, would permit assessment of fee higher than 25 cents for photocopy, or fee that exceeds actual cost of reproduction. Comm On Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4597.

When there is no state statute which prescribes fee, proper fee is not more than 25 cents per page and no charge of additional fee for deletion of portions of records. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4618.

Under Freedom of Information Law, agency may charge up to 25 cents per photocopy; however, there is exception when different fee is otherwise prescribed by statute. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4625.

Agency may charge up to $.25 per page for photocopies of records except when different fee is prescribed by statute other than Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4750.

Freedom of Information Law permits agency to charge up to 25 cents for photocopy, unless different fee is prescribed by statute; statute is act of state legislature and does not include rule, regulation or policy adopted by agency. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4782.

Both town and village are limited to charging no more than 25 cents for photocopy for records, except in instances in which statute, act of state legislature, permits them to charge higher fee; even if minutes have not been approved by committee, they are nonetheless public records and therefore subject to rights of access granted by Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4794.

Only act of state legislature would permit assessment of fee higher than 25 cents per photocopy, or fee that exceeds actual cost of reproducing records that cannot be photocopied. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4944.

Freedom of Information Law states that accessible records are available for inspection and copying, and upon payment of appropriate fee, agency must make copies of records; only act of state legislature would permit assessment of fee higher than 25 cents per photocopy, or fee that exceeds actual cost of reproducing records that cannot be photocopied. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4954.

Village may not charge $20.00 for copy of police accident report since FOIL specifies a maximum charge of $.25 per photocopy in absence of a statute allowing higher charges. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-6157 (1990).

Charge of one dollar per copy of records made available by the Dutchess County Office of Real Property Tax Services was excessive. Such charges should be limited to twenty-five cents per copy if dimension of such photocopy did not exceed nine inches by fourteen inches. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-6208 (1990).

Provision in CLS Public Officers Law § 87(1)(b)(iii) that an agency could charge "the actual cost of reproducing any other record, except when a different fee is otherwise prescribed by statute" allowed Town to charge a fee of ten dollars ($10.000) for the cost of reproducing copies of Polaroid pictures provided that the Town could show that the fee was their actual cost. If the actual cost of the reproduction was less than ten dollars ($10.000), then the established fee would be inconsistent with the Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-6258 (1990).

Fee of $5.00 per photocopy is inconsistent with Freedom of Information Law; unless act of state legislature authorizes agency to charge different fee, agency can charge no more than 25 cents per photocopy up to 9 by 14 inches. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7542.

County library did not act improperly when it refused to permit person to make photocopies of requested documents on public machine at cost of 10 cents each and, instead, required that library personnel make copies of documents at cost of 25 cents each where requested records were not library materials but were records involving administration of library that were kept at location separate and apart from library materials, many of records sought were original documents, and staff was required to insure that custody of those documents was maintained; thus, rather than permitting individual to take records to copy machine in different section and floor of library, they were properly copied by staff at photocopy machine in offices used for administrative purposes to ensure continual custody of records. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7641.

Village could not charge more than 25 cents per photocopy for copy of transcript of meeting of zoning board of appeals because transcript, once prepared, constituted village record. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-10013.

No statute authorizes volunteer ambulance service (if it is subject to Freedom of Information Law) to charge fee for personnel time, searching for records or charging more than 25 cents per photocopy for records up to 9 by 14 inches. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12548.

127. Personnel costs, generally

128. —Inspection fees

Fee can not be charged for inspection of financial disclosure form filed with the New York City Conflicts of Interest Board. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-6111 (1990).

Accessible records pertaining to payroll records of a city must be made available for inspection at no charge. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-6261 (1990).

If copies are requested and agency makes them, applicant can be required to pay appropriate fee; however, if applicant seeks to inspect accessible records no fee can be charged. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7606.

No fee can be charged to inspect record which must be maintained pursuant to CLS Pub O § '87(3)(b); however, if copy is requested, agency may charge up to 25 cents per photocopy for paper copies. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7643.

Because agency cannot charge for inspection of records available under Freedom of Information Law, applicant cannot be charged fee for listening to such tape. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8565.

When record is available in its entirely under Freedom of Information Law, any person has right to inspect record at no charge; however, there are often situations in which some aspects of record, but not entire record, may properly be withheld in accordance with grounds for denial appearing in CLS Pub O § 87(2) and, in those events, applicant does not have right to inspect record and agency may prepare redacted copy and charge established fee. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9643.

Agency may assess fees for copies of records sought under Freedom of Information Law even when applicant for records demonstrates that he or she is unable to pay; when records are accessible, requestor may inspect them at no charge. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12047.

Town officials may not impose up-front fee for time spent retrieving public records for review; no fee may be charged for personnel time, or for inspection of or search for records, except as prescribed by statute. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12207.

129. —Preparation of redacted records

When accessible and deniable information must, of necessity, appear on same page, practice of preparing redacted copy and charging established fee is fully justifiable; however, if records are designed to ensure that some portion of content of each page may be withheld, and if design is intended to ensure that records cannot be inspected at no charge, such practice would represent abuse of Freedom of Information Law and conflict with its clear intent. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8391.

When record is available in its entirely under Freedom of Information Law, any person has right to inspect record at no charge; however, there are often situations in which some aspects of record, but not entire record, may properly be withheld in accordance with grounds for denial appearing in CLS Pub O § 87(2) and, in those events, applicant does not have right to inspect record and agency may prepare redacted copy and charge established fee. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9643.

130. —"Salary infringes" fee

Photocopying fee may be imposed but "salary infringes" fee cannot validly be charged unless such fee is prescribed by different statute. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4158.

131. —Transcript preparation fee

Fee of[1]0.00 for first 3 pages of transcript of hearing would be excessive if city was making photocopy of existing paper record; however, if city was preparing new record in response to request for paper transcript, city could charge reasonable fee. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12082.

Generally, agency may not charge for time spent by employee in evaluating record or for making deletions; only fee that could be charged when there is no state statute which prescribes fee, is not more than 25 cents per page and no charge of additional fee for deletion of portions of records. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4618.

Unless another statute permits assessment of different fee, records accessible under Freedom of Information Law may be inspected free of charge, and agency cannot impose fee involving personnel costs. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4703.

Accessible records may be inspected free of charge and if copies of records are requested, agency may generally charge up to 25 cents per photocopy or actual cost of reproducing records that cannot be photocopied; no fee may be assessed under Freedom of Information Law for search time or personnel costs involved in viewing or evaluating contents of records; regulations promulgated by Department of Correctional Services under Freedom of Information Law provides in part that custodian of records, such as facility superintendent, may, in his discretion, waive all or any portion of fees authorized by regulations for any department record; as such, when requesting records of Department of Correctional Services, waiver of fee may be sought. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4856.

With respect to fees, unless another statute permits assessment of different fee, records accessible under Freedom of Information Law may be inspected free of charge and agency cannot impose fee involving personnel costs; when copies are requested, agency may charge up to 25 cents per photocopy for actual cost of reproducing records that cannot be photocopied, unless otherwise provided by statute other than Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4953.

Agency may not impose charge for cost of supervising those who inspect or copy records. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8347.

While Freedom of Information Law (FOIL) may require agency to incur expense of producing documents for public disclosure, and compliance with FOIL involves use of public employees' time, such costs fulfill governmental obligation and do not constitute gift or waste of public funds; however, if agency offers to engage in effort beyond FOIL requirements, it may charge for expenses that ordinarily could not be assessed under FOIL. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12316.

132. Photocopying fee; scanning charges, generally

133. —Advance payment requirement

Once agency has determined number of copies requested, it may require that fee be paid prior to reproduction of records. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4076.

Agency may require payment of fees for copying in advance of preparing copies. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8306.

When person requests copies of records and agency produces records as required by law, but applicant has not paid or refuses to pay fee, based on principles of fairness, agencies need not accede to ensuing requests until applicant has paid requisite fee regarding earlier request for copies. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8343.

Agency may require advance payment of fee for copying records, particularly when request is voluminous. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9643.

When agency produces copies of records in response to request under Freedom of Information Law, but applicant for records has not paid requisite fee, agency can refuse to honor further requests until fee is paid. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9659.

When agency produces copies of records in response to request, but applicant for records has not paid requisite fee, agency can refuse to honor further requests until fee is paid. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-10008.

134. —Cash payment requirement

City was required to accept United States currency as legal tender for payment for photocopies prepared in response to request under Freedom of Information Law and could not require payment by means of money order. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9652.

Police department is required to accept cash, as legal tender, in payment of fees for photocopies; there is nothing in Freedom of Information Law that pertains specifically to means by which fees for copies should be paid. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-10038.

135. —Map copying

As to fees for photocopying village sewer area maps whose dimensions exceed 9 inches by 14 inches, if village is unable to prepare copies, it could have maps duplicated by copying service and fee would be same as that charged to village, as its actual cost of reproduction. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4448.

Agency which has custody of records which in their present form contain material which is not subject to inspection, can properly charge for copies of requested material at statutory rate where this is only reasonable method of making records available for inspection. Comm on Open Govt FOIL-AO-3558.

When records are being made available under limited disclosure provisions of Mental Hygiene Law § 33.13, but also constitute "records" as defined in § 86[4] of FOIL, then in absence of any specific authority to charge photocopying fee in Mental Hygiene Law, fee provisions of FOIL are applicable. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4052.

Though fee may not be charged for inspection of records, there may be situations where copying fee may be charged even though inspection has been requested, as, for example, when record sought is both accessible in part and deniable in part, it may be necessary for agency to copy record in order to make permissible or required deletions and make remainder available for inspection. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4466.

Unless different statute prescribes higher fee, agency may charge up to 25 cents for photocopy for records. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4646.

If record is accessible, it may be inspected and if, after inspection copies are needed, applicant may be required to pay fee for copying. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4961.

If applicant requests agency to provide photocopies of accessible records, Freedom of Information Law requires that agency prepare photocopies upon payment of, or offer to pay, requisite fees for photocopying; further, agency may require that request be made in writing. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4982.

Maximum fee for copying records under the Freedom of Information Law is twenty-five cents ($.25), unless a different fee is prescribed by a statute other than the Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-6256 (1990); FOIL-AO-6257 (1990).

Fee of $5.00 per map was not justified if applicant used its own equipment to scan agencies' property tax maps. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-10072.

Under Freedom of Information Law, New York City Board of Elections may charge "actual cost" of reproducing computer tapes of voter registration lists (namely, computer time plus cost of tape or disk); because time and effort involved in transferring data from one storage medium to another is minimal, alleged fee of $400 to $1,000 was inconsistent with Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12067.

If record includes print on 2 sides, duplication of record involves 2 photocopies, and agency may charge on that basis. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12271.

If agency has prepared copies of records in good faith and applicant fails or refuses to pay fee, agency is not required to make available those copies that have been prepared; agency should not be required to honor ensuing requests until applicant has fulfilled his or her responsibility by tendering fee for copies previously made. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-13143.

Agency could charge photocopying fee for documents that would be transmitted to requester by email, where portions of documents were exempted from disclosure, and only method of transmitting portions that were accessible to public involved preparation of photocopies from which appropriate redactions would be made, then scanning redacted information for email purposes. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-16571.

If person requests photocopied records and then refuses to pay for and pick up copies produced, agency may inform that person that it will not honor any additional or ensuing Freedom of Information Law requests until he/she pays requisite fees. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-16638.

136. Reproduction fee

If department of correctional services can reproduce cassette tape of hearing on disciplinary charges in-house, then actual fee for providing copy would be average unit cost of blank cassette excluding fixed costs, otherwise fee would be cost to department for having tape reproduced. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4053.

With regard to meetings of Town Board which are videotaped and aired on public access television, town was not required to purchase new equipment to acquire capacity to copy videotapes and, when copy of videotape was requested, local commercial service or perhaps school or library could reproduce tape and Town could charge for actual cost of reproduction. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8306.

If photocopy of photograph serves as adequate reproduction of such record, photocopy will likely suffice to comply with Freedom of Information Law; however, if photocopy does not serve to provide accurate method of reproducing what appears on photograph, agency is obliged to "copy" record-i.e., prepare reprint of photograph, upon payment of actual cost of reproduction. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9370.

Town must disclose its payroll records, assuming that items of interest can be generated based on town's existing computer programs and copied onto disk; fee would be based on actual cost of reproduction. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12776.

137. Search fee

Section 1401.8[a][2] of regulations promulgated by committee states that no fee may be charged for search for records. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4139.

City clerk may not impose fee for making request under Freedom of Information Law, for search or for certification, unless statute other than Freedom of Information Law permits such fees to be assessed. 1986 Committee on Open Government FOIL-AO-4333.

Freedom of Information Law allows agency to charge up to $.25 cents per photo copy or actual cost of reproducing records that cannot be photocopied, unless another statute permits higher fee to be assessed; Freedom of Information Law makes no reference to capacity to charge for personnel costs, search time, or time needed to evaluate contents of records in terms of rights of access; however, after October 15, 1982, only act of state legislature or statute can permit assessment of search fee, fee higher than $.25 cents per photo copy or fee that exceeds actual cost of reproduction; New York City Administrative Code is not viewed as statute that exempts records from Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4588.

Agency may not charge file search fee nor may agency, by other means, charge additional fees or raise costs of obtaining copies beyond amounts indicated in Freedom of Information Law unless so authorized by state or federal statute to do so. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4838.

Accessible records may be inspected free of charge and if copies of records are requested, agency may generally charge up to 25 cents per photocopy or actual cost of reproducing records that cannot be photocopied; no fee may be assessed under Freedom of Information Law for search time or personnel costs involved in viewing or evaluating contents of records; regulations promulgated by Department of Correctional Services under Freedom of Information Law provides in part that custodian of records, such as facility superintendent, may, in his discretion, waive all or any portion of fees authorized by regulations for any department record; as such, when requesting records of Department of Correctional Services, waiver of fee may be sought. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4856.

Agency may not charge more than 25 cents per page for photocopies, except when different fee is otherwise prescribed by statute; moreover, regulations specifically indicate that no fee may be charged for search for records except as otherwise prescribed by statute; since there is no statute that specifically prescribes search fees that may be charged by New York City Fire Department, Department cannot charge a fee for search of information; consequently, if search fee was established by rule or policy rather than by means of enactment of state legislature, it would be invalid. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4870.

Town officials may not impose up-front fee for time spent retrieving public records for review; no fee may be charged for personnel time, or for inspection of or search for records, except as prescribed by statute. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12207.

138. Shipping and handling

A "nominal charge" of over $2.00 for postage and handling of a single copy of a document under the Freedom of Information Law is excessive. FOIL-AO-2976.

Agency may not charge personnel costs or "handling" charges for processing Freedom of Information requests; however, agency is not precluded from passing on to applicant cost of postage for mailing requested records. 1986 Committee on Open Government FOIL-AO-4275.

So long as applicant for records is prepared to pay requisite fees for photocopying and postage, agency must mail records to applicant; since number of records, size of report or amount of postage often cannot be known in advance, agency could not require that envelope accompany request. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4654.

There is no statute that would preclude village from charging its postage cost when mailing records requested under Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8306.

Neither Freedom of Information Law nor regulations promulgated by Committee on Open Government (21 NYCRR Part 1401) deals with cost of or assessment of charges for postage when copies are mailed to applicant, and neither prohibits agency from charging for postage. Mailing copies of records to applicant represents additional service provided by agency that is separate from duties imposed by Freedom of Information Law; agency must mail copies of records to applicant upon payment of appropriate fees for copying and postage; alternatively, if it informs applicant of cost of postage, agency can require that applicant provide stamped self-addressed envelope. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8450.

Town could charge reasonable fee for paper that faxed Freedom on Information Law request was on, inasmuch as it used its paper to receive communication by fax. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12029.

Freedom of Information Law (FOIL) is silent with respect to ability of agency to charge for postage when records made available under that statute are mailed to applicant; thus, entity subject to FOIL may charge for postage. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12548.

Charge of $3.00 to transport records from storage facility to town hall 6 miles away where records can be mailed in response to requests made under Freedom of Information Law would be inappropriate. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-13548.

139. Waiver of fee

Even though department of correctional services, pursuant to Freedom of Information Law, permits custodian of department records to waive copying fee, there is no requirement that fee must be waived; superintendent of correctional facility is "custodian of records". Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4621.

Accessible records may be inspected free of charge and if copies of records are requested, agency may generally charge up to 25 cents per photocopy or actual cost of reproducing records that cannot be photocopied; no fee may be assessed under Freedom of Information Law for search time or personnel costs involved in viewing or evaluating contents of records; regulations promulgated by Department of Correctional Services under Freedom of Information Law provides in part that custodian of records, such as facility superintendent, may, in his discretion, waive all or any portion of fees authorized by regulations for any department record; as such, when requesting records of Department of Correctional Services, waiver of fee may be sought. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4856.

FOIL contains no express provisions for the waiver of fees for copying records. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-6137 (1990).

Nothing in the Freedom of Information Law requires an agency to waive fees for copying records. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-6257 (1990).

There is nothing in the Freedom of Information Law that pertains to the waiver of fees for copying documents even though person requesting copies is indigent. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-6305 (1990).

There is nothing in Freedom of Information Law pertaining to waiver of fees for copies, and agency is not required to waive fees even when applicant is indigent inmate. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7542.

There is nothing in Freedom of Information Law that requires that agency waive fees, irrespective of status of applicant for records; further, agency may charge its established photocopying fees even though applicant is indigent inmate. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12702.

There is nothing in Freedom of Information Law that requires agency to waive fees, irrespective of status of applicant for records. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12802.

D. Sufficiency Of Response, Generally

140. In general

If existing records are incomplete or misleading, notation could be added to records, or cover letter, which might describe why information may not be completely accurate. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4056.

When record sought is only available under FOIL, agency is required to make record available for inspection only at location or locations designated in regulations; accordingly, state agency can require person to travel to distant office rather than local office to obtain information sought. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4101.

With respect to "direct access", agency officials may search for and make available particular records, rather than enabling members of public to conduct their own searches. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4139.

Since it is responsibility of county attorney to act as legal counsel to county departments, it is proper for county attorney to respond to request for records on behalf of officials of county department; as such, fact that county legislature (governing body of county, public corporation) was advised of request for records and asked that county attorney respond, while not common practice, did not appear to be inconsistent with Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4951.

Applicant for accessible records should be able to make appointment to inspect those records during regular business hours when agency has regular business hours; alternatively, if applicant cannot know precisely when he or she may have opportunity to inspect records, agencies should indicate that records will be available for inspection during business hours for certain period after request has been granted; if records are not inspected within such specified reasonable period, request may be considered to have been withdrawn. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7592.

If applicant cannot know precisely when he or she may have opportunity to inspect records, agency should indicate that records will be available during business hours for certain period, 2 weeks, for example, after request has been granted; if records are not inspected or copied within such specified reasonable period, applicant should be informed that request will be considered to have been withdrawn. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8347.

When applicant requests copies of records, records may be reproduced in presence of applicant, applicant can physically present himself or herself at agency's offices to obtain copies, or copies can be mailed to applicant. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8450.

If, as matter of practice or policy, town acknowledges receipt of requests by stating that requests will be granted or denied within 30 days, irrespective of nature, volume or search needed to respond, such practice would be inconsistent with both language and intent of Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8540.

Request seeking records relating to town's purported testing and environmental assessments of dump on specified person's property, which was filed after applicant read newspaper article which indicated that town conducted its own tests which showed no hazardous materials on site and which included statement by town supervisor that there was clear, compelling evidence that site contained neither hazardous nor toxic materials, met standard for reasonably describing records sought by applicant. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8956.

Neither police department nor district attorney's office can withhold existing records pertaining to requestor's arrest and conviction in their entirety, on ground that they constitute intra-agency materials; records compiled for law enforcement purposes can only be withheld if disclosure would result in harmful effects described CLS Pub O § 87(2)(e)(i)- (iv). Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-10079.

If in every instance, as matter of practice or policy, agency acknowledged receipt of requests and indicated that it would determine whether to grant or deny access to records within particular period following date of acknowledgement, such practice or policy would be contrary to thrust of Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-10083.

Agency may choose to make records available via e-mail or fax, but there is no obligation to do so on request. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12305.

New York Freedom of Information Law (FOIL) does not require preparation of so-called "Vaughn Index" (providing analysis of documents withheld by agency as means of justifying denial and insuring that burden of proof remains on agency), which is required under federal Freedom of Information Act (FOIA). Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12579.

There is no requirement that agency make records available on weekends or during times other than regular business hours. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12727.

CLS Penal § 240.65 does not apply when agency denies access to record, even though basis for denial may be inappropriate or erroneous, or when agency cannot locate record that must be maintained. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12822.

Freedom of Information Law does not require that agency provide degree of detail in response to request or administrative appeal which would require that denial at agency level identify every record withheld or include description of reason for withholding each document; state Freedom of Information Law, unlike equivalent federal law, does not require preparation of so-called Vaughn index. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12924.

There is nothing in Freedom of Information Law that requires that records be transmitted via fax or e-mail; agency may choose to make records available via those methods of transmission, but there is no obligation to do so. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-13175.

If records maintained by Rudolph W. Giuliani Center for Urban Affairs, Inc. (Center) can be located with reasonable effort, i.e., if they have been "reasonably described," Center and Department of Records and Information Services (DORIS) would be required to retrieve records for purpose of making them available to extent required by law, even if "processing" has not been completed. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-13226.

There may be instances in which there may be no need or obligation to examine or become familiar with specific contents of records prior to deciding to grant or deny access, such as records that are beyond scope of access. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-13229.

Delay for as much as 90 days for city police department to "locate" and "review" videotape of flag-raising at Ground Zero in order to determine rights of access is neither reasonable nor indicative of compliance with Freedom of Information Law, since such record, being well known not only to Americans, but to people throughout world, should not be difficult to locate or identify. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-13487.

141. Appealability information

If portion of requested record was deliberately deleted from copy made available, request was partially granted and partially denied, and agency should have informed in writing of reason for denial and right to appeal denial. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4806.

Records access officer has duty to respond within 5 business days of receipt of request and if request is denied, reasons must be stated in writing, and applicant must be informed of right to appeal. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4952.

When request under Freedom of Information Law is denied, person issuing denial is required to inform person denied access of right to appeal as well as name and address of person or body to whom appeal may be directed. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7554.

Agency's records access officer has duty individually, or in that person's role of coordinating response to request under Freedom of Information Law, to inform person denied access of right to appeal as well as name and address of person or body to whom appeal may be directed. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9722.

142. Certification

Particularly when certification is requested with respect to voluminous number of records, single certification given by means of written assertion, statement or affidavit describing or identifying records that were copied is sufficient under CLS Pub O § 89(3); it is not necessary for each copy of records made available under Freedom of Information Law to be stamped or "certified" separately. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9338.

Nothing in Freedom of Information Law specifies form of certification that agency does not maintain or cannot locate record. Verification by agency's records access officer that he made diligent search for referenced record and found no record or entry of it at offices of agency was sufficient certification that agency did not maintain or could not locate record. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9628.

143. Five-day response requirement

Records access officer has duty to respond within 5 business days of receipt of request and if request is denied, reasons must be stated in writing, and applicant must be informed of right to appeal. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4952.

Agency need not respond instantly to request and has 5 business days to respond from receipt of request for records reasonably described. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4982.

In case of routine requests, agency should ordinarily have ability to grant or deny access to records within 5 business days; if more than that period is needed, due to possibility that other requests have been received, that other duties preclude quick response or because of volume of request, need for consultation, search techniques needed to locate records or need to review records to determine which portions should be disclosed or denied, estimated date for granting or denying request must be given in acknowledgement to reflect those factors. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9444.

Acknowledgement of receipt of request for documents under Freedom of Information Law which indicates that "a response will be forthcoming within appropriate time" is inconsistent with 5-day requirement imposed by law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9549.

Agency's acknowledgement of request for records, which indicated that request would be processed "as soon as possible," was too ambiguous and open-ended; if more than 5 business days are needed to determine rights of access, agency must state approximate date when action will be taken. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12030.

Village's response to request for records, that village clerk was on vacation and would respond to request upon her return, was inadequate. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12084.

When agency acknowledges request because more than 5 business days may be needed to grant or deny request, it acts in compliance with law if it provides approximate date when request will be granted or denied, and that date is reasonable in view of attendant circumstances. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12094.

When agency acknowledges receipt of Freedom of Information Law request because more than 5 business days may be needed to grant or deny it, there is no precise time period within which it must grant or deny access to records; reasonable time depends on attendant circumstances such as volume of request, possibility that other requests have been made, necessity to conduct legal research, search and retrieval techniques used to locate records. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12219.

If neither response to request under Freedom of Information Law nor acknowledgement of receipt of request is given within 5 business days, or if agency delays responding for unreasonable time after it acknowledges that request has been received, request may be considered to have been constructively denied. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12438.

While Freedom of Information Law (FOIL) does not preclude agencies from developing standard forms to be used by those requesting records, failure to use standard form does not justify late response to written FOIL requests if requested records are reasonably described. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3397.

144. Inability to locate

Where applicable, agency should certify that it does not have possession of records requested or that such records cannot be found after diligent search; however, agency is not required to provide any additional proof as to whether record exists or whether record can be located, nor is agency required to obtain record from another source if it does not maintain record requested, as such, upon certifying that it cannot locate record, agency is not required to furnish additional proof that it has conducted diligent search for record, other than certification itself. 1986 Committee on Open Government FOIL-AO-4283.

Agency has satisfactorily responded to request for information when it appears that all requested records maintained by agency have been made available and when agency provided letter certifying that, after diligent search, it had not been able to locate certain records. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4688.

If an appeal from denial of records has not been answered within statutory time period, administrative remedies have been exhausted and challenge could be initiated to denial under CLS Civil Practice Rules Article 78; assuming that record involving individual's previous employment with city exists and can be located, record would be available; on other hand, if city officials cannot locate such record, response should nonetheless be given, indicating that record of employment could not be located. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4840.

Statement that agency does not maintain record sought is not denial, for agency cannot withhold records that it does not maintain; therefore, such response to initial request does not provide basis on which to appeal and such response to appeal does not provide basis to commence CLS CPLR Article 78 proceeding; in response to request for records agency shall provide copy of such record and certify correctness of such copy if so requested, or if case may be, shall certify that it does not have possession of such record or that such record cannot be found after diligent search. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4891.

If so requested, agency shall certify that it does not have possession of such record or that record cannot be found after diligent search. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4897.

Certification by a records access officer that agency does not have possession of a requested record need not take any specific form. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-6271 (1990).

Nothing in Freedom of Information Law specifies form of certification that agency does not maintain or cannot locate record. Verification by agency's records access officer that he made diligent search for referenced record and found no record or entry of it at offices of agency was sufficient certification that agency did not maintain or could not locate record. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9628.

145. Partial availability

Since agency has capacity to deny records or portions thereof that fall within grounds for denial, agency is required to review records sought in their entirety to determine which portions, if any, may justifiably be withheld, and blanket denials are generally inappropriate. Committee on Open Government FOIL-AO-3381.

Phrase "records or portions thereof" in CLS Pub O § 87(2) requires that agency review records sought in their entirety to determine which portions, if any, may justifiably be withheld. Comm on Open Govt FOIL-AO-3451.

If portion of requested record was deliberately deleted from copy made available, request was partially granted and partially denied, and agency should have informed in writing of reason for denial and right to appeal denial. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4806.

Agency has obligation to review records sought in their entirety to determine which portions, if any, may justifiably be withheld. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7603.

When portions of file are withheld, response to request must indicate that request was denied in part, and applicant must be informed of right to appeal denial in accordance with CLS Pub O § 89(3) and regulations. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8378.

Applicant would not have right to inspect record where some aspects of record, but not entire record, could properly be withheld in accordance with ground for denial appearing in CLS Pub O § 87(2). Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3850.

146. Periodic or on-going disclosure

Freedom of Information Law does not require that agency disclose records on an ongoing basis in response to single request, and agency may deny request for records which are sought prospectively; however, applicant may seek records on periodic basis, and agency is obliged to respond to each request. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-10181.

147. Tape recording of response

Assuming that contents of a cassette recording of an agency hearing are available under the Freedom of Information Law, persons can listen to it or request a copy for a fee based upon the actual cost of reproduction. If no transcript exists, the agency is not required to create one in response to a request by a non-party. Comm on Open Govt FOIL-AO 3033.

Tape recording of meeting or public hearing is "record" subject to rights of access under Freedom of Information Law; with respect to means by which tape recording may be made available, equivalent of "inspection" of tape recording would involve listening to tapes; while agency need not relinquish physical custody of tape to enable member of public to listen to it, person could listen to tape in presence of agency official, who could maintain custody and control over tape; as alternative, agency could, upon payment of requisite fee, reproduce tape. Comm on Open Govt FOIL-AO-3615.

148. Who must respond

There is nothing in Freedom of Information Law that specifies which public officer or employee must respond to request. Nothing in Freedom of Information Law or regulations would require that chief of police respond personally or preclude village attorney from responding on behalf or at direction of village official. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8533.

There is no requirement that denial of request for records under Freedom of Information Law at agency level identify every record withheld or that description of reason for withholding each document be given. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9249.

Village clerk failed to comply with Freedom of Information Law when she forwarded requests for information concerning implementation of village's assessment practice to village attorney and suggested that requestor contact village attorney for further information; clerk, as designated records access officer, had duty to coordinate village's response to requests for records, and her response to contact village attorney, without more, was inadequate. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-10186.

Village's response to request for records, that village clerk was on vacation and would respond to request upon her return, was inadequate. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12084.

E. Denying Disclosure

1. Generally

149. In general

While § 87[2] indicates that records or portions thereof may be withheld in accordance with grounds for denial that follow; there is nothing in FOIL that prohibits disclosure of record. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4082.

Under decision in Doolan v Board of Cooperative Educational Services, Second Supervisory Dist. (1979) 48 NY2d 341, 422 NYS2d 927, 398 NE2d 533, public interest privilege formerly existing at common law no longer constitutes valid basis for denial of access to records. Comm On Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4514.

Request for records should be directed to records access officer of agency or agencies that would maintain records which are requested; records sought should be reasonably described in sufficient detail so agency officials can locate them; all records of agency are available, except to extent that records or portions thereof fall within CLS Pub O § 87(2)(a) through (i). Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4579.

All records of agency are available under FOIL, except to extent that records or portions thereof fall within one or more grounds for denial under CLS Pub O § 87(2)(a) to (i). Comm On Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4593.

Since information kept, held, filed, produced or reproduced for or by town would constitute "records" subject to rights of access granted by Freedom of Information Law, contract between town and private corporation would be available because none of grounds for denial would apply; similarly, town records reflective of building inspections are generally available. Comm On Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4601.

All records of agency are available, except to extent that records or portions thereof fall within one or more grounds for denial appearing in Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4645.

All records of agency are available, except to extent that records or portions thereof fall within one or more grounds for denial appearing in CLS Pub O § 87(2)(a) through (i). Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4652.

Contention that records should be made available, absent statutory prohibition, is incorrect because CLS Pub O § 87(2) enables agency to withhold records under certain circumstances. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4670.

Contracts, which presumably identify contractors, are matters of public record, and no grounds for denial under Freedom of Information Law could be asserted to withhold those records. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4675.

All records of agency are available, except to extent that records or portions thereof fall within one or more grounds for denialin CLS Public Officer § 87(2). Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4802.

Agency has obligation to review records sought in entirety to determine which portions, if any, may be justifiably withheld. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4836.

Although Freedom of Information Law requires that agencies comply with certain procedural requirements in that they must disclose many kinds of records, rights of access to various records may be questionable and dependent upon their contents. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4872.

Agency must review records which are requested to determine which portions if any may be justifiably withheld. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4908.

All records of agency are available, except to extent that records or portions thereof fall within one or more grounds for denial appearing in Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4938.

Documents which indicate allocation made by school board for travel expenses would be available because none of grounds for denial could appropriately be asserted and, similarly, travel vouchers and similar records indicating travel expenses incurred by school district employees are accessible. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4942.

Agency may not deny request for records solely on basis that another agency possesses copies of same record. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7566.

Where draft report is distributed to persons who attend public meeting, report must thereafter be made available under Freedom of Information Law, regardless of fact that it was originally subject to being withheld prior to its distribution at meeting. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8942.

Reasons for denial cited in determination of appeal need not be consistent with those offered by records access officer in initial denial. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9374.

Survey prepared by independent professional surveyor in conjunction with county watershed project, at cost of several hundred dollars, was not intrinsically valuable document which, if released to public without full consideration for its cost, would constitute gift of public funds in violation of CLS NY Const Art VIII § 1; meeting public's right of access to information concerning government is fulfillment of governmental obligation, not gift or waste of public funds. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9844.

In response to request for planning commission records showing each instance during past several years in which it did not exercise its discretion to waive certain zoning requirement, it was not improper for secretary of planning commission to "refuse to do [requestor's] research" and invite requestor to look through planning commission's files, which might be contained in "1 or 2 file cabinets"; alternative means of gaining requested information might involve request to review minutes of commission meetings because, while there may be numerous minutes, review of their contents would involve less effort than search of file cabinets. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12181.

Disclosure made to another governmental entity that has sought records to carry out governmental function cannot be equated with disclosure made to member of public under Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-13091.

School superintendent may not condition responding to request or determining to grant or deny access on indication by requester of whether there is "alternative source" of requested information. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-13303.

150. Administrative or manpower burden as justifying denial

Aside from photocopying fee, Freedom of Information Law does not authorize the assessment of any fee for time spent in investigating or researching records. Comm on Open Govt FOIL-AO 3044.

Administrative burden imposed upon officials does not constitute valid basis for rejecting request or withholding records. Committee on Open Government FOIL-AO-3371.

Administrative burden of searching for records, whether due to volume of records requested or their age, does not constitute basis for denial; denial of records based upon shortage of staff to search "dead" files, is improper. Committee on Open Government FOIL-AO-3802.

Hardship does not constitute valid basis for withholding records which are accessible under FOIL, since law imposes obligation upon agency to search for and make them available. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4123.

If information sought exists, but apparently cannot be proved due to nature of agencies filing or record-keeping systems, although agency might not have disclosed information sought, its actions would not be considered as denials that can be appealed. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4764.

A Shortage of manpower to comply with a request for copies of records did not constitute a valid basis for denial of access to records. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-6140 (1990).

Shortage of manpower to comply with request for records under Freedom of Information Law does not constitute valid basis for denial of access to records. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9455.

151. Burden of proof, generally

Even though portion or portions of records may be justifiably withheld from disclosure, that does not give agency authority to withhold entire record; single record may be both available or deniable in part requiring agency officials to review records sought in their entirety to determine which portions may justifiably be withheld; when records are denied under law, burden of proof in such proceeding is on agency. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4706.

Record or report might be both available or deniable in part and thus imposes burden of proof obligation on agency officials to review requested records in their entirety to determine which portions, if any, may be justifiably withheld; agency may withhold records to extent that disclosure would result in unwarranted invasion of personal privacy and to extent that records pertain to allegations or charges against employees that have not yet been proven, which did not result in any disciplinary action, and names or other identifying details that would, if disclosed, constitute unwarranted invasion of personal privacy; however, if investigations of misconduct resulted in disciplinary action, charges that were sustained as well as any final determination indicating action taken would be available for disclosure. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4709.

Agency's regulations cannot render records deniable or confidential, unless there is basis for so doing pursuant to one or more of grounds for denial appearing in Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7947.

152. Certification of denial

Statement that agency does not maintain record sought is not denial, for agency cannot withhold records that it does not maintain; therefore, such response to initial request does not provide basis on which to appeal and such response to appeal does not provide basis to commence CLS CPLR Article 78 proceeding; in response to request for records agency shall provide copy of such record and certify correctness of such copy if so requested, or if case may be, shall certify that it does not have possession of such record or that such record cannot be found after diligent search. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4891.

Where agency has made substantial effort to locate records requested, agency may, upon request, certify that it does not have possession of such record or that such record does not exist after diligent search. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4910.

When agency indicates that it does not maintain or cannot locate record, applicant for record may seek certification to that effect. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9157.

153. Confidentiality, generally

154. —Attorney-client privilege

With regard to pleadings and related materials, records subject to attorney-client privilege or attorney's work product would be confidential and specifically exempted from disclosure by statute; however, once such records are made available to adversary or introduced into evidence confidentiality provisions would no longer apply. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4787.

Bills submitted by consultants and others, and bills payable by agency are accessible in entirety, for none of grounds of denial will apply; however, in case of bills involving compensation of agency's attorney, it is possible that portions consisting of identifying details or descriptions of services rendered by attorney for client may be justifiably withheld as confidential under attorney-client privilege; however, numbers indicating amounts expended are accessible under Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4921.

Portions of bills involving compensation of agency's attorney consisting of identifying details or descriptions of services rendered by attorney for client may be justifiably withheld as confidential under attorney-client privilege; however, numbers indicating amounts expended are accessible under Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4921.

When municipal official or body seeks legal advice from its attorney and attorney renders legal advice, communications of that nature would fall within coverage of attorney-client privilege and would, therefore, be exempt from disclosure under CLS Pub O § 87(2)(a). Retainer agreement (contract) would not be subject to attorney-client privilege and would ordinarily be accessible under Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12641.

155. —Employment matters

With regard to records that identify public employees, records that are relevant to performance of public employee's official duties are available, because disclosure in such instances would result in permissible rather than unwarranted invasion of personal privacy; with respect to statements made by persons other than public employees, their names or other identifying details pertaining to them might be deleted to protect privacy while remainder of statements would be available; if documents are not part of criminal investigation, and if criminal investigation has been completed, it is unlikely that records would be withheld. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4722.

If private records are relevant to performance of certain public employees' official duties, they are available for disclosure as permissible invasion of confidentiality. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4776.

Various activities are licensed due to some public interest in insuring that individuals or entities are qualified to engage in certain activities or in order that certain activities may be regulated and, therefore, licenses should be available because they are intended to enable public to know that individual has met appropriate requirements to engage in activity that is regulated by state or in which state has significant interest; while disclosure of licenses identifies licensees, disclosure would not necessarily constitute an unwarranted invasion of confidentiality; however, in some instances, personal information such as licensee's home address, phone number or other personal information that may appear on license might justifiably be withheld. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4871.

Clause in board of trustees' agreement to buy out employment contract of college president, which would have prohibited president from discussing college matters with news media or others, could not limit public rights of access to records under Freedom of Information Law, and if board had approved buyout contract, it would clearly have been accessible notwithstanding agreement not to discuss its contents. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-10151.

Request for disclosure of reports prepared by county Department of Civil Service, which investigated senior typist civil service positions to confirm that these individuals' job responsibilities matched Civil Service titles, could not be denied as "confidential" in blanket fashion. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-16530.

156. —Housing records

Agency would not be required to prepare list of names and addresses of landlords who leased space to town if no such list exists; however, individual records identifying landlords or leases would be available thereby enabling request to prepare own list. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4698.

Information furnished to Division of Housing and Community Renewal is considered confidential only when request for confidentiality is expressly made by person furnishing information, and that if such information is requested by third party, agency has burden of demonstrating that person who furnished information requested confidentiality; once agency indicates that it will disclose records but fails to make records available, such action is equivalent of denial. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4738.

Reports prepared by New York State Housing Finance Agency following its investigation of complaint made by named individual were generally available to "data subject" of complaint under Personal Privacy Protection Law except to extent that disclosure would constitute unwarranted invasion of privacy of someone other than himself, as complainant's identity was known, and agency's claim that it promised confidentiality to her was generally meaningless; however, agency could redact any information identifiable to complainant to extent that disclosure would constitute unwarranted invasion of her privacy. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9921.

157. —School records

Freedom of Information Law pertains generally to records of agency which includes entities of state and local governments such as school districts; while law provides statutory guidance concerning access to records of agencies, it makes no specific reference to records of school district; if record is final and does not identify particular students, it appears it would be accessible; to extent that such report might identify particular student or students, those aspects of report would be required to be kept confidential pursuant to federal law; in addition, if state education department maintains report, presumably it would be equally available from department and district. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4714.

An assertion of "confidential disclosure" without any statutory citation cannot be justified as a basis for withholding under Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Govt FOIL-AO 3032.

Local law cannot require confidentiality or otherwise restrict access to records in manner inconsistent with statute enacted by state legislature, such as FOIL; accordingly, that portion of "grouper" law enacted by board of trustees of Ocean Beach village, which removed leases from requirements of FOIL, is not valid. Comm On Open Gov't FOIL-AO-3875.

Whether subject of record prefers to authorize or preclude disclosure is irrelevant in terms of analysis of rights conferred by Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7921.

Freedom of Information Law did not require that city identify anonymous donor of funds used by City to clean up property that was ravaged by fire since donor did not wish to be identified and disclosure would have constituted unwarranted invasion of privacy. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8583.

Promise or assertion of confidentiality will not suffice to justify denial of request for records under Freedom of Information Law unless statute specifically confers confidentiality. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9484.

There is no basis to deny disclosure request based on assertion of executive or governmental privilege if requested records, or portions of them, do not fall within grounds for denial under CLS Pub O § 87(2). Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9976.

Architect's plans and related documents prepared for agency submitted under seal of professionals, bearing legend that they are protected by copyright and may not be reproduced without permission of professional, nevertheless are subject to rights conferred by Freedom of Information Law; assertion of confidentiality does not remove rights of access to records that would otherwise be available, and consent of professional who prepared document (or owner of real property described in document) is irrelevant. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12179.

Assertion or claim of confidentiality, unless it is based on statute, is "likely meaningless"; assertion of confidentiality, without more, would not serve to enable agency to withhold record. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12405.

Confidentiality agreement required by board of education as condition of permitting board members to view board's legal bills would be valid insofar as bills included information that was confidential based on proper assertion of attorney-client privilege or another statute that forbids disclosure, but such agreements could not validly restrict or diminish rights of access conferred by Freedom of Information Law upon members of public who happened to be board members. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-16511.

"Official Statement of Executive Policy" issued by mayor, which prohibited members of city's senior staff or department heads from disclosing certain information discussed at meetings with mayor and other city officials, and city ordinance that prohibited city officers and employees from disclosing certain information "discussed or deliberated during a properly convened executive session," were inconsistent with law and would likely be found to be unconstitutional since (1) violations could result in imposition of fine and/or imprisonment, and (2) while prohibitions under both enactments appeared to be based on combination of exceptions to rights of access in Freedom of Information Law and Open Meeting Law's grounds for entry into executive session, some disclosures mandated by FOIL and Open Meetings Law might be punished. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3282.

Stamping, marking or asserting that record is "confidential" is all but meaningless; rights of access and ability to deny access to records is fixed by Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3889.

158. Constructive denial

A response to a request for records which denies access because the request is "too broad" is not a denial of access but may be considered a constructive denial of access for purposes of appeal. Comm on Apen Gov't FOIL-AO-2974.

Agency's failure to mail accessible records to applicant who pays or offers to pay appropriate fees for copying and postage would constitute constructive denial of access to records; documents explaining why certain room was sealed due to presence of asbestos before removing records would likely be available because it is decision that affects public or final agency policy or determination. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4789.

Conditions imposed by private contractor ("Bidnet") on retrieval of county bid information maintained by Bidnet on county website, including registration requirements and prohibition of resale of information to third parties, were inconsistent with Freedom of Information Law and unenforceable. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-16508.

159. Copyright considerations

Department of Transportation could not assert copyright protection to deny Freedom of Information Law (FOIL) request for street names, political boundaries, fire and ambulance boundaries and locations of public facilities on ground that applicant was commercial business and department had paid private firm to compile information sought, as department had statutory obligation to maintain such records and, despite increased revenue that it might derive via agreements based on copyright, absence of copyright might result in greater overall economic benefit to state, state residents, and commercial enterprises. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-11992.

Requestor's intended use of copyrighted materials may have bearing on agency's obligation to prepare copies under Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12179.

Agency could preclude reproduction of copyrighted architectural plans and similar records only if reproduction would cause substantial injury to copyright holder. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12179.

Records, like county tax maps, that government agency is required to produce, are not subject to copyright protection. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12385.

Regarding access to plans, drawings and surveys that are marked with seal of architect, land surveyor or engineer, seal does not serve as copyright, nor does it restrict right to inspect and copy under Freedom of Information Law; it merely indicates that person is qualified as licensee. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12830.

If reproduction of copyrighted architectural plans and similar records would "cause substantial injury to the competitive position of the subject enterprise," i.e., holder of copyright, in conjunction with CLS Pub O § 87(2)(d), agency could preclude reproduction of work; however, if reproduction of work would not result in substantial injury to competitive position of copyright holder, such exception would not apply. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12830.

Government agency that is required to disclose copyrighted record should bear no liability or responsibility relating to use of work; rather, if holder of copyright believes that recipient of copy of work has in some manner violated Copyright Act, that person or entity may initiate proceedings against recipient for copyright infringement. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12830.

Copyright protection should not be claimed when agency is obligated by law to prepare records, as in case of maps prepared by department of transportation, or when records involve accountability of government and promote public's understanding of government functions and actions, such as videotapes of meeting held by public board. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-16494.

160. Effect of potential commercial use of requested information, including fund-raising

Rights of access to political party membership lists of names and addresses, or equivalent records, may be contingent upon purpose for which request is made; agency may withhold records in conjunction with grounds for denial listed in Freedom of Information Law, nevertheless, agency is not obliged to withhold records, even when records may be withheld; therefore, even if political party membership lists could be withheld, Freedom of Information Law would not prohibit disclosure. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4866.

Real property inventory is available to any person for any reason during time specified in notice under CLS RPTL § 501, but inventory may be withheld at other times if it would be used for commercial or fund raising purpose. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12421.

161. Non-existent documents, generally

162. —Burden of proof as to existence

Freedom of Information Law requires that applicant reasonably describe records sought and if agency can locate requested records based on terms of request, applicant has reasonably described such records; however, if agency cannot determine which records have been requested, standard of "reasonably describing" records is not met and in some instances, while records sought might exist, they may not be retrievable due to nature of agency's filing system. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4970.

163. —Computerized records

If accessible information that is sought can be retrieved from computer or other storage medium only by means of reprogramming or altering existing programs, steps would be equivalent of creating new record. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4739.

Department of taxation and finance is required to maintain list setting forth name, public office address, title and salary of every officer or employee of agency and must make this tape available; however, if department does not keep this list on computer tape or disk, it cannot provide what it does maintain; further, Freedom of Information Law does not require information be placed on computer tape or disk. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4781.

If village has no compilation of information sought and cannot print out information based upon existing computer programs, it would not be obliged to create new records or reprogram in order to produce information sought; on other hand, if existing computer programs enable village to produce printout containing information sought, it would be obliged to do so in response to request made by any person. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4828.

Freedom of Information Law provides that agency is not required to create or prepare record in response to request, so if county does not have capacity to provide data in computer mode in which it was requested, Freedom of Information Law would not require county to create or prepare record in such mode or format. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4897.

If information sought can be printed out based upon existing programs, retrieval could not be equated with creation of new record; if, however, printout can be produced only by creating new programs or software, preparation of new programs would likely be equivalent of creating new record, an act that Department of Correctional Services would not be required to perform. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4901.

Where retrieval of electronically stored information would require extensive reprogramming, and such reprogramming would represent the creation of a new record, agency was not obligated to produce such records. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-6167 (1990).

164. —No duty to create or prepare, generally

165. — —Court-related records

If notice concerning pending lawsuits had not been prepared by agency, agency would not be required to create such a list; however, individual records that identify pending lawsuits would be available for disclosure. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4675.

Since it is questionable whether court or court clerk would maintain record containing total or tabulation of number of cases that were transferred from one court to another, if no such record exists containing figures sought, there would be no obligation to create such record or total on requester's behalf. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4862.

166. — —Education-related records

City officials would not be required by Freedom of Information Law to prepare record that identifies firms which are interested in buying certain school when there is no list or record that identifies firms since communications had been oral in nature. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4582.

Agency need not create or prepare record in response to request; therefore, if board of co-operative educational services does not maintain statistical data involving race, ethnicity or sex, it is not required to prepare data on behalf of request. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4914.

Freedom of Information Law generally pertains to existing records and agency need not create or prepare record in response to request, unless specific direction to contrary is provided; therefore, if record indicating total of amount of legal fees paid by school district regarding employment dispute was not available, school district would not be required to review records and prepare tabulation or total in response to request. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4942.

167. — —Health-related records

Freedom of Information Law pertains to existing records and agency need not create or prepare record in response to request; therefore, if information sought does not exist in form of record or records, health department would not be obliged to create or prepare new records on requestor's behalf. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4860.

168. — —Lists

Freedom of Information Law pertains to existing records and agency is not required to create or prepare record in response to request; therefore, if there is no list of district offices of specific senators, senate would not be obliged to prepare list based upon request. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4820.

If city does not maintain list of contributors and amounts of contributions made to project, it could not provide copy of such record; but, assuming that city has possession of list of contributors, it would appear that some aspects of list would be available, while others could be withheld. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4899.

169. — —Municipal records

Town is required to disclose existing records in accordance with Freedom of Information Law, but it is not obliged to create new records or review its records for purpose of preparing totals or tabulations. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4725.

If town board has not prepared record containing explanation of its decision, it would not be required to do so pursuant to request made under Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4727.

Freedom of Information Law pertains to existing records and agency is generally not required to create or prepare records in response to requests; therefore, if office of mayor maintains no record containing proof of qualification for appointment, there would be no obligation to create such records based on requests. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4886.

170. — —Sentencing records

Pre-sentence report may be made available only upon order of court, and only under circumstances described in CLS CPL § 390.50; as such, Freedom of Information Law does not entitle person requesting pre-sentence report to receive a copy of it. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4612.

Requests should be directed to agency that maintains records sought; agency is not required to prepare or create record in response to request; therefore, if no statistics concerning stabbings at correctional facilities have been prepared, agency, when receiving such request, would not be obliged to create records containing such statistics. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4874.

Freedom of Information Law pertains to existing records and if there is no record that lists all inmates and correction officers who were transported to correctional facility, Department of Correctional Services would not be required to create such records based on request. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4877.

Freedom of Information Law does not require agency to create or prepare record in response to request. Comm On Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4591.

If totals or breakdown of information requested have not been statistically prepared and do not appear in existing records, agency would not be required to create new records in response to such requests. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4630.

Freedom of Information Law pertains to existing records, and agency generally is not required to create new record in response to request. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4643.

Freedom of Information Law is vehicle under which public may seek and generally obtain existing records; it is not vehicle that requires agency officials to answer questions or prepare new records in response to request for information; further, as general rule, agency may not create or prepare record and response to request. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4720.

Freedom of Information Law pertains to existing records, and agency is not required to create or prepare records in response to request; to extent that information sought does not exist in form of records, agency would not be obligated to prepare new records. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4757.

Agency is not required to create or prepare record in response to request; therefore, if information sought does not exist in form of record or records, agency officials would not be required by Freedom of Information Law to create new record in order to respond to request. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4775.

Freedom of Information Law enables applicant to request existing records; it does not require agency officials to respond to questions or create new record in response to request. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4831.

Freedom of Information Law pertains to existing records and agency is not required to create or prepare record in response to request. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4876.

Freedom of Information Law pertains to access of existing records and, as such, Law does not require that agencies prepare or create record in response to request. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4884.

Freedom of Information Law generally pertains to existing records and agency need not create or prepare record in response to request. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4912.

Freedom of Information Law pertains to existing records and agency need not create or prepare record in response to request; as such, Freedom of Information Law does not require agency officials to answer questions when their answers would involve preparation of new records; further, although agency officials may and often do answer questions, there is no law that requires them to do so. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4930.

Freedom of Information Law pertains to existing records and agency is generally not required to create record in response to request. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4943.

Freedom of Information Law pertains to existing records and agency is not required to create record in response to request. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4949.

Freedom of Information Law pertains to existing records and an agency need not create a record in response to a request; hence, records pertaining to events that occurred in 1975 may not be available due to the substantial passage of time. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-6302 (1990).

Freedom of Information Law does not require agency to create record in response to request; therefore, if authority does not maintain record containing payment breakdown in relation to contract, Freedom of Information Law would not require that such record be prepared in response to request. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-4733.

171. —Tape recordings

Assuming that contents of a cassette recording of an agency hearing are available under the Freedom of Information Law, persons can listen to it or request a copy for a fee based upon the actual cost of reproduction. If no transcript exists, the agency is not required to create one in response to a request by a non-party. Comm on Open Govt FOIL-AO 3033.

Records officer need not extract requested information from variety of records for requester. Comm on Open Govt FOIL-AO-3665.

Although Freedom of Information Law provides broad rights of access, it pertains to existing records; education department does not maintain any list that contains names and current addresses of college alumni, and though education department would provide information containing current addresses of alumni if they maintained information, department cannot make available what it does not have. Comm On Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4599.

Records maintained by police department, to extent that they continue to exist, will be subject to rights conferred by Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4661.

Issuance of duplicate tax bill does not pertain to creation of new document, but rather duplication of existing record; therefore, Freedom of Information Law pertains to existing records because agency is not required to prepare new record in response to request. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4668.

Freedom of Information Law pertains to access to existing records and does not require agency to answer questions or to provide "information". Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4695.

Statement that agency does not maintain memoranda or related records which are requested, and that agency was unable to locate regulations sought, was not denial, and therefore agency's response cannot be subject to appeal. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4715.

Freedom of Information Law pertains to existing records maintained by agencies and does not generally require agencies to answer questions; when requesting information, requester should specify that certain records are sought instead of simply asking questions. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4843.

Freedom of Information Law pertains to rights of access to existing records only. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4853.

Freedom of Information Law is vehicle that requires agency officials to respond to requests for records; it does not require that agency officials answer questions or to request "information". Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4883.

Freedom of Information Law does not require agency officials to answer questions or provide information that does not exist in form of record or records; rather, it is vehicle under which any person may seek existing records, irrespective of applicant's status or interest. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4889.

Freedom of Information Law pertains to rights of access to existing records maintained by agencies; Law does not require that agencies answer questions or prepare response to request for "information". Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4906.

Freedom of Information Law pertains to rights of access to existing records maintained by agencies, thus, agency, such as New York City Police Department, is not required to answer questions or supply information generally in response to request; further, agency is not required to obtain records from other agencies in order to respond to request. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4915.

If Racing and Wagering Board maintains copy of New York Racing Association Charter, it should be made available upon payment of appropriate fee for photocopying because none of grounds for denial would be applicable; however, if board does not maintain possession of Charter, it would not be required to obtain copy on requester's behalf. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4952.

Freedom of Information Law pertains to rights of access to existing records maintained by entities of state and local government and, as such, Law does not require agencies to answer questions, or prepare response to request. Comm On Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4977.

If a complaint was made verbally to town's zoning code enforcement officer and the town maintained no recording pertaining to the complaint, FOIL was inapplicable in that no record existed. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-6142 (1990).

If no report exists in format described or containing each of elements indicated in request for disclosure, agency officials are not obliged to compile or create new record containing information or prepare new record in desired format. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7606.

Physical possession by county of records, or absence thereof, is not necessarily determinative of rights of access. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8899.

Where agency cannot find records requested under Freedom of Information Law, it cannot and need not prepare itemized listing of records it was unable to find. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9411.

172. Permissive, not mandatory, denials

Grounds for denial under Freedom of Information Law are permissive rather than mandatory, such that agency may deny access to records or portions thereof that fall within one or more of grounds for denial, however agency is not prohibited from granting request for such records. 1986 Committee on Open Government FOIL-AO-4326.

Grounds for denial of access to records are generally permissive, not mandatory; agency may deny access to records or portions of records that fall within one or more grounds for denial, but it is not required to do so. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4792.

Language of Freedom of Information Law indicates that agency may withhold records, but that it is generally not required to do so; thus, although agency may in appropriate circumstances withhold records, it is not obliged to do so. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7528.

173. Previously provided documents, generally

174. —Publicly available documents

If request involves tape recordings made during specific period of time, and all conversations occurring within that period were publicly disclosed to be at airwaves, tapes would be available in their entirety to requestor or to any member of public; if tapes were not disclosed over airwaves, to extent that they pertained to requestor's arrest and events leading to arrest, it appears that they would be available in great measure if not in their entirety. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4743.

Although inadvertent disclosure of records that ordinarily could have been withheld does not create right of access, where disclosure to news media is not inadvertent but purposeful, any member of public then has rights of access to records. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9245.

When information contained in record has already been disclosed, or is available from another source, grounds for denial in Freedom of Information Law would not likely provide basis for denial of records sought; Freedom of Information Law pertains to rights of access to existing records and does not require agency to create or prepare record in response to request. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4747.

Nothing in Freedom of Information Law pertains specifically to repeated requests made by applicant for records that have already been disclosed; it was advised that agency inform applicant that records sought have been made available and that ensuing requests for same items will be considered moot and will not be answered. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8549.

If record was previously made available to requester or his attorney (i.e., in conjunction with criminal proceeding), there must be demonstration that neither requester nor attorney possesses record in order to successfully obtain second copy. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12438.

175. Redaction of part of publicly available document as denial

Single record or report may be subject to Freedom of Information application in part or deniable in part, and agency has obligation to review record sought in its entirety to determine which portions, if any, may justifiably be withheld. 1986 Committee on Open Government FOIL-AO-4236.

When record is requested and portion is deleted when record is made available, deletion represents denial of request and Freedom of Information Law requires that denial of access be in writing, stating reasons therefore and advising applicant of right to appeal denial. 1986 Committee on Open Government FOIL-AO-4380.

Report made by consultant, that was hired by county, is likely to be accessible in part and deniable on part based upon its contents; report should be viewed in its entirety for purpose of disclosing those portions that are accessible in conjunction with CLS Pub O § 87(2)(g). Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4624.

Agency has obligation to review records sought in their entirety to ascertain extent, if any, to which records or portions thereof may justifiably be withheld. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4791.

There may be situations in which single record might be both available or deniable in part. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7603.

176. Specificity of reasons for denial

No provision of Freedom of Information Law or judicial decision requires that denial at agency level identify every record withheld or give description of reason for withholding each document be given. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8527.

177. Waiver of denial

Once department of correctional services enables inmates' attorneys to view video tapes, department has waived its capacity to deny request by either inmate, who is subject of tape, or attorney of inmate who is acting in representative capacity on behalf of inmate. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4697.

Fact that any person could have heard content of requested record constitutes waiver of capacity to withhold what has become part of public domain. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12186.

2. Specific Statutory Exemptions Justifying Denial

178. In general

Grounds for entry into executive session in the Open Meetings Law are not necessarily consistent with the grounds for denial of access to records appearing in the Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Govt FOIL-AO 3074.

When record is requested under Freedom of Information Law, only question that may be raised by agency involves extent, if any, to which record might properly be withheld in accordance with grounds for denial appearing in CLS Pub O § 87(2); thus, agency cannot delay disclosing records, unless such constructive denial is based upon one or more of grounds for denial appearing in § 87(2). Comm on Open Govt FOIL-AO-3549.

Although public body may take final action during executive session, information that would be deniable under Freedom of Information Law need not be made available as part of minutes of executive session, and if no action is taken during executive session, minutes need not be prepared, as a consequence, there may be situations in which some aspects of minutes of executive session might justifiably be deleted, if those deletions represent information that falls within one or more of the grounds for denial. 1986 Committee on Open Government FOIL-AO-4314.

If records are available pursuant to provision of law other than Freedom of Information Law, nothing in Freedom of Information Law can be asserted to withhold those records. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9363.

Insofar as witness statements are part of motor vehicle accident reports, they must be disclosed in their entirety in most instances since, under CLS Pub O § 89(6), if records are available under some other provision of law or by means of judicial interpretation, grounds for denial appearing in CLS Pub O § 87(2) cannot be asserted. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12611.

179. Exempted by state or federal statute (§ 87(2)(a)), generally

180. —Civil Practice Law and Rules (CPLR)

Copies of school district attorney's notes taken during arbitration hearing were not subject to disclosure under Freedom of Information Law pursuant to CLS Pub O § 87(2)(a) and CLS CPLR § 3101. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8467.

Records that might become involved in litigation, which were obtained by Public Service Commission (PSC) from Niagara Mohawk Power Corporation (NMPC) pursuant to PSC order, would be exempted from disclosure under Freedom of Information Law based on NMPC's attempt to preserve attorney-client privilege, insofar as NMPC could properly claim privileges under CPLR concerning its records. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9911.

Materials that are served on or shared with adversary could not be characterized as confidential or exempt from disclosure under CLS CPLR § 3101. Insofar as certain correspondence between town and private attorney have been communicated between town and its adversary or have been filed with court, any claim of privilege or its equivalent would be effectively waived; once records in nature of attorney work product or material prepared for litigation were transmitted to adversary, i.e., from town to its adversary and vice versa, capacity to claim exemptions from disclosure under CLS CPLR § 3101(c) or (d) or, therefore, CLS Pub O § 87(2)(a) ends, while, conversely, if records had not been disclosed to person other than client or clients, assertion of privilege would be proper. If records are prepared for multiple purposes, one of which includes eventual use in litigation, CLS CPLR § 3101(d) does not serve as basis for withholding records; only when records are prepared solely for litigation can § 3101(d) be properly asserted to deny access to records. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12638.

Because records reflective of correction officers' vacation accruals do not evaluate performance, and because those records are "neutral," CLS Civ R § 50-a would not serve to authorize denial of access to applicant. Attendance records, including those involving overtime work, are clearly available under Freedom of Information Law, for they are relevant to performance of public employees' official duties; similarly, records reflective of leave used or accrued must be disclosed, for public has economic interest in obtaining those records and because records are relevant to performance of public employees' official duties. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12699.

Proper assertion of attorney-client privilege involves need to ensure that advantage is not given to adversary; thus, if disclosure of certain items that were deleted in record of litigation would have no such adverse effect, attorney-client privilege could not be properly asserted under Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-13383.

Records regarding "dates, times and duration" of legal services rendered by school district attorney in civil rights case must be disclosed; "descriptive" material reflective of "general nature of services rendered," as well as dates, times and duration of services rendered, ordinarily would be beyond coverage of attorney-client or work product privilege. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-13526.

Materials that are served on or shared with adversary in litigation cannot be characterized as confidential or exempt from disclosure under CLS CPLR § 3101(c) and (d). Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-13590.

Correspondence between village attorney and applicant's attorney, if it exists, although in possession of village's attorney, does not constitute privileged communications; village is client of village attorney, but applicant's attorney is not. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-16526.

181. —Civil Rights Law, generally

182. — —Police matters

Assuming that request for final determination relating to complaint of misconduct by police officer was not been made in context of current or future litigation, CLS Civ R § 50-a would not justify denial of request pursuant to CLS Pub O § 87(2)(a). Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7602.

Agency's blanket denial of Freedom of Information Law request for records pertaining to "disruption" that occurred at fireworks festival, on basis of CLS Civ R § 50-a, was not proper because, while some records might justifiably have been withheld as pertaining to police personnel, records focusing on event itself would not be subject to § 50-a (although other grounds to deny access might apply). Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12016.

In context of city business, matters would be "confidential" only on rare occasions; those situations might involve information that is derived from personnel records used to evaluate continuing employment or promotion of police officers or professional firefighters under CLS Civ R § 50-a, or they might involve attorney work product or records subject to attorney-client privilege. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12558.

Names or other identifying details pertaining to police officers who were subjects of complaints or investigations could be deleted from records sought under CLS Civ R § 50-a; remainder, however, would be subject to Freedom of Information Law and would be available unless other elements of records might be justifiably withheld. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12655.

CLS Civ R § 50-b exempts records identifiable to victim of sex offense from disclosure, and thus Freedom of Information Law provides no rights of access to such records. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-13088.

Committee on Open Government would suggest that police department prepare inventory of all records falling within scope of Freedom of Information Law request involving certain sex crime case; inventory should briefly describe each and every record sought, and when it is clearly so, assertion or certification that record would, if disclosed, identify or tend to identify victim in violation of CLS Civ R § 50-b. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-13088.

Board of Public Safety was justified in deleting, from minutes of its executive sessions, references to how each board member voted in deciding to place Chief of Police on administrative leave; matter involved police officer within scope of CLS Civ R § 50-a, which prohibits disclosure of personnel records used to evaluate police officer's performance, and could be withheld under Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3427.

CLS Civ R § 50-a is inapplicable to request for records under Freedom of Information Act and cannot be asserted as basis for denial of request. 1986 Committee on Open Government FOIL-AO-4284.

Where veteran directs that his or her certificate of honorable discharge filed with county clerk be sealed pursuant to CLS Civ R

§ 79-g, record is specifically exempted from disclosure pursuant to CLS Pub O § 87(2)(a). Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8954.

With regard to records identifiable to victim of sex offense, Freedom of Information Law provides no rights of access to those records and any authority to disclose or obtain records in question would be based on direction provided by CLS Civ R § 50-b. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9645.

CLS Civ R § 50-a does not exempt records from disclosure when request is made under Freedom of Information Law in context unrelated to litigation; § 50-a was designed to limit access to personnel records by criminal defense counsel who would use contents of records, including unsubstantiated and irrelevant complaints against officers, to embarrass officers during cross-examination. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-10149.

Rationale for confidentiality accorded by CLS Civ R § 50-a was no longer present, and that statute was no longer applicable or pertinent, as applied to police chief who had retired, since there was no issue involving continued employment or promotion; thus, records regarding chief could be disclosed under Freedom of Information Law. Records indicating payments for "accrued sick, vacation and/or personal leave time as well as any payment or payments for accrued overtime or compensatory time" and "any other...benefits" would be accessible to public under Freedom of Information Law, even if employee in question remained police officer and CLS Civ R § 50-a remained consideration, since records reflective of payments or benefits are not used to evaluate performance, and such records are "neutral." Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12423.

Records subject to CLS Civ R § 50-b are exempt from disclosure under Freedom of Information Law, and any disclosure of records falling within its coverage can be made only pursuant to that statute. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12535.

General policy of withholding names of complainants or victims would be inconsistent with Freedom of Information Law, although denial of access to name of complainant or victim may be appropriate; under CLS Civ R § 50-b, police and other public officers are prohibited from disclosing identity of victim of sex offense, person's identity could likely be withheld under CLS Pub O § 87(2)(f) which permits agency to withhold records to extent that disclosure would "endanger the life or safety of any person," (which would include situation where complainant is in some way associated with organized crime or is confidential source), and same provision might apply when victim is senior citizen who lives alone. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12605.

If direction to seal certificate of honorable discharge were given by veteran under CLS Civ R § 79-g, county clerk would be prohibited from disclosing, notwithstanding provisions of Freedom of Information Law; conversely, when there is no direction by veteran to seal certificate, that record, like all others, would be subject to rights conferred by Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12688.

CLS Civ R § 50-b would not apply to writing prepared by school principal regarding allegations that school employee was pedophile where writing was authored long before any arrest, and it did not identify any victim of sex offense. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-13590.

CLS Civ R § 50-a would not serve to authorize town to deny access to record containing schedule for staffing for desk in police station on certain dates, since such records do not evaluate performance, and are "neutral," even if they might be found within personnel files. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-13610.

183. —County Law

Records of investigations of deaths, requested after investigations were closed, would be subject to CLS County § 677 to extent that files contained autopsy reports and "writings" of coroner or medical examiner, and to that extent they were available only to district attorney and deceased's next of kin; however, records prepared by police departments that came into possession of coroner or medical examiner were subject to Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-10030.

Under CLS County § 308(4), "records...of calls" means either recording or transcript of communication between person making 911 emergency call, and employee who receives call; statute cannot validly be construed to mean records regarding or relating to 911 call. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12544.

CLS County § 308(4) cannot validly be construed to mean records regarding or relating to 911 call; if that were so, innumerable police and fire reports, including arrest reports and police blotter entries, would be exempt from disclosure in their entirety under Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12741.

184. —Criminal Procedure Law (CPL)

Presentence report cannot be obtained from correctional facility under Freedom of Information Law; presentence report may be made available only upon order of court, and only under circumstances described in CLS Crim Pro § 390.50. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4637.

Pre-sentence reports are specifically exempted from disclosure by state statute and may generally be withheld on basis of Freedom of Information Law in conjunction with CLS CPL § 390.50. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4669.

Freedom of Information Law does not apply to courts or court records; however, many court records are available pursuant to other provisions of law; because criminal procedure law provides that when criminal action or proceeding is dismissed in favor of accused and records relating to event are sealed, records of dismissal of action cannot be provided based upon the exemption of Criminal Procedure Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4947.

Records regarding grand jury testimony, evidence, decision, result or other matter are specifically exempted from disclosure by Criminal Procedure Law and therefore cannot be acquired under Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4972.

Where records were sealed pursuant to CLS Criminal Procedure Law § 160.50, such records were exempt from disclosure by statute, and thus outside the scope of rights conferred by the Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-6289 (1990).

Grand jury records are exempt from disclosure pursuant to CLS Pub O § 87(2)(a) since CLS CPL § 190.25(4) provides that grand jury proceedings are secret. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7573.

If person who committed shooting was not fingerprinted, arraigned or arrested, records could not have been sealed because CLS CPL § 160.50 would not have applied and, therefore, records pertaining to incident would not be exempt from disclosure under CLS Pub O § 87(2)(a). Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8322.

CLS CPL § 390.50 represents exclusive procedure concerning access to pre-sentence reports. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12429.

Unless arrest or booking record has been sealed under CLS CPL § 160.50, it must be disclosed; under that statute, when criminal charges have been dismissed in favor of accused, records relating to arrest ordinarily are sealed and, in those instances, records would be exempted from disclosure by statute under CLS Pub O § 87(2)(a). Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12605.

Access to records relating to investigation of county property and employees could be denied under CLS CPL § 190.25(4) where matter went before grand jury. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12722.

Grand jury minutes and "other matters attending a grand jury proceeding" would be outside scope of rights conferred by Freedom of Information Law; any disclosure of those records would be based on court order or perhaps vehicle authorizing or requiring disclosure that is separate and distinct from Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12802.

"Official records" and capacity to seal under CLS CPL § 160.50 involve those records "relating to the arrest or prosecution," and do not necessarily include investigative materials; thus, investigative materials may fall under Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-13469.

185. —Election Law

Unsuccessful candidate in village election was not entitled to Freedom of Information Law access to paper roll to check on votes he received, as such records are exempted from disclosure by CLS Elec § 9-124. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12126.

186. —Emergency Tenant Protection Act

Right of access to rent registration records are governed not by Freedom of Information Law, but rather by Emergency Tenant Protection Act, the New York City Administrative Code and Division of Housing and Community Renewal. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4738.

"Rent rolls" (lists of rent stabilized buildings located within city, maintained by state Division of Housing and Community Renewal) are specifically exempted from disclosure by CLS Unconsol Ch 249-B § 12-a(b) and are beyond rights of access conferred by Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-13091.

Government agency would not be required to disclose name of person currently residing in certain rent-controlled apartment, except to tenant or tenant's representative. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-13463.

187. —Executive Law

State Ethics Commission and its records are excluded from coverage of Freedom of Information Law pursuant to CLS Pub O § 87(2)(a) and CLS Exec § 94(17)(a). Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7917.

CLS Exec § 259-k(2) and 9 NYCRR § 8000.5, which describe circumstances under with division is permitted to release information from its case records, do not justify withholding names of inmates being released from state facilities to parole supervision. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-10181.

Sole records required to be disclosed by State Ethics Commission are those identified in CLS Exec § 94(a)(1)-(4). Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-13614.

Based on confidentiality provision of CLS Exec § 501-c, medical records and other records pertaining to requester's son, who had been placed in residential treatment facility following issuance of PINS petition, could only be disclosed pursuant to court order. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-16554.

188. —Federal laws, generally

189. — —Driver's Privacy Protection Act

Federal Driver's Privacy Protection Act does not exempt data maintained by state Department of Motor Vehicles, relating to moving violations and accidents, from Freedom of Information Law disclosure. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-11978.

190. — —Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act (FERPA)

Federal Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act generally prohibits educational agency from disclosing "education records" identifiable to student without student's consent; therefore, to extent that Federal Act prohibits disclosure, records concerning allegation of plagiarism would be specifically exempted from disclosure by federal statute. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4904-A.

If portions of time sheets, bills or related records contain information that is confidential under attorney-client privilege, disclosure of those portions may be withheld under CLS Pub O § 87(2)(a), which permits agency to withhold records or portions thereof that are "specifically exempted from disclosure by state or federal statute." Portions of "confidential monthly summary" prepared by law firm for school district which identified or could identify students facing disciplinary charges were not subject to disclosure under Freedom of Information Law, due to privacy requirements of Family Education Rights and Privacy Act (20 USCS § 1232g) and CLS Pub O § 87(2)(a). Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7508.

Request to inspect and copy all first-year student answers to particular midterm examination administered by law school could be denied pursuant to provisions of Family Education Rights and Privacy Act (20 USCS § 1232g) and CLS Pub O § 87(2)(a), even though names did not appear on test papers, if test answers were handwritten, since it was possible that review of test papers could enable individual to identify students' papers by means of their handwriting, which presumably was unique in every instance. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7510.

If person employed by school district routinely and as part of his or her official duties contacts parents of students by telephone, those portions of phone bill that could identify parents and, therefore, students, are exempt from disclosure under CLS Pub O § 87(2)(a) and Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act, 20 USCS § 1232g. In order to comply with Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act, 20 USCS § 1232g, for those records reflective of calls made by school district staff who routinely and as part of their duties contacted parents of students, last four digits appearing in local phone number could be deleted from school district telephone bills prior to disclosure of those bills, unless it was known that certain phone numbers did not involve contact with parents; in case of long distance calls, as well as 800 and 900 numbers, reference to those calls were required to be disclosed in their entirety, unless it could clearly be asserted that particular long distance call or calls involved contact with parent of student; similarly, those records of calls made by staff who did not telephone parents of students routinely and as part of their official duties were required to be disclosed. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7926.

Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act (20 USCS § 1232g) generally forbids school district from disclosing personally identifiable information concerning students, unless parents of students consent to disclosure. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12405.

Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act (FERPA; 20 USCS § 1232g) would apply to writing prepared by school principal regarding allegations that school employee was pedophile if writing included personally identifiable information pertaining to person or persons who provided information to school district. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-13590.

191. — —Internal Revenue Code

W-2 forms are not exempted from disclosure under CLS Pub O § 87(2)(a) on basis of 26 USCS § 6103 since latter statute pertains to records received and maintained by Internal Revenue Service but does not pertain to records kept by individual taxpayer or records maintained by employer, such as school district. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7639.

W-2 forms and similar records, such as "NYS-45-ATT," are not specifically exempted from disclosure by statute on basis of 26 USCS § 6103 (Internal Revenue Code) and CLS Tax § 697(e) since such confidentiality statutes pertain only to records received and maintained by Internal Revenue Service; statutes do not pertain to records kept by either individual taxpayer or employer. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-13090.

Portions of W-2 forms, as well as NYS-Att-45 form, may be withheld from disclosure, such as social security numbers and total tax withheld, since such items are largely irrelevant to performance of employee's duties; however, those portions indicating public officers' or employees' names and gross wages must be disclosed. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-13090.

192. — —Omnibus Transportation Employee Testing Act

Omnibus Transportation Employee Testing Act of 1991 (OTETA) (PL 102-143, Title V; codified at 49 USCS ch 313) appears to be intended to ensure that alcohol and drug test results of school bus drivers are exempted from public disclosure, as evidenced by statute, implementing regulations, and agency interpretation of Act, including News Alert (publication of U.S. Department of Transportation, dated March 27, 1998). Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12554.

State agency in possession of records prepared by federal agency which could be withheld by federal agency under federal Freedom of Information Law (FOIL) may not deny disclosure under state FOIL on ground that such records are "specifically exempted from disclosure by...statute" under CLS Pub O § 87(2)(a); only federal agencies subject to federal act may assert exemption appearing in federal act. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-11985.

Finding that records are confidential and cannot be disclosed must be consistent with specific and unequivocal language of statute. For purposes of Freedom of Information Law, statute would be enactment of state Legislature or Congress; therefore, federal regulation cannot confer, require or promise confidentiality. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12554.

193. —Hospital incident reports

Hospital incident reports can be characterized as records that are specifically exempted from disclosure by state or federal statute. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4587.

194. —Judiciary Law

Information contained in record of grievance submitted to office of grievance committee against former attorney are subject to CLS Jud § 90(10); further, records may be disclosed only in conjunction with that statute, rather than Freedom of Information Law; moreover, even if Freedom of Information Law is considered to be applicable, Law provides that agency may deny access to records that are specifically exempted from disclosure by state or federal statute. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4979.

195. —Mental Hygiene Law

Requestor of information consisting of mental health records which are both relevant and material to defense litigation cannot be obtained pursuant to Freedom of Information Law; these records may be disclosed through CLS Mental Hygiene § 33.13. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4744.

To extent that CLS Men Hyg § 33.13 is applicable to clinical records as class, statute exempts records from disclosure in their entirety, despite accessibility provisions of Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-13376.

Records regarding incident in which developmental center chaplain left center with resident for long period of time without authorization, and in which police were called to find them, resulting in charge of endangering welfare of incompetent person, would not be clinical record under CLS Men Hyg § 33.13 and would be subject to Freedom of Information law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-13376.

196. —New York City laws, generally

197. — —New York City Charter

§ 557(g) of New York City Charter has effect of statute and it exempts records from Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9195.

Whether payroll records required to be maintained by New York City Conflicts of Interest Board were exempt from disclosure on basis of NYC Charter § 2603(k) depended on whether charter provision in question was purely local enactment, or whether it was approved and enacted by state legislature, in which case it would constitute statute exempting requested records from disclosure. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12205.

New York City local laws which are result of action by state legislature could be considered "statute" that could exempt records from disclosure; however, local law which may have been enacted without any direction by state legislature could not be characterized as "statute". Comm on Open Govt FOIL-AO-3659.

Freedom of Information Law allows agency to charge up to $.25 cents per photocopy or actual cost of reproducing records that cannot be photocopied, unless another statute permits higher fee to be assessed; Freedom of Information Law makes no reference to capacity to charge for personnel costs, search time, or time needed to evaluate contents of records in terms of rights of access; however, after October 15, 1982, only act of state legislature or statute permit assessment of search fee, fee higher than $.25 cents per photocopy or fee that exceeds actual cost of reproduction; New York City Administrative Code is not viewed as statute that exempts records from Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4588.

Right of access to rent registration records are governed not by Freedom of Information Law, but rather by Emergency Tenant Protection Act, the New York City Administrative Code and Division of Housing and Community Renewal. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4738.

New York City Health Code (specifically NYC Health Code § 11.07), unless enacted by State Legislature, does not constitute statute that exempts records from disclosure under CLS Pub O § 87(2)(a). Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7609.

CLS Exec § 259-k(2) and 9 NYCRR § 8000.5, which describe circumstances under with division is permitted to release information from its case records, do not justify withholding names of inmates being released from state facilities to parole supervision. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-10181.

198. —Open Meetings Law

Grounds for withholding records under Freedom of Information Law and grounds for entry into executive session under Open Meetings Law are separate and distinct, and they are not necessarily consistent. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8323.

Since public body may choose to conduct executive session or discuss particular issue in public, information expressed during executive session is not "exempted from disclosure by...statute" under CLS Pub O § 87(2)(a), which requires that statute must prohibit disclosure and leave no discretion to agency or official regarding ability to disclose. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3282.

199. —Penal Law (PL)

200. —Public Health Law

While Freedom of Information Law pertains generally to rights of access to records maintained by units of state and local government, Public Health Law governs patients' rights of access to medical records pertaining to himself or herself; as such, when requesting copies of medical records pertaining to ones self, request should be made pursuant to Public Health Law, rather than Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4918.

201. —Public Housing Law

Public housing authority or municipality in possession of records pertaining to application for housing, together with amount of rent paid and identity of person paying rent, could withhold such information pursuant to CLS Pub O § 87(2)(a) and CLS Pub Hous § 159. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8938.

Under CLS Pub Hous § 159, public housing authority or municipality cannot disclose information identifiable to tenants. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12399.

202. —Public Officers Law

Confidential communications between an attorney and his client are exempted from disclosure pursuant to CLS Public Officers Law § 87(2)(a). Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-6237 (1990).

If state agency cannot disclose records pursuant to CLS Pub O § 96, it is precluded from disclosing them under Freedom of Information Law; alternatively, if disclosure of record would not constitute unwarranted invasion of personal privacy and if record is available under Freedom of Information Law, it may be disclosed under CLS Pub O § 96(1). Since disclosure by Lottery of information regarding lottery winners does not include actual home addresses of winners, home addresses of lottery winners can be withheld as unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9143.

CLS Pub O § 87(4) pertains only to state agencies, and was enacted in conjunction with CLS Pub O § 89(5) to clearly limit application of that provision to state agencies. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9995.

203. —Social Services Law

Information contained in state child abuse central registrar is confidential pursuant to Social Services Law and any rights applicant may have to information in register would be conferred by Social Services Law, rather than Freedom of Information Law or Personal Privacy Protection Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4980.

Records dealing with juvenile offenders are exempted from disclosure by state statute, CLS Soc Serv Law § 372; therefore, records which identify juvenile offenders or others committed to facility of Division for Youth are confidential and cannot be disclosed except under conditions described in Soc Serv Law § 372. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4981.

Records indicating name, last known address, home telephone number, employment address, email address, and civil case numbers of each child support obligor known to county were exempt from disclosure under Freedom of Information Law based on CLS Soc Serv § 111-v and CLS Dom Rel § 235(1). Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-16643.

204. —Tax Law

Commercial entity claiming that disclosure would cause substantial injury to its competitive position may choose to initiate proceeding to defend against disclosure, in which case it would have burden of proof; in that event, commercial enterprise, rather than person seeking records, would bear expense and burden of attempting to block disclosure and litigating matter. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12656.

W-2 forms and similar records, such as "NYS-45-ATT," are not specifically exempted from disclosure by statute on basis of 26 USCS § 6103 (Internal Revenue Code) and CLS Tax § 697(e) since such confidentiality statutes pertain only to records received and maintained by Internal Revenue Service; statutes do not pertain to records kept by either individual taxpayer or employer. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-13090.

Portions of W-2 forms, as well as NYS-Att-45 form, may be withheld from disclosure, such as social security numbers and total tax withheld, since such items are largely irrelevant to performance of employee's duties; however, those portions indicating public officers' or employees' names and gross wages must be disclosed. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-13090.

205. —Town Code of Ethics

Assertion of confidentiality in town code of ethics, without more, does not guarantee or require confidentiality under CLS Pub O § 87(2)(a). Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2805.

Advisory opinion prepared by town Ethics Board could be withheld, except in 2 circumstances: (1) if opinion were rejected or modified, it would be deniable under both CLS Pub O § 87(2)(b) as unwarranted invasion of personal privacy and under CLS Pub O § 87(2)(g), for it consists of recommendation to Town Board that is not final or binding, or (2) opinion involves situation in which local law requires disclosure. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3712.

There would be no basis for withholding those portions of ethics complaint made to town ethics board that indicate complainant's identity where name of complainant has been disclosed by himself and others. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3712.

When allegations or charges of misconduct against public official have not yet been determined or did not result in disciplinary action, records relating to such allegations may be withheld, for disclosure would result in unwarranted invasion of personal privacy; further, to extent that such charges are dismissed or allegations are found to be without merit, they may be withheld. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3712.

In typical situation in which Freedom of Information Law determines rights of access, opinions offered by town Ethics Board or its members may be withheld, unless and until opinion is adopted by the Town Board or local enactment requires disclosure; similarly, if Open Meetings Law were followed, discussions following complaint concerning conduct of Town Board member could have occurred during executive sessions. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3712.

Contents of tape recordings of executive sessions reflecting deliberative process of either Town Board or town Ethics Board would consist of "intra-agency material" falling within scope of CLS Pub O § 87(2)(g); moreover, since there was no final determination by Town Board indicating misconduct or imposing penalty regarding subject of ethics complaint, any such tapes could be withheld on ground that disclosure would constitute unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3712.

Local legislative body has statutory authority to prohibit legislator from disclosing matters discussed in executive session. 2000 NY Ops Atty Gen I 2000-2.

Records subject to attorney-client privilege, attorney work product, and material prepared for litigation are deniable under Freedom of Information Law due to statutory exemptions from disclosure. Committee on Open Government FOIL-AO-3379.

Provision of municipal code cannot serve as basis for exempting records from disclosure under Freedom of Information Law, and although records may in some instances be characterized as "confidential", they may be considered confidential only when statute, act of state legislature or congress, so prescribes, and city code is not statute. 1986 Committee on Open Government FOIL-AO-4211.

Initial ground for denial of records under Freedom of Information Law pertains to records that are specifically exempted from disclosure by state or federal statute; therefore, if statute other than Freedom of Information Law permits or requires confidentiality, rights that might otherwise be granted by Freedom of Information Law do not apply. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4620.

Although Freedom of Information Law provides broad rights of access to records, agency may withhold records or portions thereof that are specifically exempted from disclosure by state or federal statute. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4664.

If no ground for denial under Freedom of Information Law can justifiably be asserted, no claim of privilege could be asserted to enable government to withhold information; when record is subject to attorney/client privilege or consists of attorney work product, it is specifically exempted from disclosure by statute and therefore may be withheld under Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4685.

When statute other than Freedom of Information Law provides specific direction with respect to disclosure of particular type of records, that statute supersedes more general provisions of Freedom of Information Law; there are many state and federal statutes that specifically exempt particular records from disclosure or give specific direction with respect to disclosure of particular records. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4835.

Request for records may be denied if records are specifically exempted from disclosure by state or federal statute; statute would be enactment of state legislature or Congress and would not include local law, ordinance, or regulations; therefore, if confidentiality is conferred by local law, records would not be exempted from disclosure by "statute", rather they would be available to extent required by Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4839.

Absent clear indication of legislative intent to require continued confidentiality, Freedom of Information Law, as matter of public policy, supercedes statute that appears to exempt records from disclosure; nevertheless, this issue can be resolved only by court. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4844.

While school district may engage in attorney-client relationship with its attorney, records of moneys paid and received by attorney or law firm for services rendered to client are not privileged; but, if portions of bills or related records contain information that is confidential under attorney-client privilege, those portions could be deleted under Freedom of Information Law, which permits agency to withhold records or portions thereof that are specifically exempted from disclosure by state or federal statute. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4942.

CLS Pub O § 87(2)(a) will not apply to records prepared or acquired in ordinary course of business, rather than for any purpose relating to litigation, notwithstanding their subsequent use in course of litigation. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7549.

Administrative regulations cannot be considered as statute that would exempt records from disclosure; agency cannot rely on regulations as basis for withholding record. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7611.

Assertion or claim of confidentiality, unless it is based upon statute, is likely meaningless; if there is no statute upon which agency can rely to characterize records as "confidential" or "exempted from disclosure", records are subject to whatever rights of access exist under Freedom of Information Law. Local enactment cannot confer, require or promise confidentiality. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7914.

Under Freedom of Information Law, central database containing conviction information is beyond public's rights of access as statute pertaining to agency that maintains database exempts database from public access. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9287.

If county record identifies who in county attorney's office handled legal matter, that portion of such record is accessible under Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-10151.

Since copyrighted materials are available for inspection, records bearing copyright cannot be characterized as being "specifically exempted from disclosure...by...statute." Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12179.

To be "exempted from disclosure by statute", both state and federal courts have determined that statute must leave no discretion to agency: it must withhold such records; in contrast, when records are not exempted from disclosure by separate statute, both Freedom of Information Law and its federal counterpart are permissive. Since public body may choose to conduct executive session or discuss issue in public, information expressed during executive session is not "confidential"; to be confidential, statute must prohibit disclosure and leave no discretion to agency or official regarding ability to disclose. City ordinance stating that certain city employees could not discuss or divulge "any sensitive matter or information that if disclosed would disrupt the efficient and effective operation of the City government or would impair the public officer's close working relationship with the Mayor" stifles free speech in manner that has been found to be unconstitutional. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12558.

Records presented to grand jury would ordinarily be outside scope of rights conferred by Freedom of Information Law, and thus any disclosure of those records would be based on court order or vehicle authorizing or requiring disclosure that is separate and distinct from Freedom of Information Law; however, if that record were presented or submitted into evidence during public proceeding, exemption from disclosure would no longer apply. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12694.

Information contained in sex offender registry is to be disclosed only pursuant to Sex Offender Registration Act, "only in the furtherance of the provisions of" CLS Correc Art 6-C, and Freedom of Information Law does not apply. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-13586.

Even if information sought under Freedom of Information Law was obtained during executive session properly held, or from records marked "confidential," claim of confidentiality must be based on statute that specifically confers or requires confidentiality. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-0149.

206. Unwarranted invasion of personal privacy (§ 87(2)(b)), generally

207. —Complaints to agencies; complainants

Substance of written complaint is available, but those portions of complaint that identify complainant may be deleted on ground that disclosure would constitute unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4142.

Record pertaining to respondent, person against whom complaint is made, would generally have rights of access to records pertaining to him or her, except those portions which if disclosed would result in unwarranted invasion of personal privacy with respect to other persons; when complaint is made against public employee allegations have not yet been or are not substantiated, complaint and records related to it that identified person against whom complaint is made may generally be withheld on ground that disclosure would result in unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4729.

Substance of complaints made to an agency by a member of the public is generally available to the public under FOIL, but those portions of the complaint identifying complainants may be deleted on the ground that disclosure would result in an unwarranted invasion of person privacy. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-6143 (1990).

Substance of a complaint made to an agency by a member of the public is available, but those portions of the complaint which identify complainants may be deleted on the ground that disclosure would result in an unwarranted invasion of a person's privacy. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-6272 (1990).

Substance of a complaint made to an agency by a member of the public is available, but those portions of the complaint which identify complainants may be deleted on the ground that disclosure would result in an unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-6285 (1990).

There may be privacy considerations concerning persons other than employees who may be subjects of agency's inquiries; for instance, name of complainant or witness can be withheld in appropriate circumstances as unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7914.

Provisions in Freedom of Information Law pertaining to privacy are intended to deal with natural persons, rather than entities, such as corporations, hospitals, other health care facilities or insurers. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7947.

If identity of complainants is not known to applicant, often portions of records identifying them may be withheld under CLS Pub O § 87(2)(b); however, where identity of complainant is clearly known privacy provisions are inapplicable. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8413.

Substance of complaint made to public agency is generally available, although those portions of complaint which identify complainants may be deleted on ground that disclosure would result in "an unwarranted invasion of personal privacy" pursuant to CLS Pub O § 87(2)(b). Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9214.

Reference to caller as "an 86 year old woman" might constitute unwarranted invasion of personal privacy; it was conjectural whether caller's age was relevant to spill report prepared by Department of Environmental Conservation (DEC) following call by person outside DEC. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9918.

Substance of complaints transmitted to village, pertaining to requestor's property, was accessible under Freedom of Information Law; however portions of complaints that identified complainants could be deleted to prevent unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-10172.

Logbook maintained by town board's "Anti-Bias Task Force," which recorded complaints of bias-related incidents by date, facts, names, etc., was available to public under Freedom of Information Law, except for individual complainants' names and personally identifying details. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12201.

If state agency cannot disclose records pursuant to CLS Pub O § 96 (Personal Privacy Protection Law), it is precluded from disclosing under Freedom of Information Law; alternatively, if disclosure of record would not constitute unwarranted invasion of personal privacy and if record is available under Freedom of Information Law, it may be disclosed under CLS Pub O § 96(1)(c). "Results of the deposition" relating to applicant's complaint to Division of Human Rights, and case file concerning matter, could be withheld to extent that they identified persons other than applicant and disclosure would result in unwarranted invasion of their privacy; in addition, they could be withheld in accordance with CLS CPLR § 3101, while remaining aspects of records pertaining to applicant would appear to be accessible to applicant. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12592.

If complaint of misconduct included identity of complainant, identifying details pertaining to that person may be withheld on ground that disclosure would constitute "an unwarranted invasion of personal privacy"; provision might also be cited insofar as records identify witnesses, family members related to complainant, and perhaps others. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12655.

County Sewer District could withhold or delete portions of records involving citizens' complaints which identified complainants, on ground that disclosure would result in unwarranted invasion of personal privacy; what is relevant is substance of complaint—i.e., whether or not complaint has merit. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2234.

Portion of ethics complaint that identifies complainant may be redacted by town ethics board on ground that disclosure would result in unwarranted invasion of personal privacy unless name of complainant has already been disclosed by himself and others. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3712.

208. —Deceased persons

Access may not be denied to an accident report on the basis that it would be an unwarranted invasion of the privacy of a deceased person. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-2984.

If it can be assumed that person can demonstrate that he or she is next of kin of deceased, he or she would acquire rights that deceased had when he or she was living. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-13174.

Next of kin has rights of access, under Freedom of Information Law and Personal Privacy Protection Law, to deceased employee's personal history file, except situations in which such records identify others and disclosure would constitute unwarranted invasion of those other persons' privacy. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-13174.

Blanket denial of request for state police reports related to homicide-suicide of husband and wife in their home was inconsistent with Freedom of Information Law; in view of details that had already been published and made publicly known, it was unlikely that records pertaining directly to either deceased person would, if disclosed, result in unwarranted invasion of personal privacy, although portions of records identifying other persons might properly be redacted, depending on their contents. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-16552.

209. —Employees and employments, generally

210. — —Certification, qualifications and the like

Records pertaining to public employees that are relevant to performance of their duties are available, because disclosure in those circumstances would result in permissible rather than unwarranted invasion of personal privacy; therefore, licenses or records indicating certification status as well as area of certification are accessible under Freedom of Information Law and similarly, records involving dates of assignment and work hours are relevant to performance of duties of public employees to whom information relates. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4905.

Records containing information directly relevant to public employee's performance of his or her duties, such as license or degree requirements for position, are generally available, but other aspects of public employee's education, employment history or other personal information are likely to be denied based on unwarranted invasion of personal privacy; if residency requirement is needed for position, then disclosure of such information would not constitute unwarranted invasion of personal privacy; however, rest of records may be denied on basis of privacy considerations. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4915.

While record that individual has met requirements to gain teaching certification is clearly public, score on certification exam would, if disclosed, constitute unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. State Education Department would not have authority to disclose certain teacher test scores to city Board of Education in effort to assess connection between those scores and student performance, even though such data would be used "in aid of" board's efforts in hiring most qualified candidates; while data would be helpful to board, it was apparently not "necessary," for board had functioned to date without data. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12594.

211. — —Discipline, misconduct and the like

Record or report might be both available or deniable in part and thus imposes obligation on agency officials to review requested records in their entirety to determine which portions, if any, may be justifiably withheld; agency may withhold records to extent that disclosure would result in unwarranted invasion of personal privacy and to extent that records pertain to allegations or charges against employees that have not yet been proven, which did not result in any disciplinary action, and names or other identifying details that would, if disclosed, constitute unwarranted invasion of personal privacy; however, if investigations of misconduct resulted in disciplinary action, charges that were sustained as well as any final determination indicating action taken would be available for disclosure. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4709.

In context of investigation or possible disciplinary action, where public employees have been charged or where allegations have been made, but where no filing of determination in nature of disciplinary action has been taken, records identifiable to individuals relating to charges or allegations may generally be withheld for disclosure because this would result in unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4787.

Portions of records identifying those who file complaints can generally be withheld as unwarranted invasion of personal privacy; further, if complaint is unsubstantiated and does not result in disciplinary action, it could be withheld as unwarranted invasion of personal privacy regarding officer who is subject of complaint; on other hand, if public employee is subject of disciplinary action, those records are available. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4923.

Records pertaining to public employees that are relevant to performance of their duties are available because disclosure would result in permissible rather than unwarranted invasion of personal privacy; therefore, if disciplinary action has been taken regarding particular police officers, records reflective of that action are available. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4925.

To the extent that charges or allegations against public employee have not been proven or have been dismissed, records pertaining to charges or allegations could be withheld as unwarranted invasion of personal privacy; however, if complaint or allegation has resulted in disciplinary action taken against public employee, records indicating charges that were sustained in nature of action would be available; identities of complainants may generally be withheld on ground that disclosure would result in unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4967.

Records that are relevant to performance of public employee's official duties are available because disclosure would result in permissible rather than unwarranted invasion of personal privacy; further, record reflective of final disciplinary action taken against public employee would be available because such record would deal with matter of public concern, that being public employee's accountability for misconduct; with respect to complaints directed to agency by member of public, portions of complaints that identify complainants may be deleted on ground that disclosure would constitute unwarranted invasion of personal privacy and often what is relevant to agency is substance of complaint and whether it has merit, not identity of person who made complaint; however if employees of agency were acting in performance of their official duties when making complaint, references to them would be relevant to their duties and duties of agency and, as such, denial of those aspects of hearing transcript cannot be justified. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4971.

Records that are relevant to performance of public employee's official duties are available because disclosure in such instances would result in permissible rather than unwarranted invasion of personal privacy; however, if allegations of misconduct have not yet or did not result in disciplinary action, records relating to such allegations may be withheld because disclosure would result in unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4973.

Finding of misconduct, or the imposition of disciplinary action regarding college professors, is accessible under FOIL. On the other hand, when allegations, or charges of misconduct, have not yet been determined, or did not result in disciplinary action, the records relating to such allegations may be withheld on the basis that disclosure would be an unwarranted invasion of person privacy. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-6155 (1990).

Portions of "confidential monthly summary" prepared by law firm for school district which identified or could identify employees facing disciplinary charges were not subject to disclosure under Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7508.

Memorandum prepared concerning possibility that county official might have exhibited symptoms of drinking intoxicating substance while performing his or her duties, and recommendation to conduct professional evaluation to determine whether dependency problem existed, were sufficiently personal and intimate that they could be withheld if requested by public under CLS Pub O § 87(2)(b) on ground that disclosure would constitute unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7528.

When allegations or charges of misconduct by public official have not yet been determined or did not result in disciplinary action, records relating to such allegations may be withheld since disclosure would result in unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7549.

Disclosure of litigation file cabinet "tags" used by individual attorneys at board of education might properly be denied where tags identified employees who were subjects of disciplinary proceedings or other matters disclosure of which would constitute unwarranted invasion of personal privacy within meaning of CLS Pub O § 87(2)(b). Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9251.

Counseling memo issued to employee of Department of Transportation after allegation of misconduct could likely be withheld from disclosure to prevent unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9383.

Records reflective of salaries of public employees must be prepared and made available and, similarly, records reflective of other payments, whether they pertain to overtime, or participation in work-related activities, for example, would be available, for those records would be relevant to performance of one's official duties. When allegations or charges of misconduct of public employee have not yet been determined or did not result in disciplinary action or finding of misconduct, records relating to such allegations may be withheld, for disclosure would result in unwarranted invasion of personal privacy; similarly, to extent that charges are dismissed or allegations are found to be without merit, they may be withheld. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12423.

If there were no determination to effect that public employee engaged in misconduct, denial of access to records regarding investigation of county property and employees that ended several years earlier, based on considerations of privacy, would be consistent with Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12722.

If there were no determination to effect that public employee engaged in misconduct, denial of access to records based on considerations of privacy would be consistent with law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12802.

Exception pertaining to protection of personal privacy could be invoked, in public employee misconduct proceeding, to shield identities of alleged victims and perhaps others, such as witnesses. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12802.

If there were final determination indicating misconduct on part of public employee, based on judicial determinations, such determination would be accessible; in that event, other aspects of records consisting of factual information would be available, except to extent that disclosure would constitute unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12802.

Disclosure of information indicating public employee's criminal conviction would not, if disclosed, constitute unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-13240.

School board, in teacher disciplinary matter, would not have been required to name subject of discussion before entering into executive session under Open Meetings law, or that charges, which were not proven, would have to have been disclosed under Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-13355.

Board of education would not be required to identify, by name, certain employee charged with misconduct at time when board came out of executive session and brought charges against employee. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-13378.

Record indicating determination to impose discipline or sanction on public officer would be accessible to public; disclosure would constitute permissible invasion of privacy, and it would reflect final agency determination accessible under CLS Pub O § 87(2)(g)(iii). Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3902.

212. — —Evaluation of job performance

Individual rating reports, which pertain to named teachers, could be accessible since social security numbers, file numbers, and possibly those reasons which were merely opinions, could be masked out and would therefore not be an unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4642.

Records relevant to performance of public employee's duties would, if disclosed, result in permissible rather than unwarranted invasion of personal privacy; while disclosure of fact that public employee has received promotion would not constitute unwarranted invasion of personal privacy, disclosure of record indicating that public employee applied for and was not granted promotion would likely constitute unwarranted invasion of personal privacy and, as such, request for copy of application may be denied in its entirety prior to final determination concerning application for promotion; since each portion of completed application involves privacy considerations, in situation where promotion has been granted, to extent that application is not relevant to performance of employee's duties, it could be withheld as unwarranted invasion of personal privacy and, as such, while name of institution that awarded degree and names of courses taken could generally be withheld as unwarranted invasion of personal privacy, if particular degree or major field of study is requirement for position held by applicant, portion of application indicating that such criteria have been met would likely be available, for they are relevant to performance of one's official duties. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4908.

Final rating of public employee would be available under Freedom of Information Law, assuming that any appeals had been exhausted, for it would constitute final agency determination available under CLS Pub O § 87(2)(g)(iii), particularly if monetary award was based upon rating; moreover, final rating concerning public employee's performance is relevant to that person's official duties, as well as those of supervisor who issues rating and, therefore, name of employee, final rating and name of supervisor who made rating would be available under Freedom of Information Law since disclosure would not result in unwarranted invasion of personal privacy of either employee or supervisor. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7633.

Disclosure, in employee performance evaluation, of description of duties to be performed by any person holding particular position, or series of criteria reflective of duties or goals to be achieved by any person holding that position, would result in permissible rather than unwarranted invasion of personal privacy for purpose of FOIL. Component of employee performance evaluation involving reviewer's subjective analysis or opinion of how well or poorly standards or duties have been carried out or goals have been achieved could be withheld under FOIL, both as unwarranted invasion of personal privacy and under CLS Pub O § 87(2)(g), on ground that it constitutes opinion concerning performance. Component of employee performance evaluation consisting of final rating, i.e., "good", "excellent", "average", etc. would be available for disclosure under FOIL, assuming that any appeals have been exhausted, for it would constitute final agency determination available under CLS Pub O § 87(2)(g)(iii), particularly if monetary award were based on rating; moreover, final rating concerning public employee's performance is relevant to that person's official duties and therefore would not result in unwarranted invasion of personal privacy if disclosed. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12396.

Based on CLS Civ R § 50-a, city cannot disclose personnel evaluation records to reporter or public generally absent written consent of Chief of Police; however, since chief—as subject of records—has right to waive confidentiality conferred by such statute, he has right to gain access to records exempt from disclosure to public, because they pertain to him. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-13288.

213. — —Insurance matters

Nature of insurance coverage of particular employees and amounts of their claims or billings would be largely irrelevant to manner in which town employees perform their official duties; as such, records that identify employees by means of kind of insurance coverage they have chosen, and amounts of claims made by employees and their dependents would result in unwarranted invasion of personal privacy; however, if town maintains statistics regarding insurance coverage or billings, those statistics would be available, so long as they did not identify employees. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4962.

Whether public employee has chosen medical insurance plan involving family coverage as opposed to individual coverage is irrelevant to performance of that person's official duties; thus, records, insofar as they indicate nature of coverage, could be withheld as unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7623.

Portions of payroll records indicating payments of unemployment insurance benefits may be withheld on ground that disclosure would constitute unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-13090.

214. — —Salaries

While salary information pertaining to public employees is accessible, information concerning deductions or amounts withheld from salaries due to judgment could be withheld as unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4565.

Since Freedom of Information Law has long granted access to name, public office address, title and salary and all employees of agency, those portions of resume indicating previous public employment would be available; also, agency may delete identifying details when it makes records available as to preclude any unwarranted invasions of personal privacy. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4650.

Records identifying public employees who work during given period, rates of pay and number of hours worked are available because those records are "relevant" to performance of their duties. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4657.

Records pertaining to public employees that are relevant to performance of their duties are available because disclosure in those instances would result in permissible rather than unwarranted invasion of personal privacy; however, records pertaining to deductions from one's paycheck are irrelevant to performance of that public employee's official duties and consequently, they could be withheld on ground that disclosure would result in unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4885.

Disclosure that permits public to determine general income level of participant in grant program would constitute unwarranted invasion of personal privacy because such disclosure would indicate that particular individual has income or economic means below certain level; therefore, if by means of their names or addresses, grants are made to low income persons, it is likely that disclosure of portions of records indicating their identities might justifiably be withheld; on other hand, if grant is not conditioned on income qualification, but rather upon location of property, disclosure of identities of those recipients of grants would likely be proper. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4904.

Portions of W-2 forms can be withheld to protect against unwarranted invasions of personal privacy, such as social security numbers, home addresses and net pay, for those items are largely irrelevant to performance of an employee's duties. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7639.

Records reflective of salaries of public employees must be prepared and made available and, similarly, records reflective of other payments, whether they pertain to overtime, or participation in work-related activities, for example, would be available, for those records would be relevant to performance of one's official duties. When allegations or charges of misconduct of public employee have not yet been determined or did not result in disciplinary action or finding of misconduct, records relating to such allegations may be withheld, for disclosure would result in unwarranted invasion of personal privacy; similarly, to extent that charges are dismissed or allegations are found to be without merit, they may be withheld. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12423.

Insofar as payroll records sought by applicant included public works contractor's employees' names, addresses, social security numbers and their wages, portions of those records could properly be withheld under CLS Pub O § 87(2)(b) since what was relevant to agency was whether employees were being paid in accordance with prevailing wage standards; however, portions of records reflective of titles, duties, wages, hours worked and similar data should be disclosed. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12640.

Portions of city contractors' records reflective of titles, duties, wages, hours worked, deductions, and similar data must be disclosed, but personally identifiable details pertaining to contractor's employees may be deleted or redacted from records prior to disclosure. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-13343.

215. — —Telephone records and the like

When public officer or employee uses fax machine in course of his or her official duties, bills involving use of machine would be relevant to performance of that person's official duties; thus, disclosure of fax numbers to which transmissions were made would not result in unwarranted invasion of personal privacy with respect to officer or employee serving as government official. If government employee contacts certain classes of persons as part of employee's ongoing and routine duties, there may be grounds for withholding numbers listed on telephone bill; numbers could likely be deleted in those circumstances to protect against unwarranted invasion of personal privacy due to status of those contacted. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7607.

When public officer or employee uses telephone in course of his or her official duties, bills involving use of telephone are relevant to performance of that person's official duties; thus, disclosure of such bills will not result in unwarranted invasion of personal privacy with respect to officer or employee of agency who uses agency's telephone. When telephone numbers appear on agency telephone bill, those numbers do not necessarily indicate who in fact was called or who picked up receiver in response to call; thus, disclosure of numbers called will not result in unwarranted invasion of personal privacy, even with respect to recipient of call. Disclosure of telephone numbers called by caseworker who telephones applicants for or recipients of public assistance might identify those who were contacted and, therefore, numbers could likely be withheld from disclosure in that circumstance to protect against unwarranted invasion of personal privacy due to status of those contacted. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7926.

Disclosure of details of long distance telephone bills made from county executive's office, as well as bills for cellular phone calls made by county executive, would not necessarily result in unwarranted invasion of privacy of individuals to whom calls were made (although exceptions to general rule of disclosure might arise) as indication of phone numbers discloses nothing regarding nature of conversations, and individuals would not be required to indicate nature of conversations. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-10270.

While employees' home telephone numbers are personal and irrelevant to their duties and thus may be withheld, business telephone numbers must be disclosed because there is nothing personal about phone number used or assigned to employee at his or her place of employment, which is used and relates to performance of his or her official duties. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12105.

Public officer's or employee's home telephone number is irrelevant to performance of his or her official duties and may be withheld on ground that disclosure would result in unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-13397.

Records concerning mayor's use of his personal cell phone were not accessible under Freedom of Information Law (FOIL), although city provided small salary increase of $45.00 per month to defray some costs of phone, where mayor used his cell phone for both personal and city business as he saw fit, and he was billed for phone directly at his residence; however, insofar as cell phone documentation was maintained by or for city, it would constitute agency record within coverage of FOIL. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-16629.

216. — —Union matters

School district's disclosure of list of teachers who were not members of certain union would result in permissible rather than unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9764.

General listing of all gubernatorial appointees, without reference to data pertaining to ethnicity or race, would be accessible under Freedom of Information Law; however, if appointee's race or ethnicity is irrelevant to performance of his or her official duties, such record could likely be withheld under FOIL; consequently, to extent that list of all appointees contains racial or ethnic data identifiable to appointees, such data could be deleted on grounds that disclosure would constitute unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. Comm on Open Govt FOIL-AO-3604.

If records are relevant to performance of public employee's official duties, disclosure constitutes permissible rather than unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. Committee on Open Government FOIL-AO-3831.

Personal information such as home address, home telephone number, or name of person for an employer to contact in case of an emergency, may be withheld from disclosure, but where remainder of record is available, such as faculty members' programs for semester, it will be proper to delete personal information while disclosing remainder; also, if record is available under Freedom of Information Law it is available for both inspection and copy. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4629.

If records are relevant to performance of public employee's official duties, disclosure would constitute permissible rather than unwarranted invasion of personal privacy; conversely, if records are not relevant to performance of one's official duties, disclosure has been found to result in unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4658.

Records that are relevant to performance of official duties of public employee are available on ground that disclosure would result in permissible rather than unwarranted invasion of personal privacy; however, records concerning public employees that are not relevant to performance of official duties may be denied on ground that disclosure would indeed result in unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4680.

With regard to records that identify public employees, records that are relevant to performance of public employee's official duties are available, because disclosure in such instances would result in permissible rather than unwarranted invasion of personal privacy; with respect to statements made by persons other than public employees, their names or other identifying details pertaining to them might be deleted to protect privacy while remainder of statements would be available. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4722.

Record pertaining to respondent, person against whom complaint is made, would generally have rights of access to records pertaining to him or her, except those portions which if disclosed would result in unwarranted invasion of personal privacy with respect to other persons; when complaint is made against public employee allegations have not yet been or are not substantiated, complaint and records related to it that identified person against whom complaint is made may generally be withheld on ground that disclosure would result in unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4729.

Records pertaining to public employees that are relevant to performance of their official duties are generally available, however, where names do not pertain to public employees acting in performance of their official duties, it might be appropriately contended that interest in protecting privacy outweighs general duty to disclose, and that disclosure would constitute unwarranted invasion of personal privacy; disclosure of identifying details concerning inmates within reports would result in unwarranted invasion of personal privacy and such identifying details could be withheld on that basis. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4736.

Bills, vouchers, contracts and similar records involving payments to or expenditures by public employees are relevant to performance of their official duties and as such those types of records would be available on the ground that disclosure would constitute permissible rather than unwarranted invasion of personal privacy; however, some aspects of these records could be deleted as unwarranted invasion of personal privacy, such as public employees' home addresses or social security numbers which have no relevance to performance of one's official duties. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4763.

If private records are relevant to performance of certain public employees' official duties, they are available for disclosure as permissible invasion of personal privacy. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4776.

Records pertaining to public employees that are relevant to performance of duties are available, because disclosure in these instances would result in permissible rather than unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4828.

With regard to records pertaining to public employees, records that are relevant to performance of public employee' s official duties are generally available, for disclosure in such instances would result in permissible rather than unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. To extent that records are irrelevant to performance of an employee's official duties, disclosure would constitute unwarranted invasion of personal privacy and, therefore, is not required. In regard to complaint filed with State Division of Human Rights against officials of school district, findings of probable cause and settlement of complaint, disclosure of terms of settlement would result in permissible, rather than unwarranted invasion of personal privacy, except to extent that disclosure would involve intimate personal details in nature, for example, of unsubstantiated allegations, particularly since identities of those involved were already known; contrary result was not required by fact that school district was ordered by State Division of Human Rights Hearing Officer to keep terms of settlement secret. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7544.

Opinions expressed by non-party employees in context of administrative investigation could be withheld from disclosure under CLS Pub O § 87(2)(g), and perhaps under CLS Pub O § 87(2)(b) as well. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7858.

Payroll record and other related records identifying employees and their salaries must be disclosed; items that have no relevance to performance of one's official duties, such as social security numbers, deductions and like may be withheld on ground that disclosure would constitute unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12776.

There is nothing intimate or personal about photograph of public employee that is used for purposes of identification, such as in medical facilities; thus, photograph of associate medical examiner should be disclosed under Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12829.

"Employer ID Number", firm's federal taxpayer and workers' compensation identification numbers, and state unemployment insurance registration number, as provided on Empire Zone application forms, should be exempt from disclosure since they could be used to obtain information of personal nature or other information to which there is no right of public access. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12890.

Agreement between school district and individual who agreed to resign, and which stated that agreement "shall remain confidential and shall not be revealed to any third party for a period of ten (10) years from the date hereof, unless production of this agreement or of the terms of this agreement is required by law," would require disclosure, including name of individual; however, associated letters of recommendation could be withheld. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-13371.

Mere indication that public employee is or has been on disability is no more intimate or personal than disclosure of days and dates of sick leave, which are accessible; insofar as those kinds of records indicate nature of illness or disability, such entries, which are akin to medical details, may be deleted. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-13610.

Schedules indicating appointments, meetings and like in which public employee has engaged are relevant to performance of that person's official duties; thus, to extent that such record pertains to performance of employee's official duties, disclosure will result in permissible rather than unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2347.

Neither characterization of documents as "personnel records" nor their placement in personnel files would necessarily render those documents "confidential" or deniable under Freedom of Information Law; on contrary, contents of those documents serve as relevant factors in determining extent to which they are available or deniable under Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3902.

Term "personnel" appears in neither Open Meetings Law nor Freedom of Information law, and characterization of issue as "personnel matter" does not necessarily to lead to conclusion that matter is confidential. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-4168.

217. —Ethical matters

Advisory opinion prepared by town ethics board can generally be withheld under Freedom of Information Law; if opinion is rejected or modified, it is deniable under both CLS Pub O § 87(2)(b) as unwarranted invasion of personal privacy and under CLS Pub O § 87(2)(g) as recommendation to town board that is not final. Names or other identifying details pertaining to witnesses or others interviewed by town ethics board can generally be withheld from disclosure on ground that disclosure would constitute unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8922.

Advisory opinion prepared by town Ethics Board could be withheld, except in 2 circumstances: (1) if opinion were rejected or modified, it would be deniable under both CLS Pub O § 87(2)(b) as unwarranted invasion of personal privacy and under CLS Pub O § 87(2)(g), for it consists of recommendation to Town Board that is not final or binding, or (2) opinion involves situation in

There would be no basis for withholding those portions of ethics complaint made to town ethics board that indicate complainant's identity where name of complainant has been disclosed by himself and others. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3712.

When allegations or charges of misconduct against public official have not yet been determined or did not result in disciplinary action, records relating to such allegations may be withheld, for disclosure would result in unwarranted invasion of personal privacy; further, to extent that such charges are dismissed or allegations are found to be without merit, they may be withheld. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3712.

In typical situation in which Freedom of Information Law determines rights of access, opinions offered by town Ethics Board or its members may be withheld, unless and until opinion is adopted by the Town Board or local enactment requires disclosure; similarly, if Open Meetings Law were followed, discussions following complaint concerning conduct of Town Board member could have occurred during executive sessions. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3712.

Contents of tape recordings of executive sessions reflecting deliberative process of either Town Board or town Ethics Board would consist of "intra-agency material" falling within scope of CLS Pub O § 87(2)(g); moreover, since there was no final determination by Town Board indicating misconduct or imposing penalty regarding subject of ethics complaint, any such tapes could be withheld on ground that disclosure would constitute unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3712.

218. —Housing, homesteading and the like

In view of absence of any intent on part of applicant to ascertain names of Section 8 tenants and in view of small size of Village of Fort Plain, Village could withhold records to extent that disclosure would identify Section 8 tenants, including addresses, irrespective of whether multiple dwelling unit was occupied by Section 8 tenants as well as others; in municipality of less than 3,000 with few if any large housing units, disclosure of tenant's address would render that person's identity readily traceable. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9466.

Because tenants in section 8 housing must meet income qualification, insofar as disclosure of records would identify tenants, they may be withheld on ground that disclosure would constitute "an unwarranted invasion of personal privacy" under CLS Pub O § 87(2)(b), even if dwellings are not public housing units or under jurisdiction of housing authority; conversely, following deletion of identifying details pertaining to tenants, remainder of records, i.e., those portions indicating identities of landlords, contractors and amounts that are paid, must be disclosed. City housing authority could deny reporter's request for disclosure of names of section 8 tenants in particular housing development; however, identity of landlord must be disclosed, for payments are made by governmental entities to landlord, irrespective of landlord's income and financial standing, while other details could be withheld, if disclosure would make tenant's identity ascertainable. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12399.

If participation in housing grant or loan program is based on applicant's income, personally identifying details relating to that person may be withheld; conversely, if participation is not based on income, but perhaps other factors, such as location or age of property, there would likely be no basis for denial of access. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-13214.

219. —Licensing; licensees

Various activities are licensed due to some public interest in insuring that individuals or entities are qualified to engage in certain activities or in order that certain activities may be regulated and, therefore, licenses should be available because they are intended to enable public to know that individual has met appropriate requirements to engage in activity that is regulated by state or in which state has significant interest; while disclosure of licenses identifies licensees, disclosure would not necessarily constitute an unwarranted invasion of personal privacy; however, in some instances, personal information such as licensee's home address, home phone number or other personal information that may appear on license might justifiably be withheld. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4871.

Record relating to single "Furbearer Possession Tag" maintained by Department of Environmental Conservation under 6 NYCRR § 6.3(c) must be disclosed, apart from applicant's date of birth. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12949.

Disclosure of names of applicants for marriage licenses or those who have been granted marriage licenses would not rise to level of unwarranted invasion of personal privacy; however, certain information might justifiably be deleted, such as special consent information, medical or health information, social security numbers, ages, occupations, names of fathers and countries of birth, maiden names of mothers and their countries of birth, and whether former spouses are living or deceased. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-13120.

Copy of reference letter provided to Banking Department in connection with individual's application to obtain license to operate as mortgage broker may be withheld, even though applicant has knowledge of identity of author of letter. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-13345.

220. —Lists of names, addresses and the like, generally

221. — —Commercial or fund-raising purposes

If list of those licensed to carry pistols was sought for commercial or fund-raising purposes, denial of access is appropriate because it is unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4732.

Agency may inquire with respect to purpose of request when request involves list of names and addresses to determine whether records would be used for commercial purpose and, therefore, whether disclosure would result in unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4818.

Unwarranted invasion of personal privacy pertains to records identifiable to natural persons, rather than hospitals or corporate entities, for example; lists including names and addresses of natural persons would be accessible or deniable depending upon its use; those portions of lists pertaining to entities are accessible, irrespective of intended use; those portions pertaining to natural persons would be accessible or deniable, depending upon whether list would be used for fund-raising purposes. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4879.

If request is made for list of names and addresses or its equivalent, purpose for which request is made may become relevant to rights of access based on unwarranted invasion of personal privacy, especially when that list may be used for commercial or fund-raising purposes. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4926.

City inventory lists and assessment data regarding real property would be available to any person for any reason during time specified in notice required by CLS RPTL § 501, but it could be withheld at other times if it would be used for commercial or fund-raising purpose. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12689.

County cannot condition disclosure of its vendor lists on requester's assertion that he would not use list for commercial purposes or fund-raising. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12816.

Real property inventory prepared by assessors under CLS RPTL § 501 is available to any person for any reason during time specified in notice, but may be withheld at other times under Freedom of Information Law if it would be used for commercial or fund raising purpose. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12987.

Home addresses of principals or officers of corporate licensee are not subject to disclosure, as disclosure would likely constitute unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. 1986 Committee on Open Government FOIL-AO-4293.

Although Freedom of Information Law provides broad rights of access, it permits agency to withhold records when disclosure would constitute unwarranted invasion of personal privacy; request for names and addresses of all persons arrested and or convicted of DWI charge in past 3 years will be denied. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4581.

Personal information such as home address, home telephone number, or name of person for an employer to contact in case of an emergency, may be withheld from disclosure, but where remainder of record is available, such as faculty members' programs for semester, it will be proper to delete personal information while disclosing remainder; also, if record is available under Freedom of Information Law it is available for both inspection and copy. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4629.

If intra-agency directory containing home addresses and home telephone numbers of public employees is requested, it would likely be proper to delete home addresses and home telephone numbers and make remainder available. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4636.

Single record or report may be both accessible and deniable in part under Freedom of Information Law; therefore, agency has obligation to review records sought, in their entirety, to determine which portions, if any, may be justifiably withheld; in context of general investigation, names or other identifying details may be deleted to protect against unwarranted invasion of personal privacy so that all other aspects of documents might be made available. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4640.

Provisions in Freedom of Information Law pertaining to privacy are intended to deal with details of lives of natural persons, rather than entities, such as corporations; business addresses of corporate owners of building pertain to their activities as corporate owners; home addresses, however, are likely of little relevance to agency and can be withheld as unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4739.

To extent that information pertains to entities as opposed to persons, provisions concerning personal privacy would not be applicable; even if information does pertain to natural persons, while names and addresses may or not constitute unwarranted invasion of personal privacy, records indicating locations of fires would be accessible. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4751.

Bills, vouchers, contracts and similar records involving payments to or expenditures by public employees are relevant to performance of their official duties and as such those types of records would be available on the ground that disclosure would constitute permissible rather than unwarranted invasion of personal privacy; however, some aspects of these records could be deleted as unwarranted invasion of personal privacy, such as public employees' home addresses or social security numbers which have no relevance to performance of one's official duties. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4763.

To extent that list identifies contributions made to project by entities, such as corporations or organizations, it would be available because those portions would not identify natural persons; on other hand, to extent that list identifies natural persons and amounts of their contributions, disclosure of identities of those persons would constitute unwarranted invasion of personal privacy and, therefore, could be withheld on that basis. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4899.

Names of county employees on list of vendors doing business with county would clearly be accessible where such list indicates payments to public employees who are being paid or reimbursed in relation to performance of their official duties; inclusion of names of public employees also pertains to those persons in relation to their governmental activities, and disclosure of their identities would constitute permissible rather than unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12816.

Insofar as county vendor list identifies public employees and includes their home addresses, such addresses, under CLS Pub O § 89(7), may be withheld; if list does not contain public employees' home addresses, but rather their work addresses, list would be available in its entirety. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12816.

Registration records maintained by county board of elections are accessible to public under CLS Elec § 3-220; nothing in Freedom of Information Law may be asserted to withhold such records, even though certain items in each record might justifiably be denied as unwarranted invasion of personal privacy if contained in other kinds of records. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12823.

City is not required to disclose records identifiable to individuals based on age-related characteristic. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-13342.

Names and addresses of toddlers participating in city program, or those of their parents, may clearly be withheld to protect their privacy; however, through permissible disclosure of zip codes, requester could likely determine extent of participation by nonresidents without obtaining or needing their names and addresses. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-13342.

While portions of payment requisitions and certified payroll of private company with which school district has contracted are accessible under Freedom of Information Law insofar as they are reflective of titles, duties, wages, hours worked and similar data, disclosure of personally identifiable details pertaining to employees of private company may be deleted or redacted from those records prior to disclosure. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-16649.

222. —Medical information

Medical information contained in ambulance run record of fire department could be withheld on ground that disclosure can constitute unwarranted invasion of personal privacy, except to extent that record refers to agency name and other information that has already been disclosed by means of motor vehicle accident report. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4786.

Freedom of Information Law enables agency to withhold records or portions thereof the disclosure of which would constitute unwarranted invasion of personal privacy; records where requester was falsely accused of serious crimes against some patients in agency where requester worked for years as psychologist would probably identify persons other than requester, such as patients or clients, complainants or informants and, therefore, even if Freedom of Information Law were to apply, significant aspects of records would likely be withheld. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4816.

Freedom of Information Law permits agency to withhold records when disclosure would result in unwarranted invasion of personal privacy which includes medical information. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4877.

Portions of reports prepared by fire departments and emergency squads identifying those to whom medical services were rendered, their ages and descriptions of their medical problems or conditions could be withheld under CLS Pub O § 87(2)(b) on ground that disclosure would constitute unwarranted invasion of personal privacy, for disclosure of name coupled with those details would represent personal and somewhat intimate event in individual's life. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7532.

Records involving incidence of animal bites is available under Freedom of Information Law, except to extent disclosure would constitute unwarranted invasion of personal privacy in accordance with CLS Pub O §§ 87(2)(b) and 89(2)(b); names of person bitten and other identifying details pertaining to those persons could justifiably be withheld or deleted from records on ground that disclosure would result in unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. Although name, address, telephone number or other personally identifiable details concerning dog bite victim could properly be withheld under CLS Pub O § 87(2)(b), location of dog bite incident, description of how bite occurred and name of health professional who provided treatment would be available; if identifying details are deleted, those other items would be available, for they would not identify victim of dog bite. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7609.

Records of claims based upon medical treatment of public employee or members of employee's family could be withheld due to considerations of privacy. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7623.

New York State Cancer Registry records of cancer site specific diagnoses and deaths from period 1976-1997 for particular county should be disclosed under Freedom of Information Law since such data would not, under terms of CLS Pub Health § 2402, "disclose the identity of any person" and would not be unwarranted invasion of personal privacy; anyone anywhere could interview persons residing in particular locale and question them about incidence of certain diseases and any such disclosures, which would not be required by law, would be irrelevant to authority to withhold records. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12402.

Record of medical emergency call consists in great measure of what might be characterized as medical record or history relating to person needing care or service; thus, portions of records identifying those to whom medical services were rendered, their ages, and descriptions of their medical problems or conditions could be withheld, while other aspects of records, such as locations of calls or addresses, should be disclosed. Emergency call, particularly when sirens or flashing lights are used, is event of public nature, and thus when fire truck or ambulance travels to its destination, that destination is or can be known to those in vicinity of event, and disclosure of address or brief description of event would not likely constitute unwarranted invasion of personal privacy; also, presence of emergency vehicle does not necessarily indicate that there is medical problem since those vehicles are dispatched for any number of reasons, many of which do not relate to medical event. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12608.

Names of municipal employees or family members coupled with amounts of reimbursements appearing on vouchers would, if disclosed, constitute unwarranted invasion of personal privacy, even though they do not indicate particular medical condition or problem, since items of that nature are largely irrelevant to performance of one's official duties, and vouchers indicating treatment, or particularly frequency of treatment, and amounts reimbursed, represent intimate details of peoples' lives. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12692.

Death of person while in police custody is event of public nature and thus disclosure does not constitute unwarranted invasion of personal privacy; however, medical records (and perhaps other aspects of records relating to deceased, family members, or witnesses) might be withheld on ground that disclosure would constitute unwarranted invasion of privacy. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3158.

223. —Personal Privacy Protection Act

Personal Privacy Protection Law applies to state agencies and does not apply to units of local government such as county; however, under Freedom of Information Law, agency may deny access to record that falls within one or more of grounds of denial, but is not generally required to do so. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4678.

If disclosure of records maintained by state agency would result in unwarranted invasion of personal privacy, Personal Privacy Protection Law and Freedom of Information Law would prohibit disclosure; written reprimands pertaining to employees that were issued for failure to report suspected child abuse are accessible under Freedom of Information Law; however, to extent that those records identify patients, those details should be deleted to protect against unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4683.

While Personal Privacy Protection Law, when read in conjunction with Freedom of Information Law, precludes agency from publicly releasing records, which, if disclosed, would constitute unwarranted invasion of personal privacy, Personal Privacy Protection Law preserves rights granted by Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4708.

To extent that lists of lobbyists registered with Temporary State Commission on Lobbying identify entities, rather than natural persons, provisions concerning protection of personal privacy appearing in both Freedom of Information Law and Personal Privacy Protection Law are inapplicable; also, since report required to be prepared by Commission must include listing of lobbyists, and is available to public, Freedom of Information Law could not be asserted to withhold list from any member of public, irrespective of possible use of lists. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4895.

Clemency application, and perhaps related documentation, would likely constitute unwarranted invasion of personal privacy if disclosed, particularly if materials contain information regarding applicant's medical condition. When Freedom of Information Law and Personal Privacy Protection Law are read in conjunction with one another, state agency cannot release records when disclosure would result in unwarranted invasion of personal privacy, unless disclosure is otherwise permitted by § 96; therefore, where disclosure would constitute unwarranted invasion of personal privacy, in order to acquire records, consent to disclose as described in § 96(1)(a) would be needed to obtain them. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7586.

Records introduced into evidence or disclosed during public judicial proceeding must be disclosed; also, if certain crime scene photos have been disclosed, as evidence or otherwise, it is questionable or perhaps unlikely that others involving same locations or persons would reveal more, in terms of invasion of personal privacy, than those previously disclosed. It would be difficult to justify denial of access to significant portions of criminal investigation records based on claim that disclosure would result in unwarranted invasion of privacy, even though there had not been trial, where substantial disclosures about defendant, his family, victims and community were made and disseminated over lengthy period of time both locally and nationally. Psychological records held by District Attorney and relating to criminal defendant might be withheld under CLS Pub O §§ 87(2)(b) and 89(2)(b); however, it might be in public interest, as well as positive law enforcement function, to disclose details concerning defendant's life since consideration of patterns of behavior and development of data about behavior may enable school and law enforcement officials to recognize inclination or proclivity to commit violent or antisocial acts, and preventive measures might be taken to prevent those acts from occurring. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12579.

224. —Police, generally

225. — —Confidential informants

Office of State Inspector General, which investigates allegations of fraud, corruption, waste and abuse within covered agencies, may redact from reports names and other identifying details concerning sources and witnesses under Freedom of Information Law on grounds that records were compiled for law enforcement purposes which, if disclosed, would identify confidential source, constitute unwarranted invasion of personal privacy, constitute information of personal nature that is not relevant to work of agency, constitute interagency or intra-agency materials which are not statistical or factual tabulations or data, instructions to staff or final agency policy, and finally disclosure of names of informants and witnesses could endanger life or safety of such informant or witness. 1986 Committee on Open Government FOIL-AO-4251.

To extent that codefendants' statements held deleted materials which identified codefendants, it does not appear that withholding of their names was justifiable because disclosure of codefendants' names and addresses during trial would indicate that they are not "confidential" informants; further, due to those disclosures, release of their names would not constitute unwarranted invasion of personal privacy; however, if names withheld pertain to persons other than codefendants identified during trial, it is possible that those persons are confidential informants or that disclosure of their identities would result in unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4851.

226. — —Discipline, misconduct and the like

To extent that charges of misconduct against police officer are dismissed or allegations are found to be without merit, records related to and including such charges or allegations may be withheld to prevent unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7602.

Statements regarding Chief of Police's conduct made by city police officers and state troopers would be accessible to Chief or his attorney, including portions of records indicating officers' and troopers' identities. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-13288.

227. — —Work-related records, including attendance

Police roll call or attendance record will not likely be characterized as record compiled for law enforcement purposes, rather, it appears to be record prepared in ordinary course of business; with exception of police officers' home addresses, roll call reports are available, because disclosure would result in permissible rather than unwarranted invasion of personal privacy; blanket denial of records may be inappropriate when only portions of records may be deniable, with remainder excessible. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4694.

If home addresses have not previously been disclosed, they may be withheld on ground that disclosure would constitute unwarranted invasion of personal privacy; also, sign in log for auxiliary police officers containing names of officers and times and dates they performed their duties or training should be made available under Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4728.

Where names of employees were whited out in detective's report which requester received, justification for such deletion is that disclosure would constitute unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4900.

With respect to records indicating arrests that did not result in convictions, disclosure would constitute unwarranted invasion of personal privacy; however, with respect to records of arrests for which underlying charges are still pending, those records generally would be accessible pursuant to Freedom of Information Law because records maintained by law enforcement agencies, as well as courts, indicating arrests and charges are in most instances accessible to public. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4983.

Disclosure of minimal details about homicide victims can not be characterized as unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-10122.

Information contained in boxes indicating race and ethnicity on city police Field Interview Forms (FIFs) would be accessible, absent personally identifying details or other data collected and included in FIFs. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12565.

As nature and amount of information disclosed to public relating to criminal investigation or proceeding increases, extent to which Freedom of Information Law exception concerning privacy decreases. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12579.

228. —Prisons and prisoners, generally

Where requester requests commitment papers, which include person's sentence, probation officer's report, fingerprints, medical, psychiatric and other records, of co-defendants, this request would likely be withheld on ground that disclosure would constitute an unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4682.

Records pertaining to public employees that are relevant to performance of their official duties are generally available, however, where names do not pertain to public employees acting in performance of their official duties, it might be appropriately contended that interest in protecting privacy outweighs general duty to disclose, and that disclosure would constitute unwarranted invasion of personal privacy; disclosure of identifying details concerning inmates within reports would result in unwarranted invasion of personal privacy and such identifying details could be withheld on that basis. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4736.

"Clemency request" made to Governor by member of news media on behalf of inmate was subject to rights conferred by Freedom of Information Law; however, there could be privacy implications relating to author of application, inmate and perhaps others which would justify denial of disclosure under CLS Pub O § 87(2)(b). Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7568.

Disclosure that inmate requested notary services, without more, does not represent significant invasion of privacy, but any notation in records regarding inmate's reason for seeking notary services should be withheld. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9870.

Personally identifying details pertaining to members of public who transmitted communications to county local conditional release commission regarding its decision to vote to release certain inmate may be deleted on ground that disclosure would constitute unwarranted invasion of those persons' privacy. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3784.

229. —Location of specific prisoners

Request for names, Department of Correctional Services numbers and locations of all inmates housed in certain sections of correctional facility should be made readily accessible for inspection because it does not result in unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4901.

230. —Videotapes

If local law enforcement authorities maintain videotapes of camera surveillance of persons confined in local jails, such videotapes constitute "records" subject to rights of access granted by Freedom of Information Law, however, as such videotapes may show intimate details of peoples' lives, disclosure may constitute unwarranted invasion of personal privacy of persons on such tapes. 1986 Committee on Open Government FOIL-AO-4335.

Once department of correctional services enables inmates' attorneys to view video tapes, department has waived its capacity to deny request by either inmate, who is subject of tape, or attorney of inmate who is acting in representative capacity on behalf of inmate; similarly, if viewing tape did not constitute unwarranted invasion of personal privacy of employees involved, disclosure of duplicate of tape would not constitute unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4697.

231. —Religious matters

Record reflective of demonstration of personal religious beliefs or activities can be withheld from disclosure under Freedom of Information Law on ground that disclosure would constitute unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9365.

232. —Representatives requesting information on behalf of others

Purpose for obtaining consent of third person when requesting records is to make records available to that third party when record sought might otherwise be withheld on basis that disclosure would constitute unwarranted invasion of personal privacy of person to whom records pertain. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4659.

"Clemency request" made to Governor by member of news media on behalf of inmate was subject to rights conferred by Freedom of Information Law; however, there could be privacy implications relating to author of application, inmate and perhaps others which would justify denial of disclosure under CLS Pub O § 87(2)(b). Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7568.

Privacy was not at issue with respect to attendance and payroll records requested by employee's wife on his behalf, as records essentially pertained to employee himself, and person cannot engage in unwarranted invasion of his or her own privacy. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-10144.

Assuming that no other ground for denial is applicable, request made by subject of request for records pertaining to him, or by his representative who has obtained written release authorizing disclosure to representative, cannot be denied based on CLS Pub O § 87(2)(b); however, to extent that persons other than applicant are identified in records, privacy considerations may arise relative to those individuals warranting deletion of identifying details or certain portions of records. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-10166.

233. —Veterans' affairs

Sole item that could be withheld from record of certificate of honorable discharge given to veteran would be social security number (assuming record is not sealed under CLS Civ R § 79-g), since local government agencies may withhold social security numbers on ground that disclosure would constitute "an unwarranted invasion of personal privacy," but they are not required to do so. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12688.

234. —Waiver

Municipal agency may withhold records when disclosure would constitute unwarranted invasion of personal privacy; however, there is no obligation to do so; if only basis for withholding records concerns unwarranted invasion of personal privacy, and if subject of records consents to disclosure, thereby waiving protection of privacy, records would become available under Freedom of Information Law. 1986 Committee on Open Government FOIL-AO-4211.

State police could not require notarized waiver executed by administrator of decedent's estate prior to releasing its investigation of suicide death of requestor's sister, as records about decedents are generally public except for any portions which if disclosed would "disgrace the memory" of decedent. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-10372.

Disclosure of evidence or information collected during investigation, before final determination regarding validity of allegations, may represent unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. Comm on Open Govt FOIL-AO-3682.

Privacy provisions are intended to enable agency to withhold records under appropriate circumstances, when records pertain to natural persons; therefore, grounds for denial concerning protection of personal privacy would not apply where entries in receipt book refer to firms, rather than natural persons. Comm On Open Gov't FOIL-AO-3922.

Exceptions to disclosure requirements based on unwarranted invasion of personal privacy pertains to natural persons and is not applicable to entities, and public agencies have no common-law public interest privilege that would allow agency to withhold information which it would otherwise be required to disclose under Freedom of Information Law. 1986 Committee on Open Government FOIL-AO-4202.

Unwarranted invasion of personal privacy under Freedom of Information Law pertains only to privacy of individuals, so to extent that list of names and addresses pertains to businesses or corporations, it would not constitute unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4584.

Interdepartmental referral reports and handwritten notes of public officers may contain personally identifiable details which might, if disclosed, result in unwarranted invasion of personal privacy; however, with respect to summonses and accompanying affidavits of service issued by agencies, as general matter, they are available under Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4635.

Agency may withhold records or portions thereof disclosure of which would constitute unwarranted invasion of personal privacy; further, agency may delete identifying details when it makes records available to protect against unwarranted invasions of personal privacy; these same principles and procedures can be applied with respect to CLS Civ R § 50-b, which is intended to guarantee that identity of victim of sex offense, who was under age of 18 at time of alleged commission of offense, remain confidential. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4647.

Questionnaires, sent to firms interested in selling electronic voting machines to city by commissioner of New York City Department of General Services, would, if disclosed, enable one firm to gain advantage over competitor or impair city's ability to reach optimal agreement; as such, requester for questionnaire may justifiably be denied access; agency may withhold records or portions thereof disclosure of which would constitute unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4665.

Unwarranted invasion of privacy is intended to apply to records that identify individuals rather than corporations, partnerships or other such entities; to extent that purchasers or sellers are not natural persons, names and addresses are likely to be available. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4792.

When complaint is made, there may be considerations of privacy that properly result in denial of access to records or perhaps deletion of identifying details to protect against unwarranted invasion of personal privacy; however, if complaint was sent by person who made it to members of news media, disclosure would not result in unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4946.

Not every record maintained by government that identifies particular individuals would, if disclosed, result in unwarranted invasion of personal privacy; rather, either by means of judicial decisions or pursuant to statutes, many records containing personally identifiable details are accessible to public because disclosure would result in permissible invasion of privacy; although records such as voter registration lists and assessment rolls, identify individuals and their addresses, state legislature and courts have determined they are available, despite possibility of invasion of one's privacy and those records may be used by any person for similar or unrelated purposes; therefore, if Freedom of Information Law applied, use of information would not constitute unwarranted invasion of personal privacy, because information is available to public. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4949.

Where record pertains to particular individual and, therefore, is available only to that person because disclosure might constitute unwarranted invasion of personal property under CLS Pub O § 87(2)(b) if disclosed to others, subject of record may authorize another person to seek and obtain record on his or her behalf. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7566.

CLS Pub O § 87(2)(b) is intended to pertain to natural persons, but not to entities or persons acting in business capacities. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9454.

Privacy provisions of Freedom of Information Law do not apply when records identify commercial entities or persons acting in their business capacities. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9888.

To extent that records sought by Public Service Commission from Niagara Mohawk Power Corporation related to employees and other individuals in their professional or business capacities, Freedom of Information Law privacy provisions did not apply; however, names or other details pertaining to natural persons could be deleted insofar as requested records involved other aspects. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9911.

Freedom of Information Law exception concerning protection of personal privacy pertains to natural persons, not corporate entities. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-10050.

Provisions in Freedom of Information Law pertaining to protection of personal privacy may not be asserted to withhold records pertaining to entities other than natural persons. Commercial use exception would not apply to disclosure of Citywide Facility Inventory Database (CFID) maintained and made available by New York City Department of Environmental Protection (DEP), since provisions pertaining to protection of personal privacy involve items relating to natural persons, and database related only to business entities. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12559.

Local government may opt to disclose personal information, even when disclosure would result in unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12594.

School district would be required to disclose record or records identifying applicants for vacancy on board of education; fact that person has applied to fill vacancy in what ordinarily is elective office would not represent disclosure of intimate personal detail or would, therefore, constitute unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12918.

In determining rights of access to "application letters" and resumes of applicants for school board vacancy, applicant's employment history (other than public employment) may be withheld; medical information may be withheld, as well as other details, such as social security number; however, some details within records would not rise to level of unwarranted invasion of personal privacy if disclosed, such as applicant's general educational background. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12918.

Records identifiable to users of library could be withheld on ground either that (1) disclosure would constitute "an unwarranted invasion of personal privacy" under CLS Pub O § 87(2)(b), or (2) CLS CPLR § 4509, if such statute applies. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-13308.

Person's name, coupled with reason for his or her absence on day of election, would constitute unwarranted invasion of privacy. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-13443.

Income tax forms or other personal financial information submitted by senior citizens seeking STAR exemptions may be withheld from public. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-13630.

Disclosure of names of board members and district employees to whom laptop computers were issued, and list of inappropriate personal purposes for which computer issued to each person was used, would not constitute unwarranted invasion of person privacy, since identities of those to whom computers were issued related to performance of those persons' functions and duties as officers or employees of government agency, and information regarding personal use of computers pertained to use of school district computers, not to their use by any particular individual. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-16407.

Recipients' responses to survey conducted by public agency would be accessible under Freedom of Information Law if recipients were informed that their responses would be made available, or if their responses were anonymous, but if they were given no indication that their names and/or addresses would be disclosed, and those items were included in their responses, then disclosure of those or other personally identifying details would result in unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-16618.

City could honor request of donor to remain anonymous with regard to donation received by city to clean up property that was ravaged by fire since disclosure would have constituted unwarranted invasion of privacy. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2440.

235. Impairment of contract awards or collective bargaining negotiations (§ 87(2)(c)), generally

236. —Bids and bidding

If agency seeks bid regarding purchase of particular goods or services, and request is made for bid prior to date for final submission of bids, bids might justifiably be withheld on ground that disclosure would impair present or imminent contract award; however, any bid that results in contract between agency and firm that supplies goods or services is available to public under Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Govt FOIL-AO-3432.

Section 87[2][c] of FOIL may generally be invoked when disclosure would place agency in unfair or disadvantageous position in negotiation process, or when premature disclosure of bids would give one or more bidders an advantage over other possible bidders prior to deadline for submission of bids to agency. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4080.

Questionnaires, sent to firms interested in bidding to sell electronic voting machines to city by commissioner of New York City Department of General Services, would, if disclosed, enable one firm to gain advantage over competitor or impair city's ability to reach optimal agreement; as such, requester for questionnaire may justifiably be denied access; agency may withhold records or portions thereof disclosure of which would constitute unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4665.

If a proposed expenditure by a city refers to services that must be negotiated with contractors or that are subject to bidding requirements, disclosure of those figures might enable contractors to tailor their bids accordingly, to the potential detriment of the District and its taxpayers. To the extent that disclosure would "impair" the process of awarding contracts or collective bargaining negotiations, then those portions of the work papers could be withheld. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-6242 (1990).

Prior to deadline for submission of bids, disclosure of bids to another possible submitter might provide that person or firm with unfair advantage vis a vis those who have already submitted bids; further, disclosure of identities of bidders or number of bidders might enable another potential bidder to tailor his bid in manner that provides him with unfair advantage in bidding process; thus, in such situation, harm or "impairment" would likely be result, and disclosure of records could justifiably be denied. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7563.

Denial of access to records regarding soon-to-expire contract because school board is involved in new RFP process is unjustifiable; if anything, disclosure of existing contract and successful proposal that served as basis for award of that contract would likely enhance bidding process recently begun by board. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-13400.

237. —Collective bargaining negotiations

Contract between school district and superintendent does not fall within exemption for records which, if disclosed, would impair collective bargaining negotiations since, as general matter, contract into which unit of government enters must be made available to public once it has been approved. Committee on Open Government FOIL-AO-3333.

School district did not have justifiable basis under CLS Pub O § 87(2)(c) to deny request for disclosure of tentative contract agreement between teachers' union and district, where tentative agreement had been distributed to news media and to hundreds of union members for review. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-10005.

Information concerning school superintendent's salary could not be withheld based on perceived effect on collective negotiations, where there was insufficient relationship between superintendent's contract with school board and school district's negotiations with employees' union, as salary information is clearly public, and collective negotiations' exception under Freedom of Information Law does not apply to salary of someone outside bargaining unit; if valid offer was made and validly accepted, record in question would represent final agency determination available under CLS Pub O 87(2)(g)(iii). Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-10209.

To extent that disclosure would reveal city's collective bargaining strategy in relation to present or imminent collective bargaining negotiations or hamper ability of city to engage in negotiations optimal to its taxpayers, it is likely that CLS Pub O § 87(2)(c) could be asserted to prevent disclosure of documents and memoranda relating to negotiations and discussions of future contract between city and police officers. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12655.

When deadline for submission of bids has been reached, all of submitters are on equal footing and agency is generally obliged to accept lowest appropriate bid; thus, in such situation, disclosure of bids would be available under Freedom of Information Law. Even though deadline for submission of responses to request for proposals might have passed, agency may engage in negotiations or evaluations with bid submitters resulting in alterations in proposals or costs; thus, whether disclosure at that juncture would impair process of awarding contract is question of fact. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7563.

If there is no inequality of knowledge between or among parties to negotiations, and if records have been shared or exchanged by parties, it is questionable and difficult to envision how disclosure would impair present or imminent contract awards; further, if lease or contract has been signed, negotiations have presumably ended and any impairment that might have existed prior to consummation of agreement would essentially have disappeared. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7593.

Assuming that request for proposal related to contract that had already been awarded by State University of New York College at Farmingdale and was in possession of College, it appeared to be available under Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7871.

When there is no inequality of knowledge between or among parties to negotiations, or if records have been shared or exchanged by parties, it is questionable and difficult to envision how disclosure would "impair present or imminent contract awards" within meaning of CLS Pub O § 87(2)(c). Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7936.

If contracts under immigration initiatives request for proposals had been awarded and executed by city borough and were merely pending registration by comptroller, there would be no basis for denial of access under Freedom of Information Law since disclosure could not impair present or imminent contract awards or collective bargaining negotiations within meaning of CLS Pub O § 87(2)(c). Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9439.

Where there are no other parties involved or potentially involved in lease negotiations, it is questionable whether disclosure of information pertaining to negotiations could "impair" contracting process and, thus, justify withholding of information. Fair market value of rental property may be withheld under CLS Pub O § 87(2)(c) where such value is determined by appraisal prior to consummation of transaction. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9500.

CLS Pub O § 87(2)(c) permits withholding of requested records, even where disclosure would not impair contracting process with respect to those involved in process, if disclosure would impair different concurrent and related contract negotiations. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9512.

With regard to request for detailed work plan offered by one of parties involved in litigation with village, if village and other parties to litigation were aware of content of records at issue, CLS Pub O § 87(2)(c) could not justifiably be asserted to withhold records in question. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9641.

Survey prepared by independent professional surveyor in conjunction with county watershed project did not contain kind of information found to be deniable under CLS Pub O § 87(2)(c). Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9844.

If county is currently involved in award of contracts or collective bargaining negotiations, some aspects of petitions regarding requests for county occupancy tax allocations (but probably not all aspects) could be withheld under CLS Pub O § 87(2)(c). Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-10402.

Contract awards exception would not apply to disclosure of Citywide Facility Inventory Database (CFID) maintained and made available by New York City Department of Environmental Protection (DEP). Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12559.

Disclosure of Letter of Intent between New York City Economic Development Corporation (EDC) and New York Stock Exchange (NYSE) regarding development of new NYSE location would "impair present or imminent contract awards" and thus denial of disclosure request was consistent with law; while contents of Letter of Intent were known by and in possession of NYSE and EDC, its contents were not known to other parties involved or potentially involved in negotiations regarding project. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12604.

Disclosure of letter of intent would "impair" present or imminent contract awards, and thus denial of request for access was consistent with Freedom of Information Law, where contents of letter were known by and in possession of parties (New York Stock Exchange and NYC Economic Development Corporation (EDC)), and letter's contents were not known to other parties involved or potentially involved in negotiations regarding project (construction of new stock exchange). Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12727.

CLS Pub O § 87(2)(c) did not justify blanket denial by Empire State Development Corporation (ESDC) of request for "any and all memoranda of agreement ... [between ESDC and realty trust] regarding the development of the Farley Post Office, and any subsequent correspondence among the parties or their representatives" pertaining to that agreement, since agreement and award already been made and since revoked and it did not appear that any contract award was "present or imminent." Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-16473.

County could not refuse to disclose tentative labor agreement based on exemption under CLS Pub O § 87(2)(c), since tentative agreement had already been disseminated to school officials, union leaders and 630 teachers, and disclosure would not result in any inequality of knowledge. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-16610.

Village may be entitled to invoke CLS Pub O § 87(2)(c) to prevent disclosure of contract negotiations regarding park land where premature disclosure of appraised value of real property would have placed village at disadvantage in negotiating process. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3764.

If there is no possibility that other consulting firms may be involved in negotiations with pension fund boards, it is difficult to envision how disclosure of names of such 2 firms would "impair" ability of fund to reach optimal agreement within meaning of CLS Pub O § 87(2)(c); thus, disclosure is required under Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3931.

238. Trade secrets (§ 87(2)(d)), generally

239. —Computer programs

Since data are not secret, but rather are reflective of law, and since State Legislature is not commercial enterprise, CLS Pub O § 87(2)(d) could not validly be asserted as basis for denial of request for latest block assignment list, or boundary files, in digital format that are used to create computer representations of State Senate and Assembly legislative districts, along with attribute information for each of these districts. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8561.

Neither CLS Pub O § 87(2)(d) or any other ground may be asserted for denial of access for software developed "with the intent that it be freely shared with other counties." Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12920.

If it can be concluded that software developed by county is being used as commercial product in competitive market, it might justifiably be withheld under CLS Pub O § 87(2)(d). Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-13002.

240. —Responses to "Requests for Proposals" (RFPs)

Where party requests disclosure of responses to request for proposals (RFP), question under CLS Pub O § 87(2)(d) involves extent, if any, to which disclosure would cause substantial injury to competitive position of firms responding to RFP's; if, for example, data could be used to ascertain value of entity's property or involves significant financial information, it might be contended that certain of data might, if disclosed, cause substantial injury to its competitive position. Nature of records and area of commerce in which profit-making entity is involved would be factors used to determine extent to which disclosure of records would cause substantial injury to competitive position of enterprise; thus, proper assertion of CLS Pub O § 87(2)(d) would be dependent on facts and effect of disclosure on competitive position of entity to which records relate. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7563.

Commercial entities, upon submission of records to state agencies, may seek to prevent disclosure by seeking protection offered to trade secrets; however, Freedom of Information Law is not applied to records prepared by agency concerning commercial entities; if information sought may generally be known or could be known within insurance industry, disclosure would not cause substantial injury to competitive position of subject enterprise or enterprises. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4639.

Freedom of Information Law pertains to existing records maintained by agencies and does not generally require agencies to answer questions or prepare or create records in response to request; when requesting information, requester should specify that certain records are sought instead of simply asking questions. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4843.

Financial data, such as compilation of information pertaining to firm, might be characterized as trade secret, depending upon nature of competition within industry or endeavor, and effects of disclosure. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4959.

Survey prepared by independent professional surveyor in conjunction with county watershed project did not contain kind of information found to be deniable under CLS Pub O § 87(2)(d) as (1) information sought was not available solely from government in that any surveyor presumably could prepare similar record, and (2) request was not made by competitor or in context in which competition from person or firm in business of surveying was pertinent. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9844.

Lease agreement between state Department of Transportation (DOT) and British corporation, providing for tenant's private management of public airport (Stewart International Airport in Orange County), was not exempt from disclosure under CLS Pub O § 87(2)(d) on ground that tenant had invested great deal of time to learn how to properly lease and operate airport in United States in that (1) other agreements involving private management of public airports are customarily disclosed, (2) tenant's relative lack of knowledge and experience concerning operation of airports in United States had no bearing on public's rights of access, (3) many aspects of lease agreement were standard and would not give advantage to competitors if disclosed, (4) any unusual or unique elements were particular to Stewart airport and would not be applicable in negotiations involving other airports, and (5) fact that agreement required tenant's Capital Improvement Plan (CIP) to be filed with FAA, and CIP would be made public, diminished justification for denial of access. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12208.

Nature of record, area of commerce in which commercial entity is involved, and presence of certain conditions (i.e., extent to which information is known outside business; extent to which it is known by business' employees and others involved in business; extent of measures taken by business to guard secrecy of information; value of information to business and to its competitors; amount of effort or money expended by business in developing information; and ease or difficulty with which information could be properly acquired or duplicated by others) that must be found to characterize records as trade secrets would be factors used to determine extent to which disclosure would "cause substantial injury to the competitive position" of commercial enterprise. Foreign bank's records in connection with litigation, submitted to state Banking Department, would be exempt from FOIL disclosure where records would be unavailable elsewhere, and disclosure would cause substantial injury to its competitive position. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12376.

When commercial entity is required to submit records to state agency under CLS Pub O § 89(5), it may request, at time of submission, that records or portions thereof be kept confidential in accordance with CLS Pub O § 87(2)(d). CLS Pub O §§ 87(2)(d) and 89(5) would not be applicable and would not serve as basis for denial of access under Freedom of Information Law where materials redacted by state university involved terms of negotiated agreements developed by parties to those agreements, and they were not records that were submitted to university by commercial enterprise. Redacted portions of state university vendor contracts (i.e., numeric figures) were not "trade secrets" and likely would not cause substantial injury to competitive position of subject enterprises where they were not analogous to process, formula, or financial information which showed strengths or weaknesses of entity; rather, they indicated amounts to be paid and received as result of negotiation between 2 parties, and thus that kind of information should be disclosed. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12656.

Disclosure of employers' policy expiration dates, even without name of insurance carrier, would cause competitive harm to New York State Insurance Fund (NYSIF) since expiration date is most significant aspect of database in context of marketing, and disclosure would not enable the NYSIF "to compete on an equal basis" with other carriers; also, disclosure would likely have additional effect of raising premiums of employers who could least afford higher cost of doing business. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12657.

If reproduction of copyrighted architectural plans and similar records would "cause substantial injury to the competitive position of the subject enterprise," i.e., holder of copyright, in conjunction with CLS Pub O § 87(2)(d), agency could preclude reproduction of work; however, if reproduction of work would not result in substantial injury to competitive position of copyright holder, such exception would not apply. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12830.

Portions of forms regarding private entities' applications under Empire Zones program may be withheld as trade secrets where they relate to "projected" purchases of real property. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12890.

Assertion of trade secret exception is dependent on passage of time; value of information to competitors, and, therefore, potentially harmful effects of disclosure, continually diminish with passage of time. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12890.

Information on application form under Empire Zones program such as "Total Annual Sales Projected for Zone Facility," if projected or current, could likely be withheld as trade secret; however, if such figure appears in applications prepared previously, it may be accessible. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12890.

Disclosure could apparently "cause substantial injury to the competitive position" of group of self-insured trusts under Workers' Compensation Law, and thus CLS Pub O § 87(2)(d) would serve as valid basis for denial of access, where such disclosure would include certain current financial statements prepared as such groups attempted to reach levels of compliance required by new regulations, and disclosure could result in perception that such groups might be weak and, therefore, vulnerable vis a vis their competition. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12980.

CLS Pub O § 87(2)(d) potentially serves as ground for denial of access with respect to records prepared by Long Island Power Authority (LIPA), as well as those received from private contractor, given fact that LIPA is engaged in competition with private firms engaged in same area of commercial activity (i.e., power generation). Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-13086.

