(h) Alternative participation in company responses. A maximum of twenty-five points may be granted for participation in company responses at a rate equal to no more than one-half point per response as determined by the sponsor. A volunteer ambulance worker who is granted points toward a year of ambulance service pursuant to this paragraph may not be granted points toward the same year of ambulance service for participation in company responses pursuant to paragraph (g) of this subdivision.

(i) Miscellaneous activities — maximum fifteen points. Participation in inspections and other activities covered by the volunteer ambulance workers' benefit law and not otherwise listed — one point per activity.

(j) Activities; designation. The sponsor may designate less than all the activities specified in this subdivision as activities for which points may be earned.

(k) [Expires and repealed December 31, 2022] Determination of points. For purposes of determining total points earned for a calendar year in which a state disaster emergency, as defined in section twenty of the executive law, has been declared pursuant to executive order number two hundred two of two thousand twenty, as amended, to address the outbreak of novel coronavirus, COVID-19, an active volunteer ambulance worker award program may provide for the crediting of up to five additional points per month, prorated for periods of less than one month, to each volunteer ambulance worker for each month that special emergency response rules were in place restricting ambulance workers responses to emergency responses and/or restricting the holding of activities for which points could be earned due to guidelines related to the state disaster emergency. A political subdivision electing to provide the additional points authorized under this subdivision shall adopt a resolution by April thirtieth, two thousand twenty-one determining the number of additional points to be credited per month, provided that any additional points credited pursuant to this paragraph shall be in addition to any other points earned pursuant to this section during the state disaster emergency.

4. Points toward a year of ambulance service may be granted for activities performed after a participant reaches entitlement age, but shall not be granted for activities performed after a participant applies for a service award. The maximum number of years for which a participant may receive credit for a year of ambulance service shall be forty years.

5. A service award program which is to take effect on a day other than the first day of January may provide for points to be granted toward a year of ambulance service for activities performed prior to the effective date of the program and on or after the immediately preceding first day of January, provided, the proposition authorizing adoption of the program contains a statement authorizing points to be granted for such activities. Points attributable to such activities shall be granted in accordance with the point system adopted by the sponsor pursuant to subdivision three of this section.

6. In computing credit for those volunteer ambulance workers who also serve as paid employees within a political subdivision of the state, credit shall not be given for activities performed during the individual's regularly assigned work periods.

7. A participant whose ambulance service is interrupted by full-time extended obligatory military service or by a single voluntary enlistment not to exceed four years in the armed forces of the United States shall be considered on military leave. During such period of military leave, the participant shall receive fifty points for each full year of military service, prorated for military service of less than a year.

7-a. An active volunteer ambulance worker's service award program may provide for the crediting of years of and points for volunteer ambulance service for periods after an active volunteer ambulance worker has reached the entitlement age and is receiving a service award.

8. The state comptroller may promulgate rules and regulations prescribing procedures and forms for the compilation and maintenance of records of the points accumulated by each volunteer ambulance worker. Each ambulance company shall compile and maintain such records in the manner prescribed.

9. The president, secretary and chief or comparable officers of each ambulance company shall submit to the governing board of the sponsor a list of all volunteer members, certified under oath, which shall identify those volunteer members who have qualified for credit under the award program for the previous year. Such list shall be submitted annually by March thirty-first or otherwise as provided in the rules and regulations of the state comptroller and shall be accompanied by such membership records and records of point accumulations as the governing board may require to substantiate the accuracy of the list. Notwithstanding the provisions of this subdivision a volunteer ambulance worker may request that his name be deleted from said list as a "participant". Such request for deletion shall be in writing and shall remain effective until withdrawn in the same manner.

10. The governing board of the sponsor shall review the list of each ambulance company and may delete the name of any person who was not a volunteer ambulance worker during the preceding calendar year or the name of any volunteer ambulance worker who did not earn fifty points during the preceding calendar year or whose point accumulation has not been adequately documented. Thereafter, the governing board shall approve the list and return a copy of the list to the ambulance company and forward a certified copy of the approved list to the program administrator.

11. Upon receipt of the approved list, the ambulance company shall post the list at its principal headquarters for at least thirty days. A volunteer ambulance worker whose name does not appear on the approved list shall have the right to appeal within thirty days of posting of the list. The appeal shall be in writing and mailed to the clerk or secretary of the governing board of the sponsor, which shall investigate the appeal. The decision of the governing board shall be subject to judicial review pursuant to article seventy-eight of the civil practice law and rules.

