Fire commissioners may reject all bids and readvertise for new bids. If condemnation proceeding is discontinued, fire district may be ordered to pay damages to owners of realty. Board may not expend in excess of estimate set forth in bond resolution. Board may issue bonds to an amount smaller than approved. Expenses incurred in connection with building construction project disapproved in referendum are legal liabilities and may be paid. 1966 Ops St Compt File #751.

A fire district may establish a capital reserve fund to purchase a fire alarm system or establish a repair reserve fund to repair a fire alarm system under certain circumstances. A reserve fund may not be established to fund current expenses concerning, or maintenance of, a fire alarm system. 1973 Ops St Compt File #1015.

Board of trustees of a village may establish funds, except where subject to permissive or mandatory referendum, for the purchase of new fire apparatus and for certain repairs to existing equipment. 1956 Ops St Compt File #8020.

A fire district may not expend money from a repair reserve fund to purchase a fire alarm siren. A transfer of funds may be made to a fire district capital reserve fund and then the siren may be purchased from such capital reserve fund, subject to applicable referendum provisions. 1968 Ops St Compt File #632.

5. —Highways

Moneys in a town repair reserve fund established by appropriations or transfers from the general fund, may not be appropriated for highway item 3 purposes. An exception exists where only surplus town moneys have been transferred to the reserve fund. 1953 Ops St Compt File #6191.

6. —Investment

In the absence of specific authority, public moneys may not be invested; a city may by local law provide such authority or, by creating an appropriate reserve fund, may invest moneys therein pursuant to existing statutory authority. 1946 Ops St Compt 335.

A town board may establish a capital reserve fund and repair reserve fund. It may deposit surplus moneys of a public general hospital in such funds, and may authorize the investment of moneys in such funds. 1956 Ops St Compt File #8207.

7. —Miscellaneous uses

Moneys in repair reserve fund may be expended for dredging of town lake if work is intended to restore lake to sound condition rather than to rebuild, improve or add value to lake, and work need not be undertaken annually or at shorter intervals. Ops St Compt 88-51.

8. Procedure; establishment of fund; public hearing

A village is not required to hold a public hearing when establishing a reserve fund for street paving. 1954 Ops St Compt File #6509.

9. —Issuance of bonds

Fire commissioners may reject all bids and readvertise for new bids. If condemnation proceeding is discontinued, fire district may be ordered to pay damages to owners of realty. Board may not expend in excess of estimate set forth in bond resolution. Board may issue bonds to an amount smaller than approved. Expenses incurred in connection with building construction project disapproved in referendum are legal liabilities and may be paid. 1966 Ops St Compt File #751.

10. —Separate bank account for fund

Separate bank account must be set up for each reserve fund. 1947 Ops St Compt 258.

11. Violations

The provisions of this section making the members of the town board trustees of the Repair Reserve Fund and guilty of a misdemeanor if they authorize improper withdrawals or expenditures constitute such safeguards against probability of waste as to warrant denial of an injunction sought in a taxpayer's action challenging the validity of appropriations for such fund. Sweeney v Farrington, 38 Misc. 2d 882, 239 N.Y.S.2d 254, 1963 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2156 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1963).

3. Use of funds; fire district purposes
4. —Highways
5. —Miscellaneous uses
6. Procedure; establishment of fund; public hearing

1. In general

There is no requirement that moneys expended from a repair reserve fund in a non-emergency situation be replaced. 1982 Op St Compt File #82-122.

2. Government bodies authorized to establish fund

A school district may establish a repair reserve fund pursuant to section 6-d of the General Municipal Law without voter approval. 1979 Op St Compt File #397.

3. Use of funds; fire district purposes

4. —Highways

When a town includes an incorporated village, moneys in a repair reserve fund may not be transferred to item one of the highway fund to pay for reconstruction of a washed-out portion of town highway. 1982 Op St Compt File #82-249.

5. —Miscellaneous uses

Moneys in a repair reserve fund may not be used to pay debt service on obligations. 1979 Op St Compt File #63.

For purposes of section 6-d(2) of the General Municipal Law, a case of emergency is where an unexpected occurrence causes damage to a capital improvement or equipment and requires immediate repair. 1982 Op St Compt File #82-159.

Moneys held in a repair reserve refund established for a town water district may, upon consolidation of the town's water districts, be used solely for repairs to facilities and equipment of the water district for which the fund was established where the town board's resolution for the consolidation of the districts specifies that such moneys are to be used for that purpose rather than becoming the property of the consolidated district. 1983 Op St Compt File #83-136.

Moneys in a repair reserve fund may be expended for interior painting of a school building. 1984 Op St Compt File #84-8.

The installation of a new transmission and siren in a fire district pumper truck may well be a capital purpose for which moneys in a capital reserve fund could be expended. However, such funds probably could not be used for the reconditioning and replacement of springs and could not be used for repairs to such truck. 1978 Op St Compt File #576.

A fire district may not use moneys from a repair reserve fund to repaint and make alterations to the kitchen in the firehouse nor may it use these moneys to purchase a new stove. However, moneys from a capital reserve fund may be used to finance these improvements subject to permissive referendum. 1980 Op St Compt File #79.

Expenditures for repairs to fire district buildings and equipment may be made from a repair reserve fund if they do not occur annually or at shorter intervals. Such expenditures must be preceded by a public hearing. 1982 Op St Compt File #82-269.

6. Procedure; establishment of fund; public hearing

An appropriation to a repair reserve fund, not being an ordinary contingent expense, is subject to voter approval. 1981 Op St Compt File #81-401.

§ 6-e. Contingency and tax stabilization reserve fund for municipal corporations

1. As used in this section:

a. "Annual budget" means the annual budget or estimate, as finally adopted, of a municipal corporation which is required by law to adopt an annual budget or estimate of the expenditures to be made for a fiscal year for the general support or for the expenses of the government of such municipal corporation during such fiscal year.

b. "Base year" means the most recent fiscal year for which an annual report has been filed with the state comptroller pursuant to section thirty of this chapter.

c. "Chief executive officer" means a chief executive officer as defined in paragraph five-a of section 2.00 of the local finance law.

d. "Chief fiscal officer" means a chief fiscal officer as defined in paragraph five of section 2.00 of the local finance law.

e. "Eligible portion of the annual budget" means:

(1) in the case of a contingency and tax stabilization reserve fund established for a county, city, village or fire district, the general fund portion of the annual budget;

(2) in the case of a contingency and tax stabilization reserve fund established for a town, the townwide general fund and highway fund portions of the annual budget; and

(3) in the case of a contingency and tax stabilization reserve fund established for the part of a town outside any villages, the general fund and highway fund portions of the annual budget for such part of the town.

f. "Estimated revenue" means revenue from a specific source which is expected to be received during a fiscal year and which is included in the annual budget as finally adopted for that fiscal year.

g. "Governing board" means a governing board as defined in section two of this chapter and, in the case of a fire district, shall mean the board of fire commissioners.

h. "Municipal corporation" means a municipal corporation as defined in section two of this chapter and shall also include a fire district.

i. "Public emergency" means an epidemic, conflagration, riot, storm, flood or other sudden, unforeseen or unexpected occurrence or condition which requires the immediate expenditure of moneys to protect the public health, safety or welfare of the inhabitants of the municipal corporation.

j. "Tentative budget" means the tentative budget prepared pursuant to section three hundred fifty-four of the county law, section one hundred six of the town law or section 5-504 of the village law, the statement of expenditures prepared pursuant to section one hundred eighty-one of the town law, or similar document prepared pursuant to general, special or local law.

k. "Unanticipated expenditure" means an expenditure for a specific purpose for which there is no or insufficient appropriation or which will cause an appropriation to be insufficient that is necessitated by a change in federal or state laws, rules or regulations, a court order, judgement or decree, a public emergency, or an industry-wide price, rate or premium increase, which takes effect or occurs after final adoption of the annual budget and which could not have been reasonably anticipated prior to final adoption of the annual budget.

l. "Unanticipated revenue loss" means estimated revenue which is rendered unreceivable because of a change in federal or state laws, rules or regulations, a court order, judgement or decree, or other circumstance, which takes effect or occurs after final adoption of the annual budget and which could not have been reasonably anticipated prior to final adoption of the annual budget.

m. "Unappropriated unreserved fund balance" means the difference between the total assets for a fund and the total liabilities, deferred revenues, encumbered appropriations, amounts appropriated for the ensuing fiscal year's budget, and amounts reserved for stated purposes pursuant to law, including reserve funds established pursuant to the general municipal law for the fund, as determined through application of the system of accounts prescribed by the state comptroller pursuant to section thirty-six of this chapter.

n. "Voting strength" means the aggregate number of votes which all the members of the governing board are entitled to cast.

2. The governing board of any municipal corporation, by resolution subject to a permissive referendum, may establish a contingency and tax stabilization reserve fund for the municipal corporation and, in the case of a town, also for the part of the town outside any villages. Such permissive referendum shall be governed by:

a. in the case of a county, sections one hundred one through one hundred three of the county law;

b. in the case of a city, sections twenty-four through twenty-six of the municipal home rule law;

c. in the case of a town or the part of a town outside any villages, article seven of the town law;

d. in the case of a village, article nine of the village law; and

e. in the case of a fire district, subdivision four of section six-g of this article.

3. There may be paid into the contingency and tax stabilization reserve fund such amounts as may be provided therefor by budgetary appropriation, unappropriated unreserved fund balance in the eligible portion of the annual budget, and such revenues as are not required by law to be paid into any other fund or account; provided, however, that no amount may be appropriated for payment into a contingency and tax stabilization reserve fund which would cause the balance of the fund to exceed ten percent of the eligible portion of the annual budget for the fiscal year for which the appropriation would be made.

4. a. The moneys in a contingency and tax stabilization reserve fund may be expended only pursuant to an appropriation for a purpose authorized by this subdivision. Except as provided in paragraph e of this subdivision, such an appropriation shall be made only upon the recommendation of the chief executive officer and the adoption of a resolution appropriating the recommended amount by at least two-thirds of the voting strength of the governing board.

b. The moneys in a contingency and tax stabilization reserve fund may be used to finance an unanticipated revenue loss chargeable to the eligible portion of the annual budget, subject to the following limitations:

(1) the maximum amount of moneys in the fund that may be used to finance an unanticipated revenue loss shall equal either the amount of the revenue actually received for the base year or the amount of the estimated revenue for the current fiscal year, whichever is less, minus the amount of the revenue actually received for the current fiscal year; and

(2) the moneys in the fund may be used only to finance that portion of the unanticipated revenue loss which, as a matter of law, cannot be financed with amounts available in any other account or fund.

c. The moneys in a contingency and tax stabilization reserve fund may be used to finance an unanticipated expenditure chargeable to the eligible portion of the annual budget, subject to the following limitations:

(1) the maximum amount of moneys in the fund that may be used to finance an unanticipated expenditure shall equal the sum of the amount of the unanticipated expenditure and the amount appropriated for that purpose for the current fiscal year minus either the amount appropriated for that purpose for the current fiscal year or the actual expenditure for the same purpose in the base year, whichever is greater; and

(2) the moneys in the fund may be used only to finance that portion of an unanticipated expenditure which, as a matter of law, cannot be financed with amounts available in any other account or fund.

d. The moneys in the contingency and tax stabilization reserve fund may be used to lessen or prevent any projected increase in excess of two and one-half percent in the amount of the real property tax levy needed to finance the eligible portion of the annual budget for the next succeeding fiscal year. The maximum amount of moneys in the fund that may be used for this purpose shall equal the difference between the projected amount of such real property tax levy and one hundred two and one-half percent of the amount of the real property tax levy needed to finance the eligible portion of the annual budget for the current fiscal year.

e. When preparing the tentative budget of a municipal corporation, if the current balance of a contingency and tax stabilization reserve fund, as shown by the statement of the chief fiscal officer required by subdivision six of this section, exceeds ten percent of the eligible portion of the annual budget for the current fiscal year, such excess shall be used to reduce the amount of real property taxes needed to finance the eligible portion of the annual budget for the next succeeding fiscal year.

5. The moneys in the contingency and tax stabilization reserve fund shall be deposited in one or more of the banks or trust companies designated, in the manner provided by law, as depositories of the funds of such municipal corporation. The governing board, or the chief fiscal officer having custody of such money of such municipal corporation, if the governing board shall delegate such duty to him, may invest the moneys in such fund in obligations specified in section eleven of this article. Any interest earned or capital gain realized on the money so deposited or invested shall accrue to and become part of such fund.

6. The chief fiscal officer shall account for the contingency and tax stabilization reserve fund separate and apart from all other funds of the municipal corporation. Such accounting shall show: the source, date and amount of each sum paid into the fund; the interest earned by such fund; capital gains or losses resulting from the sale of investments of the fund; the order, source thereof, date and amount of each appropriation from this fund; the assets of the fund, indicating cash balance and a schedule of investments. Not later than sixty days after the start of each fiscal year and at such times as may be required by the governing board, the chief fiscal officer shall furnish to the governing board a detailed report of the operation and condition of the fund during the preceding fiscal year which shall include a statement of receipts and disbursements, and a statement of the balance of the fund as of the last day of such preceding fiscal year and such other dates as may be specified by the governing board. Not later than thirty days prior to the last date provided by law for the filing of the tentative budget, the chief fiscal officer shall furnish to the officer or body responsible for preparing the tentative budget a statement of the current balance of the fund.

7. The members of the governing board are hereby declared trustees of the moneys in the contingency and tax stabilization reserve fund and shall be subject to all duties and responsibilities imposed by law on trustees, and such duties and responsibilities may be enforced by the municipal corporation or by any board, commission, agency, officer or taxpayer thereof.

8. Any officer of a municipal corporation shall be guilty of a misdemeanor if he or she willfully and knowingly causes the municipal corporation to:

a. Appropriate moneys from the contingency and tax stabilization reserve fund for any purpose not authorized by this section.

b. Expend any money from the contingency and tax stabilization reserve fund for a purpose other than that for which it was appropriated.

The provisions of this subdivision shall be considered to be in addition to any other penalties provided by law.

§ 6-f. Snow and ice removal and road repair reserve funds for municipal corporations

1. The governing board of any municipal corporation may establish a special fund which shall be known as the snow and ice removal and road repair reserve fund of such municipal corporation. There may be paid into such fund an amount as may be provided therefor by budgetary appropriation or such revenues as are not required by law to be paid into any other fund or account.

2. In cases of emergency, moneys in such fund may be expended pursuant to a resolution approved by not less than two-thirds of the members of the governing body of such municipal corporation providing that not less than one-half of the moneys so expended shall be repaid in the fiscal year immediately following the fiscal year in which such moneys were expended and the total amount shall be repaid not later than the last day of the second fiscal year succeeding the fiscal year in which the moneys were expended. Prior to the adoption of any other resolution, act, ordinance or local law by the governing board of such municipal corporation, appropriating money from such fund, the governing board shall cause to be published in the official newspaper or newspapers, if any, or otherwise in a newspaper or newspapers designated for such purpose, a notice stating in substance that it is proposed to appropriate a specified amount from the snow and ice removal and road repair reserve fund for a particular purpose, and that a public hearing on such proposed appropriation will be held at a time and place stated therein. At least five days shall elapse between the publication of such notice and the date specified for the hearing. The hearing shall be held at the time and place so specified.

3. Moneys in such fund may be appropriated only:

a. For the removal of snow and ice from the public thoroughfares and public places of such municipal corporation, which removal is of a type not likely to recur annually or at shorter intervals.

b. For repairing and maintaining roadways to the extent damage to such roadways was caused by the removal of snow and ice, including but not limited to repairing potholes and other road surface maintenance, which repairs and maintenance are of a type not likely to recur annually or at shorter intervals.

c. To a capital reserve fund established pursuant to section six-c, to a repair reserve fund established pursuant to section six-d or to a tax stabilization reserve fund established pursuant to section six-e of this article.

4. The moneys in such fund shall be deposited and secured in the manner provided by section ten of this article. The moneys in such fund so deposited shall be accounted for separate and apart from all other funds of the municipal corporation, in the same manner as provided in subdivision ten of section six-c of this article. The governing board or the chief fiscal officer of such municipal corporation, if the governing board shall delegate such duty to him, may invest the moneys in such fund in the manner provided in section eleven of this article. Any interest earned or capital gains realized on the moneys so deposited or invested shall accrue to and become part of such fund.

5. The members of the governing board of such municipal corporation are hereby declared trustees of such fund and shall be subject to all the duties and responsibilities imposed by law on trustees, and such duties and responsibilities may be enforced by such municipal corporation or by any board, commission, agency, officer or taxpayer thereof.

6. The members of the governing board of such municipal corporation shall be guilty of a misdemeanor if they:

a. Authorize a withdrawal from a snow and ice removal and road repair reserve fund for any other purpose except as provided in this section.

b. Expend any money withdrawn from a snow and ice removal and road repair reserve fund for a purpose other than that as provided in this section.

7. Notwithstanding the foregoing provisions of this section, in any town which is located wholly or partly within the Adirondack park and has within its boundaries state lands subject to taxation assessed at more than thirty per centum of the total taxable assessed valuation of the town as determined from the assessment rolls of the town as completed from time to time, or in any district corporation or improvement district situated in whole or in part in any such town, a snow and ice removal and road repair reserve fund shall not be established unless the state comptroller, on behalf of the state, shall consent thereto, and in any such town or district corporation or improvement district no appropriation shall be made from a snow and ice removal and road repair reserve fund unless the state comptroller, on behalf of the state, shall consent thereto.

§ 6-g. Capital reserve funds for fire districts

1. As used in this section:

a. The term "capital improvement" shall mean:

(1) Any physical betterment or improvement or any preliminary studies and surveys relative thereto.

(2) Land or rights in land.

(3) Any furnishings, equipment, machinery or apparatus for any physical public betterment or improvement acquired at the time when such betterment or improvement is constructed, reconstructed or acquired.

b. The term "equipment" shall include any equipment, machinery or apparatus not included in the definition of the term "capital improvement" and for the acquisition of which a period of probable usefulness has been provided by law.

c. The term "obligations" shall include bonds, notes, certificates or other evidences of indebtedness.

2. The board of fire commissioners of any fire district may establish capital reserve funds for the financing of all or a part of the cost of:

a. The construction, reconstruction or acquisition of a specific capital improvement or the acquisition of a specific item or specific items of equipment.

b. The construction, reconstruction or acquisition of a type of capital improvement or the acquisition of a type of equipment.

3. If the board of fire commissioners authorizes the establishment of a capital reserve fund for the financing of all or part of the cost of the construction, reconstruction or acquisition of a specific capital improvement or the acquisition of a specific item or specific items of equipment, it shall set forth in such authorization the estimated maximum cost thereof.

4. Any resolution of the board of fire commissioners authorizing the establishment of a reserve fund shall not take effect until approved by the affirmative vote of a majority of the electors of such fire district affected, qualified to vote at an annual election of fire district officers, voting on such proposition. Any special election shall be held in the manner provided in section one hundred seventy-nine of the town law, as amended from time to time.

A proposition for the submission of any such resolution of the board of fire commissioners to the approval of the said qualified electors pursuant to this section, shall contain an abstract of such resolution concisely stating the purposes and effect thereof. The fire district secretary shall prepare such abstract with the advice of the attorney for the fire district, if there be one, and forthwith transmit the proposition to the board of fire commissioners in the form in which it is to be submitted at such annual or special election of such fire district. If there be more than one such proposition to be voted upon at such election, each proposition shall be separately and consecutively numbered.

5. There may be paid into any such capital reserve fund:

a. Such an amount as may be provided therefor in the annual budget of the fire district adopted pursuant to section one hundred eighty-one of the town law or pursuant to section one hundred eighty-one-a of the town law.

b. Such revenues as are not required by law to be paid into any other fund or account, including the proceeds from the sale of any capital improvement or equipment owned by such fire district.

6. The moneys in each such capital reserve fund shall be deposited and secured in the manner provided by section ten of this article. The board of fire commissioners or the fire district treasurer of such fire district, if the board of fire commissioners shall delegate such duty to him, may invest the moneys in each such fund in the manner provided in section eleven of this article. Any interest earned or capital gains realized on the moneys so deposited or invested shall accrue to and become part of each such fund. The separate identity of each such fund shall be maintained, whether its assets consist of cash or investments or both.

7. An expenditure from a reserve fund shall be made only upon authorization by the board of fire commissioners and for a specific capital improvement or a specific item or specific items of equipment, the cost of which may be financed therefrom. However, if a proposed expenditure is from a fund established for a type of capital improvement or equipment and if it is required by law that the authorization by such board of fire commissioners of the issuance of obligations for such capital improvement or equipment be subject to a permissive or mandatory referendum, then the authorization of such an expenditure shall be subject to a permissive referendum. Within ten working days after the adoption by a board of fire commissioners of a resolution described in this section as being subject to a permissive referendum, the fire district secretary, in the same manner as provided for notice of annual elections, shall publish a notice which shall set forth the date of the adoption of the resolution and contain an abstract of such resolution concisely stating the purposes and effect thereof. The notice shall specify that such resolution was adopted subject to a permissive referendum. Any such resolution of the board of fire commissioners shall not take effect until thirty days after its adoption; nor until approved by the affirmative vote of a majority of the electors of such fire district affected, qualified to vote at an annual election of fire district officers, voting on such proposition, if within thirty days after its adoption there be filed with the fire district secretary a petition signed and acknowledged or proved in the same manner as a deed to be recorded, by resident taxpayers of such fire district, owning taxable real property aggregating at least one-quarter of the assessed valuation of all the taxable real property of the fire district as such valuations appear upon the latest completed assessment roll of the town or towns in which said fire district is located, protesting against such resolution and requesting that it be submitted to the qualified electors of the fire district affected for their approval or disapproval. If such petition be so filed not more than forty-five days nor less than thirty days prior to an annual election of fire district officers, a proposition for the approval of such resolution shall be submitted at such annual election of fire district officers. If a petition be so filed at any other time, a proposition for the approval of such resolution shall be submitted at a special fire district election to be held not more than forty days after the filing of such petition. If, within five days after the filing of such petition, a written objection thereto be filed with the fire district secretary, and a verified petition setting forth the objections be presented by the person so filing such objections to the supreme court or any justice thereof of the judicial district in which such fire district or any part thereof is located, such court or justice within twenty days shall determine any question arising thereunder and make such order as justice may require. Such proceeding shall be heard and determined in the manner prescribed by section 16-116 of the election law. A proposition for the submission of any such resolution of the board of fire commissioners to the approval of the said qualified electors pursuant to this section, shall contain an abstract of such resolution concisely stating the purposes and effect thereof. The fire district secretary shall prepare such abstract with the advice of the attorney for the fire district, if there be one, and forthwith transmit the proposition to the board of fire commissioners in the form in which it is to be submitted at such annual or special election of such fire district. If there be more than one such proposition to be voted upon at such election, each proposition shall be separately and consecutively numbered.

8. The board of fire commissioners may authorize the transfer to the credit of another capital reserve fund of such fire district all or part of:

a. The unexpended balance remaining in a fund established pursuant to this section for a specific capital improvement or a specific item or specific items of equipment, which improvement has been completed or acquired, or which equipment has been acquired, after deducting from such balance a sum sufficient to satisfy all outstanding claims arising from the construction, reconstruction or acquisition of such capital improvement or the acquisition of such equipment.

b. The unexpended balance remaining in a fund established pursuant to this section for a specific item or specific items of equipment which have not been acquired or a specific capital improvement which has not been completed or acquired, or remaining in a fund established pursuant to this section for a type of capital improvement or a type of equipment. If the proposed transfer is from a fund established for a specific capital improvement or a specific item or specific items of equipment, the authorization of such transfer shall be subject to a permissive referendum if the authorization of the creation of a fund for such capital improvement or item or items of equipment was subject to a permissive referendum. A permissive referendum on the authorization of such transfer shall be governed in the manner provided in subdivision seven of this section.

9. The fire district treasurer shall keep a separate account for each fund established. Such account shall show:

a. The date and amount of each sum paid into the fund.

b. The interest earned by such fund.

c. The capital gains or losses resulting from the sale of investments of the fund.

d. The interest or capital gains which have accrued to the fund.

e. The amount and date of each withdrawal from the fund.

f. The assets of the fund, indicating the cash balance therein and a schedule of the amounts invested in federal or state obligations. The fire district treasurer, at the termination of each fiscal year, shall render a detailed report of the operation and condition of each of such funds to the board of fire commissioners.

10. The members of the board of fire commissioners are hereby declared trustees of such funds and shall be subject to all the duties and responsibilities imposed by law on trustees, and such duties and responsibilities may be enforced by the fire district or by any board, commission, agency, officer or taxpayer thereof.

11. The members of the board of fire commissioners shall be guilty of a misdemeanor if they:

a. Authorize a withdrawal from a fund for any purpose other than for a capital improvement or an item or items of equipment, the cost of which has been authorized to be financed in whole or in part from such fund.

b. Expend any money withdrawn from a fund for a purpose other than that for which it was authorized to be withdrawn.

The provisions of this subdivision shall be considered to be in addition to any other penalties provided by law.

12. The board of water commissioners of a water district to which the provisions of article thirteen of the town law apply, and which has the powers of the fire district commissioners as provided in subdivisions nine to twenty-four, inclusive, of section one hundred seventy-six of the town law, may establish capital reserve funds as in this section provided for the financing of all or a part of the cost of capital improvements and equipment for fire department and fire protection purposes, in the same manner and to the same extent that the board of fire commissioners of a fire district may establish capital reserve funds for such purposes, and all of the provisions of this section shall apply in relation to the financing of all or a part of such capital improvements or equipment, and all references in this section to a fire district shall be deemed to refer to such water district, and all references herein to a fire district secretary or treasurer shall be deemed to refer to the secretary or treasurer of such board of water commissioners, except that if such board of water commissioners does not have a treasurer the provisions relating to the fire district treasurer shall be deemed to refer to the supervisor of the town in which such water district is located.

13. Notwithstanding the foregoing provisions of this section, if any such fire district is situated in whole or in part in a town which is wholly or partly within the Adirondack park and has within the town boundaries state lands subject to taxation assessed at more than thirty per centum of the total taxable assessed valuation of the town as determined from the assessment rolls of the town, as completed from time to time, a capital reserve fund for the fire district shall not be established on and after May first, nineteen hundred forty-eight, unless the state comptroller, on behalf of the state, shall consent thereto, and, on and after May first, nineteen hundred forty-eight, in any such fire district so located, no expenditure or transfer shall be made from a capital reserve fund heretofore or hereafter established unless the state comptroller, on behalf of the state, shall consent thereto.

1. In general

Balance of fire district funds on hand at end of fiscal year must be used to reduce tax levy. Capital reserve fund may be established for purpose of making alterations to fire house. Capital reserve fund is alternative to Section 179 of the Town Law. 1946 Ops St Compt 57.

2. Applicability to water districts

The Board of Water Commissioners of the Manhasset-Lakeville Water District may establish a capital reserve fund under this section. 1962 Ops St Compt #1028.

3. Source of fund; budgetary appropriation

Board of fire commissioners of fire district may establish capital reserve fund for the erection of fire house. Establishment of such capital reserve fund is subject to permissive referendum. Board of fire commissioners may make budgetary appropriation to the capital reserve fund. Amount which may be appropriated is not subject to spending limitation prescribed by subd. 18 of Section 176 of Town Law or to referendum provisions of Section 179 of Town Law. 1946 Ops St Compt 559.

4. —Insurance policy proceeds

Board of fire commissioners may establish capital reserve fund for construction of a fire house. Proceeds of fire insurance policy may be transferred to the capital reserve fund. 1946 Ops St Compt 143.

5. —Obligations

Where a capital reserve fund has been established to finance the purchase of a fire truck, bonds may nevertheless be issued to finance a portion of the cost. 1967 Ops St Compt File #699.

6. —Surplus funds

Board of Fire Commissioners of fire district may establish capital reserve fund for acquisition of real property for fire house and purchase of fire apparatus and equipment and also surplus funds of a fire district may be appropriated by Board of Fire Commissioners of fire district to establish capital reserve funds for acquisition of fire house and purchase of fire apparatus and equipment. 1945 Ops St Compt 352.

A fire district may establish a capital reserve fund and transfer thereto surplus fire district funds. 1951 Ops St Compt File #5493.

Unexpended balances of appropriations in the current fiscal year or surplus funds may be transferred to a fire district capital reserve fund or repair reserve fund. 1954 Ops St Compt File #6773.

7. —Surplus funds; accounting considerations

Board of fire commissioners must deduct unexpended balances remaining at close of fiscal year from amount authorized to be expended without adoption of a proposition. 1945 Ops St Compt 382.

The commissioners of a fire district, whose annual expenditures are limited to $1,000.00 may not expend in addition to such $1,000.00, surplus funds resulting from an expended balance of the previous year. Capital reserve fund suggested. 1946 Ops St Compt 687.

Fire district unexpended balance should be included in the annual estimate as a revenue. If not so included such moneys became unanticipated revenues in the following year and may be included as a revenue in the annual estimate for the following fiscal year. 1947 Ops St Compt 106.

8. Uses of fund; construction or alteration of firehouse

Plaintiffs' volunteer ambulance corps and an individual taxpayer failed to state a cause of action for an accounting against defendant fire district for tax monies allocated to the fire district and set up in an ambulance capital reserve fund, where the structure of the ambulance corps for a brief period of time as a fourth fire company did not create that relationship of trust between it and the fire district as would support such a cause of action, and the voluntary commencement by the fire district of an ambulance capital reserve fund and the deposit therein of sums out of its total revenues did not create an interest therein of the plaintiffs sufficient to require an accounting in equity, since revenues allocated to the fire district for its purposes could not be extended for the benefit of private independent organizations such as the ambulance corps. Kelly v Chester Fire Dist., 116 Misc. 2d 334, 455 N.Y.S.2d 312, 1982 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3879 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1982), rev'd, 95 A.D.2d 799, 463 N.Y.S.2d 518, 1983 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 18721 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1983).

Balance of fire district funds on hand at end of fiscal year must be used to reduce tax levy. Capital reserve fund may be established for purpose of making alterations to fire house. Capital reserve fund is alternative to Section 179 of the Town Law. 1946 Ops St Compt 57.

Board of fire commissioners may establish capital reserve fund for construction of a fire house. Proceeds of fire insurance policy may be transferred to the capital reserve fund. 1946 Ops St Compt 143.

Board of fire commissioners of fire district may establish capital reserve fund for the erection of fire house. Establishment of such capital reserve fund is subject to permissive referendum. Board of fire commissioners may make budgetary appropriation to the capital reserve fund. Amount which may be appropriated is not subject to spending limitation prescribed by subd. 18 of Section 176 of Town Law or to referendum provisions of Section 179 of Town Law. 1946 Ops St Compt 559.

The board of fire commissioners may at any time authorize expenditures from a capital reserve fund established for the construction or reconstruction of a heating system for the purpose of which established. Such expenditure is not subject to a permissive referendum. 1955 Ops St Compt File #7105.

Fire commissioners may reject all bids and readvertise for new bids. If condemnation proceeding is discontinued, fire district may be ordered to pay damages to owners of realty. Board may not expend in excess of estimate set forth in bond resolution. Board may issue bonds to an amount smaller than approved. Expenses incurred in connection with building construction project disapproved in referendum are legal liabilities and may be paid. 1966 Ops St Compt File #751.

9. —Fire apparatus and equipment

Board of Fire Commissioners of fire district may establish capital reserve fund for acquisition of real property for fire house and purchase of fire apparatus and equipment and also surplus funds of a fire district may be appropriated by Board of Fire Commissioners of fire district to establish capital reserve funds for acquisition of fire house and purchase of fire apparatus and equipment. 1945 Ops St Compt 352.

Fire district may establish capital reserve fund for the purchase of fire apparatus. 1946 Ops St Compt 81; 1946 Ops St Compt 144; 1955 Ops St Compt File #7596.

Moneys in a fire district capital reserve fund, established for the purchase of fire apparatus and equipment, may not be used to purchase a site for a fire house, unless such moneys are duly transferred as an unexpended balance to another capital reserve fund. 1952 Ops St Compt File #5784.

A contract may not be entered into for the purchase of a fire engine unless the contract cost is available or provided for on the date the contract is signed. 1970 Ops St Compt File #24.

Fire district may purchase fire truck from its fire department utilizing current funds if spending limitation contained in CLS Town § 176 will not be exceeded or if proposition has been adopted pursuant to CLS Town § 179; alternatively, Reserve Funds may be used, subject to limitations of CLS Gen Mun § 6-g, CLS Local Fin § 38.00, or obligations may be issued subject to mandatory referendum under CLS Local Fin § 38.00. 1986 Op St Compt No. 86-67.

Reserve fund established by fire district for type of equipment must identify kind or class of equipment which has distinguishing characteristics, and expenditures from such reserve fund may be made for any items which have specified distinguishing characteristics. 1987 Op St Compt No. 87-16.

Fire district board of commissioners may determine to include in annual fire district budget amount to be paid into capital reserve fund established for purchase of equipment, and board may fix such amount each year at approximately same amount previously paid annually for principal on obligations issued to finance fire truck; establishment of capital reserve fund for acquisition of specific item of equipment, or expenditures from capital reserve fund established for type of equipment, would be subject to permissive referendum requirements. 1996 Op St Compt No. 96-24.

Fire district may establish capital reserve fund for purpose of replacing chiefs' cars; it may also establish capital reserve fund for purpose of acquiring traffic signal control system. 1998 Op St Compt No. 98-7.

A fire district may not expend money from a repair reserve fund to purchase a fire alarm siren. A transfer of funds may be made to a fire district capital reserve fund and then the siren may be purchased from such capital reserve fund, subject to applicable referendum provisions. 1968 Ops St Compt File #632.

10. — —Ambulances

An action by an ambulance company to force a fire district to purchase an ambulance for the company out of the fire district's reserve fund would be dismissed, where the contractual arrangement previously entered into between the fire district and the company was illegal, where any understanding to purchase an ambulance for the company was an act beyond the power granted to the fire district by Gen Mun Law § 6-g, and where the fire district could not be estopped to deny its agreement, in that estoppel could not be invoked to prevent a municipality from disclaiming an unauthorized or unlawful act of its officers. Kelly v Chester Fire Dist., 95 A.D.2d 799, 463 N.Y.S.2d 518, 1983 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 18721 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't), aff'd, 60 N.Y.2d 660, 467 N.Y.S.2d 832, 455 N.E.2d 485, 1983 N.Y. LEXIS 3365 (N.Y. 1983).

11. — —Uniforms

Moneys in a capital reserve fund established for the purchase of equipment may not be expended for the purchase of new dress uniforms. 1982 Op St Compt #82-165.

12. —Investment purposes

All the interest earned from the investment of moneys on deposit in a capital reserve fund must be credited to that fund, even if this would cause the reserve fund to exceed the maximum established for the fund. 1968 Ops St Compt File #933.

Moneys in a capital reserve fund established by a fire district may be invested without prior voter approval. 1985 Op St Compt No. 85-12.

13. —Land acquisition

Board of Fire Commissioners of fire district may establish capital reserve fund for acquisition of real property for fire house and purchase of fire apparatus and equipment and also surplus funds of a fire district may be appropriated by Board of Fire Commissioners of fire district to establish capital reserve funds for acquisition of fire house and purchase of fire apparatus and equipment. 1945 Ops St Compt 352.

Moneys in a fire district capital reserve fund, established for the purchase of fire apparatus and equipment, may not be used to purchase a site for a fire house, unless such moneys are duly transferred as an unexpended balance to another capital reserve fund. 1952 Ops St Compt File #5784.

Fire commissioners may reject all bids and readvertise for new bids. If condemnation proceeding is discontinued, fire district may be ordered to pay damages to owners of realty. Board may not expend in excess of estimate set forth in bond resolution. Board may issue bonds to an amount smaller than approved. Expenses incurred in connection with building construction project disapproved in referendum are legal liabilities and may be paid. 1966 Ops St Compt File #751.

14. —Retirement of obligations

The unneeded balance of a capital reserve fund may not be used to retire bond anticipation notes. 1967 Ops St Compt File #14.

15. Procedure for establishing fund; generally

Creation of capital reserve funds by fire districts; payment therein of moneys set aside for building fire house; appropriations to capital reserve funds notwithstanding limitation on amount that may be expended without a vote on a proposition. 1946 Ops St Compt 514.

A fire district should not accumulate a surplus from year to year for the purpose of capital improvements but should establish capital reserve funds for such purposes. Moneys in a capital reserve fund may not be deposited in a savings bank or in time deposits, but may be invested in certain types of federal, state and fire district obligations. 1947 Ops St Compt 465; 1955 St Compt File #7193.

Discussion of procedure for establishment of capital reserve funds, payments into and expenditure from such funds, moneys to be kept in such funds and their investment, etc., under this section and § 6-f. 1964 Ops St Compt #159.

A board of fire commissioners must establish a capital reserve fund for a specific improvement in order to finance the construction of a fire house or substation. 1973 Ops St Compt File #800.

Absent special act of State Legislature, fire district may not make cash refunds to its taxpayers of unexpended monies in capital reserve fund that board of fire commissioners has determined are no longer needed for capital purposes. 2008 Op St Compt No. 08-3.

16. —Bond resolution

Fire commissioners may reject all bids and readvertise for new bids. If condemnation proceeding is discontinued, fire district may be ordered to pay damages to owners of realty. Board may not expend in excess of estimate set forth in bond resolution. Board may issue bonds to an amount smaller than approved. Expenses incurred in connection with building construction project disapproved in referendum are legal liabilities and may be paid. 1966 Ops St Compt File #751.

17. —Permissive referendum; when required

Creation of capital reserve fund by fire district subject to permissive referendum. 1946 Ops St Compt 546.

Board of fire commissioners of fire district may establish capital reserve fund for the erection of fire house. Establishment of such capital reserve fund is subject to permissive referendum. Board of fire commissioners may make budgetary appropriation to the capital reserve fund. Amount which may be appropriated is not subject to spending limitation prescribed by subd. 18 of Section 176 of Town Law or to referendum provisions of Section 179 of Town Law. 1946 Ops St Compt 559.

18. —Permissive referendum; when not required

The board of fire commissioners may at any time authorize expenditures from a capital reserve fund established for the construction or reconstruction of a heating system for the purpose for which established. Such expenditure is not subject to a permissive referendum. 1955 Ops St Compt File #7105.

Where a fire district has established a "capital reserve fund for new equipment" the name may be changed to "capital reserve fund for major apparatus and equipment thereof" without a permissive referendum. 1962 Ops St Compt #251.

19. —Restrictions on appropriations for fund

Where a fire district capital reserve fund has a limitation of $50,000 and provides that $5,000 per year be appropriated for deposit, only a maximum of $5,000 per year from any source should be appropriated into the reserve fund until the $50,000 total is reached. 1968 Ops St Compt File #933.

20. —Transfer of fund to accomplish different purpose

Moneys in a fire district capital reserve fund, established for the purchase of fire apparatus and equipment, may not be used to purchase a site for a fire house, unless such moneys are duly transferred as an unexpended balance to another capital reserve fund. 1952 Ops St Compt File #5784.

Where a bond resolution has been approved which authorizes a fire district to issue bonds to finance the construction of a firehouse and where a capital reserve fund has been previously established for the purchase of fire apparatus, the board of fire commissioners may not properly transfer the moneys from the capital reserve fund to pay for the actual cost of the construction and equipment of the firehouse. 1957 Ops St Compt File #563.

Fire district board of commissioners may not authorize transfer of expended balance of capital reserve fund into fire district's general fund; it may, however, authorize transfer of those moneys into another capital reserve fund in accordance with CLS Gen Mun § 6-g(8). 1996 Op St Compt No. 96-10.

This section referred to in §§ 6-d, 6-f, 6-h; CLS Town § 176.

§ 6-h. Reserve fund for payment of bonded indebtedness in counties, cities, villages, towns and fire districts

1. As used in this section, the term "governing board," in so far as it is used in reference to a county, shall mean the board of supervisors thereof; in so far as it is used in reference to a city, shall mean the "local legislative body" thereof, as that term is defined in subdivision seven of section two of the municipal home rule law, as amended from time to time; in so far as it is used in reference to a village, shall mean the board of trustees thereof; in so far as it is used in reference to a town, shall mean the town board thereof; in so far as it is used in reference to a fire district, shall mean the board of fire commissioners.

2. The governing board of any county, city, village, town or fire district may by resolution adopted by a majority vote of its governing body establish a reserve fund for the payment of its bonded indebtedness as herein described, provided, however, that such debt reserve fund shall not be established for, or moneys therein used to pay, any obligations payable in the first instance from assessments, or from taxes levied upon an area in such county, city, village, town or fire district smaller than the area of such county, city, village, town or fire district.

3. Such fund may be established for the payment of one or of several issues of bonds of such municipality or the purchase of the same.

4. There may be paid into such fund:

a. Such an amount as may be provided therefor by budgetary appropriation.

b. Such revenues as are not otherwise appropriated or required by law to be paid into any other fund or account.

5. An expenditure from such a reserve fund may only be made by appropriation pursuant to a resolution of the governing board of the municipal corporation or fire district establishing the same and only for the payment of the principal and interest on bonds issued by such municipal corporation or fire district and forming a part of an issue having a maximum maturity of not less than five years; or for the purchase of bonds of such municipal corporation or fire district forming a part of an issue having a maximum maturity of not less than five years at a price not to exceed the par value thereof and accrued interest to the date of delivery of such bonds to such municipal corporation or fire district, provided, however, that if any such bonds were issued subject to the right of such municipal corporation or fire district to redeem the same prior to the maturity date thereof then such purchase may be made for the redemption of such bonds at the price and on the terms stated in such bonds or in the proceeding authorizing the same as the case may be.

Where provision has been made in the current budget from funds other than a reserve fund for the payment of the principal and interest on bonds or the purchase thereof, no expenditure may be made for the purchase or payment of the same from such a reserve fund during the current fiscal year for which such budget was adopted.

All expenditures from such fund as provided in this subdivision may only be made by the chief fiscal officer of the municipal corporation or fire district establishing the same.

Any such bonds so paid, purchased or redeemed and any interest coupons representing unmatured interest attached thereto shall be cancelled and destroyed by the chief fiscal officer of such municipal corporation or fire district establishing such fund who shall make a notation of such cancellation and destruction in the bond register of such municipal corporation or fire district. Such notation shall describe each such bond by title, date of issue, number, denomination and date of maturity, and if coupons are attached thereto by number, face value and date of maturity.

6. The governing board of a municipal corporation may, subject to a permissive referendum, authorize the transfer of a portion or all of such reserve to a capital reserve fund established pursuant to section six-c of the general municipal law.

The board of fire commissioners of a fire district may, subject to the approval of the voters at a regular or special election in such district, in the manner provided in section one hundred seventy-nine of the town law, authorize the transfer of a portion or all of such reserve to a capital reserve fund established pursuant to section six-g hereof.

7. The chief fiscal officer shall keep a separate account for each fund established. Such account shall show:

a. The date and amount of each sum paid into the fund.

b. The interest earned by such fund.

c. The capital gains or losses resulting from the sale of investments of the fund.

d. The interest or capital gains which have accrued to the fund.

e. The amount and date of each withdrawal from the fund.

f. The assets of the fund, indicating the cash balance therein and a schedule of the amounts invested. The chief fiscal officer at the termination of each fiscal year shall render a detailed report of the operation and condition of each of such funds to the governing board.

8. The members of the governing board are hereby declared trustees of such funds and shall be subject to all the duties and responsibilities imposed by law on trustees, and such duties and responsibilities may be enforced by the county, city, village, town or fire district, as the case may be, or by any board, commission, agency, officer or taxpayer thereof.

9. The moneys in each such fund shall be deposited and secured in the manner provided by section ten of this article. The governing board or the chief fiscal officer of such municipal corporation or fire district, if the governing board shall delegate such duty to him, may invest the moneys in each such fund in the manner provided in section eleven of this article. Any interest earned or capital gains realized on the moneys so deposited or invested shall accrue to and become a part of each such fund. The separate identity of each such fund shall be maintained whether its assets consist of cash, investments, or both.

10. The members of the governing board shall be guilty of a misdemeanor if they:

a. Authorize a withdrawal from a fund for any other purpose except as provided in this section.

b. Expend any money withdrawn from a fund for a purpose other than that as provided in this section.

11. Notwithstanding the foregoing provisions of this section, in any town which is located wholly or partly within the Adirondack park and has within its boundaries state lands subject to taxation assessed at more than thirty percentum of the total taxable assessed valuation of the town as determined from the assessment rolls of the town, as completed from time to time, a reserve fund for the payment of bonded indebtedness shall not be established on and after May first, nineteen hundred forty-eight, unless the state comptroller, on behalf of the state, shall consent thereto, and, on and after May first, nineteen hundred forty-eight, in any such town no expenditure or transfer from any such fund heretofore or hereafter established shall be made unless the state comptroller, on behalf of the state, shall consent thereto.

§ 6-l. Mandatory reserve fund for municipal corporations, fire districts and school districts

1. As used in this section, the term "governing board," in so far as it is used in reference to a municipal corporation, shall mean the "legislative body" thereof, as that term is defined in section two of the municipal home rule law, as amended from time to time; in so far as it is used in reference to a fire district, shall mean the board of fire commissioners thereof; in so far as it is used in reference to a school district, shall mean the board of trustees thereof.

2. Notwithstanding any other provision of this chapter, upon the cash sale by a municipal corporation, fire district or school district of a capital improvement, as defined in section six-c of this chapter, for the cost of which obligations were issued pursuant to the local finance law, and when all or part of such indebtedness is outstanding at the time of such sale, a mandatory reserve fund shall be established for the purpose of retiring such obligations, or, as an additional alternative, paying principal of, or redemption premiums in connection with such obligations or other obligations of at least equal weighted average life; provided however, that, if the proceeds of the sale are used or set aside to be used (i) to pay or provide for the construction, reconstruction, acquisition or installation of capital improvements or equipment, as defined in section six-c of this chapter, or (ii) for the payment of principal of, or redemption premiums in connection with, any outstanding obligations issued by the municipal corporation, fire district or school district to finance such capital improvements or equipment, in an amount not less than the lesser of such proceeds or the principal amount of the indebtedness outstanding on the capital improvement sold, then such fund need not be established; provided, however, that if such amount to be so used, together with any other amounts so used pursuant to this sentence in the same fiscal year of such municipal corporation, fire district or school district, would exceed one percent of the limit prescribed by section 104.00 of the local finance law, then such fund shall nevertheless be established; and provided further, that a municipal corporation, fire district or school district shall within thirty days after the use of such proceeds pursuant to clause (i) herein, file a report with the state comptroller identifying: (a) the asset sold, (b) the amount of net proceeds from such sale, (c) the amount to be paid or provided pursuant to such clause (i), and (d) the capital improvements or equipment to be so paid for or provided. When a municipal corporation, fire district or school district has outstanding indebtedness incurred to finance the cost of such a capital improvement, federal and state aid received on account of such improvement, to the extent that it is not applied directly to the payment of a part of the cost of such improvement or to retire indebtedness issued in anticipation of such aid, shall likewise be deposited in a reserve fund for the purpose of retiring either such obligations or, as an additional alternative, other obligations of at least equal weighted average life. The entire proceeds of the sale or such state or federal aid received, as the case may be, shall be deposited to the credit of such fund, provided however, that if the aggregate amount thereof shall exceed the principal of such indebtedness due or to become due, or if, when all such outstanding obligations have been retired, any moneys remain unexpended in the reserve fund, such excess moneys may be used for any lawful municipal or district purpose, as the case may be. The provisions of this section shall not apply in a case where a provision of any other law requires that the proceeds of the sale of a capital improvement shall be deposited in a reserve fund established for the purpose of retiring outstanding obligations.

2-a. The provisions of this section shall apply to capital improvements of town and county improvement districts. For the purpose of implementing the provisions of this section in regard to such districts, the term "governing board" shall mean the governing board of the town or county, as the case may be, in which such district is located, and the term "chief fiscal officer" shall mean the chief fiscal officer of such town or county.

3. Appropriations from such fund shall be made only for the payment or payments of all or part of the said outstanding indebtedness. However, any balance remaining in said fund upon the payment of all outstanding principal and interest may be expended for any lawful purpose of the municipal corporation, fire district or school district.

4. The chief fiscal officer shall keep a separate account for each of such funds established. Such account shall show:

a. The date of creation of the fund and the amount credited thereto.

b. The interest earned by such fund.

c. The capital gains or losses resulting from the sale of investments of the fund.

d. The interest or capital gains which have accrued to the fund.

e. The amount and date of each withdrawal from the fund.

f. The assets of the fund, indicating the cash balance therein and a schedule of the amounts invested. The chief fiscal officer at the termination of each fiscal year shall render a detailed report of the operation and condition of each of such funds to the governing board.

5. The members of the governing board are hereby declared trustees of such funds and shall be subject to all the duties and responsibilities imposed by law on trustees, and such duties and responsibilities may be enforced by the municipal corporation, fire district or school district, as the case may be, or by any board, commission, agency, office or taxpayer thereof. An expenditure from such mandatory reserve fund may be made only by appropriation pursuant to a resolution of the governing board.

6. The moneys in each such fund shall be deposited and secured in the manner provided by section ten of this article. The governing board or the chief fiscal officer of such municipal corporation, fire district or school district, if the governing board shall delegate such duty to him, may invest the moneys in each such fund in the manner provided in section eleven of this article. Any interest earned or capital gains realized on the moneys so deposited or invested shall accrue to and become a part of each such fund. The separate identity of each such fund shall be maintained whether its assets consist of cash, investments, or both.

7. The members of the governing board shall be guilty of a misdemeanor if they:

a. Authorize a withdrawal from any such mandatory reserve fund for any purpose other than as provided in this section.

b. Expend any money withdrawn from any such mandatory reserve fund for a purpose other than as provided in this section.

Notes to Decisions

Where a village sells surplus real property, the purchase of which was not financed pursuant to the Local Finance Law, the proceeds of such sale may be placed in a reserve fund to pay the indebtedness outstanding on other capital improvements. 1967 Ops St Compt File #570.

If, upon the sale by a village of a capital improvement, there are outstanding obligations relating to such improvement, a mandatory reserve fund shall be established for the purpose of paying the balance due thereon. The village may treat the excess, if any, as surplus to be used for any lawful village purpose or may establish a reserve fund for the purpose of paying an indebtedness outstanding on other capital improvement. 1969 Ops St Compt File #155.

Where property of a component school district is appropriated, the provisions of Education Law, § 1804(6) must be complied with. 1969 Ops St Compt File #473.

Where State appropriates an unimproved and unneeded portion of a tract of land owned by a central school district, for the acquisition of which there is no outstanding indebtedness, the proceeds received do not have to be placed in a mandatory reserve fund, although a school building, against which there is outstanding indebtedness incurred for construction, has been erected on a portion of the tract. 1969 Ops St Compt File #473.

Whether proceeds of sale or parcel of land must be paid into a reserve fund to be applied to future installments of outstanding indebtedness incurred for improvements constructed thereon depends upon facts and circumstances of each case. 1969 Ops St Compt File #711.

If, upon the sale by a school district of an undeveloped land site, there are outstanding obligations that were issued to finance the purchase of such lands, a mandatory reserve fund must be established for the purpose of retiring such obligations. 1973 Ops St Compt File #792.

Where a village has issued obligations to finance the cost of constructing a sewer system and part or all of those bonds are outstanding, federal and state aid received on account of that system must be placed in a mandatory reserve fund to retire such obligations. 1974 Ops St Compt File #917.

Revenue from sale of real property purchased with obligations which are still outstanding must be deposited in mandatory reserve fund provided, however, that revenue in excess of aggregate amount necessary to retire debt may be used for any lawful municipal purpose. 1986 Op St Compt No. 86-26.

When parcel of real property is purchased by issuance of serial bonds as for single object or purpose, and then only part of parcel is sold, the entire sale proceeds must be deposited in mandatory reserve fund to retire indebtedness on whole parcel. 1987 Op St Compt No. 87-71.

Until July 1, 1993, municipal corporation, fire district or school district which sold capital improvement financed by issuance of outstanding obligations was not required to establish mandatory reserve fund if proceeds of sale of improvement were used to pay or provide for construction, reconstruction, acquisition or installation of another capital improvement or equipment, or to pay debt service on outstanding obligations issued to finance any capital improvement or equipment, subject to limitations in CLS Gen Mun § 6-l as amended by chapter 413 of Laws of 1991, notwithstanding whether all or portion of capital improvement were sold. 1992 Op St Compt No. 92-48.

City with 125,000 or more inhabitants which receives state aid on behalf of city school district on account of school building project for which indebtedness was contracted and remains outstanding must deposit aid in mandatory reserve fund for payment of debt service to extent that aid is not applied directly to pay for project or to retire obligations issued in anticipation of aid; state aid paid in relation to school building project financed from source other than proceeds of obligations which remain outstanding may be expended for any school purpose as provided in CLS Educ §§ 3064(4), 3609(3), and 3609-a(3), and is not restricted to use for funding capital projects. 1995 Op St Compt No. 95-24.

When county civic center is financed by both issuance of county obligations, and loan from Urban Development Corporation (UDC) pursuant to act of state legislature which requires county to enter into repayment agreement with UDC providing that, in event of sale of civic center, unpaid portion of loan will be repaid from proceeds of sale, repayment requirements of such act take precedence over mandatory reserve fund requirements of CLS Gen Mun § 6-l. 2000 Op St Compt No. 2000-10.

CLS Gen Mun § 11 constitutes exclusive authority for investment of proceeds of sale of real property by school district. 2005 Op St Compt No. 05-3.

Agency Opinions

Where obligations were issued to finance capital improvements to two school district buildings and only one of such buildings is sold, only so much of the proceeds of the sale as is needed to cover debt service due or to become due on that amount of the remaining outstanding indebtedness apportioned to the cost of the improvements to the building which was sold must be paid into a mandatory reserve fund. 1980 Op St Compt File #513.

Definitions, CLS Mun H R § 2.

§ 6-n. Insurance reserve fund.

1. a. "Municipal corporation," as used in this section, shall mean a municipal corporation, as defined in section two of this chapter, school district, except a school district in a city with a population of one hundred twenty-five thousand or more, board of cooperative educational services, fire district, a district corporation and a special improvement district governed by a separate board of commissioners.

b. "Judgments", "actions" and "claims", as used in this section, shall mean those judgments, actions and claims against the municipal corporation that arise out of those kinds of risks for which expenditures may be made pursuant to subdivision two of this section.

2. (a) The governing board of any municipal corporation may establish a reserve fund to be known as the insurance reserve fund. Upon the creation of the fund, the municipality may make expenditures from the fund for any loss, claim, action or judgment for which the municipal corporation is authorized or required to purchase or maintain insurance, except those kinds of risks for which insurance is authorized pursuant to paragraph one, two, three, fifteen, sixteen, seventeen, eighteen, twenty-two or twenty-three of subsection (a) of section one thousand one hundred thirteen of the insurance law, or for payments in lieu of contributions under article eighteen of the labor law; provided however, that no municipality shall make an expenditure from such fund for any loss, claim, action or judgment for which the municipal corporation has established a reserve fund under any other provision of law; provided, further that the Scarsdale union free school district, the Mamaroneck union free school district, the Minisink Valley central school district, the Vernon Verona Sherrill central school district, the Ithaca city school district, the Kenmore-Town of Tonawanda union free school district, the Bedford central school district, the Grand Island central school district, the Tonawanda city school district, the enlarged city school district of Middletown, the Frontier central school district, and the Binghamton city school district may establish insurance reserve funds in compliance with this section and article seventy-four of the education law and such school districts may make expenditures in compliance with this section and article seventy-four of the education law from such reserve fund for any loss, claim, action or judgment for which the school districts are authorized or required to purchase or maintain insurance for the kinds of risks for which insurance is authorized pursuant to paragraph three of subsection (a) of section one thousand one hundred thirteen of the insurance law.

(b) Notwithstanding any other provision of law to the contrary, where a municipal corporation has previously established a reserve fund under another provision of law for a type of risk for which expenditures may be made under paragraph (a) of this subdivision, the municipal corporation may, by resolution, discontinue such other reserve fund and transfer any unexpended balance to the reserve fund established under this section; provided, however, that to the extent such unexpended balance is subject to any liabilities incurred or accrued against the other reserve fund, any unexpended balances so transferred shall only be used for such incurred or accrued liabilities including expenses in connection therewith. Prior to the discontinuance of the other reserve fund, the fiscal and legal officers of the municipal corporation shall certify to the governing board thereof the amount that may be necessary to satisfy all liabilities incurred or accrued against it.

3. There may be paid into such fund:

a. Such amounts as may be provided by budgetary appropriations;

b. Amounts from any other fund authorized by this chapter by resolution subject to permissive referendum; and

c. Such other funds as may be legally appropriated.

4. The amount paid into such fund during any fiscal year shall not exceed the greater of thirty-three thousand dollars or five per centum of the total budget for such fiscal year.

5. The moneys in such fund shall be deposited and secured in the manner provided by section ten of this article. The governing board, or the chief fiscal officer of such municipal corporation, if the governing board shall delegate such duty to him, may invest the moneys in such fund in the manner provided by section eleven of this article. Any interest earned or capital gain realized on the money so deposited or invested shall accrue to and become part of such fund.

6. The chief fiscal officer shall account for this fund separate and apart from all other funds of the municipal corporation. Such accounting shall show: the source, date and amount of each sum paid into the fund; the interest earned by such fund; capital gains or losses resulting from the sale of investments of this fund; the order, purpose thereof, date and amount of each payment from this fund; the assets of the fund, indicating cash balance and a schedule of investments. The chief fiscal officer, within sixty days of the end of each fiscal year, shall furnish a detailed report of the operation and condition of this fund to the governing board. The chief fiscal officer shall also keep a separate account for each kind of risk funded pursuant to subdivision two of this section.

7. Notwithstanding any provision of law to the contrary, municipal corporations shall not have the power to enter into agreements, among themselves or one for the other, to pool their reserve fund established pursuant to subdivision two of this section for the payment of judgments, actions and claims.

8. Any action or claim shall be compromised or settled by the governing board, officer or employee of the municipal corporation authorized to settle or compromise actions or claims on behalf of the municipal corporation.

9. An expenditure may be made from this fund for the payment of all or part of the cost, including interest, of:

a. Judgments;

b. Actions that have been compromised or settled and that have been approved by the court in which the action or proceeding is pending;

c. Claims that have been settled or compromised and that have been approved by a justice of the supreme court of the judicial district in which the municipal corporation is located;

d. The uninsured portion of any loss to property owned by the municipal corporation if such loss arises out of a kind of risk described in subdivision two of this section.

e. Expert or professional services rendered in connection with the investigation, adjustment or settlement of claims, actions or judgments.

10. The order of the court or the justice approving such settlement or compromise may be granted upon motion of the body, officer or employee of the municipal corporation authorized to do so, supported by an affidavit setting forth the cause of action or claim against the municipal corporation and also such other information which, in its or his opinion, will enable the court or justice to arrive at a determination that such compromise or settlement is just, reasonable and to the interest of the municipal corporation. Such body, officer or employee may also present the affidavit of other persons in support of such motion. The court or the justice, in order to arrive at such a determination, may require such body, officer or employee to present additional information by a supplementary affidavit or affidavits or may require other persons to present additional information by their affidavits.

11. Notwithstanding subdivisions eight and nine of this section or any other provision of law to the contrary, the governing body of any municipal corporation may, without judicial approval, compromise or settle any action or claim and make an expenditure from this fund where the amount of such settlement or compromise does not exceed twenty-five thousand dollars.

12. The members of the governing board shall be guilty of a misdemeanor if they:

a. Authorize a withdrawal from this fund for any purpose except as provided in this section; or

b. Expend any money withdrawn from this fund for a purpose other than as provided in this section.

13. If, after the establishment of such fund, the municipality determines that such fund is no longer needed, the moneys remaining in such fund may be transferred to any other reserve fund of the municipal corporation authorized by this chapter that is comprised of moneys which were raised on the same tax base as the moneys in the reserve fund established under this section or section thirty-six hundred fifty-one of the education law, only to the extent that the moneys in this fund shall exceed the sum sufficient to pay all liabilities incurred or accrued against it. Prior to the discontinuance of such fund, the fiscal and legal officers of such municipal corporation shall certify to the governing board thereof the amount that may be necessary to retain in such fund to satisfy all liabilities incurred or accrued against it and such sum shall be retained in the fund for payment of such amounts or until later certified that such funds are no longer needed.

Notes to Decisions

Because a health center was a publicly operated facility, entitled to 90 days to make a settlement payment under N.Y. C.P.L.R. 5003-a(b), and payment was made from a county's insurance reserve under N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 6-n within that time frame, the trial court properly denied a patient's motion for a judgment with interest. Ansbach v Gorson, 2 A.D.3d 471, 767 N.Y.S.2d 883, 2003 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13050 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2003).

16 CLS General Municipal Law § 6-n permits municipal corporation to set up liability and casualty reserve fund, e.g., self-insurance fund, but neither expressly nor impliedly addresses issue of selection of counsel, thus, it does not entitle police officers to counsel of their choice at government expense when being sued under 42 USCS § 1983. Suffolk County Patrolmen's Benevolent Asso. v County of Suffolk, 595 F. Supp. 1471, 1984 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 22681 (E.D.N.Y. 1984), aff'd, 751 F.2d 550, 1985 U.S. App. LEXIS 28628 (2d Cir. N.Y. 1985).

Board of education acted properly in voting to establish liability reserve fund to cover potential liability resulting from litigation then pending against respondent school district, but there was insufficient basis on which to allocate funds as "accrued liability" where letter from respondent's attorney, on which board's action was premised, did not indicate that it was probable that district would lose pending litigation. 1998 Op Comm Ed No. 13967.

Two or more municipalities may contract jointly with a private firm for administrative services on a liability and casualty self-insurance plan, but individual reserve funds established under GML § 6-n, may not be pooled into a single joint reserve fund. 1985 Op St Compt No. 85-67.

A school district may not transfer the unexpended balance of an insurance reserve fund established pursuant to General Municipal Law § 6-n into a reserve for property loss and liability claims established pursuant to Education Law § 1709(8-c). 1992 Op St Compt No. 92-11.

Village may not establish reserve fund for direct cash reimbursements by village for health care benefits of its officers and employees. 2004 Op St Compt No. 04-8.

CLS Gen Mun § 6-n, which authorizes municipal corporations to establish "insurance reserve funds", does not provide authority for reserve fund for self-funded health care benefits. 2004 Op St Compt No. 04-8.

County may purchase liability insurance to indemnify sheriff against civil liability without violating Article XIII, § 13 of Constitution, and purchase of such insurance coverage is authorized by CLS Gen Mun § 52; however, county may not make expenditures from its insurance reserve fund for any loss or claim of sheriff or for any action or judgment against him notwithstanding provisions of CLS Gen Mun § 6-n. Ops St Compt 88-36.

Agency Opinions

Section 6-n of the General Municipal Law, which authorizes municipalities to set up a liability and casualty reserve fund, does not apply to Workers' Compensation claims. Those claims are governed by General Municipal Law, § 6-j. Unlike section 6-n, section 6-j does not require municipalities to obtain court approval for the settlement of claims. Therefore, a county need not obtain court approval of a lump sum settlement of a Workers' Compensation claim. 1981 NY Ops Atty Gen April 20 (informal).

State law excludes participation by New York municipal corporations, including counties, towns, cities, villages, district corporations, special improvement districts, school districts and boards of cooperative educational services, in interstate reciprocals or risk retention groups. 1990 NY Ops Atty Gen F 90-12.

Municipalities and most school districts may now establish a liability and casualty reserve fund for self-insurance purposes. 1979 Op St Compt File #239.

Special districts that are not townwide may be self-insured in the town's liability and casualty reserve fund. Payments into the reserve fund on behalf of special districts for both liability and casualty protection are charged against the districts, and should be allocated among the districts on some equitable basis such as exposure to risk. 1979 Op St Compt File #621.

A town may not establish a reserve fund to pay for disability benefits. 1980 Op St Compt File #75.

General Municipal Law, § 6-n literally applies only to judgments, actions and claims against municipal corporations, and does not apply to judgments, actions and claims against municipal officers and employees. Hence, a town may establish a liability and casualty reserve fund only to fund judgments, actions and claims against the town. Nevertheless, a judgment, action or claim against an officer or employee may become a judgment, action or claim against the town when the town, by appropriate legal action, assumes the liability of the officer or employee (see Town Law, § 116(2)); a town is authorized to establish an insurance or self-insurance plan to indemnify town employees for damages recovered against them in tort actions. 1981 Op St Compt File #81-71.

§ 6-r. Retirement contribution reserve funds

1. As used in this section:

a. "Municipal corporation" means a municipal corporation as defined in section two of this chapter, school district (except a school district in a city with a population of one hundred twenty-five thousand or more), board of cooperative educational services, fire district, district corporation, police district, and special improvement district governed by a separate board of commissioners.

b. "Participating employer" means: (i) a participating employer as defined in subdivision twenty of section two of the retirement and social security law or in subdivision twenty of section three hundred two of such law; or (ii) a participating employer as defined in subdivision three of section five hundred one of the education law.

c. "Retirement contribution" shall mean all or any portion of the amount payable by a municipal corporation to: (i) either the New York state and local employees' retirement system or the New York state and local police and fire retirement system pursuant to section seventeen or three hundred seventeen of the retirement and social security law; or (ii) the New York state teachers' retirement system pursuant to section five hundred twenty-one of the education law.

2. The governing board of any municipal corporation which is also a participating employer by resolution may establish a retirement contribution reserve fund for the purpose of (a) financing retirement contributions, and/or (b) in the case of a municipal corporation which is a participating employer as defined in subdivision three of section five hundred one of the education law, financing appropriations authorized by law in order to offset all or a portion of the amount deducted from the moneys apportioned to the municipal corporation from the state for the support of common schools pursuant to section five hundred twenty-one of the education law.

2-a. With respect to a municipal corporation which is a participating employer as defined in subdivision three of section five hundred one of the education law, which elects to utilize a retirement contribution reserve fund (a) to finance retirement contributions to the New York state teachers' retirement system pursuant to section five hundred twenty-one of the education law and/or (b) to offset all or a portion of the amount deducted from the moneys apportioned to the municipal corporation from the state for the support of common schools pursuant to section five hundred twenty-one of the education law, such municipal corporation shall establish a sub-fund within the retirement contribution reserve fund, which shall be separately administered consistent with the provisions of this section. Such municipal corporation may pay into such sub-fund during any particular fiscal year an amount not to exceed two per centum of the total compensation or salaries of all teachers in the employ of said municipal corporation who are members of the New York state teachers' retirement system paid during the immediately preceding fiscal year. The balance of such sub-fund may not exceed ten per centum of the total compensation or salaries of all teachers in the employ of the municipal corporation who are members of the New York state teachers' retirement system paid during the immediately preceding fiscal year. For the purposes of this subdivision, the term "teacher" shall have the same meaning as such term is defined under subdivision four of section five hundred one of the education law.

3. There may be paid into a retirement contribution reserve fund:

a. such amounts as may be provided therefor by budgetary appropriation or raised by tax therefor;

b. such revenues as are not required by law to be paid into any other fund or account;

c. such other funds as may be legally appropriated; and

d. notwithstanding any law to the contrary, such amounts as may be transferred from a reserve fund established pursuant to section six-c, six-d, six-e, six-f or six-g of this article comprised of moneys raised from the same tax base as the moneys in the retirement contribution reserve fund, or a reserve fund established pursuant to section thirty-six hundred fifty-one of the education law, provided, that any such transfer shall only be made by resolution of the governing board of such municipal corporation adopted after a public hearing held on at least fifteen days prior published notice in the official newspaper of the municipal corporation or, if the municipal corporation does not have an official newspaper, in at least one newspaper having general circulation in the municipal corporation.

4. The moneys in a retirement contribution reserve fund shall be deposited and secured in the manner provided by section ten of this article. The governing board of such municipal corporation, or the chief fiscal officer thereof if the governing board shall delegate such duty to him or her, may invest the moneys in such fund in the manner provided by section eleven of this article. Any interest earned or capital gain realized on the money so deposited or invested shall accrue to and become part of such fund.

5. The governing board of such municipal corporation by resolution may authorize expenditures from a retirement contribution reserve fund. Except as otherwise provided by law, moneys in a retirement contribution reserve fund may only be expended (a) to finance retirement contributions, and/or (b) in the case of a municipal corporation which is a participating employer, as defined in subdivision three of section five hundred one of the education law, for appropriations authorized by law in order to offset all or a portion of the amount deducted from the moneys apportioned to the participating employer from the state for the support of common schools pursuant to section five hundred twenty-one of the education law. With respect to a municipal corporation which is a participating employer as defined in subdivision three of section five hundred one of the education law, expenditures from the retirement contribution reserve fund to finance retirement contributions to the New York State teachers' retirement system pursuant to section five hundred twenty-one of the education law and/or to offset all or a portion of the amount deducted from the moneys apportioned to the municipal corporation from the state for the support of common schools pursuant to section five hundred twenty-one of the education law may only be made from the sub-fund established pursuant to subdivision two-a of this section.

6. The governing board of such municipal corporation by resolution may authorize the transfer of a portion of the moneys in a retirement contribution reserve fund to a reserve fund of the municipal corporation established pursuant to section six-c, six-d, six-e, six-f or six-g of this article comprised of moneys raised from the same tax base as the moneys in the retirement contribution reserve fund, or a reserve fund established pursuant to section thirty-six hundred fifty-one of the education law, provided, that any such transfer shall only be made by resolution of the governing board of such municipal corporation adopted after a public hearing held on at least fifteen days prior published notice in the official newspaper of the municipal corporation or, if the municipal corporation does not have an official newspaper, in at least one newspaper having general circulation in the municipal corporation.

7. The chief fiscal officer of such municipal corporation shall account for a retirement contribution reserve fund separate and apart from all other funds of the municipal corporation. Such accounting shall show: the source, date and amount of each sum paid into the fund; the interest earned by such fund; capital gains or losses resulting from the sale of investments of this fund; the order, purpose thereof, date and amount of each payment from this fund; the assets of the fund, indicating cash balance and a schedule of investments. The chief fiscal officer, within sixty days of the end of each fiscal year, shall furnish a detailed report of the operation and condition of this fund to the governing board.

8. The members of the governing board of such municipal corporation are hereby declared trustees of a retirement contribution reserve fund and shall be subject to all the duties and responsibilities imposed by law on trustees, and such duties and responsibilities may be enforced by the municipal corporation, as the case may be, or by any board, commission, agency, officer or taxpayer thereof.

9. No member of the governing board of such municipal corporation shall:

(a) authorize a withdrawal from a retirement contribution reserve fund for any purpose except as provided in this section; or

(b) expend any money withdrawn from such fund for a purpose other than as provided in this section.

Any member of the governing board who violates the provisions of this subdivision shall be guilty of a misdemeanor.

10. The governing board of such municipal corporation by resolution may determine that a retirement contribution reserve fund is no longer needed and terminate the fund. Such resolution shall transfer any moneys remaining in such fund to one or more reserve funds of the municipal corporation established pursuant to section six-c, six-d, six-e, six-f or six-g of this article comprised of moneys raised from the same tax base as the moneys in the retirement contribution reserve fund, or one or more reserve funds established pursuant to section thirty-six hundred fifty-one of the education law.

11. The governing board of a municipal corporation which is a participating employer as defined in subdivision three of section five hundred one of the education law by resolution may (a) authorize the transfer of all or a portion of the monies in the separately administered sub-fund as established under subdivision two-a of this section to the retirement contribution reserve fund, and/or (b) authorize the transfer of all or a portion of the monies in the retirement contribution reserve fund to the separately administered sub-fund as provided in subdivision two-a of this section, subject to the limits on annual payments into the sub-fund and the balance of the sub-fund specified by subdivision two-a of this section.

§ 10. Deposits of public money; security

1. For purposes of this section:

a. "Local government" shall mean any municipal corporation, school district, board of cooperative educational services, district corporation, special improvement district governed by a separate board of commissioners, industrial development agency or authority or a public library.

b. "Public funds" shall mean funds of a local government.

c. "Public deposits" shall mean deposits of public funds in a bank or trust company which are available for all uses generally permitted by the bank or trust company to the depositing local government for actually and finally collected funds under the bank's or trust company's account agreement or policies.

d. "Bank" shall mean a bank as defined by the banking law or a national banking association located and authorized to do business in New York.

e. "Trust company" shall mean a trust company as defined by the banking law and located and authorized to do business in New York.

f. "Eligible securities" shall mean any of the following:

(i) Obligations issued by the United States of America, an agency thereof or a United States government sponsored corporation or obligations fully insured or guaranteed as to the payment of principal and interest by the United States of America, an agency thereof or a United States government sponsored corporation.

(ii) Obligations issued or fully guaranteed by the International Bank for Reconstruction and Development, the Inter-American Development Bank, the Asian Development Bank, and the African Development Bank.

(iii) Obligations partially insured or guaranteed by any agency of the United States of America, at a proportion of the market value of the obligation that represents the amount of the insurance or guaranty.

(iv) Obligations issued or fully insured or guaranteed by this state, obligations issued by a municipal corporation, school district or district corporation of this state or obligations of any public benefit corporation which under a specific state statute may be accepted as security for deposit of public moneys.

(v) Obligations issued by states (other than this state) of the United States rated in one of the three highest rating categories by at least one nationally recognized statistical rating organization.

(vi) Obligations of Puerto Rico rated in one of the three highest rating categories by at least one nationally recognized statistical rating organization.

(vii) Obligations of counties, cities and other governmental entities of another state having the power to levy taxes that are backed by the full faith and credit of such governmental entity and rated in one of the three highest rating categories by at least one nationally recognized statistical rating organization.

(viii) Obligations of domestic corporations rated in one of the four highest rating categories by at least one nationally recognized statistical rating organization.

(ix) Any mortgage related securities, as defined in the Securities Exchange Act of 1934, as amended, which may be purchased by banks under the limitations established by federal bank regulatory agencies.

(x) Commercial paper and bankers' acceptances issued by a bank (other than the bank with which the money is being deposited or invested) rated in the highest short-term category by at least one nationally recognized statistical rating organization and having maturities of not longer than sixty days from the date they are pledged.

(xi) Zero-coupon obligations of the United States government marketed as "Treasury STRIPS".

g. "Eligible surety bond" shall mean a bond executed by an insurance company authorized to do business in this state, the claims-paying ability of which is rated in the highest rating category by at least two nationally recognized statistical rating organizations.

h. "Eligible letter of credit" shall mean an irrevocable letter of credit issued in favor of the local government for a term not to exceed ninety days by a bank (other than the bank with which the money is being deposited or invested) whose commercial paper and other unsecured short-term debt obligations (or, in the case of a bank which is the principal subsidiary of a holding company, whose holding company's commercial paper and other unsecured short-term debt obligations) are rated in one of the three highest rating categories (based on the credit of such bank or holding company) by at least one nationally recognized statistical rating organization or by a bank (other than the bank with which the money is being deposited or invested) that is incompliance [in compliance]* with applicable federal minimum risk-based capital requirements.

2. a. (i) The governing board of every local government shall designate one or more banks or trust companies for the deposit of public funds, the disposition of which is not otherwise provided for by law, received by the chief fiscal officer or any other officer authorized by law to make deposits. Such designation shall be by resolution of the governing board or, in the case of a city, such other body as may be authorized or required by law to designate depositaries. Such resolution shall specify the maximum amount which may be kept on deposit at any time in each such bank or trust company. Such designations and amounts may be changed at any time by further resolution.

(ii) The governing board of a local government that has designated one or more banks or trust companies for the deposit of public funds pursuant to subparagraph (i) of this paragraph may, in its discretion, authorize the designated bank or trust company to arrange for the redeposit of the local government's funds in one or more banking institutions, as defined in section nine-r of the banking law, for the account of the local government, through a deposit placement program that meets all of the following conditions:

(A) On or after the date that the local government's funds are received, the designated bank or trust company (I) arranges for the redeposit of such funds into deposit accounts in one or more banking institutions and (II) serves as custodian for the local government with respect to the funds redeposited into such accounts.

(B) Local government funds deposited in a designated bank or trust company in accordance with this subparagraph and held in the designated bank or trust company in excess of the amount insured by the federal deposit insurance corporation pending redeposit of the funds pursuant to this subparagraph shall be secured in accordance with subdivision three of this section.

(C) The full amount of local government funds redeposited by the designated bank or trust company into deposit accounts in banking institutions pursuant to this subparagraph (plus accrued interest, if any) shall be insured by the federal deposit insurance corporation.

(D) At the same time that the money of the local government is redeposited pursuant to this subparagraph, the selected depository receives an amount of deposits from customers of other financial institutions pursuant to the deposit placement program that are at least equal to the amount of the local government's funds redeposited by the designated bank or trust company.

b. Except as otherwise provided by law, all deposits shall be made to the credit of the local government. The deposit of public funds pursuant to this subdivision shall release the officer making the deposit and his or her surety from any liability for loss of such public funds by reason of the default or insolvency of any such bank or trust company.

c. The governing board of a local government, in which a banking development district has been designated by the superintendent of financial services pursuant to section ninety-six-d of the banking law, may designate a bank, trust company or national bank located in such district for the deposit of public funds, the disposition of which is not otherwise provided for by law, received by the chief fiscal officer or other officer authorized by law to make such deposits. Such designation shall be by resolution of the governing board or, in the case of a city, such other body as may be authorized or required by law to designate depositories. Such resolution shall specify the maximum amount which may be kept on deposit at any time with such bank, trust company or national bank located in such district. Subject to an agreement between such governing board and such banking institution, public funds deposited in such banking institution may earn a fixed interest rate which is at or below such banking institution's posted two year certificate of deposit rate. In those instances where there is such an agreement, its terms and conditions shall also be specified in the resolution. Any such designation, amount, or agreement provisions may be changed at any time by further resolution.

3. All public deposits in excess of the amount insured under the provisions of the Federal Deposit Insurance Act as now or hereafter amended shall be secured in accordance with this subdivision:

a. The officers making a deposit may accept a pledge of eligible securities having in the aggregate a market value at least equal to the aggregate amount of public deposits from such officers, or a pledge of a pro rata portion of a pool of eligible securities having in the aggregate a market value at least equal to the aggregate amount of public deposits from all such officers within the state at such bank or trust company, together with a security agreement from the bank or trust company. The security agreement and custodial agreement referred to below may be the same agreement including when the bank or trust company holding the public deposits holds the collateral for the public body. The security agreement shall provide that such eligible securities or pro rata portion of a pool of eligible securities are being pledged by the bank or trust company as security for the public deposits, together with agreed upon interest, if any, and any costs or expenses arising out of the collection of such deposit upon a default. It shall also provide for the conditions under which the securities or pro rata portion of a pool of eligible securities held may be sold, presented for payment, substituted or released and the events of default which will enable the local government to exercise its rights against the pledged securities. Such agreement shall include all provisions deemed necessary and sufficient to secure in a satisfactory manner the local government's interest in the collateral. The custodial agreement shall provide that the pledged securities or pro rata portion of a pool of eligible securities will be held by the custodial bank or trust company as agent of, and custodian for, the local government, and will be kept separate and apart from the general assets of the custodial bank or trust company and it shall also provide for the manner in which the custodial bank or trust company shall confirm the receipt, substitution or release of the collateral. Such agreement shall provide for the frequency of revaluation of collateral by the custodial bank or trust company and the substitution of collateral when a change in the rating of a security causes ineligibility pursuant to paragraph f of subdivision one of this section. Such agreement shall include all provisions deemed necessary and sufficient to secure in a satisfactory manner the local government's interest in the collateral. Such agreement may also contain such other provisions as the governing board may deem necessary.

b. Whenever eligible securities delivered to a custodial bank or trust company pursuant to this paragraph are transferred by entries on the books of a federal reserve bank or other book-entry system operated by a federally regulated entity without physical delivery of the evidence of such obligations, the records of the custodial bank or trust company shall show, at all times, the interest of the local government in such securities or pro rata portion of a pool of eligible securities as set forth in the security agreement.

c. (i) In lieu of or in addition to the deposit of eligible securities, the officers making a deposit may accept an eligible surety bond payable to such local government as security for the payment of one hundred percent, or an eligible letter of credit payable to such local government as security for the payment of one hundred forty percent, of the aggregate amount of public deposits from such officers and the agreed upon interest, if any. The terms and conditions of any eligible surety bond shall be approved by the governing board.

(ii) In lieu of or in addition to the deposit of eligible securities, the officers making a deposit may, in the case of an irrevocable letter of credit issued in favor of the local government by a federal home loan bank whose commercial paper and other unsecured short-term debt obligations are rated in the highest rating category by at least one nationally recognized statistical rating organization, accept such letter of credit payable to such local government as security for the payment of one hundred percent of the aggregate amount of public deposits from such officers and the agreed upon interest, if any.

d. For purposes of determining the market value of securities as required by this subdivision:

(i) The eligible securities described in subparagraphs (viii), (x) and (xi) of paragraph f of subdivision one of this section shall be valued at eighty percent of their market value.

(ii) The eligible securities described in subparagraph (ix) of paragraph f of subdivision one of this section shall be valued at seventy percent of their market value.

(iii) Of the eligible securities described in subparagraphs (v), (vi) and (vii) of paragraph f of subdivision one of this section, those securities rated in the highest category shall be valued at one hundred percent of their market value; those securities rated in the second highest rating category shall be valued at ninety percent of their market value; and those securities rated in the third highest rating category shall be valued at eighty percent of their market value. When two nationally recognized statistical rating organizations rate a security in two different categories, the security shall be considered to be rated in the higher of the two categories.

4. (a) Notwithstanding any other provision of law to the contrary, the chief fiscal officer, or other officer authorized by law to make deposits, may, subject to the approval of the governing body of a local government, by resolution, enter into a contract with a courier service for the purpose of causing the deposit of public funds with a bank or trust company as provided in this section.

(b) The entrusting of public funds for deposit pursuant to paragraph (a) of this subdivision shall release the officer entrusting the public funds to the courier service and his or her surety from any liability for loss of such public funds by the courier service in the process of delivering such public funds to the designated bank or trust company.

(c) The local government authorizing the deposit of public funds by a courier service pursuant to paragraph (a) of this subdivision shall require the courier service to obtain a surety bond for the full amount entrusted to the courier, payable to the local government and executed by an insurance company authorized to do business in this state, the claims paying ability of which is rated in the highest rating category by at least two nationally recognized statistical rating organizations, to insure against any loss of public funds entrusted to the courier service for deposit or failure to deposit the full amount entrusted to the courier.

(d) A deposit made by a courier on behalf of a local government shall be deemed to be a deposit made by the chief fiscal officer or other officer entrusting such funds for purposes of the requirements contained in this section for securing public deposits.

(e) A bank or trust company may, from time to time and as agreed upon with a local government, reimburse all or part of, but not more than, the actual cost incurred by the local government in transporting cash, negotiable instruments or other items for deposit through a courier service. Any such reimbursement agreement shall apply only to a specified deposit transaction, and may be subject to such terms, conditions and limitations as the bank or trust company deems necessary to ensure sound banking practices, including, but not limited to, any terms, conditions or limitations that may be required by the department of financial services or other federal or state authority.

This act shall take effect on the ninetieth day after it shall have become a law provided, however, that sections twenty-one and twenty-nine of this act shall take effect one year after the date on which this act shall have become a law; provided, further, that subdivision 13 of section 854 of the general municipal law, as amended by section three of this act and subdivision 10 of section 1951 of the public authorities law, as amended by section nineteen of this act, shall take effect immediately and provided further that subdivision 15 of section 858 of the general municipal law, as added by section seven of this act, subdivision 14 of section 1953 of the public authorities law as added by section twenty-three of this act and subdivision 14 of section 2306 of the public authorities law as added by section thirty-one of this act shall take effect on January 1, 1994; provided further however that the provisions of section fifteen of this act shall remain in full force and effect until the end of calendar day January 31, 2008, and provided further that the last four sentences of the opening paragraph, the second undesignated paragraph and the first sentence of the third undesignated paragraph of section 1953 of the public authorities law, as added by section twenty-two of this act and the second and third undesignated paragraphs and the first sentence of the fourth undesignated paragraph of section 2306 of the public authorities law, as added by section thirty of this act shall remain in full force and effect until the end of calendar day January 31, 2008 when upon such date the provisions of the opening paragraph of sections 1953 and 2306 of the public authorities law shall revert to and be read as set out in law on the date immediately preceding the effective date of this act and provided further that section 5 of chapter 905 of the laws of 1986, as amended by section thirty-five of this act, shall take effect immediately and shall be deemed in full force and effect on and after July 1, 1993; provided further, however, that this act shall not apply to projects for which an agency, through the issuance of its bonds, execution of leases, or the passage of an inducement resolution or bond resolution, has authorized any assistance prior to the date on which this act shall have become a law whether or not such projects are thereafter modified; provided further, however, that nothing contained herein shall be deemed to affect the application, qualification, expiration or repeal of any provision of law amended by any section of this act and such provisions shall be applied or qualified or shall expire or be deemed repealed in the same manner, to the same extent and on the same date as the case may be as otherwise provided by law. (Amd, L 1993, ch 357, § 15, L 1996, ch 254, § 2, L 1996, ch 278, § 2, L 1996, ch 305, § 2, L 1996, ch 307, § 2, L 1996, ch 309, § 460, L 1997, ch 444, § 5, L 1999, ch 444, § 3, L 2002, ch 112, § 2, L 2005, ch 159, § 2, L 2006, ch 142, § 2, L 2007, ch 381, § 2, eff July 26, 2008.).

Laws 1996, ch 619, § 1, eff Sept 4, 1996, provides as follows:

§ 2. This act shall take effect immediately; provided, however, that the amendment made to section 10 of the general municipal law by this act shall survive the expiration of such section as provided in chapter 708 of the laws of 1992, as amended.

Laws 1998, ch 623, § 8, eff Oct 20, 1998, provides as follows:

§ 8.This act shall take effect immediately; provided, however, that every local government that participates in a municipal cooperation agreement, which is currently in existence and would be within the definition of a cooperative investment agreement under this act, shall have one year from such effective date to execute those amendments necessary to comply with the requirements of sections four, five, and six of this act, and until the expiration of that year, nothing in this act shall affect the validity of any municipal cooperation agreement authorizing cooperative investments; provided further that, for purposes of complying with sections two, three and five of this act, any obligation owned by a local government on May 1, 1998, or held on May 1, 1998 pursuant to a municipal cooperation agreement that would be within the definition of a cooperative investment agreement under this act, that provides for the adjustment of its interest rate on set dates shall be deemed to mature on the date on which the interest rate resets; and provided further that, for purposes of complying with section six of this act, contracts for professional services procured on behalf of an existing municipal cooperation agreement that would be within the definition of a cooperative investment agreement under this act shall be awarded pursuant to a request for proposal process upon the expiration of existing contracts or thirty months from the effective date of this act, whichever occurs earlier, provided that the amendments to subdivision 3 of section 11 of the general municipal law made by section two of this act shall be subject to the expiration and reversion of such subdivision pursuant to section 7 of chapter 548 of the laws of 1997, as amended, when upon such date the provisions of section three of this act shall take effect.

Laws 2018, ch 424, § 2, eff January 1, 2019, provides:

§ 2. This act shall take effect on the first of January next succeeding the date on which it shall have become a law.

Amendment Notes: 2012. Chapter 128, § 1 amended:

By designating entire sub 2, par (a) as sub 2, par (a), subpar (i).

By adding sub 2, par (a), subpar (ii).

2011. Chapter 62, § 104 (Part A) amended:

Sub 2, par c at fig 1 by substituting "superintendent of financial services" for "superintendent of banks".

§ 11. Temporary investments.

1. For purposes of this section, the terms "local government", "bank" and "trust company" shall have the same meanings as in section ten of this article.

2. a. The governing board of any local government or, if the governing board so delegates, the chief fiscal officer or other officer having custody of the moneys may temporarily invest moneys not required for immediate expenditure, except moneys the investment of which is otherwise provided for by law, either: (1) in special time deposit accounts in, or certificates of deposit issued by, a bank or trust company located and authorized to do business in this state; or (2) in accordance with all of the following conditions:

(i) the moneys are invested through a bank or trust company located and authorized to do business in this state;

(ii) the bank or trust company arranges for the deposit of the moneys in certificates of deposit in one or more banking institutions, as defined in section nine-r of the banking law, for the account of the local government;

(iii) the full amount of principal and accrued interest of each such certificate of deposit must be insured by the federal deposit insurance corporation;

(iv) the bank or trust company acts as custodian for the local government with respect to such certificates of deposit issued for the local government's account; and

(v) at the same time that the local government's moneys are deposited and the certificates of deposit are issued for the account of the local government, the bank or trust company receives an amount of deposits from customers of other financial institutions equal to or greater than the amount of the moneys invested by the local government through the bank or trust company.

b. For any investment made pursuant to paragraph a of this subdivision, such time deposit account or certificate of deposit shall be payable within such time as the proceeds shall be needed to meet expenditures for which such moneys were obtained and provided further that such time deposit account or certificate of deposit be secured in the same manner as is provided for securing deposits of public funds by subdivision three of section ten of this article.

3. [Eff until July 1, 2023]

a. Investments pursuant to this section may also be made in the following:

(1) obligations of the United States of America or in obligations guaranteed by agencies of the United States of America where the payment of principal and interest are guaranteed by the United States of America or in obligations of the state of New York, or with the approval of the state comptroller in obligations issued pursuant to section 24.00 or 25.00 of the local finance law by any municipality, school district or district corporation other than the municipality, school district or district corporation investing such moneys pursuant to this paragraph. In addition, moneys in any reserve fund established pursuant to section six-c, six-d, six-e, six-f, six-g, six-h, six-j, six-k, six-l, six-m or six-n of this article may be invested in obligations of the municipality, school district, fire district or district corporation which has established the reserve fund, or in the case of a capital reserve fund established for a town or county improvement district, obligations of the town or county issued for the purposes of such district.

(2) notwithstanding any other provision of general, special or local law, any city having a population of one million or more may also make investments in the following:

(i) general obligation bonds and notes of any state other than this state, provided that such bonds and notes receive the highest rating of at least one independent rating agency designated by the state comptroller;

(ii) obligations of any corporation organized under the laws of any state in the United States maturing within two hundred seventy days, provided that such obligations receive the highest rating of two independent rating services designated by the state comptroller and that the issuer of such obligations has maintained such ratings on similar obligations during the preceding six months, provided, however, that the issuer of such obligations need not have received such rating during the prior six month period if such issuer has received the highest rating of two independent rating services designated by the state comptroller and is the successor or wholly owned subsidiary of an issuer that has maintained such ratings on similar obligations during the preceding six month period or if the issuer is the product of a merger of two or more issuers, one of which has maintained such ratings on similar obligations during the preceding six month period, provided, however, that no more than two hundred fifty million dollars may be invested in such obligations of any one corporation; or

(iii) bankers' acceptances maturing within two hundred seventy days which are eligible for purchase in the open market by federal reserve banks and which have been accepted by a bank or trust company which is organized under the laws of the United States or of any state thereof and which is a member of the federal reserve system and whose short-term obligations meet the criteria outlined in clause (ii) of this subparagraph. Provided, however, that no more than two hundred fifty million dollars may be invested in such bankers' acceptances of any one bank or trust company; or

(iv) obligations of, or instruments issued by or fully guaranteed as to principal and interest by, any agency or instrumentality of the United States acting pursuant to a grant of authority from the congress of the United States, including but not limited to, any federal home loan bank or banks, the Tennessee valley authority, the federal national mortgage association, the federal home loan mortgage corporation and the United States postal service, provided, however, that no more than two hundred fifty million dollars may be invested in such obligations of any one agency.

(v) no-load money market mutual funds registered under the Securities Act of 1933, as amended, and operated in accordance with Rule 2a-7 of the Investment Company Act of 1940, as amended, provided that such funds are limited to investments in obligations issued or guaranteed by the United States of America or in obligations of agencies or instrumentalities of the United States of America where the payment of principal and interest are guaranteed by the United States of America (including contracts for the sale and repurchase of any such obligations), and are rated in the highest rating category by at least one nationally recognized statistical rating organization, provided, however, that no more than two hundred fifty million dollars may be invested in such funds.

b. All investments made pursuant to this subdivision shall be subject to the following conditions:

(1) Such obligations shall be payable or redeemable at the option of the owner within such times as the proceeds will be needed to meet expenditures for purposes for which the moneys were provided and, in the case of obligations purchased with the proceeds of bonds or notes, shall be payable or redeemable in any event, at the option of the owner, within two years of the date of purchase. Obligations that are purchased pursuant to a repurchase agreement shall be deemed to be payable or redeemable for purposes of this paragraph on the date on which the purchased obligations are scheduled to be repurchased by the seller thereof. Any obligation that provides for the adjustment of its interest rate on set dates shall be deemed to be payable or redeemable for purposes of this paragraph on the date on which the principal amount can be recovered through demand by the holder thereof.

(2) Such obligations, unless registered or inscribed in the name of the local government, shall be purchased through, delivered to and held in the custody of a bank or trust company or, with respect to the city of New York, a reputable dealer in such obligations as shall be designated by the state comptroller, in this state. Such obligations shall be purchased, sold or presented for redemption or payment by such bank or trust company or dealer in obligations only in accordance with prior written authorization from the officer authorized to make the investment. All such transactions shall be confirmed in writing to the local government by the bank or trust company. All obligations held in the custody of a bank or trust company pursuant to this paragraph shall be held by such bank or trust company pursuant to a written custodial agreement as set forth in paragraph a of subdivision three of section ten of this article.

3. [Eff July 1, 2023] Investments pursuant to this section may also be made in obligations of the United States of America or in obligations guaranteed by agencies of the United States of America where the payment of principal and interest are guaranteed by the United States of America or in obligations of the state of New York. In addition, moneys in any reserve fund established pursuant to section six-c, six-d, six-e, six-f, six-g, six-h, six-j, six-k, six-l, six-m or six-n of this article may be invested in obligations of the municipality, school district, fire district or district corporation which has established the reserve fund, or in the case of a capital reserve fund established for a town or county improvement district, obligations of the town or county issued for the purposes of such district.

All investments made pursuant to this subdivision shall be subject to the following conditions:

a. Such obligations shall be payable or redeemable at the option of the owner within such times as the proceeds will be needed to meet expenditures for purposes for which the moneys were provided and, in the case of obligations purchased with the proceeds of bonds or notes, shall be payable or redeemable in any event, at the option of the owner, within two years of the date of purchase. Obligations that are purchased pursuant to a repurchase agreement shall be deemed to be payable or redeemable for purposes of this paragraph on the date on which the purchased obligations are scheduled to be repurchased by the seller thereof. Any obligation that provides for the adjustment of its interest rate on set dates shall be deemed to be payable or redeemable for purposes of this paragraph on the date on which the principal amount can be recovered through demand by the holder thereof.

b. Such obligations, unless registered or inscribed in the name of the local government, shall be purchased through, delivered to and held in the custody of a bank or trust company or, with respect to the city of New York, a reputable dealer in such obligations as shall be designated by the state comptroller, in this state. Such obligations shall be purchased, sold or presented for redemption or payment by such bank or trust company or dealer in obligations only in accordance with prior written authorization from the officer authorized to make the investment. All such transactions shall be confirmed in writing to the local government by the bank or trust company. All obligations held in the custody of a bank or trust company pursuant to this paragraph shall be held by such bank or trust company pursuant to a written custodial agreement as set forth in paragraph a of subdivision three of section ten of this article.

4. Notwithstanding any other provision of law, the governing board of a local government may authorize the aforementioned officers to turn over the physical custody and safekeeping of the evidences of the investments made pursuant to this section to (a) any bank or trust company incorporated in this state, or (b) any national bank located in this state, or (c) any private banker duly authorized by the superintendent of financial services of this state to engage in business here. All such private bankers shall, as private bankers, maintain a permanent capital of not less than one million dollars in this state. The said officers may direct such bank, trust company or private banker to register and hold any such evidences of investments in its custody, in the name of its nominee. Such officers may deposit or authorize such bank, trust company or private banker, to deposit, or arrange for the deposit of any such evidences of investments with a federal reserve bank or other book-entry transfer system operated by a federally regulated entity to be credited to an account as to which the ownership of, and other interests in, such evidences of investments may be transferred by entries on the books of such federal reserve bank or other book-entry transfer system operated by a federally regulated entity without physical delivery of any such evidences of investments. The records of any such bank, trust company or private banker shall show, at all times, the ownership of such evidences of investments, and they shall, when held in the possession of such bank, trust company or private banker be, at all times, kept separate from the assets of such bank, trust company or private banker. All evidences of investments delivered to a bank, trust company, or private banker pursuant to this subdivision shall be held by such bank, trust company or private banker pursuant to a written custodial agreement as set forth in paragraph a of subdivision three of section ten of this article. When any such evidences of investments are so registered in the name of a nominee, such bank, trust company or private banker shall be absolutely liable for any loss occasioned by the acts of such nominee with respect to such evidences of investments.

5. A county clerk may invest any money collected on behalf of the state until such time as the money is required to be remitted to the state. The county clerk shall invest the state money only in those investments authorized by this section and payable within such time as the proceeds shall be required to be remitted to the state. Any interest that accrues on moneys invested pursuant to this subdivision shall be payable in equal shares to the state and to the county provided, however, that any fees or service charges associated with the investment shall be paid from such interest.

6. Except as may otherwise be provided in a contract with bond or note holders, any moneys of a political subdivision authorized to be invested pursuant to this section may be commingled for investment purposes; provided, however, that any investment of commingled moneys shall be payable or redeemable at the option of the owner within such time as the proceeds shall be needed to meet expenditures for which such moneys were obtained or as otherwise specifically provided in this section. The separate identity of the sources of such funds shall at all times be maintained and income received on moneys commingled for the purpose of investment shall be credited on a pro rata basis to the fund or account from which the moneys were invested.

7. The chief fiscal officer of each local government shall maintain or cause to be maintained a proper record of all books, notes, securities or other evidences of indebtedness held by or for such subdivision for the purpose of investment. Such record shall at least identify the security, the fund for which held, the place where kept and entries shall be made therein showing date of sale or other disposition and the amount realized therefrom.

1. In general

City's revised Indigent Defense Plan, and its proposed implementation under New York City, N.Y., R. tit. 43, § 13-01 et seq., was not arbitrary and capricious or irrational because the plan did not require the consent of the bar associations and did not violate, inter alia, N.Y. County Law § 722 or N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 11(1)(e); the revised plan was a lawful "combination" plan under § 722(4), providing indigent representation under the "private legal aid bureau or society" option of § 722(2), which was not restricted to primary assignments, and the "plan of a bar association" option of § 722(3) did not give the bar associations the exclusive right to provide "conflict counsel." Although the revised plan provided for the assignment of conflict cases to institutional providers under § 722(2), it continued to permit the assignment of conflict cases to private counsel serving on Criminal Defense Panels. Matter of New York County Lawyers' Assn. v Bloomberg, 95 A.D.3d 92, 940 N.Y.S.2d 229, 2012 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2016 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't), aff'd, 19 N.Y.3d 712, 955 N.Y.S.2d 835, 979 N.E.2d 1162, 2012 N.Y. LEXIS 3267 (N.Y. 2012).

The governing board of a municipal corporation or fire district may annually adopt a resolution authorizing the chief fiscal officer to deposit or invest moneys determined by him not to be required for immediate expenditure. 1965 Ops St Compt File #968.

Term "bank" as used in CLS Gen Mun §§ 10 and 11 does not include state or federally chartered savings banks; term "national banking association" under CLS Gen Mun § 10 does not include federally chartered savings banks. 1995 Op St Compt No. 95-12.

In addition to other procedural requirements, expenditure of public funds for preservation of open spaces and areas may be made only after due notice and public hearing. 2002 Op St Compt No. 2002-5.

The term "bank" as used in these sections does not include a savings bank or savings and loan association regardless of whether such institutions are state chartered or federally chartered. 1983 Op St Comp File #83-69.

New York State higher education loans which have been reinsured by the Federal government pursuant to the Higher Education Act of 1965 may be accepted as collateral to the extent of the amount which has been reinsured. 1983 Op St Comp File #83-107.

2. Governmental bodies authorized to invest

A town board may authorize the investment of the surplus funds of a public general hospital. 1956 Ops St Compt File #8207.

A municipal water utility is not required by Public Service Law § 117 to pay interest on consumer deposits at the rate fixed by the Public Service Commission. If the municipality in its discretion decides to invest those moneys, the interest earned must be credited to the consumers, but the municipality may retain a reasonable administrative fee. 1981 Op St Compt 81-27 and 1979 Op St Compt 79-754 are superseded with respect to the denial of retention of reasonable administrative fees. 1990 Op St Compt 19-22.

3. Library

Monetary contributions to the trustees of a municipally established public library may be invested only as authorized by section 11 of the General Municipal Law, unless such moneys constitute true trust funds. 1969 Ops St Compt File #421.

A board of trustees of a village public library is not authorized to invest moneys, received by bequest, in bond anticipation notes issued by the village. 1970 Ops St Compt File #33.

There is no statutory authority for the joint purchase by association libraries, public libraries and cooperative library systems of short-term certificates of deposit. 1973 Op St Compt No. 73–1138.

Moneys held in custody of chief fiscal officer or other officer of public library, whether obtained from public or private sources, may be invested only as prescribed in CLS Gen Mun § 11, except that investment of gifts, grants, or bequests in form of true trust are subject to "prudent investor" provisions of CLS EPTL §§ 11-2.2 and 11-2.3; prior inconsistent opinions are superseded. 1995 Op St Compt No. 95-30.

Interest earned on investment of public moneys appropriated by village to village public library must be credited to library fund and not to village general fund; moneys donated by private persons to village public library may be invested by library trustees in investments which they deemed to be for best interests of library, and need not be invested in manner specified in CLS Gen Mun § 11; annual report of financial transactions which public library treasurer must file with State Comptroller should include information both on public moneys and private source moneys. 1988 Op St Compt No. 88-76, 1988 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 69.

4. Parking authority

The City of Yonkers Parking Authority would not seem authorized to invest its moneys in shares or certificates of deposit of a savings and loan association. 1967 Ops St Compt File #389.

5. School district

Extraclassroom activity funds and endowment funds, including donations made to school district from private sources in form of gift, grant, or bequest, investment of which is not otherwise provided for by law, must be invested by school district in accord with CLS Gen Mun § 11, while endowment moneys in form of true trust are governed by CLS EPTL § 11-2.2; whether particular provisions of school district's investment policies, enacted under CLS Gen Mun § 39, relate to endowment or extraclassroom funds must be determined by local officials. 1994 Op St Compt No. 94-15.

CLS Gen Mun § 11 constitutes exclusive authority for investment of proceeds of sale of real property by school district. 2005 Op St Compt No. 05-3.

School districts and municipalities are authorized to enter into municipal cooperation agreement to cooperatively undertake investment of monies, with allocation of all income, losses, and expenses relating to cooperative investment of funds among participants on pro rata basis, with fiscal officer of one of participants being given custody of funds for purpose of having that officer invest them on behalf of others; any agreement entered into for joint investment of funds must restrict investments to those investments or obligations in which all participants are permitted to invest, and each participant should be aware of restrictions on investment of particular funds; cooperative agreement can not entail delegation of any statutory duties or responsibilities to investment advisor or administrator, as fiscal officer is responsible for all investment decisions, and investment functions may not be assigned to board of advisors but may be delegated only to officer having custody of monies; each participant must evaluate its individual investment needs to insure that cooperative investments made under agreement are consistent with sound investment policies and procedures. Op St Compt 88-46.

6. Tax receiver

A town receiver of taxes and assessments may not temporarily invest tax moneys collected. 1974 Ops St Compt File #920.

7. Water district

A municipal water utility is not required by Public Service Law § 117 to pay interest on consumer deposits at the rate fixed by the Public Service Commission. If the municipality in its discretion decides to invest those moneys, the interest earned must be credited to the consumers, but the municipality may retain a reasonable administrative fee. 1981 Op St Compt 81-27 and 1979 Op St Compt 79-754 are superseded with respect to the denial of retention of reasonable administrative fees. 1990 Op St Compt 19-22.

8. Others

The treasurer of a park district which has a separate board of commissioners may not invest district moneys under this section. 1969 Ops St Compt File #302.

9. Source of moneys, generally; bond proceeds

Bond proceeds may be deposited in special time deposit accounts. 1957 Ops St Compt File #485.

Funds held as retained percentages due ultimately to contractors may be invested in certificates of deposit. If funds are proceeds of sale of obligations, interest earned or capital gain realized thereon shall be applied only to the payment of principal and interest related to such obligations in accordance with section 165.00 of the Local Finance Law. If moneys are reserve funds or proceeds of current appropriations, interest earned or capital gain realized thereon would belong to the city and could be used by it subject to the same requirements as in the case of unexpended balances. 1967 Ops St Compt File #825.

10. Capital reserve fund

Town moneys which constitute a capital reserve fund may not be temporarily deposited in special time deposits or invested in certificates of deposit issued by a bank or trust company. 1957 Ops St Compt File #26.

Capital reserve fund moneys may not be invested in special time deposit accounts at the present time. 1957 Ops St Compt File #485.

Town may provide in its proposed budget appropriation of amount to be funded by real property tax and to be paid into capital reserve fund for purpose of accumulating monies for future purchase of development rights for open space preservation; if reserve fund is established for purchase of development rights of specific parcel, establishment of fund is subject to permissive referendum requirements. 2002 Op St Compt No. 2002-5.

Town may provide in its proposed budget appropriation of amount to be funded by real property tax and to be paid into capital reserve fund for purpose of accumulating monies for future purchase of development rights for open space preservation; if fund is established generally for acquisitions of rights in land for open space preservation, no referendum is required on establishment of reserve fund, but expenditures from fund to acquire development rights would be subject to permissive referendum requirements. 2002 Op St Compt No. 2002-5.

Town may provide in its proposed budget appropriation of amount to be funded by real property tax and to be paid into capital reserve fund for purpose of accumulating monies for future purchase of development rights for open space preservation; monies in fund may be invested in accordance with CLS Gen Mun § 11. 2002 Op St Compt No. 2002-5.

Funds held as retained percentages due ultimately to contractors may be invested in certificates of deposit. If funds are proceeds of sale of obligations, interest earned or capital gain realized thereon shall be applied only to the payment of principal and interest related to such obligations in accordance with section 165.00 of the Local Finance Law. If moneys are reserve funds or proceeds of current appropriations, interest earned or capital gain realized thereon would belong to the city and could be used by it subject to the same requirements as in the case of unexpended balances. 1967 Ops St Compt File #825.

11. Fire district funds

Temporary investment of fire district funds in savings accounts is not authorized; investment in time certificates, deposits, or open accounts, discussed. 1964 Ops St Compt #573.

12. Gifts or devises in trust

A legacy bequeathed to a town board in trust, to construct and thereafter maintain a town hall, does not in reality constitute a trust, but rather an absolute gift, and the town board must treat the residue of such building fund in the same manner as other town funds, subject to the testamentary limitation on its use, and may not deposit same in a savings and loan association. 1964 Ops St Compt File #1005.

Gifts devised or bequeathed to a town "in trust" do not constitute a true trust and are in reality, municipal funds. However, they may be used only for the purposes for which they were given. They must be invested as municipal funds pursuant to the statutes applicable thereto. 1967 Op St Compt No. 67–217.

Gifts devised or bequeathed to the trustees of town library for the benefit of the town, to be used for library purposes, constitute a true trust. 1967 Op St Compt No. 67–#217.

A board of trustees of a village public library is not authorized to invest moneys, received by bequest, in bond anticipation notes issued by the village. 1970 Ops St Compt File #33.

Perpetual care trust funds may be invested in a "long term savings account" in a savings bank. 1973 Ops St Compt File #992.

13. Highway funds

Supervisor of town need not have consent of town highway superintendent before investing town highway funds pursuant to General Municipal Law, § 11. 1960 Ops St Compt File #320.

Moneys raised by taxation for town highway improvements may be invested in certificates of deposit. Interest realized on such investment must be credited to the town highway improvement fund. 1968 Ops St Compt File #919.

Moneys raised by taxation for town highway improvements may be invested in certificates of deposit. Interest realized on such investment must be credited to the town highway improvement fund. 1968 Ops St Compt File #919.

14. Interest

Funds of the "Jones Fund" which represent public moneys must be invested pursuant to the provisions of section 11 of the General Municipal Law. 1967 Ops St Compt File #240.

Interest derived from the investment of cash on hand constitutes an unappropriated cash surplus which can be appropriated for any proper village purpose. 1969 Ops St Compt File #610.

A municipal water utility is not required by Public Service Law § 117 to pay interest on consumer deposits at the rate fixed by the Public Service Commission. If the municipality in its discretion decides to invest those moneys, the interest earned must be credited to the consumers, but the municipality may retain a reasonable administrative fee. 1981 Op St Compt 81-27 and 1979 Op St Compt 79-754 are superseded with respect to the denial of retention of reasonable administrative fees. 1990 Op St Compt 19-22.

Interest earned on investment of public moneys appropriated by village to village public library must be credited to library fund and not to village general fund; moneys donated by private persons to village public library may be invested by library trustees in investments which they deemed to be for best interests of library, and need not be invested in manner specified in CLS Gen Mun § 11; annual report of financial transactions which public library treasurer must file with State Comptroller should include information both on public moneys and private source moneys. 1988 Op St Compt No. 88-76, 1988 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 69.

15. Proceeds from sale of property

If all of the facilities of a water district are sold to a water authority, the proceeds of the sale may not be invested, nor may an excess over the required reserves be used to acquire and maintain a park for the residents of the water district. 1957 Ops St Compt File #57-424.

16. Surplus moneys

The Common Council of the city of Mount Vernon may authorize the city comptroller to temporarily invest moneys on hand and not needed for immediate expenditure, including surplus revenues and unexpended balances, pursuant to this section; however, there is no authority for the investment of moneys in the reserve for delinquent taxes. 1955 Ops St Compt File #7377.

A town board may authorize the investment of the surplus funds of a public general hospital. 1956 Ops St Compt File #8207.

A town may invest surplus moneys in special time deposit accounts or certificates of deposit on a temporary basis up to the end of the fiscal year, but must apply such surplus to the reduction of town taxes for the following year, if not expended before the end of the current fiscal year. The only means by which moneys can be accumulated from year to year is by establishing a valid reserve fund. 1969 Ops St Compt File #708.

Cash balances of municipal public utilities may not be invested in obligations of the municipality of which the public utilities are a part. Reserve fund moneys of municipal public utilities may be invested in obligations of such municipality. 1970 Ops St Compt File #2.

Funds held as retained percentages due ultimately to contractors may be invested in certificates of deposit. If funds are proceeds of sale of obligations, interest earned or capital gain realized thereon shall be applied only to the payment of principal and interest related to such obligations in accordance with section 165.00 of the Local Finance Law. If moneys are reserve funds or proceeds of current appropriations, interest earned or capital gain realized thereon would belong to the city and could be used by it subject to the same requirements as in the case of unexpended balances. 1967 Ops St Compt File #825.

17. Taxes

The Common Council of the city of Mount Vernon may authorize the city comptroller to temporarily invest moneys on hand and not needed for immediate expenditure, including surplus revenues and unexpended balances, pursuant to this section; however, there is no authority for the investment of moneys in the reserve for delinquent taxes. 1955 Ops St Compt File #7377.

The receiver of taxes and assessments in a town of the first class in Monroe County may not invest money due the county treasurer in temporary investments from the time it is received until the settlement date. 1968 Ops St Compt File #151.

The treasurer or the City of Utica may commingle tax moneys collected for the county with general city moneys, but may not invest these moneys; and may deduct a 1% collection fee from all taxes levied on behalf of the county for county purposes. Taxes levied for home relief and for the costs of the city's participation in the county mutual workmen's compensation self-insurance plan are not levied for county purposes. 1969 Ops St Compt File #461.

The treasurer of the City of Hudson may not invest county tax moneys collected by the city on behalf of the county. 1969 Ops St Compt File #658.

18. Miscellaneous

Board of education's practice of investing portions of proceeds from tax anticipation notes (TANS) was proper where investments were to defray operating expenses, not for sole purpose of investment, board only invested proceeds not immediately required in certificates of deposit, those deposits were timed to become due and payable at times when school district would require cash, and principal amount of TANS would not exceed school district's greatest cash flow deficit during term of TANS. 1994 Op Comm Ed No. 13136.

Cash deposits made by electric consumers may be deposited in special time deposit accounts. 1957 Ops St Compt File #485.

A water district in Nassau County may contract to construct certain facilities for developers of subdivisions in such district. If such contract provides that the developer shall pay to the district the estimated costs of such construction and related costs, and that such moneys, when paid, belong to the district, subject to possible return of overpayments, the district may invest such moneys prior to their utilization and retain any interest earned. 1976 Ops St Compt File #190.

Funds held as retained percentages due ultimately to contractors may be invested in certificates of deposit. If funds are proceeds of sale of obligations, interest earned or capital gain realized thereon shall be applied only to the payment of principal and interest related to such obligations in accordance with section 165.00 of the Local Finance Law. If moneys are reserve funds or proceeds of current appropriations, interest earned or capital gain realized thereon would belong to the city and could be used by it subject to the same requirements as in the case of unexpended balances. 1967 Ops St Compt File #825.

19. Types of investments, generally; day-of-deposit to day-of-withdrawal accounts

The investment of municipal moneys in day of deposit to day of withdrawal accounts must be secured by a pledge of obligations by the bank or trust company. 1975 Ops St Compt File #1068.

20. Certificates of deposit and special time deposit accounts

Town moneys which constitute a capital reserve fund may not be temporarily deposited in special time deposits or invested in certificates of deposit issued by a bank or trust company. 1957 Ops St Compt File #26.

Cash deposits made by electric consumers may be deposited in special time deposit accounts. 1957 Ops St Compt File #485.

Capital reserve fund moneys may not be invested in special time deposit accounts at the present time. 1957 Ops St Compt File #485.

Bond proceeds may be deposited in special time deposit accounts. 1957 Ops St Compt File #485.

Certain funds of fire districts may be temporarily deposited to earn interest in: (a) time deposits, open account, and in (b) time certificates of deposit issued by banks or trust companies but not savings banks, industrial banks or savings and loan associations. 1964 Ops St Compt File #573 (Revised).

Temporary investment of fire district funds in savings accounts is not authorized; investment in time certificates, deposits, or open accounts, discussed. 1964 Ops St Compt #573.

A town supervisor may not deposit town funds in a nondesignated depository. The town board may authorize the supervisor to temporarily invest town funds, not needed for immediate expenditure, in certificates of deposit or special time deposit accounts in banks or trust companies. Such banks or trust companies may be banks other than those designated as official depositories. 1967 Ops St Compt File #399.

Moneys raised by taxation for town highway improvements may be invested in certificates of deposit. Interest realized on such investment must be credited to the town highway improvement fund. 1968 Ops St Compt File #919.

21. Investment firm transactions; repurchase agreements

A municipality may utilize the services of an investment consultant, such as National Money Market Services, Inc., for the purpose of assisting the chief fiscal officer or other officer having custody of moneys in investing municipal moneys. 1983 Op St Comp File #83-84.

22. Obligations

Cash balances of municipal public utilities may not be invested in obligations of the municipality of which the public utilities are a part. Reserve fund moneys of municipal public utilities may be invested in obligations of such municipality. 1970 Ops St Compt File #2.

A board of trustees of a village public library is not authorized to invest moneys, received by bequest, in bond anticipation notes issued by the village. 1970 Ops St Compt File #33.

Obligations issued by federal intermediate credit banks which are part of the Farm Credit System and subject to the supervision of the Farm Credit Administration are not acceptable collateral from municipal certificates of deposit; as far as determining what other obligations of federal agencies may be pledged to secure investments made pursuant to this section, each type of obligation must be an obligation of the United States or fully guaranteed or insured as to payment of interest or principal by the United States; if the foregoing criteria are not met, then the obligations may not be used to secure investments made pursuant to General Municipal Law § 11, or the other related investment statutes. 1985 Op St Compt No. 85-68.

County may invest in obligations of Government National Mortgage Association, however, unless registered or inscribed in name of county, such obligations must be purchased through, delivered to, and held in custody of bank or trust company located and authorized to do business in New York. 1986 Op St Compt No. 86-51.

Local government may not, under CLS Gen Mun § 11, invest portion of its funds in obligation issued by financial institution and secured by irrevocable letter of credit issued by federal home loan bank; local government may not authorize such investment by local law. 1995 Op St Compt No. 95-28.

Town may issue bonds to finance acquisition of permanent development rights in land for open space preservation; bond resolution to authorize issuance of such obligations would be subject to permissive referendum if proposed maturity of bonds is more than 5 years. 2002 Op St Compt No. 2002-5.

Town may legally invest in bonds and notes of New York State Medical Care Facilities Finance Agency; however it may not accept bonds and notes of the Agency as collateral for its deposits or investments. 1986 Op St Comp No. 86-81.

23. Savings accounts

Temporary investment of fire district funds in savings accounts is not authorized; investment in time certificates, deposits, or open accounts, discussed. 1964 Ops St Compt #573.

A legacy bequeathed to a town board in trust, to construct and thereafter maintain a town hall, does not in reality constitute a trust, but rather an absolute gift, and the town board must treat the residue of such building fund in the same manner as other town funds, subject to the testamentary limitation on its use, and may not deposit same in a savings and loan association. 1964 Ops St Compt File #1005.

A village library memorial fund which is not a true trust fund may not be deposited in a savings bank. 1967 Ops St Compt File #413.

Perpetual care trust funds may be invested in a "long term savings account" in a savings bank. 1973 Ops St Compt File #992.

24. Securities

Fire district treasurer must deposit fire district moneys in a bank or trust company designated by the board of fire commissioners. Such moneys may not be invested. If paid into a duly established reserve fund, they may be invested in certain described securities. 1955 Ops St Compt File #7503.

Notwithstanding the charitable purposes for which a non-profit corporation is organized, a town may not invest in securities issued by such corporation because the transaction would constitute an illegal investment of municipal funds and would also violate Article VIII, section 1, of the New York State Constitution. 1967 Ops St Compt File #840.

25. Miscellaneous

Village board may not make a deposit of public moneys with a water corporation, or contract to make periodic payments in the future for materials or services to be furnished at this time; or pay now for materials and services to be furnished later. 1965 Ops St Compt File #175.

Funds of the "Jones Fund" which represent public moneys must be invested pursuant to the provisions of section 11 of the General Municipal Law. 1967 Ops St Compt File #240.

Municipal corporations and school districts may not purchase shares in mutual fund. 1987 Op St Compt No. 87-14.

Village may temporarily invest in short term United States Treasury Bills issued in book-entry form, which are registered in the name of the village, under the "Treasury Direct" program, where no physical security is issued, the security being evidenced only by an account master record and a description of the security in a securities portfolio associated therewith in the Federal Reserve's computer system. Ops St Compt 89-42.

School districts and municipalities are authorized to enter into municipal cooperation agreement to cooperatively undertake investment of monies, with allocation of all income, losses, and expenses relating to cooperative investment of funds among participants on pro rata basis, with fiscal officer of one of participants being given custody of funds for purpose of having that officer invest them on behalf of others; any agreement entered into for joint investment of funds must restrict investments to those investments or obligations in which all participants are permitted to invest, and each participant should be aware of restrictions on investment of particular funds; cooperative agreement can not entail delegation of any statutory duties or responsibilities to investment advisor or administrator, as fiscal officer is responsible for all investment decisions, and investment functions may not be assigned to board of advisors but may be delegated only to officer having custody of monies; each participant must evaluate its individual investment needs to insure that cooperative investments made under agreement are consistent with sound investment policies and procedures. Op St Compt 88-46.

Given the transactional nature of N.O.W. accounts, whenever a municipal officer or employee is authorized or required to deposit moneys received by him in his official capacity, said officer may utilize either a checking account or a N.O.W. account. A town clerk is required to deposit all moneys received by him not later than three business days after the total thereof exceeds fifty dollars and therefore is authorized to deposit moneys in a N.O.W. account designated by the town board as a depository of town funds. 1983 Op St Court File #83-123.

Municipality may accept, as collateral, for municipal investments under CLS Gen Mun § 11, pledge of trust certificates representing ownership of all or part of guaranteed portion of one or more loans which have been guaranteed by Small Business Administration under Small Business Act. 1987 Op St Comp No. 87-72.

26. Procedure for making investment, generally; authorization necessary

The Common Council of the city of Mount Vernon may authorize the city comptroller to temporarily invest moneys on hand and not needed for immediate expenditure, including surplus revenues and unexpended balances, pursuant to this section; however, there is no authority for the investment of moneys in the reserve for delinquent taxes. 1955 Ops St Compt File #7377.

Local government is not required by law to enter into security and custodial agreements identical to models prepared by office of state comptroller. 1995 Op St Compt No. 95-32.

School districts and municipalities are authorized to enter into municipal cooperation agreement to cooperatively undertake investment of monies, with allocation of all income, losses, and expenses relating to cooperative investment of funds among participants on pro rata basis, with fiscal officer of one of participants being given custody of funds for purpose of having that officer invest them on behalf of others; any agreement entered into for joint investment of funds must restrict investments to those investments or obligations in which all participants are permitted to invest, and each participant should be aware of restrictions on investment of particular funds; cooperative agreement can not entail delegation of any statutory duties or responsibilities to investment advisor or administrator, as fiscal officer is responsible for all investment decisions, and investment functions may not be assigned to board of advisors but may be delegated only to officer having custody of monies; each participant must evaluate its individual investment needs to insure that cooperative investments made under agreement are consistent with sound investment policies and procedures. Op St Compt 88-46.

27. Implied authority to authorize

The board of trustees of municipal or school district libraries possesses implied authority to authorize the temporary investment of library moneys in the custody of the library treasurer. 1974 Op St Compt No. 74–361.

Town board manages and controls finances of town, but may authorize its chief fiscal officer or officer having custody of town monies to temporarily invest monies not needed for immediate expenditure. Ops St Compt 89-35.

28. When authorization not necessary

Supervisor of town need not have consent of town highway superintendent before investing town highway funds pursuant to General Municipal Law, § 11. 1960 Ops St Compt File #320.

29. Pledge of securities

The investment of municipal moneys in day of deposit to day of withdrawal accounts must be secured by a pledge of obligations by the bank or trust company. 1975 Ops St Compt File #1068.

The guaranteed portion of SBA loans may be used as collateral for municipal and school district investments and deposits. 1976 Ops St Compt File #1155.

Municipality may not accept pledge of proportionate interest in single pool of obligations as security for its investments or deposits; however, pursuant to Joint investment agreement, municipalities may make joint investments and have obligations pledged to the credit of a single participant if joint investment agreement contains provisions stating that participant holding collateral will reimburse other participants if investment should fail. 1985 Op St Compt No. 85-47.

30. Control over securities

When a village deposits in a bank or trust company either current funds or moneys not required for immediate expenditure, the obligations pledged by the bank as security do not have to be delivered to the sole custody of the village treasurer, but they must be physically segregated and designated, approved by the village treasurer, and deposited in such place and held under such conditions as the village treasurer may determine, which conditions shall include at least joint control by such treasurer. 1967 Ops St Compt File #487.

31. Necessity that securities be kept separate

Where a village deposits current funds in a special time deposit account or certificate of deposit, pursuant to this section, the securities pledged by the depositary do not have to be deposited with the village, but they must be physically set aside as a separate and specific pledge. 1956 Ops St Compt File #8193.

When a village deposits in a bank or trust company either current funds or moneys not required for immediate expenditure, the obligations pledged by the bank as security do not have to be delivered to the sole custody of the village treasurer, but they must be physically segregated and designated, approved by the village treasurer, and deposited in such place and held under such conditions as the village treasurer may determine, which conditions shall include at least joint control by such treasurer. 1967 Ops St Compt File #487.

32. When pledge not necessary

A cooperative library system is not a municipal corporation. There is no statutory requirement that deposit of moneys of cooperative library system in bank or trust company checking account be secured by such depositary by pledge of obligations. 1965 Op St Compt No. 65–313.

Where a town has moneys in a demand deposit account which are unsecured, moneys in time deposit accounts or invested in certificates or deposit may be unsecured only to the extent that the $15,000 federal deposit insurance coverage exceeds the amount of the unsecured demand deposit. 1968 Ops St Compt File #79.

33. Registering investments in name of nominee

Assuming that the sexton Trust Fund is a true (technical) trust, the trustees thereof may authorize the bank having custody of the securities of the fund to register them in the name of a "nominee" of the bank. 1969 Ops St Compt File #234.

1. In general

Moneys in County General Fund or in County Road Fund not required for immediate expenditure may be temporarily invested. 1955 NY Ops Atty Gen Apr 21 (informal).

Discussion of the authority and associated duties of county treasurer to invest county money, trust fund money and other money, that neither belongs to the county nor is held in trust by the county. 1980 Op St Compt File #430.

(1) A mailed listing from a bank of collateral pledged by the bank as security for municipal deposits and investments may serve as proof to the chief fiscal officer that the deposit or investment is properly secured if he has substantial reason, based upon the reputation of the bank or its own past dealings with the bank, to rely on the fact that such listing reflects steps actually taken by the bank to make the municipality a secured creditor. It is preferable, when possible, to have collateral delivered to the municipality or held by a third party. (2) Repurchase agreements (REPOS) are only authorized where a municipality actually purchases the securities which are the subject of the agreement and it is preferable that such securities be held by the municipality or a third party escrow agent. 1982 Op St Compt File #82-323.

Suffolk County is not required to credit tax revenues immediately upon receipt to part-county funds as well as to the general fund. 1981 Op St Compt File #81-57.

2. Governmental bodies authorized to invest

The Town Board may authorize temporary investments of town funds pursuant to the provisions of this section. 1961 NY Ops Atty Gen Dec 8.

A town clerk may not invest moneys which he receives nor may a town board authorize the clerk to invest town moneys on behalf of the supervisor. 1978 Op St Compt File #535.

A village may temporarily invest moneys held in trust and agency fund accounts provided that the moneys are eligible for investment. Disposition of the interest earned must be considered on an individual basis taking into account statutory, common law and other restrictions which govern the use of the particular moneys involved. 1979 Op St Compt File #754.

A town may not issue obligations to finance the purchase of a fire truck for a fire district located within the town. 1980 Op St Compt File #81-156.

A county may set up an investment pool for various towns within the county which would be administered by the county treasurer provided that an agreement is entered into governing such an arrangement, which among other things, preserves the right of each town officer having custody of town money and empowered by the town board to make investments, to refuse, after such pooling, the use of his town's money for any particular investment. 1980 Op St Compt File #327.

A cash deposit given by a developer in lieu of a performance bond may be temporarily invested by a town, but the town may not charge an administrative fee against all or a portion of the interest earned to compensate the town for the town's site inspections. 1980 Op St Compt File #459.

A town and village may jointly invest in a certificate of deposit. Any opinions of this Department to the contrary are superseded. 1980 Op St Compt File #202.

3. Library

Moneys donated by private persons to a town public library may be invested by the library trustees in investments which they deem to be for the best interests of the library, and need not be invested in the securities specified in General Municipal Law, § 11. Previous opinions inconsistent herewith are superseded. 1980 Op St Compt File #450.

4. School district

Discussion concerning the temporary investment of moneys by a central high school district in a negotiable order of withdrawal ("N.O.W.") account in a savings bank or commercial bank. 1979 Op St Compt File #158.

A school district may not enter into a repurchase agreement (REPO) with a brokerage firm. 1979 Op St Compt File #659.

Although a supervisor of a town in Westchester County may not temporarily invest school tax moneys in his custody on his own initiative, he may be authorized by the board of education of the school district for which he holds the tax moneys to make such investments on behalf of the school district pending distribution of the tax moneys. Interest earned on such investments may not be retained by the town. It should be credited to the school district. Opn No. 75-9 superseded. 1979 Op St Compt File #861.

Even though Opinion No. 80-202, dealing with the joint investment in a certificate of deposit by a town and a village, is not directly applicable to school districts and B.O.C.E.S., those two entities do have authority to jointly invest their funds based on the same reasoning used in that opinion. 1981 Op St Compt File #80-763.

5. Tax receiver

A town receiver of taxes and assessments has no power on his own initiative to temporarily invest tax moneys he has collected nor may he be authorized by others to invest such moneys. 1978 Op St Compt File #893.

A receiver of taxes in Nassau County is specifically empowered to deposit collected tax moneys in interest bearing accounts prior to payment over to municipal fiscal officers. He is not empowered to deposit tax moneys in non-interest bearing accounts on his own initiative for the purpose of stimulating competition among banks at sales of town obligations by encouraging them to purchase at rates most favorable to the town. 1979 Op St Compt File #716.

Although a receiver of taxes and assessments may not temporarily invest tax moneys in his custody on his own initiative, he may be authorized by the governing board of the town, the fire district or the county and the board of education of a school district for which he collects taxes to make such investments on their behalf. 30 Opns St Comp, 1974, p 139, Opns St Comp, 1978, No. 78-893 and No. 78-983 and any other prior inconsistent opinions are hereby superseded. 1980 Op St Compt File #242.

County tax moneys collected in a town of the first class are to be held in the exclusive custody of the receiver of taxes and assessments and may be temporarily invested by the receiver prior to their payment over to the county which must be made by the fifteenth day of the month following their receipt. 1983 Op St Compt File #83-183.

6. Fire district

A fire district may not invest its moneys in a money market fund. 1979 Op St Compt File #920.

A fire district may not invest its funds in a savings account or certificate of deposit in a savings and loan association. 1980 Op St Compt File #29.

7. Water district

The Franklin Square Water District may not deposit or invest its moneys in a savings bank or savings and loan association. However, it may invest its moneys in special time deposits in, or certificates of deposit issued by, banks or trust companies, and may deposit its moneys in banks or trust companies, as those terms are defined in the Banking Law. Such investments or deposits need not be limited to a single bank or trust company. 1979 Op St Compt File #687.

8. Others

A not-for-profit corporation which supplies services under contract to a community college is not generally subject to the restrictions of General Municipal Law, § 11 in investing its funds. 1981 Op. St. Compt. No. 81–257, 257,, 1981 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 628.

9. Capital reserve fund

Moneys in a capital reserve fund established by a fire district may be co-mingled with moneys in other capital reserve funds or with moneys in the general fund for purposes of investment. 1983 Op St Compt File #83-34.

10. Fire district funds

Moneys in a fire district's equipment fund which are not required for immediate expenditure may be temporarily invested pursuant to General Municipal Law § 11. 1978 Op St Compt File #321.

11. Gifts or devises in trust

A village may temporarily invest moneys held in trust and agency fund accounts provided that the moneys are eligible for investment. Disposition of the interest earned must be considered on an individual basis taking into account statutory, common law and other restrictions which govern the use of the particular moneys involved. 1979 Op St Compt File #754.

Moneys donated by private persons to a town public library may be invested by the library trustees in investments which they deem to be for the best interests of the library, and need not be invested in the securities specified in General Municipal Law, § 11. Previous opinions inconsistent herewith are superseded. 1980 Op St Compt File #450.

12. Highway funds

This section permits temporary investment of surplus funds in a town general and highway fund. 1962 NY Ops Atty Gen Feb 13.

13. Interest

Interest earned by a village's investment of moneys held as retained percentages under contracts belongs to the village rather than the contractor. 1978 Op St Compt File #989.

If a town receiver of taxes in Nassau County invests collected tax moneys (State, county, town, school district and special district taxes) in interest bearing accounts, the interest earned is to be paid by the receiver to the town supervisor upon the date of the return for unpaid taxes, such interest to be used for general town purposes. 1980 Op St Compt File #381.

14. Surplus moneys

This section permits temporary investment of surplus funds in a town general and highway fund. 1962 NY Ops Atty Gen Feb 13.

15. Taxes

A county may invest sales tax revenues, and interest earned therefrom belongs to the county. 1978 Op St Compt File #291.

The interest earned on sales tax proceeds temporarily invested by a county prior to distribution of the proceeds belongs to the county. 1979 Op St Compt File #472.

A receiver of taxes of a town in Suffolk County may be authorized by the governing board of the town, county, a fire district and the board education of a school district to temporarily invest tax collection on their behalf. 1981 Op St Compt File #81-16.

16. Miscellaneous

The Town of Moreau may temporarily invest security deposits which, pursuant to its sanitary landfill ordinance, are required to be posted by industrial waste haulers for faithful payment of fees, in the same manner prescribed by section 11 for the investment of town moneys. In the absence of a provision to the contrary in the ordinance, all interest earned from such investments should be credited to the haulers. 1981 Op St Compt File #81-27.

17. Types of investments, generally; day-of-deposit to day-of-withdrawal accounts

A municipality may temporarily invest funds in day-of-deposit to day-of-withdrawal accounts. Such an investment must be secured by a pledge of obligations by the bank or trust company, except to the extent that such investment is insured by the F.D.I.C. 1979 Op St Compt File #169.

A village may temporarily invest general fund moneys not required for immediate expenditure in day-of-deposit to day-of-withdrawal accounts in a commercial bank or trust company. 1979 Op St Compt File #306.

A municipal corporation or fire district may invest in "six-month money market certificates" subject to the restrictions in this statute. 1980 Op St Compt File #209.

Recent amendments to the Banking Law and other laws at an Extraordinary Session of the State Legislature (L 1980, ch 883) did not change the status of the law so as to authorize municipal funds to be invested in savings banks. 1981 Op St Compt No. 81-11, 1981

A town may not adopt a local law authorizing investments in savings banks, savings and loan associations and/or money market programs. 1981 Op St Compt No. 81-191, 1981 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 693.

18. Certificates of deposit and special time deposit accounts

A county is not authorized to invest in certificates of deposit of a savings and loan association. Repurchase agreements (REPO's) may not be entered into between a county and an investment firm. 1978 Op St Compt File #760.

The Franklin Square Water District may not deposit or invest its moneys in a savings bank or savings and loan association. However, it may invest its moneys in special time deposits in, or certificates of deposit issued by, banks or trust companies, and may deposit its moneys in banks or trust companies, as those terms are defined in the Banking Law. Such investments or deposits need not be limited to a single bank or trust company. 1979 Op St Compt File #687.

Municipalities may invest in so-called 7 to 31 day accounts offered by a bank or trust company. 1982 Op St Compt File #82-322.

Investments in certificates of deposit are required to be secured by a pledge of obligations of the federal government, agencies of the federal government, the state of New York or of any municipal corporation, school district or district corporation of the state of New York. Checking accounts opened by a community college may, at the board of trustees discretion, be secured by a surety bond or obligation of the federal government, the state of New York, or of any municipality or college of the state of New York. Obligations which are the subject of a repurchase agreement must be purchased through, delivered to and held in the custody of a bank or trust company located in this state, unless registered or inscribed in the name of the purchasing municipality. 1983 Op St Compt File #83-21.

A town and village may jointly invest in a certificate of deposit. Any opinions of this Department to the contrary are superseded. 1980 Op St Compt File #202.

19. Negotiable order of withdrawal accounts

A town receiver of taxes and assessments has no authority to invest his tax collections temporarily in a Negotiable Order of Withdrawal (N.O.W.) account, which is a "day of deposit to day of withdrawal" savings account. 1978 Op St Compt File #983.

A town may temporarily invest town moneys in a Negotiable Order of Withdrawal (N.O.W.) account since such account is a special time deposit and, thus, a form of temporary investment authorized by this statute. 1978 Op St Compt File #1049.

Discussion concerning the temporary investment of moneys by a central high school district in a negotiable order of withdrawal ("N.O.W.") account in a savings bank or commercial bank. 1979 Op St Compt File #158.

Moneys held by a village or town justice may not be invested in NOW accounts prior to the transmittal of such moneys to this Department. 1979 Op St Compt File #351.

Given the transactional nature of N.O.W. accounts, whenever a municipal officer or employee is authorized or required to deposit moneys received by him in his official capacity, said officer may utilize either a checking account or a N.O.W. account. A town clerk is required to deposit all moneys received by him not later than three business days after the total thereof exceeds fifty dollars and therefore is authorized to deposit moneys in a N.O.W. account designated by the town board as a depository of town funds. 1983 Op St Compt File #83-123.

20. Investment firm transactions

A county may not legally invest its moneys in a fund held by an investment firm. 1978 Op St Compt File #273.

A municipality may utilize the services of an investment consultant for the purpose of assisting in the investment of municipal moneys. The procedures and services offered by Shearson/American Express, Inc. are not in conflict with General Municipal Law, § 11. 1983 Op St Compt File #83-141.

21. Investment firm transactions; repurchase agreements

A county is not authorized to invest in certificates of deposit of a savings and loan association. Repurchase agreements (REPO's) may not be entered into between a county and an investment firm. 1978 Op St Compt File #760.

The bearer obligations which are the obligations in a repurchase agreement (REPO's) must be purchased through, delivered to and held in the custody of a bank or trust company. It is not a compliance of these requirements, where the municipality enters into a repurchase agreement with a brokerage firm and the securities are delivered to and held in the custody of a bank or trust company. 1981 Op St Compt File #81-139.

Except for the City of New York, repurchase agreements may not be entered into between a municipality and an investment firm. 1978 Op St Compt File #891.

22. Savings accounts

A town receiver of taxes and assessments has no authority to invest his tax collections temporarily in a Negotiable Order of Withdrawal (N.O.W.) account, which is a "day of deposit to day of withdrawal" savings account. 1978 Op St Compt File #983.

The Franklin Square Water District may not deposit or invest its moneys in a savings bank or savings and loan association. However, it may invest its moneys in special time deposits in, or certificates of deposit issued by, banks or trust companies, and may deposit its moneys in banks or trust companies, as those terms are defined in the Banking Law. Such investments or deposits need not be limited to a single bank or trust company. 1979 Op St Compt File #687.

A municipality and a commercial bank may enter into an agreement whereby the bank will maintain certain specified balances in the village's checking account and its savings account. 1981 Op St Compt File #81-130.

A town is not authorized to invest town funds in a savings bank account. 1982 Op St Compt File #82-9.

A fire district may not invest its funds in a savings account or certificate of deposit in a savings and loan association. 1980 Op St Compt File #29.

23. Miscellaneous

A village may not invest cash bail on deposit with the village justice court. 1978 Op St Compt File #761.

A village may not legally invest its moneys in the "InterCapital Liquid Asset Fund". 1978 Op St Compt File #1066.

Niagara County may not invest its moneys with the Niagara County Employees Federal Credit Union. 1980 Op St Compt File #372.

A county community college which has been authorized to temporarily invest moneys appropriated for the college may not invest such moneys in a money market fund, the assets of which consist of government securities, commercial paper and bank certificates of deposit. 1982 Op St Compt File #82-345.

Municipalities may invest in money market deposit accounts offered by a bank or trust company. 1982 Op St Compt File #82-362.

A town clerk and a town collector of taxes may be authorized to deposit moneys received by them in N.O.W. accounts in a bank or trust company located and authorized to do business in this state. 1983 Op St Compt File #83-29.

24. Procedure for making investment, generally; authorization necessary

A cash deposit given by a developer in lieu of a performance bond may be temporarily invested by a town, but the town may not charge an administrative fee against all or a portion of the interest earned to compensate the town for the town's site inspections. 1980 Op St Compt File #459.

The Town of Moreau may temporarily invest security deposits which, pursuant to its sanitary landfill ordinance, are required to be posted by industrial waste haulers for faithful payment of fees, in the same manner prescribed by section 11 for the investment of town moneys. In the absence of a provision to the contrary in the ordinance, all interest earned from such investments should be credited to the haulers. 1981 Op St Compt File #81-27.

25. Pledge of securities

Temporary deposits of funds for income by a municipal corporation require security by a local banking institution; the statutes mentioned are not in conflict. 1965 NY Ops Atty Gen Apr 8.

Government National Mortgage Association obligations may be used to secure Dutchess County investments but may not be used as security for its demand deposits. 1978 Op St Compt File #907.

Student loans guaranteed by the United States government acting through HEW may be accepted as collateral for municipal and school district investments while student loans guaranteed by New York State acting through the Higher Education Services Corporation may not be. 1982 Op St Compt File #82-112.

With respect to securities pledged as collateral for municipal deposits and investments, the fiscal officer of a municipality should determine: whether proper securities have been pledged; whether the securities have an adequate market value to cover the deposits or investments; whether the securities have been physically separated and designated under joint custody; and whether he has sufficient control over release and substitution of the pledged collateral. The same determinations should be made where a second bank, other than the depositary bank, has custody of pledged collateral. 1982 Op St Compt File #82-194.

Municipalities and school districts are authorized to accept surety bonds as security for deposits from their designated depositary banks but are not authorized to accept surety bonds as security for investments. 1982 Op St Compt File #82-222.

Where a county commissioner of finance is authorized to invest municipal and school district moneys pursuant to a joint investment agreement, the securities pledged as collateral may be designated to the credit of the county if the joint investment agreement contains a provision stating that in the event of a default the county will reimburse the participating municipalities and school districts according to the contribution each has made to the investment. 1982 Op St Compt File #82-337.

26. Control over securities

The bearer securities which are the obligations in a repurchase agreement (REPO) must be purchased through, delivered to and held in the custody of a bank or trust company. Opns St Comp, 1981, No. 81-139 and 34 Opns St Comp, 1978 p 144 are superseded to the extent inconsistent. 1982 Op St Compt File #82-15.

27. When pledge not necessary

A municipality may temporarily invest funds in day-of-deposit to day-of-withdrawal accounts. Such an investment must be secured by a pledge of obligations by the bank or trust company, except to the extent that such investment is insured by the F.D.I.C. 1979 Op St Compt File #169.

A municipality may not contribute funds to a volunteer fire company for use in parades or conventions nor may it contribute funds to a veterans organization for use in Memorial Day observances or other celebrations. 1981 Op St Compt File #81-132.

§ 22. Claims against fire insurance proceeds; procedure

1. As used in this section, any inconsistent provision of law notwithstanding, the following terms shall have the following meanings:

(a) "Enforcing officer" means the elected or appointed officer of any tax district charged by law with the duty to enforce the collection of tax liens on real property.

(b) "Governing body" means the legislative body for the tax district.

(c) "Lien" means an unpaid tax, special ad valorem levy, special assessment or other charge imposed upon real property by or on behalf of a municipal corporation or special district which is an encumbrance on real property, whether or not evidenced by a written instrument, and provided that one such tax, levy, assessment or other charge has remained undischarged for a period of one year or more.

(d) "Municipal corporation" means a county, city, town, village or school district.

(e) "Real property" means property upon which there is erected any residential, commercial or industrial building or structure except an owner-occupied single family residential structure and owner-occupied two family residential structures.

(f) "Tax district" means a county, city, town or village having the power to enforce the collection of taxes, special ad valorem levies, special assessments or other charges imposed upon real property by or on behalf of a municipal corporation or special district.

2. Every tax district is hereby authorized and empowered to claim against the proceeds of a policy of fire insurance insuring the interest of an owner and issued on real property located therein to the extent of any lien thereon which claim, when made and perfected in the manner provided in this section, shall further constitute a lien against such proceeds and which shall, as to such proceeds, be prior to all other liens and claims except the claim of a mortgagee of record named in such policy.

3. Upon the adoption of a resolution by the governing body providing therefor, the enforcing officer of the tax district shall cause a notice of intention to claim against proceeds to be served upon the state superintendent of financial services for entry in the index of tax districts maintained by him as provided in section three hundred thirty-one of the insurance law. Thereafter the enforcing officer shall render to any insurer the certificate required and in the manner prescribed by such section and the amounts stated in such certificate shall be a lien on the proceeds of the insurance policy until paid.

4. No resolution adopted as provided for in subdivision three hereof shall be effective unless prior thereto the local legislative body for the tax district shall have adopted a local law providing for the release or return to the insured of any amounts to which it would otherwise be entitled to claim provided that the insured agrees with the tax district in writing to restore the affected premises to the same or improved condition that it was in prior to the time that the lien of such district against proceeds provided for in this section arose, subject to such conditions as such resolution shall provide to guarantee performance of such obligation including, but not limited to, an agreement to deposit such proceeds in an escrow account or that the insured shall obtain a performance bond.

5. The provisions of this section shall not be deemed or construed to alter or impair the right of a tax district to acquire or enforce any lien against real property but shall be in addition to any other power provided by law to acquire or enforce such right.

§ 4. The provisions of this act shall take effect on the ninetieth day next succeeding the date on which the provisions hereof become law and shall apply to all fire insurance policies issued, reissued or renewed on or after such date and any such policy which fails to comply with the provisions of section one hundred sixty-eight-c of the insurance law, as added by this act, shall be construed as containing the statements required by such section to be contained therein.

Amendment Notes: 2011. Chapter 62, § 104 (Part A) amended:

Sub 3 at fig 1 by substituting "superintendent of financial services" for "superintendent of insurance".

The 2017 amendment by ch 342, § 1 substituted "an owner-occupied single family residential structure and owner-occupied two family residential structures" for "a one or two family residential structure" in 1(e).

Repeal Notes: [1978, ch 569] Former subdivision one of section twenty-two of the general municipal law, which was repealed by this act, constituted the definitional portion of section twenty-two. A new definition section is hereby added.

Notes to Decisions

New York City was entitled to proceeds of fire insurance policy which had been issued to court-appointed receiver of premises which were subject to tax foreclosure proceeding, under provision of Administrative Code of City of New York which gave city special lien against proceeds of policy which "insures the interest of an owner," since receiver has fiduciary responsibilities which embrace standing in stead of financially defaulting owner, and thus policy was one which insured interest of owner for purposes of satisfaction of prioritized municipal tax lien. Insurance Co. of North America v New York, 71 N.Y.2d 983, 529 N.Y.S.2d 70, 524 N.E.2d 424, 1988 N.Y. LEXIS 692 (N.Y. 1988).

City, as municipal lienholder, was not entitled to recover entirety of proceeds obtained from insurer through settlement of plaintiff's action to recover proceeds of fire insurance policy, since city's right to money did not supersede attorneys' charging lien inasmuch as efforts of plaintiff's attorneys were largely responsible for existence of settlement funds; if city were to prevail, attorneys would be deprived of incentive to accept cases in which fire insurance company refuses to pay on policy, which would contravene interests of municipality and public policy. LMWT Realty Corp. v Davis Agency, 205 A.D.2d 479, 614 N.Y.S.2d 16, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7012 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1994), aff'd, 85 N.Y.2d 462, 626 N.Y.S.2d 39, 649 N.E.2d 1183, 1995 N.Y. LEXIS 1011 (N.Y. 1995).

Stipulation of settlement, entered into in open court, allowing fire insurer to pay insurance proceeds into court, subject to city tax lien, was not subject to vacatur on ground that subject premises was 2-family residence exempt from tax lien under CLS Gen Mun § 22(1)(e) since any evidence that premises was 2-family residence should have been presented before stipulation was entered. Mercer v New York Prop. Underwriting Ass'n, 247 A.D.2d 450, 668 N.Y.S.2d 664, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1100 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1998).

In an action to determine the ownership of proceeds from a fire insurance policy, the mortgagee's equitable lien against the proceeds is not entitled to priority over a tax lien filed by the City of New York since the mortgage interest was recorded after the city's tax lien was perfected and the mortgagee of record was not named in the fire insurance policy, in breach of the mortgagor's covenant to insure the mortgaged premises against loss by fire for the benefit of the mortgagor, thereby establishing a mortgagee's equitable lien on the proceeds; although, ordinarily, the lien of a mortgagee of record named in the policy has priority over the city's tax lien (General Municipal Law, § 22, subd 2); the recorded lien will prevail over the subsequently recorded equitable lien since the public policy behind the requirement for prompt recording would be hindered if the equitable lien were to prevail. Kovacs v New York Property Ins. Underwriting Ass'n, 101 Misc. 2d 244, 420 N.Y.S.2d 837, 1979 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2660 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1979).

In an Unsafe Building Proceeding the City of New York was entitled to demolition costs and was authorized to impose a lien on proceeds from fire insurance where the building had been damaged by fire during the pendency of an agreement for repayment of delinquent taxes, the city had found the building unsafe and ordered its demolition, and the owner had taken no action to restore the property from the time of the fires to the time of filing the tax lien over one year later. The owner failed to meet his burden of establishing beyond a reasonable doubt the invalidity of Gen Mun Law § 22, given judicial deference to legislative enactments in the field of taxation, and given the legislative intent to take the profit out of arson by allowing the municipality to collect its taxes out of the fire insurance proceeds, unless the funds are used to restore the property. Shirpsen Realty Corp. v New York, 107 Misc. 2d 714, 435 N.Y.S.2d 896, 1981 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2088 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1981).

Special tax lien of NYC has priority on fire insurance proceeds over all other liens, except mortgagee of record named in fire insurance policy, including equitable lien of mortgagees, even though mortgage contained clause requiring mortgagor to obtain fire insurance for benefit of mortgagees, but where mortgagees are not named in fire insurance policy purchased by mortgagor. Lis v City Collector of New York, 131 Misc. 2d 407, 500 N.Y.S.2d 468, 1986 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2398 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1986).

Section 33-a of the Insurance Law and § 22(3) of the General Municipal Law require the Superintendent of Insurance to maintain both an index of tax districts that have filed an intention to claim against the proceeds of a policy of fire insurance, and an index of liens on insured property located within a taxing district. 1977 NY Ops Atty Gen Oct 6.

A municipality has no authority to establish a procedure whereby it can collect past due real property taxes by making claims against the proceeds of fire insurance policies on one and two-family dwellings. 1991 NY Ops Atty Gen I 91-66.

§ 30. Reports

1. Except as hereinafter provided, every municipal corporation and school, fire, improvement and special district shall annually make a report of its financial condition to the comptroller. Such report shall be made by the chief fiscal officer of each municipal corporation, by the chief fiscal officer of a municipal corporation having a school district governed by article fifty-two of the education law, for such school district, by the treasurer of each other school district, except for a common school district not having a treasurer, by the chairman of the school board or the sole trustee and by the treasurer of each fire, improvement or special district, or in the case of a consolidated health district, the president of the board of health. Such reports shall include the financial transactions of joint services defined by section one hundred nineteen-n of this chapter. If, pursuant to any general or special law, there is a separate treasurer for any municipal activity, the financial report of the activity shall be made by such treasurer.

2. An annual financial report for each municipal urban renewal agency shall be made by the treasurer of the agency.

3. An annual report of financial transactions shall be made by the treasurer of each public library and library service system established pursuant to section two hundred fifty-five of the education law, each county vocational education board established pursuant to section eleven hundred one of the education law and each board of cooperative educational services established pursuant to section nineteen hundred fifty-eight* of the education law.

4. If for any reason, the comptroller shall deem it necessary that additional information be furnished by any other officer, he may require such additional information from such other officer in such form as he may deem necessary to carry into effect the purposes of this article.

5. All reports shall be certified by the officer making the same. Except as otherwise provided in this subdivision with respect to the time for filing, all reports shall be filed with the comptroller within sixty days after the close of the fiscal year of such municipal corporation, district, agency or activity, provided, however, that upon written request from the chief fiscal officer of a municipal corporation, district, agency or activity, the comptroller may extend such sixty day period for filing such report for an additional sixty days. Reports may be filed by electronic transmission or in paper form. The method of certifying a report filed in electronic form shall be prescribed by the comptroller. It shall be the duty of the incumbent officer at the time such reports are required to be filed with the comptroller to file such report. The refusal or wilful neglect of such officer to file a report as herein prescribed shall be a misdemeanor and subject the financial officer so refusing or neglecting to a penalty of five dollars per day for each day's delay beyond the sixty days to be paid on demand of the comptroller. Notwithstanding any of the provisions contained in this section:

(a) Each town or village having a population, as shown by the latest preceding decennial federal census, between five thousand to nineteen thousand nine hundred ninety-nine, shall file their respective reports with the comptroller within ninety days after the close of the fiscal year of such town or village. Upon written request from the chief fiscal officer of such a town or village, the comptroller may extend such ninety day period for an additional thirty days.

(b) Each town or village having a population, as shown by the latest preceding decennial federal census, with twenty thousand or more, and all cities and counties, irrespective of their populations, shall file their respective reports with the comptroller within one hundred twenty days after the close of the fiscal year of such county, city, town or village.

6. Annually, each industrial development agency, the Troy industrial development authority established pursuant to title eleven of article eight of the public authorities law, and the Auburn industrial development authority established pursuant to title fifteen of article eight of the public authorities law, shall file a financial report pursuant to section eight hundred fifty-nine of this chapter.

7. To the extent practicable, each municipal corporation shall make accessible to the public via its official internet web site documentation pertaining to its most recent annual financial reports, current year budget, most recent independent audit report and most recent fiscal performance plan or multi-year financial plan required pursuant to paragraph g of subdivision ten of section fifty-four of the state finance law, unless such information is covered by subdivision two of section eighty-seven of the public officers law.

Court incorrectly dismissed counts of indictment charging first degree offering false instrument for filing on ground that subject vouchers did not constitute "written instruments" under CLS Penal § 170.00(1) since vouchers were prepared and submitted by defendants, town officials, to Associate Examiner of State Comptroller's Office, who was performing audit of town's financial condition, to justify certain purported "chargebacks" to town's general fund from separate capital fund, and vouchers could have been relied on by Associate Examiner and thus necessarily would have affected his findings and conclusions as to town's financial condition in his final report with State Comptroller. 1. In general

The Hyde Park Fire and Water District is not required to submit a separate annual report for its fire functions and a separate report for its water functions. 1979 Op St Compt File #420.

A former town supervisor must turn over the town's records to his successor. 1979 Op St Compt File #759.

The penalty for failure to file the annual financial report is ambiguous. It may be treated solely as a criminal matter with the court imposing a criminal fine or as both a criminal matter and as an administrative matter with an administrative fine imposed by the Comptroller. In either case, the Comptroller would need the assistance of either the local district attorney, who may refuse to prosecute, or the Attorney General. Because of the burden placed on this Department in trying to enforce this provision we recommend amendment of the statute. 1981 Op St Compt No. 80-787.

2. Who must file

The annual financial report of a fire district must be filed by the incumbent treasurer at the time the report is due. 1979 Op St Compt File #903.

The incoming supervisor, rather than the outgoing supervisor, must file the financial report required by section 30. 1980 Op St Compt File #22.

Where a supervisor intentionally or willfully fails to submit his monthly and annual financial reports to the town board or fails to keep his books of account in proper order, (1) any citizen resident of the town may present to the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court an application for removal of such officer from office, or (2) the town board may bring an Article 78 proceeding in the nature of mandamus seeking a court order requiring the supervisor to properly perform his official duties, or (3) the town board may create the position of town comptroller and designate him as the accounting officer of the town with responsibility for keeping detailed accounting records, filing the annual financial reports with the town clerk, and filing the monthly financial reports with the town board. 1982 Op St Compt File #82-252.

§ 33. Accounts of officers to be examined

1. Inspection and examination of certain accounts. The comptroller shall cause the accounts of all officers of each such municipal corporation, industrial development agency, district, agency and activity to be inspected and examined by one or more examiners of municipal affairs for such periods as the comptroller shall deem necessary. On every such examination inquiry shall be made as to the financial condition and resources of the municipal corporation, industrial development agency, district, agency or activity, and into the method and accuracy of its accounts

2. Audits of school districts, boards of cooperative educational services (BOCES) and charter schools.

a. Notwithstanding any other provisions of law to the contrary, the inspection and examination of school districts, charter schools and boards of cooperative educational services accounts shall be conducted pursuant to provisions of this subdivision. Within such funds as are made available for such purpose, the comptroller shall cause the accounts of every school district, BOCES and charter school in the state to be examined pursuant to a plan developed by the comptroller. Such audits shall be conducted in a manner so as to provide, that every school district, BOCES and charter school shall be audited at least once by March thirty-first, two thousand ten. The priority and frequency of such audits, and any audits conducted thereafter, shall be based upon a risk assessment process conducted by the comptroller which may include investigations of alleged improprieties, previous audit findings and recommendations, or other financial performance indicators. The comptroller shall provide affected school districts, BOCES and charter schools reasonable prior notice before the commencement of any audit.

b. In undertaking such audits the comptroller's review shall include, but not be limited to:

(1) examining, auditing and evaluating financial documents and records of school districts, BOCES and charter schools,

(2) assessing the current financial practices of school districts, BOCES and charter schools to ensure that they are consistent with established standards, including whether any school district that uses a risk-based or sampling methodology to determine which claims are to be audited in lieu of auditing all claims has adopted a methodology that provides reasonable assurance that all the claims represented in the sample are proper charges against the school district; and

(3) determining that school districts, BOCES, and charter schools provide for adequate protections against any fraud, theft, or professional misconduct.

c. All audits shall include any appropriate findings and recommendations of the auditors, regarding the fiscal practices that the auditors believe to be in violation of, any state or federal law, rule or regulation, or demonstrate negligence or incompetence.

d. The office of the state comptroller shall upon making a finding of misconduct refer any findings of fraud, abuse or other conduct constituting a crime that are uncovered during the course of an audit, as appropriate, to the commissioner of education, the charter entity, the attorney general, United States attorney or district attorney having jurisdiction for appropriate action, together with any documents supporting the auditors' findings.

e. The final audit report resulting from audits performed pursuant to this section shall be made available to the public by school districts, BOCES or charter schools upon request for a period of at least five years. Furthermore, the school district, BOCES, or charter school shall be required to post the final audit report on their internet website, if available, or otherwise make available, for a period of five years.

f. Upon the request of the comptroller, any state agency, board of cooperative educational services, school district or charter school, shall cooperate with and make its staff, facilities, and resources available to the comptroller for the purpose of assisting the comptroller in carrying out all actions taken pursuant to this section, and shall provide the comptroller upon request, with all data and records in its possession that relate to audits undertaken pursuant to this section.

g. The comptroller shall inform and advise the governor and the legislature in December of each year regarding a review of all school districts, BOCES, and charter schools audits conducted during the preceding twelve months and any other pertinent information the comptroller deems appropriate.

3. Examinations and report. In addition to the inspection and examination of certain accounts pursuant to this section, the comptroller by the end of the two thousand eleven—two thousand twelve school year, shall also examine for the most recent school year as practicable, the employee benefit accrued liability reserve funds of school districts established pursuant to section six-p of this chapter. Such examination shall be for the purpose of determining the amount of funding in the reserve fund, the amount of liabilities against such fund and if there exist funds in the reserve fund which are in excess of the total liabilities of such fund. The comptroller shall notify the school district if such excess funds exist and the dollar value of the excess funding. The comptroller shall also prepare a report on the school districts with excess funds in their employee benefit accrued liability reserve fund and the amount of the excess funding for each district. Such report shall be submitted by July first, two thousand twelve to the director of the budget, the chair of the senate finance committee, the chair of the assembly ways and means committee and the commissioner of education.

Notes to Decisions

State Comptroller has authority to conduct performance audits of New York City agencies. McCall v Barrios-Paoli, 93 N.Y.2d 99, 688 N.Y.S.2d 107, 710 N.E.2d 671, 1999 N.Y. LEXIS 225 (N.Y. 1999).

History of CLS Gen Mun §§ 33 and 34 unambiguously demonstrates that state legislature expected that State Comptroller might conduct audits into effective use of state funds by political subdivisions. McCall v Barrios-Paoli, 93 N.Y.2d 99, 688 N.Y.S.2d 107, 710 N.E.2d 671, 1999 N.Y. LEXIS 225 (N.Y. 1999).

New York City comptroller's explicit authority under city charter, to conduct audits into effective use of state funds by city, did not displace State Comptroller's authority under CLS Gen Mun §§ 33 and 34 to conduct performance audits of city. McCall v Barrios-Paoli, 93 N.Y.2d 99, 688 N.Y.S.2d 107, 710 N.E.2d 671, 1999 N.Y. LEXIS 225 (N.Y. 1999).

N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 33(2) and N.Y. Educ. Law § 2854(1)(c), which authorize the New York State Comptroller to audit charter schools, violate N.Y. Const. art. V, § 1, because charter schools are not political subdivisions of New York, nor is the task of auditing them an administrative duty that is incidental to the Comptroller's constitutionally prescribed functions. Matter of New York Charter Schools Assn., Inc. v DiNapoli, 13 N.Y.3d 120, 886 N.Y.S.2d 74, 914 N.E.2d 991, 2009 N.Y. LEXIS 2547 (N.Y. 2009).

Sections 33 and 34 of the General Municipal Law represent legislative exercise of the powers conferred by Art 5 § 1 of the State Constitution permitting assignment to the State Comptroller of supervision of accounts of any political subdivision. Levitt v Wanamaker, 12 A.D.2d 149, 209 N.Y.S.2d 75, 1961 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13463 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1961).

Auditing provisions of county charter, which empowered county comptroller to examine and audit accounts and records of any special district within county, did not authorize audit of financial affairs of fire district, which is political subdivision of state pursuant to CLS Town § 174(7) and therefore subject to exclusive jurisdiction of State Comptroller to conduct annual audits under CLS Gen Mun § 30 et seq. In re Inwood Fire Dist., 152 Misc. 2d 518, 577 N.Y.S.2d 575, 1991 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 668 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1991).

Town's N.Y. C.P.L.R. art. 78 proceeding seeking to enjoin a county and its comptroller from auditing the town's park district failed as: (1) assuming that the N.Y. Mun. Home Rule Law § 10(1)(ii)(a)(11)-(12) applied, the Nassau County Charter's delegation of authority to the county comptroller to audit towns and special districts remained valid; (2) neither N.Y. Const. art. V, § 1 nor N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law §§ 33 and 34 barred a local subdivision from exercising concurrent auditing powers with the state comptroller; (3) Nassau County, N.Y., Charter § 402(6) did not limit the county comptroller's authority to audit the county's subdivisions when directed to do so by the county legislature; and (4) the county legislature was not precluded from delegating, or local municipal corporations from exercising, concurrent auditing powers. Matter of Town of N. Hempstead v County of Nassau, 929 N.Y.S.2d 833, 32 Misc. 3d 809, 2011 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3147 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 2011), aff'd, in part, 103 A.D.3d 734, 962 N.Y.S.2d 164, 2013 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 880 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2013).

N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 33(2) and N.Y. Educ. Law § 2854(1)(c) violate N.Y. Const. art. V, § 1 to the extent that such provisions authorize or direct the State Comptroller to conduct audits of charter schools. Matter of New York Charter Schools Assn., Inc. v DiNapoli, 857 N.Y.S.2d 450, 20 Misc. 3d 235, 2008 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2406 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 2008), rev'd, 60 A.D.3d 119, 871 N.Y.S.2d 497, 2009 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 154 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2009).

Because charter schools were more analogous to public benefit corporations, as defined in N.Y. Const. art. X, § 5, pursuant to the application of the Not-for-Profit Corporation Law under N.Y. Educ. Law § 2853(1) and, thus, were not political subdivisions of the State, requiring the state comptroller to audit charter schools pursuant to N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 33(2) and N.Y. Educ. Law § 2854(1)(c) was in violation of N.Y. Const. art. V, § 1. Matter of New York Charter Schools Assn., Inc. v DiNapoli, 857 N.Y.S.2d 450, 20 Misc. 3d 235, 2008 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2406 (N.Y. Sup. In light of the legislature's broad delegatory authority regarding the New York State Comptroller, and the enormous public funding received by charter schools, which implicates the Comptroller's fundamental duty to supervise state fiscal matters, N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 33(2) and N.Y. Educ. Law § 2854(1)(c), which require the Comptroller to audit charter schools, do not violate N.Y. Const. art. V, § 1. § 34. Powers and duties of examiners.

1. The comptroller and each examiner of municipal affairs shall have power to examine into the financial affairs of every such municipal corporation, industrial development agency, district, agency, activity, any fire company as defined in section two hundred four-a of this chapter, and any other organization, except a statewide association of local governments or local government officials, that is controlled by one or more of any such municipal corporations, industrial development agencies, districts or agencies. An organization shall be deemed under the control of one or more municipal corporations, industrial development agencies, districts or agencies when one or more individuals who serve as officers or employees of any such municipal corporation, industrial development agency, district or agency: (a) select either a majority of the organization's highest policy-making body or the organization's chief executive officer; (b) constitute a majority of the voting strength that selects either a majority of the organization's highest policy-making body or the organization's chief executive officer; or (c) serve as: (i) a majority of the organization's highest policy-making body; (ii) in his or her official capacity, the organization's chief executive officer; or (iii) in his or her official capacity, a partner in the organization. An organization under the control of one or more municipal corporations, industrial development agencies, districts or agencies shall also include any other organization that is controlled by such organization.

2. In connection with any examination authorized by subdivision one of this section, the comptroller and each examiner of municipal affairs shall have power to administer an oath to any person whose testimony may be required, and to compel the appearance and attendance of such person for the purpose of any such examination and investigation, and the production of books and papers. In the case of a municipal corporation, industrial development agency, or school district, no such person shall be compelled to appear or be examined elsewhere than within such municipal corporation, industrial development agency, or school district. In the case of any district other than a school district, no such person may be compelled to appear or be examined elsewhere than within the town or one of the towns in which such district or portion thereof is located. In the case of an urban renewal agency, no such person shall be compelled to appear or be examined outside the municipal corporation wherein such agency is established. In the case of a fire company, no such person shall be compelled to appear or be examined outside the area served by the company. In the case of an activity, no such person shall be compelled to appear outside the area served by the activity. In the case of an organization under the control of one or more municipal corporations, industrial development agencies, districts or agencies, no such person shall be compelled to appear or to be examined outside the county in which the organization has its principal headquarters. Willful false swearing in such examination shall be perjury and shall be punishable as such.

3. For purposes of this section, the term "a majority of the organization's highest policy-making body" shall mean a majority of the whole number of positions comprising such body, provided, however, that if the documents establishing the organization's internal governance allow such body to act by a majority of a quorum, then such term shall mean a majority of the quorum.

Notes to Decisions

State Comptroller has authority to conduct performance audits of New York City agencies. McCall v Barrios-Paoli, 93 N.Y.2d 99, 688 N.Y.S.2d 107, 710 N.E.2d 671, 1999 N.Y. LEXIS 225 (N.Y. 1999).

History of CLS Gen Mun §§ 33 and 34 unambiguously demonstrates that state legislature expected that State Comptroller might conduct audits into effective use of state funds by political subdivisions. McCall v Barrios-Paoli, 93 N.Y.2d 99, 688 N.Y.S.2d 107, 710 N.E.2d 671, 1999 N.Y. LEXIS 225 (N.Y. 1999).

New York City comptroller's explicit authority under city charter, to conduct audits into effective use of state funds by city, did not displace State Comptroller's authority under CLS Gen Mun §§ 33 and 34 to conduct performance audits of city. McCall v Barrios-Paoli, 93 N.Y.2d 99, 688 N.Y.S.2d 107, 710 N.E.2d 671, 1999 N.Y. LEXIS 225 (N.Y. 1999).

Sections 33 and 34 of the General Municipal Law represent legislative exercise of the powers conferred by Art 5 § 1 of the State Constitution permitting the assignment to the State Comptroller of supervision of accounts of any political subdivision. Levitt v Wanamaker, 12 A.D.2d 149, 209 N.Y.S.2d 75, 1961 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13463 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1961).

In the light of this section, which is based on Art. V § 1 of the State Constitution, secrecy clauses in tax statutes and local laws relating to taxation must be considered as subject to exception where the State Comptroller seeks to examine tax returns in connection with auditing municipal accounts. Levitt v Wanamaker, 12 A.D.2d 149, 209 N.Y.S.2d 75, 1961 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13463 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1961).

Court incorrectly dismissed counts of indictment charging first degree offering false instrument for filing on ground that subject vouchers did not constitute "written instruments" under CLS Penal § 170.00(1) since vouchers were prepared and submitted by defendants, town officials, to Associate Examiner of State Comptroller's Office, who was performing audit of town's financial condition, to justify certain purported "chargebacks" to town's general fund from separate capital fund, and vouchers could have been relied on by Associate Examiner and thus necessarily would have affected his findings and conclusions as to town's financial condition in his final report with State Comptroller. People v Jacob, 248 A.D.2d 638, 670 N.Y.S.2d 530, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2912 (N.Y. LEXIS 2969 (N.Y. 1998).

State Attorney General exceeded his authority where, in conjunction with State Comptroller, and allegedly pursuant to CLS Exec § 63, he initiated investigation into affairs of County Public Administrator but did so without prior approval of Governor, and attorney general's name would be removed from action brought to enforce compliance with subpoenae; however, public administrator would be ordered to comply with subpoenae since comptroller did have authority to initiate investigation and issue subpoenae under CLS St Fin §§ 8-9 and CLS Gen Mun §§ 33-34. Abrams v Kearney, 133 Misc. 2d 845, 508 N.Y.S.2d 850, 1986 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2989 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1986).

Auditing provisions of county charter, which empowered county comptroller to examine and audit accounts and records of any special district within county, did not authorize audit of financial affairs of fire district, which is political subdivision of state pursuant to CLS Town § 174(7) and therefore subject to exclusive jurisdiction of State Comptroller to conduct annual audits under CLS Gen Mun § 30 et seq. In re Inwood Fire Dist., 152 Misc. 2d 518, 577 N.Y.S.2d 575, 1991 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 668 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1991).

Town's N.Y. C.P.L.R. art. 78 proceeding seeking to enjoin a county and its comptroller from auditing the town's park district failed as: (1) assuming that the N.Y. Mun. Home Rule Law § 10(1)(ii)(a)(11)-(12) applied, the Nassau County Charter's delegation of authority to the county comptroller to audit towns and special districts remained valid; (2) neither N.Y. Const. art. V, § 1 nor N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law §§ 33 and 34 barred a local subdivision from exercising concurrent auditing powers with the state comptroller; (3) Nassau County, N.Y., Charter § 402(6) did not limit the county comptroller's authority to audit the county's subdivisions when directed to do so by the county legislature; and (4) the county legislature was not precluded from delegating, or local municipal corporations from exercising, concurrent auditing powers. Matter of Town of N. Hempstead v County of Nassau, 929 N.Y.S.2d 833, 32 Misc. 3d 809, 2011 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3147 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 2011), aff'd, in part, 103 A.D.3d 734, 962 N.Y.S.2d 164, 2013 N.Y. § 34-a. Buffalo city comptroller

1. Notwithstanding any other provision of law to the contrary, the Buffalo city comptroller shall have the power to examine into the financial affairs of the Buffalo public school district and audit all school district accounts as the comptroller deems necessary. The school district shall make available all books, papers, records, other materials or information required by the comptroller to conduct the examinations and audits authorized by this section. The school district shall be provided sufficient time and opportunity to respond to the findings and recommendations contained in any audit document or any report as a result of an examination prior to the release of any such audit or report. Any final audit document or report shall contain any responses and/or comments submitted by the school district.

2. The comptroller shall annually prepare and submit an audit report on the financial status of the school district to the school board, the mayor, the city council, the state comptroller and the state education department and shall also be made available to the public upon request. Any final report on the financial status of the school district shall contain any responses and/or comments submitted by the school district. The school district shall be given sufficient time and opportunity to review the report and submit a response and/or comments prior to such report's release.

HISTORY:

Add, L 2000, ch 167, § 1, eff July 18, 2000.

§ 35. Filing of report of examination and notice thereof

1. A report of such examination shall be made and shall be filed in the office of the state comptroller and in the office of the clerk of the municipal corporation, industrial development agency, district, agency or activity, or with the secretary if there is no clerk. An additional copy thereof shall be filed with the chief fiscal officer, except that in the case of a school district, such additional copy shall be filed in the office of the chairman of the board of trustees, the president of the board of education or the sole trustee, as the case may be. When so filed, each such report and copy thereof shall be a public record open to inspection by any interested person.

2. (a) Within ten days after the filing of a report of examination performed by the office of the state comptroller, a report of an external audit performed by an independent public accountant or any management letter prepared in conjunction with such an external audit with the clerk of the municipal corporation, industrial development agency, district, agency or activity, or with the secretary if there is no clerk, he shall give public notice thereof in substantially the following form: "Notice is hereby given that the fiscal affairs of (name of municipal corporation, industrial development agency, district, agency or activity) for the period beginning on and ending on , have been examined by (the office of the state comptroller or an independent public accountant), and that the (report of examination performed by the office of the state comptroller or report of, or management letter prepared in conjunction with, the external audit by the independent public accountant) has been filed in my office where it is available as a public record for inspection by all interested persons. Pursuant to section thirty-five of the general municipal law, the governing board of (name of municipal corporation, district, agency or activity) may, in its discretion, prepare a written response to the (report of examination performed by the office of the state comptroller or the report of external audit or management letter by independent public accountant) and file any such response in my office as a public record for inspection by all interested persons not later than (last date on which response may be filed)."

(b) Except as otherwise provided for a common school district, the clerk, or secretary if there is no clerk, shall cause such notice to be published at least once in the official newspaper, or if there be no official newspaper, in a newspaper having general circulation in the municipal corporation, industrial development agency, district or area served by the agency or activity. If there be no newspaper having general circulation, the clerk, or the secretary if there is no clerk, shall post such notice conspicuously in ten public places in the municipal corporation, industrial development agency, district or area served. In a common school district which maintains a home school, the clerk shall post such notice on the front door of the school house. In a common school district which does not maintain a home school, the clerk shall post such notice conspicuously in at least five public places in the district.

(c) The clerk of every municipal corporation, industrial development agency, district, agency and activity, or the secretary if there is no clerk, shall file in his office proof of the publication or posting of notices pursuant to this section. The proof so filed shall be in such form as may be prescribed by the state comptroller.

(d) In each school district subject to the jurisdiction of a district superintendent, under the provisions of article forty-five of the education law, such district superintendent shall ascertain that the public notice required by this subdivision has been published or posted, as the case may be.

3. The clerk, or secretary if there is no clerk, shall present the report of the examination to the governing body of the municipal corporation, industrial development agency, district, agency or activity for its consideration at the first meeting thereof held after the filing of the report with the clerk or secretary.

4. (a) The governing board or other board, officer or employee of the municipal corporation, industrial development agency, district, agency or activity receiving a report of an external audit performed by an independent public accountant or a management letter prepared in conjunction with such an audit shall file in the office of the clerk of the municipal corporation, industrial development agency, district, agency or activity, or with the secretary if there is no clerk, and shall furnish to the comptroller, a copy of the report or letter within ten days after receipt. If the report or letter is not received by the governing board, a copy shall be provided to the governing board within three days after receipt by any other board, officer or employee receiving the same.

(b) (1) Not later than ninety days after presentation to the governing board of a report of examination performed by the office of the state comptroller, or receipt by the governing board of any report of an external audit performed by an independent public accountant or any management letter in conjunction with such an audit, the governing board may, in its discretion, provide to the comptroller, and file in the office of the clerk, or with the secretary if there is no clerk, of the municipal corporation, industrial development agency, district, agency or activity, a written response to the findings and recommendations, if any, in the report or letter. In the case of municipal corporations, industrial development agency, districts, agencies or activities subject to examination by the commissioner of education, any written response shall also be provided to such commissioner.

(2) A written response prepared pursuant to subparagraph one of this paragraph shall be in such form as may be prescribed by the comptroller and shall include, with respect to each finding or recommendation, a statement of the corrective actions taken or proposed to be taken, or if corrective action is not taken or proposed, an explanation of the reasons therefor. Any such written response shall also include a statement on the status of corrective actions taken on findings or recommendations contained in any previous report of examination, or report of an external audit, or any management letter prepared in conjunction therewith, by an independent public accountant for which a written response was required. All officers and employees of the municipal corporation, industrial development agency, district, agency or activity shall fully cooperate with the governing board in the preparation of the response by the governing board.

(c) The provisions of this subdivision shall not apply to any city having a population of one million or more.

In a defamation action the state examiner's published report of the examination of accounts of a village police justice was conditionally privileged, not absolutely privileged, and the privilege remains in the absence of a showing by the claimant of actual malice or carelessness so wanton or reckless as to imply malice on the part of the state or its examiners. Enstrom v New York, 258 A.D. 672, 17 N.Y.S.2d 964, 1940 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8269 (N.Y. App. Div.), reh'g denied, 259 A.D. 832, 19 N.Y.S.2d 1022, 1940 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6894 (N.Y. App. Div. 1940).

Section 50-a is merely a continuation of Highway Law § 282-g, and the cases construing the latter section are applicable with equal force to the former section. Schwartz v New York, 16 Misc. 2d 822, 25 N.Y.S.2d 964, 1941 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1358 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1941).

2. Purpose

The purpose of this section and § 50-b is to impose liability upon a city for negligent operation of vehicles by police and other municipal officers and thereby overcome the hardship visited upon those injured by such negligence and who would otherwise be without remedy. Poniatowski v New York, 14 N.Y.2d 76, 248 N.Y.S.2d 849, 198 N.E.2d 237, 1964 N.Y. LEXIS 1259 (N.Y. 1964).

The statutes evince an intent to limit the liability of a municipality to the operation of vehicles upon the public streets or highways of the municipality or fire district. Cox v Greenwich, 33 A.D.2d 264, 306 N.Y.S.2d 987, 1970 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5650 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1970).

3. Construction

Section 50-a (former Highway Law § 282-g) must be strictly construed regardless of its remedial characteristics. Berger v New York, 260 A.D. 402, 22 N.Y.S.2d 1006, 1940 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4607 (N.Y. App. Div.), reh'g denied, 260 A.D. 1018, 24 N.Y.S.2d 1009, 1940 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5881 (N.Y. App. Div. 1940), aff'd, 285 N.Y. 723, 34 N.E.2d 894, 285 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 723, 1941 N.Y. LEXIS 1713 (N.Y. 1941).

While the section is remedial in character, it is also in derogation of the common law and must be strictly construed. Bernardine v New York, 268 A.D. 444, 51 N.Y.S.2d 888, 1944 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3192 (N.Y. App. Div. 1944), aff'd, 294 N.Y. 361, 62 N.E.2d 604, 294 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 361, 1945 N.Y. LEXIS 761 (N.Y. 1945).

4. Relationship to other statutes

The history of § 50-a and words of limitation in § 50-b make it clear that the indemnity afforded by § 50-b applies only in favor of an employee while discharging a governmental function. Fiebinger v New York, 51 N.Y.S.2d 383, 182 Misc. 1007, 1944 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2522 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1944).

In determining the applicability of § 50-c, the provisions of §§ 50-a, 50-b and 50-c must be read together. Fiebinger v New York, 51 N.Y.S.2d 383, 182 Misc. 1007, 1944 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2522 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1944).

5. Scope of liability; municipally-owned vehicles

A horse is not a "vehicle" within the meaning of §§ 50-a, 50-b, 50-c in effect at the time of the accident. Douglass v New York, 266 A.D. 717, 41 N.Y.S.2d 935, 1943 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4035 (N.Y. App. Div. 1943).

6. —Fire department vehicles

Town was not liable under doctrine of respondeat superior as owner of ambulance involved in accident, even though CLS Gen Mun §§ 50-a, 50-b, and 205-b provide that town is liable for negligence of town "appointee" while operating municipally owned vehicle in discharge of his duties, since town had established fire district, thereby creating wholly independent political subdivision whose "members," including voluntary fireman who was driving ambulance, were employees of district and not town. Nelson v Garcia, 152 A.D.2d 22, 548 N.Y.S.2d 963, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 14856 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1989).

This section applies only to "municipally owned vehicles" and is inapplicable to damage caused by a fireman in operation of a privately owned vehicle. Sikora v Steinberg, 40 Misc. 2d 649, 243 N.Y.S.2d 766, 1963 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1586 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1963), aff'd, 20 A.D.2d 852, 249 N.Y.S.2d 401, 1964 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5056 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1964).

A town is not liable for injuries or damage caused by negligent operation of vehicles owned by a fire district. 1947 Ops St Compt 458.

7. —Police vehicles

New York city was not liable for damages for the death of plaintiff's intestate as a result of being struck by an automobile driven by a police officer who had commandeered the vehicle while pursuing fleeing suspects, notwithstanding the fact that the automobile in question came in violent contact with a push cart being lawfully operated on a public street by said intestate, and that it is conceded by defendant city that the police officer was guilty of negligence, and his negligence caused the injury and death of plaintiff's intestate. Berger v New York, 260 A.D. 402, 22 N.Y.S.2d 1006, 1940 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4607 (N.Y. App. Div.), reh'g denied, 260 A.D. 1018, 24 N.Y.S.2d 1009, 1940 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5881 (N.Y. App. Div. 1940), aff'd, 285 N.Y. 723, 34 N.E.2d 894, 285 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 723, 1941 N.Y. LEXIS 1713 (N.Y. 1941).

"Municipally owned" vehicle within the meaning of § 50-a (former Highway Law § 282-g) means owned by a municipality and not a vehicle commandeered by police officer in order to pursue fleeing suspects. Berger v New York, 260 A.D. 402, 22 N.Y.S.2d 1006, 1940 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4607 (N.Y. App. Div.), reh'g denied, 260 A.D. 1018, 24 N.Y.S.2d 1009, 1940 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5881 (N.Y. App. Div. 1940), aff'd, 285 N.Y. 723, 34 N.E.2d 894, 285 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 723, 1941 N.Y. LEXIS 1713 (N.Y. 1941).

8. Employee negligence, generally

Compliance by the plaintiffs with §§ 50-a, 50-b, 50-c, is not required where the action arises out of an accident which did not occur on the streets of the municipality. Babcock v McCaffrey, 300 N.Y.S. 493, 165 Misc. 103, 1937 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1948 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1937).

Section 50-a affords a remedy against sovereign immunity to persons injured through the negligence of an employee engaged in a governmental function. Fiebinger v New York, 51 N.Y.S.2d 383, 182 Misc. 1007, 1944 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2522 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1944).

9. —Firemen

There is no recovery, under this section, for the loss of personal property destroyed in a fire, on the theory that the state, through its municipal agent, negligently failed to furnish sufficient fire protection. Hughes v State, 252 A.D. 263, 299 N.Y.S. 387, 1937 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5626 (N.Y. App. Div. 1937).

Even though accident occurred prior to the adoption of General Municipal Law § 204-a extending benefit coverage so as to include accidents occurring during fund raising activities, municipality would be vicariously liable for death of fireman who fell from running board of the fire engine, where fire chief had authorized use of fire engine in fund raising activities and village trustees did not object. Swerdzewski v Westhampton Beach, 30 A.D.2d 694, 291 N.Y.S.2d 848, 1968 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3750 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1968), aff'd, in part, transferred, 24 N.Y.2d 760, 300 N.Y.S.2d 33, 247 N.E.2d 855, 1969 N.Y. LEXIS 1480 (N.Y. 1969).

There is no statute providing for an exemption from liability on the part of a village for injuries to persons or property which results from the negligent acts of a volunteer fireman when acting in the discharge of his duties. Cox v Greenwich, 33 A.D.2d 264, 306 N.Y.S.2d 987, 1970 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5650 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1970).

In the absence of any statutory exemption for liability of a municipality to a plaintiff injured by a volunteer fireman negligently operating a private vehicle in the performance of his duties, the broad liability of municipalities for the negligence of their employees should be applied. Cox v Greenwich, 33 A.D.2d 264, 306 N.Y.S.2d 987, 1970 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5650 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1970).

10. —Highway department employees

A negligence action against a town for injuries received by the plaintiff when the town's snow plow was in use upon a highway within the town when it collided with a car, was erroneously dismissed as to the town on the ground that the county road map designated the road on which the plow was at work as part of a county road system. Hemmingway v Dannemora, 269 A.D. 221, 55 N.Y.S.2d 828, 1945 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2956 (N.Y. App. Div. 1945).

Snow removal from private roads and driveways by town highway equipment is improper. A town is not liable for negligence springing from the ultra vires acts of its officers and employees, liability, if any, resting with such officers and employees themselves. 1968 Ops St Compt File #818.

11. —Law enforcement employees

There is no reason for not extending the relief thus afforded private persons to police officers riding in a car driven by a fellow officer, as the phrasing of this section and § 50-b is such as to indicate that a defense of non-liability by reason of injuries sustained due to negligence of a fellow-servant is not available to the city. Poniatowski v New York, 14 N.Y.2d 76, 248 N.Y.S.2d 849, 198 N.E.2d 237, 1964 N.Y. LEXIS 1259 (N.Y. 1964).

The City of Albany, not being compelled to carry workmen's compensation insurance on its police officers and not having brought them within coverage of the Workmen's Compensation Law, was liable in damages for death of a policeman killed while riding in a prowl car due to negligent driving by a fellow employee. Robinson v Albany, 14 A.D.2d 626, 218 N.Y.S.2d 421, 1961 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9401 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1961).

The negligence of a deputy sheriff in driving a county-owned vehicle is attributable to the county as owner of the vehicle. George v County of Erie, 66 Misc. 2d 871, 322 N.Y.S.2d 278, 1971 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1505 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1971).

In action by replacement worker who was injured by rock thrown by striking worker, question of fact was raised as to existence of requisite "special relationship" between municipality and plaintiff, precluding summary judgment on issue of municipality's alleged negligence in providing police services, since (1) plaintiff did not have direct contact with police, but was arguably part of limited group on whose behalf employer sought and obtained judicial order mandating police protection, (2) previous acts and threats of violence by striking workers created issue of fact as to whether police knew that inaction could lead to harm, (3) judge's order, requiring police to enforce preliminary injunction, created issue of fact as to whether police had assumed duty to protect replacement workers, and (4) fact that court had ordered police protection created issue of fact as to whether plaintiff and other replacement workers justifiably relied on such protection. Mauney v Imperial Delivery Servs., 865 F. Supp. 142, 1994 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 13831 (S.D.N.Y. 1994).

12. Employees' liability

Nothing in §§ 50-a et seq., suggests an attempt to provide indemnification to a municipal employee engaged in the operation of transit facilities where the injured person has a common-law remedy against the municipality and the employee. Fiebinger v New York, 51 N.Y.S.2d 383, 182 Misc. 1007, 1944 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2522 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1944).

13. —Conduct outside scope of employment

Snow removal from private roads and driveways by town highway equipment is improper. A town is not liable for negligence springing from the ultra vires acts of its officers and employees, liability, if any, resting with such officers and employees themselves. 1968 Ops St Compt File #818.

14. Insurance

A city had a liability policy on one of its police prowl cars. While cruising about the city, the prowl car had an accident and a passenger-police officer was killed. Held: the liability policy did not insure the city and the driver-police officer against liability in a wrongful death action against the city and the police officer who was driving. The deceased officer was a fellow servant or "another employee of the city" and as such was excluded by the policy. Albany v Standard Acci. Ins. Co., 7 N.Y.2d 422, 198 N.Y.S.2d 303, 165 N.E.2d 869, 1960 N.Y. LEXIS 1435 (N.Y. 1960).

Where there is no fire district in a town and no tax for fire protection purposes is levied, the town board may not expend town funds for the purchase of public liability insurance upon a truck owned by and licensed in the name of an unincorporated volunteer fire company furnishing fire protection services in the town. The town board may, however, expend town funds for the purchase of insurance indemnifying the town against any loss by reason of the liability imposed by Section 205 of the General Municipal Law. 1945 Ops St Compt 176.

15. —Other liability protection

A village discharged its duty to a volunteer fireman where it provided the coverage required by General Municipal Law § 205 and the applicable provisions of the Workmen's Compensation Law even though there would be no award of compensation since deceased had no surviving spouse, child or dependent parent. This section was not applicable. Poulakis v Freeport, 7 Misc. 2d 1005, 162 N.Y.S.2d 737, 1957 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3287 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1957).

16. Practice and procedure; notice of claim

An action by a plaintiff claiming injury as a result of negligence of defendant, the operator of a trolley car owned by New York city, is not one "instituted pursuant to the provisions of" § 50-b, and plaintiff was not obliged to serve notices required in § 50-c. Fiebinger v New York, 51 N.Y.S.2d 383, 182 Misc. 1007, 1944 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2522 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1944).

Ninety day notice of claim period contained in General Municipal Law § 50-e does not fall within provisions of CPLR § 204, subd a. Santaniello v De Francisco, 74 Misc. 2d 229, 344 N.Y.S.2d 589, 1973 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1877 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1973), aff'd, 44 A.D.2d 831, 355 N.Y.S.2d 569, 1974 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5109 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1974).

An action could be maintained against a city for injuries arising out of an accident involving an automobile operated by a police officer without notice served on the officer. Stern v Stoll, 29 N.Y.S.2d 311, 1941 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2054 (N.Y. App. Term 1941).

17. —Sufficiency of complaint

A complaint for damages for personal injuries which alleged that the car driven by the defendant was owned by the city and operated by the defendant with its permission was defective where it failed to allege compliance with the provisions of §§ 50-a through 50-e of the General Municipal Law. Griffo v Tauriello, 23 Misc. 2d 430, 198 N.Y.S.2d 160, 1960 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3310 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1960).

The individual volunteer member of a civil defense force and the municipality are immune from liability for the tort or negligent act of such member committed during a declared emergency or any drill authorized by the local civil defense director. A drill is an authorized test, training or practice exercise, which may include directing traffic and patrolling neighborhoods. 1980 NY Ops Atty Gen March 21 (informal).

§ 50-b. Municipal liability for negligent operation of vehicles or other facility of transportation

1. Every county, city, town, village and other subdivision of government, notwithstanding any inconsistent provisions of law, general, special or local or any limitation contained in the provision of any city charter, shall be liable and shall assume the liability for the negligence of, and shall save harmless, a person duly appointed by the governing board or body of the municipality, or by any board, body, commission or other officer thereof, in the operation of a municipally owned vehicle or other facility of transportation within the state in the discharge of a statutory duty imposed upon such person or municipality, provided the appointee at the time of the accident or injury was acting in the discharge of his duties and within the scope of his employment. Every such appointee shall, for the purpose of this section, be deemed an employee of the municipality, notwithstanding the vehicle or other facility of transportation was being operated in the discharge of a public duty for the benefit of all citizens of the community and the municipality derived no special benefit in its corporate capacity.

2. The provisions of this section shall not apply to the city of New York.

1. In general

Under this section a direct liability for the negligence of its employees is imposed upon the municipality, and also direct responsibility to indemnify employee for any loss, provided that at the time of the accident he was operating a town-owned vehicle in the discharge of a statutory duty, etc., and, regardless of whether the municipality is joined as a party to any such action, its liability arises automatically under this statute, and § 50-c was intended to protect the municipality upon its automatic liability. Thayer v Westervelt, 105 N.Y.S.2d 745, 1951 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1964 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1951).

2. Purpose

The statutes evince an intent to limit the liability of a municipality to the operation of vehicles upon the public streets or highways of the municipality or fire district. Cox v Greenwich, 33 A.D.2d 264, 306 N.Y.S.2d 987, 1970 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5650 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1970).

This section was not intended to deprive the litigant of his common-law action for negligence against the operator of a vehicle. Circle Cab Corp. v Rizzuto, 295 N.Y.S. 185, 162 Misc. 547, 1937 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1644 (N.Y. Mun. Ct. 1937).

3. Relationship to other statutes

Plaintiff was not barred by Work Comp Law § 11 from asserting a cause of action against a county, even though his employer, which operated a county public transit system, was an appointee of the county within the meaning of Gen Mun Law § 50-b(1), where there was no indication that plaintiff was controlled or paid by the county, that the county furnished the equipment with which he worked, or that the county had the right to discharge him, and where, in fact, the only relationship between plaintiff and the county was that plaintiff was an employee of a company statutorily defined as an employee of the county. Carrion v County of Westchester, 99 A.D.2d 793, 472 N.Y.S.2d 123, 1984 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 17184 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't), app. dismissed, 62 N.Y.2d 802, 1984 N.Y. LEXIS 8281 (N.Y. 1984), app. dismissed, 63 N.Y.2d 943, 1984 N.Y. LEXIS 6200 (N.Y. 1984).

Defendant transit corporation was not entitled to change of venue from Bronx County to Westchester County under CLS CPLR § 504(1) because Westchester County was not party to action and, even if CLS Gen Mun § 50-b(1) was operative in context of § 504, defendant was not Westchester County employee under § 50-b(1) where there was no evidence of employer-employee relationship. Beaufort v Liberty Lines Transit, Inc., 270 A.D.2d 297, 704 N.Y.S.2d 284, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2729 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2000).

In determining the applicability of § 50-c, the provisions of §§ 50-a, 50-b and 50-c must be read together. Fiebinger v New York, 51 N.Y.S.2d 383, 182 Misc. 1007, 1944 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2522 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1944).

4. Scope of liability, generally

The history of § 50-a and words of limitation in § 50-b make it clear that the indemnity afforded by § 50-b applies only in favor of employee while discharging a governmental function. Fiebinger v New York, 51 N.Y.S.2d 383, 182 Misc. 1007, 1944 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2522 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1944).

5. Subdivisions of government

A central school district is a subdivision of Government within the meaning of this section. Hence, a negligence action against the driver of a bus owned by the school district cannot be maintained unless notice of claim was served pursuant to § 50-e. Van Tassell v Hill, 285 A.D. 584, 139 N.Y.S.2d 663, 1955 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5542 (N.Y. App. Div. 1955).

6. Municipally-owned vehicles

A horse is not a "vehicle" within the meaning of §§ 50-a, 50-b, 50-c in effect at the time of the accident. Douglass v New York, 266 A.D. 717, 41 N.Y.S.2d 935, 1943 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4035 (N.Y. App. Div. 1943).

This section applies only to "municipally owned vehicles" and is inapplicable to damage caused by a fireman in operation of a privately owned vehicle. Sikora v Steinberg, 40 Misc. 2d 649, 243 N.Y.S.2d 766, 1963 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1586 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1963), aff'd, 20 A.D.2d 852, 249 N.Y.S.2d 401, 1964 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5056 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1964).