If deadline for submission of bids on public contract has been reached, and particularly if contract has been awarded, records of bidder's "letter of engagement" would be accessible, irrespective of which version of letter of engagement might be of interest. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-13327.

"Trade secret" exception to Freedom of Information Law did not exempt Freedom of Information Law disclosure by village of statement filed by cable television provider to substantiate its quarterly franchise fee paid to village, although requester was competing cable television provider, in absence of persuasive evidence that disclosure would result in substantial competitive harm to provider in question or any one particular provider. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-16555.

241. Law enforcement (§ 87(2)(e)), generally

242. —Confidential source or disclosure (§ 87(2)(e)(iii))

If detective's report can be characterized as record complied for law enforcement purposes, it might be contended that disclosure of names would identify confidential source; however, capacity to withhold on this basis is dependent upon nature of report, its function and whether employees are considered to be confidential sources. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4900.

Statement given to police on arrest of codefendant in murder prosection, review of which was sought by defendant's wife after conclusion of prosecution of defendant and codefendant, might be exempt from disclosure under CLS Pub O § 87(2)(e)(iii) if portions of statement might identify confidential source or disclose confidential information relating to criminal investigation. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7538.

It was likely that records pertaining to how law enforcement agencies create informants out of various individuals, if they existed, would be exempt from disclosure under CLS Pub O § 87(2)(e)(iii). Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7582.

Denial of access to state police records relating to much-publicized bombing incident and investigation of suspect, who later committed suicide, was appropriate only to extent that such records described investigative techniques which, if disclosed, would enable potential lawbreakers to evade detection or endanger life or safety of law enforcement personnel. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-10229.

New York City Department of Transportation should not have denied request for records indicating locations of cameras used in city's Red Light Camera Program since such disclosures are routinely made through distribution of Notices of Liability, and disclosure may be beneficial and proper despite law enforcement exception under FOIL, given possibility that knowledge of camera's location may encourage drivers to obey and comply with law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12412.

CLS Pub O § 87(2)(e)(iii) might properly be asserted to withhold records regarding investigation of county property and employees that ended several years earlier, insofar as they included names or other identifying details pertaining to informants, witnesses and perhaps others. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12722.

243. —Investigations or judicial proceedings (§ 87(2)(e)(i)), generally

244. — —Criminal complaint follow-up reports (DD-5s)

It is inappropriate to engage in blanket denials of access to criminal complaint follow-up reports (DD-5's) in every instance in which they are requested; rather, factual context, specific contents of records and effects of their disclosure are factors that must be considered in determining extent to which those records may be withheld or, conversely, must be disclosed. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7539.

Determination by police department to engage in blanket denials of requests for disclosure of DD-5's is overly simplistic and is inappropriate as matter of law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7559.

245. — —Grand jury matters

Time and attendance records presented by district attorney to grand jury, which had been prepared in ordinary course of business and not for any law enforcement or grand jury related purpose, were not compiled for law enforcement purposes and thus were not exempt from disclosure under Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12036.

Under CLS Pub O § 87(2)(e)(i), status of police investigation as well as contents of any police or investigative reports are determinative in terms of right of access as well as capacity to withhold. Comm on Open Govt FOIL-AO-3422.

Although records compiled for law enforcement purposes which, if disclosed, would interfere with law enforcement investigations or judicial proceedings need not be disclosed, portions of such records which contain information which would not interfere with investigation or proceedings are subject to disclosure. Committee on Open Government FOIL-AO-3808.

Under CLS Pub O § 87(2)(e), lists of property with serial numbers, claimed missing as result of certain burglaries, and lists of property recovered and returned, requested from village of Vincent department of public works and board of education in circumstances where person committing the crimes has been convicted, would be available even if compiled for law enforcement purposes, since harm set forth in those provisions would not occur if related investigations were terminated, and compilation for insurance purposes would not be regarded as compilation for law enforcement purposes. Comm On Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4550.

Records maintained by police department, to extent that they continue to exist, will be subject to rights conferred by Freedom of Information Law; that is not to suggest that all records will be accessible, but that they will be subject to rights of access granted by Law; as general matter, administrative manuals are accessible pursuant to CLS Pub O § 87(2)(g); however, those manuals prepared or used by law enforcement agencies may be accessible or deniable depending upon effects of disclosure. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4661.

To extent that police activity log contains investigative information compiled for law enforcement purposes, only those portions could be withheld that would if disclosed result in harm; the remainder, however, falls outside of that provision; police memo books would constitute interagency materials; nevertheless, they constitute, in part, factual data; even though accessible information may be intertwined with deniable information, agency must extract from record those portions that are available. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4756.

Freedom of Information Law cannot justify denial of records consisting of correspondence between county and city homeowners concerning orders to abate lead paint problems based upon fact that records were compiled for law enforcement purposes because investigations were completed, violations were found, and orders were issued to abate problems; also, notice of violation or order to correct hazardous condition would be reflected of final agency determination. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4772.

Often records created in ordinary course of business become relevant to investigation; contacts, vouchers, audits and other records that are generally available to public may be used or even become focus of investigations and despite their use or relevance to investigation, those kinds of records, which are not prepared in conjunction with law enforcement investigations, remain available for disclosure. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4976.

Even if schedule of fines prepared by adjudication division of city department of consumer affairs could be characterized as record "compiled for law enforcement purposes" within meaning of CLS Pub O § 87(2)(e), it was difficult to envision how disclosure would interfere with law enforcement investigation since any such investigation would have ended when matter reached adjudication division and since it appeared that division conducted quasi-judicial proceedings, rather than judicial proceedings. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7533.

CLS Pub O § 87(2)(e)(i) does not allow nondisclosure of information that might, at some point, interfere with investigation; it refers only to disclosure that "would" interfere. Records prepared in ordinary course of business which later become relevant to or used in law enforcement investigation and not thereby transformed into records compiled for law enforcement purposes; if they would have been available prior to their use in law enforcement context, they remain available, notwithstanding their potential use in law enforcement activity. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8314.

Although Division of Criminal Justice Services (DCJS) and local law enforcement agencies engage in dissemination agreement under which local agency agrees that data acquired from DCJS will remain confidential; insofar as local government maintains conviction records independent of those acquired from DCJS, such records must be disclosed. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8952.

Agency cannot, by means of practice or policy, generally withhold information based upon contention that disclosure would adversely affect future investigations; ability to withhold records under Freedom of Information Law can only be based on effects of disclosure in conjunction with attendant facts. If city department of investigation employee is currently involved in investigation and disclosure of identifying details pertaining to that employee in relation to that investigation would interfere with investigation, records can be withheld under CLS Pub O § 87(2)(e)(i); however, after closing memorandum has been prepared and investigation has been completed, disclosure of identity of employee cannot interfere with investigation. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9399.

While Public Service Commission is not criminal law enforcement agency, it can assert CLS Pub O § 87(2)(e)(i) as basis to deny access to investigative records in appropriate circumstances when it is empowered to engage in law enforcement functions; however, if records sought were prepared in ordinary course of business, § 87(2)(e) would likely not justify denial. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9911.

Records that established "on call, as needed" classification for county employees constituted civil service classifications created in ordinary course of business, not records compiled for law enforcement purposes, even if they were later used in law enforcement investigation; such records were available inasmuch as they would have been available prior to their use in law enforcement context. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-10270.

Materials and communications between New York State Department of Law (NYDOL) and United State Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) regarding PCBs in Hudson River were not exempt from disclosure on ground that they were compiled for law enforcement purposes in furtherance of ongoing investigation, where EPA indicated that it did not have law enforcement investigation ongoing, including any type of joint investigation with NYDOL. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12034.

CLS Pub O § 87(2)(e) would not likely serve as basis for denial of access to much of information sought regarding murder investigation that ended with suicide by alleged perpetrator. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12544.

Police Academy Library would be justified in denying full access to certain police training videos to extent that records in question include descriptions of investigative techniques which if disclosed would either (1) enable potential lawbreakers to evade detection, or (2) endanger lives or safety of law enforcement personnel or others. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12748.

Blanket denial of request for "written documentation of the procedure for the issuance of summonses for unleashed dogs in the park by Parks Enforcement Patrol officers" would not be appropriate since enforcement of matters relating to unleashed dogs rarely results in detailed investigations or judicial proceedings that involve incidents resulting in penalties more serious than violations. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-13107.

246. —Investigative techniques or procedures (§ 87(2)(e)(iv)), generally

Widely used records involving investigative techniques, such as fingerprint and ballistics test, and procedures such as interviewing potential witnesses and viewing crime scenes would not likely fall within scope of denial; authority to deny access under Freedom of Information Law pertains only to those criminal investigative techniques and procedures that are not "routine". Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4805.

Agreement by chief of police to withhold names of 18 police officers who admitted to off-duty misconduct did not preclude disclosure under Freedom of Information Law; citizens' right to know that public servants are held accountable when they abuse public trust outweighs any advantage that would accrue to municipalities if they could negotiate disciplinary matters with employees with power to suppress terms of settlement. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-10149.

Law enforcement exception would not apply to disclosure of Citywide Facility Inventory Database (CFID) maintained and made available by New York City Department of Environmental Protection (DEP). Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12559.

247. —Prisons; prisoners

Records relating to incident that occurred at correctional facility in which inmate sustained personal injuries—including overall directive on search procedures, specially designed program for infirmary command, directions governing persons designated "assaultive" prisoners, and institutional orders devised to govern movements of particular inmates—constituted intra-agency materials that fell within scope of CLS Pub O § 87(2)(g); however, instructions to staff that affect public or agency's policy would be available, while denial of access would be appropriate to extent that records included descriptions of investigative techniques which if disclosed would enable potential lawbreakers to evade detection or endanger lives or safety of law enforcement personnel or others. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12561.

Fact that records may relate to litigation, pending or threatened, does not necessarily remove them from the scope of rights of access under the Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Govt FOIL-AO 3071.

Agency is obligated to review record or records sought in their entirety to determine which portions if any, may justifiably be denied; extent to which exemption for records compiled for law enforcement purposes may be asserted is dependent upon whether documents were compiled or received in ordinary course of business, rather than for law enforcement purposes, and upon potentially harmful effects of disclosure. Committee on Open Government FOIL-AO-3840.

Agency report which is prepared solely for litigation is exempt from disclosure under Freedom of Information Law; however, if report is prepared for multiple purposes, one of which involves litigation, Freedom of Information Law would govern rights of access. 1986 Committee on Open Government FOIL-AO-4205.

Policy of withholding information unless crime is solved clearly conflicts with Freedom of Information Law, and that, unless different statute provides contrary direction, individual who may have been victim of crime generally has no right to insist upon confidentiality; concurrently, agency, including police department, is required to review records when request is made to determine extent, if any, to which one or more of grounds for denial might apply. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4689.

Records prepared by special prosecutor concerning investigation of district attorney could be characterized as records compiled for law enforcement purpose; however, such records can be withheld only to extent that disclosure would result in harmful effects described in CLS Pub O § 87(2)(e)(i)-(iv). Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4696.

Disclosure of certain records compiled for law enforcement purposes might, depending upon facts and effects of disclosure, be withheld for while or perhaps forever; however, those same records might in future become available, for harmful effects of disclosure might disappear due to intervening facts. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4736.

Records pertaining to suspension of pistol permit might be exempt from disclosure pursuant to CLS Pub O § 87(2)(e) as records compiled for law enforcement purposes. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7516.

It was questionable whether schedule of fines prepared by adjudication division of city department of consumer affairs could be characterized as record "compiled for law enforcement purposes" within meaning of CLS Pub O § 87(2)(e) since such schedule would not have been prepared with respect to any specific or individual case, but rather to cases generally that come before adjudication division and, therefore, it likely would constitute record prepared in ordinary course of business rather than for law enforcement purpose. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7533.

Categorical denial of request for police records concerning cases that resulted in convictions (including police reports, "memobook entries" and related records) was inconsistent with Freedom of Information Law and its judicial construction; police department must conduct review to identify portions of records that may fall within scope of one or more grounds for denial of access. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-10038.

Records compiled for law enforcement purposes can only be withheld to extent that disclosure would result in harmful effects described in CLS Pub O § 87(2)(e)(i) through (iv). Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12438.

Those portions of records of Department of Correctional Services which, if disclosed, would enable potential lawbreakers to evade detection could likely be withheld under Freedom of Information Law; nevertheless, other portions of records might be "routine" and might not, if disclosed, preclude employees from carrying out their duties effectively. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12492.

In context of criminal proceedings, variety of information is routinely disclosed: information equivalent to that disclosed during arraignment must be disclosed by police department or prosecutor; once information has been disclosed during public judicial proceeding, grounds for denying access under Freedom of Information Law no longer apply; and, when person is arrested, taken into custody and is committed to county jail, record must be maintained at jail that includes numerous details, all of which must be disclosed. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12605.

City records resulting from complaints and calls for investigations concerning activities occurring at property contiguous to applicant's residence might be deniable, while others would require disclosure, where portions, if disclosed, would enable potential lawbreakers to evade detection, or would endanger life of safety of officers or others. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12690.

"Factual context", specific contents of records, and effects of their disclosure are factors that must be considered in determining extent to which police department records may be withheld or, conversely, must be disclosed. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12702.

CLS Pub O § 87(2)(e)(i) and (ii) and (f) could not be invoked to deny access to electronic copies of 911 incident reports which functioned as traditional police blotter. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12741.

Records prepared by manufacturer of radar device could not be characterized as having been "compiled for law enforcement purposes"; thus, CLS Pub O § 87(2)(e) would not be applicable as means of withholding such records. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12859.

If there has been plea agreement in criminal matter and there is no possibility of further prosecution, disclosure of records of matter would neither interfere with investigation or judicial proceeding, nor would it deprive defendant of fair trial, for there will be no trial. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12909.

Business records would not be transformed into records compiled for law enforcement purposes where such records were prepared in ordinary course of business and then become relevant to or used in law enforcement investigation or perhaps in litigation. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12909.

Exception concerning records compiled for law enforcement purposes would be inapplicable to Freedom of Information request for permits, certificates of occupancy and outstanding violations or citations with respect to various properties, even if records sought might be used in or pertinent to criminal investigation. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-16459.

248. Endangerment of life or safety (§ 87(2)(f)), generally

249. —Confidential sources of information, generally

250. — —Complainant; victim

General policy of withholding names of complainants or victims would be inconsistent with Freedom of Information Law, although denial of access to name of complainant or victim may be appropriate; under CLS Civ R § 50-b, police and other public officers are prohibited from disclosing identity of victim of sex offense, person's identity could likely be withheld under CLS Pub O § 87(2)(f) which permits agency to withhold records to extent that disclosure would "endanger the life or safety of any person," (which would include situation where complainant is in some way associated with organized crime or is confidential source), and same provision might apply when victim is senior citizen who lives alone. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12605.

Denial of file related to criminal investigations for reasons that records would endanger life or safety of some person is improper where identities of confidential sources are withheld. Committee on Open Government FOIL-AO-3802.

Agency may withhold records compiled for law enforcement purposes when they identify confidential source relating to criminal investigation, when disclosure would endanger life or safety of any person, or when disclosure would constitute unwarranted invasion of personal privacy; Freedom of Information Law does not require agency to create or prepare record or response to request. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4573.

If law enforcement official telephones informants or is engaged in investigation, disclosure of telephone numbers listed on official's telephone bill might endanger individual's life or safety and, therefore, numbers might justifiably be deleted pursuant to CLS Pub O § 87(2)(f). Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7607.

If law enforcement official telephones informants, disclosure of numbers called might endanger individual's life or safety and, therefore, numbers might justifiably be withheld from disclosure pursuant to CLS Pub O § 87(2)(f). Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7926.

If record indicates that named individual is assigned to undercover unit, his or her name or other identifying details could be withheld pursuant to CLS Pub O § 87(2)(f); however, if record, such as oath of office, indicates public employee's title (i.e., deputy sheriff) and does not specify that person's assignment to undercover or similar unit, there would appear to be no basis for denial of access. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8398.

Photo of public employee who testified at public proceeding during which any person could have been present and seen his face should be accessible, except in extraordinary circumstances, such as situation in which threat has been made or where person works undercover or in manner in which his or identity could, if disclosed, jeopardize that person's safety. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-13005.

251. —Prisoners; prisons, generally

All agencies, including Department of Correctional Services, are required to maintain payroll lists in accordance with freedom of information law; however, agency may withhold records or portions of records when disclosure would endanger life or safety of any person; disclosure of identities of state employees including employees of Department of Correctional Services would not in most circumstances endanger life or safety; however, in those circumstances in which law enforcement agency has engaged employees in undercover positions, names of these employees may be deleted from portions of payroll record which identified them with justification based on endangerment of life or safety. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4894.

Certain "directives" of Department of Correctional Services are generally available under the Freedom of Information Law. On the other hand, if "directives" involve security at a facility access could justifiably be denied under CLS Public Officers Law § 87(2)(f) on the basis that such disclosure would "endanger the life or safety of any person". Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-6274 (1990).

Freedom of Information Law finds that agency may deny access to record or portion thereof which if disclosed would endanger life or safety of any person; names of all agency employees are likely to be available except to extent that CLS Pub Off § 87(2)(f) applies. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4735.

In situation where subjects of investigation are deceased, presumably due to natural causes, it is difficult to envision how disclosure of public employees' names could "endanger" lives or safety. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4736.

Records pertaining to suspension of pistol permit might be exempt from disclosure pursuant to CLS Pub O § 87(2)(f), which permits withholding to extent that disclosure would endanger life or safety of any person. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7516.

Where building plans include reference to alarms or security systems, it is possible that CLS Pub O § 87(2)(f) might be asserted on basis that disclosure would endanger life or safety of person. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7921.

CLS Pub O § 87(2)(f) would not bar disclosure of identity of commercial entities which experience excessive false alarms since many such entities post notices to announce existence of alarm system and since, when law enforcement agency responds to alarm, whether alarm is based on real emergency or otherwise, its response is public event. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8953.

Information regarding location of emergency housing facility within county could not be withheld under CLS Pub O § 87(2)(f) since fear that county residents would act violently if they know that facility was used for emergency housing was not warranted or provable. Mere speculation cannot serve as justifiable basis for withholding records under CLS Pub O § 87(2)(f). Emotional hostility cannot be equated with endangerment so as to justify withholding of records under CLS Pub O § 87(2)(f). Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9204.

County's denial of request for names of all police department employees assigned to district attorney's office, on ground that disclosure would endanger their safety, was unnecessarily broad; aside from undercover situation, law enforcement officers in performance of their duties typically identify themselves by nameplates and badge or shield numbers, and undercover officers are not likely to use their real names in performance of their duties and thus disclosure of their real names will not jeopardize their safety. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-10099.

Denial of access to state police records relating to much-publicized bombing incident and investigation of suspect, who later committed suicide, was not justified on ground that disclosure would endanger life or safety of those concerned, where media accounts of incident apparently established that suspect was perpetrator, and suspect was dead. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-10229.

CLS Pub O § 87(2)(b) does not justify denial of request for "complete listing" of voice and fax numbers of town employees, if such list exists; however, portions of list might properly be withheld if, for instance, telephone and fax lines were dedicated to certain uses and, if those lines were to become tied up by outsider and could not be used as intended, agency would be precluded from carrying out its duties in manner whereby public would be adequately protected or served. CLS Pub O § 87(2)(f) and (i) might justifiably be asserted to withhold wholesale disclosure of e-mail addresses of agency employees in that (1) virus attached to single e-mail address could be transmitted to every other e-mail address contacted, which could result in inability to carry out critical governmental functions, and (2) while e-mail address might not have been created to be used as computer access code, it could be used to gain unauthorized access to computer, or to transmit virus (or other program) to other computers. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12305.

Police Academy Library would be justified in denying full access to certain police training videos to extent that records in question include descriptions of investigative techniques which if disclosed would either (1) enable potential lawbreakers to evade detection, or (2) endanger lives or safety of law enforcement personnel or others. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12748.

CLS Pub O § 87(2)(f), which permits agency to withhold records insofar as disclosure could "endanger the life or safety of any person," might properly be invoked to deny access to architectural building plans, insofar as such records include information concerning alarms, security systems and like. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12830.

Records prepared by manufacturer of radar device could not be withheld on ground that such records include descriptions of investigative techniques which if disclosed would enable potential lawbreakers to evade detection or endanger lives or safety of law enforcement personnel or others. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12859.

CLS Pub O § 87(2)(f) would serve as basis for denial of request for fax and e-mail addresses of New York City Housing Authority employees. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-13356.

Insofar as disclosure would enable terrorists to evade detection or effective law enforcement or potentially enable them to jeopardize lives and safety, records regarding "chemical hazard and inventory data" and "site specific emergency response plan" relating to particular pump station may be withheld under CLS Pub O § 87(2)(f). Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-13386.

If records have been previously disclosed to public, it would be difficult for agency to prove that disclosure of such records could now or in future endanger life or safety, especially if records have been made available via internet. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-13550.

252. Inter-agency and intra-agency materials (§ 87(2)(g)), generally

253. —Accounting matters, generally

254. — —Audits

While inter-agency or intra-agency materials may be withheld, portions of such materials consisting of statistical or factual information, instructions to staff that affect public, final agency policy or determinations or external audits must be made available; concurrently, those portions of inter-agency or intra-agency materials that are reflective of opinion, advice, recommendation and like, could be withheld, and, as such, specific contents of inter-agency or intra-agency materials determine extent to which materials may be withheld. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4948.

While inter-agency or intra-agency materials may be withheld from disclosure, portions of such materials consisting of statistical or factual information, instructions to staff that affect public, final agency policy or determinations or external audits must be made available; concurrently, those portions of inter-agency or intra-agency materials that are reflective of opinion, advice,

While inter-agency or intra-agency materials may be withheld, portions of such materials consisting of statistical or factual information, or instructions to staff that affect public, or final agency policy determinations must be made available; "income fund reimbursable account" would consist solely of statistical or factual tabulations or data and would be accessible pursuant to Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4619.

While inter-agency or intra-agency materials may be withheld, portions of such materials consisting of statistical or factual information, instructions to staff that affect public, or final agency policy for determinations must be made available such as books of account, ledgers and similar records, bills, vouchers, contracts and records involving expenditure of public moneys. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4643.

255. —Consulting; consultants, generally

256. — —Advisory opinions and the like

While inter-agency or intra-agency material may be withheld from disclosure, portions of such materials consisting of statistical factual information, instructions to staff that affect public, or final agency policy or determinations must be made available; concurrently, to extent that such materials consist of advice, opinion or recommendation, they may be withheld; denial of records may be appealed pursuant to CLS Pub O § 89(4)(a). Comm On Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4595.

Denial of access to records on ground that records sought are inter-agency, without more explanation, is insufficient; further, if agency maintains requested records, fact that records were received from another agency does not exempt it from responding to request; agency is permitted to withhold intra-agency or inter-agency materials insofar as they consist of evaluative material, such as opinion or recommendation, as opposed to factual material, but where request of records may be partially factual in nature, records may not be withheld. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4616.

Portions of inter-agency or intra-agency materials that are reflective of opinion, advice and recommendation could be withheld; memorandum from staff consisting of advice or recommendation would properly be withheld. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4726.

Although records reflective of pre-decisional commentary or advice may be withheld under CLS Pub O § 87(2)(g), where such records are produced by entity that is not agency under Freedom of Information Law and such records are transmitted to entity that is agency under Freedom of Information Law, records do not consist of either inter-agency or intra-agency material and CLS Pub O § 87(2)(g) cannot be asserted as basis for denial. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8300.

Advisory opinion prepared by town ethics board can generally be withheld under Freedom of Information Law; if opinion is rejected or modified, it is deniable under both CLS Pub O § 87(2)(b) as unwarranted invasion of personal privacy and under CLS Pub O § 87(2)(g) as recommendation to town board that is not final. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8922.

Draft report usually consists of intra-agency material that can be withheld except to extent that it contains any of 4 categories of available information delineated in CLS Pub O § 87(2)(g)(i)-(iv); this, insofar as draft consists of statistical or factual information, it is available; however, opinions contained in draft can be withheld. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8942.

If author of document asserted to be inter-agency or intra-agency material cannot be identified, and there is no proof that statement represents advice or opinion rather than fact or policy, disclosure under Freedom of Information Law is likely to be required. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-10047.

While inter-agency or intra-agency materials may be withheld under FOIL, portions of such materials consisting of statistical or factual information, instructions to staff that affect public, final agency policy or determinations or external audits must be made available, unless different ground for denial could appropriately be asserted; concurrently, those portions of inter-agency or intra-agency materials that are reflective of opinion, advice, recommendation and like could be withheld. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12395.

Characterization of private party as "consultant" is not determinative of issue whether communications between private party and agency are intra-agency materials; it is actual function served by outside party which must be considered in deciding whether communications are encompassed by intra-agency exemption. Committee on Open Government FOIL-AO-3381.

Reports prepared by outside consultants for purposes of aiding deliberative process of agency which requested opinions and recommendations from consultant may be considered "intra-agency material"; collections of statements of objective information logically arranged and reflecting objective reality are factual tabulations or data, which may not be properly withheld from disclosure. Committee on Open Government FOIL-AO-3843.

To extent that inter-agency or intra-agency materials are reflective of advice, opinion or recommendation, they can be withheld. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4061.

Records prepared for agency by private consulting firm constitute intra-agency material subject to Freedom of Information Law and would be accessible or deniable depending upon their contents. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4798.

Appraisal report, whether it be prepared by employees of city or by private consulting firm, constitutes intra-agency materials subject to Freedom of Information Law and can be accessible or deniable depending upon contents. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4837.

Where records sought were prepared by consultants and were inter-agency materials, they would be accessible or deniable, in whole or in part, depending upon their contents and, to extent that they consist of statistical or factual information, they would be available. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4889.

Consultant reports prepared for agency should be treated as if they were prepared by staff of agency and they therefore constitute intra-agency materials subject to Freedom of Information Law; however, inter-agency or intra-agency materials consisting of external audits, including but not limited to audits performed by comptroller and Federal Government must be made available. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4916.

Intra-agency materials or records prepared by consultant for agency would be accessible or deniable, in whole or in part, depending on their contents; insofar as records in question consist of advice, recommendations or opinions, they could be withheld; however, to extent that they consist of statistical or factual data, they would be available unless different ground for denial could be asserted. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7642.

To extent that architectural consultant presented his recommendations for proposed new school buildings (including floor plans and cost analysis) at open meeting, such documentation was constructively disclosed and district thereby waived its ability to withhold records containing such information on ground that they consisted of intra-agency documents in draft form as to which no final determination had yet been made. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-10365.

"Draft unapproved minutes" of meetings of city council should be disclosed, on request, as soon as they exist; minutes of meeting open to public do not involve "internal government consultations or deliberations" since information contained in those records has effectively been disclosed to public already. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12607.

Records prepared by consultant for agency may be withheld or must be disclosed based on same standards as in cases in which records are prepared by staff of agency. Records prepared by town advisory commissions should not be viewed as consultant's report and would not fall within scope of CLS Pub O § 87(2)(g), unless commission were "agency" because it performed necessary function in decision-making process. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12641.

If relationship between agency and private developer is essentially that of agency and consultant, CLS Pub O § 87(2)(g) would be applicable in analyzing rights of access to documents involving both entities; if, however, relationship of that nature does not exist, that provision would not be pertinent in determining rights of access. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12727.

If preliminary FEIS were prepared by applicant or applicant's consultant, exception regarding inter-agency or intra-agency materials would not serve as basis for denial of access. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-13441.

257. —Employment

Records which indicate reason for job reclassification from maximum security to medium security and then back to maximum security would likely be characterized as intra-agency material and, therefore, those portions containing opinions or recommendations concerning job reclassification could be denied. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4676.

If disclosure of records maintained by state agency would result in unwarranted invasion of personal privacy, Personal Privacy Protection Law and Freedom of Information Law would prohibit disclosure; written reprimands pertaining to employees that were issued for failure to report suspected child abuse are accessible under Freedom of Information Law; however, to extent that those records identify patients, deletions of those details should be made to protect against unwarranted invasion of personal privacy; determination to effect that employee engaged in misconduct or violated procedures will be available as final determination of interagency matter. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4683.

Records may be characterized as inter-agency or intra-agency materials, in order to manufacture signs and work orders and regulations would constitute either instructions to staff that affect public final agency policies determinations that would be accessible. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4757.

If letter of resignation could be considered to be "intra-agency", those portions consisting of advice or opinion can be withheld; those portions that contain factual information will be available. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4771.

Attendance records can be characterized as intra-agency materials, however, those portions reflective of dates or numbers of absences would constitute statistical or factual information which is accessible. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4808.

If complaint was made by staff or employees of agency and transmitted to another agency, it could be characterized as inter-agency material; on other hand, if complaint was made by person or persons not employed by agency CLS Pub O § 87(2)(g) would not be applicable. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4829.

Communications among staff members of agency or agencies could be characterized as "inter-agency or intra-agency materials" and to extent that such materials consist of advice, opinion and recommendation, they can be withheld pursuant to Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4853.

Testimony given by city employees would constitute intra-agency materials that would be accessible or deniable depending upon contents; on other hand, testimony given by members of public would not constitute inter-agency or intra-agency materials and, therefore, would be available, except to extent that different ground for denial may be asserted. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4971.

Although employee misconduct records can be characterized as intra-agency materials, if record indicates disciplinary action taken with respect to employee of school district, it would be available on ground that it consists of final agency determination. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4973.

Records prepared by employees of agency and communicated within that agency or to another agency fall within scope of CLS Pub O § 87(2)(g). Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7516.

Memorandum prepared concerning possibility that county official might have exhibited symptoms of drinking intoxicating substance while performing his or her duties, and recommendation to conduct professional evaluation to determine whether dependency problem existed, were sufficiently personal and intimate that they could be withheld if requested by public under CLS Pub O § 87(2)(g) to extent that documents were reflective of opinion, advice, recommendation and like. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7528.

Opinions expressed by non-party employees in context of administrative investigation could be withheld from disclosure under CLS Pub O § 87(2)(g), and perhaps under CLS Pub O § 87(2)(b) as well. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7858.

Responses to surveys distributed to county employees asking for their opinions on various matters relating to their jobs were exempt from disclosure pursuant to CLS Pub O § 87(2)(g). Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8899.

Proposed "arbitrator appraisal" forms completed by parties to voluntary grievance arbitration constitute inter-agency materials when transmitted to Public Employment Relations Board (PERB) and "ratings" circled on such forms constitute opinions; thus, substance of such forms, when prepared by PERB employees, can be withheld under CLS Pub O § 87(2)(g). Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9972.

Disclosure of correspondence between water district and Employees Retirement System pertaining to requestor's husband was not precluded on ground that it consisted of inter-agency materials reflective of opinion, advice and recommendation, as requestor's husband was "data subject" under CLS Pub O § 92(3) and thus had rights of access to records about himself. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-10144.

258. —Engineering reports

Inter-agency material consisting of engineering report made up of statistical or factual information would be available under Freedom of Information Law; contrarily, those portions of report consisting of advice, opinion or recommendation would be withheld. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4795.

259. —Environmental matters

While inter-agency or intra-agency materials may be withheld from disclosure, portions of such materials consisting of statistical or factual information, instructions to staff that affect public, final agency policy or determinations or external audits may be available; concurrently, those portions of inter-agency or intra-agency materials that are reflective of opinion, advice, recommendation and like could be withheld; list of names of companies that did not respond to department of environmental conservation survey is factual information, and therefore available. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4814.

260. —Federal law involvement

Term "agency" does not include federal agency, and consequently exemption for inter-agency materials does not apply to communications between city and federal agency. Committee on Open Government FOIL-AO-3336.

Freedom of Information Law pertains to records of state and local government; since definition of agency does not include federal agency, grounds for withholding communications listed in Freedom of Information Law cannot be cited to withhold communications between county agency and federal agency. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4966.

CLS Pub O § 87(2)(g) cannot be properly cited to withhold communications between state agency and federal agency since federal agency is not "agency" for purposes of that statute. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9637.

CLS Pub O § 87(2)(g), which permits withholding of inter-agency or intra-agency materials depending on contents of those materials, could not be cited to withhold communications between county and federal agency; CLS Pub O § 86 defines "agency" as entity of state or local government in New York. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-10050.

261. —Insurance matters

If record was prepared for New York Property Insurance and Underwriting Association and not for state insurance department, record could not be characterized as "inter-agency or intra-agency materials" and, therefore, Freedom of Information Law could not be applicable as the basis for denial; consequently, records should be made available, except to extent the different basis for denial would apply to records or portions thereof. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4848.

Denial of request for letter sent by insurance company to fire district, on ground that it was intra-agency material, was unjustified because insurance company is not "agency" as that term is defined in Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12270.

262. —Legal matters, generally

263. — —Court-related

Rights granted by Freedom of Information Law apply to all agency records, irrespective of whether agency prepared or received records; with exception of summonses and affidavits of service, inter-departmental referral reports, and handwritten notes of inspector or other public officer are all records which could be characterized as inter-agency or intra-agency materials and thus portions of inter-agency materials may be withheld to extent that they consist of advice, opinion, recommendation and the like. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4635.

Disclosure of litigation file cabinet "tags" used by individual attorneys at board of education might properly be denied where tags reflected values or opinions—i.e., by characterizing contents of files as "important" or "unimportant," "winnable" or "unwinnable"; those kinds of notations could be withheld as intra-agency material under CLS Pub O § 87(2)(g). Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9251.

Insofar as audiotape of judicial seminar/discussion conducted by Office of Court Administration consisted of recommendations, suggestions or expressions of opinion, whether offered by expert consultants or by judges or employees, it could justifiably be withheld under CLS Pub O § 87(2)(g). Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9403.

Memo books of New York law department would constitute "intra-agency materials"; nevertheless, they appear to consist largely of factual data and even though accessible information may be "intertwined" with deniable information, such as advice or opinion, agency must extract from record those portions that are available for disclosure; however, attorney's work product and materials prepared solely for litigation are exempt from disclosure. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4648.

Even though materials may be inter-agency or intra-agency materials, if they also consist of attorney work product or material prepared for litigation, they fall within scope of attorney/client privilege. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4685.

Records prepared by office of special prosecutor are inter-agency materials that would be accessible or deniable, in whole or in part, depending upon their contents. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4696.

CLS Pub O § 87(2)(g) applied to report prepared by town attorney in response to anonymous complaint that dentist was operating his practice in violation of town codes; thus, to extent that attorney-client privilege did not apply, aspects of report consisting of advice or opinion could be withheld, but portions consisting of statistical or factual information should be disclosed. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9854.

Insofar as attorney billing records are maintained by or for town, town would be required to direct custodian of records to disclose them in accordance with Freedom of Information Law, or obtain them in order to disclose them to requester to extent required by law; town has ability to redact portions of bills that might include, for example, descriptions of litigation strategy or privileged communications between attorney and his or client, which could be harmful to interests of town. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12750.

Supreme court did not err in withholding documents because they fell within the scope of the intra agency exemption for pre-decisional, nonfinal discussions and recommendations by employees within the agency used to assist the decision makers in formulating a determination; the documents consisted of internal discussions on the entirely separate decision regarding what information to disclose to the public about pending litigation and how best to do so. Matter of Smith v New York State Off. of the Attorney Gen., 116 A.D.3d 1209, 984 N.Y.S.2d 190, 2014 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2444 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), app. denied, 24 N.Y.3d 912, 26 N.E.3d 782, 2 N.Y.S.3d 843, 2014 N.Y. LEXIS 3448 (N.Y. 2014).

264. —Lists of names, addresses and the like

If intra-agency directory containing home addresses and home telephone numbers of public employees is requested, it would likely be proper to delete home addresses and home telephone numbers and make remainder available. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4636.

While inter-agency or intra-agency materials may be withheld from disclosure, portions of such materials consisting of statistical or factual information, instructions to staff that affect public, final agency policy or determinations or external audits may be available; concurrently, those portions of inter-agency or intra-agency materials that are reflective of opinion, advice, recommendation and like could be withheld; list of names of companies that did not respond to department of environmental conservation survey is factual information, and therefore available. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4814.

265. —Medical and health matters

Record transmitted from officer employed by agency to mental health unit could be characterized as inter-agency material; therefore, it would be accessible or deniable in whole or in part, depending upon its specific contents; to extent that record contains advice, recommendation or opinion, those portions would likely be denied. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4812.

While "data" prepared by health department could be properly characterized as "intra-agency material", to extent that it exists, it appears that it consists solely of statistical or factual tabulations or data that must be made available. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4860.

Medical records prepared by jail personnel could be characterized as "intra-agency materials" that fall within scope of Freedom of Information Law and to extent that such materials consist of advice, opinion, recommendation, and like, Freedom of Information Law would permit denial. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4933.

With respect to medical records, Freedom of Information Law permits that some records may be withheld in whole or in part, depending upon their contents because medical records prepared by agency personnel could be characterized as intra-agency materials; to extent that such materials consist of advice, opinion, recommendation and like, Freedom of Information Law would permit denial. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4943.

With respect to medical records, Freedom of Information Law permits that some records may be withheld in whole or in part, depending upon their contents; medical records prepared by department personnel could be characterized as intra-agency materials that fall within scope of Freedom of Information Law and to extent that such materials consist of advice, opinion, recommendation and like, Freedom of Information Law would permit denial. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4953.

Portions of Uniform Complaint Tracking System (database established under CLS Pub Health § 2803-d) must be disclosed, following redaction of any name, except name of person found to have committed act of physical abuse, neglect or mistreatment, or name of any other person who has authorized disclosure. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-13072.

266. —Municipal affairs, generally

267. — —Fire department matters

Although memorandum prepared by city fire chief, in his capacity as chief and in performance of his official duties, would be "internal" and could be characterized as "intra agency material", if memorandum was prepared after fire chief's retirement, fire chief would no longer have been employed by city and, therefore, memorandum would not be "intra agency material". 1986 Committee on Open Government FOIL-AO-4372.

Under CLS Pub Off § 87(2)(g), weekly packet of proposed legislation to be reviewed by city council could be characterized as "intra-agency" materials that consist of recommendations, and therefore may be withheld from public access. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4418.

By-laws adopted by community board or its constitution may be characterized as "intra-agency materials; nonetheless, they represent final agency policy and, are available for disclosure. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4807.

Records prepared by county officials could be characterized as inter-agency materials and if such records consist of statistical or factual information or final agency determinations, records would be available, unless different basis for denial could be asserted. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4976.

CLS Pub O § 87(2)(g) applied to report prepared by town attorney in response to anonymous complaint that dentist was operating his practice in violation of town codes; thus, to extent that attorney-client privilege did not apply, aspects of report consisting of advice or opinion could be withheld, but portions consisting of statistical or factual information should be disclosed. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9854.

"Draft unapproved minutes" of meetings of city council should be disclosed, on request, as soon as they exist; minutes of meeting open to public do not involve "internal government consultations or deliberations" since information contained in those records has effectively been disclosed to public already. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12607.

If member of county legislature in item of correspondence offered opinion regarding controversy, that portion of correspondence could be withheld. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12631.

Records prepared by consultant for agency may be withheld or must be disclosed based on same standards as in cases in which records are prepared by staff of agency. Records prepared by town advisory commissions should not be viewed as consultant's report and would not fall within scope of CLS Pub O § 87(2)(g), unless commission were "agency" because it performed necessary function in decision-making process. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12641.

268. —Police and related law enforcement activities, generally

269. — —Investigations

Reports of inspections constitute inter-agency or intra-agency materials that would be accessible or deniable depending upon their contents. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4641.

Communication between department of investigation and department of state could be characterized as interagency material that would be accessible or deniable in whole or in part, depending upon its contents. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4766.

Records prepared in conjunction with investigation constitute intra-agency materials within meaning of CLS Pub O § 87(2)(g); insofar as they consist of opinions, advice, conjecture, recommendations and like, they can be withheld; however, factual information is available, except to extent that it falls within different ground for denial and findings and conclusions may be available when they constitute final agency determinations. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7549.

While inter-agency or intra-agency materials may be withheld, portions of such materials consisting of statistical or factual information, instructions to staff that affect public or final agency policy or determinations must be made available; concurrently, inter-agency or intra-agency materials which consist of advice, opinion, or recommendation may be withheld; correspondence from homicide detective to district attorney's office would likely be withheld insofar as it consists of suggestions, recommendations or advice. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4674.

Police memo books would constitute interagency materials, nevertheless, they constitute, in part, factual data; even though accessible information may be intertwined with deniable information, agency must extract from record those portions that are available. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4756.

When police blotters or other records are prepared by employees of police department, they could be characterized as "intra-agency materials"; however, insofar as they consist of factual information, for example, they would be available under Freedom of Information Law, unless different ground for denial applies. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7603.

Police department could not claim that records sought regarding murder investigation of incident that ended in suicide of alleged perpetrator could be withheld in their entirety on ground that they constituted intra-agency materials. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12544.

With regard to records of police use of physical force, police department's standard operating procedures would reflect final agency policies and must be disclosed, as must records reflective of organizational structure of department and other policies and procedures, except to extent that disclosure would reveal other than routine criminal investigative techniques or procedures or would if disclosed endanger life or safety of police officers or others. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12655.

270. —Prisons and prisoners, generally

271. — —Parole matters

Insofar as records pertaining to application for clemency and parole were furnished to Governor or his representatives by applicant, her attorney or other persons outside of government, CLS Pub O § 87(2)(g) would not serve as basis for denial of request for disclosure of such records. Communications transmitted to agency by person outside of government who was not officer or employee of agency could not be characterized as inter-agency or intra-agency materials within meaning of CLS Pub O § 87(2)(g). If superintendent of correctional facility provides opinion to Governor or his representatives concerning application for clemency, that kind of record would fall within CLS Pub O § 87(2)(g). Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7586.

Even though intraagency material, such as employee rule book of department of correctional services which is reflective of routine criminal investigative techniques and procedures, may not be withheld from disclosure, other aspects of rule book might indicate non-routine criminal investigative techniques or procedures, and, to that extent, rule book could be denied access. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4803.

Program and security assessment summary report, prepared by correctional counselor, is intra-agency record consisting of both factual and evaluative materials pertaining to particular inmate; copy of report can be made available as long as evaluative portions are deleted. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4842.

Records of Department of Correctional Services consisting of instructions to staff that affect public or agency's policy would be available under Freedom of Information Law, and would not be subject to inter- or intra-agency exception, unless different basis for denial could be asserted. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12492.

Records relating to incident that occurred at correctional facility in which inmate sustained personal injuries—including overall directive on search procedures, specially designed program for infirmary command, directions governing persons designated "assaultive" prisoners, and institutional orders devised to govern movements of particular inmates—constituted intra-agency materials that fell within scope of CLS Pub O § 87(2)(g); however, instructions to staff that affect public or agency's policy would be available, while denial of access would be appropriate to extent that records included descriptions of investigative techniques which if disclosed would enable potential lawbreakers to evade detection or endanger lives or safety of law enforcement personnel or others. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12561.

County local conditional release commission may withhold opinions regarding release of particular inmate when commission members transmit opinions or recommendations among one another, or when other government officers or employees offer opinions concerning inmate's release. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3784.

272. —Schools, teachers and the like

Under CLS Pub Off § 87(2)(g), letter by school superintendent to board of education, containing advice on board's recommendation as affecting student transfers, could be appropriately withheld as inter-agency materials. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4476.

Ratings of school teachers could be characterized as "intra-agency materials", and extent to which they may be accessible or deniable is largely dependent upon specific content of individual records since extent to which individual forms contain opinions and facts differs from one form to next. Comm On Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4592.

Unsatisfactory lesson observation reports, pertaining to named teachers, would constitute intra-agency materials that would be available or deniable, in whole or in part, based upon specific contents. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4642.

Records of performance appraisals of teachers under new program under which new or different kinds of appraisals of teachers were prepared could be characterized as "intra-agency materials" within meaning of CLS Pub O § 87(2)(g); however, approved proposal and criteria used in evaluating performance would be reflective of final agency determination or indication of school district's policy that was applied to teacher or teachers in evaluating performance and, if that was so, those aspects of records would be available under CLS Pub O § 87(2)(g)(iii). Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7633.

If telephone records are prepared by phone company and sent to school district, they can not be characterized as intra-agency materials within meaning of CLS Pub O § 87(2)(g) as telephone company is not agency. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7926.

If parent offered information regarding allegations that school employee was pedophile, and that information was recorded in writing by district official, CLS Pub O § 87(2)(g) would not serve as basis for denial of access. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-13590.

Bus stop reviews provided by school district in response to Freedom of Information Law (FOIL) request could not delete names of reviewers and their comments if portions withheld were reflective of decisions on which district relied; however, to extent that portions withheld reflected opinions of district personnel, redaction would be consistent with FOIL except to extent that those opinions consisted of statistical or factual information. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-16486.

273. —Other and miscellaneous

Office of State Inspector General, which investigates allegations of fraud, corruption, waste and abuse within covered agencies, may redact from reports names and other identifying details concerning sources and witnesses under Freedom of Information Law on grounds that records were compiled for law enforcement purposes which, if disclosed, would identify confidential source, constitute unwarranted invasion of personal privacy, constitute information of personal nature that is not relevant to work of agency, constitute interagency or intra-agency materials which are not statistical or factual tabulations or data, instructions to staff or final agency policy, and finally disclosure of names of informants and witnesses could endanger life or safety of such informant or witness. 1986 Committee on Open Government FOIL-AO-4251.

Under CLS Pub O § 87(2)(g), requested copy of Suffolk Regional Off-Track Betting Corporation operating manual, spelling out company policies and procedures for employees, may likely be disclosed in whole or in part, where manual prepared by agency is "intra-agency material", but manual's contents likely consist of factual information, instructions to staff that affect the public and policy adopted by Corporation. There is two tier test that must be met for record to fall within scope of CLS Pub O Law § 87(2)(g)-first, record must be inter-agency or intra-agency material which contains information relating to deliberative process of making agency decision; second, portions of inter-agency or intra-agency materials may be disclosed if they consist of statistical or factual information, instructions to staff that affect public or final agency policies for determinations which must be made public. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4584.

Investigative notes and records prepared by Public Service Commission (PSC) or department staff may fall within scope of CLS Pub O § 87(2)(g), and thus portions of records obtained by PSC from Niagara Mohawk Power Corporation which were reflective of opinion, advice and recommendations could be withheld. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9911.

Fact that village planning board authorized "circulation" of draft proposal regarding special use permits to those present at public meeting resulted in waiver of capacity of village to deny access to proposal as intra-agency material. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-13495.

Statistical or factual information found within inter-agency or intra-agency materials is independently accessible even though it might not have been used or is not relevant to agency's determination. Comm On Open Gov't FOIL-AO-3859.

To extent that inter-agency or intra-agency materials contain "evaluative" information, those portions of records could be withheld by means of deletions. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4004.

Mere characterization of record as "intra-agency material" would not serve to enable agency to withhold record in its entirety because portions containing statistical or factual information, instructions to staff that affect public, or final agency policy or determination must be made available. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4666.

While inter-agency or intra-agency materials may be withheld, portions of such materials consisting of statistical or factual information, instructions to staff that affect public, or final agency policy or determinations must be made available. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4680.

If intra-agency materials contain statistical or factual tabulations or data, records would be available, unless different ground for denial could be asserted; on other hand, if court found records to be reflective of opinion, access could be denied. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4710.

Even though draft report can be properly characterized as inter-agency materials, those portions consisting of statistical or factual information are available for disclosure; however, where drafts are required to be made available, agency should mark records as "draft", "preliminary" or "non-final" because by doing so recipient of records is actively notified that contents of records are subject to change. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4811.

Even though factual information may be intertwined with opinions in inter-agency or intra-agency materials, factual portions should be available unless there is another basis for denial; similarly, to extent that records contain instructions to staff that affect public or final agency policy or determinations, they must generally be made available, unless different ground for denial applies. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4898.

Where inter-agency or intra-agency materials contain accessible information that may be "intertwined" with deniable information, agency must extract from record those portions that are available. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4907.

Characterization of records as "interdepartmental" and using that characterization as basis for withholding records under Freedom of Information Law is inappropriate; contents of interdepartmental records serve as factors for determining whether or extent to which they must be disclosed. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8370.

When member of public, acting in that capacity, or person acting as representative of non-governmental entity, communicates with government, communication could not be characterized as "inter-agency or intra-agency materials," for that person neither is nor represents agency. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8552.

Insofar as draft has been distributed to public or perhaps disclosed at meetings open to public, there is no basis for denial of access under CLS Pub O § 87(2)(g). Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9378.

Blanket denial of access to records based on their characterization as "intra-agency materials" is inappropriate. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-10170.

Intra-agency materials may be accessible or deniable in whole or in part, depending on their specific contents. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12405.

274. Statistical or factual tabulations or data (§ 87(2)(g)(i)), generally

275. —Appraisals

Even though statistical or factual information may be intertwined with opinions, statistical or factual portions, if any, should be available; therefore, appraisal reports prepared for agency by private consulting firm constitutes interagency material subject to Freedom of Information Law and would be accessible or deniable in part depending upon their contents. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4836.

Even though statistical or factual information may be intertwined with opinions, statistical or factual portions should be available; appraiser's reports may be made available after parcels of land that are subjects of appraisals have been sold so that disclosure would not impair agencys position. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4837.

276. —Attendance records

Attendance records can be characterized as intra-agency materials, however, those portions reflective of dates or numbers of absences would constitute statistical or factual information which is accessible. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4808.

277. —Financial data, generally

Under CLS Pub Off § 87(2)(g)(i), books of account, ledgers, and similar documentation would likely comprise accessible "statistical or factual tabulations or data". Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4557.

While inter-agency or intra-agency materials may be withheld, portions of such materials consisting of statistical or factual information, instructions to staff that affect public, or final agency policy for determinations must be made available such as books of account, ledgers and similar records, bills, vouchers, contracts and records involving expenditure of public moneys. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4643.

Records requested, which pertain to cost of waste treatment, consists of factual and statistical information, and are accessible under Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4687.

To extent that records sought consist of statistical or factual tabulations of or relating to other public records, such as budget bill or administrative staff manual, they are accessible under Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4893.

CLS Pub O § 87(2)(g) would not justify disclosure of bills involving use of fax machine by officers and employees of city with redaction of those portions indicating fax numbers to which transmissions were made, notwithstanding that records in question could be characterized as intra-agency materials, since they consisted only of statistical or factual information. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7607.

Reports of income and expenditure of annual fund raising conducted by volunteer firefighters and of 1.8 percent funds from foreign insurance companies that go to exempt firemen's benevolent associations were required to be disclosed pursuant to CLS Pub O § 87(2)(g)(i) if reports were prepared by fire company; further, if they were prepared for company by others, none of grounds for denial would be applicable and reports would likely be available in their entirety. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7640.

In connection with request for breakdown of cost of mayor's police protection from its inception to present, which request did not seek records indicating times that police coverage occurred at mayor's home, CLS Pub O § 87(2)(g) could not justify withholding of information since records requested consisted in great measure, if not in their entirety, of statistical or factual information. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7930.

When former customer of licensed moving company sought Department of Transportation (DOT) computer access codes to enable him to collect money judgment against company, DOT was justified in withholding name and number of moving company's bank account only insofar as disclosure would enable former customer to make unauthorized electronic transfers; if disclosure would not reveal unauthorized access information, then CLS Pub O § 87(2)(i) would not apply. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9888.

School district improperly denied request to disclose list of proposed budget reductions on ground that list was "inherently opinion, not factual information"; courts have consistently held that series of opinions, recommendations or estimates which appear in tabular, graphic or numerical format are "statistical tabulations" that must be disclosed even if they do not reflect facts or objective reality. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-10064.

278. —Telephone numbers

If telephone records are generated by school district, records could be characterized as intra-agency materials; however, in view of their content, they would apparently consist of statistical or factual information accessible under CLS Pub O § 87(2)(g)(i) unless another basis for denial applied. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7926.

Records pertaining to communications between New York City Department of Parks and Recreation and comptroller's office in relation to review of application for franchise, to extent such records consisted of statistical or factual information, agency policy or final agency determinations, were subject to disclosure. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12,337.

If records consist of factual data, they cannot be withheld pursuant to CLS Public Officers § 87(2)(g). Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4751.

Records indicating membership on board committees would constitute as factual information which is available for disclosure under Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4807.

While inter-agency or intra-agency materials may be withheld from disclosure, portions of such materials consisting of statistical or factual information, instructions to staff that affect public, final agency policy or determinations or external audits may be available; concurrently, those portions of inter-agency or intra-agency materials that are reflective of opinion, advice, recommendation and like could be withheld; list of names of companies that did not respond to department of environmental conservation survey is factual information, and therefore available. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4814.

To extent that data requested exists, despite its characterization as "draft" or "incomplete", data would nonetheless be subject to rights granted by Freedom of Information Law; while "data" prepared by health department could be properly characterized as "intra-agency material", to extent that it exists, it appears that it consists solely of statistical or factual tabulations or data that must be made available. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4860.

Where records sought were prepared by consultants and were inter-agency materials, they would be accessible or deniable, in whole or in part, depending upon their contents and, to extent that they consist of statistical or factual information, they would be available. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4889.

Even though factual information may be intertwined with opinions in inter-agency or intra-agency materials, factual portions should be available unless there is another basis for denial; similarly, to extent that records contain instructions to staff that affect public or final agency policy or determinations, they must generally be made available, unless different ground for denial applies. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4898.

With regard to CLS Pub O § 87(2)(g), even though statistical or factual information may be intertwined with opinions, statistical or factual portions, if any, as well as any policy or determinations, must be disclosed unless different ground for denial can properly be asserted. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7566.

Factual information appearing in narrative form, as well as those portions appearing in numerical or tabular form, is available under CLS Pub O § 87(2)(g)(i). Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7593.

Assuming existence (in physical or electronic form) of statistics of persons initially found guilty of criminal actions but later found to be not guilty, such records would be available under CLS Pub O § 87(2)(g)(i). Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9760.

By their nature, water readings and spatial data contained in Geographic Information System (GIS) consist of factual information which must be disclosed under CLS Pub O § 87(2)(g)(i). Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9874.

Written analyses, compilations and summaries prepared by Public Employment Relations Board (PERB) in relation to proposed "arbitrator appraisal" forms (which are completed by parties to voluntary grievance arbitration) constitute intra-agency materials to extent that they are prepared by PERB for internal purposes, but portions of those materials will likely contain "statistical or factual tabulations or data" available under CLS Pub O § 87(2)(g)(i). Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9972.

Portions of consulting report consisting of statistical or factual information must be disclosed. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12150.

Even though factual information could not be withheld under CLS Pub O § 87(2)(g), Court of Appeals in Gould v New York City Police Department, 89 NY2d 267 (1996), was careful to point out that other exceptions might justifiably be asserted regarding witness statements; court did not focus on distinction between witnesses who testified at trial and those who did not but rather on content of records and effects of disclosure. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12496.

Even though statistical or factual information may be "intertwined" with opinions, statistical or factual portions, if any, as well as any policy or determinations, would be available under Freedom of Information Law, unless different ground for denial (i.e., CLS Pub O § 87(2)(b) or (e)) could properly be asserted. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12611.

If some elements of consultants' report consisted of statistical or factual information, such material must be disclosed, irrespective of report's status as draft or non-final. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-13401.

If preliminary FEIS were prepared by village or its consultant, it would constitute intra-agency material, but those portions consisting of statistical or factual information must be disclosed, despite status of document as "preliminary." Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-13441.

School district could disclose under Freedom of Information Law (FOIL) names of board members and district employees to whom laptop computers were issued, and list of personal purposes for which computer issued to each person was used, including names of persons to whom computers were issued on which pornography was found; information sought was purely factual in nature and did not identify or allege that any particular individual engaged in appropriate use of computers. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-16407.

279. Instructions to staff (§ 87(2)(g)(ii)), generally

280. —Schools

If school district had prepared policy concerning responses to inquiries by residents, such record would be available under Freedom of Information Law since CLS Pub O § 87(2)(g)(iii) requires that agency policy be disclosed; however, if no such records existed, district would not be obliged to create or prepare new record on behalf of applicant. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8556.

School district would be required to disclose "performance improvement plan" devised by district to address parents' concerns about behavior of certain teacher, although parents' complaints were found not to be meritorious; content in performance improvement plan represented mandate that instructed teacher in question in relation to duties that he performed concerning students, and thus was accessible under CLS Pub O § 87(2)(g)(ii). Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-16429.

Insofar as board's instructions to staff affect may public or final district policy, or involve records communicated between or among school district officials or prepared for district by consultant, those portions consisting of statistical or factual information must be disclosed. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3473.

Even though factual information may be intertwined with opinions in inter-agency or intra-agency materials, factual portions should be available unless there is another basis for denial; similarly, to extent that records contain instructions to staff that affect public or final agency policy or determinations, they must generally be made available, unless different ground for denial applies. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4898.

Guidelines, criteria or policies adopted by agency must be disclosed pursuant to CLS Pub O § 87(2)(g). Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8415.

281. Final agency policy or determination (§ 87(2)(g)(iii)), generally

282. —Employment matters

Center for Animal Care and Control improperly denied request under Freedom of Information Law for disclosure of employee separation agreements, as requested records represented final agency determinations, and disclosure would result in permissible rather than unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12,347.

Employment evaluation, as inter-agency document, may be accessible or deniable, perhaps in part, depending upon stage of evaluation process and nature of evaluation itself; to extent that evaluation is reflective of final rating, it might be viewed as final agency determination accessible pursuant to freedom of information law; however, to extent that evaluation consists of opinion, suggestion or recommendation, and thus, is not final, but rather is used to assist final decision maker, it would likely be deniable. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4648.

When complaint is made against public employee allegations have not yet been or are not substantiated, complaint and records related to it that identified person against whom complaint is made may generally be withheld on ground that disclosure would result in unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4729.

Following hearing, if disciplinary action is taken and public employees were found to have engaged in misconduct, record indicating charges that were sustained or containing reprimand would be accessible as final agency determination. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4787.

If record sought is reflective of final agency disciplinary action taken against public employee, it is available, because such record would deal with matter of public concern, that being public employee's accountability for misconduct; although employee misconduct records can be characterized as intra-agency materials, if record indicates disciplinary action taken with respect to employee of school district, it would be available on ground that it consists of final agency determination. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4973.

Final rating of public employee would be available under Freedom of Information Law, assuming that any appeals had been exhausted, for it would constitute final agency determination available under CLS Pub O § 87(2)(g)(iii), particularly if monetary award was based upon rating; moreover, final rating concerning public employee's performance is relevant to that person's official duties, as well as those of supervisor who issues rating and, therefore, name of employee, final rating and name of supervisor who made rating would be available under Freedom of Information Law since disclosure would not result in unwarranted invasion of personal privacy of either employee or supervisor. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7633.

Counseling memo issued to employee of Department of Transportation after allegation of misconduct could likely be withheld from disclosure under CLS Pub O § 87(2)(g) since counseling memo is essentially warning rather than conclusion reflective of finding of misconduct and, therefore, does not constitute final agency determination. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9383.

Component of employee performance evaluation consisting of final rating, i.e., "good", "excellent", "average", etc. would be available for disclosure under FOIL, assuming that any appeals have been exhausted, for it would constitute final agency determination available under CLS Pub O § 87(2)(g)(iii), particularly if monetary award were based on rating; moreover, final rating concerning public employee's performance is relevant to that person's official duties and therefore would not result in unwarranted invasion of personal privacy if disclosed. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12396.

Record indicating determination to impose discipline or sanction on public officer would be accessible to public; disclosure would constitute permissible invasion of privacy, and it would reflect final agency determination accessible under CLS Pub O § 87(2)(g)(iii). Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3902.

283. —Environmental matters

Freedom of Information Law cannot justify denial of records consisting of correspondence between county and city homeowners concerning orders to abate lead paint problems based upon fact that records were compiled for law enforcement purposes because investigations were completed, violations were found, and orders were issued to abate problems; also, notice of violation or order to correct hazardous condition would be reflected of final agency determination. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4772.

Agency's failure to mail accessible records to applicant who pays or offers to pay appropriate fees for copying and postage would constitute constructive denial of access to records; documents explaining why certain room was sealed due to presence of asbestos before removing records would likely be available because it is decision that affects public or final agency policy or determination. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4789.

284. —Finances, generally

285. — —Audits; auditors

An internal audit of a radio station operated by the state university is probably available as statistical or factual data or as a final determination under Pub O § 87(2)(g). Comm on Open Govt FOIL-AO 3064.

Where auditor's findings result in agency action and agency determination, whether violations were improperly found by inspector or omitted by inspector, this is final agency determination that affects property owner; if disciplinary action is later taken as result of audits, record indicating disciplinary action would be available because it would constitute final agency determination. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4776.

286. —Police matters

Police officers' admission of their role in off-duty incident which led to misconduct charges, and their acceptance of discipline, was essentially reflective of settlement with their employer, and thus record indicating terms of settlement constituted "final agency determination" under Freedom of Information Law; there is no distinction in substance between finding of guilt after hearing and admission of guilt as means to avoid such proceeding. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-10149.

287. —Prisons; prisoners

Rules and directives issued by Department of Correctional Services applicable to inmates concerning religious mail, overseas correspondence mailing privileges and receipt of religious newspapers from foreign countries, are subject to access pursuant to CLS Public Officers Law § 87(2)(g)(iii). Comm on Open Govt FOIL-AO-3536.

While local conditional release commission might in some instances have authority to take action during executive session, record indicating nature of its action, i.e., to grant or deny conditional release, could not justifiably be withheld under Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3784.

288. —Schools, teachers and the like

Records of performance appraisals of teachers under new program under which new or different kinds of appraisals of teachers were prepared could be characterized as "intra-agency materials" within meaning of CLS Pub O § 87(2)(g); however, approved proposal and criteria used in evaluating performance would be reflective of final agency determination or indication of school district's policy that was applied to teacher or teachers in evaluating performance and, if that was so, those aspects of records would be available under CLS Pub O § 87(2)(g)(iii). Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7633.

289. —Taxes

Imposition of penalty for failure to pay real property taxes would indicate that final agency determination has been made, and thus record so indicating would be available under CLS Pub O § 87(2)(g)(iii). Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12549.

Single record or report may be both accessible and deniable in part under Freedom of Information Law; therefore, agency has obligation to review records sought, in their entirety, to determine which portions, if any, may be justifiably withheld; similarly, to extent that records contain instructions to staff that affect public or final agency policy or determinations, they must generally be made available. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4640.

Explanation of town board's decision would likely be reflective of final agency determination and be accessful under Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4727.

By-laws adopted by community board or its constitution may be characterized as "intra-agency materials; nonetheless, they represent final agency policy and, are available for disclosure. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4807.

Settlement and contract could likely be characterized as "intra-agency" materials; however, those records are reflective of final agency determination and would be accessible on that basis. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4861.

Even though factual information may be intertwined with opinions in inter-agency or intra-agency materials, factual portions should be available unless there is another basis for denial; similarly, to extent that records contain instructions to staff that affect public or final agency policy or determinations, they must generally be made available, unless different ground for denial applies. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4898.

Only situation in which opinion of town ethics board is accessible under Freedom of Information Law involves case in which town board clearly adopts opinion as its own, thereby making opinion final determination, and finds that officer or employee engaged in misconduct. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8922.

CLS Pub O § 87(2)(g) is intended to insure that any so-called "secret law," such as policy on which agency relies in carrying out its duties, be made available to public. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12243.

Insofar as documents exist, they would fall within scope of Freedom of Information Law, irrespective of stage of project; thus, contention that record is "predecisional," "non-final" or that it may relate to matter that is in "the pre-planning stage" would not represent end of analysis of rights of access or agency's obligation to review contents of record. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12707.

Assuming that data in question exists, its characterization by agency as "uncertified," "draft" or "preliminary" is not determinative of rights of access under Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12711.

290. Examination questions and answers (§ 87(2)(h)), generally

291. —School matters

Freedom of Information Law does not govern rights of access to standardized tests in possession of State Education Department; however, copies of standardized tests which are filed with Commissioner of Education following release of test results are subject to rights of access under FOIL. Comm on Open Govt FOIL-AO-3489.

Request to inspect and copy all first-year student answers to particular midterm examination administered by law school could be denied pursuant to CLS Pub O § 87(2)(h) if there was intent or possibility that questions used in examination would be used in future, since disclosure of questions or answers in that circumstance would diminish or perhaps nullify utility or efficacy of examination. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7510.

If examination question is to be given in future, question and answer may be denied; if examination question has been finally administered and will no longer be used, question and answer are accessible. Committee on Open Government FOIL-AO-3820.

292. Computer access codes (§ 87(2)(i))

Distinction between computer codes and computer access codes is that former may merely serve as non-verbal indication of items of information, while latter are used to gain access to information stored in computer; intent of CLS Pub O § 87(2)(i) is to enable agency to withhold computer access codes that would enable individuals to gain unauthorized access to data stored within computer. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9249.

Exception involving computer access codes in CLS Pub O § 87(2)(i) is intended to preclude disclosure of codes that would permit unauthorized access to information stored electronically. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12559.

"Employer ID Number", firm's federal taxpayer and workers' compensation identification numbers, and state unemployment insurance registration number, as provided on Empire Zone application forms, should be exempt from disclosure under CLS Pub O § 87(2)(i) as "computer access codes," even though such numbers might not have been created for purpose of being access codes. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12890.

Bank account or ID number could justifiably be withheld under CLS Pub O § 87(2)(i) if disclosure of bank account number could enable person to gain access to or in any way alter or adversely affect agency's electronic information or electronic information systems. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-13143.

CLS Pub O § 87(2)(i) would serve as basis for denial of request for e-mail addresses of New York City Housing Authority employees. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-13356.

F. Judicial Review

293. In general

When determination is made following appeal made pursuant to Freedom of Information Law, that determination must be considered as final and binding. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4836.

Absent clear indication of legislative intent to require continued confidentiality, Freedom of Information Law, as matter of public policy, supersedes statute that appears to exempt records from disclosure; nevertheless, this issue can be resolved only by court. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4844.

Inmate of correctional facility having submitted checks to cover cost of copies of tape recordings of hearings at the correctional facility, and who never received such information was entitled to appeal the denial in accordance with CLS Public Officers Law § 89(4)(a). Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-6160 (1990).

Failure to inform person denied access to records of right to appeal enables that person to seek judicial review of denial. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7554.

294. Article 78 proceedings, generally

If appeal from denial of access to records is denied, in whole or in part, next procedural step would involve commencement of Article 78 proceeding in New York State Supreme Court against agency which denied request; request for advisory opinion from Committee on Open Government should be made prior to commencement of Article 78 proceeding, for it is policy of Committee not to comment on issues arising under Freedom of Information Law which are subject of ongoing litigation. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4651.

Under Freedom of Information Law, person seeking records is required to exhaust his or her administrative remedies prior to commencing Article 78 proceeding in State Supreme Court. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4724.

When records are denied or constructively denied appeal, CLS Civil Practice Rule Article 78 proceeding may be commenced but only when administrative remedies are properly exhausted. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4797.

If an appeal from denial of records has not been answered within statutory time period, administrative remedies have been exhausted and challenge could be initiated to denial under CLS Civil Practice Rules Article 78. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4840.

When appeal of denial of records is denied, next step is to seek judicial review of denial by means of commencement of proceeding under CLS CPLR Article 78; in the alternative, rather than initiating lawsuit, it might be preferable to direct requests to other sources which may be able to provide records sought. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4902.

If individual chooses not to initiate Article 78 proceeding within 4 months after agency's denial of his or her appeal, choice not to do so should not forever preclude that person from seeking records since there may be changes in circumstances, judicial precedents that could put issue in different light, acquisition of records from other sources that might diminish agency's capacity to justify denial or change in one's financial ability to initiate lawsuit and, therefore, agency cannot in every instance deny second request on basis of mootness. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9438.

295. Attorney fees

Absent any formula or decision specifically describing how one might demonstrate that he "substantially prevailed" and that records at issue are "beneficial to the public", for purposes of obtaining attorneys' fees, nature of records sought, rights of access to them and rationale for agency's denial would represent key factors in determining whether such fees may be awarded to petitioner. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4443.

There is no penalty per se for failure to comply with Freedom of Information Law; however, law enables court to award reasonable attorney's fees under certain circumstances to person denied access who "substantially prevails" in court. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4723.

In order for a petitioner to recover attorney's fees upon the filing of an appeal following the rejection of his request for copies, court must find that the record involved was of clearly significant interest to the general public and that the agency lacked a reasonable basis in law for withholding the record. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-6281 (1990).

296. Burden of proof

Unlike most Article 78 proceedings in which burden of proof is on public, burden of proof in Article 78 proceeding brought under FOIL is on agency that denied access. Comm On Open Gov't FOIL-AO-3981.

If Article 78 proceeding is commenced, agency has burden of proof that records sought fall within scope of grounds for denial listed in Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4723.

Agency must meet burden of proof imposed by Freedom of Information Law by demonstrating harmful effects that would arise from disclosure of records; since some aspects in policies or regulations of police department relating to political activities, demonstrations and police surveillance may reveal criminal investigative techniques or procedures, nondisclosure to public would be justified because such information would enable potential law breakers to evade detection. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4903.

When denial of request under Freedom of Information Law is challenged in court, agency denying access has burden of proving that records withheld in fact fall within one or more of grounds for denial. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7538.

Under CLS Pub O § 89(5), when commercial enterprise seeks guarantee that agency to which its records are submitted will not disclose records, and agency confers confidentiality and upholds guarantee of confidentiality following appeal by person whose request for record has been denied, agency has burden of proof in its defense of denial in any ensuing proceeding commenced for review of denial. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12656.

To continue protection accorded by CLS Pub O § 89(5), agency must believe that it can prove to court that disclosure would, in fact, cause substantial injury to competitive position of commercial enterprise that submitted record; if agency does not believe that it can meet that burden of proof or does not have sufficient knowledge or information to ascertain merits of commercial entity's contentions, it must indicate that request to person seeking record will be granted, in which case, following exhaustion of administrative remedies, commercial entity that submitted record has 15 days to commence proceeding for purpose of demonstrating to court that disclosure would cause substantial injury to its competitive position. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12656.

II. Application To Particular Documents

297. Accidents, generally

298. —Motor vehicle accidents

Disclosure of copy of blood alcohol test administered following motor vehicle accident would result in unwarranted invasion of personal privacy if charges against individual had not yet been determined or if charges were dismissed in his or her favor, but disclosure would not result in unwarranted invasion of personal privacy if individual pleaded guilty on basis of test in question and was sentenced. Comm on Open Govt FOIL-AO 3098.

As to request for copies of photographs of motor vehicle accident scene taken by investigating police officers, where no charges were filed against driver or pedestrians involved, if such records are part of motor vehicle accident report, they are available pursuant to CLS Pub O § 66-a, but if they are not considered part of such report, provisions of Freedom of Information Law apply, no grounds for denial under § 87(2) of such Law apply to photographs since investigation has been terminated and requester is pedestrians' attorney and, depending upon its contents, investigative report may also be partially or entirely disclosed. Comm On Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4545.

If village or village manager maintained copy of police report pertaining to automobile accident involving village manager, that report was subject to disclosure by village to extent required by law; if village and/or village manager did not maintain copy of accident report, report could be sought either from police department that prepared it or from Department of Motor Vehicles. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7864.

Unless disclosure would interfere with criminal investigation, accident reports prepared by police agencies are available under both Freedom of Information Law and CLS Pub O § 66-a. Assuming that village maintained record indicating odometer reading of damaged vehicle at time of accident involving village manager, as well as bill of sale or similar or related records reflective of nature of new vehicle and expenditure of public moneys, those records would be available under Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7864.

With respect to request for Department of Motor Vehicle (DMV) records for school bus drivers relating to moving violations and accidents, portions of records identifiable to individual drivers which included their ages could be withheld as unwarranted invasion of personal privacy under CLS Pub O §§ 87(2)(b), 89(2)(b) and 89(2-a), but if driver's age appeared on accident report available from DMV under Freedom of Information Law and CLS Pub O § 66-a, driver's age would be available from other records maintained by DMV containing equivalent information; furthermore, if ages of bus drivers could be withheld, but age was of primary interest, drivers' names could be withheld from records prior to disclosure. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-11978.

County police department improperly denied request for motor vehicle accident reports on ground that requestor was not "interested party" under CLS Pub O § 66-a; based on direction give by Court of Appeals, requestor's status as member of public provides him or her with rights of access to records under both CLS Pub O § 66-a and Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12302.

Records maintained by or for Department of Transportation would be subject to rights conferred by Freedom of Information Law, even though they might not be subject to discovery or use in litigation due to 23 USCS § 409, since they may be available for other purposes so long as applicants do not seek records for any use precluded by § 409. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12395.

Rights of access to certain state Department of Transportation (NYSDOT) records involving listings of safety deficient locations (SDLs) and priority investigation locations (PILs) for roadways in Capital District would be determined by Freedom of Information Law, and particularly CLS Pub O § 87(2)(g), where applicant could demonstrate that records at issue would not be used for purpose prohibited by federal law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12395.

Unless disclosure would interfere with criminal investigation, accident report would be available to any person, including one who had no involvement in accident. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12917.

There is nothing in CLS Pub O § 66-a that would authorize agency, such as town, to withhold details identifying those involved in accident, irrespective of their ages. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12917.

If there were no arrest or charge in motor vehicle accident, and CLS Family Ct Act § 784 did not apply, but teenage parties appeared in Family Court nonetheless, CLS Family Ct Act § 166 might be pertinent; adult requester who was involved in such accident should suggest that his request to inspect Family Court records would not be "indiscriminate" but rather would reflect his legal interest in matter. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12917.

There was no basis under Freedom of Information Law or CLS Pub O § 66-a for county police department to withhold, from accident report, details of police officer's notes and statement of driver of other car (who was arrested, but subsequently "unarrested," on DWI). Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-16466.

Requests for city pothole maps by attorneys or law firms involve activities that those persons or entities carry out in their capacities as professionals, not as private citizens, and thus city department of transportation had no basis for denying access to such records on grounds of personal privacy exception. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12866.

299. Ambulance service

Nondisclosure of taped transmissions was not justified on basis of CLS County § 308(4) in that such transmissions, which consisted of dispatcher's instructions to volunteer ambulance personnel to take certain route in transporting particular person on particular date, were not 911 calls made by persons seeking emergency assistance; thus, rights of access were determined by Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-10270.

Records of ambulance service relating to accidents and vehicle maintenance would be available for disclosure, assuming that service were deemed "agency" for purposes of Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12463.

Emergency call, particularly when sirens or flashing lights are used, is event of public nature, and thus when ambulance travels to its destination, that destination is or can be known to those in vicinity of event, and disclosure of address or brief description of event would not likely constitute unwarranted invasion of personal privacy; also, presence of emergency vehicle does not necessarily indicate that there is medical problem since those vehicles are dispatched for any number of reasons, many of which do not relate to medical event. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12608.

While volunteer ambulance corporation could deny access to portions of records identifying those to whom medical services were rendered, their ages and descriptions of their medical problems or conditions, because disclosure of name coupled with those details would reveal personal and somewhat intimate aspect of individual's life, other information (such as locations of calls) had to be disclosed; emergency call, particularly when sirens or flashing lights are used, is public event, and destination of fire truck or ambulance is or can be known to those in vicinity of event. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3508.

300. Animals; animal control, generally

Disclosure of dog license records maintained by department of health, concerning dogs at certain address, would result in permissible rather than unwarranted invasion of personal privacy unless such lists would be used for commercial or fundraising purposes. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-10244.

Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Animals is private corporation not subject to the Freedom of Information Law; nevertheless, insofar as it served as dog warden under contract with town, records prepared for purpose of doing so (including records relating to its investigation of barking dog incident) fell within coverage of Freedom of Information Law and town was required to either direct it to disclose such records or obtain records in order to review and disclose them to extent required by law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12066.

301. Appointment books

To the extent that requested appointment book entries contain reference to communications between a town official and the town attorney, who was present for the purpose of providing legal advice and acting in his or her capacity as an attorney, such information may be withheld under § 87(2)(a) of the Freedom of Information Law, but if an attorney was present, but not acting in his or her capacity as legal counsel to the town official, or if a third party was present who did not maintain a privileged relationship with the official, entries are subject to disclosure. While an appointment record or similar document might be characterized as "intra-agency materials," its contents would constitute "factual" data required to be made available under § 87(2)(g)(i) of Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Govt FOIL-AO 3032.

Appointment calendars of government officials are "agency records" subject to rights of access under Freedom of Information Law, as they are kept, held and produced by staff of governmental official, presumably in performance of their official duties, and Freedom of Information Law does not condition determination of whether or not document is "record" upon particular use of records by government official. Comm on Open Govt FOIL-AO-4382.

That entry in mayor's appointment calendar does not relate to transaction of official business or expenditure of public money does not necessarily remove it from scope of public rights of access or into protected "zone of privacy"; it is nature of entry that must be considered in ascertaining whether disclosure would constitute permissible or unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. References in mayor's appointment calendar to purely personal activities, such as child's birthday, family gathering or medical matter, can be withheld from disclosure under Freedom of Information Law as unwarranted invasion of personal privacy; however, in those instances in which mayor may influence or be influenced in that person's capacity as mayor, notwithstanding absence of expenditure of public moneys, contention that disclosure would constitute unwarranted invasion of personal privacy would appear to be unsubstantial in many cases. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9191.

302. Consumer affairs

Regarding request for list of heating oil dealers used in Department of Consumer Affairs' monthly heating oil price survey, privacy provisions of FOIL cannot justifiably be asserted to deny such request, because information sought does not pertain to "natural persons", nor does it involve personal information. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4079.

Disclosure of schedule of fines prepared by adjudication division of city department of consumer affairs could not be withheld under CLS Pub O § 87(2)(e); contrary conclusion would, by analogy, permit withholding of disclosure of both sentencing guidelines and public court records reflective of penalties, fines or sentences imposed on lawbreakers. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7533.

County water authority had no basis to deny town's request for water readings pertaining to water authority's customers residing in town. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9874.

Freedom of Information Law did not apply to request made in 1995 for records concerning particular realtor in 1983, where Division of Licensing Services had destroyed real estate records dated prior to 1987 according to its scheduled rate of destruction; under circumstances, destruction of records sought was not illegal. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9920.

303. Financial matters, generally

304. —Audits and budgets, generally

305. — —Computerized records

A computer printout of the trial balance of a city is accessible providing it can be produced under existing computer programs. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-2999.

List of estimated revenues and expenditures submitted by highway department pursuant to county charter is accessible under Freedom of Information Law to extent that it consists of statistical or factual tabulations or data. Comm on Open Govt FOIL-AO 3021.

An internal audit of a radio station operated by the state university is probably available as statistical or factual data or as a final determination under Pub O § 87(2)(g). Comm on Open Govt FOIL-AO 3064.

Even though figures prepared in budget process may be considered as estimates or subject to change, they constitute "statistical or factual tabulations" accessible under FOIL, whether or not action has been taken with respect to those figures. Comm On Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4027.

While inter-agency or intra-agency materials may be withheld, pursuant to § 87[2][g] of FOIL, to extent that first draft budget documents consist of "statistical or factual tabulations or data", they should be made available. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4060.

There is no ground for denial appearing in CLS Pub Off § 87(2) that could be asserted to deny access to village budget. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4436.

Books of account, vouchers and other records relating to expenditures by agencies are generally available under FOIL. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-6137 (1990).

List of proposed budget reductions, consisting mainly of job eliminations and savings that would result, was accessible under Freedom of Information Law to extent that they contained statistical or factual tabulations or data; however, insofar as records consisted of narrative expressions of opinions or recommendations, they could be withheld. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-10011.

Irrespective of its characterization as "draft," HUD audit of county's "Revolving Loan Fund" fell within coverage of Freedom of Information Law as soon as it came into county's possession. Portions of HUD audit of county's "Revolving Loan Fund," which were identifiable to individuals and included recommendations or opinions regarding their ethical conduct, could be withheld to extent that no final determination concerning their conduct had been reached, to prevent unwarranted invasion of personal privacy; likewise, to extent that allegations or charges were found to be without merit, such records could be withheld. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-10050.

Town was required to disclose budget and budget-related records even though they constituted "inter-agency or intra-agency" materials, to extent that they contained "statistical or factual tabulations or data" available under CLS Pub O § 87(2)(g)(i) or represented "external audit" available under § 87(2)(g)(iv); furthermore, portion of requested material was same in substance as that required to be maintained by town supervisor and made available under CLS Town §§ 29(4) and 119(1). Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-10101.

Village was obliged to disclose inter-agency records relating to audit by state Comptroller insofar as materials sought constituted statistical or factual information. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-10108.

While State Insurance Fund is not typical of commercial enterprises, it carries out many of its duties as entity in competition with private firms in insurance industry, and thus it can be characterized as commercial entity, and portions of its annual budget that fall within scope of CLS Pub O § 87(2)(d) may be withheld under Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12190.

306. —Bank records

Bank statements and reconciliation records from the bail account of a town justice were subject to rights of access under the Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-6247 (1990).

Bank account numbers for town might be properly withheld from disclosure under CLS Pub O § 87(2)(i) since disclosure might enable person to gain access to information without authority to do so, or to shift, add, delete or alter information—i.e., to make "electronic transfers." Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9321.

Town was required to permit applicant to look at back of check paid by town to company for repairs to town's fire trucks where applicant for record sought to apply lien against company and wanted name of company's bank; CLS Pub O § 87(2)(b) did not apply as company was not natural person. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9454.

With respect to Freedom of Information Law (FOIL) request for village police department's monthly checking account statements and checks, which were missing and therefore not in physical custody of village, if duplicates or equivalent records were maintained on behalf of village at bank used by village, they would be village records subject to FOIL disclosure, and even if records maintained by bank were not "agency records" it was incumbent on village to acquire such records from bank to extent necessary to comply with requirements of Local Government Records Law (CLS Art & Cult Affrs Art 57-A). Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12001.

307. —Bids for public contracts

If agency seeks bids regarding purchase of particular goods or services, and request is made for bid prior to date for final submission of bids, bids might justifiably be withheld on ground that disclosure would impair present or imminent contract award; however, any bid that results in contract between agency and firm that supplies goods or services is available to public under Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Govt FOIL-AO-3432.

Section 87[2][g] of FOIL cannot be asserted to withhold proposals, bids and related documentation submitted by firm which is not "agency" since such records cannot be characterized as "inter-agency or intra-agency materials". Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4088.

Where public bid opening has taken place, records reflecting outcome of bid should be available. Comm On Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4533.

Information on previous contracts concerning printing of Queens College Graduate Bulletin should be made available under FOIL where bids were being solicited for a current edition. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-6150 (1990).

Bids or proposals are available for disclosure after contract has been awarded, and, in view of requirements of Freedom of Information Law, successful bidder has no reasonable expectation of not having its bid open to public. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7593.

While there may be valid basis for withholding various information contained in or related to proposals submitted to city pursuant to request for proposals, policy of withholding names of submitters of proposals, or bids, until contract is awarded is inconsistent with Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8937.

Names of persons or firms who respond to agency's solicitation of bids, requests for proposals or requests for information must be disclosed, so long as deadline for submission of bids, proposals or responses has been reached. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9299.

It was doubtful that county could deny request for disclosure of several proposals received by county after it issued request for proposals for contractors to manage several county golf courses after county selected single firm to manage golf courses, notwithstanding that contract with that firm was still under negotiation and was subject to approval by county legislature. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9751.

Disclosure of letter of intent would "impair" present or imminent contract awards, and thus denial of request for access was consistent with Freedom of Information Law, where contents of letter were known by and in possession of parties (New York Stock Exchange and NYC Economic Development Corporation (EDC)), and letter's contents were not known to other parties involved or potentially involved in negotiations regarding project (construction of new stock exchange). Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12727.

Financial disclosure statements filed by certain county officials, although not specifically exempted from disclosure by state or federal statute, may be withheld from disclosure when disclosure would constitute an unwarranted invasion of personal privacy; public employees enjoy lesser degree of privacy than others, since public employees are generally required to be more accountable than others; public inspection may be had of information regarding sources of income, assets and liabilities of public officials required by local law to provide financial disclosure statements. Committee on Open Government FOIL-AO-3842.

Records reflecting federal money provided to town and amount of money expended therefrom are available under FOIL, and identity of recipient programs of sharing account is likewise available. Comm On Open Gov't FOIL-AO-3864.

Bills, contracts, vouchers and similar records reflective of expenditure of public monies by town of South Hampton are accessible under Freedom of Information Law, for none of grounds for denial contained in CLS Pub O § 87(2) could justifiably be asserted. Comm On Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4520.

Records of expenditures, or budget allocations by agencies, as well as books of account, ledgers and similar documents, are available under FOIL. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-6151 (1990).

Request for disclosure of salary of a particular employee of the Gowanda Psychiatric Center can not be denied under FOIL. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-6170 (1990).

Bills, vouchers, contracts, receipts and similar records reflective of payments made or expenses incurred by agency or payments made to agency's staff or agents are generally available for disclosure under Freedom of Information Law, for none of grounds for denial would be applicable in most instances. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7508.

Although meetings of Syracuse Financial Plan Commission are not subject to Open Meetings Law and although commission itself is not agency, it clearly carries out its duties for City of Syracuse and, therefore, records that it prepares are subject to Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8300.

Records maintained by county commissioner of finance while acting in his capacity as public administrator fall within coverage of Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9650.

Specific information concerning value of assets of former county legislator could be withheld on ground that disclosure would result in unwarranted invasion of personal privacy; typically, financial disclosure statements must be disclosed insofar as they indicate sources of one's assets, but may be withheld insofar as they indicate value of assets. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9826.

Application of Freedom of Information Law to copies of checks written by owner of company that leased space at town facility, to determine how much rent was paid to town, depended on relationship or agreement between owner and his company and town. Profit/loss statements of town facilities are available under Freedom of Information Law, unless grounds for denial exist under CLS Pub O § 87(2). Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12000.

If village, having received state grant to help pay for improvement projects, maintains records (e.g., books of account, ledgers and similar documentation) as to where and how grant money was used, such records are accessible under Freedom of Information Law unless they involve personal information which, if disclosed, would constitute unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12038.

Municipality must provide photocopies of financial disclosure statements upon request and payment of appropriate fee, notwithstanding local enactment purporting to allow inspection only. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12169.

In context of Freedom of Information Law, particularly considering fact that bank account numbers may serve as codes used to make deposits, withdrawals or engage in other financial transactions, disclosure of both sides of check made out to town by property tax payer would result in unwarranted invasion of personal privacy since it would reveal payer's personal bank account number. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-16604.

308. Grant programs

309. —New York City financial matters

Section 2603(k) of the New York City Charter could not be cited as authority to deny access to financial disclosure reports of the New York City Conflicts of Interest Board in that such section was not an exemption granted by Section 87(2)(a). Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-6106 (1990).

Ruling issued by New York City Department of Finance was subject to disclosure under the Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-6238 (1990).

310. —School finances

Virtually all statistical or factual information concerning school finances or expenditures, including the salaries of every employee of the school district, are accessible under the Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Govt FOIL-AO 3023.

Contract between school district and superintendent does not fall within exemption for records which, if disclosed, would impair collective bargaining negotiations since, as general matter, contract into which unit of government enters must be made available to public once it has been approved. Committee on Open Government FOIL-AO-3333.

Budget item line draft worksheet prepared by school district could be characterized as "inter-agency" material; nonetheless to extent that it contains statistical or financial tabulations or data, it should be made available. Comm on Open Govt FOIL-AO-3689.

Bills, receipts, contracts, cancelled checks and other documents concerning the expenditure of public money maintained by a school district constitute "records" subject to rights of access conferred by the Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-6245 (1990).

Cost of tuition contract for high school students from neighboring areas could not be withheld on basis that disclosure would compromise negotiations for future since contract represented culmination of negotiations and did not relate to "present or imminent contract awards." Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8582.

Records relating to school district audit, insofar as they consist of statistical or factual information, must be disclosed. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12185.

As soon as bills are received by school district, they constitute "records" subject to rights of access conferred by Freedom of Information Law, irrespective of whether board has paid or otherwise acted on them. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2195.

311. —Specific financial expenditures, generally

312. — —Telephone records

Records related to non-business long-distance calls made on town telephone is available for inspection to extent that disclosure would not result in unwarranted invasion of personal privacy; thus, portion of record which identifies party called may be deleted as unwarranted invasion of personal privacy whereas portion of record indicating town employee who placed call can be disclosed since it is warranted invasion of privacy. Comm On Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4028.

When public officer or employee uses the telephone in course of his or her official duties, bills involving use of telephone are relevant to performance of that person's official duties; thus, disclosure of such bills will not result in unwarranted invasion of personal privacy with respect to public officer or employee. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9443.

Records which reflected reimbursement to county by county executive for personal calls made on county telephones, if such records existed, were accessible under Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-10270.

313. — —Travel expenses

Travel vouchers and other similar claims for reimbursement are available under Public Officers Law § 87(2)(g)(i). Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-2837.

Time and mileage expenses claimed by named individual for commission of town-directed duty is available since, as general matter, records indicating expenditure of public funds are accessible, including travel vouchers or claims for reimbursement; records of attendance, including hours or days claimed for sick leave, are accessible. Committee on Open Government FOIL-AO-3838.

Contracts, bills, travel vouchers, receipts and similar records reflective of expenses incurred by agency or payments made to agency's staff must generally be disclosed since none of grounds for denial could appropriately be asserted to withhold those kinds of records. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8511.

Attorneys' bills submitted to agency in connection with a lawsuit are subject to disclosure under the Freedom of Information Law, except for portions of the bills containing information that is confidential under the attorney-client relationship. Amount of the fees paid by a board of fire commissioners in defending a lawsuit may be obtained under Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-2994.

Copies of canceled checks paid to town by city department of water supply are subject to access under Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Govt FOIL-AO-3481.

Records of moneys paid and received by attorney or law firm for services rendered to client are not privileged and consequently although identifying details in bills might be withheld, numbers indicated amounts expended are accessible despite assertion of attorney client privilege (CLS SPLR § 4503). Committee on Open Government FOIL-AO-3816.

Disclosure of statistics indicating average salary and other payments and fringe benefits of city police officer was not responsive to request for breakdown of cost of mayor's police protection from its inception to present. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7930.

Power authority is required to disclose names of consultants that it has retained, as well as records indicating payments to consultants. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9299.

Invoices for textbooks purchased from publishing companies for sale in college bookstore operated by community college's Faculty Student Association (FSA) would be accessible under Freedom of Information Law, even if FSA were not deemed "agency," as (1) such invoices were college records, and (2) since there was no commercial bookseller involved in collecting information or running bookstore, no commercial enterprise was involved and thus there was no possibility that disclosure would cause substantial injury to competitive position of any entity. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12072.

Where request is made for the identities and addresses of persons receiving grants under a federal housing rehabilitation program, as well as the amounts of such grants, such material may be deemed exempt from disclosure if disclosure would permit the public to determine the general income level of grant recipients, and disclosure of similar information regarding grants awarded in prior years does not require that current year information be made available. Comm on Open Govt FOIL-AO 3067.

Disclosure that permits public to determine general income level of participant in grant program would likely constitute unwarranted invasion of personal privacy, for such disclosure would indicate that particular individual has income or economic means below certain level. Comm on Open Govt FOIL-AO-3427.

314. Fires, firefighters, fire districts and the like

If fire district had copies of "fuel inventory forms" and records of mileage on vehicles, such items had to be disclosed on request under Freedom of Information Law, because no grounds for denial applied. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12,345.

Record indicating whether or not fire was reported by landlord on particular date at specific location is available from New York City Housing Authority under FOIL. Comm On Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4018.

Portions of reports prepared by fire departments and emergency squads which gave names of volunteer firemen present at scene and locations of calls or addresses could be disclosed under Freedom of Information Law since emergency call, particularly when sirens or flashing lights are used, is event of public nature and when fire truck or ambulance travels to its destination, that destination is or can be known to those in vicinity of event. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7532.

Records indicating 911 "dispatch times" for fires do not fall within CLS County § 308 former (5), which pertains to recording or transcript of 911 calls, and must be disclosed as "factual data" under CLS Pub O § 87(2)(g)(i). Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9984.

In context of city business, matters would be "confidential" only on rare occasions; those situations might involve information that is derived from personnel records used to evaluate continuing employment or promotion of police officers or professional firefighters under CLS Civ R § 50-a, or they might involve attorney work product or records subject to attorney-client privilege. City ordinance stating that certain city employees could not discuss or divulge "any sensitive matter or information that if disclosed would disrupt the efficient and effective operation of the City government or would impair the public officer's close working relationship with the Mayor" stifles free speech in manner that has been found to be unconstitutional. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12558.

315. Guns; gun permits

An approved pistol license application is a public record accessible to any person. Comm on Open Govt FOIL-AO 3046.

While it is clear that approved application for pistol license is public record, CLS Penal § 400.00 does not state that other records relating to licensing, suspension or revocation process must be kept confidential or may be obtained only by means of court order, with exception of fingerprint records. Records pertaining to suspension of pistol permit might be exempt from disclosure pursuant to CLS Pub O § 87(2)(b) if records identified confidential source, such as neighbor or employer; might be exempt from disclosure pursuant to CLS Pub O § 87(2)(e) as records compiled for law enforcement purposes; and, might be exempt from disclosure pursuant to CLS Pub O § 87(2)(f), which permits withholding to extent that disclosure would endanger life or safety of any person. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7516.

There was no law that required preparation of policies or procedures concerning restricted pistol licenses; thus, if no such records had been prepared, neither Freedom of Information Law nor any other statute would require they be created and, therefore, Freedom of Information Law and similar or related statutes would be inapplicable. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7918.

In regard to request to "physically see approved gun license applications" for persons living in several specifically stated zip codes, where police department did not maintain records sought by means of address or zip code, it would not be required by Freedom of Information Law to review all of approved applications individually in order to locate those pertaining to licensees within those zip codes. Police department could not deny request to see all approved gun licenses on basis that records were too voluminous, and could not require that applicant request records by names of licensees, where applicant's prior request to see approved applications for persons within certain zip codes was denied because department did not organize its records by address or zip code; applicant could not know names without seeing records, and conditions set forth by department effectively pre-

With regard to pistol license applications, numerous aspects of approved application could be withheld pursuant to CLS Pub O § 87(2)(b), such as personal physical characteristics, social security number, character references, information regarding health and mental condition, alcoholism and drug use, and similar intimate personal information. Also, various information must be disclosed under Freedom of Information Law such as date and county of issue, expiration date, name and title of licensing officer and applicable restrictions since such information does not constitute intimate or personal details regarding licensee. Further, portion of pistol license application describing pistol or revolver might be withheld under CLS Pub O § 87(2)(f) based on contention that disclosure would endanger life or safety of licensees and potentially others as well. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8902.

While numerous aspects of approved application for gun permit can be withheld under CLS Pub O §§ 87(2)(b) and 89(2)(b) (such as fingerprints, social security number, character references, information regarding health and mental condition, alcoholism and drug use), other information must be disclosed (such as date and county of issue, expiration date, name and title of licensing officer, and applicable license restrictions). Notations regarding particular firearms contained in application for pistol license could likely be withheld due to considerations of safety and security. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9771.

CLS Penal § 400.00(5), which requires disclosure of address, is not satisfied by production of licensee's town and zip code only; natural and obvious meaning of "address" means street address and not only zip code, and nothing in Freedom of Information Law may be cited to withhold that information. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-10150.

316. Insurance

Information reported pursuant to CLS Ins § 336 by insurers to agencies concerning investigations of fires would be considered as exempted from disclosure by statute. Comm on Open Govt FOIL-AO-3571.

Policyholder of State Insurance Fund could be entitled to obtain from Fund list of other policyholders and their addresses, since (1) prohibition against disclosure found within CLS Workers Compensation Law § 98 would not be applicable to list of names and addresses of policyholders, (2) list would not be used for commercial or fund-raising purposes, and (3) provisions concerning privacy in Freedom of Information Law would not be applicable to list of firms or corporations. Comm on Open Govt FOIL-AO-3707.

Insurance policies maintained by school district on district employees should be made available under Freedom of Information Law, since policies are equivalent of contracts, which have always been accessible to public. Comm on Open Govt FOIL-AO-3735.

Insurance policies and contractual agreements between municipal fire district and insurers are available under Freedom of Information Law. 1986 Committee on Open Government FOIL-AO-4210.

Any agreement or contract between city and its insurance carrier would be available under Freedom of Information Law, for none of grounds for denial would apply. Aggregate or statistical data concerning claims under health insurance policies issued to city employees would be available under Freedom of Information Law, so long as it did not include personally identifiable information. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7623.

Life insurance policy kept for former elected official is not subject to Freedom of Information Law, and village is not required to obtain copy of such policy if it did not have (and never had) policy or copy of it. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-10042.

While State Insurance Fund is not typical of commercial enterprises, in many respects it carries out duties as entity in competition with private firms in insurance industry, and thus CLS Pub O § 87(2)(d) would serve as potential bases to deny access to marketing plan developed by State Insurance Fund. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-10225.

Disclosure of employers' policy expiration dates, even without name of insurance carrier, would cause competitive harm to New York State Insurance Fund (NYSIF) since expiration date is most significant aspect of database in context of marketing, and disclosure would not enable the NYSIF "to compete on an equal basis" with other carriers; also, disclosure would likely have additional effect of raising premiums of employers who could least afford higher cost of doing business. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12657.

317. Labor matters; employees, generally

318. —Attendance and leave records

Information relative to sick time taken by city police officers during particular period should be made available, unless such records are confidential pursuant to CLS Civ R § 50-a, since materials in question consist solely of "statistical or factual tabulations or data" accessible under CLS Public Officers Law § 87(2)(g)(i), and since disclosure of records would not result in unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. Comm on Open Govt FOIL-AO-3717.

Attendance records can be characterized as intra-agency materials, however, those portions reflective of dates or numbers of absences would constitute statistical or factual information which is accessible; disclosure of attendance records would result in permissible rather than unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4808.

Copies of attendance records of public employees may be obtained under the provisions of the Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-6284 (1990).

Work schedules or attendance records for public employees, including those concerning use or accrual of leave time, must be disclosed under Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9478.

Time sheets maintained by water district, indicating earnings, use of personal and sick leave, and accrual of overtime, must be disclosed. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-10144.

Requested records concerning compensation time accrued by all employees of village police department are not exempt from disclosure under Civil Rights Law, and must be disclosed under Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12199.

Rights of access to records regarding leaves of absences granted to certain town employees, including reason for leave and date leaves was granted, depended on nature of reason leave was sought; if reason for seeking leave was intimate or personal, such as medical need, disclosure would constitute unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12224.

Because records reflective of correction officers' vacation accruals do not evaluate performance, and because those records are "neutral," CLS Civ R § 50-a would not serve to authorize denial of access to applicant. Attendance records, including those involving overtime work, are clearly available under Freedom of Information Law, for they are relevant to performance of public employees' official duties; similarly, records reflective of leave used or accrued must be disclosed, for public has economic interest in obtaining those records and because records are relevant to performance of public employees' official duties. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12699.

Under CLS Pub O § 87(2)(b), any description of illness or medical problem found in personnel records can be withheld or deleted, for disclosure of such personal details would likely constitute an unwarranted invasion of personal privacy and not relevant to performance of employee's duties; however, number that merely indicates amount of sick time or vacation time accumulated or used, or dates and times of attendance or absence, does not represent personal detail of one's life and is relevant to performance of one's official duties. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2744.

319. —Arrest records of employees or prospective employees

Request for information on disposition of alcohol-related arrests, breakdown of tickets by individual officer, qualifications required for police officer position, and name and qualification of each officer presently employed by village are subject to Freedom of Information Law request. 1986 Committee on Open Government FOIL-AO-4269.

320. —Civil service matters

Notice of state examination and examination schedule are subject to access under Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Govt FOIL-AO-3566.

If examination question is to be given in future, question and answer may be denied; if examination question has been finally administered and will no longer be used, question and answer is accessible. Committee on Open Government FOIL-AO-3820.

Applicant was entitled under Freedom of Information Law to disclosure of "Goals and Timetables Status Reports" prepared by Department of Civil Service, which reports consisted of summary statistical information and did not identify agency employees by name or social security number, but rather by job title and sex and race or ethnicity of incumbents of positions. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7935.

321. —Collective bargaining

Grade awarded on civil service examination taken by person not meeting minimum age requirement is subject to access under Freedom of Information Law; neither CLS Civ S § 50(4) nor Civil Service Department's regulations operate to restrict access to such records. Comm on Open Govt FOIL-AO-3573.

Payroll information described in § 87(3)(b) of Freedom of Information Law is available, irrespective of pendency of collective bargaining negotiations. Comm On Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4502.

Collective bargaining agreement might confer rights of access to personnel records which exceed rights granted by Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4567.

Information concerning Yonkers Police Department as to number of days and hours to be worked by patrolmen and commanding officers, their shifts and their benefits package was probably available in that such information would normally be included within collective bargaining agreements or other contracts between the city and public employee union. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-6218 (1990).

Portions of records indicating membership in union can be withheld from disclosure under Freedom of Information Law as unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. Disclosure indicating that public officer or employee is covered by health insurance plan at public expense will not represent or reveal intimate detail of one's life. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8908.

Proposed "arbitrator appraisal" form completed and returned to Public Employment Relations Board by party to voluntary grievance arbitration is analogous to employment reference under CLS Pub O § 89(2)(b)(i); thus, while form is generally available, identifying details of representative or employee of union who completes form may be withheld as unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9972.

322. —Compliance with conditions of employment

Where police department receives request for copies of all training certificates held by certain officers, any such records which are considered confidential under § 50-A of the Civil Rights law are not subject to disclosure under the Freedom of Information Law, except to the extent that public notices such as news articles have appeared with respect to those certificates. Comm on Open Govt FOIL-AO 3043.

If a teacher is required to earn a masters degree as a condition of employment, a record indicating the receipt of such degree would be available under the Freedom of Information Law, for it would be relevant to the performance of the official duties of both the employee and the employing board of education. Although a record indicating that a teacher has received a master's degree would be available under the Freedom of Information Law where receipt of such degree is a condition of employment, details surrounding the award of the degree, such as the institution that granted the degree, class standing, and similar personal details, may justifiably be withheld on the ground that disclosure constitutes an unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. Comm on Open Govt FOIL-AO 3069.

Permanent teaching certificates are available under Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Govt FOIL-AO-3440.

School district records indicating certification status of all teaching personnel in district as well as area of certification are subject to access under Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Govt FOIL-AO-3517.

With respect of accessibility under Freedom of Information Law to materials in teacher's personnel file, teacher's certification could be available under FOIL; in addition, information relevant to requirements which must be met as condition of employment would be available; however, source of degree, teaching experience, grades, class ranking and similar personal details might justifiably be withheld. Committee on Open Government OML-AO-3494.

323. —Disciplinary actions, misconduct and the like, generally

324. — —Education employees

Records of final disciplinary determinations against professionals licensed by the Education Department are public information under the Freedom of Information Law. NY Ops Atty Gen 84-F14.

With regard to findings and recommendations issued pursuant to CLS Educ § 3020-a in connection with charges brought against teacher for misconduct and conduct unbecoming teacher, references to offensive statements about victim's sexuality which were not credited as truthful by panel, could be withheld from disclosure to prevent unwarranted invasion of privacy. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7939.

Letter of reprimand accepted by tenured teacher pursuant to agreement that resolved disciplinary charge against him, dispensing with need for further litigation or hearings, was accessible under Freedom of Information Law even though it provided that "No statements to anyone or press releases concerning any aspect of this stipulation . . . shall be made by any party," as letter of reprimand was part of school district's final determination and it bore on performance of teacher's official duties. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-10180.

Unless different ground for denial applied, transcript of disciplinary hearing which resulted in termination of school custodian, who had been convicted of arson set at school, was accessible to extent it contained factual information, although transcript is not "final" document. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-10260.

325. — —Housing employees

As to rights of access to names of 2 employees of Schenectady Municipal Housing Authority who were suspended for misuse of company equipment, record reflective of final disciplinary action taken against public employee is available, but if allegations or charges of misconduct have not yet been determined or did not result in disciplinary action, records relating to such allegations may be withheld because disclosure would result in unwarranted invasion of personal privacy, and to extent that certain charges may have been dismissed, they may be withheld. Comm On Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4511.

326. — —Police and related law enforcement employees

With respect to Freedom of Information Law, record pertaining to public employees that are relevant to performance of their duties are available, for disclosure in those instances would result in permissible rather than unwarranted invasion of personal privacy, such that records of reprimands of police officers are available under Freedom of Information Law. 1986 Committee on Open Government FOIL-AO-4284.

Assuming that request for final determination relating to complaint of misconduct by police officer was not been made in context of current or future litigation, CLS Civ R § 50-a would not justify denial of request pursuant to CLS Pub O § 87(2)(a). To extent that charges of misconduct against police officer are dismissed or allegations are found to be without merit, records related to and including such charges or allegations may be withheld to prevent unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7602.

Names of 18 police officers who admittedly were involved in off-duty egg-throwing incident, and nature of penalties imposed on them, were accessible under Freedom of Information Law where requestor did not intend to use information in litigation context, records did not deal with unsubstantiated allegations or complaints and could not be characterized as "sensitive" or intimate, and incident had been widely publicized. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-10149.

Letters of reprimand regarding public employees are generally accessible, since they constitute final agency determinations available under § 87(2)(g)(iii) of the Freedom of Information Law. With regard to letters of complaint, the substance of a complaint may be deemed available while identifying details pertaining to the complainant may be withheld or deleted on the ground that disclosure would constitute an unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. Comm on Open Govt FOIL-AO 3048.

Reprimand of county dog warden is subject to access under Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Govt FOIL-AO-3475.

Hearing Officer's Report in Civil Service employee disciplinary action is subject to access under Freedom of Information Law, since report was adopted in its entirety by Board of Education and, therefore, is final determination of Board. Comm on Open Govt FOIL-AO-3519.

With regard to public employees, disclosure of written reprimands would result in permissible as opposed to unwarranted invasion of personal privacy, for reprimand is relevant to manner in which named public employee performs his official duties. Comm On Open Gov't FOIL-AO-3935.

Records of issuance of reprimand of public employee or determination to take disciplinary action against public employee are subject to Freedom of Information application as they are relevant to performance of one's official duties. 1986 Committee on Open Government FOIL-AO-4236.

Assuming that tape recordings of disciplinary hearing existed, they would constitute "records" subject to Freedom of Information Law, even if they were "sealed" and despite claim that they were "deemed not to exist." Applicant's rights of access to tape recordings of his disciplinary hearing did not change after determination arising out hearing was reversed. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8380.

If final determination of public body identifies person who is subject of charge or allegation and determination is that charge or allegation has no merit, applicant for records under Freedom of Information Law has right to obtain substance of determination, following deletion of personally identifiable details. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9399.

If there were written reasons for suspensions of city employees that had been made known to those suspended, those records constituted final agency determinations which had to be disclosed under Freedom of Information Law. Disclosure of identities of suspended city employees does not constitute unwarranted invasion of personal privacy within meaning of CLS Pub O § 87(2)(b). Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9463.

CLS Civ R § 50-a governed inmate's request to disclose complaints and similar records pertaining to correction officer, and required judicial review of records sought to be disclosed. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9838.

Identities of city employees, who were suspended as result of negotiated settlement of disciplinary charges, were accessible even though city had agreed not to release their names as part of settlement. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-10192.

If counseling memo is essentially "warning" rather than a conclusion reflective of finding of misconduct, it does not constitute final agency determination and therefore may be withheld under CLS Pub O § 87(2)(g). Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12078.

When allegations or charges of misconduct have not yet been determined or did not result in disciplinary action or finding of misconduct, records relating to such allegations may be withheld, for disclosure would result in unwarranted invasion of personal privacy; similarly, to extent that charges are dismissed or allegations are found to be without merit, they may be withheld. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12423.

327. —Employment applications

While various aspects of employment application could be withheld from public under Freedom of Information Law on ground that disclosure would constitute unwarranted invasion of personal privacy, disclosure may be made to governmental official when it is clear that disclosure is made to assist in performance of governmental function. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8585.

328. —Lists of employees' names, addresses, payroll information and the like, generally

329. — —Education employees

Resolution of Board of Education that staff records shall not be released constitutes violation of Freedom of Information Law since agency is required to maintain record setting forth name, public office address, title and salary of every officer or employee of agency, and such payroll information may be made available to any person; resolution of school board which conflicts with Freedom of Information Law is void to extent of conflict. Committee on Open Government FOIL-AO-3383.

School district is required to maintain record that includes name, title, salary and public office address (i.e., school) of all employees, including teachers. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7634.

W-2 forms are not exempted from disclosure under CLS Pub O § 87(2)(a) on basis of 26 USCS § 6103 since latter statute pertains to records received and maintained by Internal Revenue Service but does not pertain to records kept by individual taxpayer or records maintained by employer, such as school district. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7639.

As payroll records of school system were found to be available prior to enactment of Freedom of Information Law, such records must be disclosed regardless of intended use of records; thus, payroll records required to be maintained should be disclosed to any person, irrespective of their intended use and without request for why such records have been requested. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7643.

330. — —Library employees

Payroll information of library personnel must be disclosed; items of personal information, such as social security number or home address, which is irrelevant to performance of employee's official duties may be withheld or deleted from record on ground that disclosure would result in unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. Committee on Open Government FOIL-AO-3370.

331. — —Police and related law enforcement employees

Front sides of paychecks relative to employees of office of District Attorney, as well as various other County employees, are subject to access under Freedom of Information Law, upon condition that details other than name of employee and net pay appearing on paychecks could be deleted on ground that disclosure would constitute unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. Comm on Open Govt FOIL-AO-3507.

Copies of timesheets reflecting hours worked by village constable should be made available for public inspection under Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Govt FOIL-AO-3570.

Disclosure of identities of municipal employees, including law enforcement officers, would not in most instances endanger their lives or safety; however, in event that payroll record specifies that employees are in undercover positions, CLS Pub O § 87(2)(f) might be cited with justification as basis for deleting those portions of payroll record that identify such individuals. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8398.

Freedom of Information Law does not specify whether office of sheriff must maintain separate payroll record that identifies only employees of that agency, or whether county government, as umbrella organization for number of smaller agencies, must maintain payroll record pertaining to all county employees; records must be as complete and current as possible, and so long as some agency within county government maintains record or records reflective of information required to be maintained pursuant to CLS Pub O § 87(3)(b), such action would serve to comply with Freedom of Information Law. Inmates who are paid by correctional facility for tasks that they perform cannot be characterized as employees for purposes of CLS Pub O § 87(3)(b). Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8581.

332. — —Public works employees

Statistical and factual payroll information pertaining to water district employee was accessible under Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-10144.

In releasing payroll records kept by agency to determine whether employees on public works projects are being paid in accordance with prevailing wage standards, agency may delete contractors' names, addresses and social security numbers to prevent unwarranted invasion of personal privacy, as such information is largely irrelevant to reason for keeping records; however, portions of records reflective of titles, duties, wages, hours worked and similar data must be disclosed. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-10325.

Insofar as payroll records sought by applicant included public works contractor's employees' names, addresses, social security numbers and their wages, portions of those records could properly be withheld under CLS Pub O § 87(2)(b) since what was relevant to agency was whether employees were being paid in accordance with prevailing wage standards; however, portions of records reflective of titles, duties, wages, hours worked and similar data should be disclosed. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12640.

Payroll record envisioned by Public Officers Law § 87(3)(b) should pertain to the current fiscal year, rather than a previous year, and should be current on an on-going basis. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-2923.

Assuming their existence, records indicating the names and occupational titles of persons who wrote certain publications of the New York State Department of Labor are subject to disclosure under the Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Govt FOIL-AO 3031.

While a payroll record that identifies public employees is clearly available to any person, the level of accountability required of government employees may differ from that required of employees of private concerns whose identities appear in government records. Comm on Open Govt FOIL-AO 3060.

"Staff roster" which includes home addresses and home telephone numbers may be withheld since, under CLS Pub O § 89, disclosure of home address of officer or employee is not required. Committee on Open Government FOIL-AO-3399.

Copy of public employee's federal W-2 form is public record within meaning of Freedom of Information Law; names and figures indicating gross income paid by agency to its officers and employees found on W-2 form must be made available; however, remaining information which refers to amounts withheld for Social Security, home address, or Social Security number could be deleted on ground that disclosure would constitute unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. Comm on Open Govt FOIL-AO-3669.

Any individual who requests record identifying district employee and his or her salary is entitled to record under FOIL; moreover, record should be made available within 5 business days of receipt of request. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4054.

Although Freedom of Information Law does not require agency to create records, payroll list of employees is included among records required to be kept pursuant to CLS Pub O § 87(3) and, therefore, payroll record that identifies all officers or employees by name, public office address, title and salary must be prepared to comply with, and must be disclosed pursuant to, Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7609.

With certain qualifications, W-2 forms or records containing equivalent information pertaining to public employees must be disclosed under Freedom of Information Law. Record identifying agency employees by name, public office address, title and salary must be maintained and made available under Freedom of Information Law. Portions of W-2 forms can be withheld to protect against unwarranted invasions of personal privacy, such as social security numbers, home addresses and net pay, for those items are largely irrelevant to performance of one's duties. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7639.

Insofar as vouchers or related records include public employees' social security numbers or home addresses, those items can be deleted from records based upon considerations of personal privacy since they are largely irrelevant to performance of one's duties. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7930.

When public employee's paycheck indicates amount after deductions have been made, it is likely that amount appearing on check could be withheld; that figure would not represent employee's salary or gross pay, both of with would be public and would instead reflect, without specification, what would remain after what might be series of personal decisions (i.e., claiming exemptions, choice of health insurance, payment of life insurance premiums, direct deposit into bank account, purchase of savings bonds, etc.) that had no relationship to performance of employee's governmental duties. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8387.

Home telephone number of public officer or employee is largely irrelevant to performance of one's official duties and, therefore, request under Freedom of Information Law for such information can be denied as disclosure would constitute unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9197.

Applicant was entitled to list of names and addresses of county employees who opted for payment in place of county's health insurance coverage since such payment constituted record of payment to public employee. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9390.

Insofar as W-2 forms of public employees indicate gross wages, they must be disclosed under Freedom of Information Law; however, other portions of W-2 forms could be withheld, such as social security numbers, home addresses and net pay since those items are largely irrelevant to performance of one's duties. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9742.

Disclosure of information contained in records identifying state employees who might be eligible for early retirement incentive but had not been given notice of eligibility, if they had not made public any interest in taking advantage of early retirement incentives, would constitute unwarranted invasion of personal privacy because their names (and associated personal information in form of birth dates and ages as of particular date) were entirely unrelated to performance of their duties. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9816.

Home addresses of public officers and employees need not be disclosed because they are largely irrelevant to performance of their duties. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9820.

E-mail addresses may be withheld under CLS Pub O § 87(2)(f) and (i) to extent that disclosure of list of e-mail addresses could effectively preclude agency from carrying out its functions if list was used inappropriately. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12105.

Payroll record and other related records identifying employees and their salaries must be disclosed; items that have no relevance to performance of one's official duties, such as social security numbers, deductions and like may be withheld on ground that disclosure would constitute unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12776.

Home address of present or former public officer or employee need not be disclosed under Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-13397.

Portions of W-2 forms for public employees can be withheld, such as social security numbers, home addresses and net pay, since those items are largely irrelevant to performance of one's duties; however, those portions indicating public officers' or employees' names and gross wages must be disclosed. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2460.

333. —Performance evaluations

Whether or not evaluation of employee work performance is placed in employee's personnel folder is irrelevant to question of whether evaluation is available under Freedom of Information requests, since any information kept, held or produced by agency constitutes "record". 1986 Committee on Open Government FOIL-AO-1478.

Although some portions of performance evaluations and rating forms of agency employees may be justifiably withheld, including statements of opinion, recommendation, or advice, the final rating is likely subject to disclosure, assuming that it is reflective of a final determination, and particularly if monetary awards are based upon ratings. Comm on Open Govt FOIL-AO 3031.

While standards, goals, objectives and similar criteria might apply to particular public employee, those records would clearly be relevant to performance of that person's official duties and, therefore, disclosure would result in permissible rather than unwarranted invasion of personal privacy; however, insofar as documents include supervisor's subjective comments or analysis of how well or poorly individual has carried out goals or met criteria, those portions of records could be withheld; similarly, self-appraisals or peer appraisals would apparently consist of opinions that could also be withheld. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7633.

Final rating of public employee would be available under Freedom of Information Law, assuming that any appeals had been exhausted, for it would constitute final agency determination available under CLS Pub O § 87(2)(g)(iii), particularly if monetary award was based upon rating; moreover, final rating concerning public employee's performance is relevant to that person's official duties, as well as those of supervisor who issues rating and, therefore, name of employee, final rating and name of supervisor who made rating would be available under Freedom of Information Law since disclosure would not result in unwarranted invasion of personal privacy of either employee or supervisor. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7633.

Disclosure, in employee performance evaluation, of description of duties to be performed by any person holding particular position, or series of criteria reflective of duties or goals to be achieved by any person holding that position, would result in permissible rather than unwarranted invasion of personal privacy for purpose of FOIL. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12396.

Component of employee performance evaluation involving reviewer's subjective analysis or opinion of how well or poorly standards or duties have been carried out or goals have been achieved could be withheld under FOIL, both as unwarranted invasion of personal privacy and under CLS Pub O § 87(2)(g), on ground that it constitutes opinion concerning performance. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12396.

Component of employee performance evaluation consisting of final rating, i.e., "good", "excellent", "average", etc. would be available for disclosure under FOIL, assuming that any appeals have been exhausted, for it would constitute final agency determination available under CLS Pub O § 87(2)(g)(iii), particularly if monetary award were based on rating; moreover, final rating concerning public employee's performance is relevant to that person's official duties and therefore would not result in unwarranted invasion of personal privacy if disclosed. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12396.

334. —Personnel records, generally

335. — —School personnel records

School district contract with superintendent is not exempt from disclosure on grounds of unwarranted invasion of personal privacy since public employees enjoy lesser degree of privacy than that of public generally and records relevant to performance of public employee's official duties are generally obtainable. Committee on Open Government FOIL-AO-3333.

Work schedule of community college faculty member is accessible under Freedom on Information Law, since schedule is relevant to performance of his or her official duties. Comm on Open Govt FOIL-AO-3594.

"File numbers" that are assigned to each employee of school district are not subject to access under Freedom of Information Law, since file number is merely identification number and since it is not relevant to manner in which public employee performs his or her duties. Comm on Open Govt FOIL-AO-3638.

Contract between school district and individual, like collective bargaining agreement between public employer and public employee union, must be disclosed, for it is clearly relevant to duties, terms and conditions reflective of responsibilities of parties. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-13296.

Under CLS Pub Off § 87(2)(g)(iii), minutes of board of education meeting convened to review and ultimately approve report by non-teaching salary committee were subject to disclosure under Open Meetings Law, despite contentions that information should not be released until personnel concerned were notified, since board voted to accept and approve report and thereby made final agency determination. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-1380.

336. — —Social Security numbers

Whether city human rights commission or employing agency maintains employee's social security number is irrelevant in terms of Freedom of Information Law; either can withhold that item as unwarranted invasion of personal privacy since infringement upon privacy and effect of disclosure would be same regardless of which agency maintains or perhaps discloses that kind of personal information. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7858.

Applicant was entitled under Freedom of Information Law to disclosure of "Goals and Timetables Status Reports" prepared by Department of Civil Service, which reports consisted of summary statistical information and did not identify agency employees by name or social security number, but rather by job title and sex and race or ethnicity of incumbents of positions. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7935.

Public disclosure of social security number of employee of state agency, absent consent of data subject, constitutes unwarranted invasion of personal privacy under both Freedom of Information Law and Personal Privacy Protection Act. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9237.

337. — —Racial information

Race of public employee or incumbent could properly be withheld under CLS Pub O § 87(2)(b), as race has nothing to do with performance of public employee's duties. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9790.

Records of state hospital regarding requesting party's past standing as employee may be exempt from disclosure under § 87(2)(g) of the Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Govt FOIL-AO 3030.

Request for town employee's records, to extent that they relate to employee's position and job responsibilities, should not be denied on ground that disclosure would result in unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. Comm on Open Govt FOIL-AO-3524.

Portions of employee's personnel file which contained advice, recommendations, suggestions or impressions may be withheld; portions of employee's personnel file which contained factual information church as test scores, attendance records, determinations, and similar information must be disclosed; recommendations or letters of reference need not be disclosed where such documentation would result in unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. Committee on Open Government FOIL-AO-3816.

As to disclosure of references in requester's personnel file, such reference could be withheld under CLS Pub Off § 89(2)(b), unless deletion of identifying details would effectively preclude identification of reference's author and, under § 87(2)(g) of such Law, if reference involves appraisal of performance, it could be withheld as "intra-agency materials", unless it was previously disclosed to requester. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4567.

Freedom of Information Law requires that person requesting records must "reasonably describe" records sought so agency officials can locate records; however, certain records may justifiably be withheld if information sought includes other people in addition to requester because that would cause unwarranted invasion of personal privacy; while eligible lists, which identify those persons who pass civil service examinations and their scores, are available, records identifying those persons who failed exams or their scores could be withheld as unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4574.

Assuming that record involving individual's previous employment with city exists and can be located, record would be available; on other hand, if city officials cannot locate such record, response should nonetheless be given, indicating that record of employment could not be located. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4840.

There is nothing in Freedom of Information Law that deals specifically with personnel records or personnel files; neither characterization of documents as personnel records nor their placement in personnel files would necessarily render those documents confidential or deniable under Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7633.

Whether public officer or employee is covered or chooses to be covered by public employer paid health insurance plan or whether that person opts for family or individual coverage has no relevance to performance of that person's official duties. Disclosure indicating that public officer or employee is covered by health insurance plan at public expense would not represent or reveal intimate detail of one's life. If disclosure of cost of health care coverage for particular public employee indicates which plan that person has chosen or whether his or her plan involves individual or dependent coverage, such disclosure might potentially result in revelation of number of details of person's life and unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7868.

While identity of public employee's prior private employers may be withheld, prior public employment is matter of public record and must be disclosed under Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8914.

Under Freedom of Information Law, former employee enjoys rights of access to records about himself or herself and cannot be denied access to their own official personnel file. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8930.

Entirety of administrative file pertaining to former public employee containing "union and job related complaints," memorandum concerning employee prepared by his supervisor relating to particular incident, another memorandum concerning alleged misperceptions made by employee, and correspondence between employer and outside employee assistance program to which employer referred employee, all were records subject to rights conferred by Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9647.

County had no basis to withhold certificates establishing public employee's associate, bachelor and master degrees. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9964.

Agency was not required to disclose written report of alleged incident of harassment submitted by employee to Sexual Harassment Committee, irrespective of final determination of matter because, at time report was prepared, there would have been no indication or finding that it involved more than unsubstantiated allegations; further, identity of person making complaint to Sexual Harassment Committee could be withheld to prevent unwarranted invasion of his or her privacy, given nature of allegation. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-10399.

Records indicating payments for "accrued sick, vacation and/or personal leave time as well as any payment or payments for accrued overtime or compensatory time" and "any other...benefits" would be accessible to public under Freedom of Information Law, even if employee in question remained police officer and CLS Civ R § 50-a remained consideration, since records reflective of payments or benefits are not used to evaluate performance, and such records are "neutral." Records reflective of salaries of public employees must be prepared and made available and, similarly, records reflective of other payments, whether they pertain to overtime, or participation in work-related activities, for example, would be available, for those records would be relevant to performance of one's official duties. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12423.

Neither characterization of documents as "personnel records" nor their placement in personnel files would necessarily render those documents "confidential" or deniable under Freedom of Information Law. Names of municipal employees or family members coupled with amounts of reimbursements appearing on vouchers would, if disclosed, constitute unwarranted invasion of personal privacy, even though they do not indicate particular medical condition or problem, since items of that nature are largely irrelevant to performance of one's official duties, and vouchers indicating treatment, or particularly frequency of treatment, and amounts reimbursed, represent intimate details of peoples' lives. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12692.

To extent that letters of resignation include intimate or personal information, i.e., that person has resigned due to poor health, they could be withheld; if they do not contain information of such nature, they would likely be available. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-13148.

Freedom of Information Law, not General Municipal Law or local enactment, is governing statute for acccess to financial disclosure statements filed by city officers and employees. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-13559.

338. —Retirees and other former employees

List of only names of retirees of public employees' retirement system should be made available under Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Govt FOIL-AO-3642.

Disclosure of pension numbers of agency's present and former employees may be permitted, since such number appears to be only identifier for obtaining public records concerning public employees participating in State Retirement System, such as years of service, salary information and payments made under such system, though identifying number alone may be otherwise irrelevant to performance of public employee's duties, for purposes of determining whether unwarranted invasion of personal privacy has occurred. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4490.

Since deaths are often widely known or publicized, disclosure of date of death of former employee would not constitute unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4808.

Disclosure of names of persons employed or once employed by particular agency who had applied under CLS Retire & S S § 803 would result in unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8328.

Applicant was generally entitled to disclosure of city records concerning all retired pensioned employees, including exempt employees, receiving bona fide legal pensions plus compensatory dollars from December, 1990 to July, 1996 since such disclosure would not involve unwarranted invasion of personal privacy; however, social security numbers, home addresses, member and retirement numbers were unique identifiers and could be withheld based on considerations of privacy. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9742.

Correspondence between county and State Retirement System, bi-weekly payroll certifications, and related records pertaining to employment and retirement of public employee who was subject of controversy and investigation involving payments that might have been made to him when he was absent from the workplace, were accessible to extent they were prepared in ordinary course of business, not as result of inquiry regarding employee's conduct. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-10270.

Rationale for confidentiality accorded by CLS Civ R § 50-a was no longer present, and that statute was no longer applicable or pertinent, as applied to police chief who had retired, since there was no issue involving continued employment or promotion; thus, records regarding chief could be disclosed under Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12423.

339. —Unemployment benefits and proceedings

A cassette recording of a hearing before the Unemployment Insurance Appeal Board constitutes a record subject to rights of access granted by the Freedom of Information Law and is presumptively available to the public to the extent that the hearing was open to the public. Comm on Open Govt FOIL-AO 3033.

Records maintained by town relating to former employee's unemployment insurance claim did not fall within scope of CLS Labor § 537 with respect to former employee's Freedom of Information Law request for such records. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12286.

Records reflecting public employee's official duties and responsibilities are available under FOIL; thus, since public employee's title, job description, salary and length of service are relevant to official duties, disclosure would not constitute unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-3996.

As to request for information from Utica City School District regarding employee health insurance accounts, to extent that such information consists of agency records, none of grounds for denial under CLS Pub Off § 87(2) could likely be asserted, though if such records identify claimants, identifying details could likely be deleted as constituting unwarranted invasion of personal privacy under §§ 87(2)(b), 89(2)(b) of such law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4495.

While salary information pertaining to public employees is accessible, information concerning deductions or amounts withheld from salaries due to judgment could be withheld as unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4565.

Village must maintain and make available a payroll record that includes the names and salaries of all village employees, and such records are available under the provisions of the Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-6277 (1990).

Records reflective of participation in work-related activities, such as attendance at conferences, as well as payments or reimbursements for expenses to public employees, are available under Freedom of Information Law since such records are relevant to performance of one's official duties. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7930.

Names and legal addresses of persons who applied to fill vacancy on town ethics committee were probably not accessible under Freedom of Information Law; while applicant for position on ethics committee is not seeking public employment, he or she (as private citizen) should be accorded privacy protection analogous to applicant for public employment. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9820.

Identifying details of Public Employment Relations Board (PERB) employees who complete proposed "arbitrator appraisal" forms, in connection with voluntary grievance arbitration, may be withheld to prevent unwarranted invasion of personal privacy; completion of such forms is ancillary to routine duties of PERB employees. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9972.

Rights of access granted by Personal Privacy Protection Law do not extend to records of agencies or units within agencies whose primary functions involve investigation, law enforcement, or confinement of persons in correctional facilities; thus, Personal Privacy Law did not serve as vehicle under which job applicant could gain access to state police records documenting results of polygraph exam which was used with other investigative records to determine whether to employ him. Evaluative material and subjective comments or opinions contained in file which included results of polygraph exam and other investigative records used by Division of State Police to determine whether to employ job applicant, which was maintained separately from job applicant's personal history file, could be withheld under CLS Pub O § 87(2)(g), but statistical or factual information contained in such file was available to applicant unless different ground for denial applied. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-10117.

There is no basis for withholding records or portions of records specifying that public employees are members of public employee union; exception concerning privacy does not apply to record identifying entities or individuals in relation to their business or professional capacities. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-16451.

Minutes reflective of action taken in executive session, discussing whether to increase salary of justice court clerk or accept his resignation, should have been prepared pursuant to CLS Pub O § 106, and record of action would be accessible under Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2216.

340. Land use and development; zoning, generally

341. —Appraisals; appraisers

To great extent, grounds for denial describe some harm that would arise as result of disclosure; accordingly, where district obtained appraisal of real property for sale, did not disclose such appraisal, solicited bids, and accepted offer subject to district voters' approval of sale, appraisal is accessible even though voters have not yet approved sale, since disclosure would not result in any harm. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-3999.

As to access to appraiser's working papers contributing to appraisals of land acquired by Albany County for its civic center project, neither records' status as working papers nor their physical possession by party other than county prevents their disclosure, under CLS Pub O § 87(2)(g), papers are likely "intra-agency materials" that would be accessible or deniable depending upon their contents, and submission of request after transaction's completion precludes denial based on impairment of present or imminent contract awards under § 87(2)(c) of such Law. Comm On Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4527.

Appraisals maintained by or produced for County, as well as any other informational materials related to them, constitute "records" subject to rights conferred by Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7936.

342. —Building inspections, building plans, surveys and the like

Building plans per se contain no personal information concerning individual and, therefore, those kinds of records cannot be withheld on ground that disclosure would constitute unwarranted invasion of personal privacy under CLS Pub O § 87(2)(b). Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7921.

It is clear that certificates of occupancy must be disclosed under Freedom of Information Law since none of grounds for denial could properly be asserted to withhold those records. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8366.

Whether owner of property consents to permit access to building plan is irrelevant; if record is available under Freedom of Information Law, subject of record does not have ability to control disclosure. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12830.

Regarding access to plans, drawings and surveys that are marked with seal of architect, land surveyor or engineer, seal does not serve as copyright, nor does it restrict right to inspect and copy under Freedom of Information Law; it merely indicates that person is qualified as licensee. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12830.

If reproduction of copyrighted architectural plans and similar records would "cause substantial injury to the competitive position of the subject enterprise," i.e., holder of copyright, in conjunction with CLS Pub O § 87(2)(d), agency could preclude reproduction of work; however, if reproduction of work would not result in substantial injury to competitive position of copyright holder, such exception would not apply. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12830.

CLS Pub O § 87(2)(f), which permits agency to withhold records insofar as disclosure could "endanger the life or safety of any person," might properly be invoked to deny access to architectural building plans, insofar as such records include information concerning alarms, security systems and like. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12830.

343. —Geography; geographical data systems

With respect to geographical data systems in general, such things as maps, images and like constitute "factual data" within meaning of CLS Pub O § 87(2)(g) that must be disclosed. Estimates and projections, even though they may not be reflective of "objective reality," nonetheless constitute "statistical" tabulations within meaning of CLS Pub O § 87(2)(g) that must be disclosed. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7507.

344. —Housing

County Rent Guidelines Board cannot assert § 12(6) of Emergency Tenant Protection Act as basis for denying request for certain documentation submitted by landlords to County Board pursuant to § 12(6). Comm on Open Govt FOIL-AO-3697.

CLS Real Property Actions and Proceedings Law § 779 does not operate to exempt from disclosure records that come into possession of city Department of Housing Preservation and Development. Comm on Open Govt FOIL-AO-3702.

345. —New York City land use

Disclosure of Letter of Intent between New York City Economic Development Corporation (EDC) and New York Stock Exchange (NYSE) regarding development of new NYSE location would "impair present or imminent contract awards" and thus denial of disclosure request was consistent with law; while contents of Letter of Intent were known by and in possession of NYSE and EDC, its contents were not known to other parties involved or potentially involved in negotiations regarding project. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12604.

346. —Waste management

Copies of court orders pertaining to New York City Department of Sanitation's "confiscation of topsoil and living vegetation in Rockaway" were accessible under Freedom of Information Law insofar as they existed and were maintained by Department of Sanitation. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12,352.

Any records generated by or in possession of Stadium Committee designated by Mayor of Buffalo are subject to provisions of Freedom of Information Law, where purpose of Committee is to discuss and plan possible domed baseball stadium in downtown Buffalo. Comm on Open Govt FOIL-AO 3091.

Exemption for materials compiled for law enforcement purposes extends only to information relating to criminal investigations, and does not extend to material concerning investigations of violations of zoning ordinances enforceable by building inspector, since such are "offenses" and not crimes. Committee on Open Government FOIL-AO-3346.

Plans and surveys of building department are clearly available for inspection under FOIL, and are also available for copying unless copyright has been registered with U. S. Copyright Office. Comm On Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4169.

City maps fall within scope of Freedom of Information Law. 1986 Committee on Open Government FOIL-AO-4254.

Detailed engineering plans, submitted to town planning board for site plan or subdivision approval are documents available to public under Freedom of Information Act. 1986 Committee on Open Government FOIL-AO-4364.

A draft land use plan concerning Town of Palermo, even though preliminary in nature, constitute "records" subject to rights of access conferred by the Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-6246 (1990).

Pendency of litigation does not affect rights of the public to obtain access to building permits under the Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-6331 (1990).

Where chairman of town planning board, in his official capacity, acquired DEIS material submitted by private developer as part of SEQR process for its proposed shopping mall, such materials constituted "records" subject to rights conferred by Freedom of Information Law. DEIS material submitted by private developer as part of SEQR process for its proposed shopping mall to chairman of town planning board was available under Freedom of Information Law since none of grounds for denial appeared to be applicable. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8569.

Correspondence to agency from residents of town opposing proposed subdivision were not subject to disclosure under CLS Pub O § 87(2)(b). Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8912.

Survey prepared by independent professional surveyor in conjunction with county watershed project constituted intra-agency material but, if it was typical of land surveys generally, it would likely consist entirely of factual information accessible under CLS Pub O § 87(2)(g)(i) unless different ground for denial applied. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9844.

CLS Pub O § 87(2)(b) pertains to natural persons, not entities or persons acting in business capacities, and thus commercial building permit files (including copies of permit applications, commercial building project addresses, type of jobs, names, addresses, and phone numbers of contractors doing work) are available insofar as they are maintained in agency's records and can be retrieved by agency's filing or record-keeping systems. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9890.

Statements prepared by town planning board, including recommendations concerning proposed amendment to town's zoning and land use ordinance, may be withheld to extent that they constitute pre-decisional or "non-final" records; however, factual data contained therein must be disclosed. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-10259.

Regarding Freedom of Information Law request for all building permit applications denied by village in past 15 years, if village maintained separate file containing building permit applications that had been denied, or even if building permits were maintained chronologically, locating such records might be relatively easy task; however, if records were kept by parcel and there was no way of locating records sought without reviewing files relating to each and every parcel, request would not meet standard of reasonably describing records sought. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12236.

Correspondence between developer and city is accessible to public even if it has been forwarded to city's special counsel and/or law department; such records, although in possession of special counsel, are not protected by attorney-client privilege because city, not developer, is client of special counsel. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12238.

Town code enforcement officer could, under federal Drivers Privacy Protection Act (18 USCS § 2721), obtain information from Department of Motor Vehicles concerning ownership of vehicle, registration, inspection and insurance status related to parking and storage of vehicles; however, if licensee has asked that his or her license record be shielded from disclosure, subpoena may be needed to obtain record. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12620.

Records subject to SEQRA process are generally accessible, and may not be withheld on ground that they should be available only at certain times or in particular sequence. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-13441.

Any documentation maintained by or for town regarding "location of the Tower," irrespective of its origin or physical location, would constitute "record" subject to rights conferred by Freedom of Information law. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3821.

347. Law and law enforcement, generally

348. —Attorney matters, generally

349. — —Attorney-client privilege

While attorney and Village board of trustees or mayor may have attorney-client relationship, case law establishes that records of monies paid and received by attorney or law firm for services rendered to client are not privileged. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4056.

Attorney bills or vouchers, or portions thereof, indicating payments to attorney are not subject to attorney-client privilege, and in case of municipal attorney, are subject to FOIL. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4123.

Report prepared by town attorney in response to anonymous complaint that dentist was operating his practice in violation of town code was within attorney-client privilege under CLS CPLR § 4503 insofar as it consisted of legal advice provided to client (town); however, to extent that report had been disclosed to dentist, privilege was waived and report was not exempted from disclosure by CLS Pub O § 87(2)(a). Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9854.

School board (client) effectively waived ability to claim that board member's comments regarding attorney's advice to board were made in contravention of attorney-client privilege where several board members made reference to attorney's advice and that his opinion was part of discussion in open meeting. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12405.

Pendency of litigation would not affect either rights of public or litigant under Freedom of Information Law. Materials that are served on or shared with adversary could not be characterized as confidential or exempt from disclosure under CLS CPLR § 3101. Pendency of litigation would not affect either rights of public or litigant under Freedom of Information Law. Materials that are served on or shared with adversary could not be characterized as confidential or exempt from disclosure under CLS CPLR § 3101. Insofar as certain correspondence between town and private attorney have been communicated between town and its adversary or have been filed with court, any claim of privilege or its equivalent would be effectively waived; once records in nature of attorney work product or material prepared for litigation were transmitted to adversary, i.e., from town to its adversary and vice versa, capacity to claim exemptions from disclosure under CLS CPLR § 3101(c) or (d) or, therefore, CLS Pub O § 87(2)(a) ends, while, conversely, if records had not been disclosed to person other than client or clients, assertion of privilege would be proper. If records are prepared for multiple purposes, one of which includes eventual use in litigation, CLS CPLR § 3101(d) does not serve as basis for withholding records; only when records are prepared solely for litigation can § 3101(d) be properly asserted to deny access to records. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12638.

When municipal official or body seeks legal advice from its attorney and attorney renders legal advice, communications of that nature would fall within coverage of attorney-client privilege and would, therefore, be exempt from disclosure under CLS Pub O § 87(2)(a). Retainer agreement (contract) would not be subject to attorney-client privilege and would ordinarily be accessible under Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12641.

350. — —Attorney work product

Survey prepared by independent professional surveyor in conjunction with county watershed project did not constitute work product of county attorney, and was not exempt from disclosure under CLS Pub O § 87(2)(a) and CLS CPLR § 3101(d) on ground that it was material prepared solely for litigation, even if records prepared by surveyor at direction of county attorney could be characterized as attorney work product. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9844.

Pendency of litigation would not affect either rights of public or litigant under Freedom of Information Law. Materials that are served on or shared with adversary could not be characterized as confidential or exempt from disclosure under CLS CPLR § 3101. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12638.

City's characterization of certain property records as attorney's "work product" was irrelevant since materials characterized as "work product" prepared by or for city would constitute "records" that fall within scope of Freedom of Information Law; moreover, there is no exception dealing specifically with "work product." Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12689.

Document prepared by village attorney apparently addressed to board of trustees pertaining to alleged conflicts of interest could be withheld from disclosure under CLS Pub O § 87(2)(g) since such document appeared to consist of expression of opinion. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9665.

Freedom of Information Law does not apply to information indicating whether attorneys have been censured or disciplined; records that are subject to CLS Jud § 90(10) may be disclosed only in conjunction with that statute. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12014.

While records of governmental entity required to adopt plan of providing representation under CLS County article 18-B are subject to Freedom of Information Law, records of individual attorney performing services under Art 18-B may or may not be subject to FOIL, depending on nature of plan. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12161.

Vouchers, time sheets and similar materials would be available "in great measure" from county office of public defender, to extent that such records existed. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12535.

351. —Criminal investigations, generally

352. — —Accomplices; co-defendants

To extent that codefendants' statements held deleted materials which identified codefendants, it does not appear that withholding of their names was justifiable because disclosure of codefendants' names and addresses during trial would indicate that they are not "confidential" informants; further, due to those disclosures, release of their names would not constitute unwarranted invasion of personal privacy; however, if names withheld pertain to persons other than codefendants identified during trial, it is possible that those persons are confidential informants or that disclosure of their identities would result in unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4851.

Statement given to police on arrest of codefendant in murder prosecution, review of which was sought by defendant's wife after conclusion of prosecution of defendant and codefendant, was subject to disclosure under Freedom of Information Law to extent that statement was introduced into evidence or disclosed during public judicial proceeding since statement lost its cloak of confidentiality on such introduction into evidence or disclosure. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7538.

353. — —Breathalyzer matters

Police department's procedure for arrest and the use of a breathalyzer are accessible under Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-2975.

As to request by prison inmate for records prepared by manufacturer of drug testing machine which indicate that when certain medication is taken, results of drug test may indicate "false positives", such materials would likely be available for disclosure, for it does not appear that any grounds for denial would apply. Comm On Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4529.

354. — —Confidential informants

Police blotter or booking record is probably subject to disclosure under Freedom of Information Law, since it is unlikely that such disclosure would interfere with an investigation or deprive a person of a right to a fair trial, but if a record contains reference to a confidential informant, that portion of the record can be deleted. Comm on Open Govt FOIL-AO 3024.

355. — —Criminal histories

Under the Freedom of Information Law all records are available to the public except that a municipality may deny access to records within certain categories. In the case of criminal history records obtained from the New York State Department of Criminal Justice Services, a municipality must determine whether access is restricted by a Use and Dissemination Agreement between the municipality and the Department. 1980 NY Ops Atty Gen Dec. 24 (informal).

Non-confidential criminal history data is subject to rights of access granted by Freedom of Information Law to companies that perform "pre-employment screening services" pursuant to state and federal Fair Credit Reporting Acts. Comm on Open Govt FOIL-AO-3455.

Criminal history records including arrest and conviction data is generally available to the subjects of the records under the Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-6212 (1990).

While conviction records may be obtained directly from the courts where the convictions occurred, criminal history records maintained by or obtained from Division of Criminal Justice Services (DCJS) are exempted from disclosure under CLS Public Officers Law § 87(2)(a) of the Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-6312 (1990).

While subject of criminal history record may obtain such record from Division of Criminal Justice Services, criminal history records maintained by that agency are exempted from public disclosure pursuant to CLS Pub O § 87(2)(a). Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8383.

While subject of conviction may obtain such records from Division of Criminal Justice Services, criminal history records maintained by that agency are exempt from public disclosure pursuant to CLS Pub O § 87(2)(a); if individual is aware of court in which person was convicted, record of conviction is available from court, but there is no agency that provides public access to conviction records generally. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8896.

Prosecution witness' rap sheet was available from county district attorney's office to extent of criminal convictions and pending criminal actions. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9859.

Regulation promulgated by Division of Criminal Justice Services (9 NYCRR § 6150.4) was inconsistent with Freedom of Information Law (FOIL) insofar as it exempted all criminal history records from FOIL disclosure; only criminal records exempt from FOIL disclosure are records related to arrest of juveniles (CLS Family Ct Act § 784), records sealed under CLS CPL §§ 160.50 or 160.55, and Youthful Offender records sealed under CLS CPL §§ 720.15 or 720.35. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-16623.

356. — —Fingerprints

Criminal defendant is entitled to access under Freedom of Information Law to copy of his fingerprints taken at scene of crime. Comm on Open Govt FOIL-AO-3464.

357. — —Pending cases; ongoing investigations

City's policy of not releasing any information on criminal case until crime is solved and investigation is closed clearly conflicts with Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Govt FOIL-AO-3695.

Unless law enforcement investigation is currently ongoing or pending which relates to requested records, there is no basis for denial on ground that disclosure would interfere with law enforcement investigations, and even if such law enforcement investigation is ongoing or pending, law allows for denial of access only where disclosure "would interfere" with investigation, such that possibility that disclosure "might interfere" is insufficient. 1986 Committee on Open Government FOIL-AO-4310.

If crime is being investigated, and journalist or member of public requests records identifying suspects or witnesses or perhaps indicating course of investigation, it is likely that disclosure would interfere with investigation and that records could be withheld; however, after arrests are made, it is likely that same records would become accessible, at least in part, because disclosure would no longer interfere with investigation since investigation would have ended. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9214.

Preparation of closing memorandum does not necessarily signify end of investigation by city department of investigation since department might refer matter to different agency for further investigation and/or prosecution; thus, although closing memoranda are presumptively accessible to public, department could in appropriate circumstances withhold memoranda or portions thereof on ground that disclosure would interfere with investigation that is continuing and is being carried out by another agency or in rare circumstance in which disclosure would interfere with judicial proceeding. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9399.

Newspaper was entitled to records of city department of investigation and department of buildings relating to suspension of 42 elevator inspectors employed by department of buildings to extent of disclosure of names of those suspended and reasons for suspensions, notwithstanding assertion that disclosure would interfere directly with ongoing criminal investigation and with ongoing disciplinary proceedings, since it was clear that city departments had already contacted individuals involved and had informed them of action taken against them, as well perhaps as reasons for that action, and, therefore, disclosure would not enable possible lawbreakers to evade detection or flee. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9463.

If investigations to which police department records relate are over, disclosure could not interfere with those investigations. If police investigation result in convictions, disclosure of investigative records would not interfere with judicial proceeding even if cases to which they relate are appealed as (1) appeals deal only with matters of law and fact contained in trial court record, which is available to parties and public generally, and (2) while courts and court records are not subject to Freedom of Information Law, they are available under other provisions of law (e.g., CLS Jud § 255). Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-10038.

358. — —Physical evidence; photographs

Police department documentary materials relating to the investigation and conviction of petitioner, as well as photographs maintained by the police department, were subject to rights of access conferred by the Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-6240 (1991).

Crime victim was not entitled to access under Freedom of Information Law to photographs of himself taken by law enforcement officers, showing his injuries after being beaten, if photographs were maintained in criminal file sealed under CLS CPL § 160.50; if file was not sealed, photographs could be withheld from public on ground that disclosure would result in unwarranted invasion of personal privacy, but could not be withheld from crime victim, as person cannot invade his own privacy. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12318.

Records introduced into evidence or disclosed during public judicial proceeding must be disclosed; also, if certain crime scene photos have been disclosed, as evidence or otherwise, it is questionable or perhaps unlikely that others involving same locations or persons would reveal more, in terms of invasion of personal privacy, than those previously disclosed. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12579.

359. — —Sealed records; expunged materials

Written reports concerning criminal activity committed on school property submitted by a school district to a village police department and filed by the department are public records and may not be returned to the district nor expunged from the department's records, except in accordance with statutory procedures. 1983 NY Ops Atty Gen Mar 22 (informal).

360. — —Suicide investigations

Blanket denial of request for state police records relating to suicide investigation was inappropriate, as records about deceased persons are generally public; however, those portions which if disclosed would "disgrace the memory" of decedent may be withheld and, in context of suicide, privacy of others might also be considered. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9771.

Police department could not claim that records sought regarding murder investigation of incident that ended in suicide of alleged perpetrator could be withheld in their entirety on ground that they constituted intra-agency materials. CLS Pub O § 87(2)(e) would not likely serve as basis for denial of access to much of information sought regarding murder investigation that ended with suicide by alleged perpetrator. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12544.

State police reports related to homicide-suicide of husband and wife in their home did not fall within disclosure exception for law enforcement records under CLS Pub O § 87(2)(e)(iv); police had quickly determined that case involved homicide and suicide and, while event might not be characterized as routine, investigation ended quickly and it was unlikely that records compiled by police involved "non-routine" investigative techniques or procedures. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-16552.

361. — —Telephone calls, including 911 recordings

Records of "911" calls maintained by the New York City Police Department could be obtained under the Freedom of Information Law provided that the transmissions in question could have been or were heard by members of the public while listening to the police scanners. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-6278 (1990).

Details of long distance telephone bills made from county executive's office, as well as bills for cellular phone calls made by county executive, could not be withheld on ground that individuals to whom were made had absolute right to privacy; agency officials had duty to review records sought in their entirety, to determine if any portions might justifiably be withheld on other grounds. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-10270.

Fact that police department located 15 domestic incidents pertaining to particular family or address did not justify withholding Freedom of Information Law request for all police reports involving police calls to that family or address, on basis that confirmation of so many domestic incidents, even after deletion of identifying details, might constitute unwarranted invasion of privacy; presence of police vehicle at particular time and location is not secret, and record that refers to such event is public. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12299.

Under CLS County § 308(4), "records...of calls" means either recording or transcript of communication between person making 911 emergency call, and employee who receives call; statute cannot validly be construed to mean records regarding or relating to 911 call. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12544.

When 911 report relates to dwelling in which there are many tenants, description of complaint as sex offense or "domestic trbl" likely would not identify victim of such offense or those involved in domestic dispute; thus, absent personally identifiable details, city could not justify denial of access on basis of either CLS Civ R § 50-b or CLS Pub O § 87(2)(b) or § 89(2)(b). Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12741.

Presence of police vehicle at particular time and location due to call from complainant, family member or neighbor is not secret, and record that makes reference to such event would be public. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12741.

Printouts of electronic copies of 911 incident reports that indicate merely that certain event occurred would be analogous to disclosure of contents of traditional police blotter and, therefore, should be disclosed. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12741.

Existing records reflecting telephone use of public officer or employee in course of official duties would be relevant to performance of that person's official duties, and disclosure would not result in unwarranted invasion of personal privacy with respect to public employee who initiated call; however, exception to general rule of disclosure might arise with respect to recipient of call if, for example, telephone was used to contact recipients of public assistance, informants in context of law enforcement, or persons seeking certain health services, and thus there might be grounds for withholding phone numbers (or portions of them) due to status of those contacted. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2744.

362. — —Warrants; "use of force" records

Freedom of Information Law applied to any copies of search warrant (whose execution allegedly resulted in damage to home searched) maintained by police department, district attorney's office or another city agency and, if records in question were not sealed under CLS CPL § 160.15, there was unlikely to be any ground for denial inasmuch as warrant was already executed, and search made. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-11991.

363. — —Witness matters

Although witness statement recorded by police agency might be withheld if requested by a third party, it would likely be available to the person who made the statement. Comm on Open Govt FOIL-AO 3026.

Office of State Inspector General, which investigates allegations of fraud, corruption, waste and abuse within covered agencies, may redact from reports names and other identifying details concerning sources and witnesses under Freedom of Information Law on grounds that records were compiled for law enforcement purposes which, if disclosed, would identify confidential source, constitute unwarranted invasion of personal privacy, constitute information of personal nature that is not relevant to work of agency, constitute interagency or intra-agency materials which are not statistical or factual tabulations or data, instructions to staff or final agency policy, and finally disclosure of names of informants and witnesses could endanger life or safety of such informant or witness. 1986 Committee on Open Government FOIL-AO-4251.

Insofar as witness statements are part of motor vehicle accident reports, they must be disclosed in their entirety in most instances since, under CLS Pub O § 89(6), if records are available under some other provision of law or by means of judicial interpretation, grounds for denial appearing in CLS Pub O § 87(2) cannot be asserted. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12611.

CLS Pub O § 87(2)(e)(iii) might properly be asserted to withhold records regarding investigation of county property and employees that ended several years earlier, insofar as they included names or other identifying details pertaining to informants, witnesses and perhaps others. If there were no determination to effect that public employee engaged in misconduct, denial of access to records regarding investigation of county property and employees that ended several years earlier, based on considerations of privacy, would be consistent with Freedom of Information Law. Access to records relating to investigation of county property and employees could be denied under CLS CPL § 190.25(4) where matter went before grand jury. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12722.

364. — —Youths; juveniles

Arrest or booking records of youths prior to their adjudication as youthful offenders are subject to access under Freedom of Information Law until they are sealed under CLS CPL § 720.15. Comm on Open Govt FOIL-AO-3668.

Request for youthful offender investigation report from New York State Police is properly deniable under § 87[2][a] of FOIL, on ground that report is "specifically exempted from disclosure by state statute, (CPL, § 720.35[2]). Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4163.

As to whether police records containing information on juvenile and youthful offenders can be made available for public inspection, under CLS CPL § 720.15, rights of access to records pertaining to youthful offenders might depend upon timing of request and nature of charge, and records might often remain accessible until person is adjudicated youthful offender and, under CLS FCA § 784, records concerning juveniles would be withheld from public inspection unless certain exceptions applied. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4441.

"Juvenile Fire Intervention, Response and Education Committee" was not precluded from maintaining records concerning juveniles suspected of fire-setting activity in one community and, when suspects moved to another community, from sharing those records with appropriate authorities in new community; however, names of juvenile suspects could be withheld from public (1) to prevent unwarranted invasion of personal privacy, (2) to prevent interference with law enforcement investigations, and (3) because, even when there is finding of guilt, records pertaining to juveniles are confidential under CLS Family Ct Act § 784. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-10111.

Police department was not required to disclose names of youth suspected of committing acts of vandalism where they were not charged; further, even if youthful suspects were charged, records pertaining to them would be confidential due to their ages. Locations of acts vandalism were accessible because results of vandalism were visible to any passerby and nothing private was disclosed, and names of victims were also likely available because they were connected to addresses where vandalism occurred, and nothing intimate or personal would be disclosed; vandalism constitutes property crime, rather than contact with persons. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-10397.

As to request by criminal investigation subject for copies of complaints and statements received by district attorney's office, fact that records sought involve criminal investigation is not of itself basis for denying records, disclosure of records relating to completed investigation would not likely "interfere with" such investigation, complaint made by member of public cannot be denied under characterization as record "compiled for law enforcement purposes" and, though portions of complaint which identify the complainant typically may be deleted as unwarranted invasion of personal privacy, grounds for deletion may no longer exist where such identification has been previously disclosed. Comm On Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4528.

Request for "lineup worksheet" maintained by District Attorney and submitted as exhibit at requester's criminal trial would likely be available from trial court and, as such, would not be subject of any grounds for denial of access, grounds for denial would not apply to voucher listing property confiscated from requester, but as to police report resulting in lineup, portions might be withheld as constituting "unwarranted invasion of personal privacy, record compiled for law enforcement purposes whose disclosure would identify confidential source or reveal confidential information relating to criminal investigation, or record whose disclosure would endanger person's life or safety. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4561.

Agency may withhold records compiled for law enforcement purposes when they identify confidential source relating to criminal investigation, when disclosure would endanger life or safety of any person, or when disclosure would constitute unwarranted invasion of personal privacy; Freedom of Information Law does not require agency to create or prepare record or response to request. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4573.

If documents are not part of criminal investigation, and if criminal investigation has been completed, it is unlikely that records would be withheld. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4722.

Widely used records involving investigative techniques, such as fingerprint and ballistics test, and procedures such as interviewing potential witnesses and viewing crime scenes would not likely fall within scope of denial; authority to deny access under Freedom of Information Law pertains only to those criminal investigative techniques and procedures that are not "routine". Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4805.

Subpoenas issued by district attorney's office are agency records covered by Freedom of Information Law, rather than court records that fall beyond scope of that statute, as office of district attorney is "governmental entity" that performs a "governmental function"; as such, extent to which such records may be withheld is limited to grounds under CLS Pub O § 87(2). Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12027.

As nature and amount of information disclosed to public relating to criminal investigation or proceeding increases, extent to which Freedom of Information Law exception concerning privacy decreases. It would be difficult to justify denial of access to significant portions of criminal investigation records based on claim that disclosure would result in unwarranted invasion of privacy, even though there had not been trial, where substantial disclosures about defendant, his family, victims and community were made and disseminated over lengthy period of time both locally and nationally. Psychological records held by District Attorney and relating to criminal defendant might be withheld under CLS Pub O §§ 87(2)(b) and 89(2)(b); however, it might be in public interest, as well as positive law enforcement function, to disclose details concerning defendant's life since consideration of patterns of behavior and development of data about behavior may enable school and law enforcement officials to recognize inclination or proclivity to commit violent or antisocial acts, and preventive measures might be taken to prevent those acts from occurring. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12579.