12. A service award program may provide credit for years of ambulance service rendered by a participant during the five calendar years immediately preceding the year in which the program is adopted, but only if authorized pursuant to section two hundred nineteen-l of this article. In order to determine eligibility for such credit, each ambulance company shall review its prior membership rosters and service records to determine the number of years for which each participant is entitled to a contribution. In making such determination, the point system established pursuant to subdivision three of this section shall be used. The president, secretary and chief or comparable officers of the ambulance company shall submit to the governing board of the sponsor a certified list of participants who are entitled to such credit and the number of years for which each participant is entitled to such credit, and such membership and service records as the governing board may require. The list shall be submitted to and approved by the governing board, and posted by the ambulance company, at the same time and in the same manner as provided in subdivisions nine through eleven of this section, and each person named on the list approved by the governing board shall be entitled to the credit indicated thereon. A person whose name does not appear on the list as submitted to or approved by the governing board shall have the administrative and judicial remedies set forth in subdivision eleven of this section.

13. In the event that a volunteer ambulance worker is either totally and temporarily disabled or partially and permanently disabled as certified by the workers' compensation board or other competent authority approved by the state comptroller, and the disability occurs during the course of service as a volunteer while actively engaged in providing line-of-duty services as defined in the volunteer ambulance workers benefit law, the volunteer shall be credited with five points for each full month of such disability; provided, however, such volunteer shall cease to be credited with such line of duty disability points after attaining the entitlement age.

Amendment Notes The 2020 amendment by ch 113, § 3, added 3(k).

§ 219-n. Benefits

1. The benefit payable under a service award program shall be the actuarial equivalent of an annual payment for life in one of the following amounts as selected by the sponsor:

(a) sixty dollars per year of ambulance service;

(b) one hundred twenty dollars per year of ambulance service;

(c) one hundred eighty dollars per year of ambulance service;

(d) two hundred forty dollars per year of ambulance service; or

(e) three hundred sixty dollars per year of ambulance service.

2. Service awards shall be paid in the form of a lump sum, a life annuity with or without survivor benefits, a period certain annuity, or any other form provided under the program, provided, that all forms of payment shall be actuarially equivalent to each other. The program may limit the forms of payment or impose conditions concerning the availability of a form of payment.

3. Except as otherwise provided in this section, a participant shall be entitled to apply for and receive a service award only when the participant has acquired a nonforfeitable right to a service award and has reached entitlement age.

4. In the event that a participant becomes totally and permanently disabled, as certified by the workers' compensation board or other competent authority approved by the administrator, and the disability prevents the participant from pursuing his or her normal occupation, the participant shall be entitled to apply for and receive a service award, regardless of whether the participant has reached entitlement age or has acquired a nonforfeitable right to a service award.

5. In the event of the death of a participant who has acquired a nonforfeitable right to a service award, the beneficiaries designated by the participant or, if no beneficiaries have been so designated, the participant's estate, shall be entitled to apply for and receive a lump sum death benefit, regardless of whether the participant reached entitlement age before death. Such benefit shall be equal to the lump sum equivalent of the service award earned by the participant at the date of death, provided that the benefit provided pursuant to this subdivision shall not be paid following commencement of payment of a service award.

6. A service award shall be paid only after an application is made to the program administrator and the administrator approves the application.

7. No service award may be assigned or alienated except to provide for the legally obligated support of minor children or a spouse.

8. Payment of a service award shall not impair any rights of volunteer ambulance workers under the volunteer ambulance workers' benefit law or any other law.

§ 8. This act shall take effect immediately; provided, however, any change or amendment to a service award program made by this act shall only take effect as of the first of January next succeeding completion of the proceedings required for adoption of the change or amendment, and shall only apply prospectively; and provided further that the governing board of any political subdivision with an existing service award program authorized by section 216 or 216-a of the general municipal law shall have 180 days from the effective date of this act to notify the state comptroller of the existence of such service award program and whether such service award program is a defined contribution plan or a defined benefit plan.

ARTICLE 11-AAAA Supplemental Service Awards for Volunteer Ambulance Workers and Firefighters

Section

219-q. Definitions
219-r. Authorization to adopt supplemental award programs
219-s. Participation and service credit
219-t. Contributions and benefits

HISTORY:
Add, L 2003, ch 357, § 1, eff Oct 18, 2003.