7. Facility of transportation; horses

A horse is a "facility of transportation" within the section. Bernardine v New York, 294 N.Y. 361, 62 N.E.2d 604, 294 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 361, 1945 N.Y. LEXIS 761 (N.Y. 1945).

In an action against a city for damages for personal injuries to plaintiff caused by a runaway police horse owned by the city and stopped by plaintiff on public highway, it was error for the court to dismiss the complaint solely on the ground that as a matter of law, the 1941 amendment to § 50-b did not extend statutory waiver of governmental immunity to negligence in "operation" of a city-owned police horse. Horse used to facilitate transporation of mounted policeman in course of his duties, is "a facility of transportation" within the meaning of § 50-b. Bernardine v New York, 268 A.D. 444, 51 N.Y.S.2d 888, 1944 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3192 (N.Y. App. Div. 1944), aff'd, 294 N.Y. 361, 62 N.E.2d 604, 294 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 361, 1945 N.Y. LEXIS 761 (N.Y. 1945).

A person injured by a mounted policeman's horse owned by the city, must recover under § 50-b, if at all, and to recover thereunder there must be a compliance with the terms of § 50-c. Bernardine v New York, 268 A.D. 444, 51 N.Y.S.2d 888, 1944 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3192 (N.Y. App. Div. 1944), aff'd, 294 N.Y. 361, 62 N.E.2d 604, 294 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 361, 1945 N.Y. LEXIS 761 (N.Y. 1945).

Injuries allegedly sustained by worker while engaged in replacing ceiling tiles in building used for maintenance, storage and fueling of county bus fleet did not arise out of "the operation of a municipally owned vehicle or other facility of transportation" within meaning of CLS Gen Mun § 50-b(1). Bailey v AGR Realty Co., 260 A.D.2d 322, 689 N.Y.S.2d 65, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4359 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1999).

Under principle of ejusdem generis, general phrase "facility of transportation" in CLS Gen Mun § 50-b(1) is limited, by specific term "vehicle" preceding it, to actual instruments of transportation. Bailey v AGR Realty Co., 260 A.D.2d 322, 689 N.Y.S.2d 65, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4359 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1999).

8. Appointees

When an action is brought under this section the word "appointee" is applicable only to "a person duly appointed," and when an action is brought under § 50-c "appointee" is applicable only to "any duly appointed policeman or fireman of the municipality." Circle Cab Corp. v Rizzuto, 295 N.Y.S. 185, 162 Misc. 547, 1937 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1644 (N.Y. Mun. Ct. 1937).

9. Firemen

Even though accident occurred prior to the adoption of General Municipal Law § 204-a extending benefit coverage so as to include accidents occurring during fund raising activities, municipality would be vicariously liable for the death of fireman who fell from running board of fire engine, where fire chief had authorized use of fire engine in fund raising activities and village trustees did not object. Swerdzewski v Westhampton Beach, 30 A.D.2d 694, 291 N.Y.S.2d 848, 1968 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3750 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1968), aff'd, in part, transferred, 24 N.Y.2d 760, 300 N.Y.S.2d 33, 247 N.E.2d 855, 1969 N.Y. LEXIS 1480 (N.Y. 1969).

Town was not liable under doctrine of respondeat superior as owner of ambulance involved in accident, even though CLS Gen Mun §§ 50-a, 50-b, and 205-b provide that town is liable for negligence of town "appointee" while operating municipally owned vehicle in discharge of his duties, since town had established fire district, thereby creating wholly independent political subdivision whose "members," including voluntary fireman who was driving ambulance, were employees of district and not town. Nelson v Garcia, 152 A.D.2d 22, 548 N.Y.S.2d 963, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 14856 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1989).

This section applies only to "municipally owned vehicles" and is inapplicable to damage caused by a fireman in operation of a privately owned vehicle. Sikora v Steinberg, 40 Misc. 2d 649, 243 N.Y.S.2d 766, 1963 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1586 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1963), aff'd, 20 A.D.2d 852, 249 N.Y.S.2d 401, 1964 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5056 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1964).

Where there is no fire district in a town and no tax for fire protection purposes is levied, the town board may not expend town funds for the purchase of public liability insurance upon a truck owned by and licensed in the name of an unincorporated volunteer fire company furnishing fire protection services in the town. The town board may, however, expend town funds for the purchase of insurance indemnifying the town against any loss by reason of the liability imposed by Section 205 of the General Municipal Law. 1945 Ops St Compt 176.

A town is not liable for injuries or damage caused by negligent operation of vehicles owned by a fire district. 1947 Ops St Compt 458.

10. Highway employees

Snow removal from private roads and driveways by town highway equipment is improper. A town is not liable for negligence springing from the ultra vires acts of its officers and employees, liability, if any, resting with such officers and employees themselves. 1968 Ops St Compt File #818.

11. Medical employees

This section, and §§ 50-c and 50-e were inapplicable where it did not appear from the face of a complaint that defendant was operating a municipally-owned vehicle "in discharge of a statutory duty" or had been "appointed", although she claimed to have been acting as duly appointed health nurse and was acting in discharge of her duties in operating a county-owned vehicle which allegedly caused the injuries to plaintiff, no claim having been served upon the county in connection with the accident and defendant's answers consisting exclusively of general denials. Furlo v Cheek, 20 A.D.2d 939, 248 N.Y.S.2d 947, 1964 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3920 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1964).

12. Transportation employees

Sections 50-b and 50-c did not apply, where it did not appear from the complaint, that the bus driver was driving a "municipally owned" vehicle, that he was duly appointed by the board to drive the vehicle, or that the vehicle was being driven "in the discharge of a statutory duty." Millard v Lewis, 17 Misc. 2d 698, 185 N.Y.S.2d 708, 1959 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 4054 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1959).

13. Other employees

Under §§ 50-a and 50-b towns become liable for negligence of a driver of a truck in operation thereof on highways in discharge of a duty imposed on the town, even though the duty is a public duty for the benefit of the community and of no special benefit to the town. Van Buren v Richmondville, 253 A.D. 484, 3 N.Y.S.2d 128, 1938 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8477 (N.Y. App. Div.), rev'd, 278 N.Y. 619, 16 N.E.2d 126, 278 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 619, 1938 N.Y. LEXIS 1439 (N.Y. 1938).

14. Nonemployees; relatives of employees

Wife of county employee was engaged in county business while driving husband's county car, and was thus insured, where at time of accident wife was on route to beach to locate husband who had been summoned to work pursuant to 24-hour "on call" nature of employment. Glens Falls Ins. Co. v United States Fire Ins. Co., 41 A.D.2d 869, 342 N.Y.S.2d 624, 1973 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4692 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1973), aff'd, 34 N.Y.2d 778, 358 N.Y.S.2d 773, 315 N.E.2d 813, 1974 N.Y. LEXIS 1562 (N.Y. 1974).

15. Towing company

Where the initial removal of the plaintiff's vehicle from the street was a proper one under the circumstances, the city could not be held responsible for the subsequent irresponsible behavior of the towing company in destroying the vehicle in violation of its contract with the city and thereby failing to afford plaintiff the opportunity of recovering his property. Turkel v Fiore, 62 Misc. 2d 210, 308 N.Y.S.2d 432, 1970 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1868 (N.Y. Civ. Ct. 1970).

16. Common law actions

Nothing in §§ 50-a et seq., suggests an attempt to provide indemnification to the municipal employee engaged in the operation of transit facilities where an injured person has the common-law remedy against the municipality and the employee. Fiebinger v New York, 51 N.Y.S.2d 383, 182 Misc. 1007, 1944 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2522 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1944).

17. Practice and procedure; when notice of claim required

A central school district is a subdivision of Government within the meaning of this section. Hence, a negligence action against the driver of a bus owned by the school district cannot be maintained unless notice of claim was served pursuant to § 50-e. Van Tassell v Hill, 285 A.D. 584, 139 N.Y.S.2d 663, 1955 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5542 (N.Y. App. Div. 1955).

There is no necessity for service of a notice of claim upon a municipality as a condition precedent for an action against a city police officer for false arrest or malicious prosecution where the municipality is not made a party. O'Hara v Sears Roebuck & Co., 286 A.D. 104, 142 N.Y.S.2d 465, 1955 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3985 (N.Y. App. Div. 1955).

Neither this section, nor §§ 50-c and 50-e, are applicable to a fire district, liability of such districts for negligent operation of vehicles owned by the district being as prescribed in § 205-b, which contains no requirement of preliminary service of notice of claim. Seyer v Schoen, 6 A.D.2d 177, 175 N.Y.S.2d 1003, 1958 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5122 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1958).

This section, and §§ 50-c and 50-e were inapplicable where it did not appear from the face of a complaint that defendant was operating a municipally-owned vehicle "in discharge of a statutory duty" or had been "appointed", although she claimed to have been acting as duly appointed health nurse and was acting in discharge of her duties in operating a county-owned vehicle which allegedly caused the injuries to plaintiff, no claim having been served upon the county in connection with the accident and defendant's answers consisting exclusively of general denials. Furlo v Cheek, 20 A.D.2d 939, 248 N.Y.S.2d 947, 1964 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3920 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1964).

Although this section imposes upon a city ultimate liability for damage inflicted by a city employee in performance of duties and within the scope of his employment, due and timely service of notice of claim upon the city under § 50-e is a condition precedent to commencement of an action to enforce such liability. Rusch v Karpick, 20 A.D.2d 954, 248 N.Y.S.2d 451, 1964 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4110 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1964).

In a claim for damages arising from a collision with a school bus, timely service of a notice of claim in accordance with General Municipal Law § 50-e was required upon the driver of the school bus as a condition precedent to the maintenance of an action against him. Pugh v Board of Education, 38 A.D.2d 619, 326 N.Y.S.2d 300, 1971 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2894 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1971), aff'd, 30 N.Y.2d 968, 335 N.Y.S.2d 830, 287 N.E.2d 621, 1972 N.Y. LEXIS 1215 (N.Y. 1972).

Where county had no obligation under CLS Gen Mun § 50-b to indemnify defendants against liability to plaintiff injured while working in county building, plaintiff was not required to file notice of claim as condition precedent to maintaining action under CLS Gen Mun § 50-e. Bailey v AGR Realty Co., 260 A.D.2d 322, 689 N.Y.S.2d 65, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4359 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1999).

Action by a plaintiff claiming injury as a result of negligence of the defendant, an operator of a trolley car owned by New York city, is not one "instituted pursuant to the provisions of" § 50-b, and plaintiff was not obliged to serve notices required in § 50-c. Fiebinger v New York, 51 N.Y.S.2d 383, 182 Misc. 1007, 1944 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2522 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1944).

Sections 50-b and 50-e of the General Municipal Law do not require notice of claim to a county employee before suing him individually for injuries sustained by reason of his negligence in handling county equipment. De Angelo v Lattimer, 26 Misc. 2d 20, 208 N.Y.S.2d 75, 1960 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2193 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1960).

Notice of claim with respect to action against town employee must be served on town when employee is sued alone provided there is a duty on part of the municipality to indemnify employees. Fitzgerald v Sanitation Dist. No. 6, 89 Misc. 2d 1078, 393 N.Y.S.2d 542, 1977 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2730 (N.Y. City Ct.), modified, 116 Misc. 2d 325, 457 N.Y.S.2d 664, 1977 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2714 (N.Y. App. Term 1977).

Since town sanitation district would be under duty to indemnify district employee, claimed to have been negligent in operation of motor vehicle, were employee sued alone, claimants in that case would have to serve a notice of claim upon town and submit to oral examination pursuant to statute. Fitzgerald v Sanitation Dist. No. 6, 89 Misc. 2d 1078, 393 N.Y.S.2d 542, 1977 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2730 (N.Y. City Ct.), modified, 116 Misc. 2d 325, 457 N.Y.S.2d 664, 1977 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2714 (N.Y. App. Term 1977).

In an action in negligence arising out of the operation of a motor truck by the defendant where the complaint alleges that the defendant at the time was in possession and control of a certain truck owned by the town, and that such possession was with the town's consent, but there is no allegation that the defendant at the time of the accident was an employee of the town or that he was engaged in the performance of any duties on behalf of such town, a valid common law action in negligence is alleged against the defendant, and service of notice is unnecessary to sustain its sufficiency as a pleading. Thayer v Westervelt, 105 N.Y.S.2d 745, 1951 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1964 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1951).

18. Late notice of claim

While county, which allegedly owned the bus in which plaintiff was a passenger at time of accident, was not named a party defendant in action brought against transportation company which leased and operated the bus, there was no need for plaintiff to serve a late notice of claim against the county as a condition precedent to commencing her action against the transportation company only, irrespective of whatever agreement might exist between county and transportation company concerning indemnity for negligence. Rhodes v Westchester Street Transp. Co., 80 Misc. 2d 1021, 365 N.Y.S.2d 351, 1974 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1937 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1974).

Assuming, arguendo, that service of a notice of claim against county, which allegedly owned bus, was a necessary condition precedent to the commencement of an action by injured bus passenger against lessee and operator of the bus, plaintiff's affidavits were factually insufficient to warrant permitting service of a late notice of claim. Rhodes v Westchester Street Transp. Co., 80 Misc. 2d 1021, 365 N.Y.S.2d 351, 1974 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1937 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1974).

19. Statute of limitations

The 1-year Statute of Limitations provided by the New York City Administrative Code was applicable to an action against the city for injuries sustained as a result of an explosion on the subway. McGuire v New York, 3 Misc. 2d 569, 153 N.Y.S.2d 368, 1956 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1895 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1956).

In an action in negligence arising out of the operation of a motor truck by the defendant where the complaint alleges that the defendant at the time was in possession and control of a certain truck owned by the town, and that such possession was with the town's consent, but there is no allegation that the defendant at the time of the accident was an employee of the town or that he was engaged in the performance of any duties on behalf of such town, a valid common law action in negligence is alleged against the defendant, and service of notice is unnecessary to sustain its sufficiency as a pleading. Thayer v Westervelt, 105 N.Y.S.2d 745, 1951 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1964 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1951).

Agency Opinions

1. Other employees

Except for provisions of General Municipal Law § 50-b, neither a town nor a village may provide funds to save harmless employees of a joint recreation commission in connection with claims for negligence. 1966 NY Ops Atty Gen Oct 14.

§ 50-e. Notice of claim

1. When service required; time for service; upon whom service required.

(a) In any case founded upon tort where a notice of claim is required by law as a condition precedent to the commencement of an action or special proceeding against a public corporation, as defined in the general construction law, or any officer, appointee or employee thereof, the notice of claim shall comply with and be served in accordance with the provisions of this section within ninety days after the claim arises; except that in wrongful death actions, the ninety days shall run from the appointment of a representative of the decedent's estate.

(b) Service of the notice of claim upon an officer, appointee or employee of a public corporation shall not be a condition precedent to the commencement of an action or special proceeding against such person. If an action or special proceeding is commenced against such person, but not against the public corporation, service of the notice of claim upon the public corporation shall be required only if the corporation has a statutory obligation to indemnify such person under this chapter or any other provision of law.

2. Form of notice; contents. The notice shall be in writing, sworn to by or on behalf of the claimant, and shall set forth: (1) the name and post-office address of each claimant, and of his attorney, if any; (2) the nature of the claim; (3) the time when, the place where and the manner in which the claim arose; and (4) the items of damage or injuries claimed to have been sustained so far as then practicable but a notice with respect to a claim against a municipal corporation other than a city with a population of one million or more persons shall not state the amount of damages to which the claimant deems himself entitled, provided, however, that the municipal corporation, other than a city with a population of one million or more persons, may at any time request a supplemental claim setting forth the total damages to which the claimant deems himself entitled. A supplemental claim shall be provided by the claimant within fifteen days of the request. In the event the supplemental demand is not served within fifteen days, the court, on motion, may order that it be provided by the claimant.

3. How served; when service by mail complete; defect in manner of service; return of notice improperly served.

(a) The notice shall be served on the public corporation against which the claim is made by delivering a copy thereof personally, or by registered or certified mail, to the person designated by law as one to whom a summons in an action in the supreme court issued against such corporation may be delivered, or to an attorney regularly engaged in representing such public corporation or, in a city with a population of over one million, by electronic means in a form and manner prescribed by such city.

(b) Service by registered or certified mail shall be complete upon deposit of the notice of claim, enclosed in a postpaid properly addressed wrapper, in a post office or official depository under the exclusive care and custody of the United States post office department within the state.

(c) If the notice is served within the period specified by this section, but in a manner not in compliance with the provisions of this subdivision, the service shall be valid if the public corporation against which the claim is made demands that the claimant or any other person interested in the claim be examined in regard to it, or if the notice is actually received by a proper person within the time specified by this section, and the public corporation fail to return the notice, specifying the defect in the manner of service, within thirty days after the notice is received.

(d) If the notice is served within the period specified by this section and is returned for the reason and within the time provided in this subdivision, the claimant may serve a new notice in a manner complying with the provisions of this subdivision within ten days after the returned notice is received. If a new notice is so served within that period, it shall be deemed timely served.

(e) If the notice is served by electronic means, as defined in paragraph two of subdivision (f) of rule twenty-one hundred three of the civil practice law and rules, it shall contain the information required under the provisions of subdivision two of this section. In addition, such notice shall contain the following declaration: "I certify that all information contained in this notice is true and correct to the best of my knowledge and belief. I understand that the willful making of any false statement of material fact herein will subject me to criminal penalties and civil liabilities." Service of the notice shall be complete upon successful transmission of the notice as indicated by an electronic receipt provided by such city, which shall transmit an electronic receipt number to the claimant forthwith.

(f) Service of a notice of claim on the secretary of state as agent of any public corporation, as defined in subdivision one of section sixty-six of the general construction law, whatsoever created or existing by virtue of the laws of the state of New York upon whom service of a notice of claim is required as a condition precedent to being sued, may be made by personally delivering to and leaving with the secretary of state or a deputy, or with any person authorized by the secretary of state to receive such service, at the office of the department of state in the city of Albany, duplicate copies of such notice of claim together with the statutory fee, which fee shall be a taxable disbursement but only in the amount equal to the portion of the fee collected by the public corporation in accordance with subdivision four of this section. Service on such public corporation shall be complete when the secretary of state is so served. Within ten days after receiving a notice of claim, the secretary of state shall either: (1) send one of such copies by certified mail, return receipt requested, to such public corporation, at the post office address on file in the department of state, specified for the purpose; or (2) electronically transmit a copy to such public corporation at the electronic address on file with the department of state specified for that purpose; or (3) transmit a copy to such public corporation by any other such means or procedure established by the secretary of state, provided that such other means or procedure of transmittal must be verifiable.

4. Requirements of section exclusive except as to conditions precedent to liability for certain defects or snow or ice. No other or further notice, no other or further service, filing or delivery of the notice of claim, and no notice of intention to commence an action or special proceeding, shall be required as a condition to the commencement of an action or special proceeding for the enforcement of the claim; provided, however, that nothing herein contained shall be deemed to dispense with the requirement of notice of the defective, unsafe, dangerous or obstructed condition of any street, highway, bridge, culvert, sidewalk or crosswalk, or of the existence of snow or ice thereon, where such notice now is, or hereafter may be, required by law, as a condition precedent to liability for damages or injuries to person or property alleged to have been caused by such condition, and the failure or negligence to repair or remove the same after the receipt of such notice.

5. Application for leave to serve a late notice.

Upon application, the court, in its discretion, may extend the time to serve a notice of claim specified in paragraph (a) of subdivision one of this section, whether such service was made upon a public corporation or the secretary of state. The extension shall not exceed the time limited for the commencement of an action by the claimant against the public corporation. In determining whether to grant the extension, the court shall consider, in particular, whether the public corporation or its attorney or its insurance carrier acquired actual knowledge of the essential facts constituting the claim within the time specified in subdivision one of this section or within a reasonable time thereafter. The court shall also consider all other relevant facts and circumstances, including: whether the claimant was an infant, or mentally or physically incapacitated, or died before the time limited for service of the notice of claim; whether the claimant failed to serve a timely notice of claim by reason of his justifiable reliance upon settlement representations made by an authorized representative of the public corporation or its insurance carrier; whether the claimant in serving a notice of claim made an excusable error concerning the identity of the public corporation against which the claim should be asserted; if service of the notice of claim is attempted by electronic means pursuant to paragraph (e) of subdivision three of this section, whether the delay in serving the notice of claim was based upon the failure of the computer system of the city or the claimant or the attorney representing the claimant; that such claimant or attorney, as the case may be, submitted evidence or proof as is reasonable showing that (i) the submission of the claim was attempted to be electronically made in a timely manner and would have been completed but for the failure of the computer system utilized by the sender or recipient, and (ii) that upon becoming aware of both the failure of such system and the failure of the city to receive such submission, the claimant or attorney had insufficient time to make such claim within the permitted time period in a manner as otherwise prescribed by law; and whether the delay in serving the notice of claim substantially prejudiced the public corporation in maintaining its defense on the merits.

An application for leave to serve a late notice shall not be denied on the ground that it was made after commencement of an action against the public corporation.

6. Mistake, omission, irregularity or defect. At any time after the service of a notice of claim and at any stage of an action or special proceeding to which the provisions of this section are applicable, a mistake, omission, irregularity or defect made in good faith in the notice of claim required to be served by this section, not pertaining to the manner or time of service thereof, may be corrected, supplied or disregarded, as the case may be, in the discretion of the court, provided it shall appear that the other party was not prejudiced thereby.

7. Applications under this section. All applications under this section shall be made to the supreme court or to the county court: (a) in a county where the action may properly be brought for trial, (b) if an action to enforce the claim has been commenced, in the county where the action is pending, or (c) in the event that there is no motion term available in any of the counties specified in clause (a) or (b) hereof, in any adjoining county. Where the application is for leave to serve a late notice of claim, it shall be accompanied by a copy of the proposed notice of claim.

8. Inapplicability of section. (a) This section shall not apply to claims arising under the provisions of the workers' compensation law, the volunteer firefighters' benefit law, or the volunteer ambulance workers' benefit law or to claims against public corporations by their own infant wards.

(b) This section shall not apply to any claim made for physical, psychological, or other injury or condition suffered as a result of conduct which would constitute a sexual offense as defined in article one hundred thirty of the penal law committed against a child less than eighteen years of age, incest as defined in section 255.27, 255.26 or 255.25 of the penal law committed against a child less than eighteen years of age, or the use of a child in a sexual performance as defined in section 263.05 of the penal law committed against a child less than eighteen years of age.

1981 Recommendations of the Law Revision Commission: The Commissions attention has been directed to a problem in wrongful death actions brought against cities, towns and counties. Recent cases have shown no consistent interpretation as to the applicable time limitations within which such actions can be brought. Thus, for instance, one court has ruled that in a wrongful death action against a town the action is barred under section 50-i, General Municipal Law (GML), after one year and 90 days from the happening of the event causing the death. (Erickson v. Town of Henderson, 30 A D 2d 282.) Another court, however, has held that a wrongful death action commenced against a city, where section 50-i would seen to be directly applicable, is governed by the Estates, Powers and Trusts Law two-years-from-death provision found in section 5-4.1, because section 50-i does not specifically refer to wrongful death actions in its coverage (Priebe v. City of Canandaigua, 91 Misc 2d 1047).

The problem these examples illustrate can best be understood by first examining sections 50-e and 50-i GML. 1. Subdivision (1) of section 50-3 provides in pertinent part:

(a)In any case founded upon tort where a notice of claim is required by law as a condition precedent to the commencement of an action or special proceeding against a public corporation, as defined in the general construction law, or any officer, appointee or employee thereof, the notice of claim shall comply with and be served in accordance with the provisions of this section within ninety days after the claim arises. (Emphasis added.).

Subdivision (1) of section 50-i provides:

1. No action or special proceeding shall be prosecuted or maintained against a . . . [municipal corporation]. . . for personal injury or damage to real or personal property alleged to have been sustained by reason of the negligence or wrongful act of such . . . [municipal corporation] . . . unless, (a) a notice of claim shall have been made and served upon the . . . [municipal corporation] . . . in compliance with section fifty-e of this chapter, (b) it shall appear by and as an allegation in the complaint or moving papers that at least thirty days have elapsed since the service of such notice and that adjustment or payment thereof has been neglected or refused, and (c) the action or special proceeding shall be commenced within one year and ninety days after the happening of the event upon which the claim is based. (Emphasis added.) Section 50-e refers to tort actions generally, which include wrongful death actions; section 50-i is restricted to coverage of personal injury and property damage.2. Legislative memoranda bear no indication of any purposeful intent to exclude wrongful death actions from section 50-i coverage. (1960 NYS Leg. Ann. 29; 1959 NYS Leg. Ann. 458.) The time period in section 50-e starts running when "the claim arises'; the time period in section 50-i starts running from "the happening of the event upon which the claim is based.".

The need for conforming section 50-i to section 50-e so that the former specifically includes wrongful death actions is obvious. Another problem, not yet specifically addressed in the cases, concerns the anomaly that could arise in death cases because of the differing language concerning the point from which the 90-day-notice provision is measured, and the point from which the one-year-and-90-day time limitation is to be measured. It has been consistently held in death cases that the claim arises" and the ninety days starts running when the estate representative is appointed (Forero v. Town of Tuxedo, 51 A D 2d 443; Erickson v. Town of Henderson, supra; Devine v. City of New York, 28 Misc 2d 888). The section 50-i language, however, is not construed so that the one year and 90 days starts running from the accrual of the cause of action, i.e., the death. The Court in Erickson, supra, seems to indicate, through an examination of the legislative history of section 50-i that the one year and 90 days runs from the happening of the accident: . In other words the Legislature apparently recognized that there were excellent reasons . . . why the beneficiaries of a wrongful death action should not be foreclosed by failure within 90 days from the happening of the event causing death to have an estate representative appointed and notice of claim served. By the 1959 enactment, however, the Legislature in substance notified such beneficiaries that they could not have the full period of two years (Decedent Estate Law, § 130; EPTL 5-4.1) but that such an action must be commenced within one year and 90 days from the happening of the event This places no unreasonable burden on the beneficiaries of such an action. They are given one year to have an estate representative appointed and another 90 days within which to serve notice of claim. The action must be commenced before the expiration of the two periods. (Id. at 285.)

If the Erickson Court is not absolutely clear in that passage that the "happening of the event" means the happening of the accident and not the happening of the death, its analysis of the legislative intent has been construed that way. In Cota v. Madison Central School District (89 Misc 2d 646, 648), the Court states: "The Legislature intended the time limitation for actions under section 50-i of the General Municipal Law to commence not upon the accrual of plaintiff's cause of action, but when the accident occurred. (In accord see Phillips v. Village of Waterford, 48 A D 2d 745.)".

This distinction in the starting points for the 50-e and 50-i time periods should remain unchanged as they apply to personal injury actions in view of the conscious legislative intent just noted. In most instances such starting point will be the same anyway. The Erickson Court's application of this differentiation to death cases, however, is troublesome. In that case the happening of the event and the death were simultaneous. The Legislature, and the Court in that case, may not have envisioned the situation where the causally related death is delayed. Where that is the case, it is conceivable that notice of a death claim could be timely under section 50-e, where the time runs from the appointment of a representative, although the time to bring the action would already have run under the one-year-and-90-day-from-the-event provision of section 50-i. Special provisions for wrongful death actions in both sections would obviate this flaw.

Such special provisions would also serve to obviate problems arising because of the interrelationship of section 50-i with other statutes. In contrast to section 50-i, death actions are specifically provided for in the County Law and Town Law.3. Subdivision (1) of § 52 of the County Law provides:

1. Any claim or notice of claim against a county for damage, injury or death, or for invasion of personal or property rights, of every name and nature, and whether casual or continuing trespass or nuisance and any other claim for damages arising at law or in equity, alleged to have been caused or sustained in whole or in part by or because of any misfeasance, omission of duty, negligence or wrongful act on the part of the county, its officers, agents, servants or employees, must be made and served in compliance with section fifty-a of the general municipal law. Every action upon such claim shall be commenced pursuant to the provisions of section fifty-i of the general municipal law. The place of trial shall be in the county against which the action is brought. (Emphasis added.).

Town Law § 67, inter alia, provides that:

1. Any claim including a claim specified in section sixty-five-a of this chapter which may be made against the town or town superintendent of highways for damages for wrong or injury to person or property or for the death of a person, shall be made and served in compliance with section fifty-e of the general municipal law.

2. Every action upon such claim shall be commenced pursuant to the provisions of section fifty-i of the general municipal law. . . (Emphasis added.) Those sections incorporate the sections 50-e and 50-i requirements. In Erickson, supra, a wrongful death action against a town, brought less than two years from the accident and simultaneous death, but more than one year and 90 days therefrom, was found time barred. The Court noted the failure of the Legislature to specifically include wrongful death actions in section 50-i, but refused to apply the EPTL two-year-from-death provision because of the Town Law's specific reference to section 50-i. In Priebe v. City of Canandaigua, supra, the Court, in a case brought against the city, where the section 50-i requirements would directly apply, avoided compliance with those requirements by pointing out that section 50-i does not specifically include wrongful death actions. The Priebe Court held that because of the omission of a reference to wrongful death in section 50-i it would apply the EPTL two-years-from-date-of-death time period.

In another case, however, the Appellate Division held that section 50-i does cover death cases (Phillips v. Village of Waterford, 48 A D 2d 745) . This involved a suit against a village. There is no special statute permitting suits in the Village Law as there is in the County and Town Laws. The Court held the 50-i provisions applicable in suits against villages and consequently time-barred under the one-year-and- 90-day limit. The Court apparently assumed that section 50-i included wrongful death actions despite its lack of reference thereto, and did not discuss, as did the judge in Priebe, the application of EPTL 5-4.1.

A further complicating factor is found in section 139 of the Highway Law, 4. Highway Law § 139:

When, by law, a county has charge of the repair or maintenance of a road, highway, bridge or culvert, the county shall be liable for injuries to person or property sustained in consequence of such road, highway, bridge or culvert being defective, out of repair, unsafe, dangerous or obstructed existing because of the negligence of the county, its officers, agents or servants. A civil action may be maintained against the county to recover damages for any such injury; but the county shall not be liable in such action unless a notice of claim shall have been made and served in compliance with section fifty-e of the general municipal law, and unless the action is commenced within one year from the date of service of the notice, but no such action shall be commenced upon such claim until the expiration of three months after the service of such notice. (Emphasis added.) which predates section 50-i, permitting personal injury actions against counties based on defective road maintenance. No reference is made to wrongful death actions. The section does refer to the section 50-e notice provision and provides that the action must be commenced "within one year from the date of service of the notice." Despite the lack of any reference to death cases in the section, the term "personal injury" has been held to include wrongful death (Treib v. Dutchess County, 56 A D 2d 866, app. dism'd 42 N Y 2d 824; Forero v. Town of Tuxedo, supra, 51 A D 2d 443).

The Commission considers that this confusion can be eliminated by the expedient of, first, writing into section 50-e a provision allowing the 90-day-notice provision to run from the appointment of an estate representative, which the codifies the present case law; and, second, tying this to new provisions in section 50-i which makes the section applicable in death actions and requires the death action to be brought within two years after the time of death.

This is an adaptation of subdivision 2 of section 10 of the Court of Claims Act which governs time provisions in actions against the State.5. Subdivision 2 of section 10, Court of Claims Act, is as follows:

2. A claim by an executor or administrator of a decedent who left him or her surviving a husband, wife or next of kin, for damages for a wrongful act, neglect or default, on the part of the state by which the decedent's death was caused, shall be filed within ninety days after the appointment of such executor or administrator, unless the claimant shall within such time file a written notice of intention to file a claim therefor in which event the claim shall be filed within two years after the death of the decedent. In any event such claim shall be filed within two years after the death of the decedent.

Note that there is no separate requirement for a notice of claim as there is in section 50-e. Under the Court of Claims Act no notice is necessary if the representative starts the action within 90 days of his appointment. This distinction makes it impossible to incorporate this provision verbatim into section 50-i. Its utilization has the virtue of aligning these provisions, both applicable to very similar situations, and, along with EPTL 5-1.4, marking the time of death as the basis for time calculations.

Bearing in mind the purpose of the time provisions of sections 50-e and 50-i— to provide municipal authorities the opportunity for timely investigation of the claim and to accelerate the time within which the action must be commenced—a problem could arise because no limitation from the time of the event is placed. If the accident victim did not die within several years of the happening of the accident, but the time for bringing suit is tolled since no representative can be appointed until after death, a death action against a municipality could conceivably be brought many years after the event, thus frustrating the goal of timely investigation. Such a case ought to be extremely rare. If the event were catastrophic enough to cause injuries which lead to delayed, but eventual death, it is reasonable to presume that a timely personal injury action would be commenced. Under the rule of Caffaro v. Trayna (35 N Y 2d 245), the death cause of action could be added at any time to a properly commenced and pending injury action.

Another reason for considering the threat of death claims long after the event de minimis is because the date-of-death basis in section 10 of the Court of Claims Act has been wholly adequate for many years as a ceiling on death claims, there having been no reported cases of injustice to the sovereign due to the possibility of the rare case of delayed death.

With respect to sections 50-e and 50-i, then, the notice provision of the former would run from the appointment of the representative, and, under the latter, now expressly applicable to death actions, the action would have to be commenced in no event more than two years after the death; unless a personal injury action had been timely commenced, in which case the complaint in a pending action could be amended to include the death cause of action for the subsequent and related death under the Caffaro case.

With these amendments, plus an amendment to Highway Law section 139, making it applicable in death actions and incorporating the requirements of section 50-i as well as 50-e, wrongful death actions against municipal corporations will be handled in a uniform manner. Only if no representative is appointed within two years of death will there be a statutory bar against any opportunity to sue for wrongful death. Even in that event, it is unlikely that a personal injury action would not have been started to which the death action could be added.

Editor's Notes: Laws 1945, ch 694, § 13, provides:

The provisions of section fifty-e of the general municipal law, as added by this act, shall supersede inconsistent provisions of any general, special or local law, or charter provisions, and shall be controlling.

Laws 2012, ch 500, §§ 1 and 79, eff June 15, 2013, provide as follows:

Section 1. Short title. This act shall be known and may be cited as the "uniform notice of claim act".

§ 79. This act shall take effect on the one hundred eightieth day after it shall have become a law and shall apply to all actions and proceedings accruing on or after such date; provided, however, that section four of this act shall take effect two hundred ten days after this act shall have become a law; and provided, further, that section seventy-eight of this act shall take effect upon the enactment into law by the state of New Jersey of legislation having an identical effect as section seventy-eight of this act, but if the state of New Jersey shall have enacted such legislation into law prior to the first day of January next succeeding the date upon which this act shall have become a law, section seventy-eight of this act shall take effect on the one hundred eightieth day from the date upon which it shall have become a law; provided further, that the state of New Jersey shall notify the legislative bill drafting commission upon the occurrence of the enactment of the provisions provided for in this act in order that the commission may maintain an accurate and timely effective data base of the official text of the laws of the state of New York in furtherance of effecting the provisions of section 44 of the legislative law and section 70-b of the public officers law; and provided further that section nine of this act shall take effect upon the concurrence by members of the Delaware River Basin Water Commission. (Amd, L 2013, ch 24, § 7, eff June 15, 2013.).

Laws 2019, ch 11, § 12, eff February 14, 2019, provides:

§ 12. The provisions of this act shall be severable, and if any clause, sentence, paragraph, subdivision or part of this act shall be adjudged by any court of competent jurisdiction to be invalid, such judgment shall not affect, impair, or invalidate the remainder thereof, but shall be confined in its operation to the clause, sentence, paragraph, subdivision or part thereof directly involved in the controversy in which such judgment shall have been rendered.

Revision Notes: This act was recommended by the Judicial Council. For explanation, see Twelfth Annual Report of the Judicial Council, pp. 21–23 and 59–60 (1946); also Matter of White v City of New York, 194 Misc 562 (1949).

Amendment Notes: 2013. Chapter 24, § 2 amended:

Sub 3, par (f) by deleting at fig 1 "any", fig 2 "or at one of his or her regularly established offices", at fig 3 "The secretary of state shall promptly", at fig 4 a comma and adding the matter in italics.

2012. Chapter 500, § 5 amended:

Sub 5, first undesignated par, by adding the matter in italics.

2010. Chapter 12, § 1 amended:

Sub 3, par (a), by adding the matter in italics.

Sub 3, by adding par (e).

The 2019 amendment by ch 11, § 5, added the 8(a) designation and added 8(b).

I. Generally

1. In general

Restraint embodied in the notice of claim section of the General Municipal Law is mandatory. Murphy v Yates, 47 A.D.2d 807, 365 N.Y.S.2d 298, 1975 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9129 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1975).

The provisions of Gen Mun Law § 50-e have no application to mandatory no-fault arbitration under Ins Law § 674. Accordingly, an insurance company seeking reimbursement of first-party benefits it had paid was not required to serve a notice of claim pursuant to Gen Mun Law § 50-e as a condition precedent to mandatory arbitration against a municipal self-insurer under Ins Law § 674. Syracuse v Utica Mut. Ins. Co., 83 A.D.2d 116, 443 N.Y.S.2d 901, 1981 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 14761 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1981), aff'd, 61 N.Y.2d 691, 472 N.Y.S.2d 600, 460 N.E.2d 1085, 1984 N.Y. LEXIS 4005 (N.Y. 1984).

In proceeding pursuant to CLS Gen Mun § 50-e for leave to serve late notice of claim, which followed prior application for similar relief that was dismissed with leave to make further application, reapplication was improperly dismissed on ground that further application should have been brought as special proceeding pursuant to CLS CPLR § 403 under new index number since county and city had actual notice of proceeding and submitted opposition papers, and thereby implicitly admitted jurisdiction by acquiescing to manner in which reapplication was brought. Kareca Lashawn J. v County of Westchester, 142 A.D.2d 729, 531 N.Y.S.2d 308, 1988 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8000 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1988), app. denied, 74 N.Y.2d 602, 541 N.Y.S.2d 985, 539 N.E.2d 1113, 1989 N.Y. LEXIS 599 (N.Y. 1989).

There is no duty to raise failure to serve notice of claim as affirmative defense. Binyard v New York, 151 A.D.2d 712, 543 N.Y.S.2d 145, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9154 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1989), app. dismissed, 75 N.Y.2d 896, 554 N.Y.S.2d 830, 553 N.E.2d 1340, 1990 N.Y. LEXIS 632 (N.Y. 1990).

Petitioner's motion for leave to serve late notice of claim was one for reargument, and thus denial thereof was not appealable, where petitioner failed to provide reasonable explanation as to why physician's medical opinion in support of petition for leave to serve late notice of claim, which was submitted as supplement to petitioner's motion to renew and reargue, could not have been provided with original petition. Thein v Mamaroneck Union Free Sch. Dist., 231 A.D.2d 730, 647 N.Y.S.2d 987, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9706 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1996), app. dismissed, 89 N.Y.2d 938, 654 N.Y.S.2d 718, 677 N.E.2d 290, 1997 N.Y. LEXIS 47 (N.Y. 1997).

Federal law preempts state and municipal notice of claim statutes. Mitchell v La Barge, 257 A.D.2d 834, 684 N.Y.S.2d 10, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 364 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1999).

Where defendant doctors failed to present evidence to show that there was a triable issue of fact as to their claim that they were transient employees of defendant city corporation at the time they allegedly committed medical malpractice, the trial court properly dismissed their affirmative defenses of the statute of limitations under N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-k and failure to serve a notice of claim under N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e. Ramos v Ravan, 289 A.D.2d 81, 734 N.Y.S.2d 66, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12122 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2001).

Dismissal of a negligence and malpractice claim against a city hospital on the basis of res judicata was error because a prior action was dismissed for failure to serve a timely notice of claim pursuant to N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(1)(a) and CLS Uncons Laws of NY ch. 214-A, § 20(2), and thus was not a dismissal on the merits, which was a prerequisite to the invocation of res judicata. Wade v New York City Health & Hosps. Corp., 59 A.D.3d 528, 874 N.Y.S.2d 171, 2009 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1156 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2009).

If the subject of claim and relief sought are within the coverage of this section, the fact that liability is clear and absolute does not dispense with the necessity of meeting the notice of claim requirements. Goldberg v Westchester County, 104 N.Y.S.2d 291, 199 Misc. 859, 1951 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1733 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1951).

The 1951 amendment to this section was enacted into law as remedial legislation. Anderlohr v New York, 112 N.Y.S.2d 135, 201 Misc. 605, 1952 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2616 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1952).

This section was never intended to be used as a device to defeat rights of people with legitimate claims upon grounds devoid of merit. Harwood v Hornell, 41 Misc. 2d 706, 246 N.Y.S.2d 222, 1964 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2155 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1964).

Court granted the police officer's application for leave to serve late notice of a claim that city's failure to provide proper respiratory gear resulted in lung damage; the brief delay in the application did not hamper the city's investigation of the circumstances. Taha v City of New York, 192 Misc. 2d 244, 746 N.Y.S.2d 386, 2002 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 978 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 2002).

Although a notice of claim filed by the New York Racing Association (NYRA) was untimely under N.Y. Rac. Pari-Mut. Wag. & Breed. Law § 514, a regional off-track betting corporation clearly received actual knowledge of the unauthorized telecasts within a reasonable time after they occurred and would not be substantially prejudiced by defending the claims on the merits; accordingly, NYRA was permitted in file a late notice of claim pursuant to N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e. New York Racing Assn. v Nassau Regional Off-Track Betting Corp., 909 N.Y.S.2d 866, 29 Misc. 3d 539, 2010 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3840 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 2010).

This section was designed to act as a shield and not as a sword to defeat rights of people having legitimate claims against a municipal body. Gisondi v Harrison, 220 N.Y.S.2d 105, 1961 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3680 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1961), modified, 16 A.D.2d 929, 229 N.Y.S.2d 698, 1962 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9364 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1962).

Commencement provisions of CLS Gen Mun §§ 50-e and 50-i are applicable in federal action for prima facie tort, intentional infliction of mental distress, and constitutional claims based upon termination of plaintiff's employment with city; there is no direct conflict between CLS Gen Mun §§ 50-e, and 50-i and Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, Rules 3 and 4, such that, in federal court action state commencement rules must be complied with. Piesco v New York, Dep't of Personnel, 650 F. Supp. 896, 1987 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 5013 (S.D.N.Y. 1987).

Statute being clear and explicit as to which court can hear application for filing of late notice of claim, federal court lacks jurisdiction over civil rights plaintiff's application to file late notice of claim against public corporations and police officers, or to have such notice deemed timely filed, and plaintiff's state claims would be dismissed, without prejudice. Brown v Metropolitan Transp. Auth., 717 F. Supp. 257, 1989 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 8736 (S.D.N.Y. 1989).

2. Purpose

The purpose of the statute is to give the city notice of an accident or occurrence. Figueroa v New York, 279 A.D. 771, 109 N.Y.S.2d 126, 1951 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3720 (N.Y. App. Div. 1951).

The clear purpose of General Municipal Law § 50-e is to require prompt notice of claims to a public corporation so as to permit investigation to be made promptly. Powell v Gates, 36 A.D.2d 220, 319 N.Y.S.2d 650, 1971 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4318 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1971).

The purpose of requiring a notice of claim is to assure the recipient an adequate opportunity to investigate the circumstances surrounding the accident and to explore the merits of the claim while information is still readily available; a city has sufficient information to conduct a proper and timely investigation of the accident where a notice of claim for personal injuries indicates the location of the accident to be within 500 feet of where it actually occurred; moreover, the court has the power to correct or disregard a defective notice of claim if it appears that the other party was not prejudiced thereby. Leone v Utica, 66 A.D.2d 463, 414 N.Y.S.2d 412, 1979 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10039 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1979), aff'd, 49 N.Y.2d 811, 426 N.Y.S.2d 980, 403 N.E.2d 964, 1980 N.Y. LEXIS 2925 (N.Y. 1980).

Whether regarded as permissible qualifications upon a legislatively created right or as reasonable conditions for the exercise of a common-law right, the recognized purposes of a notice of claim statute are, inter alia, to afford a local government the opportunity to fully investigate a claim against it, and, if regarded as appropriate, to settle claims without the expense and hazards of litigation. Though notice of claim provisions also benefit claimants by assuring earlier processing and consideration of their claims, they are enacted primarily for the benefit of the government agencies to which they apply. Cohen v Pearl River Union Free School Dist., 70 A.D.2d 94, 419 N.Y.S.2d 998, 1979 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12306 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1979), rev'd, 51 N.Y.2d 256, 434 N.Y.S.2d 138, 414 N.E.2d 639, 1980 N.Y. LEXIS 2723 (N.Y. 1980).

The purpose of the statute is to protect the municipality against fraud arising out of stale claims and against the possible connivance of corrupt public officials. Its requirements, therefore, cannot be waived. Rudolph v New York, 77 N.Y.S.2d 788, 191 Misc. 947, 1947 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3730 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1947).

The purpose of this section was said by the judicial council discussing the proposed amendment from which it is derived, to be to incorporate the essence of the liberal correctional provisions of former CPA art 9, §§ 105–110-a, and 112-f, and RCP 62. Feldman v New York, 79 N.Y.S.2d 284, 192 Misc. 136, 1948 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2394 (N.Y. City Ct. 1948).

The principal purposes of a notice of claim statute are to afford the municipality an opportunity to explore claims against it, and, if deemed appropriate, to settle claims without the expense and risks of litigation; the test of the sufficiency of a notice is whether it adequately informs the municipality of the nature of the claim, and of the time when, the place where, and the manner in which the claim arose so as to enable the municipality to investigate promptly. Worrell v New York, 101 Misc. 2d 270, 420 N.Y.S.2d 994, 1979 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2667 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1979).

Plaintiffs could not prosecute their claim arising out of a hazing incident against the individual employees of a school district when their notice of claim was directed only against the district's board of education; to permit such an action would have been inconsistent with the purpose of N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e to afford a public corporation the opportunity to locate a defect, conduct a proper investigation, and assess the merits of the claim White v Averill Park Cent. Sch. Dist., 195 Misc. 2d 409, 759 N.Y.S.2d 641, 2003 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 263 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 2003).

The prime objective of the notice of claim requirements is to assure the city an adequate opportunity to investigate the circumstances surrounding the accident and to explore the merits of the claim while information is still available. Borgia v New York, 216 N.Y.S.2d 897 (N.Y. Sup. Ct.), app. dismissed, 15 A.D.2d 557, 223 N.Y.S.2d 17, 1961 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6859 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1961).

3. Constitutionality

New York case law and legislative history of N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e made it clear that its savings provision was intended only to remedy defects in manner of service, not service on the wrong person; since the City of New York and the New York City, New York, Health and Hospitals Corporation (HHC) were entirely distinct entities for purposes of notices of claim, service of notice of a malpractice claim on the city's comptroller was entirely ineffective as notice to HHC. Scantlebury v N.Y. City Health & Hosps. Corp., 4 N.Y.3d 606, 797 N.Y.S.2d 394, 830 N.E.2d 292, 2005 N.Y. LEXIS 1086 (N.Y. 2005).

Statutes requiring 90-day notice of claim against public corporation were not unconstitutional as violating equal protection guarantees of State and Federal Constitutions. Guarrera v Lee Mem. Hosp., 51 A.D.2d 867, 380 N.Y.S.2d 161, 1976 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11485 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't), app. dismissed, 39 N.Y.2d 942, 1976 N.Y. LEXIS 3538 (N.Y. 1976).

Discretion was providently exercised in allowing leave under N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(5) to serve a late notice of an infant daughter's medical malpractice claim against a county and since there was actual notice of the claim and an absence of prejudice in the delay, the lack of a reasonable excuse for failing to timely serve a notice of claim did not bar the supreme court from granting leave to serve the late notice. The county had actual knowledge of the claim because they had the daughter's medical records at the time of the alleged malpractice and there was no showing of substantial prejudice to the county as a result of the delay where the daughter was protected by the infancy toll under N.Y. C.P.L.R. 208. Nardi v County of Nassau, 18 A.D.3d 520, 795

N.Y.S.2d 300, 2005 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5058 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2005).

General Municipal Law § 50-e, subdivision 1, does not unconstitutionally limit the filing of a formal notice of claim against the county to 90 days, notwithstanding a plaintiff has 3 years in which to assert a negligence action if suing a private defendant. Zipser v Pound, 75 Misc. 2d 489, 348 N.Y.S.2d 18, 1972 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1819 (N.Y. App. Term 1972).

CLS Gen Mun § 50-e(7), which provides that all applications regarding leave to serve late notice of claim "shall be made to the supreme court or to the county court" is unconstitutional denial of equal protection to New York City residents, and thus Civil Court had jurisdiction to decide whether to grant leave to file late notice of claim, where, apparently by inadvertent omission, § 50-e(7) imposes onerous and irrational burden on New York City residents who commence actions in Civil Court, avail themselves of procedures and adhere to rules of Civil Court, and yet must seek their remedy of late notice of claim in Supreme Court. Arvelo by Arvelo v City of New York, 182 Misc. 2d 101, 695 N.Y.S.2d 653, 1999 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 377 (N.Y. Civ. Ct. 1999).

4. Construction

The statute is remedial and should be liberally construed. Application of Charlemagne, 277 A.D. 689, 102 N.Y.S.2d 661, 1951 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5663 (N.Y. App. Div.), aff'd, 302 N.Y. 871, 100 N.E.2d 52, 302 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 871, 1951 N.Y. LEXIS 985 (N.Y. 1951).

Savings provision of subdivision 5 hereof was intended as remedial legislation and should be liberally construed. Tricou v Duanesburg, 23 A.D.2d 949, 260 N.Y.S.2d 162, 1965 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4040 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1965).

Requirements of CLS Gen Mun § 50-e(4) must be construed as flat prohibition not only of town's enactment of any notice of claim provision other than that provided for in statute, but also prohibition of any notice of defect enactment pertaining to locations beyond 6 specified therein. Fay v Town of Hempstead, 228 A.D.2d 641, 645 N.Y.S.2d 506, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7427 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1996), overruled in part, Guiliano v Town of Brookhaven, 34 A.D.3d 734, 826 N.Y.S.2d 100, 2006 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 14359 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2006).

Injured motorist should have been permitted to amend her notice of claim to delete an incorrect license number for the city bus that allegedly hit her car where the claim otherwise contained sufficient information for the transit authority to investigate and her mistake was made in good faith; the fact that the transit authority waited four years before raising the issue in a motion to dismiss supported the court in determining that it had not been prejudiced by her mistake. Palmieri v N.Y. City Transit Auth., 288 A.D.2d 361, 733 N.Y.S.2d 127, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11203 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2001).

Notice of claim requirements are construed strictly, in the sense that compliance with them is a condition precedent to suit. Meadows v Mineola, 72 N.Y.S.2d 368, 190 Misc. 815, 1947 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2750 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1947); Rudolph v New York, 77 N.Y.S.2d 788, 191 Misc. 947, 1947 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3730 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1947).

General Municipal Law § 50-e is to be construed strictly against a claimant. Zillman v Meadowbrook Hospital Co., 73 Misc. 2d 726, 342 N.Y.S.2d 302, 1973 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2107 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1973), rev'd, 45 A.D.2d 267, 358 N.Y.S.2d 466, 1974 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4428 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1974).

5. Notice of claim as condition precedent to action

Compliance with this section as to notice of claim is a condition precedent to maintenance of an action, not merely matter of defense. and must be both pleaded and proved by plaintiff or he fails to make out a cause of action. Natoli v Board of Education, 277 A.D. 915, 98 N.Y.S.2d 540, 1950 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3831 (N.Y. App. Div. 1950), aff'd, 303 N.Y. 646, 101 N.E.2d 761, 303 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 646, 1951 N.Y. LEXIS 1076 (N.Y. 1951).

Plaintiff's failure to verify his notice of claim was purely inadvertent, and was not fatal to validity of notice. Creary v Mamaroneck, 110 A.D.2d 870, 488 N.Y.S.2d 427, 1985 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 48783 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1985).

Service of summons and complaint against board of education could not be deemed to be substitute for timely notice of claim under CLS Gen Mun § 50-e. Nu-Life Constr. Corp. v Board of Educ., 204 A.D.2d 106, 611 N.Y.S.2d 529, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5147 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't), app. dismissed, 84 N.Y.2d 850, 617 N.Y.S.2d 139, 641 N.E.2d 160, 1994 N.Y. LEXIS 2683 (N.Y. 1994).

On motion to dismiss for failure to serve notice of claim on New York City Health and Hospitals Corporation (HHC), defendants (HHC and New York City) were under no duty to raise plaintiff's failure to serve notice of claim on HHC as affirmative defense or otherwise to bring to plaintiff's attention fact that city, on which plaintiff did serve notice of claim, was not proper party defendant; moreover, defendants were not estopped from asserting lack of proper notice, even though (1) defendants did not affirmatively advise plaintiff that she incorrectly served city instead of HHC, (2) HHC attorney appeared at CLS Gen Mun § 50-h hearing, and (3) defendants participated in litigation for years before moving to dismiss. Kroin v City of New York, 210 A.D.2d 95, 620 N.Y.S.2d 339, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12688 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1994).

New York City Health and Hospitals Corporation (HHC) was not estopped from asserting plaintiffs' improper service of 90-day notice on New York City rather than HHC as basis for dismissal of medical malpractice action, where HHC was under no duty to raise plaintiffs' noncompliance with notice of claim provisions of CLS Gen Mun § 50-e and CLS Unconsol Ch 214-A § 20 as affirmative defense, or otherwise bring to plaintiffs' attention that city was not proper party defendant to action. Badgett v New York City Health & Hosps. Corp., 227 A.D.2d 127, 641 N.Y.S.2d 299, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4751 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1996).

In a wrongful death action alleging medical malpractice, filed against a New York City, N.Y., public hospital, service of a notice of claim against the New York City Health and Hospitals Corporation was a condition precedent to the commencement of the action against the corporation and its member hospitals. Jones v City of New York, 300 A.D.2d 359, 751 N.Y.S.2d 522, 2002 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11929 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2002).

Where the employee sought damages for the city's failure to satisfy its duty to provide a wage differential to the employee, this was a tort action, and the employee was required under N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e to serve a notice of claim upon the city within 90 days after the claim arose. Melia v City of Buffalo, 306 A.D.2d 935, 762 N.Y.S.2d 197, 2003 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6781 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't), app. denied, 100 N.Y.2d 516, 769 N.Y.S.2d 202, 801 N.E.2d 423, 2003 N.Y. LEXIS 3374 (N.Y. 2003).

Because plaintiff salon was not required to serve a notice of claim pursuant to General Municipal Law 50-e(1)(b) as a condition precedent to the commencement of the actions, and the supreme court incorrectly denied the salon's motion for summary judgment against defendant constables on the cause of action to recover damages for wrongful eviction in violation of RPAPL 749(2); because the position of town constable was not compensated, pursuant to the exclusionary language of Local Law No. 7, § 1(a), the constables were not entitled to indemnification from the town as a matter of law and, as a matter of law, the salon was not required to serve a notice of claim pursuant to General Municipal Law 50-e(1)(b) as a condition precedent to the commencement of the actions. Analisa Salon, Ltd. v Elide Props., LLC, 46 A.D.3d 721, 848 N.Y.S.2d 693, 2007 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12829 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2007), dismissed, in part, 2011 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 7186 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. July 22, 2011), in part, 2011 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 7185 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. Dec. 13, 2011).

Because a plaintiff served neither the Corporation Counsel, a designee, nor the City Comptroller, as required by N.Y. C.P.L.R. 311(a)(2) and New York City, N.Y., Admin. Code § 7-201(a), and because the plaintiff also failed to seek leave to serve a late notice of claim prior to the expiration of the applicable statute of limitations in N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(5), the city was entitled to summary judgment dismissing the plaintiff's personal injury complaint. Knox v New York City Bur. of Franchises & N.Y. City, 48 A.D.3d 756, 853 N.Y.S.2d 573, 2008 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1665 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2008).

Plaintiffs' notice of claim was sufficient to alert defendants to the allegations supporting those causes of action, regardless of the purported capacity in which one of the plaintiffs executed the notice of claim. Given the lack of any showing of bad faith by plaintiffs or prejudice to defendants, the appellate division exercised its discretion to treat the notice of claim as one filed on behalf of the decedent's estate. Freeland v Erie County, 122 A.D.3d 1348, 997 N.Y.S.2d 860, 2014 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8088 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 2014).

As the alleged tortious conduct of a recovery room nurse fell within the scope of her employment she was entitled to a timely notice of claim as a condition precedent to the commencement of any civil action against her, the supreme court properly denied plaintiff's motion for leave to amend to add the nurse as a defendant because notice was never served on her. Stewart v Westchester Inst. for Human Dev., 136 A.D.3d 1014, 25 N.Y.S.3d 656, 2016 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1304 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2016).

Trial court properly granted a city's motion to dismiss an injured worker's complaint and denied his cross-motion for leave to amend the complaint because he failed to serve a timely notice of claim, and his proposed complaint alleging a "maritime tort," in addition to the Labor Law causes of action, was patently devoid of merit inasmuch as the accident allegedly occurred at a location not subject to maritime jurisdiction. Fernandez v City of New York, 148 A.D.3d 995, 51 N.Y.S.3d 100, 2017 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1986 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2017).

Plaintiff's failure to name three officers in his notice of claim did not warrant dismissal of his false arrest and malicious prosecution claims against them because naming individual municipal employees in a notice of claim is not a condition precedent to joining those individuals as defendants in the action. Blake v City of New York, 148 A.D.3d 1101, 51 N.Y.S.3d 540, 2017 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2355 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2017).

Plaintiff's failure to name three officers in his notice of claim did not warrant dismissal of his 42 U.S.C.S. § 1983 claims against them because a notice of claim is not a condition precedent to maintaining a cause of action pursuant to § 1983. Blake v City of New York, 148 A.D.3d 1101, 51 N.Y.S.3d 540, 2017 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2355 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2017).

Trial court erred in granting a housing authority's motion for summary judgment and in denying a pedestrian's cross-motion to deem the notice of claim properly served because, although the envelope containing the notice of claim was addressed to the "Comptroller of the Authority" rather than just the authority itself, it had the correct address and was timely mailed, the minor misnomer on the envelope—"Comptroller"—was not fatal to the action, especially where the pedestrian's attorney asserted a claim against both the city and the authority, and the notice of claim itself named the authority. Carroll v City of New York, 149 A.D.3d 1026, 52 N.Y.S.3d 465, 2017 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3097 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2017).

Former tenant was not permitted to add the town as a defendant because the former tenant failed to file a notice of claim, and, thus, the former tenant was not entitled to seek any relief arising out of its alleged contractual relationship with the town nor assert causes of action to recover damages for the town's alleged wrongful acts. Video Voice, Inc. v Local T.V., Inc., 156 A.D.3d 848, 68 N.Y.S.3d 475, 2017 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8898 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2017).

Trial court properly granted dismissal of the cause of action alleging violations of the State Constitution on the ground that the administrative law judge failed to serve a notice of claim because the action did not fall within the public interest exception to the notice of claim requirement, since the complaint sought to vindicate the private rights of the administrative law judge, and the disposition of the claim would not directly affect or vindicate the rights of others. Further, although the complaint named the individual defendants in their individual capacities, it alleged retaliation by them as part of their employment, and thus, the notice of claim requirement applied. Ferreri v Town of Penfield, 34 A.D.3d 1243, 824 N.Y.S.2d 835, 2006 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 15989 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 2006).

Trial court properly granted a school district's motion for summary judgment in a student athlete's personal injury action and denied the student's cross-motion for leave to serve an amended complaint because the student failed to serve a timely notice of claim or commence a timely proceeding for leave to serve a late notice of claim, there was no evidence in the record demonstrating that the district engaged in any misleading conduct that would support a finding of equitable estoppel, the district's participation in pretrial discovery did not preclude it from raising the untimeliness of the notice of claim, and the student's proposed amendment was palpably insufficient or devoid of merit. Sanchez v Jericho Sch. Dist., 180 A.D.3d 828, 120 N.Y.S.3d 163, 2020 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1130 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2020).

Supreme Court improvidently exercised its discretion in denying petition for leave to serve late notice of claim because balance of statutory factors in the case warranted granting of the petition; the unusual occurrence report prepared and filed shortly after petitioner's accident provided respondent with timely actual knowledge of essential facts constituting the claim, since its specificity regarding location and circumstances of incident permitted respondent to readily infer that potentially actionable wrong had been committed. Matter of Catania v City of New York, 188 A.D.3d 1041, 134 N.Y.S.3d 421, 2020 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6960 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2020).

Notice of claim requirements are construed strictly, in the sense that compliance with them is a condition precedent to suit. Meadows v Mineola, 72 N.Y.S.2d 368, 190 Misc. 815, 1947 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2750 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1947); Rudolph v New York, 77 N.Y.S.2d 788, 191 Misc. 947, 1947 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3730 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1947).

Service of notice of claim is a condition precedent to institution of an action against a municipality or municipal corporation, and the complaint must allege facts in support of performance of such conditions, such as when the alleged wrongful acts were done, what damage was caused, and when notice of claim was served. Bardo v Monroe County Water Authority, 37 Misc. 2d 638, 235 N.Y.S.2d 926, 1962 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2453 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1962).

As rule of substantive law, service of proper notice of claim under CLS Gen Mun § 50-e cannot be waived under relaxed procedural rules for Small Claims Court, pursuant to CLS NYC Civil Ct Act §§ 1802 and 1804. Lurie v New York City Office of Comptroller, 154 Misc. 2d 950, 587 N.Y.S.2d 831, 1992 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 348 (N.Y. Civ. Ct. 1992).

Because an employee's notice of claim alleging a violation of N.Y. Exec. Law § 296 did not comply with N.Y. County Law § 52 or N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e, it was dismissed. Sowich v County of Oneida, 938 N.Y.S.2d 413, 35 Misc. 3d 486, 2011 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 6360 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 2011), aff'd, 109 A.D.3d 1170, 971 N.Y.S.2d 720, 2013 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6206 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 2013).

Because it could not be determined from the record whether an employee failed to exhaust administrative remedies or take the necessary steps to protect the employee's whistleblower status under N.Y. Civ. Serv. Law § 75-b, further proceedings were required to determine the issues under N.Y. C.P.L.R. art. 78, including compliance with the notice requirements of N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e. Yan Ping Xu v New York City Dept. of Health, 77 A.D.3d 40, 906 N.Y.S.2d 222, 2010 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6387 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2010).

Where plaintiff failed to serve a timely notice of claim under N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(1)(a) on a public corporation, the corporation had no obligation to plead, as an affirmative defense, plaintiff's failure to comply with the statutory notice of claim requirement. Barnaman v New York City Health & Hosps. Corp., 90 A.D.3d 588, 934 N.Y.S.2d 443, 2011 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8781 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2011).

Where plaintiff failed to serve a timely notice of claim under N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(1)(a) on a public corporation, the corporation's participation in pretrial discovery did not preclude it from raising the untimeliness of the notice of claim. Barnaman v New York City Health & Hosps. Corp., 90 A.D.3d 588, 934 N.Y.S.2d 443, 2011 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8781 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2011).

Although an arrestee's negligent hiring, training, and retention claim was time-barred by N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law §§ 50-e(1)(a), 50-l, pursuant to N.Y. C.P.L.R. 3101, the arresting police officer was required to appear for a deposition and to produce the officer's personnel and disciplinary files (subject to redaction of personal information), as well as documentation of similar civil rights claims against other officers in the precinct. Pendleton v City of New York, 239 N.Y.L.J. 94, 2008 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2978 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. Apr. 14, 2008), modified, 21 Misc. 3d 1141(A), 2008 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 6993 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. Dec. 3, 2008).

Because the supreme court had adhere to First Department precedent requiring the notice of claim to name individual defendants, the detectives' motion to dismiss was granted, and the arrestee's cross-motion to amend was denied; the supreme court was constrained by precedent to find that the arrestee's failure to name the detectives in the notice of claim merited dismissal against them because it was bound by the First Department's precedent. Wiggins v City of New York, 69 Misc. 3d 620, 133 N.Y.S.3d 178, 2020 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 4076 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 2020).

The provisions of §§ 50-e and 50-i of the General Municipal Law are more than mere statutes of limitation or statutes of repose; they establish conditions precedent to the initiation of a lawsuit against a municipality. Gregory v New York, 346 F. Supp. 140, 1972 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 12974 (S.D.N.Y. 1972), disapproved, Fountain v Metropolitan Atlanta Rapid Transit Authority, 678 F.2d 1038, 1982 U.S. App. LEXIS 18222 (11th Cir. 1982).

Plaintiff's failure to file notice of claim against individual defendants did not warrant dismissal of his claims against those defendants under Gen Mun § 50-e. Lieber v Village of Spring Valley, 40 F. Supp. 2d 525, 1999 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 4050 (S.D.N.Y. 1999)).

Plaintiff professor's negligent misrepresentation claim against defendant community college and officials was barred because the professor failed to file a notice of claim against the county under N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(1)(a) and N.Y. County Law § 52, and because the claim was time-barred under N.Y. C.P.L.R. § 214. Feingold v Hankin, 269 F. Supp. 2d 278, 2003 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 9903 (S.D.N.Y. 2003), aff'd in part and rev'd in part, 91 Fed. Appx. 176, 2004 U.S. App. LEXIS 3531 (2d Cir. N.Y. 2004).

Where defendants received the timely notice to which they were entitled under the statute, the fact that plaintiff failed to plead compliance with the requirement in his complaint was only a technical error, and plaintiff was granted leave to amend his second amended complaint to reflect that he filed a timely notice of claim. Razzano v County of Nassau, 599 F. Supp. 2d 345, 2009 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 12936 (E.D.N.Y. 2009).

Battery claims that a former prisoner asserted against a county were barred by N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50 because the prisoner did not file timely notices of claim as required by N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e and the prisoner's action was filed after the expiration of the one-year-and-ninety-day statute of limitations set forth in N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-i(1). Varricchio v County of Nassau, 702 F. Supp. 2d 40, 2010 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 24976 (E.D.N.Y. 2010).

Owner's notice of claim did not invoke the New York State Constitution, and thus its state constitutional claims against a town were barred. DC3, LLC v Town of Geneva, 783 F. Supp. 2d 418, 2011 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 39616 (W.D.N.Y. 2011).

Employee's retaliation claim against all defendants under the New York Human Rights Law must also be dismissed because he failed to file the requisite notice of claim against the county pursuant to N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e. Seale v Madison Cnty, 929 F. Supp. 2d 51, 2013 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 31284 (N.D.N.Y. 2013).

Because plaintiff's claim sounded in tort and she failed to file a notice of claim, the court granted summary judgment to the City on the negligence claim on this ground. Breitkopf v Gentile, 41 F. Supp. 3d 220, 2014 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 121581 (E.D.N.Y. 2014).

City employee's state law claims against several supervisory city employees brought against them in their official capacities were dismissed because the employee failed to file a required notice of claim prior to filing suit. In litigation that arose out of sexual relationship between minor high school student and teacher, state statutory claim for failure to report child abuse claim brought by parent against another teacher failed because parent did not file required pre-litigation notice. RF v S. Country Cent. Sch. Dist., 2016 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 130671 (E.D.N.Y. Sept. 23, 2016).

6. —Late notice

Where petitioner sued a school district for negligence, the trial court abused its discretion in denying his motion for leave to serve a late notice of claim because it erred 1) in placing the burden solely on him to establish lack of substantial prejudice and by failing to consider whether his initial showing shifted the burden to the district; and 2) by relying on speculation and inference rather than record evidence to find that the district would by substantially prejudiced by the late notice. Matter of Newcomb v Middle Country Cent. Sch. Dist., 28 N.Y.3d 455, 68 N.E.3d 714, 45 N.Y.S.3d 895, 2016 N.Y. LEXIS 3854 (N.Y. 2016), reh'g denied, 29 N.Y.3d 963, 73 N.E.3d 853, 51 N.Y.S.3d 496, 2017 N.Y. LEXIS 811 (N.Y. 2017).

Pursuant to N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(1)(a), a notice of claim must be filed within 90 days after the claim arose, however, a court may grant the claimant leave to file a late notice of claim within one year and ninety days of accrual; a trial court decision to deny a citizen's motion to file late notice of a claim against a city for a false accusation of rape was reversed because the citizen's mental incapacity was sufficiently established, and the local police force had sufficient facts in its possession to exonerate the citizen, thereby making the city liable. Nunez v City of New York, 307 A.D.2d 218, 762 N.Y.S.2d 384, 2003 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8326 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2003).

Trial court properly denied plaintiffs' cross motion for leave to serve a late notice of claim in their medical malpractice action against defendants; the applicable factors under N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(5) weighed against allowing a late notice of claim. Fuentes v County of Nassau, 15 A.D.3d 346, 788 N.Y.S.2d 865, 2005 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1415 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2005).

Court erred in allowing a claimant to file a notice of claim against a school district five years after the incident, as he did not file the notice of claim with his petition, as required by N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(7), and failed to show that the school district had actual notice of the essential facts of the claim within 90 days after it arose or a reasonable time thereafter. Matter of Scott v Huntington Union Free School Dist., 29 A.D.3d 1010, 816 N.Y.S.2d 165, 2006 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7173 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2006).

Dismissal of plaintiff's complaint against a village was proper because there was no prior written notice of the allegedly defective curb condition at issue, and plaintiff failed to allege her affirmative act of negligence theory in her notice of claim; plaintiff further never sought leave to serve late notice of claim. Plaintiff's suggestion that the trial court erred in not allowing her to correct her notice of claim pursuant to N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(6) was meritless. Semprini v Village of Southampton, 48 A.D.3d 543, 852 N.Y.S.2d 208, 2008 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1298 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2008).

Because a patient's untimely notice of claim upon a hospital was not the product of the patient's infancy, because the patient failed to establish that the hospital had actual notice of the claim, because the hospital's possession of the pertinent medical records was insufficient to establish notice of the specific claim, and because the patient failed to establish that the hospital would not be substantially prejudiced in maintaining its defense on the merits, the patient's Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(5) motion to deem the notice of claim timely served was properly denied. Rowe v Nassau Health Care Corp., 57 A.D.3d 961, 871 N.Y.S.2d 330, 2008 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10262 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2008).

Patient's medical malpractice claim against a City hospital arose in infancy, and the claim period was only extended under N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(5) and N.Y. C.P.L.R. 208 to 10 years from the time of accrual; to the extent that a patient's claim was predicated on acts that occurred prior to March 19, 1997, the patient's motion was untimely. Contreras v KBM Realty Corp., 66 A.D.3d 627, 887 N.Y.S.2d 172, 2009 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7040 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2009), app. denied, 14 N.Y.3d 701, 898 N.Y.S.2d 96, 925 N.E.2d 101, 2010 N.Y. LEXIS 3847 (N.Y. 2010).

Patient's late notice of claim was not deemed timely under N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(5) as: (1) the patient did not move for leave to deem the patient's late notice of claim timely served until more than nine years after the patient was last diagnosed with an elevated blood lead level, and this delay was not a product of the patient's infancy; (2) the patient failed to offer a reasonable excuse for the patient's failure to serve a timely notice of claim, or that the hospital had actual notice of the patient's claim within the 90-day period or a reasonable time thereafter; (3) although the hospital was in possession of the patient's pediatric records, the records showed that the patient's blood lead level declined while the hospital's medical staff allegedly failed to provide anticipatory guidance; and (4) the patient did not show an injury attributable to any acts of medical malpractice. Contreras v KBM Realty Corp., 66 A.D.3d 627, 887 N.Y.S.2d 172, 2009 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7040 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2009), app. denied, 14 N.Y.3d 701, 898 N.Y.S.2d 96, 925 N.E.2d 101, 2010 N.Y. LEXIS 3847 (N.Y. 2010).

Because a school district had actual notice of a mother's claim and failed to demonstrate substantial prejudice or that her claim was patently without merit, the mother's motion for leave to serve a late notice of claim under N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(5), N.Y. Educ. Law § 3813(2-a) was properly granted even though she failed to offer a reasonable excuse for her failure to serve a timely notice of claim. Matter of Hess v West Seneca Cent. School Dist., 71 A.D.3d 1568, 899 N.Y.S.2d 490, 2010 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2598 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't), rev'd, 15 N.Y.3d 813, 908 N.Y.S.2d 146, 934 N.E.2d 879, 2010 N.Y. LEXIS 2223 (N.Y. 2010).

False arrest and unlawful imprisonment claims against a county and a sheriff should have been dismissed because the claims accrued on the date the client was released from prison, and the client did not file a notice of claim until four years after that date, and did not commence his action until long after the N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-i(1) time limit had expired. Brownell v LeClaire, 96 A.D.3d 1336, 948 N.Y.S.2d 168, 2012 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5176 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2012).

Trial court erred in granting a resident leave to serve a late notice of claim under N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(5) as: (1) the resident's claim that she reported the incident to the New York City Housing Authority shortly after her release from the hospital did not show that the Authority acquired actual knowledge of the essential facts of the claim within 90 days of the incident or a reasonable later time; (2) an occurrence report filed with the Authority 12 months after the incident did not give the Authority timely, actual knowledge of the claim that the resident's injury was caused by the Authority's negligence; and (3) the resident failed to show that her delay would not substantially prejudice the Authority under § 50-e(5) and N.Y. Pub. Hous. Law § 157(2). Matter of Alvarez v New York City Hous. Auth., 97 A.D.3d 668, 948 N.Y.S.2d 648, 2012 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5408 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2012).

Trial court erred in granting a student's petition for leave to serve a late notice of claim because the student did not explain the 15-month delay between the time she reached the age of majority and her commencement of a proceeding against a school district, the student did not show that the district had actual knowledge of her claim, a parent notification form was insufficient to apprise the district of the student's claims, and the student did not rebut the district's assertions of prejudice. Matter of Lewis v East Ramapo Cent. Sch. Dist., 110 A.D.3d 720, 972 N.Y.S.2d 326, 2013 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6315 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2013).

In a medical malpractice case, the trial court erred in denying plaintiff's motion for leave to serve a late notice of claim on defendant city or to deem the proposed notice of claim timely served nunc pro tunc, as the city received the notice of claim less than one month after the expiration of the 90-day period for filing it and was not prejudiced since it acquired actual knowledge of the essential facts underlying the claim within a reasonable time after the 90-day period expired. Brunson v New York City Health & Hosps. Corp., 144 A.D.3d 854, 42 N.Y.S.3d 34, 2016 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7503 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2016).

Trial court did not err in granting a city summary judgment on plaintiff's common law harassment claim, based on the city's issuance of notices of violation, as New York did not recognize that cause of action and plaintiff failed to serve a timely notice of claim on the city. Shahid v City of New York, 144 A.D.3d 1127, 43 N.Y.S.3d 88, 2016 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7907 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2016).

Supreme court properly denied a motion for leave to serve late notice of a claim against a medical center because the plaintiff failed to show that the center had actual knowledge of the essential facts constituting the claim within the requisite 90-day period or a reasonable time thereafter. Stewart v Westchester Inst. for Human Dev., 136 A.D.3d 1014, 25 N.Y.S.3d 656, 2016 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1304 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2016).

It was an improvident exercise of discretion to deny a city leave to serve late notices of claim against a county and to deem the late notices timely served nunc pro tunc because (1) the trial court had discretion to extend the time to serve the notices, (2) the county had timely actual knowledge of the essential facts constituting the claims, (3) N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(5) did not require that only officials statutorily designated to accept service of the notices be provided or know those facts, and (4) the city showed the county would not be substantially prejudiced by the late notices, as the claims were based on easily verifiable, well-documented, objective facts directly within the purview and knowledge of the police commissioner to whom the claims were reported. Matter of City of New York v County of Nassau, 146 A.D.3d 948, 46 N.Y.S.3d 155, 2017 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 467 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2017).

Trial court properly denied a motor vehicle passenger's motion for leave to serve a late notice of claim on the city and the city department of transportation, arising from alleged injuries when the vehicle he was riding in struck an open manhole on an expressway, as the motion was untimely because it was not made within 90 days and was not made before the one-year-and-90-day statute of limitations expired. Matter of Lubin v City of New York, 148 A.D.3d 898, 50 N.Y.S.3d 405, 2017 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1788 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2017).

Injured motor vehicle passenger's motion for leave to renew the petition to file a late notice of claim was untimely, despite that the statute of limitations was tolled for a period of time, as the doctrine of equitable estoppel did not apply because the city entities' conduct did not mislead or discourage the service of a timely notice of claim. Matter of Lubin v City of New York, 148 A.D.3d 898, 50 N.Y.S.3d 405, 2017 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1788 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2017).

In a proceeding pursuant to N.Y. Gen. Bus. Law § 50-e(5), the order granting petitioner leave to serve a late notice of claim was reversed as to the claim alleging conscious pain and suffering and wrongful death because the evidence submitted by petitioner failed to establish that appellants had actual knowledge of the essential facts constituting the claim to recover damages for conscious pain and suffering within the requisite 90-day period or a reasonable time thereafter. Matter of Shun Mao Ma v New York City Health & Hosps. Corp., 153 A.D.3d 529, 59 N.Y.S.3d 478, 2017 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5897 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2017).

Developmentally disabled student and her parents had a meritorious defense to a school district's (SD) motion to dismiss as: (1) SD acquired actual knowledge of the facts within 90 days after the claim arose; (2) the bus attendant who sexually assaulted the student during the course of his employment was employed by SD; (3) SD conducted the investigation that yielded the attendant's admission of abuse and reported its findings to the police; (4) the notice of claim was served only two days late; and (5) the student's disabilities also weighed in favor of relief as she was in the very poor range of cognitive functioning, functioned at a 4th grade learning level and had no safety awareness or self-preservation skills. K.A. v Wappingers Cent. Sch. Dist., 151 A.D.3d 828, 54 N.Y.S.3d 683, 2017 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4741 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2017).

Elementary school student's parent was not permitted to serve a late notice of claim on the school district because the notification of injury form prepared by the school nurse did not provide the district with timely, actual knowledge of the essential facts underlying the parent's claims for negligent supervision of students, and in the hiring and training of school personnel, and there was no showing of a nexus between the student's infancy and the delay. McClancy v Plainedge Union Free Sch. Dist., 153 A.D.3d 1413, 62 N.Y.S.3d 126, 2017 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6652 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2017), app. denied, 31 N.Y.3d 905, 103 N.E.3d 782, 78 N.Y.S.3d 711, 2018 N.Y. LEXIS 847 (N.Y. 2018).

Trial court erred in granting an injured pedestrian's motion for leave to serve a late notice of a personal injury claim against a public housing authority because the pedestrian's excuse regarding the identity of the owner of the walkway where he slipped and fell arose from a lack of due diligence in investigating the matter, he failed to proffer any explanation for the additional seven-month delay between the time that he discovered the error and the filing of his application for leave to serve a late notice of claim, notice to the city could not be imputed to the authority, and the pedestrian presented no evidence or plausible argument that his delay did not substantially prejudice the authority in defending on the merits. Kelly v City of New York, 153 A.D.3d 1388, 63 N.Y.S.3d 385, 2017 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6643 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2017).

Order denying petitioner's motion for leave to serve a late notice of claim was reversed because the county had acquired actual knowledge of the essential facts constituting the claim before a representative of the estate was appointed and the police department had conducted an investigation and prepared a case report, thus, petitioner showed that the county was not prejudiced by the delay in being served a notice of claim. Matter of Kerner v County of Nassau, 150 A.D.3d 1234, 57 N.Y.S.3d 173, 2017 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4208 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2017).

In determining whether to grant leave to serve a late notice of claim, the court must consider several factors, including, most importantly, whether the public corporation or its attorney or its insurance carrier acquired actual knowledge of the essential facts constituting the claim within the time specified in subdivision one within 90 days after the claim arose or within a reasonable time thereafter. Matter of Kerner v County of Nassau, 150 A.D.3d 1234, 57 N.Y.S.3d 173, 2017 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4208 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2017).

Petitioner's lack of a reasonable excuse for the delay in serving a timely notice of claim is not necessarily fatal when weighed against other relevant factors. Matter of Kerner v County of Nassau, 150 A.D.3d 1234, 57 N.Y.S.3d 173, 2017 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4208 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2017).

Trial court properly denied a petition for leave to serve a late notice of claim in a proceeding brought by the parent of a child allegedly injured when she hit her head at school because the parent failed to establish that the city acquired actual knowledge of the essential facts constituting the claim within 90 days after the accident or a reasonable time thereafter, failed to demonstrate a reasonable excuse, and presented no evidence that the delay did not substantially prejudice the city. Matter of Quinones v City of New York, 160 A.D.3d 874, 74 N.Y.S.3d 602, 2018 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2620 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2018).

Driver was entitled to serve a late notice of claim to city where the claim arose out of an automobile collision in which the other driver lost control due to a pothole because the city acquired actual knowledge of claim when the other driver filed her own notice, and the city did not come forward with particularized evidence showing that the late notice had substantially prejudiced its ability to defend the claim. Matter of Tejada v City of New York, 161 A.D.3d 876, 77 N.Y.S.3d 95, 2018 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3311 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2018).

It was error to deny an application for leave to serve a late notice of claim on a housing authority because (1) the housing authority acquired actual knowledge of the essential facts constituting the claim within a reasonable time after the claim period expired, as the application was made approximately two weeks after the period expired, and (2) an alleged injured party met an initial burden to show lack of prejudice to the housing authority, requiring the housing authority to rebut that showing with particularized evidence and not a conclusory assertion of substantial prejudice. Matter of Ramos v New York City Hous. Auth., 162 A.D.3d 884, 80 N.Y.S.3d 85, 2018 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4464 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2018).

Claimant's failure to provide a reasonable excuse for the delay in serving a notice of claim was not fatal since claimant showed that respondent would not be substantially prejudiced by any delay because the injuries allegedly resulted from a fall at a construction site, and it was highly unlikely that the conditions existing at the time of the accident would still have existed if the notice of claim had been timely filed; however, claimant failed to show that respondent had timely actual knowledge of his first accident or of his injuries or damages and his motion to serve a late notice of claim failed as the incident report was not transmitted to respondent and the first accident was not mentioned in the construction closeout report submitted to respondent. Matter of Szymkowiak v New York Power Auth., 162 A.D.3d 1652, 80 N.Y.S.3d 565, 2018 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4426 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 2018).

Claimant established that respondent received timely actual knowledge of his second accident and was properly granted leave to serve a late notice of claim since the incident report was submitted to respondent's safety consultant, and the details and nature of the accident were included in the construction closeout report provided respondent; claimant's failure to provide a reasonable excuse for the delay was not fatal since claimant showed that respondent would not be substantially prejudiced by any delay because the injuries allegedly resulted from a fall at a construction site, and it was highly unlikely that the conditions existing at the time of the accident would still have existed if the notice of claim had been timely filed. Matter of Szymkowiak v New York Power Auth., 162 A.D.3d 1652, 80 N.Y.S.3d 565, 2018 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4426 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 2018).

Trial court properly denied a vehicle owner's petition for leave to serve a late notice of claim for damage to his vehicle after he collided with a village truck that was plowing snow because the owner did not demonstrate that the village obtained timely, actual knowledge of the essential facts constituting the claim where the late notice of claim was served upon the village approximately three months after the 90-day statutory period had elapsed and did not provide the village with actual knowledge of the essential facts of the claim, and while the village did not respond with a particularized evidentiary showing that it would be substantially prejudiced if late notice were allowed, prejudice was but one factor for the court to consider. Matter of Vega v Incorporated Vil. of Freeport, 164 A.D.3d 514, 83 N.Y.S.3d 290, 2018 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5554 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2018).

Trial court properly denied an injured worker's petition for leave to serve a late notice of claim against a School Construction Authority because his ignorance of the requirement to serve the notice of claim within 90 days after the claim arose did not constitute a reasonable excuse, he did not show that he was incapacitated to such an extent that he could not have served a timely notice of claim, the evidence he submitted did not establish that the Authority had actual knowledge of the essential facts constituting the claim within 90 days after its accrual or a reasonable time thereafter, and the worker did not present evidence or plausible argument that his delay did not substantially prejudice the Authority in defending on the merits. Matter of Murnane v New York City Sch. Constr. Auth., 164 A.D.3d 506, 83 N.Y.S.3d 105, 2018 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5537 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2018).

Trial court properly denied a mother's petition for leave to serve a late notice of claim and dismissed her personal injury complaint against a school principal and her employer (the defendants) for failure to timely serve a notice of claim because the principal's direct involvement in the incident, without more, was insufficient to establish that the defendants had actual knowledge of the essential facts constituting the claim, the mother failed to proffer a reasonable excuse for the failure to timely serve a notice of claim, and the defendants did not have the opportunity to conduct any physical or mental health examinations of the mother's child or to photograph or record his alleged physical injuries at or near the time of the incident. "Jane Doe" v Taylor, 164 A.D.3d 469, 83 N.Y.S.3d 295, 2018 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5523 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2018).

Trial court properly denied a student's petition for leave to serve a late notice of claim for negligent supervision because her medical evidence showed that she was not incapacitated and had substantially healed long before the expiration of the time for filing the notice, she did not establish a nexus between her infancy and the failure to timely serve the notice, an incident report and e-mail sent by her physical education teacher to the student's parents did not provide the school or school district with actual knowledge of the facts underlying the claim, and the student did not show that granting the petition would not substantially prejudice them in maintaining a defense on the merits. Matter of Zelin v Blind Brook-Rye Union Free Sch. Dist., 164 A.D.3d 1352, 84 N.Y.S.3d 252, 2018 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6074 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2018).

In a slip and fall case, petitioner did not demonstrate a reasonable excuse for his failure to serve a timely notice of claim upon respondents. Petitioner's alleged lack of awareness of the requirements of N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(5) was not a reasonable excuse for the failure to serve a timely notice of claim. Matter of McFarland v City of New York, 169 A.D.3d 687, 92 N.Y.S.3d 725, 2019 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 870 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2019).

Trial court erred in denying a father's motion, on behalf of his infant child, for leave to serve a late notice of claim or to deem a late notice of claim timely served nunc pro tunc because the statute of limitations was tolled for 10 years by the child's infancy, and the medical records provided the hospital with actual knowledge of the essential facts constituting the malpractice claim inasmuch as they showed that the mother was not admitted to the hospital, despite a physician's order, that two days later, the child was delivered one hour after the mother arrived at the hospital and only after a fetal heart monitor alarm sounded four times. J.H. v New York City Health & Hosps. Corp., 169 A.D.3d 880, 94 N.Y.S.3d 345, 2019 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1236 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2019).

Trial court erred in denying a mother's motion, filed on behalf of her child, to deem a late notice of claim timely served nunc pro tunc and granted a hospital's cross-motion to dismiss the mother's medical malpractice action because the hospital had actual knowledge of the essential facts of the claim inasmuch as the parties' motions focused on whether the hospital's failure to monitor the child's glucose levels constituted malpractice that proximately caused the child's developmental delays, the hospital conducted a General Municipal Law examination, and the delay in serving a notice of claim was directly attributable to the child's infancy. Feduniak v New York City Health & Hosps. Corp. (Queens Hosp. Center), 170 A.D.3d 663, 95 N.Y.S.3d 340, 2019 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1563 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2019).

Arrestee's false arrest claim against a village failed as he failed to serve a timely notice of claim since the cause of action accrued on the date of his arrest and he served his notice of claim beyond the expiration of the 90-day period; although the notice of claim was timely as to the malicious prosecution claim, the notice of claim expressly limited it to the county, and the accrual of the malicious prosecution claim against the county did not revive the arrestee's time-barred false arrest claim against the village. O'Dell v County of Livingston, 174 A.D.3d 1307, 103 N.Y.S.3d 730, 2019 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5425 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 2019).

Trial court erred in denying the adjoining landowners' application for leave to serve 67 late notices of claim against a town for damages arising from exposure to pollutants on or escaping from the town's landfill, which had been declared a state superfund site in the 1980s because the intervening filing of a federal class action, in which landowners were putative class members, tolled the statute of limitations, and they established that town received the requisite actual timely knowledge of the claims they asserted and would not town would not be substantially prejudiced by the delay. Matter of Bingham v Town of Wheatfield, 185 A.D.3d 1482, 128 N.Y.S.3d 729, 2020 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4373 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 2020).

Trial court properly denied an injured plaintiff's motion for leave to serve a late notice of claim upon a city's transportation authorities because the plaintiff did not provide a reasonable excuse for his failure to serve a timely notice of claim upon the authorities where he did not proffer any explanation for the six-month delay between the time that he discovered the error and the filing of his motion for leave to serve a late notice of claim, and he did not establish that the authorities received timely, actual knowledge of the essential facts constituting the claim. Durand v MV Transp., Inc., 186 A.D.3d 564, 129 N.Y.S.3d 123, 2020 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4538 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2020).

Trial court erred in granting a mother's General Municipal Law § 50-e(5) application for leave to serve a late notice of claim with respect to her claims, asserted on behalf of her child, following an assault of the child by another student because the mother failed to establish a reasonable excuse for her failure to serve a timely notice of claim, the known facts failed to give reasonable notice from which it could be inferred that a potentially actionable wrong had been committed by the school district. Matter of Mary Beth B. v West Genesee Cent. Sch. Dist., 186 A.D.3d 979, 129 N.Y.S.3d 563, 2020 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4811 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 2020).

Trial court properly granted an injured state trooper's petition for leave to serve a late notice of claim against a county and sheriff relating to the trooper's claims because the county acquired timely actual knowledge of the essential facts constituting the troopers' claim where it produced various documents regarding the accident, including the police report, which indicated that the county committed a potentially actionable wrong when a deputy sheriff allegedly failed to yield the right of way to the trooper's vehicle even though the trooper's vehicle's lights and sirens were activated, and the county failed to demonstrate that the late notice of claim substantially prejudiced its ability to defend the claim on the merits. Matter of McVea v County of Orange, 186 A.D.3d 1221, 130 N.Y.S.3d 63, 2020 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4955 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2020).

Trial court properly denied plaintiffs' cross motion for leave to amend the notice of claim or to serve a late notice of claim because the proposed amendments to the notice added substantive new facts and new theories of liability not set forth in the original notice of claim and which were not permitted as late filed amendments to a notice of claim; plaintiffs' failure to include a proposed notice of claim with their cross motion alone was a sufficient basis for denial. C.D. v Goshen Cent. Sch. Dist., 186 A.D.3d 1316, 131 N.Y.S.3d 40, 2020 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5095 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2020).

Trial court properly denied a vehicle owner's motion for summary judgment and granted a city's motions for summary judgment because the owner failed to file a timely notice of claim against the city and failed to apply for an extension. Jagroop v Ramdhanny, 50 Misc. 3d 115, 26 N.Y.S.3d 821, 2016 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 389 (N.Y. App. Term 2016).

Negligence and intentional tort claims against city are barred where plaintiff's belated service of notice of claim does not satisfy prerequisites to suit against municipality under CLS Gen Mun § 50. Mroz v City of Tonawanda, 999 F. Supp. 436, 1998 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 4577 (W.D.N.Y. 1998).

City's motion for judgment on the pleadings dismissing the state law claims was granted in an action brought by two bystanders who alleged an off-duty police officer pointed his pistol at them and threatened to kill them was granted because the bystanders did not serve a timely notice of claim as required by N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(1)(b). The bystanders did served a notice of claim more than nine months after it was due. Stoeckley v City of New York, 700 F. Supp. 2d 489, 2010 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 32068 (S.D.N.Y. 2010).

7. —Inapplicability

In an action to recover for personal injuries that were sustained in a vehicle accident, defendant town's motion for summary judgment, on the ground of plaintiffs' failure to give written notice of a defect in the highway before bringing an action against the town, was properly denied since plaintiffs alleged affirmative acts by the town in building and designing the highway in an unsafe manner that contributed to the accident, and since prior written notice is excused if a town has created the condition complained of, or has committed affirmative acts of negligence that are alleged to be a direct cause of damages. Haviland v Smith, 91

A.D.2d 764, 458 N.Y.S.2d 11, 1982 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 19656 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1982).

A city ordinance which required notice of the dangerous condition of "any public place" as a condition precedent to any suit against it based on such condition could not be applied to plaintiff, a factory owner whose factory was allegedly damaged due to a flood which resulted from a natural dam which formed when debris from city property was washed downstream, where the ordinance could only be construed to refer to public areas over which the public had access for travel, in that a city ordinance may not constitutionally require notice of dangerous conditions in areas not required by Gen Mun Law § 50-e(4), and the public property upstream from the factory could not be so defined. Amsterdam Brush Corp. v Amsterdam, 105 A.D.2d 881, 482 N.Y.S.2d 352, 1984 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 21009 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1984).

The trial court erred in granting a private bus transportation corporation's motion to dismiss for failure to serve a notice of claim pursuant to Gen Mun Law § 50-e; service of a notice of claim was not required despite the fact that the bus was being operated pursuant to a contract with a municipality, since the bus was owned by a private corporation. Schoenberg v Club Transp. Corp., 107 A.D.2d 745, 484 N.Y.S.2d 602, 1985 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 42652 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1985).

Notice of claim was not required in action against city to recover down payment on unimproved parcel of real property purchased from city at public auction, wherein it was alleged that property was unmarketable, since plaintiffs' theory of recovery was limited to suit to recover for breach of contract. Hoydal v New York, 154 A.D.2d 345, 545 N.Y.S.2d 823, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12256 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1989).

Police officer was not required to file timely notice of claim or timely move for permission to file late notice of claim where his cause of action accrued in June 1993 and was revived by 1994 amendment to CLS Gen Mun § 205-e; thus, court erred in granting defendant city's summary judgment motion. Giblin v City of New York, 267 A.D.2d 127, 700 N.Y.S.2d 154, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12978 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1999).

In a personal injury action, because a paved area in front of a village fire department, which was primarily used for access to the highway by the emergency vehicles and as a place to wash such vehicles, did not constitute the portion of the street intended for pedestrian use, N.Y. Veh. & Traf. Law § 144; the functional equivalent of a crosswalk, N.Y. Veh. & Traf. Law § 110(b); or a municipal parking lot that was the equivalent of a highway under N.Y. Veh. & Traf. Law § 118 and N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(4), the pedestrian who was injured was not required to give written notice of the defect under N.Y. C.P.L.R. § 9804 and N.Y. Village Law § 6-628 as a condition precedent. Smith v Village of Hancock, 25 A.D.3d 975, 809 N.Y.S.2d 589, 2006 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 413 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2006).

Employee's failure to file a notice of claim pursuant to N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e as imposed by N.Y. County Law § 52, did not require dismissal of the sexual harassment action against a county library coworker or supervisor. Indeed, the conduct of the coworkers as alleged in the complaint amounted to intentional torts and, thus, fell outside the scope of their employment. Grasso v Schenectady County Pub. Lib, 30 A.D.3d 814, 817 N.Y.S.2d 186, 2006 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7968 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2006).

Property owner was not required to serve a notice of claim as the claim was not subject to the notice of claim statute because his claim was primarily equitable in nature, specifically demanding that a building permit be issued; the demand for money damages was merely incidental to the request for an injunction. Johnson v City of Peekskill, 91 A.D.3d 825, 936 N.Y.S.2d 701, 2012 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 485 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2012).

Fire company, its president, and fire chief were not entitled to dismissal of a former fireman's discrimination causes of action based on the fireman's failure to serve a notice of claim because the notice of claim requirements of N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e did not apply to discrimination causes of action under the Human Rights Law, N.Y. Exec. Law § 296 et seq. Thygesen v North Bailey Volunteer Fire Co., Inc., 106 A.D.3d 1458, 964 N.Y.S.2d 816, 2013 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3128 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 2013).

Trial court erred in granting a sheriff's motion to dismiss a complaint filed by a prisoner based on the failure to serve a timely notice of claim because this statute did not apply to a complaint filed against a sheriff in his official capacity given that the county had not statutory obligation to indemnify the sheriff. Villar v Howard, 126 A.D.3d 1297, 6 N.Y.S.3d 811, 2015 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2252 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 2015), aff'd, 28 N.Y.3d 74, 64 N.E.3d 280, 41 N.Y.S.3d 460, 2016 N.Y. LEXIS 3222 (N.Y. 2016).

In an action between a county and a property owner, arising from problems with their closing of the owner's property, it was error to grant summary judgment dismissal to the county on the owner's inverse condemnation counterclaim, as statutory notice was not necessary since the claim did not sound in tort. County of Jefferson v Onondaga Dev., LLC, 151 A.D.3d 1793, 59 N.Y.S.3d 203, 2017 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4912 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 2017).

The filing of a notice of claim according to the requirements of section 50-e of the General Municipal Law or sections 52 and 369 of the County Law is not a condition precedent to the commencement of an action upon a claim commenced in the Small Claims Part of a City Court against a municipality based upon tort or contract, since such statutes are procedural in nature and the Legislature in adopting section 1804 of the Uniform City Court Act has abolished the requirement that Small Claims Part be bound by such procedural statutes. Johnson v Timmerman, 92 Misc. 2d 626, 401 N.Y.S.2d 149, 1978 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1957 (N.Y. County Ct. 1978).

CPLR 205 (subd [a]), which provides, if an action is timely commenced and is terminated in a manner other than by a voluntary discontinuance or a dismissal of the complaint for neglect to prosecute or a final judgment on the merits, a new action may be commenced within six months, applies only to time limitations and does not apply to section 50-e of the General Municipal Law, which requires the filing of a notice of tort claim against a municipality within 90 days after the claim arises; the 90-day notice of claim is a mandatory condition precedent. Accordingly, plaintiff having failed to serve a notice of claim upon the defendant city within 90 days, a motion by defendant to dismiss the complaint is granted. Glamm v Amsterdam, 94 Misc. 2d 991, 405 N.Y.S.2d 993, 1978 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2333 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1978), aff'd, 67 A.D.2d 1056, 413 N.Y.S.2d 512, 1979 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10871 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1979).

A personal injury action against a county transit system by a passenger who had been injured on one of the system's buses would not be dismissed on the basis of plaintiff's failure to file a notice of claim pursuant to Gen Mun Law § 50-e(1)(b), since, though the Court of Appeals decided after plaintiff's injury occurred that the laws creating the transit system imposed a statutory duty upon the county to operate the system and that, consequently, the statutory notice of claim requirements applied to actions against the system, such decision would be applied only prospectively in that such decision overruled clear past precedent on which litigants had a right to rely, the intent of the statute that municipalities receive actual, prompt notice of future claims had been satisfied, the equities of the situation clearly preponderated in favor of allowing plaintiff her day in court, and the county suffered no prejudice as a result of plaintiff's failure to provide it with formal notice. James v Liberty Lines, 119 Misc. 2d 1060, 465 N.Y.S.2d 144, 1983 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3644 (N.Y. Sup. Ct.), rev'd, 97 A.D.2d 749, 468 N.Y.S.2d 380, 1983 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 20491 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1983).

Lawsuit by an infant and his father that claimed that the infant was injured on playground equipment that was maintained by the village could not be dismissed for alleged lack of prior notice of the condition of the equipment because the village code that required such notice for playground equipment exceeded the scope of N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e (4) concerning the prior notice that would be required for municipalities before claims could be brought against them. White v Inc. Vill. of Hempstead, 819 N.Y.S.2d 463, 13 Misc. 3d 471, 2006 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2095 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 2006), aff'd, 41 A.D.3d 709, 838

N.Y.S.2d 607, 2007 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7731 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2007).

Plaintiff's negligence suit against the Brooklyn Public Library survived its motion to dismiss; as the Library was not a "municipal corporation," plaintiff did not have to file a notice of claim pursuant to N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law §§ 50-e and 50-i to commence a tort action against the Library. Rodriguez v Brooklyn Pub. Lib., 934 N.Y.S.2d 291, 34 Misc. 3d 310, 2011 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 5611 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 2011).

United States is not required to file notice of claim pursuant to state general municipal law in order to maintain action against state and county for indemnification under Swine Flu Act (42 USCS § 247b(k)(7)). United States v New York, 595 F. Supp. 980, 1984 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 23795 (W.D.N.Y. 1984).

As a potential class action that sought to vindicate the rights of Medicaid recipients whose liens against their personal injury actions allegedly included improper amounts for related services, the action fell within the public interest exception, and plaintiffs, parents and infants, were excused from the notice of claim requirement under N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e. Green v City of New York, 438 F. Supp. 2d 111, 2006 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 48360 (E.D.N.Y. 2006).

Since the minors did not assert any tort claims against the county there was no requirement to file notice under N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e. S.W. v Warren, 528 F. Supp. 2d 282, 2007 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 85166 (S.D.N.Y. 2007).

8. —Dismissal or summary judgment

A complaint seeking damages for a violin stolen from plaintiff's automobile while it was parked in a municipally-owned lot would be dismissed with prejudice where plaintiff, an attorney, failed to serve the notice of claim required by Gen Mun Law § 50-e at least 30 days before filing and serving a complaint and summons, thus preventing defendants from investigating and evaluating the claim and frustrating the legislative intent of the notice requirement. Davidson v Bronx Municipal Hospital, 64 N.Y.2d 59, 484 N.Y.S.2d 533, 473 N.E.2d 761, 1984 N.Y. LEXIS 4776 (N.Y. 1984).

Service of a notice of claim was not required, when a jail inmate alleged that the inmate was sexually assaulted by another inmate in the county jail, because in the absence of any statutory obligation on the county to indemnify the sheriff — as opposed to an agreement to act as the sheriff's insurer — service of a notice of claim was not required. Villar v Howard, 28 N.Y.3d 74, 64 N.E.3d 280, 41 N.Y.S.3d 460, 2016 N.Y. LEXIS 3222 (N.Y. 2016).

Court properly granted city's motion to dismiss on ground that notice of claim was not filed within 90-day period as required under CLS Gen Mun § 50-e even though city had not pleaded untimeliness as affirmative defense in its answer; compliance with notice of claim provisions is condition precedent to suit and must be pleaded in complaint, and defendant need not allege lack of compliance as affirmative defense. Nicholas v New York, 130 A.D.2d 470, 515 N.Y.S.2d 53, 1987 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 46442 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1987).

Defendant physician was entitled to dismissal of action where (1) at time of surgical procedure alleged in complaint, he was resident physician at county medical center, and (2) plaintiffs failed to file notice of claim pursuant to CLS Gen Mun § 50-e and failed to commence action within limitations period of CLS Gen Mun § 50-i. Stanfield v Nohejl, 182 A.D.2d 1138, 586 N.Y.S.2d 765, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7055 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1992).

On motion to dismiss action against New York City and New York City Health and Hospitals Corporation (HHC) on basis that plaintiff incorrectly served notice of claim on city and failed to serve notice of claim on HHC, plaintiff could not avoid dismissal on basis that both city and HHC were represented by corporation counsel since such fact did not provide necessary nexus to equate service of notice of claim on one with service on other; contrary result was not required by fact that city conducted hearing under CLS Gen Mun § 50-h at which plaintiff was examined by HHC attorney. Kroin v City of New York, 210 A.D.2d 95, 620 N.Y.S.2d 339, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12688 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1994).

Trial court did not abuse its discretion by granting municipal power authority's motion for summary judgment and denying the injured parties' cross motion for leave to serve a late notice of claim because the injured parties offered an inadequate excuse for their failure to timely serve a notice of claim, the power authority did not possess actual knowledge of the facts underlying the claim within 90 days after the claim arose, and the power authority would have been prejudiced in its defense by virtue of the long delay between the time the claim arose and the filing of a late notice of claim. Benzinger v Town of Brookhaven, 288 A.D.2d 412, 735 N.Y.S.2d 394, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11345 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2001).

Trial court erred when it denied a village's motion for summary judgment on plaintiff's claims alleging negligent hiring, negligent training, and negligent supervision because plaintiff failed to make those claims in the notice of claim she filed, and they were barred by N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(2). Dixon v Vill. of Spring Valley, 6 A.D.3d 489, 774 N.Y.S.2d 574, 2004 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4446 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2004).

Library was correct that it was entitled to dismissal based upon an employee's noncompliance with the notice of claim condition precedent of N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e as imposed by N.Y. County Law § 52 since there was no evidence that the library or the county actually received the US Equal Employment Opportunity Commission complaint at any time, or within the 90-day period; thus, in the absence of the required notice of claim or evidence establishing substantial compliance with the notice of claim requirement, the employee could not maintain the sexual harassment clam against the library. Grasso v Schenectady County Pub. Lib, 30 A.D.3d 814, 817 N.Y.S.2d 186, 2006 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7968 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2006).

Because a boardwalk constituted a sidewalk within the meaning of N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(4), and because a pedestrian failed to establish that a town had prior written notice of a defective boardwalk, the town's motion for summary judgment should have been granted. Guiliano v Town of Brookhaven, 34 A.D.3d 734, 826 N.Y.S.2d 100, 2006 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 14359 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2006).

Plaintiffs' medical malpractice action should have been dismissed for failure to comply with N.Y. Unconsol. Law § 7401(2) and N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law §§ 50-e(5) and 50-i because before bringing suit, plaintiffs neither served a timely notice of claim nor sought leave to serve a late notice of claim with the one-year-and-90-day limitations period. McGriff v New York City Health & Hosps. Corp., 38 A.D.3d 504, 831 N.Y.S.2d 486, 2007 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2580 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2007).

Supreme court erred in denying a city and police officers' motion to dismiss a former arrestee's false arrest and malicious prosecution claims, because the former arrestee's N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e notice of claim was limited to allegations of assaultive conduct by the police officers and their use of excessive force. There were not, however, any allegations supporting the causes of action for false arrest and malicious prosecution; therefore, those claims were not allowed. Scott v City of New York, 40 A.D.3d 408, 836 N.Y.S.2d 140, 2007 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6075 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2007).

Dismissal should have been granted to a city and the city department of transportation in a motorcyclist's personal injury action, as he failed to serve either the corporation counsel, his designee, or the city comptroller within the statutory period pursuant to General Municipal Law §§ 50-e(1)(a) and 50-i(1)(a). Khela v City of New York, 91 A.D.3d 912, 937 N.Y.S.2d 311, 2012 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 784 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2012).

Trial court should have granted a town's motion for summary judgment in the passengers' personal injury action because the town established that the notice of claim made no allegations that it defectively designed or negligently constructed a roadway and that it had no prior written notice of any alleged defect in the roadway, as required by N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(1)(a) and the town code. Crew v Town of Beekman, 105 A.D.3d 799, 962 N.Y.S.2d 677, 2013 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2314 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2013).

Dismissal of claims by condominium communities and a joint homeowners' association against a village engineer, arising from his issuance of certificates of occupancy for premises that contained construction defects, was not warranted on the basis of the failure to comply with the notice of claim requirements because it was unclear whether the engineer performed the inspections in his capacity as the village engineer or privately. Encore Lake Grove Homeowners Assn., Inc. v Cashin Assoc., P.C., 111 A.D.3d 881, 976 N.Y.S.2d 143, 2013 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7863 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2013).

Trial properly declined to grant a public employee leave to serve a late notice of her whistleblower claim because the employee's ignorance of the notice requirement was not a reasonable excuse for the delay, her complaint to the city department of investigation did not give the employer actual knowledge of the essential facts constituting the claim, and the employer was prejudiced by the delay. Matter of Yan Ping Xu v New York City Dept. of Health & Mental Hygiene, 121 A.D.3d 559, 995 N.Y.S.2d 23, 2014 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7220 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2014), app. denied, 27 N.Y.3d 902, 51 N.E.3d 564, 32 N.Y.S.3d 53, 2016 N.Y. LEXIS 471 (N.Y. 2016), cert. denied, 137 S. Ct. 641, 196 L. Ed. 2d 522, 2017 U.S. LEXIS 592 (U.S. 2017).

Trial court properly granted motions to dismiss filed by a city's department of education, office of payroll administration (OPA), comptrollers (the city defendants), and a teachers union for negligence and breach of fiduciary duty because she failed to serve a notice of claim on the city defendants, her remaining causes of action failed to state claims where she did not timely authorize the United States Treasury to release a refund to OPA, the Labor Law did not provide a private right of action against the union, and OPA sent a claim authorization form to her last known address on three separate occasions. Zito v New York City Off. of Payroll Admin., 130 A.D.3d 1326, 15 N.Y.S.3d 245, 2015 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6146 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2015), app. dismissed, 27 N.Y.3d 962, 56 N.E.3d 903, 36 N.Y.S.3d 623, 2016 N.Y. LEXIS 1644 (N.Y. 2016).

Grant of summary judgment to a transit authority was reversed because plaintiff submitted evidence demonstrating that the transit authority was equitably estopped from asserting failure to timely serve a notice of claim defense under General Municipal Law § 50-e(1)(a) since it wrongfully or negligently engaged in conduct that misled plaintiff to justifiably believe that service of the notice of claim upon a separate transit authority was of no consequence. Konner v New York City Tr. Auth., 143 A.D.3d 774, 39 N.Y.S.3d 475, 2016 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6583 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2016).

Trial court did not err in dismissing the police officers' employment discrimination claim based upon their failure to comply with the notice of claim condition precedent imposed by the city's charter because the charter predated the enactment of the General Municipal Law, was not expressly superseded or repealed thereby, nor was it inconsistent therewith. Matter of Farrell v City of Kingston, 156 A.D.3d 1269, 69 N.Y.S.3d 364, 2017 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9262 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2017).

In a city judge's age discrimination action, the failure to serve a notice of claim required the dismissal state constitutional claims because the action did not fall within the public interest exception to the notice of claim requirement, but the trial court erred in denying the city judge's cross motion for leave to amend the complaint to include federal constitutional claims because, in part, it was a matter of public interest. Mirro v City of New York, 159 A.D.3d 964, 74 N.Y.S.3d 356, 2018 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2077 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2018).

Former teacher failed to serve a timely notice of claim on the city's department of education, in connection with a fraud claim, because, inter alia, the teacher, at the very latest, possessed knowledge of the facts underlying the allegations of fraud as of July 25, 2013, but the notice of claim was served more than 90 days after the accrual date, and the teacher failed to seek leave to serve a late notice of claim. 2018 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5838.

Trial court erred in denying a motion filed by a transportation authority (TA) and a railroad (RR) (jointly, the defendants) to dismiss the ticket holders' putative class action to recover damages for breach of contract and negligence because the holders failed to serve the TA with a notice of claim, the amended complaint did not allege that the holders presented the RR with a demand upon which their action was founded, and that 30 days had elapsed without resolution, and, assuming that the purchase of a monthly commutation ticket established a contractual relationship between the defendants and the holders, the documentary evidence submitted by the defendants conclusively established a defense to the allegations of breach of contract. Jacobs v Metropolitan Transp. Auth., 180 A.D.3d 657, 115 N.Y.S.3d 702, 2020 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 903 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2020).

Trial court properly granted summary judgment to the city as the city demonstrated, prima facie, that the notice of claim filed by plaintiff prior to commencement of the action failed to set forth any allegations of excessive force or false arrest by the police with respect to plaintiff. Lawhorn v City of New York, 186 A.D.3d 1509, 130 N.Y.S.3d 510, 2020 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5148 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2020).

Trial court properly dismissed plaintiff medical student's tort causes of action asserted against defendants because no notice of claim was served upon defendant medical corporation; the remaining claims against defendants, sounding largely in discrimination, failed to state a cause of action because they were premised on laws that did not provide for individual liability, or failed to set forth adequate factual allegations in support of the claims. Attallah v New York Coll. of Osteopathic Medicine, 134 N.Y.S.3d 793, 2020 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8028 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2020).

Failure to comply with the provisions of this section is a jurisdictional defect which could be fatal to the action and require dismissal thereof. Teodoro v Babylon, 56 Misc. 2d 476, 289 N.Y.S.2d 61, 1968 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1604 (N.Y. Dist. Ct. 1968).

An action against the New York City Health and Hospitals Corporation is dismissed where no timely notice of claim was filed pursuant to section 50-e of the General Municipal Law, although service of the summons and complaint was timely. Mills v Glancz, 104 Misc. 2d 1033, 430 N.Y.S.2d 22, 1980 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2444 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1980).

Because a tenant's service of a late notice of claim on the New York City Housing Authority without leave of court was a nullity under N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law §§ 50-e(5), and because she failed to move within one year and 90 days for such leave, her negligence suit against the Authority was dismissed as time-barred under N.Y. Pub. Hous. Law § 157(2). Middleton-Coulibaly v Danco, Inc., 919 N.Y.S.2d 305, 31 Misc. 3d 952, 2011 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 901 (N.Y. Civ. Ct. 2011).

Where plaintiff failed to serve a timely notice of claim under N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(1)(a) on a public corporation, since plaintiff failed to make a timely application pursuant to § 50-e(5) for leave to serve a late notice of claim, the corporation was entitled to dismissal of the complaint. Barnaman v New York City Health & Hosps. Corp., 90 A.D.3d 588, 934 N.Y.S.2d 443, 2011 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8781 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2011).

Transit authorities did not waive their right to assert, in support of their motions to dismiss and for summary judgment, that plaintiff did not meet the notice of claim requirements, because they were under no obligation to plead, as an affirmative defense, her failure to comply with those statutory requirements. Williams v MTA Bus Co., 989 N.Y.S.2d 806, 44 Misc. 3d 673, 2014 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2716 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 2014), vacated, in part, 2017 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1354 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. Apr. 13, 2017).

CLS Gen Mun § 50-e applied to supplemental state tort claims against municipality in civil rights action commenced in federal district court under 42 USCS § 1983, and thus state claims would be dismissed where notice of claim was filed more than 90 days after they arose. Steiner v City of New York, 920 F. Supp. 333, 1996 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 3128 (E.D.N.Y. 1996).

City, police commissioner, and police officer were granted summary judgment on an individual's state law negligence claims where the individual offered no response to their claim that the individual had not filed a notice of claim as required by N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(1)(b) and the time to fulfill the filing requirement had since expired. Maxwell v City of New York, 272 F. Supp. 2d 285, 2003 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 13920 (S.D.N.Y. 2003), aff'd in part, vacated in part, 380 F.3d 106, 2004 U.S. App. LEXIS 16626 (2d Cir. N.Y. 2004), aff'd in part, vacated in part, 108 Fed. Appx. 10, 2004 U.S. App. LEXIS 16627 (2d Cir. N.Y. 2004).

Recycling company's tortious-interference with prospective advantage claim against a city was dismissed for failure to comply with N.Y. Gen. Mun. Laws §§ 50-e(1)(a) and 50-i(1) for the failure to timely serve a notice of claim. Further, the company could not assert equitable estoppel to prevent the dismissal as there was no allegation that the city induced the company not to serve a notice of claim within 90 days of accrual of the company's cause of action. Allocco Recycling, Ltd. v Doherty, 378 F. Supp. 2d 348, 2005 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 14269 (S.D.N.Y. 2005).

Employment discrimination plaintiff's libel and defamation claims were dismissed for failure to serve a timely notice of claim upon the City of New York, a prerequisite to maintaining defamation and libel claims against the city under N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e. Gaston v N.Y City Dept. of Health, Office of Chief Med. Examiner, 432 F. Supp. 2d 321, 2006 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 28303 (S.D.N.Y. 2006).

Pretrial detainee's intentional infliction of emotional distress claim against county employees who allegedly performed an unlawful strip search was dismissed without prejudice because the detainee failed to file a notice of claim as required by N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e. Dzwonczyk v Syracuse City Police Dep't, 710 F. Supp. 2d 248, 2008 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 103315 (N.D.N.Y. 2008).

There was no dispute that the former employee never filed a notice of claim, nor did the employee leave to file a late notice of claim, and as the employee sought enforcement of a private right, as she sought relief in the form of money damages and placement in a tenured position with the school district on the basis that she alone was denied such a position on the basis of her national origin, defendants' motion for summary judgment with respect to the employee's state law claim brought under N.Y. Exec. Law § 296 was granted. Augustin v Enlarged City Sch. Dist. of Newburgh, 616 F. Supp. 2d 422, 2009 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 39949 (S.D.N.Y. 2009).

City was entitled to summary judgment on plaintiff's malicious prosecution claim because plaintiff never filed a notice of the claim as required by N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(1)(a). Anderson v City of New York, 817 F. Supp. 2d 77, 2011 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 106619 (E.D.N.Y. 2011).

9. Retroactive effect

Amendment to claims provision of General Municipal Law had retroactive effect so that court had general discretion to extend time to serve notice before effective date of amendment. Van Horn v New Paltz, 57 A.D.2d 642, 393 N.Y.S.2d 218, 1977 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11669 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1977).

Since amendment vesting courts with broader discretion to consider all relevant facts and circumstances in deciding whether to extend time to serve a notice of claim beyond specified 90-day period is both procedural and remedial, it would be applied to case filed before effective date. Rippe v Rochester, 57 A.D.2d 723, 395 N.Y.S.2d 556, 1977 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11776 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1977).

Provision of General Municipal Law giving court discretion to extend time to serve notice of claim where underlying period of limitation governing cause of action has not expired could not be retroactively applied. Barrow v New York City Housing Authority, 59 A.D.2d 780, 398 N.Y.S.2d 901, 1977 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13837 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1977).

Notice of infant plaintiff's claim, which arose almost 8 ½ years prior to 1976 amendment to CLS Gen Mun § 50-e(5), was governed by prior wording of § 50-e under which notice of claim must have been made within one year after event on which it was based, and such time was not tolled by infancy; expanded guidelines set forth in amended § 50-e(5) are available only to claimants whose tort claims against public corporations accrued within one year prior to September 1, 1976. Lallave v New York, 127 A.D.2d 634, 511 N.Y.S.2d 869, 1987 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 43123 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1987).

Former teachers' notices of claim were timely filed, and their action against school district and others for misrepresentation of retirement benefits was timely commenced, where claim accrued no earlier than date on which defendants notified teachers that their pensions would not include severance benefits, because that was date on which teachers could ascertain their damages. Bellanca v Grand Island Cent. Sch. Dist., 275 A.D.2d 944, 715 N.Y.S.2d 184, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9670 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 2000).

This section did not apply to claims arising prior to its effective date, and hence a notice of claim against the City of New York arising out of a July 28, 1945, accident was valid if filed within the six months' period requirement of the Administrative Code. Everett v New York, 58 N.Y.S.2d 463, 186 Misc. 39, 1945 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2459 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1945).

A claim which was already barred by failure to meet other statutory limitations, when this section took effect, could not be revived by serving notice pursuant to this section. Lotter v Westchester County Park Com., 63 N.Y.S.2d 208, 186 Misc. 377, 1946 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2342 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1946).

Where plaintiff's cause of action against town in connection with fall from water tower owned by town was viable on effective date of amendment giving court discretion to extend 90-day limitation period, application of amendment did not deprive town of vested right and thus was not retrospective. Barrows v Woodstock, 89 Misc. 2d 365, 391 N.Y.S.2d 524, 1977 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1869 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1977).

This section could not be used to aid a plaintiff whose claim was barred under the New York City Administrative Code prior to the effective date of this section. Dismond v New York, 111 N.Y.S.2d 459, 1952 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2523 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1952).

10. Relation to other statutes; Constitutional provisions

Town law requiring service of prior written notice of defect and service of written notice of claim with regard to defects on beach and playground areas was not invalid solely because it was inconsistent with CLS Gen Mun § 50-e(4) since town could supersede state law on matters of local concern in absence of clear expression of contrary intent by state legislature; however, town law was invalid because town failed to comply with requirement of CLS Mun H R § 22(1) that it state its intention to supersede state law with definiteness and explicitness. Walker v Town of Hempstead, 190 A.D.2d 364, 598 N.Y.S.2d 550, 1993 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5455 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1993), aff'd, 84 N.Y.2d 360, 618 N.Y.S.2d 758, 643 N.E.2d 77, 1994 N.Y. LEXIS 3395 (N.Y. 1994).

Police officer was not exempt from requirements of CLS Gen Mun §§ 50-e and 50-i in his action under CLS Gen Mun § 205-e (effective on July 12, 1989) against New York City to recover damages for personal injuries suffered in slip-and-fall accident in course of his employment in city-owned building where action accrued after statute's effective date. Przybyszewski v City of New York, 225 A.D.2d 556, 638 N.Y.S.2d 763, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1933 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1996), app. denied, 1996 N.Y. LEXIS 1758 (N.Y. June 13, 1996), app. denied, 88 N.Y.2d 806, 646 N.Y.S.2d 986, 670 N.E.2d 227, 1996 N.Y. LEXIS 1757 (N.Y. 1996).

In action to recover moneys due under lease, court erred in granting plaintiff's motion for leave to serve late notice of claim where it was undisputed that no such notice was served within 90-day time frame of CLS Racing & Wagering § 618, and CLS Gen Mun § 50-e was inapplicable. Whitestone Shopping Ctr. v New York City Off-Track Betting Corp., 256 A.D.2d 331, 683 N.Y.S.2d 274, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13173 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1998).

In determining whether to enlarge injured child's time to appear for CLS Gen Mun § 50-h examination, court should have considered injured child's infancy, as well as other factors relevant to application for extension of time to file notice of claim under CLS Gen Mun § 50-e(5). Jusino v New York City Hous. Auth., 255 A.D.2d 41, 691 N.Y.S.2d 12, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4346 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1999).

Discretion was providently exercised in allowing leave under N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(5) to serve a late notice of an infant daughter's medical malpractice claim against a county and since there was actual notice of the claim and an absence of prejudice in the delay, the lack of a reasonable excuse for failing to timely serve a notice of claim did not bar the supreme court from granting leave to serve the late notice. The county had actual knowledge of the claim because they had the daughter's medical records at the time of the alleged malpractice and there was no showing of substantial prejudice to the county as a result of the delay where the daughter was protected by the infancy toll under N.Y. C.P.L.R. 208. Nardi v County of Nassau, 18 A.D.3d 520, 795 N.Y.S.2d 300, 2005 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5058 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2005).

The provisions of the Constitution respecting claims barred by lapse of time do not apply to claims against counties or other municipal corporations. Bates v County of Onondaga, 141 N.Y.S.2d 264, 207 Misc. 767, 1955 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2511 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1955).

Court accepted a hospital's assertions that a claimant, who moved for leave to file a late claim for medical malpractice against the hospital, had to comply with the provisions of N.Y. Pub. Auth. Law § 3567(1), and by reference therein, N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e, and upon the merit of the claim the court did grant the motion for leave to file a late claim. Tyson v Roswell Park Cancer Inst. Corp., 780 N.Y.S.2d 704, 4 Misc. 3d 556, 2003 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1922 (N.Y. Ct. Cl. 2003).

11. —Federal law

Former property owner's due process action against city for alleged tax abuse, brought under Federal Civil Rights Act of 1871 (42 USCS § 1983) after property had been sold for nonpayment of taxes, required dismissal where former owner failed to file notice of claim as called for by CLS Gen Mun § 50e or to apply for extension of time to do so within 3 year limitations period; application in Federal civil rights actions of notice of claim requirements of CLS Gen Mun § 50i as limited by § 50e is proper given importance of providing municipality with timely notice, ease of compliance, and opportunity afforded by § 50e of applying for leave to file late notice at any time during full 3 year limitation period. 423 South Salina Street, Inc. v Syracuse, 68 N.Y.2d 474, 510 N.Y.S.2d 507, 503 N.E.2d 63, 1986 N.Y. LEXIS 20894 (N.Y. 1986), cert. denied, 481 U.S. 1008, 107 S. Ct. 1880, 95 L. Ed. 2d 488, 1987 U.S. LEXIS 1595 (U.S. 1987).

Former owner of property which had been sold for nonpayment of taxes could not rely on public interest exception to requirement of CLS Gen Mun § 50e that timely notice of claim be made to municipality where former owner's due process action for alleged tax abuse by city brought under Federal Civil Rights Act of 1871 (42 USCS § 1983) sought relief limited to enforcement of former owner's private rights rather than vindication of rights of similarly situated property owners as class, even though former owner alleged that city had engaged in unlawful practices affecting others. 423 South Salina Street, Inc. v Syracuse, 68 N.Y.2d 474, 510 N.Y.S.2d 507, 503 N.E.2d 63, 1986 N.Y. LEXIS 20894 (N.Y. 1986), cert. denied, 481 U.S. 1008, 107 S. Ct. 1880, 95 L. Ed. 2d 488, 1987 U.S. LEXIS 1595 (U.S. 1987).

Former owner of property which had been sold by city for nonpayment of taxes could not rely on either application for preliminary injunction in prior tax assessment proceeding or notice of claim filed under Eminent Domain Procedure Law to constitute substantial compliance with requirement of CLS Gen Mun § 50e that timely notice of claim be made to municipality in former owner's due process action for damages for tax abuse brought under Federal Civil Rights Act of 1871 (42 USCS § 1983), since neither application for preliminary injunction nor eminent domain claim set forth any claim under Civil Rights Act, eminent domain claim was not filed within required 90 days, former owner did not seek leave to file late notice as permitted by CLS Gen Mun § 50e(5), and no basis existed for lower courts to exercise discretion vested in them by CLS Gen Mun § 50e(6). 423 South Salina Street, Inc. v Syracuse, 68 N.Y.2d 474, 510 N.Y.S.2d 507, 503 N.E.2d 63, 1986 N.Y. LEXIS 20894 (N.Y. 1986), cert. denied, 481 U.S. 1008, 107 S. Ct. 1880, 95 L. Ed. 2d 488, 1987 U.S. LEXIS 1595 (U.S. 1987).

County employees' cause of action against county and individual county defendants alleging violation of 29 USCS § 206(b) (Equal Pay Act) should not have been dismissed on ground of deficient notice of claim; state notice of claim requirements cannot defeat substantive federal right. Summers v County of Monroe, 147 A.D.2d 949, 537 N.Y.S.2d 703, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1294 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't), app. dismissed, 74 N.Y.2d 735, 544 N.Y.S.2d 819, 543 N.E.2d 84, 1989 N.Y. LEXIS 4950 (N.Y. 1989).

Plaintiff's 42 U.S.C.S. § 1983 claim in an amended complaint against a detective predicated on claims of false arrest and imprisonment was improperly dismissed under N.Y. C.P.L.R. 3211(a)(5) because while the state law claims for false arrest and imprisonment had been dismissed, that did not vitiate the related allegations in the original complaint, so relation back pursuant to N.Y. C.P.L.R. 203(f) applied, and notice of claim requirements under N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e did not apply to 42 U.S.C.S. § 1983 claims. Pendleton v City of New York, 44 A.D.3d 733, 843 N.Y.S.2d 648, 2007 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10575 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2007).

In an action to file a late notice of claim regarding the terrorist attacks of September 11, 2001, the Air Transportation Safety and System Stabilization Act of 2001 (ATSSSA), Pub. L. No. 107-42, § 408(b)(1), was not intended to preempt N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e as it only preempted state law damages remedies rather than substantive standards governing liability; requirements relating to a notice of claim under § 50-e did not present an insurmountable barrier to relief under ATSSSA. Matter of Felder v City of New York, 53 A.D.3d 401, 862 N.Y.S.2d 36, 2008 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5849 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't), app. denied, 11 N.Y.3d 707, 868 N.Y.S.2d 599, 897 N.E.2d 1083, 2008 N.Y. LEXIS 3281 (N.Y. 2008).

In federal court, state notice-of-claim statutes apply to state-law claims; on other hand, when federal action is brought in federal court, court has discretion to borrow from state law when there are deficiencies in federal statutory scheme. Hardy v New York City Health & Hosps. Corp., 164 F.3d 789, 1999 U.S. App. LEXIS 567 (2d Cir. N.Y. 1999).

Emergency Medical Treatment and Active Labor Act (EMTALA; 42 USCS § 1395dd(f)) did not preempt New York notice-of-claim requirement under CLS Gen Mun § 50-e since there was no "physical impossibility" complying with both statutes, and state law did not thwart core purpose of EMTALA to prevent hospitals from failing to examine and stabilize uninsured patients who seek emergency treatment. Hardy v New York City Health & Hosps. Corp., 164 F.3d 789, 1999 U.S. App. LEXIS 567 (2d Cir. N.Y. 1999).

District Court will not dismiss plaintiff's federal civil rights action for failure to comply with notice of claim requirement of § 50-e, since it is not incumbent upon federal court to apply procedural rule of forum state when doing so would effectively extinguish important federal right. Williams v Allen, 616 F. Supp. 653, 1985 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 16512 (E.D.N.Y. 1985).

Federal District Court having jurisdiction over civil rights claim will not exercise pendent jurisdiction over otherwise valid state claim of person who concedes noncompliance with notice of claim requirements of §§ 50-e, 50-k. Jenkins v McMickens, 618 F. Supp. 1472, 1985 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 14819 (S.D.N.Y. 1985).

Parents' malicious prosecution claim was barred by the New York State court's denial of the parents' application to file a late notice of claim under N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e, and if the federal constitutional right looked precisely like the state right previously at issue, a plaintiff who lost in state court could not seek a second chance to litigate under 42 U.S.C.S. § 1983; because the same four elements had to be proved for both the tort of malicious prosecution and the related § 1983 violation, the claims were virtually identical, and identically to the state claim, the existence of probable cause was a complete defense to a claim of malicious prosecution under § 1983. The court of appeals found the evidence legally sufficient to support the jury's determination that the officers acted recklessly, and the rule of law announced a day earlier, that depraved indifference to human life was a culpable mental state did not retroactively eliminate probable cause for the parents' arrest or prosecution under N.Y. Penal Law § 120.10(3), notwithstanding the court of appeals' downgrading that conviction. Swinton v City of New York, 785 F. Supp. 2d 3, 2011 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 32384 (E.D.N.Y. 2011).

12. Statutes which are superseded

This section deals only with notices of claim and was not intended to repeal or supersede limitations on time to commence suit found elsewhere, such as in city charters. A limitation on time to sue is nonetheless applicable by way of defense to an action on a tort claim against a municipality because court permission for the late filing or service of notice of claim has been obtained. Sullivan v Watervliet, 285 A.D. 179, 136 N.Y.S.2d 411, 1954 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3305 (N.Y. App. Div. 1954).

Local law which required written notice of defect with respect to "any highway, bridge, culvert, or any other property" owned by town as condition precedent to commencement of action against town was constitutional; fact that local law required prior written notice in situations not covered by CLS Gen Mun § 50-e or CLS Town § 65-a did not render it inconsistent, since none of its provisions were in direct conflict with those general laws. Barsh v Union, 126 A.D.2d 311, 513 N.Y.S.2d 875, 1987 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 41235 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1987).

90-day notice of claim period prescribed in CLS Gen Mun § 50-e supersedes 6-month period prescribed in CLS Pub A § 569-a(2). Guillan v Triborough Bridge & Tunnel Auth., 202 A.D.2d 472, 609 N.Y.S.2d 38, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2405 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't), app. denied, 84 N.Y.2d 809, 621 N.Y.S.2d 518, 645 N.E.2d 1218, 1994 N.Y. LEXIS 4145 (N.Y. 1994).

CLS Gen Mun § 205-e(2) applies only to actions which accrued between January 1, 1987 and its effective date of July 12, 1989; thus, since police officer's action against New York City Transit Authority accrued on June 28, 1992, he was not exempt from notice of claim requirements under CLS Pub A § 1212 and CLS Gen Mun § 50-e. Huebner v New York City Transit Auth., 226 A.D.2d 678, 641 N.Y.S.2d 720, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4600 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1996).

This section superseded provisions of local laws inconsistent therewith, and, as to subsequent claims, the time to serve notice of claim was reduced to that herein specified. Mahony v Long Beach, 66 N.Y.S.2d 278, 187 Misc. 4, 1946 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3036 (N.Y. County Ct. 1946).

This section likewise supersedes provisions of the Public Authorities Law, and notice was untimely where served more than 90 days after accident. Allmeroth v Triborough Bridge & Tunnel Authority, 133 N.Y.S.2d 777, 206 Misc. 529, 1954 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2435 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1954).

The filing of a notice of claim against a municipal corporation is not a civil right which is suspended by the Penal Law during a sentence in a state prison. Bates v County of Onondaga, 141 N.Y.S.2d 264, 207 Misc. 767, 1955 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2511 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1955).

The notice of claim provisions of this section supersede the provisions of § 10 of the Playland Commission Act with respect to required manner of service of notice of claim on the Commission, and an action against the Commission has to be dismissed where there is failure both to allege and prove service as required hereunder. Menter v Westchester County Playland Com., 42 Misc. 2d 4, 246 N.Y.S.2d 260, 1963 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1512 (N.Y. County Ct. 1963).

CPLR 205 (subd [a]), which provides, if an action is timely commenced and is terminated in a manner other than by a voluntary discontinuance or a dismissal of the complaint for neglect to prosecute or a final judgment on the merits, a new action may be commenced within six months, applies only to time limitations and does not apply to section 50-e of the General Municipal Law, which requires the filing of a notice of tort claim against a municipality within 90 days after the claim arises; the 90-day notice of claim is a mandatory condition precedent. Accordingly, plaintiff having failed to serve a notice of claim upon the defendant city within 90 days, a motion by defendant to dismiss the complaint is granted. Glamm v Amsterdam, 94 Misc. 2d 991, 405 N.Y.S.2d 993, 1978 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2333 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1978), aff'd, 67 A.D.2d 1056, 413 N.Y.S.2d 512, 1979 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10871 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1979).

CLS Gen Mun § 50-e(4) barred application of local prior written notice ordinance in action against county for injuries sustained by infant in fall from horizontal ladder at playground, since defective condition of playground is not physical condition of street, highway, bridge or sidewalk. Norden by Norden v County of Sullivan, 161 Misc. 2d 915, 615 N.Y.S.2d 560, 1994 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 321 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1994).

13. —Coequal statutes

By fair construction, the General Municipal Law provision requiring a personal injury action against a county to be commenced within one year and 90 days after the event can coexist with the Highway Law provision stating that a county is liable for injuries sustained due to a defective highway but that the county shall not be liable unless a notice of claim shall have been made and served and the action commenced within one year from the date of service; thus, in the instant case, since plaintiff complied with the Highway Law, her wrongful death action was not subject to dismissal, even though the county was not served with summons and complaint until more than two years after accident. Forero v Tuxedo, 51 A.D.2d 443, 382 N.Y.S.2d 328, 1976 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11101 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1976).

14. —Statutes which supersede

Plaintiff may provide notice of intention to commence personal injury action against New York City Health and Hospitals Corporation (HHC) by serving notice of claim on New York City's Corporation Counsel rather than on officer or director of HHC. Viruet v City of New York, 97 N.Y.2d 171, 738 N.Y.S.2d 2, 763 N.E.2d 1143, 2001 N.Y. LEXIS 3419 (N.Y. 2001).

A sheriff or deputy sheriff can be sued individually without prior service of notice of claim, for damages arising out of his negligence or misconduct, notwithstanding the provisions of this section and § 52 of the County Law, since, under Const. Art. 9 § 5, a county is not liable for his acts. Kawar v Martin, 12 A.D.2d 876, 210 N.Y.S.2d 68, 1961 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13497 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1961).

Since Title 8 (§§ 700–717) of the Public Authorities Law contains no requirement for the filing of a claim as a condition precedent to the beginning of an action against the Ogdensburg Bridge Authority established thereby although § 1397 of the same law makes applicable to an action against the Ogdensburg Port Authority the notice provision of § 50-e of the General Municipal Law, and the statute merging the two authorities as the Ogdensburg Bridge and Port Authority (Public Authorities Law §§ 725–734) provides in § 734 that the provisions of the Bridge Authority Act shall take precedence over those of the Port Authority Act and also provides in § 732 that no existing right or remedy shall be lost or otherwise affected by reason of this subsequent enactment, an action arising earlier than the period of 90 days provided by the General Municipal Law § 50-e before the coming into effect of such subsequent statute was held to be within the intention of the saving clause of Public Authorities Law § 732 as above stated and hence could be brought without compliance with § 50-e of the General Municipal Law. But the court specifically stated that it did not pass on the question whether the same result would obtain in an action founded upon a tort arising after the effective date of the act which merged the two authorities. Tarbell v Ogdensburg Bridge & Port Authority, 23 A.D.2d 447, 261 N.Y.S.2d 429, 1965 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3530 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1965).

Public Authorities Law § 1569-q, which is a special law enacted subsequently to General Municipal Law § 50-e, supersedes the notice requirements of General Municipal Law § 50-e. Reinhart v Troy Parking Authority, 36 A.D.2d 654, 318 N.Y.S.2d 852, 1971 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4789 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1971).

In an action arising out of the death of plaintiff's decedent after he was struck by a pleasure boat while crabbing within the navigable waters of the state, the defendant town's motion to dismiss the complaint for failure to comply with the notice of claim provisions of Gen Mun Law §§ 50-e and 50-i was properly denied, since in an action governed by general maritime law, state statutes do not operate so as to interfere with a plaintiff's substantive admiralty rights and thus the notice of claim provisions of the General Municipal Law are inapplicable. Scholl v Babylon, 95 A.D.2d 475, 466 N.Y.S.2d 976, 1983 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 19644 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1983).

Section 50-e of the General Municipal Law has no application to a claim filed under § 197 of the Highway Law, as such a claim is obviously not founded upon tort. Application of Cataldo, 25 Misc. 2d 489, 203 N.Y.S.2d 544, 1960 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2847 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1960), aff'd, 13 A.D.2d 779, 216 N.Y.S.2d 680, 1961 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11208 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1961).

The filing of a notice of claim according to the requirements of section 50-e of the General Municipal Law or sections 52 and 369 of the County Law is not a condition precedent to the commencement of an action upon a claim commenced in the Small Claims Part of a City Court against a municipality based upon tort or contract, since such statutes are procedural in nature and the Legislature in adopting section 1804 of the Uniform City Court Act has abolished the requirement that Small Claims Part be bound by such procedural statutes. Johnson v Timmerman, 92 Misc. 2d 626, 401 N.Y.S.2d 149, 1978 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1957 (N.Y. County Ct. 1978).

Had the Legislature intended to create uniformity, it could have amended § 1212 of the Public Authorities Law when this section was modified by § 50-h and § 50-i, but it failed to do so and hence the time limit fixed by § 1212 for serving notice of claim remains applicable to claims presented under that section. Heeren v New York City Transit Authority, 231 N.Y.S.2d 993, 1962 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 4176 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1962).

Statute of limitation period prescribed by CLS General Municipal Law § 50-e which requires the filing of a notice of claim within 90 days of the alleged tortious conduct, and the statute of limitation period of one year and 90 days prescribed by CLS General Municipal Law § 50-i, also applicable to alleged tortious conduct, are not applicable to actions commenced under 42 USCS § 1983; the statute of limitations applicable to such federal actions is the three-year period prescribed by CLS CPLR § 214(2). Altaire Builders, Inc. v Horseheads, 551 F. Supp. 1066, 1982 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 16155 (W.D.N.Y. 1982), disapproved, RRI Realty Corp. v Southampton, 870 F.2d 911, 1989 U.S. App. LEXIS 4753 (2d Cir. N.Y. 1989)).

Employee's Title VII civil rights action against community college, dean of students, and department chair is not dismissed, where employee did not serve notice of claim on county prior to bringing action, because application of notice-of-claim provisions would alter important rights created by Title VII. Tout v Erie Community College, 923 F. Supp. 13, 1995 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 20796 (W.D.N.Y. 1995).

II. Public Corporations

15. In general

Use of word "only" in definition of "municipal corporation" created certain and definite restriction on meaning of term, precluding judicial inclusion of public benefit corporation. Bender v Jamaica Hosp., 40 N.Y.2d 560, 388 N.Y.S.2d 269, 356 N.E.2d 1228, 1976 N.Y. LEXIS 3039 (N.Y. 1976).

Evidence that claimant's inability to speak English contributed to delay of service of malicious prosecution claim on city, and that city had knowledge of potential claim, absent allegation of disabilities specified in statute, did not permit late service of notice of claim on city. Torres v New York, 50 A.D.2d 826, 376 N.Y.S.2d 6, 1975 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11673 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1975).

Cause of action in tort does not accrue, or arise, for purposes of both statute of limitations and section pertaining to notice of claim against public corporation until all requisite elements of tort have been satisfied. Beary v Rye, 59 A.D.2d 905, 399 N.Y.S.2d 140, 1977 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 14108 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1977), rev'd, 44 N.Y.2d 398, 406 N.Y.S.2d 9, 377 N.E.2d 453, 1978 N.Y. LEXIS 1960 (N.Y. 1978).

The failure to present a claim against a municipality within the applicable time period ordinarily operates to bar any claim or action against it for that particular cause of action, and it is of no consequence that the claim is asserted as a counterclaim in an action initiated by the municipality. Hart v East Plaza, Inc., 62 A.D.2d 113, 403 N.Y.S.2d 928, 1978 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10425 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't), app. dismissed, 45 N.Y.2d 706, 408 N.Y.S.2d 1025, 1978 N.Y. LEXIS 3070 (N.Y. 1978).

The timely filing of a notice of claim against a municipality, whether in contract or tort, is generally a condition precedent to the maintenance of such a claim, and compliance with that condition precedent should be pleaded and proved by the claimant. Hart v East Plaza, Inc., 62 A.D.2d 113, 403 N.Y.S.2d 928, 1978 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10425 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't), app. dismissed, 45 N.Y.2d 706, 408 N.Y.S.2d 1025, 1978 N.Y. LEXIS 3070 (N.Y. 1978).

Notwithstanding the enactment of § 50-i by ch. 788, Laws of 1959, this section is still applicable to commencement of actions and time limitations with respect to claims against "public corporations" other than those specifically listed and dealt with in § 50-i, including the Playland Commission of Westchester County, which is a distinct type of public corporation. Oraczewski v Westchester County, 32 Misc. 2d 217, 221 N.Y.S.2d 485, 1961 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2214 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1961).

The notice of claim procedure provided in this section does not automatically apply to all public corporations, but only to those where such notice is required by law as a condition precedent to the commencement of an action founded upon tort. Harrigan v Smithtown, 54 Misc. 2d 793, 283 N.Y.S.2d 424, 1967 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1199 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1967).

An action against a public corporation as defined in § 3(1) of the General Corporation Law, or any officer, appointee or employee thereof, requiring service of a notice of claim must follow the provisions of this section. Harrigan v Smithtown, 54 Misc. 2d 793, 283 N.Y.S.2d 424, 1967 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1199 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1967).

In a particular case involving a nonvehicular tort if it is found and determined that there is a public corporate responsibility to indemnify the alleged tortfeasor, the public corporation becomes the real party in interest and in any such case there must be a compliance with General Municipal Law §§ 50-e and 50-i. Sorge v New York, 56 Misc. 2d 414, 288 N.Y.S.2d 787, 1968 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1650 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1968).

The requirement of proper notice under General Municipal Law § 50-e, applies to officers, appointees and employees of municipalities as well as to the municipality itself. Ballin v Larkin, 62 Misc. 2d 949, 310 N.Y.S.2d 402, 1970 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1920 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1970), modified, 36 A.D.2d 530, 318 N.Y.S.2d 568, 1971 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4912 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1971).

16. City and its employees

Section 50-e of the General Municipal Law is a general law, which is defined as one which in terms and in effect applies alike to all counties, all counties other than those wholly included within a city, all cities, all towns, or all villages. Zumbo v Farmington, 60 A.D.2d 350, 401 N.Y.S.2d 121, 1978 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9680 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1978).

In an action by property owners against a municipality to recover damages allegedly caused when defendants unlawfully came upon plaintiffs' property, cut down numerous trees and removed large quantities of earth in connection with a town highway improvement program, the trial court erred in finding that plaintiffs' notice of claim had been timely filed where the notice had not been filed within 90 days of the latest date on which plaintiffs alleged their claims arose as required by Gen Mun Law § 50-e subd. 1; further, while a court is vested with broad discretion in determining whether to extend the time for serving a notice of claim, it cannot extend the period beyond the time limit for commencement of an action against a municipality. Gaynor v Hoosick, 85 A.D.2d 844, 446 N.Y.S.2d 475, 1981 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 16673 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1981), aff'd, 58 N.Y.2d 699, 458 N.Y.S.2d 544, 444 N.E.2d 1008, 1982 N.Y. LEXIS 3917 (N.Y. 1982).

Vehicle owner could not, under N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(1)(b), avoid the requirement of providing a town with notice of his claim for return of his vehicle, prior to filing suit, by suing municipal employees instead of the town, because of the town's statutory obligation to indemnify its employees. Smith v Scott, 294 A.D.2d 11, 740 N.Y.S.2d 425, 2002 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3561 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2002).

Where the injured party asserted that the injured party served the notice of claim on the City of New York agency, such service, if received, was invalid under N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(3)(c); there was no evidence that the notice was actually forward to and received by the corporation counsel or the comptroller within 90 days of the accident as required by N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(1)(a), and since the injured party failed to make a timely application for leave to serve a late notice of claim pursuant to N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(5), the agency was entitled to dismissal of the complaint insofar as it was asserted against the agency. Herrera v Duncan, 13 A.D.3d 485, 787 N.Y.S.2d 88, 2004 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 15846 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2004).

City hospital's records of a newly born child indicated that she had foot gangrene and had misadventure during her medical care so the city was on notice under N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(5) that it was subject to the child's claim even though the claim was filed four years after her discharge. The city was also not prejudiced by the child's motion, that she made four years after serving the late claim, for the late claim to be allowed since the city acknowledged that it had actually been served with the late claim. Caminero v N.Y. City Health & Hosps. Corp., 21 A.D.3d 330, 800 N.Y.S.2d 173, 2005 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8800 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2005).

Where both the employees and the City of New York are sued as defendants, and the employees are entitled to indemnity, then a claim against all the defendants must be filed with the city in accordance with General Municipal Law § 50-e and suit must be instituted pursuant to General Municipal Law § 50-i. Sorge v New York, 56 Misc. 2d 414, 288 N.Y.S.2d 787, 1968 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1650 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1968).

City of New York is "municipal corporation" under CLS Gen Const § 66(2), and is therefore "public corporation" under CLS Gen Const § 66(1), to which CLS Gen Mun § 50-e(1)(a), setting forth requirements of notice of claim, applies. Viruet v City of New York, 181 Misc. 2d 958, 695 N.Y.S.2d 663, 1999 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 366 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1999), aff'd, 277 A.D.2d 33, 715 N.Y.S.2d 406, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11296 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2000).

City police officers were not entitled to summary judgment on an arrestee's state law claims because the city had no obligation to indemnify the officers for violations at common law and, thus, the arrestee was not required to name them in his notice of claim against the city. Grays v City of New Rochelle, 354 F. Supp. 2d 323, 2005 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 1593 (S.D.N.Y. 2005).

New York City and its insurer breached a settlement agreement with workers who were injured due to performing clean-up work at the World Trade Center site; contingent payments were due because the number of new claims against the City and its contractors that were active on a specified date did not exceed a certain threshold. Many cases that were filed in order to meet state and federal statutory deadlines were withdrawn or dismissed prior to the specified date. In re World Trade Ctr. Disaster Site Litig., 879 F. Supp. 2d 396, 2012 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 98451 (S.D.N.Y. 2012), rev'd, 754 F.3d 114, 2014 U.S. App. LEXIS 10681 (2d Cir. N.Y. 2014).

Notice of a lawsuit against a city was sufficient because each individual defendant did not have to be named in the notice in order for the notice to be effective and thus, a city received sufficient notice of the need to investigate a certain officer's conduct. Garcia v Cty. of Westchester, 2017 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 191980 (S.D.N.Y. Nov. 20, 2017).

17. College

Notice of claim under CLS Gen Mun §§ 50-e and 50-i was condition precedent to tort action against trustees of Schenectady County Community College since county has statutory obligation to indemnify its employees under CLS Educ § 6308, and thus claimant must comply with provisions of law pertaining to commencement of action against county (set forth in CLS County § 52) even if she chooses to sue only county's employees; CLS Educ § 6308 does not relieve claimant of responsibility for giving notice under other laws. Butterfield v Board of Trustees, 131 A.D.2d 963, 516 N.Y.S.2d 544, 1987 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 48371 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1987).

In an action against a community college outside the City of New York, compliance with County Law § 52 and General Municipal Law §§ 50-e, 50-i is not a condition precedent to maintenance of the action. Brown v North Country Community College, 63 Misc. 2d 442, 311 N.Y.S.2d 517, 1970 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1527 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1970).

In personal injury claim against Fashion Institute of Technology, requirements of CLS Gen Mun § 50-e must be met, since only board of education or trustees are amenable to suit, and proper forum would be either Supreme Court or New York City Civil Court, and not Court of Claims. Amato v State, 131 Misc. 2d 1049, 502 N.Y.S.2d 928, 1986 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2615 (N.Y. Ct. Cl. 1986).

County college was entitled to dismissal of small claims action by plaintiff (former student) who sought to recover full refund of semester's tuition after she was forced to drop math class at college's direction after semester had already begun, where plaintiff did not file requisite notice of claim under CLS Gen Mun § 50-e and CLS County § 52. Carren v Westchester County Community College, 176 Misc. 2d 490, 674 N.Y.S.2d 576, 1998 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 122 (N.Y. City Ct. 1998).

18. County

In an action to determine adverse claims of title to real estate and to recover damages for trespass brought against a town and county, it was held that no statutory notice of claim was necessary as a prerequisite to the action against the town. However, the action against the county was governed by § 52 of the County Law, and plaintiff could not maintain such an action without compliance with §§ 50-e and 50-i of the General Municipal Law. Seabreeze Marina at Smithtown, Inc. v Smithtown, 25 A.D.2d 780, 269 N.Y.S.2d 662, 1966 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4497 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1966).

Plaintiff's complaint in an action to determine adverse claims of title to realty, damages for trespass, and for injunctive and other relief failed to state a cause of action against the County of Suffolk, where the complaint did not allege compliance with the statutory notice requirements of §§ 50-e and 50-i of the General Municipal Law. Seabreeze Marina at Smithtown, Inc. v Smithtown, 25 A.D.2d 780, 269 N.Y.S.2d 662, 1966 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4497 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1966).

Since Chemung County was the sole party liable for damages, if any, caused by an alleged nuisance created by the Chemung County Sewer Dist. No. 1, service of a notice of claim on the county pursuant to the provisions of § 50-e of the General Municipal Law was a prerequisite to the commencement of the cause of action. Tom Sawyer Motor Inns, Inc. v Chemung County Sewer Dist., 33 A.D.2d 720, 305 N.Y.S.2d 408, 1969 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2797 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1969).

Section 50-e of the General Municipal Law is a general law, which is defined as one which in terms and in effect applies alike to all counties, all counties other than those wholly included within a city, all cities, all towns, or all villages. Zumbo v Farmington, 60 A.D.2d 350, 401 N.Y.S.2d 121, 1978 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9680 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1978).

County was entitled to summary judgment in a former employee's action alleging a violation of the Public Sector Whistleblower Law because the employee's complaint sought damages for wrongful termination but the employee failed to serve a notice of claim within 90 days after the claim for retaliatory termination arose. Sager v County of Sullivan, 145 A.D.3d 1175, 41 N.Y.S.3d 443, 2016 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7987 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2016), app. denied, 29 N.Y.3d 902, 80 N.E.3d 399, 57 N.Y.S.3d 706, 2017 N.Y. LEXIS 698 (N.Y. 2017).

Statutes requiring notice of claim and limiting time for commencement of action apply to a county, as a municipal corporation. Lewis County v Diana, 67 N.Y.S.2d 618, 188 Misc. 376, 1947 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1993 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1947), aff'd, 273 A.D. 943, 79 N.Y.S.2d 188, 1948 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5383 (N.Y. App. Div. 1948).

Third-party complaint by city against county, on ground of county's negligence in leaving manhole uncovered, was dismissed where it failed to allege service of notice of claim on county. Keesler v Peekskill, 1 Misc. 2d 744, 152 N.Y.S.2d 919, 1955 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2121 (N.Y. County Ct. 1955).

In an action against a county and doctors who certified to plaintiff's insanity, defendants could avail themselves of the requirements of the County Law with respect to notice of claim. Dill v County of Westchester, 5 Misc. 2d 869, 160 N.Y.S.2d 957, 1957 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3400 (N.Y. Sup. Ct.), aff'd, 4 A.D.2d 779, 165 N.Y.S.2d 623, 1957 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4739 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1957).

In action against county for damages as the result of the alleged invasion of plaintiff's property rights, complaint dismissed where there was no allegation that notice had been served upon the county attorney. Covello v County of Suffolk, 9 Misc. 2d 72, 167 N.Y.S.2d 510, 1957 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2471 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1957).

Fact that county first initiated litigation against defendant motorist does not relieve the defendant from complying with the provisions of General Municipal Law §§ 50-e and 50-i relating to service of notice of claim, where the defendant seeks affirmative relief by way of a counterclaim, and counterclaim should be dismissed in the absence of such compliance. County of Nassau v Wolfe, 51 Misc. 2d 848, 273 N.Y.S.2d 984, 1966 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1410 (N.Y. Dist. Ct. 1966).

There is no specific statutory requirement making the filing of a claim a condition precedent to a contract action and in the absence of such a provision an action is maintainable without prior presentation of a claim. Thus patrolman was entitled to bring action against county for recovery of salary and fringe benefits during period of suspension even though he filed no notice of claim. Meed v Nassau County Police Dep't, 70 Misc. 2d 274, 332 N.Y.S.2d 679, 1972 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1920 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1972).

A personal injury action against a county transit system by a passenger who had been injured on one of the system's buses would not be dismissed on the basis of plaintiff's failure to file a notice of claim pursuant to Gen Mun Law § 50-e(1)(b), since, though the Court of Appeals decided after plaintiff's injury occurred that the laws creating the transit system imposed a statutory duty upon the county to operate the system and that, consequently, the statutory notice of claim requirements applied to actions against the system, such decision would be applied only prospectively in that such decision overruled clear past precedent on which litigants had a right to rely, the intent of the statute that municipalities receive actual, prompt notice of future claims had been satisfied, the equities of the situation clearly preponderated in favor of allowing plaintiff her day in court, and the county suffered no prejudice as a result of plaintiff's failure to provide it with formal notice. James v Liberty Lines, 119 Misc. 2d 1060, 465 N.Y.S.2d 144, 1983 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3644 (N.Y. Sup. Ct.), rev'd, 97 A.D.2d 749, 468 N.Y.S.2d 380, 1983 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 20491 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1983).

N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(a) requires a notice of claim to be filed as a precondition to the commencement of an action against a public corporation; an individual's intentional infliction of emotional distress claim was dismissed because he had failed to allege that the conduct of a county and its employees was so outrageous in character that it went beyond all possible bounds of decency and the individual had failed to file a notice of his claim with the county as required under § 50-e(a). Rivas v Suffolk County, 326 F. Supp. 2d 355, 2004 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 13599 (E.D.N.Y. 2004).

In a suit by a former county parks department employee and his guardian ad litem (plaintiffs) against a city and three supervisory parks department employees, alleging disability discrimination, although plaintiffs failed to file a required notice prior to commencing litigation, they were able to maintain their state law claims against the supervisory employees because service of notice of claim was not a condition precedent under N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(1)(b) to the commencement of a suit against a county's employees or agents unless the county was required to indemnify the individuals, and the supervisors' alleged actions against the employee fell outside the scope of their employment. Costabile v County of Westchester, 485 F. Supp. 2d 424, 2007 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 33484 (S.D.N.Y. 2007).

When a county was sued for denying a concert promoter a permit, and the promoter subsequently alleged that the county and the county's employees spoliated evidence, the date on which the county's duty to preserve evidence arose was the date on which the county was served with notice of the promoter's claim against the county, because the county should have known, as of that date, that all documents related to the promoter's permit application might be relevant to future litigation. Field Day, LLC v County of Suffolk, 2010 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 28476 (E.D.N.Y. Mar. 25, 2010).

When a county was sued for denying a concert promoter a permit, and the promoter subsequently alleged that the county and the county's employees spoliated evidence, the date on which the employees' duty to preserve evidence arose was the date on which the promoter filed suit because it was not shown that the employees were served with notice of the promoter's claim against the county. Field Day, LLC v County of Suffolk, 2010 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 28476 (E.D.N.Y. Mar. 25, 2010).

19. —Equity

Any claim or notice of claim against a county for damages arising at law or in equity must be made and served in compliance with section 50-e of the General Municipal Law and the action must be commenced pursuant to the provisions of section 50-i of the General Municipal Law (County Law, § 52); in an equitable action seeking only injunctive relief, it is unnecessary to file a notice of claim. Malcuria v Seneca, 66 A.D.2d 421, 414 N.Y.S.2d 401, 1979 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10029 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1979).

Although it is unnecessary to file a notice of claim in an equitable action against a county seeking only injunctive relief, inasmuch as any claim or notice of claim against a county for damages arising at law or in equity must be made and served in compliance with section 50-e of the General Municipal Law and the action must be commenced pursuant to the provisions of section 50-i of the General Municipal Law (County Law, § 52), if plaintiffs do not file a notice of claim pursuant to section 52 of the County Law and the complaint seeks both injunctive and monetary relief, a motion to dismiss the cause of action for damages is granted, leaving a viable cause of action for injunctive relief; plaintiffs should not be permitted to frustrate the legitimate purposes of the notice-of-claim statutes by grafting a claim for monetary damages to a claim seeking injunctive relief. Malcuria v Seneca, 66 A.D.2d 421, 414 N.Y.S.2d 401, 1979 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10029 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1979).

20. Transit system operators

In a personal injury action against defendant, a private corporation which contractually operated buses with a county which owned the buses and leased them to defendant, the Appellate Division improperly granted plaintiff's motion to strike defendant's affirmative defense that the action could not be maintained because plaintiffs failed to file a notice of claim required by Gen Mun Law § 50-e, where the local law creating the transit system imposed on the county a statutory duty to operate it, and where the imposition of such duty created an obligation that the county indemnify defendant for any damages recovered against it, thereby requiring a notice of claim against the county. Coleman v Westchester Street Transp. Co., 57 N.Y.2d 734, 454 N.Y.S.2d 978, 440 N.E.2d 1324, 1982 N.Y. LEXIS 3659 (N.Y. 1982).

Carrier, which operated bus owned by county as part of county's public transit system, was entitled to dismissal of action for injuries sustained when plaintiff's vehicle collided with bus since plaintiff did not serve notice of claim on county; notice of claim was required since local laws which created county's transit system imposed on county duty to operate system and created obligation to indemnify bus line for any damages recovered against it. Singer v Liberty Lines, 183 A.D.2d 820, 584 N.Y.S.2d 111, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7140 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1992).

While county, which allegedly owned the bus in which plaintiff was a passenger at time of accident, was not named a party defendant in action brought against transportation company which leased and operated the bus, there was no need for plaintiff to serve a late notice of claim against the county as a condition precedent to commencing her action against the transportation company only, irrespective of whatever agreement might exist between county and transportation company concerning indemnity for negligence. Rhodes v Westchester Street Transp. Co., 80 Misc. 2d 1021, 365 N.Y.S.2d 351, 1974 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1937 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1974).

21. Fire district

This section is inapplicable to fire districts, at least with respect to the liability cast upon them by § 205-b arising from negligence of volunteer firemen in operation of their fire vehicles. Seyer v

Schoen, 6 A.D.2d 177, 175 N.Y.S.2d 1003, 1958 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5122 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1958).

Where a complaint alleged only that defendants were members and officers of a volunteer fire department, the requirements of this section as to notice of claim were inapplicable, the department being merely an unincorporated association. O'Neil v Foley, 6 A.D.2d 739, 174 N.Y.S.2d 280, 1958 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5810 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1958).

Trial court acted within its discretion by permitting an ambulance patient to file a late notice of claim because the ambulance report suggested injury attributable to malpractice and provided the rescue squads with actual knowledge of the essential facts constituting the claim, and the rescue squads were not prejudiced by the delay in serving a late notice of claim; the patient was rendered a partial quadriplegic. Ballantine v Pine Plains Hose Co., Inc., 166 A.D.3d 718, 87 N.Y.S.3d 245, 2018 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7739 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2018).

Claimant was not permitted to add the Fire District as a defendant because although a notice of claim was served upon the volunteer company, there was no evidence the claimant served a notice of claim specifically upon the Fire District, and timely service of the notice of claim upon the company did not equate to timely service upon the Fire District. Roberts v Coeymans Hollow Volunteer Fire Co., 168 A.D.3d 1144, 91 N.Y.S.3d 590, 2019 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 47 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), app. denied, 33 N.Y.3d 903, 124 N.E.3d 256, 100 N.Y.S.3d 706, 2019 N.Y. LEXIS 1299 (N.Y. 2019).

General Municipal Law § 50-i, which provides that no action shall be maintained for personal injury by reason of the negligence of any volunteer fireman whose services have been accepted pursuant to § 209-i, unless a notice is served pursuant to General Municipal Law § 50-e is misleading, because prior to September 1, 1963, the requirements of General Municipal Law § 50-e did not apply to a claim against a fire district which arose out of the negligence of volunteer firemen, pursuant to General Municipal Law § 205-b. Hopkins v East Syracuse Fire Dist., 49 Misc. 2d 197, 267 N.Y.S.2d 61, 1966 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2216 (N.Y. City Ct. 1966).

22. Jail

Notice of claim provisions of General Municipal Law did not apply to action brought by inmates of Monroe County Jail alleging that jail authorities violated Federal Civil Rights Act of 1871 by failing to afford adequate medical treatment to inmates. Cooper v Morin, 50 A.D.2d 32, 375 N.Y.S.2d 928, 1975 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11423 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1975).

Civil Rights L § 79 did not suspend civil rights of individual incarcerated in county jail and thus he was under no legal disability to file notice of claim against the city for false imprisonment pursuant to Gen Mun L § 50-e. Clair v Utica, 72 Misc. 2d 547, 339 N.Y.S.2d 616, 1972 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2224 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1972).

23. Medical facilities

City hospital was not estopped, on grounds of its alleged failure to publicize its municipal status, from asserting defense to malpractice action that statutes required 90-day notice of claim against it. Guarrera v Lee Mem. Hosp., 51 A.D.2d 867, 380 N.Y.S.2d 161, 1976 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11485 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't), app. dismissed, 39 N.Y.2d 942, 1976 N.Y. LEXIS 3538 (N.Y. 1976).

Assuming that state was under no obligation to consent to any tort liability, but that it was required to implement reasonable procedural rules by which liability could be adjudicated once it assumed such an obligation, shortness of statutory 90-day period of limitation for filing notice of claim against county hospital for negligence allegedly committed in treating five-year-old infant plaintiff was not so unreasonable as to be violative of due process, where it was clear from complaint that mother of child was aware that child had suffered some injury before 90 days had elapsed and, though burdened with showing unconstitutional effect of limitation, plaintiffs failed even to explain why they were not able to serve required notice of claim. Pausley v Chaloner, 54 A.D.2d 131, 388 N.Y.S.2d 35, 1976 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13736 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1976), app. dismissed, 41 N.Y.2d 900, 1977 N.Y. LEXIS 3304 (N.Y. 1977), app. denied, 41 N.Y.2d 805, 1977 N.Y. LEXIS 3061 (N.Y. 1977).

Provision of General Municipal Law requiring, as a condition of any tort action against a municipality, the notice of claim be served upon municipality within 90 days after claim arises was not subject to being stricken in suit against county hospital as violative of equal protection on ground that there was no difference between public and private hospitals inasmuch as plaintiffs had no right of action for alleged negligence in performance of a governmental function at common law and it was only by virtue of waiver of immunity by legislature in certain instances that plaintiffs had any access to courts at all. Pausley v Chaloner, 54 A.D.2d 131, 388 N.Y.S.2d 35, 1976 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13736 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1976), app. dismissed, 41 N.Y.2d 900, 1977 N.Y. LEXIS 3304 (N.Y. 1977), app. denied, 41 N.Y.2d 805, 1977 N.Y. LEXIS 3061 (N.Y. 1977).

In a malpractice action arising out of the defendant doctor's allegedly negligent treatment of plaintiff at a New York City ambulatory care facility, the defendant's motion for summary judgment dismissing the complaint is granted, the Court of Appeals having determinined on a prior appeal involving the defendant's attempt to implead the city that the facility was a public institution maintained in part by the City of New York within the meaning of subdivision 1 of section 50-d of the General Municipal Law and that, accordingly, the city was required to indemnify the doctor, since plaintiff failed to comply with subdivision 2 of section 50-d of the General Municipal Law in that no notice of claim was served on the city pursuant to section 50-e of the General Municipal Law and the action was commenced well beyond the one-year and three-month Statute of Limitations provided in section 50-i of the General Municipal Law; the fact that the city did not interpose the statutory defenses in the prior impleader action does not require denial of the motion, since plaintiff was in no way misled by the city's previous position that under a contractual arrangement it was not required to indemnify the defendant doctor and in no way relied on it, and, moreover, the motion for summary judgment was brought by the defendant doctor. Additionally, the notice of claim and short Statute of Limitations provisions of sections 50-e and 50-i are defenses which may be raised by the doctor even though he, and not the city, was sued, and defendant is not estopped from interposing the statutory defenses since there was no evidence that the city had entered into arrangements with regard to the facility that had the capacity to, and in fact did, mislead the plaintiff to her detriment. Norr v Spiegler, 72 A.D.2d 20, 423 N.Y.S.2d 177, 1980 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9653 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1980), aff'd, 53 N.Y.2d 661, 438 N.Y.S.2d 1000, 421 N.E.2d 120, 1981 N.Y. LEXIS 2319 (N.Y. 1981).

Plaintiffs would not be allowed to serve notice of a claim and complaint against a public health and hospital corporation, which had assumed control of hospitals formerly operated by the city, where approximately six and one half years had passed since the initiation of plaintiffs' malpractice action, where no excuse for the delay and no evidence of misconduct by the city or the corporation were offered, and where the corporation was never made a party to the plaintiffs' application. Marku v New York, 86 A.D.2d 601, 446 N.Y.S.2d 119, 1982 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 15127 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1982).

In a medical malpractice action, medical treatments initially administered to plaintiff at a City of New York public hospital, which were followed by referral to a private hospital at which plaintiff was treated for his original complaint, should have been characterized as a single continuous course of treatment for purposes of tolling the 90-day notice of claim period required by Gen Mun Law § 50-e(1)(a) and the New York City Health and Hospitals Corporation Act (Unconsol Laws Ch 214-A § 20(2), because of close nexus between the two hospitals; accordingly, a notice of claim served within 90 days from the last date of continuous treatment at the private hospital was timely. Cotto v New York, 99 A.D.2d 748, 471 N.Y.S.2d 865, 1984 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 17112 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1984).

Court properly dismissed medical malpractice complaint for failure to properly serve notice of claim on New York City Health and Hospitals Corporation (HHC) within 90 days of accrual, as plaintiffs' service of notice of claim on city rather than HHC did not constitute compliance with notice of claim provisions of CLS Gen Mun § 50-e and CLS Unconsol Ch 214-A § 20(2). Badgett v New York City Health & Hosps. Corp., 227 A.D.2d 127, 641 N.Y.S.2d 299, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4751 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1996).

Court properly denied motion to dismiss complaint against New York City Health and Hospitals Corporation (HHC) for failure to serve timely notice of claim, where plaintiff served notice by delivering it to Corporation Counsel, claiming authority for such service under CLS Gen Mun § 50-e(3)(a); to extent that CLS Unconsol Ch 214-A § 20 required that service be made only on officer or director of HHC, it gave way to uniform and more recently amended CLS Gen Mun § 50-e. Viruet v City of New York, 277 A.D.2d 33, 715 N.Y.S.2d 406, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11296 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2000), aff'd, 97 N.Y.2d 171, 738 N.Y.S.2d 2, 763 N.E.2d 1143, 2001 N.Y. LEXIS 3419 (N.Y. 2001).

New York City Health and Hospitals Corporation (HHC) is public benefit corporation rather than municipal corporation within meaning of CLS Gen Mun § 50-d, and thus statute's provision placing financial responsibility for malpractice on municipal corporations did not apply to it; accordingly, physician sued for malpractice, who claimed to be employee of HHC, was not entitled to summary judgment for plaintiffs' failure to serve notice of claim required by CLS Gen Mun § 50-e. Hassan v Woodhull Hosp. & Med. Ctr., 282 A.D.2d 709, 724 N.Y.S.2d 184, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4317 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2001).

City hospital's records of a newly born child indicated that she had foot gangrene and had misadventure during her medical care so the city was on notice under N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(5) that it was subject to the child's claim even though the claim was filed four years after her discharge. The city was also not prejudiced by the child's motion, that she made four years after serving the late claim, for the late claim to be allowed since the city acknowledged that it had actually been served with the late claim. Caminero v N.Y. City Health & Hosps. Corp., 21 A.D.3d 330, 800 N.Y.S.2d 173, 2005 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8800 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2005).

New York City Health and Hospitals Corporation is public benefit corporation (CLS Unconsol Ch 214-A § 4(1)), and is therefore "public corporation" under CLS Gen Const § 66(1), to which CLS Gen Mun § 50-e(1)(a), setting forth requirements of notice of claim, applies. Viruet v City of New York, 181 Misc. 2d 958, 695 N.Y.S.2d 663, 1999 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 366 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1999), aff'd, 277 A.D.2d 33, 715 N.Y.S.2d 406, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11296 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2000).

Complaint in civil rights action initially filed against correction officials and employees and amended nine months later to include state malpractice claim against physicians employed by city did not satisfy requirement of 90-day notice of malpractice claim against city employees. Shakur v McGrath, 517 F.2d 983, 1975 U.S. App. LEXIS 14379 (2d Cir. N.Y. 1975).

Notice of claim was a condition precedent to suit against hospital which was a department of the County of Greene and therefore was entitled to all of the immunity and protection afforded the county itself. Pope v Memorial Hospital of Greene County, 387 F. Supp. 331, 1974 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 6276 (S.D.N.Y. 1974).

24. —Late notice

In the patient's request for leave to file late notice of claim under N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(5) in the patient's medical malpractice action stemming from the patient's birth, the patient's argument, that the hospital was not substantially prejudiced by the 10-year delay because it had actual knowledge of the facts, failed; given that the hospital lacked actual knowledge, the intermediate appellate court's finding of substantial prejudice was within its discretion. Williams v Nassau County Med. Ctr., 6 N.Y.3d 531, 814 N.Y.S.2d 580, 847 N.E.2d 1154, 2006 N.Y. LEXIS 650 (N.Y. 2006).

Where the birth of the patient in 1993 was difficult but where the patient's Apgar score and weight were within the normal range, the patient was not erroneously denied leave to serve late notice of claim under N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(5); the hospital did not have actual knowledge of the claim, as the hospital records did not give any reason to predict lasting harm to the patient. Williams v Nassau County Med. Ctr., 6 N.Y.3d 531, 814 N.Y.S.2d 580, 847 N.E.2d 1154, 2006 N.Y. LEXIS 650 (N.Y. 2006).

In reversing the order granting the patient leave to file late notice of claim under N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(5) in the patient's medical malpractice action stemming from the patient's birth, the intermediate appellate court did not exceed its discretion in pointing out that, among other reasons for denying leave, the 10-year delay was not the product of the patient's infancy; this was only one of the factors for the intermediate appellate court's decision, not the sole factor. Williams v Nassau County Med. Ctr., 6 N.Y.3d 531, 814 N.Y.S.2d 580, 847 N.E.2d 1154, 2006 N.Y. LEXIS 650 (N.Y. 2006).

Plaintiff's application for leave to serve a notice of claim upon the New York City Health and Hospitals Corporation nunc pro tunc should have been granted where, by virtue of the medical center's communications with plaintiff during the 90 days after the claim accrued, the Health and Hospitals Corporation acquired actual knowledge of the essential facts constituting the claim, Gen Mun Law § 50-e, and defendant failed to demonstrate any manner in which it would be prejudiced by plaintiff's delay in serving a formal notice of claim. Williams v New York City Health & Hospitals Corp., 93 A.D.2d 885, 461 N.Y.S.2d 411, 1983 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 17768 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1983).

Because a health care corporation had actual knowledge of the essential facts of the parents' claim and was not prejudiced by a six-month delay, and because the parents demonstrated a reasonable excuse for the delay, their N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(1)(a), (5) motion for leave to serve a late notice of claim should have been granted. Compass v County of Nassau, 37 A.D.3d 752, 830 N.Y.S.2d 583, 2007 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2377 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2007).

Trial court erred in denying a patient's petition to deem his proposed notice of a medical malpractice claim against a public hospital and surgeon timely served nunc pro tunc because the hospital and surgeon acquired notice of the essential facts of the claim well within 90 days after the claim arose by virtue of the hospital's medical records, the hospital and surgeon would not be prejudiced by the delay, and they did not allege that there were any witnesses who were no longer available to testify. Matter of Khan v New York City Health & Hosps. Corp., 135 A.D.3d 940, 24 N.Y.S.3d 163, 2016 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 499 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't), app. denied, 28 N.Y.3d 902, 63 N.E.3d 70, 40 N.Y.S.3d 350, 2016 N.Y. LEXIS 2775 (N.Y. 2016).

Emergency room patient was permitted to serve a late notice of claim upon the city's Health and Hospitals Corporation (HHC) because, inter alia, HHC refused to forward the requested medical records the patient needed to fully review the medical records to determine whether HHC failed to examine the soft tissues supporting the thumb, and HHC did not establish substantial prejudice even though it did not receive timely actual knowledge of the patient's malpractice claim. Matter of Townson v New York City Health & Hosps. Corp., 158 A.D.3d 401, 70 N.Y.S.3d 200, 2018 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 579 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2018).

Trial court properly dismissed a complaint filed by a deceased patient's administrator for medical malpractice, conscious pain and suffering, and wrongful death against the city Health and Hospitals Corporation (HHC) for failure to serve a timely notice of claim because the trial court lacked authority to grant leave to serve a late notice or to deem the notice timely served nunc pro tunc absent a finding of equitable estoppel, there was no indication in the record that the administrator relied on any alleged act or omission of HHC or that such reliance caused the administrator to change his position to his detriment or prejudice, and HHC's participation in pretrial discovery did not preclude it from raising the untimeliness of the notice. Watts v City of New York, 186 A.D.3d 1574, 131 N.Y.S.3d 62, 2020 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5143 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2020).

Claimant was allowed to serve a late notice of claim upon a hospital under N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(5) and the notice of claim served with the motion papers satisfied N.Y. Pub. Auth. Law § 3567(1) as: (1) the claimant's medical records reflected concern for a post-surgical problem, incertitude regarding test results, and numerous complications; and (2) while the claimant's excuse for the 10-month delay between the end of the claimant's outpatient treatment and the filing of the motion was weak, the hospital had actual notice of the facts that constituted the claim and was not prejudiced by the delay. Clark v Roswell Park Cancer Inst. Corp., 919 N.Y.S.2d 268, 31 Misc. 3d 578, 2010 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 6609 (N.Y. Ct. Cl. 2010), aff'd, 92 A.D.3d 1273, 938 N.Y.S.2d 483, 2012 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1283 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 2012).

Former employee's common law claims against his former employer, a city transportation authority and two of its executives, and against a metropolitan transportation authority and two of its employees, were dismissed; although notice was not required to be served upon individuals under N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(1)(b) (2007), the employee failed to serve notice of the claims on the agencies prior to filing suit, as required by N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(1)(a) (2007). Hargett v Metro. Transit Auth., 552 F. Supp. 2d 393, 2008 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 30599 (S.D.N.Y. 2008).

25. Exceptions to notice requirement

Indemnification claims and third-party complaints resulting from litigation not initially involving the public or municipal corporation and with respect to which its liability to the claimant depends upon the claimant's first being adjudicated liable to another, are not within the coverage of this section and are not precluded by failure to serve timely notice of claim. Valstrey Service Corp. v Board of Elections, 2 N.Y.2d 413, 161 N.Y.S.2d 52, 141 N.E.2d 565, 1957 N.Y. LEXIS 1155 (N.Y. 1957).

There is no necessity for service of a notice of claim upon a municipality as a condition precedent to an action against a city police officer for false arrest or malicious prosecution where the municipality is not made a party. O'Hara v Sears Roebuck & Co., 286 A.D. 104, 142 N.Y.S.2d 465, 1955 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3985 (N.Y. App. Div. 1955).

Preliminary service of notice of claim is not necessary to prosecution of an action against an officer or employee of a public or municipal corporation individually, at least unless the cause of action is based upon misconduct or neglect in his official capacity for which the public or municipal corporation would have to respond in damages. Weissmann v Euker, 1 A.D.2d 30, 147 N.Y.S.2d 101, 1955 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3701 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1955).

In an action by plaintiff who was admitted to a municipal hospital for treatment of a fractured ankle, the trial court properly denied plaintiff's motion for leave to file a late notice of claim, where plaintiff failed to give any explanation as to why he waited for one year before seeking to make a claim, and where plaintiff maintained that the injury to his ankle was very serious, but did not state that any medical attention was sought during that one-year period. Rodriguez v New York, 86 A.D.2d 533, 446 N.Y.S.2d 50, 1982 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 15047 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1982), app. dismissed, 58 N.Y.2d 899, 460 N.Y.S.2d 531, 447 N.E.2d 79, 1983 N.Y. LEXIS 2877 (N.Y. 1983).

An order denying leave to serve a late notice would be reversed where, even if a municipality did not receive actual notice of plaintiff's son's accident until the date of the application for leave to serve the late notice of claim nearly one year after the accident, the son should have been allowed to serve a late notice of claim, given the nature of his injuries, which had rendered him quadriplegic, and given the absence of any showing of substantial prejudice; however, plaintiff mother was properly denied similar relief, on the basis that she did not offer any acceptable excuse on her own behalf for the delay. Bensen v Islip, 99 A.D.2d 755, 471 N.Y.S.2d 670, 1984 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 17120 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't), app. dismissed, 62 N.Y.2d 798, 477 N.Y.S.2d 330, 465 N.E.2d 1266, 1984 N.Y. LEXIS 4375 (N.Y. 1984).

Trial court erred in vacating and denying its prior order granting a petition to deem a late notice of claim timely served nunc pro tunc because the decedent's medical records suggested injury attributable to malpractice and provided a university hospital with actual knowledge of the essential facts constituting the claim, the administratrix made an initial showing that the hospital would not suffer any prejudice by the delay in serving a notice of claim, the hospital failed to rebut the administratrix's showing with particularized indicia of prejudice, and the lack of a reasonable excuse was not dispositive where there was actual notice and absence of prejudice. Matter of Breslin v Nassau Health Care Corp., 153 A.D.3d 1256, 62 N.Y.S.3d 118, 2017 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6428 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2017).

A defendant, who was also the Commissioner of Accounts of Nassau County could be sued personally in his individual capacity without compliance with the provisions applicable to the commencement of an action against the County of Nassau or its agents, servants and employees. Firester v Lipson, 50 Misc. 2d 527, 270 N.Y.S.2d 844, 1966 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2018 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1966).

Although a patient's claim against a hospital was untimely under N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e, because there was an issue of fact as to the patient's mental condition under N.Y. Mental Hyg. Law § 9.39, a hearing was necessary to determine whether the patient was entitled to a toll under N.Y. C.P.L.R. 208 and, if so, the extent of the toll. Hoops v Director, Bellevue Hosp. Ctr., 906 N.Y.S.2d 674, 28 Misc. 3d 61, 2010 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3208 (N.Y. App. Term 2010).

Under N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(1)(b), a former employee's failure to serve a timely notice of claim upon defendants, county park superintendents and the employee's former supervisor, did not warrant dismissal of the employee's state law disability discrimination and hostile working environment claims against the park superintendents and the supervisor because the alleged acts of discrimination and harassment appeared from the pleadings to fall outside the scope of defendants' employment and defendants did not argue otherwise. Costabile v County of Westchester, 2007 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 29787 (S.D.N.Y. Apr. 20, 2007), amended, 485 F. Supp. 2d 424, 2007 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 33484 (S.D.N.Y. 2007).

Neither notice of claim requirement of General Municipal Law § 50-e nor limitations period set forth in General Municipal Law § 50-i applies in third-party actions against municipal defendants. Haehl v Port Chester, 463 F. Supp. 845, 1978 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 14253 (S.D.N.Y. 1978).

In action arising from alleged negligent inspection of wiring of house that burned down, Board of Fire Underwriters was not protected by short limitations period of CLS Gen Mun § 50-i based on its status as town's authorized representative for conducting electrical inspections, where board inspectors were not town employees entitled to be indemnified by town, and town was not real party in interest. Royal Ins. Co. of Am. v Ru-Val Elec. Corp., 918 F. Supp. 647, 1996 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 1723 (E.D.N.Y.), amended, 918 F. Supp. 647 (E.D.N.Y. 1996).

26. Playland Commission

This section requires service of notice of claim as a condition precedent to suit notwithstanding the claim is based on negligence of the operator of an amusement device commercially conducted in an area under control of the Westchester County Playland Commission as a proprietary function, and is not, for that reason, unconstitutional. Fullam v Westchester County Playland Com., 276 A.D. 925, 94 N.Y.S.2d 637, 1950 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5157 (N.Y. App. Div. 1950).

Notwithstanding the enactment of § 50-i by ch. 788, Laws of 1959, this section is still applicable to commencement of actions and time limitations with respect to claims against "public corporations" other than those specifically listed and dealt with in § 50-i, including the Playland Commission of Westchester County, which is a distinct type of public corporation. Oraczewski v Westchester County, 32 Misc. 2d 217, 221 N.Y.S.2d 485, 1961 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2214 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1961).

That portion of § 2, ch. 777, Laws of 1941 relating to service of notice of claim against the Westchester County Playland Commission, was superseded and is now controlled by this section, since the Commission is a "public benefit corporation" within the scope of this section's coverage. Percudani v Westchester County Playland Com., 226 N.Y.S.2d 517, 1962 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 4249 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1962).

The notice of claim requirements of this section having been made applicable to the Westchester County Playland Commission by ch. 777 L 1941, without regard to whether activities of the Commission out of which an alleged cause of action for injuries sustained arises are governmental or proprietary in character, a complaint against the Commission is insufficient which fails to allege compliance with the notice requirements, notwithstanding it is contended that it arises out of proprietary activities. Pekar v Westchester County Playland Com., 190 F. Supp. 430, 1961 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 3528 (S.D.N.Y. 1961).

27. Police or sheriff

Gen Mun Law § 50-j(2), which requires that an off-duty police officer, to qualify for indemnity from his municipal employer for his tortious conduct, must have acted within "the geographical limits of his jurisdiction," contemplates the State-wide jurisdiction of the police officer, not the jurisdiction of the municipality. Accordingly, in an action for personal injuries allegedly due to tortious conduct by defendant off-duty Suffolk County police officer in Queens County, if defendant was acting as a police officer, he would be entitled to indemnity, and plaintiffs were required by Gen Mun Law § 50-j(3) to file a notice of claim. Defendant raised a question of fact as to whether he was "engaged in immediate and actual performance of a public duty imposed by law" as required by § 50-j(2); if defendant was acting as a police officer at the time of the incident, his affirmative defense that plaintiffs failed to comply with the notice of claim provisions of Gen Mun Law § 50-e would be valid; if he was not, plaintiffs were not required to submit a notice of claim. Alifieris v American Airlines, Inc., 63 N.Y.2d 370, 482 N.Y.S.2d 453, 472 N.E.2d 303, 1984 N.Y. LEXIS 4665 (N.Y. 1984).

A sheriff or deputy sheriff can be sued individually without prior service of notice of claim, for damages arising out of his negligence or misconduct, notwithstanding the provisions of this section and § 52 of the County Law, since, under Const. Art. 9 § 5, a county is not liable for his acts. Kawar v Martin, 12 A.D.2d 876, 210 N.Y.S.2d 68, 1961 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13497 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1961).

Statutes repealing former statute which required notices of claim to be served upon individual police officers in action against such individual police officers were not meant to be applied retroactively, and thus where no notices of claim were served on individual police officers, complaint seeking damages for assault would be dismissed as against individual police officers. Clemente v Little, 59 A.D.2d 752, 398 N.Y.S.2d 698, 1977 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13773 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1977).

A notice of claim was not required to permit action against sheriff as county of Monroe was not responsible for acts of sheriff or his deputies. Williams v Irondequoit, 59 A.D.2d 1049, 399 N.Y.S.2d 807, 1977 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 14336 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1977).

The reviewing court would grant plaintiff leave to file a late notice of claim pursuant to Gen Mun Law § 50-e, notwithstanding that the notice of claim was filed some seven months after the alleged negligent incident, where defendant's employees apparently led plaintiff to believe that the decedent's death was due to causes other than their negligence as did plaintiff's originally retained counsel, and where plaintiff demonstrated reasonable persistence in shortly thereafter retaining new counsel and eventually securing the appropriate medical records. Alessi v County of Nassau, 85 A.D.2d 725, 445 N.Y.S.2d 817, 1981 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 16549 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1981).

Filing of notice of claim is condition precedent to action against sheriff where sheriff's office has been abolished and replaced by commissioner/sheriff of public safety services who is county employee. McGinnis v Sheriff of Westchester County, 120 A.D.2d 577, 502 N.Y.S.2d 64, 1986 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 56659 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1986).

1990 constitutional amendment eliminating former CLS NY Const Art XIII § 13(a) provision that county shall never be made responsible for actions of sheriff had effect of requiring plaintiff to serve notice of claim as condition precedent to commencing action for false arrest, abuse of process and trespass against sheriff's department and 2 deputies since CLS Gen Mun § 50-e(1)(a) requires service of notice of claim as condition precedent to commencement of action against county, and sheriff's department is division of county. Bardi v Warren County Sheriff's Dep't, 194 A.D.2d 21, 603 N.Y.S.2d 90, 1993 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10087 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1993).

Plaintiff was not required by CLS Gen Mun § 50-e(1)(a) to serve notice of claim as condition precedent to commencing action for false arrest, abuse of process and trespass against county sheriff since service of notice of claim on officer, appointee or employee of county is not condition precedent to commencement of action against such person unless county is required to indemnify such person, and while county is required to indemnify its employees for claims which arise while they are acting within scope of their employment, county sheriff is specifically excluded as person entitled to indemnification by CLS Pub O § 18(1)(b). Bardi v Warren County Sheriff's Dep't, 194 A.D.2d 21, 603 N.Y.S.2d 90, 1993 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10087 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1993).

Service of notice of claim was not condition precedent to commencement of action against individual police officers who executed no-knock search warrant on petitioners' apartment. Delgado v Connolly, 246 A.D.2d 484, 667 N.Y.S.2d 255, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 698 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1998).

Where action was brought against county police officers, personally for their individual and unauthorized misconduct, in terms that would exclude municipal liability, issues of county liability and county duty to indemnify were not tendered by the complaint, and compliance with the notice of claims provision need not appear. Beyer v Werner, 299 F. Supp. 967, 1969 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 8600 (E.D.N.Y. 1969).

28. Public housing authority

A public housing authority, such as the New York City Housing Authority, is within the requirements of this section for service of notice of claim within 90 days after the claim arises, which limitation is controlling as against anything to the contrary in the statutes dealing with rights and liabilities of such authorities. Colasuonno v Municipal Housing Authority, 12 A.D.2d 866, 210 N.Y.S.2d 45, 1961 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13037 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1961).

Action for personal injuries brought against city housing authority should have been dismissed where plaintiffs failed to serve notice of claim as required under CLS Pub Hous § 157 and failed to move for permission to serve late notice of claim. Mercier v Municipal Housing Authority, 133 A.D.2d 990, 521 N.Y.S.2d 142, 1987 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 52016 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1987).

29. School district

After notice of claim has been properly and timely served on a board of education, one of its teachers can be individually sued for the negligence of misconduct upon which the claim is based. Sandak v Tuxedo Union School Dist., 308 N.Y. 226, 124 N.E.2d 295, 308 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 226, 1954 N.Y. LEXIS 938 (N.Y. 1954).

A central school district is a subdivision of Government within the meaning of General Municipal Law § 50-b. Hence, a negligence action against the driver of a bus owned by the school district cannot be maintained unless notice of claim was served pursuant to this section. Van Tassell v Hill, 285 A.D. 584, 139 N.Y.S.2d 663, 1955 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5542 (N.Y. App. Div. 1955).

Even though an action against a teacher has been dismissed by a lower court as not sustainable on the basis of notice of claim against the board of education, if the dismissal has not become a final adjudication a new action can be brought and maintained on the basis of his individual liability. Weissmann v Euker, 1 A.D.2d 30, 147 N.Y.S.2d 101, 1955 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3701 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1955).

School teacher who brought action against assistant principal, department chairman, and principal based on alleged defamation which apparently occurred in the course of, or arose out of, the performance of official duties was required to file notice of claim in compliance with the General Municipal Law. Cioffi v Giannone, 56 A.D.2d 620, 391 N.Y.S.2d 675, 1977 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10710 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1977).

The limitation provisions of Gen Mun Law § 50-i are tolled by infancy pursuant to CPLR § 208; thus, where a transit authority had actual notice of an occurrence involving an injury to infant plaintiff and was not prejudiced by the late notice claim filed under Gen Mun Law § 50-e, the court abused its discretion in denying the application made on the infant's behalf for leave to serve a notice of claim after the expiration of the statutory period against the transit authority. Fleming v Manhattan Bronx Surface Transit Operating Authority, 86 A.D.2d 509, 445 N.Y.S.2d 741, 1982 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 15022 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1982).

An 11-year-old claimant who fractured her elbow while using a slide on the grounds of respondent school district should have been permitted to serve a late notice of claim, where the school district received actual notice of the accident on the day it had occurred, where the delay of six years was occasioned, in part, by the reliance of the claimant's mother upon the school district's initial willingness to assume responsibility for the claimant's medical expenses, and where the delay was also occasioned by the fact that the full extent of the claimant's injury was not ascertainable until she had attained greater physical maturity, and thus was related to her infancy. Tetro v Plainview-Old Bethpage Cent. School Dist., 99 A.D.2d 814, 472 N.Y.S.2d 146, 1984 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 17206 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1984).

In action for injuries arising out of automobile accident allegedly caused by superintendent of schools while operating school district vehicle in scope of his employment, court erred in refusing to dismiss complaint based on plaintiff's failure to serve notice of claim on board of education under CLS Gen Mun § 50-e(1)(b) (on theory that superintendent was not entitled to be indemnified by district because he failed to comply with 10-day requirement of CLS Educ § 3023 for delivery of summons and complaint on board, and therefore service of notice of claim by plaintiff was unnecessary), since record indicated that superintendent timely delivered pleadings to clerk of board who forwarded papers to district's insurance agent, and that board had agreed to indemnify superintendent, and board did not contest proper receipt of pleadings. Kerch v Silvestri, 186 A.D.2d 322, 587 N.Y.S.2d 804, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10818 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1992).

Grant of school district's motion to dismiss the injured party's claim on the ground that the notice of claim was deficient was reversed where the school district, which was timely served with a notice of claim, had notice of the nature of the claim, the date and location of the accident, and the items of damages; the school district did not assert a lack of good faith or claim that it would have been prejudiced by the omissions in the notice. Neal v Amityville Union Free Sch. Dist., 288 A.D.2d 450, 733 N.Y.S.2d 245, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11357 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2001).

Trial court properly granted a high-school wrestler's application for leave to serve a late notice of claim against a school district because, while the wrestler did not demonstrate any specific nexus between his infancy and his delay in serving a late notice of claim, the district had actual knowledge of the injuries or damages sustained by the wrestler, and it was not a situation where it was unaware of the facts underlying the claim. Matter of Ficek v Akron Cent. Sch. Dist., 144 A.D.3d 1601, 41 N.Y.S.3d 616, 2016 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7413 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 2016).

Res judicata did not bar a former student's motion to file a late notice of claim against a school district based upon the denial of her father's earlier motion for leave to serve a late notice of claim because although both notices of claim alleged an ongoing pattern of bullying, harassment, and intimidation of the student, the father's notice mentioned only the January 2015 incident, while the student's notice was premised upon a subsequent June 2015 event. Sherb v Monticello Cent. Sch. Dist., 163 A.D.3d 1130, 81 N.Y.S.3d 265, 2018 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4913 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2018).

Student was permitted to file a late notice of claim, asserting a claim for damages arising from the school district's alleged negligence in failing to prevent or stop the bullying of the student, because the district had notice of the alleged pattern of abuse, which occurred over several years, and the district was not substantially prejudiced by the delay in serving the notice of claim. Matter of C.B. v Carmel Cent. Sch. Dist., 164 A.D.3d 670, 83 N.Y.S.3d 276, 2018 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5740 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2018).

Trial court did not err in determining that the student's notice of claim to the school district was timely because the alleged bullying and negligent supervision at issue was of continuing nature, and the school district had actual notice of the claim in time to properly investigate and obtain evidence. Motta v Eldred Cent. Sch. Dist., 172 A.D.3d 1575, 101 N.Y.S.3d 472, 2019 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3709 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2019).

Trial court erred in denying a mother's petition, in her individual capacity, for to leave to serve a late notice of claim on two school districts and the board of education because the mother served her notice of claim within the one-year statutory period, the two-month delay in serving the notice of claim was reasonable under the circumstances, the districts acquired actual knowledge of the essential facts constituting the claims within a reasonable time after the expiration of the 90-day period, and the districts failed to rebut the showing of an absence of prejudice, with particularized evidence. Matter of D.S. v South Huntington Union Free Sch. Dist., 176 A.D.3d 1075, 111 N.Y.S.3d 687, 2019 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7605 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2019).

The failure of the State of New York to serve or file a notice of claim against a school district precludes the state from maintaining an action for negligently caused damages to one of the state's trucks by an employee of the school district. State v Waverly Cent. School Dist., 53 Misc. 2d 843, 280 N.Y.S.2d 507, 1966 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1576 (N.Y. County Ct. 1966), aff'd, 28 A.D.2d 628, 280 N.Y.S.2d 505, 1967 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4027 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1967).