General policy of withholding names of complainants or victims would be inconsistent with Freedom of Information Law, although denial of access to name of complainant or victim may be appropriate; under CLS Civ R § 50-b, police and other public officers are prohibited from disclosing identity of victim of sex offense, person's identity could likely be withheld under CLS Pub O § 87(2)(f) which permits agency to withhold records to extent that disclosure would "endanger the life or safety of any person," (which would include situation where complainant is in some way associated with organized crime or is confidential source), and same provision might apply when victim is senior citizen who lives alone. In context of criminal proceedings, variety of information is routinely disclosed: information equivalent to that disclosed during arraignment must be disclosed by police department or prosecutor; once information has been disclosed during public judicial proceeding, grounds for denying access under Freedom of Information Law no longer apply; and, when person is arrested, taken into custody and is committed to county jail, record must be maintained at jail that includes numerous details, all of which must be disclosed. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12605.

City records resulting from complaints and calls for investigations concerning activities occurring at property contiguous to applicant's residence might be deniable, while others would require disclosure, where portions, if disclosed, would enable potential lawbreakers to evade detection, or would endanger life of safety of officers or others. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12690.

Records presented to grand jury would ordinarily be outside scope of rights conferred by Freedom of Information Law, and thus any disclosure of those records would be based on court order or vehicle authorizing or requiring disclosure that is separate and distinct from Freedom of Information Law; however, if that record were presented or submitted into evidence during public proceeding, exemption from disclosure would no longer apply. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12694.

Ability of Crime Victims Board to gain access to records maintained by units of local government would be governed by CLS Exec § 623(4); grounds for denial appearing in CLS Pub O § 87(2) would not apply. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12934.

365. —Litigation, generally

366. — —Civil rights litigation

Prior to finding of probable cause, names of defendants and/or respondents in cases filed with Division of Human Rights may be withheld to protect their privacy in connection with filing of possible frivolous or scurrilous charges. Prior to finding of probable cause, names of complainants in cases filed with Division of Human Rights may be withheld to prevent unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8901.

"Results of the deposition" relating to applicant's complaint to Division of Human Rights, and case file concerning matter, could be withheld to extent that they identified persons other than applicant and disclosure would result in unwarranted invasion of their privacy; in addition, they could be withheld in accordance with CLS CPLR § 3101, while remaining aspects of records pertaining to applicant would appear to be accessible to applicant. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12592.

367. — —Courts and court records, generally

Freedom of Information Law does not apply to courts or court records; however, many court records are available pursuant to other provisions of law; because criminal procedure law provides that when criminal action or proceeding is dismissed in favor of accused and records relating to event are sealed, records of dismissal of action cannot be provided based upon the exemption of Criminal Procedure Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4947.

To extent that records kept by public administrator include information reflective of or equivalent to records available from surrogate's court, public administrator would be required to disclose those records under Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9650.

Records subject to CLS Jud § 90(10) may be disclosed only in conjunction with that statute, and Freedom of Information Law is inapplicable. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12140.

Courts and court records are not subject to Freedom of Information Law; however, court records are generally available under other provisions of law (e.g., CLS Jud § 255). Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12579.

368. — —Criminal cases, generally

If requester of records is currently party in ongoing criminal proceeding, and record sought may be relevant to that proceeding, records may not be available under Freedom of Information Law but other vehicles may be available to obtain those records. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4724.

Pendency of litigation does not affect either rights of public or civil or criminal litigant under Freedom of Information Law or ability of agency to withhold records sought under Freedom of Information Law in accordance with grounds for denial appearing in CLS Pub O § 87(2). Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8877.

369. — —Grand jury matters

Although police department records are used during grand jury proceedings, such use does not remove them from coverage of Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8322.

Applicant was entitled to disclosure of 1968 indictment against him since that indictment would have already been made available at time of indictment. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9172.

Police chief could not legitimately deny mayor's request for copy of charges filed against village employee who was arraigned and charged in open court because (1) court's record of proceeding was public, (2) although courts are not subject to Freedom of Information Law, CLS UJCA § 2019-a conferred right of access, (3) while police chief may have had physical custody of record in question, he had no legal custody or control over it, and (4) as person arraigned was village employee, mayor was seeking record in performance of his official duties as chief executive officer. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-11982.

Where request is made for access to records regarding lawsuits filed against village, legal memoranda or other legal papers which have been prepared for the village by an attorney and which have been disclosed to no one other than the client may be deemed confidential under CPLR §§ 4503 or 3101(d), but when such papers are filed with a court or served upon an adversary, any confidentiality that might have existed would be removed. Comm on Open Govt FOIL-AO 3051.

If record is available to public under Freedom of Information Law, it cannot be withheld solely because applicant is litigant or because records relate to litigation; however, file might nonetheless contain records consisting of attorney work product or material prepared for litigation, as well as records subject to attorney client privilege; these records would be specifically exempted from disclosure. Comm On Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4605.

If record is available under Freedom of Information Law, condition of agreeing not to sue in order to receive records pertaining to study of contaminated wells could not be imposed; only if record was prepared solely for litigation would denial on that basis be justified. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4628.

While communications between attorney and client are often privileged, records of monies paid and received by attorney or law firm for services rendered to client are not privileged and, therefore, are subject to disclosure under Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7508.

CLS Pub O § 87(2)(a) will not apply to records prepared or acquired in ordinary course of business, rather than for any purpose relating to litigation, notwithstanding their subsequent use in course of litigation. Records that are prepared for multiple purposes, one of which includes eventual use in litigation, may not be withheld from disclosure; only records that are prepared solely for litigation can be withheld from disclosure. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7549.

Although CLS CPLR § 3101(c) and (d) authorize confidentiality regarding work product of attorney and material prepared for litigation, those kinds of records remain confidential only so long as they are not disclosed to adversary or are filed with court; materials that are served upon or shared with adversary cannot be characterized as confidential or exempt from disclosure. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9152.

Portions of complaint that identify complainants may be withheld from disclosure pursuant to CLS Pub O § 87(2)(b) on ground that disclosure would result in unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9673.

Certifications and educational backgrounds of experts who testified at trial of individual requesting records must be disclosed, as issuance of certification is clearly relevant to performance of expert's duties, and disclosure of public employee's educational background does not constitute unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9967.

Insofar as bank could properly claim privileges under CPLR concerning its records, such records would continue to be privileged and, therefore, exempted from disclosure under Freedom of Information Law due to bank's attempt to preserve privilege as litigation materials despite fact that disclosure was required to another agency in separate matter. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12376.

Pendency of litigation would not affect either rights of public or litigant under Freedom of Information Law where applicant sought, inter alia, copies of particular contractor invoices relating to city department of public works, which were prepared in ordinary course of business. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12640.

370. —Police matters, generally

371. — —Arrest records

Police department's procedure for arrest and the use of a breathalyzer are accessible under Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-2975.

Information concerning arrest is maintained by Division of Criminal Justice Services in form of criminal history information and subject of that information, may, pursuant to Division's regulations, seek to amend or correct records pertaining to him. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4880.

With respect to records indicating arrests that did not result in convictions, disclosure would constitute unwarranted invasion of personal privacy; however, with respect to records of arrests for which underlying charges are still pending, those records generally would be accessible pursuant to Freedom of Information Law because records maintained by law enforcement agencies, as well as courts, indicating arrests and charges are in most instances accessible to public. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4983.

Although arrest records are not specifically mentioned in current Freedom of Information Law, original Law granted access to "police blotters and booking records," and, even though reference to those records is not made in current statute, such records continue to be available since present law was clearly intended to broaden rather than restrict rights of access. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8395.

If mug shot pertains to person against whom criminal charges are still pending, it should be disclosed under Freedom of Information Law; on other hand, if mug shot pertains to person against whom criminal charges were dismissed, mug shot or other records relating to matter would be sealed pursuant to CLS CPL § 160.50 and would not be available under Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8902.

If person is arrested and matter has not yet been finally determined, arrest or booking record must generally be made available; however, if person is charged and charge is dismissed, arrest and other records pertaining to incident typically are sealed pursuant to CLS CPL § 160.50 and are not available under Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8952.

Documents indicating names of persons arrested by city police, whether characterized as arrest record, incident report or otherwise, and whether is maintained on paper or electronically, constitutes "record" under Freedom of Information Law and, unless sealed under CLS CPL § 160.50, must be disclosed. Public's right of access to names of complainants or victims is dependent on attendant facts, and denial of access may be appropriate in some situations, but whether victim or complainant prefers to authorize or preclude disclosure is irrelevant. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9809.

Although arrest records are not specifically mentioned in current Freedom of Information Law, original law granted access to "police blotters and booking records" (CLS Pub O former § 88(1)(f)), and thus such records continue to be available, for present law was clearly intended to broaden rather than restrict rights of access. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12605.

Blanket denial of request for arrest records would be inconsistent with law and agency must review such records to ascertain extent to which they may properly be withheld. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-13395.

Language of law, judicial precedent and commonly accepted principles indicate that, in most cases, police records indicating blood alcohol levels of people charged with drunken driving (as well as their occupations, employers, eye color, weight and height) must be disclosed. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-16436.

372. — —Broadcasts

There might be basis to withhold records, dictaphone, dispatch or radio transmissions relating to traffic stop of particular individual if they were compiled for law enforcement purposes, if disclosure would result in unwarranted invasion of personal privacy with respect to identified individual, or as internal communications under CLS Pub O § 87(2)(g); however, tape recordings of certain communications broadcast over police radio might nevertheless be available. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9935.

Request for "911 police radio dispatch tapes" generated over 10 years earlier, and citing certain date, likely would meet standard of reasonably describing records if directed to small police department; on other hand, if 911 calls are received in different locations, due, for example, to size or population of county, request of that nature might not meet standard of reasonably describing records. There is distinction in application of Freedom of Information Law (FOIL) between "enhanced" 911 records and other 911 records; former are subject to CLS County § 308(4) and cannot be disclosed,, while latter—those that are not "enhanced" —are not subject to that statute, and rights of access to those records would be subject to FOIL. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12589.

373. — —Complaint follow-up reports (DD5s)

Neither police department nor district attorney's office can claim that DD5's can be withheld in their entirety on ground that they constitute intra-agency materials; once statements have been introduced in evidence or disclosed in judicial proceeding, they have lost their cloak of confidentiality and are generally available for public inspection. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9840.

In view of brevity and general contents of police department complaint follow-up reports, also known as "DD5s," exception for non-routine investigative techniques under CLS Pub O § 87(2)(e)(iii) would rarely serve as basis for withholding. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-10038.

374. — —Logs, memo books, notes, manuals and the like

Police activity log is "record" that falls within scope of Freedom of Information Law except to extent that its contents may be withheld in accordance with CLS Pub O § 87(2); agency must respond to request for information within 5 business days from receipt of request and this response can take 3 forms: it can grant access, deny access, and if so, denial should be in writing stating reasons therefor, or receipt of request may be acknowledged in writing if more than 5 business days are necessary to review or locate records; however, Committee on Open Government has no authority to enforce Freedom of Information Law, nor is it empowered to compel agency to grant or deny access to records. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4574.

Since contents of police blotters may vary, depending upon practice and policy of individual police departments, if, based upon custom and usage, police blotter is log or diary in which events reported by or to police department are recorded and merely contain summaries of events, other than investigative information, it is available. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4627.

Failure to use "actual form" as opposed to photocopy when requesting records from agency cannot constitute valid basis for delaying response to request or denying request; when request reasonably describes records sought and constitutes valid request for record under Freedom of Information Law, response is required in accordance with Law; because information contained in "pretrial identification manual" described techniques which were performed on routine basis by police departments generally, and because methods used in performing these techniques were not unique or confidential, manual must be disclosed. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4655.

To extent that training materials or manuals used by police department are reflective of routine criminal investigative techniques and procedures, manual cannot be withheld; however, aspects of manual that may indicate non-routine criminal investigative techniques or procedures or techniques or procedures, that may permit individuals to evade law enforcement can be denied access. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4906.

New York City Police Department improperly denied access to "homicide ledger," consisting of compilation of names, ages, and addresses and places of death of homicide victims in New York City, on ground that such record constituted intra-agency material, because information sought clearly consisted of factual data, and it was irrelevant that some of it related to investigations that were not yet closed. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-10122.

375. — —New York State police

Manuals relative to radar devices used by State Police are subject to access under Freedom of Information Law, since such manuals could not be characterized as records compiled for "law enforcement purposes," and since even if they could be characterized as such, contents of manuals would nonetheless be reflective of "routine techniques and procedures". Comm on Open Govt FOIL-AO-3498.

376. — —Police procedures and policies

Police department cannot require "special court order" in order to obtain photocopies of police blotter. Comm on Open Govt FOIL-AO-3424.

To extent that news media obtains police blotters or complaint reports pursuant to Freedom of Information Law, individual, as member of public, would enjoy same rights; when records are accessible under Freedom of Information Law, they should be made available to any person, without regard to status or interests. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4585.

Since contents of police blotters may vary, depending upon practice and policy of individual police departments, if, based upon custom and usage, police blotter is log or diary in which events reported by or to police department are recorded and merely contain summaries of events, other than investigative information, it is available. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4627.

Agency, including police department, is required to review records when request is made to determine extent, if any, to which one or more of grounds for denial might apply. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4689.

To extent that police activity log contains investigative information compiled for law enforcement purposes, only those portions could be withheld that would if disclosed result in harm; the remainder, however, falls outside of that provision. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4756.

Agency must meet burden of proof imposed by Freedom of Information Law by demonstrating harmful effects that would arise from disclosure of records; since some aspects in policies or regulations of police department relating to political activities, demonstrations and police surveillance may reveal criminal investigative techniques or procedures, nondisclosure to public would be justified because such information would enable potential law breakers to evade detection. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4903.

To extent that training materials or manuals used by police department are reflective of routine criminal investigative techniques and procedures, manual cannot be withheld; however, aspects of manual that may indicate non-routine criminal investigative techniques or procedures, or techniques or procedures that may permit individuals to evade law enforcement can be denied access. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4906.

If medical personnel seek information pursuant to statement of policy, policy would be available; exception to rights of access might exist if examination is conducted for law enforcement purpose, and if disclosure would reveal non-routine criminal investigative techniques or procedures that would enable recipient to evade detection or enforcement of law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4943.

Where police blotter contains no investigative information, but instead contains merely summary of events or occurrences, public has right to review or "browse through" it. Police blotter which contains no investigative information, but instead contains merely summary of events or occurrences, is likely to be characterized as record compiled in ordinary course of business, rather than record "compiled for law enforcement purposes" within meaning of CLS Pub O § 87(2)(e). When police blotters or other records are prepared by employees of police department, they could be characterized as "intra-agency materials"; however, insofar as they consist of factual information, for example, they would be available under Freedom of Information Law, unless different ground for denial applies. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7603.

Records indicating expenditure of public monies for mayor's police protection were available, unless, in conjunction with CLS Pub O § 87(2)(f), it could be demonstrated that portions of those records described equipment, procedure, or means of providing security so unique that disclosure would enable potential lawbreakers to evade detection, engage in unlawful acts and, therefore, endanger person's life or safety. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7930.

Police department policy or guideline that restricts disclosure of crime victims' names in all cases is inconsistent with Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7931.

When police blotters, logs or other records are prepared by agency employees, they could be characterized as "intra-agency materials," within meaning of CLS Pub O § 87(2)(g); however, insofar as they consist of factual information, for example, they are available, unless different ground for denial applies. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8352.

Irrespective of whether document is characterized as police blotter or "General Incident Report" or whether it is maintained on paper or electronically, it would constitute "record" subject to rights of access conferred by Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8546.

It appeared that those portions of policies or procedure manuals pertaining to stolen vehicles which, if disclosed, would enable potential lawbreakers to evade detection could likely be withheld under CLS Pub O § 87(2)(e)(iv). Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9223.

Freedom of Information Law (FOIL) request for access to police blotter relating to incident in which person in police custody, who was not charged with any crime, was allegedly "slammed" against wall by police officer, was improperly denied on ground that it included "investigative material" as (1) there is no general FOIL exception for investigative material, (2) police records indicating that event (e.g., crime or accident) occurred at particular location are accessible, and (3) only to extent that disclosure would result in harmful effects described in CLS Pub O[8]7(2)(e)(i)-(iv) would police department have authority to withhold information under that provision. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-11988.

Basis for denial of applicant's appeal was incomplete and inadequate, and blanket denial of request was inconsistent with law, where applicant sought records related to particular assault arrest entry in village police blotter, including defendant's name, date of birth, address, charges, any victim names and any reports on circumstances surrounding request; records must be reviewed for purpose of identifying those portions of records that might fall within scope of one or more of grounds for denial of access. Unless arrest or booking record has been sealed under CLS CPL § 160.50, it must be disclosed; under that statute, when criminal charges have been dismissed in favor of accused, records relating to arrest ordinarily are sealed and, in those instances, records would be exempted from disclosure by statute under CLS Pub O § 87(2)(a). Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12605.

Police department guidelines addressed to precinct supervisory staff giving uniformed police officers authority or direction to "strip search" individuals who had been arrested for non-felony offenses should disclosed insofar as they are "routine" or they would not endanger life or safety of any person. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-13330.

Record of police officers and detectives on duty during specific days cannot be withheld on basis of CLS Pub O § 87(2)(g) since duty roster contains factual information rather than opinions or recommendations. Comm on Open Govt FOIL-AO-3722.

Under CLS Pub Off § 87(2)(e) and (g), request for Nassau County police department's policy and procedure for administering urinalysis to any applicant seeking employment as police officer should not be denied, where law enforcement purpose of records in question was tangential to main purpose of establishing qualification of applicants for public employment; whether procedures used in employment screening process could be equated with those used in criminal investigation was questionable, records sought would not identify "confidential source" or relate to "criminal investigation" and policies and procedures in question would qualify either as "intra-agency" materials or "instructions to staff that affect the public". Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4396.

As to request for accident reports involving Ticonderoga town police vehicles operated by named police officer, under CLS Pub O §§ 66-a and 87(2)(e)(i), fact that litigation may be pending with respect to certain accidents would have no bearing upon rights of access and only situation in which a denial would be proper would involve disclosure that would "interfere" with investigation or prosecution of crime related to accident. Comm On Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4524.

Records maintained by police department, to extent that they continue to exist, will be subject to rights conferred by Freedom of Information Law; that is not to suggest that all records will be accessible, but that they will be subject to rights of access granted by Law; as general matter, administrative manuals are accessible pursuant to CLS Pub O § 87(2)(g); however, those manuals prepared or used by law enforcement agencies may be accessible or deniable depending upon effects of disclosure. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4661.

Police roll call or attendance record will not likely be characterized as record compiled for law enforcement purposes, rather, it appears to be record prepared in ordinary course of business; with exception of police officers' home addresses, roll call reports are available, because disclosure would result in permissible rather than unwarranted invasion of personal privacy; blanket denial of records may be inappropriate when only portions of records may be deniable, with remainder excessible. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4694.

Police Department is agency in accordance with definition in CLS Pub Off § 86(3) and as such is subject to Freedom of Information Law; sign in log for auxiliary police officers containing names of officers and times and dates they performed their duties or training should be made available under Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4728.

In connection with request for breakdown of cost of mayor's police protection from its inception to present, CLS Pub O § 87(2)(b) could not justify withholding of information since request did not seek names of police officers or bodyguards assigned to mayor or his home or who engaged in training, travel or purchases associated with protection of mayor. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7930.

Where applicant prepared report of complaint and later sought copy of complaint from police department, there would likely be no valid basis upon which department could rely to justify withholding copy from applicant under Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8317.

Fact that some aspects of police reports might properly be withheld does not enable police department to withhold them in their entirety; rather, police department must disclose records, to extent required by Freedom of Information Law, perhaps after having made deletions in accordance with grounds for denial appearing in Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8546.

DD5's and police officers' memo books may be accessible or deniable under Freedom of Information Law, in whole or in part, depending on their contents. Portions of DD5's and police officers' memo books may be withheld from disclosure if disclosure would endanger life or safety of any person within meaning of CLS Pub O § 87(2)(f). Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8958.

Freedom of Information Law does not apply to police department records concerning sex offense, and CLS Civ R § 50-b (which exempts records identifiable to victim of sex offense from disclosure) does not confer rights of access to such records even though requestor is person charged. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-10204.

Information contained in boxes indicating race and ethnicity on city police Field Interview Forms (FIFs) would be accessible, absent personally identifying details or other data collected and included in FIFs. Applicants request for city police Field Interview Forms (FIFs), despite volume of material, met requirement of "reasonably describing" records and could not be rejected due to its breadth. City would be obliged to provide information regarding race and ethnicity contained on police Field Interview Forms (FIFs) if city had ability to generate such data, if it had capacity to segregate that data from items that need not be disclosed, and if applicant were willing to pay actual cost of reproduction as envisioned by CLS Pub O § 87(1)(b)(iii). Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12565.

Names or other identifying details pertaining to police officers who were subjects of complaints or investigations could be deleted from records sought under CLS Civ R § 50-a; remainder, however, would be subject to Freedom of Information Law and would be available unless other elements of records might be justifiably withheld. If complaint of police misconduct included identity of complainant, identifying details pertaining to that person may be withheld on ground that disclosure would constitute "an unwarranted invasion of personal privacy"; provision might also be cited insofar as records identify witnesses, family members related to complainant, and perhaps others. With regard to records of police use of physical force, police department's standard operating procedures would reflect final agency policies and must be disclosed, as must records reflective of organizational structure of department and other policies and procedures, except to extent that disclosure would reveal other than routine criminal investigative techniques or procedures or would if disclosed endanger life or safety of police officers or others. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12655.

To extent that disclosure would reveal city's collective bargaining strategy in relation to present or imminent collective bargaining negotiations or hamper ability of city to engage in negotiations optimal to its taxpayers, it is likely that CLS Pub O § 87(2)(c) could be asserted to prevent disclosure of documents and memoranda relating to negotiations and discussions of future contract between city and police officers. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12655.

"Factual context", specific contents of records, and effects of their disclosure are factors that must be considered in determining extent to which police department records may be withheld or, conversely, must be disclosed. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12702.

377. —Prisons and prisoners, generally

378. — —Directives to correctional staff; manuals

Rules and directives issued by Department of Correctional Services applicable to inmates concerning religious mail, overseas correspondence mailing privileges and receipt of religious newspapers from foreign countries, are subject to access pursuant to CLS Public Officers Law § 87(2)(g)(iii). Comm on Open Govt FOIL-AO-3536.

Regulations of department of correctional services pursuant to Freedom of Information Law require that superintendent of correctional facility acts as records access officer. Comm On Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4606.

To extent that department of correction services employee rule book is reflective of routine criminal investigative techniques and procedures, it cannot be withheld from disclosure; nevertheless, other aspects of rule book might indicate non-routine criminal investigative techniques or procedures, and, to that extent, rule-book could be denied. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4785.

Even though intra-agency material, such as employee rule book of department of correctional services which is reflective of routine criminal investigative techniques and procedures, may not be withheld from disclosure, other aspects of rule book might indicate non-routine criminal investigative techniques or procedures, and, to that extent, rule book could be denied access. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4803.

Even though intraagency material, such as employee rule book of department of correctional services which is reflective of routine criminal investigative techniques and procedures, may not be withheld from disclosure, other aspects of rule book might indicate non-routine criminal investigative techniques or procedures, and, to that extent, rule book could be denied access. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4803.

Program and security assessment summary report, prepared by correctional counselor, is intra-agency record consisting of both factual and evaluative materials pertaining to particular inmate; copy of report can be made available as long as evaluative portions are deleted. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4842.

Freedom of Information Law pertains to existing records and if there is no record that lists all inmates and correction officers who were transported to correctional facility, Department of Correctional Services would not be required to create such records based on request. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4877.

Disclosure of identities of state employees including employees of Department of Correctional Services would not in most circumstances endanger life or safety; however, in those circumstances in which law enforcement agency has engaged employees in undercover positions, names of these employees may be deleted from portions of payroll record which identify them with justification based on endangerment of life or safety. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4894.

Freedom of Information Law pertains to agency records, including those maintained by Department of Correctional Services and its facilities. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4953.

Freedom of Information Law requires that applicant reasonably describe records sought, so, when making request, sufficient detail should be provided so to enable agency officials to locate records; further, regulations promulgated by Department of Correctional Services pursuant to Freedom of Information Law indicate that, for records kept at facility, request may be directed to facility superintendent. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4956.

Regulations of Department of Correctional Services pursuant to Freedom of Information Law indicate that a request for records kept at a correctional facility should be directed to the facility superintendent or his designee. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-6313 (1990).

Envelope which contained birthday card mailed by inmate to individual who was discovered to be incarcerated in another state was record subject to disclosure under Freedom of Information Law, rather than physical evidence to which Freedom of Information Law did not apply. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8510.

With regard to access to county jail's procedure on strip searches and strip frisks, it was likely that those portions which, if disclosed, would endanger life or safety of law enforcement officers or others could be withheld under CLS Pub O § 87(2)(f). Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9701.

No grounds for denial contained in CLS Pub O § 87(2)(a) could be justifiably asserted to deny request for records identifying inmates who were transported to court with applicant on particular date. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9722.

Disclosure of inmates' names and cell locations would not result in unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9870.

"Program history data" concerning inmates, if maintained by Department of Correctional Services, is available under Freedom of Information Law at least to extent that it is available under department regulations. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9929.

Correctional facility's purchase orders and similar records are typically available under Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-10100.

Under Freedom of Information Law and Personal Privacy Protection Law, inmate's dental records may not be released to Attorney General in pending civil suit without inmate's consent, as such disclosure would constitute unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12049.

Under CLS Pub O § 87(2)(e)(iv) and (2)(f), respectively, correctional facility could withhold any portions of its Medical Policy and Procedures Manual which, if disclosed, would enable potential lawbreakers to evade detection or endanger life or safety of any person; however, portions of manual that are "routine" and would not preclude employees from carrying out their duties effectively must be disclosed. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12050.

Records relating to incident that occurred at correctional facility in which inmate sustained personal injuries—including overall directive on search procedures, specially designed program for infirmary command, directions governing persons designated "assaultive" prisoners, and institutional orders devised to govern movements of particular inmates—constituted intra-agency materials that fell within scope of CLS Pub O § 87(2)(g); however, instructions to staff that affect public or agency's policy would be available, while denial of access would be appropriate to extent that records included descriptions of investigative techniques which if disclosed would enable potential lawbreakers to evade detection or endanger lives or safety of law enforcement personnel or others. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12561.

Division of Parole's regulations prohibiting release of inmate records received and/or prepared by another agency cannot diminish rights of access conferred by statute, such as Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12728.

If inmate seeks access to his own rap sheet, he should submit request to Division of Criminal Justice Services rather than to Division of Parole. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12728.

Availability of records related to DNA sample requester was required to provide as inmate would be governed by CLS Exec § 995-c, which authorizes Division of Criminal Justice Services to establish state DNA identification index and permits disclosure to inmate only for "criminal defense purposes." Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-13038.

Records related to DNA testing of applicant's blood sample—specifically test results and testing and storage procedures—may be disclosed only to extent authorized in CLS Exec § 995-d(2). Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-13152.

Blanket or categorical denial of access to inmate's records is inconsistent with Freedom of Information Law, and ability to protect inmate's privacy is "far from absolute." Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3784.

Variety of information concerning any person confined in county jail is clearly public, including fact of person's commitment. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3784.

379. —Tape recordings; videotapes

380. — —Visitor logs

If county correctional center maintained and could locate records indicating units in which inmate in question was housed, such records would be available under Freedom of Information Law. If visitors' log or similar documentation was kept in plain sight and could be viewed by any person, and if staff at county correctional center had ability to locate portions of log pertaining to particular individuals based upon information provided by applicant, those portions of log would be available under Freedom of Information Law; however, if visitors' log or similar documents were not kept in plain sight and could not ordinarily be viewed, visitors log could be withheld on ground that disclosure would constitute unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8321.

If inmate's name or other identifier can be used to locate records or portions of records that would identify inmate's visitors, it would likely be easy to retrieve that information, and request would reasonably describe records; on other hand, if there are chronological logs of visitors and each page would have to be reviewed in effort to identify visitors of particular inmate, agency staff would not be required to engage in such extensive search. Insofar as prison visitor logs or similar records identified other inmates and their visitors, those portions of records could be withheld on ground that disclosure would constitute unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8439.

Assuming that visitor's log is maintained by jail as required by state regulations, it is subject to rights of access conferred by Freedom of Information Law. If visitor's log or similar documentation at jail is kept in plain sight and can be viewed by any person, and if staff at facility has ability to locate portions of log of interest to applicant, those portions of log would be available under Freedom of Information Law; however, if visitors log or similar documents are not kept in plain sight and cannot ordinarily be viewed, those portions of log pertaining to persons other than applicant could be withheld on ground that disclosure would constitute unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9228.

Jail visitation logs which are kept in plain sight, and can be viewed by any person, are accessible under Freedom of Information Law if staff is able to locate requested portions of log; however, if log is not kept in plain sight and cannot ordinarily be viewed, it can be withheld on basis that disclosure would constitute unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9771.

If local law enforcement authorities maintain videotapes of camera surveillance of persons confined in local jails, such videotapes constitute "records" subject to rights of access granted by Freedom of Information Law, however, as such videotapes may show intimate details of peoples' lives, disclosure may constitute unwarranted invasion of personal privacy of persons on such tapes. 1986 Committee on Open Government FOIL-AO-4335.

Once department of correctional services enables inmates' attorneys to view video tapes, it appears that department has waived its capacity to deny request by either inmate, who is subject of tape, or attorney of inmate who is acting in representative capacity on behalf of inmate; similarly, if viewing tape did not constitute unwarranted invasion of personal privacy of employees involved, disclosure of duplicate of tape would not constitute unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4697.

While inmate of correctional facility was entitled to obtain copies of tape recordings of hearings at a correctional facility, such recordings could not be kept by the inmate in his cell; rather, recordings must be kept by facility officials who will permit inmate to listen to the tapes as many times as the inmate wishes. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-6160 (1990).

Although record reflective of demonstration of personal religious beliefs or activities can be withheld from disclosure under Freedom of Information Law on ground that disclosure would constitute unwarranted invasion of personal privacy, inmate was entitled to disclosure of videotape of Jehovah Witness Assembly during which he was baptized, which was maintained by Ministerial Services Division of Department of Correctional Services, at least to extent of aspects of videotape that depicted activities witnessed by him. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9365.

Inmate who requested tape recording of hearing conducted at prison facility would have right to listen to or obtain copy of tape recording, upon payment of appropriate fee, if he was present at hearing; if he was not present, one or more grounds for denial might apply under CLS Pub O § 87(2). Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12231.

Department of Correctional Services is required to review videotapes falling within scope of Freedom of Information Law request to attempt to ascertain extent to which their contents fall within grounds for denial appearing in statute. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-13528.

381. —Sentencing, generally

382. — —Parole

When requesting transcript of hearing before parole board, request should be directed to agency which maintains such records—division of parole; however, while making such requests, sufficient detail should be provided as to enable agency officials to locate records. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4634.

Results of parole revocation hearing are available only to person to whom they pertain under Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4847.

File concerning individual who had been paroled and died of drug overdose one month after his release was generally public, but Division of Parole could withhold portions of file which would "disgrace the memory of the deceased"; in addition, there might be privacy concerns relating to deceased's family, or crime victims identified in file. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9926.

Exceptions to disclosure of records under 9 NYCRR § 8000.5(c)(2)(i) appeared consistent with grounds for withholding records under CLS Pub O § 87(2) and thus, in response to inmate's request for case record prior to his parole hearing, Division of Parole could withhold diagnostic opinions, records identifying sources of information obtained on promise of confidentiality, information which if disclosed would endanger life or safety of person, and pre-sentence reports and memoranda; however, division was required to disclose case summary and all other records to be considered at hearing that were not deniable under regulations or Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9979.

Monthly calendars of parole board appearances at certain correctional facilities were accessible under Freedom of Information Law because, while calendars might not be final and might be revised, they would not contain kind of information (i.e., opinion or advice) that could be withheld under CLS Pub O § 87(2)(g). List of inmates interviewed by parole board was accessible under Freedom of Information Law because it was analogous to "commitment" information required to be disclosed under other provisions of law, and it was not so intimate or personal that disclosure would result in unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-10181.

Stated policy of Division of Parole, to honor requests made under Freedom of Information Law (FOIL) only in accordance with certain criteria, was invalid insofar as it was inconsistent with FOIL and judicial construction of FOIL. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12248.

383. — —Pre-sentencing reports

Pre-sentence reports, which are sometimes called probation reports, are generally considered confidential under criminal procedure law § 390.50. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4761.

Pre-sentence reports are confidential with respect to public and may be made available to defendant only by court. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4881.

Pre-sentence reports are confidential under CLS Criminal Procedure Law § 390.50 with respect to the public, and may be made available to a defendant only by the sentencing court. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-6309 (1990).

384. — —Probation

Probation report which is equivalent of pre-sentence report is exempt from disclosure under CLS CPL § 390.50; psychological evaluation prepared by staff of Department of Correction Services which reflects opinion is exempt. Committee on Open Government FOIL-AO-3332.

Where requester requests commitment papers, which include person's sentence, probation officer's report, fingerprints, medical, psychiatric and other records, of co-defendants, this request would likely be withheld on ground that disclosure would constitute an unwarranted invasion of personal privacy; likewise, letter sent from district attorney to officials of Department of Correctional Services offering advice or recommendations, would be considered inter-agency materials and would be withheld. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4682.

Record identifying person on probation and his or her probation officer is not subject to disclosure under Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8896.

Records identifiable to persons on probation are beyond scope of public rights of access under Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12483.

If request involves records related to sentencing, records sought would be maintained by court rather than "agency"; if this is so, Freedom of Information Law would not be applicable. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4598.

"Victim notice", which may be filed by victim or family member of victim pursuant to CLS Correc § 149-a, need not be disclosed under Freedom of Information Law since disclosure would constitute unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. "Victim notice" might be protected from disclosure under Freedom of Information Law under CLS Pub O § 82(2)(f) if disclosure would endanger life or safety of any person. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7909.

Records of Department of Correctional Services consisting of instructions to staff that affect public or agency's policy would be available under Freedom of Information Law, and would not be subject to inter- or intra-agency exception, unless different basis for denial could be asserted. Those portions of records of Department of Correctional Services which, if disclosed, would enable potential lawbreakers to evade detection could likely be withheld under Freedom of Information Law; nevertheless, other portions of records might be "routine" and might not, if disclosed, preclude employees from carrying out their duties effectively. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12492.

Information described in CLS Correc § 168-b(1)(a) through (d) comprises content of and is registry of sex offenders, and information contained in registry may be made available only in accordance with provisions of Sex Offenders Registration Act. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-13029.

Copies of records pertaining to requester "from the South Carolina Department of Probation, Parole and Pardon Services that are in the possession of the NYS Division of Parole" cannot be characterized as being exempted from disclosure by CLS Exec § 259-k; also, regulations (such as 9 NYCRR § 8000.5) do not serve to enable agency to withhold records that would otherwise be available under Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-13125.

385. —Traffic violations

List of all authorized or licensed bingo halls in state is subject to access under Freedom of Information Law, provided such records exist and are maintained by state Racing and Wagering Board. Comm on Open Govt FOIL-AO-3539.

Information regarding sales and prize disbursements by lottery agents should be available to public access under Freedom of Information Law where, under CLS Pub Off § 87(2)(d), such information could not be characterized as "trade secrets" or as "information maintained for the regulation of commercial enterprise" and, where there is nothing unique to particular agent in terms of sales of lottery tickets, disclosure of information sought would not cause "substantial injury" to competitive position" of an agent individually, and under §§ 87(2)(b) and 89(2)(b), whether or not information sought clearly pertained to natural person, denial of access based upon privacy provisions is inappropriate. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4446.

As to request for records indicating sales of lottery tickets and amounts of winnings distributed by lottery agents in Onondaga County, contentions that Lottery provides sales information to IRS, which does not disclose personal tax returns or extracts therefrom, that lottery agents might be endangered if information sought is made available, that agents object to being bombarded by vendors who wish to sell them products, and that providing information is expenditure of taxpayer dollars unwarranted for purpose requested are insufficient to support denial of such request. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4469.

Traffic Safety Law Enforcement and Disposition (TSLED) database compiled by Department of Motor Vehicles was subject to disclosure irrespective of department's policy not to release personally identifiable data contained therein as (1) disclosure of data with respect to judges and justices constitutes permissible invasion of privacy because it relates to performance of their official duties, (2) insofar as disclosure pertained to motorists, Vehicle and Traffic Law violations lists compiled by state police must be disclosed unless charges were dismissed and records sealed under Criminal Procedure Law, and (3) information sought would be available from courts under CLS Jud § 255 and CLS UJCA § 2019-a, and from department under CLS Veh & Tr § 508(3). Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-10044.

Requestor, having been charged with speeding by town police officer, was entitled to disclosure (to extent request involved existing records) of calibration and maintenance records for radar unit used by officer, calibration certificate, tuning fork used to calibrate radar unit, town's FCC license, and list of models, makes and serial numbers of all radar units used by town; however, disclosure of police officer's radar training certificate was personnel record whose disclosure was prohibited by CLS Civ R § 50-a. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12198.

Division of State Police improperly denied request for records relating to speeding ticket on ground that case was still pending and requested records were compiled for law enforcement purposes, where case had been dismissed at trial; police should have ascertained actual status of case, avoiding inappropriate denial of access. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12223.

New York City Department of Transportation should not have denied request for records indicating locations of cameras used in city's Red Light Camera Program since such disclosures are routinely made through distribution of Notices of Liability, and disclosure may be beneficial and proper despite law enforcement exception under FOIL, given possibility that knowledge of camera's location may encourage drivers to obey and comply with law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12412.

Fact that "criminal records database" was maintained by Office of Court Administration (OCA) did not transform it into court record; however, OCA was not required by Freedom of Information Law to honor request for "updates on a monthly basis" to extent that such request was prospective in nature. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12,343.

Office of City Prosecutor is "agency" required to comply with Freedom of Information Law; thus, records pertaining to city code violation complaint directed to City Prosecutor must be made available under FOIL. Comm on Open Govt FOIL-AO-3727.

Records of complaints made against applicant and his business directed to town building department are subject to Freedom of Information application after deletion of information identifying complainant, and such complaints cannot be characterized as record compiled for law enforcement purposes. 1986 Committee on Open Government FOIL-AO-4235.

Freedom of Information Law may not be used to obtain copies of all records pertaining to criminal charges that have been dismissed and sealed by court; Criminal Procedure Law contains correct procedure for obtaining such records. Comm On Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4604.

Officials of Division of Criminal Justice Services and other agencies may withhold "rap sheets" which are disseminated by Division. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4888.

If medical personnel seek information pursuant to statement of policy, policy would be available; exception to rights of access might exist if examination is conducted for law enforcement purpose, and if disclosure would reveal non-routine criminal investigative techniques or procedures that would enable recipient to evade detection or enforcement of law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4943.

When complaint is made, there may be considerations of privacy that properly result in denial of access to records or perhaps deletion of identifying details to protect against unwarranted invasion of personal privacy; however, if complaint was sent by person who made it to members of news media, disclosure would not result in unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4946.

Freedom of Information Law pertains to agency records, including those maintained by Department of Correctional Services and its facilities. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4953.

Since conviction occurs during public judicial proceeding, and since records pertaining to convictions are generally available from court where proceeding was conducted, conviction records held by municipality or any agency should be available pursuant to Freedom of Information Law; further, if records are public from one source, such as court, disclosure would not result in unwarranted invasion of personal privacy if record is available from another source. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4963.

Power of attorney signed by person in favor of his mother was sufficient for mother to obtain copies of records pertaining to her son, and Saratoga County District Attorney was in error in stating that person's mother would need a court order to obtain copies of the records. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-6287 (1990).

Whether records maintained by "licensing officer" should be characterized as court records or agency records is conjectural; while functions of licensing officers are carried out by judges in most locations in state, in other locations, same functions are carried out by commissioners of police or county sheriff and, therefore, functions of licensing officers do not appear to be inherently judicial in nature. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7918.

Law enforcement exception would not apply to disclosure of Citywide Facility Inventory Database (CFID) maintained and made available by New York City Department of Environmental Protection (DEP). Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12559.

386. Lottery, bingo and other games of chance

Data contained in Statewide Planning and Research Cooperative System (SPARCS), insofar as it includes personally identifiable information concerning patients, need not be disclosed under Freedom of Information Law since disclosure would constitute unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7947.

In those instances in which Lottery has taken action on its own initiative to disclose identity of lottery winner by means of press release, information contained in release must be disclosed in response to later request made under Freedom of Information Law; disclosure of that information some time after its initial issuance could not result in unwarranted invasion of privacy. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9143.

Although status of applicant and purposes for which request is made are irrelevant to rights of access, and agency cannot ordinarily inquire as to intended use of records, rights of access to list of names and addresses, or equivalent records, may be contingent on purpose for which request is made due to language of CLS Pub O § 89(2)(b)(iii); thus, if request for full name of winners of lottery since its inception, current address of each winner, amount of initial award to each winner and date of award to each winner was sought in order to develop mailing list or its equivalent to be used for commercial or fund-raising purposes, statute could apply to deny access to requested information. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9143.

Department of Health and its commissioner have primary responsibility in relation to vital records and genealogical searches. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12010.

County Department of Health improperly denied Freedom of Information Law request for copy of "re-inspection" report pertaining to requestor's apartment building on ground that it was only written on memo form and not on official document, and that it was not relevant to litigation in which requestor was involved. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12217.

Record of medical emergency call consists in great measure of what might be characterized as medical record or history relating to person needing care or service; thus, portions of records identifying those to whom medical services were rendered, their ages, and descriptions of their medical problems or conditions could be withheld, while other aspects of records, such as locations of calls or addresses, should be disclosed. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12608.

387. Medicine and health, generally

388. —Environmental records

The disclosure of medical histories of paid firemen of a fire district without permission, generally, would constitute an unwarranted invasion of the personal privacy of such firemen. 1982 Op St Compt File #82-204.

Incident reports required to be submitted by hospitals to health department pursuant to § 405.37 of regulations promulgated by commissioner of health are accessible to public except to extent that they identify patients, in which case patients names or other identifying details could be deleted. Comm On Open Gov't FOIL-AO-3964.

Regarding medical records, it has generally been suggested that statistical or factual information contained within such records are available but that portions of medical records consisting of advice, recommendation, opinion, and like may justifiably be withheld. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4059.

Medical information contained in ambulance run record of fire department could be withheld on ground that disclosure can constitute unwarranted invasion of personal privacy, except to extent that record refers to agency name and other information that has already been disclosed by means of motor vehicle accident report. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4786.

With respect to medical records, Freedom of Information Law permits that some records may be withheld in whole or in part, depending upon their contents because medical records prepared by agency personnel could be characterized as intra-agency materials and to extent that such materials consist of advice, opinion, recommendation and like, Freedom of Information Law would permit denial. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4943.

With respect to medical records, Freedom of Information Law permits that some records may be withheld in whole or in part, depending upon their contents; medical records prepared by department personnel could be characterized as intra-agency materials that fall within scope of Freedom of Information Law and to extent that such materials consist of advice, opinion, recommendation and like, Freedom of Information Law would permit denial. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4953.

Disclosure of data contained in Statewide Planning and Research Cooperative System (SPARCS) which includes names of patients, their addresses, social security numbers, Medicaid numbers or similar identifiers would result in unwarranted invasion of personal privacy; however, if those unique personal identifiers were deleted or removed, it was difficult to envision how disclosure of several items characterized in relevant Department of Health regulations as deniable could possibly identify patient or, therefore, result in unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. Insofar as information contained in Statewide Planning and Research Cooperative System (SPARCS) would identify entities, such as hospitals or insurance companies rather than natural persons, information could not be withheld based upon considerations of privacy. Department of Health could not restrict disclosure of information contained in Statewide Planning and Research Cooperative System (SPARCS) on basis that information would identify physicians who treated various patients. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7947.

CLS Pub Health § 18 deals specifically with patient's rights of access to medical records and, therefore, Freedom of Information Law does not apply to patient's request for such records. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8312.

With regard to request for records directed to Department of Health relating to incidents that occurred at specific hospital, CLS Pub O § 87(2)(b) would apply to permit denial of access to protect personal privacy. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9651.

New York State Cancer Registry records of cancer site specific diagnoses and deaths from period 1976-1997 for particular county should be disclosed under Freedom of Information Law since such data would not, under terms of CLS Pub Health § 2402, "disclose the identity of any person" and would not be unwarranted invasion of personal privacy; anyone anywhere could interview persons residing in particular locale and question them about incidence of certain diseases and any such disclosures, which would not be required by law, would be irrelevant to authority to withhold records. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12402.

If New York City Department of Environmental Protection (DEP) is required by NYC Admin Code § 24-707 to print entire contents of its Citywide Facility Inventory Database (CFID), equivalent information must also be made available in electronic format; whether information is stored on paper or on computer tape or in computer disk, it constitutes "record." Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12559.

390. — —Autopsy

In connection with request to city department of investigation for copies of all memoranda, reports and/or other written documents relating to investigation of handling of autopsy of person who died 5 years ago, it is difficult to envision how disclosure would result in unwarranted invasion of personal privacy with respect to deceased. Comm on Open Govt FOIL-AO-3656.

Inmate's ability to gain access to autopsy reports related to his case was dependent on his capacity to demonstrate his substantial interest in records in accordance with NYC Charter § 557(g). Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9880.

Freedom of Information Law is inapplicable as basis for seeking or obtaining autopsy report or other records described in CLS County § 677(3)(b); however, while only district attorney and next of kin of deceased have right of access to records subject to § 677 and any others would be required to obtain court order based on showing of substantial interest in records sought to gain right of access, § 677 does not specify that disclosures are prohibited. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12019.

Requester's ability to gain access to autopsy reports and related records would be dependent on requester's capacity to demonstrate that he or she has substantial interest in records in accordance with NYC Charter § 557(g). Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-13019.

Freedom of Information Law is inapplicable as basis for seeking or obtaining autopsy report or other records described in CLS County § 677. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-13080.

Autopsy photographs taken, not by Associate Medical Examiner, but rather by State Police Investigator, might not fall under restrictions imposed by CLS County § 677; if § 677 applies, court order would ordinarily be required to gain access to such records, but if § 677 does not apply, Freedom of Information Law would govern rights of access. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-13080.

By disclosing autopsy photographs in open court, public disclosure would have already been made; once that occurs, unless record is later sealed, nothing in Freedom of Information Law would serve to enable agency to deny access to such record. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-13080.

Freedom of Information Law is inapplicable as basis for seeking or obtaining autopsy report or other records described in CLS County § 677. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3158.

391. — —Mental health

Although CLS Mental Hygiene Law § 33.13 provides that clinical records pertaining to patients at mental health facilities are generally confidential, Mental Hygiene Law § 33.16 describes the procedures for a patient, or person authorized to act on behalf of a patient, to request inspection or copies of mental health records from the mental health facility that maintains the records. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-6286 (1990).

Pursuant to CLS Pub O § 87(2)(a) and CLS Men Hyg § 33.13, Freedom of Information Law does not confer rights of access to clinical records of mental health facility pertaining to patient or client. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9654.

Disclosure of transcripts containing information about inmate's medical or mental condition may result in unwarranted invasion of personal privacy to extent transcripts include intimate details about inmate. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9999.

If Washington Correctional Facility maintains mental health records as facility, it would be required to disclose such records to inmate (subject of records) to extent required by CLS Men Hyg Law § 33.16. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12728.

Requests by inmates for records of mental health "satellite units" within correctional facilities, pertaining to themselves, may be directed to Director of Sentenced Services, Bureau of Forensic Services, Office of Mental Health. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12728.

392. — —Prisoners' medical records

CLS Public Health Law § 18 grants access to medical records of an inmate at a correctional facility rather than FOIL. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-6107 (1990).

Inmate's ability to gain access to autopsy reports related to his case was dependent on his capacity to demonstrate his substantial interest in records in accordance with NYC Charter § 557(g). Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9880.

Disclosure of transcripts containing information about inmate's medical or mental condition may result in unwarranted invasion of personal privacy to extent transcripts include intimate details about inmate. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9999.

Factual information contained in draft "medical services evaluation" of county jail, prepared by State Commission of Correction, must be disclosed by county and state commission irrespective of status of report as draft or non-final; report must be reviewed by relevant agency to identify those portions that might fall within scope of any grounds for denial of access. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-10245.

393. — —X-rays

X-rays appear to consist of factual information for puposes of § 87(2)(g) of the Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Govt FOIL-AO 3094.

Request for record of number of abortions performed at county medical center is type of record that is subject to Freedom of Information disclosure, if such record exists, so long as records are purely statistical and contain no identifying details. 1986 Committee on Open Government FOIL-AO-4203.

If requester is not "qualified person" under CLS Pub Health § 18(1)(g), medical records would be exempt from disclosure. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-13019.

Request to Department of Environmental Conservation, seeking laws and regulations that might "impact" on particular parcel of land, was not request for records envisioned by Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12,351.

Records or portions thereof regarding the identities of contractors and subcontractors who performed construction work at specified schools within district for a particular time period, letters of intent filed by contractors involved in the removal of asbestos from those schools, documents indictating that workmen were properly instructed in the removal of asbestos, the names of haulers and copies of permits to haul asbestos from the schools, the names of disposal sites and the method of disposal of asbestos, the dates asbestos was removed from the schools, Environmental Protection Agency survey reports, records indicating screening for asbestos, air monitoring reports, and contracts and subcontracts regarding asbestos removal are available under the Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Govt FOIL-AO 3073.

Final Environmental Impact Statements filed by firms could not be characterized as "inter-agency or intra-agency materials", for firms are not "agencies". Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4081.

If record is available under Freedom of Information Law, condition of agreeing not to sue in order to receive records pertaining to study of contaminated wells could not be imposed; only if report was prepared solely for litigation would denial on that basis be justified. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4628.

Autopsy report is likely to be maintained by office of medical examiner. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4765.

With regard to tests or similar records concerning toxicity or hazardous nature of site, such records could be characterized as "intra-agency" materials whether they were prepared by town officials or perhaps by consultants retained by town; thus, insofar as they consisted of statistical or factual information, disclosure under Freedom of Information Law was required unless different ground for denial applied. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8956.

Reports of Department of Environmental Conservation which consisted of computer printout of any item that appeared to be inconsistent with terms and conditions of State Pollution Discharge Elimination System (SPDES) Permits were likely available under Freedom of Information Law, notwithstanding assertion that some information entered into computer could be inaccurate and that, therefore, contents of reports were not factual and required verification prior to disclosure. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9159.

"Resource Recovery Facility Operations Monitoring Report," prepared for town by professional engineer, constituted agency record even if it was not in town's physical possession, and it was accessible or deniable (in whole or part) based on same standards as if it were prepared by town staff; thus, aspects of report consisting of opinions and advice could be withheld, while aspects consisting of "statistical or factual tabulations or data" were available under CLS Pub O § 87(2)(g)(i). Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9797.

Although spill reports, which are prepared by Department of Environmental Conservation (DEC) following call by person outside DEC, are not final and relate to incidents for which no final determination has been made, page of "NYSDEC Spill Report Form" consisting of "caller remarks" was available in its entirety, as virtually all of it consisted of factual information. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9918.

It was unlikely that CLS Pub O § 87(2)(e) would serve as basis for withholding page of "NYSDEC Spill Report Form" containing "DEC Remarks" which generally consisted of brief notation or single paragraph; spill reports and responses to them are essentially public events known to owners of property or those responsible for spill. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9918.

Information compiled pursuant to L 1996, ch 279 ("Pesticide Reporting Law") qualifies as material that is specifically exempted from disclosure under Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-10393.

Materials and communications between New York State Department of Law (NYDOL) and United State Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) regarding PCBs in Hudson River could not be characterized as exempted from disclosure by statute because, even if NYDOL or EPA had authority to withhold requested records, neither was required to withhold them and had discretionary authority to disclose. Nor were such materials and communications immune from Freedom of Information Law disclosure on ground that they were privileged, pre-decisional draft documents. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12034.

394. Schools and education, generally

395. —Alumni matters

Although Freedom of Information Law provides broad rights of access, it pertains to existing records; education department does not maintain any list that contains names and current addresses of college alumni, and though education department would provide information containing current addresses of alumni if they maintained information, department cannot make available what it does not have. Comm On Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4599.

Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act (20 USCS § 1232g) ("FERPA") prohibits city school district from disclosing high school "graduation rosters" without prior consent of persons to whom records pertain, unless it is shown that subject of record is deceased; however, any list or similar document concerning alumni and their activities is not subject to FERPA and there would be no prohibition concerning disclosure. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-10009.

396. —Books, visual aids and other teaching tools

Results of Climate Survey Questionnaire, which was completed by teachers in school district, could justifiably be withheld as "intra-agency" materials, since questionnaires were completed by district employees and forwarded to district officials; further, responses could justifiably be withheld since responses consist of "suggestions", recommendations and opinions of individual employees. Comm on Open Govt FOIL-AO-3634.

New York State library is part of state education department and state university libraries are within state university; in both instances, those libraries are parts of agency and consequently, are subject to Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4663.

397. —Certification matters

Information concerning teacher certification is accessible under Freedom of Information Law, as certification may be most appropriate source of determining teacher's qualifications and is relevant to performance of teacher's duties. 1986 Committee on Open Government FOIL-AO-4255.

Copies of permanent certificates in administration issued by New York State Education Department to each administrator in Newburgh school district are available for inspection under Freedom of Information Law, since, under CLS Pub O § 87(2)(b), disclosure would constitute permissible rather than unwarranted invasion of personal privacy, certification being clearly relevant to performance of teacher's official duties, and school improvement plan would be available pursuant to § 87(2)(g)(iii) of such Law since, under 8 NYCRR 100.2(m)(3), such plan must be approved by board of education of school district and therefore constitutes final agency policy or determination. Comm On Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4513.

License, permit, or certification indicating that individual is qualified to teach in certain areas, must be disclosed; in each instance, disclosure indicates that individual is qualified to engage in certain activity over which state has oversight and, while release of those records identifies individuals, disclosure would constitute permissible rather than unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. While record that individual has met requirements to gain teaching certification is clearly public, score on certification exam would, if disclosed, constitute unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. State Education Department would not have authority to disclose certain teacher test scores to city Board of Education in effort to assess connection between those scores and student performance, even though such data would be used "in aid of" board's efforts in hiring most qualified candidates; while data would be helpful to board, it was apparently not "necessary," for board had functioned to date without data. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12594.

398. —Criminal matters

Request for school district records of assaults and sex offenses which have occurred in the public school system during particular time, along with names of schools where incidents occurred, dates of occurrences, and total number of incidents in each category, cannot be denied on grounds that disclosure would endanger life or safety of any person, as long as there was deleted from such reports portions that identify victims, witnesses or perpetrators. Comm on Open Govt FOIL-AO-3701.

School district's blanket denial of access to letters by teachers' union and attorney, asking school district to drop CLS Educ § 3020-a proceeding arising from alleged assault on student following teacher's acquittal of criminal charge arising from same incident, was inappropriate in view of public disclosures that already had been made and publicity generated by incident; district was required to review records in their entirety to determine which portions (if any) could justifiably be withheld. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-10143.

Document produced by state Supreme Court and maintained by school district, which indicated that former school board member had pleaded guilty to crime of grand larceny, was accessible under Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-16547.

399. —Discipline, misconduct, termination and the like

Terms of settlement and contract between school district and teacher would result in permissible rather than unwarranted invasion of personal privacy; such records are relevant to performance of official duties of school board and teacher, and, furthermore, it is clear that contracts between public employers and their employees are accessible because they represent terms and conditions under which public moneys are expended and public duties are performed. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4861.

Report by school district reflective of a reprimand or a finding of misconduct on the part of a teacher was accessible under provision of FOIL. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-6108 (1990).

With regard to teacher's request that school district release content of certain letters that were sent by parents to school district allegedly complaining about teacher's conduct, such letters were subject to disclosure if deletions were made to protect children's identity as well as parent's identity, unless it was possible that identities of students or parents could be easily traced even if names and other personal details were deleted. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9733.

While witnesses and teachers named or identified in investigative report would ordinarily be withheld under CLS Pub O § 87(2)(b), where disclosures had already occurred concerning alleged misconduct of school administrators, board of education could choose to disclose report in its entirety (except for personally identifiable information pertaining to students). Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9762.

With respect to substance of complaint and related documents concerning student's alleged mistreatment by school district employee, references to student's name or other aspects of records that would make her identity easily traceable had to be withheld from public to comply with federal law; furthermore, if there was no determination that employee engaged in misconduct, denial of access based upon privacy considerations would be consistent with law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12104.

Agreement between school district and district employee which had been reviewed and approved by board of education in executive session was subject to disclosure under Freedom of Information Law, unless disclosure would involve unwarranted invasion of personal privacy, for example if part of agreement required that employee engage in drug or alcohol treatment; however, remainder of agreement would ordinarily be accessible. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3472.

400. —Effect of copyright law

DARE Program teaching materials used by school district, which are copyrighted and thus available for inspection, cannot be characterized as "specifically exempted from disclosure-...by...statute," but reproduction of such materials may be precluded if it would "cause substantial injury to the competitive position of the [holder of the copyright]." Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12102.

401. —Evaluation matters

"Visitation reports" consisting of letters describing conditions found in inspection of school and "lesson observation report" which concerns surprise visit by district administrator to classroom of particular teacher is subject to disclosure to extent reports contain factual information and do not reflect opinion or recommendation rather than determination. Committee on Open Government FOIL-AO-3831.

Ratings of school teachers could be characterized as "intra-agency materials", and extent to which they may be accessible or deniable is largely dependent upon specific content of individual records since extent to which individual forms contain opinions and facts differs from one form to next. Comm On Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4592.

Unsatisfactory lesson observation reports, pertaining to named teachers, would constitute intra-agency materials that would be available or deniable, in whole or in part, based upon specific contents; however, individual rating reports, which also pertain to named teachers, could be accessible since social security numbers, file numbers, and possibly those reasons which were merely opinions, could be masked out and would therefore not be an unwarranted invasion of personal privacy; individual rating reports are accessible under Freedom of Information Law as long as they are final agency determinations. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4642.

Records indicating criteria used to determine merit pay increases for administrators employed by school district were accessible under FOIL. Portions of the evaluations, which were reflective of subjective opinions of how well or poorly an administrator met the criteria, could be withheld on the basis that disclosure would be an invasion of personal privacy. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-6159 (1990).

Superintendent of school's response to request for a copy of a performance evaluation pertaining to the superintendent of schools that "it is not the practice" in the district "to make public the evaluations of the Superintendent or any other member of the Staff" was insufficient in that it failed to refer to any particular provision of the Freedom of Information Law as basis for denial of the request. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-6255 (1990).

402. —Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act (FERPA)

Buckley Amendment (20 USCS § 1232g) operates to prohibit disclosure of mailing lists of names and addresses of parents of students in grades 7 through 12 within school district. Comm on Open Govt FOIL-AO-3537.

Under CLS Pub Off § 87(2) and 20 USCS § 1232g, records could not be disclosed with respect to parental requests for exclusion of their children from instruction on human sexuality based on their religious beliefs. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4397.

As to complaint letters submitted by students' parents to board of education, 2 of which letters were submitted in sealed envelopes, complaints were "records" under CLS Pub O § 86(4), whether or not they were submitted in sealed envelopes, under §§ 87(2)(b) and 89(2)(b) of such Law, substance of such complaint may be disclosed, though identifying details pertaining to complainant might not be relevant to board's work and thus their disclosure may constitute unwarranted invasion of personal privacy, and under 20 USCS § 1232g, complaint identifying student's parents would be "personally identifiable" to student and therefore justify deletion of identifying details. Comm On Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4512.

Since community colleges are governmental entities performing governmental function, report concerning allegation of plagiarism is subject to rights of access granted by Freedom of Information Law; Federal Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act generally prohibits educational agency from disclosing "education records" identifiable to student without student's consent; therefore, to extent that Federal Act prohibits disclosure, records concerning allegation of plagiarism would be specifically exempted from disclosure by federal statute. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4904-A.

School district's investigation of a parent's complaint concerning the activities of a school psychologist in relation to daughter of parent constituted an "education record" within the provisions of the Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act (FERPA) (20 USCS § 1232g), and parent was entitled to obtain copy of investigation. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-6279 (1990).

With regard to request directed to CUNY School of Law at Queens College for release of transcripts of its graduates, school could withhold any aspect of transcript which if disclosed would be personally identifiable to student based upon provisions of both Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act (20 USCS § 1232g) and CLS Pub O § 87(2)(b). Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9492.

There was no basis for school district to deny request to look at high school yearbooks, notwithstanding federal Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act (USCS § 1232g), since those depicted in yearbook have consented to disclosure and, moreover, any purchaser of yearbook has already acquired personally identifying details concerning students that appear throughout yearbook. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9618.

Report by attorney hired by school district to investigate allegations that administrators had asked teachers to erase incorrect answers on district's third grade "PEP" test was not made and maintained in ordinary course of business, and thus was within scope of "education records" required to be kept confidential under Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act (20 USCS § 1232g) insofar as information was identifiable to students. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9762.

Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act (20 USCS § 1232g) ("FERPA") prohibits city school district from disclosing high school "graduation rosters" without prior consent of persons to whom records pertain, unless it is shown that subject of record is deceased; however, any list or similar document concerning alumni and their activities is not subject to FERPA and there would be no prohibition concerning disclosure. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-10009.

Under Family Education Rights and Privacy Act, 20 USCS § 1232g, which applies to all educational institutions that participate in grant programs administered by United States Department of Education, records pertaining to "Performance Assessment in Mathematics" test and "California Achievement Test" scores should be withheld to extent that disclosure could or would identify student or students; thus, test scores should be disclosed, but identifying details must be withheld. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-10041.

Student grade information in list form, including teachers' names, must be disclosed if it exists; however, identifying details pertaining to students must be withheld in order to comply with federal law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-10301.

Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act (20 USCS § 1232g) generally forbids school district from disclosing personally identifiable information concerning students, unless parents of students consent to disclosure. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12405.

If school administrator or teacher prepares notes of meeting and does not share or disclose such notes to any other person, Family Education Rights and Privacy Act (FERPA; 20 USCS § 1232g) would not apply; however, due to breadth of definition of "record" in Freedom of Information Law (FOIL), such notes would fall within scope of FOIL. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-13022.

With respect to request for list of Freedom of Information Law requests made to school district, references to students' or parents' names or other aspects of records that would make any student's identity "easily traceable" had to be redacted in order to comply with federal law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-16558.

Even though matter relates to law enforcement, where matter involves student discipline, records pertaining to matter are exempt from disclosure under Freedom of Information Law insofar as they are personally identifiable to student or students; federal Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act (FERPA, 20 USCS § 1232g) and regulations promulgated thereunder, protect privacy of students. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2522.

403. —Financial matters, generally

404. — —School budgets

Disclosure of budget allocation report or its equivalent is available under Freedom of Information Law, notwithstanding its characterization as "working document" or "politically sensitive." Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7933.

Applicant was entitled to disclosure of materials used to arrive at proposed budget figures for school district; in response to request for detailed school district budget, applicant received records which referred to variety of expenses, many of which included number of allocations within single category. With regard to school budget, CLS Pub O § '87(2)(c) would permit withholding of records to extent that disclosure would impair present or imminent contract awards or collective bargaining negotiations; if proposed expenditure referred to services that had not yet been negotiated with contractors or that were subject to bidding requirements, disclosure of those figures might enable contractors to tailor their bids accordingly, to potential detriment of school district and its taxpayers. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8367.

Virtually all statistical or factual information concerning school finances or expenditures, including the salaries of every employee of the school district, are accessible under the Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Govt FOIL-AO 3023.

Contract between school district and superintendent does not fall within exemption for records which, if disclosed, would impair collective bargaining negotiations since, as general matter, contract into which unit of government enters must be made available to public once it has been approved. Committee on Open Government FOIL-AO-3333.

Budget item line draft worksheet prepared by school district could be characterized as "inter-agency" material; nonetheless to extent that it contains statistical or financial tabulations or data, it should be made available. Comm on Open Govt FOIL-AO-3689.

Bills, receipts, contracts, cancelled checks and other documents concerning the expenditure of public money maintained by a school district constitute "records" subject to rights of access conferred by the Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-6245 (1990).

Cost of tuition contract for high school students from neighboring areas could not be withheld on basis that disclosure would compromise negotiations for future since contract represented culmination of negotiations and did not relate to "present or imminent contract awards." Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8582.

Management letter prepared in conjunction with annual school district audit report is public document which must be made available to public, not confidential document separate from audit report. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9881.

Records relating to school district audit, insofar as they consist of statistical or factual information, must be disclosed. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12185.

As soon as bills are received by school district, they constitute "records" subject to rights of access conferred by Freedom of Information Law, irrespective of whether board has paid or otherwise acted on them. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2195.

405. —Personnel records

School district contract with superintendent is not exempt from disclosure on grounds of unwarranted invasion of personal privacy since public employees enjoy lesser degree of privacy than that of public generally and records relevant to performance of public employee's official duties are generally obtainable. Committee on Open Government FOIL-AO-3333.

Resolution of Board of Education that staff records shall not be released constitutes violation of Freedom of Information Law since agency is required to maintain record setting forth name, public office address, title and salary of every officer or employee of agency, and such payroll information may be made available to any person; resolution of school board which conflicts with Freedom of Information Law is void to extent of conflict. Committee on Open Government FOIL-AO-3383.

Work schedule of community college faculty member is accessible under Freedom on Information Law, since schedule is relevant to performance of his or her official duties. Comm on Open Govt FOIL-AO-3594.

"File numbers" that are assigned to each employee of school district are not subject to access under Freedom of Information Law, since file number is merely identification number and since it is not relevant to manner in which public employee performs his or her duties. Comm on Open Govt FOIL-AO-3638.

School district is required to maintain record that includes name, title, salary and public office address (i.e., school) of all employees, including teachers. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7634.

W-2 forms are not exempted from disclosure under CLS Pub O § 87(2)(a) on basis of 26 USCS § 6103 since latter statute pertains to records received and maintained by Internal Revenue Service but does not pertain to records kept by individual taxpayer or records maintained by employer, such as school district. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7639.

As payroll records of school system were found to be available prior to enactment of Freedom of Information Law, such records must be disclosed regardless of intended use of records; thus, payroll records required to be maintained should be disclosed to any person, irrespective of their intended use and without request for why such records have been requested. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7643.

Requirements for eligibility in school district's Salary Elective Program involve information that is otherwise available under Freedom of Information Law, such as date of one's initial employment (or date of one's initial payment) and other items indicating duration of one's public employment, and thus must be disclosed. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-13108.

Under CLS Pub Off § 87(2)(g)(iii), minutes of board of education meeting convened to review and ultimately approve report by non-teaching salary committee were subject to disclosure under Open Meetings Law, despite contentions that information should not be released until personnel concerned were notified, since board voted to accept and approve report and thereby made final agency determination. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-1380.

406. —School board matters, generally

407. — —Minutes

Approved minutes of school board meetings must be made available under the Freedom of Information law. Comm on Open Govt FOIL-AO 3003.

When board of registration has been designated under CLS Educ § 2014, record identifying members must be disclosed and minutes of meeting of board of education must refer to board action making such designation and include names of persons selected. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8473.

No law would have required school district officials, on their own initiative, to inform public of loss of funds due to possible embezzlement by district financial officer when problem was discovered; any person, however, may seek school district records at any time under Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3798.

408. — —Voting

School district as well as entities operating under aegis of district can be characterized as "agency" subject to requirements of Freedom of Information Law; thus, teacher who was ill for lengthy period is entitled to information regarding manner in which her rejection to "sick bank" for teachers was determined and how 4 school district members voted. Comm on Open Govt FOIL-AO-3456.

When final vote is taken by members of agency, record must be prepared that indicates manner in which each member who voted cast his or her vote. Election of replacement for board of cooperative educational services district superintendent requires creation of record of votes cast. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7587.

To prevent person from obtaining separate portions of school district absentee ballot application, thereby enabling recipient to compare handwriting, request for names of those to whom absentee ballots were issued could be granted under Freedom of Information Law by disclosing list required to be maintained under CLS Educ § 2018-b while portions of applications that include names and addresses could be deleted in every instance. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-13443.

Draft curriculum prepared by community advisory board may be deemed not subject to disclosure under Freedom of Information Law if it constitutes advice or a recommendation to the Board of Education, although, assuming that board is subject to the Open Meetings Law, contents of draft would effectively be disclosed at open meetings. Comm on Open Govt FOIL-AO 3027.

Names of persons who have applied for appointment to school board after vacancy due to resignation of member prior to expiration of his term are accessible under Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Govt FOIL-AO-3471.

All items presented at school board meeting, including information provided to school board by superintendent and informational packet separate from formal board agenda is subject to Freedom of Information Law. 1986 Committee on Open Government FOIL-AO-4183.

As to complaint letters submitted by students' parents to board of education, 2 of which letters were submitted in sealed envelopes, complaints were "records" under CLS Pub O § 86(4), whether or not they were submitted in sealed envelopes, under §§ 87(2)(b) and 89(2)(b) of such Law, substance of such complaint may be disclosed, though identifying details pertaining to complainant might not be relevant to board's work and thus their disclosure may constitute unwarranted invasion of personal privacy, and under 20 USCS § 1232g, complaint identifying student's parents would be "personally identifiable" to student and therefore justify deletion of identifying details. Comm On Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4512.

City officials would not be required by Freedom of Information Law to prepare record that identifies firms which are interested in buying certain school when there is no list or record that identifies firms since communications had been oral in nature. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4582.

Terms of settlement and contract between school district and teacher would result in permissible rather than unwarranted invasion of personal privacy; such records are relevant to performance of official duties of school board and teacher, and, furthermore, it is clear that contracts between public employers and, their employees are accessible because they represent terms and conditions under which public moneys are expended and public duties are performed. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4861.

Contract between school superintendent and school district was accessible under provisions of FOIL. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-6122 (1990).

While blanket denial of agenda packet handed out to school board members before meetings might be inconsistent with Freedom of Information Law, there would likely be one or more grounds for denial that could appropriately be cited withhold portions of those records. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8514.

With to request for variety of records communicated among or between school district officials relating to budget requests, to extent that they consisted of "statistical or factual tabulations or data," records were accessible. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9359.

While witnesses and teachers named or identified in investigative report would ordinarily be withheld under CLS Pub O § 87(2)(b), where disclosures had already occurred concerning alleged misconduct of school administrators, board of education could choose to disclose report in its entirety (except for personally identifiable information pertaining to students). Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9762.

School board member could choose to disclose material received by board members in weekly packets, and class sizes and fund balances, unless statute specifically forbade such disclosure. School board member could transmit e-mail communication to number of people relating to certain programs that were carried out in district. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12405.

Member of board of education was not prohibited from providing copies of handwritten notes from open school board meetings, and school district's attorney had no right to review such information prior to its release to requestor under Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-0149.

Neither Freedom of Information Law, Open Meetings Law, or any other statute would have prohibited Board of Education or one of its members from disclosing participant's prepared statement or divulging what transpired during executive session, even if such disclosures would be unfair, unethical or inappropriate. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3830.

If school board reached "consensus" in executive session that is reflective of its final determination of issue, minutes must be prepared that indicate its action, as well as manner in which each member voted. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-4026.

409. —Student lists; directories

Buckley Amendment (20 USCS § 1232g) operates to prohibit disclosure of mailing lists of names and addresses of parents of students in grades 7 through 12 within school district. Comm on Open Govt FOIL-AO-3537.

Under CLS Pub Off § 87(2) and 20 USCS § 1232g, records could not be disclosed with respect to parental requests for exclusion of their children from instruction on human sexuality based on their religious beliefs. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4397.

Disclosure of litigation file cabinet "tags" used by individual attorneys at board of education might properly be denied where tags identified students. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9251.

With regard to request directed to CUNY School of Law at Queens College for release of transcripts of its graduates, school could withhold any aspect of transcript which if disclosed would be personally identifiable to student based upon provisions of both Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act (20 USCS § 1232g) and CLS Pub O § 87(2)(b). Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9492.

With regard to teacher's request that school district release content of certain letters that were sent by parents to school district allegedly complaining about teacher's conduct, such letters were subject to disclosure if deletions were made to protect children's identity as well as parent's identity, unless it was possible that identities of students or parents could be easily traced even if names and other personal details were deleted. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9733.

Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act (20 USCS § 1232g) ("FERPA") prohibits city school district from disclosing high school "graduation rosters" without prior consent of persons to whom records pertain, unless it is shown that subject of record is deceased; however, any list or similar document concerning alumni and their activities is not subject to FERPA and there would be no prohibition concerning disclosure. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-10009.

City could withhold any portion of list of participants in softball clinic run by city youth commission that would identify children, including personally identifying details based on age; disclosure would result in unwarranted invasion of personal privacy, particularly as requested information focused on activities of children. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-10066.

Student grade information in list form, including teachers' names, must be disclosed if it exists; however, identifying details pertaining to students must be withheld in order to comply with federal law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-10301.

With respect to substance of complaint and related documents concerning student's alleged mistreatment by school district employee, references to student's name or other aspects of records that would make her identity easily traceable had to be withheld from public to comply with federal law; furthermore, if there was no determination that employee engaged in misconduct, denial of access based upon privacy considerations would be consistent with law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12104.

School district may not disclose former student's attendance records to prospective employer without former student's consent. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12204.

Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act (20 USCS § 1232g) generally forbids school district from disclosing personally identifiable information concerning students, unless parents of students consent to disclosure. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12405.

Even though matter relates to law enforcement, where matter involves student discipline, records pertaining to matter are exempt from disclosure under Freedom of Information Law insofar as they are personally identifiable to student or students; federal Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act (FERPA, 20 USCS § 1232g) and regulations promulgated thereunder, protect privacy of students. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2522.

410. —Tests; test scores

Freedom of Information Law does not govern rights of access to standardized tests in possession of State Education Department; however, copies of standardized tests which are filed with Commissioner of Education following release of test results are subject to rights of access under FOIL. Comm on Open Govt FOIL-AO-3489.

School district is required to release, under Freedom of Information Law, printed statistical information revealing average scores of all in senior class in district who took Scholastic Aptitude Test. Comm on Open Govt FOIL-AO-3576.

Where school test questions will be reused or administered in future, both questions and answers could be withheld under CLS Pub Off § 87(2)(h), but if questions and answers appear on paper or papers personally identifiable to student, the Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act (20 USCS § 1232(g)) would govern and supersede state law, thereby allowing access to such records to students or parents in certain circumstances. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4406.

While eligible lists, which identify those who pass civil service examinations and their scores, are available, records identifying those persons who failed exams or their scores could be withheld as unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4574.

If "notes" taken by Assistant Superintendent for Instruction and Elementary Education during meeting with parent were reflective of opinion, advice, or recommendation as to children's school records, then access could be denied to parent under Public Officer's Law § 87(2)(g). On the other hand, notes consisting of factual rendition of what transpired at meeting would be available to parent under § 87(2)(g)(i). Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-5539.

Under Family Education Rights and Privacy Act, 20 USCS § 1232g, which applies to all educational institutions that participate in grant programs administered by United States Department of Education, records pertaining to "Performance Assessment in Mathematics" test and "California Achievement Test" scores should be withheld to extent that disclosure could or would identify student or students; thus, test scores should be disclosed, but identifying details must be withheld. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-10041.

Surveys in possession of school districts constitute records subject to Freedom of Information Law; however, school district is not obliged to disclose survey on its own initiative, and without request, before survey is administered to students. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12103.

Student grades in class taught by professor at State University of New York were accessible under Freedom of Information Law, provided that any identifying details pertaining to students' identities were withheld; for example, if student grades appeared alphabetically, then university would be required to scramble content of records so that no student could be identified. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-16598.

411. —Transcripts and the like

412. — —Student attendance records

Under § 87 of FOIL, student attendance registers cannot be transferred to local historical society where they might be available to public for purpose of engaging in historical research without consent of parents of students or students themselves. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4055.

With regard to request directed to CUNY School of Law at Queens College for release of transcripts of its graduates, school could withhold any aspect of transcript which if disclosed would be personally identifiable to student based upon provisions of both Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act (20 USCS § 1232g) and CLS Pub O § 87(2)(b). Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9492.

School district may not disclose former student's attendance records to prospective employer without former student's consent. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12204.

Transcript maintained by school district is "record" subject to rights of access granted by FOIL and should be made available to person to whom it pertains. Comm On Open Gov't FOIL-AO-3884.

Records pertaining to applicant's foreign degree and transcripts from University of Ivory Coast, which were submitted with his application to State University at Albany (SUNY), were available to him from SUNY under Freedom of Information Law and Personal Privacy Protection Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-10125.

If school district maintained records of names of persons who purchased bricks to be placed in walkway at local high school, whose bricks had been removed without permission possibly due to their religious or political content, such records had to be disclosed under Freedom of Information Law; if requested records included personal information such as religious or political beliefs, those portions could be withheld. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12,342.

Memorandum sent to superintendents by education department assistant commissioner that describes Job Network Information Service and listing of administrative job openings that includes details regarding specific openings constitute "records" subject to Freedom of Information Law. 1986 Committee on Open Government FOIL-AO-4246.

Terms of contract between employee and school district, as well as contract between public employee and public employer, are permissible rather than unwarranted invasion of personal privacy, since such records are relevant to performance of official duties of school board and employee, and contracts between public employers and their employees represent terms and conditions under which public moneys are expended and public duties are performed. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4439.

While inter-agency or intra-agency materials may be withheld, portions of such materials consisting of statistical or factual information, instructions to staff that affect public or final agency policy determinations must be made available; however, if teacher who may have reached "conclusions" had no authority to make final agency determination, conclusions might not be considered "final", and even if these "conclusions" were used in making final determination, they could be denied. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4571.

Since state university is integral part of government of New York State and is engaged in carrying out governmental functions, it is "agency" required to comply with Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4619.

Every agency, including school districts, are required to prepare and maintain these lists; a school district contains records of name classroom teachers, as those separate and distinct from payroll record, such record is available, however, if school district does not maintain such lists, Law would not require school district to create or prepare such lists based on request. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4752.

Records indicating approvals for courses, names of courses, number of credits granted and verification of satisfactory completion of courses are available; therefore, if school district maintains same or similar records concerning teacher, those records should be disclosed. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4885.

Agency need not create or prepare record in response to request; therefore, if board of co-operative educational services does not maintain statistical data involving race, ethnicity or sex, it is not required to prepare data on behalf of request. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4914.

Where documents were physically maintained by and in control and custody of community college and its staff, they constituted agency (i.e., college) records, even though records were prepared by another entity. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8386.

Teacher was entitled to printout of names of all teachers in school district and their current salaries including salary step and approved graduate hours since such disclosure would not involve unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9736.

CLS Pub O §§ 87(2)(d) and 89(5) would not be applicable and would not serve as basis for denial of access under Freedom of Information Law where materials redacted by state university involved terms of negotiated agreements developed by parties to those agreements, and they were not records that were submitted to university by commercial enterprise. Redacted portions of state university vendor contracts (i.e., numeric figures) were not "trade secrets" and likely would not cause substantial injury to competitive position of subject enterprises where they were not analogous to process, formula, or financial information which showed strengths or weaknesses of entity; rather, they indicated amounts to be paid and received as result of negotiation between 2 parties, and thus that kind of information should be disclosed. Insofar as records sought were maintained by or for university auxiliary services corporation they were, in essence, university's records, and university would be required to direct custodian of records to disclose them in accordance with Freedom of Information Law, or obtain them in order to disclose them to applicant to extent required by law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12656.

Report prepared by committee of community members appointed to review New York City HIV/AIDS curriculum was subject to Freedom of Information Law, even though committee was not subject to Open Meetings Law, once report was submitted to school district. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2254.

When records or portions of records fall with exceptions to rights of access appearing in Freedom of Information Law, they may be withheld, notwithstanding breadth of CLS Educ § 2116. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2299.

"Datebook" of superintendent of school district was record subject to Freedom of Information Law, despite contention of superintendent that datebook was his "personal" datebook. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2347.

Matters properly discussed by board of education in executive session, although not public knowledge, were not "confidential" under CLS Gen Mun § 805-a(1)(b), and board member could not be prohibited from disclosing information acquired in executive sessions, since information is "confidential" only when government has no discretion and must withhold records or discuss matter in private, and matters appropriate for executive sessions could be discussed in open meetings at option of board; school district matters are "confidential" only rarely, e.g., when information involves student records or records subject to attorney-client privilege. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3449.

413. Social services

List of hotels and motels and amount of money county spent on each during particular periods of time in relation to housing county's needy is accessible under FOIL, for neither confidentiality restriction imposed by Social Services Law § 136 nor FOIL § 87[2][a] would be applicable bases for denial. Comm On Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4040.

As to ex-husband's request to State Department of Social Services for information concerning whereabouts of his ex-wife and children, information sought likely could be withheld as specifically exempted by CLS Soc Serv § 136, generally prohibiting records identifying applicant for or recipient of public assistance. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4565.

Under CLS Pub Hous § 159, public housing authority or municipality cannot disclose information identifiable to tenants. Because tenants in section 8 housing must meet income qualification, insofar as disclosure of records would identify tenants, they may be withheld on ground that disclosure would constitute "an unwarranted invasion of personal privacy" under CLS Pub O § 87(2)(b), even if dwellings are not public housing units or under jurisdiction of housing authority; conversely, following deletion of identifying details pertaining to tenants, remainder of records, i.e., those portions indicating identities of landlords, contractors and amounts that are paid, must be disclosed. City housing authority could deny reporter's request for disclosure of names of section 8 tenants in particular housing development; however, identity of landlord must be disclosed, for payments are made by governmental entities to landlord, irrespective of landlord's income and financial standing, while other details could be withheld, if disclosure would make tenant's identity ascertainable. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12399.

Access under Freedom of Information Law to results of survey conducted by local drug abuse prevention council would depend in large part on contents of survey and format in which results were presented; CLS Pub O § 87(2)(b) would likely apply if release of survey results identified persons participating in drug treatment program, but if results contained nothing more than aggregate numbers of persons attending programs or requesting services, then disclosure would not result in unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-16573.

414. Taxation, generally

415. —Real property assessments, generally

416. — —Computerized records

Online web application, whereby staff of Office of Real Property Services (ORPS) proposed to copy assessment data received in electronic form from municipalities into data warehouse to be accessed over internet, was "delivery system" rather than "record" subject to Freedom of Information Law, and thus online access could be restricted to assessors, who would only be able to sign on if agency provided valid usercode and password; original source of data would still be accessible to public from municipalities and ORPS on request. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12,366.

Assessment records identify property owners, their addresses, and other details concerning property are subject to disclosure; where contents of assessment rolls have been transferred to computer tapes, computer tapes are available for disclosure even though there is intent to use information for commercial purposes. Committee on Open Government FOIL-AO-3799.

Town was required to make full RPS assessment file (including building inventory and sales data) available in electronic format, assuming that it had ability to do so, in that requested records were available as of right under different provisions of law (CLS RPTL §§ 501, 516 and 574). Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-10251.

417. — —New York City real property assessments

New York City transfer tax data, which is submitted to state board for use in determination of residential assessment ratios, is not subject to public disclosure pursuant to Freedom of Information Law. 9 Op Counsel SBEA No. 82 (1991).

Access to a tax assessor's field notes made when inspecting property of a citizen of the town may not be denied on the grounds that the notes are his "personal notes." Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-2987.

Town is required to disclose existing records in accordance with Freedom of Information Law, but it is not obliged to create new records or review its records for purpose of preparing totals or tabulations; records pertaining to assessments and assessment process are generally found to be available for disclosure. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4725.

Records pertaining to the assessment of real property re accessible under the Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-6213.

Records identifying owners of parcels of real property against whom real estate property tax penalties have been imposed, including their addresses, must be disclosed under Freedom of Information Law; however, telephone numbers of such persons may be withheld as unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9324.

Under CLS RPTL § 501, which requires publication of notice stating assessment inventory and valuation data is "available for review" and that "appointment may be made to review this information during certain times as specified in the notice," disclosure is required to any person irrespective of intended use of data, if term "review" is construed to include inspection and copying, but different conclusion might be reached if "review" is construed to mean only right to inspect. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-10062.

Records concerning implementation of village's assessment practices, insofar as they existed, were accessible under Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-10186.

Records, like county tax maps, that government agency is required to produce, are not subject to copyright protection. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12385.

Real property inventory is available to any person for any reason during time specified in notice under CLS RPTL § 501, but inventory may be withheld at other times if it would be used for commercial or fund raising purpose. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12421.

City inventory and assessment data regarding real property would be available to any person for any reason during time specified in notice required by CLS RPTL § 501, but it could be withheld at other times if it would be used for commercial or fund raising purpose. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12689.

Tax assessment roll or its equivalent must be disclosed. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12754.

Because assessment board of review is "public body" and "agency," it is required to prepare minutes in accordance with CLS Pub O § 106, including record of votes of each member in conjunction with CLS Pub O § 87(3)(a). Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-4043.

Contents of "Application for Alternative Veterans Exemption from Real Property Taxation", prepared by State Board of Equalization and Assessment, as well as other materials that may be submitted with that application, are subject to access under Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Govt FOIL-AO-3623.

Tax rolls maintained by agency constitute "records" subject to Freedom of Information Law, regardless of age of records. In regard to request for town tax rolls that were prepared in 19th century, which request was denied on ground that records were sealed and too fragile for viewing, there was conflict between Freedom of Information Law and CLS Art & Cult Affrs § 57.25, which provides that local government officials have responsibility to protect and ensure preservation of records of enduring value. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7515.

Records relating to county occupancy tax allocations, to extent that they consist of "statistical or factual tabulations or data," are accessible unless provision other than CLS Pub O § 87(2)(g) applies, even if statistical or factual information contained therein is "intertwined" with opinions which may be withheld. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-10402.

Notwithstanding claim of confidentiality asserted by city's common council on advice of corporation counsel, stipulation of settlement which resolved pending tax assessment proceedings initiated by corporate taxpayer, was accessible to public absent proper assertion of ground for denial under CLS Pub O § 87(2). Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12298.

Records identifying owners of those parcels of real property against whom penalties have been imposed, including their addresses, must ordinarily be disclosed. Imposition of penalty for failure to pay real property taxes would indicate that final agency determination has been made, and thus record so indicating would be available under CLS Pub O § 87(2)(g)(iii). If names and addresses of property owners who failed to pay taxes, or on whom penalties were imposed, would be used for commercial or fund-raising purpose, agency could justifiably deny access. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12549.

With respect to EA-5217 forms that indicate transfer price of real property, under CLS RPTL former § 574(5) such transfer price had been confidential unless it had been requested in conjunction with administrative or judicial review of assessment; however, those forms, due to amendment of § 574(5), have been available since July 1, 1994. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12754.

418. Utilities, including water

Statistical information concerning energy consumption at public facility must be made available. Committee on Open Government FOIL-AO-3358.

419. Vital statistics; Birth records

420. —Death certificates

Access to genealogical records is not governed by Freedom of Information Law; such records are accessible through registrar or town or city clerk, but since birth and death records are generally confidential under CLS Public Health §§ 4173 and 4174, requestor probably does not have right to personally search through genealogical records. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12,340.

Death certificates are available, unless request is not made for proper purpose, under Public Health Law which may impose significant search fees. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4945.

421. —Marriage records

Rights of access to birth and marriage records are not governed by the Freedom of Information Law, but rather by § 4173 of the Public Health Law and § 20-a of the Domestic Relations Law, respectively. Comm on Open Govt FOIL-AO 3036.

Irrespective of where records pertaining to performance of marriages by mayor may be kept, they are kept due to and in performance of mayor's official duties and in his capacity as mayor or marriage officer; thus, such records fall within scope of Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7883.

Contents of marriage records must generally be disclosed; however, if special consent is noted on marriage record, or if such record includes medical or health information, those items might justifiably be deleted. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-10339.

Although CLS Jud § 255 generally provides that records maintained by clerk of court must be made available, access to records relating to matrimonial proceedings is governed by CLS Dom Rel § 235(1). Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12999.

Access to genealogical records is not governed by Freedom of Information Law; such records are accessible through registrar or town or city clerk, but since birth and death records are generally confidential under CLS Public Health §§ 4173 and 4174, requestor probably does not have right to personally search through genealogical records. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12,340.

Rights of access to birth and marriage records are not governed by the Freedom of Information Law, but rather by § 4173 of the Public Health Law and § 20-a of the Domestic Relations Law, respectively. Comm on Open Govt FOIL-AO 3036.

Although date of birth might justifiably be denied as unwarranted invasion of personal privacy, since Election Law requires disclosure of registration records, which includes date of birth, nothing in Freedom of Information Law (CLS Pub Off Law §§ 85-89) may be asserted to withhold those records. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4116.

422. Other and miscellaneous, generally

423. —Lists of names, addresses and the like

424. — —Businesses requiring license

Burial permits are accessible under FOIL since, although it might identify deceased, it is questionable whether privacy of deceased may be invaded, especially since no intimate personal details are included; furthermore, licenses or permits are generally always accessible since they enable public to know that certain conditions have been met. Comm On Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4022.

425. — —Department of Motor Vehicle (DMV) lists; parking permit lists

Town cannot properly deny access to list of names and addresses of nonresident parking permit holders, since disclosure of names and addresses of nonresident parking permit holders would not constitute unwarranted invasion of personal privacy in that purpose of disclosure is to inform nonresidents of new town parking policy and of action which might be taken collectively to oppose and reverse policy. Comm on Open Govt FOIL-AO-3741.

Motor vehicle licenses, which include addresses, are accessible pursuant to Vehicle and Traffic Law from Department of Motor Vehicles. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4945.

Computerized listing of all licensed passenger-car drivers residing in 3 counties would be available under Freedom of Information Law if Department of Motor Vehicles could generate requested data based on its existing computer programs; CLS Veh

426. — —Government officials, licensees, contractors and the like

A town may publish and distribute a pamphlet to registered voters in the town containing the names, addresses, and telephone numbers of town officials as well as the names of federal, state and county government officials. 1983 Op St Compt File #83-204.

State Liquor Authorities' list of licensees is discoverable under Freedom of Information Law, as to extent list identifies licensees as entities rather than natural persons, privacy provisions of Freedom of Information Law do not apply, and to extent that it does identify natural persons, notice, posting and publication requirements imposed by Alcohol and Beverage Control Law effectively negate application of provisions that might otherwise permit denial of disclosure. 1986 Committee on Open Government FOIL-AO-4222.

Under CLS Pub Off § 87(2), records indicating identities of contractors or concessionaires under contract with Long Island State Park Commission, expenditures of Commission and similar records, and records identifying past and present members of commission would be available for public review but, under § 89(7) of such law, home addresses of commission members or names of prospective members need not be made available. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4486.

Contracts, leases and similar documents reflective of agreements between agencies and those who supply goods or services to agencies pursuant to such agreements are generally available under the Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-6281 (1990).

Disclosure of list containing names, home addresses and home telephone numbers of attorneys employed in Buffalo office of Department of Law was improper where disclosure was sought in connection with fundraising efforts for election campaign of one of Attorney General's best friends. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9210.

Licenses and similar records are available under Freedom of Information Law, notwithstanding assertion that disclosure would constitute unwarranted invasion of personal privacy, since they are intended to enable public to know that individual has met appropriate requirements to be engaged in activity that is regulated by state or in which state has significant interest. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9375.

Provisions in Freedom of Information Law pertaining to protection of personal privacy do not justify withholding list of names of executive directors of senior centers maintained by city "Department for the Aging," as such list involves names and addresses of persons in their business capacities, and there is nothing intimate or personal about it. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-10314.

427. — —Library users

Records identifiable to users of libraries, such as those who hold library cards, are confidential pursuant to CLS CPLR § 4509 and CLS Pub O § 87(2)(a). Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8904.

428. — —Lottery winners

Although status of applicant and purposes for which request is made are irrelevant to rights of access, and agency cannot ordinarily inquire as to intended use of records, rights of access to list of names and addresses, or equivalent records, may be contingent on purpose for which request is made due to language of CLS Pub O § 89(2)(b)(iii); thus, if request for full name of winners of lottery since its inception, current address of each winner, amount of initial award to each winner and date of award to each winner was sought in order to develop mailing list or its equivalent to be used for commercial or fund-raising purposes, statute could apply to deny access to requested information. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9143.

429. — —Real property owners; Section 8 housing lists

Because tenants in Section 8 housing must meet income qualification, insofar as disclosure of records would identify tenants, they may be withheld on ground that disclosure would constitute unwarranted invasion of personal privacy; conversely, following deletion of identifying details pertaining to tenants, remainder of records—i.e., those portions indicating identities of landlords, contractors and amounts that are paid—must be disclosed. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9466.

Prior to disclosing computer generated lists of real property inventory data, agency may require applicant to submit certification stating requested information will not be used for commercial or fund-raising purposes. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-10062.

If town can locate property records sought with reasonable effort, on basis of names of owners, street address or section, lot and block of parcel, town would be obliged to do so even if search involves review of hundreds of records. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12940.

430. — —Veterans; military lists

Names and addresses of veterans who have been honorably discharged must generally be disclosed, unless records are sealed under CLS Civ R § 79-g or request involves list of veterans' names and addresses; in latter situation, agency may ascertain whether list is intended to be used for commercial or fund-raising purpose and, if so, list can justifiably be withheld. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8954.

If direction to seal certificate of honorable discharge were given by veteran under CLS Civ R § 79-g, county clerk would be prohibited from disclosing, notwithstanding provisions of Freedom of Information Law; conversely, when there is no direction by veteran to seal certificate, that record, like all others, would be subject to rights conferred by Freedom of Information Law. Sole item that could be withheld from record of certificate of honorable discharge given to veteran would be social security number (assuming record is not sealed under CLS Civ R § 79-g), since local government agencies may withhold social security numbers on ground that disclosure would constitute "an unwarranted invasion of personal privacy," but they are not required to do so. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12688.

List of property owners with veterans' tax exemptions and alternate veterans' exemptions in particular town should be disclosed, since assessment rolls, which are clearly accessible to public, includes reference to veterans' exemptions, and fact that person has served in armed forces and is veteran is not secret. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-13146.

431. — —Voter registrations

Computer tapes containing voter registration and information indicating ability to use them should be made available. Comm On Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4032.

Voter registration records are available pursuant to Election Law and are kept by Board of Elections in each county. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4945.

While town may have authority to deny access to voter registration list that it acquired from county department of data processing if person requesting list intends to use it as mailing list for commercial activity, denial may merely delay inevitable disclosure by county board of elections, as CLS Elec § 5-602 confers unrestricted public rights of access to voter registration lists prepared and maintained by county board of elections, irrespective of intended use. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9814.

Voter registration cards pertaining to named individual, if maintained by county board of elections, were available under CLS Elec § 3-220 and could not be withheld under Freedom of Information Law; subject of voter registration record has no right to restrict disclosure or provide conditions concerning disclosure. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-10263.

Voter registration records, including information pertaining to residence addresses, dates of birth, party designations and similar information, must be disclosed although some of those items could otherwise be redacted under Freedom of Information Law to prevent unwarranted invasion of personal privacy, because CLS Elec § 3-220 requires disclosure of voter registration records in their entirety. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-10352.

Although certain items contained in required voter registration records might justifiably be denied as unwarranted invasion of personal privacy if contained in other kinds of records, specific direction provided in Election Law requires disclosure of such items. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12067.

Commissioners of boards of elections are not required to provide monthly updates of voter lists; agency does not have ability and is not required to grant or deny access to records that do not yet exist. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-13290.

Since CLS Elec § 5-602 confers unrestricted public rights of access to voter registration lists, nothing in Freedom of Information Law could be cited to restrict those rights. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2505.

All records of agency are available, except to extent that records or portions thereof fall within one or more of grounds for denial in CLS Pub O § 87(2)(a) through (i); agency may withhold records to extent that disclosure would constitute unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4572.

Rights of access to political party membership lists of names and addresses, or equivalent records, may be contingent upon purpose for which request is made; agency may withhold records in conjunction with grounds for denial listed in Freedom of Information Law, nevertheless, agency is not obliged to withhold records, even when records may be withheld; therefore, even if political party membership lists could be withheld, Freedom of Information Law would not prohibit disclosure. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4866.

Lists including names and addresses of natural persons would be accessible or deniable depending upon its use; those portions of lists pertaining to entities are accessible, irrespective of intended use; those portions pertaining to natural persons would be accessible or deniable, depending upon whether list would be used for fund-raising purposes. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4879.

Records identifying all part-time and full-time police officers who had been certified by the County Department of Civil Service for employment in village were accessible under FOIL. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-6149 (1990).

Mailing lists of the State Office for the Aging constitute records subject to the rights of access provided such lists are not used for fund raising purposes. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-6319 (1990).

Freedom of Information Law required disclosure of copy of mailing list used to disseminate Legislative Insider, which is published by Monroe County Legislature Majority Office, where applicant provided assurance that she would not use requested information for fund raising purposes. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8326.

When list involves persons licensed to engage in certain kind of business and includes address indicating where licensed activity occurs, personal privacy implications are minimal, if they exist at all. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8573.

Example contained in CLS Pub O § 89(2)(b) which permits withholding of information to preclude unwarranted invasions of personal privacy where request for information involves sale or release of lists of names and addresses to be used for commercial or fund-raising purposes does not apply to release of information pertaining to commercial entities or persons acting in business capacities. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8953.

Even where request under Freedom of Information Law does not involve list per se, request for records that would be used to develop list of names and addresses to be used for commercial purpose may be denied. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9143.

With regard to request for vendors names on State Comptroller's outstanding and uncashed check listing, although check number is not "computer access code" per se, it is used in much same manner as computer access code and, therefore, based upon intent of CLS Pub O § 87(2)(i), it appeared that account number, particularly when coupled with additional unique information, might be justifiably withheld. If disclosure would nullify or reduce value of efforts undertaken by bank to ensure security, bank could be placed at disadvantage in relation to its competitors, and disclosure in that event could cause "substantial injury to its competitive position." Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9325.

With regard to request for rejected applications for admission to law school, items such as names, social security numbers, resident addresses and phone numbers, dates of birth, alien registration numbers, LSDAS/LSAT registration numbers and similar personal details could be withheld to prevent unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9544.

It is likely that disclosure of names of or other identifying details pertaining to persons ancillary to distribution of assets of estate, such as heirs of those persons, other family members, or neighbors, friends, or acquaintances could justifiably be withheld by public administrator as unwarranted invasion of privacy, except to extent that such information was otherwise available through court clerk. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9650.

If list of inmates housed in particular unit at certain time exists, such list should be available under Freedom of Information Law, but any aspect of such list or similar record that includes individual's race may be withheld on ground that disclosure would constitute unwarranted invasion of personal privacy pursuant to CLS Pub O § 87(2)(b). Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12131.

Where request sought names, addresses and phone numbers of "any and all" county resident golfers utilizing county public golf courses without being county public park pass holders, it would be advisable for requestor to certify (if accurate) that names and addresses would not be used for any commercial or fund-raising purposes. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12191.

If Long Island Power Authority maintained or was able to generate list identifying all Suffolk County businesses with energy demand of 200kw or more per month, it was obliged to do so upon request if requestor was willing to pay actual cost of reproduction. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12304.

New York City Department of Education could not justifiably deny Freedom of Information Law request for disclosure of employees' work-related cell phone numbers and email addresses, considering advances in information technology, use of security systems and general proliferation of use and disclosure of email addresses, and fact that information sought related to employees' performance of their duties. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-16602.

"Corning Papers", consisting of personal as well as official correspondence written or received by Mayor Corning, in either his capacity as Mayor or as Chairman of Albany County Democratic Committee, are records subject to rights of access granted by Freedom of Information Law; further, although some of records might be characterized as "personal" or "inter-agency or intra-agency materials", those records might not be exempted from disclosure in toto; on contrary, records must be reviewed individually to determine rights of access. Comm on Open Govt FOIL-AO-3514.

Freedom of Information Law generally does not enable agency to restrict access to information because applicant seeks records for commercial purposes, and exception to disclosure pertains only to those lists that identify natural persons, rather than entities. 1986 Committee on Open Government FOIL-AO-4222.

Freedom of Information Law is applicable to all records of agency, such as town, and, as such, requests for minutes of town board are properly made pursuant to Freedom of Information Law; minutes of meetings of public bodies are available under Freedom of Information Law and Open Meetings Law; further, both laws require that record of votes indicating how each member of public body voted must be maintained and made available. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4773.

CLS Freedom of Information Law § 87(3)(a) requires open voting and a record of the manner in which each member voted, thus "secret ballot" for election of officers by Community Board No. 1 in New York City could not be used. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-6280 (1990).

Tape recording of an open meeting produced for a municipality constitutes "records" subject to rights of access under the Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-6311 (1990).

Freedom of Information Law does not deal directly right of mayor to gain access to village records, make copies or take them home; however, village records are property of village rather than mayor, even though mayor may be chief executive officer. Village records are not property of mayor, and mayor, when not acting in performance of his or her official duties, does not have right to obtain and make copies of all village records. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8387.

Insofar as agendas pertaining to executive sessions exist, they constitute records subject to rights conferred by Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8512.

Latest block assignment list, or boundary files, in digital format that are used to create computer representations of State Senate and Assembly legislative districts, along with attribute information for each of these districts constituted agency records subject to broad disclosure requirements imposed by Freedom of Information Law, irrespective of origin of files. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8561.

Freedom of Information Law disclosure of factual information in written report prepared by certain investigator for state Board of Elections, in case of alleged fraud or misconduct in filing of local designating petitions, would not interfere with any investigation or judicial proceeding or deprive any person of fair trial or impartial adjudication, where investigation was complete and case was closed; only basis for denying access under CLS Pub O § 87(e) would be if disclosure identified confidential source or involved "confidential information relating to a criminal investigation." Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-10067.

Letter from city chamber of commerce, concerning renovation project being undertaken by school district, was accessible under Freedom of Information Law if it was maintained by district or was forwarded to records access officer due to his position with district; district's claim of confidentiality was not based on statute, and it was unlikely that disclosure would result in unwarranted invasion of personal privacy because chamber of commerce is business entity, not natural person, and any person writing on its behalf would be doing so in business capacity. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-10256.

"Draft unapproved minutes" of meetings of city council should be disclosed, on request, as soon as they exist; minutes of meeting open to public do not involve "internal government consultations or deliberations" since information contained in those records has effectively been disclosed to public already. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12607.

Requests for "any and all memorandum, resolutions, draft resolutions, correspondence or press releases calling for the holding of legislative hearings into any of the controversies surrounding" named county executive and district attorney would meet requirement of reasonably describing records; on other hand, if such records were not maintained in manner that permitted their retrieval except by reviewing perhaps hundreds or even thousands of records individually in effort to locate those falling within scope of request, to that extent, requests would not meet standard reasonably describing records. If member of county legislature in item of correspondence offered opinion regarding controversy, that portion of correspondence could be withheld. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12631.

Notes pertaining to meetings of various town boards were "records" that fell within coverage of Freedom of Information Law. Insofar as notes pertaining to meetings of various town boards consisted of factual rendition of events occurring or comments offered during meeting, they would be accessible under CLS Pub O § 87(2)(g)(i). Fact that notes pertaining to meetings of various town boards might not have been reviewed by those officials who created them would be largely irrelevant to rights of access under Freedom of Information Law; even if records were never reviewed by those officials, they would be subject to rights of access. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12681.

Tape recording of open meeting is accessible under Freedom of Information Law, for any person could have been present, and none of grounds for denial would apply. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12696.

Any member of public should have ability to listen to audiotape at no charge where tapes were prepared by town board member, using his own equipment and tapes, in conjunction with performance of his duties as board member. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12923.

There is nothing in either Freedom of Information or Open Meetings Laws that specifies that vote must be accomplished by means of roll call or that vote be "announced exactly as the same time it is cast"; so long as record is prepared that indicates manner in which each member cast his or vote, entity would be acting in compliance with open vote requirements imposed by those statutes. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-13547.

III. Under Former § 88

A. Particular Matters

432. In general

A tape recorder may be obtained by the town board to be used by the town clerk to record the proceedings at town board meetings so that minutes may be prepared therefrom but if a recorder is obtained the town clerk would be responsible for maintaining the tapes. The tapes may not be maintained by any official other than the town clerk or his deputy. It would be improper for the tapes to be sealed and to be opened only at town board meetings. The town board may authorize other town officers to use the tape recorder and may direct who will have custody of the instrument. 1977 NY Ops Atty Gen Nov 17.

Whether or not a record derived by means of a match that identifies certain persons on the state payroll is characterized as a "worksheet" or is used temporarily, such a list constitutes a "record" that falls within the scope of the Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Govt FOIL-AO 3093.

433. Law enforcement agencies

A councilman of the City of Binghamton is not entitled to access to reports contained in police files which are part of an active police investigation, and active criminal investigation files would be available to legislative inspection and review only when mandated by court order. 1976 NY Ops Atty Gen August 10.

IV. Under Former § 66

434. In general

In absence of statute or order making certain reports confidential inspection should be permitted to person establishing proper interest therein. 1935 N.Y. Op. Att'y Gen. No. 348.

435. Fees

The fees for copies of records in the custody of the temporary state housing rent commission in the City of New York are the same as that allowed to the county clerks in that city, namely, 50 cents a page with a minimum of $2. 1953 N.Y. Op. Att'y Gen. No. 209.

A municipal housing authority is exempt from the payment of the statutory fee for a county clerk's abstract of title where the same is made and certified to; but a county clerk is not required to make abstracts of title. 1955 NY Ops Atty Gen 7 (informal).

A county treasurer should charge fees fixed for a county clerk in County Law § 531 for preparation of tax search certificates. It would appear that there is no need for legislation to fix the fees which the county treasurer should charge for preparing tax search certificates. This section provides that in the absence of a statute fixing a fee to be charged by a public officer "fees at the rate allowed to a county clerk for similar services are to be charged". 1959 NY Ops Atty Gen July 23 (informal).

The appropriate fee for the issuance of a certificate of disposition by the clerk of the Criminal Court of the City of New York is $5. 1974 NY Ops Atty Gen March 27.

436. Availability of particular documents, generally

437. —Minutes of meetings of boards or authorities

There is no specific legal mandate requiring that meetings of the Schenectady Municipal Housing Authority be open to the public or the minutes of such meetings be open to public inspection, but since the Schenectady Municipal Housing Authority handles public funds and its members are public officers, where secrecy is not enjoined by statute or matters discussed at the meetings are not of a confidential nature, attendance at such meetings as well as inspection of minutes of such meetings may be afforded to the public, including the news media. 1969 NY Ops Atty Gen Sept 30.

438. —Motor vehicle records

Reports of hearings for revocation and suspension of motorists' licenses are public records and should be supplied to one making proper application. 1929 N.Y. Op. Att'y Gen. No. 315.

Reports of automobile accidents are public records and party in charge thereof is obliged to furnish transcripts but reports of investigations, arrest records, records of complaints and information supplied by individuals contained in files of division of state police are confidential. 1933 N.Y. Op. Att'y Gen. No. 130.

439. —Prison records

Records of department of correction and wardens of various prisons relating to computation of compensation allowed to prisoners are public records and transcripts thereof, properly certified, should be furnished to applicants. 1933 N.Y. Op. Att'y Gen. No. 495.

440. —Other and miscellaneous

A certified copy of a paper filed in the town clerk's office may be used as evidence to the same extent as the original. 1954 NY Ops Atty Gen 34 (informal).

Town board members are entitled to receive carbon copies of town board meeting minutes prepared by the town clerk. Members of the general public may examine the minutes and copy them or may obtain copies from the town clerk by paying for the same. 1972 NY Ops Atty Gen April 28 (informal).

Publication in public press of contents of will which has been duly probated cannot be enjoined. 1921 N.Y. Op. Att'y Gen. No. 400.

Pistol permits are public records when filed, and are open to inspection by taxpayer. 1931 N.Y. Op. Att'y Gen. No. 131.

Records of retirement system are to be kept open for public inspection, and transcripts must be furnished upon payment of fees. 1933 N.Y. Op. Att'y Gen. No. 222.

License applications for permission to conduct parimutuel harness racing are subject to public inspection for a legitimate purpose under reasonable conditions. Questions dealing with security and policing arrangements of the prospective licensee may be kept confidential. 1955 N.Y. Op. Att'y Gen. No. 228.

Whether a paper or record filed with the State Harness Racing Commission is open for public inspection depends upon its nature and purpose, applicable statute, etc. 1958 NY Ops Atty Gen Nov 28.

A town clerk must make searches for conditional sales and chattel mortgages on file in his office and furnish transcripts thereof on payment of legal fees therefor. 1963 NY Ops Atty Gen March 6.

Salaries paid to the personnel of a community college are public records subject to inspection and must, therefore, be made available to a county executive as well as to the public at large. 1972 NY Ops Atty Gen Oct 31.

§ 89. General provisions relating to access to records; certain cases.

The provisions of this section apply to access to all records, except as hereinafter specified:

1. (a) The committee on open government is continued and shall consist of the lieutenant governor or the delegate of such officer, the secretary of state or the delegate of such officer, whose office shall act as secretariat for the committee, the commissioner of the office of general services or the delegate of such officer, the director of the budget or the delegate of such officer, and seven other persons, none of whom shall hold any other state or local public office except the representative of local governments as set forth herein, to be appointed as follows: five by the governor, at least two of whom are or have been representatives of the news media, one of whom shall be a representative of local government who, at the time of appointment, is serving as a duly elected officer of a local government, one by the temporary president of the senate, and one by the speaker of the assembly. The persons appointed by the temporary president of the senate and the speaker of the assembly shall be appointed to serve, respectively, until the expiration of the terms of office of the temporary president and the speaker to which the temporary president and speaker were elected. The four persons presently serving by appointment of the governor for fixed terms shall continue to serve until the expiration of their respective terms. Thereafter, their respective successors shall be appointed for terms of four years. The member representing local government shall be appointed for a term of four years, so long as such member shall remain a duly elected officer of a local government. The committee shall hold no less than two meetings annually, but may meet at any time. The members of the committee shall be entitled to reimbursement for actual expenses incurred in the discharge of their duties.

(b) The committee shall:

i. furnish to any agency advisory guidelines, opinions or other appropriate information regarding this article;

ii. furnish to any person advisory opinions or other appropriate information regarding this article;

iii. promulgate rules and regulations with respect to the implementation of subdivision one and paragraph (c) of subdivision three of section eighty-seven of this article;

iv. request from any agency such assistance, services and information as will enable the committee to effectively carry out its powers and duties;

v. develop a form, which shall be made available on the internet, that may be used by the public to request a record; and

vi. report on its activities and findings regarding this article and article seven of this chapter, including recommendations for changes in the law, to the governor and the legislature annually, on or before December fifteenth.

2. (a) The committee on public access to records may promulgate guidelines regarding deletion of identifying details or withholding of records otherwise available under this article to prevent unwarranted invasions of personal privacy. In the absence of such guidelines, an agency may delete identifying details when it makes records available.

(b) An unwarranted invasion of personal privacy includes, but shall not be limited to:

i. disclosure of employment, medical or credit histories or personal references of applicants for employment;

ii. disclosure of items involving the medical or personal records of a client or patient in a medical facility;

iii. sale or release of lists of names and addresses if such lists would be used for solicitation or fundraising purposes;

iv. disclosure of information of a personal nature when disclosure would result in economic or personal hardship to the subject party and such information is not relevant to the work of the agency requesting or maintaining it;

v. disclosure of information of a personal nature reported in confidence to an agency and not relevant to the ordinary work of such agency;

vi. information of a personal nature contained in a workers' compensation record, except as provided by section one hundred ten-a of the workers' compensation law;

vii. disclosure of electronic contact information, such as an e-mail address or a social network username, that has been collected from a taxpayer under section one hundred four of the real property tax law; or viii. disclosure of law enforcement arrest or booking photographs of an individual, unless public release of such photographs will serve a specific law enforcement purpose and disclosure is not precluded by any state or federal laws.

(c) Unless otherwise provided by this article, disclosure shall not be construed to constitute an unwarranted invasion of personal privacy pursuant to paragraphs (a) and (b) of this subdivision:

i. when identifying details are deleted;

ii. when the person to whom a record pertains consents in writing to disclosure;

iii. when upon presenting reasonable proof of identity, a person seeks access to records pertaining to him or her; or

iv. when a record or group of records relates to the right, title or interest in real property, or relates to the inventory, status or characteristics of real property, in which case disclosure and providing copies of such record or group of records shall not be deemed an unwarranted invasion of personal privacy, provided that nothing herein shall be construed to authorize the disclosure of electronic contact information, such as an e-mail address or a social network username, that has been collected from a taxpayer under section one hundred four of the real property tax law.

2-a. Nothing in this article shall permit disclosure which constitutes an unwarranted invasion of personal privacy as defined in subdivision two of this section if such disclosure is prohibited under section ninety-six of this chapter.

2-b. For records that constitute law enforcement disciplinary records as defined in subdivision six of section eighty-six of this article, a law enforcement agency shall redact the following information from such records prior to disclosing such records under this article:

(a) items involving the medical history of a person employed by a law enforcement agency as defined in section eighty-six of this article as a police officer, peace officer, or firefighter or firefighter/paramedic, not including records obtained during the course of an agency's investigation of such person's misconduct that are relevant to the disposition of such investigation;

(b) the home addresses, personal telephone numbers, personal cell phone numbers, personal e-mail addresses of a person employed by a law enforcement agency as defined in section eighty-six of this article as a police officer, peace officer, or firefighter or firefighter/paramedic, or a family member of such a person, a complainant or any other person named in a law enforcement disciplinary record, except where required pursuant to article fourteen of the civil service law, or in accordance with subdivision four of section two hundred eight of the civil service law, or as otherwise required by law. This paragraph shall not prohibit other provisions of law regarding work-related, publicly available information such as title, salary, and dates of employment;

(c) any social security numbers; or

(d) disclosure of the use of an employee assistance program, mental health service, or substance abuse assistance service by a person employed by a law enforcement agency as defined in section eighty-six of this article as a police officer, peace officer, or firefighter or firefighter/paramedic, unless such use is mandated by a law enforcement disciplinary proceeding that may otherwise be disclosed pursuant to this article.

2-c. For records that constitute "law enforcement disciplinary records" as defined in subdivision six of section eighty-six of this article, a law enforcement agency may redact records pertaining to technical infractions as defined in subdivision nine of section eighty-six of this article prior to disclosing such records under this article.

3. (a) Each entity subject to the provisions of this article, within five business days of the receipt of a written request for a record reasonably described, shall make such record available to the person requesting it, deny such request in writing or furnish a written acknowledgement of the receipt of such request and a statement of the approximate date, which shall be reasonable under the circumstances of the request, when such request will be granted or denied, including, where appropriate, a statement that access to the record will be determined in accordance with subdivision five of this section. An agency shall not deny a request on the basis that the request is voluminous or that locating or reviewing the requested records or providing the requested copies is burdensome because the agency lacks sufficient staffing or on any other basis if the agency may engage an outside professional service to provide copying, programming or other services required to provide the copy, the costs of which the agency may recover pursuant to paragraph (c) of subdivision one of section eighty-seven of this article. An agency may require a person requesting lists of names and addresses to provide a written certification that such person will not use such lists of names and addresses for solicitation or fund-raising purposes and will not sell, give or otherwise make available such lists of names and addresses to any other person for the purpose of allowing that person to use such lists of names and addresses for solicitation or fund-raising purposes. If an agency determines to grant a request in whole or in part, and if circumstances prevent disclosure to the person requesting the record or records within twenty business days from the date of the acknowledgement of the receipt of the request, the agency shall state, in writing, both the reason for the inability to grant the request within twenty business days and a date certain within a reasonable period, depending on the circumstances, when the request will be granted in whole or in part. Upon payment of, or offer to pay, the fee prescribed therefor, the entity shall provide a copy of such record and certify to the correctness of such copy if so requested, or as the case may be, shall certify that it does not have possession of such record or that such record cannot be found after diligent search. Nothing in this article shall be construed to require any entity to prepare any record not possessed or maintained by such entity except the records specified in subdivision three of section eighty-seven and subdivision three of section eighty-eight of this article. When an agency has the ability to retrieve or extract a record or data maintained in a computer storage system with reasonable effort, it shall be required to do so. When doing so requires less employee time than engaging in manual retrieval or redactions from non-electronic records, the agency shall be required to retrieve or extract such record or data electronically. Any programming necessary to retrieve a record maintained in a computer storage system and to transfer that record to the medium requested by a person or to allow the transferred record to be read or printed shall not be deemed to be the preparation or creation of a new record.

(b) All entities shall, provided such entity has reasonable means available, accept requests for records submitted in the form of electronic mail and shall respond to such requests by electronic mail, using forms, to the extent practicable, consistent with the form or forms developed by the committee on open government pursuant to subdivision one of this section and provided that the written requests do not seek a response in some other form.

(c) Each state agency, as defined in subdivision five of this section, that maintains a website shall ensure its website provides for the online submission of a request for records pursuant to this article.

4. (a) Except as provided in subdivision five of this section, any person denied access to a record may within thirty days appeal in writing such denial to the head, chief executive or governing body of the entity, or the person therefor designated by such head, chief executive, or governing body, who shall within ten business days of the receipt of such appeal fully explain in writing to the person requesting the record the reasons for further denial, or provide access to the record sought. In addition, each agency shall immediately forward to the committee on open government a copy of such appeal when received by the agency and the ensuing determination thereon. Failure by an agency to conform to the provisions of subdivision three of this section shall constitute a denial.

(b) Except as provided in subdivision five of this section, a person denied access to a record in an appeal determination under the provisions of paragraph (a) of this subdivision may bring a proceeding for review of such denial pursuant to article seventy-eight of the civil practice law and rules. In the event that access to any record is denied pursuant to the provisions of subdivision two of section eighty-seven of this article, the agency involved shall have the burden of proving that such record falls within the provisions of such subdivision two. Failure by an agency to conform to the provisions of paragraph (a) of this subdivision shall constitute a denial.

(c) The court in such a proceeding: (i) may assess, against such agency involved, reasonable attorney's fees and other litigation costs reasonably incurred by such person in any case under the provisions of this section in which such person has substantially prevailed, and when the agency failed to respond to a request or appeal within the statutory time; and (ii) shall assess, against such agency involved, reasonable attorney's fees and other litigation costs reasonably incurred by such person in any case under the provisions of this section in which such person has substantially prevailed and the court finds that the agency had no reasonable basis for denying access.

(i) Appeal to the appellate division of the supreme court must be made in accordance with subdivision (a) of section fifty-five hundred thirteen of the civil practice law and rules.

(ii) An appeal from an agency taken from an order of the court requiring disclosure of any or all records sought:

(A) shall be given preference;

(B) shall be brought on for argument on such terms and conditions as the presiding justice may direct, upon application of any party to the proceeding; and

(C) shall be deemed abandoned if the agency fails to serve and file a record and brief within sixty days after the date of service upon the petitioner of the notice of appeal, unless consent to further extension is given by all parties, or unless further extension is granted by the court upon such terms as may be just and upon good cause shown.

5. (a)(1) A person acting pursuant to law or regulation who, subsequent to the effective date of this subdivision, submits any information to any state agency may, at the time of submission, request that the agency except such information from disclosure under paragraph (d) of subdivision two of section eighty-seven of this article. Where the request itself contains information which if disclosed would defeat the purpose for which the exception is sought, such information shall also be excepted from disclosure.

(1-a) A person or entity who submits or otherwise makes available any records to any agency, may, at any time, identify those records or portions thereof that may contain critical infrastructure information, and request that the agency that maintains such records except such information from disclosure under subdivision two of section eighty-seven of this article. Where the request itself contains information which if disclosed would defeat the purpose for which the exception is sought, such information shall also be excepted from disclosure.

(2) The request for an exception shall be in writing and state the reasons why the information should be excepted from disclosure.

(3) Information submitted as provided in subparagraphs one and one-a of this paragraph shall be excepted from disclosure and be maintained apart by the agency from all other records until fifteen days after the entitlement to such exception has been finally determined or such further time as ordered by a court of competent jurisdiction.

(b) On the initiative of the agency at any time, or upon the request of any person for a record excepted from disclosure pursuant to this subdivision, the agency shall:

(1) inform the person who requested the exception of the agency's intention to determine whether such exception should be granted or continued;

(2) permit the person who requested the exception, within ten business days of receipt of notification from the agency, to submit a written statement of the necessity for the granting or continuation of such exception;

(3) within seven business days of receipt of such written statement, or within seven business days of the expiration of the period prescribed for submission of such statement, issue a written determination granting, continuing or terminating such exception and stating the reasons therefor; copies of such determination shall be served upon the person, if any, requesting the record, the person who requested the exception, and the committee on public access to records.

(c) A denial of an exception from disclosure under paragraph (b) of this subdivision may be appealed by the person submitting the information and a denial of access to the record may be appealed by the person requesting the record in accordance with this subdivision:

(1) Within seven business days of receipt of written notice denying the request, the person may file a written appeal from the determination of the agency with the head of the agency, the chief executive officer or governing body or their designated representatives.

(2) The appeal shall be determined within ten business days of the receipt of the appeal. Written notice of the determination shall be served upon the person, if any, requesting the record, the person who requested the exception and the committee on public access to records. The notice shall contain a statement of the reasons for the determination.

(i) A proceeding to review an adverse determination pursuant to paragraph (c) of this subdivision may be commenced pursuant to article seventy-eight of the civil practice law and rules. Such proceeding, when brought by a person seeking an exception from disclosure pursuant to this subdivision, must be commenced within fifteen days of the service of the written notice containing the adverse determination provided for in subparagraph two of paragraph (c) of this subdivision. The proceeding shall be given preference and shall be brought on for argument on such terms and conditions as the presiding justice may direct, not to exceed forty-five days.

(ii) Appeal to the appellate division of the supreme court must be made in accordance with subdivision (a) of section fifty-five hundred thirteen of the civil practice law and rules.

(iii) An appeal taken from an order of the court requiring disclosure:

(A) shall be given preference; and

(B) shall be brought on for argument on such terms and conditions as the presiding justice may direct, upon application by any party to the proceeding; and

(C) shall be deemed abandoned when the party requesting an exclusion from disclosure fails to serve and file a record and brief within sixty days after the date of the notice of appeal, unless consent of further extension is given by all parties, or unless further extension is granted by the court upon such terms as may be just and upon good cause shown.

(e) The person requesting an exception from disclosure pursuant to this subdivision shall in all proceedings have the burden of proving entitlement to the exception.

(f) Where the agency denies access to a record pursuant to paragraph (d) of subdivision two of section eighty-seven of this article, the agency shall have the burden of proving that the record falls within the provisions of such exception.

(g) Nothing in this subdivision shall be construed to deny any person access, pursuant to the remaining provisions of this article, to any record or part excepted from disclosure upon the express written consent of the person who had requested the exception.

(h) As used in this subdivision the term "agency" or "state agency" means only a state department, board, bureau, division, council or office and any public corporation the majority of whose members are appointed by the governor.

6. Nothing in this article shall be construed to limit or abridge any otherwise available right of access at law or in equity of any party to records.

7. Nothing in this article shall require the disclosure of the home address of an officer or employee, former officer or employee, or of a retiree of a public employees' retirement system; nor shall anything in this article require the disclosure of the name or home address of a beneficiary of a public employees' retirement system or of an applicant for appointment to public employment; provided however, that nothing in this subdivision shall limit or abridge the right of an employee organization, certified or recognized for any collective negotiating unit of an employer pursuant to article fourteen of the civil service law, to obtain the name or home address of any officer, employee or retiree of such employer, if such name or home address is otherwise available under this article.

8. Any person who, with intent to prevent the public inspection of a record pursuant to this article, willfully conceals or destroys any such record shall be guilty of a violation.

9. When records maintained electronically include items of information that would be available under this article, as well as items of information that may be withheld, an agency in designing its information retrieval methods, whenever practicable and reasonable, shall do so in a manner that permits the segregation and retrieval of available items in order to provide maximum public access.

Prior Law: Former § 89, add, L 1974, ch 578; repealed, L 1977, ch 933, eff Jan 1, 1978.

Editor's Notes Laws 1981, ch 890, § 4, eff Jan 1, 1982, provides as follows:

§ 4. This act shall take effect January first, nineteen hundred eighty-two, and shall apply only to records submitted on or after such date, except that the provisions of section one of this act shall take effect immediately.

Laws 1983, ch 783, § 2, eff July 30, 1983, provides as follows:

§ 2. This act shall take effect immediately and shall apply to any request pursuant to the public officers law for which there is no final determination, including judicial review.

Laws 1998, ch 544, § 4, eff Jan 1, 1999, provides as follows:

§ 4. This act shall take effect on the first day of January next succeeding the date upon which it shall have become a law; provided, however, the chair of the workers' compensation board is authorized to immediately adopt rules and regulations so that the provisions of this act may be fully implemented on such date.

Laws 2004, ch 339, § 2, eff Aug 10, 2004, provides as follows:

§ 2. This act shall take effect immediately and shall apply to proceedings commenced on or after such date.

Laws 2018, ch 47, § 2, eff January 1, 2019, provides:

§ 2. This act shall take effect on the first of January next succeeding the date on which it shall have become a law.

Laws 2019, ch 55, § 1 (Part II, Subpart K), eff April 12, 2019, provides:

Section 1. Legislative findings. The legislature finds that law enforcement photographs, otherwise known as "mugshots," are published on the internet and other public platforms with impunity. An individual's mugshot is displayed publicly even if the arrest does not lead to a conviction, or the conviction is later expunged, sealed, or pardoned. This practice presents an unacceptable invasion of the individual's personal privacy. While there is a well-established Constitutional right for the press and the public to publish government records which are in the public domain or that have been lawfully accessed, arrest and booking information have not been found by courts to have the same public right of access as criminal court proceedings or court filings. Therefore, each state can set access to this information through its Freedom of Information laws. The federal government has already limited access to booking photographs through privacy formulations in its Freedom of Information Act, and the legislature hereby declares that New York will follow the same principle to protect its residents from this unwarranted invasion of personal privacy, absent a specific law enforcement purpose, such as disclosure of a photograph to alert victims or witnesses to come forward to aid in a criminal investigation (Amd, L 2019, ch 59, § 1 (Part GGG), eff April 12, 2019).

Laws 2019, ch 59, § 3 (Part GGG), eff April 12, 2019, provides:

§ 3. This act shall take effect on the same date and in the same manner as subpart K of part II of a chapter of the laws of 2019 amending the public officers law relating to prohibiting disclosure of law enforcement booking information and photographs, as proposed in legislative bill numbers S.1505-C and A.2005-C, takes effect.

Laws 2019, ch 707, § 3, eff June 17, 2020, provides:

§ 3. This act shall take effect on the one hundred eightieth day after it shall have become a law and shall apply to appeals for which notice of appeal was filed on or after such date.

Amendment Notes 2011. Chapter 61, § 11 (Part U) amended:

2008. Chapter 351, § 1 amended:

By adding sub 9.

2006. Chapter 182 § 1 amended:

Sub 1, par (b), subpar iv by deleting at fig 1 "and" and adding the matter in italics.

By adding sub 1, par (b), subpar v.

By redesignating former sub 1, par (b), subpar v as sub 1, par (b), subpar vi.

Sub 1, par (b), subpar vi by deleting at fig 1 "articles six" and adding the matter in italics.

By adding sub 3, par (b).

2006. Chapter 492, § 1 amended:

Sub 4, par (c), opening par by deleting at fig 1 "provided, that such attorney's fees and litigation costs may be recovered only where the court finds that" and adding the matter in italics.

By adding sub 4, par (c), subpar i,.

By deleting former sub 4, par (c), subpar i.

Sub 4, par (c), subpar ii by deleting at fig 1 "lacked a reasonable basis in law for withholding the record" and adding the matter in italics.

The 2016 amendment by ch 487, § 1, added 4(d).

The 2017 amendment by ch 453, § 1, rewrote 4(c), which formerly read: "The court in such a proceeding may assess, against such agency involved, reasonable attorney's fees and other litigation costs reasonably incurred by such person in any case under the provisions of this section in which such person has substantially prevailed, when: i. the agency had no reasonable basis for denying access; or ii. the agency failed to respond to a request or appeal within the statutory time."

The 2018 amendment by ch 47, § 1, added 3(c).

The 2019 amendment by ch 55, § 2 (Part II, Subpart K), added 2(b)viii; and made a related change.

The 2019 amendment by ch 59, § 2 (Part GGG), substituted "arrest or booking photographs of an individual, unless public release of such photographs" for "booking information about an individual, including booking photographs, unless public release of such information" in 2(b)viii.

The 2019 amendment by ch 707 § 1, added the 5(d)(i) designation; added the last sentence of 5(d)(i); and added 5(d)(ii) and 5(d)(iii).

The 2020 amendment by ch 96, § 4, added 2-b and 2-c.

1. In general

If court is unable to determine whether withheld documents fall entirely within scope of asserted exemption, it should conduct in camera inspection of representative documents and order disclosure of all nonexempt, appropriately redacted material. Gould v New York City Police Dep't, 89 N.Y.2d 267, 653 N.Y.S.2d 54, 675 N.E.2d 808, 1996 N.Y. LEXIS 3575 (N.Y. 1996).

Freedom of Information Law (FOIL) does not expressly or impliedly authorize private claim for money damages; rather, civil remedy exists by way of Article 78 proceeding with counsel fees and court costs available, as well as criminal sanction. Warburton v State, 173 Misc. 2d 879, 662 N.Y.S.2d 706, 1997 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 390 (N.Y. Ct. Cl. 1997).

Because a resident only sought non-confidential materials in a Freedom of Information Law, Public Officers Law art. 6, application, because a yacht club was not a necessary party under N.Y. C.P.L.R. 1001(a) with a right to intervene, and, aside from certain very limited exceptions, because a village did not prove that the materials sought were exempt under Public Officers Law § 87(2), the resident prevailed within the meaning of Public Officers Law § 89(4)(c). Matter of McCrory v Village of Mamaroneck, 932 N.Y.S.2d 850, 34 Misc. 3d 603, 2011 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 5106 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 2011).

2. Advisory opinions; consultants, generally

3. —Committee on Open Government/Public Access to Records

The Freedom of Information Law requires the Committee on Public Access to Records to furnish an advisory opinion regarding the law to any agency or any person (Pub O § 89(1)). However, it does not give the committee any part in the review process established by Pub O § 89(4) except to require that a copy of any appeal to the records access appeals officer and the determination thereon be furnished by the agency to the committee. Thus, while an individual who has unsuccessfully sought agency disclosure under the Freedom of Information Law may properly resort to the committee for an advisory opinion, such opinion is neither binding upon the agency nor entitled to greater deference in an Article 78 proceeding than is the construction of the agency. John P. v Whalen, 54 N.Y.2d 89, 444 N.Y.S.2d 598, 429 N.E.2d 117, 1981 N.Y. LEXIS 3071 (N.Y. 1981).

Advisory opinions of Committee on Open Government are neither binding on agency nor entitled to greater deference in Article 78 proceeding than is construction of agency. Buffalo News v Buffalo Enter. Dev. Corp., 84 N.Y.2d 488, 619 N.Y.S.2d 695, 644 N.E.2d 277, 1994 N.Y. LEXIS 4113 (N.Y. 1994).

The advisory opinion of the Committee on Public Access to Records is entitled to great weight and, if not irrational or unreasonable, should be upheld. Gannett Co. v James, 108 Misc. 2d 862, 438 N.Y.S.2d 901, 1981 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2304 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1981), aff'd, 86 A.D.2d 744, 447 N.Y.S.2d 781, 1982 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 15305 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1982).

The State Insurance Fund is not exempt from the notices required to be given to the Committee on Public Access to Records under Acts 1980, Chapter 677 § 3, since, although the systems of records kept by the State Insurance Funds are confidential, the focal point of the legislation is not whether the records are available to public access, but whether the records exist that may be used to identify individuals. Com Pub Acc Rec FOIL—Ad Op 1893.

State agencies are required to adopt their own regulations consistent with those of Committee on Public Access to Records which are required under § 89(1)(b)(iii) of Freedom of Information Law. Comm Pub Acc Rec FOIL-Ad Op 2517.

Committee on Public Access to Records has no authority to compel agency to comply with Freedom of Information Law. Comm Pub Acc Rec FOIL-Ad Op 2579.

4. Attorney matters, generally

In connection with request for records under Freedom of Information Law, petitioner did not have right to be present at hearing ordered by court, at which both employee who conducted search for records and supervisor appeared, and at which court inquired into diligence of search for records; moreover, petitioner did not have right to assignment of counsel. Thomas v Records Access Officer, 205 A.D.2d 786, 613 N.Y.S.2d 929, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6569 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't), app. denied, 84 N.Y.2d 807, 621 N.Y.S.2d 516, 645 N.E.2d 1216, 1994 N.Y. LEXIS 3439 (N.Y. 1994).

Where appellant sued respondents under the Freedom of Information Law, that they complied with its records request before filing an answer did not justify the trial court in denying appellant's request for attorneys' fees, as it "substantially prevailed" in case, having eventually received the documents it sought, and respondents had no reasonable basis for denying it access to those documents. Matter of Acme Bus Corp. v County of Suffolk, 136 A.D.3d 896, 26 N.Y.S.3d 159, 2016 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1169 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2016).

Trial court erred in denying a petitioner's request for an award of an attorney's fee and litigation costs because all of the statutory prerequisites for such an award had been satisfied and the award would promote the purpose of and policy behind the Freedom of Information Law. Matter of South Shore Press, Inc. v Havemeyer, 136 A.D.3d 929, 25 N.Y.S.3d 303, 2016 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1192 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2016).

5. —Attorney fees

Since the public's interest in closure of a nursing facility did not by itself establish that any records relating to the New York State Department of Health's actions were also of interest to society, as the records included general agency documents as well as closure-related records, the facility was not entitled to attorney fees under N.Y. Pub. Off. Law § 89(4)(c)(i). Beechwood Restorative Care Ctr. v Signor, 5 N.Y.3d 435, 808 N.Y.S.2d 568, 842 N.E.2d 466, 2005 N.Y. LEXIS 2697 (N.Y. 2005).

Firefighter association was not entitled to counsel fees under CLS Pub O § 89, even though it successfully challenged city's adverse determination and obtained release of response time information under Freedom of Information Law, since information was not "of clearly significant interest to the general public." MacRae v Dolce, 130 A.D.2d 577, 515 N.Y.S.2d 295, 1987 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 46577 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1987).

In Article 78 proceeding challenging denial of request for certain documents under Freedom of Information Law, petitioner "substantially prevailed" for purposes of recovering counsel fees under CLS Pub O § 89(4)(c), even though documents were released before any defense was asserted, since it was initiation of proceeding which brought about release of documents, and it would be irrational to allow respondent to moot proceeding and prevent award of counsel fees by releasing documents before asserting defense. Records of police officers who had been investigated, rules, regulations and orders found to have been violated, and discipline imposed were of "clearly significant interest to the general public" under CLS Pub O § 89(4)(c)(i) for purposes of awarding attorney's fees in Article 78 proceeding challenging denial of request for release of those records since incident involved on-duty police officer who left his assigned post without authorization to perform termite inspection for realtor at petitioner's home, and second police officer's refusal to take statement from petitioner when she lodged complaint of such conduct; police department's response to incident would significantly contribute to public's evaluation of important public agency. City police department lacked "reasonable basis in law" under CLS Pub O § 89(4)(c)(ii) to deny petitioner's request for investigatory and disciplinary records concerning incident in which on-duty officer left his assigned post without authorization to perform termite inspection for realtor at petitioner's house, and second officer refused to take statement from petitioner when she lodged complaint in regard thereto, notwithstanding that police department's refusal was based on CLS Civ R § 50-a, which provides that personnel records used to evaluate performance of police officers, inter alia, are not subject to inspection except by consent of officer, since (1) § 50-a does not create blanket exemption and was enacted to prevent vexatious investigations into irrelevant matters in context of civil or criminal litigation, and (2) petitioner had no cause of action as to second officer's failure to take her complaint, and any cause of action against other officer was time barred when petitioner made her Freedom of Information Law (FOIL) request; thus, since records were otherwise of significant public interest and petitioner had substantially prevailed in her Article 78 proceeding challenging denial of her request to release records under FOIL, it was proper to award her reasonable counsel fees. Powhida v Albany, 147 A.D.2d 236, 542 N.Y.S.2d 865, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8132 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1989).

Petitioner, who was not lawyer and did not retain lawyer to represent him in proceeding under Freedom of Information Law, was not entitled to award of attorney's fees. Leeds v Burns, 205 A.D.2d 540, 613 N.Y.S.2d 46, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6002 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't), app. denied, 84 N.Y.2d 811, 622 N.Y.S.2d 914, 647 N.E.2d 120, 1994 N.Y. LEXIS 4572 (N.Y. 1994).

In Article 78 proceeding to compel Department of Transportation (DOT) to release certain documents pursuant to Freedom of Information Law (FOIL), court did not err in awarding counsel fees to petitioner under CLS CPLR Art 86 on basis that DOT's position in denying access to requested documents was not "substantially justified," where DOT acknowledged receipt of petitioner's FOIL request but simply did not respond, either to petitioner's application or to its appeal, and no explanation was ever proffered by DOT as to why information was withheld. In Article 78 proceeding to compel Department of Transportation (DOT) to release, pursuant to Freedom of Information Law (FOIL), copies of proposals and related documents submitted in response to request for proposals (RFP) inviting contract bids for development and operation of high-speed ferry service, petitioner was not entitled to award of counsel fees under CLS CPLR Art 86 where DOT alleged that disclosure of actual proposals before contract was awarded would undermine negotiating process. Cross-Sound Ferry Servs. v Department of Transp., 219 A.D.2d 346, 634 N.Y.S.2d 575, 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12680 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1995).

In Article 78 proceeding under Freedom of Information Law wherein respondent eventually supplied requested information and court dismissed petition as moot, court did not abuse its discretion in denying petitioner's request for counsel fees, in light of evidence of confusion and possible misunderstanding involved in respondent's efforts to respond to petitioner's request for information. URAC Corp. v PSC, 223 A.D.2d 906, 636 N.Y.S.2d 480, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 399 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1996).

Court properly denied petitioners' request for counsel fees under CLS Pub O § 89(4)(c), even though petitioners substantially prevailed in their Freedom of Information Law request for survey maps of their respective parcels and county respondent lacked reasonable basis in law for withholding surveys, since surveys, which were obtained in connection with proposed flood control project, were not of clearly significant interest to general public, despite fact that 6 other individuals and national environmental organization sought access to same surveys. Grace v Chenango County, 256 A.D.2d 890, 681 N.Y.S.2d 695, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13583 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1998).

In Article 78 proceeding by landowners against town board members, landowners were not entitled to counsel fees under CLS Pub O § 89(4)(c), even though worksheets used in completing tax assessment roll had been wrongfully withheld from landowners, where there was statutory and decisional authority providing reasonable basis for view that worksheets were properly withheld as pre-decisional matter. Even if members lacked reasonable basis to withhold worksheets used in completing tax assessment roll, court did not abuse its discretion in denying landowners' request for counsel fees under CLS Pub O § 89(4)(c) where worksheets were small part of landowners' total Freedom of Information Law requests, with which members otherwise fully complied. Todd v Craig, 266 A.D.2d 626, 697 N.Y.S.2d 722, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11242 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1999), app. denied, 94 N.Y.2d 760, 706 N.Y.S.2d 80, 727 N.E.2d 577, 2000 N.Y. LEXIS 121 (N.Y. 2000).

Although the appellate court found that records which the New York Department of Correctional Services (DOCS) created after an inmate was alleged injured by a corrections officer were not exempt from disclosure under New York's Freedom of Information Law, N.Y. Pub. Off. Law art. 6, and it ordered the DOCS to disclose redacted versions of the records that did not contain personal information, the court found that the information requested was not of clearly significant interest to the general public, and it upheld the trial court's judgment denying the inmate's request under N.Y. Pub. Off. Law § 89(4)(c) for attorney's fees. Beyah v Goord, 309 A.D.2d 1049, 766 N.Y.S.2d 222, 2003 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10931 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2003).

Some records that state agencies withheld from a citizen were not interagency and intraagency documents that were exempt from disclosure under N.Y. Pub. Off. Law § 87(2). But as the agencies had a rational basis for believing the exemption applied, the citizen's request for counsel fees under N.Y. Pub. Off. Law § 89(4)(c)(i) was properly denied. Miller v New York State DOT, 58 A.D.3d 981, 871 N.Y.S.2d 489, 2009 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 160 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), app. denied, 12 N.Y.3d 712, 882 N.Y.S.2d 397, 909 N.E.2d 1235, 2009 N.Y. LEXIS 1786 (N.Y. 2009).

In light of the appellate courts' significant modification of a supreme court's order pertaining to the disclosure of requested information, the petitioner did not substantially prevail, and thus there was no basis for an award of attorney's fees and other litigation costs. Matter of Grabell v New York City Police Dept., 139 A.D.3d 477, 32 N.Y.S.3d 81, 2016 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3540 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't), app. denied, 28 N.Y.3d 910, 69 N.E.3d 1022, 47 N.Y.S.3d 226, 2016 N.Y. LEXIS 3827 (N.Y. 2016).

Requestor was entitled to attorney's fees under the Freedom of Information Law (FOIL) because the requestor received a complete response and the actual document only after commencing the proceeding, and, as such, the requestor substantially prevailed, even if the document was available in the public domain, and the agency did not establish a reasonable basis for denying the FOIL request. Matter of Competitive Enter. Inst. v Attorney

Gen. of N.Y., 161 A.D.3d 1283, 76 N.Y.S.3d 640, 2018 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3152 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2018).

Reporters were entitled to attorney fees under the Public Officers Law because they substantially prevailed and the mayor's office lacked a reasonable basis for withholding its communications. Matter of Rauh v de Blasio, 161 A.D.3d 120, 75 N.Y.S.3d 15, 2018 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3064 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2018).

Although a requester substantially prevailed, the Department of Corrections and Community Supervision had a reasonable basis for denying access to unredacted records, and therefore, the requester was not entitled to an award of counsel fees and costs. Matter of Prisoners' Legal Servs. of N.Y. v New York State Dept. of Corr. & Community Supervision, 173 A.D.3d 8, 98 N.Y.S.3d 677, 2019 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3434 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2019).

Petitioners were properly denied counsel fees because they had not substantially prevailed within the meaning of the Public Officers Law, as they had not received all the information that they requested and to which they were entitled in response to the underlying Freedom of Information Law litigation Matter of Union Carbide Corp. v New York State Dept. of Envtl. Conservation, 2020 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7648 (December 10, 2020).

Court would decline request for award of attorney fees and costs under CLS Pub O § 89 by successful petitioner in proceeding to require disclosure of names of all inmates housed in particular area of correctional facility since request was apparently one of first impression, respondents demonstrated concern for release of information, and there was no showing that agency lacked any reasonable basis in law for withholding information. Bensing v Le Fevre, 133 Misc. 2d 198, 506 N.Y.S.2d 822, 1986 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2848 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1986).

Petitioners had not "substantially prevailed" in proceeding challenging denial of their request for certain documents under Freedom of Information Law, where court merely granted access to one of 3 categories of documents requested; thus, petitioners were not entitled to award of attorney's fees and costs under CLS Pub O § 89(4)(c). Faulkner v Del Giacco, 139 Misc. 2d 790, 529 N.Y.S.2d 255, 1988 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 276 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1988).

In Article 78 proceeding by legal aid society to obtain access to redacted referrals by correctional institutions of prison inmates to specialist medical care in which court granted request for access, court would also allow award of attorney's fees pursuant to CLS Pub O § 89(4)(c) in amount of $7,500. Rold v Coughlin, 142 Misc. 2d 877, 538 N.Y.S.2d 896, 1989 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 461 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1989).

In proceeding under Freedom of Information Law involving request by animal rights advocates for documents maintained by university review committee, court would deny petitioners' request for sanctions since committee had reasonable basis in law for redacting certain materials and withholding others. American Soc. for Prevention of Cruelty to Animals v Board of Trustees of State University, 147 Misc. 2d 847, 556 N.Y.S.2d 447, 1990 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 229 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1990).

Prevailing party in Freedom of Information Law proceeding was not entitled to attorney fees as costs where Appellate Division precedent, although held by court to be inapposite on its facts, provided at least arguable basis for denial of request, and thus agency had not lacked reasonable basis in law for withholding of requested record. Citizens for Alternatives to Animal Labs v Board of Trustees of the State Univ. of N.Y., 169 Misc. 2d 210, 643 N.Y.S.2d 323, 1996 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 172 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1996), rev'd, 240 A.D.2d 490, 658 N.Y.S.2d 653, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6098 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1997).

In Article 78 proceeding wherein court found that Department of Health lacked reasonable basis to deny Freedom of Information law requests for physician identifier information contained in Statewide Planning and Research Cooperative System (SPARCS), award of attorney's fees was not warranted although petitioner substantially prevailed and SPARCS records appear to be matters of significant interest to general public, as department's argument related to scope of "identifying details" subject to personal privacy protection, while overly broad, was not wholly lacking in merit. New York Times Co. v New York State Dep't of Health, 173 Misc. 2d 310, 660 N.Y.S.2d 810, 1997 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 248 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1997), aff'd, 243 A.D.2d 157, 674 N.Y.S.2d 826, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7774 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1998).

Since New York City's fire department had good reason to try to resist releasing certain materials relating to the events of September 11, 2001, an award of attorney's fees to a reporter, and the newspaper he worked for, after a partially successful attempt to obtain their release was not appropriate. N.Y. Times Co. v City of New York Fire Dep't, 195 Misc. 2d 119, 754 N.Y.S.2d 517, 2003 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 94 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 2003), aff'd in part, modified, 3 A.D.3d 340, 770 N.Y.S.2d 324, 2004 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 143 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2004).

Where the news corporation sought judicial review of the decision of the State of New York Department of Transportation to deny the corporation's New York Freedom of Information Law, N.Y. Pub. Off. Law art. 6, seeking information from priority investigation location lists and priority investigation intersection lists that was not discoverable in lawsuits pursuant to 23 U.S.C.S. § 409 and relief was granted, the corporation was not entitled to counsel fees under N.Y. Pub. Off. Law § 89(4)(c)(i), (ii); it could not be found that the department, under 23 U.S.C.S. § 409, did not have a reasonable basis to withhold the documents. Newsday, Inc. v N.Y. State DOT, 765 N.Y.S.2d 758, 1 Misc. 3d 321, 2003 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1263 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 2003), aff'd, 10 A.D.3d 201, 780 N.Y.S.2d 402, 2004 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9272 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2004).

Petitioner's request for access to documents a police department compiled and maintained in conjunction with its investigation into allegations that a priest sexually molested several boys in his parish raised novel issues, and although the trial court ordered a county government to release redacted copies of the documents, it denied petitioner's request for an award of attorney's fees. Inscho v Tioga County Legislature, 766 N.Y.S.2d 754, 2 Misc. 3d 230, 2003 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1386 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 2003).

Resident of middle-income housing who sought to have a city housing department allow her to copy apartment waiting lists was entitled to attorney fees and costs under N.Y. Pub. Off. Law § 89(4)(c). The resident had clearly prevailed, and her reason for wishing to see the lists, to determine whether there was misconduct in the way the department was administering the lists, was of significant public interest. Matter of Thomas v City of N.Y. Dept. of Hous. Preserv. & Dev., 817 N.Y.S.2d 864, 12 Misc. 3d 547, 235 N.Y.L.J. 81, 2006 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 783 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 2006).

Because an agency had a reasonable basis for denying a petitioner's request for access under N.Y. Pub. Off. Law § 89(4)(c)(i), the trial court properly refused to award the petitioner legal fees. Matter of Hawley v Village of Penn Yan, 35 A.D.3d 1270, 827 N.Y.S.2d 390, 2006 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 15663 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 2006).

Because correspondence between the parties indicated that the police department engaged in tactics to delay disclosure, and because complete disclosure was made only after court intervention, the matter was not resolved "voluntarily"; therefore, the trial court's denial of the a civil liberties union's request for an award of counsel fees and costs under N.Y. Pub. Off. Law § 89(4)(c) was an abuse of discretion. Matter of New York Civ. Liberties Union v City of Saratoga Springs, 87 A.D.3d 336, 926 N.Y.S.2d 732, 2011 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5690 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2011).

Denial of an association's request for counsel fees in its Freedom of Information Law proceeding under N.Y. C.P.L.R. art. 78 was error because, as the records requested were attached to the answer filed by police, the association substantially prevailed under N.Y. Pub. Off. Law § 89(4)(c), and the police had no reasonable basis for withholding the entirety of the records sought; the argument that there was a reasonable basis to believe that the records were exempt from disclosure was belied by the virtually immediate release of the requested information upon commencement of the proceeding. Further, at most, the police could have reasonably believed that a small portion of the records were exempt, and the police failed to articulate any persuasive reason why the records could not have been redacted and the portions that were not exempt from disclosure turned over.

Matter of New York State Defenders Assn. v New York State Police, 87 A.D.3d 193, 927 N.Y.S.2d 423, 2011 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5683 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2011).

As petitioner did not substantially prevail in his efforts to obtain disclosure of the documents and, given their content, the department did not arbitrarily arrive at its decision not to disclose them, and the trial court's decision denying him counsel fees did not constitute an abuse of its discretion Matter of Mazzone v New York State Dept. of Transp., 95 A.D.3d 1423, 943 N.Y.S.2d 648, 2012 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3515 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2012).

Award of counsel fees and costs under N.Y. Pub. Off. Law § 89(4)(c)(i) was warranted because a legal aid society doggedly pursued its request for information from the Division of Parole for more than a year without a responsive reply to that request or its appeals prior to the commencement of a N.Y. C.P.L.R. art. 78 proceeding. Matter of Legal Aid Socy. v New York State Dept. of Corr. & Community Supervision, 105 A.D.3d 1120, 962 N.Y.S.2d 773, 2013 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2244 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2013).

Journalist was entitled to administrative relief and attorney's fees because, with two exceptions, the police department's response consisted largely of repeated, conclusory statements that the disclosure of records pertaining to certain vans would allow would-be criminals to circumvent the vans' potential effectiveness and the information could be provided in redacted form. Matter of Grabell v New York City Police Dept., 996 N.Y.S.2d 893, 47 Misc. 3d 203, 2014 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 5353 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 2014), aff'd in part, modified, vacated, in part, 139 A.D.3d 477, 32 N.Y.S.3d 81, 2016 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3540 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2016).

Citizen whose request for electronic voting records was wrongly denied was not entitled to attorneys' fees because the denial was based on a good faith interpretation of the applicable statute. Matter of Kosmider v Whitney, 56 Misc. 3d 354, 46 N.Y.S.3d 403, 2017 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 327 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 2017), aff'd, 160 A.D.3d 1151, 75 N.Y.S.3d 305, 2018 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2519 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2018).

6. Burden of proof

In convicted murderer's Article 78 proceeding under Freedom of Information Law (FOIL) to compel district attorney to disclose criminal history records of prosecution witnesses who testified at his trial, district attorney had burden of proving that copies of requested records were previously furnished to petitioner or his attorney. Williams v Erie County DA, 255 A.D.2d 863, 682 N.Y.S.2d 316, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12053 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1998).

Record request under the Freedom of Information Law for numerous documents relating to a village's deer management activities was improperly redacted based, in part, on a statutory exemption because there was no evidence to support the determination that the safety of the property owners who participated in the deer management program could be endangered by the release of their identities. Matter of Laveck v Village Bd. of Trustees of the Vil. of Lansing, 145 A.D.3d 1168, 42 N.Y.S.3d 460, 2016 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7991 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2016).

Record request under the Freedom of Information Law for numerous documents relating to a village's deer management activities was improperly redacted, as a claim that disclosure would constitute an unwarranted invasion of personal privacy lacked merit because there was no showing that the redacted information fell into any statutory category that qualified for exemption or that there were privacy interests at stake that outweighed the public interest in disclosure of the information. Matter of Laveck v Village Bd. of Trustees of the Vil. of Lansing, 145 A.D.3d 1168, 42 N.Y.S.3d 460, 2016 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7991 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2016).

State insurance department superintendent did not meet his burden of proof that he had in revisiting disclosure of certain reports that the trade secret exemption applied; the application of that exemption would thwart the enactment of regulatory law aimed at preventing insurance companies from engaging in the illegal insurance practice known as "redlining." Matter of Markowitz v Serio, 812 N.Y.S.2d 841, 11 Misc. 3d 439, 235 N.Y.L.J. 12, 2006 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 81 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 2006), rev'd, 39 A.D.3d 247, 833 N.Y.S.2d 444, 2007 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4287 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2007), reinstated, 11 N.Y.3d 43, 862 N.Y.S.2d 833, 893 N.E.2d 110, 2008 N.Y. LEXIS 1827 (N.Y. 2008).

Because the Department of Taxation and Finance complied with N.Y. Pub. Off. Law § 89(4)(a) by providing a sufficient description of the withheld documents and by articulating a basis for its denial, and because the withheld documents fell squarely within the inter-agency and intra-agency exemption as predecisional, nonfinal discussions and recommendations by employees within the agency used to assist the decision makers in formulating a determination, the taxpayers were not entitled to N.Y. C.P.L.R. art. 78 relief. Matter of Bass Pro, Inc. v Megna, 69 A.D.3d 1040, 892 N.Y.S.2d 642, 2010 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 189 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2010).

7. Effect of federal laws

Bank (petitioner), which was target of hostile takeover by second bank, was not deprived of due process by State Banking Board's determination not to release certain confidential information regarding "hostile" bank's takeover application, since (1) petitioner had no "property" rights in proceeding because banking board's sole function was to decide whether to allow proposed offer and it did not play active part in transaction nor approve it as sound course of action for either bank, (2) CLS Bank § 142 did not require bank superintendent even to notify petitioner or to offer petitioner opportunity to take part in proceeding, (3) petitioner had received great bulk of material requested through use of Freedom of Information Law, (4) petitioner had been given notice of issues and had submitted extensive documentation in opposition to takeover application, and (5) even if application were approved, parallel federal application had to be considered and approved by Federal Reserve Board, wherein petitioner would have time to oppose it. Irving Bank Corp. v Considine, 138 Misc. 2d 849, 525 N.Y.S.2d 770, 1988 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 105 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1988).

Federal district court cannot exercise supplementary jurisdiction over inmate's New York Freedom of Information Law (FOIL) claim, where FOIL claim arises from alleged failure of sheriff and police department to turn over exculpatory material which they say does not exist, while federal civil rights claim arises from alleged threats to inmate's personal safety while incarcerated, because constitutional right to personal safety in prison and request for documents pursuant to CLS Pub Officers Law § 89 are distinct factually and legally so that federal and state claims do not derive from common nucleus of operative fact. Benyi v Broome County, 887 F. Supp. 395, 1995 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 6621 (N.D.N.Y. 1995).

Federal Freedom of Information and Privacy Acts apply only to records of federal agencies and New York State Freedom of Information Law applies to records of units of government in New York. Comm Pub Acc Rec FOIL-Ad Op 2671.

8. Jurisdiction matters, generally

Supreme Court is appropriate forum for addressing violation of Freedom of Information Law; thus, Commissioner of Education had no jurisdiction over such claims. 1996 Op Comm Ed No. 13596.