§ 219-q. Definitions

1. "Participant" means a participant as defined in subdivision six of section two hundred nineteen-c of this chapter, subdivision seven of section two hundred fifteen of this chapter and subdivision eight of section two hundred nineteen-k of this chapter. Participant also includes individuals who served as volunteer firefighters or ambulance workers in the timeframe specified by the program sponsor, prior to the enactment of the service award program.

2. "Supplemental award" means the benefit payable pursuant to a supplemental award program.

3. "Supplemental award program" or "program" means a plan established, adopted and maintained under this article to provide awards for volunteer firefighters and ambulance workers.

4. "Decade of service" means:

(a) ten calendar years during which a participant accumulates at least fifty points in accordance with the service awards program established pursuant to article eleven-A, eleven-AA or eleven-AAA of this chapter; or

(b) ten calendar years for which the participant can demonstrate, to the satisfaction of the sponsor, that he or she substantially met the standards for active service during those ten years.

HISTORY:
Add, L 2003, ch 357, § 1, eff Oct 18, 2003.

§ 219-r. Authorization to adopt supplemental award programs

1. No political subdivision shall be required to adopt a supplemental award program. Any supplemental award program adopted pursuant to this section shall be governed by the provisions of this article.

2. (a) A political subdivision may adopt a supplemental award program for volunteer firefighters only if that political subdivision has previously established a service award program for volunteer firefighters under article eleven-A or eleven-AA of this chapter.

(b) A political subdivision may adopt a supplemental award program for volunteer ambulance workers only if that political subdivision has previously established a service award program for volunteer ambulance workers under article eleven-AAA of this chapter.

3. A supplemental award program may be adopted only in the same manner as the service award program was adopted by a resolution of the governing board following the affirmative vote of at least sixty percent of the governing board and the approval of a proposition authorizing the adoption of the program at a referendum of the electors of the political subdivision. A proposition for the approval of such local resolution shall be submitted at the next general election of state or local government officers held in such local government not less than sixty days after the passage of such resolution.

4. The resolution authorizing adoption of a supplemental award program shall state:

(a) the amount of the contribution to the program to be made by the sponsor on behalf of each participant credited with at least one decade of service;

(b) the maximum number of years for which service may be granted;

(c) the date on which the proposition authorizing the adoption of the program shall be submitted to referendum;

(d) the date as of which the program shall take effect.

5. The proposition authorizing the adoption of the supplemental award program shall be submitted to referendum in the same manner as the service award program.

6. The proposition shall state:

(a) the estimated annual cost of the supplemental service award program;

(b) the portion of the estimated annual cost of the program, if any, to be paid by any other political subdivisions;

(c) annual cost per participant;

(d) whether the program provides credit for years of service rendered by a participant preceding the adoption of the supplemental service award program and the estimated cost of providing such credit.

7. Upon approval of the proposition, the supplemental award program shall be deemed adopted by the political subdivision in accordance with the terms of the resolution adopted by the governing board. The supplemental award program shall take effect January first next succeeding the date at which the proposition was approved.

8. Once a supplemental award program has been adopted, participation therein by the sponsor may be terminated, or the benefits under the program may be changed by resolution of the governing board of the sponsor receiving the affirmative vote of at least sixty percent of the governing board and the approval of a proposition at a referendum of the electors of the sponsor.

9. Payments under the supplemental program, if adopted, shall not impair any rights of the participants under the volunteer firefighters' benefit law or volunteer ambulance workers' benefit law or any other law.

HISTORY:
Add, L 2003, ch 357, § 1, eff Oct 18, 2003.

§ 219-s. Participation and service credit

1. A participant must be eligible to participate in a supplemental award program provided under this article if the participant has reached entitlement age and has completed at least one decade of service in the timeframe designated by the sponsor.

2. A decade of service shall be credited under a supplemental award program for each calendar year in the timeframe designated by the sponsor.

3. In order to provide credit each sponsor shall review its prior membership rosters to determine the number of decades of credit for each participant who is entitled to credit. In making this analysis, the standards for active service set forth in subdivision (c) of section two hundred seventeen or subdivision three of section two hundred nineteen-m of this chapter and adopted by the sponsor shall be used. Approval for such prior service shall require certification by the president, secretary and chief of the volunteer fire company.

4. In computing credit for those participants who also serve as paid employees within a political subdivision of the state, credit shall not be given for activities performed during the individual's regularly assigned work periods.

5. Sponsors may provide credit to participants whose service was interrupted by full-time extended obligatory military service or by a single voluntary enlistment not to exceed four years in the armed forces of the United States.