Notice of claim directed to the board of education of a school district did not meet the notice requirements of N.Y. Educ. Law § 3813 and N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e for an action that was subsequently filed against individual employees of the district by an infant and his mother. White v Averill Park Cent. Sch. Dist., 195 Misc. 2d 409, 759 N.Y.S.2d 641, 2003 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 263 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 2003).

Student failed to provide adequate and timely notice of her claim against a school district and others because the notice did not adequately advise of the exact nature of the claim and an attempted amendment of the notice was not timely. Tyrrell v Seaford Union Free Sch. Dist., 792 F. Supp. 2d 601, 2011 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 61418 (E.D.N.Y. 2011).

A school district is a "municipal corporation" within the meaning of the statute requiring municipal corporations to make and keep records of notices of claims filed pursuant to section 50-e of the General Municipal Law. 1956 Ops St Compt File #8221.

30. Town

Although town was on notice by letter sent some 18 months before damage to particular property became manifest and hence before any cause of action accrued, town was entitled by statute to prompt notice of subsequent bulkhead collapse and consequential harm while claim was still fresh, and there was failure of compliance with statutory requirements for notice of claim by one landowner. Doundoulakis v Hempstead, 42 N.Y.2d 440, 398 N.Y.S.2d 401, 368 N.E.2d 24, 1977 N.Y. LEXIS 2322 (N.Y. 1977).

Under this section, as made applicable to claims against towns by § 67 of the Town Law, an award of damages against the town incidental to an action for recovery of a strip of land allegedly wrongfully appropriated for use as a highway would be limited to the period of 90 days preceding filing of the notice of claim. Crawford v Hamburg, 19 A.D.2d 100, 241 N.Y.S.2d 357, 1963 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3439 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1963).

In an action to determine adverse claims of title to real estate and to recover damages for trespass brought against a town and county, it was held that no statutory notice of claim was necessary as a prerequisite to the action against the town. However, the action against the county was governed by § 52 of the County Law, and plaintiff could not maintain such an action without compliance with §§ 50-e and 50-i of the General Municipal Law. Seabreeze Marina at Smithtown, Inc. v Smithtown, 25 A.D.2d 780, 269 N.Y.S.2d 662, 1966 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4497 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1966).

Where a claimant sought to recover compensation and consequential damages from the defendant Town for its permanent appropriation of a portion of plaintiff's land for the widening of a town highway, such action was not founded in tort and compliance with the notice of claim provisions of § 50-e of the General Municipal Law was not required. Torino v Pleasant Valley, 36 A.D.2d 963, 321 N.Y.S.2d 445, 1971 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4140 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1971).

Section 50-e of the General Municipal Law is a general law, which is defined as one which in terms and in effect applies alike to all counties, all counties other than those wholly included within a city, all cities, all towns, or all villages. Zumbo v Farmington, 60 A.D.2d 350, 401 N.Y.S.2d 121, 1978 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9680 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1978).

There is an exceedingly strong presumption of constitutionality that attaches even to local laws and a local law, which provides that no civil action shall be maintained against a town for injuries resulting from any property of the town being unsafe unless, prior to the occurrence of the injuries, the town shall have been given actual written notice of the condition complained of and shall have failed or neglected within a reasonable time to repair or remove the condition, is not unconstitutional due to any inconsistency with section 50-e of the General Municipal Law, inasmuch as such statute does not serve to dispense with any notice requirement relative to unsafe conditions which may otherwise be required by law, and plainly passes constitutional muster even though the superseded section 65-a of the Town Law related only to specified property, i.e., unsafe highways, bridges and culverts for which constructive notice was sufficient, since each town is expressly authorized to adopt local laws amending or superseding provisions of the Town Law relating to the property, affairs or government of the individual town unless the Legislature shall have expressly prohibited the adoption of such a local law. (Municipal Home Rule Law, § 10, subd 1, par [ii], cl d, subcl [3].) Accordingly, an order of Special Term, which dismissed the defendant town's affirmative defense that it could not be liable to plaintiff in an action based on personal injuries allegedly sustained as a result of the town's negligence in the construction and maintenance of a road because there had been no compliance with the local law in question, should be reversed, on the law, and the affirmative defense reinstated. Klimek v Ghent, 71 A.D.2d 359, 423 N.Y.S.2d 517, 1979 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13483 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1979).

Tort action could not be maintained against town where plaintiff failed to allege compliance with notice of claim requirements of CLS Gen Mun § 50-e and CLS Town § 67 and there was nothing in record indicating compliance therewith; filing of notice of claim is condition precedent to tort action against town, not affirmative defense to be raised by town, it is not waived by town's failure to raise it in answer, and it may be considered for first time on appeal. E. Williamson Roofing & Sheet Metal Co. v Parish, 139 A.D.2d 97, 530 N.Y.S.2d 720, 1988 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11231 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1988).

Town's superintendent of highways was not entitled to dismissal of defamation action on ground that plaintiff failed to timely file notice of claim against town pursuant to CLS Gen Mun § 50-e since (1) action was brought against superintendent individually, not in his capacity as town employee, and town was not named as defendant, (2) service of notice of claim was required only if town had statutory obligation to indemnify superintendent, and (3) town was not obligated to indemnify superintendent because CLS Pub O § 18 had never been adopted by local governing body; under local law, town had duty to defend defendant, not indemnify him. Wyman v Zeltins, 142 A.D.2d 913, 531 N.Y.S.2d 144, 1988 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8019 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1988).

Appeals court reversed order and dismissed, under N.Y. C.P.L.R. § 3211(a)(7), owners' suit against town for ocean storm damages to their home; the town's officials' discretionary acts, denying the owners' application for an emergency stone revetment, enjoyed absolute governmental immunity. Kelleher v Town of Southampton, 306 A.D.2d 247, 760 N.Y.S.2d 235, 2003 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6235 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2003).

Where complaint sounding in tort against town did not allege that a notice of claim had been filed as required by the General Municipal Law and papers before court indicated that no such notice had been filed, complaint was insufficient. Mazo v Shawangunk, 87 Misc. 2d 597, 386 N.Y.S.2d 519, 1976 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2262 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1976), aff'd, 60 A.D.2d 734, 401 N.Y.S.2d 305, 1977 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 14772 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1977).

Because it was undisputed that plaintiff never filed a notice of claim in compliance with N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e, as required by N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-i(1)(c), plaintiff's state law claims against municipal defendants were dismissed. McLaurin v New Rochelle Police Officers, 373 F. Supp. 2d 385, 2005 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 11971 (S.D.N.Y. 2005), aff'd in part, vacated in part, 2007 U.S. App. LEXIS 1839 (2d Cir. N.Y. Jan. 25, 2007).

31. Transportation authorities

Compliance with this section, by due and timely service of notice of claim against a city, is a condition precedent to enforcement against it of liability arising under § 50-b for injuries inflicted by negligent operation of a municipally owned vehicle by one of its employees in course of duty. Rusch v Karpick, 20 A.D.2d 954, 248 N.Y.S.2d 451, 1964 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4110 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1964).

Since Title 8 (§§ 700–717) of the Public Authorities Law contains no requirement for the filing of a claim as a condition precedent to the beginning of an action against the Ogdensburg Bridge Authority established thereby although § 1397 of the same law makes applicable to an action against the Ogdensburg Port Authority the notice provision of § 50-e of the General Municipal Law, and the statute merging the two authorities as the Ogdensburg Bridge and Port Authority (Public Authorities Law §§ 725–734) provides in § 734 that the provisions of the Bridge Authority Act shall take precedence over those of the Port Authority Act and also provides in § 732 that no existing right or remedy shall be lost or otherwise affected by reason of this subsequent enactment, an action arising earlier than the period of 90 days provided by the General Municipal Law § 50-e before the coming into effect of such subsequent statute was held to be within the intention of the saving clause of Public Authorities Law § 732 as above stated and hence could be brought without compliance with § 50-e of the General Municipal Law. But the court specifically stated that it did not pass on the question whether the same result would obtain in an action founded upon a tort arising after the effective date of the act which merged the two authorities. Tarbell v Ogdensburg Bridge & Port Authority, 23 A.D.2d 447, 261 N.Y.S.2d 429, 1965 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3530 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1965).

Even if collision between vehicle and bus owner by subsidiary of regional transportation authority did occur outside of the regional transportation district, that fact would not excuse plaintiffs' failure to file a claim against the transportation authority within 90 days, would not excuse their failure to allege such a filing in their complaint, and would not excuse their failure to timely commence the action within one year and 30 days after accrual of the cause of action. Ponko v Regional Transit Service, Inc., 55 A.D.2d 1033, 391 N.Y.S.2d 243, 1977 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10387 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1977).

A motion by defendant New York City Transit Authority (NYCTA) for summary judgment in an action arising out of an injury sustained by plaintiff while endeavoring to board a bus operated by the Manhattan and Bronx Surface Transit Operating Authority (MABSTOA) was properly granted where, despite notice requring plaintiff to submit to an oral examination in which MABSTOA was named as the body corporate against which the claim was made, a stipulation containing a handwritten change in title from NYCTA to MABSTOA, and denials of ownership, operation and control contained in NYCTA's answer, plaintiff did nothing until after they had deposed a representative of NYCTA, when, some two years after accident, plaintiff moved to serve an amended notice of claim and amended summons and complaint, nunc pro tunc, substituting MABSTOA as defendant; application for permission to file late notice of claim must be made prior to the expiration of the period fixed by law within which the action must be brought, which period expired long before plaintiff made his motion, and the doctrine of estoppel is not applicable to agencies of the State acting in their governmental capacity. Luka v New York City Transit Auth., 100 A.D.2d 323, 474 N.Y.S.2d 32, 1984 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 17009 (N.Y. App. Div.

1st Dep't), aff'd, 63 N.Y.2d 667, 479 N.Y.S.2d 524, 468 N.E.2d 706, 1984 N.Y. LEXIS 4523 (N.Y. 1984).

A trial court's order granting plaintiff's motion to serve a notice of claim on the Port Authority of New York and New Jersey nunc pro tunc would be reversed, and the complaint dismissed, where plaintiff's failure timely to file the claim was not due to disability resulting from minority or mental or physical incapacitation (Unconsol Laws Ch 179 § 7), in that Gen Mun Law § 50-e, which specifically accords a wide range of discretion to a court in permitting the filing of a late notice of claim, applies exclusively to municipal corporations and has no application to the Port Authority, and neither a lack of prejudice nor actual knowledge of the facts underlying a claim would permit late filing of a claim against the Port Authority. Luciano v Fanberg Realty Co., 102 A.D.2d 94, 475 N.Y.S.2d 854, 1984 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 18306 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1984).

No-fault claim form served on New York City Transit Authority was insufficient to satisfy notice of claim requirements of CLS Pub A § 1212 and CLS Gen Mun § 50-e. Zydyk v New York City Transit Authority, 151 A.D.2d 745, 542 N.Y.S.2d 768, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9161 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1989).

Triborough Bridge and Tunnel Authority, as public benefit corporation under CLS Pub A § 552(1), is "public corporation" within meaning of CLS Gen Mun § 50-e(1)(a), and thus is required to be served with notice of claim founded on tort within 90 days. Guillan v Triborough Bridge & Tunnel Auth., 202 A.D.2d 472, 609 N.Y.S.2d 38, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2405 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't), app. denied, 84 N.Y.2d 809, 621 N.Y.S.2d 518, 645 N.E.2d 1218, 1994 N.Y. LEXIS 4145 (N.Y. 1994).

In action against city transit authority for personal injuries sustained while plaintiff was riding subway, interlocutory judgment on jury verdict for plaintiffs would be reversed, and complaint would be dismissed, where (1) jury found in favor of plaintiffs on both negligence and design defect theories, (2) plaintiffs should not have been allowed to present evidence of design defect, because that theory was not referred to, either directly or indirectly, in their original or amended notices of claim, (3) limited testimony as to design defect was insufficient to sustain jury finding of liability on that claim, and (4) there was no valid line of reasoning and permissible inferences that could have led rational person to conclude that authority was negligent and that such negligence was proximate cause of damages alleged. Rodriguez v N.Y. City Transit Auth., 286 A.D.2d 681, 730 N.Y.S.2d 135, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8432 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2001).

Trial court abused its discretion in denying a claimant's application for an extension of time to serve a notice of claim on a transit authority, where the transit authority was served with a notice of claim less than two months late and the transit authority failed to show that it was substantial prejudiced by the delay. Bertone Commissioning v City of New York, 27 A.D.3d 222, 810 N.Y.S.2d 183, 2006 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2475 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2006).

Trial court should have permitted a vehicle driver to amend the complaint to add allegations of compliance with the statutory notice requirements in his vehicle/bus collision claim against a bus company (BC), as no prejudice to the BC and its driver was shown, and the BC had notice of the claim prior to the commencement of the action. Lindo v Brett, 149 A.D.3d 459, 52 N.Y.S.3d 308, 2017 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2691 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2017).

Plaintiff failed to serve the transit authorities with a proper notice of claim as a letter sent by the plaintiff's counsel to the authority did not constitute a valid notice of claim as it did not substantially comply with the requirements of this section; plaintiff's claim that his claim sounded in contract, rather than tort, and that he was not required to serve a notice of claim was rejected. Brunache v MV Transp., Inc., 151 A.D.3d 1011, 59 N.Y.S.3d 37, 2017 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5120 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2017).

By § 1212(2) of the Public Authorities Law, compliance with the requirements of General Municipal Law § 50-e is a condition precedent to the maintenance or an action against the Manhattan and Bronx Surface Transit Operating Authority in tort. Ware v Manhattan & Bronx Surface Transit Operating Authority, 49 Misc. 2d 704, 268 N.Y.S.2d 519, 1965 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1470 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1965).

Since the Saw Mill River Parkway, a part of the Westchester County Parkway System, is under the jurisdiction of the East Hudson Parkway Authority, and § 469 of the Public Authorities Law provides that tort actions against the Authority should be commenced by service of a notice of claim pursuant to this section, the Court of Claims has no jurisdiction over such actions since a provision for notice in the Court of Claims already exists in § 10 of the Court of Claims Act. Flynn v State, 52 Misc. 2d 101, 275 N.Y.S.2d 61, 1966 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1278 (N.Y. Ct. Cl. 1966).

While county, which allegedly owned the bus in which plaintiff was a passenger at time of accident, was not named a party defendant in action brought against transportation company which leased and operated the bus, there was no need for plaintiff to serve a late notice of claim against the county as a condition precedent to commencing her action against the transportation company only, irrespective of whatever agreement might exist between county and transportation company concerning indemnity for negligence. Rhodes v Westchester Street Transp. Co., 80 Misc. 2d 1021, 365 N.Y.S.2d 351, 1974 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1937 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1974).

A personal injury action against a county transit system by a passenger who had been injured on one of the system's buses would not be dismissed on the basis of plaintiff's failure to file a notice of claim pursuant to Gen Mun Law § 50-e(1)(b), since, though the Court of Appeals decided after plaintiff's injury occurred that the laws creating the transit system imposed a statutory duty upon the county to operate the system and that, consequently, the statutory notice of claim requirements applied to actions against the system, such decision would be applied only prospectively in that such decision overruled clear past precedent on which litigants had a right to rely, the intent of the statute that municipalities receive actual, prompt notice of future claims had been satisfied, the equities of the situation clearly preponderated in favor of allowing plaintiff her day in court, and the county suffered no prejudice as a result of plaintiff's failure to provide it with formal notice. James v Liberty Lines, 119 Misc. 2d 1060, 465 N.Y.S.2d 144, 1983 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3644 (N.Y. Sup. Ct.), rev'd, 97 A.D.2d 749, 468 N.Y.S.2d 380, 1983 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 20491 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1983).

Fact that plaintiff's claim against bridge and tunnel commission was based on admiralty law precluded application of state law requiring that authority be notified of claim within 90 days after it arose. Raymond International, Inc. v The M/T Dalzelleagle, 336 F. Supp. 679, 1971 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 10939 (S.D.N.Y. 1971).

32. —Railroad

Injured party was precluded from maintaining an action for personal injuries against the Metropolitan Commuter Transportation Authority where there was a failure to serve a 90-day notice of claim pursuant to the statutes. Conroy v Long Island Railroad, 31 A.D.2d 834, 298 N.Y.S.2d 105, 1969 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4526 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1969).

New York City Transit Authority and its employee were entitled to summary judgment dismissing action for personal injuries sustained in accident that occurred at 117th Street in borough of Manhattan, since plaintiff's notice of claim stated that accident occurred at 117th Street in Queens county, and plaintiff did not seek leave to serve amended notice of claim until 3 ½ years after claim arose; even though original notice of claim was prepared and served in good faith, authority was clearly prejudiced by delay since it was unable to conduct proper investigation. Illera v New York City Transit Authority, 181 A.D.2d 658, 581 N.Y.S.2d 210, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3028 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1992).

The Long Island Railroad, a private stock corporation, was neither a municipal nor public benefit corporation for whose protection General Municipal Law § 50-e was enacted, and only the acquisition of the railroad by the Metropolitan Transportation Authority and the subsequent amendment of the Public Authorities Law § 1276 by the addition of subd 6 made the notice provisions applicable to suits against the railroad. Quintero v

Long Island Railroad, 55 Misc. 2d 813, 286 N.Y.S.2d 748, 1968 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1865 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1968), aff'd, 31 A.D.2d 844, 298 N.Y.S.2d 109, 1969 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4537 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1969).

Since the necessity of filing a notice of claim with respect to accidents involving the Long Island Railroad is vague and certainly not apparent on the face of Public Authorities Law § 1276(6), the provision was too vague to be enforceable and defendant estopped from asserting reliance thereon in defense of an action promptly instituted by an injured passenger. Belcastro v Long Island Railroad, 55 Misc. 2d 837, 286 N.Y.S.2d 945, 1968 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1820 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1968).

33. Village

Plaintiff's allegations that he retained law firm in which his prior attorney was partner to represent him in his claim against village, that former attorney was partner of attorney for village and that former attorney who negotiated settlement of claim failed to advise plaintiff that he could not represent him because he was partner of attorney for village were insufficient to raise triable issue of fact as to whether plaintiff's former attorney's actions were attributable to village so as to estop village from asserting affirmative defenses, inter alia, of plaintiff's failure to file notice of claim, failure to timely commence action and execution of valid general release with respect to claim. Ogilvie v Hoosick Falls, 55 A.D.2d 797, 389 N.Y.S.2d 907, 1976 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 15593 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1976).

Section 50-e of the General Municipal Law is a general law, which is defined as one which in terms and in effect applies alike to all counties, all counties other than those wholly included within a city, all cities, all towns, or all villages. Zumbo v Farmington, 60 A.D.2d 350, 401 N.Y.S.2d 121, 1978 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9680 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1978).

Child, who was injured after being struck by a car in the vicinity of some excavation work being carried out by the village, was foreclosed from asserting a derivative claim against the village because the derivative claim was not set forth in the notice of claim served upon the village. Gonzalez v Povoski, 149 A.D.3d 1472, 53 N.Y.S.3d 423, 2017 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3264 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 2017).

Under applicable New York statutory law no action may be commenced against a village for injury to property rights unless (1) a notice is served and filed within 90 days after the claim arises; (2) at least 30 days are allowed to elapse; and (3) the action is commenced within one year and 90 days after the happening of the event on which the claim is based. Hackensack Water Co. v Nyack, 289 F. Supp. 671, 1968 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 10010 (S.D.N.Y. 1968).

34. Water district

No notice of claim was required under this section in an action by a waterworks corporation to recover damages for breach of a city's obligation not to interfere with its franchise rights to furnish water within a franchised area. New York Water Service Corp. v New York, 304 N.Y. 945, 110 N.E.2d 885, 304 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 945, 1953 N.Y. LEXIS 1111 (N.Y. 1953).

In an action against a town and a water district alleging that defendants installed pipe under plaintiff's property and occupied same without permission, statute of limitations provisions of Town Law and General Municipal Law were inapplicable since it could not be said as a matter of pleading that the cause of action was for a continuing wrong. Jayne v East Hills Water Dist., 6 Misc. 2d 676, 164 N.Y.S.2d 284, 1957 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3051 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1957).

Inasmuch as a water district is not covered directly by General Municipal Law § 50-i, this would qualify the reference to public corporations in § 50-e(1) of that law and the provisions of Town Law § 67, and consequently the filing of a notice of claim is not a condition precedent to the commencement of a tort action against a water district. Harrigan v Smithtown, 54 Misc. 2d 793, 283 N.Y.S.2d 424, 1967 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1199 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1967).

Service of notice of claim on the water district is not a condition precedent to commencement of an action against district on a tort claim. Martin v Esopus, 57 Misc. 2d 487, 293 N.Y.S.2d 571, 1968 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1271 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1968).

The action of a private waterworks against the city for damages for breach of franchise because of the city's refusal to allow the waterworks to connect five new wells to its system, thus forcing it to procure additional water from the city at an uneconomic price, was, as established by the evidence, a cause of action in contract to which this section did not apply. New York Water Service Corp. v New York, 145 N.Y.S.2d 51 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1955), rev'd, 4 A.D.2d 209, 163 N.Y.S.2d 538, 1957 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5168 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1957).

35. Other public corporations

Even though no statute explicitly identified a public library as a public corporation entitled to notice of personal injury claims, a library operated on land owned by a school district that was largely funded by the school district clearly qualified as a municipal public corporation and was entitled to timely notice of a claim by a patron injured in a fall on the sidewalk approaching the library. Bovich v East Meadow Pub. Lib., 16 A.D.3d 11, 789 N.Y.S.2d 511, 2005 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1354 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2005).

Trial court erred in granting a motorist's motion pursuant to N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(5) to deem a late notice of claim served on a city hospital corporation timely served nunc pro tunc because service on the city was not service on the corporation, and the motorist failed to show, inter alia, that the corporation had timely actual knowledge of the facts of the claim; the fact that an accident report was prepared by the city police did not constitute notice to the corporation of the facts of the claim. The motorist's mistake as to the identity of the public corporation against which her claim should have been asserted was not excusable, and the motorist failed to demonstrate that her delay did not prejudice the corporation in its defense on the merits. Platt v New York City Health & Hosps. Corp., 105 A.D.3d 1026, 964 N.Y.S.2d 223, 2013 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2672 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2013).

Action against Facilities Development Corporation are governed by General Municipal Law § 50-e, as corporation is public benefit corporation included within term "public corporation" as defined in General construction Law § 66; late filing provisions of § 50-e are applicable to action against corporation, despite absence of complementary provision in corporation's incorporating act (CLS Unconsolidated Laws, Chapter 214). Kroupa v Facilities Dev. Corp., 128 Misc. 2d 904, 491 N.Y.S.2d 908, 1985 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3022 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1985).

Although CLS Pub A §§ 1596 et seq. does not specifically authorize court to allow service of late notice of claim against Yonkers Parking Authority, court may permit service of late notice in accordance with CLS Gen Mun § 50-e; Yonkers Parking Authority is public corporation as defined in CLS Gen Const § 66(1), and CLS Gen Mun § 50-e(5) is not actually inconsistent with any provision of Public Authorities Law (CLS Pub A § 1596-s). Michael v Yonkers Parking Auth., 172 Misc. 2d 304, 658 N.Y.S.2d 194, 1997 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 181 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1997).

III. Applicability to Types of Actions

36. In general

Cause of action in tort does not accrue, or arise, for purposes of both statute of limitations and section pertaining to notice of claim against public corporation until all requisite elements of tort have been satisfied. Beary v Rye, 59 A.D.2d 905, 399 N.Y.S.2d 140, 1977 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 14108 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1977), rev'd, 44 N.Y.2d 398, 406 N.Y.S.2d 9, 377 N.E.2d 453, 1978 N.Y. LEXIS 1960 (N.Y. 1978).

General Municipal L § 50-e, subdivision 6, which permits a court in its discretion to correct, supply or disregard a mistake, omission, irregularity or defects made in good faith in the notice of claim is limited in its application to tort actions, and no section comparable in effect has been shown to apply to actions in contract. Braslow v Barnett, 74 Misc. 2d 26, 343 N.Y.S.2d 819, 1973 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1953 (N.Y. Dist. Ct. 1973).

Federal court may not properly entertain motion for leave to file late notice of claim under CLS Gen Mun L § 50-e(5), because § 50-e(7) limits applications to supreme court or county court of state, and judicial economy would not be served by federal court's hearing of motion. Lipinski v Skinner, 700 F. Supp. 637, 1988 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 13749 (N.D.N.Y. 1988).

Human rights law claim under NYCLS Exec Law §§ 292(9) and 296(2) must be dismissed for noncompliance with NYCLS Gen Mun Law §§ 50-e and 50-i, despite discharged medical director's assertion that her claim regarding retaliation for helping persons with AIDS is brought to vindicate public interest, because, while it may be true that her victory in this case might have positive effect on AIDS sufferers and deterrent effect on other employers, her case is first and foremost quest to vindicate her own job rights and does not fall within "public interest" exception to notice-of-claim requirements. Finley v Giacobbe, 827 F. Supp. 215, 1993 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 9992 (S.D.N.Y. 1993).

37. Article 78 proceeding

City's service of notice of appeal in Article 78 proceeding effected stay of all proceedings to enforce judgment or order appealed from therein but in no way prevented wrecking company, which sought to recover for city's allegedly improper refusal to issue demolition permits, from filing notice of claim against city as required. Bloomfield Bldg. Wreckers, Inc. v Troy, 41 N.Y.2d 1102, 396 N.Y.S.2d 359, 364 N.E.2d 1130, 1977 N.Y. LEXIS 2134 (N.Y. 1977).

Supreme Court properly dismissed Article 78 proceeding against New York City police property clerk for return of money seized by police from petitioners (who had been charged with criminal possession of stolen property and jostling, but were permitted to plead guilty to violation of disorderly conduct) where petitioners had not served notice of claim pursuant to CLS Gen Mun § 50-e. Neumark v New York City Police Property Clerk, 122 A.D.2d 210, 504 N.Y.S.2d 744, 1986 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 59539 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1986).

No notice of claim under General Municipal Law § 50-e is required before bringing an Article 78 proceeding. In re Caggiano, 78 Misc. 2d 187, 342 N.Y.S.2d 203, 1973 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1243 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1973), aff'd, 44 A.D.2d 828, 355 N.Y.S.2d 170, 1974 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5098 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1974).

Under both Gen Mun Law § 50-e and an administrative regulation, original papers would suffice as a notice of claim where a combined complaint and Art 78 petition served upon the corporate counsel of the City of New York was later converted into a civil rights action. Johnson on behalf of King v Perales, 123 Misc. 2d 659, 474 N.Y.S.2d 247, 1984 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3050 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1984).

Inmate could maintain Article 78 proceeding to compel New York City Police Department property clerk to return currency recovered from his person on arrest without having to first file notice of claim under CLS Gen Mun § 50-e within 90 days of seizure of money since district attorney had issued release for money, and petitioner could thus utilize Article 78 to compel Property Clerk to perform ministerial act of returning money. Torres v New York City Police Dept., 120 Precinct, 147 Misc. 2d 137, 555 N.Y.S.2d 579, 1990 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 225 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1990).

38. Actions involving building construction and contracts

Where the plaintiff sued a town for damages based upon the revocation of a building permit issued to her, the gravemen of the complaint was in tort, requiring compliance with the statute. Band v Colonie, 36 A.D.2d 785, 319 N.Y.S.2d 118, 1971 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4477 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1971).

Where correspondence which electrical subcontractor relied upon to support his negligence cause of action against dormitory authority, bonding companies, and contractor was not intended as notice and did not satisfy statutory requirements for such notice, negligence cause of action would be dismissed due to failure to timely file notice of claim. Schuler-Haas Electric Corp. v Wager Constr. Corp., 57 A.D.2d 707, 395 N.Y.S.2d 272, 1977 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11755 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1977).

Court should have dismissed general contractor's action against village alleging negligent hiring and supervision in connection with sewer construction project, based on contractor's failure to file notice of claim under CLS Gen Mun § 50-e; to extent that village's duty of care overlapped its contractual duty, contractor's negligence claim was duplicative of its breach of contract action, while any duty beyond contractual duty would sound in tort, and would require notice of claim. Northrup Contracting, Inc. v Bergen, 129 A.D.2d 1002, 514 N.Y.S.2d 306, 1987 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 45699 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1987).

Bridge and tunnel authority was not entitled to summary judgment dismissing breach of contract cause of action by city for property damage sustained during construction of bridge approach where there was triable issue of fact as to existence of contractual relationship between parties; given viability of contract cause of action, authority did not prove applicability of notice of claim requirements of CLS Gen Mun § 50-e and CLS Pub A § 569-a. City of New York v Triborough Bridge & Tunnel Auth., 273 A.D.2d 157, 710 N.Y.S.2d 823, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7498 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2000).

Claim by surety of defaulting construction contractor against town for breach of contract to pay for completed storage shed was untimely where (1) CLS Town § 65(3) requires that notice of claim be filed within 6 months after accrual of cause of action, (2) cause of action for work, labor, and services rendered under contract accrues when claim is actually or constructively rejected, (3) having received no response to either its 1993 demand for payment or its 1995 threat of litigation, surety should have reasonably concluded that town had constructively rejected its claim, and (4) surety did not file notice of claim until over 3 years later. Town of Nassau v Westchester Fire Ins. Co., 281 A.D.2d 803, 722 N.Y.S.2d 298, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2513 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2001).

There was no merit in argument, by surety of defaulting construction contractor, that its claim against town for breach of contract to pay for completed storage shed had been prematurely dismissed because discovery was not complete where evidence concerning town's refusal to pay and any representations made by town concerning payment were not within exclusive knowledge of town, and surety's expectation of discovering any relevant and material evidence on which to base estoppel of town to assert late notice of claim under CLS Town § 65(3) was based on mere hope and speculation. Town of Nassau v Westchester Fire Ins. Co., 281 A.D.2d 803, 722 N.Y.S.2d 298, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2513 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2001).

City housing authority and other defendants were entitled to partial summary judgment dismissing causes of action seeking damages for extra work under municipal construction contract and damaged business reputation where plaintiff did not prove its strict compliance with notice, change order, and dispute resolution provisions of contract, and defendants did not waive strict compliance with those provisions. Sicoli & Massaro, Inc. v Niagara Falls Hous. Auth., 281 A.D.2d 966, 722 N.Y.S.2d 442, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2728 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 2001).

General Municipal L § 50-e was not applicable in action for damages incurred by owner of non-conforming use in reliance on building permit initially issued by city's building commissioner, and revoked by city, for reconstruction of mixed residential and commercial use which had been damaged over 50 percent by fire. 154 East Park Ave. Corp. v Long Beach, 76 Misc. 2d 445, 350 N.Y.S.2d 974, 1973 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1507 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1973), modified, 49 A.D.2d 949, 374 N.Y.S.2d 569, 1975 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11233 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1975).

Even if notice of claim requirement of General Municipal Law could be construed as being limited to actions for physical damage to tangible personal property and personal injury, where term "personal property" was very broadly defined in General Construction Law to include tangible or intangible property interests, and Administrative Code was indisputably absolute in its language requiring a notice of claim in every action or special proceeding prosecuted or maintained against city, notice of such claim was required prior to commencement of action against city for wrongful inducement of breach of contract, a traditional tort, and failure to give notice required dismissal. Hannibal General Contractors, Inc. v St. Matthew & St. Timothy's Housing Corp., 83 Misc. 2d 53, 371 N.Y.S.2d 535, 1975 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2801 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1975), aff'd, 55 A.D.2d 583, 390 N.Y.S.2d 588, 1976 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 15272 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1976).

39. Damages caused by mob or riot

Town was entitled to dismissal of personal injury action where town did not receive written notice of defect that allegedly caused accident, and plaintiff's claim of constructive notice based on town's inspection and repair of curb near location of accident and about 2 months before accident was insufficient to overcome failure to give written notice required by town's code. Tonorezos v County of Nassau, 266 A.D.2d 387, 698 N.Y.S.2d 331, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11525 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1999).

Requirement of subd 1 of the above statute that notice of claim shall be filed within 90 days after the claim arises, held not to have been met where claim was made under § 71 of this law while its operation was suspended by Unconsolidated Laws ch 131 § 113 as extended by § 121 of the same statute. Hart's Food Stores, Inc. v Rochester, 44 Misc. 2d 938, 255 N.Y.S.2d 390, 1965 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2374 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1965).

40. Counterclaim or cross-claim

Counterclaims which were filed in action to recover civil penalties for violation of a zoning ordinance were properly dismissed for failure to satisfy notice of claim requirements contained in General Municipal Law even under liberal construction urged by defendant. Southampton v Platt, 55 A.D.2d 603, 389 N.Y.S.2d 625, 1976 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 15314 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1976), app. dismissed, 41 N.Y.2d 970, 394 N.Y.S.2d 884, 363 N.E.2d 590, 1977 N.Y. LEXIS 1959 (N.Y. 1977), app. dismissed, 41 N.Y.2d 1008, 1977 N.Y. LEXIS 3430 (N.Y. 1977), app. denied, 42 N.Y.2d 802, 1977 N.Y. LEXIS 3649 (N.Y. 1977), modified, 43 N.Y.2d 848, 402 N.Y.S.2d 1005, 373 N.E.2d 1229, 1978 N.Y. LEXIS 1774 (N.Y. 1978).

Where counterclaims asserted in an action initiated by a municipality seek equitable relief, and the monetary relief demanded is merely incidental to the equitable relief sought, the requirement that a notice of claim be filed timely does not apply. Hart v East Plaza, Inc., 62 A.D.2d 113, 403 N.Y.S.2d 928, 1978 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10425 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't), app. dismissed, 45 N.Y.2d 706, 408 N.Y.S.2d 1025, 1978 N.Y. LEXIS 3070 (N.Y. 1978).

The failure to present a claim against a municipality within the applicable time period ordinarily operates to bar any claim or action against it for that particular cause of action, and it is of no consequence that the claim is asserted as a counterclaim in an action initiated by the municipality. Hart v East Plaza, Inc., 62 A.D.2d 113, 403 N.Y.S.2d 928, 1978 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10425 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't), app. dismissed, 45 N.Y.2d 706, 408 N.Y.S.2d 1025, 1978 N.Y. LEXIS 3070 (N.Y. 1978).

Court properly dismissed mortgagor's counterclaims against city in city's mortgage foreclosure action where mortgagor failed to file timely notice of claim under CLS Gen Mun § 50-e. New York v Kashau, 133 A.D.2d 205, 519 N.Y.S.2d 15, 1987 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 49714 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1987).

In action by city to recover amount of illegal payments made by defendants in form of alleged bribes to city employee, court properly dismissed defendants' counterclaim seeking monetary damages from city, since defendants failed to file notice of claim. New York v Corwen, 164 A.D.2d 212, 565 N.Y.S.2d 457, 1990 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 14084 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1990), overruled, City of New York v Keene Corp., 304 A.D.2d 119, 756 N.Y.S.2d 536, 2003 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2410 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2003).

In an action for damages against a municipality and a private corporation, the latter was not required to file a notice with the city, in order to maintain a cross complaint for indemnity against the municipality. Antonelli v Mt. Vernon, 20 Misc. 2d 331, 189 N.Y.S.2d 52, 1959 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3521 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1959).

Fact that county first initiated litigation against defendant motorist does not relieve the defendant from complying with the provisions of General Municipal Law §§ 50-e and 50-i relating to service of notice of claim, where the defendant seeks affirmative relief by way of a counterclaim, and counterclaim should be dismissed in the absence of such compliance. County of Nassau v Wolfe, 51 Misc. 2d 848, 273 N.Y.S.2d 984, 1966 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1410 (N.Y. Dist. Ct. 1966).

41. Defamation action

In a slander action against a town superintendent of highways, a motion to implead the town as a third-party defendant was denied where no notice of claim had ever been filed and there was no statutory provision for indemnification to a highway superintendent other than for his negligence committed in the operation of the highway department and the maintenance of the town highways. Grinaldo v Meusburger, 34 A.D.2d 586, 307 N.Y.S.2d 974, 1970 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5414 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), app. dismissed, 27 N.Y.2d 598, 313 N.Y.S.2d 409, 261 N.E.2d 407, 1970 N.Y. LEXIS 1245 (N.Y. 1970).

School teacher who brought action against assistant principal, department chairman, and principal based on alleged defamation which apparently occurred in the course of, or arose out of, the performance of official duties was required to file notice of claim in compliance with the General Municipal Law. Cioffi v Giannone, 56 A.D.2d 620, 391 N.Y.S.2d 675, 1977 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10710 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1977).

Regional off-track betting corporation was entitled to dismissal of complaint brought by race track to recover damages for injury to reputation since race track failed to serve notice of claim as required by CLS Racing & Wagering § 514(1) and (5), and CLS Gen Mun § 50-e(1)(a) and (b). Broadmeadow Lanes, Inc. v Catskill Regional Off-Track Betting Corp., 151 A.D.2d 631, 543 N.Y.S.2d 91, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8215 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1989), app. denied, 75 N.Y.2d 707, 554 N.Y.S.2d 476, 553 N.E.2d 1024, 1990 N.Y. LEXIS 588 (N.Y. 1990).

Corporation's decision not to file a timely notice of claim with the City of New York because it hoped its business would recover once a board of education reinstated a contract that was suspended, because it was concerned that the City's Comptroller, who was running for mayor, would retaliate against it if it sued the City and the Comptroller's Office, and because it was beset with lawsuits filed by its creditors and lacked the resources to hire counsel were not reasonable excuses, and the trial court did not err when it denied the corporation's motion for leave to file a late notice of claim after it sued the City and the City's Comptroller's Office, alleging defamation, or by dismissing the corporation's complaint. Buric v Safir, 4 A.D.3d 160, 772 N.Y.S.2d 36, 2004 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1649 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't), app. denied, 2 N.Y.3d 706, 781 N.Y.S.2d 287, 814 N.E.2d 459, 2004 N.Y. LEXIS 1061 (N.Y. 2004).

Petitioners' cause of action in defamation against a town based on statements made by a town supervisor regarding petitioners' comments on a proposed conveyance of a conservation easement to a not-for-profit corporation was properly dismissed because petitioners failed to file the required notice of claim against the town or to allege the elements of the tort with the required specificity. Matter of La Barbera v Town of Woodstock, 29 A.D.3d 1054, 814 N.Y.S.2d 376, 2006 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5881 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), app. dismissed, 7 N.Y.3d 844, 823 N.Y.S.2d 773, 857 N.E.2d 68, 2006 N.Y. LEXIS 2583 (N.Y. 2006).

A plaintiff suing two police officers and the City of New York in an alleged libel and slander action arising from the testimony of the two officers in proceedings before an Italian Judge in the Italian Consulate is subject to the provisions requiring filing of the notice of claim within 90 days. Sorge v New York, 56 Misc. 2d 414, 288 N.Y.S.2d 787, 1968 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1650 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1968).

42. Employment contracts

County employee was not required to serve notice of claim as to her causes of action for wrongful termination. Noel v Board of Elections, 203 A.D.2d 576, 611 N.Y.S.2d 222, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4236 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't), app. denied, 84 N.Y.2d 804, 618 N.Y.S.2d 6, 642 N.E.2d 325, 1994 N.Y. LEXIS 3121 (N.Y. 1994), overruled in part, Picciano v Nassau County Civil Serv. Comm'n, 290 A.D.2d 164, 736 N.Y.S.2d 55, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13074 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2001).

Terminated school bus driver's action against school district was properly dismissed where (1) to extent that she sought reinstatement and back pay based on alleged violation of her contractual rights, her failure to file notice of claim was fatal to her case, (2) collective bargaining agreement did not require that she be given notice of charges and hearing, and thus there was no contractual violation, and (3) her remaining claims lacked merit. Matrisciano v Board of Educ., 263 A.D.2d 472, 692 N.Y.S.2d 729, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7882 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1999).

There is no specific statutory requirement making the filing of a claim a condition precedent to a contract action and in the absence of such a provision an action is maintainable without prior presentation of a claim. Thus patrolman was entitled to bring action against county for recovery of salary and fringe benefits during period of suspension even though he filed no notice of claim. Meed v Nassau County Police Dep't, 70 Misc. 2d 274, 332 N.Y.S.2d 679, 1972 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1920 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1972).

City, city agencies, and officials are entitled to summary judgment as to transit authority police lieutenants' state law claims for breach of contract, fraud, and misrepresentation with regard to notification and scoring of captain's examination, where even most generous interpretation of argument does not support contention of implied contract as to scoring method arising from examination notice, because without breach of contract claim, tort claims must be dismissed for failure to meet CLS Gen Mun Law § 50-e requirements for filing notice of claim against city. Guinyard v New York, 800 F. Supp. 1083, 1992 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 13220 (E.D.N.Y. 1992).

43. Equity actions

The notice of claim requirements of this section do not apply to actions in equity, such as a suit for a mandatory injunction to compel restoration of a street to its former condition. Feuer v Brenning, 279 A.D. 1033, 112 N.Y.S.2d 382, 1952 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5711 (N.Y. App. Div. 1952), aff'd, 304 N.Y. 881, 110 N.E.2d 173, 304 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 881, 1953 N.Y. LEXIS 1078 (N.Y. 1953).

Where an action is grounded upon equitable principles there need be no compliance with § 50-e of the General Municipal Law. Accredited Demolition Constr. Corp. v Yonkers, 37 A.D.2d 708, 324 N.Y.S.2d 377, 1971 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3537 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1971).

Where city terminated landowner's right to enjoin trespass by condemning land, damages for trespass would be limited to 90 days prior to filing of statutory notice of claim, even though compliance with notice of claim requirements is not necessary where action is brought in equity to restrain continuing act and where demand for money damages is merely incidental to requested injunctive relief. Rand v New York, 47 A.D.2d 937, 367 N.Y.S.2d 80, 1975 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9398 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1975).

Any claim or notice of claim against a county for damages arising at law or in equity must be made and served in compliance with section 50-e of the General Municipal Law and the action must be commenced pursuant to the provisions of section 50-i of the General Municipal Law (County Law, § 52); in an equitable action seeking only injunctive relief, it is unnecessary to file a notice of claim. Malcuria v Seneca, 66 A.D.2d 421, 414 N.Y.S.2d 401, 1979 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10029 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1979).

Property owners, who commenced separate actions against a town arising out of the town's maintenance of an uncovered salt and sand pile that allegedly contaminated water wells upon plaintiffs' properties, were not required to file notices of claim pursuant to Gen Mun Law § 50-e, where plaintiffs alleged that at the time of the service of the notices of claim and the complaint a nusiance and trespass existed which the plaintiffs sought to enjoin, and thus it was not unreasonable for the trial court to conclude that plaintiffs' main object was to prevent further contamination of their water supply, an action sounding in equity and not in tort. Watts v Gardiner, 90 A.D.2d 615, 456 N.Y.S.2d 161, 1982 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 18683 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1982).

In an action by a landowner, who attempted to build a wall to prevent water from further inundating his land as a result of a municipality's bridge repair efforts, in which the landowner sought damages, an injunction to prevent the town from continuing to divert water onto his land, and an injunction against his prosecution on charges of interfering with the banks of a trout stream tributary, the trial court incorrectly dismissed the complaint on the grounds that there was no personal jurisdiction over the town highway superintendent and the town as the summons was improperly served, since a notice of claim under Gen Mun Law § 50-e is not required for an action brought in equity against a municipality when the demand for money damages is incidental and subordinate to the requested injunctive relief, and although plaintiff sought money damages to compensate him for the alleged harm, the claims were subordinate and incidental to his cause of action seeking equitable relief. Likewise, Gen Mun Law § 50-i, was inapplicable. Dutcher v Shandaken, 97 A.D.2d 922, 470 N.Y.S.2d 767, 1983 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 20711 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1983).

The trial court erred in denying a motion for leave to file a late claim against a school district for injuries incurred by a child at a basketball game run by an outside organization on school premises where the school principal had received notice of the injury within five days after it had occurred by a call from the child's father, who then received a letter from the principal stating that the injuries would be covered by the other organization. Urban v Waterford-Halfmoon Union Free School Dist., 105 A.D.2d 1022, 483 N.Y.S.2d 463, 1984 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 21108 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1984).

No notice of claim was required in action by developer to challenge discontinuance of road by village since developer's claim for money damages was incidental to its primary equitable action. Bass Bldg. Corp. v Pomona, 142 A.D.2d 657, 530 N.Y.S.2d 595, 1988 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7949 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1988).

Fact that equitable relief is sought does not obviate need for notice of claim. Greco v Incorporated Village of Freeport, 223 A.D.2d 674, 637 N.Y.S.2d 191, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 650 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1996).

Requirement to file formal notice of claim with municipality does not apply to action in equity to restrain continuing act or to demands for money damages that are merely incidental to such equitable claims. American Pen Corp. v City of New York, 266 A.D.2d 87, 698 N.Y.S.2d 472, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11643 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1999).

In citizen suit against county to force landfill to comply with federal environmental laws, pendent state law claims would not be dismissed based on plaintiff's failure to file notice of claim (CLS Gen Mun § 50-e) since notice of claim is not required where parties primarily seek equitable relief. Orange Env't v County of Orange, 860 F. Supp. 1003, 1994 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 12011 (S.D.N.Y. 1994).

44. —Enjoining nuisance

Notice of claim is not a condition precedent to a suit in equity against a municipality to restrain a continuing act, such as an action to restrain maintenance of a nuisance; but if damages are likewise claimed, whether their recovery requires preliminary notice of claim depends upon the statute or charter provisions applicable to the particular municipality. Grant v Kirkland, 10 A.D.2d 474, 200 N.Y.S.2d 594, 1960 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9911 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1960).

This section does not require the filing of a notice of claim as a condition to an action seeking equitable relief abating a nuisance, and also incidental damages by reason of the nuisance accruing prior to the action; what are incidental damages in each case depends upon the statute or charter provisions controlling the municipality. Grant v Kirkland, 10 A.D.2d 474, 200 N.Y.S.2d 594, 1960 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9911 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1960).

Under section of County Law requiring any claim for damage, whether casual or continuing trespass or nuisance, to be served in compliance with section of General Municipal Law requiring notice of claim against municipality be given within 90 days after claim arises, service of notice of claim within 90 days of accrual of cause of action is required, even though primary relief sought is equitable and damages must be limited to those occurring within 90-day period before service of notice of claim. Doran v Cheektowaga, 54 A.D.2d 178, 388 N.Y.S.2d 385, 1976 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13748 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1976).

Beachfront property owners' action against town was not time barred for failure to comply with CLS Gen Mun § 50-e where owners claimed unconstitutional taking of property without just compensation and sought permanent injunction to eliminate continuing nuisance of erosion of their property, allegedly caused by town's failure to abate effects of stone jetty constructed in 1964; compliance with § 50-e is not required where plaintiffs seek equitable relief to abate or enjoin nuisance, and demand for money damages is incidental and subordinate to injunctive relief. Stanton v Town of Southold, 266 A.D.2d 277, 698 N.Y.S.2d 258, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13057 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1999).

Current owner of beachfront property involved in Lockman v Town of Southold, 108 AD2d 900, was not precluded from participating in present action against same town where (1) plaintiffs in Lockman primarily sought damages for injury to their property caused by storm, (2) present action involved substantively different claims of unconstitutional taking of property without just compensation and continuing nuisance of erosion, (3) and Lockman was not decided on merits but on procedural ground of noncompliance with CLS Gen Mun § 50-e, which was inapplicable to present case. Stanton v Town of Southold, 266 A.D.2d 277, 698 N.Y.S.2d 258, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13057 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1999).

Compliance with statutory requirements for notice of claim was not required in an equitable action to enjoin a village from trespassing upon property and from maintaining nuisances thereon. Victor v Angelo, 14 Misc. 2d 577, 179 N.Y.S.2d 755, 1958 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2294 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1958).

Where equitable relief is sought in the form of enjoining a continuing trespass or nuisance by a municipality, the case is not one where notice of claim is required by law. Bloss v Canastota, 35 Misc. 2d 829, 232 N.Y.S.2d 166, 1962 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2676 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1962).

Where the nature of plaintiff's action is equitable to enjoin the village from continuing a wrong and to abate a nuisance, the General Municipal Law requiring a notice of claim and a lapse of 30 days from notice has no applicability even though money damages are sought as incidental to the main relief. Kyle v Catskill, 81 Misc. 2d 1035, 367 N.Y.S.2d 158, 1975 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2524 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1975).

Plaintiff, an employee of the city against which she seeks to file a late notice of claim for injuries sustained in a fall on a city street (General Municipal Law, § 50-e), has not given the city actual notice of her injuries by notifying her superiors of the reason for her absence from work, as the notice must be served upon the authorized representative of the city and disclosure to another division, agency or branch cannot be treated as notice for the purposes of instituting a claim; moreover, in notifying her superiors, plaintiff did not express an intention to sue the city; therefore, actual notice cannot serve as a basis to allow plaintiff to file a late notice of claim. Phillips v New York, 98 Misc. 2d 1124, 415 N.Y.S.2d 349, 1979 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2206 (N.Y. Civ. Ct. 1979).

45. —Money damages

Notice of claim is not a condition precedent to a suit in equity against a municipality to restrain a continuing act, such as an action to restrain maintenance of a nuisance; but if damages are likewise claimed, whether their recovery requires preliminary notice of claim depends upon the statute or charter provisions applicable to the particular municipality. Grant v Kirkland, 10 A.D.2d 474, 200 N.Y.S.2d 594, 1960 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9911 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1960).

It is well established that compliance with notice of claim requirements is not necessary where the action is brought in equity to restrain a continuing act and a demand for money damages is merely incidental to the requested injunctive relief. Fontana v Hempstead, 18 A.D.2d 1084, 239 N.Y.S.2d 512, 1963 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3984 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1963), aff'd, 13 N.Y.2d 1134, 247 N.Y.S.2d 130, 196 N.E.2d 561, 1964 N.Y. LEXIS 1435 (N.Y. 1964).

Where relief demanded is primarily equitable in nature and monetary relief demanded is merely incidental to equitable relief sought, notice of claim provisions of General Municipal Law do not apply. Cooper v Morin, 50 A.D.2d 32, 375 N.Y.S.2d 928, 1975 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11423 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1975).

Where counterclaims asserted in an action initiated by a municipality seek equitable relief, and the monetary relief demanded is merely incidental to the equitable relief sought, the requirement that a notice of claim be filed timely does not apply. Hart v East Plaza, Inc., 62 A.D.2d 113, 403 N.Y.S.2d 928, 1978 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10425 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't), app. dismissed, 45 N.Y.2d 706, 408 N.Y.S.2d 1025, 1978 N.Y. LEXIS 3070 (N.Y. 1978).

Although it is unnecessary to file a notice of claim in an equitable action against a county seeking only injunctive relief, inasmuch as any claim or notice of claim against a county for damages arising at law or in equity must be made and served in compliance with section 50-e of the General Municipal Law and the action must be commenced pursuant to the provisions of section 50-i of the General Municipal Law (County Law, § 52), if plaintiffs do not file a notice of claim pursuant to section 52 of the County Law and the complaint seeks both injunctive and monetary relief, a motion to dismiss the cause of action for damages is granted, leaving a viable cause of action for injunctive relief; plaintiffs should not be permitted to frustrate the legitimate purposes of the notice-of-claim statutes by grafting a claim for monetary damages to a claim seeking injunctive relief. Malcuria v Seneca, 66 A.D.2d 421, 414 N.Y.S.2d 401, 1979 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10029 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1979).

Compliance with notice of claim requirements of CLS Gen Mun § 50-e is not necessary where action is brought in equity to restrain continuing act and demand for money damages is merely incidental to requested injunctive relief. Rattner v Planning Com. of Pleasantville, 156 A.D.2d 521, 548 N.Y.S.2d 943, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 15803 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1989), app. dismissed, 75 N.Y.2d 897, 554 N.Y.S.2d 831, 553 N.E.2d 1341, 1990 N.Y. LEXIS 601 (N.Y. 1990).

Multimillion dollar damage claims against city were properly dismissed for failure to file formal notice, even though major part of complaint sought equitable relief, where damage claims were more than simply incidental to equitable relief sought. American Pen Corp. v City of New York, 266 A.D.2d 87, 698 N.Y.S.2d 472, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11643 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1999).

No notice of claim is required in action against municipality if money damages demanded are incidental to equitable relief sought. Greaney v Springer, 266 A.D.2d 707, 701 N.Y.S.2d 450, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11842 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1999).

An action in equity to restrain a continuing trespass by a town, by reason of the discharge of surface waters on the land of the plaintiff, and to recover money damages, was not subject to defense, in regard to claim for money damages, that no proof of claim was filed in accordance with this section. Meinken v County of Nassau, 14 Misc. 2d 304, 178 N.Y.S.2d 529, 1958 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2937 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1958).

In an equity action for injunctive relief no notice is required to recover monetary damages. Suburban Club of Larkfield, Inc. v Huntington, 57 Misc. 2d 1051, 294 N.Y.S.2d 4, 1968 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1177 (N.Y. Sup. Ct.), aff'd, 31 A.D.2d 718, 297 N.Y.S.2d 893, 1968 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5223 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1968).

Where the nature of plaintiff's action is equitable to enjoin the village from continuing a wrong and to abate a nuisance, the General Municipal Law requiring a notice of claim and a lapse of 30 days from notice has no applicability even though money damages are sought as incidental to the main relief. Kyle v Catskill, 81 Misc. 2d 1035, 367 N.Y.S.2d 158, 1975 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2524 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1975).

46. —Other relief

The notice of claim requirements of this section do not apply to actions in equity, such as a suit for a mandatory injunction to compel restoration of a street to its former condition. Feuer v Brenning, 279 A.D. 1033, 112 N.Y.S.2d 382, 1952 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5711 (N.Y. App. Div. 1952), aff'd, 304 N.Y. 881, 110 N.E.2d 173, 304 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 881, 1953 N.Y. LEXIS 1078 (N.Y. 1953).

Woman entitled to sue county medical center for damages resulting from their denial of sterilization although she failed to serve notice of claim within 90 days where major relief originally sought was equitable and defendant was estopped from making argument because they had actual and prompt notice of claim. McCabe v Nassau County Medical Center, 453 F.2d 698, 1971 U.S. App. LEXIS 6447 (2d Cir. N.Y. 1971).

47. False imprisonment

The plaintiff, who had been convicted of murder in 1942 and released on a federal writ of habeas corpus in 1955, could not maintain an action for malicious prosecution and false imprisonment for the period of confinement following his arraignment, and with respect to the period he was confined prior to arraignment his claim arose on the day of arraignment and the 90-day period within which to give notice of a claim commenced running on the day of plaintiff's release from actual physical confinement in 1955, and therefore his notice of claim served on July 16, 1963 was not timely. Caminito v New York, 25 A.D.2d 848, 269 N.Y.S.2d 826, 1966 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4364 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1966), aff'd, 19 N.Y.2d 931, 281 N.Y.S.2d 338, 228 N.E.2d 396, 1967 N.Y. LEXIS 1467 (N.Y. 1967).

Trial court properly dismissed causes of action alleging false arrest and false imprisonment, as the notice of claim was filed more than 90 days after the offender was released from custody. Avgush v Town of Yorktown, 303 A.D.2d 340, 755 N.Y.S.2d 647, 2003 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2102 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2003).

Claimant's failure to identify the arresting entity, despite evidence in the record that such information was available to him, rendered entirely speculative his claim that each entity timely acquired actual knowledge of the essential facts of his false imprisonment claim. Therefore, his late claim was dismissed. Matter of Rush v County of Nassau, 24 A.D.3d 560, 806 N.Y.S.2d 232, 2005 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 14142 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2005), app. dismissed, app. denied, 7 N.Y.3d 862, 824 N.Y.S.2d 601, 857 N.E.2d 1133, 2006 N.Y. LEXIS 3333 (N.Y. 2006).

Civil Rights L § 79 did not suspend civil rights of individual incarcerated in county jail and thus he was under no legal disability to file notice of claim against the city for false imprisonment pursuant to Gen Mun L § 50-e. Clair v Utica, 72 Misc. 2d 547, 339 N.Y.S.2d 616, 1972 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2224 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1972).

Proposed third amended complaint against assistant district attorney is futile, as plaintiffs do not claim to have served county clerk or any other county official designated in CPLR § 311, because they have failed to allege compliance with Gen Mun § 50-e, and they cannot do so since their own submissions admit they never served notice of claim on appropriate governmental entity. Haygood v City of New York, 64 F. Supp. 2d 275, 1999 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 13279 (S.D.N.Y. 1999).

48. False arrest

There is no necessity for service of a notice of claim upon a municipality as a condition precedent to an action against a city police officer for false arrest or malicious prosecution where the municipality is not made a party. O'Hara v Sears Roebuck & Co., 286 A.D. 104, 142 N.Y.S.2d 465, 1955 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3985 (N.Y. App. Div. 1955).

Where notice of claim in connection with action, inter alia, to recover damages for false arrest was served on county more than 90 days after date infant plaintiff was released from actual custody, first cause of action, which sought damages from county for alleged false arrest, and third cause of action, insofar as it sought to recoup legal fees and medical expenses paid by plaintiff guardian in connection with arrest, were properly dismissed. Tucci v County of Nassau, 50 A.D.2d 945, 377 N.Y.S.2d 588, 1975 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11888 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1975).

Plaintiff who offered no evidence that individual defendants were acting outside scope of their employment in making allegedly false arrest could not maintain action against them where no notice of claim had been filed as required by General Municipal Law. Zwecker v Clinch, 279 A.D.2d 572, 720 N.Y.S.2d 150, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 565 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2001).

Failure to file notice of claim against municipality would not necessarily preclude plaintiff from asserting cause of action against individual defendants based on alleged false arrest, since provisions of CLS Gen Mun § 50-e apply to claims against individual defendants only if municipality is obligated to indemnify them. Zwecker v Clinch, 279 A.D.2d 572, 720 N.Y.S.2d 150, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 565 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2001).

Law office failure was not an acceptable excuse under N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(5) for a claimant's failure to timely serve a notice of claim alleging malicious prosecution against a town, and the appellate court upheld the trial court's judgment denying the claimant's petition for leave to file a late notice of claim and the claimant's lawsuit alleging harassment. Baglivi v Town of Southold, 301 A.D.2d 597, 754 N.Y.S.2d 43, 2003 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 468 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2003).

Claimant's failure to identify the arresting entity, despite evidence in the record that such information was available to him, rendered entirely speculative his claim that each entity timely acquired actual knowledge of the essential facts of his false arrest claim. Therefore, his late claim was dismissed. Matter of Rush v County of Nassau, 24 A.D.3d 560, 806 N.Y.S.2d 232, 2005 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 14142 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2005), app. dismissed, app. denied, 7 N.Y.3d 862, 824 N.Y.S.2d 601, 857 N.E.2d 1133, 2006 N.Y. LEXIS 3333 (N.Y. 2006).

Because a police officer's conduct did not rise to the level of wantonness and maliciousness, even if an administratrix's claim for false arrest had been properly submitted to the jury as part of her N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e claim, the jury's damage award was against the weight of the evidence. Garcia v O'Keefe, 34 A.D.3d 334, 825 N.Y.S.2d 38, 2006 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13755 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2006).

County caseworker, accompanied police officers who entered the arrestee's home, conducted a search, discovered marihuana and arrested her; after the criminal charge was dismissed, the arrestee filed an action alleging a violation of her Fourth Amendment rights, pursuant to 42 U.S.C.S. § 1983, and her state constitutional rights. Because the record did not indicate that the arrestee timely filed a notice of claim and the complaint was not filed within one year and 90 days of the date the action accrued, it did not appear the arrestee could prevail in her cause of action alleging a state constitutional tort against the county. Pierce v Village of Horseheads Police Dept., 107 A.D.3d 1354, 970 N.Y.S.2d 95, 2013 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4775 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2013).

After the statute of limitations barred plaintiff's action for false arrest, she could not by virtue of timely notice of suit served upon the county join as party to defendants the sheriff and deputy sheriff against whom her claims were time barred. Brenon v County of Oneida, 52 Misc. 2d 795, 276 N.Y.S.2d 393, 1966 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1274 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1966).

Woman alleging false arrest and negligence against police officers was required to serve notice of claim on village pursuant to CLS Gen Mun Law § 50-e(1)(b), where woman contended that it was not necessary to serve notice on village since village was not a named defendant, because officers were acting within the scope of their employment and were covered by statutory indemnification provision. Ruiz v Herrera, 745 F. Supp. 940, 1990 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 11519 (S.D.N.Y. 1990).

Arrestee could not maintain claim against municipality for negligent hiring, training, and/or supervision of police officers, where arrestee's notice of claim did not mention negligent hiring, training, or supervision and contained no allegations concerning such claims as required by CLS Gen Mun Law § 50-e. Fincher v County of Westchester, 979 F. Supp. 989, 1997 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 14613 (S.D.N.Y. 1997).

Arrestee's state law claims against a city and its police department were subject to dismissal because the arrestee did not include them in his notice of claim against the city as required by N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e. Grays v City of New Rochelle, 354 F. Supp. 2d 323, 2005 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 1593 (S.D.N.Y. 2005).

Plaintiffs' state law false arrest claim was time-barred under N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law §§ 50-e, 50(1)(a) because the claim accrued on August 10, 2001, when he was released from custody and plaintiff did not file his notice of claim until July 22, 2002 and did not commence the action until April 30, 2003. Smith v City of New York, 388 F. Supp. 2d 179, 2005 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 231 (S.D.N.Y. 2005).

Plaintiffs' state law claims against a city for false arrest, false imprisonment, and malicious prosecution were allowed to stand because plaintiffs were granted leave to file a late notice of claim as permitted by N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(5); however, plaintiffs' claim for negligent or intentional infliction of emotional distress was dismissed in accordance with N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-i because the notice of claim did not state such a claim. Richards v City of New York, 433 F. Supp. 2d 404, 2006 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 39312 (S.D.N.Y. 2006).

Because false arrest was an intentional tort under New York law, an arrestee's false arrest claims against several police officers, by definition, constituted "intentional wrongdoing" that did not qualify for indemnification under N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-k(3), and thus, the notice of claim requirement of N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(1)(b) did not apply. Vesterhalt v City of New York, 667 F. Supp. 2d 292, 2009 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 99327 (S.D.N.Y. 2009).

In demonstrators' civil rights suit, where they alleged that they were unlawfully arrested while crossing a bridge, N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e did not apply, because they asserted an important and directly affected right on behalf of a class. Garcia v Bloomberg, 865 F. Supp. 2d 478, 2012 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 79296 (S.D.N.Y. 2012), aff'd, 764 F.3d 170, 2014 U.S. App. LEXIS 16156 (2d Cir. N.Y. 2014), rev'd, 779 F.3d 84, 2014 U.S. App. LEXIS 24772 (2d Cir. N.Y. 2014), dismissed, 2015 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 123407 (S.D.N.Y. Sept. 9, 2015).

49. Infant's actions

Certain extraordinary circumstances and certain relationships between an infant claimant and the prospective defendant may make it unnecessary for any notice of claim to be served under the above statute. And where such defendant and its own agency (Department of Welfare) were the only parties reasonably situated to ascertain existence of the claim and to prosecute it, it would be idle gesture to require that they file notice of claim against themselves. Gibbs v New York, 23 A.D.2d 665, 257 N.Y.S.2d 242, 1965 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4721 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1965).

Infant plaintiff's suit against city, et al., claiming that infant's eyesight had been impaired and she was permanently blind because she had received too much oxygen while in incubator at hospital and averring that neither infant's mother nor her father, both born in the Dominican Republic, and in this country since 1952 and 1963, respectively, had filed any notice of claim on behalf of their daughter because they did not know of requirement of New York law for giving such notice in suits against municipalities and did not learn of it until approximately one month before date of mother's affidavit was barred for failure to comply with requirements of subdivision of the General Municipal Law which allowed no more than one year and 90 days from date of occurrence giving rise to claim within which to bring motion for leave to serve late notice of claim. Rodriguez v New York, 54 A.D.2d 692, 387 N.Y.S.2d 283, 1976 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 14253 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1976), aff'd, 44 N.Y.2d 398, 406 N.Y.S.2d 9, 377 N.E.2d 453, 1978 N.Y. LEXIS 1960 (N.Y. 1978).

Chautauqua County was not entitled to summary judgment on ground that notice of claim had not been filed against it for its failure to bring claim on behalf of infant against Erie County for injuries sustained at hospital owned and operated by Erie County, since infant was ward of Chautauqua County when his cause of action arose and that status provided him with exemption from filing requirements of CLS Gen Mun § 50-e. Umlauf v County of Chautauqua, 132 A.D.2d 958, 518 N.Y.S.2d 491, 1987 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 49418 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1987), app. dismissed, 70 N.Y.2d 1002, 526 N.Y.S.2d 438, 521 N.E.2d 445, 1988 N.Y. LEXIS 108 (N.Y. 1988).

CLS Gen Mun § 50-e(8), which provides that notice of claim requirements "shall not apply...to claims against public corporations by their own infant wards," does not merely toll filing requirements during period of wardship, but eliminates any obligation to file notice of claim against public corporation on infant's behalf. Umlauf v County of Chautauqua, 132 A.D.2d 958, 518 N.Y.S.2d 491, 1987 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 49418 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1987), app. dismissed, 70 N.Y.2d 1002, 526 N.Y.S.2d 438, 521 N.E.2d 445, 1988 N.Y. LEXIS 108 (N.Y. 1988).

In proceeding by parents against county alleging that county was negligent in supervision and care of children while children were in custody of county, court would reject contention that one child was "infant ward" within meaning of CLS Gen Mun § 50-e(8), which exempted infant wards from notice of claim filing requirements, since infant was not ward of county at time of her placement in foster care. Maurice W. v Onondaga County Dep't of Social Services, 186 A.D.2d 986, 588 N.Y.S.2d 448, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11509 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1992).

Infant plaintiffs were not under "disability because of infancy" so as to invoke tolling provisions CLS CPLR § 208, and thus their personal injury action against city was barred by limitations under CLS Gen Mun § 50-i, where their interests were protected by law guardian and counsel, who filed timely notice of claim under CLS Gen Mun § 50-e. Henry v City of New York, 244 A.D.2d 93, 676 N.Y.S.2d 616, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8805 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1998), rev'd, 94 N.Y.2d 275, 702 N.Y.S.2d 580, 724 N.E.2d 372, 1999 N.Y. LEXIS 3928 (N.Y. 1999).

Lower court's denial of an application for leave to file late notice to the municipal agencies was affirmed; fact that the injured party was an infant, by itself, did not excuse the filing of a timely notice to the municipal agencies, and petitioners had failed to establish any reasonable excuse for the delay, particularly when there was no nexus between the injured party's infancy and the delay in serving notice. Rennell S. v N. Junior High Sch., 12 A.D.3d 518, 784 N.Y.S.2d 623, 2004 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13663 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2004).

Since a defendant, a municipal medical center, had a plaintiff infant's records it was not prejudiced by her late notice of claim under N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(5) and her claim was tolled under the infancy toll of N.Y. C.P.L.R. 208, so her medical malpractice claim was allowed; but, her mother's derivative claim was not allowed since § 208 did not toll derivative actions. Nardi v County of Westchester, 18 A.D.3d 521, 795 N.Y.S.2d 302, 2005 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5118 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2005).

Where children in custody of a county social service agency had a claim against it and the county, arising from their sexual abuse while in a foster father's custody, they were not required to file a notice of claim against the county entities pursuant to N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(8); a trial court should have dispensed with that requirement rather than allowing them to file the notice of claim late. Adam H. v County of Orange, 66 A.D.3d 737, 887 N.Y.S.2d 603, 2009 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7262 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2009).

Plaintiff, an adjudicated juvenile delinquent placed in the care and custody of the Commissioner of Social Services for placement in foster care, was not a "ward" of the Commissioner within the meaning of Gen Mun Law § 50-e(8), which makes notice of claim requirements inapplicable "to claims against public corporations by their own infant wards," since the statute is designed to protect the rights of infants without known relatives, friends, or diligent guardians, and plaintiff had an independent guardian, his father, who was responsible for and capable of protecting plaintiff's rights. Thus, the failure to serve a notice of claim would require dismissal of the action against the Commissioner for placing plaintiff in a foster home which harbored a dog with known vicious propensities, and which attacked plaintiff. Grover v Martone, 127 Misc. 2d 40, 485 N.Y.S.2d 191, 1985 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2545 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1985).

Children who, through an adoptive parent, brought tort claims against a city and city employees arising from the alleged abuse of the children in a foster home were excused from filing a notice of claim pursuant to N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law. § 50-e(8), as the record indicated that the children's sole guardian during the 90-day notice period was the city. Tylena M. v Heartshare Children's Servs., 390 F. Supp. 2d 296, 2005 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 20646 (S.D.N.Y. 2005).

50. Insurance actions

A municipal self-insurer may not avoid the mandatory arbitration provisions of Ins Law § 674, the no-fault automobile insurance law, by alleging that the insurer demanding arbitration has failed to comply with a notice of claim provisions of Gen Mun Law §§ 50-e, 50-i, since the comprehensive nature of the no-fault legislation and the absence therefrom of any requirement for compliance with Gen Mun Law §§ 50-e, 50-i, indicate a legislative intent that the provisions of such statutes should have no application to the statutory arbitration proceedings between insurers or self-insurers. Syracuse v Utica Mut. Ins. Co., 61 N.Y.2d 691, 472 N.Y.S.2d 600, 460 N.E.2d 1085, 1984 N.Y. LEXIS 4005 (N.Y. 1984).

Failure to file a notice of claim was fatal to subrogation action against city by compensation carrier which had paid certain sums to assured's employee who had been injured during course of his employment through alleged negligence of the city, notwithstanding argument that insurer's claim arose under provisions of the Workmen's Compensation Law and was excluded from notice requirement. Hartford Accident & Indem. Co. v Mt. Vernon, 82 Misc. 2d 919, 372 N.Y.S.2d 161, 1975 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2847 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1975).

Occupant who was injured in police vehicle owned by his city employer, and which vehicle was struck by uninsured motor vehicle, was required to file notice of claim with city prior to making claim for uninsured motorist coverage. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 01-07-05.

51. Medical malpractice

Under the above statute a notice of claim which is not in compliance with the substantive requirements of subd 2 thereof or is not served within the period of time prescribed by subd 1, is fatally defective. Schildhaus v New York, 23 A.D.2d 409, 261 N.Y.S.2d 909, 1965 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3626 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1965), aff'd, 17 N.Y.2d 853, 271 N.Y.S.2d 286, 218 N.E.2d 325, 1966 N.Y. LEXIS 1344 (N.Y. 1966).

Medical malpractice action could not be maintained against city for failure to comply with sections of general municipal law pertaining to time for filing notice of claim and commencement of actions. Davis v New York, 47 A.D.2d 529, 363 N.Y.S.2d 599, 1975 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8588 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't), aff'd, 38 N.Y.2d 257, 379 N.Y.S.2d 721, 342 N.E.2d 516, 1975 N.Y. LEXIS 2348 (N.Y. 1975).

City hospital was not estopped, on grounds of its alleged failure to publicize its municipal status, from asserting defense to malpractice action that statutes required 90-day notice of claim against it. Guarrera v Lee Mem. Hosp., 51 A.D.2d 867, 380 N.Y.S.2d 161, 1976 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11485 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't), app. dismissed, 39 N.Y.2d 942, 1976 N.Y. LEXIS 3538 (N.Y. 1976).

Infant plaintiff's suit against city, et al., claiming that infant's eyesight had been impaired and she was permanently blind because she had received too much oxygen while in incubator at hospital and averring that neither infant's mother nor her father, both born in the Dominican Republic, and in this country since 1952 and 1963, respectively, had filed any notice of claim on behalf of their daughter because they did not know of requirement of New York law for giving such notice in suits against municipalities and did not learn of it until approximately one month before date of mother's affidavit was barred for failure to comply with requirements of subdivision of the General Municipal Law which allowed no more than one year and 90 days from date of occurrence giving rise to claim within which to bring motion for leave to serve late notice of claim. Rodriguez v New York, 54 A.D.2d 692, 387 N.Y.S.2d 283, 1976 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 14253 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1976), aff'd, 44 N.Y.2d 398, 406 N.Y.S.2d 9, 377 N.E.2d 453, 1978 N.Y. LEXIS 1960 (N.Y. 1978).

In a malpractice action arising out of the defendant doctor's allegedly negligent treatment of plaintiff at a New York City ambulatory care facility, the defendant's motion for summary judgment dismissing the complaint is granted, the Court of Appeals having determinined on a prior appeal involving the defendant's attempt to implead the city that the facility was a public institution maintained in part by the City of New York within the meaning of subdivision 1 of section 50-d of the General Municipal Law and that, accordingly, the city was required to indemnify the doctor, since plaintiff failed to comply with subdivision 2 of section 50-d of the General Municipal Law in that no notice of claim was served on the city pursuant to section 50-e of the General Municipal Law and the action was commenced well beyond the one-year and three-month Statute of Limitations provided in section 50-i of the General Municipal Law; the fact that the city did not interpose the statutory defenses in the prior impleader action does not require denial of the motion, since plaintiff was in no way misled by the city's previous position that under a contractual arrangement it was not required to indemnify the defendant doctor and in no way relied on it, and, moreover, the motion for summary judgment was brought by the defendant doctor. Additionally, the notice of claim and short Statute of Limitations provisions of sections 50-e and 50-i are defenses which may be raised by the doctor even though he, and not the city, was sued, and defendant is not estopped from interposing the statutory defenses since there was no evidence that the city had entered into arrangements with regard to the facility that had the capacity to, and in fact did, mislead the plaintiff to her detriment. Norr v Spiegler, 72 A.D.2d 20, 423 N.Y.S.2d 177, 1980 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9653 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1980), aff'd, 53 N.Y.2d 661, 438 N.Y.S.2d 1000, 421 N.E.2d 120, 1981 N.Y. LEXIS 2319 (N.Y. 1981).

In an action to recover damages for an allegedly unauthorized disclosure of confidential information received pursuant to the physician-patient relationship existing between plaintiff and a mental health center maintained by a county, the complaint would be dismissed for failure to comply with Gen Mun Law §§ 50-e and 50-i, since the alleged improper disclosure of confidential information is merely a facet of medical malpractice which sounds in tort, not contract, the bill of particulars evidences a malpractice claim, the damages sought are largely for noneconomic loss, and actions sounding in tort require compliance with Gen Mun Law §§ 50-e and 50-i. Silberstein v County of Westchester, 92 A.D.2d 867, 459 N.Y.S.2d 838, 1983 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 17239 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't), app. dismissed, 60 N.Y.2d 703, 1983 N.Y. LEXIS 6285 (N.Y. 1983), aff'd, 62 N.Y.2d 675, 476 N.Y.S.2d 291, 464 N.E.2d 989, 1984 N.Y. LEXIS 4283 (N.Y. 1984).

Medical malpractice plaintiff's mere conclusory assertion that she "understood" that her payments for services at county health center would go to individual physicians who treated her was insufficient to rebut defendant physicians' evidence that they did not receive any compensation from plaintiff for their services, and thus her complaint was properly dismissed for failure to serve notice of claim on county as required by CLS Gen Mun §§ 50-d(2) and 50-e, where physicians' affidavits and affidavit of county's principal financial analyst stated that all payments made by plaintiff for medical services rendered to her at health center were made directly to center and not to physicians. Adams v Bobb-McKoy, 245 A.D.2d 474, 666 N.Y.S.2d 701, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13253 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1997).

Plaintiffs in medical malpractice action failed to comply with conditions precedent to commencing action, as specified in CLS Gen Mun §§ 50-e and 50-i, where plaintiffs' counsel, with minimum effort, could have surmised that it was necessary to file notice of claim, because name at top of all prenatal care records for plaintiff patient, which were on file with defendant hospital's labor and delivery unit, was Suffolk County Department of Health Services. Fuentes v Brookhaven Mem'l Hosp., 251 A.D.2d 540, 674 N.Y.S.2d 744, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7535 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1998).

Although a hospital delayed in furnishing a complete medical file to a patient, the patient was not induced to refrain from filing suit or conducting an investigation into the relevant facts; the trial court erred in denying the hospital's motion to dismiss the patient's malpractice claim for failure to serve a timely N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law §§ 50-e, 50-i notice of claim. Walker v New York City Health & Hosps. Corp., 36 A.D.3d 509, 828 N.Y.S.2d 365, 2007 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 598 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2007).

An application for examination of the records of a city hospital employee in connection with alleged negligence of doctors and others in treatment of applicant's condition was denied where it was admitted that no notice of claim had been filed against the city and more than a year had elapsed. Application of Griffin, 20 Misc. 2d 639, 194 N.Y.S.2d 82, 1959 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2488 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1959).

In malpractice action against municipal hospital and its municipal supervising bodies and physician who was director of hospital, service of notice of claim upon municipal defendants was sufficient and statute does not require service of notice of claim upon the physician. Stephens v Department of Health, 64 Misc. 2d 81, 314 N.Y.S.2d 118, 1970 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1355 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1970).

Medical malpractice claim against physician who is clearly county employee, rather than independent contractor, is subject to notice of claim requirements of CLS Gen Mun Law § 50-e and time limitations of CLS Gen Mun law § 50-i, notwithstanding fact that physician maintains independent medical malpractice insurance; municipality's indemnification obligation pursuant to CLS Gen Mun Law § 50-d is not excused by existence of physician's insurance. Hilligas v Veznedaroglu, 129 Misc. 2d 781, 493 N.Y.S.2d 974, 1985 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2710 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1985).

Medical malpractice action against a physician who was acting as an unpaid designee of a non-physician county mental health director when he examined the patient was subject to the notice of claim and limitations requirements applicable to all actions against public officers; if the physician was entitled to indemnification by the county, the statutes applicable to actions against a local governmental entity applied. Anderson v House of the Good Samaritan Hosp., 194 Misc. 2d 171, 752 N.Y.S.2d 815, 2002 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1576 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 2002), app. dismissed, 5 A.D.3d 1058, 773 N.Y.S.2d 687, 2004 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3122 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 2004).

Complaint in civil rights action initially filed against correction officials and employees and amended nine months later to include state malpractice claim against physicians employed by city did not satisfy requirement of 90-day notice of malpractice claim against city employees. Shakur v McGrath, 517 F.2d 983, 1975 U.S. App. LEXIS 14379 (2d Cir. N.Y. 1975).

52. —Constitutionality

Assuming that state was under no obligation to consent to any tort liability, but that it was required to implement reasonable procedural rules by which liability could be adjudicated once it assumed such an obligation, shortness of statutory 90-day period of limitation for filing notice of claim against county hospital for negligence allegedly committed in treating five-year-old infant plaintiff was not so unreasonable as to be violative of due process, where it was clear from complaint that mother of child was aware that child had suffered some injury before 90 days had elapsed and, though burdened with showing unconstitutional effect of limitation, plaintiffs failed even to explain why they were not able to serve required notice of claim. Pausley v Chaloner, 54 A.D.2d 131, 388 N.Y.S.2d 35, 1976 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13736 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1976), app. dismissed, 41 N.Y.2d 900, 1977 N.Y. LEXIS 3304 (N.Y. 1977), app. denied, 41 N.Y.2d 805, 1977 N.Y. LEXIS 3061 (N.Y. 1977).

It did not violate constitutional prohibition against legislative abrogation of "(t)he right of action now existing to recover damages for injuries resulting in death" (CLS NY Const Art I § 16) to require timely notice of claim as condition precedent to commencement of action for conscious pain and suffering against treating physician, who was staff physician of New York City Health and Hospitals Corporation. Yoo v New York City Health & Hosps. Corp., 239 A.D.2d 267, 657 N.Y.S.2d 189, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5281 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1997).

53. —Late notice

Leave to serve a late notice of claim would be granted where hospital records were kept of all procedures performed on the injured claimant, where the allegedly negligent acts were necessarily performed by agents of the hospital, and where the city had actual knowledge of the essential facts constituting the malpractice claim. Newson v New York, 87 A.D.2d 630, 448 N.Y.S.2d 224, 1982 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 15951 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1982).

In view of the mother's unrebutted assertion that a hospital doctor informed her after the delivery that the infant had suffered a "brachial plexus type of injury" and that the infant subsequently received treatment for that injury at the hospital, it was apparent that the hospital, the city, and the city health and hospitals corporation had actual notice of the facts constituting the mother's claim within the 90-day statutory period; additionally, the mother's failure to provide a reasonable excuse for the delay was not fatal to her application because the hospital, the city, and the city corporation failed to present any evidence that the relatively short delay prejudiced their ability to maintain a defense. Therefore, the trial court erred in failing to grant the mother's application for leave to serve a late notice of claim pursuant to N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(5). Feroz v City of New York, 8 A.D.3d 275, 777 N.Y.S.2d 690, 2004 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7518 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2004).

Since a defendant, a municipal medical center, had a plaintiff infant's records it was not prejudiced by her late notice of claim under N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(5) and her claim was tolled under the infancy toll of N.Y. C.P.L.R. 208, so her medical malpractice claim was allowed; but, her mother's derivative claim was not allowed since § 208 did not toll derivative actions. Nardi v County of Westchester, 18 A.D.3d 521, 795 N.Y.S.2d 302, 2005 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5118 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2005).

Trial court did not err under N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(5) in denying the patient leave to file a late notice of claim against the health care provider in the malpractice action, as the patient failed to demonstrate a reasonable excuse for failing to serve a timely notice of claim, there was no showing that the provider acquired actual knowledge of the facts surrounding the claim merely because it maintained medical records, and the patient failed to establish that the provider would not be substantially prejudiced in maintaining its defense on the merits as a result of the lengthy delay in moving for leave to serve a late notice of claim. Breeden v Valentino, 19 A.D.3d 527, 798 N.Y.S.2d 79, 2005 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6910 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2005).

Although a patient did not offer a reasonable excuse for failing to serve a timely notice of claim, the hospital acquired timely, actual knowledge of the facts constituting the patient's medical malpractice claim and would not be substantially prejudiced by the delay; accordingly, the trial court properly granted the patient's N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e petition for leave to serve a late notice of claim. Matter of Chambers v Nassau County Health Care Corp., 50 A.D.3d 1134, 857 N.Y.S.2d 222, 2008 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3909 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2008).

Because an adult patient failed to follow the advice given by a city hospital, waited approximately 11 months to serve a notice of claim against the hospital, failed to support the assertions with a physician's affidavit, failed to provide a reasonable excuse for the delay, and failed to demonstrate the lack of any prejudice to the hospital from the unexplained delay, the trial court erred in granting the patient's N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(5) motion to leave to serve a late notice of claim. Matter of Kelley v New York City Health & Hosps. Corp., 76 A.D.3d 824, 907 N.Y.S.2d 11, 2010 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6639 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2010).

Trial court, inter alia, properly denied a motion by the child, by his mother, for leave to serve a late notice of claim upon a hospital because the child failed to demonstrate that the hospital had actual knowledge of the essential facts constituting his medical malpractice claim where the medical records did not suggest that the child's pre-term delivery was attributable to the hospital's alleged failure to treat the mother's medical conditions, the passage of time between the child's premature birth and the service of the notice of claim would prejudice the hospital's ability to defend the action, and the child's failure to serve a timely notice of claim could not be attributed to the his infancy and was not otherwise reasonable. Raut v New York City Health & Hosps. Corp., 145 A.D.3d 1049, 44 N.Y.S.3d 479, 2016 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8742 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2016).

54. —Notice not required

Notice of claim was not required for fraud cause of action alleged against municipal doctor where fraudulent acts were separate from and subsequent to acts giving rise to malpractice claims by plaintiff against doctor and his municipal employer. Kramer v New York, 157 A.D.2d 404, 556 N.Y.S.2d 287, 1990 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6655 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1990).

Defendants in medical malpractice case failed to establish that plaintiff was required to file notice of claim pursuant to CLS Gen Mun § 50-e where they did not demonstrate that defendant hospital was public institution maintained by county; thus, court properly dismissed affirmative defense and refused to dismiss complaint. Castillo v Zimmerly, 260 A.D.2d 243, 688 N.Y.S.2d 148, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3956 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1999).

Physician, defendant in medical malpractice suit, who offered no evidence that he had complied with requirements of CLS Gen Mun § 50-k(4), was not entitled to summary judgment on ground that plaintiffs had not served notice of claim required by CLS Gen Mun § 50-e, since duty of city and city hospital to defend and indemnify physician was conditioned on his compliance with § 50-k(4). Hassan v Woodhull Hosp. & Med. Ctr., 282 A.D.2d 709, 724 N.Y.S.2d 184, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4317 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2001).

City hospital's records of a newly born child indicated that she had foot gangrene and had misadventure during her medical care so the city was on notice under N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(5) that it was subject to the child's claim even though the claim was filed four years after her discharge. The city was also not prejudiced by the child's motion, that she made four years after serving the late claim, for the late claim to be allowed since the city acknowledged that it had actually been served with the late claim. Caminero v N.Y. City Health & Hosps. Corp., 21 A.D.3d 330, 800 N.Y.S.2d 173, 2005 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8800 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2005).

55. Nuisance actions

Under section of County Law requiring any claim for damage, whether casual or continuing trespass or nuisance, to be served in compliance with section of General Municipal Law requiring notice of claim against municipality be given within 90 days after claim arises, service of notice of claim within 90 days of accrual of cause of action is required, even though primary relief sought is equitable and damages must be limited to those occurring within 90-day period before service of notice of claim. Doran v Cheektowaga, 54 A.D.2d 178, 388 N.Y.S.2d 385, 1976 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13748 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1976).

Because paving a street did not constitute an artificial means of diversion, the owners failed to establish that a town created a continuing trespass or nuisance; inasmuch as the owners did not timely serve the town with notice under N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law §§ 50-e(1)(a), 50-i(1), the town was properly granted summary judgment. Smith v Town of Long Lake, 40 A.D.3d 1381, 837 N.Y.S.2d 391, 2007 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6517 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2007).

Causes of action involving money damages for property and maintaining a nuisance against town for permitting certain septic tanks located on private property near plaintiff's real property to be maintained in a defective condition in violation of town ordinances should not be stricken since plaintiffs are not required to plead compliance with the requirements of the statute on such causes of action. Malloy v Niskayuna, 64 Misc. 2d 676, 315 N.Y.S.2d 502, 1970 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1171 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1970).

Action to enjoin village from improperly maintaining a catch basin on property adjoining the plaintiff's which caused surface water to be discharged onto the plaintiff's premises with resultant damage, and which also sought to have condition declared a nuisance and additionally demanded money damages as incidental to prime relief, which action was commenced more than one year and 90 days since accrual of the claim as alleged in the notices was not untimely. Kyle v Catskill, 81 Misc. 2d 1035, 367 N.Y.S.2d 158, 1975 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2524 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1975).

In plaintiff county's action for a declaratory judgment as to defendants insurers' duty to indemnify and defend an action brought by a landowner alleging negligent design and construction of a sea wall, the landowner had alleged a continuing tort which accrued anew each day, and by filing a notice of claim against the county under N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(1)(a) (McKinney 2002), that provision and N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-i (McKinney 2002), and N.Y. County Law § 52 (McKinney 2002), were satisfied; the landowner was not limited to damages sustained within 90 days preceding the notice. County of Suffolk v Travelers Ins. Co., 267 F. Supp. 2d 288, 2003 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 1409 (E.D.N.Y. 2003).

56. Real property actions

Although town was on notice by letter sent some 18 months before damage to particular property became manifest and hence before any cause of action accrued, town was entitled by statute to prompt notice of subsequent bulkhead collapse and consequential harm while claim was still fresh, and there was failure of compliance with statutory requirements for notice of claim by one landowner. Doundoulakis v Hempstead, 42 N.Y.2d 440, 398 N.Y.S.2d 401, 368 N.E.2d 24, 1977 N.Y. LEXIS 2322 (N.Y. 1977).

Under this section, as made applicable to claims against towns by § 67 of the Town Law, an award of damages against the town incidental to an action for recovery of a strip of land allegedly wrongfully appropriated for use as a highway would be limited to the period of 90 days preceding filing of the notice of claim. Crawford v Hamburg, 19 A.D.2d 100, 241 N.Y.S.2d 357, 1963 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3439 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1963).

Plaintiff's complaint in an action to determine adverse claims of title to realty, damages for trespass, and for injunctive and other relief failed to state a cause of action against the County of Suffolk, where the complaint did not allege compliance with the statutory notice requirements of §§ 50-e and 50-i of the General Municipal Law. Seabreeze Marina at Smithtown, Inc. v Smithtown, 25 A.D.2d 780, 269 N.Y.S.2d 662, 1966 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4497 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1966).

Action could not be maintained to determine claims of plaintiff and village to land situated near boundary line between their parcels, where complaint did not allege that notice of claim had been made and served upon village within 90 days of accrual, as required by General Municipal Law, and nothing else in record indicated that there had been compliance. Salesian Soc. v Ellenville, 50 A.D.2d 648, 374 N.Y.S.2d 805, 1975 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12473 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1975), rev'd, 41 N.Y.2d 521, 393 N.Y.S.2d 972, 362 N.E.2d 604, 1977 N.Y. LEXIS 1915 (N.Y. 1977).

Inasmuch as boundary dispute involved an alleged continuing wrong on part of defendant village, plaintiff could maintain a new action to determine claims after properly filing notice of claim and any damages accruing during the 90-day period prior to such filing would be recoverable. Salesian Soc. v Ellenville, 50 A.D.2d 648, 374 N.Y.S.2d 805, 1975 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12473 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1975), rev'd, 41 N.Y.2d 521, 393 N.Y.S.2d 972, 362 N.E.2d 604, 1977 N.Y. LEXIS 1915 (N.Y. 1977).

Town was entitled to summary judgment in property owner's action for reduction in value of property, and for loss of income derived from inaccessibility of property, due to town's abandonment of road and bridge, where owner failed to serve or allege service of notice of claim and also failed to establish de facto condemnation of property, which would excuse notice requirement, since he admitted to having access to property from different road. Van Nostrand v Town of Denning, 132 A.D.2d 93, 521 N.Y.S.2d 896, 1987 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 49550 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1987).

In mortgage foreclosure action, mortgagee city was entitled to summary judgment dismissing mortgagor's counterclaims for breach of contract and tortious interference with contract where mortgagor did not allege compliance with claim presentment requirements of CLS Gen Mun §§ 50-e and 50-i and NYC Admin Code § 7-201(a). City of New York v 611 West 152nd St., Inc., 273 A.D.2d 125, 710 N.Y.S.2d 36, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7113 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2000).

City was entitled to dismissal of action against it where (1) action sounded in tort, not de facto taking of property, and thus notice of claim was required under CLS Gen Mun § 50-e(1)(a), (2) no such notice was filed, (3) action was not commenced within one year and 90 days "after the happening of the event upon which the claim is based" under CLS Gen Mun § 50-i(1)(c), and (4) plaintiff's request for leave to serve late notice of claim was untimely under CLS Gen Mun § 50-e(5). Grimaldi v City of Tonawanda, 275 A.D.2d 917, 715 N.Y.S.2d 175, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9610 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 2000).

Summary judgment was properly denied to a town in a case where an injured person had tripped over an anchor protruding from the ground in an area next to a municipal parking lot; the town failed to show that it owned or maintained the area at issue. Staudinger v Vill. of Granville, 304 A.D.2d 929, 758 N.Y.S.2d 415, 2003 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3815 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2003).

Gas company's notices of claim, alleging the municipalities were negligent with respect to the installation and operation of sewer and water lines proximate to the company's gas laterals, were sufficient because the notices permitted the municipalities to investigate the claims with regard to the 39 service laterals identified in the notices and a metallurgical consultant's report. New York State Elec. & Gas Corp. v County of Chemung, 137 A.D.3d 1550, 29 N.Y.S.3d 579, 2016 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2435 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2016).

An action by a landowner against a city for treble damages for destruction of trees and shrubs upon his property, based on §§ 533 and 534 of the Real Property Law, presents a claim within the coverage of this section, and is subject to dismissal for failure to give timely notice of claim in advance of suit. Rice v New York, 32 Misc. 2d 942, 225 N.Y.S.2d 65, 1962 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3982 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1962).

A complaint against the defendants, as village trustees, alleging that they conspired among themselves and with other defendants to deprive plaintiff of certain right, title and interest in a certain agreement of sale of real property, to prevent him from acquiring title thereto and to have the property sold to the defendant village, failed to state a cause of action in that it failed to state compliance with Village Law §§ 341 and 341-b and the General Municipal Law § 50-e, which require a written proof of claim to be filed within 90 days after the claimed cause of action arose. Ballin v Larkin, 62 Misc. 2d 949, 310 N.Y.S.2d 402, 1970 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1920 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1970), modified, 36 A.D.2d 530, 318 N.Y.S.2d 568, 1971 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4912 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1971).

Plaintiff failed to file a timely notice of claim pursuant to N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e on a transit authority in relation to a personal injury action, because plaintiff was unable to serve the transit authority on the 89th day, which fell on a Saturday, or the 90th day which fell on a Sunday, and instead, plaintiff served the transit authority on the next succeeding business day as allowed by N.Y. Gen. Constr. Law § 20. Stewart v New York City Transit Auth., 238 N.Y.L.J. 21, 2007 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 5436 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. July 12, 2007).

Because trespass was an intentional tort under New York law, an arrestee's trespass claims against several police officers, by definition, constituted "intentional wrongdoing" that did not qualify for indemnification under N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-k(3), and thus, the notice of claim requirement of N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(1)(b) did not apply. Vesterhalt v City of New York, 667 F. Supp. 2d 292, 2009 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 99327 (S.D.N.Y. 2009).

57. —Notice not required

In an action to determine adverse claims of title to real estate and to recover damages for trespass brought against a town and county, it was held that no statutory notice of claim was necessary as a prerequisite to the action against the town. However, the action against the county was governed by § 52 of the County Law, and plaintiff could not maintain such an action without compliance with §§ 50-e and 50-i of the General Municipal Law. Seabreeze Marina at Smithtown, Inc. v Smithtown, 25 A.D.2d 780, 269 N.Y.S.2d 662, 1966 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4497 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1966).

Where a claimant sought to recover compensation and consequential damages from the defendant Town for its permanent appropriation of a portion of plaintiff's land for the widening of a town highway, such action was not founded in tort and compliance with the notice of claim provisions of § 50-e of the General Municipal Law was not required. Torino v Pleasant Valley, 36 A.D.2d 963, 321 N.Y.S.2d 445, 1971 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4140 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1971).

Where city terminated landowner's right to enjoin trespass by condemning land, damages for trespass would be limited to 90 days prior to filing of statutory notice of claim, even though compliance with notice of claim requirements is not necessary where action is brought in equity to restrain continuing act and where demand for money damages is merely incidental to requested injunctive relief. Rand v New York, 47 A.D.2d 937, 367 N.Y.S.2d 80, 1975 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9398 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1975).

In action to set aside tax sale and subsequent conveyances of real property previously owned by plaintiffs, summary judgment for defendants was not required by plaintiffs' failure to file notice of claim under CLS County § 52 and CLS Gen Mun §§ 50-e and 50-i where plaintiffs' primary objective was to set aside tax sale and conveyances and to obtain judgment declaring them to be owners of property, and any money damages sought were purely incidental to their attempt to regain title. Greaney v Springer, 266 A.D.2d 707, 701 N.Y.S.2d 450, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11842 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1999).

In an action for a judgment declaring a corporation to be the owner in fee of the subject premises, voiding all conveyances arising from a tax sale of the premises, and for damages arising from the subsequent demolition of buildings thereon, the notice of claim provisions of Gen Mun Law § 50-e and CPLR § 9801 would not be applicable, since the complaint did not primarily seek money damages, and the money damages sought were merely incidental to the equitable relief sought. S.A.B. Enterprises, Inc. v Stewart's Ice Cream Co., 113 Misc. 2d 492, 449 N.Y.S.2d 408, 1982 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3326 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1982).

58. —Continuous trespass

Where city terminated landowner's right to enjoin trespass by condemning land, damages for trespass would be limited to 90 days prior to filing of statutory notice of claim, even though compliance with notice of claim requirements is not necessary where action is brought in equity to restrain continuing act and where demand for money damages is merely incidental to requested injunctive relief. Rand v New York, 47 A.D.2d 937, 367 N.Y.S.2d 80, 1975 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9398 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1975).

Inasmuch as boundary dispute involved an alleged continuing wrong on part of defendant village, plaintiff could maintain a new action to determine claims after properly filing notice of claim and any damages accruing during the 90-day period prior to such filing would be recoverable. Salesian Soc. v Ellenville, 50 A.D.2d 648, 374 N.Y.S.2d 805, 1975 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12473 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1975), rev'd, 41 N.Y.2d 521, 393 N.Y.S.2d 972, 362 N.E.2d 604, 1977 N.Y. LEXIS 1915 (N.Y. 1977).

Under section of County Law requiring any claim for damage, whether casual or continuing trespass or nuisance, to be served in compliance with section of General Municipal Law requiring notice of claim against municipality be given within 90 days after claim arises, service of notice of claim within 90 days of accrual of cause of action is required, even though primary relief sought is equitable and damages must be limited to those occurring within 90-day period before service of notice of claim. Doran v Cheektowaga, 54 A.D.2d 178, 388 N.Y.S.2d 385, 1976 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13748 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1976).

Filing of notice of claim was not required in property owner's action to enjoin continuous trespass by town. Carr v Fleming, 122 A.D.2d 540, 504 N.Y.S.2d 904, 1986 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 59808 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1986).

Property owner's action to enjoin continuous trespass was not time-barred as matter of law where question of fact existed as to whether owner actually knew of town's installation of sewer system on owner's property, since only visible evidence of sewer's existence was manhole cover, and town had burden of establishing that owner actually knew of town's adverse use or that use was so visible, open, or notorious that such knowledge could be imputed to owner. Carr v Fleming, 122 A.D.2d 540, 504 N.Y.S.2d 904, 1986 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 59808 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1986).

In an action against a town and a water district alleging that defendants installed pipe under plaintiff's property and occupied same without permission, statute of limitations provisions of Town Law and General Municipal Law were inapplicable since it could not be said as a matter of pleading that the cause of action was for a continuing wrong. Jayne v East Hills Water Dist., 6 Misc. 2d 676, 164 N.Y.S.2d 284, 1957 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3051 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1957).

In cases involving nuisance or continuous trespass, the wrong is continuous or recurring, and the cause of action accrues anew everyday for each injury and the injured party may recover damages accruing within the statutory period prior to the commencement of the action even though the original wrong was committed before such time. Malloy v Niskayuna, 64 Misc. 2d 676, 315 N.Y.S.2d 502, 1970 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1171 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1970).

Estate administrator's claim for wrongful death against the New York City Health and Hospitals Corporation (HHC) was timely filed because the administrator was appointed on April 22, 2004 and the notice of claim was served on HHC on September 16, 2003. Walker v New York City Health & Hosps. Corp., 234 N.Y.L.J. 114, 2005 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3552 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. Dec. 14, 2005), rev'd, 36 A.D.3d 509, 828 N.Y.S.2d 365, 2007 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 598 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2007).

Although an action for damages to riparian rights was a continuing trespass, each new day establishing the cause anew, the provisions of General Municipal Law §§ 50-e and 50-i were more than mere statutes of limitation or repose but established conditions precedent to the initiation of a lawsuit against a municipality. Gregory v New York, 346 F. Supp. 140, 1972 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 12974 (S.D.N.Y. 1972), disapproved, Fountain v Metropolitan Atlanta Rapid Transit Authority, 678 F.2d 1038, 1982 U.S. App. LEXIS 18222 (11th Cir. 1982).

Action against City of New York by Pennsylvania resident who was riparian owner of land along Delaware river to recover damages resulting from diversion of water alleged a continuing trespass and delay in filing notice of claim barred any claim for damages incurred more than 90 days prior to filing. Gregory v New York, 346 F. Supp. 140, 1972 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 12974 (S.D.N.Y. 1972), disapproved, Fountain v Metropolitan Atlanta Rapid Transit Authority, 678 F.2d 1038, 1982 U.S. App. LEXIS 18222 (11th Cir. 1982).

59. Personal property actions

Where buildings on which plaintiff's advertising signs were maintained under lease with the property owner were destroyed by the city when it demolished the property after making a determination upon notice to the owner that the buildings were unsafe and a threat to the public welfare, and the plaintiff's action was for damages for destruction of its property, such action was founded upon tort and was dismissed for failure to allege that the plaintiff had filed a notice of claim as required by § 50-e of the General Municipal Law. Rochester Poster Advertising Co. v Rochester, 38 A.D.2d 679, 327 N.Y.S.2d 249, 1971 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2774 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1971).

Petitioners were entitled to return of various items of property held by property clerk where (1) petitioners each pleaded guilty to misdemeanor of possession of stolen walkie-talkie and other charges against them were dropped, (2) petitioners made timely demand on property clerk for return of other property seized from their place of business pursuant to warrant, (3) property clerk refused demand on ground that property was subject to levy by Internal Revenue Service, (4) petitioners obtained release of tax levy and again made demand, and (5) property clerk refused demand as untimely; petitioners were entitled to possession unless timely forfeiture proceeding was commenced, and they were not required to serve additional notice under CLS Gen Mun § 50-e to obtain redress. Debellis v Property Clerk of New York, 168 A.D.2d 313, 562 N.Y.S.2d 646, 1990 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 15228 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1990), aff'd, 79 N.Y.2d 49, 580 N.Y.S.2d 157, 588 N.E.2d 55, 1992 N.Y. LEXIS 38 (N.Y. 1992).

Action for alleged conversion of property, which had been removed from plaintiffs' premises by town defendants and sold at sheriff's sale pursuant to court order, was properly dismissed for failure to serve notice of claim under CLS Gen Mun §§ 50-e and 50-i, as action was one for damage to personal property. Kranz v Town of Tusten, 236 A.D.2d 675, 653 N.Y.S.2d 194, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1119 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1997).

Vehicle owner could not avoid the requirement to give a town notice of his claim for the wrongful detention of his vehicle after the conclusion of a criminal proceeding by characterizing it as one in equity for a continuing trespass. Smith v Scott, 294 A.D.2d 11, 740 N.Y.S.2d 425, 2002 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3561 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2002).

Because the parents' attorney promptly commenced a N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(5) proceeding after recognizing that the wrong entity had been served, and because the school district was on notice of the essential facts of their personal injury claim on behalf of their child, the trial court properly granted the parents' motion to amend the complaint. Matter of McLean v Valley Stream Union Free School Dist. 30, 48 A.D.3d 571, 852 N.Y.S.2d 227, 2008 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1293 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2008).

Cause of action was properly dismissed because the property owner failed to file a notice of claim regarding his personal property and because the cause of action was time-barred. The owner was required to file a notice of claim against the city within 90 days and to commence the action within one year and 90 days, neither of which he did. Wilczak v City of Niagara Falls, 174 A.D.3d 1446, 108 N.Y.S.3d 79, 2019 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5986 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 2019).

Even if notice of claim requirement of General Municipal Law could be construed as being limited to actions for physical damage to tangible personal property and personal injury, where term "personal property" was very broadly defined in General Construction Law to include tangible or intangible property interests, and Administrative Code was indisputably absolute in its language requiring a notice of claim in every action or special proceeding prosecuted or maintained against city, notice of such claim was required prior to commencement of action against city for wrongful inducement of breach of contract, a traditional tort, and failure to give notice required dismissal. Hannibal General Contractors, Inc. v St. Matthew & St. Timothy's Housing Corp., 83 Misc. 2d 53, 371 N.Y.S.2d 535, 1975 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2801 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1975), aff'd, 55 A.D.2d 583, 390 N.Y.S.2d 588, 1976 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 15272 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1976).

60. Zoning actions and building permits

Where plaintiff sued a town for damages based upon the revocation of a building permit issued to her, the gravamen of the complaint was in tort, requiring compliance with the statute. Band v Colonie, 36 A.D.2d 785, 319 N.Y.S.2d 118, 1971 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4477 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1971).

Plaintiff's complaint against city for negligent issuance and wrongful revocation of building permit to construct storage warehouses in commercial service zone sounded in tort, and thus required compliance with notice of claim requirements of CLS Gen Mun § 50-e. Curtis Case, Inc. v Port Jervis, 150 A.D.2d 421, 541 N.Y.S.2d 32, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6484 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1989).

Village was entitled to dismissal, under CLS CPLR § 3211(a), of action against it for, inter alia, damages for gross negligence and injunctive relief where action, which involved issuance of building permit, accrued when permit was issued and did not constitute continuing wrong, and thus plaintiff did not serve notice of claim within 90 days after accrual of action, as required by CLS Gen Mun § 50-e. Kaufman v Vill. of Mamaroneck, 286 A.D.2d 666, 729 N.Y.S.2d 778, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8484 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2001), app. denied, 98 N.Y.2d 602, 744 N.Y.S.2d 762, 771 N.E.2d 835, 2002 N.Y. LEXIS 1060 (N.Y. 2002).

General Municipal Law § 50-e was not applicable in action for damages incurred by owner of non-conforming use in reliance upon building permit initially issued by city's building commissioner, and revoked by city, for reconstruction of mixed residential and commercial use which had been damaged over 50% by fire. 154 East Park Ave. Corp. v Long Beach, 76 Misc. 2d 445, 350 N.Y.S.2d 974, 1973 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1507 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1973), modified, 49 A.D.2d 949, 374 N.Y.S.2d 569, 1975 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11233 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1975).

Disabled person's suit challenging city's zoning policy, under which permit to construct wheelchair ramp allegedly was denied because of commercial property owner's tax delinquency, came within public interest exception to statutory notice of claim requirements of Gen Mun § 50-e. Kennedy v Fitzgerald, 102 F. Supp. 2d 100, 2000 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 8688 (N.D.N.Y. 2000).

61. Personal injury actions

Plaintiffs' application for leave to serve a late notice of claim would be denied where defendant did not acquire actual knowledge of the essential facts until one year and 87 days after the accident and the long delay was substantially prejudicial to defendant since the alleged defects in the sidewalk and accumulated snow and ice would hardly be in similar condition over a year later and plaintiff's failure to serve late notice was not excused by law office failure. Zarrello v New York, 93 A.D.2d 886, 461 N.Y.S.2d 410, 1983 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 17769 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't), aff'd, 61 N.Y.2d 628, 471 N.Y.S.2d 846, 459 N.E.2d 1284, 1983 N.Y. LEXIS 3628 (N.Y. 1983).

In an action against a municipal transportation company to recover for injuries sustained by a high school student during a fight while a passenger in defendant's bus, the transportation company's motion to dismiss the complaint for failure to serve a notice of claim pursuant to Gen Mun Law § 50-e was properly denied where the bus was not municipally owned, and therefore not within the purview of Gen Mun Law § 50-b, and where the municipality was under no duty to indemnify defendant transportation company or its employee in event either was required to respond in damages to the injured party. Montalto v Westchester Street Transp. Co., 102 A.D.2d 816, 476 N.Y.S.2d 586, 1984 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 18988 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1984).

Court should have granted town's motion for summary judgment dismissing personal injury action where notice of claim, which described place where claim arose as "the exit way of the Municipal Parking Field designated Number LV-2 located in Locust Valley," did not sufficiently describe accident site, and notice of claim did not adequately describe manner in which claim arose. Earle v Town of Oyster Bay, 247 A.D.2d 357, 668 N.Y.S.2d 630, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 839 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1998).

Injured firefighter's application for leave to file late notice of premises liability claim against city was properly denied where (1) fire department "Member Injury Report," on which he relied, was clearly inadequate to place city on notice of possible claim against it, because report mentioned neither city's alleged ownership of subject premises nor its purported causative negligence, and (2) passage of 7 months between accident and application clearly prejudiced city, which had no opportunity to investigate transitory condition (rubbish) that allegedly caused firefighter to trip and fall. Doherty v City of New York, 251 A.D.2d 368, 674 N.Y.S.2d 77, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6573 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1998).

Cause of action for conscious pain and suffering is materially distinct from cause of action to recover for wrongful death, and notice of claim for former was required to be served within 90 days of occurrence, notwithstanding timely filing of notice of wrongful death claim within 90 days of appointment of representative of decedent's estate. Mack v City of New York, 265 A.D.2d 308, 696 N.Y.S.2d 206, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9622 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1999), app. denied, 94 N.Y.2d 763, 708 N.Y.S.2d 51, 729 N.E.2d 708, 2000 N.Y. LEXIS 580 (N.Y. 2000).

Lower court did not err when it denied the transit authority's cross-motion for summary judgment based upon inadequate notice because the defects in notice could be waived when the injured party did not make the omissions in bad faith and the transit authority had not shown any prejudice from the inadequate notice. Ingle v N.Y. City Transit Auth., 7 A.D.3d 574, 777 N.Y.S.2d 154, 2004 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6922 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2004).

Because a school district did not acquire actual knowledge of the essential facts constituting a student's alleged injury, the trial court erred by granting the mother's N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(5) application for leave to file a late notice of claim. Matter of Cook v Schuylerville Cent. School Dist., 28 A.D.3d 921, 813 N.Y.S.2d 569, 2006 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4287 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2006).

While a town did not show how it was prejudiced by a pedestrian's untimely slip and fall claim, the trial court properly denied the pedestrian's petition due to the lack of timely actual knowledge of the facts constituting the claim and the pedestrian's lack of a reasonable excuse for the delay in filing a petition for leave to serve a late notice of claim upon the town pursuant to N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e. Dell'Italia v Long Island Rail Rd. Corp., 31 A.D.3d 758, 820 N.Y.S.2d 81, 2006 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9665 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2006).

Trial court properly granted a motion filed by an injured student and his parents for leave to serve a late notice of claim upon a town because the town failed to demonstrate that the underlying claim against it was patently without merit Williams v Gonzalez, 113 A.D.3d 757, 979 N.Y.S.2d 363, 2014 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 338 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2014).

Trial court properly denied a motion by a city and a school for summary judgment motion in a voter's personal injury action because her notice of claim included information that sufficiently enabled the school and city to investigate the claim, the defendants failed to eliminate all triable issues of fact as to whether there was a dangerous or defective condition in the area in which the voter fell or whether they created or had actual or constructive notice of it, and a power outage did not relieve them of their duty to address the allegedly dangerous condition created by the loss of power which may have obscured the mat over which the voter tripped. Lipani v Hiawatha Elementary Sch., 153 A.D.3d 1247, 61 N.Y.S.3d 582, 2017 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6425 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2017).

Where plaintiffs, an infant and his mother, timely served a notice of claim on a town alleging its nonfunctioning street lights caused the infant to be hit by a car, the trial court did not err in denying plaintiffs' motion for leave to serve a late, amended notice of claim because plaintiffs failed to proffer a reasonable excuse for the delay in serving a notice of claim that described the infant plaintiff's injuries as arising from any negligence on the part of the town other than that related to the nonfunctioning street lights described in the original notice of claim; and plaintiffs did not show that, within 90 days after the accident or a reasonable time thereafter, the town knew the essential facts constituting the claim that it was negligent with respect to anything other than the street lights or that Town would not be substantially prejudiced by the delay. Palacios v Town of N. Hempstead, 165 A.D.3d 967, 86 N.Y.S.3d 117, 2018 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6841 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2018).

Where plaintiffs, an infant and his mother, timely served a notice of claim on a town alleging its nonfunctioning street lights caused the infant to be hit by a car, the trial court did not err in denying plaintiffs' motion for leave to serve a late, amended notice of claim because the proposed amendments added new theories of liability related to the town's ownership, operation, control, design, planning, study, retention, supervision, maintenance, repair, inspection, and management of the street and sidewalks, and such amendments were not technical in nature and were not permitted as late-filed amendments to a notice of claim. Palacios v Town of N. Hempstead, 165 A.D.3d 967, 86 N.Y.S.3d 117, 2018 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6841 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2018).

Where plaintiffs, an infant and his mother, timely served a notice of claim on a town alleging its nonfunctioning street lights caused the infant to be hit by a car, their amended notice of claim with respect to the mother's derivative claim was time-barred because the statute of limitations expired before plaintiffs moved to serve a late notice of claim, and the toll for infancy pursuant to N.Y. C.P.L.R. 208 did not apply to a parent's derivative cause of action. Palacios v Town of N. Hempstead, 165 A.D.3d 967, 86 N.Y.S.3d 117, 2018 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6841 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2018).

Trial court properly denied a driver's petition for leave to serve a late notice on the city because the city did not acquire timely, actual knowledge of the essential facts constituting the driver's claim by virtue of the police accident report, which stated that the emergency medical services vehicle caused "no damage" to the driver's vehicle, and did not indicate any connection between the driver's alleged injuries and any negligent conduct on the part of the operator of the EMS vehicle. Matter of Lugo v GNP Brokerage, 185 A.D.3d 824, 127 N.Y.S.3d 527, 2020 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3974 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2020).

Trial court properly denied a driver's petition for leave to serve a late notice on the city because the driver failed to present "some evidence or plausible argument" supporting a finding that the city would not be substantially prejudiced by the nearly one-year delay in seeking leave to serve a notice of claim, as the delay prevented the city from promptly conducting a thorough investigation and interviewing witnesses while their memories were still fresh. Matter of Lugo v GNP Brokerage, 185 A.D.3d 824, 127 N.Y.S.3d 527, 2020 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3974 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2020).

A personal injury action against a county transit system by a passenger who had been injured on one of the system's buses would not be dismissed on the basis of plaintiff's failure to file a notice of claim pursuant to Gen Mun Law § 50-e(1)(b), since, though the Court of Appeals decided after plaintiff's injury occurred that the laws creating the transit system imposed a statutory duty upon the county to operate the system and that, consequently, the statutory notice of claim requirements applied to actions against the system, such decision would be applied only prospectively in that such decision overruled clear past precedent on which litigants had a right to rely, the intent of the statute that municipalities receive actual, prompt notice of future claims had been satisfied, the equities of the situation clearly preponderated in favor of allowing plaintiff her day in court, and the county suffered no prejudice as a result of plaintiff's failure to provide it with formal notice. James v Liberty Lines, 119 Misc. 2d 1060, 465 N.Y.S.2d 144, 1983 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3644 (N.Y. Sup. Ct.), rev'd, 97 A.D.2d 749, 468 N.Y.S.2d 380, 1983 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 20491 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1983).

In an action alleging a defective road condition, a late notice of claim was permitted because, on learning accident might have occurred in New York, claimant's Pennsylvania lawyers promptly sought the police report, and when the location was verified the claimant promptly retained a New York attorney. Cockburn v Town of Mina, N.Y., 53 Misc. 3d 1002, 38 N.Y.S.3d 736, 2016 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3302 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 2016).

Pedestrian's notice of claim against a county satisfied N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(2) because the notice stated that the pedestrian alleged that the injuries she suffered when she was struck by a vehicle were caused by the county's negligent design, placement, and configuration of bus stops and a crosswalk, and the pedestrian's testimony at a N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-h hearing that she was struck by a car near the curb as she attempted to cross the street was entirely consistent with the allegations set out in the notice of claim. Javed v Shuang Zhang, 872 F. Supp. 2d 194, 2012 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 6832 (N.D.N.Y. 2012).

62. —Notice of unsafe condition

Town law which required prior notice of defect for accidents at town "parking field, beach area," etc. as condition precedent to commencement of action against town was inconsistent with plain language of CLS Gen Mun § 50-e(4) (as incorporated into CLS Town § 67), which mandates that "no other or further notice...shall be required as a condition to the commencement of an action"; moreover, town is prohibited from enacting any notice of defect conditions pertaining to locations beyond specified exceptions contained in CLS Gen Mun § 50-e(4). Walker v Town of Hempstead, 84 N.Y.2d 360, 618 N.Y.S.2d 758, 643 N.E.2d 77, 1994 N.Y. LEXIS 3395 (N.Y. 1994).

The general laws of the State require no prior written notice of an unsafe condition of a recreational playing field in order to bring an action against a town for injuries sustained there, and to the extent that a local law requires such notice, it is inconsistent with the general laws limiting requirements of prior notice of unsafe condition to those pertaining to streets, highways, bridges, culverts, sidewalks or crosswalks and is, therefore, unconstitutional. Zumbo v Farmington, 60 A.D.2d 350, 401 N.Y.S.2d 121, 1978 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9680 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1978).

In a personal injury action against a city to recover for injuries sustained when plaintiff fell on broken glass and debris in a municipal parking lot, summary judgment for the city would be granted, where personal injury suits against the city for injuries sustained on a highway were prohibited unless before an injury occurred the city had been given written notice of the dangerous condition that caused the injury, where the parking lot fell within the term highway in that the public had a general right of passage over the lot, where affidavits filed by the city in support of its motion showed no written notice in city files of the condition of the parking lot, where plaintiff's witnesses were insufficient to rebut the city's affidavits to the extent necessary to raise a triable issue of fact, and where the notice requirement was not in derogation of Gen Mun Law § 50-e. Stratton v Beacon, 91 A.D.2d 1018, 457 N.Y.S.2d 893, 1983 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 16335 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1983).

Special term erred in dismissing personal injury plaintiff's complaint against city on ground that city had not received prior written notice of injury-causing defect where plaintiff's complaint alleged liability by reason of failure to properly post or maintain one-way traffic signs; prior written notice requirements of CLS Gen Mun § 50-e(4) are limited to surface defects and do not extend to posting or maintaining of signs. Tyner v Buffalo, 152 A.D.2d 978, 543 N.Y.S.2d 794, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9890 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1989).

City's written notice provision applied to action for injuries allegedly sustained when plaintiff tripped and fell over water line shut-off valve disk that was located within and protruded about ½ inch above public sidewalk; case did not fall within special use exception to general rule mandating prior notice. Charbonneau v City of Cohoes, 232 A.D.2d 931, 648 N.Y.S.2d 836, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11276 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1996).

Town should have been granted summary judgment in action brought by plaintiff, who allegedly slipped and fell on ice in commuter parking lot owned by town, where town proved that it had not received prior written notice of defective condition as required by town code, which term "highway" therein was broad enough to encompass those paved surfaces open to public automobile traffic that could more precisely be defined as parking lots. Doherty v Town of Clarkstown, 233 A.D.2d 477, 650 N.Y.S.2d 31, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12650 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1996).

Overgrown foliage constituted obstruction of "street" or "highway" under CLS Gen Mun § 50-e(4); thus, application of town's prior written notice statute to such obstruction did not conflict with General Municipal Law, and lack of such notice required dismissal of action alleging negligent failure by town to cut back overgrown foliage which purportedly obstructed line of sight at intersection. Forsythe-Kane v Town of Yorktown, 249 A.D.2d 505, 672 N.Y.S.2d 355, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4637 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1998).

Prior written notice of defective stairway under NYC Admin Code § 7-201 was not required as condition of New York City's liability where plaintiff was injured when he fell on defective stairway located in municipal park; stairway was not "street, highway, bridge, culvert, sidewalk or crosswalk" within meaning of CLS Gen Mun § 50-e(4). Woodson v City of New York, 253 A.D.2d 715, 678 N.Y.S.2d 319, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9777 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1998), rev'd, 93 N.Y.2d 936, 693 N.Y.S.2d 69, 715 N.E.2d 96, 1999 N.Y. LEXIS 1214 (N.Y. 1999).

Court properly denied defendant city's summary judgment motion in action for injuries sustained when plaintiff was struck by falling branch from tree located between sidewalk and curb in front of her home in area owned and maintained by defendant where fact issues existed as to whether tree was in defective condition at time of inspections conducted by city forester, whether defendant had notice of or should have had notice of defective condition, and whether defendant was negligent in not taking remedial action prior to accident; insofar as defendant's written notice statute provided that it applied to defective or unsafe condition of tree, it was beyond scope of CLS Gen Mun § 50-e(4) and was invalid. Newman v City of Glens Falls, 256 A.D.2d 1012, 682 N.Y.S.2d 314, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13899 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1998).

Judgment granted in favor of the city was affirmed because the city did not receive notice of the alleged defect in the sidewalk as required by N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(4) and plaintiff did not present sufficient evidence to show that prior notice was obviated by the city's alleged knowledge of the defect or that the city had somehow created the defect. Fuhrmann v City of Binghamton, 31 A.D.3d 1036, 818 N.Y.S.2d 670, 2006 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9449 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2006).

In an action against a village to recover damages for personal injuries, the lower court properly granted plaintiff's motion to vacate his default because (1) plaintiff's excuse of law office failure was reasonable under N.Y. C.P.L.R. 2005; (2) there was no evidence that plaintiff intended to abandon the action, that his default was willful, or that the village was prejudiced; and (3) plaintiff established that he had a meritorious cause of action because although the Village of Hempstead, N.Y., Code § 39-1(B) purported to require, as a condition precedent to the commencement of a tort action, that the village be provided with prior written notice of a playground or playground equipment being defective, out of repair, unsafe, dangerous or obstructed, pursuant to N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(4); N.Y. C.P.L.R. 9801(1), 9804; and N.Y. Village Law § 6-628, a village from requiring prior written notice of defects at municipal locations other than streets, highways, bridges, culverts, sidewalks, or crosswalks, and plaintiff raised a triable issue of fact as to whether the village created the condition that caused his injury. White v Incorporated Vil. of Hempstead, 41 A.D.3d 709, 838 N.Y.S.2d 607, 2007 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7731 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2007).

63. Third party actions

Trial court erred in granting the parents' petition to deem a late notice of claim timely served nunc pro tunc upon a school district because the parents' had no legally cognizable claim to recover damages for emotional distress they allegedly sustained from witnessing an accident where a student athlete was killed during a strength conditioning drill, or based upon the district's alleged refusal to provide continued counseling and maintain the coaching staff support system inasmuch as the parents' children were not immediate family members of the decedent, and the record reflected that the district provided ongoing counseling from mental health professionals employed by the district. Matter of Kmiotek v Sachem Cent. Sch. Dist., 176 A.D.3d 1063, 111 N.Y.S.3d 322, 2019 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7583 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2019).

In an action brought in tort in which one of the defendants has properly brought a third-party action in indemnity against the City of New York, a motion by the plaintiff in the main tort action to amend the complaint to assert a new cause of action in tort against the city is denied; plaintiff has not served a notice of claim upon the city within 90 days of the date on which the underlying occurrence took place (General Municipal Law, § 50-e) and has not brought its action within one year and 90 days after said date (General Municipal Law, § 50-i) and, therefore, sections 50-e and 50-i are complete bars to the tort action against the city. While plaintiff may not have known that the city was a third-party defendant until it was too late to bring a direct tort action against the city, that factor does not fit any of the grounds under section 50-e or the recent amendments thereto, and, even if it did, section 50-e denies any such relief if the time for commencement of the action under section 50-i has long since expired. It is of no consequence that the city has not as yet answered the third-party complaint. 2999 Realty Corp. v Hallen Constr. Corp., 95 Misc. 2d 227, 406 N.Y.S.2d 951, 1978 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2406 (N.Y. Civ. Ct. 1978).

64. Wrongful death action

In a wrongful death action against the New York City Health and Hospitals Corporation, the two-year general limitation period for wrongful death actions established by EPTL § 5-4.1 and the two-year provision of Gen Mun Law § 50-i were inapplicable to the action against the public benefits corporation which existed independently of the City of New York and notice of the claim was required to be filed within 90 days after death except for extensions up to one year and 90 days, as permitted by Gen Mun Law § 50-e, and the action was required to be commenced within one year and 90 days from the date of the decedent's death. Brennan v New York, 59 N.Y.2d 791, 464 N.Y.S.2d 731, 451 N.E.2d 478, 1983 N.Y. LEXIS 3134 (N.Y. 1983).

By fair construction, the General Municipal Law provision requiring a personal injury action against a county to be commenced within one year and 90 days after the event can coexist with the Highway Law provision stating that a county is liable for injuries sustained due to a defective highway but that the county shall not be liable unless a notice of claim shall have been made and served and the action commenced within one year from the date of service; thus, in the instant case, since plaintiff complied with the Highway Law, her wrongful death action was not subject to dismissal, even though the county was not served with summons and complaint until more than two years after accident. Forero v Tuxedo, 51 A.D.2d 443, 382 N.Y.S.2d 328, 1976 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11101 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1976).

The trial court did not abuse its discretion in granting plaintiff leave to amend notice of claim pursuant to Gen Mun Law § 50-e to add a claim for wrongful death, since defendant had been served with notice of claim for personal injuries and no additional notice of claim for wrongful death was therefore required. Scheel v Syracuse, 97 A.D.2d 978, 468 N.Y.S.2d 786, 1983 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 20826 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1983).

City was entitled to summary judgment on an estate administrator's claims for negligent infliction of emotional distress and wrongful death because the police sought medical care for the decedent immediately after he began to complain of chest pains. Davis v City of New York, 153 A.D.3d 658, 61 N.Y.S.3d 551, 2017 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6119 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2017).

A complaint in an action for wrongful death against a village, under Decedent Estate Law, § 130, must allege the service of a notice of claim under § 50-e of the General Municipal Law or § 341 of the Village Law, in order to state a cause of action. Hammond v Southampton, 75 N.Y.S.2d 690, 191 Misc. 100, 1947 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3459 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1947).

In action against city for negligence resulting in death of truck driver's helper, notice of claim was timely where it was filed 3 days after the cause of action was assigned to plaintiff by operation of Workmen's Compensation Law § 29. Aetna Casualty & Surety Co. v New York, 5 Misc. 2d 110, 160 N.Y.S.2d 365, 1956 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1329 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1956).

Notice of claim requirement is satisfied in wrongful death action if timely notice is filed by proposed administratrix who has not yet received letters of administration. Aristide v New York, 129 Misc. 2d 483, 493 N.Y.S.2d 247, 1985 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3073 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1985).

65. Employment actions

Actions against municipality to recover damages for unlawful employment discrimination brought under CLS Exec § 296 are not subject to notice of claim requirement set down in CLS Gen Mun § 50-e for tort claims involving personal injury, wrongful death, or property damage. Morrison v New York City Police Dep't, 214 A.D.2d 394, 625 N.Y.S.2d 174, 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4208 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1995), app. denied, sub. op., 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7519 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't June 20, 1995).

Actions against municipality to recover damages for unlawful discrimination brought under CLS Exec § 296 are not subject to notice of claim requirement set down in CLS Gen Mun § 50-e for tort claims involving personal injury, wrongful death, or property damage. Morrison v New York City Police Dep't, 214 A.D.2d 394, 625 N.Y.S.2d 174, 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4208 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1995), app. denied, sub. op., 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7519 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't June 20, 1995).

In employee's action under CLS Labor § 740 against private employer, city, and director of city agency for retaliation against employee for "blowing the whistle" on unlawful practice, employee was not required to serve notice of claim on director for his allegedly retaliatory acts that were clearly beyond scope of his employment. Gorgone v Capozzi, 238 A.D.2d 308, 656 N.Y.S.2d 49, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3388 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1997), app. denied, 95 N.Y.2d 767, 717 N.Y.S.2d 547, 740 N.E.2d 653, 2000 N.Y. LEXIS 3510 (N.Y. 2000).

Compliance with notice of claim requirements of CLS Town § 67 and CLS Gen Mun § 50-e is condition precedent to pursuit of employment discrimination claim against town, regardless of whether claimant files complaint with Division of Human Rights under CLS Exec § 297(1) or commences court action under CLS Exec § 297(9). Town of Brookhaven v N.Y. State Div. of Human Rights, 282 A.D.2d 685, 723 N.Y.S.2d 410, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3965 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2001).

Biologist claiming age and sex discrimination in termination of her employment with county health department was entitled to judgment declaring that she was not required to file notice of claim as prerequisite to maintaining that claim under CLS Exec § 296 with State Division of Human Rights (DHR) where (1) notice of claim requirements for tort claims against municipality apply to private discriminatory practice claims under § 296 that are commenced in court of law, not before administrative agency, (2) once person has elected to pursue § 296 claim with administrative agency, he or she is precluded by CLS Exec § 297(9) from pursuing same claim in court of law and thus should not be subjected to rules applicable to court claims, and (3) underlying purpose of notice of claim requirements was satisfied by DHR's compliance with administrative procedures set forth in Human Rights Law that gave county ample opportunity to investigate claim Freudenthal v County of Nassau, 283 A.D.2d 6, 726 N.Y.S.2d 116, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5645 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2001), aff'd, 99 N.Y.2d 285, 755 N.Y.S.2d 56, 784 N.E.2d 1165, 2003 N.Y. LEXIS 139 (N.Y. 2003).

Before formal complaint was filed, county health department was on notice of potential claim against it under CLS Exec § 296 for age and sex discrimination in termination of biologist's employment and had ample opportunity to investigate and address that claim, and thus underlying purpose of statutory notice of claim requirements was satisfied despite lack of formal notice of claim with county, where (1) within weeks after termination on January 9, 1992, county human rights commission began investigating biologist's claim, (2) that investigation included conversations with some of biologist's former colleagues, including at least one bureau chief, (3) formal charges of discrimination were filed with State Division of Human Rights (DHR) on April 21, 1992, less than 4 months after termination, (4) DHR requested that county health department respond to discovery requests no later than June 24, 1992, and (5) at least twice between July and September 1992, county health department offered to DHR documentation and explanations to support its actions. Freudenthal v County of Nassau, 283 A.D.2d 6, 726 N.Y.S.2d 116, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5645 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2001), aff'd, 99 N.Y.2d 285, 755 N.Y.S.2d 56, 784 N.E.2d 1165, 2003 N.Y. LEXIS 139 (N.Y. 2003).

Former county employee was not permitted to file a late notice of claim, alleging a violation of the Public Sector Whistleblower Law and seeking damages for wrongful termination, because the employee was terminated on May 15, 2013, and, therefore, his April 22, 2015 request, for which no toll was established, was not within the limitations period. Sager v County of Sullivan, 145 A.D.3d 1175, 41 N.Y.S.3d 443, 2016 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7987 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2016), app. denied, 29 N.Y.3d 902, 80 N.E.3d 399, 57 N.Y.S.3d 706, 2017 N.Y. LEXIS 698 (N.Y. 2017).

To bring supplemental claims under New York law in federal action against county for employment discrimination, former employee was required to comply with notice requirement of Gen Mun § 50-e and to allege such compliance in the complaint as required by Gen Mun § 50-i. Harrington v County of Fulton, 153 F. Supp. 2d 164, 2001 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 11258 (N.D.N.Y. 2001)).

Former employee's claims under N.Y. Exec. Law §§ 296 and 297 failed because (1) the plain language of N.Y. County Law § 52 clearly incorporated the notice of claim requirement contained in N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e and applied it to any claim or notice of claim against a county for invasion of personal or property rights, of every name and nature; (2) the notice of claim provision covered the employee's claims against the county and its entities, which included a community college, an entity that was owned and operated by the county and whose employees were considered county employees; (3) the employee failed to satisfy the notice of claim requirement contained in N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e because the employee failed to file a notice of claim; (4) the action was a private civil rights lawsuit and had not been brought in the public interest; (5) the employee never sought leave to serve a late notice of claim; and (6) the employee failed to offer a single case in which a court held that the filing of a complaint with the New York State Department of Human Rights, or the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission, satisfied the notice requirement of N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e. Cody v County of Nassau, 577 F. Supp. 2d 623, 2008 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 72262 (E.D.N.Y. 2008), aff'd, 345 Fed. Appx. 717, 2009 U.S. App. LEXIS 20662 (2d Cir. N.Y. 2009).

In an action in which a police officer asserted gender discrimination and retaliation claims against a city under the New York Human Rights Law, N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e did not permit the city to impose a notice of claim requirement. N.Y. County Law § 52, which permitted a notice of claim requirement in a broader range of cases, was inapplicable because the case involved a municipality rather than a county. Lee v City of Syracuse, 603 F. Supp. 2d 417, 2009 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 24966 (N.D.N.Y. 2009), overruled in part, Widomski v State Univ. of N.Y., 748 F.3d 471, 2014 U.S. App. LEXIS 6466 (2d Cir. N.Y. 2014).

Employment discrimination claims brought pursuant to N.Y. Exec. Law § 296 were not subject to the statutory notice requirements Barella v Vill. of Freeport, 16 F. Supp. 3d 144, 2014 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 58827 (E.D.N.Y. 2014).

Employment discrimination claims brought pursuant to N.Y. Exec. Law § 296 were not subject to the statutory notice requirements Barella v Vill. of Freeport, 16 F. Supp. 3d 144, 2014 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 58827 (E.D.N.Y. 2014).

66. Actions based on federal law

In action alleging that school district negligently and recklessly administered health insurance claims of plaintiff's decedent, causes of action under CLS Exec § 296 and 42 USCS §§ 12101 et seq., based on alleged medical disability discrimination, were not tort claims governed by CLS Gen Mun § 50-e. Polvino v Island Group Admin., Inc., 264 A.D.2d 720, 694 N.Y.S.2d 728, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9084 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1999).

Notice of claim requirements of CLS Gen Mun § 50-e do not apply to federal civil rights claims under 42 USCS § 1983. Zwecker v Clinch, 279 A.D.2d 572, 720 N.Y.S.2d 150, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 565 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2001).

Because two defendants were not named in the notice of claim as required by N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e, the state claims against those two defendants were properly dismissed; the federal civil rights actions against those two defendants, however, should not have been dismissed since § 50-e only applied to tort and negligence actions. Tannenbaum v City of New York, 30 A.D.3d 357, 819 N.Y.S.2d 4, 2006 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8516 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2006), abrogated in part, Matter of Kapon v Koch, 23 N.Y.3d 32, 988 N.Y.S.2d 559, 11 N.E.3d 709, 2014 N.Y. LEXIS 662 (N.Y. 2014).

Arrestee's petition for leave to serve a late notice of claim to assert, p violations of his federal civil and constitutional rights should have been denied as unnecessary because such a claim was not subject to the New York State statutory notice of claim requirement. Matter of Nunez v Village of Rockville Ctr., 176 A.D.3d 1211, 111 N.Y.S.3d 71, 2019 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7800 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2019).

Plaintiff was not required to file notice of claim under New York City Health and Hospitals Corporation Act (CLS Unconsol Ch 214-A § 20) or CLS Gen Mun § 50-e before commencing federal civil rights action against defendant hospital; federal and state courts have concurrent jurisdiction in actions under 42 USCS § 1983, and federal law preempts state law to extent that state may not require notice of claim as prerequisite to recovery. Feuer v New York City Health & Hosps. Corp., 170 Misc. 2d 838, 657 N.Y.S.2d 283, 1996 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 500 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1996).

Suit within admiralty jurisdiction is not subject to requirements of General Municipal Law § 50-e. National Sea Clammers Ass'n v New York (1980, CA3 NJ) 616 F2d 1222, 15 Envt Rep Cas 1314, 10 ELR 20155, vacated on other grounds, remanded (1981) 453 US 1, 101 S Ct 2615, 69 L Ed 2d 435, 16 Envt Rep Cas 1118, 11 ELR 20684 and questioned in Denison v Kitzhaber (2001, DC Or) 2001 US Dist LEXIS 12514)(applying New York law).

New York's notice-of-claim requirement is part of applicable "law of the State" that federal court must apply under 42 USCS § 1395dd(d)(2)(A) (Emergency Medical Treatment and Active Labor Act, EMTALA), and thus New York's notice-of-claim requirement is "condition precedent" to suing for damages in personal injury action against municipality. Hardy v New York City Health & Hosps. Corp., 164 F.3d 789, 1999 U.S. App. LEXIS 567 (2d Cir. N.Y. 1999).

New York State notice of claim requirements are inapplicable in civil rights action brought against municipality in federal court under 42 USCS § 1983. Burroughs v Holiday Inn, 621 F. Supp. 351, 1985 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 14420 (W.D.N.Y. 1985).

Employee's failure to serve municipality with notice of claim under CLS Gen Mun §§ 50-e and 50-i did not bar his Title VII action, as requiring notice of claim would alter important rights created by Title VII. Tout v Erie Community College, 923 F. Supp. 13, 1995 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 20796 (W.D.N.Y. 1995).

In federal court civil rights action, filing of notice of claim with town was prerequisite to plaintiff's maintenance of pendent state claims for violations of New York statutes governing treatment of juveniles upon their arrest and detention, violations of town police department's own policies, and negligent infliction of emotional distress. Johns v Town of E. Hampton, 942 F. Supp. 99, 1996 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 15020 (E.D.N.Y. 1996).

In federal court civil rights action, filing of notice of claim with town was prerequisite to plaintiff's maintenance of pendent state claim for negligent infliction of emotional distress against town officials in their individual capacities. Johns v Town of E. Hampton, 942 F. Supp. 99, 1996 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 15020 (E.D.N.Y. 1996).

In an individual's pro se 42 U.S.C.S. § 1983 claim against a police chief and a police officer, the notice requirement of N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e was inapplicable to the individual's 42 U.S.C.S. § 1983 claim, as the statute applied only to state law claims, and thus the court denied summary judgment to defendants on this ground. Ahern v Neve, 285 F. Supp. 2d 317, 2003 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 17692 (E.D.N.Y. 2003).

In a former inmate's federal civil rights suit against a former assistant district attorney (ADA), a city, its department of corrections commissioner, and other unnamed persons, alleging violation of his constitutional rights by his incarceration in a state penitentiary eight and one-half months longer than legally prescribed, where the inmate also separately asserted that the ADA and the city violated a state judiciary law based on these events, the inmate was unable to maintain the state law claim because he failed to file a notice of claim, as required by N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(1)(a), he never applied for an extension of the allowed claim-filing period, and there was no basis for tolling the claim-filing period. Peterson v Tomaselli, 469 F. Supp. 2d 146, 2007 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 3200 (S.D.N.Y. 2007).

67. Small claims actions

In small claims action, small claims summons may constitute functional equivalent of notice of claim under CLS Gen Mun § 50-e if information required by that section is included on small claims summons. Schneider v Town of Orangetown, 171 Misc. 2d 497, 655 N.Y.S.2d 720, 1997 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 24 (N.Y. J. Ct. 1997), aff'd, 175 Misc. 2d 899, 673 N.Y.S.2d 281, 1998 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 140 (N.Y. App. Term 1998).

Small claims action seeking damages against Triborough Bridge and Tunnel Authority for "harassment" was properly dismissed for plaintiff's failure to file timely notice of claim or move for leave to serve late notice under CLS Gen Mun § 50-e; mandatory provisions of statute could not be dispensed with merely because plaintiff chose to pursue his action in Small Claims Part of Civil Court. Ragosto v Triborough Bridge & Tunnel Auth., 173 Misc. 2d 560, 663 N.Y.S.2d 462, 1997 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 454 (N.Y. App. Term 1997).

Small claims action against municipality, seeking reimbursement for cost of replacing sewer line leading from main line, running under town road, to curb outside of plaintiffs' house, was based on theory of unjust enrichment, and thus General Municipal Law notice of claim requirements did not apply. Schneider v Town of Orangetown, 175 Misc. 2d 899, 673 N.Y.S.2d 281, 1998 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 140 (N.Y. App. Term 1998).

68. Miscellaneous actions

Although a complaint alleges causes of action in fraud and negligence, where it is patently obvious that the basic claim, as supported by the facts pleaded, is one sounding in indemnification, the notice of claim provisions do not apply. Accredited Demolition Constr. Corp. v Yonkers, 37 A.D.2d 708, 324 N.Y.S.2d 377, 1971 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3537 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1971).

Cause of action against town based on allegation that town has been derelict in duty to properly assess fire district tax is subject to notice of claim requirements and statute of limitations applicable to torts. Stanford Heights Fire Dist. v Niskayuna, 120 A.D.2d 878, 502 N.Y.S.2d 548, 1986 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 56975 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1986).

In action by landowners to challenge town's issuance of permits for moorings along bulkhead at boat launching ramp on pond, causes of action which sounded in trespass would be dismissed since no notice of claim was timely filed as required by CLS Gen Mun § 50-e. Clempner v Southold, 154 A.D.2d 421, 546 N.Y.S.2d 101, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12515 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1989).

Action brought under CLS Exec § 296 is not tort claim; thus, such action is not subject to notice of claim provisions of CLS Educ § 3813(2) or CLS Gen Mun § 50-e. Lane-Weber v Plainedge Union Free Sch. Dist., 213 A.D.2d 515, 624 N.Y.S.2d 185, 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2912 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1995), app. dismissed, 87 N.Y.2d 968, 642 N.Y.S.2d 196, 664 N.E.2d 1259, 1996 N.Y. LEXIS 144 (N.Y. 1996).

Claim that defendant "Brooklyn District Attorney" engaged in continuous campaign of "harassment" of plaintiff and her son after she resigned as defendant's employee was barred by her failure to file notice of claim before commencing action where notice of claim that she filed after commencing action was without leave of court and without inclusion of information required by CLS Gen Mun § 50-e(2). Drakeford v Brooklyn DA, 266 A.D.2d 134, 700 N.Y.S.2d 1, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12337 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1999), app. dismissed, 95 N.Y.2d 877, 715 N.Y.S.2d 212, 738 N.E.2d 359, 2000 N.Y. LEXIS 2310 (N.Y. 2000).

Notice of claim under CLS Gen Mun § 50-e was required in action based on town industrial development agency's alleged failure to properly discharge its duty under CLS Gen Mun §§ 856(2), 858(16), and 874(1). Mutuel Ticket Agents, Local 23293 v Roosevelt Raceway Assoc., 172 A.D.2d 595, 568 N.Y.S.2d 420, 1991 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4649 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1991).

Because a housing authority's duty to maintain the security of a building did not extend to an abducted child regardless of whether the ultimate harm was reasonably foreseeable, and because the child and the child's father did not demonstrate, inter alia, a reasonable excuse for the delay or that the authority would not be prejudiced thereby, they were not entitled to leave to serve and file a late notice of claim under N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(5). Matter of Brown v New York City Hous. Auth., 39 A.D.3d 744, 834 N.Y.S.2d 279, 2007 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4740 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2007).

Dismissal of a building owner's claims against a city for, inter alia, tortious interference of a lease for the building was proper because the owner did not file a notice of claim or request permission to file a late notice of claim, the claim sounded in tort, the claim was thus subject to the notice requirement, and the lack of notice was fatal to this claim; the owner's cause of action against the city for diminution in property value, to the extent it was even cognizable, clearly sounded in tort, as it alleged a breach of a duty of care, and thus the lack of a notice of claim was fatal to this claim as well. Montano v City of Watervliet, 47 A.D.3d 1106, 850 N.Y.S.2d 273, 2008 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 279 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2008).

Town was entitled to summary judgment on a resident's negligent supervision claim because, while the town employee had a duty to exercise reasonable care in the operation of a municipal dump truck and was aware of the resident's presence during the wood chip unloading process, the resident's intervening action in slamming the tailgate to loosen the clogged chips was the sole proximate cause of his injuries. Barone v Town of New Scotland, 145 A.D.3d 1416, 44 N.Y.S.3d 267, 2016 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8776 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2016).

Trial court properly dismissed the purchasers' action to recover monetary damages for violations of the General Business Law as a claim sounding in tort that was subject to the requirements of the General Municipal Law, as a cause of action sounding in fraud. Singh v City of New York, 2020 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8279 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2020).

A motion to dismiss a complaint made before submission of a case to the jury upon the ground that there was a failure to comply with § 244 of the Second Class Cities Law was not sufficient to entitle city to dismissal of complaint upon the grounds that plaintiffs had not complied with this section. Mink v Albany, 121 N.Y.S.2d 164, 203 Misc. 94, 1952 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2288 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1952).

A cause of action for regaining possession of property seized in a gambling raid is essentially one in tort, and, where it is against a county or other municipality, requires service of notice of claim as prescribed in this section. Kamienska v County of Westchester, 39 Misc. 2d 750, 241 N.Y.S.2d 814, 1963 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1918 (N.Y. County Ct. 1963).

N.Y. Pub. Health Law art. 27-F was enacted to protect a vulnerable class of individuals and in this regard, is dissimilar to a standard personal injury action to which CLS Uncons Laws of New York § 7401 and N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e apply. Thus, the requirement of the Unconsolidated Laws for service of a notice of claim within a shortened statute of limitations does not apply to an action under art. 27-5. Doe v Belmare, 920 N.Y.S.2d 623, 31 Misc. 3d 904, 245 N.Y.L.J. 76, 2011 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1570 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 2011).

Because the notice requirement under N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e did not accrue until a brother's painful realization that the decedent's body had been mutilated during embalming practice by students and buried in a mass grave of unclaimed bodies, the brother was entitled to damages for loss of sepulcher. Melfi v Mount Sinai Hosp., 64 A.D.3d 26, 877 N.Y.S.2d 300, 2009 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3294 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2009).

Detainee's notice of claim sufficiently advised a City, a police lieutenant and a detective (defendants) that a claim for civil assault was being asserted as it alleged that defendants placed the detainee in apprehension of imminent harm or offensive conduct by pointing guns at her, handcuffing her, threatening to take her outside in public half naked and threatening to arrest her. Scott v City of New Rochelle, 986 N.Y.S.2d 819, 44 Misc. 3d 366, 2014 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2279 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 2014).

Claim for damages for injuries allegedly suffered as result of vaccination is barred as to city defendant where no notice was served under General Municipal Law § 50-e(1)(a). Gomez v Maimonides Hospital, 580 F. Supp. 1447, 1984 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 19137 (E.D.N.Y. 1984).

Gender discrimination claim against city and its Health and Hospitals Corporation under CLS Exec § 296 was not barred by plaintiff's failure to file notice of claim under CLS Gen Mun § 50-e and CLS Unconsol Ch 214-A § 20, since New York courts do not regard claims under § 296 as tort claims. Dortz v City of New York, 904 F. Supp. 127, 1995 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 15668 (S.D.N.Y. 1995).

Plaintiff's state law civil rights claims against the county were dismissed because plaintiff did not comply with the notice requirements of N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law 50-e. McLaurin v New Rochelle Police Officers, 368 F. Supp. 2d 289, 2005 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 8982 (S.D.N.Y. 2005).

Inmate's motion for leave to amend was denied because amendment would be futile when there was insufficient evidence to support a finding that the inmate complied with the notice of claim requirements before filing his state law claims against the county and the county officials, pursuant to N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law §§ 50-d, 50-e, and 50-i, and as required by N.Y. County Law § 52. Although there were provisions under N.Y. Mun. Law § 50-e for addressing a late notice of claim, such a late claim needed to be addressed by a state court and not by the federal district court if the inmate wanted to pursue state law claims against the county and the county officials. Horvath v Daniel, 423 F. Supp. 2d 421, 2006 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 18439 (S.D.N.Y. 2006).

Arrestee's claims against the detectives alleging false arrest and ordinary acts of negligence fell into the category of claims involving conduct by the detectives that occurred while they were acting within the scope of their public employment and discharging official duties, and not in violation of any rule, therefore a notice of claim was required as the city had a statutory obligation to indemnify the detectives even if the action was brought against them but not against the city; but the claims asserting more extreme intentional misconduct, such as use of excessive force and intentional infliction of emotional distress, did not require a notice of claim. Brenner v Heavener, 492 F. Supp. 2d 399, 2007 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 45831 (S.D.N.Y. 2007).

Because trespass was an intentional tort under New York law, an arrestee's trespass claims against several police officers, by definition, constituted "intentional wrongdoing" that did not qualify for indemnification under N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-k(3), and thus, the notice of claim requirement of N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(1)(b) did not apply. Vesterhalt v City of New York, 667 F. Supp. 2d 292, 2009 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 99327 (S.D.N.Y. 2009).

IV. Time Limitations For Filing Notice

69. In general

This section requires that a notice of claim must be filed within 90 days after the claim arises, and that failure to file such a notice operates to bar any action against the public officer or body. Barchet v New York City Transit Authority, 20 N.Y.2d 1, 281 N.Y.S.2d 289, 228 N.E.2d 361, 1967 N.Y. LEXIS 1446 (N.Y. 1967).

Failure of claimant to file a notice of claim under this section within the time limit as revealed by claimant's pleadings will render his complaint subject to dismissal for failure to state a cause of action. Colehamer v Troy, 273 A.D. 1048, 78 N.Y.S.2d 686, 1948 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5897 (N.Y. App. Div. 1948).

Under the above statute a notice of claim which is not in compliance with the substantive requirements of subd 2 thereof or is not served within the period of time prescribed by subd 1, is fatally defective. Schildhaus v New York, 23 A.D.2d 409, 261 N.Y.S.2d 909, 1965 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3626 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1965), aff'd, 17 N.Y.2d 853, 271 N.Y.S.2d 286, 218 N.E.2d 325, 1966 N.Y. LEXIS 1344 (N.Y. 1966).

In a negligence action to recover damages for personal injuries, Special Term properly denied leave to serve a late notice of claim, where plaintiffs failed to establish adequate grounds on which to invoke the doctrine of equitable estoppel, there being no unusual or exceptional factual situation in the instant case, and where the infancy of one of the plaintiffs did not toll the time bar in that the prior wording of the statute imposed an unbending time bar. Soloff v Board of Education, 90 A.D.2d 829, 455 N.Y.S.2d 832, 1982 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 19077 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1982).

A personal injury action against a transit system operated by a county would be dismissed for failure to file a notice of claim in accord with Gen Mun Law § 50-e, even though the failure to file a proper notice occurred before a Court of Appeals case holding that a notice of claim was a condition precedent to suit against a transit system operated by a county, where absent a sharp break in the web of the law, all cases on direct appeal must be decided in accordance with any principles newly enunciated by the Court of Appeals, where the transit system case decided by the Court of Appeals did not represent such a sharp break with the past, in that it overruled no prior Court of Appeals precedents and merely presented that court with its first opportunity to construe the applicable statutory provisions. James v Liberty Lines, 97 A.D.2d 749, 468 N.Y.S.2d 380, 1983 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 20491 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1983).

Trial court erred in denying the school construction authority's motion to dismiss the injured party's complaint and granting the injured party's application to have his previously-served notice of claimed deemed timely served nunc pro tunc, as the injured party did not file that application until more than three months after the one-year statute of limitations had run on filing his personal injury complaint. Since the application was not filed within the statute of limitations period for filing the claim itself, the trial court did not have the discretion to permit the filing of the application, but, instead, should have granted the school construction authority's motion to dismiss. Hall v City of New York, 1 A.D.3d 254, 768 N.Y.S.2d 2, 2003 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12175 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2003).

A court will generally consider three factors in determining whether to grant leave to serve a late notice of claim: (1) whether the movant demonstrated a reasonable excuse for the delay, (2) whether the public corporation acquired actual knowledge of the essential facts constituting the claim within 90 days after the claim arose or a reasonable time thereafter, and (3) whether the delay in serving the notice of claim substantially prejudiced the public corporation in maintaining its defense on the merits. In a personal injury action against a city, denial of a motion to file a late notice of claim was proper because : (1) the movant failed to offer a reasonable excuse for his failure to timely serve a notice of claim; (2) while certain forms in the city's possession contained information as to how the movant was injured, those forms did not suggest any connection between the happening of the accident and any alleged negligence by the city, so there was not actual notice of the movant's claim within the proper time period; and (3) the 15-month delay between the date of the accident and the date the movant sought to serve a notice of claim would prejudice the city's ability to defend against the action. Pappalardo v City of New York, 2 A.D.3d 699, 768 N.Y.S.2d 660, 2003 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13815 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2003).

Injured person's claim against transit authorities, based on a fall which allegedly occurred while she was stepping to meet a bus, was precluded where the theory of liability against the transit authorities was not asserted in the original notice of claim or other filings; the alternative means for asserting the injured person's theory of liability, a late notice of claim, was of no avail since it was not asserted until 17 months after the accident, exceeding the one year and 90 days limitations period for a late notice, and, furthermore, the N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(6) notice of claim amendment provision did not permit substantive changes in the theory of liability. Mahase v Manhattan & Bronx Surface Transit Operating Auth., 3 A.D.3d 410, 771 N.Y.S.2d 99, 2004 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 401 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2004).

Property owner's N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(5) application to serve a late notice of claim was granted, as the City of New York, Department of Environmental Protection, had timely actual knowledge of the incident due to the owner's call reporting it, and the City was not prejudiced by the delay, as it had access to documents relating to the incident, including reports of the owner's complaints and records made by City employees involved in inspecting and cleaning the sewers. Matter of LFL Gallery, Inc. v City of N.Y. Dept. of Envtl. Protection, 812 N.Y.S.2d 820, 11 Misc. 3d 519, 2006 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 112 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 2006).

Fact that the property owner waited more than 10 months after the incident to file an application for leave to serve a late notice of claim was not fatal to the application where the City of New York, Department of Environmental Protection, was not prejudiced and where the City had timely actual notice of the incident. Matter of LFL Gallery, Inc. v City of N.Y. Dept. of Envtl. Protection, 812 N.Y.S.2d 820, 11 Misc. 3d 519, 2006 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 112 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 2006).

Although court may extend time to serve notice of claim on municipality under CLS Gen Mun L § 50-e(5), despite notice of claim requirement being express condition precedent to commencement of action, court may not grant leave to file late notice on those claims where applicable statute of limitations has expired. Piesco v New York, 693 F. Supp. 86, 1988 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 9962 (S.D.N.Y. 1988).

Plaintiff's pendent state law tort claims, brought as part of plaintiff's action under 42 U.S.C.S. § 1983, were dismissed when plaintiff did not follow the procedure for filing a notice of the claim prior to commencement of the action as required under N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-i(1), and waiver of the time for presentment requirement would be futile when the limitations period had already expired under N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e. Warner v Goshen Police Dep't, 256 F. Supp. 2d 171, 2003 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 6368 (S.D.N.Y. 2003).

70. Amendment increasing filing period as retroactive

Under the 60-day limitation in this section prior to 1950 amendment, effective September 1, 1950, which increased the filing period to 90 days, a claim filed April 15, 1950, for an injury received on January 12, 1950, must be denied. Donovan v Board of Education, 102 N.Y.S.2d 47, 198 Misc. 330, 1950 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2374 (N.Y. Sup. Ct.), aff'd, 277 A.D. 904, 98 N.Y.S.2d 580, 1950 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3796 (N.Y. App. Div. 1950).

Where injuries were sustained four days prior to the 1950 amendment extending the time to 90 days, the 90 day period was applicable to such claim. Iannotta v New York, 105 N.Y.S.2d 442, 1951 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1925 (N.Y. Mun. Ct. 1951).

71. Relationship to other statutes

Notice of claim requirements under N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law §§ 50-e and 50-i, were held inapplicable to claims pursuant to 42 USCS § 1983; thus, a plaintiff's failure to file a notice of claim did not require dismissal. Mompoint v City of New York, 299 A.D.2d 527, 751 N.Y.S.2d 38, 2002 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11476 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2002).

Trial court erred in granting a petition filed by a mother and her child (the petitioners) for leave to serve a late notice of claim because they failed to show that the school district had actual knowledge of the essential facts constituting their claim within 90 days after the incident or a reasonable time thereafter where a medical claim form, which merely indicated that the child was injured when another student collided into her during recess, did not provide the district with actual knowledge of their claim, the petitioners did not demonstrate a reasonable excuse for their failure to serve a timely notice of claim, their delay in filing the petition, or that the district was not substantially prejudiced by their delay. Matter of A.C. v West Babylon Union Free School Dist., 147 A.D.3d 1047, 48 N.Y.S.3d 422, 2017 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1339 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2017).

CPLR 205 (subd [a]), which provides, if an action is timely commenced and is terminated in a manner other than by a voluntary discontinuance or a dismissal of the complaint for neglect to prosecute or a final judgment on the merits, a new action may be commenced within six months, applies only to time limitations and does not apply to section 50-e of the General Municipal Law, which requires the filing of a notice of tort claim against a municipality within 90 days after the claim arises; the 90-day notice of claim is a mandatory condition precedent. Accordingly, plaintiff having failed to serve a notice of claim upon the defendant city within 90 days, a motion by defendant to dismiss the complaint is granted. Glamm v Amsterdam, 94 Misc. 2d 991, 405 N.Y.S.2d 993, 1978 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2333 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1978), aff'd, 67 A.D.2d 1056, 413 N.Y.S.2d 512, 1979 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10871 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1979).

Action against Facilities Development Corporation are governed by General Municipal Law § 50-e, as corporation is public benefit corporation included within term "public corporation" as defined in General construction Law § 66; late filing provisions of § 50-e are applicable to action against corporation, despite absence of complementary provision in corporation's incorporating act (CLS Unconsolidated Laws, Chapter 214). Kroupa v Facilities Dev. Corp., 128 Misc. 2d 904, 491 N.Y.S.2d 908, 1985 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3022 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1985).

72. Computation of time; excludable time

In an action against the county based on a collision with one of its vehicles, the county's motion for summary judgment dismissing the action as time-barred was properly granted where plaintiff failed to commence her action by service of a summons with notice either before or at the same time she applied for leave to serve a late notice of claim, and where the period of time during which her motion for leave to serve a late notice of claim was pending did not constitute a judicial stay for purposes of tolling the statute of limitations inasmuch as plaintiff was authorized by statute, Gen Mun Law § 50-e(7)(b), to commence her action before applying for judicial permission to file a late notice. Corey v County of Rensselaer, 88 A.D.2d 1104, 453 N.Y.S.2d 65, 1982 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 17518 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), app. denied, 57 N.Y.2d 602, 1982 N.Y. LEXIS 7088 (N.Y. 1982).

In a personal injury action against a city transit authority, the trial court improperly granted plaintiff's motion to strike the authority's affirmative defense of failure to file a timely notice of claim, even though the period to file a notice of claim expired on February 14, Lincoln's birthday, and the claim was filed the next day, and even though Gen Const Law § 75-a authorizes the doing of an act on a day following a public holiday, where according to Gen Const Law § 24 February 12, not February 14, was Lincoln's birthday and the mere fact that Lincoln's birthday may have been celebrated for certain purposes by the city and state courts and agencies on February 14 did not make that day a public holiday. O'Leary v New York City Transit Authority, 97 A.D.2d 789, 468 N.Y.S.2d 531, 1983 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 20544 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1983), aff'd, 64 N.Y.2d 813, 486 N.Y.S.2d 937, 476 N.E.2d 336, 1985 N.Y. LEXIS 14239 (N.Y. 1985).

In a wrongful death action against a county arising from circumstances indicating that plaintiff's decedent, while a prisoner in the custody of the county, was hospitalized on August 22, 1979, and from that date until his death on December 25, 1979, decedent was continuously in a coma, and a notice of claim was filed on March 25, 1980 but no application for leave to file a late notice of claim was made until November 18, 1982, an order granting the decedent's administrator's application for leave to file a late notice of claim was erroneous since, giving plaintiff the benefit of tolling of the statute of limitations, under CPLR § 208, during the entire period that he was in a coma, the application was not made until approximately 35 months after the disability ceased and after the expiration of the maximum period permitted by Gen Mun Law §§ 50-e, 50-i. Donovan v County of Niagara, 100 A.D.2d 740, 473 N.Y.S.2d 635, 1984 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 17744 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1984), aff'd, 64 N.Y.2d 973, 489 N.Y.S.2d 61, 478 N.E.2d 202, 1985 N.Y. LEXIS 16673 (N.Y. 1985).

Court erred as matter of law in determining that injured plaintiff had until 90 days following his 18th birthday to timely file notice of claim under CLS Gen Mun § 50-e without court permission; 90-day notice of claim filing period is not tolled, and only time in which to apply for permission to serve late notice of claim is tolled. Purdy v Afton Cent. Sch. Dist., 202 A.D.2d 776, 608 N.Y.S.2d 748, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2292 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1994).

Because a mother commenced a proceeding against a hospital on behalf of her child approximately nine years and one month after the claim accrued, the time period in N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-3 was tolled by the child's infancy; therefore, the trial court erred in denying the mother's petition for leave to serve a late notice of claim. Matter of Tapia v New York City Health & Hosps. Corp., 27 A.D.3d 655, 811 N.Y.S.2d 768, 2006 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3521 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't), app. denied, 7 N.Y.3d 714, 824 N.Y.S.2d 607, 857 N.E.2d 1138, 2006 N.Y. LEXIS 3334 (N.Y. 2006).

In view of the provisions of §§ 20 and 25-a of the General Construction Law, where the injury on which a claim against a municipality is based occurs on July 22, 1961, that date is excluded and the statutory one-year period begins to run on the following day, and if the end of the period then falls on a Sunday, notice is timely if served on the next succeeding business day. Aposporos v Poughkeepsie, 37 Misc. 2d 56, 232 N.Y.S.2d 700, 1962 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2488 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1962).

Since plaintiff's accident occurred on November 8, 1963, the one-year statute of limitations prescribed by General Municipal Laws § 50-e(5) began to run on November 9, 1963, and would normally expire on November 8, 1964, but where that day fell on a Sunday, the period expired on the following day, November 9, 1964. Conway v Board of Education, 47 Misc. 2d 172, 262 N.Y.S.2d 15, 1965 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1633 (N.Y. County Ct. 1965).

Even though attorney-client privilege did not protect a medical malpractice plaintiff's attorney's observations of the plaintiff's general demeanor during the period when the statute of limitations for presenting claims against a government defendant was arguably being tolled because of the plaintiff's mental incompetance, a protective order was issued on public policy grounds because the same information affecting the tolling of the claim period could have been obtained in ways that would not have so intruded into the attorney-client relationship and would not have exposed the attorneys to a subsequent motion to disqualify them from representing a client they had been representing for several years. Giannicos v Bellevue Hosp. Med. Ctr., 793 N.Y.S.2d 893, 7 Misc. 3d 403, 233 N.Y.L.J. 28, 2005 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 154 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 2005).

73. Timeliness of notice

An action against a municipality based on trespass would be barred by reason of plaintiffs' failure to timely serve a notice of claim as required by Gen Mun Law § 50-e(1), the city having received no indication as to when, where, or how the claim stemming from the alleged trespassory acts arose so that it had no opportunity to investigate. O'Brien v Syracuse, 54 N.Y.2d 353, 445 N.Y.S.2d 687, 429 N.E.2d 1158, 1981 N.Y. LEXIS 3161 (N.Y. 1981).

Motion to extend time for filing notice of claim against municipality denied where the claim was filed one day after the expiration of the 90-day period and motion to validate was not made until nine months thereafter. Since petitioner was not incapacitated during the entire 90-day period, fact that representatives of defendants had advised her not to retain an attorney and had taken her written statement did not excuse noncompliance. Application of Kreuzer, 282 A.D. 881, 124 N.Y.S.2d 752, 1953 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5318 (N.Y. App. Div. 1953).

New York City Transit Authority (NYCTA) was entitled to summary judgment dismissing negligence action for plaintiffs' failure to serve notices of claim within 90-day period required by CLS Gen Mun § 50-e, even though notices had been served on Metropolitan Transit Authority (MTA) within statutory period, since MTA was not proper recipient of service for NYCTA, and notices forwarded by MTA were not received by NYCTA until after expiration of 90-day period; while municipal corporation may, by its conduct, waive irregularity in notice of claim, requirements as to manner and time of service may not be so waived. Adams v New York City Transit Authority, 140 A.D.2d 572, 528 N.Y.S.2d 638, 1988 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5631 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1988).

Court should have dismissed action for false arrest and imprisonment where notice of claim was served on city on April 12, 1991, but plaintiff had been released sometime in July 1988. Bennett v City of New York, 204 A.D.2d 587, 612 N.Y.S.2d 201, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5529 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1994).

Plaintiff's service of notice of claim against city was untimely where event on which claim was based was city's alleged negligent failure to supervise installation of sewer line by town in 1988. Scarzfava v City of Newburgh, 255 A.D.2d 436, 680 N.Y.S.2d 595, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11994 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1998).

Policy considerations involved in tolling an infant's lawsuit (otherwise barred by the statute of limitations) are quite different from those requiring prompt notice of the infant's claim against a city. Harris v City of New York, 297 A.D.2d 473, 747 N.Y.S.2d 4, 2002 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8193 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't), app. denied, 99 N.Y.2d 503, 753 N.Y.S.2d 806, 783 N.E.2d 896, 2002 N.Y. LEXIS 3747 (N.Y. 2002).

Property owners' continuing trespass and nuisance claims against a town for allegedly damaging their property by piling plowed snow against the wall of their building were untimely; all the evidence indicated that the owners neglected the building for years, and only noticed the water damage when they tried to sell it. Alamio v Town of Rockland, 302 A.D.2d 842, 755 N.Y.S.2d 754, 2003 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1738 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2003).

Action seeking money damages allegedly caused by the failure of the city to discharge a duty imposed upon it by law, specifically to provide a wage differential, sounded in tort; therefore, where the decedent failed to serve his claim upon the city within 90 days after the claim arose, pursuant to N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e, or within the statute of limitations period of one year and 90 days, pursuant to N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law §§ 50-e and 50-i, the action was dismissed. Estate of Kalis v City of Buffalo, 306 A.D.2d 932, 762 N.Y.S.2d 195, 2003 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6774 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't), app. denied, 100 N.Y.2d 515, 769 N.Y.S.2d 202, 801 N.E.2d 423, 2003 N.Y. LEXIS 3375 (N.Y. 2003).

Because an insurer's notice of claim merely sought to recover some of the damages flowing from the same incident as that described by its insured in a prior notice of claim, pursuant to N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e, the insurer was entitled to rely on the timeliness of the insured's notice of claim. Hartford Ins. Co. v City of New York, 29 A.D.3d 519, 814 N.Y.S.2d 266, 2006 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5931 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2006).

Trial court properly granted municipal defendants' motion to dismiss wrongful death and conscious pain and suffering claims by plaintiff, as plaintiff failed to timely serve a notice of claim on defendants with respect to the injuries in question as required by N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e, and failed to commence an action with regard to the injuries within the requisite limitations period, N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-i. Braun v County of Orange, 31 A.D.3d 593, 819 N.Y.S.2d 296, 2006 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9387 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2006).

Alleged injured party timely commenced a special proceeding against a city within the one year and 90-day statute of limitations in N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law §§ 50-e(5) and 50-i(1) when he filed an unsigned order to show cause, his attorney's affirmation and a verified proposed notice of claim because the affirmation and proposed notice were properly viewed as the petition (N.Y. C.P.L.R. 402) required to commence a special proceeding (N.Y. C.P.L.R. 304), and, having timely commenced the special proceeding, that proceeding could not be deemed a nullity despite his failure to serve the order to show cause within the time prescribed by the trial court, as any defect in service of the order merely raised an issue regarding whether the trial court had personal jurisdiction over the city. Matter of Jordan v City of New York, 38 A.D.3d 336, 833 N.Y.S.2d 8, 2007 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3638 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2007).

Husband's second notice of claim filed pursuant to N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e against a city housing authority 17 days after the statutory 90-day time period expired was not untimely because the second notice merely amended a timely initial notice; the theory of liability, negligence, did not change; and the authority was not prejudiced as it had not begun an investigation. Goodwin v New York City Hous. Auth., 42 A.D.3d 63, 834 N.Y.S.2d 181, 2007 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5406 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2007).

Motion court erred in denying a plaintiff's cross-motion to amend his notice of claim and should have exercised its discretion to treat the cross-motion as having been made under the General Municipal Law because, given the housing authority's actual knowledge of the facts constituting the claim within a reasonable time after the accident and the lack of evidence of an attempt to conduct an investigation either before or after it obtained knowledge of the issue concerning the handrail at issue, the authority's conclusory assertions of prejudice, based solely on the delay in serving the notice of claim, were insufficient. Thomas v New York City Hous. Auth., 132 A.D.3d 432, 17 N.Y.S.3d 130, 2015 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7274 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2015).

Since the applicant never filed a notice of claim upon the the county, the civil service commission, or the police department within 90 days of the date his claims arose as required by N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e, and the time to do so had expired, the applicant's state law claims had to be dismissed unless his action was brought to vindicate a public interest or he had been granted leave to serve a late notice of claim. Moreover, since the applicant sought the enforcement of his private interests, the public interest exception to the notice of claim requirement was inapplicable. Feldman v Nassau County, 349 F. Supp. 2d 528, 2004 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 25054 (E.D.N.Y. 2004), aff'd, 434 F.3d 177, 2006 U.S. App. LEXIS 453 (2d Cir. N.Y. 2006).

74. —Excuse for failure to file

Although a causal nexus between infancy and late filing of a claim against a city need no longer be shown, neither infancy alone nor ignorance of the law provides a sufficient excuse for failure to file a timely notice of claim. Harris v City of New York, 297 A.D.2d 473, 747 N.Y.S.2d 4, 2002 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8193 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't), app. denied, 99 N.Y.2d 503, 753 N.Y.S.2d 806, 783 N.E.2d 896, 2002 N.Y. LEXIS 3747 (N.Y. 2002).

While the lack of a reasonable excuse for a delay in filing a claim against a city is not of itself fatal to the claim, two other factors — some prior actual notice and the absence of prejudice — which would be relevant in condoning the lack of reasonable excuse, must also be shown. Harris v City of New York, 297 A.D.2d 473, 747 N.Y.S.2d 4, 2002 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8193 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't), app. denied, 99 N.Y.2d 503, 753 N.Y.S.2d 806, 783 N.E.2d 896, 2002 N.Y. LEXIS 3747 (N.Y. 2002).

Motion court erred in granting an injured worker's motion to deem a late notice of claim timely filed, nunc pro tunc, because, inter alia, the worker boldly misrepresented his ability to travel into the city to meet with counsel after a hurricane and omitted the fact that he actually did travel into the city on numerous occasions prior to expiration of the time period for serving a notice of claim, the motion court erred in entertaining arguments advanced for the first time in the worker's reply papers and in accepting their offer of new proof. Matter of Gonzalez v City of New York, 127 A.D.3d 632, 8 N.Y.S.3d 290, 2015 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3444 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2015).

Petitioner (P) was not entitled to serve a late notice of claim as: (1) respondent (R) did not have actual knowledge of the essential facts within 90 days after the claim accrued or a reasonable time thereafter as the incident report indicated that the vehicle was taken by unknown persons; (2) the attorney's affirmation and the proposed notice of claim executed by a total theft examiner stating that a police officer directed a towing company to tow the vehicle on March 16, 2014, were not based on personal knowledge or substantiated; (3) P failed to proffer a reasonable excuse for the failure to serve a timely notice of claim and the delay in filing the petition; and (4) P did not show that its delay did not substantially prejudice R. Matter of Government Empls. Ins. Co. v Suffolk County Police Dept., 152 A.D.3d 517, 58 N.Y.S.3d 514, 2017 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5272 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2017).

Arrestee was not permitted to file a late notice of claim against a city because, inter alia, the involvement of the city's police officers in the alleged incident did not, without more, establish that the city had actual knowledge of the essential facts constituting the claims, and the arrestee failed to explain why he could not recall the date of the incident, why he waited nearly four months to consult and retain counsel, and why he did not commence the proceeding until April 2015. Matter of Fethallah v New York City Police Dept., 150 A.D.3d 998, 55 N.Y.S.3d 325, 2017 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3881 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2017).

Estate administrator was not entitled to leave to serve a late notice in medical malpractice, wrongful death, and negligence claim against the town and its ambulance service because the failure to review the medical records and ascertain the claim in a timely manner was not an acceptable excuse for the failure to serve a timely notice of claim. Matter of Mangino v Town of Mamaroneck, 160 A.D.3d 864, 75 N.Y.S.3d 81, 2018 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2578 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2018).

Trial court did not err in denying appellant's motion for leave to serve a late notice of claim on appellee city because 1)an officer's arresting him did not establish that the city had actual knowledge of the facts constituting appellant's claims of false arrest, false imprisonment, and malicious prosecution within 90 days following their accrual; 2) the contents of the arrest report and the certificate of disposition were insufficient to impute actual knowledge to the city of the facts underlying his claims; 3) he did not establish that the delay in serving the notice of claim would not prejudice the city in maintaining its defense; and 4) his assigned criminal lawyer's failure to advise him of the notice of claim requirement was not a reasonable excuse for his failure to serve a timely a notice of claim. Matter of Islam v City of New York, 164 A.D.3d 672, 83 N.Y.S.3d 272, 2018 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5701 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2018).

Former psychiatric patient was not permitted to serve a late notice of claim, alleging the county was negligent in failing to provide him with a discharge plan and medications to continue his treatment, because the patient did not establish that his illness, treatment, and incapacitation prevented him from filing a timely notice; the patient submitted a one-page, heavily redacted hospital discharge summary, which was insufficient to establish a reasonable excuse for the delay. Matter of Charles v County of Orange, N.Y., 164 A.D.3d 1232, 83 N.Y.S.3d 660, 2018 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6006 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2018).

Supreme Court improvidently exercised its discretion in granting an arrestee's petition for leave to serve a late notice of claim alleging state law claims because the arrestee's explanation that his did not advise him of the notice of claim requirement and that he did not learn of the requirement when he retained his new attorney did not constitute a reasonable excuse for his failure to timely serve the village with a notice of claim for the remaining state law claims. Matter of Nunez v Village of Rockville Ctr., 176 A.D.3d 1211, 111 N.Y.S.3d 71, 2019 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7800 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2019).

75. —Late notice

The trial court properly granted summary judgment to a city dismissing an injured party's complaint, on the ground that the injured party failed to timely serve a notice of claim pursuant to N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e, as the injured party conceded that his original notice of claim was served on the city four days late, and thus the late service of the original notice of claim was a nullity since it was made without leave of the court, and furthermore, since the injured party's motion for leave to serve a late notice of claim was made more than one year and 90 days after the accrual date of the claim, the trial court did not have the authority to grant the motion, N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law §§ 50-e(5), 50-i. Santiago v City of New York, 294 A.D.2d 483, 742 N.Y.S.2d 566, 2002 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5184 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2002).

Transitory nature of a defective condition giving rise to a claim against a city does not preclude the accrual of prejudice to the city from the late filing of the claim, but, it is a factor to be considered, and even where a municipal defendant has received some form of actual notice within the 90-day period within which a claim is to be filed, its claim of prejudice may be rebutted by the transitory nature of the condition, i.e., that timely notice of claim would make no difference, but where there is neither actual notice nor a reasonable excuse for the late filing, the transitory nature of the defective condition weighs against the granting of an application to file a late notice of claim. Harris v City of New York, 297 A.D.2d 473, 747 N.Y.S.2d 4, 2002 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8193 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't), app. denied, 99 N.Y.2d 503, 753 N.Y.S.2d 806, 783 N.E.2d 896, 2002 N.Y. LEXIS 3747 (N.Y. 2002).

Plain language of N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(5) does not provide a basis for judicial "reasonableness" as a basis for relief from late filing of a notice of claim against a city, and the reasonableness referred to in the statute is linked to consideration of whether the defendant public corporation acquired actual notice within a reasonable time, wholly apart from the notice of claim. Harris v City of New York, 297 A.D.2d 473, 747 N.Y.S.2d 4, 2002 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8193 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't), app. denied, 99 N.Y.2d 503, 753 N.Y.S.2d 806, 783 N.E.2d 896, 2002 N.Y. LEXIS 3747 (N.Y. 2002).

Where a party who sought leave to file notice of a claim against a city beyond the required 90-day period had neither a reasonable excuse for the late filing nor could he show that the city had prior actual notice of the claim or would not be prejudiced by the late filing, leave to file the claim was properly denied. Harris v City of New York, 297 A.D.2d 473, 747 N.Y.S.2d 4, 2002 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8193 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't), app. denied, 99 N.Y.2d 503, 753 N.Y.S.2d 806, 783 N.E.2d 896, 2002 N.Y. LEXIS 3747 (N.Y. 2002).

Where the contractor filed an application, pursuant to N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(5) and N.Y. Educ. Law § 3813(2-a), for leave to file a late notice of claim in the contractor's breach of contract action against the owners of the school facilities, where the owners only made partial payment during the project and almost a year later terminated the contract, the application was properly granted, as the claim accrued only upon termination of the contract; that was when damages became certain and ascertainable. SBR Roofing, Inc. v Richfield Springs Cent. Sch. Dist., 303 A.D.2d 886, 757 N.Y.S.2d 129, 2003 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2496 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2003).

Where the contractor filed an application, pursuant to N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(5) and N.Y. Educ. Law § 3813(2-a), for leave to file a late notice of claim in the contractor's breach of contract action against the owners of the school facilities, the application was properly granted; even if the contractor failed to give notice of claim within 90 days of its accrual, the owners made no showing of prejudice, and the owners were aware of the essential facts underlying the claim. SBR Roofing, Inc. v Richfield Springs Cent. Sch. Dist., 303 A.D.2d 886, 757 N.Y.S.2d 129, 2003 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2496 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2003).

Where the contractor filed an application, pursuant to N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(5) and N.Y. Educ. Law § 3813(2-a), for leave to file a late notice of claim in the contractor's breach of contract action against the owners of the school facilities, the application was properly granted; the owners' argument that the claim should have been dismissed, because the contractor failed to submit the claim to the project architect failed, as termination of the contract ended the architect's responsibility to supervise the contractor's performance. SBR Roofing, Inc. v Richfield Springs Cent. Sch. Dist., 303 A.D.2d 886, 757 N.Y.S.2d 129, 2003 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2496 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2003).

Where a mother did not keep scheduled appointments and continually relocated between Guyana and New York, there was no continuing treatment of a child; without a timely request for leave to file a late notice of claim in accordance with N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e and N.Y. C.P.L.R. 208, the claim was barred by N.Y. C.P.L.R. 214-a and the trial court erred in denying the hospital's motion to dismiss. Sarjoo v N.Y. City Health & Hosps. Corp., 309 A.D.2d 34, 763 N.Y.S.2d 306, 2003 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8748 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2003), app. denied, 1 N.Y.3d 506, 776 N.Y.S.2d 221, 808 N.E.2d 357, 2004 N.Y. LEXIS 29 (N.Y. 2004).

City hospital's records of a newly born child indicated that she had foot gangrene and had misadventure during her medical care so the city was on notice under N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(5) that it was subject to the child's claim even though the claim was filed four years after her discharge. The city was also not prejudiced by the child's motion, that she made four years after serving the late claim, for the late claim to be allowed since the city acknowledged that it had actually been served with the late claim. Caminero v N.Y. City Health & Hosps. Corp., 21 A.D.3d 330, 800 N.Y.S.2d 173, 2005 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8800 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2005).

Motion court erred in deeming the brother's notice of claim an application for leave to file a late notice of claim nunc pro tunc, and granting such leave, pursuant to N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e, because the brother failed to timely file a notice of claim and failed to make a proper application to deem the late notice of claim timely filed. In granting the brother's request, made improperly in his complaint, and not decided until five years after the cause of action accrued, the motion court was, in effect, extending the statute of limitations. Kellogg v Office of the Chief Med. Examiner of the City of New York, 24 A.D.3d 376, 806 N.Y.S.2d 528, 2005 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 14890 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2005).

In a proceeding pursuant to N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(5) for leave to serve a late notice of claim, the trial court providently exercised its discretion in denying the application; petitioner failed to submit evidence establishing that respondents had actual knowledge of the claim within 90 days of the incident or within a reasonable time thereafter. Petitioner also failed to present a reasonable excuse for the delay, and there was no nexus between the delay and petitioner's infancy. Matter of Martinez v W. Hempstead Sch. Dist., 24 A.D.3d 557, 808 N.Y.S.2d 299, 2005 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 14047 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2005).

Claimant failed to provide a reasonable excuse for the delay in serving his notice of claim as provided in N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(5). So, the lower court providently exercised its discretion to deny the petition for leave to serve a late notice of claim as to false arrest and false imprisonment. Matter of Rush v County of Nassau, 24 A.D.3d 560, 806 N.Y.S.2d 232, 2005 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 14142 (N.Y. Plaintiff infant was not entitled to an order deeming his late notice of a medical malpractice action against a city hospital timely served nunc pro tunc; nine years had elapsed since his alleged birth injuries, his mother waited five years after learning the infant had cognitive and motor skill disabilities before contacting an attorney to investigate a possible claim, that delay could not be attributed to the her son's infancy, and the delay prejudiced the hospital. Beretey v New York City Health & Hosps. Corp. (Elmhurst Hosp. Center), 56 A.D.3d 591, 868 N.Y.S.2d 232, 2008 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8574 (N.Y. Plaintiff could not be granted leave to serve a late notice of claim against defendants, a school district and others, alleging, inter alia, breach of contract as the statute of limitations had run on the claim itself under Education Law § 3813(2-a) and General Municipal Law § 50-e(5); due to those circumstances, plaintiff was also properly denied leave to amend under CPLR 3025(b) as the proposed amendment would be palpably insufficient. Boakye-Yiadom v Roosevelt Union Free School Dist., 57 A.D.3d 929, 871 N.Y.S.2d 314, 2008 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10216 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2008).

Leave for parents to file late notice of claim pursuant to N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law §§ 50-e, 50-i, was proper because, among other things, the parents' lack of awareness that the child had been injured was a reasonable excuse, and, further, the record indicated that the notice of claim may not have been untimely as to all the events alleged therein; in addition to casting doubt on the lateness of the notice of claim, the police report provided the school district with actual knowledge of at least some of the facts constituting the claim about two months after the most recent assault occurred and, thus, within a reasonable time after the claim arose. The school district alleged that the memories of the children involved were likely to have faded and that it had no documents or records related to the alleged incidents, but this was not established as the school district had not interviewed the children. Mindy O. v Binghamton City School Dist., 83 A.D.3d 1335, 921 N.Y.S.2d 696, 2011 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3098 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2011).

Trial court abused its discretion in permitting a bricklayer to serve a late notice of claim on the city because, inter alia, the bricklayer's alleged failure to realize the severity of his injuries within 90 days after his accident did not constitute a reasonable excuse for the delay in serving a notice of claim, there was no evidence the city was aware of an accident even occurring, and the prejudice to the city was clear and explicit. Matter of Grajko v City of New York, 150 A.D.3d 595, 57 N.Y.S.3d 11, 2017 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4101 (N.Y. Although a property owner did not provide a reasonable excuse for the delay in filing a notice of claim, the town had actual knowledge of the owner's claim and would not be substantially prejudiced by the owner filing a late notice of claim because beginning between May 2015 and June 2015, the owner notified town officials on multiple occasions about flooding to his home due to the drainage system, and a town official inspected the property while the repairs to the home were ongoing. Daprile v Town of Copake, 155 A.D.3d 1405, 65 N.Y.S.3d 351, 2017 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8264 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2017).

Student's parents were not entitled to serve a late notice of claim upon the school district because, inter alia, the medical claim form indicating that the student lacerated his eyebrow and fractured his wrist when he fell during gym class did not provide the school district with actual knowledge of the essential facts underlying the parents' various negligence claims, and the parents failed to demonstrate a reasonable excuse for the failure to serve a timely notice of claim. Matter of D.M. v Center Moriches Union Free Sch. Dist., 151 A.D.3d 970, 54 N.Y.S.3d 161, 2017 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5017 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2017).

Driver was not permitted to serve a late notice of claim upon the city, in connection with a motor vehicle accident involving a city fire truck, because, inter alia, the police accident report and the letter from the driver's counsel failed to alert the city to the driver's claim that she had been seriously injured as a result of the accident, and the driver's delay in serving the notice of claim upon the city was the result of law office failure. Matter of Naar v City of New York, 161 A.D.3d 1081, 77 N.Y.S.3d 706, 2018 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3659 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2018).

Worker was not permitted to serve the city with a late notice of claim because, inter alia, there was no indication that an investigation of the worker's specific claim of negligence was undertaken or contemplated or that a witness's statement was provided to the city; thus, the worker failed to establish that the city acquired actual knowledge of the essential facts constituting the claim within 90 days of the incident and that the city was not prejudiced by the delay. Matter of Nadler v City of New York, 166 A.D.3d 618, 87 N.Y.S.3d 335, 2018 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7381 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2018).

Supreme court did not err in granting residents' application for leave to file a late notice of claim because a village had actual notice of all the essential facts underlying the residents' claims; there was sufficient proof in the record to establish the village's actual knowledge of both the existence of perfluorooctanoic acid (PFOA) in its municipal water supply system and the negative potential health risks associated with PFOA exposure that underlie the residents' claims. Matter of Holbrook v Village of Hoosick Falls, 168 A.D.3d 1263, 90 N.Y.S.3d 717, 2019 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 351 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2019).

Supreme court did not err in granting residents' application for leave to file a late notice of claim because there had been no demonstration of substantial prejudice to the village as a result of the residents' delay in seeking to file late notices of claim; the village had been aware of the perfluorooctanoic acid (PFOA) contamination in its municipal water supply, and it was apprised of the potential negative health risks to its residents from PFOA exposure. Matter of Holbrook v Village of Hoosick Falls, 168 A.D.3d 1263, 90 N.Y.S.3d 717, 2019 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 351 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2019).

Trial court providently exercised its discretion in denying leave to serve a late notice of a personal injury claim because a police accident report did not indicate that there had been any personal injury, nor did the record contain any evidence that the public entity's insurer had timely acquired actual knowledge of the claim, and the delay caused substantial prejudice by preventing the public entity from promptly conducting a thorough investigation and obtaining a medical examination. Matter of Harding v Yonkers Cent. Sch. Dist., 170 A.D.3d 725, 95 N.Y.S.3d 279, 2019 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1581 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2019).

Supreme Court improvidently exercised its discretion in granting an arrestee's petition for leave to serve a late notice of claim alleging state law claims because the arrestee did not establish that the village acquired actual knowledge of the essential facts constituting the state law claims within 90 days after they arose or a reasonable time thereafter; reports and documentation prepared by the police department and the county district attorney's office could not be imputed to the village. Matter of Nunez v Village of Rockville Ctr., 176 A.D.3d 1211, 111 N.Y.S.3d 71, 2019 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7800 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2019).

Trial court acted within its discretion by not allowing the child to serve a late notice of claim on the city because plaintiffs did not, inter alia, demonstrate a reasonable excuse for failing to serve a timely notice of claim, explain the delay between the time they commenced the action and the filing of the motion, or offer any evidence to show the city acquired actual knowledge of the essential facts constituting the claim within the 90-day statutory period or a reasonable time thereafter. E.R. v Windham, 181 A.D.3d 736, 122 N.Y.S.3d 106, 2020 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1684 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2020).

Trial court acted within its discretion by not permitting petitioners to file a late notice of claim upon the city because, inter alia, the police accident report was inadequate to provide the city with actual knowledge of the facts constituting the claim against it, since it failed to alert the city to petitioners' claim that they had been seriously injured as a result of the accident, and 10-month delay in seeking leave to serve a late notice of claim prejudiced the city. Etienne v City of New York, 134 N.Y.S.3d 738, 2020 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7938 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2020).

A motion to permit late filing of notice of claim could properly be granted where the notice of motion was served on defendant city one day short of expiration of a year since injury sustained by claimant as the result of malpractice in a city hospital, and it was shown that he was admitted to the hospital as the result of a severe accidental injury which, with the ensuing accident at the hospital, resulted in permanent physical and mental incapacity of the claimant followed by confinement to home and bed until shortly before the notice of motion was served. Shanahan v New York, 31 Misc. 2d 31, 219 N.Y.S.2d 418, 1961 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2815 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1961).

Granting a student an extension of time to serve a notice of claim against the New York City Department of Education (DOE) was appropriate because the DOE, due to its investigation of a relationship between a high school teacher and the student, had actual knowledge of the essential facts underlying the student's legal claims regarding the teacher and the DOE would not suffer prejudice as the investigation was conducted within a reasonable time after the time to file the notice of claim expired. Matter of T.T. v New York City Dept. of Educ., 48 Misc. 3d 607, 7 N.Y.S.3d 876, 2015 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1496 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 2015).

Plaintiffs' failure to include their claims that defendant city was liable for their injuries based on negligent inspection and storage of diesel tanks before terrorist attacks could not be corrected by filing a late notice of claim under N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(5), because more than one year and 90 days have passed since the time plaintiffs' claims arose. Stein v JP Morgan Chase Bank, 279 F. Supp. 2d 286, 2003 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 21352 (S.D.N.Y. 2003).

76. —Burden of proof

To sustain cause of action against city, plaintiff must both plead and prove timely filing of notice of claim, but in certain instances, defendant may be estopped from asserting defense of nontimely filing. Clienhans v Southern Cab Corp., 54 A.D.2d 672, 387 N.Y.S.2d 847, 1976 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 14204 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1976).

Because a mother did not establish that her delay of approximately one year in seeking leave to serve a late notice of claim under N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e on a hospital was due, inter alia, to her daughter's infancy, the hospital was not afforded notice of the facts constituting the claim or alerted as to any potential negligence on its part; therefore, the trial court erred in granting the mother's motion for leave to file a late notice of claim. Matter of Nieves v New York Health & Hosps. Corp., 34 A.D.3d 336, 825 N.Y.S.2d 40, 2006 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13753 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2006).

Because a child and the child's mother did not establish (1) that a city had knowledge of the essential facts underlying their claim that it was negligent in the operation, maintenance, control, and supervision of a shelter; (2) a connection between the child's infancy and the failure to timely serve a notice of claim; and (3) that the city would not be prejudiced in the preparation of its defense on the merits, the trial court erred in granting their N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(5) motion for leave to serve a late notice of claim. Matter of Julie F. v City of New York, 50 A.D.3d 794, 855 N.Y.S.2d 622, 2008 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3101 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2008), app. denied, 11 N.Y.3d 715, 873 N.Y.S.2d 532, 901 N.E.2d 1286, 2009 N.Y. LEXIS 256 (N.Y. 2009).

Where plaintiff infant allegedly was injured at public school, the trial court erred in denying plaintiffs' motion for leave to serve a late notice of claim on defendants because 1) it erroneously inferred prejudice to defendants solely from plaintiffs' 83-day delay in making the motion; 2) plaintiffs' met their initial burden to show defendants would not be prejudiced since, given the evidence of the number of school personnel attending to the situation, the reporting of the incident to the infant's father, and the seriousness of the alleged injuries, a number of reports likely would have been prepared, thereby giving defendants actual notice of the claim; and 3) defendants did not present evidence showing that they would be prejudiced by the late notice of claim. N.F. v City of New York, 161 A.D.3d 1046, 77 N.Y.S.3d 712, 2018 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3657 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2018).

Pedestrian failed to demonstrate a reasonable excuse for her failure to timely serve a notice of claim upon the city because while the pedestrian allegedly suffered injuries as a result of her fall in a crosswalk, the pedestrian submitted no medical evidence nor medically substantiate that her injuries prevented her from making timely service Matter of Bermudez v City of New York, 167 A.D.3d 733, 89 N.Y.S.3d 289, 2018 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8474 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2018).

Pedestrian did not sustain her initial burden of presenting "some evidence or plausible argument" that the city would not be substantially prejudiced by the late notice of claim because photographs submitted by the pedestrian, showing the crosswalk's defective condition, taken "shortly after" the accident were never authenticated and the pedestrian did not identify the actual date the photographs were taken or the person who took them. Matter of Bermudez v City of New York, 167 A.D.3d 733, 89 N.Y.S.3d 289, 2018 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8474 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2018).

77. Premature filing of claim

Malicious prosecution action could not be maintained against city where plaintiff's notice of claim was filed before criminal charges against him were dismissed, and was thus premature, and no other notice of claim was filed, nor did plaintiff move for leave to file late notice of claim; plaintiff's service of summons and complaint within 90 days after dismissal of criminal action did not excuse service of valid notice of claim. Vitale v Hagan, 71 N.Y.2d 955, 528 N.Y.S.2d 823, 524 N.E.2d 144, 1988 N.Y. LEXIS 640 (N.Y. 1988).

Court should have dismissed malicious prosecution complaint against New York City, as plaintiff's service of notice of claim more than 6 months before she was acquitted on original charge was premature, and her commencement of action within statutory period of time to serve notice of claim did not cure defect of premature notice. Guzman v City of New York, 236 A.D.2d 444, 653 N.Y.S.2d 143, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1194 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't), app. denied, 90 N.Y.2d 810, 665 N.Y.S.2d 401, 688 N.E.2d 257, 1997 N.Y. LEXIS 3251 (N.Y. 1997).

The timeliness of plaintiff's notice of claim and institution of cause of action for malicious prosecution, with respect to requirements of General Municipal Law §§ 50-e and 50-i, was to be measured from date action accrued, even though both filings were made prior to accrual of action, where city was not prejudiced by premature filing of plaintiff's claim. Jastrzebski v New York, 423 F. Supp. 669, 1976 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 12429 (S.D.N.Y. 1976) (applying New York law).

78. Effect of late filing

Where notice of claim was filed 2 days after expiration of 90-day period, notice was not timely and action should be dismissed. Camarella v East Irondequoit Cent. School Board, 41 A.D.2d 29, 341 N.Y.S.2d 729, 1973 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5050 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1973), aff'd, 34 N.Y.2d 139, 356 N.Y.S.2d 553, 313 N.E.2d 29, 1974 N.Y. LEXIS 1603 (N.Y. 1974).

Statute of limitations did not act as complete defense in action against village based on occurrence of electrical shocks on plaintiffs' farm from stray voltage, since such occurrences constituted continuing wrong giving rise to new cause of action each day it existed, and plaintiffs could accordingly recover damages for 90-day period preceding filing of notice of claim. Carhart v Village of Hamilton, 190 A.D.2d 973, 594 N.Y.S.2d 358, 1993 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1724 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1993).

Notice of claim that was not served within 90 days after cause of action accrued, and was served without leave of court, was nullity, and thus no attempt to amend notice would be permitted. Henry v Aguilar, 282 A.D.2d 711, 724 N.Y.S.2d 325, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4218 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't), app. denied, 97 N.Y.2d 602, 735 N.Y.S.2d 491, 760 N.E.2d 1287, 2001 N.Y. LEXIS 3270 (N.Y. 2001).