9. —Subpoenas

In action by injured construction worker under CLS Labor § 240(1), worker's employer was entitled to subpoena duces tecum requiring State Department of Motor Vehicles to produce certified copy of worker's 1997 application for renewal of his driver's license where (1) document sought was relevant to damages and could not have been obtained through disclosure, and (2) document was not exempt from subpoena merely because information contained therein might have been exempt from disclosure under CLS Pub O § 89(2)(b)(i), because Freedom of Information Law does not limit litigant's resort to compulsory legal process. Edbauer v Bd. of Educ., 286 A.D.2d 999, 731 N.Y.S.2d 309, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9083 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 2001).

ii. Applicability

10. In general

Municipal development corporation, which disclosed its annual budget publicly, filed its audited financial reports with municipality, and which was established to invest public funds in economic development activities, was agency subject to requirements of Freedom of Information Law. Buffalo News v Buffalo Enter. Dev. Corp., 173 A.D.2d 43, 578 N.Y.S.2d 945, 1991 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 17870 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1991), app. dismissed, 79 N.Y.2d 977, 583 N.Y.S.2d 195, 592 N.E.2d 803, 1992 N.Y. LEXIS 1036 (N.Y. 1992).

In a N.Y. C.P.L.R. art. 78 proceeding brought by a publisher and a journalist challenging the denial of its Freedom of Information Law, N.Y. Pub. Off. Law § 84 et seq., records request seeking an electronic copy of certain New York State employee payroll information, it was determined that the 2008 amendments to N.Y. Pub. Off. Law § 89(3) regarding requests for electronic information did not apply to the case since the amendments were not retroactive. Matter of Hearst Corp. v State, 882 N.Y.S.2d 862, 24 Misc. 3d 611, 2009 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 868 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 2009).

Acts 1980, ch 677, relative to the submission of notices of systems of records maintained by agencies, is not applicable to entities of local government but only to state agencies. Comm Pub Acc Rec FOIL—Ad Op 1905.

Individual agencies maintaining records under emergency preparedness plan are required to respond in accordance with the Freedom of Information Law, notwithstanding that intent of the plan is to funnel information into and disclose information from a single source. Comm Pub Acc Rec FOIL-Ad Op 2786.

11. Courts; litigation, generally

12. —Office of Court Administration (OCA)

Office of Court Administration is an "agency" subject to the Freedom of Information Law in all respects, rather than a "court" that falls outside the requirements of the Freedom of Information Law. Comm Pub Acc Rec FOIL-Ad Op 2810.

13. —Physical evidence

Items presented in evidence in criminal trial requested by petitioner, consisting of "articles of clothing and alleged weapons," did not fall within definition of "record" subject to disclosure under Freedom of Information Law; such physical evidence is not part of "the documents and statistics leading (governmental determination" (CLS Pub O § 84 (2) (e) (i)). Sideri v Office of the DA, 243 A.D.2d 423, 663 N.Y.S.2d 206, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10842 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1997), app. denied, 91 N.Y.2d 808, 669 N.Y.S.2d 261, 692 N.E.2d 130, 1998 N.Y. LEXIS 252 (N.Y. 1998).

14. Criminal law, generally

15. —District Attorney's office

In convicted murderer's Article 78 proceeding under Freedom of Information Law (FOIL) to compel district attorney to disclose criminal history records of prosecution witnesses who testified at his trial, petitioner could not obtain such information under FOIL if he or his attorney obtained it from prosecutor in prior proceeding, unless he and his attorney no longer possessed that information. If copies of requested records were previously furnished to petitioner or his attorney in prior proceeding, but petitioner and his attorney no longer possessed them, other copies had to be furnished unless district attorney no longer possessed them and thus could not comply. Williams v Erie County DA, 255 A.D.2d 863, 682 N.Y.S.2d 316, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12053 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1998).

16. —Grand jury

Grand jury minutes are court rather than agency records and are accordingly exempt from ambit of Freedom of Information Law. Gibson v Grady, 192 A.D.2d 657, 597 N.Y.S.2d 84, 1993 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3871 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1993).

Grand jury minutes are court records, rather than agency records, and thus are exempt from ambit of Freedom of Information Law, CLS Pub O §§ 86(1) and (3). Mullgrav v Santucci, 195 A.D.2d 786, 600 N.Y.S.2d 382, 1993 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7280 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1993).

17. —Police and other law enforcement agencies

It was error to deny a motion to dismiss a petition filed by police officers and the officers' union alleging a city was barred from holding public police disciplinary hearings because (1) the officers had no private right of action for claimed violations of Civil Rights Law § 50-a, (2) Civil Rights Law § 50-a did not mandate closed disciplinary hearings, as the statute did not mention disciplinary hearings or require that such hearings be held in private, and this exclusion was intentional, (3) Public Officers Law §§ 89(2) and 96, barring a disclosure of records that was an unwarranted invasion of privacy, did not bar public disciplinary hearings, (4) Second Class Cities Law § 137 gave a city the right to hold public police disciplinary hearings, and (5) the Public Employment Relations Board had exclusive jurisdiction over whether police disciplinary matters were a prohibited subject of negotiations, under Civil Service Law §§ 205(5)(d) and 209-a(1) and (2), as alleged by the officers and the union. Matter of Doe v City of Schenectady, 84 A.D.3d 1455, 923 N.Y.S.2d 241, 2011 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3607 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2011).

Police department failed to show that the documents requested under the Freedom of Information Law were exempt or should be sealed under N.Y. Pub. Off. Law §§ 87(2)(e)(i), 89(2)(a) because it failed to provide any information on the generic types of documents or categories of documents that were allegedly exempt from disclosure, or to suggest a reason why the records could not be redacted so as to delete details tending to identify the victim's identity. Matter of Loevy & Loevy v New York City Police Dept., 957 N.Y.S.2d 628, 38 Misc. 3d 950, 2013 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 46 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 2013).

18. —Prisons; prisoners

Absent a showing that an inmate's fiancee was a confidential informant or requested or was promised anonymity, or that the fiancee's life or safety would be endangered by disclosure, the inmate's N.Y. Pub. Off. Law art. 6 request for any statements made by the fiancee during an interview with investigators was improperly denied; accordingly, the inmate was entitled to N.Y. C.P.L.R. art. 78 relief. Matter of Gomez v Fischer, 74 A.D.3d 1399, 902 N.Y.S.2d 212, 2010 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4589 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2010).

19. Employment; labor

N.Y. Lab. Law § 220(3) did not include contracts for the sale of goods used in public works projects, and where a steel company acted solely as materials supplier, supplying shop-painted structural steel for a public works project, its workers were not subject to prevailing wage laws; a trial court's order dismissing a proceeding brought by a union representative pursuant to Art. 78 against a transportation department, seeking review of the transportation department's denial of the union representative's request under the Freedom of Information Law, N.Y. Pub. Off. Law art. 6, for the steel company's payroll records, was affirmed. Ramaglia v N.Y. State DOT, 5 A.D.3d 909, 773 N.Y.S.2d 167, 2004 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2560 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), app. denied, 3 N.Y.3d 601, 782 N.Y.S.2d 405, 816 N.E.2d 195, 2004 N.Y. LEXIS 1595 (N.Y. 2004).

Trial court erred in finding that materials resulting from the state police's investigation after a state trooper had resigned were confidential under the Freedom of Information Law (FOIL) because police departments who investigated persons who were no longer their employees were not conducting investigations of "personnel" within the meaning of FOIL. 2015 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7824.

20. Fires; firefighters

Because a volunteer fire company was an "agency" subject to the requirements of Freedom of Information Law (FOIL), N.Y. Pub. Off. Law art. 6, and because it did not claim any FOIL exemption, it was required to disclose the requested records without regard to whether they related to governmental or nongovernmental functions. Matter of Matter of Hayes v Chestertown Volunteer Fire Co., Inc., 93 A.D.3d 1117, 941 N.Y.S.2d 734, 2012 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2340 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2012).

21. Insurance matters

Neither Superintendent of Insurance, as liquidator, nor Liquidation Bureau is "agency" of state for purposes of Freedom of Information Law. Consolidated Edison Co. v Insurance Dep't of State, 140 Misc. 2d 969, 532 N.Y.S.2d 186, 1988 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 511 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1988).

Where applicable, relief under Freedom of Information Law (FOIL) may be had regardless of availability of discovery through some other means; thus, petitioner in Article 78 proceeding was not precluded from seeking to compel State Insurance Department to comply with request under FOIL, even though petitioner could obtain similar discovery in plenary action. Consolidated Edison Co. v Insurance Dep't of State, 140 Misc. 2d 969, 532 N.Y.S.2d 186, 1988 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 511 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1988).

Filings of insurers are open to public inspection, including insurer's annual statement as well as its rate and form filings. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 00-05-13.

Insurance Department's Bureau of Taxes and Accounts maintains certain financial records relating to Property/Casualty Insurance Security Fund, and those records are available under Freedom of Information Law (FOIL); when company is declared insolvent, all books and records relating to company are transferred to Liquidation Bureau, which is not subject to FOIL, but one may inquire directly to Liquidation Bureau to ascertain whether they maintain records relating to insolvent insurers that contain information not maintained by Insurance Department. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 00-12-01.

Insurer's filed rates are records of Insurance Department and are subject to public disclosure provisions contained in CLS Public Officers Law Art 6 ("Freedom of Information Law"). Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 01-02-08.

22. Schools, education and the like, generally

Where there was no indication that the teachers group intended to use the names to, for example, expose governmental abuses or evaluate governmental activities, rather, it appeared that it sought the teachers' names as a convenient mechanism for contacting prospective members, although the group had a right to seek dues-paying members, it could not rely on the Freedom of Information Law to achieve that end. Matter of New York State United Teachers v Brighter Choice Charter School, 15 N.Y.3d 560, 915 N.Y.S.2d 194, 940 N.E.2d 899, 2010 N.Y. LEXIS 3287 (N.Y. 2010).

Negotiated settlement of teacher disciplinary proceeding brought under CLS Educ § 3020-a, in which some charges were sustained by teacher's express admission of guilt, was not exempt from disclosure under Freedom of Information Law since CLS Educ § 3020-a did not provide for privacy of hearing, and negotiated settlement was not protected as employment record. Anonymous v Board of Educ., 162 Misc. 2d 300, 616 N.Y.S.2d 867, 1994 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 402 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1994).

23. —Community colleges

Community college did not enjoy immunity under Freedom of Information Law (FOIL) as nongovernmental agency since college was well within FOIL (CLS Pub O § 86(3)) definition of "agency" as governmental entity performing governmental or proprietary function for state or any one or more municipalities. Russo v Nassau Community College, 147 Misc. 2d 179, 554 N.Y.S.2d 774, 1990 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 154 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1990), rev'd, 185 A.D.2d 982, 587 N.Y.S.2d 419, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10329 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1992).

24. —State University of New York (SUNY)

State University of New York constitutes "agency" within meaning of CLS Pub O § 86(3). Booklist to be used by students at State University of New York (SUNY), compiled by bookseller under subcontract with corporation that provided auxiliary services for particular SUNY campus, and received by corporation and kept on university's behalf, constituted "record" within meaning of CLS Pub O § 86(4). Information kept or held for government agency is within embrace of "records" under Freedom of Information Law (CLS Pub O §§ 84 et seq.); to implement narrow definition of "records" adopted by federal courts would undermine legislative objective to provide maximum disclosure by enabling government agency to insulate its records from public access by delegating responsibility for creating or maintaining particular information to nongovernmental entity. Encore College Bookstores v Auxiliary Serv. Corp., 87 N.Y.2d 410, 639 N.Y.S.2d 990, 663 N.E.2d 302, 1995 N.Y. LEXIS 4751 (N.Y. 1995).

Colleges created by CLS Educ §§ 5711, 5712, 5714 and 5715 and operated by Cornell University on behalf of State University of New York (i.e., New York State College of Veterinary Medicine, New York State College of Agriculture and Life Sciences, New York State College of Human Ecology, and New York State School of Industrial and Labor Relations) may not categorically be deemed state agencies under Freedom of Information Law (FOIL) given their hybrid character and significant indicia denoting private entity and function, notwithstanding general policy of liberal disclosure under FOIL and facts that colleges in question are funded by state money, are subject to some state oversight, are state agencies under CLS St Fin § 53-a(5) and are technically part of state university system. Disciplinary records maintained by Cornell University, regarding professor who was disciplined for having sexually harassed several female students, were not subject to Freedom of Information Law (FOIL) and thus Article 78 petition to compel FOIL disclosure of such records made to or about any personnel or students of "statutory" colleges operated by Cornell University (CLS Educ §§ 5711, 5712, 5714 and 5715) was properly denied. Stoll v New York State College of Veterinary Med. at Cornell Univ., 94 N.Y.2d 162, 701 N.Y.S.2d 316, 723 N.E.2d 65, 1999 N.Y. LEXIS 3738 (N.Y. 1999).

iii. Requests; Requestors

a. Generally

25. In general

Petitioner did not fail to comply with Freedom of Information Law (FOIL) on ground that she did not serve subpoena under CLS CPLR § 2307; provisions of CPLR relating to discovery in civil actions do not apply to FOIL requests. DeCorse v City of Buffalo, 239 A.D.2d 949, 659 N.Y.S.2d 604, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6376 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1997).

In Article 78 proceeding seeking order that respondents furnish documents under Freedom of Information Law, petitioner's motion to renew was properly denied where he failed to prove that documents requested had not been provided to attorney who had represented him at his criminal trial or that documents were no longer available. Brightley v Lai, 266 A.D.2d 131, 698 N.Y.S.2d 487, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12348 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1999).

Corporation was entitled to disclosure of licensees' addresses in a request under the Freedom of Information Law (FOIL), N.Y. Pub. Off. Law art. 6 because, although the commissioner claimed that such disclosure would have been an unwarranted invasion of privacy, the commissioner failed to establish that any of the N.Y. Pub. Off. Law § 89(2)(b) categories applied or that the disclosure of addresses would have been an unwarranted invasion of privacy under N.Y. Pub. Off. Law §§ 87(2)(b), 89(2)(b); although courts have discretion to order notice of a proceeding to any person, the commissioner was not entitled to notify licensees and permit them to provide alternative addresses would have contravened the purposes of FOIL by creating a new record of addresses in response to a FOIL request to avoid disclosing the original records. Matter of Schenectady County Socy. for The Prevention of Cruelty To Animals, Inc. v Mills, 74 A.D.3d 1417, 904 N.Y.S.2d 512, 243 N.Y.L.J. 115, 2010 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4592 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2010), aff'd, 18 N.Y.3d 42, 935 N.Y.S.2d 279, 958 N.E.2d 1194, 2011 N.Y. LEXIS 3178 (N.Y. 2011).

26. Form of request, generally

Failure of applicant for access to records to complete form prescribed by agency does not constitute valid basis for withholding records. Applicant need not present two forms of identification when request is made under Freedom of Information Law. Comm Pub Acc Rec FOIL-Ad Op 2527.

Purpose of Freedom of Information Law is to facilitate process by which records are made available by government and whether multiple requests for records are submitted separately or on one request form is irrelevant. Comm Pub Acc Rec FOIL-Ad Op 2653.

27. Information requests or questions

In response to petitioner's Freedom of Information Law requests, agencies complied with this statute because they submitted attestations regarding their searches and stating that the requested record did not exist due to the fact that the report of the study requested had not been drafted. Matter of Empire Ctr. for Pub. Policy v New York State Energy & Research Dev. Auth., 188 A.D.3d 1556, 2020 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7321 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2020).

Complaint did not allege that the city wrongly refused to provide the arrestee with information that he requested in 2006 and 2007 because that allegation did not state a 42 U.S.C.S. § 1983 claim, as it was not rooted in a claimed constitutional or federal statutory right. Rather, the allegation was governed by New York's Freedom of Information Law (FOIL), N.Y. Pub. Off. Law §§ 84-90, and under FOIL, challenges of information denials had to be brought in a proceeding under N.Y. C.P.L.R. art. 78, N.Y. Pub. Off. Law § 89(4), within four months after the determination to be reviewed became final, N.Y. C.P.L.R. § 217(1); however, because the arrestee did not file the claim until March 2009, and because he did not appear to have ever brought a proceeding under N.Y. C.P.L.R. art. 78, the claim was dismissed. Hayes v Perotta, 751 F. Supp. 2d 597, 2010 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 124187 (S.D.N.Y. 2010).

28. "Reasonably describe" requirement, generally

Inmate "reasonably described" documents sought under CLS Pub O § 89 from Department of Correctional Services and his correctional facility by his request "to inspect and review any and all files of records kept on me and my number of identification," where affidavit of inmate records coordinator demonstrated that correctional authorities had been able to identify inmate's institutional records, including his "central file, service unit folder, education folder, hospital records, grievance file, correspondence office file, and package room and visiting room documents," and that authorities amassed some 2,300 pages of records which inmate records coordinator estimated to represent approximately 95 percent of inmate's institutional records; such admissions contradicted authorities' assertions that they were not able to locate and identify requested files, and they accordingly failed to establish that documents were not "reasonably described." Konigsberg v Coughlin, 68 N.Y.2d 245, 508 N.Y.S.2d 393, 501 N.E.2d 1, 1986 N.Y. LEXIS 20497 (N.Y. 1986).

Trial court should have ordered disclosure the metadata associated with those photos that the agency had already disclosed to petitioner, as well as those photos deemed subject to disclosure under the Freedom of Information Law N.Y. Pub. Off. Law art. 6. Matter of Irwin v Onondaga County Resource Recovery Agency, 72 A.D.3d 314, 895 N.Y.S.2d 262, 2010 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1317 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 2010).

In a N.Y. C.P.L.R. art. 78 matter, requests by a legal defense fund and a Muslim advocacy group for information pertaining to the New York City Police Department's (NYPD's) investigation of Muslim, Arab, and South Asian communities within and outside of New York City were not reasonably described under the Freedom of Information Law, N.Y. Pub. Off. Law § 89(3), because the vast majority of the NYPD's records were not organized along racial, religious, or ethnic classifications and there was no combination of search terms that would have yielded the universe of responsive documents. Asian Am. Legal Defense & Educ. Fund v New York City Police Dept., 964 N.Y.S.2d 888, 41 Misc. 3d 471, 2013 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1912 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 2013), aff'd, 125 A.D.3d 531, 5 N.Y.S.3d 13, 2015 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1550 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2015).

b. Requestors

29. In general

Derogatory and potentially injurious information contained in police officers' personnel records did not lose its statutory shield of confidentiality under CLS Civ R § 50-a and unqualifiedly become public knowledge merely because entity seeking Freedom of Information Law access was news-gathering organization which did not intend to use records in any legal proceeding. Daily Gazette Co. v City of Schenectady, 93 N.Y.2d 145, 688 N.Y.S.2d 472, 710 N.E.2d 1072, 1999 N.Y. LEXIS 224 (N.Y. 1999).

County legislature procedures requiring member of legislature seeking records in performance of official duties to pay for copies of information sought and employing greater number of steps than outlined under § 89 is unreasonable; public officer seeking information in official capacity is not required to file forms prescribed or follow formalized procedures under § 89. Comm Pub Acc Rec FOIL-Ad Op 2449.

30. Litigants; litigation

Access to records of a government agency under the Freedom of Information Law, Pub O, Art 6, is not affected by the fact that there is pending or potential litigation between the person making the request and the agency involved since the statutory mandate of open disclosure requires that an agency's public records remain as available to its litigation adversary as to any other person and the requirements of CPLR § 3120 that documents be "specifically designated" is inapplicable under the Freedom of Information Law, the latter statute requiring merely that the records be "reasonably described," as specified in Pub O § 89(3). M. Farbman & Sons, Inc. v New York City Health & Hospitals Corp., 62 N.Y.2d 75, 476 N.Y.S.2d 69, 464 N.E.2d 437, 1984 N.Y. LEXIS 4244 (N.Y. 1984).

Petitioners who sought Freedom of Information Law disclosure of police department records pertaining to sex crimes for which they had been convicted, for use in collateral review of their convictions, did not fit within exception to statutory privilege of CLS Civ R § 50-b for persons "charged with commission of an offense" (CLS Civ R § 50-b(2)(a)) and thus they would be treated in same manner as any other person seeking access to those records. Fappiano v N.Y. City Police Dep't, 95 N.Y.2d 738, 724 N.Y.S.2d 685, 747 N.E.2d 1286, 2001 N.Y. LEXIS 573 (N.Y. 2001).

A civil litigant is unquestionably entitled, as against a claim of privilege, to obtain by way of discovery in a pending action at least the same documents that any member of the public could obtain by simply filing a Freedom of Information Law request; however, the FOIL does not entitle a member of the public to obtain a criminal investigation file. Wunsch v Rochester, 108 Misc. 2d 854, 438 N.Y.S.2d 896, 1981 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2303 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1981).

31. Prisoners; prisons

Regulation prohibiting inmates from providing unauthorized legal assistance (7 NYCRR § 270.2(B)(26)(vii)) affords sufficient notice of prohibited conduct and, in light of legitimate security interest in preventing inmates from gaining access to legal records of other inmates, does not unconstitutionally infringe on inmate's right to submit Freedom of Information Law request. Siao-Pao v Selsky, 274 A.D.2d 698, 711 N.Y.S.2d 189, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7775 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), app. denied, 95 N.Y.2d 767, 717 N.Y.S.2d 547, 740 N.E.2d 653, 2000 N.Y. LEXIS 3481 (N.Y. 2000).

32. Representative capacity of requestor

Court did not abuse its discretion in denying petitioner's application seeking permission for his associate to view various records pursuant to Freedom of Information Act where (1) order, incorporating prior agreement between parties, did not authorize additional individuals to have access to documents respondents had already agreed to supply to petitioner, (2) order clearly complied with CLS Pub O § 89(3) requirement that public entity in receipt of written request for record reasonably described make it available to "person requesting it," and (3) petitioner was not aggrieved by order since respondents were willing to provide him with ample opportunity to view large number of documents during several visits to their office. Alexanian v New York, 184 A.D.2d 452, 587 N.Y.S.2d 149, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8608 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't), app. denied, 80 N.Y.2d 759, 591 N.Y.S.2d 137, 605 N.E.2d 873, 1992 N.Y. LEXIS 3435 (N.Y. 1992).

In Article 78 proceeding seeking Freedom of Information Law disclosure of copies of invoices for textbooks purchased by respondent from publishing companies for sale as new texts in community college bookstore, it was of no significance that petitioner, who was investigating complaints of alleged price gouging at bookstore and intended to publish information from invoices in student newspaper, was no longer editor of college newspaper. Gray v Faculty-Student Ass'n of Hudson Valley Community College, Inc., 186 Misc. 2d 404, 717 N.Y.S.2d 507, 2000 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 490 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 2000).

A court may order the release of a record to any person who is or may be, affected in a civil or criminal action by the contents of the record of any investigation of an autopsy; the spouse of an incarcerated inmate was entitled to access to autopsy records which may have been the basis for a criminal appeal. Pennington v Clark, 194 Misc. 2d 381, 755 N.Y.S.2d 195, 2002 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1737 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 2002).

c. Specificity Of Requests

33. Specificity sufficient, generally

Any request made in writing which reasonably describes records will suffice as reasonable request for records under Freedom of Information Law § 89(3). Comm Pub Acc Rec FOIL-Ad Op 2653.

Applicant for access to public information meets burden of reasonably describing records where agency in receipt of request can determine nature of records sought. Comm Pub Acc Rec FOIL-Ad Op 2696.

34. —Employment; employees

Request by newspaper for access to all records received or maintained by deceased city official during specified 3-year period while official was city mayor is sufficient to meet requirements of CLS Public Officers Law § 89. Capital Newspapers, Div. of Hearst Corp. v Whalen, 113 A.D.2d 217, 495 N.Y.S.2d 979, 1985 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 52356 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1985), rev'd, 69 N.Y.2d 246, 513 N.Y.S.2d 367, 505 N.E.2d 932, 1987 N.Y. LEXIS 15362 (N.Y. 1987).

A request to the state Labor Department for portions of Title 29 of the Code of Federal Regulations after having redacted sections that might not be incorporated by reference in state regulations is proper since the point of the request in question appears to involve information regarding which federal regulation must be followed under the state Occupational Safety and Health Act (SOSHA), and the applicant reasonably described the information sought as required by Public Officers Law § 89(3). Comm Pub Acc Rec FOIL—Ad Op 1906.

35. —Police records

Freedom of Information Law requests were sufficiently specific to satisfy requirement of CLS Pub O § 89 where newspaper's request to Town Board specified name of one constable and sought town records pertaining to other constables who were suspected of sleeping while on duty, and similar request by radio station (although broader in scope because it sought information as to constables or others who were sleeping or otherwise avoiding duty) was reasonably perceived to request records in town's possession regarding town employees suspected of sleeping or consciously avoiding their duties in other ways; requests were restricted to employees, primarily constables, who were suspected of sleeping on duty or otherwise not fulfilling their employment duties, and thus subject matter was described so that town could locate records sought. Woodstock v Goodson-Todman Enterprises, Ltd., 133 Misc. 2d 12, 505 N.Y.S.2d 540, 1986 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2959 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1986).

36. —Prisons; prisoners

Documents were reasonably described, for purposes of Pub O § 89(3), where prison inmate sought "to inspect and review any and all files or records kept on me and my number of identification of the New York State Department of Correctional Services". Because FOIL request was framed sufficiently, respondents lacked authority to require greater specificity. Konigsberg v Coughlin, 68 N.Y.2d 245, 508 N.Y.S.2d 393, 501 N.E.2d 1, 1986 N.Y. LEXIS 20497 (N.Y. 1986).

37. Specificity insufficient, generally

Freedom of Information Law did not entitle petitioners to access to "[a]ll notes, records, correspondence, meeting minutes and other documents related to the adoption and/or revision of the Village Zoning Code's prohibition of commercial activity (presently Code § 170-5)" where CLS Pub O § 89(3) places burden on petitioners to "reasonably describe" documents requested so that search can be made by agency, and village showed that, in order to fully comply with petitioners' requests, one full-time employee of village clerk's office would have to manually search through every document filed with village going back over 45 years. Bader v Bove, 273 A.D.2d 466, 710 N.Y.S.2d 379, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7416 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't), app. denied, 95 N.Y.2d 764, 716 N.Y.S.2d 38, 739 N.E.2d 294, 2000 N.Y. LEXIS 2871 (N.Y. 2000).

Since an agency gave a plausible explanation of its difficulty in interpreting the wording of a petitioner's FOIL requests and the petitioner's flat refusal to provide any clarification, the appeals court was satisfied that the descriptions were insufficient and the limited disclosure made in response to these requests was justified under N.Y. Pub. Off. Law § 89(3). Matter of Stein v New York State Dept. of Transp., 25 A.D.3d 846, 807 N.Y.S.2d 208, 2006 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 52 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2006).

New York State Department of Health satisfied its burden to demonstrate that an organization's request under the Freedom of Information Law did not provide a reasonable description of the records sought that was adequate to permit it to identify and locate the requested documents; it established that its indexing system did not permit searching its paper or electronic records by the name of an entity and that it had no method of searching its correspondence records for the terms provided. Matter of Reclaim the Records v New York State Dept. of Health, 185 A.D.3d 1268, 128 N.Y.S.3d 303, 2020 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4104 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2020).

Administrative appeal did not specify that it was intended to be treated as a new request or an amendment or clarification of the original request, which could, in turn, have resulted in a new determination by the New York State Department of Health and, if necessary, a new administrative appeal because the administrative appeal merely argued that the Department had erred in denying the request; little new information was included within the administrative appeal. Matter of Reclaim the Records v New York State Dept. of Health, 185 A.D.3d 1268, 128 N.Y.S.3d 303, 2020 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4104 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2020).

38. —Medical records

Freedom of Information Law § 89(3) requires that request for information reasonably describe records sought; request for medical records without greater specificity does not reasonably describe records, particularly where individual seeking records has lengthy medical problems. Comm Pub Acc Rec FOIL-Ad Op 2684.

39. —Real property matters, generally

40. — —Environmental; pesticides

Request for "all correspondence from any municipality, state or local government agency, private person or business enterprise of any nature concerning pesticiding" is so open ended as to not reasonably describe any records. Comm Pub Acc Rec FOIL-Ad Op 1819.

iv. Responses

a. Generally

41. In general

Blanket exemptions for particular types of documents are inimical to Freedom of Information Law's policy of open government; instead, to invoke one of exemptions of CLS Pub O § 87(2), agency must articulate "particularized and specific justification" for not disclosing requested documents. Gould v New York City Police Dep't, 89 N.Y.2d 267, 653 N.Y.S.2d 54, 675 N.E.2d 808, 1996 N.Y. LEXIS 3575 (N.Y. 1996).

Agency or other party opposing Freedom of Information Law disclosure of personnel records, on ground that disclosure is specifically exempted under CLS Pub O § 87(2)(a) by reason of CLS Civ R § 50-a, must demonstrate "substantial and realistic potential of the requested material for the abusive use against the officer or firefighter." Daily Gazette Co. v City of Schenectady, 93 N.Y.2d 145, 688 N.Y.S.2d 472, 710 N.E.2d 1072, 1999 N.Y. LEXIS 224 (N.Y. 1999).

While CLS Civ R § 50-c mandates caution by imposing civil liability on governmental entities that disclose identity of sex crime victim in violation of CLS Civ R § 50-b, that fact did not justify respondent police departments' blanket denial of Freedom of Information Law requests for documents pertaining to sex crimes for which petitioners were convicted. Fappiano v N.Y. City Police Dep't, 95 N.Y.2d 738, 724 N.Y.S.2d 685, 747 N.E.2d 1286, 2001 N.Y. LEXIS 573 (N.Y. 2001).

Department's failure to respond to owners' request for certain documents, and its failure to respond to the owners' letter considered as an appeal of the apparent denial of the owners' initial request, were in direct violation of N.Y. Pub. Off. Law § 89(3), and summary judgment for the department in the owners' N.Y. C.P.L.R. art. 78 freedom of information case was error. Matter of Rhino Assets, LLC v New York City Dept. for the Aging, SCRIE Programs, 31 A.D.3d 292, 819 N.Y.S.2d 247, 2006 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9237 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2006).

Although an agency initially overlooked some responsive documents, its affidavit stating that it had conducted more than one diligent search provided a sufficient certification when it disclosed more documents; there was no need to order it to search further. Matter of Gartner v New York State Attorney General's Off., 160 A.D.3d 1087, 75 N.Y.S.3d 102, 2018 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2383 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2018).

Union's demand for the metadata of the disclosed documents was denied because the respondents e-mailed the records maintained in electronic form, as required by the Public Officers Law. Matter of Barry v O'Neill, 185 A.D.3d 503, 128 N.Y.S.3d 183, 2020 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4061 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2020).

Because the plain language of N.Y. Pub. Off. Law § 89(3)(a), (4)(a) contemplated one final agency determination in the event responsive records were withheld, the State Department of Transportation could not subdivide a petitioner's request into sub-requests based upon the geographic region in which the responsive records were located; therefore, the petitioner was entitled to N.Y. C.P.L.R. art. 78 relief. Matter of Mazzone v New York State Dept. of Transp., 914 N.Y.S.2d 623, 30 Misc. 3d 981, 2011 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 77 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 2011).

An agency cannot merely assert ground for denial of access to records and prevail; on contrary, it must demonstrate that disclosure would result in harmful effect envisioned by grounds for denial. Comm Pub Acc Rec FOIL-Ad Op 2166.

There is no requirement that an agency transfer or forward its records from a central to a regional office to accommodate an applicant. Comm Pub Acc Rec FOIL-Ad Op 2792.

42. Inability to locate

Records access appeals officer responded properly under N.Y. Pub. Off. Law § 89(3) to a request for documents under the Freedom of Information Law where he provided some documents to petitioner and he certified that other requested documents could not be found despite a diligent search; petitioner did not assert any basis to find that the diligent search was not made. Matter of Daum v Tessler, 24 A.D.3d 214, 804 N.Y.S.2d 920, 2005 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13988 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2005).

Trial court erred in ordering the New York Police Department (NYPD) to submit an affidavit describing its search for certain records requested by petitioner because the NYPD certified that it had conducted a diligent search, and except for a few properly exempt records, it could not locate documents responsive to the request. This certification satisfied the statutory requirements. Matter of Grabell v New York City Police Dept., 139 A.D.3d 477, 32 N.Y.S.3d 81, 2016 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3540 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't), app. denied, 28 N.Y.3d 910, 69 N.E.3d 1022, 47 N.Y.S.3d 226, 2016 N.Y. LEXIS 3827 (N.Y. 2016).

b. Particular Cases

43. District Attorney's office; Special Prosecutor

It was proper to deny petitioner's Freedom of Information request where his belief in existence of "confessions or statements" of certain individuals bearing on crimes for which he was convicted was based on book about prosecution that was closely related to his own prosecution, but Assistant District Attorney who headed related prosecution affirmed that he conducted diligent search of District Attorney's file and did not find requested documents, and there was nothing to indicate that author of book had knowledge of contents of District Attorney's file. Lugo v Galperin, 269 A.D.2d 338, 703 N.Y.S.2d 182, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2245 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't), app. denied, 95 N.Y.2d 755, 711 N.Y.S.2d 833, 733 N.E.2d 1102, 2000 N.Y. LEXIS 1401 (N.Y. 2000).

Special prosecutor was not justified in refusing to produce requested record on basis that it constituted public record on file in county clerk's office, since Freedom of Information Law does not require showing of need for requested record. Muniz v Roth, 163 Misc. 2d 293, 620 N.Y.S.2d 700, 1994 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 559 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1994).

44. Employment; employees, generally

Where, in response to the applicants' request for information regarding employees of the New York City Board of Education, the City of New York Office of Payroll Administration answered that the information sought was exempt from disclosure because the ages and zip codes of Board employees was personal information, it was reported in confidence to the Board, and it was not relevant to the work of the Board, the Board failed to satisfy its burden of demonstrating that the requested material qualified for an exemption under the New York Freedom of Information Law, N.Y. Pub. Off. Law § 84 et seq.; the Office's response was parroted from the N.Y. Pub. Off. Law § 89(2)(b)(v) and was utterly devoid of any factual basis for the Office's conclusions, and the Office was a distinct agency from the nonparty Board and any sworn statements made by the Office on behalf of the Board were incompetent to support the Office's claim that the requested information was exempt from disclosure under the New York Freedom of Information Law. Daily News, L.P. v City of New York Office of Payroll Admin., 9 A.D.3d 308, 781 N.Y.S.2d 3, 2004 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9791 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't), app. denied, 3 N.Y.3d 609, 786 N.Y.S.2d 812, 820 N.E.2d 291, 2004 N.Y. LEXIS 2500 (N.Y. 2004).

In a N.Y. C.P.L.R. art. 78 proceeding brought by a publisher and a journalist challenging the denial of its Freedom of Information Law, N.Y. Pub. Off. Law § 84 et seq., records request for New York State employees' payroll records, the denial on the part of the State Comptroller, the Office of State Comptroller, and the State of New York was vacated and the State was ordered to disclose certain tables that did not use social security numbers as their primary key since they were not a trade secret as well as tables that used social security numbers as their primary key as such tables were retrievable through a simple computer manipulation. However, the State properly invoked the personal privacy exemption in refusing to disclose the State employees' birth dates as the court believed that a reasonable person would find the disclosure of their precise birth dates, taken together with their full name and other details of their State employment, to be offensive and objectionable. Matter of Hearst Corp. v State, 882 N.Y.S.2d 862, 24 Misc. 3d 611, 2009 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 868 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 2009).

45. —Union matters

A city improperly denied a request by a union for access to city records showing the names and social security numbers of individuals employed by nonunion contractors on public works contracts under Pub O § 89 where the city offered only conclusory allegations that the list of names would be used for commercial or fund-raising purposes or that disclosure would result in economic or personal hardship. Hopkins v Buffalo, 107 A.D.2d 1028, 486 N.Y.S.2d 514, 1985 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 42843 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1985).

46. Police and other law enforcement agencies, generally

Article 78 petition to compel police department to respond to inmate's Freedom of Information Law (FOIL) request for documents relating to his conviction was properly dismissed as moot, where counsel to police department submitted affirmation averring that department conducted diligent search for documents it could not locate, and that all responsive documents had been disclosed, thereby satisfying FOIL certification requirement. Rattley v N.Y. City Police Dep't, 96 N.Y.2d 873, 730 N.Y.S.2d 768, 756 N.E.2d 56, 2001 N.Y. LEXIS 1868 (N.Y. 2001).

It was abuse of discretion for police commissioner to deny inmate's request under Freedom of Information Law based on possibility that information sought was exempt from disclosure on personal privacy grounds, on confidential information grounds, and on intra-agency grounds, where inmate sought copy of statements given to police officers involving certain arrestees because he believed that arrangement had been made between one or more of them which resulted in testimony against him; thus, inmate's Article 78 petition would be granted to extent of directing police commissioner to review requested records and either release them to inmate or specify, with particularity, reasons for refusing to do so. Burton v Slade, 166 A.D.2d 352, 561 N.Y.S.2d 637, 1990 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12839 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1990).

Petitioner was entitled to vacatur of police commissioner's denial of his request for records under Freedom of Information Law (FOIL) where (1) records sought were reasonably described so that search could be made, but commissioner's denial implied that records could not be located, (2) records were not directly addressed by commissioner, and (3) applicable FOIL exemptions were not identified by commissioner; commissioner failed to establish that requested material fell within ambit of statutory exemptions. Cromwell v Ward, 183 A.D.2d 459, 584 N.Y.S.2d 295, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6812 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1992).

Fact that "lead sheets" made in connection with inmate's arrest and conviction were provided to defense counsel at inmate's criminal trial did not mandate wholesale disclosure of information contained therein under Freedom of Information Law (FOIL); inmate was entitled to production of documents only to extent they were not specifically exempt under FOIL. De Oliveira v Wagner, 274 A.D.2d 904, 711 N.Y.S.2d 592, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8284 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2000).

Because the trial court relied on the police department's submissions tendered after the expiration of the 10-day administrative appeal in N.Y. Pub. Off. Law § 89(4)(a) response period and after the commencement of a police officer's N.Y. C.P.L.R. art. 78 proceeding, the trial court improperly considered evidence outside the administrative record in denying the officer's Freedom of Information Law request. Matter of Molloy v New York City Police Dept., 50 A.D.3d 98, 851 N.Y.S.2d 480, 2008 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1029 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2008).

A response from the Division of Criminal Justice Services informing an applicant that the Division's files did not reveal the existence of a criminal history record pertaining to him may indeed be accurate even if the applicant had previously been arrested since CPL § 160.50 provides that if a criminal charge or proceeding against an individual is dismissed in his or her favor, records pertaining to the charge may be sealed or purged. Com Pub Acc Rec FOIL—Ad Op 1887.

47. —Police photographs

State Police Appeals Officer satisfied his obligation under Freedom of Information Law by providing photographs to petitioner, who had been convicted of murder, that had been developed in accordance with usual procedures employed by State Police; there was no obligation to enhance or reprocess photographs to improve their quality. Russo v Fitzgerald, 260 A.D.2d 738, 687 N.Y.S.2d 816, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3657 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), app. denied, 93 N.Y.2d 813, 695 N.Y.S.2d 541, 717 N.E.2d 700, 1999 N.Y. LEXIS 1912 (N.Y. 1999).

In proceeding under Freedom of Information Law, petitioner was entitled to disclosure of photographs taken by police of 43 members of antiabortion organization who were arrested at demonstration, notwithstanding that photographs were compiled for law enforcement purposes, since there was no indication as to how disclosure would interfere with law enforcement investigations or judicial proceedings, or deprive persons of right to fair trial; further, photographs would not be held exempt from disclosure as unwarranted invasion of privacy on basis of mere conclusory assertions. Planned Parenthood of Westchester, Inc. v Town Bd. of Greenburgh, 154 Misc. 2d 971, 587 N.Y.S.2d 461, 1992 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 346 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1992).

48. Public works; utilities

Agency properly gave an adequate explanation under N.Y. Pub. Off. Law § 89(5)(c)(2) for its decision to deny a city's Freedom of Information Law request for a utility's cost and inventory data used to prepare a special franchise full value assessment as the agency enclosed summary level data for the city property covered by the assessment in a letter and explained that the data requested was often submitted with a claim of confidentiality and that as a result of utility deregulation and municipal takeovers of utility service, utility companies had claimed that disclosure would cause substantial injury to their competitive position. Matter of Schenectady v O'Keeffe, 50 A.D.3d 1384, 856 N.Y.S.2d 281, 2008 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3294 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), app. denied, 11 N.Y.3d 702, 864 N.Y.S.2d 389, 894 N.E.2d 653, 2008 N.Y. LEXIS 2482 (N.Y. 2008).

49. Real property, generally

Denial of a request for a "evaluation property card" regarding the applicant's property is improperly denied on the basis that the municipality need not make copies for anyone seeking record or, in the alternative, that the municipality need not provide copies since it is involved in the litigation, since Public Officers Law § 87 provides access to copies of the record, and since Public Officers Law § 89(3) requires that, upon payment of or offer to pay requisite fees, an agency must provide copies of accessible records upon request. Comm Pub Acc Rec FOIL—Ad Op 1774.

50. —Environmental matters; pesticides

Court improperly granted Freedom of Information Law petition directing Office of Emergency Management (OEM) to determine whether certain requested records existed as to spraying of Malathion and other pesticides and, if they did, provide them to petitioner or indicate why they could not be made available, where OEM explained that diligent search of its records had been conducted and that, after interviews with various OEM staff members, OEM determined that it had no other documents responsive to petitioner's request. N.Y. Envtl. Law & Justice Project v City of New York, 286 A.D.2d 307, 730 N.Y.S.2d 285, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8318 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2001).

51. School; education matters

Any possible conclusion that school district had issued final and binding determination of Freedom of Information Law (FOIL) request was negated by letter from district superintendent that advised petitioner of allegedly proper procedure to obtain material under FOIL, and superintendent's letter at later date that responded in part to FOIL request. School district's response to Freedom of Information Law (FOIL) request became final and binding, and statute of limitations began to run against petitioner's Article 78 proceeding, on date when district's superintendent wrote letter to petitioner that responded in part to FOIL request. Orange County Publ'ns v Kiryas Joel Union Free Sch. Dist., 282 A.D.2d 604, 724 N.Y.S.2d 167, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3819 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2001).

52. Social services

The Commissioner of Social Services rationally and reasonably complied with Pub O § 89(3) when, in response to a demand for records, stated that the department had issued 64,797 decisions, that the cost of photocopying one page thereof is 25 cents, that the records were available for inspection on business days between 8:30 a.m. and 5:00 p.m. upon receipt of the request and the time and date desired for inspection, in that Commissioner offered to make the records sought available to petitioner in that manner and at those times. Schanbarger v New York State Comm'r of Social Services, 99 A.D.2d 621, 472 N.Y.S.2d 175, 1984 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 16856 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), app. dismissed, 62 N.Y.2d 604, 478 N.Y.S.2d 1023, 1984 N.Y. LEXIS 7718 (N.Y. 1984), app. denied, 62 N.Y.2d 942, 478 N.Y.S.2d 1023 (N.Y. 1984).

53. Telephone records

Town sufficiently complied with petitioner's request under Freedom of Information Law, CLS Pub O Art 6, for copies of town's cellular telephone bills for certain years by producing summary pages of bills showing costs incurred on each cellular phone for subject periods, which indicated that amounts were not excessive. Wilson v Islip, 179 A.D.2d 763, 578 N.Y.S.2d 642, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 679 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1992).

B. Timeliness

i. Generally

54. In general

Contrary to the trial court's interpretation, N.Y. Pub. Off. Law § 89(3) did not require either a grant or a denial of a Freedom of Information Law (FOIL) request within 20 days of the 5-day "acknowledgment" notice, as the 20-day period was triggered only when the agency determined to grant a request in whole or in part, and when circumstances prevent disclosure within 20 business days from the date of the acknowledgment of the receipt of the request; indeed, § 89(3) mandated no time period for denying or granting a FOIL request, and rules and regulations purporting to establish an absolute time period had been held invalid on the ground that they were inconsistent with the statute. Matter of New York Times Co. v City of N.Y. Police Dept., 103 A.D.3d 405, 959 N.Y.S.2d 171, 2013 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 689 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't), app. denied, 22 N.Y.3d 854, 977 N.Y.S.2d 183, 999 N.E.2d 548, 2013 N.Y. LEXIS 2941 (N.Y. 2013).

55. Time requirement of notice prior to request

The requirement, prescribed by a fire district, that request form be completed, mailed or presented to the secretary-treasurer of the district 2 weeks prior to the request violates the time limits required for response under Public Officers Law § 89 since that law required an agency to respond to a request within 5 business days of the receipt of a request by either granting access, denying access, or acknowledging receipt of the request advising that it is necessary to review or locate the records requested. Comm Pub Acc Rec FOIL—Ad Op 1907.

56. Timeliness of production of documents

Court's imposition of 15-day time period for New York City Police Department to comply with Freedom of Information Law requests was improper; CLS Pub O § 89(3) mandates no time period for disclosing records. Legal Aid Soc'y v New York City Police Dep't, 274 A.D.2d 207, 713 N.Y.S.2d 3, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8722 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't), app. denied, 95 N.Y.2d 956, 722 N.Y.S.2d 469, 745 N.E.2d 389, 2000 N.Y. LEXIS 3925 (N.Y. 2000).

As the New York State Department of Transportation (DOT) acknowledged a request for documents within five days as required by under N.Y. Pub. Off. Law § 89(3)(a), and the request resulted in about 11,000 documents, many of which were still being used, three months was not an excessive time for DOT to allow inspection of some of them and to claim that others were exempt from disclosure under N.Y. Pub. Off. Law § 87(2)(g). Miller v New York State DOT, 58 A.D.3d 981, 871 N.Y.S.2d 489, 2009 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 160 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), app. denied, 12 N.Y.3d 712, 882 N.Y.S.2d 397, 909 N.E.2d 1235, 2009 N.Y. LEXIS 1786 (N.Y. 2009).

A 6-month delay by the Civil Service Department in releasing an "electronic data file" to an applicant that had requested it and had in fact paid the requisite fees for the information contained in it constitutes a "constructive" denial of access under Public Officers Law § 89(3); although an agency may acknowledge receipt of a request within 5 business days of the receipt of a request in order to locate records or evaluate their contents with respect to rights of access, regulations require that records be denied or made available within 10 business days of the acknowledgement. Comm Pub Acc Rec FOIL—Ad Op 1806.

Response to request for records indicating they would be provided within 90 days was constructive denial. Comm Pub Acc Rec FOIL-Ad Op 2805.

ii. Response to Request

57. Requirement of 5 business days for response

Committee on Open Government regulation (21 NYCRR 1401.5(d)), requiring that grant or denial of access to records must be made within 10 days after acknowledgement of request for records, is invalid as inconsistent with CLS Pub O § 89(3), which contains no such time limitation but merely requires that person requesting record be furnished with statement of approximate date when request will be granted or denied. Lecker v New York City Bd. of Educ., 157 A.D.2d 486, 549 N.Y.S.2d 673, 1990 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 142 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't), app. dismissed, 75 N.Y.2d 946, 555 N.Y.S.2d 692, 554 N.E.2d 1280, 1990 N.Y. LEXIS 698 (N.Y. 1990).

The failure of the Freedom of Information Officer of a psychiatric center to reply to a request for records indicating whether a applicant had attended an "investigative meeting" dealing with the psychiatric center's Youth Hope Program is improper under Public Officers Law § 89 since such law and the Committee on Public Access Regulation § 1401.5 require agency to comply to a request within 5 business days after its receipt. Comm Pub Acc Rec FOIL—Ad Op 1751.

A request for information consisting of certain HUD reports and FHA forms with addenda may be deemed to be denied upon failure of the agency to respond within 5 business days of the receipt of such requests thereby giving the applicant the right to appeal to the head of the agency or a person designated to determine appeals. Comm Pub Acc Rec FOIL—Ad Op 1825.

Agency's failure to reply to request within 5 business days, as required by Public Officers Law § 89(3) and Committee on Public Access to Record Regulation § 1401.5, constitutes a denial of access authorizing the requestor to appeal to the head of the agency involved under Public Officers Law § 89(4). Comm Pub Acc Rec FOIL—Ad Op 1846.

Trial court properly found that the publisher failed to meet the statutory prerequisites for an award of counsel fees because on the same day that the publisher's amended Freedom of Information Law request was received, the Thruway Authority provided a written acknowledgment that it had received the request and a statement of the approximate date when a response would be forthcoming, and, thus, the Authority's initial response complied with the timing requirements. Matter of Gannett Satellite Info. Network, LLC v New York State Thruway Auth., 181 A.D.3d 1072, 120 N.Y.S.3d 224, 2020 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1748 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2020).

iii. Response And Appeal

58. In general

Proceeding was not barred by the statute of limitations, N.Y. Pub. Off. Law § 89(5)(b) because there iwas no proof in the record of the date that a determination denying petitioner's Freedom of Information Law was mailed to petitioner or when he received it. Matter of MacKenzie v Seiden, 106 A.D.3d 1140, 964 N.Y.S.2d 702, 2013 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3060 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2013).

59. Requirement of 10 business days for appeal

Failure of agency to respond to disclosure request within designated time limits results in denial of access that may be appealed to head of agency or whomever is designated to determine appeals and such person or body has 7 [now 10] business days from receipt of appeal to render determination. Comm Pub Acc Rec FOIL-Ad Op 2651.

C. Restrictions On Access

i. Generally

60. In general

City erred in refusing to release unredacted copies of General Offense Reports to petitioner on ground that names and addresses of victims and witnesses were sought for commercial or fund-raising purpose since petitioner wanted those reports as evidence of landowner's knowledge of prior criminal activity before commencing action against owner following assault on petitioner in basement of apartment building where she was living; such use of information in maintenance of civil action to redress alleged tortious wrong was not "commercial" activity. DeCorse v City of Buffalo, 239 A.D.2d 949, 659 N.Y.S.2d 604, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6376 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1997).

State Department of Health could not invoke CLS Pub Health §§ 2804-b and 2807-n as justification for denying news companies access, under Freedom of Information Law, to identity of physicians involved in medical records maintained by Statewide Planning and Research Cooperative System; Appellate Division's review in Article 78 proceeding is limited to specific grounds invoked by administrative agency, and post-determination legislative enactment could not serve as basis for department's actions and would not be considered. New York Times Co. v New York State Dep't of Health, 243 A.D.2d 157, 674 N.Y.S.2d 826, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7774 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1998).

Where the news corporation, in Article 78 petition, sought disclosure from the State of New York Department of Transportation pursuant to the New York Freedom of Information Law, N.Y. Pub. Off. Law art. 6, of information from priority investigation location lists and priority investigation intersection lists that was not discoverable in lawsuits pursuant to 23 U.S.C.S. § 409, the petition was granted; construing the New York Freedom of Information Law broadly and the exemption under N.Y. Pub. Off. Law § 87(2) narrowly as required by N.Y. Pub. Off. Law § 89(4)(b), 23 U.S.C.S. § 409 did not preempt the New York Freedom of Information Law, and 23 U.S.C.S. § 409 did not apply to N.Y. Pub. Off. Law art. 6 requests. Newsday, Inc. v N.Y. State DOT, 765 N.Y.S.2d 758, 1 Misc. 3d 321, 2003 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1263 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 2003), aff'd, 10 A.D.3d 201, 780 N.Y.S.2d 402, 2004 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9272 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2004).

61. Time restriction on access

Request for access to records pursuant to Freedom of Information Law is constructively denied where agency makes records available for review only one hour per week or per review. Comm Pub Acc Rec FOIL-Ad Op 2771.

A town may not under rules implementing Freedom of Information Law refuse to accept requests for access on a day of the week when it is open for business. Comm Pub Acc Rec FOIL-Ad Op 2809.

ii. Fees

62. In general

Because the information requester substantially prevailed within the meaning of the statute, the Appellate Division erred in determining that she failed to meet the statutory prerequisites for an award of attorneys' fees. Although the Department of Education's redactions in the eventually-released records had been upheld, the requester's legal action ultimately succeeded in obtaining substantial unredacted post-commencement disclosure responsive to her Freedom of Information Law request, including both disclosure that was volunteered by the agency and disclosure that was compelled by the trial court's order. Matter of Madeiros v New York State Educ. Dept., 30 N.Y.3d 67, 86 N.E.3d 527, 64 N.Y.S.3d 635, 2017 N.Y. LEXIS 3073 (N.Y. 2017).

Trial court erred in summarily denying appellant's petition alleging a county violated the New York Freedom of Information Law, N.Y. Pub. Off. Law § 84 et seq., as the county did not meet its burden of demonstrating that each and every cost it sought to impose for providing the records was authorized by N.Y. Pub. Off. Law § 87(1)(c). Matter of Weslowski v Vanderhoef, 98 A.D.3d 1123, 951 N.Y.S.2d 538, 2012 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6249 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2012).

Though a petitioner successfully persuaded a trial court to release some documents withheld by the Department of Taxation and Finance from the petitioner's request under the Freedom of Information Law, N.Y. Pub. Off. Law art. 6, the trial court did not err by refusing the petitioner an award of attorney fees because the documents related to the petitioner's audit, they were case-specific and not of public interest, and the petitioner had not shown that the Department lacked a reasonable basis for withholding them pursuant to N.Y. Pub. Off. Law § 89(4)(c). Matter of Henry Schein, Inc. v Eristoff, 35 A.D.3d 1124, 827 N.Y.S.2d 718, 2006 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 15821 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2006).

As most of the redactions were appropriate with respect to a Freedom of Information Law records request, such that petitioner did not substantially prevail, she was not entitled to an award of counsel fees. Matter of Madeiros v New York State Educ. Dept., 133 A.D.3d 962, 18 N.Y.S.3d 782, 2015 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8132 (N.Y. 63. Copying fee, generally

64. —Maximum of 25 cents per photocopied page

Practice of City of Niagara Falls of charging $4 for copies of police accident reports is improper since there is no statute under which City can charge more than 25 cents for photocopying in response to request for copies of police accident reports. Comm Pub Acc Rec FOIL-Ad Op 2713.

65. Postage costs; mailing fees

Municipality cannot charge for stationery, search or clerical time in connection with complying with requests for access to public information; however it is not unreasonable for municipality to assess fee for postage based upon actual cost of whatever postage might be. Comm Pub Acc Rec FOIL-Ad Op 2675.

66. Waiver of fees

Indigent state prison inmate seeking to corroborate claims made in habeas corpus petitions was not entitled to obtain free copies of court documents under Freedom of Information Law (FOIL), and district attorney's refusal to waive copying fee on ground of absence of provision permitting such waiver in FOIL was reasonable; inmate's remedy was to proceed as poor person in habeas corpus proceedings and seek leave of court for disclosure. Whitehead v Morgenthau, 146 Misc. 2d 806, 552 N.Y.S.2d 518, 1990 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 73 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1990).

iii. Records Not Possessed Or Maintained

a. Generally

67. In general

With certain exceptions, a public entity is not required to prepare any record not possessed or maintained by it. N.Y. Pub. Off. Law § 89(3). Hall v Bongiorno, 305 A.D.2d 508, 761 N.Y.S.2d 63, 2003 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5402 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2003).

68. "Aggregate" or statistical data

Since Freedom of Information Act, CLS Pub O § 89(3), does not require any entity to prepare records not possessed or maintained by it, respondent was not required to comply with request for "aggregate" data which it would have been required to compile from documents or records in its possession. Reubens v Murray, 194 A.D.2d 492, 599 N.Y.S.2d 580, 1993 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6778 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1993).

69. Certification matters

There is nothing in the Freedom of Information Law that would require a district attorney to certify with respect to its view of an officer's role in the arrest of an individual. Comm Pub Acc Rec FOIL-Ad Op 2790.

70. Computerized records; tape or disks

Agency was not required by Freedom of Information Law (FOIL) to comply with applicant's request for statistical information where data necessary to compile statistical information was included in data in agency's computer, and agency did not ordinarily compile or maintain particular statistical information requested; agency would not be required to compile statistical information from written documents or records, and FOIL does not differentiate between records maintained in written form and records maintained in form of computerized tapes or discs. Guerrier v Hernandez-Cuebas, 165 A.D.2d 218, 566 N.Y.S.2d 406, 1991 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1564 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), app. denied, 78 N.Y.2d 853, 573 N.Y.S.2d 466, 577 N.E.2d 1058, 1991 N.Y. Petitioner, a court employee, is entitled to receive from respondent, the Office of Court Administration, pursuant to a request under the Freedom of Information Law (Public Officers Law, art 6), a list of those court employees who have been paid $15,000 to $20,000 in back pay as a result of reclassification; although the data is not available in printed form and "[n]othing in [the Freedom of Information Law] shall be construed to require any entity to prepare any record not possessed or maintained by such entity" (Public Officers Law, § 89, subd 3), the section should not restrict access to information readily obtained from a computer, and the information sought is on computer and readily available. Babigian v Evans, 104 Misc. 2d 140, 427 N.Y.S.2d 688, 1980 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2290 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1980).

Agency lacked rational basis to deny Freedom of Information Law request for redacted electronic records concerning mandated childhood blood lead level screening, on ground that redacting confidential information from computerized data involved preparation of records not "possessed or maintained" under CLS Pub O § 89(3), because to redact computerized data would take only hours, whereas to perform redaction manually would take weeks or months and probably would not be as accurate at computer-generated redactions. N.Y. Pub. Interest Research Group v Cohen, 188 Misc. 2d 658, 729 N.Y.S.2d 379, 2001 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 235 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 2001).

Pursuant to a N.Y. C.P.L.R. art. 78 proceeding, although a county clerk was required to make available all documents which did not come under an exception to N.Y. Pub. Off. Law § 89 or N.Y. Pub. Off. Laws § 87(2), the court found that the clerk was not required to create a record under § 89(3) where none existed in the specified format, particularly when it would be at considerable expense to taxpayers. Data Tree LLC v Romaine, 233 N.Y.L.J. 108, 2005 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3373 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 2005).

71. Effect of federal law

There is no requirement under Freedom of Information Law that a "Vaughn" index, such as is required in some circumstances under the federal Freedom of Information Act be furnished upon request. Comm Pub Acc Rec FOIL-Ad Op 2797.

72. Records for public distribution

Under Freedom of Information Law, it was not intended that government agencies be burdened with the expense and effort of preparing records for distribution to the public. LEXIS 2339 (N.Y. 1978).

73. Records not in retrievable format

Although a city did not establish that its denial of a Freedom of Information Law request was supported by a specific statutory exemption, as required by N.Y. Pub. Off. Law §§ 87, 89, the petitioner was entitled to N.Y. C.P.L.R. art. 78 relief to the extent that a hearing was necessary to determine precisely what would be entailed were the city to attempt to retrieve the requested documents from electronic databases and whether an undue burden would be created by requiring the city to respond to the request. Rockland County is not entitled to access to records of the Department of Civil Service consisting of "insurance experience data" since insurance carriers no longer submit such data to the Department and therefore the department has no such information. Comm Pub Acc Rec FOIL—Ad Op 1911.

77. Medical and health records

In a proceeding pursuant to N.Y. C.P.L.R. art. 78, the trial court properly denied a health care associations' Freedom of Information Law requests; the requests sought the results of an audit by an agency to determine which residents of nursing homes were underpaying, and the agency did not possess the records in question, N.Y. Pub. Off. Law § 89(3), and the association failed to support its contention that the agency failed to properly certify that the documents did not exist or that it had performed a diligent search as required by N.Y. A request for records pertaining to the organizational affiliations of individuals who examine candidates for the Associate Medical Care Administrator promotional exam administered during the March 1980 period may be properly denied where such records are not maintained by the Department of Social Services, since Public Officers Law § 89(3) states that an agency need not create a record in response to a request. Comm Pub Acc Rec FOIL—Ad Op 1787.

78. Police records, generally

Supreme Court properly denied petitioner's application to compel New York City Police Department to provide ballistics report and reprint of his line-up photograph, pursuant to petitioner's requests under Freedom of Information Law, since ballistics report had been destroyed and line-up photograph could not be located, and under CLS Pub O § 89(3), entity is not required to prepare any record not possessed or maintained by it. In Article 78 proceeding, petitioner's request for statement of specific reasons for his disqualification as candidate for position of state trooper was properly denied since (1) he had already been provided with document stating that he failed to meet requirements for position, and (2) in-camera inspection disclosed no record in file which contained specific statement of reasons for his disqualification, and respondent Division of State Police was under no obligation to create such record. Requestor's N,Y. C.P.L.R. art. 78 petition should not have been dismissed because an appeals officer's determination, under N.Y. Pub. Off. Law § 89(3)(a), that responsive documents could not be located was not based on evidence in the record, and the requestor's allegations, if proven, would provide a factual basis to support the requestor's contention that additional documents relating to the investigation of the requestor's criminal case existed and were within the police department's control. Matter of Oddone v Suffolk County Police Dept., 96 A.D.3d 758, 946 N.Y.S.2d 580, 2012 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4272 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2012).

79. —Fingerprints

Since Public Officers Law § 89(3) specifically states that an agency generally need not create a record in response to a request, denial of various records, directives, and memoranda which authorize members of the Westchester County Department of Public Safety to fingerprint pre-trial detainees after arraignment on an indictment is proper where the Department maintains that there are no records reflective of the information sought. Comm Pub Acc Rec FOIL—Ad Op 1771.

80. Prisoners; prison records

Supreme Court properly dismissed petition seeking judgment under Freedom of Information Law requiring Department of Correctional Services to provide "the Statewide Alphabetical Listing of all inmates currently in DOCS custody, showing facility of incarceration and DIN Numbers" on ground that requested record did not exist and that CLS Pub O § 89(3) does not require agency to create record; although Department of Correctional Services might maintain "Alpha Cell Book" for each correctional facility, listing every inmate incarcerated therein, it was under no obligation to compile requested data from such records. Di Rose v New York State Dep't of Correctional Servs., 216 A.D.2d 691, 627 N.Y.S.2d 850, 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6386 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1995).

II. Unwarranted Invasion Of Personal Privacy

A. Generally

81. In general

Historian was entitled to disclosure of the names and identifying details of people, other than the people interviewed, mentioned in certain interview transcripts in her Freedom of Information Law request because such disclosure would not have been an unwarranted invasion of personal privacy under N.Y. Pub. Off. Law § 87(2)(b); the diminished claims of privacy were weighed against the claims of history. However, the request for the names of interviewees who were promised that no one would find out they were being interviewed was denied because it would have been unacceptable for the government to break that promise, even after all these years. Matter of Harbatkin v New York City Dept. of Records & Info. Servs., 19 N.Y.3d 373, 948 N.Y.S.2d 220, 971 N.E.2d 350, 2012 N.Y. LEXIS 1278 (N.Y. 2012), cert. denied, 568 U.S. 1157, 133 S. Ct. 1239, 185 L. Ed. 2d 177, 2013 U.S. LEXIS 1101 (U.S. 2013).

Privacy exception contained in N.Y. Pub. Off. Law § 87(2)(b) was inapplicable because any privacy interest victims had in the information contained in the documents petitioner requested was extinguished; a computer disc containing electronic communications between an inmate and his victims was admitted into evidence at the inmate's criminal trial, and the victims testified about sexual conversations they had with the inmate through a social networking site, and substantial additional testimony was adduced regarding the sexually explicit conversations between the inmate and victims. Matter of MacKenzie v Seiden, 106 A.D.3d 1140, 964 N.Y.S.2d 702, 2013 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3060 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2013).

82. Deletion of identifying details

Statutory authority to delete identifying details as a means to remove records from what would otherwise be an exception to disclosure mandated by FOIL extends only to records whose disclosure without deletion would constitute an unwarranted invasion of personal privacy, and does not extend to records excepted in consequence of specific exemption from disclosure by State or Federal statute. Short v Board of Managers of Nassau County Medical Center, 57 N.Y.2d 399, 456 N.Y.S.2d 724, 442 N.E.2d 1235, 1982 N.Y. LEXIS 3787 (N.Y. 1982).

Petition pursuant to Article 78 of CPLR to compel disclosure under Freedom of Information Act of certain documents and records is unanimously modified since deletion of such identified information as names, addresses and social security numbers will not impede petitioner's search, yet will protect individuals involved from unwarranted invasion of their personal privacy. Harris v City University of New York, Baruch College, 114 A.D.2d 805, 495 N.Y.S.2d 175, 1985 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 53810 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1985).

As the gun tags at issue were the type of documents that could be used to impose discipline or affect continued employment or promotions, they constituted personnel records under N.Y. Civ. Rights Law § 50-a(1); therefore, the city had to redact the personal information from the tags before disclosing them to the newspapers pursuant to N.Y. Pub. Off. Law art. 6. Matter of Capital Newspapers Div. of Hearst Corp. v City of Albany, 63 A.D.3d 1336, 881 N.Y.S.2d 214, 2009 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4609 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2009), aff'd in part, modified, 15 N.Y.3d 759, 906 N.Y.S.2d 808, 933 N.E.2d 207, 2010 N.Y. LEXIS 1351 (N.Y. 2010).

Inmate could be charged a photocopying fee under N.Y. Pub. Off. Law § 87(1)(b)(iii) for materials requested pursuant to the Freedom of Information Law, N.Y. Pub. Off. Law art. 6, as the records were properly redacted under N.Y. Pub. Off. Law § 89(2) to prevent an unwarranted invasion of privacy, and, thus, copies had to be provided, because identity of the recipients of other inmates' correspondence constituted "identifying details." Matter of Brown v Goord, 45 A.D.3d 930, 845 N.Y.S.2d 495, 2007 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10962 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2007), app. dismissed, 10 N.Y.3d 796, 857 N.Y.S.2d 25, 886 N.E.2d 789, 2008 N.Y. LEXIS 659 (N.Y. 2008).

Trial court erred in dismissing a union's applications to review the state universities' denial of its Freedom of Information Law requests regarding the hiring of certain individuals for high-ranking positions within the universities' police departments to assess the universities' compliance with the Retirement and Social Security Law because, while the union conceded that the names and the home addresses of the unsuccessful applicants were not subject to disclosure, the universities failed to demonstrate a factual basis for their assertion that the requested documents could not be redacted in such a manner as to protect the identity of the individual applicants, and the documents in question were not submitted for an in camera review. Matter of Police Benevolent Assn. of N.Y. State, Inc. v State of New York, 145 A.D.3d 1391, 44 N.Y.S.3d 578, 2016 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8769 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2016).

Although the records requested by petitioner contained information that was specifically exempt, such as the applicants for high-ranking offices in respondents' police departments' names and addresses, and the redaction of some of those identifying details might not prevent a reasonable member of the community from identifying certain applicants such that certain applications, or components thereof, might need to be redacted in their entirety, that circumstance did not justify a blanket denial of the release of 1,344 pages of application information from numerous applicants; not all substantive information was identifying. Matter of Police Benevolent Assn. of N.Y. State, Inc. v State of New York, 165 A.D.3d 1434, 86 N.Y.S.3d 246, 2018 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6946 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2018).

83. Disclosure of names and addresses

Procedures of 8 NYCRR part 84 did not apply to decision by board of education to provide member of board with list of names, home addresses, job titles and salaries of all employees of board, since board member was not seeking to review personnel records of employees, and records were already accessible by general public. Buffalo Teachers Federation, Inc. v Buffalo Bd. of Educ., 156 A.D.2d 1027, 549 N.Y.S.2d 541, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 16244 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1989), app. denied, 75 N.Y.2d 708, 555 N.Y.S.2d 691, 554 N.E.2d 1279, 1990 N.Y. LEXIS 673 (N.Y. 1990).

Corporation was entitled to disclosure of licensees' addresses in a request under the Freedom of Information Law (FOIL), N.Y. Pub. Off. Law art. 6 because, although the commissioner claimed that such disclosure would have been an unwarranted invasion of privacy, the commissioner failed to establish that any of the N.Y. Pub. Off. Law § 89(2)(b) categories applied or that the disclosure of addresses would have been an unwarranted invasion of privacy under N.Y. Pub. Off. Law §§ 87(2)(b), 89(2)(b); the record failed to establish that home addresses, as opposed to business addresses, would have been disclosed, and disclosure of all addresses could not have been prevented based on speculation that there was a risk of inadvertent disclosure of private information. With no exemption established, FOIL's broad standard of open disclosure and presumption of availability required disclosure. Matter of Schenectady County Socy. for The Prevention of Cruelty To Animals, Inc. v Mills, 74 A.D.3d 1417, 904 N.Y.S.2d 512, 243 N.Y.L.J. 115, 2010 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4592 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2010), aff'd, 18 N.Y.3d 42, 935 N.Y.S.2d 279, 958 N.E.2d 1194, 2011 N.Y. LEXIS 3178 (N.Y. 2011).

Trial court erred in ordering a city to release the home addresses of handgun licensees in electronic form because the fact that N.Y. Penal Law § 400.00(5) made the name and address of a handgun license holder "a public record" was not dispositive of whether the city could have asserted the privacy and safety exemptions to Freedom of Information Law disclosure, especially when the newspaper sought the names and addresses in electronic form; in addition, disclosing a person's home address implicated a heightened privacy concern. Matter of New York Times Co. v City of N.Y. Police Dept., 103 A.D.3d 405, 959 N.Y.S.2d 171, 2013 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 689 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't), app. denied, 22 N.Y.3d 854, 977 N.Y.S.2d 183, 999 N.E.2d 548, 2013 N.Y. LEXIS 2941 (N.Y. 2013).

Union employee's request for the names and addresses of non-union employees so that the union employee could verify that non-union contractors were paying employees the prevailing wage implicated significant personal privacy interests that prevailed over the public interest in disclosure of the information, particularly in light of the fact that information on employee titles and their corresponding wages had been provided to the union employee. Matter of Massaro v New York State Thruway Auth., 111 A.D.3d 1001, 974 N.Y.S.2d 636, 2013 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7216 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2013).

Request for access to names of prison guards accused of inappropriate behavior was improperly denied by State Commission of Correction on ground that release thereof would constitute unwarranted invasion of guards' personal privacy under CLS Pub O § 89(2), since such allegations did not fit within any of 5 statutory definitions of personal privacy exemption. Faulkner v Del Giacco, 139 Misc. 2d 790, 529 N.Y.S.2d 255, 1988 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 276 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1988).

Respondents demonstrated a particularized and specific justification for withholding the dates of birth and addresses of inmates from a FOIL records request, as such disclosure would result in an unwarranted invasion of personal privacy to the inmates, as well as potential harms such as identity theft. Prall v New York City Dept. of Corr., 971 N.Y.S.2d 821, 40 Misc. 3d 940, 2013 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2405 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 2013), aff'd, 129 A.D.3d 734, 10 N.Y.S.3d 332, 2015 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4584 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2015).

In dismissing an appeal, brought on behalf of employees of the school district, which sought an order prohibiting the board of education from allowing one of its board members to take home an employee list which included names, addresses, job titles and job descriptions of all employees of the district, it was pointed out that Part 84 of the Regulations which restricts the right of access by school board members relates to the examination of school employees' "personnel records." Because the board member in question was not seeking to review personnel records, the procedures set forth in Part 84 did not apply. As to violations of Freedom of Information Law, § 310, the appropriate forum for challenging alleged violations of the Freedom of Information Law is the Supreme Court of the State of New York, not an appeal to the Commissioner of Education. Appeal of Krasinski (1990) Op Comr Educ No 12323.

84. Disclosure of Social Security numbers

Court would direct county social services department to produce "any and all" records related to petitioner and his mother, after deletion of confidential identifying details, since (1) CLS Soc Serv § 373-a applied to allow petitioner access to county records pertaining to himself and his natural mother even though statute did not become effective until several years after petitioner, who had been foster child, was discharged into his own care, and (2) under Freedom of Information Law, all records of governmental agencies are presumptively available for public inspection and copying without regard to status, need, good faith, or purpose of applicant requesting access. Malowsky v D'Elia, 160 A.D.2d 798, 553 N.Y.S.2d 836, 1990 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4201 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1990).

Records that exist that indicate amounts paid by town to engineering firm, they must, be made available, because none of grounds of denial could appropriately be asserted, and if social security numbers or home addresses are included in records, these details may be withheld on ground that disclosure would constitute unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL AO-4690.

85. Lists sought for commercial or fund-raising purposes, generally

Police commissioner was exempt under N.Y. Pub. Off. Law §§ 87(2)(b) and 89(2)(b)(iii) from having to comply with a rifle and pistol association's request under the New York Freedom of Information Law, N.Y. Pub. Off. Law § 84 et seq., for a list, in digital format, of the names and addresses of all pistol licensees in a city because the commissioner provided specific proof of the association's intent to use the requested material for the impermissible purposes of fund-raising and/or commercial gain. Matter of New York State Rifle & Pistol Assn., Inc. v Kelly, 55 A.D.3d 222, 863 N.Y.S.2d 439, 240 N.Y.L.J. 60, 2008 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6784 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2008).

A request directed to a state agency for a list of names and addresses which would be used for commercial or fund-raising purposes constitutes an unwarranted invasion of personal privacy and would justify the denial of access to such records under Public Officers Law § 89(2)(b)(iii). Com Pub Acc Rec FOIL—Ad Op 1865.

Agency may question purpose for which request for access to record is made only where request is for list of names and addresses in effort to ascertain whether or not list is being sought for commercial or fund-raising purposes. Comm Pub Acc Rec FOIL-Ad Op 2527.

86. Maintenance of "otherwise available right of access"

Fact that petitioner could obtain his medical records from hospital pursuant to CLS Pub Health § 18 did not diminish his right to obtain them from Department of Health under Freedom of Information Law. Mantica v New York State Dep't of Health, 94 N.Y.2d 58, 699 N.Y.S.2d 1, 721 N.E.2d 17, 1999 N.Y. LEXIS 3442 (N.Y. 1999).

Hotel owner which sought records from New York City Department of Taxation and Finance, relating to department's policies and proceedings respecting collection of hotel room occupancy taxes, was not entitled to such records under literal language of broad disclosure provisions contained in NYC Charter §§ 1058 and 1059 if they were otherwise exempt from disclosure under Freedom of Information Law. Turner v Department of Fin., 242 A.D.2d 146, 673 N.Y.S.2d 428, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5959 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1998).

Under mandatory access provisions of Public Employee Safety and Health (PESH) Act, petitioners were entitled to review entire logs and summaries of all recordable occupational injuries and illnesses in all 17 offices of Department of Labor and, absent showing that unwarranted invasion of personal privacy would result if identity of employees were disclosed, respondents' decision to redact certain identifying information from Occupational Injury Logs constituted erroneous interpretation of law, lacked reasonable basis, and would be annulled. Goldstein v State, 188 Misc. 2d 524, 728 N.Y.S.2d 891, 2001 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 203 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 2001).

A newspaper editor may have access to police blotters and complaint reports reporting names of persons from prominent families involved in burglaries since Public Officers Law § 89(5) [now § 89(6)] makes it clear that nothing in the Freedom of Information Law may be cited to limit or abridge rights of access granted either by other privileges of law or by means of judicial determination and Scheehan v City of Binghamton specifically holds that police blotters are accessible. Comm Pub Acc Rec FOIL—Ad Op 1793.

Since Public Officers Law § 89(5) [now § 89(6)] preserves rights of access to records granted by other provisions of the law or judicial determination and Penal Law § 400.00(5) specifically makes applications for licenses to carry handguns and firearms a public record, denial of a request for approved licenses for handguns is improper. Com Pub Acc Rec FOIL—Ad Op 1831.

Request of a parent for copies of psychological tests or protocols of a child made by an agency is improperly denied since access to such psychological tests or protocols is available under the Federal Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act and under the Education of the Handicapped Act and while the specific provisions of the federal law do not grant a right to copy the records, Public Officers Law § 89 does allow accessible records to be photocopied and such direction remains effective for records accessible under federal law as well. Comm Pub Acc Rec FOIL—Ad Op 1851.

Nothing in Freedom of Information Law may be successfully asserted to diminish rights of access existing under other provisions of law. Comm Pub Acc Rec FOIL-Ad Op 2737.

87. Request to except certain information from disclosure

Petitioner, which responded to "Request for Proposal" (RFP) issued by New York State Department of Family Assistance, waived its right to exemption from disclosure under CLS Pub O § 87(2)(d) where RFP specifically advised petitioner, as to public information requirements, that "except for trade secrets and certain personnel information (both of which Department has reserved the right to disclose), all parts of proposals must be disclosed to those members of the general public making inquiry under the New York State Freedom of Information Law," and that "(s)hould an offeror wish to request exemption from public access to information contained in its proposal, the offeror must at the time (of) submission of its offer, specifically, identify in their submission the information and explain in detail why public access to the information would be harmful to the offeror," and petitioner did not request exemption at time of submitting its proposal. Lockheed Martin IMS Corp. v New York State Dep't of Family Assistance, 256 A.D.2d 847, 681 N.Y.S.2d 656, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13574 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1998).

Power company's failure to comply with CLS Pub O § 89(5) did not preclude it from relying on exemption contained in CLS Pub O § 87(2)(d); § 89(5) was not intended to apply where confidentiality was agreed to by public entity in settlement of legal dispute. Glens Falls Newspaper, Inc. v Counties of Warren & Washington Indus. Dev. Agency, 257 A.D.2d 948, 684 N.Y.S.2d 321, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 779 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1999).

Fact that petitioner expended 2,200 hours and $225,000 over 10-month period in researching, screening, analyzing and compiling air emissions data prior to submitting its "Nearby Source Verification Worksheets" to Department of Environmental Conservation, as condition of obtaining permit under CLS Pub Ser art 10, did not entitle it to "trade secret" exemption under Freedom of Information Law on ground that disclosure of worksheets to other prospective developers of electric generation facilities in area would result in substantial competitive injury, as every facility has regulatory costs attached to its operation, and petitioner failed to show that cost of compiling data in question was considerable relative to entire cost of project, or that disclosure would decrease its ability to secure proper permits. Sunset Energy Fleet L.L.C. v State Dep't of Envtl. Conservation, 285 A.D.2d 865, 728 N.Y.S.2d 279, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7534 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2001).

Redacting confidential information from computerized records pertaining to mandated childhood blood lead level screening did not involve preparation of records not "possessed or maintained" which, under CLS Pub O § 89(3), Department of Health, was not required to create. N.Y. Pub. Interest Research Group v Cohen, 188 Misc. 2d 658, 729 N.Y.S.2d 379, 2001 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 235 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 2001).

There is no procedure for an individual to request that records submitted to a school district be excepted from disclosure because disclosure would be an invasion of personal privacy. Comm Pub Acc Rec OML-Ad Op 2787.

Freedom of Information Law is not absolute restriction on scope of subpoena issued under CLS Tax § 2006(10), and thus it is not sufficient for Division of Taxation to merely assert that document is privileged or exempt from disclosure; disputed document(s) must be presented to Administrative Law Judge for in camera inspection and determination made as to whether document(s) must be provided to taxpayer or is privileged and exempt from disclosure. NY Tax Appeals Tribunal TSB-D-97(39)I, 1996 N.Y. Tax LEXIS 354.

Documents shared with a federal agency were not exempt from disclosure because "agency" for freedom of information purposes does not include a federal agency, there was an express acknowledgment that the deliberative process exemption did not protect documents shared with a federal agency, and the common interest doctrine did not apply to non-confidential communications between agencies with separate counsel. Attorney's fees were proper absent reasonable basis for withholding the communications. Matter of Riverkeeper Inc. v Port Auth. of N.Y. & N.J., 66 Misc. 3d 250, 111 N.Y.S.3d 523, 2019 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 5619 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 2019), aff'd, 187 A.D.3d 557, 130 N.Y.S.3d 659, 2020 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5965 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2020).

B. Particular Types Of Records

88. Animals

Results of action taken and outcome of matter presented to dog control officer relating to enforcement of local leash law is accessible under Freedom of Information Law and disclosure will not constitute unwarranted invasion of personal privacy where violation is found and record reflects violation. Comm Pub Acc Rec FOIL-Ad Op 2561.

Although the names of persons who adopt dogs after they have been held in city dog pounds for the statutory waiting period are not protected under any confidentiality standard, they may be withheld because disclosure could result in unnecessary or unwarranted intrusions, harassment or personal hardship. Comm Pub Acc Rec FOIL-Ad Op 2796.

In most instances, names, addresses and phone numbers of people complaining about dogs may be withheld from disclosure by Dog Control Officer under Freedom of Information Law, on ground that disclosure would result in unwarranted invasion of personal privacy; what is relevant to work of agency is substance of complaint, and inasmuch as identity of complainant is irrelevant, such identifying details may be deleted. Comm on Open Gov't F7976.

89. Civil rights

A request by an attorney in private practice for access to all complaints filed with the New York State Division of Human Rights between September 1, 1981 and July 1, 1982, would be granted except that the first names and addresses of the complainants would be withheld, where Pub O § 89 furnished an exception for the disclosure of lists of names and addresses if such lists would be used for commercial or fund-raising purposes to the extent that such lists might constitute an unwarranted invasion of personal privacy, and where the attorney sought the names and addresses for the benefit of his law practice, which clearly fit within the definition of commercial purposes. Goodstein v Shaw, 119 Misc. 2d 400, 463 N.Y.S.2d 162, 1983 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3523 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1983).

90. Department of Motor Vehicle (DMV) records, generally

91. —Disabilities information

Responses to question regarding current treatment for disabilities, made on application for state driver's license, are exempt from disclosure as "medical . . . histories" under Freedom of Information Law. Hanig v State Dep't of Motor Vehicles, 79 N.Y.2d 106, 580 N.Y.S.2d 715, 588 N.E.2d 750, 1992 N.Y. LEXIS 209 (N.Y. 1992).

Response given by applicant for driver's license to question on application as to whether he or she had received treatment for any disability, was not subject to disclosure under Freedom of Information Law. Hanig v State Dep't of Motor Vehicles, 168 A.D.2d 884, 564 N.Y.S.2d 805, 1990 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 15767 (N.Y. 92. Employment; employees, generally

92. Employment; employees, generally

Trial court erred in denying a religious publisher's petition to compel a board of education to provide copies of forms used by department of education's employees to request absences for religious observances, in cases where the request was denied, for a given period because the board conceded that it could locate the requested records, the request was not open-ended, and did not require the board to manually search every document filed with it over a broad time period. Matter of Jewish Press, Inc. v New York City Dept. of Educ., 183 A.D.3d 731, 122 N.Y.S.3d 679, 2020 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2868 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2020).

93. —Job applications

Public employment history of City University of New York's employees, insofar as revealed on their job applications, is not shielded from disclosure as unwarranted invasion of employees' privacy under CLS Pub O § 89(2)(b)(i). Dates of attendance at academic institutions is subject to disclosure, at least where employees did not meet licensing requirements for employment when hired and thus had to have worked minimum number of years in field in order to have qualified for job; in such circumstances, agency's need for information would be great and personal hardship of disclosure small. Kwasnik v City of New York, 262 A.D.2d 171, 691 N.Y.S.2d 525, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6756 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1999).

94. —Qualifications; certifications, ratings and the like

Department of education did not act arbitrarily and capriciously in releasing teacher data reports (TDRs) listing the teachers' names, as it could have reasonably determined that releasing the unredacted TDRs would not be an unwarranted invasion of privacy under N.Y. Pub. Off. Law § 89(2), because the data did not relate to the teachers' personal lives and the public's interest in disclosure outweighed the teachers' privacy interest. Mulgrew v Board of Educ. of the City School Dist. of the City of N.Y., 919 N.Y.S.2d 786, 31 Misc. 3d 296, 2011 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 128 (N.Y. Sup. Ct.), aff'd, 87 A.D.3d 506, 928 N.Y.S.2d 701, 2011 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6218 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2011).

Department of education did not act arbitrarily and capriciously in releasing teacher data reports (TDRs) listing the teachers' names, as it could have rationally determined that, while the unredacted TDRs were intra-agency records, they were statistical tabulations of data that had to be released under N.Y. Pub. Off. Law § 87(2)(g)(i), regardless of any flaws or unreliability. Mulgrew v Board of Educ. of the City School Dist. of the City of N.Y., 919 N.Y.S.2d 786, 31 Misc. 3d 296, 2011 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 128 (N.Y. Sup. Ct.), aff'd, 87 A.D.3d 506, 928 N.Y.S.2d 701, 2011 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6218 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2011).

95. —Unemployment benefits

Records showing the amount of a recipient's unemployment insurance benefits and the period of time during which those benefits were received were not prohibited from disclosure pursuant to Labor § 537, but were exempted from public access under Pub C § 87 subd. 2, par. [b] as an unwarranted invasion of personal privacy, unless the person to whom it pertained had given his written consent pursuant to Pub O § 89, subd. 2, par [c], proof of which was lacking. Messina v Lufthansa German Airlines, 83 A.D.2d 831, 441 N.Y.S.2d 557, 1981 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 15203 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1981).

96. Financial matters, generally

97. —Judgment debtors; executions and attachments

Sheriff properly denied a petitioner's request under the Freedom of Information Law for access to the income executions on file, where petitioner's stated purpose in seeking access was to send correspondence to the judgment debtors, in that the sheriff met his burden of proving that release of that information would constitute an unwarranted invasion of personal privacy by demonstrating that petitioner would likely use the records for commercial purposes and the sheriff could not delete identifying details of a personal nature contained in the records which could conceivably result in economic or personal hardship to the debtors. In re Nicholas, 117 Misc. 2d 630, 458 N.Y.S.2d 858, 1983 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3196 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1983).

98. Government contractors, licensees and the like, generally

In an Article 78 proceeding, a television network news division had a right under the Freedom of Information Law of access to the names and business addresses of principals of applicants for license to operate a check cashing business and other names by which they were known. However, disclosure of their home or residence addresses could, as a result of the nature of the business they conduct, expose applicants and their families to danger to life or safety and would be withheld. American Broadcasting Cos. v Siebert, 110 Misc. 2d 744, 442 N.Y.S.2d 855, 1981 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3153 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1981).

Citizen's request, pursuant to N.Y. Pub. Off. Law § 85, for information about persons issued deer management permits was denied because disclosure would constitute an unwarranted invasion of personal privacy; the system containing the information included a broad range of personal information including the license holder's first and last name, middle initial, gender, height, eye color, date of birth, driver's license number, customer identification number, state of residency, residential address, telephone number, and other personal information. Matter of Goyer v New York State Dept. of Envtl. Conservation, 813 N.Y.S.2d 628, 12 Misc. 3d 261, 2005 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3114 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 2005).

Records that exist that indicate amounts paid by town to engineering firm, they must, be made available, because none of grounds of denial could appropriately be asserted, and if social security numbers or home addresses are included in records, these details may be withheld on ground that disclosure would constitute unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL AO-4690.

99. Guns; gun permits

Nonprofit "pro-gun activist" organization was not entitled to obtain names and addresses of persons holding rifle or shotgun permits under Freedom of Information Law (FOIL) in order to solicit membership dues to help support its informational, lobbying and other activities, since such solicitation is "fund-raising" and is thus exempted from FOIL's disclosure requirements as invasion of privacy. Federation of New York State Rifle & Pistol Clubs, Inc. v New York City Police Dep't, 73 N.Y.2d 92, 538 N.Y.S.2d 226, 535 N.E.2d 279, 1989 N.Y. LEXIS 192 (N.Y. 1989).

100. Insurance; insurance agents

Although some information required to be included in reports created pursuant to N.Y. Ins. Law § 3429 were exempt from disclosure under the Freedom of Information Law, the insurers did not show that zip code data, without more, would put them at a competitive disadvantage, as required by N.Y. Pub. Off. Law §§ 87(2)(d), 89(4)(b), (5)(e); therefore, the borough president, who was seeking the information, was entitled to N.Y. C.P.L.R. art. 78 relief. Matter of Markowitz v Serio, 11 N.Y.3d 43, 862 N.Y.S.2d 833, 893 N.E.2d 110, 2008 N.Y. LEXIS 1827 (N.Y. 2008).

CLS Pub O § 89(2)(b) did not bar Freedom of Information Law disclosure of names of insurance company employees earning over $600,000, as insurance industry is highly regulated, employees' salaries have been filed with Department of Insurance since early 1900's, and fact that employees were nongovernmental employees did not ipso facto shield their salary from public view. Disclosure of insurance industry executive's salary information under N.Y. Pub. Off. Law § 89(2)(b) was not an unwarranted invasion of privacy. Belth v N.Y. State Dep't of Ins., 189 Misc. 2d 508, 733 N.Y.S.2d 833, 2001 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 490 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 2001).

Personal privacy exception of CLS Pub O § 89(2)(b)(iii) does not apply to names and business addresses of newly licensed New York insurance agents. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 00-08-01.

101. Lottery and other games of chance

Respondent improperly denied access to names and cities of residence (as opposed to names and actual addresses) of state lottery prize winners on ground that request was unwarranted invasion of personal privacy under CLS Pub O § 87(2)(b)(iii), although it was uncontested that lists were to be used for commercial purposes, where such information was regularly released when winners were announced and was defined as "public information" in respondent's own regulations (21 NYCRR § 2803.12). Empire Realty Corp. v New York State Div. of the Lottery, 230 A.D.2d 270, 657 N.Y.S.2d 504, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5207 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1997).

It was improper for Division of Lottery to deny request for copies of news releases previously issued by Division from its "creation to the present relating to lottery winners," especially since Division's own regulation characterized requested information as "public" (21 NYCRR § 2803.12). Corwin Solomon & Tanebaum v New York State Div. of the Lottery, 239 A.D.2d 763, 657 N.Y.S.2d 803, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5222 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1997).

102. Medical and health-related information, generally

State Department of Health failed to show that unwarranted invasion of patients' personal privacy would result from Supreme Court's order directing it to disclose to news companies, under Freedom of Information Law, identity of physicians involved in medical records maintained by Statewide Planning and Research Cooperative System (SPARCS) where wealth of information about patients, except for their names and their physicians' names, was already being disclosed by SPARCS, and department conceded that "even without the physician identifier, it is conceivable that one could attempt to connect the disclosable SPARCS data outlined above to invade a patient's medical privacy." New York Times Co. v New York State Dep't of Health, 243 A.D.2d 157, 674 N.Y.S.2d 826, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7774 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1998).

Court would grant order permitting access by legal aid society to referrals by correctional institutions of prison inmates to specialist medical care where legal aid society asked that information be redacted to delete all identifying details such as names and institutional numbers; such disclosure would not be unwarranted invasion of personal privacy within CLS Pub O § 87(2)(b) since CLS Pub O § 89(2)(c)(i) states that disclosure is not invasion if identifying details are deleted. Rold v Coughlin, 142 Misc. 2d 877, 538 N.Y.S.2d 896, 1989 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 461 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1989).

As to their professional services, cardiac surgeons do not possess personal privacy interest in information collected and maintained by Department of Health in Statewide Planning and Research Cooperative System. New York Times Co. v New York State Dep't of Health, 173 Misc. 2d 310, 660 N.Y.S.2d 810, 1997 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 248 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1997), aff'd, 243 A.D.2d 157, 674 N.Y.S.2d 826, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7774 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1998).

Portions of corrections officers' accident reports that were filled out by medical personnel were privileged as medical records under N.Y. Pub. Off. Law § 89(2)(b)(ii), the Health Insurance Portability and Accountability Act, 42 U.S.C.S. § 1320d et seq., and N.Y. Pub. Health Law § 18. Matter of Canty v Office of Counsel, N.Y. State Dept. of Correctional Servs., 913 N.Y.S.2d 528, 30 Misc. 3d 705, 2010 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 6095 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 2010).

103. —Autopsy

Court properly dismissed Article 78 proceeding to compel Freedom of Information Law (FOIL) disclosure of autopsy report, felony complaint and ballistics report pertaining to petitioner's criminal prosecution, as those documents previously had been provided to his attorney and, in any event, autopsy reports are exempt from disclosure under New York City Charter § 557(g), statements made by witness to district attorney's office are protected by public interest privilege, and FOIL specifically exempts medical records as unwarranted invasion of privacy. Huston v Turkel, 236 A.D.2d 283, 653 N.Y.S.2d 584, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1399 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't), app. denied, 90 N.Y.2d 809, 664 N.Y.S.2d 270, 686 N.E.2d 1365, 1997 N.Y. LEXIS 3170 (N.Y. 1997).

104. —Hospital records

Hospital records of witnesses who testified against petitioner at grand jury proceeding were not disclosable under Freedom of Information Law since access to such records would constitute "an unwarranted invasion of personal privacy." Newton v District Attorney of Bronx County, 186 A.D.2d 57, 588 N.Y.S.2d 269, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10741 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1992).

Exercise of rights of personal privacy under Freedom of Information Law is limited to living persons; however, Public Health Law and statutes otherwise conferring confidentiality pertaining to medical or hospital records may continue in effect after subject of those records dies. Comm on Open Gov't F7974.

105. Police and other law enforcement agencies, generally

Police officer did not meet burden of proving that his "Lost Time Report," showing dates of his absences from employment, requested by newspaper and reporter to verify information that some police officers were abusing sick leave privileges, was exempt from disclosure as unwarranted invasion of personal privacy under CLS Pub O Law §§ 87 and 89, since report sought was neither employment history nor medical history, nor did it come within other listed categories of exemptions, and officer's assertion that release of report would cause him to suffer "economic or personal hardship" was conclusory and not supported by facts. Capital Newspapers Div. of Hearst Corp. v Burns, 67 N.Y.2d 562, 505 N.Y.S.2d 576, 496 N.E.2d 665, 1986 N.Y. LEXIS 19312 (N.Y. 1986).

Where a law enforcement agency was asked to disclose records relating to a police investigation and surveillance activities involving two specific individuals and associated organizations-information protected under the law enforcement and public safety exemptions of Public Officers Law § 87, an agency's response to neither confirm nor deny the existence of responsive documents was compatible with the FOIL statute and the precedent of the New York Court of Appeals interpreting it. Matter of Abdur-Rashid v New York City Police Dept., 31 N.Y.3d 217, 100 N.E.3d 799, 76 N.Y.S.3d 460, 2018 N.Y. LEXIS 723 (N.Y.), reh'g denied, 31 N.Y.3d 1125, 106 N.E.3d 732, 81 N.Y.S.3d 349, 2018 N.Y. LEXIS 1510 (N.Y. 2018).

Rare case where, due to the surrounding circumstances and the manner in which a Freedom of Information Law (FOIL) request is structured, acknowledging that any responsive records exist would reveal information tethered to a narrow exemption; but when a FOIL request seeks to ascertain if a specific person or organization is under investigation by the New York City Police Department Intelligence Bureau, such a response is entirely consistent with the purpose and structure of the statute. Matter of Abdur-Rashid v New York City Police Dept., 31 N.Y.3d 217, 100 N.E.3d 799, 76 N.Y.S.3d 460, 2018 N.Y. LEXIS 723 (N.Y.), reh'g denied, 31 N.Y.3d 1125, 106 N.E.3d 732, 81 N.Y.S.3d 349, 2018 N.Y. LEXIS 1510 (N.Y. 2018).

Police officer was entitled, under Freedom of Information Law (FOIL), to examination grades of all persons on supplementary lists for black and Hispanic members regarding civil service examination for police sergeant where New York City Personnel Director failed to meet burden of showing that such information fell within FOIL exemption for material the release of which would constitute "unwarranted invasion of personal privacy," in that names of officers on supplemental lists had already been disclosed, no meaningful distinction existed between names of those on list (who, by definition, had not passed exam) and their test scores, and there was no reasonable expectation of privacy with respect to exam scores of those who were promoted. Rainey v Levitt, 138 Misc. 2d 962, 525 N.Y.S.2d 551, 1988 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 196 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1988).

In a N.Y. C.P.L.R. art. 78 matter, a legal defense fund and a Muslim advocacy group were not entitled to records under the Freedom of Information Law, N.Y. Pub. Off. Law §§ 87(2)(b) and 89(2), regarding the New York City Police Department's (NYPD's) surveillance of Muslim individuals, businesses, and organizations because disclosure that an individual or entity might have been named during the course of an investigation of possible terrorist activity or otherwise involved in the investigation could be quickly disseminated, causing harm to the reputation of such individual or entity, even though their connection to the investigation might later be determined to be purely coincidental. Asian Am. Legal Defense & Educ. Fund v New York City Police Dept., 964 N.Y.S.2d 888, 41 Misc. 3d 471, 2013 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1912 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 2013), aff'd, 125 A.D.3d 531, 5 N.Y.S.3d 13, 2015 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1550 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2015).

106. —Arrests

Petition in Article 78 proceeding to compel production, under New York State Freedom of Information Law (FOIL), of police records concerning release of persons arrested in riot was properly dismissed where (1) police chief's failure to perform ministerial act of filing certificate of disposition under CLS CPL § 160.50(3)(j) did not negate legislative intent, in enacting CLS CPL § 160.50, that records of persons arrested and never prosecuted be sealed, (2) thus, records sought were exempt from FOIL disclosure under CLS Pub O § 87(2)(a), and (3) requested information might also be exempt from public disclosure as "unwarranted invasion of personal liberty" under CLS Pub O § 89(2)(a). Leibowitz v Safir, 251 A.D.2d 581, 674 N.Y.S.2d 736, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7500 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't), app. denied, 92 N.Y.2d 813, 680 N.Y.S.2d 906, 703 N.E.2d 764, 1998 N.Y. LEXIS 3687 (N.Y. 1998).

Police department should have granted petitioner's Freedom of Information Law request for records pertaining to his arrest and conviction, despite department's claim that records identified victim of sex offense, and that petitioner stood convicted of sex offense on which he was charged and thus did not qualify as person "charged" with sex offense entitled to such records under CLS Civ R § 50-b(2)(a), since petitioner claimed to need records for purposes of planned proceedings in federal court to overturn his conviction, and he already knew victim's name. Fappiano v New York City Police Dep't, 267 A.D.2d 156, 700 N.Y.S.2d 20, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13203 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1999), rev'd, 95 N.Y.2d 738, 724 N.Y.S.2d 685, 747 N.E.2d 1286, 2001 N.Y. LEXIS 573 (N.Y. 2001).

In proceeding challenging denial of petitioner's request for various documents pertaining to his arrest, court improperly found that it lacked subject matter jurisdiction on ground that petitioner, who had been convicted of sex offense, was required to avail himself of procedures outlined in CLS Civ R § 50-b(2)(b), namely, application to court having jurisdiction over sex offense; under CLS Civ R § 50-b(2)(a), "(a)ny person charged with the commission of a sex offense ... against the same victim" is not prohibited from inspecting such material, and statutory provision is not limited to individual preparing trial defense to sex offense charge. Doyen v McMahon, 271 A.D.2d 852, 706 N.Y.S.2d 252, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4437 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2000), rev'd sub. nom., Fappiano v N.Y. City Police Dep't, 95 N.Y.2d 738, 724 N.Y.S.2d 685, 747 N.E.2d 1286, 2001 N.Y. LEXIS 573 (N.Y. 2001) sub. nom.Fappiano v New York City Police Dep't, 2001 N.Y. LEXIS 11 (N.Y. Jan. 9, 2001).

107. —Discipline, misconduct, termination and the like

Documents constituting final determination of disciplinary action finding that State Police investigator abused his official authority in obtaining information for petitioner's personal use were not immune from disclosure under privacy exemption of Freedom of Information Law since determination was not disclosure of employment history under CLS Pub O § 89(2)(b)(i) nor information of personal nature under CLS Pub O § 89(2)(b)(iv). Scaccia v New York State Div. of State Police, 138 A.D.2d 50, 530 N.Y.S.2d 309, 1988 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6870 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1988).

Retired police officer was entitled to reasonable attorneys' fees and costs because the city police department failed to respond to his appeal of the denial of his Freedom of Information Law request within the statutory time, did not respond to the appeal until after the enforcement proceeding was commenced, and neither the denial nor the untimely appeal determination contained a reasonable basis for denying access to the retiree's requested employment records. Matter of Gallogly v City of New York, 51 Misc. 3d 296, 21 N.Y.S.3d 867, 2016 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 18 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 2016).

108. —Victims of crime

Statement of crime victim, record indicating amount of award to victim, and medical or similar records used in determining compensation given to victim were properly withheld by Crime Victims Board, as unwarranted invasion of privacy under CLS Pub O § 89(2)(b). Comm on Open Gov't F7979.

109. —Witnesses, including grand jury witnesses

Hospital records of witnesses who testified against petitioner at grand jury proceeding were not disclosable under Freedom of Information Law since access to such records would constitute "an unwarranted invasion of personal privacy." Newton v District Attorney of Bronx County, 186 A.D.2d 57, 588 N.Y.S.2d 269, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10741 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1992).

In proceeding under Freedom of Information Law seeking disclosure of complaint follow-up reports ("DD-5s") produced by police department in connection with homicide investigation, fact that petitioner knew identity of witnesses interviewed by police did not preclude application of privacy exemption because he did not necessarily know what witnesses told police, which could have been information imparted in confidence, and police were not required to show that particular witness was specifically promised confidentiality if circumstances gave rise to clear inference that promise was assumed. Johnson v New York City Police Dep't, 257 A.D.2d 343, 694 N.Y.S.2d 14, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7785 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't), app. dismissed, 94 N.Y.2d 791, 700 N.Y.S.2d 422, 722 N.E.2d 502, 1999 N.Y. LEXIS 3646 (N.Y. 1999).

Organization was entitled to N.Y. C.P.L.R. art. 78 relief because there was no basis under N.Y. Pub. Off. Law §§ 87(2)(e)(iii), (2)(f), or 89(1)(b) to withhold the information sought where the witnesses at issue might have exculpatory information that would help an inmate, and nothing in the record indicated that an explicit assurance of confidentiality was given or that the witnesses would be in danger. Matter of Exoneration Initiative v New York City Police Dept., 966 N.Y.S.2d 825, 39 Misc. 3d 962, 2013 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1342 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 2013), aff'd in part, modified, 114 A.D.3d 436, 980 N.Y.S.2d 73, 2014 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 719 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2014).

110. Prisons and prisoners, generally

Inmate was entitled to unredacted copies of inmate grievance log entries, log supplement forms, and inmate grievance monthly reports only concerning himself; however, inmate was entitled to same documents as to other inmates with name, number, and DIN of grievance redacted. Di Rose v New York State Dep't of Correctional Servs., 226 A.D.2d 846, 640 N.Y.S.2d 353, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3718 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1996).

Deputy Commissioner of Correctional Services properly denied inmate's Freedom of Information Law request for access to particular letter authored by his former paramour since inmate had twice been denied parole based, in part, on fact that while incarcerated he "communicated threats to kill the husband of (his) former paramour"; under circumstances, disclosure would constitute unwarranted invasion of privacy and could endanger life or safety of author (CLS Pub O § 87(2)(b)(f). Deane v Annucci, 248 A.D.2d 760, 669 N.Y.S.2d 696, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2217 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), app. denied, 92 N.Y.2d 804, 677 N.Y.S.2d 779, 700 N.E.2d 318, 1998 N.Y. LEXIS 1881 (N.Y. 1998).

Prison inmate's request for various documents, including investigator's reports and statement of witness who did not testify at trial, was properly denied since those documents were exempt from disclosure because they either were compiled for law-enforcement purposes or would constitute unwarranted invasion of privacy. Mulhall v Fitzgerald, 249 A.D.2d 852, 672 N.Y.S.2d 480, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4833 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1998).

In convicted murderer's Article 78 proceeding under Freedom of Information Law (FOIL) to compel district attorney to disclose criminal history records of prosecution witnesses who testified at his trial, those records were not exempt from disclosure by reason of invasion of privacy exceptions to FOIL where request was narrowed on appeal by agreement that records be redacted of personal information. Williams v Erie County DA, 255 A.D.2d 863, 682 N.Y.S.2d 316, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12053 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1998).

"Lead sheets," made in connection with inmate's arrest and conviction, regarding communications with victim's relatives, as well as information pertaining to contacts with individuals who did not provide information, were properly deemed exempt based on privacy exemption under CLS Pub O § 87(2)(b). De Oliveira v Wagner, 274 A.D.2d 904, 711 N.Y.S.2d 592, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8284 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2000).

Court would grant order permitting access by legal aid society to referrals by correctional institutions of prison inmates to specialist medical care where legal aid society asked that information be redacted to delete all identifying details such as names and institutional numbers; such disclosure would not be unwarranted invasion of personal privacy within CLS Pub O § 87(2)(b) since CLS Pub O § 89(2)(c)(i) states that disclosure is not invasion if identifying details are deleted. Rold v Coughlin, 142 Misc. 2d 877, 538 N.Y.S.2d 896, 1989 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 461 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1989).

Particularized reasons were provided for the proper withholding of a FOIL records request for photographs of inmates, as the disclosure would constitute an unwarranted invasion of privacy resulting in personal and/or economic hardship to inmates, and disclosure could endanger the lives and safety of inmates and their family members. Prall v New York City Dept. of Corr., 971 N.Y.S.2d 821, 40 Misc. 3d 940, 2013 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2405 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 2013), aff'd, 129 A.D.3d 734, 10 N.Y.S.3d 332, 2015 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4584 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2015).

Portions of corrections officers' accident reports in which they described the accident and/or injury had to be provided to an inmate, but only after making redactions under N.Y. Pub. Off. Law § 87(2)(f) to protect the confidentiality of the officers' personal information, including home addresses, dates of birth, telephone numbers and social security numbers, which could endanger their life or safety. Matter of Canty v Office of Counsel, N.Y. State Dept. of Correctional Servs., 913 N.Y.S.2d 528, 30 Misc. 3d 705, 2010 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 6095 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 2010).

As correction officers' accident reports had not been shown to have any relevancy to their continued employment or promotion, the reports were not exempt from disclosure under N.Y. Civ. Rights Law § 50-a or N.Y. Pub. Off. Law § 87(2)(a). Matter of Canty v Office of Counsel, N.Y. State Dept. of Correctional Servs.,

913 N.Y.S.2d 528, 30 Misc. 3d 705, 2010 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 6095 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 2010).

Portions of corrections officers' accident reports in which they described the accident and/or injury had to be provided to an inmate, but only after making redactions under N.Y. Pub. Off. Matter of Canty v Office of Counsel, N.Y. State Dept. of Correctional Servs., 913 N.Y.S.2d 528, 30 Misc. 3d 705, 2010 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 6095 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 2010).

As correction officers' accident reports had not been shown to have any relevancy to their continued employment or promotion, the reports were not exempt from disclosure under N.Y. Civ. Rights Law § 50-a or N.Y. Pub. Off. Law § 87(2)(a). Matter of Canty v Office of Counsel, N.Y. State Dept. of Correctional Servs., 913 N.Y.S.2d 528, 30 Misc. 3d 705, 2010 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 6095 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 2010).

111. —Assaults, grievances and related incidents

Only personal information which appeared in employee accident reports, employee training reports, records of interviews that were conducted with employees, and other documents which the New York Department of Correctional Services (DOCS) created after an inmate was alleged injured by a corrections officer was exempt from disclosure under N.Y. Pub. Off. Law §§ 87 and 89, and the appellate court ordered the DOCS to disclose redacted versions of the reports and records that did not contain personal information. Beyah v Goord, 309 A.D.2d 1049, 766 N.Y.S.2d 222, 2003 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10931 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2003).

List of inmates housed in particular area of correctional facility, and who therefore may have been witnesses to assault, was not exempt from disclosure under CLS Pub O §§ 87 and 89 pertaining to unwarranted invasion of personal privacy, nor under CLS Pub O § 95 pertaining information which could endanger life or safety of any person. Bensing v Le Fevre, 133 Misc. 2d 198, 506 N.Y.S.2d 822, 1986 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2848 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1986).

Petitioners, 2 members of legal services corporation and inmate, were not entitled under Freedom of Information Law to names of Muslim inmates at certain correctional facility who had filed grievances based on being pat-frisked by female correction officers since facility's grievance program and procedures provided that its papers and information were to be confidential; thus, it was proper for facility to refuse request for identifying information after having supplied name-redacted grievance documents. Faulkner v Lefevre, 140 Misc. 2d 699, 532 N.Y.S.2d 337, 1988 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 576 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1988).

112. —Videotapes

Videotapes taken by Department of Correctional Services at prison over multiyear period were not entirely exempt from disclosure as unwarranted invasion of inmate privacy since inmates at state correctional facilities, being well aware that their movements are monitored, have no legitimate expectation of privacy from any and all public portrayal of their persons; however, department could redact those portions of tapes disclosure of which would invade inmate's expectation of privacy, with department preparing and submitting description of redacted portions sufficient to allow court to determine applicability of exemption. Buffalo Broadcasting Co. v New York State Dep't of Correctional Services, 155 A.D.2d 106, 552 N.Y.S.2d 712, 1990 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2940 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1990).

113. Real property, generally

Because questions of fact existed as to whether a provider's Freedom of Information Law request for public land records would require the county clerk to disclose private information, and whether the clerk could comply with the request in the format sought by the provider, the matter was remitted to the trial court to determine whether the clerk could provide the records pursuant to N.Y. Pub. Off. Law §§ 87(2)(b), 89(2)(c)(1), (3)(b). Matter of Data Tree, LLC v Romaine, 9 N.Y.3d 454, 849 N.Y.S.2d 489, 880 N.E.2d 10, 2007 N.Y. LEXIS 3712 (N.Y. 2007).

Petitioner's request under Freedom of Information Law, CLS Pub O Art 6, for specified Homestead Program applications submitted to town should not have been denied in its entirety, although disclosure of some material in applications would constitute unwarranted invasion of privacy, since petitioner had limited request to, and town would be required to disclose, applications involving past or present town employees redacted to reflect only employment history. Wilson v Islip, 179 A.D.2d 763, 578 N.Y.S.2d 642, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 679 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1992).

Petitioner's request, under Freedom of Information Law, for inventory of all privately owned real property in certain area was properly denied, even though deletion from inventory of names and addresses of property owners ordinarily would be sufficient remedy, where release of inventory's map numbers would still allow petitioner to identify names and addresses of listed property owners, and it was reasonable to infer that petitioner was seeking inventory for commercial purposes. Siegel, Fenchel & Peddy, P.C. v Central Pine Barrens Joint Planning & Policy Comm'n, 251 A.D.2d 670, 676 N.Y.S.2d 191, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7977 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1998), app. denied, 93 N.Y.2d 804, 689 N.Y.S.2d 429, 711 N.E.2d 643, 1999 N.Y. LEXIS 691 (N.Y. 1999).

Objective real property inventory data, though subject to change, is always public record; however, property owner name and address portion of computer tape used to generate property inventory data mailers may be withheld if it is sought for commercial or fund-raising purpose. 10 Op. Counsel SBRPS No. 4.

There were no identifiable violations of the Freedom of Information Law (FOIL) because there was no evidence that any documents were wrongfully withheld; petitioners failed to establish that a town released any documents due to the commencement of litigation and to produce any evidence that the town did not act in good faith, and thus, any technical violations in the mode or manner of the town's responses to the FOIL requests would not warrant the imposition of costs or counsel fees. Matter of Fichera v New York State Dep't of Envtl. Conservation, 159 A.D.3d 1493, 74 N.Y.S.3d 422, 2018 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2199 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 2018).

114. —Assessment records; property taxes

Privacy exemption was properly applied to Freedom of Information Law request for inventory data for all parcels contained on assessment roll of town since petitioner intended to use information for commercial purposes; redaction of names and addresses from inventory data would not protect privacy interests since tax map numbers contained in that data would, nonetheless, enable petitioner to identify names and addresses of property owners through comparison of tax map numbers to assessment roll. Comps, Inc. v Town of Huntington, 269 A.D.2d 446, 703 N.Y.S.2d 225, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1367 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't), app. denied, 95 N.Y.2d 758, 713 N.Y.S.2d 522, 735 N.E.2d 1287, 2000 N.Y. LEXIS 1832 (N.Y. 2000).

115. —Housing, including Section 8 housing matters

Payroll records of municipal housing authority were not exempted from disclosure under Freedom of Information Law by CLS Pub O § 87(2)(b) since (1) records regarding days worked, leave taken with or without pay and leave accrued were relevant to day-to-day operations of authority, and (2) authority failed to show how release of records would result in economic or personal hardship, as possibility that records could be used to discover other financial information was insufficient and claim that newspaper might use information to create embarrassing article was also insufficient. Where newspaper sought disciplinary records of municipal housing authority including each employee's name, address, job title, specific charges brought, disposition of charges, penalty imposed and level at which case was adjudicated, authority could not deny access under Freedom of Information Law on basis of CLS Pub O § 87(2)(b) since records were clearly relevant to work of authority, and therefore access was required. Buffalo News v Buffalo Municipal Housing Authority, 163 A.D.2d 830, 558 N.Y.S.2d 364 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1990).

Resident of middle-income housing developed under N.Y. Priv. Hous. Fin. Law art. 2 was entitled to disclosure of apartment waiting lists under N.Y. Pub. Off. Law §§ 87 and 89 by a city housing department. Under N.Y. Pub. Hous. Law § 3(14), the exemptions of N.Y. Pub. Hous. Law § 159 applied only to public housing projects; disclosure would not constitute an unwarranted invasion of privacy because income information was not included in the lists and was not the type of personal information expressly excluded under N.Y. Pub. Off. Law § 89(2)(b); and New York City, N.Y., R. tit. 28, § 3-02(h)(10) expressly required that such lists be made available. Matter of Thomas v City of N.Y. Dept. of Hous. Preserv. & Dev., 817 N.Y.S.2d 864, 12 Misc. 3d 547, 235 N.Y.L.J. 81, 2006 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 783 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 2006).

116. —Land use, including building permits and environmental facilities

Requests for individual building permits sought for purpose of obtaining commercial leads should be complied with since such requests are not for lists of names and addresses as envisioned by § 89(2)(b)(iii) of Freedom of Information Law. Comm Pub Acc Rec FOIL-Ad Op 2496.

117. Schools, generally

OP No. 30 forms filed for city school district are not exempt from Freedom of Information Law disclosure, on ground that disclosure might result in unwarranted invasion of privacy, as information disclosed on such forms does not encompass sort of detail that would ordinarily and reasonably be regarded as intimate, private information. Mothers on the Move v Messer, 236 A.D.2d 408, 652 N.Y.S.2d 773, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1030 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1997).

School district may not except from disclosure a financial statement submitted in connection with a bid despite fact they are designated "private and confidential", and any promise of confidentiality would be all but meaningless. Comm Pub Acc Rec FOIL-Ad Op 2787.

School district failed to meet its burden with respect to the assertion that disclosure of the names of the authors who submitted written comments constituted an unwarranted invasion of personal privacy because the majority of the comments disclosed were not in the nature of complaints regarding the performance of school district employees; the comments were on a matter of public interest for which the school district failed to demonstrate the authors had any expectation of privacy. Matter of Jacobson v Ithaca City Sch. Dist., 53 Misc. 3d 1091, 39 N.Y.S.3d 904, 2016 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3469 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 2016).

118. —Students

A news service is entitled to obtain the results of a State-wide student drug abuse survey since disclosure of the documents will not violate a person's privacy (Public Officers Law, § 89, subd 2, pars [a], [b]; § 87, subd 2, par [b]) and since the common-law privilege shielding confidential communications between public officers will not be applied because disclosure of the document does not jeopardize the public interest. Gannett News Service, Inc. v New York Office of Alcoholism etc., 99 Misc. 2d 235, 415 N.Y.S.2d 780, 1979 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2238 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1979).

An individual's request that a community college furnish him with the names and addresses of all students enrolled at the college was properly refused, pursuant to 20 USCS § 1232g and Pub O § 87(2), where the individual did not designate such information "directory information," which would make it available to the public and, further, because the person requesting the information did not demonstrate a need for the requested disclosure, he would not be entitled to court-ordered access pursuant to the federal statute and, since a privacy right is thus established, access could also be withheld pursuant to Pub O § 87(2), particularly since the individual requesting the information failed to show that the names and addresses were not sought for" commercial or fund-raising purposes," under Pub O § 89(2). Krauss v Nassau Community College, 122 Misc. 2d 218, 469 N.Y.S.2d 553, 1983 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 4100 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1983).

119. —Teachers and other school staff

Public employment history of City University of New York's employees, insofar as revealed on their job applications, is not shielded from disclosure as unwarranted invasion of employees' privacy under CLS Pub O § 89(2)(b)(i). Dates of attendance at academic institutions is subject to disclosure, at least where employees did not meet licensing requirements for employment when hired and thus had to have worked minimum number of years in field in order to have qualified for job; in such circumstances, agency's need for information would be great and personal hardship of disclosure small. Kwasnik v City of New York, 262 A.D.2d 171, 691 N.Y.S.2d 525, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6756 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1999).

Results of disciplinary proceeding under CLS Educ § 3020-a were matter of public record and did not fall within "employment history" exception of CLS Pub O § 89, and thus dissemination of such information to media did not implicate teacher's liberty interest. DeMichele v Greenburgh Cent. Sch. Dist. No. 7, 167 F.3d 784, 1999 U.S. App. LEXIS 2344 (2d Cir. N.Y. 1999).

Access to the contents of a personnel file pertaining to an applicant which included letters of recommendation in possession of a community college may be denied under Public Officers Law § 87(2)(g) since letters of recommendation may constitute interagency or intra-agency materials not required to be disclosed and may be denied under Public Officers Law § 89(2)(b) which specifically exempts "disclosure of employment, medical or credit histories of personal references of applicants for employment". Comm Pub Acc Rec FOIL—Ad Op 1764.

120. — —Retirees, pension information and the like

The Teachers' Retirement System of the City of New York is required to disclose the names and addresses of retired New York City school teachers to a not-for-profit corporation which investigates legislation and other government action affecting the pension funds of the retirement system; the names and addresses are not exempt from disclosure under section 87 (subd 2, par [b]) or section 89 (subd 2, par [b], cl iii) of the Public Officers Law, which deny access to information which would invade personal privacy and to information to be used for commercial or funding-raising purposes, inasmuch as a nonprofit organization cannot have as its purpose a design to reap a pecuniary profit or financial gain, and dues solicitation by the corporation is not a form of fund-raising within the meaning of the Freedom of Information Law because it is merely a device to achieve the primary and acceptable purpose of information distribution. Moreover, the retirement system failed to meet its burden of showing that the material sought is protected (Public Officers Law, § 89, subd 4, par [b]), since the argument that the corporation might sell the list of retirees' names and addresses to other organizations, not-for-profit or otherwise, is speculative and does not suffice to overcome the corporation's interest in obtaining the information. New York Teachers Pension Asso. v Teachers' Retirement System, 71 A.D.2d 250, 422 N.Y.S.2d 389, 1979 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13466 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1979), app. denied, 49 N.Y.2d 701, 426 N.Y.S.2d 1025, 403 N.E.2d 187, 1980 N.Y. LEXIS 4955 (N.Y. 1980).

121. Social services

Court would direct county social services department to produce "any and all" records related to petitioner and his mother, after deletion of confidential identifying details, since (1) CLS Soc Serv § 373-a applied to allow petitioner access to county records pertaining to himself and his natural mother even though statute did not become effective until several years after petitioner, who had been foster child, was discharged into his own care, and (2) under Freedom of Information Law, all records of governmental agencies are presumptively available for public inspection and copying without regard to status, need, good faith, or purpose of applicant requesting access. Malowsky v D'Elia, 160 A.D.2d 798, 553 N.Y.S.2d 836, 1990 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4201 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1990).

122. Telephone records, including 911 calls

Tapes and transcripts of 911 calls made by victims and survivors on September 11, 2001, were protected as private utterances from disclosure to a newspaper reporter who sought their release under the New York Freedom of Information Law, N.Y. Pub. Off. Law art. 6; calls made by those whose families sought release could be released, as could everything said by 911 personnel unless release of material could threaten security. N.Y. Times Co. v City of New York Fire Dep't, 195 Misc. 2d 119, 754 N.Y.S.2d 517, 2003 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 94 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 2003), aff'd in part, modified, 3 A.D.3d 340, 770 N.Y.S.2d 324, 2004 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 143 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2004).

III. Appeals

A. Administrative Appeals

i. Generally

123. In general

Regulation promulgated by Village of Scarsdale providing that applicant for access to record must file appeal within 30 days of date of denial complies with Freedom of Information Law. Comm Pub Acc Rec FOIL-Ad Op 2554.

An additional step for appealing denials of documents established under a county Freedom of Information Law does not supersede provisions of the New York Freedom of Information Law. Comm Pub Acc Rec FOIL-Ad Op 2816.

124. Article 78 proceedings, generally

Trial court properly declined to declare that a city's responses to a newspaper's Freedom of Information Law (FOIL) requests and rulings on administrative appeals were untimely and to order the city to cease this practice because, under N.Y. Pub. Off. Law § 89(4)(a), the remedy for an untimely response or ruling was to deem the response a denial and file an N.Y. C.P.L.R. art. 78 proceeding; review of a FOIL determination did not provide for mandamus relief. The newspaper's reliance on N.Y. C.P.L.R. 3001 was unavailing. Matter of New York Times Co. v City of N.Y. Police Dept., 103 A.D.3d 405, 959 N.Y.S.2d 171, 2013 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 689 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't), app. denied, 22 N.Y.3d 854, 977 N.Y.S.2d 183, 999 N.E.2d 548, 2013 N.Y. LEXIS 2941 (N.Y. 2013).

125. —District Attorney's office

In Article 78 proceeding to compel district attorney to produce certain documents under Freedom of Information Law, district attorney could not be heard to complain that petitioner had failed to exhaust his administrative remedies where district attorney had failed to advise petitioner of availability of administrative appeal within district attorney's office, and failed to demonstrate in Article 78 proceeding that procedures for such appeal had, in fact, been established. Barrett v Morgenthau, 74 N.Y.2d 907, 549 N.Y.S.2d 649, 548 N.E.2d 1300, 1989 N.Y. LEXIS 3180 (N.Y. 1989).

Where district attorneys failed to timely respond to an attorney's request, by way of a letter which clarified his prior request for photographic reprints, within the five-day period required by N.Y. Pub. Off. Law § 89(3), or within the 10-day period prescribed for administrative appeals pursuant to N.Y. Pub. Off. Law § 89(4)(a), and where they failed to inform the attorney of his right to appeal after they eventually denied his request, the attorney was deemed to have exhausted his administrative remedies. Pennington v Clark, 307 A.D.2d 756, 763 N.Y.S.2d 191, 2003 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7844 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 2003).

County district attorney was not entitled to the dismissal of a proceeding filed by the minority leader of the county legislature to obtain correspondence from the DA's office to the county comptroller as N.Y. Pub. Off. Law § 89(4)(b) provided the proper remedy and the leader did not have to establish a clear legal right to the relief sought; however, the DA and the county only made a conclusory invocation of the exemption under N.Y. Pub. Off. Law § 87(2)(g) for inter-agency materials. Benedict v Albany County, 867 N.Y.S.2d 906, 22 Misc. 3d 597, 2008 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 6866 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 2008).

126. —Landlord and tenant

A motion by certain landlords, who were the subjects of an Attorney General's investigation concerning alleged fraudulent or illegal activity by the landlords in violation of applicable rent stabilization laws, for an order directing the Attorney General to surrender certain information pursuant to the Freedom of Information Law (Pub O, Art 6) would be denied, since the Attorney General had complied in part with the landlords' request for disclosure and had denied others of their requests, so that if the landlords were dissatisfied the proper course would be to pursue the administrative remedies provided by Pub O §§ 89(4)(a), 89(4)(b). Wiener v Abrams, 119 Misc. 2d 970, 464 N.Y.S.2d 919, 1983 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3629 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1983).

127. —Police and other law enforcement agencies

Where an applicant was invalidly denied access to information of a town's police department, a two-step appeal procedure required by local law, whereby applicant must appeal to the police chief and to the town board, is invalid as a violation of proper appeal procedure of § 89(4)(a) of the Public Officers Law. Comm Pub Acc Rec FOIL-Ad Op 2329.

128. —Prisons; prisoners

In Article 78 proceeding, petitioner was properly denied counsel fees in connection with request under Freedom of Information Law (FOIL) for names of inmates confined in correctional facility's special housing unit where petitioner, as paralegal for prisoners' legal services organization, stated only that request was made "with an eye to possible litigation," since petitioner failed to meet requirement of CLS Pub O § 89(4)(c) that counsel fees are recoverable in FOIL proceeding only if information sought is of "clearly significant interest to the general public." Wurster v Le Fevre, 152 A.D.2d 810, 543 N.Y.S.2d 591, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9329 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1989).

Although failure to administratively appeal police department's adverse ruling under Freedom of Information Law (FOIL) within 30-day period provided for in CLS Pub O § 89(4)(a) normally precludes judicial review, inmate would be permitted to commence administrative appeal in light of fact that police department failed to address inmate's FOIL request until inmate commenced Article 78 proceeding regarding request. Newton v Police Dep't of New York, 183 A.D.2d 621, 585 N.Y.S.2d 5, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7562 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1992).

Although the failure of the Division of Parole to respond within five days to a letter from petitioner requesting access to certain information contained in his parole records for use at a final parole revocation hearing would be properly construed as a denial of his request, petitioner would not be entitled, in an Article 78 proceeding, to an order granting access to the requested information, since he failed to make a timely written appeal pursuant to Public Officers Law § 89 and thus failed to exhaust his administrative remedies. Robertson v Chairman of New York State Bd. of Parole, 122 Misc. 2d 829, 471 N.Y.S.2d 1015, 1984 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2903 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1984).

129. —Schools

Petitioner seeking records from school district under Freedom of Information Law did not fail to exhaust its administrative remedies where school district did not advise it of availability of administrative appeal, and did not demonstrate in Article 78 proceeding that procedures for such appeal had even been established. Orange County Publ'ns v Kiryas Joel Union Free Sch. Dist., 282 A.D.2d 604, 724 N.Y.S.2d 167, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3819 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2001).

Fact that petitioner, requesting records from school district under Freedom of Information Law, was aware, in theory, of availability of administrative review of denial of its request, did not relieve school district of its responsibility to advise petitioner that such review was available, and of procedures for securing it. Orange County Publ'ns v Kiryas Joel Union Free Sch. Dist., 282 A.D.2d 604, 724 N.Y.S.2d 167, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3819 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2001).

In dismissing an appeal, brought on behalf of employees of the school district, which sought an order prohibiting the board of education from allowing one of its board members to take home an employee list which included names, addresses, job titles and job descriptions of all employees of the district, it was pointed out that Part 84 of the Regulations which restricts the right of access by school board members relates to the examination of school employees' "personnel records." Because the board member in question was not seeking to review personnel records, the procedures set forth in Part 84 did not apply. As to violations of Freedom of Information Law, § 310, appropriate forum for challenging alleged violations of the Freedom of Information Law is the Supreme Court of the State of New York, not an appeal to the Commissioner of Education. Appeal of Krasinski (1990) Op Comr Educ No 12323.

An appeal to the Commissioner of Education is not the proper forum for addressing claims relating to violations of the Freedom of Information Law. The appropriate form for challenging alleged violations of the Freedom of Information Law is the Supreme Court of the State of New York, and not in an appeal before the Commissioner of Education. Appeal Alexandreena D, 1990 Op Comr Educ No 12433.

130. Public hearing requirement

Appropriate forum for addressing alleged Freedom of Information Law violations is Supreme Court of State of New York, not appeal to Commissioner of Education under CLS Educ § 310. 1996 Op Comm Ed No. 13719.

131. Timely determination requirement

The seven [now 10] day limitations set forth in Pub O § 89, which provides that on an interagency appeal under the Freedom of Information Law the designated appeal authorities shall within seven business days of the receipt of an appeal from a denial of access to a record explain in writing the reasons for further denial or provide access to the records sought, should be read as directory, not mandatory, and the consequence of failure to comply with that limitation is that the applicant would be deemed to have exhausted his administrative remedies and would be entitled to seek a judicial remedy. Accordingly, where Special Term in an Article 78 proceeding commenced by petitioner 19 days after taking his appeal and after having received no response, interpreted the statute as mandatory and directed the furnishing of the material requested without regard to its exemption from disclosure under the Freedom of Information Law, the matter would be remanded to Special Term to determine whether the material fell within one of the exemptions. Floyd v McGuire, 87 A.D.2d 388, 452 N.Y.S.2d 416, 1982 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 16563 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't), app. dismissed, 57 N.Y.2d 774, 1982 N.Y. LEXIS 4344 (N.Y. 1982).

ii. Appeals Officer

132. In general

When determination on appeal is made, appeals person or body must either forward written determination fully explaining reason for further denial to applicant or provide access to records that were initially denied. Comm Pub Acc Rec FOIL-Ad Op 2601.

133. Appeals office for education matters

An appeal to the Commissioner of Education is not the proper forum for addressing claims relating to violations of the Freedom of Information Law. The appropriate form for challenging alleged violations of the Freedom of Information Law is the Supreme Court of the State of New York, and not in an appeal before the Commissioner of Education. Appeal Alexandreena D, 1990 Op Comr Educ No 12433.

School district must have person or body designated to render determinations on appeal following denial of access to records under Freedom of Information Law. Comm Pub Acc Rec FOIL-Ad Op 2724.

Designation of individual as both records access officer and appeals officer of Board of Education of Lyndenhurst School District is improper since single individual cannot serve as both records access officer and appeals officer. Comm Pub Acc Rec FOIL-Ad Op 2752.

134. Appeals officer for municipalities

Town board as governing body of municipality and as appeals body for purposes of Freedom of Information Law is required to transmit to committee on Public Access to Records copies of appeals relating to denial of access to records and determinations that follow. Comm Pub Acc Rec FOIL-Ad Op 2597.

135. Appeals officer for prisoners

The Deputy Commissioner of Legal Matters would be presumed to be the person designated, within the meaning of Pub O § 89, to receive a state prisoner's appeal of the New York City Police Department's denial of his Freedom of Information Law request, although the department had made no formal designation, where the letter transmitting the department's denial to the prisoner had stated that any appeal of the decision should be made to the deputy commissioner. Floyd v McGuire, 108 Misc. 2d 536, 437 N.Y.S.2d 886, 1981 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2235 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1981), rev'd, 87 A.D.2d 388, 452 N.Y.S.2d 416, 1982 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 16563 (N.Y. 136. Requirement that records access officer and appeals officer cannot be same person Designation of individual as both records access officer and appeals officer of Board of Education of Lyndenhurst School District is improper since single individual cannot serve as both records access officer and appeals officer. Comm Pub Acc Rec FOIL-Ad Op 2752.

B. Judicial Review

Respondent was not precluded from raising, for first time in Article 78 proceeding, additional ground for denying petitioner's request under Freedom of Information Law (FOIL); rationale behind rule limiting court's review to ground invoked by agency does not apply to FOIL review, which has its own substantive law and does not fit into traditional writs. Harvey v Hynes, 174 Misc. 2d 174, 665 N.Y.S.2d 1000, 1997 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 533 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1997).

Because bidder's request for a competitor's "pricing information" under the Freedom of Information Law, N.Y. Pub. Off. Law art. 6, was not raised before the trial court, and as its argument regarding the search of a procurement entity's records was not raised in the bidder's administrative appeal, the bidder was not entitled to N.Y. C.P.L.R. art. 78 relief. Matter of Matter of Solutions Economics, LLC v Long Is. Power Auth., 97 A.D.3d 593, 948 N.Y.S.2d 100, 2012 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5290 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't), app. denied, 20 N.Y.3d 851, 956 N.Y.S.2d 484, 980 N.E.2d 534, 2012 N.Y. LEXIS 3466 (N.Y. 2012).

138. Attorney fees as reviewable on appeal

In Article 78 proceeding, award of attorneys' fees under CLS Pub O § 89(4)(c) is within sound discretion of trial court and determination should not be disturbed on appeal unless abuse of discretion is shown. In Article 78 proceeding to obtain various documents from Department of Correctional Services which was dismissed as moot after all documents were released, court did not abuse its discretion in denying award of attorneys' fees to petitioner under CLS Pub O § 89(4)(c) where evidence demonstrated that department commenced work on petitioner's complex request for documents on day it was received and was unable to sooner complete task because of difficulty in locating and assembling extensive and complex records. Friedland v Maloney, 148 A.D.2d 814, 538 N.Y.S.2d 650, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2376 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1989).

Although a Freedom of Information Law records requester substantially prevailed in a proceeding to obtain unredacted records of a village's deer management program, he was not entitled to an award of counsel fees and costs because the redactions were made in good faith. Matter of Laveck v Village Bd. of Trustees of the Vil. of Lansing, 145 A.D.3d 1168, 42 N.Y.S.3d 460, 2016 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7991 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2016).

Trial court erred in denying the landowners' request for counsel fees and costs because the Department of Environmental Conservation failed to respond to their appeal until after the commencement of the action/proceeding, which constituted a constructive denial that went against the purpose of the Freedom of Information Law. Matter of 101CO, LLC v New York State Dept. of Envtl. Conservation, 169 A.D.3d 1307, 95 N.Y.S.3d 404, 2019 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1471 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2019).

Trial court properly denied a billing consultant's request for an award of counsel fees under Public Officers Law § 89(4)(c) because, while the response by the public service commission (PSC) to the consultant's administrative appeal—from the denial of its request under the Freedom of Information Law—was untimely and the consultant prevailed when the requested records were turned over to it, the PSC reasonably believed the case file to be exempt from disclosure when they denied the consultant access to it. Matter of Utility Rate Analysis Consultants (URAC) Corp. v Public Serv. Commn. of The State of N.Y., 171 A.D.3d 1279, 97 N.Y.S.3d 757, 2019 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2600 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2019).

Trial court properly granted the petitioners' request for attorney's fees and litigation costs because a city failed to respond to their requests for certain records pursuant to the Freedom of Information Law (FOIL), the petitioners "substantially prevailed" in the proceeding since the city failed to respond to the FOIL request within five business days of receiving it, failed to respond to the FOIL appeal within 10 business days of receiving it, and despite the city's assertion that it delegated its responsibility to respond to the request to a development agency, the petitioners also sent a FOIL request to the agency, and there was no indication in its responses that it was responding on behalf of the city. Matter of LTTR Home Care, LLC v City of Mount Vernon, 179 A.D.3d 798, 116 N.Y.S.3d 679, 2020 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 278 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2020).

Trial court abused its discretion in declining to include the counsel fees and costs arising from the prior appeal because the portion of the prior appeal relating to petitioners' Freedom of Information Law claim stemmed from the very kinds of unreasonable delays and denials of access which the counsel fee provision sought to deter. Matter of 101CO, LLC v New York State Dept. of Envtl. Conservation, 2020 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8147 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2020).

Reasonable attorney's fees and litigation costs were not warranted to a FOIL records requester because the requester was not the prevailing party in the proceeding; the undisclosed records were within various statutory exemptions. Prall v New York City Dept. of Corr., 971 N.Y.S.2d 821, 40 Misc. 3d 940, 2013 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2405 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 2013), aff'd, 129 A.D.3d 734, 10 N.Y.S.3d 332, 2015 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4584 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2015).

Freedom of Information Law permits court to award reasonable attorney fees to member of public in certain circumstances where such person successfully challenges denial of access to records. Comm Pub Acc Rec FOIL-Ad Op 2540.

Inmate was not entitled to attorneys' fees in his Freedom of Information action because the Department of Corrections and Community Supervision had a reasonable basis for denying access given the novelty of the video recording issue. Matter of Green v Annucci, 59 Misc. 3d 452, 70 N.Y.S.3d 746, 2017 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 5345 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 2017).

139. Burden of proof, generally

A person claiming an exception to disclosure under the Freedom of Information Law has the burden of proving entitlement to the exception (Pub O § 89(5)(e)); hence, in an Article 78 proceeding to review the denial of access to certain records of a county police department pertaining to the absences of a certain detective, the usual standard of review in Article 78 proceeding that the agency's determination will not be set aside unless arbitrary, capricious or without rational basis was not applicable, and detective bore the burden of proving entitlement to any exception. Although the information sought did not constitute a personnel record within the meaning of Civ R § 50-a, which exempts such records from disclosure as to police officers, the legislative intent in enacting that statute was for the narrow purpose of preventing time-consuming and vexatious investigation into irrelevant collateral matters in a civil or criminal action, not to create a blanket exemption from disclosure of personnel records of police officers, and thus the exemption was inapplicable. Capital Newspapers Div. of Hearst Corp. v Burns, 109 A.D.2d 92, 490 N.Y.S.2d 651, 1985 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 56643 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1985), aff'd, 67 N.Y.2d 562, 505 N.Y.S.2d 576, 496 N.E.2d 665, 1986 N.Y. LEXIS 19312 (N.Y. 1986).

Petitioner's Article 78 petition, challenging denial of his request under Freedom of Information Law (CLS Pub O Art 6; FOIL) for copies of memo book entries made by officers who investigated armed robberies for which he was convicted, was improperly dismissed based on ground that hearing agency's determination was neither arbitrary nor capricious, since this standard was not applicable to issue of whether particular document was exempt from disclosure under FOIL, and respondent did not prove entitlement to exception by merely asserting that entries fell within exemption for records which, if disclosed, would identify confidential source or disclose confidential information. Laureano v Grimes, 179 A.D.2d 602, 579 N.Y.S.2d 357, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 911 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1992).

In Article 78 proceeding to review denial of petitioner's Freedom of Information law requests for physician identifier information contained in Statewide Planning and Research Cooperative System, issues related to privacy interests of physicians could not be used by court to justify agency's determination, where Department of Health had denied petitioner's requests solely on basis of privacy interests of patients, without comment on need to protect privacy of physicians. New York Times Co. v New York State Dep't of Health, 173 Misc. 2d 310, 660 N.Y.S.2d 810, 1997 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 248 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1997), aff'd, 243 A.D.2d 157, 674 N.Y.S.2d 826, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7774 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1998).

Court denied Article 78 petition to require respondent district attorney's office to turn over records relating to petitioner's arrest and indictment 10 years earlier pursuant to Freedom of Information Law, where respondent provided sufficiently detailed basis to show that it conducted diligent search for requested records and was unable to find them, and petitioner did not offer factual basis for his claim otherwise. Anzalone v Bonanno, 176 Misc. 2d 159, 670 N.Y.S.2d 1013, 1998 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 95 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1998).

When a resident of middle-income housing sought disclosure of apartment waiting lists by a city housing department, the department had the burden under N.Y. Pub. Off. Law § 89(4)(b) of proving that the records were statutorily exempt from disclosure. Accordingly, the more restrictive standards of review under an ordinary N.Y. C.P.L.R. art. 78 proceeding, under which the discretion of an administrative body was to be deferred to, did not apply. Matter of Thomas v City of N.Y. Dept. of Hous. Preserv. & Dev., 817 N.Y.S.2d 864, 12 Misc. 3d 547, 235 N.Y.L.J. 81, 2006 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 783 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 2006).

140. —In camera inspection of documents

In camera inspection of records alleged to be exempt from disclosure should be employed only in rare case where agency resisting disclosure, after providing detailed description of nature of material sought, purpose for which it was produced or used, and similar relevant factors, fails to sustain burden of showing that specific statutory exemption applies or that specific document is not record of agency. Capital Newspapers, Div. of Hearst Corp. v Whalen, 113 A.D.2d 217, 495 N.Y.S.2d 979, 12, 1985 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 52356 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1985), rev'd, 69 N.Y.2d 246, 513 N.Y.S.2d 367, 505 N.E.2d 932, 1987 N.Y. LEXIS 15362 (N.Y. 1987),.

On review of a respondent's denial of petitioners' Freedom of Information Law (FOIL) requests, the lower court erred in conducting an in camera inspection of the withheld documents and determining in the first instance that the documents were statutorily protected from disclosure; because the record demonstrated that additional documents responsive to petitioners' FOIL requests existed and were not yet produced or examined by respondent's FOIL Appeals Officer, the case was remitted to the lower court to direct respondent to respond to petitioners' FOIL requests by reviewing the additional subject documents and to determine in the first instance whether they were statutorily exempted from disclosure Matter of Union Carbide Corp. v New York State Dept. of Envtl. Conservation, 2020 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7648 (December 10, 2020).

A portion of defendant police officer's personnel file, specifically those records used to evaluate performance toward continued employment or promotion, may be made available to the District Attorney upon a clear showing of facts sufficient to warrant an in camera inspection by the Judge; after such inspection, only the relevant and material portion shall be made available to the requesting party. People v Zanders, 95 Misc. 2d 82, 407 N.Y.S.2d 410, 1978 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2385 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1978).

In Article 78 proceeding, court would grant news organization's Freedom of Information Law request for access to all records maintained by department of social services concerning 3 children who were killed by their father unless department requested in camera inspection of purported confidential information within 7 days, where commissioner had determined that disclosure was in public interest, no specific reasons were cited for not disclosing requested documents, much information had already been released through criminal proceedings against father, and there were no surviving children whose best interests must be considered. Gannett Co. v County of Ontario, 173 Misc. 2d 304, 661 N.Y.S.2d 920, 1997 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 333 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1997).

141. Dismissal of appeal without hearing

In Article 78 proceeding to compel Nassau County District Attorney to disclose all documents in his possession relating to petitioner's arrest in Ulster County, which culminated in judgment of conviction in Ulster County Court, Nassau County Supreme Court properly dismissed proceeding without hearing where assistant district attorney of Nassau County submitted affirmation demonstrating that his office had searched for and was not in possession of any such information, and petitioner failed to articulate any factual basis for his claim to contrary. Ahlers v Dillon, 143 A.D.2d 225, 532 N.Y.S.2d 22, 1988 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8737 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1988).

142. Exhaustion of administrative remedies, generally

Court properly dismissed Article 78 proceeding to compel police department to produce certain information pertaining to petitioner's arrest, where department had answered petitioner's Freedom of Information Law request with its own request for additional pedigree information needed to process request, petitioner claimed that he sent pedigree information in letter which department claimed it never received, and petitioner failed to exhaust his administrative remedies by appealing pursuant to CLS Pub O § 89(4)(a). Sanders v Bratton, 258 A.D.2d 422, 685 N.Y.S.2d 722, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1847 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1999).

Petition to compel production of documents under Freedom of Information Law request was properly dismissed for failure to exhaust administrative remedies where petitioner's administrative appeal respecting requested records alleged to have been improperly withheld had not yet been determined. Tellier v New York City Police Dep't, 267 A.D.2d 9, 698 N.Y.S.2d 490, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12392 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1999).

Respondents' failure to advise inmate of need to appeal under 9 NYCRR § 8008.8 did not preclude dismissal of inmate's Article 78 petition to review respondents' alleged denial of disclosure request under Freedom of Information Law, for failure to exhaust administrative remedies. Dickman v Trietley, 268 A.D.2d 914, 702 N.Y.S.2d 449, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 836 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2000).

Trial court erred in denying an owner's petition to compel a village to disclose certain records pursuant to the Freedom of Information Law and in dismissing the proceeding because, while the vast majority of the material was responsive to the owner's request, the court's requirement of exhaustion was excused since the village's denial letter did not inform the owner that further administrative review of the determination was available. Matter of Lepper v Village of Babylon, 2021 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 196 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2021).

Bank (petitioner), which was target of hostile takeover by second bank, failed to exhaust its administrative remedies and thus could not maintain proceeding seeking access to all confidential information submitted to State Banking Board by "hostile" bank in its takeover offer, since banking board had previously denied petitioner's request for information and petitioner failed to appeal that determination to Superintendent of Banks within 7 days as required by CLS Pub O § 89; in view of fact that any extension of time for petitioner to appeal denial of its request would be act directly prejudicing or weakening position of takeover bank, superintendent could not unilaterally extend time set forth in statute. Irving Bank Corp. v Considine, 138 Misc. 2d 849, 525 N.Y.S.2d 770, 1988 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 105 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1988).

Court denied Freedom of Information Law (FOIL) request by defendant who intended to offer "battered women's syndrome" defense, where defendant requested all material in district attorney's possession relating to her present case and her prior arrests or bad acts, but she failed to make written request or exhaust administrative remedies by appealing within 30 days of denial of her request; furthermore, documents turned over to defense counsel as part of voluntary disclosure could not be obtained under FOIL, and criminal records were unavailable under FOIL. People v Seeley, 179 Misc. 2d 42, 683 N.Y.S.2d 795, 1998 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 590 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1998).

Inmate was not permitted under Fed. R. Civ. P. 15(d) to add a supplemental claim against a records coordinator for failing to provide records requested by the inmate because there was no basis for the inmate's contention that the records coordinator's act of writing the incorrect year of the log book that the inmate sought was done in retaliation against the inmate for filing a civil rights action against other prison officials. Although the inmate did not alleged that he attempted to appeal the denial of his document request under N.Y. Pub. Off. Law § 89(4), the inmate's failure to comply with the exhaustion requirement of 42 U.S.C.S. § 1997e(a) of the Prison Litigation Reform Act was not the basis for the denial of the inmate's motion to supplement because exhaustion was an affirmative defense and there were some exceptions to the exhaustion requirement. Harnett v Barr, 538 F. Supp. 2d 511, 2008 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 19236 (N.D.N.Y. 2008).

143. —Exhaustion requirement satisfied

Newspaper's administrative remedies were exhausted when the city constructively denied its timely internal appeal of the denial of their Freedom of Information request for the crime incident database by failing to respond to the appeal within the statutorily mandated 10-day period of N.Y. Pub. Off. Law § 89(4)(a); the newspaper then exercised its statutory remedy by bringing a proceeding for review of the denial under N.Y. C.P.L.R. art. 78, and, after learning of its existence, narrowed their request to a database, which contained 12 of the 16 data fields the newspaper had originally requested. Even if the request for the database was deemed a new request, certain exceptions existed by which a petitioner could have bypassed the available administrative remedies, such as where the administrative remedies would either have been futile or caused irreparable injury. Matter of New York Times Co. v City of N.Y. Police Dept., 103 A.D.3d 405, 959 N.Y.S.2d 171, 2013 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 689 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't), app. denied, 22 N.Y.3d 854, 977 N.Y.S.2d 183, 999 N.E.2d 548, 2013 N.Y. LEXIS 2941 (N.Y. 2013).

Trial court incorrectly held that the futility exception to the exhaustion of administrative remedies doctrine does not apply because the Freedom of Information Law (FOIL) established an exclusive remedy; FOIL did not contain an express provision that judicial review of a final administrative determination was a party's "exclusive remedy" for an allegedly erroneous administrative rejection of a request for information under the statute, and, accordingly, in the context of FOIL, a futility exception existed to the judicially-created rule that administrative remedies had to be exhausted. Since the newspaper established that exhaustion of administrative remedies concerning their request for the database would have been futile, the failure to exhaust administrative remedies did not bar the petition to require production of the database pursuant to FOIL. Matter of New York Times Co. v City of N.Y. Police Dept., 103 A.D.3d 405, 959 N.Y.S.2d 171, 2013 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 689 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't), app. denied, 22 N.Y.3d 854, 977 N.Y.S.2d 183, 999 N.E.2d 548, 2013 N.Y. LEXIS 2941 (N.Y. 2013).

Newspaper properly exhausted its administrative remedies prior to commencing Article 78 proceeding against city, city registrar, state, and Commissioner of Health seeking disclosure of death certificate under Freedom of Information Law, even though newspaper did not pursue administrative review within Department of Health (which has supervisory powers over city registrars), where certificate was in possession and control of city and registrar, newspaper appealed registrar's adverse determination to city common council, and newspaper then commenced proceeding against "governing body of the entity" (city and registrar) as authorized by CLS Pub O § 89. Tri-State Pub. Co., Div. of Ottaway Newspapers, Inc. v Port Jervis, 138 Misc. 2d 147, 523 N.Y.S.2d 954, 1988 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 4 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1988).

144. Jurisdictional matters

Request for disclosure of information by Office of Professional Discipline of Education Department was not properly before court where there was no evidence that petitioner either applied, in accordance with department's regulations, to department's records access officer for requested information or appealed to commissioner of department from denial of information by administrative officer of department. Murphy v New York State Education Dep't, Office of Professional Discipline, 148 A.D.2d 160, 543 N.Y.S.2d 70, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8166 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1989).

Supreme Court had jurisdiction to consider newspaper's application for order compelling social service agency to disclose certain records regarding agency actions in child abuse case, notwithstanding newspaper's failure either to make formal application to agency itself for ruling pursuant to CLS Pub O

§ 89(3) and (4)(a) or to appeal agency's first decision to deny disclosure, since, based on agency's public statements that disclosure would not be granted, such administrative procedure would be futile. New York News, Inc. v Grinker, 142 Misc. 2d 325, 537 N.Y.S.2d 770, 1989 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 47 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1989).

Federal court lacked subject matter jurisdiction to decide whether officer violated Freedom of Information Law. Schuloff v Fields, 950 F. Supp. 66, 1997 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 339 (E.D.N.Y. 1997), aff'd, 159 F.3d 1348, 1998 U.S. App. LEXIS 20187 (2d Cir. N.Y. 1998).

In dismissing an appeal, brought on behalf of employees of the school district, which sought an order prohibiting the board of education from allowing one of its board members to take home an employee list which included names, addresses, job titles and job descriptions of all employees of the district, it was pointed out that Part 84 of the Regulations which restricts the right of access by school board members relates to the examination of school employees "personnel records." Because the board member in question was not seeking to review personnel records, the procedures set forth in Part 84 did not apply. As to violations of Freedom of Information Law, § 310, the appropriate forum for challenging alleged violations of the Freedom of Information Law is the Supreme Court of the State of New York, not an appeal to the Commissioner of Education. Appeal of Krasinski (1990) Op Comr Educ No 12323.

An appeal to the Commissioner of Education is not the proper forum for addressing claims relating to violations of the Freedom of Information Law. The appropriate forum for challenging alleged violations of the Freedom of Information Law is the Supreme Court of the State of New York, and not in an appeal before the Commissioner of Education. Appeal Alexandreena D, 1990 Op Comr Educ No 12433.

145. Mootness; "academic" nature of appeal

Article 78 proceeding seeking to compel police department to comply with Freedom of Information Law (FOIL) request for "serial numbers" or "lot numbers" of photographs introduced into evidence at petitioner's criminal trial was dismissed as academic, where petitioner conceded that he received "most" requested documents by means of another contemporaneous FOIL request to district attorney's office. Fappiano v N.Y. City Police Dep't, 95 N.Y.2d 738, 724 N.Y.S.2d 685, 747 N.E.2d 1286, 2001 N.Y. LEXIS 573 (N.Y. 2001).

Law graduate's Article 78 proceeding to review state board of law examiners' refusal to release bar exam test scores under Freedom of Information Law would be dismissed as moot since examiners had destroyed his exam by time he requested scores (11 months after results were announced), and case did not fall within traditional exception permitting review of important and recurring issues which might otherwise might be unreviewable; bar exam affected very narrow segment of population, issue was not of burning importance to law candidates, and in any event bar exam results are confidential under CLS Jud § 90(10). Duban v State Bd. of Law Examiners, 157 A.D.2d 946, 550 N.Y.S.2d 207, 1990 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 429 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), app. dismissed, 75 N.Y.2d 945, 555 N.Y.S.2d 689, 554 N.E.2d 1277, 1990 N.Y. LEXIS 738 (N.Y. 1990).

Police department's provision of documents regarding indictment pursuant to Freedom of Information Law request by inmate shortly after inmate filed Article 78 petition rendered moot that portion of petition which sought documents provided. Newton v Police Dep't of New York, 183 A.D.2d 621, 585 N.Y.S.2d 5, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7562 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1992).

Appeal from Supreme Court's dismissal of petition seeking to compel district attorney to grant access to certain document was not rendered academic by letter to petitioner from representative of district attorney, stating that his file had been found and offering access to 48 documents in file conditioned on payment of appropriate fee, since documents offered did not include report sought by petitioner. Key v Hynes, 205 A.D.2d 779, 613 N.Y.S.2d 926, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6562 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1994), overruled in part, Rattley v N.Y. City Police Dep't, 96 N.Y.2d 873, 730 N.Y.S.2d 768, 756 N.E.2d 56, 2001 N.Y. LEXIS 1868 (N.Y. 2001).

Article 78 proceeding, commenced after district attorney failed to respond to petitioner's mishandled Freedom of Information Law request, was rendered moot when, prior to determination of proceeding, district attorney denied document request and acknowledged petitioner's right to take administrative appeal. Johnson v Morgenthau, 214 A.D.2d 348, 625 N.Y.S.2d 21, 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3716 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1995).

Appeal from judgment denying petition to compel respondent to disclose certain documents under Freedom of Information Law (CLS Pub O § 84 et seq.) was academic where respondent turned over documents demanded, and sufficiency of that production was determined in subsequent proceeding by judgment from which no appeal was taken. Majid v Brown, 218 A.D.2d 802, 631 N.Y.S.2d 253, 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8957 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1995).

Proceeding to compel compliance with petitioner's Freedom of Information Law request was moot where respondent had complied with request by providing petitioner with certain documents. Almodovar v Altschuller, 232 A.D.2d 700, 647 N.Y.S.2d 1010, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10023 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1996).

Petitioner's request to compel town to produce certain records which supported tentative real property assessment was moot where there was no evidence that assessor's initial response lacked any documents to which petitioner was entitled, and petitioner's subsequent requests related to tentative assessment that was admittedly based on clerical error, which error had been corrected. Corvetti v Town of Lake Pleasant, 239 A.D.2d 841, 657 N.Y.S.2d 536, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5564 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1997).

Trial court correctly determined that a publisher's petition, claiming constructive denial of requests by the Thruway Authority under the Freedom of Information Law, was moot because the Authority ultimately disclosed 1,320 pages of documents during the pendency of the special proceeding. Matter of Gannett Satellite Info. Network, LLC v New York State Thruway Auth., 181 A.D.3d 1072, 120 N.Y.S.3d 224, 2020 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1748 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2020).

146. Remand

When an inmate appealed the state police denial of his freedom of information request for information related to his convictions, and said the state police had not provided the trial court reviewing the denial with all information responsive to his request, the failure of the state police to certify, under N.Y. Pub. Off. Law § 89(3), that it did not have a requested record or that a record could not be located after a diligent search, precluded the appellate court from finding that all responsive information had been provided and mandated a remand to the trial court to determine if there were any responsive documents which had not been provided to the trial court. De Fabritis v McMahon, 301 A.D.2d 892, 754 N.Y.S.2d 117, 2003 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 348 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2003).

147. Res judicata

Doctrine of res judicata barred Article 78 proceeding to review determination denying petitioner access to records requested under Freedom of Information Law (FOIL) where same records were subject of petitioner's prior FOIL requests, and Supreme Court's first disposition denying such requests involved same parties and was not appealed by petitioner. Ferrara v Superintendent, N.Y. State Police, 235 A.D.2d 874, 652 N.Y.S.2d 432, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 525 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), app. dismissed, app. denied, 90 N.Y.2d 829, 660 N.Y.S.2d 551, 683 N.E.2d 16, 1997 N.Y. LEXIS 1557 (N.Y. 1997).

148. Standing; parties

In an Article 78 proceeding brought by the Adirondack Park Local Government Review Board to compel the production of papers from the Adirondack Park Agency, the action would be dismissed where the Board lacked the capacity to sue absent express authority to sue, absent any necessity to sue in order to carry out the Board's powers. In re Adirondack Park Local Government Review Bd., 89 A.D.2d 642, 453 N.Y.S.2d 78, 1982 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 17754 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1982).

Petitioner lacked standing to contest local rule (43 RCNY 1-05) which appeared to conflict with CLS Pub O § 89(3) by providing that approximate date of agency's Freedom of Information Law determination should not exceed 10 business days, where respondent did not rely on local rule when it acknowledged petitioner's request with advice that determination would be reached in approximately 120 days, and it was unclear why petitioner believed himself injured by local rule and sought its nullification. O'Donnell v Donadio, 259 A.D.2d 251, 688 N.Y.S.2d 117, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2316 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1999), app. denied, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5569 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't May 6, 1999), app. dismissed, 93 N.Y.2d 1032, 697 N.Y.S.2d 554, 719 N.E.2d 914, 1999 N.Y. LEXIS 2839 (N.Y. 1999).

While the city of Newark, New Jersey had standing to challenge the denial of a request for documents under the New York Freedom of Information Law (FOIL), N.Y. Pub. Off. Law § 84 et seq., the city's mayor and the members of the city's municipal council, in their individual and official capacities, lacked standing to maintain the proceeding because the underlying FOIL requests were not made on their behalf. City of Newark v Law Dep't of N.Y., 305 A.D.2d 28, 760 N.Y.S.2d 431, 2003 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5568 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2003).

Former New York Attorney General (former AG) was a necessary party to an appeal of an order compelling the New York State Attorney General's Office (AG's Office) to gain access to the former AG's private email account to determine whether the documents contained therein should be disclosed under the New York State Freedom of Information Law (FOIL); resolution of the FOIL demand directly impacted the personal property of the former AG, now a private citizen who was not before the court, whose significant private rights and property could not be protected by the AG's Office, which did not represent his private interests. Matter of Smith v New York State Off. of the Attorney Gen., 110 A.D.3d 1201, 973 N.Y.S.2d 404, 2013 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6725 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2013).

Nothing in the Indian Gaming Regulatory Act, 25 U.S.C.S. § 2701 et seq., or in the state-tribe compact, prevented the release under New York's Freedom of Information Law, N.Y. Pub. Off. Law §§ 84-90, of the tribe's submissions of daily inspection reports and patron complaints by New York's State Racing and Wagering Board; the tribe was not a necessary party to the action where it had voluntarily declined to participate. Herald Co. v Feurstein, 779 N.Y.S.2d 333, 3 Misc. 3d 885, 2004 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 191 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 2004).

149. Statute of limitations

Article 78 proceeding was properly dismissed as time-barred where, on respondents' failure to address within 10 days petitioner's administrative appeal from denial of his request for information under Freedom of Information Law, petitioner was deemed, in accordance with CLS Pub O § 89(4)(a), to have exhausted his administrative remedies, thereby enabling him to seek judicial review of that denial and commencing 4-month limitation period in CLS CPLR § 217 for Article 78 proceeding. Van Steenburg v Thomas, 242 A.D.2d 802, 661 N.Y.S.2d 317, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8673 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), app. denied, 91 N.Y.2d 803, 667 N.Y.S.2d 682, 690 N.E.2d 491, 1997 N.Y. LEXIS 4072 (N.Y. 1997).

150. Vacating default judgment

In proceeding to review New York City Law Department's lack of response to petitioner's Freedom of Information Law requests, court should have granted Department's motion to vacate default judgment entered against it after its request for further adjournment was denied since there was existing departmental backlog of unprocessed information requests, and Department's position that it had absolute defense as to much of material sought was correct when its application for adjournment was made. Murray v Matusiak, 247 A.D.2d 303, 669 N.Y.S.2d 278, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1587 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1998).

Pub. Off. Law. § 89(4)(b) and N.Y. C.P.L.R. art. 78 were sufficient to protect any property interest that the inmate had in the receipt of FOIL documents. Blount v Brown, 2010 U.S. Dist. I. Generally

A. In General

i. Generally

1. In general

Freedom of Information Law is not statute that requires agency officials to answer questions or that permits member of public to cross-examine agency officials. Committee on Open Government FOIL-AO-3344.

Records access officer is responsible for assuring that agency personnel assist requestor in identifying records. Committee on Open Government FOIL-AO-3353.

Freedom of Information Law does not require that records falling within exemptions from disclosure must be withheld, and only instances in which agency would be prohibited from disclosing records would involve situations in which statutes specifically provide such direction. Committee on Open Government FOIL-AO-3354.

Freedom of Information Law does not require agency to provide information or answer questions, but only to make existing records available upon request where such records do not fall under one or more of grounds for denial. 1986 Committee on Open Government FOIL-AO-4187.

Records containing selection procedures should be available under Freedom of Information Law, for they represent policy of agency; denial occurring under Freedom of Information Law pertains to situation in which existing records are withheld, such that although applicant may not obtain information, there is no denial, if information sought does not exist in form of record. 1986 Committee on Open Government FOIL-AO-4200.

Shortage of manpower necessary to comply with request under Freedom of Information Law is indefensible, for denial on that basis would thwart very purpose of law. 1986 Committee on Open Government FOIL-AO-4255.

Request for records should be directed to records access officer of agency or agencies that would maintain records which are requested; records sought should be reasonably described in sufficient detail so agency officials can locate them; all records of agency are available, except to extent that records or portions thereof fall within CLS Pub O § 87(2)(a) through (i). Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4579.

When records are accessible under Freedom of Information Law, they should be made available to any person, without regard to status or interests. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4585.

Although agency must permit applicant to request records during regular business hours, it is not required to permit inspection during entire course of agency's regular business hours. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4777.

Documents concerning business performed for village would be "records" of village subject to Freedom of Information Law; fact that records are kept in location other than municipal building should not affect village's legal custody of records. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4783.

To extent that records sought consist of statistical or factual tabulations of or relating to other public records, such as budget bill or administrative staff manual, they are accessible under Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4893.

Although Freedom of Information Law generally governs rights of access to records, other statutes pertain specifically to birth, death, and marriage records; problem relative to those statutes is that rights of access are generally conditioned upon showing that request is made for judicial or other "proper purposes". Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4929.

Although Freedom of Information Law provides substantial rights of access, it deals generally with access to government records; when other statutes deal with specific records, those statutes prevail over general statute, such as Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4968.

Whether document in possession of agency is signed or unsigned, undated or characterized as unofficial, it nonetheless falls within coverage of Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8378.

If records are available pursuant to provision of law other than Freedom of Information Law, nothing in Freedom of Information Law can be asserted to withhold those records. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9363.

Claim or promise of confidentiality is irrelevant to analysis of rights of access to records. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12605.

2. Advisory opinions; consultants, generally

3. —Committee on Open Government/Public Access to Records

Committee on Open Government is authorized to render advisory opinions on issues arising under Freedom of Information

Law; committee does not have authority to enforce compliance with law or to obtain records from other agencies in response to request; request for records should be directed to records access officer of agency maintaining record sought; however, Freedom of Information Law does not require agency to create or prepare record in response to request. Comm On Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4591.

Committee on Open Government is authorized to render advice on issues concerning Freedom of Information Law; it is not generally responsibility of Committee to direct individuals to agencies that maintain records they seek. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4878.

Neither Committee on Open Government nor any other state agency has general authority to compel compliance with Freedom of Information Law; usual vehicle for challenging agency's denial of access to records or perhaps validity of its regulations is proceeding brought under Article 78 of Civil Practice Law and Rules. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7637.

Function of Committee on Open Government in providing opinions is purely advisory, and Committee has no authority to review records in camera or otherwise. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7917.

While government agencies are not required to heed opinions rendered by Committee on Public Access to Records, they cannot justifiably ignore direction given by Court of Appeals. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12302.

Committee on Open Government will not render advice on issues arising under Freedom of Information Law that are currently in litigation; under Freedom of Information Law, written request for records should be directed to records access officer of agency maintaining records. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4578.

Advisory opinion, issued by Committee on Open Government, may be requested prior to commencement of litigation; however, there is no requirement that applicant for records seek advisory opinion. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4705.

There is nothing in Freedom of Information Law that precludes representative of one agency from conferring with or seeking advice of representative of another agency; consequently, if city appeals officer rendered determination after seeking advice of district attorney, there would not be any impropriety. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4800.

Committee on Open Government is authorized to render advice on issues concerning New York Freedom of Information Law; Committee is not authorized to render advice with respect to other state or federal statutes; Freedom of Information Law pertains to rights of access to records maintained by units of state and local government; on other hand, federal statute, Freedom of Information Law pertains generally to records maintained by federal agencies such as Social Security Administration. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4864.

Management study report prepared by consultant for town may be withheld or must be disclosed, pursuant to Freedom of Information Law, based on same standard as if report were prepared by agency staff. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2211.

4. Attorney matters, generally

5. —Attorney fees

Reimbursement under CLS Pub O § 89(4)(c) is limited to court costs and attorney's fees, and any such award may be conferred only when each of 3 conditions is met: (1) that person denied access has substantially prevailed, (2) that agency had no reasonable basis for denying access, and (3) that records are of clearly significant interest to general public; there is no mention of damages in Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12690.

6. Burden of proof

Even though portion or portions of records may be justifiably withheld from disclosure, that does not give agency authority to withhold entire record; single record may be both available or deniable in part requiring agency officials to review records sought in their entirety to determine which portions may justifiably be withheld; when records are denied under law, burden of proof in such proceeding is on agency. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4706.

7. Copying records, generally

8. —Certification of copies

Certification made under FOIL merely involves assertion that copy made is true copy; it is not equivalent of legal certification in which assertion is made that contents of copy are correct and accurate. Comm On Open Gov't FOIL-AO-3882.

When certification is requested with respect to voluminous number of records, single certification, asserted by means of cover letter, for example, would be appropriate and each copy of such records need not be stamped or certified separately. Comm On Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4534.

Mere characterization of record as "intra-agency material" would not serve to enable agency to withhold record in its entirety because portions containing statistical or factual information, instructions to staff that affect public, or final agency policy or determination must be made available; even though record or portions of record may be withheld under Freedom of Information Law, there is no requirement that record must be withheld, even if basis for denial can be asserted; certification made under Freedom of Information Law would not pertain to validity of contents of record, but rather would involve assertion that copy provided is true copy. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4666.

When records cannot be found, applicant may request that agency certify that it does not have possession of such record or that such records cannot be found after diligent search. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4753.

Freedom of Information Law requires that each agency make available for public inspection and copying all records, except those records or portions thereof that fall within grounds for denial, as such, applicant may use his or her photocopy machine to prepare copies of town records. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4759.

If record is accessible under Freedom of Information Law, it is available for both inspection and copying; further, when there has been intentional public disclosure of record, it is unlikely that there would be any basis for denial of subsequent requests for inspection or copying of that record; since police department's patrol guide is available for review at certain public location, copies of that record should be available from agency that maintains it. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4817.

Since agency is generally obliged to maintain custody and control of its records, applicant may be required to review records in presence of official of agency; since agency must grant or deny access to records within prescribed periods of time, as long as records are made available for inspection or copying within those time periods, agency could wait until official of agency could be present; however, if agency official cannot be present during course of time period, access cannot be delayed or denied until that person becomes available. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4869.

Freedom of Information Law requires that each agency shall make available for public inspection and copying all records, except those records or portions thereof that fall within one or more grounds for denial; as such, applicant for records may use his or her photocopy machine to prepare copies of town records. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4936.

Personal Privacy Protection Law requires that state agencies make records available for inspection and copying to data subject, person to whom records pertain; however rights granted by Law do not apply to public safety agency records; accessible records are available for inspection and copying; therefore, if record is accessible, it may be inspected and if, after inspection copies are needed, applicant may be reported to pay fee for copying. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4961.

Freedom of Information Law does not require that agency transfer records from location where record is available for inspection and copying to another location. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4984.

Prohibition of use of one's own digital camera to copy records accessible under Freedom of Information Law (FOIL) would be unreasonable and inconsistent with FOIL, and no fee may be charged when one's own camera is used; unlike bringing one's own photocopier, there would be no use of agency's space or electricity, and there would be no distinction in terms of agency's efforts in retrieving records between more traditional inspection of records and use of camera. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-16504.

9. Correction of records

Although Freedom of Information Law pertains to records of agency, that statute deals with the rights of access to records; nothing in Freedom of Information Law deals specifically with right to amend or correct records. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4880.

Freedom of Information Law did not provides basis for attempting to remove allegedly false information from record in possession of New York City agency. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12065.

10. Effect of federal laws

Audits of municipalities are generally available under Freedom of Information Law which requires disclosure of external audits, including, but not limited to, audits performed by comptroller and federal government; agency must appoint records access officers who has duty of coordinating agency's response for requests for records made under Freedom of Information Law; as such, requests for records should generally be directed to records access officer of agency that maintains records requested. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4721.

Freedom of Information Law pertains to records maintained by local and state government, except judiciary and state legislature; as such, Law does not apply to courts or to federal agencies, such as drug enforcement agency; records of federal agencies are generally subject to rights of access in accordance with Freedom of Information Act, federal statute; records of court proceedings are likely maintained by court where proceeding took place and request should be directed to clerk of court. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4778.

Freedom of Information Law is generally applicable to records maintained by entities of state and local government in New York, including state agencies, police departments, office of governor and offices of mayors; different statute, federal Freedom of Information Act, applies to records maintained by federal agencies; further, each state has enacted its own version of access law; private entities, such as private corporations or law firms, are not agencies subject to Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4809.

Committee on Open Government is authorized to render advice on issues concerning New York Freedom of Information Law; Committee is not authorized to render advice with respect to other state or federal statutes; Freedom of Information Law pertains to rights of access to records maintained by units of state and local government; on other hand, federal statute, Freedom of Information Law pertains generally to records maintained by federal agencies such as Social Security Administration. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4864.

Freedom of Information Law generally pertains to records maintained by entities of state and local government in New York; it does not apply to records maintained by federal agencies and, therefore, request for federal records should be directed to federal agency that maintains record sought. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4941.

11. Effect of New York Code of Rules and Regulations (NYCRR)

Right of access to rent registration records are governed not by Freedom of Information Law, but rather by Emergency Tenant Protection Act, the New York City Administrative Code and Division of Housing and Community Renewal. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4738.

Insofar as 8 NYCRR Part 84, as promulgated by Commissioner of Education, is more restrictive than Freedom of Information Law, it is out of date and void. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9443.

Under 21 NYCRR Part 1401, records access officer has duty of coordinating agency's response to requests under Freedom of Information Law, and request should ordinarily be directed to that person. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12438.

12. Jurisdiction matters, generally

13. —Subpoenas

Single record or report may be both accessible and deniable in part under Freedom of Information Law; therefore, agency has obligation to review records sought, in their entirety, to determine which portions, if any, may be justifiably withheld; in context of general investigation, names or other identifying details may be deleted to protect against unwarranted invasion of personal privacy so that all other aspects of documents might be made available. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4640.

Committee on Open Government (COOG) has neither jurisdiction nor resources to "investigate" practices of agencies; similarly, COOG is not empowered to compel agency to comply with law or grant or deny access to records. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12483.

14. Mailing of records

So long as applicant for records is prepared to pay requisite fees for photocopying and postage, agency must mail records to applicant; since number of records, size of report or amount of postage often cannot be known in advance, agency could not require that envelope accompany request. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4654.

ii. Applicability

15. In general

Records of complaints made against applicant and his business directed to town building department are subject to Freedom of Information application after deletion of information identifying complainant, and such complaints cannot be characterized as record compiled for law enforcement purposes. 1986 Committee on Open Government FOIL-AO-4235.

All records of agency are available, except to extent that records or portions thereof fall within one or more of grounds for denial appearing in CLS Pub O § 87(2)(a) through (i); failure of agency to respond within designated time of 5 days results in denial of access that may be appealed to head of agency or whomever is designated to determine appeals, and that person or body has 10 business days from receipt of appeal to render determination; contention that agency has insufficient manpower to comply with request for information is not valid defense. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4570.

Neither Committee on Open Government nor its staff has authority to compel agency to grant or deny access to records; further, committee is not empowered to obtain records on behalf of applicant. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4611.

Since Freedom of Information Law generally applies to governmental entities, private corporation is not subject to Law; furthermore, there is no state statute that generally requires private corporations to respond to requests for records. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4615.

Records concerning convictions, suspensions or revocations of driver's license, or accidents, other than those pertaining to alcohol related offenses are kept by motor vehicles department and are purged after 4 years; as such, records concerning violations, convictions or accidents would no longer exist after 4 years; records containing alcohol related offenses are kept for 10 years; with respect to other records, marriage records are kept by town or city clerks, depending where marriage took place; records pertaining to divorce, such as certificate of disposition, can be obtained from county clerk in county in which divorce was granted. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4852.

Motor vehicle licenses, which include addresses, are accessible pursuant to Vehicle and Traffic Law from Department of Motor Vehicles; death certificates are available, unless request is not made for proper purpose, under Public Health Law which may impose significant search fees; voter registration records are available pursuant to Election Law and are kept by Board of Elections in each county. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4945.

Freedom of Information Law pertains to records of governmental entity; it does not apply to records or information maintained by private individual and in situation where private citizen contacts other private citizens using personal resources, rather than those of agency, Freedom of Information Law would not be applicable or irrelevant. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4949.

Any documentation maintained by Hudson River-Black River Regulating District constitutes agency record subject to rights of access, and District is required to disclose its records to extent required by Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7917.

Since industrial development agencies are public corporations, Montgomery County Industrial Development Agency is subject to Freedom of Information Law. Urban Development Corporation is subject to Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8551.

All records are subject to Freedom of Information Law, whether they are characterized as "official" or otherwise. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3889.

Records prepared by chair of town board are not property of that person; on contrary, they would be in legal custody of Town Clerk and would constitute records subject to rights conferred by Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3889.

Town Supervisor would have no greater right of access or control over records prepared by chair of town board than any other member of board. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3889.

16. Automobile accident reports

Insofar as witness statements are part of motor vehicle accident reports, they must be disclosed in their entirety in most instances since, under CLS Pub O § 89(6), if records are available under some other provision of law or by means of judicial interpretation, grounds for denial appearing in CLS Pub O § 87(2) cannot be asserted. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12611.

17. Courts; litigation, generally

18. —Office of Court Administration (OCA)

Definition of "agency" exclude state legislature, as well as "judiciary", but Office of Court Administration is "agency" and its records are subject to Freedom of Information Law; similarly, records of division of budget are "agency records". Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4617.

Committee on Open Government will not render advice on issues arising under Freedom of Information Law that are currently in litigation; under Freedom of Information Law, written request for records should be directed to records access officer of agency maintaining records. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4578.

Litigant has same rights of access to records under Freedom of Information Law as any member of public, notwithstanding interest in records or status as inmate. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4586.

Freedom of Information Law pertains to records maintained units of state and local government, except state legislature and judiciary; court records are not subject to rights of access under Freedom of Information Law, but are governed by Judiciary Law. Comm On Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4590.

Town Justice Court is not "agency" and therefore it is not required by Freedom of Information Law to disclose records, particularly those indicating disposition of cases; Freedom of Information Law does not apply to courts and court records. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4614.

Although Freedom of Information Law does not apply to courts or court records, other provisions of law often grant the right of access to court records. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4667.

If records sought are court records, Freedom of Information Law would not govern rights of access; however, court records may be available under other statutes which often confer broad rights of access to court records. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4679.

Freedom of Information Law is not applicable to courts or court records; further, federal Freedom of Information Act pertains only to records in possession of federal agencies; moreover, courts and court records fall outside of requirements of federal Freedom of Information Act. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4692.

While Freedom of Information Law does not apply to court records, many court records are available under other provisions of law and, as such, it is possible to make request to courts that maintains records sought. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4765.

Freedom of Information Law pertains to records maintained by local and state government, except judiciary and state legislature; as such, Law does not apply to courts or to federal agencies, such as drug enforcement agency; records of federal agencies are generally subject to rights of access in accordance with Freedom of Information Act, federal statute; records of court proceedings are likely maintained by court where proceeding took place and request should be directed to clerk of court. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4778.

Freedom of Information Law does not pertain to courts or court records; however, court records are generally available in accordance with relevant provisions of judiciary law and other statutes. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4799.

Freedom of Information Law does not pertain to courts or court records; however, court records are generally available in accordance with relevant provisions of judiciary law and other statutes; copies of felony complaints and indictments may be maintained by office of District Attorney who prosecuted case and since district attorney's office is agency subject to Freedom of Information Law, request may be submitted under Freedom of Information Law to relevant district attorney's office for such records. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4799.

Courts and court records are not subject to Freedom of Information Law; however, other provisions of law may grant broad rights of access to court records. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4862.

Freedom of Information Law does not apply to courts or court records, or to records maintained by private attorney; nevertheless, court records are often available pursuant to other provisions of law, and requests for such records should be directed to clerk of appropriate court; pre-sentence reports are confidential with respect to public and may be made available to defendant only by court; since office of district attorney is "governmental entity" that performs "governmental function" for state and public corporation, it is agency required to comply with Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4865.

Although Freedom of Information Law does not apply to courts and court records, other provisions of law often grant broad rights of access to court records; therefore, it is suggested that requests should be made to clerk of appropriate court. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4873.

Freedom of Information Law does not apply to courts or court records, or to records maintained by attorney; nevertheless, court records are often available pursuant to other provisions of law, and such requests should be directed to clerk of appropriate court; pre-sentence reports are confidential with respect to public and may be made available to defendant only by court. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4881.

Freedom of Information Law does not apply to court or court records and though Freedom of Information Law is inapplicable, other provisions of law often grant significant rights of access to court records; where county court clerk has failed to respond to requests for records pursuant to Freedom of Information Law, requester should discuss matter with attorney or representative of prisoners' legal services. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4887.

Freedom of Information Law requires no showing of materiality, relevance, necessity or any other purpose as condition for asserting rights of access to records; moreover, while records may not be available to litigant by means of discovery because those records might not be material or relevant to litigation, those same records might be available to any member of the public who seeks records under Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4889.

19. Criminal law, generally

20. —District Attorney's office

Since office of special prosecutor, department of correction and office of district attorney are "agencies", presumably any requested records would be equally available or exempt from disclosure, irrespective of which agency maintains records. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4704.

Since office of district attorney is "governmental entity" that performs "governmental function" for state and public corporation, it is agency required to comply with Freedom of Information Law; since state office of court administration is "agency" required to comply with Freedom of Information Law, if functions of city office of court administration are similar to those carried out by its state counterpart, it would be "agency" for purposes of Freedom of Information Law; if legal aid society is not-for-profit corporation, although it has relationship with government, it is no "governmental entity" subject to Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4746.

Office of district attorney is "agency" and, therefore, records maintained by office of district attorney are subject to rights of access granted by Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4902.

21. —Legal aid

While legal aid societies which are agencies of local government may be subject to Freedom of Information Law, it appears that most are not "agencies" as defined in Freedom of Information Law and, as such, are not subject to law; although Freedom of Information Law does not apply to courts or court records, request can be made to court clerk of county in which case was heard for relevant court records. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4691.

If legal aid society is not "governmental agency", but rather, not-for-profit corporation, it would not be subject to Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4741.

While legal aid societies which are agencies of local government may be subject to Freedom of Information Law, most are not "agencies" as that term is defined in Freedom of Information Law and, as such, are not subject to that statute. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8384.

22. —Police and other law enforcement agencies

To extent that news media obtains police blotters or complaint reports pursuant to Freedom of Information Law, individual, as member of public, would enjoy same rights; when records are accessible under Freedom of Information Law, they should be made available to any person, without regard to status or interests. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4585.

23. —Prisons; prisoners

To learn whether information is deleted from record and if it is proper to do so, requester of record should request that department of correctional services provide explanation of deletions made because this is generally procedure when response to appeal is given. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4576.

Since family visiting program was established by department of correctional services, records concerning program would be maintained by that department, rather than department of state; therefore, department of state cannot supply information sought because it does not maintain records on subject. Comm On Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4607.

Since office of special prosecutor, department of correction and office of district attorney are "agencies", presumably any requested records would be equally available or exempt from disclosure, irrespective of which agency maintains records. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4704.

Policy of withholding information unless crime is solved clearly conflicts with Freedom of Information Law, and that, unless different statute provides contrary direction, individual who may have been victim of crime generally has no right to insist upon confidentiality; concurrently, agency, including police department, is required to review records when request is made to determine extent, if any, to which one or more of grounds for denial might apply. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4689.

Although Freedom of Information Law deals with records generally, Criminal Procedure Law deals specifically with records involving situation in which criminal charges are dismissed in favor of accused. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4830.

24. Fires; firefighters

Since fire district is public corporation, it is "agency" subject to Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8538.

25. Insurance matters

Private insurance company is not "agency" and records that it produces are not subject to Freedom of Information Law; however, when its records are submitted to agency, records are subject to rights granted by Freedom of Information Law; definition of "agency" excludes state legislature, as well as "judiciary", but Office of Court Administration is "agency" and its records are subject to Freedom of Information Law; similarly, records of division of budget are "agency records". Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4617.

26. Medical, health, hospitals and the like, generally

27. —Mental health

Rights of access to mental health records are governed by Mental Hygiene Law rather than Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4821.

If records sought are neither medical nor mental health records, rights of access would be determined by Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4853.

Freedom of Information Law pertain generally to rights of access to records maintained by units of state and local government; however, Men Hyg Law specifically pertains to patient's or client's rights of access to mental health records pertaining to patient or client and it also provides procedures for requesting records and for appealing denials; Committee on Open Government is not authorized to advise with respect to other statutes such as Men Hyg Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4854.

Hospital is "agency" or part of agency and its records are subject to rights of access granted by Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4758.

28. Schools, education and the like, generally

29. —Community colleges

Freedom of Information Law pertains to records of agencies of state and local government and community colleges throughout state are "agencies" subject to requirements of Freedom of Information Law; all records of agency are available, except to extent that records or portions thereof fall within one or more grounds for denial under CLS Pub O § 87(2)(a) to (i). Comm On Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4593.

Suffolk Community College Association, Inc., was subject to Freedom of Information Law since association would not have existed but for its relationship with college. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8386.

30. —State University of New York (SUNY)

Since state university is integral part of government of New York State and is engaged in carrying out governmental functions, it is "agency" required to comply with Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4619.

New York State library is part of state education department and state university libraries are within state university; in both instances, those libraries are parts of agency and consequently, are subject to Freedom of Information Law; Supreme Court libraries would likely be considered as part of "judiciary" and as such, Freedom of Information Law would not apply. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4663.

State University of New York is "agency" required to comply with Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7871.

School district meets broad definition of "agency" under CLS Pub Off § 86(3), but as "unit of local government," is excepted from coverage of Personal Privacy Protection Law, § 92(1) of such law, and thus neither Personal Privacy Protection Law nor § 89(2-a) of Freedom of Information Law would apply to records held by school district. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4439.

Freedom of Information Law pertains generally to records of agency which includes entities of state and local governments such as school districts; while law provides statutory guidance concerning access to records of agencies, it makes no specific reference to records of school district; if record is final and does not identify particular students, it appears it would be accessible; to extent that such report might identify particular student or students, those aspects of report would be required to be kept confidential pursuant to federal law; in addition, if state education department maintains report, presumably it would be equally available from department and district. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4714.

Terms of settlement and contract between school district and teacher would result in permissible rather than unwarranted invasion of personal privacy; such records are relevant to performance of official duties of school board and teacher, and, furthermore, it is clear that contracts between public employers and their employees are accessible because they represent terms and conditions under which public moneys are expended and public duties are performed. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4861.

Agency need not create or prepare record in response to request; therefore, if board of co-operative educational services does not maintain statistical data involving race, ethnicity or sex, it is not required to prepare data on behalf of request. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4914.

31. Social services

Freedom of Information Law is "general" law because it pertains generally to rights of access to records of entities of state and local government in New York; however, since Social Services Law deals with particular category of records and is "special" or specific statute, special statute prevails over general statute. Comm On Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4594.

iii. Requests; Requestors

a. Generally

32. In general

Police department cannot require "special court order" in order to obtain photocopies of police blotter. Comm on Open Govt FOIL-AO-3424.

Failure to complete form prescribed by agency cannot validly be cited as basis for withholding or delaying access to records; any request made in writing that reasonably described records should suffice. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4141.

Upon receipt of request for records sought, agency is required to make requested records available except to extent that one or more grounds for denial applies; agency may not generally require individuals to supply additional information, such as social security number, before responding to request. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4822.

When requesting records from agency, applicant should request copies of records rather than information generally. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4977.

New York City Transit Authority was not required to furnish "copies of each and every disclosure" of records pertaining to requester which were allegedly send to units of state and local government and to private corporations on basis that (1) request did not include details concerning nature of such records, and (2) no information was included to indicate whether person requesting information was a former employee. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-6214 (1990).

Police department could not deny request to see all approved gun licenses on basis that records were too voluminous, and could not require that applicant request records by names of licensees, where applicant's prior request to see approved applications for persons within certain zip codes was denied because department did not organize its records by address or zip code; applicant could not know names without seeing records, and conditions set forth by department effectively preclude applicant from making appropriate request. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8315.

Nothing in Freedom of Information Law or regulations promulgated by Committee on Open Government specifically deals with requests made and responses given by mail; however, due to size of state, inability of some people to physically travel to locations where records are kept, reality that many people work and cannot travel to those locations, and in view of intent of law, it is implicit that agencies must respond to requests by mail. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8536.

When agency determines that it maintains requested records and has retrieved records sought, it is reasonable for agency to indicate that applicant must respond in some manner as to his or her preference, schedule, or desire to pay fee for copies within reasonable time. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9491.

33. Form of request, generally

34. —Faxes

Absent judicial determination to contrary and assuming that such request is directed to appropriate person, i.e., records access officer, there is no basis to refuse to accept request for records under Freedom of Information Law made by means of fax transmission. Claim that agency can refuse to accept request for records under Freedom of Information Law made by fax transmission based on CLS CPLR § 2103 would be misplaced, since that provision deals with service of papers in legal proceeding and does not pertain or refer to request made to governmental entity under Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9232.

County police department could validly require that requests be made under Freedom of Information Law by submitting them either in person or by mail, rather than by fax transmission, where department's 5 fax machines served specific law enforcement functions and department received approximately 100,000 requests annually since receipt of requests by fax could have severe negative impact on ability of department to engage in authorized interdepartmental fax communications. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9312.

Public body may not determine to accept requests for records under Freedom of Information Law only if they are faxed to public body. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9547.

Agency may choose to make records available via e-mail or fax, but there is no obligation to do so on request. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12305.

The name of an applicant has no bearing upon rights of access to records under the Freedom of Information Law, and failure to sign a request does not constitute a basis for delaying or denying rights of access. Comm on Open Govt FOIL-AO 3078.

Agency requirement that request for record be made on standard form is inappropriate to extent that it unnecessarily serves to delay response or deny request for records. 1986 Committee on Open Government FOIL-AO-4280.

Failure to complete form prescribed by agency cannot constitute valid basis for delaying response to request or denying access to records. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4646.

Failure to use "actual form" as opposed to photocopy when requesting records from agency cannot constitute valid basis for delaying response to request or denying request; when request reasonably describes records sought and constitutes valid request for record under Freedom of Information Law, response is required in accordance with Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4655.

Any written request for records that reasonably describes records sought should be sufficient, but failure to complete form prescribed by agency cannot serve to delay response to request or deny request. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4686.

While agency may require that requests be in writing, there is no provision in Freedom of Information Law requiring or allowing agency to require particular language or wording in request for records; also, Freedom of Information Law is to facilitate public to gain access to records without regard to whether requester accurately cites relevant provisions of Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4782.

Any written request for records should suffice and failure to complete form prescribed by agency cannot serve to delay response or deny request for records; standard form may be utilized except to extent that it unnecessarily serves to delay response or deny request for records. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4875.

Although agency may require that request be made in writing or may make records available upon oral request, Freedom of Information Law is silent concerning use of standard forms; accordingly, any written request that reasonably describes records sought should suffice. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4920.

While agency may not require that applicant complete request form prescribed by agency, it may require that request be made in writing in accordance with CLS Pub O § 89(3). Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8448.

It was unreasonable for inmate records coordinator or Department of Correctional Services to require, as matter of policy, that authorization to disclose inmate records bear original signature, where authorization was notarized; if photocopy is admissible in judicial proceeding for evidentiary purposes, it should be equally acceptable for purpose of authorizing disclosure under Freedom of Information or Personal Privacy Protection Laws. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-10345.

City of Yonkers could not require those seeking records via email to use city's Freedom of Information request form, although use of prescribed form would likely be of benefit to people seeking city records. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-16607.

Agency may not require that request under Freedom on Information Law be made on prescribed form since use of standard forms is inappropriate to extent that it unnecessarily serves to delay response to or deny request for records; any written request that reasonably describes records sought should suffice. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2222.

35. Information requests or questions

Freedom of Information Law merely requires that agencies respond to request for records, and does not oblige public officials to provide "information" by answering questions; town officials would not be required to create or prepare new records in response to questions; should lawsuit be initiated, court may award petitioner reasonable attorney's fees if petitioner has "substantially prevailed". Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4577.

Freedom of Information Law merely requires agencies to respond to requests for records; it does not oblige public officials to provide information by answering questions. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4582.

Freedom of Information Law pertains to existing records and, as general matter, agency need not create or prepare record in response to request for information; when requesting records, requestor should make sure to make request, rather than ask questions. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4712.

Freedom of Information Law is vehicle under which person may request records from agency; further agency is obliged to respond to such request, but Freedom of Information Law is not vehicle that requires agency officials to respond or prepare answers to questions. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4775.

Freedom of Information Law pertains to existing records maintained by agencies and does not generally require agencies to answer questions or prepare or create records in response to request; when requesting information, requester should specify that certain records are sought instead of simply asking questions. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4843.

To extent that requestor is requesting information, answers to questions or explanations rather than existing records, agency is not required to produce information in order to respond to request; records should be described so that agency officials are able to locate records sought by means of description and vague requests that are merely descriptions of events will not fulfill this requirement. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4857.

Freedom of Information Law does not deal with information per se; rather, it pertains to requests for and rights of access to existing records maintained by government agency, and it does not require that agency provide information or answers in response to questions. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3866.

36. Law citations

It is not necessary to cite specific provision of law when requesting records; rather, citing Freedom of Information Law and reasonably describing records sought should be adequate. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4940.

No provision of Freedom of Information Law requires that applicant cite particular provision within Public Officers Law in order to justify request for records. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9267.

37. "Reasonably describe" requirement, generally

38. —Sufficient to locate object of request

When making requests for information under FOIL § 89[3], it is suggested that requester include sufficient detail to enable agency officials to locate records, such as identification, index and docket numbers, dates, descriptions of events and similar information. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4002, 4003, 4005, 4006, and 4008.

Request for records should be directed to records access officer of agency or agencies that would maintain records which are requested; records sought should be described in sufficient detail so agency officials can locate them; all records of agency are available, except to extent that records or portions thereof fall within CLS Pub O § 87(2)(a) through (i). Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4579.

To enable department officials to locate records pertaining to family visiting program request should contain sufficient detail. Comm On Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4607.

When requesting transcript of hearing before parole board, request should be directed to agency which maintains such records—division of parole; however, while making such requests, sufficient detail should be provided as to enable agency officials to locate records. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4634.

When making its request for records, written request should include sufficient detail to enable agency officials to locate records. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4676.

Freedom of Information Law requires each agency to have "records access officer" to whom requests may be directed and who has duty of coordinating agency's response to request for records; therefore, requests should be sent to "records access officer" in relevant agency; request should be made in writing and should be in sufficient detail to enable agency officials to locate records. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4693.

When making request, sufficient detail should be included so to enable officials to locate records, such as names, dates, descriptions of events and similar details. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4737.

Request must be sufficiently detailed to enable agency officials to determine records requested and to locate them. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4755.

Request for records should be directed to records access officer of agency that maintains records sought, and request should be in sufficient detail to enable agency officials to locate records sought. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4762.

When making requests for records, request should include sufficient detail to enable agency officials to locate records; requests should be directed to agency or agencies that maintain the record sought. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4833.

If agency can locate records based upon terms of request, agency is obliged to grant or deny access to records based on Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4834.

Under Freedom of Information Law, requests for records kept at correctional facility may be directed to facility superintendent; Freedom of Information Law requires that applicant include sufficient detail to enable agency officials to locate records. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4845.

To extent that requestor is requesting information, answers to questions or explanations rather than existing records, agency is not required to produce information in order to respond to request; records should be described so that agency officials are able to locate records sought by means of description and vague requests that are merely descriptions of events will not fulfill this requirement. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4857.

Request for records should be directed to records access officer and agency that maintains record sought and applicant must include sufficient detail to enable officials to locate records. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4865.

Freedom of Information Law requires that applicant to provide sufficient detail should be provided so to enable agency officials to locate records; further, regulations promulgated by Department of Correctional Services pursuant to Freedom of Information Law indicate that, for records kept at facility, request may be directed to facility superintendent. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4956.

Freedom of Information Law requires that applicant to provide sufficient detail to enable agency officials to locate records sought. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4958.

Request for records should be directed to agency that maintains records and such request should be addressed to agency's records access officer; Freedom of Information Law requires that applicant include sufficient detail to enable agency officials to locate records. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4974.

Agency may require that request be made in writing and that request must contain sufficient detail to enable agency officials to locate and identify records sought. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7566.

Although agency may require that request for information be made in writing, agency may make records available pursuant to oral request; although applicant must "reasonably describe" records sought, request need not identify particular record, for if agency can locate records based upon terms of request, applicant has met requirement that records be "reasonably described". 1986 Committee on Open Government FOIL-AO-4175.

Freedom of Information Law requires that person requesting records must "reasonably describe" records sought so agency officials can locate records; however, certain records may justifiably be withheld if information sought includes other people in addition to requester because that would cause unwarranted invasion of personal privacy; while eligible lists, which identify those persons who pass civil service examinations and their scores, are available, records identifying those persons who failed exams or their scores could be withheld as unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4574.

Freedom of Information Law states that agency may require that request for records be in writing, and that request "reasonably describe" records sought; any written request that "reasonably describes" records sought should suffice. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4646.

Freedom of Information Law requires that applicant "reasonably describe" record sought, so when making requests, sufficient detail should be included to enable agency officials to locate records. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4749.

Request for records must "reasonably describe" records sought and must be sufficiently detailed so to enable agency officials to locate requested records. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4765.

Request for records must "reasonably describe" records sought and requests sent to agency involving records pertaining to requester, without more, would likely not meet requirements of Freedom of Information Law; when making request, sufficient detail should be included so to enable agency officials to locate records, such as names, dates, descriptions of events, docket numbers and similar identifying data. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4774.

Request for records must "reasonably describe" record sought so that agency can locate records based upon terms of request. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4777.

Requests for records should be made in writing and "reasonably describe" record sought; therefore, requests should include sufficient detail to enable agency officials to locate records. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4823.

Freedom of Information Law requires that applicant "reasonably describe" records sought so request should contain sufficient detail to enable agency officials to locate records. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4824.

Freedom of Information Law requires that applicant "reasonably describe" records sought so request should contain sufficient detail to enable agency offices to locate records. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4831.

Applicant must "reasonably describe" record sought, so, when making requests, as much detail as possible should be provided to enable agency officials to locate records. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4877.

Applicant must "reasonably describe" record sought and include sufficient detail to enable officials to locate records. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4881.

Applicants for records should "reasonably describe" records sought and must provide sufficient information to enable agency officials to locate records. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4882.

Freedom of Information Law requires that request "reasonably describe" records sought so that when request is made to agency or court, sufficient detail should be included so to enable officials to locate records. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4922.

When making request for records, Freedom of Information Law requires that applicant "reasonably describe" records sought and should include sufficient detail to enable agency officials to locate records. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4924.

Request for records should be made in writing and should "reasonably describe" records sought; therefore, when making request, sufficient detail should be included to enable agency officials to locate records. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4938.

Agency may always require that applicant request records in writing; when request is made applicant must reasonably describe record sought and if agency officials cannot determine which records have been requested, request likely did not meet "reasonably describe" standard and response to that effect should be given to applicant. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4955.

Freedom of Information Law requires that applicant reasonably describe records sought and if agency can locate requested records based on terms of request, applicant has reasonably described such records; however, if agency cannot determine which records have been requested, standard of "reasonably describing" records is not met and in some instances, while records sought might exist, they may not be retrievable due to nature of agency's filing system; also, agency need not create or prepare record in response to request. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4970.

b. Requestors

39. In general

To extent that news media obtains police blotters or complaint reports pursuant to Freedom of Information Law, individual, as member of public, would enjoy same rights; when records are accessible under Freedom of Information Law, they should be made available to any person, without regard to status or interests. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4585.

Freedom of Information Law does not deal directly right of mayor to gain access to village records, make copies or take them home; however, village records are property of village rather than mayor, even though mayor may be chief executive officer. If request is reasonable, and in absence of village board rule or policy to contrary, mayor or member of village board should not generally be required to resort to Freedom of Information Law in order to seek or obtain records. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8387.

Town board member, acting unilaterally without consent or approval of majority of total membership of board, has same rights as those accorded to member of public under Freedom of Information Law, unless there is some right conferred on board member by means of law or rule; in absence of any such rule, member seeking records could presumably be treated in same manner as public generally. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12692.

Member of town board acting unilaterally, without consent or approval of majority of total membership of board, has same rights as public generally (unless some right is conferred on board member by law or rule) to obtain information relating to incident involving death of town resident while in police custody. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3158.

When former state officer or employee, within 2 years of termination of state service, submits Freedom of Information Law (FOIL) request to his or her former agency or pursues appeal of denial of such request, agency should give copy of this advisory opinion (interpreting Advisory Opinion No. 98-7 as it relates to FOIL requests); if such individual then pursues request or appeal, agency may assume that he or she is proceeding on his or her own behalf, which is permitted, but if it is later discovered that he or she was proceeding in violation of CLS Pub O § 73(8), then Ethics Commission may impose civil remedy of up to $10,000 for each violation. State Ethics Comm Adv Op No. 97-12.

40. Litigants; litigation

If record is available to public under Freedom of Information Law, it cannot be withheld solely because applicant is litigant or because records relate to litigation; however, file might nonetheless contain records consisting of attorney work product or material prepared for litigation, as well as records subject to attorney client privilege; these records would be specifically exempted from disclosure. Comm On Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4605.

Pendency of litigation does not affect person's rights as a member of the public under the Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-6209 (1990).

41. Prisoners; prisons

Request made to obtain medical records from department of correctional services should be brought not under Freedom of Information Law but under CLS Pub Health § 18; § 18 provides rights that exceed those granted by Freedom of Information Law. Comm On Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4608.

42. Representative capacity of requestor

Government offices, such as Human Resources Administration or Department of Social Services, are "agencies" subject to Freedom of Information Law; however, private facility would not likely be required to comply with Freedom of Information Law; records concerning foster care are generally confidential, however, if requester is parent of child, it is likely that parent has rights of access to records pertaining to child; consequently, request for records should be given to agency or agencies that maintain records in which interested. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4924.

c. Specificity Of Requests

43. In general

Request for records should be directed to records access officer of agency or agencies that would maintain records which are requested; records sought should be reasonably described in sufficient detail so agency officials can locate them; all records of agency are available, except to extent that records or portions thereof fall within CLS Pub O § 87(2)(a) through (i). Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4579.

When making requests under Freedom of Information Law, requests should be for existing records rather than information and should be as specific as possible in describing records so that agency officials can identify and locate records sought. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4884.

When making request, Freedom of Information Law does not require applicant identify records sought with specificity; rather, Law merely requires that request reasonably describe records sought and request meets the standard of reasonably describing when agency officials can locate records based on terms of request. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4975.

Whether request reasonably describes records sought may be dependent upon terms of request, as well as nature of agency's filing or record-keeping system. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7584.

It appeared that minutes of meetings held by industrial development agency could be readily retrieved and that request for minutes covering period of 3 years would reasonably describe records sought by applicant. If request under Freedom of Information Law involves minutes of agency insofar as they deal with particular subject, and if minutes are not topically indexed, agency staff would not be required to review all of minutes in effort to locate particular items within them. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8288.

Journalist or member of public cannot be required to seek portion of police report by referring to specific incident; rather, applicant could request report or reports as they pertain to particular days or dates. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8546.

Applicant is not required to identify with particularity exactly which record, or perhaps which portion of record he or she may be interested in reviewing; thus, journalist or member of public cannot be required to seek portion of report by referring to specific incident and can, instead, request report or reports as they pertain to particular days or dates. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9455.

Requests for oaths of office, which may be filed with respect to some individuals, are filed chronologically; thus, requestor must include year in which oath was filed in order to locate and obtain copies of those records. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9991.

To extent that records sought from village could be located with reasonable effort, request reasonably described them; however, to extent that records were not maintained in manner that permitted their retrieval except by reviewing perhaps thousands of records individually in effort to locate those falling within scope of request, request was too broad. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-10108.

Identifying records that indicate "criticism" might, in some circumstances, be problematic, and such request may not, at least in part, reasonably describe records sought under Freedom of Information Law. Requests for "any and all memorandum, resolutions, draft resolutions, correspondence or press releases calling for the holding of legislative hearings into any of the controversies surrounding" named county executive and district attorney would meet requirement of reasonably describing records; on other hand, if such records were not maintained in manner that permitted their retrieval except by reviewing perhaps hundreds or even thousands of records individually in effort to locate those falling within scope of request, to that extent, requests would not meet standard reasonably describing records. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12631.

With regard to request under Freedom of Information Law for minutes of meetings, it appeared that minutes of meetings could be readily retrieved and that request for minutes covering period of 3 years would reasonably describe records; however, with regard to request for minutes insofar as they dealt with particular subject, and if minutes were not topically indexed, agency staff would not be required to review all of minutes in effort to locate particular items within them. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2349.

44. Specificity sufficient, generally

45. —Medical records

Person seeking medical records need not specify precisely period of time for which records are being sought, in order to "reasonably describe" requested records. Comm on Open Govt FOIL-AO-3611.

46. —Police records

Request to review police blotter in terms of period of time, such as day or week, would "reasonably describe" record sought and conform with requirements of CLS Pub O L § 89(3). Comm on Open Govt FOIL-AO-3424.

Request for records "pertaining to the investigation of Donald Lee McNabb", found dead in his apartment following his promise to testify in relation to drug case, reasonably describes records sought where, in view of nature of event and intended publicity as indicated in variety of news articles, city of Auburn can locate records pertaining to that death. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4562.

If case records identify police officer or officers who prepared complaint follow-up report ("DD5), then police department has ability to locate that officer and acquire activity log for purpose of determining rights of access to portions pertaining to case; if so, then request reasonably describes records, as required by Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-10038.

If speeding tickets issued within particular time frame can be retrieved by means of name of trooper who issued them, request for all such tickets issued within that period, for purpose of ascertaining whether officer issues citations "all at 75 mph," would meet standard imposed by law because, on receipt of tickets, applicant could review and analyze them himself. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-10343.

Applicants request for city police Field Interview Forms (FIFs), despite volume of material, met requirement of "reasonably describing" records and could not be rejected due to its breadth. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12565.

Request for "911 police radio dispatch tapes" generated over 10 years earlier, and citing certain date, likely would meet standard of reasonably describing records if directed to small police department; on other hand, if 911 calls are received in different locations, due, for example, to size or population of county, request of that nature might not meet standard of reasonably describing records. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12589.

47. —Public works; streets

Request for record concerning street repairs and risks of pending lawsuit identified location of repairs as well as time period during which repairs were made "reasonably described" records. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4675.

48. —Wagering, including Off-Track Betting (OTB)

Request that Suffolk Regional Off-Track Betting Corporation furnish "copy of SROTB operating manual, spelling out company policies and procedures for employees" reasonably describes records sought and need not be more specific. Comm On Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4548.

Request involving "the correspondence file for the [Staten Island] Borough President and Deputy Borough President from January 1, 1980 through June 30, 1983" is not a request for records "reasonably described" for purposes of § 89(3) of the Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Govt FOIL-AO 3025.

49. Specificity insufficient, generally

50. —Employment; employees, generally

51. — —Security work

Request for description of any and all security measures in place for city officials, either in past or present, was too broad and did not satisfy requirement of CLS Pub O § 89(3) that applicant "reasonably describe" records sought. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7930.

52. — —Worker's compensation

Requests for cases of complaints filed by workers sustaining respiratory or bodily damage due to long-term occupational exposure to certain chemicals or solvents does not "reasonably describe" records requested, where workers' compensation board does not file records in way that enables it to locate those involving occupational diseases. Comm On Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4517.

Division of Human Rights was not required to review 14-volume set of materials containing variety of information, which process would take weeks, in order to reply to request for all policy statements of Division that were currently in effect pertaining to employment discrimination under Human Rights Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7584.

53. —Family Court records

Even assuming that request for vouchers of persons paid in specific judicial district through Family Court including experts, investigators, law guardians, attorneys and like involved records of Office of Court Administration, rather than courts records (which are not available under Freedom of Information Law), it appeared that request did not reasonably describe records sought as thousands of vouchers were filed each year but were not filed by judicial district. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9208.

54. —Public works; water

While "all records" standard might be appropriate for requesting records in some circumstances, it would not be appropriate in every circumstance, and requests for "all records" concerning certain water district from 1977 to present is that kind of request which likely does not "reasonably describe" information sought. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4449.

55. —Real property matters, generally

Request for "all information kept regarding [my] property" did not reasonably describe records sought if town maintained records falling within scope of such request in number of locations or departments and by means of different filing systems within those departments; moreover, if records were kept chronologically, it might not be possible to locate them by means of name or address. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-10280.

Request for copies of any and all records concerning petitioner made to specific records officer does not contain sufficient detail to permit agency to respond. Comm on Open Govt FOIL-AO-3605.

iv. Responses

a. Generally

56. In general

As general matter, if record is made available for inspection, agency is required under § 89[3] to prepare copy of such record upon payment of or offer to pay requisite fees for photocopying. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4066.

Although agency may require request for information made in writing, and agency may create request forms, failure to complete form prescribed by agency cannot serve to delay response to request or deny access to records, and any request made in writing that reasonably describes records is sufficient. 1986 Committee on Open Government FOIL-AO-4181.

Denial of request for records rendered following appeal must include more detailed indication of basis for denial than initial denial. Comm On Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4528.

Freedom of Information Law merely requires that agencies respond to request for records, and does not oblige public officials to provide "information" by answering questions; town officials would not be required to create or prepare new records in response to questions; should lawsuit be initiated, court may award petitioner reasonable attorney's fees if petitioner has "substantially prevailed". Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4577.

No provision of Freedom of Information Law or judicial decision requires that denial at agency level identify every record withheld or give description of reason for withholding each document be given. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8527.

There is nothing in Freedom of Information Law that specifies which public officer or employee must respond to request. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8533.

Freedom of Information Law requires agencies to produce accessible information in format of applicant's choice, so long as agency is able to do so and applicant pays requisite fee. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8888.

There is no requirement that denial of request for records under Freedom of Information Law at agency level identify every record withheld or that description of reason for withholding each document be given. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9249.

Village clerk failed to comply with Freedom of Information Law when she forwarded requests for information concerning implementation of village's assessment practice to village attorney and suggested that requestor contact village attorney for further information; clerk, as designated records access officer, had duty to coordinate village's response to requests for records, and her response to contact village attorney, without more, was inadequate. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-10186.

When agency acknowledges request because more than 5 business days may be needed to grant or deny request, it acts in compliance with law if it provides approximate date when request will be granted or denied, and that date is reasonable in view of attendant circumstances. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12094.

When agency acknowledges receipt of Freedom of Information Law request because more than 5 business days may be needed to grant or deny it, there is no precise time period within which it must grant or deny access to records; reasonable time depends on attendant circumstances such as volume of request, possibility that other requests have been made, necessity to conduct legal research, search and retrieval techniques used to locate records. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12219.

While agencies are required by CLS Pub O § 89(4)(a) to send copies of appeals and their determinations thereon to Committee on Open Government, there is nothing in law that requires that they provide information pertaining to Committee to person seeking records. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12690.

There is no requirement that agency make records available on weekends or during times other than regular business hours. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12727.

CLS Penal § 240.65 does not apply when agency denies access to record, even though basis for denial may be inappropriate or erroneous, or when agency cannot locate record that must be maintained. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12822.

57. Concealment or destruction

If administrative assistant for Long Island regional office of the Office of Parks, Recreation and Historic Preservation willfully concealed existence of records pertaining to a "rating and ranking list of employees", such concealment was in violation of CLS Public Officers Law § 89(8). Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-6228 (1990).

CLS Pub O § 89(8) does not deal with situations in which records are requested and agency determines to withhold them in accordance with one or more of grounds for denial appearing in CLS Pub O § 87(2); rather, it pertains to situations in which agency officials knowingly conceal existence of records or destroy records in order to prevent disclosure. In case of alleged violation of CLS Pub O § 89(8), matter could be brought to district attorney in conjunction with CLS Penal § 240.65. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7637.

Penalty for violating CLS Pub O § 89(8) (i.e., when agency employee receives request for record and indicates that agency does not maintain record even though he or she knows that agency does maintain it, or when agency employee destroys record following request for that record in order to prevent its public disclosure) is up to 15 days in jail and/or fine up to $250. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12254.

When agency indicates that it does not maintain or cannot locate record, applicant for record may seek certification to that effect. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12589.

Neither chairman of town planning board nor any other person would have had right or authority to destroy tape recording of open meeting of board. CLS Penal § 240.65 and CLS Pub O § 89(8) may be applicable in 2 circumstances: (1) when agency officer or employee receives request for record and indicates that agency does not maintain record even though he or she knows that agency does maintain record, or (2) when agency officer or employee destroys record following request for that record in order to prevent disclosure of record. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12696.

58. Delay as constructive denial

Denial of request for minutes and tape recordings of board of education meeting which states that the request will be granted "within a reasonable time" after a subsequent board meeting is deficient. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-2860.

Acknowledgment of receipt of request for records, together with statement that records sought will be made available, is likely insufficient to comply with Freedom of Information Law when records sought are not actually made available. Comm On Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4556.

Once agency indicates that it will disclose records but fails to make records available, such action is equivalent of denial. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4738.

59. Failure to respond as constructive denial

Failure of agency to respond to request for materials under Freedom of Information Law constitutes a constructive denial of access. Comm on Open Govt FOIL-AO 3037.

60. Inability to locate

Freedom of Information Law does not obligate city official to create additional record in effort to respond to request for record; denial of records must be in writing with stated reasons; if agency indicates that it does not have requested record, upon request, records access officer shall certify that it does not have possession of such record where such record cannot be found after diligent search. Comm On Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4589.

Agency has satisfactorily responded to request for information when it appears that all requested records maintained by agency have been made available and when agency provided letter certifying that, after diligent search, it had not been able to locate certain records. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4688.

Denial of record must be made in writing, stating reasons and informing applicant of name and address of person or body to whom appeal may be made; when requested records cannot be located, agency shall certify that it does not have possession of such record or that such record cannot be found after diligent search. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4717.

Statement that agency does not maintain record sought is not denial, for agency cannot withhold records that it does not maintain; therefore, such response to initial request does not provide basis on which to appeal and such response to appeal does not provide basis to commence CLS CPLR Article 78 proceeding; in response to request for records agency shall provide copy of such record and certify correctness of such copy if so requested, or if case may be, shall certify that it does not have possession of such record or that such record cannot be found after diligent search. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4891.

If so requested, agency shall certify that it does not have possession of such record or that record cannot be found after diligent search. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4897.

Nothing in Freedom of Information Law specifies form of certification that agency does not maintain or cannot locate record. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9628.

Where county district attorney's office indicated that requested records apparently were lost, applicant was entitled to seek certification to that effect. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9863.

61. Notice as to appeal rights and procedure

If record is denied, denial must be made in writing, stating reasons and informing applicant of name and address of person or body to whom appeal may be made. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4717.

If portion of requested record was deliberately deleted from copy made available, request was partially granted and partially denied, and agency should have informed in writing of reason for denial and right to appeal denial. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4806.

Records access officer has duty to respond within 5 business days of receipt of request and if request is denied, reasons must be stated in writing, and applicant must be informed of right to appeal. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4952.

Agency's records access officer has duty individually, or in that person's role of coordinating response to request under Freedom of Information Law, to inform person denied access of right to appeal as well as name and address of person or body to whom appeal may be directed. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9722.

Records access officer has duty, individually or in his or her role of coordinating response to request, to inform persons denied access of their right to appeal, and name and address of person or body to whom appeal may be directed. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-10016.

62. Single certification for multiple copies

When certification is requested with respect to voluminous number of records, then single certification asserted by means of "cover letter" would be appropriate; while it might be good practice to describe records that have been certified in cover letter or similar document, there is no requirement that such action be taken. Comm On Open Gov't FOIL-AO-3912.

Particularly when certification is requested with respect to voluminous number of records, single certification given by means of written assertion, statement or affidavit describing or identifying records that were copied is sufficient under CLS Pub O § 89(3); it is not necessary for each copy of records made available under Freedom of Information Law to be stamped or "certified" separately. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9338.

b. Particular Cases

Agency need not respond instantly to request and has 5 business days to respond from receipt of request for records reasonably described. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4982.

If applicant cannot know precisely when he or she may have opportunity to inspect records, agency should indicate that records will be available during business hours for certain period, 2 weeks, for example, after request has been granted; if records are not inspected or copied within such specified reasonable period, applicant should be informed that request will be considered to have been withdrawn. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8347.

When portions of file are withheld, response to request must indicate that request was denied in part, and applicant must be informed of right to appeal denial in accordance with CLS Pub O § 89(3) and regulations. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8378.

Nothing in Freedom of Information Law or regulations would require that chief of police respond personally or preclude village attorney from responding on behalf or at direction of village official. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8533.

If, as matter of practice or policy, town acknowledges receipt of requests by stating that requests will be granted or denied within 30 days, irrespective of nature, volume or search needed to respond, such practice would be inconsistent with both language and intent of Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8540.

Nothing in Freedom of Information Law pertains specifically to repeated requests made by applicant for records that have already been disclosed; it was advised that agency inform applicant that records sought have been made available and that ensuing requests for same items will be considered moot and will not be answered. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8549.

Certification made under Freedom of Information Law does not pertain to accuracy of contents of record, but rather would involve assertion that copy is true copy; in other words, certification prepared pursuant to CLS Pub O § 89(3) would not indicate that contents of record are complete, accurate or "legal," but would merely indicate that copy of record is true copy. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9338.

Shortage of manpower to comply with request for records under Freedom of Information Law does not constitute valid basis for denial of access to records. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9455.

Acknowledgement of receipt of request for documents under Freedom of Information Law which indicates that "a response will be forthcoming within appropriate time" is inconsistent with requirements imposed by law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9549.

If in every instance, as matter of practice or policy, agency acknowledged receipt of requests and indicated that it would determine whether to grant or deny access to records within particular period following date of acknowledgement, such practice or policy would be contrary to thrust of Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-10083.

Agency's acknowledgement of request for records, which indicated that request would be processed "as soon as possible," was too ambiguous and open-ended; if more than 5 business days are needed to determine rights of access, agency must state approximate date when action will be taken. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12030.

Village's response to request for records, that village clerk was on vacation and would respond to request upon her return, was inadequate. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12084.

Village is not obliged by Freedom of Information Law to provide information sought by answering questions raised during meeting, preparing tabulations in effort to be responsive, or offering explanation of its action. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2383.

64. Employment; employees, generally

If an appeal from denial of records has not been answered within statutory time period, administrative remedies have been exhausted and challenge could be initiated to denial under CLS Civil Practice Rules Article 78; assuming that record involving individual's previous employment with city exists and can be located, record would be available; on other hand, if city officials cannot locate such record, response should nonetheless be given, indicating that record of employment could not be located. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4840.

If agency has central telephone number, and calls are forwarded to employees through use of switchboard or other transfer mechanism, disclosure of central telephone number is adequate to comply with request for "complete listing" of voice and fax numbers of agency employees. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12305.

65. Legislative record

Since it is responsibility of county attorney to act as legal counsel to county departments, it is proper for county attorney to respond to request for records on behalf of officials of county department; as such, fact that county legislature (governing body of county, public corporation) was advised of request for records and asked that county attorney respond, while not common practice, did not appear to be inconsistent with Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4951.

66. Police and other law enforcement agencies, generally

Disclosure of statistics indicating average salary and other payments and fringe benefits of city police officer was not responsive to request for breakdown of cost of mayor's police protection from its inception to present. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7930.

Basis for denial of applicant's appeal was incomplete and inadequate, and blanket denial of request was inconsistent with law, where applicant sought records related to particular assault arrest entry in village police blotter, including defendant's name, date of birth, address, charges, any victim names and any reports on circumstances surrounding request; records must be reviewed for purpose of identifying those portions of records that might fall within scope of one or more of grounds for denial of access. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12605.

67. Public works; utilities

Records access officer's response to request for records maintained by Albany County Department of Public Works, that "all Freedom of Information requests must be filed through the Albany County Clerk's Office," was inconsistent with Freedom of Information Law and unnecessarily delayed issuance of determination to grant or deny applicant's request. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-10222.

68. Real property, generally

69. —Environmental matters; pesticides

Request seeking records relating to town's purported testing and environmental assessments of dump on specified person's property, which was filed after applicant read newspaper article which indicated that town conducted its own tests which showed no hazardous materials on site and which included statement by town supervisor that there was clear, compelling evidence that site contained neither hazardous nor toxic materials, met standard for reasonably describing records sought by applicant. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8956.

70. —Zoning

In response to request for planning commission records showing each instance during past several years in which it did not exercise its discretion to waive certain zoning requirement, it was not improper for secretary of planning commission to "refuse to do [requestor's] research" and invite requestor to look through planning commission's files, which might be contained in "1 or 2 file cabinets"; alternative means of gaining requested information might involve request to review minutes of commission meetings because, while there may be numerous minutes, review of their contents would involve less effort than search of file cabinets. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12181.

71. School; education matters

Initial response by agency did not constitute denial, and instead was acknowledgment of receipt of request that was consistent with CLS Pub O § 89(3), where (1) request involved bills, canceled checks, receipts and similar records reflective of expenses incurred or payments made concerning athletic fields, travel by school district officials, catering for board meetings, legal services, records pertaining to improvements made in board room and superintendent's office and "writings that set forth terms and conditions of employment for certain administrators," and (2) receipt of request was acknowledged on April 19 and applicant was informed that school district "should be able to provide you with further response no later than May 27." Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8879.

State university did not violate citizen's statutory right to review records under Freedom of Information Law where such citizen was declared "persona non grata" and prohibited from entering campus without specific authorization because he had violated campus rules promulgated under CLS Educ § 6450(1) but, in response to his request for records, he was granted permission to visit particular site on campus for reviewing records during specific time. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2226.

72. Telephone records

If agency has central telephone number, and calls are forwarded to employees through use of switchboard or other transfer mechanism, disclosure of central telephone number is adequate to comply with request for "complete listing" of voice and fax numbers of agency employees. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12305.

B. Timeliness

i. Generally

73. In general

Freedom of Information Law has force of law and prescribes time limits for response to quest for records. Comm On Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4593.

Failure of agency to respond for records to disclosure within designated time limits results in denial of access and may be appealed to head of agency or whomever is designated to determine appeals. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4627.

Failure of agency to respond to request for record within designated time limits results in denial of access and may be appealed to head of agency or whomever is designated to determine appeal; if determination is not rendered within proper time limit, appellant has exhausted his or her administrative remedies and may initiate challenge to constructive denial of access. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4628.

Financial Information Services Agency is subject to timeliness rules of Freedom of Information Law because it is municipal entity that performs governmental function for city; further, directors of agency are required to designate one or more persons as records access officers. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4969.

74. Timeliness of production of documents

Since agency is generally obliged to maintain custody and control of its records, applicant may be required to review records in presence of official of agency; since agency must grant or deny access to records within prescribed periods of time, as long as records are made available for inspection or copying within those time periods, agency could wait until official of agency could be present; however, if agency official cannot be present during course of time period, access cannot be delayed or denied until that person becomes available. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4869.

Statement by Record Access Officer for New York City Police Department that final determination would be made in "30 to 60 days" on petitioner's request to inspect records, rather than copy records, constituted denial of access to records. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-5538.

Request for minutes of various committees of Seneca County Legislature which was answered by County Administrator to the effect that the person who would ordinarily disclose the minutes was on vacation, and no further attempt was made by County Administrator to furnish requested information, the request was constructively denied and an appeal could be made. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-6328 (1990).

Agency is not required to respond instantly to request under Freedom of Information Law; although Freedom of Information Law provides direction concerning time and manner in which agency must respond to requests, it does not include any provision that specifies period within which records must be disclosed. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8347.

To suggest that response to request for copies of certificates of occupancy can take nearly 2 months serves to negate clear intent of Freedom of Information Law as expressed in its statement of legislative intent and by courts in their interpretations of Law; in municipality size of Village of Old Westbury and in situation in which request involves small number of records that are clearly accessible under Freedom of Information Law, there is no justifiable reason for delaying disclosure of records. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8366.

Insofar as records sought can be readily retrieved and copied, to comply with intent of Freedom of Information Law, it is "incumbent" on town to make records available as soon as possible; if certain of records sought cannot be readily retrieved, delay may be warranted with respect to disclosure of those records; however, with regard to others that can be quickly located, there would appear to be no valid basis for delaying their disclosure. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8407.

Particularly in case of voluminous request, it is proper for agency to disclose quickly or on ongoing basis those records that are readily retrievable. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8879.

Notwithstanding legislative declaration appearing at beginning of Freedom of Information Law which provides that "it is incumbent upon state and its localities to extend public accountability wherever and whenever feasible," agency cannot be expected to respond instantly to request in every case or to produce records instantly, absent appointment or indication in advance of inspection that records will continually be available for review. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9209.

When agency acknowledges receipt of request because more than 5 business days may be needed to grant or deny such request, agency complies with Freedom of Information Law if it provides approximate date indicating when request will be granted or denied, and such date is reasonable in view of attendant circumstances; however, if records are clearly available or readily retrievable, there may be no basis for lengthy delay. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-10083.

If request under Freedom of Information Law is voluminous and significant amount of time is needed to locate records and review them to determine rights of access, delay in disclosure might be reasonable; on other hand, if record or report is clearly public and can be found easily, there would be no rational basis for delay. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12607.

There is no precise time period within which agency must grant or deny access to records; time needed to do so may be dependent on, inter alia, volume of request, possibility that other requests have been made, necessity to conduct legal research, and search and retrieval techniques used to locate records. When agency acknowledges receipt of request because more than 5 business days may be needed to grant or deny request, Freedom of Information Law is satisfied so long as agency provides approximate date indicating when request will be granted or denied, and such date is reasonable in view of attendant circumstances. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12655.

Agency constructively denied request for certain police records where roughly one year had elapsed since request was first made. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12655.

ii. Response to Request

75. In general

For purposes of Freedom of Information Law phrase "business day" means any day other than Saturday, Sunday or legal holiday, and even though municipal office in small community has "business hours" only 2 days per week, it is unreasonable to contend that response required to be made within 10 business days could be delayed for period of 5 weeks. 1986 Committee on Open Government FOIL-AO-4230.

Agency's failure to respond within designated time limits results in denial of access to records that may be appealed to head of agency or whomever is designated to determine appeals. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4425.

Agency is not required to respond instantly to request under Freedom of Information Law; although Freedom of Information Law provides direction concerning time and manner in which agency must respond to requests, it does not include any provision that specifies period within which records must be disclosed. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8347.

Authority of agency to take up to 5 business days to respond to request under Freedom of Information Law or, if warranted, to take additional time by acknowledging receipt of request in accordance with CLS Pub O § 89(3) is not intended to enable agencies to delay disclosure unnecessarily. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8366.

Notwithstanding legislative declaration appearing at beginning of Freedom of Information Law which provides that "it is incumbent upon state and its localities to extend public accountability wherever and whenever feasible," agency cannot be expected to respond instantly to request in every case or to produce records instantly, absent appointment or indication in advance of inspection that records will continually be available for review. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9209.

In case of routine requests, agency should ordinarily have ability to grant or deny access to records within 5 business days; if more than that period is needed, due to possibility that other requests have been received, that other duties preclude quick response or because of volume of request, need for consultation, search techniques needed to locate records or need to review records to determine which portions should be disclosed or denied, estimated date for granting or denying request must be given in acknowledgement to reflect those factors. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9444.

When agency acknowledges receipt of request because more than 5 business days may be needed to grant or deny such request, agency complies with Freedom of Information Law if it provides approximate date indicating when request will be granted or denied, and such date is reasonable in view of attendant circumstances; however, if records are clearly available or readily retrievable, there may be no basis for lengthy delay. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-10083.

If neither response to request under Freedom of Information Law nor acknowledgement of receipt of request is given within 5 business days, or if agency delays responding for unreasonable time after it acknowledges that request has been received, request may be considered to have been constructively denied. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12438.

76. Requirement of 5 business days for response

To extent that agency's response granting, denying or acknowledging receipt of request for records is given more than 5 business days following initial receipt of written request, agency's requirement of completion of standard application form would fail to comply with provisions of Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4427.

While there is nothing in Freedom of Information Law prohibiting New York City Police Department from rendering determination in 1987 regarding appeal filed in 1984 and not answered, incident to denial of request for records, it is not required to do so under CLS Pub Off § 89(4)(a) and CPLR Art 78, and, in order to ensure Department's responding appropriately to request for records in such circumstances, requesting party should renew process and resubmit initial request to Department's records access officer. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4493.

Agency must respond to request for information within 5 business days from receipt of request and this response can take 3 forms: it can grant access, deny access, and if so demand should be in writing stating reasons, or receipt of request may be acknowledged in writing if more than 5 business days is necessary to review or locate records; however, Committee on Open Government has no authority to enforce Freedom of Information Law, nor is it empowered to compel agency to grant or deny access to records. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4574.

Freedom of Information Law requires that agency respond to request for record within 5 business days of its receipt of request. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4662.

Freedom of Information Law requires that agency respond in writing within 5 business days of receipt of request whether or not agency maintains record sought and whether or not record is available; agency's failure to respond may be considered constructive denial which may be appealed. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4672.

Where request for record is not granted, denied or acknowledged within 5 days of its receipt, appeal is appropriate. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4675.

Agency must respond to request for records within 5 business days of receipt of request; this time period is intended to enable agency to respond without immediate disruption of its functions; however, it is not intended to serve as means of delaying access to records that are routinely used and readily accessible. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4954.

Agency need not respond instantly to request for records and has 5 business days to respond from receipt of request for records reasonably described. Comm On Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4982.

While agency must grant access to records, deny access or acknowledge receipt of request within 5 business days, when such acknowledgement is given, there is no precise time period within which agency must grant or deny access to records; time needed to do so may be dependent upon volume of request, possibility that other requests have been made, necessity to conduct legal research, search and retrieval techniques used to locate records and like; in short, when agency acknowledges receipt of request because more than 5 business days may be needed to grant or deny request, so long as it provides approximate date indicating when request will be granted or denied and that date is reasonable in view of attendant circumstances, agency acts in compliance with law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7606.

If it can be proven that mail was delivered to and agency received request on certain date, agency has 5 business days from that date to grant request for disclosure, deny access in writing, or acknowledge receipt of request in writing that includes approximate date when it can be anticipated that request be granted or denied. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12429.

iii. Response And Appeal

77. In general

Failure of agency to respond to appeal of denial of records within designated time limits results in denial of access that may be appealed to head of agency or whomever is designated to determine appeals. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4652.

Failure of agency to respond to request for records within designated time limits results in denial of access and may be appealed to head of agency or whomever is designated to determine appeals; that person or body has designated amount of time from receipt of appeal to render determination and if determination is not rendered within that period of time, appellant has exhausted his or her administrative remedies and may initiate challenge to constructive denial of access under CLS CPLR Article 78. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4713.

78. Requirement of 5 and 10 business days for response and appeal, respectively

Freedom of Information Law provides that agency must respond to request for records within 5 business days of receipt of request, and if request is denied, denial should be in writing stating reasons therefor; failure to respond within designated time limits results in denial of access that may be appealed to head of agency or whomever is designated to determine appeals; that person or body has 10 business days from receipt of appeal to render determination. Comm On Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4603.

Agency must respond to request for records within 5 business days of receipt of request, and failure to respond within designated time limits results in denial of access that may be appealed; if determination regarding appeal is not rendered within 10 business days, appellant has exhausted his or her administrative remedies, and may initiate challenge to constructive denial of access under CLS CPLR Article 78. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4690, 4745, 4750.

Agency must respond to request for records within 5 business days of receipt of request and when request is denied, applicant may appeal to head of agency or whomever is designated to determine appeals; that person or body has 10 business days from receipt of appeal to render determination. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4872.

Agency is required to respond to request for records within 5 business days of receipt of request and failure to respond within designated time limits results in denial of access that may be appealed; when appeal is made but determination is not rendered within 10 business days of receipt of appeal, appellant has exhausted his or her administrative remedies and may initiate challenge to constructive denial of access under CLS CPLR Art 78; in addition to 5 business days that agency has to respond to request, in determining whether agency has failed to comply with time frame, mailing time for response should be taken into account. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4957.

79. Requirement of 10 business days for appeal

Failure of agency to respond within designated time limit for requested records results in denial of access which may be appealed to head of agency or whomever is designated to determine appeals who has 10 business days from receipt of appeal to render determination; when determination is not rendered within 10 business days of receipt of appeal, appellant has exhausted his or her administrative remedies and may initiate challenge to constructive denial of access under CLS Civ Practice Rules Article 7. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4620.

Failure of agency to respond to request for record within designated time limits results in denial of access that may be appealed to head of agency or whomever is designated to determine appeals; person or body has 10 business days from receipt of appeal to render determination; when appeal is made but determination is not rendered within 10 business days of receipt of appeal, appellant has exhausted his or her administrative remedies and may initiate challenge to constructive denial of access under CLS CPLR Article 78; before Article 78 proceeding may be commenced, exhaustion of administrative remedies must take place. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4671.

Failure of agency to respond to request for record within designated time limits results in denial of access that may be appealed to head of agency or whomever is designated to determine appeal; that person or body has 10 business days from receipt of appeal to render determination. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4673.

Failure of agency to respond to request for records within designated time limits results in denial of access that may be appealed, and when determination is not rendered within 10 business days of receipt of appeal, appellant has exhausted his or her administrative remedies and may initiate challenge to constructive denial of access under CLS Civ Practice Rules Article 78. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4680.

Failure of agency to respond to request to records within designated time limits results in denial of access that may be appealed to head of agency or whomever is designated to determine appeals; that person already has 10 business days from receipt of appeal to render its determination. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4684.

If records received were not records requested, and agency's response was silent regarding its failure to make requested record available, response could be considered "constructive denial" which may be appealed; when appeal is made but determination is not rendered within 10 business days of receipt of appeal, appellant has exhausted his or her administrative remedies and may initiate challenge to constructive denial of access under CLS CPLR Article 78. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4687.

Failure of agency to respond to request for information within designated time limits results in denial of access and may be appealed to head of agency or whomever is designated to determine appeal; that person or body has 10 business days from receipt of appeal to render determination; however, when determination is not rendered within 10 business days, appellant has exhausted his or her administrative remedies and may initiate challenge to constructive denial of access under CLS CPLR Article 78. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4700.

Failure of agency to respond to request for information within designated time limits results in denial of access that may be appealed, and determination must be rendered within 10 days or else appellant exhausts his or her administrative remedies and may initiate challenge to constructive denial of access under CLS CPLR Article 78. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4716.

When appeal is made, but determination is not rendered within 10 business days of receipt of appeal, appellant has exhausted his or her administrative remedies and may initiate challenge to constructive denial of access under CLS CPLR Article 78. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4718.

Agency has 5 business days to respond to request for record and if they fail to respond within designated time limit denial of access may be appealed; appeal must be determined within 10 business days from receipt of appeal. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4753.

If agency officials respond to request for information by acknowledging receipt of request, response should indicate approximate date when determination of access will be made and cannot exceed 10 business days from date of acknowledgment. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4810.

When a request for copies of records has been denied and an appeal is made but a determination is not rendered within 10 business days of the receipt of the appeal as required by CLS Public Officers Law § 89(4)(a) of the Freedom of Information Law, the appellant has exhausted administrative remedies and may initiate a challenge to a constructive denial of access under CLS Civil Practice Rules, Article 78. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-6259 (1990).

C. Restrictions On Access

i. Generally

80. In general

Agency may use request forms so long as their use does not impair rights granted under FOIL; if requirement that form be completed prevents requested records from being made available within 5 business days of initial written request, then requirement is unnecessarily restrictive. Comm On Open Gov't FOIL-AO-3941.

Freedom of Information Law generally does not enable agency to restrict access to information because applicant seeks records for commercial purposes, and exception to disclosure pertains only to those lists that identify natural persons, rather than entities. 1986 Committee on Open Government FOIL-AO-4222.

If video tape is made available for viewing, agency must make copy available as well. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4697.

Status of applicant or purposes for which request is made are irrelevant to rights of access, and agency cannot inquire as to intended use of records; however, rights of access to political party membership lists of names and addresses, or equivalent records, may be contingent upon purpose for which request is made; agency may withhold records in conjunction with grounds for denial listed in Freedom of Information Law, nevertheless, agency is not obliged to withhold records, even when records may be withheld; therefore, even if political party membership lists could be withheld, Freedom of Information Law would not prohibit disclosure. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4866.

There is no provision of constitution or law that would authorize agency or representative to require that member of public "barter" in order to obtain information. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7936.

Town could not require applicant for records under Freedom of Information Law to abide by certain conditions prior to disclosure of records, such as requirement that applicant add disclaimer at top of each page that he received indicating that record was draft or unapproved. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9378.

Town clerk acted reasonably when she offered to allow applicant to listen to tape recordings of certain meetings of town board or to tape them by setting his own tape recorder in front of hers since clerk did not have equipment needed to copy tapes and could not relinquish custody of tapes as they were property of town. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9409.

Agency is not required to keep on hand requested records interminably and may inform applicant that he or she may inspect records or pay for copies of records within reasonable time, and that failing to receive response from applicant, request will be deemed withdrawn by date certain. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9491.

If records are in use by town employees at time of Freedom of Information Law request, 2 options are available: disclosure could be delayed until town employees are no longer actively using them, at which time they could be inspected at no charge, or second set could be copied and made available following payment of appropriate fee for photocopies. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12157.

Stated policy of Division of Parole, to honor requests made under Freedom of Information Law (FOIL) only in accordance with certain criteria, was invalid insofar as it was inconsistent with FOIL and judicial construction of FOIL. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12248.

Conditions imposed by private contractor ("Bidnet") on retrieval of county bid information maintained by Bidnet on county website, including registration requirements and prohibition of resale of information to third parties, were inconsistent with Freedom of Information Law and unenforceable. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-16508.

81. Mailing option required

Agency cannot require requester of documents to inspect them in person since under CLS Public Officers § 89, particular records may be made available by mail upon payment of requisite fees for photocopying and postage. Committee on Open Government FOIL-AO-3844.

So long as applicant for records is prepared to pay requisite fees for photocopying and postage, agency must mail records to applicant; since number of records, size of report or amount of postage often cannot be known in advance, agency could not require that envelope accompany request. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4654.

Agency's failure to mail accessible records to applicant who pays or offers to pay appropriate fees for copying and postage would constitute constructive denial of access to records; documents explaining why certain room was sealed due to presence of asbestos before removing records would likely be available because it is decision that affects public or final agency policy or determination. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4789.

Agency may not require applicant to make appointment to view or obtain records at its offices; further, assuming that applicant remits appropriate fee for copies, plus postage if it chooses to include such charge, agency would be required to send records accessible under Freedom of Information Law to applicant. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8536.

Agency or its records access officer cannot require requestor to travel to town hall or officer's home as condition precedent to gaining access to records; assuming that records can be located with reasonable effort and requestor is willing to pay appropriate fees for copying and postage, records access officer must make copies of records sought and mail them to requestor. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12288.

If agency is able to scan records in order to transmit them via email, and doing so will not involve any effort additional to alternative methods of responding, it is required to do so. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-16572.

82. Supervision of access

Agency may ensure that person inspecting or copying records be supervised. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8347.

Tacit agreement pursuant to which applicant was allowed to inspect school district records in conjunction with procedure under which appointment was made in advance of inspection was reasonable, so long as school district offered time or times to review records promptly and in manner consistent with intent of Freedom of Information Law. While agency is not required to do so, it may have staff person observe applicant for records while records are being inspected since agencies have responsibility to ensure that custody and integrity of their records is maintained. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9209.

Requestor, having been informed that school district records are available for review on given day, may review requested records during regular business hours with or without presence of district employee; extent to which district opts to have employee present while records are reviewed is matter of its discretion. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-10227.

83. Time restriction on access

When agency has regular business hours, it must accept requests during those hours; however, for variety of reasons, agency may reasonably limit time in which applicant may inspect or copy records. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8347.

Insofar as town offices operate during regular business hours, public should have opportunity to request and review records during those hours; if there are no regular business hours, appointment procedure must be devised. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8489.

Ability of agency to limit inspection of records to one person at time involves balancing public's rights and agency's need to carry out its responsibilities effectively; relevant factors include size of agency's staff and space available to agency. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8904.

Assuming that appointment is made, agency is required to permit applicant to inspect records during period of agency's regular business hours; agency cannot validly promulgate rules which limit time of inspection during business day. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9209.

With regard to appropriate frequency and duration of times during which one may inspect records, appropriate frequency of ability to inspect is based upon attendant facts and circumstances; if, for example, records are constantly in use by agency, it would be unreasonable to suggest that agency is required to provide inspection on ongoing basis over period of days or weeks. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9374.

Requestor, having been informed that school district records are available for review on given day, may review requested records during regular business hours with or without presence of district employee; extent to which district opts to have employee present while records are reviewed is matter of its discretion. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-10227.

Village cannot limit person's ability to inspect records to period less than its regular business hours. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12130.

Town planning board could not restrict ability to view or copy its records to times when board met since, even if records were in physical possession of planning board, they were in legal custody of town clerk who, as records access officer pursuant to CLS Town § 30, had duty to coordinate response to Freedom of Information Law requests. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2227.

Principle of reasonableness should govern number of times record may be inspected or how long request is considered to be active; thus, if request involves great number of records, agency cannot restrict inspection to single day, but it need not make same records available over and over if it would unnecessarily interfere with its capacity to carry out its duties. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2683.

ii. Fees

84. In general

If fees are prescribed by statute, they are valid even though they are in excess of fees prescribed by Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4641.

Unless another statute permits assessment of different fee, records accessible under Freedom of Information Law may be inspected free of charge, and agency cannot impose fee involving personnel costs. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4703.

Freedom of Information Law limits fees that agencies may charge when records are requested, except when different fee is otherwise prescribed by statute; since city administrative code is not statute enacted by state legislature, fee imposed by code is not valid under Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4911.

Where applicant requests inspection of records, agency may not prepare computer printouts of information and then seek to collect fee for printouts; agency should either make records available for inspection at no charge or, if computer printout has to be generated, agency should inform applicant in advance what fee will be. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8343.

Agency may not impose charge for cost of supervising those who inspect or copy records. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8347.

Because agency cannot charge for inspection of records available under Freedom of Information Law, applicant cannot be charged fee for listening to such tape. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8565.

When record is available in its entirely under Freedom of Information Law, any person has right to inspect record at no charge; however, there are often situations in which some aspects of record, but not entire record, may properly be withheld in accordance with grounds for denial appearing in CLS Pub O § 87(2) and, in those events, applicant does not have right to inspect record and agency may prepare redacted copy and charge established fee. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9643.

City would be obliged to provide information regarding race and ethnicity contained on police Field Interview Forms (FIFs) if city had ability to generate such data, if it had capacity to segregate that data from items that need not be disclosed, and if applicant were willing to pay actual cost of reproduction as envisioned by CLS Pub O § 87(1)(b)(iii). Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12565.

85. Computer-related fees, generally

86. —Computer digitized maps

Fee of $750 sought to be charged by county for computer digitized map, which could fit on single diskette, appeared to be excessive and inconsistent with Freedom of Information Law and its judicial interpretation. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8528.

Fee of $250 sought to be charged by county appeared to be excessive and inconsistent with Freedom of Information Law and its judicial interpretation where county intended to charge that amount for making its budget available on computer disk based on costs for workers' time in getting data, computer time and overhead costs. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8525.

$250 fee charged by City of Ithaca for copy of its municipal codes and regulations on computer disk appeared to be excessive and inconsistent with Freedom of Information Law; fee for reproducing electronic information involves cost of computer time, plus cost of information storage medium (i.e., computer tape or disk) to which data is transferred. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9830.

If applicant requests computer printout of records from which appropriate deletions must be made, applicant can be charged up to 25 cents per photocopy for duplication of printouts up to 9 by 14 inches in size. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-10213.

If New York City Department of Environmental Protection (DEP) is required by NYC Admin Code § 24-707 to print entire contents of its Citywide Facility Inventory Database (CFID), equivalent information must also be made available in electronic format, assuming that conversion of format can be accomplished, that data sought is available under FOIL, that data can be transferred from format in which it is maintained to format in which it is requested, and if applicant is willing to pay actual cost of reproduction. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12559.

87. Copying fee, generally

88. —Accident reports

Only act of state legislature, statute, would permit assessment of fee higher than 25 cents for photocopy; however, since statute authorizing copying fee of $3.50 for accident reports applies to particular record in possession of department of motor vehicles only, other agencies, such as municipal police departments, cannot unilaterally adopt the policy or regulations authorizing fees in excess of 25 cents for photocopy without specific statutory authority to do so. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4768.

Fee of $10.00 charged by county sheriff's department for copy of accident report, even if authorized by county board of supervisors, was invalid. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12263.

89. —Advance payment requirement

Agency may require advance payment of fee for copying records, particularly when request is voluminous. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9643.

When agency produces copies of records in response to request under Freedom of Information Law, but applicant for records has not paid requisite fee, agency can refuse to honor further requests until fee is paid. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9659.

When agency produces copies of records in response to request, but applicant for records has not paid requisite fee, agency can refuse to honor further requests until fee is paid. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-10008.

90. —Maximum of 25 cents per photocopied page

Freedom of Information Law allows agency to charge up to $.25 cents per photocopy or actual cost of reproducing records that cannot be photocopied, unless another statute permits higher fee to be assessed; Freedom of Information Law makes no reference to capacity to charge for personnel costs, search time, or time needed to evaluate contents of records in terms of rights of access; however, after October 15, 1982, only act of state legislature or statute permit assessment of search fee, fee higher than $.25 cents per photocopy or fee that exceeds actual cost of reproduction; New York City Administrative Code is not viewed as statute that exempts records from Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4588.

Prior to October 15, 1982, local law, ordinance, or regulation establishing fee in excess of 25 cents per photocopy or higher than actual cost of reproduction was valid; however, currently under Freedom of Information Act, only act of state legislature, statute, would permit assessment of fee higher than 25 cents for photocopy, or fee that exceeds actual cost of reproduction. Comm On Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4597.

Under Freedom of Information Law, agency may charge up to 25 cents per photocopy; however, agency may not assess fee for making request for search or labor unless statute other than Freedom of Information Law permits such fees to be assessed; in addition, CLS Pub Health § 18 generally grants access to medical records to subjects of those records, but subject can be charged for reasonable fee for labor; however, records cannot be withheld solely due to inability to pay. Comm On Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4609.

Generally, agency may not charge for time spent by employee in evaluating record or for making deletions; only fee that could be charged when there is no state statute which prescribes fee, is not more than 25 cents per page and no charge of additional fee for deletion of portions of records. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4618.

Under Freedom of Information Law, agency may charge up to 25 cents per photocopy; however, there is exception when different fee is otherwise prescribed by statute. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4625.

Unless different statute prescribes higher fee, agency may charge up to 25 cents for photocopy for records. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4646.

Only act of state legislature would permit assessment of photocopy fee higher then 25 cents per copy; therefore, local law could not validly raise fee for copies beyond 25 cents per photocopy. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4668.

Agency may charge up to $.25 per page for photocopies of records except when different fee is prescribed by statute other than Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4750.

Freedom of Information Law permits agency to charge up to 25 cents for photocopy, unless different fee is prescribed by statute; statute is act of state legislature and does not include rule, regulation or policy adopted by agency. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4782.

Both town and village are limited to charging no more than 25 cents for photocopy for records, except in instances in which statute, act of state legislature, permits them to charge higher fee; even if minutes have not been approved by committee, they are nonetheless public records and therefore subject to rights of access granted by Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4794.

Agency may not charge more than 25 cents per page for photocopies, except when different fee is otherwise prescribed by statute; moreover, regulations specifically indicate that no fee may be charged for search for records except as otherwise prescribed by statute; since there is no statute that specifically prescribes search fees that may be charged by New York City Fire Department, Department cannot charge a fee for search of information; consequently, if search fee was established by rule or policy rather than by means of enactment of state legislature, it would be invalid. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4870.

Only act of state legislature would permit assessment of fee higher than 25 cents per photocopy, or fee that exceeds actual cost of reproducing records that cannot be photocopied. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4944.

With respect to fees, unless another statute permits assessment of different fee, records accessible under Freedom of Information Law may be inspected free of charge and agency cannot impose fee involving personnel costs; when copies are requested, agency may charge up to 25 cents per photocopy for actual cost of reproducing records that cannot be photocopied, unless otherwise provided by statute other than Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4953.

Freedom of Information Law states that accessible records are available for inspection and copying, and upon payment of appropriate fee, agency must make copies of records; only act of state legislature would permit assessment of fee higher than 25 cents per photocopy, or fee that exceeds actual cost of reproducing records that cannot be photocopied. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4954.

91. —Photographs; video reproductions

With regard to meetings of Town Board which are videotaped and aired on public access television, town was not required to purchase new equipment to acquire capacity to copy videotapes and, when copy of videotape was requested, local commercial service or perhaps school or library could reproduce tape and Town could charge for actual cost of reproduction. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8306.

If photocopy of photograph serves as adequate reproduction of such record, photocopy will likely suffice to comply with Freedom of Information Law; however, if photocopy does not serve to provide accurate method of reproducing what appears on photograph, agency is obliged to "copy" record-i.e., prepare reprint of photograph, upon payment of actual cost of reproduction. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9370.

Agency may not charge file search fee nor may agency, by other means, charge additional fees or raise costs of obtaining copies beyond amounts indicated in Freedom of Information Law unless so authorized by state or federal statute to do so. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4838.

Accessible records are available for inspection and copying; therefore, if record is accessible, it may be inspected and if, after inspection copies are needed, applicant may be required to pay fee for copying. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4961.

Freedom of Information Law provides right to inspect and copy records, which means that person may inspect records and may, with pen and paper, copy contents of records; however, if applicant requests agency to provide photocopies of accessible records, Freedom of Information Law requires that agency prepare photocopies upon payment of, or offer to pay, requisite fees for photocopying; further, agency may require that request be made in writing; while agency is required to make photocopies, it is not required to provide records to applicants so that applicant may make photocopies. If applicant requests agency to provide photocopies of accessible records, Freedom of Information Law requires that agency prepare photocopies upon payment of, or offer to pay, requisite fees for photocopying; further, agency may require that request be made in writing. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4982.

If copies are requested and agency makes them, applicant can be required to pay appropriate fee; however, if applicant seeks to inspect accessible records no fee can be charged. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7606.

Agency may require payment of fees for copying in advance of preparing copies. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8306.

When person requests copies of records and agency produces records as required by law, but applicant has not paid or refuses to pay fee, based on principles of fairness, agencies need not accede to ensuing requests until applicant has paid requisite fee regarding earlier request for copies. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8343.

When accessible and deniable information must, of necessity, appear on same page, practice of preparing redacted copy and charging established fee is fully justifiable; however, if records are designed to ensure that some portion of content of each page may be withheld, and if design is intended to ensure that records cannot be inspected at no charge, such practice would represent abuse of Freedom of Information Law and conflict with its clear intent. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8391.

City's department of law acted reasonably when it informed applicant that she should either arrange appointment to view requested materials or arrange payment of fee required to make copies of materials within 10 days by contacting particular individual who was identified by name and phone number and, further, that failure to do so would be deemed withdrawal of request. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9491.

City was required to accept United States currency as legal tender for payment for photocopies prepared in response to request under Freedom of Information Law and could not require payment by means of money order. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9652.

Agency could charge photocopying fee for documents that would be transmitted to requester by email, where portions of documents were exempted from disclosure, and only method of transmitting portions that were accessible to public involved preparation of photocopies from which appropriate redactions would be made, then scanning redacted information for email purposes. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-16571.

92. Postage costs; mailing fees

There is no statute that would preclude village from charging its postage cost when mailing records requested under Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8306.

Neither Freedom of Information Law nor regulations promulgated by Committee on Open Government (21 NYCRR Part 1401) deals with cost of or assessment of charges for postage when copies are mailed to applicant, and neither prohibits agency from charging for postage. Mailing copies of records to applicant represents additional service provided by agency that is separate from duties imposed by Freedom of Information Law; agency must mail copies of records to applicant upon payment of appropriate fees for copying and postage; alternatively, if it informs applicant of cost of postage, agency can require that applicant provide stamped self-addressed envelope. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8450.

93. Waiver of fees

Even though department of correctional services, pursuant to Freedom of Information Law, permits custodian of department records to waive copying fee, there is no requirement that fee must be waived; superintendent of correctional facility is "custodian of records". Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4621.

Accessible records may be inspected free of charge and if copies of records are requested, agency may generally charge up to 25 cents per photocopy or actual cost of reproducing records that cannot be photocopied; no fee may be assessed under Freedom of Information Law for search time or personnel costs involved in viewing or evaluating contents of records; regulations promulgated by Department of Correctional Services under Freedom of Information Law provides in part that custodian of records, such as facility superintendent, may, in his discretion, waive all or any portion of fees authorized by regulations for any department record; as such, when requesting records of Department of Correctional Services, waiver of fee may be sought. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4856.

Agency may assess fees for copies of records sought under Freedom of Information Law even when applicant for records demonstrates that he or she is unable to pay; when records are accessible, requestor may inspect them at no charge. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12047.

There is nothing in Freedom of Information Law that requires that agency waive fees, irrespective of status of applicant for records; further, agency may charge its established fees even though applicant is indigent inmate. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12702.

iii. Records Not Possessed Or Maintained

a. Generally

94. In general

Freedom of Information Law does not require agency to create or prepare record in response to request. Comm On Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4591.

Freedom of information law pertains to existing records, and agency generally is not required to create new record in response to request. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4643.

Unless specific direction is otherwise provided, agency need not create nor prepare record in response to request, and while officials and employees may answer the inquiries, Freedom of Information Law does not require them to do so; however, law does require that agency officials respond to request for records. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4699.

Freedom of Information Law pertains to existing records and, as general matter, agency need not create or prepare record in response to request for information; when requesting records, requestor should make sure to do so, rather than asking questions. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4712.

Freedom of Information Law pertains to existing records, and agency is not required to create or prepare records in response to request; to extent that information sought does not exist in form of records, agency would not be obligated to prepare new records. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4757.

Agency is not required to create or prepare record in response to request; therefore, if information sought does not exist in form of record or records, agency officials would not be required by Freedom of Information Law to create new record in order to respond to request. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4775.

Freedom of Information Law enables applicant to request existing records; it does not require agency officials to respond to questions or create new record in response to request. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4831.

Freedom of Information Law pertains to existing records maintained by agencies and does not generally require agencies to answer questions or prepare or create records in response to request; when requesting information, requester should specify that certain records are sought instead of simply asking questions. Freedom of Information Law pertains to rights of access to existing records only. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4853.

Freedom of Information Law pertains to existing records and agency is not required to create or prepare record in response to request. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4876.

Freedom of Information Law is vehicle that requires agency officials to respond to requests for records; it does not require that agency officials answer questions or create new records in response to question or request for "information". Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4883.

Freedom of Information Law pertains to access of existing records and, as such, Law does not require that agencies prepare or create record in response to request. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4884.

Freedom of Information Law does not require agency officials to answer questions or provide information that does not exist in form of record or records; rather, it is vehicle under which any person may seek existing records, irrespective of applicant's status or interest. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4889.

Freedom of Information Law pertains to rights of access to existing records maintained by agencies; Law does not require that agencies answer questions or prepare record in response to request for "information". Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4906.

Freedom of Information Law generally pertains to existing records and agency need not create or prepare record in response to request. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4912.

Freedom of Information Law pertains to existing records and agency need not create or prepare record in response to request; as such, Freedom of Information Law does not require agency officials to answer questions when their answers would involve preparation of new records; further, although agency officials may and often do answer questions, there is no law that requires them to do so. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4930.

Freedom of Information Law generally pertains to existing records and agency need not create or prepare record in response to request, unless specific direction to contrary is provided. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4942.

Freedom of Information Law pertains to existing records and agency is generally not required to create record in response to request. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4943.

Freedom of Information Law pertains to existing records and agency is not required to create record in response to request. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4949.

Freedom of Information Law pertains to rights of access to existing records maintained by entities of state and local government and, as such, Law does not require agencies to answer questions, or prepare record in response to request. Comm On Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4977.

95. "Aggregate" or statistical data

If totals or breakdown of information requested have not been statistically prepared and do not appear in existing records, agency would not be required to create new records in response to such requests. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4630.

Requests should be directed to agency that maintains records sought; agency is not required to prepare or create record in response to request; therefore, if no statistics concerning stabbings at correctional facilities have been prepared, agency, when receiving such request, would not be obliged to create records containing such statistics. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4874.

96. Appealability

Statement that agency does not maintain memoranda or related records which are requested, and that agency was unable to locate regulations sought, was not denial, and therefore agency's response cannot be subject to appeal. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4715.

Statement that agency does not maintain record sought is not denial, for agency cannot withhold records that it does not maintain; therefore, such response to initial request does not provide basis on which to appeal and such response to appeal does not provide basis to commence CLS CPLR Article 78 proceeding; in response to request for records agency shall provide copy of such record and certify correctness of such copy if so requested, or if case may be, shall certify that it does not have possession of such record or that such record cannot be found after diligent search. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4891.

97. Certification matters

Freedom of Information Law does not obligate city official to create additional record in effort to respond to request for record; denial of records must be in writing with stated reasons; if agency indicates that it does not have requested record, upon request, records access officer shall certify that it does not have possession of such record where such record cannot be found after diligent search. Comm On Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4589.

Denial of record must be made in writing, stating reasons and informing applicant of name and address of person or body to whom appeal may be made; when requested records cannot be located, agency shall certify that it does not have possession of such record or that such record cannot be found after diligent search. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4717.

Where agency has made substantial effort to locate records requested, agency may, upon request, certify that it does not have possession of such record or that such record does not exist after diligent search. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4910.

When agency indicates that it does not maintain or cannot locate record, applicant for record may seek certification to that effect. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9157.

Where agency cannot find records requested under Freedom of Information Law, it cannot and need not prepare certified itemized listing of records it was unable to find. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9411.

98. Computerized records; tape or disks

The necessity of altering existing computer programs to obtain information sought by a requesting individual under the Freedom of Information Law would represent the equivalent of creating a new record. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-2999.

Although computer tapes and disks constitute records subject to rights of access under the Freedom of Information Law, the Law does not require the agency to conduct reprogramming for the purpose of gaining access to a particular item of information. Comm on Open Govt FOIL-AO 3038.

Freedom of Information Law does not require agency to provide requester with transcript of tape recording if agency does not already have such transcript; however, copy of tape recording should be made available, upon offer to pay cost of its reproduction. Comm on Open Govt FOIL-AO-3726.

There is no basis for denying access to computer tape or disc which contains New York State telephone directory for Albany, New York City, Long Island and Westchester since records sought contain names, public office addresses and public office telephone numbers of the New York State employees, and none of grounds for denial could appropriately be asserted; if record is available, it is available for both inspection and copying. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4653.

If extraction of information stored in computer would require reprogramming, agency is not required to reprogram because this is equivalent of creating record. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4658.

Freedom of Information Law pertains to rights of access to existing records and does not require agency to create or prepare record in response to request; similarly, assuming that some of data is maintained on computers, agency would not be required to develop new programs or reprogram to extract data that might otherwise be available; if agency does not maintain records in format requested, Law would not require agency to prepare or produce records in such format. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4747.

Freedom of Information Law provides that agency is not required to create or prepare record in response to request, so if county does not have capacity to provide data in computer mode in which it was requested, Freedom of Information Law would not require county to create or prepare record in such mode or format. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4897.

Where Department of Correctional Services can retrieve information sought on computer, computer disks and similar media constitute "records" subject to rights of access; therefore, information kept by Department, in any physical form whatsoever would constitute "record"; if information sought can be printed out based upon existing programs, retrieval could not be equated with creation of new record; if, however, printout can be produced only by creating new programs or software, preparation of new programs would likely be equivalent of creating new record, an act that Department would not be required to perform. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4901.

When information is maintained electronically—e.g., in computer—if information sought is available under Freedom of Information Law and may be retrieved by means of existing computer programs, agency is required to disclose information. If information sought can be retrieved from computer or other storage medium only by means of new programming or alteration of existing programs, those steps would be equivalent of creating new record, which is not required by CLS Pub O § 89(3); thus, agency is not required by Freedom of Information Law to reprogram or develop new programs to retrieve information that would otherwise be available. If agency chooses to engage in development of new or altered programs in order to retrieve requested information that could not otherwise be compiled, it would be acting beyond requirements of Freedom of Information Law and, therefore, could charge for such service based upon considerations separate from provisions concerning assessment of fees described in CLS Pub O § 87(1)(b)(iii). Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7595.

Computerized listing of all licensed passenger-car drivers residing in 3 counties would be available under Freedom of Information Law if Department of Motor Vehicles could generate requested data based on its existing computer programs; CLS Veh & Tr § 202 does not prohibit applicant from seeking database or portion of database consisting of driver license information. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-10106.

Under Freedom of Information Law, New York City Board of Elections may charge "actual cost" of reproducing computer tapes of voter registration lists (namely, computer time plus cost of tape or disk); because time and effort involved in transferring data from one storage medium to another is minimal, alleged fee of $400 to $1,000 was inconsistent with Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12067.

County was not obligated to develop capacity to transfer requested data onto compact discs if it did not have ability to do so, but if it was able to make data available in different form (such as printout, tape or floppy disc) it was required to do so to extent that data was not exempt from disclosure and requestor was willing to pay appropriate fee. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12191.

99. Records for public distribution

Unless information sought is maintained in some physical form, agency is not required to respond orally or in writing to inquiries from public; agency need not create records which do not already exist. Committee on Open Government FOIL-AO-3836.

Freedom of Information Law is vehicle under which public may seek and generally obtain existing records; it is not vehicle that requires agency officials to answer questions or prepare new records in response to request for information; further, as general rule, agency may not create or prepare record and response to request. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4720.

100. Records not in retrievable format

If information sought does not exist in form of record requested, agency is not obliged to create new form of record on basis of request; further, agency is not required by Freedom of Information Law to answer questions. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4707.

Freedom of Information Law requires that agency grant or deny access to existing records and that agency generally need not create record in response to request; to extent that information sought does exist in form of record or records, general records sought should be made available. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4719.

If accessible information that is sought can be retrieved from computer or other storage medium only by means of reprogramming or altering existing programs, the steps would be equivalent of creating new record. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4739.

Freedom of Information Law requires that applicant reasonably describe records sought and if agency can locate requested records based on terms of request, applicant has reasonably described such records; however, if agency cannot determine which records have been requested, standard of "reasonably describing" records is not met and in some instances, while records sought might exist, they may not be retrievable due to nature of agency's filing system; also, agency need not create or prepare record in response to request. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4970.

If no report exists in format described or containing each of elements indicated in request for disclosure, agency officials are not obliged to compile or create new record containing information or prepare new record in desired format. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7606.

Freedom of Information Law does not require agency to create record in response to request; therefore, if authority does not maintain record containing payment breakdown in relation to contract, Freedom of Information Law would not require that such record be prepared in response to request. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-4733.

101. Records required by law

Agency is not required to create or prepare record in response to request, except record as specified in CLS Pub O § 87(3). Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4711.

b. Particular Types Of Records

102. Court records

If notice concerning pending lawsuits had been prepared by agency, agency would not be required to create such a list; however, individual records that identify pending lawsuits would be available for disclosure. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4675.

Since it is questionable whether court or court clerk would maintain record containing total or tabulation of number of cases that were transferred from one court to another, if no record exists containing figures sought, there would be no obligation to create such record or total on requester's behalf. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4862.

Even though other statutes may deal with access to court records, procedural provisions associated with Freedom of Information Law (i.e., those involving designation of records access officer or right to appeal denial) would not ordinarily be applicable. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12802.

If request involves records maintained by County Clerk in his capacity as court clerk, Freedom of Information Law would not apply. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12802.

Grand jury minutes and "other matters attending a grand jury proceeding" would be outside scope of rights conferred by Freedom of Information Law; any disclosure of those records would be based on court order or perhaps vehicle authorizing or requiring disclosure that is separate and distinct from Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12802.

103. Employment; labor, generally

If no records exist that provide total of compensation paid to Village attorney for given period, agency would not be required to review individual records for purpose of preparing new record containing total; however, individual records, or portions thereof, might be made available in order that person requesting information can independently prepare their own total. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4056.

Department of taxation and finance is required to maintain list setting forth name, public office address, title and salary of every officer or employee of agency and must make this tape available; however, if department does not keep this list on computer tape or disk, it cannot provide what it does maintain; further, Freedom of Information Law does not require information be placed on computer tape or disk. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4781.

If list of employees is maintained only on paper and agency lacks capacity to generate list electronically, it is not obliged to develop electronic database containing contents of list in order to accommodate applicant's request that list be provided in electronic form and e-mailed to him. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12105.

104. Financial records, generally

105. —Political contributions

If city does not maintain list of contributors and amounts of contributions made to project, it could not provide copy of such record; but, assuming that city has possession of list of contributors, it would appear that some aspects of list would be available, while others could be withheld. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4899.

Issuance of duplicate tax bill does not pertain to creation of new document, but rather duplication of existing record; therefore,

Freedom of Information Law pertains to existing records because agency is not required to prepare new record in response to request. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4668.

Freedom of Information Law does not require agency to create record in response to request; therefore, if authority does not maintain record containing payment breakdown in relation to contract, Freedom of Information Law would not require that such record be prepared in response to request. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-4733.

106. Guns; gun permits

There was no law that required preparation of policies or procedures concerning restricted pistol licenses; thus, if no such records had been prepared, neither Freedom of Information Law nor any other statute would require they be created and, therefore, Freedom of Information Law and similar or related statutes would be inapplicable. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7918.

In regard to request to "physically see approved gun license applications" for persons living in several specifically stated zip codes, where police department did not maintain records sought by means of address or zip code, it would not be required by Freedom of Information Law to review all of approved applications individually in order to locate those pertaining to licensees within those zip codes. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8315.

107. Landlord and tenant records

Agency would not be required to prepare list of names and addresses of landlords who leased space to town if no such list exists; however, individual records identifying landlords or leases would be available thereby enabling request to prepare own list. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4698.

108. Medical and health records

Freedom of Information Law pertains to existing records and agency need not create or prepare record in response to request; therefore, if information sought does not exist in form of record or records, health department would not be obliged to create or prepare new records on requestor's behalf. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4860.

109. Municipal records

Town is required to disclose existing records in accordance with Freedom of Information Law, but it is not obliged to create new records or review its records for purpose of preparing totals or tabulations. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4725.

If town board has not prepared record containing explanation of its decision, it would not be required to do so pursuant to request made under Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4727.

Freedom of Information Law pertains to existing records and an entity is not required to create or prepare record in response to request; therefore, if there is no list of district offices of specific senators, senate would not be obliged to prepare list based upon request. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4820.

Freedom of Information Law pertains to existing records and agency is generally not required to create or prepare records in response to requests; therefore, if office of mayor maintains no record containing proof of qualification for appointment, there would be no obligation to create such records based on requests. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4886.

Insofar as town records are in physical possession of town's consultant, in response to request for any such records, records access officer, in carrying out his or her duty to "coordinate" town's response to requests, must either direct consultant to make records available in manner consistent with law, or acquire records in order that they may be disclosed in accordance with law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-13045.

110. Police records, generally

Agency may withhold records compiled for law enforcement purposes when they identify confidential source relating to criminal investigation, when disclosure would endanger life or safety of any person, or when disclosure would constitute unwarranted invasion of personal privacy; Freedom of Information Law does not require agency to create or prepare record or response to request. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4573.

All agencies, including police departments, must maintain reasonably detailed current list by subject matter, of all records in possession of agency and these subject matter lists will be available for disclosure. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4660.

Agency is not required to create or prepare record in response to request; if no record is kept by police department that indicates length of time taken to reassemble pistol as evidence, or which indicates exact procedures that were used to reassemble pistol, police department officials would not be required to prepare such records in response to request. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4702.

Freedom of Information Law pertains to rights of access to existing records maintained by agencies, thus, agency, such as New York City Police Department, is not required to answer questions or supply information generally in response to request; further, agency is not required to obtain records from other agencies in order to respond to request. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4915.

Police officer's certification on behalf of Division of State Police, stating that diligent search was made and requested records either were not maintained or could not be found, was inadequate unless certifying officer herself had personally made search. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12223.

111. Prisoners; prison records

Requests should be directed to agency that maintains records sought; agency is not required to prepare or create record in response to request; therefore, if no statistics concerning stabbings at correctional facilities have been prepared, agency, when receiving such request, would not be obliged to create records containing such statistics. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4874.

Freedom of Information Law pertains to existing records and if there is no record that lists all inmates and correction officers who were transported to correctional facility, Department of Correctional Services would not be required to create such records based on request. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4877.

Since CLS Arts & Cultural Affairs Law § 57.05 permits destruction records older than two years, Commissioner of Correction was justified in purging records older than two years, and request for copy of "incident report" filed more than two years after the incident was not timely. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-6320 (1990).

If inmate's name or other identifier can be used to locate records or portions of records that would identify inmate's visitors, it would likely be easy to retrieve that information, and request would reasonably describe records; on other hand, if there are chronological logs of visitors and each page would have to be reviewed in effort to identify visitors of particular inmate, agency staff would not be required to engage in such extensive search. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8439.

112. Public Defender's office

If county office of public defender does not maintain records sought, there would be no obligation on its part to prepare records on applicant's behalf. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12535.

113. Schools; students, teachers and other staff

City officials would not be required by Freedom of Information Law to prepare record that identifies firms which are interested in buying certain school when there is no list or record that identifies firms since communications had been oral in nature. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4582.

Although Freedom of Information Law provides broad rights of access, it pertains to existing records; education department does not maintain any list that contains names and current addresses of college alumni, and though education department would provide information containing current addresses of alumni if they maintained information, department cannot make available what it does not have. Comm On Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4599.

If school district does not maintain payroll lists, Freedom of Information Law would not require school district to create or prepare such lists based on request. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4752.

If no record or records falling within the scope of a request had been prepared by a school district, the Freedom of Information

Law does not require the district to create new records to satisfy the request. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-6330 (1990).

If school district had prepared policy concerning responses to inquiries by residents, such record would be available under Freedom of Information Law since CLS Pub O § 87(2)(g)(iii) requires that agency policy be disclosed; however, if no such records existed, district would not be obliged to create or prepare new record on behalf of applicant. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8556.

II. Unwarranted Invasion Of Personal Privacy

A. Generally

114. In general

Unwarranted invasion of personal privacy under Freedom of Information Law pertains only to privacy of individuals, so to extent that list of names and addresses pertains to businesses or corporations, it would not constitute unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4584.

Purpose for obtaining consent of third person when requesting records is to make records available to that third party when record sought might otherwise be withheld on basis that disclosure would constitute unwarranted invasion of personal privacy of person to whom records pertain. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4659.

While Personal Privacy Protection Law, when read in conjunction with Freedom of Information Law, precludes agency from publicly releasing records, which, if disclosed, would constitute unwarranted invasion of personal privacy, Personal Privacy Protection Law preserves rights granted by Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4708.

Provisions in Freedom of Information Law pertaining to privacy are intended to deal with details of lives of natural persons, rather than entities, such as corporations; business addresses of corporate owners of building pertain to their activities as corporate owners; home addresses, however, are likely of little relevance to agency and can be withheld as unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4739.

Agency may inquire with respect to purpose of request when request involves list of names and addresses to determine whether records would be used for commercial purpose and, therefore, whether disclosure would result in unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4818.

Unwarranted invasion of personal privacy pertains to records identifiable to natural persons, rather than hospitals or corporate entities, for example; lists including names and addresses of natural persons would be accessible or deniable depending upon its use; those portions of lists pertaining to entities are accessible, irrespective of intended use; those portions pertaining to natural persons would be accessible or deniable, depending upon whether list would be used for fund-raising purposes. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4879.

If request is made for list of names and addresses or its equivalent, purpose for which request is made may become relevant to rights of access based on unwarranted invasion of personal privacy, especially when that list may be used for commercial or fund raising purposes. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4926.

When complaint is made, there may be considerations of privacy that properly result in denial of access to records or perhaps deletion of identifying details to protect against unwarranted invasion of personal privacy; however, if complaint was sent by person who made it to members of news media, disclosure would not result in unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4946.

With regard to CLS Pub O § 87(2)(b), which permits agency to withhold records to extent that disclosure would constitute unwarranted invasion of personal privacy, nature and content of personally identifiable information, rather than identity of agency that maintains it, are factors to consider in analysis of rights of access or authority to withhold. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7858.

Examples contained in CLS Pub O § 89(2)(b) are not determinative of all issues that arise relating to application of privacy standard. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7868.

Building plans per se contain no personal information concerning individual and, therefore, those kinds of records cannot be withheld on ground that disclosure would constitute unwarranted invasion of personal privacy under CLS Pub O § 87(2)(b). Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7921.

Provisions in Freedom of Information Law pertaining to privacy are intended to deal with natural persons, rather than entities, such as corporations, hospitals, other health care facilities or insurers. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7947.

If identity of complainants is not known to applicant, often portions of records identifying them may be withheld under CLS Pub O § 87(2)(b); however, where identity of complainant is clearly known privacy provisions are inapplicable. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8413.

Portions of complaint that identify complainants may be withheld from disclosure pursuant to CLS Pub O § 87(2)(b) on ground that disclosure would result in unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9673.

Privacy provisions of Freedom of Information Law do not apply when records identify commercial entities or persons acting in their business capacities. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9888.

Freedom of Information Law exception concerning protection of personal privacy pertains to natural persons, not corporate entities. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-10050.

Assuming that no other ground for denial is applicable, request made by subject of request for records pertaining to him, or by his representative who has obtained written release authorizing disclosure to representative, cannot be denied based on CLS Pub O § 87(2)(b); however, to extent that persons other than applicant are identified in records, privacy considerations may arise relative to those individuals warranting deletion of identifying details or certain portions of records. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-10166.

Provisions in Freedom of Information Law pertaining to protection of personal privacy may not be asserted to withhold records pertaining to entities other than natural persons. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12559.

Local government may opt to disclose personal information, even when disclosure would result in unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12594.

Recipients' responses to survey conducted by public agency would be accessible under Freedom of Information Law if recipients were informed that their responses would be made available, or if their responses were anonymous, but if they were given no indication that their names and/or addresses would be disclosed, and those items were included in their responses, then disclosure of those or other personally identifying details would result in unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-16618.

115. Deletion of identifying details

General listing of all gubernatorial appointees, without reference to data pertaining to ethnicity or race, would be accessible under Freedom of Information Law; however, if appointee's race or ethnicity is irrelevant to performance of his or her official duties, such record could likely be withheld under FOIL; consequently, to extent that list of all appointees contains racial or ethnic data identifiable to appointees, such data could be deleted on grounds that disclosure would constitute unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. Comm on Open Govt FOIL-AO-3604.

Substance of complaint made to public agency is generally available, although those portions of complaint which identify complainants may be deleted on ground that disclosure would result in "an unwarranted invasion of personal privacy" pursuant to CLS Pub O § 87(2)(b). Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9214.

If final determination of public body identifies person who is subject of charge or allegation and determination is that charge or allegation has no merit, applicant for records under Freedom of Information Law has right to obtain substance of determination, following deletion of personally identifiable details. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9399.

Student grades in class taught by professor at State University of New York were accessible under Freedom of Information Law, provided that any identifying details pertaining to students' identities were withheld; for example, if student grades appeared alphabetically, then university would be required to scramble content of records so that no student could be identified. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-16598.

While volunteer ambulance corporation could deny access to portions of records identifying those to whom medical services were rendered, their ages and descriptions of their medical problems or conditions, because disclosure of name coupled with those details would reveal personal and somewhat intimate aspect of individual's life, other information (such as locations of calls) had to be disclosed; emergency call, particularly when sirens or flashing lights are used, is public event, and destination of fire truck or ambulance is or can be known to those in vicinity of event. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3508.

Portion of ethics complaint that identifies complainant may be redacted by town ethics board on ground that disclosure would result in unwarranted invasion of personal privacy unless name of complainant has already been disclosed by himself and others. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3712.

116. Disclosure of names and addresses

"Staff roster" which includes home addresses and home telephone numbers may be withheld since, under CLS Pub O § 89, disclosure of home address of officer or employee is not required. Committee on Open Government FOIL-AO-3399.

List of only names of retirees of public employees' retirement system should be made available under Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Govt FOIL-AO-3642.

New York City Community Development Agency could be required to disclose names and addresses of member of publicly elected community "Area Policy Board", despite fact that, under CLS Pub O § 89(7) agency would not be required to disclose home addresses of its officers or employees, since governing provisions of federal law, as well as procedures adopted by Community Development Agency, require that names and home addresses be disclosed. Comm on Open Govt FOIL-AO-3718.

Agency may ask purpose of request when request involves list of names and addresses, since pursuant to § 89, agency may deny access to records which, if disclosed, would constitute unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4141.

While status of applicant and purpose for which request is made are generally irrelevant in determining right of access, purpose is relevant when list of names and addresses is requested, consequently, agency's practice of ascertaining purpose of request that involves list of names and addresses or its equivalent is proper. 1986 Committee on Open Government FOIL-AO-4186.

Under CLS Pub Off § 87(2), records indicating identities of contractors or concessionaires under contract with Long Island State Park Commission, expenditures of Commission and similar records, and records identifying past and present members of Commission would be available for public review but, under § 89(7) of such Law, home addresses of Commission members or names of prospective members need not be made available. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4486.

All records of agency are available, except to extent that records or portions thereof fall within one or more of grounds for denial in CLS Pub O § 87(2)(a) through (i); agency may withhold records to extent that disclosure would constitute unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4572.

Although Freedom of Information Law provides broad rights of access, it permits agency to withhold records when disclosure would constitute unwarranted invasion of personal privacy; request for names and addresses of all persons arrested and or convicted of DWI charge in past 3 years will be denied. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4581.

Although Freedom of Information Law provides broad rights of access, it pertains to existing records; education department does not maintain any list that contains names and current addresses of college alumni, and though education department would provide information containing current addresses of alumni if they maintained information, department cannot make available what it does not have. Comm On Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4599.

Rights of access to political party membership lists of names and addresses, or equivalent records, may be contingent upon purpose for which request is made; agency may withhold records in conjunction with grounds for denial listed in Freedom of Information Law, nevertheless, agency is not obliged to withhold records, even when records may be withheld; therefore, even if political party membership lists could be withheld, Freedom of Information Law would not prohibit disclosure. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4866.

Lists including names and addresses of natural persons would be accessible or deniable depending upon its use; those portions of lists pertaining to entities are accessible, irrespective of intended use; those portions pertaining to natural persons would be accessible or deniable, depending upon whether list would be used for fund-raising purposes. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4879.

List of names and addresses of licensed dog owners for certain counties could be withheld since it was apparent that list was to be used for commercial purposes involving "canine fencing". Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-6215 (1990).

117. Disclosure of Social Security numbers

Aspects of resume of public employee indicating, inter alia, individual's home address, and social security number might, if disclosed, constitute unwarranted invasion of personal privacy as irrelevant to performance of official duties; contrarily, since FOIL has long granted access to name, public office address, title, and salary of all agency employees, those portions of resume indicating previous public employment in New York are available. Comm On Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4010.

Bills, vouchers, contracts and similar records involving payments to or expenditures by public employees are relevant to performance of their official duties and as such those types of records would be available on the ground that disclosure would constitute permissible rather than unwarranted invasion of personal privacy; however, some aspects of these records could be deleted as unwarranted invasion of personal privacy, such as public employees' home addresses or social security numbers which have no relevance to performance of one's official duties. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4763.

Whether city human rights commission or employing agency maintains employee's social security number is irrelevant in terms of Freedom of Information Law; either can withhold that item as unwarranted invasion of personal privacy since infringement upon privacy and effect of disclosure would be same regardless of which agency maintains or perhaps discloses that kind of personal information. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7858.

Insofar as vouchers or related records include public employees' social security numbers or home addresses, those items can be deleted from records based upon considerations of personal privacy since they are largely irrelevant to performance of one's duties. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7930.

Disclosure of data contained in Statewide Planning and Research Cooperative System (SPARCS) which includes names of patients, their addresses, social security numbers, Medicaid numbers or similar identifiers would result in unwarranted invasion of personal privacy; however, if those unique personal identifiers were deleted or removed, it was difficult to envision how disclosure of several items characterized in relevant Department of Health regulations as deniable could possibly identify patient or, therefore, result in unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7947.

Public disclosure of social security number of employee of state agency, absent consent of data subject, constitutes unwarranted invasion of personal privacy under both Freedom of Information Law and Personal Privacy Protection Act. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9237.

Applicant was generally entitled to disclosure of city records concerning all retired pensioned employees, including exempt employees, receiving bona fide legal pensions plus compensatory dollars from December, 1990 to July, 1996 since such disclosure would not involve unwarranted invasion of personal privacy; however, social security numbers, home addresses, member and retirement numbers were unique identifiers and could be withheld based on considerations of privacy. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9742.

Sole item that could be withheld from record of certificate of honorable discharge given to veteran would be social security number (assuming record is not sealed under CLS Civ R § 79-g), since local government agencies may withhold social security numbers on ground that disclosure would constitute "an unwarranted invasion of personal privacy," but they are not required to do so. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12688.

State agency such as university cannot validly disseminate social security numbers of its employees (or others, such as students) to public, without consent of subjects of those items; Personal Privacy Protection Law forbids such disclosure. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12743.

In order to disclose social security numbers to staff or employees at state college, 2 conditions must be met: (1) that those items are "necessary to the performance of [the] official duties" of staff or employees who seek or acquire social security numbers; and (2) that disclosure of those items is accomplished in order to comply with law or necessary to "operate a program specifically authorized by law." Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12743.

118. Ethics advisory opinions

Advisory opinion prepared by town ethics board can generally be withheld under Freedom of Information Law; if opinion is rejected or modified, it is deniable under both CLS Pub O § 87(2)(b) as unwarranted invasion of personal privacy and under CLS Pub O § 87(2)(g) as recommendation to town board that is not final. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8922.

Names or other identifying details pertaining to witnesses or others interviewed by town ethics board can generally be withheld from disclosure on ground that disclosure would constitute unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8922.

Portions of HUD audit of county's "Revolving Loan Fund," which were identifiable to individuals and included recommendations or opinions regarding their ethical conduct, could be withheld to extent that no final determination concerning their conduct had been reached, to prevent unwarranted invasion of personal privacy; likewise, to extent that allegations or charges were found to be without merit, such records could be withheld. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-10050.

119. Lists sought for commercial or fund-raising purposes, generally

While it has been held that accessible records should be made equally available to any person, regardless of status or interest, Pub O § 89(2)(b)(iii) represents what might be characterized as an internal conflict in the Freedom of Information Law, for it renders the purpose for which a request is made for a list of names and addresses relevant to the accessibility of the material. Comm on Open Govt FOIL-AO 3060.

Purpose for which record is requested is generally irrelevant to its access; one instance when purpose for request may be relevant is when record involving listed names and addresses is used for commercial or fund raising purposes. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4752.

Agency may inquire with respect to purpose of request when request involves list of names and addresses to determine whether records would be used for commercial purpose and, therefore, whether disclosure would result in unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4818.

Although reasons for which request is made under Freedom of Information Law or applicant's potential use of records are generally irrelevant, CLS Pub O § 89(2)(iii) permits agency to withhold lists of names and addresses if such lists would be used for commercial or fund-raising purposes on ground that disclosure would constitute unwarranted invasion of personal privacy; thus, intended use of list of names and addresses is relevant, and agency can ask why list of names and addresses has been requested. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7643.

Freedom of Information Law required disclosure of copy of mailing list used to disseminate Legislative Insider, which is published by Monroe County Legislature Majority Office, where applicant provided assurance that she would not use requested information for fund raising purposes. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8326.

Example contained in CLS Pub O § 89(2)(b) which permits withholding of information to preclude unwarranted invasions of personal privacy where request for information involves sale or release of lists of names and addresses to be used for commercial or fund-raising purposes does not apply to release of information pertaining to commercial entities or persons acting in business capacities. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8953.

Agency may inquire as to purpose of request for information when request involves list of names and addresses; otherwise, purpose for which request is made is irrelevant. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-10290.

If requester is seeking certain records (regarding purchased and installed ground source heat pumps by residential community) in order to develop mailing list or its equivalent to be used for commercial or fund-raising purposes, CLS Pub O § 89(2)(b)(iii) may be pertinent. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12874.

120. Maintenance of "otherwise available right of access"

Payroll record, which is required to be compiled, identifies faculty as part-time at community college; furthermore, it is implicit that payroll record required to be compiled pursuant to CLS Pub O § 87(3)(b) be current; if payroll record has not been prepared, proceeding could likely be commenced pursuant to CLS CPLR Article 78 to compel agency to perform duty that is required to be performed by law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4656.

While numerous aspects of approved application for gun permit can be withheld under CLS Pub O §§ 87(2)(b) and 89(2)(b) (such as fingerprints, social security number, character references, information regarding health and mental condition, alcoholism and drug use), other information must be disclosed (such as date and county of issue, expiration date, name and title of licensing officer, and applicable license restrictions). Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9771.

While town may have authority to deny access to voter registration list that it acquired from county department of data processing if person requesting list intends to use it as mailing list for commercial activity, denial may merely delay inevitable disclosure by county board of elections, as CLS Elec § 5-602 confers unrestricted public rights of access to voter registration lists prepared and maintained by county board of elections, irrespective of intended use. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9814.

"Program history data" concerning inmates, if maintained by Department of Correctional Services, is available under Freedom of Information Law at least to extent that it is available under department regulations. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9929.

Traffic Safety Law Enforcement and Disposition (TSLED) database compiled by Department of Motor Vehicles was subject to disclosure irrespective of department's policy not to release personally identifiable data contained therein as (1) disclosure of data with respect to judges and justices constitutes permissible invasion of privacy because it relates to performance of their official duties, (2) insofar as disclosure pertained to motorists, Vehicle and Traffic Law violations lists compiled by state police must be disclosed unless charges were dismissed and records sealed under Criminal Procedure Law, and (3) information sought would be available from courts under CLS Jud § 255 and CLS UJCA § 2019-a, and from department under CLS Veh & Tr § 508(3). Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-10044.

Voter registration cards pertaining to named individual, if maintained by county board of elections, were available under CLS Elec § 3-220 and could not be withheld under Freedom of Information Law; subject of voter registration record has no right to restrict disclosure or provide conditions concerning disclosure. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-10263.

Voter registration records, including information pertaining to residence addresses, dates of birth, party designations and similar information, must be disclosed although some of those items could otherwise be redacted under Freedom of Information Law to prevent unwarranted invasion of personal privacy, because CLS Elec § 3-220 requires disclosure of voter registration records in their entirety. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-10352.

121. Request to except certain information from disclosure

Commercial entities, upon submission of records to state agencies, may seek to prevent disclosure by seeking protection offered to trade secrets; however, Freedom of Information Law is not applied to records prepared by agency concerning commercial entities; if information sought may generally be known or could be known within insurance industry, disclosure would not cause substantial injury to competitive position of subject enterprise or enterprises. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4639.

Information furnished to Division of Housing and Community Renewal is considered confidential only when request for confidentiality is expressly made by person furnishing information, and that if such information is requested by third party, agency has burden of demonstrating that person who furnished information requested confidentiality; once agency indicates that it will disclose records but fails to make records available, such action is equivalent of denial. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4738.

Reports prepared by New York State Housing Finance Agency following its investigation of complaint made by named individual were generally available to "data subject" of complaint under Personal Privacy Protection Law except to extent that disclosure would constitute unwarranted invasion of privacy of someone other than himself, as complainant's identity was known, and agency's claim that it promised confidentiality to her was generally meaningless; however, agency could redact any information identifiable to complainant to extent that disclosure would constitute unwarranted invasion of her privacy. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9921.

CLS Pub O § 87(4) pertains only to state agencies, and was enacted in conjunction with CLS Pub O § 89(5) to clearly limit application of that provision to state agencies. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9995.

Agreement by chief of police to withhold names of 18 police officers who admitted to off-duty misconduct did not preclude disclosure under Freedom of Information Law; citizens' right to know that public servants are held accountable when they abuse public trust outweighs any advantage that would accrue to municipalities if they could negotiate disciplinary matters with employees with power to suppress terms of settlement. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-10149.

Clause in board of trustees' agreement to buy out employment contract of college president, which would have prohibited president from discussing college matters with news media or others, could not limit public rights of access to records under Freedom of Information Law, and if board had approved buyout contract, it would clearly have been accessible notwithstanding agreement not to discuss its contents. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-10151.

Architect's plans and related documents prepared for agency submitted under seal of professionals, bearing legend that they are protected by copyright and may not be reproduced without permission of professional, nevertheless are subject to rights conferred by Freedom of Information Law; assertion of confidentiality does not remove rights of access to records that would otherwise be available, and consent of professional who prepared document (or owner of real property described in document) is irrelevant. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12179.

When commercial entity is required to submit records to state agency under CLS Pub O § 89(5), it may request, at time of submission, that records or portions thereof be kept confidential in accordance with CLS Pub O § 87(2)(d). CLS Pub O §§ 87(2)(d) and 89(5) would not be applicable and would not serve as basis for denial of access under Freedom of Information Law where materials redacted by state university involved terms of negotiated agreements developed by parties to those agreements, and they were not records that were submitted to university by commercial enterprise. Redacted portions of state university vendor contracts (i.e., numeric figures) were not "trade secrets" and likely would not cause substantial injury to competitive position of subject enterprises where they were not analogous to process, formula, or financial information which showed strengths or weaknesses of entity; rather, they indicated amounts to be paid and received as result of negotiation between 2 parties, and thus that kind of information should be disclosed. Under CLS Pub O § 89(5), when commercial enterprise seeks guarantee that agency to which its records are submitted will not disclose records, and agency confers confidentiality and upholds guarantee of confidentiality following appeal by person whose request for record has been denied, agency has burden of proof in its defense of denial in any ensuing proceeding commenced for review of denial. To continue protection accorded by CLS Pub O § 89(5), agency must believe that it can prove to court that disclosure would, in fact, cause substantial injury to competitive position of commercial enterprise that submitted record; if agency does not believe that it can meet that burden of proof or does not have sufficient knowledge or information to ascertain merits of commercial entity's contentions, it must indicate that request to person seeking record will be granted, in which case, following exhaustion of administrative remedies, commercial entity that submitted record has 15 days to commence proceeding for purpose of demonstrating to court that disclosure would cause substantial injury to its competitive position. Commercial entity claiming that disclosure would cause substantial injury to its competitive position may choose to initiate proceeding to defend against disclosure, in which case it would have burden of proof; in that event, commercial enterprise, rather than person seeking records, would bear expense and burden of attempting to block disclosure and litigating matter. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12656.

B. Particular Types Of Records

122. Animals

Center for Animal Care and Control improperly denied request under Freedom of Information Law for disclosure of employee separation agreements, as requested records represented final agency determinations, and disclosure would result in permissible rather than unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12,347.

Records involving incidence of animal bites is available under Freedom of Information Law, except to extent disclosure would constitute unwarranted invasion of personal privacy in accordance with CLS Pub O §§ 87(2)(b) and 89(2)(b); names of person bitten and other identifying details pertaining to those persons could justifiably be withheld or deleted from records on ground that disclosure would result in unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. Although name, address, telephone number or other personally identifiable details concerning dog bite victim could properly be withheld under CLS Pub O § 87(2)(b), location of dog bite incident, description of how bite occurred and name of health professional who provided treatment would be available; if identifying details are deleted, those other items would be available, for they would not identify victim of dog bite. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7609.

123. Civil rights

Prior to finding of probable cause, names of defendants and/or respondents in cases filed with Division of Human Rights may be withheld to protect their personal privacy in connection with filing of possible frivolous or scurrilous charges. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8901.

Logbook maintained by town board's "Anti-Bias Task Force," which recorded complaints of bias-related incidents by date, facts, names, etc., was available to public under Freedom of Information Law, except for individual complainants' names and personally identifying details. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12201.

If state agency cannot disclose records pursuant to CLS Pub O § 96 (Personal Privacy Protection Law), it is precluded from disclosing under Freedom of Information Law; alternatively, if disclosure of record would not constitute unwarranted invasion of personal privacy and if record is available under Freedom of Information Law, it may be disclosed under CLS Pub O § 96(1)(c). "Results of the deposition" relating to applicant's complaint to Division of Human Rights, and case file concerning matter, could be withheld to extent that they identified persons other than applicant and disclosure would result in unwarranted invasion of their privacy; in addition, they could be withheld in accordance with CLS CPLR § 3101, while remaining aspects of records pertaining to applicant would appear to be accessible to applicant. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12592.

124. Department of Motor Vehicle (DMV) records, generally

Town cannot properly deny access to list of names and addresses of nonresident parking permit holders, since disclosure of names and addresses of nonresident parking permit holders would not constitute unwarranted invasion of personal privacy in that purpose of disclosure is to inform nonresidents of new town parking policy and of action which might be taken collectively to oppose and reverse policy. Comm on Open Govt FOIL-AO-3741.

With respect to request for Department of Motor Vehicle (DMV) records for school bus drivers relating to moving violations and accidents, portions of records identifiable to individual drivers which included their ages could be withheld as unwarranted invasion of personal privacy under CLS Pub O §§ 87(2)(b), 89(2)(b) and 89(2-a), but if driver's age appeared on accident report available from DMV under Freedom of Information Law and CLS Pub O § 66-a, driver's age would be available from other records maintained by DMV containing equivalent information; furthermore, if ages of bus drivers could be withheld, but age was of primary interest, drivers' names could be withheld from records prior to disclosure. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-11978.

125. Employment; employees, generally

126. —Death of employee

Attendance records can be characterized as intra-agency materials, however, those portions reflective of dates or numbers of absences would constitute statistical or factual information which is accessible; disclosure of attendance records would result in permissible rather than unwarranted invasion of personal privacy; since deaths are often widely known or publicized, disclosure of date of death of former employee would not constitute unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4808.

127. —Health care insurance records

As to request for information from Utica City School District regarding employee health insurance accounts, to extent that such information consists of agency records, none of grounds for denial under Pub Off § 87(2) could likely be asserted, though if such records identify claimants, identifying details could likely be deleted as constituting unwarranted invasion of personal privacy under §§ 87(2)(b), 89(2)(b) of such law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4495.

Nature of insurance coverage of particular employees and amounts of their claims or billings would be largely irrelevant to manner in which town employees perform their official duties; as such, records that identify employees by means of kind of insurance coverage they have chosen, and amounts of claims made by employees and their dependents would result in unwarranted invasion of personal privacy; however, if town maintains statistics regarding insurance coverage or billings, those statistics would be available, so long as they did not identify employees. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4962.

Whether public officer or employee is covered or chooses to be covered by public employer paid health insurance plan or whether that person opts for family or individual coverage has no relevance to performance of that person's official duties. Disclosure indicating that public officer or employee is covered by health insurance plan at public expense would not represent or reveal intimate detail of one's life. If disclosure of cost of health care coverage for particular public employee indicates which plan that person has chosen or whether his or her plan involves individual or dependent coverage, such disclosure might potentially result in revelation of number of details of person's life and unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7868.

Disclosure indicating that public officer or employee is covered by health insurance plan at public expense will not represent or reveal intimate detail of one's life. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8908.

128. —Job applications

Freedom of Information Law requires that person requesting records must "reasonably describe" records sought so agency officials can locate records; however, certain records may justifiably be withheld if information sought includes other people in addition to requester because that would cause unwarranted invasion of personal privacy; while eligible lists, which identify those persons who pass civil service examinations and their scores, are available, records identifying those persons who failed exams or their scores could be withheld as unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4574.

Records pertaining to public employees that are relevant to performance of their duties are available, because disclosure in those circumstances would result in permissible rather than unwarranted invasion of personal privacy; therefore, licenses or records indicating certification status as well as area of certification are accessible under Freedom of Information Law and similarly, records involving dates of assignment and work hours are relevant to performance of duties of public employees to whom information relates. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4905.

While various aspects of employment application could be withheld from public under Freedom of Information Law on ground that disclosure would constitute unwarranted invasion of personal privacy, disclosure may be made to governmental official when it is clear that disclosure is made to assist in performance of governmental function. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8585.

Names and addresses of applicants for public employment need not be disclosed, due to possibility of embarrassment if applicant is not selected and because that person would not yet have been hired. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9820.

129. —Misconduct, discipline, termination and the like

If disclosure of records maintained by state agency would result in unwarranted invasion of personal privacy, Personal Privacy Protection Law and Freedom of Information Law would prohibit disclosure; written reprimands pertaining to employees that were issued for failure to report suspected child abuse are accessible under Freedom of Information Law; however, to extent that those records identify patients, deletions of those details should be made to protect against unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4683.

Record or report might be both available or deniable in part and thus imposes obligation on agency officials to review requested records in their entirety to determine which portions, if any, may be justifiably withheld; agency may withhold records to extent that disclosure would result in unwarranted invasion of personal privacy and to extent that records pertain to allegations or charges against employees that have not yet been proven, which did not result in any disciplinary action, and names or other identifying details that would, if disclosed, constitute unwarranted invasion of personal privacy; however, if investigations of misconduct resulted in disciplinary action, charges that were sustained as well as any final determination indicating action taken would be available for disclosure. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4709.

With regard to records that identify public employees, records that are relevant to performance of public employee's official duties are available, because disclosure in such instances would result in permissible rather than unwarranted invasion of personal privacy; with respect to statements made by persons other than public employees, their names or other identifying details pertaining to them might be deleted to protect privacy while remainder of statements would be available. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4722.

Record pertaining to respondent, person against whom complaint is made, would generally have rights of access to records pertaining to him or her, except those portions which if disclosed would result in unwarranted invasion of personal privacy with respect to other persons; when complaint is made against public employee allegations have not yet been or are not substantiated, complaint and records related to it that identified person against whom complaint is made may generally be withheld on ground that disclosure would result in unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4729.

In context of investigation or possible disciplinary action, where public employees have been charged or where allegations have been made, but where no filing of determination in nature of disciplinary action has been taken, records identifiable to individuals relating to charges or allegations may generally be withheld for disclosure because this would result in unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4787.

Freedom of Information Law enables agency to withhold records or portions thereof the disclosure of which would constitute unwarranted invasion of personal privacy; records where requester was falsely accused of serious crimes against some patients in agency where requester worked for years as psychologist would probably identify persons other than requester, such as patients or clients, complainants or informants and, therefore, even if Freedom of Information Law were to apply, significant aspects of records would likely be withheld. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4816.

Portions of records identifying those who file complaints can generally be withheld as unwarranted invasion of personal privacy; further, if complaint is unsubstantiated and does not result in disciplinary action, it could be withheld as unwarranted invasion of personal privacy regarding employee who is subject of complaint; on other hand, if public employee is subject of disciplinary action, those records are available. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4923.

Records pertaining to public employees that are relevant to performance of their duties are available because disclosure would result in permissible rather than unwarranted invasion of personal privacy; therefore, if disciplinary action has been taken regarding particular police officers, records reflective of that action are available. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4925.

To the extent that charges or allegations against public employee have not been proven or have been dismissed, records pertaining to charges or allegations could be withheld as unwarranted invasion of personal privacy; however, if complaint or allegation has resulted in disciplinary action taken against public employee, records indicating charges that were sustained in nature of action would be available; identities of complainants may generally be withheld on ground that disclosure would result in unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4967.

Records that are relevant to performance of public employee's official duties are available because disclosure would result in permissible rather than unwarranted invasion of personal privacy; further, record reflective of final disciplinary action taken against public employee would be available because such record would deal with matter of public concern, that being public employee's accountability for misconduct; with respect to complaints directed to agency by member of public, portions of complaints that identify complainants may be deleted on ground that disclosure would constitute unwarranted invasion of personal privacy and often what is relevant to agency is substance of complaint and whether it has merit, not identity of person who made complaint; however if employees of agency were acting in performance of their official duties when making complaint, references to them would be relevant to their duties and duties of agency and, as such, denial of those aspects of hearing transcript cannot be justified. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4971.

Records that are relevant to performance of public employee's official duties are available because disclosure in such instances would result in permissible rather than unwarranted invasion of personal privacy; however, if allegations of misconduct have not yet or did not result in disciplinary action records relating to such allegations may be withheld for disclosure would result in unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4973.

There may be privacy considerations concerning persons other than employees who may be subjects of board's inquiries; for instance, name of complainant or witness can be withheld in appropriate circumstances as unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7914.

Disclosure of litigation file cabinet "tags" used by individual attorneys at board of education might properly be denied where tags identified employees who were subjects of disciplinary proceedings or other matters disclosure of which would constitute unwarranted invasion of personal privacy within meaning of CLS Pub O § 87(2)(b). Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9251.

Counseling memo issued to employee of Department of Transportation after allegation of misconduct could likely be withheld from disclosure to prevent unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9383.

Disclosure of identities of suspended city employees does not constitute unwarranted invasion of personal privacy within meaning of CLS Pub O § 87(2)(b). Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9463.

When allegations or charges of misconduct of employee have not yet been determined or did not result in disciplinary action or finding of misconduct, records relating to such allegations may be withheld, for disclosure would result in unwarranted invasion of personal privacy; similarly, to extent that charges are dismissed or allegations are found to be without merit, they may be withheld. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12423.

If there were no determination to effect that public employee engaged in misconduct, denial of access to records regarding investigation of county property and employees that ended several years earlier, based on considerations of privacy, would be consistent with Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12722.

130. —Pensions

Disclosure of pension numbers of agency's present and former employees may be permitted, since such number appears to be only identifier for obtaining public records concerning public employees participating in State Retirement System, such as years of service, salary information and payments made under such system, though identifying number alone may be otherwise irrelevant to performance of public employee's duties, for purposes of determining whether unwarranted invasion of personal privacy has occurred. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4490.

131. —Qualifications; certifications, ratings and the like

Records pertaining to public employees that are relevant to performance of their duties are available, because disclosure in those circumstances would result in permissible rather than unwarranted invasion of personal privacy; therefore, licenses or records indicating certification status as well as area of certification are accessible under Freedom of Information Law and similarly, records involving dates of assignment and work hours are relevant to performance of duties of public employees to whom information relates. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4905.

Records relevant to performance of public employee's duties would, if disclosed, result in permissible rather than unwarranted invasion of personal privacy; while disclosure of fact that public employee has received promotion would not constitute unwarranted invasion of personal privacy, disclosure of record indicating that public employee applied for and was not granted promotion would likely constitute unwarranted invasion of personal privacy and, as such, request for copy of application may be denied in its entirety prior to final determination concerning application for promotion; since each portion of completed application involves privacy considerations, in situation where promotion has been granted, to extent that application is not relevant to performance of employee's duties, it could be withheld as unwarranted invasion of personal privacy and, as such, while name of institution that awarded degree and names of courses taken could generally be withheld as unwarranted invasion of personal privacy, if particular degree or major field of study is requirement for position held by applicant, portion of application indicating that such criteria have been met would likely be available, for they are relevant to performance of one's official duties. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4908.

Records containing information directly relevant to public employee's performance of his or her duties, such as license or degree requirements for position, are generally available, but other aspects of public employee's education, employment history or other personal information are likely to be denied based on unwarranted invasion of personal privacy; if residency requirement is needed for position, then disclosure of such information would not constitute unwarranted invasion of personal privacy; however, rest of records may be denied on basis of privacy considerations. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4915.

Disclosure, in employee performance evaluation, of description of duties to be performed by any person holding particular position, or series of criteria reflective of duties or goals to be achieved by any person holding that position, would result in permissible rather than unwarranted invasion of personal privacy for purpose of FOIL. Component of employee performance evaluation involving reviewer's subjective analysis or opinion of how well or poorly standards or duties have been carried out or goals have been achieved could be withheld under FOIL, both as unwarranted invasion of personal privacy and under CLS Pub O § 87(2)(g), on ground that it constitutes opinion concerning performance. Component of employee performance evaluation consisting of final rating, i.e., "good", "excellent", "average", etc. would be available for disclosure under FOIL, assuming that any appeals have been exhausted, for it would constitute final agency determination available under CLS Pub O § 87(2)(g)(iii), particularly if monetary award were based on rating; moreover, final rating concerning public employee's performance is relevant to that person's official duties and therefore would not result in unwarranted invasion of personal privacy if disclosed. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12396.

Copy of reference letter provided to Banking Department in connection with individual's application to obtain license to operate as mortgage broker may be withheld, even though applicant has knowledge of identity of author of letter. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-13345.

132. —Salaries

Records pertaining to public employees that are relevant to performance of their duties are available because disclosure in those instances would result in permissible rather than unwarranted invasion of personal privacy; however, records pertaining to deductions from one's paycheck are irrelevant to performance of that public employee's official duties and consequently, they could be withheld on ground that disclosure would result in unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4885.

When public employee's paycheck indicates amount after deductions have been made, it is likely that amount appearing on check could be withheld; that figure would not represent employee's salary or gross pay, both of with would be public and would instead reflect, without specification, what would remain after what might be series of personal decisions (i.e., claiming exemptions, choice of health insurance, payment of life insurance premiums, direct deposit into bank account, purchase of savings bonds, etc.) that had no relationship to performance of employee's governmental duties. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8387.

If record sought under Freedom of Information Law is payroll list required to be maintained pursuant to CLS Pub O § 87(3)(b), it must be disclosed, irrespective of its intended use for commercial or fundraising purposes. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9523.

Privacy was not at issue with respect to attendance and payroll records requested by employee's wife on his behalf, as records essentially pertained to employee himself, and person cannot engage in unwarranted invasion of his or her own privacy. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-10144.

In releasing payroll records kept by agency to determine whether employees on public works projects are being paid in accordance with prevailing wage standards, agency may delete contractors' names, addresses and social security numbers to prevent unwarranted invasion of personal privacy, as such information is largely irrelevant to reason for keeping records; however, portions of records reflective of titles, duties, wages, hours worked and similar data must be disclosed. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-10325.

133. —Unions; collective bargaining

Portions of records indicating membership in union can be withheld from disclosure under Freedom of Information Law as unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8908.

School district's disclosure of list of teachers who were not members of certain union would result in permissible rather than unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9764.

Proposed "arbitrator appraisal" form completed and returned to Public Employment Relations Board by party to voluntary grievance arbitration is analogous to employment reference under CLS Pub O § 89(2)(b)(i); thus, while form is generally available, identifying details of representative or employee of union who completes form may be withheld as unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9972.

There is no basis for withholding records or portions of records specifying that public employees are members of public employee union; exception concerning privacy does not apply to record identifying entities or individuals in relation to their business or professional capacities. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-16451.

If intra-agency directory containing home addresses and home telephone numbers of public employees is requested, it would likely be proper to delete home addresses and home telephone numbers and make remainder available. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4636.

Since Freedom of Information Law has long granted access to name, public office address, title and salary and all employees of agency, those portions of resume indicating previous public employment would be available; also, agency may delete identifying details when it makes records available as to preclude any unwarranted invasions of personal privacy. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4650.

Records identifying public employees who work during given period, rates of pay and number of hours worked are available because those records are "relevant" to performance of their duties. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4657.

If records are relevant to performance of public employee's official duties, disclosure would constitute permissible rather than unwarranted invasion of personal privacy; conversely, if records are not relevant to performance of one's official duties, disclosure has been found to result in unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4658.

Records that are relevant to performance of official duties of public employee are available on ground that disclosure would result in permissible rather than unwarranted invasion of personal privacy; however, records concerning public employees that are not relevant to performance of official duties may be denied on ground that disclosure would indeed result in unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4680.

With regard to records that identify public employees, records that are relevant to performance of public employee's official duties are available, because disclosure in such instances would result in permissible rather than unwarranted invasion of personal privacy; with respect to statements made by persons other than public employees, their names or other identifying details pertaining to them might be deleted to protect privacy while remainder of statements would be available. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4722.

Records pertaining to public employees that are relevant to performance of their official duties are generally available, however, where names do not pertain to public employees acting in performance of their official duties, it might be appropriately contended that interest in protecting privacy outweighs general duty to disclose, and that disclosure would constitute unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4736.

Records pertaining to public employees that are relevant to performance of duties are available, for disclosure in these instances would result in permissible rather than unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4828.

Disclosure of names of persons employed or once employed by particular agency who had applied under CLS Retire & S S § 803 would result in unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8328.

Home telephone number of public officer or employee is largely irrelevant to performance of one's official duties and, therefore, request under Freedom of Information Law for such information can be denied as disclosure would constitute unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9197.

Disclosure of list containing names, home addresses and home telephone numbers of attorneys employed in Buffalo office of Department of Law was improper where disclosure was sought in connection with fundraising efforts for election campaign of one of Attorney General's best friends. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9210.

Identifying details of Public Employment Relations Board (PERB) employees who complete proposed "arbitrator appraisal" forms, in connection with voluntary grievance arbitration, may be withheld to prevent unwarranted invasion of personal privacy; completion of such forms is ancillary to routine duties of PERB employees. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9972.

Provisions in Freedom of Information Law pertaining to protection of personal privacy do not justify withholding list of names of executive directors of senior centers maintained by city "Department for the Aging," as such list involves names and addresses of persons in their business capacities, and there is nothing intimate or personal about it. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-10314.

Names of county employees on list of vendors doing business with county would clearly be accessible where such list indicates payments to public employees who are being paid or reimbursed in relation to performance of their official duties; inclusion of names of public employees also pertains to those persons in relation to their governmental activities, and disclosure of their identities would constitute permissible rather than unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12816.

Insofar as county vendor list identifies public employees and includes their home addresses, such addresses, under CLS Pub O § 89(7), may be withheld; if list does not contain public employees' home addresses, but rather their work addresses, list would be available in its entirety. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12816.

Next of kin has rights of access, under Freedom of Information Law and Personal Privacy Protection Law, to deceased employee's personal history file, except situations in which such records identify others and disclosure would constitute unwarranted invasion of those other persons' privacy. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-13174.

134. Financial matters, generally

135. —Estates; estate administration

It is likely that disclosure of names of or other identifying details pertaining to persons ancillary to distribution of assets of estate, such as heirs of those persons, other family members, or neighbors, friends, or acquaintances could justifiably be withheld by public administrator as unwarranted invasion of privacy, except to extent that such information was otherwise available through court clerk. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9650.

136. —Grant programs

Disclosure that permits public to determine general income level of participant in grant program would constitute unwarranted invasion of personal privacy because such disclosure would indicate that particular individual has income or economic means below certain level; therefore, if by means of their names or addresses, grants are made to low income persons, it is likely that disclosure of portions of records indicating their identities might justifiably be withheld; on other hand, if grant is not conditioned on income qualification, but rather upon location of property, disclosure of identities of those recipients of grants would likely be proper. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4904.

137. —Judgment debtors; executions and attachments

Although purpose for which information is requested is generally irrelevant to rights of access, exception to rule arises as to sale or release of lists of names and addresses if such lists would be used for commercial or fundraising purposes; request for records of executions and levies against personal property may be denied if purpose is direct mail solicitation of debtors. Committee on Open Government FOIL-AO-3817.

Specific information concerning value of assets of former county legislator could be withheld on ground that disclosure would result in unwarranted invasion of personal privacy; typically, financial disclosure statements must be disclosed insofar as they indicate sources of one's assets, but may be withheld insofar as they indicate value of assets. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9826.

138. Fires, firefighters, firefighting and the like

The disclosure of medical histories of paid firemen of a fire district without permission, generally, would constitute an unwarranted invasion of the personal privacy of such firemen. 1982 Op St Compt File #82-204.

To extent that information pertains to entities as opposed to persons, provisions concerning personal privacy would not be applicable; even if information does pertain to natural persons, while names and addresses may or not constitute unwarranted invasion of personal privacy, records indicating locations of fires would be accessible. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4751.

Medical information contained in ambulance run record of fire department could be withheld on ground that disclosure can constitute unwarranted invasion of personal privacy, except to extent that record refers to agency name and other information that has already been disclosed by means of motor vehicle accident report. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4786.

Emergency call, particularly when sirens or flashing lights are used, is event of public nature, and thus when fire truck travels to its destination, that destination is or can be known to those in vicinity of event, and disclosure of address or brief description of event would not likely constitute unwarranted invasion of personal privacy; also, presence of emergency vehicle does not necessarily indicate that there is medical problem since those vehicles are dispatched for any number of reasons, many of which do not relate to medical event. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12608.

139. Government contractors, licensees and the like, generally

140. —Lobbyists

To extent that lists of lobbyists registered with temporary state commission on lobbying identify entities, rather than natural persons, provisions concerning protection of personal privacy appearing in both Freedom of Information Law and Personal Privacy Protection Law are inapplicable; also, since report required to be prepared by Commission must include listing of lobbyists, and is available to public, provision of Freedom of Information Law could not be asserted to withhold list from any member of public, irrespective of possible use of lists. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4895.

141. —Political contributors

To extent that list identifies contributions made to project by entities, such as corporations or organizations, it would be available because those portions would not identify natural persons; on other hand, to extent that list identifies natural persons and amounts of their contributions, disclosure of identities of those persons would constitute unwarranted invasion of personal privacy and, therefore, could be withheld on that basis. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4899.

Freedom of Information Law did not require that city identify anonymous donor of funds used by City to clean up property that was ravaged by fire since donor did not wish to be identified and disclosure would have constituted unwarranted invasion of privacy. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8583.

City could honor request of donor to remain anonymous with regard to donation received by city to clean up property that was ravaged by fire since disclosure would have constituted unwarranted invasion of privacy. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2440.

Questionnaires, sent to firms interested in selling electronic voting machines to city by commissioner of New York City Department of General Services, would, if disclosed, enable one firm to gain advantage over competitor or impair city's ability to reach optimal agreement; as such, requester for questionnaire may justifiably be denied access; agency may withhold records or portions thereof disclosure of which would constitute unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4665.

Unwarranted invasion of privacy is intended to apply to records that identify individuals rather than corporations, partnerships or other such entities; to extent that purchasers or sellers are not natural persons, names and addresses are likely to be available. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4792.

Status or interest of applicant for records, or purpose for which request is made are irrelevant to rights of access; therefore, fact that applicant seeks to use records for commercial purpose has no effect on rights of access and request for license must be granted, even if request is made for commercial purpose; however, if request is made for list of names and addresses or its equivalent, purpose for which request is made may become relevant to rights of access based on unwarranted invasion of personal privacy, especially when that list may be used for commercial or fund raising purposes. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4926.

When list involves persons licensed to engage in certain kind of business and includes address indicating where licensed activity occurs, personal privacy implications are minimal, if they exist at all. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8573.

Licenses and similar records are available under Freedom of Information Law, notwithstanding assertion that disclosure would constitute unwarranted invasion of personal privacy, since they are intended to enable public to know that individual has met appropriate requirements to be engaged in activity that is regulated by state or in which state has significant interest. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9375.

Exception concerning privacy, including CLS Pub O § 89(2)(b)(iii), does not apply to list of vendors doing business with county. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12816.

County cannot condition disclosure of its vendor lists on requester's assertion that he would not use list for commercial purposes or fund-raising. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12816.

While portions of payment requisitions and certified payroll of private company with which school district has contracted are accessible under Freedom of Information Law insofar as they are reflective of titles, duties, wages, hours worked and similar data, disclosure of personally identifiable details pertaining to employees of private company may be deleted or redacted from those records prior to disclosure. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-16649.

142. Guns; gun permits

If list of those licensed to carry pistols was sought for commercial or fund-raising purposes, denial of access is appropriate because it is unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4732.

With regard to pistol license applications, various information must be disclosed under Freedom of Information Law such as date and county of issue, expiration date, name and title of licensing officer and applicable restrictions since such information does not constitute intimate or personal details regarding licensee. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8902.

With regard to pistol license applications, numerous aspects of approved application could be withheld pursuant to CLS Pub O § 87(2)(b), such as personal physical characteristics, social security number, character references, information regarding health and mental condition, alcoholism and drug use, and similar intimate personal information. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8902.

Name and address of person to whom pistol license is granted are accessible to public; licensee's preference regarding disclosure should not be determinative. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-13544.