Compressed air did not qualify as a toxic substance under N.Y. C.P.L.R. 214-c, and, therefore, parties injured by exposure to compressed air could not rely on the date of discovery rule; thus, their application for leave to serve late notices of claim against city was time-barred under N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law §§ 50-e(5), 50-i(1). Huggler v City of New York, 289 A.D.2d 240, 733 N.Y.S.2d 725, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11831 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2001), app. denied, 98 N.Y.2d 614, 751 N.Y.S.2d 169, 780 N.E.2d 980, 2002 N.Y. LEXIS 3139 (N.Y. 2002).

Lessees cause of action against the city and its employees was time-barred because the lessees, who rented a house from the city, noticed a mold and mildew in the house in 1995 and began to experience health problems in 1995, but did not file their notice of claim until 1998 when they learned that their health problems were caused by the mold and mildew. Searle v City of New Rochelle, 293 A.D.2d 735, 742 N.Y.S.2d 314, 2002 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4124 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2002).

Minor's request to file a late notice of claim against county defendants in his action alleging that they were grossly negligent and careless in placing him in a foster care situation wherein he was subjected to sexual abuse was properly denied pursuant to N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(5) where the county would have suffered prejudice by the late filing; the fact of the minor's infancy did not, alone, justify granting the extension of the time to file the claim. Pryor v Serrano, 305 A.D.2d 717, 759 N.Y.S.2d 238, 2003 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4593 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2003).

Where former police officers sought relief from the city's repudiation of a contract regarding payments to the officers for their disabling injuries, the officers could not file workers' compensation clams three years after the repudiation because notices had to be filed with one year and 90 days under Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(5). Ezzo v City of Schenectady, 7 A.D.3d 954, 777 N.Y.S.2d 549, 2004 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7090 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2004).

Appeals court dismissed plaintiffs' personal injury suit against a city since the plaintiffs did not serve a notice of claim against the city within 90 days after the accrual of their claim as required by N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law §§ 50-e(1)(a), 50-i(1)(a) and did not request leave to file late claim within one and one-half years after claim's accrual. Pierre v City of New York, 22 A.D.3d 733, 804

N.Y.S.2d 365, 2005 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11343 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2005).

Mailing of notice one day after expiration of 90-day period is not a compliance with this section. Cavagnol v Orangetown, 17 Misc. 2d 943, 185 N.Y.S.2d 720, 1959 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3982 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1959).

Because a police officer did not serve a notice of a retaliation claim against a city until well beyond the 90-day period in N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(1)(a) and outside the one-year statute of limitations in N.Y. Lab. Law § 740(4)(a) and N.Y. Civ. Serv. Law § 75-b(3)(c), the city's motion to dismiss should have been granted in its entirety. Thomas v City of Oneonta, 90 A.D.3d 1135, 934 N.Y.S.2d 249, 2011 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8536 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2011).

79. —Particular actions

In negligence action against city to recover damages for personal injuries, trial court acted properly in denying plaintiff motion to extend her time to serve complaint and for leave to file notice of claim nunc pro tunc, since court lacked power to grant extension beyond applicable period of limitations, one year and 90 days. Pavlicko v New York, 56 A.D.2d 840, 392 N.Y.S.2d 77, 1977 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11170 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1977).

In a proceeding seeking leave to serve a late notice of claim upon the New York City Health and Hospitals Corporation pursuant to Gen Mun Law § 50-e, to assert a cause of action for conscious pain and suffering, Special Term erred in granting the petition on the asserted grounds that CPLR § 210 tolled the applicable period of limitations for a period of one year and that the one-year 90-day period had been extended for one year, where CPLR § 210 did not toll the statute of limitations in that it is of potential application only in situations in which the claimant dies with less than one year remaining on the relevant period of limitaitons and at the time of decedent's death more than one year remained on the statute of limitations. Gelpi v New York City Health & Hospitals Corp., 90 A.D.2d 503, 454 N.Y.S.2d 891, 1982 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 18534 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1982).

Where plaintiffs failed to file timely notice of claim and failed to make application to serve late notice of claim before applicable statute of limitations expired, court was powerless to grant their cross motion to have their notice of claim deemed timely filed, nunc pro tunc, and thus court properly granted defendants' motion to dismiss complaint. Diaz v City Hosp. Ctr., 241 A.D.2d 507, 661 N.Y.S.2d 528, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7803 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1997), app. denied, 91 N.Y.2d 807, 669 N.Y.S.2d 260, 692 N.E.2d 129, 1998 N.Y. LEXIS 195 (N.Y. 1998).

Motion to dismiss complaint against New York City Health and Hospitals Corporation (NYCHHC) for failure to serve notice of claim was properly denied where there was evidence that NYCHHC had notice of claim and retained counsel to defend it 98 days after claim accrued, and NYCHHC waited until after 10-year toll in statute of limitations for infants had expired, after judgment in its favor had been vacated based on plaintiffs' meritorious cause of action, after plaintiffs complied with its request to depose nonparty witness, after discovery had been completed to its satisfaction, and after case was on trial calendar before moving to dismiss. Brown v City of New York, 264 A.D.2d 493, 694 N.Y.S.2d 461, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8918 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1999).

Property owners' continuing trespass and nuisance claims against a town for allegedly damaging their property by piling plowed snow against the wall of their building were untimely; all the evidence indicated that the owners neglected the building for years, and only noticed the water damage when they tried to sell it. Alamio v Town of Rockland, 302 A.D.2d 842, 755 N.Y.S.2d 754, 2003 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1738 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2003).

In deciding whether to permit service of a late notice of claim, the court generally will consider three factors: (1) whether the movant has a reasonable excuse for the failure to serve a timely notice of claim, (2) whether the municipality or agency acquired actual notice of the essential facts of the claim within 90 days after the claim arose or a reasonable time thereafter, and (3) whether the delay would substantially prejudice the municipality in its defense. In a personal injury case, a mother of injured infant did not show that a school district had notice of the facts forming the basis of her negligent supervision claim within either 90 days or a reasonable time thereafter where the only proof was an incident report on the day following the accident stating only that, in attempting to lift a chair into an overhead position while carrying the chair from one classroom to another, the infant lost control and the chair struck him in the forehead. Conroy v Smithtown Cent. Sch. Dist., 3 A.D.3d 492, 770 N.Y.S.2d 428, 2004 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 249 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2004).

Injured party was properly denied leave under N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(5) to serve a late notice of claim against the City of New York; the reports cited by the injured party as having provided the City with actual notice of the claim within a reasonable time of the accident did not suggest any causal connection between the accident and any negligence by the City. Matter of Henriques v City of New York, 22 A.D.3d 847, 803 N.Y.S.2d 194, 2005 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11583 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2005).

Where a city and that city's separate municipal hospital corporation had already stipulated that an injured person would be deemed, by timely service of claim on the city, to have timely served notice nunc pro tunc on the hospital corporation as well, the hospital corporation had waived the right to argue in a motion to dismiss that it had not been timely served with a notice of claim. Wright v N.Y.C. Health & Hosps. Corp., 25 A.D.3d 737, 811 N.Y.S.2d 406, 2006 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 855 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2006).

Because the tolling during a minor ward's infancy was not available to a guardian, the trial court lacked power to grant leave to the guardian to file a late notice of claim to recover medical expenses incurred on behalf of the ward, as the petition was filed beyond the one year and 90-day statutes of limitations applicable to the claim in N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e and N.Y. Educ. Law § 3813. Matter of Ricci v Harrison Cent. School Dist., 27 A.D.3d 653, 812 N.Y.S.2d 875, 2006 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3508 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2006).

Because a mother and her son failed to move for leave to serve a late notice of claim pursuant to N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(5) within one year and 90 days of the date that their claims accrued, the trial court erred in denying a motion to dismiss filed by a city, its police department, and its corrections department. Laroc v City of New York, 46 A.D.3d 760, 847 N.Y.S.2d 677, 2007 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12840 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2007).

Because a county was not named as a party or provided notice of the parents' N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e motion to serve a late notice of claim on behalf of their child upon it, the trial court should not have considered the motion. Velasquez v Duprey-Murphy, 47 A.D.3d 625, 848 N.Y.S.2d 539, 2008 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 119 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2008).

Because an administrator's personal injury claim was brought on behalf of a decedent and was personal to the decedent, not the decedent's surviving infant distributees, the trial court's reliance on the infancy toll of N.Y. C.P.L.R. 208 was improper; therefore, leave to file a late notice of claim under N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(5) was required with respect to the claim for conscious pain and suffering arising out of the decedent's personal injuries. Heslin v County of Greene, 53 A.D.3d 996, 862 N.Y.S.2d 210, 2008 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6328 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2008), aff'd, 14 N.Y.3d 67, 896 N.Y.S.2d 723, 923 N.E.2d 1111, 2010 N.Y. LEXIS 14 (N.Y. 2010).

In an action brought in tort in which one of the defendants has properly brought a third-party action in indemnity against the City of New York, a motion by the plaintiff in the main tort action to amend the complaint to assert a new cause of action in tort against the city is denied; plaintiff has not served a notice of claim upon the city within 90 days of the date on which the underlying occurrence took place (General Municipal Law, § 50-e) and has not brought its action within one year and 90 days after said date (General Municipal Law, § 50-i) and, therefore, sections 50-e and 50-i are complete bars to the tort action against the city. While plaintiff may not have known that the city was a third-party defendant until it was too late to bring a direct tort action against the city, that factor does not fit any of the grounds under section 50-e or the recent amendments thereto, and, even if it did, section 50-e denies any such relief if the time for commencement of the action under section 50-i has long since expired. It is of no consequence that the city has not as yet answered the third-party complaint. 2999 Realty Corp. v Hallen Constr. Corp., 95 Misc. 2d 227, 406 N.Y.S.2d 951, 1978 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2406 (N.Y. Civ. Ct. 1978).

Arrestee's state law claims for false arrest, false imprisonment, illegal search, gross incompetence, deliberate indifference, negligence in training, supervising and discipline, negligent entrustment, libel and defamation of character, and intentional infliction of emotional distress accrued at the latest on January 18, 2006, which was two days after the arrest and when he was released from jail, and because the arrestee did not provide notice to defendants of the claims until more than one year later, on August 24, 2007, the claims were barred under the time limitations for notice in N.Y. County Law § 52 and N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law §§ 50-e, 50-i Martin v County of Nassau, 692 F. Supp. 2d 282, 2010 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 22989 (E.D.N.Y. 2010).

Arrestee's state law claims for malicious prosecution, which accrued on June 21, 2007, when the charges against him were dropped, were barred under the time limitations for notice in N.Y. County Law § 52 and N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law §§ 50-e, 50-i where the arrestee did not file suit until a year and over four months later, on November 10, 2008. Martin v County of Nassau, 692 F. Supp. 2d 282, 2010 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 22989 (E.D.N.Y. 2010).

Motion to dismiss state law claim for abuse of process against a town and certain of its officials was granted because, without evidence of proper timely service, the notice of claim was untimely. Raus v Town of Southampton, 2015 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 64513 (E.D.N.Y. May 18, 2015), aff'd, 661 Fed. Appx. 81, 2016 U.S. App. LEXIS 17208 (2d Cir. N.Y. 2016).

80. — —Existence of prejudice

Since § 257 of the Long Beach City Charter requires service of notice of claim pursuant to this section as a condition precedent to commencement of action against an officer or employee thereof, as well as against the city, the city marshal of Long Beach was entitled to dismissal of a complaint against him for alleged tortious acts where no notice of claim was served within the 90-day period. Siegel v Epstein, 21 A.D.2d 821, 251 N.Y.S.2d 538, 1964 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3488 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1964), aff'd, 17 N.Y.2d 639, 269 N.Y.S.2d 138, 216 N.E.2d 341, 1966 N.Y. LEXIS 1512 (N.Y. 1966).

A notice of claim for damages for an assault upon plaintiff's person submitted 91 days after the alleged assault took place was not timely filed, and judgment was correctly entered for the defendant. Komar v New York, 24 A.D.2d 941, 265 N.Y.S.2d 331, 1965 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2796 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1965), app. denied, 17 N.Y.2d 424, 1966 N.Y. LEXIS 1892 (N.Y. 1966).

The lower court should have granted leave to serve a late notice of claim against a city social services department to a person whose throat was slashed and home robbed by a person hired by the department as a watchman, where the watchman had a prior criminal record, where the victim did not learn that fact until the watchman had been arrested, pled guilty, and been sentenced, where the victim then consulted an attorney who moved within a reasonable time for permission to serve a late notice of claim, where the department had actual knowledge of the essential facts of the victim's claim at the time of the application, and where the department failed to demonstrate any substantial prejudice. Monge v New York Dep't of Social Services, 95 A.D.2d 848, 464 N.Y.S.2d 207, 1983 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 18792 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1983).

Special Term properly amended its order to extend time for service of notice of claim on municipal hospital after claimant failed to serve hospital within 15 days from entry of order permitting her to file late notice of claim on previously expired period for service, despite 6-month delay in service of late notice and total elapsed period of more than one year and 90 days after claim arose, where mistake was inadvertent, claimant had otherwise satisfied notice requirements of CLS Gen Mun § 50-e, and hospital was not prejudiced by amendment. Dublanica v Rome Hospital/Murphy Memorial Hospital, 124 A.D.2d 1042, 508 N.Y.S.2d 753, 1986 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 62398 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1986).

Upon renewal, a driver was entitled to file a motion for leave to serve a late notice of claim in his personal injury action, where he proffered evidence that the District Attorney's Office prepared a vehicular incident evaluation report 34 days after the accident, and a driver's accident report 12 days after the accident; thus, the District Attorney's Officer would not suffer prejudice by the late service, since it obtained actual notice of the essential facts of the claim within 90 days after the claim arose. Hasmath v Cameb, 5 A.D.3d 438, 773 N.Y.S.2d 121, 2004 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2446 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2004).

Where the injured party failed to file a timely notice of claim, the trial court did not err under N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(5) in granting granting the injured party's motion for leave to reargue pursuant to N.Y. C.P.L.R. 2221(b) and, upon reargument, granting the injured party's motion for leave to serve a late notice of claim; there was a minimal delay in serving the notice of claim, and the delay did not substantially prejudice the New York City Transit Authority. Morales v N.Y. City Transit Auth., 15 A.D.3d 580, 790 N.Y.S.2d 212, 2005 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1802 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2005).

Although a library patron should have filed a notice of claim against the public library within 90 days of a fall, the trial court should have allowed late filing in a situation where the library had actual notice of the incident and knew the elderly patron had been badly hurt and where the patron's failure to file notice of claim was akin to an innocent mistake in service in that there was no statutory law holding that a public library was entitled to such notice; the fact that the library was prejudiced by its insurer's denial of coverage based on failure to provide timely notice to it was of no consequence since the library, based on its actual knowledge, should have known better. Bovich v East Meadow Pub. Lib., 16 A.D.3d 11, 789 N.Y.S.2d 511, 2005 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1354 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2005).

In a proceeding under N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(5) for leave to serve a late notice of claim, the trial court erred in granting leave; timely knowledge of the facts constituting the claim was not received, and the injured party did not demonstrate a reasonable excuse for the delay and failed to demonstrate lack of substantial prejudice. Alexander v Bd. of Educ., 18 A.D.3d 654, 794 N.Y.S.2d 687, 2005 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5297 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2005).

It was error for the lower court to grant the infant plaintiff's motion for leave to file a late claim almost 10 years after the alleged injury occurred because the infant's mother did not offer any reasonable excuse for the delay, the hospital was not otherwise on notice of the claim, and the hospital would be prejudiced by the delay. Seymour v New York City Health & Hosps. Corp. (Kings County Hosp. Ctr.), 21 A.D.3d 1025, 801 N.Y.S.2d 370, 2005 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9206 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2005), app. denied, 6 N.Y.3d 711, 814 N.Y.S.2d 600, 847 N.E.2d 1173, 2006 N.Y. LEXIS 657 (N.Y. 2006).

Injured party was properly denied leave under N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(5) to serve a late notice of claim against the City of New York; the injured party's delay of nearly a year after the incident in seeking to serve a notice of claim prejudiced the City's ability to maintain a defense. Matter of Henriques v City of New York, 22 A.D.3d 847, 803 N.Y.S.2d 194, 2005 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11583 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2005).

Trial court did not err in granting petitioners' application under N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e for leave to serve late notice of claim; petitioners established that the school district and its insurer had actual knowledge of the essential facts underlying the claim within the 90-day statutory period and that the district and insurer were not prejudiced by the delay. Matter of "Jane Doe" v Hicksville Union Free School Dist., 24 A.D.3d 666, 808 N.Y.S.2d 387, 2005 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 14349 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2005).

Trial court improperly denied property owners' petition for leave to serve a late notice of their nuisance claim on a town pursuant to N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(5). While the owners did not have a reasonable excuse for the 11-month delay in filing the notice, the town was not prejudiced by the delay because it obtained actual knowledge of the facts constituting the claim within the statutory period or a reasonable time thereafter.

Matter of March v Town of Wappinger, 29 A.D.3d 998, 816 N.Y.S.2d 534, 2006 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7145 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2006).

Court erred in allowing a claimant to file a notice of claim against a school district five years after the incident. Since the school district did not have actual knowledge of the essential facts constituting the negligence claim until approximately five years after the date of the incident, it would be unduly prejudiced in its ability to prepare a defense Matter of Scott v Huntington Union Free School Dist., 29 A.D.3d 1010, 816 N.Y.S.2d 165, 2006 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7173 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2006).

Foster child was improvidently granted leave to file a late notice of claim as: (1) the child's ignorance of the law was insufficient, (2) a housing authority's actual knowledge of the essential facts under N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(5) was vague, (3) the authority's lack of further information from the department of social services (DSS) left the authority with no knowledge of its possible culpability, (4) the authority was notified that the foster child had been removed from his foster home, which suggested that he had been abused, as DSS found, and (5) the lengthy passage of time prejudiced the authority's ability to investigate and to prepare a defense. Webb v New York City Hous. Auth., 35 A.D.3d 313, 828 N.Y.S.2d 22, 2006 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 15847 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2006).

Because a petitioner did not establish that a village had actual knowledge of the essential facts constituting a claim within 90 days after an accident, did not have a reasonable excuse for the delay, and did not demonstrate that the village was not prejudiced in its defense, pursuant to N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(2), (5), (7), and N.Y. C.P.L.R. 2221(e)(2), (3), the trial court properly denied the petitions for leave to serve a late claim on the village. Matter of Narcisse v Incorporated Vil. of Cent. Islip, 36 A.D.3d 920, 829 N.Y.S.2d 578, 2007 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 981 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2007).

81. — —Civil rights and discrimination

In an employment discrimination action against a county, the Appellate Division properly dismissed the complaint which alleged that employment with defendant county was terminated on the basis of plaintiff's race and national origin in violation of Exec Law § 296 where plaintiff's failure to timely file a notice of claim under Gen. Mun L § 50-e was fatal in that the action had not been brought to indicate a public interest and leave to serve a late notice of claim had not been granted. Mills v County of Monroe, 59 N.Y.2d 307, 464 N.Y.S.2d 709, 451 N.E.2d 456, 1983 N.Y. LEXIS 3161 (N.Y.), cert. denied, 464 U.S. 1018, 104 S. Ct. 551, 78 L. Ed. 2d 725, 1983 U.S. LEXIS 2750 (U.S. 1983).

Lower court did not have authority to grant the employee leave to file a late claim for discrimination, pursuant to N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(5) because N.Y. Rac. Pari-Mut. Wag. & Breed. Law § 618 did not contain any provision permitting the service of a late notice of claim. A cause of action under the New York Human Rights Law was not categorized as a tort for notice of claim purposes. Marino v N.Y. City Off-Track Betting Corp., 12 A.D.3d 606, 785 N.Y.S.2d 481, 2004 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 14216 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2004).

Plaintiff's state tort claims alleged in federal civil rights action against city and police officers are dismissed, where plaintiff alleged that he filed notice of claim on September 22, 1991 and actions accrued on February 9, 1989, March 21, 1989, and May 10, 1990, because notice of claim was filed more than 90 days after claims arose and was therefore untimely under CLS Gen Mun Law § 50-e. Steiner v City of New York, 920 F. Supp. 333, 1996 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 3128 (E.D.N.Y. 1996).

In a civil rights suit by African-American and Hispanic motorists against a county, its police commissioner, and several unidentified officers and supervisors (defendants), state law allegations of negligent hiring, training, and supervision based on a policy of racial profiling for traffic stops was dismissed because the motorists failed to file a claim with defendants 90 days after their causes of action accrued, as required by N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(1)(a). Feliciano v County of Suffolk, 419 F. Supp. 2d 302, 2005 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 42221 (E.D.N.Y. 2005).

82. — —False arrest

Where notice of claim in connection with action, inter alia, to recover damages for false arrest was served on county more than 90 days after date infant plaintiff was released from actual custody, first cause of action, which sought damages from county for alleged false arrest, and third cause of action, insofar as it sought to recoup legal fees and medical expenses paid by plaintiff guardian in connection with arrest, were properly dismissed. Tucci v County of Nassau, 50 A.D.2d 945, 377 N.Y.S.2d 588, 1975 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11888 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1975).

After the statute of limitations barred plaintiff's action for false arrest, she could not by virtue of timely notice of suit served upon the county join as party to defendants the sheriff and deputy sheriff against whom her claims were time barred. Brenon v County of Oneida, 52 Misc. 2d 795, 276 N.Y.S.2d 393, 1966 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1274 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1966).

83. — —Malpractice

Third-party action against county hospital, commenced by hospital which was defendant in malpractice suit, was not barred, with respect to claim for total indemnity or for apportioned contribution, by fact that county hospital was not served with notice of claim within 90 days after original plaintiff's alleged cause of action against it arose. Zillman v Meadowbrook Hospital Co., 45 A.D.2d 267, 358 N.Y.S.2d 466, 1974 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4428 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1974).

Failure to timely serve notice of claim on the New York City Health and Hospitals Corporation was a defect fatal to claim against the Corporation for alleged negligence and medical malpractice. Bender v New York City Health & Hospitals Corp., 46 A.D.2d 898, 361 N.Y.S.2d 939, 1974 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3337 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1974), rev'd, 38 N.Y.2d 662, 382 N.Y.S.2d 18, 345 N.E.2d 561, 1976 N.Y. LEXIS 2305 (N.Y. 1976).

In a proceeding against a county hospital for medical malpractice, the trial court erred in treating a second application for leave to serve a late claim against the hospital as a reinstatement of an earlier, withdrawn application, and in granting the application, where there was no provision in the CPLR for reinstatement of a withdrawn motion, where withdrawal of a motion leaves the record as if the motion had not been made, and where the court was without jurisdiction to grant the application, in that the second application was brought approximately 22 months after the medical malpractice occurred and after the expiration of the applicable one-year and 90-day statutes of limitations in Gen Mun Law §§ 50-e and 50-i. Stoute v New York, 91 A.D.2d 1043, 458 N.Y.S.2d 640, 1983 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 16366 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't), app. dismissed, 59 N.Y.2d 762, 1983 N.Y. LEXIS 5026 (N.Y. 1983).

Lack of index number and file stamp mark on summons filed against New York City Health and Hospitals Corporation (HHC) in medical malpractice action was correctable, not jurisdictional, defect where plaintiff successfully moved by order to show cause for leave to file late notice of claim and had purchased index number in connection with that special proceeding, and that show-cause order was served on HHC, with copy of summons and complaint attached, on last day of one year and 90 day limitations period for filing of late notice of claim. Rybka v New York City Health & Hosps. Corp., 263 A.D.2d 403, 693 N.Y.S.2d 566, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8243 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1999).

Fact that county was not served with notice of claim within 90 days after accrual of plaintiff's original cause of action as required by General Municipal Law § 50-e would not bar third party action against county hospital commenced by another hospital which was defendant in malpractice suit. Zillman v Meadowbrook Hospital Co., 73 Misc. 2d 726, 342 N.Y.S.2d 302, 1973 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2107 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1973), rev'd, 45 A.D.2d 267, 358 N.Y.S.2d 466, 1974 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4428 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1974).

V. Accrual of Particular Claims

84. In general

The running of the 90 day period is measured not from the time of the negligent act but from the date the negligent act produced injury to the plaintiff. Sexstone v Rochester, 32 A.D.2d 737, 301 N.Y.S.2d 887, 1969 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4001 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1969).

Cause of action in tort does not accrue, or arise, for purposes of both statute of limitations and section pertaining to notice of claim against public corporation until all requisite elements of tort have been satisfied. Beary v Rye, 59 A.D.2d 905, 399 N.Y.S.2d 140, 1977 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 14108 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1977), rev'd, 44 N.Y.2d 398, 406 N.Y.S.2d 9, 377 N.E.2d 453, 1978 N.Y. LEXIS 1960 (N.Y. 1978).

For purposes of CLS Gen Mun § 50-i, limitations period begins to run upon happening of event, irrespective of when action may technically accrue; thus, action commenced on January 21, 1986, alleging that child abuse report filed by county department of social services in July, 1982 was cause of plaintiff's inability to procure employment and concomitant physical and emotional distress, was properly dismissed because not brought within one year and 90 days of filing of report even though plaintiff claimed that he did not learn of report's existence until March, 1985; furthermore, even if action accrued upon plaintiff's discovery of report in March, 1985, his notice of claim filed September 28, 1985 was untimely because not filed within 90 days of discovery of report. Kitonyi v Albany County, 128 A.D.2d 1018, 513 N.Y.S.2d 555, 1987 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 44662 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1987).

Commencement of the 90-day period within which notice of claim must be served under this section "after the claim arises" should be considered as governed by the same principles as those governing accrual of a cause of action under § 50 of the Civil Practice Act. Borgia v New York, 216 N.Y.S.2d 897 (N.Y. Sup. Ct.), app. dismissed, 15 A.D.2d 557, 223 N.Y.S.2d 17, 1961 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6859 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1961).

85. Class actions

Respondents' assertions that they did not fully appreciate the distinctions between a workers' compensation claim and a personal injury action, and that they mistakenly believed that their workers' compensation attorney would also prosecute a personal injury action against the city were insufficient to excuse the delay in serving notice of the claim; respondents' assertion that an incident report was filed with the city was completely unsubstantiated by the record and was refuted by the evidence submitted by the city. Similarly, testimony that an office worker employed by a city agency was present at the time of the incident was insufficient to provide the city with actual knowledge of the claim. Matter of Bruzzese v City of New York, 34 A.D.3d 577, 824 N.Y.S.2d 653, 2006 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13481 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2006).

The statutory notice of claim requirements for personal injury claims against a public corporation (General Municipal Law, § 50-e) preclude a class action (CPLR 901) for environmental disaster claims arising from exposure over a period of time to deadly toxic chemical wastes dumped in the "Love Canal" area in the City of Niagara Falls since the facts underlying the claims contain variables which prevent a blanket consideration of all the claims in that the injuries are not identical and were not incurred at the same time and, since there is no definite starting point from which to measure the "accrual of a cause of action", the question of the timeliness of the notice of claims must be dealt with on an individual case-by-case basis; individual hearings on the circumstances concerning each claim are required in order to properly determine the timeliness of each claim or the propriety of permitting a late filing (General Municipal Law, § 50-e, subd 1, par [a]) and, in order to avoid duplicitous hearings, such determinations may be made in the trial parts of the court after the actions have been commenced. Mervak v Niagara Falls, 101 Misc. 2d 68, 420 N.Y.S.2d 687, 1979 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2629 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1979).

86. Continuing trespass

Since wrong or wrongs alleged in complaint seeking recovery for city's allegedly improper refusal to issue demolition permits were not continuing torts and since cause or causes of action, if any, accrued at time of sustaining of injury which, however, viewed, occurred more than 90 days prior to filing of notice of claim, wrecking company's complaint was properly dismissed for failure to timely file notice of claim against city. Bloomfield Bldg. Wreckers, Inc. v Troy, 41 N.Y.2d 1102, 396 N.Y.S.2d 359, 364 N.E.2d 1130, 1977 N.Y. LEXIS 2134 (N.Y. 1977).

Order denying leave to serve upon town a late notice of claim for continuing trespass, i.e., unlawful encroachment of certain subterranean pipes on petitioner's property, was reversed, and leave was granted to serve notice of claim nunc pro tunc. Wehlau v Cortlandt, 48 A.D.2d 901, 369 N.Y.S.2d 497, 1975 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10166 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1975).

Inasmuch as boundary dispute involved an alleged continuing wrong on part of defendant village, plaintiff could maintain a new action to determine claims after properly filing notice of claim and any damages accruing during the 90-day period prior to such filing would be recoverable. Salesian Soc. v Ellenville, 50 A.D.2d 648, 374 N.Y.S.2d 805, 1975 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12473 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1975), rev'd, 41 N.Y.2d 521, 393 N.Y.S.2d 972, 362 N.E.2d 604, 1977 N.Y. LEXIS 1915 (N.Y. 1977).

Because the cutting of a store's storm drainpipe by a transit authority and its subcontractors interfered with a store's easement and right of access to a sewer, it constituted a continuing trespass and resulted in successive causes of action that were timely under N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law §§ 50-e, 50-i, N.Y. Pub. Auth. Law § 1212, and N.Y. C.P.L.R. 214. Bloomingdales, Inc. v New York City Tr. Auth., 52 A.D.3d 120, 859 N.Y.S.2d 22, 2008 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4153 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2008), aff'd, 13 N.Y.3d 61, 886 N.Y.S.2d 663, 915 N.E.2d 608, 2009 N.Y. LEXIS 1846 (N.Y. 2009).

Although an action for damages to riparian rights was a continuing trespass, each new day establishing the cause anew, the provisions of General Municipal Law §§ 50-e and 50-i were more than mere statutes of limitation or repose but established conditions precedent to the initiation of a lawsuit against a municipality. Gregory v New York, 346 F. Supp. 140, 1972 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 12974 (S.D.N.Y. 1972), disapproved, Fountain v Metropolitan Atlanta Rapid Transit Authority, 678 F.2d 1038, 1982 U.S. App. LEXIS 18222 (11th Cir. 1982).

87. Derivative actions

Mother's derivative action for nursing, hospital, and medical expenses incurred by her son accrued upon the date of her husband's death, the date upon which she assumed the entire burden of support of the child, and timeliness of the filing of the action was measured from that date. Clough v Board of Education, 56 A.D.2d 233, 392 N.Y.S.2d 170, 1977 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10052 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1977).

Since a defendant, a municipal medical center, had a plaintiff infant's records it was not prejudiced by her late notice of claim under N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(5) and her claim was tolled under the infancy toll of N.Y. C.P.L.R. 208, so her medical malpractice claim was allowed; but, her mother's derivative claim was not allowed since § 208 did not toll derivative actions. Nardi v County of Westchester, 18 A.D.3d 521, 795 N.Y.S.2d 302, 2005 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5118 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2005).

88. False arrest and imprisonment; accrual after arraignment

In an action for false arrest and imprisonment, the 90-day period of notice required by subd 1 of above statute held to begin to run when the plaintiff on arraignment upon a formal complaint was held for trial on his own recognizance. Molyneaux v County of Nassau, 22 A.D.2d 954, 256 N.Y.S.2d 123, 1964 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2392 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1964), aff'd, 16 N.Y.2d 663, 261 N.Y.S.2d 294, 209 N.E.2d 286, 1965 N.Y. LEXIS 1272 (N.Y. 1965).

89. —After dismissal of charges

Notice of claim for false imprisonment and arrest filed over 6 months from release on bail did not comply with General Municipal L § 50-e, even though filed within 90 days following dismissal of criminal charges. Jones v Johnstown, 41 A.D.2d 866, 342 N.Y.S.2d 927, 1973 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4687 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1973).

Arrestee was obligated to file a timely notice of claim by May 16, 2018, 90 days after the dismissal of all charges on February 15, 2018; because the arrestee did not cross-move to amend until June 26, 2019, amendment had be rejected as untimely. Wiggins v City of New York, 69 Misc. 3d 620, 133 N.Y.S.3d 178, 2020 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 4076 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 2020).

90. —After release

Under General Municipal Law § 50-e, period for filing false imprisonment claim began running on date of plaintiff's actual release from confinement on his own recognizance. Allee v New York, 42 A.D.2d 899, 347 N.Y.S.2d 708, 1973 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3502 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1973).

A cause of action for false imprisonment accrues when the confinement terminates; accordingly, a claim of false imprisonment against a municipality is barred for failure to file a timely notice of claim where, assuming the defense was interposed properly, the claim is filed more than 90 days after plaintiff's confinement ended. Boose v Rochester, 71 A.D.2d 59, 421 N.Y.S.2d 740, 1979 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13087 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1979).

In a proceeding against a municipality based on an underlying tort of false imprisonment, an application for leave to serve a late notice of claim was premature where petitioner was arrested on January 16, 1982 and incarcerated from that date until February 2, 1983, at which time he was acquitted of the charges against him, and where the application to serve a late notice of claim was initiated on or about February 10, 1983; the tort of false imprisonment accrues when the confinement terminates. Collins v McMillan, 102 A.D.2d 860, 477 N.Y.S.2d 49, 1984 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 19063 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1984).

Trial court properly granted summary judgment dismissing an arrestee's false arrest and false imprisonment claims against a village because those claims accrued when he was released from incarceration, and his notice of claim filed with the village five months later did not comply with the requirement of N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(1)(a) to provide such notice within 90 days of the accrual of a claim, so the arrestee's claims were time-barred, and his malicious prosecution claim, which accrued when charges against him were dismissed, did not extend the time for filing a claim because the malicious prosecution claim could only be asserted against the county, which prosecuted the arrestee through its district attorney. Roche v Vill. of Tarrytown, 309 A.D.2d 842, 766 N.Y.S.2d 46, 2003 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10890 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2003).

Suspect's cause of action alleging false imprisonment was time-barred since he did not serve his notice of claim within 90 days of the accrual of the cause of action, N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e, i.e., the date on which his confinement terminated. Santiago v City of Rochester, 19 A.D.3d 1061, 796 N.Y.S.2d 811, 2005 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6309 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't), app. denied, 5 N.Y.3d 710, 804 N.Y.S.2d 35, 837 N.E.2d 734, 2005 N.Y. LEXIS 2607 (N.Y. 2005).

The motion of the defendant village to have stricken from the plaintiff's complaint allegations which set forth a cause of action for false imprisonment and false arrest on the ground that notice of claim, which was filed on August 5, was not filed within 60 days after the plaintiff's arrest on May 9 was denied notwithstanding the plaintiff was released on his own recognizance, since the false imprisonment and arrest continued until June 9, 1944, the date of his acquittal and discharge. Goolden v Massena, 99 N.Y.S.2d 927, 197 Misc. 647, 1950 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2054 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1950).

Action for false arrest and imprisonment accrued when plaintiffs were sentenced and discharged rather than at time they were arrested, since plaintiffs were theoretically in restraint after their release. La Curto v Brooklyn Nat'l League Baseball Club, Inc., 6 Misc. 2d 637, 160 N.Y.S.2d 499, 1957 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3447 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1957).

With respect to a cause of action against a county for false arrest and imprisonment, plaintiff's cause of action did not arise until date of his discharge from imprisonment, and notice of claim filed within 90 days thereafter met the requirements of this section. Tranberg v County of Nassau, 28 Misc. 2d 275, 209 N.Y.S.2d 995, 1961 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3598 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1961).

An alleged cause of action in favor of an ex-convict against New York City, based upon 25 years of imprisonment ultimately terminated by writ of error coram nobis and alleged to constitute false imprisonment because conviction was induced by suppression of evidence, did not accrue until his release from prison, and hence his notice of claim was timely served within the prescribed 90-day period thereafter and his action was timely commenced within one year. Zimmerman v New York, 40 Misc. 2d 179, 242 N.Y.S.2d 791, 1963 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1715 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1963), dismissed, 52 Misc. 2d 797, 276 N.Y.S.2d 711, 1966 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1247 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1966).

A cause of action for false imprisonment does not accrue until party has been discharged from restraint, including bail. Caminito v New York, 45 Misc. 2d 241, 256 N.Y.S.2d 670, 1965 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2278 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1965), aff'd in part, modified, 25 A.D.2d 848, 269 N.Y.S.2d 826, 1966 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4364 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1966).

The 90-day period for serving a notice of claim on a county in an action for false arrest (General Municipal Law, § 50-e) commences on the day that the claimant is released from actual custody. Brenner v County of Rockland, 92 Misc. 2d 833, 401 N.Y.S.2d 434, 1978 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1973 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1978), aff'd, 67 A.D.2d 901, 413 N.Y.S.2d 185, 1979 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10667 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1979).

91. —Series of false imprisonments

Where the claim for which notice is given under the above statute is one for a series of false imprisonments, the 90-day notice required by subd 1 thereof runs from the termination of each imprisonment complained of and not from the date of the plaintiff's acquittal. Schildhaus v New York, 23 A.D.2d 409, 261 N.Y.S.2d 909, 1965 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3626 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1965), aff'd, 17 N.Y.2d 853, 271 N.Y.S.2d 286, 218 N.E.2d 325, 1966 N.Y. LEXIS 1344 (N.Y. 1966).

92. Malicious prosecution

For purposes of notice of claim under CLS Gen Mun § 50-e, cause of action for malicious prosecution arises on date that criminal charges against plaintiff are dismissed on merits or verdict is entered in plaintiff's favor, either occurrence being essential element to such claim. Vitale v Hagan, 71 N.Y.2d 955, 528 N.Y.S.2d 823, 524 N.E.2d 144, 1988 N.Y. LEXIS 640 (N.Y. 1988).

Failure to state malicious prosecution cause of action against city in notice of claim did not require dismissal of such cause of action where it had not accrued when notice of claim was served and where the action was commenced within 90 days after the cause of action did accrue. Kieninger v New York, 53 A.D.2d 602, 384 N.Y.S.2d 11, 1976 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13269 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1976).

Last element to be satisfied with respect to cause of action for malicious prosecution against city was termination of criminal proceedings in favor of petitioner, which occurred when criminal complaint against petitioner was dismissed. Beary v Rye, 59 A.D.2d 905, 399 N.Y.S.2d 140, 1977 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 14108 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1977), rev'd, 44 N.Y.2d 398, 406 N.Y.S.2d 9, 377 N.E.2d 453, 1978 N.Y. LEXIS 1960 (N.Y. 1978).

A cause of action for malicious prosecution accrues when the proceeding terminates favorably to the plaintiff; accordingly, a claim of malicious prosecution against a municipality is timely where the notice of claim is filed within 90 days of the dismissal of the indictment. Boose v Rochester, 71 A.D.2d 59, 421 N.Y.S.2d 740, 1979 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13087 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1979).

A cause of action for malicious prosecution is not barred by section 50-e of the General Municipal Law where the notice of intention to file a claim was served seven days prior to the entry of a judgment which dismissed the determination of a town board finding plaintiff guilty of certain charges of police misconduct, despite the fact that the claim was not filed within 90 days after the claim arose, inasmuch as the decision of the court awarding judgment to plaintiff was made some time before the making and entering of the judgment and, thus, the first disposition in favor of claimant arose when the court rendered its decision and not on the date when the formal judgment was rendered; in any event, such service shall be deemed valid if such notice is actually received by the public corporation before the 90-day period has expired. Groat v Town Bd., 73 A.D.2d 426, 426 N.Y.S.2d 339, 1980 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10068 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), app. dismissed, 50 N.Y.2d 928, 1980 N.Y. LEXIS 3257 (N.Y. 1980).

Plaintiff complied with time limitations imposed by statute in bringing malicious prosecution action inasmuch as plaintiff was arrested by members of police department of village on August 10, 1981, on February 17, 1982 matter was presented to grand jury which refused to return indictment against him, and plaintiff served his notice of claim upon village on or about April 2, 1982, and commenced action on March 30, 1983; grand jury's decision not to return true bill constituted final disposition in criminal court and it was as of this date that criminal proceedings terminated in plaintiff's favor and that his claim for malicious prosecution accrued. Creary v Mamaroneck, 110 A.D.2d 870, 488 N.Y.S.2d 427, 1985 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 48783 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1985).

Supreme court's properly granted an arrestee's petition for leave to serve a late notice of claim to assert a claim of malicious prosecution against a village because the claim did not accrue until the charges against the arrestee were dismissed, and thus, the notice of claim was timely. Matter of Nunez v Village of Rockville Ctr., 176 A.D.3d 1211, 111 N.Y.S.3d 71, 2019 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7800 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2019).

93. Medical malpractice

In a wrongful death action predicated upon medical malpractice, the trial court properly concluded that the defendant city hospital was not prejudiced by the plaintiff's delay in filing a notice of the claim, where the city, after having received a summons and complaint that was served either on the day or the day after the city held a hearing in the matter, had explored every possible claim that could be instituted against it. Waiters v New York City Health & Hospitals Corp., 83 A.D.2d 612, 441 N.Y.S.2d 294, 1981 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 14900 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1981).

In a medical malpractice action, plaintiffs' motion to strike from the answer of defendant City of New York the affirmative defense of failure to timely serve a notice of claim and to timely commence the action was improperly granted, where the service of a notice of claim on the city was untimely, inasmuch as the accrual of the female plaintiff's malpractice claim occurred when the tubal ligation operation was performed, and not when it was determined that she had become pregnant. Saler v New York, 96 A.D.2d 583, 465 N.Y.S.2d 279, 1983 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 19119 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1983).

Causes of action for conscious pain and suffering allegedly caused by medical malpractice of defendants, New York City Health and Hospitals Corporation and one of its staff physicians, were properly dismissed on ground that notice of claim was not served within 90 days of accrual, which was, at latest, date of death, and no motion for leave to serve late notice of claim was made within one year and 90-days Statute of Limitations; 1990 amendment to CLS Unconsol Ch 214-A § 20 (L1990, ch 804, § 122) excepting "an action for wrongful death" from usual 90-days-after-accrual rule does not mean that causes of action for wrongful death and conscious pain and suffering are so inextricably intertwined in context of medical malpractice that notice of claim time requirements applicable to former should govern latter. Yoo v New York City Health & Hosps. Corp., 239 A.D.2d 267, 657 N.Y.S.2d 189, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5281 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1997).

City employee's action against city and its physicians for failure to inform him of their differential diagnosis of Lyme disease was properly dismissed for failure to serve timely notice of claim where (1) employee's 1992 notice of claim was not served within 90 days after he learned that he had Lyme disease, which was in January 1990 when city made diagnosis of Lyme disease and employee began receiving treatment for it, or within reasonable period after that 90-day period, (2) employee knew that he had been examined by defendants in August 1988, and (3) once employee learned that he had Lyme disease, he should have been more diligent in obtaining medical report of 1988 examination containing differential diagnosis. Ryan v City of New York, 251 A.D.2d 185, 675 N.Y.S.2d 862, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7384 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1998).

To sustain a malpractice action against a city notice of claim must be served within 90 days after the claim accrues. Armstrong v New York, 39 Misc. 2d 445, 240 N.Y.S.2d 663, 1963 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2036 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1963).

Failure to timely serve employees of county hospital with copy of notice of claim for medical malpractice required dismissal of claim against such employees. Mc Queen v County of Nassau, 83 Misc. 2d 865, 373 N.Y.S.2d 767, 1975 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3005 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1975).

94. —Continuous treatment

A claim against a city based upon malpractice and negligence of physicians and nurses employed by the city in one of its hospitals and involving a course of treatment running over a considerable period of time and all related to the same original condition or complaint does not "accrue" until the end of the treatment period, and notice of claim served upon the city within 90 days thereafter is timely. Borgia v New York, 12 N.Y.2d 151, 237 N.Y.S.2d 319, 187 N.E.2d 777, 1962 N.Y. LEXIS 804 (N.Y. 1962).

In an action against the city based on medical treatment received in one of its hospitals, the claim of the infant plaintiff did not accrue until after the effective date of Gen Mun Law § 50-e(5) where the infant had been under the continuous care and treatment of the hospital and the statute of limitations was tolled by infancy since the amendment to Gen Mun Law § 50-e(5) providing for tolls for infancy was applicable. Chilan v New York, 87 A.D.2d 568, 448 N.Y.S.2d 509, 1982 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 15813 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1982).

In a medical malpractice action against a municipality in which plaintiff contended that, as a result of surgery performed at defendant city hospital, she lost vision in her left eye, the trial court properly denied the injured party's motion for leave to serve a late notice of claim, and granted the city's motion for summary judgment dismissing the action, where the motion was not made within one year and 90 days after the date of the occurrence, which, under the circumstances, was the date of last treatment. Thomas v New York, 102 A.D.2d 867, 477 N.Y.S.2d 42, 1984 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 19074 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1984).

Malpractice action was time barred where plaintiff failed to timely return to clinic after having been instructed to return in one month, where she failed to seek corrective treatment from defendant despite experiencing pain during ensuing one-year interval, and where she adamantly refused to undergo corrective treatment upon finally returning to clinic on day she signed notice of claim; although no single factor necessarily established lack of continuity, under circumstances, there was no continuity of treatment. Daniec v Synthes, Ltd. USA, 110 A.D.2d 675, 487 N.Y.S.2d 808, 1985 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 48573 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1985).

Statute of limitations does not begin to run in medical malpractice case until patient finishes regular course of continuous treatment. Rechenberger v Nassau County Medical Center, 112 A.D.2d 150, 490 N.Y.S.2d 838, 1985 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 56436 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1985).

Court erred in granting motion for leave to serve late notice of claim in medical malpractice action on ground that action did not accrue, and 10-year extended limitations period of CLS CPLR § 208 did not commence to run, until continuous treatment ended; subsequent continuous treatment does not change or extend accrual date of cause of action, but only serves to toll running of statute of limitations. Sergile v New York City Health & Hosp. Corp., 175 A.D.2d 119, 571 N.Y.S.2d 814, 1991 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9380 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1991).

Malpractice action against New York City Health and Hospitals Corporation, arising from 2 elective surgeries performed on plaintiff's leg in 1972, was properly dismissed due to plaintiff's failure to serve timely notice of claim under CLS Unconsol Ch 214-A § 20 and CLS Gen Mun § 50-e(5), and because action was not commenced within applicable statute of limitations, where plaintiff stated at her deposition that last time her leg was treated prior to filing notice of claim in 1977 was in 1974, and that her leg was not tested against until 1990. Leale v New York City Health & Hosps. Corp., 222 A.D.2d 414, 634 N.Y.S.2d 536, 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12564 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1995).

In medical malpractice action alleging failure to timely diagnose plaintiff's breast cancer, New York City Health and Hospitals Corporation (NYCHHC) was not entitled to dismissal of complaint for failure to serve timely notice of claim, as question of fact existed as to whether accrual was tolled by continuous treatment doctrine where (1) November 17, 1989 report of mammogram noted that plaintiff had mass "highly suspicious" of cancer, but when she returned to NYCHHC clinic on December 6 for mammography follow-up, her treating physician told her that because he did not receive anything from "upstairs," he thought everything was all right, and (2) abnormal mammography findings were not communicated to plaintiff until August 21, 1990; as far as plaintiff was concerned, whether she needed further treatment of her breast condition was not disposed of until mammogram results became available to her treating physician and could be read. Irizarry v New York City Health & Hosps. Corp., 268 A.D.2d 321, 701 N.Y.S.2d 399, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 517 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2000).

Action was based on medical malpractice and thus subject to doctrine of continuous treatment where plaintiff was injured on October 2, 1997 during seizure at county medical center while being monitored for seizure disorder, and she remained under care of medical center until October 6, 1997; thus, notice of claim filed on January 2, 1998 should not have been dismissed as untimely since time within which to file notice of claim did not expire until January 4, 1998. McKoy v County of Westchester, 272 A.D.2d 307, 707 N.Y.S.2d 203, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4843 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2000).

In action alleging that plaintiff fell while patient in county hospital and hospital thereafter failed to diagnose and treat injuries sustained in fall, plaintiff's claim that she fell due to lack of bed restraints was based on ordinary negligence and thus was not subject to continuous treatment doctrine for purposes of determining whether notice of claim as to that portion of complaint was timely served. Teitell v County of Westchester, 277 A.D.2d 309, 716 N.Y.S.2d 76, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11718 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2000).

Patient raised a triable issue as to whether the continuous treatment doctrine allowed her to recover for a county health center's negligence in not diagnosing and treating her Lyme disease when she first sought treatment there for a rash, where she continued to return to the center for a core group of conditions related to Lyme disease, even though her initial visit occurred more than 90 days before she filed a notice of claim with the county. Couch v County of Suffolk, 296 A.D.2d 194, 746 N.Y.S.2d 187, 2002 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7936 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2002).

Partial summary judgment was improperly granted to a hospital in plaintiffs' action alleging, inter alia, medical malpractice based on a finding that the decedent's notice of claim was not timely under N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e because plaintiffs raised a triable issue of fact as to whether the continuous treatment doctrine could be invoked against the hospital under N.Y. C.P.L.R. 214-a where the affidavit of plaintiffs' expert raised a triable issue as to whether the symptoms the decedent experienced and twice sought treatment for at the hospital were indicative of lung cancer. Shifrina v City of New York, 5 A.D.3d 660, 774 N.Y.S.2d 85, 2004 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3330 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2004).

Appeals court reversed order dismissing patients' suit against municipal health care providers and remitted for trial court to determine if continuous treatment doctrine made claims for particular conditions' treatments before the N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law §§ 50-e, 50-i one year and 90-day claim deadline timely filed. McCoy v City of New York, 10 A.D.3d 724, 782 N.Y.S.2d 120, 2004 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11068 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2004).

Under the continuous treatment doctrine, a notice of claim period does not begin to run until the course of treatment which includes the wrongful acts or omissions has run continuously and is related to the same original condition or complaint. There existed questions of fact as to whether the doctrine was applicable, so dismissal of certain claims was not appropriate. McCoy v City of New York, 10 A.D.3d 724, 782 N.Y.S.2d 120, 2004 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11068 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2004).

Plaintiff's time to file notice of claim against New York City Health and Hospitals Corporation (HHC) within 90 days of accrual of medical malpractice action could not be extended by continuous treatment rendered by HHC after plaintiff had served HHC with summons and complaint; continuous treatment doctrine does not toll statute of limitations under CLS CPLR § 214-a where patient seeks treatment after action has been commenced. Reyes v Duffy, 162 Misc. 2d 624, 618 N.Y.S.2d 484, 1994 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 461 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1994).

95. — —Same or related condition

Defendant was entitled to dismissal of plaintiff's cause of action for medical malpractice where plaintiff's notice of claim alleging the malpractice was not served on defendant within the 90 day period from the date of injury; the trial court improperly applied the "continuous treatment" doctrine based on alleged treatment for her injury at another hospital, since the rule of "continuous treatment" applies only to a relationship of care or treatment with the defendant physician or hospital for the same or related illness or injuries. De Sainz v New York, 101 A.D.2d 746, 475 N.Y.S.2d 67, 1984 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 18379 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1984).

Finding of continuous treatment may not be based solely on finding of hospital-patient relationship; treatment afforded by hospital to infant for neurological injuries and related disorders is plainly intermittent and constitutes, for most part, separate and discrete treatments where at time of infant's original release from hospital, no further treatment is contemplated, infant returns to hospital on several occasions for emergency room treatment completely unrelated to neurological injuries and substantial temporal gaps exist between subsequent visits for treatment of neurological injuries. Grellet v New York, 118 A.D.2d 141, 504 N.Y.S.2d 671, 1986 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 53982 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1986).

Patient's contention that, under the continuous treatment doctrine, her medical malpractice claim did not accrue until the date of her last visit to the healthcare provider's facility, and thus that the trial court should have granted leave for her to serve a late notice of claim under N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e, was without merit where the medical records showed that the patient's last visits to the healthcare provider's facility were not for the treatment of symptoms that she attributed to the condition underlying the malpractice claim, Lyme disease, but rather, they were for the specific purpose of treating a toothache, as well as an ankle sprain and hip injury which she allegedly sustained from an ice skating accident. Little v Nassau Health Care Corp., 15 A.D.3d 359, 790 N.Y.S.2d 465, 2005 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1404 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2005).

96. — —Gap in treatment

In proceeding under CLS Gen Mun § 50-e(5) for leave to serve late notice of claim against county medical center, continuous treatment doctrine did not apply where gap between petitioner's treatments at center was from July 1996 to January 1998, which exceeded applicable limitations period of one year and 90 days under CLS Gen Mun § 50-i. Bulger v Nassau County Med. Ctr., 266 A.D.2d 212, 697 N.Y.S.2d 345, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11101 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1999), overruled in part, Lohnas v Luzi, 30 N.Y.3d 752, 94 N.E.3d 892, 71 N.Y.S.3d 404, 2018 N.Y. LEXIS 215 (N.Y. 2018)).

A claim against the city for damages for malpractice in one of its hospitals accrues, for purposes of starting the time to serve notice of claim, only at the end of the treatment, there is no requirement that the injured party be confined to the hospital during the entire period complained of in order for there to be "continuous treatment," and notice of claim was accordingly timely filed where it was within 90 days following death of the patient though she had at one stage been released from the hospital and out of it for about a week before being returned for further treatment. Armstrong v New York, 39 Misc. 2d 445, 240 N.Y.S.2d 663, 1963 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2036 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1963).

There was sufficient evidence for the jury to find continuous treatment so as to preclude running of limitations period within which patient must file notice of claim against county, despite a substantial gap between the malpractice and the rehabilitative treatment. Modave v Long Island Jewish Medical Center, 501 F.2d 1065, 1974 U.S. App. LEXIS 7907 (2d Cir. N.Y. 1974).

In medical malpractice and products liability suit brought by mother of plaintiff decedent who contacted disease following vaccination with drug, subsequent treatment at municipal hospital 7 years after innoculation did not establish continued course of treatment beginning in year of innocuation and ending in year of subsequent treatment as to make plaintiff's service of notice in 1969 timely under New York law. Ezagui v Dow Chemical Corp., 598 F.2d 727, 1979 U.S. App. LEXIS 15210 (2d Cir. N.Y. 1979).

97. — —Different medical facilities or departments

The doctrine of continuous treatment may be applied to toll the 90-day period within which a notice of claim must be filed pursuant to Gen Mun Law § 50-e and Unconsol Law Ch 214-A § 20(2) where a plaintiff patient is successfully treated for the same or related illnesses or injuries by different municipal medical facilities under the aegis of the New York City Health and Hospitals Corporation. However, the doctrine was inapplicable where plaintiff was treated and released from Coney Island Hospital following an automobile-motorcycle accident, subsequently returned of his own volition to the emergency room at that hospital on several occasions and left without being treated, and, having in the interim sought treatment from private physicians, was thereafter admitted and treated at Metropolitan Hospital for a condition that Coney Island Hospital allegedly failed to diagnose and treat. Marabello v City of New York, 99 A.D.2d 133, 472 N.Y.S.2d 933, 1984 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 16530 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't), app. dismissed, 62 N.Y.2d 942, 1984 N.Y. LEXIS 8523 (N.Y. 1984).

Continuous treatment doctrine did not extend period for filing notice of claim under CLS Gen Mun § 50-e(5) in medical malpractice action for aggravation of spinal injuries against New York City Health and Hospitals Corporation (NYCHHC), even though plaintiff was directed to return to Bronx Municipal Hospital Center (BMHC) for postsurgical physical therapy, where there was no indication that he ever received physical therapy there, his later examination at BMHC involved discovery of wire suture rather than physical therapy, plaintiff's own CLS Gen Mun § 50-h hearing testimony that he returned to BMHC for physical therapy was insufficient, and although he also claimed to have received continuing treatment at other hospitals owned by NYCHHC, such ownership alone did not prove necessary nexus. Dubose v New York City Health & Hosp. Corp., 255 A.D.2d 234, 680 N.Y.S.2d 95, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12421 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1998), app. dismissed, 93 N.Y.2d 848, 688 N.Y.S.2d 494, 710 N.E.2d 1093, 1999 N.Y. LEXIS 136 (N.Y. 1999).

Continuous treatment doctrine could be imputed to other departments within hospital in order to toll applicable Statute of Limitations where patient received continuous treatment by hospital employees which was related to original alleged malpractice of hospital employee being sued. Turcios v Nassau County Medical Ctr., 173 Misc. 2d 646, 661 N.Y.S.2d 491, 1997 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 373 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1997).

98. — —Routine examinations, monitoring, or evaluation

Court properly dismissed malpractice complaint alleging inappropriate prenatal and neonatal care delivered by New York City Health and Hospitals Corporation where notice of claim was not filed until more than 10 years after cause of action accrued, and plaintiff failed to raise issue of fact as to possible applicability of continuous treatment doctrine; fact that routine examinations undergone by plaintiff might have included monitoring or evaluation of medical condition with which he was born ("Erbs palsy") did not mean that he was being treated for that condition. Ganess v City of New York, 207 A.D.2d 765, 616 N.Y.S.2d 510, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8764 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1994), aff'd, 85 N.Y.2d 733, 628 N.Y.S.2d 242, 651 N.E.2d 1261, 1995 N.Y. LEXIS 1110 (N.Y. 1995).

Defendant, New York City Health and Hospitals Corporation, was properly denied summary judgment in action alleging failure to timely diagnose and treat plaintiff's breast cancer, despite its contention that alleged misdiagnosis was made more than 1 year and 90 days prior to filing of plaintiff's notice of claim, where fact issue existed as to whether frequency and intensity of intervening monitoring of plaintiff constituted continuous treatment so as to toll limitations period. Oksman v City of New York, 271 A.D.2d 213, 705 N.Y.S.2d 360, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3874 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2000).

Statutory period for filing notice of claim was not tolled by patient's continuous treatment by defendant, since ongoing general relationship with clinic for routine periodic health examinations did not constitute continuous treatment of condition on which allegations of malpractice were based. Vazquez v New York City Health & Hosps. Corp., 279 A.D.2d 368, 720 N.Y.S.2d 20, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 646 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2001).

Motion for leave to serve notice of claim on proposed defendants was denied where there was no service of notice of application for extension of time on such proposed defendants. Banks v Hebrew Children's Home, Inc., 133 N.Y.S.2d 618, 1954 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2269 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1954).

99. — —Patient's knowledge or intent

In medical malpractice action, 90-day period in which plaintiff was required to file notice of claim against New York City Health and Hospitals Corporation was not tolled by continuous treatment doctrine even though doctors who initially treated plaintiff expected her to return for further treatment, where there was no evidence that she herself contemplated any continuity of relationship, and her statements and actions indicated that she did not intend to return for further treatment. Allende v New York City Health & Hosps. Corp., 90 N.Y.2d 333, 660 N.Y.S.2d 695, 683 N.E.2d 317, 1997 N.Y. LEXIS 1375 (N.Y. 1997).

In medical malpractice action against New York City Health and Hospitals Corporation (HHC) wherein evidence indicated that plaintiff did not intend to return for further treatment to hospital where she was treated initially, fact that plaintiff subsequently received additional treatment at another HHC-owned hospital did not qualify as continuous treatment for purpose of tolling 90-day period in which she was required to file notice of claim against HHC. Allende v New York City Health & Hosps. Corp., 90 N.Y.2d 333, 660 N.Y.S.2d 695, 683 N.E.2d 317, 1997 N.Y. LEXIS 1375 (N.Y. 1997).

Continuous treatment doctrine codified in CLS CPLR § 214-a did not toll 90-day notice of claim period applicable to plaintiff's medical malpractice action against New York City Health and Hospital Corporation for alleged failure to timely diagnose and treat her cancerous breast condition, where plaintiff's allegations established that she was unaware of need for further treatment of her breast, and that no course of treatment for that condition had otherwise been established during dispositive time period; complaint was properly dismissed under CLS CPLR §§ 3211 and 3212. Young v New York City Health & Hosps. Corp., 91 N.Y.2d 291, 670 N.Y.S.2d 169, 693 N.E.2d 196, 1998 N.Y. LEXIS 8 (N.Y. 1998).

Continuous treatment doctrine rendered timely plaintiff's notice of medical malpractice claim against city, despite his failure to keep several scheduled appointments at city hospital's orthopedic clinic, where (1) notice was served within 90 days of his discharge after his second admission to hospital, (2) plaintiff was continuously treated for injury-related problems on his frequent return visits to hospital during 6 ½ months between his 2 long admissions, and (3) his initial stay of nearly 3 months entailed long-term recovery with potential for follow-up surgery. Watson v City of New York, 273 A.D.2d 115, 709 N.Y.S.2d 546, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7130 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2000).

100. — —Private physician

Department of Sanitation was entitled to dismissal of employee's complaint on grounds of failure to timely file notice of claim pursuant to CLS Gen Mun § 50-e where employee alleged negligent diagnosis and treatment by physicians at department's clinic, notice of claim was not served until 2 ½ years after alleged negligence occurred, and plaintiff's invocation of continuous treatment doctrine was not supported by facts which showed that, although he repeatedly reported to clinic in connection with department's evaluation of his fitness for return to work and they occasionally dispensed muscle relaxants and took x-rays, he was being continuously treated by private physician during this period. Olkowski v New York, 179 A.D.2d 570, 578 N.Y.S.2d 570, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 726 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't), app. denied, 80 N.Y.2d 755, 588 N.Y.S.2d 823, 602 N.E.2d 231, 1992 N.Y. LEXIS 3133 (N.Y. 1992).

101. —"Foreign objects" rule

This section requires that a notice of claim must be filed within 90 days after the claim arises, and that failure to file such a notice operates to bar any action against the public officer or body. Barchet v New York City Transit Authority, 20 N.Y.2d 1, 281 N.Y.S.2d 289, 228 N.E.2d 361, 1967 N.Y. LEXIS 1446 (N.Y. 1967).

Where myelogram allegedly resulted in internal somatic effects not readily ascertainable and where the effects were not discovered until patient was advised of electromyelogram report some 13 months after the myelogram was performed, where there were hospital records of the alleged negligent myelogram and of the procedure which allegedly resulted in discovery of the alleged malpractice, where there was no possible break between the alleged negligence and the patient's injury, and where professional diagnostic judgment or discretion was not involved, patient was entitled, some 16 months after the alleged malpractice, to serve notice of claim on the New York City Health and Hospitals Corporation. Smalls v New York City Health & Hospitals Corp., 55 A.D.2d 537, 389 N.Y.S.2d 372, 1976 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 15201 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1976), rev'd, 44 N.Y.2d 398, 406 N.Y.S.2d 9, 377 N.E.2d 453, 1978 N.Y. LEXIS 1960 (N.Y. 1978).

In a medical malpractice action to recover damages allegedly sustained when defendants' employees inserted a IUD in plaintiff's body without removing an IUD already in place, plaintiff's claim accrued when plaintiff discovered or should have discovered the first IUD, a "foreign object;" notice of the claim was timely only if filed within 90 days of the date on which the claim accrued; and the action was time-barred unless commenced within one year and 90 days of that date (CPLR § 214-a, Gen Mun Law § 50-e). Ooft v New York, 80 A.D.2d 888, 437 N.Y.S.2d 30, 1981 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10748 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1981), disapproved, Rodriguez v Manhattan Medical Group, P. C., 77 N.Y.2d 217, 566 N.Y.S.2d 193, 567 N.E.2d 235, 1990 N.Y. LEXIS 4494 (N.Y. 1990).

To sustain a malpractice action against a city notice of claim must be served within 90 days after the claim accrues. Armstrong v New York, 39 Misc. 2d 445, 240 N.Y.S.2d 663, 1963 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2036 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1963).

Postponement of accrual date of medical malpractice cause of action by virtue of "foreign objects" rule extended time in which action could be commenced against municipality. Darragh v County of Nassau, 91 Misc. 2d 53, 397 N.Y.S.2d 553, 1977 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2234 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1977), aff'd, 63 A.D.2d 1010, 405 N.Y.S.2d 1020, 1978 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12098 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1978), disapproved, Rodriguez v Manhattan Medical Group, P. C., 77 N.Y.2d 217, 566 N.Y.S.2d 193, 567 N.E.2d 235, 1990 N.Y. LEXIS 4494 (N.Y. 1990).

102. —Subsequent discovery

With respect to a claim against a municipality based upon injuries due to malpractice at a municipal hospital, lack of knowledge of defendant's negligence until after expiration of the statutory period for serving notice of claim will not excuse failure to give timely notice. Borgia v New York, 16 A.D.2d 927, 229 N.Y.S.2d 318, 1962 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9360 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't), rev'd, 12 N.Y.2d 151, 237 N.Y.S.2d 319, 187 N.E.2d 777, 1962 N.Y. LEXIS 804 (N.Y. 1962).

Where myelogram allegedly resulted in internal somatic effects not readily ascertainable and where the effects were not discovered until patient was advised of electromyelogram report some 13 months after the myelogram was performed, where there were hospital records of the alleged negligent myelogram and of the procedure which allegedly resulted in discovery of the alleged malpractice, where there was no possible break between the alleged negligence and the patient's injury, and where professional diagnostic judgment or discretion was not involved, patient was entitled, some 16 months after the alleged malpractice, to serve notice of claim on the New York City Health and Hospitals Corporation. Smalls v New York City Health & Hospitals Corp., 55 A.D.2d 537, 389 N.Y.S.2d 372, 1976 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 15201 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1976), rev'd, 44 N.Y.2d 398, 406 N.Y.S.2d 9, 377 N.E.2d 453, 1978 N.Y. LEXIS 1960 (N.Y. 1978).

103. Actions involving motor vehicles

Trial court's order granting an employee's application for leave to file a late notice of her employment discrimination claim against a school district was improper because a late notice of claim was required to have been filed no later than one year after a cause of action accrued, and N.Y. Educ. Law § 3813(2-b) provided a one-year statute of limitations; since the proceeding was commenced more than one year after the claim arose, the trial court lacked the discretion to allow a late notice. Matter of Amorosi v South Colonie Ind. Cent. School Dist., 9 N.Y.3d 367, 849 N.Y.S.2d 485, 880 N.E.2d 6, 2007 N.Y. LEXIS 3711 (N.Y. 2007).

City was not liable for damage sustained when truck struck tree which was partially obstructing highway where there was no proof that city had received prior written notice of highway obstruction, as required by city charter. Johnstown Leather Corp. v Gloversville, 56 A.D.2d 345, 393 N.Y.S.2d 89, 1977 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10441 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1977).

Court properly denied personal injury plaintiff's motion under CLS Gen Mun § 50-e(6) and CLS CPLR § 3025(c) to amend her notice of claim, verified complaint, and bill of particulars to reflect correct date of accident and to restore case to trial calendar where there was unexplained 5-year delay in seeking such relief, there was no explanation for inaction of plaintiff's former counsel after he learned of date discrepancy at hearing, he repeated incorrect date in verified bill of particulars and notice to admit 3 years after hearing, and amendment would cause defendant clear prejudice. Kotler v City of New York, 266 A.D.2d 355, 697 N.Y.S.2d 530, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11574 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1999).

In a claimant's personal injury action against a school district and a bus driver, the claimant's notice of claim was a nullity because the claim accrued on September 20, 2012, the day of the accident but the claimant served the notice of claim no earlier than February 4, 2013, approximately seven weeks after the deadline. Cassidy v Riverhead Cent. Sch. Dist., 128 A.D.3d 996, 11 N.Y.S.3d 102, 2015 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4369 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2015).

When a county seized and retained a vehicle owner's car pursuant to an ordinance which was found unconstitutional, the owner was not required to file a notice of his claim against the county within 90 days of the vehicle's seizure, as it was unreasonable to require him to immediately allege the ordinance's unconstitutionality or lose any recovery, but a notice of his claim did have to be filed within 90 days of an appellate court's decision finding the ordinance to be unconstitutional, notwithstanding any appeal of that decision, because this was when he first became entitled to maintain an action. Lombardo v County of Nassau, 791 N.Y.S.2d 292, 6 Misc. 3d 836, 233 N.Y.L.J. 2, 2004 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2960 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 2004).

When a county seized and retained a vehicle owner's car pursuant to an ordinance which was found unconstitutional, but the owner did not file a notice of his claim against the county until after the decision finding the ordinance unconstitutional was affirmed by tne New York Court of Appeals, the notice was not timely but the owner showed good cause for its late filing, due to the uncertain status of the ordinance, due to an appeal of the decision finding it unconstitutional, and uncertainty as to when the owner's claim accrued, and the county's knowledge of the claim's essential facts was not impaired by the late filing, nor was the county otherwise prejudiced. Lombardo v County of Nassau, 791 N.Y.S.2d 292, 6 Misc. 3d 836, 233 N.Y.L.J. 2, 2004 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2960 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 2004).

104. Personal injury on municipal property

An order granting plaintiffs leave to file a late notice of claim pursuant to Gen Mun Law § 50-e(5) would be reversed, where plaintiffs submitted no competent proof of knowledge on the part of the defendant county as to the facts surrounding the claim, and offered no justifiable excuse for the delay in filing. Baehre v County of Erie, 94 A.D.2d 943, 464 N.Y.S.2d 69, 1983 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 18409 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1983).

City asserted viable affirmative defense that action for exposure to toxic substance was not commenced in compliance with CLS Gen Mun §§ 50-e(1)(a) and 50-i where action was filed more than 90 days after adult plaintiff was informed that infant plaintiff was suffering from elevated level of lead in his blood, because that was when claim arose. Perry v City of New York, 238

A.D.2d 326, 656 N.Y.S.2d 301, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3415 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1997).

N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(5)'s discretionary period for filing a late claim did not begin to run until claimant's diagnosis. Porcaro v City of New York, 20 A.D.3d 357, 799 N.Y.S.2d 450, 2005 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7991 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2005).

Trial court acted within its discretion in allowing a pedestrian to amend the notice of claim to reflect March 3, 2012, as the correct date of the accident because mere minutes constituted the difference between whether the pedestrian's fall occurred on March 2 or March 3, 2012, there was no indication that the original accident date set forth in the notice of claim was set forth in bad faith, and the transit authority did not demonstrate any actual prejudice as a result of the discrepancy. Bowers v City of New York, 147 A.D.3d 894, 47 N.Y.S.3d 409, 2017 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1163 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2017).

Where a city acquires title to certain property by condemnation and takes no steps to have its title thereto recorded, the period of notice required by subd 1 of the above statute does not begin to run against an injury arising from the defective condition of such premises until the claimant or his attorney receives actual notice of the city's ownership. Thompson v 9 West 117th St. Corp., 44 Misc. 2d 920, 255 N.Y.S.2d 440, 1964 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1243 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1964).

Plaintiff, injured in a fall on a city street, will not be permitted to file a notice of claim against the city after expiration of the 90-day filing period (General Municipal Law, § 50-e); plaintiff fails to show compelling circumstances for, although she was disabled for a number of weeks, she was able to return to work before the termination of the 90-day period and was, therefore, not incapable of filing her claim. Phillips v New York, 98 Misc. 2d 1124, 415 N.Y.S.2d 349, 1979 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2206 (N.Y. Civ. Ct. 1979).

105. Public employee benefits

Under Gen Mun § 50-e and Pub Hous § 157, trial court was required to deny public employee's motion to file late notice of claim against housing authority more than one year and 90 days after claim accrued, where (1) claim for negligent failure to deliver membership application to retirement system accrued when employee became member of system by operation of law, that being latest date negligence could have occurred, and not when employee discovered negligence 15 months later upon retirement system's rejecting disability pension application, and (2) after rejection of pension application, employee waited 8 months further to file claim. Leon v New York City Housing Authority, 157 A.D.2d 628, 550 N.Y.S.2d 646, 1990 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 815 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't), app. denied, 76 N.Y.2d 702, 559 N.Y.S.2d 239, 558 N.E.2d 41, 1990 N.Y. LEXIS 1334 (N.Y. 1990).

In action alleging that school district negligently and recklessly administered health insurance claims of plaintiff's decedent, school district was entitled to summary judgment dismissing tort causes of action for failure to serve timely notice of claim, where decedent had written to district's assistant superintendent in January and March complaining of administration of her insurance claims, but notice of claim was not filed until July 28 (albeit within 3 months of her death). Polvino v Island Group Admin., Inc., 264 A.D.2d 720, 694 N.Y.S.2d 728, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9084 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1999).

Former teachers' notices of claim were timely filed, and their action against school district and others for misrepresentation of retirement benefits was timely commenced, where claim accrued no earlier than date on which defendants notified teachers that their pensions would not include severance benefits, because that was date on which teachers could ascertain their damages. Bellanca v Grand Island Cent. Sch. Dist., 275 A.D.2d 944, 715 N.Y.S.2d 184, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9670 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 2000).

For purposes of both the 90-day period of limitations within which to file a claim against defendant city "after the claim arises" (General Municipal Law, §§ 50-e, 50-i, subd 1, par [a]) based upon the city's alleged negligence in not timely filing plaintiff's claim for accidental disability retirement with the State Policemen's and Firemen's Retirement System (Retirement and Social Security Law, § 363, subd c) and the one-year and 90-day period of limitations within which to commence suit "after the happening of the event upon which the claim is based" (General Municipal Law, § 50-i, subd 1, par [c]), the statutory periods commenced and plaintiff's cause of action accrued either on the date that plaintiff, by receipt of the time-stamped copy of the notice of accident filed by the city, first received actual knowledge that his claim was not timely filed by the city or on the date that plaintiff's claim for benefits was formally rejected by the retirement system since, had plaintiff been granted benefits by the system, there would be no claim, no cause of action and no injury. Kelly v Rochester, 98 Misc. 2d 435, 413 N.Y.S.2d 1006, 1979 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2093 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1979).

The 90-day period of limitation within which to file a notice of claim against defendant city (General Municipal Law, §§ 50-e, 50-i, subd 1, par [a]) based upon the city's alleged negligence in not timely filing plaintiff's claim for accidental disability retirement with the State Policemen's and Firemen's Retirement System (Retirement and Social Security Law, § 363, subd c) after plaintiff suffered a heart attack while fighting a fire in February, 1972, began to run on April 9, 1975 when plaintiff's attorney, after many requests, received the time-stamped copy of the notice of accident filed by the city and not from an April, 1973 hearing when plaintiff and his attorney first became aware that there might be a question as to the timeliness of the city's notice since the general rule is that the period of limitations is measured from the date that the cause of action accrues when the party is first enabled to bring his action and plaintiff could not have been sure that he was aggrieved, and thus first able to bring suit, until he had actual knowledge that his claim had been filed late by the city. Kelly v Rochester, 98 Misc. 2d 435, 413 N.Y.S.2d 1006, 1979 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2093 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1979).

106. Real property actions

Inasmuch as boundary dispute involved an alleged continuing wrong on part of defendant village, plaintiff could maintain a new action to determine claims after properly filing notice of claim and any damages accruing during the 90-day period prior to such filing would be recoverable. Salesian Soc. v Ellenville, 50 A.D.2d 648, 374 N.Y.S.2d 805, 1975 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12473 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1975), rev'd, 41 N.Y.2d 521, 393 N.Y.S.2d 972, 362 N.E.2d 604, 1977 N.Y. LEXIS 1915 (N.Y. 1977).

Action could not be maintained to determine claims of plaintiff and village to land situated near boundary line between their parcels, where complaint did not allege that notice of claim had been made and served upon village within 90 days of accrual, as required by General Municipal Law, and nothing else in record indicated that there had been compliance. Salesian Soc. v Ellenville, 50 A.D.2d 648, 374 N.Y.S.2d 805, 1975 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12473 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1975), rev'd, 41 N.Y.2d 521, 393 N.Y.S.2d 972, 362 N.E.2d 604, 1977 N.Y. LEXIS 1915 (N.Y. 1977).

Action against city for negligent issuance and wrongful revocation of building permit accrued, for purposes of notice of claim requirements of CLS Gen Mun § 50-e, when permit was revoked. Curtis Case, Inc. v Port Jervis, 150 A.D.2d 421, 541 N.Y.S.2d 32, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6484 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1989).

Cause of action accrued, at latest, on date when determination was made that property was within regulated water course area, not when exact amount of damages plaintiff sustained was ascertainable. Grgecic v Town of Bedford, 264 A.D.2d 465, 694 N.Y.S.2d 160, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8839 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't), app. dismissed, 94 N.Y.2d 858, 704 N.Y.S.2d 533, 725 N.E.2d 1095, 1999 N.Y. LEXIS 3955 (N.Y. 1999).

A town may not pay a claim for damage to real property where the claimant has failed to give notice within 90 days or such additional time as the court might allow. 1966 Ops St Compt File #385.

107. Replevin

Claim for moneys which were seized under search warrant that led to charges and which were retained by county police department after dismissal of criminal action against plaintiff's decedent was not subject to County Law and General Municipal Law 90-day notice of claim requirement. Boyle v Kelley, 53 A.D.2d 457, 385 N.Y.S.2d 791, 1976 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13076 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1976), rev'd, 42 N.Y.2d 88, 396 N.Y.S.2d 834, 365 N.E.2d 866, 1977 N.Y. LEXIS 2107 (N.Y. 1977).

Vehicle owner's action against town police officers for the return of his vehicle after the conclusion of criminal proceedings, accrued when the district attorney failed to initiate a forfeiture proceeding within 60 days of the vehicle's seizure, so, under N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(1)(a), the owner had to serve notice of his claim within 90 days of that date. Smith v Scott, 294 A.D.2d 11, 740 N.Y.S.2d 425, 2002 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3561 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2002).

Service of notice of claim was premature and insufficient with respect to a claim against the county to regain possession of property seized from plaintiff in a gambling raid, because plaintiff had no cause of action in replevin at time of demand for the property on March 31, 1958 or until dismissal in 1960 of the indictment against him on gambling charges. Kamienska v County of Westchester, 39 Misc. 2d 750, 241 N.Y.S.2d 814, 1963 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1918 (N.Y. County Ct. 1963).

Until the motion to suppress money seized by police in a gambling raid had been granted, money was not subject to replevin so that notice on 90th day after the claim arose and present action seeking to recover the money seized, begun less than a year later as required by Gen Mun L §§ 50-e and 50-i, were timely. Dwyer v County of Nassau, 66 Misc. 2d 1039, 322 N.Y.S.2d 811, 1971 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1602 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1971).

Claim against City of New York for replevin of money taken from defendant at time of his arrest on narcotics charge accrued on date money was seized, and notice of claim served more than 90 days afterward was not timely under CLS Gen Mun § 50-e. Beck v New York, 133 Misc. 2d 265, 507 N.Y.S.2d 129, 1986 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2861 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1986).

108. Wrongful death; accrual at time of injury causing death

Notice of claim for conscious pain and suffering of decedent must be served within 90 days after injury. Joseph v McVeigh, 285 A.D. 386, 137 N.Y.S.2d 577, 1955 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5492 (N.Y. App. Div.), aff'd, 309 N.Y. 877, 131 N.E.2d 289, 309 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 877, 1955 N.Y. LEXIS 1624 (N.Y. 1955).

In action against city and its transportation authority for trip and fall allegedly caused by sidewalk obstruction, plaintiff was not entitled to amend her notice of claim and complaint to allege proper location of accident, and complaint was properly dismissed for noncompliance with CLS Gen Mun § 50-e, where (1) plaintiff first asserted correct location in supplemental bill of particulars almost 4 years after notice of claim, (2) defendants had conducted investigation of wrong site 6 months after notice of claim, (3) neither plaintiff's obscure photos nor vague CLS Gen Mun § 50-h hearing testimony 4 months after notice of claim offered any assistance in identifying correct location, and (4) plaintiff did not respond to city's formal request, one month after notice of claim, for more information on precise location of accident. Reyes v City of New York, 281 A.D.2d 235, 722 N.Y.S.2d 17, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2459 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2001).

Postponement of accrual date of medical malpractice cause of action by virtue of "foreign objects" rule extended time in which action could be commenced against municipality. Darragh v County of Nassau, 91 Misc. 2d 53, 397 N.Y.S.2d 553, 1977 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2234 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1977), aff'd, 63 A.D.2d 1010, 405 N.Y.S.2d 1020, 1978 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12098 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1978), disapproved, Rodriguez v Manhattan Medical Group, P. C., 77 N.Y.2d 217, 566 N.Y.S.2d 193, 567 N.E.2d 235, 1990 N.Y. LEXIS 4494 (N.Y. 1990).

109. —Accrual at death

While a death action may be commenced within two years after the decedent's death, the cause of action arises at the death, not at the appointment of the administrator or executor. Only such representative may bring the action, but there is no such requirement in the statute providing for the filing of a notice of claim. The administrator or executor is only nominally the plaintiff in a wrongful death action since any recovery does not become an asset of the estate but becomes a special fund in trust for the next of kin. Hence, one of the next of kin should be permitted to file timely notice of claim even though an action cannot be brought until an administrator or executor is appointed. Winbush v Mt. Vernon, 306 N.Y. 327, 118 N.E.2d 459, 306 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 327, 1954 N.Y. LEXIS 1029 (N.Y. 1954).

110. —Accrual upon appointment of administrator

A "wrongful death" claim, as distinguished from one for personal injuries, does not arise until an executor or administrator is appointed for the estate of the decedent, hence the 90-day period for serving notice of such a claim does not start to run and there is no necessity for obtaining an extension of time to give the required notice if it can be, and is, served within 90 days from the administrator's appointment. Joseph v McVeigh, 309 N.Y. 877, 131 N.E.2d 289, 309 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 877, 1955 N.Y. LEXIS 1624 (N.Y. 1955).

A notice of claim in a wrongful death action against a municipality may be served within 90 days after appointment of an administrator or executor even though more than 90 days have expired since the death of the decedent. Buduson v Curtis, 309 N.Y. 879, 131 N.E.2d 290, 309 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 879, 1955 N.Y. LEXIS 1625 (N.Y. 1955); Hackling v Board of Education, 61 N.Y.S.2d 724, 187 Misc. 52, 1946 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2134 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1946).

As to a claim for damages for wrongful death, the claim does not arise until appointment of an administrator. Mulligan v Westchester County, 272 A.D. 927, 71 N.Y.S.2d 152, 1947 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4249 (N.Y. App. Div. 1947).

In interpreting this section and its predecessors, it has been consistently held that a cause of action for wrongful death accrues upon appointment of an executor or administrator and that the time for serving notice of claim begins to run from date of appointment of the representative. Application of Sellars, 20 A.D.2d 350, 246 N.Y.S.2d 937, 1964 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4356 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1964).

The 90-day period for service of notice pursuant to General Municipal Law § 50-e in a death claim does not commence to run until the appointment of an estate representative. Erickson v Henderson, 30 A.D.2d 282, 291 N.Y.S.2d 403, 1968 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3557 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1968).

In an administratrix' action against a city for wrongful death, and for conscious pain and suffering of her infant children who died in a residential fire, the causes of action for conscious pain and suffering were properly dismissed on the ground of an untimely notice of claim, although the cause of action for wrongful death was properly not dismissed, since the period for serving notice of claim for wrongful death was measured from the appointment of the administratrix, rather than from the date of the fire. Further, the administratrix' motion for leave to file a late notice of claim for conscious pain and suffering was properly denied as untimely where any tolling of the time in which to seek permission to serve a late notice would be improper in that the infancy disability had been removed by the death of the infants on the date of the fire. Gibbons v Troy, 91 A.D.2d 707, 457 N.Y.S.2d 950, 1982 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 19593 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1982).

New Jersey Tort Claims Act would not be given effect, under principles of comity, in New York wrongful death action brought by infant decedent's father against New Jersey municipal corporation since New Jersey does not offer New York residents protection similar to New York's requirements that notice of wrongful death action be filed within 90 days from date administrator is appointed, and that action not be brought until administrator is appointed. De Rose v New Jersey Transit Rail Operations, 165 A.D.2d 42, 565 N.Y.S.2d 305, 1991 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 803 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1991).

Court properly denied motion for leave to serve late notice of claim where plaintiff neither offered reasonable excuse for delay in serving notice nor showed that defendant had actual knowledge of nature of claim. Johnson v County of Suffolk, 238 A.D.2d 480, 657 N.Y.S.2d 55, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4013 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1997).

Because an administrator served a wrongful death notice of claim on a county within a month of the administrator's appointment, the notice of claim was timely under N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(1)(a), General Municipal Law § 50-i(1); therefore, leave to file late notice was not necessary under § 50-e(5). Heslin v County of Greene, 53 A.D.3d 996, 862 N.Y.S.2d 210, 2008 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6328 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2008), aff'd, 14 N.Y.3d 67, 896 N.Y.S.2d 723, 923 N.E.2d 1111, 2010 N.Y. LEXIS 14 (N.Y. 2010).

Notice of claim requirement is satisfied in wrongful death action if timely notice is filed by proposed administratrix who has not yet received letters of administration. Aristide v New York, 129 Misc. 2d 483, 493 N.Y.S.2d 247, 1985 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3073 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1985).

An administrator may file a death claim within 90 days after his appointment, subject only to the limitation that the action be commenced within two years after the decedent's death. Motyka v Oswego, 133 N.Y.S.2d 816, 1954 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2449 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1954), aff'd, 285 A.D. 1013, 139 N.Y.S.2d 475, 1955 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6501 (N.Y. App. Div. 1955).

111. Damage to private property

Where notice of claim was given on July 31, 1967 and where it could have been found as a fact, based on plaintiff's evidence, that destruction of plaintiff's property took place after May 2, 1967, or within 90 days before notice of the claim, dismissal for failure to give notice as required by General Municipal Law § 50-e was premature and prevented development of a full record with defendant's proofs. Eagle Vending Corp. v Board of Education, 41 A.D.2d 849, 342 N.Y.S.2d 706, 1973 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4649 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1973).

In an action brought against a town, alleging that a jetty built in 1964 had caused serious damage and erosion to real property formerly owned by plaintiff, plaintiffs' notices of claim, served on March 5, 1979, were untimely under Gen Mun Law § 50-e(1)(a) where plaintiffs' cause of action, if any, had accrued upon the wrongful invasion of their property rights by erosion, which had begun far in advance of January 5, 1979, and where there was no continuing nuisance merely because consequential damages may have occurred subsequently. Lockman v Southold, 108 A.D.2d 900, 485 N.Y.S.2d 784, 1985 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 43232 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1985).

Court abused its discretion in denying petitioner's application to file late notice of claim for deprivation of access to decedent's body, even though petitioner had knowledge, within statutory period, of facts sufficient to support her claim, since respondents had actual knowledge of nature of claim within such period, and respondents failed to show any prejudice resulting from allowing late notice of claim. Rekemeyer v Cerone, 232 A.D.2d 833, 648 N.Y.S.2d 795, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10512 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1996).

Lessor's notice of negligence claims against town were not timely, and claims were time-barred, where notice was filed in September 1994, and claims, which were based on town's alleged acceptance of illegal waste and cutting of trees at its leased landfill, accrued no later than April 1993 when closure of landfill was ordered and dumping operations ceased, rather than at expiration of lease in June 1994. Hubbard v Town of Sand Lake, 246 A.D.2d 708, 667 N.Y.S.2d 496, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 102 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1998).

Lessor's notice of breach of contract claim against town, filed in September 1994, did not comply with requirements of CLS Town § 65(3), and summary judgment was properly granted to town, where crux of complaint was that town breached lease by accepting illegal waste at landfill, landfill closed and dumping operations ceased in 1993, and thus any breach of lease occurred before that time. Hubbard v Town of Sand Lake, 246 A.D.2d 708, 667 N.Y.S.2d 496, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 102 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1998).

County was entitled to dismissal of claim on ground that plaintiff did not file timely notice of claim where (1) claim arose when county informed plaintiff, by letter dated March 13, 1966, that no certificate of occupancy would be issued for his property until certain structural problems were resolved, (2) complaint alleged that county was responsible for creating conditions that caused those problems, (3) claim was not filed until August 14, 1996, over 90 days after claim arose, (4) plaintiff did not seek leave to file late notice of claim within one year and 90 days after claim accrued, and (5) plaintiff did not show applicability of equitable estoppel doctrine. Augustyn v County of Wyo., 275 A.D.2d 1003, 716 N.Y.S.2d 341, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9632 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 2000).

A cause of action against a County Water Authority for property damage due to a leak in its water lines did not accrue until plaintiffs discovered that their premises had been damaged, and where notice of claim was served within 90 days after such discovery, it was timely. Damico v Onondaga County Water Authority, 36 Misc. 2d 158, 232 N.Y.S.2d 660, 1962 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3472 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1962).

Assuming that Public Authorities Law set the statute of limitations against airline company at one year and 30 days after company's alleged tort cause of action arising out of incident wherein regional transportation district's bus allegedly ran into airline company's aircraft causing damages accrued and thus that company's claim for damages was dead, it was unnecessary for airline company to perfect valid claim within limitation period under law against regional transportation district in order for it to use alleged tort damages for purposes of recoupment as against regional transportation district's claim against airline for unpaid rent due on bus service supplied by district to airline. Rochester-Genesee Regional Transp. Dist., Inc. v Trans World Airlines, Inc., 86 Misc. 2d 1011, 383 N.Y.S.2d 856, 1976 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2566 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1976).

Statute of limitations on claim for loss of property due to county's failure to maintain beach groins is not barred by statute of limitations where failure to maintain groins is continuing event from which limitations period is measured. Rapf v Suffolk County of New York, 755 F.2d 282, 1985 U.S. App. LEXIS 28483 (2d Cir. N.Y. 1985).

112. Miscellaneous actions

Time for filing notice of claim against city for its alleged improper refusal to grant demolition permit began to run on date on which it refused wrecking company's second application for such permit, not date on which Supreme Court judgment ordering city to issue such permit became final because of city's failure to prosecute appeal filed in Appellate Division, notwithstanding lack of prejudice to city from delay in filing notice of claim. Bloomfield Bldg. Wreckers, Inc. v Troy, 50 A.D.2d 673, 375 N.Y.S.2d 213, 1975 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12510 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1975), aff'd, 41 N.Y.2d 1102, 396 N.Y.S.2d 359, 364 N.E.2d 1130, 1977 N.Y. LEXIS 2134 (N.Y. 1977).

In an Article 78 proceeding to compel the return of four guns to petitioner after the disposition of a criminal action, the proceeding would be dismissed as untimely where it had not been commenced within four months of the District Attorney's refusal to return the guns after petitioner's demand, and where a notice of claim had not been served within 90 days of the refusal. United States Redemption Centers, Inc. v Property Clerk, County of Nassau, 88 A.D.2d 959, 451 N.Y.S.2d 451, 1982 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 17330 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1982).

A notice of claim was not presented in a timely manner in an action against a county coroner for emotional distress due to the loss of specimens from a relative's organs used in an autopsy performed April 2, 1981, where plaintiffs learned no later than June 2, 1982, by an affidavit filed by a medical examiner in an Article 78 proceeding they commenced to determine the results of the autopsy, that the coroner's office had no record of decedent's specimens, their notice of claim was filed December 3 1982 without any request for an extension, and the article 78 proceeding could not be treated as notice of claim. Distel v County of Ulster, 107 A.D.2d 994, 484 N.Y.S.2d 715, 1985 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 49862 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1985).

Court properly denied plaintiff's motion to add village as defendant in nuisance action on basis of plaintiff's failure to serve timely notice of claim on village in compliance with CLS Gen Mun § 50-e, despite plaintiff's attempt to circumvent this requirement by alleging that claims asserted in proposed amended complaint against village arose from continuing wrong (i.e., its wrongful issuance to neighboring landowner of building permit and certificate of occupancy), since cause of action involving wrongful issuance of building permit accrues when permit is issued, and does not constitute continuing wrong. Solow v Liebman, 202

A.D.2d 493, 609 N.Y.S.2d 58, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2475 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1994).

Cause of action involving wrongful issuance of building permit accrues when permit is issued, and does not constitute continuing wrong. Greco v Incorporated Village of Freeport, 223 A.D.2d 674, 637 N.Y.S.2d 191, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 650 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1996).

Where CLS Gen Mun §§ 50-e and 50-i are applicable because claim is asserted against municipality, statute of limitations of one year and 90 days is measured from date of discovery of injury caused by latent effects of exposure to toxic substances, or from date when, through exercise of reasonable diligence, injury should have been discovered, whichever is earlier. Annunziato v City of New York, 224 A.D.2d 31, 647 N.Y.S.2d 850, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9790 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1996).

In action, inter alia, against fire district for personal injuries arising from contaminated groundwater, filing of notices of claim which began on July 30, 1993 were untimely since plaintiffs became aware of problem with their drinking water in early 1992 when Department of Environmental Conservation took water samples from their properties and arranged to have bottled water delivered to them. Bluitt v Ridge Fire Dist., 230 A.D.2d 814, 646 N.Y.S.2d 553, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8566 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1996), app. denied, 89 N.Y.2d 810, 657 N.Y.S.2d 403, 679 N.E.2d 642, 1997 N.Y. LEXIS 328 (N.Y. 1997).

Claim arose on date that school district informed appellants of test results and its decision not to provide appellant with special education. Campbell v Union Free Sch. Dist. No. 14, 244 A.D.2d 334, 665 N.Y.S.2d 538, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11005 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1997).

Notice of contract claim against city board of education was untimely under CLS Educ § 3813(1), which requires service of notice on board within 3 months after accrual of claim, where plaintiff was aware by October that board would refuse to pay claim, as confirmed by correspondence in November and by board's failure to respond within 10 days to plaintiff's November 7 demand for payment, and plaintiff did not serve notice of claim until March. Alfred Santini & Co. v City of New York, 266 A.D.2d 119, 698 N.Y.S.2d 678, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12105 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1999), app. denied, 95 N.Y.2d 752, 711 N.Y.S.2d 154, 733 N.E.2d 226, 2000 N.Y. LEXIS 1067 (N.Y. 2000).

Action for alleged contamination of plaintiff's well water accrued, at very latest, in mid-September 1994 when plaintiff received letter from County informing him that his water contained levels of sodium and lead exceeding those prescribed by New York State Drinking Water Standards; thus, filing of notice of claim on January 9, 1995, approximately 4 months after plaintiff's action accrued, was untimely. Potanovic v County of Rockland, 267 A.D.2d 291, 700 N.Y.S.2d 195, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12865 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1999).

In employee's claim against town, alleging that town council person had sexually harassed her and that town supervisor had retaliated against her for filing internal complaint against town regarding same alleged harassment, Supreme Court had authority to grant employee's motion for leave to file late notice of claim, despite town's claim that underlying harassment claim was not timely filed with State Division of Human Rights, where employee alleged discriminatory conduct within limitations period sufficiently similar to alleged conduct that outside limitations period to justify conclusion that both were part of single discriminatory practice, and thus claim was timely in its entirety under continuing violation doctrine. Henderson v Town of Van Buren, 281 A.D.2d 872, 723 N.Y.S.2d 282, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2708 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 2001).

Complaint dismissed where notice of claim against county for injuries sustained in jail was filed within 90 days from date of parole but more than 90 days from date of accident. Pascucci v County of Nassau, 8 Misc. 2d 229, 165 N.Y.S.2d 797, 1957 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2908 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1957).

For purposes of complying with notice provisions of General Municipal Law § 50-e, claim for wrongful sale of motorcycle did not arise until after demand by the plaintiff for the motorcycle and notification to the plaintiff that it would or could not be returned to him. Thomas v Grupposo, 73 Misc. 2d 427, 341 N.Y.S.2d 819, 1973 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2208 (N.Y. Civ. Ct. 1973).

Using February 22, 2002, as the accrual date for his claim of intentional infliction of emotional distress, the arrestee complied with the N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law §§ 50-i, 50-e by filing his notice of claim on May 22, 2002 and commencing his action on December 18, 2002. Accordingly, the arrestee's motion to dismiss the detectives and the police officers' notice of claim affirmative defense was granted, and the detectives and the police officers' motion to dismiss the arrestee's intentional infliction of emotional distress claim as time-barred was denied. Llerando-Phipps v City of New York, 390 F. Supp. 2d 372, 2005 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 22246 (S.D.N.Y. 2005).

Complaint was filed on July 7, 2006. and thus, any acts occurring before April 7, 2005, were beyond the applicable statute of limitations; the last actionable allegation occurred in March 2005, so nothing was alleged to have occurred within the applicable statute of limitations period. Moreover, there was no tolling of the statute of limitations during the time the employee's claim was pending in State Division because of her self-initiated discontinuance of her State Division action for administrative convenience; accordingly, because the state claims were untimely, summary judgment in defendants' favor was warranted on such claims. Drees v County of Suffolk, 2009 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 27346 (E.D.N.Y. Mar. 30, 2009).

VI. Extension of Time to File

113. In general

An extension of time to serve late notice of claim required by General Municipal Law may not exceed time limited for commencement of action. McGill v Board of Education, 59 A.D.2d 888, 399 N.Y.S.2d 41, 1977 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 14075 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1977), app. dismissed, 43 N.Y.2d 949, 1978 N.Y. LEXIS 2879 (N.Y. 1978), app. dismissed, 43 N.Y.2d 893, 403 N.Y.S.2d 499, 374 N.E.2d 396, 1978 N.Y. LEXIS 1815 (N.Y. 1978).

Claimant's application for leave to serve late notice of claim against county and county police was improperly brought as motion where no action by claimant was pending against county or county police. Eso v County of Westchester, 141 A.D.2d 542, 529 N.Y.S.2d 155, 1988 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6282 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1988).

New York County was only proper venue, both for trial and motion to serve late notice of claim, where underlying accident occurred in New York County and New York County Transit Authority was defendant. Bukoff v New York City Transit Authority, 184 A.D.2d 610, 584 N.Y.S.2d 898, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8057 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1992).

In proceeding for leave to file late notice of claim against town, failure of petitioner to include document designated as petition was merely defect in form which did not warrant dismissal since (1) attorney's affirmation, which was annexed to order to show cause, contained all ingredients necessary to petition, and (2) attorney's affirmation, together with affidavit of petitioner's mother, were adequate to inform appellant of relief requested and were sufficient to allow appellant to maintain defense on merits. Billone v Huntington, 188 A.D.2d 526, 591 N.Y.S.2d 437, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 14221 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1992).

Court erred in requiring petitioner for leave to serve late notice of claim, in addition to satisfying factors enumerated in CLS Gen Mun § 50-e(5), to offer evidence establishing that she had meritorious claim against municipal respondent. Strauss v New York City Transit Auth., 195 A.D.2d 322, 600 N.Y.S.2d 32, 1993 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7117 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1993).

Justice did not improvidently exercise his discretion when he assigned application for leave to file late notice of claim to another justice before whom 45 related cases were then pending, for sake of judicial economy. Zee v Hicksville Union Free Sch. Dist., 210 A.D.2d 237, 620 N.Y.S.2d 279, 622 N.Y.S.2d 279, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12362 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1994).

CLS Gen Mun § 50-e does not provide for automatic approval of application for leave to serve late notice of claim simply because it was made within applicable statute of limitations for commencing action and any tolling periods. Matarrese v New York City Health & Hosps. Corp., 215 A.D.2d 7, 633 N.Y.S.2d 837, 1995 N.Y.

App. Div. LEXIS 11863 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1995), app. denied, 87 N.Y.2d 810, 642 N.Y.S.2d 859, 665 N.E.2d 661, 1996 N.Y. LEXIS 351 (N.Y. 1996).

New York Housing Authority was prejudiced by petitioner's untimely notice of claim where she testified at hearing that she slipped and fell on sheet of ice, but proposed late notice of claim stated that authority was negligent in "causing, allowing, permitting and maintaining a.cracked, raised, irregular...condition on said sidewalk and further in permitting and allowing snow and ice to accumulate." Seif v City of New York, 218 A.D.2d 595, 630 N.Y.S.2d 742, 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8854 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1995).

It was abuse of discretion to grant plaintiffs' motion for leave to serve "new late notice of claim" where injured plaintiff had settled his property damage claim by executing unambiguous general release of all claims arising from accident. Sherwood v New York City Transit Auth., 226 A.D.2d 622, 641 N.Y.S.2d 354, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4451 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1996).

Court should have denied claimants' motion for permission to file late notice of claim as unnecessary because notice was timely filed where claimants timely mailed notice to town clerk by certified mail, properly placing notice in depositary of United States Postal Service, and Postal Service made 2 attempts to deliver certified mailing, but on each occasion, town clerk failed either to accept or to claim mailing, which was then returned to claimants; municipality may not defeat service by failing to accept or claim delivery of certified mailing. Bartolotta v County of Wyoming, 231 A.D.2d 899, 647 N.Y.S.2d 622, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10747 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1996).

Petitioner's "filing" of unsigned order to show cause with county clerk did not serve as timely application for leave to file late notice of claim. Graham v County of Fulton, 235 A.D.2d 824, 652 N.Y.S.2d 354, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 323 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1997).

Leave to serve a late notice of claim pursuant to N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(5) was inappropriate for a patently meritless claim; since a town was separate from a fire district, a subrogation claim against the town alleging that the fire district was negligent in its fire operations was without merit, and leave for late notice should not have been given. Matter of State Farm Fire & Cas. Co. v Village of Bronxville, 24 A.D.3d 453, 805 N.Y.S.2d 651, 2005 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13772 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2005).

Inmate's motion for leave to file a late notice of claim against a department was properly granted because the department timely acquired actual knowledge of the essential facts of the claim; within two months of the last incident of sexual abuse underlying the claim, several prisoners, including the inmate, reported the alleged abuse, and, eventually, criminal charges were brought against a physician's assistant. Additionally, the inmate provided an explanation for the delay, citing her homelessness, incarceration, and depression. Catterson v Suffolk County Dept. of Health Servs., 49 A.D.3d 792, 854 N.Y.S.2d 205, 2008 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2742 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2008).

Although venue in action against Facilities Development Corporation must be laid in Albany County, application by claimant for leave to file late notice of claim against Corporation pursuant to General Municipal Law § 50-e may properly be entertained in Dutchess County, if Corporation does not object to application on venue ground. Kroupa v Facilities Dev. Corp., 128 Misc. 2d 904, 491 N.Y.S.2d 908, 1985 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3022 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1985).

114. Construction

The statute of limitations for municipal tort liability is tolled from the time the plaintiff applies for permission to file a late notice of claim until the order granting that relief goes into effect, since an amendment to Gen Mun Law § 50-e that deleted the requirement that an application to file late notice be made prior to the commencement of an action and added a provision that an application for late notice would not be denied on the ground that it was made after the commencement of an action against a public corporation neither authorizes the practice of serving complaints before notice of claim nor eliminates the problems encountered by a plaintiff who has filed a premature complaint, and since the amendment simply eliminates the obstacle that prevented a plaintiff from applying for leave to file a late notice of claim once he had commenced the action and does not dispense with the requirement that the complaint alleged that the notice has been served and that more than thirty days have elapsed since the service. Giblin v Nassau County Medical Center, 61 N.Y.2d 67, 471 N.Y.S.2d 563, 459 N.E.2d 856, 1984 N.Y. LEXIS 3994 (N.Y. 1984).

The amendment of subdivision 5 of section 50-e of the General Municipal Law (L 1976, ch 745) did not negate the pre-1976 rule that once the 90 days allowed for service of a notice of claim had expired there could be no judicial extension of such time to serve the notice unless the application for such extension was made within the period specified in the statute; failure to seek a judicial extension of the 90-day period prior to the expiration of one year and 90 days precludes the exercise of judicial discretion to allow filing of a late notice of claim. Fraccola v Utica, 77 A.D.2d 161, 432 N.Y.S.2d 943, 1980 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13008 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1980).

On motion for leave to serve late notice of claim under CLS Gen Mun § 50-e(5), failure to allege reasonable excuse for delay is not fatal. Meredithe C. v Carmel Cent. Sch. Dist., 192 A.D.2d 952, 597 N.Y.S.2d 199, 1993 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4051 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1993).

CLS Gen Mun § 50-e(5) applies to tort claim asserted against regional off-track betting corporation, which is public corporation as defined by CLS Gen Const § 66. Salvaggio v Western Regional Off-Track Betting Corp., 203 A.D.2d 938, 612 N.Y.S.2d 94, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4944 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1994).

Even where delay in serving notice of claim under this section beyond the 90-day period is very short, the limitation must be strictly construed and an application for late filing denied in the absence of establishing one of the statutory grounds for granting an exception in the court's discretion. Phillips v Frankfort, 31 Misc. 2d 815, 220 N.Y.S.2d 171, 1961 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3400 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1961).

115. Authority of court

Special Term was without authority to grant an application permitting late filing of a claim against the City of New York. Public Adm'r of County of New York v New York, 32 A.D.2d 627, 300 N.Y.S.2d 19, 1969 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3982 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1969).

Fact that plaintiff did not obtain new index number (nonjurisdictional defect that was readily curable) was insufficient basis to deny second application for leave to serve late notice of claim. Fritsch v Westchester County DOT, 170 A.D.2d 602, 566 N.Y.S.2d 377, 1991 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2283 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1991).

Trial court properly entertained question of whether continuous treatment doctrine was available to personal injury plaintiff where, prior to trial, city defendant moved to dismiss complaint on ground that plaintiff's notice of claim was not timely served, plaintiff invoked continuous treatment doctrine in opposition, court reserved question pending consideration of evidence, and city renewed its motion after plaintiff prevailed at trial; since jury was not called on to decide issue of applicability of doctrine, court did not usurp jury's function. Olkowski v New York, 179 A.D.2d 570, 578 N.Y.S.2d 570, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 726 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't), app. denied, 80 N.Y.2d 755, 588 N.Y.S.2d 823, 602 N.E.2d 231, 1992 N.Y. LEXIS 3133 (N.Y. 1992).

It was abuse of discretion to deny plaintiff's motion for leave to file late notice of claim against city transit authority for injury sustained on bus where plaintiff filed no-fault claim with transit authority within 90-day period under CLS Gen Mun § 50-e(1), claim contained all essential facts concerning claim, and transit authority was not prejudiced by delay. Richardson v New York City Transit Auth., 210 A.D.2d 38, 619 N.Y.S.2d 711, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12369 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1994).

It was abuse of discretion to deny application for lease to serve late notice of claim in view of minor delay (11 days) and absence of prejudice to defendants. Isakov v City of New York, 221 A.D.2d 531, 634 N.Y.S.2d 394, 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11849 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1995).

Court properly denied petitioner's application for leave to serve late notice of claim where he failed to present legally acceptable excuse for his delay in presenting claim one year after alleged claim accrued, and he failed to show that city officials timely acquired actual knowledge of accident or that they would not suffer substantial prejudice in maintaining their defense on merits. People v Calvi, 224 A.D.2d 705, 638 N.Y.S.2d 736, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1934 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't), modified, aff'd, 89 N.Y.2d 868, 653 N.Y.S.2d 89, 675 N.E.2d 843, 1996 N.Y. LEXIS 3586 (N.Y. 1996).

Court properly allowed filing of late notice of claim, even though petitioner failed to offer excuse for delay of some 5 ½ months between time extension granted by county had expired and petitioner's filing of application for leave to serve late notice of claim, since county conceded that it received actual notice of incident within statutory period, and county did not dispute finding that it would not be substantially prejudiced. Lawrence v County of Sullivan, 233 A.D.2d 609, 649 N.Y.S.2d 244, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11474 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1996).

In personal injury action against city transit authority, Supreme Court had authority to grant plaintiff leave to file late notice of claim where action was begun within period specified in relevant statute of limitations. Sayad v New York City Transit Auth., 246 A.D.2d 639, 666 N.Y.S.2d 955, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 584 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1998).

Court improvidently exercised its discretion in granting leave to serve late notice of claim 9 months after alleged slip and fall in building owned by New York City Housing Authority, where petitioners failed to proffer either reasonable excuse for their delay or proof that housing authority had actual knowledge of essential facts of claim within 90 days of accrual or reasonable time thereafter. Rakhlev v New York City Hous. Auth., 253 A.D.2d 526, 676 N.Y.S.2d 877, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9104 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1998).

Supreme Court could not extend 90-day period for serving notice of claim beyond time limit for commencement of action against town, since notice of claim requirement is condition precedent to commencement of such action and not statute of limitations that must be pleaded as affirmative defense; compliance with notice of claim requirement falls within threshold jurisdiction of court. Hey v Town of Napoli, 265 A.D.2d 803, 695 N.Y.S.2d 643, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9828 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1999).

Trial court did not err in granting claimant's application, pursuant to N.Y. Educ. Law § 3813(2-a) and N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(5), for leave to serve a late notice of claim against a board of education because, while claimant did not offer any excuse for her failure to timely serve the notice, the board was not substantially prejudiced as a result of claimant's delay, in that it had acquired actual knowledge of the facts constituting the claim within weeks of its accrual. Matter of Lindstrom v Board of Educ. of Jamestown City School Dist., 24 A.D.3d 1303, 805 N.Y.S.2d 908, 2005 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 14543 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 2005).

CLS Gen Mun § 50-e(7) should not apply in Small Claims Court since it would fly in face of goals of small claims procedure to require claimant to make motion for leave to serve late notice of claim in Supreme Court or County Court, and therefore Small Claims Court has power to entertain motion to serve late notice of claim. Lurie v New York City Office of Comptroller, 154 Misc. 2d 950, 587 N.Y.S.2d 831, 1992 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 348 (N.Y. Civ. Ct. 1992).

Federal district court lacked jurisdiction, under N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(7), to grant an extension of time to file a late notice of claim and such requests must be directed to the appropriate state court. Mosdos Chofetz Chaim, Inc. v Vill. of Wesley Hills, 815 F. Supp. 2d 679, 2011 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 109649 (S.D.N.Y. 2011).

116. —Jurisdiction of court

Proceeding under CLS Gen Mun § 50-e(5) against county and others for leave to file late notice of claim would be dismissed where, after court properly vacated respondents' default in opposing petition because court lacked personal jurisdiction over them, all subsequent proceedings were null and void, and court did not then have authority to decide petitioner's motion for leave to serve late notice of claim nunc pro tunc. Cartier v County of Nassau, 281 A.D.2d 477, 722 N.Y.S.2d 45, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2352 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2001).

Because a skater sought damages for personal injuries based on negligent ownership and/or maintenance of a road after the skater allegedly tripped and fell in a sink hole on a roadway while inline skating, the state agencies were entitled to dismissal of the skater's N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(5) petition for leave to serve a late notice of claim, as the Court of Claims had exclusive jurisdiction over the matter under N.Y. Const. art. VI, § 9, N.Y. Ct. Cl. Act §§ 8, 9(2). Matter of Peterson v New York City Dept. of Envtl. Protection, 66 A.D.3d 1027, 887 N.Y.S.2d 269, 2009 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7702 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2009).

A city court has no jurisdiction to entertain an application for leave to serve a late notice of claim on the city of New York. Priceman v New York, 106 N.Y.S.2d 916, 199 Misc. 737, 1951 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2255 (N.Y. App. Term 1951).

In personal injury action against regional off-track betting corporation, Supreme Court had jurisdiction to extend time to serve notice of claim under CLS Racing & Wagering § 514 since (1) CLS Gen Mun § 50-e gives court general discretion to extend time to serve notice of claim in tort actions where notice of claim is required as condition precedent against "public corporation, as defined in the general construction law," (2) CLS Gen Const § 66 defines public corporation as "public benefit corporation," and (3) regional off-track betting corporation is public benefit corporation under CLS Racing & Wagering § 502. Burke v Capital Dist. Regional Off-Track Betting Corp., 137 Misc. 2d 448, 521 N.Y.S.2d 205, 1987 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2650 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1987).

Infant's application for leave to file a late notice of claim on a department of education and a board of education was denied because, although the infant had a reasonable excuse for the failure to file timely notice and the department and the board had actual notice, the order to show cause named and was served on the wrong party and thus the court lacked jurisdiction. Nacipucha v City of New York, 849 N.Y.S.2d 414, 18 Misc. 3d 846, 2008 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 13 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 2008).

Disability discrimination and hostile working environment claims that a former employee filed against a county pursuant to the New York State Human Rights Law, N.Y. Exec. Law § 296, were dismissed because the employee did not serve a timely notice of claim upon the county as required by N.Y. County Law § 52 and N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law §§ 50-e and 50-i; (2) the federal district court did not have jurisdiction under N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(5) and (7) to grant the employee's application for leave to serve a late notice of claim; and (3) N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law §§ 50-e(5) and 50-i(1)(c) and N.Y. County Law § 52(1) barred the court from granting leave to serve a late notice where more than one year and ninety days had passed since the employee's claims arose when the employee was terminated. Costabile v County of Westchester, 2007 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 29787 (S.D.N.Y. Apr. 20, 2007), amended, 485 F. Supp. 2d 424, 2007 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 33484 (S.D.N.Y. 2007).

An application to file a late notice of claim was properly before a federal District Court where a diversity action to enforce the plaintiff's negligence claim had been commenced in that court. Palazzo v New York, 444 F. Supp. 1089, 1978 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 20257 (E.D.N.Y. 1978).

Where female police officers' claims against a county and several individuals failed because they did not file a complaint prior to filing suit, as required by N.Y. County Law § 52, a federal district court lacked jurisdiction to grant the officers leave to file an amended notice of claim under N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(5) because only a state court had authority to do this. Olsen v County of Nassau, 2008 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 90426 (E.D.N.Y. Nov. 5, 2008).

Under N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(7), the federal district court did not have jurisdiction either (1) to deem that plaintiffs' untimely amended notice of claim for their state law claims against a county was timely filed or (2) to grant an extension of time to file a late notice of claim. Dayton v City of Middletown, 786 F. Supp. 2d 809, 2011 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 35770 (S.D.N.Y. 2011).

Federal district court lacked jurisdiction to grant plaintiff leave to serve a late notice of claim on a municipality, as applications for an extension of time had to be made to the state supreme court or county court. Berry v Millbrook, 815 F. Supp. 2d 711, 2011 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 109404 (S.D.N.Y. 2011).

117. —Discretion of court

Gen Mun Law § 50-e(5) was amended to allow greater discretion in permitting a late notice of claim to be filed, and therefore, petitioner, who had allegedly been injured in a slip and fall accident on a defective area of a town sidewalk, would be permitted to file a late notice of claim where the housing authority, which had actual notice of the accident at the time it occurred, would not be prejudiced by the delay, where petitioner relied on the alleged representations of payment of her hospital bills and where the actual filing of the notice was only 30 days late. Gelles v New York City Housing Authority, 87 A.D.2d 757, 449 N.Y.S.2d 36, 1982 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 16186 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1982).

Appellate Division is vested with broad discretion in considering whether service of late notice of claim should be permitted; among factors to be considered in determining whether to grant leave to file late notice of claim are whether public corporation had actual knowledge of essential facts constituting claim within 90-day period or reasonable time thereafter and whether delay in serving notice of claim substantially prejudiced public corporation in preparing its defense. Delzotto v County of Warren, 137 A.D.2d 950, 525 N.Y.S.2d 373, 1988 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1752 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1988).

Standards governing consideration of applications for leave to file late notice of claim have been purposely made more elastic so as to afford broad discretion to courts. Strevell v South Colonie Cent. School Dist., 144 A.D.2d 733, 535 N.Y.S.2d 147, 1988 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10901 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1988).

So long as application to file late notice of claim is made within time limited for commencement of action, court is vested with broad discretion to grant application pursuant to CLS Gen Mun § 50-e(5), and presence or absence of any one factor enumerated in statute is not necessarily determinative. Rotoli v Gaines, 184 A.D.2d 1085, 585 N.Y.S.2d 274, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8371 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1992).

General Municipal Law allows for exercise of considerable discretion in determining whether to permit service of late notice of claim. Singh v City Univ. of New York/ Bronx Community College, 223 A.D.2d 545, 636 N.Y.S.2d 130, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 148 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1996).

As plaintiff was a minor at the time of her alleged injury in gym class and thus eligible for the infancy toll of N.Y. C.P.L.R. 208, and was confused as to the date of accident, and as defendants had timely notice of all of the essential facts, the trial court properly granted her motion to serve a late claim under N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e to correct the date of the injury. Chirse v City School Dist. of Albany, 83 A.D.3d 1232, 920 N.Y.S.2d 841, 2011 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3072 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2011).

As plaintiff's motion to add an additional claim under N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e was filed three years after her alleged injury without any compelling excuse for the delay, and she sought to present a entirely new theory of liability that defendants would have to investigate, the trial court did not abuse its discretion in denying the motion. Chirse v City School Dist. of Albany, 83 A.D.3d 1232, 920 N.Y.S.2d 841, 2011 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3072 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2011).

Trial court erred in, sua sponte, granting a subway passenger leave to amend his notice of claim as to the facts and legal theories within 30 days of the filing of the note of issue in a subsequent action to recover damages for personal injuries because the relief was dramatically different from the pre-action discovery that was the subject of the petition, the absence of a notice of claim rendered it impossible to determine whether the future notice of claim or any amendments thereto would comply with the General Municipal Law, and the city and its transit authority were prejudiced insofar as the court's permissive timeline potentially could be, inter alia, beyond the statute of limitations and after the completion of discovery. Matter of Velez v City of New York, 174 A.D.3d 813, 106 N.Y.S.3d 110, 2019 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5780 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2019).

118. —Statutory extension period

The amendment of subdivision 5 of section 50-e of the General Municipal Law (L 1976, ch 745) did not negate the pre-1976 rule that once the 90 days allowed for service of a notice of claim had expired there could be no judicial extension of such time to serve the notice unless the application for such extension was made within the period specified in the statute; failure to seek a judicial extension of the 90-day period prior to the expiration of one year and 90 days precludes the exercise of judicial discretion to allow filing of a late notice of claim. Fraccola v Utica, 77 A.D.2d 161, 432 N.Y.S.2d 943, 1980 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13008 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1980).

Where, at time motion seeking permission to serve late notice of claim was made, more than one year and 90 days had elapsed from time cause of action accrued, court was without discretion to grant relief sought. Ferrara v Terryville Fire Dist., 110 A.D.2d 749, 488 N.Y.S.2d 45, 1985 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 48651 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1985).

Application for extension in which to file late notice of claim must be made within one year and 90 days after cause of action accrues, unless statute is otherwise tolled, and thus, Special Term was without authority to grant permission to file late notice of claim. Nirenberg v County of Ulster, 119 A.D.2d 882, 500 N.Y.S.2d 438, 1986 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 55823 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1986).

Special Term was without authority to grant application to serve late notice of claim against City of New York in personal injury action where application was made after expiration of one-year and 90-day limitations provided by CLS Gen Mun §§ 50-e and 50-i and record contained no facts to support finding of equitable estoppel against city. Siahaan v New York, 123 A.D.2d 620, 506 N.Y.S.2d 777, 1986 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 60768 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1986).

Extension to file claim against municipal corporation could not be beyond date which was one year and 90 days after happening of event upon which claim was based; court was powerless to entertain application after such time. Walcott v Cazenovia, 91 Misc. 2d 437, 398 N.Y.S.2d 116, 1977 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2324 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1977), aff'd, 65 A.D.2d 671, 409 N.Y.S.2d 802, 1978 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13394 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1978).

That the notice of claim regarding plaintiff's malpractice claim against the New York City Health and Hospital (HCC) was actually received by HCC's office of legal affairs was immaterial, as it received that notice after the 90-day period of the savings clause in N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(3)(c) had expired. Barnaman v New York City Health & Hosps. Corp., 90 A.D.3d 588, 934 N.Y.S.2d 443, 2011 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8781 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2011).

In a suit by a former county parks department employee and his guardian ad litem (plaintiffs) against a city and three supervisory parks department employees, alleging disability discrimination, plaintiffs were unable to maintain their state law claims against the county because they failed to file a required notice prior to commencing litigation, and a federal district court lacked jurisdiction under N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(7) to consider plaintiffs' motion for leave to file a late notice of claim. Costabile v County of Westchester, 485 F. Supp. 2d 424, 2007 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 33484 (S.D.N.Y. 2007).

119. —Effect of statute of limitations

The trial court improperly granted a motion for leave to serve a late notice of claim nunc pro tunc upon a town and a sewer authority and to add the town and sewer authority as additional parties, where the applicable statute of limitations had expired and the court thus was without jurisdiction to grant the motion. Dua v Suffolk County, 96 A.D.2d 1072, 466 N.Y.S.2d 710, 1983 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 19722 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1983).

Supreme Court lacked authority to grant plaintiff's motion to amend, nunc pro tunc, prior order granting leave to serve late notice of claim on New York City Transit Authority after statute of limitations had expired. De Simone v New York, 132 A.D.2d

687, 518 N.Y.S.2d 165, 1987 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 49230 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1987).

Court had no discretion to extend plaintiff's time to file late notices of claim in negligence action against town, where notices were filed after statute of limitations had expired and there was no evidence that town defendants engaged in misconduct preventing plaintiff from timely filing his claim. Smith v Town of Ellisburg, 234 A.D.2d 938, 651 N.Y.S.2d 772, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13665 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1996).

Where claimants sought to serve late notice of a claim against a sewer authority due to the late provision of discovery by a city's counsel, the trial court could not grant their request because the statute of limitations for a suit against the authority had expired and the authority was not equitably estopped from raising the statute of limitations, even though the city's counsel was also the authority's counsel, because the authority had done nothing to cause the discovery delay. Wilson v City of Buffalo, 298 A.D.2d 994, 747 N.Y.S.2d 657, 2002 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9044 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 2002), app. denied, 99 N.Y.2d 505, 755 N.Y.S.2d 712, 785 N.E.2d 734, 2003 N.Y. LEXIS 47 (N.Y. 2003).

In a wrongful death action alleging medical malpractice, filed against a New York City, N.Y., public hospital, the trial court did not have discretion to grant the survivor's request to serve a late notice of claim against the New York City Health and Hospitals Corporation because the statute of limitations for the commencement of wrongful death actions against the corporation had expired. Jones v City of New York, 300 A.D.2d 359, 751 N.Y.S.2d 522, 2002 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11929 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2002).

Appeals court reversed a trial court order that had granted a land owner permission to file a late (under N.Y. Educ. Law 3813(2) and N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law 50-e(1)(a) as being served more than 90 days after the owner's claim accrued) notice of claim against a school for its sewer discharges; the trial court's permission could not be granted since the N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-i(1) one-year and 90-day statute of limitations period had expired. Schwinghammer v Sullivan W. Cent. Sch. Dist., 2 A.D.3d 1126, 768 N.Y.S.2d 696, 2003 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13534 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2003).

When an injured party seeking damages from a municipality for personal injuries served notice of her claim 91 days after the accident, and then later sought an extension of time within which to file a timely claim, the trial court had no power to grant her request because the applicable statute of limitations expired three days before she sought an extension of time. Hallett v City of Ithaca, 8 A.D.3d 870, 778 N.Y.S.2d 321, 2004 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8598 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), app. denied, 3 N.Y.3d 608, 786 N.Y.S.2d 811, 820 N.E.2d 290, 2004 N.Y. LEXIS 2395 (N.Y. 2004).

In a claimant's personal injury action against a school district and a bus driver, the trial court lacked authority to grant the claimant leave to serve a late notice of claim because the 1-year-and-90-day period expired on December 19, 2013, but the claimant did not move for leave to serve a late notice of claim until approximately eight months after the statute of limitations had run. Cassidy v Riverhead Cent. Sch. Dist., 128 A.D.3d 996, 11 N.Y.S.3d 102, 2015 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4369 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2015).

120. Burden of proof

Section 50-e casts upon the party making the application for leave to serve a notice of claim the duty of showing the particular facts causing the delay. Ruskin v New York, 271 A.D. 934, 67 N.Y.S.2d 597, 1947 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5269 (N.Y. App. Div.), app. denied, 271 A.D. 1023, 69 N.Y.S.2d 921, 1947 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5697 (N.Y. App. Div. 1947).

Upon an adequate showing of one of the statutory grounds for extending the time to give notice of claim, and upon application within the maximum time limitation, the court has discretion to grant an extension of time. Stuto v New York, 84 N.Y.S.2d 812, 192 Misc. 935, 1948 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3677 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1948).

Where a mother, on behalf of herself and her injured child, failed to show a reasonable excuse for her delay in filing a notice of claim in her personal injury action against a city and the city board of education, nor did she show actual knowledge of the claim on the part of the city and the board and the absence of prejudice to them, her request to file a late notice of claim required denial under N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(1). Bodrick v City of New York, 799 N.Y.S.2d 158, 5 Misc. 3d 1024(A), 2004 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2472 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 2004).

121. Retroactive effect of amendment broadening relief

Claimants whose tort claims against public corporations accrued within one year prior to September 1, 1976, the effective date of an amendment to subdivision 5 of section 50-e of the General Municipal Law (L 1976, ch 745, § 2), may take advantage of the expanded guidelines which are set forth in that amendment for the exercise of a court's discretion in determining whether to allow late filing of a notice of such a claim and which, in substance, require a court to consider not only the factors to which it was formerly limited but other newly specified ones along with "all other relevant facts and circumstances", and to consider, in particular, whether the public corporation or those acting for it acquired actual knowledge of the essential facts of the claim within the prescribed period for filing it, which is 90 days of its accrual (General Municipal Law, § 50-e, subd 1, par [a]), or within a reasonable time thereafter. Beary v Rye, 44 N.Y.2d 398, 406 N.Y.S.2d 9, 377 N.E.2d 453, 1978 N.Y. LEXIS 1960 (N.Y. 1978).

An amendment to subdivision 5 of section 50-e of the General Municipal Law (L 1976, ch 745, § 2), expanding the grounds upon which a court may allow late filing of a notice of a tort claim against a public corporation and lengthening the time within which an application for such relief can be made from "one year after the happening of the event upon which the claim is based" to the "time limited for the commencement of an action by the claimant against the public corporation", which, save where the claimant is under a disability, is one year and 90 days after the happening of the event upon which the claim is based (General Municipal Law, § 50-i), may not be applied retrospectively to revive claims that accrued more than one year prior to its effective date of September 1, 1976. Beary v Rye, 44 N.Y.2d 398, 406 N.Y.S.2d 9, 377 N.E.2d 453, 1978 N.Y. LEXIS 1960 (N.Y. 1978).

Amendment to General Municipal Law which became effective September 1 and under which court had discretion to extend time to serve notice of claim should be given restrospective application. Nolan v County of Otsego, 55 A.D.2d 422, 391 N.Y.S.2d 15, 1977 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9992 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1977).

Where statute originally limited applications to file late notice of claim against municipality to period of one year subsequent to date of accident and where such statute was amended, effective September 1, 1976, so as to extend period of time within which court could exercise its discretion to permit service of late notice of claim to period permitted for commencement of action by claimant against public corporation, but amendment gave no indication that it was meant to apply retroactively, one-year limitation period contained in prior law barred petitioner's action which was filed in January, 1976 and which was based on accident which occurred in June, 1973. Pauletti v Freeport Union Free School Dist., 59 A.D.2d 556, 397 N.Y.S.2d 146, 1977 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13346 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1977), aff'd, 44 N.Y.2d 398, 406 N.Y.S.2d 9, 377 N.E.2d 453, 1978 N.Y. LEXIS 1960 (N.Y. 1978).

Amendment vesting courts with broader discretion to consider all relevant facts and circumstances in deciding whether to extend time to serve a notice of claim beyond specified 90-day period applies retroactively. Williams v Irondequoit, 59 A.D.2d 1049, 399 N.Y.S.2d 807, 1977 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 14336 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1977).

Under subdivision 5 of section 50-e of the General Municipal Law, as amended effective September 1, 1976, the period of one year and 90 days within which a court of competent jurisdiction may extend the time for a notice of claim to be served upon a public corporation may be tolled by infancy under CPLR 208, since it was the intent of the Legislature to extend significantly the discretion of the court to grant leave to file a notice of claim, and consideration of infancy is warranted even though the disability may not have been the reason for the failure to serve a late notice; accordingly, an infant injured less than two months before the amendment may, some 17 months after the accident, file a late notice of claim against the town and village allegedly responsible for his injuries, since the amendment has been given a modified retroactive effect to claimants whose causes of action accrued within the prescribed one-year period preceding the effective amendatory date, and since the defendant municipalities not only had notice of plaintiff's injuries on the day it occurred, but actually investigated it that day. A just claim for damages for a serious injury should not be forfeited for failure to give notice where the basic purpose of the statute is not offended and where no substantial prejudice exists. Ziecker v Orchard Park, 70 A.D.2d 422, 421 N.Y.S.2d 447, 1979 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12732 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1979), aff'd, 51 N.Y.2d 957, 435 N.Y.S.2d 720, 416 N.E.2d 1055, 1980 N.Y. LEXIS 2821 (N.Y. 1980).

Amendment to General Municipal Law granting to court discretion to extend time to serve notice of claim was remedial in nature and was to be given retrospective application. Walcott v Cazenovia, 91 Misc. 2d 437, 398 N.Y.S.2d 116, 1977 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2324 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1977), aff'd, 65 A.D.2d 671, 409 N.Y.S.2d 802, 1978 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13394 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1978).

122. —Particular claims

Court had discretion under 1976 amendments to extend time to file notice of claim against county for injuries sustained in automobile accident on October 21, 1975. Nolan v County of Otsego, 55 A.D.2d 422, 391 N.Y.S.2d 15, 1977 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9992 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1977).

Plaintiff was not entitled to leave to serve late notice of claim against municipal hospital, notwithstanding her continuous treatment from her birth in December 1973 until February 1977, since version of CLS Gen Mun § 50-e in effect in 1973 provided that application for leave to serve late notice of claim was required to be made within one year of event on which claim was based, and 1976 amendment to statute did not revive claims that accrued more than one year prior to amendment. Aponte v Bellevue Hosp. Center, 183 A.D.2d 594, 584 N.Y.S.2d 28, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7425 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1992).

123. Relationship to other statutes

An order which granted plaintiff's motion for leave to file a late notice of claim and to serve an amended complaint was reversed, where plaintiff failed to comply with the requirements of Public Authorities Law § 1276(1) and § 50-e of the General Municipal Law. Sudakin v Long Island R. R. Co., 32 A.D.2d 560, 300 N.Y.S.2d 371, 1969 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4190 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1969).

Plaintiffs' motion, to amend their notice of claim so as to include claims for loss of each other's services and consortium, was properly one for amendment so as to supply omission, inasmuch as it sought to add derivative causes of action predicated upon same facts which had already been included in plaintiffs' notice of claim and which defendant had already been duly and timely notified; motion should not have been treated as motion for leave to serve late notice of claim. Dodd v Warren, 110 A.D.2d 807, 488 N.Y.S.2d 70, 1985 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 48713 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1985).

Petitioner who failed to timely serve notice of claim on village would not be allowed to file late notice of claim on grounds that CLS CPLR § 215(8) tolls provisions of CLS Gen Mun § 50-e; § 50-e, which provides that notice of claim must be served within 90 days of accrual of claim, is condition precedent to suit, whereas § 215(8) is toll on commencement of substantive cause of action and does not apply to, or toll, time period within which notice of claim must be served. Herman v Chester, 125 A.D.2d 469, 509 N.Y.S.2d 818, 1986 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 62762 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1986).

Where, following service of notice of claim of injuries to an infant plaintiff, the defendant served notice upon plaintiffs requiring them to appear for examination before trial, and the examination was held October 15, 1964 and thereafter summons and complaint were served on May 24, 1965, one year and 138 days from the date of the accident, the plaintiffs being prohibited from commencing their action from April 21, 1964 until the examination on October 15, 1964, a period of 177 days, that period must be added to the period provided by § 50-i, and the action was timely commenced and was not barred by statutory limitations. Rowe v Board of Education, 47 Misc. 2d 621, 263 N.Y.S.2d 57, 1965 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1615 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1965).

In personal injury action against regional off-track betting corporation, Supreme Court had jurisdiction to extend time to serve notice of claim under CLS Racing & Wagering § 514 since (1) CLS Gen Mun § 50-e gives court general discretion to extend time to serve notice of claim in tort actions where notice of claim is required as condition precedent against "public corporation, as defined in the general construction law," (2) CLS Gen Const § 66 defines public corporation as "public benefit corporation," and (3) regional off-track betting corporation is public benefit corporation under CLS Racing & Wagering § 502. Burke v Capital Dist. Regional Off-Track Betting Corp., 137 Misc. 2d 448, 521 N.Y.S.2d 205, 1987 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2650 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1987).

124. Relationship to procedural rules

Plaintiff's application to serve a late notice of claim pursuant to Gen Mun Law § 50-e was improperly commenced as a motion since no action was pending against the town; however, it was proper to treat the matter as a special proceeding and therefore, under the express provisions of CPLR § 404, when the trial court overruled the municipality's objection to the application on the ground that the court had not acquired personal jurisdiction, it should have given the municipality permission to defend the application on the merits by way of answer and answering affidavits. Lannon v Henrietta, 87 A.D.2d 980, 450 N.Y.S.2d 108, 1982 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 16516 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1982).

Application for leave to file late notice of claim was improperly brought as motion against New York City Housing Authority where no previously-commenced action was pending. Rogers v New York City Housing Authority, 169 A.D.2d 763, 565 N.Y.S.2d 130, 1991 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1034 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1991).

There being no action presently pending against a municipality, a court has no jurisdiction, under Civil Practice Act § 324, to grant, in connection with an infant's motion to extend time for service of notice of claim on the municipality, a motion to require a city investigator to produce statements given by claimant and her mother in support of the application to extend time for service. Berkowitz v Long Beach, 33 Misc. 2d 449, 225 N.Y.S.2d 1002, 1962 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3765 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1962).

The service of papers not in conformance with the provision of the former Rules of Civil Practice in that they did not conform to the copies of the affidavit and proposed claim, and the lack of the return of the statement of objections within the 24 hour period, will not prevent a court, in its discretion, in extending the statutory 90 day period for filing notice of claim. Tinkler v Board of Education, 106 N.Y.S.2d 262, 1951 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2042 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1951).

125. Summons and complaint in lieu of notice of claim

In an action resulting from a fall allegedly sustained on a municipal golf course, as to which plaintiffs had served an untimely notice of claim on defendant-town had moved to have the notice declared duly served pursuant to Gen Mun Law §§ 50-e and 50-i, and, while the decision on the motion was still pending, had served a summons and complaint alleging compliance with service of the notice of claim requirement of Gen Mun Law § 50-e, plaintiffs were not entitled to default judgment when defendant failed to comply with provisions of CPLR § 320(a) requiring it to move, appear and/or answer within 20 days where, when plaintiffs had moved to validate their notice of claim, defendant, being on notice of such motion, could reasonably have relied on the fact that plaintiffs themselves realized that their notice was deficient so that when the complaint had been received by defendant, before the motion to validate had been decided, defendant could again reasonably rely on the fact that compliance with Gen Mun Law § 50-e, as alleged in the complaint, could only be considered complete if plaintiffs' motion to validate was granted, which did not happen until well after the complaint was served, and the reasonable reliance permitted defendant under the circumstances provided sufficient excuse for delay or default in answering, especially since no prejudice whatever had been shown by plaintiff. Kilbride v Fallsburg, 108 A.D.2d 1100, 485 N.Y.S.2d 668, 1985 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 43397 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1985).

Where the defendant railroad investigated an accident immediately after its occurrence, received actual notice of the accident by means of a letter from plaintiff's attorney, and was served within 88 days of the accident with a summons and complaint; plaintiff's motion to file a late notice of claim was granted, and alternatively plaintiff's motion that service of a notice of claim could be dispensed with in view of the service of summons and complaint was granted and the defendant estopped from establishing any defense based upon the failure to file a notice of claim within 90 days. Quintero v Long Island Railroad, 55 Misc. 2d 813, 286 N.Y.S.2d 748, 1968 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1865 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1968), aff'd, 31 A.D.2d 844, 298 N.Y.S.2d 109, 1969 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4537 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1969).

126. Time excludable from statutory period; date of injury

Petitioner would be denied leave to file late notice of claim under CLS Gen Mun § 50-e where proceeding for permission to file late notice was commenced some 2 years and 9 months after claim accrued, and did not relate back to prior applications by petitioner for such relief; moreover, petitioner would not be entitled to 14-month extension of one-year 90-day limitation period simply because he allegedly filed notice of appeal from order denying his application on renewal and subsequently withdrew his appeal without ever perfecting it, since such extension would frustrate purpose of time limitations set forth in statute. Zimmerman v New York, 161 A.D.2d 591, 555 N.Y.S.2d 170, 1990 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5361 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't), app. denied, 76 N.Y.2d 707, 560 N.Y.S.2d 989, 561 N.E.2d 889, 1990 N.Y. LEXIS 3032 (N.Y. 1990).

In view of the provisions of §§ 20 and 25-a of the General Construction Law, where the injury on which a claim against a municipality is based occurs on July 22, 1961, that date is excluded and the statutory one-year period begins to run on the following day, and if the end of the period then falls on a Sunday, notice is timely if served on the next succeeding business day. Aposporos v Poughkeepsie, 37 Misc. 2d 56, 232 N.Y.S.2d 700, 1962 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2488 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1962).

Since plaintiff's accident occurred on November 8, 1963, the one-year statute of limitations prescribed by General Municipal Laws § 50-e(5) began to run on November 9, 1963, and would normally expire on November 8, 1964, but where that day fell on a Sunday, the period expired on the following day, November 9, 1964. Conway v Board of Education, 47 Misc. 2d 172, 262 N.Y.S.2d 15, 1965 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1633 (N.Y. County Ct. 1965).

127. —Holidays

The fact that the last day for serving notice of claim is a half-holiday does not preclude service on that day, and if service is put off to the next day without obtaining an extension of time, the claim fails. Meier v New York, 106 N.Y.S.2d 278, 199 Misc. 305, 1951 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2047 (N.Y. App. Term 1951).

128. —Weekends

In view of the provisions of §§ 20 and 25-a of the General Construction Law, where the injury on which a claim against a municipality is based occurs on July 22, 1961, that date is excluded and the statutory one-year period begins to run on the following day, and if the end of the period then falls on a Sunday, notice is timely if served on the next succeeding business day. Aposporos v Poughkeepsie, 37 Misc. 2d 56, 232 N.Y.S.2d 700, 1962 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2488 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1962).

Since plaintiff's accident occurred on November 8, 1963, the one-year statute of limitations prescribed by General Municipal Laws § 50-e(5) began to run on November 9, 1963, and would normally expire on November 8, 1964, but where that day fell on a Sunday, the period expired on the following day, November 9, 1964. Conway v Board of Education, 47 Misc. 2d 172, 262 N.Y.S.2d 15, 1965 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1633 (N.Y. County Ct. 1965).

Where last calendar day for service of notice of claim fell on Saturday, when city offices were closed on Saturdays, service of notice on next business day, Monday, was held sufficient. Sternfield v New York, 55 Misc. 2d 70, 284 N.Y.S.2d 258, 1967 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1177 (N.Y. Civ. Ct. 1967).

129. Application for extension as tolling statute of limitations

Where a passenger injured in an accident on December 23, 1963 sought leave to file a late notice of claim on December 18, 1964 and an order permitting the late filing was signed on February 15, 1965, the one-year statute of limitations was tolled from the time the proceeding to file the late claim was instituted until the order granting that request was published, so that an action commenced within 30 days thereafter on March 22, 1965 was timely. Barchet v New York City Transit Authority, 20 N.Y.2d 1, 281 N.Y.S.2d 289, 228 N.E.2d 361, 1967 N.Y. LEXIS 1446 (N.Y. 1967).

One-year statute of limitations was tolled when personal injury claimant initiated successful proceedings to file a late claim 5 days before expiration of limitation period. Barchet v New York City Transit Authority, 20 N.Y.2d 1, 281 N.Y.S.2d 289, 228 N.E.2d 361, 1967 N.Y. LEXIS 1446 (N.Y. 1967).

In an action against a municipal corporation in which the claimant moved for permission to file a late notice of claim, the Appellate Division did not abuse its discretion as a matter of law in granting the motion after Special Term denied it; the case could not be held to be moot on the ground that the time for serving the complaint expired after the motion was made, since the running of the statute was tolled once the motion was made. Stevenson v County of Monroe, 63 N.Y.2d 963, 483 N.Y.S.2d 987, 473 N.E.2d 237, 1984 N.Y. LEXIS 4735 (N.Y. 1984).

Statute of limitations for commencement of action against municipality is tolled from time plaintiff seeks leave to serve late notice of claim until order granting such relief goes into effect. Rieara v New York, Dep't of Parks & Recreation, 156 A.D.2d 206, 548 N.Y.S.2d 466, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 15470 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1989).

Renewal of motion to file late notice of claim under CLS Gen Mun § 50-e in action against municipality does not relate back to date of initial motion which was denied with leave to renew. Rieara v New York, Dep't of Parks & Recreation, 156 A.D.2d 206, 548 N.Y.S.2d 466, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 15470 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1989).

Statute of limitations was tolled during pendency of plaintiff's application for leave to serve late notice of claim where plaintiff was statutorily prohibited from bringing action until she was granted such leave (CLS Pub Hous § 157, CLS Gen Mun § 50-e(5)); earlier, timely notice of claim signed by decedent's mother did not remove this impediment to suit since notice of claim must be sworn to by or on behalf of claimant. Munn v New York City Hous. Auth., 202 A.D.2d 210, 608 N.Y.S.2d 221, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1847 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1994).

Amendment of General Municipal Law provision governing applications to obtain leave to file late notice of claim did not preclude application of rule tolling statute of limitations during pendency of such application to action commenced against school district after elapse of one year and 90-day period by plaintiff, whose application for leave to file late notice was not granted until after elapse of that period, and consequently action was not barred by statute of limitations. Colantuono v Valley Cent. School Dist., 90 Misc. 2d 918, 396 N.Y.S.2d 590, 1977 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2189 (N.Y. Sup. Ct.), aff'd, 59 A.D.2d 926, 399 N.Y.S.2d 262, 1977 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 14144 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1977).

Statute of limitations is tolled from time plaintiff commences proceeding to obtain leave to file late notice of claim until order granting that relief goes into effect, and order granting leave to serve late notice of claim is deemed effective when order is entered, rather than at time plaintiff receives order, unless plaintiff's delay in filing order is egregious. Redhead v Parish, 128 Misc. 2d 750, 490 N.Y.S.2d 721, 1985 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2989 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1985).

130. Notice of motion for extension

Amendment of CLS Gen Mun § 50-e(5) in 1976, omitting former requirement that notice of application to serve late notice of claim be served in same manner as notice of claim, was intentional omission designed to mitigate harsh consequences of rigid application of prior requirements, and evinced legislative intent to give courts broad discretion in entertaining such applications; thus, Supreme Court did not lack jurisdiction to consider such application, although copy had been sent to city's corporation counsel by ordinary mail rather than being personally served. Callahan v New York, 75 N.Y.2d 899, 554 N.Y.S.2d 819, 553 N.E.2d 1329, 1990 N.Y. LEXIS 667 (N.Y. 1990).

Plaintiff's application to serve a late notice of claim pursuant to Gen Mun Law § 50-e was improperly commenced as a motion since no action was pending against the town; however, it was proper to treat the matter as a special proceeding and therefore, under the express provisions of CPLR § 404, when the trial court overruled the municipality's objection to the application on the ground that the court had not acquired personal jurisdiction, it should have given the municipality permission to defend the application on the merits by way of answer and answering affidavits. Lannon v Henrietta, 87 A.D.2d 980, 450 N.Y.S.2d 108, 1982 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 16516 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1982).

In proceeding under CLS Gen Mun § 50-e(5) against county and others for leave to file late notice of claim, court did not have personal jurisdiction over respondents, and thus they were entitled to vacatur of their default in opposing petition, where (1) original service of notice of petition and petition by ordinary mail was jurisdictionally defective under CLS CPLR § 403(c), and (2) reservice of process, which was accomplished on return date of petition, was jurisdictionally defective because it failed to give adequate notice of return date to respondents. Cartier v County of Nassau, 281 A.D.2d 477, 722 N.Y.S.2d 45, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2352 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2001).

Supreme court properly exercised its discretion in granting an application under N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(5) to serve a late notice of claim on a county because the county, which possessed the relevant medical records from the time of the alleged malpractice, had actual notice of the essential facts underlying the claim and was not substantially prejudiced by the delay. Under the circumstances, the lack of a reasonable excuse did not prevent the court from granting leave to serve a late notice of claim on the county. Matter of Rivera-Guallpa v County of Nassau, 40 A.D.3d 1001, 836 N.Y.S.2d 288, 2007 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6418 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't), app. denied, 9 N.Y.3d 816, 849 N.Y.S.2d 32, 879 N.E.2d 172, 2007 N.Y. LEXIS 3765 (N.Y. 2007).

Since subdivision 5 of section 50-e of the General Municipal Law, as amended effective September 1, 1976, no longer requires that notice be given to the party against whom the claim is made on an application to extend the time to serve a late notice of claim, as opposed to the prior statute which did contain a notice requirement, Special Term is free to exercise its discretion in deciding an ex parte application for leave to serve a late notice of claim based solely on the submitted application. Cobb v Niagara Frontier Transp. Authority, 98 Misc. 2d 191, 413 N.Y.S.2d 613, 1979 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2064 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1979).

131. Timeliness of motion for extension

Leave to file a late claim against a city would be denied to a plaintiff who was injured at a public pool, where at the time of the accident plaintiff gave as the cause of her injury a cause different from that contained in the request to file a late claim, where the original description of the cause of her injury did not provide the public entity with actual knowledge of the essential facts constituting the claim, where plaintiff was unable to adequately identify the persons to whom she allegedly provided the correct information on the day of the accident, and where plaintiff was unable to explain the lengthy delay in retaining counsel and initiating the claim against the county. Raczy v County of Westchester, 95 A.D.2d 859, 464 N.Y.S.2d 223, 1983 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 18809 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1983).

In a medical malpractice action against a county hospital, the trial court properly denied plaintiffs' motion for leave to serve a late notice of claim under Gen Mun Law § 50-e where such motion was raised ten months after plaintiff patient's discharge from defendant hospital, and where plaintiffs failed to include a proposed notice of claim with their motion papers in support of their application, and only submitted such a proposed notice of claim in response to defendant's opposition to plaintiffs' later motion for reargument following the trial court's initial denial of their application. Losavio v Stein, 98 A.D.2d 742, 469 N.Y.S.2d 447, 1983 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 21056 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1983).

Application under CLS Gen Mun § 50-e(5) to serve late notice of claim was properly denied where not only was delay not attributable to petitioner's infancy, as counsel was retained within 90 days of incident, but there was no evidence that county had actual knowledge of claim, and petitioner failed to give adequate explanation of why application was delayed more than one year after accident. Bast v County of Clinton, 173 A.D.2d 1079, 570 N.Y.S.2d 416, 1991 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7207 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), app. dismissed, 78 N.Y.2d 1002, 575 N.Y.S.2d 276, 580 N.E.2d 762, 1991 N.Y. LEXIS 4150 (N.Y. 1991).

Even if respondents misled petitioner as to relevant statute of limitations, petitioner was not entitled to leave to file late notice of claim in light of 7-month delay in commencing proceedings after learning of applicability of CLS Gen Oblig § 50-e. Nelson v Board of Collective Bargaining, 204 A.D.2d 216, 613 N.Y.S.2d 1, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5572 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't), app. dismissed, 84 N.Y.2d 1004, 622 N.Y.S.2d 908, 647 N.E.2d 114, 1994 N.Y. LEXIS 4579 (N.Y. 1994), app. dismissed, 85 N.Y.2d 956, 628 N.Y.S.2d 47, 651 N.E.2d 916, 1995 N.Y. LEXIS 1425 (N.Y. 1995), app. dismissed, 86 N.Y.2d 809, 632 N.Y.S.2d 494, 656 N.E.2d 592, 1995 N.Y. LEXIS 3441 (N.Y. 1995).

Court erred in denying petitioner's application to serve late notice of claim against city where city had known about his injury from day it occurred, his counsel timely obtained order to show cause for leave to file late notice of claim, but erroneously served motion papers same day on Comptroller's office rather than corporation counsel, Comptroller subsequently acknowledged such service 2 days later, and thereafter it was only on return date of motion, 4 days after one-year-and-90-day period within which to make such motion had expired, that corporation counsel claimed lack of service and asked for one week adjournment to oppose application on jurisdictional grounds. Morgan v City of New York, 216 A.D.2d 246, 628 N.Y.S.2d 697, 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7109 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1995).

Leave to assert claim against school district for decedent's conscious pain and suffering and derivative claim was properly denied where petitioners failed to adequately explain their 15-month delay in moving for leave to assert late notice of claim. Traylor v Comsewogue Sch. Dist., 265 A.D.2d 332, 696 N.Y.S.2d 219, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9616 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1999).

Trial court erred in granting plaintiff's motion pursuant to N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(5) for leave to serve a late notice of a negligent supervision claim against defendants; defendants did not receive timely actual knowledge of the facts underlying the claim, and plaintiff failed to show a reasonable excuse for the delay in filing the notice of claim. Jasinski v HB Ward Tech. Sch., 306 A.D.2d 347, 760 N.Y.S.2d 676, 2003 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6474 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2003).

As an injured person failed to serve a notice of claim on a transit authority in a timely fashion, and failed to move to deem the notice of claim served nunc pro tunc in a timely fashion, the trial court was without authority to deem the notice served nunc pro tunc. Small v N.Y. City Tr. Auth., 14 A.D.3d 690, 789 N.Y.S.2d 229, 2005 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 776 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2005).

Supreme Court would deny plaintiff's motion to file late notice of claim against city for damages incurred when city sanitation truck backed into plaintiff's car where plaintiff's application to file late notice was also untimely and could not be considered renewal of initial, timely motion plaintiff had filed in Civil Court which motion had to be considered nullity because Civil Court lacked subject matter jurisdiction. Perez v New York, 133 Misc. 2d 1083, 509 N.Y.S.2d 289, 1986 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3033 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1986).

Request by an infant and his mother to file a late notice of claim naming a school district's individual employees in their action arising out of a hazing incident was denied; the request was untimely, and the infant and his mother offered no explanation for their failure to name the individual defendants in their original notice of claim or for the need to add the individual defendants after the original notice was filed. White v Averill Park Cent. Sch. Dist., 195 Misc. 2d 409, 759 N.Y.S.2d 641, 2003 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 263 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 2003).

CLS Gen Mun L § 50-e, subd 5 recognizes that there may be instances when a lawsuit is commenced prior to the making of an application to file a late notice of claim, and specifically provides that such an application shall not be denied on the ground that it was made after the action was commenced. Palazzo v New York, 444 F. Supp. 1089, 1978 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 20257 (E.D.N.Y. 1978).

132. —Effect of statute of limitations

In three separate actions seeking money damages against a city in which permissions to file late notices of claim were requested after the limitations period for commencing actions against a municipality had expired under Gen Mun Law § 50-i, the trial court erred in granting the claimant's motion to strike the city's defense that there was no compliance with the notice of claim requirement of Gen Mun Law § 50-e and claimants would be granted leave to file late notices of claim nunc pro tunc since an application for an extension may be made before or after the commencement of the action but not more than one year and 90 days after the cause of action accrued, unless the statute has been tolled; to allow a court to grant an extension which exceeded the statute of limitations would render meaningless that portion of Gen Mun Law § 50-e which expressly prohibits a court from doing so. Pierson v New York, 56 N.Y.2d 950, 453 N.Y.S.2d 615, 439 N.E.2d 331, 1982 N.Y. LEXIS 3523 (N.Y. 1982).

The application for extension of time to serve notice of claim must be made prior to commencement of an action to enforce the claim, and the time limitations for commencement of such an action (now found in § 50-i) are not tolled or extended by existence of ground for, or the making of an application for, an extension of time to service the notice of claim. Christian v Herkimer, 5 A.D.2d 62, 169 N.Y.S.2d 81, 1957 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3459 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1957), aff'd, 5 N.Y.2d 818, 181 N.Y.S.2d 212, 155 N.E.2d 122, 1958 N.Y. LEXIS 718 (N.Y. 1958).

In a medical malpractice action, the court was not authorized, as a matter of law, to grant leave to serve a late notice of claim upon an application pursuant to Gen Mun Law § 50-e made after the Statute of Limitations for an action against the public corporation had expired. Kral v County of Westchester, 101 A.D.2d 880, 476 N.Y.S.2d 353, 1984 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 18587 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't), app. dismissed, 63 N.Y.2d 944, 1984 N.Y. LEXIS 6205 (N.Y. 1984).

After statute of limitations had expired on wrongful death action, plaintiff who had served wrong party as defendant, and who also failed to make proper defendant a party to her application for relief, was not entitled to order permitting her to serve and file late notice of claim, summons and complaint on proper party nunc pro tunc, nor to amend her original notice of claim, summons and complaint to substitute proper party as defendant. Washington v Brookdale Hospital, 126 A.D.2d 719, 511 N.Y.S.2d 317, 1987 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 41865 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1987).

Even though city received notice of claim 8 months after incident but waited until statute of limitations had expired before making motion to dismiss complaint on ground that no timely notice of claim had been filed and no timely application for permission to file late notice of claim had been made, Special Term was without discretion to deny city's motion and sua sponte deem late notice of claim timely served, nunc pro tunc, since, as matter of law, court has no power to grant extensions of time to file notice of claim after statute of limitations expires, notwithstanding that city may have otherwise received notice of occurrence within statutory period. Henderson v New York, 127 A.D.2d 451, 511 N.Y.S.2d 242, 1987 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 42951 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't), app. dismissed, 69 N.Y.2d 1000, 517 N.Y.S.2d 1032, 511 N.E.2d 91, 1987 N.Y. LEXIS 16936 (N.Y. 1987), app. denied, 70 N.Y.2d 604, 519 N.Y.S.2d 1027, 513 N.E.2d 1307, 1987 N.Y. LEXIS 18195 (N.Y. 1987).

In action under Human Rights Law, in which court dismissed claim that county employee was subjected to retaliatory demotion by certain county official because plaintiffs failed to allege discriminatory intent or to allege that other county defendants acquiesced in demotion, plaintiffs were properly permitted to replead claim against individual defendants; however, leave to replead claim against county should have been denied, since notice of claim was not filed within 90 days, and motion to file late notice was not made within period of statute of limitations. Summers v County of Monroe, 147 A.D.2d 949, 537 N.Y.S.2d 703, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1294 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't), app. dismissed, 74 N.Y.2d 735, 544 N.Y.S.2d 819, 543 N.E.2d 84, 1989 N.Y. LEXIS 4950 (N.Y. 1989).

Court had no authority to direct that earlier, untimely notice of claim against New York City Housing Authority be deemed timely where plaintiff failed to make application for leave to file late notice of claim prior to expiration of one-year statute of limitations applicable to his claims based on intentional torts; thus, those causes of action should have been dismissed. Rice v New York City Housing Authority, 149 A.D.2d 495, 539 N.Y.S.2d 977, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4842 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1989).

Administrator of estate was not entitled to serve late notice of claim for conscious pain and suffering damages on county medical center, with respect to individual who died October 12, 1988 while patient of medical center, where administrator—who was appointed on January 12, 1990—both filed notice of claim alleging wrongful death by reason of medical malpractice early in April 1990 and simultaneously moved for leave to serve late notice of claim for pain and suffering; wrongful death notice was timely as within 90 days of administrator's appointment, but claim for pain and suffering was brought more than one year and 90 days after decedent's death, and thus statute of limitations had expired. Rasmussen v Nassau County Medical Center, 181 A.D.2d 679, 580 N.Y.S.2d 786, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2989 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1992).

Defendant village was entitled to dismissal of complaint for failure to timely file notice of claim since delivery of summons and complaint to sheriff pursuant to CLS CPLR § 203(b)(5) did not toll statute of limitations, and thus did not render timely plaintiff's motion for leave to file late notice of claim which was served within 60 days of delivery of papers to sheriff. Robinson v Lancaster, 187 A.D.2d 932, 590 N.Y.S.2d 355, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13923 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1992).

Plaintiffs' motion for leave to amend notice of claim and complaint should have been denied where it was made after statute of limitations had expired, and plaintiffs sought to add new theory of recovery that would have substantially altered nature of their claims. Herron v City of New York, 223 A.D.2d 676, 637 N.Y.S.2d 438, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 654 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1996).

Court properly denied leave to serve late notice of claim on New York City Department of Housing Preservation and Development (HPD) where application was not made until after expiration of statute of limitations, and petitioner failed to demonstrate that HPD engaged in any misleading conduct which would support finding of equitable estoppel. Dockery v Department of Hous. Preservation & Dev., 223 A.D.2d 705, 637 N.Y.S.2d 183, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 637 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1996).

Plaintiffs' motion for leave to serve late notice of claim against State Dormitory Authority (SDA) was untimely under CLS Gen Mun § 50-e(5), which provides that such extension "shall not exceed the time limited for the commencement" of action, where (1) notice of motion was dated 2 years and one month after accident, and (2) under CLS Pub A § 1691(1), with exception of action for wrongful death, tort action against SDA must be commenced within one year and 90 days after cause of action accrues. Chimera v New York State Dormitory Auth., 273 A.D.2d 802, 709 N.Y.S.2d 302, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6808 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 2000).

N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(5), which permitted the extension of the time to serve a notice of claim, was of no help to a former arrestee whose N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e notice of claim did not include allegations of false arrest and malicious prosecution, because the former arrestee did not seek to file a late notice and was time-barred from bringing any new claims under N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-i(1). Scott v City of New York, 40 A.D.3d 408, 836 N.Y.S.2d 140, 2007 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6075 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2007).

Under Gen Mun Law § 50-e(5) the court would be without jurisdiction to allow the filing of a late notice of claim with defendant New York City Industrial Development Agency, where no notice of claim was ever filed by plaintiffs with the agency and the application was made after expiration of the one-year limitations period in Gen Mun Law § 880(2) applicable to plaintiffs' causes of action for personal injury, conscious pain and suffering and wrongful death; the mere service of the complaint upon the agency within the statutory period, but beyond the initial 90 days, would not suffice as a timely "notice of claim" as contemplated by the statute. Colon v New York, 116 Misc. 2d 729, 456 N.Y.S.2d 320, 1982 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3947 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1982).

133. —Expiration of statutory period

Although plaintiffs in actions to recover damages for personal injuries commenced their actions against a housing authority within one year and 90 days from accrual of the action as required by Pub Hous Law § 157(2), they were precluded from serving a late notice of claim where they failed to seek a judicial extension of the 90-day period prior to the expiration of one year and 90 days. Cintron v New York, 82 A.D.2d 796, 439 N.Y.S.2d 414, 1981 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 14446 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1981).

An order granting a motion by plaintiff in a negligence action against the City of New York to serve a late notice of claim would be reversed, and the complaint would be dismissed, where the incident giving rise to the claim occurred on October 23, 1980, where notice of claim was filed with the city on March 24, 1981, more than two months after expiration of the 90-day period for service of a timely notice of claim under Gen Mun Law § 50-e, where defendant city duly answered the complaint by denying all the allegations contained therein but without raising any objection to the untimeliness of plaintiff's notice of claim, and where the plaintiff failed to move for an order declaring the late notice of claim to be timely service nunc pro tunc or, alternatively, for leave to file a late notice of claim, until March 9, 1983, since although, upon application, the court, in its discretion, could extend the time to serve a notice of claim, an application for such extension cannot be made more than one year and ninety days after the cause of action accrued, unless the statute has been tolled. Hochberg v New York, 99 A.D.2d 1028, 473 N.Y.S.2d 820, 1984 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 17465 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't), aff'd, 63 N.Y.2d 665, 479 N.Y.S.2d 524, 468 N.E.2d 706, 1984 N.Y. LEXIS 4522 (N.Y. 1984).

It was abuse of discretion to grant plaintiffs' motion to deem their notice of claim timely served nunc pro tunc where they did not move for requested relief until 11 months after expiration of one-year-and-90-day period from when cause of action accrued. Lopez v Brentwood Union Free School Dist., 149 A.D.2d 474, 539 N.Y.S.2d 969, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4629 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1989).

Supreme Court had no discretion to grant plaintiff's application for leave to serve late notice of claim and to add party where application was not made within one year and 90 days after claim accrued and proposed additional party was not served with summons and complaint at any time within that period. Binyard v New York, 151 A.D.2d 712, 543 N.Y.S.2d 145, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9154 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1989), app. dismissed, 75 N.Y.2d 896, 554 N.Y.S.2d 830, 553 N.E.2d 1340, 1990 N.Y. LEXIS 632 (N.Y. 1990).

Where plaintiff's application for leave to file late notice of claim for his decedent's conscious pain and suffering was not made until more than one year and 90 days after alleged malpractice, court was without discretion to excuse failure to file notice of claim within 90 days of alleged malpractice, and thus cause of action for conscious pain and suffering was properly dismissed. Abad v New York City Health & Hosps. Corp., 214 A.D.2d 342, 625 N.Y.S.2d 889, 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3697 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1995).

Petitioner, whose vehicle was confiscated and towed by city in January 1991 due to his failure to pay parking tickets, failed to timely make application for leave to file late notice of claim where, assuming parking tickets were invalid, conversion occurred when city wrongfully obtained possession of his vehicle, but his application was made more than one year and 90 days thereafter; if city exercised lawful dominion over vehicle until it dismissed tickets on December 29, 1992, action for conversion would have accrued if city thereafter refused his demand for return of vehicle, but he did not allege that city refused to return vehicle. White v City of Mount Vernon, 221 A.D.2d 345, 633 N.Y.S.2d 369, 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11184 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1995).

Court erred in granting plaintiff's application to serve late notice of claim against school board where plaintiff failed to apply within statutory period for leave to so file. Peek v Williamsville Bd. of Educ., 221 A.D.2d 919, 635 N.Y.S.2d 374, 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13402 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1995), modified, aff'd, 247 A.D.2d 924, 668 N.Y.S.2d 539, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1289 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1998).

Court erred in permitting plaintiffs to serve late notice of claim nunc pro tunc because applicable periods in which notice must be served had expired. Greco v Incorporated Village of Freeport, 223 A.D.2d 674, 637 N.Y.S.2d 191, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 650 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1996).

Court erred in granting plaintiff's application for leave to serve late notice of claim where plaintiff conceded that her application was not filed with court and was not served on town until one year and 91 and one year and 92 days after accident, respectively; as such, court had no jurisdiction to grant application. Bell v Town of Oyster Bay, 233 A.D.2d 282, 649 N.Y.S.2d 799, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11561 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1996).

Motion to file late notice of claim was properly denied where it was not made within statutory period. Bardi v Warren County Sheriff's Dep't, 260 A.D.2d 763, 687 N.Y.S.2d 775, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3673 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1999).

Supreme Court lacked authority to grant application under CLS Gen Mun § 50-e(5) for leave to serve late notice of claim against county medical center where petitioner did not seek such leave until well after expiration of applicable limitations period of one year and 90 days under CLS Gen Mun § 50-i. Bulger v Nassau County Med. Ctr., 266 A.D.2d 212, 697 N.Y.S.2d 345, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11101 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1999), overruled in part, Lohnas v Luzi, 30 N.Y.3d 752, 94 N.E.3d 892, 71 N.Y.S.3d 404, 2018 N.Y. LEXIS 215 (N.Y. 2018)).

Personal injury claim against school district was properly dismissed where (1) plaintiff did not serve timely notice of claim, (2) plaintiff's cross motion for leave to serve late notice of claim was made over one year and 90 days after accrual of claim, and (3) thus, court did not have authority to grant cross motion. Warren v Baldwin Union Free Sch. Dist., 281 A.D.2d 413, 721 N.Y.S.2d 289, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2046 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2001).

It was error to grant plaintiff's motion for leave to serve late notice of claim against county where motion was filed after expiration of time period under CLS Gen Mun § 50-e(5), and there was no showing of estoppel. Rogozinski v Petronio, 284 A.D.2d 992, 726 N.Y.S.2d 886, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5788 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 2001).

134. —Minimal delay

An application to file a late notice of claim by a sanitation department employee who was severely injured in the line of duty was properly granted, where the notice of claim was served one day late, where the delay was minimal, where the city neither suffered nor claimed prejudice, and where the city had obtained actual knowledge of the claim within the 90-day period through the filing of an accident report. Cicio v New York, 98 A.D.2d 38, 469 N.Y.S.2d 467, 1983 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 20376 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1983).

The trial court did not abuse its discretion in granting a claimant leave to file a late notice of claim against a city where the application for such leave was only 15 days late. Baier v Rochester, 98 A.D.2d 991, 470 N.Y.S.2d 248, 1983 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 21344 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1983).

Court should have granted plaintiff's motion for leave to file late notice of claim against town by notice of motion dated 96 days after his employment was terminated by town highway department, since delay was minimal and town failed to show that its ability to maintain defense was prejudiced. Pierce v Arkwright,

147 A.D.2d 981, 537 N.Y.S.2d 410, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1409 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1989).

135. —Prejudice

In proceeding pursuant to CLS Gen Mun § 50-e(5), petitioner's request to file late notice of claim was properly denied in view of absence of any valid excuse for approximately 10-month delay in serving notice, and prejudice to city which would have resulted if application had been granted. Gaye v New York, 144 A.D.2d 532, 535 N.Y.S.2d 957, 1988 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11917 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1988).

Petitioners were not entitled to serve late notice of claim against city board of education and others where petitioners failed to present legally acceptable excuse for their delay of almost 6 months after expiration of statutory 90-day period, they failed to provide respondents with actual notice of essential facts of claim within 90 days or reasonable time thereafter, conditions at scene of accident had changed to prejudice of respondents, who never had opportunity to conduct their own investigation before conditions changed, and respondents were further prejudiced by fact that ladder was thrown out immediately after injured petitioner's fall and could not be examined. Mark v Board of Educ., 255 A.D.2d 586, 681 N.Y.S.2d 81, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12875 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1998).

Delay of nearly one year in seeking to serve notice of claim prejudiced defendants' ability to maintain defense on merits, and thus court properly denied leave to serve late notice of claim. Salahudeen Rashad Saafir v Metro-North Commuter R.R. Co., 260 A.D.2d 462, 688 N.Y.S.2d 224, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3863 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't), app. denied, 93 N.Y.2d 816, 697 N.Y.S.2d 563, 719 N.E.2d 924, 1999 N.Y. LEXIS 2802 (N.Y. 1999).

Trial court erred in denying a property owner's motion pursuant to N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e to serve a late notice of claim on a city in an action for the return of jewelry confiscated by police; the city had timely notice of the action in the form of a letter sent to the police department, and the city's defense was not substantially prejudiced by the late notice of claim. Ramirez v City of White Plains, 306 A.D.2d 488, 761 N.Y.S.2d 522, 2003 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7395 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2003).

Trial court properly denied a student's application to serve a late notice of claim against respondents pursuant to N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(5); respondents did not have notice of the alleged cause of the student's injury, insufficient sand in a long-jump landing pit, in a reasonable time period following the accident, and would have been prejudiced by the grant of the application, as the delay deprived respondents of an opportunity to investigate the quantity of sand in the landing pit at the time of the student's injury. Le Mieux v Alden High Sch., 1 A.D.3d 995, 767 N.Y.S.2d 348, 2003 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12235 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 2003).

Trial court properly denied the infant's application for leave to serve a late notice of claim pursuant to N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e, as the infant failed to demonstrate a reasonable excuse for the lengthy delay in serving the late notice of claim and that respondents either had notice of the essential facts or would not suffer substantial prejudice if they were required to maintain a defense on the merits. Masaazi v N.Y. City Bd. of Educ. Pub. Sch. No. 133, 5 A.D.3d 491, 772 N.Y.S.2d 555, 2004 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2464 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2004).

Petitioner injured party was improperly granted an application to file a late claim against the New York City Housing Authority and the city relating to his assault in the lobby of his mother's apartment building because he failed to substantiate with medical records or other documentation that physical and emotional disabilities precluded him from contacting an attorney for over four months after the alleged assault; defendants were prejudiced in their ability to identify witnesses and collect their testimony by a delay of more than six months in the filing of the claim. Matter of Rivera v New York City Hous. Auth., 25 A.D.3d 450, 807 N.Y.S.2d 373, 2006 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 449 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2006), app. dismissed, in part, 2006 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3904 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't Mar. 28, 2006).

Petitioner was improperly granted leave to serve a late notice of a personal injury claim pursuant to N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e and N.Y. Pub. Hous. Law § 157 (2) against the New York City Housing Authority (NYCHA) because her initial notice of claim, which was not filed within the 90-day time period, did not mention the allegedly defective condition and failed to specify the location of the accident with sufficient particularity, petitioner failed to demonstrate a reasonable excuse for a one-year delay in commencing the proceedings, and petitioner failed to rebut NYCHA's assertion that the delay prejudiced its ability to investigate and defend against the claim. Matter of White v New York City Hous. Auth., 38 A.D.3d 675, 831 N.Y.S.2d 515, 2007 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2912 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2007).

Trial court abused its discretion by not allowing a claimant to file a late notice of claim, regarding an injury the claimant allegedly suffered in the parking lot of the school district's bus garage, because the claimant identified the precise location of the incident and represented that the parking lot defect had not changed since the time of the incident, and there was no evidence that the 12-week delay in filing the notice of claim caused substantial prejudice to the school district. Matter of Kranick v Niskayuna Cent. Sch. Dist., 151 A.D.3d 1262, 56 N.Y.S.3d 636, 2017 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4441 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2017).

Trial court applied the incorrect legal standard when evaluating the issue of substantial prejudice from the claimant's serving a late notice of claim on the city because the city never provided any evidence to substantiate that it was prejudiced by the mere passage of time, but instead, the city made generic arguments and inferences, which could not establish substantial prejudice. Matter of Rodriguez v City of New York, 172 A.D.3d 556, 101 N.Y.S.3d 303, 2019 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3915 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2019).

136. —Reasonable time after removal of disability

Failure of claimant to explain satisfactorily on the ground of incapacity a delay of some seven months in moving for permission to serve notice of claim after the period fixed for such service by this section had elapsed will render an order granting such permission improper. Christopher v New York, 273 A.D. 983, 78 N.Y.S.2d 403, 1948 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5592 (N.Y. App. Div. 1948).

Notwithstanding the application for extension of time to serve notice of claim is made within the one-year period, and based on one of the statutory grounds, the court has discretion to deny it if delay in making the application beyond the usual 90-day period for serving such a notice is not so justified as to be considered reasonable. Russell v Board of Education, 274 A.D. 841, 80 N.Y.S.2d 634, 1948 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3577 (N.Y. App. Div.), reh'g denied, 274 A.D. 872, 83 N.Y.S.2d 224, 1948 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3763 (N.Y. App. Div. 1948), app. dismissed, 300 N.Y. 552, 89 N.E.2d 519, 300 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 552, 1949 N.Y. LEXIS 1427 (N.Y. 1949).

Where a claimant's moving papers failed to show the duration of her disability, and thus failed to show that her application for leave was within a reasonable time after the expiration of the disability she relies upon as excusing her failure to serve the notice within the prescribed ninety-day limit, the motion under sub 5 of this section should be denied. Murray v Watervliet, 280 A.D. 1012, 116 N.Y.S.2d 761, 1952 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4566 (N.Y. App. Div. 1952).

Claimant's showing was considered insufficient to serve as ground for late filing of notice of claim by reason of mental or physical incapacity, and such relief could not be granted in any event, where the renewed application was not made until after the one-year statutory period had expired and without leave of court to renew a prior such motion. Narciso v New York, 20 A.D.2d 647, 246 N.Y.S.2d 268, 1964 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4584 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1964).

Application for leave to file late claim would be denied where claimant failed to show that he had made application therefor within a reasonable time after termination of disability. Jones v New York, 30 A.D.2d 938, 293 N.Y.S.2d 807, 1968 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3251 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1968).

An application to serve a notice of claim was denied where it was not made within a reasonable time after the plaintiff's recovery from the disability relied on as her excuse for failure to serve the notice within the time prescribed by statute. Occhuizzo v Salamanca Hospital Dist. Authority, 33 A.D.2d 649, 305 N.Y.S.2d 330, 1969 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2943 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1969).

Permission to serve a late notice of claim denied where the claimant failed to establish any basis for relief within the statute, since he failed to persuasively show that the application was made within a reasonable time after termination of such period of time during which he could be deemed to have been mentally or physically incapacitated and practically unable to comply with the requirements of the statute. Chadwick v New York City Transit Authority, 35 A.D.2d 810, 316 N.Y.S.2d 168, 1970 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3619 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1970).

The expression "reasonable time" means that upon the removal of the disability, mentally or physically, the claimant must act promptly, and where during a six month period between the time of injury and the execution of the affidavit upon which his application was based, he went to work as a salesman, contacted the city manager as well as the agents of the insurance carrier, the latter events happening within the 60 day period, the application for leave to serve a notice of claim will be denied. Balfour v Watertown, 105 N.Y.S.2d 950, 1950 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2525 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1950), app. dismissed, 103 N.Y.S.2d 662 (N.Y. App. Div. 1951).

The expiration of a period of approximately nine months was not such "reasonable time" as was contemplated by the language of sub 5 of this section where the injuries suffered were such that claimant was back at her employment for at least eight months prior to the making of an application for permission to file late a claim against a city. McGuire v New York, 116 N.Y.S.2d 163, 1952 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1828 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1952).

137. —Claim involving infant

An application by an infant who was injured when he fell down a stairway in a building owned by a city to file a late claim against the city should have been denied, where the application was filed three years and seven months after the accident occurred, where even though the infant's attorney did not know for three years that the city owned the building the attorney waited seven months after learning that fact before applying for leave to file a late claim, where it would be virtually impossible for the city to investigate the condition of the stairway and the circumstances concerning the accident, all to its prejudice, and where an affirmation in support of the application by the infant's attorney stated that the claimant's infancy was not the cause of the failure to file a timely notice of claim. Montana v New York, 96 A.D.2d 1031, 466 N.Y.S.2d 436, 1983 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 19693 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1983).

It was abuse of discretion to grant leave to serve late notice of claim under CLS Gen Mun § 50-e where petitioner purported to justify delay of almost 2 years from date of incident until date of his initial application on ground that he was infant at time incident occurred, but offered no excuse for 10-month delay in seeking relief once he attained his majority. Coyne v Cold Spring Harbor Cent. School Dist., 132 A.D.2d 660, 518 N.Y.S.2d 33, 1987 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 49205 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1987).

Court should have denied application for leave to serve late notice of claim against New York City Board of Education where petitioners failed to adequately explain unreasonable delay of almost 4 years in seeking leave to file late notice, and they presented no excuse for 6-month delay which occurred between their alleged discovery of serious nature of infant petitioner's injuries and application for leave to serve late notice; moreover, given substantial discrepancies between descriptions of accident contained in notice of claim and board's own internal records, board established that it would suffer substantial prejudice if late service of notice were permitted. Shea v City of New York Bd. of Educ., 222 A.D.2d 510, 635 N.Y.S.2d 533, 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12741 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1995).

In wrongful death action arising from alleged medical malpractice, where decedent was survived only by infant distributees, statute of limitations was tolled until date of issuance of letters of guardianship to claimant, who was therefore properly granted leave to serve late notice of claim on county medical center more than 2 years after decedent's death; contention that decedent was survived by 2 other infant distributees who purportedly had legal guardian was unavailing, where neither those children nor their purported guardian were eligible to receive letters of administration under CLS SCPA § 707 then in effect. Rivera v Westchester County Medical Ctr., 222 A.D.2d 680, 635 N.Y.S.2d 677, 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13969 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1995), app. denied, 88 N.Y.2d 808, 647 N.Y.S.2d 165, 670 N.E.2d 449, 1996 N.Y. LEXIS 1626 (N.Y. 1996).

Because timely filing of notice of claim is condition precedent to commencement of tort action against city, dismissal of adult plaintiff's action for infant plaintiff's exposure to toxic substance was required where adult plaintiff's application for permission to file late notice of claim was made after time to commence action had expired. Perry v City of New York, 238 A.D.2d 326, 656 N.Y.S.2d 301, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3415 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1997).

Application under CLS Gen Mun § 50-e(5) to file late notice of lead-paint toxicity claim against city housing authority was properly denied, even though petitioner claimed that 13-year delay in bringing proceeding was due to injured boy's infancy, which generally would toll statute of limitations under CLS CPLR § 214-c(3), where petitioner failed to show (1) any nexus between disability of infancy and delay that would excuse such long delay, (2) that authority acquired actual knowledge of essential facts underlying claim within 90 days or reasonable time after accrual of claim, or (3) that authority was not prejudiced by long delay. Salter v Housing Auth., 251 A.D.2d 585, 674 N.Y.S.2d 758, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7507 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1998).

Petitioners were not entitled to serve late notice of claim against city housing authority where they failed to adequately explain their delay in serving notice, delay was not attributable to injured petitioner's infancy, authority did not acquire actual knowledge of essential facts of claim within 90 days after its accrual or reasonable time thereafter, and there was no evidence connecting actions of authority's police officers with underlying incident or petitioners' allegations of assault, false arrest, and false imprisonment. Cuffee v City of New York, 255 A.D.2d 440, 680 N.Y.S.2d 580, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11972 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1998).

Injured student's application for leave to file late notice of claim against school district was timely made prior to his 18th birthday, and should have been granted despite 10-month unexcused delay absent proof of substantial prejudice to district, as delay was product of student's infancy, and district had immediate actual knowledge of essential facts of incident (which occurred on school football field) where its agents witnessed incident, investigated student's injuries, provided him with medical treatment and had opportunity to further investigate extent of his injuries by sending him to hospital. Welch v Bd. of Educ., 287 A.D.2d 761, 731 N.Y.S.2d 94, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9309 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2001).

Where the parents of a child, individually and as the child's parents and guardians, filed an application pursuant to N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(5) for leave to file a late notice of claim against respondents, a county and its public health department, related to injuries from lead poisoning, the application was timely as to the child since the one year and 90-day statute of limitations was tolled until the child reached age 18, and the child was only six years old. Lanphere v County of Washington, 301 A.D.2d 936, 754 N.Y.S.2d 125, 2003 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 341 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2003).

Infant who allegedly sustained injuries when she fell from her bicycle near an open trench that was located near a sidewalk should have determined who excavated the trench, and the trial court abused its discretion by granting the infant's application for leave to file a late notice of claim against a water authority that allegedly created the hazard, 11 months after the accident occurred and five months after the infant first learned about the water authority's involvement. Nieves v Girimonte, 309 A.D.2d 753, 765 N.Y.S.2d 64, 2003 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10425 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2003), app. dismissed, 1 N.Y.3d 591, 776 N.Y.S.2d 219, 808 N.E.2d 354, 2004 N.Y. LEXIS 98 (N.Y. 2004).

Petition to file a late notice of a claim against a county was improperly granted where: (1) the delay in filing was not attributable to their son's infancy; (2) the parents had retained counsel in 1995 and counsel had promptly obtained all medical records from the county; (3) the parents did not retain new counsel until six years later; (4) the parent's excuse that they were unaware of the possibility of commencing a lawsuit was not a reasonable excuse; and (5) the parents failed to show that the county would not be substantially prejudiced by the nine year delay between the alleged medical malpractice and their motion to file a late notice. The supreme court improvidently exercised its discretion in granting the petition and the court reversed that decision and ordered that the proceeding be dismissed. Flores v County of Nassau, 8 A.D.3d 377, 777 N.Y.S.2d 739, 2004 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7847 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't), app. denied, 3 N.Y.3d 606, 785 N.Y.S.2d 23, 818 N.E.2d 665, 2004 N.Y. LEXIS 2250 (N.Y. 2004).

Since there was a reasonable excuse for the delay and a nexus between the delay and the infancy, the school district and the school had knowledge of the facts constituting the claim within a few weeks of the incidents, and there was no substantial prejudice, a late notice of claim pursuant to N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(5) was properly allowed as to a child's claim that he was sexually assaulted on a school bus. Andrew T.B. v Brewster Cent. Sch. Dist., 18 A.D.3d 745, 795 N.Y.S.2d 718, 2005 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5584 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2005).

Order granting a patient's N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(5) motion for leave to deem her notice of a malpractice claim against a hospital timely served nunc pro tunc was improper because the delay of more than nine years after the alleged malpractice in moving for leave to deem the notice of claim timely served was not the product of the patient's infancy, the hospital did not have actual notice of the claim within the requisite 90-day period, or within a reasonable time thereafter, and the patient failed to establish that the hospital would not have been substantially prejudiced in maintaining its defense on the merits as a result of the nine-year delay in moving for leave to deem the notice of claim timely served nunc pro tunc. Arias v New York City Health & Hosps. Corp. (Kings County Hosp. Ctr.), 50 A.D.3d 830, 855 N.Y.S.2d 265, 2008 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3365 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2008), app. dismissed, 12 N.Y.3d 738, 876 N.Y.S.2d 345, 904 N.E.2d 500, 2009 N.Y. LEXIS 89 (N.Y. 2009).

Under N.Y. C.P.L.R. § 208, the tolling of the time limitation for commencing a tort action against a county due to the infancy of plaintiff children did not relieve the children from filing a notice of claim within ninety days of the accrual of the action. Because the ninety-day period had expired, N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(5) required the children to apply for leave to serve a late notice of claim, which a state court had discretion to grant because the statute of limitations had not yet run on the children's claims. Dayton v City of Middletown, 786 F. Supp. 2d 809, 2011 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 35770 (S.D.N.Y. 2011).

138. —Claim involving physically or mentally disabled person

In a negligence action arising out of a shooting by a New York City Transit Authority officer, in which plaintiff's injuries were sustained on July 29, 1980, plaintiff was hospitalized until October, 1980, after which he received continual outpatient care, and in which plaintiff moved, on October 27, 1981, for leave to serve a late notice of claim on defendant New York City Transit Authority and the City of New York, and in which the city submitted an apposing affidavit but subsequently defaulted, the application for leave to serve and file a late notice of claim would be granted where the city did not allege prejudice in maintaining a defense, where it obviously had actual notice of the incident complained of, and where the injured party's application to serve the late notice of claim was timely. Haynes v New York, 100 A.D.2d 572, 473 N.Y.S.2d 503, 1984 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 17544 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1984).

There was sufficient evidence to establish insanity within the purview of CPLR § 208 so as to toll the statute-of-limitations period for the purpose of extending plaintiff's time to serve a notice of claim in her action against a town and other municipal defendants arising out of an automobile accident, notwithstanding that insanity had not been adjudicated at the time the cause of action accrued, where plaintiff suffered a bona fide psychiatric disorder as a consequence of the accident, her physical injuries, and the loss of her 10-day-old daughter in the accident, and was unable to protect her legal rights because of an overall inability to function in society; in view of plaintiff's disability, and the fact that defendants had knowledge of the underlying accident within a week of its occurrence and were in a better position to acquire timely knowledge of the events than plaintiff, plaintiff would be granted leave to file a late notice of claim under Gen Mun Law § 50-e. Barnes v County of Onondaga, 103 A.D.2d 624, 481 N.Y.S.2d 539, 1984 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 20190 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1984), aff'd, 65 N.Y.2d 664, 491 N.Y.S.2d 613, 481 N.E.2d 245, 1985 N.Y. LEXIS 14773 (N.Y. 1985).

In action against county for injuries sustained by plaintiff in motor vehicle accident, plaintiff was properly allowed to serve late notice of claim despite absence of plausible explanation for her delay of more than 6 months in retaining attorney after she returned to work, where she had been mentally and physically incapacitated by severe head injury throughout statutory 90-day filing period, county had actual notice of accident, and county failed to show substantial prejudice by service of late notice; however, plaintiff's husband should not have been accorded same relief, since he did not have acceptable excuse on his own behalf for failing to timely serve notice of claim, or for his lengthy delay before consulting counsel. Fenton v County of Dutchess, 148 A.D.2d 573, 539 N.Y.S.2d 42, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3916 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't), app. denied, 74 N.Y.2d 608, 545 N.Y.S.2d 104, 543 N.E.2d 747, 1989 N.Y. LEXIS 2343 (N.Y. 1989).

Time within which petitioner was obligated to bring proceeding for leave to file late notice of claim against county was not suspended by operation of "insanity" toll where (1) she was generally able to manage her own finances, handle daily financial transactions, pay her rent, cook, clean, go shopping, and travel by bus, (2) she completed high school education and was fluent in braille, (3) she had consulted with lawyers regarding her case and was informed that statute of limitations had run, and (4) her psychiatrist repeatedly evaluated her as being capable of functioning in society by assigning her global assessment function score of 80. McBride v County of Westchester, 211 A.D.2d 792, 622 N.Y.S.2d 100, 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 719 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't), app. denied, 85 N.Y.2d 809, 628 N.Y.S.2d 52, 651 N.E.2d 920, 1995 N.Y. LEXIS 1502 (N.Y. 1995).

An application for permission to file a late notice of claim was denied because a delay of 77 days after claimant was discharged from hospital was more than a reasonable time where 84 days had already elapsed from the time the cause of action arose. Steele v New York, 12 Misc. 2d 605, 177 N.Y.S.2d 816, 1958 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3399 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1958).

The phrasing of this section is such as to absolutely preclude a court from granting an extension of time for service of notice of claim on a municipality, after expiration of the one-year period, notwithstanding plaintiff was actually in a hospital under sedation by reason of the injuries sustained and suffering from complete amnesia rendering him totally unable to file any notice of claim or impart the necessary information to anyone for making claim until two years after the accident occurred. Corso v New York, 42 Misc. 2d 677, 248 N.Y.S.2d 816, 1964 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1950 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1964).

The expression "reasonable time" means that upon the removal of the disability, mentally or physically, the claimant must act promptly, and where during a six month period between the time of injury and the execution of the affidavit upon which his application was based, he went to work as a salesman, contacted the city manager as well as the agents of the insurance carrier, the latter events happening within the 60 day period, the application for leave to serve a notice of claim will be denied. Balfour v Watertown, 105 N.Y.S.2d 950, 1950 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2525 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1950), app. dismissed, 103 N.Y.S.2d 662 (N.Y. App. Div. 1951).

139. —Failure to explain delay

Court properly denied petitioners' application for leave to serve late notice of claim where no explanation was offered for approximately 9-month delay after accident before petitioners retained counsel and sought leave to serve late notice of claim as to alleged slip and fall accident. Orender v City of New York, 203 A.D.2d 577, 612 N.Y.S.2d 944, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4235 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1994).

It was abuse of discretion to grant plaintiffs' motion for leave to serve "new late notice of claim," even assuming that claims were not extinguished by general release executed by injured plaintiff, where plaintiffs failed to show reasonable excuse for nearly 3-year delay in seeking permission to serve late notice of claim, and defendant had terminated its investigation of accident in reliance on release. Sherwood v New York City Transit Auth., 226 A.D.2d 622, 641 N.Y.S.2d 354, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4451 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1996).

Court properly denied plaintiffs' motion to serve late notice of claim insofar as it alleged conscious pain and suffering of decedent in wrongful death action where plaintiffs failed to offer reasonable excuse for delay of nearly one year after previous notice was rejected as untimely, and they failed to demonstrate that defendants had actual knowledge of nature of claim within 90 days of accident. Mack v City of New York, 265 A.D.2d 308, 696 N.Y.S.2d 206, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9622 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1999), app. denied, 94 N.Y.2d 763, 708 N.Y.S.2d 51, 729 N.E.2d 708, 2000 N.Y. LEXIS 580 (N.Y. 2000).

Leave to serve late notice of claim should not have been granted where it was not sought until more than 5 months after accident, and claimant proffered no excuse for delay. Sheff v County of Westchester, 279 A.D.2d 632, 719 N.Y.S.2d 696, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 852 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2001).

Petitioner was not entitled to serve a late notice of claim under N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(5) because petitioner failed to establish a reasonable excuse for his delay or that the city housing authority had knowledge of the essential facts underlying his claim within 90 days of its accrual or within a reasonable time thereafter; petioner also failed to establish that the housing authority would not be substantially prejudiced by the delay in its defense on the merits. Matter of Kalambalikis v New York City Hous. Auth., 41 A.D.3d 848, 839 N.Y.S.2d 182, 2007 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8066 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2007).

Trial court did not abuse its discretion in denying appellant's application for leave to serve a late notice of claim against a school district because even assuming he was initially unaware of the severity of his injuries, he did not offer a reasonable excuse for not seeking leave to serve a late notice of claim until nearly seven months after his surgery. Kennedy v Oswego City School Dist., 148 A.D.3d 1790, 50 N.Y.S.3d 229, 2017 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2493 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 2017).

Claimant was not permitted to file a late notice of claim because, inter alia, the claimant's failure to serve a timely notice of claim was not reasonably attributable to her claimed delayed realization of the severity of her injuries, the claimant failed to offer any excuse for the additional 11-month delay, and the delay substantially prejudiced the city in maintaining its defense on the merits. Matter of Galicia v City of New York, 175 A.D.3d 681, 107 N.Y.S.3d 430, 2019 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6427 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2019).

140. —Knowledge of defendant

In action against 2 municipalities to recover damages for personal injuries sustained by plaintiff when her car left road and struck utility pole, Appellate Division did not abuse its discretion as matter of law in denying plaintiff leave to serve late notices of claim against municipalities, where plaintiff applied for leave to serve late notices over full year and 90 days after accident, since municipalities did not receive actual knowledge of essential facts constituting claim within 90 days or reasonable time thereafter. Kravitz v County of Rockland, 67 N.Y.2d 685, 499 N.Y.S.2d 941, 490 N.E.2d 860, 1986 N.Y. LEXIS 16625 (N.Y. 1986).

The Supreme Court erred in denying leave to serve a late notice of claim against a city transit authority based on accident a subway train which derailed served his notice of claim two days after expiration of the 90-day statutory period where the accident concerned many people, and was a major disaster, so that defendant had actual knowledge of the occurrence, and where no prejudice resulted to defendant from the two-day delay in serving notice of claim, and where the notice allegedly was not filed earlier because plaintiff initially believed that his injury was more minor than it was. Annis v New York City Transit Authority, 108 A.D.2d 643, 485 N.Y.S.2d 529, 1985 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 42997 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1985).

Court properly denied application for leave to serve late notice of claim against public authority which owned property where accident occurred since (1) petitioner failed to establish that public authority acquired actual knowledge of essential facts of claim within 90 days following accident or within reasonable time thereafter, (2) it took petitioner's attorney inordinate period of time (3 months) to ascertain identity of property owner, and (3) even if there was nothing to readily indicate that public corporation was involved, another 5 weeks elapsed from time of discovery of authority's involvement to service of papers in support of application. Stenowich v Colonie Industrial Dev. Agency, 151 A.D.2d 894, 542 N.Y.S.2d 863, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8119 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), app. denied, 74 N.Y.2d 615, 549 N.Y.S.2d 960, 549 N.E.2d 151, 1989 N.Y. LEXIS 3186 (N.Y. 1989).

Trial court did not abuse its discretion in denying appellant's application for leave to serve a late notice of claim against a school district because he failed to establish that the district had actual knowledge of the essential facts constituting the claim within 90 days of its accrual; assuming arguendo that a construction manager was the district's agent and timely received an accident report, that report was insufficient to provide the district with actual knowledge of the essential facts constituting the claim since it made no connection between the accident and any liability on the part of the district. Kennedy v Oswego City School Dist., 148 A.D.3d 1790, 50 N.Y.S.3d 229, 2017 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2493 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 2017).

Claimant failed to establish that the city had actual knowledge of the essential facts constituting the claim based on the documentation the claimant submitted to the Workers' Compensation Board because the documentation failed to set forth any facts that suggested the claimant's injuries were caused by the city's negligence or that the city received the claimant's workers' compensation claim. Matter of Rodriguez v City of New York, 172 A.D.3d 556, 101 N.Y.S.3d 303, 2019 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3915 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2019).

141. —Miscellaneous claims

Where multicar accident giving rise to alleged claim against county occurred in May 1972, where no notice of claim was ever served by petitioners and no suit against county was commenced by them, where application for leave to serve late notice of claim was not made until June 1976, where such application was motivated by April 1976 jury verdict against county in another action arising out of same accident, and where petitioners failed to establish any viable claim of estoppel against county, failure to seek leave to file late claim at time petitioners' counsel knew or should have known of possible "involvement" of county constituted laches and claim was absolutely time barred. Self v County of Nassau, 57 A.D.2d 963, 395 N.Y.S.2d 67, 1977 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12243 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't), app. denied, 42 N.Y.2d 811, 1977 N.Y. LEXIS 3922 (N.Y. 1977).

In action against Niagara Frontier Transportation Authority, it was error to deny Authority's motion to dismiss complaint and grant plaintiff's cross-motion for leave to serve late notice of claim and amended complaint where (1) accident occurred on March 11, 1992, (2) plaintiff commenced action on March 11, 1993, (3) on April 19, 1993, Authority moved to dismiss complaint for failure to serve notice of claim and failure to plead that one had been served, by which time applicable period of limitations had expired (CLS Pub A § 1299-p), and (4) plaintiff cross-moved to serve late notice of claim in June 1993. Hall v Niagara Frontier Transp. Auth., 206 A.D.2d 853, 615 N.Y.S.2d 205, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7761 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1994).

Court erred in granting mother's motion for leave to file late notice of claim as to her derivative claim alleging that school district exposed her daughter to "harmful and toxic substances" where daughter exhibited symptoms in September 1992, which were ultimately diagnosed as "environmentally related allergy problems," and mother's motion to file late notice of claim was not brought until March 1995. Seekings v Jamestown Pub. Sch. Sys.,

224 A.D.2d 942, 637 N.Y.S.2d 897, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1578 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1996).

Court properly denied plaintiff's application for leave to serve late notice of claim against Niagara Frontier Transportation Authority for property damage arising from latent effects of exposure of property to any substance or combination of substances where plaintiff failed to timely seek leave for late service, measured from date of discovery of injury or date when, through exercise of reasonable diligence, injury should have been discovered (CLS CPLR § 214-c(3) and CLS Pub A § 1299-p(2)). Umbra U.S.A. v Niagara Frontier Transp. Auth., 233 A.D.2d 846, 649 N.Y.S.2d 275, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13312 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1996).

Court had no authority to grant leave to serve late notice of claim against Board of Cooperative Educational Services (BOCES) in personal injury action by passenger of car driven by BOCES employee, because CLS Gen Mun § 50-e was not tolled under CLS CPLR § 203(c) by commencement of action against employee where BOCES was required to indemnify employee under CLS Educ § 3023; serving notice of claim remained condition precedent to commencing action against BOCES which was unaffected by commencement of action against BOCES employee. Schmidt v Board of Coop. Educ. Servs., 253 A.D.2d 433, 676 N.Y.S.2d 623, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8786 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1998).

In city's action for breach of contract, defendant's motion for leave to file late notice of claim against city for tortious interference with contract was time barred where (1) defendant's claim accrued when its contract with city was allegedly wrongfully terminated, not on date of discovery of wrongful act, (2) motion was made over 7 years after claim accrued, and (3) defendant failed to show that its delay was result of fraud, misrepresentations, or deception by city or that city had duty to disclose its allegedly tortious conduct at earlier date. Bib Constr. Co. v City of Poughkeepsie, 273 A.D.2d 186, 709 N.Y.S.2d 112, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6274 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2000).

It was improper to grant plaintiff's motion for leave to serve late notice of claim on New York City Transit Authority where plaintiff allegedly was injured on April 23, 1997, but she did not move for leave to serve late notice of claim until on or about August 21, 1998; thus, court lacked authority to allow service of late notice of claim or to deem late notice of claim timely nunc pro tunc. Jackson v New York City Transit Auth., 274 A.D.2d 501, 712 N.Y.S.2d 377, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8204 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2000).

There was no substantial compliance with subd 5 of this section where a notice of motion for leave to file claim was not made until the last day for serving the notice, such notice was not accompanied by any affidavit or by the proposed notice of claim and was undated, and no attempt was made to correct these defects until two days later by sending by ordinary mail a copy of the notice of motion accompanied by affidavit and a proposed notice of claim, such service not being in accordance with subd 3. Aposporos v Poughkeepsie, 37 Misc. 2d 56, 232 N.Y.S.2d 700, 1962 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2488 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1962).

142. Sufficiency of supporting papers; conclusory allegations insufficient Court should have granted claimant's motion to file late notice of claim where it was alleged that claimant's injuries were result of county's negligence in failing to maintain roads and to rectify dangerous condition, that county had notice of dangerous condition through prior accidents, and that county would not be prejudiced by serving late notice of claim, while county did not submit any affidavits in opposition to claimant's motion. Kissell v County of Erie, 138 A.D.2d 965, 526 N.Y.S.2d 297, 1988 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2604 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1988).

Court properly denied plaintiff's motion to serve late notice of claim, which was filed with transit authority 2 days after 90-day period of CLS Gen Mun § 50-e had expired, since (1) plaintiff offered only unsubstantiated allegations in support of her motion urging that late notice be excused, (2) first mention of defective condition was made in plaintiff's bill of particulars, 3 months after untimely notice of claim was received and 6 months after alleged accident occurred, and (3) plaintiff failed to provide explanation for not seeking leave to serve late notice of claim until 4 months after receiving letter from defendant advising that original notice of claim had been untimely served. Johnson v New York City Transit Authority, 181 A.D.2d 619, 581 N.Y.S.2d 339, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4125 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1992).

Attorney's affirmation that "only recently...this office became aware that the owner of the premises was The New York City Housing Authority" was merely law office failure, and thus insufficient excuse for delay in filing notice of claim. Seif v City of New York, 218 A.D.2d 595, 630 N.Y.S.2d 742, 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8854 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1995).

Absence of reasonable excuse for failure to timely service notice of claim is not necessarily fatal to plaintiff's proceeding seeking leave to serve late notice of claim. Alvarenga v Finlay, 225 A.D.2d 617, 639 N.Y.S.2d 115, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2137 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1996).

Plaintiff was not entitled to serve late notice of claim against town and others for false arrest and malicious prosecution where she waited until just before filing period expired before making her motion and failed to tender even semblance of reasonable excuse for 15-month delay. Shapiro v Town of Clarkstown, 238 A.D.2d 498, 656 N.Y.S.2d 682, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4107 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't), app. denied, 90 N.Y.2d 807, 664 N.Y.S.2d 269, 686 N.E.2d 1364, 1997 N.Y. LEXIS 3044 (N.Y. 1997).

Application for leave to serve late notice of claims attributable to staph infection which allegedly resulted from foreign object left in decedent after surgery, requiring him to undergo second surgery, should have been denied with leave to renew, where petitioners' failure to show that respondents had actual knowledge of facts relating to staph infection was inextricably intertwined with their previous inability to obtain decedent's hospital records, and they had since obtained possession of those records. Staley v Piper, 285 A.D.2d 601, 728 N.Y.S.2d 88, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7590 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2001).

Trial court erred in granting plaintiff's motion for leave to serve a late notice of claim upon a city and thus save her otherwise jurisdictionally defective complaint under circumstances in which, although the city arguably was on notice that plaintiff was injured in an accident, there was no information in the documents submitted by plaintiff in support of her motion that would have informed the city of the essential facts constituting her claim; plaintiff did not establish that the city had "actual notice of the essential facts constituting the claim," within 90 days after her accident or within a reasonable time thereafter. Additionally, plaintiff did not demonstrate a reasonable excuse for her delay. Casias v City of New York, 39 A.D.3d 681, 833 N.Y.S.2d 662, 2007 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4682 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2007).

Petitioners were not entitled to serve a late notice of claim for respiratory injuries arising from the terrorist attacks of September 11, 2001 pursuant to N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e as the proceeding was barred by the one year and 90-day statute of limitations under N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-i as only a conclusory assertion was made that the respiratory illness was not apparent until its diagnosis; such an assertion lacked probative value as to when such illness should have been discovered under N.Y. C.P.L.R. § 214-c(3). Matter of Felder v City of New York, 53 A.D.3d 401, 862 N.Y.S.2d 36, 2008 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5849 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't), app. denied, 11 N.Y.3d 707, 868 N.Y.S.2d 599, 897 N.E.2d 1083, 2008 N.Y. LEXIS 3281 (N.Y. 2008).

Where there has been no neglect or ineptitude giving rise to failure to file a timely notice of claim against a board of education on behalf of an infant, but unforeseen circumstances over which neither infant nor parent nor counsel had control, discretion may be exercised favorably, within the permissible period of one year, in relieving the claimant of default. However, on a motion to file a late notice of claim, all the facts must be presented, and petitioner cannot rely upon general conclusory statements. Samatin v Board of Education, 13 Misc. 2d 646, 178 N.Y.S.2d 399, 1958 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3392 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1958).

With respect to actions by the parents of a decedent to recover damages for the performance of an autopsy on the body of the deceased without their consent, the notice of claim requirements of this section could not be disregarded with respect to the father's claim, or with respect to the mother's claim, upon the father's mere affidavit that she was mentally or physically incapacitated to give notice of claim within the 90-day period, but the mother's application was denied without prejudice to renewal upon additional proof of incapacity. Zaslowsky v Nassau County Public General Hospital, 27 Misc. 2d 379, 209 N.Y.S.2d 921, 1960 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2223 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1960).

Relief cannot be granted under this section on the basis of a conclusory allegation that the claimant was physically incapacitated. Application of Colon, 192 N.Y.S.2d 925 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1959).

143. —Claim involving infant

Where it was unclear on the record whether or not the disability of infancy was responsible for delay in serving notice of claim under this section, an order granting a motion for leave to serve late notice of claim was reversed and the proceedings remanded to the Special Term for taking of additional affidavits or other proofs. Application of Benjamin, 13 A.D.2d 764, 215 N.Y.S.2d 289, 1961 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10616 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1961).

A motion for leave to serve notice of claim in behalf of an infant after the ordinary time for filing such notices is inadequate if the moving papers fail to show precise mental condition or mental age of the infant and the effect, if any, of these or infancy itself on failure to give timely notice. Application of Klee, 21 A.D.2d 975, 252 N.Y.S.2d 889, 1964 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3183 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1964).

In an action brought against a town by the parent of a minor daughter who sustained injuries while riding a bicycle on an allegedly defective roadway, leave to serve a late notice of claim against the town was properly denied where there were no extenuating circumstances, and where the town did not have knowledge of the accident. Ford v Guilderland, 85 A.D.2d 868, 446 N.Y.S.2d 461, 449 N.Y.S.2d 658, 1981 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 16698 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1981).

Court properly denied petitioner's application for leave to serve late notice of claim against county where she did not submit affidavit in support of application, she was aware of general rule requiring filing of notices of claim in cases against governmental entities, she merely sued wrong government entity, even though she should have known correct entity, and her incarceration did not prevent her from preparing well-drafted papers originally filed in Court of Claims. Duarte v Suffolk County, 230 A.D.2d 851, 646 N.Y.S.2d 563, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8552 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1996).

Court improperly granted plaintiffs' motion for leave to serve late notice of claim where there was no reasonable excuse offered for delay of one year in serving notice of claim after alleged sexual abuse, delay was unrelated to plaintiff's infancy, and delay had prejudiced defendants' ability to defend. Rogers v City of Yonkers, 271 A.D.2d 593, 706 N.Y.S.2d 444, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4279 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2000).

Trial court erred in granting an injured child's motion to serve a late notice of claim, pursuant to N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e, on a school district in a personal injury action, because the child failed to present a valid excuse for the failure to timely file a notice of claim pursuant to either N.Y. Educ. Law § 3813(2) and N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e. Termini v Valley Stream Union Free Sch. Dist. No. 13, 2 A.D.3d 866, 769 N.Y.S.2d 596, 2003 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 14133 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2003), app. denied, 2 N.Y.3d 705, 780 N.Y.S.2d 310, 812 N.E.2d 1260, 2004 N.Y. LEXIS 943 (N.Y. 2004).

Leave to serve a late notice of claim on a child's behalf on a county hospital corporation under General Municipal Law § 50-e was properly denied because it was not shown that the 13-month delay was caused by infancy or the child's need for extraordinary care, that the corporation acquired knowledge of the facts of the claim within the time period in which the notice should have been served, or that the corporation would not be prejudiced by permitting late service of the notice. Matter of Rios v Westchester County Healthcare Corp., 32 A.D.3d 540, 821 N.Y.S.2d 102, 2006 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10465 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2006).

Lower court improperly granted the motion of petitioners, an infant and his mother, for leave to serve a late notice of their medical malpractice claim upon a municipal medical corporation pursuant to N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(5) because (1) petitioners failed to establish that the seven-year delay in seeking leave to serve a late notice of claim was the product of the infant's infancy or the need to provide him with extraordinary care; (2) the record did not support petitioners' contention that the corporation had actual knowledge of the essential facts constituting the claim by virtue of its possession of the medical records pertaining to the mother's prenatal care and the infant's delivery; and (3) petitioners failed to proffer any excuse for the delay in serving a timely notice of claim and failed to establish that the corporation would not be substantially prejudiced in maintaining its defense on the merits as a result of the lengthy and unexcused delay in seeking leave to serve a late notice of claim. Matter of King v New York City Health & Hosps. Corp., 42 A.D.3d 499, 840 N.Y.S.2d 611, 2007 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8587 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2007).

In a medical malpractice case where a minor patient alleged that providers at a facility of the New York City Health and Hospitals Corporation (NYCHHC) had negligently failed to screen and treat her for lead exposure or to warn her mother of the hazards posed by such exposure, it was error to deem the patient's notice of claim timely served. The NYCHHC's medical records furnished no notice or knowledge of elevated levels of lead in plaintiff's blood, and the patient had not provided a reasonable excuse or shown that the NYCHHC would not be prejudiced by granting her application. Aceituno v Lai On Chan, 46 A.D.3d 716, 848 N.Y.S.2d 699, 2007 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12923 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2007).

Papers submitted by petitioner upon a motion on behalf of an infant claimant to file a late notice of claim with a board of education were inadequate, in that petitioner alleged merely that the infant was under the age of 14 years whereas the date of birth should have been given; no indication was given as to whether when the alleged accident occurred at respondent's playground there was immediate knowledge on respondent's part by virtue of some employee having been present or whether notice was given to respondent's supervisor on the spot; the injuries sustained by the child were not set forth; an alleged notice of claim prepared and executed at a stated time was not submitted; the dates when claimant's counsel became ill and was hospitalized were not stated, and the dates when new counsel took over, the file was examined, and the failure to file a notice of claim discovered, were not disclosed. Hence, the motion to file a late notice was denied, but without prejudice to renewal on adequate papers. Samatin v Board of Education, 13 Misc. 2d 646, 178 N.Y.S.2d 399, 1958 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3392 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1958).

Where an infant seeking leave to file a belated notice of claim under subd. 5 of this section is as old as 17 years of age, he should submit, with his application, an affidavit setting forth in chronological detail the circumstances of the accident and the subsequent periods of confinement in hospitals, as well as the intervals between such confinements, his educational background, and other relevant information tending to sustain his position that infancy constituted a disability excusing his failure to serve notice of claim within the time specified. Asencio v New York, 216 N.Y.S.2d 204 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1961).

144. —Claim involving physically or mentally disabled person

Although the showing of incapacity to file notice of claim within the 90-day period was insufficient for lack of medical affidavits, it merely being shown that plaintiff was obliged to see her doctor from time to time during the first part of the 90-day period and hospitalized only toward the end of such period, the motion for extension of time was denied without prejudice to right to reapply and present further proof of incapacity. Liegl v Buffalo, 12 A.D.2d 889, 209 N.Y.S.2d 1004, 1961 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13331 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1961).

Leave to file late notice of claim against county for personal injury sustained in automobile accident would not be granted where claimant did not sufficiently allege in what way her injury prevented her from timely filing a notice of claim. Nolan v County of Otsego, 55 A.D.2d 422, 391 N.Y.S.2d 15, 1977 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9992 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1977).

Special term did not abuse its discretion in granting motion for leave to serve late notice of claim against municipality, a school district. Colantuono v Valley Cent. School Dist., 59 A.D.2d 926, 399 N.Y.S.2d 262, 1977 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 14144 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1977).

Police officer who was injured while on duty at police station was properly denied permission to serve late notice of claim against city since (1) city lacked actual knowledge of claim because officer's line-of-duty accident report did not contain essential facts of accident, and (2) officer failed to provide valid excuse for delay where he claimed that he was unaware of filing requirements set forth in CLS Gen Mun § 50-e, and where there was no documentation of his claim that he was disabled. Mallory v New York, 135 A.D.2d 636, 522 N.Y.S.2d 215, 1987 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 52570 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1987), app. denied, 72 N.Y.2d 803, 532 N.Y.S.2d 369, 528 N.E.2d 521, 1988 N.Y. LEXIS 1797 (N.Y. 1988).

In action against New York City Housing Authority (NYCHA) to recover for injuries sustained by plaintiff when she was assaulted and robbed in elevator of her apartment building, court did not err in deeming notice of claim timely although it was filed 8 months after occurrence, since plaintiff's reports of occurrence to NYCHA constituted actual notice, report of physician who first examined plaintiff was sufficient to establish her incapacity to seek timely legal advice due to depression, and sufficiency of plaintiff's excuse was not undermined by fact that she was able to report incident and perform her normal daily activities. Joseph v New York City Housing Authority, 179 A.D.2d 441, 577 N.Y.S.2d 860, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 164 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1992).

Pedestrian, who fell on city sidewalk and was allegedly hospitalized and confined to his home for 4 months as result, was not entitled to file late notice of claim where (1) he failed to offer medical reports to support claim of disability, (2) he waited 5 months after fall to contact attorney, (3) attorney served notice of claim nearly 3 months later, then waited 2 more months to apply for permission to file late notice, (4) attorney waited 4 more months before renewing application, and (5) to counter city's claim of prejudice, pedestrian relied on assumption that "some" pertinent ambulance report must exist "in the city hierarchy," on fact that written notice of number of other sidewalk defects was filed with city 11 months before accident, and on fact that accident scene remained unchanged for several months between time of accident and actual notice to city. Rios v New York, 180 A.D.2d 801, 580 N.Y.S.2d 438, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3007 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1992).

A municipality could not raise by its answer the defense of the mental and physical condition of a plaintiff as bearing on a capability to file a notice of claim within a statutory period therefor where the City was in default on the plaintiff's application for leave to file a late notice of claim. This section seems to make clear that the capability of a claimant to file a claim should be determined by special term or the county court before an action is brought. Hence, the court struck out the City's defense but noted that if there was a variance between the testimony and the allegations submitted on the application for extension of time, appropriate disposition could be taken by the trial court. Gladstone v Board of Education, 111 N.Y.S.2d 163, 202 Misc. 1005, 1952 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2487 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1952).

145. —Miscellaneous claims

There being no allegations that grounds for leave to file late notice of claim against city for malicious prosecution fell within stricter mandates of statute pertaining to notice of claim against public corporation as it read prior to effective date of its amendment, which is not to be given retroactive effect, grant of leave to serve late notice of claim was improper. Beary v Rye, 59 A.D.2d 905, 399 N.Y.S.2d 140, 1977 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 14108 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1977), rev'd, 44 N.Y.2d 398, 406 N.Y.S.2d 9, 377 N.E.2d 453, 1978 N.Y. LEXIS 1960 (N.Y. 1978).

It was error to deny plaintiff's motion for leave to serve late notice of claim under CLS Gen Mun § 50-e where city employee was present at time of accident and directed traffic so that injured claimant could be taken to hospital; city had actual knowledge of essential facts of claim. Briggs v Geneva, 130 A.D.2d 942, 516 N.Y.S.2d 139, 1987 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 46918 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1987).

In action against public hospital for alleged malpractice, plaintiff was properly denied permission to file late notice of claim nunc pro tunc more than one year after last treatment where, on initial motion, plaintiff had failed to submit supporting affidavit by party with knowledge of facts, and on both initial motion and permissive renewal of motion, plaintiff had failed to offer explanation for delay in filing notice of claim. Perkins v New York City Health & Hosp. Corp., 167 A.D.2d 150, 561 N.Y.S.2d 230, 1990 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13312 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1990).

Plaintiff was not entitled to serve late notice of claim on city Housing Authority, based on October 1989 incident wherein plaintiff was shot in leg during robbery while waiting for elevator on Authority's premises, where (1) plaintiff moved for leave to serve notice in February 1990, (2) he claimed that his failure to file timely notice was due to disability resulting from injuries, but provided no supporting documentation for claim, and (3) he failed to establish that Authority had actual notice of facts by showing that members of Authority's police had responded to scene, since "Police Aided Report" did not state facts from which claim of negligence against Authority could be discerned. Matthews v New York City Housing Authority, 180 A.D.2d 669, 580 N.Y.S.2d 61, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1471 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1992).

In action against city to range to recover for hearing loss allegedly suffered by firearms instructor at police firing range, court did not abuse its discretion in denying leave to file late notice of claim since (1) facts on which city's liability was predicated were not discernable from line-of-duty report, aided card and witness statements submitted by instructor, (2) instructor failed to offer sufficient excuse for failing to timely file claim, and (3) instructor allowed 12 months to pass before filing claim although tests performed within one week of alleged injury revealed hearing loss to his left ear. Hernandez v New York, 184 A.D.2d 378, 585 N.Y.S.2d 38, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8168 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1992), app. dismissed, 81 N.Y.2d 782, 594 N.Y.S.2d 714, 610 N.E.2d 387, 1993 N.Y. LEXIS 58 (N.Y. 1993).

Petitioner's vague, unsubstantiated argument that New York City Housing Authority had actual notice of claim because unidentified worker for authority was informed by petitioner's nurse's aide when, where, and why petitioner had fallen was insufficient to justify grant of petitioner's application for leave to serve late notice of claim since affidavit contained nothing more than conclusory assertions devoid of any specific statements of what was actually communicated, or of identity of maintenance man. Seif v City of New York, 218 A.D.2d 595, 630 N.Y.S.2d 742, 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8854 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1995).

Counsel's vague and unelaborated reference to "clerical error" was patently inadequate to constitute reasonable excuse for delay in filing notice of claim. Rosenblatt v City of New York, 221 A.D.2d 448, 633 N.Y.S.2d 557, 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11894 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1995).

Court properly denied plaintiff's motion for leave to serve late notice of claim against county where proposed notice of claim did not indicate exact location of accident or nature of county's alleged negligence, and plaintiff failed to show that county had actual notice of incident. Albers v County of Suffolk, 226 A.D.2d 526, 641 N.Y.S.2d 81, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4341 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1996).

Inference that prejudice would accompany passage of time was not eliminated, and thus claimant was not entitled to extension of time to file claim against city housing authority for injuries allegedly suffered from robbery and sexual assault which allegedly occurred in her apartment, even though authority presumably had security records for building, and police were allegedly called to scene on day of attack, where there was no evidence as to scope of investigation conducted, nor any written report indicating that authority had actual knowledge of underlying facts which formed basis of lawsuit. Vargas v New York City Hous. Auth., 232 A.D.2d 263, 648 N.Y.S.2d 546, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10295 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1996), app. denied, 89 N.Y.2d 817, 659 N.Y.S.2d 858, 681 N.E.2d 1305, 1997 N.Y. LEXIS 1311 (N.Y. 1997).

Plaintiffs' motion to serve late notice of claim against school district was properly denied where student incident report and accident and sickness proof of loss form relied on by plaintiffs contained contradictory information as to how and where accident occurred and were inadequate to give notice either of nature and severity of injuries ultimately claimed or that injuries arose from slippery condition that constituted trap. Gangloff v East Islip Sch. Dist., 240 A.D.2d 366, 657 N.Y.S.2d 777, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5772 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1997).

Court properly denied plaintiff's motion for leave to serve late notice of claim against city where city showed that person to whom plaintiff allegedly reported accident on day it occurred was field engineer employed by general contractor rather than by city, city showed that insurance carrier for plaintiff's employer, which acquired actual knowledge of plaintiff's accident, was not its insurance carrier, plaintiffs did not allege that condition resulting in accident had remained unchanged, and city showed that, because accident occurred at active construction site, it could not investigate condition that existed at time of accident. Williams v City of Niagara Falls, 244 A.D.2d 1006, 665 N.Y.S.2d 217, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12463 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1997).

Assuming, arguendo, that service of a notice of claim against county, which allegedly owned bus, was a necessary condition precedent to the commencement of an action by injured bus passenger against lessee and operator of the bus, plaintiff's affidavits were factually insufficient to warrant permitting service of a late notice of claim. Rhodes v Westchester Street Transp. Co., 80 Misc. 2d 1021, 365 N.Y.S.2d 351, 1974 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1937 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1974).

Court denied petitioner's motion to assert late notice of tort claim against city where she admitted in her application that she was receiving workers' compensation benefits arising out of underlying incident; there was no point in letting petitioner file late notice of claims that were barred by workers' compensation exclusivity defense. Tirado v City of New York, 178 Misc. 2d 905, 680 N.Y.S.2d 923, 1998 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 564 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1998).

146. Determination of motion

In action against county for injuries sustained by plaintiff whose car collided with bus which was being operated as loop bus for county, county failed to show that plaintiff's delay in serving notice of claim substantially prejudiced its ability to defend against claim that bus was negligently operated because it did not conduct independent investigation after receiving bus passenger's timely notice of claim but instead forwarded notice to bus company, which was contractually obligated to defend and indemnify it against such claims, since county proffered no evidence that bus company did not investigate accident, company and county were apparently united in interest with respect to rebutting allegations that bus was negligently operated, and county inferably had access to company's investigation of bus passenger's timely interposed claim. Fenton v County of Dutchess, 148 A.D.2d 573, 539 N.Y.S.2d 42, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3916 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't), app. denied, 74 N.Y.2d 608, 545 N.Y.S.2d 104, 543 N.E.2d 747, 1989 N.Y. LEXIS 2343 (N.Y. 1989).

In action against county for injuries sustained by plaintiff whose car collided with bus on sharp curve on county road, county failed to show that plaintiffs' delay in serving notice of claim substantially prejudiced its ability to defend against design defect claim, on ground that changed circumstances would prevent accurate reconstruction of circumstances existing at time of accident, since (1) county official's conclusory representation that condition of road had changed since October 12, 1985 was irrelevant, as accident had occurred on November 12, 1985, (2) plaintiffs and nearby resident averred that, except for new warning signs, design and surface structure of road were unchanged since accident, and (3) there was no suggestion that county department that installed warning signs did not have relevant information. Fenton v County of Dutchess, 148 A.D.2d 573, 539 N.Y.S.2d 42, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3916 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't), app. denied, 74 N.Y.2d 608, 545 N.Y.S.2d 104, 543 N.E.2d 747, 1989 N.Y. LEXIS 2343 (N.Y. 1989).

On motion of firefighter for leave to file late notice of claim for injuries sustained when rubbish left on stairs caused him to fall, defendant housing authority was not prejudiced by delay in filing notice of claim since it was unlikely that condition of rubbish on stairs would have remained in existence until end of 90-day period. Myette v New York City Hous. Auth., 204 A.D.2d 54, 611 N.Y.S.2d 521, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4606 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1994).

Petitioner was not entitled to serve late notice of claim against transit authority in connection with injuries sustained in slip and fall on broken pavement where (1) petitioner originally served timely notice of claim against city, but claim was dismissed due to her misidentification of location of accident, (2) petitioner failed to present adequate excuse for delay, (3) there was no indication that transit authority acquired actual notice within 90 days of accident, and (4) petitioner's unsupported allegation that condition of pavement had not changed did not negate prejudice caused by long delay. Merino v Metropolitan Transp. Auth., 204 A.D.2d 329, 611 N.Y.S.2d 273, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4508 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1994).

Absence of acceptable excuse for delay is not necessarily fatal to motion for leave to serve late notice of claim; all relevant factors should be considered on application, including actual knowledge of essential facts constituting claim within 90-day statutory period. Diallo v City of New York, 224 A.D.2d 339, 638 N.Y.S.2d 58, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1455 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1996).

Petitioner was not entitled to serve late notice of claim against city transit authority and others where she did not prove that respondents acquired actual knowledge of essential facts of claim within 90 days of occurrence or reasonable time thereafter, she offered only conclusory allegation that respondents' employee prepared report describing manner in which claim arose and police "aided" report that did not connect occurrence with any negligence by respondents, she did not rebut respondents' showing of prejudice attributable to 14-month interval between occurrence and petitioner's application, there was no support for petitioner's claim that she reasonably relied on settlement offers made by respondents' personnel at scene, and she offered no other excuse for her delay. Walker v NYC Transit Auth., 266 A.D.2d 54, 698 N.Y.S.2d 460, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11608 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1999).

Medical malpractice plaintiff was not entitled to serve late notice of claim against county medical center where she failed to show reasonable excuse for delay, center did not acquire actual knowledge of essential facts of claim within 90 days or reasonable time thereafter, and center would be substantially prejudiced in maintaining defense if leave were granted. Askew v Horton Mem'l Hosp., 266 A.D.2d 248, 698 N.Y.S.2d 506, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11306 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1999).

Petitioner was not entitled, under CLS Gen Mun § 50-e(5), to serve late notice of claim against city where petitioner did not show either reasonable excuse for delay or that city received actual notice of her claim within statutory period or within reasonable time thereafter. Gonzalez v City of New York, 266 A.D.2d 290, 698 N.Y.S.2d 500, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11339 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1999).

Petitioner's claim against county arising from allegedly negligent representation provided by assigned appellate counsel was patently meritless, and thus it would make little sense to grant him permission to serve late notice of claim, where county's sole involvement in his appeal from criminal conviction was to timely comply with criminal court's request that it suggest name of attorney to be assigned by court. Swain v County of Albany, 268 A.D.2d 747, 702 N.Y.S.2d 175, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 381 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), app. denied, 94 N.Y.2d 764, 708 N.Y.S.2d 52, 729 N.E.2d 709, 2000 N.Y. LEXIS 568 (N.Y. 2000).

Respondent was not entitled to serve a late notice of claim under N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(5) because a police accident report did not give a city actual notice of the essential facts underlying respondent's claim and did not connect the subject accident to any negligence by the city; respondent's delay of one year in seeking to serve a notice of claim was prejudicial to the city's preparation of a defense. Matter of Acosta v City of New York, 39 A.D.3d 629, 834 N.Y.S.2d 267, 2007 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4555 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2007).

Plaintiff who was wounded by "Staten Island Ferry slasher" would not be permitted to file late notice of claim pursuant to CLS Gen Mun § 50-e where his claim of municipal tort liability alleged only inadequate police protection, since no such cause of action lies against municipality absent "special duty" owed to particular plaintiff and plaintiff set forth no facts that would establish special duty; existence of meritorious claim is relevant consideration in deciding whether to grant discretionary extension. Groell v New York, 135 Misc. 2d 823, 517 N.Y.S.2d 382, 1987 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2314 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1987).

In claim by cleaning person for injuries sustained from leaks of chemicals and vapors in building, motion for leave to file late notice of claim could only be determined after trier of fact determined whether claim arose when claimant first started to cough and have difficulty breathing or later when there was chemical spill in building and claimant was diagnosed as having chemical bronchitis and asthma, since issue of whether respondent received timely notice of facts was dependent on when claimant discovered or should have discovered her injury. Mesa v United Nations Dev. Corp., 157 Misc. 2d 362, 596 N.Y.S.2d 1012, 1993 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 124 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1993).

Police officer involved in recovery operations at the World Trade Center established adequate grounds for the late service of his notice of claim against the city for injuries allegedly caused by toxic exposure and the city's failure to provide proper respiratory or protective equipment as (1) there was a reasonable excuse for his delay in that he waited until he had a good faith basis for claiming a tortious injury, (2) given extensive media coverage of the nature of the officer's claim and hundreds of other similar claims, the city had notice of the substance of his claim within a reasonable period after the 90-day as-of-right filing period, and (3) the officer's delay did not prejudice the city, as it was not prevented from attempting to investigate the substance of the claim. O'Halloran v City of New York, 770 N.Y.S.2d 583, 1 Misc. 3d 568, 2003 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1210 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 2003).

147. —Grant of motion proper

Court properly granted petitioners' application for leave to serve late notice of claim, even though application was made one month after expiration of 90-day period for service notice, where proposed notice was sufficiently specific to assure defendant reasonable opportunity to conduct full and effective investigation of claim, and defendant failed to show any prejudice by delay. Tarnaras v Farmingdale Union Free Sch. Dist., 205 A.D.2d 545, 614 N.Y.S.2d 277, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5930 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1994).

In granting application to file late notice of claim against school district by student whose hand was severely injured in classroom metal sheering accident, court properly considered evidence of postaccident repair—that district fastened or "tied down" table on which shearing machine sat—where such evidence, although inadmissible to prove district's negligence, was relevant to issue of its timely investigation of accident. Hayes v Peru Cent. Sch. Dist., 281 A.D.2d 794, 722 N.Y.S.2d 104, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2504 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2001).

The trial court properly granted an injured party's application for leave to serve a late notice of claim pursuant to N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(5); even assuming that the injured party's erroneous belief that a railroad owned the parking lot where she fell constituted a reasonable excuse for her delay, neither respondent had notice of the facts underlying the claim until the injured party sought leave to serve a late notice of claim upon them, and furthermore, the trial court properly concluded that the delay would prejudice respondents' ability to investigate the defect and other circumstances. Aguilar v Town of Islip, 294 A.D.2d 358, 741 N.Y.S.2d 732, 2002 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4759 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2002).

Where petitioners, the parents of a child, individually and as the child's parents and guardians, filed an application pursuant to N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(5) for leave to file a late notice of claim against respondents, a county and its public health department, related to injuries from lead poisoning, the trial court did not abuse its discretion in granting the application despite petitioners' failure to offer a reasonable excuse for their lengthy delay in filing the application, as respondents had actual notice of the facts underlying petitioners' two theories of liability and respondents offered no substantial evidence of compelling prejudice to their ability to prepare a defense. Lanphere v County of Washington, 301 A.D.2d 936, 754 N.Y.S.2d 125, 2003 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 341 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2003).

Order granting an infant leave to serve a late notice of claim against a school district upon reconsideration of an earlier order denying leave was proper because the infant demonstrated that the new facts set forth in the infant's affidavit would change the prior determination and the trial court considered N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(5) factors. Matter of Surdo v Levittown Pub. School Dist., 41 A.D.3d 486, 837 N.Y.S.2d 315, 2007 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6945 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2007).

It was proper for the trial court to grant leave for petitioners, a pedestrian and others, to file a late notice of claim against respondents, a town and a police department, under General Municipal Law § 50-e(5). Respondents had actual notice of the essential underlying facts; the delay was excusable in that petitioners had been unaware of respondents' potential liability until they reviewed Freedom of Information Law materials; and respondents would not be substantially prejudiced, as an accident report containing details of the incident was compiled on the date that it occurred and respondents' conclusory assertions regarding the availability of witnesses and/or their abilities to recall events were unsubstantiated by the record. Matter of Dewey v Town of Colonie, 54 A.D.3d 1142, 863 N.Y.S.2d 849, 2008 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6896 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2008).

Because the actions taken by a school district's employees placed it on notice of a student's accident and any potential claim that might arise therefrom, the trial court properly granted the student's N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(5) petition for leave to serve a late notice of claim upon the district. Matter of Leeds v Port Washington Union Free School Dist., 55 A.D.3d 734, 865 N.Y.S.2d 349, 2008 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7733 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2008).

Order granting leave to file a late notice of claim against a county pursuant to N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(5) was proper because, inter alia, the motorist, who remained nonverbal and required constant care for profound disabilities sustained because of the subject accident, was incapable of interposing a negligence action on her own behalf; given the motorist's almost complete incapacity up to, and following, the filing of the application, there was a sufficient excuse for the delay in filing the late notice of claim. Given the motorist's traumatic brain injury and apparent inability to recollect the details of the accident, an earlier notice of claim would not have improved the county's ability to gain her first-hand account. Matter of Hubbard v County of Madison, 71 A.D.3d 1313, 897 N.Y.S.2d 538, 2010 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2063 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2010).

Trial court properly granted a petition to deem a late notice of claim timely served nunc pro tunc. Appellant's hospital failed to provide the autopsy report for petitioner's stillborn fetus for eight months despite her multiple, prompt requests for it; appellant had actual, timely knowledge from petitioner's medical records of the essential facts constituting petitioner's claims; and appellant was not substantially prejudiced by the delay. Matter of Rojas v New York City Health & Hosps. Corp., 127 A.D.3d 870, 6 N.Y.S.3d 294, 2015 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2947 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2015).

Patient was permitted to serve a late notice of claim upon a hospital because the hospital failed to confirm that the patient's tumor had been completely removed, thereby providing the hospital with actual knowledge of the essential facts constituting the claim, the hospital would not suffer any prejudice by the delay in serving a notice of claim, and the patient's extensive medical treatment during the time period at issue constituted a reasonable excuse for the delay. Matter of Leon v New York City Health & Hosps. Corp., 163 A.D.3d 670, 81 N.Y.S.3d 140, 2018 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5097 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2018).

Respondent's application for leave to deem a late notice of claim timely served nunc pro tunc was properly granted; because respondent demonstrated that petitioner city acquired actual knowledge of the essential facts constituting the claim within 90 days after the claim arose and that it would thus not be substantially prejudiced by the grant of his application, he had not also been required to supply a reasonable excuse for his failure to serve a timely notice of claim. Matter of Nieto v City of New York,

Trial court acted within its discretion in allowing the student to serve a late notice of claim, regarding a missing stop sign, because the original timely notice of claim, to which was annexed a copy of the police report, gave the city defendants actual knowledge of the essential facts constituting the student's claim based upon the alleged missing stop sign within 90 days of accrual; the report expressly stated that the accident site was "missing a stop sign," thus "causing" the collision. M.L. v City of New York, 173 A.D.3d 848, 103 N.Y.S.3d 499, 2019 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4691 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2019).

Leave to file a late notice of claim against a city and a department under N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e was granted because the city and the department received worker's compensation reports which provided them with sufficient knowledge of nature of the claim, including the date, place, time, nature of the injury, and the specific location and reason for the fall, which was that there was a lift in the concrete next to the gate outside school doors; because the city and the department had actual notice of how the injury occurred and because a raised sidewalk was not necessarily a transient condition, there was no substantial prejudice to the city and the department. Quarto v City of New York, 859 N.Y.S.2d 362, 20 Misc. 3d 473, 239 N.Y.L.J. 115, 2008 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3110 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 2008).

Since the arrestees' C.P.L.R. art. 4 petition was timely, and since any delay in serving a late notice of claim under N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(5) was inadvertent and not calculated to mislead or confuse the respondents, who were aware of the claim's essential facts; the respondents would not be substantially prejudiced by granting the application. Sorrell v Incorporated Vil. of Lynbrook, 902 N.Y.S.2d 776, 27 Misc. 3d 1026, 2010 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3479 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 2010).

Where a former employee in a whistleblower suit timely served the employing municipal corporation with notice of her suit, she was granted leave to serve a late amended notice of claim against a city and a municipal agency because there was actual notice of the claim and no showing of prejudice from the delay. Williams v NYC Health & Hosps. Kings County Hosp. Ctr., 62 Misc. 3d 462, 88 N.Y.S.3d 847, 2018 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 5436 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 2018).

148. —Grant of motion improper

It was improper to grant leave to serve late notice of claim for injuries allegedly sustained in assault by police officers during petitioner's arrest since (1) county did not receive notice of incident by virtue of officers' participation in alleged assault, and (2) petitioner did not explain delay of nearly 7 months after he sought legal advice, especially given that he executed his own affidavit in support of application about 5 months before application was filed. McAllister v County of Nassau, 202 A.D.2d 670, 609 N.Y.S.2d 294, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2902 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1994).

It was abuse of discretion to deny housing authority's motion to vacate order granting petitioner leave to serve late notice of claim where authority's failure to serve its opposition papers within time set in petitioner's notice motion was due to heavy caseload following substitution of counsel, and authority had meritorious defense that petitioner's application for leave to serve late notice of claim was not timely. Steward v New York City Hous. Auth., 205 A.D.2d 606, 613 N.Y.S.2d 408, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6197 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1994).

It was abuse of discretion to grant petitioners' motion for leave to serve late notice of claim against board of education on behalf of infant claimants where there was no evidence that board had actual knowledge of infant's claims within 90 days of occurrence or within reasonable time thereafter, and board would be unable to refute petitioners' claim that city-wide reading and math tests of infant claimants were tampered with because actual city-wide reading and math tests taken by infant claimants had been destroyed, and it would be impossible to show that tests of those specific students were not tampered with. Sica v Board of Educ., 226 A.D.2d 542, 640 N.Y.S.2d 610, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4329 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1996).

It was abuse of discretion to grant petition for leave to file late notice of claim against city housing authority where petitioner offered only conclusory and unpersuasive excuse for failing to file notice of claim until nearly 2 months beyond expiration of statutory period, authority did not receive actual notice of claim within statutory time or within reasonable time thereafter, and petitioner's claims were patently meritless. Finneran v City of New York, 228 A.D.2d 596, 644 N.Y.S.2d 537, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7203 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1996).

Court erred in granting petitioner's application for leave to serve late notice of claim 14 months after date of accident, which was several months after New York City had rejected notice of claim as untimely and would substantially prejudice city in maintaining its defense on merits. Singletary v City of New York, 236 A.D.2d 546, 654 N.Y.S.2d 628, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1356 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1997).

It was abuse of discretion to grant petitioner's application for leave to serve late notice of claim where petitioner failed to show either reasonable excuse for his delay or that town received actual notice of his claim within statutory time or within reasonable time thereafter. Gause v Town of Babylon, 256 A.D.2d 341, 681 N.Y.S.2d 756, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13171 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1998).

Trial court abused its discretion under N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(5) by granting plaintiffs, injured party and others, leave to file a late notice of claim against defendant school district in their personal injury action where plaintiffs failed to establish that the school district was not prejudiced by the delay, that the claim articulated in the proposed notice of claim had any merit, or that the delay in attempting to serve the notice was related to infancy or could have been reasonably excused. Lopez v Hicksville Pub. Sch. Dist., 289 A.D.2d 381, 734 N.Y.S.2d 878, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12204 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2001).

Plaintiffs' motion for leave to serve a late notice of claim against a transit authority almost 15 months after the subject incident should not have been granted; plaintiffs failed to fulfill the requirements of N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(1)(a), (5), as plaintiffs failed to offer a reasonable excuse for the delay of nearly one year and three months in requesting permission to serve a late notice of claim, a telephone report of accident, claim & no-fault completed shortly after the accident did not provide the transit authority with actual notice of the essential facts constituting plaintiffs' claim since it failed to suggest any connection between the happening of the accident and any alleged negligence in the ownership, operation, or control of the authority's bus, and plaintiffs' delay in seeking leave to serve a late notice of claim prejudiced the authority's ability to maintain a defense on the merits. Meehan v City of New York, 295 A.D.2d 581, 744 N.Y.S.2d 484, 2002 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6767 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2002).

The trial court properly granted an injured party leave to serve a late notice of claim pursuant to N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(5) upon a school district in a personal injury action; under the circumstances, and in view of the minimal delay, the error concerning the identity of the municipal entity upon which the notice of claim was to be served was excusable, and a school district failed to show that the delay in service of the notice of claim hampered its ability to conduct an investigation. Cox v City of Peekskill, 297 A.D.2d 735, 747 N.Y.S.2d 547, 2002 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8646 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2002).

Order granting a victim leave to serve late notices of claim on a city and a police department was error because the claim, which was based on a failure to staff a police anti-terrorism post in a train station where the victim was allegedly raped, was patently without merit as there was no allegation of a special relationship; it was appropriate to consider that argument on appeal despite the fact that it was raised for the first time on appeal, because it raised an issue of law that appeared on the face of the record, the determination of which could not have been avoided if raised in the trial court. The trial court did not err in granting that branch of the petition which was for leave to serve a late notice of claim on authorities because the authorities did not raise any issue with regard to the merits of the claim against them. Matter of Besedina v New York City Tr. Auth., 47 A.D.3d 924, 850 N.Y.S.2d 199, 2008 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 597 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2008).

Order on renewal to grant a worker leave to serve a late notice of his labor law claim against an authority pursuant to N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(5) was error because the worker failed to set forth a reasonable excuse for the delay in bringing the instant proceeding about one year after the accident; further, the worker did not meet his burden of demonstrating that the authority was not prejudiced in its investigation or defense by the delay, that the essential facts of the claim were known to it within the 90-day period after the accident or a reasonable time thereafter, and that within the statutory time frame, it was aware of the specific claim asserted by the petitioner and not just that an incident had occurred. Since the worker failed to articulate a reasonable justification for his failure to include the newly-discovered evidence in the petition in the first instance, and the newly-discovered evidence would not have required a different outcome on the petition, renewal was unwarranted. Matter of Knight v Dormitory Auth. of N.Y., 56 A.D.3d 780, 868 N.Y.S.2d 706, 2008 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9080 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2008).

Order granting an infant leave to serve a late notice of claim against a municipal hospital under N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(5) was error because the infant's use of undocumented purported statements made to unnamed medical personnel could not have been used to establish that the hospital had actual notice of the facts underlying the claim; precedent barred the infant's use of undocumented purported statements made to unnamed medical personnel to meet her burden of establishing that the hospital had actual notice, as the infant was obliged to show that the hospital's records indicated or noted an injury. The hospital records, however, directly contradicted the infant's assertion that the infant suffered any injury, and, further, the records showed, among other things, that during the infant's time in the hospital's nursery, she was alert and active, with no neurological abnormalities. Cartagena v New York City Health & Hosps. Corp., 93 A.D.3d 187, 938 N.Y.S.2d 77, 2012 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 907 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2012).

Trial court was statutorily prohibited from extending the time in which an inmate had to serve her notice of claim upon the county because the inmate's failure to file her 2013 application with the proper clerk amounted to a nonwaivable jurisdictional defect, rendering the proceeding a nullity, and, as such, the inmate's 2015 submissions did not relate back to her 2013 attempted application. Matter of Dougherty v County of Greene, 161 A.D.3d 1253, 76 N.Y.S.3d 648, 2018 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3146 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2018).

149. —Denial of motion proper

The trial court properly denied leave, under Gen Mun Law § 50-e(5), to serve a late notice of claim, given the almost five-and-one-half year delay between the injury and the bringing of the application, the fact that the identity of the counselor allegedly involved in the incident was unknown, the fact that the child's injuries did not appear serious at the time, and the lack of any records concerning the incident. Special Term's conclusion that permitting late service of a notice of claim would substantially prejudice the respondent in maintaining its defense on the merits rested upon a solid evidentiary predicate. Accordingly, it was an appropriate exercise of discretion to deny the application. Hogan v Orangetown, 108 A.D.2d 857, 485 N.Y.S.2d 360, 1985 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 43184 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1985).

Court properly denied petitioner's application to serve late notice of claim on New York City Transit Authority where authority had no notice of incident until receipt of petitioner's motion papers some 9 months after occurrence. Tully v New York City Transit Authority, 180 A.D.2d 566, 580 N.Y.S.2d 268, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2714 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1992).

Plaintiff's application for leave to serve late notice of claim was properly denied since he was not injured as result of any defective condition of elevator where investigation by city housing authority and police showed that injury resulted from his climbing into elevator shaft to repair damage caused by his inebriated companion; under circumstances, housing authority did not have sufficient notice of claim of defective elevator to conduct meaningful investigation of alleged defective condition. Falcoun v New York City Housing Authority, 185 A.D.2d 202, 587 N.Y.S.2d 162, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9075 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1992).

Petitioner was properly denied permission for leave to serve late notice of claim against housing authority where (1) on February 7, petitioner, who was diabetic, stepped on small piece of metal allegedly left outside her apartment by housing authority workers who had repaired leak in October and November of prior year, (2) on February 15, petitioner saw doctor and was thereafter hospitalized, and (3) on June 22, petitioner sought leave to serve late notice; housing authority would be substantially prejudiced since it had no knowledge of alleged injury or negligence until service of motion. Peterson v New York City Hous. Auth., 190 A.D.2d 738, 593 N.Y.S.2d 329, 1993 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 968 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1993).

Court properly denied plaintiffs' application for leave to file late notice of claim where (1) approximately 10 months elapsed before plaintiffs sought leave to serve late notice of claim as to alleged trip and fall accident, (2) alleged defect was transitory in nature, (3) plaintiffs failed to give reasonable excuse for their inaction, and (4) original notice of claim was inadequate because it misidentified actual location where accident allegedly occurred. Kornecki v City of New York, 205 A.D.2d 665, 614 N.Y.S.2d 298, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6469 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1994).

Court properly denied petitioner's motion for leave to serve late notice of claim where there was no excuse offered for one-year delay in moving for leave to file late claim, and city was prejudiced by weather-related changes in condition of allegedly defective sidewalk, and by its inability to identify and interview witnesses. Crowell v City of New York, 228 A.D.2d 322, 644 N.Y.S.2d 231, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7297 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1996).

It was proper to deny plaintiffs' motion for leave to amend their notice of claim 3 years after accident where they did not explain their failure to provide correct description of location of accident, and city conducted investigation at wrong location and was deprived of opportunity to conduct meaningful investigation. Molina v City of New York, 284 A.D.2d 511, 727 N.Y.S.2d 324, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6820 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2001).

Petitioner's motion pursuant to N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(5) for leave to serve a late notice of claim against respondent housing authority was properly denied, because the housing authority did not have actual knowledge of the essential facts constituting the claim within the appropriate time period, petitioner failed to demonstrate a reasonable excuse for the delay in serving a timely notice of claim, and petitioner did not establish that the two-month delay after the expiration of the 90-day period would not substantially prejudice the housing authority in maintaining a defense on the merits as required by N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(5). Lorseille v N.Y. City Hous. Auth., 295 A.D.2d 612, 744 N.Y.S.2d 880, 2002 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6743 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2002).

Trial court properly denied a petition under N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(5) to file a late notice of claim against a school district because petitioners failed to establish (1) that the school district acquired actual knowledge of the essential facts constituting the claim within 90 days or a reasonable time thereafter, (2) that there was a reasonable excuse for the delay in serving the notice of claim, (3) that the delay in attempting to serve the notice of claim was related to infancy or other incapacitation, or (4) that the school district was not prejudiced by the delay. Di Fusco v Mahopac Sch. Dist., 299 A.D.2d 544, 750 N.Y.S.2d 513, 2002 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11484 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2002).

Trial court providently exercised its discretion in denying a motion by plaintiffs, a child and his mother, for leave to serve a late notice of claim against defendants, a city and other, pursuant to N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e some two years after the claim arose; plaintiffs failed to demonstrate a reasonable excuse for the lengthy delay, or that there was a nexus between the infancy of the child and the delay. Berg v Town of Oyster Bay, 300 A.D.2d 330, 752 N.Y.S.2d 58, 2002 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11916 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2002).

Trial court properly denied an injured party's application pursuant to N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(5) for leave to serve a late notice of claim for personal injuries upon respondents, a city, a county, and others, because the injured party failed to offer a valid excuse for his delay, and respondents did not have actual knowledge of the claim within 90 days. Aliberti v City of Yonkers, 302 A.D.2d 456, 755 N.Y.S.2d 406, 2003 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1352 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2003).

The trial court properly denied an injured party's motion pursuant to N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e to serve a late notice of claim on a board of education in a personal injury action, and properly adhered to that decision upon the injured party's motion for leave to renew pursuant to N.Y. C.P.L.R. 2221 (2003); the injured party failed to show that the board timely acquired actual knowledge of the facts underlying the claim, and failed to show that the board would not be prejudiced by permitting the injured party to serve a late notice of claim, and did not establish the existence of a reasonable excuse for failing to timely serve the notice of claim as required by N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(5). Igneri v N.Y. City Bd. of Educ., 303 A.D.2d 635, 756 N.Y.S.2d 783, 2003 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3160 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2003).

Where a claimant alleged that he was injured in an off-track betting parlor owned by a public benefit corporation, the trial court properly denied the claimant's application to serve a late notice of claim on the public benefit corporation where the claimant presented no good reason as to why his attorneys initial served the Attorney General, then realized their error after nine months; this delay was particularly prejudicial as there was no injury apparent immediately after the incident. Santana v W. Reg'l Off-Track Betting Corp., 2 A.D.3d 1304, 770 N.Y.S.2d 258, 2003 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 14158 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 2003), app. denied, 2 N.Y.3d 704, 778 N.Y.S.2d 774, 811 N.E.2d 36, 2004 N.Y. LEXIS 661 (N.Y. 2004).

Motion to serve a late notice of a medical malpractice claim against a hospital under General Municipal Law § 50-e was properly denied; the patient's medical records did not suggest that the hospital knew that the patient's later medical issues were due to malpractice during his delivery. No reasonable excuse was proffered for 10-year delay, and there was no nexus between the patient's infancy and the delay. Lucero v New York City Health & Hosps. Corp. (Elmhurst Hosp. Center), 33 A.D.3d 977, 823 N.Y.S.2d 507, 2006 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12991 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2006).

Trial court properly denied petitioner's application for leave to serve a late notice of claim pursuant to N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(5), because petitioner knew of the 90-day notice requirement at the time he filed the action, and offered a patently false excuse claiming he was unaware of the notice requirement. Matter of Rush v County of Suffolk, 35 A.D.3d 619, 826 N.Y.S.2d 640, 2006 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 15009 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2006).

Denial of petitioner's proceeding pursuant to N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(5) seeking leave to serve late notice of claim against a school was proper because, inter alia, an MRI report submitted by petitioner failed to demonstrate that his shoulder injury rendered petitioner incapacitated or disabled to such an extent that he could not have complied with the statutory requirement to serve a timely notice of claim, and there was no proof that, within the 90-day post-accident period or within a reasonable time thereafter, the school received notice of the facts supporting the claim; while petitioner's letter to the school's principal one day after the accident indicated that he fell from the top of auditorium steps in the school, it failed to apprise the school of the injury or of the contention that the steps, inter alia, were negligently installed or repaired. Moreover, the school's principal and nurse submitted affidavits explicitly contradicting petitioner's allegation that, due to conversations he had with them, they were aware of the defect which caused him to fall. Matter of Korman v Bellmore Pub. Schools, 62 A.D.3d 882, 879 N.Y.S.2d 194, 2009 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3862 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2009).

Trial court erred in granting an injured worker's petition for leave to serve a late notice of claim on a city because he waited approximately six months after the alleged accident before seeking leave, his assertion that he was unaware of the notice of claim requirement was not a reasonable excuse, the record did not demonstrate that the city had timely actual knowledge of the claim, and it would be prejudiced by the delay. Matter of Bonaguro v City of New York, 122 A.D.3d 731, 996 N.Y.S.2d 144, 2014 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7637 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2014).

Trial court properly denied a child's motion (filed on her behalf by her mother) for leave to serve a late notice of claim or to deem the late notice of claim timely served nunc pro tunc, and granted the cross-motion of a doctor and state hospital to dismiss the child's medical malpractice complaint because she failed to establish that the hospital and doctor had actual knowledge of the claim or that they would not be substantially prejudiced in maintaining a defense on the merits, and the child's infancy, without any showing of a nexus between the infancy and the delays, was insufficient to constitute a reasonable excuse for the failure to timely serve a notice of claim and in moving for leave. Hudson v Patel, 146 A.D.3d 758, 45 N.Y.S.3d 497, 2017 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 154 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2017).

Trial court properly denied a petition filed by a driver and passenger (the petitioners) for leave to serve a late notice of claim because a police accident report did not connect the petitioners' injuries to any negligent conduct on the part of a city employee, the employee's direct involvement in the accident itself, without more, was also insufficient to provide the city and its employee with actual notice of the essential facts constituting the claim, failed to proffer any excuse for the failure to serve a timely notice of claim or show that the 10-month delay would not substantially prejudice the ability of the city and the employee to investigate and defend against the claim. Matter of D'Agostino v City of New York, 146 A.D.3d 880, 46 N.Y.S.3d 635, 2017 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 308 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2017).

Mother of a seventh-grade student was not permitted to serve a late notice of claim upon the city board of education because while the mother alleged that the physical education teacher invented the exercise and was present when the student was injured, the mother failed to submit any evidence, inter alia, the city acquired actual knowledge of the essential facts underlying the claims, or that the city was not substantially prejudiced by the 11-month delay in serving a notice of claim. Matter of Ramos v Board of Educ. of the City of N.Y., 148 A.D.3d 909, 49 N.Y.S.3d 539, 2017 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1787 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2017).

There was no merit to appellant's contention that a school district was equitably estopped from objecting to his late notice of claim based on its allegedly inadequate initial Freedom of Information Law (FOIL) responses, as there was no evidence that the district engaged in any improper conduct dissuading him from serving a timely notice of claim, and his purported reliance upon the FOIL responses in delaying the notice of claim was not justifiable under the circumstances. Kennedy v Oswego City School Dist., 148 A.D.3d 1790, 50 N.Y.S.3d 229, 2017 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2493 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 2017).

Pedestrian failed to show that her injuries and medical care constituted a reasonable excuse for her failure to timely serve a notice of claim on the city because the pedestrian had substantially healed after the fall on the sidewalk and no longer required any pain medication long before the expiration of the statutory 90-day period for timely filing her notice of claim; the pedestrian's late notice of claim, served without leave of court, did not provide the city with actual knowledge. Matter of Ashkenazie v City of New York, 165 A.D.3d 785, 85 N.Y.S.3d 508, 2018 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6742 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2018).

Trial court acted within its discretion by not deeming a high school student's late notice of claim timely served nunc pro tunc on the Department of Education, regarding claims alleging sex discrimination and retaliation in violation of Title IX because the student did not demonstrate that the DOE acquired timely, actual knowledge of the essential facts constituting the claims. Doe v City of New York, 185 A.D.3d 659, 127 N.Y.S.3d 514, 2020 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3847 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2020).

Plaintiffs were not permitted to serve a late notice of claim because the criminal complaint prepared by the police department failed to provide actual notice of the facts constituting plaintiffs' claims of, inter alia, negligent supervision and failure to provide adequate security, or that the decedent's brother was injured as a result of defendants' alleged negligence; the complaint indicated only that the decedent was stabbed multiple times upon the body causing his demise. Melcer v City of New York, 185 A.D.3d 672, 127 N.Y.S.3d 507, 2020 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3889 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2020).

150. —Denial of motion improper

A trial court erred in denying a motion for leave to file a late notice of claim under Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e by a worker injured when he inhaled coal-tar epoxy while working in a confined space, where the seriousness of the worker's injuries was not diagnosed until several months after the incident, and defendant county did not make any significant demonstration of prejudice. Passalacqua v County of Onondaga, 94 A.D.2d 949, 464 N.Y.S.2d 73, 1983 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 18420 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1983).

In a negligence action against a municipality to recover damages for personal injuries, Special Term abused its discretion in denying a motion for leave to serve a late notice of claim pursuant to Gen Mun Law § 50-e(5) based solely on the fact that plaintiffs failed to offer any excuse, other than their ignorance of the law, for their failure to serve a timely notice of claim, where the municipality and its insurer had both received actual notice of the essential facts constituting the claim within a short time after the accident, where the insurer sought to settle any potential claim for damage to plaintiffs' vehicle within 90 days after the accident, and where a medical authorization form was sent out by the insurer within that time period. Plass v Poughkeepsie, 102 A.D.2d 819, 476 N.Y.S.2d 375, 1984 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 18993 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1984).

Court improvidently exercised its discretion in denying claimants' request to extend time to serve notice of negligence claim against county hospital under CLS Gen Mun § 50-e since hospital had actual notice of facts of treatment that formed basis of alleged negligence by virtue of its possession of medical records pertaining to injured party's treatment at hospital, hospital did not demonstrate prejudice as result of delay, and claimants had sufficient reasons for delay. Strobel v County of Lewis, 147 A.D.2d 948, 537 N.Y.S.2d 707, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1320 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1989).

Court abused its discretion in denying plaintiff's motion to extend time to serve notice of claim under CLS Gen Mun § 50-e where plaintiff timely served notice of claim for property damage within 2 days after occurrence of automobile accident involving one of defendant's vehicles, plaintiff alleged that nature and extent of her injuries were unknown to her at that time, and there was no substantial prejudice to defendant resulting from absence of notice for 10 months that plaintiff's damages included personal injuries. Hack v City of Syracuse, 256 A.D.2d 1226, 682 N.Y.S.2d 746, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 14399 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1998).

It was abuse of discretion to deny plaintiffs leave to serve late notice of claim where they had requested such relief in their opposition papers filed within one year and 90 days from date of accident, and defendant could not claim significant prejudice to its defense of claim. Lossino v New York City Transit Auth., 264 A.D.2d 383, 693 N.Y.S.2d 629, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8517 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1999).

Court erred in denying plaintiff's application to serve late notice of claim where delay in filing application was merely 2 months, and there was no prejudice to defendant. Sykes v Buffalo Mun. Hous. Auth., 269 A.D.2d 848, 702 N.Y.S.2d 483, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1795 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 2000).

Trial court abused its discretion in denying an insurance company's application pursuant to N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(5) for leave to serve a late notice of claim against a city in relation to an incident in which a sewer backed up into an insured's home; although the insurance company offered no excuse for its delay, that failure was not fatal inasmuch as the insurance company sufficiently established that the city had actual knowledge of the essential facts approximately two weeks after the incident and that the city's insurer had notice within a reasonable time after the 90-day period, and there was no showing that the city would be prejudiced by the late service of the notice of claim. Nationwide Ins. Co. v Vill. of Alexandria Bay, 299 A.D.2d 855, 750 N.Y.S.2d 409, 2002 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10841 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 2002).

Trial court erred in denying an injured party's motion pursuant to N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(5) to serve a late notice of claim against a city in a personal injury action; the city had actual notice of the alleged injuries based on the fact that the police officers who allegedly assaulted the injured party would, as the city's employees, have had immediate knowledge of the events giving rise to this dispute, and because the city failed to show that it would be prejudiced as police and court records pertaining to the injured party's arrest, as well as the favorable disposition of charges against him, were presumably still in existence. Ansong v City of New York, 308 A.D.2d 333, 764 N.Y.S.2d 182, 2003 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9334 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2003).

Trial court erred in denying a mother's motion pursuant to N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e to file a late notice of claim against a housing authority alleging that a child ingested lead paint chips; the mother demonstrated a reasonable excuse for the delay, and showed that the authority had actual knowledge of the underlying facts. Frith v N.Y. City Hous. Auth., 4 A.D.3d 390, 771 N.Y.S.2d 392, 2004 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1317 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2004).

Student's N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(5) petition to serve a late notice of claim against a board of education arising out of an alleged assault on school grounds should have been granted because, inter alia, the student demonstrated that the board acquired actual knowledge of facts of the claim within the statutory period or within reasonable time thereafter; the alleged assault took place in view of a school employee, the police were summoned, a prosecution ensued, and the student alleged, without contradiction, that school officials were on notice of threats previously made by the assailant against the student on school grounds. The student demonstrated that the board of education would not have been substantially prejudiced by the delay, and the fact that the student failed to provide a reasonable excuse for her failure to serve a timely notice of claim was not dispositive. Matter of Whittaker v New York City Bd. of Educ., 71 A.D.3d 776, 896 N.Y.S.2d 171, 2010 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1942 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2010).

Trial court erred in granting a high school wrestler's application to file a late notice of claim as to a school district because it did not have actual knowledge of the essential facts constituting the claim until it received the wrestler's application that he was allegedly infected with herpes by wrestling the second district's student at a tournament. Matter of Ficek v Akron Cent. Sch. Dist., 144 A.D.3d 1601, 41 N.Y.S.3d 616, 2016 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7413 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 2016).

Trial court erred in rejecting a claimant's argument that the investigation provided the city with actual notice of the claim because negligence was the only theory of liability that could be implied by the claimant's conversations with the Department of Corrections employee, who could have determined who was in the room at the time of the alleged assault during the course of his investigation with a modicum of effort. Matter of Rodriguez v City of New York, 172 A.D.3d 556, 101 N.Y.S.3d 303, 2019 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3915 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2019).

Trial court erred in denying the petitioner's petition for leave to deem a late notice of claim timely served nunc pro tunc and in dismissing that portion of the proceeding because the issue was not barred by the doctrines of collateral estoppel and res judicata where the issue was not litigated or decided by a prior federal order. Matter of Chodkowski v County of Nassau, 180 A.D.3d 778, 118 N.Y.S.3d 694, 2020 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1133 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2020).

Trial court abused its discretion by not deeming a high school student's late notice of claim timely served nunc pro tunc on the Department of Education (DOE) because the DOE had actual knowledge, within the statutory period or reasonable time thereafter, of the facts constituting the negligent supervision and negligent infliction of emotional distress claims, arising as a result of an alleged rape, and the student established a lack of substantial prejudice to the DOE in maintaining a defense. Doe v City of New York, 185 A.D.3d 659, 127 N.Y.S.3d 514, 2020 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3847 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2020).

151. Review

Court of Appeals will not review appellate division's exercise of sound discretion to grant or deny an appplication to file a late notice of claim under General Municipal Law § 50-e. Stowe v Elmira, 31 N.Y.2d 814, 339 N.Y.S.2d 463, 291 N.E.2d 586, 1972 N.Y. LEXIS 978 (N.Y. 1972).

Ultimate discretion, under statute requiring notice of tort claims against municipal corporations be filed within 90 days after claim arises, in determining whether to grant leave to file notice of claim after expiration of 90 days must be exercised by the Appellate Division. Febles v New York, 44 A.D.2d 369, 355 N.Y.S.2d 147, 1974 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5055 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1974).

The failure to timely file a notice of claim against a municipality is a defense which the municipality may raise for the first time on appeal. Hart v East Plaza, Inc., 62 A.D.2d 113, 403 N.Y.S.2d 928, 1978 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10425 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't), app. dismissed, 45 N.Y.2d 706, 408 N.Y.S.2d 1025, 1978 N.Y. LEXIS 3070 (N.Y. 1978).

County defendants' appeal from order granting leave to serve late notice of claim did not enjoin plaintiff from serving his summons and complaint during pendency of appeal. Ramunno v County of Westchester, 224 A.D.2d 403, 637 N.Y.S.2d 481, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 888 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't), app. denied, 88 N.Y.2d 803, 645 N.Y.S.2d 445, 668 N.E.2d 416, 1996 N.Y. LEXIS 743 (N.Y. 1996).

Order granting motion for leave to file late notice of claim did not constitute law of the case, since such doctrine does not apply to appellate review of subordinate court's order. Hey v Town of Napoli, 265 A.D.2d 803, 695 N.Y.S.2d 643, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9828 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1999).

Order denying petitioners' motion for leave to renew and reargue their prior application for leave to serve late notice of claim against city was not reviewable where they failed to perfect appeal from denial of prior application, which was dismissed for failure to prosecute, and that dismissal was adjudication on merits as to all issues that could have been reviewed therein. Gross v City of New York, 266 A.D.2d 214, 697 N.Y.S.2d 682, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11090 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1999).

Supreme court's decision granting father's application to file late notice of claim against school district on behalf of student whose hand was severely injured in classroom metal sheering accident, and Appellate Division's review of that decision, were limited solely to claim on behalf of son, despite father's unilateral amendment of caption of action on his brief and counsel's assertion at oral argument that father had intended to assert derivative claim, where proposed notice of claim and application to allow late filing thereof made no reference to any derivative claim on behalf of father individually. Hayes v Peru Cent. Sch. Dist., 281 A.D.2d 794, 722 N.Y.S.2d 104, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2504 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2001).

Trial court's denial of claimants' application pursuant to N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(5) to serve a late notice of claim on a city in a personal injury action was reversed; the appellate court exercised its discretion, as the delay was short and the city was not prejudiced. Rudloff v City of Rochester, 303 A.D.2d 1052, 756 N.Y.S.2d 818, 2003 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2803 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 2003).

Allowance of a late notice of claim was reversed and the action dismissed where a mother of an injured infant did not show that a school district had notice of the facts forming the basis of her negligent supervision claim within either 90 days or within a reasonable time thereafter; the only proof submitted was an incident report on the day following the accident stating only that, in attempting to lift a chair into an overhead position while carrying the chair from one classroom to another, the infant lost control and the chair struck him in the forehead. Conroy v Smithtown Cent. Sch. Dist., 3 A.D.3d 492, 770 N.Y.S.2d 428, 2004 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 249 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2004).

Petition to file a late notice of a claim against a county was improperly granted where: (1) the delay in filing was not attributable to their son's infancy; (2) the parents had retained counsel in 1995 and counsel had promptly obtained all medical records from the county; (3) the parents did not retain new counsel until six years later; (4) the parent's excuse that they were unaware of the possibility of commencing a lawsuit was not a reasonable excuse; and (5) the parents failed to show that the county would not be substantially prejudiced by the nine year delay between the alleged medical malpractice and their motion to file a late notice. The supreme court improvidently exercised its discretion in granting the petition and the court reversed that decision and ordered that the proceeding be dismissed. Flores v County of Nassau, 8 A.D.3d 377, 777 N.Y.S.2d 739, 2004 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7847 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't), app. denied, 3 N.Y.3d 606, 785 N.Y.S.2d 23, 818 N.E.2d 665, 2004 N.Y. LEXIS 2250 (N.Y. 2004).

Where a mother suffered a ruptured uterus while hospitalized, gave birth to an infant with severe perinatal hypoxic injury, and had to undergo a total hysterectomy, the hospital had actual notice of her claim and would not be unduly prejudiced by the mother's delay in filing a timely notice of a claim against it. The supreme court improvidently exercised its discretion in denying her petition to file a late claim, especially where, under the circumstances, the absence of a reasonable excuse for failing to timely serve the notice was not a bar to granting leave to serve a late notice; the court deemed the notice served after reversing the denial of the mother's petition and ordering that the petition be granted. Hendershot v Westchester Med. Ctr., 8 A.D.3d 381, 777 N.Y.S.2d 743, 2004 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7811 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2004).

Trial court properly denied an individual's petition for leave to serve a late notice of claim against a county health care corporation as the individual conceded that she filed her petition well after the one year and 90-day statute of limitations period had expired and there was no delayed discovery rule to toll the statute of limitations in actions to recover damages for personal injuries based on sexual abuse. N.M. v Westchester County Health Care Corp., 10 A.D.3d 421, 781 N.Y.S.2d 370, 2004 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10310 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2004).

VII. Particular Grounds for Extension of Time

152. In general

Petitioner was properly denied an application for leave to serve a late notice of claim upon the city, where from the facts it appeared that petitioner had simply decided too late to seek legal assistance in bringing her claim. In re Martin, 100 A.D.2d 879, 473 N.Y.S.2d 1021, 1984 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 17997 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1984).

A motion for leave to serve a late notice of claim pursuant to Gen Mun Law § 50-3(5) was improperly denied, even though the only excuse given for late service was the negligence of a process server, where the notice of claim was served only two days beyond the statutory period, and the municipality conceded that it had acquired actual knowledge of the essential facts constituting the claim and that it had suffered no prejudice by reason of the delay; the lower court erred in concluding that petitioner's failure to establish the existence of one of the specific factors listed in Gen Mun Law § 50-e was fatal to his application. Patterson v Hempstead, 104 A.D.2d 975, 480 N.Y.S.2d 899, 1984 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 20415 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1984).

In personal injury action against city, plaintiffs were properly denied leave to serve late notice of claim under CLS Gen Mun § 50-e where application for leave was not brought until 10 months after accident and 7 months after expiration of prescribed 90-day period, plaintiffs failed to submit any medical affidavit or hospital records to document alleged physical disability which might have prevented timely service, duration of claimed incapacitation accounted for only ½ of 10-month period, and there was no evidence that city, its attorney or its insurance carrier acquired actual knowledge of essential facts constituting claim given fact that no police or accident report was prepared or filed; bare assertions by plaintiffs' counsel that city created dangerous condition were inadequate to establish actual knowledge. Carroll v New York, 130 A.D.2d 702, 516 N.Y.S.2d 23, 1987 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 46721 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1987).

In deciding whether leave to file late notice of claim against municipality should be granted, key factors are whether petitioner has demonstrated reasonable excuse for failure to serve timely notice of claim, whether municipality acquired actual knowledge of essential facts constituting claim within 90 days after claim arose or reasonable time thereafter, and whether delay would substantially prejudice municipality in maintaining its defense on merits. Perry v New York, 133 A.D.2d 692, 519 N.Y.S.2d 862, 1987 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 51728 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1987).

Court properly granted town's motion to dismiss tort action where plaintiff (1) filed notice of claim well beyond 90-day period set forth in Gen Mun § 50-e, (2) failed to offer excuse for later filing or show that town was not prejudiced thereby, and (3) failed to appear for examination on his original notice of claim, as requested by town's attorney pursuant to CLS Gen Mun § 50-h. Baumblatt v Battalia, 134 A.D.2d 226, 520 N.Y.S.2d 571, 1987 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 50422 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1987).

Three key factors in determining whether leave to file late notice of claim should be granted are: (1) whether claimant has shown reasonable excuse for delay, (2) whether municipality had actual or constructive notice of essential facts constituting claim within 90 days of its accrual, or within reasonable time thereafter, and (3) whether delay would substantially prejudice municipality in maintaining its defense. Hilton v Town of Richland, 216 A.D.2d 921, 629 N.Y.S.2d 130, 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7251 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1995).

In determining whether to permit service of late notice of claim, court must focus on whether petitioner has reasonable excuse for failure to serve timely notice, whether municipality acquired actual notice of essential facts constituting claim within 90 days or reasonable time thereafter, and whether delay would substantially prejudice municipality in defending on merits. Singh v City Univ. of New York/ Bronx Community College, 223 A.D.2d 545, 636 N.Y.S.2d 130, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 148 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1996).

In deciding whether leave to serve late notice of claim should be granted, court should consider, as key factors, whether claimant has shown reasonable excuse for failing to serve timely notice of claim, whether municipality acquired actual knowledge of essential facts of claim within 90 days from its accrual or reasonable time thereafter, and whether delay would substantially prejudice municipality in maintaining its defense on merits. Resto v City of New York, 240 A.D.2d 499, 658 N.Y.S.2d 416, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6067 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't), app. dismissed, 91 N.Y.2d 847, 667 N.Y.S.2d 680, 690 N.E.2d 490, 1997 N.Y. LEXIS 4067 (N.Y. 1997).

Absence of acceptable excuse is not necessarily fatal to application for leave to serve late notice of claim, but its absence in combination with other factors may serve as basis for denying application. Salahudeen Rashad Saafir v Metro-North Commuter R.R. Co., 260 A.D.2d 462, 688 N.Y.S.2d 224, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3863 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't), app. denied, 93 N.Y.2d 816, 697 N.Y.S.2d 563, 719 N.E.2d 924, 1999 N.Y. LEXIS 2802 (N.Y. 1999).

Order denying appellant leave to serve late notice of claim on an authority was error because the authority's employees were directly involved in the relevant events and whose reports reflected actual knowledge sufficient to satisfy the statute; moreover, the reports, which identified the authority's employees who were present during the incident and gave reasonable notice from which it could have been inferred that a potentially actionable wrong had been committed by the authority and reflected a prompt and thorough investigation. Appellant further showed that the delay in serving the notice of claim, which was not particularly lengthy and was attributable in significant part to the nature of the information conveyed by the police department, did not cause the authority to suffer substantial prejudice in maintaining its defense. Matter of Boskin v New York City Tr. Auth., 44 A.D.3d 851, 843 N.Y.S.2d 454, 2007 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10737 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2007).

Hospital was entitled to summary judgment in malpractice claim because patient failed to file a timely notice of claim, and failed to meet criteria that would have warranted exercise of discretion to permit her to file late notice under N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(5) as the patient failed to provide a reasonable excuse for the delay and failed to establish that the hospital had actual notice of the claim; the record showed that the delay was attributable to the fact that the patient's mother, while on notice of the infant's condition, lacked an understanding of the legal basis for the claim, but ignorance of the law was not a reasonable excuse. The patient failed to show that the hospital acquired actual notice of the facts constituting the claim from the medical record, as the record alone did not put the hospital on notice of alleged malpractice that might years later have given rise to another condition. Plaza v New York Health & Hosps. Corp. (Jacobi Med. Ctr.), 97 A.D.3d 466, 949 N.Y.S.2d 25, 2012 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5519 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2012), aff'd, 21 N.Y.3d 983, 970 N.Y.S.2d 923, 993 N.E.2d 409, 2013 N.Y. LEXIS 1679 (N.Y. 2013).

Upon an adequate showing of one of the statutory grounds for extending the time to give notice of claim, and upon application within the maximum time limitation, the court has discretion to grant an extension of time. Stuto v New York, 84 N.Y.S.2d 812, 192 Misc. 935, 1948 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3677 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1948).

Subd 5 sets forth the sole grounds upon which leave may be granted to serve a late notice of claim under the above statute. Thompson v 9 West 117th St. Corp., 44 Misc. 2d 920, 255 N.Y.S.2d 440, 1964 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1243 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1964).

153. Incapacity defined

Incapacity, to serve as a ground for motion to extend time for serving notice of claim, means practical inability to execute the claim and to attend to its service. Smith v New York City Transit Authority, 18 A.D.2d 10, 238 N.Y.S.2d 250, 1963 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4288 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1963).

154. Nature and extent of incapacity

Exercise of the court's discretion to grant an application for extension of time to serve notice of claim in behalf of an incapacitated claimant depends largely on the nature and extent of the incapacity established, the time of its occurrence, and its duration. A minor or temporary physical disability, which does not impair the mind or continue throughout the 90-day period, will not ordinarily justify an extension of time for notice. Haas v Cedarhurst, 298 N.Y. 757, 83 N.E.2d 156, 298 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 757, 1948 N.Y. LEXIS 1307 (N.Y. 1948).

An application for leave to serve late notice of claim for damages for personal injuries upon a town was erroneously granted where it failed to show that failure to make timely service was due to mental or physical incapacity of the claimant. Lotrecchiano v Carmel, 22 A.D.2d 697, 253 N.Y.S.2d 774, 1964 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3079 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1964).

In action by firefighter disabled in line of duty, it was abuse of discretion to deny leave to file late notice of claim where (1) injury report prepared on day of accident furnished city and fire department with actual knowledge of essential facts constituting firefighter's claim, (2) prejudicial impact of 7-month delay was substantially lessened by injury report and records of fire departmental medical staff who treated firefighter, and (3) firefighter's explanation (that he did not seek legal advice within statutory filing period because he was told by departmental medical staff that he would not suffer permanent injury) was reasonable; even if firefighter's excuse had been inadequate, it would not mandate different result since CLS Gen Mun § 50-e should be applied to do substantial justice. Swensen v New York, 126 A.D.2d 499, 511 N.Y.S.2d 20, 1987 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 41642 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't), app. denied, 70 N.Y.2d 602, 518 N.Y.S.2d 1024, 512 N.E.2d 550, 1987 N.Y. LEXIS 17402 (N.Y. 1987).

Claimant's inability to speak English does not constitute reasonable excuse for delay in filing notice of claim under CLS Gen Mun § 50-e. Sverdlin v City of New York, 229 A.D.2d 544, 645 N.Y.S.2d 843, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7901 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1996).

Petitioner's failure to file notice of claim within 90-day period under CLS Gen Mun § 50-e(1)(a) was not excusable on ground that he was unaware of severity of his injuries prior to expiration of 90-day period where there was no affidavit by petitioner or medical evidence of his condition, and thus excuse offered by his counsel, who was not retained until after 90-day period had expired, had no probative value. McLaughlin v North Colonie Cent. Sch. Dist., 269 A.D.2d 658, 702 N.Y.S.2d 466, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1089 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2000).

Oncologist's affidavit was unnecessary to establish a reasonable excuse for a decedent's failure to timely file a notice of a medical malpractice claim against a county as the decdent's affidavit set forth her diagnosis and the dates of her hospitalizations, surgery, and chemotherapy treatments and stated that she was that she unable to attend to her needs due to her medical condition, that she was confined to bed and home, and that she was wheelchair-bound; further, the county had the decedent's medical records and thus had actual notice of the facts underlying the claim. Matter of Olsen v County of Nassau, 14 A.D.3d 706, 789 N.Y.S.2d 264, 2005 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 819 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2005).

155. Confinement in jail

A person who is serving a prison sentence on conviction for felony cannot seek an extension of time to serve notice of claim against a municipality after expiration of the 90-day period while deprived of civil rights under former § 510 of the Penal Law. Burns v New York, 21 A.D.2d 767, 250 N.Y.S.2d 680, 1964 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3508 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1964).

Claimant's application to file late notice of claim against city for false imprisonment denied where, although he was in county jail or imprisoned in another state for part of the 90-day period following accrual of his cause of action, he had approximately 3 weeks during the 90-day period during which he was not incarcerated in which to file his claim. Clair v Utica, 72 Misc. 2d 547, 339 N.Y.S.2d 616, 1972 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2224 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1972).

156. —Hospitalization of prisoner

Trend of the cases indicates more liberality in interpreting subd. 5 of this section, and there was no abuse of discretion in granting an extension of time to serve notice of claim beyond the 90-day period for some six weeks following claimant's discharge from a hospital with respect to injuries sustained from a stab wound inflicted by a fellow jail-mate in connection with which emergency surgery and follow-up treatment kept him hospitalized from October 24 of one year to March 15 of the next. Shane v County of Albany, 20 A.D.2d 746, 246 N.Y.S.2d 837, 1964 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4398 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1964).

The court may grant leave to an adult claimant to serve a notice of claim after the 90-day period only where the claimant had been mentally or physically incapacitated, and, by reason of such disability, has failed to serve a notice of claim within the time specified. The incapacity of his attorney is not one of the grounds for allowing such permission. Ostrander v Syracuse, 40 A.D.2d 622, 336 N.Y.S.2d 558, 1972 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3907 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1972), aff'd, 33 N.Y.2d 960, 353 N.Y.S.2d 732, 309 N.E.2d 132, 1974 N.Y. LEXIS 1751 (N.Y. 1974).

Court abused its discretion in refusing to permit filing of late notice of claim for conscious pain and suffering where application was made less than 2 ½ months after expiration of statutory period, delay was attributable, in large part, to illness of counsel, and there was no showing of prejudice to defendant. Baker v New York City Health & Hospitals Corp., 44 A.D.2d 578, 353 N.Y.S.2d 493, 1974 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5449 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't), app. dismissed, 34 N.Y.2d 943, 359 N.Y.S.2d 562, 316 N.E.2d 876, 1974 N.Y. LEXIS 1402 (N.Y. 1974), app. denied, 34 N.Y.2d 521, 1974 N.Y. LEXIS 2770 (N.Y. 1974), aff'd, 36 N.Y.2d 925, 373 N.Y.S.2d 539, 335 N.E.2d 847, 1975 N.Y. LEXIS 2021 (N.Y. 1975).

In personal injury action against county, inmate would be permitted to serve late notice of claim despite her lack of acceptable excuse for failure to serve timely notice since her injury occurred while she was incarcerated and she was treated at county medical center; county apparently had actual knowledge of essential facts of claim, and there was no indication that it was substantially prejudiced by delay. Rodriguez v County of Nassau, 126 A.D.2d 536, 510 N.Y.S.2d 658, 1987 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 41673 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1987).

An inmate's physical disability while in the hospital as the result of an accident incurred while working in a prison and the refusal of the prison authorities to permit him to communicate with a lawyer or with the Commissioner of Correction constituted such physical disability as, under the statute, would permit the granting of an application to serve a late notice of claim. Jones v New York, 12 Misc. 2d 911, 178 N.Y.S.2d 61, 1958 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3083 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1958).

157. Matters involving counsel; incapacity

Injuries in a bus accident, not amounting to such mental or physical disability as would cause the failure to serve notice of claim under this section, consultations with specialists, an accident to injured party's attorney, and uncertainty as to extent of injuries, are not sufficient excuse for failure to file notice of claim within the required time limit, sub 2 of this section permitting the setting out of injuries so far as then practicable, and sub 6 permitting later amendment. White v New York, 87 N.Y.S.2d 446, 194 Misc. 562, 1949 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1938 (N.Y. Sup. Ct.), app. dismissed, 276 A.D. 765, 93 N.Y.S.2d 151, 1949 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3247 (N.Y. App. Div. 1949).

The excuse for failure to make timely service, that claimant's attorney was ill for a short time prior to service, and that a clerk in the Comptroller's office stated that it was unnecessary to serve notice, are without merit. Krauss v Board of Education, 103 N.Y.S.2d 939, 199 Misc. 505, 1951 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1693 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1951).

158. —Mistake

An application for leave to serve notice of claim under this section after expiration of the time prescribed therefor was improperly granted where the reason given for failure to serve timely notice was misinformation of attorney for claimant as to date of the accident, notwithstanding it appeared that claimant was an elderly lady who could neither read, write, nor understand English and her mistake in informing counsel as to date of the accident occurred while she was suffering pain, there was no police blotter report of the accident from which the date could be ascertained, and the notice served was actually served within 90 days from date of the occurrence as mistakenly stated by claimant to her attorney. Gugliotto v New York, 10 A.D.2d 986, 203 N.Y.S.2d 96, 1960 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9719 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1960), aff'd, 9 N.Y.2d 738, 214 N.Y.S.2d 349, 174 N.E.2d 332, 1961 N.Y. LEXIS 1465 (N.Y. 1961).

An application of leave to serve a late notice of claim denied where no physical or mental incapacity of petitioner was shown, and the only explanation offered was the mistake in the office of the attorney. Cavaliere v New York City Transit Authority, 36 A.D.2d 532, 318 N.Y.S.2d 584, 1971 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4914 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1971).

Supreme Court acted within its discretion in granting leave to serve late notice of claim against town pursuant to CLS Gen Mun § 50-e, since delay was caused by excusable error as to which public corporation was responsible for monitoring traffic on road, application to serve late notice was made promptly after discovery of error, and town failed to demonstrate that it was prejudiced in investigating and preparing its defense in light of existence of detailed accident report by town police officer, town's actual knowledge of essential facts of claim, and town's receipt of notice within 5 months of statutory deadline, during which time there had been no change in accident situs. Cannistra v Putnam Valley, 124 A.D.2d 801, 508 N.Y.S.2d 524, 1986 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 62121 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1986).

It was abuse of discretion to deny application for leave to file late notice of claim for injuries sustained by plaintiff in fall down stairwell at state university dormitory where (1) plaintiff offered reasonable excuse for delay because her counsel was misadvised by Attorney General regarding proper party defendant, (2) defendant received actual knowledge of claim shortly after 90-day statutory period, and (3) defendant failed to establish prejudice if motion were granted. Haley v Dormitory Authority of State, 133 A.D.2d 527, 519 N.Y.S.2d 900, 1987 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 50007 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1987).

Plaintiff was properly permitted to file late notice of claim against city housing authority where (1) he was arrested for driving while intoxicated by housing authority police officer, who allegedly complied with proper procedure by parking plaintiff's car on public street, (2) plaintiff alleged that he was neither advised of location of car nor given keys to car, and that car was never again found, (3) plaintiff's attorney filed original notice against city in good faith belief that plaintiff was arrested by city police officer, and (4) housing authority did not claim prejudice by delay. Copeland v New York City Housing Authority, 173 A.D.2d

335, 575 N.Y.S.2d 283, 1991 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7254 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1991).

Court abused its discretion in granting petitioner resident of Georgia leave to file late notice of claim against village under CLS Gen Mun § 50-e(5) in connection with injuries she sustained when her automobile was struck by allegedly decayed tree in village, where only timely submission was letter written by Georgia attorney retained by petitioner, which purported to be notice of claim but was not verified, since (1) record did not show that village obtained actual or constructive notice of claim from either letter in question or accident report, in that neither document indicated that tree was located on property owned by village or was in decayed condition, and (2) ignorance of requirements of § 50-e by petitioner's Georgia attorney was not valid excuse for noncompliance. Wertenberger v Briarcliff Manor, 175 A.D.2d 922, 573 N.Y.S.2d 757, 1991 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11316 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1991).

Where the injured party did not file a timely notice of claim against the county, the injured party was not entitled to leave to serve a late notice of claim pursuant to N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(5); the delay was a result of the unacceptable excuse of law office failure, there was no support for the contention that the county acquired actual knowledge of the essential facts constituting the claim within the appropriate time period, and the injured party did not establish that the delay in serving the notice of claim would not have substantially prejudiced the county in maintaining the defense on the merits. Belenky v Nassau Cmty. College, 4 A.D.3d 422, 771 N.Y.S.2d 379, 2004 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1346 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2004).

159. —Miscellaneous matters

In a proceeding for leave to serve a late notice of claim against the city, leave to serve a late notice would be denied where counsel's delinquency in failing to timely commence the action would not be an acceptable excuse. Ferro v New York, Dep't of Correction, 88 A.D.2d 914, 450 N.Y.S.2d 571, 1982 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 17248 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1982).

Special Term properly excused plaintiff's delay in filing notice of claim pursuant to CLS Gen Mun § 50-e in action against county hospital where hospital had actual notice of facts constituting claim by virtue of its possession of medical records pertaining to plaintiff's care at hospital, action was brought regarding hospital's care so that hospital's lack of actual knowledge of subsequent care at another hospital was not fatal to plaintiff's motion, hospital did not show any prejudice to itself as result in delay and it was unlikely any prejudice could be shown given its actual knowledge, and counsel's failure to file notice of claim for 8 months, although possibly constituting law office failure, did not preclude excusing delay. Kavanaugh v Memorial Hospital & Nursing Home, 126 A.D.2d 930, 511 N.Y.S.2d 188, 1987 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 42029 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1987).

Claimant's 4-month delay in seeking leave to file late notice of claim was excusable where she did not learn of her attorney's death for 4 months, and her new attorney was not able to obtain her file from late attorney's widow until one month thereafter. Green v Manhattan & Bronx Surface Transit Operating Authority, 164 A.D.2d 851, 559 N.Y.S.2d 734, 1990 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10816 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1990).

Claimant, who was shot by off-duty Housing Authority detective, was entitled to leave to serve late notice of claim under CLS Gen Mun § 50-e(5), even though he delayed 5 months in serving notice of claim on Authority, since claimant's counsel had good faith belief that detective was employed by city, Authority had received contemporaneous reports of incident, and Authority was not prejudiced by delay. Pungello v New York City Housing Authority, 181 A.D.2d 511, 580 N.Y.S.2d 359, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3337 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1992).

Law office failure is not acceptable excuse for failure to timely comply with notice of claim provisions of CLS Gen Mun § 50-e. Serrano v New York City Hous. Auth., 197 A.D.2d 694, 602 N.Y.S.2d 935, 1993 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9963 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1993).

Petitioners' mere contention that, for unknown reasons, their prior counsel simply failed to seek leave to serve late notice of claim was not valid and acceptable excuse for delay. Santana v City of New York, 211 A.D.2d 636, 621 N.Y.S.2d 884, 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 100 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1995).

It was abuse of discretion to grant petition for leave to serve late notice of claim against New York City Housing Authority where petitioner's counsel merely claimed that it only recently noted that building in which petitioner lived and was injured was owned by Authority and that initial draft of notice of claim had been misplaced; further, it was not shown that Authority acquired actual knowledge of claim within 90-day period under CLS Gen Mun § 50-e(1)(a). King v New York City Hous. Auth., 274 A.D.2d 482, 711 N.Y.S.2d 33, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7839 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2000).

Slip-and-fall plaintiff was not entitled to serve late notice of claim against city housing authority where (1) delay was result of law office failure, which is not acceptable excuse for failure to timely comply with CLS Gen Mun § 50-e, (2) authority did not have actual knowledge of essential facts of claim within appropriate period, and (3) plaintiff did not prove that delay in serving notice of claim would not substantially prejudice authority in maintaining defense on merits. Kittredge v New York City Hous. Auth., 275 A.D.2d 746, 713 N.Y.S.2d 219, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9267 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2000).

Where petitioners, the parents of a child, individually and as the child's parents and guardians, filed an application pursuant to N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(5) for leave to file a late notice of claim against respondents, a county and its public health department, related to injuries from lead poisoning, and petitioners claimed that the delay in filing the application was due to a change in the law following a certain appellate opinion and due to their retention of new counsel, these excuses for the delay were not reasonable since the application was made 19 months after the appellate opinion in issue was released and more than 12 months after petitioners retained their new counsel. Lanphere v County of Washington, 301 A.D.2d 936, 754 N.Y.S.2d 125, 2003 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 341 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2003).

City hospital corporation's conclusory assertions, made solely by its attorney, that it was prejudiced by reason of the lengthy delay was insufficient to meet its burden of overcoming the patient's showing of lack of prejudice for filing a late notice of claim under N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(5). Gibbs v City of New York, 22 A.D.3d 717, 804 N.Y.S.2d 393, 2005 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11432 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2005).

But the mere fact that some details were given to an attorney shortly after the accident did not affect the propriety of extension of time obtained by the attorney for serving a notice of tort claim against the city. Cohen v New York, 90 N.Y.S.2d 884, 1949 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2516 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1949).

160. Death of claimant

While a notice of claim for wrongful death may be given by the widow or next of kin of a decedent against the municipality, the only "claimant" who has the capacity to prosecute the claim is the administrator or executor and the fact that the next of kin are infants does not constitute them "claimants" within the meaning of subd. 5 of this section or permit the court to grant them time extensions for late filing of claims under subd. 5 after the maximum time period for serving notice of claim has expired. Lynn v New York, 18 A.D.2d 1076, 239 N.Y.S.2d 448, 1963 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4056 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't), aff'd, 13 N.Y.2d 955, 244 N.Y.S.2d 457, 194 N.E.2d 423, 1963 N.Y. LEXIS 927 (N.Y. 1963).

Trial court erred in denying petitioner's application for leave to serve a late notice of claim for medical malpractice and loss of consortium upon the New York City Health and Hospitals Corporation where petitioner's deceased was physically incapacitated and died during the time within which notice should have been served and where petitioner's claim for loss of consortium was not a derivative but independent claim; decedent's incapacitation and death could not be said to effect service of notice of the survivor's claim since it is rare if not unknown to try a consortium claim separately from the negligence action thereby permitting late service under the new elastic standards of Gen Mun Law § 50-e(5). Centelles v New York City Health & Hospitals Corp., 84

Death or incapacity of party asserting claim is statutory ground on which leave to file late notice of claim against municipality may be predicated if there is no substantial prejudice to defendant. Banegas-Nobles v New York City Health & Hosps. Corp., 184 A.D.2d 379, 585 N.Y.S.2d 376, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8525 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1992).

161. —Necessity that death occur within statutory period

If the person who had a claim against a municipality or public corporation for injuries sustained dies within the 90-day period for serving notice of his claim, without having given the required notice, the court, upon due and timely application, can grant a reasonable extension of time for service of notice, thereby saving the decedent's right of action for damages for the injuries sustained, including pain and suffering. Mulligan v Westchester County, 272 A.D. 927, 71 N.Y.S.2d 152, 1947 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4249 (N.Y. App. Div. 1947).

Petitioner was not entitled to an order directing a city transit authority to accept a supplemental notice of claim for damages where (1) the notice was served more than 90 days after the claim arose; (2) circumstances negated a waiver by the authority of the statutory requirements as to the manner of service of an irregular but timely notice; (3) the authority did not examine the claimant; and (4) no showing was made that failure to serve was due to any disability and no explanation was given for claimant's failure to move for the order until more than 8 months after she served the untimely claim. Golden v New York City Transit Authority, 4 A.D.2d 954, 167 N.Y.S.2d 874, 1957 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4014 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1957).

The 90-day period for service of notice of a claim is fully applicable to a claim based on conscious pain and suffering of a person since deceased, in the absence of a proper and timely application for an extension of time by reason of his death within the 90-day period. Cavagnol v Orangetown, 17 Misc. 2d 943, 185 N.Y.S.2d 720, 1959 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3982 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1959).

162. —Applicability of disability to administrator

Once an administrator has been duly appointed for the estate of a decedent, the 90-day period for serving notice of a wrongful death claim starts to run, there is no provision for extending it, and a court is powerless to extend it if the administrator fails to serve it within the 90-day period following his appointment. Mulligan v New York, 273 A.D. 152, 75 N.Y.S.2d 28, 1947 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2944 (N.Y. App. Div. 1947).

The administratrix of a decedent, seeking to enforce a death claim against a municipality, is not one to whom the court may extend time for service of notice of claim under subd. 5 of this section. Lynn v New York, 18 A.D.2d 1076, 239 N.Y.S.2d 448, 1963 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4056 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't), aff'd, 13 N.Y.2d 955, 244 N.Y.S.2d 457, 194 N.E.2d 423, 1963 N.Y. LEXIS 927 (N.Y. 1963).

With respect to a claim for wrongful death, the administratrix of the decedent is not within the protective ambit of subd. 5 of this section and the court accordingly lacks discretionary power to extend her time for filing notice of claim. Boston v New York City Transit Authority, 20 A.D.2d 709, 247 N.Y.S.2d 177, 1964 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4471 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1964).

While the court has discretionary power to extend the time for service of notice of claim under this section on the ground of mental or physical incapacity of claimant, prior to his death, an extension of time should not be granted where his administratrix, applying for such extension, does not sufficiently show that incapacity was the cause of claimant's failure to file timely notice of claim or make application for an extension within a reasonable time. Boston v New York City Transit Authority, 20 A.D.2d 709, 247 N.Y.S.2d 177, 1964 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4471 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1964).

Where the decedent's administratrix made no effort to file a claim as required under subdivision 1 of this section until at least eight months beyond the permissive 90 days, it was an abuse of the trial court's discretion to grant a motion for leave to file a late notice where her incapacity to file the claim timely was not established. Blecker v New York, 24 A.D.2d 714, 263 N.Y.S.2d 348, 1965 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3348 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1965).

With respect to claim for wrongful death, administrator of estate is not one within purview of General Municipal Law § 50-e, subdivision 5 relating to those for whom court, in exercise of discretion, may extend time for service of notice of claim; however, as to action for conscious pain and suffering accrued during lifetime of decedent, court did have discretionary power to grant leave to serve notice of claim within reasonable time after 90-day period expired. Baker v New York City Health & Hospitals Corp., 44 A.D.2d 578, 353 N.Y.S.2d 493, 1974 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5449 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't), app. dismissed, 34 N.Y.2d 943, 359 N.Y.S.2d 562, 316 N.E.2d 876, 1974 N.Y. LEXIS 1402 (N.Y. 1974), app. denied, 34 N.Y.2d 521, 1974 N.Y. LEXIS 2770 (N.Y. 1974), aff'd, 36 N.Y.2d 925, 373 N.Y.S.2d 539, 335 N.E.2d 847, 1975 N.Y. LEXIS 2021 (N.Y. 1975).

Subsequent to amendment of CLS Gen Mun § 50-e(5) in 1976, administratrix of claimant's estate is person entitled to seek relief pursuant to that statute. Smiley-Walsch v New York City Housing Authority, 172 A.D.2d 382, 568 N.Y.S.2d 762, 1991 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4949 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1991).

163. —Municipal knowledge of cause of death

Where there was no doubt that defendant had full and complete knowledge of the occurrence causing injury followed by death of the decedent about 30 days after the injury, from police blotter reports on file and reports of its employees, but notice of claim for conscious pain and suffering was not served until more than three months after date of injury and the appointment of a temporary administrator, under subds. 5 and 6 of this section an order was entered holding that service of the notice should be deemed to have been made within the proper time. Curry v New York City Transit Authority, 23 Misc. 2d 331, 200 N.Y.S.2d 169, 1960 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3609 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1960).

164. —Timeliness of motion for extension

A cause of action for conscious pain and suffering accrues during the lifetime of the decedent and an extension of time to serve notice of claim can be granted within a reasonable time after the 90-day period has expired, but not as late as almost a year after decedent's death and more than ten months after appointment of an administrator without sufficient explanation of the delay. Lynn v New York, 18 A.D.2d 1076, 239 N.Y.S.2d 448, 1963 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4056 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't), aff'd, 13 N.Y.2d 955, 244 N.Y.S.2d 457, 194 N.E.2d 423, 1963 N.Y. LEXIS 927 (N.Y. 1963).

The time for filing notice of claim for wrongful death against a municipality cannot be prolonged indefinitely, notwithstanding it does not begin to run until appointment of an executor or administrator, because (former) § 130 of the Decedent Estate Law requires commencement of an action for wrongful death within two years after decedent's death. Application of Sellars, 20 A.D.2d 350, 246 N.Y.S.2d 937, 1964 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4356 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1964).

In a proceeding to permit the filing of a late notice of claim, it was held that with respect to a claim for personal injuries a motion made more than one year after the happening of the event on which the claim was based was not timely and must be denied, although a notice with respect to a claim for wrongful death was timely since it was filed within the statutory period after plaintiff's appointment as administratrix. Hall v New York City Transit Authority, 32 A.D.2d 932, 303 N.Y.S.2d 204, 1969 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3406 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1969).

Leave of court to serve notice of a claim against a municipality for personal injuries in behalf of the injured party's estate after the statutory time limit has expired, will be granted where service of the motion for leave to serve was made on the corporation fourteen days after the appointment of an administrator and only seventy-seven days after the accident and it is shown that the decedent's family did not learn of the injury until the medical examiner's report was received, after which it was necessary to make investigations before legal action could be taken. Raymond v New York, 88 N.Y.S.2d 73, 194 Misc. 686, 1949 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2044 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1949).

A delay of nine months in filing a claim for pain and suffering, where the decedent died before the time limited for service of notice, was not a reasonable time and the court in its discretion denied a motion to serve a notice of claim. Cooperstein v New York, 12 Misc. 2d 473, 173 N.Y.S.2d 672, 1958 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3566 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1958).

165. Evidence unavailable; extent of injuries

In a patient's medical malpractice action against a city hospital, the patient's application to serve a late notice of claim on the city would be granted where the patient had been unaware of any negligence of the hospital in treating an injury to his right knee until the patient was informed by his physician of the possibility of negligence a considerable time after the treatment, and where the city and hospital had actual knowledge of the essential facts constituting the claim within 90 days after the claim arose. Ansaldo v New York, 92 A.D.2d 557, 459 N.Y.S.2d 302, 1983 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 16787 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1983).

Father was not entitled to serve late notice of claim in his action on behalf of his son (who was seriously injured in failed suicide attempt) despite allegations that he did not previously know that some brain damage sustained by his son could have resulted from negligence on part of village rescue squad; village clearly lacked actual knowledge of essential facts underlying claim, and father's one-year delay in seeking leave to serve late notice deprived village of chance to effectively investigate incident and preserve relevant evidence. Albanese v Floral Park, 128 A.D.2d 611, 512 N.Y.S.2d 867, 1987 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 44303 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1987).

Application for leave to serve late notice of claim was properly denied, despite contention that delay resulted from belated discovery that petitioner's injuries were permanent, where petitioner conceded that he retained counsel and commenced action against various other individuals prior to learning of permanent nature of injuries. Santana v City of New York, 211 A.D.2d 636, 621 N.Y.S.2d 884, 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 100 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1995).

Court improperly denied leave to file late notice of claim against housing authority where (1) plaintiff was allegedly injured when he tripped over pipe protruding from broken chain link fence in courtyard of housing project on September 26, 1992, (2) police department accident report was prepared on next day and indicated that copy was forwarded to authority, (3) plaintiff consulted counsel on December 31, 1992, shortly after he learned that his injuries would require surgery, (4) notice of claim was served on January 8, 1993, and (5) authority did not suffer substantial prejudice. Castellano v New York City Hous. Auth., 212 A.D.2d 606, 622 N.Y.S.2d 546, 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1453 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1995).

Plaintiff was properly granted leave to file late notice of claim against city housing authority arising from injury allegedly incurred from lack of handrails on staircase where he offered, as excuse for filing notice 6 ½ months after accident, that he did not ascertain severity of injury until 3 months after his accident; also, underlying facts of claim became known to authority shortly after expiration of 90-day statutory time period. Lopez v New York City Hous. Auth., 225 A.D.2d 492, 639 N.Y.S.2d 389, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3262 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1996).

Court properly denied petitioner's application for leave to serve late notice of claim, which was not made until 14 months after accident, even though she asserted that she was unaware that second vehicle involved in accident was municipal vehicle, since she conceded that she received police accident report, which revealed vehicle's ownership some 9 months before instant proceeding was commenced, and police report, which briefly described accident, did not provide city with notice of nature of petitioner's claim. Amin v City of New York, 243 A.D.2d 467, 663 N.Y.S.2d 93, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9346 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1997).

It was proper to deny petitioner's application to serve late notice of claim, despite his assertion that he did not know that he sustained bone fractures, and not just soft tissue injury, until some 10 months after accident, where there was no medical evidence explaining why serious nature of injury took so long to become apparent and diagnose, and passage of 11 months between time of accident and making of instant application prejudiced city's ability to investigate alleged sidewalk defect effectively. Lefkowitz v City of New York, 272 A.D.2d 56, 707 N.Y.S.2d 316, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4913 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2000).

Claimant seeking to serve late notice of claim against city housing authority had reasonable excuse for her delay where (1) during initial 90-day period, she was unaware of seriousness and permanency of her injury and unaware that apartment complex at which accident occurred was owned by authority, and (2) any additional delay between date of her consultation with her attorney and date of her motion under CLS Gen Mun § 50-e(5) was minimal. Greene v Rochester Hous. Auth., 273 A.D.2d 895, 709 N.Y.S.2d 767, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6874 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 2000).

Proffered excuse for failing to serve timely notice of malpractice claim—that patient did not discover her torn Achilles tendon until 10 months after surgery—could not be accepted without supporting medical evidence explaining delay in discovery and diagnosis. Eaddy v County of Nassau, 282 A.D.2d 675, 723 N.Y.S.2d 408, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3990 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2001).

When an infant sought leave, pursuant to N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(5), to serve late notice of a negligent supervision claim on a school district, after the infant was injured by another student in gym class, the infant was not entitled to serve late notice because the infant's excuse for not serving timely notice, which was that the extent of the infant's injuries was unknown within 90 days of the incident, was insufficient. Matter of Scolo v Central Islip Union Free School Dist., 40 A.D.3d 1104, 838 N.Y.S.2d 577, 2007 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6632 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2007).

Injuries in a bus accident, not amounting to such mental or physical disability as would cause the failure to serve notice of claim under this section, consultations with specialists, an accident to injured party's attorney, and uncertainty as to extent of injuries, are not sufficient excuse for failure to file notice of claim within the required time limit, sub 2 of this section permitting the setting out of injuries so far as then practicable, and sub 6 permitting later amendment. White v New York, 87 N.Y.S.2d 446, 194 Misc. 562, 1949 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1938 (N.Y. Sup. Ct.), app. dismissed, 276 A.D. 765, 93 N.Y.S.2d 151, 1949 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3247 (N.Y. App. Div. 1949).

Where an estate administrator filed an untimely notice of claim against the New York City Health and Hospitals Corporation (HHC) because the medical malpractice claim accrued on the day the decedent was discharged from the HHC hospital and continuous treatment did not toll the statute of limitations, equitable estoppel barred HHC's statute of limitations defense because HHC delayed in furnishing a complete set of records. Walker v New York City Health & Hosps. Corp., 234 N.Y.L.J. 114, 2005 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3552 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. Dec. 14, 2005), rev'd, 36 A.D.3d 509, 828 N.Y.S.2d 365, 2007 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 598 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2007).

166. —Identity of tortfeasors

In personal injury action against New York City Industrial Development Agency, plaintiffs were entitled to file late notice of claim where greater part of their delay was due to excusable error concerning identity of public corporation against which claim should have been asserted, and corporation could offer only unsupported conclusory allegation of severe prejudice. Baldeo v New York, 127 A.D.2d 809, 511 N.Y.S.2d 937, 1987 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 53412 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1987).

An adult, who was assaulted by a policeman, but who was unable to identify assailant as a member of the city police department until after statutory period for notice had expired, was not entitled to file a late notice of claim. Bertucci v New York, 17 Misc. 2d 749, 188 N.Y.S.2d 147, 1959 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3938 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1959).

Application by claimant, correction officer injured by slipping and falling in tunnel during course of employment at correctional facility, to file late notice of claim pursuant to General Municipal Law § 50-e against Facilities Development Corporation, which contracted with third parties for construction of tunnel, will be granted where, due to limited purposes of Corporation and fact that it plays no role whatsoever in management of facilities it develops, there was no way that claimant could have known of its involvement in project and, therefore, claimant's failure to identify Corporation as possible liable party was not unreasonable, where application is made as soon as claimant learns of corporation's involvement and where, moreover, Corporation will not be substantially prejudiced by inability to conduct investigation at scene shortly after accident. Kroupa v Facilities Dev. Corp., 128 Misc. 2d 904, 491 N.Y.S.2d 908, 1985 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3022 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1985).

Pedestrian injured at construction site was entitled to serve late notice of claim on New York City School Construction Authority (SCA) where she and her attorney had been unable to ascertain correct identity of public authority involved in project because of SCA's failure to comply with building code requirements that sign be erected on premises bearing name, address and telephone number of property owner and general contractor in addition to other telephone numbers and permits; obscure government agency may not intentionally or negligently obscure its involvement in accident and then hide behind shield of short statute of limitations. Horowitz v New York City Sch. Constr. Auth., 168 Misc. 2d 598, 644 N.Y.S.2d 879, 1996 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 196 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1996).

167. —Ownership of land

Failure to discover that condemnation order had vested title in city until after notice period had run is not an excuse for late filing of claim under this section. Thompson v New York, 24 A.D.2d 427, 260 N.Y.S.2d 667, 1965 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3929 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1965).

Seven month delay in filing notice of claim is excusable where claimant has had difficulty in ascertaining ownership of premises upon which accident upon which claim is based occurred and, in addition, commercial appearance of premises has caused claimant to mistakenly assume private ownership. Gerzel v New York, 117 A.D.2d 549, 499 N.Y.S.2d 60, 1986 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 52825 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1986).

Supreme Court properly denied application under CLS Gen Mun § 50-e(5) to serve late notice of claim since petitioner, in asserting only that he thought his exclusive remedy was through workers' compensation and that he did not know that county owned premises on which accident occurred, failed to offer sufficient excuse for delay. Coopersmith v County of Greene, 173 A.D.2d 1080, 570 N.Y.S.2d 417, 1991 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7216 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1991).

Court improperly granted motion for leave to serve late notice of claim on city where plaintiffs were seeking to hold city liable for hazardous condition in building that it sold some 13 years prior to infant plaintiff's birth and some 15 years before he was diagnosed with lead poisoning; as matter of law, 13 years was more than reasonable period in which to discover and remedy hazard represented by presence of lead paint by subsequent cooperative owner, which purchased premises on "as is" basis. Caldwell v 302 Convent Ave. Hous. Dev. Fund Corp., 272 A.D.2d 112, 707 N.Y.S.2d 423, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5400 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2000).

Claimant seeking to serve late notice of claim against city housing authority had reasonable excuse for her delay where (1) during initial 90-day period, she was unaware of seriousness and permanency of her injury and unaware that apartment complex at which accident occurred was owned by authority, and (2) any additional delay between date of her consultation with her attorney and date of her motion under CLS Gen Mun § 50-e(5) was minimal. Greene v Rochester Hous. Auth., 273 A.D.2d 895, 709 N.Y.S.2d 767, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6874 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 2000).

An action, brought on behalf of an infant by his guardian ad litem for injuries sustained when he fell into a large depression in front of premises owned and controlled by the city of New York, is not barred when brought more than one year after the injuries were sustained where the guardian was unaware of the ownership of the property, since the guardian's laches cannot be imputed to the infant and the provisions of this section are not in the nature of a statute of limitations which runs during infancy. Application of Curtin, 92 N.Y.S.2d 624, 196 Misc. 587, 1949 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2867 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1949).

Difficulty in ascertaining that a city was the owner of land where an accident occurred does not excuse late filing of a claim. Adanuncio v New York, 104 N.Y.S.2d 105, 200 Misc. 676, 1951 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1716 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1951), aff'd, 281 A.D. 763, 118 N.Y.S.2d 260, 1953 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3213 (N.Y. App. Div. 1953).

168. Infancy

For claims against a public corporation arising after September 1, 1975, the outer limit of the period during which the claimant may apply for leave to serve late notice of his claim is to be measured by the time limited for the commencement of the action by the claimant against a public corporation, as specified in the current version of subdivision 5 of section 50-e of the General Municipal Law, and not by the one-year period following the happening of the event upon which the claim is based as was required by the predecessor provision, since no serious prejudice to the potentially liable public corporation would result from such a limited retroactive application of the amendment because the public corporation was already at risk with respect to these claims on the amendment's effective date pursuant to the former version of subdivision 5 of section 50-e and there is thus no danger of the revival of ancient claims as distinguished from the mere continuance of ones that have not finally expired. Furthermore, the period during which a court may grant an extension of the time within which to serve notice of claim is tolled during the infancy of the claimant in accordance with CPLR 208, since the amended version of subdivision 5 of section 50-e makes the period during which such an extension may be granted coextensive with the Statute of Limitations governing the claim (General Municipal Law, § 50-i, subd 1, par [c]), and where the time for commencing an action on the claim is tolled under CPLR 208, there will be a concomitant tolling of the time during which late notice of claim may be served. The mere availability of the toll does not in itself mandate that an extension be granted in every case involving a disability covered by CPLR 208, since the decision to grant or deny an extension under subdivision 5 of section 50-e is still purely a discretionary one, and the courts remain free to deny an application for an extension in the interests of fairness to the potentially liable public corporation. Cohen v Pearl River Union Free School Dist., 51 N.Y.2d 256, 434 N.Y.S.2d 138, 414 N.E.2d 639, 1980 N.Y. LEXIS 2723 (N.Y. 1980).

In Gen Mun Law § 50–e(5), which permits a court to extend the time within which a claimant may serve a notice of claim upon a public corporation, the expression "the time limited for the commencement of an action by the claimant" incorporates the tolling during a claimant's infancy provided for in CPLR § 208; moreover, Gen Mun L § 50–e(5) as amended effective September 1, 1976, would be construed to apply to all claims which on such date were not barred by the terms of such statute as it existed prior to its amendment. Thus, the lower court erred in denying, on the ground that tolling was impermissible, a claimant's motion under Gen Mun Law § 50–e(5) for leave to file a late notice of claim upon two public school districts which were allegedly liable for injuries claimant had sustained in an accident suffered during his infancy, where the claim had still been viable on September 1, 1976. Cohen v Pearl River Union Free School Dist., 51 N.Y.2d 256, 434 N.Y.S.2d 138, 414 N.E.2d 639, 1980 N.Y. LEXIS 2723 (N.Y. 1980).

If the claimant is an infant, the court has power, in its discretion, to grant leave to serve notice of claim after expiration of the time limit specified for serving such notices generally, and will ordinarily grant such leave. Natoli v Board of Education, 277 A.D. 915, 98 N.Y.S.2d 540, 1950 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3831 (N.Y. App. Div. 1950), aff'd, 303 N.Y. 646, 101 N.E.2d 761, 303 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 646, 1951 N.Y. LEXIS 1076 (N.Y. 1951).

Infancy alone will not automatically warrant granting of extension of time to serve notice of claim pursuant to CLS Gen Mun § 50-e. Tortorici v East Rockaway Pub. Sch. Dist. No. 19, 191 A.D.2d 495, 594 N.Y.S.2d 335, 1993 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2019 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1993).

Late filing of a notice of claim on behalf of an infant against a school district pursuant to section 50-e of the General Municipal

Law is excused where the impediment of infancy did not prevent the public corporation, its attorney or its insurance carrier from acquiring actual knowledge of the essential facts constituting the claim within the time specified in subdivision 1 of section 50-e or within a reasonable time thereafter; the impediment may be presumed to attend infancy and need not be factually demonstrated. Bureau v Newcomb Cent. School Dist., 74 A.D.2d 133, 426 N.Y.S.2d 870, 1980 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10444 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1980).

Notice of infant plaintiff's claim, which arose almost 8 ½ years prior to 1976 amendment to CLS Gen Mun § 50-e(5), was governed by prior wording of § 50-e under which notice of claim must have been made within one year after event on which it was based, and such time was not tolled by infancy; expanded guidelines set forth in amended § 50-e(5) are available only to claimants whose tort claims against public corporations accrued within one year prior to September 1, 1976. Lallave v New York, 127 A.D.2d 634, 511 N.Y.S.2d 869, 1987 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 43123 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1987).

In medical malpractice action against city involving prenatal, delivery and post-delivery care, Supreme Court did not abuse its discretion in granting motion of mentally impaired infant plaintiff to deem his notice of claim timely filed nunc pro tunc, although notice was not served until 13 years after tortious conduct allegedly occurred, since infancy tolled statute of limitations. Trejo v New York, 156 A.D.2d 164, 548 N.Y.S.2d 208, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 15294 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1989).

In action against town for injuries to child who was hit by car while riding her bicycle on town street in September 1991, it was error to allow late notice of claim since child's parents did not consult lawyer until June 1992 and did not seek leave to file late notice of claim until August 1992, delay was not related to child's infancy, child's parents failed to provide reasonable excuse for delay, and town did not acquire actual knowledge of claim by virtue of police accident report that did not mention anything about claimed negligence (alleged accumulation of sand on roadway). Leiblein by Leiblein v Clark, 207 A.D.2d 348, 615 N.Y.S.2d 437, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8049 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1994).

Infancy of an injured child, standing alone, did not compel the granting of leave to serve a late notice of claim on the county; where the delay of more than seven years was not attributable to injured child's infancy, and where the county did not have actual notice of the claim, leave to serve a late notice was properly denied. Cotten v County of Nassau, 307 A.D.2d 965, 763 N.Y.S.2d 474, 2003 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8662 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't), app. denied, 1 N.Y.3d 502, 775 N.Y.S.2d 239, 807 N.E.2d 289, 2003 N.Y. LEXIS 3995 (N.Y. 2003).

Where failure to serve timely notice of claim is related to infancy of petitioner, it may constitute acceptable excuse and warrant leave to serve late notice of claim under CLS Gen Mun § 50-e(5). Sanna v Bethpage Pub. Schs. Union Free Sch. Dist. 21, 193 A.D.2d 606, 597 N.Y.S.2d 430, 1993 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4554 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1993).

Trial court improvidently exercised its discretion in granting infants leave to serve a late notice of claim against a county health care corporation as the infants failed to show a reasonable excuse for the delay after they revealed that they had been sexually abused or that there was a nexus between the infancy and the delay in serving the notice. N.M. v Westchester County Health Care Corp., 10 A.D.3d 421, 781 N.Y.S.2d 370, 2004 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10310 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2004).

Adults' request for leave to file a late notice of claim on the County of Nassau and the hospital was properly granted pursuant to N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(5); the claim involved an infant, the County and hospital had actual notice since they possessed the infant's medical records, a reasonable excuse for the delay was given, and the claim of prejudice asserted by the County and hospital was unpersuasive. Ramirez v County of Nassau, 13 A.D.3d 456, 787 N.Y.S.2d 71, 2004 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 15251 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2004).

Trial court properly granted summary judgment to a city as to plaintiffs' personal injury and wrongful death actions, because the notices of claim of plaintiffs were insufficient to comply with the requirements of N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(2), and the trial court properly denied plaintiffs' motions to serve late notices of claims as plaintiffs failed to show that infancy served to toll the limitations period. Carter v City of New York, 38 A.D.3d 702, 832 N.Y.S.2d 630, 2007 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3746 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't), app. denied, app. dismissed, 9 N.Y.3d 994, 849 N.Y.S.2d 21, 879 N.E.2d 160, 2007 N.Y. LEXIS 3735 (N.Y. 2007).

Trial court properly denied the motion of a mother, in her individual capacity, for leave to file a late notice of a personal injury claim pursuant to N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(5) on a department of education after the statute of limitations had expired because the infancy toll, N.Y. C.P.L.R. 208, was personal to the infant and did not extend to a derivative cause of action. Bazile v City of New York, 94 A.D.3d 929, 943 N.Y.S.2d 131, 2012 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2808 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2012).

Time for filing infant claimant's late notice of claim against municipal corporation, as extended by court, may not exceed one year and 90 days; such limitation is not tolled by infancy. Walcott v Cazenovia, 91 Misc. 2d 437, 398 N.Y.S.2d 116, 1977 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2324 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1977), aff'd, 65 A.D.2d 671, 409 N.Y.S.2d 802, 1978 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13394 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1978).

Although strict construction of this section is adhered to in the first department in differentiating between infancy as ground for an extension of time to serve notice of claim and instances where the fault lies with the infant's attorney, a more liberal interpretation obtains elsewhere. Chiovaro v County of Nassau, 221 N.Y.S.2d 577, 1961 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3697 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1961).

169. —As disability under procedural rules

Under subdivision 5 of section 50-e of the General Municipal Law, as amended September 1, 1976, the period of one year and 90 days within which a court may exercise its discretion to grant an extension for late filing of a notice of claim to be served upon a public corporation is tolled by the disability of infancy under CPLR 208; accordingly, an application for leave to file a late claim on behalf of an infant made 15 months after the effective date of the amendment to section 50-e and some 26 months after the accident, should be considered. Cohen v Pearl River Union Free School Dist., 51 N.Y.2d 256, 434 N.Y.S.2d 138, 414 N.E.2d 639, 1980 N.Y. LEXIS 2723 (N.Y. 1980).

Plaintiff, who was under age of 18 when his cause of action against city accrued, was entitled to benefit of infancy toll although his mother, after timely filing CLS Gen Mun § 50-e notice of claim on his behalf, failed to commence action within one year and 90 day limitation period of CLS Gen Mun § 50-i. Henry v City of New York, 94 N.Y.2d 275, 702 N.Y.S.2d 580, 724 N.E.2d 372, 1999 N.Y. LEXIS 3928 (N.Y. 1999).

An order granting a motion for leave to file notice of claim on behalf of an infant was reversed and the case remanded for further hearing where it did not appear from the record that infancy of the claimant was necessarily responsible for the delay, to find out when claimant first learned of the obligation to file notice of claim, first consulted an attorney, etc. Brown v New York City Housing Authority, 12 A.D.2d 590, 208 N.Y.S.2d 563, 1960 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6639 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1960).

Under subdivision 5 of section 50-e of the General Municipal Law, as amended effective September 1, 1976, the period of one year and 90 days within which a court of competent jurisdiction may extend the time for a notice of claim to be served upon a public corporation may be tolled by infancy under CPLR 208, since it was the intent of the Legislature to extend significantly the discretion of the court to grant leave to file a notice of claim, and consideration of infancy is warranted even though the disability may not have been the reason for the failure to serve a late notice; accordingly, an infant injured less than two months before the amendment may, some 17 months after the accident, file a late notice of claim against the town and village allegedly responsible for his injuries, since the amendment has been given a modified retroactive effect to claimants whose causes of action accrued within the prescribed one-year period preceding the effective amendatory date, and since the defendant municipalities not only had notice of plaintiff's injuries on the day it occurred, but actually investigated it that day. A just claim for damages for a serious injury should not be forfeited for failure to give notice where the basic purpose of the statute is not offended and where no substantial prejudice exists. Ziecker v Orchard Park, 70 A.D.2d 422, 421 N.Y.S.2d 447, 1979 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12732 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1979), aff'd, 51 N.Y.2d 957, 435 N.Y.S.2d 720, 416 N.E.2d 1055, 1980 N.Y. LEXIS 2821 (N.Y. 1980).

The period in which an extension of time to serve a notice of claim against a public corporation can be granted pursuant to Gen Mun §§ 5-e, 50a in a medical malpractice case is tolled by the infancy provisions of CPLR § 208. Yepez v County of Nassau, 79 A.D.2d 1023, 435 N.Y.S.2d 51, 1981 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9935 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1981).

Although a father's proposed notice of claim was properly dismissed as insufficient under N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(2), his daughter's N.Y. Educ. Law § 3813(2-a) claim should have been allowed under N.Y. C.P.L.R. 208 because her infancy tolled the statute of limitations; in addition, her claim was sufficiently alleged, and the school district's actual knowledge of the essential facts constituting the claim that enabled it to conduct an appropriate investigation. Matter of Melissa G. v North Babylon Union Free School Dist., 50 A.D.3d 901, 855 N.Y.S.2d 276, 2008 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3429 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2008).

170. —Necessity that infancy be proximate cause of delay

In an infant's action against the city, the infant would not be allowed to serve a late notice of claim where infancy had been unrelated to the unexcused delay of more than two years in seeking to serve a late notice of claim, and where the city had been justified in failing to investigate the facts underlying the claim. Vezza v Yonkers, 92 A.D.2d 570, 459 N.Y.S.2d 324, 1983 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 16807 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1983).

Mother was not entitled to serve late notice of medical malpractice claim under CLS Gen Mun § 50-e on behalf of her infant child where (1) there was delay of over 9 years in bringing application for leave to serve, (2) affidavits submitted in support of application were vague and nonspecific as to nature of present condition of child, when those conditions first manifested themselves, and when possibility of malpractice claim was first considered, and (3) there was nothing in record of possible nexus between claimed permanent disabilities and treatment received by infant as newborn to justify inference that hospital had actual knowledge of essential facts underlying claim. Andersen v Nassau County Medical Center, 135 A.D.2d 530, 521 N.Y.S.2d 755, 1987 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 52482 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1987).

Infant was not entitled to leave to serve late notice of claim pursuant to CLS Gen Mun § 50-e(5) since disability of infancy was outweighed by other factors including (1) lack of adequate explanation for delay in bringing proceeding for leave to serve late notice of claim until more than one year after accident, (2) failure to allege adequate facts to establish that town had actual knowledge of facts underlying claim within reasonable time after accident, and (3) fact that delay was unrelated to claimant's infancy. Groshans v Babylon, 143 A.D.2d 666, 533 N.Y.S.2d 18, 1988 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9468 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1988).

Infant would not be granted leave to serve late notice of claim against county since (1) record revealed that delay in seeking leave was not product of infancy, but was attributable to delay on part of her counsel, which was not adequately explained, and (2) nothing in record established nexus between infant's condition and alleged malpractice on part of county medical center, so that it could not be said that medical records alone gave county notice of facts underlying claim. Fallon v County of Westchester, 184 A.D.2d 510, 584 N.Y.S.2d 322, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7612 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1992).

In action to recover for injuries sustained by 14-year-old student who was assaulted by another student outside school, in which plaintiffs alleged inadequate supervision by school district employees, court properly denied plaintiffs' application for leave to serve late notice of claim since (1) delay was not directly related to injured plaintiff's infancy in that plaintiffs concededly delayed serving notice of claim for fear of possible retaliation by school district, and (2) plaintiffs set forth no facts to support their conclusory assertion that school district thoroughly investigated its role in incident and thus had actual knowledge of facts within reasonable time after incident occurred. Doukas v East Meadow Union Free Sch. Dist., 187 A.D.2d 552, 590 N.Y.S.2d 226, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13020 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1992).

Court did not improvidently exercise its discretion in denying infant claimant's application under CLS Gen Mun § 50-e(5) for leave to file late notice of claim since (1) delay was unrelated to claimant's infancy, (2) her father's inability to fully understand English was, in itself, insufficient excuse, and (3) there was no evidence that any representative of municipal defendant learned of incident until instant proceeding was commenced. Mrak v City of New York, 192 A.D.2d 608, 595 N.Y.S.2d 831, 1993 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3576 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1993).

In action to recover for injuries sustained by child who was burned in fire in building owned by New York City Housing Authority, absence of demonstrated nexus between disability of infancy and delay in filing notice of claim under CLS Gen Mun § 50-e was not absolutely fatal to plaintiffs' request for leave to file late notice of claim, but rather was one factor for court to consider in exercising its discretion. Gilley v New York City Hous. Auth., 217 A.D.2d 493, 630 N.Y.S.2d 48, 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7850 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1995).

Court properly denied application for leave to serve late notice of claim where no acceptable excuse for 3 ½ -year delay in serving notice of claim was offered, there was no indication that delay was related to injured petitioner's infancy, there was no showing that defendant had actual knowledge of facts underlying claim within reasonable time after claim arose, and extensive delay would prejudice defendant's ability to defend claim. Altavilla v Patchogue Medford Sch. Dist., 221 A.D.2d 434, 633 N.Y.S.2d 576, 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11847 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1995).

Court properly granted leave to serve late notice of claim where defendant school district had actual notice of facts underlying claim within 90 days, and failure to serve timely notice was related to infancy of petitioners. Russo v Monroe-Woodbury Cent. Sch. Dist., 282 A.D.2d 465, 723 N.Y.S.2d 198, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3266 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2001).

Failure to establish nexus between delay and petitioners' infancy is not fatal in cases where knowledge of facts alleged in claims was received contemporaneously and there is no prejudice due to delay. Russo v Monroe-Woodbury Cent. Sch. Dist., 282 A.D.2d 465, 723 N.Y.S.2d 198, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3266 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2001).

The injured party was denied leave to serve a late notice of claim on the city under N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(1)(a), (5); the city did not have actual knowledge of the facts, there was no nexus between the delay and the injured party's infancy, and late notice prejudiced the city. Rabanar v City of Yonkers, 290 A.D.2d 428, 736 N.Y.S.2d 93, 2002 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 336 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2002).

Although infancy automatically tolled the statutory period for commencing an action against a municipality, the infancy of an injured claimant, standing alone, did not compel the granting of an application for leave to serve a late notice of claim; in determining whether to grant leave to serve a late notice of claim, the court had to consider certain factors, including whether the claim involved an infant, whether the claimant demonstrated a reasonable excuse for failing to timely serve a notice of claim, whether the municipality acquired actual knowledge of the facts constituting the claim within 90 days from its accrual or a reasonable time thereafter, and whether the municipality was substantially prejudiced by the delay, under N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(5). Nairne v N.Y. City Health & Hosps. Corp., 303 A.D.2d 409, 755 N.Y.S.2d 855, 2003 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2124 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2003).

Where there was no nexus between a the infancy of a personal injury plaintiff and her failure to notify the New York City Transit Authority of her injury within the 90-day period of N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law. § 50-e(5), and the Authority would have been prejudiced by allowing her to file a late notice, the trial court erred by granting her motion to file a late notice. Maldonaldo v City of New York, 7 A.D.3d 582, 777 N.Y.S.2d 129, 2004 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6936 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2004).

Trial court properly denied a motion which was, in effect, for leave to serve a late notice of claim upon a department of education (DOE) on behalf of an infant; the mother and the infant failed to show that the DOE acquired timely, actual knowledge of the essential facts of the claim, and did not offer a reasonable excuse for the delay in seeking leave to serve a late notice. Further, the infancy, without any showing of a nexus between the infancy and the delay, was insufficient to constitute a reasonable excuse. Bazile v City of New York, 94 A.D.3d 929, 943 N.Y.S.2d 131, 2012 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2808 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2012).

171. — —Under prior statutory provisions

Under subd 5(1) of the above statute an extension of time for filing claim can only be granted where the disability of infancy is proximately related to the failure to file within the specified period. Cohan v New York, 23 A.D.2d 554, 256 N.Y.S.2d 629, 1965 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4838 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1965).

Failure to serve timely notice within the 90 day period prescribed by § 50-e of the General Municipal Law held, as a matter of law, not attributable to the infant plaintiff's disability. Anderson v County of Nassau, 31 A.D.2d 761, 297 N.Y.S.2d 665, 1969 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4712 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1969).

It was an improvident exercise of discretion to grant the application of a 19-year-old automobile passenger to file a late notice of claim against the village, where the record contained no proof that the failure to serve the required notice within the required time was by reason of physical disability or infancy as provided by the statute. Pointing out that infancy alone was not sufficient, the court said a cognizable relation must be established between the fact of infancy and the failure to comply with the short statute of limitation. Harden v Akron, 32 A.D.2d 610, 299 N.Y.S.2d 92, 1969 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4293 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1969).

The failure to serve a timely notice within the 90-day period prescribed by § 50-e of the General Municipal Law was not attributable to the infant's disability and an application for leave to file a late notice of claim on behalf of an infant claimant was denied. McKay v Mamaroneck, 35 A.D.2d 731, 315 N.Y.S.2d 207, 1970 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3766 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1970).

The fact of infancy alone was insufficient basis for permitting late filing of notice of claim, absent a factual demonstration that delay in filing said notice was caused by infancy. Santiago v Board of Education, 41 A.D.2d 616, 340 N.Y.S.2d 491, 1973 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5149 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1973).

In proceeding pursuant to General Municipal Law for leave to serve late notice of claim, allowing infant petitioner to serve late notice of claim against school district was proper exercise of discretion in view of demonstrable relationship between infancy and delay. Lopez v Union Free School Dist., 50 A.D.2d 818, 376 N.Y.S.2d 191, 1975 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11656 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1975).

Claimant's application for leave to file and serve a claim for damages after expiration on the 90-day statutory period, which was filed on the last day of the one-year period prescribed by General Municipal Law § 50-e(5) was sufficient, where the disability of infancy was the sole cause of the delay in filing the notice of claim and the only attorney consulted on behalf of the infant claimant proceeded with all possible speed, and the proposed defendants had not been prejudiced by the delay in filing. Conway v Board of Education, 47 Misc. 2d 172, 262 N.Y.S.2d 15, 1965 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1633 (N.Y. County Ct. 1965).

172. — —Grant of leave to file late notice improper

Court improvidently exercised its discretion in permitting infant prospective plaintiff and her mother to file late notice of claim against housing authority where (1) no adequate explanation for their 3 ½ -year delay was given, (2) papers did not allege facts sufficient to establish that authority had knowledge of facts of incident, and (3) delay was unrelated to infancy of prospective plaintiff. Rogers v New York City Housing Authority, 169 A.D.2d 763, 565 N.Y.S.2d 130, 1991 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1034 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1991).

It was error to grant leave to serve late notice of claim some 8 months after accident, after petitioners supplied proof of infant petitioner's age, since infancy did not explain delay in service of notice, and petitioners failed to show that defendant had actual notice of essential facts within limitations period of CLS Gen Mun 50-e(1)(a) or within reasonable time thereafter. Kardashinsky v New York City Housing Authority, 182 A.D.2d 676, 581 N.Y.S.2d 692, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6051 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1992).

It was error to grant application for leave to file late notice of claim against town in connection with incident in which infant was struck by snowmobile while riding his bicycle on frozen surface of town lake where delay was caused by law office failure, not by infancy, and evidence did not show that report prepared by state police and several newspaper articles regarding collision sufficed to convey actual knowledge of essential facts of incident to town. O'Mara v Town of Cortlandt, 210 A.D.2d 337, 620 N.Y.S.2d 82, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12520 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1994).

It was error to grant infant petitioner's application for leave to serve late notice of claim against city where petitioner's delay in ascertaining that playground was owned by city was inexplicable and was not attributable to petitioner's infancy, petitioner failed to show that city had actual knowledge of facts underlying claim within 90 days after claim arose or reasonable time thereafter, and city was unable to conduct its own investigation as to condition of playground equipment at time of accident. Calloway by Calloway v City of New York Hous. Auth., 219 A.D.2d 711, 631 N.Y.S.2d 752, 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9535 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1995).

It was abuse of discretion to grant petitioner leave to serve late notice of claim on school district where petitioner did not seek permission to serve notice of claim until some 3 ½ years following incident, she proffered no excuse for such delay, delay was manifestly unrelated to her infancy, and there was no evidence that school district and its insurance carrier acquired actual knowledge of facts constituting claim within 90 days or reasonable time thereafter. Dunlea v Mahopac Cent. Sch. Dist., 232 A.D.2d 558, 648 N.Y.S.2d 673, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10376 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1996), app. denied, 89 N.Y.2d 812, 657 N.Y.S.2d 404, 679 N.E.2d 643, 1997 N.Y. LEXIS 386 (N.Y. 1997).

It was abuse of discretion to grant leave to serve late notice of claim on behalf of infant where any delay was not related to infancy itself, but rather was related solely to petitioners' delay in discovering possible causal connection between medical center's actions and infant's injuries, there was no claim that mother was unaware of infant's condition, or that she was in any way prevented or discouraged from investigating cause thereof, and defendants were prejudiced by poor condition of medical records. Scala v Westchester County Medical Ctr., 233 A.D.2d 514, 650 N.Y.S.2d 296, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12682 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1996).

Trial court improvidently exercised its discretion when it granted an infant's second motion for leave to file a late notice of claim on an elementary school and a school district, alleging that he was injured when he fell down a flight of stairs, because the infant's mother did not offer a reasonable excuse for the delay in seeking leave to file a late notice of claim, there was no showing that the infant's age was the reason for the delay, and there was no evidence that the school or the school district acquired actual knowledge of the facts constituting the proposed claim within 90 days after the incident occurred, or within a reasonable time thereafter, so as to negate prejudice to them. . Lennon v Roosevelt Union Free Sch. Dist., 6 A.D.3d 713, 775 N.Y.S.2d 537, 2004 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4976 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2004).

Minor could not serve a late notice of claim under N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e or N.Y. Educ. Law § 3813(2-a) against a school and a school district regarding an incident in which a desk fell on the minor's hand as ignorance of the 90-day statutory requirement for service of a claim was not a reasonable excuse for the nearly 18-month delay; no nexus was shown between the minor's infancy and the delay. Matter of Vicari v Grand Ave. Middle School, 52 A.D.3d 838, 860 N.Y.S.2d 629, 2008 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5771 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2008).

173. —Proof of infancy

It was an abuse of discretion to permit a late filing of claim where the record failed to support the infant's age. Cooke v City School Dist., 38 A.D.2d 686, 327 N.Y.S.2d 161, 1971 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2792 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1971).

174. —Immature infants

If the infant claimant is not a very young child, but in the teen-age bracket or close to majority, the court, in exercise of its discretion, can take the view that his legal status as an infant at time of the occurrence was not the cause, or did not justify, his failure to serve notice of claim within the usual 90-day period and deny an application for extension of time. Application of Nori, 274 A.D. 545, 85 N.Y.S.2d 131, 1948 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3125 (N.Y. App. Div. 1948), aff'd, 300 N.Y. 632, 90 N.E.2d 492, 300 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 632, 1950 N.Y. LEXIS 1428 (N.Y. 1950).

A late notice of claim by an infant 18 years old at the time of the accident, who was mentally retarded and apparently had a mental age of about five years or less, should have been granted. Klee v Board of Cooperative Educational Services, 25 A.D.2d 715, 270 N.Y.S.2d 230, 1966 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4630 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1966).

Where plaintiff, who commenced negligence action in November, 1975, to recover damages for injuries sustained by her at age 12 ½ on March 27, 1968, while performing required physical dexterity test at school, did not seek relief to serve and file a late notice of claim until August, 1976, which date was well beyond statutory period of one year and 90 days from September 1, 1974, date on which plaintiff reached her majority, lack of jurisdiction was affirmative defense and plaintiff would not be granted leave to serve a late notice of claim. McGill v Board of Education, 59 A.D.2d 888, 399 N.Y.S.2d 41, 1977 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 14075 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1977), app. dismissed, 43 N.Y.2d 949, 1978 N.Y. LEXIS 2879 (N.Y. 1978), app. dismissed, 43 N.Y.2d 893, 403 N.Y.S.2d 499, 374 N.E.2d 396, 1978 N.Y. LEXIS 1815 (N.Y. 1978).

Although a student's motion to serve a late notice of claim was made more than one year and 90 days after the claim accrued, the motion was timely because the limitations period was tolled by reason of the student's infancy. M.L. v City of New York, 173 A.D.3d 848, 103 N.Y.S.3d 499, 2019 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4691 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2019).

An infant 17 years of age at the time of the accident cannot claim the benefits accorded to "immature infants," and will not be granted leave to file a claim after the lapse of more than 1 year, especially where the only explanations advanced by the claimant were that she was ignorant of the statute and that she was lulled into a sense of security by a statement of a city investigator that she would "hear from the city soon," and where claimant makes no explanation of her further delay after being informed by counsel of the necessity for filing a notice of claim. Witherspoon v New York, 85 N.Y.S.2d 443, 193 Misc. 730, 1948 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3794 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1948), disapproved, Cohen v Pearl River Union Free School Dist., 70 A.D.2d 94, 419 N.Y.S.2d 998, 1979 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12306 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1979).

An infant, 15 ½ years old, of average intelligence for his age, is not an immature infant so as to excuse the filing of a claim. Adanuncio v New York, 104 N.Y.S.2d 105, 200 Misc. 676, 1951 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1716 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1951), aff'd, 281 A.D. 763, 118 N.Y.S.2d 260, 1953 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3213 (N.Y. App. Div. 1953).

The courts have consistently distinguished between infants of tender years and those close to majority and held that immature infancy, as matter of law, constitutes a condition of physical and mental inability which excuses compliance with the statutory requirements as to timely filing of notice of claim. McGrouty v Central School Dist., 229 N.Y.S.2d 850 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1962).

175. —Infants close to majority

An injured infant, 17 years of age, is deemed sufficiently mature to be subject to the same requirements in giving timely notice of claim under this section as an adult, in the absence of a showing to the contrary. Asencio v New York, 216 N.Y.S.2d 204 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1961).

176. —Infant's capacity to protect own interest

The court did not abuse its discretion in allowing a 12-year-old infant to serve a notice of claim after the expiration of the statutory period since he did not have the capacity to protect his interest when he sustained injuries while carrying on his school activities and service of claim on city rather than on board of education thereof was due, inter alia, in some degree to the disability and limitations incident to the infancy which prevented him from ascertaining that the school where he was injured was operated by the board of education. Perry v Board of Education, 34 A.D.2d 1089, 312 N.Y.S.2d 640, 1970 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4376 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1970).

An infant, age 15, was entitled to file a late claim for libel and slander against the city, based on statements allegedly made at, on, or before the date of his confinement to jail on a serious charge of which he was subsequently acquitted, in view of his emotional condition and seeming lack of mental capacity to protect his rights. Manceri v New York, 23 Misc. 2d 94, 198 N.Y.S.2d 388, 1960 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3581 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1960).

177. —Death of infant

Court properly granted application to serve late notice of claim for wrongful death where (1) infant decedent died at hospital on May 16, 1989, (2) plaintiff, decedent's mother, was allegedly too bereaved to contact attorney until February 20, 1990, and (3) plaintiff was appointed administratrix on April 16, 1990, and moved for leave to serve notice of claim on July 30, 1990; however, as to claims for loss of services and conscious pain and suffering, plaintiff's conclusory assertions were insufficient to excuse delay. Thompson v New York City Health & Hosp. Corp., 172 A.D.2d 433, 569 N.Y.S.2d 10, 1991 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5174 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1991).

A woman sustained an injury on April 23 while pregnant. Her husband filed a notice in her behalf on July 21. The child was born on August 8 at the hospital and remained there until her death in November. The administrator of the child was given permission to file a claim for the child, since infancy prevented the filing of a timely claim. Application of Tripodi, 17 Misc. 2d 137, 184 N.Y.S.2d 996, 1959 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3916 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1959).

178. —Ignorance of notice requirements

There was no improvident exercise of discretion in letting a claim be filed after the 90-day period on behalf of an infant of tender age where a timely notice had been filed under the provisions of the Westchester County Playland Commission Act and, immediately upon discovery that that Act had been superseded by this section, an application was made for leave to serve the notice late. O'Rourke v Westchester County Playland Com., 283 A.D. 874, 129 N.Y.S.2d 196, 1954 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5630 (N.Y. App. Div. 1954).

An order granting a motion for leave to file notice of claim on behalf of an infant was reversed and the case remanded for further hearing where it did not appear from the record that infancy of the claimant was necessarily responsible for the delay, to find out when claimant first learned of the obligation to file notice of claim, first consulted an attorney, etc. Brown v New York City Housing Authority, 12 A.D.2d 590, 208 N.Y.S.2d 563, 1960 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6639 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1960).

Failure of a 19-year-old infant to serve notice of claim within the 90-day period is not excusable on the ground of infancy where he merely alleges that he was unaware of the statutory requirement until after he consulted an attorney, by which time the statutory period had already elapsed. Borowski v Clarence, 19 A.D.2d 580, 240 N.Y.S.2d 379, 1963 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3723 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1963).

It was an improvident exercise of discretion to grant the application of a 17-year-old infant to file a notice of claim some 11 months after the cause of action accrued merely upon the allegation that neither the infant nor his father knew of the necessity for filing a claim within the statutory period of 90 days. Staub v New York, 29 A.D.2d 756, 287 N.Y.S.2d 935, 1968 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4528 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1968).

The court did not abuse its discretion in allowing a 12-year-old infant to serve a notice of claim after the expiration of the statutory period since he did not have the capacity to protect his interest when he sustained injuries while carrying on his school activities and service of claim on city rather than on board of education thereof was due, inter alia, in some degree to the disability and limitations incident to the infancy which prevented him from ascertaining that the school where he was injured was operated by the board of education. Perry v Board of Education,

34 A.D.2d 1089, 312 N.Y.S.2d 640, 1970 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4376 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1970).

Child injured in fall at school was not entitled to file late notice of claim against city and others, despite claim of ignorance of statutory requirement, where no legally acceptable excuse was presented for 2-year delay between fall and present application, there were substantial discrepancies between descriptions of incident in notice of claim and those contained in school board's internal records and child's medical records, and thus respondents would suffer substantial prejudice if late service of notice were allowed. Tineo v City of New York, 273 A.D.2d 397, 711 N.Y.S.2d 333, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7077 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2000).

Because a school district had actual knowledge of the essential facts constituting a mother's claim of injury to her child, and because the school district failed to come forward with specific evidence demonstrating any impairment to its ability to conduct a defense as a result of the delay, the trial court properly granted the mother's N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(5) application for leave to file a late notice of claim based on her claim of ignorance of the notice requirements. Matter of Apgar v Waverly Cent. School Dist., 36 A.D.3d 1113, 828 N.Y.S.2d 652, 2007 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 561 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2007).

An infant 17 years of age at the time of the accident cannot claim the benefits accorded to "immature infants," and will not be granted leave to file a claim after the lapse of more than 1 year, especially where the only explanations advanced by the claimant were that she was ignorant of the statute and that she was lulled into a sense of security by a statement of a city investigator that she would "hear from the city soon," and where claimant makes no explanation of her further delay after being informed by counsel of the necessity for filing a notice of claim. Witherspoon v New York, 85 N.Y.S.2d 443, 193 Misc. 730, 1948 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3794 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1948), disapproved, Cohen v Pearl River Union Free School Dist., 70 A.D.2d 94, 419 N.Y.S.2d 998, 1979 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12306 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1979).

Where an infant over fourteen years of age delayed in serving a notice of claim, this delay was attributable to the infant's failure to understand and comprehend the obligations which the statute imposed in respect of her claim and to her inability to fulfill these obligations by reason of her infancy and immaturity under which circumstances the protective features of the remedial statute must be invoked to preserve her rights in the proper exercise of judicial discretion. Gaddis v Board of Education, 108 N.Y.S.2d 320, 200 Misc. 44, 1951 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2506 (N.Y. Sup. Ct.), aff'd, 278 A.D. 1038, 106 N.Y.S.2d 915, 1951 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5619 (N.Y. App. Div. 1951).

Petitioner, who suffered an injury to her back while participating in a trampoline exercise in a physical education class at school, was entitled to an order extending time to serve a notice of claim upon school district where it was apparent from record that neither petitioner nor her parents were aware of statutory requirements of filing a notice of claim within 90 days after accident and that they did not become aware of such requirement until they sought advice of counsel. Matey v Bethlehem Cent. School Dist., 89 Misc. 2d 390, 391 N.Y.S.2d 357, 1977 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1874 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1977), aff'd, 63 A.D.2d 807, 405 N.Y.S.2d 156, 1978 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11760 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1978).

179. —Municipal knowledge of facts constituting claim

Absence of affidavit to establish that delay in filing notice of claim was result of child's infancy was not fatal to application since infancy is only one consideration, decision to grant or deny application is purely discretionary, and defendants had actual knowledge of facts constituting claim of malpractice within 90 days of acts and failed to establish prejudice. West v New York City Health & Hosps. Corp., 195 A.D.2d 517, 600 N.Y.S.2d 268, 1993 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7157 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1993).

Plaintiff's failure to give any excuse for his delay in filing notice of claim or show that delay was product of infancy was not fatal to his motion for leave to file late notice where defendant county had actual knowledge of essential facts of claim within reasonable time after injury was discovered. Harwood by Murnane v County of Albany, 257 A.D.2d 747, 682 N.Y.S.2d 736, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 26 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1999).

180. — —Under prior statutory provisions

For claims against a public corporation arising after September 1, 1975, the outer limit of the period during which the claimant may apply for leave to serve late notice of his claim is to be measured by the time limited for the commencement of the action by the claimant against a public corporation, as specified in the current version of subdivision 5 of section 50-e of the General Municipal Law, and not by the one-year period following the happening of the event upon which the claim is based as was required by the predecessor provision, since no serious prejudice to the potentially liable public corporation would result from such a limited retroactive application of the amendment because the public corporation was already at risk with respect to these claims on the amendment's effective date pursuant to the former version of subdivision 5 of section 50-e and there is thus no danger of the revival of ancient claims as distinguished from the mere continuance of ones that have not finally expired. Furthermore, the period during which a court may grant an extension of the time within which to serve notice of claim is tolled during the infancy of the claimant in accordance with CPLR 208, since the amended version of subdivision 5 of section 50-e makes the period during which such an extension may be granted coextensive with the Statute of Limitations governing the claim (General Municipal Law, § 50-i, subd 1, par [c]), and where the time for commencing an action on the claim is tolled under CPLR 208, there will be a concomitant tolling of the time during which late notice of claim may be served. The mere availability of the toll does not in itself mandate that an extension be granted in every case involving a disability covered by CPLR 208, since the decision to grant or deny an extension under subdivision 5 of section 50-e is still purely a discretionary one, and the courts remain free to deny an application for an extension in the interests of fairness to the potentially liable public corporation. Cohen v Pearl River Union Free School Dist., 51 N.Y.2d 256, 434 N.Y.S.2d 138, 414 N.E.2d 639, 1980 N.Y. LEXIS 2723 (N.Y. 1980).

181. — —Filing late notice allowed

Where the municipality or public corporation was notified of the claim, or had knowledge of the occurrence shortly after it happened, and proceeded to investigate it, infancy or disability of the claimant has usually been held sufficient ground for granting an extension of time to serve notice of claim, or to perfect an informal notice, if the application for leave is made within a reasonable time after expiration of the 90-day period. Aufiero v Eastchester, 282 A.D. 1048, 126 N.Y.S.2d 905, 1953 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5785 (N.Y. App. Div. 1953).

Where the city had knowledge of the condition of the roadway of the bridge on which the infants were injured, and there were no circumstances precluding the granting of the application, the court abused its discretion in denying the applications on behalf of infants for leave to file notice of the claim against the city for injuries sustained by the infants after the expiration of the statutory period. Rosenberg v New York, 285 A.D. 1085, 140 N.Y.S.2d 140, 1955 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6735 (N.Y. App. Div.), rev'd, 309 N.Y. 304, 130 N.E.2d 629, 309 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 304, 1955 N.Y. LEXIS 923 (N.Y. 1955).

Permission to file late claim granted under evidence that 14-year-old infant was involved in an automobile accident involving a county vehicle, the application for permission to file claim was made within one year as prescribed by the statute, and the county had actual notice within five days after the accident that plaintiff was injured by one of its vehicles and was going to make a claim therefor. Brooks v Rensselaer County, 34 A.D.2d 708, 309 N.Y.S.2d 659, 1970 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5035 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1970).

The trial court properly granted an infant plaintiff's motion to file under Gen Mun Law § 50-e a late notice of claim against a county for injuries plaintiff suffered when the bicycle he was riding was struck by an automobile along a public highway in the county, although the motion was made four years after the occurrence of the accident, where the results of timely and detailed investigations conducted by other defendants in the action would be available to the county and where much necessary information was contained in the county's own records and reports. Monte v Rochester, 81 A.D.2d 678, 437 N.Y.S.2d 796, 1981 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11222 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1981).

Court did not err in granting petitioner's application for leave to serve late notice of claim under CLS Gen Mun § 50-e(5) where petitioner presented sufficient facts to establish that there was nexus between his infancy and delay in filing notice and that town had actual knowledge of essential facts of incident within 90 days of its occurrence; although petitioner failed to explain 5-month delay between time he reached his majority and commencement of instant proceeding, he had filed notice of claim within 90 days of his 18th birthday. Carpenter v Babylon, 150 A.D.2d 373, 543 N.Y.S.2d 299, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5633 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1989).

Court erred in denying petitioner's application for leave to file late notice of claim on behalf of her infant son against county where county department of social services had custody of child at all relevant times and had placed him, along with his siblings, with foster parents, proposed notice of claim alleged that child was injured while at day care center where foster parents had placed him, child was confined to hospital for 2 months and placed in body cast, county immediately removed children from foster parents' residence and placed them in another home following incident, and county failed to show that it would be prejudiced if application were granted. In re McKithen ex rel. Solomon, 221 A.D.2d 1019, 634 N.Y.S.2d 580, 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13565 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1995).

Leave to file late notice of claim should have been granted where defendant had timely, actual knowledge of essential facts underlying infant plaintiff's claim, and there was no showing of prejudice to defendant. Perry v Manhattan & Bronx Surface Transit Operating Auth., 224 A.D.2d 208, 638 N.Y.S.2d 296, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 949 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1996).

Allegedly injured petitioners were entitled to file late notice under CLS Gen Mun § 50-e(5) where they were minors, their delay beyond statutory 90-day period was minimal, respondent city possessed records containing essential facts constituting claim, and city was not prejudiced in preparation of its defense. Melendez by Melendez v City of New York, 245 A.D.2d 564, 666 N.Y.S.2d 507, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13355 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1997).

Plaintiff was properly allowed to file late notice of claim against city transit authority where authority acquired actual knowledge of essential facts of claim within 90 days after claim arose or within reasonable time thereafter, and there was no prejudice to authority in maintaining its defense on merits. Sayad v New York City Transit Auth., 246 A.D.2d 639, 666 N.Y.S.2d 955, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 584 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1998).

Municipal defendants, having kept record of plaintiff's medical condition during her 2-month hospital stay, knew essential facts constituting her medical malpractice claim (that her herpes encephalitis was not treated with anti-viral agent until 2 weeks after she was admitted to hospital, and that she suffered severe brain during that time), and such knowledge, along with plaintiff's infancy, justified relief excusing late service of notice of claim. Rodriguez v New York City Health & Hosps. Corp., 270 A.D.2d 110, 704 N.Y.S.2d 253, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2845 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2000).

Because a school district and a department of social services had knowledge of a child's sexual abuse allegations against the child's stepfather during the relevant time, the guardian ad litem's N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e application for leave to file a late claim was properly granted. Matter of Place v Beekmantown Cent. School Dist., 69 A.D.3d 1035, 892 N.Y.S.2d 638, 2010 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 40 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2010).

Former student was entitled to file a late notice of claim against a school district because the school had actual knowledge of at least some of the underlying acts of harassment, intimidation, and bullying against the student within a reasonable time, the school was able to investigate at least one of the incidents shortly after it occurred, and the school failed to show substantial prejudice by the filing of a late notice. Sherb v Monticello Cent. Sch. Dist., 163 A.D.3d 1130, 81 N.Y.S.3d 265, 2018 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4913 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2018).

182. — — —Against defendant counties

Petitioners were properly granted leave to serve late notice of claim, which arose at time infant petitioner was born some 6 months after pesticide spraying occurred, despite absence of excuse for additional 7-month delay, where respondent county directed spraying, had records of event, and was not prejudiced. Lewin v County of Suffolk, 239 A.D.2d 345, 657 N.Y.S.2d 734, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4586 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1997).

Discretion was providently exercised in allowing leave under N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(5) to serve a late notice of an infant daughter's medical malpractice claim against a county and since there was actual notice of the claim and an absence of prejudice in the delay, the lack of a reasonable excuse for failing to timely serve a notice of claim did not bar the supreme court from granting leave to serve the late notice. The county had actual knowledge of the claim because they had the daughter's medical records at the time of the alleged malpractice and there was no showing of substantial prejudice to the county as a result of the delay where the daughter was protected by the infancy toll under N.Y. C.P.L.R. 208. Nardi v County of Nassau, 18 A.D.3d 520, 795 N.Y.S.2d 300, 2005 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5058 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2005).

183. — — —Against defendant hospitals and health organizations

Court should have allowed infant, who allegedly contracted lead poisoning as result of ingestion of lead-based paint in city's building, to file late notice of claim pursuant to CLS Gen Mun § 50-e(5), notwithstanding that there was 7-year delay between diagnosis and application for leave to file late notice, where city department of health, having been notified of diagnosis by hospital where infant was treated, conducted inspection within several months of diagnosis, which indicated "Elevated Lead Levels" on premises; under circumstances, department had actual notice of essential facts underlying claim within reasonable time after injury, and disability of infancy extended statutory period during which court could exercise discretion to permit filing of late notice. Holmes v City of New York, 189 A.D.2d 676, 592 N.Y.S.2d 371, 1993 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 350 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1993).

Nine-year-old petitioner was entitled to leave to file late notice of claim against city hospital for injuries sustained during her birth since (1) application was made within appropriate limitations period as tolled by her infancy, and (2) hospital was not unduly prejudiced, as injury was apparent at birth and hospital had been in possession of relevant medical records since that time. Tomlinson v New York City Health & Hosps. Corp., 190 A.D.2d 806, 593 N.Y.S.2d 565, 1993 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1444 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1993).

In action to recover for permanent brain damage suffered by child due to allegednegligence and medical malpractice committed prior to and at time of his birth inmunicipal hospital, court should have granted leave to file late notice of claim underCLS Gen Mun § 50-e(5) since (1) hospital had possession of child's medical recordsfrom time of alleged malpractice, and thus had actual notice of claim and underlyingfacts within limitation period, (2) application to file late notice was made withinappropriate limitation period, as tolled by child's infancy, and (3) fact that child'smother waited 9 years from birth of child and 5 years from time child wasinstitutionalized should not be fatal, given hospital's knowledge and resulting lackof prejudice. Williams v Bronx Mun. Hosp. Ctr., 205 A.D.2d 420, 613 N.Y.S.2d 401, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6495 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1994).

Court granted application for leave to serve late notice of claim on county hospital, on behalf of infant petitioner who allegedly suffered permanent injuries cause by negligent manner in which intravenous femoral line was inserted during her hospitalization for "diabetic ketoacitosis," where application was made within period of limitations as tolled by petitioner's infancy, county hospital had infant's medical records since time of alleged malpractice, it had actual notice of underlying facts, and it was not substantially prejudiced by delay. Robinson v Westchester County Med. Ctr., 270 A.D.2d 275, 703 N.Y.S.2d 528, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2504 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2000).

It was proper to grant plaintiff's motion to deem his notice of claim against New York City Health and Hospitals Corporation (HHC) to be timely served where application was made within appropriate period of limitation, as tolled by plaintiff's infancy, and HHC was in possession of plaintiff's medical records as of time of alleged malpractice. Owens v New York City Health & Hosps. Corp., 271 A.D.2d 514, 706 N.Y.S.2d 355, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4070 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2000).

Order granting leave to a parent to file a late notice of her minor son's claim against a school board pursuant to N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(5) and N.Y. Educ. Law § 3813(2-a) was proper because the school board had actual notice of the essential facts and had not shown prejudice by the delay; although the parent did not establish a nexus between the delay and the child's infancy, the parent's failure to show a reasonable excuse for delay was not fatal to the application. Although the parent sought leave to file the late notice over four years after the alleged incident, the statute of limitations was tolled by the son's infancy, and the school board had actual knowledge of the essential facts of the claim no later than approximately four months after the incident. Matter of Hinton v New Paltz Cent. School Dist., 50 A.D.3d 1414, 857 N.Y.S.2d 753, 2008 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3680 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2008).

184. — — —Against defendant housing authorities

It was proper exercise of discretion to grant infant leave to serve late notice of claim against New York City Housing Authority (NYCHA) where (1) infant timely served City of New York, (2) subsequent investigation revealed that NYCHA may have been responsible for repairing sidewalk where infant was injured, (3) NYCHA police officer filed contemporaneous report, (4) photographs of accident site were apparently taken, (5) eyewitnesses had come forth, and (6) NYCHA had not articulated any countervailing prejudice. Lozada v City of New York, 189 A.D.2d 726, 592 N.Y.S.2d 742, 1993 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 731 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1993).

Court properly allowed mother of infant claimants to file late notice of claim relating to their alleged assault and unlawful imprisonment by police officers employed by New York City Housing Authority (NYCHA), after mother had inadvertently served notice of claim on New York City Police Department, where NYCHA did not rebut contention that mother's complaint which had been timely filed with Civilian Complaint Review Board provided NYCHA with actual notice of essential facts constituting claim within specified 90-day time period. Ellison v New York City Hous. Auth., 197 A.D.2d 688, 602 N.Y.S.2d 940, 1993 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9955 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1993).

Infant, who was injured while living as foster child in building owned by New York City Housing Authority, was improperly denied permission to serve late notice of claim where he was in foster care at time of incident, he offered reasonable excuse for confusion about correct address of incident, Housing Authority had actual knowledge of incident within 90-day statutory period, and Housing Authority did not show that it would be prejudiced by delay. Shabazz v Sheltering Arms Childrens Serv., 216 A.D.2d 230, 629 N.Y.S.2d 20, 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7115 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1995).

Child who was severely burned in fire while living with his family in building owned by New York City Housing Authority was properly granted permission to serve notice of claim 8 months after expiration of 90-day period under CLS Gen Mun § 50-e(1)(a) where delay was not substantial and housing authority had actual knowledge of incident within 90-day period due to its receipt of police report 5 days after occurrence, which did not rule out plaintiffs' claim that injuries could have been prevented or lessened had properly functioning smoke detectors been in place. Gilley v New York City Hous. Auth., 217 A.D.2d 493, 630 N.Y.S.2d 48, 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7850 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1995).

Application for leave to serve late notice of claim against city and its housing authority was properly granted where petitioner was infant, period of delay was only 2 months, and housing authority, which claimed ignorance of any defects in injury-causing playground equipment before service of instant application, failed to show any reason for not believing that equipment was in same condition at time of such service as it was at time of accident. Muriqi by Muriqi v City of New York, 245 A.D.2d 79, 664 N.Y.S.2d 802, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12833 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1997).

185. — — —Against defendant schools

It was not improvident exercise of discretion for court to permit late notice of claim against school district where (1) accident involving 10-year-old claimant occurred on school playground on May 6, (2) accident was reported to school on next day and school incident report was prepared on that day which included description of accident, injury, and name of witness, and (3) notice of claim was served on September 18. Tortorici v East Rockaway Pub. Sch. Dist. No. 19, 191 A.D.2d 495, 594 N.Y.S.2d 335, 1993 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2019 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1993).

Late filing of a notice of claim on behalf of an infant against a school district pursuant to section 50-e of the General Municipal Law is excused where the impediment of infancy did not prevent the public corporation, its attorney or its insurance carrier from acquiring actual knowledge of the essential facts constituting the claim within the time specified in subdivision 1 of section 50-e or within a reasonable time thereafter; the impediment may be presumed to attend infancy and need not be factually demonstrated. Bureau v Newcomb Cent. School Dist., 74 A.D.2d 133, 426 N.Y.S.2d 870, 1980 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10444 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1980).

The tolling provisions of CPLR § 208 were applicable to a tort action brought by an infant against a free school district; thus, the infant was entitled to serve a notice of a late claim upon proof pursuant to Gen Mun Law § 50-e that the school district or its authorized representative had acquired actual notice of the essential facts constituting the claim of the infant within 90 days of the accident or within a reasonable time thereafter. Cohen v Pearl River Union Free School Dist., 81 A.D.2d 876, 439 N.Y.S.2d 393, 1981 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11575 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1981).

In an action against a school district brought by a 17-year-old high school student who allegedly had been injured when kicked in the groin, the court properly extended the time limit under Gen Mun Law § 50-e for filing a notice of claim, where initially it had been thought that the youth suffered from a mere muscle strain, but later it was discovered that he had malignant tumors which required removal of his pelvis and hip and subjected him to lengthy incapacity, and the school district had actual knowledge of the essential facts constituting his claim but failed to make a thorough investigation of the accident and injury. Lockskin v South Colonie Cent. School Dist., 81 A.D.2d 929, 439 N.Y.S.2d 505, 1981 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11663 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1981).

In an action against a school district, stemming from the collision of a school bus with an 11-year-old child who was riding a bicycle, leave to serve a late notice of claim was properly granted six years after the collision since the limitation period for filing a notice of claim may be tolled during the claimant's infancy, since the school district had actual notice of the accident on the day it occurred, and since the child's broken leg and fractured pelvis were sufficiently serious to alert the school district as to the advisability of undertaking a thorough investigation of the accident. De Groff v Bethlehem Cent. School Dist., 92 A.D.2d 702, 460 N.Y.S.2d 630, 1983 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 16984 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1983).

In an action against a school district by a minor who had been injured five years earlier during a regularly scheduled gym class when he was kicked in the eye by a classmate during a football game, the trial court properly granted plaintiff's application to file a late notice of claim under Gen Mun Law § 50-e(5) where defendant had had immediate notice of the accident, two of its employees had been witnesses to the occurrence, a detailed report containing substantially the same information as a notice of claim had been given to the school district by one of its employees within 24 hours of the accident, and a blow of force sufficient to cause hemorrhaging of the eye could reasonably be considered sufficiently serious to have alerted the school district to the advisability of making a thorough investigation; additionally, despite the lapse of time, there was no indication that the school district, through the proper exercise of discovery, would be unable to obtain complete information concerning the history, nature, and extent of the injury, nor any showing that defendant had been prejudiced by the delay. Welsh v Berne-Knox-Westerlo Cent. School Dist., 103 A.D.2d 950, 479 N.Y.S.2d 567, 1984 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 19617 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1984).

In a proceeding pursuant to Gen Mun Law § 50-e(5) for leave to serve a late notice of claim against a school district, time to serve the notice of claim would be extended. Immediately after the infant claimant's injury, which occurred during a gym class, the infant was sent by the gym teacher to the school nurse. Given that the school district acquired actual knowledge of the essential facts constituting the claim immediately after the accident and made no showing of any prejudice, the application to serve a late notice of claim should have been granted. Occhiuzzi v Occhiuzzi, 108 A.D.2d 799, 485 N.Y.S.2d 125, 1985 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 43123 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't), app. dismissed, 66 N.Y.2d 758, 496 N.Y.S.2d 1025, 490 N.E.2d 553, 1985 N.Y. LEXIS 17666 (N.Y. 1985).

Supreme Court improperly denied application for leave to file late notice of claim for injuries sustained by 4-year-old girl while she was participant in Head Start program, even though motion was filed more than 3 years after accident, where petitioner attested that she informed school district of accident immediately after it occurred and school district made no showing that delay caused prejudice. Nichols v Board of Educ. of Ballston Spa Cent. School Dist., 166 A.D.2d 846, 562 N.Y.S.2d 831, 1990 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12785 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1990).

School district was not apprised of petitioner's claim that school personnel negligently failed to supervise students, even though school principal filled out incident report on day following incident and school district's insurance carrier received document 6 months later advising it of violent altercation, since both documents indicated only that petitioner was victim of intentional assault. Dunlea v Mahopac Cent. Sch. Dist., 232 A.D.2d 558, 648 N.Y.S.2d 673, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10376 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1996), app. denied, 89 N.Y.2d 812, 657 N.Y.S.2d 404, 679 N.E.2d 643, 1997 N.Y. LEXIS 386 (N.Y. 1997).

Accusations against special education teacher made by other children did not place school district on notice of essential facts comprising petitioner's claim since school officials inquired of petitioner whether he had also been abused by teacher, but he continued to deny having been victim. Doe v Madrid-Waddington Cent. Sch. Dist., 232 A.D.2d 922, 649 N.Y.S.2d 88, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11266 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1996).

Court properly granted permission to serve late notices of claim against school district to petitioners who were less than 18 years old when sexually abused and harassed by teacher, since district had knowledge of essential facts underlying claim in light of extensive investigation previously undertaken involving state police, resulting in disclosure of number of witnesses who attested to incidents and leading to teacher's criminal conviction, although there was no reasonable excuse for petitioners' delay in making their applications. Kelli A. v Galway Cent. Sch. Dist., 241 A.D.2d 883, 660 N.Y.S.2d 228, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8166 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1997).

In action by petitioner alleging that he was sexually abused by 6th grade teacher in 1991 when he was 12 years old, there was no abuse of discretion in granting application to serve late notice of claim 9 months after petitioner attained age 18, although no excuse was proffered for delay, as no substantial prejudice to respondent school district was shown where it received actual notice of underlying facts within 90 days of alleged incident in form of oral and written complaints from petitioner and his parents, it could readily obtain names of petitioner's classmates who were interviewed by sheriff's department in 1991, and there was no showing that teacher in question was unavailable as source of information. Scuteri v Watkins Glen Cent. Sch. Dist., 261 A.D.2d 779, 689 N.Y.S.2d 751, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5314 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1999).

Court did not err in granting application to file late notice of claim for damages arising out of alleged mistreatment of petitioner's son by one of his teachers despite lack of reasonable excuse for delay, where petitioner stated that she contacted school officials shortly after she learned of incidents involving her son, and it was undisputed that school district received other similar complaints and in fact had reprimanded teacher, which supported conclusion that school district received notice of central facts of claim within reasonable time. Drozdzal v Rensselaer City School Dist., 277 A.D.2d 645, 716 N.Y.S.2d 435, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12028 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2000).

Student whose hand was severely injured in classroom metal sheering accident was entitled to file late notice of claim against school district where (1) he was 15 years old at time of accident, (2) district had immediate notice of accident through its school nurse, who called ambulance to take student to hospital, (3) school principal's affidavit showed that district had actual knowledge of all essential fact surrounding accident, (4) injury was sufficiently serious to have alerted district to advisability of making thorough investigation, and (5) district made no claim of prejudice by reason of late filing. Hayes v Peru Cent. Sch. Dist., 281 A.D.2d 794, 722 N.Y.S.2d 104, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2504 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2001).

Filing of late notices of claim against board of education by minor who had been attacked in high school and her mother was allowable in view of minor's disability and fact that assailant had been indicted for such assault, thus giving board of education actual knowledge of essential facts constituting claim, and that no prejudice from lack of timely notice was shown. Lacy v Buffalo Board of Education, 89 Misc. 2d 255, 391 N.Y.S.2d 43, 1977 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1827 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1977).

186. — —Filing late notice not allowed

Application for leave to serve late notice of claim based on disability of infancy was properly denied where town did not receive actual knowledge of accident and claim until petitioners made instant application almost 2 years after accident, and thus disability of infancy was outweighed by prejudice to town. Caparco v Brookhaven, 133 A.D.2d 803, 520 N.Y.S.2d 185, 1987 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 51843 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1987).

Infant petitioner was not entitled to serve late notice of claim pursuant to CLS Gen Mun § 50-e since she failed to allege adequate facts to establish that respondents had acquired actual knowledge of essential facts constituting claim within 90 days after claim arose or within reasonable time thereafter where (1) claim of sexual abuse arose while infant was in attendance at day care facility operated between November, 1980 and December, 1981, (2) infant's mother allegedly failed to discover abuse until August, 1985, at which time day care facility had already been closed and principals had been arrested and indicted, and (3) initial application for leave to serve late notice of claim was not made until March, 1986. Kareca Lashawn J. v County of Westchester, 142 A.D.2d 729, 531 N.Y.S.2d 308, 1988 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8000 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1988), app. denied, 74 N.Y.2d 602, 541 N.Y.S.2d 985, 539 N.E.2d 1113, 1989 N.Y. LEXIS 599 (N.Y. 1989).

Infant was not entitled to leave to serve late notice of claim pursuant to CLS Gen Mun § 50-e(5) since disability of infancy was outweighed by other factors including (1) lack of adequate explanation for delay in bringing proceeding for leave to serve late notice of claim until more than one year after accident, (2) failure to allege adequate facts to establish that town had actual knowledge of facts underlying claim within reasonable time after accident, and (3) fact that delay was unrelated to claimant's infancy. Groshans v Babylon, 143 A.D.2d 666, 533 N.Y.S.2d 18, 1988 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9468 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1988).

Court erred in granting plaintiff's motion for leave to serve late notice of claim for injuries sustained by her 3-year-old son when he fell from playground slide onto blacktop surface where accident occurred 3 years before plaintiff moved for leave to file late notice of claim, and she failed to establish that defendant had any prior knowledge of incident. Howard v Rochester, 162 A.D.2d 1033, 557 N.Y.S.2d 816, 1990 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9818 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1990).

Plaintiff would not be granted permission to file late notice of claim for injuries allegedly sustained when boy was injured in fall in school gymnasium while participating in game of kickball, allegedly as result of raised mat, although boy was infant and learning disabled, since school district did not receive notice of accident and would, therefore, be prejudiced by delay in reporting of accident involving tripping over transient and movable object; infant disability usually only excuses late filing if such impediment did not prevent acquisition of actual knowledge of essential facts. Salyer v Valley Cent. School Dist., 163 A.D.2d 782, 558 N.Y.S.2d 746, 1990 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8601 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1990), app. denied, 78 N.Y.2d 851, 573 N.Y.S.2d 69, 577 N.E.2d 60, 1991 N.Y. LEXIS 871 (N.Y. 1991).

Court correctly denied motion for leave to serve late notice of claim against school district as (1) bus incident report, stating that then 14-year-old plaintiff stepped off school bus and was walking away when he fell to ground and injured his leg, did not provide actual knowledge of essential facts constituting plaintiff's present claim that he was caused to slip and fall off steps of school bus, and that district was negligent in permitting bottom step to become wet and slippery, (2) plaintiff failed to proffer excuse for his 2-year delay in seeking to serve late notice, and (3) delay substantially prejudiced district's ability to investigate claim, which involved transitory condition. Johnson v Katonah - Lewisboro Sch. Dist., 285 A.D.2d 490, 727 N.Y.S.2d 171, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7057 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2001).

Trial court properly denied petitioner's motion pursuant to N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e to serve a late notice of claim on a city health and hospital corporation, as petitioner failed to show that the failure to file timely notice was due to her child's infancy, and failed to show that the corporation had actual knowledge of the facts of the claim merely because it maintained medical records concerning the child's birth. Matter of Dumancela v New York City Health & Hosps. Corp., 32 A.D.3d 515, 820 N.Y.S.2d 136, 2006 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10306 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2006).

Minor was not entitled to serve late notices of claim against appellants, a town and a school district, under N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e because the minor failed to establish that appellants acquired actual knowledge of the essential facts constituting the claim regarding birth defects allegedly caused by an airborne health hazard within 90 days of its accrual or a reasonable time thereafter; any alleged knowledge that contaminated fill material had been dumped at the subject sites did not provide appellants with actual knowledge that an airborne health hazard might have been created. Matter of Bucher v Town of Eastchester, 40 A.D.3d 1089, 837 N.Y.S.2d 224, 2007 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6614 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2007).

Child was not entitled to serve a late notice of claim upon the village because there was insufficient evidence to establish that the village acquired actual knowledge of the essential facts constituting the claim within 90 days after the claim arose, the delay in serving the notice of claim would substantially prejudice the village, there was no reasonable excuse for the delay, and there was no causal nexus between the child's infancy and the delay in the serving of the notice of claim. Matter of R.N. v Village of New Sq., 164 A.D.3d 508, 83 N.Y.S.3d 102, 2018 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5543 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2018).

187. —Neglect of infant

Where the failure of a high school graduate to file a claim appeared to have arisen from sheer neglect or inadvertence of the infant rather than his immaturity, a motion to file a late claim was denied. Stowe v Elmira, 38 A.D.2d 992, 329 N.Y.S.2d 430, 1972 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5209 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), aff'd, 31 N.Y.2d 814, 339 N.Y.S.2d 463, 291 N.E.2d 586, 1972 N.Y. LEXIS 978 (N.Y. 1972).

Court properly denied petitioners' motion for leave to serve late notice of claim for damages arising from alleged sexual abuse of infant where (1) petitioners failed to establish that respondents had actual knowledge of facts underlying claim within 90-day statutory period or reasonable time thereafter, (2) because time period involved in claim was not more specific, respondents' knowledge arguably came anywhere from 4 months to 2 ½ years after claim arose, and (3) infant was 12-year-old boy at time of alleged abuse who had capacity to complain and make abuse known. Donald E. v Gloversville Enlarged Sch. Dist., 191 A.D.2d 749, 594 N.Y.S.2d 385, 1993 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1878 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1993).

188. —Nonapparent nature of injuries

A twenty-year old girl was denied permission to file a late claim where the delay in filing was caused not by the girl's infancy but by the fact that the seriousness of the injury was not apparent until almost a year after the accident. Schnee v New York, 1 N.Y.2d 697, 150 N.Y.S.2d 801, 134 N.E.2d 69, 1956 N.Y. LEXIS 988 (N.Y. 1956).

Where it was asserted that a prematurely born infant was given excessive oxygen in an incubator, that such oxygen caused her blindness, and that injury was only discovered during sixth postdischarge check-up examination some months later, it was a proper exercise of discretion to permit filing of a late notice of claim in infant's favor. Charalambakis v New York, 54 A.D.2d 553, 387 N.Y.S.2d 4, 1976 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13860 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1976), rev'd, 46 N.Y.2d 785, 413 N.Y.S.2d 912, 386 N.E.2d 823, 1978 N.Y. LEXIS 2471 (N.Y. 1978).

Court properly denied application for leave to serve late notice of claim brought on behalf of infant, who allegedly sustained serious injuries when she was assaulted on roof of housing authority apartment building, where (1) proffered excuse for delay—that mother did not realize seriousness of her daughter's injuries until approximately 5 months after incident—was unreasonable, (2) delay was unrelated to infancy, and (3) there was nothing in police reports that would connect incident with any negligence on part of housing authority. Plantin v New York City Hous. Auth., 203 A.D.2d 579, 611 N.Y.S.2d 28, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4239 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1994).

Petitioner was not entitled to leave to serve late notice of claim in medical malpractice action on basis of his infancy where his mother's conclusory assertions that she only recently learned of possible nexus between petitioner's lung condition and surgery performed to correct congenital cardiopulmonary defect was unpersuasive, and county was prejudiced by delay since its medical records were insufficient to provide actual notice of nature of petitioner's claim. Bischert v County of Westchester, 212 A.D.2d 529, 622 N.Y.S.2d 308, 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1041 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1995).

Petitioner, whose son was seriously injured while participating in swim program conducted by respondent school district, was properly allowed to serve notice of claim more than 6 years after accident where (1) delay in filing was caused by, inter alia, time that elapsed before she ascertained extent and permanency of her son's disabilities, and by her mistaken belief that filing deadline would be tolled by her son's infancy, (2) respondent had notice of accident, and (3) there was no convincing showing that delay in filing caused undue prejudice to respondent. Cure v City of Hudson Sch. Dist., 222 A.D.2d 879, 634 N.Y.S.2d 884, 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12872 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1995).

Court properly denied infant petitioner's application for leave to serve late notice of claim alleging that she was sexually abused by her former fourth grade teacher at public school, even though petitioner revealed incident to school psychologist shortly after incident, and petitioner's father contended that he did not then know seriousness of matter, since 2 ½ -year delay had prejudiced school district's ability to defend against claim, and principal and teacher involved in matter were no longer employed by district and had moved out of state. Bordan v Mamaroneck Sch. Dist., 230 A.D.2d 792, 646 N.Y.S.2d 373, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8367 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1996).

In action for injuries sustained by plaintiff's 15-year-old daughter in gym class, court properly granted plaintiff's motion to file late notice of claim where daughter was unaware of extent of her injuries until after expiration of 90-day period, defendant either had actual notice of incident on day that it happened or had notice within one month after extent of injuries were known, total time from date of incident to notice was no more than 5 months, and passage of time did not prevent defendant from investigating claim. More v General Brown Cent. Sch. Dist., 262 A.D.2d 1030, 691 N.Y.S.2d 850, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7250 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1999).

Father offered sufficient excuse for late filing of notice of claim against school district on behalf of student whose hand was severely injured in classroom metal sheering accident where father did not retain counsel until he learned that his son's injuries might be permanent and then feared that his medical insurance benefits would be insufficient to cover medical costs.

Hayes v Peru Cent. Sch. Dist., 281 A.D.2d 794, 722 N.Y.S.2d 104, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2504 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2001).

Retention by a city of a notice or claim for a period of four years does not constitute a waiver on the part of the city of the requirement of timely service. Lubarsky v Long Beach, 126 N.Y.S.2d 747, 205 Misc. 153, 1953 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2487 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1953).

189. —Reliance on representations

Estoppel from asserting defense based on failure to comply with notice of claim provision of General Municipal Law may best be asserted by motion to file notice of claim nunc pro tunc rather than by proceeding by way of service of amended complaint setting forth facts sufficient to excuse filing. Bender v New York City Health & Hospitals Corp., 38 N.Y.2d 662, 382 N.Y.S.2d 18, 345 N.E.2d 561, 1976 N.Y. LEXIS 2305 (N.Y. 1976).

Where a claimant was injured while playing softball on a city recreation field and did not file a notice of claim against the city within the statutory period, relying upon representations of the ball club that they would pay for his hospital and doctor expenses, the courts will not grant an extension of time to file the notice of claim since the delay was not occasioned by reason of the infancy of the claimant. Application of Nori, 274 A.D. 545, 85 N.Y.S.2d 131, 1948 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3125 (N.Y. App. Div. 1948), aff'd, 300 N.Y. 632, 90 N.E.2d 492, 300 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 632, 1950 N.Y. LEXIS 1428 (N.Y. 1950).

Court improperly denied application for leave to serve late notice of claim on behalf of infant where petitioners' alleged continuing reliance on respondents' representations that premises had been successfully remediated for lead paint contamination constituted facially reasonable excuse for their inactivity, and respondent city's health department was in possession of records generated by its employees who investigated lead contamination in petitioners' home and thus had actual notice of facts underlying claim. Fierro v City of New York, 271 A.D.2d 608, 706 N.Y.S.2d 451, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4277 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2000).

An infant 17 years of age at the time of the accident cannot claim the benefits accorded to "immature infants," and will not be granted leave to file a claim after the lapse of more than 1 year, especially where the only explanations advanced by the claimant were that she was ignorant of the statute and that she was lulled into a sense of security by a statement of a city investigator that she would "hear from the city soon," and where claimant makes no explanation of her further delay after being informed by counsel of the necessity for filing a notice of claim. Witherspoon v New York, 85 N.Y.S.2d 443, 193 Misc. 730, 1948 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3794 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1948), disapproved, Cohen v Pearl River Union Free School Dist., 70 A.D.2d 94, 419 N.Y.S.2d 998, 1979 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12306 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1979).

190. —Retention or change of counsel

Whether initial failure to file a notice of claim within the prescribed 90-day period is legally attributable to infant respondent's disability, it is apparent that application for leave to file a late claim was not, as a matter of law, made "within a reasonable time after the expiration of the . . . [said 90-day period]" as a result of an unexplained subsequent delay of at least three months between retention of counsel for purposes of applying for such leave and actual application to the court. Jagacki v Board of Education, 34 A.D.2d 957, 312 N.Y.S.2d 226, 1970 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4641 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1970).

On an application by petitioner to file a notice of claim after the expiration of the 90-day period specified in the statute, where it appeared that her father consulted attorneys on her behalf within the 90-day period and that her present attorneys were thereafter employed by her and received the file from the original attorneys after the expiration of the filing period, petitioner should reveal when she first learned of the obligation to file a notice of claim, the details of her employment of and consultation with attorneys and details of her hospitalization and medical treatment. Marquart v County of Erie, 36 A.D.2d 578, 317 N.Y.S.2d 909, 317 N.Y.S.2d 910, 1971 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4967 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1971).

Where, at the time of an infant's alleged injury during her birth in 1974 due to the alleged negligence of employees of a municipally owned hospital, there was no duty upon the infant to serve any notice of claim in order to maintain an action against the hospital's employees, and she could not be, subjected to the provisions of § 50-e of the General Municipal Law as they existed at the time of her injury, rather she would be subject to the provisions of that section as they existed at the time the duty to serve a notice of claim arose; thus, special term correctly applied the provisions as they were at the time the claim arose in granting leave to serve a late notice of claim. Perez v New York City Health & Hospitals Corp., 84 A.D.2d 789, 444 N.Y.S.2d 23, 1981 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 15985 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1981), app. denied, 56 N.Y.2d 508, 1982 N.Y. LEXIS 5434 (N.Y. 1982).

Failure to serve timely notice of claim required dismissal of infant's malpractice action against city and city hospitals corporation where notice was served 16 years after event and revival of claim would result in irreparable prejudice to defendants since (1) they lacked any substantive knowledge of claim, and (2) hospital involved had since been closed and its staff dispersed. Lallave v New York, 127 A.D.2d 634, 511 N.Y.S.2d 869, 1987 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 43123 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1987).

Minor could not serve a late notice of claim under N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e or N.Y. Educ. Law § 3813(2-a) against a school and a school district regarding an incident in which a desk fell on the minor's hand as ignorance of the 90-day statutory requirement for service of a claim was not a reasonable excuse for the nearly 18-month delay; no nexus was shown between the minor's infancy and the delay. Matter of Vicari v Grand Ave. Middle School, 52 A.D.3d 838, 860 N.Y.S.2d 629, 2008 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5771 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2008).

An application for leave to file a belated claim, pursuant to subd. 5 of this section, was allowed where the claimant was an infant injured while riding on a school bus, seven years of age at the time of the accident, her father and natural guardian retained counsel 26 days prior to expiration of the statutory 90-day period for filing claim, and the attorney attempted to file claim 11 days subsequent to expiration of the statutory period, the court stating that the legislature, in enactment of this section, intended that an infant should not have his rights forfeited because of failure of his guardian or attorney to act within the prescribed period provided leave is sought within one year of date of injury. Poulos v Union Free School Dist., 24 Misc. 2d 32, 201 N.Y.S.2d 602, 1960 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3237 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1960).

Although injuries were sustained by a nine-year-old child on defendant's school grounds on October 28, 1961, no notice of claim was served within the 90-day period and the child's parents did not even retain an attorney until February 28, 1962, application for leave to file late notice of claim was granted on the ground that the infant was only nine years of age at the time of injury and her rights should not be forfeited because of her parent's failure to meet the statutory requirements. McGrouty v Central School Dist., 229 N.Y.S.2d 850 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1962).

An extension of time should be granted for service of notice of claim in behalf of a seven-year-old infant, upon application of his attorney shortly after running of the 90-day period, and a showing that the infant's mother was not well versed in the English language or legal terminology and failed to contact an attorney on the infant's behalf until 25 days after prescribed statutory time for serving notice of claim, following which the attorney proceeded diligently to seek an extension of time to serve notice of claim. Tezin v New York, 236 N.Y.S.2d 915, 1962 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 4251 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1962).

191. —Miscellaneous considerations

Service of a notice of claim on the county attorney was defective. But where the time to serve the claim of an infant had already been extended and a reasonable time fixed therefor, the court had no power to grant an additional time for service upon the proper officials. Every v Ulster County, 283 A.D. 987, 131 N.Y.S.2d 201, 1954 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6012 (N.Y. App. Div.), reh'g denied, 283 A.D. 1120, 131 N.Y.S.2d 907, 1954 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6478 (N.Y. App. Div. 1954), app. denied, 284 A.D. 816, 132 N.Y.S.2d 544, 1954 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3550 (N.Y. App. Div.

1954), app. dismissed, 307 N.Y. 833, 122 N.E.2d 327, 307 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 833, 1954 N.Y. LEXIS 1528 (N.Y. 1954).

In view of presumption of impediment attending infancy and considering 17-year-old boy's serious injuries sustained when he was struck by motorcycle while crossing an intersection, a language barrier, prompt action by infant's attorney in attempting to obtain accident reports, and city's failure to transmit facts in its possession tending to show possible liability of the city until more than 90 days after date of accident, discretion should have been exercised by Supreme Court, Special Term, in favor of application for leave to file late notice of claim against city. Febles v New York, 44 A.D.2d 369, 355 N.Y.S.2d 147, 1974 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5055 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1974).

Where notice of claim in personal injuries action by 18-year-old against municipal transit authority was postmarked after 90-day period and arrived almost 2 weeks after such period, court would indulge in presumption of impediment attending infancy in allowing late notice of claim. Sherman v Metro. Transit Auth., 44 A.D.2d 533, 353 N.Y.S.2d 453, 1974 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5439 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1974), modified, 36 N.Y.2d 776, 368 N.Y.S.2d 842, 329 N.E.2d 673, 1975 N.Y. LEXIS 1808 (N.Y. 1975).

County respondents were prejudiced by petitioners' 10-month delay in serving notice of claim arising from alleged wrongful detention of infant petitioner as result of allegations of child abuse or neglect that were apparently determined to be unfounded, where all records had been expunged pursuant to CLS Soc Serv § 422(5), depriving respondents of opportunity to utilize them as part of prompt investigation of petitioners' claim. Morehead v Westchester County, 222 A.D.2d 507, 635 N.Y.S.2d 65, 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12738 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1995).

Tort action against city would be remitted for decision on infant plaintiff's application for permission to file late notice of claim where Statute of Limitations and time within which to file late notice of claim were tolled by infancy, and defendant did not have opportunity to respond to application because Supreme Court did not address that issue. Perry v City of New York, 238 A.D.2d 326, 656 N.Y.S.2d 301, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3415 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1997).

Although tort action against city housing authority would be dismissed because plaintiff's conclusory allegations of depression provided insufficient basis for infancy extension of period for filing notice of claim under CLS Gen Mun § 50-e(5), dismissal would be without prejudice to renew on plaintiff's submission of proper medical proof that (1) she had suffered depression for significant period between her alleged rape in 1984 and her retention of counsel in 1987, and (2) such depression was medically valid explanation for her failure to seek prompt legal advice and to file notice of claim. Price v Herstic, 240 A.D.2d 151, 657 N.Y.S.2d 700, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5817 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1997).

192. — —Under prior statutory provisions

Where, at the time of an infant's alleged injury during her birth in 1974 due to the alleged negligence of employees of a municipally owned hospital, there was no duty upon the infant to serve any notice of claim in order to maintain an action against the hospital's employees, and she could not be, subjected to the provisions of § 50-e of the General Municipal Law as they existed at the time of her injury, rather she would be subject to the provisions of that section as they existed at the time the duty to serve a notice of claim arose; thus, special term correctly applied the provisions as they were at the time the claim arose in granting leave to serve a late notice of claim. Perez v New York City Health & Hospitals Corp., 84 A.D.2d 789, 444 N.Y.S.2d 23, 1981 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 15985 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1981), app. denied, 56 N.Y.2d 508, 1982 N.Y. LEXIS 5434 (N.Y. 1982).

193. — —Filing late notice allowed

Court properly exercised its discretion to allow infant petitioner to file late notice of claim against city and board of education where delay did not substantially prejudice them. Morales v New York, 132 A.D.2d 601, 517 N.Y.S.2d 434, 1987 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 49141 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1987).

Court was not precluded from granting application to file late notice of claim either by purported inadequacy of claimant's excuse for limited delay or by fact that claimant might ultimately be unsuccessful on merits where claimant was infant, defendant was given notice of claim promptly after expiration of 90-day period, and alleged defective condition existed subsequent to filing of notice. Feliciano v New York City Hous. Auth., 188 A.D.2d 296, 590 N.Y.S.2d 491, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13649 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1992).

In action for injuries sustained by infant, including loss of use of right eye when he was hit in eye by firecracker or rocket while on property of housing authority, court did not improvidently exercise its discretion in granting leave to serve late notice of claim, roughly 2 weeks after infant's mother became aware that she possessed cause of action and consulted attorney, and about 7 months after incident, given all circumstances presented, including petitioner's infancy, severity of injury sustained, and existence of medical records. Gadson v New York City Hous. Auth., 196 A.D.2d 585, 601 N.Y.S.2d 184, 1993 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8072 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1993).

Court properly granted infant's application for leave to serve late notice of claim where (1) application was made within appropriate limitation period, as tolled by infancy, (2) defendants would not be unduly prejudiced by delay, and (3) one defendant was in possession of infant's medical records, and thus had actual notice of claim and its underlying facts. Makris v Westchester County, 208 A.D.2d 843, 618 N.Y.S.2d 67, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9999 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1994).

County and county medical center would not be unduly prejudiced by delay in serving notice of claim due to plaintiff's infancy where medical center was in possession of detailed infant medical records, and one doctor involved was still employed by medical center and was available to testify. Leone v County of Nassau, 225 A.D.2d 776, 639 N.Y.S.2d 954, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3134 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1996).

In action alleging that New York City Housing Authority (NYCHA) failed to comply with federal regulations requiring inspections for lead paint, court should have granted plaintiff's motion for leave to file late notice of claim against NYCHA where plaintiff was 3 or 4 years old when he allegedly ingested lead paint, city defendants were served with timely notice and thus there was strong likelihood that failure to serve NYCHA was result of excusable error regarding identity of proper municipal parties to serve, and there was no evidence that permitting late filing would prejudice NYCHA in its defense. Ali by Ali v Bunny Realty Corp., 253 A.D.2d 356, 676 N.Y.S.2d 166, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8814 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1998).

It was proper to grant petitioners' application for leave to serve late notice of claim where mother of injured infant was not immediately aware of severity of infant's injuries, but she shortly thereafter retained attorney and attempted to serve notice of claim 15 days after expiration of 90-day statutorily-required time to do so, there were no known witnesses to occurrence, and area in question appeared to be in same condition as it was on day of infant's fall. Presley v City of New York, 254 A.D.2d 490, 680 N.Y.S.2d 111, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11251 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1998).

Where 5-year-old plaintiff was allegedly abused at school by 6th-grade student in January or February, but he did not tell his mother about incident until March 15, and she promptly reported incident to school authorities and police department and served notice of claim on defendants on June 9, court properly granted leave to serve late notice of claim considering age of plaintiff, physical threats made to him by alleged perpetrator, and lack of substantial prejudice to defendants due to their actual knowledge of essential facts of incident shortly after its alleged occurrence. Cruz v City of Yonkers, 268 A.D.2d 501, 702 N.Y.S.2d 356, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 703 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2000).

In action against school district for negligent supervision of students, court properly granted petitioners' application to serve late notice of claim 4 ½ years after incident where petitioners reported incident to district on day after it occurred and investigation was conducted, investigation led to disciplinary action against another student, district did not offer evidence that witnesses were actually unavailable or unable to recall details surrounding event, and school records indicated that school officials were told that health care providers for petitioners' son believed that he was suffering from posttraumatic distress syndrome as result of incident, thereby negating assertion that district was unaware of seriousness of alleged injuries to petitioners' son. Mahan v Board of Educ., 269 A.D.2d 834, 703 N.Y.S.2d 627, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1767 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 2000).

Trial court erred in denying an infant's motion pursuant to N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(5) to serve late notice of a personal injury claim against a city, as the filing period for the claim was tolled by infancy, as the absence of a causal nexus between infancy and the delay in serving the notice of claim, while a factor to be considered by the court, was not fatal to the application, and the city's police department had actual notice of the incident, in which the infant was hit by a city police car after allegedly running into a roadway from between parked cars, as the department conducted an immediate investigation of the incident. Matter of Vasquez v City of Newburgh, 35 A.D.3d 621, 826 N.Y.S.2d 648, 2006 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 15008 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2006).

Trial court properly found that a former student's motion to file a late notice of claim against a school district was timely because while the student was a minor, the statute of limitations was tolled until her 18th birthday, and the student's motion was brought within one year and 90 days of her 18th birthday. Sherb v Monticello Cent. Sch. Dist., 163 A.D.3d 1130, 81 N.Y.S.3d 265, 2018 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4913 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2018).