143. Insurance; insurance agents

If town maintains statistics regarding insurance coverage or billings, those statistics would be available, so long as they did not identify employees; it might also be possible to delete identifying details contained in billing records to protect privacy, while providing access to remainder for records, which would indicate town's medical insurance billing experience without identifying particular employees. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4962.

Data contained in Statewide Planning and Research Cooperative System (SPARCS), insofar as it includes personally identifiable information concerning patients, need not be disclosed under Freedom of Information Law since disclosure would constitute unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. Insofar as information contained in Statewide Planning and Research Cooperative System (SPARCS) would identify entities, such as hospitals or insurance companies rather than natural persons, information could not be withheld based upon considerations of privacy. Department of Health could not restrict disclosure of information contained in Statewide Planning and Research Cooperative System (SPARCS) on basis that information would identify physicians who treated various patients. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7947.

144. Lottery and other games of chance

Information regarding sales and prize disbursements by lottery agents should be available to public access under Freedom of Information Law where, under CLS Pub Off § 87(2)(d), such information could not be characterized as "trade secrets" or as "information maintained for the regulation of commercial enterprise" and, where there is nothing unique to particular agent in terms of sales of lottery tickets, disclosure of information sought would not cause "substantial injury to the competitive position" of an agent individually, and under §§ 87(2)(b) and 89(2)(b), whether or not information sought clearly pertained to natural person, denial of access based upon privacy provisions is inappropriate. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4446.

If state agency cannot disclose records pursuant to CLS Pub O § 96, it is precluded from disclosing them under Freedom of Information Law; alternatively, if disclosure of record would not constitute unwarranted invasion of personal privacy and if record is available under Freedom of Information Law, it may be disclosed under CLS Pub O § 96(1)(c). In those instances in which Lottery has taken action on its own initiative to disclose identity of lottery winner by means of press release, information contained in release must be disclosed in response to later request made under Freedom of Information Law; disclosure of that information some time after its initial issuance could not result in unwarranted invasion of privacy. Since disclosure by Lottery of information regarding lottery winners does not include actual home addresses of winners, home addresses of lottery winners can be withheld as unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9143.

Although status of applicant and purposes for which request is made are irrelevant to rights of access, and agency cannot ordinarily inquire as to intended use of records, rights of access to list of names and addresses, or equivalent records, may be contingent on purpose for which request is made due to language of CLS Pub O § 89(2)(b)(iii); thus, if request for full name of winners of lottery since its inception, current address of each winner, amount of initial award to each winner and date of award to each winner was sought in order to develop mailing list or its equivalent to be used for commercial or fund-raising purposes, statute could apply to deny access to requested information. Even where request under Freedom of Information Law does not involve list per se, request for records that would be used to develop list of names and addresses to be used for commercial purpose may be denied. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9143.

145. Medical and health-related information, generally

146. —Dental records

Under Freedom of Information Law and Personal Privacy Protection Law, inmate's dental records may not be released to Attorney General in pending civil suit without inmate's consent, as such disclosure would constitute unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12049.

147. —Hospital records

Data contained in Statewide Planning and Research Cooperative System (SPARCS), insofar as it includes personally identifiable information concerning patients, need not be disclosed under Freedom of Information Law since disclosure would constitute unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. Insofar as information contained in Statewide Planning and Research Cooperative System (SPARCS) would identify entities, such as hospitals or insurance companies rather than natural persons, information could not be withheld based upon considerations of privacy. Department of Health could not restrict disclosure of information contained in Statewide Planning and Research Cooperative System (SPARCS) on basis that information would identify physicians who treated various patients. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7947.

With regard to request for records directed to Department of Health relating to incidents that occurred at specific hospital, CLS Pub O § 87(2)(b) would apply to permit denial of access to protect personal privacy. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9651.

148. —Medical histories

With respect to medical records, Freedom of Information Law permits that some records may be withheld in whole or in part, depending upon their contents because medical records prepared by agency personnel could be characterized as intra-agency materials and to extent that such materials consist of advice, opinion, recommendation and like, Freedom of Information Law would permit denial. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4943.

With respect to medical records, Freedom of Information Law permits that some of those records may be withheld in whole or in part, depending upon their contents; medical records prepared by department personnel could be characterized as intra-agency materials that fall within scope of Freedom of Information Law and to extent that such materials consist of advice, opinion, recommendation and like, Freedom of Information Law would permit denial. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4953.

Neither characterization of documents as "personnel records" nor their placement in personnel files would necessarily render those documents "confidential" or deniable under Freedom of Information Law. Names of municipal employees or family members coupled with amounts of reimbursements appearing on vouchers would, if disclosed, constitute unwarranted invasion of personal privacy, even though they do not indicate particular medical condition or problem, since items of that nature are largely irrelevant to performance of one's official duties, and vouchers indicating treatment, or particularly frequency of treatment, and amounts reimbursed, represent intimate details of peoples' lives. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12692.

149. —Mental health

Where requester requests commitment papers, which include person's sentence, probation officer's report, fingerprints, medical, psychiatric and other records, of co-defendants, this request would likely be withheld on ground that disclosure would constitute an unwarranted invasion of personal privacy; likewise, letter sent from district attorney to officials of Department of Correctional Services offering advice or recommendations, would be considered inter-agency materials and would be withheld. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4682.

The disclosure of medical histories of paid firemen of a fire district without permission, generally, would constitute an unwarranted invasion of the personal privacy of such firemen. 1982 Op St Compt File #82-204.

Medical information contained in ambulance run record of fire department could be withheld on ground that disclosure can constitute unwarranted invasion of personal privacy, except to extent that record refers to agency name and other information that has already been disclosed by means of motor vehicle accident report. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4786.

Freedom of Information Law permits agency to withhold records when disclosure would result in unwarranted invasion of personal privacy, which includes medical information. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4877.

New York State Cancer Registry records of cancer site specific diagnoses and deaths from period 1976-1997 for particular county should be disclosed under Freedom of Information Law since such data would not, under terms of CLS Pub Health § 2402, "disclose the identity of any person" and would not be unwarranted invasion of personal privacy; anyone anywhere could interview persons residing in particular locale and question them about incidence of certain diseases and any such disclosures, which would not be required by law, would be irrelevant to authority to withhold records. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12402.

Record of medical emergency call consists in great measure of what might be characterized as medical record or history relating to person needing care or service; thus, portions of records identifying those to whom medical services were rendered, their ages, and descriptions of their medical problems or conditions could be withheld, while other aspects of records, such as locations of calls or addresses, should be disclosed. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12608.

Death of person while in police custody is event of public nature and thus disclosure does not constitute unwarranted invasion of personal privacy; however, medical records (and perhaps other aspects of records relating to deceased, family members, or witnesses) might be withheld on ground that disclosure would constitute unwarranted invasion of privacy. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3158.

150. Police and other law enforcement agencies, generally

151. —Arrests

Although Freedom of Information Law provides broad rights of access, it permits agency to withhold records when disclosure would constitute unwarranted invasion of personal privacy; request for names and addresses of all persons arrested and or convicted of DWI charge in past 3 years will be denied. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4581.

With respect to records indicating arrests that did not result in convictions, disclosure would constitute unwarranted invasion of personal privacy; however, with respect to records of arrests for which underlying charges are still pending, those records generally would be accessible pursuant to Freedom of Information Law because records maintained by law enforcement agencies, as well as courts, indicating arrests and charges are in most instances accessible to public. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4983.

152. —Discipline, misconduct, termination and the like

Names of 18 police officers who admittedly were involved in off-duty egg-throwing incident, and nature of penalties imposed on them, were accessible under Freedom of Information Law where requestor did not intend to use information in litigation context, records did not deal with unsubstantiated allegations or complaints and could not be characterized as "sensitive" or intimate, and incident had been widely publicized. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-10149.

If complaint of police misconduct included identity of complainant, identifying details pertaining to that person may be withheld on ground that disclosure would constitute "an unwarranted invasion of personal privacy"; provision might also be cited insofar as records identify witnesses, family members related to complainant, and perhaps others. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12655.

Death of person while in police custody is event of public nature and thus disclosure does not constitute unwarranted invasion of personal privacy; however, medical records (and perhaps other aspects of records relating to deceased, family members, or witnesses) might be withheld on ground that disclosure would constitute unwarranted invasion of privacy. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3158.

153. —Fingerprints

Disclosure does not constitute unwarranted invasion of personal privacy where person seeking disclosure seeks access to records pertaining to him; records relating to criminal history and fingerprints are disclosable to person to whom records pertain. Committee on Open Government FOIL-AO-3362.

Where requester requests commitment papers, which include person's sentence, probation officer's report, fingerprints, medical, psychiatric and other records, of co-defendants, this request would likely be withheld on ground that disclosure would constitute an unwarranted invasion of personal privacy; likewise, letter sent from district attorney to officials of Department of Correctional Services offering advice or recommendations, would be considered inter-agency materials and would be withheld. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4682.

154. —Police photographs

Records introduced into evidence or disclosed during public judicial proceeding must be disclosed; also, if certain crime scene photos have been disclosed, as evidence or otherwise, it is questionable or perhaps unlikely that others involving same locations or persons would reveal more, in terms of invasion of personal privacy, than those previously disclosed. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12579.

155. —Victims of crime

Agency may withhold records or portions thereof disclosure of which would constitute unwarranted invasion of personal privacy; further, agency may delete identifying details when it makes records available to protect against unwarranted invasions of personal privacy; these same principles and procedures can be applied with respect to CLS Civ R § 50-b, which is intended to guarantee that identity of victim of sex offense, who was under age of 18 at time of alleged commission of offense, remain confidential. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4647.

"Victim notice," which may be filed by victim or family member of victim pursuant to CLS Correc § 149-a, need not be disclosed under Freedom of Information Law since disclosure would constitute unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7909.

Disclosure of minimal details about homicide victims can not be characterized as unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-10122.

Locations of acts vandalism were accessible because results of vandalism were visible to any passerby and nothing private was disclosed, and names of victims were also likely available because they were connected to addresses where vandalism occurred, and nothing intimate or personal would be disclosed; vandalism constitutes property crime, rather than contact with persons. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-10397.

Fact that police department located 15 domestic incidents pertaining to particular family or address did not justify withholding Freedom of Information Law request for all police reports involving police calls to that family or address, on basis that confirmation of so many domestic incidents, even after deletion of identifying details, might constitute unwarranted invasion of privacy; presence of police vehicle at particular time and location is not secret, and record that refers to such event is public. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12299.

Crime victim was not entitled to access under Freedom of Information Law to photographs of himself taken by law enforcement officers, showing his injuries after being beaten, if photographs were maintained in criminal file sealed under CLS CPL § 160.50; if file was not sealed, photographs could be withheld from public on ground that disclosure would result in unwarranted invasion of personal privacy, but could not be withheld from crime victim, as person cannot invade his own privacy. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12318.

Blanket denial of request for state police reports related to homicide-suicide of husband and wife in their home was inconsistent with Freedom of Information Law; in view of details that had already been published and made publicly known, it was unlikely that records pertaining directly to either deceased person would, if disclosed, result in unwarranted invasion of personal privacy, although portions of records identifying other persons might properly be redacted, depending on their contents. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-16552.

With enactment of personal privacy protection law, state agency is precluded from disclosing personal information when such disclosure would constitute unwarranted invasion of personal privacy, unless disclosure is made pursuant to one of conditions set forth in CLS Public Officers § 96(1); with respect to records of municipal agency which is not subject to personal privacy protection law, freedom of information law applies; sheriff may withhold records when disclosure would constitute unwarranted invasion of personal privacy, even though there is no obligation to do so. Committee on Open Government FOIL-AO-3817.

If home addresses have not previously been disclosed, they may be withheld on ground that disclosure would constitute unwarranted invasion of personal privacy; also, sign in log for auxiliary police officers containing names of officers and times and dates they performed their duties or training should be made available under Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4728.

To extent that codefendants' statements held deleted materials which identified codefendants, it does not appear that withholding of their names was justifiable because disclosure of codefendants' names and addresses during trial would indicate that they are not "confidential" informants; further, due to those disclosures, release of their names would not constitute unwarranted invasion of personal privacy; however, if names withheld pertain to persons other than codefendants identified during trial, it is possible that those persons are confidential informants or that disclosure of their identities would result in unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4851.

Where names of employees were whited out in detective's report which requester received, justification for such deletion is that disclosure would constitute unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4900.

Where names of employees were whited out in detective's report which requester received, justification for such deletion is that disclosure would constitute unwarranted invasion of personal privacy; if detective's report can be characterized as record complied for law enforcement purposes, it might be contended that disclosure of names would identify confidential source; however, capacity to withhold on this basis is dependent upon nature of report, its function and whether employees are considered to be confidential sources. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4900.

In connection with request for breakdown of cost of mayor's police protection from its inception to present, CLS Pub O § 87(2)(b) could not justify withholding of information since request did not seek names of police officers or bodyguards assigned to mayor or his home or who engaged in training, travel or purchases associated with protection of mayor. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7930.

Blanket denial of request for state police records relating to suicide investigation was inappropriate, as records about deceased persons are generally public; however, those portions which if disclosed would "disgrace the memory" of decedent may be withheld and, in context of suicide, privacy of others might also be considered. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9771.

State police could not require notarized waiver executed by administrator of decedent's estate prior to releasing its investigation of suicide death of requestor's sister, as records about decedents are generally public except for any portions which if disclosed would "disgrace the memory" of decedent. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-10372.

As nature and amount of information disclosed to public relating to criminal investigation or proceeding increases, extent to which Freedom of Information Law exception concerning privacy decreases. It would be difficult to justify denial of access to significant portions of criminal investigation records based on claim that disclosure would result in unwarranted invasion of privacy, even though there had not been trial, where substantial disclosures about defendant, his family, victims and community were made and disseminated over lengthy period of time both locally and nationally. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12579.

Psychological records held by District Attorney and relating to criminal defendant might be withheld under CLS Pub O §§ 87(2)(b) and 89(2)(b); however, it might be in public interest, as well as positive law enforcement function, to disclose details concerning defendant's life since consideration of patterns of behavior and development of data about behavior may enable school and law enforcement officials to recognize inclination or proclivity to commit violent or antisocial acts, and preventive measures might be taken to prevent those acts from occurring. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12579.

156. Prisons and prisoners, generally

157. —Videotapes

Once department of correctional services enables inmates' attorneys to view video tapes, department has waived its capacity to deny request by either inmate, who is subject of tape, or attorney of inmate who is acting in representative capacity on behalf of inmate; similarly, if viewing tape did not constitute unwarranted invasion of personal privacy of employees involved, disclosure of duplicate of tape would not constitute unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4697.

158. —Visitor logs

If visitors' log or similar documentation was kept in plain sight and could be viewed by any person, and if staff at county correctional center had ability to locate portions of log pertaining to particular individuals based upon information provided by applicant, those portions of log would be available under Freedom of Information Law; however, if visitors' log or similar documents were not kept in plain sight and could not ordinarily be viewed, visitors log could be withheld on ground that disclosure would constitute unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8321.

Insofar as prison visitor logs or similar records identified other inmates and their visitors, those portions of records could be withheld on ground that disclosure would constitute unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8439.

If visitor's log or similar documentation at jail is kept in plain sight and can be viewed by any person, and if staff at facility has ability to locate portions of log of interest to applicant, those portions of log would be available under Freedom of Information Law; however, if visitors log or similar documents are not kept in plain sight and cannot ordinarily be viewed, those portions of log pertaining to persons other than applicant could be withheld on ground that disclosure would constitute unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9228.

Where requester requests commitment papers, which include person's sentence, probation officer's report, fingerprints, medical, psychiatric and other records, of co-defendants, this request would likely be withheld on ground that disclosure would constitute an unwarranted invasion of personal privacy; likewise, letter sent from district attorney to officials of Department of Correctional Services offering advice or recommendations, would be considered inter-agency materials and would be withheld. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4682.

Records pertaining to public employees that are relevant to performance of their official duties are generally available, however, where names do not pertain to public employees acting in performance of their official duties, it might be appropriately contended that interest in protecting privacy outweighs general duty to disclose, and that disclosure would constitute unwarranted invasion of personal privacy; disclosure of identifying details concerning inmates within reports would result in unwarranted invasion of personal privacy and such identifying details could be withheld on that basis. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4736.

Disclosure of identifying details concerning inmates within reports would result in unwarranted invasion of personal privacy and such identifying details could be withheld on that basis. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4736.

Request for names, Department of Correctional Services numbers and locations of all inmates housed in certain sections of correctional facility should be made readily accessible for inspection because it does not result in unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4901.

Record reflective of demonstration of personal religious beliefs or activities can be withheld from disclosure under Freedom of Information Law on ground that disclosure would constitute unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. Although record reflective of demonstration of personal religious beliefs or activities can be withheld from disclosure under Freedom of Information Law on ground that disclosure would constitute unwarranted invasion of personal privacy, inmate was entitled to disclosure of videotape of Jehovah Witness Assembly during which he was baptized, which was maintained by Ministerial Services Division of Department of Correctional Services, at least to extent of aspects of videotape that depicted activities witnessed by him. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9365.

Disclosure of inmates' names and cell locations would not result in unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. Disclosure that inmate requested notary services, without more, does not represent significant invasion of privacy, but any notation in records regarding inmate's reason for seeking notary services should be withheld. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9870.

159. Public office holders, officials and the like

Mailing lists of the State Office for the Aging constitute records subject to the rights of access provided such lists are not used for fund raising purposes. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-6319 (1990).

References in mayor's appointment calendar to purely personal activities, such as child's birthday, family gathering or medical matter, can be withheld from disclosure under Freedom of Information Law as unwarranted invasion of personal privacy; however, in those instances in which mayor may influence or be influenced in that person's capacity as mayor, notwithstanding absence of expenditure of public moneys, contention that disclosure would constitute unwarranted invasion of personal privacy would appear to be unsubstantial in many cases. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9191.

School district would be required to disclose record or records identifying applicants for vacancy on board of education; fact that person has applied to fill vacancy in what ordinarily is elective office would not represent disclosure of intimate personal detail or would, therefore, constitute unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12918.

In determining rights of access to "application letters" and resumes of applicants for school board vacancy, applicant's employment history (other than public employment) may be withheld; medical information may be withheld, as well as other details, such as social security number; however, some details within records would not rise to level of unwarranted invasion of personal privacy if disclosed, such as applicant's general educational background. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12918.

Disclosure of information indicating public employee's criminal conviction would not, if disclosed, constitute unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-13240.

Schedules indicating appointments, meetings and like in which public employee has engaged are relevant to performance of that person's official duties; thus, to extent that such record pertains to performance of employee's official duties, disclosure will result in permissible rather than unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2347.

160. Recreation and sports

City could withhold any portion of list of participants in softball clinic run by city youth commission that would identify children, including personally identifying details based on age; disclosure would result in unwarranted invasion of personal privacy, particularly as requested information focused on activities of children. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-10066.

Where request sought names, addresses and phone numbers of "any and all" county resident golfers utilizing county public golf courses without being county public park pass holders, it would be advisable for requestor to certify (if accurate) that names and addresses would not be used for any commercial or fund-raising purposes. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12191.

161. Real property, generally

162. —Assessment records; property taxes

Assessment records identify property owners, their addresses, and other details concerning property are subject to disclosure; where contents of assessment rolls have been transferred to computer tapes, computer tapes are available for disclosure even though there is intent to use information for commercial purposes. Committee on Open Government FOIL-AO-3799.

If names and addresses of property owners who failed to pay taxes, or on whom penalties were imposed, would be used for commercial or fund-raising purpose, agency could justifiably deny access. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12549.

City inventory and assessment data regarding real property would be available to any person for any reason during time specified in notice required by CLS RPTL § 501, but it could be withheld at other times if it would be used for commercial or fund raising purpose. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12689.

In context of Freedom of Information Law, particularly considering fact that bank account numbers may serve as codes used to make deposits, withdrawals or engage in other financial transactions, disclosure of both sides of check made out to town by property tax payer would result in unwarranted invasion of personal privacy since it would reveal payer's personal bank account number. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-16604.

163. —Housing, including Section 8 housing matters

In view of absence of any intent on part of applicant to ascertain names of Section 8 tenants and in view of small size of Village of Fort Plain, Village could withhold records to extent that disclosure would identify Section 8 tenants, including addresses, irrespective of whether multiple dwelling unit was occupied by Section 8 tenants as well as others; in municipality of less than 3,000 with few if any large housing units, disclosure of tenant's address would render that person's identity readily traceable. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9466.

Because tenants in Section 8 housing must meet income qualification, insofar as disclosure of records would identify tenants, they may be withheld on ground that disclosure would constitute unwarranted invasion of personal privacy; conversely, following deletion of identifying details pertaining to tenants, remainder of records—i.e., those portions indicating identities of landlords, contractors and amounts that are paid—must be disclosed. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9466.

Portions of HUD audit of county's "Revolving Loan Fund," which were identifiable to individuals and included recommendations or opinions regarding their ethical conduct, could be withheld to extent that no final determination concerning their conduct had been reached, to prevent unwarranted invasion of personal privacy; likewise, to extent that allegations or charges were found to be without merit, such records could be withheld. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-10050.

Because tenants in section 8 housing must meet income qualification, insofar as disclosure of records would identify tenants, they may be withheld on ground that disclosure would constitute "an unwarranted invasion of personal privacy" under CLS Pub O § 87(2)(b), even if dwellings are not public housing units or under jurisdiction of housing authority; conversely, following deletion of identifying details pertaining to tenants, remainder of records, i.e., those portions indicating identities of landlords, contractors and amounts that are paid, must be disclosed. City housing authority could deny reporter's request for disclosure of names of section 8 tenants in particular housing development; however, identity of landlord must be disclosed, for payments are made by governmental entities to landlord, irrespective of landlord's income and financial standing, while other details could be withheld, if disclosure would make tenant's identity ascertainable. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12399.

164. —Land use, including building permits and environmental facilities

Correspondence to agency from residents of town opposing proposed subdivision were not subject to disclosure under CLS Pub O § 87(2)(b). Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8912.

Commercial use exception would not apply to disclosure of Citywide Facility Inventory Database (CFID) maintained and made available by New York City Department of Environmental Protection (DEP), since provisions pertaining to protection of personal privacy involve items relating to natural persons, and database related only to business entities. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12559.

Exception concerning records compiled for law enforcement purposes would be inapplicable to Freedom of Information request for permits, certificates of occupancy and outstanding violations or citations with respect to various properties, even if records sought might be used in or pertinent to criminal investigation. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-16459.

Records identifying owners of parcels of real property against whom real estate property tax penalties have been imposed, including their addresses, must be disclosed under Freedom of Information Law; however, telephone numbers of such persons may be withheld as unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9324.

Prior to disclosing computer generated lists of real property inventory data, agency may require applicant to submit certification stating requested information will not be used for commercial or fund-raising purposes. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-10062.

Substance of complaints transmitted to village, pertaining to requestor's property, was accessible under Freedom of Information Law; however portions of complaints that identified complainants could be deleted to prevent unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-10172.

Real property inventory is available to any person for any reason during time specified in notice under CLS RPTL § 501, but inventory may be withheld at other times if it would be used for commercial or fund raising purpose. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12421.

165. Schools, generally

166. —Students

With regard to request directed to CUNY School of Law at Queens College for release of transcripts of its graduates, school could withhold any aspect of transcript which if disclosed would be personally identifiable to student based upon provisions of both Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act (20 USCS § 1232g) and CLS Pub O § 87(2)(b). Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9492.

With regard to request for rejected applications for admission to law school, items such as names, social security numbers, resident addresses and phone numbers, dates of birth, alien registration numbers, LSDAS/LSAT registration numbers and similar personal details could be withheld to prevent unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9544.

"Juvenile Fire Intervention, Response and Education Committee" was not precluded from maintaining records concerning juveniles suspected of fire-setting activity in one community and, when suspects moved to another community, from sharing those records with appropriate authorities in new community; however, names of juvenile suspects could be withheld from public (1) to prevent unwarranted invasion of personal privacy, (2) to prevent interference with law enforcement investigations, and (3) because, even when there is finding of guilt, records pertaining to juveniles are confidential under CLS Family Ct Act § 784. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-10111.

167. —Teachers and other school staff

168. — —Retirees, pension information and the like

Terms of settlement and contract between school district and teacher would result in permissible rather than unwarranted invasion of personal privacy; such records are relevant to performance of official duties of school board and teacher, and, furthermore, it is clear that contracts between public employers and their employees are accessible because they represent terms and conditions under which public moneys are expended and public duties are performed. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4861.

Public employees enjoy lesser right to privacy then any other identifiable group, because they are more accountable to public; therefore, records that are relevant to performance of official duties of public employee are available since disclosure results in permissible rather than unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. Certifications pertaining to duties of school employees are available under FOIL, since such disclosure constitutes permissible rather than unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. Comm On Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4010.

Terms of contract between employee and school district, as well as contract between public employee and public employer, are permissible rather than unwarranted invasion of personal privacy, since such records are relevant to performance of official duties of school board and employee, and contracts between public employers and their employees represent terms and conditions under which public moneys are expended and public duties are performed. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4439.

As to request for information from Utica City School District regarding employee health insurance accounts, to extent that such information consists of agency records, none of grounds for denial under Pub Off § 87(2) could likely be asserted, though if such records identify claimants, identifying details could likely be deleted as constituting unwarranted invasion of personal privacy under §§ 87(2)(b), 89(2)(b) of such law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4495.

As to complaint letters submitted by students' parents to board of education, 2 of which letters were submitted in sealed envelopes, complaints were "records" under CLS Pub O § 86(4), whether or not they were submitted in sealed envelopes, under §§ 87(2)(b) and 89(2)(b) of such Law, substance of such complaint may be disclosed, though identifying details pertaining to complainant might not be relevant to board's work and thus their disclosure may constitute unwarranted invasion of personal privacy, and under 20 USCS § 1232g, complaint identifying student's parents would be "personally identifiable" to student and therefore justify deletion of identifying details. Comm On Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4512.

Ratings of school teachers could be characterized as "intra-agency materials", and extent to which they may be accessible or deniable is largely dependent upon specific content of individual records since extent to which individual forms contain opinions and facts differs from one form to next. Comm On Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4592.

Personal information such as home address, home telephone number, or name of person for an employer to contact in case of an emergency, may be withheld from disclosure, but where remainder of record is available, such as faculty members' programs for semester, it will be proper to delete personal information while disclosing remainder; also, if record is available under freedom of information law it is available for both inspection and copy. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4629.

With regard to findings and recommendations issued pursuant to CLS Educ § 3020-a in connection with charges brought against teacher for misconduct and conduct unbecoming teacher, references to offensive statements about victim's sexuality which were not credited as truthful by panel, could be withheld from disclosure to prevent unwarranted invasion of privacy. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7939.

With regard to teacher's request that school district release content of certain letters that were sent by parents to school district allegedly complaining about teacher's conduct, such letters were subject to disclosure if deletions were made to protect children's identity as well as parent's identity, unless it was possible that identities of students or parents could be easily traced even if names and other personal details were deleted. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9733.

Teacher was entitled to printout of names of all teachers in school district and their current salaries including salary step and approved graduate hours since such disclosure would not involve unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9736.

School district's disclosure of list of teachers who were not members of certain union would result in permissible rather than unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9764.

Certifications and educational backgrounds of experts who testified at trial of individual requesting records must be disclosed, as issuance of certification is clearly relevant to performance of expert's duties, and disclosure of public employee's educational background does not constitute unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9967.

While record that individual has met requirements to gain teaching certification is clearly public, score on certification exam would, if disclosed, constitute unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. State Education Department would not have authority to disclose certain teacher test scores to city Board of Education in effort to assess connection between those scores and student performance, even though such data would be used "in aid of" board's efforts in hiring most qualified candidates; while data would be helpful to board, it was apparently not "necessary," for board had functioned to date without data. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12594.

Disclosure of names of board members and district employees to whom laptop computers were issued, and list of inappropriate personal purposes for which computer issued to each person was used, would not constitute unwarranted invasion of person privacy, since identities of those to whom computers were issued related to performance of those persons' functions and duties as officers or employees of government agency, and information regarding personal use of computers pertained to use of school district computers, not to their use by any particular individual. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-16407.

Bus stop reviews provided by school district in response to Freedom of Information Law (FOIL) request could not delete names of reviewers and their comments if portions withheld were reflective of decisions on which district relied; however, to extent that portions withheld reflected opinions of district personnel, redaction would be consistent with FOIL except to extent that those opinions consisted of statistical or factual information. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-16486.

169. Social services

Access under Freedom of Information Law to results of survey conducted by local drug abuse prevention council would depend in large part on contents of survey and format in which results were presented; CLS Pub O § 87(2)(b) would likely apply if release of survey results identified persons participating in drug treatment program, but if results contained nothing more than aggregate numbers of persons attending programs or requesting services, then disclosure would not result in unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-16573.

170. Telephone records, including 911 calls

Telephone numbers called by public employees during business hours are likely available under FOIL, for they would not necessarily indicate who in fact was called, and indication of number would not disclose nature of conversation. Comm On Open Gov't FOIL-AO-3894.

When public officer or employee uses telephone in course of his or her official duties, bills involving use of telephone are relevant to performance of that person's official duties; thus, disclosure of such bills will not result in unwarranted invasion of personal privacy with respect to officer or employee of agency who uses agency's telephone. When telephone numbers appear on agency telephone bill, those numbers do not necessarily indicate who in fact was called or who picked up receiver in response to call; thus, disclosure of numbers called will not result in unwarranted invasion of personal privacy, even with respect to recipient of call. Disclosure of telephone numbers called by caseworker who telephones applicants for or recipients of public assistance might identify those who were contacted and, therefore, numbers could likely be withheld from disclosure in that circumstance to protect against unwarranted invasion of personal privacy due to status of those contacted. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7926.

Reference to caller as "an 86 year old woman" might constitute unwarranted invasion of personal privacy; it was conjectural whether caller's age was relevant to spill report prepared by Department of Environmental Conservation (DEC) following call by person outside DEC. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9918.

Record of medical emergency call consists in great measure of what might be characterized as medical record or history relating to person needing care or service; thus, portions of records identifying those to whom medical services were rendered, their ages, and descriptions of their medical problems or conditions could be withheld, while other aspects of records, such as locations of calls or addresses, should be disclosed. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12608.

When 911 report relates to dwelling in which there are many tenants, description of complaint as sex offense or "domestic trbl" likely would not identify victim of such offense or those involved in domestic dispute; thus, absent personally identifiable details, city could not justify denial of access on basis of either CLS Civ R § 50-b or CLS Pub O § 87(2)(b) or § 89(2)(b). Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12741.

Presence of police vehicle at particular time and location due to call from complainant, family member or neighbor is not secret, and record that makes reference to such event would be public. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12741.

Printouts of electronic copies of 911 incident reports that indicate merely that certain event occurred would be analogous to disclosure of contents of traditional police blotter and, therefore, should be disclosed. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12741.

171. Utilities and the like

To extent that records sought by Public Service Commission from Niagara Mohawk Power Corporation related to employees and other individuals in their professional or business capacities, Freedom of Information Law privacy provisions did not apply; however, names or other details pertaining to natural persons could be deleted insofar as requested records involved other aspects. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9911.

In releasing payroll records kept by agency to determine whether employees on public works projects are being paid in accordance with prevailing wage standards, agency may delete contractors' names, addresses and social security numbers to prevent unwarranted invasion of personal privacy, as such information is largely irrelevant to reason for keeping records; however, portions of records reflective of titles, duties, wages, hours worked and similar data must be disclosed. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-10325.

Insofar as payroll records sought by applicant included public works contractor's employees' names, addresses, social security numbers and their wages, portions of those records could properly be withheld under CLS Pub O § 87(2)(b) since what was relevant to agency was whether employees were being paid in accordance with prevailing wage standards; however, portions of records reflective of titles, duties, wages, hours worked and similar data should be disclosed. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12640.

County Sewer District could withhold or delete portions of records involving citizens' complaints which identified complainants, on ground that disclosure would result in unwarranted invasion of personal privacy; what is relevant is substance of complaint—i.e., whether or not complaint has merit. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2234.

172. Veterans

173. —Voting; elections

Although date of birth might justifiably be denied as unwarranted invasion of personal privacy, since Election Law requires disclosure of registration records, which includes date of birth, nothing in Freedom of Informatoin Law (CLS Pub Off Law §§ 85-89) may be asserted to withhold those records. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4116.

Although certain items contained in required voter registration records might justifiably be denied as unwarranted invasion of personal privacy if contained in other kinds of records, specific direction provided in Election Law requires disclosure of such items. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12067.

Pursuant to CLS Pub O § 89(6) and CLS Elec § 5-602, there was no basis to withhold list of persons who voted in Mattituck Park District from disclosure under Freedom of Information Law, regardless of requester's intended use of list. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-16532.

Names and addresses of veterans who have been honorably discharged must generally be disclosed, unless records are sealed under CLS Civ R § 79-g or request involves list of veterans' names and addresses; in latter situation, agency may ascertain whether list is intended to be used for commercial or fund-raising purpose and, if so, list can justifiably be withheld. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8954.

Sole item that could be withheld from record of certificate of honorable discharge given to veteran would be social security number (assuming record is not sealed under CLS Civ R § 79-g), since local government agencies may withhold social security numbers on ground that disclosure would constitute "an unwarranted invasion of personal privacy," but they are not required to do so. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12688.

III. Appeals

A. Administrative Appeals

i. Generally

174. In general

Requirement imposed by § 89[4][a], that denial on appeal must "fully explain" reasons for such denial, involves more than mere recitation of language of one or more grounds for denial appearing in § 87[2]. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4075.

Failure to respond to request for information within designated time limits results in denial of access that may be appealed to head of agency or person designated to determine appeals, and when appeal is made but determination is not rendered within 10 business days of receipt of appeal, applicant has exhausted his or her administrative remedies and may initiate challenge to constructive denial of access under CLS Civil Practice Law and Rules, Article 78. 1986 Committee on Open Government FOIL-AO-4181.

While inter-agency or intra-agency material may be withheld, portions of such materials consisting of statistical factual information, instructions to staff that affect public, or final agency policy or determinations must be made available; concurrently, to extent that such materials consist of advice, opinion or recommendation, they may be withheld; denial of records may be appealed pursuant to CLS Pub O § 89(4)(a). Comm On Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4595.

In event of denial of request or failure to respond within appropriate time limit, appeal may be brought in accordance with CLS Pub O § 89(4)(a). Comm On Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4607.

If request for record has been denied by agency, either in writing or due to failure to respond, denial may be appealed. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4645.

Where request for record is not granted, denied or acknowledged, appeal is appropriate. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4675.

Agency has 5 business days to respond to request for record and if they fail to respond within designated time limit denial of access may be appealed; appeal must be determined within 10 business days from receipt of appeal. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4753.

If information sought exists, but apparently cannot be proved due to nature of agencies filing or record-keeping systems, although agency might not have disclosed information sought, its actions would not be considered as denials that can be appealed. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4764.

Agency must respond to request for records within 5 business days of receipt of request and when request is denied, applicant may appeal to head of agency or whomever is designated to determine appeals; that person or body has 10 business days from receipt of appeal to render determination. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4872.

Committee on Open Government does not have authority to respond to appeal; Committee may advise with respect to Freedom of Information Law; however, it is not empowered to grant or deny access to records, or to compel agency to comply with Freedom of Information Law; in short, Committee cannot determine appeals from denial of access. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4909.

If request for records has been denied, denial may be appealed in accordance with Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4912.

When agency denies request for records, denial may be appealed according to specifications set out in Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4928.

If agency does not respond to request for records within 5 business days of receipt of request, or if request is denied, applicant has right to appeal denial under Freedom of Information Law; under these provisions, applicant must appeal within 30 days of denial to head, chief executive or governing body of entity, or person designated as appeals officer; such person must determine appeal within 10 business days of receipt of appeal. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4937.

When records access officer denies request, applicant has right to appeal pursuant to Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4948.

Committee on Open Government indicates that appeal from denial of access to records should include date and location of initial request, description of records that were denied and name and address of applicant; further, Freedom of Information Law requires that applicant appeal within 30 days of receipt of written denial. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4965.

Reasons for denial cited in determination of appeal need not be consistent with those offered by records access officer in initial denial. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9374.

Constructive denial of Freedom of Information Law request (by non-response from agency) may be appealed in accordance with CLS Pub O § 89(4)(a). Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12438.

175. Article 78 proceedings, generally

176. —District Attorney's office

Since district attorneys office is "governmental entity" that performs "governmental function" for state and public corporation, such as county, it is agency required to comply with Freedom of Information Law; based on this, tape recording constitutes "record" subject to rights conferred by Freedom of Information Law; failure of agency to respond to request for information within designated time limits results in denial of access that may be appealed, and determination must be rendered within 10 days or else appellant has exhausted his or her administrative remedies and may initiate challenge to constructive denial of access under CLS CPLR Article 78. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4716.

177. —Medical, health and the like

Jail visitation logs which are kept in plain sight, and can be viewed by any person, are accessible under Freedom of Information Law if staff is able to locate requested portions of log;

however, if log is not kept in plain sight and cannot ordinarily be viewed, it can be withheld on basis that disclosure would constitute unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9771.

When applicant's request for records of State Commission of Investigation is denied, applicant may appeal denial not to State Health Department, but to State Commission of Investigation. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-4849.

178. —Prisons; prisoners

To learn whether information is deleted from record and if it is proper to do so, requester of record should request that department of correctional services provide explanation of deletions made because this is generally procedure when response to appeal is given. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4576.

If appeal from denial of access to records is denied, in whole or in part, next procedural step would involve commencement of Article 78 proceeding in New York State Supreme Court against agency which denied request; request for advisory opinion from Committee on Open Government should be made prior to commencement of Article 78 proceeding, for it is policy of Committee not to comment on issues arising under Freedom of Information Law which are subject of ongoing litigation. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4651, 4659, 4687, 4695, 4698-4700.

179. Public hearing requirement

No public hearing is required when denial of access to records is appealed in accordance with CLS Public Officers § 89. Committee on Open Government FOIL-AO-3806.

180. Requirement that reason(s) for denial of request be specified

Freedom of Information Law provides that agency must respond to request for records within 5 business days of receipt of request, and if request is denied, denial should be in writing stating reasons therefor; failure to respond within designated time limits results in denial of access that may be appealed to head of agency or whomever is designated to determine appeals; that person or body has 10 business days from receipt of appeal to render determination. Comm On Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4603.

Upon receipt of appeal, person or body determining appeal has 10 business days to either fully explain in writing to person requesting record reasons for further denial, or provide access to records sought; when determination is not rendered within 10 business days from receipt of appeal as required under Freedom of Information Law, appellant has exhausted his or her administrative remedies and may initiate challenge to constructive denial of access. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4632.

181. Timely determination requirement

When appeal is made but determination is not rendered within 10 business days of receipt of appeal as required under § 89[4][a] of FOIL, appellant has exhausted his or her administrative remedies and may initiate challenge to constructive denial of access under Article 78 of CPLR. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4056.

Appeals person or body has 10 business days from receipt of appeal to render determination; when appeal is made but determination is not rendered within 10 business days of receipt of appeal, appellant has exhausted his or her administrative remedies and may initiate challenge to constructive denial of access under CLS CPLR Article 78; before Article 78 proceeding may be commenced, exhaustion of administrative remedies must take place. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4671, 4673, 4680, 4687, 4690.

Request for advisory opinion does not relieve agency of its responsibility to comply with time limitation imposed by CLS Pub O § 89(4)(a) concerning issuance of determination following appeal, unless appellant has waived adherence to that limitation. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7917.

ii. Appeals Officer

182. In general

It is improper for agency to refer correspondence concerning request for documents to attorneys from private law firm since appeals officer or body must be clearly designated; although agency officials may consult with attorney, determination on appeal should be made by designated appeals officer or body. Committee on Open Government FOIL-AO-3388.

Freedom of Information Law provides that agency must respond to request for records within 5 business days of receipt of request, and if request is denied, denial should be in writing stating reasons therefor; failure to respond within designated time limits results in denial of access that may be appealed to head of agency or whomever is designated to determine appeals; that person or body has 10 business days from receipt of appeal to render determination. Comm On Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4603.

Failure of agency to respond within designated time limit for requested records results in denial of access which may be appealed to head of agency or whomever is designated to determine appeals who has 10 business days from receipt of appeal to render determination; when an appeal is made but determination is not rendered within 10 business days of receipt of appeal, appellant has exhausted his or her administrative remedies and may initiate challenge to constructive denial of access under CLS Civ Practice Rules Article 7. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4620.

Failure of agency to respond for records to disclosure within designated time limits results in denial of access and may be appealed to head of agency or whomever is designated to determine appeals. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4627.

Failure of agency to respond to request for record within designated time limits results in denial of access and may be appealed to head of agency or whomever is designated to determine appeal; if determination is not rendered within proper time limit, appellant has exhausted his or her administrative remedies and may initiate challenge to constructive denial of access. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4628.

Any person denied access to record may appeal, and appeal should be in writing, describing records denied, and should be directed to appeals officer of agency that maintains records. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4629.

Upon receipt of appeal, person or body determining appeal has 10 business days to either fully explain in writing to person requesting record reasons for further denial, or provide access to records sought; when determination is not rendered within 10 business days from receipt of appeal as required under Freedom of Information Law, appellant has exhausted his or her administrative remedies and may initiate challenge to constructive denial of access. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4632.

Failure of agency to respond to request for record within designated time limits results in denial of access that may be appealed to head of agency or whomever is designated to determine appeals; person or body has 10 business days from receipt of appeal to render determination; when appeal is made but determination is not rendered within 10 business days of receipt of appeal, appellant has exhausted his or her administrative remedies and may initiate challenge to constructive denial of access under CLS CPLR Article 78; before Article 78 proceeding may be commenced, exhaustion of administrative remedies must take place. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4671.

Freedom of Information Law requires that agency respond in writing within 5 business days of receipt of request whether or not agency maintains record sought and whether or not record is available; agency's failure to respond may be considered constructive denial which may be appealed. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4672.

Failure of agency to respond to request for record within designated time limits results in denial of access that may be appealed to head of agency or whomever is designated to determine appeal; that person or body has 10 business days from receipt of appeal to render determination. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4673.

Failure of agency to respond to request for records within designated time limits results in denial of access that may be appealed and if determination is not rendered within 10 business days of receipt of appeal, appellant has exhausted his or her administrative remedies and may initiate challenge to constructive denial of access under CLS Civ Practice Rules Article 78. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4680.

Freedom of Information Law requires that agency must appoint person or body to whom appeal may be directed following denial of access to records. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4681.

Failure of agency to respond to request to records within designated time limits results in denial of access that may be appealed to head of agency or whomever is designated to determine appeals; that person already has 10 business days from receipt of appeal to render its determination. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4684.

When seeking appeal for denial of records, appeal may be made to community board itself or person or body designated by board to render determinations on appeal. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4748.

Agency must respond to request for records within 5 business days of receipt of request and when request is denied, applicant may appeal to head of agency or whomever is designated to determine appeals; that person or body has 10 business days from receipt of appeal to render determination. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4872.

If agency does not respond to request for records within 5 business days of receipt of request, or if request is denied, applicant has right to appeal denial under Freedom of Information Law; under these provisions, applicant must appeal within 30 days of denial to head, chief executive or governing body of entity, or person designated as appeals officer; such person must determine appeal within 10 business days of receipt of appeal. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4937.

If District Attorney, as head of District Attorney's Office, is appeals person for purpose of Freedom of Information Law, only means of seeking review of his determination is through Article 78 proceeding. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9501.

Appeals officer is not bound by reasons offered in initial denial of access or absence thereof. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12987.

Due to scheduling concerns, governing body should designate person (i.e., Supervisor, Town Attorney, etc.) to determine appeals under Freedom of Information Law (FOIL), although it is permissible under FOIL to appeal directly to governing body itself. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-13350.

183. Appeals office for education matters

Committee on Open Government cannot investigate allegation that conflict of interest exists where person performs dual function of secretary to Board of Education and appeals officer for purposes of FOIL, since FOIL does not place limitations concerning persons that may be designated as appeals officer and, as general matter, Committee on Open Government has neither authority nor resources to "investigate" possible conflicts of interest. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-3993.

184. Appeals officer for municipalities

If fire department is subject to Freedom of Information Law, appeal from denial of records should be directed to governing body of department. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4644.

185. Appeals officer for prisoners

Person designated to render determinations on appeal under Freedom of Information Law for Department of Correctional Services is counsel to Department; as such, appeal may be directed to counsel at Department's Albany Office. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4007.

186. Requirement that records access officer and appeals officer cannot be same person

Regulations promulgated by Committee [21 NYCRR 1401], which have force of law, state that records access officer and appeals person cannot be same individual [21 NYCRR 1401.7[b]]. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4056.

Under Freedom of Information Law, direct appeal should be made to appeals officer of agency maintaining records sought; records access officer shall not be appeals officer. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4580.

Head of agency must designate appeals officer or body, who must be identified by name, title, business address and business telephone number; further, records access officer shall not be appeals officer. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4723.

Governing body must appoint records access officer and appeals officer or body, who must be identified by name, title, business address and business telephone number; records access officer shall not be appeals officer. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4725.

Records access officer should not be appeals officer and if appeals officer is not known, appeal should be directed to head or governing body of agency maintaining records sought. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4730.

Agency is required to designate records access officer who has duty of responding to requests for records and appeals person or body responsible for making determinations on appeals; Freedom of Information Law provides that the appeals officer should be head, chief executive or governing body of agency or person designated by head, chief executive or governing body; however, records access officer cannot be appeals officer. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4810.

Initial request for records should be directed to records access officer of agency and appeals will be directed to appeals officer of that agency; these cannot be same person. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4847.

Agency would be acting in compliance with law regarding designation of person to determine appeals so long as such person does not engage in direct role in dealing initially with request under Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12699.

B. Judicial Review

187. In general

If appeal from denial of access to records is denied, in whole or in part, next procedural step would involve commencement of Article 78 proceeding in New York State Supreme Court against agency which denied request; request for advisory opinion from Committee on Open Government should be made prior to commencement of Article 78 proceeding, for it is policy of Committee not to comment on issues arising under Freedom of Information Law which are subject of ongoing litigation. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4651, 4695, 4698, 4718, 4724-4725.

Absent clear indication of legislative intent to require continued confidentiality, Freedom of Information Law, as matter of public policy, supersedes statute that appears to exempt records from disclosure; nevertheless, this issue can be resolved only by court. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4844.

188. Burden of proof, generally

When appeal is made but determination is not rendered within 10 business days of receipt of appeal, appellant has exhausted his or her administrative remedies and may initiate challenge to constructive denial of access under CLS CPLR Article 78. If Article 78 proceeding is commenced, agency has burden of proof that records sought fall within scope of grounds for denial listed in Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4723.

189. Exhaustion of administrative remedies, generally

Neither initial denial made in writing nor failure to respond to request for information results in exhaustion of administrative remedies that would enable applicant to seek judicial review of denial, as when request is denied, or when agency fails to respond to request within requisite time limits, applicant must appeal to agency head before initiating proceeding under Article 78. 1986 Committee on Open Government FOIL-AO-4179.

190. Finality of appeal

When determination is made following appeal made pursuant to Freedom of Information Law, that determination must be considered as final and binding. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4836.

191. Mootness; "academic" nature of appeal

192. —Second or subsequent appeal

If individual chooses not to initiate Article 78 proceeding within 4 months after agency's denial of his or her appeal, choice not to do so should not forever preclude that person from seeking records since there may be changes in circumstances, judicial precedents that could put issue in different light, acquisition of records from other sources that might diminish agency's capacity to justify denial or change in one's financial ability to initiate lawsuit and, therefore, agency cannot in every instance deny second request on basis of mootness. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9438.

92. Definitions

HISTORY:

Add, L 1983, ch 652, § 1, eff Sept 1, 1984 (see 1983 note below).

§ 92. Definitions

(1) Agency. The term "agency" means any state board, bureau, committee, commission, council, department, public authority, public benefit corporation, division, office or any other governmental entity performing a governmental or proprietary function for the state of New York, except the judiciary or the state legislature or any unit of local government and shall not include offices of district attorneys.

(2) Committee. The term "committee" means the committee on open government as constituted pursuant to subdivision one of section eighty-nine of this chapter.

(3) Data subject. The term "data subject" means any natural person about whom personal information has been collected by an agency.

(4) Disclose. The term "disclose" means to reveal, release, transfer, disseminate or otherwise communicate personal information or records orally, in writing or by electronic or any other means other than to the data subject.

(5) Governmental unit. The term "governmental unit" means any governmental entity performing a governmental or proprietary function for the federal government or for any state or any municipality thereof.

(6) Law. The term "law" means state or federal statute, rule or regulation.

(7) Personal information. The term "personal information" means any information concerning a data subject which, because of name, number, symbol, mark or other identifier, can be used to identify that data subject.

(8) Public safety agency record. The term "public safety agency record" means a record of the state commission of correction, the temporary state commission of investigation, the department of corrections and community supervision, the office of children and family services, the office of victim services, the office of probation and correctional alternatives or the division of state police or of any agency or component thereof whose primary function is the enforcement of civil or criminal statutes if such record pertains to investigation, law enforcement, confinement of persons in correctional facilities or supervision of persons pursuant to criminal conviction or court order, and any records maintained by the division of criminal justice services pursuant to sections eight hundred thirty-seven, eight hundred thirty-seven-a, eight hundred thirty-seven-b, eight hundred thirty-seven-c, eight hundred thirty-eight, eight hundred thirty-nine, and eight hundred forty-five of the executive law and by the department of state pursuant to section ninety-nine of the executive law.

(9) Record. The term "record" means any item, collection or grouping of personal information about a data subject which is maintained and is retrievable by use of the name or other identifier of the data subject irrespective of the physical form or technology used to maintain such personal information. The term "record" shall not include personal information which is not used to make any determination about the data subject if it is:

(a) a telephone book or directory which is used exclusively for telephone and directory information;

(b) any card catalog, book or other resource material in any library;

(c) any compilation of information containing names and addresses only which is used exclusively for the purpose of mailing agency information;

(d) personal information required by law to be maintained, and required by law to be used, only for statistical research or reporting purposes;

(e) information requested by the agency which is necessary for the agency to answer unsolicited requests by the data subject for information; or

(f) correspondence files.

(10) Routine use. The term "routine use" means, with respect to the disclosure of a record or personal information, any use of such record or personal information relevant to the purpose for which it was collected, and which use is necessary to the statutory duties of the agency that collected or obtained the record or personal information, or necessary for that agency to operate a program specifically authorized by law.

(11) System of records. The term "system of records" means any group of records under the actual or constructive control of any agency pertaining to one or more data subjects from which personal information is retrievable by use of the name or other identifier of a data subject.

1. In general

Building a Better New York Committee (BBNYC) could not claim protections afforded by Personal Privacy Protection Law, CLS Pub O Art 6-A (PPPL) since CLS Pub O § 97(1) provides that only "data subject" may commence proceeding to seek judicial relief of purported violation of PPPL, and "data subject" is defined under CLS Pub O § 92 as any natural person; thus, BBNYC lacked standing to bring proceeding to restrain State Commission on Government Integrity and State Board of Elections from publicly revealing contents of files prepared by board in its investigation of town election campaign. Building a Better New York Committee v New York State Com. on Government Integrity, 138 Misc. 2d 829, 525 N.Y.S.2d 488, 1988 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 203 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1988).

Police narcotics officer has no viable claim under New York's Personal Privacy Protection Law (Pub O §§ 91 et seq.), even though citizen taped conversations picked up on scanner in which officer used racially derogatory language, because neither district attorney's office nor police department are "agencies," and tape recording is not "record," as defined by § 92. Spetalieri v Kavanaugh, 36 F. Supp. 2d 92, 1998 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 20061 (N.D.N.Y. 1998).

Personal Privacy Protection Law is applicable only to records in possession of state agencies and is not applicable to records of units of local government; although state agencies may be prohibited from releasing records when disclosure would constitute unwarranted invasion of personal privacy, provision is not applicable to units of local government; although state agency required to comply with Personal Privacy Protection Law is obligated to withhold records when disclosure would constitute unwarranted invasion of personal privacy, units of local government continue to operate under permissive provisions of Freedom of Information Law which enable but do not require agency to withhold records when disclosure would constitute unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. Committee on Open Government PPPL-AL-3.

CLS Pub O § 92(9)(e) does not exempt Lottery Division's records, in their entirety, from coverage under Personal Privacy Protection Law. Comm on Open Govt PPPL-AO-5.

2. "Public service agency" generally

Even if material sought by petitioner (namely, all records relating to his disqualified application for position of state trooper) fell within ambit of Personal Privacy Protection Law (PPPL), CLS Pub O Art 6-A, it was not subject to disclosure because it consisted of "public safety agency records," to which PPPL is rendered inapplicable by reason of CLS Pub O § 95(7), in that public agency record is defined in CLS Pub O § 92(8) to include record of division of state police pertaining to investigation, and material sought by petitioner consisted entirely of evaluative documents gathered by state police pursuant to extensive investigation into his background and qualifications for position of state trooper. O'Shaughnessy v New York State Div. of State Police, 202 A.D.2d 508, 609 N.Y.S.2d 18, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2584 (N.Y. It was error to deny a motion to dismiss a petition filed by police officers and the officers' union alleging a city was barred from holding public police disciplinary hearings because (1) the officers had no private right of action for claimed violations of Civil Rights Law § 50-a, (2) Civil Rights Law § 50-a did not mandate closed disciplinary hearings, as the statute did not mention disciplinary hearings or require that such hearings be held in private, and this exclusion was intentional, (3) Public Officers Law §§ 89(2) and 96, barring a disclosure of records that was an unwarranted invasion of privacy, did not bar public disciplinary hearings, (4) Second Class Cities Law § 137 gave a city the right to hold public police disciplinary hearings, and (5) the Public Employment Relations Board had exclusive jurisdiction over whether police disciplinary matters were a prohibited subject of negotiations, under Civil Service Law §§ 205(5)(d) and 209-a(1) and (2), as alleged by the officers and the union. 1. In general

Personal Privacy Protection law is applicable to records identifiable to individuals that are maintained by state agencies; with certain exceptions, subject of records may inspect and copy records pertaining to him or her; in addition, subject of record may seek to amend personal information that is inaccurate or misleading. Comm On Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4602.

If Personal Privacy Protection Law was found to apply, records would still be available, because records accessible under Freedom of Information Law remain accessible, notwithstanding provisions of Personal Privacy Protection Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4657.

In situation where no findings were issued because complaint could not be substantiated, it is likely that protection of privacy conferred by Freedom of Information Law and Personal Privacy Protection Law would be accorded to person or persons against whom complaint was made. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4729.

Personal Privacy Protection Law pertains to records containing personal information about individuals maintained by state agencies; in some instances, individual may have greater rights of access to records pertaining to himself or herself under Personal Privacy Protection Law than under Freedom of Information Law and as such when requesting records pertaining to oneself from state agency, it should be explicit that request is made in accordance with both laws. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4762.

Department of Correctional Services is "agency" subject to requirements of both Freedom of Information Law and Personal Privacy Protection Law; former includes within its scope any governmental entity performing governmental function; latter defines "agency" to mean state agencies performing governmental function for state. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4983.

While New York City Fire Department and New York State Department of Labor are "agencies" required to comply with Freedom of Information Law, Personal Privacy Protection Law, which applies to state agencies such as Department of Labor, does not apply to local entities such as New York City Fire Department. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12188.

Freedom of Information Law applies to entities of state and local government, while Personal Privacy Protection Law applies only to state agencies. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12592.

Local government may opt to disclose personal information, even when disclosure would result in unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12594.

If not-for-profit corporation (Health Research Inc. (HRI)) is determined to be "agency" under Freedom of Information Law, it would constitute agency subject to Personal Privacy Protection Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-13496.

2. Courts

Courts are not subject to either freedom of information law or personal privacy protection law; as such, request for minutes or transcripts of proceedings that took place in county court would properly be directed to clerk of court in which proceeding was conducted. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4760.

3. Educational institutions, schools and the like

Personal Privacy Protection Law does not apply to school district or other municipal entity. Committee on Open Government FOIL-AO-3398.

While city Board of Education is subject to Freedom of Information Law, state Education Department is subject to that statute, as well as Personal Privacy Protection Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12594.

5. —Correctional facilities

If records fall within the scope of both Personal Privacy Protection Law and Freedom of Information Law, requester should direct written requests to both records access officer and privacy compliance officer of department of correctional services and indicate that request is made under both laws. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4841.

Rights of access granted by Personal Privacy Protection Law do not extend to records of agencies or units within agencies whose primary functions involve investigation, law enforcement or confinement or persons in correctional facilities. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9673.

Rights of access granted by Personal Privacy Protection Law do not extend to records of agencies or units within agencies whose primary functions involve investigation, law enforcement, or confinement of persons in correctional facilities; thus, Personal Privacy Law did not serve as vehicle under which job applicant could gain access to state police records documenting results of polygraph exam which was used with other investigative records to determine whether to employ him. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-10117.

Rights of access granted by Personal Privacy Protection Law do not extend to records of agencies or units within agencies whose primary functions involve investigation, law enforcement or confinement or persons in correctional facilities. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12429.

Personal Privacy Protection Law generally grants rights of access to records held by state agencies to subject of records, but rights of access do not apply to public safety agency records. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4804.

Complaint is excluded from Personal Privacy Protection Law from rights of access on ground that it is "public safety agency record". Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4829.

Division of criminal justice services is state agency and "personal criminal records" are records pertaining to personal information; however, rights of access granted by Personal Privacy Protection Law do not apply to "public safety agency records". Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4896.

Personal Privacy Protection Law requires that state agencies make records available for inspection and copying to data subject, person to whom records pertain; however rights granted by Law do not apply to public safety agency records. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4961.

6. Transportation, transit, travel and the like

The New York State Public Transportation Safety Board has a statutory entitlement to receive and the New York City Transit Authority a statutory duty to furnish employment records including drug and alcohol test results in the context of a Board investigation of a transportation accident; such disclosure to the Board does not violate any provisions of the Personal Privacy Protection Law (Public Officers Law §§ 91 et seq.). 1990 N.Y. Op. Att'y Gen. No. F90-7.

Transit authority is required to disclose records to extent that records sought are accessible pursuant to Freedom of Information Law, and that it would be authorized to disclose as "routine use" of Personal Privacy Protection Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4964.

IV. "Executive Session" Defined
37. In general

I. Generally

1. "Conducting public business" defined

The Legislature intended to include discussions of public business within the operation of the Open Meetings Law (Public Officers Law, art 7) by its amendment of the law, which changed the phrase "transacting public business" to "conducting public business", and added to the definition of "public body" the phrase "committee or subcommittee" thereof, following a decision of the Appellate Division holding that meetings of standing committees of a board of education were not subject to the requirements of said law because they were not empowered to "transact" business. Sciolino v Ryan, 103 Misc. 2d 1021, 431 N.Y.S.2d 664, 1980 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2245 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1980), aff'd, 81 A.D.2d 475, 440 N.Y.S.2d 795, 1981 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10933 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1981), aff'd, 83 A.D.2d 755, 444 N.Y.S.2d 878, 1981 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 15072 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1981).

2. "Convening" defined

The guidelines as to whether a meeting is a "formal convening" (under former law) so as to entitle a stranger to attend are the rules of the governing body itself, the board of county supervisors. Kessel v Board of Supervisors, 90 Misc. 2d 574, 394 N.Y.S.2d 762, 1977 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2114 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1977).

II. "Meeting" Defined

3. In general

In order for gathering of members of public body to constitute "meeting" for purposes of Open Meetings Law, quorum must be present; where there was never quorum present at any of private meetings of board of education prior to regular meeting, none such events constituted "meeting" which was required to be conducted in public pursuant to Open Meetings Law. Tri-Village Publishers, Inc. v St. Johnsville Bd. of Education, 110 A.D.2d 932, 487 N.Y.S.2d 181, 1985 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 48835 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1985).

The annual session of a county legislature held to create a budget is subject to the Open Meetings Law since such session clearly falls within the scope of the definition of "meeting" in [former] Public Officers Law § 97(1) in that the session requires a quorum and meets for the purpose of discussing public business. Comm Pub Acc Rec OML—Ad Op 557.

Definition of "meeting" appearing in § [former] 97(1) of Open Meetings Law is applicable to any convening of quorum of public body for purpose of discussing public business, whether or not there is intent to take action and regardless of manner in which gathering may be characterized; therefore, agenda meetings are subject to Open Meetings Law and must be convened open to public. Comm Pub Acc Rec OML-Ad Op 648.

4. Collective bargaining sessions

The Open Meetings Law (Pub O Article 7) would not be applicable to collective bargaining sessions between public employers and public employee organizations under the Taylor Law

(Civ S, Article 14) since "sunshine" bargaining would not be imposed upon public sector labor relations in the absence of any such specific legislation in the Taylor Law and in the absence of any specific provision to that effect in the Open Meetings Law. County of Saratoga v Newman, 124 Misc. 2d 626, 476 N.Y.S.2d 1020, 1984 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3253 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1984).

5. Informal or social meetings, generally

In proceeding under CLS EDPL § 207 challenging respondent Industrial Development Agency's decision to condemn property for development of retail shopping plaza, respondent's 5-member board did not violate Open Meetings Law (CLS Pub O §§ 100 et seq.) by holding informal staff meeting (at which quorum was not present) in which engineering consultant presented status report regarding preparation of preliminary draft of proposed Supplemental Final Environmental Impact Statement, where no discussions of substance, voting, or other action took place. Mobil Oil Corp. v City of Syracuse Indus. Dev. Agency, 224 A.D.2d 15, 646 N.Y.S.2d 741, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8991 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't), app. dismissed, 89 N.Y.2d 860, 653 N.Y.S.2d 281, 675 N.E.2d 1234, 1996 N.Y. LEXIS 4287 (N.Y. 1996), app. denied, 89 N.Y.2d 811, 657 N.Y.S.2d 403, 679 N.E.2d 642, 1997 N.Y. LEXIS 359 (N.Y. 1997).

6. —Agenda sessions

Informal conference or "agenda session" constitutes "meeting" for purposes of Open Meetings Law, for it permits the crystallization of secret decisions to a point just short of ceremonial acceptance. Orange County Publications, Div. of Ottaway Newspapers, Inc. v Council of Newburgh, 60 A.D.2d 409, 401 N.Y.S.2d 84, 1978 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9687 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't), aff'd, 45 N.Y.2d 947, 411 N.Y.S.2d 564, 383 N.E.2d 1157, 1978 N.Y. LEXIS 2337 (N.Y. 1978).

Public bodies may not escape public view under Open Meetings Law by claiming that they did not formally convene when, in fact, meeting took place at which business of public interest was discussed; although not every assembling of members of public body is intended to fall within scope of law, informal conferences, agenda sessions and work sessions do invoke provisions of statute when quorum is present and when topics for discussion and decision are such as would otherwise arise at regular meeting. Goodson Todman Enterprises, Ltd. v Kingston Common Council, 153 A.D.2d 103, 550 N.Y.S.2d 157, 1990 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 29 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1990).

While a social dinner gathering attended by members of the Nassau County Board of Supervisors at which there was some discussion of the proposed budget submitted by the County Executive and an early morning gathering of the board at the town hall to enable them to pick up budget work sheets required for the upcoming board meeting do not constitute "meetings" held by the board concerning the budget in violation of the Open Meetings Law (Public Officers Law, §§ 95–106), an informal and impromptu luncheon gathering of the board at which staff reports concerning the budget were given does, however, represent an assemblage of a legislative body for a particular business purpose and thus subject to the requirements of the Open Meetings Law which governs an informal "conference" or "agenda session" or planning session wherein oral reports are received; however, in the absence of a showing of sufficient "prejudice" or "good cause", the isolated technical violation does not warrant the extreme remedy of invalidating the entire Nassau County budget adopted by the board. Kessel v D'Amato, 97 Misc. 2d 675, 412 N.Y.S.2d 303, 1979 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1992 (N.Y. Sup. Ct.), modified, 72 A.D.2d 790, 421 N.Y.S.2d 614, 1979 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 14036 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1979).

7. —Briefing, debriefing, planning sessions and the like

Meeting of several members of standing committee of municipal legislative body was covered by Open Meetings Law where quorum of committee was present, meeting was not casual encounter, but rather planned informal conference, and topic to be discussed had already arisen at earlier meeting which was required to be open to public. "Briefing session" at which municipal corporation counsel met with members of municipal legislature and other public officials was subject to Open Meetings Law where no authorization for closed "executive session" was given at an open meeting, one topic at briefing session was of interest to public, meeting was planned, and quorum was eventually present. Goodson Todman Enterprises, Ltd. v Kingston Common Council, 153 A.D.2d 103, 550 N.Y.S.2d 157, 1990 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 29 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1990).

Evidence that a clerk not a member of the board of education prepared, maintained and presented minutes of purported "planning sessions" which were offered and accepted at subsequent "regular meetings" of the board, that certain subjects raised at the purported "planning sessions" would, under the "Open Meetings Law", be raised at regular public meetings whereas other subjects would fall within general areas properly considered in "executive sessions" and that oral reports were received during the "planning sessions" from employees of the school system as well as from prospective contractors established that the "planning sessions" were "meetings" subject to the provisions of the "Open Meetings Law". Kamlet v Board of Education, 91 Misc. 2d 1105, 399 N.Y.S.2d 366, 1977 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2489 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1977).

Where certain committees of the school district board of education were advisory in nature and did not perform governmental functions, they were not public bodies subject to the open meetings provisions of N.Y. Pub. Off. Law §§ 102(2) and 103, even though the committees contained at least one member of the board. Matter of Jae v Bd. of Educ. of Pelham Union Free Sch. Dist., 22 A.D.3d 581, 802 N.Y.S.2d 228, 2005 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10872 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2005), app. denied, 6 N.Y.3d 714, 816 N.Y.S.2d 749, 849 N.E.2d 972, 2006 N.Y. LEXIS 1311 (N.Y. 2006).

Meeting of quorum of school board to discuss "what went right and wrong at meeting" or to consider members' behavior or performance at meeting falls within scope of definition of "meeting" even though it is characterized as "debriefing session", and closed debriefing session constitutes violation of Open Meetings Law. Comm Pub Acc Rec OML-Ad Op 823.

8. —Gatherings where food is served

While a social dinner gathering attended by members of the Nassau County Board of Supervisors at which there was some discussion of the proposed budget submitted by the County Executive and an early morning gathering of the board at the town hall to enable them to pick up budget work sheets required for the upcoming board meeting do not constitute "meetings" held by the board concerning the budget in violation of the Open Meetings Law (Public Officers Law, §§ 95–106), an informal and impromptu luncheon gathering of the board at which staff reports concerning the budget were given does, however, represent an assemblage of a legislative body for a particular business purpose and thus subject to the requirements of the Open Meetings Law which governs an informal "conference" or "agenda session" or planning session wherein oral reports are received; however, in the absence of a showing of sufficient "prejudice" or "good cause", the isolated technical violation does not warrant the extreme remedy of invalidating the entire Nassau County budget adopted by the board. Kessel v D'Amato, 97 Misc. 2d 675, 412 N.Y.S.2d 303, 1979 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1992 (N.Y. Sup. Ct.), modified, 72 A.D.2d 790, 421 N.Y.S.2d 614, 1979 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 14036 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1979).

9. —Workshops, seminars and the like

Public bodies may not escape public view under Open Meetings Law by claiming that they did not formally convene when, in fact, meeting took place at which business of public interest was discussed; although not every assembling of members of public body is intended to fall within scope of law, informal conferences, agenda sessions and work sessions do invoke provisions of statute when quorum is present and when topics for discussion and decision are such as would otherwise arise at regular meeting. Goodson Todman Enterprises, Ltd. v Kingston Common Council, 153 A.D.2d 103, 550 N.Y.S.2d 157, 1990 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 29 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1990).

"A close door workshop" conducted by an out-of-town law firm for a school board is a meeting subject to the Open Meetings Law in all respects provided that a quorum of the school board was present at the closed door workship. Comm Pub Acc Rec OML—Ad Op 597.

Open meetings law includes "workshops" and "work sessions" held by quorum of public body for purpose of discussing its business. Comm Pub Acc Rec OML-Ad Op 786.

10. Political caucuses

In a proceeding challenging the closing of meetings of the members of the majority political party on a city council at which the members discussed matters that were to come before the council at public meetings, the party meetings constituted meetings within the scope of [former] Pub O § 97(1) and, since it was undisputed that a quorum was present at the meetings, the meetings violated the Open Meetings Law; additionally, the meetings did not come under the "political caucus" exception contained in [former] Pub O § 103(2) since that exception was meant merely to prevent the statue from extending to the private matters of a political party, as opposed to matters that are public business. Sciolino v Ryan, 81 A.D.2d 475, 440 N.Y.S.2d 795, 1981 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10933 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1981).

Political caucuses are not subject to open meetings law even where attendance at caucus is by sufficient number of members of board as to constitute quorum of board. Oneonta Star, Div. of Ottaway Newspapers, Inc. v County of Schoharie, 112 A.D.2d 622, 492 N.Y.S.2d 145, 1985 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 55880 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1985).

11. Quorum requirements, generally

City council's discussions or meetings at which there was not a quorum of council members present were not violations of the Open Meetings Law. DeSantis v City of Jamestown, 193 Misc. 2d 197, 747 N.Y.S.2d 906, 2002 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1266 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 2002).

Due to scope of definition of "quorum" in § 41 of General Construction Law, no specific reference to quorum requirement is necessary to bring entity within scope of Open Meetings Law. Comm Pub Acc Rec OML-Ad Op 770.

12. —Participation by telephone or other mechanical devices

The participation of a member of a public body by means of "conference equipment or other mechanical devices" does not constitute the presence of that member for the purposes of convening quorum under Public Officers Law § 97. Com Pub Acc Rec OML-Ad Op 588.

13. Tours, inspections, visits and the like

Open Meeting Law was not violated when Public Service Commissioners toured proposed routes for transition station where tour was intended to provide commissioners with greater understanding of evidence regarding site selection, and summary report of tour was properly provided to parties. New Rochelle v Public Service Com., 150 A.D.2d 441, 541 N.Y.S.2d 49, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6524 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't), app. denied, 74 N.Y.2d 610, 546 N.Y.S.2d 554, 545 N.E.2d 868, 1989 N.Y. LEXIS 2819 (N.Y. 1989).

14. Other and miscellaneous

Although various meetings were held that were not open to the public, they did not all violate the Open Meetings Law, N.Y. Pub. Off. Law art. 7, as a meeting between a judge and others in his chambers was a judicial proceeding under N.Y. Pub. Off Law § 108(1) that was not covered by the Law, and a meeting between county and state legislators for advice was not subject to the Law pursuant to N.Y. Pub. Off. Law § 102(1); meetings held by members of the county legislature regarding issues that involved the budget and an increase in taxes, and meetings held by various legislators and officials without the judge's presence constituted violations of the Law, but sanctions such as a permanent injunction against future violations were not required under N.Y. Pub. Off. Law § 107. Warren v Giambra, 813 N.Y.S.2d 892, 12 Misc. 3d 650, 235 N.Y.L.J. 86, 2006 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 829 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 2006).

A meeting of a town board for the purpose of filling a vacancy on the board must be conducted as a public meeting subject to the Open Meetings Law. Com Pub Acc Rec OML-Ad Op 582.

Any convening of a quorum of a community school board with the president's council for the purpose of conducting public business constitutes a "meeting" subject to the Open Meetings Law regardless of whether such meetings are called closed meetings, personnel meetings or consultative meetings. Com Pub Acc Rec OML-Ad Op 583.

Formal gatherings of county supervisors' associations are not public meetings open to the public under [former] Public Officers Law § 97 where the members attending such meetings exchange points of view, discuss trends, and discuss issues of common interest; however, if a town or county supervisor receives communications from an association that relate to the performance of his or her official duties, such communications would constitute "records" under Public Law Officers Law § 86 and would be subject to rights of access granted by the Freedom of Information Law. Com Pub Acc Rec OML-Ad Op 586.

Gatherings of staff of correctional facility are not within scope of Open Meetings Law. Comm Pub Acc Rec OML-Ad Op 760.

School board superintendent acting as a receiver for a high school and junior high school violated N.Y. Educ. Law §§ 414(1)(c) and 211-f(1)(b)(iv) by excluding reporters' cameras from a public meeting held at a school because she opened that non-public forum to the public to discuss a matter of public interest, and although the schools were the subject of the meeting, the property was not being used for school purposes. News 12 Co. v Hempstead Pub. Schs. Bd. of Educ., 52 Misc. 3d 479, 31 N.Y.S.3d 788, 2016 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1411 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 2016).

Where a school board superintendent acting as a receiver for a high school and junior high school violated the law by excluding reporters' cameras from a public meeting held at a school, petitioner newspapers were not entitled to relief with respect to the board because the superintendent, as receiver, had the authority to call the meeting without the board's consent. News 12 Co. v Hempstead Pub. Schs. Bd. of Educ., 52 Misc. 3d 479, 31 N.Y.S.3d 788, 2016 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1411 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 2016).

III. "Public Body" Defined

15. In general

Formally chartered entity with officially delegated duties and organizational attributes of substantive nature should be deemed public body that is performing governmental function. Smith v City Univ. of New York, 92 N.Y.2d 707, 685 N.Y.S.2d 910, 708 N.E.2d 983, 1999 N.Y. LEXIS 1 (N.Y. 1999).

Essential factor in determining applicability of CLS Pub O Art 7 is whether or not entity is performing governmental function rather than simply conducting public business. Poughkeepsie Newspaper Div. of Gannett Satellite Information Network v Mayor's Intergovernmental Task Force on New York City Water Supply Needs, 145 A.D.2d 65, 537 N.Y.S.2d 582, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1492 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1989).

Committee or subcommittee designated by public body is itself a public body subject to Open Meetings Law in all respects. Comm Pub Acc Rec OML-Ad Op 794.

Any entity designated or created to serve as body by any other public body falls within requirements of Open Meetings Law. Comm Pub Acc Rec OML-Ad Op 809.

Definition of "public body" appearing in [former] § 97(2) of Open Meetings Law is not as restrictive as definition of "agency" in Freedom of Information Law. Comm Pub Acc Rec OML-Ad Op 813.

16. Advisory entities

Advisory Commission to make findings and recommendations about problems relating to liability insurance, established by Governor with "responsibility" for studying nature and impact of liability insurance problem, is not public body subject to Open Meetings Law (CLS Pub O § 100 et seq.) since (1) commission was created by executive order as advisory body composed of members who do not hold fixed terms, (2) commission lacks power to transact public business, make law, adopt regulations, or direct changes in state law and policy, and (3) no requirement exists that Governor wait for commission's recommendations before taking any action. N.Y. Pub. Interest Research Group, Inc. v Governor's Advisory Comm'n, 133 Misc. 2d 613, 507 N.Y.S.2d 798, 1986 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2916 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1986), aff'd, 135 A.D.2d 1149, 523 N.Y.S.2d 21, 1987 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 48440 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1987).

Committee consisting of two or more persons designated to perform duty collectively as body is subject to Open Meetings Law in all respects, even if it has only capacity to recommend or advise. Comm Pub Acc Rec OML-Ad Op 600.

Various citizens advisory committees created by Town Board, such as a handicapped advisory committee, an airport committee and a conservation council are all public bodies and as such are subject to the Open Meetings Law in all respects even though such committees are without any authority to make final decisions. Comm Pub Acc Rec OML-Ad Op 753.

Subcommittee of school board, empowered to conduct such business that it can be deemed advisory to full Board is public body and required to comply with provisions of Open Meetings Law. Comm Pub Acc Rec OML-Ad Op 795.

"Public body" within meaning of Open Meetings Law includes advisory bodies as well as governing bodies. Comm Pub Acc Rec OML-Ad Op 836.

17. Community planning and development, generally

A mayor's community development task force is a public body within the meaning of [former] Public Officers Law § 97(2) since the task force is an entity consisting of more than 2 members, is required to conduct business only by means of a quorum under General Construction Law § 41 and clearly performs governmental functions for the city in reviewing citizen input into community development program, therefore, the task force violated [former] Public Officers Law § 99 by failing to give advanced notice of its meeting to at least 2 members of the news media and to the public by means of posting in a conspicuous public location. Com Pub Acc Rec OML—Ad Op 590.

Village planning board is public body and is subject to Open Meetings Law in all respects since planning board is entity consisting of more than 2 members, conducts public business, performs governmental function for public corporation and is created by governing body. Comm Pub Acc Rec OML-Ad Op 827.

18. —Industrial development agencies

Since an industrial development agency is a corporate government agency, constituting a public benefit corporation under General Municipal Law, § 856(2), its board is also a public body subject to the Open Meetings Law. Comm Pub Acc Rec OML-Ad Op 857.

An industrial development agency is a "public body" for purposes of § 102 of the Open Meetings Law. Comm on Open Govt OMIL-AO 937.

19. —Local development corporations (LDCs)

Non-profit local development corporation is "public body" under [former] § 97(2) of Public Officers Law, and therefore, meetings of such corporation are subject to Open Meetings Law. Comm Pub Acc Rec OML-Ad Op 780.

Meetings of board of local development corporation are subject to Open Meetings Law; definition of "public body" appearing in [former] § 97(2) of Open Meetings Law is not as restrictive as definition of "agency" in Freedom of Information Law. Comm Pub Acc Rec OML-Ad Op 813.

20. Courts; court employees

Third Department Judicial Screening Committee was not an agency under the New York Freedom of Information Law, specifically N.Y. Pub. Off. Law § 86(3), and was not a "public body" under the New York Open Meetings Law, specifically N.Y. Pub. Off. Law § 102(2), as the Governor could reject the advice of the Committee and leave a judicial position vacant until the next election; thus, the Committee's function was purely advisory. Hurley v Johnson, 779 N.Y.S.2d 771, 4 Misc. 3d 616, 2004 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 867 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 2004).

21. Education, generally

While the application of the Open Meetings Law to meetings of a faculty-student association is unclear, if such Association exists due to its relationship with a particular college, and if the college would perform the functions of the association if the association had not been created, the faculty-student association is likely to be construed a "public body" under [former] Public Officers Law § 97(2). Comm Pub Acc Rec OML—Ad Op 578.

Budget advisory committee appointed by superintendent of education and consisting of parents, community leaders and district employees who are charged by superintendent with responsibility for developing budget proposals is public body. Comm Pub Acc Rec OML-Ad Op 764.

Baldwin educational assembly is "public body" under [former] § 97(2) of Public Officers Law, and thus meetings of BEA are subject to Open Meetings Law. Comm Pub Acc Rec OML-Ad Op 781.

"Public body" within meaning of Open Meetings Law includes advisory bodies as well as governing bodies; thus, university task force Committee constitute public body subject to provisions of Open Meetings Law because it performs advisory role for university in performance or its governmental function. Comm Pub Acc Rec OML-Ad Op 836.

22. —Community colleges

Fiorello H. LaGuardia Community College Association, Inc., qualifies as public body subject to Open Meetings Law (CLS Pub O Art 7) because it is not merely advisory but possesses and exercises real and effective decision-making power, given its delegated authority to administer student activity fees and its purported power to suspend, regulate and reinstate student publications. Mandatory student activity fees allocated and disbursed by Fiorello H. LaGuardia Community College Association, Inc., pursuant to articles 125 and 126 of Education Law were state funds for purpose of determining whether association qualified as public body subject to Open Meetings Law. Smith v City Univ. of New York, 92 N.Y.2d 707, 685 N.Y.S.2d 910, 708 N.E.2d 983, 1999 N.Y. LEXIS 1 (N.Y. 1999).

La Guardia Community College Association was not public body governed by Open Meetings Law, and thus its meeting was properly closed notwithstanding fact that funds for certain student activities were allocated at meeting, since association's primary purpose was to serve student body rather than state, it did not possess final decision-making authority but performed advisory role with respect to expenditures, and it did not exercise power of sovereign because student activity funds it oversaw were segregated from university's general revenues and did not constitute state funds. Smith v City Univ. of New York, 241 A.D.2d 410, 661 N.Y.S.2d 599, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7824 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1997), app. dismissed, 91 N.Y.2d 921, 669 N.Y.S.2d 262, 692 N.E.2d 131, 1998 N.Y. LEXIS 243 (N.Y. 1998), rev'd, 92 N.Y.2d 707, 685 N.Y.S.2d 910, 708 N.E.2d 983, 1999 N.Y. LEXIS 1 (N.Y. 1999).

23. —Local school districts; boards of education

School district board of education was a "public body" within the meaning of and subject to the provisions of the "Open Meetings Law." Kamlet v Board of Education, 91 Misc. 2d 1105, 399 N.Y.S.2d 366, 1977 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2489 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1977).

In Article 78 proceeding challenging termination of school district's director of operations from his noncompetitive position without duly noticed public meeting of community school board trustees, respondents' claim that district administrator had informally "conferred" with certain members of board of trustees before terminating petitioner, or that board members "proposed" that his services be terminated, did not satisfy CLS Educ § 2566(6), whose purpose is to protect persons from being discharged by unilateral action of superintendent without ratification of such action by board of education. Okebiyi v Cortines, 167 Misc. 2d 1008, 641 N.Y.S.2d 791, 1996 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 112 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1996), app. dismissed, 239 A.D.2d 421, 658 N.Y.S.2d 894, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5084 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1997).

Written notice not to renew contract provided to the superintendent of schools, which notice was within the time limit provided by the contract of employment but was not preceded by official action, that is, by a regular meeting as compared to an informal meeting or executive session of the board of education, cannot be ratified by official action after the contractual deadline for the written notice. The subsequent adoption of a resolution by the community school board which occurred after the contractual deadline for written notice, therefore, was not accomplished in time to prevent automatic renewal of the superintendent's contract. Appeal of Hernandez, 1991 Op Comr Educ No 12367; Appeal of Lilly, 1991 Op Comr Educ No 12396.

Citizens Committee established by public school board for generating recommendations regarding "K-8 Configuration and Building Utilization" is a public body subject to the Open Meetings Law in all respects. Comm Pub Acc Rec OML-Ad Op 752.

Subcommittee of school board, empowered to conduct such business that it can be deemed advisory to full Board is public body and required to comply with provisions of Open Meetings Law. Comm Pub Acc Rec OML-Ad Op 795.

Administrative Cabinet composed of superintendent and various principals which discusses matters dealing with curriculum and policy is not entity that performs particular duties collectively as body, but group consisting of executive staff of school district that does not function as body and would not be required to conduct its business by means of quorum; thus, Administrative Cabinet is not subject to Open Meetings Law. Comm Pub Acc Rec OML-Ad Op 819.

24. —State University of New York (SUNY)

Laboratory Animals Use Committee (LAUC) of State University of New York at Stony Brook is body deriving its powers solely from federal law, and thus LAUC is not "public body" as defined in CLS Pub O § 102. American Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Animals v Board of Trustees of State University, 79 N.Y.2d 927, 582 N.Y.S.2d 983, 591 N.E.2d 1169, 1992 N.Y. LEXIS 818 (N.Y. 1992).

In a proceeding by a Cornell student seeking a declaration requiring the Cornell Board of Trustees to open its meetings concerning the statutory colleges, the trial court correctly held that the Board was required to hold such open meetings since the close relationship between Cornell and the State and Cornell's dual role as both a private and public institution indicated that the Board is a public body as defined by the Open Meetings Law, since Cornell conducts public business and performs a governmental function for the State or for an agency or department of the State, and since the Board, in administering the colleges, spends State monies appropriated for the four colleges. Holden v Board of Trustees, 80 A.D.2d 378, 440 N.Y.S.2d 58, 1981 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10103 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1981).

25. Ethics boards

The Board of Ethics of City of Lockport is a "public body" within the meaning of [former] Public Officers Law § 97(2) subject to the Open Meetings Law and such Board, due to the nature of its discussions which would involve the employment history of particular people and matters leading to the discipline, suspension or dismissal of particular people, often may have the capacity to conduct its business during executive session under [former] Public Officers Law § 100(1)(f). Comm Pub Acc Rec OML—Ad Op 573.

26. Fire prevention and control

While a volunteer fire company was an "agency" under the Freedom of Information Law, Public Officers Law art. 6, it was not a "public body" subject to the Open Meetings Law, Public Officers Law art. 7. Matter of Matter of Hayes v Chestertown Volunteer Fire Co., Inc., 93 A.D.3d 1117, 941 N.Y.S.2d 734, 2012 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2340 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2012).

A volunteer fire company is a "public body" as defined in [former] § 97(2) of the Public Officers Law. Comm Pub Acc Rec OML-Ad Op 744.

Board of Volunteer Fire Department is "public body" subject to Open Meetings Law. Comm Pub Acc Rec OML-Ad Op 802.

Board of Commissioners of fire district is "public body" and is subject to Open Meetings Law. Comm Pub Acc Rec OML-Ad Op 815.

Board of fire commissioners is subject to Open Meetings Law since it is entity consisting of more than 2 members, is required to conduct its business by means of quorum pursuant to General Construction Law § 41 and conducts public business and performs governmental function; public must have access to its meetings which encompass any gathering of quorum of public body for purpose of discussing public business, whether or not there is intent to take action, and regardless of manner in which gathering may be characterized. Comm Pub Acc Rec OML-Ad Op 838.

27. Health and medicine

Mayor's Intergovernmental Task Force on New York City Water Supply Needs was not public body within meaning of CLS Pub O § 102(2) since (1) its sole purpose was to make recommendations to mayor of New York City and thus it did not perform governmental function, and (2) it did not require quorum to conduct its business. Poughkeepsie Newspaper Div. of Gannett Satellite Information Network v Mayor's Intergovernmental Task Force on New York City Water Supply Needs, 145 A.D.2d 65, 537 N.Y.S.2d 582, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1492 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1989).

The Medical Advisory Committee consisting of 20 members appointed by the Governor to advise the State Commissioner of Social Services with respect to health and medical care services for needy persons (Social Services Law, § 365-c) in compliance with Federal directives which mandate its existence in order to enable the State to obtain Federal funding, is a public body whose meetings are subject to the "Open Meetings Law" (Public Officers Law, § 97). The giving of advice by the committee either on their own volition or at the request of the commissioner is a necessary governmental function for the proper actions of the Social Services Department. Until the Legislature acts otherwise, advisory bodies will be subject to the "Open Meetings Law". MFY Legal Services, Inc. v Toia, 93 Misc. 2d 147, 402 N.Y.S.2d 510, 1977 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2648 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1977).

Non-profit, private hospitals receiving substantial amounts of government funds are not government agencies within the definition of Public Officers Law § 86(3) and therefore not subject to the disclosure requirements of Public Officers Law § 87 nor do they constitute a "public body" as defined in [former] Public Officers Law § 97(2) and therefore are not subject to the requirements of the Open Meetings Law (Pub O Law § 98). Comm Pub Acc Rec OML—Ad Op 568.

State board of medicine established under § 6523 of Education Law is "public body", and thus subject to Open Meetings Law. Comm Pub Acc Rec OML-Ad Op 776.

28. Insurance

Advisory Commission to make findings and recommendations about problems relating to liability insurance, established by Governor with "responsibility" for studying nature and impact of liability insurance problem, is not public body subject to Open Meetings Law (CLS Pub O § 100 et seq.) since (1) commission was created by executive order as advisory body composed of members who do not hold fixed terms, (2) commission lacks power to transact public business, make law, adopt regulations, or direct changes in state law and policy, and (3) no requirement exists that Governor wait for commission's recommendations before taking any action. 29. Law enforcement and corrections

A Correctional Facility Overcrowding Policy Committee created by Suffolk County is a "public body" subject to the Open Meetings Law; however, a Community Action Southold Town, a not-for-profit corporation created to study racial tension and perform a nongovernmental activity, probably are not "public bodies" within the meaning of [former] Public Officers Law § 97(2) and therefore not subject to the Open Meetings Law. Comm Pub Acc Rec OML—Ad Op 571.

30. Libraries and museums

Board of trustees of public library constitutes a "public body" therefore bringing meetings of such board within scope of Open Meetings Law; however, staff of public library is not a "public body" and, therefore meetings of library staff are not subject to Open Meetings Law. Comm Pub Acc Rec OML-Ad Op 714.

31. Real property; Housing

A "Homestead Committee" and a "Mayor's Task Force on Abandoned Housing," created to review and recommend policies regarding the disposition or use of vacant and abandoned property, composed of members of the common council and representatives of several city departments, were public bodies within the meaning of the Open Meetings Law and subject to its requirements. In addition, documents generated by the committees relating to the city's homestead program were subject to disclosure under the Freedom of Information law, notwithstanding the contention that such committees had no governmental capacity and were advisory only. Syracuse United Neighbors v Syracuse, 80 A.D.2d 984, 437 N.Y.S.2d 466, 1981 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10897 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1981), app. dismissed, 55 N.Y.2d 995, 449 N.Y.S.2d 201, 434 N.E.2d 270, 1982 N.Y. LEXIS 3165 (N.Y. 1982).

32. —Zoning

Zoning revision committee created by town board was not public body subject to open meeting requirements of CLS Pub O Art 7 since (1) committee had limited function of advising town board with respect to contemplated change in town's zoning ordinance, (2) committee had no power to implement its recommendations, and (3) committee members had no fixed terms and town board was not required to wait for committee's recommendations in order to act. Goodson Todman Enterprises, Ltd. v Town Bd. of Milan, 151 A.D.2d 642, 542 N.Y.S.2d 373, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8255 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't), app. denied, 74 N.Y.2d 614, 547 N.Y.S.2d 848, 547 N.E.2d 103, 1989 N.Y. LEXIS 3153 (N.Y. 1989).

City's board of zoning appeals was a "public body," and, thus, all portions of meeting of board had to be open to public, except for judicial or quasi-judicial proceedings. Orange County Publications Div. of Ottaway Newspapers, Inc. v Council of Newburgh, 89 Misc. 2d 847, 393 N.Y.S.2d 298, 1977 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1955 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1977), modified, 60 A.D.2d 409, 401 N.Y.S.2d 84, 1978 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9687 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1978).

Zoning board of appeals (ZBA) did not violate the Open Meetings Law where, between the close of the public hearing and the public meeting the following month at which a determination was made, the ZBA's counsel communicated individually with the ZBA's members and prepared a draft written determination, and, at the public meeting, the ZBA reviewed the proposed draft, made changes and ultimately made a determination; there was no evidence that a quorum of the ZBA's members met or consulted with its counsel outside a public meeting. Matter of Braunstein v Board of Zoning Appeals of the Town of Copake, 100 A.D.3d 1091, 952 N.Y.S.2d 857, 2012 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7185 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2012).

33. Taxation

Meetings of a selection committee formed by the city manager of the city involved in order to provide advice and interview candidates for the position of Chief of Police and make recommendations to the mayor and city council relative to their decision regarding the choice of a candidate for the position of Chief are subject to the Open Meetings Law since the committee in question is a "public body" within the meaning of [former] Public Officers Law § 97(2) in that the committee consists of at least two members, performs its duties by means of a quorum, and clearly performs a governmental function. Comm Pub Acc Rec OML—Ad Op 563.

Montgomery County Assessors' Association while composed of public officials, does not conduct public business nor perform governmental function, is not public body subjet to Open Meetings Law, and is not required to open its meetings to public. Comm Pub Acc Rec OML-Ad Op 848.

34. Utilities

The Steuben Rural Electric Co-operative, Incorporated, is neither an "agency" as defined in § 86(3) of the Public Officers Law nor a "public body" as defined in [former] § 97(2) of the Public Officers Law. Comm Pub Acc Rec OML-Ad Op 729.

Board of Commissioners of Water District is "public body" subject to Open Meetings Law. Comm Pub Acc Rec OML-Ad Op 800.

35. Waste

Since the Panel to Review Scientific Studies and the Development of Public Policy on Problem Resulting from Hazardous Waste was created by an executive order of the governor, convenes only by means of a quorum pursuant to General Construction Law § 41, and clearly conducts public business, the Panel is a "public body" within the meaning of [former] Public Officers Law § 97(2) subject to the minimum requirements concerning minutes of open meetings under Public Officers Law § 101. Comm Pub Acc Rec OML—Ad Op 580.

36. Other and miscellaneous

In an action brought by and on behalf of former residents of an institution for the poor seeking to remove the trustees of the institution, set aside the conveyance of the institution's property, reopen and renovate it, the trustees did not compose a public body for the purpose of the Open Meetings Law, although they were appointed by town supervisors, where their sole function and basis of existence was to carry out the testamentary trust of an individual; the action was barred under the principles of res judicata and collateral estoppel since a court of competent jurisdiction had already rendered a judgment concerning the propriety of the sale. Burgher v Purcell, 109 Misc. 2d 531, 440 N.Y.S.2d 480, 1981 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2424 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1981), aff'd, 87 A.D.2d 888, 449 N.Y.S.2d 527, 1982 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 16396 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1982).

County chapter of state association for retarded children is not subject to Open Meetings Law since association is private and does not conduct public business or perform governmental function. Comm Pub Acc Rec OML-Ad Op 771.

IV. "Executive Session" Defined

37. In general

Meeting of government body could not be considered closed "executive session" absent authorization given at an open meeting. Goodson Todman Enterprises, Ltd. v Kingston Common Council, 153 A.D.2d 103, 550 N.Y.S.2d 157, 1990 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 29 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1990).

School district's board of education engaged in persistent pattern of deliberate violation of letter and spirit of CLS Pub O Art 7 by, inter alia, improperly convening executive sessions and conducting business in manner inaudible to public audience. Goetschius v Board of Educ., 281 A.D.2d 416, 721 N.Y.S.2d 386, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2074 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2001).

"Executive session" as described in [former] § 97(3) of Open Meetings Law refers to portion of open meeting during which public may be excluded. Comm Pub Acc Rec OML-A Op 793.

Executive session is not separate and distinct from meeting, but rather is portion of open meeting and public body cannot enter into executive session to discuss subject of its choice. Comm Pub Acc Rec OML-Ad Op 846.

Executive session is not separate and distinct from open meeting, but rather is portion of open meeting; motion to enter into executive session must include reference to "general area or areas of subject or subjects to be considered" during executive session; every time quorum of public body, majority of total membership, is present for purpose of conducting or discussing public business, that gathering is meeting subject to Open Meetings Law. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AD-1441.

IV. "Executive Session" Defined

51. In general

I. Generally

1. In general

Where sub-committee conducts public business and performs governmental function for public corporation, sub-committee meets definition of "public body" and is subject to provisions of Open Meetings Law; every meeting of public body, including sub-committee, must be convened open to public, and executive session may be conducted only after open meeting has been convened. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4907.

Public body, such as town board or public library board of trustees, cannot carry out its powers or duties except by means of affirmative vote of majority of its total membership taken at meeting duly held on reasonable notice to all of members. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8330.

OML does not pertain to safety or sanitary standards of meeting sites, rather matters related to physical building standards are generally governed by local ordinances. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-1291.

As general matter, Open Meetings Law is based on presumption of openness and all meetings of public bodies must be conducted open to public, except to extent that executive session may be convened. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-1463.

Even where meeting of committee of public body is held at request of non-member, it nevertheless falls within coverage of Open Meetings Law, assuming that quorum of committee is present to discuss public business. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2472.

Agency cannot validly take action outside of meeting held in accordance with Open Meetings Law, during which quorum is present and by means of affirmative vote of majority of its total membership; thus, agency cannot adopt new administrative fee schedule by unanimous written consent. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2569.

Mere presence of majority of total membership of public body at particular facility or site does not necessarily lead to conclusion that members are conducting meeting that falls within coverage of Open Meetings Law; only when majority of total membership of public body convenes for purpose of conducting public business, as body, does that statute become applicable. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2614.

2. "Conducting public business" defined

Mayor and 2 trustees failed to comply with Open Meetings Law when they wrote letters to governor and chairman of park board discussing village business, where they represented themselves as village board of trustees, without informing other 2 trustees on board. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3322.

Town Board violated Open Meetings Law when it authorized publication of political advertisements in local newspaper without having done so at meeting by means of vote by members of board. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3680.

Action of 4 of 7 members of town planning board in sending letter to private attorney, stating that they disagreed with town attorney's legal position in connection with certain lawsuits, was not validly taken, where issue had never been discussed at board meetings and discussion occurred by means of series of phone calls. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3732.

3. "Convening" defined

Meeting is "official convening" of public body for purpose of conducting public business and as such when quorum of public body, such as school board, meets for purpose of conducting public business, such gathering constitutes meeting subject to Open Meetings Law. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-1422-1423, and 1427.

Meeting is official convening of public body for purpose of conducting public business and as such when quorum of public body, such as school board, meets for purpose of conducting public business, such gathering constitutes meeting subject to Open Meetings Law. Board of education is public body under Open Meetings Law; further, meeting is official convening of public body for purpose of conducting public business and as such when quorum of public body, such as school board, meets for purpose of conducting public business, such gathering constitutes meeting subject to Open Meetings Law. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-1422-1423, and 1427.

Public body cannot carry out its powers or duties except by means of affirmative vote of majority of its total membership taken at meeting duly held upon reasonable notice to all of members; as such, public body has capacity to act only during duly convened meetings; Open Meeting Law defines meeting to mean official convening of public body for purpose of conducting public business and term convening means physical coming together; there is nothing in Open Meetings Law that would preclude members of public body from conferring by telephone; however, series of telephone calls among members which results in decision, without benefit of meeting, would violate law. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-1426.

"Convening" of quorum requires assembly of group in order to constitute quorum of public body. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2256.

Circulation of materials, without any "convening"of members of public body, does not constitute meeting subject to Open Meetings Law. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3174.

Public body, such as planning board, may validly conduct meeting or carry out its authority only at meeting during which majority of its members has physically convened or during which majority has convened by means of videoconferencing, and even then, only when reasonable notice is given to all members. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3732.

There is nothing in the Open Meetings Law that would preclude members of public body from conferring individually, by telephone, via mail or e-mail; however, series of communications between individual members or telephone calls among members which results in collective decision, meeting held by means of telephone conference or series of telephone calls, or vote taken by mail or e-mail would be inconsistent with law. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3732.

Meeting, i.e., "convening" of public body, involves physical coming together of at least majority of total membership of such body, i.e., Planning Board, or convening that occurs through videoconferencing. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3732.

Amendments to Open Meetings Law clearly indicate that there are only 2 ways in which public body may validly conduct meeting; any other means of conducting meeting, i.e., by telephone, by mail, or by e-mail, would be inconsistent with law. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3732.

Meeting, i.e., "convening" of public body, involves physical coming together of at least majority of total membership of such body, i.e., Board of Education, or convening that occurs through videoconferencing. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-4113.

It would not be unreasonable for isolated, seasonal coastal village to conduct meetings outside village boundaries where access to village is limited during parts of year, it is primarily seasonal community, and there is 25-year history of holding budget hearings at alternative location in nearby county in order to facilitate and maximize attendance and participation of as many residents as possible. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-4180.

II. "Meeting" Defined

4. In general

Any gathering of quorum of public body for purpose of conducting public business is "meeting" that must be convened open to public, whether or not there is intent to take action and regardless of manner in which gathering may be characterized. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-1394; Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4610.

If quorum of board convenes to discuss public business during gatherings, those gatherings would constitute "meetings" subject to Open Meetings Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4686.

Any gathering of quorum of public body for purpose of conducting public business constitutes "meeting" subject to Open Meetings Law, whether or not there is intent to take action and irrespective of manner in which gathering may be characterized. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4815.

"Meeting" involves situation where quorum of public body seeks to conduct business or deliberate as body and, conversely, hearing generally refers to situations in which members of public are given opportunity to express views, as in case of public hearing, or to situation in which person or entity seeks testimony from witness or interested parties or investigates in quasi-judicial manner. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4916.

Meetings of boards of assessors are "meetings" subject to Open Meetings Law. Committee on Open Government OML-AO-1170. Meeting of budget director with committee of county legislature is subject to open meeting requirements so long as quorum of committee, in advance of gathering, intends to meet with budget director to discuss budget. Committee on Open Government OML-AO-1188.

If majority of board met after adjournment by design, to discuss public business, it would appear that such gathering constituted new "meeting" held in violation of OML; however if there was no intent to discuss public business as body, but merely brief conversation held while people were in process of leaving, it is doubtful that such gathering would constitute "meeting". Comm On Open Gov't OML-AO-1280.

Any gathering of quorum of public body for purpose of conducting business constitutes "meeting" subject to Open Meetings Law, even if there is no intent to take action and irrespective of manner in which gathering may be characterized; therefore, when quorum of budget commission meets to conduct public business, those gatherings are meetings, even though voting might not occur. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-1447.

"Meeting" means gathering of at least quorum of public body for purpose of discussing public business, regardless of whether any action is intended to be taken; all meetings must be preceded by notice and conducted open to public, unless and until executive session may be held to discuss one or more topics of discussion described in Open Meetings Law. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-1450.

Gathering of majority of public body in their capacities as board members, to discuss public business, constitutes "meeting" subject to Open Meetings Law. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2191.

When quorum of board gathers to discuss public business, in their capacities as board members, any such gathering constitutes "meeting" subject to Open Meetings Law. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2256.

Even though gathering might have been called by person or persons other than member of public body, it constitutes "meeting", assuming that quorum of public body is present for purpose of conducting public business. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2280.

Open Meetings Law does not necessarily apply to hearing, and there is distinction between meeting and hearing. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2307.

Nothing in Open Meetings Law refers to capacity of member of public body to participate in meeting through delegate or vote by "proxy"; member of public body cannot cast vote unless member is physically present at meeting of body. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2488.

If majority of public body gathers to discuss public business, any such gathering ordinarily constitutes "meeting" subject to Open Meetings Law; however, in order to constitute valid meeting, all of members of public body must be given reasonable notice of meeting. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2601.

"Extra meeting," during which quorum of town board is present for purpose of discussing or conducting public business, is meeting subject to Open Meetings Law in all respects. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2726.

When public body or board gathers solely to consider matters exempt from Open Meetings Law, meeting need not be preceded by notice and there is no obligation to follow procedures applicable for entry into executive session. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3506.

When majority of public body gathers to discuss public business, in their capacities as members of body, any such gathering would constitute "meeting" subject to Open Meetings Law. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3709.

"Meeting" is different from "hearing," in that meeting is generally gathering of quorum of public body for purpose of discussion, deliberation, and potentially taking action within scope of its powers and duties, while hearing is generally held to provide members of public with opportunity to express their views concerning particular subject, such as proposed budget, local law or matter involving land use. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3834.

"Hearings" are often required to be preceded by publication of legal notice while, in contrast, CLS Pub O § 104(3) of Open Meetings Law specifies that notice of "meeting" must merely be "given" to news media and posted; further, there is no requirement that newspaper, for example, publish notice given regarding meeting to be held under Open Meetings Law. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3834.

"Meeting" of public body held in accordance with Open Meetings Law can only occur with presence of quorum; "hearing," on other hand, can be conducted without quorum present. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3834.

5. "Civic" meetings; advisory ad hoc entities

Meetings of ad hoc citizens' advisory committee, held on school property for purpose of addressing concerns regarding proposed zoning variance, were meetings for "civic" purpose or purpose pertaining to "welfare" of community, and thus were required to be open to public under CLS Educ § 414 even though they did not involve public body or Open Meetings Law. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2180.

Advisory ad hoc entities, other than committees consisting solely of members of public bodies, having no power to take final action fall outside scope of Open Meetings Law. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2254.

Although town board is clearly "public body" required to comply with Open Meetings Law, citizens advisory body designated by board or supervisor does not fall within requirements of that statute; similarly, "round table meetings" between supervisor and town employees is not subject to Open Meetings Law as no quorum of public body would be present. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2583.

Gathering of 3 members of town board at meeting of senior citizen organization, which was also attended by group of developers who were interested in establishing landfill in town, did not constitute meeting subject to Open Meetings Law, where board member who was president of senior citizen organization had no role in arranging to have developers speak at meeting, and board members did not sit together or talk together. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2740.

Gathering of 32 concerned residents, law enforcement personnel and clergy, along with members of town board and board of education, to discuss alcohol free event to be held for township students after upcoming prom, and to consider what community could do in response to alcohol-related deaths of 2 high school students, was not subject to Open Meetings Law since public and members of various boards did not meet for purposes of conducting public business as public body. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3461.

6. Collective bargaining sessions

Yearly meetings between central school district and teachers association, pursuant to their collective bargaining agreement, are subject to Open Meetings Law and may not exclude public and school administration; provisions of collective bargaining agreement that restrict public access to meetings have no legal effect. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2772.

7. Environmental "scoping" meetings

"Scoping meetings," held with town officials at request of Department of Environmental Conservation, were subject to provisions of Open Meetings Law inasmuch as quorum of town board was present for purpose of conducting public business. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2177.

Even where gathering of town board is held at request of official of Department of Environmental Conservation, it would be meeting subject to Open Meetings Law, assuming that quorum of board was present for purpose of conducting public business. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2374.

8. Informal or social meetings, generally

9. —Briefing, debriefing, planning sessions and the like

Meetings held, prior to time of actual scheduled meeting, to discuss public business in private is subject to Open Meeting Law. 1986 Committee on Open Government OML-AO-1334.

"Pre-meetings" held by county industrial development authority before every monthly board meeting, at which substantive discussions occurred and decisions were made, were "meetings" under Open Meetings Law, whether or not there was intent to have action, and therefore "pre-meeting" must be preceded by notice of time and place given to news media and posting under CLS Pub O § 104. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2683.

Private meeting at country club, in which majority of board of education met to "go over" details of district business that was to be discussed at executive session on following day, constituted "meeting" under Open Meetings Law; however, if members of public body meet by chance or at social gathering, Open Meetings Law would not apply because there would be no intent to conduct public business, collectively, as body. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2695.

"Goal-setting meeting" held by school board falls within coverage of Open Meetings Law, although it may be informal and there may be no votes or action taken, in that subject matter involves consideration of public business and development of public policy. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2791.

Briefing, whose purpose was to provide news media with opportunity to raise questions and acquire background information prior to noticed meeting of library board of trustees concerning adoption of resolution involving capital proposition, was not "meeting" subject to Open Meetings Law where there was no intent that majority of board be present at briefings, and function of briefings did not involve board conducting public business collectively. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3161.

If school board members attended "parent meeting" as parents and did not function or situate themselves as body, such gathering would not have constituted "meeting"; however, "briefing sessions" conducted with majority of public body present have been found to be "meetings" falling within coverage of Open Meetings Law. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-4121.

10. —Gatherings where food is served

If public body intends to gather for social event, such meeting would not be subject to Open Meetings Law even though public business may inadvertently be discussed; however, meeting of school board at restaurant for purpose of discussing renewal of school superintendent's contract was "meeting" subject to Law. Committee on Open Government OML-AO-1138.

Gathering of board members of private industry counsel at catering hall where luncheon is served constitutes "meeting" subject to Open Meetings Law, if quorum of board is present. 1986 Committee on Open Government OML-AO-1303.

Gathering of 4 members of town board at restaurant by invitation of developer constituted "meeting" falling within coverage of Open Meetings Law. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-4228.

11. —Press conferences

Press conference held by town supervisor, at which majority of town board was present, did not constitute meeting subject to Open Meetings Law since there was no intent on part of those present to conduct public business, collectively, as body. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2279.

12. —Recess

If board holds recess for purpose of formulating wording of resolution concerning subject then on floor, then recess is itself meeting subject to OML. Comm On Open Gov't OML-AO-1227.

13. —Retreats

Retreat held by board of education constituted "meeting" that should have been open to public and preceded by notice, where agenda stated that focus of retreat was "roles and responsibilities of the President and Vice President (transition) and board committees"; any decisions made at such retreat were made in manner inconsistent with law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12213.

"Facilitated retreat" which is not intended to deal in any way with agency business, but rather is intended to build on team building and communication skills, is not subject to Open Meetings Law. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2733.

Retreat conducted by board of education at site outside of school district boundaries was not meeting subject to Open Meetings Law, where purpose of retreat was to discuss inner workings of board and interpersonal relationships among board members, and no school business was conducted. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2764.

"Retreat" conducted by school superintendent for board of education to set goals constituted meeting subject to Open Meetings. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3152.

Board of education's privately conducted "retreat" was "meeting" that should have been held open to public where discussion at retreat involved "District goals" and consideration of district policies and procedures. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3709.

"Retreat" conducted in private by board of education was a "meeting" that should have been open to public even if no action was taken, if it involved discussion of district goals and consideration of policies and procedures followed by board members before, during and after meetings. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3709.

Two-day retreat conducted by Board of Education constituted meeting that fell within coverage of Open Meetings Law where topics considered at retreat included financial status of school district, district's capacity and demographics and variety of other matters. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3787.

14. —Training sessions

State nursing board's annual "Education Day" was not subject to Open Meetings Law where it was held solely for purpose of educating and training board members, it was not intended to be official board meeting, board members did not conduct board business collectively as public body, no votes or other official or public business were conducted, attendance was optional, and no quorum was required. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2213.

If session is to be held solely for purpose of educating and training members of public body, and if members do not conduct business collectively as body, session does not constitute meeting of public body subject to Open Meetings Law. If "self-assessment" sessions are held to discuss interpersonal relations and similar matters, and if business of public body is not intended to arise and does not arise, those kinds of gatherings are not subject to Open Meetings Law. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2294.

15. —Workshops, seminars and the like

"Seminar" conducted by school board to discuss informally in seminar-type situation policy and goals of city school district, which seminar would include board of education members and administrative staff only, would be "meeting" subject to requirements of Open Meetings Law, since discussion of "policy and goals" of school district could be equated with conducting a public business; further, such meeting should be held in location that would reasonably permit interest of members of public to attend. Committee on Open Government OML-AO-1096.

"Self-evaluation session" conducted by board of education, in which members talk about their relationship with each other as board members, who shall act as spokesperson, and need for confidentiality of matters taken in executive sessions, constitutes "meeting" which is subject to requirements of Open Meetings Law. Committee on Open Government OML-AO-1120.

Any gathering of quorum of public body held for purpose of conducting public business constitutes "meeting" subject to Open Meeting Law, whether or not there is intent to take action, and regardless of manner in which gathering may be characterized; work sessions and similar informal gatherings of public bodies in which there is intent to discuss, but no intent to take action falls within requirements of Open Meetings Law, assuming that quorum is present. 1986 Committee on Open Government OML-AO-1296.

So-called "work sessions" held by city council are "meetings", and must be preceded by notice given in accordance with Open Meetings Law. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-1357.

All meetings of public bodies must be conducted open to public, except to extent that executive sessions may be convened; meeting includes any gathering of forum of public body for purpose of conducting public business, whether or not there is intent to take action and regardless of manner in which gathering may be characterized; since "workshop" or "work session" is meeting subject to Open Meetings Law, public body is required to comply with requirements of Law, irrespective of its characterization of meeting. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-1462.

Town board's scheduled "workshop" meeting was subject to Open Meetings Law in all respects; however, in absence of motions, proposals, resolutions, or other matters on which votes were taken, minutes did not have to be prepared. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2237.

School district's "workshop on the budget" constituted meeting subject to requirements of Open Meetings Law where board president called 2 other board members into back room for "private" meeting, soon thereafter 2 other board members joined them, board president then returned alone to announce that board was going into executive session and, after executive session, board indicated that it had reduced budget but offered no explanation; assuming that board consisted of 5 members, if gathering of 3 members (and later other 2 members) was held to discuss public business, so-called "private meeting" was itself "meeting" and, assuming that private session involved consideration of budget, it should have been conducted in public. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2754.

There is no legal distinction between "meeting" and "workshop"; workshop held by majority of public body has same responsibilities as formal meeting in relation to notice and taking of minutes, as well as same ability to enter into executive sessions. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3154.

Open Meetings Law clearly applies to twice-monthly town board "workshops," in which various issues and proposals are discussed. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3749.

There is no legal distinction between "workshop" and "meeting" under Open Meetings Law; when majority of board convenes to discuss village business, any such gathering would constitute "meeting" subject to Open Meetings Law, even if it is characterized as "workshop." Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3812.

"Informal meeting" held by town board falls within requirements of Open Meetings Law, even though there is no intent to take action. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-1257.

Open Meetings Law did not apply to annual small social gathering hosted at applicant's house between City Council members and County Legislators who represented City districts if sole intent of gathering was to socialize. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8583.

Meeting between school administrator and student or group of students, with other professional staff present, is not subject to Open Meetings Law, as such gathering does not consist of members of any particular public body. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-10289.

Gathering of members of public body characterized as "informal" meeting is nonetheless subject to Open Meetings Law where quorum is gathered for purpose of conducting public business. Committee on Open Government OML-AO-1036.

If there is no intent that majority of public body convene for purpose of conducting public business, even though majority may be present in single room, such gathering does not constitute meeting subject to requirements of Open Meetings Law; thus, if members of public body exchange pleasantries or engage in various tasks individually, rather than as body, their presence in room does not trigger application of Open Meetings Law or necessarily indicate that meeting is being held. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2286.

Chance gathering or social function does not constitute meeting within meaning of Open Meetings Law since there would be no intent on part of those present to conduct public business, collectively, as body. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2288.

When staff people gather, either among themselves, or perhaps with head of State agency and his or her staff, no public body is present, and Open Meetings Law is inapplicable. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2400.

Open Meetings Law did not require that annual small social gathering hosted by city mayor at his house between city council members and county legislators who represented city districts be held open to public so long as sole intent of gathering was to socialize. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2440.

Open Meetings Law does not pertain to question of whether officials and general public may be videotaped or recorded as they come into building prior to town board meeting because expectation that peoples' comments are fully public is not generally present when people are talking informally prior to start of meeting; however, town board may be authorized under CLS Town §§ 63 and 64 to restrict use of recording devices in meeting room before or after meetings, unless persons being recorded consent to being recorded. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2689.

Informal gathering, at which 3 members of 5-member town board met to discuss choice of individual to fill vacant board position following death of one member, constituted meeting that should have been held in accordance with Open Meetings Law. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2773.

If there is no intent that majority of public body will gather for purpose of conducting public business, but rather for purpose of gaining education, training, to develop or improve team building or communication skills, or to consider interpersonal relations, Open Meetings Law would not be applicable; in that event, if gathering is to be held solely for those purposes, and not to conduct or discuss matters of public business, and if members in fact do not conduct or intend to conduct public business collectively as body, activities occurring during that event would not in my view constitute meeting of public body subject to Open Meetings Law. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3709.

If majority of public body is present at social gathering, and intent is indeed to socialize, their presence would not constitute "meeting" of public body. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3787.

If majority of members of public body meet one another by chance, in "casual encounter," absent intent to conduct public business, it is unlikely that Open Meetings Law would apply. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3787.

Court would likely determine that series of exchanges among members of public body via "buddy list" using chat room or instant messaging would be "virtual meeting" and would constitute secret meeting held in contravention of Open Meetings Law. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3787.

Even if copies of communications between 2 board members were sent via "listserv" to other members, there would be no instantaneous communication, and no virtual meeting; such communications would be equivalent to carbon copies, "cc's" of correspondence, distributed to members. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3787.

Gathering held "behind closed doors" one hour prior to Board of Education's meeting was itself meeting that should have been preceded by notice and conducted open to public as required by Open Meetings Law, where subject of both meetings—contingency budget—was same. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3860.

Gathering at home of Town Board member or any other similar gathering in which majority of Board discusses Town business would constitute "meeting" required to be conducted in accordance with Open Meetings Law. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-4035.

If sole purpose of gathering is social in nature, Open Meetings Law would not apply; however, if during social gathering, majority of members of public body begin to discuss business of that body, collectively as group, they should recognize that they are conducting public business without notice to public and immediately cease their discussion of public business. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-4261.

16. Political caucuses

To extent that majority of total membership of county committee on ways and means was present for purpose of conducting public business, such gathering could not have been characterized as political caucus exempt from provisions of Open Meetings Law, but rather as "meeting" that should have been open to public. Committee on Open Government OML-AO-1061.

Conferences or caucuses conducted by majority of members of either house of State Legislature for purpose of conducting public business would constitute "meetings" subject to Open Meetings Law; however, to extent that political party business is discussed during conferences or caucuses, such gatherings would fall outside scope of Law. Committee on Open Government OML-AO-1158.

Exemption contained in CLS Pub O § 108(2) concerning political caucuses applies to "the legislative body" of county, i.e., county legislature; it does not refer to committee of legislative body. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2287.

Four Republican members of 5-member town board could meet and/or discuss matters of public business in private on ground that their gatherings or discussions constituted political caucuses, but action could be taken by board only at meeting held in accordance with Open Meetings Law, preceded by reasonable notice given to all board members, including lone Democrat. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2749.

Either majority or minority party members of legislative body may conduct closed political caucuses during or separate from meetings of public body when discussing political party business, such as fund raising, party leadership, etc.; however, city council may not validly conduct closed political caucus to discuss matters of public business. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3254.

Gathering of Democrat member, Republican member and Independent member of 5-member town board was "meeting" that should have been held in accordance with Open Meetings Law; because they belonged to more than one political party, gathering could not be characterized as political caucus. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3328.

Political caucus by definition is restricted to members or adherents of single political party. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-4107.

Meeting of Republican and Democrat members of public board, in which majority of board would be present, would be "meeting" and would not be exempt from Open Meetings Law as political caucus, since caucus is restricted to members or adherents of single political party. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-4107.

In general, either majority or minority party members of legislative body may conduct closed political caucuses, either during or separate from meetings of public body. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-4149.

If there were gathering of Democrat members who served on city Common Council, Republican legislator could not be characterized as "guest" so as to bring meeting within political caucus exemption from Open Meetings Law. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-4149.

Where all members of town board are from single political party, majority of members of board may not validly conduct closed political caucus to discuss matters of public business; however, when members are discussing political party business (i.e., fund raising, party leadership, etc.), closed political caucus may be appropriately held. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-4177.

17. Quorum requirements, generally

18. —Participation by telephone or other mechanical devices

There is nothing in Open Meetings Law that would preclude members of public body from conferring by telephone, but series of telephone calls among members which resulted in decision, without benefit of meeting, would violate Law. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-1386.

Based upon terms of Open Meetings Law, board of municipal housing authority is public body subject to requirements of Law; there is nothing in Open Meetings Law that would preclude members of public body from conferring by telephone; however, series of telephone calls among members which results in decision, without benefit of meeting, would violate Law; public body cannot carry out its powers or duties except by means of affirmative vote of majority of its total membership taken at meeting duly held upon reasonable notice to all members, and, as such, public body has capacity to act, to vote, only during duly convened meetings; definition of "convene" requires assembly of group in order to constitute quorum of public body. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-1446.

There is nothing in Open Meetings Law that would preclude members of public body from conferring individually or by telephone; however, series of communications between individual members or telephone calls among members which results in decision or meeting held by means of telephone conference would be inconsistent with law. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2256.

Open Meetings Law did not permit new concept called "Interactive Town Board Meetings" in which residents of town were encouraged to call in while watching town board live and in which they could speak at public hearings and express their views on town issues before town board vote; similarly, Open Meetings Law did not permit absent members of town's public bodies to use same system and to vote by telephone if they were unable to attend meeting because of health reasons or other emergencies. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2430.

Open Meetings Law did not allow decisional meeting of Public Service Commission in Albany under circumstances in which 4 commission members were present in Albany, but one member of commission desires to participate in discussion and vote on matters considered at meeting by means of 2-way telephone link from New York City, despite fact that site from which commission sought to participate was open to public and that any discussion or vote could be heard by means of speakerphone hook-up by all persons present at both locations; Commissioner who sought to participate by phone could not validly vote or be counted for purposes of quorum. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2480.

Vote conducted by board of education by e-mail, for purpose of giving certain employees day off at full pay without charging leave time, was inconsistent with Open Meetings Law; newly enacted provisions concerning videoconferencing clearly indicate that public bodies may validly conduct meetings only at meetings during which quorum has physically convened, or during meeting held by videoconference. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3257.

Open Meetings Law was violated when town supervisor directed his secretary to poll town board by phone for authorization to pay $4700 billed for services rendered on dredging of boat launch; members of public body cannot lawfully vote by phone, mail or e-mail. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3479.

Public body may not take action or vote by means of telephone calls or e-mail, since such action or vote would violate quorum requirements of CLS Gen Const § 41. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3732.

Public body may not take action or vote by means of e-mail, telephone conference, or series of telephone conversations. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3787.

Holding "eMeeting" in chat room, even with public notice, would be inconsistent with Open Meetings Law. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3928.

Public body may not take action or vote by means of series of telephone calls or, for example, by e-mail. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-4113.

School board's collective determination—based on telephone calls from school superintendent in which he apparently solicited responses from school board members concerning salary range offered for new position—as to what salary range should be, should have occurred during open meeting held in accordance with provisions of Open Meetings Law; because decision to offer certain salary range was made, such action should be memorialized in minutes. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-4113.

Town board may not take action by means of series of phone contacts or through voting by phone. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-4177.

Although resident who wishes to observe village proceedings via telephone would not be prohibited from doing so, village board member's participation by telephone would not be sufficient for attendance and/or voting purposes. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-4180.

"Quorum" consists of majority of total membership of body for purpose of Open Meetings Law; thus, if, for example, school board consists of 7, its quorum would be 4, and in case of committee consisting of 3, quorum would be 2. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12405.

Meetings held by an association of government representatives, such as mayors of each village located in particular town, is not subject to Open Meeting Law, as, although conference represents forum during which common issues or problems may be discussed or shared, there is no quorum of any particular public body present and activities of conference are in no way binding upon participant villages and conference does not in any way conduct public business collectively, but is merely vehicle for exchanging ideas. 1986 Committee on Open Government OML-AO-1353.

Public body cannot carry out its powers or duties except by means of affirmative vote of majority of its total membership taken at meeting duly held upon reasonable notice to all of members; as such, public body has capacity to act only during duly convened meetings. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-1426.

Public body is permitted to perform and exercise its duties only at meeting conducted by quorum of body, majority of its total membership, and only by means of affirmative vote of majority of its total membership. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-1433.

"Meeting" subject to Open Meetings Law does not occur unless quorum of public body has convened for purpose of conducting public business. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2343.

Open Meetings Law applies only if quorum is present; even when meeting is scheduled and reasonable notice is given to all members, but less than majority attends, gathering does not constitute "meeting" and public has no right to attend. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2489.

Member of town board, in his capacity as citizen, had right to attend public gathering despite concerns that his presence created quorum of town board; even if quorum happened to be present, Open Meetings Law would not apply because there was no intent to conduct public business collectively Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3162.

Open Meetings Law applied when 4 members of 7-member committee created by 20-member Fulton County Board of Supervisors met to discuss committee business, although total weighted vote for entire board was 551, quorum of board would presumably involve gathering of members representing 276 weighted votes, and group of 7 supervisors in question had weighted vote of only 168, since committee consisting solely of members of board was "public body," and 4 members constituted quorum of committee. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3434.

Gathering of 6 of 13 members of county legislature for joint press announcement of their intent to have county financially support EMS (emergency medical services) did not violate Open Meetings Law, since no quorum was present, and no action could have been taken; group merely offered its proposal and expressed its intention. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3675.

When there is intent to evade application of Open Meetings Law by ensuring that less than quorum is present, and, by design, series of gatherings each consisting of less than quorum occurs to discuss public business, such action would represent failure to comply with statute. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3787.

Conversation or exchange of questions or information between or among less than majority of public body does not implicate Open Meetings Law. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3787.

"Meeting" of public body held in accordance with Open Meetings Law can only occur with presence of quorum; "hearing," on other hand, can be conducted without quorum present. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3834.

County legislature's quorum rule is inconsistent with CLS Gen Const § 41 where rule states that "all voting shall be decided by a majority of those present and voting," while § 41 states that "not less than a majority of the whole number may perform and exercise such power, authority or duty." Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3989.

Even when meeting is scheduled and reasonable notice is given to all members of public body in manner consistent with requirements of CLS Gen Const § 41, but less than majority attends, gathering would not constitute "meeting" and public would have no right to attend. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-4067.

When there is intent to evade Open Meetings Law by ensuring that less than quorum is present, such intent would violate Open Meetings Law. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-4067.

19. Tours, inspections, visits and the like

Inspection of school buildings by quorum of school board for purpose of considering building committee report constitutes gathering held to conduct public business and, therefore, would be "meeting" subject to Open Meetings Law. Committee on Open Government OML-AO-1154.

Site visit or tour by public body, particularly on private property, does not constitute meeting subject to Open Meetings Law; however, site visits or tours by public bodies should be conducted solely for purpose of observation and acquiring information, and any discussions or deliberations regarding such observations should occur in public during meetings conducted in accordance with Open Meetings Law. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2578.

Open Meetings Law did not apply to gathering of 4 members of town board at home of person whose property was subject of pending zoning change, where board members met to view site of proposed zoning amendment, news media was invited, and no discussion of town business occurred. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3144.

Site visit or tour by public body, particularly on private property, would apparently not constitute "meeting"; however, site visits or tours should be conducted solely to observe and acquire information, and any ensuing discussions or deliberations should occur in public at meeting conducted in accordance with Open Meetings Law. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3179.

Town planning board's site visits, whose purpose was to "get a better understanding" of sites at issue, would likely fall outside coverage of Open Meetings Law insofar as such visits were educational in nature, no planning board business was conducted, and any discussion concerning board members' observations only occurred in open meetings. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3560.

20. Volunteer boards

Pursuant to CLS Educ § 260-a, meetings of boards of trustees of various libraries, including public libraries, must be conducted in accordance with Open Meetings Law. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2196.

"Candidates forum" traditionally sponsored by community organizations, during which candidates for board of education and library board of trustees expressed their views in response to questions by members of community, did not constitute meetings of public body, and thus Open Meetings Law did not apply. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2241.

If quorum of either village board of trustees or board of volunteer fire company convenes to conduct public business, gathering is subject to Open Meetings Law; further, if quorum of both entities convened jointly, conclusion is same. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2308.

21. Other and miscellaneous

Gathering during which zoning board of appeals acts with regard to application for variance was meeting subject to Open Meetings Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4717.

Industrial development authority's amendment to its by-laws, permitting meetings to be held and decisions to be made by telephone or teleconference, was inconsistent with Open Meetings Law; common definition of "meeting" involves physical coming together of majority (or more) of total membership of public body, and public's right to observe performance of public officials in their deliberations (CLS Pub O § 100) cannot be realized if members of public body conduct business or vote by phone. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9778.

Negotiation meetings taking place between 2 public bodies to reach agreement concerning newly-formed water district constitute "meetings" subject to Open Meetings Law requirement of notice. Committee on Open Government OML-AO-1044.

Meeting of county board of health to discuss proposal for review of county's clean indoor air act is "meeting" under Open Meetings Law that should have been opened to public and proceeded by notice. Committee on Open Government OML-AO-1057.

Meeting of quorum of school board to view film for purpose of later determining whether or not film should be shown to students, constitutes "meeting" within requirements of Open Meetings Law. Committee on Open Government OML-AO-1155.

Meeting generally involves gathering of public body for purpose of discussing public business; hearing usually pertains to situation in which members of public may express their views concerning particular subject, such as proposed ordinance. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-1415.

If quorum of village board of trustees met to engage in negotiations, in their capacities as board members, the gathering would constitute "meeting" subject to Open Meetings Law, regardless of who "asked for meeting;" every meeting of public body must be preceded by notice of time and place of meeting. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-1445.

Committee meetings held pursuant to regulation promulgated by Commissioner of Education, which requires boards of education to develop "shared decision making" plans "in collaboration with a committee" consisting of various persons, fall within scope of Open Meetings Law, although such committees do not have ability to make determinations, since they conduct public business and perform necessary and integral governmental function in development of shared decision-making plans. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2204.

Where president of board of education asked 2 members of board to review several recommended financial policies and bring back their suggestions to full board and where those 2 members had no authority and were asked to study issue in order to facilitate process more quickly, members chosen to carry out study were not required do so in accordance with Open Meetings Law. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2431.

Open Meetings Law is not triggered until quorum of public body convenes for purpose of conducting public business collectively as body; thus, Open Meetings Law would not apply to mediation session between 4 of 9 members of school board and several members of public since meeting would not involve quorum of school board; further, contrary result would not be required if other board members attended in their capacity as private citizens since they would not be participating in mediation. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2614.

Meeting between 2 current school board members and 2 candidates who had just won election but were not yet sworn into office did not violate Open meetings Law assuming that board consisted of more than 3 members, because persons who have been elected but who have not been sworn into office are not yet members of board and, absent majority of current board, Open Meetings Law did not apply. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2699.

Open Meetings Law did not apply to meeting called by town supervisor to discuss possibility of road widening, where 4 of 7 members of town board were present in audience among other members of public who attended, but they did not function collectively as public body or board. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3298.

If attorney, as representative of board of education, meets with officials of another school district to discuss tuition negotiations, and quorum of board is not present, Open Meetings Law does not apply. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3324.

Even when there is no basis to conduct executive session under CLS Pub O § 105, private discussion between board of education and its attorney may be valid based on proper assertion of attorney-client privilege when legal advice is requested, even if litigation is not involved; however, authority to assert attorney-client privilege under CLS Pub O § 108 is narrow. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3324.

Workshop or work session held by majority of public body is "meeting," with same responsibilities in relation to openness, notice and taking of minutes as in case of formal meeting, as well as same ability to enter into executive sessions. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3403.

If city planning commission made e-mail communications via listserve or other means through which members of commission and members of public, received them at different times, and there was no instantaneous or simultaneous communication, that circumstance would be equivalent to transmission of inter-office memoranda, and Open Meetings Law would not be implicated. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3447.

Board of education could continue its practice whereby all 9 board members, but no more than 3 members at one time, would meet privately over course of several days with superintendent of schools, business officials, and/or administrative staff to discuss tentative budget prior to its presentation at public meeting, unless board's practice was designed to circumvent Open Meetings Law. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3452.

If notice requirement of CLS Gen Const § 41 does not occur, even if majority is present, valid meeting could not be held or action could not validly be taken. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3732.

If member of board having particular interest or expertise offers information in writing to other members, by means of intra-agency memorandum or perhaps via e-mail, it could not be concluded that such action, by itself, would constitute "meeting," even if it leads to responses by other members. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3787.

Presence of 3 members of Town Board at meeting of board's cell tower committee would not subject meeting to Open Meetings Law if board members did not function as board but were merely part of audience as attendees at meeting. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3887.

Public body may not take action or vote by means of members signing letter at different times. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3899.

If majority of school board committee met to conduct meeting of committee, and 2 other board members attended meeting by sitting in audience as observers, such gathering would have constituted meeting of committee, but not meeting of board; on other hand, if 2 or more members joined committee "at the same table" to discuss school district business, such gathering of that nature would have been meeting of board. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-4057.

School board members who attended "parent meetings" and may have discussed board business with superintendent would not be deemed to be attending "meeting" where, for most part, members just listened to parent concerns and superintendent's responses to those concerns, and did not function as body. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-4113.

Absence of verbal deliberation would not necessarily remove gathering from coverage of Open Meetings Law. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-4113.

"Community forum meeting" held by board of education is different from meeting of public body, and both are different from public hearing; "community forum meeting" is similar to public hearing, due to its purpose, but unlike public hearing, is not prescribed by law. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-4141.

When majority of city's Common Council is present to discuss city business, such gathering would ordinarily constitute "meeting" subject to Open Meetings Law, unless meeting or portion thereof is exempt from law. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-4149.

Gathering of town board members constituted "meeting" where it involved matter of public business, i.e., authority of board to fill vacancy in public office. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-4177.

Six school board members may have taken action in manner that contravened requirements of Open Meetings Law, where they determined to prepare and approve letter—signed at different times—criticizing seventh member for disclosing allegedly confidential matters; majority's actions represented more serious lapse than that which was subject of their underlying disapproval of seventh member. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-4192.

When jury charged with selecting plan for memorial at World Trade Center site met, on particular date, with city mayor, state governor, and former city mayor, such meeting should have been open to public. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-4200.

III. "Public Body" Defined

22. In general

If hearing is conducted by hearing officer, no public body would be involved and Open Meetings Law would not be applicable. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4787.

"Public body" refer not only to governing body, but also to committees, subcommittees or smaller bodies of such body. "Public body" refers not only to governing body, such as town board, but also to committees, subcommittees or similar bodies of such body; therefore, requirements of Open Meetings Law apply to town board, as well as any committees or subcommittees that it may designate. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4815.

Any entity consisting of 2 or more members of public body, such as committee or subcommittee consisting of members of ethics board, falls within requirements of Open Meetings Law, assuming that committee discusses or conducts public business collectively as body. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9522.

When committee is subject to Open Meetings Law, it has same obligations regarding notice and openness, for example, as well as same authority to conduct executive sessions, as governing body. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12405.

A committee of the Senate or the Assembly is a "public body". Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-887.

City Common Council is public body, and commissions to which liaisons have been appointed are also public bodies; however, City Common Council and commissions are separate and distinct, and liaisons are not members of commissions; only members of commission, which would be public body conducting meeting, have right to attend executive sessions held by commission. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-1455.

When committee consists solely of members of public body, such as county board of supervisors, Open Meetings Law is applicable. Any entity consisting of 2 or more members of public body, such committee of county board of supervisors, would fall within requirements of Open Meetings Law, assuming that committee discusses or conducts public business collectively as body. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2267.

When committee is subject to Open Meetings Law, it has same obligations regarding notice and openness, for example, as well as same authority to conduct executive sessions, as governing body. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2287.

If committee is not public body subject to Open Meetings Law, it is also not "agency" for purposes of Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2300.

Staff of agency does not constitute public body and, therefore, meeting of staff of agency is not subject to Open Meetings Law. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2399.

Where agency falls within scope of Freedom of Information Law, its board constitutes "public body" for purposes of Open Meetings Law. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2590.

Open Meetings Law would not apply to gathering of persons newly elected to board of education who had not yet become members of board. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-4261.

Open Meetings Law applies not only to governing body, such as county legislature, but also to committee or subcommittee of such public body. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-1396,4638.

Open Meetings Law applies to meetings of public bodies, not only to governing bodies, but also to committees and subcommittees designated by governing body. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-1402,4677.

23. Advisory entities

Advisory body designated by mayor or by governing body, is "public body" that falls within scope of Open Meetings Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-1258.

If advisory commissions were created by town resolution, it would be likely that they were not agencies; on other hand, if commission were created by local law, for example, and performs necessary function in decision-making process, it would be subject to Open Meetings Law as "public body" and would constitute "agency" subject to Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12641.

An advisory committee created by a county legislature which is composed largely of members of the public constitutes a "public body" subject to the Open Meetings Law. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-865.

Steering committee established by town to handle issues related to a planned power plant is a public body for purposes of the Open Meetings Law, notwithstanding that it serves in an advisory capacity. Comm on Open Govt OML-AO 943.

School superintendent's "parents advisory committee" is "public body" subject to provisions of Open Meetings Law, despite fact that group has no policymaking capacity and is only advisory in nature. Committee on Open Government OML-AO-1114.

Committees, subcommittees and other advisory bodies are subject to requirements of Open Meetings Law and, as such, even though entity may have solely advisory authority or merely capacity to recommend, it would fall within requirements of Open Meetings Law; therefore, budget commission is public body and each of conditions found within definition of public body are met; because commission conducts public business and performs governmental function for public corporation it is "public body" and is subject to provisions of Open Meetings Law. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-1447.

"Charter Drafting Committee," appointed by Charter Commission and designated by County Board of Supervisors, constituted public body subject to Open Meetings Law, although its authority was advisory only, since it was authorized by CLS Mun H R § 33(5); when an advisory body is created by statute, such a body falls within requirements of Open Meetings Law. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2181.

Education Subcommittee of Citizens Advisory Committee of New York/New Jersey Harbor Estuary Program (HEP) was not subject to Open Meetings Law since HEP was public/private partnership with representatives of federal agencies, New York and New Jersey state and municipal agencies, and interested persons who were not government employees. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2361.

City charter commission created by city constitutes public body subject to Open Meetings Law, even though its authority may be advisory. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2415.

Advisory body to board of education, such as citizens' advisory committee, is not subject to Open Meetings Law, even if member of board of education or administration participates. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2588.

Court would likely hold that Long Island Railroad Commuter's Council, Metro-North Rail Commuter Council and New York City Transit Authority Advisory Council, albeit advisory in nature, are "public bodies" subject to Open Meetings Law, as they are created by statutes (CLS Pub A §§ 1204-a, 1266-d and 1266-e), they have statutory powers and duties, and they continue to exist until legislation that created them is repealed or amended. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2752.

Health and safety committees created under commissioner's regulations perform governmental function, and thus are public bodies subject to Open Meetings Law, in that they carry out necessary functions in implementation of legislation and regulations, and schools in some contexts cannot act without first having consulted with them. Volunteer "building level committees" formed within schools are not subject to Open Meetings Law insofar as they have no legal duty to carry out any function as part of decision making process. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3167.

"Partners in Tourism," created by Tourism Subcommittee of Columbia County Board of Supervisors to foster discussion with local business community to discuss use and expenditure of county and state funds in tourism marketing, was not subject to Open Meetings Law to extent its functions were purely advisory and it had no decisionmaking authority. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3396.

Advisory committee designated by Town Board to prepare proposed revisions to Town's zoning law does not constitute public body, and thus is not required to comply with Open Meetings Law, assuming that committee has no authority to take any final and binding action for or on behalf of Town. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3858.

Advisory committee designated by Town Board to prepare proposed revisions to Town's zoning law may choose to conduct meetings in public, and similar entities have done so, even though Open Meetings Law does not require that they do so. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3858.

Since Town Board has power to create advisory committee, it is implicit under CLS Town § 64(23) that Board has power to require that committee function in certain way, such as in accordance with Open Meetings Law. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3858.

Town Board could by local law or rule require advisory committee to grant public access to its meetings in manner consistent with Open Meetings Law. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3858.

24. Community planning and development, generally

25. —Industrial development agencies

The board of an industrial development agency is a "public body" for purposes of the Open Meetings Law. Comm on Open Govt OML-AO 910.

Saratoga County Industrial Development Agency constitutes "public body" subject to Open Meetings Law since it performs governmental function for public corporation; moreover, CLS Gen Mun § 890-h states that it is "a body corporate and politic," that its members "shall be appointed by the governing body of the county of Saratoga," and that it is governed by CLS Gen Mun Art 18-A. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2233.

City of Glen Falls Industrial Development Agency is subject to Open Meetings Law. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2569.

26. —Festival development corporations (FDCs)

Cattaraugus County Tourist Promotion Agency, Inc. (TPA) is not subject to either Freedom of Information (FOIL) or Open Meetings Laws; however, since those on its board of directors named by county participate by virtue of their positions in county government, any records that they produce or receive in connection with their functions for TPA constitute county records under FOIL. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12,364.

Records of Festival Development Corporation (FDC), formed by town board and festival producers to handle town's portion of proceeds from music festival held in town, are subject to Freedom of Information Law, and meetings of FDC must be conducted in accordance with Open Meetings Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-10020.

Festival Development Corporation (FDC), formed by town board and festival producers to handle town's portion of proceeds from music festival held in town, was "agency" subject to Freedom of Information Law and "public body" subject to Open Meetings Law, where town supervisor was its chairman, and its board of trustees consisted of same persons as town board; although "agency" usually is entity of state or local government, FDC was entity for which quorum was required under Not-for-Profit Corporation Law, it had more than 2 members, and town exercised substantial control over it. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2739.

Festival Development Corporation (FDC) which was created by town board initially to deal with Woodstock Festival, and FDC's board of directors which consisted of 5 members of town board, were subject to same requirements of Open Meetings and Freedom of Information Laws as town board itself, as FDC was essentially alter ego of town board when it voted to use proceeds from festival to build new town hall. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3193.

27. —Local development corporations (LDCs)

Because 5 city officials serve as permanent members of Auburn Local Development Corporation (LDC), it is clear that City of Auburn exercises substantial control over LDC, and LDC constitutes "agency" required to comply with Freedom of Information Law; further, its board constitutes "public body" under Open Meetings Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-10198.

Board of local development corporation would be deemed "public body" for purposes of Open Meetings Law where (1) it was entity for which quorum was required pursuant to provisions of Not-for-Profit Corporation Law, (2) it consisted of more than 2 members, and (3) based on language of CLS N-PCL § 1411(a), it conducted public business and performed governmental function for public corporation (city). Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12386.

Local development corporation is "public body" subject to requirements of open meetings law since quorum is required, board consists of more than 2 members, and board conducts public business and performs governmental function for more than one corporation. Committee on Open Government OML-AO-1028.

County community development corporation, which is local development corporation, is "public body" within meaning of CLS Pub O § 102(2). Committee on Open Government OML-AO-1134.

Not-for-profit "Local Development Corporation" performed governmental function and was subject to Open Meetings Law and Freedom of Information Law, where 5 of its 9 permanent members were city officials (mayor, city manager, corporation counsel, comptroller, and chairman of Industrial Development Agency). Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2774.

Despite amendment to certificate of local recreation development corporation, which was intended to reduce number of city officials and designees on its board of directors so that they no longer comprised majority of board, many of corporation's records remained subject to Freedom of Information Law, and its meetings arguably remained subject to Open Meetings Law. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3234.

Carthage Industrial Development Corporation (local development corporation) would constitute "public body" required to comply with Open Meetings Law since it is entity for which quorum is required under Not-for-Profit Corporation Law, it consists of more than 2 members, and it conducts public business and performs governmental function for several public corporations, including 2 villages, town, county, public authority and industrial development agency. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-4267.

Community board is "public body" subject to Open Meetings Law in all respects; also, if youth committee is committee of community board, and since definition of "public body" includes committees of public body, youth committee is required to prepare and disclose minutes of its meetings and its records are subject to rights granted by Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4748.

Woodstock Public Access Committee is public body required to comply with Open Meetings Law and its records are subject to Freedom of Information Law since 5 members of committee are appointed by town board, and chair of committee and station manager are also appointed by town board. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9236.

A community development corporation is a "public body", even though it may be a not-for-profit corporation. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-883.

Not-for-profit corporations are subject to Open Meetings Law where relationship between corporation and government includes conduct of public business and designation of corporation to perform governmental function. Committee on Open Government OML-AO-1046.

Designated community action agency may be considered "public body" subject to Open Meetings Law notwithstanding fact that agency may be not-for-profit corporation; not-for-profit corporations are subject to Open Meetings Law where relationship between corporation and government includes conduct of public business and designation of corporation to perform governmental function. Committee on Open Government OML-AO-1046.

City board of architectural review is public body required to comply with Open Meetings Law; board is not entitled to conduct executive sessions to discuss each application for building permit. Committee on Open Government OML-AO-1108.

Subcommittee to which town board delegated authority of town planning board is "public body" subject to requirements of Open Meetings Law in all respects, and fact that subcommittee merely makes recommendations does not necessarily remove subcommittee from requirements of law. 1986 Committee on Open Government OML-AO-1348.

City Urban Renewal Agency, Common Council, and Planning Board are clearly public bodies required to comply with Open Meetings Law. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-1356.

Board of directors of private, not-for-profit entity is not "public body", for purposes of Open Meetings Law. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-1359.

Regional committee of community board is "public body" required to comply with Open Meetings Law and based upon subject matter which committee reviews, those deliberations should be conducted open to public. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-1439.

Historical society, which was operated as private tax-exempt not-for-profit corporation, was not "public body" subject to Open Meetings Law since it did not conduct "public business" or perform "governmental function"; furthermore, historical societies are "type B" not-for-profit corporations under CLS N-PCL § 1408, and visitation and inspection of premises and records of such corporations are conferred only on Supreme Court Justice under CLS N-PCL § 114. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2217.

Local planning board constitutes public body required to comply with Open Meetings Law. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2266.

Woodstock Public Access Committee is public body required to comply with Open Meetings Law and its records are subject to Freedom of Information Law since 5 members of committee are appointed by town board and chair of committee and station manager are also appointed by Town Board and, moreover, committee is obligated by plan for operation of Woodstock Public Access Station to conduct its meetings under requirements of Open Meetings Law. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2552.

If entity is district corporation or public benefit corporation, it constitutes "public corporation" that falls within coverage of Freedom of Information Law and Open Meetings Law. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2598.

Fort Totten Redevelopment Authority was not subject to Open Meetings Law. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2603.

Community action agencies created by means of authority conferred by Economic Opportunity Act of 1964 are public bodies subject to Open Meetings Law since they perform their duties for state or at least one public corporation. Although it is unclear whether Freedom of Information Law and Open Meetings Law apply to records and meetings of community action agency, language of federal enabling legislation indicates intent that community action agency be accountable by offering reasonable public access to proceedings and records. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2613.

"Unofficial Steering Committee" consisting of leaders of county legislature who meet with county manager, county attorney and other "high ranking bureaucrats" on weekly basis, insofar as it is not created by any action of county legislature, does not constitute "public body" subject to Open Meetings Law. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3128.

Special District Operations and Development Committee for City of Syracuse, whose members are designated solely by mayor, is "alter ego" of not-for-profit corporation known as "Downtown Committee of Syracuse, Inc." which represents all property owners and tenants in city's central business district; thus, Downtown Committee is required to conduct its meetings in accordance with Open Meetings Law and must disclose records maintained by it as custodian for city in accordance with the Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3145.

District service cabinets created by New York City Charter § 2705 are not subject to Open Meetings Law insofar as their membership is flexible and depends on nature of issues that arise, no motions are made in meetings and no actions are taken and, while various reports and comments relating to local community may be made during meetings, persons attending do not function collectively as "a body." Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3440.

"Special board" created under CLS Vill § 7-722 constitutes "public body" required to comply with Open Meetings Law in same manner as Village Board of Trustees. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3841.

Board of Roosevelt Island Operating Corporation (RIOC) is public body required to comply with Open Meetings Law, since according to CLS Unconsol Ch 196 § 3, RIOC "shall be a body corporate and politic constituting a public benefit corporation and a political subdivision of the state of New York," and public benefit corporation is type of public corporation. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-4190.

Assuming that at least 5 members of Roosevelt Island Operating Corporation (RIOC) Board gather with Residents Association or any other person or group for purpose of discussing matters within jurisdiction of RIOC, collectively, as body, such gathering would constitute meeting that must be conducted in accordance with Open Meetings Law. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-4190.

28. Courts; court employees

Meetings of Board of Directors of Rochester Area School Health Plan (RASHP) Consortium fall within coverage of Open Meetings Law, since board carries out its duties in accordance with authority conferred by CLS Gen Mun Art 5-G and CLS Ins Art 47. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-4183.

29. Education, generally

30. —City University of New York (CUNY)

Board of Visitors of City University of New York Law School at Queens College is advisory committee not subject to Open Meetings Law. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2292.

Personnel and budget committees created under bylaws of City University of New York must comply with both Freedom of Information and Open Meetings Laws, although much of their deliberative process may be conducted in executive session under CLS Pub O § 105(1)(f) and their recommendations could likely be withheld in great measure under CLS Pub O § 87(2)(g). Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3195.

Research Foundation of City University of New York is "public body" subject to Open Meetings Law; foundation, which administers all grants and contracts awarded to CUNY faculty and staff for research, training, education and services pursuant to state-approved agreement with CUNY, is entity for which quorum is required, it would not exist but for its relationship with CUNY, it carries out various functions that CUNY would otherwise perform, and majority of 17 members on its board of directors are CUNY officials or organizations. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3398.

31. —Community colleges

Student government association of community college is "public body" subject to Open Meetings Law. Committee on Open Government OML-AO-1097.

Onondaga Student Services Association, Inc., formed as not-for-profit corporation to administer funding from student fees for student activities at Onandaga Community College, was public body whose board of directors, which consisted of faculty, students and administrators, was required to conduct meetings in accordance with Open Meetings Law. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3557.

32. —Local school districts; boards of education

Board of education is public body under Open Meetings Law; further, meeting is official convening of public body for purpose of conducting public business and as such when quorum of public body, such as school board, meets for purpose of conducting public business, such gathering constitutes meeting subject to Open Meetings Law; open meetings law provides that public may attend meetings of public bodies, except to extent that executive session may be convened. Board of education is public body under

Open Meetings Law; further, meeting is official convening of public body for purpose of conducting public business and as such when quorum of public body, such as school board, meets for purpose of conducting public business, such gathering constitutes meeting subject to Open Meetings Law. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-1422-1423, and 1427.

Definition of "public body" includes any entity that conducts public business, including entity designated or created to serve as body by a school board or any other public body; committees designated by school board are public bodies subject to open meetings law. Committee on Open Government FOIL-AO-1202.

Although county school board association and its board might discuss matters relating to public business, it does not conduct public business or perform governmental function and therefore, is not "public body" subject to Open Meetings Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4767.

If majority of board of education gathers to discuss school district business, in their capacities as board members, any such gathering would constitute "meeting" subject to Open Meetings Law; in related vein, if issue involves or requires action taken by board of education, such action may be taken only at meeting of board. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8541.

Open Meetings Law is applicable to meetings of subcommittees of school board, when committee or subcommittee consists solely of members of public body, such as board, and consists of 2 or more members. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12405.

Committees which operate within community school district, which have one member of school board as chair and which advise board constitute "public bodies" and are subject to Open Meetings Law. Committee on Open Government OML-AO-1031.

If survey task force that was designated and created by board of education conducts public business and performs governmental function for school district, it complies with definition of "public body" and is subject to provisions of Open Meetings Law. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-1438.

Any committee of board of education or designated by board of education is "public body" subject to Open Meetings Law; these committees conduct public business and perform governmental function for public corporation, school district; therefore, standing committee of board of education meets definition of "public body and is thus subject to provisions of Open Meetings Law; committee designated by teachers' association would not constitute public body because such association is public employee union outside requirements of Open Meetings Law. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-1444.

Standing committee consisting solely of members of board of education constitutes public body subject to Open Meetings Law since current definition of "public body" in CLS Pub O § 102(2) makes reference to entities that "conduct" public business and specifically refers to "committee, subcommittees and similar bodies" of public body. Citizens' advisory committee established by board of education was not subject to Open Meetings Law where it did not involve exercise of sovereign powers; however, where board adopted rule or policy less restrictive with respect to public access than Open Meetings Law, such rule or policy was effective notwithstanding provisions of Open Meetings Law. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2175.

Standing committee of members of board of education constitutes public body subject to Open Meetings Law that is separate and distinct from board of education. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2417.

Advisory body to board of education, such as citizens' advisory committee, is not subject to Open Meetings Law, even if member of board of education or administration participates. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2588.

District Review Panel created by Board of Regents as result of special legislation based on Regents' determination that deficiencies existed in Roosevelt Union Free School District that merited "immediate corrective action" was subject to Open Meetings Law since Panel, depending upon its role at particular time, could function either as advisory body or as governing body and, in either case, it performed necessary and integral function in implementation of special legislation. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2607.

Central School District or building level shared decisionmaking teams perform governmental function and are subject to Open Meetings Law, where district's shared decisionmaking plan cannot be adopted without their "collaboration" and participation. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3329.

33. —State University of New York (SUNY)

Executive Committee of Faculty Senate of State University at Buffalo bears each of characteristics necessary to conclude that it is "public body" subject to Open Meetings Law. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-1372.

If student association performs function for State University of New York, that would, but for existence of association, be performed by State University of New York, that student association is public body which conducts public business and performs governmental function for State University of New York. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-1442.

Brockport Student Government at SUNY College at Brockport is public body subject to Open Meetings Law. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2599.

Teacher resource and computer training center has characteristics necessary to determine that it is "public body" because it is entity consisting of at least two members, it conducts business and performs governmental functions and those functions are carried out for one or more public corporations; as such, it is "public body" required to comply with Open Meetings Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4855.

Organization called Citizens for Quality Education was not required to hold open meetings that anyone had right to attend since organization was private. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2575.

State Review Panel created by L 1995, ch 145 is "public body" subject to Open Meetings Law, and any documentation maintained by it constitutes "record" within coverage of Freedom of Information Law, as such records would have been acquired or produced by or for State Education Department. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2690.

Board of Trustees of School Employees Healthcare Plan, which provides health insurance to more than 9,000 persons and conducts public business pursuant to CLS Gen Mun Art 5-G and CLS Ins Art 47, is public body required to comply with Open Meetings Law because it performs governmental function for group of public corporations, in that participants of plan are public educational organizations and board is responsible for management and administration of plan. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2766.

Health and safety committees created under commissioner's regulations perform governmental function, and thus are public bodies subject to Open Meetings Law, in that they carry out necessary functions in implementation of legislation and regulations, and schools in some contexts cannot act without first having consulted with them. Volunteer "building level committees" formed within schools are not subject to Open Meetings Law insofar as they have no legal duty to carry out any function as part of decision making process. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3167.

School-based building planning committee, created by board of education to provide forum for input on internal curricular and educational issues at each school building, would perform governmental function and therefore would be "public body" subject to Open Meetings Law, unless board of education was not required to seek its input or otherwise consult with it prior to asserting board authority. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3265.

Governing bodies of private educational institutions are not obliged to give effect to Open Meetings Law, despite fact that they are chartered by Board of Regents and are, to some extent, overseen by Board and state Education Department, for they do not conduct public business, nor do they perform governmental function. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3838.

Central Committee of New York State Public High School Athletic Association conducts public business and performs governmental function for hundreds of public corporations (school districts), and thus committee constitutes public body that falls within requirements of Open Meetings Law, in view of obligation of trustees and boards of education to comply with law, regulations of Commissioner of Education, and their inability to do so unless they comply with Association's constitution and bylaws regarding interscholastic athletics. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-4029.

Budget committee of school board is essentially committee of board and, therefore, constitutes public body required to comply with Open Meetings Law when majority of core members of committee gather for purpose of discussing matters within area of its activity. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-4158.

34. Elections

35. Ethics boards

Village board of ethics is public body subject to Open Meetings Law since it is created by village board, it consists of at least 2 members, it may conduct its business only by means of quorum, and it conducts public business and performs governmental function for public corporation, i.e., village. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2387.

Meetings of New York State Ethics Commission are not subject to Open Meetings Law. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3664.

If issue before board of ethics involves particular person in conjunction with one or more of subjects listed in CLS Pub O § 105(1)(f), executive session could appropriately be held. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3712.

Ethics board or committee has same obligations as governing body, such as town board, regarding openness and provision of notice of meetings. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3712.

36. Finances, generally

The meeting at which a town board is required on or before January 20 each year to audit the accounts of its officers and employees must be made open to the public. 1979 Op St Compt File #57.

Budget director and head of county department or agency are not "public body" subject to Open Meetings Law. Committee on Open Government OML-AO-1188.

Syracuse Financial Plan Commission is not agency and its meetings are not subject to Open Meetings Law; however, as it carries out its duties for City of Syracuse, records that it prepares are subject to Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2353.

Disciplinary hearing held by village board of trustees in its capacity as board of police commissioners was quasi-judicial proceeding exempt from Open Meetings Law, and thus board would not have been justified in allowing it to be broadcast and televised over police chief's CLS Civ R § 52 objection. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3684.

37. Fire prevention and control

Since volunteer fire company conducts public business at its meetings, performs governmental function and such function is carried out for public corporation, volunteer fire company is "public body" subject to Open Meetings Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4917.

Board of fire commissioners is "public body" required to comply with Open Meetings Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8538.

Board of trustees of volunteer fire company is a public body subject to the Open Meetings Law. Comm on Open Govt OML-AO 947.

Open Meetings Law does not require board of fire commissioners or public bodies generally to read aloud entire text of resolutions that they consider at meetings; resolutions that have been put before voters in summary form do not violate Open Meetings Law. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-1411.

Board of commissioners of fire district is public body subject to Open Meetings Law. If board of fire commissioners designates itself as committee or designates committee consisting of at least 2 of its members, those committees also constitute public bodies required to comply with Open Meetings Law. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2282.

Board of volunteer fire company is subject to Open Meetings Law. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2308.

Since district corporation is also public corporation, board of commissioners of fire district is public body subject to Open Meetings Law. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2598.

Board of volunteer fire company is "public body" subject to Open Meetings Law; volunteer fire companies, which generally are not-for-profit corporations that perform their duties by means of contractual relationships with municipalities, perform governmental function and their records are subject to rights of access granted by Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3311.

Board of volunteer fire company is "public body" subject to Open Meetings Law despite its status as not-for-profit corporation. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3904.

38. Health and medicine

Committee formed by town board to review emergency medical services in town constitutes public body for purposes of Open Meetings Law where entity conducts public business, and is required to act by means of quorum under CLS Gen Const § 41. Committee on Open Government OML-AO-1043.

Local Alcohol Beverage Control Board is "public body" subject to Open Meetings Law. 1986 Committee on Open Government OML-AO-1314.

Subcommittee of community services board is subject to requirements of Open Meetings Law in view of specific statutory reference to such subcommittee under CLS Men Hyg §§ 41.05(b) and 44.11. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2190.

Assuming that entities have no authority to take final and binding action on behalf of City of New York or its board of education, neither Oversight Committee nor Asbestos Task Force constitutes "public body" required to comply with Open Meetings Law. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2265.

Multi-county school employee health plan committee was subject to Open Meetings Law since its functions included authority to take final action on behalf of member school districts, it consisted of at least 2 members, it carried out its duties pursuant to quorum requirements, and it conducted public business and performed governmental function, in that it carried out various responsibilities and acted for or on behalf of several boards of education, which were governing bodies of public corporations, i.e., school districts. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2275.

Only circumstance in which town health advisory committee can be found to be public body involves situation in which majority of members of town board serve on committee; since advisory committee is designated to advise town board, if majority of town board serves on advisory committee, town board would essentially be providing advice to itself. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2568.

Assuming that it is volunteer organization, board of directors of ambulance corporation is subject to Open Meetings Law. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2604.

Pharmacy & Therapeutics Committee is not subject to Open Meetings Law since it has no authority to take final and binding action for or on behalf of any government agency, it was created by State Department of Health "as a completely internal mechanism, requiring no additional statutory or regulatory authority," and it only makes recommendations to Commissioner of Health, who has authority to make determinations based on its recommendations. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3492.

39. Horse racing

Board of Directors of Thoroughbred Racing Capital Investment Fund is "public body" subject to Open Meetings Law in all respects. Committee on Open Government OML-AO-1066.

Since New York Racing Association is referred to as private corporation that does not perform "governmental functions", it appears that New York Racing Association's board of Directors would not constitute "public body" as defined by Open Mediums Law; if this is so, despite its significant relationship with government, its meetings would not be subject to Open Meetings Law. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-1416.

New York State Thoroughbred Breeding and Development Fund Corporation is public benefit corporation and, therefore, its governing body is public body required to comply with Open Meetings Law. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2471.

Board of directors of New York State Thoroughbred Breeding and Development Fund Corporation is entity consisting of more than 2 members that conducts public business and performs governmental function for public corporation and, therefore, it constitutes "public body" required to comply with Open Meetings Law. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2488.

40. Insurance

Neither New York Automobile Insurance Plan (Assigned Risk Plan, CLS Insurance § 5301) nor committee designated to administrator plan (CLS Insurance § 5302) is subject to Freedom of Information Law or Open Meeting Law. 1986 Committee on Open Government FOIL-AO-4306.

Board of Trustees of School Employees Healthcare Plan, which provides health insurance to more than 9,000 persons and conducts public business pursuant to CLS Gen Mun Art 5-G and CLS Ins Art 47, is public body required to comply with Open Meetings Law because it performs governmental function for group of public corporations, in that participants of plan are public educational organizations and board is responsible for management and administration of plan. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2766.

Commissioners of State Insurance Fund constitute public body that falls within requirements of Open Meetings Law. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3881.

41. Law enforcement and corrections

Monthly meetings of the Board of Parole are subject to the Open Meetings Law, but may also be subject to the exemptions and exceptions contained therein. 1978 NY Ops Atty Gen Nov. 2.

A meeting of a "not-for-profit community service organization" not conducted by public officials and at which no public policy is made is not a meeting of a "public body", notwithstanding that the association receives public anti-crime funding. Comm on Open Gov OML-AO-893.

Board of Visitors of the School at Industry constitutes a "public body". Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-904.

STOP-DWI Committees are subject to Open Meetings Law as "public body". Committee on Open Government OML-AO-1081.

Board of Commissioners of Port Washington Police District, which consisted of 3 members and performed governmental function for public corporation, constituted "public body" required to comply with Open Meetings Law. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2186.

Town of Pine Plains Police Advisory Council created by enactment of local law, although advisory in nature, was "public body" subject to Open Meetings Law; however, member of town board did not have right to attend council's executive sessions unless he or she was member of council, or there was some independent authority to do so based on rule, policy or other privilege conferred by town board. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3143.

Open Meetings Law applies to local conditional release commissions, based on provisions of CLS Correc §§ 271 and 272; while it is likely that some of commission's discussions and deliberations may validly occur in private, other aspects of its duties must be performed in public and result in creation of records accessible to public. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3784.

42. Libraries and museums

Board of trustees of Suffolk County Vanderbilt Museum is "public body" subject to Open Meetings Law. Committee on Open Government FOIL-AO-3676; OML-AO-1153.

Public body, such as town board or public library board of trustees, cannot carry out its powers or duties except by means of affirmative vote of majority of its total membership taken at meeting duly held on reasonable notice to all of members. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8330.

Book committee designated to review certain library books and make recommendations concerning their suitability is a "public body", subject to Open Meetings Law in all respects. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-1362.

Not only would elected board of trustees of public library constitute "public body", but also board of co-operative library system is public body and, as such, each of entities responsible for appointments to ad hoc committee is "public body" subject to Open Meetings Law. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-1450.

Queens Borough Public Library is public corporation and is subject to Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2258.

Library board of trustees is required by CLS Educ § 260-a to comply with Open Meetings Law. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2298.

Board of trustees of public library system, such as Nassau Library System, is required to comply with Open Meetings Law. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2389.

Board of Trustees of Clinton Essex Franklin Library System can validly take action only at meeting in which quorum is present, and vote cannot validly be taken by secret ballot. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2796.

As private not-for-profit institution, New York Public Library, which was founded in 1895 by Astor, Lenox and Tilden foundations to provide "private philanthropy for the public good," is not subject to Freedom of Information Law; however, pursuant to CLS Educ § 260-a, Open Meetings Law applies to gatherings of its board of trustees. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3579.

Governing body of special district library—its Board of Trustees—constitutes public body required to comply with Open Meetings Law, since library functions as district corporation, which, according to CLS Gen Const § 66, is kind of public corporation. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3740.

Any entity consisting of 2 or more members of public body, such as committee or subcommittee consisting of members of library board of trustees, would fall within requirements of Open Meetings Law, assuming that committee discusses or conducts public business collectively as body. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3740.

Boards of trustees of both governmental and non-governmental (i.e., not-for-profit corporation) public libraries are required to comply with Open Meetings Law under CLS Educ § 260-a. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3903.

While board of trustees of public library that is not governmental entity (i.e., not-for-profit corporation) is required to conduct its meetings in accordance with Open Meetings Law, CLS Educ § 260-a provides, by implication, that committees and subcommittees of such boards of trustees, except those in New York City, are not required to give effect to Open Meetings Law. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3903.

Based on characterizations of Buffalo and Erie County Public Library by courts and terms of statutes dealing with its establishment, its Board of Trustees constitutes public body, and it would be subject to Open Meetings Law, even in absence of enactment of CLS Educ § 260-a. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3903.

43. Public buildings

Stadium Committee designated by Mayor of Buffalo for purpose of discussing and planning possible domed baseball stadium in downtown Buffalo is "public body" subject to Open Meeting Law in all respects. Comm on Open Govt OML-AO 946.

Not-for-profit corporation created to own and operate proposed civic center is "public body" subject to Open Meetings Law. Committee on Open Government OML-AO-1165.

Panel of experts created to advise and offer recommendations concerning clean up and reopening of state office building is subject to open meeting law since members are charged with public duty to be performed or exercised by them jointly, and since panel performs governmental function for a state. Committee on Open Government OML-AO-1194.

44. Real property; Housing

45. —Zoning

Unless one or more of exceptions in CLS Pub O § 105(1)(a) through (h) arise, public body, including zoning board of appeals, must deliberate in public; vote by zoning board of appeals must be taken in public; if open meetings law is violated possible recourse is provided in CLS Pub O § 107(1). Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-44717; Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-1412.

Planning board and zoning board of appeals are "public bodies" subject to the Open Meetings Law. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-867.

Comprehensive planning committee established by town planning board with town board's approval, for purpose of revising town's comprehensive zoning plan, was subject to Open Meetings Law where 6 of 7 planning board members served on committee, and committee appeared to be "special board" under CLS Town § 272-a. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3633.

If town's "Comprehensive Plan/Zoning Code Committee" is "special board" as that phrase is defined in CLS Town § 272-a(2)(c), it would exist by means of statutory authorization and would constitute "public body" required to comply with Open Meetings Law. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3785.

Town's "Comprehensive Plan/Zoning Code Committee" was not "special board" under CLS Town § 272-a(2)(c), but rather "advisory committee" not subject to Open Meetings Law, where Committee consists of persons appointed by Supervisor and perhaps co-chairs, and Committee does not appear to have been created nor have its members been appointed by Town Board. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3785.

Meetings of both homeowners association organized as not for profit, type corporation as defined in CLS N-PCL § 102(a) and of its board are not governed by Open Meetings Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7924.

Assuming that condominium complex was not part of any government, its meetings would not be subject to Open Meetings Law. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2441.

Non-profit homeowners association is private rather than governmental entity, and thus its meetings are not subject to Open Meetings Law. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3120.

Home owners associations established pursuant to Declaration of Condominium to manage affairs of Condominium are not subject to Open Meetings Law. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3868.

46. Taxation

A committee consisting of 2 councilmen and the town assessors appointed to study a change in veterans exemptions on the assessment roll is a "public body". Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-877.

Assessment board of review constitutes "public body" required to comply with Open Meetings Law. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2617.

Three-member board of assessment review is "public body" subject to comply with Open Meetings Law and, while it may deliberate in private (e.g., when its deliberations are "quasi-judicial"), voting or taking action must occur in open meeting. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3499.

Town of Altamont Board of Assessment Review is public body subject to Open Meetings Law and thus, while it may deliberate in private, actual voting must occur in open meeting, and meeting minutes must indicate how each member voted. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3668.

Board of assessment review is clearly "public body" required to comply with Open Meetings Law. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-4043.

Public has the right to be present at meeting of board of assessment review under CLS RPTL § 525(2)(a), insofar as assessor is present for purpose of offering information or point of view. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-4043.

47. Transportation; transit

Governing body of public authority, public corporation, is "public body" required to comply with Open Meetings Law and, as such, Board of Niagara Frontier Transportation Authority is public body subject to Open Meetings Law. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-1460.

IRT/BMT board, which functions as part of or adjunct to New York City Transit Authority, constitutes "public body" subject to Open Meetings Law. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2178.

48. Utilities

Steering committee established by town to handle issues related to a planned power plant is a public body for purposes of the Open Meetings Law, notwithstanding that it serves in an advisory capacity. Comm on Open Govt OML-AO 943.

49. Waste

Town "landfill discussion committee," consisting of 7 appointed persons who formulate suggestions in review policy on town landfill, is "public body" subject to Open Meetings Law. Committee on Open Government OML-AO-1084.

Bi-county citizens advisory committee intended to assist 2 counties in development of joint solution to solid waste disposal problems, though not yet formally established, is "public body" for purposes of Open Meetings Law, where 12 members have agreed to serve and are serving, members have been engaged in discussion and formulation of public policy, and committee appears to conduct public business and perform governmental function for 2 public corporations. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-1377.

Citizen advisory committee designated to provide advice concerning regional landfill, whose members were designated by several agencies, was not subject to Open Meetings Law; however, committee was not precluded or prohibited from conducting open meetings. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2185.

Task force created to develop plan to close landfill was not subject to Open Meetings Law since task force would not operate pursuant to any quorum requirement, had only capacity to offer recommendations to Governor and Mayor, and would not function as body. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2644.

Inter-municipal group, consisting of representatives of several local governmental entities, was not obliged to comply with Open Meetings Law when it met with Department of Environmental Conservation officials to discuss regional sewer project, where it did not include majority of any particular public body, and it had no authority to take any final binding action for or on behalf of municipality. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3190.

50. Other and miscellaneous

Committees created by New York/New Jersey Harbor Estuary Program (HEP) did not constitute public bodies subject to Open Meetings Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8324.

Village board of trustees is "public body" subject to requirements of Open Meetings Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8570.

Not-for-profit corporation (Clarence Senior Citizens, Inc.) would be subject to both Freedom of Information and Open Meetings Laws where town board essentially has complete control over membership of board of directors of corporation. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-13422.

Board of directors of local humane society would not constitute "public body" under Open Meetings Law where there is little if any government control. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-13466.

If ambulance company performs its functions exclusively for municipality, it conducts public business and performs governmental function for municipality and thus meetings of its governing body would be subject to Open Meetings Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-13576.

Committee formed upon request of county executive to study delivery of legal services to indigent persons in county constitutes "public body" subject to Open Meetings Law. Committee on Open Government OML-AO-1138.

Based upon provisions of Article 12-D of General Municipal Law, municipal commission on human rights is "public body" subject to OML. Comm On Open Gov't OML-AO-1203.

Private Industry Counsel is public body required to comply with Open Meetings Law, as quorum is required for entity to take action, its board consists of more than 2 members, is created and authorized by state and federal law and conducts public business and performs governmental function for 1 or more public corporations. 1986 Committee on Open Government OML-AO-1304.

District service cabinets, which exist pursuant to New York City Charter, do not have specific membership and do not function as body and, therefore, do not constitute public bodies subject to Open Meetings Law. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2548.

Sampson Air Force Veterans Association, Inc., is not public body subject to requirements of Open Meetings Law, as it is private corporation, not governmental entity. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2779.

Incorporated village's 3-person Harbor Commission, as entity created by law with special powers and authority to act and make decisions, is "public body" required to comply with Open Meetings Law. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3130.

New York City police department's "Precinct Community Councils" which consist of all community members at least 18 years of age who wish to join, and sponsor programs for purpose of maintaining public interest in quality police services, are not subject to requirements of Open Meetings Law. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3157.

Ad hoc committee designated by town board as "Adult Uses Study Committee," which consisted of citizens and some town employees, and had no authority to take any final and binding action for or on behalf of town, was not "public body" subject to Open Meetings Law. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3261.

Chautauqua Institution Architectural Review Board, formed as not-for-profit corporation governed by special acts of state legislature, was not subject to Open Meetings or Freedom of Information Laws, since it was separate and distinct from government, it operated without financial assistance from government, and its land regulations were based on deed restrictions rather than assertion of any governmental authority. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3307.

Local workforce investment boards (LWIBs) are public bodies subject to Open Meetings Law; LWIBs derive in part from powers, functions and duties of state and local government officials, they conduct public business, and they performed "a governmental function." Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3480.

Not-for-profit corporation known as Clarence Senior Citizens, Inc. is subject to Freedom of Information and Open Meetings Laws; its directors are appointed by majority of Clarence Town Board, number of directors can be increased or decreased by Clarence Town Board, its directors can be removed for cause by majority of members of its board and majority of Clarence Town Board, and its directors can be removed without cause only by Clarence Town Board. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3483.

Board of Directors of Mohawk & Hudson River Humane Society is not subject to Open Meetings Law since, pursuant to its bylaws, there is little (if any) government control. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3490.

Governing body of Slaterville Ambulance, Inc. was subject to Open Meetings Law if, like Slaterville Volunteer Fire Company, ambulance corporation performed its functions exclusively for municipality. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3508.

Conservation Fund Advisory Board (CFAB) established under CLS ECL § 11-0327, which reviews allocations and expenditures of department for fish and wildlife, is subject to Open Meetings Law; CFAB reports to Department of Environmental Conservation, which is mandated to report annually on CFAB's findings, and thus at least one governmental function is contingent on CFAB's report. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3570.

Fulton Community Revitalization Corporation is subject to Open Meetings Law since its purposes are not exclusively governmental in nature, its bylaws do not require its membership to include any city officials, and city government has no official role in designating or selecting members of its board. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3639.

When committee is subject to Open Meetings Law, it has same obligations regarding notice, openness, and taking of minutes, for example, as well as same authority to conduct executive sessions, as governing body. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3740.

Open Meetings Law does not apply to meetings of members of county committee of particular political party; political party organization may seek to influence course of government, but is not itself governmental entity. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3788.

Receipt of government funding does not render entity public body. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3838.

Oversight by government would not necessarily bring entity within coverage of Open Meetings Law. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3838.

Board of directors of Snug Harbor Cultural Center, Inc. (SHCC), of Staten Island, does not constitute public body and, therefore, is not required to comply with Open Meetings Law, although SHCC receives funding from New York City and City serves as landlord, and Mayor of New York City and Commissioner of Cultural Affairs are ex officio members of SHCC board. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3838.

Meetings of governing body of ambulance company formed as not-for-profit corporation may be subject to Open Meetings Law if corporation is similar to volunteer fire company, and it performs its duties solely for ambulance district and town. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3885.

Cell tower committee appointed by town board is not required to comply with Open Meetings Law or provide notice of its meetings where committee has no authority to take any final and binding action for or on behalf of town. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3887.

"Friends" of New York City community board would not constitute public body, and thus its meetings would not be subject to Open Meetings Law, since, typically, "friends" groups are organized as not-for-profit corporations, and while they often seek to assist governmental entities, they are not ordinarily part of government. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3894.

Public corporations and public benefit corporations in New York are all governmental entities. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3903.

Entity created by Chair of community board, consisting of 5 members of board, falls within coverage of Open Meetings Law. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3926.

County bar association does not fall within coverage of Open Meetings Law. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-4016.

Board of Directors of county bar association's Article 18-B program for providing counsel to indigents constitutes "public body" subject to Open Meetings Law where sole function of program involves carrying out duties in accordance with Article 18-B pursuant to contract with county. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-4016.

If entity meets on school property for social or civic purpose, or for purpose pertaining to welfare of community, its meetings would be open to public under CLS Educ § 414(1)(c), even if Open Meetings Law does not apply. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-4025.

Soccer association meeting in high school auditorium must be held open to public under CLS Educ § 414(1)(c) as social or civic purpose, even though such association clearly falls beyond coverage of Open Meetings Law. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-4025.

Policy Council or Board of Directors of county Head Start program would not constitute "public body" subject to Open Meetings Law, where program was not connected with county government, although 42 USCS § 9839(a) indicates intent to ensure "...reasonable public access to information, including public hearings at the request of appropriate community groups..." Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-4183.

If jury charged with selecting plan for memorial at World Trade Center site carries out its duties solely for or on behalf of agency, it is entity that conducts public business and performs governmental function for public corporation, i.e., public authority, and thus jury is public body that falls within coverage of Open Meetings Law. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-4200.

IV. "Executive Session" Defined

51. In general

Motion for entry into executive session by board should contain two components, inclusion of term "particular" and reference to one or more of topics appearing in that provision. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4686.

While Open Meetings Law authorizes public bodies to conduct executive sessions in circumstances described in CLS Pub O § 105(1)(a) through (h), there is no requirement that executive session be held even though public body has right to do so. Introductory language of CLS Pub O § 105(1), which prescribes procedure that must be accomplished before executive session may be held, clearly indicates that public body "may" conduct executive session only after having completed that procedure. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12405.

In technical sense, executive session cannot be scheduled prior to meeting, as executive session is not separate and distinct from open meeting, but rather as part of open meeting. 1986 Committee on Open Government OML-AO-1310.

Public body may exclude public from its deliberations during executive session. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-1413.

With respect to motion for entry into executive session, it is insufficient to merely regurgitate the statutory language of ground for entry into executive session because such boiler plate recitation does not comply with intent of statute; reference should be made only to those topics which will be discussed in executive session; when listing agenda to enter into executive session, agenda need not include reference to name or other identifying details concerning individual who will be subject of discussion. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-1420.

Exception from open meeting based on discussion of litigation is intended to permit public body to discuss its litigation strategy behind closed doors, rather than issues that might eventually result in litigation; further, since possible or potential litigation can be result of nearly any topic discussed by public body, executive session cannot be held to discuss issue merely because there is potential for litigation; motion to enter into executive session must include, in general terms, reference to subject to be considered behind closed doors. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-1429.

Member of town board has authority to attend executive sessions called by town board unless and until member is legally barred from attending; motion to enter into executive session to discuss personnel or personnel matters without additional description is inadequate; motion for entry into executive session should contain two components, inclusion of term "particular", and reference to one or more of topics appearing in Open Meetings Law. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-1440.

Executive session is not separate and distinct from open meeting, but rather it is portion of open meeting during which public may be excluded; public body cannot enter into executive session to discuss subject of its choice, but must only discuss subjects listed in Open Meetings Law as appropriate for discussion behind closed doors. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-1445.

If action is taken during executive session, minutes indicating nature of action and vote, by member, must be prepared within one week of executive session; further, minutes are accessible to public to extent required by Freedom of Information Law; executive session is not separate from open meeting, but rather is portion of open meeting during which public may be excluded; further, public body cannot enter into executive session to discuss subject of its choice but is specifically limited to topics listed in Open Meetings Law; action taken in executive session remains valid unless and until court renders determination to contrary. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-1448.

"Executive session" is portion of open meeting during which public may be excluded and, as such, executive session is not separate and distinct from meeting, but rather it is portion of open meeting; public body cannot schedule executive session in advance of meeting, because vote to enter into executive session must be taken at meeting during which executive session is held; public body cannot enter into executive session to discuss subject of its choice and is limited to subjects listed in Open Meetings Law; further, motion to enter into executive session must identify in general terms the area or areas of subject or subjects to be considered. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-1451.

City Common Council is public body, and commissions to which liaisons have been appointed are also public bodies; however, City Common Council and commissions are separate and distinct, and liaisons are not members of commissions; only members of commission, which would be public body conducting meeting, have right to attend executive sessions held by commission; moreover, liaison, person who is not a member of commission, would not have right to attend executive session of such commission; nevertheless, commission may permit attendance of others to executive session. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-1455.

Even though deliberations of zoning board of appeals may be characterized as quasi-judicial, they are not exempt from Open Meetings Law; moreover, deliberations of zoning board must be conducted in public, except to extent that one or more of grounds for entry into executive session may properly be asserted. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-1456.

Executive session is not separate and distinct from meeting, but rather portion of open meeting and motion to enter into executive session must include reference to general area or areas of subject or subjects to be considered during executive session. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-1460.

Executive session is defined in Open Meetings Law to mean portion of open meeting during which public may be excluded and, as such, executive session is not separate and distinct from meeting, but rather is portion of open meeting. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-1463.

Presence or absence of "mission statement" is not determinative of public body's capacity to conduct executive session. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2422.

Executive session is not separate from open meeting, but rather is portion of open meeting. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3860.

Public body cannot schedule executive session in advance of meeting, since, because vote to enter into executive session must be made and carried by majority vote of total membership during open meeting, it cannot be known in advance of that vote that such motion will indeed be approved. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-4067.

Rather than scheduling executive session in advance of meeting, which would violate Open Meetings Law, public body on its agenda or notice of meeting could refer to or schedule motion to enter into executive session to discuss certain subjects; reference to motion to conduct executive session would not represent assurance that executive session would ensue, but rather indicate that there is intent to enter into executive session by means of vote to be taken during meeting. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-4067.

§ 103. Open meetings and executive sessions

(a) Every meeting of a public body shall be open to the general public, except that an executive session of such body may be called and business transacted thereat in accordance with section ninety-five* of this article.

(b) Public bodies shall make or cause to be made all reasonable efforts to ensure that meetings are held in facilities that permit barrier-free physical access to the physically handicapped, as defined in subdivision five of section fifty of the public buildings law.

(c) A public body that uses videoconferencing to conduct its meetings shall provide an opportunity for the public to attend, listen and observe at any site at which a member participates.

(d) [There are two subs (d)] Public bodies shall make or cause to be made all reasonable efforts to ensure that meetings are held in an appropriate facility which can adequately accommodate members of the public who wish to attend such meetings.

(d) [There are two subs (d)] 1. Any meeting of a public body that is open to the public shall be open to being photographed, broadcast, webcast, or otherwise recorded and/or transmitted by audio or video means. As used herein the term "broadcast" shall also include the transmission of signals by cable.

2. A public body may adopt rules, consistent with recommendations from the committee on open government, reasonably governing the location of equipment and personnel used to photograph, broadcast, webcast, or otherwise record a meeting so as to conduct its proceedings in an orderly manner. Such rules shall be conspicuously posted during meetings and written copies shall be provided upon request to those in attendance.

(e) Agency records available to the public pursuant to article six of this chapter, as well as any proposed resolution, law, rule, regulation, policy or any amendment thereto, that is scheduled to be the subject of discussion by a public body during an open meeting shall be made available, upon request therefor, to the extent practicable as determined by the agency or the department, prior to or at the meeting during which the records will be discussed. Copies of such records may be made available for a reasonable fee, determined in the same manner as provided therefor in article six of this chapter. If the agency in which a public body functions maintains a regularly and routinely updated website and utilizes a high speed internet connection, such records shall be posted on the website to the extent practicable as determined by the agency or the department, prior to the meeting. An agency may, but shall not be required to, expend additional moneys to implement the provisions of this subdivision.

(f) Open meetings of an agency or authority shall be, to the extent practicable and within available funds, broadcast to the public and maintained as records of the agency or authority. If the agency or authority maintains a website and utilizes a high speed internet connection, such open meeting shall be, to the extent practicable and within available funds, streamed on such website in real-time, and posted on such website within and for a reasonable time after the meeting. For the purposes of this subdivision, the term "agency" shall mean only a state department, board, bureau, division, council or office and any public corporation the majority of whose members are appointed by the governor. For purposes of this subdivision, the term "authority" shall mean a public authority or public benefit corporation created by or existing under any state law, at least one of whose members is appointed by the governor (including any subsidiaries of such public authority or public benefit corporation), other than an interstate or international authority or public benefit corporation.

and listen to the deliberations and decisions that go into the making of public policy". (public officers law, § 100) However, because most citizens are unable to attend first-hand the meetings of public bodies, they rely upon the printed press and broadcast media to act as their agent in seeking out and communicating these events. Advances in technology now allow meetings to be photographed, broadcast and recorded in a non-disruptive manner, and these advances should be utilized to give effect to the policy of open and public governmental proceedings.

2010. Chapter 40, § 1 amended by adding sub (d) [first setout].

2010. Chapter 43, § 2 amended by adding sub (d) [second setout].

The 2015 amendment by ch 519, § 1, added (f).

The 2016 amendment by ch 319, § 1, in (f), added "or authority" wherever it appears in the first two sentences and added the last sentence.

1. In general

The Open Meetings Law (Public Officers Law, art 7), which provides that every meeting of a public body, except for an executive session, shall be open to the general public, and which defines the word "meeting" as "the formal convening of a public body for the purpose of officially transacting public business", is not limited in application to regular or formal meetings only, but applies to the gathering or meeting of a public body for the purpose of transacting public business, whenever a quorum is present, whether or not a vote of the members is taken. Orange County Publications, Div. of Ottaway Newspapers, Inc. v Council of Newburgh, 60 A.D.2d 409, 401 N.Y.S.2d 84, 1978 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9687 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't), aff'd, 45 N.Y.2d 947, 411 N.Y.S.2d 564, 383 N.E.2d 1157, 1978 N.Y. LEXIS 2337 (N.Y. 1978).

Statute does not apply only to formal or regular meanings, but to any gathering or meeting of quorum of public body for purpose of transacting business. Tri-Village Publishers, Inc. v St. Johnsville Bd. of Education, 110 A.D.2d 932, 487 N.Y.S.2d 181, 1985 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 48835 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1985).

Essential factor in determining applicability of CLS Pub O Art 7 is whether or not entity is performing governmental function rather than simply conducting public business. Poughkeepsie Newspaper Div. of Gannett Satellite Information Network v Mayor's Intergovernmental Task Force on New York City Water Supply Needs, 145 A.D.2d 65, 537 N.Y.S.2d 582, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1492 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1989).

Confidential communications between village zoning board of appeals and its counsel, during which counsel allegedly advised board of legal issues involved in determination of variance application, were exempt from provisions of Open Meetings Law, CLS Pub O §§ 103 and 108(3). Young v Board of Appeals, 194 A.D.2d 796, 599 N.Y.S.2d 632, 1993 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6672 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1993).

Allegation on appeal of Article 78 proceeding regarding city planning board's violation of Open Meetings Law (CLS Pub O § 103(a)) was rendered academic where it pertained to meetings leading to determination that was superseded by later approval of revised application. Alberti v City of New Rochelle, 257 A.D.2d 572, 682 N.Y.S.2d 892, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 136 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1999).

Trial court's annulment of the determinations of a county and a comptroller reducing a retiree's salary for purposes of his retirement severance was proper because a board of trustees had been authorized by N.Y. Educ. Law § 6306(2) and N.Y. Comp. Codes R. & Regs. tit. 8, § 604.2(a) to vote to raise the retiree's salary pursuant to his employment contract, and contradictory local laws did not supersede state law or regulations; there was no support for the claim that the meeting was not properly noticed as to time and place and there was no statutory requirement that notice of the agenda of the meeting be given. The contention that the vote was unauthorized because verbatim minutes of the meeting were not taken was unavailing as N.Y. Pub. Off. Law § 106 merely required that a record or summary of the action at a meeting be taken, and the record disclosed that a summary of the action was taken. Matter of LaLima v County of Suffolk, 45 A.D.3d 845, 847 N.Y.S.2d 208, 2007 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12137 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2007).

Trial court properly rejected appellants' challenges under the Open Meetings Law; appellants were not aggrieved by any insufficiency in the notice of the meeting of the planning board held on November 12, 2008, or inaccessibility of the meeting to those with disabilities. In any event, the notice conformed to statutory requirements. Matter of Thorne v Village of Millbrook Planning Bd., 83 A.D.3d 723, 920 N.Y.S.2d 369, 2011 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2836 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't), app. denied, 17 N.Y.3d 711, 930 N.Y.S.2d 556, 954 N.E.2d 1182, 2011 N.Y. LEXIS 2949 (N.Y. 2011).

Trial court properly denied a petition by nearby business owners to review a town board's issuance of special use permits for a convenience store and a "minor" restaurant as a violation of the General Municipal Law because, while the owners alleged sufficient harm to establish standing, the town complied with SEQRA's requirements before making a negative declaration, the owners failed to establish that the rezoning of the property constituted illegal spot zoning, was inconsistent with the town's comprehensive plan, or incompatible with the surrounding uses, and the record did not support the owners' contention that the Open Meetings Law was violated. Matter of Star Prop. Holding, LLC v Town of Islip, 164 A.D.3d 799, 83 N.Y.S.3d 146, 2018 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5815 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2018).

2. Closed meetings, generally

CLS CPLR § 217 barred petitioners' claim that respondent public body violated their First Amendment rights by conducting public business in closed session, where Article 78 proceeding was commenced more than 4 months after petitioners were barred from attending meeting; petitioners' claim arose solely from respondent's conduct in holding closed meeting, not from actions taken at closed meeting. Smith v City Univ. of New York, 92 N.Y.2d 707, 685 N.Y.S.2d 910, 708 N.E.2d 983, 1999 N.Y. LEXIS 1 (N.Y. 1999).

A cause of action under the Open Meetings Law (Public Officers Law, art 7) was stated by a petition alleging the occurrence of a closed session meeting of the Mayor, a committee from the city council, and members of the school board at which there was a discussion concerning the possible sale of the junior high school and the contemplated applications for funds under the Public Works Act by both the city and the board, and which further alleged, inter alia, that a quorum of the board was present, that the meeting was private and that the subjects of the meeting were such that they would ordinarily arise at a public meeting.

Oneonta Star Div. of Ottaway Newspapers, Inc. v Board of Trustees, 66 A.D.2d 51, 412 N.Y.S.2d 927, 1979 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9988 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1979).

In a proceeding challenging the reapportionment of a county legislature, meetings at which members of the majority political party discussed a reapportionment plan did not violate [former] Pub O § 98(a) where, although they were closed sessions, no legislative quorum was present at any of the meetings; although a technical violation occurred at one of the meetings because no public notice was "conspicuously" posted as required by [former] Pub O § 99, the trial court was not justified in voiding all the actions resulting from the meeting where the press was in fact notified of the meeting and attended it and where the resolution of the meeting merely called for a public hearing. Britt v County of Niagara, 82 A.D.2d 65, 440 N.Y.S.2d 790, 1981 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10944 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1981).

Closed meetings of the Rent Stabilization Guidelines Board of the City of New York for the consideration of data which resulted in the issuance of a rent guideline order for rent stabilized apartments violated the "Open Meetings Law" (Public Officers Law, art 7) since such meetings were neither announced to the news media nor open to the public; although the Rent Stabilization Law, by requiring that the board consider "such other data as may be made available to it" (Administrative Code, § YY51-5.0, subd b, par [3]) does not mandate public hearings, the board's obligation to consider other data, when read together with the "Open Meetings Law", obligates the board to provide an opportunity for interested persons to present such data and, accordingly, the board's failure to open meetings to the public, thereby excluding public oversight and public participation, requires that implementation of the rent guideline order be enjoined and that the matter be remanded to the board for further public hearings. Rent Stabilization Ass'n v Rent Guidelines Board, 98 Misc. 2d 312, 413 N.Y.S.2d 950, 1978 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2884 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1978).

A cause of action in a petition brought by the president of a parent-teacher club seeking to declare void a school board's vote closing an elementary school on the ground that the action was taken in violation of the Open Meetings Law would be dismissed, where the property committee of the board had 12 to 15 closed meetings before recommending to the school board that the school be closed, but the board held an open public meeting on the committee's report and the vote was taken at a subsequent open meeting, and where the property committee had no warrant to take definitive action, but could only make nonbinding recommendations to the board. Dombroske v Board of Education, 118 Misc. 2d 800, 462 N.Y.S.2d 146, 1983 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3402 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1983).

City counsel violates Public Officers Law by exclusion of public from meeting held to discuss preliminary redevelopment plan for blighted area in city; in light of this and other violations of Open Meetings Law, court will impose upon counsel payment to petitioners of cost and reasonable attorney fees, in amount of $500. Orange County Publications, Div. of Ottaway Newspapers, Inc. v Council of Newburgh (N.Y. Sup. Ct. Mar. 4, 1983).

3. —Application to particular circumstances, generally

Where certain committees of the school district board of education were advisory in nature and did not perform governmental functions, they were not public bodies subject to the open meetings provisions of N.Y. Pub. Off. Law §§ 102(2) and 103, even though the committees contained at least one member of the board. Matter of Jae v Bd. of Educ. of Pelham Union Free Sch. Dist., 22 A.D.3d 581, 802 N.Y.S.2d 228, 2005 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10872 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2005), app. denied, 6 N.Y.3d 714, 816 N.Y.S.2d 749, 849 N.E.2d 972, 2006 N.Y. LEXIS 1311 (N.Y. 2006).

Meetings of a selection committee formed by the city manager in order to provide advice and interview candidates for the position of Chief of Police and make recommendations to the mayor and city council relative to their decision regarding the choice of a candidate for the position of Chief are subject to the Open Meetings Law since the committee in question is a "public body" within the meaning of Public Officers Law § 97(2) [now § 102(2)] in that the committee consists of at least two members, performs its duties by means of a quorum, and clearly performs a governmental function. Comm Pub Acc Rec OML—Ad Op 563.

Compulsory interest arbitration panel hearing is exempt from provisions of Open Meetings Law due to quasi-judicial nature and due to distinctions in legislation between such panel and direction provided in Civil Service Law § 209(3)(e)(iii). Comm Pub Acc Rec OML-Ad Op 630.

4. — —Education

Board of Education did not have right to deny teachers permission to attend board meetings; CLS Educ §§ 2801 and 3020-a, which allow Board to adopt rules and regulations for maintenance of public order on school property, are overridden by CLS Educ § 1708(3), which specifically provides that "(t)he meetings of all such boards (of education) shall be open to the public," to CLS Educ §§ 2801 and 3020-a do not supersede Open Meetings Law (CLS Pub O Art 7), and finding that Board's right to exclude teachers overrides teachers' right to attend meetings would run afoul of CLS Pub O § 110. Goetschius v Board of Educ., 244 A.D.2d 552, 664 N.Y.S.2d 811, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11925 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1997).

School district's board of education engaged in persistent pattern of deliberate violation of letter and spirit of CLS Pub O Art 7 by, inter alia, improperly convening executive sessions and conducting business in manner inaudible to public audience. Goetschius v Board of Educ., 281 A.D.2d 416, 721 N.Y.S.2d 386, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2074 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2001).

Under the "Open Meetings Law," all meetings of school district board of education convened to transact public business were required to be open to the public, with the exception of "executive sessions" properly convened pursuant to the relevant provisions of the Public Officers Law. Kamlet v Board of Education, 91 Misc. 2d 1105, 399 N.Y.S.2d 366, 1977 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2489 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1977).

Written notice not to renew contract provided to the superintendent of schools, which notice was within the time limit provided by the contract of employment but was not preceded by official action, that is, by a regular meeting as compared to an informal meeting or executive session of the board of education, cannot be ratified by official action after the contractual deadline for the written notice. The subsequent adoption of a resolution by the community school board which occurred after the contractual deadline for written notice, therefore, was not accomplished in time to prevent automatic renewal of the superintendent's contract. Appeal of Hernandez, 1991 Op Comr Educ No 12367; Appeal of Lilly, 1991 Op Comr Educ No 12396.

A school board has the authority to enter into an executive session to discuss the appointment of a particular individual to the board in order to fill a vacancy since a discussion of the appointment of a particular individual to the school board would likely and of necessity involve a review of the employment history of the particular person and the discussion would likely constitute a manner "leading to the appointment of a particular individual" to the board. Comm Pub Acc Rec OML—Ad Op 566.

Activities of a Board of Education in discussing a reduction of size of its Committee on the Handicapped and the appointment of specific individuals to serve on that Committee during an executive session, conducted prior to rather than during an open meeting, violates the Open Meetings Law since, in view of the definition of "executive session" in Public Officers Law § 97 [now § 102], it is clear that a public body may conduct an executive session only after having convened an open meeting, open meetings may only be conducted upon notice to the public and to the news media, which was not given in this case, and a public body may enter into an executive session for only those matters deemed appropriate for an executive session as described in Public Officers Law § 100 [now § 105] and where reducing the size of the Committee on the Handicapped was a policy matter which did not concern any "particular" person, a discussion of the reduction of the Committee should have been held during open meeting. Comm Pub Acc Rec OML—Ad Op 570.

While the application of the Open Meetings Law to meetings of a faculty-student association is unclear, if such Association exists due to its relationship with a particular college, and if the college would perform the functions of the association if the association had not been created, a faculty-student association is likely to be construed a "public body" under Public Officers Law § 97(2) [now § 102(2)] and therefore subject to the requirements of Public Officers Law § 98 [now § 103]. Comm Pub Acc Rec OML—Ad Op 578.

5. — —Finance

A taxpayer's Article 78 petition charging a violation of the Open Meetings Law (Pub Off Law § 103) in connection with the adoption of a village budget failed to state a cause of action, since the subject budget had been adopted after a public hearing in which all who attended were afforded the opportunity to comment, and the changes and revisions that were then made to the tentative budget were the result of considerable deliberation by numerous village officials, since there was no statutory requirement that any further hearing or discussion be formally scheduled prior to such revisions being made in the tentative budget, since affidavits submitted by petitioner taxpayer were insufficient to warrant relief in that they did not establish what had been said at an alleged "backroom" meeting of the board of village trustees prior to formal public adoption of the revised budget or how long such meeting lasted, and since it was not the intent of the Open Meetings Law to inhibit such brief and innocuous gatherings of bodies subject to its terms prior to public meetings as that which was alleged to have occurred. Puka v Greco, 119 Misc. 2d 696, 464 N.Y.S.2d 349, 1983 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3580 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1983), aff'd, 104 A.D.2d 362, 479 N.Y.S.2d 150, 1984 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 19832 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1984).

6. — —Health

Non-profit, private hospitals receiving substantial amounts of government funds do not constitute a "public body" as defined in Public Officers Law § 97(2) [now § 102(2)] and therefore not subject to the requirements of the Open Meetings Law. Comm Pub Acc Rec OML—Ad Op 568.

7. — —Law enforcement

Open Meetings Law did not require a city council to hold a public debate on its proposal to reorganize the fire and police departments. DeSantis v City of Jamestown, 193 Misc. 2d 197, 747 N.Y.S.2d 906, 2002 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1266 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 2002).

8. — —Zoning

Town board did not violate Open Meetings Law (CLS Pub O §§ 100 et seq.) by allegedly drafting new legislation at executive session held after public hearing as to 3 proposed amendments to zoning ordinance where, following executive session, board enacted 2 of amendments proposed which were not new or different from proposed amendments, it tabled remaining proposed amendment, and there was nothing to controvert town's sworn allegation that executive session was conducted only for permissible purpose. Gernatt Asphalt Prods. v Town of Sardinia, 87 N.Y.2d 668, 642 N.Y.S.2d 164, 664 N.E.2d 1226, 1996 N.Y. LEXIS 313 (N.Y. 1996).

Zoning amendments would be annulled due to violation of Open Meetings Law by town board where (1) town board and certain town officials went into executive session at close of public hearing on proposed special use permit amendment that would have generally banned mining in town but for permissible uses in certain districts subject to special use permit requirements, ostensibly to discuss likely effect of amendments on existing litigation, and (2) board emerged after 30 minutes and formally resolved, without any further public involvement, to adopt amendment that completely banned mining in town. Gernatt Asphalt Prods. v Town of Sardinia, 208 A.D.2d 139, 622 N.Y.S.2d 395, 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1929 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1995), rev'd, 87 N.Y.2d 668, 642 N.Y.S.2d 164, 664 N.E.2d 1226, 1996 N.Y. LEXIS 313 (N.Y. 1996).

Plaintiffs' request that a rezoning determination be voided based on alleged violations of the Open Meetings Law was moot; plaintiffs did not allege that any of their claims fell within an exception to the mootness doctrine. Citizens for St. Patrick's v City of Watervliet City Council, 126 A.D.3d 1159, 5 N.Y.S.3d 582, 2015 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1978 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2015).

9. —Executive sessions, generally

Although a town zoning board of appeals violated the Open Meetings Law when it discussed at an executive session a property owner's application for a certificate of nonconformity or for a use variance in order to operate a junkyard on his premises, pursuant to N.Y. Pub. Off. Law §§ 103 and 105, where the owner failed to show good cause why the court should exercise its discretion to void the board's determination as a sanction for that violation, the court declined to impose such a sanction. Carrier v Town of Palmyra Zoning Bd. of Appeals, 30 A.D.3d 1036, 816 N.Y.S.2d 647, 2006 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7599 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 2006), app. denied, 8 N.Y.3d 807, 834 N.Y.S.2d 88, 865 N.E.2d 1255, 2007 N.Y. LEXIS 530 (N.Y. 2007).

Statements made by a particular member of a Town Board to a representative of the news media in opposition to a bid on property received by the Board despite the Board's holding of an executive session do not represent a violation of Public Officers Law § 98 [now § 103] but may be a violation of General Municipal Law § 805-a in that one may argue that the information under discussion in the executive session was "confidential" and the Town Board member's disclosure might have jeopardized the Town's position in the bidding process. Comm Pub Acc Rec OML—Ad Op 561.

It is an open question whether or not a public body may rectify any mistake made in holding an executive session by ratifying its action through a public vote. Comm Pub Acc Rec OML-Ad Op 857.

In a suit brought by neighboring landowners against a motorcycle company and a town, the trial court reasonably exercised its discretion in awarding counsel fees and costs to the landowners because the town violated the open meetings law by holding executive sessions without explanation or notice, denied the landowners any meaningful participation in the process leading to the final adoption of the controversial 2013 agreement, and minutes were not taken of certain meetings. Matter of Ballard v New York Safety Track LLC, 126 A.D.3d 1073, 5 N.Y.S.3d 542, 2015 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1852 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2015).

10. —Judicial or quasi-judicial proceedings

That portion of a meeting of a board of zoning appeals during which the board conducts its deliberations on requests for zoning variances is judicial in nature and, accordingly, is not subject to the Open Meetings Law (Public Officers Law, art 7), which requires that every meeting of a public body be open to the general public but which exempts from its mandates judicial or quasi-judicial proceedings, while that portion of the meeting at which the board's decision is announced, the votes of its members taken, and its other regular business conducted, is non-judicial and must be open to the public. Orange County Publications, Div. of Ottaway Newspapers, Inc. v Council of Newburgh, 60 A.D.2d 409, 401 N.Y.S.2d 84, 1978 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9687 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't), aff'd, 45 N.Y.2d 947, 411 N.Y.S.2d 564, 383 N.E.2d 1157, 1978 N.Y. LEXIS 2337 (N.Y. 1978).

In an Article 78 proceeding by a group of concerned citizens to annul the issuance of a special use permit by the town zoning board to a company for the construction of a shopping mall, the permit was properly issued where the zoning board, which conducted ten public hearings and three special meetings on the company's application, properly held an executive session that was closed to the public inasmuch as the closed session, which was for the purpose of the board's weighing the evidence and applying the law, was judicial, rather than legislative in nature. Concerned Citizens against Concerned Citizens against Crossgates v Guilderland Zoning Bd. of Appeals, 91 A.D.2d 763, 458 N.Y.S.2d 13, 1982 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 19655 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1982).

Town planning board properly decided at certain meeting to deny developer's application for site approval plan for proposed shopping center, despite absence of developer, where proper notice was given at previous meeting and other members of public attended; even if developer were purposely excluded, that fact of itself did not contravene Open Meetings Law since board acted on proposal in judicial nature. Grossman v Planning Bd. of Colonie, 126 A.D.2d 887, 510 N.Y.S.2d 929, 1987 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 42003 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1987).

11. —Political caucuses

In a proceeding challenging the closing of meetings of the members of the majority political party on a city council at which the members discussed matters that were to come before the council at public meetings, the party meetings constituted meetings within the scope of [former] Pub O § 97(1) and, since it was undisputed that a quorum was present at the meetings, the meetings violated the Open Meetings Law; additionally, the meetings did not come under the "political caucus" exception contained in [former] Pub O § 103(2) since that exception was meant merely to prevent the statute from extending to the private matters of a political party, as opposed to matters that are public business. Sciolino v Ryan, 81 A.D.2d 475, 440 N.Y.S.2d 795, 1981 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10933 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1981).

Meeting between respondents and members of village police benevolent association violated Open Meetings Law (CLS Pub O §§ 100-111) where respondents were trustees who together constituted majority of village board and were also members of Independent Party of village; meeting was not exempt from open meetings statute on basis that it was political caucus of Independent Party since it was undisputed that quorum of village board was present at meeting. Humphrey v Posluszny, 175 A.D.2d 587, 573 N.Y.S.2d 790, 1991 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10096 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't), app. dismissed, 78 N.Y.2d 1072, 576 N.Y.S.2d 222, 582 N.E.2d 605, 1991 N.Y. LEXIS 4742 (N.Y. 1991).

Closed meeting of quorum of city council, which had purpose of adopting proposed plan for addressing budget crisis before going "public" to debate such plan, was not exempt from open meeting requirement of CLS Pub O Art 7 on ground that meeting was political caucus within meaning of CLS Pub O § 108(2), even though meeting was of members of only one political party, since entire council was composed of members of only one political party, and stated purpose of meeting was to adopt plan to address budget crisis. Buffalo News, Div. of Berkshire Hathaway, Inc. v Buffalo Common Council, 154 Misc. 2d 400, 585 N.Y.S.2d 275, 1992 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 264 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1992).

Alleged "closed party caucuses" of the majority of the members of the Oneida County Board of Legislature to discuss pending resolutions and other legislative business is are meetings subject to the requirements of Open Meetings Law and not exempt from the Law's provision on the basis of [former] Public Officers Law § 103(2) exempting "deliberations of political committees, conferences, and caucuses" since it is clear that during the meetings involved public as well as political business was conducted. Comm Pub Acc Rec OML—Ad Op 576.

12. —Private or secret meetings

If any private or secret meetings or assemblages of a public entity are held when a quorum of its members is present and when the topics for discussion and eventual decision are such as would otherwise arise at a regular meeting, a violation of the Open Meetings Law (Public Officers Law, art 7) occurs. Oneonta Star Div. of Ottaway Newspapers, Inc. v Board of Trustees, 66 A.D.2d 51, 412 N.Y.S.2d 927, 1979 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9988 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1979).

13. —Work sessions

A meeting of a city council, characterized by it as a "work session" and concededly not an executive session, the purpose of which was to consider problems of urban renewal in an area of the city, but at which the council did not plan to take a vote, was a meeting of a public body, required to be open to the public under the Open Meetings Law (Public Officers Law, art 7), which provides that every meeting of a public body, except for an executive session, shall be open to the general public, and defines the word "meeting" as "the formal convening of a public body for the purpose of officially transacting public business". Orange County Publications, Div. of Ottaway Newspapers, Inc. v Council of Newburgh, 60 A.D.2d 409, 401 N.Y.S.2d 84, 1978 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9687 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't), aff'd, 45 N.Y.2d 947, 411 N.Y.S.2d 564, 383 N.E.2d 1157, 1978 N.Y. LEXIS 2337 (N.Y. 1978).

Respondent town board, which approved a 3,900 unit planned integrated development shortly after it lawfully substituted itself as the "lead agency" for matters involving the State Environmental Quality Review Act in place of the planning board (ECL 8-0111, subd 6), violated provisions of article 7 of the Public Officers Law by conducting several private "work sessions" concerning technical aspects of the project without public notice both before and after it assumed jurisdiction over the pending proceedings for an environmental impact statement. Tuxedo Conservation & Taxpayers Ass'n v Town Bd. of Tuxedo, 96 Misc. 2d 1, 408 N.Y.S.2d 668, 1978 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2613 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1978), aff'd, 69 A.D.2d 320, 418 N.Y.S.2d 638, 1979 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11357 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1979).

Pre-meeting work session of city housing authority attended by only 3 of 7 commission members, at which agenda for regularly scheduled meeting was discussed, was not subject to Open Meetings Law (CLS Pub O § 100 et seq.) since quorum was lacking; however, if quorum had been planned or actually obtained, statute would automatically apply, and commission members would then have been required immediately to abandon session, and cease and desist from further consideration of any items until meeting had been properly noticed and could proceed in compliance with Open Meetings Law. Buffalo Evening News, Inc. v Buffalo Municipal Housing Authority, 134 Misc. 2d 155, 510 N.Y.S.2d 422, 1986 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3075 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1986).

14. Location of meetings, generally

School board superintendent acting as a receiver for a high school and junior high school violated N.Y. Educ. Law §§ 414(1)(c) and 211-f(1)(b)(iv) by excluding reporters' cameras from a public meeting held at a school because she opened that non-public forum to the public to discuss a matter of public interest, and although the schools were the subject of the meeting, the property was not being used for school purposes. News 12 Co. v Hempstead Pub. Schs. Bd. of Educ., 52 Misc. 3d 479, 31 N.Y.S.3d 788, 2016 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1411 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 2016).

Where a school board superintendent acting as a receiver for a high school and junior high school violated the law by excluding reporters' cameras from a public meeting held at a school, petitioner newspapers were not entitled to relief with respect to the board because the superintendent, as receiver, had the authority to call the meeting without the board's consent. News 12 Co. v Hempstead Pub. Schs. Bd. of Educ., 52 Misc. 3d 479, 31 N.Y.S.3d 788, 2016 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1411 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 2016).

15. —Access for physically handicapped

Petitioner was entitled to mandamus directing town to comply with CLS Pub O §§ 74-a and 103 by conducting future public meetings at location other than present town hall, and requiring that such location provide barrier-free facilities for physically handicapped persons, where evidence established that town hall was not accessible to physically handicapped persons, that attempt to remedy defect by installation of ramp had been inadequate, and that no further efforts to remedy defect had been made. Smith v Warwick, 169 A.D.2d 976, 564 N.Y.S.2d 874, 1991 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 519 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1991).

In light of the strong public policy considerations underlying the statutory requirement in the Open Meetings Law that public bodies make "reasonable efforts to ensure that meetings are held in facilities that permit barrier-free physical access to the physically handicapped", respondent Town Board of the Town of Brookhaven, which has been conducting its meetings on the second floor in the town hall in a meeting room which is accessible only by ascending a winding staircase, is directed to conduct all of its public meetings at barrier-free facilities commencing January 1, 1978. "Reasonable efforts" can take the form of altering existing owned meeting facilities which contain barriers, moving to other available facilities or combining these options when necessary. Although the town board's efforts to alter the town hall by the construction of an elevator have been expeditious, the failure to move town board meetings to other available barrier-free facilities since September 1, 1977, the effective date of the statutes involved, requires judicial intervention particularly because there has been no showing that such movement would disrupt governmental operations in any fashion. In fact, over the years numerous meetings of the town board have been held in public school facilities. Fenton v Randolph, 92 Misc. 2d 514, 400 N.Y.S.2d 987, 1977 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2577 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1977).

16. Metal detectors at meeting entrances

Use of metal detector at entrance to public meeting of school district's board of education was not per se violation of either Fourth Amendment guarantee against unreasonable searches and seizures or CLS Pub O Art 7. Goetschius v Board of Educ., 281 A.D.2d 416, 721 N.Y.S.2d 386, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2074 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2001).

17. Recording devices, generally

Although Education Law § 1709(1) grants a local Board of Education the legal authority to adopt by-laws and rules to regulate the use of recording devices at board meetings, implicit in that statutory authorization is the general principle that such rule must be reasonable and a general prohibition of the use of tape recorders at meetings of the board is unreasonable and void on the ground that such prohibition would be contrary to public policy. Comm Pub Acc Rec OML—Ad Op 554.

A general prohibition of the use of recorders during open meetings of a town board is unreasonable and, therefore, void on the ground that such prohibition is contrary to public policy; in view of the advance in technology and the enactment of the Open Meeting Law a public body may only prohibit the use of mechanical devices, such as tape recorders or cameras, when the use of such devices would in fact detract from the deliberative process. Comm Pub Acc Rec OML—Ad Op 556.

18. —Tape recordings, generally

19. — —Battery-operated

Use of a handheld, battery operated cassette tape recorder does not detract from the deliberative process of a public meeting and therefore, a rule prohibiting the use of such devices per se woud be unreasonable and invalid. Com Pub Acc Rec OML-Ad Op 591.

Public body may prohibit use of mechanical devices, such as tape recorders, when use of such devices would in fact detract from deliberative process; however, since handheld, battery operated cassette tape recorder could not detract from deliberative process, it is not believed that rule prohibiting use of such devices would be reasonable or valid. Comm Pub Acc Rec OML-Ad Op 659.

Public body cannot restrict use of portable, battery-operated tape recorders at open meetings of such bodies. Comm Pub Acc Rec OML-Ad Op 790.

Town board may not prohibit its clerk or member of the public from using a handheld tape recorder in an inconspicuous manner at meetings of the board. Comm Pub Acc Rec OML-Ad Op 861.

20. —Video recordings, generally

Board of education's resolution prohibiting people who attended the board's public meetings from using video cameras to record the meetings was inconsistent with the purpose of New York's Open Meetings Law, N.Y. Pub. Off. Law § 100 et seq., and was overturned by the appellate court. Csorny v Shoreham-Wading River Cent. Sch. Dist., 305 A.D.2d 83, 759 N.Y.S.2d 513, 2003 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5494 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2003).

Village policy banning video recording at public meetings of village board was unreasonable and would be declared void where sole justification for policy was claim of village board members and some members of public that they did not wish to appear on television and would be distracted from business at hand by presence of cameras. Peloquin v Arsenault, 162 Misc. 2d 306, 616 N.Y.S.2d 716, 1994 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 392 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1994).

21. Other matters

Zoning board of appeals (ZBA) did not violate the Open Meetings Law where, between the close of the public hearing and the public meeting the following month at which a determination was made, the ZBA's counsel communicated individually with the ZBA's members and prepared a draft written determination, and, at the public meeting, the ZBA reviewed the proposed draft, made changes and ultimately made a determination; there was no evidence that a quorum of the ZBA's members met or consulted with its counsel outside a public meeting. Matter of Braunstein v Board of Zoning Appeals of the Town of Copake, 100 A.D.3d 1091, 952 N.Y.S.2d 857, 2012 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7185 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2012).

If members of town board met to discuss public business or continued original meeting after their official adjournment at 8:45 p.m., they failed to comply with Open Meetings Law. Comm on Open Gov't F7978.

1. In general

The Town Law is not superseded by the provisions of Article 7 of the Public Officers Law with respect to the meetings of a zoning board of appeals. Under Town Law, § 267, all meetings of a town's zoning board of appeals must be open to the public. 1977 NY Ops Atty Gen Oct 18.

Governmental subdivision may not, consistent with "gift or loan" prohibition under CLS NY Const Art VIII § 1, reimburse individual member of legislative body for litigation expenses incurred in unsuccessful lawsuit initiated by that member under Open Meetings Law, when commencement of such suit is not part of member's official duties. 2002 NY Ops Atty Gen I 2002-4.

Open Meetings Law does not require board of fire commissioners or public bodies generally to read aloud entire text of resolutions that they consider at meetings; resolutions that have been put before voters in summary form do not violate open meetings law. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-1411.

Since New York Racing Association is referred to as private corporation that does not perform "governmental functions", it appears that New York Racing Association's board of Directors would not constitute "public body" as defined by Open Mediums Law; if this is so, despite its significant relationship with government, its meetings would not be subject to Open Meetings Law. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-1416.

Although assessment board of review may deliberate in private, act of voting or taking action must occur during open meeting and be referenced in minutes. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2229.

Public bodies must conduct meetings in manner that guarantees public ability to "be fully aware of" and "listen to" deliberative process; thus, public body must situate itself and conduct its meetings in manner in which those in attendance can observe and hear proceedings, and to do otherwise would be unreasonable and fail to comply with basic requirement of Open Meetings Law. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2273.

Unless statute, act of State Legislature, authorizes public body to close meeting that would ordinarily be subject to Open Meetings Law, public body cannot restrict public access to meetings in manner inconsistent with Open Meetings Law. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2393.

Open Meetings Law was violated where approximately 55 people attended meeting of village planning board in order to hear board's consideration of urban renewal plan, members of planning board huddled around conference table talking almost inaudibly among themselves, and board was informed that persons in audience could not hear their discussion but no action was taken to remedy problem. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3218.

Vote conducted by board of education by e-mail, for purpose of giving certain employees day off at full pay without charging leave time, was inconsistent with Open Meetings Law; newly enacted provisions concerning videoconferencing clearly indicate that public bodies may validly conduct meetings only at meetings during which quorum has physically convened, or during meeting held by videoconference. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3257.

Entity has authority to adopt rules or procedures to govern its own proceedings; however, those rules or procedures must be reasonable. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3834.

4. — —Education

In some instances, although record might be withheld under Freedom of Information Law, discussion of that record might be required to be conducted in public under Open Meetings Law, and vice versa; for example, if superintendent of schools sends memorandum to board of education recommending charge in curriculum, insofar as memorandum consists of his or her advice, opinion or recommendation, it may be withheld under CLS Pub O § 87(2)(g), but when board discusses matter at meeting, there would be no basis for entry into executive session. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8323.

If board of education discussed applicant's proposal that public records distributed to board members prior to meetings be posted on bulletin board for public review in advance of meetings and/or its policy on matter, any such discussions should have occurred during open meeting since none of grounds for entry into executive session would have been applicable. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8541.

Where teacher is subject of final determination indicating that he or she engaged in misconduct, determination would be matter of public record and, therefore, it would be unreasonable to prohibit reading of that record at public meeting, including name of subject of determination. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9251.

If issue before board of education involves extent to certain records are public or should not have been disclosed, there is no basis for entry into executive session; however, if board wishes to discuss actions taken by employee is disclosing records and perhaps removal of employee, CLS Pub O § 105(1)(f) might permit entry into executive session. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9443.

Insofar as discussion at executive session at meeting of board of education involved matter leading to dismissal or removal of school district resident who helped to prepare and then prematurely disclosed draft survey to be distributed to voters on day of board elections and budget vote, there was proper basis for conducting executive session. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9499.

Board of education is public body under Open Meetings Law; further, meeting is official convening of public body for purpose of conducting public business and as such when quorum of public body, such as school board, meets for purpose of conducting public business, such gathering constitutes meeting subject to Open Meetings Law; Open Meetings Law provides that public may attend meetings of public bodies, except to extent that executive session may be convened. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-1422; Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-1423; Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-1427.

Any action taken by board of education to expand controversial pilot "heterogenous" program, which determined grouping of high school students for instructional purposes, should have occurred during open meeting, with minutes prepared to indicate nature of action taken and vote of board members. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2238.

No law requires that school board permit residents to question candidates at meeting. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2367.

If school board reaches consensus at executive session that is its final determination of matter, minutes must be prepared and school board must take action in public; in contrast, if board reaches "meeting of minds" or engages in so-called "straw vote" regarding interim step in process that is incomplete, it would not be taking final action that would require public vote or preparation of minutes. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2378.

School staff members who are prohibited from being on campus due to disciplinary reasons could not be prohibited from attending public meetings which were held on campus; while superintendent may have had authority to take certain action against disciplined staff members in his or her capacity as employee, she had no authority to prohibit any member of public, including disciplined staff member, from attending public meeting of public body. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2436.

Board of education could legally discuss name, address, description, and criminal history of paroled sex offender in open session; Sex Offender Registration Act (CLS Correc Art 6-C) includes public notification provisions, and court order prohibiting disclosure by law enforcement agencies did not apply to school district, assuming that it acquired information appropriately from public sources. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2681.

Subject of "tuition negotiations" likely would not fall within any grounds for board of education to hold executive session even if board's attorney was present, unless attorney-client privilege applied. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3324.

School board cannot take action during executive session except in situations in which action during closed session is permitted or required by statute, such as when board initiates charges against tenured person under CLS Educ § 3020-a or where action in public could identify particular student. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-4026.

5. — —Finance

The meeting at which a town board is required on or before January 20 each year to audit the accounts of its officers and employees must be made open to the public. 1979 Op St Compt File #57.

A vote to approve payment of vouchers must take place at a regular or special meeting of a town board. 1981 Op St Compt File #81-169.

List of all expenditures made from petty cash fund by county public library must be prepared, presented, and acted upon at open meeting of library board of trustees. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2196.

Discussions relating to budgetary matters, such as funding or elimination of positions or programs, cannot appropriately be discussed during executive session. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2393.

While discussion of employee's financial history can be considered in executive session, that issue must be distinguished from consideration of possible award of "cash out" package; latter pertains to matter of policy that could or would affect non-union employees in future and, therefore, executive session cannot properly be held to discuss award of cash out package. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2402.

Governing board of Brooklyn College Association improperly discussed budget for student government of College of Arts and Sciences in executive session. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3474.

6. — —Health

Meeting of county board of health to discuss proposal for review of county's clean indoor air act is "meeting" under Open Meetings Law, that should have been opened to public and preceded by notice. Committee on Open Government OML-AO-1057.

Town board's discussion of locations for residential spraying of chemicals to control black flies should have occurred during open meeting since no grounds for entry into executive session applied. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2249.

County board of health violated Open Meetings Law when it considered implementation of new smoking regulations during executive session. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2612.

7. — —Law enforcement

Village board of trustees could enter into executive session to discuss 3-year police contract only if collective bargaining negotiations involving police union were involved; if there was no union, there likely would be no basis for conducting executive session. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12324.

While discussions of police agency consolidations or mergers might involve "personnel" and/or "contract negotiations," it is doubtful that those issues can properly be discussed in executive sessions. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2608.

Committee created by county legislature to consider whether vacancies should be filled, and to offer recommendations to full legislature, did not properly hold executive session to discuss District Attorney's statement that inability to fill vacant assistant district attorney position might result in more cases being plea bargained or dismissed; while discussion pertained to persons arrested and/or in law enforcement custody, it was unlikely that issues involved, if discussed in public, would imperil public safety. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3623.

Committee created by county legislature to consider whether vacancies should be filled, and to offer recommendations to full legislature, could enter into executive session to discuss whether Sheriff's Department had sufficient personnel on duty at specific times of day; public discussion of law enforcement coverage would allow potential lawbreakers to know when Sheriff's Department might be understaffed and might enable them to tailor their illegal activities to circumvent effective law enforcement. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3623.

8. — —Zoning

Gathering during which zoning board of appeals deliberates or makes decisions is meeting subject to Open Meetings Law; further, Law requires that all meetings be convened open to public and proceeded by notice given to news media and to public by means of posting; zoning board of appeals must deliberate in public, except to extent that topic may justifiably be considered during executive session; unless one or more of these topics arises, public body, including zoning board of appeals, must deliberate in public and vote by zoning board of appeals must be taken in public. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-1418.

Proposed amendment to city charter—requiring city council to grant every individual who wished to speak at one of its meetings at least 5 minutes to do so prior to consideration of council's legislative agenda—would not conflict with Open Meetings Law, though it would go beyond what law requires. 2004 NY Ops Atty Gen I 04-9.

If public body intends to keep individuals from attending meeting by locking doors or by meeting in small room, such meeting would not be open to public and would thus violate OML; but if doors are unknowingly and unintentionally locked, or meeting room cannot accommodate unexpected number of attendees, such meeting would not be found to violate law so as to require invalidation of any action taken. Comm On Open Gov't OML-AO-1251.

There is nothing in OML that requires newspaper to print notice of meeting that it receives; thus, there is no guaranty that notice given to newspaper will be printed; as long as agency complies with notice requirements, failure on part of news media to publish notice does not constitute violation of OML. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-1291.

Members of public bodies may consult with one another individually or by phone, but may not validly conduct meetings by means of telephone conferences or make collective determinations by means of series of one-on-one conversations or telephonic communications; intent of Open Meetings Law, to provide public with right to "observe" performance of public officials in their deliberations, cannot be realized if members conduct public business or vote by phone. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2683.

Where public discussion relative to particular parcel of land could affect negotiations and, therefore, prices paid for other parcels where no final price has yet been established, insofar as publicity would "substantially" affect value of those parcels, executive session may properly be held. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-4165.

9. —Executive sessions, generally

Grounds for withholding records under Freedom of Information Law and grounds for entry into executive session under Open Meetings Law are separate and distinct, and they are not necessarily consistent. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8323.

All meetings of public bodies must be held open to public, except that executive session may convene to discuss topic or topics that fall within grounds for calling executive session; threat or mere possibility of litigation does not, without more, constitute valid basis for entry into executive session because litigation exception is to enable public body to discuss pending litigation privately, without bearing strategy to its adversary through mandatory public meeting; mere presence of attorney with municipal board did not automatically result in privileged relationship and exemption from Open Meetings Law; subject matter of discussion and nature of communication determine applicability of attorney-client relationship and existence of exemption from Open Meetings Law. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-1421.

Open Meetings Law provides that public may attend meetings of public bodies, except to extent that executive session may be convened. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-1422-1423.

Executive session is not separate and distinct from open meeting; on contrary, executive session is part of open meeting that must be convened open to public and preceded by notice given to news media and by means of posting in accordance with CLS Pub O § 104. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2257.

Public body cannot schedule or conduct executive session in advance of meeting because vote to enter into executive session must be taken at open meeting during which executive session is held. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2257.

Even when subject to be discussed can properly be considered during executive session, public body must first convene open meeting, preceded by notice of time and place given in accordance with CLS Pub O § 104; following initiation of meeting in public, when subject arises that may be discussed in executive session, procedure described in CLS Pub O § 105(1) should be carried out. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2262.

If building in which meeting is held includes room or space other than room in which executive session is being conducted, it would be inappropriate to remove public from building and lock doors; by so doing, public has no capacity to know when executive session has ended and open portion of meeting has been continued. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2268.

While Open Meetings Law authorizes public bodies to conduct executive sessions in circumstances described in CLS Pub O § 105(1)(a) through (h), there is no requirement that executive session be held even though public body has right to do so. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2278.

CLS Pub O § 105(1)(d) does not permit public body to conduct executive session due to possibility or fear of litigation. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2566.

Based on language of Open Meetings Law, public body cannot conduct executive session merely because issue may be sensitive. Discussions relating to budgetary matters, such as funding or reduction of positions, cannot appropriately be discussed during executive session. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2570.

To give effect to both Open Meetings Law and CLS Town § 30, which imposes certain responsibilities on town clerk, there are 3 options: first, town board can permit clerk to attend executive session in its entirety; second, town board can deliberate during executive session without clerk's presence, but, prior to any vote, call clerk into executive session for purpose of taking minutes in conjunction with duties imposed by town law; and third, town board can deliberate toward decision during executive session, but return to open meeting for purpose of taking action. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2583.

Permitting news media to attend executive session is equivalent of permitting public to attend, and public body cannot validly justify authorizing news media to be present at executive session while excluding all other members of public; stated differently, if public body authorizes news media to attend executive session, it effectively loses its basis for holding executive session since members of news media serve as representatives of public. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2597.

Members of new media do not have any special privilege above that of any resident in attendance to attend executive session of public body pertaining to personnel matter. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2597.

While board of education could convene executive session to interview candidates for district clerk position pursuant to "personnel" exception of Open Meetings Law, state-sponsored budget workshop attended by board members was improperly discussed later at that executive session, even if budget issues often have impact on personnel. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3271.

If board's discussion of "pay raises for elected officials including themselves" involved across-the-board increase, executive session would not be proper, but if discussion focused on individual employee or board member and whether pay increase was merited, matter related to "a particular person" and executive session could validly be held. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3537.

10. —Judicial or quasi-judicial proceedings

Certain aspects of proceedings of a zoning board of appeals may be properly characterized as "quasi-judicial". Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-867.

Probable cause determination under Education Law § 3020-a does not fall within the exemption for quasi-judicial proceedings under [former] Public Officers Law § 103(1). Comm on Open Gv't OML-AO-881.

Gathering during which zoning board of appeals deliberates or makes decisions is meeting subject to Open Meetings Law; zoning board of appeals must deliberate in public, except to extent that topic may justifiably be considered during executive session; unless one or more of these topics arises, public body, including zoning board of appeals, must deliberate in public and vote by zoning board of appeals must be taken in public. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-1418.

Even though deliberations of zoning board of appeals might be characterized as "quasi-judicial", they are no longer exempt from Open Meetings Law; moreover, deliberations of board must be conducted in public, except to extent that one or more grounds for entering in executive session might properly be asserted. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-1430.

Even though deliberations of zoning board of appeals may be characterized as quasi-judicial, they are not exempt from Open Meetings Law; moreover, deliberations of zoning board must be conducted in public, except to extent that one or more of grounds for entry into executive session may properly be asserted; assuming that there is no basis for entry into executive session, zoning board of appeals must vote in public. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-1456.

Open Meetings Law does not necessarily apply to hearing, and there is distinction between meeting and hearing. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2307.

New York State Board of Regents could properly weigh evidence taken during public hearing, apply law and reach determination regarding termination of members of board of education since proceeding was quasi-judicial in nature and, therefore, outside coverage of Open Meetings Law. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2551.

Discussions of town ethics board, regarding complaint of alleged misconduct of member of town board, could occur in executive session. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3712.

Portion of meeting of board of assessment review during which those challenging their property tax assessments are heard, as well as act of voting or taking action, must be conducted open to public, although board may deliberate in private. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-4043.

Public has the right to be present at meeting of board of assessment review under CLS RPTL § 525(2)(a), insofar as assessor is present for purpose of offering information or point of view. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-4043.

11. —Political caucuses

Meetings of a political party's district committee are not subject to the Open Meetings Law. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-888.

To extent that majority of total membership of county committee on ways and means was present for purpose of conducting public business, such gathering could not have been characterized as political caucus exempt from provisions of Open Meetings Law, but rather as "meeting" that should have been open to public. Committee on Open Government OML-AO-1061.

Either majority or minority party members of legislative body may conduct closed political caucuses, either during or separate from meetings of public body, without violating Open Meetings Law. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2310.

In general, either majority or minority party members of legislative body may conduct closed political caucuses, either during or separate from meetings of public body. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2369.

If majority of town board members meet to discuss public business and members include at least one member from each party, gathering cannot be characterized as political caucus exempt from Open Meetings Law; on contrary, due to presence of members of more than one political party, it would constitute "meeting" subject to requirements of Open Meetings Law. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2457.

Exemption concerning political caucuses applies to only to legislative body of county, i.e., county legislature; exemption does not apply to public bodies other than legislative bodies. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2461.

Due to 1985 amendment of CLS Pub O § 108(2), if used to extreme, majority members of legislative bodies may conduct closed political caucuses to discuss subjects of their choice, including matters of public business. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2600.

Four Republican members of 5-member town board could meet and/or discuss matters of public business in private on ground that their gatherings or discussions constituted political caucuses, but action could be taken by board only at meeting held in accordance with Open Meetings Law, preceded by reasonable notice given to all board members, including lone Democrat. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2749.

While political caucuses held by members of particular party were exempt from Open Meetings Law, private discussion of village business by members of party who served on village board of trustees was improper. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3217.

Either majority or minority party members of legislative body may conduct closed political caucuses during or separate from meetings of public body when discussing political party business, such as fund raising, party leadership, etc.; however, city council may not validly conduct closed political caucus to discuss matters of public business. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3254.

Gathering of Democrat member, Republican member and Independent member of 5-member town board was "meeting" that should have been held in accordance with Open Meetings Law; because they belonged to more than one political party, gathering could not be characterized as political caucus. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3328.

Democratic legislator whose re-registration as member of Republican party had not yet become effective could not be characterized as "guest" at gathering of Republican majority of county legislature, and if he attended, such gathering would not qualify as "political caucus" exempt from Open Meetings Law. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3597.

12. —Work sessions

Workshop or work session held by majority of public body is "meeting," with same responsibilities in relation to openness, notice and taking of minutes as in case of formal meeting, as well as same ability to enter into executive sessions. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3403.

Contention by bureau president that publicity could arouse unnecessary community concern and may have adverse affect on board's credibility is irrelevant to duties of public body subject to Open Meetings Law since deliberative process must be conducted openly, notwithstanding possibility of adverse effect upon body's credibility. Committee on Open Government OML-AO-1036.

If it can be assumed that only board of trustees of library system is authorized to engage law firm for library system, its action to do so can validly occur only during meeting of board held in accordance with Open Meetings Law; further, any such action must be memorialized in minutes of meeting. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2389.

President of county legislature could validly rule that members could not ask questions about, or discuss in open session, matters relating to proposed settlements referred for approval in 3 matters in litigation, if discussion would result in inappropriate or unethical disclosure of privileged information; unilateral disclosure by member of public body, made contrary to or in absence of consent by majority, could result in revelation of litigation strategy, unwarranted invasion of personal privacy, impairment of collective bargaining negotiations or interference with criminal or other investigations. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2718.

Member of town zoning board of appeals, as member of general public, could not be precluded from attending open meeting of zoning board of appeals on basis that he was precluded from participating as board member due to possibility of conflict of interest; furthermore, if matter involving board member's interest were to be considered in executive session, interested board member nevertheless would have right to attend that session. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3276.

Open Meetings Law would be implicated if board of education took action in private, either by means of actual convening or by phone or via e-mail, when it presented final redistricting plan that denoted "E-3" designation which differed materially from "E-3" designation presented to public at prior meeting. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3473.

Town of Southold Ethics Board was authorized to conduct executive sessions under Open Meetings Law, although town code did not mention its ability to do so. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3712.

Although it may be difficult and perhaps cumbersome during course of meeting to enter into executive session, return to open meeting and later enter into executive session again, should need arise, such actions may be fully appropriate and necessary to comply with Open Meetings Law. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-4165.

13. Interpreter

There is nothing in Open Meetings Law that would require public body to ensure that interpreter is present at meeting. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2535.

14. Location of meetings, generally

15. —Access for physically handicapped

Meeting of 2 city boards at the city waste water treatment plant does not satisfy Public Officers Law § 98(b) [now § 103(b)]. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-905.

CLS Public Officers Law § 103(b) does not impose obligation on public body to construct new facility or reconstruct or renovate existing facility to permit barrier-free access to physically handicapped persons; however, if public body has capacity to hold its meetings in number of locations, meetings should be held in facility that is most likely to accommodate needs of persons with handicapping conditions. Committee on Open Government OML-AO-1185.

Section 103[b] of OML imposes no obligation upon public body to construct new facility or reconstruct or renovate existing facility to permit barrier free access to physically handicapped persons. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-1291.

Open Meetings Law imposes no obligation on public body to construct new facility, or to renovate existing facility, to permit barrier-free access to physically handicapped persons; however, public body has responsibility to make "all reasonable efforts" to ensure that meetings are held in facilities that permit barrier-free access to physically handicapped persons. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2252.

If board has capacity to hold its meetings in facility that is accessible to handicapped persons, meetings should be held in location that is most likely to accommodate needs of those persons. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2447.

There is no obligation on public body to construct new facility or to renovate existing facility to permit barrier-free access to physically handicapped persons; however, public body has responsibility to make all reasonable efforts to ensure that meetings and hearings are held in facilities that permit barrier-free access to physically handicapped persons and, therefore, if public body has capacity to hold its meetings in facility that is accessible to handicapped persons, meetings should be held in location that is most likely to accommodate needs of those persons. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2575.

Public body is not obligated to construct new facility or renovate existing facility to permit barrier-free access to physically handicapped persons; however, wherever possible, meetings of public bodies should be held in rooms most likely to accommodate needs of handicapped persons. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3227.

To comply with Open Meetings Law, village board of trustees should hold its meetings in barrier-free handicapped accessible facility, not in upstairs room at village hall; suggested solution of requiring handicapped persons unable to attend meeting on second floor to call in advance, to make appropriate arrangements for special transport, would be unreasonable and would result in impediment for handicapped persons that does not exist for others. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3639.

If courtroom located on ground floor of Town Hall was available for board of assessment review proceedings, it would be unreasonable to conduct proceedings in room on second floor, which was accessible only by stairs. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3668.

Fire district bylaw which required board of fire commissioners to hold its meetings in designated room above fire house was invalid because it was more restrictive with respect to public access than Open Meetings Law, where room in question was not handicap accessible, and meetings could be held at nearby location that would permit access to those interested in attending. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3692.

Since there is nothing in the Open Meetings Law that deals specifically with the location of a meeting of a public body, the question should be dealt with from the perspective of reasonableness. If, for example, a school board sought to conduct a meeting 100 miles from the school district, the site would be unreasonable, since under those circumstances an interested member of the public likely would not have the capacity to attend, but if there is a special reason for holding a meeting close to, but outside the bounds of, the school district, such a gathering might not be unreasonable. Comm on Open Govt OML-AO 936.

While Open Meetings Law does not prohibit meetings from being held in restaurant, such meeting site might represent impediment to access to many who might otherwise want to attend. 1986 Committee on Open Government OML-AO-1304.

If it is can be anticipated in advance of meeting that larger crowd is likely to attend than usual meeting location will accommodate, and if larger facility is available, it would be reasonable and consistent with intent of Open Meetings Law to hold meeting in larger facility; conversely, assuming same facts, it would be unreasonable to hold meeting in facility that would not accommodate those interested in attending. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2359.

It would be inappropriate and inconsistent with Open Meetings Law for public body to hold meeting in restaurant where those who attend would be expected to make purchase. Board of education violated Open Meetings Law when it held building planning workshop, without notice to public, in restaurant in nearby location in Pennsylvania. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2560.

If it is known in advance of meeting that larger crowd is likely to attend than usual meeting location will accommodate, and if larger facility is available, it is reasonable and consistent with intent of Open Meetings Law to hold meeting in larger facility; conversely, assuming same facts, it is unreasonable to hold meeting in facility that will not accommodate those interested in attending. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2604.

It was inconsistent with Open Meetings Law to hold meeting at country club, because meeting held in location where those who attend must be members or are expected to purchase something represents impediment to free public access. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2695.

If it is known in advance of town board meeting that likely attendance will be larger than usual meeting location will accommodate, and if larger facility is available, board should hold meeting in larger facility. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2767.

Nothing in Open Meetings Law specifies that meetings of village board of trustees must be conducted within village boundaries; nevertheless, meeting of board of trustees, or any municipal body, must be held at location where members of public who might want to attend could reasonably do so. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3279.

If City of North Tonawanda Common Council conducted meetings in either of 2 locations and knew in advance that larger crowd than usual was likely to attend particular meeting, it would be consistent with Open Meetings Law to hold that meeting in larger facility. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3403.

Board of the Greenburgh Eleven Union Free School District could hold its meetings at BOCES facility that required all visitors to sign in, where sign-in requirement was prompted by security concerns, it was BOCES policy and not created or drafted by school board, and sign-in policy (which appeared in BOCES handbook) applied to all visitors regardless of their reasons for being there. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3527.

Board of education's alleged practice of adjourning for executive session, and then returning to public session in room other than where meeting originally convened, required board to provide notice, presumably by posting, as to location where meeting would continue after executive session or recess, especially if (by coincidence or otherwise) most members of public had left before open meeting resumed. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3589.

Court probably would not determine that time and place of meetings of Franklin County Legislature are unreasonable or constitute violation of Open Meetings Law, despite fact that county seat (Malone) is located at northern end of what is large county, roughly 47 percent of county's population lives in southern end of county, and meetings are scheduled during business hours from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m., since greater percentage apparently resides closer to Malone and thus would experience less hardship. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3912.

Holding public meeting at home of Town Board member would be unreasonable and inconsistent with intent of Open Meetings Law since, aside from issue of barrier-free access to physically handicapped persons, home is not public facility, and entry into home to attend meeting involves sense of intrusion or intimidation. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-4035.

16. Public's right to speak

If public body does not want to permit members of public to speak or otherwise participate at open meetings, it is not required to do so; on other hand, there is nothing in Open Meetings Law that limits authority of public body to permit public participation at meetings; consequently, public body may permit some public participation, presumably in accordance with reasonable rules that treat members of public equally. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4930.

A public body is not required to permit members of the public to speak or participate at hearings. However, if a public body chooses to permit public participation, it should do so based upon reasonable rules that treat all members of the public equally. Comm on Open Govt OML-AO 923.

OML does not confer right on public to speak or otherwise participate at meetings; however, public body may permit public to participate if it so chooses. Comm On Open Gov't OML-AO-1281.

When Open Meetings Law is applicable, public has right to attend and listen to deliberations of public bodies, and although public body may permit public to speak or to participate at meetings, public has no right to speak or otherwise participate at open meetings. 1986 Committee on Open Government OML-AO-1295.

Procedures of village board which authorized public participation at meetings were reasonable under Open Meetings Law where members of public were given equal opportunity to speak; public body is not obligated to answer questions or permit public to speak, or otherwise participate at its meetings, but when it permits public participation, it should do so based upon reasonable rules that treat members of public equally. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2173.

If it is clear that commentary is or would be repetitive of comments made at prior meetings, public body may reasonably preclude individuals from reiterating comments previously made; however, if individuals who have spoken previously wish to provide new or different information or commentary, and if public body permits others to do so, those individuals should be permitted to do so. Possibility that commentary may relate to eventual litigation, without more, may not serve as valid basis for prohibiting member of public from speaking, since possible litigation could be subject or result of nearly any topic discussed by public body. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2231.

Open Meetings Law is silent with respect to issue of public participation; thus, if public body does not want to answer questions or permit public to speak or otherwise participate at its meetings, it is not obliged to do so. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2309.

Although public body is not obliged to permit public to speak at its meetings, when public body chooses to authorize public participation, it should do so in accordance with reasonable rules that treat members of public equally; thus, rule that allows certain members of public to speak while prohibiting others from speaking at all is unreasonable and subject to invalidation. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2585.

When public body permits public to speak at meetings pursuant to local laws, it should do so reasonably and in manner that treats members of public equally. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2600.

If public is generally permitted to speak at meetings, public body cannot validly prohibit person from speaking because of possibility that he or she might at some point initiate litigation, as that person's comments would divulge nothing about public body's strategy in potential or eventual litigation. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2696.

Member of public who attended town board meeting was improperly prevented from asking questions about condition of road on which automobile accident involving his son had occurred, where public was given opportunity to speak and ask questions during meeting, there was no rule or policy restricting public from discussing or raising questions involving certain subject areas, and questioner was not boisterous or unruly. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3183.

Public body is not required to permit public to speak at meetings, but if it chooses to do so, it must do so in reasonable manner based on reasonable rules that treat members of public equally. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3292.

Village board of trustees may establish rules concerning conduct of persons who attend its meetings, including limiting privilege of public to speak or participate to certain times, topics and duration. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3295.

Board of Education could justifiably restrict speaker at open meeting from discussing incident in which his son was allegedly assaulted by another student (who he referred to as "Child A"), although neither board not any district officer or employee would have been involved in disclosing identity of "Child A," and FERPA, therefore, would not have been directly implicated, considering "compelling state interest" in protecting students' privacy and ensuring that speaker's comments would not render student's identity easily traceable; member of public and board of education could discuss Child A in private, not necessarily based on any ground for executive session, but rather based on CLS Pub O § 108(3), which exempts matters made confidential by law from Open Meetings Law. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3405.

Members of public who chose to speak at meetings of village board of trustees could not be compelled to identify themselves by name and address as condition of speaking in same manner as others. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3518.

Board of education could limit members of public, at its meetings, to "one turn at the microphone," so long as its practice was implemented equally and reasonably. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3589.

It would be unreasonable to authorize those with one point of view to speak at meeting or hearing for 10 minutes or perhaps without limitation, while permitting those with different view to speak for 3 minutes or not at all. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3834.

Public body is not required to permit public to speak during meetings. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-4024.

Rule of public body authorizing any person in attendance to speak for maximum prescribed time on agenda items, and those items only, would be reasonable and valid, so long as it is carried out reasonably and consistently. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-4024.

Court would determine that public body may limit amount of time allotted to person who wishes to speak at meeting, so long as limitation is reasonable. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-4044.

City Council may limit public comments to matters involving City business or operation of City government and require brief written summary of subject intended to be discussed by person wishing to address Council. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-4044.

City Council, rather than President of Council reaching determination alone, should determine whether particular subject may be raised by member of public. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-4044.

It is "unlikely" that public body could validly prohibit nonresident from speaking at public forum based on residency. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-4141.

Any member of public has equal opportunity to partake in public hearing, and effort to distinguish among attendees by residence or any other qualifier would be inconsistent with law and, therefore, unreasonable. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-4141.

17. Recording devices, generally

18. —Tape recordings, generally

Member of public may tape record open meetings of public bodies. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-1461.

Board of Education, pursuant to CLS Educ § 1709, could adopt rule prohibiting members from using tape recorders at executive sessions without consent of majority of board, as tape recording executive session could potentially defeat purpose of holding executive session. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-10368.

Possibility that video recording of open meeting might be pertinent to or used in litigation is largely irrelevant. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12186.

Executive of housing authority did not need permission to tape record meetings, although housing authority resolution indicated that authority "members, agents, and/or employees...present at the meeting and acting within the scope of their employment" needed consent to tape record meetings, where resolution permitted public to use tape recorders so long as they were "neither disruptive nor obtrusive"; agency rule giving members, agents or employees lesser rights than public is unreasonable and unsustainable. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12187.

Under Open Meetings Law, no consent is required in order to tape record any aspect of open meetings; further, public body cannot compel member of public or news media to provide copies of tape recording on request; if tape recording of open meeting has been made, owner of tape recording may do with it as he or she sees fit. Committee on Open Government OML-AO-1058.

Any person may use tape recorder at open meeting, so long as tape recording is carried out unobtrusively and in manner that does not detract from deliberative process. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2267.

Any person may use tape recorder at open meeting and member of news media may report with respect to what he or she hears or observes; although there is no requirement that permission to use tape recorder must be obtained, as matter of courtesy it would be appropriate to inform public body that meeting will be tape recorded. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2471.

There is nothing in Open Meetings Law that requires public bodies to tape record their meetings; thus, public body is not precluded from choosing to tape record some portions of meeting but not others. While public body has discretion to use or turn off its own tape recorder, it does not have authority to prohibit member of public from continuing to use his or her own tape recorder, notwithstanding person's statement that he or she has information on subject being discussed but that he or she does not want to discuss it "with the recording on." Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2542.

Member of public may tape record open meetings of public bodies, including comments of general public, so long as tape recording is carried out unobtrusively and in manner that does not detract from deliberative process. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2547.

19. —Video recordings, generally

20. — —Tripod-supported

Regulation for use of video cameras at town board meetings conflicted with Open Meetings Law where it stated that camera must be situated on stationary tripod, that it must be turned on before beginning of meeting, and that camera operator must "then be seated with audience until meeting is adjourned or a recess is called," in absence of any reason why camera operator could not be permitted to sit next to or near camera equipment. Regulation for use of video cameras at town board meetings also conflicted with Open Meetings Law where it provided that "camera cannot be hand-operated or moved at any time during a meeting," since small movement of camera situated on stationary tripod (for example to focus on person at one end of table who is speaking and then to person speaking at other end of table) might be non-disruptive and no more distracting than flipping over sheet of paper on notepad by person taking notes, or changing cassette on audio tape recorder. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2197.

Proposed board of education policy enabling any person present at open meeting to ask that use of video equipment be discontinued, and authorizing board president to grant such request unless overruled by majority of board, would not pass legal muster where basis for denying use of video recording devices was that videotapes might be intended to be used as "political mechanism" which would cause divisiveness in school district, and that videotaping was "inherently more obtrusive" and "inherently more likely to detract from the deliberative process" than audio recording. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12,353.

Rule prohibiting use of cameras and video tape equipment during public meetings would be reasonable if use of cameras, special lighting, and related equipment would clearly be disruptive to deliberative process; also, if person is or may be compelled to testify before court or during hearing conducted by agency, video taping would be prohibited by CLS Civ R L § 52. Committee on Open Government OML-AO-1062.

Resolution of town board, concerning audio-visual coverage of board meetings, conflicted with Open Meetings Law where it prohibited "zoom" or "tight recording" of persons in attendance at open meetings, and prohibited "light or signal visible or audible to participants...to indicate whether [video equipment] was operating," without regard to whether such recording could be accomplished in non-disruptive manner. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2193.

Regulation for use of video cameras at town board meetings, permitting only one camera in meeting room, conflicted with Open Meetings Law if it was possible to permit use of more than one camera in non-disruptive manner. Regulation giving preference to news media for video taping town board meetings conflicted with Open Meetings Law, although CLS Jud § 218 concerning use of cameras in courts authorizes their use only by members of news media, since members of news have no special right or rights in excess of those conferred upon public under Open Meetings Law. And, regulation requiring that persons using video cameras at town board meetings be present and record meeting in its entirety (only exception being executive sessions) was unreasonable under Open Meetings Law; people who attend meetings with pen and paper are not required to take notes throughout entire meeting, but may take notes based on what they consider important or interesting to them, and people using video cameras should have same discretion. Further, regulation for use of video cameras at town board meetings conflicted with Open Meetings Law where it stated that "if individuals wishes [sic] to address Board without video being used, his/her wishes will be honored"; if a person opts to speak at open meeting, there is no valid basis for prohibiting public from audio or video taping that person's remarks. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2197.

Unless use of video camera is disruptive, planning board (or any public body) may not prohibit its use at open meeting; if it is known in advance that use of recording equipment will be prohibited, person seeking to use such equipment may seek injunction. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3192.

It might be reasonable in village or other space-restricted setting to restrict number of camcorders to one, while such requirement might be viewed as unreasonable in large county legislative chamber or where local board of education is conducting meeting in school auditorium. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-4044.

Court's analysis, that those portions of video recording which reflect inter-agency communications between Empire State Development Corporation, New York City Mayor and Governor which are not statistical or factual information or data, would be inconsistent with finding that jury's meetings (regarding selection of plan for memorial at World Trade Center site) are subject to Open Meetings Law; if press and public should have been permitted to attend meeting of jury (assuming quorum was present), there would be no ground for denying access to videotape recording in its entirety. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-4200.

Exchange between jury charged with selecting plan for memorial at World Trade Center site and former New York City Mayor could not properly be characterized as "inter-agency" in nature so as to deny access to video recording of exchange, since former mayor was not public officer or employee during such exchange and therefore would not have been officer or employee of agency. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-4200.

Any person may tape or video record open meeting of public body, so long as use of recording device is not disruptive or obtrusive. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12405.

Member of public may tape record open meetings of public bodies, so long as tape recording is carried out unobtrusively in manner that does not detract from deliberative process, and same principles would apply to video equipment, such that if video equipment can be used without special lighting, in stationary location in an unobtrusive manner, prohibition against video recording of meetings of public bodies would be unreasonable. 1986 Committee on Open Government OML-AO-1317.

Member of public may make audio or visual tape recording of open meetings of public bodies so long as recording is carried out unobtrusively and in manner that does not detract from deliberative process; furthermore, members of public, as well as public officials, may be recorded. Resolution of town board, concerning audio-visual coverage of board meetings, conflicted with Open Meetings Law where it provided that violations "shall result in the forfeiture of the right for any future audio-visual coverage"; regulation may not validly preclude person, who has once attempted to use equipment that is disruptive, from using altered or different equipment that is non-disruptive in future. Resolution of town board also conflicted with Open Meetings Law where it precluded audio or video "pickup" of "conferences" between or among board members or other elected or appointed officials at open meetings; if there is no basis for conducting executive session, or if no exemption is claimed, public has right to listen, hear and observe all that is said during open meeting. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2193.

Comments of members of public, as well as public officials, may be recorded at open meeting. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2267.

Open Meetings Law does not address use of recording, broadcasting and video equipment in non-disruptive manner at open meetings. Rule prohibiting use of unobtrusive recording devices would not be reasonable if presence of such devices would not detract from deliberative process. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2283.

Requirement that any person wishing to record public meeting of village board of trustees, or any other village board, or any portion of such meeting, must inform village clerk prior to commencement of meeting, so as to enable village clerk to inform those in attendance of fact that meeting is to be recorded did not violate Open Meetings Law since it did not diminish privilege of using recording device at meeting. Requirement that any recording device, once activated, should remain activated at least until such time as all discussion concerning particular agenda item was complete, so as to capture full discussion thereof, violated Open Meetings Law. Public body may not restrict number of recording devices used by members of public during meetings. If member of public records meeting, recording is property of that individual; public body cannot require that individual who records meeting provide copy to any other person. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2521.

City council which has televised its meetings on public access channel may subsequently decide to cease doing so; however, any person may audio tape record or video record open meetings of public bodies, so long as use of recording devices is not disruptive or obtrusive. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3122.

Member of public may tape record open meetings of public bodies, so long as tape recording is carried out unobtrusively and in manner that does not detract from deliberative process; such rule would also apply to video recording. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3749.

Blanket prohibition of audio recording is not permissible, and it is likely that appellate courts would find that also to be case with blanket prohibitions of video recording. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-4044.

21. Time of meetings

If planning board purposely waits until past midnight to conduct its business or take action, when most persons interested in attending cannot reasonably do so, it is acting in manner inconsistent with Open Meetings Law. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3173.

Procedure apparently used by Mohawk Central School District Board of Education whereby notice given prior to meeting indicated that meeting would begin at 7:45 p.m., but board met at non-publicly advertised time of 7 p.m. and immediately entered into executive session, was inconsistent with Open Meetings Law; alternative method of achieving desired result of notifying public that it was not necessary to arrive at scheduled meeting time in order to be present when public business actually began would be to indicate, on agenda or notice of meeting, that meeting would commence at 7 p.m. (for example) and first item would be voting on motion to enter into executive session to discuss certain subjects. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3510.

Court probably would not determine that time and place of meetings of Franklin County Legislature are unreasonable or constitute violation of Open Meetings Law, despite fact that county seat (Malone) is located at northern end of what is large county, roughly 47 percent of county's population lives in southern end of county, and meetings are scheduled during business hours from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m., since greater percentage apparently resides closer to Malone and thus would experience less hardship. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3912.

22. Other matters

Majority members of board may convene privately without notifying minority members of their gathering, but vote may not be taken during any gathering held without reasonable notice to all members. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-1394; Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4610.

If one person defends or praises board member or employee during open meeting, there cannot be valid restriction on comments (whether neutral, positive or negative) regarding same or other board members or employees. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12085.

Members of public bodies may consult with one another individually or by phone, but may not validly conduct meetings by means of telephone conferences, or make collective determinations by means of series of "one on one" conversations or by means of telephonic communications. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2240.

Board must situate itself and conduct its meetings in manner in which those in attendance can observe and hear proceedings; to do otherwise would be unreasonable and fail to comply with basic requirement of Open Meetings Law; however, if meeting room is large, members of public body should situate themselves in locations close enough to proceedings to hear what is said. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2352.

If sound system has been installed in room in which meeting is to be held and if its use would guarantee that those present could indeed hear what is said at meetings, it should be used in order to comply with Open Meetings Law. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2379.

Open Meetings Law did not allow decisional meeting of Public Service Commission in Albany under circumstances in which 4 commission members were present in Albany, but one member of commission desires to participate in discussion and vote on matters considered at meeting by means of 2-way telephone link from New York City, despite fact that site from which commission sought to participate was open to public and that any discussion or vote could be heard by means of speakerphone hook-up by all persons present at both locations; Commissioner who sought to participate by phone could not validly vote or be counted for purposes of quorum. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2480.

While members of public have right to attend meetings of public bodies, public bodies do not have right to require that those in attendance remain at meeting for entirety of discussion of agenda item or meeting. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2521.

With respect to ability to hear what is said at meetings, public bodies must conduct meetings in manner that guarantees public ability to "be fully aware of" and "listen to" deliberative process. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2575.

Public body cannot validly require that those who seek to attend meetings identify themselves by name, residence or interest because any member of public has equal opportunity to partake in open meeting, and effort to distinguish among attendees by residence or other qualifier is inconsistent with Open Meetings Law and, therefore, unreasonable. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2717.

Under CLS Vill § 4-412(2), village board of trustees may determine rules of its procedure, and there is no obligation to follow Robert's Rules, which are unnecessarily complex and confusing and may, in some instances, be contrary to law. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3205.

Reference materials pertaining to budgets, reserves and fund balances distributed to members of board of education at state-sponsored conference, which were reviewed in closed meeting of board, should have been made accessible for review in their entirety; board improperly discussed budget matters in executive session, and Freedom of Information Law exception pertaining to communications between or among state or local government officials did not apply. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3271.

Since public body may choose to conduct executive session or discuss particular issue in public, information expressed during executive session is not "exempted from disclosure by...statute" under CLS Pub O § 87(2)(a), which requires that statute must prohibit disclosure and leave no discretion to agency or official regarding ability to disclose. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3282.

While nothing in Open Meetings Law prohibits legal counsel from advising member of board of education not to speak at open meetings, to refrain from speaking would appear to conflict with board member's basic duties to express points of view, to exchange ideas, and to engage in deliberative process. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3292.

While board of education is not specifically obligated to provide public address system, it must conduct meetings in manner that guarantees public ability to be "fully aware of" and "listen to" deliberative process. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3292.

If city planning commission made e-mail communications via listserve or other means through which members of commission and members of public, received them at different times, and there was no instantaneous or simultaneous communication, that circumstance would be equivalent to transmission of inter-office memoranda, and Open Meetings Law would not be implicated. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3447.

Under CLS RPTL § 525(2)(a), assessor's remarks concerning complaints made to town board of assessment review could be made only in open sessions; thus, insofar as assessor was present for purpose of offering information or point of view, public was entitled to be present. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3668.

Public body, such as planning board, may validly conduct meeting or carry out its authority only at meeting during which majority of its members has physically convened or during which majority has convened by means of videoconferencing, and even then, only when reasonable notice is given to all members. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3732.

There is nothing in the Open Meetings Law that would preclude members of public body from conferring individually, by telephone, via mail or e-mail; however, series of communications between individual members or telephone calls among members which results in collective decision, meeting held by means of telephone conference or series of telephone calls, or vote taken by mail or e-mail would be inconsistent with law. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3732.

Meeting, i.e., "convening" of public body, involves physical coming together of at least majority of total membership of such body, i.e., Planning Board, or convening that occurs through videoconferencing. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3732.

Amendments to Open Meetings Law clearly indicate that there are only 2 ways in which public body may validly conduct meeting; any other means of conducting meeting, i.e., by telephone, by mail, or by e-mail, would be inconsistent with law. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3732.

Public body may not take action or vote by means of members signing letter at different times. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3899.

Holding "eMeeting" in chat room, even with public notice, would be inconsistent with Open Meetings Law. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3928.

Person cannot be required to provide his or her identity or address as condition precedent to attending or participating in same manner as other members of public, since any person may attend meeting of public body, irrespective of his or her status, interest, or residence. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-4002.

There may be valid, justifiable reasons for speakers not identifying themselves or having their names and/or addresses included in minutes of meetings, since it may be inappropriate or even dangerous for speaker to identify himself or herself. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-4002.

Public body may not take action or vote by means of series of telephone calls or, for example, by e-mail. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-4113.

School board's collective determination—based on telephone calls from school superintendent in which he apparently solicited responses from school board members concerning salary range offered for new position—as to what salary range should be, should have occurred during open meeting held in accordance with provisions of Open Meetings Law; because decision to offer certain salary range was made, such action should be memorialized in minutes. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-4113.

§ 104. Public notice

1. Public notice of the time and place of a meeting scheduled at least one week prior thereto shall be given or electronically transmitted to the news media and shall be conspicuously posted in one or more designated public locations at least seventy-two hours before such meeting.

2. Public notice of the time and place of every other meeting shall be given or electronically transmitted, to the extent practicable, to the news media and shall be conspicuously posted in one or more designated public locations at a reasonable time prior thereto.

3. The public notice provided for by this section shall not be construed to require publication as a legal notice.

4. If videoconferencing is used to conduct a meeting, the public notice for the meeting shall inform the public that videoconferencing will be used, identify the locations for the meeting, and state that the public has the right to attend the meeting at any of the locations.

5. If a meeting will be streamed live over the internet, the public notice for the meeting shall inform the public of the internet address of the website streaming such meeting.

6. When a public body has the ability to do so, notice of the time and place of a meeting given in accordance with subdivision one or two of this section, shall also be conspicuously posted on the public body's internet website.

Court would dismiss Article 78 proceeding brought by police officer to invalidate his removal from payroll on ground that such action occurred at meeting of town police commission for which appropriate notice was not given as required by CLS Pub O § 104, since officer's disability retirement had been approved by State Comptroller, and town's subsequent action in removing officer from payroll was merely ministerial, non-discretionary function that did not require notice to or involvement of retired officer. Rockland County Patrolmen's Benevolent Ass'n v Collins, 175 Misc. 2d 246, 667 N.Y.S.2d 1003, 1997 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 636 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1997).

2. Adequacy of notice in particular cases, generally

Actions of state agencies in approving settlement agreement between governor, agencies and private utility regarding executing and approving agreement to transfer nuclear power plant from utility to state were not invalid on grounds that public notice requirements of Open Meetings Law were not satisfied where respective agencies properly posted public notices and made timely press releases to appropriate newspapers. Citizens for an Orderly Energy Policy, Inc. v Cuomo, 159 A.D.2d 141, 559 N.Y.S.2d 381, 1990 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8392 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1990), aff'd, 78 N.Y.2d 398, 576 N.Y.S.2d 185, 582 N.E.2d 568, 1991 N.Y. LEXIS 4795 (N.Y. 1991).

Requirement that notice of meeting of town board be given to media was satisfied where date of such meeting was decided at previous town board meeting, and newspaper reporter attended meeting at which such decision was made; CLS Pub O § 104 does not specify type of media notice required. Actions taken at town board meeting would not be invalidated on basis of improper public notice as required by CLS Pub O § 104 requiring posting of public notice in designated public location at least 72 hours before meeting, where evidence indicated that notice of meeting was posted on town bulletin board but failed to indicate how long before meeting such notice was posted, since court found that any impropriety in notice was unintentional, and parties relying on impropriety of notice failed to demonstrate any prejudice therefrom. Woodstock v Goodson-Todman Enterprises, Ltd., 133 Misc. 2d 12, 505 N.Y.S.2d 540, 1986 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2959 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1986).

There was no violation under N.Y. Pub. Off. Law § 107(1) of the Open Meeting Law, N.Y. Pub. Off. Law § 100 et seq., where notice pursuant to N.Y. Pub. Off Law § 104(1) and (2) was published as to the time, place, and subject of a meeting to discuss a developer's proposal for an area of the city, everyone who wanted to speak at the meeting had a chance to do so, and there was no indication that the city commission that held the meeting intentionally or knowingly discouraged anyone from attending. Matter of Windsor Owners Corp. v City Council of City of N.Y., 878 N.Y.S.2d 545, 23 Misc. 3d 490, 241 N.Y.L.J. 14, 2009 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 88 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 2009).

Trial court properly rejected appellants' challenges under the Open Meetings Law; appellants were not aggrieved by any insufficiency in the notice of the meeting of the planning board held on November 12, 2008, or inaccessibility of the meeting to those with disabilities. In any event, the notice conformed to statutory requirements. Matter of Thorne v Village of Millbrook Planning Bd., 83 A.D.3d 723, 920 N.Y.S.2d 369, 2011 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2836 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't), app. denied, 17 N.Y.3d 711, 930 N.Y.S.2d 556, 954 N.E.2d 1182, 2011 N.Y. LEXIS 2949 (N.Y. 2011).

A procedure for a town meeting which involved giving of notice of a public hearing on a budget proposal which included notice of a hearing on contract between the town and two fire companies, at which no public comment was sought concerning the fire district contract, and upon the closing of which the Town Supervisor called a meeting of the Town Board at which the budget was adopted and an unnoticed resolution passed, is improper since, under the circumstances, it appears that the notice for gathering for the public hearing did not indicate that a meeting would be held for the purpose of conducting regular town business and therefore is inadequate under Public Officers Law § 99 [now § 104]. Comm Pub Acc Rec OML–Ad Op 567.

Activities of a Board of Education in discussing a reduction of size of its Committee on the Handicapped and the appointment of specific individuals to serve on that Committee during an executive session, conducted prior to rather than during an open meeting, violated the Open Meetings Law since, inter alia, open meetings may only be conducted upon notice to the public and to the news media. Comm Pub Acc Rec OML–Ad Op 570.

A mayor's community development task force is a public body within the meaning of Public Officers Law § 97(2) [now § 102(2)], and therefore the task force violated Public Officers Law § 99 [now § 104] by failing to give advanced notice of its meeting to at least 2 members of the news media and to the public by means of posting in a conspicuous public location. Comm Pub Acc Rec OML–Ad Op 590.

3. —Meetings not scheduled 1 week in advance

Special Term's annulment of a decision by the State Commission of Corrections, on the ground that the failure of the Commission to give at least one week's public notice of the meeting at which the decision was taken violated the notice requirements of the Open Meetings Law, Pub O § 104(1), would be reversed where the uncontested proof was that the September 30 meeting was not scheduled until September 27, and that the requisite public notice was given almost immediately thereafter, and hence met the alternative statutory notice requirement of Pub O § 104(2). Bowen v State Com. of Correction, 104 A.D.2d 238, 484 N.Y.S.2d 210, 1984 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 20623 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1984).

Trustees of union free school district violated notice provisions of CLS Pub O § 104 when, despite lack of urgency, they scheduled executive session on same day as meeting itself, they provided no notice to news media, and the only notice was posted on district office's bulletin board. Previdi v Hirsch, 138 Misc. 2d 436, 524 N.Y.S.2d 643, 1988 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 340 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1988).

4. Adjournment, continuance or the like, generally

If members of town board met to discuss public business or continued original meeting after their official adjournment at 8:45 p.m., they failed to comply with Open Meetings Law. Comm on Open Gov't F7978.

5. —Cancellation of meeting

The trial court did not abuse its discretion in invalidating all action taken at a meeting of the board of education of a school district where the school district failed to present a satisfactory explanation for their last-minute call of the meeting and for the patent inadequacy of the notice which consisted only of a typewritten announcement posted on a bulletin board. White v Battaglia, 79 A.D.2d 880, 434 N.Y.S.2d 537, 1980 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 14302 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1980).

Although notice provisions of Open Meetings Law contain no requirements respecting cancellation of meetings it is reasonable to give 72 hours notice of cancellation. Comm Pub Acc Rec OML-Ad Op 765.

6. Content of notice, generally

Open Meetings Law requires only that notice of time and place of meeting be given to public. Comm Pub Acc Rec OML-Ad Op 830.

Notice given with respect to meetings of town board need not include indication of topics to be discussed. Comm Pub Acc Rec OML-Ad Op 832.

7. —Agenda not required

Trial court's annulment of the determinations of a county and a comptroller reducing a retiree's salary for purposes of his retirement severance was proper because a board of trustees had been authorized by N.Y. Educ. Law § 6306(2) and N.Y. Comp. Codes R. & Regs. tit. 8, § 604.2(a) to vote to raise the retiree's salary pursuant to his employment contract, and contradictory local laws did not supersede state law or regulations; there was no support for the claim that the meeting was not properly noticed as to time and place and there was no statutory requirement that notice of the agenda of the meeting be given. The contention that the vote was unauthorized because verbatim minutes of the meeting were not taken was unavailing as N.Y. Pub. Off. Law § 106 merely required that a record or summary of the action at a meeting be taken, and the record disclosed that a summary of the action was taken. Matter of LaLima v County of Suffolk, 45 A.D.3d 845, 847 N.Y.S.2d 208, 2007 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12137 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2007).

8. Effect of inadequate notice

In a proceeding challenging the reapportionment of a county legislature, meetings at which members of the majority political party discussed a reapportionment plan did not violate Pub O Law § 98(a) [now § 103(a)] where, although they were closed sessions, no legislative quorum was present at any of the meetings; although a technical violation occurred at one of the meetings because no public notice was "conspicuously" posted as required by Pub O Law § 99 [now § 104], the trial court was not justified in voiding all the actions resulting from the meeting where the press was in fact notified of the meeting and attended it and where the resolution of the meeting merely called for a public hearing. Britt v County of Niagara, 82 A.D.2d 65, 440 N.Y.S.2d 790, 1981 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10944 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1981).

Board of education violated Open Meetings Law by failing to provide public notice of special meeting at reasonable time prior thereto, and its resolution authorizing payment of retirement incentive to reimburse employee for unused accrued sick leave, which was adopted in executive session held at that meeting, was therefore void. Rampello v East Irondequoit Cent. Sch. Dist., 236 A.D.2d 797, 653 N.Y.S.2d 469, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1719 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1997).

Despite violation of notice requirements of Open Meetings Law, action taken by Town Board remains effective unless a court renders a determination to the contrary in resolving a suit brought by an aggrieved person under Pub O § 102 [now § 107]. Comm Pub Acc Rec OML–Ad Op 567.

Record supported a finding that a zoning board of appeals violated the Open Meetings Law with regard to a workshop by failing to give proper notice, but plaintiffs failed to establish good cause to annul the determination on that ground, as the improperly noticed meeting was open to the public and the determination at issue was adopted at a publicized, public meeting after a series of public meetings with regard thereto had previously been held. Thus, the trial court should not have annulled the determination on that ground and should not have awarded plaintiffs costs and attorneys' fees based on that violation. Chestnut Ridge Assoc., LLC v 30 Sephar Lane, Inc., 169 A.D.3d 995, 94 N.Y.S.3d 596, 2019 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1414 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2019).

9. Posting in public location

Because a town complied with N.Y. Pub. Off. Law § 104 by posting notice of a meeting and followed the appropriate procedure in the State Environmental Quality Review Act and N.Y. Town Law § 261-b(3)(d), and because its mitigation measures had a rational basis in the record, a preservation association was not entitled to N.Y. C.P.L.R. art. 78 relief. Finger Lakes Preserv. Assn. v Town Bd. of Italy, 887 N.Y.S.2d 499, 25 Misc. 3d 1115, 2009 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2760 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 2009).

A village board may, in its discretion, sell real property at public auction or through negotiated sale and invoke whatever notice requirements it deems appropriate. 1981 NY Ops Atty Gen March 10 (informal).

It is unreasonable for a school board not to give notice of its meetings to a newspaper of general circulation which receives and regularly publishes publicity from the school and attends school board meetings after the newspaper has asked for such notification. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-906.

Every meeting of public body must be preceded by notice of time and place of meeting, regardless of whether meetings are considered formal or otherwise. Committee on Open Government OML-AO-1036.

If public body seeks to hold meeting as well as public hearing, in addition to legal notice of public hearing, public body should give notice as required by Open Meetings Law. Committee on Open Government OML-AO-1106.

City housing authority must post notice prior to all of its meetings; thus, amendment to by-laws of board providing that regular meetings of authority shall be held at particular time and at particular place unless otherwise provided by authority, is inconsistent with CLS Pub O § 104. Committee on Open Government OML-AO-1128.

Public body may invite persons with relevant special knowledge or expertise into executive sessions without violating Open Meetings Law; however, arbitrary invitation to attend executive session to those without expertise or whose presence may be irrelevant to discussion would be unreasonable and inconsistent with law. 1986 Committee on Open Government OML-AO-1320.

So-called "work sessions" held by city council are "meetings", and must be preceded by notice given in accordance with Open Meetings Law. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-1357.

Public body may carry out its powers and duties only at meeting held upon reasonable notice to all members. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-1433.

All meetings must be preceded by notice given in accordance with Open Meetings Law and conducted open to public, unless and until executive session may be held to discuss one or more topics described in Law. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-1438,1444,1450.

Notice must be given prior to meeting of public body even if entire substance of meeting may be conducted in executive session. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2211.

Public body has capacity to carry out its duties only during duly convened meetings that are preceded by reasonable notice given to all members. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2256.

If 2 public bodies intend to meet jointly, both are required to comply with Open Meetings Law and provide required notice. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2280.

Choosing not to provide notice as required by Open Meetings Law due to possibility that executive session might be held is inappropriate. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2427.

If majority of public body is invited to conduct public business, and gathering is not political caucus exempt from Open Meetings Law, it is not reasonable, in view of overall intent of Open Meetings Law, not to provide notice to public and news media or to all of members. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2489.

Board of education violated Open Meetings Law when it held building planning workshop, without notice to public, in restaurant in nearby location in Pennsylvania. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2560.

If majority of public body gathers to discuss public business, any such gathering ordinarily constitutes meeting subject to Open Meetings Law; however, in order to constitute valid meeting, all of members of public body must be given reasonable notice of meeting. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2601.

If town board intends to convene to discuss agenda or other matters of public business before its regularly scheduled meeting, notice must be given indicating time and place of that gathering. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3132.

When public body or board gathers solely to consider matters exempt from Open Meetings Law, meeting need not be preceded by notice and there is no obligation to follow procedures applicable for entry into executive session. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3506.

Inasmuch as use of e-mail to transmit information has become commonplace and is widely accepted, notice of meetings of public bodies may validly be accomplished by e-mail. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3670.

If issue before board of ethics involves particular person in conjunction with one or more of subjects listed in CLS Pub O § 105(1)(f), executive session could appropriately be held. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3712.

Ethics board or committee has same obligations as governing body, such as town board, regarding openness and provision of notice of meetings. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3712.

Public body, such as planning board, may validly conduct meeting or carry out its authority only at meeting during which majority of its members has physically convened or during which majority has convened by means of videoconferencing, and even then, only when reasonable notice is given to all members. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3732.

If notice requirement of CLS Gen Const § 41 does not occur, even if majority is present, valid meeting could not be held or action could not validly be taken. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3732.

When committee is subject to Open Meetings Law, it has same obligations regarding notice, openness, and taking of minutes, for example, as well as same authority to conduct executive sessions, as governing body. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3740.

"Hearings" are often required to be preceded by publication of legal notice while, in contrast, CLS Pub O § 104(3) of Open Meetings Law specifies that notice of "meeting" must merely be "given" to news media and posted; further, there is no requirement that newspaper, for example, publish notice given regarding meeting to be held under Open Meetings Law. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3834.

There is nothing in Open Meetings Law that specifies who must provide notice of meetings or prepare minutes. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3841.

Notice requirements set forth in CLS Pub O § 104 would apply to both "locations" of village meeting: urban county in which many residents live, and isolated village in which such residents maintain seasonal homes. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-4180.

Notice must be provided prior to all meetings, regardless of whether meetings are considered formal or otherwise. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-1394,4610.

2. Adequacy of notice in particular cases, generally

3. —Meetings not scheduled 1 week in advance

A resolution passed at a special town board meeting held without two days' written notice is not invalid if all of the town board members have actual notice of the meeting, attend it and participate therein. 1980 NY Ops Atty Gen April 14 (informal).

If meeting of body is scheduled at least week in advance, notice of name and place must be given to news media and to public by means of posting in one or more designated public locations, not less than 72 hours prior to meeting; however, if there is a need to convene board quickly due to "emergency", notice requirements can be met by telephoning local news media and by posting in one or more designated locations. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4815.

Every meeting of public body must be preceded by notice of time and place of meeting; meetings must be scheduled at least one week in advance and notice must be given to news media and the public by means of posting in one or more designated, conspicuous public locations; however, when meetings are scheduled less than one week in advance notice must be given to news media and public by means of posting to the extent practicable at reasonable time prior to such meetings. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-1445.

Where meetings are scheduled less than a week in advance, requirement notice must be given to news media and to public to extent practicable at reasonable time prior to such meetings; as such, if meeting must be convened quickly, public body should inform news media of time and place of meeting by phone, and post notice. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-1460.

Propriety of scheduling meeting less than one week in advance is dependent upon actual need to do so. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2186.

Absent emergency or urgency, it may be unreasonable to conduct meetings on short notice, unless there is some necessity to do so. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2389.

If single notice of meeting was posted in isolated area of school building on Friday concerning meeting to be held on Monday, and if building was closed to public during weekend, board of education failed to comply with Open Meetings Law. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2496.

Agenda was sufficiently specific in listing subjects to be considered by town board in executive session where such subjects were identified as "real estate," "contracts," "litigation" and "negotiations." Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12,339.

If meeting is scheduled at least week in advance, notice of time and place must be given to news media and to public by means of posting in one or more designated public locations, not less than 72 hours prior to meeting; if meeting is scheduled less than week advance, notice of time and place must be given to news media and posted in same manner as described above, "to extent practicable," at reasonable time prior to meeting; therefore, if there is need to convene quickly, notice requirements can generally be met by telephoning local news media and by posting notice in one or more designated locations. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2256.

If series of meetings have been scheduled in advance to be held at particular times, posting of notice of schedule of those meetings and transmittal of that notice to news media satisfies CLS Pub O § 104 regarding those meetings; only instance in which additional notice would be required would involve unscheduled meetings that are not referenced in notice. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2278.

Where no notice was given indicating change in location of meeting, board failed to comply with CLS Pub O § 104; moreover, even if notice was given on day of meeting, but there was no basis for changing location, it is questionable whether changing site was reasonable or, therefore, reflective of compliance with Open Meetings Law. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2289.

Merely posting single notice would fail to comply with Open Meetings Law since law specifies that notice be posted and given to news media. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2381.

Although Open Meetings Law does not specify which news media outlet or outlets should receive notice, that law, like any other, should be implemented in manner that gives reasonable effect to its intent; thus, notice given to weekly newspaper might not, due to time of publication, serve to enable that newspaper to inform public of meeting. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2449.

Open Meetings Law does not specify which news media must receive notice; public body may comply with Open Meetings Law by providing notice to local radio station in accordance with CLS Pub O § 104. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2458.

If school superintendent "sent" notice to news media, by fax machine or by delivery reasonable time prior to meeting, notice to news media might satisfactorily have been accomplished; however, if notice were "sent" in some other way that did not provide time and place of meeting to news media at reasonable time prior to meeting, that aspect of Open Meetings Law might not have been adequately carried out. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2474.

So long as notice of meeting is given to at least one news media organization prior to meeting, public body acts in compliance with requirement that notice be given to news media. If notice of village board meeting is posted and given to newspaper that has significant circulation in village or to radio station situated in or near village, board is in compliance with Open Meetings Law. If newspaper has significant circulation in municipality, it might be considered to be unreasonable to avoid providing notice to that newspaper. Providing notice to single weekly newspaper, which would not again publish until meeting at issue, and failing to post notice at all, was inconsistent with requirements of Open Meetings Law. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2513.

Absent emergency or urgency, it is unreasonable to conduct meetings on short notice—i.e., less than one week—unless there is some necessity to do so. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2567.

So long as notice of meeting is given to at least one news media organization prior to meeting, public body acts in compliance with requirement that notice be given to news media. Open Meetings Law does not require that notice of meetings be given to particular newspaper; if newspaper has significant circulation in municipality, it is reasonable to provide notice to that newspaper. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2585.

Merely posting one notice would not comply with Open Meetings Law, which requires that notice be given to news media and posted prior to meetings; it would be unreasonable to conduct meeting on short notice absent showing of necessity to do so. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3248.

Procedure apparently used by Mohawk Central School District Board of Education whereby notice given prior to meeting indicated that meeting would begin at 7:45 p.m., but board met at non-publicly advertised time of 7 p.m. and immediately entered into executive session, was inconsistent with Open Meetings Law; alternative method of achieving desired result of notifying public that it was not necessary to arrive at scheduled meeting time in order to be present when public business actually began would be to indicate, on agenda or notice of meeting, that meeting would commence at 7 p.m. (for example) and first item would be voting on motion to enter into executive session to discuss certain subjects. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3510.

If entity subject to Open Meetings Law conducts meeting at office of former board member and office is located in large building with many other offices, notice must provide sufficient detail for those interested in attending to locate area of building where meeting will be held (for example, floor or room number, or company name), and it might also be reasonable to conspicuously post notice and details of meeting location in lobby of building in question. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3593.

If series of meetings have been scheduled in advance to be held at particular times, posting of notice of schedule of those meetings in conspicuous public location and transmittal of that notice once to news media would satisfy CLS Pub O § 104 regarding those meetings; sole instances in which additional notice would be required would involve unscheduled meetings that are not referenced in notice. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3812.

4. Adjournment, continuance or the like, generally

5. —Cancellation of meeting

When notice of meeting has been posted in one or more locations as required by CLS Pub O § 104, it would be appropriate to post notice of cancellation at same locations. When notice of upcoming meeting is given to members of news media, they should also be informed of its cancellation; in some instances, it may be appropriate to contact additional news media; for instance, even though notice might have been given prior to meeting to newspaper, radio station may be able to inform public more quickly that meeting has been canceled. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2420.

Where meeting held on May 30 was "recessed" to June 20, second gathering constituted new meeting which should have been preceded by notice under CLS Pub O § 104, and minutes of May 30 meeting were required to be prepared and disclosed on request within 2 weeks of May 30. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12288.

No subsequent public notice is required when a village board of trustees continues a meeting from one day to the next because of inability to resolve all issues regarding its budget. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-884.

If a meeting is adjourned on one date and other meetings are scheduled to continue discussions of issues considered at an earlier meeting, each successive meeting is subject to notice requirements of the Open Meetings Law. Comm on Open Govt OML-AO 932.

If regular board meeting is adjourned to next day, requirements of posting meeting notices and notifying public must again be met, since adjournment signifies end of meeting. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2219.

Town planning board violated Open Meetings Law when it conducted adjourned regularly scheduled and properly noticed meeting, went to another location to inspect site at issue, and conducted vote on site without prior written notification of time and place of vote; board should have voted at meeting held in accordance with Open Meetings Law after its site visit. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3184.

Board of education's alleged practice of adjourning for executive session, and then returning to public session in room other than where meeting originally convened, required board to provide notice, presumably by posting, as to location where meeting would continue after executive session or recess, especially if (by coincidence or otherwise) most members of public had left before open meeting resumed. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3589.

6. Content of notice, generally

7. —Agenda not required

Although many public bodies by policy, rule, or tradition, prepare agendas prior to their meetings, the Open Meetings Law does not require or refer to the preparation of an agenda. Thus, no violation of the Open Meetings Law occurs when a public body discusses a matter and votes on it without having first placed the matter on its agenda. Comm on Open Govt OML-AO 921.

Hospital advisory board was not required by Open Meetings Law to disseminate agendas and similar information prior to meetings to enable members of public to be aware of subjects to be considered at its meetings, since CLS Pub O § 104 requires that public body provide notice of time and place of its meetings, but does not require that notice include reference to subjects to be considered, or that notices be mailed to individuals on request. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2246.

There is nothing in Open Meetings Law that requires that notice of meeting include reference to subjects to be discussed; similarly, there is nothing in that statute that pertains to or requires preparation of agenda. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3806.

There is no provision in law that limits or restricts scope of special meeting of town board or that requires that notice of special meeting specify subjects to be considered. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3859.

While notice of time and place must be given prior to all meetings of public body, there is no requirement that agenda or notification of issues to be discussed be given unless public body has established rules or procedures requiring additional information in its notices of meetings. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9178.

There is nothing in the Open Meetings Law that requires that the subject matter to be discussed at a meeting be included in a notice. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-866.

Although notice must be given concerning time and place of meetings, statute does not require that notice include purpose of meeting, or statement whether meeting is characterized as regular or special. Committee on Open Government OML-AO-1047.

Although every meeting must be preceded by notice given in accordance with CLS Public Officers § 104, notice need not include agenda or indication of specific subjects to be discussed by public body; accordingly, notice of meeting of human rights commission need not include lists of alleged violators. Committee on Open Government OML-AO-1203.

While notice of time and place must be given prior to all meetings, there is no requirement that agenda or notification of issues to be discussed be given, unless public body has established rules or procedures requiring additional information in its notices of meetings. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2256.

Although CLS Pub O § 104 requires that notice be given prior to every meeting indicating time and place of meeting, there is nothing in that statute that requires that notice include reference to subjects to be considered; further, although many public bodies prepare agendas prior to their meetings, there are no requirements that they do so or that they must follow their agendas. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2283.

While Open Meetings Law requires that meeting be preceded by notice of time and place, there is no requirement that reason for holding special meeting must be included in notice or in minutes. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2344.

When news media chooses to publicize meeting, it is not obligated to print verbatim account of notice provided by public body. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2446.

Requirement that notice of meeting be given to public and news media does not require notice to state subjects to be considered at meeting, and thus chairman of county legislature did not violate Open Meeting Law by discussing issue not referred to on printed, published agenda included in notice of meeting. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2722.

8. Effect of inadequate notice

As long as town board complies with notice requirements of CLS Pub O § 104, failure on part of newspaper to print notice would not have any adverse effect upon legality of action taken by board. Committee on Open Government OML-AO-1143.

In order to constitute valid meeting, all of members of public body must be given reasonable notice of meeting. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2358.

Finding of failure to comply with notice requirements imposed by Open Meetings Law, intentional or otherwise, is dependent upon attendant facts; further, action taken by public body generally remains valid unless and until court determines to contrary. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2371.

If majority of members of public body meet without informing other members, majority cannot vote or act as or on behalf of body as whole; unless all of members of body are given reasonable notice of meeting, body is incapable of performing or exercising its power, authority or duty. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2395.

When legal challenge is initiated relating to failure to provide notice, key issue is whether failure to comply with notice requirements imposed by Open Meetings Law was "unintentional." Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2567.

Action purportedly taken by majority of public body that met without giving reasonable notice to all of members is nullity. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2601.

9. Emergency, urgent or "hurried" meetings

Absent actual emergency or urgency, it was unreasonable for village to conduct meeting characterized as "emergency meeting" without publication of notice in official newspaper. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12124.

Open Meetings Law requires that reasonable effort be made to give notice of meeting, even if such meeting is called "hurriedly"; requirements of Law relative to notice could be met by contacting local news media by phone and by posting notice and locations designated for posting. Committee on Open Government OML-AO-1074.

Absent emergency or urgency, it is unreasonable to conduct meetings on short notice, unless there is some necessity to do so. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3403.

Vote on policy issue taken by board of education prior to published meeting time of 7:30 p.m. violated Open Meetings Law, and court would be authorized to invalidate vote under CLS Pub O § 107; meeting should not have convened until 7:30 p.m. and, if board needed to start meeting earlier, it had to provide additional notice to news media and at location where original notice was posted, to reflect new time meeting would begin. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3601.

There is no requirement that notice of "special" or "emergency" meeting be given to "the full complement of local media"; so long as members of news media were given notice prior to meeting, county legislature's obligation with respect to that element of Open Meetings Law was satisfied. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3913.

Although Open Meetings Law does not make reference to "special" or "emergency" meetings, if, for example, there is need to convene quickly, notice requirements can generally be met by telephoning or faxing notice of time and place of meeting to local news media and by posting notice in one or more designated locations. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3913.

If there is need to convene meeting quickly, notice requirements can generally be met by telephoning local news media and by posting notice in one or more designated locations. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-4042.

10. Mailing of notice not required

There is no requirement that a mailing list be developed for the purpose of sending notices of meetings to members of the public. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-866.

Hospital advisory board was not required by Open Meetings Law to disseminate agendas and similar information prior to meetings to enable members of public to be aware of subjects to be considered at its meetings, since CLS Pub O § 104 requires that public body provide notice of time and place of its meetings, but does not require that notice include reference to subjects to be considered, or that notices be mailed to individuals on request. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2246.

11. Paying for notice

A town may not establish a separate fund, nor may it use its publicity fund to pay the expense of publishing a summary and condensed notices of forthcoming town board meetings. However, public notice of such meetings must be given. 1978 Op St Compt File #417.

Public bodies need not pay to publish legal notice of their meetings, or to require newspapers or other media to publish notice at no cost; rather, notice must merely be "given" to news media, which will choose to print it or not as matter of discretion. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3568.

12. Posting in public location

If meeting is scheduled at least one week in advance, notice of time and place must be given to news media and to public by means of posting in one or more designated public locations, not less than 72 hours prior to meeting; however, if there is need to convene quickly, due to emergency, notice requirements can be met by telephoning local news media and then posting in one or more designated locations. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4815.

21 NYCRR § 1401.9 does not require notice to be posted in all sub-divisions of county government where public does business with said sub-divisions; posting in more than one location is not required. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-10004.

Establishment of a notice board would likely serve to enhance compliance with public notice requirements of the Open Meetings Law. Comm on Open Govt OML-AO 907.

A bulletin board in city hall is a reasonable location for posting notices of meetings by the city council. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-912.

Notice posted in public building in area that is not generally seen or passed by most members of public is not posting that can be characterized as "conspicuous"; public body is required to designate, by means of resolution or some other method designed to inform public, location or locations where notice of all meetings of particular public body will always be posted. Committee on Open Government OML-AO-1187.

Every meeting of public body must be preceded by notice of time and place of meeting; meetings must be scheduled at least one week in advance and notice must be given to news media and the public by means of posting in one or more designated, conspicuous public locations; however, when meetings are scheduled less than one week in advance notice must be given to news media and public by means of posting to the extent practicable at reasonable time prior to such meetings. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-1445.

Notice of time and place must be give prior to all meetings, whether or not they're regularly scheduled or otherwise and specifically, meeting scheduled at least one week in advance requires that notice be given to news media and to public by means of posting not less than 72 hours prior to such meetings. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-1460.

Public body must designate, presumably by resolution, location or locations where it will routinely post notice of meetings; single posting on door to meeting room does not satisfy requirement that notice be "conspicuously posted," since notice must be placed at location that is visible to public. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2186.

Public body must designate, presumably by resolution, location or locations where it will routinely post notice of meetings. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2513.

To meet requirement that notice be "conspicuously posted," notice must be placed at location that is visible to public. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2513.

Public body must designate, presumably by resolution, location or locations where it will routinely post notice of meetings. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2585.

Public body must designate, presumably by resolution, location or locations where it will routinely post notice of meetings; to be "conspicuously posted," notice must be placed at location visible to public. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3568.

Term "designated" in CLS Pub O § 104(1) involves requirement that public body, by resolution or through adoption of policy or directive, must select one or more specific locations where notice of meetings will consistently and regularly be posted. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3740.

Term "designated" in CLS Pub O § 104 involves requirement that public body, by resolution or through adoption of policy or directive, must select one or more specific locations where notice of meetings will consistently and regularly be posted. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3806.

For notice of meeting to be "conspicuously" posted, it must be posted at location or locations where those who may be interested in attending meetings have reasonable opportunity to see notice. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3806.

While posting notice of public meeting on website is fully appropriate and positive, based on language of law "posting" would involve placement of notice of time and place of meetings at particular location or locations. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3958.

Term "designated" in posting requirement of Open Meetings Law involves requirement that public body, by resolution or through adoption of policy or directive, must select one or more specific locations where notice of meetings will consistently and regularly be posted. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-4127.

For notice of meeting to be "conspicuously" posted, it must be posted at location or locations where those who may be interested in attending meetings have reasonable opportunity to see notice. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-4127.

While posting notice of public meeting on website is fully appropriate and positive, based on language of Open Meetings Law, "posting" would involve placement of notice of time and place of meetings at particular location or locations. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-4127.

13. Requirement of notice to news media

Open Meetings Law requires that all meetings be convened open to public and proceeded by notice given to news media and to public by means of posting. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4717.

Notice of meetings need not be preceded by publication of legal notice; however, notice of time and place of every meeting must be given to news media, and to public by means of posting in one or more designated, conspicuous public locations. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4916.

Open Meetings Law requires that notice of time and place of meetings be given to news media and to public by means of posting; in case of a hearing, however, there is usually requirement that notice of hearing be published. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-1415.

Open Meetings Law requires that all meetings be convened open to public and proceeded by notice given to news media and to public by means of posting. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-1418.

If public body routinely gives notice to news media and posts notice as required by CLS Pub O § 104 but fails to notify media prior to special meeting due to oversight, such failure could be characterized as unintentional. Given that notice requirements of Open Meetings Law have remained unchanged since law went into effect in 1977, it would appear that "practice" of not notifying news media of meetings could not be construed as unintentional. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2381.

If notice is given indicating that meeting will begin at certain time, public body must wait until that time to begin conducting its business; alternatively, if there is need to convene earlier than time specified in original notice, public body must make additional notices to news media and at location where notice is posted to reflect actual time when meeting will begin. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2487.

If regular schedule is established, sending notice of scheduled meetings once to news media and posting notice continuously will satisfy notice requirements for period in which schedule is in effect, and only situation in which additional notice will be required would involve unscheduled meetings. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3124.

Public body is not required to pay to place legal notice prior to meeting; it must merely "give" notice of time and place of meeting to news media, and moreover, when in receipt of notice of meeting, there is no obligation imposed on news media to publish notice. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3740.

Notice of meetings should be given to news media organizations that would be most likely to make contact with those who may be interested in attending. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3806.

14. Waiver of notice

Public body may not waive notice requirements imposed by Open Meetings Law. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2176.

Notice requirements imposed by Open Meetings Law can never be waived. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3954.

Waiver of notice in CLS Educ § 1606(3) deals with notice to members; separate and distinct are notice requirements imposed by Open Meetings Law. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3954.

§ 105. Conduct of executive sessions

1. Upon a majority vote of its total membership, taken in an open meeting pursuant to a motion identifying the general area or areas of the subject or subjects to be considered, a public body may conduct an executive session for the below enumerated purposes only, provided, however, that no action by formal vote shall be taken to appropriate public moneys:

a. matters which will imperil the public safety if disclosed;

b. any matter which may disclose the identity of a law enforcement agent or informer;

c. information relating to current or future investigation or prosecution of a criminal offense which would imperil effective law enforcement if disclosed;

d. discussions regarding proposed, pending or current litigation;

e. collective negotiations pursuant to article fourteen of the civil service law;

f. the medical, financial, credit or employment history of a particular person or corporation, or matters leading to the appointment, employment, promotion, demotion, discipline, suspension, dismissal or removal of a particular person or corporation;

g. the preparation, grading or administration of examinations; and

h. the proposed acquisition, sale or lease of real property or the proposed acquisition of securities, or sale or exchange of securities held by such public body, but only when publicity would substantially affect the value thereof.

2. Attendance at an executive session shall be permitted to any member of the public body and any other persons authorized by the public body.

I. In General

1. In general

Town board did not violate Open Meetings Law (CLS Pub O §§ 100 et seq.) by allegedly drafting new legislation at executive session held after public hearing as to 3 proposed amendments to zoning ordinance where, following executive session, board enacted 2 of amendments proposed which were not new or different from proposed amendments, it tabled remaining proposed amendment, and there was nothing to controvert town's sworn allegation that executive session was conducted only for permissible purpose. Gernatt Asphalt Prods. v Town of Sardinia, 87 N.Y.2d 668, 642 N.Y.S.2d 164, 664 N.E.2d 1226, 1996 N.Y. LEXIS 313 (N.Y. 1996).

Public body must identify subject matter to be discussed at closed meeting with some degree of particularity; merely reciting language of Open Meetings Law is insufficient. Gordon v Village of Monticello, 207 A.D.2d 55, 620 N.Y.S.2d 573, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13248 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1994), rev'd, in part, 87 N.Y.2d 124, 637 N.Y.S.2d 961, 661 N.E.2d 691, 1995 N.Y. LEXIS 4447 (N.Y. 1995).

La Guardia Community College Association was not public body governed by Open Meetings Law, and thus its meeting was properly closed notwithstanding fact that funds for certain student activities were allocated at meeting, since association's primary purpose was to serve student body rather than state, it did not possess final decision-making authority but performed advisory role with respect to expenditures, and it did not exercise power of sovereign because student activity funds it oversaw were segregated from university's general revenues and did not constitute state funds. Smith v City Univ. of New York, 241 A.D.2d 410, 661 N.Y.S.2d 599, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7824 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1997), app. dismissed, 91 N.Y.2d 921, 669 N.Y.S.2d 262, 692 N.E.2d 131, 1998 N.Y. LEXIS 243 (N.Y. 1998), rev'd, 92 N.Y.2d 707, 685 N.Y.S.2d 910, 708 N.E.2d 983, 1999 N.Y. LEXIS 1 (N.Y. 1999).

School district's board of education engaged in persistent pattern of deliberate violation of letter and spirit of CLS Pub O Art 7 by, inter alia, improperly convening executive sessions and conducting business in manner inaudible to public audience. Goetschius v Board of Educ., 281 A.D.2d 416, 721 N.Y.S.2d 386, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2074 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2001).

Trial court's annulment of the determinations of a county and a comptroller reducing a retiree's salary for purposes of his retirement severance was proper because a board of trustees had been authorized by N.Y. Educ. Law § 6306(2) and N.Y. Comp. Codes R. & Regs. tit. 8, § 604.2(a) to vote to raise the retiree's salary pursuant to his employment contract, and contradictory local laws did not supersede state law or regulations; there was no support for the claim that the meeting was not properly noticed as to time and place and there was no statutory requirement that notice of the agenda of the meeting be given. The contention that the vote was unauthorized because verbatim minutes of the meeting were not taken was unavailing as N.Y. Pub. Off. Law § 106 merely required that a record or summary of the action at a meeting be taken, and the record disclosed that a summary of the action was taken. Matter of LaLima v County of Suffolk, 45 A.D.3d 845, 847 N.Y.S.2d 208, 2007 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12137 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2007).

Executive session may not be scheduled to be convened at future meetings on regular basis. Comm Pub Acc Rec OML-Ad Op 604.

Open Meetings Law applies to every convening of quorum of public body, even if there is no intent to take action, and regardless of manner in which gathering may be characterized. Comm Pub Acc Rec OML-Ad Op 811.

It is an open question whether or not a public body may rectify any mistake made in holding an executive session by ratifying its action through a public vote. Comm Pub Acc Rec OML-Ad Op 857.

2. Attendance at executive session, generally

Given the absence of any requirement in either N.Y. Pub. Off. Law § 105(2) or N.Y. Educ. Law § 1708(3) that a school district board of education must identify any non-members it authorized to attend its executive sessions, there was an "irrefutable inference" that it was "intended to be omitted or excluded"; accordingly, petitioners' request to find that such individuals had to be identified lacked merit. Matter of Jae v Bd. of Educ. of Pelham Union Free Sch. Dist., 22 A.D.3d 581, 802 N.Y.S.2d 228, 2005 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10872 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2005), app. denied, 6 N.Y.3d 714, 816 N.Y.S.2d 749, 849 N.E.2d 972, 2006 N.Y. LEXIS 1311 (N.Y. 2006).

Only members of public body are entitled to be present at executive session of such public body; thus, Laws Committee of Cattaraugus County Legislature may exclude from executive sessions all persons, including county legislators, who are not members of Laws Committee. Comm Pub Acc Rec OML-Ad Op 812.

A public body may exclude from an executive session all but its own members, including a person who may have initiated a discussion or who may be the subject of a discussion. Comm Pub Acc Rec OML-Ad Op 858.

3. —Legal adversaries

While public body may permit persons other than members to attend executive session, attendance of non-members should generally be restricted to those who may be involved in particular legal controversy or who have specific knowledge or expertise that would aid members of public body in deliberating; § 100(2) [now § 105(2)] of Public Officers Law should not be used as means of discriminating or enabling public body to select particular persons for purposes of including or excluding them from executive session. Comm Pub Acc Rec OML-Ad Op 633.

4. —Members of media

Town planning board properly required newspaper editor to leave meeting which was in executive session to discuss pending litigation, and his refusal to leave gave probable cause for arrest as trespasser where executive session to discuss pending litigation was authorized exception to Open Meetings Law. Matthes v East Fishkill, 785 F.2d 43, 1986 U.S. App. LEXIS 23253 (2d Cir. N.Y. 1986).

5. —Unsuccessful candidates for public office

Board improperly allowed unsuccessful candidate for board position, who had no legal responsibility for decision making, to attend executive sessions pending his appeal of results of election at which his opponent was elected, as his presence at board executive sessions afforded him access to information about school district personnel, which breached confidentiality and jeopardized ongoing teacher negotiations. 1995 Op Comm Ed No. 13310.

6. Confidentiality, generally

Memorialized discussions at duly convened executive sessions of county board of supervisors which do not result in formal vote, whether consisting of privileged attorney-client communications or otherwise, are not type of governmental records to which public has to be given access, as confidentiality has been specifically sanctioned by CLS Pub O §§ 105 and 106, and thus such records fall within exemption of CLS Pub O § 87(2)(a). Wm. J. Kline & Sons v County of Hamilton, 235 A.D.2d 44, 663 N.Y.S.2d 339, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10151 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1997).

While board members cannot disclose confidential information properly discussed at executive session, boards may not shield all matters from public disclosure simply by entering into executive session and executive session may be properly entered into for only those purposes set forth in CLS Pub Officers § 105; moreover, there may be instances in which information learned during course of properly convened executive session warrants referral to District Attorney, Attorney General or other appropriate law enforcement authority for investigation and possible action. 2005 Op Comm Ed No. 15,315.

7. —Effect of violations

In a proceeding by a dismissed teacher to direct implementation of a teacher tenure hearing panel report and to dismiss an appeal to the Commissioner of Education, the teacher's claim that the board of education did not meet certain conditions precedent to its right to appeal was without merit where, although the board failed to implement the hearing panel's recommendation within 30 days of the board's receipt of the panel's report as required by Educ Law § 3020-a, there was nothing in that statute conditioning the board's right to appeal on its compliance with that requirement, and where, although the board should have authorized the appeal to the Commissioner at a public meeting rather than at an executive session, the teacher failed to sustain her burden of showing that she was prejudiced by such action. Kloepfer v Commissioner of Education, 82 A.D.2d 974, 440 N.Y.S.2d 785, 1981 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 14710 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1981), aff'd, 56 N.Y.2d 687, 451 N.Y.S.2d 732, 436 N.E.2d 1334, 1982 N.Y. LEXIS 3352 (N.Y. 1982).

In a proceeding brought by a probationary teacher who had been dismissed based upon Pub O § 100 [now § 105] and Educ Law § 1708 to vitiate the board of education's determination to dismiss her, which had been made in an executive session without first moving and voting to conduct such a closed session, it was inappropriate to annul the board's determination; petitioner could not convert a statutory cause of action designed to remedy an injury to the public committed by officials who violate the Open Meetings Law to her personal grievance against board's substantive determination to dismiss her. Sanna v Lindenhurst Bd. of Education, 85 A.D.2d 157, 447 N.Y.S.2d 733, 1982 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 17083 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't), aff'd, 58 N.Y.2d 626, 458 N.Y.S.2d 511, 444 N.E.2d 975, 1982 N.Y. LEXIS 3881 (N.Y. 1982).

Members of public body who are persistently derelict with regard to mandate of § 105 after being directed to comply by court order will be found in contempt of court, fined, and required to pay attorney's fees. Orange County Publications, Div. of Ottaway Newspapers, Inc. v County of Orange, 120 A.D.2d 596, 502 N.Y.S.2d 71, 1986 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 56679 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't), app. dismissed, 68 N.Y.2d 807, 506 N.Y.S.2d 1037, 498 N.E.2d 437, 1986 N.Y. LEXIS 20142 (N.Y. 1986).

Housing authority board of commissioners' use of secret ballot for voting purposes in executive session violated Freedom of Information Law and Open Meetings Law, but did not warrant annulment of board's decision to discharge employee, and thus employee's Article 78 proceeding was properly dismissed; claim that board would have voted differently had they done so in open session was of no consequence since board clearly had authority to determine employment issue at executive session, under CLS Pub O § 105. Smithson v Ilion Housing Authority, 130 A.D.2d 965, 516 N.Y.S.2d 564, 1987 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 46949 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1987), aff'd, 72 N.Y.2d 1034, 534 N.Y.S.2d 930, 531 N.E.2d 651, 1988 N.Y. LEXIS 2707 (N.Y. 1988).

Court providently exercised its discretion in annulling certain determinations of school district's board of education and awarding attorney fee to petitioners in Article 78 proceeding where board engaged in persistent pattern of deliberate violation of letter and spirit of CLS Pub O Art 7 by, inter alia, improperly convening executive sessions and conducting business in manner inaudible to public audience. Goetschius v Board of Educ., 281 A.D.2d 416, 721 N.Y.S.2d 386, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2074 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2001).

Town's Board's decision in its N.Y. Pub. Off. Law § 105(1)(f) executive session to terminate an employee for poor performance was proper as, given the nature of the employee's probationary employment interest and the purposes of the Open Meetings Law, the Board's not recording its proven actions in its executive session minutes was a non-prejudicial open meetings law violation of N.Y. Pub. Off. Law § 106(2); therefore, the lower court's reversing the Board's determination was not for the "good cause" required by N.Y. Pub. Off. Law § 107(1) for the lower court to exercise its discretion to reverse the determination. The violation was capable of being corrected by the Board simply recording the vote in the minutes of its executive session. Specht v Town of Cornwall, 13 A.D.3d 380, 786 N.Y.S.2d 546, 2004 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 14843 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2004).

Board member's surreptitious taping and disclosure of executive sessions, and her unilateral disclosure of executive session material. violated her fiduciary duties as board member, her oath of office and General Municipal Law, despite her claim that she acted in interest of justice; while individual board members are free to express their opinions and to vote separately, only majority of board can relinquish protection afforded once executive session is convened. 2005 Op Comm Ed No. 15,315.

City counsel violates Public Officers Law by exclusion of public from meeting held to discuss preliminary redevelopment plan for blighted area in city; in light of this and other violations of Open Meetings Law, court will impose upon counsel payment to petitioners of cost and reasonable attorney fees, in amount of $500. Orange County Publications, Div. of Ottaway Newspapers, Inc. v Council of Newburgh (N.Y. Sup. Ct. Mar. 4, 1983).

8. Motions for executive sessions, generally

9. —Contents or components of motions

A procedure in which a town board held an executive session on December 9, during which it resolved to hold another executive session on December 17, is not permissible under Public Law Officers Law § 100 [now § 105] since, before a public body may enter into an executive session, a member of that body must introduce a motion to do so during an open meeting in which the proposed subject matter for the executive session is identified in general terms. Com Pub Acc Rec OML-Ad Op 581.

A public body can never schedule an executive session in advance since, in order to conduct an executive session, a motion to enter into such session must be made during an open meeting, must identify in general terms the subject to be considered, and must be carried by a majority vote of the total membership of the public body. Comm Pub Acc Rec OML—Ad Op 597.

Before public body can enter into executive session, motion must be made by member of public body, general description of subject to be considered during executive session must be made and majority of total membership of public body must pass motion to enter into executive session. Comm Pub Acc OML-Ad Op 791.

10. —Requirement that motions be made at open meetings

A school board in a public work session may vote to go to an executive session without convening a "regular" meeting since the Open Meetings Law makes no distinction between a "work session" and a "meeting". Comm Pub Acc Rec OML—Ad Op 558.

Activities of a Board of Education during an executive session conducted prior to rather than during an open meeting violated the Open Meetings Law since, in view of the definition of "executive session" in Public Officers Law § 97 [now § 102], it is clear that a public body may conduct an executive session only after having convened an open meeting. Comm Pub Acc Rec OML—Ad Op 570.

Public body cannot schedule "executive session" in advance of meeting since such session is portion of open meeting during which the public may be excluded. Comm Pub Acc Rec OML—Ad Op 596.

11. Presumption of openness

Open Meeting Law is based upon presumption of openness and all meetings of public bodies are presumed to be open except to extent that executive session may appropriately be convened, and while public body may enter into executive session in certain circumstances, there is no requirement that executive session must be convened even if one or more of grounds for executive session may be present. Comm Pub Acc Rec OML-Ad Op 835.

12. Voting for executive session, generally

Meeting of government body could not be considered closed "executive session" absent voted authorization given at an open meeting. Goodson Todman Enterprises, Ltd. v Kingston Common Council, 153 A.D.2d 103, 550 N.Y.S.2d 157, 1990 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 29 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1990).

A school board in a public work session may vote to go to an executive session without convening a "regular" meeting since the Open Meetings Law makes no distinction between a "work session" and a "meeting". Comm Pub Acc Rec OML—Ad Op 558.

13. —Majority requirement

A public body can never schedule an executive session in advance since, in order to conduct an executive session, a motion to enter into such session must be made during an open meeting, must identify in general terms the subject to be considered, and must be carried by a majority vote of the total membership of the public body. Comm Pub Acc Rec OML—Ad Op 597.

Before public body can enter into executive session, motion must be made by member of public body, general description of subject to be considered during executive session must be made and majority of total membership of public body must pass motion to enter into executive session. Comm Pub Acc OML-Ad Op 791.

14. —Minutes of voting required

Executive session called during town board meeting was proper where minutes of meeting clearly demonstrated that board members properly voted to go into executive session to discuss personnel matters. Woodstock v Goodson-Todman Enterprises, Ltd., 133 Misc. 2d 12, 505 N.Y.S.2d 540, 1986 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2959 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1986).

II. Grounds For Holding Executive Session

15. In general

Although parents must be afforded opportunity to be present at each meeting at which their child's individualized educational program is developed, school district's committee on special education is not precluded from discussing student's case in absence of parents. Re Application of a Child with Handicapping Condition, 1987 Op Comm Ed No. 11862.

Section 100(1) [now § 105(1)] of Open Meetings Law specifies and limits areas of discussion that may appropriately be considered during executive session. Comm Pub Acc Rec OML-Ad Op 788.

Committee subject to Open Meetings Law may under § 100(1) [now § 105(1)] of Law enter into "executive session" to consider one or more among 8 categories of discussion deemed appropriate for executive session. Comm Pub Acc Rec OML-Ad Op 817.

16. Employment matters, generally

CLS Pub O § 105(1)(f) applies not only to those situations where personnel action (i.e., promotion, dismissal, etc.) is warranted solely because of employee's job performance or employment history, but also applies to those situations where personnel action is warranted as result of fiscal restraints. Plattsburgh Pub. Co., Div. of Ottaway Newspapers v City of Plattsburgh, 185 A.D.2d 518, 586 N.Y.S.2d 346, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8984 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1992).

Trial court properly dismissed a former employee's application to review a determination of a town terminating his employment because there was no indication of any personal or political animosities suggesting some deceitful purpose of ousting and replacing the former employee, his conclusory and unsupported assertions failed to refute the town's showing that its actions were part of a good faith effort to reorganize a municipal department for the purposes of reducing costs and increasing efficiency, and while the town board violated the Open Meetings Law, the former employee did not show the requisite "good cause" for declaring the board's action to be void, and the board's failure to comply with the Law was merely negligent. Matter of Cutler v Town of Mamakating, 137 A.D.3d 1373, 26 N.Y.S.3d 409, 2016 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1539 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2016).

Petition for judgment granting petitioner admission to any meeting of county board of supervisors held prior to any formal meeting of the board and to attend any meetings where salary increases were denied would be dismissed since petitioner sought to intrude into informal discussions that the supervisors might have when they were not officially transacting business, or at best, as they informally exchanged their views on matters later to be openly and formally discussed with a view to final determination. Kessel v Board of Supervisors, 90 Misc. 2d 574, 394 N.Y.S.2d 762, 1977 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2114 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1977).

Although a meeting of a town board concerning the filling of a vacancy on the board is a public meeting under Public Officers Law § 97 [now § 102] and subject to the Open Meetings Law, where the subjects of the meetings in question concern interviews of candidates for the position on the Board, such interviews may be conducted during executive session under Public Officers Law § 100(1)(f) [now § 105(1)(f)]. Com Pub Acc Rec OML-Ad Op 582.

Even if there were technical violations of the statute, there were no allegations that such violations were part of a larger conspiracy to circumvent the law, and with respect to each of the employment decisions formal votes were taken in open meetings following the executive sessions, so there was no conduct that warranted nullification of the employment decisions at issue. Matter of School Transparency Org. for Parents v Harpursville Cent. Sch. Dist. ("HCSD"), 50 Misc. 3d 478, 17 N.Y.S.3d 836, 2015 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3469 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 2015).

17. —Educational employment

In light of recent judicial decisions interpreting § 1708(3) of the Education Law to preclude a public school board from voting during an executive session, a vote to terminate a probationary teacher must be conducted by a public school board during an open meeting. Comm Pub Acc Rec OML-Ad Op 754.

18. —Particular person or corporation as subject, generally

Because a hearing officer was properly appointed by a village board of trustees in executive session to investigate a N.Y. Civ. Serv. Law § 75(2) disciplinary matter against a police chief, because the none of the board's actions taken violated N.Y. Pub. Off. Law art. 7, and because there was substantial evidence supporting the hearing officer's report and recommendations, the chief was not entitled to N.Y. C.P.L.R. art. 78 relief. Matter of Perryman v Saranac Lake, 64 A.D.3d 830, 881 N.Y.S.2d 693, 2009 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5362 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2009).

A school board has the authority to enter into an executive session to discuss the appointment of a particular individual to the board in order to fill a vacancy since a discussion of the appointment of a particular individual to the school board would likely and of necessity involve a review of the employment history of the particular person and the discussion would likely constitute a manner "leading to the appointment of a particular individual" to the board. Comm Pub Acc Rec OML—Ad Op 566.

A public body may not enter into an executive session to discuss matters concerning personnel generally, but only those matters concerning a "particular person" and an executive session may not be held to discuss the relocation of a school district office since such item does not fall within any of the grounds for an executive session delineated in Public Officers Law § 100(1)(a) through (h). Com Pub Acc Rec OML-Ad Op 583.

A discussion of layoffs of city employees due to budgetary constraint is not a proper topic for an executive session under Public Officers Law § 100 [now § 105] since the major consideration involved policy questions and not the manner in which a particular employee has performed his or her duties. Comm Pub Acc Rec OML—Ad Op 596.

Executive sessions are not appropriate if personal matters are discussed generally or in terms of policy, rather than with regard to a particular person. Comm Pub Acc Rec OML-Ad Op 862.

In an action brought against a town by its former comptroller, the town was entitled to summary judgment because even if the town violated the Open Meetings Law when discussion the decision to terminate him from that position, its actions were voidable, rather than void. Phillips v Town of Glenville, 160 A.D.3d 1264, 75 N.Y.S.3d 629, 2018 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2651 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2018).