194. — —Filing late notice not allowed

Motion to file late notice of claim was properly denied as to wife and husband in action brought on behalf of themselves and their infant child who was born with heart disease allegedly due to emotional distress inflicted on wife by actions of her superiors while she was pregnant and still employed with defendant county, since there was no allegation that county was ever informed that wife was suffering physical ailment due to conduct of its employees, or that she was taking medication on account thereof, until after summons and complaint were served sometime after child's birth; however, infant could not have been expected to file, or to have filed for her, notice of claim arising from events occurring prior to her birth, and thus, as to her, motion would be granted since county would not be prejudiced by delay regarding any cause of action infant might have. Benjamin v County of Warren, 128 A.D.2d 973, 513 N.Y.S.2d 288, 1987 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 44629 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1987), app. denied, 71 N.Y.2d 806, 530 N.Y.S.2d 109, 525 N.E.2d 754, 1988 N.Y. LEXIS 1020 (N.Y. 1988).

Disability of infancy was insufficient basis for granting leave to file late notice of claim where claimant failed to explain unreasonable delay in bringing proceeding for leave to file late notice until nearly 3 years after accident, claimant failed to allege facts to establish that school districts had actual knowledge of circumstances underlying negligence claim within reasonable time after accident, delay was unrelated to claimant's infancy, and injury did not appear so serious that school districts would have been alerted to advisability of making full investigation of incident. Katz v Rockville Centre Union Free School Dist., 131 A.D.2d 574, 516 N.Y.S.2d 289, 1987 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 48030 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1987), app. denied, 71 N.Y.2d 801, 527 N.Y.S.2d 767, 522 N.E.2d 1065, 1988 N.Y. LEXIS 1175 (N.Y. 1988).

Infant plaintiff was not entitled to serve late notice of claim upon town since disability of infancy was outweighed by other factors where (1) counsel for infant was retained 4 months after accident, (2) no action was taken until notice of claim was served on town over 13 months after accident and 9 months after counsel was retained, (3) town did not receive actual notice of accident until notice of claim was served, and (4) motion for leave to serve late notice of claim was not made until 5 months after notice was served; town's ability to prepare defense was diminished, and examination of infant pursuant to CLS Gen Mun § 50-h more than 16 months after accident and prior to making of motion was insufficient to demonstrate lack of prejudice. Sampson v Cazzari, 142 A.D.2d 681, 531 N.Y.S.2d 26, 1988 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7931 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1988).

Court properly denied application by infant petitioner for leave to file late notice of claim against school for injuries sustained in fall on May 17, 1984, where infant's June 1987 application was made on grounds that he was infant at time of fall, that he had been misinformed about seriousness of injury, and that he and his parents lacked familiarity with law, but (1) delay was unrelated to infancy, but was due to fact that injury did not appear to be serious at time of fall, (2) counsel was contacted over 6 months before application was filed, and (3) school demonstrated substantial prejudice due to failure to file timely notice of claim. Schirripa v Birch Lane Elementary School, 154 A.D.2d 536, 546 N.Y.S.2d 160, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12798 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1989).

In action on behalf of child who was injured as result of ingestion of paint chips at premises operated by New York City Housing Authority, it was error to allow service of late notice of claim since (1) claimants failed to adequately explain why their first motion for leave to serve late notice was incorrectly served on city's corporation counsel, or why it was not made until 7 months after child's condition was diagnosed, and (2) there was no evidence that housing authority had actual knowledge of child's alleged injuries or existence of chipping paint in areas to which child had access prior to claimants' second motion, which was made 13 months after child's condition was diagnosed. Simpson by Simpson v New York City Hous. Auth., 207 A.D.2d 354, 616 N.Y.S.2d 203, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8050 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1994).

Trial court improvidently exercised its discretion in granting leave to serve late notice of claim under CLS Gen Mun § 50-e in action against New York City Health and Hospitals Corporation for brain damage sustained by infant at birth where petitioner failed to provide any excuse for 8-year delay, nature of infant's injuries would have manifested itself within short time after birth, and petitioner failed to demonstrate lack of prejudice to defendant. Matarrese v New York City Health & Hosps. Corp., 215 A.D.2d 7, 633 N.Y.S.2d 837, 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11863 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1995), app. denied, 87 N.Y.2d 810, 642 N.Y.S.2d 859, 665 N.E.2d 661, 1996 N.Y. LEXIS 351 (N.Y. 1996).

Petitioner seeking leave to serve late notice of claim under CLS Gen Mun § 50-e in action against New York City Health and Hospitals Corporation for injuries sustained by infant at time of his birth failed to demonstrate lack of prejudice to defendant where all 4 physicians who had treated infant had terminated their employment at defendant's hospital at least 4 years before leave was sought, and there was nothing in record to suggest that medical records in defendant's possession contained information necessary to conduct adequate investigation into claim. Matarrese v New York City Health & Hosps. Corp., 215 A.D.2d 7, 633 N.Y.S.2d 837, 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11863 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1995), app. denied, 87 N.Y.2d 810, 642 N.Y.S.2d 859, 665 N.E.2d 661, 1996 N.Y. LEXIS 351 (N.Y. 1996).

Petitioner was not entitled to serve late notice of claim on village where she alleged that she had been sexually abused as child between 1983 and 1988 by employee of village's community center, village had no knowledge of allegations until proceeding was commenced in 1993 (10 months after petitioner reached her majority), by that time accused employee had retired, his immediate supervisor was no longer employed by village, and other children who had come into contact with employee had moved away and were no longer identifiable. O'Neill v Board of Zoning Appeals, 225 A.D.2d 782, 639 N.Y.S.2d 961, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3132 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1996).

Court properly denied petitioner's application for leave to serve late notice of claim against school district, even though nature of allegations (sexual abuse), coupled with fact that petitioner's former special education teacher, authority figure to petitioner, "told (him) to 'trust me' and not to tell," adequately accounted for that portion of delay which occurred before petitioner first disclosed abuse, since there was no satisfactory explanation for remaining delay of nearly 18 months. Doe v Madrid-Waddington Cent. Sch. Dist., 232 A.D.2d 922, 649 N.Y.S.2d 88, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11266 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1996).

Court lacked authority to grant plaintiff's motion to serve late notice of claim where plaintiff's counsel served notice of claim almost 2 year after incident without first having moved for permission to serve late notice of claim,and plaintiff did not move for leave to serve late notice of claim until almost 2 months after expiration of Statute of Limitations, which began to run on plaintiff's 18th birthday. Simons v Sherburne-Earlville Cent. Sch. Dist., 233 A.D.2d 592, 649 N.Y.S.2d 111, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11476 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1996).

Court properly dismissed malpractice claim for failure to serve timely notice where (1) mother of infant plaintiff attempted to explain why she did not consult counsel until plaintiff was 7 years old, but no adequate excuse was offered for counsel's additional 6-month delay in serving notice of claim, or for 2-year delay between service of late notice and motion to deem late notice timely served, and (2) county was prejudiced by late service in that medical records did not alert county to underlying facts of claim, and 4 doctors who had been involved in mother's prenatal treatment were no longer employed by county. Moise by Anglade v County of Nassau, 234 A.D.2d 275, 650 N.Y.S.2d 785, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12735 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1996), app. denied, 89 N.Y.2d 811, 657 N.Y.S.2d 403, 679 N.E.2d 642, 1997 N.Y. LEXIS 360 (N.Y. 1997).

Court properly denied application for leave to serve late notice of claim where petitioner did not offer acceptable explanation as to why she did not serve her notice of claim sooner than 15 months after her claim arose, she failed to show that county acquired actual knowledge of alleged gross negligence and willful misconduct by child protection services in intentionally failing to protect her infant daughter, and county would be substantially prejudiced because records in case were expunged. Djeddah v County of Westchester, 239 A.D.2d 499, 658 N.Y.S.2d 66, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5374 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1997).

Court improperly granted motion for leave to serve late notice of claim on city where plaintiffs were seeking to hold city liable for hazardous condition in building that it sold some 13 years prior to infant plaintiff's birth and some 15 years before he was diagnosed with lead poisoning; as matter of law, 13 years was more than reasonable period in which to discover and remedy hazard represented by presence of lead paint by subsequent cooperative owner, which purchased premises on "as is" basis. Caldwell v 302 Convent Ave. Hous. Dev. Fund Corp., 272 A.D.2d 112, 707 N.Y.S.2d 423, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5400 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2000).

In personal injury action against school district and others, Supreme Court lacked power to extend plaintiff's time to serve late notice of claim or to deem late notice timely nunc pro tunc where plaintiff did not apply for leave to serve late notice of claim within one year and 90 days after her infancy ended. Mazzola v Kelly, 281 A.D.2d 604, 722 N.Y.S.2d 70, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3050 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2001).

195. Conduct of counsel affecting infant's disability

Delay in filing notice of claim against a school district on behalf of a 13-year old infant was excusable under subd. 5 of this section and late filing could be permitted though not applied for until almost one year after the accident notwithstanding the delay in giving notice was attributable to actions of his parents and later his attorney, being nonetheless attributable to his infancy. Esslie v Central School Dist., 20 A.D.2d 748, 247 N.Y.S.2d 87, 1964 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4323 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1964).

Ultimate discretion as to whether failure of attorney to file notice of claim for infant within specified time was due to disability of infancy rests with each appellate division rather than with special term. Crume v Clarence Cent. School Dist., 43 A.D.2d 492, 353 N.Y.S.2d 579, 1974 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5559 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1974).

Although strict construction of this section is adhered to in the first department in differentiating between infancy as ground for an extension of time to serve notice of claim and instances where the fault lies with the infant's attorney, a more liberal interpretation obtains elsewhere. Chiovaro v County of Nassau, 221 N.Y.S.2d 577, 1961 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3697 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1961).

196. —Inadvertence as precluding extension

Where failure to file notice of claim with the proper public officer within the statutory time is due to inadvertence of counsel, it has been consistently held in the First Department that such failure is not "by reason of" the disability of infancy on the part of the injured person. Goglas v New York City Housing Authority, 13 A.D.2d 939, 216 N.Y.S.2d 756, 1961 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10029 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1961), aff'd, 11 N.Y.2d 680, 225 N.Y.S.2d 756, 180 N.E.2d 910, 1962 N.Y. LEXIS 1418 (N.Y. 1962).

Where an infant claimant against a municipality had counsel within the 90-day period for filing notice of claim, failure to serve timely notice of claim was due to inadvertence of counsel and not by reason of infancy and no ground existed for extension of the statutory period. Odom v New York City Housing Authority, 17 A.D.2d 770, 232 N.Y.S.2d 287, 1962 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7925 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1962).

An infant's application for leave to serve late notice of claim against a Board of Education should not be granted because of unreasonable delay in making the application where the infant's claimed injuries occurred on three separate dates, October 27, 1962 and November 6 and November 10 of the same year, an attorney was retained in January, 1963 to whom all facts were known at least by summer of 1963, but no application for late service was made until November 6, 1963. Gipp v Board of Education, 20 A.D.2d 924, 249 N.Y.S.2d 727, 1964 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3945 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1964).

Where an infant claimant against a municipality has counsel within the statutory 90-day period for filing notice of claim, and the failure to timely file appears to be due to inadvertence of counsel, it is the settled rule in the First District that no extension of time for filing the notice should be granted because of the claimant's infancy. Shankman v New York City Housing Authority, 21 A.D.2d 968, 252 N.Y.S.2d 707, 1964 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3199 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1964), aff'd, 16 N.Y.2d 500, 260 N.Y.S.2d 442, 208 N.E.2d 175, 1965 N.Y. LEXIS 1410 (N.Y. 1965).

An order granting an application by the mother of an infant to serve a late notice of claim was reversed, where it was shown that the failure to file a timely notice was due to the attorneys' inadvertence, and did not occur by reason of the disability of infancy. Jefferson v New York City Housing Authority, 24 A.D.2d 943, 265 N.Y.S.2d 336, 1965 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2798 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1965).

Motion of infant to file late notice of claim for personal injuries denied where, even though infant was 6 years of age, an attorney was retained to represent her many days before the expiration of the statutory period fixed for service of notice of claim. Biberias v New York City Transit Authority, 33 A.D.2d 671, 305 N.Y.S.2d 88, 1969 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2835 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1969), rev'd, 27 N.Y.2d 890, 317 N.Y.S.2d 365, 265 N.E.2d 775, 1970 N.Y. LEXIS 985 (N.Y. 1970).

Failure to serve a timely notice of claim, attributable to the inadvertence of counsel, was not "by reason of" the disability of infancy of the claimant, the standard set by statutory language. Clark v Manhattan & Bronx Surface Transit Operating Authority, 34 A.D.2d 770, 311 N.Y.S.2d 339, 1970 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4812 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1970), aff'd, 28 N.Y.2d 614, 320 N.Y.S.2d 76, 268 N.E.2d 803, 1971 N.Y. LEXIS 1517 (N.Y. 1971).

Despite excuses for late filing of notice of claim pursuant to General Municipal Law against town, county, and sheriff in action relating to assault alleged to have been committed upon persons of plaintiffs by defendant police officers and deputy sheriffs in employ of defendant sheriff, which excuses were that counsel was too busy to give his attention to service of notice of claim for period of seven months and that plaintiffs were infants, in absence of showing of prejudice, failure of counsel to move to serve notice of claim until seven months after occurrence underlying claim was without justifiable excuse. Williams v Irondequoit, 59 A.D.2d 1049, 399 N.Y.S.2d 807, 1977 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 14336 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1977).

197. —Inadvertence as not precluding extension

According to some decisions, an extension of time to serve notice of claim can be granted to an infant claimant, in the court's discretion, notwithstanding failure to give notice within the statutory 90-day period is due in part, at least, to neglect or ignorance on the part of the infant's parent or attorney. Galerneau v North Colonie Cent. School Dist., 7 A.D.2d 693, 179

N.Y.S.2d 144, 1958 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4350 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1958).

Delay for about six weeks by the attorney finally retained to represent an infant claimant in seeking leave to serve late notice of claim was not unreasonable, so as to require denial of the application, where the application was made within the one-year limit. Cohen v New York, 19 A.D.2d 722, 242 N.Y.S.2d 398, 1963 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3401 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1963), aff'd, 14 N.Y.2d 659, 249 N.Y.S.2d 868, 198 N.E.2d 901, 1964 N.Y. LEXIS 1311 (N.Y. 1964).

Where original application for leave to serve late notice of claim was made within the one-year over-all period prescribed by statute and was based on all of subd 5 of § 50-e of the statute, including the infancy excuse, order which vacated and annulled order made on original application would be modified to the extent that pursuant to clause 1 of subd 5 of § 50-e of the General Municipal Law, the original decision be adhered to insofar as it granted the infant leave to serve a late notice of claim since an attorney's error causing a late or erroneous service will not preclude an infant's reliance on the statute. Kern v Central Free School Dist., 25 A.D.2d 867, 270 N.Y.S.2d 137, 1966 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4245 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1966).

Attorney's error at causing a late or erroneous service will not preclude an infant's reliance on the statutes. Kern v Central Free School Dist., 25 A.D.2d 867, 270 N.Y.S.2d 137, 1966 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4245 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1966).

Where attorney was retained by infant's father to bring action for personal injuries sustained by infant due to negligence of school district, failure of attorney to file notice of claim within prescribed time was due to infancy, as had it not been for his infancy plaintiff might have selected an attorney who would file proper notice. Crume v Clarence Cent. School Dist., 43 A.D.2d 492, 353 N.Y.S.2d 579, 1974 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5559 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1974).

Thirteen-year-old child who was injured in attack by older children while riding on school bus returning from trip sponsored by town recreation commission could not reasonably be required to press his claim against town when his attorney failed to do so and should thus have been permitted to file late notice of claim by reason of his infancy despite fact that failure to file timely notice was to large extent due to inadvertence of counsel. Fornaro v Clarkstown, 44 A.D.2d 596, 353 N.Y.S.2d 516, 1974 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5383 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1974).

Although attorney erred in waiting some 8 months to move for extension of time without justifiable cause, extension of time is granted where allegations upon which litigation is based are extremely serious and delay does not unduly prejudice municipality. Hill v County of Chemung, 112 A.D.2d 653, 491 N.Y.S.2d 853, 1985 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 56247 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1985).

Delay of fifteen-year-old infant's counsel in filing application was not sufficient grounds for denying infant permission to file late claim where defendant had notice of injury and application for permission to file late claim was made within one year of injury. Short v Board of Education, 12 Misc. 2d 440, 164 N.Y.S.2d 476, 1956 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1587 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1956).

Mature infant, age 17, was relieved of the neglect or inadvertence of her father and of the attorney employed by him, where it appeared that the county and playland commission and their insurer knew about the alleged claim well within the 90 day period, and where there was no showing of prejudice to them resulting from delay in filing. Application of Eisman, 15 Misc. 2d 550, 182 N.Y.S.2d 284, 1958 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2275 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1958).

An application for leave to file a belated claim, pursuant to subd. 5 of this section, was allowed where the claimant was an infant injured while riding on a school bus, seven years of age at the time of the accident, her father and natural guardian retained counsel 26 days prior to expiration of the statutory 90-day period for filing claim, and the attorney attempted to file claim 11 days subsequent to expiration of the statutory period, the court stating that the legislature, in enactment of this section, intended that an infant should not have his rights forfeited because of failure of his guardian or attorney to act within the prescribed period provided leave is sought within one year of date of injury. Poulos v Union Free School Dist., 24 Misc. 2d 32, 201 N.Y.S.2d 602, 1960 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3237 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1960).

198. —Other grounds for failure to timely file

It was an abuse of discretion to deny leave to file a late notice of claim for personal injuries sustained by an infant who was thrown from a town park swing, where the infant resided with foster parents under the custody of the New York Foundling Hospital and the social worker employed by the hospital and assigned to elicit details of the accident was absent due to illness and vacation, where the only witness to the accident was reluctant to cooperate with the social worker and the attorney assigned to the case, and where the attorney assigned to the case was transferred during the period for filing the claim and the claimant's file was misplaced while being transferred to the office of another attorney and the second attorney's law clerk in charge of maintaining a calendar on litigation cases did not realize the claim was one required to be filed within 90 days from the time of the accident. Spanos v Oyster Bay, 16 N.Y.2d 951, 265 N.Y.S.2d 101, 212 N.E.2d 535, 1965 N.Y. LEXIS 1107 (N.Y. 1965).

In a personal injury action against the state by a person injured while riding a bicycle on a county road, the trial court properly denied plaintiff's motion for leave to file a late claim against the county, even though plaintiff was an infant at the time of the accident, where infancy merely tolled the statute of limitations and did not automatically entitle the infant to file late claims, where the motion was not made until 27 months from the date of the accident, where plaintiff's counsel was aware long before the motion was made that the state denied that it had constructed and maintained the road in question, where plaintiff's counsel had deposed a state employee who testified that at the time of the accident the county was responsible for maintaining the road, and where the county was prejudiced by the delay. Goudie v County of Putnam, 95 A.D.2d 823, 463 N.Y.S.2d 866, 1983 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 18756 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1983).

A motion by an infant to file a late notice of claim was denied where the reason for said failure was that the attorneys could not make up their minds as to whether the infant had a good cause of action. Bivona v New York, 11 Misc. 2d 1020, 172 N.Y.S.2d 345, 1958 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3764 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1958).

A child, age 14, who was injured at municipal swimming pool, was entitled to file a late notice of claim, where notice was delayed by her attorney until receipt of a medical report. Spicer v Watertown, 19 Misc. 2d 756, 189 N.Y.S.2d 407, 1959 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3199 (N.Y. County Ct. 1959).

An extension of time for leave to file notice of claim in behalf of a 15 year old infant claimant could not be granted more than one year after happening of the accident where the only excuse for failure to serve timely notice was that claimant's attorney did not find out until after expiration of the statutory period that the premises on which the injuries were sustained were not city property but belonged to a City Housing Authority. Rentas v New York City Housing Authority, 36 Misc. 2d 301, 232 N.Y.S.2d 643, 1962 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2500 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1962).

199. —Service on wrong party

Where, following injuries sustained in a subway collision on April 19, 1957, a notice of claim was served in behalf of petitioner, 20 years old, on the New York City Comptroller within the 90-day period, but disallowed August 2, 1957, because it should have been served upon the New York City Transit Authority, the delay in service was not due to infancy of the petitioner but to mistake on the part of his counsel and leave to serve late notice of claim would not be granted four months after expiration of the 90-day period. Negrone v New York City Transit Authority, 15 A.D.2d 676, 224 N.Y.S.2d 172, 1962 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11813 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1962).

Where a 15-year-old infant was injured in a subway accident on May 30, 1961 and an attorney was immediately retained by his parents to represent him but the attorney inadvertently served notice of claim on the New York City Comptroller instead of on the Transit Authority, an extension of time for service on the latter could properly be granted, in the court's discretion, based upon claimant's disability of infancy. Pandoliano v New York City

Transit Authority, 17 A.D.2d 951, 234 N.Y.S.2d 99, 1962 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7233 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1962).

Six-year-old infant should have been permitted to serve board of education with late notice of claim for personal injuries suffered in classroom due to alleged negligence of teacher even though initial service only on city comptroller was occasioned by attorney's inability to locate address of school board. Potter v Board of Education, 43 A.D.2d 248, 350 N.Y.S.2d 671, 1974 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5998 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1974).

Where an injured claimant against a municipality was five and one-half years of age, and it was not discovered until after timely service of notice upon the Town of Hempstead that the construction work in connection with which she was injured was in an area outside the town limits, on application within the maximum period for obtaining time extensions she was granted an extension of time to file claim against the county, but a like extension could not be granted in favor of the individual claim of her guardian ad litem. Super v County of Nassau, 32 Misc. 2d 973, 223 N.Y.S.2d 2, 1961 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2153 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1961).

Where a 13-year-old infant was injured May 16, 1961 on premises owned by a City Housing Authority, and timely notice of claim was served on the Housing Authority, but the attorney who served such notice was not advised and did not discover until January, 1962, that the premises in question had been leased to a Board of Education, which was actually operating and managing the playground, the fault in serving notice on the wrong agency could not be attributed to the infant and leave should be granted to serve late notice of claim on the proper agency. Morse v Board of Education, 34 Misc. 2d 190, 227 N.Y.S.2d 528, 1962 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3520 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1962).

Where a claim appears to be honest and a municipality has had the opportunity to make its investigation within a reasonable time, the rights of an infant claimant should not be forfeited because of laches of an attorney in serving notice of his claim upon the wrong official, if action is taken within the one-year period allowed by subd. 5 of this section to file a belated notice of claim. Parker v Board of Education, 213 N.Y.S.2d 482 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1961).

Where notice of claim for injury sustained by an infant as the result of a highway excavation was timely, but erroneously, served upon the town in which the excavating work was being done, and it was not discovered until brought out in course of an examination of a witness at the instance of the town served that the excavating work was actually being done by the county, following which application was immediately made for extension of time to serve notice of claim on the county, the extension application should be granted notwithstanding contention that the error was due to inadvertence of counsel rather than to infancy of the claimant. Chiovaro v County of Nassau, 221 N.Y.S.2d 577, 1961 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3697 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1961).

200. Conduct of parent or guardian affecting infant's disability

Delay in filing notice of claim against a school district on behalf of a 13-year old infant was excusable under subd. 5 of this section and late filing could be permitted though not applied for until almost one year after the accident notwithstanding the delay in giving notice was attributable to actions of his parents and later his attorney, being nonetheless attributable to his infancy. Esslie v Central School Dist., 20 A.D.2d 748, 247 N.Y.S.2d 87, 1964 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4323 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1964).

Court should have granted application for leave to serve late notice of claim made approximately 4 months after learning that infant had lead poisoning where (1) mother averred that she had been preoccupied with her daughter's medical condition and treatment, as well as need to find different apartment to live in, and (2) county defendant had knowledge of facts forming basis of claim through its own investigation of premises. Guzman v County of Westchester, 208 A.D.2d 925, 618 N.Y.S.2d 405, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10595 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1994).

Infant was entitled to serve late notice of medical malpractice claim, since she should not be penalized for 2-year delay of her mother in seeking legal counsel and 5-year delay caused by law office failure, where defendants had possessed her medical records since time of alleged malpractice and had not been prejudiced by delay. McMillan v City of New York, 279 A.D.2d 280, 718 N.Y.S.2d 819, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 102 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2001).

201. —Inadvertence in failing to timely file

According to some decisions, an extension of time to serve notice of claim can be granted to an infant claimant, in the court's discretion, notwithstanding failure to give notice within the statutory 90-day period is due in part, at least, to neglect or ignorance on the part of the infant's parent or attorney. Galerneau v North Colonie Cent. School Dist., 7 A.D.2d 693, 179 N.Y.S.2d 144, 1958 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4350 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1958).

Motion to serve late notice of claim is denied as to injury to child where natural mother of child was aware of injury shortly after it occurred, and failed to explain reason for delay of over 5 years and 7 months before application to serve late notice of claim; claim arising out of abuse of child while in care of foster parents between November, 1982 and March, 1983 may be raised where, by time parents were informed, 90-day period had already expired, municipality was clearly aware of substance of claim within 90 days and had commenced its own investigation. Hill v County of Chemung, 112 A.D.2d 653, 491 N.Y.S.2d 853, 1985 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 56247 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1985).

In a medical malpractice action, the trial court improvidently exercised its discretion in granting plaintiffs' motion for leave to serve a late notice of claim on behalf of an infant (N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(5)) approximately 10 years after the alleged malpractice. The delay could not be said to be entirely the product of infancy; the infant's parent's lack of awareness of the possibility of a lawsuit was not a reasonable excuse for the parent's nearly five-year delay in contacting an attorney. Bucknor v New York City Health & Hosps. Corp. (Queens Hosp. Center), 44 A.D.3d 811, 844 N.Y.S.2d 100, 2007 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10783 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2007).

Mature infant, age 17, was relieved of the neglect or inadvertence of her father and of the attorney employed by him, where it appeared that the county and playland commission and their insurer knew about the alleged claim well within the 90 day period, and where there was no showing of prejudice to them resulting from delay in filing. Application of Eisman, 15 Misc. 2d 550, 182 N.Y.S.2d 284, 1958 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2275 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1958).

202. —Ignorance of statutory requirements

Where an infant claimant aged 15 years and ten months, was injured on school premises on August 28, 1958 and his father spoke to the school nurse about the accident on the following day, but neither father nor son was aware of the requirements of this section, until the father consulted an attorney on February 13, 1959, an application to extend time for service of notice of claim, made February 16, was timely and properly granted. Wenz v Board of Education, 16 A.D.2d 930, 229 N.Y.S.2d 313, 1962 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9367 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1962).

It was an improvident exercise of discretion to grant the application of a 17-year-old infant to file a notice of claim some 11 months after the cause of action accrued merely upon the allegation that neither the infant nor his father knew of the necessity for filing a claim within the statutory period of 90 days. Staub v New York, 29 A.D.2d 756, 287 N.Y.S.2d 935, 1968 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4528 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1968).

The infancy of the plaintiff justified the trial court's exercise of discretion in granting plaintiff's mother's motion for leave to serve late notices of claim on behalf of her child, notwithstanding the presence of other factors which might have supported a contrary result. However, consideration of criteria set forth in General Municipal Law § 50-e required denial of the mother's late notice of claim for loss of services where the 11-month delay, the unreported character of the event, and the total absence of any information to the respondent or any of its agents of the fact of the accident combined to confirm the possibility of prejudice to the respondent, the fact that plaintiff's mother was Spanish speaking, and arguably less aware than the average person of her legal rights, was not sufficient to overcome accumulative fact of the other factors presented. Tanco v New York City Housing Authority, 84 A.D.2d 501, 443 N.Y.S.2d 66, 1981 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 15515 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1981).

An order granting petitioners' application for leave to serve a late notice of claim against the City of New York would be reversed as a matter of discretion and petitioners' application would be denied, where the police report lacked certain information and did not furnish the City of New York with notice within the 90-day period or a reasonable time thereafter, it appeared that the City of New York would be prejudiced in maintaining a defense because of the delay, and petitioners failed to set forth valid reasons to excuse their delay in that ignorance of the statutory requirements was not a valid excuse for noncompliance nor was petitioners' inability to speak or understand English. Figueroa v New York, 92 A.D.2d 908, 460 N.Y.S.2d 119, 1983 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 17309 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1983).

Supreme court erred in granting the parents' application for leave to serve a late notice of claim, under N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(5), where: (1) the town did not acquire actual knowledge of the essential facts relating to their son's injury, (2) certain information was supplied for the first time in their reply papers, (3) they failed to demonstrate a nexus between the son's infancy and the delay; and, (4) the town would be prejudiced by the lapse since it was denied the opportunity to investigate the facts and defend itself on the merits. Perre v Town of Poughkeepsie, 300 A.D.2d 379, 752 N.Y.S.2d 68, 2002 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11975 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2002).

Mother was properly granted leave to serve a late notice of claim under N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(5) against a hospital corporation regarding its failure to perform a risk assessment for lead poisoning on her minor child because the child should not be deprived of her remedy due to her mother's ignorance of the law and the corporation was in possession of the relevant medical records, thus depriving it of a claim of prejudice due to the delay. Pearson v New York City Health & Hosps. Corp. (Harlem Hosp. Center), 43 A.D.3d 92, 840 N.Y.S.2d 25, 2007 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8185 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2007), aff'd, 10 N.Y.3d 852, 859 N.Y.S.2d 614, 889 N.E.2d 493, 2008 N.Y. LEXIS 1179 (N.Y. 2008).

Immature infant was allowed to file a late notice of claim where his failure to file timely notice resulted from his father's ignorance of the law and general attitude of temerity. Lessman v New York, 6 Misc. 2d 671, 161 N.Y.S.2d 163, 1957 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3304 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1957).

A motion by a guardian ad litem to permit filing of a notice nunc pro tunc was denied where the neglect was sought to be excused on the ground that neither the guardian nor the 16-year-old infant was familiar with the time limit and an attorney was not consulted until after the general time limit elapsed. Shopper v New York, 104 N.Y.S.2d 541, 1951 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1773 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1951).

203. —Other conduct

Leave to serve late notice of claim on a municipality with respect to injuries sustained by an infant on school premises could be granted on the ground that the delay was incident to claimant's infancy where it appeared that claimant and a witness reported the accident to the school authorities a few days after it occurred but were advised by them that the Board of Education was not subject to suit, and hence his father, relying on that statement, failed to consult an attorney until almost a year later, the application for extension of time having been made by the attorney within the one-year period. Cohen v New York, 19 A.D.2d 722, 242 N.Y.S.2d 398, 1963 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3401 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1963), aff'd, 14 N.Y.2d 659, 249 N.Y.S.2d 868, 198 N.E.2d 901, 1964 N.Y. LEXIS 1311 (N.Y. 1964).

Mother's allegations that she had been misled by city hospital doctors into believing that her daughter's condition was transient, and that she was unaware of notice of claim filing requirements because she was from Haiti and did not speak English at time medical malpractice claim accrued, were not reasonable excuses for almost 12-year delay in seeking to commence action against hospital. Janvier v New York City Health & Hosp. Corp., 162 A.D.2d 342, 556 N.Y.S.2d 907, 1990 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7750 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't), app. denied, 76 N.Y.2d 711, 563 N.Y.S.2d 62, 564 N.E.2d 672, 1990 N.Y. LEXIS 3388 (N.Y. 1990).

Excuse offered for delay in filing notice of malpractice claim against county health department was sufficient to permit court's exercise of discretion in favor of injured child where, during substantial portion of time prior to motion to serve late notice of claim, child's mother was consumed with child's serious medical problems and physical difficulties, and her own need (as single parent) to provide living for their family. McLaughlin by McLaughlin v County of Albany, 258 A.D.2d 778, 685 N.Y.S.2d 846, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1183 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1999).

An action, brought on behalf of an infant by his guardian ad litem for injuries sustained when he fell into a large depression in front of premises owned and controlled by the city of New York, is not barred when brought more than one year after the injuries were sustained where the guardian was unaware of the ownership of the property, since the guardian's laches cannot be imputed to the infant and the provisions of this section are not in the nature of a statute of limitations which runs during infancy. Application of Curtin, 92 N.Y.S.2d 624, 196 Misc. 587, 1949 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2867 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1949).

204. Applicability of infant's disability to parent's derivative action

Application of claimant for leave to amend notice of claim against city was denied where the amendment sought to add cause of action for malicious prosecution as an additional ground, since this was, in effect, interposition of a new cause of action subsequent to time limited by statute and was not within the purview of this section. Kinard v New York, 26 A.D.2d 821, 273 N.Y.S.2d 775, 1966 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3420 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1966).

With reference to the filing of a late claim against the city, the exception of infancy in the infant's action does not accrue to the benefit of the father in a derivative action. Defelice v Board of Education, 37 A.D.2d 930, 326 N.Y.S.2d 89, 1971 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3062 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1971).

Discretion which was properly exercised by trial court because of injured petitioner's infancy did not accrue to benefit of father, and his claim, arising on date he was informed of infant's blindness due to an alleged excessive intake of oxygen in an incubator, was untimely when filing was delayed for many months past 90 day period of limitations. Charalambakis v New York, 54 A.D.2d 553, 387 N.Y.S.2d 4, 1976 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13860 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1976), rev'd, 46 N.Y.2d 785, 413 N.Y.S.2d 912, 386 N.E.2d 823, 1978 N.Y. LEXIS 2471 (N.Y. 1978).

Discretion was providently exercised in allowing leave under N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(5) to serve a late notice of an infant daughter's medical malpractice claim against a county where the county had actual notice of the claim and there was no prejudice to the county in the delay. However, since the infancy toll under N.Y. C.P.L.R. 208 was personal to the daughter and did not extend to the daughter's mother's individual derivative cause of action, the supreme court improperly granted the mother leave to serve a late notice of her derivative claim against the county. Nardi v County of Nassau, 18 A.D.3d 520, 795 N.Y.S.2d 300, 2005 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5058 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2005).

The claim of an adult parent arising out of injuries sustained by his infant child, and the derivative claim of one spouse arising out of injuries sustained by the other, are not within the coverage of the extension of time provisions for serving notice of claim under this section, and the court is ordinarily powerless to extend the time for giving notice of such claims, even though it can, and does, extend time in behalf of the infant's personal claim on the ground of his infancy, or the injured spouse's personal claim on the ground of incapacity. Young v Board of Education, 79 N.Y.S.2d 206, 193 Misc. 216, 1948 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2381 (N.Y. County Ct. 1948); Application of Hector, 85 N.Y.S.2d 440, 193 Misc. 727, 1948 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3793 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1948)).

A motion to permit late filing of notice of claim could properly be granted where the notice of motion was served on defendant city one day short of expiration of a year since injury sustained by claimant as the result of malpractice in a city hospital, and it was shown that he was admitted to the hospital as the result of a severe accidental injury which, with the ensuing accident at the hospital, resulted in permanent physical and mental incapacity of the claimant followed by confinement to home and bed until shortly before the notice of motion was served. Shanahan v New York, 31 Misc. 2d 31, 219 N.Y.S.2d 418, 1961 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2815 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1961).

Although an application to file a late claim for medical malpractice would be granted with respect to an infant claimant when it was filed within one year and 90 days of the accrual of the cause of action under Gen Mun Law § 50-i(1)(a), an application to file a late claim with respect to the derivative action of the parent based upon the claimant daughter's infancy would be denied, where no showing was made concerning the reasons for the parent's failure to serve and file the notice of claim within the statutory period; the 1976 amendment to Gen Mun Law § 50-e(5) was not intended to give parents an automatic right to file late with respect to a derivative claim where the infant is granted an extension of time based upon the infancy. Manfredonio v New York City Health & Hospitals Corp., 116 Misc. 2d 652, 455 N.Y.S.2d 1010, 1982 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3936 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1982).

A parent's claim for injuries sustained by an infant child is barred by failure to serve notice of claim within the 90-day period, notwithstanding existence of discretion in the court to grant an application for delayed service of notice of claim in behalf of the infant. McGrouty v Central School Dist., 229 N.Y.S.2d 850 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1962).

205. —Parent with physical or mental disability

An extension of time to serve notice of a parent's claim for loss of services or medical expense by reason of injuries sustained by his infant child can, of course, be granted, if the parent was incapacitated during the 90-day period, as by emotional tension and mental distress brought on by his wife's condition and death following an accident, necessitating his taking over care of the household and children. Osborn v Board of Education, 5 A.D.2d 929, 172 N.Y.S.2d 453, 1958 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6468 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1958).

Where father and son sought to serve late notices of claims arising from son's injuries in gym class, father's disabling stroke could not excuse late filing, absent clarification of whether stroke occurred within 90 days following son's injuries. Lambo v Board of Education, 10 A.D.2d 810, 197 N.Y.S.2d 861, 1960 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11258 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1960).

A parent's claim with respect to injuries sustained by their infant child, as to which claim was not filed within the time limitation period of this section because of matrimonial differences between the parents, could not be filed after time in the absence of any showing of physical or mental incapacity on the part of the parents. Jacobs v New York, 35 Misc. 2d 120, 231 N.Y.S.2d 855, 1962 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3371 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1962).

206. —Parent in confinement

Order of trial court refusing permission to father to file late notice of claim for injury to child while confined in defendant's institution under subd 5 of above statute, where custody of child was not restored to plaintiff until the expiration of period of time after such injury longer than that specified in subd 1, affirmed, court stating that it did not reach or pass upon plaintiff's contention that his claim did not arise until such custody was restored and that therefore the period of subd 1 should be reckoned from the time of such restoration. Hansen v County of Monroe, 23 A.D.2d 523, 255 N.Y.S.2d 621, 1965 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5093 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1965).

207. —Miscellaneous grounds for late filing

While mother of minor injured during course of scheduled school activity was properly denied permission to serve and file late notice of claim on her allegation that she was under impression that claim could be interposed within one year of date of occurrence, late notice of claim should have been allowed on behalf of minor. Valiquette v City School Dist., 55 A.D.2d 997, 391 N.Y.S.2d 23, 1977 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10319 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1977).

Where an injured claimant against a municipality was five and one-half years of age, and it was not discovered until after timely service of notice upon the Town of Hempstead that the construction work in connection with which she was injured was in an area outside the town limits, on application within the maximum period for obtaining time extensions she was granted an extension of time to file claim against the county, but a like extension could not be granted in favor of the individual claim of her guardian ad litem. Super v County of Nassau, 32 Misc. 2d 973, 223 N.Y.S.2d 2, 1961 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2153 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1961).

208. Lack of evidence

Absence of harm or prejudice to the defendant municipality or public corporation has been a factor in some instances wherein the court has exercised its discretion to grant an extension of time to serve notice of claim on behalf of an infant or incapacitated person. Ciaffone v Board of Education, 5 A.D.2d 884, 172 N.Y.S.2d 758, 1958 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6536 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1958).

Knowledge by and lack of prejudice to the city does not constitute a sufficient basis for the granting of relief pursuant to § 50-e, subd 5 of the General Municipal Law in the absence of proof that infancy or mental or physical incapacity caused the claimant's failure to serve the notice of claim within the statutory period. Bauer v New York, 33 A.D.2d 784, 307 N.Y.S.2d 183, 1969 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2560 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1969).

City would be prejudiced by allowance of late notice of claim against it for negligence in failing to install guardrail at location of school bus accident where plaintiff's theory that guardrail would have greatly decreased or eliminated her injury was conclusory and speculative, could not reasonably have been anticipated by city, would require elaborate measurements of angles, speed, and deflections, and would depend largely on discovery of witnesses and their recall—especially because critical elements, including brick wall into which bus crashed, had changed since accident. Resto v City of New York, 240 A.D.2d 499, 658 N.Y.S.2d 416, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6067 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't), app. dismissed, 91 N.Y.2d 847, 667 N.Y.S.2d 680, 690 N.E.2d 490, 1997 N.Y. LEXIS 4067 (N.Y. 1997).

Mother whose daughter injured her finger while playing flag football should not have been granted leave to file a late notice of claim against a school district under N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(5) and N.Y. Educ. Law § 3813(2). The mother had not provided a reasonable excuse for the two-and-a-half-year delay; a report was not sufficiently specific to provide the school district with actual notice of the essential facts of the claim; because the injury had appeared to be minor, the school district could not be faulted for not investigating it; and the mother had not shown that the school district would not be substantially prejudiced by the late claim. Matter of Padovano v Massapequa Union Free School Dist., 31 A.D.3d 563, 818 N.Y.S.2d 274, 2006 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9136 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2006).

A city need not demonstrate prejudice resulting from delay in filing a notice of claim as a defense to a motion to file a late notice, since the policy underlying the imposition of the 90-day filing period, provided for in section 50-e of the General Municipal Law, is to protect the city from fraudulent and stale claims; accordingly, where a plaintiff fails to show countervailing circumstances, lack of prejudice cannot be asserted on a motion to file a late notice of claim and therefore, the motion is denied. Phillips v New York, 98 Misc. 2d 1124, 415 N.Y.S.2d 349, 1979 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2206 (N.Y. Civ. Ct. 1979).

209. Mental incapacity

Where there was no showing that claimant's age or injuries mentally or physically incapacitated her as to prevent the filing of her claim, an application to serve the notice of claim three and one-half months after the sixty day period was denied. Johnson v New York, 278 A.D. 945, 104 N.Y.S.2d 844, 1951 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5322 (N.Y. App. Div. 1951).

Where notice of claim was not served on a municipality with respect to an accident which occurred on November 2, 1960, until after expiration of the 90-day period, and the application to serve late notice was not made until November 1, 1961, and made no showing of any mental or physical incapacity on the part of the claimant, the application to serve late notice must be denied.

Rankins v New York, 18 A.D.2d 705, 236 N.Y.S.2d 378, 1962 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6268 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1962).

Claimant's showing was considered insufficient to serve as ground for late filing of notice of claim by reason of mental or physical incapacity, and such relief could not be granted in any event, where the renewed application was not made until after the one-year statutory period had expired and without leave of court to renew a prior such motion. Narciso v New York, 20 A.D.2d 647, 246 N.Y.S.2d 268, 1964 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4584 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1964).

Where there was no proof or claim that an adult plaintiff in an action against a city was mentally or physically incapacitated from filing notice of claim in her own behalf within the time limited by statute, the court had no power to grant an extension of time. McAllister v New York City Housing Authority, 21 A.D.2d 660, 249 N.Y.S.2d 805, 1964 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3774 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1964).

Upon an application for leave to serve a late notice of claim, the claimant's alleged inability to read English does not constitute mental incapacity on her part within the meaning and purview of the statute. Orioles v Long Island R. R. Co., 35 A.D.2d 668, 315 N.Y.S.2d 95, 1970 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3909 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1970).

The court may grant leave to an adult claimant to serve a notice of claim after the 90-day period only where the claimant had been mentally or physically incapacitated, and, by reason of such disability, has failed to serve a notice of claim within the time specified. The incapacity of his attorney is not one of the grounds for allowing such permission. Ostrander v Syracuse, 40 A.D.2d 622, 336 N.Y.S.2d 558, 1972 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3907 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1972), aff'd, 33 N.Y.2d 960, 353 N.Y.S.2d 732, 309 N.E.2d 132, 1974 N.Y. LEXIS 1751 (N.Y. 1974).

In considering whether to grant discretionary leave to serve late notice of claim on ground that claimant's failure to serve notice within time specified was due to mental or physical incapacity, careful analysis must be given to quality of proof respecting mental incapacity and the prejudice to the municipality; if likelihood of prejudice is great, proof of mental incapacity must be strong to overcome the statutory shield and vice versa. Prude v County of Erie, 47 A.D.2d 111, 364 N.Y.S.2d 643, 1975 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8722 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1975).

Plaintiff's cursory allegation of "shock" was insufficient basis to justify 9-month delay in service of notice of claim; thus, it was improper to grant application for leave to file late notice of claim pursuant to CLS Gen Mun § 50-e(5). Munnerlyn v City of New York, 203 A.D.2d 437, 610 N.Y.S.2d 322, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3991 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1994).

Because evidence showed that the plaintiff was capable of protecting the plaintiff's legal rights, and because the statement which the plaintiff offered from a doctor when the plaintiff filed a motion for leave to serve a late notice of claim was insufficient to raise the issue of whether the plaintiff's medical condition prevented the plaintiff from filing a timely claim, the trial court acted properly by concluding that the plaintiff had not filed a timely notice of claim and dismissing the plaintiff's lawsuit on that basis. Burgos v City of New York, 294 A.D.2d 177, 742 N.Y.S.2d 39, 2002 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4994 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2002).

210. —As grounds for late filing

In a negligence action against municipal defendants in which plaintiff sought permission to file a late notice of claim, the weight of the evidence supported the determination that plaintiff was unable to protect her legal rights, was therefore entitled to file a late notice of claim, where the uncontradicted testimony from plaintiff's psychiatrist was that she suffered a major depressive disorder more serious than a neurosis, as a result of which she lacked an overall ability to function and did not know what to do. Barnes v County of Onondaga, 65 N.Y.2d 664, 491 N.Y.S.2d 613, 481 N.E.2d 245, 1985 N.Y. LEXIS 14773 (N.Y. 1985).

An adequate showing of either mental or physical incapacity of the claimant during the 90-day (formerly 60-day) period for serving notice of claim after the claim arises is sufficient to warrant the court, in its discretion, in granting an extension of time for service, and the extension should ordinarily be granted in such instances. Ervay v Ithaca, 274 A.D. 1085, 86 N.Y.S.2d 293, 1949 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6159 (N.Y. App. Div. 1949).

Claimant's physical and mental disability, as well as failure of police department and county hospital to promptly furnish claimant with records containing evidentiary matter upon which claim is based, provide grounds for late filing of claim where it is clear that city against which claim is filed acquired actual knowledge of essential underlying facts by virtue of police complaint and where city has failed to show that it has been prejudiced by delay in serving formal notice of claim. Mazzilli v New York, 115 A.D.2d 604, 496 N.Y.S.2d 266, 1985 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 55026 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1985).

In medical malpractice action against city involving prenatal, delivery and post-delivery care, Supreme Court did not abuse its discretion in granting motion of mentally impaired infant plaintiff to deem his notice of claim timely filed nunc pro tunc, although notice was not served until 13 years after tortious conduct occurred, since infancy and mental incapacity are among criteria to be considered under CLS Gen Mun § 50-e(5) for discretionary extension of time to serve notice of claim. Trejo v New York, 156 A.D.2d 164, 548 N.Y.S.2d 208, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 15294 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1989).

Petitioner's alleged inability to concentrate in order to make decisions following his employment termination, and his lack of awareness of notice requirement, were insufficient to warrant granting leave to serve late notice of claim under CLS Gen Mun § 50-e. Plante v County of Rensselaer, 203 A.D.2d 835, 611 N.Y.S.2d 353, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4458 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1994).

211. —Age as factor

Where there was no showing that claimant's age or injuries mentally or physically incapacitated her as to prevent the filing of her claim, an application to serve the notice of claim three and one-half months after the sixty day period was denied. Johnson v New York, 278 A.D. 945, 104 N.Y.S.2d 844, 1951 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5322 (N.Y. App. Div. 1951).

In an action for leave to serve a late notice of claim against the city, leave would be granted to serve the notice ten months after the accident in question where the injured claimant, who was 86 years old at the time of the accident, and who had substantially impaired memory, had suffered a serious injury that required substantial hospital and nursing home care, and where the city had actual notice of the accident from the police and emergency clinic reports. Trakis v New York, 92 A.D.2d 569, 459 N.Y.S.2d 322, 1983 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 16800 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1983).

212. —Length of medical confinement

Claimant was incapable of presenting her claim within the statutory 90-day period in view of her confinement in a hospital for 175 days following the accident, the large number of drugs given to her, and the physical and emotional shock she experienced involving a double leg amputation. Millington v New York City Transit Authority, 33 A.D.2d 737, 305 N.Y.S.2d 870, 1969 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2731 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1969).

Petitioner was properly allowed to file a late notice of claim under evidence that the injury occurred on August 30, 1969 as a result of which she suffered brain damage resulting in partial paralysis; was in a hospital for treatment thereof and rehabilitation and had suffered serious mental limitations until November 10, 1969 when she was sent home for continued rehabilitation; that she was seen by her doctor on January 28, 1970, and the latter reported that she as of that date was progressing slowly but satisfactorily and that she still had significant problems with attention span, concentration and learning as to which there would probably be further recovery; that on February 5, 1970, she attended a motor vehicle hearing accompanied by an attorney for the insurer; that it appeared at the hearing she had no memory of the accident and exhibited a limitation of mental response; that on or about March 5, 1970 she retained an attorney to represent her; and that on April 4, 1970, through her attorney, she made a motion for leave to file a late notice of claim. Hurd v County of Allegany, 39 A.D.2d 499, 336 N.Y.S.2d 952, 1972 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3609 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1972).

A motion to permit late filing of notice of claim could properly be granted where the notice of motion was served on defendant city one day short of expiration of a year since injury sustained by claimant as the result of malpractice in a city hospital, and it was shown that he was admitted to the hospital as the result of a severe accidental injury which, with the ensuing accident at the hospital, resulted in permanent physical and mental incapacity of the claimant followed by confinement to home and bed until shortly before the notice of motion was served. Shanahan v New York, 31 Misc. 2d 31, 219 N.Y.S.2d 418, 1961 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2815 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1961).

Constant hospitalization, numerous operations, mental breakdown, and the suffering of severe pain, constitute sufficient excuse for an extension of time in filing a claim against a city after the lapse of the 60 day period. Figuerca v New York, 106 N.Y.S.2d 430, 1951 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2089 (N.Y. Sup. Ct.), aff'd, 279 A.D. 771, 109 N.Y.S.2d 126, 1951 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3720 (N.Y. App. Div. 1951).

213. —Lapse of memory

Claimant swore that he had several lapses of memory so that he could not remember all facts of accident. His physician merely said that he suffered a lapse of memory immediately following the accident and had intermediate recurrences since. Held: this was far short of a prima facie showing that a failure to file a claim on time was due to the mental or physical incapacity of the claimant. Application of Herrans, 7 A.D.2d 709, 180 N.Y.S.2d 82, 1958 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4052 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1958).

Petitioner was properly allowed to file a late notice of claim under evidence that the injury occurred on August 30, 1969 as a result of which she suffered brain damage resulting in partial paralysis; was in a hospital for treatment thereof and rehabilitation and had suffered serious mental limitations until November 10, 1969 when she was sent home for continued rehabilitation; that she was seen by her doctor on January 28, 1970, and the latter reported that she as of that date was progressing slowly but satisfactorily and that she still had significant problems with attention span, concentration and learning as to which there would probably be further recovery; that on February 5, 1970, she attended a motor vehicle hearing accompanied by an attorney for the insurer; that it appeared at the hearing she had no memory of the accident and exhibited a limitation of mental response; that on or about March 5, 1970 she retained an attorney to represent her; and that on April 4, 1970, through her attorney, she made a motion for leave to file a late notice of claim. Hurd v County of Allegany, 39 A.D.2d 499, 336 N.Y.S.2d 952, 1972 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3609 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1972).

High school student was entitled to serve late notice of claim against village pursuant to CLS Gen Mun § 50-e(5) where (1) student alleged that she was pulled over for speeding by village police officer, that he told her to follow him to remote parking lot where he raped her, and that she became pregnant, left school, had baby and gave baby up for adoption, (2) paternity test indicated 99.9 percent probability that officer was father of baby, (3) psychiatric social worker asserted that student suffered post traumatic stress disorder and was therefore unable to register complaint in timely manner, and (4) student alleged that village was negligent in hiring officer under circumstances in which it knew or should have known that he was prone to commit such acts. Howe v Trumansburg, 169 A.D.2d 1018, 565 N.Y.S.2d 298, 1991 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 889 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1991).

Court did not abuse its discretion under CLS Gen Mun § 50-e(5) in granting claimant's application for leave to file late notice of claim although motion was made between 70 to 101 days after expiration of 90-day statutory period where (1) motion was made within 6 months of accrual of claim and gave notice to respondent "within a reasonable time" following expiration of 90-day period as contemplated by statute, (2) claimant persuasively contended that she was incapacitated by accident-induced amnesia from protecting her legal interests or pursuing claim for nearly 90 days following accident, (3) claimant lacked knowledge of essential facts underlying claim until she retained attorney and he investigated, and (4) respondent did not demonstrate prejudice. Downey v Macedon Center Volunteer Fire Dep't, 179 A.D.2d 999, 579 N.Y.S.2d 507, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2323 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1992).

The phrasing of this section is such as to absolutely preclude a court from granting an extension of time for service of notice of claim on a municipality, after expiration of the one-year period, notwithstanding plaintiff was actually in a hospital under sedation by reason of the injuries sustained and suffering from complete amnesia rendering him totally unable to file any notice of claim or impart the necessary information to anyone for making claim until two years after the accident occurred. Corso v New York, 42 Misc. 2d 677, 248 N.Y.S.2d 816, 1964 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1950 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1964).

214. —Injuries sufficient to warrant late filing

If the claimant became irrational, confused, or mentally disturbed and disordered, as a result of the occurrence or of injuries sustained, and so remained during the normal period for giving notice of claim, or the greater part thereof, an application for extension of time may, and ordinarily should, be granted. Application of Colehammer, 276 A.D. 809, 93 N.Y.S.2d 499, 1949 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3386 (N.Y. App. Div. 1949).

Claimant was incapable of presenting her claim within the statutory 90-day period in view of her confinement in a hospital for 175 days following the accident, the large number of drugs given to her, and the physical and emotional shock she experienced involving a double leg amputation. Millington v New York City Transit Authority, 33 A.D.2d 737, 305 N.Y.S.2d 870, 1969 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2731 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1969).

Where county had notice at time of the incident in which radiator cover in county courthouse fell on claimant and fractured his ankle and where, though committee or guardian had not been appointed, he suffered a 100% total and permanent disability as a schizophrenic, he was characterized by his attorney as acting "peculiar" and was described as "mentally ill" by his attending physician, denial of motion for permission to serve late notice of claim against county shortly after expiration of the 90-day period on theory that failure to file notice had been due to mental incapacity was abuse of discretion. Prude v County of Erie, 47 A.D.2d 111, 364 N.Y.S.2d 643, 1975 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8722 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1975).

Minor plaintiff was properly granted leave to serve late notice of claim against city housing authority one year after she was raped in apartment owned by authority where authority had actual notice of rape based on extensive investigation by police and contemporaneous news account, and plaintiff offered report of psychologist who had interviewed her 17 months after incident and who opined that she was just beginning to recover from traumatic stress disorder that had "incapacitated her emotionally and mentally for well over a year." Jacqueline G. v New York City Housing Authority, 181 A.D.2d 644, 582 N.Y.S.2d 109, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5205 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1992).

Psychologist's report stating that petitioner "suffered from a particularly negative, overwhelming and intensely disruptive event which has...interfered with her ability to perform routine, daily tasks," and petitioner's affidavit, which stated that she was unable to talk about sexual assault until recently, were sufficient to show her inability to seek timely legal advice and justify short delay in filing notice of claim. Hilda B. v New York City Hous. Auth., 224 A.D.2d 304, 638 N.Y.S.2d 36, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1247 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1996).

Developmentally-disabled, 19-year-old person who alleged that he was sexually assaulted by a person who worked for a consortium that provided community-based recreational programs to individuals with disabilities reported the incident shortly after it happened and, although he did not file his petition for leave to serve a late notice of claim until more than two months after the 90-day period prescribed by N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(1)(a) expired, the trial court did not abuse its discretion by granting the petition. Tumm v Town of Eastchester, 8 A.D.3d 581, 779 N.Y.S.2d 217, 2004 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8691 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2004).

An application for extension of time to file notice of claim against a county, made within six months after the cause of action arose, though after expiration of the 90-day period, was granted in exercise of the court's discretion under subd. 5 of this section upon a physician's affidavit that plaintiff was mentally incapacitated during the 90-day period to such extent as to be incoherent, irrational, and in an unbalanced state of mind, and was finally put in a strait jacket by hospital authorities. Zaslowsky v Nassau County Public General Hospital, 27 Misc. 2d 339, 211 N.Y.S.2d 545, 1960 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1986 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1960).

A mentally incompetent person cannot be held responsible for delay in her actions, and where a case of mental incompetency is made out during the 90-day period for filing notice of claim under this section, subd. 5 permits the court, in its discretion, to grant leave to serve a belated notice of claim. Zaslowsky v Nassau County Public General Hospital, 27 Misc. 2d 339, 211 N.Y.S.2d 545, 1960 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1986 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1960).

A motion to permit late filing of notice of claim could properly be granted where the notice of motion was served on defendant city one day short of expiration of a year since injury sustained by claimant as the result of malpractice in a city hospital, and it was shown that he was admitted to the hospital as the result of a severe accidental injury which, with the ensuing accident at the hospital, resulted in permanent physical and mental incapacity of the claimant followed by confinement to home and bed until shortly before the notice of motion was served. Shanahan v New York, 31 Misc. 2d 31, 219 N.Y.S.2d 418, 1961 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2815 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1961).

Constant hospitalization, numerous operations, mental breakdown, and the suffering of severe pain, constitute sufficient excuse for an extension of time in filing a claim against a city after the lapse of the 60 day period. Figuerca v New York, 106 N.Y.S.2d 430, 1951 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2089 (N.Y. Sup. Ct.), aff'd, 279 A.D. 771, 109 N.Y.S.2d 126, 1951 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3720 (N.Y. App. Div. 1951).

Motion by plaintiff injured in auto accident to file late notice of claim was granted even though defendant city lacked actual knowledge of all the facts constituting the claim where the plaintiff was in need of constant medical treatment, required attendant care for a minimum of 12 hours a day, and was suffering from severe emotional depression, and where the city would not be substantially prejudiced because of the delay. Palazzo v New York, 444 F. Supp. 1089, 1978 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 20257 (E.D.N.Y. 1978).

215. —Injuries insufficient to warrant late filing

Although tragic loss of child is emotionally upsetting and may cause depression, without further factual proof, it does not rise to level of mental incapacity which would excuse late filing of claim; brief general statement without specifics, by claimant's employer's medical director, briefly reporting that claimant was distressed and grieving over death and that she was referred to counselor and psychiatrist for treatment unsupported by statement as to whether treatment was ever rendered and if so what it consisted of and diagnosis is insufficient to conclude that claimant was mentally incapacitated. Bullard v New York, 118 A.D.2d 447, 499 N.Y.S.2d 880, 1986 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 54337 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1986).

Claimant's unsubstantiated allegations of physical and psychological trauma resulting from robbery and sexual assault which allegedly occurred in her apartment did not provide reasonable excuse for her 4-month delay in serving notice of claim. Vargas v New York City Hous. Auth., 232 A.D.2d 263, 648 N.Y.S.2d 546, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10295 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1996), app. denied, 89 N.Y.2d 817, 659 N.Y.S.2d 858, 681 N.E.2d 1305, 1997 N.Y. LEXIS 1311 (N.Y. 1997).

Court did not abuse discretion in refusing to permit late notice of claim by teacher who, after assault by student, asserted that her injury impaired her ability to make decisions regarding her legal rights, since she had been able to travel to Italy one month after incident, she offered no evidence that defendant had acquired actual knowledge of incident within reasonable time after its occurrence, and aide who had been assigned to assist student was not employee of defendant. Howard v Albany County Dep't of Soc. Servs., 241 A.D.2d 910, 660 N.Y.S.2d 485, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8158 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1997).

Tenant who was scalded by excessively hot water while filling tub for bath was not excused from filing timely notice of claim against city housing authority, even though he asserted incapacity due to mental and physical distress arising from scalding, where his notice of claim was signed and notarized within 90-day statutory filing period and was product of discussion between tenant and counsel while tenant was at counsel's office for unrelated matter, and tenant's report to building maintenance department that water running from his faucets was excessively hot was insufficient to impart to housing authority actual knowledge of essential facts of his claim. Dickerson v New York City Hous. Auth., 245 A.D.2d 371, 664 N.Y.S.2d 834, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12770 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1997).

Defendants were entitled to summary judgment dismissing legal malpractice action, because she did not show that she would have succeeded in obtaining leave of court to assert late notice of underlying claim against New York City Housing Authority involving her rape on its property, where (1) her trial testimony suggested that she was not, as she claimed, suffering from debilitating depression after incident that prevented her from seeking prompt legal advice, and (2) her psychiatrist's prior statements regarding plaintiff's recovery from incident, including her lack of need for further counseling, were inconsistent with his present opinion that she was suffering from "Silent Rape Reaction," which was variant of rape trauma syndrome. F.P. v Herstic, 263 A.D.2d 393, 693 N.Y.S.2d 123, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7990 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1999).

Injuries in a bus accident, not amounting to such mental or physical disability as would cause the failure to serve notice of claim under this section, consultations with specialists, an accident to injured party's attorney, and uncertainty as to extent of injuries, are not sufficient excuse for failure to file notice of claim within the required time limit, sub 2 of this section permitting the setting out of injuries so far as then practicable, and sub 6 permitting later amendment. White v New York, 87 N.Y.S.2d 446, 194 Misc. 562, 1949 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1938 (N.Y. Sup. Ct.), app. dismissed, 276 A.D. 765, 93 N.Y.S.2d 151, 1949 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3247 (N.Y. App. Div. 1949).

216. Physical incapacity

Inability to speak English is not "physical incapacity" within the meaning of General Municipal Law § 50-e, subd 5. Defelice v Board of Education, 37 A.D.2d 930, 326 N.Y.S.2d 89, 1971 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3062 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1971).

Court properly denied petitioners' application to file late notice of medical malpractice claim on ground that county hospital would be prejudiced in its defense where petitioners failed to submit medical affidavit by physician or otherwise substantiate their claim that 8-month delay in service was due to physical incapacity, and incident report prepared by hospital's staff was devoid of any fact that could be construed as providing hospital with actual knowledge of potential malpractice claim. Mandia v County of Westchester, 162 A.D.2d 217, 556 N.Y.S.2d 868, 1990 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7267 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1990).

In proceeding against city hospital in which petitioner sought to file late notice of claim, court erred by requiring petitioner to show that he was physically incapacitated during requisite 90 days for filing notice of claim under CLS Gen Mun § 50-e, since petitioner did not claim that he was physically incapacitated from filing notice; proof of physical incapacity is not prerequisite to obtaining extension of time of file. Ruiz v New York City Health & Hosp. Corp., 165 A.D.2d 75, 566 N.Y.S.2d 217, 1991 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1250 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1991).

Court did not improvidently exercise its discretion in granting petitioner's application under CLS Gen Mun § 50-e(5) for leave to serve late notice of claim for injuries sustained in shooting inside apartment building owned by city housing authority, where petitioner's submissions, which included surgical report, indicated that he was seriously wounded as result of shooting, underwent emergency surgery, and was hospitalized for prolonged period, and authority, which conducted investigation into shooting, did not deny petitioner's claim that apartment building had no locks on its entrance doors for period of 2 years prior to incident. Townsend v New York City Hous. Auth., 194 A.D.2d 795, 599 N.Y.S.2d 833, 1993 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6671 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1993).

Court did not improvidently exercise its discretion in granting petitioner leave to file late notice of claim against county where petitioner was prevented from seeking out aid of counsel and having notice of claim served timely by reason of severity of injuries he sustained in accident complained of, in that extensiveness of injuries and various therapies which were needed caused him to be more concerned with his own emotional and physical health than with maintaining action to receive compensation. In re Ramunno, 202 A.D.2d 511, 609 N.Y.S.2d 17, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2442 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1994).

Plaintiffs were improperly granted leave to serve late notice of claim against New York City Housing Authority, where they contended that injured plaintiff was so severely injured that he was unable to seek legal counsel at earlier time, but they did not set forth medical records or physician's sworn statement in support of their claim. Robertson v New York City Hous. Auth., 237 A.D.2d 501, 655 N.Y.S.2d 572, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2832 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't), app. dismissed, 90 N.Y.2d 844, 660 N.Y.S.2d 870, 683 N.E.2d 776, 1997 N.Y. LEXIS 1580 (N.Y. 1997).

Compliance with New York's notice-of-claim law and Emergency Medical Treatment and Active Labor Act (EMTALA; 42 USCS § 1395dd(f)) was not "physical impossibility" where plaintiff did not avail herself of opportunity to apply for extension. Hardy v New York City Health & Hosps. Corp., 164 F.3d 789, 1999 U.S. App. LEXIS 567 (2d Cir. N.Y. 1999).

217. —As ground for late filing

An adequate showing of either mental or physical incapacity of the claimant during the 90-day (formerly 60-day) period for serving notice of claim after the claim arises is sufficient to warrant the court, in its discretion, in granting an extension of time for service, and the extension should ordinarily be granted in such instances. Ervay v Ithaca, 274 A.D. 1085, 86 N.Y.S.2d 293, 1949 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6159 (N.Y. App. Div. 1949).

Where there was no showing that claimant's age or injuries mentally or physically incapacitated her as to prevent the filing of her claim, an application to serve the notice of claim three and one-half months after the sixty day period was denied. Johnson v New York, 278 A.D. 945, 104 N.Y.S.2d 844, 1951 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5322 (N.Y. App. Div. 1951).

Where notice of claim was not served on a municipality with respect to an accident which occurred on November 2, 1960, until after expiration of the 90-day period, and the application to serve late notice was not made until November 1, 1961, and made no showing of any mental or physical incapacity on the part of the claimant, the application to serve late notice must be denied. Rankins v New York, 18 A.D.2d 705, 236 N.Y.S.2d 378, 1962 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6268 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1962).

Claimant's showing was considered insufficient to serve as ground for late filing of notice of claim by reason of mental or physical incapacity, and such relief could not be granted in any event, where the renewed application was not made until after the one-year statutory period had expired and without leave of court to renew a prior such motion. Narciso v New York, 20 A.D.2d 647, 246 N.Y.S.2d 268, 1964 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4584 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1964).

An application for leave to serve late notice of claim for damages for personal injuries upon a town was erroneously granted where it failed to show that failure to make timely service was due to mental or physical incapacity of the claimant. Lotrecchiano v Carmel, 22 A.D.2d 697, 253 N.Y.S.2d 774, 1964 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3079 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1964).

Notice of claim which was not filed until three days after expiration of the 90 day period prescribed by statute was not timely filed where the delay was not attributable to the claimant's physical condition. Lawrence v New York City Transit Authority, 31 A.D.2d 514, 294 N.Y.S.2d 644, 294 N.Y.S.2d 664, 1968 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2957 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1968), aff'd, 27 N.Y.2d 546, 313 N.Y.S.2d 120, 261 N.E.2d 262, 1970 N.Y. LEXIS 1279 (N.Y. 1970).

Where the facts indicated that petitioner was physically incapacitated within the intendment of subd 5 of § 50-e of the General Municipal Law, discretion should have been exercised to excuse the late filing of the notice of claim. Driskell v New York, 31 A.D.2d 541, 295 N.Y.S.2d 175, 1968 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2939 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1968).

Permission to file late claim denied where there was no showing that the failure to file timely notices was due to physical incapacity and no excuse was offered for the failure of the plaintiff-husband to file a notice within the prescribed period. Sobelman v New York, 33 A.D.2d 671, 305 N.Y.S.2d 33, 1969 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2833 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1969).

Petitioner would be granted leave to serve a late notice of claim pursuant to Gen Mun Law § 50-e where the lateness in filing was due, at least in part, from her injuries and general physical condition, one respondent received actual notice the day after the accident and the other respondent received notice of the accident within 19 days of the expiration of the 90-day period. In re Chatman, 101 A.D.2d 838, 475 N.Y.S.2d 500, 1984 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 18507 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1984).

Plaintiff's motion to renew and reargue his motion for leave to file late notice of claim against New York City Housing Authority should be granted where plaintiff demonstrated physical incapacitation sufficient to excuse delay of only 22 days beyond statutory 90 days, stairway defect of which plaintiff complained was static condition, city was unable to show prejudice, and plaintiff's injuries appeared to be serious. Williams v New York City Housing Authority, 125 A.D.2d 258, 509 N.Y.S.2d 544, 1986 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 62534 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1986).

Trial court erred in denying an injured party's motion pursuant to N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(5) to serve a late notice of claim on a city in a personal injury action; the injured party presented an acceptable excuse based on the injured party's physical incapacity, and the city acquired knowledge of the essential facts of the claim within a reasonable time after the accident, and failed to show any prejudice to its defense based on the relatively short delay in filing the notice of claim. Dubowy v City of New York, 305 A.D.2d 320, 759 N.Y.S.2d 325, 2003 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6111 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2003).

Court did not abuse its discretion in granting a guardian's application to file a late notice of claim, pursuant to N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(5), in a personal injury action because when the decedent fell from a hole in the third floor of a commercial building he never regained consciousness, making the extent of his injuries not immediately ascertainable. Tara V. v County of Otsego, 12 A.D.3d 984, 785 N.Y.S.2d 553, 2004 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 14310 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2004).

Denial of a motion for leave to serve a late notice of claim against a city pursuant to N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(5) was proper because petitioner's allegation that he was bedridden after his hospitalization for the injuries, and thus could not retain counsel and serve a notice until 17 days after the 90-day period expired, was not supported by the evidence, the record did not contain evidence that the city was apprised of petitioner's claim other than by the late notice of claim itself, and the late notice of claim did not provide sufficient notice of the essential facts of the claim within 90 days or soon thereafter, thus failing to meet the burden of demonstrating that the city was provided with timely knowledge of the facts of the claim and was not significantly prejudiced by the delay; the notice of claim did not specify the precise location in the basement where the accident occurred, and did not describe how the accident occurred, what petitioner was doing at the time, who employed petitioner, or if any witnesses were present. Additionally, petitioner asserted no facts to support the contention that the city was not prejudiced by the delay in the investigation and defense of the claim Matter of Kumar v City of New York, 52 A.D.3d 517, 860 N.Y.S.2d 144, 2008 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4939 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2008).

Where the facts established that applicant was physically incapacitated beyond the statutory period, and was unable to investigate, prepare and file his claim or secure someone to do it, the court exercised its discretion and permitted the filing of a late claim. Christian v Herkimer, 148 N.Y.S.2d 384, 208 Misc. 814, 1955 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3918 (N.Y. County Ct. 1955), aff'd, 2 A.D.2d 648, 151 N.Y.S.2d 629, 1956 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5515 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1956).

218. —Retention of counsel

Filing of late claim permitted under evidence that injured party had been physically and mentally disabled since time of accident, even though the claimant's wife was under no disability and even though an attorney was acting on the matter within the 90-day time for filing the notice of claim. Reynolds v Greece Cent. School Dist., 36 A.D.2d 1020, 321 N.Y.S.2d 668, 1971 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4030 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't), app. denied, 29 N.Y.2d 485, 325 N.Y.S.2d 1025, 274 N.E.2d 753, 1971 N.Y. LEXIS 2210 (N.Y. 1971).

The court may grant leave to an adult claimant to serve a notice of claim after the 90-day period only where the claimant had been mentally or physically incapacitated, and, by reason of such disability, has failed to serve a notice of claim within the time specified. The incapacity of his attorney is not one of the grounds for allowing such permission. Ostrander v Syracuse, 40 A.D.2d 622, 336 N.Y.S.2d 558, 1972 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3907 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1972), aff'd, 33 N.Y.2d 960, 353 N.Y.S.2d 732, 309 N.E.2d 132, 1974 N.Y. LEXIS 1751 (N.Y. 1974).

Court properly denied motorcycle accident victim's application to serve late notice of claim, despite assertions that he was confined to his home for recuperation and could not promptly ascertain ownership of property where accident occurred, where victim had retained counsel before expiration of 90-day period yet had taken no action to ascertain owner until over 3 months after expiration, town and county did not acquire knowledge of accident's location until service of papers for late notice over 7 months after expiration, and victim offered only bare assertion that allegedly defective condition had not changed. In re Cali, 132 A.D.2d 555, 517 N.Y.S.2d 548, 1987 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 49079 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1987).

It was improper to grant petitioner's application for leave to serve late notice of claim one year after accident, even if she was incapacitated due to her injuries, where she failed to offer any excuse for 5-month delay after she obtained counsel, and she failed to show that county received actual notice within 90 days after claim arose or reasonable time thereafter. Gillum v County of Nassau, 284 A.D.2d 533, 726 N.Y.S.2d 458, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6787 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't), app. denied, 97 N.Y.2d 604, 737 N.Y.S.2d 52, 762 N.E.2d 930, 2001 N.Y. LEXIS 3432 (N.Y. 2001).

219. —Medical documentation

Petitioner's physical disability is not required to be reason for delay in order to be considered as element bearing on court's determination of application to serve late notice of claim under CLS Gen Mun § 50-e. In re Cali, 132 A.D.2d 555, 517 N.Y.S.2d 548, 1987 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 49079 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1987).

Petitioner failed to adequately explain his delay in filing application for leave to serve late notice of claim against municipality approximately 14 months after date of accident where he failed to provide any medical records, and medical affidavit submitted was inadequate in that it accounted for only 2 months of delay. Perry v New York, 133 A.D.2d 692, 519 N.Y.S.2d 862, 1987 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 51728 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1987).

Tenant would not be granted leave to file late notice of claim against New York City Housing Authority where (1) on June 30, tenant allegedly tripped over debris left in stairway by another tenant who was moving out, (2) tenant filed accident report dated September 6 which failed to list date and time of incident, (3) tenant moved for leave to file late notice on November 28 and asserted in affidavit that she had reported facts of incident to named employee of housing authority who had stated that they would pay medical expenses, and (4) affidavit of named employee of housing authority stated that she had made no such statement; tenant offered no reasonable excuse for failure to file timely notice, notwithstanding her claim of physical incapacitation, since no medical documentation was submitted, and housing authority would suffer substantial prejudice from delay since debris left by another tenant would be highly transitory condition. Green v New York City Housing Authority, 180 A.D.2d 586, 580 N.Y.S.2d 743, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2928 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1992).

Court properly denied plaintiff leave to serve late notice of claim against city housing authority on motion for reargument of earlier motion for same relief, despite contention that plaintiff failed to serve timely notice because he was disabled, where (1) at time of original application for leave to serve, hospital records related to alleged disability were in existence, but plaintiff failed to offer explanation regarding why they were not submitted with original application, and (2) plaintiff knew or should have known that statement of physician was essential to claim that he was disabled, but he failed to offer excuse for not submitting such statement with original application. Matthews v New York City Hous. Auth., 210 A.D.2d 205, 620 N.Y.S.2d 268, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12342 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1994).

Court properly denied plaintiff's motion for leave to serve late notice of claim on city since (1) her lack of fluency in English and ignorance of law were not acceptable excuses for failure to serve timely notice of claim, and (2) her alleged incapacity due to injuries sustained in accident was insufficient in absence of supporting medical evidence. Turkenitz v City of New York, 213 A.D.2d 266, 624 N.Y.S.2d 127, 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3008 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1995).

Petitioner's excuse for not filing timely notice of claim—that he did not realize seriousness of his injury after 90-day period had expired and was thereafter physically incapacitated from doing so until he made instant motion to serve late notice of claim some 6 ½ months after incident—could not be accepted absent supporting medical documentation. Moran v New York City Hous. Auth., 224 A.D.2d 257, 637 N.Y.S.2d 698, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 997 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1996).

220. —Ability to pursue claim

Where the accident in which claimant sustained injuries occurred July 28, 1961, and notice of claim was not served until July 13, 1962, physical incapacity of claimant would not serve as ground for recognition of late service where it merely appeared that claimant was hospitalized from date of the accident until October 13, 1961, thereafter was in a nursing home until November 30, 1961 but thereafter was able to visit the scene of the accident with his attorney and make further investigations. Smith v New York City Transit Authority, 18 A.D.2d 10, 238 N.Y.S.2d 250, 1963 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4288 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1963).

Failure to prove that claimant was unable to consult counsel due to physical incapacity was grounds for denial of application for leave to file a claim nunc pro tunc as plaintiff was discharged from the hospital in good condition and practically asymptomatic and had last seen a physician well before the time for filing expired. Bregman v New York City Transit Authority, 34 A.D.2d 929, 312 N.Y.S.2d 734, 1970 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4446 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1970), aff'd, 28 N.Y.2d 679, 320 N.Y.S.2d 539, 269 N.E.2d 205, 1971 N.Y. LEXIS 1474 (N.Y. 1971).

Court properly denied injured motorcyclist's application to file late notice of claim under CLS Gen Mun § 50-e, even though motorcyclist's physician stated in affidavit that he had been hospitalized, required open reduction and internal fixation of his ankle, suffered great pain, and "for many weeks" was on heavy medication, since (1) motorcyclist claimed in his own affidavit that he was hospitalized for approximately one week, and (2) physician's allegations failed to explain with any particularity extent of delay, which exceeded 4 months, and did not demonstrate why motorcyclist was prevented from filing timely notice. Frick v Incorporated Village of Hempstead, 192 A.D.2d 605, 595 N.Y.S.2d 830, 1993 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3571 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1993).

Petitioner's alleged physical incapacity was insufficient excuse to warrant late filing of notice of claim against city where Workers' Compensation Board "Attending Doctor's Report" established only that petitioner was disabled from employment, not incapacitated to extent that he could not pursue his legal remedies against city, and petitioner, during period of delay, pursued his personal injury claim against abutting landowner by retaining counsel, engaging in settlement negotiations with landowner's insurance company, and later commencing action. Jensen v City of Saratoga Springs, 203 A.D.2d 863, 611 N.Y.S.2d 330, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4364 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1994).

Claimant failed to provide reasonable excuse for her delay in serving city with notice of claim where her contention that she was unable to file timely notice of claim "[d]ue to her extensive injury and severe physical disability" was negated where she filed timely notice of claim against board of education. Resto v City of New York, 240 A.D.2d 499, 658 N.Y.S.2d 416, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6067 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't), app. dismissed, 91 N.Y.2d 847, 667 N.Y.S.2d 680, 690 N.E.2d 490, 1997 N.Y. LEXIS 4067 (N.Y. 1997).

Fact that petitioner returned to accident site 6 days after accident, took photographs, brought photographs to police station, and met with filled out police reports, demonstrated that he was not suffering from any physical disability that prevented him from with consulting with attorney in timely fashion so as to excuse his delay in filing notice of claim. Gilliam v City of New York, 250 A.D.2d 680, 673 N.Y.S.2d 172, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5551 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1998).

Where the facts established that applicant was physically incapacitated beyond the statutory period, and was unable to investigate, prepare and file his claim or secure someone to do it, the court exercised its discretion and permitted the filing of a late claim. Christian v Herkimer, 148 N.Y.S.2d 384, 208 Misc. 814, 1955 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3918 (N.Y. County Ct. 1955), aff'd, 2 A.D.2d 648, 151 N.Y.S.2d 629, 1956 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5515 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1956).

221. —Age as factor

A motion, entered 39 days after the expiration of the 60-day limitation period by a 60-year-old claimant who fractured her wrist as the result of a fall on an icy sidewalk, for leave to serve notice within a reasonable time, pursuant to subd. 5 of this section, was improperly granted where there was no showing that the claimant's age or injuries physically incapacitated her or even required her to remain at home during the 60-day limitation period so as to prevent her from serving a notice of claim, sworn to by her or by someone in her behalf. Sullivan v Babylon, 277 A.D. 791, 97 N.Y.S.2d 240, 1950 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3334 (N.Y. App. Div. 1950), aff'd, 302 N.Y. 609, 96 N.E.2d 898, 302 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 609, 1951 N.Y. LEXIS 805 (N.Y. 1951).

Where there was no showing that claimant's age or injuries mentally or physically incapacitated her as to prevent the filing of her claim, an application to serve the notice of claim three and one-half months after the sixty day period was denied. Johnson v New York, 278 A.D. 945, 104 N.Y.S.2d 844, 1951 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5322 (N.Y. App. Div. 1951).

In view of claimant's advanced age as well as fact that she was hospitalized for approximately 30 days during three-month period following accident and suffered loss of her son, notice of claim served within 35 days after expiration of 90-day statutory period was effected within a reasonable time, and where defendant city did not allege that it would suffer any prejudice as result of extension, and claimant moved for validation of notice of claim within one year after cause of action accrued, grant of petition for validation was a reasonable exercise of discretion. Rippe v Rochester, 57 A.D.2d 723, 395 N.Y.S.2d 556, 1977 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11776 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1977).

Court did not err by granting leave to serve late notice of claim on defendant village on behalf of infant plaintiff where one-day delay beyond 90-day time period resulted from infant's ongoing treatment for serious injuries and her parent's concern for her condition, application for leave to serve late notice was made within one year and 90-day period of limitations imposed by CLS Gen Mun § 50-e(1)(c), and village was not substantially prejudiced by delay. Gallino v Village of Shoreham, 222 A.D.2d 506, 634 N.Y.S.2d 550, 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12735 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1995).

Where applicant, an aged person, was incapacitated as a result of injury and thereafter was ill with grippe so that the time in which to serve notice against the city elapsed and where no showing is made that the city will be prejudiced, the court will grant applicant leave to serve a notice of claim. Greenfield v New York, 60 N.Y.S.2d 333, 186 Misc. 903, 1946 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1864 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1946).

Time for service of notice of claim was extended on the basis of physical incapacity of the claimant where the claim was based upon an allegedly unauthorized autopsy performed upon her husband and the papers submitted in support of the application for extension of time showed that she was over 70 years of age and so physically incapacitated that she could not herself have served notice of claim during the 90-day statutory period. Shaugnessy v New York, 36 Misc. 2d 300, 232 N.Y.S.2d 672, 1962 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2545 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1962).

222. —Length of medical confinement

There is room for exercise of discretion, and a person injured through a fall on an icy sidewalk may be excused from filing a notice of claim under this section within the statutory time limit, where she was admitted to a hospital and remained there more than a month and was confined to her home under medical care for more than another month, returning to the hospital where she remained overnight, and going back periodically to the hospital thereafter. Bogle v New York, 299 N.Y. 620, 86 N.E.2d 179, 299 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 620, 1949 N.Y. LEXIS 1077 (N.Y. 1949).

A motion to file a late notice of claim was denied where the motion was made 97 days after the accident and about 58 days after the injured party had been released from a hospital for a cerebral concussion and fractured skull which he sustained as a result of the accident. Appellant was about twenty years and eight months of age at the time of the accident. Edwards v Westchester County Playland Com., 1 A.D.2d 670, 147 N.Y.S.2d 694, 1955 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3954 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1955).

It was an improper exercise of discretion to deny an application for late filing of notice of claim for serious injuries sustained from a fall on a sidewalk where it appeared, without contradiction, that claimant sustained a brain injury which caused her to be confined to her bed and home under care of a physician for the entire 90-day period following the accident, and, upon advice of her physician, did not place her case in the hands of an attorney until ten months after the accident, the court being of opinion that she, herself, could not have served the notice. Volpe v New York, 9 A.D.2d 786, 193 N.Y.S.2d 515, 1959 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5896 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1959).

Claimant was incapable of presenting her claim within the statutory 90-day period in view of her confinement in a hospital for 175 days following the accident, the large number of drugs given to her, and the physical and emotional shock she experienced involving a double leg amputation. Millington v New York City Transit Authority, 33 A.D.2d 737, 305 N.Y.S.2d 870, 1969 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2731 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1969).

Petitioner was properly allowed to file a late notice of claim under evidence that the injury occurred on August 30, 1969 as a result of which she suffered brain damage resulting in partial paralysis; was in a hospital for treatment thereof and rehabilitation and had suffered serious mental limitations until November 10, 1969 when she was sent home for continued rehabilitation; that she was seen by her doctor on January 28, 1970, and the latter reported that she as of that date was progressing slowly but satisfactorily and that she still had significant problems with attention span, concentration and learning as to which there would probably be further recovery; that on February 5, 1970, she attended a motor vehicle hearing accompanied by an attorney for the insurer; that it appeared at the hearing she had no memory of the accident and exhibited a limitation of mental response; that on or about March 5, 1970 she retained an attorney to represent her; and that on April 4, 1970, through her attorney, she made a motion for leave to file a late notice of claim. Hurd v County of Allegany, 39 A.D.2d 499, 336 N.Y.S.2d 952, 1972 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3609 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1972).

Plaintiff, who was found by a police officer lying face down, unconscious and bleeding on a city sidewalk would be granted permission to file a notice of claim against the city nunc pro tunc pursuant to Gen Mun Law § 50-e(5) where the notice of claim giving the city actual knowledge of the essential facts constituting the claim was served three and one-half months after the expiration of the statutory 90-day period for service of such notice, where hospital records established that plaintiff was hospitalized during the relevant period for almost four months, during which time he underwent neurosurgery at least once, and where the city did not demonstrate any substantial prejudice resulting from the delay. Heiman v New York, 85 A.D.2d 25, 447 N.Y.S.2d 158, 1982 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 14955 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1982).

In a personal injury action against a town the trial judge properly denied claimant's application for leave to file a latent notice of claim pursuant to Gen Mun Law § 50-e(5), notwithstanding that the town failed to address itself to the issue of whether claimant's failure to file a timely notice of claim prejudiced it in maintaining its defense, where no evidence was proffered that defendant town received actual notice of the claim and the fact that the town employee in question may have had notice of claimant's claim did not constitute the required notice, and where claimant failed to prove that he was medically disabled for the 90 day time limit following the alleged incident in that the medical records submitted did not indicate that claimant was unable to communicate his wishes nor, indeed, do they show any evidence of the alleged beating inflicted by the town employee. O'Dell v Greenport, 97 A.D.2d 887, 470 N.Y.S.2d 710, 1983 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 20678 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1983).

The trial court abused its discretion in denying plaintiff's application to file a late notice of claim where plaintiff suffered serious injuries and spent five and one-half weeks in the hospital and was thereafter disabled until a date well beyond the 90-day limitation period imposed by Gen Mun Law § 50-e, where the action occurred on a public road owned by defendant town and constructed by defendant county, and where the accident was investigated by a county deputy sheriff within minutes and his report noted that plaintiff was unable to see that other vehicle due to the contour of the road and therefore defendant acquired actual knowledge of all the facts relevant to plaintiff's claim shortly after the claim arose. Innes v County of Genesee, 99 A.D.2d 642, 472 N.Y.S.2d 223, 1984 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 16876 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't), aff'd, 62 N.Y.2d 779, 477 N.Y.S.2d 326, 465 N.E.2d 1262, 1984 N.Y. LEXIS 4368 (N.Y. 1984).

Petitioner was properly granted leave to file late notice of claim against city under CLS Gen Mun § 50-e(5) where (1) affidavit of orthopedic surgeon indicated that petitioner sustained fractures to both feet in fall from flatbed truck, and was confined to his home for 2 months, (2) additional delay in service of claim was caused by petitioner's mistaken belief that construction company which employed him at time of fall was under contract to state, while it was actually under contract to city, (3) petitioner moved for leave to serve late notice as soon as he learned that contract was with city, and (4) city did not deny allegation that it received actual notice of facts of accident through records maintained by employer. Farrell v City of New York, 191 A.D.2d 698, 595 N.Y.S.2d 531, 1993 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3095 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1993).

The fact that the claimant was hospitalized continuously throughout the entire statutory time period is sufficient evidence of physical incapacity to justify granting of leave to serve the notice after the expiration of the period. Williams v Albany, 85 N.Y.S.2d 799, 193 Misc. 1037, 1949 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1701 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1949).

A motion to permit late filing of notice of claim could properly be granted where the notice of motion was served on defendant city one day short of expiration of a year since injury sustained by claimant as the result of malpractice in a city hospital, and it was shown that he was admitted to the hospital as the result of a severe accidental injury which, with the ensuing accident at the hospital, resulted in permanent physical and mental incapacity of the claimant followed by confinement to home and bed until shortly before the notice of motion was served. Shanahan v New York, 31 Misc. 2d 31, 219 N.Y.S.2d 418, 1961 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2815 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1961).

Although the delay in applying for leave to serve a belated notice of claim under this section is only five days after expiration of the 90-day period, leave will not be granted where the applicant's disability consisted of only two weeks confinement in a hospital with later confinement to his home, during which period of later confinement applicant furnished various sworn statements as to the nature and extent of his injuries, and there is no supporting physician's statement as to continuing disability. Phillips v Frankfort, 31 Misc. 2d 815, 220 N.Y.S.2d 171, 1961 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3400 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1961).

Constant hospitalization, numerous operations, mental breakdown, and the suffering of severe pain, constitute sufficient excuse for an extension of time in filing a claim against a city after the lapse of the 60 day period. Figuerca v New York, 106 N.Y.S.2d 430, 1951 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2089 (N.Y. Sup. Ct.), aff'd, 279 A.D. 771, 109 N.Y.S.2d 126, 1951 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3720 (N.Y. App. Div. 1951).

223. — —Length of time after care or confinement

Where the accident in which claimant sustained injuries occurred July 28, 1961, and notice of claim was not served until July 13, 1962, physical incapacity of claimant would not serve as ground for recognition of late service where it merely appeared that claimant was hospitalized from date of the accident until October 13, 1961, thereafter was in a nursing home until November 30, 1961 but thereafter was able to visit the scene of the accident with his attorney and make further investigations. Smith v New York City Transit Authority, 18 A.D.2d 10, 238 N.Y.S.2d 250, 1963 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4288 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1963).

Evidence that adult claimant was confined to hospital for approximately two weeks following accident and to his home approximately five weeks thereafter failed to support finding that one-day lateness in filing claim was due to his physical incapacity, where he failed to offer any information regarding his physical or mental condition during extensive time before filing after his home confinement ended. O'Neil v Manhattan & Bronx Surface Transit Operating Authority, 23 A.D.2d 488, 255 N.Y.S.2d 903, 1965 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4989 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1965).

Complaint against city asserted by plaintiff who was shot by police officer in April 1985 was properly dismissed, and plaintiff's cross motion for leave to file late notice of claim was properly denied, since time limitation specified in CLS Gen Mun § 50-i was not tolled by alleged physical incapacity of plaintiff where (1) plaintiff was discharged from hospital in September 1985, he received outpatient care until December 1985 when he was readmitted for 2-week period, and he was readmitted on October 1986 for one-week period, and (2) plaintiff did not file notice of claim until after he was convicted of weapon possession arising from incident in March 1987. Taverna v New York, 166 A.D.2d 314, 560 N.Y.S.2d 775, 1990 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12728 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1990).

Permission will be granted under § 50-e to file a claim against a municipality after the expiration of the time limit for filing a claim where the claimant was hospitalized during the entire period and attempted to file his claim immediately upon release and the injury occurred in a collision with a vehicle owned by the municipality and driven by its servant so that it can be said the municipality must have known of the possible claim and its circumstances at the time of injury. Williams v Albany, 85 N.Y.S.2d 799, 193 Misc. 1037, 1949 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1701 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1949).

224. —Lapse of memory

Claimant swore that he had several lapses of memory so that he could not remember all facts of accident. His physician merely said that he suffered a lapse of memory immediately following the accident and had intermediate recurrences since. Held: this was far short of a prima facie showing that a failure to file a claim on time was due to the mental or physical incapacity of the claimant. Application of Herrans, 7 A.D.2d 709, 180 N.Y.S.2d 82, 1958 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4052 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1958).

Petitioner was properly allowed to file a late notice of claim under evidence that the injury occurred on August 30, 1969 as a result of which she suffered brain damage resulting in partial paralysis; was in a hospital for treatment thereof and rehabilitation and had suffered serious mental limitations until November 10, 1969 when she was sent home for continued rehabilitation; that she was seen by her doctor on January 28, 1970, and the latter reported that she as of that date was progressing slowly but satisfactorily and that she still had significant problems with attention span, concentration and learning as to which there would probably be further recovery; that on February 5, 1970, she attended a motor vehicle hearing accompanied by an attorney for the insurer; that it appeared at the hearing she had no memory of the accident and exhibited a limitation of mental response; that on or about March 5, 1970 she retained an attorney to represent her; and that on April 4, 1970, through her attorney, she made a motion for leave to file a late notice of claim. Hurd v County of Allegany, 39 A.D.2d 499, 336 N.Y.S.2d 952, 1972 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3609 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1972).

Court did not abuse its discretion in denying application for leave to serve late notice of claim on city where (1) petitioner (professional baseball player) and companion were injured in August, 1983 when vehicle driven by petitioner crashed into barrier on highway, (2) companion served notice of claim about 61 days after accident, (3) petitioner initially sought leave to file late notice of claim in December, 1984, claiming that he had loss of memory about accident until after 1984 baseball season, (4) court denied application without prejudice to renewal if medical affidavit were submitted, and (5) petitioner renewed application in February, 1986 and court again denied application because physician's affidavit did not indicate that petitioner's loss of memory prevented filing of timely notice of claim; further, city was prejudiced by delay in examining petitioner since he claimed to have suffered arm injury that damaged his baseball career, but he had recovered sufficiently to play with New York Yankees in 1984 season. Robertson v New York, 146 A.D.2d 456, 536 N.Y.S.2d 70, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't), aff'd, 74 N.Y.2d 781, 545 N.Y.S.2d 102, 543 N.E.2d 745, 1989 N.Y. LEXIS 1005 (N.Y. 1989).

The phrasing of this section is such as to absolutely preclude a court from granting an extension of time for service of notice of claim on a municipality, after expiration of the one-year period, notwithstanding plaintiff was actually in a hospital under sedation by reason of the injuries sustained and suffering from complete amnesia rendering him totally unable to file any notice of claim or impart the necessary information to anyone for making claim until two years after the accident occurred. Corso v New York, 42 Misc. 2d 677, 248 N.Y.S.2d 816, 1964 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1950 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1964).

225. —Injuries sufficient to warrant late filing

Trend of the cases indicates more liberality in interpreting subd. 5 of this section, and there was no abuse of discretion in granting an extension of time to serve notice of claim beyond the 90-day period for some six weeks following claimant's discharge from a hospital with respect to injuries sustained from a stab wound inflicted by a fellow jail-mate in connection with which emergency surgery and follow-up treatment kept him hospitalized from October 24 of one year to March 15 of the next. Shane v County of Albany, 20 A.D.2d 746, 246 N.Y.S.2d 837, 1964 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4398 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1964).

Claimant was incapable of presenting her claim within the statutory 90-day period in view of her confinement in a hospital for 175 days following the accident, the large number of drugs given to her, and the physical and emotional shock she experienced involving a double leg amputation. Millington v New York City Transit Authority, 33 A.D.2d 737, 305 N.Y.S.2d 870, 1969 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2731 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1969).

Petitioner was properly allowed to file a late notice of claim under evidence that the injury occurred on August 30, 1969 as a result of which she suffered brain damage resulting in partial paralysis; was in a hospital for treatment thereof and rehabilitation and had suffered serious mental limitations until November 10, 1969 when she was sent home for continued rehabilitation; that she was seen by her doctor on January 28, 1970, and the latter reported that she as of that date was progressing slowly but satisfactorily and that she still had significant problems with attention span, concentration and learning as to which there would probably be further recovery; that on February 5, 1970, she attended a motor vehicle hearing accompanied by an attorney for the insurer; that it appeared at the hearing she had no memory of the accident and exhibited a limitation of mental response; that on or about March 5, 1970 she retained an attorney to represent her; and that on April 4, 1970, through her attorney, she made a motion for leave to file a late notice of claim. Hurd v County of Allegany, 39 A.D.2d 499, 336 N.Y.S.2d 952, 1972 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3609 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1972).

In a negligence action to recover damages for personal injuries from a municipality, plaintiffs application pursuant to Gen Mun Law § 50-e(5) for leave to file a late notice of claim slightly more than a year after the accident was properly granted, where the trial court believed that plaintiff's eight months of continuous hospitalization immediately following the accident, together with his extensive physical and mental rehabilitation at home thereafter, was the primary, if not sole, reason for his failure to file a timely notice of claim. Flynn v Long Beach, 94 A.D.2d 713, 462 N.Y.S.2d 243, 1983 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 18153 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1983).

The trial court abused its discretion in refusing claimant leave to file a late notice of claim, where claimant was injured during construction and demolition work on a site owned by a city and the city transportation authority and was hospitalized for 48 days, where claimant's injuries were quite serious and required surgery, and where the one-month delay was comparatively short under the circumstances and should not have deprived the claimant of a right to pursue his claim. Chmielewski v New York, 97 A.D.2d 730, 468 N.Y.S.2d 637, 1983 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 20456 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1983), aff'd, 61 N.Y.2d 1010, 475 N.Y.S.2d 377, 463 N.E.2d 1229, 1984 N.Y. LEXIS 4230 (N.Y. 1984).

In a proceeding pursuant to Gen Mun Law § 50-e(5) for leave to serve a late notice of claim, the lower court improperly determined that petitioner had failed to establish that he was physically incapacitated, and the matter would consequently be remitted for a determination based on all the relevant factors set forth in Gen Mun Law § 50-e(5), since, in the case of an injury that renders an applicant a quadriplegic, neither a medical affidavit nor a hospital record is necessary to demonstrate physical incapacitation in that the extent and duration of the disability are readily apparent to a lay person; further, a delay in the case of such injury is excusable, since it can be inferred that during the period of hospitalization, and for a substantial time thereafter, the applicant will be more concerned with the condition of his health and learning to cope, both mentally and physically, with his disability, than with deciding whether, and if so how, to commence a lawsuit against the municipality within the statutorily prescribed time. Savelli v New York, 104 A.D.2d 943, 480 N.Y.S.2d 561, 1984 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 20384 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1984).

Leave to serve late notice of claim on causes of action to recover damages for conscious pain and suffering and loss of services of decedent must be granted where decedent was totally incapacitated, mentally and physically, and was continuously confined to same medical institution until death. Di Notte v County of Westchester, 115 A.D.2d 585, 496 N.Y.S.2d 247, 1985 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 55008 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1985).

Court reasonably exercised its discretion in granting plaintiff's application to file notice of claim against municipal defendant 2 months after expiration of statutory 90-day period where plaintiff was severely incapacitated by severance of his right arm and defendant had agents and employees at accident site who investigated and filed detailed reports, demonstrating ample opportunity to examine insulation mulching machine which caused amputation. Cabezas v New York, 184 A.D.2d 240, 584 N.Y.S.2d 563, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7747 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1992).

Leave was granted for filing of late notice of claim against a city under N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(5) even though claimant did not provide a reasonable excuse for his delay in filing after the onset of his cold/flu symptoms and before his ultimate and different diagnosis. That was because the claimant was not to be penalized for waiting to see if his symptoms would resolve themselves, his filing was within § 50-e(5)'s discretionary period, and to not allow such claims encouraged early preemptive filings of meritless claims. Porcaro v City of New York, 20 A.D.3d 357, 799 N.Y.S.2d 450, 2005 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7991 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2005).

Trial court properly granted plaintiff's petition pursuant to N.Y. Gen. Mun, Law § 50-e(5) for leave to serve a late notice of a claim seeking damages for personal injuries on a county, as the delay was attributable to the serious injuries plaintiff suffered in the subject automobile accident on a county road, which rendered plaintiff a quadriplegic. Matter of Haeg v County of Suffolk, 30

A.D.3d 519, 817 N.Y.S.2d 125, 2006 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8033 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2006).

A motion to permit late filing of notice of claim could properly be granted where the notice of motion was served on defendant city one day short of expiration of a year since injury sustained by claimant as the result of malpractice in a city hospital, and it was shown that he was admitted to the hospital as the result of a severe accidental injury which, with the ensuing accident at the hospital, resulted in permanent physical and mental incapacity of the claimant followed by confinement to home and bed until shortly before the notice of motion was served. Shanahan v New York, 31 Misc. 2d 31, 219 N.Y.S.2d 418, 1961 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2815 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1961).

Claimant's injury and its disabling effects, which the claimant still experienced, furnished a proper foundation for the court to exercise its discretion in granting the claimant's motion to file a late claim approximately seven months after the accident. Blaisdell v County of Wayne, 54 Misc. 2d 415, 282 N.Y.S.2d 872, 1967 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1297 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1967).

Constant hospitalization, numerous operations, mental breakdown, and the suffering of severe pain, constitute sufficient excuse for an extension of time in filing a claim against a city after the lapse of the 60 day period. Figuerca v New York, 106 N.Y.S.2d 430, 1951 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2089 (N.Y. Sup. Ct.), aff'd, 279 A.D. 771, 109 N.Y.S.2d 126, 1951 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3720 (N.Y. App. Div. 1951).

226. — —No or minimal prejudice to defendant

Police officer injured in fall while on duty was entitled to serve late notice of claim pursuant to CLS Gen Mun § 50-e where (1) city had actual notice of essential facts concerning claim by virtue of police reports filed within 90-day notice period, (2) delay was not unreasonable, and (3) city did not show substantial prejudice; injury, which apparently required officer's retirement from force, may have caused immobilizing physical and mental distress which temporarily distracted him from prompt attention to filing his claim. De Modna v New York, 126 A.D.2d 435, 510 N.Y.S.2d 581, 1987 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 41587 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't), app. denied, 70 N.Y.2d 609, 522 N.Y.S.2d 109, 516 N.E.2d 1222, 1987 N.Y. LEXIS 19300 (N.Y. 1987).

Court properly granted permission to serve late notice of claim since (1) claimant suffered stroke shortly after claim arose, (2) claimant promptly sought permission to file late claim on returning from doctor-recommended recuperation in Florida, and (3) county failed to demonstrate that it would suffer prejudice inasmuch as claimant had provided medical records pertaining to her treatment. Brand v Fulton County, 133 A.D.2d 893, 520 N.Y.S.2d 251, 1987 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 51951 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1987).

Court properly granted permission for petitioner to file late notice of claim against city housing authority in connection with shooting of petitioner by armed robbers inside apartment building where (1) petitioner was rendered paraplegic by shooting and remained in hospital for over 4 months, (2) petitioner sought leave to file late notice of claim about 6 weeks after his release from hospital, and (3) housing authority conducted investigation into shooting, and raised only conclusory claim of prejudice. White v New York City Hous. Auth., 203 A.D.2d 371, 610 N.Y.S.2d 90, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3666 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1994).

It was abuse of discretion to deny petitioner's application for leave to serve late notice of claim where he sustained serious head injuries as result of accident which required surgery and lengthy rehabilitative process, city failed to show how it would be prejudiced by lack of prompt notice, and petitioner's counsel expeditiously filed notice of claim and commenced instant proceeding within matter of days after being retained so as not to compound delay. DeMolfetto v City of New York, 216 A.D.2d 295, 627 N.Y.S.2d 448, 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5911 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1995).

Court erred in denying plaintiff's motion for leave to file late notice of claim where she was physically and mentally incapacitated during intervening period, defendants showed no prejudice from delay, and defendants were aware of facts and circumstances surrounding alleged injury at time of its occurrence. Sayegh v Health & Hosps. Corp., 233 A.D.2d 206, 649 N.Y.S.2d 696, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11802 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1996).

Plaintiff who slipped and fell on metal plate set in cracked and broken portion of city sidewalk was entitled to serve late notice of claim under CLS Gen Mun § 50-e(5) where (1) after experiencing severe pain, he was transported to hospital 2 weeks after accident and was diagnosed with fractures of his lower back, (2) after 20-day hospitalization, he undertook course of physical therapy, (3) he retained counsel 5 days after expiration of statutory 90-day period for filing notice of claim, (4) city received required notices 9 and 12 days after deadline, (5) plaintiff's disabling injury provided reasonable excuse for short delay in filing, and (6) any prejudice to city was minimal because alleged defect was not transitory or likely to dissipate over period of delay. Silva v City of New York, 246 A.D.2d 465, 668 N.Y.S.2d 189, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 634 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1998).

Where plaintiff, following fall from water tower owned by town, was placed in complete body cast for more than three months, he was thereafter severely hampered in his ability to leave home, it was unlikely that town was unaware that accident had occurred and someone had been injured, and it was not at all obvious that conditions had changed to such an extent that town would be substantially prejudiced in maintaining its defense, delay of just over two months from expiration of statutory period was not unreasonable and therefore plaintiff would be allowed extension of time to serve notice of claim on town. Barrows v Woodstock, 89 Misc. 2d 365, 391 N.Y.S.2d 524, 1977 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1869 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1977).

Motion by plaintiff injured in auto accident to file late notice of claim was granted even though defendant city lacked actual knowledge of all the facts constituting the claim where the plaintiff was in need of constant medical treatment, required attendant care for a minimum of 12 hours a day, and was suffering from severe emotional depression, and where the city would not be substantially prejudiced because of the delay. Palazzo v New York, 444 F. Supp. 1089, 1978 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 20257 (E.D.N.Y. 1978).

227. —Injuries insufficient to warrant late filing

Exercise of the court's discretion to grant an application for extension of time to serve notice of claim in behalf of an incapacitated claimant depends largely on the nature and extent of the incapacity established, the time of its occurrence, and its duration. A minor or temporary physical disability, which does not impair the mind or continue throughout the 90-day period, will not ordinarily justify an extension of time for notice. Haas v Cedarhurst, 298 N.Y. 757, 83 N.E.2d 156, 298 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 757, 1948 N.Y. LEXIS 1307 (N.Y. 1948).

A motion, entered 39 days after the expiration of the 60-day limitation period by a 60-year-old claimant who fractured her wrist as the result of a fall on an icy sidewalk, for leave to serve notice within a reasonable time, pursuant to subd. Sullivan v Babylon, 277 A.D. 791, 97 N.Y.S.2d 240, 1950 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3334 (N.Y. App. Div. 1950), aff'd, 302 N.Y. 609, 96 N.E.2d 898, 302 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 609, 1951 N.Y. LEXIS 805 (N.Y. 1951).

Petitioner's broken leg was not incapacitation preventing filing of notice of claim, and thus application under CLS Gen Mun § 50-e for leave to file late notice of claim was properly denied. Montanez v New York, 156 A.D.2d 185, 548 N.Y.S.2d 441, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 15444 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1989).

Claimant's unsubstantiated allegations of physical and psychological trauma resulting from robbery and sexual assault which allegedly occurred in her apartment did not provide reasonable excuse for her 4-month delay in serving notice of claim. Vargas v New York City Hous. Auth., 232 A.D.2d 263, 648 N.Y.S.2d 546, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10295 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1996), app. denied, 89 N.Y.2d 817, 659 N.Y.S.2d 858, 681 N.E.2d 1305, 1997 N.Y. LEXIS 1311 (N.Y. 1997).

Petitioner was not entitled to serve late notice of claim on basis of physical and mental impediment where he was ambulatory, had full range of vision, and was "neurologically and hemodynamically stable" on his discharge from hospital, less than one week after being injured. Nunes v City of New York, 233 A.D.2d 399, 650 N.Y.S.2d 16, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11539 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1996).

Tenant who was scalded by excessively hot water while filling tub for bath was not excused from filing timely notice of claim against city housing authority, even though he asserted incapacity due to mental and physical distress arising from scalding, where his notice of claim was signed and notarized within 90-day statutory filing period and was product of discussion between tenant and counsel while tenant was at counsel's office for unrelated matter, and tenant's report to building maintenance department that water running from his faucets was excessively hot was insufficient to impart to housing authority actual knowledge of essential facts of his claim. Dickerson v New York City Hous. Auth., 245 A.D.2d 371, 664 N.Y.S.2d 834, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12770 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1997).

Fracture to petitioner's right lower extremity was not incapacitation preventing serving of timely notice of claim. Embery v City of New York, 250 A.D.2d 611, 671 N.Y.S.2d 984, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4885 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1998).

Injuries in a bus accident, not amounting to such mental or physical disability as would cause the failure to serve notice of claim under this section, consultations with specialists, an accident to injured party's attorney, and uncertainty as to extent of injuries, are not sufficient excuse for failure to file notice of claim within the required time limit, sub 2 of this section permitting the setting out of injuries so far as then practicable, and sub 6 permitting later amendment. White v New York, 87 N.Y.S.2d 446, 194 Misc. 562, 1949 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1938 (N.Y. Sup. Ct.), app. dismissed, 276 A.D. 765, 93 N.Y.S.2d 151, 1949 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3247 (N.Y. App. Div. 1949).

Confinement to a hospital with a broken ankle during the statutory period for filing a notice of claim was not such physical incapacity as to permit filing of a late notice. Nunziato v New York, 3 Misc. 2d 450, 149 N.Y.S.2d 636, 1956 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2167 (N.Y. Sup. Ct.), aff'd, 2 A.D.2d 670, 153 N.Y.S.2d 550, 1956 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4914 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1956).

228. —Miscellaneous

In an action by an individual who was injured when the automobile in which he was traveling struck a pothole in a city street, the trial court erred in granting the individual leave under Gen Mun Law § 50-e(5) to serve a late notice of claim upon the municipality where the individual had conceded that he had not been disabled for such a substantial period of time following the accident so as to prevent his filing a timely notice of claim and where the proposed notice of claim was too vague. Klobnock v New York, 80 A.D.2d 854, 436 N.Y.S.2d 769, 1981 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10689 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1981).

Claimant's physical and mental disability, as well as failure of police department and county hospital to promptly furnish claimant with records containing evidentiary matter upon which claim is based, provide grounds for late filing of claim where it is clear that city against which claim is filed acquired actual knowledge of essential underlying facts by virtue of police complaint and where city has failed to show that it has been prejudiced by delay in serving formal notice of claim. Mazzilli v New York, 115 A.D.2d 604, 496 N.Y.S.2d 266, 1985 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 55026 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1985).

Cryptic unsworn note from doctor concerning assault victim's inability to work did not support claim of physical disability as excuse for late filing of notice of claim. Giordano v New York City Housing Authority, 128 A.D.2d 671, 513 N.Y.S.2d 169, 1987 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 44362 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1987).

Petitioner was entitled to leave to file late notice of claim against county for injuries sustained in motor vehicle accident, notwithstanding that application for leave was not filed until 10 months after accident, since (1) petitioner suffered from physical and mental effects of accident over nearly 7-month period of rehabilitation and convalescence, during which he was in considerable pain and under constant medication, (2) attorney adequately explained that his need to make investigation after he was retained caused 2-month delay in filing application, and (3) county acquired actual knowledge of facts within 90-day statutory period; however, petitioner's wife was not entitled to same relief since she failed to proffer any excuse for her lengthy delay in consulting attorney or in filing timely notice of claim. Morano v County of Dutchess, 160 A.D.2d 690, 553 N.Y.S.2d 779, 1990 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3883 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1990).

The discretion given the court to excuse failure to file in due season where delay is due to physical incapacity is more readily invoked where the municipality had full knowledge of the situation giving rise to the claim. Williams v Albany, 85 N.Y.S.2d 799, 193 Misc. 1037, 1949 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1701 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1949).

An inmate's physical disability while in the hospital as the result of an accident incurred while working in a prison and the refusal of the prison authorities to permit him to communicate with a lawyer or with the Commissioner of Correction constituted such physical disability as, under the statute, would permit the granting of an application to serve a late notice of claim. Jones v New York, 12 Misc. 2d 911, 178 N.Y.S.2d 61, 1958 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3083 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1958).

229. Reliance upon settlement representations

If governmental subdivision negligently or wrongfully induces reliance by a party who changes his position to his detriment, subdivision is estopped from asserting a right or defense otherwise available; such doctrine of estoppel can be applicable with regard to defense based on failure to comply with notice of claim provision of General Municipal Law. Bender v New York City Health & Hospitals Corp., 38 N.Y.2d 662, 382 N.Y.S.2d 18, 345 N.E.2d 561, 1976 N.Y. LEXIS 2305 (N.Y. 1976).

Where plaintiff was lulled into taking no action until after the statutory period for filing of the notice of claim had passed because of his reliance upon the defendant's representation that the matter could be settled without litigation, the plaintiff would not be required to file a notice or claim. Debes v Monroe County Water Authority, 16 A.D.2d 381, 228 N.Y.S.2d 364, 1962 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9599 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1962).

Trial court properly granted an injured party's motion to serve a late notice of claim of a personal injury action against a county pursuant to N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(5); the injured party justifiably relied on settlement representations made by the county's insurer, and the county was not prejudiced. Shapiro v County of Nassau, 5 A.D.3d 690, 774 N.Y.S.2d 752, 2004 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3310 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2004).

But new clause (3) added to subd. 5 of this section by 1959 amendment, dealing with instances where the claimant fails to serve notice of claim within the time limited by reason of justifiable reliance upon settlement representations, is a carefully defined extension of the court's discretion to permit late service of such notices, applicable only in situations clearly within its provisions. Carr v Genesee Valley Regional Market Authority, 28 Misc. 2d 624, 216 N.Y.S.2d 45, 1961 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2833 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1961).

230. —Construction

The 1959 amendment of par. 5 of this section, giving the court discretion to permit late filing of notice of claim where the claimant has justifiably relied upon written settlement representations, was remedial in nature and is to be liberally construed. Latragna v Brighton School Dist., 28 Misc. 2d 467, 210 N.Y.S.2d 236, 1961 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3485 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1961).

Subdivision (5)(3) of this section, authorizing the court to grant an extension of time for service of notice of claim on the basis of "justifiable reliance" upon written representations of settlement of the claim in question, is remedial in nature and to be liberally construed. Kern v Central Free School Dist., 41 Misc. 2d 288, 245 N.Y.S.2d 213, 1963 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1288 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1963).

231. —Relationship to other disabilities

Even before this section was amended, in 1959, to include a provision for discretionary granting of an extension of time to serve notice of claim on the ground of reliance upon such representations was a factor which the court might favorably consider in aid of a time extension application based upon infancy or incapacity of the claimant. Rock v County of Onondaga, 2 N.Y.2d 926, 161 N.Y.S.2d 889, 141 N.E.2d 919, 1957 N.Y. LEXIS 1192 (N.Y. 1957).

Even before a claimant's reliance on settlement attempts was made an independent ground for extension of time to serve notice of claim, offers or attempts to settle his claim, with knowledge of the circumstances, were sometimes taken into consideration in granting time extension applications in behalf of infants and incapacitated persons. Balbach v Central School Dist., 278 A.D. 710, 103 N.Y.S.2d 342, 1951 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4447 (N.Y. App. Div. 1951).

232. —Former necessity that representations be in writing

Although no "writings" are submitted in connection with a motion to serve late notice of claim by reason of reliance upon settlement representations, the school district or other municipality against whom the claim is made may be estopped from setting up such a defense by reason of activities, conduct, statements, or writings of a representative of its insurance company, pursuant to which plaintiffs are not required to file notice of claim. Daley v Greece Cent. School Dist., 21 A.D.2d 976, 252 N.Y.S.2d 899, 1964 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3171 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't), app. denied, 15 N.Y.2d 481, 1964 N.Y. LEXIS 2463 (N.Y. 1964), aff'd, 17 N.Y.2d 530, 267 N.Y.S.2d 909, 215 N.E.2d 165, 1966 N.Y. LEXIS 1622 (N.Y. 1966).

Prior version of this statute requires a written statement made by or on behalf of the defendant or its insurance carrier and therefore, a written statement made by or on behalf of the claimant does not provide an adequate basis for permission to file late. Withey v Board of Education, 28 A.D.2d 800, 280 N.Y.S.2d 925, 1967 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3718 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1967).

The amended provisions of (former) par. 5 of this section, giving the court discretion to permit late service of notice of claim when his failure to serve timely notice was by reason of justifiable reliance upon written settlement representations, requires that the representations relied upon have been made in writing before expiration of the statutory period for serving notice, but the representations need not be to the effect that the claim will be settled and it is sufficient if they give reasonable assurance that procedures leading toward settlement are in motion. Latragna v Brighton School Dist., 28 Misc. 2d 467, 210 N.Y.S.2d 236, 1961 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3485 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1961).

An application to serve notice of tort claim after the usual 90-day period, on the basis of new clause (3) added to (former) subd. 5 of this section by 1959 amendment, must be denied where the insurance adjuster's representations concerning settlement of the claim are not alleged to have been in writing, nor are they related in substantial detail sufficient to support a determination that reliance upon them, by applicant, was justifiable. Carr v Genesee Valley Regional Market Authority, 28 Misc. 2d 624, 216 N.Y.S.2d 45, 1961 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2833 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1961).

An application for leave to serve notice of claim, where no notice was served within the 90-day period, could not be based upon alleged representations of defendant school district's insurance company that they would look after the interests of the injured infant and her parents, where such representations, if any, were (formerly) merely oral written statements by the insurer were contained in a letter denying the claim received long after expiration of the maximum time for serving notice of claim. McGrouty v Central School Dist., 229 N.Y.S.2d 850 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1962).

233. —Necessity that reliance be justifiable

Clause (3) of subd 5 of § 50-e of the General Municipal Law requires that the justifiable reliance on written settlement negotiations for which the court may excuse the failure to serve within the prescribed time must be such reliance on the part of the claimants and since plaintiff's attorney corresponded shortly after the accident in a fashion to indicate that even he was not relying on settlement negotiations as the basis for not serving a timely notice of claim, the plaintiff parent had no statutory basis upon which to serve a late notice of claim. Kern v Central Free School Dist., 25 A.D.2d 867, 270 N.Y.S.2d 137, 1966 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4245 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1966).

Claimants failed to prove reliance upon written settlement representations so as to justify late filing of claim under this subdivision. Abare v Glenville Cent. School Dist., 27 A.D.2d 898, 278 N.Y.S.2d 155, 1967 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4644 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1967).

Order granting permission to serve a late notice of claim against city, which order was granted under General Municipal Law provision vesting court with discretionary authority to grant such leave where claimant has failed to timely serve his notice "by reason of his justifiable reliance upon settlement representations made in writing by an authorized representative of the party against which the claim is made or of its insurance carrier," was erroneously granted where there was no writing, standing by itself, which justified reliance upon settlement representations. Scibilia v Niagara Falls, 44 A.D.2d 757, 354 N.Y.S.2d 229, 1974 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5284 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1974).

Even assuming, based upon equitable estoppel, that a plaintiff may commence a suit against school district for injuries without first securing permission to serve a late notice of claim, facts could afford no basis for an estoppel where there was no contact between plaintiff and school district or its representatives during limitation period upon which plaintiff could justifiably rely in failing to give timely notice. Mello v Hicksville Union Free School Dist., 51 A.D.2d 580, 378 N.Y.S.2d 753, 1976 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10870 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1976), aff'd, 41 N.Y.2d 927, 394 N.Y.S.2d 637, 363 N.E.2d 361, 1977 N.Y. LEXIS 1991 (N.Y. 1977).

An application to serve notice of tort claim after the usual 90-day period, on the basis of new clause (3) added to (former) subd. 5 of this section by 1959 amendment, must be denied where the insurance adjuster's representations concerning settlement of the claim are not related in substantial detail sufficient to support a determination that reliance upon them, by applicant, was justifiable. Carr v Genesee Valley Regional Market Authority, 28 Misc. 2d 624, 216 N.Y.S.2d 45, 1961 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2833 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1961).

234. —Particular representations; insurance negotiations

Under subd. (3) of this section, added in 1959, an adult who retains a lawyer and thereafter fails to file a notice of claim within 90 days may be excused for late filing because of justifiable reliance placed upon settlement representations made by an authorized representative of an insurance carrier. De Sorbo v Rotterdam, 20 A.D.2d 839, 247 N.Y.S.2d 931, 1964 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4144 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1964).

Although no "writings" are submitted in connection with a motion to serve late notice of claim by reason of reliance upon settlement representations, the school district or other municipality against whom the claim is made may be estopped from setting up such a defense by reason of activities, conduct, statements, or writings of a representative of its insurance company, pursuant to which plaintiffs are not required to file notice of claim. Daley v Greece Cent. School Dist., 21 A.D.2d 976, 252 N.Y.S.2d 899, 1964 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3171 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't), app. denied, 15 N.Y.2d 481, 1964 N.Y. LEXIS 2463 (N.Y. 1964), aff'd, 17 N.Y.2d 530, 267 N.Y.S.2d 909, 215 N.E.2d 165, 1966 N.Y. LEXIS 1622 (N.Y. 1966).

Delay in filing notice was excusable under subdivision (5)(3) of this section where written communication of settlement representations was directed to plaintiff's collision insurance carrier, it being foreseeable that plaintiff's carrier would transmit the information to plaintiff. Tricou v Duanesburg, 23 A.D.2d 949, 260 N.Y.S.2d 162, 1965 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4040 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1965).

Letter sent by insurance carrier of school district to the plaintiff's collision insurance carrier constituted a written "settlement representation," within the meaning of this subdivision. Abare v Glenville Cent. School Dist., 27 A.D.2d 898, 278 N.Y.S.2d 155, 1967 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4644 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1967).

Insurer's employee who attempted to collect not only the amount the insurer had paid towards the vehicular damage sustained but also the plaintiff's claim for the portion not covered by his collision policy, was acting as the plaintiff's agent in this regard, and therefore his knowledge of the written settlement representation from the insurance carrier of the school district was imputable to the plaintiff and constituted reliance upon settlement representations within the meaning of this section justifying the late filing of a claim. Abare v Glenville Cent. School Dist., 27 A.D.2d 898, 278 N.Y.S.2d 155, 1967 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4644 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1967).

In absence of allegation that written settlement representations resulted in plaintiff's failure to serve notice of claim on town, where motion was made more than 18 months after accident for which plaintiff had mistakenly sued county instead of town, special term had no authority to grant permission to serve late notice of claim on town on theory that the same insurer represented county and town and was notified within 90 days of the accident and investigated the same. Murphy v Yates, 47 A.D.2d 807, 365 N.Y.S.2d 298, 1975 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9129 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1975).

In the absence of evidence of settlement negotiations or assertion of reliance on the part of plaintiffs on the fact that an adjuster met with them shortly after collision between automobile and bus owned by subsidiary of regional transportation authority, fact that the adjuster did talk with them did not estop the authority and its subsidiary from asserting notice of claim provisions of the Municipal Law or the one-year and 30-day statute of limitations. Ponko v Regional Transit Service, Inc., 55 A.D.2d 1033, 391 N.Y.S.2d 243, 1977 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10387 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1977).

In an action against a fire department, any delay in filing a claim which may have occurred between the time when plaintiff's counsel entered the case and commenced settlement negotiations and the time when such settlement negotiations were terminated by the insurance carrier, were directly attributable to the defendant's justifiable reliance upon settlement negotiations. Under the circumstances, no prejudice was sustained by the insurance company and it could not now, after permitting defendant to rely upon settlement negotiations, be permitted to assert the failure to timely serve the notice of claim. Giretti v Greenlawn Fire Dep't, 80 A.D.2d 883, 437 N.Y.S.2d 129, 1981 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10742 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1981).

Parents of child injured during school physical education class need not be granted leave to file late notice of claim on basis of initial misinformation as to scope of coverage provided by school district's accident insurance policy where misinformation is corrected before expiration of statutory time for filing claim and there is no misinformation concerning liability insurance which in fact is not discussed at all. Salo v Board of Education, 117 A.D.2d 922, 498 N.Y.S.2d 925, 1986 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 53176 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1986).

With respect to a personal injury claim against a school district, a letter from the district's insurance carrier to plaintiffs advising that the carrier had paid a hospital bill and suggesting forwarding of other medical bills for consideration and possible payment constituted settlement representations upon which justifiable reliance could be placed by plaintiffs in disregarding the 90-day limitation on time to serve notice of claim. Kern v Central Free School Dist., 41 Misc. 2d 288, 245 N.Y.S.2d 213, 1963 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1288 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1963).

The court had discretion to grant leave to serve a late notice of claim when a claimant failed to serve notice within the 90-day period because he justifiably relied upon settlement representations by the insurance carrier of the defendant, and a letter from defendant's insurer written after the 90-day period referring unequivocally to an offer of settlement made during the 90-day period was sufficient to satisfy the requirement of clause 3. Spensieri v County of Onondaga, 48 Misc. 2d 866, 266 N.Y.S.2d 328, 1966 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2319 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1966).

A town was estopped to rely upon failure to serve timely notice of claim against the town for damages sustained by plaintiff when his property was flooded from water overflowing from the town's water tower adjacent to his property where, in connection with an application for leave to file late notice of claim, it was shown that the police and the Town Water Commissioner were immediately notified of the incident, admitted that the accident was caused by defective controls, said the town had insurance coverage and that its insurer would take care of the matter, and told him to contact a certain insurance broker, to whom he supplied damage estimates, but heard nothing further about the matter until he was ultimately advised, after expiration of time to serve notice of claim, that the insurance company would not honor the claim. Berriman v Huntington, 232 N.Y.S.2d 464 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1962).

235. —Litigation unnecessary

Motion to extend time for filing notice of claim against municipality denied where the claim was filed one day after the expiration of the 90-day period and motion to validate was not made until nine months thereafter. Since petitioner was not incapacitated during the entire 90-day period, fact that representatives of defendants had advised her not to retain an attorney and had taken her written statement did not excuse noncompliance. Application of Kreuzer, 282 A.D. 881, 124 N.Y.S.2d 752, 1953 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5318 (N.Y. App. Div. 1953).

Defendant Water Authority was estopped from raising a defense of limitations under this section where, by representing to plaintiff that the matter could be settled without litigation, it lulled him into taking no action until after the statutory period for filing notice of claim had passed. Debes v Monroe County Water Authority, 16 A.D.2d 381, 228 N.Y.S.2d 364, 1962 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9599 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1962).

236. —Settlement procedures are underway

Plaintiff's application for permission to serve a late claim against school district to recover for injuries received in school yard accident could not be granted on basis of an equitable estoppel on theory that school district and its representatives had allegedly, by way of fraud and deceit, lulled plaintiff into taking no action until time for compliance with notice statute had passed. Mello v Hicksville Union Free School Dist., 51 A.D.2d 580, 378 N.Y.S.2d 753, 1976 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10870 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1976), aff'd, 41 N.Y.2d 927, 394 N.Y.S.2d 637, 363 N.E.2d 361, 1977 N.Y. LEXIS 1991 (N.Y. 1977).

An infant 17 years of age at the time of the accident cannot claim the benefits accorded to "immature infants," and will not be granted leave to file a claim after the lapse of more than 1 year, especially where the only explanations advanced by the claimant were that she was ignorant of the statute and that she was lulled into a sense of security by a statement of a city investigator that she would "hear from the city soon," and where claimant makes no explanation of her further delay after being informed by counsel of the necessity for filing a notice of claim. Witherspoon v New York, 85 N.Y.S.2d 443, 193 Misc. 730, 1948 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3794 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1948), disapproved, Cohen v Pearl River Union Free School Dist., 70 A.D.2d 94, 419 N.Y.S.2d 998, 1979 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12306 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1979).

The amended provisions of par. 5 of this section, giving the court discretion to permit late service of notice of claim when his failure to serve timely notice was by reason of justifiable reliance upon written settlement representations, requires that the representations relied upon have been made in writing before expiration of the statutory period for serving notice, but the representations need not be to the effect that the claim will be settled and it is sufficient if they give reasonable assurance that procedures leading toward settlement are in motion. Latragna v Brighton School Dist., 28 Misc. 2d 467, 210 N.Y.S.2d 236, 1961 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3485 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1961).

Where an insurance adjuster representing a school district's liability insurer contacted a person whose car was damaged and who was injured as the result of negligent operation of its school bus, shortly after the accident, looking to a settlement of his claims, advised him against consulting an attorney, and later settled the property damage claim, claimant was justified in relying upon a letter from the adjuster, written prior to expiration of the time for serving notice of claim, directing him to see a named physician employed by the insurer for a medical examination, as indicating that proceedings were going forward towards settlement of his claims for injuries, and, under the 1959 amendment of par. 5 of this section, the court, in its discretion, could grant leave to serve notice of claim after time. Latragna v Brighton School Dist., 28 Misc. 2d 467, 210 N.Y.S.2d 236, 1961 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3485 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1961).

"Settlement representations", as justifying the extension of time to serve notice of claim, are not to be strictly limited to written assurances of payment forthcoming, and a writing which may reasonably give rise to honest belief that procedures are under way which may lead to full settlement is sufficient basis for permitting the court to exercise its discretion. Kern v Central Free School Dist., 41 Misc. 2d 288, 245 N.Y.S.2d 213, 1963 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1288 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1963).

Plaintiff would be excused from complying with § 50-e of the General Municipal Law and defendants would be estopped from contending that notice requirements of General Municipal Law would serve as a defense to late filing of claim where plaintiff established that a stenographic statement was taken in hospital from her, a handwritten statement and a medical authorization form were signed by her and these writings and oral statements of defendant's agent gave the plaintiff reasonable assurance that procedures were proceeding to a settlement of her claim. Teubner v O'Connell, 50 Misc. 2d 633, 270 N.Y.S.2d 978, 1966 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2163 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1966).

Where representatives of the City of New York were aware of the claim against it, had acknowledged in writing the damage upon which the action was based, and had given plaintiff reason to believe the claim would be settled, City was estopped from asserting that plaintiff's failure to file a notice of claim. Barber--Scotia College, Inc. v New York, 390 F. Supp. 525, 1975 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 14524 (S.D.N.Y. 1975).

237. —Miscellaneous representations

Late filing of notice of claim permitted under above statute where it had been delayed in reliance on knowingly false representations that it should be made when plaintiff had recovered from his disability. Orsell v Board of Education, 23 A.D.2d 703, 256 N.Y.S.2d 970, 1965 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4701 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1965).

Clause (3) of subd 5 of § 50-e of the General Municipal Law requires that the justifiable reliance on written settlement negotiations for which the court may excuse the failure to serve within the prescribed time must be such reliance on the part of the claimants and since plaintiff's attorney corresponded shortly after the accident in a fashion to indicate that even he was not relying on settlement negotiations as the basis for not serving a timely notice of claim, the plaintiff parent had no statutory basis upon which to serve a late notice of claim. Kern v Central Free School Dist., 25 A.D.2d 867, 270 N.Y.S.2d 137, 1966 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4245 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1966).

Claimant did not have a valid excuse for a five-year delay in seeking to serve a notice of claim on a school district. Though he alleged he delayed serving the notice of claim because he relied on the school district's representation that it would be responsible for his medical expenses, he failed to indicate when or where the school district allegedly made this promise Matter of Scott v Huntington Union Free School Dist., 29 A.D.3d 1010, 816 N.Y.S.2d 165, 2006 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7173 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2006).

238. Service on wrong party

Court properly granted plaintiff permission to serve late notice of claim where city housing authority failed to show substantial prejudice by 38-day delay, and service of notice on city comptroller instead of city housing authority was excusable error. Simmons v New York City Housing Authority, 161 A.D.2d 377, 555 N.Y.S.2d 325, 1990 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5576 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1990).

Petitioner was entitled to file late notice of claim under CLS Gen Mun § 50-e(5) where (1) petitioner made excusable error concerning identity of public corporation against which claim should have been asserted, and (2) although respondent claimed that it was prejudiced by untimely notice because it was deprived of opportunity to investigate, it conceded that accident site was under construction and continuously changing at time of accident. Harris v Dormitory Authority of New York, 168 A.D.2d 560, 562 N.Y.S.2d 781, 1990 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 15627 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1990).

Court improperly granted plaintiff's motion for leave to file late notice of claim against city where (1) notice of claim, although served within 90 days, was served on improper entity despite fact that correct entity could have been easily ascertained, (2) there was no evidence that city had actual knowledge of incident within 90 days or reasonable time thereafter, and (3) entity on which notice of claim was served was not alter ego of city; fact that entity on which notice of claim was served held hearing pursuant to CLS Gen Mun § 50-h did not impute knowledge to city. Pavone v New York, 170 A.D.2d 493, 566 N.Y.S.2d 71, 1991 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2019 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1991).

Mother of infant injured by elevator door with dysfunctional safety device was entitled to serve late notice of claim on city housing authority where she timely served notice of claim on city, 7 months later she learned that authority was proper party, and authority clearly had actual notice of claim since its police department had conducted full investigation and interviews 2 weeks after accident occurred. Morgan v New York City Housing Authority, 181 A.D.2d 890, 581 N.Y.S.2d 425, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5259 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1992).

Plaintiff was not entitled to leave to file late notice of claim against transit authority for injuries sustained while alighting from bus where (1) plaintiff served notice of claim and summons and complaint on wrong transit authority, (2) that transit authority denied that it owned or operated bus, and (3) while there was still time for plaintiff to file timely application for leave to file late notice of claim, claims examiner employed by correct transit authority communicated with plaintiff's counsel, and dispatcher for correct transit authority testified at examination before trial as "nonparty witness" with respect to operation of bus. Zaiman v Metropolitan Transit Authority,, 186 A.D.2d 555, 588 N.Y.S.2d 402, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11162 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1992).

Court erred in granting petitioner leave to file late notice of claim against New York City Housing Authority (NYCHA) after original, timely notice was mistakenly served on New York City Transit Authority, notwithstanding petitioner's argument that NYCHA must have known of his "accident" due to appearance of New York City Fire Department on scene, since mere happening of incident and appearance of fire department on scene did not compel conclusion that NYCHA received actual notice of essential facts constituting claim, especially given affidavit of building manager that petitioner's tenant file contained no information concerning incident. Serrano v New York City Hous. Auth., 197 A.D.2d 694, 602 N.Y.S.2d 935, 1993 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9963 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1993).

Court properly granted petitioners' application for leave to serve late notice of claim against town where period of delay was relatively brief, petitioners timely served notice of claim on wrong municipal defendant and then promptly sought leave to serve town shortly after discovering error, alleged defect which caused injuries was permanent so as to allow belated investigation, and town failed to allege any specific prejudice. Guarneri v Town of Oyster Bay, 224 A.D.2d 695, 638 N.Y.S.2d 711, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1912 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1996).

Petitioner was properly granted application to serve late notice of claim where her notice of claim correctly named New York City Housing Authority as defendant, it was misdelivered to Corporation Counsel, and there was short period of delay of only 2 months, so that authority was not prejudiced thereby. Thornhill v New York City Hous. Auth., 232 A.D.2d 317, 648 N.Y.S.2d 575, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10566 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1996).

Application to file late notice of claim was properly denied where (1) alleged law office failure, whether based on inadvertent clerical mishap or error in ascertaining correct party to sue, was insufficient, and (2) applicant did not show that respondents had actual knowledge of facts of her claim within 90-day filing period or reasonable time thereafter, as required by CLS Gen Mun § 50-e(5). Quinn v Manhattan & Bronx Surface Transit Operating Auth., 273 A.D.2d 144, 710 N.Y.S.2d 894, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7149 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2000).

In personal injury action arising from accident that occurred at public school owned by city wherein plaintiff served timely notice of claim on city but complaint against city was dismissed because it was not proper party under CLS Educ § 2554(4) and NYC Charter, ch 20 § 521 as matter of law, plaintiff's motion to add board of education as defendant following expiration of statute of limitations was properly denied, as board of education and city were not united in interest and thus relation-back doctrine did not apply. Goldman v City of New York, 287 A.D.2d 689, 732 N.Y.S.2d 78, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10034 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2001).

Petitioners, a disabled minor and his natural guardians, were permitted to file a late notice of claim under N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e against a board of cooperative educational services (BOCES) after improperly filing a personal injury claim against a city school district because the petition to file a late claim was made only 13 days after the error was discovered and the BOCES had notice of the claim within 90 days of the claim. Matter of Brandon Wimberly v Southern Westchester BOCES (Board of Coop. Educ. Services), 51 A.D.3d 810, 858 N.Y.S.2d 271, 2008 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4271 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2008).

In the exercise of discretion under subdivision 5 of section 50-e of the General Municipal Law, where it appears that plaintiff's error in serving a notice of claim in an action for false arrest, assault and battery against the New York City Transit Authority upon the Comptroller of the City of New York, which notice was acknowledged and accepted by the city, did not result in demonstrable prejudice since the authority was served with a summons and complaint in the action within four months of the occurrence and therefore had reasonable notice thereof, leave to file late notice of claim against the authority is granted. While the circumstance involved is not particularized in subdivision 5, it is nevertheless within the ambit of an excusable error concerning the identity of the public corporation against which the claim should be asserted. The court is not limited to the exact bounds of the particular situations recited in the statute and may carry out the legislative intent thereof in its discretion. Campos v New York City Transit Authority, 93 Misc. 2d 708, 403 N.Y.S.2d 832, 1978 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2125 (N.Y. Civ. Ct. 1978).

239. Incapacity of spouse

There is no requirement that a claimant's spouse, or some friend or relative, serve or execute notice of claim in behalf of an incapacitated person; a wife, who was herself incapacitated during the 90-day period, is entitled to an extension of time to give notice, notwithstanding her husband could have done so for her. Rosenberg v New York, 309 N.Y. 304, 130 N.E.2d 629, 309 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 304, 1955 N.Y. LEXIS 923 (N.Y. 1955).

An application to serve late notice of claim upon a municipality for flood damage to the cellar of a house owned by a husband and wife from the village's failure to repair a water main could not be granted on the basis of physical or mental incapacity of one of the spouses only during the 90-day period, where the condition causing her hospitalization and partial confinement to her home was not disclosed. Horowitz v Monticello, 18 A.D.2d 947, 237 N.Y.S.2d 660, 1963 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4435 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1963).

Filing of late claim permitted under evidence that injured party had been physically and mentally disabled since time of accident, even though the claimant's wife was under no disability and even though an attorney was acting on the matter within the 90-day time for filing the notice of claim. Reynolds v Greece Cent. School Dist., 36 A.D.2d 1020, 321 N.Y.S.2d 668, 1971 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4030 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't), app. denied, 29 N.Y.2d 485, 325 N.Y.S.2d 1025, 274 N.E.2d 753, 1971 N.Y. LEXIS 2210 (N.Y. 1971).

Where both parents are asserting claims which fall within the notice requirements of this section, the fact that one could have filed timely notice of claim in behalf of the other does not preclude the latter from seeking an extension of time to give notice if she was, in fact, demonstrably incompetent during the initial 90-day claim period. Zaslowsky v Nassau County Public General Hospital, 27 Misc. 2d 379, 209 N.Y.S.2d 921, 1960 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2223 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1960).

240. Waiver or estoppel as to failure to file timely notice

Although a municipality may be estopped from asserting the defense of failure to file a notice within the 90-day period, there must be a showing that the person upon whose acts or promises the estoppel is based, had authority to act for it, and it must also be shown that the acts of defendant or its representative justified plaintiff's reliance and that he did in fact rely upon them. Miller v Board of Education, 37 A.D.2d 798, 324 N.Y.S.2d 745, 1971 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3425 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1971).

In certain instances, waiver or estoppel are employed to excuse late filing of a notice of claim, but, in all such cases, there is, within the 90-day period, some action by the plaintiff which gives the defendant notice of an intended claim and, by the defendant, either some responsive action upon which plaintiff relied or a failure to act where action would have permitted the plaintiff to comply with the strict requirements of the statute. Pugh v Board of Education, 38 A.D.2d 619, 326 N.Y.S.2d 300, 1971 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2894 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1971), aff'd, 30 N.Y.2d 968, 335 N.Y.S.2d 830, 287 N.E.2d 621, 1972 N.Y. LEXIS 1215 (N.Y. 1972).

In an action for money damages by a property owner who had been notified that taxes on her property were being waived for 1974, and whose property was then sold for unpaid taxes for the same year, the doctrine of equitable estoppel prevented the action from being dismissed on the ground that it had not been brought within the 90-day period of Gen Mun Law § 50-e, notwithstanding defendant town's contention that the collection of taxes and the procedures pertinent thereto are the exercise of a governmental function and not subject to the doctrine of equitable estoppel, where the action was one in negligence for money damages that in no way sought to restrain defendant from the exercise of its governmental function, and where strict application of Gen Mun Law § 50-e would, under the circumstances of the case, trap the unwary in that by its acts and omissions defendant had caused plaintiff to believe that her tax payments were current. Chait v Thompson, 105 A.D.2d 578, 481 N.Y.S.2d 797, 1984 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 20595 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1984).

Special Term was without authority to grant application to serve late notice of claim against City of New York in personal injury action where application was made after expiration of one-year and 90-day limitations provided by CLS Gen Mun §§ 50-e and 50-i and record contained no facts to support finding of equitable estoppel against city. Siahaan v New York, 123 A.D.2d 620, 506 N.Y.S.2d 777, 1986 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 60768 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1986).

Estoppel precluding municipality from asserting failure to timely serve notice of claim will only be found where municipality's conduct was calculated to, or negligently did, mislead or discourage party from filing timely notice of claim or application for leave to serve late notice, and where such conduct was justifiably relied upon by party. Rieara v New York, Dep't of Parks & Recreation, 156 A.D.2d 206, 548 N.Y.S.2d 466, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 15470 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1989).

Plaintiff would not be granted permission to file late notice of claim for injuries allegedly sustained when boy was injured in fall in school gymnasium while participating in game of kickball, allegedly as result of raised mat, where there was no allegation that anyone at school actually witnessed accident and school's opposition papers stated that it had no record of any accident; school district would be prejudiced by being required to defend claim essentially involving someone tripping over transient and movable object where notice was long delayed. Salyer v Valley Cent. School Dist., 163 A.D.2d 782, 558 N.Y.S.2d 746, 1990 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8601 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1990), app. denied, 78 N.Y.2d 851, 573 N.Y.S.2d 69, 577 N.E.2d 60, 1991 N.Y. LEXIS 871 (N.Y. 1991).

City's mere retention of late notice of claim did not constitute waiver of defense of untimeliness. Taverna v New York, 166 A.D.2d 314, 560 N.Y.S.2d 775, 1990 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12728 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1990).

Court improperly invoked doctrine of equitable estoppel and granted application for leave to serve notice of claim against town industrial development agency based on town's conduct which, "throughout this litigation...failed to hint that it was not the real party in interest." Quintero v Babylon Industrial Dev. Agency, 172 A.D.2d 527, 567 N.Y.S.2d 870, 1991 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4287 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1991).

Defendants would be estopped from asserting either affirmative defense of statute of limitations or untimeliness of supplemental notice of claim for wrongful death and conscious pain and suffering in medical malpractice action where they had (1) actively concealed plaintiff's mother's death, and (2) failed to reasonably and diligently inquire or ascertain whereabouts of mother's relatives prior to releasing her body to city mortuary for funeral. Drysdale v New York, 182 A.D.2d 566, 582 N.Y.S.2d 716, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6361 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't), app. dismissed, 81 N.Y.2d 759, 594 N.Y.S.2d 718, 610 N.E.2d 391, 1992 N.Y. LEXIS 4381 (N.Y. 1992).

Department of Transportation's failure to bring to plaintiff's attention after plaintiff served notice of claim, that notice was improperly served, did not give rise to estoppel claim. Acevedo v City of New York DOT, 227 A.D.2d 245, 642 N.Y.S.2d 291, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5201 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1996).

Defendant county hospital in medical malpractice action was not estopped from asserting plaintiffs' failure to comply with conditions precedent to commencing action, as specified in CLS Gen Mun §§ 50-e and 50-i, where action was commenced 2 ½ years after occurrence of alleged malpractice, and plaintiffs failed to show when they hired their counsel or that counsel was misled so as to affect filing of notice of claim. Fuentes v Brookhaven Mem'l Hosp., 251 A.D.2d 540, 674 N.Y.S.2d 744, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7535 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1998).

Town was not equitably estopped from contesting timeliness of motion to serve late notice of claim where such motion was made after statute of limitations had run, since jurisdiction may not be created by estoppel. Hey v Town of Napoli, 265 A.D.2d 803, 695 N.Y.S.2d 643, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9828 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1999).

Denial of a representative's petition seeking to, inter alia, deem her notice of claim timely served was proper; the representative produced no evidence indicating that the city's personnel who investigated the death of her son either made any affirmative, knowingly false misrepresentation to her upon which she reasonably relied in foregoing the commencement of a timely lawsuit or intentionally concealed relevant information from her before the expiration of the limitations period, notwithstanding the existence of a fiduciary relationship requiring that such information be disclosed to her. The wholly conclusory and unsubstantiated allegations by the representative's attorney in this regard possessed no probative value. Matter of Pipitone v City of New York, 38 A.D.3d 557, 832 N.Y.S.2d 230, 2007 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2591 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't), app. denied, 9 N.Y.3d 810, 844 N.Y.S.2d 786, 876 N.E.2d 515, 2007 N.Y. LEXIS 3094 (N.Y. 2007).

A court cannot, on a motion, independent of an action, relieve a claimant of his failure to comply with the notice requirement of this section upon the ground of waiver or estoppel. Cavagnol v Orangetown, 17 Misc. 2d 943, 185 N.Y.S.2d 720, 1959 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3982 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1959).

Failure to comply with the requirements of this section as to time and manner of service of notice of claim is not waived, and cannot be waived, by any act of defendant following attempted, but ineffectual, service of such a notice. Horowitz v Board of Education, 210 N.Y.S.2d 600 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1960).

Department of education was equitably estopped from asserting a N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e notice of claim defense because the comptroller, wrongfully or negligently, induced a corporation to detrimentally believe that its notice of claim was proper and that the proper party had been served, which triggered the 30-day toll in N.Y. C.P.L.R. 204(a). Inner Force Economic Dev. Corp. v Department of Educ. of the City of New York, 948 N.Y.S.2d 557, 36 Misc. 3d 758, 2012 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3318 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 2012).

241. —Actual knowledge of facts constituting claim

On a motion to file a late claim, while the nature of the accident did not lend itself to a claim of lack of knowledge on the part of the municipality, this is not dispositive, but may be taken into consideration. Boreffi v Vestal, 33 A.D.2d 1073, 307 N.Y.S.2d 400, 1970 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5532 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1970).

Plaintiffs were properly granted permission to file late notice of claim against housing authority 3 ½ months after 90-day time limit since (1) housing authority acquired actual knowledge of injury to infant plaintiff only 3 days after accident occurred, when his guardian reported accident to housing authority and filled out work sheet requesting repair of door that caused accident, and (2) it was unlikely that conditions that existed at time of accident would have existed until end of 90-day period for filing of claim. Smitherman v New York, 188 A.D.2d 276, 590 N.Y.S.2d 474, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13507 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1992).

Plaintiff was improperly granted leave to file late notice of claim against city housing authority where housing authority did not acquire actual knowledge of facts of incident within 90 days of incident, and plaintiff did not allege that condition resulting in incident had remained unchanged. Kalenda v Buffalo Mun. Hous. Auth., 203 A.D.2d 937, 611 N.Y.S.2d 386, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4943 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1994), app. denied, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7938 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't July 1, 1994).

On motion for leave to serve late notice of claim against city school construction authority after timely service against city board of education, allegation that board probably shared its actual knowledge of claim with authority was inadequate to establish that authority had actual knowledge of essential facts constituting claim within reasonable time after claim arose. Pecchio v National Safety Envtl., 211 A.D.2d 773, 621 N.Y.S.2d 665, 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 700 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1995).

Court erred in denying plaintiff's motion for leave to serve late notice of claim and to deem notice of claim and summons and complaint timely filed where defendant was aware of incident in question, and there was no indication that defendant had been significantly prejudiced by delay. Cooper v City of New York, 216 A.D.2d 142, 628 N.Y.S.2d 279, 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6618 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1995).

While no one factor is dispositive in determining whether leave to file late notice of claim should be granted, knowledge of facts constituting claim is factor that should be accorded great weight. Hilton v Town of Richland, 216 A.D.2d 921, 629 N.Y.S.2d 130, 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7251 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1995).

Plaintiffs' service of timely notice of claim on housing authority's main office at 250 Broadway, which was only address listed in Green Book for its general counsel, rather than its law department located around corner, was sufficient to give housing authority actual notice of facts underlying infant plaintiff's claim, where service of process was acknowledged in writing and there was no showing of substantial prejudice to housing authority; thus, it was abuse of discretion to deny plaintiffs' motion to serve late notice of claim. Calix by Calix v New York City Hous. Auth., 234 A.D.2d 232, 651 N.Y.S.2d 512, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12906 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1996).

Court denied petition for leave to serve and file late notice of claim against town as (1) petitioner failed to establish that town acquired actual notice of essential facts of claim where it had received notice that she tripped and fell on broken sidewalk, but proposed notice of claim alleged that she fell on sidewalk that was "raised and uplifted by tree roots," (2) degree to which sidewalk was raised would necessarily vary with passage of time and thus town was prejudiced by delay, and (3) petitioner's ignorance of statutory notice of claim requirement was not viable excuse for delay. Turner v Town of Oyster Bay, 268 A.D.2d 526, 701 N.Y.S.2d 653, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 702 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2000).

Trial court erred in denying a mother's petition pursuant to N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(5) for leave to file a late notice of a claim of negligent hiring and supervision of a teacher against a board of education; there was an issue of fact as to whether the board had actual notice of the teacher's alleged sexual abuse of a student within the relevant time frame. Young v Bd. of Educ., 1 A.D.3d 194, 767 N.Y.S.2d 214, 2003 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11898 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2003).

Under N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(5), since the city's hospital corporation had actual notice of the patient's claim and since the city did not demonstrate it was prejudiced by the patient's late fling of her notice of claim, the patient's lack of a reasonable excuse did not bar the granting of leave to serve a late notice of claim. Gibbs v City of New York, 22 A.D.3d 717, 804 N.Y.S.2d 393, 2005 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11432 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2005).

Administrator of the decedent's estate was granted leave to serve a late notice of claim to the town pursuant to N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(5) because the town received actual notice of the law suit within the 90 day period after the administrator had been appointed and the town had not shown actual prejudice. Miller v County of Sullivan, 36 A.D.3d 994, 827 N.Y.S.2d 750, 2007 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2007).

Because a village acquired timely knowledge of the essential facts of an owner's claim for damages to a trailer that was impounded and sold, the owner established a lack of substantial prejudice to the village; accordingly, the trial court should have granted its N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(5) petition for leave to serve a late notice of claim. Brownstein v Incorporated Vil. of Hempstead, 52 A.D.3d 507, 859 N.Y.S.2d 682, 2008 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4941 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2008).

In an action for assault and battery, false arrest and malicious prosecution arising out of plaintiff's arrest by a New York City policeman in 1967, defendant's motion to dismiss the third cause of action, made some 11 years after the incident, on the ground that plaintiff failed to comply with section 50-e of the General Municipal Law, is denied, plaintiff having served a notice of claim two and one-half months after the incident stating that the nature of the claim was assault and battery and false arrest, and an amended notice of claim eight months after the incident stating that an indictment against plaintiff had been dismissed, the Grand Jury having dismissed the indictment seven months after the incident, since favorable termination of prosecution, which is not an element of assault or false arrest, is an essential element of an action for malicious prosecution, and the amended notice could have had no purpose other than to put defendants on notice of the claim of malicious prosecution; the two notices read together gave defendants sufficient notice of plaintiff's claim of malicious prosecution and it is not a fatal defect that the words "malicious prosecution" were not used. Worrell v New York, 101 Misc. 2d 270, 420 N.Y.S.2d 994, 1979 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2667 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1979).

Where representatives of the City of New York were aware of the claim against it, had acknowledged in writing the damage upon which the action was based, and had given plaintiff reason to believe the claim would be settled, City was estopped from asserting that plaintiff's failure to file a notice of claim. Barber--Scotia College, Inc. v New York, 390 F. Supp. 525, 1975 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 14524 (S.D.N.Y. 1975).

242. — —Imputed or constructive knowledge

In action against town for false imprisonment and malicious prosecution, plaintiff would be permitted to file late notice of claim for cause of action for false imprisonment where (1) plaintiff was arrested in November 1986 for custodial interference arising out of dispute between her daughter and son-in-law, and charge was dismissed in August, 1987, and (2) plaintiffs served notice of claim in September, 1987 which, because of different accrual dates for different causes of action, was timely with respect to malicious prosecution but late with respect to false imprisonment; defendant town made insufficient showing of prejudice, and knowledge of facts underlying false imprisonment claim could be imputed to it. Montalto v Harrison, 151 A.D.2d 652, 543 N.Y.S.2d 97, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8235 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1989).

Knowledge of occurrence by municipality's police or fire department cannot be imputed to public or municipal corporation for notice of claim purposes. Serrano v New York City Hous. Auth., 197 A.D.2d 694, 602 N.Y.S.2d 935, 1993 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9963 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1993).

As general rule, knowledge of accident or occurrence by municipality's police or fire department cannot be imputed to another public or municipal corporation. Russ v New York City Hous. Auth., 198 A.D.2d 361, 603 N.Y.S.2d 338, 1993 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10581 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1993).

On motion for leave to file late notice of claim, notice of incident to city could not be deemed to be constructive notice to city housing authority, as latter was independent agency unrelated to city. Kalenda v Buffalo Mun. Hous. Auth., 203 A.D.2d 937, 611 N.Y.S.2d 386, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4943 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1994), app. denied, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7938 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't July 1, 1994).

Mere fact that New York City Fire Department and New York Emergency Medical Service personnel were at scene of accident was insufficient to impute knowledge to city for purposes of extending time to serve notice of claim under CLS Gen Mun § 50-e. Vitali v City of New York, 205 A.D.2d 636, 613 N.Y.S.2d 270, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6143 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1994).

Notice of claim served on City of New York could not be imputed to New York City Housing Authority. Seif v City of New York, 218 A.D.2d 595, 630 N.Y.S.2d 742, 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8854 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1995).

Actual knowledge of allegedly malicious prosecution could be imputed to city through police officers in its employ who were timely alleged to have beaten petitioner. Diallo v City of New York, 224 A.D.2d 339, 638 N.Y.S.2d 58, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1455 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1996).

Supreme Court properly exercised its broad discretion by granting petitioner leave to serve late notice of claim against county, despite question as to reasonableness of petitioner's excuse, where county had actual knowledge of essential facts underlying claim within requisite period (due to filing of timely claim by passenger in petitioner's vehicle with regard to same accident), and county failed to substantiate its conclusory assertion that petitioner's delay had prejudiced its ability to defend. Alvarenga v Finlay, 225 A.D.2d 617, 639 N.Y.S.2d 115, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2137 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1996).

For purposes of claimant's entitlement to serve late notice of claim against city housing authority, authority had notice of and opportunity to investigate allegedly defective condition and was not prejudiced by claimant's delay where claimant alleged that authority was negligent in designing parking lot so as to allow snow and ice to accumulate around drain and in clearing snow and ice only during week and not on weekends, authority was charged with having actual or constructive notice of that allegedly defective condition and with following negligent maintenance policy, and thus authority's acts of alleged negligence were of its own making and were recurrent or static and not transitory or likely to dissipate over period of claimant's delay. Greene v Rochester Hous. Auth., 273 A.D.2d 895, 709 N.Y.S.2d 767, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6874 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 2000).

243. — —Knowledge through other claims

Estate of gunshot victim was entitled to serve late notice of claim against city where delay was due to estate's administrator having learned after 90-day filing period that claim against city existed due to city's alleged failure to respond to 911 calls, and city had already been fully apprised of facts and circumstances of case by prior notice of claim that had been timely filed by estate of second victim in same incident. Heredia v New York, 141 A.D.2d 473, 529 N.Y.S.2d 793, 1988 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7910 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1988).

In action against county for injuries sustained by plaintiff when her car collided with bus on sharp, steeply graded curve on county road, record showed that county had knowledge of facts underlying plaintiffs' design defect claim within 90 days of accident or within reasonable time thereafter where (1) timely notice of claim was served by passenger on bus, (2) it could be inferred that county had knowledge of potentially dangerous condition of road from prior numerous reported accidents and repeated complaints by nearby property owner, (3) after accident, county posted warning signs, and (4) accident report prepared by county deputy described circumstances of collision and contained diagram of accident scene. Fenton v County of Dutchess, 148 A.D.2d 573, 539 N.Y.S.2d 42, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3916 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't), app. denied, 74 N.Y.2d 608, 545 N.Y.S.2d 104, 543 N.E.2d 747, 1989 N.Y. LEXIS 2343 (N.Y. 1989).

Petitioner would be granted leave to serve late notice of derivative claim on behalf of her husband where she served timely notice of claim for injuries sustained in slip and fall on sidewalk, and application to serve late notice of claim was made within limitations period, since respondent village could not claim to be prejudiced by derivative claim based on facts of which it received timely notice by petitioner's notice of claim. Cody v Lake George, 158 A.D.2d 888, 551 N.Y.S.2d 683, 1990 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1860 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1990).

244. — —Knowledge through employees

Knowledge of town's police officers of facts constituting claim against them is not knowledge of public corporation itself for purposes of determining whether corporation had notice of claim. Williams v Irondequoit, 59 A.D.2d 1049, 399 N.Y.S.2d 807, 1977 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 14336 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1977).

The trial court did not abuse its discretion in allowing the filing of a claim against a county more than one year after an incident in which claimant's child had been sexually abused by a foster child in the county's custody where the county had sufficient notice of the facts underlying the claim in that the case worker in charge of the foster child was informed of the assault on the day it occurred, and removed the foster child from the foster home as a result of the allegations. Chalmers v County of Chemung, 105 A.D.2d 885, 482 N.Y.S.2d 357, 1984 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 21011 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1984), app. dismissed, 65 N.Y.2d 690, 1985 N.Y. LEXIS 14794 (N.Y. 1985).

It was proper to grant leave to serve late notice of claim against school district where district's employee, physical education teacher, was present at time and place of injury, district's insurance carrier was made aware of accident within 90 days thereof, and there was no demonstrable evidence of prejudice. Rossi v South Country Cent. School Dist., 152 A.D.2d 557, 543 N.Y.S.2d 487, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9614 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1989).

Plaintiff would be granted leave to file late notice of claim against school district for injuries sustained at school dance, notwithstanding her failure to establish acceptable excuse for her delay, where (1) she alleged that employees of school district had actual notice of incident which caused injuries as they were present when ambulance transported her to hospital after incident, and (2) school failed to allege that delay caused prejudice. Frazzetta v Rondout Valley Cent. School Dist., 166 A.D.2d 843, 563 N.Y.S.2d 533, 1990 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12792 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1990).

Plaintiff was entitled to leave to file late notice of claim against school district under CLS Gen Mun § 50-e(5), since facts established that district had actual knowledge of facts of claim and would not be prejudiced where (1) baseball coach saw plaintiff immediately after he was injured and knew that assistant coach was taking him to hospital, (2) plaintiff was told that extent of his injuries would not be known until swelling in his eye subsided, and (3) on learning that he would require eye surgery, plaintiff retained lawyer who immediately sought to file late notice only 2 months after expiration of 90-day period. Esposito v Carmel Cent. Sch. Dist., 187 A.D.2d 854, 589 N.Y.S.2d 1009, 589 N.Y.S.2d 703, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12853 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1992).

Petitioners were entitled to leave to file late notice of claim against city hospital for injuries sustained in accident with ambulance operated by hospital since (1) hospital had actual knowledge of events concerning claim because hospital ambulance driver performed acts complained of, (2) accident report stated that petitioner claimed to have green light at time of accident, and (3) hospital made no showing that it was prejudiced by 2-month delay. Ayala v City of New York, 189 A.D.2d 632, 592 N.Y.S.2d 352, 1993 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 241 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1993).

Absence of acceptable excuse for delay is not necessarily fatal to motion for leave to file late notice of claim, since all factors must be considered, including whether municipal authority acquired actual knowledge of essential facts constituting claim within 90-day statutory period, and where claim is for false imprisonment and malicious prosecution, such knowledge may be imputed to municipality through officers in its employ who made arrest and initiated prosecution. Justiniano v New York City Hous. Auth. Police, 191 A.D.2d 252, 595 N.Y.S.2d 6, 1993 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2211 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1993).

In action by plaintiff who was allegedly injured in fall from parkway bridge, it was error to permit service of late notice of claim on Triborough Bridge & Tunnel Authority on basis that authority acquired actual knowledge of essential facts when bridge operator employed by authority reported incident to United States Coast Guard, since plaintiff's proof did not establish that incident was reported to bridge operator's supervisor or other authority employee with duty to investigate, and thus did not satisfy plaintiff's burden of demonstrating that authority had actual knowledge of essential facts of claim. Levette v Triborough Bridge & Tunnel Auth., 207 A.D.2d 330, 615 N.Y.S.2d 421, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8090 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1994).

Court should have granted petitioner's application for permission to serve late notice of claim, even though his excuses for delay were not compelling, where (1) he averred that he believed that respondent school district's clerk of works was present on job site at time of accident and acquired knowledge of incident, (2) his counsel's inquiry of clerk of works elicited admission that clerk had been apprised of petitioner's accident a few days after it occurred, and (3) respondent proffered nothing to refute those representations, nor did it demonstrate that any actual prejudice would result from granting petitioner's application. Ruperti v Lake Luzerne Cent. Sch. Dist., 208 A.D.2d 1146, 617 N.Y.S.2d 597, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10548 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1994).

Court abused its discretion in denying application for leave to serve late notice of claim where it was uncontroverted that school district had notice of accident through its employee, and its ability to maintain defense was not prejudiced by delay. Frazier v Board of Educ., 209 A.D.2d 1044, 619 N.Y.S.2d 1003, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12129 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1994).

Plaintiff's affidavit relating to telephone conversation with "someone" in claims processing unit of transit authority wherein she gave information about accident failed to establish actual knowledge on part of transit authority of facts connecting occurrence with transit authority's negligence, especially where, in response to telephone conversation, transit authority sent blank notice of claim forms to plaintiff with instructions to file them within 90 days of occurrence. Burns v New York City Transit Auth., 213 A.D.2d 300, 624 N.Y.S.2d 30, 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3053 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1995).

Petitioners were properly denied leave to serve late notice of claim against county where, despite alleged retention of prior counsel on day following incident, application for leave to serve late notice was not made until 13 months later; mere fact that county employee was allegedly notified of matter did not supplant notice requirements of CLS Gen Mun § 50-e. Morehead v Westchester County, 222 A.D.2d 507, 635 N.Y.S.2d 65, 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12738 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1995).

Vague and unsubstantiated allegations that accident was witnessed by unspecified city employees were insufficient to establish city's actual knowledge of essential facts constituting petitioner's claim within 90 days of occurrence or reasonable time thereafter. Pope v City of New York, 282 A.D.2d 236, 722 N.Y.S.2d 385, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3372 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2001).

245. — — —Public officers

Plaintiff would be granted leave to serve a late notice of claim against a municipality pursuant to Gen Mun Law § 50-e where the village clerk, one of the alleged tortfeasors, had actual knowledge of the essential facts constituting the alleged intentional torts committed by him and the individual respondent, the village clerk was a person designated by law to accept service of a notice of claim on the village, and, aside from the mere passage of time, the municipality set forth no evidence that the delay substantially prejudiced it in the maintenance of its defense. Hayden v Hempstead, 103 A.D.2d 765, 477 N.Y.S.2d 392, 1984 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 19380 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1984).

Tenant whose child suffered lead poisoning from ingestion of paint chips in apartment as to which respondent city allegedly acted negligently in issuing certificate of occupancy was properly permitted to serve late notice of claim under CLS Gen Mun § 50-e(5), having sufficiently alleged notice to city by asserting that its building inspector knew of presence of dangerous lead-based paint in apartment prior to tenant's occupancy. Logan v Albany, 154 A.D.2d 861, 546 N.Y.S.2d 722, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13419 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1989).

In action by plaintiff who was involved in motor vehicle accident on road maintained by town, court properly concluded that town was given actual knowledge of plaintiff's claim on day accident occurred when plaintiff's mother told several town officials, including superintendent of highways and supervisor's secretary, about accident and her intent to sue town; thus, it was not abuse of discretion to grant plaintiff's motion to file late notice of claim against town. Marolda v Town of Nassau, 227 A.D.2d 815, 642 N.Y.S.2d 428, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5236 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1996).

246. — — —Supervisors

Plaintiff's motion for leave to serve a late notice of claim in an action to recover damages for personal injuries predicated upon theories of negligence and breach of contract was properly granted, where at the time of the incident complained of, two supervisory employees of the defendant were present and assisted the plaintiff, so that it was clear that defendant had actual knowledge of the essential facts constituting the claim and had not been substantially prejudiced in maintaining its defense. Mestel v Board of Education, 90 A.D.2d 809, 455 N.Y.S.2d 667, 1982 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 19036 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1982).

Petitioner was entitled to serve late notice of claim against village where (1) chief of police timely acquired actual knowledge of facts underlying claims, which was imputed to village, (2) village's actual knowledge made it unlikely that it would suffer prejudice by late serving of notice, and (3) no actual prejudice had been demonstrated (mere passage of time would not constitute substantial prejudice). Herman v Chester, 125 A.D.2d 469, 509 N.Y.S.2d 818, 1986 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 62762 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1986).

Petitioner's vague and unsubstantiated allegation that "the superintendent of the building was notified and upon information and belief, a full report was thereafter made" was insufficient proof that housing authority received actual knowledge of facts constituting claim. Davis by Brady v New York City Hous. Auth., 233 A.D.2d 110, 649 N.Y.S.2d 141, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11440 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1996).

Court properly granted petitioner's motion for leave to serve late notice of claim against New York City School Construction Authority where Authority did not deny that its on-site supervisors received actual notice of incident immediately after it happened. Bollerman v New York City Sch. Constr. Auth., 247 A.D.2d 469, 668 N.Y.S.2d 709, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1097 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1998).

247. — — —Building managers or superintendents

Petitioner would be granted leave to file late notice of claim where (1) she alleged that during 2-year-period from 1988 to 1990, while she was tenant in city-owned building, she was threatened and assaulted by her next door neighbor and that she made repeated requests of building manager for relocation which were ignored or denied, (2) she complained to police and obtained order of protection in 1990, (3) on June 21, 1990, while in building, neighbor shot petitioner in chest, (4) petitioner obtained counsel on July 6, 1990, shortly after her release from hospital, but she neglected to inform him of her new address and did not have telephone, and (5) counsel finally located petitioner in December, 1990, notices of claim were filed in January and February 1991, and motion for leave to file late notice of claim was filed in March 1991; city would not be substantially prejudiced by late filing of notice of claim since it had timely knowledge of underlying facts through police and building manager. Santana v New York, 183 A.D.2d 665, 584 N.Y.S.2d 53, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7383 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1992).

248. — —Knowledge through reports

Infant was properly granted leave to serve late notice of claim against school district pursuant to CLS Gen Mun § 50-e(5) where (1) school district and its insurance carrier acquired knowledge of essential facts constituting claim within 90 days of incident which gave rise to injuries given that incident was witnessed by at least one employee of school district, and school quickly received written detailed reports of incident and injuries to infant, and (2) school district failed to show that it was prejudiced by late service of formal notice of claim or that its ability to investigate had been impaired. Friedman v Syosset Cent. School Dist., 154 A.D.2d 337, 545 N.Y.S.2d 814, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12254 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1989).

Petitioner was entitled to file late notice of claim against city for injuries sustained when stray bullet entered open door of garbage truck and struck him, even though notice of claim was filed 29 days late, where (1) city had timely actual notice of incident, as petitioner contacted crime victims bureau, which wrote to city on his behalf, and incident was reported within city sanitation department, and (2) city was not prejudiced by delay. Parco v New York, 160 A.D.2d 581, 554 N.Y.S.2d 225, 1990 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4661 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1990).

Evidence submitted by petitioner, consisting solely of ambulance report stating that he had fallen and sustained injury, and entry from police officer's memo book which merely indicated that officer responded to scene, was "woefully inadequate" to establish that city ever acquired actual knowledge of petitioner's injury claim, and thus warranted denial of petitioner's request to file late notice of claim. Zimmerman v New York, 161 A.D.2d 591, 555 N.Y.S.2d 170, 1990 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5361 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't), app. denied, 76 N.Y.2d 707, 560 N.Y.S.2d 989, 561 N.E.2d 889, 1990 N.Y. LEXIS 3032 (N.Y. 1990).

City did not have actual and constructive notice of accident as result of report filed by driver of sanitation truck where so-called "report," which was more accurately described as internal Department of Sanitation accident claim form, did not identify petitioner by name, did not mention that vehicle other than sanitation truck was involved, and wholly failed to describe any of circumstances surrounding accident. Rosenblatt v City of New York, 221 A.D.2d 448, 633 N.Y.S.2d 557, 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11894 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1995).

Worker who had been injured on grounds of Bronx Community College, and who had served timely notices of claim against City of New York and State of New York, should be granted leave to serve late notice of claim on Board of Trustees of City University of New York, as mandated by CLS Educ § 6224, where board wholly failed to assert that it would be prejudiced by granting of application, board had apparently failed to disclose reports and records that its employees had compiled in aftermath of accident, thus frustrating worker's efforts to show that board had actual notice, and board did not take issue with assertion that it had acquired actual notice. Singh v City Univ. of New York/ Bronx Community College, 223 A.D.2d 545, 636 N.Y.S.2d 130, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 148 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1996).

Internal investigation report of housing authority police did not provide housing authority with notice of claim, even though report detailed actions of housing police officers leading up to accident with stolen car, since report made no mention of petitioner's accident. Finneran v City of New York, 228 A.D.2d 596, 644 N.Y.S.2d 537, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7203 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1996).

Court properly denied plaintiff's motion for leave to amend her notice of claim to correct error as to location of alleged accident site where motion was not brought until almost 6 years after accident, and immediately prior to commencement of trial. Archon v City of New York, 239 A.D.2d 371, 657 N.Y.S.2d 429, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5088 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1997).

Report prepared 27 days after accident, and stating that petitioner, student at technical school, was instructed by teacher to move large piece of plywood petitioner was working with from against wall and that plywood fell on her foot, did not give notice of claim that respondents were negligent in providing petitioner with mechanical means to move plywood and otherwise in their supervision of petitioner's activities. Kim v City of New York, 256 A.D.2d 83, 681 N.Y.S.2d 247, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13098 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1998), app. denied, 93 N.Y.2d 896, 690 N.Y.S.2d 176, 712 N.E.2d 114, 1999 N.Y. LEXIS 846 (N.Y. 1999).

Infant plaintiff was properly granted leave to serve late notice of claim on basis that defendant city received actual notice of essential facts of claim within 90 days of accrual, where city employees were involved in remedying cited violations and city agency (New York City Department of Health) had records of all inspections done on subject premises. Zimmerly v Good Samaritan Hosp., 261 A.D.2d 614, 690 N.Y.S.2d 718, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5683 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1999).

Special report indicating only that county jail inmate had burned himself, which was filled out by county employee 2 days after inmate was burned with scalding water he was using to clean floor, did not fairly apprise county of claim that it had negligently failed to supervise inmate's work so as to obviate prejudice from inmate's failure to serve timely notice of claim. Sheff v County of Westchester, 279 A.D.2d 632, 719 N.Y.S.2d 696, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 852 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2001).

Trial court improperly allowed an injured child to serve a late notice of her claim against a school district approximately five months after the expiration of the 90-day statutory period where, inter alia, there was no evidence that the school district acquired actual knowledge of the facts constituting the claim of negligent hiring, training, and supervision within 90 days after the claim arose or a reasonable time thereafter; a report sent to the injured child's parents by the school nurse after the subject accident did not fairly apprise the school district of the claim that it was negligent in hiring and training its employees and that it failed to properly supervise the injured child. del del Carmen v Brentwood Union Free Sch. Dist., 7 A.D.3d 620, 777 N.Y.S.2d 152, 2004 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6852 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2004).

249. — — —Police reports

In an action seeking leave to serve a late notice of claim against a county with respect to alleged negligence in failing to maintain a road on which petitioner's one-car collision occurred, the application for leave to serve a late notice was properly denied where a police report filed by the county did not furnish "actual notice" of the claim in that the report made no mention of any defective condition in the road, and where there was an unexplained four and one-half month delay in serving a notice of claim against the county after petitioner discovered that the town, against which his original notice of claim was served, was not responsible for maintaining the road. Morris v County of Suffolk, 88 A.D.2d 956, 451 N.Y.S.2d 448, 1982 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 17324 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't), aff'd, 58 N.Y.2d 767, 459 N.Y.S.2d 38, 445 N.E.2d 214, 1982 N.Y. LEXIS 3954 (N.Y. 1982).

Claimant's physical and mental disability, as well as failure of police department and county hospital to promptly furnish claimant with records containing evidentiary matter upon which claim is based, provide grounds for late filing of claim where it is clear that city against which claim is filed acquired actual knowledge of essential underlying facts by virtue of police complaint and where city has failed to show that it has been prejudiced by delay in serving formal notice of claim. Mazzilli v New York, 115 A.D.2d 604, 496 N.Y.S.2d 266, 1985 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 55026 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1985).

Petitioner was entitled to serve late notice of claim on city where (1) members of city police department participated in acts giving rise to false arrest and imprisonment claims, (2) numerous reports and complaints containing facts essential to claims had been filed with police department, (3) portion of delay was justified, and (4) there was no indication that delay resulted in prejudice to city. McKenna v New York, 154 A.D.2d 655, 546 N.Y.S.2d 660, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13769 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1989).

Petitioner was entitled to serve late notice asserting claims against New York City to recover damages for false imprisonment, malicious prosecution and intentional infliction of emotional distress arising from his arrest for attempted murder and other crimes where arrest occurred on January 28, case was adjourned in contemplation of dismissal on March 22, and petitioner moved to file late notice on June 8; police arrest report and district attorney's investigation resulting in adjournment could be considered actual or constructive knowledge to city. Tatum v New York, 161 A.D.2d 580, 555 N.Y.S.2d 158, 1990 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5346 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't), app. denied, 76 N.Y.2d 709, 561 N.Y.S.2d 548, 562 N.E.2d 873, 1990 N.Y. LEXIS 3171 (N.Y. 1990).

Petitioner would be permitted to serve late notice of claim on New York City Housing Authority where (1) on January 19, petitioner allegedly fell on accumulation of debris on common stairwell located in housing project and was transported by ambulance to hospital, (2) housing authority police officer filed report on same day stating that he observed puddle of urine at scene, that he notified persons to "correct condition, " and that he unsuccessfully attempted to contact "Claims and Risk," (3) petitioner's attorneys, by virtue of clerical error, served notice of claim on city on February 16, (4) on learning that housing authority was proper party to be served, petitioner's attorneys sought leave to serve untimely notice, but mistakenly moved by notice of motion served by ordinary mail instead of by notice of petition served as summons, and (5) instant application was made in papers dated August 31; housing authority had actual notice on day of accident, and there was no prejudice caused by delay in notice since condition that caused fall would not have lasted 90 days for investigation. Soto v New York City Housing Authority, 180 A.D.2d 570, 580 N.Y.S.2d 272, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2732 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1992).

Report of housing authority police officer filed on date of accident did not provide basis for imparting knowledge of plaintiff's claim to housing authority. Valle v New York City Hous. Auth., 224 A.D.2d 433, 637 N.Y.S.2d 757, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 878 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1996).

In action for false arrest and malicious prosecution, police reports did not provide town defendants with knowledge of claim first interposed 15 months after incident. Shapiro v Town of Clarkstown, 238 A.D.2d 498, 656 N.Y.S.2d 682, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4107 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't), app. denied, 90 N.Y.2d 807, 664 N.Y.S.2d 269, 686 N.E.2d 1364, 1997 N.Y. LEXIS 3044 (N.Y. 1997).

Police investigation of shooting of tenant in stairwell of apartment building owned by New York City Housing Authority (NYCHA) did not give NYCHA actual notice, within 90-day statutory period, of tenant's claim that NYCHA was negligent in failing to take action against assailants, who resided in that building, on basis of their prior criminal activity where investigation was geared toward finding perpetrators, police report indicated that perpetrators were unknown, and report did not connect shooting with any negligence by NYCHA. Lenoir v New York City Hous. Auth., 240 A.D.2d 497, 658 N.Y.S.2d 140, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6085 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1997).

Police report regarding car accident does not itself constitute notice of accident to municipality. Continental Ins. Co. v City of Rye, 257 A.D.2d 573, 683 N.Y.S.2d 585, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 129 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1999).

Petitioner was granted leave to serve late notice of claim against Yonkers Parking Authority where parking authority received actual knowledge of essential facts 3 days after incident by virtue of its indicated receipt of police report, petitioner had made patently excusable error concerning identity of true owner of parking lot in which accident occurred, no factual prejudiced was shown by parking authority, and application to serve late notice was made within one-year limitation period to commence action. Michael v Yonkers Parking Auth., 172 Misc. 2d 304, 658 N.Y.S.2d 194, 1997 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 181 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1997).

250. — — — —Police aided reports

City would not be deemed to have had actual notice of accident for purposes of excusing injured petitioner's 14-month delay in requesting leave to serve late notice of claim by reason of police "aided report" made immediately after accident since police reports are insufficient to satisfy requirement of actual knowledge; moreover, petitioner's failure to identify city employee to whom he allegedly reported his accident negated claim that city had actual notice. Perry v New York, 133 A.D.2d 692, 519 N.Y.S.2d 862, 1987 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 51728 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1987).

Police aided report and daily activity log that failed to suggest any connection between happening of accident and any negligence on part of government defendants were not sufficient to furnish them with actual knowledge of essential facts underlying personal injury claim, and thus court properly denied plaintiffs' motion for leave to serve late notice of claim. Salahudeen Rashad Saafir v Metro-North Commuter R.R. Co., 260 A.D.2d 462, 688 N.Y.S.2d 224, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3863 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't), app. denied, 93 N.Y.2d 816, 697 N.Y.S.2d 563, 719 N.E.2d 924, 1999 N.Y. LEXIS 2802 (N.Y. 1999).

251. — — — —Police accident reports

In a proceeding for leave to serve a late notice of claim, a city police officer, who was injured while receiving motorcycle riding instructions from a police department instructor, would be granted leave to serve a late notice of claim against the city approximately four months after the 90-day limitation had run where the city had acquired actual knowledge of all of the relevant facts by virtue of the police department's accident report, where the officer had been told by a police department doctor that his injuries had not been serious, and where the city had not been prejudiced by the delay in serving a formal notice of claim. Lucas v New York, 91 A.D.2d 637, 456 N.Y.S.2d 816, 1982 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 19491 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1982).

Supreme Court acted within its discretion in granting leave to serve late notice of claim against town pursuant to CLS Gen Mun § 50-e, since delay was caused by excusable error as to which public corporation was responsible for monitoring traffic on road, application to serve late notice was made promptly after discovery of error, and town failed to demonstrate that it was prejudiced in investigating and preparing its defense in light of existence of detailed accident report by town police officer, town's actual knowledge of essential facts of claim, and town's receipt of notice within 5 months of statutory deadline, during which time there had been no change in accident situs. Cannistra v Putnam Valley, 124 A.D.2d 801, 508 N.Y.S.2d 524, 1986 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 62121 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1986).

Court did not abuse its discretion by denying plaintiff's motion for leave to serve late notice of claim and dismissing personal injury complaint, since village did not acquire actual knowledge of underlying facts of claim by virtue of accident report filed with police department where (1) report did not connect accident with allegations of negligence on part of village and affirmatively discounted weather and sidewalk conditions as contributing causes of plaintiff's fall, and (2) police investigation was hampered by subsequent presence of snow in accident area. Dama v Tuckahoe, 134 A.D.2d 402, 521 N.Y.S.2d 29, 1987 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 50591 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1987), app. dismissed, 72 N.Y.2d 832, 530 N.Y.S.2d 550, 526 N.E.2d 41, 1988 N.Y. LEXIS 1124 (N.Y. 1988).

Plaintiff was properly granted leave to file late notice of claim against city housing authority where (1) she slipped on wet floor caused by leaky faucet which she had previously reported to housing authority, (2) after accident, she notified housing authority, which sent representative to shut off water as plaintiff was being taken to hospital in ambulance, (3) police accident report indicated that housing authority's investigative arm had been notified, (4) 2 months after accident, plaintiff again notified housing authority, and was told "not to worry" and that they were aware of her claim, and (5) more than one year passed before plaintiff consulted legal counsel and learned of requirement of filing formal notice of claim; defendant had adequate opportunity to investigate claim promptly while facts were still fresh. Staton v New York City Housing Authority, 166 A.D.2d 331, 561 N.Y.S.2d 5, 1990 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12732 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1990).

Plaintiff was properly granted leave to serve late notice of claim, even though it offered no excuse for failing to file notice of claim within statutory 90-day period, where (1) plaintiff made persuasive showing that town had acquired actual notice of claim due to fact that one of its police officers was involved in accident, police promptly investigated, and they prepared written report, and (2) town made no particularized or persuasive showing that delay caused it substantial prejudice. Wetzel Servs. Corp. v Town of Amherst, 207 A.D.2d 965, 616 N.Y.S.2d 832, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10135 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1994).

Court properly denied petitioner's application for leave to file late notice of claim against county, notwithstanding his contention that county had notice of accident due to presence of its personnel at scene, since police report describing accident did not state any connection between accident and condition complained of by petitioner. Shapiro v County of Nassau, 208 A.D.2d 545, 616 N.Y.S.2d 786, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9276 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1994).

Neither Police Accident Report nor Fire Department Operations Report gave city actual knowledge of essential facts of belated negligence claim against city in connection with school bus accident where those reports did not mention road conditions, design defects, or lack of guardrail as possible causes of accident. Resto v City of New York, 240 A.D.2d 499, 658 N.Y.S.2d 416, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6067 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't), app. dismissed, 91 N.Y.2d 847, 667 N.Y.S.2d 680, 690 N.E.2d 490, 1997 N.Y. LEXIS 4067 (N.Y. 1997).

Petitioner's mere completion of incident information slip and police accident reports at police station did not establish that city received actual notice of claim, where police reports did not connect his injuries to city's negligence. Gilliam v City of New York, 250 A.D.2d 680, 673 N.Y.S.2d 172, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5551 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1998).

Plaintiff was not entitled to serve late notice of claim against city where (1) police accident report alone, without any evidence of further investigation by city, was inadequate to apprise city of nature or severity of injuries claimed, (2) plaintiff did not offer valid excuse for her failure to serve timely notice of claim, and (3) plaintiff did not rebut city's showing of prejudice. Hardayal v City of New York, 281 A.D.2d 593, 722 N.Y.S.2d 176, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3053 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2001).

252. — — —Accident reports other than police

Plaintiff who was allegedly injured in collapse of city-owned building was entitled to file late notice of claim where city had actual notice of facts constituting claim due to presence of city inspectors on jobsite and existence of accident report. Washington v New York, 138 A.D.2d 235, 525 N.Y.S.2d 570, 1988 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1930 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't), aff'd, 72 N.Y.2d 881, 532 N.Y.S.2d 361, 528 N.E.2d 513, 1988 N.Y. LEXIS 1665 (N.Y. 1988).

Fifteen-year-old plaintiff was entitled to serve late notice of claim pursuant to CLS Gen Mun § 50-e(5) for injuries suffered when she slipped on ice as she exited school building since (1) school district had knowledge about accident on day it occurred as plaintiff had to be carried to school nurse's office by janitor after she fell, and report on incident was prepared on behalf of school district and signed by one of its principals, (2) initial notice was filed within 5 months of accident and delay was attributable to plaintiff's age and fact that she was under treatment at pertinent time, and (3) school district did not suffer prejudice, particularly in light of its knowledge of accident and conduct of at least cursory investigation. Strevell v South Colonie Cent. School Dist., 144 A.D.2d 733, 535 N.Y.S.2d 147, 1988 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10901 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1988).

Infant would be granted leave to file late notice of claim where (1) on day infant was injured on school property, he was attended by school nurse, and accident report and medical insurance forms were filled out, thus establishing that school had actual notice of accident, (2) fractured wrist sustained by infant was serious enough injury that school district should have been alerted to need for investigation, and (3) 14-month delay in filing notice of claim was occasioned by infant's family's reliance on representations made by school district that it would assume responsibility for infant's medical expenses. Zimmet v Huntington Union Free Sch. Dist., 187 A.D.2d 436, 589 N.Y.S.2d 546, 590 N.Y.S.2d 734, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12547 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1992).

Petitioner would not be permitted leave to serve late notice of claim for injuries sustained when she slipped from chair while working at school since she failed to show that board of education had actual notice of facts surrounding accident and basis of claim of negligence, notwithstanding that petitioner completed Comprehensive Accident Report and Employee's Notice of Injury Report on day of accident. Rodriguez v New York City Bd. of Educ., 190 A.D.2d 579, 593 N.Y.S.2d 519, 1993 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1472 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't), app. dismissed, 81 N.Y.2d 1041, 600 N.Y.S.2d 441, 616 N.E.2d 1103, 1993 N.Y. LEXIS 1813 (N.Y. 1993).

Court erroneously granted petitioner leave to file late notice of claim, notwithstanding that employees of defendant school district witnessed accident, since accident report prepared at time of incident stated that petitioner jumped up to throw basketball in hoop, felt his left knee go out of place, came down and felt pain, and dislocated knee, whereas in notice of claim, petitioner asserted that he slipped and fell on liquid substance on floor of basketball court. Hubbard v City Sch. Dist., 204 A.D.2d 721, 613 N.Y.S.2d 29, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5696 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1994).

It was abuse of discretion to deny claimant's application for leave to serve late notice of claim against school district where injury to claimant's daughter occurred between classes in hallway of school, and she was promptly examined by school nurse, who summoned ambulance and completed accident report; under circumstances, school district acquired actual knowledge of essential facts constituting claim shortly after occurrence. Bird v Port Byron Cent. Sch. Dist., 231 A.D.2d 916, 647 N.Y.S.2d 627, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10795 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1996).

Court erred in granting petitioner's application for leave to serve late notice of claim against town, even though accident report was completed by town employee on date of accident, since report merely stated that petitioner claimed to have tripped and fallen on concrete walk and went to emergency room for examination; such report did not provide town with actual knowledge of essential facts constituting instant claim that town caused petitioner's injury by permitting broken, uneven, cracked, and rutted cement paving to exist at pool deck. Guiliano v Town of Oyster Bay, 244 A.D.2d 408, 664 N.Y.S.2d 314, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11253 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1997).

Student accident report, stating "While participating in a blocking drill, (the petitioner's) knee appeared to lock. When (the petitioner) attempted to stand on his leg, after a brief rest, it again seemed to lock-up," did not provide school district with knowledge of specific claim which petitioner was seeking to assert, and it did not even provide reasonable notice that actionable wrong had been committed; thus, court erred in granting petitioner's application for leave to file late notice of claim. Baldi v Mt. Sinai Sch. Dist., 254 A.D.2d 414, 679 N.Y.S.2d 80, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11124 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1998).

Court properly deemed plaintiff's late notices of claim against board of education timely served, nunc pro tunc, where (1) defendants had notice of facts from accident report and aided report filled out by police officer who responded to scene, and (2) claim that they were prejudiced by delay was significantly undermined by circumstances that there were no witnesses to accident, and icy condition to which plaintiff attributed her injury was highly transitory and would not have remained for investigation even if plaintiff's notices had been timely filed. Gamoneda v New York City Bd. of Educ., 259 A.D.2d 348, 687 N.Y.S.2d 46, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2750 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1999).

Accident form filled out by school's athletic director 2 days after incident, indicating only that student was hit and injured by another player during supervised football practice, did not apprise school district of claim that school personnel negligently failed to supervise students so as to obviate prejudice to school district resulting from failure to serve notice of claim until 11 months after accident Ryder v Garden City Sch. Dist., 277 A.D.2d 388, 716 N.Y.S.2d 97, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12161 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2000).

Plaintiff, who fell from ladder due to strong gust of wind while painting barn owned by defendant town, should have been granted leave to serve late notice of claim where town's highway superintendent was present on day of incident and completed accident report such that town received actual notice of incident immediately after it occurred and did not suffer substantial prejudice as result of delay. Bazer v Town of Walworth, 277 A.D.2d 994, 716 N.Y.S.2d 523, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11361 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 2000).

253. — — —Line of duty reports

In a proceeding pursuant to Gen Mun L § 50-e for leave to serve a late notice of claim, the trial court properly granted plaintiff's application where it was apparent that the city, by virtue of the Line of Duty Injury Report filed with its Department of Sanitation, had actual knowledge of all facts relevant to the petitioner's injury shortly after the claim arose, and where the city failed to show that it had been in any way prejudiced by the petitioner's delay in filing a formal notice of claim. Somma v New York, 81 A.D.2d 889, 439 N.Y.S.2d 50, 1981 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11596 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1981).

In a city police officer's action, alleging that injuries he sustained when a car collided with his patrol car had resulted from the failure of the city police, fire, and sanitation departments to respond quickly to calls to clean up an oil spill, leave to serve a late notice of claim was properly denied where the city did not have actual knowledge of the facts underlying the claim of negligence on the part of its agencies in that the police accident report and line-of-duty injury report failed to make any connection between the accident and the handling of the oil spill, and where the officer failed to adequately explain the unreasonable delay in bringing the motion for leave to serve the late notice until 11 months after the accident, despite the fact that the accident occurred as the officer was sitting in his patrol car while he was assigned to detour traffic from the oil spill on the expressway. Fox v New York, 91 A.D.2d 624, 456 N.Y.S.2d 806, 1982 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 19476 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1982).

New York City police officer was entitled to file late notice of claim as precondition to suing city for personal injuries sustained when he was bitten by police horse which he was attempting to restrain, even though his excuse for failing to serve timely notice was "tenuous" and various accident reports that were filed did not specify that horse was known to have vicious propensities, where city was nonetheless provided with actual notice of accident by virtue of "line of duty injury report" and city failed to show that any prejudice would result from untimely notice. Buono v New York, 133 A.D.2d 685, 519 N.Y.S.2d 855, 1987 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 51722 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1987).

254. — —Knowledge through medical records and statements

In a negligence action against a school district to recover damages for personal injuries, plaintiffs' crossmotion for leave to serve a late notice of claim was properly denied where the crossmotion was made more than one year and 90 days after plaintiff attained his majority, and where the school district's knowledge of the accident and receipt of statements for medical and dental services within 90 days from the date of the accident could not be equated with written notice of the claim. Briganti v Harrison Cent. School Dist., 91 A.D.2d 648, 457 N.Y.S.2d 89, 1982 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 19513 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1982).

In a negligence action following the amputation of plaintiff's cancerous right arm approximately one year after the pathology department of defendant hospital reported that the tumor was benign, leave to serve a late notice of claim under Gen Mun Law § 50-e(5) was properly granted where defendants were themselves in possession of the medical records upon which plaintiff's cause of action was based, defendants could not claim to lack knowledge of the facts constituting the cause of action or that the delay in question substantially prejudiced the defense, and plaintiff properly filed the claim following relief of the medical information from defendants' records. Hamm v Memorial Hospital of Greene County, 99 A.D.2d 638, 472 N.Y.S.2d 189, 1984 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 16870 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1984).

Court would grant application of infant to file late notice of claim to recover for personal injuries sustained in city hospital, as well as mother's derivative claim, where (1) infant was born prematurely at city hospital, placed in incubator and given oxygen, (2) on day after birth, infant was transferred to another hospital because city hospital lacked equipment necessary to treat her, (3) plaintiffs claimed that city hospital administered excess amount of oxygen which caused cerebral palsy, blindness and brain damage, and (4) mother did not consult attorney for almost 4 years because of representations by personnel at both hospitals that infant's injuries were unavoidable and that she would improve in time; city hospital, by virtue of medical records, had actual knowledge of facts constituting claim of malpractice, and record did not show substantial prejudice caused by delay. Quiroz v New York, 154 A.D.2d 315, 546 N.Y.S.2d 604, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13596 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1989).

Plaintiff's motion to file late notice of malpractice claim was properly denied, even though hospital might have had knowledge of circumstances surrounding his treatment from records in its possession, where (1) he did not sufficiently allege malpractice claim, (2) he did not provide reasonable excuse for 8-month delay, and (3) there was no affidavit from plaintiff or doctor but only superficial affidavit from counsel in support of motion. Bailey v New York, 159 A.D.2d 280, 552 N.Y.S.2d 283, 1990 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2635 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1990).

In action against public hospital for alleged malpractice in treatment of hand injury, hospital's possession of treatment records was not sufficient to provide it with actual notice of essential facts constituting claim so as to extend time for filing of notice of claim. Perkins v New York City Health & Hosp. Corp., 167 A.D.2d 150, 561 N.Y.S.2d 230, 1990 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13312 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1990).

Mere possession of hospital records could not be construed as providing New York City Health and Hospitals Corporation with actual knowledge of essential facts constituting claim. Thompson v New York City Health & Hosp. Corp., 172 A.D.2d 433, 569 N.Y.S.2d 10, 1991 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5174 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1991).

Supreme Court erred in denying petition to file late notice of claim for wrongful death and conscious pain of plaintiff's decedent at city hospital, even though notice of claim was not filed until nearly 11 months after incident, since knowledge of claim possessed by hospital from decedent's hospital record was at least coextensive with, if not superior to, knowledge of decedent's representative. Banegas-Nobles v New York City Health & Hosps. Corp., 184 A.D.2d 379, 585 N.Y.S.2d 376, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8525 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1992).

County had actual knowledge of essential facts of claim that it had been negligent in performing lead tests on various properties where its records contained history of plaintiff's medical treatment for elevated lead levels and county's tests of his residences, one of which was found to have lead hazards. Harwood by Murnane v County of Albany, 257 A.D.2d 747, 682 N.Y.S.2d 736, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 26 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1999).

County health department's status as plaintiff's primary healthcare provider, and its possession of all relevant medical records, provided it with essentially contemporaneous knowledge of facts underlying plaintiff's claim, although it may have been unaware of plaintiff's subsequently formed intent to pursue malpractice claim. McLaughlin by McLaughlin v County of Albany, 258 A.D.2d 778, 685 N.Y.S.2d 846, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1183 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1999).

Since a defendant, a municipal medical center, had a plaintiff infant's records it was not prejudiced by her late notice of claim under N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(5) and her claim was tolled under the infancy toll of N.Y. C.P.L.R. 208, so her medical malpractice claim was allowed; but, her mother's derivative claim was not allowed since § 208 did not toll derivative actions. Nardi v County of Westchester, 18 A.D.3d 521, 795 N.Y.S.2d 302, 2005 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5118 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2005).

City hospital's records of a newly born child indicated that she had foot gangrene and had misadventure during her medical care so the city was on notice under N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(5) that it was subject to the child's claim even though the claim was filed four years after her discharge. The city was also not prejudiced by the child's motion, that she made four years after serving the late claim, for the late claim to be allowed since the city acknowledged that it had actually been served with the late claim. Caminero v N.Y. City Health & Hosps. Corp., 21 A.D.3d 330, 800 N.Y.S.2d 173, 2005 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8800 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2005).