19. — —Ethical considerations

The Board of Ethics of City of Lockport, due to the nature of its discussion which would involve the employment history of particular people and matters leading to the discipline, suspension or dismissal of particular people, often may have the capacity to conduct its business during executive session under Public Officers Law § 100(1)(f) [now § 105(1)(f)]. Comm Pub Acc Rec OML—Ad Op 573.

20. — —Independent contractor status

Discussion of award of contract to perform services may constitute matter leading to employment of particular corporation, and Open Meetings Law § 100(1)(f) [now § 105(1)(f)] is likely to apply where discussion focuses upon hiring particular individual; similiar discussion relative to particular corporation will also fall within scope of (1)(f); discussion does not involve matter leading to employment where it involves contract for purchase of goods, but might touch upon credit or financial history of corporation and to such extent executive session will be proper. Comm Pub Acc Rec OML-Ad Op 835.

21. Litigation matters, generally

Discussions held during executive session of town board, concerning redesign work of sewage treatment facilities, fell within "litigation" category under CLS Pub O § 105(1)(d) where town had entered consent order with State Department of Environmental Conservation and New York City Department of Environmental Protection requiring certain redesign work to be completed by certain specified dates. Roberts v Town Bd., 207 A.D.2d 404, 615 N.Y.S.2d 725, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8191 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't), app. denied, 84 N.Y.2d 811, 622 N.Y.S.2d 913, 647 N.E.2d 119, 1994 N.Y. LEXIS 4622 (N.Y. 1994).

Under § 100 [now § 105] of the Public Officers Law, any decision to conduct an executive session must be made in an open meeting pursuant to motion and the motion must identify the general area or areas of the subject or subjects to be concerned; thus, where a public body identified the subject to be discussed only in general terms as "discussions regarding proposed, pending or current litigation," a petition seeking an order declaring that the public body had conducted a public session in violation of the Pub O Law would be granted. Daily Gazette Co. v Town Bd., Cobleskill, 111 Misc. 2d 303, 444 N.Y.S.2d 44, 1981 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3263 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1981).

Trustees of union free school district violated notice provisions of CLS Pub O § 105 when, in providing notice of executive session regarding status of certain litigation, they indicated purpose of meeting as only "to discuss personnel matters and negotiations" and failed to identify litigation to be discussed with particularity. Executive session held by trustees of union free school district would be disqualified under CLS Pub O § 105 where, in discussing certain litigation, they included at session counsel for litigant suing them. Previdi v Hirsch, 138 Misc. 2d 436, 524 N.Y.S.2d 643, 1988 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 340 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1988).

22. —Possible, proposed or threatened litigation

Planning board did not violate open meetings requirements when it went into executive session to discuss threatened litigation regarding a site plan for a fast food restaurant because the board took no action during the executive session. Matter of Western Sullivan O.R.E. LLC v Town of Thompson Planning Bd., 53 Misc. 3d 1202(A), 46 N.Y.S.3d 477, 2016 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3350 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 2016).

To be considered "proposed" litigation, there must be imminent or real threat of litigation in order to qualify under § 100(1)(d) [now § 105(1)(d)] of Public Officers Law, consequently, "possible" litigation does not constitute appropriate basis for entry into executive session. Comm Pub Acc Rec OML-Ad Op 635.

23. Sale, lease or acquisition of real property, generally

Every discussion pertaining to sale of real property may not be discussed in executive session, but executive session is proper under Open Meetings Law § 100(1)(h) [now § 105(1)(h)] only when "publicity will substantially affect value" of property. Comm Pub Acc Rec OML-Ad Op 841.

24. —School property

A board of education of a central school district, which agreed to sell two schools because of a decline in student enrollment without obtaining approval of the voters as authorized by Educ Law § 1804(6)(c), would not violate provisions of Pub O Law § 100(1)(h) [now § 105(1)(h)] by discussing in closed executive sessions proposals for the purchase of the schools and the financial capabilities of those making the proposals since such sessions were designed to protect the integrity of the offers made and to secure the best possible financial return. Botwin v Board of Education, 114 Misc. 2d 291, 451 N.Y.S.2d 577, 1982 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3472 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1982).

Open Meetings Law § 100(1)(h) [now § 105(1)(h)] cannot justifiably be cited as basis for discussing sale of schoolhouse during executive session since developers are "pre-qualified", offers are final, and nature and location of property to be sold is known and publicity cannot substantially affect value of property. Comm Pub Acc Rec FOIL-Ad Op 2727.

Executive session may not be held to discuss relocation of school district office since such item does not fall within any of the grounds for executive session delineated in subd (1)(a) through (h). Comm Pub Acc Rec OML-Ad Op 583.

25. Sufficiency of motion

Stated purpose of village board of trustees for entering into executive session—discussion of "a personnel issue"—did not satisfy requirements of CLS Pub O § 105, since statute requires that such discussion involve "employment history of a particular person"; although individual need not be identified by name, statute requires that any motion to enter into executive session describe with some detail nature of proposed discussion. Gordon v Village of Monticello, 207 A.D.2d 55, 620 N.Y.S.2d 573, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13248 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1994), rev'd, in part, 87 N.Y.2d 124, 637 N.Y.S.2d 961, 661 N.E.2d 691, 1995 N.Y. LEXIS 4447 (N.Y. 1995).

Motion to enter into executive session to discuss "personnel" without greater description of topic is insufficient; applicability of Public Officers Law § 100(1)(f) [now § 105(1)(f)] is limited to situations in which discussion involves "particular person" in conjunction with one or more of topics indicated in (1)(f). Comm Pub Acc Rec OML-AD Op 791.

Executive session ostensibly for purpose of reviewing actions of "individual administrators" and "appropriateness of their actions in light of their responsibilities" is proper since discussion will likely involve "employment history of particular person" as well as matters that might lead to demotion, discipline, suspension, dismissal or removal of particular person. Comm Pub Acc Rec OML-Ad Op 803.

Mere recitation of basis for entry into executive session is insufficient and motion to enter into executive session should indicate topic within Open Meetings Law § 100(1)(f) [now § 105(1)(f] as well as fact that discussion will refer to particular person. Comm Pub Acc Rec OML-Ad Op 829.

26. Other particular grounds for executive session, generally

Local BOCES cannot conduct discussions regarding budget preparations at a "workshop session" since such discussions must be open to the public. Comm Pub Acc Rec OML-Ad Op 740.

Issue of school closings is not proper subject for executive session. Comm Pub Acc Rec OML-Ad Op 762.

Town board may not enter into executive session to consider transfer of town funds. Comm Pub Acc Rec OML-Ad Op 828.

Executive session regarding discussion of pay for substitute teachers is not appropriate and district Board of Education may not exclude public and news media from "workshop" sessions held to discuss declining enrollment. Comm Pub Acc Rec OML-Ad Op 831.

27. —Developmentally disabled persons

Where reducing the size of Committee on the Handicapped was a policy matter which did not concern any "particular" person, a discussion of the reduction of the Committee should have been held during open meeting. Comm Pub Acc Rec OML—Ad Op 570.

28. —Industrial development agencies

Discussion of the by-laws of an industrial development agency does not fall within areas that may be appropriately considered during an executive session. Comm Pub Acc Rec OML-Ad Op 857.

29. —Land use matters

Although a town zoning board of appeals violated the Open Meetings Law when it discussed at an executive session a property owner's application for a certificate of nonconformity or for a use variance in order to operate a junkyard on his premises, pursuant to N.Y. Pub. Off. Law §§ 103 and 105, where the owner failed to show good cause why the court should exercise its discretion to void the board's determination as a sanction for that violation, the court declined to impose such a sanction. Carrier v Town of Palmyra Zoning Bd. of Appeals, 30 A.D.3d 1036, 816 N.Y.S.2d 647, 2006 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7599 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 2006), app. denied, 8 N.Y.3d 807, 834 N.Y.S.2d 88, 865 N.E.2d 1255, 2007 N.Y. LEXIS 530 (N.Y. 2007).

City council violates Public Officers Law by exclusion of public from meeting held to discuss preliminary redevelopment plan for blighted area in city; in light of this and other violations of Open Meetings Law, court will impose upon council payment to petitioners of cost and reasonable attorney fees, in amount of $500. Orange County Publications, Div. of Ottaway Newspapers, Inc. v Council of Newburgh (N.Y. Sup. Ct. Mar. 4, 1983).

I. In General

1. In general

A town board may by local law compel the zoning board of appeals and the planning board of such town to tape record their public meetings but may not compel them to tape record their private discussions and deliberations. 1980 NY Ops Atty Gen May 13 (informal).

While Open Meetings Law authorizes public bodies to conduct executive sessions in circumstances described in CLS Pub O § 105(1)(a) through (h), there is no requirement that executive session be held even though public body has right to do so. Introductory language of CLS Pub O § 105(1), which prescribes procedure that must be accomplished before executive session may be held, clearly indicates that public body "may" conduct executive session only after having completed that procedure. Grounds for withholding records appearing in Freedom of Information Law and grounds for entry into executive session appearing in CLS Pub O § 105(1) (Open Meetings Law) are not necessarily consistent; thus, even though records might be withheld in accordance with FOIL, it does not necessarily follow that meeting pertaining to those records may properly be closed or that it is reasonable to withhold them. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12405.

School boards can generally act only during open meetings. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-864.

A public body cannot schedule an executive session in advance of a meeting. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-872.

When a discussion during an executive session ends, presumably an open meeting is continued and members of the public in attendance should be so informed. Comm on Open Govt OML-AO 911.

Although as general rule, public body subject to open meetings law may take action during properly convened executive session (CLS Public Officers § 105), school boards are further restricted from taking action in closed session by operation of CLS Education § 1708. Committee on Open Government OML-AO-1199.

Public body may generally vote during proper executive session; however, any vote to appropriate public moneys must be taken during open meeting; as such, there may be situations in which discussions may be conducted during executive session, but public body may be required to return to open meeting to vote to appropriate public moneys in relation to subject previously considered behind closed doors. 1986 Committee on Open Government, OML-AO-1311.

All meetings must be proceeded by notice given in accordance with Open Meetings Law and conducted open to public, unless and until executive session may be held to discuss one or more topics described in Law. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-1438.

If building in which meeting is held includes room or space other than room in which executive session is being conducted, it would be inappropriate to remove public from building and lock doors; by so doing, public has no capacity to know when executive session has ended and open portion of meeting has been continued. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2268.

Open Meetings Law imposes no obligation in advance of executive session to specify whether action will or will not be taken during executive session. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2270.

There is nothing in Open Meetings Law or in Village Law that deals specifically with special meetings or subjects that may be considered at those meetings; thus, at special meeting held to discuss renewal of bond anticipation note, board was not prohibited from acting on resolution concerning clerk's attendance at Training School. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2410.

Town ethics board or committee has same obligations as governing body, such as Town Board, regarding openness and provision of notice of meetings, for example, as Town Board, as well as same authority to conduct executive sessions when it is appropriate to do so. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3712.

When committee is subject to Open Meetings Law, it has same obligations regarding notice, openness, and taking of minutes, for example, as well as same authority to conduct executive sessions, as governing body. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3740.

There are 2 vehicles that may authorize public body, such as board of education, to discuss public business in private: one involves entry into executive session, second involves "exemptions" under CLS Pub O § 108. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3863.

To discuss matter exempted from Open Meetings Law, public body need not follow procedure imposed by CLS Pub O § 105(1) that relates to entry into executive session; when matter is exempt from Open Meetings Law, that law simply does not apply. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3863.

2. Agenda for executive session

It is proper for public body to prepare agenda indicating that executive session will be held only "if needed," since such language does not improperly presuppose that executive session will be held. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2408.

Amendment of school board agendas for days on which executive sessions were anticipated, to note "Executive Session - If Necessary," would satisfy requirements of Open Meetings Law since such notation would not improperly presume that executive session would be held. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2416.

Public body may not conduct executive session to discuss subject of its choice. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3863.

School board cannot take action during executive session except in situations in which action during closed session is permitted or required by statute, such as when board initiates charges against tenured person under CLS Educ § 3020-a or where action in public could identify particular student. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-4026.

3. Attendance at executive session, generally

4. —Legal adversaries

Local legislative body has statutory authority to prohibit legislator from disclosing confidential matters discussed in executive session. 2000 NY Ops Atty Gen I 2000-2.

What is said or heard during executive session is not "confidential" unless statute specifically confers or requires confidentiality; thus, if discussion occurring during executive session could have been conducted in public, divulging nature of discussion was not breach of ethics. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12,358.

Neither the Freedom of Information nor the Open Meetings Laws prohibit a member of the board of education from disclosing information obtained by that individual during a discussion held during an executive session. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-2846; Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-868.

When member of public body has sued that body and is its legal adversary, he or she could validly be excluded from executive session between other members and their attorney in which attorney-client privilege is properly invoked; however, if member of public body is not adversary party in litigation (but perhaps dissenter or person with minority view), that person would have right to attend executive session. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2377.

If member of public body is body's adversary in litigation, that person must excuse himself or herself from executive sessions concerning litigation, since person's presence would defeat purpose of executive session held under CLS Pub O § 105(1)(d). Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2386.

5. —Members of media

Members of new media do not have any special privilege above that of any resident in attendance to attend executive session of public body pertaining to personnel matter. Permitting news media to attend executive session is equivalent of permitting public to attend, and public body cannot validly justify authorizing news media to be present at executive session while excluding all other members of public; stated differently, if public body authorizes news media to attend executive session, it effectively loses its basis for holding executive session since members of news media serve as representatives of public. Members of new media do not have any special privilege above that of any resident in attendance to attend executive session of public body pertaining to personnel matter. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2597.

6. —Town clerks

A town clerk may be permitted to attend an executive session of the town board but has no right to attend such sessions under the "Open Meetings Law." 1978 Op St Compt File #462.

To give effect to both Open Meetings Law and CLS Town § 30, which imposes certain responsibilities on town clerk, there are 3 options: first, town board can permit clerk to attend executive session in its entirety; second, town board can deliberate during executive session without clerk's presence, but, prior to any vote, call clerk into executive session for purpose of taking minutes in conjunction with duties imposed by town law; and third, town board can deliberate toward decision during executive session, but return to open meeting for purpose of taking action. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2583.

When town board wants to take action during executive session it can (1) permit town clerk to attend executive session in its entirety, (2) deliberate during executive session without clerk's presence and call clerk into executive session to take minutes prior to vote, or (3) deliberate toward decision during executive session, but return to open meeting to take action. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2726.

7. —Unsuccessful candidates for public office

Sole people who have right to attend executive sessions are members of public body conducting executive session, but public body may authorize others to attend; however, Open Meetings Law should be implemented in manner that gives reasonable effect to its intent and, therefore, public body may not, without rational basis, permit some to attend executive sessions while excluding others. Although board of education can properly permit former member of board, who was defeated in election, to attend board's executive sessions and can properly permit him to receive board's materials packet and otherwise participate without voting, pending determination of his appeal of election results, he should be excluded during communications between board and its attorney since his presence would waive attorney-client privilege. Board of education could properly permit former member of board, who was defeated in election, to attend board's executive sessions and could properly permit him to receive board's materials packet and otherwise participate without voting, pending determination of his appeal of election results, except with regard to executive sessions involving matters relating to particular student or students. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2375.

Only members of public bodies have right to attend executive session, and no other person may have right to attend without approval of public body; quorum of members of public body is required to agree to permit attendance of person other than member of public body. Committee on Open Government OML-AO-1052.

Only members of commission, which would be public body conducting meeting, have right to attend executive sessions held by commission; moreover, liaison, person who is not a member of commission, would not have right to attend executive session of such commission; nevertheless, commission may permit attendance of others to executive session. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-1455.

Public bodies must conduct meetings in manner that guarantees public ability to "be fully aware of" and "listen to" deliberative process; thus, public body must situate itself and conduct its meetings in manner in which those in attendance can observe and hear proceedings, and to do otherwise would be unreasonable and fail to comply with basic requirement of Open Meetings Law. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2273.

Assuming that there is reasonable basis for doing so, public body may permit persons other than its members to attend executive session. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2389.

Since political caucus is beyond coverage of Open Meetings Law, there is no "right" to attend such caucus; rather, peoples' presence is essentially by invitation. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2457.

Public body cannot compel individual to remain at executive session. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2504.

Unless authorized to attend by committee, members of county legislature who are not members of that committee do not have right to attend executive session of committee. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2509.

Chair of University Faculty Senate of City University of New York, as ex officio member of board of trustees, would have right to attend executive session called by board's standing committee on Faculty and Staff Affairs only if he or she was member of that committee or privilege of attending executive sessions of committees was granted to members of board who were not members of committees. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3139.

Town of Pine Plains Police Advisory Council created by enactment of local law, although advisory in nature, was "public body" subject to Open Meetings Law; however, member of town board did not have right to attend council's executive sessions unless he or she was member of council, or there was some independent authority to do so based on rule, policy or other privilege conferred by town board. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3143.

Deputy town supervisor could be authorized to attend executive session when town supervisor was present and, if matter was disputed, board could resolve issue by adopting or rejecting motion by member to permit or reject non-member's attendance. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3150.

Board of Education could permit members-elect to attend executive session, but if members-elect were present when board's attorney was offering legal advice, their presence would result in waiver of attorney-client privilege and exemption from Open Meetings Law could not be claimed. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3177.

Member of town zoning board of appeals, as member of general public, could not be precluded from attending open meeting of zoning board of appeals on basis that he was precluded from participating as board member due to possibility of conflict of interest; furthermore, if matter involving board member's interest were to be considered in executive session, interested board member nevertheless would have right to attend that session. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3276.

When member of public body has sued or is likely to sue that body and is its legal adversary, he or she can validly be excluded from gathering between other members and their attorney in which attorney-client privilege is properly invoked; however, if member of public body is not adversarial or potential adversarial party in litigation, but perhaps only dissents with majority or takes minority view, he or she cannot be excluded from executive session. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3436.

Sole people who have right to attend executive sessions are members of public body, i.e., town board conducting executive session; however, public body may authorize others to attend executive session. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3864.

While Open Meetings Law does not describe criteria that should be used to determine which persons other than members of public body might properly attend executive session, Open Meetings Law should be carried out in manner that gives reasonable effect to its intent; thus, typically, those persons other than members of public bodies who are authorized to attend are clerk, public body's attorney, superintendent in case of board of education, or person who has some special knowledge, expertise or performs function that relates to subject of executive session. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3864.

If there is dispute among members concerning attendance of person other than member of Town Board at executive session, Board could resolve matter by adopting or rejecting motion by member to permit or reject attendance by non-member at executive session. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3864.

Only members of public body, such as board of education, have right to attend executive session; while public body may permit others to attend, those who are not members have no right to attend. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-4027.

Superintendent of education is not member of board of education (public body), since superintendent—unlike board member—is not elected, and thus superintendent does not have right to attend executive session of board; however, board may choose to authorize attendance of superintendent at its executive sessions. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-4027.

8. Confidentiality, generally

9. —Effect of violations

Action taken by public body at open meeting may not be invalidated by court even though subject of such action was discussed at prior closed meeting held in violation of law. Comm On Open Gov't OML-AO-1249.

Since public body may choose to conduct executive session or discuss issue in public, information expressed during executive session is not "confidential"; to be confidential, statute must prohibit disclosure and leave no discretion to agency or official regarding ability to disclose. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12558.

Executive session is portion of open meeting and cannot be conducted before open meeting has commenced; exception exists for matters made confidential by federal or state law; board and its attorney may meet privately before board meeting for purpose of seeking legal advice without going through procedures for executive session. Committee on Open Government OML-AO-1189.

While nothing in OML prevents those in attendance at executive session from revealing details of discussion therein, if discussion involves matter made confidential by federal or state law, such law would control and determine whether individual could legally disclose content of discussion. Comm On Open Gov't OML-AO-1193.

Statements made by members of board of education during executive sessions were not generally privileged or confidential, and thus there was no valid basis for sustaining claim of confidentiality with respect to such statements in subsequent improper practice hearing before Public Employment Relations Board, in absence of statute specifically prohibiting disclosure. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2239.

There is no statute which prohibits board member from disclosing information acquired, heard or discussed during executive session; claim of confidentiality can only be based upon statute that specifically confers or requires confidentiality. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2278.

Situations in which information acquired during executive session would be "confidential" in legal sense are rare; further, validity of or capacity to enforce prohibition against disclosure whether such information is "confidential" or not is questionable. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2358.

Person present at executive session may disclose what occurred unless statute forbids disclosure. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3188.

"Official Statement of Executive Policy" issued by mayor, which prohibited members of city's senior staff or department heads from disclosing certain information discussed at meetings with mayor and other city officials, and city ordinance that prohibited city officers and employees from disclosing certain information "discussed or deliberated during a properly convened executive session," were inconsistent with law and would likely be found to be unconstitutional since (1) violations could result in imposition of fine and/or imprisonment, and (2) while prohibitions under both enactments appeared to be based on combination of exceptions to rights of access in Freedom of Information Law and Open Meeting Law's grounds for entry into executive session, some disclosures mandated by FOIL and Open Meetings Law might be punished. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3282.

Matters properly discussed by board of education in executive session, although not public knowledge, were not "confidential" under CLS Gen Mun § 805-a(1)(b), and board member could not be prohibited from disclosing information acquired in executive sessions, since information is "confidential" only when government has no discretion and must withhold records or discuss matter in private, and matters appropriate for executive sessions could be discussed in open meetings at option of board; school district matters are "confidential" only rarely, e.g., when information involves student records or records subject to attorney-client privilege. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3449.

Policy adopted by board of education, stating in part that "Matters discussed in executive sessions must be treated as confidential; that is, never discussed out of executive session," would be inconsistent with Freedom of Information Law and Open Meetings Law; while information might be obtained during executive session properly held or from records marked "confidential," term "confidential" has narrow and precise technical meaning, and claim that records or information is characterized must be based on statute, or act of Congress or state legislature, that specifically confers or requires confidentiality. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3463.

To enable public to know how their elected officials feel about issues of significance, elected officials should not be discouraged from disclosing or discussing matters relating to their duties, but action or decision of majority of public body should be respected by dissenting members, and disclosing information shared in executive session, without consent of majority, could invade personal privacy, impair collective bargaining negotiations or otherwise damage government functions, even if no statute prohibits disclosure. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3562.

While local conditional release commission might in some instances have authority to take action during executive session, record indicating nature of its action, i.e., to grant or deny conditional release, could not justifiably be withheld under Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3784.

Whether meeting is open to public or closed is generally irrelevant with respect to participant's ability to disseminate information that he or she has acquired at meeting, and even when Open Meetings Law applies and public body validly enters into executive session, there is ordinarily nothing privileged or confidential about information expressed or acquired during executive session; to be confidential, particular statute must apply that prohibits disclosure and leaves no discretion to agency or official regarding ability to disclose. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3785.

Neither Freedom of Information Law, Open Meetings Law, or any other statute would have prohibited Board of Education or one of its members from disclosing participant's prepared statement or divulging what transpired during executive session, even if such disclosures would be unfair, unethical or inappropriate. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3830.

Unless Open Meetings Law (OML) authorizes state board to conduct public business in private, request for secrecy by federal officials has no bearing on board's obligation to comply with OML. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-4182.

School board member's disclosure of certain information about named personnel did not involve matter that could properly have been considered during executive session, where information consisted only of "innocuous" notes by board president. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-4192.

10. Executive session viewed as part of public meeting

Based upon language of Pub O § 105(1), it is clear that an executive session is not separate and distinct from an open meeting, but rather is a portion of an open meeting. Therefore, an open meeting must be convened prior to entry into an executive session. Comm on Open Govt OML-AO 918.

Executive session is portion of open meeting and cannot be conducted before open meeting has commenced; exception exists for matters made confidential by federal or state law; board and its attorney may meet privately before board meeting for purpose of seeking legal advice without going through procedures for executive session. Committee on Open Government OML-AO-1189.

Executive session is not separate and distinct from open meeting, but rather is portion of open meeting; motion to enter into executive session must include reference to "general area or areas of subject or subjects to be considered" during executive session; every time quorum of public body, majority of total membership, is present for purpose of conducting or discussing public business, that gathering is meeting subject to Open Meetings Law; since executive session is defined as portion of meeting, executive session may not be convened after meeting is adjourned; when public body ends its discussion of topic or topics identified in its motion for entry into executive session, it should return to open meeting. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-1441.

Executive session is not separate and distinct from open meeting, but rather it is portion of open meeting during which public may be excluded; public body cannot enter into executive session to discuss subject of its choice, but must only discuss subjects listed in Open Meetings Law as appropriate for discussion behind closed doors. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-1445.

Executive session is not separate from open meeting, but rather is portion of open meeting during which public may be excluded. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-1448.

"Executive session" is portion of open meeting during which public may be excluded and, as such, executive session is not separate and distinct from meeting, but rather it is portion of open meeting; public body cannot schedule executive session in advance of meeting, because vote to enter into executive session must be taken at meeting during which executive session is held. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-1451.

Executive session is not separate and distinct from open meeting; on contrary, executive session is part of open meeting that must be convened open to public and preceded by notice given to news media and by means of posting in accordance with CLS Pub O § 104. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2257.

Procedure apparently used by Mohawk Central School District Board of Education whereby notice given prior to meeting indicated that meeting would begin at 7:45 p.m., but board met at non-publicly advertised time of 7 p.m. and immediately entered into executive session, was inconsistent with Open Meetings Law; alternative method of achieving desired result of notifying public that it was not necessary to arrive at scheduled meeting time in order to be present when public business actually began would be to indicate, on agenda or notice of meeting, that meeting would commence at 7 p.m. (for example) and first item would be voting on motion to enter into executive session to discuss certain subjects. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3510.

While there is no requirement that public be informed of whether public body intends to return to open meeting following executive session, it would be considerate and courteous to do so. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3806.

Executive session is not separate from open meeting, but rather is portion of open meeting. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3860.

Public body cannot schedule executive session in advance of meeting, since, because vote to enter into executive session must be made and carried by majority vote of total membership during open meeting, it cannot be known in advance of that vote that such motion will indeed be approved. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-4067.

Rather than scheduling executive session in advance of meeting, which would violate Open Meetings Law, public body on its agenda or notice of meeting could refer to or schedule motion to enter into executive session to discuss certain subjects; reference to motion to conduct executive session would not represent assurance that executive session would ensue, but rather indicate that there is intent to enter into executive session by means of vote to be taken during meeting. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-4067.

11. Limiting number of executive sessions

There is nothing in OML that limits number of executive sessions that may be conducted during course of meeting of public body. Comm On Open Gov't OML-AO-1281.

12. Motions for executive sessions, generally

13. —Contents or components of motions

Motion for entry into executive session by board should contain two components, inclusion of term "particular" and reference to one or more of topics appearing in that provision. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4686.

School board, in teacher disciplinary matter, would not have been required to name subject of discussion before entering into executive session under Open Meetings law, or that charges, which were not proven, would have to have been disclosed under Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-13355.

Motion to enter into executive session must be made during open meeting, motion must indicate in general terms subject or subjects to be considered, and motion must be carried by majority vote of membership of public body; public body cannot schedule executive session in advance of meeting for it can not be known prior to meeting which members will be present or whether motion to enter into executive session will indeed be carried by majority of public body. Committee on Open Government OML-AO-1033.

In technical sense, executive session cannot be scheduled prior to meeting, as certain procedures must be accomplished during open meeting before executive session may be held, such that it cannot be known that executive session will indeed be held until motion is made and carried by majority vote of total membership of public body during open meeting; motion to enter into executive session to discuss "personnel", without greater description, is inadequate, and motion must contain reference to 2 elements, one being specific person or corporation and other should refer to one or more of topics listed in CLS Pub Off § 105(1)(f). 1986 Committee on Open Government OML-AO-1310.

With respect to motion for entry into executive session, it is insufficient to merely regurgitate the statutory language of ground for entry into executive session because such boiler plate recitation does not comply with intent of statute; so reference should be made only to those topics which will be discussed in executive session. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-1420.

Motion to enter into executive session must include, in general terms, reference to subject to be considered behind closed doors. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-1429.

Member of town board has authority to attend executive sessions called by town board unless and until member is legally barred from attending; motion to enter into executive session to discuss personnel or personnel matters without additional description is inadequate; motion for entry into executive session should contain two components, inclusion of term "particular", and reference to one or more of topics appearing in Open Meetings Law. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-1440.

Motion to enter into executive session must include reference to "general area or areas of subject or subjects to be considered" during executive session. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-1441.

Motion for entry into executive session should contain two components, inclusion of term "particular", and reference to one or more topics appearing in that provision. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-1460.

Motion to enter into executive session must be sufficiently detailed to enable board members and public to know that board is acting in compliance with requirements of Open Meeting Law. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2224.

Proper wording of motion to conduct executive session to discuss proposed, pending or current litigation involving public body might be: "I move to enter into executive session to discuss the case of the XYZ Corporation versus the [public body]," or something similar to that. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2250.

Motion to enter into executive session must be made during open meeting and include reference to general area or areas of subject or subjects to be considered during executive session. Public body cannot schedule or conduct executive session in advance of meeting because vote to enter into executive session must be taken at open meeting during which executive session is held. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2257.

Chairman of public body cannot simply take meeting into executive session; rather, rationale for proposed executive session must be offered in public, and rationale must be consistent with one or more grounds for entry into executive session authorized by law. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2414.

Motion to conduct executive session must include reference to subject or subjects to be discussed, and motion must be carried by majority vote of public body's membership before such session may validly be held. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2621.

Motion to conduct executive session must be sufficiently detailed to enable public to know that there is proper basis for entry into closed session, but need not identify person or position that is subject of discussion. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2748.

Motion to conduct executive session must include reference to subject or subjects to be discussed, and motion must be carried by majority vote of public body's membership before executive session may validly be held. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3131.

Motion at open meeting of county legislature's Executive Committee, for entry into executive session to discuss contract negotiations relating to potential development, did not adequately describe matter to be considered; absent sufficient detail, public had no way to ascertain whether, or extent to which, executive session could properly be held. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3296.

Motion to enter into executive session to discuss litigation strategy must name litigation, but if litigation strategy relates to person or entity that town board intends to sue, and premature identification of that person or entity would adversely affect interests of town board and town residents, motion need not identify person or entity in question, as long as it clearly states that litigation strategy is involved. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3646.

14. —Requirement that motions be made at open meetings

Every meeting of public body, including sub-committee, must be convened open to public, and executive session may be conducted only after open meeting has been convened. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4907.

Based upon language of Pub O § 105(1), it is clear that an executive session is not separate and distinct from an open meeting, but rather is a portion of an open meeting. Therefore, an open meeting must be convened prior to entry into an executive session. Comm on Open Govt OML-AO 918.

Executive session is portion of open meeting and cannot be conducted before open meeting has commenced; exception exists for matters made confidential by federal or state law; board and its attorney may meet privately before board meeting for purpose of seeking legal advice without going through procedures for executive session. Committee on Open Government OML-AO-1189.

Planning board for town may not hold or schedule executive session in advance of meeting because gathering conducted prior to regularly scheduled meetings of board are themselves "meetings" that should be convened to public and proceeded by notice; moreover, public body cannot enter into executive session to discuss subject of its choice; it is limited to subjects that may appropriately be considered during executive session. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-1433.

Even when subject to be discussed can properly be considered during executive session, public body must first convene open meeting, preceded by notice of time and place given in accordance with CLS Pub O § 104; following initiation of meeting in public, when subject arises that may be discussed in executive session, procedure described in CLS Pub O § 105(1) should be carried out. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2262.

Public body cannot schedule executive session in advance of meeting, because vote to enter into executive session must be made and carried by majority vote of total membership during open meeting. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3271.

Public body cannot schedule executive session in advance of meeting because vote to enter into executive session must be made and carried by majority vote of total membership during open meeting and thus it cannot be known in advance of that vote that motion will indeed be approved. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12095.

All meetings of public bodies must be held open to public, except that executive session may convene to discuss topic or topics that fall within grounds for calling executive session. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-1421.

Chairman of public body cannot simply take meeting into executive session; rather, rationale for proposed executive session must be offered in public, and rationale must be consistent with one or more grounds for entry into executive session authorized by law. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2414.

15. Voting for executive session, generally

16. —Majority requirement

It was improper for board of education to hold executive session prior to board meeting, because vote to enter into executive session must be made and carried by majority vote of total membership during open meeting, and it could not be known in advance of that vote whether motion would be approved. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12,342.

Motion to enter into executive session must be made during open meeting, motion must indicate in general terms subject or subjects to be considered, and motion must be carried by majority vote of membership of public body; public body cannot schedule executive session in advance of meeting for it can not be known prior to meeting which members will be present or whether motion to enter into executive session will indeed be carried by majority of public body. Committee on Open Government OML-AO-1033.

In technical sense, executive session cannot be scheduled prior to meeting, as certain procedures must be accomplished during open meeting before executive session may be held, such that it cannot be known that executive session will indeed be held until motion is made and carried by majority vote of total membership of public body during open meeting; motion to enter into executive session to discuss "personnel", without greater description, is inadequate, and motion must contain reference to 2 elements, one being specific person or corporation and other should refer to one or more of topics listed in CLS Pub Off § 105(1)(f). 1986 Committee on Open Government OML-AO-1310.

Open Meetings Law permits public body to enter into executive session, where appropriate, upon majority vote of its total membership; the phrase "total membership", is intended to mean whole number of members, notwithstanding vacancies or absences. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-1458.

Motion to conduct executive session must include reference to subject or subjects to be discussed, and motion must be carried by majority vote of public body's membership before such session may validly be held. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2621.

Motion to conduct executive session must include reference to subject or subjects to be discussed, and motion must be carried by majority vote of public body's membership before executive session may validly be held. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3131.

17. —Minutes of voting required

When vote is taken pursuant to motion to enter into executive session, minutes must be prepared which include reference to motion as well as manner in which each member cast his or her vote. Committee on Open Government FOIL-AO-3825.

When vote is taken pursuant to motion to enter into executive session, minutes must be prepared to include reference to motion as well as manner in which each member cast his or her vote. Committee on Open Government OML-AO-1197.

There are 2 vehicles under which public body may exclude public from its deliberations: (1) executive session, which is portion of open meeting during which public may be excluded through procedure that must be accomplished by vote of public body during open meeting; and (2) meeting which involves exemptions where provisions of Open Meetings Law do not apply. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-1413.

Since Open Meetings Law permits public bodies to vote in proper circumstances during executive session, roll call voting in public is not required; however, roll call vote and announcement of votes at same time they are cast would be consistent with law. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-4264.

While record of votes by members ordinarily is included in minutes, there is no requirement that it be included in minutes; such record may be maintained separate from minutes. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-4264.

II. Grounds For Holding Executive Session

18. In general

Mere possibility that ground for entry into executive session might arise does not permit executive session to be held; unless and until it does become suject of discussion, executive session cannot be conducted. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-1285.

Public body cannot conduct executive session to discuss subject of its choice; on contrary, its meetings must be conducted open to public, unless and until topic arises that may properly be discussed during executive session. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-1461.

Public body can only enter into executive session after specific procedure spelled out in Open Meetings Law has been followed; to extent that sub-committee considers matters dealing with particular person in conjunction with one or more topics described in Open Meetings Law, executive sessions may be properly convened; however, to extent that discussions pertained to policies, procedures or functions inherent in certain positions, those discussions should be held in public. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4907.

As to executive sessions, Open Meetings Law is based upon considerations of common sense and provides public bodies with protection they need to carry out their duties effectively. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-1356.

Open Meetings Law permits public body, such as board of education, to conduct executive session for several specified purposes; discussion of terms and conditions of employment between public body employee association is part of collective negotiation and as such, executive session could be conducted; negotiations between public body and public employee union could also be conducted in private. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-1417.

Zoning board of appeals must deliberate in public, except to extent that topic may justifiably be considered during executive session; unless one or more of these topics arises, public body, including zoning board of appeals, must deliberate in public. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-1418.

Executive session is not separate and distinct from open meeting, but rather it is portion of open meeting during which public may be excluded; public body cannot enter into executive session to discuss subject of its choice, but must only discuss subjects listed in Open Meetings Law as appropriate for discussion behind closed doors. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-1445.

Public body cannot enter into executive session to discuss subject of its choice but is specifically limited to topics listed in Open Meetings Law; action taken in executive session remains valid unless and until court renders determination to contrary. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-1448.

All meetings must be preceded by notice and conducted open to public, unless and until executive session may be held to discuss one or more topics of discussion described in Open Meetings Law. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-1450.

Public body cannot enter into executive session to discuss subject of its choice and is limited to subjects listed in Open Meetings Law; further, motion to enter into executive session must identify in general terms the area or areas of subject or subjects to be considered. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-1451.

Motion to enter into executive session must include reference to general area or areas of subject or subjects to be considered during executive session; therefore, motion for entry into executive session should contain two components, inclusion of term "particular", and reference to one or more topics appearing in that provision. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-1460.

As general matter, Open Meetings Law is based on presumption of openness and all meetings of public bodies must be conducted open to public, except to extent that executive session may be convened; executive session is defined in Open Meetings Law to mean portion of open meeting during which public may be excluded and, as such, executive session is not separate and distinct from meeting, but rather is portion of open meeting. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-1463.

CLS Pub O § 105(1)(f) does not permit public body to discuss every subject that might arise in relation to "particular person," but rather pertains only to certain enumerated subjects that relate to individual; § 105(1)(f) was intended to protect privacy, not to shield policy matters under guise of privacy. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2183.

While Open Meetings Law authorizes public bodies to conduct executive sessions in circumstances described in CLS Pub O § 105(1)(a) through (h), there is no requirement that executive session be held even though public body has right to do so. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2278.

While board of education could convene executive session to interview candidates for district clerk position pursuant to "personnel" exception of Open Meetings Law, state-sponsored budget workshop attended by board members was improperly discussed later at that executive session, even if budget issues often have impact on personnel. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3271.

Under CLS RPTL § 525(2)(a), assessor's remarks concerning complaints made to town board of assessment review could be made only in open sessions; thus, insofar as assessor was present for purpose of offering information or point of view, public was entitled to be present. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3668.

While Town Ethics Board and Town Board clearly have ability to enter into executive session under CLS Pub O § 105(1)(f) to discuss certain matters relating to "particular person," there is no obligation to do so. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3712.

Based on judicial interpretations of Education Law, school board generally cannot vote during executive session, except in those unusual circumstances in which statute permits or requires such vote. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3798.

When discussion at meeting concerns matters of policy, such as manner in which public money will be expended or allocated, functions of department, creation or elimination of positions, or matters relating to budget, CLS Pub O § 105(1)(f) could not be asserted, even though discussion may relate to "personnel." Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3831.

CLS Pub O § 105(1)(f) would have validly served as means of entering into executive session, even though consideration of creating certain position (not valid for executive session) may have been separate from performance of particular principal (valid for executive session), where 2 issues could not be segregated or discussed separately. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3831.

19. Collective bargaining negotiations

Provision permitting public body to enter into executive session to discuss negotiations is limited to discussion of collective bargaining negotiations under article 14 of civil service law, and does not apply to discussions concerning site of state prison. Committee on Open Government OML-AO-1186.

Public body may conduct executive session concerning collective bargaining negotiations with public employee union and as such, executive session would be proper to extent that it involves collective bargaining negotiations. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-1434.

Where highway department employees are not members of union, CLS Pub O § 105(1)(e) is not applicable and cannot serve as basis for conducting executive session. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2393.

CLS Pub O § 105(1)(e) could not serve as basis for conducting executive session with regard to 5 heavy machine equipment operators who collectively united, sought and received services of attorney to represent them before town board to negotiate their labor contract since group of equipment operators did not qualify as employee organization for purposes of Taylor Law. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2419.

If employees of Town of Sandy Creek were not members of any collective bargaining organization, CLS Civ S §§ 204-a and 209 would not apply and there would be no basis to enter into executive session to discuss health insurance for town employees. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3616.

Consideration of grievance could not properly occur in executive session based on CLS Pub O § 105(1)(e), since grievance does not involve collective negotiations, but rather whether terms of existing agreement are being carried out in accordance with collective bargaining agreement. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3941.

Insofar as contract between school board and teachers' union may require that executive session must be held to resolve grievances, even if Open Meetings Law or some other provision requires that proceeding be open, any such provision is invalid and of no effect. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3994.

If grievance under contract between school board and teachers' union relates, for example, to teacher's health or medical condition, it is likely that executive session could be justified under CLS Pub O § 105(1)(f). Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3994.

Proper motion to enter into executive session on grounds of negotiation might be: "I move to enter into executive session to discuss the collective bargaining negotiations involving the police union"; public body should make it clear that negotiations to be discussed in executive session involve CLS Civ S Art 14 (Taylor Law). Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-4091.

20. Employment matters, generally

21. —Educational employment

If issue before board of education involves extent to certain records are public or should not have been disclosed, there is no basis for entry into executive session; however, if board wishes to discuss actions taken by employee is disclosing records and perhaps removal of employee, CLS Pub O § 105(1)(f) might permit entry into executive session. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9443.

Board of Education should have conducted in public discussion pertaining to reinstatement of bus aides who were eliminated under 2000-2001 budget, as focus of discussion was not on any particular person, but rather related to school district's needs and resources. Board of Education should have conducted in public its discussion of interview process for assistant principal position at certain school, because focus was on procedure, not particular person; however, discussion of whether to offer assistant principal position to named individual could have been conducted in executive session. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12313.

Neither discussion of ways and means of hiring a school superintendent nor discussion of the purchase of computers are properly conducted in executive session, but discussion of the appointment of a business manager might justifiably be conducted in an executive session pursuant to Pub O § 105(1)(f). Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-918.

Subject matter of grievances filed by teachers association does not constitute permissible grounds for entering into executive session under CLS Pub O § 105; however, to extent that school board "hears" grievances filed by teachers association and renders final and binding determination, board might have engaged in "quasi judicial proceeding", exempt from Open Meetings Law under § 108; however, if grievances were merely discussed by board, such discussion would have been subject to Law. Committee on Open Government OML-AO-1098.

Budgetary matters, such as funding or elimination of positions or programs, may not be discussed by school board in executive session, since discussion of "personnel" matters in executive session is appropriate only when subject involves particular person or persons, and only when one or more topics listed in CLS Pub O § 105(1)(f) is considered; § 105(1)(f) does not apply to discussion of policy matters, including staff reductions and layoffs, and which positions should be retained or abolished. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2203.

Second clause of CLS Pub O § 105(1)(f) could not be invoked as basis for conducting executive session with regard to election of chancellor for Board of Regents since discussions concerning choice of chancellor would not involve matter concerning employment or promotion as regent could be characterized as employee and since election of chancellor would not constitute appointment. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2450.

Discussion pertaining to school superintendent and his contract can properly be discussed in executive session since such discussion would deal with superintendent's performance, i.e., his employment history. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2459.

Board of education does not have ability to discuss candidates for vacant elective position in executive session. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2462.

CLS Pub O § 105(1)(f) did not permit New York State Board of Regents to conduct executive session to weigh evidence taken during public hearing, apply law and reach determination regarding termination of members of board of education since matter under discussion pertained to failures of board of education as whole, rather than particular member of board of education. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2551.

Board of education's discussion of criteria for search for new superintendent could not properly be considered in executive session, although it involved "personnel matter"; so-called "personnel" exception under CLS Pub O § 105(1)(f) was intended largely to protect privacy, not to shield matters of policy under guise of privacy. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2695.

Discussion of "leadership style" of president of board of education does not fall within coverage of CLS Pub O § 105(1)(f). Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2785.

22. —Particular person or corporation as subject, generally

23. — —Ethical considerations

If issue before board of ethics involves particular person in conjunction with one or more of subjects listed in CLS Pub O § 105(1)(f), executive session could appropriately be held. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7914.

If issue before board of ethics involves particular person in conjunction with one or more of subjects listed in CLS Pub O § 105(1)(f), executive session may appropriately be held. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9522.

If issue before board of ethics involves particular person in conjunction with one or more of subjects listed in CLS Pub O § 105(1)(f), executive session could appropriately be held. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2269.

Discussions of town ethics board, regarding complaint of alleged misconduct of member of town board, could occur in executive session. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3712.

24. — —Independent contractor status

Discussions regarding election of school board officers did not fall within any grounds for entry into executive session, although discussion and election of officers involves consideration of particular individuals, since it was unlikely that any specific subjects included in CLS Pub O § 105(1)(f) would arise in conjunction therewith. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2245.

25. — —Medical or health history

Except in rare instance in which person's medical condition or history may be at issue, election does not involve any of subjects appearing in CLS Pub O § 105(1)(f). Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2271.

Initial clause of CLS Pub O § 105(1)(f) could be invoked as basis for conducting executive session with regard to election of chancellor for Board of Regents since physical ability of individual to hold position could be issue, particularly if that person had history of health problems, and since it was also possible that discussion might involve individual's financial or employment history. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2450.

If grievance under contract between school board and teachers' union relates, for example, to teacher's health or medical condition, it is likely that executive session could be justified under CLS Pub O § 105(1)(f). Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3994.

26. — —Retaining attorney

Discussion of which attorney or firm should be retained in connection with litigation will likely fall within CLS Pub O § 105(1)(f) and justify conduct of executive session. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7933.

Discussion of which attorney or firm should be retained by agency would likely fall within CLS Pub O § 105(1)(f) and would justify executive session. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2274.

Discussion focusing on individual candidates to fill vacancy on board of education might validly be considered in executive session as it would involve matter leading to appointment of particular person. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9290.

Insofar as discussion at executive session at meeting of board of education involved matter leading to dismissal or removal of school district resident who helped to prepare and then prematurely disclosed draft survey to be distributed to voters on day of board elections and budget vote, there was proper basis for conducting executive session. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9499.

Community college board of trustees could discuss issues pertaining to college president in private. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-10151.

Although the decision by a town board to form a committee is not a proper subject for executive session discussion, discussion of particular individuals to be appointed to such a committee is a proper subject. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-885.

To the extent that a village planning board engages in discussions of the financial history of a particular corporation or the viability of that corporation in relation to its credit history, Pub O § 105(1)(f) provides a basis for entry into executive session. Comm on Open Govt OML-AO 909.

If discussion of administrative assignments is general in nature and involves, for example, the number of administrators or the nature of administrative workloads, no ground exists for convening an executive session. On the other hand, if the discussion involves a review of the performance or employment history of a particular administrator or administrators, an executive session is proper. Comm on Open Govt OML-AO 919.

"Personnel" justification for executive session may appropriately be invoked only when issue deals with particular person or corporation, and board's discussion whether or not to fill vacant position based upon needs of district or budgetary concerns involves issues of policy that must be discussed in open meeting since those considerations of policy do not pertain to particular person. Committee on Open Government OML-AO-1032.

Executive session is not authorized where discussion simply involves consideration of elimination of positions, since issues do not pertain to particular persons. Committee on Open Government OML-AO-1033.

When listing agenda to enter into executive session, agenda need not include reference to name or other identifying details concerning individual who will be subject of discussion. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-1420.

Village board of trustees could not appropriately enter into executive session to discuss change in job description of village attorney from part-time to full-time position "with various new duties" since (1) situation dealt with allocation of public moneys, (2) discussion of job description related to duties or functions inherent in position, not to particular person, and (3) discussion pertaining to creation of full-time attorney's position involved policy matters. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2206.

Discussion involving qualifications for position of school principal, or method of advertising availability and salary of position, could not validly be conducted during executive session since discussion would not pertain to specific individual; however, if and when board reviewed applications submitted by specific candidates for position, CLS Pub O § 105(1)(f) would apply as basis for conducting executive session. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2215.

Town board could properly discuss whether to increase salary of justice court clerk or accept his resignation in executive session. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2216.

Insofar as Board of Regents considers criteria inherent in position of chancellor or attributes or qualifications of any person who might serve in that position, CLS Pub O § 105(1)(f) cannot be asserted to justify executive session with regard to election of chancellor for board since such discussion would not focus on any "particular person" but rather on functions associated with position of chancellor and characteristics that any person who fulfills that role should or perhaps should not possess; however, if and when discussion pertains to particular person, language of statute would become applicable. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2450.

With respect to discussion by board of education concerning salaries and benefits of non-union administrators, to extent that board considered administrators as group, rather than individually, there was no basis for conducting executive session; on other hand, insofar as board focused on particular administrators and their performance (i.e., whether particular administrator merited increase based on performance and, if so, how much), executive session was appropriate. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2459.

Board of education has ability to discuss discipline of specific students in executive session pursuant to CLS Pub O § 105(1)(f). Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2522.

It was inappropriate for superintendent of schools to use "specific history of a particular person" as reason to move into executive session to discuss financial problems like double bookings of revenues, or other items that created dollar shortfall in budget, notwithstanding superintendent's concern that public would demand to know who was responsible or speculate that business manager was at fault; financial issues should have been discussed in public without any personnel discussion. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3463.

Resolution approved by board of education in executive session, which authorized board and district superintendent to execute contract with particular employee, should have included name of employee, and minutes of executive session should have indicated, in some manner, nature of agreement and identity of district employee. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3472.

Sole ground for entry into executive session—CLS Pub O § 105(1)(f)—would be pertinent to duties of local conditional release commission; thus, discussion of medical history of inmate or perhaps victim or that person's relations could be held in executive session. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3784.

If action by school board were taken with respect to district's financial officer alleged to have misappropriated funds, i.e., to terminate her or to accept her retirement, any such action could properly have been taken only during open meeting. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3798.

When problem regarding embezzlement of school district funds was discovered and connected to chief financial officer, executive session could have been held to discuss nature of action that might be taken relative to her where some aspects of school board's discussion of situation would have involved matter leading to demotion, discipline or dismissal of particular person. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3798.

Discussion of "a contract to secure the services of a developer" may be considered during executive session under CLS Pub O § 105(1)(f), which governs matter leading to employment of particular corporation, perhaps as well as that entity's financial, credit or employment history. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3806.

Due to presence of term "particular" in CLS Pub O § 105(1)(f), discussion of "personnel" may be considered in executive session only when subject involves particular person or persons, and only when at least one of topics listed in § 105(1)(f) is considered. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3831.

When discussion at public meeting concerns matters of policy, such as manner in which public money will be expended or allocated, functions of department or perhaps creation or elimination of positions, CLS Pub O § 105(1)(f) could not be asserted, even though discussion may relate to "personnel." Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3860.

If public body has ability to discipline or impose sanctions against one of its members, including members who are elected officials, discussion concerning possibility of doing so could be conducted during executive session, since such discussion would apparently involve matter leading to discipline of particular person. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3902.

Insofar as pension board discusses "financial history" of particular corporation, CLS Pub O § 105(1)(f) could properly be cited as basis for conducting executive session. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3931.

When public board is discussing grievance under collective bargaining agreement, sole ground for entry into executive session that might be pertinent would be CLS Pub O § 105(1)(f), but only if grievance pertains to particular person in relation to subject described in that provision; if, however, grievance involves policy concerning duties applicable to all employees, there would be no basis for conducting executive session under § 105(1)(f). Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3941.

If discussion by town board—centering "around payment for police, fire and related government services"—involves financial history of not-for-profit entity or matters leading to its appointment or employment by town, to that extent executive session could properly be held. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-4041.

Executive session under CLS Pub O § 105(1)(f) could be asserted only to extent that Town Board discussed "matters leading to" town justice's "discipline, suspension, dismissal or removal," assuming that board has authority to seek to discipline, suspend, dismiss or remove town justice; however, if no such authority exists, executive session could not properly be held to discuss any such issues. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-4059.

Proper motion to enter into executive session on grounds of "personnel" matters might be: "I move to enter into an executive session to discuss the employment history of a particular person (or persons)"; such motion would not have to identify person or persons who may be subject of discussion. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-4091.

Proper motion to enter into executive session on grounds of employment history might be: "I move to enter into an executive session to discuss the employment history of a particular person (or persons)"; such motion would not have to identify person or persons who may be subject of discussion. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-4091.

If one issue at meeting would involve employment history of particular person or perhaps matter leading to discipline or removal of particular person, executive session may properly be held. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-4245.

CLS Pub O § 105(1)(f) would validly serve as means of entering into executive session where 2 issues (performance of particular individual and creation of particular position) cannot be segregated or discussed separately. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-4245.

Gordon v Village of Monticello, mod on other grounds 207 AD2d 55 (1994), is "influential precedent" for proposition that executive session may not be entered into by public body in order to discuss filling vacancy in elective office, despite CLS Pub O § 105(1)(f) regarding consideration of employment matters. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12918.

An executive session of a town board may not be conducted to discuss "personnel" where discussion regards elected officials, since such discussion could not lead to removal, dismissal or discipline of individuals involved, particularly where the town has not adopted a code of ethics. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-878.

Public Officers Law § 100(1)(f) [now § 105(1)(f)] is properly cited as basis for entry into executive session by planning board to engage in discussion of the financial history of a particular corporation, or the "liability" of that corporation in relation to its credit history. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-909.

Discussion of "personnel" may be considered in executive session only when subject involves particular person or persons, and only when one or more of topics listed in § 105(1)(f) are considered, and motion containing recitation of statutory language of grounds for executive session, or "personnel", for example, without more, fails to comply with law. 1986 Committee on Open Government OML-AO-1300.

General discussion of moneys allotted for personnel salaries and general personnel related matters does not qualify for discussion during executive session, and exemptions provided for in CLS Pub Off § 105(1)(f) do not include budgetary matters or matters of policy, but only to situations involving particular person. 1986 Committee on Open Government OML-AO-1335.

Executive session cannot be held to discuss salary that should be accorded particular position in municipality, even though there may be but one person in such position, as such matter concerns issue of policy regarding position, irrespective of who might hold that position, unless issue involves how well or poorly particular employer carried out his or her duties. 1986 Committee on Open Government OML-AO-1351.

While issues relative to budget may have impact on personnel, those issues generally relate to personnel generally or manner in which public moneys may be expended, rather than performance of particular employee; if discussion of budget involves considerations of policy relative to expenditures of public moneys, there is no legal basis for entering into executive session. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-1434.

Motion to enter into executive session to discuss personnel or personnel matters without additional description is inadequate; motion for entry into executive session should contain two components, inclusion of term "particular", and reference to one or more of topics appearing in Open Meetings Law. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-1440.

Insofar as reorganization includes designation of board members to certain committees or involves designation of others to carry out certain functions, i.e., designation of individual as records access officer for purpose of responding to requests made under Freedom of Information Law, those considerations might involve one's employment history or matter leading to appointment of particular person or persons that could properly be discussed in executive session under CLS Pub O § 105(1)(f). Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2271.

Due to insertion of term "particular" in CLS Pub O § 105(1)(f), discussion of "personnel" may be considered in executive session only when subject involves particular person or persons and only when one or more of topics listed in CLS Pub O § 105(1)(f) are considered. When discussion concerns matters of policy, such as manner in which public money will be expended or allocated, CLS Pub O § 105(1)(f) cannot be asserted, even though discussion relates to "personnel." Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2276.

Discussions relating to budgetary matters, such as funding or reduction of positions, cannot appropriately be discussed during executive session. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2570.

While discussions of police agency consolidations or mergers might involve "personnel" and/or "contract negotiations," it is doubtful that those issues can properly be discussed in executive sessions. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2608.

Discussion about hiring former board member as consultant should have been conducted in public, not in executive session, where discussion did not deal with that person's qualifications, but rather dealt with whether board should delegate task in question (revising board policy) to private citizen, and whether district should pay consultant to travel to Albany to file final policy with state education department. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3198.

Since interviewing candidate for position would involve matter leading to appointment or employment of particular person, as well as consideration of that person's employment history, executive session may properly be held. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3478.

If board's discussion of "pay raises for elected officials including themselves" involved across-the-board increase, executive session would not be proper, but if discussion focused on individual employee or board member and whether pay increase was merited, matter related to "a particular person" and executive session could validly be held. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3537.

"Interrogation" of member of board of education concerning his or her actions would likely not fall within subject areas appearing in CLS Pub O § 105(1)(f). Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3562.

If village board's discussion of contract details of appointed, non-union personnel focused on particular person in relation to his or her performance, i.e., his or her employment history, or matter leading to his or her promotion or demotion, executive session could properly have been held; however, if such personnel were considered as group, i.e., for "across the board" consideration of appointees, there would not have been basis for entry into executive session. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-4030.

Due to insertion of term "particular" in CLS Pub O § 105(1)(f), discussion of "personnel" may be considered in executive session only when subject involves particular person or persons, and only when at least one topic listed in § 105(1)(f) is considered. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-4091.

Term "personnel" appears in neither Open Meetings Law nor Freedom of Information law, and characterization of issue as "personnel matter" does not necessarily to lead to conclusion that matter is confidential. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-4168.

When personnel matter involves "the hiring process," rather than "particular person", CLS Pub O § 105(1)(f) may not be asserted to justify holding executive session. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-4168.

Even though issue or action taken might relate only to one employee, when that action would affect or serve as precedent in cases arising in future pertaining to other persons in similar situations, there would be no basis for entry into executive session. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-4168.

Only to extent that matters considered by city council might have focused on particular person in conjunction with one or more of qualifying topics appearing in CLS Pub O § 105(1)(f) may executive session properly be held. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-4168.

When discussion concerns matters of policy, such as manner in which public money will be expended or allocated, functions of department, creation or elimination of positions, or matters relating to budget, CLS Pub O § 105(1)(f) could not be asserted, even though discussion may relate to "personnel." Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-4245.

27. Litigation matters, generally

28. —Possible, proposed or threatened litigation

"Possible" litigation does not constitute valid basis for entry into executive session, for virtually any subject discussed by a public body could eventually be the topic of litigation. Comm on Open Govt OML-AO 908.

Executive session cannot be conducted solely because there might be possible litigation initiated by group of people who oppose project. Committee on Open Government OML-AO-1074.

"Possible" litigation does not constitute appropriate basis for entry into executive session. Comm On Open Gov't OML-AO-1205.

If common council meets to discuss claims which appear to "propose" litigation, and council intends to discuss its legal strategy, such discussion can be held in executive session; however, if discussion is held strictly to determine exact nature and extent of claims against city, then discussion cannot be held in executive session. Comm On Open Gov't OML-AO-1211.

Threat or fear of litigation does not, without more, constitute valid basis for entry into executive session, and any motion to go into executive session must identify general area to be considered, and it is insufficient to merely regurgitate statutory language. 1986 Committee on Open Government OML-AO-1308.

Provision of Open Meetings Law permitting public body to enter into executive session to discuss proposed, pending, or current litigation (CLS Pub Off § 105(1)(d)) does not permit executive sessions to discuss issues that might eventually result in litigation, nor does statute permit executive session to be held to discuss issue merely because there is "potential" for litigation. 1986 Committee on Open Government OML-AO-1352.

Threat or mere possibility of litigation does not, without more, constitute valid basis for entry into executive session because litigation exception is to enable public body to discuss pending litigation privately, without bearing strategy to its adversary through mandatory public meeting; mere presence of attorney with municipal board did not automatically result in privileged relationship and exemption from Open Meetings Law; subject matter of discussion and nature of communication determine applicability of attorney-client relationship and existence of exemption from Open Meetings Law. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-1421.

Unless board discusses its litigation strategy, it does not appear that CLS Pub O § 105(1)(d) could justifiably be cited to conduct executive session; further, possibility that litigation might ensue would not constitute valid basis for entry into executive session. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2274.

CLS Pub O § 105(1)(d) does not permit public body to conduct executive session due to possibility or fear of litigation. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2566.

CLS Pub O § 105(1)(d) did not justify discussion of controversial proposal in executive session due to possibility or fear of litigation, as exception to open meeting requirements for discussion of "proposed, pending or current litigation" applies to litigation strategy, not issues that might eventually result in litigation; if possibility or fear of litigation were valid basis for entry into executive session, little would remain to be discussed in public. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2705.

Litigation exception is intended to permit town board to privately discuss litigation strategy, not issues that might eventually result in litigation. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3646.

29. —Settlement discussions

If discussion of judicial settlement occurs between County Board and its opponent in litigation, no ground for entry into executive session could justifiably be cited. Committee on Open Government OML-AO-1078.

When village board and lawyers for adversary in litigation with village sit down together to work out settlement, Open Meetings Law requires that this be done in open session, and in such case, public body cannot justify executive session to discuss pending litigation with its adversary. 1986 Committee on Open Government, OML-AO-1316.

Unless agency discusses its litigation strategy, CLS Pub O § 105(1)(d) will not justify conduct of executive session; further, possibility that litigation might ensue will not constitute valid basis for entry into executive session. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7933.

Public body may not hold executive session to discuss issue merely because there is possibility of litigation, as potential litigation could be subject (or result) of nearly any topic; only to extent that public body discusses its litigation strategy can executive session be properly held under CLS Pub O § 105(1)(d). Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12124.

Only to extent that public body discusses its litigation strategy and related settlement strategy, executive session can properly be held under CLS Pub O § 105(1)(d); public body may not conduct executive session due to possibility or fear of litigation. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-16526.

Pub O § 105(1)(d) does not authorize a zoning board of appeals to hold an executive session to discuss an application for a variance notwithstanding that a majority of the board believes it is highly likely that an appeal from its decision will be made to the courts. Comm on Open Govt OML-AO 926.

Motion to enter into executive session to discuss "litigation" without additional specificity is inadequate; motion must identify particular litigation that is being considered. Committee on Open Government OML-AO-1033.

Although motion to enter into executive session must in general terms identify topics to be considered, in discussion of discrimination complaint, motion need not identify either complainant or subject of complaint brought before Human Rights Commission of village. Committee on Open Government OML-AO-1203.

To extent that city council committee intended to seek legal advice of its attorney, such gathering would not be subject to requirements of Open Meetings Law, since it involves attorney/client relationship, matter made confidential by state law, but to extent that committee sought to reach consensus regarding litigation at issue, such gathering would be "meeting" subject to Open Meetings Law, though executive session could be convened where issue involved pending litigation. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-1376.

Exception from open meeting based on discussion of litigation is intended to permit public body to discuss its litigation strategy behind closed doors, rather than issues that might eventually result in litigation; further, since possible or potential litigation can be result of nearly any topic discussed by public body, executive session cannot be held to discuss issue merely because there is potential for litigation. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-1429.

Although notices of claim might have been filed against town by residents due to flood damages sustained by them, discussion of drainage report that did not include consideration of town's litigation strategy relating to those claims would not qualify for entry of public works committee meeting into executive session under CLS Pub O § 105(1)(d). Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2211.

CLS Pub O § 105(1)(a) through (h) did not justify town board's entry into executive session for purpose of deciding whether member of public, who had brought action against town based on its alleged failure to implement zoning law, should be given permission to comment on zoning law issue, since executive session was not called to consider litigation. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2214.

CLS Pub O § 105(1)(d) is intended to permit public body to discuss its litigation strategy behind closed doors, rather than issues that might eventually result in litigation. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2264.

Executive session cannot be held to avoid pending litigation; CLS Pub O § 105(1)(d) allows entry into executive session only to discuss litigation strategy. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2365.

Village board's practice of refusing to identify litigation matter which would be discussed in executive session violated Open Meetings Law. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2451.

Town board could not properly enter into executive session with party against which it had instituted litigation since CLS Pub O § 105(1)(d) only applies to permit executive session to enable public body to discuss pending litigation privately, without baring its strategy to its adversary through mandatory public meetings. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2464.

Exception regarding litigation would not serve as valid basis for county to conduct executive session if county is not and does not expect to be party to such litigation; since there would be no consideration of "its" litigation strategy, county would have no adversary in any legal proceeding. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3754.

There is no provision in Open Meetings Law that directly authorizes public body to discuss "legal matters" during executive session; provision most analogous to "legal matters" is CLS Pub O § 105(1)(d), which permits public body to enter into executive session to discuss "proposed, pending or current litigation." Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3806.

Litigation exception of CLS Pub O § 105(1)(d) is intended to permit public body to discuss its litigation strategy behind closed doors, rather than issues that might eventually result in litigation. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3806.

When discussion in public meeting relates to litigation that has been initiated, motion to enter into executive session must name such litigation; if Town Board seeks to discuss its litigation strategy in relation to person or entity that it intends to sue, and if premature identification of that person or entity could adversely affect interests of Town and its residents, motion need not identify that person or entity, but it should clearly indicate that discussion will involve litigation strategy. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3806.

Term "litigation" in CLS Pub O § 105(1)(d) involves judicial contest, and discussion of labor grievance under collective bargaining agreement does not involve judicial contest; thus, § 105(1)(d) would not be applicable as basis for entry into executive session. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3941.

Proper motion to enter into executive session on grounds of litigation strategy might be: "I move to enter into executive session to discuss our litigation strategy in the case of the XYZ Company v. the Board of Education." Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-4091.

Even if litigation exception permitted State Board of Elections to hold executive session to avert lawsuit by federal Department of Justice (DOJ) over implementation of federal Help America Vote Act, ability of board to conduct closed session ended when adversary (DOJ) was permitted to attend. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-4182.

If representative of Oneida Indian Nation were invited to attend city Common Council executive session, council would have lost its authority to conduct private session under pending litigation exception of Open Meetings Law. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-4214.

If there were court order in effect on date of meeting, requiring negotiations or settlement discussions to be kept confidential, meeting for purpose of conducting settlement negotiations between city Common Council and Oneida Indian Nation would be outside coverage of the Open Meetings Law, and thus procedure for entry into executive session would not apply. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-4214.

30. Sale, lease or acquisition of real property, generally

31. —Hospital property

Executive session held by board of legislators to discuss sale of county hospital to not-for-profit corporation was improper where no bidding or actual market value of hospital was involved and thus public discussion would not have any impact on value of property; however, executive session could be held, even when parties and site of parcel were known, insofar as public discussion of financial terms or negotiation process might have substantial effect on value of property. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2691.

32. —School property

Village zoning board of appeals could not enter into executive session to decide legality of private property owner renting out part of his residence to private dance school since village was not party to proposed lease. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2427.

It was unlikely that presentation made by firm regarding offer to purchase school district property could have fallen with scope of CLS Pub O § 105(1)(h) so as to justify executive session of board of education. To extent that board of education engaged in general discussion of benefits or disadvantages of selling school district property in connection with presentation made by firm regarding such purchase, it did not appear that such discussion could properly have occurred in executive session. Insofar as board of education might have discussed possible financial terms or engaged in negotiation process regarding proposal by firm to purchase school district property, it was possible that public discussion at that juncture might have significantly affected value of property and justified executive session. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2558.

Executive session concerning the purchase of property is improper where the particulars surrounding the purchase are generally known. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-85.

Town board did not have basis to conduct executive session to discuss issue of whether town should purchase bottled water and supply additional 20 gallons of water for washing daily, or reinstall electricity to operate water pump for landfill attendant, since such matter involved policy issue, and although it might relate to particular employee, it did not appear to involve that person's performance or any subject included in CLS Pub O § 105(1)(f). Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2208.

Solid waste authority was not justified in conducting executive session to select 2 possible sites for landfill where top 10 potential sites had previously been disclosed to public in several newspaper articles; public body may conduct executive session to discuss real property transactions only to extent that publicity would "substantially affect the value" of property. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2223.

Proposed acquisition or lease of real property may be discussed in executive session only when publicity would substantially affect value or property. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2345.

While motion to enter into executive session need not necessarily identify parcel or parcels of land under consideration, in view of language of CLS Pub O § 105(1)(h), there must be some indication in motion that publicity would substantially affect value of property. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2373.

There was no basis on which to conduct executive session in connection with purchase of parcel of property by county where location of parcel had already been disclosed publicly. contract of sale had already been signed by owner of parcel and all that remained to complete sale was approval by county board since, on approval by board, seller had no choice but to sell property at agreed price. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2391.

Typically, if location of parcel and likelihood of transaction are known to public, CLS Pub O § 105(1)(h) will not apply; in those circumstances, publicity usually has minimal or insignificant impact on value of real property. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2470.

CLS Pub § 105(1)(h) would not permit town board to conduct executive session to discuss appropriate boundary line between village and town, and potential sale of real property to private landowner, as such issues did not "substantially affect" value of town property. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2747.

Town board was not justified in entering into executive session under CLS Pub O § 105(1)(h) to discuss grant application matters, if focus was not on particular parcel, negotiation strategy, or indication of price. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3142.

Proper basis did not exist for planning board to enter into executive session when reviewing subdivision application, although town was in process of negotiating for acquisition of easement or "development rights" to parcel in question, where all parties that might be affected by town's proposed purchase were aware of property involved and of negotiations in question. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3601.

At joint meeting of town board and public library board of trustees, town board should not have held executive session to discuss site of new library in private, where location of site suggested by board of trustees was already well known to public, and town already owned site chosen by town board. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3646.

Language of CLS Pub O § 105(1)(h) does not refer to negotiations per se or impact of publicity on negotiations relating to parcel of land; rather, its proper assertion is limited to situations in which publicity would have substantial effect on value of property. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3764.

Language of CLS Pub O § 105(1)(h) (real estate exception permitting entry into executive session) does not refer to negotiations per se or impact of publicity on negotiations relating to parcel; rather, its proper assertion is limited to situations in which publicity would have substantial effect on value of property. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3889.

33. Sufficiency of motion

Motion describing subject to be discussed at executive session of public body as "personnel" or "specific personnel matters" is inadequate; such motion should be based upon specific language of CLS Pub O § 105(1)(f), for example, "I move to enter into executive session to discuss employment history of particular person (or persons)"; such motion need not identify person or persons who may be subject of discussion. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9522.

Generalization of matters to be discussed during an executive session such as "contractual matters" or "personal matters" or "pending litigation" are insufficient. A public body entering into executive session to discuss "personal matters" should indicate by motion the topic within Public Officers Law § 100(1)(f) [now § 105(1)(f)] as well as the fact that the discussion will refer to a "particular" person, although the identity of the individual who is the subject of the discussion need not be disclosed. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-870.

School board's identification of subject to be discussed in executive session as "specific personnel" is insufficient indication and fails to comply with Open Meetings Law; motion to enter into executive session under CLS Pub O § 105(1)(f) should include reference to "particular person", who need not be named, plus one of topics in that provision. Committee on Open Government OML-AO-1095.

Motion indicating that topic to be discussed involves "various communications" would not, according to case law, comply with OML § 105; similarly, motion to enter into executive session under "category f" would also not comply. Proper motion to go into executive session under § 105[1][f] might be "I move to enter into executive session to discuss matter leading to discipline of particular person"; to protect privacy of person who is subject of discussion, that person need not be identified in motion. Comm On Open Gov't OML-AO-1279.

Motion to enter into executive session to discuss "personnel matters", without additional description, is inadequate; it should contain two components, inclusion of term "particular", and reference to one or more of topics appearing in § 105. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-1289.

Proper motion for executive session by school district's board of education considering annual evaluation of superintendent should include reference to one or more of the topics listed in CLS Pub Off § 105(1)(f), as well as reference to fact that discussion focuses upon particular person, and motion containing recitation of ground for executive session as "personnel", for example, without more, fails to comply with Open Meetings Law. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-1358.

Motion to enter into executive session to discuss legal matters without more would not meet requirement of Open Meetings Law. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-1462.

Motion describing subject to be discussed in executive session as "personnel" is inadequate; motion should be based on specific language of CLS Pub O § 105(1)(f), although such motion need not identify particular person or persons who may be subject of discussion. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2203.

34. Other particular grounds for executive session, generally

35. —Developmentally disabled persons

Discussions of Committee on the Handicapped concerning particular students would in their entirety be outside scope of Open Meetings Law; however, if Committee seeks to discuss matters such as procedural issues, administrative or perhaps budgetary concerns, Law would be applicable. Committee on Open Government OML-AO-1150.

Any member of board of visitors of developmental center has right to attend executive session involving incident reports and other confidential records, board may authorize others, such as representative of Mental Hygiene Legal Service, to attend, but board is not required to permit persons other than members to attend such sessions. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-1364.

Subcommittee of community services board improperly conducted executive session to consider how to handle and respond to letter which requested Commissioner of Office of Mental Retardation and Developmental Disabilities to withdraw support for proposed sheltered workshop. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2190.

36. —Health matters

County board of health violated Open Meetings Law when it considered implementation of new smoking regulations during executive session. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2612.

37. —Industrial development agencies

Industrial development agency may enter into executive session to discuss financial or credit history of particular person or corporation pursuant to CLS Pub O § 105(1)(f). Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2240.

38. —Land use matters

Unless one or more of exceptions in CLS Pub O § 105(1)(a) through (h) arise, public body, including zoning board of appeals, must deliberate in public; vote by zoning board of appeals must be taken in public; if open meetings law is violated possible recourse is provided in CLS Pub O § 107(1). Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-44717; Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-1412.

City board of architectural review is public body required to comply with Open Meetings Law; board is not entitled to conduct executive sessions to discuss each application for building permit. Committee on Open Government OML-AO-1108.

Request by general manager of radio station to construct taller transmitting tower did not present any grounds for conducting an executive session. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-1387.

Reason offered for conducting executive session of county legislature—"negotiations" regarding casino gaming—would have been inadequate as justification or proper reason for entering into executive session. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3913.

Closed session of county legislature regarding casino gaming could not validly be held based on assertion of attorney-client privilege where representatives of casinos were also present; presence of "strangers" who are not clients essentially resulted in waiver of privilege. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3913.

39. —Law enforcement

At meeting of Executive Committee of Faculty Senate of State University at Buffalo, discussion involving possibility of arming public safety officers did not justify entering into executive session. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-1372.

Meetings held at City Hall by Rensselaer City Council and Chief of Police, to discuss problems relating to "fire-police dispatching system," and to discuss resolution to establish opening public session at Common Council meetings," should have been conducted in public since no grounds for entry into executive session applied. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2187.

Board of education should have held open session, rather than executive session, when it met to discuss fact that "class 3 sex offender" lived in city, as public discussion would have enhanced public safety by enabling school officials and public to be alert; insofar as board discussed policies and procedures or whether to inform staff or parents that sex offender resided in city, valid basis for executive session did not exist under § 105(1)(f). Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2681.

Committee created by county legislature to consider whether vacancies should be filled, and to offer recommendations to full legislature, did not properly hold executive session to discuss District Attorney's statement that inability to fill vacant assistant district attorney position might result in more cases being plea bargained or dismissed; while discussion pertained to persons arrested and/or in law enforcement custody, it was unlikely that issues involved, if discussed in public, would imperil public safety. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3623.

Committee created by county legislature to consider whether vacancies should be filled, and to offer recommendations to full legislature, could enter into executive session to discuss whether Sheriff's Department had sufficient personnel on duty at specific times of day; public discussion of law enforcement coverage would allow potential lawbreakers to know when Sheriff's Department might be understaffed and might enable them to tailor their illegal activities to circumvent effective law enforcement. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3623.

40. —Use of tape recorder by member of public

Use of tape recorder by member of public could not justify board's entry into executive session. Comm On Open Gov't OML-AO-1191 and 1220.

Discussions regarding election of officers do not fall within any of grounds for entry into executive session. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2257.

41. —Voting; elections

With regard to survey intended to be distributed to voters on day of board of education elections and budget vote, there was no basis for reviewing or revising survey during executive session of board of education. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9499.

Neither "policies" or "community relations" may be appropriately discussed during a board of education executive session. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-870.

An executive session held to discuss a request under the Freedom of Information Law violates Public Officers Law § 100. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-899.

Discussion of purchase of computers is not properly conducted in executive session. Comm on Open Govt OML-AO 918.

Community advisory board's discussion of the curriculum of a school district does not fall within any ground for executive session. Comm on Open Govt OML-AO 924.

Entry by board of education into executive session was not authorized by Pub O § 105, where issues determined by board behind closed doors involved manner in which public monies would be expended and questions of policy, but issues involved no particular person. Comm on Open Govt OML-AO 945.

Issues which focused on particular individuals were properly discussed in executive session of organizational meeting of board of fire commissioners, but "budget review" should have occurred in public, although it might have related to personnel, since consideration of budget most frequently involves policy issues and means or manner in which public moneys may be expended or allocated. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2184.

Discussions by village board relating to budgetary matters, such as funding or elimination of positions or programs, could not appropriately be discussed during executive session. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2189.

Town board did not have basis to go into executive session to discuss proposed inter-municipal agreement outlining how town would swap municipal solid waste with 2 other towns, for their mutual advantage, where representative from one of 2 other towns attended and submitted broad, general draft agreement for discussion. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2200.

Board of education discussion of "strategy for controlling what the public might say at board meetings during those intervals when the public is allowed to speak" should have occurred in public, since discussion involved matter of policy, and thus no grounds for entry into executive session applied. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2221.

Executive session cannot properly be held to discuss distribution of executive session minutes. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2303.

While discussion of employee's financial history can be considered in executive session, that issue must be distinguished from consideration of possible award of "cash out" package; latter pertains to matter of policy that could or would affect non-union employees in future and, therefore, executive session cannot properly be held to discuss award of cash out package. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2402.

Discussions concerning financial or credit history of particular corporation may be conducted in executive session. When public body discusses purchase of securities, or sale or exchange of securities that it holds, and when public discussion would substantially affect value of securities, executive session may justifiably be held. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2404.

Executive session could not be held by board of education to discuss proposal that public records distributed to board members prior to meetings be posted on bulletin board for public review in advance of meetings. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2423.

Based on language of Open Meetings Law, public body cannot conduct executive session merely because issue may be sensitive. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2570.

Matters concerning school board's drafting of bond resolution should have been discussed in public rather than executive session where (1) architect, representatives of construction company and public relations firm, and district's bond counsel were present, and (2) meeting included discussion of scope of proposed work, propriety of board's policy of seeking to expand size of school in order to accept more out-of-district students, various methods available to offer bond proposals to public, whether one or both bond propositions could be sold to public, and pros and cons of various approaches to be used to achieve public support. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3198.

Subject of "tuition negotiations" likely would not fall within any grounds for board of education to hold executive session even if board's attorney was present, unless attorney-client privilege applied. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3324.

If issue before board of ethics involves particular person in conjunction with one or more of subjects listed in CLS Pub O § 105(1)(f), executive session could appropriately be held. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3712.

In typical situation in which Freedom of Information Law determines rights of access, opinions offered by town Ethics Board or its members may be withheld, unless and until opinion is adopted by the Town Board or local enactment requires disclosure; similarly, if Open Meetings Law were followed, discussions following complaint concerning conduct of Town Board member could have occurred during executive sessions. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3712.

Board of education's ability to conduct executive session would be minimal where subjects to be discussed included weighing pros and cons of possible scenarios to house children during renovations. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3787.

There is no requirement that action to recover public moneys must be taken during open meeting. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3798.

There is nothing in Open Meetings Law that refers to "private projects" or that distinguishes private from public projects in context of whether public body may enter into executive session. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3925.

Executive sessions of village board of trustees might properly have been conducted to consider topic of "safe houses" for battered women, since CLS Pub O § 105(a) applies in consideration of need to provide safety and security to battered, abused or threatened women and their children. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3925.

Pension boards could properly hold executive sessions when they focus on particular enterprise and consider whether to purchase or sell securities associated with that enterprise, and if effect of public discussion would result in substantial change in price of securities considered for acquisition or sale. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3931.

CLS Pub O § 105(1)(h) may be invoked in instances in which discussion by pension boards regarding investments focuses on particular purchases or sales yet to be made; on other hand, discussions regarding past purchases or sales would not appear to "substantially affect" value of securities. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3931.

CLS Pub O § 105(1)(h) may not be invoked by pensions boards involving their policy, pertaining to certain sectors, i.e., emerging markets or large cap companies, updates regarding previous transactions, or "post-trade" analyses, since revealing such discussions would appear to have perhaps minimal or perhaps no effect on value of securities. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3931.

§ 106. Minutes

1. Minutes shall be taken at all open meetings of a public body which shall consist of a record or summary of all motions, proposals, resolutions and any other matter formally voted upon and the vote thereon.

2. Minutes shall be taken at executive sessions of any action that is taken by formal vote which shall consist of a record or summary of the final determination of such action, and the date and vote thereon; provided, however, that such summary need not include any matter which is not required to be made public by the freedom of information law as added by article six of this chapter.

3. Minutes of meetings of all public bodies shall be available to the public in accordance with the provisions of the freedom of information law within two weeks from the date of such meeting except that minutes taken pursuant to subdivision two hereof shall be available to the public within one week from the date of the executive session.

1. In general

Resolution of Board of Examiners that motions that are not carried not be made part of minutes of stated or special meetings violates Open Meetings Law, since such law requires reference be made to any vote that is taken following introduction of motion, proposal or resolution, whether or not carried, and reference must be made in minutes to any motion or proposal that is made even if no vote is taken. Comm Pub Acc Rec OML-Ad Op 658.

Section 41 of General Construction Law provides that public body may perform its duties only by means of vote carried by majority of whole number of its members; thus, if quorum is no longer present, community board does not have capacity to carry out its duties. Comm Pub Acc Rec OML-Ad Op 799.

2. Applicability to particular entities

Since the Panel to Review Scientific Studies and the Development of Public Policy on Problem Resulting from Hazardous Waste was created by an executive order of the governor, the convenes only by means of a quorum pursuant to General Construction Law § 41 and clearly conducts public business, the Panel is a "public body" within the meaning of Public Officers Law § 97(2) [now § 102(2)] subject to the minimum requirements concerning minutes of open meetings under Public Officers Law § 101 [now § 106]. Comm Pub Acc Rec OML—Ad Op 580.

Public school board is not required to create minutes of its executive sessions since (1) if a public body merely deliberates during an executive session, but takes no action, minutes need not be created, (2) § 1708(3) of the Education Law, which pertains to regular meetings of school boards, states that the meetings of all such boards shall be open to the public but that said boards may hold executive sessions and (3) recent case law has held that executive sessions of a board of education are available only for purposes of discussion and that all formal, official action of the board must be taken in general session open to the public. Comm Pub Acc Rec OML-Ad Op 747.

3. Availability of minutes to public, generally

Memorialized discussions at duly convened executive sessions of county board of supervisors which do not result in formal vote, whether consisting of privileged attorney-client communications or otherwise, are not type of governmental records to which public has to be given access, as confidentiality has been specifically sanctioned by CLS Pub O §§ 105 and 106, and thus such records fall within exemption of CLS Pub O § 87(2)(a). Wm. J. Kline & Sons v County of Hamilton, 235 A.D.2d 44, 663 N.Y.S.2d 339, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10151 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1997).

4. —Fee for copies

Town is authorized to adopt local law that establishes flat fee for annual subscription to copies of minutes of town board meetings and provides for mailing of copies of minutes to those who have paid fee; amount of fee must be reasonably related to town's reproduction and mailing costs, and provisions of subscription service does not obviate need to respond to individual requests, submitted under Freedom of Information Law, or copies of minutes. 1999 Op St Compt No. 99-8.

5. —Timely availability, generally

The time limits for the preparation of minutes of meetings held by municipal authority are contained in Public Officers Law § 101 [now § 106]; the Committee on Public Access to Records has recognized that in some instances a public body might not meet to approve or make official minutes within the time periods designated in Public Officers Law § 101(3) [now § 106(3)] and has consistently advised that minutes made available within the prescribed time period may be marked as "draft", "unofficial", or "non-final" in order that the public may have the capacity to learn generally what transpired at the meeting and the members of the public body may be given a measure of protection. Comm Pub Acc Rec OML—Ad Op 555.

6. — —Two weeks for minutes of open meeting

Minutes of an open meeting of a local fire district must be compiled and made available within 2 weeks of the meeting; where a public body does not have the capacity to approve minutes within the time period specified by § 101 [now § 106], it has been suggested that unapproved minutes be marked as "unapproved", "draft", "non-final", or "unofficial" in order to allow the public to learn generally that transpired at the meeting and at the same time grant members of the public body a certain measure of protection. Comm Pub Acc Rec OML—Ad Op 594.

Minutes of open meetings must be prepared and made available within 2 weeks of meetings, whether or not minutes have been approved. Comm Pub Acc Rec OML-Ad Op 837.

7. Coverage of particular matters, generally

Housing authority board of commissioners' use of secret ballot for voting purposes in executive session violated Freedom of Information Law and Open Meetings Law, but did not warrant annulment of board's decision to discharge employee, and thus employee's Article 78 proceeding was properly dismissed; claim that board would have voted differently had they done so in open session was of no consequence since board clearly had authority to determine employment issue at executive session, under CLS Pub O § 105. Smithson v Ilion Housing Authority, 130 A.D.2d 965, 516 N.Y.S.2d 564, 1987 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 46949 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1987), aff'd, 72 N.Y.2d 1034, 534 N.Y.S.2d 930, 531 N.E.2d 651, 1988 N.Y. LEXIS 2707 (N.Y. 1988).

Open Meeting Law was not violated when Public Service Commissioners toured proposed routes for transition station where tour was intended to provide commissioners with greater understanding of evidence regarding site selection, and summary report of tour was properly provided to parties. New Rochelle v Public Service Com., 150 A.D.2d 441, 541 N.Y.S.2d 49, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6524 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't), app. denied, 74 N.Y.2d 610, 546 N.Y.S.2d 554, 545 N.E.2d 868, 1989 N.Y. LEXIS 2819 (N.Y. 1989).

Absence of minutes of certain executive sessions of city council did not violate Open Meetings Law (CLS Pub O Art 7), where no formal vote was taken at such meetings, and binding decision to lay off certain city employees came at open meeting. Plattsburgh Pub. Co., Div. of Ottaway Newspapers v City of Plattsburgh, 185 A.D.2d 518, 586 N.Y.S.2d 346, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8984 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1992).

8. —"Consensus" determination

Trustees of union free school district violated publication provisions of CLS Pub O § 106 when they failed to publish minutes of executive session which had been held ostensibly to discuss status of certain litigation, despite trustees' claim that discussions were exempt from disclosure under Freedom of Information Law, since, even if meeting involved such discussions, no basis existed for trustees to avoid publication of minutes pertaining to "final determination" of action and "date and vote thereon" as required by § 106; moreover, fact that trustees characterized vote as taken by "consensus" did not exclude recording of vote as "formal vote," and fact that vote taken was not "final determination" of litigation did not exclude recording of determination as determination of matter voted on. Previdi v Hirsch, 138 Misc. 2d 436, 524 N.Y.S.2d 643, 1988 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 340 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1988).

9. —School matters

Trustees of union free school district violated publication provisions of CLS Pub O § 106 when they failed to publish minutes of executive session which had been held ostensibly to discuss status of certain litigation, despite trustees' claim that discussions were exempt from disclosure under Freedom of Information Law, since, even if meeting involved such discussions, no basis existed for trustees to avoid publication of minutes pertaining to "final determination" of action and "date and vote thereon" as required by § 106; moreover, fact that trustees characterized vote as taken by "consensus" did not exclude recording of vote as "formal vote," and fact that vote taken was not "final determination" of litigation did not exclude recording of determination as determination of matter voted on. Previdi v Hirsch, 138 Misc. 2d 436, 524 N.Y.S.2d 643, 1988 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 340 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1988).

Minutes of an open meeting need not make reference to each comment made by a participant in the meeting and need not include the explanation of a Board of Education member with respect to his or her vote on the reduction in size of an educational committee. Comm Pub Acc Rec OML—Ad Op 570.

10. Minutes of executive sessions, generally

Minutes of executive session are required to be compiled only when action is taken during executive session. Comm Pub Acc Rec OML-Ad Op 761.

Minutes of executive session need not be prepared where public body enters into executive session and merely discusses topic but takes no action. Comm Pub Acc Rec OML-Ad Op 786.

Minutes of executive session must be prepared only when action is taken during such session. Comm Pub Acc Rec OML-Ad Op 822.

Since no action can be taken during an executive session, no record is required to be compiled. Comm Pub Acc Rec OML-Ad Op 860.

If action is taken during executive session, minutes reflective of nature of action taken, date and vote must be prepared; minutes of executive sessions must be prepared and made available within one week of meeting. Committee on Open Government OML-AL-1033.

11. —Town board's executive sessions

Executive sessions of town board were not covered by CLS Pub O § 106(2) where no action as taken by formal vote at such meetings. Roberts v Town Bd., 207 A.D.2d 404, 615 N.Y.S.2d 725, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8191 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't), app. denied, 84 N.Y.2d 811, 622 N.Y.S.2d 913, 647 N.E.2d 119, 1994 N.Y. LEXIS 4622 (N.Y. 1994).

Town's Board's decision in its N.Y. Pub. Off. Law § 105(1)(f) executive session to terminate an employee for poor performance was proper as, given the nature of the employee's probationary employment interest and the purposes of the Open Meetings Law, the Board's not recording its proven actions in its executive session minutes was a non-prejudicial open meetings law violation of N.Y. Pub. Off. Law § 106(2); therefore, the lower court's reversing the Board's determination was not for the "good cause" required by N.Y. Pub. Off. Law § 107(1) for the lower court to exercise its discretion to reverse the determination. The violation was capable of being corrected by the Board simply recording the vote in the minutes of its executive session. Specht v Town of Cornwall, 13 A.D.3d 380, 786 N.Y.S.2d 546, 2004 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 14843 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2004).

12. Role of town clerk

Although the town clerk is required to record in the minutes of a town board meeting the name of each member of the board who was present, the clerk is under no statutory duty to record the names of other persons attending the meeting. A decision to publish the minutes of a town board meeting must be made by the affirmative vote of a majority of all the members of the town board, and not by the town supervisor acting unilaterally. The town board may also elect to publish at town expense the report of examination prepared by the office of the state comptroller. 1990 Op St Compt No. 90-52.

While § 30(1) of Town Law requires that town clerk be present at each meeting of town board for purpose of taking minutes, § 30(1) does not necessarily require presence of clerk at work session during which there are no motions, proposals, resolutions or votes taken. Minutes of meeting of public body need not reflect nature of discussions where public body merely discusses public business at "work session" but does not engage in making of "motions, proposals, resolutions" or voting. Comm Pub Acc Rec OML-Ad Op 788.

13. Use of tape recorders

Although Open Meetings Law provides that public body shall take minutes at all open meetings and that such minutes shall be made available to public, imposition of such duty cannot fairly be construed as precluding all other methods of recordation; court would affirm annulment of resolution of board of education prohibiting use of tape recorders at its public meetings. Mitchell v Board of Education, 113 A.D.2d 924, 493 N.Y.S.2d 826, 1985 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 52551 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1985).

While Open Meetings Law does not require public body to maintain verbatim account of every comment made during meeting, Law does not preclude public body from creating verbatim account by means of tape recorder of what may have transpired at meeting. Comm Pub Acc Rec OML-Ad Op 824.

14. —Verbatim minutes not required

Trial court's annulment of the determinations of a county and a comptroller reducing a retiree's salary for purposes of his retirement severance was proper because a board of trustees had been authorized by N.Y. Educ. Law § 6306(2) and N.Y. Comp. Codes R. & Regs. tit. 8, § 604.2(a) to vote to raise the retiree's salary pursuant to his employment contract, and contradictory local laws did not supersede state law or regulations; there was no support for the claim that the meeting was not properly noticed as to time and place and there was no statutory requirement that notice of the agenda of the meeting be given. The contention that the vote was unauthorized because verbatim minutes of the meeting were not taken was unavailing as N.Y. Pub. Off. Law § 106 merely required that a record or summary of the action at a meeting be taken, and the record disclosed that a summary of the action was taken. Matter of LaLima v County of Suffolk, 45 A.D.3d 845, 847 N.Y.S.2d 208, 2007 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12137 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2007).

Minutes of open meetings need not consist of verbatim account of meeting or make reference to each comment made during meeting. Comm Pub Acc Rec OML-Ad Op 786.

Minutes of open meetings need not consist of verbatim account of what may have transpired at meeting, but rather that minutes should in essence refer to highlights of meeting. Comm Pub Acc Rec OML-Ad Op 840.

The board members may not cast their votes by telephone on matters which require board approval. 1979 Op St Compt File #242.

With respect to open meetings, minutes must, at minimum, consist of record or summary of all motions, proposals, resolutions and any other matters upon which votes are taken; minutes of open meetings must be made available in their entirety, but with respect to action taken in executive session, record or summary of final determination of action must be prepared and made available to extent required by Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-1396, Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4638.

If sub-committee compiles unofficial report and discloses such report to school board, sub-committee should have prepared minutes indicating nature of its action, even though that action does not represent final action of school board as whole. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4907.

Open Meetings Law does not require preparation of transcript of meeting conducted by public body. If town board prepares transcript of meeting, it is available under Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2535.

Open Meetings Law presumes good faith and, as it pertains to minutes of meetings, that minutes, above all, be accurate. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2575.

School board generally cannot vote during executive session, except in rare circumstances in which statute permits or requires such vote. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2785.

Inherent in law is requirement that minutes must be accurate and reflect reality of what occurred or was expressed. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3799.

Member of public has no right to insist on amendment or correction of minutes; only public body, by means of majority vote of its total membership, may amend or correct minutes. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3799.

There is nothing in Open Meetings Law that specifies who must provide notice of meetings or prepare minutes. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3841.

Members of Town Board do not have authority to include or exclude language in board minutes as they desire; under CLS Town § 30 Town Clerk has statutory authority and obligation to prepare minutes of Town Board meetings, and so long as minutes are accurate and include items required by CLS Pub O § 106, circumstances under which minutes might justifiably be altered or amended would be rare. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3849.

2. Applicability to particular entities

If youth committee is committee of community board, and since definition of "public body" includes committees of public body, youth committee is required to prepare and disclose minutes of its meetings and its records are subject to rights granted by Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4748.

Minutes of meetings of industrial development agency must be prepared and made available to public pursuant to CLS Pub O § 106(3). Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8288.

Three-member board of assessment review, as "public body" and "agency," was required to prepare minutes in accordance with CLS Pub O §§ 87(3)(a) and 106, including record of each member's vote. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3499.

Town of Altamont Board of Assessment Review is public body subject to Open Meetings Law and thus, while it may deliberate in private, actual voting must occur in open meeting, and meeting minutes must indicate how each member voted. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3668.

Because assessment board of review is "public body" and "agency," it is required to prepare minutes in accordance with CLS Pub O § 106, including record of votes of each member in conjunction with CLS Pub O § 87(3)(a). Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-4043.

3. Approval of minutes

Minutes of open meetings must be prepared and made available within 2 weeks of meetings to which they pertain. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8330.

Although there is nothing in Open Meetings Law or any other statute that requires that minutes be approved, as matter of practice or policy, many public bodies approve minutes of their meetings. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8501.

There is nothing in Open Meetings Law or any other statute that requires that minutes be approved. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12607.

A majority of the total membership of a public body must cast an affirmative vote as a condition precedent to the adoption of any minutes. While an abstention indicates neither an affirmative nor a negative vote, its effect is the same as a negative vote. Comm on Open Govt OML-AO 931.

In event that meeting minutes have not been approved, to comply with Open Meetings Law minutes should be prepared and made available within prescribed time and marked "unapproved", "draft" or "non-final" to let public know that minutes are subject to change. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-1286.

Nothing in Open Meetings Law or any other statute requires that minutes of open meetings be approved; if minutes have not been approved, they should be marked "unapproved," "draft" or "non-final" to effectively notify public that they are subject to change, and they should be made available to public as soon as they exist. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2188.

If information contained in draft or unapproved minutes is inaccurate or misleading, board has authority to make corrections. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3616.

There is nothing in Open Meetings Law or any other statute that requires that minutes be approved; nevertheless, as matter of practice or policy, many public bodies approve minutes of their meetings. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3799.

In event that minutes have not been approved, to comply with Open Meetings Law, it has consistently been advised that minutes be prepared and made available within 2 weeks, and that if minutes have not been approved, they may be marked "unapproved," "draft" or "preliminary," for example. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3799.

If minutes have been prepared within less than 2 weeks, such unapproved minutes would be available as soon as they exist, and they may be marked "unapproved", "draft" or "preliminary." Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-4146.

4. Availability of minutes to public, generally

5. —Fee for copies

Town board's practice of distributing copies of minutes at no cost to persons in attendance at meetings, while charging for minutes to those who requested them on following day, did not violate Freedom of Information Law so long as no individual was being singled out and all who requested copies after meetings received same treatment. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2705.

6. —Timely availability, generally

7. — —One week for minutes of executive session

If action is taken during executive session, minutes indicating nature of action and vote, by member, must be prepared within one week of executive session; further, minutes are accessible to public to extent required by Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-1448.

Public meetings gathered as work sessions are subject to Open Meetings Law and Board of Trustees of village has same obligation to prepare minutes relative to work sessions as it has with respect to regular or official meetings; consequently, if activities occur at meetings in question that would require creation of minutes, minutes must be prepared and made available within 2 weeks of such meetings; if action is taken in executive session that is held during work session, minutes must be prepared and made available within one week of executive session. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-1459.

8. — —Two weeks for minutes of open meeting

Minutes of public meeting need not consist of verbatim transcript of entire discussion at meeting, but rather only record or summary of motions, proposals, resolutions and any other matter formally voted upon; therefore, public body merely discusses public business, but does not engage in making of motions, proposals, resolutions or voting, minutes need not reflect nature of discussion; clerk is required to prepare minutes and make them available within 2 weeks of meetings to which they relate and if minutes cannot be provided within 2 weeks, clerk, in order to comply with Open Meetings Law, should prepare minutes within legal time limits and mark them as "unimproved", "draft" or "nonfinal". Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4826.

There is nothing in Open Meetings Law or any other statute that requires that minutes be approved. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7578.

Minutes of open meetings must be prepared and made available within 2 weeks of meetings to which they pertain. In event that minutes have been approved, to comply with Open Meetings Law, minutes should be prepared and made available within 2 weeks; if minutes have not been approved, they may be marked "unapproved," "draft" or "non-final." Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7578.

Public body has 2 weeks from meeting to prepare minutes and make them available. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8895.

Village zoning board's need to have transcript of meeting of zoning board of appeals did not in any way diminish its responsibility under Open Meetings Law to prepare minutes and disclose them within 2 weeks. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-10013.

In event that minutes have not been approved, to comply with Open Meetings Law, minutes should be prepared and made available within 2 weeks, and they may be marked "unapproved," "draft," or "preliminary." Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12607.

Public meetings gathered as work sessions are subject to Open Meetings Law and Board of Trustees of village has same obligation to prepare minutes relative to work sessions as it has with respect to regular or official meetings; consequently, if activities occur at meetings in question that would require creation of minutes, minutes must be prepared and made available within 2 weeks of such meetings; if action is taken in executive session that is held during work session, minutes must be prepared and made available within one week of executive session. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-1459.

Minutes of open meetings must be prepared and made available within 2 weeks of meetings to which they pertain. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2261.

"Available" means being made accessible to public for inspection and copying within 2 weeks of meeting to which minutes pertain. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3207.

Minutes of public meeting must be prepared and made available to public within 2 weeks of meetings to which they relate, irrespective of whether they are "finalized." Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3981.

Public body cannot require that disclosure of minutes be delayed in manner inconsistent with Open Meetings Law. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2466.

Draft "unapproved" minutes of public meeting should be disclosed, on request, as soon as they exist. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3284.

Local legislative body has statutory authority to prohibit legislator from disclosing matters discussed in executive session. 2000 NY Ops Atty Gen I 2000-2.

If youth committee is committee of community board, and since definition of "public body" includes committees of public body, youth committee is required to prepare and disclose minutes of its meetings and its records are subject to rights granted by Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4748.

Freedom of Information Law is applicable to all records of agency, such as town, and, as such, requests for minutes of town board are properly made pursuant to Freedom of Information Law; minutes of meetings of public bodies are available under Freedom of Information Law and Open Meetings Law; further, both laws require that record of votes indicating how each member of public body voted must be maintained and made available. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4773.

Even if minutes have not been approved by committee, they are nonetheless public records and therefore subject to rights of access granted by Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4794.

Any notes or minutes prepared regarding executive session of public body constitute "records" subject to rights conferred by

Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9178.

If minutes or notes are prepared concerning executive session even when there is no requirement to do so, any such documents would fall within coverage of Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9236.

Any notes or minutes, including handwritten notes used to prepare typewritten minutes, that are prepared during executive session of public body constitute records subject to rights conferred by Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-9503.

Member of town planning board was entitled to copy of final version of minutes of planning board meetings and, in absence of contrary board rule or policy, was not required to resort to Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12122.

"Draft unapproved minutes" of meetings of city council should be disclosed, on request, as soon as they exist; minutes of meeting open to public do not involve "internal government consultations or deliberations" since information contained in those records has effectively been disclosed to public already. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12607.

Minutes reflective of action taken in executive session, discussing whether to increase salary of justice court clerk or accept his resignation, should have been prepared pursuant to CLS Pub O § 106, and record of action would be accessible under Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2216.

Town records relating to escrow funds, escrow districts, and certain trust deposits maintained by town were available to public pursuant to CLS Pub O § 106, except to extent that such records or portions thereof fell within one or more grounds for denial under CLS Pub O § 87(2)(a)-(i). Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2253.

If minutes or notes are prepared concerning executive session, even when there is no requirement to do so, any such documents would fall within coverage of Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2270,2413.

9. Coverage of particular matters, generally

10. —"Consensus" determination

Roll call voting in public is not required, so long as record is prepared that indicates manner in which each board member cast his or her vote. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-16656.

A committee must prepare minutes if it reaches a "consensus" to forward a proposal to the governing body. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-900.

Where public body votes to engage in or approve contracts, including collective bargaining agreements, which may be lengthy, Open Meetings Law does not require that entirety of such agreement be included as part of minutes, or perhaps even as attachment to minutes; in that kind of circumstance, so long as minutes provide sufficient detail to enable public and agency officials to locate records that are subject of action taken, public body would be substantial compliance with Open Meetings Law. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2296.

In connection with taking of action during executive session and reporting of such action, there may be no distinction between so-called "consensus" and final action taken by public body if consensus is in reality determination reflective of action upon which entity relies. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2558.

Based on CLS Pub O § 106(1), if "consensus" motion includes appointment of number of people, minutes would be required to identify each person appointed and position to which he or she was appointed. In order to comply with Open Meetings Law, minutes must indicate in some manner precise nature of public body's action. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2582.

If town board "agrees on an issue," it may be taking action (even if no motion is made) by means of "consensus," which would require preparation of minutes reflecting each member's vote; in contrast, if board's agreements are analogous to non-binding "straw vote," minutes including votes of members would not be required to be prepared. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2726.

If city council reached "consensus" reflective of its final determination, minutes should have been prepared indicating nature of action taken and manner in which each member voted; in contrast, non-binding "straw poll," if it could not be construed as final, could be taken in executive session as means to ascertain whether additional discussion was warranted or necessary, and minutes indicating members' votes would not have to be prepared. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3126.

If town board relies on "consensus" in carrying out its duties or otherwise reaches agreement on particular matter, minutes should show each board member's vote; in contrast, if "straw vote," or something like it that is not binding and does not represent final action, is taken in executive session, as means of ascertaining whether additional discussion is warranted, votes of members need not be recorded in minutes. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3478.

11. —School matters

Identification of each final determination of School Board by item number does not comply with Open Meetings Law provisions concerning minutes; final determinations of board regarding personnel matters must be summarized and recorded in board's minutes, and must refer, by name, to subjects of Board's determination. Committee on Open Government OML-AO-1090.

Contents of board of education's personnel schedules, setting forth personnel actions (such as probationary appointments, term appointments, changes of status, and resignations), should be included in minutes of meeting at which such actions were approved, or attached to minutes, so that public (as well as governmental entity involved) can ascertain what specific actions have been taken; however, mere reference to materials that are subject of action taken are reasonable and sufficient if minutes provide sufficient detail to enable public and agency officials to locate records that are subject of action taken. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2192.

While Open Meetings Law requires that meeting be preceded by notice of time and place, there is no requirement that reason for holding special meeting must be included in notice or in minutes. Minutes of meeting of board of education were incomplete where one item of minutes referred to motion to enter into executive session, but minutes did not include reasons for entry into executive session. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2344.

Action must be taken in public or minutes must of necessity include information which ordinarily would not be accessible to public; for example, if board of education determines to direct superintendent to offer position to applicant for position, any such action must be taken in public and memorialized in minutes; however, name of person to whom position is offered need not be stated during open meeting or included in minutes of meeting. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2372.

In connection with presentation made by firm to board of education regarding offer to purchase school district property, if there was no official purchase offer to accept or reject and board merely reached meeting of minds to effect that no action would be taken, then there was no requirement that vote be taken and reported. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2558.

When final vote is taken by agency, which is defined to include state or municipal board such as school board, record must be prepared that indicates manner in which each member who voted cast his or her vote, regardless of whether vote occurred at executive session. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2563.

Freedom of Information Law is applicable to all records of agency, such as town, and, as such, requests for minutes of town board are properly made pursuant to Freedom of Information Law; minutes of meetings of public bodies are available under Freedom of Information Law and Open Meetings Law; further, both laws require that record of votes indicating how each member of public body voted must be maintained and made available. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4773.

The payroll record envisioned by Public Officers Law § 87(3)(b) need not be incorporated in minutes prepared under § 101 [now § 106]. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-879.

No "right" is violated where identities of members of the public in attendance at a meeting are included as part of the minutes of the meeting, although a member of the public is not required to identify himself or herself or sign a register or attendance log as a condition prerequisite to attendance. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-896.

A proposal and an agreement by a board to meet on a particular date is required to be recorded in minutes. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-906.

Since minutes are required to refer to all motions and proposals, any motion introduced should be cited in minutes even though motion might not be adopted. Committee on Open Government OML-AO-1039.

Reviewing requirement that agency maintain record of final vote of each member in every agency proceeding in which member votes and requirement that minutes include reference to vote, it is concluded that intent of legislature was to require that members of public bodies when casting votes should do so openly and not by means of paper ballot that may later be used in preparation of record of votes; when public body takes action by means of vote, vote of membership must be taken publicly and in such manner that individual members can be identified with affirmative or negative votes. Committee on Open Government OML-AO-1050.

When vote is taken pursuant to motion to enter into executive session, minutes must be prepared to include reference to motion as well as manner in which each member cast his or her vote. Committee on Open Government OML-AO-1197.

There is no requirement under Open Meetings Law that time of meeting or names of persons present be included in minutes. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-1290.

Summary of any final determination required to be included in minutes of executive session need not include any matter which is not required to be made public by Freedom of Information Law, such that although public body may take final action during executive session, information that would be deniable under Freedom of Information Law need not be made available as part of minutes of executive session, and further, if no action is taken during executive session, minutes need not be prepared. 1986 Committee on Open Government OML-AO-1336.

When motion to enter into executive session is made, that motion must be included in minutes of meeting; further, if vote is taken during executive session, minutes must be prepared; however, if matter is discussed in executive session, but no action is taken, there is no requirement that minutes of executive session be prepared. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-1460.

At minimum, minutes of open meetings must include reference to all motions, proposals, resolutions and any other matters on which votes are taken; however, if those kinds of actions do not occur during working sessions or committee meetings, minutes need not be prepared. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2182.

Vote taken by town board to increase rate of pay for justice court clerk should have been recorded in form of minutes; similarly, any action by board to accept his resignation should be memorialized in minutes. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2216.

If public body reaches "consensus" that is reflective of its final determination of issue, minutes must be prepared that indicate manner in which each member voted. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2257.

If it can be assumed that only board of trustees of library system is authorized to engage law firm for library system, its action to do so can validly occur only during meeting of board held in accordance with Open Meetings Law; further, any such action must be memorialized in minutes of meeting. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2389.

Mere reference to removal of 5 sentences from minutes, without indication of their substance or location, would be inadequate; in order to comply with Open Meetings Law, minutes must indicate in some manner which 5 sentences were removed in order that public can know of precise nature of committee's action. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2477.

To comply with Freedom of Information Law, record must be prepared and maintained indicating how each member cast his or her vote. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2527.

Minutes need not refer to personal opinions expressed during meetings. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3616.

Minutes of town meeting referring to agreement to pay for legal services relative to "annexation [of] territory" do not include sufficient information to ascertain nature of Town Board's action; minutes need not include reference to each element of agreement but, at minimum, minutes should clearly have reflected intent of board to attempt to engage in "annexation [of] territory." Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3773.

Minutes need not consist of verbatim of account of all that is stated at meeting. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3799.

Lease agreement involving city would not need to be incorporated into city council minutes with council's resolution regarding lease, unless action taken expressly required that lease agreement must be so incorporated. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3981.

There is no provision of law that requires that names and addresses of those who speak at meetings of town boards or other public bodies be included in minutes of meeting or made "part of the record." Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-4002.

In consideration of potential uses of personal information placed on website, it is unwise to include individuals' names and addresses in minutes that are to placed on website. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-4002.

12. Minutes of executive sessions, generally

13. —School board's executive sessions

School board generally cannot vote in executive session, except in rare circumstances where statute permits or requires such vote; if no vote is taken, there is no requirement that minutes of executive session be prepared. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12312.

If school board reaches consensus at executive session that is its final determination of matter, minutes must be prepared and school board must take action in public; in contrast, if board reaches "meeting of minds" or engages in so-called "straw vote" regarding interim step in process that is incomplete, it would not be taking final action that would require public vote or preparation of minutes. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2378.

Resolution approved by board of education in executive session, which authorized board and district superintendent to execute contract with particular employee, should have included name of employee, and minutes of executive session should have indicated, in some manner, nature of agreement and identity of district employee. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3472.

If school board reached "consensus" in executive session that is reflective of its final determination of issue, minutes must be prepared that indicate its action, as well as manner in which each member voted. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-4026.

14. —Town board's executive sessions

Public meetings gathered as work sessions are subject to Open Meetings Law and Board of Trustees of town has same obligation to prepare minutes relative to work sessions as it has with respect to regular or official meetings; consequently, if activities occur at meetings in question that would require creation of minutes, minutes must be prepared and made available within 2 weeks of such meetings; if action is taken in executive session that is held during work session, minutes must be prepared and made available within one week of executive session. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-1459.

CLS Town § 30, which requires presence of town clerk at each meeting of town board for purposes of taking minutes, does not require continued presence of clerk if it is clear that there will be no need to take minutes to comply with Open Meetings Law, that no action will be taken, and that meeting will be adjourned at conclusion of executive session. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2244.

Minutes of executive sessions are required to be prepared only when action is taken during executive session and if board discusses issue during executive session, but takes no action, there is no requirement that minutes of executive session be prepared. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4826.

There is nothing in either Freedom of Information or Open Meetings Laws that specifies that vote must be accomplished by means of roll call or that vote be "announced exactly as the same time it is cast"; so long as record is prepared that indicates manner in which each member cast his or vote, entity would be acting in compliance with open vote requirements imposed by those statutes. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-13547.

CLS Pub O § 106 does not require public body to record remarks of individual made during executive session merely because that person so requests. Committee on Open Government OML-AO-1176.

Whether minutes of executive sessions are kept separately or as part of "regular" minutes is discretionary; additionally, if executive session is held and no action is taken, minutes need not be prepared. Comm On Open Gov't OML-AO-1281.

If public body enters into executive session but takes no action, minutes are not required to be prepared, but if action is taken by formal vote, minutes reflecting nature of action, date and vote must be prepared and made available under Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-1361.

Preparation of minutes of executive session is not required where neither consensus is reached nor vote taken. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-1376.

When motion to enter into executive session is made, that motion must be included in minutes of meeting; further, if vote is taken during executive session, minutes must be prepared; however, if matter is discussed in executive session, but no action is taken, there is no requirement that minutes of executive session be prepared. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-1460.

If action is taken during executive session, date and vote must be recorded in minutes pursuant to CLS Pub O § 106(2); however, if no action is taken, minutes of executive session need not be prepared. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2189.

Unless statute specifically prohibits disclosure of certain information or records, statements made during executive session or information derived from executive session cannot be characterized as "confidential" and there is no valid basis for sustaining claim of confidentiality. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2262.

When entity subject to Open Meetings Law takes action during executive session, minutes indicating nature of action taken, date, and vote of each member must be prepared within one week and made available to extent required by Freedom of Information Law; however, if entity merely discusses issue or issues during executive session but takes no action, there is no requirement that minutes of executive session be prepared. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2389.

There is no requirement that persons other than members of public body who are authorized to attend executive session must be identified. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2504.

Any notes or minutes that are prepared at executive session, including handwritten notes used to prepare typewritten minutes, constitute "records" subject to rights conferred by Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2618.

Board of Public Safety was justified in deleting, from minutes of its executive sessions, references to how each board member voted in deciding to place Chief of Police on administrative leave; matter involved police officer within scope of CLS Civ R § 50-a, which prohibits disclosure of personnel records used to evaluate police officer's performance, and could be withheld under Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3427.

While local conditional release commission might in some instances have authority to take action during executive session, record indicating nature of its action, i.e., to grant or deny conditional release, could not justifiably be withheld under Freedom of Information Law. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3784.

In situation in which action is taken to impose some sort sanction or discipline on public officer or employee, such action must be memorialized in minutes prepared in accordance with CLS Pub O § 106. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3902.

If public body reaches consensus in executive session on which it relies, minutes reflective of decisions reached must be prepared and made available. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-4028.

Since Open Meetings Law permits public bodies to vote in proper circumstances during executive session, roll call voting in public is not required; however, roll call vote and announcement of votes at same time they are cast would be consistent with law. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-4264.

While record of votes by members ordinarily is included in minutes, there is no requirement that it be included in minutes; such record may be maintained separate from minutes. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-4264.

15. Retaining or keeping minutes

Tape recordings of meetings and hearings must be retained for minimum of 4 months and written minutes of meetings must be kept permanently. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2291.

Minutes must be retained permanently pursuant to records retention schedule issued by State Archives, but audiotapes or video recordings of meetings need be retained only for period of months, at expiration of which they may be preserved, or erased and reused if they are no longer of value. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3658.

It is not "common practice" for mayor to control access to minutes of meetings, and there is nothing in Open Meetings Law that provides guidance concerning who should have custody of minutes or where they must be kept. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3799.

While there is no requirement that minutes be placed on municipality's website, either in their "official" or summary form, local governments often do so because minutes are unquestionably public. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3799.

16. Role of town clerk

Discussion concerning notification of the town clerk of special meetings of the town board and concerning the clerk's right of attendance at executive sessions. 1978 Op St Compt File #254.

When member of town board requests that his or her statement be entered into minutes, board must determine, under its rules of procedure, whether town clerk should record statement or whether board member should submit statement in writing, which would then be entered as part of minutes; thus, when statement is offered by member of public body for inclusion in minutes, that person has no absolute right to require that statement become part of or referenced in minutes. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2356.

If town clerk prepares essentially verbatim account of statements made by members of particular political party and merely summarizes statements of others, minutes of that nature would be inconsistently and unfairly prepared. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2491.

It is unclear whether town board has authority to compel town clerk to include information in minutes beyond requirements of Open Meetings Law. It is unlikely that town board has authority to require exclusion of information from minutes of open meeting that is accurate. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2605.

Town clerk has responsibility and authority to prepare minutes and ensure their accuracy; thus, vote by full board is needed to alter minutes when board member wants to make alteration and another board member disagrees, provided that alteration must accurately represent what transpired at meeting. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2726.

Town clerk has responsibility and authority to prepare minutes and to ensure their accuracy, and board and/or supervisor may not validly remove or insist on removal of information from minutes so long as information is accurate and presented reasonably, fairly, and in manner consistent with contents of minutes as generally prepared. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3151.

Town clerk, having responsibility and authority to prepare minutes and ensure their accuracy, may not be compelled by board and/or supervisor to remove information from minutes if information is accurate and presented reasonably, fairly and in manner consistent with contents of minutes as generally prepared. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3187.

17. Use of tape recorders

18. —Verbatim minutes not required

Minutes need not consist of verbatim account of statements made during meeting; further, minutes are not required to include reference to each such statements. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4930.

Minutes need not consist of verbatim account of all that was said at meeting. While clerk or public body may choose to prepare expansive minutes, they are only required to consist of kinds of information described in § 106. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-7578.

Section 106 does not require that verbatim transcript of discussion held at meeting be prepared, but simply that certain kinds of information be included in minutes. Comm On Open Gov't OML-AO-1197.

Minutes of meetings need not consist of verbatim transcript of entire discussion at meeting, but rather only record or summary of motions, proposals, resolutions and any other matter formerly voted upon, such that if public body merely discusses public business at "work session", but does not engage in making of "motions, proposals, resolutions" or voting, presumably minutes need not reflect nature of discussion, and if agency discusses issue during executive session, but takes no action, there is no requirement that minutes of execution session be prepared. 1986 Committee on Open Government OML-AO-1344.

While minutes of open meeting must consist, at minimum, of "record or summary" of motions, proposals, resolutions, action taken and vote of members of public body, there is no requirement that minutes consist of verbatim account of statements made or describe in detail discussions that occurred at meetings. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2255.

If town clerk prepares essentially verbatim account of statements made by members of particular political party and merely summarizes statements of others, minutes of that nature would be inconsistently and unfairly prepared. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2491.

Based on CLS Pub O § 106, minutes of meeting of public body need not consist of verbatim account of everything that was said; on contrary, so long as minutes include kinds of information described in statute, they would be appropriate and meet legal requirements, although clerk may include more information than is required by law. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2605.

Rule requiring town clerk to prepare verbatim account of everything said at every town board meeting was unreasonable, was likely beyond town board's authority under CLS Town §§ 30 and 63, and would likely result in inefficiency; reasonable alternative would be to create audio or video recordings which, if necessary, could be reviewed to ensure accuracy, resolve disputes, or refresh memories. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3658.

A tape recorder may be obtained by the town board to be used by the town clerk to record the proceedings at town board meetings so that minutes may be prepared therefrom but if a recorder is obtained the town clerk would be responsible for maintaining the tapes. 2. The tapes may not be maintained by any official other than the town clerk or his deputy. 3. It would be improper for the tapes to be sealed and to be opened only at town board meetings. 4. The town board may authorize other town officers to use the tape recorder and may direct who will have custody of the instrument. 1977 NY Ops Atty Gen Nov 17.

While tape recording would likely contain elements of minutes, minutes should be reduced to writing in order that they constitute permanent, written record that can be viewed by public and so that town has permanent written record readily accessible to town officials who must refer to or rely upon minutes in performance of their duties; clerk is required to prepare minutes and make them available within 2 weeks of meetings to which they relate and if minutes cannot be provided within 2 weeks, clerk, in order to comply with Open Meetings Law, should prepare minutes within legal time limits and mark them as "unimproved", "draft" or "nonfinal". Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-4826.

Tape recording of board of education executive session, prepared by member of board, fell within coverage of Freedom of Information Law, and thus could be destroyed or erased only in conjunction with provision of Arts and Cultural Affairs Law dealing with retention and disposal of records. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-10368.

Public may tape record open meetings of public bodies, so long as tape recording is carried out unobtrusively and in manner that does not detract from deliberative process; with regard to video equipment, if equipment is large, if special lighting is needed and if it is obtrusive and distracting, rule prohibiting its use under those circumstances would be reasonable; however, if advances in technology permit video equipment to be used without special lighting, in stationary location and in unobtrusive manner, it is questionable where prohibition under those circumstances would be reasonable. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-1437.

While tape recording would likely contain elements of minutes, minutes must exist in writing in order that they constitute permanent, written record that can be viewed by public. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2291.

While tape recording of meeting will likely contain elements of meeting minutes, minutes should be reduced to writing so that they constitute permanent written record that can be viewed by public; furthermore, municipalities often need readily accessible permanent written records for officials to refer to or rely on in performance of their duties. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3646.

Village board of appeals, which chose to audiotape public hearing sessions, was not therefore obligated to tape record its deliberative discussions; only legal obligation concerning preparation of record of meetings pertains to minutes, which need not consist of verbatim account of what was said, or refer to every topic discussed or identify those who may have spoken, so long as they reflect all matters on which votes were taken. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3696.

When tape recording captures commentary made in public meeting, there is no basis to deny access under Freedom of Information Law; however, tape recordings of executive sessions reflecting deliberative process may constitute "intra-agency material" under CLS Pub O § 87(2)(g) and, if there has been no final determination by town board indicating misconduct or imposing penalty in connection with ethics complaint, disclosure of tape recordings of deliberations of town ethics board would constitute unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3712.

While audio or video recording would likely contain elements of minutes of meeting, minutes should nonetheless be reduced to writing in order that they constitute permanent, written record that can be viewed by public; because audio and video recordings cannot be preserved permanently, it would be inappropriate to consider them as "official" minutes of City Council meetings. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3981.

§ 107. Enforcement

1. Any aggrieved person shall have standing to enforce the provisions of this article against a public body by the commencement of a proceeding pursuant to article seventy-eight of the civil practice law and rules, or an action for declaratory judgment and injunctive relief. In any such action or proceeding, if a court determines that a public body failed to comply with this article, the court shall have the power, in its discretion, upon good cause shown, to declare that the public body violated this article and/or declare the action taken in relation to such violation void, in whole or in part, without prejudice to reconsideration in compliance with this article. If the court determines that a public body has violated this article, the court may require the members of the public body to participate in a training session concerning the obligations imposed by this article conducted by the staff of the committee on open government.

An unintentional failure to fully comply with the notice provisions required by this article shall not alone be grounds for invalidating any action taken at a meeting of a public body. The provisions of this article shall not affect the validity of the authorization, acquisition, execution or disposition of a bond issue or notes.

2. In any proceeding brought pursuant to this section, costs and reasonable attorney fees may be awarded by the court, in its discretion, to the successful party. If a court determines that a vote was taken in material violation of this article, or that substantial deliberations relating thereto occurred in private prior to such vote, the court shall award costs and reasonable attorney's fees to the successful petitioner, unless there was a reasonable basis for a public body to believe that a closed session could properly have been held.

3. The statute of limitations in an article seventy-eight proceeding with respect to an action taken at executive session shall commence to run from the date the minutes of such executive session have been made available to the public.

1. In general

Court would affirm dismissal of complaint seeking judgment declaring that resolutions and agreements relating to purchase of land by town solid waste management authority violated Open Meetings Law, CLS Pub O Art 7, where allegations that private meetings "must have" taken place between town board, or authority, and representatives of bank, in connection with proposed action to build solid waste management facility, were merely conclusory, speculative, and unsupported by specific facts, and record indicated instead that "meetings" in question were merely negotiations between respective parties' attorneys concerning details of proposed transactions. Residents for More Beautiful Port Washington, Inc. v North Hempstead, 149 A.D.2d 266, 545 N.Y.S.2d 297, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11232 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't), amended, 155 A.D.2d 521, 1989 N.Y. Where hearing of town zoning board is not conducted in accordance with Open Meetings Law, hearing is voidable rather than void. Ireland v Queensbury Zoning Bd. of Appeals, 169 A.D.2d 73, 571 N.Y.S.2d 834, 1991 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9313 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), app. dismissed, 79 N.Y.2d 822, 580 N.Y.S.2d 201, 588 N.E.2d 99, 1991 N.Y. LEXIS 5138 (N.Y. 1991).

Petitioners were not entitled to award of counsel fees in their successful action challenging violation of Open Meetings Law by village board of trustees where board had not repeatedly acted in violation of law and its actions were not undertaken in bad faith. Gordon v Village of Monticello, 207 A.D.2d 55, 620 N.Y.S.2d 573, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13248 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1994), rev'd, in part, 87 N.Y.2d 124, 637 N.Y.S.2d 961, 661 N.E.2d 691, 1995 N.Y. LEXIS 4447 (N.Y. 1995).

Actions taken at town board meeting would not be invalidated on basis of improper public notice as required by CLS Pub O § 104 requiring posting of public notice in designated public location at least 72 hours before meeting, where evidence indicated that notice of meeting was posted on town bulletin board but failed to indicate how long before meeting such notice was posted, since court found that any impropriety in notice was unintentional, and parties relying on impropriety of notice failed to demonstrate any prejudice therefrom. Woodstock v Goodson-Todman Enterprises, Ltd., 133 Misc. 2d 12, 505 N.Y.S.2d 540, 1986 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2959 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1986).

Article 78 proceeding to invalidate action taken at executive session of trustees of union free school district on ground of failure to publish minutes was timely commenced, despite running of limitations period for Article 78 proceedings, since CLS Pub O § 107 states that period commences to run from date minutes are made available to public and no minutes were provided prior to proceeding. Previdi v Hirsch, 138 Misc. 2d 436, 524 N.Y.S.2d 643, 1988 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 340 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1988).

Commissioner dismissed petition to remove 6 of 9 members of central school district's board of education for alleged violations of Open Meetings Law, because exclusive jurisdiction was vested in Supreme Court pursuant to CLS Pub O § 107. 1999 Op Comm Ed No. 14,158.

In proceeding to review suspension of petitioners' son under CLS Educ § 3214, Commissioner of Education lacked jurisdiction over petitioners' assertion that board of education should have conducted its review of hearing officer's recommendation in public session; Supreme Court is appropriate forum for addressing alleged Open Meetings Law violations. 1994 Op Comm Ed No. 13265.

Alleged violations of Open Meetings Law may not be basis of appeal to Commissioner of Education. 1996 Op Comm Ed No. 13616.

Despite the violation of the Open Meeting Law, the action taken by the Board remains effective unless a court renders a determination to the contrary in resolving a suit brought by an aggrieved person under Public Officers Law § 102 [now § 107]. Comm Pub Acc Rec OML—Ad Op 567.

Meetings held by public bodies are to be considered legally held unless and until court renders contrary determination. Comm Pub Acc Rec OML-Ad Op 842.

Open Meetings Law does not provide for automatic nullification of action based upon violation of Law; court has discretionary authority to act in response to violation of Law. Comm Pub Acc Rec OML-Ad Op 849.

2. Aggrieved persons

Trial court properly rejected appellants' challenges under the Open Meetings Law; appellants were not aggrieved by any insufficiency in the notice of the meeting of the planning board held on November 12, 2008, or inaccessibility of the meeting to those with disabilities. In any event, the notice conformed to statutory requirements. Further, appellants failed to meet their burden of establishing a violation of the Open Meetings Law in relation to notice of that meeting or that there is good cause to declare void the planning board's action at that meeting, which was merely to schedule a date for a public hearing. Matter of Thorne v Village of Millbrook Planning Bd., 83 A.D.3d 723, 920 N.Y.S.2d 369, 2011 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2836 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't), app. denied, 17 N.Y.3d 711, 930 N.Y.S.2d 556, 954 N.E.2d 1182, 2011 N.Y. LEXIS 2949 (N.Y. 2011).

Resident's suit claiming that a city failed to comply with the Open Meetings Law was dismissed because the resident's allegation, that as a member of the general public he was affected by the proposed budget under consideration at a meeting, was insufficient to confer standing in the matter under N.Y. Pub. Off. Law § 107(1). Matter of Rivers v Young, 892 N.Y.S.2d 747, 26 Misc. 3d 946, 243 N.Y.L.J. 2, 2009 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3447 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 2009).

Under Open-Meetings Law any "agrieved" person may initiate suit on basis that he was excluded from public meeting; § 98 [now § 183] of Open Meetings Law provides that any member of general public may attend meeting of public body; thus, any person excluded from meeting would likely be considered "aggrieved". Comm Pub Acc Rec OML-Ad Op 810.

3. Determination of violation

Where plaintiff incorporated village failed to submit contrary evidence or affidavits of probative value in opposition to evidence submitted by a county rent guidelines board and the affidavit submitted by the board's chairman to show that the board properly went into a brief executive session to discuss pending litigation with respect to rent guidelines, defendants board and chairman are entitled to summary judgment on the issue of the board's compliance with the Open Meetings Law. Great Neck Plaza v Nassau County Rent Guidelines Board, 69 A.D.2d 528, 418 N.Y.S.2d 796, 1979 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11833 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1979).

In an Art 78 proceeding to annul resolutions by the board of trustees of a community college that eliminated certain faculty positions, the trial court properly dismissed so much of the petitioner faculty association's claims as fell within the scope of the grievance procedure contained in the collective bargaining agreement between the faculty association and the board of trustees on the ground that the faculty association had failed to exhaust its administrative remedies, since the grievance procedure was applicable to disputes "based upon a claimed violation, misinterpretation, misapplication or inequitable application of any clause" of the collective bargaining agreement, and also contained a provision that set forth the procedures to be followed in the event that retrenchment of personnel became necessary, and the faculty association's claims were merely assertions that the application or misapplication of the contractual policy and procedure by the board of trustees violated other procedural requirements, so that the grievance procedure was applicable to the dispute; however, the trial court erred in dismissing that part of the faculty association's claim which alleged that the board of trustees violated the Open Meetings Law, Pub O, Art 7, since the issues of whether the resolutions were passed at public meetings held in violation of the notice requirements of the Open Meetings Law, and, if so, what the appropriate remedy would be, together with the question of whether the faculty association was an "aggrieved person" within the meaning of the Law, were totally unrelated to the collective bargaining agreement, and were thus outside the scope of its grievance procedures. Brown v Casier, 95 A.D.2d 574, 469 N.Y.S.2d 165, 1983 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 19862 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1983).

Evidence was sufficient to permit Supreme Court to conclude that village board of trustees had decided to create full-time village attorney position while in executive session, in violation of Open Meetings Law, where affidavits of board members revealed that board considered whether to create position and resulting fiscal impact, proposed job description was circulated one week later, resolution creating position was introduced and passed at open meeting 2 weeks later, and several members immediately tendered resignations and accepted new appointments so that position could be filled. Gordon v Village of Monticello, 207 A.D.2d 55, 620 N.Y.S.2d 573, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13248 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1994), rev'd, in part, 87 N.Y.2d 124, 637 N.Y.S.2d 961, 661 N.E.2d 691, 1995 N.Y. LEXIS 4447 (N.Y. 1995).

Board of Education engaged in persistent pattern of deliberate violations of Open Meetings Law (CLS Pub O Art 7) through insufficient notice, unreasonable starting times, improper convening of executive sessions, and improper exclusion of members of public; thus, it was proper for court to annul certain actions of Board and impose attorneys' fees. Goetschius v Board of Educ., 244 A.D.2d 552, 664 N.Y.S.2d 811, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11925 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1997).

There was no violation under N.Y. Pub. Off. Law § 107(1) of the Open Meeting Law, N.Y. Pub. Off. Law § 100 et seq., where notice pursuant to N.Y. Pub. Off Law § 104(1) and (2) was published as to the time, place, and subject of a meeting to discuss a developer's proposal for an area of the city, everyone who wanted to speak at the meeting had a chance to do so, and there was no indication that the city commission that held the meeting intentionally or knowingly discouraged anyone from attending. Matter of Windsor Owners Corp. v City Council of City of N.Y., 878 N.Y.S.2d 545, 23 Misc. 3d 490, 241 N.Y.L.J. 14, 2009 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 88 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 2009).

Violation of CLS Open Meetings Law was corrected by subsequent revote in a public meeting. Re Morris, Op Comr Ed #9509.

Planning board did not violate open meetings requirements when it went into executive session to discuss threatened litigation regarding a site plan for a fast food restaurant because the board took no action during the executive session. Matter of Western Sullivan O.R.E. LLC v Town of Thompson Planning Bd., 53 Misc. 3d 1202(A), 46 N.Y.S.3d 477, 2016 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3350 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 2016).

4. Remedies, generally

Attorneys' fees were properly awarded to plaintiffs under CLS Pub O § 107(2) where village board of trustees intentionally and flagrantly violated Open Meetings Law, and plaintiffs were obviously prejudiced thereby; under circumstances, existence of repeated violations was not prerequisite. Gordon v Village of Monticello, 87 N.Y.2d 124, 637 N.Y.S.2d 961, 661 N.E.2d 691, 1995 N.Y. LEXIS 4447 (N.Y. 1995).

Article 78 proceeding was not appropriate remedy where newspaper company sought injunction against conduct of executive sessions by city council and declaration that certain actions of council violated Open Meetings Law (CLS Pub O Art 7), and court would convert proceeding into declaratory judgment action as there was no issue of jurisdiction and no prejudice was apparent. Plattsburgh Pub. Co., Div. of Ottaway Newspapers v City of Plattsburgh, 185 A.D.2d 518, 586 N.Y.S.2d 346, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8984 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1992).

Not every violation of the Open Meetings Law called for a sanction, and the burden was on those raising the issue to establish good cause why a court should exercise its discretion to impose a sanction. DeSantis v City of Jamestown, 193 Misc. 2d 197, 747 N.Y.S.2d 906, 2002 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1266 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 2002).

Petitioner's claim regarding the Open Meetings Law is dismissed for lack of jurisdiction, for the appropriate forum for addressing a violation of the Open Meetings Law is the Supreme Court of the State of New York. Appeal of Strober, 1990 Op Comr Educ No 12371.

Under Open Meetings Law a court has discretionary authority to nullify action taken in violation of Law where member of public prevails in suit brought under Law. Comm Pub Acc Rec OML-Ad Op 825.

5. —Requirement of good cause for invalidating action

An Art 78 proceeding to invalidate a village's budget as having been adopted in violation of the "Open Meetings Law" was properly dismissed where, though such a violation had occurred, petitioner failed to make the required showing of good cause that would entitle him to the discretionary remedy of invalidation under Pub O § 107. Puka v Greco, 104 A.D.2d 362, 479 N.Y.S.2d 150, 1984 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 19832 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1984).

Contractor's petition to annul determination awarding street rehabilitation contract to another contractor is properly dismissed upon failure of contractor to show good cause for vacating determination, despite city's lack of compliance with Open Meetings Law (Pub O Law § 103). Callanan Industries, Inc. v Schenectady, 116 A.D.2d 883, 498 N.Y.S.2d 490, 1986 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 51689 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1986).

While there were certain violations of the Open Meetings Law, N.Y. Pub. Off. Law § 100 et seq., in relation to a civil service commission's meeting, the appointee failed to establish good cause to invalidate the results of the meeting under N.Y. Pub. Off. Law § 107(1). Matter of Imburgia v Procopio, 98 A.D.3d 617, 949 N.Y.S.2d 727, 2012 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5905 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2012).

In a case where it was alleged that a violation of the open meetings law occurred based on a redistricting plan that related to elections, there was a failure to show good cause why, as a sanction, a court should have exercised its discretion to void the plan since not every violation of the open meetings law triggered its enforcement sanctions. Matter of Max v Ward, 107 A.D.3d 1597, 967 N.Y.S.2d 557, 2013 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4455 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 2013).

Trial court properly dismissed a former employee's application to review a determination of a town terminating his employment because there was no indication of any personal or political animosities suggesting some deceitful purpose of ousting and replacing the former employee, his conclusory and unsupported assertions failed to refute the town's showing that its actions were part of a good faith effort to reorganize a municipal department for the purposes of reducing costs and increasing efficiency, and while the town board violated the Open Meetings Law, the former employee did not show the requisite "good cause" for declaring the board's action to be void, and the board's failure to comply with the Law was merely negligent. Matter of Cutler v Town of Mamakating, 137 A.D.3d 1373, 26 N.Y.S.3d 409, 2016 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1539 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2016).

In the absence of a showing of sufficient "prejudice" or "good cause", isolated technical violation does not warrant the extreme remedy of invalidating the entire Nassau County budget adopted by the board. Kessel v D'Amato, 97 Misc. 2d 675, 412 N.Y.S.2d 303, 1979 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1992 (N.Y. Sup. Ct.), modified, 72 A.D.2d 790, 421 N.Y.S.2d 614, 1979 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 14036 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1979).

Town's Board's decision in its N.Y. Pub. Off. Law § 105(1)(f) executive session to terminate an employee for poor performance was proper as, given the nature of the employee's probationary employment interest and the purposes of the Open Meetings Law, the Board's not recording its proven actions in its executive session minutes was a non-prejudicial open meetings law violation of N.Y. Pub. Off. Law § 106(2); therefore, the lower court's reversing the Board's determination was not for the "good cause" required by N.Y. Pub. Off. Law § 107(1) for the lower court to exercise its discretion to reverse the determination. The violation was capable of being corrected by the Board simply recording the vote in the minutes of its executive session. Specht v Town of Cornwall, 13 A.D.3d 380, 786 N.Y.S.2d 546, 2004 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 14843 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2004).

A school board meeting and action taken at such meeting may not be judged "illegal" or "void" if there is a "procedural error in calling the meeting to order, failing to follow Robert's Rules, or through failure to follow the agenda" since such action may only be nullified by a court "upon good cause shown" under Public Officers Law § 102 and it would be very difficult to demonstrate a good cause for invalidating action due merely to procedural defects. Comm Pub Acc Rec OML—Ad Op 558.

6. —Particular cases, generally

In a proceeding by a probationary teacher who alleged that her termination from her position was illegal and a nullity since it resulted from a determination of the school board which was made in executive session in violation of the Open Meetings Law and the Education Law, the teacher was not entitled to reinstatement as a matter of law, where the court had discretion to declare void the action taken at the executive session, and where it did not abuse its discretion in denying the teacher's reinstatement. Sanna v Lindenhurst Bd. of Education, 58 N.Y.2d 626, 458 N.Y.S.2d 511, 444 N.E.2d 975, 1982 N.Y. LEXIS 3881 (N.Y. 1982).

The trial court did not abuse its discretion in invalidating all action taken at a meeting of the board of education of a school district where the school district failed to present a satisfactory explanation for their last-minute call of the meeting and for the patent inadequacy of the notice which consisted only of a typewritten announcement posted on a bulletin board. White v Battaglia, 79 A.D.2d 880, 434 N.Y.S.2d 537, 1980 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 14302 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1980).

In a proceeding challenging the reapportionment of a county legislature, meetings at which members of the majority political party discussed a reapportionment plan did not violate Pub O § 98(a) [now § 103(a)] where, although they were closed sessions, no legislative quorum was present at any of the meetings; although a technical violation occurred at one of the meetings because no public notice was "conspicuously" posted as required by Pub O § 99 [now § 104], the trial court was not justified in voiding all the actions resulting from the meeting where the press was in fact notified of the meeting and attended it and where the resolution of the meeting merely called for a public hearing. Britt v County of Niagara, 82 A.D.2d 65, 440 N.Y.S.2d 790, 1981 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10944 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1981).

There was no abuse of discretion by Special Term in not vacating an ordinance which authorized the City of Binghamton to participate in a Federal loan program notwithstanding allegations that the ordinance was passed in violation of the Open Meetings Law. Kradjian v Binghamton, 104 A.D.2d 16, 482 N.Y.S.2d 89, 1984 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 20200 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1984), app. dismissed, 64 N.Y.2d 1039, 1985 N.Y. LEXIS 19716 (N.Y. 1985).

Resolution of Board of Education prohibiting use of unobtrusive recording devices was inconsistent with goal of fully informed citizenry and would be annulled. Mitchell v Board of Education, 113 A.D.2d 924, 493 N.Y.S.2d 826, 1985 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 52551 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1985).

Party bringing action Under CLS Pub Off § 107 to challenge selection of appointee for position of chancellor is not successful for purposes of award of attorney fees where, during pendency of action, appointment is withdrawn. Jones v Koch, 117 A.D.2d 647, 498 N.Y.S.2d 166, 1986 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 52925 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't), app. denied, 68 N.Y.2d 608, 506 N.Y.S.2d 1033, 498 N.E.2d 435, 1986 N.Y. Members of public body who are persistently derelict with regard to mandate of § 105 after being directed to comply by court order will be found in contempt of court, fined, and required to pay attorney's fees. Orange County Publications, Div. of Ottaway Newspapers, Inc. v County of Orange, 120 A.D.2d 596, 502 N.Y.S.2d 71, 1986 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 56679 (N.Y. Petitioner was not entitled to injunctive relief or counsel fees assessed against municipal legislature, despite its violation of Open Meetings Law on 2 occasions, where, prior to violation, legislature had duly noticed its meetings and opened them to public, and there was no showing of bad faith on legislature's part; violations of Open Meetings Law need not automatically trigger enforcement sanctions. Goodson Todman Enterprises, Ltd. v Kingston Common Council, 153 A.D.2d 103, 550 N.Y.S.2d 157, 1990 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 29 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1990).

Petitioners, nonprofit corporation dedicated to prevention of cruelty to animals, inter alia, were not entitled to writ of mandamus to compel Board of Trustees of State University of New York to allow public attendance at meetings of Laboratory Animals Use Committee (LAUC) of State University of New York at Stony Brook under "Open Meetings Law" (CLS Pub O §§ 100 et seq.) since LAUC is not "public body" within meaning of CLS Pub O § 102(2), and Stony Brook LAUC was not involved in "deliberations and decisions that go into the making of public policy." American Soc'y for Prevention of Cruelty to Animals v Board of Trustees of State Univ., 165 A.D.2d 561, 568 N.Y.S.2d 631, 1991 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4911 (N.Y. Supreme Court did not abuse its discretion in invalidating actions of village board of trustees in creating village attorney position in executive session where creation of position violated CLS Pub O § 105 for failure to sufficiently identify matter under discussion, and board's action resulted in series of appointments of individuals to occupy otherwise elected positions which, in turn, effectively deprived objectors of opportunity to vote for candidates of their choice. Gordon v Village of Monticello, 207 A.D.2d 55, 620 N.Y.S.2d 573, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13248 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1994), rev'd, in part, 87 N.Y.2d 124, 637 N.Y.S.2d 961, 661 N.E.2d 691, 1995 N.Y. LEXIS 4447 (N.Y. 1995).

Board of education violated Open Meetings Law by failing to provide public notice of special meeting at reasonable time prior thereto, and its resolution authorizing payment of retirement incentive to reimburse employee for unused accrued sick leave, which was adopted in executive session held at that meeting, was therefore void. Rampello v East Irondequoit Cent. Sch. Dist., 236 A.D.2d 797, 653 N.Y.S.2d 469, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1719 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1997).

Court properly annulled determination of village zoning board of appeals which granted applications for 2 area variances without any vote or discussion by board members; additionally, while not dispositive, notice of hearing was inaccurate, hearing room was too small to hold number of people who wished to attend, and zoning board provided no basis for refusing to grant reasonable requests for adjournment. Oshry v Zoning Bd. of Appeals, 276 A.D.2d 491, 713 N.Y.S.2d 564, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9816 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2000).

In an action brought against a town by its former comptroller, the town was entitled to summary judgment because even if the town violated the Open Meetings Law when discussion the decision to terminate him from that position, its actions were voidable, rather than void. Phillips v Town of Glenville, 160 A.D.3d 1264, 75 N.Y.S.3d 629, 2018 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2651 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2018).

Record supported a finding that a zoning board of appeals violated the Open Meetings Law with regard to a workshop by failing to give proper notice, but plaintiffs failed to establish good cause to annul the determination on that ground, as the improperly noticed meeting was open to the public and the determination at issue was adopted at a publicized, public meeting after a series of public meetings with regard thereto had previously been held. Thus, the trial court should not have annulled the determination on that ground and should not have awarded plaintiffs costs and attorneys' fees based on that violation. Chestnut Ridge Assoc., LLC v 30 Sephar Lane, Inc., 169 A.D.3d 995, 94 N.Y.S.3d 596, 2019 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1414 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2019).

Plaintiffs, rent stabilized tenants and various associations of tenants, are not entitled to a preliminary injunction enjoining the enforcement of certain rent guideline orders promulgated by the Rent Guidelines Board for leases entered into during the 12-month period beginning July 1, 1978 since the meetings at which the guidelines were adopted were not procedurally defective (Administrative Code of City of New York, § YY51-5.0, subd b; Public Officers Law, art 7) and the issue of whether or not tenants were given sufficient opportunity to present data relating to the fuel surcharge guidelines order is a matter which is open to question and cannot be a basis for a preliminary injunction; questions relating to defects and shortcomings alleged to exist in the board itself and its staff have no bearing on an application for a preliminary injunction and are matters for the city legislature and executive and not for the courts. Coalition against Coalition against Rent Increase Passalongs v Rent Guidelines Board, 104 Misc. 2d 101, 427 N.Y.S.2d 660, 1979 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2960 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1979).

An Article 78 proceeding brought by the president of a parent-teacher club was properly before the court to the extent that it sought to declare void the school board's vote closing an elementary school on the ground that the vote was taken in violation of the Open Meetings Law Article 7, and since the Public Officers Law provided that such relief could be sought either in an Article 78 proceeding or in an action for declaratory judgment and injunctive relief, the court was also empowered to enjoin the public body from further proceedings with the action declared void as violative of the Open Meetings Law. However, to the extent that the petition sought other relief, it would have to be dismissed, inasmuch as it could be adequately reviewed by the Commissioner of Education. Dombroske v Board of Education, 118 Misc. 2d 800, 462 N.Y.S.2d 146, 1983 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3402 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1983).

Actions taken by trustees of union free school district at 2 executive sessions would be voided where trustees violated provisions of Open Meetings Law by failing to properly notify public and publish minutes, and record strongly suggested that violations were not "unintentional" but rather calculated to minimize public awareness of trustees' sensitive political decision to attempt settlement of highly publicized matter in litigation. Previdi v Hirsch, 138 Misc. 2d 436, 524 N.Y.S.2d 643, 1988 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 340 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1988).

Although various meetings were held that were not open to the public, they did not all violate the Open Meetings Law, N.Y. Pub. Off. Law art. 7, as a meeting between a judge and others in his chambers was a judicial proceeding under N.Y. Pub. Off Law § 108(1) that was not covered by the Law, and a meeting between county and state legislators for advice was not subject to the Law pursuant to N.Y. Pub. Off. Law § 102(1); meetings held by members of the county legislature regarding issues that involved the budget and an increase in taxes, and meetings held by various legislators and officials without the judge's presence constituted violations of the Law, but sanctions such as a permanent injunction against future violations were not required under N.Y. Pub. Off. Law § 107. Warren v Giambra, 813 N.Y.S.2d 892, 12 Misc. 3d 650, 235 N.Y.L.J. 86, 2006 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 829 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 2006).

7. — —Article 78 proceedings

Article 78 proceeding, alleging that respondent community college association's allocation of student activity funds at closed meeting held on March 30, 1994 wrongfully deprived petitioner of portion of his student activity fees, was timely commenced on August 3, 1994, as petitioner's claim was governed by CLS Pub O § 107(3) and was measured from date minutes of meeting were released, not from date of meeting itself. Smith v City Univ. of New York, 92 N.Y.2d 707, 685 N.Y.S.2d 910, 708 N.E.2d 983, 1999 N.Y. LEXIS 1 (N.Y. 1999).

In Article 78 proceeding in which court enjoined county legislature from holding meetings and hearings at any location without barrier-free access to physically handicapped persons, award of costs and counsel fees was properly denied where court found that legislature had made, and was continuing to make, reasonable efforts to provide access to handicapped persons and that such efforts were commenced and underway prior to prosecution of proceeding. Clark v Lyon, 147 A.D.2d 838, 537 N.Y.S.2d 934, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1579 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1989).

Court providently exercised its discretion in annulling certain determinations of school district's board of education and awarding attorney fee to petitioners in Article 78 proceeding where board engaged in persistent pattern of deliberate violation of letter and spirit of CLS Pub O Art 7 by, inter alia, improperly convening executive sessions and conducting business in manner inaudible to public audience. Goetschius v Board of Educ., 281 A.D.2d 416, 721 N.Y.S.2d 386, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2074 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2001).

Because two town boards failed to consider all reasonable options in mitigation of a wind power project, because the lead agency improperly delegated its duties to other agencies, and because the Open Meetings Law in N.Y. Pub. Off. Law § 107(2) was violated, the landowners were entitled to N.Y. C.P.L.R. art. 78 relief. Matter of Brander v Town of Warren Town Bd., 847 N.Y.S.2d 450, 18 Misc. 3d 477, 2007 N.Y. Misc. 1. In general

Open Meetings Law does not preclude board members from describing what occurred during executive session, and any person may ask them whether they discussed only those subjects identified in motions to conduct executive sessions. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-12200.

Action taken by public body not in compliance with Open Meetings Law remains valid unless and until court determines to contrary. Committee on Open Government OML-AO-1052.

Since there is no agency of government that enforces Open Meetings Law, individual would be required to employ own legal counsel; however, Open Meetings Law provides court with discretionary authority to award costs and reasonable attorney's fees to successful party. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-1445.

Action taken by public body remains valid unless and until court renders contrary determination; therefore, if zoning board of appeals votes behind closed doors when vote should have been taken in public, court may, in its discretion, nullify its action. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-1456.

When legal challenge is initiated relating to failure to provide notice, key issue is whether failure to comply with notice requirements imposed by Open Meetings Law was "unintentional." Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-4149.

2. Aggrieved persons

Any aggrieved person under Open Meetings Law may initiate judicial proceeding pursuant to CLS Civil Practice Law and Rules Article 78 or action for declaratory judgment injunctive relief against public body; furthermore, court may, in its discretion, upon good cause shown, invalidate, in whole or in part, any action taken at meeting where violation of Open Meetings Law is determined to have occurred. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-1422-1423, and 1427.

Unless one or more of exceptions in CLS Pub O § 105(1)(a) through (h) arise, public body, including zoning board of appeals, must deliberate in public; vote by zoning board of appeals must be taken in public; if open meetings law is violated possible recourse is provided in CLS Pub O § 107(1). Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-44717; Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-1412.

3. Determination of violation

Where town board members met to discuss public business or continued their original meeting after their official adjournment at 8:45 p.m., they failed to comply with Open Meetings Law. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2285.

While members of public bodies may consult with one another individually or by phone, they may not validly conduct meetings by means of telephone conferences, vote or make collective determinations by means of communications occurring outside of meeting held in accordance with Open Meetings Law. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2290.

Fact that school classes have been canceled due to snowstorm does not precluded board of education from conducting meeting. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2344.

There is no requirement that public body must refer at open meeting to communications received from residents and other interested persons. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2348.

There is nothing in Open Meetings Law that precludes members of public body from conferring individually or by telephone; however, series of communications between individual members or telephone calls among members which results in decision, or meeting held by means of telephone conference, is inconsistent with law. While members of public bodies may consult with one another individually or by phone, they may not validly take action or make collective determinations by means of series of "one on one" meetings or telephonic communications. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2354.

If it is determined that meetings are held by less than quorum for purposes of circumventing Open Meetings Law, court might find such action to violate Open Meetings Law. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2409.

Village board's practice of refusing to identify litigation matter which would be discussed in executive session violated Open Meetings Law. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2451.

When legal challenge is initiated relating to failure to provide notice, key issue is whether failure to comply with notice requirements imposed by Open Meetings Law was "unintentional." Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2567.

Town Board violated Open Meetings Law when it authorized publication of political advertisements in local newspaper without having done so at meeting by means of vote by members of board. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3680.

4. Remedies, generally

5. —Requirement of good cause for invalidating action

Finding of failure to comply with notice requirements imposed by Open Meetings Law, intentional or otherwise, is dependent upon attendant facts; further, action taken by public body generally remains valid unless and until court determines to contrary. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2371.

Even though public body might have failed to comply with Open Meetings Law, action that it has taken is not automatically void; rather it would be voidable. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2381.

6. —Particular cases, generally

Failure to prepare appropriate minutes within requisite time does not serve to invalidate decision made at meeting of public body. Comm on Open Gov't FOIL-AO-8895.

If action was taken during open meeting, and if legal notice of hearing was published as required by law, it is questionable whether "good cause" could be demonstrated for purpose of convincing court to employ its discretionary authority to nullify action. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2346.

If public body routinely gives notice to news media and posts notice as required by CLS Pub O § 104 but fails to notify media prior to special meeting due to oversight, such failure could be characterized as unintentional. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2381.

Given that notice requirements of Open Meetings Law have remained unchanged since law went into effect in 1977, it would appear that "practice" of not notifying news media of meetings could not be construed as unintentional. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2381.

County board of health violated Open Meetings Law when it considered implementation of new smoking regulations during executive session. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2612.

Vote on policy issue taken by board of education prior to published meeting time of 7:30 p.m. violated Open Meetings Law, and court would be authorized to invalidate vote under CLS Pub O § 107; meeting should not have convened until 7:30 p.m. and, if board needed to start meeting earlier, it had to provide additional notice to news media and at location where original notice was posted, to reflect new time meeting would begin. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-3601.

Actions taken by school board which failed to comply with Freedom of Information Law and Open Meetings Law were voidable, but not automatically void. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2245.

Any decision made by phone poll, if reviewed by court, could be deemed null and void. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2256.

Open Meetings Law does not include any provision involving criminal sanctions. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2385.

District attorney might, depending upon his or her findings, contend that members of public body violated CLS Penal § 195.00, which concerns "official misconduct," when they violated Open Meetings Law. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2385.

Authority to award attorney's fees under CLS Pub O § 107(2) is discretionary rather than mandatory. Comm on Open Gov't OML-AO-2438.

HISTORY:
Add, L 1965, ch 1031, § 188, eff Sept 1, 1967.

§ 239-a. Definitions

As used in this article the following terms shall mean and include:

1. "Structure." Any building or completed construction of any kind including but not limited to, private dwellings or to any structure used for business, commercial or industrial purposes, but not including multiple dwellings, buildings under construction, or buildings used solely for agricultural purposes.

2. "Multiple dwelling." A multiple dwelling is a dwelling which is either rented, leased, let or hired out to be occupied or is occupied as the residence or home of three or more families living independently of each other and shall include, dwelling portions of hospitals, nursing homes, convents, monasteries, asylums and public institutions.

3. "Owner." The owner of the freehold of any real property (as defined in section two of the real property law), or of a lesser estate therein, a mortgagee or vendee in possession, assignee of rents, receiver, executor, trustee, lessee, agent, or any other person, firm or corporation, directly or indirectly in control of real property.

4. "Person." The term person shall include the owner, mortgagee or vendee in possession, assignee of rents, receiver, executor, trustee, lessee, agent or any other person, firm or corporation, directly or indirectly in control of a structure or part thereof.

5. "Listed." Any portable kerosene heater which has been tested by an independent, nationally recognized testing or inspection agency, acceptable to the secretary of state and which has been determined to meet a generally accepted standard for such heaters. Such determination shall be evidenced by either the inclusion of the heater on a list published by such agency or by the heater bearing the listing mark of such agency.

6. "Portable kerosene heater." Any non-flue connected, self-contained, self-supporting, kerosene-fueled heating appliance equipped with an integral reservoir, designed to be carried from one location to another.

7. "Approved portable kerosene heater." Any listed portable kerosene heater which:

(a) has a fuel capacity of not more than two gallons;

(b) emits no more than .04 percent carbon monoxide in an air free sample of flue gases at maximum heat output and no more than .08 percent at recommended low-fire setting;

(c) has a minimum tipping angle of no more than thirty-three degrees from the vertical with a full fuel reservoir;

(d) has an automatic shutoff safety device or inherent design feature which extinguishes the heating flame upon tipover in not more than ten seconds;

(e) includes as standard equipment a pump or siphon for refueling;

(f) is packaged with instructions advising the purchaser of proper maintenance and operation;

(g) bears labeling, in conspicuous letters, cautioning and informing the purchaser as to:

(i) the need for an adequate source of ventilation when the heater is in operation;

(ii) the use of only suitable fuel for the heater;

(iii) proper manner of refueling;

(iv) proper placement and handling of the heater when in operation; and

(v) proper procedures for lighting, flame regulation and extinguishing the heater;

(h) after April first, nineteen hundred eighty-two, meets such additional standards, if any, as may be contained in reasonable rules and regulations adopted by the secretary of state pursuant to section two hundred thirty-nine-c of this article.

A town may prohibit the use of portable kerosene heaters in condominiums. 1982 N.Y. Op. Att'y Gen. No. 82-11, 1982 N.Y. AG LEXIS 98.

§ 239-c. Approval by the secretary of state

After April first, nineteen hundred eighty-two, no portable kerosene heater shall be offered for sale in this state for use in a structure unless it has been approved by the secretary of state or his designee. In determining whether to approve a portable kerosene heater for sale, the secretary of state shall consider whether the heater meets (1) the standards set forth in subdivision seven of section two hundred thirty-nine-a of this article, and (2) any additional standards which the secretary of state reasonably believes are required to effectuate the purposes of this article as set forth in section two hundred thirty-nine of this article. The secretary of state may promulgate reasonable rules and regulations setting forth the procedure by which portable kerosene heaters will be reviewed for approval.