255. — —Knowledge through media

Court erroneously granted plaintiff's motion to file late notice of claim against county alleging negligence in design, maintenance, construction and inspection of roadway 229 days after plaintiff's vehicle was damaged when it slid on ice into snowbank, since plaintiff, in support of his contention that county had actual knowledge of essential facts of his claim within 90 days after claim arose, merely submitted undated article from unnamed newspaper indicating occurrence of accident, that plaintiff was issued appearance ticket for travelling too fast for conditions, and letter signed by local residents stating that approximately 14 vehicles had gone off road in same area during period in question, but which did not specifically mention plaintiff's accident. Wencek v County of Chautauqua, 132 A.D.2d 950, 518 N.Y.S.2d 277, 1987 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 49407 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1987).

Student injured in school bus accident was properly granted leave to file late notice of claim against school district where (1) she and 25 other students were taken to hospital after accident, which was front-page story in local media, (2) she was treated at hospital for contusion of head and then released, but later came under her family doctor's care for abdominal and back pain, (3) she was referred to orthopedic surgeon, who surgically removed osteoid osteoma from her spine 19 months after accident, (4) her mother first consulted law firm 7 months after surgery (5) firm promptly prepared motion papers for leave to file late notice and timely made personal service on counsel for district, and (6) district failed to establish that it would be prejudiced; school district was aware of accident on day it occurred and circumstances should have alerted it to undertake thorough investigation of incident. Lamica v Malone Cent. School Dist., 180 A.D.2d 885, 580 N.Y.S.2d 93, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1499 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1992).

Fact that school district may have learned from police investigation and media reports that body had been found at night in its elementary school yard did not suffice to put it on notice that it would be charged with responsibility for decedent's murder. Traylor v Comsewogue Sch. Dist., 265 A.D.2d 332, 696 N.Y.S.2d 219, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9616 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1999).

256. — —Knowledge through letters

In personal injury action against transit company which operated bus owned by county, plaintiff was properly permitted to serve late notice of claim since letters from plaintiff's counsel to transit company, as well as no-fault application signed by plaintiff, coupled with fact that claim was handled by transit company's general counsel who was regularly engaged in representing county in actions occurring on buses operated by transit company, constituted in aggregate sufficient notice of claim within meaning of CLS Gen Mun § 50-e. Losada v Liberty Lines Transit, Inc., 155 A.D.2d 337, 547 N.Y.S.2d 307, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 14311 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1989).

Court abused its discretion in granting petitioner resident of Georgia leave to file late notice of claim against village under CLS Gen Mun § 50-e(5) in connection with injuries she sustained when her automobile was struck by allegedly decayed tree in village, where only timely submission was letter written by Georgia attorney retained by petitioner, which purported to be notice of claim but was not verified, since (1) record did not show that village obtained actual or constructive notice of claim from either letter in question or accident report, in that neither document indicated that tree was located on property owned by village or was in decayed condition, and (2) ignorance of requirements of § 50-e by petitioner's Georgia attorney was not valid excuse for noncompliance. Wertenberger v Briarcliff Manor, 175 A.D.2d 922, 573 N.Y.S.2d 757, 1991 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11316 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1991).

In proceeding for leave to file late notice of claim against town, letters written by petitioner's mother to town 3 weeks after accident gave town actual knowledge of essential facts constituting claim, and thus town suffered no prejudice in maintaining defense on merits. Billone v Huntington, 188 A.D.2d 526, 591 N.Y.S.2d 437, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 14221 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1992).

Letter sent by abutting landowner's insurer to city's commissioner of public works did not establish that city had actual knowledge of claim within statutory period where letter failed to describe location of occurrence with sufficient particularity; statement in letter that petitioner fell "in the vicinity of Phila Street and Broadway" was too vague to enable city to locate sidewalk on which petitioner fell. Jensen v City of Saratoga Springs, 203 A.D.2d 863, 611 N.Y.S.2d 330, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4364 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1994).

Letter, in which tenant asked New York City Housing Authority (NYCHA) for emergency transfer because of incident in which he was shot in stairwell of NYCHA's apartment building, did not give NYCHA actual notice, within 90-day statutory period, of tenant's claim that NYCHA was negligent in failing to take action against assailants, who resided in that building, on basis of their prior criminal activity where letter did not allege that NYCHA had been remiss in failing to remove "nuisance tenants" or in its management of building. Lenoir v New York City Hous. Auth., 240 A.D.2d 497, 658 N.Y.S.2d 140, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6085 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1997).

Tenant's failure to present a notice of claim was not fatal where, based on letters the housing authority received from the tenant, it had actual notice of the essential facts constituting the tenant's claims of breach of warranty of habitability and constructive eviction. Semyonova v N.Y. City Hous. Auth., 15 A.D.3d 181, 789 N.Y.S.2d 38, 2005 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 965 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2005).

257. — —Knowledge through other documents

Denial of leave to file late notice of claim against city housing authority was proper, although petitioner claimed that her niece reported accident to building management within a few days of occurrence and that report contained all relevant information necessary to constitute notice of claim, where there was no documentary evidence or other support in record that report was actually filed. Perez v New York City Housing Authority, 156 A.D.2d 177, 548 N.Y.S.2d 222, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 15289 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1989).

Court did not improvidently exercise its discretion in granting plaintiffs' application to file late notice of claim against city housing authority, although made 6 months after expiration of 90-day period in which to do so, where plaintiffs submitted documentary evidence suggesting that defendant had received earlier actual notice that plaintiffs' apartment lacked heat, as alleged result of which infant plaintiff contracted pneumonia and bronchitis, and there was no showing that delay substantially prejudiced defendant's ability to defend or that conditions had changed. Moore v New York City Housing Authority, 184 A.D.2d 238, 584 N.Y.S.2d 561, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7696 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1992).

258. — —Knowledge through investigations

Former correction officer was entitled to leave to serve late notice of claim against county, even though he failed to offer reasonable excuse for his delay, since record established that county had actual notice of facts surrounding officer's claims for malicious prosecution and civil rights violations within 90 days after claims arose where (1) officer, along with several other officers, had been arrested and prosecuted for assaulting inmate, and was ultimately acquitted, (2) 3 county agencies were involved in investigation, arrest and prosecution of officer, (3) another corrections officer, who had been arrested, prosecuted and acquitted along with officer, had filed timely notice of claim against county, and (4) no actual prejudice was demonstrated by county. Sanchez v County of Westchester, 146 A.D.2d 620, 536 N.Y.S.2d 529, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 477 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1989).

It was error to grant petitioner's motion for order declaring that his notice of claim as to cause of action for conscious pain and suffering be deemed timely served on ground that housing authority had actual notice of occurrence by virtue of ongoing investigation by housing police into murder of petitioner's decedent since that investigation was geared toward finding murderer and not toward preparation of defense in civil suit; moreover, condition of door and locks, which were alleged to have been negligently maintained, may have changed over time, and to reconstruct maintenance procedures of building and interview witnesses one year after incident was more difficult than it would have been had petitioner timely notified authority of his claim. Chattergoon v New York City Housing Authority, 161 A.D.2d 141, 554 N.Y.S.2d 859, 1990 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4879 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't), app. dismissed, 76 N.Y.2d 875, 560 N.Y.S.2d 986, 561 N.E.2d 886, 1990 N.Y. LEXIS 3146 (N.Y. 1990), aff'd, 78 N.Y.2d 958, 574 N.Y.S.2d 934, 580 N.E.2d 406, 1991 N.Y. LEXIS 1003 (N.Y. 1991).

Plaintiff would be granted leave to file late notice of claim against regional off-track betting corporation, notwithstanding lack of strong excuse for delay in filing of notice of claim, where (1) corporation had notice of essential facts constituting claim and commenced investigation at scene of accident, and (2) corporation did not assert that it would be prejudiced by delay in filing of notice of claim. Salvaggio v Western Regional Off-Track Betting Corp., 203 A.D.2d 938, 612 N.Y.S.2d 94, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4944 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1994).

In action by administrator alleging negligence of county in failing to install traffic light at location of accident in which his parents were killed, administrator was entitled to serve late notice of claim under CLS Gen Mun § 50-e(5), even though his explanation for his delay in serving notice of claim after his appointment as administrator was not persuasive, where county investigated circumstances of decedents' accident within 4 months of its occurrence in response to inquiry from public official about traffic accidents at same location, and county conducted study regarding need for traffic light or other safety measures at that intersection. Affleck v County of Nassau, 240 A.D.2d 569, 660 N.Y.S.2d 131, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6607 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1997).

On motion by petitioner, seeking to file late notice of claim for sexual misconduct allegedly committed by correction officer at county jail, court reasonably concluded that county respondents had knowledge of essential facts and would not be prejudiced by late filing where, within 2 weeks of their happening, petitioner had reported incidents to sheriff's department and, shortly thereafter, underlying events were investigated by district attorney's office and sheriff's department. Hunt v County of Madison, 261 A.D.2d 695, 690 N.Y.S.2d 154, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4688 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1999).

Plaintiff's failure to offer reasonable excuse for her delay in filing notice of claim against town was not fatal to her motion for leave to file late notice where (1) she notified town supervisor of first act of alleged sexual harassment immediately after its occurrence and filed internal complaint with town following final alleged act, (2) in response to internal complaint, town hired law firm to investigate allegations, and (3) thus, town received timely actual notice of facts constituting claim and would not be prejudiced by delay. Henderson v Town of Van Buren, 281 A.D.2d 872, 723 N.Y.S.2d 282, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2708 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 2001).

Late notice of claim was allowed under N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(5) against city's hospital corporation where it had timely actual notice of the underlying facts of the patient's claim and its ambulance driver and attendants who committed the acts complained of were not shown to be unavailable for investigation. The corporation was not prejudiced. Gibbs v City of New York, 22 A.D.3d 717, 804 N.Y.S.2d 393, 2005 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11432 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2005).

259. — — —Police investigations

In an action by the wife of a county police officer, seeking leave to serve a late notice of claim against the county, after the wife was stabbed her husband following the county's failure to provide her with protection, leave would be granted where the county had actual knowledge of all the facts that were relevant to the wife's claim shortly after it arose, in view of the investigation by the county's police department, and the department's request that the wife co-operate with the department in locating her husband and in persuading him to seek psychiatric evaluation. Weinzel v County of Suffolk, 92 A.D.2d 545, 459 N.Y.S.2d 112, 1983 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 16767 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1983).

It was proper to grant petitioner leave to serve late notice of claim where (1) county, through active investigation by its police department for month prior to petitioner's arrest, had actual knowledge of facts relevant to claims for false arrest, false imprisonment and malicious prosecution, (2) county did not assert any prejudice from delay, and (3) petitioner's counsel promptly moved for appropriate relief on being retained by petitioner. Reisse v County of Nassau, 141 A.D.2d 649, 529 N.Y.S.2d 371, 1988 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6644 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1988).

Plaintiffs should have been allowed to file late notice of claim pursuant to CLS Gen Mun § 50-e(5) to recover damages for assault and battery, wrongful arrest, false imprisonment, malicious prosecution, and violations of federal Civil Rights Act, even though they had no acceptable excuse for delay, where they had filed civilian complaint report, facts and circumstances surrounding incident were investigated by civilian complaint review board, and incident was investigated by police in preparation for criminal prosecution of plaintiffs; thus, knowledge of facts constituting claims would be imputed to city. Goodall v New York, 179 A.D.2d

Petitioner was entitled to leave to file late notice of claim against housing authority where police file sufficiently indicated that its investigation into death of petitioner's decedent, while it undoubtedly focused on solving homicide, also paid close attention, through preservation of physical evidence and interviews with building personnel, to condition of apartment locks and their maintenance, thus providing housing authority with actual knowledge of underlying facts. Chattergoon v New York City Hous. Auth., 197 A.D.2d 397, 602 N.Y.S.2d 381, 1993 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9481 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1993).

Even if it were assumed that New York City Housing Authority (NYCHA) police conducted investigation into incident in which infant petitioner was shot at public housing project in outburst of drug-related gang warfare, such investigation did not necessarily mean that NYCHA acquired actual knowledge of essential facts constituting claim, as required for leave to file late notice of claim under CLS Gen Mun § 50-e(5), since police investigation into crime is geared toward finding perpetrator and not toward preparation of possible claim for pain and suffering on basis of alleged negligence of NYCHA. Russ v New York City Hous. Auth., 198 A.D.2d 361, 603 N.Y.S.2d 338, 1993 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10581 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1993).

State Police investigation report did not provide actual knowledge to county that it was being charged with responsibility for accident in which plaintiff's decedent was electrocuted while performing work at county court building where there was nothing in report that could connect accident with any failure of county to provide safe place to work. Weber v County of Suffolk, 208 A.D.2d 527, 616 N.Y.S.2d 807, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9356 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1994).

Court should have granted petitioner's request for leave to file late notice of claim against city as to false arrest and false imprisonment causes of action, as delay was not lengthy and city could not claim that it was prejudiced by delay in that knowledge of essential facts could be imputed to city where police department conducted extensive investigation in which district attorney's office participated during statutory period. Grullon v City of New York, 222 A.D.2d 257, 635 N.Y.S.2d 24, 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12829 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1995).

Plaintiffs failed to show that city had actual notice of accident by virtue of police investigation where no police reports were included in motion papers and plaintiffs offered no proof that police investigation of accident would have provided city with notice of their claim that fence and grounds had been negligently maintained near creek in which decedent drowned. Mack v City of New York, 265 A.D.2d 308, 696 N.Y.S.2d 206, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9622 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1999), app. denied, 94 N.Y.2d 763, 708 N.Y.S.2d 51, 729 N.E.2d 708, 2000 N.Y. LEXIS 580 (N.Y. 2000).

260. — —Knowledge through insurer

The trial court did not abuse its discretion when it granted plaintiff, who had been injured when her automobile collided with defendant's fire engine, leave to file a late notice of claim pursuant to Gen Mun Law § 50-e(5), where within 90 days after the accident, defendant's insurer was made aware of the incident, for plaintiff's no-fault carrier, with whom a claim had been filed, and defendant's insurer were the same, defendant's employees were present and involved in the collision, and there was nothing in the record to suggest defendant would suffer by reason of the late service of the notice of claim; timely actual notice in the absence of demonstrable prejudice having been established, tardy filing was hardly of moment, even if it be styled as "law office failure". Whitehead v Centerville Fire Dist., 90 A.D.2d 655, 456 N.Y.S.2d 450, 1982 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 18731 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1982).

Court properly allowed service of late notice of claim on county, in action for injuries sustained when petitioner fell down steps of public bus owned and operated by county, where (1) claims adjuster for county contacted petitioner within one week of accident and had her fill out no-fault claim and authorization to obtain her medical records, (2) petitioner retained counsel within 2 months of accident, and (3) timely notice of claim was not served as result of law office failure; despite counsel's insufficient explanation for failure to timely serve notice and prejudice to county caused by delay, county had timely notice of accident and court would not make petitioner suffer for her counsel's actions. Fast v County of Broome, 151 A.D.2d 930, 543 N.Y.S.2d 203, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8869 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1989).

Court would permit late service of notice of claim where defendant and its insurance carrier had actual notice of essential facts within reasonable time, especially since ongoing discussion with defendant's insurer could have contributed to delay. Burke v Capital Dist. Regional Off-Track Betting Corp., 137 Misc. 2d 448, 521 N.Y.S.2d 205, 1987 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2650 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1987).

261. — —Defendant's property involved in incident

Petitioner would be granted leave to file late notice of claim against county pursuant to CLS Gen Mun § 50-e(5) where (1) county acquired actual knowledge of events relevant to claim by virtue of fact that vehicle which collided with petitioner's vehicle was sheriff's department vehicle, and (2) county failed to demonstrate prejudice from 2-month delay in filing of notice of claim. DeAngelis v County of Dutchess, 159 A.D.2d 706, 553 N.Y.S.2d 1012, 1990 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3637 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1990).

Court did not abuse its discretion in granting petitioner's application under CLS Gen Mun § 50-e(5) for leave to serve late notice of claim against school district for injuries sustained in collision with district's vehicle, notwithstanding petitioner's failure to allege reasonable excuse for delay, where district's vehicle was damaged in accident and towed from scene, police report was prepared, and district (and presumably its insurance carrier) thus had immediate notice of accident and adequate opportunity to investigate it. Krohn v Berne-Knox-Westerlo Cent. School Dist., 168 A.D.2d 826, 563 N.Y.S.2d 958, 1990 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 15495 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1990).

Plaintiff, who was injured in auto accident with police department vehicle, was entitled to serve late notice of claim where department's vehicle was damaged and towed from scene, all 3 individuals involved were injured and taken from scene by ambulance, police accident report was prepared and photographs were taken, and department conducted investigation within 90 days after accident; fact that police accident report attributed cause of accident to other driver's failure to yield right of way did not establish that department had no actual notice of claim. McAdams v Police Dep't of Clarkstown, 184 A.D.2d 847, 584 N.Y.S.2d 343, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7666 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1992).

City had actual notice of accident, and late notice of claim was properly allowed, where claimant's vehicle was hit by city fire chief's vehicle during course of duty, city police accident report was made, fire department incident report was made, and investigation was conducted by board of fire wardens. Continental Ins. Co. v City of Rye, 257 A.D.2d 573, 683 N.Y.S.2d 585, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 129 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1999).

Permission will be granted under § 50-e to file a claim against a municipality after the expiration of the time limit for filing a claim where the claimant was hospitalized during the entire period and attempted to file his claim immediately upon release and the injury occurred in a collision with a vehicle owned by the municipality and driven by its servant so that it can be said the municipality must have known of the possible claim and its circumstances at the time of injury. Williams v Albany, 85 N.Y.S.2d 799, 193 Misc. 1037, 1949 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1701 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1949).

262. — —Miscellaneous; knowledge found

Permitting extension of time for filing notice of claim for death of claimant's decedent from alleged negligence and assault by police officers in employ of defendant village was not abuse of discretion where it appeared that village had acquired actual knowledge within 90-day period, since there had been disciplinary proceedings against officers, and no prejudice would result. Van Horn v New Paltz, 57 A.D.2d 642, 393 N.Y.S.2d 218, 1977 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11669 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1977).

Pursuant to Gen Mun Law § 50-e, subd. 5 and CPLR 203 subd. [c], which should be considered in the same vein as CPLR 208, airport lessee was entitled to serve a late notice of counterclaims against the county lessor where the potential for injustice was apparent if the lessee was deprived of its counterclaims, where the lessor, in suing to recover for the loss arising from the alleged breach of contract or negligence of the lessee, was fully aware of the circumstancres surrounding the fire and could not be harmed by the filing of a late notice of claim, and where there was no valid reason why the opposing claim should not be adjudicated in the one action. County of Westchester v Edo Corp., 83 A.D.2d 829, 441 N.Y.S.2d 553, 1981 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 15201 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1981).

In a patient's medical malpractice action against a city hospital, the patient's application to serve a late notice of claim on the city would be granted where the patient had been unaware of any negligence of the hospital in treating an injury to his right knee until the patient was informed by his physician of the possibility of negligence a considerable time after the treatment, and where the city and hospital had actual knowledge of the essential facts constituting the claim within 90 days after the claim arose. Ansaldo v New York, 92 A.D.2d 557, 459 N.Y.S.2d 302, 1983 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 16787 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1983).

In personal injury action against county, inmate would be permitted to serve late notice of claim despite her lack of acceptable excuse for failure to serve timely notice since her injury occurred while she was incarcerated and she was treated at county medical center; county apparently had actual knowledge of essential facts of claim, and there was no indication that it was substantially prejudiced by delay. Rodriguez v County of Nassau, 126 A.D.2d 536, 510 N.Y.S.2d 658, 1987 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 41673 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1987).

Petitioner was entitled to leave to file late notice of claim against city for damages stemming from wrongful demolition of 3 of his buildings where he alleged that buildings were demolished between early October and early November, but that he did not know of demolition until following late January or early February; having ordered demolition and retained contractor for such purpose, city had timely actual knowledge of essential facts of claim. Norstrand v Rochester, 159 A.D.2d 1019, 552 N.Y.S.2d 465, 1990 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3346 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1990).

Petitioner was entitled to serve late notice of claim on city housing authority where (1) authority had actual notice of defective condition on premises and happening of accident resulting therefrom, (2) authority's employee had repaired condition within statutory period for serving notice, and (3) application for leave was made only 10 days after expiration of statutory deadline, rendering it unlikely that authority was prejudiced. Licari v New York City Housing Authority, 181 A.D.2d 558, 582 N.Y.S.2d 3, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3763 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1992).

Court did not abuse its discretion in permitting late filing of notice of claim against school district where (1) application was made about 15 months after accident in which 5-year-old girl fell from top of 12-foot high slide at school, (2) school district was notified of accident on Monday following accident, and (3) slide was still in same condition at same site. Andersen v Brewster Cent. Sch. Dist., 189 A.D.2d 1068, 593 N.Y.S.2d 91, 1993 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 765 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1993).

Infant plaintiff would be granted leave to serve late notice of claim against city housing authority about 5 months after 90-day time limit contained in CLS Gen Mun § 50-e(5) where (1) housing authority acquired actual knowledge of essential facts constituting claim on day that its employee allegedly raped and assaulted 14-year-old infant plaintiff in her apartment, (2) housing authority failed to show prejudice, and (3) it was likely that housing authority possessed records of its employee's work history and performance, including any reported misconduct, necessary to maintain defense against claim. Trudy W. v Morales, 190 A.D.2d 531, 593 N.Y.S.2d 32, 1993 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 874 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1993).

Court should have granted claimant's motion for permission to file late notice of claim pursuant to CLS Gen Mun § 50-e(5) where county had knowledge of essential facts constituting claim within period specified in CLS Gen Mun § 50-e(1)(a) for filing notice of claim, part of reason for failure to file timely notice of claim was claimant's erroneous identification of governmental entity involved, period of unexcused delay was relatively short, and county failed to demonstrate that it suffered prejudice by reason of delay. Nickerson v County of Jefferson, 199 A.D.2d 1070, 608 N.Y.S.2d 906, 1993 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12719 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1993).

Petitioner was entitled to serve late notice of claim under CLS Gen Mun § 50-e(5) where city had actual knowledge of essential facts of claim within 90 days of its accrual, and thus no substantial prejudice to city resulted from delay. Canty v City of New York, 273 A.D.2d 467, 711 N.Y.S.2d 750, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7386 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2000).

Court should have allowed petitioner to serve late notice of claim against respondent New York City School Construction Authority, although reasonableness of excuse for 7-day delay was open to question, where respondent had actual knowledge of essential facts of claim and failed to show that it was prejudiced by short delay. Urgiles v N.Y. City Sch. Constr. Auth., 283 A.D.2d 434, 723 N.Y.S.2d 876, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4708 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2001).

School district was not substantially prejudiced as result of 14-year-old student's 10-month delay in filing notice of claim in connection with accident on school football field where it had immediate actual knowledge of essential facts of incident, it could obtain complete information through proper exercise of discovery, it did not assert that coaches who witnessed incident or trainer who initially examined student and allegedly misdiagnosed his injuries were unavailable, and it did not show that memories of potential witnesses had faded so much that its ability to maintain defense was unduly undermined. Welch v Bd. of Educ., 287 A.D.2d 761, 731 N.Y.S.2d 94, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9309 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2001).

In a replevin action to recover $4,015.06 in cash held by the police property clerk of the New York City Police Department, the money having been seized at a "Las Vegas Nite" sponsored by the plaintiff, the defendants cannot avoid return of the property by raising as an affirmative defense the failure of the plaintiff to file a notice of claim pursuant to section 50-e of the General Municipal Law since the record establishes that the defendants had substantial actual notice of the plaintiff's claim constituting compliance with the statute's notice of claim provision. Williamsburg Volunteer Ambulance Corps v Wendt, 95 Misc. 2d 414, 408 N.Y.S.2d 207, 1978 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2441 (N.Y. Civ. Ct. 1978).

263. — —Miscellaneous; knowledge not found

The trial court properly denied a claimant's motion to serve and file a late notice of claim against a municipality where claimant failed to show that the public corporation timely acquired actual knowledge of the essential facts which constituted the claim. In affirming the denial of claimant's motion, the reviewing court would note that, had claimant demonstrated that the chief of police had timely acquired knowledge, it would have constituted knowledge of the municipality, in that the claimed knowledge would have been that of the person having authority over the police department and responsibility for the conduct of the individuals involved. Cooper v Rochester, 84 A.D.2d 947, 446 N.Y.S.2d 644, 1981 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 16221 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1981).

Actual knowledge of municipality of essential facts constituting claim is not established merely by assertion that municipality created dangerous condition and that condition had not changed over time period after accident. Kravitz v County of Rockland, 112 A.D.2d 352, 491 N.Y.S.2d 802, 1985 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 56487 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1985), aff'd, 67 N.Y.2d 685, 499 N.Y.S.2d 941, 490 N.E.2d 860, 1986 N.Y. LEXIS 16625 (N.Y. 1986).

Municipality's actual knowledge of death underlying parent's claim for emotional distress does not establish municipality's knowledge of parent's claim. Bullard v New York, 118 A.D.2d 447, 499 N.Y.S.2d 880, 1986 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 54337 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1986).

It was abuse of discretion to permit claimant to file late notices of claim under CLS Gen Mun § 50-e where claimant asserted only that there was "distinct possibility" that one or more defendants acquired actual knowledge of accident within 90 days of its occurrence, which defendants denied; it was all but impossible to reconstruct circumstances existing at time of accident because accident occurred at active construction site. Thom v Wappingers Falls, 131 A.D.2d 855, 517 N.Y.S.2d 214, 1987 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 48290 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1987).

Fact that first attorney representing tenant whose child suffered lead poisoning from ingestion of paint chips in apartment was part-time assistant corporation counsel for city did not operate to give city notice of tenant's claim that city had acted negligently in issuing certificate of occupancy for purposes of permission to serve late notice of claim pursuant to CLS Gen Mun § 50-e(5). Logan v Albany, 154 A.D.2d 861, 546 N.Y.S.2d 722, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13419 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1989).

In action arising from death of inmate at county jail due to asthmatic bronchitis, plaintiff was not entitled to file late notice of claim on ground that county acquired actual knowledge of essential facts of claim from events themselves or any subsequent investigation, in absence of allegation that any county employee participated in negligent acts; plaintiff alleged that negligence of sheriff's department caused death of inmate, and county is generally not liable for acts of sheriff or deputies. Bowman v Campbell, 193 A.D.2d 921, 597 N.Y.S.2d 772, 1993 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4856 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), app. dismissed, in part, app. denied, 82 N.Y.2d 740, 602 N.Y.S.2d 796, 622 N.E.2d 296, 1993 N.Y. LEXIS 3095 (N.Y. 1993).

Petitioner was properly granted leave to file late notice of claim pursuant to CLS Gen Mun § 50-e where notice was served only 16 days after expiration of 90-day time limit for service of notice, and respondent received actual notice of incident on day following its occurrence. Turner v City of New York, 203 A.D.2d 294, 612 N.Y.S.2d 894, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3137 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1994).

Plaintiffs could not rely on rejected notice of claim to establish city's actual knowledge of accident where that notice was served without leave of court and was therefore nullity. Mack v City of New York, 265 A.D.2d 308, 696 N.Y.S.2d 206, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9622 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1999), app. denied, 94 N.Y.2d 763, 708 N.Y.S.2d 51, 729 N.E.2d 708, 2000 N.Y. LEXIS 580 (N.Y. 2000).

Supreme court abused its discretion in granting a patient's motion for leave to serve a late notice of claim approximately 10 years after the alleged malpractice occurred, as: (1) the 10-year delay was not the product of the patient's infancy, and the fact that the patient was not aware of the requirement to serve a notice of claim within 90 days of its accrual was not a reasonable excuse for the failure to do so; (2) the appeals court was not persuaded that the doctors had actual notice of the claim within the requisite 90-day period, or within a reasonable time thereafter; and (3) the patient failed to establish that the doctors would not be substantially prejudiced in maintaining their defense on the merits as a result of the lengthy delay in moving for leave to serve a late notice of claim. Williams v Nassau County Med. Ctr., 13 A.D.3d 363, 786 N.Y.S.2d 207, 2004 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 14888 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2004), aff'd, 6 N.Y.3d 531, 814 N.Y.S.2d 580, 847 N.E.2d 1154, 2006 N.Y. LEXIS 650 (N.Y. 2006).

@(L)CLS/GMU $ 50-e n 183 Act(NEW{183.} Actual knowledge of facts constituting claim) @(P)Order granting an infant leave to file a late notice of claim against a school district for injuries suffered in cheerleader practice was error because, although the school district had knowledge of the accident and the injury, its knowledge was not actual knowledge of the essential facts of the claim; nowhere in the injury report filed by the infant's mother was there an allegation of the basis of the infant's negligence claim, which was that certain cheerleaders were either too small to catch the infant during a particular stunt or that the infant had told her coach her dissatisfaction with the team members. Among other things, the infant conceded that she deliberately delayed presentation of a claim because she did not want to involve her coach and the other cheerleaders, and failed to establish that the school district was not substantially prejudiced by the delay in several respects. Matter of Felice v Eastport/South Manor Cent. School Dist., 50 A.D.3d 138, 851 N.Y.S.2d 218, 2008 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 627 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2008).

264. —Examination of claimant after filing late notice

A city is not barred from prosecuting an appeal from an order permitting a claimant to serve notices of claim after the period set forth in this section had expired because the city comptroller examined the claimants upon the claim after notice was filed pursuant to the order. Fabricant v New York, 273 A.D. 975, 78 N.Y.S.2d 277, 1948 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5560 (N.Y. App. Div. 1948), aff'd, 298 N.Y. 818, 83 N.E.2d 862, 298 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 818, 1949 N.Y. LEXIS 1684 (N.Y. 1949).

Even though motorist who asserted claim against city arising out of collision with city-owned vehicle was examined by city, where notice of claim served by ordinary mail was received by city more than 90 days after accident, there was no compliance with statute relieving claimant of statutory duty of serving notice of claim by registered mail within 90 days after claim arises if notice is actually received within such time period and there is an examination of claimant. Adkins v New York, 51 A.D.2d 944, 381 N.Y.S.2d 485, 1976 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11645 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1976), aff'd, 43 N.Y.2d 346, 401 N.Y.S.2d 469, 372 N.E.2d 311, 1977 N.Y. LEXIS 2469 (N.Y. 1977).

The Westchester County Playland Commission was not estopped to assert failure to serve notice of claim against it as required by this section by mere service of notice on claimant to appear for examination, there being nothing to indicate that an examination actually took place. Menter v Westchester County Playland Com., 42 Misc. 2d 5, 247 N.Y.S.2d 3, 1964 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2144 (N.Y. County Ct. 1964).

Where notice of claim against a county was timely served but not in the manner prescribed by law, and referred within 90 days after the claim arose to defendant's insurance carrier which proceeded to investigate the claim and interview claimants and conduct a physical examination of the allegedly injured wife, service of notice of claim could be deemed valid under subd 3 of this section. May v Suffolk County Police Dep't, 236 N.Y.S.2d 933 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1962).

265. —Request for statement of damages

While a municipality may be estopped from setting up the defense of failure timely to file a notice of claim by acts done within the 90 day period upon which a claimant may justifiably rely, such as asking for a list of special damages, offer to talk settlement and arranging for a physical examination, there can be no estoppel where no such acts are shown to have occurred within the 90 day period and there is no showing that claimant relied on any such acts. Johnson v Board of Education, 33 A.D.2d 647, 305 N.Y.S.2d 89, 1969 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2937 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1969).

266. —Settlement representations

It was formerly the rule that failure to give the notice of claim to a village required by § 341 of the Village Law and § 50-e of the General Municipal Law, within the time prescribed, is not excused by the fact it was induced by representations of certain village officers and the insurance company protecting the village against negligence claims. Parsons v Dannemora, 275 A.D. 738, 87 N.Y.S.2d 71, 1949 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4253 (N.Y. App. Div. 1949).

While a municipality may be estopped from setting up the defense of failure timely to file a notice of claim by acts done within the 90 day period upon which a claimant may justifiably rely, such as asking for a list of special damages, offer to talk settlement and arranging for a physical examination, there can be no estoppel where no such acts are shown to have occurred within the 90 day period and there is no showing that claimant relied on any such acts. Johnson v Board of Education, 33 A.D.2d 647, 305 N.Y.S.2d 89, 1969 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2937 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1969).

Although a surviving spouse's claim for an insurance premium refund was untimely under N.Y. Educ. Law § 3813(2-b), a school district's employees' affirmative representations that a full refund was forthcoming estopped the district from asserting a notice of claim defense; therefore, the trial court erred in denying the spouse's application to file a late notice of claim pursuant to N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e and the spouse was entitled to file a late notice of claim for the year immediately preceding the notice of the overpayment. Palka v Union Endicott Cent. Sch. Dist., 2 A.D.3d 1174, 770 N.Y.S.2d 178, 2003 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13926 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2003).

Where there was no service of a written notice of claim, the action of the representatives of a municipality and its insurer in proceeding with the investigation of an accident, in discussing and negotiating with the claimant concerning their responsibility for the accident and in arranging for the medical care of the claimant, could not be construed as a waiver of the statutory requirements for formal notice of claim. Millard v Lewis, 17 Misc. 2d 698, 185 N.Y.S.2d 708, 1959 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 4054 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1959).

Parents of student injured in physical education class had cause of action against school's insurer on theory that insurer by false representations that insurer would pay for all injuries and damages advised parents not to file notice of claim as provided for by General Municipal Law. Trombley v Merchants Mut. Ins. Co., 79 Misc. 2d 742, 360 N.Y.S.2d 829, 1974 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1742 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1974).

Absence of any written representation by insurer of school that parents of student injured in physical education class would be paid for all injuries and damage sustained did not bar direct tort action by parents against insurer which allegedly made false representations in reliance on which parents did not file notice of claim required by General Municipal Law. Trombley v Merchants Mut. Ins. Co., 79 Misc. 2d 742, 360 N.Y.S.2d 829, 1974 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1742 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1974).

267. —Timeliness of objection to late filing

Upon a motion to set aside a verdict against it, the defendant's failure to move, prior to trial, against the plaintiff's cause of action because of the alleged late filing of a notice of claim, did not preclude the defendant from raising the issue upon such motion. Camarella v East Irondequoit Cent. School Board, 68 Misc. 2d 123, 326 N.Y.S.2d 350, 1971 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1088 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1971), modified, 41 A.D.2d 29, 341 N.Y.S.2d 729, 1973 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5050 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1973).

268. —Other acts constituting waiver

Cases raising issue whether plaintiffs, who filed timely notices of malpractice claims against municipal hospitals with New York City, should be permitted to file notice of claim nunc pro tunc with city's health and hospitals corporation under doctrine of estoppel, would be remitted for consideration of facts relative to allegations that inter alia, corporation and city refrained for a time from applying statute requiring filing of notice of claim with corporation, that date of transfer of responsibilities was not publicly discoverable and that inaction of city and its corporation counsel was attributable to corporation. Bender v New York City Health & Hospitals Corp., 38 N.Y.2d 662, 382 N.Y.S.2d 18, 345 N.E.2d 561, 1976 N.Y. LEXIS 2305 (N.Y. 1976).

The trial court properly granted an infant plaintiff's motion to file under Gen Mun Law § 50-e a late notice of claim against a county for injuries plaintiff suffered when the bicycle he was riding was struck by an automobile along a public highway in the county, although the motion was made four years after the occurrence of the accident, where the results of timely and detailed investigations conducted by other defendants in the action would be available to the county and where much necessary information was contained in the county's own records and reports. Monte v Rochester, 81 A.D.2d 678, 437 N.Y.S.2d 796, 1981 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11222 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1981).

Any delay on the part of plaintiffs in a medical malpractice action in serving the notice of claim and in commencing the action was attributable solely to the acts and omissions of defendants in failing promptly to furnish plaintiffs with the hospital record which contained the evidentiary matter upon which the action was based, and which for a period of over two years following plaintiffs' request had been kept from their counsel's view. Under the circumstances, service of the notice of claim, pursuant to Gen Mun Law § 50-e, approximately 32 months after the operation complained of was timely, and the commencement of the action 49 days thereafter was also within the time limit mandated by Gen Mun Law § 50-i. Cassidy v County of Nassau, 84 A.D.2d 742, 443 N.Y.S.2d 742, 1981 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 15908 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1981).

City did not waive plaintiff's noncompliance with notice of claim requirement of CLS Gen Mun § 50-e, even though city's failure to specifically deny, in its answer, certain paragraph in complaint constituted admission of factual allegation that notice of claim was served after expiration of 90-day filing period, since city's omission was not admission of pleaded legal conclusion that service was timely, particularly where answer asserted, as affirmative defense, complaint's failure to state cause of action. Curtis Case, Inc. v Port Jervis, 150 A.D.2d 421, 541 N.Y.S.2d 32, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6484 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1989).

Court properly granted applications under CLS Gen Mun § 50-e(5) for leave to file late notices of claim for injuries sustained in fall at construction site, although respondent city asserted lack of opportunity to investigate radically changed work site, since nature of accident location as construction site made it highly unlikely that conditions existing at time of accident would still have existed even if claims had been timely filed. Gorinshek v Johnstown, 186 A.D.2d 335, 588 N.Y.S.2d 208, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10808 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1992).

Defendant waived its right to assert that plaintiff failed to file notice of claim under CLS Gen Mun § 50-e where (1) answer interposed affirmative defense that plaintiff failed to state cause of action, but made no reference to any requirement that filing of notice of claim was required, (2) on receipt of answer, but prior to expiration of one-year-and-90-day limitations period of CLS Gen Mun § 50-i, plaintiff moved to strike affirmative defense, (3) defendant chose not to oppose motion and permitted affirmative defense to be unconditionally stricken from answer, and (4) as soon as limitations period expired, defendant moved to dismiss on ground that plaintiff failed to file notice of claim. Jeshurin v Liberty Lines Transit, Inc., 191 A.D.2d 412, 594 N.Y.S.2d 321, 1993 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1800 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1993).

In personal injury action arising from accident on school grounds, city was not estopped from asserting that it was improper party on basis that it negligently prevented plaintiff from making motion to serve late notice of claim on board of education in compliance with CLS Gen Mun § 50-e and CLS Educ § 3813(2), since city's answer clearly indicated that, while it owned school property on which accident occurred, school was operated, maintained, and controlled by board of education. Campbell v City of New York, 203 A.D.2d 504, 611 N.Y.S.2d 248, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4289 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1994).

Where the noncompliance of the plaintiff with the above statute was caused by defendant's conduct in unlawfully placing the plaintiff under restraint, it will not be heard to complain of his failure to comply with the conditions precedent to the beginning of an action specified in such statute. Caminito v New York, 45 Misc. 2d 241, 256 N.Y.S.2d 670, 1965 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2278 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1965), aff'd in part, modified, 25 A.D.2d 848, 269 N.Y.S.2d 826, 1966 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4364 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1966).

Estoppel of the city to contest the timeliness of the plaintiff's filing of a notice of claim in a libel and slander action did not present a question of an extension of time to file, or of waiver thereof, but only of the disability or disqualification of the city to raise the claim of plaintiff's alleged late filing. Sorge v New York, 56 Misc. 2d 414, 288 N.Y.S.2d 787, 1968 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1650 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1968).

269. —Procedural considerations

Although estoppel of city to assert defense of nontimely filing of notice of claim might best be asserted by motion to file claim nunc pro tunc, with fact issues to be litigated prior to trial, alternative of alleging facts constituting estoppel in complaint is permissible. Clienhans v Southern Cab Corp., 54 A.D.2d 672, 387 N.Y.S.2d 847, 1976 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 14204 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1976).

Where contention was made at special term and on appeal that an estoppel was established against housing authority with respect to late filing of notices of claim, arising from collision with vehicle driven by housing authority officer, by virtue of acts or omissions on part of housing authority, and where contention was not fully litigated in trial court, which ruled for petitioners on another ground, proceeding would be remitted to trial court for a consideration of evidentiary facts as to whether estoppel was established against housing authority. Barrow v New York City Housing Authority, 59 A.D.2d 780, 398 N.Y.S.2d 901, 1977 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13837 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1977).

Court properly denied motion to amend notice of claim, complaint, and bill of particulars to correct date on which plaintiff allegedly slipped and fell on accumulation of paper handouts in subway station, as plaintiff's 5-year delay in seeking to amend original notice of claim, together with repetition of erroneous date in complaint, bill of particulars, and statutory hearing and deposition, frustrated defendant's ability to timely interview witnesses and otherwise prejudiced its ability to investigate. Davis v New York City Transit Auth., 234 A.D.2d 153, 651 N.Y.S.2d 31, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12547 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1996).

270. —Amount of delay

In an action against the city brought by a patron of a tavern who was struck in the face by a bullet fired by a police officer during the pursuit of an alleged criminal, the notice of claim would be deemed to have been timely filed where it had been filed only one day late after counsel had miscalculated the appropriate date, where several agents of the city had actual notice of the claim within hours after the incident, where the city had participated in a hearing concerning the incident, where no prejudice had been claimed, and where the city had not raised the defense of untimeliness until some 15 months after receipt of the notice of claim. King v New York, 88 A.D.2d 891, 452 N.Y.S.2d 607, 1982 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 17213 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't), app. denied, 90 A.D.2d 714, 1982 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 18896 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1982).

In a proceeding by a former school superintendent against a county civil service commission alleging fraud, abuse of process, infliction of mental distress and other torts, the trial court improperly denied claimant's motion for leave to serve a late notice of claim pursuant to Gen Mun Law § 50-e, where one year after claimant's original notification that the determination dismissing him had been affirmed he received a letter from the then manager of the commission alleging that in determining to affirm his dismissal the commission had improperly considered unrelated criminal charges pending against him and claimant's application for leave to serve a late notice of claim was made one month after the receipt of said letter, in that when discovery of the facts underlying the claim is delayed through no fault of claimant, the delay in serving a notice of claim is justified and claimant or prompt service of the application gave the county actual notice of incident within a reasonable time; in determining an application pursuant to Gen Mun Law § 50-e(5) a showing that the proposed action is meritorious is not required. Stevenson v County of Monroe, 97 A.D.2d 969, 468 N.Y.S.2d 761, 1983 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 20799 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1983), aff'd, 63 N.Y.2d 963, 483 N.Y.S.2d 987, 473 N.E.2d 237, 1984 N.Y. LEXIS 4735 (N.Y. 1984).

The Supreme Court erred in denying leave to serve a late notice of claim against a city transit authority based on accident a subway train which derailed served his notice of claim two days after expiration of the 90-day statutory period where the accident concerned many people, and was a major disaster, so that defendant had actual knowledge of the occurrence, and where no prejudice resulted to defendant from the two-day delay in serving notice of claim, and where the notice allegedly was not filed earlier because plaintiff initially believed that his injury was more minor than it was. Annis v New York City Transit Authority, 108 A.D.2d 643, 485 N.Y.S.2d 529, 1985 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 42997 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1985).

Plaintiff who was 4 months pregnant when she slipped and fell on patch of ice while walking on public sidewalk would be granted leave to serve notice of personal injury claim against city 18 days after expiration of 90-day statutory period and 4 days after consulting counsel since, given transitory nature of alleged injury-causing condition, city's investigation of claim would be no more hindered on 108th day after accident than it would have been if notice had been served within 90-day period. Rosenblatt v New York, 160 A.D.2d 927, 554 N.Y.S.2d 800, 1990 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4835 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1990).

Court did not improvidently exercise its discretion in granting petitioner's application to file late notice of claim for injuries sustained in trip and fall on city sidewalk, where proposed notice was served on city less than 5 weeks after expiration of 90-day filing period, and allegedly defective condition of sidewalk was of long duration. Irizarry v City of Yonkers, 193 A.D.2d 746, 597 N.Y.S.2d 729, 1993 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4876 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1993).

It was abuse of discretion to deny claimants' motion to serve late notice of claim on water authority where claimants presented evidence that authority had actual knowledge of accident within days of its occurrence, accident involved infant, 6-month time period between expiration of 90-day notice of claim period and claimants' motion was comparatively short period of delay, and it was uncontradicted that site of infant's accident remained unchanged. Reed v City of Lackawanna, 221 A.D.2d 967, 633 N.Y.S.2d 912, 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13458 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1995).

Claimant was not entitled to serve late notice of claim under CLS Gen Mun § 50-e(5) where he failed to proffer reasonable excuse for waiting more than 5 months after expiration of 90-day period to commence proceeding against city, and there was no evidence that city had actual notice of essential facts constituting claim. Hunt v City of New Rochelle, 223 A.D.2d 643, 637 N.Y.S.2d 17, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 424 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1996).

Where plaintiff's attorney, with the properly executed notice of claim on his person, called at the only office listed in the telephone directory for the respondent, made a tender of notice of claim at the Authority's personnel department at its main office, and was prevented from effectuating such service by Authority employees on June 23, 1965, and thereafter served the notice on June 24, 1965, one day after the expiration of the 90-day period, the Supreme Court will treat the notice of claim as validly filed. Ware v Manhattan & Bronx Surface Transit Operating Authority, 49 Misc. 2d 704, 268 N.Y.S.2d 519, 1965 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1470 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1965).

271. —Change of conditions or circumstances

Petitioner would not be granted leave to serve late notice of claim against city where there was real danger that changed conditions would prevent accurate reconstruction of circumstances existing at time accident occurred, even though city did not clearly demonstrate prejudice due to 14-month delay and petitioner contended that premises remained unchanged. Perry v New York, 133 A.D.2d 692, 519 N.Y.S.2d 862, 1987 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 51728 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1987).

272. —Fault or error by defendant

Where the motion for permission to serve a notice of claim was filed 108 days after treatment of plaintiff for a cut wrist was concluded by the city hospital, but far less than 90 days after the plaintiff's subsequent surgery or the examination by the second hospital which referred him to the subsequent surgeon, who told him that internal muscles and ligaments which were severed in the accident had not been sutured before the external wound had been closed at the city hospital, discretion should have been exercised to grant the application for leave to serve a late notice of claim against the city hospital for alleged medical malpractice. Castano v New York City Health & Hospitals Corp., 83 A.D.2d 836, 441 N.Y.S.2d 565, 1981 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 15206 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1981).

Any delay on the part of plaintiffs in a medical malpractice action in serving the notice of claim and in commencing the action was attributable solely to the acts and omissions of defendants in failing promptly to furnish plaintiffs with the hospital record which contained the evidentiary matter upon which the action was based, and which for a period of over two years following plaintiffs' request had been kept from their counsel's view. Under the circumstances, service of the notice of claim, pursuant to Gen Mun Law § 50-e, approximately 32 months after the operation complained of was timely, and the commencement of the action 49 days thereafter was also within the time limit mandated by Gen Mun Law § 50-i. Cassidy v County of Nassau, 84 A.D.2d 742, 443

N.Y.S.2d 742, 1981 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 15908 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1981).

Plaintiff would be permitted to file late notice of claim against city for injuries sustained when he tripped over debris while working at construction site, despite contention that delay might make it impossible for city to reconstruct conditions that prevailed at time of accident, since injury occurred at massive construction site and it was unlikely that those conditions existed even at end of 90-day period for timely filing of notice. Ferrer v New York, 172 A.D.2d 240, 567 N.Y.S.2d 734, 1991 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4454 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1991).

273. —Identification of defendant

It was proper exercise of discretion to permit plaintiff to file late notice of claim in wrongful death action against county hospital where application was made within one year and 90 days of accrual of action, plaintiff's attorney acted promptly upon discovery of hospital's correct status, and hospital did not claim substantial prejudice. Wendal v Memorial Hospital of Greene County, 127 A.D.2d 592, 511 N.Y.S.2d 649, 1987 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 43060 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1987).

Petitioner would be allowed to serve late notice of claim under CLS Gen Mun § 50-e(2) on condition that she include photograph of exact location where fall on property of city housing authority allegedly occurred where (1) petitioner served notice of claim on city instead of housing authority on September 14, (2) comptroller of city notified housing authority of claim on October 12, after 90-day period to file notice of claim had expired on September 26, (3) petitioner sought leave to file late notice of claim on October 19, and (4) housing authority did not show prejudice by reason of fact that petitioner's notice specified only street address in front of which she fell. Castro v New York City Housing Authority, 180 A.D.2d 415, 579 N.Y.S.2d 84, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1059 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1992).

Petitioner would be granted permission to serve late notice of claim on city housing authority where (1) she tripped and fell on raised portion of sidewalk in front of premises allegedly operated by housing authority, (2) she retained counsel and served timely notice of claim on city, (3) on receiving notice from city that housing authority might be responsible for accident, she sought leave to serve untimely notice of claim on housing authority, and (4) housing authority failed to show that it was prejudiced by delay in obtaining notice and consequent inability to conduct prompt investigation, especially where housing authority still had not investigated location of accident. Shelden v New York City Housing Authority, 180 A.D.2d 551, 580 N.Y.S.2d 279, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2724 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1992).

Supreme Court did not err in granting motion for leave to file late notice of claim arising out of fatal automobile accident where (1) claimants applied for permission to serve notice of claim within 10 months of its accrual, (2) claimants persuasively contended that they made application immediately upon discovering, as result of accident investigation, that defendant town had assumed responsibility for removal and trimming of foliage along accident site pursuant to contracts with county, and (3) precise reconstruction of accident scene could not have been effected had claim been timely served, and town's ability to conduct investigation of essential facts was aided by extensive media coverage of accident, which yielded videotape of scene made on date of accident. Rotoli v Gaines, 184 A.D.2d 1085, 585 N.Y.S.2d 274, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8371 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1992).

Plaintiff, who was injured in accident near border of 2 counties, should have been granted leave to file late notice of claim where (1) accident occurred on November 3, 1990 and report by state trooper noted that extremely soft shoulder of road was contributing factor in accident, (2) plaintiff retained counsel about 45 days after accident, but notice of claim was not timely filed because of uncertainty as to public entity which was responsible for road and clerical error in attorney's office, and (3) motion for leave to file late notice was filed on March 21, 1991, which was 49 days after expiration of 90-day period; although municipal defendants contended that failure to serve timely notice severely prejudiced their ability to investigate because conditions of shoulder had been altered by plowing, sanding, salting, and snow removal, their ability to investigate was no more hindered on March 21, 1991 than if notice had been timely served on February 1, 1991. Sutton v Schuyler Falls, 185 A.D.2d 430, 585 N.Y.S.2d 830, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8881 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1992).

Petitioner was entitled to serve late notice of claim against town where most of short delay of 26 days in serving notice was attributable to attempt to ascertain identity of public corporation against which claim had to be served, and town did not substantiate its conclusory assertions of resulting prejudice. National Sur. Corp. v Town of Greenburgh, 266 A.D.2d 550, 699 N.Y.S.2d 128, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12242 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1999).

Failure to serve timely notice of claim against New York City Housing Authority was not excused by petitioner's failure to inform her attorney of proper party to sue, particularly where identity of owner of premises was easily ascertainable. Lugo v N.Y. City Hous. Auth., 282 A.D.2d 229, 724 N.Y.S.2d 28, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3397 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2001).

Village was entitled to dismissal of an action by a homeowners association to recover for damage to property, as the association's failure to research the entity that owned a dock from which a boat drifted and damaged association property was not an acceptable excuse for failing to file a timely notice of claim against the village under N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(5). Bridgeview at Babylon Cove Homeowners Assn., Inc. v Incorporated Vil. of Babylon, 41 A.D.3d 404, 837 N.Y.S.2d 330, 2007 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6956 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2007).

In an action brought in tort in which one of the defendants has properly brought a third-party action in indemnity against the City of New York, a motion by the plaintiff in the main tort action to amend the complaint to assert a new cause of action in tort against the city is denied; plaintiff has not served a notice of claim upon the city within 90 days of the date on which the underlying occurrence took place (General Municipal Law, § 50-e) and has not brought its action within one year and 90 days after said date (General Municipal Law, § 50-i) and, therefore, sections 50-e and 50-i are complete bars to the tort action against the city. While plaintiff may not have known that the city was a third-party defendant until it was too late to bring a direct tort action against the city, that factor does not fit any of the grounds under section 50-e or the recent amendments thereto, and, even if it did, section 50-e denies any such relief if the time for commencement of the action under section 50-i has long since expired. It is of no consequence that the city has not as yet answered the third-party complaint. 2999 Realty Corp. v Hallen Constr. Corp., 95 Misc. 2d 227, 406 N.Y.S.2d 951, 1978 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2406 (N.Y. Civ. Ct. 1978).

274. —Health of plaintiff or plaintiff's counsel

Trial court erred in denying petitioner's application for leave to serve a late notice of claim for medical malpractice and loss of consortium upon the New York City Health and Hospitals Corporation where petitioner's deceased was physically incapacitated and died during the time within which notice should have been served and where petitioner's claim for loss of consortium was not a derivative but independent claim; decedent's incapacitation and death could not be said to effect service of notice of the survivor's claim since it is rare if not unknown to try a consortium claim separately from the negligence action thereby permitting late service under the new elastic standards of Gen Mun Law § 50-e(5). Centelles v New York City Health & Hospitals Corp., 84 A.D.2d 826, 444 N.Y.S.2d 193, 1981 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 16050 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1981).

Petitioners' much greater concern with decedent's health than with commencing lawsuit established reasonable excuse for their 3 ½ -month delay in seeking leave to serve late notice of medical malpractice and wrongful death claims, given serious illness with which decedent had been diagnosed, his grim prognosis, chemotherapy and radiation treatments, alleged staph infection which caused him to again be hospitalized, and his subsequent recuperation and continued cancer treatments. Staley v Piper, 285 A.D.2d 601, 728 N.Y.S.2d 88, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7590 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2001).

Leave was granted for filing of late notice of claim against a city under N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(5) even though claimant did not provide a reasonable excuse for his delay in filing after the onset of his cold/flu symptoms and before his ultimate and different diagnosis. That was because the claimant was not to be penalized for waiting to see if his symptoms would resolve themselves, his filing was within § 50-e(5)'s discretionary period, and to not allow such claims encouraged early preemptive filings of meritless claims. Porcaro v City of New York, 20 A.D.3d 357, 799 N.Y.S.2d 450, 2005 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7991 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2005).

The excuse for failure to make timely service, that claimant's attorney was ill for a short time prior to service, and that a clerk in the Comptroller's office stated that it was unnecessary to serve notice, are without merit. Krauss v Board of Education, 103 N.Y.S.2d 939, 199 Misc. 505, 1951 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1693 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1951).

In malpractice action against hospital, hospital's motion to dismiss claim for decedent's conscious pain and suffering based on fact that notice of claim therefor was not filed within 90 days of decedent's death would be denied where notice of claim for decedent's wrongful death was timely filed within 90 days of appointment of administrator, decedent's short hospitalization prior to death and delay in appointment of administrator made timely filing of notice impossible, and late filing of notice did not prejudice hospital since factors responsible for decedent's pain and suffering were identical to those causing wrongful death. Rivers v AT&T Technologies, Inc., 147 Misc. 2d 366, 554 N.Y.S.2d 401, 1990 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 178 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1990).

275. —Plaintiff's lack of knowledge

Court properly denied petitioner's application to file late notice of claim against village where claim was premised on alleged conspiracy between village police chief and village trustee since (1) village did not possess actual knowledge of petitioner's claims within reasonable time where it first received notice of alleged conspiracy 6 months after incident, and (2) petitioner's excuse for delay, that he did not know such requirement existed, was inadequate. Andrews v Sherburne, 140 A.D.2d 790, 527 N.Y.S.2d 662, 1988 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4674 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), app. denied, 72 N.Y.2d 807, 533 N.Y.S.2d 56, 529 N.E.2d 424, 1988 N.Y. LEXIS 2538 (N.Y. 1988).

Neither lack of awareness of requirements of statute nor lack of fluency in English language is acceptable excuse justifying leave to file late notice of claim under CLS Gen Mun § 50-e. Perez v New York City Housing Authority, 156 A.D.2d 177, 548 N.Y.S.2d 222, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 15289 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1989).

Court erred in denying application for leave to file late notice of claim against school district, notwithstanding that petitioner failed to allege reason for 2-day delay, where (1) delay was caused by mistake and confused advice given to petitioner, and (2) school district and its insurer had prompt notice of accident and adequate opportunity to investigate, and there was no indication of prejudice. Ireland v Hinkle, 178 A.D.2d 823, 577 N.Y.S.2d 541, 1991 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 16725 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1991).

Court properly denied petitioners' request for leave to file late notice of claim since they did not serve notice until 13 months after claim accrued, and they merely attributed delay to their ignorance of notice of claim requirement and their failure to promptly contact attorney regarding incident. Ealey v City of New York, 204 A.D.2d 720, 612 N.Y.S.2d 445, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5692 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1994).

Court properly denied plaintiff's motion for leave to serve late notice of claim on city since (1) her lack of fluency in English and ignorance of law were not acceptable excuses for failure to serve timely notice of claim, and (2) her alleged incapacity due to injuries sustained in accident was insufficient in absence of supporting medical evidence. Turkenitz v City of New York, 213 A.D.2d 266, 624 N.Y.S.2d 127, 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3008 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1995).

Ignorance of requirements of CLS Gen Mun § 50-e did not constitute reasonable excuse for failure to serve timely notice of claim. Dockery v Department of Hous. Preservation & Dev., 223 A.D.2d 705, 637 N.Y.S.2d 183, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 637 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1996).

Petitioner's belief that Workers' Compensation was his sole remedy for his injury prior to conferring with attorney did not constitute reasonable excuse for delay as to warrant leave to serve late notice of claim. O'Dowd v City of New York, 226 A.D.2d 642, 641 N.Y.S.2d 541, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4327 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1996).

Petitioner's contention that she was unaware of requirements of CLS Gen Mun § 50-e was not reasonable excuse for her failure to serve timely notice of claim. Gaffney v Town of Hempstead, 226 A.D.2d 721, 641 N.Y.S.2d 709, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4599 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1996).

Petitioners' claim that they were ignorant of law was not valid excuse for failure to serve notice of claim timely. Alper v City of New York, 228 A.D.2d 390, 644 N.Y.S.2d 623, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7488 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1996).

Ignorance of statutory requirement for serving timely notice of claim is not acceptable excuse for delay. Salahudeen Rashad Saafir v Metro-North Commuter R.R. Co., 260 A.D.2d 462, 688 N.Y.S.2d 224, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3863 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't), app. denied, 93 N.Y.2d 816, 697 N.Y.S.2d 563, 719 N.E.2d 924, 1999 N.Y. LEXIS 2802 (N.Y. 1999).

Excuse proffered by former inmate, that she was afraid of retaliation while still in jail and was unaware of 90-day requirement, was not fatal to her application for leave to serve late notice of claim alleging that she was subjected to sexual misconduct by county correction officer, where county had actual notice of incident, and there was no compelling evidence of prejudice to county respondents. Hunt v County of Madison, 261 A.D.2d 695, 690 N.Y.S.2d 154, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4688 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1999).

Order granting a motorcycle driver leave to file a late notice of a claim against a town and county was reversed, where driver asserted that she did not file a notice of claim because she was unaware of the statutory requirement to do so; further, that a county employee was on hand to give first aid after the driver's accident on a county road and that members of the town's rescue squad might have been present to transport the injured driver to the hospital did not satisfy actual notice. Crocco v Town of New Scotland, 307 A.D.2d 516, 762 N.Y.S.2d 685, 2003 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8048 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2003).

Order granting leave to serve a late notice of claim upon authorities was error because the authorities did not receive actual notice or acquire knowledge of the essential facts constituting the claim within 90 days after the occurrence, and respondent failed to demonstrate a reasonable excuse for his delay in commencing the proceeding; respondent's proffered excuses, that the respondent was unaware of the statutory time limit for serving a notice of claim and that an attorney whom he had previously contacted declined to take his case, were insufficient to excuse the delay. Furthermore, under the circumstances of this case, the authorities would have been prejudiced in their defense by the approximately six-month delay between the time the claim arose and the time respondent commenced the proceeding for leave to serve a late notice of claim. Matter of Groves v New York City Tr. Auth., 44 A.D.3d 856, 843 N.Y.S.2d 452, 2007 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10718 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2007).

276. —Consulting or failing to consult counsel

Although claimant's failure to meet 90 day deadline for notice of claim is excusable where claimant does not learn of alleged cause of emotional problems within that time, further delay of 78 days, after consultation with attorney, before making motion to serve late notice of claim as inexcusable. Morgan v Elmira, 115 A.D.2d 885, 496 N.Y.S.2d 578, 1985 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 55251 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1985).

It was abuse of discretion to grant leave to file late notice of claim where plaintiff merely asserted that he did not immediately consult attorney because he assumed that pain in his hands would go away. Winter v City of Geneva, 203 A.D.2d 939, 611 N.Y.S.2d 82, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4945 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1994), reh'g denied, app. denied, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7939 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't July 1, 1994).

Court properly denied application for leave to file late notice of claim against town where petitioner did not consult with attorney until after expiration of time period for filing of notice of claim, he did not attempt to serve notice of claim until almost 8 months after accident, and he asserted only that he did not timely consult attorney because he believed that worker's compensation was his sole remedy and that he was ignorant of possibility of recovery from town. Buddenhagen v Town of Brookhaven, 212 A.D.2d 605, 622 N.Y.S.2d 547, 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1454 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1995).

277. Miscellaneous grounds

The failure of an injured party to file a notice of claim within the period required by this section is not excused by the fact that the claimant was temporarily living away from his home on account of his health and that letters sent to him by his attorney requesting his appearance at the attorney's office were not forwarded to him because his family did not appreciate their importance, so that in spite of a "diligent effort," claimant was not found until one day after the statutory period had expired. Fabricant v New York, 298 N.Y. 818, 83 N.E.2d 862, 298 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 818, 1949 N.Y. LEXIS 1684 (N.Y. 1949).

The trial court should have exercised its discretion to grant leave to serve a late notice of claim on a municipal sewer authority, where a timely notice of claim had been filed on the municipality by service upon the corporation counsel, where the corporation counsel was regularly engaged in representing the sewer authority, where that attorney was apprised of the essential facts constituting the claim by the original notice, where it was not unreasonable to conclude that under the circumstances the sewer authority's attorney acquired actual knowledge of the essential facts constituting the claim within a reasonable time after the incident, and where there was no prejudice to the sewer authority. Darmstedter v Buffalo Sewer Authority, 96 A.D.2d 1148, 467 N.Y.S.2d 460, 1983 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 19844 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1983).

Mistaken belief that New York City Health and Hosptials Corporation was city agency is sufficient excuse warranting late filing of claim where hospital corporation is on notice of incident from time of its occurrence and has had opportunity to conduct its own investigation. Tadros v New York City Health & Hospitals Corp., 112 A.D.2d 85, 491 N.Y.S.2d 643, 1985 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 56300 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1985).

Petitioners should have been granted leave to serve late notice of claim with respect to claimed violations by county of federal Civil Rights Act of 1871 where (1) petitioners, in their initial notice of claim, alleged claims for false arrest, false imprisonment, malicious prosecution and abuse of process, (2) permission to serve late notice of claim was sought some 4 months after Court of Appeals resolved uncertainty in law by deciding in unrelated case that notice of claim requirements of CLS Gen Mun § 50-i (as limited by CLS Gen Mun § 50-e) applied to federal civil rights actions, and (3) scope of common-law claims was sufficiently broad, and facts were sufficiently similar to federal claim, that county was not prejudiced by delay. Delzotto v County of Warren, 137 A.D.2d 950, 525 N.Y.S.2d 373, 1988 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1752 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1988).

In personal injury action, petitioners were properly allowed to serve late notice of claim against city where they had failed to serve notice of claim because identity of police vehicle involved in accident was not discernible from police accident report on which their counsel relied. Pabon v New York City Housing Authority, 183 A.D.2d 445, 585 N.Y.S.2d 1014, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6609 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1992).

Court properly denied petitioner's motion under CLS Gen Mun § 50-e(5) for leave to file late notice of claim against town for negligence of town engineer in delaying issuance of variance, which allegedly prevented petitioner from closing sale of her property, where only reason petitioner offered for delay was that she did not want to prejudice her chances of obtaining variance, and she failed to establish that town had actual knowledge of essential facts constituting claim. Katz v Town of Bedford, 192 A.D.2d 707, 597 N.Y.S.2d 140, 1993 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4267 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1993).

Leave to file late notice of claim was properly denied where claim accrued on July 3, it was uncontroverted that town had no notice until it was served with petition on September 23, delay deprived town of opportunity to timely and effectively investigate incident, and thus town would be substantially prejudiced in maintaining its defense. Hilton v Town of Richland, 216 A.D.2d 921, 629 N.Y.S.2d 130, 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7251 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1995).

Petitioner's delay in filing notice of claim allegedly due to delay in obtaining copy of housing authority police investigation report was insufficient ground for leave to file late notice of claim where report was admittedly compiled shortly after accident, and petitioner failed to show when he first learned of its existence, when he first requested it, how long after his request it was received, or what difficulties, if any, were encountered in procurement process. Finneran v City of New York, 228 A.D.2d 596, 644 N.Y.S.2d 537, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7203 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1996).

Plaintiff was not entitled to serve late notice of claim with regard to civil rights and defamation causes of action where he alleged that certain defendants illegally accessed state computer records in February 1994 and learned that plaintiff had been arrested for rape many years earlier, he claimed he first learned of identity of defendants in October 1994, and he offered no reasonable excuse for his failure to take legal action until January 1995. Gorman v Sachem Cent. Sch. Dist., 232 A.D.2d 452, 648 N.Y.S.2d 461, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10167 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1996).

Infant was properly permitted to serve notice of claim on New York City 4 ½ years after being diagnosed with lead poisoning where City had received Health Department's nuisance abatement within month of diagnosis, tested apartment for lead almost immediately, tested twice more over next 3 years, and thus was not prejudiced by delay. Stanley v City of New York, 257 A.D.2d 497, 684 N.Y.S.2d 522, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 416 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1999).

Because a hospital possessed an infant's medical records, it had actual notice of the infant's claim and was not substantially prejudiced in maintaining a defense; since the infant provided a reasonable excuse for the delay, the infant's N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(5) motion for leave to serve a late notice of claim was properly granted. Matter of Corvera v Nassau County Health Care Corp., 38 A.D.3d 775, 833 N.Y.S.2d 537, 2007 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3723 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2007).

While a driver's notice of claim was untimely under N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(1)(a), the trial court properly exercised its discretion in granting the driver's motion for leave to serve a late claim under § 50-e(5) since: (1) the City timely acquired actual knowledge of the essential facts underlying the claim by way of the timely notices of claim served by the passengers in the driver's vehicle, (2) the City's conclusory assertions of prejudice, based solely on the driver's delay in serving the notice of claim, were insufficient, and (3) while the driver's excuse for failing to timely serve the driver's notice of claim was insufficient, that was not fatal. Jordan v City of New York, 41 A.D.3d 658, 838 N.Y.S.2d 624, 2007 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7696 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2007).

Order granting an insurance company leave to serve a late notice of claim on a town was error because, inter alia, the town did not receive actual notice or acquire knowledge of the essential facts of the claim asserted within 90 days after the accident or a reasonable time thereafter; the fact that the town's police department had knowledge of the accident, which occurred in a different municipality, was insufficient, and, furthermore, the police accident report and the police department call report failed to provide actual knowledge of the facts constituting the insurance company's claim that its subrogor's vehicle was damaged as a result of the town's negligence. The insurance company failed to provide any excuse for its lengthy delay in bringing the proceeding. Matter of National Grange Mut. Ins. Co. v Town of Eastchester, 48 A.D.3d 467, 851 N.Y.S.2d 632, 2008 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1092 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2008).

Order denying a city's motion to dismiss a worker's personal injury claim and granting the worker's cross motion for leave to deem his late notice of claim timely served, nunc pro tunc, was improper because the worker's application to file a late notice of claim was itself untimely, and the worker was not entitled to rely on a notice of claim filed by a workers' compensation carrier to avoid dismissal of his action. Angulo v City of New York, 48 A.D.3d 603, 852 N.Y.S.2d 355, 2008 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1570 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2008).

The fact that a bill is pending before the legislature to increase the filing period under this section may not be considered as an excuse for failure to file within the required time limit. White v New York, 87 N.Y.S.2d 446, 194 Misc. 562, 1949 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1938 (N.Y. Sup. Ct.), app. dismissed, 276 A.D. 765, 93 N.Y.S.2d 151, 1949 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3247 (N.Y. App. Div. 1949).

In order to effect "substantial justice" under CLS NYC Civil Ct Act § 1804, Small Claims Court would not dismiss pro se plaintiff's claim against defendant city as time-barred by virtue of plaintiff's late filing of notice of claim required by CLS Gen Mun § 50-e where plaintiff made reasonable attempt to accommodate law's technicalities and gave defendant sufficient notice of his allegations to enable it to promptly marshall evidence. Davis v New York, 148 Misc. 2d 422, 560 N.Y.S.2d 389, 1990 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 474 (N.Y. Civ. Ct. 1990), overruled, Ragosto v Triborough Bridge & Tunnel Auth., 173 Misc. 2d 560, 663 N.Y.S.2d 462, 1997 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 454 (N.Y. App. Term 1997).

Although a bus driver intentionally delayed filing a notice of claim against a city to gain a perceived strategic advantage in an underlying criminal prosecution, the driver failed to provide a reasonable excuse to support a N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e motion for leave to serve a late notice of claim for false arrest and unlawful imprisonment. Perez v Empire Bus Co., 819 N.Y.S.2d 902, 13 Misc. 3d 535, 2006 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2182 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 2006).

Because a bankruptcy trustee's bare allegation that a municipal agency created a defective condition was insufficient to establish the city's actual knowledge of the essential facts constituting the bankruptcy debtor's personal injury claim, and because it was unnecessary for the trustee to obtain Bankruptcy Court approval of counsel in order to file a notice of claim under General Municipal Law § 50-e(2), the trustee's time to file a notice of claim was not tolled; therefore, the trustee's motion for leave to serve a late notice of claim was denied. McCord v City of New York, 853 N.Y.S.2d 859, 19 Misc. 3d 544, 239 N.Y.L.J. 41, 2008 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 918 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 2008).

VIII. Form and Sufficiency of Notice

278. In general

The test of the sufficiency of a notice to avoid prejudice to a municipality is whether the notice sufficiently informed the municipality of the nature of the claim, and of the time when, the place where, and the manner in which the claim arose so as to enable the municipality to investigate the claim of negligence. Powell v Gates, 36 A.D.2d 220, 319 N.Y.S.2d 650, 1971 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4318 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1971).

General negligence claim against a city with regard to a fire was not stated with requisite particularity, and was dismissed; the notice of claim failed to identify any conduct by the city, negligent or otherwise, that contributed to the occurrence of the fire at the privately operated hotel. Mollerson v City of New York, 8 A.D.3d 70, 778 N.Y.S.2d 475, 2004 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7974 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2004).

Denial of a representative's motion to compel discovery from a transit authority was proper because the discovery demand, made 15 months after the representative's note of issue and certificate of readiness, and four years after the fatal accident, sought material relating to a theory of liability which was not set forth in the representative's N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(2) notice; the representative's theory would have substantially altered the claim alleged, and the transit authority was unable to conduct a timely and meaningful investigation of the merits of that theory. Manns v New York City Tr. Auth., 50 A.D.3d 860, 855 N.Y.S.2d 665, 2008 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3383 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2008).

A summons and complaint may constitute a notice of claim under section 50-e of the General Municipal Law. Accordingly, in a second action by plaintiffs, against whom criminal charges had been brought and subsequently dropped, to recover moneys seized upon the execution of search warrants, a summons and complaint in a prior action to recover said property constituted a notice of claim within the statute even though said summons and complaint were served before the accrual of the cause of action, which accrual was dependent upon the resolution of a codefendant's appeal which was decided after the commencement of the prior action by plaintiffs. Tannuzzio v O'Brien, 104 Misc. 2d 90, 427 N.Y.S.2d 544, 1980 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2398 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1980).

In a suit brought by parents asserting defamation and discrimination against a school district and others with regard to their son, their state claims against a principal were dismissed because they failed to include the principal in their notice of claim. TC v Valley Cent. Sch. Dist., 777 F. Supp. 2d 577, 2011 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 41486 (S.D.N.Y. 2011), different results reached on reconsid., 2011 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 90260 (S.D.N.Y. June 29, 2011).

279. Name and post office address

Defendant city, as construction site general contractor, was entitled to summary judgment in personal injury action where injured worker's notice of claim contained deliberately false information as to his name and address. Brady v City of New York, 257 A.D.2d 466, 683 N.Y.S.2d 531, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 436 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1999).

Plaintiff, whose notice of claim contained deliberately false information as to his name and address, would not be heard to argue that such information did not prejudice defendant's investigation. Brady v City of New York, 257 A.D.2d 466, 683 N.Y.S.2d 531, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 436 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1999).

Notice of claim was not deficient for its failure to list address of infant plaintiff, since residence of infant is presumed to be that of parent or guardian. Elter v New York City Hous. Auth., 260 A.D.2d 232, 687 N.Y.S.2d 630, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4004 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1999).

Municipal defendants were properly granted summary judgment where plaintiff's notice of claim contained deliberately false information identifying plaintiff as "Eva Pastrana, a/k/a Marlene Fuentes," when, in fact, only time plaintiff was ever known as "Marlene Fuentes" was when she used latter's Medicaid card to obtain coverage for surgery underlying instant action for malpractice. Pastrana v City of New York, 262 A.D.2d 53, 691 N.Y.S.2d 435, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6414 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1999).

The court will look to the substance of the paper served and not to its label, and where a "complaint" was filed with the Transit Authority within 90 days of the accident and such complaint met all the statutory requirements of a notice or claim except that it did not set forth the plaintiff's post office address and that it was not served in duplicate, such pleading will be treated as notice of claim and plaintiff's motion for leave to serve an amended notice of claim and an amended complaint would be granted. Nagy v Rothstein, 53 Misc. 2d 367, 278 N.Y.S.2d 742, 1966 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1325 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1966).

Letter notice, which specified nature of claim against city, the time when, the place where and the manner in which the claim arose, and the injuries claimed to have been sustained, but which was not sworn to by or on behalf of claimant and did not set forth the name and post office address of claimant and his attorney, was not adequate to comply with notice requirements of General Municipal Law. Hartford Accident & Indem. Co. v Mt. Vernon, 82 Misc. 2d 919, 372 N.Y.S.2d 161, 1975 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2847 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1975).

280. Time, place, and manner of claim, generally

The test of the sufficiency of a notice to avoid prejudice to a municipality is whether the notice sufficiently informed the municipality of the nature of the claim, and of the time when, the place where, and the manner in which the claim arose so as to enable the municipality to investigate the claim of negligence. Powell v Gates, 36 A.D.2d 220, 319 N.Y.S.2d 650, 1971 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4318 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1971).

Plaintiffs' failure to include specific date that claim arose did not render notice of claim against village jurisdictionally defective where claim was based on occurrence of electrical shocks on plaintiffs' farm from stray voltage, which is continuing wrong.

Carhart v Village of Hamilton, 190 A.D.2d 973, 594 N.Y.S.2d 358, 1993 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1724 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1993).

Presence of single word "negligence" in notices of claim did not constitute statement of time when, place where, or manner in which plaintiffs' claim based on negligent hiring arose. Urena v City of New York, 221 A.D.2d 429, 633 N.Y.S.2d 391, 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12009 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1995).

Notice of claim, specifying that infant had been injured when "a large metal gate" fell, providing specific measurements of "gate," and situating it "in the backyard" of New York City Housing Authority-owned building, was sufficient to enable Authority to investigate merits of claim where there were no more than 15 gratings in backyard of Authority's building; thus, court improperly granted Authority's motion to dismiss complaint for failure to serve proper notice of claim, especially since Authority failed to show any prejudice resulting from description, and Authority did not exclude possibility that notice defects were remedied at CLS Gen Mun § 50-h hearing. Cruz v New York City Hous. Auth., 269 A.D.2d 108, 702 N.Y.S.2d 284, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 957 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2000).

Action against New York City Transit Authority, based on alleged negligence of bus driver in stopping bus over hole, was properly dismissed where notice of claim failed to identify route number of bus involved in accident. Raisner v City of New York, 272 A.D.2d 460, 707 N.Y.S.2d 498, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5604 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2000).

Trial court properly denied a transit authority's motion for summary judgment in a personal injury action; the notice of claim provided by the injured party was sufficient under N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e, as the notice enabled the authority to determine the place, time, and nature of the accident in question. Hudson v N.Y. City Transit Auth., 19 A.D.3d 648, 798 N.Y.S.2d 105, 2005 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7325 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2005).

Because the plaintiffs' notices of claim contained no factual allegations concerning, inter alia, false arrest, detention, negligent hiring, or supervision, and did not refer to the park rangers in either their individual or official capacities, as required by N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(1)(a), the complaint was properly dismissed. Santoro v Town of Smithtown, 40 A.D.3d 736, 835 N.Y.S.2d 658, 2007 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5894 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2007).

The principal purposes of a notice of claim statute are to afford the municipality an opportunity to explore claims against it, and, if deemed appropriate, to settle claims without the expense and risks of litigation; the test of the sufficiency of a notice is whether it adequately informs the municipality of the nature of the claim, and of the time when, the place where, and the manner in which the claim arose so as to enable the municipality to investigate promptly. Worrell v New York, 101 Misc. 2d 270, 420 N.Y.S.2d 994, 1979 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2667 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1979).

In a case brought by a coach against a city, seeking damages for injuries suffered because allegedly defective fencing at a baseball field caused the coach to be struck by a baseball, the court found that the coach's notice adequately set forth the location, time, and general nature of the accident, and therefore, it was legally sufficient; the inadvertent failure to reference the fence in the notice of claim did not prejudice the city. Reyes v City of New York, 835 N.Y.S.2d 852, 15 Misc. 3d 690, 2007 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 849 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 2007), rev'd, 51 A.D.3d 996, 858 N.Y.S.2d 760, 2008 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4650 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2008).

281. —Manner or cause

In a personal injury action arising out of a fall on a sidewalk, the complaint was properly dismissed as against defendant City of New York, where plaintiff's notice of claim failed to describe the cause of his fall, nothing in the notice of claim provided a reasonable basis upon which the city could have adequately investigated the matter, a police aided report prepared on the date of the accident was insufficient to allow imputation of knowledge of causation to the city, and plaintiff's application to amend the notice of claim to include the manner in which the claim arose was not made until the eve of trial, nearly five years after the date of the accident. Levine v New York, 111 A.D.2d 785, 490 N.Y.S.2d 533, 1985 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 50037 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1985).

City was not entitled to summary judgment on ground that causes of action contained in complaint were not alleged in notice of claim and that amendment of notice of claim was barred by statute of limitations since notice of claim sufficiently apprised city that cause of injuries suffered by plaintiff was alleged negligence of city's agents in failing to properly supervise plaintiff's fellow inmates; thus, purpose of CLS Gen Mun § 50-e, that municipality be given opportunity to timely investigate that with which it is charged, had been satisfied. De Maio v New York, 144 A.D.2d 623, 534 N.Y.S.2d 704, 1988 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12452 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1988).

In action against city for injuries sustained when child fell from playground apparatus in city park, plaintiffs were entitled to strike affirmative defense alleging that "notice of claim failed to state nature and substance of the alleged occurrence" where notice of claim stated that playground apparatus had improper landing surface and there were only 2 pieces of apparatus in playground. Basile v New York, 156 A.D.2d 239, 548 N.Y.S.2d 499, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 15515 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1989).

Court erroneously dismissed complaint against city on ground that notice of claim had not stated in exact language plaintiff's theory of recovery presented at trial since notice had alleged city's negligence in causing accident and had provided details of its negligence, which was sufficient to provide city with opportunity to conduct proper investigation and assess merits of claim while information was readily available. DeLeonibus v Scognamillo, 183 A.D.2d 697, 583 N.Y.S.2d 285, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6760 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1992).

In action against city for injuries allegedly sustained as result of negligent maintenance of elevator, plaintiffs' failure to plead doctrine of res ipsa loquitur in notice of claim did not bar them from invoking doctrine at trial; thus, city was not entitled to notice of specific acts of negligence that caused elevator to mislevel. Horowitz v New York City Hous. Auth., 188 A.D.2d 392, 591 N.Y.S.2d 382, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 14298 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1992).

Supreme Court properly dismissed complaint against defendant housing authority where notice of claim alleged merely that plaintiff's fall in stairway of building owned by authority was occasioned "by reason of a defective, dangerous, wet, slippery and uneven staircase," since notice was fatally devoid of any particulars regarding location of fall in 20-story building containing 2 stairways, or nature of defective condition alleged to have precipitated fall, thus depriving defendant of opportunity to conduct proper and timely investigation. Ortiz v New York City Hous. Auth., 191 A.D.2d 177, 594 N.Y.S.2d 30, 1993 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1835 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1993).

Notice of claim against housing authority was sufficient, even though it did not reveal that plaintiff fell when he stepped on board that was covering third step in first floor stairwell, and that stairway was poorly lit at time, since such information was supplied at statutory hearing held 5 months after accident, and police who were called to scene reported that plaintiff fell over steps being repaired. Ford v New York City Hous. Auth., 191 A.D.2d 366, 595 N.Y.S.2d 413, 1993 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2838 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1993).

Plaintiff's notice of claim was insufficient where (1) it stated only that plaintiff "was a pedestrian at said location and was struck by an automobile due to...negligence, carelessness and recklessness of the Town...in the creation, operation and maintenance of said roadway," (2) bill of particulars failed to expand on notice, and (3) notice was silent as to causation. DiMenna v Long Island Lighting Co., 209 A.D.2d 373, 618 N.Y.S.2d 425, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11020 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1994).

Court properly dismissed complaint for failure of notice of claim to describe manner in which accident occurred where notice of claim, complaint, and bill of particulars attributed accident to inadequate lighting, while injured plaintiff's deposition testimony established that he was injured because allegedly malfunctioning door slammed into him. Hussein v City of New York, 265 A.D.2d 302, 696 N.Y.S.2d 209, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9681 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1999).

Notice of claim alleging that plaintiff's car went over "dip, hole, excavation, elevation, obstruction, depression in the road at the intersection of Bethpage Suite Hollow Road and Round Swamp Road," failed to describe nature of alleged defect or its location with sufficient particularity to allow town to locate it and conduct timely investigation. Wai Man Hui v Town of Oyster Bay, 267 A.D.2d 233, 699 N.Y.S.2d 485, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12544 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1999), app. denied, 94 N.Y.2d 764, 708 N.Y.S.2d 52, 729 N.E.2d 709, 2000 N.Y. LEXIS 541 (N.Y. 2000).

Court, in granting New York City Housing Authority's summary judgment motion, erred in disregarding plaintiff's amended verified bill of particulars which, in itself, raised material fact issue sufficient to defeat Authority's showing that it had no notice of accumulation of water, even though specific explanation of reason for water accumulation was not introduced prior to that point, where notice of claim sufficiently apprized Authority of nature of claim that plaintiff had slipped on rain water which somehow entered stair well between second and third floors, and plaintiff testified at CLS Gen Mun § 50-h hearing that wet stairs after rainfall was "the usual thing in the building." David v N.Y. City Hous. Auth., 284 A.D.2d 169, 727 N.Y.S.2d 404, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6144 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2001).

In a wrongful death action alleging medical malpractice, filed against a New York City, N.Y., public hospital, the survivor's notice of claim against the New York City Health and Hospitals Corporation was inadequate because it did not set forth the nature of its medical malpractice claim with the specificity required by N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(2). Jones v City of New York, 300 A.D.2d 359, 751 N.Y.S.2d 522, 2002 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11929 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2002).

Claimant's accident report, which stated only, "right knee injured on school recess," could not have apprised the school district of his claim that it was negligent in supervising or equipping the tackle football game in which he participated. Matter of Scott v Huntington Union Free School Dist., 29 A.D.3d 1010, 816 N.Y.S.2d 165, 2006 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7173 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2006).

As to respondents' claim that a city housing authority failed to take adequate security measures in an area where a minor child was accosted, respondents' notice of claim failed to comport with N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e; although the notice mentioned the authority's negligence in failing to adequately light the area where the assault took place, despite the authority's prior knowledge of similar crimes in the same area, the notice did not state that the authority had inadequate security, and nothing in the notice alerted the authority that it should investigate the number and adequacy of the security personnel it employed. Monmasterio v New York City Hous. Auth., 39 A.D.3d 354, 833 N.Y.S.2d 498, 2007 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4822 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2007).

Resident's notice of claim sufficiently apprised the town of his negligent supervision claim because the notice specified the date and time of the accident, the nature of the resident's injuries, spoke to the town's duty to supervise the dump truck's operation, and the "entrapping condition" of the tailgate, and the resident's testimony at the hearing along with the notice sufficiently enabled the town to investigate the claim, particularly so given the town's failure to show any prejudice. Barone v Town of New Scotland, 145 A.D.3d 1416, 44 N.Y.S.3d 267, 2016 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8776 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2016).

Estate administrator failed to sufficiently plead assault and battery and negligent hiring, retention, and supervision claims against the city because the notice of claim did not contain allegations that the police assaulted the decedent, or that the city negligently hired, supervised, or retained the officers who were involved in the decedent's arrest, and the administrator's testimony at the examination could nor be used to amend the theories of liability set forth in the notice of claim. Davis v City of New York, 153 A.D.3d 658, 61 N.Y.S.3d 551, 2017 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6119 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2017).

Negligent hiring, training and supervision claims brought by two plaintiffs against city had to be dismissed because those plaintiffs failed to provide proper notice of claim as they failed to indicate legal theories on which they now proceeded against city, and their notices of claim did not set forth any facts that in any way suggested claim for negligent hiring, training and supervision. Hargroves v City of New York, 2014 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 41661 (E.D.N.Y. Mar. 26, 2014).

282. —Location

A plaintiff's inadvertent failure to specify in a notice of claim against the city the location of the accident, which omission was in no way calculated to confuse or prevaricate, and which did not result in actual prejudice to the city did not justify dismissal of the complaint. Mayer v Du Pont Associates, Inc., 80 A.D.2d 799, 437 N.Y.S.2d 94, 1981 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10599 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1981).

Municipal defendant that has been served with notice of claim lacking in specificity as to location of accident is nevertheless responsible for knowing location of property under its control and for reasonably applying that knowledge to supplement information contained in notice to determine precise location of accident. Lord v New York City Housing Authority, 184 A.D.2d 406, 585 N.Y.S.2d 49, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8533 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1992).

Trial court did not err in dismissing town's motion to dismiss accident victim's complaint where the notice of claim did not set forth the exact accident location and was not properly verified in that the victim's failure to more precisely describe the accident location was made in good faith and, furthermore, the town did not demonstrate any actual prejudice. Butler v Town of Smithtown, 293 A.D.2d 696, 742 N.Y.S.2d 324, 2002 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4157 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2002).

Because a passenger's notice of claim failed to describe the location of the incident with sufficient particularity to enable the transit authority to conduct a meaningful investigation, the claim was inadequate under N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(2); consequently, the authority was entitled to summary judgment in the passenger's personal injury action. DeJesus v New York City Tr. Auth., 854 N.Y.S.2d 839, 18 Misc. 3d 104, 2008 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 536 (N.Y. App. Term 2008).

Where plaintiff sued transit authorities, alleging she was injured when the bus she was riding in either stopped short or rear-ended an automobile, the notice of claim's lack of a specific designation of the intersection or cross streets where the incident allegedly occurred did render the notice deficient, as the omission was not calculated to mislead or confuse, and the authorities did not show prejudice from the omission. Williams v MTA Bus Co., 989 N.Y.S.2d 806, 44 Misc. 3d 673, 2014 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2716 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 2014), vacated, in part, 2017 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1354 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. Apr. 13, 2017).

283. — —Description sufficient

A notice of claim alleging that a press had been damaged as the result of the collision between the press, which was then being transported on the back of a flat-bed truck, and a bent-down metal girder hanging from an overpass on the Brooklyn-Queens Expressway near the Queens Boulevard entrance, was not defective for failing to set forth the specific location at which the accident had occurred, where there were only two overpasses on the Brooklyn-Queens Expressway in the vicinity of Queens Boulevard, each being located in extremely close proximity to the other, where the nature of the occurrence was such that the description contained in the notice enabled the city to locate the alleged defect with reasonable certainty and where no actual prejudice was demonstrated by the city. Evers v New York, 90 A.D.2d 786, 455 N.Y.S.2d 646, 1982 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 18997 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1982).

City was not entitled to dismissal of personal injury complaint against it on ground that injured party's notice of claim lacked required specificity of location, since notice of claim adequately enabled city to locate alleged defect and investigate claim where it described accident as occurring "on 162nd Street between Laburnum and Oak Avenues, in the vicinity of 4724 162nd Street, Queens, New York." Bravo v New York, 122 A.D.2d 761, 505 N.Y.S.2d 647, 1986 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 59286 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1986).

In action against city and transit authority arising from slip and fall which occurred as plaintiff disembarked from bus, notices of claim adequately described location of accident where (1) notices stated that accident occurred "at sidewalk and curb" and "at bus stop containing a broken curb," (2) exact location of accident was brought out at statutory hearings, and (3) neither defendant indicated that it made any investigation of bus stop that was stymied by lack of specifics. Miles v New York, 173 A.D.2d 298, 569 N.Y.S.2d 691, 1991 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7234 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1991).

Court improperly dismissed complaint for purportedly inadequate identification of accident site in notice of claim where (1) notice of claim described location of accident as empty lot used for parking between specified streets and more particularly by distance from specified landmarks, and also described accident as having been caused by manhole cover, (2) notice of claim was accompanied by 2 photographs showing manhole cover and its position in parking lot, (3) details of location of accident were reiterated at hearing, and (4) in response to further demands by city, plaintiff supplied city with 14 additional photographs, hand-drawn diagram with measurements, and results of title search which revealed that city owned location of accident. Herrera v City of New York, 211 A.D.2d 759, 622 N.Y.S.2d 524, 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 685 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1995).

Notice of claim, which involved defective sidewalk, describing accident site as "the sidewalk adjacent to premises known as 160 East 8th Street, Brooklyn," set forth place where claim arose with adequate specificity where such premises was corner residence located at intersection of East 8th Street and Avenue "P," and it was later alleged in bill of particulars and established at trial that accident occurred on Avenue "P" side of premises located at 1601 East 8th Street, near tree; moreover, city did not conduct hearing under CLS Gen Mun § 50-h, there was no evidence that it conducted any investigation of accident in reliance on allegedly defective notice of claim, and plaintiff, at his examination before trial, noted direction in which he was walking, specified that he fell on part of sidewalk near tree, and pointed out accident site in photo provided by city. Halali v City of New York, 213 A.D.2d 449, 623 N.Y.S.2d 618, 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2712 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1995).

Notice of claim adequately identified site of alleged pavement defect where it stated that site was 25 feet from entrance to specified building, and 16 photographs were attached, depicting precise location, some with arrows pointing to defect. Elter v New York City Hous. Auth., 260 A.D.2d 232, 687 N.Y.S.2d 630, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4004 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1999).

Detainee's notice of claim complied with this section as it included all information that would have enabled the City to conduct a thorough investigation to discover the identity of the individual police officers involved in the alleged incident as the detainee gave a detailed description of the time, place, and nature of the acts, and the City was not prejudiced by the failure to name the individual officers. Scott v City of New Rochelle, 986 N.Y.S.2d 819, 44 Misc. 3d 366, 2014 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2279 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 2014).

284. — —Description insufficient

A notice of claim did not comply with the statute where it contained a misstatement of the place where the accident was claimed to have taken place. Moran v Yonkers, 282 A.D. 702, 122 N.Y.S.2d 60, 1953 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4741 (N.Y. App. Div. 1953).

Personal injury action against city was properly dismissed where plaintiff's notice of claim merely stated that accident was caused by defective and dangerous street located at First Avenue between 105th and 106th Street in New York City, without reference to address, side of street accident occurred on, or whether accident occurred in street or on sidewalk, and where plaintiff had several opportunities to rectify inadequacies of notice of claim and did not do so. Mitchell v New York, 131 A.D.2d 313, 516 N.Y.S.2d 458, 1987 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 47804 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1987).

Notice of claim was facially insufficient where it simply stated in ambiguous terms where collision, claimed to be result of city's negligence, occurred, and failed to adequately set forth location of alleged act of negligence, as well as what act of negligence was and how it caused injuries claimed. Altmayer v New York, 149 A.D.2d 638, 540 N.Y.S.2d 459, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5341 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1989).

Notice of claim failed to set forth place of allegedly defective sidewalk with adequate specificity claim where it merely described situs of accident as on "sidewalk located at Atlantic and Flatbush Avenues, at or near 4th Avenue." Frankfort v New York, 159 A.D.2d 680, 553 N.Y.S.2d 182, 1990 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3597 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1990).

It was error to dismiss complaint against city on ground that notice of claim failed to sufficiently identify location of accident where notice was accompanied by 2 photographs of area in question, and by footage and compass directions to site; city investigator's choice to focus on "building line" when plaintiff's photographs portrayed defect in vicinity of street and curb was due to investigator's mistake, not insufficient notice by plaintiff. O'Keefe v New York, 181 A.D.2d 562, 582 N.Y.S.2d 88, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3927 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1992).

Notice of claim against city was deficient as originally drawn since (1) it did not adequately specify location of slip and fall where it stated that accident occurred in front of specified premises at particular intersection, but photographic evidence showed that specified premises was large building, and (2) description of cause of accident as "partially iced over bumpy area" was ambiguous and did not make clear whether bumpiness was due to ice or sidewalk defect. Hoffman v New York Housing Auth., 187 A.D.2d 334, 589 N.Y.S.2d 475, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13073 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1992).

Plaintiff's notice of claim, which alleged that she was injured as result of "fall on a wet substance on the subway platform at 53d Street and Lexington Avenue," failed to specify situs of accident with sufficient particularity; defect was not cured by plaintiff's reliance on police aided report, which stated only that plaintiff while running to train, "slipped on something," but failed to clarify spot on 670-foot platform on which plaintiff claimed she fell. Cappadonna v New York City Transit Auth., 187 A.D.2d 691, 590 N.Y.S.2d 274, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13414 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1992), app. denied, 81 N.Y.2d 704, 595 N.Y.S.2d 399, 611 N.E.2d 299, 1993 N.Y. LEXIS 237 (N.Y. 1993).

Personal injury claim against New York City Transit Authority was properly dismissed for failure to comply with CLS Gen Mun § 50-e where notice of claim alleged that defendant's "negligence" caused plaintiff to "trip and fall" onto southbound 7th Avenue IRT express track at Wall Street subway station, and to be struck by train, since notice failed to identify situs of accident with sufficient particularity, and failed to alert defendant as to claimed cause of accident; moreover, neither plaintiff's testimony at hearing under CLS Gen Mun § 50-h, nor complaint, nor bill of particulars (which was served more than 1 ½ years after accident) served to sufficiently correct defective notice. Cheung v New York City Transit Auth., 208 A.D.2d 669, 618 N.Y.S.2d 44, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9939 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1994), app. denied, 85 N.Y.2d 811, 631 N.Y.S.2d 287, 655 N.E.2d 400, 1995 N.Y. LEXIS 2098 (N.Y. 1995).

Notice of claim alleging slip and fall on ice was inadequate to meet requirements of CLS Gen Mun § 50-e(2) where notice misidentified accident site, and photographs accompanying notice contained no street signs or landmarks. Valle v New York City Hous. Auth., 224 A.D.2d 433, 637 N.Y.S.2d 757, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 878 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1996).

Notice of claim failed to comply with CLS Gen Mun § 50-e(2), because it did not identify location of accident with sufficient particularity, where it merely alleged that plaintiff sustained his injuries on campus of defendant college. Flanagan v County of Westchester, 238 A.D.2d 468, 657 N.Y.S.2d 59, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4089 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1997).

Notice of personal injury claim against city under CLS Gen Mun § 50-e failed to describe location of alleged defect with sufficient particularity where it merely stated that accident occurred "at or about Clarkson Avenue and Rogers Avenue, Brooklyn," and neither photographs nor hearing sufficiently clarified notice of claim. Yankana v City of New York, 246 A.D.2d 645, 668 N.Y.S.2d 241, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 599 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1998).

Complaint was properly dismissed for failure to identify geographical location of accident in notice of claim where roadway defect involved was transitory in nature, plaintiffs sought to correct description of its location 4 years after accident to place 2 or 3 blocks from original location given, and photographs submitted failed to help clear up confusion. Edgehill v City of New York, 260 A.D.2d 597, 688 N.Y.S.2d 658, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4284 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1999).

Dismissal of notice of claim against city housing authority was required where description of accident location was insufficient to allow authority to conduct proper investigation. Lee v City of New York, 266 A.D.2d 356, 698 N.Y.S.2d 154, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11492 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1999).

Court improperly denied village's motion to dismiss complaint where notice of claim did not correctly or sufficiently describe location of accident, and village did not learn of correct location of accident until about 12 months after date of accident, when it received amended notice of claim. Ryan v County of Nassau, 271 A.D.2d 428, 705 N.Y.S.2d 398, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3789 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2000).

Notice of claim stating that plaintiff tripped over uneven protruding boards on boardwalk in Long Beach in 100-square-foot area west of Magnolia Boulevard and opposite 220 West Broadway failed to describe place where accident occurred with sufficient particularity to enable city to conduct proper investigation and assess merits of claim, warranting dismissal of complaint. Bayer v City of Long Beach, 275 A.D.2d 433, 713 N.Y.S.2d 71, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8944 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't), app. denied, 95 N.Y.2d 770, 722 N.Y.S.2d 473, 745 N.E.2d 394, 2000 N.Y. LEXIS 3923 (N.Y. 2000).

Because there was no evidence that an airport received actual notice of a shuttle bus driver's accident, including the exact location of the accident and that poor lighting was one of its causes, and because the driver's proffered excuse that the driver did not know the extent of the injuries was unpersuasive, the trial court erred in granting the driver's N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(5) application to file a late notice of claim. Matter of Heffelfinger v Albany Intl. Airport, 43 A.D.3d 537, 845 N.Y.S.2d 132, 2007 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8829 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2007).

Because a plaintiff did not provide a sufficient description of the location of the door to a campus building where the plaintiff was injured, and because the county and the college demonstrated actual prejudice in their investigation and the preparation of a defense, the plaintiff's personal injury complaint was properly dismissed for failure to comply with N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(6). Atwater v County of Suffolk, 50 A.D.3d 713, 855 N.Y.S.2d 226, 2008 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3193 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't), app. denied, 11 N.Y.3d 702, 864 N.Y.S.2d 389, 894 N.E.2d 653, 2008 N.Y. LEXIS 2555 (N.Y. 2008).

285. Amount of claimed damages

There is no requirement that a notice of claim against a municipality set forth the amount of claimed damages. Harwood v Hornell, 41 Misc. 2d 706, 246 N.Y.S.2d 222, 1964 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2155 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1964).

286. Necessity that notice be sworn to Vehicle owner's failure to swear to his otherwise proper notice of claim against police officers, as required by N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(2), for return of his vehicle, could be waived by the court because it did not prejudice the officers. Smith v Scott, 294 A.D.2d 11, 740 N.Y.S.2d 425, 2002 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3561 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2002).

In a wrongful death action alleging medical malpractice, filed against a New York City, N.Y., public hospital, the survivor's notice of claim against the New York City Health and Hospitals Corporation was inadequate because it was not verified. Jones v City of New York, 300 A.D.2d 359, 751 N.Y.S.2d 522, 2002 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11929 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2002).

A notice of claim which is not sworn to as required by the statute for the maintenance of an action in negligence is insufficient in law. Lightboro Realty Corp. v New York, 81 N.Y.S.2d 465, 192 Misc. 947, 1948 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2814 (N.Y. App. Term 1948), aff'd, 275 A.D. 748, 88 N.Y.S.2d 272, 1949 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4312 (N.Y. App. Div. 1949).

Letter notice, which specified nature of claim against city, the time when, the place where and the manner in which the claim arose, and the injuries claimed to have been sustained, but which was not sworn to by or on behalf of claimant and did not set forth the name and post office address of claimant and his attorney, was not adequate to comply with notice requirements of General Municipal Law. Hartford Accident & Indem. Co. v Mt. Vernon, 82 Misc. 2d 919, 372 N.Y.S.2d 161, 1975 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2847 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1975).

A paper purporting to be a notice of claim which was a letter signed by the attorney for the plaintiff, addressed to the Comptroller of the City of New York and served by ordinary mail was not in compliance with subdivision 2 which requires that the notice be sworn to and served personally or by registered mail, as required by subdivision 3 of § 50-e of the General Municipal Law. Wiegand v New York, 81 N.Y.S.2d 812, 1948 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2962 (N.Y. Sup. Ct.), aff'd, 273 A.D. 1025, 79 N.Y.S.2d 916, 1948 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5840 (N.Y. App. Div. 1948).

287. Other requirements

City was not entitled to dismissal of complaint for failure to name known employee as defendant in notice of claim since there is no requirement for plaintiff to name any officer, appointee or employee in such notice where city is so named as party, and, in any event, city failed to show any prejudice caused by omission. Travelers Indem. Co. v Yonkers, 142 Misc. 2d 334, 537 N.Y.S.2d 429, 1988 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 807 (N.Y. City Ct. 1988).

N. Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(1)(b) does not eliminate the need to name individual employees against whom a notice of claim is directed. White v Averill Park Cent. Sch. Dist., 195 Misc. 2d 409, 759 N.Y.S.2d 641, 2003 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 263 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 2003).

Trial court followed Goodwin v Pretorius, 962 N.Y.S.2d 539 (4th Dept. 2013), and held that a detainee was not required to name the individual officers, including a police lieutenant and a detective, in the notice of claim as a condition precedent to filing the state law tort claims against them. Scott v City of New Rochelle, 986 N.Y.S.2d 819, 44 Misc. 3d 366, 2014 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2279 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 2014).

288. Excusable noncompliance with required form; prompt notification of defect

Where landowner promptly notified town of danger that its swamp fill operations might cause damage to landowners' property as result of subterranean percolation of waters, and that landowner would hold town accountable for such damage, and town made immediate general investigation at site, town was not prejudiced by landowners' failure to more precisely synchronize formal notice of claims with conditions gradually developing under soil of their house. Doundoulakis v Hempstead, 51 A.D.2d 302, 381 N.Y.S.2d 287, 1976 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10696 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1976), rev'd, 42 N.Y.2d 440, 398 N.Y.S.2d 401, 368 N.E.2d 24, 1977 N.Y. LEXIS 2322 (N.Y. 1977).

Board of education was not entitled to dismissal of personal injury complaint for failure to serve proper notice of claim, even though notice of claim specified only date and time of accident and fact that plaintiff was injured at specific high school as result of negligence of board of education, where comptroller's hearing, which occurred within 4 months of accident, gave board of education sufficient information to investigate accident before any prejudice resulted since plaintiff specified at hearing that claim was for slip and fall on stairs at specified location, and plaintiff also produced 3 photographs of stairs in question. Calia v Board of Educ., 154 A.D.2d 640, 546 N.Y.S.2d 646, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13759 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1989).

Defendant New York City Housing Authority was not entitled to summary judgment in action arising from infant plaintiff's slip and fall on rampway used to transport garbage out of defendant's building since (1) plaintiff's mental retardation, and his inability to speak, constituted acceptable excuse for his failure to offer statement with respect to conditions existing at time of accident, and (2) affidavit of plaintiff's mother, interpreting plaintiff's hand language, was sufficient. Pagan v New York City Housing Authority, 166 A.D.2d 390, 561 N.Y.S.2d 193, 1990 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12976 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1990).

New York Transit Authority was improperly granted effective summary judgment in plaintiff's personal injury action because the trial court had discretion to allow plaintiff to correct her notice of claim under N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(6); the manner in which the accident occurred and the specific location of the accident were described in an administrative hearing under N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-h about three months after the accident, so the Authority was not prejudiced. Streletskaya v New York City Tr. Auth., 27 A.D.3d 640, 812 N.Y.S.2d 130, 2006 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3537 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2006).

289. Sufficiency of particular notices

A notice of claim against a municipality failed to state with sufficient specifity the place at which the claim arose when it merely stated that it arose on the public roadway at an intersection of two city streets, since such statement was too vague to enable the city to locate the alleged defect in the road which led to the claimant's injury, and since the notice was silent regarding causation, which alone made it impossible for the city to investigate the matter; moreover, it was not an abuse of discretion to decline to disregard the claimant's defective notice, since the requisite particulars were not set forth in her bill of particulars, and since there was nothing to suggest that a report made by a police officer who aided the claimant immediately after her accident was ever filed with or otherwise brought to the attention of the appropriate city official. Caselli v New York, 105 A.D.2d 251, 483 N.Y.S.2d 401, 1984 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 20695 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1984).

Causes of action against a New York City Health and Hospitals Corporation hospital for defamation would be dismissed, where plaintiff had filed no notice of claim with respect to one cause, and where the notice for the other cause was insufficient to comply with Gen Mun Law §§ 50-e(2), 50-e(3) in that it asserted only that on a particular date, somewhere in the complex of hospital buildings, unnamed hospital employees (whose identities were known to plaintiff) made defamatory statements. Kasachkoff v New York, 107 A.D.2d 130, 485 N.Y.S.2d 992, 1985 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 42505 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't), app. dismissed, 65 N.Y.2d 722, 492 N.Y.S.2d 28, 481 N.E.2d 568, 1985 N.Y. LEXIS 15120 (N.Y. 1985), app. dismissed, in part, 67 N.Y.2d 645, 499 N.Y.S.2d 683, 490 N.E.2d 549, 1986 N.Y. LEXIS 16737 (N.Y. 1986), aff'd, 68 N.Y.2d 654, 505 N.Y.S.2d 67, 496 N.E.2d 226, 1986 N.Y. LEXIS 19043 (N.Y. 1986).

In medical malpractice action against New York City Health and Hospitals Corporation and individual physicians, court erred in dismissing causes of action premised on lack of informed consent on ground that they were not alleged in notice of claim, since notice of claim, which stated that defendants "committed acts and/or omissions constituting professional negligence," sufficiently apprised defendants of informed consent causes of action so as to enable them to conduct proper investigation. Goldman v New York City Health & Hosp. Corp., 186 A.D.2d 629, 588 N.Y.S.2d 412, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11303 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1992).

Plaintiff's notice of claim was not defective in that cause of action asserting negligent training of police officer was not mentioned therein since city acknowledged that officer was acting within scope of her employment, and thus city could anticipate liability on its part for her actions if they stemmed from inadequate training. Clark v City of Ithaca, 235 A.D.2d 746, 652 N.Y.S.2d 819, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 322 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1997).

City was entitled to dismissal of personal injury action where (1) plaintiff's notice of claim, although timely, did not describe location of accident with sufficient specificity to comply with CLS Gen Mun § 50-e(2), and (2) conflicting and confusing information later offered by plaintiff as to location clearly prejudiced city by hindering its ability to conduct prompt and meaningful investigation; claims of roadway or sidewalk defects must be set forth with great specificity because of their transitory nature. Mack v City of New York, 286 A.D.2d 756, 730 N.Y.S.2d 730, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8700 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2001).

Trial court erred in granting summary judgment pursuant to N.Y. C.P.L.R. 3212 to a transit authority in a personal injury action; the notice of claim provided to the authority by the injured party was sufficient pursuant to N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e, as the notice enabled the authority to investigate and evaluate the merits of the claim. Bennett v N.Y. City Transit Auth., 4 A.D.3d 265, 772 N.Y.S.2d 320, 2004 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1978 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't), aff'd, 3 N.Y.3d 745, 787 N.Y.S.2d 711, 821 N.E.2d 137, 2004 N.Y. LEXIS 3524 (N.Y. 2004).

Trial court properly dismissed claims of negligence and violations of 42 U.S.C.S. § 1983 by a mother and daughter arising from agency defendants' handling of the daughter's claim of abuse; the daughter was not properly named as a party in the notice of claim under N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e, and defendants were entitled to immunity for their actions under N.Y. Soc. Serv. Law § 419 and 42 U.S.C.S. § 1983 because the action did not allege facts showing that the postremoval obligations imposed on an agency by N.Y. Fam. Ct. Act §§ 1024 and 1026 were applicable, or that defendants acted outside the scope of their employment or their conduct was ministerial so as to overcome their qualified immunity. Moore v Melesky, 14 A.D.3d 757, 788 N.Y.S.2d 679, 2005 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 88 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2005).

Although the estate representative's notices of claim regarding the wrongful death suit she was filing alleging that the city was responsible for the death of her sister during the sister's transportation from a criminal courtroom to prison were deficient because they were not properly verified, not properly served, nor sufficiently specific, she would be given a chance to replead in view of the fact that it took her so long to obtain her letters of administration in order to file her suit that she was compelled to file her complaint in the less than the 30 days she was required to give notice to the city of her claim so that the city could try and resolve it, as her complaint would have been otherwise time barred for not being filed within the two-year wrongful death statute of limitations. McKune v City of New York, 19 A.D.3d 308, 799 N.Y.S.2d 25, 2005 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7254 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2005).

Because a school district was provided with sufficient information to conduct a meaningful examination into a student's sexual harassment claim, and because there was no evidence of bad faith by the studen or the student's parents or of prejudice to the district, the district's motion to dismiss for failure to comply with N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(2) was properly denied. Kim L. v Port Jervis City School Dist., 40 A.D.3d 1042, 837 N.Y.S.2d 241, 2007 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6667 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2007).

Trial court improperly granted those branches of the cross motion of a county and a police department which were to dismiss plaintiffs' causes of action to recover damages for assault, battery, and negligent hiring, retention, and supervision because, contrary to the county's and the police department's contention, plaintiffs' notices of claim were sufficient to apprise the county and the police department of the nature of plaintiffs' claims. Blanco v County of Suffolk, 51 A.D.3d 700, 858 N.Y.S.2d 314, 2008 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4195 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2008).

Trial court erred in denying a City's summary judgment motion in a suit arising out of surface water flowing on an owner's land allegedly due to the City's negligence in approving a nearby subdivision as the owner's notice of claim did not comply with N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(2) as it did not reference any acts or omissions attributable to the City, mention of the culvert system or of any type of drainage system, or mention any decision to subdivide the nearby property, and the theories of liability alleged in the complaint were not included in the owner's notice of claim; the owner failed to raise a fact issue and did not seek leave to serve a late notice of claim under § 50-e(5). Tully v City of Glen Cove, 102 A.D.3d 670, 957 N.Y.S.2d 719, 2013 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 63 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't), app. denied, 21 N.Y.3d 852, 965 N.Y.S.2d 790, 988 N.E.2d 528, 2013 N.Y. LEXIS 819 (N.Y. 2013).

Motion to dismiss doctors from a malpractice suit was properly denied because it was undisputed that the administratrix served a notice of claim on the county medical center in accordance with N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(1)(b), and there was no requirement that a plaintiff had to name individual defendants in § 50-e notice as a condition precedent to the commencement of an action against them; to the extent that Rew v. County of Niagara, 73

A.D.3d 1463 (App. Div. 2010), and Cropsey v. County of Orleans Indus. Dev. Agency, 66 A.D.3d 1361 (App. Div. 2009), held that § 50-e barred an action against individuals who had not been named in a notice of claim, where such a notice was required by law, those cases were no longer to be followed. Goodwin v Pretorius, 105 A.D.3d 207, 962 N.Y.S.2d 539, 2013 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1912 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 2013).

Contrary to the assertion by a municipality, the notice of claims filed by a group of lifeguards after they discovered video recording device in their locker room were sufficient with regard to their negligence and intentional infliction of emotional harm (IIEH) claims. Although not citing N.Y. Labor Law § 203-c with regard to the negligence action, that action was clearly based on § 203-c and the IIEH claim alleged invasion of privacy, violation of the Labor Law, and improper surveillance, and the items of damages or injuries included emotional and mental distress. Conroy v Incorporated Vil. of Freeport, 984 N.Y.S.2d 819, 43 Misc. 3d 608, 2014 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 772 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 2014).

In a former inmate's suit against a city and several correctional officers, his notice of claim, which alleged violation of civil rights; battery; denial of medical care; and negligent screening, hiring, training, supervising and retaining of police officers adequately notified the municipal defendants that the inmate might bring an intentional infliction of emotional distress claim against them. Rentas v Ruffin, 816 F.3d 214, 2016 U.S. App. LEXIS 4306 (2d Cir. N.Y. 2016).

Arrestee's tort claims against police officers, asserted as pendent claims to his civil rights claim, are not dismissed, where arrestee filed notice of claim with city's Corporation Council's Law Department within 90 days after claim arose, and where notice contained all information mandated by CLS Gen Mun Law § 50e-(2) but made no mention of individual employees or claims against them, because naming individual employees is not statutorily required and would have been impossible since arrestee did not learn names until discovery, and because notice of claim put city on notice of nature of claims against its employees and notice was therefore not invalid. Messina v Mazzeo, 854 F. Supp. 116, 1994 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 7054 (E.D.N.Y. 1994).

Applicant's claims of libel and prima facie tort failed because the applicant did not meet the notice of claim requirements of N.Y. Educ. Law § 3813(2) and N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law §§ 50-e and 50-i where he did not file a notice of claim with the school board or the superintendent of schools and the district's human resources director; the applicant's age discrimination charge to the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission did not fulfill the notice of claim requirements because it did not mention the state law claims. Avgerinos v Palmyra-Macedon Cent. Sch. Dist., 690 F. Supp. 2d 115, 2010 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 11988 (W.D.N.Y. 2010).

Dismissal of several claims was not warranted based on an arrestee's alleged failure to comply with New York's Notice of Claim statute, because all of the claims in the notice of claim arose from the same underlying arrest, and defendants had sufficient notice of the claims asserted. Burbar v Inc. Vill. of Garden City, 961 F. Supp. 2d 462, 2013 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 117029 (E.D.N.Y. 2013).

Notice of claim alleging that police officers caused a decedent's death contained sufficient detail to allow the city to investigate the claim and ascertain the identities of the officers, so the failure to name the individual officers in the notice did not preclude them from being named as defendants in a subsequent lawsuit. Bah v City of New York, 2014 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 60856 (S.D.N.Y. Apr. 30, 2014).

Where plaintiff sued a town and certain of its officials for abuse of process, the court declined to dismiss the claim for failing to name the individual defendants because individuals did not have to be specifically named in the notice of claim as a condition precedent to bringing the claims. Raus v Town of Southampton, 2015 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 64513 (E.D.N.Y. May 18, 2015), aff'd, 661 Fed. Appx. 81, 2016 U.S. App. LEXIS 17208 (2d Cir. N.Y. 2016).

290. —Letters

Accident report filed with school board by school principal on day after accident on school ground and letter of representation filed by injured child's father's attorney with the board's insurance carrier one week thereafter could not be properly treated as a defective or irregular notice of claim under savings provisions of statute regarding notice of claim against a public corporation. Camarella v East Irondequoit Cent. School Board, 34 N.Y.2d 139, 356 N.Y.S.2d 553, 313 N.E.2d 29, 1974 N.Y. LEXIS 1603 (N.Y. 1974).

Letter written by parent and delivered to chairman and members of board of education, which mentioned in passing that child was assaulted in school, and which made no claim of tort liability, could not be construed either as a notice of claim or as proper service on said board under Gen Mun L § 50-e and CPLR § 311 subd 7. Santiago v Board of Education, 41 A.D.2d 616, 340 N.Y.S.2d 491, 1973 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5149 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1973).

Letter which apparently was not intended to be notice of claim against municipality and failed to contain claim of tort liability against town and was not served on proper party within time allowed failed to comply with notice-of-claim statute, and relief against deficiencies in the alleged notice was properly denied. Skurski v Kreiger, 54 A.D.2d 601, 387 N.Y.S.2d 321, 1976 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13989 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1976).

A replevin action against a deputy Chief Property Clerk of a county was properly dismissed where plaintiff relied upon a letter from his attorney to the District Attorney demanding return of the subject property to fulfill his obligations under Gen Mun Law §§ 50-e, 50-i, where the record did not indicate that the correspondence was intended as a notice of claim and did not satisfy the statutory requirements for such notices. Pretino v Wolbern, 84 A.D.2d 830, 444 N.Y.S.2d 190, 1981 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 16060 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1981).

A personal injury action against a village, based on injuries sustained by plaintiff when his vehicle collided with a village-owned vehicle that was being operated by a village employee, was properly dismissed by the trial court based on plaintiff's failure to comply with Gen Mun Law §§ 50-e, 50-i, where the unverified retainer letter that had been sent by plaintiff's attorney to the village, in which the attorney advised the village that his firm had been hired by plaintiff to prosecute his claim and requested that the village forward the letter to its insurance carrier so that the attorney might take up the matter with the carrier directly, neither stated the manner in which the alleged injuries had been sustained nor delineated the exact time and location of the occurrence, failed to identify one of the injured claimants, failed to furnish the postal addresses of either plaintiff or the other claimant, and failed to properly set forth the items of damage or the injuries claimed, where plaintiffs had made no attempt to serve a formal notice of claim within the statutory ninety-day period prescribed by Gen Mun Law § 50-e(1), and where plaintiffs failed to make any application for an order permitting service of a late notice of claim on the village within one year and ninety days of the accident pursuant to Gen Mun Law § 50-e(5). Gass v Hahn, 98 A.D.2d 741, 469 N.Y.S.2d 445, 1983 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 21052 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1983).

No-fault claim form completed by plaintiff and sent to defendant bus company, together with correspondence from attorney directed to defendant's claim department, constituted in aggregate sufficient notice of claim to county within meaning of CLS Gen Mun § 50-e. Miller v Liberty Lines, 208 A.D.2d 454, 617 N.Y.S.2d 471, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10464 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1994).

Defendant transit corporation was not entitled to dismissal of personal injury complaint on ground that plaintiff failed to file timely notice of claim because where (1) plaintiff sent letter to defendant's counsel at defendant's direction, reporting incident, (2) plaintiff filed no-fault application with defendant's claims administrator, and (3) driver of bus involved in accident submitted written and oral reports respecting incident to defendant. Santiago v Liberty Lines Transit, Inc., 259 A.D.2d 362, 687 N.Y.S.2d 57, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2791 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1999).

The letter of the husband of a claimant who fell on a village sidewalk to a representative of the insurance company which covered the village does not constitute a notice of claim in compliance with the requirements of § 50-e. Application of Albiston, 114 N.Y.S.2d 579, 202 Misc. 973, 1952 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2939 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1952).

Although it was not verified, a letter constituted substantial compliance with the notice requirements because it contained a sufficient degree of descriptive detail, was adequately served upon the governing body, and was timely delivered. Berkowitz v E. Ramapo Cent. Sch. Dist., 932 F. Supp. 2d 513, 2013 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 39664 (S.D.N.Y. 2013).

291. —Adequacy of service

In a wrongful death action alleging medical malpractice, filed against a New York City, N.Y., public hospital, the survivor's notice of claim against the New York City Health and Hospitals Corporation was inadequate because it was not served personally, or by registered or certified mail, as required by N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(3), and the corporation denied receipt of it. Jones v City of New York, 300 A.D.2d 359, 751 N.Y.S.2d 522, 2002 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11929 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2002).

Trial court erred in denying an injured party's motion to deem a notice of claim on a county as properly served; the county was a necessary party to the action, and although the original notice was not served on the proper person pursuant to N.Y. C.P.L.R. 311(a)(4), N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(3)(a), the original notice was actually received by a proper person, the county's counsel, in a timely fashion pursuant to N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(3)(a), (c). Santiago v Santana, 8 A.D.3d 650, 779 N.Y.S.2d 554, 2004 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9140 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2004).

292. Variance of notice and complaint

Arrestee's general claims for violations of civil rights and intentional infliction of emotional distress were insufficient to alert a city as to his claim for false arrest and imprisonment and malicious prosecution, nor was the arrestee's N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-h hearing testimony sufficient to provide the required notice; the arrestee's claims against the city therefore should have been dismissed. Batista v City of New York, 15 A.D.3d 304, 790 N.Y.S.2d 445, 2005 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1929 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2005).

Pursuant to N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(2) the trial court should have granted a city's motion to dismiss because an arrestee's notice of claim failed to allege the negligence and civil rights violations (under 42 U.S.C.S. § 1983 by the city and police officers regarding the deprivation of medical treatment during police custody) that were in the arrestee's complaint. Vargas v City of New York, 105 A.D.3d 834, 963 N.Y.S.2d 278, 2013 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2333 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2013), app. dismissed, 24 N.Y.3d 1081, 25 N.E.3d 985, 2 N.Y.S.3d 70, 2014 N.Y. LEXIS 3816 (N.Y. 2014).

In action by pro se plaintiff who allegedly suffered emotional distress due to bus driver's offensive and racist comments, transit authority was not entitled to dismissal of complaint on ground that notice of claim alleged violations of state and federal civil rights while complaint alleged tortious conduct, where transit authority had ample information and opportunity to investigate claim. Williams v N.Y. City Transit Auth., 188 Misc. 2d 18, 724 N.Y.S.2d 830, 2001 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 122 (N.Y. Civ. Ct. 2001).

IX. Claims Based On Street Or Similar Defects

293. In general

Prior-notice laws refer to physical defects such as holes and cracks, not to the failure to maintain or erect traffic signs; accordingly, plaintiff's action against defendant city for injuries sustained in a traffic accident at an intersection at which there was no stop sign was not barred, even though plaintiff did not prove that notice of the nonexistent stop sign was ever given to the city. Alexander v Eldred, 63 N.Y.2d 460, 483 N.Y.S.2d 168, 472 N.E.2d 996, 1984 N.Y. LEXIS 4679 (N.Y. 1984).

Plaintiff, who was injured when he fell on defective concrete stairway leading from sidewalk to municipal park, was required to give prior written notice of defective condition as prerequisite to lawsuit against city pursuant to NYC Admin Code § 7-201(c)(2) and CLS Gen Mun § 50-e(4) where administrative code reasonably defined sidewalk as including stairs when integrated with or serving as part of connected standard sidewalk. Woodson v City of New York, 93 N.Y.2d 936, 693 N.Y.S.2d 69, 715 N.E.2d 96, 1999 N.Y. LEXIS 1214 (N.Y. 1999).

Section 50-e of the General Municipal Law allows municipalities to require notice of an unsafe condition as a condition precedent to a suit for damages caused thereby only with regard to a street, highway, bridge, culvert, sidewalk or crosswalk. Zumbo v Farmington, 60 A.D.2d 350, 401 N.Y.S.2d 121, 1978 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9680 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1978).

Municipal parking lot is "highway" for purposes of CLS Gen Mun § 50-e(4). Lauria v City of New Rochelle, 225 A.D.2d 1013, 639 N.Y.S.2d 867, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2760 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1996).

Dismissal of complaint at completion of plaintiff's opening statement was proper where plaintiff's counsel, in that statement, admitted that there had been no compliance with "Pothole Law" in NYC Admin Code § 7-201(c)(2) and failed to propose that he would prove at trial that exception to prior written notice requirement existed in case. Sewell v City of New York, 238 A.D.2d 331, 656 N.Y.S.2d 916, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3400 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1997).

Although open and obvious, accumulation of debris on sidewalk was "obstructed condition" of sidewalk requiring prior written notice to city under NYC Admin Code § 7-201(c)(2) where there was no reason not to construe that language according to its literal meaning. Almodovar by Guzman v City of New York, 240 A.D.2d 523, 658 N.Y.S.2d 446, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6615 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1997).

NYC Admin Code § 7-201(c)(2), known as "Pothole Law," cannot serve as predicate for action under CLS Gen Mun § 205-e, because § 7-201(c)(2) does not impose on city affirmative duty to repair. Jackson v City of New York, 240 A.D.2d 708, 659 N.Y.S.2d 321, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7106 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1997).

Defendant town was entitled to summary judgment in personal injury action where it did not, under CLS Town § 65-a(1) and town's code, receive prior written notice of any roadway defect in area of accident, and plaintiff failed to submit competent evidence that town affirmatively created defect. Gillan v Town of Clarkstown, 251 A.D.2d 287, 671 N.Y.S.2d 1023, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6310 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1998).

City was entitled to dismissal of personal injury action where (1) plaintiff's notice of claim, although timely, did not describe location of accident with sufficient specificity to comply with CLS Gen Mun § 50-e(2), and (2) conflicting and confusing information later offered by plaintiff as to location clearly prejudiced city by hindering its ability to conduct prompt and meaningful investigation; claims of roadway or sidewalk defects must be set forth with great specificity because of their transitory nature. Mack v City of New York, 286 A.D.2d 756, 730 N.Y.S.2d 730, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8700 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2001).

Compliance with notice of claim requirements (General Municipal Law, § 50-e) is a condition precedent to a claim against a municipality; while a notice of claim which alleges that plaintiff tripped over a raised sidewalk slab between "24th Street and Crescent Street in Astoria, New York", is defective for not sufficiently describing "the place where" the claim arose (General Municipal Law, § 50-e, subd 2) since the municipality is entitled to more particularity where the claim involves a defective sidewalk in order to enable it to locate the particular defective sidewalk said to have caused the accident, the defect will be disregarded since the city took a photograph of the sidewalk along where it was claimed plaintiff fell and was, therefore, not prejudiced by plaintiff's failure to have more specifically set forth the location of the defect; the Civil Court of the City of New York has jurisdiction to disregard the defect since relief from a defective notice of claim may be sought "at any stage of an action", necessarily permitting any court in which the action is pending to grant such relief (General Municipal Law, § 50-e, subd 6), while the requirement that other applications under section 50-e be made only in the Supreme Court or the County Court (General Municipal Law, § 50-e, subd 7) applies to applications for leave to serve a late notice of claim. Maiello v New York, 103 Misc. 2d 1064, 427 N.Y.S.2d 381, 1980 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2255 (N.Y. Civ. Ct. 1980), aff'd, 113 Misc. 2d 122, 450 N.Y.S.2d 932, 1981 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3462 (N.Y. App. Term 1981).

This section does not purport to supersede or supplant other laws dealing with municipal liability for street, highway, and sidewalk defects and snow or ice hazards, and it expressly provides that giving of notice of claim hereunder does not dispense with necessity for prior notice of such defects and dangers as a condition to liability for damage or injury sustained; therefore, a complaint for damages arising out of such situations, where there is a statute requiring prior notice of the hazard on the part of the municipality, is nonetheless subject to dismissal because it alleges due compliance with this section, if it fails to allege compliance with the prior-to-accident notice requirements, or that they had been duly met. Levine v Glen Cove, 111 N.Y.S.2d 882, 1952 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2582 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1952); Weingarten v Long Beach, 154 N.Y.S.2d 101 (N.Y. City Ct. 1956).

However, most of the street defect statutes are construed as not making notice of the defect or hazard in advance of injury sustained a condition precedent to municipal liability if the street condition giving rise to the damage was due to some affirmative act, or to "affirmative negligence," of the municipality. Hence service of notice of claim, pursuant to this section, after injury sustained, is sufficient to sustain a right of action, if the claim is asserted in such manner as to bring it within this line of authority. Smith v Corning, 14 A.D.2d 27, 217 N.Y.S.2d 149, 1961 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9699 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1961); Dryburgh v Rye, 210 N.Y.S.2d 183, 1958 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 4122 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1958).

Before an action may be maintained against a village for damages occasioned by defects in a village street, highway, sidewalk, etc., the village must have had notice of such defects prior to the accident giving use to such damages. A notice of claim must also be served in order to maintain an action against the village. 1969 Ops St Compt File #96.

294. What constitutes notice of defects

A notice of claim against a municipality failed to state with sufficient specifity the place at which the claim arose when it merely stated that it arose on the public roadway at an intersection of two city streets, since such statement was too vague to enable the city to locate the alleged defect in the road which led to the claimant's injury, and since the notice was silent regarding causation, which alone made it impossible for the city to investigate the matter; moreover, it was not an abuse of discretion to decline to disregard the claimant's defective notice, since the requisite particulars were not set forth in her bill of particulars, and since there was nothing to suggest that a report made by a police officer who aided the claimant immediately after her accident was ever filed with or otherwise brought to the attention of the appropriate city official. Caselli v New York, 105 A.D.2d 251, 483 N.Y.S.2d 401, 1984 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 20695 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1984).

In action to recover damages for personal injuries sustained as result of allegedly defective condition in street, amendment of defective notice of claim will be denied where original notice was insufficient with respect to setting forth place and manner in which claim arose, thereby prejudicing city by depriving it of opportunity to conduct prompt and adequate investigation. Mazza v New York, 112 A.D.2d 921, 492 N.Y.S.2d 438, 1985 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 52134 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1985).

Court erred in denying city's motion for summary judgment dismissing complaint where plaintiff submitted no evidence to show that prior complaint of "low spot" in road in front of specific address, which condition city asserted was repaired same day, referred to crumbling and broken condition of curb or curb cut that allegedly caused her to fall 5 years later. McCauliffe v City of Syracuse, 221 A.D.2d 946, 635 N.Y.S.2d 558, 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13433 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1995).

Personal injury action against city was properly dismissed where most recent "Big Apple" map, on file with New York City Department of Transportation, did not show defect at location of plaintiff's fall. Civello v City of New York, 255 A.D.2d 353, 679 N.Y.S.2d 843, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11815 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1998).

City did not acquire actual knowledge of the essential facts constituting a pedestrian's claim within 90 days of the accident or a reasonable time thereafter because while the city had prior knowledge of the crosswalk defect, actual knowledge of the defect was not tantamount to actual knowledge of the facts constituting the claim, since the city was not aware of the pedestrian's accident, her injuries, and the facts underlying her theory of liability. Matter of Bermudez v City of New York, 167 A.D.3d 733, 89 N.Y.S.3d 289, 2018 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8474 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2018).

Although subd 4 of this section provides that service of notice of claim does not dispense with notice of defect whenever same is required, it is not to be interpreted as meaning that a notice of claim served upon a municipality for a prior accident cannot serve as written notice of a defect, such as a sidewalk defect, if, in fact, it concerned the same defective condition. Boyd v Keeseville, 24 Misc. 2d 33, 202 N.Y.S.2d 637, 1960 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2816 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1960), aff'd, 14 A.D.2d 446, 221 N.Y.S.2d 755, 1961 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7347 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1961).

Notices of claim filed under CLS Gen Mun § 50-e constitute notices of defect under Pothole Law (NYC Admin Code § 7-201(c)) and CLS Gen Mun § 50-g. Shatzkamer v Eskind, 139 Misc. 2d 672, 528 N.Y.S.2d 968, 1988 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 230 (N.Y. Civ. Ct. 1988), rev'd, 34 Misc. 3d 154(A), 1989 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 925 (N.Y. App. Term 1989).

295. Sidewalk injury

In a personal injury action against the City of New York, in which no notice of claim was served on the city within the 90-day period prescribed by Gen Mun Law § 50-e, there was an ample basis upon which to conclude that the city's defense of the action had been substantially compromised by the delay, and thus it was not an abuse of discretion to deny plaintiffs' application for leave to file a late notice, where the city received no notice of the accident, which was not reported to the police, until one year and 87 days after its occurrence, and where the complaint alleged that the city's liability was predicated upon a defective sidewalk upon which plaintiff had fallen, and upon a dangerous condition created by the combined accumulation of snow and ice, which the city had no occasion to investigate until nearly one year after the time period for serving a notice of claim had run. Zarrello v New York, 61 N.Y.2d 628, 471 N.Y.S.2d 846, 459 N.E.2d 1284, 1983 N.Y. LEXIS 3628 (N.Y. 1983).

Constructive notice of sidewalk defect did not satisfy statutory requirement of written notice to municipality, warranting summary judgment in favor of defendant municipality. Amabile v City of Buffalo, 93 N.Y.2d 471, 693 N.Y.S.2d 77, 715 N.E.2d 104, 1999 N.Y. LEXIS 1300 (N.Y. 1999).

Notice of claim, which alleged that plaintiff tripped on broken portion of sidewalk and curb and identified accident site with particularity, was not rendered defective by fact that plaintiff circled defective curb but not adjacent sidewalk on each of 3 photographs depicting location where he fell; thus, Appellate Division erred in affirming trial court's dismissal of complaint, after jury specifically found that plaintiff fell on sidewalk before reaching curb, on ground that notice of claim did not notify city of location of injury-causing defect. Brown v City of New York, 95 N.Y.2d 389, 718 N.Y.S.2d 4, 740 N.E.2d 1078, 2000 N.Y. LEXIS 3505 (N.Y. 2000).

In an action for injuries sustained when, upon alighting from a bus, plaintiff was injured when her foot went into a broken curb of a sidewalk causing her to fall, and the proof was undisputed that the city had actual notice of the defective condition and ample time to remedy it, the issue of notice should not have been submitted to the jury and the refusal of the trial court to charge, as requested, that as a matter of law the city had actual and constructive notice of the condition where plaintiff fell constituted prejudicial error requiring a new trial. Schlam v New York, 33 A.D.2d 1025, 308 N.Y.S.2d 122, 1970 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5624 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1970).

In a personal injury action arising out of a fall on a sidewalk, the complaint was properly dismissed as against defendant City of New York, where plaintiff's notice of claim failed to describe the cause of his fall, nothing in the notice of claim provided a reasonable basis upon which the city could have adequately investigated the matter, a police aided report prepared on the date of the accident was insufficient to allow imputation of knowledge of causation to the city, and plaintiff's application to amend the notice of claim to include the manner in which the claim arose was not made until the eve of trial, nearly five years after the date of the accident. Levine v New York, 111 A.D.2d 785, 490 N.Y.S.2d 533, 1985 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 50037 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1985).

Pedestrian's motion to amend her notice of claim against city was properly denied, even though her timely notice was in error in designating intersecting streets nearest to defect within municipal parking lot, where 16 months passed between accident and motion to amend, and pedestrian made no effort to show that condition of defect remained unchanged; because of their transitory nature, claims of sidewalk defects must be set forth with greater specificity than cases involving defects that do not change over time. Fendig v New York, 132 A.D.2d 520, 517 N.Y.S.2d 536, 1987 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 49050 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1987).

Pedestrian complied with notice requirements of CLS Gen Mun § 50-e as to location of fall on city sidewalk where (1) on supplemental claim form, she indicated that accident occurred at "217-233 E. 70th St. in front of Post Office" and "closer to 2nd Ave. side of street," and (2) she attached 13 photographs showing uneven condition of sidewalk and various points of reference on facade of post office. Glekel v New York, 151 A.D.2d 231, 541 N.Y.S.2d 815, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7134 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1989).

City housing authority was entitled to dismissal of complaint for failure to comply with CLS Gen Mun § 50-e where (1) plaintiff was resident of building with 2 entrances, one designated as 353 E. 141st St. and other designated as 355 E. 141st St., (2) plaintiff alleged that she broke her arm when she tripped on hole in sidewalk outside entrance to 355, (3) accident report prepared for housing authority designated site of accident as entrance to 353 and notice of claim contained same erroneous designation, (4) agent of housing authority investigated entrance to 353 and found no defect, and (5) error was corrected by plaintiff for first time at deposition which occurred 4 ½ years after accident; although misdesignation appeared to be inadvertent, housing authority was prejudiced by inability to investigate transitory defect. Wilson v New York City Hous. Auth., 187 A.D.2d 260, 589 N.Y.S.2d 425, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12571 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1992), app. denied, 81 N.Y.2d 704, 595 N.Y.S.2d 398, 611 N.E.2d 299, 1993 N.Y. LEXIS 235 (N.Y. 1993).

Prejudice to city was proper basis to deny plaintiff's motion to amend notice of claim to provide correct location of defective sidewalk, where city had examined and photographed incorrect site soon after receiving notice of claim and did not learn correct location until 5 years later at plaintiff's deposition, plaintiff did not move for leave to amend her notice of claim until 3 years after deposition, and mere filing of police report did not provide sufficient basis for imputing knowledge of correct accident site to city. Lopez v City of New York, 287 A.D.2d 694, 732 N.Y.S.2d 81, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10033 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2001).

Pedestrian was not entitled to amend his notice of claim to allege he slipped and fell on snow and ice on sidewalk adjacent to the housing authority's property because the pedestrian's original notice of claim stated that his fall resulted from a jagged and uneven sidewalk and the proposed amendment constituted a substantive change in the theory of liability; the pedestrian did not seek leave to serve a late notice of claim within 1 year and 90 days of the date that his claim accrued. Robinson v City of New York, 138 A.D.3d 1093, 30 N.Y.S.3d 311, 2016 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3036 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2016).

Notice of claim served on city was sufficiently specific to inform city of location of incident where it stated that claimant fell on sidewalk on south side of named street between 2 other named cross streets, and further stated that fall was caused by bent metal post cemented into sidewalk adjoining particular building; claimant was not required to give metes and bounds description. Lurie v New York City Office of Comptroller, 154 Misc. 2d 950, 587 N.Y.S.2d 831, 1992 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 348 (N.Y. Civ. Ct. 1992).

296. Snow or ice condition

See Zarrello v New York, 61 N.Y.2d 628, 471 N.Y.S.2d 846, 459 N.E.2d 1284, 1983 N.Y. LEXIS 3628 (N.Y. 1983).

Where evidence was that on January 19, and 20 a precipitation of snow of from 8 to 10 inches occurred and that on January 23 and 24 an additional snowfall of 1 to 2.2 inches occurred and the female plaintiff was injured on a pathway of snow and ice on a city sidewalk on January 26, it was for the jury to decide (a) whether the female plaintiff fell as a consequence of the first or second snowfall or as a result of the accumulation of both storms; (b) whether a 6-day or a 47-hour lapse of time had occurred from the end of the causal precipitation; (c) whether the city was faced with a usual or unusual snowfall; and (d) whether, if confronted by an ordinary situation of winter weather in the locality, the city had acted as a prudent and careful municipality in clearing the precipitation. Laufer v New York, 33 A.D.2d 1038, 308 N.Y.S.2d 795, 1970 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5513 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1970).

County was entitled to summary judgment dismissing action for injuries sustained in motor vehicle accident allegedly caused by icy conditions on road where it was undisputed that no prior written notice of defect was received by county, plaintiffs failed to establish constructive notice of road condition, either by reports of prior accidents at same site or by unsworn statement of tow truck operator as to tow calls from site, since there was no information as to cause of alleged prior accidents or as to similarities of those accidents with instant accident. Buccellato v County of Nassau, 158 A.D.2d 440, 550 N.Y.S.2d 906, 1990 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1288 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't), app. denied, 76 N.Y.2d 703, 559 N.Y.S.2d 982, 559 N.E.2d 676, 1990 N.Y. LEXIS 1387 (N.Y. 1990).

Court properly dismissed action against county based on its alleged failure to sand and salt icy roadway, notwithstanding plaintiff's contention that county was on constructive notice of need for sand and salt by virtue of existing weather conditions, and that county had received actual notice of roadway's icy condition, since plaintiff failed to allege compliance with county law requiring prior written notice of highway defect involving snow or ice; further, failure to sand roadway is insufficient to establish type of affirmative negligence required to excuse noncompliance with notice requirement. Lang v County of Sullivan, 184 A.D.2d 981, 585 N.Y.S.2d 609, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8546 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1992).

Since snow and ice are conditions which change with passage of time, they should be set forth in notice of claim with even greater specificity than conditions which do not change over time; thus, notice of claim against city for injuries sustained by plaintiff when she fell on snow and ice on sidewalk, which merely recited that "[p]laintiff was caused to fall on the sidewalk," was insufficient under CLS Gen Mun § 50-e, even if city's ability to conduct physical examination of location where accident occurred was unaffected by plaintiff's failure to mention snow and ice in notice, in that those conditions had undoubtedly changed by time notice was served, since such failure (1) prejudiced city in maintaining its defense that accident occurred before it had reasonable amount of time to shovel sidewalk, and deprived city of opportunity to interview witnesses in timely manner about whether any nearby homeowners had shoveled sidewalk. Aviles v City of New York, 202 A.D.2d 530, 609 N.Y.S.2d 85, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2638 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1994), app. denied, 84 N.Y.2d 813, 623 N.Y.S.2d 181, 647 N.E.2d 453, 1995 N.Y. LEXIS 69 (N.Y. 1995).

Notice of claim alleging slip and fall on ice was inadequate to meet requirements of CLS Gen Mun § 50-e(2) where notice misidentified accident site, and photographs accompanying notice contained no street signs or landmarks. Valle v New York City

Hous. Auth., 224 A.D.2d 433, 637 N.Y.S.2d 757, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 878 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1996).

Town was entitled to summary judgment dismissing personal injury action by plaintiff who allegedly slipped and fell on snow and ice in unidentified portion of town parking lot, where notice of claim merely described site of accident as parking lot "east of Route 107 between E. Nicholai Street and E. Marie Street." Markotsis v Town of Oyster Bay, 261 A.D.2d 451, 690 N.Y.S.2d 104, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4738 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1999).

City was entitled to summary judgment dismissing action for slip and fall on its icy sidewalk where precipitation ended on morning preceding accident, and there were subfreezing temperatures on that day 2 preceding days. Saitta v City of New York, 281 A.D.2d 333, 722 N.Y.S.2d 522, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3222 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2001).

Where in a personal injury action against the county pursuant to the victim's slip and fall accident, the victim's husband testified that the victim fell approximately 30 yards from a stop sign governing traffic leaving a parking lot operated by the county, the evidence sufficiently identified the location of the accident; however, the action was dismissed as the county submitted proof that no prior written notice of any icy condition on any of the paths located at the subject area had been filed in an appropriate office prior to the date of the accident. Rutto v County of Westchester, 298 A.D.2d 450, 748 N.Y.S.2d 172, 2002 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9867 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2002).

297. Other dangerous conditions

In a pedestrian's action against the city, seeking recovery for injuries suffered in tripping on a depressed manhole in a city street, the action would be dismissed for failure either to plead or to prove compliance with the city code's notice provisions where compliance with the notice provisions was an essential element of the cause of action absent evidence that the defect had been caused by the city. Shaw v Auburn, 91 A.D.2d 817, 458 N.Y.S.2d 96, 1982 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 19715 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1982), aff'd, 59 N.Y.2d 780, 464 N.Y.S.2d 751, 451 N.E.2d 498, 1983 N.Y. LEXIS 3129 (N.Y. 1983).

In action for injuries sustained when plaintiff was "caused to fall on a broken, irregular hole in the street," court properly denied plaintiff's motion to strike city's affirmative defense that her notice of claim was insufficient where original notice of claim merely stated that accident occurred at "Crown Street and New York Avenue" and failed to describe location of alleged defect with sufficient particularity to enable city to conduct proper investigation. Harper v New York, 129 A.D.2d 770, 514 N.Y.S.2d 763, 1987 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 45465 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1987).

In action predicated on town's alleged negligence in failing to advise neighboring town of need for warning signs at town line where accident occurred, town was not entitled to summary judgment based on plaintiff's failure to comply with town's prior notice law, since CLS Gen Mun § 50-e(4) does not permit municipalities to enact local laws requiring prior notice other than in case of physical conditions of streets and sidewalks which do not immediately come to attention of municipal officers, and municipalities may not require prior notice of failure to erect or maintain traffic control devices. Adams v Lisbon, 170 A.D.2d 901, 566 N.Y.S.2d 729, 1991 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2472 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1991).

In action to recover for injuries sustained when plaintiff tripped over metal sign sleeve that protruded about 6 inches above sidewalk, city was not entitled to summary judgment on basis that there was no prior written notice of defect since sign sleeve was not defect within meaning of city charter provision. Montante v Rochester, 187 A.D.2d 924, 590 N.Y.S.2d 352, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13914 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1992), overruled, Poirier v City of Schenectady, 85 N.Y.2d 310, 624 N.Y.S.2d 555, 648 N.E.2d 1318, 1995 N.Y. LEXIS 684 (N.Y. 1995).

Court erred in granting town's motion for summary judgment dismissing action alleging that town negligently "designed, created, constructed, owned, maintained, controlled and/or inspected" highway, notwithstanding that no prior written notice of defect in highway had been filed with town, as required by local law, since it was undisputed that town owned road and had maintained it for at least 16 years, and affidavit of plaintiff's engineer stated that dirt and gravel which town had used to build up adjacent roadway surface was not compacted properly, and coupled with lack of retaining wall or other lateral support, led to collapse that precipitated accident; under circumstances, fact issue existed as to whether town, by its affirmative acts in maintaining road, created dangerous condition and thus could be held liable even absent prior written notice. Toohey v Brunswick, 191 A.D.2d 858, 595 N.Y.S.2d 132, 1993 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2351 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1993).

New York City Transit Authority was entitled to summary judgment based on failure of notice of claim to describe accident location with sufficient particularity, and resulting prejudice, where (1) notice of claim erroneously described accident site as being "at the Atlantic Avenue Station for the #2 Train, more specifically, at stairway P-10," when actual location was adjacent Pacific Street subway station on stairway P-10, and (2) transit authority did not learn of correct location until 23 months after accident. Charles v New York City Transit Auth., 205 A.D.2d 488, 613 N.Y.S.2d 35, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5964 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1994), app. denied, 85 N.Y.2d 801, 624 N.Y.S.2d 371, 648 N.E.2d 791, 1995 N.Y. LEXIS 179 (N.Y. 1995).

Sufficient evidence was adduced at trial to support finding that city negligently left in place inadequately secured guard rail section adjacent to sign post into which plaintiff's decedent's vehicle crashed, and thus city was not entitled to dismissal of complaint on grounds that it had not been given prior written notice of alleged highway defect, where plaintiff's engineering and highway expert concluded that guard rail section had not been equipped with number of bolts required to secure extended line of railing, and "work order" documents indicated that repair work had been done by city on guard rail at location where accident later occurred. Miller v City of New York, 225 A.D.2d 396, 640 N.Y.S.2d 11, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2734 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1996), app. denied, 90 N.Y.2d 807, 664 N.Y.S.2d 268, 686 N.E.2d 1363, 1997 N.Y. LEXIS 3029 (N.Y. 1997).

In action by plaintiff who was injured when road on which he was driving caved in due to ruptured water line, city was not entitled to summary judgment on ground that it had no prior written notice of alleged defect, as city's prior notice statute did not refer to latent defects or conditions but rather referred to actual physical defects in street surface, and thus did not apply because leaking water pipe was subsurface and not visible. McKinnis v City of Schenectady, 234 A.D.2d 760, 650 N.Y.S.2d 910, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12457 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1996).

Complaint by plaintiff, who slipped on section of public roadway that was oily and slippery, was properly dismissed for failure to plead compliance with prior notice provision of NYC Admin Code § 7-201 ("Pothole Law") where, by plaintiff's own description, condition was not fleeting or transitory but was in vicinity of parked motor vehicles to which repairs were routinely made, in course of which oil was caused to fall on roadway. Baez v City of New York, 236 A.D.2d 305, 653 N.Y.S.2d 926, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1565 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1997).

In action against city for fall on defective drainage grating located in municipal parking lot, grating did not fall within special use exception to prior written notice requirement in city charter where drainage function of grating provided for proper maintenance of safe parking lot and thus served no municipal function inuring so special benefit of city. Barnes v City of Mount Vernon, 245 A.D.2d 407, 666 N.Y.S.2d 206, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13105 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1997).

City was entitled to summary judgment, in action for fall on defective drainage grating located in municipal parking lot, where plaintiff failed to show that city either had prior written notice of defective grating or should have known of such condition because it inspected or worked on subject area shortly before accident. Barnes v City of Mount Vernon, 245 A.D.2d 407, 666 N.Y.S.2d 206, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13105 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1997).

City was entitled to summary judgment dismissing personal injury action where plaintiff did not plead, and city did not receive, written notice of oil spill that allegedly caused accident, as required by NYC Admin Code § 7-201(c)(2), and spill on city street was of unknown origin. Estrada v City of New York, 273 A.D.2d 194, 709 N.Y.S.2d 105, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6265 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't), app. denied, 95 N.Y.2d 764, 716 N.Y.S.2d 38, 739 N.E.2d 294, 2000 N.Y. LEXIS 2815 (N.Y. 2000).

County did not have constructive notice of defective condition of tree that fell on plaintiff's car as he drove along county road where (1) sole evidence that tree was "leaning" was affidavit of witness who never described extent of leaning and never indicated that leaning was progressive, (2) municipality is on notice to make inspection only if tree is "hanging precariously" over roadway or "leaning precariously toward the [roadway]," which was not proved, and (3) even if inspection had been made, it would not have revealed that defect—inadequate root system, according to tree expert—was proximate cause of accident, absent any visible sign of decay from postaccident inspection of tree trunk. Quog v Town of Brookhaven, 273 A.D.2d 287, 708 N.Y.S.2d 715, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6479 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2000).

A town may not settle a claim arising out of the alleged negligence of the town in maintaining a bridge, where it did not receive a notice of claim as provided in this section. 1954 Ops St Compt File #6562.

X. Service of Notice

298. In general

Where court granted permission for late service of notice of claim on county pursuant to CLS Gen Mun § 50-e, but service was then apparently made in improper manner, court properly amended its original order to provide that notice of claim was deemed to have been served on date on which notice of motion for permission to serve late notice of claim was served on county, since notice of motion had copy of notice of claim attached to it. Fast v County of Broome, 151 A.D.2d 930, 543 N.Y.S.2d 203, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8869 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1989).

Although plaintiff's initial service on wrong municipal entity might have been reasonable excuse so as to support application for leave to serve late notice of claim made within available one year and 90-day period under CLS Gen Mun § 50-e(5), late service on correct municipal entity was nullity because it was made without leave of court where plaintiff never made timely motion under § 50-e(5). Kokkinos v Dormitory Auth., 238 A.D.2d 550, 657 N.Y.S.2d 81, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4405 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1997).

In action for injuries allegedly sustained by infant when she fell in playground owned by New York City Housing Authority (defendant), court should have granted plaintiffs' motion for order deeming their second notice of claim to have been timely served nunc pro tunc where plaintiff's served defendant with second notice of claim just 56 days after statutory time period for making such service expired, defendant had photographs of location as it existed at time of accident, and repairs to defective condition were not made until about 2 months after defendant was served with second notice of claim. Barnes v New York City Hous. Auth., 262 A.D.2d 46, 691 N.Y.S.2d 463, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6409 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1999), app. denied, 95 N.Y.2d 757, 713 N.Y.S.2d 1, 734 N.E.2d 1212, 2000 N.Y. LEXIS 1771 (N.Y. 2000).

Former subdivision 3 of this section prescribes the manner in which a notice of claim against a municipality or public corporation must be served and directs service upon the person, officer, agent, clerk or employee "designated by law as a person to whom a summons in an action in the supreme court issued against such party may be delivered." Except as this subdivision authorizes disregard of defects in service in case the notice is actually received by the person to be served and acted upon, these provisions are mandatory, and failure to comply with them during the period for serving notice is incurable and defeats any right of action. Application of Polite, 141 N.Y.S.2d 329, 207 Misc. 622, 1955 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2524 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1955).

A complaint which merely alleges that notice of plaintiff's claim has been filed as required by this section, without details as to the date and manner of service, is entirely insufficient as an allegation of fact and fails to state a cause of action. Giles v County of Otsego, 27 Misc. 2d 749, 218 N.Y.S.2d 731, 1961 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3309 (N.Y. County Ct. 1961).

In reference to General Municipal Law, legislature regards service of notice of claim as condition precedent to commencement of action or special proceeding against public corporation. Colantuono v Valley Cent. School Dist., 90 Misc. 2d 918, 396 N.Y.S.2d 590, 1977 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2189 (N.Y. Sup. Ct.), aff'd, 59 A.D.2d 926, 399 N.Y.S.2d 262, 1977 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 14144 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1977).

Where the firefighter, who alleged that the firefighter was injured because of exposure to toxic substances in the course of working at the site of terrorist attacks, did not become aware of the firefighter's condition until months after working at site of terrorist attacks, the firefighter was granted leave to serve late notice of claim under N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(5); the trial court refused to penalize the firefighter for failing to rush to sue before the firefighter had a good-faith basis to claim injury, the City of New York had actual notice of the facts due to intense government investigation and media scrutiny, the City was not prejudiced by the delay since the delay had no effect on the City's capacity to investigate, defend, or correct an allegedly hazardous condition or to objectively verify or refute a condition, and the City's right to conduct comptroller's examinations under N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-h was to ensure its right to explore certain issues thoroughly even before commencement of an action. Stephenson v City of New York, 812 N.Y.S.2d 802, 11 Misc. 3d 492, 235 N.Y.L.J. 11, 2005 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3058 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 2005).

In an application for leave to serve late notice of claim pursuant to N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(5) does not require a showing of ultimate entitlement to judgment such as a motion for summary judgment under N.Y. C.P.L.R. 3212. Stephenson v City of New York, 812 N.Y.S.2d 802, 11 Misc. 3d 492, 235 N.Y.L.J. 11, 2005 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3058 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 2005).

Trial court had jurisdiction to consider a claimant's application to allow a late claim under N.Y. Pub. Auth. Law § 3567(1) and N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(3)(a), which set forth specific provisions for the service of a notice of claim, including service by delivery to an attorney regularly engaged in representing such public corporation, as the statute was silent with respect to the manner by which an application for leave to file a late notice of claim was to be served, and the service on the New York Attorney General's Office comported with the service provisions since that office regularly engaged in the representation of the hospital in litigation in the New York Court of Claims. Clark v Roswell Park Cancer Inst. Corp., 919 N.Y.S.2d 268, 31 Misc. 3d 578, 2010 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 6609 (N.Y. Ct. Cl. 2010), aff'd, 92 A.D.3d 1273, 938 N.Y.S.2d 483, 2012 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1283 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 2012).

299. Relationship to other statutes

The requirement for service of certain notices provided for in Labor Law § 220, subd 5(f), Village Law § 341-b, and General Municipal Law § 50-e are inapplicable to actions brought pursuant to Labor Law § 220, subd 8. Bucci v Port Chester, 22 N.Y.2d 195, 292 N.Y.S.2d 393, 239 N.E.2d 335, 1968 N.Y. LEXIS 1341 (N.Y. 1968).

A local county law which made prior written notification of a dangerous condition or defect a condition precedent to maintaining a suit against the county did not conflict with High Law § 139, which imposes liability on the county for injuries caused by unsafe or improperly maintained highways, so as to be declared unconstitutional since High Law § 139 defers to Gen Mun Law § 50-e regarding the commencement of an action, which specifically allows for the enactment of prior notification statutes and requires compliance with such laws, making no distinction between general and local laws. Holt v County of Tioga, 56 N.Y.2d 414, 452 N.Y.S.2d 383, 437 N.E.2d 1140, 1982 N.Y. LEXIS 3450 (N.Y. 1982).

300. Former requirement as to duplicate copies

The court will look to the substance of the paper served and not to its label, and where a "complaint" was filed with the Transit Authority within 90 days of the accident and such complaint met all the statutory requirements of a notice or claim except that it did not set forth the plaintiff's post office address and that it was not served in duplicate, such pleading will be treated as notice of claim and plaintiff's motion for leave to serve an amended notice of claim and an amended complaint would be granted. Nagy v Rothstein, 53 Misc. 2d 367, 278 N.Y.S.2d 742, 1966 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1325 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1966).

A defect in serving notice of claim in that only one copy, instead of two, was served, is correctible upon motion. Gisondi v Harrison, 220 N.Y.S.2d 105, 1961 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3680 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1961), modified, 16 A.D.2d 929, 229 N.Y.S.2d 698, 1962 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9364 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1962).

301. Process server; authority of server

A city cannot question the authority of the person who served the notice as it is a matter which concerns only the claimant and the person who was served with the notice on his behalf. Figueroa v New York, 279 A.D. 771, 109 N.Y.S.2d 126, 1951 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3720 (N.Y. App. Div. 1951).

302. —Sufficiency of service

A notice served on the city is sufficient even if served by someone not authorized by the claimant, whether or not the claimant is competent. Figueroa v New York, 279 A.D. 771, 109 N.Y.S.2d 126, 1951 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3720 (N.Y. App. Div. 1951).

303. Manner of service; certified mail

Under General Municipal Law § 50-e, (former) subdivision 3, notice of claim in false imprisonment action, sent by certified and not registered mail, was deemed served on day of actual receipt thereof, over 90 days after claimant's release from confinement. Montez v Metropolitan Transp. Authority, 43 A.D.2d 224, 350 N.Y.S.2d 665, 1974 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6027 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1974).

Former requirement of General Municipal Law for service of notice of claim by registered mail was not satisfied by service by certified mail. Harvell v New York City Transit Authority, 49 A.D.2d 765, 373 N.Y.S.2d 14, 1975 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10755 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1975).

Court should have denied claimants' motion for permission to file late notice of claim as unnecessary because notice was timely filed where claimants timely mailed notice to town clerk by certified mail, properly placing notice in depositary of United States Postal Service, and Postal Service made 2 attempts to deliver certified mailing, but on each occasion, town clerk failed either to accept or to claim mailing, which was then returned to claimants; municipality may not defeat service by failing to accept or claim delivery of certified mailing. Bartolotta v County of Wyoming, 231 A.D.2d 899, 647 N.Y.S.2d 622, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10747 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1996).

Although this section with respect to service of notice of claim by mail, [formerly required] service by registered mail and had not [yet] been amended to permit service by certified mail, a motion to dismiss because notice was not served by registered mail should be denied where there is proof of mailing by certified mail, of receipt of the notice, and service was made on the proper official and in time. Perl v New York City Housing Authority, 35 Misc. 2d 92, 231 N.Y.S.2d 142, 1962 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3515 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1962).

A defendant city's motion for an order dismissing a complaint for failure to serve a timely notice of claim would be granted where plaintiff, having allegedly sent the notice of claim by regular mail, failed to establish actual receipt by defendant and where the common-law presumption that an item properly stamped, addressed and mailed would be presumed to be received by the addressee was not applicable to the exception to Gen Mun Law § 50-e that actual receipt of a notice of claim by a municipality sent by other than registered or certified mail constitutes properly completed service if the municipality fails to timely reject it. Krieger v New York, 118 Misc. 2d 537, 461 N.Y.S.2d 171, 1983 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3356 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1983).

304. —Regular mail

Former requirement of service by registered mail was fully and effectively waived where within the 90-day time limitation, plaintiff's attorney mailed, by ordinary mail, a letter apprising the defendant of his representation in connection with an infant's injuries sustained by reason of negligence in the operation of a school bus, and the letter "actually received" within the prescribed time by the clerk of the defendant school district, and where in addition the defendant's insurance carrier caused claimant to undergo a physical examination by physicians designated by it some eight months later. Melisi v Central School Dist., 25 A.D.2d 54, 266 N.Y.S.2d 933, 1966 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4998 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1966).

A letter timely sent by ordinary mail by plaintiff's attorney to the defendant school district received by the clerk of the district constituted sufficient service of process to state a valid claim for personal injuries, and plaintiff's motion pursuant to General Municipal Law § 50-e(6) to serve an amended notice of claim was properly granted. Melisi v Central School Dist., 25 A.D.2d 54, 266 N.Y.S.2d 933, 1966 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4998 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1966).

Plaintiffs may not recover in a negligence action arising out of injuries suffered by an infant plaintiff during a gymnastic exercise if they do not prove that their notice of claim served by ordinary mail upon the defendant school district's superintendent, was actually received by a member of the district board of education or by the board's clerk. Bayer v Board of Education, 29 A.D.2d 537, 285 N.Y.S.2d 1006, 1967 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2865 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1967), app. dismissed, 24 N.Y.2d 1033, 302 N.Y.S.2d 855, 250 N.E.2d 255, 1969 N.Y. LEXIS 1262 (N.Y. 1969), app. dismissed, 25 N.Y.2d 889, 304 N.Y.S.2d 7, 251 N.E.2d 146, 1969 N.Y. LEXIS 1136 (N.Y. 1969), app. dismissed, 25 N.Y.2d 737, 1969 N.Y. LEXIS 1750 (N.Y. 1969), reh'g denied, 25 N.Y.2d 741, 1969 N.Y. LEXIS 1892 (N.Y. 1969).

Where a notice of claim on a county was sent to the county attorney by regular rather than by registered mail, it was invalid because of a mistake pertaining to the manner of service, and the court could not allow an additional notice to be served. Application of Polite, 141 N.Y.S.2d 329, 207 Misc. 622, 1955 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2524 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1955).

Mailing of notice by ordinary mail does not comply with this section. Cavagnol v Orangetown, 17 Misc. 2d 943, 185 N.Y.S.2d 720, 1959 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3982 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1959).

Permission given over phone by the Supervisor of a town on the last day of the 90-day period to file notice by mail, did not constitute a waiver of statutory requirements, nor was the town estopped from asserting noncompliance with this section. Cavagnol v Orangetown, 17 Misc. 2d 943, 185 N.Y.S.2d 720, 1959 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3982 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1959).

There was no substantial compliance with subd 5 of this section where a notice of motion for leave to file claim was not made until the last day for serving the notice, such notice was not accompanied by any affidavit or by the proposed notice of claim and was undated, and no attempt was made to correct these defects until two days later by sending by ordinary mail a copy of the notice of motion accompanied by affidavit and a proposed notice of claim, such service not being in accordance with subd 3. Aposporos v Poughkeepsie, 37 Misc. 2d 56, 232 N.Y.S.2d 700, 1962 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2488 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1962).

Motorist who sought to recover damages against city sustained in collision between sanitation truck owned by city and her automobile complied with requirement that motorist's claim be served on city within 90 days of accident by mailing notice of claim to city on 90th day by ordinary mail, despite fact that notice was received by city on 96th day after accident. Adkins v New York, 82 Misc. 2d 317, 369 N.Y.S.2d 893, 1974 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2035 (N.Y. Civ. Ct. 1974), aff'd, 83 Misc. 2d 298, 371 N.Y.S.2d 387, 1975 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2899 (N.Y. App. Term 1975).

A paper purporting to be a notice of claim which was a letter signed by the attorney for the plaintiff, addressed to the Comptroller of the City of New York and served by ordinary mail was not in compliance with (former) subdivision 2 which requires that the notice be sworn to and served personally or by registered mail, as required by subdivision 3 of § 50-e of the General Municipal Law. Wiegand v New York, 81 N.Y.S.2d 812, 1948 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2962 (N.Y. Sup. Ct.), aff'd, 273 A.D. 1025, 79 N.Y.S.2d 916, 1948 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5840 (N.Y. App. Div. 1948).

305. —Waiver of service by registered mail

Former requirement of service by registered mail was fully and effectively waived where within the 90-day time limitation, plaintiff's attorney mailed, by ordinary mail, a letter apprising the defendant of his representation in connection with an infant's injuries sustained by reason of negligence in the operation of a school bus, and the letter "actually received" within the prescribed time by the clerk of the defendant school district, and where in addition the defendant's insurance carrier caused claimant to undergo a physical examination by physicians designated by it some eight months later. Melisi v Central School Dist., 25 A.D.2d 54, 266 N.Y.S.2d 933, 1966 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4998 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1966).

306. —Service by other means

Service of notice by enclosing same in an envelope addressed to comptroller, and sliding it under door because office closed, would be improper service. Sternfield v New York, 55 Misc. 2d 70, 284 N.Y.S.2d 258, 1967 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1177 (N.Y. Civ. Ct. 1967).

307. When service effected; date of mailing

Service of a notice of claim against a County was effected on the date of mailing by registered mail and not on the date of receipt of the notice. Desroches v Caron, 11 Misc. 2d 838, 174 N.Y.S.2d 627, 1958 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3454 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1958).

Where notice of claim was not given by registered mail or personally, as (formerly) required by this section, but given by certified mail, actually received by the proper officer and followed up by pre-trial examination of plaintiff after issue joined, defendant's motion for summary judgment on the basis of defective service of notice was denied. Freeman v New York City Housing Authority, 30 Misc. 2d 918, 219 N.Y.S.2d 96, 1961 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2699 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1961), aff'd, 16 A.D.2d 624, 227 N.Y.S.2d 245, 1962 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10355 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1962).

308. Agent for service; action involving county

After expiration of the 90-day period, a court could not grant an order permitting a claimant against Monroe County to correct defective service of his notice of claim by serving a copy thereof on the Monroe County legal advisor, notwithstanding timely mailing of notice of claim by registered mail to the Chairman of the County Board of Supervisors. Application of Daly, 19 A.D.2d 691, 241 N.Y.S.2d 732, 1963 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3512 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1963), aff'd, 14 N.Y.2d 574, 248 N.Y.S.2d 873, 198 N.E.2d 254, 1964 N.Y. LEXIS 1334 (N.Y. 1964).

In Monroe County, under §§ 7-s and 500 of the County Law and former § 228 of the Civil Practice Act, the county's legal advisor is the person who must be served with notice of claim against the county, and failure to serve him with notice of claim renders service of such notice defective. Application of Daly, 19 A.D.2d 691, 241 N.Y.S.2d 732, 1963 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3512 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1963), aff'd, 14 N.Y.2d 574, 248 N.Y.S.2d 873, 198 N.E.2d 254, 1964 N.Y. LEXIS 1334 (N.Y. 1964).

Since § 229 of the former Civil Practice Act required, in connection with service of summons upon a county, service personally or by registered mail upon the County Attorney, if it had one, leaving a copy of a notice of claim against a county, in the absence of the County Attorney from the county, within the 90-day period with the clerk of the Board of Supervisors under his promise to make timely service on the County Attorney did not suffice as timely service on the County Attorney. Payne v Horseheads, 21 A.D.2d 715, 249 N.Y.S.2d 550, 1964 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3837 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1964).

A Deputy Chief Property Clerk of a county is an officer, agent, servant or employee of the county for the purposes of Gen Mun Law § 50-e. Pretino v Wolbern, 84 A.D.2d 830, 444 N.Y.S.2d 190, 1981 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 16060 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1981).

Personal service of a notice of claim upon the deputy county clerk of the county on the last day of the statutory 60-day period without serving a copy upon the County Attorney within the statutory time was not in accordance with the provisions of this section. Merkle v Nassau County, 95 N.Y.S.2d 673, 197 Misc. 560, 1950 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1450 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1950).

Where service of a notice of claim was made only upon a county attorney and not upon the defendant county as required by former CPA § 228, a complaint failing to allege such double service must be dismissed. Davis v Oswego County, 114 N.Y.S.2d 113, 203 Misc. 80, 1952 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2849 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1952).

309. —Medical malpractice

Service of notice of claim on city of New York to recover for alleged negligence and malpractice of the New York City Health and Hospitals Corporation did not constitute notice to the Corporation, which is the public benefit corporation separate and distinct from the city. Bender v New York City Health & Hospitals Corp., 46 A.D.2d 898, 361 N.Y.S.2d 939, 1974 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3337 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1974), rev'd, 38 N.Y.2d 662, 382 N.Y.S.2d 18, 345 N.E.2d 561, 1976 N.Y. LEXIS 2305 (N.Y. 1976).

In medical malpractice action against city and its health and hospitals corporation, service of notice of claim by delivery to city comptroller's office was ineffective as to health and hospitals corporation. Robles v City of New York, 251 A.D.2d 485, 674 N.Y.S.2d 422, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6863 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1998), overruled in part, Viruet v City of New York, 97 N.Y.2d 171, 738 N.Y.S.2d 2, 763 N.E.2d 1143, 2001 N.Y. LEXIS 3419 (N.Y. 2001).

In medical malpractice action, lack of service of notice of claim on city health and hospitals corporation was not cured by its participation in hearing under CLS Gen Mun § 50-h or by operation of CLS Gen Mun § 50-e(3)(c). Robles v City of New York, 251 A.D.2d 485, 674 N.Y.S.2d 422, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6863 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1998), overruled in part, Viruet v City of New York, 97 N.Y.2d 171, 738 N.Y.S.2d 2, 763 N.E.2d 1143, 2001 N.Y. LEXIS 3419 (N.Y. 2001)).

Court would take judicial notice of proposition that New York City Corporation Counsel (CC) could be objectively and reasonably regarded as "attorney regularly engaged in representing" New York City Health and Hospital Corporation (HCC) within meaning of CLS Gen Mun § 50-3(3)(a) pertaining to service of notice of claim, since it was beyond cavil that CC routinely represented HHC in hundreds, perhaps thousands, of medical malpractice actions every year, even though CC was not only attorney that represented HHC. Viruet v City of New York, 181 Misc. 2d 958, 695 N.Y.S.2d 663, 1999 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 366 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1999), aff'd, 277 A.D.2d 33, 715 N.Y.S.2d 406, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11296 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2000).

Motion to dismiss doctors from a malpractice suit was properly denied because it was undisputed that the administratrix served a notice of claim on the county medical center in accordance with N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(1)(b), and there was no requirement that a notice of claim had to served on the doctors, who were employees of the county medical center, as a condition precedent to the suit; to the extent that Rew v. County of Niagara, 73 A.D.3d 1463 (App. Div. 2010), suggested that service of a notice of claim upon an employee of a public corporation was a condition precedent to commencement of the action against such employee, that decision was no longer to be followed. Goodwin v Pretorius, 105 A.D.3d 207, 962 N.Y.S.2d 539, 2013 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1912 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 2013).

310. —Action involving school district

Service of a notice of claim on behalf of a nine-year-old claimant on a woman in a school district's office was invalid although the woman accepted service, endorsed receipt thereon and promptly forwarded it to the school attorney, where such woman was neither a member of the board of education nor the clerk of the board. Prior acceptance of papers by woman was not enough to cloak her with authority to act for the board nor enough to make her a member of the board or its clerk. Munroe v Booth, 305 N.Y. 426, 113 N.E.2d 546, 305 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 426, 1953 N.Y. LEXIS 801 (N.Y. 1953).

Where notice of an infant's claim for damages for personal injuries against a board of education was not served upon, nor actually received in behalf of, the board by anyone designated for that purpose, service of notice upon the City Comptroller was not sufficient to meet the requirements of this section. Salner v New York, 12 A.D.2d 771, 209 N.Y.S.2d 477, 1961 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13590 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1961).

Plaintiffs may not recover in a negligence action arising out of injuries suffered by an infant plaintiff during a gymnastic exercise if they do not prove that their notice of claim served by ordinary mail upon the defendant school district's superintendent, was actually received by a member of the district board of education or by the board's clerk. Bayer v Board of Education, 29 A.D.2d 537, 285 N.Y.S.2d 1006, 1967 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2865 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1967), app. dismissed, 24 N.Y.2d 1033, 302 N.Y.S.2d 855, 250 N.E.2d 255, 1969 N.Y. LEXIS 1262 (N.Y. 1969), app. dismissed, 25 N.Y.2d 889, 304 N.Y.S.2d 7, 251 N.E.2d 146, 1969 N.Y. LEXIS 1136 (N.Y. 1969), app. dismissed, 25 N.Y.2d 737, 1969 N.Y. LEXIS 1750 (N.Y. 1969), reh'g denied, 25 N.Y.2d 741, 1969 N.Y. LEXIS 1892 (N.Y. 1969).

Since a city and its board of education are distinct entities, timely service of notice of claim on city does not constitute timely service of notice on board. Santiago v Board of Education, 41 A.D.2d 616, 340 N.Y.S.2d 491, 1973 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5149 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1973).

In an action brought by an infant and her mother against the City of New York and the Board of Education for personal injuries sustained by the infant on the school premises, although the infant's disability tolled the applicable statute of limitations under CPLR § 208, service of notice of claim upon the city did not constitute service upon the Board which was a separate and distinct entity. Therefore the Board was never made party to the action and the infant was not entitled to relief. Gold v New York, 80 A.D.2d 138, 437 N.Y.S.2d 973, 1981 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9758 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1981).

In a personal injury action where there was no proof that a notice of claim was actually received by any member of the Board of Education, any trustee, or clerk thereof, as required by the statutes, the action must be dismissed despite the fact that a letter stating the claim was addressed to the Superintendent of Schools, was acknowledged by him in a letter in which he stated that the matter was being referred to the school insurance agency for action, and that a written statement was thereafter taken by an investigator all within 90 days after the claim arose. Bayer v Board of Education, 58 Misc. 2d 259, 295 N.Y.S.2d 131, 1968 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1042 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1968).

The failure to include the Superintendent of Schools in the list of officials upon whom service of summons can be made invalidates a notice of claim sent to him, unless he goes through the administratively useless step of delivering the notice in turn to the clerk or to a member of the Board before turning it over to the insurance carrier. Bayer v Board of Education, 58 Misc. 2d 259, 295 N.Y.S.2d 131, 1968 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1042 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1968).

A letter sent by ordinary mail and addressed to a named high school by the attorney representing a personal injury claimant is not "served" on an officer or employee of the school district as required by this section, though it duly advises the school district of the accident and the injuries sustained. Horowitz v Board of Education, 210 N.Y.S.2d 600 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1960).

311. —Transportation facilities

Within 90 days after plaintiff's injury while boarding a city bus, a notice of claim was served upon the City Comptroller who acknowledged the claim and then advised plaintiff's attorney that the claim was disallowed because the city was not liable because the bus was owned by the City Transit Authority. Plaintiff's attorney then talked to the Comptroller's office and someone there advised him that the notice would be sent to the Authority but the notice was never sent. Ninety-one days after the accident, a new notice of claim was served on the Authority. Held: the notice of claim was not properly served under this section and a motion to serve the notice late should have been denied. Coyle v New York City Transit Authority, 283 A.D. 1083, 131 N.Y.S.2d 502, 1954 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6383 (N.Y. App. Div. 1954).

Leave to file a late notice of claim was denied where claimant, while walking underneath elevator structure in Brooklyn was struck by a piece of railroad tie receiving injuries which did not disable her from filing a proper and timely notice. Notice of claim was served on the City of New York within 90 days but claimant's attorney did not realize that the city, a few weeks prior to the accident, had leased the elevator structure to the transit authority. Polito v New York City Transit Authority, 285 A.D. 1179, 141 N.Y.S.2d 33, 1955 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7072 (N.Y. App. Div. 1955).

Where liability and false imprisonment action was predicated on acts of employee of railroad subsidiary of transit authority, notice of claim was improperly served on transit authority (Public Authority Law § 1266, subd 5) absent a factual showing that said employee had in some manner become an agent of the transit authority, and service on authority was further ineffective as to subsidiary railroad, a distinct legal entity for purposes of suit (Public Authorities Law § 1266, subd 5). Montez v Metropolitan Transp. Authority, 43 A.D.2d 224, 350 N.Y.S.2d 665, 1974 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6027 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1974).

Claim against the East Hudson corporate authority to recover, on theory of negligent maintenance, for injuries sustained when rock fell from an overhanging embankment onto the Taconic State Parkway, causing an accident, was barred where no claim or notice of intention to file a claim was served on any officer of the authority within 90 days of the incident; service on the Attorney General was not effective since he is not authorized to receive service on behalf of the Authority. McCormick v State, 51 A.D.2d 28, 378 N.Y.S.2d 991, 1976 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10658 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1976), app. dismissed, 41 N.Y.2d 901, 1977 N.Y. LEXIS 3317 (N.Y. 1977), aff'd, 44 N.Y.2d 774, 406 N.Y.S.2d 37, 377 N.E.2d 481, 1978 N.Y. LEXIS 1972 (N.Y. 1978).

In action for personal injuries received by passenger on bus owned by county and operated by bus company, service of notice of claim on county was valid, although not carried out in manner specified in CLS Gen Mun § 50-e, where notice of claim was timely served on bus company and its general counsel, and it was undisputed that bus company's general counsel was attorney who was also regularly engaged in representing county in suits brought against it arising out of accidents occurring on buses, and thus was proper person to be served on county's behalf, and where county had not returned notice to passenger within 30 days of receipt. Tacinelli v Liberty Lines, 123 A.D.2d 756, 507 N.Y.S.2d 230, 1986 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 60898 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1986).

Court would not rectify failure to file timely notice on New York City Transit Authority, where plaintiffs filed their notice of claim with city controller through mistake. Phifer v New York City Transit Authority, 4 Misc. 2d 802, 159 N.Y.S.2d 647, 1956 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1263 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1956).

312. —Village

Objections that requirement as to service of notice in subd 3 was not complied with in that (1) where the defendant is a village the notice was mailed directed to the attention of the Village Clerk, and (2) that it was sent by certified rather than by registered mail, were without merit. Montana v Lynbrook, 23 A.D.2d 585, 256 N.Y.S.2d 651, 1965 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4806 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1965).

313. —Miscellaneous actions

Although county attorney was not proper person to receive notice of claim on behalf of County Playland, Commission, Commission would be estopped from asserting such contention where county attorney informed plaintiff that he would accept service on behalf of the Commission, Commission had subsequently examined plaintiff pursuant to such notice plaintiff served summons and complaint and four years expired before contention was raised. Roa v Westchester County Playland Com., 34 A.D.2d 818, 311 N.Y.S.2d 527, 1970 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4839 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1970), aff'd, 28 N.Y.2d 873, 322 N.Y.S.2d 259, 271 N.E.2d 235, 1971 N.Y. LEXIS 1330 (N.Y. 1971).

Notice of claim in wrongful death action against New York City Health and Hospitals Corporation (HHC) must be served on director or officer of HHC. Timmins v Beth Israel Med. Center-Kings Highway Div., 177 Misc. 2d 845, 676 N.Y.S.2d 911, 1998 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 360 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1998).

314. Parties who must be served

Because a university medical center was never served with the respondents' N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e petition for leave to serve a late notice of claim, and became aware of its existence only after the trial court issued an ex parte order granting the petition, the trial court never properly obtained jurisdiction over the center. Matter of Colocho v Nassau Univ. Med. Ctr., 37 A.D.3d 462, 829 N.Y.S.2d 610, 2007 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1519 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2007).

Where a Supreme Court summons would have to be served on more than one official of the municipality or public corporation, in an action brought against it, service or receipt of notice by one only is a fatal and incurable defect, once the time limit on service has expired without extension of time obtained. Merkle v Nassau County, 95 N.Y.S.2d 673, 197 Misc. 560, 1950 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1450 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1950).

In a student's action against the city university, seeking a refund of student fees after the student withdrew from certain courses, the action against the university would be dismissed where the student had failed to serve a copy of the notice of intention and claim on the university, rather than on the city as the university's funding body. Bicjan v Hunter College of City University, 116 Misc. 2d 978, 457 N.Y.S.2d 387, 1982 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3989 (N.Y. Ct. Cl. 1982).

315. —County

Provision of General Municipal Law requiring that in tort suits against county a notice of claim must be served upon the county and upon the officer, agent, servant or employee of the county is superseded by provision of General Municipal Law requiring service of notice of claim upon the municipality but not requiring personal service of notice upon the individual official, servant, agent or employee of the municipality, and plaintiffs, who brought suit for medical malpractice by physicians employed by county, were not required to serve notice of claim upon the physicians. Schiavone v County of Nassau, 51 A.D.2d 980, 380 N.Y.S.2d 711, 1976 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11720 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1976), aff'd, 41 N.Y.2d 844, 393 N.Y.S.2d 701, 362 N.E.2d 252, 1977 N.Y. LEXIS 1888 (N.Y. 1977).

Where Broome County received a copy of the injured party's notice of claim within one year and 90 days under N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(5) but the notice of claim was served on the County more than two years after the accident, the trial court properly deemed the late notice of claim timely served nunc pro tunc, as any other conclusion would have elevated form over substance. LaMonte v County of Broome, 20 A.D.3d 756, 797 N.Y.S.2d 785, 2005 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7777 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2005).

Failure to comply with the requirements of this section as to time and manner of service of notice of claim is not waived, and cannot be waived, by any act of defendant following attempted, but ineffectual, service of such a notice. Horowitz v Board of Education, 210 N.Y.S.2d 600 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1960).

Dismissal of a motorist's complaint as to a county employee, when the motorist sued the county as well, was not warranted because neither County Law § 52, nor the provisions of General Municipal Law §§ 50-e(2) and 50-i(2) required that the employee had to be named in the notice of claim. Pierce v Hickey, 129 A.D.3d 1287, 11 N.Y.S.3d 321, 2015 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4816 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2015).

316. —Medical malpractice actions

New York City health and hospitals corporation was not "municipal corporation" within statute concerning liability of municipal corporation for malpractice of physician, and it was not necessary that notice of claim against doctors be served or filed. Bender v Jamaica Hosp., 40 N.Y.2d 560, 388 N.Y.S.2d 269, 356 N.E.2d 1228, 1976 N.Y. LEXIS 3039 (N.Y. 1976).

Where statute providing that every municipal corporation shall assume liability for practice of any physician who renders medical services without receiving compensation at public institutions maintained by that municipal corporation is applicable, ultimate financial responsibility rests not with treating physician but with appropriate municipal corporation, and no action will lie without notice of claim served in compliance with General Municipal Law. Bender v Jamaica Hosp., 40 N.Y.2d 560, 388 N.Y.S.2d 269, 356 N.E.2d 1228, 1976 N.Y. LEXIS 3039 (N.Y. 1976).

In suit against physicians employed by county, plaintiffs were entitled to rely on provision of General Municipal Law requiring service of notice of claim upon municipality but not requiring personal service of notice upon employee of municipality; such statute superseded provision of County Law requiring service of notice of claim upon municipality and also upon municipality's officer, agent, servant or employee within same period of time. Schiavone v County of Nassau, 41 N.Y.2d 844, 393 N.Y.S.2d 701, 362 N.E.2d 252, 1977 N.Y. LEXIS 1888 (N.Y. 1977).

Provision of General Municipal Law requiring that in tort suits against county a notice of claim must be served upon the county and upon the officer, agent, servant or employee of the county is superseded by provision of General Municipal Law requiring service of notice of claim upon the municipality but not requiring personal service of notice upon the individual official, servant, agent or employee of the municipality, and plaintiffs, who brought suit for medical malpractice by physicians employed by county, were not required to serve notice of claim upon the physicians. Schiavone v County of Nassau, 51 A.D.2d 980, 380 N.Y.S.2d 711, 1976 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11720 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1976), aff'd, 41 N.Y.2d 844, 393 N.Y.S.2d 701, 362 N.E.2d 252, 1977 N.Y. LEXIS 1888 (N.Y. 1977).

Service of notice of claim, in medical malpractice action, on City of New York did not suffice as service of notice of claim on New York City Health and Hospitals Corporation. Oxley v City of New York, 240 A.D.2d 643, 658 N.Y.S.2d 697, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6830 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't), app. denied, 91 N.Y.2d 802, 666 N.Y.S.2d 564, 669 N.E.2d 534, 1997 N.Y. LEXIS 4165 (N.Y. 1997).

Trial court properly granted summary judgment to defendants as to plaintiffs' medical malpractice action, because plaintiffs failed to serve defendants with proper notice of the claim as required by N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e, as service of a notice of claim on a city comptroller was not adequate to inform defendants. King v Wu, 18 A.D.3d 716, 797 N.Y.S.2d 499, 2005 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5600 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't), app. denied, 5 N.Y.3d 711, 806 N.Y.S.2d 161, 840 N.E.2d 130, 2005 N.Y. LEXIS 2665 (N.Y. 2005).

The service of a notice of claim upon the comptroller and corporation counsel of the city did not obviate the necessity for service of such a notice upon a physician sought to be held liable. Schmid v Werner, 72 N.Y.S.2d 361, 188 Misc. 718, 1947 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2748 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1947).

An action against a physician, for malpractice in services gratuitously rendered at a city-owned and operated hospital, and against the city as the party ultimately liable under § 50-d of the General Municipal Law, must be dismissed for failure to file the notice of claim in compliance with § 50-e of such law, required, by § 50-d, to be served on both the municipality and the physician. Martinez v Modica, 80 N.Y.S.2d 132, 191 Misc. 836, 1948 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2503 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1948).

This section requires the service of notice of claim within sixty days [now ninety days] of the date a claim against the municipality arises for malpractice of a physician rendering services gratuitously in a public hospital, it being necessary that such notice be served upon the physician as well as the municipality. Martinez v Modica, 80 N.Y.S.2d 132, 191 Misc. 836, 1948 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2503 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1948).

A motion to dismiss an action against defendant doctors, employees of the New York City Health and Hospitals Corporation is denied, where service of the summons and complaint was timely although no notice of claim was filed against the defendants; New York City Health and Hospitals Corporation physicians are to be indemnified and held harmless under section 50-k of the General Municipal Law, and a notice of claim must be served on the corporation but there is no requirement that such notice be served on an employee being sued. Mills v Glancz, 104 Misc. 2d 1033, 430 N.Y.S.2d 22, 1980 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2444 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1980).

Patient's malpractice suit against the New York City Health and Hospitals Corporation (HCC) was properly dismissed for her failure to serve a timely notice of claim under N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(1)(a); as New York City and HHC were separate entities, service on the New York City Comptroller was insufficient to constitute service on HHC. Barnaman v New York City Health & Hosps. Corp., 90 A.D.3d 588, 934 N.Y.S.2d 443, 2011 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8781 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2011).

Patient's malpractice suit against the New York City Health and Hospitals Corporation (HCC) was properly dismissed for her failure to serve a timely notice of claim; serving a notice on a hospital operated by HCC was insufficient under N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(3)(a), as the hospital was not a director or officer of HHC or the corporation counsel. Barnaman v New York City Health & Hosps. Corp., 90 A.D.3d 588, 934 N.Y.S.2d 443, 2011 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8781 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2011).

317. —Replevin actions

Since a replevin action sounds in tort a notice of claim must be timely served upon defendant city (General Municipal Law, § 50-e) prior to the commencement of the replevin action seeking the return of plaintiff's vehicle, the notice of claim requirement being an element of the substantive cause of action; although the municipality defaulted in the replevin action, plaintiff cannot be granted a default judgment in the absence of proof of claim (CPLR 3215, subd [e]) which includes service of the notice of claim as an essential element of the substantive cause of action for replevin. Clark v New York, 98 Misc. 2d 660, 414 N.Y.S.2d 481, 1979 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2128 (N.Y. Civ. Ct. 1979).

318. —School district

In an action against a school district and two individual teachers of the district, service of a notice of claim on the individual teachers was not required where notice had been served on the district. Inasmuch as the teachers were entitled to indemnification the district was the real party defendant. Sandak v Tuxedo Union School Dist., 308 N.Y. 226, 124 N.E.2d 295, 308 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 226, 1954 N.Y. LEXIS 938 (N.Y. 1954).

In an action brought by an infant and her mother against the City of New York and the Board of Education for personal injuries sustained by the infant on the school premises, although the infant's disability tolled the applicable statute of limitations under CPLR § 208, service of notice of claim upon the city did not constitute service upon the Board which was a separate and distinct entity. Therefore the Board was never made party to the action and the infant was not entitled to relief. Gold v New York, 80 A.D.2d 138, 437 N.Y.S.2d 973, 1981 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9758 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1981).

Filing of workers' compensation claim was not notice of claim against city board of education and did not satisfy requirements of CLS Gen Mun § 50-e for serving timely notice of claim. Mark v Board of Educ., 255 A.D.2d 586, 681 N.Y.S.2d 81, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12875 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1998).

Dismissal of the individuals' personal injury action against the school district was proper where, even accepting the individuals' contention that the non-employee report of injury form contained sufficient information to have been deemed a notice of claim, service upon the school nurse was not service on a person designated by law to be served, N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(3)(a), N.Y. C.P.L.R. 311(7), N.Y. Educ. Law § 2(13). Paladino v Commack Union Free Sch. Dist., 307 A.D.2d 284, 763 N.Y.S.2d 628, 2003 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8249 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2003).

N.Y. Educ. Law § 3813 required compliance with N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e before an action was filed against school employees, and § 50-e made no provision for filing a notice of claim against one entity and directing an action against another; the statutes therefore lent no support to a claim by an infant and his mother that they only needed to name a school board of education in their notice of claim before filing an action against individual school employees. White v Averill Park Cent. Sch. Dist., 195 Misc. 2d 409, 759 N.Y.S.2d 641, 2003 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 263 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 2003).

319. —Miscellaneous parties

Service of notice of claim on Comptroller of City of New York was insufficient to constitute service on New York City Health and Hospitals Corporation (NYCHHC), proper party to be served; lack of service was not cured by participation of NYCHHC in hearing under CLS Gen Mun § 50-h or by provisions of CLS Gen Mun § 50-e (3) (c). Stallworth v New York City Health & Hosps. Corp., 243 A.D.2d 704, 663 N.Y.S.2d 287, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10727 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1997), app. denied, 91 N.Y.2d 807, 669 N.Y.S.2d 1, 691 N.E.2d 1027, 1998 N.Y. LEXIS 240 (N.Y. 1998).

Since town sanitation district would be under duty to indemnify district employee, claimed to have been negligent in operation of motor vehicle, were employee sued alone, claimants in that case would have to serve a notice of claim upon town and submit to oral examination pursuant to statute. Fitzgerald v Sanitation Dist. No. 6, 89 Misc. 2d 1078, 393 N.Y.S.2d 542, 1977 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2730 (N.Y. City Ct.), modified, 116 Misc. 2d 325, 457 N.Y.S.2d 664, 1977 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2714 (N.Y. App. Term 1977).

Appropriately captioned notice of claim served on New York City Health and Hospitals Corporation (HHC) by delivery to office of New York City Corporation Counsel in its capacity as "attorney regularly engaged in representing" HHC (CLS Gen Mun § 50-e(3)(a)) is effective alternative means of service. Viruet v City of New York, 181 Misc. 2d 958, 695 N.Y.S.2d 663, 1999 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 366 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1999), aff'd, 277 A.D.2d 33, 715 N.Y.S.2d 406, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11296 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2000).

320. Proceeding for validation of service

A special proceeding for validation of service of notice under this section was not a proceeding for which an additional allowance for cost could be made. Rosenberg v New York, 2 Misc. 2d 1027, 159 N.Y.S.2d 248, 1956 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2074 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1956).

XI. Disregarding Defects In Notice of Claim

321. In general

In determining whether to dismiss complaint against New York City Transit Authority for failure to serve adequate notice of claim, Supreme Court and Appellate Division erroneously concluded that their inquiry was strictly limited to "four corners" of notice of claim; in making relevant determination under CLS Gen Mun § 50-e(6), court may look to evidence adduced at hearing under CLS Gen Mun § 50-h, and to such other evidence as is properly before court. D'Alessandro v New York City Transit Auth., 83 N.Y.2d 891, 613 N.Y.S.2d 849, 636 N.E.2d 1382, 1994 N.Y. LEXIS 1070 (N.Y. 1994).

Court may, in its discretion, grant motion for leave to amend notice of claim under CLS General Municipal Law § 50-e where it determines that mistake or defect in original notice was made in good faith and that public corporation was not prejudiced. Mazza v New York, 112 A.D.2d 921, 492 N.Y.S.2d 438, 1985 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 52134 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1985).

City's request to adjourn hearing scheduled pursuant to CLS Gen Mun § 50-h did not alleviate plaintiff's burden to accurately and specifically identify location of accident since 90-day period for filing notice of claim had expired over 3 months before requested adjournment. Eagle v Yonkers, 143 A.D.2d 626, 532 N.Y.S.2d 887, 1988 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9522 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1988).

New York City Housing Authority was not entitled to dismissal of personal injury action on ground that notice of claim was insufficient, even though "boilerplate" form used by plaintiff failed to give adequate notice of either defect alleged or manner in which it caused injury to plaintiff, where Authority advanced contention of insufficiency for first time on eve of trial, and it failed to allege that any investigation had been undertaken which might have been impeded by insufficiency, or that CLS Gen Mun § 50-h hearing, conducted within 5 months of incident, had failed to elicit sufficient information to allow it to investigate accident. Baez v New York City Housing Authority, 182 A.D.2d 554, 583 N.Y.S.2d 1, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6285 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1992).

Amendments of substantive nature are not within purview of CLS Gen Mun § 50-e(6). Herron v City of New York, 223 A.D.2d 676, 637 N.Y.S.2d 438, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 654 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1996).

The City Court of Syracuse has authority under subdivision 6 of § 50-e of the General Municipal Law to grant relief from mistake, omission, irregularity, or defect made in good faith in the notice of claim required to be served in the absence of prejudice to the municipality. Hopkins v East Syracuse Fire Dist., 49 Misc. 2d 197, 267 N.Y.S.2d 61, 1966 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2216 (N.Y. City Ct. 1966).

322. Defects involving service of claim; failure to serve

Where plaintiff retained an attorney approximately 15 days prior to expiration of the 90-day period from date of accident, but failed to complete service by failing to serve the County Attorney with a copy thereof, as required by former § 228 of the Civil Practice Act, failure to do so could not be attributed to mental or physical incapacity of plaintiff and was not a mere defect in the notice of claim, but rather one pertaining to manner or time of service which a court has no authority to permit correction of on the basis of subd 6 of this section after expiration of the time limit. Payne v Horseheads, 21 A.D.2d 715, 249 N.Y.S.2d 550, 1964 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3837 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1964).

Third-party action against county hospital, commenced by hospital which was defendant in malpractice suit, was not barred, with respect to claim for total indemnity or for apportioned contribution, by fact that county hospital was not served with notice of claim within 90 days after original plaintiff's alleged cause of action against it arose. Zillman v Meadowbrook Hospital Co., 45 A.D.2d 267, 358 N.Y.S.2d 466, 1974 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4428 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1974).

Report of accident sent by store employee to town clerk, which was signed by injured plaintiff, included details of her injuries, and contained names of 2 eyewitnesses, was properly treated as notice of claim, even though it was not served on clerk in manner and method described under CLS Gen Mun § 50-e, since town took oral depositions of plaintiffs, and no prejudice was shown. Carver v Town of Riverhead, 231 A.D.2d 545, 647 N.Y.S.2d 33, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9238 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1996).

The discretion given the court to excuse failure to file in due season where delay is due to physical incapacity is more readily invoked where the municipality had full knowledge of the situation giving rise to the claim. Williams v Albany, 85 N.Y.S.2d 799, 193 Misc. 1037, 1949 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1701 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1949).

A defendant city's motion for an order dismissing a complaint for failure to serve a timely notice of claim would be granted where plaintiff, having allegedly sent the notice of claim by regular mail, failed to establish actual receipt by defendant and where the common-law presumption that an item properly stamped, addressed and mailed would be presumed to be received by the addressee was not applicable to the exception to Gen Mun Law § 50-e that actual receipt of a notice of claim by a municipality sent by other than registered or certified mail constitutes properly completed service if the municipality fails to timely reject it. Krieger v New York, 118 Misc. 2d 537, 461 N.Y.S.2d 171, 1983 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3356 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1983).

323. —Service on wrong party

Service of notice of claim against New York City Health and Hospitals Corporation (HHC), which was incorrectly served on New York City comptroller rather than on authorized representative of HHC, was validated by saving provision of CLS Gen Mun § 50-e(3)(c) and HHC was not entitled to dismissal of complaint based on plaintiff's failure to serve notice of claim, where comptroller demanded CLS Gen Mun § 50-h examination of plaintiff, corporation counsel conducted hearing, and there was no possibility of confusion about entity on whose behalf comptroller and corporation counsel were acting. Mercado v New York City Health & Hosps. Corp., 247 A.D.2d 55, 677 N.Y.S.2d 314, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9250 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1998).

Even were the appellate court to agree with the county medical center that the patient's excuse for failing to timely serve a notice of claim was unreasonable, that was merely a factor to be considered and would not alone bar the granting of leave to file a notice of claim out of time. In any event, the patient had already served a timely notice of claim on the county, the recent and former owner and operator of the hospital; thus, the patient could argue that an excusable error concerning the identity of the public corporation against which the claim should have been asserted. Medley v Cichon, 305 A.D.2d 643, 761 N.Y.S.2d 666, 2003 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5971 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2003).

In view of the confusion regarding the filing of a notice of claim against a municipality or fire district for the alleged negligence of volunteer firemen in removing the victim of a one-car accident from the wreckage of his automobile, the plaintiff's complaint was dismissed without prejudice to any motion for permission to file a late notice of claim under subdivision 5 of § 50-e of the General Municipal Law, and without prejudice to the plaintiff's bringing a new action and asserting that the complaint served upon the Fire Chief of the East Syracuse Volunteer Fire Department be considered service of a notice of claim against either the Village of East Syracuse, the Town of Dewitt, or the Dewitt Fire Protection District. Hopkins v East Syracuse Fire Dist., 49 Misc. 2d 197, 267 N.Y.S.2d 61, 1966 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2216 (N.Y. City Ct. 1966).

Doctrine of equitable estoppel is designed to assure that the notice requirements, such as those required by N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e, are not used as a trap to catch the unwary. A governmental agency may be barred from raising a defense if the agency failed to act when it had a duty to do so, or gave a false sense to the other party, by virtue of the agency's positive acts, that the notice and service requirements were not made in error. Delacruz v Metropolitan Tr. Auth., 828 N.Y.S.2d 856, 14 Misc. 3d 886, 2007 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 51 (N.Y. Sup. Ct.), rev'd, 45 A.D.3d 482, 846 N.Y.S.2d 160, 2007 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12087 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2007).

An infant claimant was injured on January 7, 1952 in a high school and immediately after the occurrence, a written statement was taken from him. Twenty-four days after the occurrence, a notice of claim was served on the comptroller but no notice was served on the board of education. Thereafter, the corporation counsel held a hearing on behalf of the comptroller and took minutes headed "Board of Education Case." The hearing procedure followed the same procedure that would have been followed if a notice of claim had been in fact served on the board of education. Through the admitted mistake of the attorney, no notice of claim was served on the board. Application under this section for late filing of claim granted. Application of Paris, 118 N.Y.S.2d 407, 1952 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2160 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1952).

324. Lack of verification

Informalities in the notice or statement of claim, as served or given, such as lack of verification, have sometimes been disregarded or treated as inconsequential where prompt and actual notice of the incident and resultant damage was given to the proper authority, apparently without requiring a formal amendment of the claim statement. Valley v Central School Dist., 282 A.D. 533, 125 N.Y.S.2d 744, 1953 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4510 (N.Y. App. Div. 1953).

With respect to a notice of claim for injuries sustained by an infant plaintiff and her father, the court could properly disregard words in the body of the notice indicating that the claim was against a town only and not likewise against a Board of Education, which admitted receipt of the notice of claim, and likewise properly permitted amendment of the notice to correct an improperly executed verification. Gisondi v Harrison, 16 A.D.2d 929, 229 N.Y.S.2d 698, 1962 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9364 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1962).

Failure to verify notice of claim which is purely inadvertent is not fatal to validity of notice. Creary v Mamaroneck, 110 A.D.2d 870, 488 N.Y.S.2d 427, 1985 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 48783 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1985).

325. Miscellaneous defects

A misstatement in plaintiff's notice of claim as to the date of the alleged accident may be corrected, supplied, or disregarded in the discretion of the court, provided that the other party is not thereby prejudiced, and since the correct date of the accident was set forth in defendant's hospital records, it was doubtful if the defendant was misled to its prejudice by the erroneous date in the notice; therefore, the dismissal of plaintiff's complaint was set aside and plaintiff given an opportunity to amend his notice of claim. Sanchez v New York, 25 A.D.2d 731, 268 N.Y.S.2d 732, 1966 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4473 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1966).

Even though notice of claim against county did not comply with controlling statutes, so that award of arbitrator in Small Claims Part in favor of plaintiff was based upon a mistake of law, finality and invulnerability attached to the judgment entered on the award. Brownstein v County of Westchester, Dep't of Parks, Recreation & Conservation, 51 A.D.2d 792, 380 N.Y.S.2d 62, 1976 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11365 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1976).

The trial court properly refused to dismiss an action against various city police officers for unlawful imprisonment, malicious prosecution, and assault on the asserted ground that plaintiff had failed to comply with the notice of claim provisions of Gen Mun

Law § 50-e in that plaintiff's notice of claim had been preceded by his service of a summons with notice, since such service was a mere procedural irregularity, and defendants failed to show that any prejudice had resulted therefrom. Kelly v Kane, 98 A.D.2d 861, 470 N.Y.S.2d 816, 1983 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 21177 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1983).

Town was not entitled to summary judgment based on plaintiff's failure to sufficiently identify place where accident occurred and nature of town's claimed negligence since there was no competent evidence in record to show that town was prejudiced or that error was not made in good faith, and notice of claim was adequately supplemented at hearing under CLS Gen Mun § 50-h and in subsequent bill of particulars. Adams v Lisbon, 170 A.D.2d 901, 566 N.Y.S.2d 729, 1991 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2472 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1991).

Although notice of claim was ambiguous as to whether slip and fall was caused by snow and ice or by defect in sidewalk, all doubt was dispelled by complaint which clearly stated that fall was caused by ice; therefore, city was not prejudiced by ambiguity in notice since cause of fall was extremely transitory in nature. Hoffman v New York Housing Auth., 187 A.D.2d 334, 589 N.Y.S.2d 475, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13073 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1992).

City housing authority was not entitled to dismissal of complaint on ground that plaintiff's notice of claim did not specify accident location with sufficient particularity to allow meaningful investigation, although notice of claim did not specify exact location of accident, where plaintiff furnished exact location and exact time of accident at statutory hearing, and housing authority thereafter failed to even attempt to investigate matter. Poitier v New York City Hous. Auth., 199 A.D.2d 11, 604 N.Y.S.2d 566, 1993 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11215 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1993).

In personal injury action against Manhattan and Bronx Surface Transit Operating Authority (MABSTOA), court properly declined to "correct, supply or disregard" failure of plaintiffs' notice of claim to include manner in which claim arose and sufficient description of accident site, where there was no showing that "mistake, omission, irregularity or defect" was made in good faith, and that MABSTOA was not prejudiced thereby. LaBorde v Most Serv. Co., 270 A.D.2d 462, 705 N.Y.S.2d 608, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3204 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2000).

Grant of defendant city's motion to dismiss for failure to timely serve proper notice of claim was reversed, where plaintiff individual's notice failed to include the location of the arrest that was the subject of his lawsuit; it appeared that there was sufficient information in the original notice of claim to permit the city to sufficiently investigate the claim, and in any event the city did not state how it was prejudiced by the omission of the location. Malcolm v City of New York, 2 A.D.3d 696, 770 N.Y.S.2d 79, 2003 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13848 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2003).

While a notice of claim against defendant city alleging that plaintiff wife tripped over a raised sidewalk slab was defective for not sufficiently describing "the place where" the claim arose, such defect could properly be disregarded since the city took a photograph of the sidewalk along where it was claimed plaintiff fell and was, therefore, not prejudiced by the defective notice of claim. The Civil Court had jurisdiction to disregard the defect since the requirement that certain applications for relief be made in the Supreme Court or County Court applies only to pretrial applications made by formal motion and relief from a defective notice of claim may be granted at any stage of the action necessarily permitting any trial court in which the action is pending to grant such relief, and to hold the plaintiffs' only remedy in the midst of a jury trial was to seek a Supreme Court order permitting the Civil Court to disregard the defect in the notice of claim would bring about a ludicrous result which the legislature never intended. Maiello v City of New York, 113 Misc. 2d 122, 450 N.Y.S.2d 932, 1981 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3462 (N.Y. App. Term 1981).

Corporation counsel may in good faith settle cases on behalf of the city, and late filing of notice of intention to sue did not upset such settlement. Radinsky v New York, 133 N.Y.S.2d 540, 1954 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2251 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1954).

Plaintiffs' failure to include their claims that defendant city was liable for their injuries based on negligent inspection and storage of diesel tanks before terrorist attacks could not be excused under N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(6) because by adding the claim, plaintiffs were asserting a new theory of liability (in essence, that the city's negligence in storing diesel tanks led to a building's collapse and the resulting contamination and damage to the plaintiffs' properties). Stein v JP Morgan Chase Bank, 279 F. Supp. 2d 286, 2003 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 21352 (S.D.N.Y. 2003).

326. Examination of claimant as waiver of defects

Under section 50-e of the General Municipal Law, as it existed prior to a 1976 amendment (L 1976, ch 745), which provided that, before commencing suit against a public corporation, a notice of claim was to be served on the party against whom the claim was made by delivering a copy thereof personally or by registered mail within 90 days after the claim arose, but which contained a "saving clause" providing that "if service of such notice be made within the period prescribed by this section, but in a manner not in compliance with the provisions of this subdivision, such service shall be deemed valid if such notice is actually received . . . and such party against whom the claim is made shall cause the claimant . . . to be examined in regard to such claim", service of a notice of claim by means other than registered mail or personal delivery constituted effective service only if the notice was actually received within the prescribed 90-day period and an examination of the claimant was conducted. Adkins v New York, 43 N.Y.2d 346, 401 N.Y.S.2d 469, 372 N.E.2d 311, 1977 N.Y. LEXIS 2469 (N.Y. 1977).

Transit operating authority was not entitled to summary judgment dismissing personal injury complaint on ground that plaintiff's notice of claim was defective, even though site description in notice was too vague to locate alleged defect in roadway and plaintiff misidentified number of bus which she was disembarking when injured, where confusion regarding route number was explained by recent change in route designations, correct bus route was identified at CLS Gen Mun § 50-h hearing 4 months after accident, and site of accident was further identified at hearing. Dillon v Manhattan & Bronx Surface Transit Operating Authority, 182 A.D.2d 553, 582 N.Y.S.2d 423, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6262 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1992).

Former subdivision 3 of this section, as amended, provides that if service is made within the time prescribed, but in a manner not in compliance with its provisions, it is to be deemed valid if the notice is actually received by the proper person, officer, agent, clerk or employee and the claimant or anyone else interested in the claim is examined in regard to it. This provision has been given effect in instances where a notice of claim was simply mailed in, but received within the prescribed time and followed up by an examination into its merits. Unger v Falconer, 3 N.Y.2d 717, 163 N.Y.S.2d 962, 143 N.E.2d 512, 1957 N.Y. LEXIS 1035 (N.Y. 1957); Drake v Comptroller of New York, 278 A.D. 317, 104 N.Y.S.2d 774, 1951 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3800 (N.Y. App. Div. 1951); Bard v Board of Education, 140 N.Y.S.2d 850, 1955 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2445 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1955).

327. —Applicability to particular public corporations

Where the notice of claim was originally improperly served but after July 1, 1951, the effective date of the amendment of § 50-e, the city caused claimant to be examined with regard to the claim, the service of the original notice of claim became good. Anderlohr v New York, 112 N.Y.S.2d 135, 201 Misc. 605, 1952 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2616 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1952).

The amendment to this section by the Laws of 1951, Chapter 393 which provide that the service of a notice of claim not made in compliance with the provisions as they were before the 1951 amendment, should be deemed valid if the notice was actually received by the person who should have been served and such party "shall cause the claimant . . . . to be examined in regard to such claim", was controlling in actions brought against a county, as well as those against other public corporations. Bronson v Westchester County, 10 Misc. 2d 293, 168 N.Y.S.2d 735, 1957 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2306 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1957).

328. —Timeliness of notice for examination

Review of affidavit of service and other matters showed that the first notice for examination of claimants, asserting personal injuries arising out of alleged negligence of town's sanitation district employee in operation of district's motor vehicle was served timely within 90 days filing notice of claim contrary to assertion of claimants, and claimant by appearing at office of the corporate defendant's attorney for purpose of examination waived any objection to alleged loss of original notice in mail. Fitzgerald v Sanitation Dist. No. 6, 89 Misc. 2d 1078, 393 N.Y.S.2d 542, 1977 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2730 (N.Y. City Ct.), modified, 116 Misc. 2d 325, 457 N.Y.S.2d 664, 1977 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2714 (N.Y. App. Term 1977).

329. —Acts constituting examination

The city waived the requirement of § 50-e that a notice of claim must be delivered personally or by registered mail when the injured party obtained a form of notice of claim from a city department and mailed it by ordinary mail to the city comptroller who retained it and, before the expiration of the time limited for filing such notice, notified the injured party to appear for examination. Teresta v New York, 304 N.Y. 440, 108 N.E.2d 397, 304 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 440, 1952 N.Y. LEXIS 734 (N.Y. 1952).

Where, within the time extended for filing notice of claim, a claim was sent to the county clerk and by him delivered to the county attorney, and the county examined the hospital records, the notice was valid. Soules v Rochester, 10 A.D.2d 362, 199 N.Y.S.2d 966, 1960 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10393 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1960).

Under subd 6 of this section, appellant should have been granted leave to file claim nunc pro tunc against a town for injury sustained as the result of alleged negligence arising out of its snowplow colliding with a bus in which appellant was a passenger, although no claim was filed within the 90-day period, the accident having occurred February 10, the town having been informed of it on February 26, its insurance carrier having sought and obtained a physical examination of appellant on April 3, and the disability insurance carrier for appellant's employer having filed notice of lien upon the town likewise within the 90-day period. Kaiser v Salina, 20 A.D.2d 312, 247 N.Y.S.2d 9, 1964 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4352 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1964).

Where notice of claim of infant's injuries was timely served upon the comptroller of the City of New York but was served one day late upon the Board of Education, and the comptroller within the prescribed period had transmitted the notice of claim to such Board, and both the comptroller and the Board examined the infant and her father at a hearing, the service was held proper. Lauricella v New York, 137 N.Y.S.2d 687, 207 Misc. 203, 1955 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2562 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1955).

Absence of any examination of claimant prior to commencement of action against the municipality or agency in question should not be permitted to defeat a claim which was timely served and received by the proper official and in time, and, in connection with which, defendant has conducted a pre-trial examination of claimant. Perl v New York City Housing Authority, 35 Misc. 2d 92, 231 N.Y.S.2d 142, 1962 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3515 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1962).

There is an examination of claimant at instance of the municipality within the 90-day period where the claims manager of the city's insurance company within that period following the accident interviews claimant at her home and takes a signed statement from her answering all his questions as to where, when and how the accident occurred and the nature and extent of her injuries. Harwood v Hornell, 41 Misc. 2d 706, 246 N.Y.S.2d 222, 1964 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2155 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1964).

Under subd. 3 of this section, providing that when manner of service of notice of claim is defective it may be deemed valid if notice was actually received and the municipality has caused the claimant to be examined, where notice of claim by reason of injuries sustained in a sidewalk fall was mailed to the mayor within eight days after the fall occurred and acknowledged by him providing full details and the claims manager of the city's insurance company, within the 90-day period, interviewed the claimant at length and took her written statement, the city was not prejudiced by the informal nature of the claim and claimant was entitled to leave of court to amend her claim to provide formal verification, etc. Harwood v Hornell, 41 Misc. 2d 706, 246 N.Y.S.2d 222, 1964 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2155 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1964).

330. —Acts not constituting examination

The Westchester County Playland Commission was not estopped to assert failure to serve notice of claim against it as required by this section by mere service of notice on claimant to appear for examination, there being nothing to indicate that an examination actually took place. Menter v Westchester County Playland Com., 42 Misc. 2d 5, 247 N.Y.S.2d 3, 1964 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2144 (N.Y. County Ct. 1964).

331. —Instances where defect not waived by examination

Where a notice of a personal injury claim was sent to the City of New York by ordinary mail on the 90th day after the accident which gave rise to the claim, and the city received it six days later and subsequently examined the claimant, the notice of claim was not timely served within the meaning of section 50-e of the General Municipal Law, which, as it existed at the time of the accident, permitted service of a notice of claim by means other than registered mail or personal delivery, but only if two conditions were met, the first being that the notice of claim be actually received within the 90-day period prescribed in that section, and the second being that there be an examination of the claimant. Adkins v New York, 43 N.Y.2d 346, 401 N.Y.S.2d 469, 372 N.E.2d 311, 1977 N.Y. LEXIS 2469 (N.Y. 1977).

Even assuming that an irregular notice of claim given four and one-half months after injury sustained by a school child, though irregular, was in such form as to be subject to amendments, being merely a signed notice of accident given to the teacher or principal of the school it was not served upon a person "designated by law" within the requirement of this section, and therefore a subsequent hearing and physical examination of plaintiff following the claim could not validate the service. Chikara v New York, 10 A.D.2d 862, 199 N.Y.S.2d 829, 1960 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10689 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't), app. denied, 11 A.D.2d 688, 205 N.Y.S.2d 850, 1960 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9440 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1960), app. dismissed, 8 N.Y.2d 1014, 206 N.Y.S.2d 780, 170 N.E.2d 204, 1960 N.Y. LEXIS 996 (N.Y. 1960).

Defendant city's conduct of hearing under CLS Gen Mun § 50-h and participation in years of litigation did not preclude it from first raising untimeliness of notice of claim after personal injury action was well advanced; it was free to do so until trial. Frank v City of New York, 240 A.D.2d 198, 658 N.Y.S.2d 293, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6150 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1997).

Where a notice of claim under the above statute was timely served on the Board of Education of Union Free School District No. 23 for an injury to the claimant while performing work in the construction of a library building for the present defendant and claimant's attorney was subsequently served with a notice of examination from a law firm appearing in behalf of the "Library Trustees of Union Free School District No. 23 incorrectly sued herein" who later amended its appearance to show that it only represented the Board of Education, no estoppel could be predicated on the mistaken or unauthorized appearance by the attorneys for the Board of Education, and the conduct of the examination during which such amended appearance was filed could not confer any rights on the claimant as against the present defendant in the absence of a showing that service of a notice of claim was made upon it within the period prescribed by the above statute. Maik v Massapequa Library Board of Trustees, 46 Misc. 2d 159, 258 N.Y.S.2d 916, 1965 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2089 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1965).

332. Forwarding notice to proper party; claim involving county

Where, within the time extended for filing notice of claim, a claim was sent to the county clerk and by him delivered to the county attorney, and the county examined the hospital records, the notice was valid. Soules v Rochester, 10 A.D.2d 362, 199 N.Y.S.2d 966, 1960 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10393 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1960).

Although notice of a tort claim against a county was not served in the precise manner prescribed by subd. 2 of this section, it was served in such manner as to give the county timely and adequate notice where the accident occurred on September 28 and a copy of the notice of claim was served on the County Attorney December 23, and likewise, on the same day, on the secretary to the Clerk of the Board of Supervisors by acceptance of service by an office employee in the secretary's absence who followed it up by promptly transmitting it by mail to the County Attorney, and written memorandum to the Clerk of the Board, which memorandum was duly entered in the board minutes. Majane v County of Westchester, 39 Misc. 2d 238, 240 N.Y.S.2d 300, 1963 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2183 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1963).

333. —Claim involving school district

A notice of claim must be deemed valid where, although the notice was directed to the city of New York and was received by the city's comptroller, it was forwarded to and was received by the president of the board of education within the period provided for in this section and the corporation counsel of the city, who was also attorney for the board of education, held a hearing on the claim. Under the circumstances, it was unnecessary to serve another notice of claim on the board of education. Zivyak v Board of Education, 282 A.D. 704, 122 N.Y.S.2d 19, 1953 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4745 (N.Y. App. Div. 1953).

Where it was inferable from the circumstances that a notice of claim against a Board of Education, erroneously served upon the City Comptroller, came to the board's notice within the period prescribed by this section, an answer having been served verified by the secretary of the Board of Education and the board's attorney having examined the claimant, the notice of claim would be deemed valid and service of an amended notice was not required. Torres v Board of Education, 13 A.D.2d 948, 216 N.Y.S.2d 875, 1961 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9917 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1961).

Where claim was served upon comptroller and mailed by him to Board within statutory period, service was timely though not received by board until after expiration of statutory period. Stallone v Board of Education, 133 N.Y.S.2d 592, 205 Misc. 697, 1954 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2263 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1954).

Where notice of claim of infant's injuries was timely served upon the comptroller of the City of New York but was served one day late upon the Board of Education, and the comptroller within the prescribed period had transmitted the notice of claim to such Board, and both the comptroller and the Board examined the infant and her father at a hearing, the service was held proper. Lauricella v New York, 137 N.Y.S.2d 687, 207 Misc. 203, 1955 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2562 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1955).

Where a board of education had immediate notice of an accident and thereafter a notice of claim, addressed to the city and the board of education, was served on the comptroller but none was served on the board of education, an application for leave to file a notice of claim with the board of education would be granted where it appeared that the comptroller's office had notified the board of education by letter of such claim. Schreibersdorf v Board of Education, 126 N.Y.S.2d 548, 1953 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2460 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1953).

334. Investigation into merits of claim

Complaint against village was properly dismissed, to extent it sought recovery on theory that driver's accident was caused by stop sign obstructed by vegetation, where notice of claim under CLS Gen Mun § 50-e did not refer to this theory, and thus notice was inadequate to provide village with opportunity to investigate such transitory condition. Shea v Head of Harbor, 180 A.D.2d 675, 579 N.Y.S.2d 715, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1462 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1992).

Complaint against village should not have been dismissed, even though notice of claim under CLS Gen Mun § 50-e did not make specific mention of failure to post double-arrow sign at T intersection or specify driver's injuries, where village had been preparing to defend case premised on theory of inadequate highway design and traffic control plan for 7 years, and it had opportunity to learn of plaintiff's injuries through discovery. Shea v Head of Harbor, 180 A.D.2d 675, 579 N.Y.S.2d 715, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1462 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1992).

Alleged defects in notice of claim form did not prejudice ability of New York City Housing Authority (NYCHA) to defend action where accident report was filed shortly after incident, and NYCHA assigned claim number to matter and conducted investigation. Biggers v New York City Hous. Auth., 202 A.D.2d 537, 609 N.Y.S.2d 278, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2641 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1994).

Neither a school district's efforts to investigate claims by an infant and his mother arising out of a hazing incident nor the district's coverage of the liability of its individual employees served as a substitute for compliance with N.Y. Educ. Law § 3813 and N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e by naming the individual employees in the notice of claim. White v Averill Park Cent. Sch. Dist., 195 Misc. 2d 409, 759 N.Y.S.2d 641, 2003 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 263 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 2003).

But the giving, service, or attempted service of the notice must have been within the prescribed time period, so that notice was actually received within that period, before the informal method of giving it can be "deemed valid" on the strength of subsequent investigation into the claim's merits. McGuire v New York, 116 N.Y.S.2d 163, 1952 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1828 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1952).

335. Knowledge of facts constituting claim

Under subd 6 of this section, appellant should have been granted leave to file claim nunc pro tunc against a town for injury sustained as the result of alleged negligence arising out of its snowplow colliding with a bus in which appellant was a passenger, although no claim was filed within the 90-day period, the accident having occurred February 10, the town having been informed of it on February 26, its insurance carrier having sought and obtained a physical examination of appellant on April 3, and the disability insurance carrier for appellant's employer having filed notice of lien upon the town likewise within the 90-day period. Kaiser v Salina, 20 A.D.2d 312, 247 N.Y.S.2d 9, 1964 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4352 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1964).

Payments made by the Board of Education to adjoining property owners in satisfaction of their claims for injury to their property by reason of a contractor's improper performance of work were not made without authorization, since the Board had the power to validly waive irregularities as to the service of notices of claim not pertaining to the time or manner of service since the Board was fully cognizant of the nature of the claims, and the contractor was not prejudiced by such waiver. Board of Education v A. Barbaresi & Son, Inc., 25 A.D.2d 855, 269 N.Y.S.2d 823, 1966 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4306 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1966).

In an action by plaintiff, who was injured when struck in the face by a bullet fired by one of the defendant police officers while engaged in the pursuit of an alleged criminal, and who served notice of claim one day late, Special Term abused its discretion in denying plaintiff's request that the court deem that the notice of claim had been timely served, where several agents of the municipality had actual notice of the plaintiff's claim within hours after its occurrence and subsequently a hearing was held wherein the facts surrounding the incident were once again disclosed, where the record did not indicate that the city even claimed that it had suffered any prejudice by the late filing, and where the actions of the city prior to moving to dismiss the complaint amounted to a waiver of the right to assert the defense of the untimely service of the notice of claim. King v New York, 88 A.D.2d 891, 452 N.Y.S.2d 607, 1982 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 17213 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't), app. denied, 90 A.D.2d 714, 1982 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 18896 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1982).

A notice of claim against a municipality failed to state with sufficient specifity the place at which the claim arose when it merely stated that it arose on the public roadway at an intersection of two city streets, since such statement was too vague to enable the city to locate the alleged defect in the road which led to the claimant's injury, and since the notice was silent regarding causation, which alone made it impossible for the city to investigate the matter; moreover, it was not an abuse of discretion to decline to disregard the claimant's defective notice, since the requisite particulars were not set forth in her bill of particulars, and since there was nothing to suggest that a report made by a police officer who aided the claimant immediately after her accident was ever filed with or otherwise brought to the attention of the appropriate city official. Caselli v New York, 105 A.D.2d 251, 483 N.Y.S.2d 401, 1984 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 20695 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1984).

Delay in serving notice of claim is excused where municipal defendant was in possession of all records concerning medical malpractice and therefore had actual notice underlying facts of claim; delay is excused where it is not substantially prejudicial to municipal hospital. Rechenberger v Nassau County Medical Center, 112 A.D.2d 150, 490 N.Y.S.2d 838, 1985 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 56436 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1985).

Prejudice on part of city from lack of specificity in notice of claim as to location of defect was not negated by fact that city learned of location from accident report prepared by police officer who responded to scene where (1) plaintiff failed to proffer acceptable proof that site of accident was correctly recorded by officer, and (2) city challenged accuracy of accident report on basis of discrepancies between officer's description of location and that provided by plaintiff at hearing conducted 14 months after accident. Frankfort v New York, 159 A.D.2d 680, 553 N.Y.S.2d 182, 1990 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3597 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1990).

City housing authority was not entitled to dismissal of complaint of woman who fell and was injured in one of authority's projects where (1) employees of authority responded to scene at time of accident, interviewed plaintiff, and filed accident report, (2) plaintiff timely filed notice of claim stating that fall was due to "dangerous and defective condition," and (3) 7 months after accident CLS Gen Mun § 50-h hearing was conducted, at which time plaintiff was further questioned and exact location of accident was determined; any deficiency in notice of claim was obviated by immediate, actual notice of facts underlying claim. Williams v New York City Housing Authority, 179 A.D.2d 523, 579 N.Y.S.2d 21, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 462 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1992).

Ten-year delay by insured New York City Housing Authority in reporting personal injury claim to its liability insurer constituted breach of authority's obligation under policy to give notice of pertinent occurrence "as soon as practicable" and entitled insurer to disclaim any duty to defend or indemnify authority, notwithstanding fact that authority itself received no notice of occurrence giving rise to injury other than that contained in police accident report; even if notice of claim provisions of CLS Gen Mun § 50-e were interpreted to mean that its police department's knowledge of accident could not be imputed to municipality, authority's duty of notification was controlled by insurance policy rather than by statute. White v New York, 180 A.D.2d 324, 585 N.Y.S.2d 41, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8146 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1992), aff'd, 81 N.Y.2d 955, 598 N.Y.S.2d 759, 615 N.E.2d 216, 1993 N.Y. LEXIS 1127 (N.Y. 1993).

When an infant sought leave, pursuant to N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(5), to serve late notice of a negligent supervision claim on a school district, after the infant was injured by another student in gym class, the infant was not entitled to serve late notice because, while a school nurse had prepared an accident report regarding the incident, the report, which stated that the infant was injured during gym class as a result of an accident, did not show the district had actual knowledge of the essential facts underlying the infant's claim within 90 days of the incident or a reasonable time thereafter, and, as a result, the district would be prejudiced by granting leave because it would have had no opportunity to investigate the facts at the time of the incident. Matter of Scolo v Central Islip Union Free School Dist., 40 A.D.3d 1104, 838 N.Y.S.2d 577, 2007 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6632 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2007).

As originally enacted, this section contained no provision whereby a defect in service of the required notice of claim could be overlooked or disregarded on the ground of actual notice or knowledge of the incident by officers or employees of the municipality or public corporation, and it was held, during that period, that actual notice or knowledge was immaterial and that no enforceable cause of action existed in the absence of at least substantial compliance with the service requirements. Broome County v Binghamton Taxicab Co., 75 N.Y.S.2d 423, 190 Misc. 925, 1947 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3409 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1947).

Under subd. 3 of this section, providing that when manner of service of notice of claim is defective it may be deemed valid if notice was actually received and the municipality has caused the claimant to be examined, where notice of claim by reason of injuries sustained in a sidewalk fall was mailed to the mayor within eight days after the fall occurred and acknowledged by him providing full details and the claims manager of the city's insurance company, within the 90-day period, interviewed the claimant at length and took her written statement, the city was not prejudiced by the informal nature of the claim and claimant was entitled to leave of court to amend her claim to provide formal verification, etc. Harwood v Hornell, 41 Misc. 2d 706, 246 N.Y.S.2d 222, 1964 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2155 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1964).

In a replevin action to recover $4,015.06 in cash held by the police property clerk of the New York City Police Department, the money having been seized at a "Las Vegas Nite" sponsored by the plaintiff, the defendants cannot avoid return of the property by raising as an affirmative defense the failure of the plaintiff to file a notice of claim pursuant to section 50-e of the General Municipal Law since the record establishes that the defendants had substantial actual notice of the plaintiff's claim constituting compliance with the statute's notice of claim provision. Williamsburg Volunteer Ambulance Corps v Wendt, 95 Misc. 2d 414, 408 N.Y.S.2d 207, 1978 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2441 (N.Y. Civ. Ct. 1978).

In action against city and its board of education for child's personal injuries sustained during gym class, plaintiffs would be granted leave to file late notice of claim against board of education where plaintiffs filed timely notice of claim against city, failure to file separate notice with board was inadvertent, city and board were represented by same corporation counsel, which filed single answer, board knew facts of incident early in litigation, mounted well prepared defense, and did not indicate that it would have defended action differently if notice of claim had been filed at its offices, and thus board was not prejudiced by late filing. Arvelo by Arvelo v City of New York, 182 Misc. 2d 101, 695 N.Y.S.2d 653, 1999 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 377 (N.Y. Civ. Ct. 1999).

336. Receipt of defective notice

With respect to a notice of claim for injuries sustained by an infant plaintiff and her father, the court could properly disregard words in the body of the notice indicating that the claim was against a town only and not likewise against a Board of Education, which admitted receipt of the notice of claim, and likewise properly permitted amendment of the notice to correct an improperly executed verification. Gisondi v Harrison, 16 A.D.2d 929, 229 N.Y.S.2d 698, 1962 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9364 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1962).

In a personal injury action where there was no proof that a notice of claim was actually received by any member of the Board of Education, any trustee, or clerk thereof, as required by the statutes, the action must be dismissed despite the fact that a letter stating the claim was addressed to the Superintendent of Schools, was acknowledged by him in a letter in which he stated that the matter was being referred to the school insurance agency for action, and that a written statement was thereafter taken by an investigator all within 90 days after the claim arose. Bayer v Board of Education, 58 Misc. 2d 259, 295 N.Y.S.2d 131, 1968 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1042 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1968).

Municipality waived the requirements of this section as to manner of service of notice of claim by accepting letter sent within 90-day period, by informing claimant that the letter had been received and by forwarding the letter to the insurance company whose representative interviewed the claimant at an early date. Boettner v Mamaroneck, 123 N.Y.S.2d 849, 1953 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2057 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1953).

337. —Duty to specify defect in notice

Court properly granted defendant's motion to dismiss complaint for failure to timely serve proper notice of claim where plaintiffs did not provide correct address of building where accident occurred until service of their summons and complaint, some 9 months after accident, and there was no excuse for such delay, plaintiffs having been advised by defendant some 3 months after accident that it did not own building at address given in plaintiffs' notice of claim. Rivera by Rivera v New York City Hous. Auth., 235 A.D.2d 296, 652 N.Y.S.2d 287, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 452 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1997).

Claimant who failed to file a timely notice of personal injury claim as required by law was not granted leave to file a late claim on the theory that he had served a timely claim by registered mail on the corporation counsel of the City of New York and the corporation counsel had failed to notify him of his mistake in filing before the expiration of the statutory period. Hayward v New York City Transit Authority, 3 Misc. 2d 295, 148 N.Y.S.2d 317, 1955 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2088 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1955).

City was not entitled to dismissal of complaint for failure to properly serve notice of claim where city merely returned defective notice without specifying nature of alleged defect, especially where irregularity in service was either clerical in nature or one of law office failure. Travelers Indem. Co. v Yonkers, 142 Misc. 2d 334, 537 N.Y.S.2d 429, 1988 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 807 (N.Y. City Ct. 1988).

338. —Failure to return defective notice

In action for personal injuries received by passenger on bus owned by county and operated by bus company, service of notice of claim on county was valid, although not carried out in manner specified in CLS Gen Mun § 50-e, where notice of claim was timely served on bus company and its general counsel, and it was undisputed that bus company's general counsel was attorney who was also regularly engaged in representing county in suits brought against it arising out of accidents occurring on buses, and thus was proper person to be served on county's behalf, and where county had not returned notice to passenger within 30 days of receipt. Tacinelli v Liberty Lines, 123 A.D.2d 756, 507 N.Y.S.2d 230, 1986 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 60898 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1986).

Although notice of claim against a New York City Housing Authority was not served personally or by "registered" mail, where it was admittedly sent and received by "certified" mail and no objection was raised as to the method of service until after time for service had expired, the defect in method of service must be considered as waived. Caro v New York, 31 Misc. 2d 834, 222 N.Y.S.2d 927, 1961 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1997 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1961).

339. —Mere retention of defective notice

The retention of a late notice of claim does not bar a municipality from raising the defense of untimeliness. Miller v County of Putnam, 32 A.D.2d 827, 302 N.Y.S.2d 377, 1969 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3651 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't), aff'd, 25 N.Y.2d 664, 306 N.Y.S.2d 473, 254 N.E.2d 773, 1969 N.Y. LEXIS 973 (N.Y. 1969).

Mere retention of a defective notice of claim served upon a municipality will not constitute a waiver of the defect. Bardo v Monroe County Water Authority, 37 Misc. 2d 638, 235 N.Y.S.2d 926, 1962 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2453 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1962).

XII. Amendment of Claim or Notice

340. In general

Subdivision 6 of this section provides that at or before trial or hearing on a claim within the coverage of this section the notice of claim can be amended as to any mistake, omission, irregularity or defect "made in good faith" and "not pertaining to the manner or time of service thereof", or such a defect can be disregarded, in the court's discretion, if it appears defendant was not prejudiced by the error. This obviously leaves the matter of allowing such amendments or disregarding such defects up to the court's discretion, on a basis of whether or not prejudice will result. Winbush v Mt. Vernon, 306 N.Y. 327, 118 N.E.2d 459, 306 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 327, 1954 N.Y. LEXIS 1029 (N.Y. 1954).

The phrasing of subd. 6 is such as to make clear that no amendment can be allowed, nor can any defect be disregarded, which would deprive defendant of the protection provided by the strict requirements as to time and method of serving notice of claim, while leaving to the court's discretion the correction of any other kind of mistake or defect in such papers. Winbush v Mt. Vernon, 306 N.Y. 327, 118 N.E.2d 459, 306 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 327, 1954 N.Y. LEXIS 1029 (N.Y. 1954); Miller v N.Y. City Hous. Auth., 7 A.D.2d 922, 183 N.Y.S.2d 518, 1959 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9964 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't), aff'd, 6 N.Y.2d 932, 190 N.Y.S.2d 1002, 161 N.E.2d 215, 1959 N.Y. LEXIS 1209 (N.Y. 1959).

Applications to amend tort claim notices have been denied in a number of instances, wholly or in part, in exercise of the court's discretion, either because they tend to change the nature of the claim asserted or because they would, in some other way, prejudice the defendant. Application of Kesdan, 273 A.D. 1020, 79 N.Y.S.2d 916, 1948 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5820 (N.Y. App. Div.), reh'g denied, 274 A.D. 801, 81 N.Y.S.2d 157, 1948 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3414 (N.Y. App. Div. 1948).

Court may, in its discretion, grant motion for leave to amend notice of claim under CLS General Municipal Law § 50-e where it determines that mistake or defect in original notice was made in good faith and that public corporation was not prejudiced. Mazza v New York, 112 A.D.2d 921, 492 N.Y.S.2d 438, 1985 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 52134 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1985).

Statute of limitations on personal injury claim against town was not tolled during period in which plaintiff sought leave to amend her notice of claim, since application to amend can be made at any stage of action under terms of CLS Gen Mun § 50-e(6) and thus plaintiff did not have to delay commencement of action until decision was made on her motion to amend. Fiorito v Huntington, 140 A.D.2d 302, 527 N.Y.S.2d 1015, 1988 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4620 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1988).

Court may grant leave to amend notice of claim under CLS Gen Mun § 50-e(6) when (1) mistake, omission, irregularity or defect in original notice was made in good faith, and (2) public corporation has not been prejudiced thereby. Williams v New York, 156 A.D.2d 361, 548 N.Y.S.2d 317, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 15407 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1989).

Under CLS Gen Mun § 50-e(6), court may, in its discretion, grant application for leave to serve amended notice of claim where mistake was made in good faith and municipality has not been prejudiced thereby. Kaminsky v City of New York, 238 A.D.2d 380, 656 N.Y.S.2d 324, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3820 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1997).

The trial court improvidently exercised its discretion in denying an injured party's motion pursuant to N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(6) for leave to serve an amended notice of claim on a city; there was no allegation that the injured party's error in describing the location of the accident in her notice of claim was made in bad faith, and moreover, the notice of claim was accompanied by photographs from which the correct location of the accident site could have been ascertained, and the city was advised of the correct location at the hearing pursuant to N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-h, which took place approximately five months after the accident, and under these circumstances, the city failed to establish that the defective notice prejudiced it by impeding its ability to investigate the claim. Barrios v City of New York, 300 A.D.2d 480, 751 N.Y.S.2d 562, 2002 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12335 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2002), app. denied, 100 N.Y.2d 534, 762 N.Y.S.2d 875, 793 N.E.2d 412, 2003 N.Y. LEXIS 951 (N.Y. 2003).

In an action which an injured party filed against New York City (New York) and the New York City Transit Authority, the trial court erred by denying the injured party's motion for leave to serve an amended notice of claim, pursuant to N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(6), to correct the date of the accident stated in the original notice, and by granting the Transit Authority's motion to dismiss the action, because the error in the original notice of claim was made in good faith and the Transit Authority did not demonstrate that it would suffer actual prejudice if the motion was granted. Lin v City of New York, 305 A.D.2d 553, 759 N.Y.S.2d 394, 2003 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5700 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2003).

Subdivision 6 is a general amendment or curative provision, to the extent of its terms, not limited to instances where the claimant is an infant or has been incapacitated or in some manner misled into the mistake in question, and sanctions correction, in the court's discretion, of all manner of minor defects and mistakes in stating the precise and correct nature of any claimant's actual claim. Turner v New York, 61 N.Y.S.2d 199, 185 Misc. 1012, 1945 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2722 (N.Y. City Ct. 1945).

Time within which personal injury action must be commenced against municipality and municipality's board of education under CLS Gen Mun § 50-i, CLS Educ § 3813, is not tolled during time claimant moves to file amended notice of claim under CLS Gen Mun § 50-e. Gomez v New York, 130 Misc. 2d 272, 496 N.Y.S.2d 216, 1985 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3178 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1985).

341. Construction

Subdivision 6 of this section in providing that the court may, in its discretion, permit amendment of a notice of claim, should be liberally construed provided the municipality is not prejudiced thereby. Harwood v Hornell, 41 Misc. 2d 706, 246 N.Y.S.2d 222, 1964 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2155 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1964).

Amendment of notices of claim to correct good faith omissions or defects should be liberally allowed even as to matters of substance, provided there has been no prejudice to the municipality. Father of six-year-old infant was permitted to amend a letter which constituted his notice of claim to add a verification and to state time of accident and the basis of claim against a school district where the letter was delivered personally to the trustees of a school district sixty-six days after an accident. Baxter v Turner, 111 N.Y.S.2d 10, 1952 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2473 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1952).

342. Timeliness of application to amend

A motion to amend the notice under subd 6 of the above statute is not defeated by (1) undue delay in making an application to amend or (2) for want of an affidavit of merit, the only statutory requirement being that it shall appear that the other party was not prejudiced. Montana v Lynbrook, 23 A.D.2d 585, 256 N.Y.S.2d 651, 1965 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4806 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1965).

In an action brought against New York City to recover for injuries sustained when plaintiff's automobile was struck by an automobile which was being chased by a New York City police car, the trial court erred in permitting plaintiff, two years after the accident, to add to his notice of claim a cause of action alleging that the city's negligence in allowing a pothole to exist in the street was a proximate cause of the accident, where plaintiff's original complaint had charged merely undifferentiated negligence in the operation and control of both the police car and the other automobile. McKie v New York, 79 A.D.2d 901, 434 N.Y.S.2d 239, 1981 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9763 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1981).

Court properly refused to allow amendment of notice of claim where plaintiffs sought to cure defect in notice on day of trial, some 4 ½ years after accident, especially where there was no evidence that actual notice of location and cause of accident was imputable to city. Altmayer v New York, 149 A.D.2d 638, 540 N.Y.S.2d 459, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5341 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1989).

Plaintiff, who filed notice of claim and complaint alleging that her fall in subway station and consequent severance of her leg by oncoming train were result of defendant transit authority's negligence in "ownership, operation, maintenance and control" of train and station, was improperly permitted to amend notice of claim 4 ½ years later to conform to her deposition testimony identifying, for first time, sandy or "blind" line running along edge of platform as source of her fall, since prior to deposition defendant was unaware that plaintiff was claiming that she fell to tracks because she tripped. Moore v New York City Transit Auth., 189 A.D.2d 862, 592 N.Y.S.2d 774, 1993 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 642 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1993).

Court properly denied plaintiff's motion to amend her notice of claim under CLS Gen Mun § 50-e where she allegedly injured herself on March 20, 1993 when she slipped and fell on accumulation of ice and snow, but served notice of claim on June 7, 1993 in which she stated that accident had occurred on March 13, and she did not move to correct error until almost one year later; long delay substantially prejudiced ability of defendant New York City Housing Authority to investigate short-lived condition of ice and snow. Rodriguez v City of New York, 223 A.D.2d 536, 636 N.Y.S.2d 388, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 162 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't), app. denied, 88 N.Y.2d 811, 649 N.Y.S.2d 378, 672 N.E.2d 604, 1996 N.Y. LEXIS 3039 (N.Y. 1996).

City transit authority would be prejudiced by plaintiff's attempt to amend notice of claim to correct date of accident nearly 4 ½ years after accident, and thus motion to amend was properly denied and complaint was properly dismissed. Pollicino v New York City Transit Auth., 225 A.D.2d 750, 640 N.Y.S.2d 168, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3229 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1996), app. dismissed, in part, app. denied, 89 N.Y.2d 973, 655 N.Y.S.2d 886, 678 N.E.2d 498, 1997 N.Y. LEXIS 228 (N.Y. 1997).

Plaintiffs' request to amend notice of claim and complaint almost 4 years after accident was properly denied, since defendants were unable to conduct meaningful investigation of merits of claim. Hussein v City of New York, 265 A.D.2d 302, 696 N.Y.S.2d 209, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9681 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1999).

In claim against city transit authority on behalf of passenger who died in fall from moving subway train while trying to change cars, authority's posttrial motion for summary judgment was untimely where (1) it was not filed within 120 after January 1, 1997, as required by CLS CPLR § 3212(a) in cases in which note of issue was filed before that date, (2) plaintiff served notice of claim on authority in September 1990, (3) by early 1992, authority was in position to argue that plaintiff was barred from adding new theories of liability by her failure to seek to amend notice of claim within limitation period of one year and 90 days "after the happening of the event upon which the claim is based," (4) evidence on which authority relied in support of its motion consisted entirely of testimony of witnesses who were deposed in 1994, (5) authority could have moved for summary judgment at any time within period prescribed by § 3212(a) after note of issue was filed in 1995, and (6) thus, authority's excuse—that it could not have moved for summary judgment until it had received trial transcript, including judge's proof-limiting order—was invalid. Barksdale v New York City Transit Auth., 273 A.D.2d 43, 709 N.Y.S.2d 531, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6379 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2000).

Trial court providently exercised its discretion in denying an injured party's cross motion for leave to serve an amended notice of claim pursuant to N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(6) on a city in a personal injury action; the original notice of claim erroneously described the alleged accident, and the injured party did not seek to amend the notice of claim until over four and one-half years after the accident, which deprived the city of an opportunity to conduct a meaningful investigation. Sarkissian v City of New York, 302 A.D.2d 583, 755 N.Y.S.2d 300, 2003 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1879 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2003).

It is stated that the practice on amendments to notices of claim should follow the practice prescribed under former art 9 Civil Practice Act, and that relief should be granted only where some reason or excuse appears for failure to act within the time prescribed by the statute, and a proper showing is made of prejudice or the absence of prejudice, a mere lapse of time of one year not being in and of itself sufficient to defeat the application or prove prejudice to the city. Feldman v New York, 79 N.Y.S.2d 284, 192 Misc. 136, 1948 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2394 (N.Y. City Ct. 1948).

City's failure to challenge an administratrix's notice of claim as deficient did not prohibit the city from arguing that the allegations in the administratrix's supplemental bill of particulars exceeded the scope of the notice of claim; because certain of the theories of liability were not contained in the notice of claim and a late notice of claim asserting such theories would in any event have been time-barred, the administratrix was not entitled to raise them in her supplemental bill of particulars. Furthermore, inasmuch as the administratrix sought to assert new substantive theories of liability, she was unable to amend her notice of claim under N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(6). Clare-Hollo v Finger Lakes Ambulance EMS, Inc., 99 A.D.3d 1199, 952 N.Y.S.2d 350, 2012 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6622 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 2012).

343. —Other procedural considerations

While subd. 6 of this section authorizes an order directing plaintiff's attorney to deliver a copy of the notice of claim to the attorney for defendant, in order to cure irregularity in service of a good faith notice, the application for such an order, if made before trial, must be made upon affidavits. Hite v Lyons Cent. School Dist., 11 A.D.2d 624, 200 N.Y.S.2d 144, 1960 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10214 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't), reh'g denied, 11 A.D.2d 907, 205 N.Y.S.2d 1014, 1960 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8777 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1960), app. dismissed, 8 N.Y.2d 708, 1960 N.Y. LEXIS 1847 (N.Y. 1960).

Amended notice of claim and amended complaint were properly deemed to have been timely interposed pursuant to relation-back provision of CLS CPLR § 203(e) where (1) papers were served pursuant to prior order of court to remedy omission in originals, (2) claims asserted in amended papers were based on same transactions and occurrences as claims asserted in original papers, and (3) defendants were provided with timely notice of transactions and occurrences giving rise to claims in amended papers. Sullivan v Board of Educ. of Eastchester Union Free School Dist., 154 A.D.2d 664, 546 N.Y.S.2d 665, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13744 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1989).

Motion to serve amended notice of claim on school district would not be dismissed, although action had not been commenced at time motion was made and service of summons and complaint had yet to be effected on district, where district conceded that it had been served with notice of motion and supporting papers, and thus personal jurisdiction over it had been acquired. Cavanagh v Monticello Cent. Sch. Dist., 241 A.D.2d 654, 660 N.Y.S.2d 88, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7354 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1997).

Where no action is pending, application to serve amended notice of claim must be made by commencement of special proceeding rather than by motion, but dismissal of motion is not required if personal jurisdiction has been obtained over defendant, in which case plaintiff's failure to properly designate papers may be disregarded. Cavanagh v Monticello Cent. Sch. Dist., 241 A.D.2d 654, 660 N.Y.S.2d 88, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7354 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1997).

It is stated that the practice on amendments to notices of claim should follow the practice prescribed under art 9 Civil Practice Act, and that relief should be granted only where some reason or excuse appears for failure to act within the time prescribed by the statute, and a proper showing is made of prejudice or the absence of prejudice, a mere lapse of time of one year not being in and of itself sufficient to defeat the application or prove prejudice to the city. Feldman v New York, 79 N.Y.S.2d 284, 192 Misc. 136, 1948 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2394 (N.Y. City Ct. 1948).

The moving papers being insufficient to show that various defects and irregularities in a notice of claim were amendable under subd. 6 of this section, or whether the proposed amendment would in fact set up a new cause of action after expiration of the time to give notice, the motion was denied, with leave, however, to make further application upon proper moving papers within 30 days. Bailey v Port Leyden, 31 Misc. 2d 310, 220 N.Y.S.2d 89, 1961 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3001 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1961).

An application for an order amending a notice of claim pursuant to Gen Mun Law § 50-e would be denied, where the claimant had not yet instituted an action predicated on the notice of claim, and where a motion can be made only in an already pending action and when relief is sought prior to the commencement of an action a special proceeding should be commenced, and where if the application was regarded as a motion it had to be dismissed for lack of a pending action, and if construed as a special proceeding it had to be dismissed for lack of proper service. In re Crespo, 123 Misc. 2d 862, 475 N.Y.S.2d 319, 1984 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3096 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1984).

Husband operating an automobile owned by the wife at the time of the injury, was a bailee having an interest in the property which is sufficient to entitle him to sue third persons for injury to the automobile, and it was unnecessary to have the notice of claim against the city amended by substituting therein the name of his wife. Hurst v New York, 88 N.Y.S.2d 98, 1949 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2053 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1949).

344. Applicability to types of actions

In action to recover damages for personal injuries sustained as result of allegedly defective condition in street, amendment of defective notice of claim will be denied where original notice was insufficient with respect to setting forth place and manner in which claim arose, thereby prejudicing city by depriving it of opportunity to conduct prompt and adequate investigation. Mazza v New York, 112 A.D.2d 921, 492 N.Y.S.2d 438, 1985 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 52134 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1985).

The amendment provisions of this section are limited to claims within its coverage, and a plaintiff suing a city on contract cannot avail himself of them to amend his preliminary notice of claim. Crowley v New York, 70 N.Y.S.2d 333, 189 Misc. 170, 1947 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2392 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1947).

345. Adding or dropping parties

A father brought negligence actions against a county on behalf of himself and as guardian ad litem for each of his four children. In a fifth action, he and his wife sued. Notices of claim had been duly filed on behalf of the wife and children but not for the father individually. Since the notices actually filed clearly showed the relationship of the parties in the father's interest in the several claims, he was permitted to file an amended or supplementary notice for himself. His failure to file such an individual notice was in no wise prejudicial. Slocum v County of Madison, 6 A.D.2d 347, 176 N.Y.S.2d 741, 1958 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5001 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1958).

The one-year limitation upon application to extend the time within which to file notice of claim under this section will not permit amendment of an original notice of claim, after that time, to include the City of New York as a new and additional party against whom the claim is asserted. Agress v New York, 13 A.D.2d 651, 214 N.Y.S.2d 24, 1961 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11273 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1961).

In action against Manhattan and Bronx Surface Transit Operating Authority and Metropolitan Transportation Authority for injuries sustained by plaintiff in subway station, court erred in granting plaintiff's cross-motion to substitute New York City Transit Authority (NYCTA), which owned station, as proper defendant based on ground that it was estopped from challenging requested relief because, inter alia, it had been forwarded notice of claim and had conducted hearing, sent plaintiff copy of transcript and exchanged correspondence with her and her attorney, since (1) rather than misleading plaintiff, actions of NYCTA provided her with numerous indications that wrong entities had been sued, and (2) although plaintiff claimed that NYCTA agreed to be substituted as defendant, alleged promise was made after statute of limitations had expired. Nowinski v City of New York, 189 A.D.2d 674, 592 N.Y.S.2d 369, 1993 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 351 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1993).

It was abuse of discretion to deny plaintiff's motion to amend notice of claim against city to include fire department in caption thereof since department had actual notice of facts constituting claim within 90 days and failed to show any prejudice in maintaining defense on merits as result of delay; further, plaintiff served timely notice of claim on parties united in interest with fire department. Romanelli v City of New York, 233 A.D.2d 310, 649 N.Y.S.2d 169, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11591 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1996).

Although a notice of claim was timely served on a city transit authority, the claimant could not, by surreptitiously slipping the name of a second transit authority into a proposed amended notice, bootstrapped into viability an apparently lapsed cause of action over a party never served during the 90-day statutory period, since service of notice of claim on one governmental entity does not constitute valid service on another, and since the claimant presented no evidence of excusable delay to justify her failure to give proper notice to the second authority. In re Crespo, 123 Misc. 2d 862, 475 N.Y.S.2d 319, 1984 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3096 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1984).

Petitioner would be granted leave to amend notice of claim for personal injuries against city transit authority in order to add plaintiff's husband as party where proposed amendment sought to add derivative cause of action based on same facts already included in notice of claim, and thus there was no prejudice to transit authority. Lalanne v New York City Transit Auth., 163 Misc. 2d 941, 622 N.Y.S.2d 869, 1994 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 637 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1994).

Application to amend a notice of claim against a board of education to include the teacher in charge when the pupil was injured must be made prior to the institution of an action on the claim. However, the teacher is not a real party in interest, if he was acting in the course of his employment, and need not be included in the notice. Stearns v Board of Education, 137 N.Y.S.2d 711, 1955 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2569 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1955).

Where a notice of claim was entitled as against a named town and Board of Education, the fact that it was addressed only to the business manager of the town, demanding payment from the town, neither prejudiced nor led astray the Board of Education where the board was well aware of the purport of the claim, and any defects in these respects was subject to amendment. Gisondi v Harrison, 220 N.Y.S.2d 105, 1961 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3680 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1961), modified, 16 A.D.2d 929, 229 N.Y.S.2d 698, 1962 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9364 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1962).

In a negligence action in which plaintiff allegedly sustained injuries inside a fire department ambulance, plaintiff's failure to name the city as a defendant was non-prejudical and correctable, as plaintiff timely filed the notice of claim with the city, the claim was addressed to the city, the city sent plaintiff's counsel a receipt for the claim, and the city conducted hearings in which plaintiff testified. The relation back doctrine was applicable to plaintiff's claim against the city as the claims against the fire department and the city arose out of the same conduct and occurrence, the fire department was an agency of the city, and plaintiff served her notice on the city. Allen-David v N.Y. City Fire Dep't, 2010 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 7147 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. Sept. 22, 2010).

Omission of the names and address of the 134 plaintiffs besides plaintiff bank in a notice of claim could be excused because it was done in good faith and did not prejudice the defendant, so long as the 134 plaintiffs demonstrated that they were entitled to sue through, or in relation to, the bank. Stein v JP Morgan Chase Bank, 279 F. Supp. 2d 286, 2003 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 21352 (S.D.N.Y. 2003).

346. Former requirement as to amount of damages

The trial court should have permitted amendment of a notice of claim arising out of damages sustained by an infant plaintiff from burns suffered at a fireplace in a public park, greatly increasing the damage demand, upon a showing that since commencement of the action the infant has exhibited an excessive tendency to scar, requiring successive operations and indicating necessity of additional operative procedures for the purpose of adding skin to permit the infant's proper growth and development. Gisondi v Harrison, 16 A.D.2d 929, 229 N.Y.S.2d 698, 1962 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9364 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1962).

Amendment of a claim for damages against a municipality after its service to increase the damage claim from $30,000 to $250,000 did not go to any essential part of the claim and could probably be considered as merely curative of a "mistake" under subd. 6 of this section, in any event, where the extent of the damage did not appear until after the notice of claim was served. Gardenier v Colonie, 19 A.D.2d 572, 239 N.Y.S.2d 993, 1963 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3796 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), aff'd, 13 N.Y.2d 1047, 245 N.Y.S.2d 769, 195 N.E.2d 454, 1963 N.Y. LEXIS 848 (N.Y. 1963).

Failure to comply with the requirements of subd 2 as to notice in that (1) it is not sworn to, by, or on behalf of claimant, (2) it does not state the manner in which the claim arose, and (3) it does not specify the items of damage or injuries claimed to have been sustained, may in absence of prejudice to the defendant, be supplied by way of amendment pursuant to subd 6. Montana v Lynbrook, 23 A.D.2d 585, 256 N.Y.S.2d 651, 1965 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4806 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1965).

A notice of claim by husband and wife for personal injuries sustained by the wife, could be amended, so as to increase the demand from $15,000 to $17,500 and to also include an allegation that the damage sustained by the husband amounted to $2,500. Ficara v New York, 17 Misc. 2d 752, 186 N.Y.S.2d 361, 1959 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 4060 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1959).

347. —Amendment not allowed

Plaintiff's mistake in her notice of claim as to the location of the alleged sidewalk defect where she was injured, together with a 22-month delay in seeking leave to amend the notice, prejudiced the city by depriving it of the opportunity to conduct a prompt investigation; the trial court's denial of plaintiff's request to amend her notice was proper. Canelos v City of New York, 37 A.D.3d 637, 830 N.Y.S.2d 334, 2007 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2083 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2007).

A motion under subdivision 6 of this section to amend a notice of claim by increasing the amount of damages was denied where the action was not yet commenced by the service of summons. Moreover there is no requirement that a notice of claim set down the amount of claimed damages. Zultowski v New York City Transit Authority, 9 Misc. 2d 231, 169 N.Y.S.2d 276, 1957 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2193 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1957).

Where no new facts or injuries were shown in connection with an application for leave to amend a notice of claim, an amendment to increase the amount of damages claimed would not be allowed, notwithstanding grant of leave to amend the notice in certain other respects. Gisondi v Harrison, 220 N.Y.S.2d 105, 1961 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3680 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1961), modified, 16 A.D.2d 929, 229 N.Y.S.2d 698, 1962 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9364 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1962).

348. Amendment involving facts constituting claim

Failure to comply with the requirements of subd 2 as to notice in that (1) it is not sworn to, by, or on behalf of claimant, (2) it does not state the manner in which the claim arose, and (3) it does not specify the items of damage or injuries claimed to have been sustained, may in absence of prejudice to the defendant, be supplied by way of amendment pursuant to subd 6. Montana v Lynbrook, 23 A.D.2d 585, 256 N.Y.S.2d 651, 1965 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4806 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1965).

Court properly denied plaintiff's motion to amend original notice of claim which alleged injuries as result of fall caused by "hole in the street" where (1) plaintiff's testimony at comptroller's hearing described cause of accident as "raised crack around a manhole," (2) plaintiff thereafter took no further action to prosecute her suit for 5 years, and (3) proposed amended notice of claim set forth yet third description of defect, describing it as "protruding manhole cover"; in light of extreme delay and material discrepancies among plaintiff's descriptions, city would be prejudiced if application for leave to serve amended notice of claim were granted. Harper v New York, 129 A.D.2d 770, 514 N.Y.S.2d 763, 1987 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 45465 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1987).

High school principal was properly allowed to serve amended notice of claim, providing greater specificity of his claims against board of education sounding in defamation, intentional infliction of emotional distress, and prima facie tort, since board was not prejudiced where claims involved statements which board had allegedly published, and of which it therefore had knowledge, and board had also had ability to investigate circumstances. Sullivan v Board of Education, 131 A.D.2d 836, 517 N.Y.S.2d 197, 1987 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 48280 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1987).

Pedestrian's motion to amend her notice of claim against city was properly denied, even though her timely notice was in error in designating intersecting streets nearest to defect within municipal parking lot, where 16 months passed between accident and motion to amend, and pedestrian made no effort to show that condition of defect remained unchanged; because of their transitory nature, claims of sidewalk defects must be set forth with greater specificity than cases involving defects that do not change over time. Fendig v New York, 132 A.D.2d 520, 517 N.Y.S.2d 536, 1987 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 49050 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1987).

Court properly denied plaintiffs' motion to amend their notice of claim where notice failed to set forth time, place and manner in which claim arose, and plaintiffs subsequently attempted, approximately 4 years later, on eve of trial, to amend notice of claim and pleadings to change location of alleged accident and to allege new theory of recovery not referred to either directly to indirectly in original notice of claim. Soto v New York, 161 A.D.2d 246, 554 N.Y.S.2d 893, 1990 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5055 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1990).

Court properly denied plaintiff's motion to amend his notice of claim, which would indicate that bus with which he collided was moving, and not standing still as he had previously claimed in his bill of particulars, deposition, and comptroller's hearing testimony; proposed amendment was particularly prejudicial because discovery had been completed and plaintiff's prior version was consistent with that of bus driver. Montgomery v Manhattan & Bronx Surface Transit Operating Auth., 254 A.D.2d 114, 678 N.Y.S.2d 626, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10857 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1998).

In action against New York City Health and Hospitals Corporation (NYCHHC), it was improper to deny plaintiff's motion to amend her notice of claim to correct name of hospital where claim arose where both hospitals in question were run by NYCHHC, which had access to their patient records, NYCHHC was timely apprised of relevant facts at CLS Gen Mun § 50-h hearing, and plaintiff had always clearly presented nature of her client, dates of treatment, and sequence of events. Lomax v New York City Health & Hosps. Corp., 262 A.D.2d 2, 690 N.Y.S.2d 548, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6154 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1999).

CLS Gen Mun § 50-e(6) does not permit amendments to notice of claim that are substantive in nature. Zwecker v Clinch, 279 A.D.2d 572, 720 N.Y.S.2d 150, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 565 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2001).

In an action for damages for injuries and for wrongful death, timely notice of claim for damages filed against the city may be amended to show that death later resulted from accident. O'Lear v Yonkers, 73 N.Y.S.2d 550, 189 Misc. 115, 1947 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3068 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1947).

349. —Amendment involving cause

On the basis that leave to serve an amended bill of particulars should be freely granted, the mere lapse of time was not a sufficient ground to deny a motion to amend a notice of claim which sought to allege more specifically an act of negligence and did not introduce a new and different cause of action which would prejudice the defendant. Yerdon v Baldwinsville Academy, 39 A.D.2d 824, 333 N.Y.S.2d 101, 1972 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4497 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1972).

In a personal injury action against a city to recover for injuries sustained in a fall on a city sidewalk, the trial court improperly denied claimant's motion for permission to serve an amended notice of claim more specifically detailing the place and cause of the fall, even though the original notice of claim lacked sufficient specificity, where the original claim was apparently not in any way calculated to mislead the city, where claimant's testimony at a preliminary hearing did set forth the location of the accident with sufficient specificity to afford the city the opportunity to make a proper investigation, particularly in view of the fact that the alleged cause of the accident was snow and ice rather than a defect in the sidewalk, and where the city failed to demonstrate actual prejudice, even though it argued that lack of knowledge of the cause of the accident prevented it from interviewing witnesses before their memories faded, in that the city failed to show what investigation, if any, was undertaken. Cruz v New York, 95 A.D.2d 790, 463 N.Y.S.2d 851, 1983 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 18710 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1983).

In action to recover damages for personal injuries sustained as result of allegedly defective condition in street, amendment of defective notice of claim will be denied where original notice was insufficient with respect to setting forth place and manner in which claim arose, thereby prejudicing city by depriving it of opportunity to conduct prompt and adequate investigation. Mazza v New York, 112 A.D.2d 921, 492 N.Y.S.2d 438, 1985 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 52134 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1985).

Court improvidently exercised its discretion in allowing infant to serve amended notice of claim for injuries sustained in sledding accident in county park where original, rejected notice of claim did not specify where in park alleged collision with concrete bench occurred, or how it occurred, and infant did not elaborate on details of accident until complaint was filed more than 4 years later, which prejudiced county in its ability to investigate claim. Anselmo v County of Nassau, 192 A.D.2d 567, 596 N.Y.S.2d 128, 1993 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3616 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't), app. denied, 82 N.Y.2d 659, 605 N.Y.S.2d 5, 625 N.E.2d 590, 1993 N.Y. LEXIS 4238 (N.Y. 1993).

Court should have denied leave to file amended notice of claim against housing authority, and claim itself should have been dismissed, where original notice given to housing authority employee failed to specify correct cause and location of accident, and plaintiff's 2 ½ -year delay in seeking to correct deficiencies resulted in prejudice to housing authority; whatever actual notice codefendant city acquired at CLS Gen Mun § 50-h hearing could not be imputed to housing authority, which was distinct entity not united in interest. Torres v New York City Hous. Auth., 261 A.D.2d 273, 690 N.Y.S.2d 257, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5499 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't), app. denied, 93 N.Y.2d 816, 697 N.Y.S.2d 563, 719 N.E.2d 924, 1999 N.Y. LEXIS 2791 (N.Y. 1999).

Plaintiff was properly allowed to amend notice of claim concerning cause of her fall, although original notice alleged only snow and ice, where her testimony at CLS Gen Mun § 50-h hearing held within 2 months of service of notice of claim and less than 5 months after accident gave defendants timely notice of her present claim that large hole in sidewalk, concealed from view because covered over by snow and ice, contributed to her fall. Cruz v New York City Hous. Auth., 261 A.D.2d 296, 691 N.Y.S.2d 397, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5770 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1999).

Court properly denied plaintiff's motion for leave to serve amended notice of claim where original notice of claim failed to include sufficient description of accident site and manner in which claim arose, and there was unexplained delay of 3 years in seeking leave to amend, which prejudiced defendant by preventing it from conducting proper investigation while facts were still fresh. Adrian v Town of Oyster Bay, 262 A.D.2d 433, 692 N.Y.S.2d 140, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6630 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1999).

The trial court properly permitted the injured party to amend the notice of claim against the city under N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(6); the injured party's notice of claim was made in good faith, and the city failed to establish that it was prejudiced by the allegedly defective notice of claim, as it could have located the injury-causing condition with a modicum of effort. Seraita v City of Yonkers, 292 A.D.2d 456, 740 N.Y.S.2d 72, 2002 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2499 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2002).

In an action to recover damages for personal injuries, pursuant to N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(6) it was within the court's discretion to grant an application for leave to serve an amended notice of claim; there was no allegation that an error in the notice of claim was made in bad faith. Additionally, at the N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-h hearing conducted about $3^1/_3$ months after the incident, plaintiff testified in detail about the manner in which the incident occurred, and the proposed notice of claim did not substantially alter plaintiff's theories of liability. Oschepkova v New York City Tr. Auth., 24 A.D.3d 523, 808 N.Y.S.2d 271, 2005 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 14087 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2005).

It was error to deny a mother's motion for leave to amend her notice of claim, complaint, and bill of particulars in an action arising from the alleged rape of her special needs daughter at a high school, as the daughter's fears and delays in cognitive and social functioning provided a good faith basis for the amendment. Doe v Rochester City School Dist., 137 A.D.3d 1761, 28 N.Y.S.3d 175, 2016 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2259 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 2016).

350. —Amendment involving location; amendment granted

In negligence action, plaintiffs should have been permitted to amend their notice of claim against county to include correct accident site and allegation of county's negligence in ownership and maintenance of rock garden on edge of roadway at scene of accident where plaintiffs' original mistake in notice of claim was based on their reliance on erroneous police report, but description in notice of claim nevertheless enabled county to locate actual accident site and to take pictures of site, county had knowledge of appearance of area and of terrain and location of alleged rock garden, and thus requested amendment would not prejudice county. Schepper v County of Orange, 121 A.D.2d 638, 504 N.Y.S.2d 41, 1986 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 58622 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1986).

In action to recover for injuries to infant plaintiff who was bitten by pit bull dog at city housing project, plaintiffs were properly allowed to amend their timely notice of claim against housing authority to reflect correct address of incident, since mistake in initial notice was made in good faith, housing authority was not prejudiced by mistake, and housing authority received notice of correct address in sufficient time to conduct adequate investigation. Capo v New York, 166 A.D.2d 201, 564 N.Y.S.2d 84, 1990 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11622 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1990).

Personal injury plaintiff was entitled to amend notice of claim against New York City Housing Authority where plaintiff fell on authority's property on October 28, 1989, her notice of claim was served on December 13, 1989, it described street address and manner in which accident occurred but misstated county in which property was located, plaintiff moved for and was granted leave to amend on February 28, 1990, five days after CLS Gen Mun § 50-h hearing, and action was commenced on December 4, 1990; although plaintiff should have commenced special proceeding to acquire personal jurisdiction over authority as provided by CLS Gen Mun § 50-e(6), court was justified in granting leave to amend since error was in good faith and did not prejudice authority. Rodriguez v New York, 179 A.D.2d 560, 579 N.Y.S.2d 57, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 745 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1992).

Plaintiff, who served timely notice of claim stating that accident occurred at "888 Park Avenue, New York, New York," was properly granted leave to amend notice to state that location of accident was "888 Park Avenue, Brooklyn, New York," which was one of defendant's facilities; while notice in question could have been more specific had correct borough been designated, defendant could have determined correct location with modicum of effort. Lord v New York City Housing Authority, 184 A.D.2d 406, 585 N.Y.S.2d 49, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8533 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1992).

In action for injuries sustained when motorcycle ridden by plaintiff was struck by bus while bus attempted to avoid water spray from fire hydrant, plaintiff would be permitted to amend notice of claim so as to place accident at 149th Street and Timpson Place, rather than 149th Street and Tinton Avenue, notwithstanding contention of city that it was prejudiced in its efforts to investigate allegedly leaking or defective hydrant, since (1) in regard to transitory incident, actual prejudice is not caused by passage of time after accident, and (2) 5 witnesses were listed in police accident report, including bus driver who allegedly stated that fire hydrant was open. Torres v City of N.Y., 190 A.D.2d 601, 593 N.Y.S.2d 804, 1993 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1566 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1993).

Plaintiff should have been granted leave to file amended notice of claim where (1) initial notice of claim misdescribed vehicle accident scene by one block, (2) mistake went unnoticed until 53 days after expiration of statutory notice of claim period, when plaintiff testified as to correct state of facts at CLS Gen Mun § 50-h hearing, and (3) city was not prejudiced, in that it had correct information before completing investigation into allegedly malfunctioning traffic signal. Seise v City of New York, 212 A.D.2d 467, 622 N.Y.S.2d 941, 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2126 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1995).

Plaintiff was entitled to amend notice of claim to reflect correct site of accident where her original notice of claim misdescribed place of accident's occurrence as "the sidewalk between 255 Willis Avenue and 175-177 Willis Avenue, Bronx, New York, directly west from the southeast corner of Willis Avenue and East 137th Street, Bronx, New York," and accident actually occurred between 255 Willis Avenue and 175-177 Willis Avenue; essence of description of accident site was statement that it was directly west of southeast corner of Willis Avenue and 137th Street, not that it was between 2 addresses, which, in fact, were over 2 blocks apart. Ortiz v New York City Hous. Auth., 214 A.D.2d 491, 625 N.Y.S.2d 541, 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4620 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1995).

Court properly granted plaintiff's motion to amend her notice of claim and complaint to correct inadvertent transposition of digits of address in question where she had specified cross streets, supplied photographs of scene, described area, which included housing project, and otherwise identified correct location. Singer v City of New York, 226 A.D.2d 325, 642 N.Y.S.2d 227, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4651 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1996).

Court should have allowed plaintiff to amend his notice of claim and complaint to correct address of parking garage, even though plaintiff's motion was made more than 2 years after accident and filing of notice of claim, where address was not posted on parking garage, there was no parking garage located at address given in notice of claim, and there was no showing of prejudice on part of city, which had actual knowledge of correct address and scene of accident. Perez v City of New York, 228 A.D.2d 164, 644 N.Y.S.2d 170, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6274 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1996), reh'g denied, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9601 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't).

Court improperly denied petitioner's application for leave to serve amended notice of claim to correct erroneous address where there was no allegation of bad faith on part of petitioner, photographs of accident scene which were served with original notice of claim and attached thereto sufficiently identified correct accident location, and city received notice of correct address at second CLS Gen Mun § 50-h hearing held about 5 months after accident and during which city was told that photographs of accident site had been taken shortly after accident and were available. Santarpia v City of New York, 231 A.D.2d 726, 647 N.Y.S.2d 861, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9681 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1996).

Leave for plaintiff to serve amended notice of claim against city should have been granted where error in address of accident site was clearly made in good faith, plaintiff gave exact location of accident with measurements although not required to do so, plaintiff also provided photograph of scene, inclusion of reference to street address was superfluous, and inclusion of incorrect address did not prejudice city; although city claimed that it was so misled that it sent investigator to wrong site, no affidavit from investigator who visited site was included in record, and investigator sent to site could have ascertained exact location of alleged sidewalk defect with modicum of effort from exact measurements given, because actual site was close to incorrect address. Kaminsky v City of New York, 238 A.D.2d 380, 656 N.Y.S.2d 324, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3820 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1997).

Plaintiff was properly permitted to amend notice of claim to correct mistake in description of accident site where amendment was corrected only 5 months after original notice of claim, mistake was inadvertent and not in bad faith, there was no evidence of prejudice to defendant, and belated investigation of accident site could be made because alleged defect was permanent rather than transitory in nature. Cavanagh v Monticello Cent. Sch. Dist., 241 A.D.2d 654, 660 N.Y.S.2d 88, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7354 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1997).

351. —Amendment involving location; amendment denied

Plaintiff was not entitled to serve amended notice of claim and amended verified complaint in action against city to recover for personal injuries where original notice of claim alleged that plaintiff tripped over upraised tree trunk in named park, but incident actually occurred some distance away in different park, since (1) notice of claim was patently inadequate with respect to setting forth place where claim arose and defendant was clearly prejudiced because mistake in notice made it impossible to locate alleged defect and to conduct investigation, (2) even if notice had identified correct park, it would have been difficult or impossible to locate alleged defect because no location or description was provided, and (3) prejudice was not dissipated by fact that plaintiff provided correct location more than 14 months after incident. Eagle v Yonkers, 143 A.D.2d 626, 532 N.Y.S.2d 887, 1988 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9522 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1988).

Plaintiff was not entitled to leave to amend notice of claim in pedestrian sidewalk fall action, and thus complaint was properly dismissed, where notice of claim described accident site as Broadway and West 182nd Street, although accident occurred at Broadway and West 162nd Street, since city was prejudiced by mistake in notice of claim where it conducted prompt investigation, but at wrong site; prejudice was neither eliminated nor cured by photographs submitted by plaintiff in order to show unchanged condition of defect. Alvarez v New York, 155 A.D.2d 373, 548 N.Y.S.2d 5, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 14564 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1989).

It was error to permit petitioner to file amended notice of claim under CLS Gen Mun § 50-e(6) to change location of accident from northeast corner of Seventh Avenue and West 18th Street to northwest corner of same intersection, and city was therefore entitled to summary judgment, since city was seriously prejudiced in that it was misled by erroneous notice of claim to investigate wrong site; fact that sidewalk defect on northwest corner of intersection was described in map previously filed with city by Big Apple Pothole & Sidewalk Protection Corporation did not alleviate prejudice to city or fulfill purpose of accurate notice of claim. Adlowitz v City of New York, 205 A.D.2d 369, 613 N.Y.S.2d 174, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6278 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1994).

Neither plaintiff's testimony 7 months after accident at CLS Gen Mun § 50-h hearing in which she placed accident site "on a sidewalk, sort of an exit from one of the projects...on 28th Street," nor her amended notice of claim proffered 2 weeks later, depicting accident as occurring on sidewalk alongside parking lot "located on the side of 2925 West 27th Street," served to dissipate prejudice to housing authority in its attempt to conduct timely and meaningful investigation; thus, it was proper to deny plaintiff's petition to deem her amended notice of claim timely served. Valle v New York City Hous. Auth., 224 A.D.2d 433, 637 N.Y.S.2d 757, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 878 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1996).

Complaint was properly dismissed for defective notice of claim, and plaintiff's application to amend notice was properly denied, where plaintiff first reported that he slipped on ice on sidewalk outside of Science Building of defendant college, he later testified at hearing under CLS Gen Mun § 50-h that accident occurred 25 feet from entrance to Science Building, complaint and bill of particulars did not provide any additional information as to location of accident, plaintiff's deposition testimony over 3 years after accident informed defendants that he actually fell near entrance to Health Science Building, which was located about 100 feet from Science Building, and subject walkway had been renovated in interim. Flanagan v County of Westchester, 238 A.D.2d 468, 657 N.Y.S.2d 59, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4089 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1997).

Court improperly granted plaintiff's motion for leave to serve amended notice of claim indicating different accident site, even though mistake in original notice of claim was made in good faith, since defendant city was prejudiced in its ability to conduct prompt investigation of site of accident. Austin v City of Yonkers, 243 A.D.2d 597, 663 N.Y.S.2d 270, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10208 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1997).

Court properly denied plaintiffs' motion to amend their notice of claim and complaint to reflect proper location of public school in which infant plaintiff was assaulted where defect in original notice caused defendants to conduct investigation at wrong site, plaintiffs' claims of difficulty with English and confusion over number of school did not excuse their failure to move to amend their notice of claim more expeditiously, particular since their counsel had notice that infant plaintiff may not have attended school designated in original notice of claim as site of assault, and defendants did not, notwithstanding defective notice of claim, have actual knowledge of event complained of within reasonable time. Nieves v City of New York, 262 A.D.2d 32, 690 N.Y.S.2d 591, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6166 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1999).

352. — —Delay involving incorrect location

In negligence action against city, court erred by allowing plaintiff to amend her notice of claim to correct error as to location of allegedly defective sidewalk more than 7 months after claim arose since failure to specify correct location in original notice prevented city from conducting prompt investigation; plaintiff's assertion that she visited site 7 months after incident and found alleged defect unchanged would not enable city to conduct meaningful investigation. Martire v New York, 129 A.D.2d 567, 514 N.Y.S.2d 63, 1987 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 45233 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't), app. denied, 70 N.Y.2d 609, 522 N.Y.S.2d 109, 516 N.E.2d 1222, 1987 N.Y. LEXIS 19310 (N.Y. 1987).

In negligence action against city, court erred in permitting plaintiff to amend notice of claim to correct error as to location of allegedly defective sidewalk more than 9 months after claim arose since error in original notice, which placed accident site several miles away from sidewalk in question, prevented city from assessing merits of claim; plaintiff's assertion that he visited site 13 months after incident and found alleged defect unchanged did not enable city to conduct meaningful investigation. Malla v New York, 129 A.D.2d 580, 514 N.Y.S.2d 64, 1987 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 45249 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't), app. dismissed, 70 N.Y.2d 796, 522 N.Y.S.2d 112, 516 N.E.2d 1225, 1987 N.Y. LEXIS 19363 (N.Y. 1987).

Court did not abuse its discretion in denying plaintiff's motion for leave to amend her notice of claim nunc pro tunc 22 months after original notice was filed, and in granting city's motion for summary judgment, where plaintiff originally claimed that accident occurred while she was walking on west side of street but later indicated that it occurred on east side of street; defect in plaintiff's original notice deprived city of opportunity to conduct prompt and adequate investigation. Bacchus v New York, 134 A.D.2d 393, 521 N.Y.S.2d 27, 1987 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 50585 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1987).

Court properly denied plaintiff's motion to serve amended notice of claim to correct mistake as to location of alleged accident where there was indication that plaintiff had acted in bad faith in providing accurate information as to nature of claim and had not given reasonable explanation as to why it took over 5 years from time of alleged accident and over 2 years since discrepancy was indicated to seek to correct mistake as to location. Castro v New York, 139 A.D.2d 687, 527 N.Y.S.2d 441, 1988 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4458 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1988).

In action to recover for personal injuries allegedly sustained due to defect in city sidewalk, court properly exercised its discretion in declining to grant plaintiff leave to amend her original notice of claim which had misidentified street adjacent to which alleged defect was located since (1) misdescription of location, coupled with 11-month delay prior to application for leave to amend, prejudiced city by depriving it of opportunity to conduct prompt investigation, (2) fact that plaintiff ultimately supplied correct location did not mitigate extent of prejudice sustained by city, and (3) representation by plaintiff that recent inspection of accident site showed it to be in same condition provided no substitute for timely notice to which city was entitled. Serrano v New York, 143 A.D.2d 652, 533 N.Y.S.2d 9, 1988 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9512 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1988).

Court properly denied plaintiff's motion to amend her notice of claim to correct mistake as to address of site where accident occurred since approximate 2-year delay in moving to amend notice of claim deprived city of opportunity to conduct meaningful investigation, as evidenced by fact that city investigator examined and photographed incorrect site promptly after accident; mere filing of police officer's aided report and accident report did not provide sufficient basis for imputing knowledge of correct accident site to city. 147 A.D.2d 449, 537 N.Y.S.2d 299.

Court properly denied application to amend notice of claim against city to reflect correct location of accident where claimant did not move to amend notice of claim until 6 months after it was filed, during which time city had conducted investigation of claim based on original description of accident site. Valdez v Yonkers, 154 A.D.2d 382, 545 N.Y.S.2d 771, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12248 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1989).

Plaintiff was not entitled to leave to file amended notice of claim against New York City Transit Authority in action for personal injuries due to allegedly defective condition of street where original notice of claim named wrong street, and proof submitted by authority showed that delay in identifying actual location of accident deprived it of adequate opportunity to investigate claim. Williams v New York, 156 A.D.2d 361, 548 N.Y.S.2d 317, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 15407 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1989).

In action against New York City Transit Authority to recover for injuries sustained in fall on subway staircase, court properly denied plaintiff's motion for leave to file amended notice of claim where original notice misidentified staircase; prejudice to authority was not eliminated by plaintiff's production of color photographs purporting to show true accident site on eve of trial 5 years after accident. Merino v New York City Transit Authority, 184 A.D.2d 441, 585 N.Y.S.2d 404, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8545 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1992).

Court properly denied plaintiff's motion for leave to amend notice of claim against city housing authority so as to insert correct address of building at which alleged slip and fall occurred where it was approximately 9 months after alleged accident that plaintiff testified at hearing that location identified in notice of claim was wrong, whereupon he served verified complaint with correct address, and nearly 3 years passed before plaintiff moved to amend admittedly defective notice of claim; under circumstances, defect in notice of claim prevented housing authority from opportunity to make prompt investigation. Barno v New York City Housing Authority, 185 A.D.2d 292, 586 N.Y.S.2d 291, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9062 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1992).

Court properly denied plaintiffs' application to amend their notice of claim to correct information regarding location of accident since more than one year had passed after they served original notice of claim; under circumstances, such delay prejudiced city by depriving it of opportunity to timely and effectively investigate circumstances of accident. Simms v City of New York, 207 A.D.2d 480, 616 N.Y.S.2d 239, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8431 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1994).

Court properly denied plaintiff's motion to amend her notice of claim, made over 3 years after accident, where defendant had already conducted and completed investigation at incorrect site set forth in notice of claim. Centeno v City of New York, 224 A.D.2d 268, 637 N.Y.S.2d 415, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1046 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't), app. denied, 88 N.Y.2d 804, 646 N.Y.S.2d 984, 670 N.E.2d 225, 1996 N.Y. LEXIS 1647 (N.Y. 1996).

It was abuse of discretion to allow plaintiff to amend her notice of claim against New York City Housing Authority where Authority was misled by erroneous notice of claim to conduct investigation at wrong situs, plaintiff first rectified error at her CLS Gen Mun § 50-h hearing some 11 months after accident, wrong address reappeared thereafter in plaintiff's summons and complaint, and it was not until more than 3 years had elapsed, and Authority had moved to dismiss action, did plaintiff attempt to formally correct mistake by cross-moving to amend her notice of claim. Taylor v New York City Hous. Auth., 248 A.D.2d 376, 669 N.Y.S.2d 647, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2187 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1998).

Leave to amend notice of claim was properly denied where city defendant did not learn of correct location of accident site until 10 months after accident when petitioner testified at hearing under CLS Gen Mun § 50-h. Prevete v City of New York, 272 A.D.2d 333, 707 N.Y.S.2d 192, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4846 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2000).

Where plaintiff pedestrian's notice of claim against defendant city in a personal injury suit incorrectly specified the location where the pedestrian allegedly tripped and fell over broken asphalt, and the correct location also was not made apparent either in the pedestrian's testimony at a N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-h hearing, or in the pedestrian's complaint and bill of particulars, the trial court properly denied the pedestrian's motion to amend the notice of claim pursuant to N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(6) and the complaint to correct the erroneous description, as the motion was made nearly three years after the accident and after the pedestrian's filing of a note of issue, and the error and the delay in correcting it prejudiced the city's ability to conduct a prompt investigation. Rivera v City of New York, 303 A.D.2d 318, 757 N.Y.S.2d 273, 2003 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3259 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2003).

353. — —Delay involving insufficient location

It was not an abuse of discretion for Special Term to have denied plaintiffs' motion to amend the notice of its claim and to have granted defendant city's cross-motion to dismiss the complaint on the grounds that the notice of claim failed to describe the accident location with sufficient particularity to enable defendant to conduct the proper investigation of the site and otherwise assess the merits of plaintiffs' claim where, although plaintiffs argued that the specific defect in description was negligible, and that the description was later clarified in a verified bill of particulars, in light of the significant delay in adequately particularizing the accident site and discrepancies included in its description, defendant would be prejudiced in allowing the amendment to the notice of claim. Faubert v New York, 90 A.D.2d 509, 455 N.Y.S.2d 24, 1982 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 18550 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1982).

It was proper to grant city's motion to dismiss complaint and to deny plaintiffs' motion to amend notice of claim where plaintiffs failed to describe location of alleged accident with sufficient particularity until almost 14 months after accident; such delay deprived city of its right to meaningful and adequate opportunity to investigate accident and to evaluate merits of claim at time when evidence and information with respect thereto remained readily available. Blank v New York, 137 A.D.2d 577, 524 N.Y.S.2d 468, 1988 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 978 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1988).

It was proper to deny plaintiff's motion to amend notice of claim, which failed to specify precise location of accident, where defendant first learned, at hearing held 5 months after accident, that accident allegedly occurred near rear exit door of building, and alleged defect involving debris and liquid in building lobby was transitory in nature. De Los Santos v New York City Hous. Auth., 214 A.D.2d 532, 625 N.Y.S.2d 80, 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3514 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't), app. denied, 86 N.Y.2d 702, 631 N.Y.S.2d 606, 655 N.E.2d 703, 1995 N.Y. LEXIS 2600 (N.Y. 1995).

Motion for leave to amend notice of claim against city was properly denied, and personal injury complaint was properly dismissed, where initial notice of claim and response to supplemental claim form described accident site only as "Rockaway Turnpike near Kennedy Airport," and plaintiffs' more than 2-year delay in seeking to file amended notice of claim prejudiced city by preventing it from conducting investigation while facts were still recent. Patellaro v City of New York, 253 A.D.2d 456, 675 N.Y.S.2d 319, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8838 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1998).

Where defendant city was prejudiced by a confusing description in plaintiff injured party's notice of claim regarding the location where the injured party was injured in an accident, and the injured party waited several months to seek leave to amend the notice of claim, the trial court did not abuse its discretion by denying the injured party's motion for leave to amend the notice of claim under N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(6). Chechelnitskaya v City of New York, 293 A.D.2d 700, 741 N.Y.S.2d 123, 2002 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4133 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2002).

354. —Date or time of accident

An application for permission to amend a notice of claim setting forth the date of the accident as 30 days prior to that stated in the original claim was denied, where the amendment would set forth a date more than 90 days prior to the filing of the claim and the failure to serve the notice of claim within the 90-day period was not by reason of the fact that the claimant was mentally or physically incapacitated but was due rather to inadvertence on his part and the fact that his attorney was misinformed as to the date of the accident. Sandifer v New York, 30 A.D.2d 979, 295 N.Y.S.2d 25, 1968 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3071 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1968).

Where property owners' complaint alleging that town and county were major contributors to flooded conditions on their property and seeking injunction and damages failed to allege that service of notice of claim was within 90 days of flooded condition on their property, but only alleged that notice of claim was served within 90 days of date on which they discovered that county was source of discharge of water on their property, complaint failed to make necessary allegation and would be dismissed with leave to replead. Doran v Cheektowaga, 54 A.D.2d 178, 388 N.Y.S.2d 385, 1976 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13748 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1976).

In an action for damages for false imprisonment, plaintiff was improperly denied leave to serve an amended notice of claim pursuant to Gen Mun Law § 50-e stting forth the specific locations of the initial arrest and the institutions in which plaintiff was incarcerated, when the timely original notice of claim omitted the place or places where the claims arose as required by the statute. Jackson v Police Dep't of New York, 86 A.D.2d 860, 447 N.Y.S.2d 320, 1982 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 15491 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1982).

In personal injury action against public authority, plaintiffs were entitled to serve amended notice of claim to list correct date of accident since defendant did not claim that plaintiffs' error was in bad faith and did not demonstrate prejudice; although defendant claimed that its investigative efforts were hampered by incorrect date, apparently no investigation was ever attempted. Tucker v Long Island R. Co., 128 A.D.2d 517, 512 N.Y.S.2d 450, 1987 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 44210 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1987).

Court properly denied motion for leave to amend notice of claim where petitioner's first notice of claim was defective because it failed to state time of accident and was not properly verified, second notice again failed to state time of accident and indicated different date of accident than did first notice, and on numerous occasions petitioner or her attorney failed to appear for scheduled hearing pursuant to CLS Gen Mun § 50(h). Brown v New York City Housing Authority, 186 A.D.2d 650, 589 N.Y.S.2d 781, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11236 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1992).

Court properly denied plaintiffs' motion for leave to amend and correct their notice of claim and complaint so as to correct date on which plaintiff allegedly slipped and fell due to dangerous and hazardous condition, since (1) there were several substantive discrepancies as to date and location of accident, (2) there was lack of specificity as to accident site, and (3) motion was made more than 2 years after accident. Mercado v City of New York, 208 A.D.2d 910, 617 N.Y.S.2d 876, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10699 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1994).

Plaintiff's motion to amend notice of claim against New York City Transit Authority, made more than 6 years after accident, was properly denied where erroneous accident date supplied not only in notice of claim but also at CLS Gen Mun § 50-h hearing, in bill of particulars, and at examination before trial prejudiced Authority's investigation by preventing it from obtaining aided report until one of its attorneys, preparing for trial, surmised correct date from plaintiff's medical reports, and aided report indicated accident location different from that specified in notice of claim. Siino v New York City Transit Auth., 248 A.D.2d 244, 671 N.Y.S.2d 216, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2562 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1998).

Leave to file amended notice of claim against city to change date of plaintiff's alleged injuries should have been denied where he had initially failed to act when advised that his notice of claim was untimely, he repeated incorrect date in subsequent pleadings, he failed to explain how mistake occurred, he delayed more than 4 ½ years in seeking to correct date, and amendment would prejudice city. Torres v City of New York, 260 A.D.2d 368, 687 N.Y.S.2d 705, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3558 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't), app. denied, 93 N.Y.2d 815, 697 N.Y.S.2d 562, 719 N.E.2d 923, 1999 N.Y. LEXIS 2144 (N.Y. 1999).

Granting of amendment to notice of claim to change date of plaintiff's alleged injuries would frustrate purpose of notice of claim requirement—to provide city opportunity to conduct prompt investigation—since revival of 4 ½ -year-old claim would force city to conduct belated investigation, hampered by changed condition of alleged sidewalk defect and limited availability and recollection of witnesses. Torres v City of New York, 260 A.D.2d 368, 687 N.Y.S.2d 705, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3558 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't), app. denied, 93 N.Y.2d 815, 697 N.Y.S.2d 562, 719 N.E.2d 923, 1999 N.Y. LEXIS 2144 (N.Y. 1999).

Court improperly denied plaintiff's motion for leave to amend notice of claim and complaint to reflect correct date of accident where defendant, with police incident report and plaintiff's hospital records identified and presumably at hand, was unable to show how it had been prejudiced by inaccurate date that was left uncorrected for additional 7 months after evidentiary hearing in which parties agreed that pleadings, bill of particulars, and notice of claim would be amended to reflect correct date. Fabian v New York City Transit Auth., 271 A.D.2d 244, 707 N.Y.S.2d 36, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3881 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2000).

Dismissal of a pedestrian's personal injury claim against a county and a village was proper because, although the pedestrian's original notices of claim were timely as measured from the actual accident date, they were untimely as measured from the incorrect accident date as stated in the original notices, and, although the pedestrian later sent amended notices, she failed to seek leave of court to amend as required by N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(6). Elliot v County of Nassau, 53 A.D.3d 561, 862 N.Y.S.2d 90, 2008 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6132 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2008).

An application by the father of an infant claimant, to amend a notice of claim against the city, as to the father's cause of action, after the statutory period is run, to allege the happening of the accident two days later than stated in the claim, will be denied, although a similar application by the infant is granted, where no reason appears other than that the mistake was an error, and lack of prejudice to the city is not shown, with leave however to renew the application on proper papers showing the reason and the absence of prejudice if granted. Feldman v New York, 79 N.Y.S.2d 284, 192 Misc. 136, 1948 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2394 (N.Y. City Ct. 1948).

An application by an infant for leave to amend his notice of claim against the city to change the date of the accident alleged, by two days, may be allowed, though not made within the statutory period for amendments, and though no facts are produced or alleged showing the reason for the original error, or lack of prejudice to the city if the application is granted, because a denial of the application would be without prejudice to the commencement of a new action, and consequently the fact that the infant's guardian made a mistake in the date of the accident is sufficient ground for allowing the amendment as to the infant. Feldman v New York, 79 N.Y.S.2d 284, 192 Misc. 136, 1948 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2394 (N.Y. City Ct. 1948).

Amendment of notices of claim to correct good faith omissions or defects should be liberally allowed even as to matters of substance, provided there has been no prejudice to the municipality. Father of six-year-old infant was permitted to amend a letter which constituted his notice of claim to add a verification and to state time of accident and the basis of claim against a school district where the letter was delivered personally to the trustees of a school district sixty-six days after an accident. Baxter v Turner, 111 N.Y.S.2d 10, 1952 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2473 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1952).

Where the plaintiff served a notice of claim on the city within the statutory period, and the notice contained the precise hour, but not the date, of the accident and the precise location except the street address of the building, such omissions were inadvertent, and where the city had twice during the statutory period communicated with the claimant and would not be prejudiced, a motion to amend, made within six days after notification of the defect, was permissible. Application of Spaet, 145 N.Y.S.2d 227, 1955 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3309 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1955).

355. Defect in manner or time of service of notice

No provision of law authorizes a court to permit a claimant to correct a defect in manner or time of service of notice of claim after expiration of the 90-day period. Application of Daly, 19 A.D.2d 691, 241 N.Y.S.2d 732, 1963 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3512 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1963), aff'd, 14 N.Y.2d 574, 248 N.Y.S.2d 873, 198 N.E.2d 254, 1964 N.Y. LEXIS 1334 (N.Y. 1964).

356. —Defects which do not bar amendment

Where it is attempted to amend a letter sent to a village to conform to the notice of claim requirements of this section, it must be made to appear that the letter was properly served upon the person to whom a summons might be delivered or actually received by such an authorized person and that the village caused claimants to be examined in regard to their claim, that the application to amend is in good faith, and that the village will not be prejudiced by granting the motion. Horowitz v Monticello, 18 A.D.2d 947, 237 N.Y.S.2d 660, 1963 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4435 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1963).

Injured party's motion to renew the prior order dismissing the injured party's personal injury action against the New York City Housing Authority for failure to timely serve notice of claim and allowing the injured party to amend the date of the accident in the notice of claim and the complaint was properly granted, as the injured party submitted evidence that established that the dismissal was based on an incorrect date for the accident, which occurred on a later date than previously thought; although the records were previously available, the date of the accident was not at issue, N.Y. C.P.L.R. 2221(e)(3), and the Authority's investigation of the accident was not prejudiced by the delay pursuant to N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(6). Arroyo v N.Y. City Hous. Auth., 12 A.D.3d 254, 785 N.Y.S.2d 60, 2004 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13759 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2004).

357. —Defects which bar amendment

A mere letter sent to the principal office of the New York City Housing Authority by the attorney for an infant claimant, although mailed within a few days after the accident, will not suffice as a basis for an amendment on application more than one year later, where the letter did not contain the essential requirements for a statutory notice of claim. Miller v N.Y. City Hous. Auth., 7 A.D.2d 922, 183 N.Y.S.2d 518, 1959 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9964 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't), aff'd, 6 N.Y.2d 932, 190 N.Y.S.2d 1002, 161 N.E.2d 215, 1959 N.Y. LEXIS 1209 (N.Y. 1959).

The provisions of subd. 6 of this section permitting correction of mistakes or irregularities in a notice of claim which do not pertain to the manner or time of service are inapplicable in the case of an adult sustaining injuries through a fall on a stairway in a school building, notwithstanding her son made an oral report of the accident to an official of the school who wrote down the information and notified the school's insurance carrier, there having been no notice of claim made and served within 90 days as required by this section. Ayotte v Board of Education, 12 A.D.2d 562, 206 N.Y.S.2d 702, 1960 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7264 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1960).

After statute of limitations had expired on wrongful death action, plaintiff who had served wrong party as defendant, and who also failed to make proper defendant a party to her application for relief, was not entitled to order permitting her to serve and file late notice of claim, summons and complaint on proper party nunc pro tunc, nor to amend her original notice of claim, summons and complaint to substitute proper party as defendant. Washington v Brookdale Hospital, 126 A.D.2d 719, 511 N.Y.S.2d 317, 1987 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 41865 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1987).

Notice of claim may not be amended so as to add new theories of liability which are time barred at time when application for such amendment is made. Rice v New York City Housing Authority, 149 A.D.2d 495, 539 N.Y.S.2d 977, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4842 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1989).

Dismissal should have been granted to a city and the city department of transportation in a motorcyclist's personal injury action, as he failed to serve either the corporation counsel, his designee, or the city comptroller, such that he could not rely on the saving provision of N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(3)(c); such provision was limited to defects in the manner of serving the notice on the correct public entity. Khela v City of New York, 91 A.D.3d 912, 937 N.Y.S.2d 311, 2012 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 784 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2012).

Where no formal notice of claim for personal injuries was served upon a school board, the court had no power to have such notice as was mailed to the Office of the Superintendent of Schools amended into and verified as effective notice. McKiernan v Board of Education, 1 Misc. 2d 925, 149 N.Y.S.2d 923, 1956 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2039 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1956).

358. Lack of sworn verification

Failure to comply with the requirements of subd 2 as to notice in that (1) it is not sworn to, by, or on behalf of claimant, (2) it does not state the manner in which the claim arose, and (3) it does not specify the items of damage or injuries claimed to have been sustained, may in absence of prejudice to the defendant, be supplied by way of amendment pursuant to subd 6. Montana v Lynbrook, 23 A.D.2d 585, 256 N.Y.S.2d 651, 1965 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4806 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1965).

Lack of sworn verification, or a defect in the verification, of such notice of claim as was timely given, has consistently been regarded as an amendable oversight. Belardinelli v New York City Housing Authority, 67 N.Y.S.2d 94, 187 Misc. 920, 1946 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3187 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1946).

Amendment of notices of claim to correct good faith omissions or defects should be liberally allowed even as to matters of substance, provided there has been no prejudice to the municipality. Father of six-year-old infant was permitted to amend a letter which constituted his notice of claim to add a verification and to state time of accident and the basis of claim against a school district where the letter was delivered personally to the trustees of a school district sixty-six days after an accident. Baxter v Turner, 111 N.Y.S.2d 10, 1952 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2473 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1952).

359. New cause of action

Court properly denied plaintiff's motions for leave to amend notice of claim and complaint against city to assert claims against Board of Trustees of Fire Department Pension Fund where plaintiff did not include any claims against Board in his original complaint, and Statute of Limitations to interpose action against it had expired; further, conditions to be satisfied for claims against Board to relate back to claims in original complaint were not satisfied. Romanelli v City of New York, 233 A.D.2d 310, 649 N.Y.S.2d 169, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11591 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1996).

Court properly denied motion for leave to serve amended notice of claim where original claim was for wrongful death, and proposed amendment—to add claim for conscious pain and suffering—would have added new theory of liability in violation of CLS Gen Mun § 50-e(6). Johnson v County of Suffolk, 238 A.D.2d 480, 657 N.Y.S.2d 55, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4013 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1997).

Trial court improvidently exercised its discretion in granting that branch of plaintiff's motion which was for leave to file an amended notice of claim to include an assertion of negligent traffic planning and design where (1) plaintiff acknowledged that by withdrawing from the brief on appeal the language concerning negligent planning and design, the proposed amendment to the notice of claim regarding an allegation that the city negligently planned and designed the traffic control device at the subject intersection substantially altered the nature of plaintiff's claim, and (2) the new theory was time-barred, under N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(5), and not within the purview of N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(6). Hendler v City of New York, 2 A.D.3d 685, 768 N.Y.S.2d 626, 2003 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13847 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2003).

The court's authority under subd. 6 of this section is limited to correcting a formal defect, such as a mistake or omission made in good faith, and does not include power to allow an amendment which is substantive in nature and changes the theory of the claim. Oliveras v New York City Transit Authority, 27 Misc. 2d 711, 207 N.Y.S.2d 313, 1960 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2493 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1960).

When a county seized and retained a vehicle owner's car pursuant to an ordinance which was found unconstitutional, and the owner sought to amend the notice of his claim against the county to include damages for lost employment and livelihood resulting in the loss of his residence and declaraing bankruptcy, where the initial claim was limited to the loss and damage of the vehicle, the proposed amendment was not a mere correction of a mistake or irregularity, but sought the addition of damages of a fundamentally different nature, requiring substantially different evidence in support of the claim, and the amendment added new theories of recovery of which the county did not have adequate notice, so the proposed amendment was prejudicial to the county and outside the purview of N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(6). Lombardo v County of Nassau, 791 N.Y.S.2d 292, 6 Misc. 3d 836, 233 N.Y.L.J. 2, 2004 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2960 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 2004).

360. —False arrest or imprisonment or malicious prosecution

Defendant municipality, which did not plead the 90-day notice requirement contained in section 50-e of the General Municipal Law due to the fact that the only cause of action alleged in plaintiff's original complaint, malicious prosecution, was timely should have been permitted to amend its answer to assert the defense of section 50-e and the actions for negligence and false imprisonment should have been dismissed where, at the close of the evidence and after the trial court permitted plaintiff to amend her pleading to conform to the proof, it ignored defendant's request for a ruling that claims based upon negligence and false imprisonment were time barred. Boose v Rochester, 71 A.D.2d 59, 421 N.Y.S.2d 740, 1979 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13087 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1979).

City was entitled to dismissal of causes of action for false arrest, false imprisonment, malicious prosecution, violation of plaintiff's constitutional rights and negligence where (1) plaintiff sustained injuries when he was allegedly assaulted by city police in 1982, (2) in 1985, court affirmed order which permitted plaintiff to serve late notice of claim to recover for assault and battery, and (3) plaintiff subsequently served amended late notice of claim seeking to interpose additional causes of action; court would reject contention that additional causes of action could be inferred from cause of action for assault and battery. Mazzilli v New York, 154 A.D.2d 355, 545 N.Y.S.2d 833, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12281 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1989).

Motion for leave to amend notice of claim for false arrest was properly denied, although arrest to which it pertained was based on same incident underlying previous arrest, for which notice had been served, where later charges involved different facts and allegations. Zwecker v Clinch, 279 A.D.2d 572, 720 N.Y.S.2d 150, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 565 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2001).

Supreme court erred in denying a city and police officers' motion to dismiss a former arrestee's false arrest and malicious prosecution claims, because the former arrestee's N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e notice of claim was limited to allegations of assaultive conduct by the police officers and their use of excessive force, and did not include any allegations supporting the causes of action for false arrest and malicious prosecution. The former arrestee was unable to amend his notice of claim under N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(6) to include the additional causes of action because the provision did not authorize substantive changes on the theory of liability; he was also precluded from relying on his testimony at his N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-h hearing to correct deficiencies in the notice because the information supplied at the hearing amended the theory of liability and thereby changed the nature of the claim set forth in the notice. Scott v City of New York, 40 A.D.3d 408, 836 N.Y.S.2d 140, 2007 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6075 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2007).

Plaintiff was denied leave to amend his notice of claim where his amended complaint seeking damages for two causes of action based on false arrest and false imprisonment, and for a third based on malicious prosecution, had no relation to the original notice. Berger v Seneca Falls, 3 Misc. 2d 647, 151 N.Y.S.2d 133, 1956 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1915 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1956).

Where the notice of claim against the city alleged false arrest or imprisonment, such notice did not give reasonable notice of a possible claim of malicious prosecution in connection therewith, and thus the claim could not be amended after more than one year to include a cause of action for malicious prosecution as such amendment would be of a substantive nature not contemplated by the statute. Grant v Rochester, 68 Misc. 2d 358, 326 N.Y.S.2d 691, 1971 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1065 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1971).

In action by minor against city for damages for false arrest and false imprisonment, minor would be permitted, in absence of any showing of prejudice by city, to amend her timely-filed notice of claim even though, as originally filed, it lacked designation of specific causes of action. Cohen v New York, 88 Misc. 2d 1012, 389 N.Y.S.2d 994, 1976 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2795 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1976).

361. —Actions involving infants

In an action by wife to recover for personal injuries and by husband for medical expenses and loss of services, motion, for leave to serve amended notice of claim to include claim for injury to infant suffered while he was en ventre sa mere at the time the wife fell and for leave to serve supplemental summons and amended complaint setting forth cause of action for infant, denied. Facts failed to establish mistake, omissions, irregularity or defect which might be corrected under subdivision 6. In actuality application being one to serve notice of claim on behalf of an infant was unauthorized since it was made after the one-year period in subdivision 5. Speranza v New York, 7 A.D.2d 936, 183 N.Y.S.2d 785, 1959 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9878 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1959), aff'd, 11 N.Y.2d 917, 228 N.Y.S.2d 671, 183 N.E.2d 76, 1962 N.Y. LEXIS 1220 (N.Y. 1962).

The parents of a child, struck and fatally injured by a school bus, were not permitted to amend their notice of claim, in action for daughter's wrongful death, by including a claim in their own behalf for mental anguish as parents of the deceased infant, where, assuming such claim would constitute a valid cause of action, the amendment would be substantive in nature and in effect interpose a new cause of action subsequent to the time limited by statute. Dale v Half Hollow Hills School, Cent. School Dist., 37 A.D.2d 778, 325 N.Y.S.2d 267, 1971 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3403 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1971).

Although an infant was adopted after being injured, the adoptive mother had standing to assert a derivative claim for future medical expenses incurred on the child's behalf; therefore, the trial court properly granted the infant's N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(6) motion to amend notice of claim and complaint to allege the mother's derivative claim. De'Leone v City of New York, 45 A.D.3d 254, 845 N.Y.S.2d 241, 2007 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11022 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2007).

A plaintiff-father was permitted to amend a notice of tort claim, served on infant's behalf against a city, to allege father's claim for loss of services where city had prompt notice of the claim by infant "and" father. Jordan v New York, 8 Misc. 2d 995, 171 N.Y.S.2d 902, 1957 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2187 (N.Y. City Ct. 1957).

In action by minor against city for damages for false arrest and false imprisonment, minor would be permitted, in absence of any showing of prejudice by city, to amend her timely-filed notice of claim even though, as originally filed, it lacked designation of specific causes of action. Cohen v New York, 88 Misc. 2d 1012, 389 N.Y.S.2d 994, 1976 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2795 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1976).

362. —Personal injury actions

Even though the original notice of claim made specific reference to a claim of negligence in the operation of a school bus, and identified the time and place of the alleged negligence of the town, and the town acknowledged the claim and stated that it construed the claim as involving the maintenance of the highway, a motion, promptly made, to amend the notice alleging the failure of the town to fulfil its duty of properly maintaining the highway as regards the removal of snow and ice and negligently failed to remove the snow and ice and to sand and salt the surfaces of the highway, granted, it appearing that the allowance of the amendment would not substantially prejudice the town. Powell v Gates, 36 A.D.2d 220, 319 N.Y.S.2d 650, 1971 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4318 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1971).

In an action brought against New York City to recover for injuries sustained when plaintiff's automobile was struck by an automobile which was being chased by a New York City police car, the trial court erred in permitting plaintiff, two years after the accident, to add to his notice of claim a cause of action alleging that the city's negligence in allowing a pothole to exist in the street was a proximate cause of the accident, where plaintiff's original complaint had charged merely undifferentiated negligence in the operation and control of both the police car and the other automobile. McKie v New York, 79 A.D.2d 901, 434 N.Y.S.2d 239, 1981 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9763 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1981).

Plaintiffs' motion, to amend their notice of claim so as to include claims for loss of each other's services and consortium, was properly one for amendment so as to supply omission, inasmuch as it sought to add derivative causes of action predicated upon same facts which had already been included in plaintiffs' notice of claim and which defendant had already been duly and timely notified; motion should not have been treated as motion for leave to serve late notice of claim. Dodd v Warren, 110 A.D.2d 807, 488 N.Y.S.2d 70, 1985 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 48713 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1985).

Plaintiff's motion to amend notice of claim alleging negligent operation of city sanitation vehicle to add theory of negligent maintenance, management, operation and control of traffic signal should have been granted where city had actual knowledge of essential facts constituting claim, and delay in asserting new theory of liability did not substantially prejudice city in maintaining its defense on merits. Halperin v New York, 127 A.D.2d 461, 511 N.Y.S.2d 273, 1987 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 42963 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1987).

Court properly dismissed causes of action against city for malicious prosecution, libel, slander and negligent hiring, training and employment since (1) those claims were not referred to in original notice of claim but were first alleged in complaint served over 4 months after incident, (2) addition of such claims would substantially alter nature of original claims for personal injury based on assault and false arrest, and (3) complaint contained mere conclusory allegations as to those causes of action. Demorcy v New York, 137 A.D.2d 650, 524 N.Y.S.2d 742, 1988 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1779 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1988).

Court improperly granted leave to amend notices of claim against Manhattan and Bronx Surface Transit Operating Authority where proposed "slippery seat" theory (essentially claim of design defect) was not alluded to in complaint or in original notices of claim which asserted only human error and defect in steering mechanism, and it was first sought to be interposed long after one year and 90-day limitation had passed. Chipurnoi v Manhattan & Bronx Surface Transit Operating Auth., 216 A.D.2d 171, 628 N.Y.S.2d 666, 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6975 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1995).

Court properly denied plaintiffs' motion for leave to amend notices of claim previously filed against village by insurer where village only had notice of insurer's subrogation claim as to payments it made to injured plaintiff's husband for property damage as result of accident, and village was never notified, until action was commenced, of injured plaintiff's personal injury claim or of her husband's claim for loss of services. Steinberg v Village of Garden City, 247 A.D.2d 463, 668 N.Y.S.2d 674, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1007 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1998).

Granting the victim's motion for leave to amend the notice of claim nunc pro tunc was error as the victim's original notice of claim did not comply with N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(2) because it failed to identify the location of the accident with sufficient particularity to enable the town to locate the alleged defect, conduct a meaningful investigation, and assess the merits of the victim's claim; the proposed amended notice of claim alleged, for the first time, that the victim fell because of a defect in the pavement which constituted an amendment of a substantive nature which was not within the purview of § 50-e(6). Richard v Town of Oyster Bay, 300 A.D.2d 561, 752 N.Y.S.2d 537, 2002 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12758 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2002).

Where the notice of claim first filed and served by an infant charged defendant with various acts of negligence and omission in maintenance and operation of its subway platform and tracks, and a proposed amendment of such notice, after expiration of more than 90 days from the occurrence, would substitute a claim that the injuries were sustained by reason of an unprovoked assault perpetrated upon claimant by one of defendant's employees, the change was substantive, not a mere correction, and leave to amend would not be granted in the absence of showing that failure to serve such a notice within the 90-day period was "by reason of infancy." Oliveras v New York City Transit Authority, 27 Misc. 2d 711, 207 N.Y.S.2d 313, 1960 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2493 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1960).

Action against New York City Health and Hospitals Corporation, arising from incident wherein plaintiff's decedent was assaulted by recently-released nonparty psychiatric patient, sounded in medical malpractice in that underlying action vicariously related back to claim of medical negligence, where complaint alleged that patient was prematurely released and not provided with follow-up treatment. Lee v New York City Transit Auth., 175 Misc. 2d 632, 668 N.Y.S.2d 1014, 1998 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 21 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1998), modified, aff'd, 257 A.D.2d 611, 685 N.Y.S.2d 84, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 335 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1999).

In action arising from suicide death of 17-year-old pretrial detainee at county jail, court granted plaintiff's motion to amend complaint to assert wrongful death claim and for order deeming notice of wrongful death claim as having been timely filed, nunc pro tunc, under CLS Gen Mun § 50-e(5), where county acquired actual knowledge of essential facts of claim within 90 days after it arose, service was made within 2-year limitations period for wrongful death actions as tolled by CLS CPLR § 208, and county failed to demonstrate significant prejudice warranting denial of motion. Rivera v County of Westchester, 188 Misc. 2d 746, 729 N.Y.S.2d 836, 2001 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 266 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 2001).

Personal representative of diver who drowned while engaged in underwater construction work for county water authority may amend her notice of claim pursuant to NY Gen Mun Law § 50-e(6), where claim gave notice for a wrongful death claim but not for personal injury claim, because claim provided sufficient detail to put water authority on notice to investigate incident involved and claims for conscious pain and suffering and wrongful death arise out of same incident covered in notice. Gregory v Monroe County Water Authority, 795 F. Supp. 92, 1992 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 11823 (W.D.N.Y. 1992).

363. — —Substantial alteration of nature of claim

In a personal injury action, the court properly denied the plaintiff's motion to correct his notice of claim by adding to its allegations of assault and-or the use of excessive force further allegations that his damages had been the product of the defendant's negligence since such amendment would have substantially altered the nature of the plaintiff's claim by adding a new theory of liability not previously imposed. Gordon v New York, 79 A.D.2d 981, 434 N.Y.S.2d 478, 1981 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9871 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1981).

The trial court improperly permitted plaintiff to amend his claim against a municipality for wrongful death to add claims for pain and suffering and loss of consortium, where the amendment would have substantially altered the nature of plaintiff's claim by adding new theories of liability and was therefore not permissible under § 50-e(6) of the Gen Mun Law, and where under APTL 5-4.3, loss of consortium is not a "pecuniary injury" for which damages are recoverable in a wrongful death action. Monroe v Long Island College Hospital, 84 A.D.2d 576, 443 N.Y.S.2d 433, 1981 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 15668 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1981).

Plaintiff, who was present when her daughter was killed while attempting to exit stalled elevator that suddenly restarted, would not be permitted to amend notice of claim against city Housing Authority to add cause of action for negligent infliction of emotional distress since such amendment would substantially alter nature of plaintiff's original claim for wrongful death, and amendment was sought almost 5 years after occurrence of incident. Gonzalez v New York City Housing Authority, 181 A.D.2d 440, 580 N.Y.S.2d 760, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3121 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1992).

Court erred in allowing plaintiffs to amend their notice of claim to assert new theories of liability where proposed amendments substantially altered nature of claims, and new theories were time-barred and were not within purview of CLS Gen Mun § 50-e(6). Ford v Babylon Union Free Sch. Dist., 213 A.D.2d 447, 624 N.Y.S.2d 435, 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2710 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1995).

Court would grant motion to amend notice of claim alleging wrongful death action against city to include action for conscious pain and suffering, even though applicable statute of limitations had expired, where there was no allegation of bad faith by plaintiff, amendment did no substantially alter plaintiff's claim or prejudice city, and amendment was predicated on same facts contained in timely notice. Hancock v City of New York, 164 Misc. 2d 122, 623 N.Y.S.2d 63, 1994 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 640 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1994), rev'd, 230 A.D.2d 603, 645 N.Y.S.2d 797, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8015 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1996).

364. Actions involving spouse

Where a wife failed to file a claim but the husband's claim for loss of services and medical expenses arising from injuries to wife was proper in all respects, and set forth all of the information which a claim of his wife would have contained, the husband will be permitted to amend to include the claim of his wife. Application of Charlemagne, 277 A.D. 689, 102 N.Y.S.2d 661, 1951 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5663 (N.Y. App. Div.), aff'd, 302 N.Y. 871, 100 N.E.2d 52, 302 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 871, 1951 N.Y. LEXIS 985 (N.Y. 1951).

Where husband's claim against city for personal injuries was timely filed, husband's original notice of claim ordered corrected to supply the omission of his wife's claim for loss of consortium. La Pan v County of Albany, 58 Misc. 2d 657, 296 N.Y.S.2d 416, 1968 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 978 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1968).

365. —Wrongful death actions

The parents of a child, struck and fatally injured by a school bus, were not permitted to amend their notice of claim, in action for daughter's wrongful death, by including a claim in their own behalf for mental anguish as parents of the deceased infant, where, assuming such claim would constitute a valid cause of action, the amendment would be substantive in nature and in effect interpose a new cause of action subsequent to the time limited by statute. Dale v Half Hollow Hills School, Cent. School Dist., 37 A.D.2d 778, 325 N.Y.S.2d 267, 1971 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3403 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1971).

In a wrongful death action by the wife of a city police officer the wife, who had served a notice of claim on the city nearly two years before she was appointed administratrix of her husband's estate, would be permitted to file a corrected notice of claim, where the city, which had raised the affirmative defense that the claim was not properly filed by the administratrix, conceded that the notice was otherwise proper. Collins v New York, 89 A.D.2d 992, 454 N.Y.S.2d 327, 1982 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 18245 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1982).

Plaintiff was entitled to amend her notice of claim against city under CLS Gen Mun § 50-e(6) to add wrongful death cause of action where there was no allegation that her omission of her deceased husband's diagnosis date was made in bad faith, city made only general claim of prejudice, and information provided in notice of claim was sufficient to enable city to begin investigation. Perry v City of New York, 246 A.D.2d 380, 667 N.Y.S.2d 722, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 262 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1998).

While a summons and complaint were not a substitute for a notice of claim for wrongful death required by N.Y. Pub. Auth. Law §§ 1212(2) and 2980 and N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(1), § 50-e(6) permitted amendment of the claim if it would not prejudice a city transit authority, whose bus driver's negligence allegedly resulted in personal injuries and then the death of the wheelchair-bound deceden; because the wrongful death claim arose from the same facts as alleged in the timely notice of claim for personal injuries, the personal representative should have been granted leave to amend. Ramos v New York City Tr. Auth., 60 A.D.3d 517, 876 N.Y.S.2d 13, 2009 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1894 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2009).

Where a notice of claim for wrongful death was deficient by reason of omission of the claim for pain and suffering, a defense is proper but since the claim has been filed an amended notice may be filed to set forth the claim for pain and suffering of decedent. Feiler v New York, 107 N.Y.S.2d 238, 1951 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2319 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1951).

366. —Miscellaneous actions

The provision for formal corrections in the above statute obviously does not include substantive changes such as the addition of a cause of action for prima facie tort to a notice of claim stating that it is for breach of contract and abuse of process. Widger v Central School Dist., 23 A.D.2d 811, 258 N.Y.S.2d 195, 1965 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4487 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't), app. dismissed, 16 N.Y.2d 713, 261 N.Y.S.2d 907, 209 N.E.2d 561, 1965 N.Y. LEXIS 1312 (N.Y. 1965), rev'd, 18 N.Y.2d 646, 273 N.Y.S.2d 72, 219 N.E.2d 425, 1966 N.Y. LEXIS 1216 (N.Y. 1966).

The plaintiff could not rely upon General Municipal Law § 50-e, subdivision 6, in his attempt to amend his subrogee's notice of claim for property damage by adding a belated notice of claim for personal injury. La Rocco v New York, 37 A.D.2d 529, 322 N.Y.S.2d 163, 1971 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3873 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't), aff'd, 29 N.Y.2d 687, 325 N.Y.S.2d 418, 274 N.E.2d 751, 1971 N.Y. LEXIS 1053 (N.Y. 1971).

Plaintiffs' motion, to amend their notice of claim so as to include claims for loss of each other's services and consortium, was properly one for amendment so as to supply omission, inasmuch as it sought to add derivative causes of action predicated upon same facts which had already been included in plaintiffs' notice of claim and which defendant had already been duly and timely notified; motion should not have been treated as motion for leave to serve late notice of claim. Dodd v Warren, 110 A.D.2d 807, 488 N.Y.S.2d 70, 1985 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 48713 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1985).

Court properly permitted injured plaintiff to amend her notice of claim to include her husband's claims for loss of consortium and medical expenses; in absence of prejudice, it is not improvident exercise of discretion to grant leave to amend notice of claim to assert derivative claims predicated on same facts already included in notice of claim. Burgarella v City of New York, 265 A.D.2d 361, 697 N.Y.S.2d 68, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10241 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1999).

Building owner and tenant could not amend notice of claim filed against city where claim was based on negligence of city in operation of its transportation system and amended claim sought to include allegation that city negligently constructed subway entrance. Gersyl Corp. v New York, 10 Misc. 2d 88, 167 N.Y.S.2d 488, 1956 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1413 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1956), aff'd, 3 A.D.2d 941, 164 N.Y.S.2d 1019, 1957 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5305 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1957).

While the legislature has authorized the court to exercise its discretion under certain prescribed circumstances, to permit service of the notice of claim required as a condition precedent to the commencement of a court action against a public corporation within a reasonable time after the expiration of the 90-day period, or to amend such notice in order to cure a mistake, omission, irregularity or defect therein made in good faith, there is no authority to transform a notice of claim served under § 40 of the Volunteer Firemen's Benefit Law into a notice of claim grounded in tort, which is the prerequisite to the commencement of an action against a public corporation as prescribed by § 50-e of the General Municipal Law. Raynor v Westhampton Beach, 58 Misc. 2d 1082, 296 N.Y.S.2d 704, 1969 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1856 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1969).

367. Miscellaneous amendments

Trial court erred by granting the decedent's mother leave to amend the complaint to assert a derivative cause of action to recover damages for loss of services on her own behalf against the city and the port authority (PA), General Municipal Law § 50-e, because, inter alia, there were no allegations that she, individually, sustained any damages for which compensation was sought from the city or the PA, and the city and the PA were not given timely notice of the mother's derivative claim. Conn v Tutor Perini Corp., 174 A.D.3d 680, 105 N.Y.S.3d 508, 2019 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5707 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2019).

If a person is killed or dies as the result of injuries sustained, identity of the administrator of his estate has no bearing on the merits of a death claim or one for damages sustained by the decedent, hence a change in administration or an error in designation of the administrator is subject to amendment, provided there was original timely notice of the incident and basis of claim by someone in interest. Winbush v Mt. Vernon, 306 N.Y. 327, 118 N.E.2d 459, 306 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 327, 1954 N.Y. LEXIS 1029 (N.Y. 1954); Millard v New York, 115 N.Y.S.2d 152, 1952 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1632 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1952).

In an action against the City of New York wherein it appeared that a compensation insurance carrier, which had a contingent interest in plaintiff's cause of action by virtue of subds. 1 and 2 of § 29 of the Workmen's Compensation Law, had filed notice of claim and that the city had actually examined plaintiff after filing of such notice, plaintiff's motion for leave to amend her notice of claim, pursuant to subd. 6 of this section, should have been granted. Verley v New York, 11 A.D.2d 1015, 206 N.Y.S.2d 435, 1960 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7496 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1960).

Where summons and complaint were served within 90 days after an accident, and summons contained all required information, plaintiff permitted to serve an amended notice of claim and an amended complaint so as to include in the complaint plaintiff's post office address and her attorney's post office address. Quintero v Long Island Railroad, 31 A.D.2d 844, 298 N.Y.S.2d 109, 1969 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4537 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1969).

Special Term abused its discretion in denying plaintiff's motion to amend a claim, which alleged that plaintiff was harassed and struck by a police officer while defendant was endeavoring to repair his car after it broke down on the street, and which incorrectly cited the officer's name, the date and the location of the accident, where no claim was asserted that the mistakes were not made in good faith and where no prejudice resulted from the mistakes. Nouri v New York, 90 A.D.2d 745, 456 N.Y.S.2d 1, 1982 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 18937 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1982).

In action to recover for injuries sustained when police officer fell down flight of stairs while investigating incident at building owned by housing authority, officer would be granted permission to amend notice of claim so as to correct typographical error in description of site of accident since there was never any dispute as to location of accident, occurrence of accident was immediately described in witness statement reports and in police accident report, and officer was examined and treated by police department doctors. Venezian v New York, 172 A.D.2d 251, 568 N.Y.S.2d 82, 1991 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4539 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1991).

Trial court properly granted an injured person leave to amend the notice of claim and complaint in a personal injury case against a city arising from an allegedly defect in a sidewalk to state the correct location where the accident allegedly occurred where, at the hearing pursuant to N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-h, the injured person submitted photographs of the location of the accident and identified the site of the accident on one of the photographs; there was no evidence that the city suffered prejudice. Rupp v City of Port Jervis, 10 A.D.3d 391, 780 N.Y.S.2d 766, 2004 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10179 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2004).

Where a notice of claim against a municipality contains no day of the month in dating the claim, the defect is subject to correction, if it be error, under subd. 6 of this section, as the date of service of the notice, rather than its dated date, controls in case of conflict. Bernstein's Duck Farm v Brookhaven, 21 Misc. 2d 953, 71 N.Y.S.2d 311, 1947 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1955 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1947).

The court will look to the substance of the paper served and not to its label, and where a "complaint" was filed with the Transit Authority within 90 days of the accident and such complaint met all the statutory requirements of a notice or claim except that it did not set forth the plaintiff's post office address and that it was not served in duplicate, such pleading will be treated as notice of claim and plaintiff's motion for leave to serve an amended notice of claim and an amended complaint would be granted. Nagy v Rothstein, 53 Misc. 2d 367, 278 N.Y.S.2d 742, 1966 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1325 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1966).

Amendment of notice of claim to substitute one parent for the other with respect to a derivative cause of action would be allowed as nonprejudicial to defendant. Davidson v New York City Housing Authority, 56 Misc. 2d 635, 289 N.Y.S.2d 677, 1968 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1579 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1968).

I. Generally

1. Relation to other statutes; Constitutional provisions

2. —Federal law

Unpublished decision: Filing of a notice of claim against defendant city pursuant to N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(1)(a) was not the initial pleading, the filing of which would have commenced the time to file the city and others' notice of removal. Thus, their notice of removal was timely filed under 28 U.S.C.S. § 1446. Alexander v City of Syracuse, 454 Fed. Appx. 6, 2011 U.S. App. LEXIS 25598 (2d Cir. N.Y. 2011).

II. Accrual of Particular Claims

3. False arrest and imprisonment; accrual after arraignment

4. —After release

Unpublished decision: Plaintiff's insurer filed a notice of claim with a city, alleging only property damage; plaintiff did not file a notice of claim alleging personal injury until a year after the accident. Her motion under N.Y. Gen. Bus. Law § 50-e to allow the late filing was denied because, in effect, she was attempting to alter the nature of the claim, which was not permissible under § 50-e(6). Woolward v City of New York, 236 N.Y.L.J. 115, 2006 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3865 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. Nov. 27, 2006).

5. Malicious prosecution

Unpublished decision: Plaintiff's proceeding seeking leave to file a late notice of claim against a city under N.Y. Gen. Bus. Law § 50-e(1)(a) was a special proceeding and required a separate index number. However, as the city did not raise an objection to that procedural defect in its answer or in a pre-answer motion, its motion to dismiss on that ground was denied. Woolward v City of New York, 236 N.Y.L.J. 115, 2006 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3865 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. Nov. 27, 2006).

5.3. Abuse of process

Unpublished decision: Resident's abuse of process claim against a town was not time-barred because the claim accrued when the resident last appeared in court pursuant to the allegedly abused process less than 90 days before the resident served a notice of the resident's claim on the town. Raus v Town of Southampton, 661 Fed. Appx. 81, 2016 U.S. App. LEXIS 17208 (2d Cir. N.Y. 2016).

III. Extension of Time to File

5.5. Other actions

Unpublished decision: Arrestee's negligence claim against a county clerk was properly dismissed because he failed to comply with New York's notice of claim requirements. Allen v Antal, 665 Fed. Appx. 9, 2016 U.S. App. LEXIS 22165 (2d Cir. N.Y. 2016).

Unpublished decision: Arrestee's legal malpractice claim was properly dismissed because he failed to timely comply with New York's notice of claim requirements by filing timely notice after the indictment was dismissed. Allen v Antal, 665 Fed. Appx. 9, 2016 U.S. App. LEXIS 22165 (2d Cir. N.Y. 2016).

6. Authority of court

7. —Jurisdiction of court

Unpublished decision: Plaintiff's motion for leave to file a late notice of claim against a city under N.Y. Gen. Bus. Law § 50-e(1)(a) was denied because her excuse for her substantial delay in filing the notice of claim amounted to little more than law office failure, and she did not show that the city had actual knowledge of the essential facts constituting her claim within 90 days of its accrual, or that it was not substantially prejudiced in its opportunity to investigate the incident and defend against her claim. Woolward v City of New York, 236 N.Y.L.J. 115, 2006 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3865 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. Nov. 27, 2006).

IV. Particular Grounds for Extension of Time

8. Infancy

9. —Ignorance of notice requirements

Unpublished decision: Plaintiff's motion for leave to file a late notice of claim against a city under N.Y. Gen. Bus. Law § 50-e(1)(a) was denied. The fact that the city conducted a N.Y. Gen. Bus. Law § 50-h hearing and engaged in settlement discussions did not equitably estop it from asserting a statute of limitations defense. Woolward v City of New York, 236 N.Y.L.J. 115, 2006 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3865 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. Nov. 27, 2006).

10. Conduct of counsel affecting infant's disability

11. —Other grounds for failure to timely file

Unpublished decision: Plaintiff's insurer filed a notice of claim with a city, alleging only property damage; plaintiff did not file a notice of claim alleging personal injury until a year after the accident. Her motion under General Municipal Law § 50-e to allow the late filing was denied because the accident report annexed to the property damage claim filed by her insurer did not establish that the city acquired actual knowledge of the personal injury claim within 90 days of its accrual. Woolward v City of New York, 236 N.Y.L.J. 115, 2006 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3865 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. Nov. 27, 2006).

§ 50-i. Presentation of tort claims; commencement of actions

1. No action or special proceeding shall be prosecuted or maintained against a city, county, town, village, fire district or school district for personal injury, wrongful death or damage to real or personal property alleged to have been sustained by reason of the negligence or wrongful act of such city, county, town, village, fire district or school district or of any officer, agent or employee thereof, including volunteer firefighters of any such city, county, town, village, fire district or school district or any volunteer firefighter whose services have been accepted pursuant to the provisions of section two hundred nine-i of this chapter, unless, (a) a notice of claim shall have been made and served upon the city, county, town, village, fire district or school district in compliance with section fifty-e of this article, (b) it shall appear by and as an allegation in the complaint or moving papers that at least thirty days have elapsed since the service of such notice, or if service of the notice of claim is made by service upon the secretary of state pursuant to section fifty-three of this article, that at least forty days have elapsed since the service of such notice, and that adjustment or payment thereof has been neglected or refused, and (c) the action or special proceeding shall be commenced within one year and ninety days after the happening of the event upon which the claim is based; except that wrongful death actions shall be commenced within two years after the happening of the death.

2. This section shall be applicable notwithstanding any inconsistent provisions of law, general, special or local, or any limitation contained in the provisions of any city charter.

3. Nothing contained herein or in section fifty-h of this chapter shall operate to extend the period limited by subdivision one of this section for the commencement of an action or special proceeding.

4. (a) Notwithstanding any other provision of law to the contrary, including any other subdivision of this section, section fifty-e of this article, section thirty-eight hundred thirteen of the education law, and the provisions of any general, special or local law or charter requiring as a condition precedent to commencement of an action or special proceeding that a notice of claim be filed or presented, any cause of action against a public corporation for personal injuries suffered by a participant in World Trade Center rescue, recovery or cleanup operations as a result of such participation which is barred as of the effective date of this subdivision because the applicable period of limitation has expired is hereby revived, and a claim thereon may be filed and served and prosecuted provided such claim is filed and served within one year of the effective date of this subdivision.

(b) For the purposes of this subdivision:

(1) "participant in World Trade Center rescue, recovery or cleanup operations" means any employee or volunteer that:

(i) participated in the rescue, recovery or cleanup operations at the World Trade Center site; or

(ii) worked at the Fresh Kills Land Fill in the city of New York after September eleventh, two thousand one; or

(iii) worked at the New York city morgue or the temporary morgue on pier locations on the west side of Manhattan after September eleventh, two thousand one; or

(iv) worked on the barges between the west side of Manhattan and the Fresh Kills Land Fill in the city of New York after September eleventh, two thousand one.

(2) "World Trade Center site" means anywhere below a line starting from the Hudson River and Canal Street; east on Canal Street to Pike Street; south on Pike Street to the East River; and extending to the lower tip of Manhattan.

5. Notwithstanding any provision of law to the contrary, this section shall not apply to any claim made against a city, county, town, village, fire district or school district for physical, psychological, or other injury or condition suffered as a result of conduct which would constitute a sexual offense as defined in article one hundred thirty of the penal law committed against a child less than eighteen years of age, incest as defined in section 255.27, 255.26 or 255.25 of the penal law committed against a child less than eighteen years of age, or the use of a child in a sexual performance as defined in section 263.05 of the penal law committed against a child less than eighteen years of age.

Revision Notes: [1959, ch 788[This act was recommended by the Joint Legislative Committee on Municipal Tort Liability. Its purpose was to clarify and make uniform existing provisions with respect to the filing of claims and the commencement of actions against municipal corporations. (1) Filing of a notice of claim had been required since enactment of § 50-e of the General Municipal Law by L 1945, ch 694. (2) A one year limitation upon commencement of actions existed as to all municipalities. However, the one year period ran in some laws from the happening of the event upon which the claim was based, in others from the accrual of the cause of action. The latter phrase had uniformly been construed to mean after the happening of the event (Christian v. Herkimer, 5 AD2d 62 (1958)), but the variation in terminology in the absence of definitive decision had led to uncertainty and litigation. This act eliminated that uncertainty by expressly providing that the period ran from the happening of the event. The tolling provisions of § 24 of the Civil Practice Act had resulted in extension of the one year limitation for various periods up to ninety days. For purposes of clarity and uniformity this act provided a period of one year and ninety days with express provision against further tolling. (3) Former laws had provided that no action be brought for a period after the filing of a notice of claim. The periods varied from 15 to 90 days for various classes of municipalities. The Committee deemed unjustifiable the confusion which arose from the variation in periods. This act provided a uniform 30-day period for all municipalities. The act made necessary changes in the General Municipal Law, the Second Class Cities Law, the County Law, the Town Law, the Highway Law and the Village Law to ensure uniformity in its application.

[1960, ch 151] This act was recommended by the Joint Legislative Committee on Municipal Tort Liability. Its purpose was to make it clear that the period within which actions and special proceedings against municipalities are required to be brought was not intended to be tolled or extended by reason of its provisions.

1981 Recommendations of the Law Revision Commission: The Commissions attention has been directed to a problem in wrongful death actions brought against cities, towns and counties. Recent cases have shown no consistent interpretation as to the applicable time limitations within which such actions can be brought. Thus, for instance, one court has ruled that in a wrongful death action against a town the action is barred under section 50-i, General Municipal Law (GML), after one year and 90 days from the happening of the event causing the death. (Erickson v. Town of Henderson, 30 A D 2d 282.) Another court, however, has held that a wrongful death action commenced against a city, where section 50-i would seen to be directly applicable, is governed by the Estates, Powers and Trusts Law two-years-from-death provision found in section 5-4.1, because section 50-i does not specifically refer to wrongful death actions in its coverage (Priebe v. City of Canandaigua, 91 Misc 2d 1047).

The problem these examples illustrate can best be understood by first examining sections 50-e and 50-i GML.1. Subdivision (1) of section 50-3 provides in pertinent part: (a)In any case founded upon tort where a notice of claim is required by law as a condition precedent to the commencement of an action or special proceeding against a public corporation, as defined in the general construction law, or any officer, appointee or employee thereof, the notice of claim shall comply with and be served in accordance with the provisions of this section within ninety days after the claim arises. (Emphasis added.) Subdivision (1) of section 50-i provides: 1. No action or special proceeding shall be prosecuted or maintained against a . . . [municipal corporation]. . . for personal injury or damage to real or personal property alleged to have been sustained by reason of the negligence or wrongful act of such . . . [municipal corporation] . . . unless, (a) a notice of claim shall have been made and served upon the . . . [municipal corporation] . . . in compliance with section fifty-e of this chapter, (b) it shall appear by and as an allegation in the complaint or moving papers that at least thirty days have elapsed since the service of such notice and that adjustment or payment thereof has been neglected or refused, and (c) the action or special proceeding shall be commenced within one year and ninety days after the happening of the event upon which the claim is based. (Emphasis added.) Section 50-e refers to tort actions generally, which include wrongful death actions; section 50-i is restricted to coverage of personal injury and property damage.2. Legislative memoranda bear no indication of any purposeful intent to exclude wrongful death actions from section 50-i coverage. (1960 NYS Leg. Ann. 29; 1959 NYS Leg. Ann. 458.) The time period in section 50-e starts running when "the claim arises'; the time period in section 50-i starts running from "the happening of the event upon which the claim is based."

The need for conforming section 50-i to section 50-e so that the former specifically includes wrongful death actions is obvious. Another problem, not yet specifically addressed in the cases, concerns the anomaly that could arise in death cases because of the differing language concerning the point from which the 90-day-notice provision is measured, and the point from which the one-year-and-90-day time limitation is to be measured. It has been consistently held in death cases that the claim arises" and the ninety days starts running when the estate representative is appointed (Forero v. Town of Tuxedo, 51 A D 2d 443; Erickson v. Town of Henderson, supra; Devine v. City of New York, 28 Misc 2d 888). The section 50-i language, however, is not construed so that the one year and 90 days starts running from the accrual of the cause of action, i.e., the death. The Court in Erickson, supra, seems to indicate, through an examination of the legislative history of section 50-i that the one year and 90 days runs from the happening of the accident: . In other words the Legislature apparently recognized that there were excellent reasons . . . why the beneficiaries of a wrongful death action should not be foreclosed by failure within 90 days from the happening of the event causing death to have an estate representative appointed and notice of claim served. By the 1959 enactment, however, the Legislature in substance notified such beneficiaries that they could not have the full period of two years (Decedent Estate Law, § 130; EPTL 5-4.1) but that such an action must be commenced within one year and 90 days from the happening of the event This places no unreasonable burden on the beneficiaries of such an action. They are given one year to have an estate representative appointed and another 90 days within which to serve notice of claim. The action must be commenced before the expiration of the two periods. (Id. at 285.)

If the Erickson Court is not absolutely clear in that passage that the "happening of the event" means the happening of the accident and not the happening of the death, its analysis of the legislative intent has been construed that way. In Cota v. Madison Central School District (89 Misc 2d 646, 648), the Court states: "The Legislature intended the time limitation for actions under section 50-i of the General Municipal Law to commence not upon the accrual of plaintiff's cause of action, but when the accident occurred. (In accord see Phillips v. Village of Waterford, 48 A D 2d 745.)".

This distinction in the starting points for the 50-e and 50-i time periods should remain unchanged as they apply to personal injury actions in view of the conscious legislative intent just noted. In most instances such starting point will be the same anyway. The Erickson Court's application of this differentiation to death cases, however, is troublesome. In that case the happening of the event and the death were simultaneous. The Legislature, and the Court in that case, may not have envisioned the situation where the causally related death is delayed. Where that is the case, it is conceivable that notice of a death claim could be timely under section 50-e, where the time runs from the appointment of a representative, although the time to bring the action would already have run under the one-year-and-90-day-from-the-event provision of section 50-i. Special provisions for wrongful death actions in both sections would obviate this flaw.

Such special provisions would also serve to obviate problems arising because of the interrelationship of section 50-i with other statutes. In contrast to section 50-i, death actions are specifically provided for in the County Law and Town Law.3.Subdivision (1) of § 52 of the County Law provides: . 1. Any claim or notice of claim against a county for damage, injury or death, or for invasion of personal or property rights, of every name and nature, and whether casual or continuing trespass or nuisance and any other claim for damages arising at law or in equity, alleged to have been caused or sustained in whole or in part by or because of any misfeasance, omission of duty, negligence or wrongful act on the part of the county, its officers, agents, servants or employees, must be made and served in compliance with section fifty-a of the general municipal law. Every action upon such claim shall be commenced pursuant to the provisions of section fifty-i of the general municipal law. The place of trial shall be in the county against which the action is brought. (Emphasis added.) Town Law § 67, inter alia, provides that: 1. Any claim including a claim specified in section sixty-five-a of this chapter which may be made against the town or town superintendent of highways for damages for wrong or injury to person or property or for the death of a person, shall be made and served in compliance with section fifty-e of the general municipal law 2. Every action upon such claim shall be commenced pursuant to the provisions of section fifty-i of the general municipal law. . . (Emphasis added.) Those sections incorporate the sections 50-e and 50-i requirements. In Erickson, supra, a wrongful death action against a town, brought less than two years from the accident and simultaneous death, but more than one year and 90 days therefrom, was found time barred. The Court noted the failure of the Legislature to specifically include wrongful death actions in section 50-i, but refused to apply the EPTL two-year-from-death provision because of the Town Law's specific reference to section 50-i. In Priebe v. City of Canandaigua, supra, the Court, in a case brought against the city, where the section 50-i requirements would directly apply, avoided compliance with those requirements by pointing out that section 50-i does not specifically include wrongful death actions. The Priebe Court held that because of the omission of a reference to wrongful death in section 50-i it would apply the EPTL two-years-from-date-of-death time period

In another case, however, the Appellate Division held that section 50-i does cover death cases (Phillips v. Village of Waterford, 48 A D 2d 745) . This involved a suit against a village. There is no special statute permitting suits in the Village Law as there is in the County and Town Laws. The Court held the 50-i provisions applicable in suits against villages and consequently time-barred under the one-year-and- 90-day limit. The Court apparently assumed that section 50-i included wrongful death actions despite its lack of reference thereto, and did not discuss, as did the judge in Priebe, the application of EPTL 5-4.1.

A further complicating factor is found in section 139 of the Highway Law, 4. Highway Law § 139: . When, by law, a county has charge of the repair or maintenance of a road, highway, bridge or culvert, the county shall be liable for injuries to person or property sustained in consequence of such road, highway, bridge or culvert being defective, out of repair, unsafe, dangerous or obstructed existing because of the negligence of the county, its officers, agents or servants. A civil action may be maintained against the county to recover damages for any such injury; but the county shall not be liable in such action unless a notice of claim shall have been made and served in compliance with section fifty-e of the general municipal law, and unless the action is commenced within one year from the date of service of the notice, but no such action shall be commenced upon such claim until the expiration of three months after the service of such notice. (Emphasis added.) which predates section 50-i, permitting personal injury actions against counties based on defective road maintenance. No reference is made to wrongful death actions. The section does refer to the section 50-e notice provision and provides that the action must be commenced "within one year from the date of service of the notice." Despite the lack of any reference to death cases in the section, the term "personal injury" has been held to include wrongful death (Treib v. Dutchess County, 56 A D 2d 866, app. dism'd 42 N Y 2d 824; Forero v. Town of Tuxedo, supra, 51 A D 2d 443)

The Commission considers that this confusion can be eliminated by the expedient of, first, writing into section 50-e a provision allowing the 90-day-notice provision to run from the appointment of an estate representative, which the codifies the present case law; and, second, tying this to new provisions in section 50-i which makes the section applicable in death actions and requires the death action to be brought within two years after the time of death.

This is an adaptation of subdivision 2 of section 10 of the Court of Claims Act which governs time provisions in actions against the State. 5. Subdivision 2 of section 10, Court of Claims Act, is as follows: . 2. A claim by an executor or administrator of a decedent who left him or her surviving a husband, wife or next of kin, for damages for a wrongful act, neglect or default, on the part of the state by which the decedent's death was caused, shall be filed within ninety days after the appointment of such executor or administrator, unless the claimant shall within such time file a written notice of intention to file a claim therefor in which event the claim shall be filed within two years after the death of the decedent. In any event such claim shall be filed within two years after the death of the decedent Note that there is no separate requirement for a notice of claim as there is in section 50-e. Under the Court of Claims Act no notice is necessary if the representative starts the action within 90 days of his appointment. This distinction makes it impossible to incorporate this provision verbatim into section 50-i. Its utilization has the virtue of aligning these provisions, both applicable to very similar situations, and, along with EPTL 5-1.4, marking the time of death as the basis for time calculations Bearing in mind the purpose of the time provisions of sections 50-e and 50-i— to provide municipal authorities the opportunity for timely investigation of the claim and to accelerate the time within which the action must be commenced—a problem could arise because no limitation from the time of the event is placed. If the accident victim did not die within several years of the happening of the accident, but the time for bringing suit is tolled since no representative can be appointed until after death, a death action against a municipality could conceivably be brought many years after the event, thus frustrating the goal of timely investigation. Such a case ought to be extremely rare. If the event were catastrophic enough to cause injuries which lead to delayed, but eventual death, it is reasonable to presume that a timely personal injury action would be commenced. Under the rule of Caffaro v. Trayna (35 N Y 2d 245), the death cause of action could be added at any time to a properly commenced and pending injury action.

Another reason for considering the threat of death claims long after the event de minimis is because the date-of-death basis in section 10 of the Court of Claims Act has been wholly adequate for many years as a ceiling on death claims, there having been no reported cases of injustice to the sovereign due to the possibility of the rare case of delayed death.

With respect to sections 50-e and 50-i, then, the notice provision of the former would run from the appointment of the representative, and, under the latter, now expressly applicable to death actions, the action would have to be commenced in no event more than two years after the death; unless a personal injury action had been timely commenced, in which case the complaint in a pending action could be amended to include the death cause of action for the subsequent and related death under the Caffaro case.

With these amendments, plus an amendment to Highway Law section 139, making it applicable in death actions and incorporating the requirements of section 50-i as well as 50-e, wrongful death actions against municipal corporations will be handled in a uniform manner. Only if no representative is appointed within two years of death will there be a statutory bar against any opportunity to sue for wrongful death. Even in that event, it is unlikely that a personal injury action would not have been started to which the death action could be added.

Editor's Notes: Laws 2009, ch 440, § 1, eff Sept 16, 2009, provides as follows:

Section 1. Short title. This act shall be known and may be cited as "Jimmy Nolan's law".

Laws 2019, ch 11, § 12, eff February 14, 2019, provides:

§ 12. The provisions of this act shall be severable, and if any clause, sentence, paragraph, subdivision or part of this act shall be adjudged by any court of competent jurisdiction to be invalid, such judgment shall not affect, impair, or invalidate the remainder thereof, but shall be confined in its operation to the clause, sentence, paragraph, subdivision or part thereof directly involved in the controversy in which such judgment shall have been rendered.

Amendment Notes: 2013. Chapter 24, § 5 amended:

Sub 1 by deleting at fig 1 "chapter" and adding the matter in italics.

2009. Chapter 440, § 2 amended:

By adding sub 4.

The 2018 amendment by ch 476, § 29, substituted "firefighters" for "firemen" or variants in 1.

The 2019 amendment by ch 11, § 6, added 5.

1. In general

CPLR § 204(a), which provides that where the commencement of an action has been stayed by a court the duration of the stay is not a part of the period in which the action must be commenced, does not apply to Gen Mun Law § 50-i which requires actions against a public body or officer to be commenced within one year and 90 days after the happening of the event upon which the claim is based. Therefore, an order of the court pursuant to Gen Mun Law § 50-h staying the proceedings until plaintiff in a negligence action submitted to an examination requested by defendant town did not extend the limitations period for the bringing of plaintiff's action; and defendant's motion for summary judgment on the ground of the statute of limitations should have been granted where plaintiff's complaint against defendant was filed more than one year and 90 days from the date of the accident upon which the claim was based. Astromovich v Huntington School Dist., 80 A.D.2d 628, 436 N.Y.S.2d 93, 1981 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10327 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1981), aff'd, 56 N.Y.2d 634, 450 N.Y.S.2d 786, 436 N.E.2d 192, 1982 N.Y. LEXIS 3300 (N.Y. 1982).

The trial court improperly granted a motion for leave to serve a late notice of claim nunc pro tunc upon a town and a sewer authority and to add the town and sewer authority as additional parties, where the applicable statute of limitations had expired and the court thus was without jurisdiction to grant the motion. Dua v Suffolk County, 96 A.D.2d 1072, 466 N.Y.S.2d 710, 1983 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 19722 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1983).

Claimants precluded from commencing actions prior to October 1, 1984, effective date of CPLR 4545, by operation of Gen Mun Law §§ 50-h, 50-i, are subject to provisions of CPLR 4545. Alford v New York, 115 A.D.2d 420, 496 N.Y.S.2d 224, 1985 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 54806 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1985), aff'd in part, 67 N.Y.2d 1019, 503 N.Y.S.2d 324, 494 N.E.2d 455, 1986 N.Y. LEXIS 18633 (N.Y. 1986).

Police officer was not exempt from requirements of CLS Gen Mun §§ 50-e and 50-i in his action under CLS Gen Mun § 205-e (effective on July 12, 1989) against New York City to recover damages for personal injuries suffered in slip-and-fall accident in course of his employment in city-owned building where action accrued after statute's effective date. Przybyszewski v City of New York, 225 A.D.2d 556, 638 N.Y.S.2d 763, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1933 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1996), app. denied, 1996 N.Y. LEXIS 1758 (N.Y. June 13, 1996), app. denied, 88 N.Y.2d 806, 646 N.Y.S.2d 986, 670 N.E.2d 227, 1996 N.Y. LEXIS 1757 (N.Y. 1996).

Petitioner's "filing" of unsigned order to show cause with county clerk did not serve as timely application for leave to file late notice of claim. Graham v County of Fulton, 235 A.D.2d 824, 652 N.Y.S.2d 354, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 323 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1997).

In action brought against City of New York and New York City Health and Hospitals Corporation (defendants), court erred both in denying defendants' motion to amend their answer to assert affirmative defense of Statute of Limitations under CLS Gen Mun § 50-i and in granting plaintiff's motion to strike that defense where action was based on discovery of foreign object in plaintiff's body as result of surgical procedure, and documents submitted on plaintiff's motion to strike raised fact issue as to when plaintiff first discovered existence of sponge. Melendez v City of New York, 249 A.D.2d 197, 671 N.Y.S.2d 758, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4655 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1998).

Dismissal of a motorist's complaint as to a county employee, when the motorist sued the county as well, was not warranted because neither County Law § 52, nor the provisions of General Municipal Law §§ 50-e(2) and 50-i(2) required that the employee had to be named in the notice of claim. Pierce v Hickey, 129 A.D.3d 1287, 11 N.Y.S.3d 321, 2015 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4816 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2015).

In a city judge's age discrimination action, the failure to serve a notice of claim required the dismissal state constitutional claims because the action did not fall within the public interest exception to the notice of claim requirement, but the trial court erred in denying the city judge's cross motion for leave to amend the complaint to include federal constitutional claims because, in part, it was a matter of public interest. Mirro v City of New York, 159 A.D.3d 964, 74 N.Y.S.3d 356, 2018 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2077 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2018).

Although legislature used words "prosecuted or maintained" in General Municipal Law provision that no action or special proceeding shall be prosecuted or maintained thereunder against public corporation unless notice of claim shall have been made or served in compliance with statutory requirements, it clearly meant "commenced." Colantuono v Valley Cent. School Dist., 90 Misc. 2d 918, 396 N.Y.S.2d 590, 1977 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2189 (N.Y. Sup. Ct.), aff'd, 59 A.D.2d 926, 399 N.Y.S.2d 262, 1977 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 14144 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1977).

After the court reviewed N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-i(1), N.Y. C.P.L.R. 203, City Civ. Ct. Act § 400, and City Civ. Ct. Act § 1803(a), it concluded that § 1803(a) controlled; and § 1803(a) clearly stated legislative intent that for a small claims action (in the instant case a tort suit by a claimant against New York City), suit was commenced when the matter was filed with the clerk of the small claims part. Zaurov v City of New York, 784 N.Y.S.2d 817, 5 Misc. 3d 418, 2004 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1278 (N.Y. Civ. Ct. 2004).

Although, in a wrongful death action, an ambulance company, a private corporation, was not entitled to rely on General Municipal Law N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law §§ 50-e, 50-i as a basis for relief, the trial court properly struck certain paragraphs of an administratrix's supplemental bill of particulars pursuant to N.Y. C.P.L.R. 3043(b) because those paragraphs contained new theories of liability not previously alleged in the complaint and initial bill of particulars; the paragraphs stricken pertaining to the ambulance company alleged that the ambulance company's employees acted negligently in the hiding or spoliation of evidence related to a 911 call and the treatment of the decedent. Although the complaint and initial bill of particulars against the ambulance company asserted numerous theories of negligence, none of those theories related to the ambulance company's handling or withholding of evidence. Clare-Hollo v Finger Lakes Ambulance EMS, Inc., 99 A.D.3d 1199, 952 N.Y.S.2d 350, 2012 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6622 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 2012).

The provisions of §§ 50-e and 50-i of the General Municipal Law are more than mere statutes of limitation or statutes of repose; they establish conditions precedent to the initiation of a lawsuit against a municipality. Gregory v New York, 346 F. Supp. 140, 1972 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 12974 (S.D.N.Y. 1972), disapproved, Fountain v Metropolitan Atlanta Rapid Transit Authority, 678 F.2d 1038, 1982 U.S. App. LEXIS 18222 (11th Cir. 1982).

Although an action for damages to riparian rights was a continuing trespass, each new day establishing the cause anew, the provisions of General Municipal Law §§ 50-e and 50-i were more than mere statutes of limitation or repose but established conditions precedent to the initiation of a lawsuit against a municipality. Gregory v New York, 346 F. Supp. 140, 1972 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 12974 (S.D.N.Y. 1972), disapproved, Fountain v Metropolitan Atlanta Rapid Transit Authority, 678 F.2d 1038, 1982 U.S. App. LEXIS 18222 (11th Cir. 1982).

2. Purpose

In an action commenced by an injured worker against a town 468 days after the date of the injury, the action was properly dismissed on the basis that the action was barred by the one-year and 90-day statute of limitations contained in Gen Mun Law § 50-i(1)(c), notwithstanding that a prior court order stayed the action until the injured worker complied with the town's demand for an examination pursuant to Gen Mun Law § 50-h, since the demand did not operate to toll the statute of limitations in that such an order should properly be characterized as "statutory" as it granted the town no relief greater than or inconsistent with that to which it became entitled under § 50-h(5), and as such should be considered in accordance with the provisions of § 50-i, which state that the aforementioned statute of limitations should be applicable notwithstanding any inconsistent provisions of law. Astromovich v Huntington School Dist., 56 N.Y.2d 634, 450 N.Y.S.2d 786, 436 N.E.2d 192, 1982 N.Y. LEXIS 3300 (N.Y. 1982).

The manifest legislative intention in enacting this section was to "centralize and make uniform provisions relating to commencement of actions against municipal corporations." La Fave v Franklin, 20 A.D.2d 738, 247 N.Y.S.2d 72, 1964 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4385 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1964).

Library's reliance upon the notice of claim requirements contained in N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-i to dismiss an employee's discrimination claim was misplaced as it did not apply to discrimination claims. Grasso v Schenectady County Pub. Lib, 30 A.D.3d 814, 817 N.Y.S.2d 186, 2006 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7968 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2006).

The legislative intent in adopting this section was to clarify and make uniform the provisions of law governing commencement of actions against municipal corporations, and it accordingly supersedes contrary provisions of law with respect to an action against a county. Oraczewski v Westchester County, 32 Misc. 2d 217, 221 N.Y.S.2d 485, 1961 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2214 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1961).

This section was intended by the Legislature to give a municipality an opportunity to settle meritorious claims before being subjected to suit. Renwick v Allegany, 34 Misc. 2d 461, 225 N.Y.S.2d 844, 1962 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3738 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1962), rev'd, 18 A.D.2d 877, 236 N.Y.S.2d 902, 1963 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4731 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1963).

3. Construction

CLS Gen Mun §§ 50-h and 50-i must be read together and in harmony to give meaning and effect to both provisions, such that claimant may not, under any circumstances, commence suit against municipality within 30 days after filing of notice of claim, but can do so thereafter provided that no demand for examination pursuant to CLS Gen Mun § 50-h has been served by city, but this does not mean, however, that once action is commenced, municipality is foreclosed from pursuing examination, as CLS Gen Mun 50-h grants municipality 90 days within which to demand examination and it is entitled to full period within which to make its demand and to thereafter hold that hearing separate and distinct from any rights to discovery under CPLR, whether action has been commenced or not. Alouette Fashions, Inc. v Consolidated Edison Co., 119 A.D.2d 481, 501 N.Y.S.2d 23, 1986 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 55428 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1986), aff'd, 69 N.Y.2d 786, 513 N.Y.S.2d 114, 505 N.E.2d 624, 1987 N.Y. LEXIS 15353 (N.Y. 1987), aff'd, 69 N.Y.2d 787, 513 N.Y.S.2d 114, 505 N.E.2d 624, 1987 N.Y. LEXIS 15354 (N.Y. 1987).

Provision of CLS Gen Mun § 50-h(5) only applies to tort claims when it is read together with its coordinate statute CLS Gen Mun § 50-i. Cutrone v Village Bd. of Trustees, 226 A.D.2d 459, 640 N.Y.S.2d 599, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3587 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1996).

Where the father was erroneously told by the county morgue that a recovered body was not that of his son, the statute of limitations for suing over that negligent act began to run on the date the erroneous information was given to the father, not the date the mistake was discovered. Jensen v City of New York, 288 A.D.2d 346, 734 N.Y.S.2d 88, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11266 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2001).

Under earlier provisions, it was held that a reasonable interpretation of the General Municipal Law would not indicate intention to deprive municipalities of an opportunity to investigate and settle claims against them, prior to institution of suit thereon. Bergen v Ward, 73 N.Y.S.2d 124, 190 Misc. 566, 1947 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2953 (N.Y. Sup. Ct.), aff'd, 272 A.D. 1025, 74 N.Y.S.2d 186, 1947 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4764 (N.Y. App. Div. 1947).

4. Constitutionality

Statutes requiring 90-day notice of claim against public corporation were not unconstitutional as violating equal protection guarantees of State and Federal Constitutions. Guarrera v Lee Mem. Hosp., 51 A.D.2d 867, 380 N.Y.S.2d 161, 1976 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11485 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't), app. dismissed, 39 N.Y.2d 942, 1976 N.Y. LEXIS 3538 (N.Y. 1976).

The limitation provisions of Gen Mun Law § 50-i are tolled by infancy pursuant to CPLR § 208; thus, where a transit authority had actual notice of an occurrence involving an injury to infant plaintiff and was not prejudiced by the late notice claim filed under Gen Mun Law § 50-e, the court abused its discretion in denying the application made on the infant's behalf for leave to serve a notice of claim after the expiration of the statutory period against the transit authority. Fleming v Manhattan Bronx Surface Transit Operating Authority, 86 A.D.2d 509, 445 N.Y.S.2d 741, 1982 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 15022 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1982).

No invasion of equal protection occurred, in an action to recover for damage to riparian rights, because the statute, applicable to tort claim, imposed a one year and 90 days requirement for commencement of the action after the happening of the event upon which the claim is based while the New York City Administrative Code permitted an elapsed time period of 3 years from the completion of the work, since reasonable classification of different matters, treating them differently on a rational basis, is permissible. Gregory v New York, 346 F. Supp. 140, 1972 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 12974 (S.D.N.Y. 1972), disapproved, Fountain v Metropolitan Atlanta Rapid Transit Authority, 678 F.2d 1038, 1982 U.S. App. LEXIS 18222 (11th Cir. 1982).

5. Necessity of pleading compliance with statute

Plaintiff's complaint in an action to determine adverse claims of title to realty, damages for trespass, and for injunctive and other relief failed to state a cause of action against the County of Suffolk, where the complaint did not allege compliance with the statutory notice requirements of §§ 50-e and 50-i of the General Municipal Law. Seabreeze Marina at Smithtown, Inc. v Smithtown, 25 A.D.2d 780, 269 N.Y.S.2d 662, 1966 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4497 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1966).

Although motion to amend complaint was initiated more than one year 90 days after cause of action accrued, in absence of demonstrable prejudice to defendants, it is abuse of discretion to deny application to amend complaint to plead necessary compliance with CLS General Municipal § 50-i. Fitzgibbon v County of Nassau, 112 A.D.2d 266, 491 N.Y.S.2d 715, 1985 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 56065 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1985).

In contract action, Special Term did not err in allowing plaintiffs to amend their complaint to allege service of notice of claim where timely service of notice of claim had in fact been made and plaintiffs' failure to allege such service was procedural and not jurisdictional defect; motion to amend was also not barred by one-year and 90-day limitations contained in CLS Gen Mun § 50-i, and amendment was not rendered improper by fact that notice of claim had been served after commencement of action. Runyan v Board of Education, 121 A.D.2d 708, 504 N.Y.S.2d 146, 1986 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 58693 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1986).

Trial Term erred in refusing to grant injured plaintiffs' motion, in personal injury action against City of New York, to amend their complaint to plead necessary compliance with CLS Gen Mun § 50 i (requiring allegations that 30 days have elapsed since service of notice of claim and that adjustment or payment of claim has been neglected or refused by city) where city, by its answer, specifically conceded that notice of claim had been presented to city comptroller, that more than 30 days had elapsed since such presentation, and that no adjustment thereof had been made. Bravo v New York, 122 A.D.2d 761, 505 N.Y.S.2d 647, 1986 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 59286 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1986).

Defendant physician was entitled to dismissal of action where (1) at time of surgical procedure alleged in complaint, he was resident physician at county medical center, and (2) plaintiffs failed to file notice of claim pursuant to CLS Gen Mun § 50-e and failed to commence action within limitations period of CLS Gen Mun § 50-i. Stanfield v Nohejl, 182 A.D.2d 1138, 586 N.Y.S.2d 765, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7055 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1992).

Dismissal of a vehicle owner's action against town police officers for return of his impounded vehicle was required because he failed, pursuant to N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-i(1)(b), to wait 30 days from service of the required notice of claim before filing suit and failed to allege, in his complaint, that he had served the required notice of claim the specified amount of time before filing the complaint. Smith v Scott, 294 A.D.2d 11, 740 N.Y.S.2d 425, 2002 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3561 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2002).

Property owner was not required to serve a notice of claim as the claim was not subject to the notice of claim statute because his claim was primarily equitable in nature, specifically demanding that a building permit be issued; the demand for money damages was merely incidental to the request for an injunction. Johnson v City of Peekskill, 91 A.D.3d 825, 936 N.Y.S.2d 701, 2012 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 485 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2012).

Dismissal should have been granted to a city and the city department of transportation in a motorcyclist's personal injury action, as he failed to serve either the corporation counsel, his designee, or the city comptroller within the statutory period pursuant to General Municipal Law §§ 50-e(1)(a) and 50-i(1)(a). Khela v City of New York, 91 A.D.3d 912, 937 N.Y.S.2d 311, 2012 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 784 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2012).

Trial court properly dismissed plaintiff medical student's tort causes of action asserted against defendants because no notice of claim was served upon defendant medical corporation; the remaining claims against defendants, sounding largely in discrimination, failed to state a cause of action because they were premised on laws that did not provide for individual liability, or failed to set forth adequate factual allegations in support of the claims. Attallah v New York Coll. of Osteopathic Medicine, 134 N.Y.S.3d 793, 2020 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8028 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2020).

Failure to comply with the provisions of General Municipal Law § 50-i is not per se jurisdictional; rather it is procedural. Thus, upon a motion to dismiss for failure to allege the elements set forth in such section, the complaint, not the action, would be dismissed with leave to serve an amended complaint, where the statute had run and dismissal of the action would produce the harsh result. Teodoro v Babylon, 56 Misc. 2d 476, 289 N.Y.S.2d 61, 1968 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1604 (N.Y. Dist. Ct. 1968).

Where claim was timely filed against municipality and summons and complaint were served, motion for examination filed by municipality 82 days after the filing of the notice of claim, was proper even though subsequent to the service of the complaint. Bergman v Hempstead, 61 Misc. 2d 149, 304 N.Y.S.2d 1020, 1969 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1103 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1969).

Where complaint sounding in tort against town did not allege that a notice of claim had been filed as required by the General Municipal Law and papers before court indicated that no such notice had been filed, complaint was insufficient. Mazo v Shawangunk, 87 Misc. 2d 597, 386 N.Y.S.2d 519, 1976 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2262 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1976), aff'd, 60 A.D.2d 734, 401 N.Y.S.2d 305, 1977 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 14772 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1977).

United States is not required to file notice of claim pursuant to state general municipal law in order to maintain action against state and county for indemnification under Swine Flu Act (42 USCS § 247b(k)(7)). United States v New York, 595 F. Supp. 980, 1984 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 23795 (W.D.N.Y. 1984).

Failure to comply with CLS Gen Mun § 50-i regarding timely service of notice of claim and related pleading requirement of § 50-i(1)(b) is jurisdictional rather than procedural defect. Mroz v City of Tonawanda, 999 F. Supp. 436, 1998 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 4577 (W.D.N.Y. 1998).

Because it was undisputed that plaintiff never filed a notice of claim in compliance with N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e, as required by N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-i(1)(c), plaintiff's state law claims against municipal defendants were dismissed. McLaurin v New Rochelle Police Officers, 373 F. Supp. 2d 385, 2005 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 11971 (S.D.N.Y. 2005), aff'd in part, vacated in part, 2007 U.S. App. LEXIS 1839 (2d Cir. N.Y. Jan. 25, 2007).

Where defendants received the timely notice to which they were entitled under the statute, the fact that plaintiff failed to plead compliance with the requirement in his complaint was only a technical error, and plaintiff was granted leave to amend his second amended complaint to reflect that he filed a timely notice of claim. Razzano v County of Nassau, 599 F. Supp. 2d 345, 2009 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 12936 (E.D.N.Y. 2009).

Because plaintiff's claim sounded in tort and she failed to file a notice of claim, the court granted summary judgment to the City on the negligence claim on this ground. Breitkopf v Gentile, 41 F. Supp. 3d 220, 2014 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 121581 (E.D.N.Y. 2014).

6. Accrual of claim

The running of the 90 day period is measured not from the time of the negligent act but from the date the negligent act produced injury to the plaintiff. Sexstone v Rochester, 32 A.D.2d 737, 301 N.Y.S.2d 887, 1969 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4001 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1969).

In a landowner's action against the county, alleging that sewage backed up on the landowner's property as a result of the county's severance of the landowner's lateral line from the main sewer line, the action was properly dismissed as time-barred since the limitation period begins to run upon the happening of the event, irrespective of when the action accrued, and since the event on which the landowner's case was based was the severance of his lateral line, rather than the backup of sewage on his property. Nebbia v County of Monroe, 92 A.D.2d 724, 461 N.Y.S.2d 127, 1983 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 17023 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1983).

In a personal injury action by a fireman against the owner of the building in which the fireman was injured during a fire, a town sued for indemnification and contribution by the building owner would be entitled to summary judgment denying the owner's claim for indemnity, even though the town may have negligently issued a building permit and certificate of occupancy some 30 years earlier to the previous owner of the building, and even though the statute of limitations in Gen Mun Law § 50-i did not bar a third-party action for indemnity, plaintiff had secured no judgment and defendant had made no payment of judgment, where there was no duty owed by the town to the owner, in that there was no special relationship between the town and the owner; summary judgment for the town on the issue of contribution would be denied, since a town's issuance of a certificate of occupancy could create a special relationship with the owner of the property if the town knew that a dangerous condition existed at the time it issued the certificate and the town could be held responsible to the defendant for that portion of the damages attributable to its own negligence. Dutton v Mitek Realty Corp., 95 A.D.2d 769, 463 N.Y.S.2d 471, 1983 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 18678 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1983).

For purposes of CLS Gen Mun § 50-i, limitations period begins to run upon happening of event, irrespective of when action may technically accrue; thus, action commenced on January 21, 1986, alleging that child abuse report filed by county department of social services in July, 1982 was cause of plaintiff's inability to procure employment and concomitant physical and emotional distress, was properly dismissed because not brought within one year and 90 days of filing of report even though plaintiff claimed that he did not learn of report's existence until March, 1985; furthermore, even if action accrued upon plaintiff's discovery of report in March, 1985, his notice of claim filed September 28, 1985 was untimely because not filed within 90 days of discovery of report. Kitonyi v Albany County, 128 A.D.2d 1018, 513 N.Y.S.2d 555, 1987 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 44662 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1987).

In action founded on alleged breach of city's duty to maintain its public right-of-way in safe condition, one-year 90-day period of limitation under CLS Gen Mun § 50-i does not begin to run until happening of accident, since that duty is continuous, separate and apart from duty not to create dangerous condition, and liability for breach thereof is established regardless of how, by whom, or when dangerous condition was created, so long as it can be shown that city had notice of condition and that it had reasonable time to correct it; thus, action brought against city on March 4, 1983, insofar as it alleged negligent maintenance of public roadway, should not have been dismissed as untimely under § 50-i where accident occurred on April 28, 1982. Sniper v Syracuse, 139 A.D.2d 93, 530 N.Y.S.2d 374, 1988 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11230 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1988).

Homeowners association's action against town, averring that town had negligently permitted association's townhouse community to be constructed with improperly designed drainage system which caused extensive flooding on property, accrued on day town issued last certificate of occupancy for community, rather than on day engineer's report revealing cause of flooding was issued, and thus action brought nearly 4 years after issuance of last certificate was untimely under CLS Gen Mun § 50-i. Pleasant Ridge Townhouses Homeowners' Ass'n v T & D Constr. Corp., 181 A.D.2d 871, 581 N.Y.S.2d 857, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4968 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1992).

Plaintiff's action against city arising from diversion of ground water onto her property accrued when city inspected adjacent property after drain pipe was altered and not on later date when plaintiff discovered that her basement wall had cracked. Johnson v Marianetti, 202 A.D.2d 970, 609 N.Y.S.2d 494, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3322 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1994).

Court would dismiss plaintiff's action arising from her alleged "multiple chemical sensitivity" to newly constructed school she attended where her notice of claim was not filed until 5 years after her last exposure to school building in April 1989, she admitted that she began to experience entire array of symptoms shortly after she matriculated at school in September 1988, physical indicia of her injuries were fully developed and apparent to her and her treating physicians by April 1989, at latest, and it was not alleged that extent of technical knowledge of scientific and medical communities was not then sufficiently advanced to allow cause of those physical complaints to be ascertained. Krogmann v Glens Falls City Sch. Dist., 231 A.D.2d 76, 661 N.Y.S.2d 82, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8110 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), app. dismissed, 91 N.Y.2d 848, 667 N.Y.S.2d 683, 690 N.E.2d 492, 1997 N.Y. LEXIS 4121 (N.Y. 1997).

City asserted viable affirmative defense that action for exposure to toxic substance was not commenced in compliance with CLS Gen Mun §§ 50-e(1)(a) and 50-i where action was filed more than 90 days after adult plaintiff was informed that infant plaintiff was suffering from elevated level of lead in his blood, because that was when claim arose. Perry v City of New York, 238 A.D.2d 326, 656 N.Y.S.2d 301, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3415 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1997).

In action alleging that city executed contract it knew it could not perform, limitation period began to run for purposes of CLS Gen Mun § 50-i(1) on date contract was executed, regardless of when payment thereunder was demanded or approval ultimately given. Serkil L.L.C. v City of Troy, 259 A.D.2d 920, 686 N.Y.S.2d 892, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2523 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), app. denied, 93 N.Y.2d 811, 694 N.Y.S.2d 633, 716 N.E.2d 698, 1999 N.Y. LEXIS 1837 (N.Y. 1999).

Action for alleged contamination of plaintiff's well water accrued, at very latest, in mid-September 1994 when plaintiff received letter from County informing him that his water contained levels of sodium and lead exceeding those prescribed by New York State Drinking Water Standards; thus, filing of notice of claim on January 9, 1995, approximately 4 months after plaintiff's action accrued, was untimely. Potanovic v County of Rockland, 267 A.D.2d 291, 700 N.Y.S.2d 195, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12865 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1999).

County was entitled to dismissal of claim on ground that plaintiff did not file timely notice of claim where (1) claim arose when county informed plaintiff, by letter dated March 13, 1966, that no certificate of occupancy would be issued for his property until certain structural problems were resolved, (2) complaint alleged that county was responsible for creating conditions that caused those problems, (3) claim was not filed until August 14, 1996, over 90 days after claim arose, (4) plaintiff did not seek leave to file late notice of claim within one year and 90 days after claim accrued, and (5) plaintiff did not show applicability of equitable estoppel doctrine. Augustyn v County of Wyo., 275 A.D.2d 1003, 716 N.Y.S.2d 341, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9632 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 2000).

Claims against city and city police department based on negligent hiring of police officers and negligent impounding of plaintiff's vehicle accrued at time of plaintiff's arrest, not upon his acquittal; thus, such claims were properly dismissed as time-barred where action was not commenced within one year and 90 days of plaintiff's arrest. Murray v City of New York, 283 A.D.2d 560, 725 N.Y.S.2d 73, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5224 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2001).

Fact that the sewage discharge was in the nature of a continuing wrong did not preclude application of the discovery rule of N.Y. C.P.L.R. § 214-c. Schwinghammer v Sullivan W. Cent. Sch. Dist., 2 A.D.3d 1126, 768 N.Y.S.2d 696, 2003 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13534 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2003).

Trial court properly granted the defendants' motion to dismiss the complaint against them for negligent inspection and approval of improvements to the plaintiff's home pursuant to N.Y. C.P.L.R. 3211(a)(5), as the time within which to serve a notice of claim and to commence the action began to run on February 1, 2001, the date that a Code Enforcement Officer last inspected the premises; the plaintiff thus failed to serve a notice of claim within 90 days after the claim arose and failed to commence the action within one year and 90 days "after the happening of the event upon which the claim is based" under N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-i (1)(c). Sharpe v Town of Conesus, 19 A.D.3d 1029, 797 N.Y.S.2d 227, 2005 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6237 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 2005).

As plaintiff's claim against a town and its building inspector, alleging that they "negligently issued a certificate of occupancy" and that plaintiff reasonably relied on that certificate in purchasing a residence, was not commenced within one year and 90 days after the claim arose, under N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-i(1), the action was untimely, and the Supreme Court properly granted that part of defendants' motion to dismiss. The issuance of the certificate was the event from which the claim arose. Francis v Posa, 21 A.D.3d 1335, 801 N.Y.S.2d 857, 2005 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10064 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 2005).

Client's claim for malicious prosecution did not accrue until his judgment of conviction was vacated, and, thus, the notice of claim was timely filed and the underlying action was brought within the statutory time limits. Brownell v LeClaire, 96 A.D.3d 1336, 948 N.Y.S.2d 168, 2012 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5176 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2012).

Action against city and police department would be dismissed for failure to commence it within one-year-and-90-day statute of limitations (CLS Gen Mun § 50(i)) where cause of action accrued when allegedly defamatory statements regarding cause of child's death were made by police at child's wake in August 1993, and action for defamation was commenced on November 2, 1995. Lauer v City of New York, 171 Misc. 2d 832, 656 N.Y.S.2d 93, 1997 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 83 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1997), aff'd in part, modified, 258 A.D.2d 92, 693 N.Y.S.2d 167, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7674 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1999).

Town was not entitled to leave to file a late summary judgment motion arguing a negligent design claim was time-barred because the claim was not barred, as the claim was based on allegations that a town breached the town's nondelegable duty in N.Y. High. Law § 140 to construct and maintain the town's roads in a reasonably safe condition, so the claim accrued upon the happening of an accident, not upon the happening of an event causing the alleged dangerous condition. Madden v Town of Greene, 949 N.Y.S.2d 326, 36 Misc. 3d 852, 2012 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3053 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 2012).

7. —False arrest or imprisonment

Cause of action for false arrest and false imprisonment accrues at time imprisonment terminates, not when charges are dismissed or withdrawn, and thus action against county for false arrest and false imprisonment commenced on August 3, 1976 was not timely under statute providing that tort action against a municipal corporation must be commenced within one year and 90 days after its accrual where plaintiffs were released from imprisonment on March 13, 1975. Redding v County of Westchester, 59 A.D.2d 776, 398 N.Y.S.2d 732, 1977 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13826 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1977).

Petitioner's claim against county, arising from allegedly negligent representation provided by assigned appellate counsel in criminal proceeding, did not accrue for purposes of CLS Gen Mun § 50-i until criminal conviction was reversed and indictment dismissed, as petitioner was legally precluded from asserting negligent representation claim until he could assert and establish his innocence. Swain v County of Albany, 268 A.D.2d 747, 702 N.Y.S.2d 175, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 381 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), app. denied, 94 N.Y.2d 764, 708 N.Y.S.2d 52, 729 N.E.2d 709, 2000 N.Y. LEXIS 568 (N.Y. 2000).

False arrest and unlawful imprisonment claims against a county and a sheriff should have been dismissed because the claims accrued on the date the client was released from prison, and the client did not file a notice of claim until four years after that date, and did not commence his action until long after the N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-i(1) time limit had expired. Brownell v LeClaire, 96 A.D.3d 1336, 948 N.Y.S.2d 168, 2012 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5176 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2012).

An alleged cause of action in favor of an ex-convict against New York City, based upon 25 years of imprisonment ultimately terminated by writ of error coram nobis and alleged to constitute false imprisonment because conviction was induced by suppression of evidence, did not accrue until his release from prison, and hence his notice of claim was timely served within the prescribed 90-day period thereafter and his action was timely commenced within one year. Zimmerman v New York, 40 Misc. 2d 179, 242 N.Y.S.2d 791, 1963 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1715 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1963), dismissed, 52 Misc. 2d 797, 276 N.Y.S.2d 711, 1966 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1247 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1966).

For the purpose of the time requirement of the above statute a cause of action for false imprisonment does not accrue until the party has been discharged from restraint, including bail. Caminito v New York, 45 Misc. 2d 241, 256 N.Y.S.2d 670, 1965 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2278 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1965), aff'd in part, modified, 25 A.D.2d 848, 269 N.Y.S.2d 826, 1966 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4364 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1966).

Arrestee was obligated to file a timely notice of claim by May 16, 2018, 90 days after the dismissal of all charges on February 15, 2018; because the arrestee did not cross-move to amend until June 26, 2019, amendment had be rejected as untimely. Wiggins v City of New York, 69 Misc. 3d 620, 133 N.Y.S.3d 178, 2020 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 4076 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 2020).

Pendent state-law tort claims against village police officers are barred by statutory limitations period imposed by CLS Gen Mun Law § 50-i, despite plaintiff's claim that January 22, 1990 state-court decision concerning status of village police officers gave rise to new cause of action, where claims are and always have been predicated upon underlying arrest on December 12, 1984, because notice of claim and time limitations imposed by §§ 50-e and 50-i began to run as of date of arrest and had run out by time notice of claim was filed April 6, 1990. Malone v McHugh, 797 F. Supp. 154, 1991 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 20782 (E.D.N.Y. 1991), aff'd, 968 F.2d 1480, 1992 U.S. App. LEXIS 14220 (2d Cir. N.Y. 1992).

8. —Medical malpractice

Medical malpractice action could not be maintained against city for failure to comply with sections of general municipal law pertaining to time for filing notice of claim and commencement of actions. Davis v New York, 47 A.D.2d 529, 363 N.Y.S.2d 599, 1975 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8588 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't), aff'd, 38 N.Y.2d 257, 379 N.Y.S.2d 721, 342 N.E.2d 516, 1975 N.Y. LEXIS 2348 (N.Y. 1975).

Provision of General Municipal Law requiring that in tort suits against county a notice of claim must be served upon the county and upon the officer, agent, servant or employee of the county is superseded by provision of General Municipal Law requiring service of notice of claim upon the municipality but not requiring personal service of notice upon the individual official, servant, agent or employee of the municipality, and plaintiffs, who brought suit for medical malpractice by physicians employed by county, were not required to serve notice of claim upon the physicians. Schiavone v County of Nassau, 51 A.D.2d 980, 380 N.Y.S.2d 711, 1976 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11720 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1976), aff'd, 41 N.Y.2d 844, 393 N.Y.S.2d 701, 362 N.E.2d 252, 1977 N.Y. LEXIS 1888 (N.Y. 1977).

In a malpractice action arising out of the defendant doctor's allegedly negligent treatment of plaintiff at a New York City ambulatory care facility, the defendant's motion for summary judgment dismissing the complaint is granted, the Court of Appeals having determinined on a prior appeal involving the defendant's attempt to implead the city that the facility was a public institution maintained in part by the City of New York within the meaning of subdivision 1 of section 50-d of the General Municipal Law and that, accordingly, the city was required to indemnify the doctor, since plaintiff failed to comply with subdivision 2 of section 50-d of the General Municipal Law in that no notice of claim was served on the city pursuant to section 50-e of the General Municipal Law and the action was commenced well beyond the one-year and three-month Statute of Limitations provided in section 50-i of the General Municipal Law; the fact that the city did not interpose the statutory defenses in the prior impleader action does not require denial of the motion, since plaintiff was in no way misled by the city's previous position that under a contractual arrangement it was not required to indemnify the defendant doctor and in no way relied on it, and, moreover, the motion for summary judgment was brought by the defendant doctor. Additionally, the notice of claim and short Statute of Limitations provisions of sections 50-e and 50-i are defenses which may be raised by the doctor even though he, and not the city, was sued, and defendant is not estopped from interposing the statutory defenses since there was no evidence that the city had entered into arrangements with regard to the facility that had the capacity to, and in fact did, mislead the plaintiff to her detriment. Norr v Spiegler, 72 A.D.2d 20, 423 N.Y.S.2d 177, 1980 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9653 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1980), aff'd, 53 N.Y.2d 661, 438 N.Y.S.2d 1000, 421 N.E.2d 120, 1981 N.Y. LEXIS 2319 (N.Y. 1981).

Causes of action for conscious pain and suffering allegedly caused by medical malpractice of defendants, New York City Health and Hospitals Corporation and one of its staff physicians, were properly dismissed on ground that notice of claim was not served within 90 days of accrual, which was, at latest, date of death, and no motion for leave to serve late notice of claim was made within one year and 90-days Statute of Limitations; 1990 amendment to CLS Unconsol Ch 214-A § 20 (L1990, ch 804, § 122) excepting "an action for wrongful death" from usual 90-days-after-accrual rule does not mean that causes of action for wrongful death and conscious pain and suffering are so inextricably intertwined in context of medical malpractice that notice of claim time requirements applicable to former should govern latter. Yoo v New York City Health & Hosps. Corp., 239 A.D.2d 267, 657 N.Y.S.2d 189, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5281 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1997).

Trial court erred in denying a father's motion, on behalf of his infant child, for leave to serve a late notice of claim or to deem a late notice of claim timely served nunc pro tunc because the statute of limitations was tolled for 10 years by the child's infancy, and the medical records provided the hospital with actual knowledge of the essential facts constituting the malpractice claim inasmuch as they showed that the mother was not admitted to the hospital, despite a physician's order, that two days later, the child was delivered one hour after the mother arrived at the hospital and only after a fetal heart monitor alarm sounded four times. J.H. v New York City Health & Hosps. Corp., 169 A.D.3d 880, 94 N.Y.S.3d 345, 2019 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1236 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2019).

Postponement of accrual date of medical malpractice cause of action by virtue of "foreign objects" rule extended time in which action could be commenced against municipality. Darragh v County of Nassau, 91 Misc. 2d 53, 397 N.Y.S.2d 553, 1977 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2234 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1977), aff'd, 63 A.D.2d 1010, 405 N.Y.S.2d 1020, 1978 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12098 (N.Y. Medical malpractice action against a physician who was acting as an unpaid designee of a non-physician county mental health director when he examined the patient was subject to the notice of claim and limitations requirements applicable to all actions against public officers; if the physician was entitled to indemnification by the county, the statutes applicable to actions against a local governmental entity applied. Anderson v House of the Good Samaritan Hosp., 194 Misc. 2d 171, 752 N.Y.S.2d 815, 2002 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1576 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 2002), app. dismissed, 5 A.D.3d 1058, 773 N.Y.S.2d 687, 2004 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3122 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 2004).

9. —Wrongful death

Since time limitation within which claim against municipality is to be made is to be computed from date of event, i.e., death, in wrongful death action, action of widow against village for husband's wrongful death was barred where claim was not made against village until almost five years after husband's disappearance, when wife learned that he probably had died on date of disappearance. Phillips v Waterford, 48 A.D.2d 745, 368 N.Y.S.2d 77, 1975 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9823 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1975).

Because an administrator served a wrongful death notice of claim on a county within a month of the administrator's appointment, the notice of claim was timely under N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e(1)(a), General Municipal Law § 50-i(1); therefore, leave to file late notice was not necessary under § 50-e(5). Heslin v County of Greene, 53 A.D.3d 996, 862 N.Y.S.2d 210, 2008 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6328 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2008), aff'd, 14 N.Y.3d 67, 896 N.Y.S.2d 723, 923 N.E.2d 1111, 2010 N.Y. LEXIS 14 (N.Y. 2010).

10. —Miscellaneous claims

Pedestrian who fell on allegedly broken and defective sidewalk was entitled to amend complaint to add uncontested factual allegation that defendant city had removed tree stump several years earlier, thereby creating defective sidewalk condition, to support pedestrian's contention that she was not required to provide city with prior written notice of unsafe condition; however, amended complaint could not be construed as stating separate cause of action based solely on city's negligence in removing tree stump since, if complaint were so construed, removal of stump would constitute "happening of the event" for purposes of CLS Gen Mun § 50-i, rendering pedestrian's action untimely. Kiernan v Thompson, 73 N.Y.2d 840, 537 N.Y.S.2d 122, 534 N.E.2d 39, 1988 N.Y. LEXIS 3532 (N.Y. 1988).

Where complaint's first cause of action explicitly alleged that defendant board of cooperative educational services, by certain specified conduct, had breached contract entered into with plaintiff, and portion of complaint styled "second cause of action" did not allege any additional conduct by defendant board, but simply realleged first cause of action and alleged that defendant board had acted maliciously and recklessly so as to justify assessment of punitive damages, so-called "second cause of action" was not founded upon tort, and did not state claim for prima facie tort, but entire complaint sounded wholly in contract, and therefore, statute governing service of summons and complaint in actions against school district "founded upon tort" was inapplicable. Effective Communications West, Inc. v Board of Cooperative Educational Services of Sole Supervisory Dist., 57 A.D.2d 485, 395 N.Y.S.2d 296, 1977 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11401 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1977).

Where CLS Gen Mun §§ 50-e and 50-i are applicable because claim is asserted against municipality, statute of limitations of one year and 90 days is measured from date of discovery of injury caused by latent effects of exposure to toxic substances, or from date when, through exercise of reasonable diligence, injury should have been discovered, whichever is earlier. Annunziato v City of New York, 224 A.D.2d 31, 647 N.Y.S.2d 850, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9790 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1996).

Statute of limitations period in CLS Gen Mun § 50-i for wrongful death actions is not affected by discovery rule in CLS CPLR § 214-c, which is limited to causes of action for personal injury and injury to property, and thus wrongful death causes of action were barred where not commenced within 2 years of death. Annunziato v City of New York, 224 A.D.2d 31, 647 N.Y.S.2d 850, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9790 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1996).

Action commenced in 1997, alleging that lengthy sidewalk closure which resulted in losses at plaintiffs' respective businesses was due to New York City Transit Authority's negligence in "planning, design and construction" of elevator project that necessitated closure of sidewalk, was time barred under CLS Gen Mun § 50-i(1) and CLS Pub A § 1212(2) in that claim accrued at time of closure of sidewalk in 1994. Princess Video, Inc. v City of New York, 277 A.D.2d 300, 716 N.Y.S.2d 82, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11714 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2000), app. denied, 96 N.Y.2d 705, 725 N.Y.S.2d 277, 748 N.E.2d 1073, 2001 N.Y. LEXIS 276 (N.Y. 2001).

Petitioners were not entitled to serve a late notice of claim for respiratory injuries arising from the terrorist attacks of September 11, 2001 pursuant to N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-e as the proceeding was barred by the one year and 90-day statute of limitations under N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 50-i as only a conclusory assertion was made that the respiratory illness was not apparent until its diagnosis; such an assertion lacked probative value as to when such illness should have been discovered under N.Y. C.P.L.R. § 214-c(3). Matter of Felder v City of New York, 53 A.D.3d 401, 862 N.Y.S.2d 36, 2008 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5849 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't), app. denied, 11 N.Y.3d 707, 868 N.Y.S.2d 599, 897 N.E.2d 1083, 2008 N.Y. LEXIS 3281 (N.Y. 2008).

Time limitation for action under General Municipal Law provision that action against school district for personal injuries allegedly sustained by reason of negligence or wrongful act of school district or its employee must be commenced within one year and 90 days after happening of event upon which claim is based was intended to commence not upon accrual of plaintiff's cause of action but when accident occurred. Cota v Madison Cent. School Dist., 89 Misc. 2d 646, 392 N.Y.S.2d 233, 1977 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1913 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1977), aff'd, 62 A.D.2d 1083, 404 N.Y.S.2d 547, 1978 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11178 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1978).

The 90-day period of limitation within which to file a notice of claim against defendant city (General Municipal Law, §§ 50-e, 50-i, subd 1, par [a]) based upon the city's alleged negligence in not timely filing plaintiff's claim for accidental disability retirement with the State Policemen's and Firemen's Retirement System (Retirement and Social Security Law, § 363, subd c) after plaintiff suffered a heart attack while fighting a fire in February, 1972, began to run on April 9, 1975 when plaintiff's attorney, after many requests, received the time-stamped copy of the notice of accident filed by the city and not from an April, 1973 hearing when plaintiff and his attorney first became aware that there might be a question as to the timeliness of the city's notice since the general rule is that the period of limitations is measured from the date that the cause of action accrues when the party is first enabled to bring his action and plaintiff could not have been sure that he was aggrieved, and thus first able to bring suit, until he had actual knowledge that his claim had been filed late by the city. Kelly v Rochester, 98 Misc. 2d 435, 413 N.Y.S.2d 1006, 1979 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2093 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1979).

For purposes of both the 90-day period of limitations within which to file a claim against defendant city "after the claim arises" (General Municipal Law, §§ 50-e, 50-i, subd 1, par [a]) based upon the city's alleged negligence in not timely filing plaintiff's claim for accidental disability retirement with the State Policemen's and Firemen's Retirement System (Retirement and Social Security Law, § 363, subd c) and the one-year and 90-day period of limitations within which to commence suit "after the happening of the event upon which the claim is based" (General Municipal Law, § 50-i, subd 1, par [c]), the statutory periods commenced and plaintiff's cause of action accrued either on the date that plaintiff, by receipt of the time-stamped copy of the notice of accident filed by the city, first received actual knowledge that his claim was not timely filed by the city or on the date that plaintiff's claim for benefits was formally rejected by the retirement system since, had plaintiff been granted benefits by the system, there would be no claim, no cause of action and no injury. Kelly v Rochester, 98 Misc. 2d 435, 413 N.Y.S.2d 1006, 1979 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2093 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1979).

11. Limitations period

An action against a municipality for personal injury or property damage must be commenced within one year and 90 days after "the happenning of the event upon which the claim is based." Klein v Yonkers, 53 N.Y.2d 1011, 442 N.Y.S.2d 477, 425 N.E.2d 865, 1981 N.Y. LEXIS 2546 (N.Y. 1981).

Although school district sent letter to plaintiffs acknowledging timely receipt of notice of claim, making obviously erroneous reference to receipt of summons and complaint, demanded hearing pursuant to CLS Gen Mun § 50-h, and sent letter to plaintiffs' attorney suggesting "amicable resolution of this matter," school district was nevertheless not estopped to object to plaintiffs' failure to serve summons and complaint until 17 days after expiration of statute of limitations since plaintiffs failed to demonstrate existence of fraud, misrepresentation or deception inducing them to refrain from timely commencement of action. Montelione v Greenburg Edgemont Union Free School Dist., 175 A.D.2d 113, 572 N.Y.S.2d 17, 1991 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9775 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1991).