6. The president, secretary and chief or comparable officers of each volunteer company shall submit to the governing board of the sponsor a list of all participants, certified under oath, which shall identify those participants who have qualified for credit under the award program for the previous year. Such list shall be submitted annually by March thirty-first or otherwise as provided by local resolution and shall be accompanied by such membership records as the governing board may require to substantiate the accuracy of the list. Notwithstanding the provision of this subdivision a participant may request that his or her name be deleted from said list as a "participant." Such request for deletion shall be in writing and shall remain effective until withdrawn in the same manner.

7. The governing board of the sponsor shall review the list and may delete the name of any person whose point accumulation has not been adequately documented. Thereafter, the governing board shall approve the list and return a copy of the list to the appropriate company and forward a certified copy of the approved list to the program administrator.

8. Upon receipt of the approved list the company shall post the list at its principal headquarters for at least thirty days. A participant whose name does not appear on the approved list shall have the right to appeal within thirty days of posting of the list. The appeal shall be in writing and mailed to the clerk or secretary of the governing board of the sponsor, which shall investigate the appeal. The decision of the governing board shall be subject to judicial review pursuant to article seventy-eight of the civil practice law and rules.

HISTORY:
Add, L 2003, ch 357, § 1, eff Oct 18, 2003.

§ 219-t. Contributions and benefits

1. The sponsor of a supplemental award program shall contribute to the program a fixed amount of money, as determined by the sponsor, on behalf of each participant who is credited with a decade of service. The minimum contribution shall be twenty-five dollars per decade of service. The maximum contribution shall be one hundred dollars per decade of service.

2. The maximum number of years for which a participant may receive a contribution shall be determined by the sponsor, but in no event may a participant receive a contribution of more than fifty years.

3. Supplemental awards shall be paid in the form of a lump sum. The program may limit the forms of payment or impose conditions concerning the availability of a form of payment.

4. Except as otherwise provided in this section, a participant shall be entitled to apply for and receive a supplemental award only when the participant has acquired a nonforfeitable right to a service award established pursuant to article eleven-A, eleven-AA or eleven-AAA of this chapter and has reached entitlement age. A participant who served as a volunteer firefighter or ambulance worker in the timeframe specified by the program sponsor shall be entitled to apply for and receive a supplemental award only when the participant has reached entitlement age.

5. In the event that a participant becomes totally and permanently disabled, as certified by the workers' compensation board or other competent authority approved by the administrator, and the disability prevents the participant from pursuing his or her normal occupation, the participant shall be entitled to apply for and receive a supplemental award, regardless of whether the participant has reached entitlement age or has acquired a nonforfeitable right to a service award.

6. A supplemental award shall be paid only after an application is made to the program administrator and the administrator approves the application.

7. No supplemental award may be assigned or alienated except to provide for the legally obligated support of minor children or spouse.

8. Notwithstanding any inconsistent provision of law, no member of the governing board of a political subdivision of the state is prohibited by virtue of being a member of a volunteer fire or ambulance company or department from voting upon a resolution authorizing a referendum on the establishment of a service award program if more than forty percent of the governing board would otherwise be prohibited from voting upon such resolution. Any member of such governing board voting upon such a resolution who serves as a member of a volunteer fire or ambulance company or department shall publicly disclose in writing to the governing board such status. Such written disclosure shall be part of and set forth in the official record of the proceedings of such governing board.

§ 469. Approval of attorney general and other state officials

Prior to and as a condition precedent to its entry into force,

1. An interlocal agreement or any amendment thereto shall be submitted to the attorney general, who shall determine whether the agreement or amendment is in proper form and compatible with the laws and public policy of this state. The attorney general shall approve the interlocal agreement or amendment unless he shall find that it does not meet the conditions and requirements set forth herein. He shall report in writing to the governing boards of the contracting public agencies the specific respects in which the proposed agreement or amendment fails to meet the conditions or requirements of law or of public policy. The failure of the attorney general to disapprove an interlocal agreement or amendment within ninety days after receipt of the approvals required by subdivision two of this section, or within such longer period as shall be consented to by the contracting public agencies, shall constitute approval thereof.

2. In the event that an interlocal agreement or amendment thereto shall deal in whole or in part with the receiving, obtaining, providing or furnishing of services, facilities, personnel, equipment, or other property or resources, or the engaging in or performance of functions or activities with regard to which the attorney general shall certify that a department, officer or agency of this state has constitutional or statutory responsibilities, powers, functions or duties or acts as agent of the state in connection with any federal or interstate program, the agreement or amendment shall be submitted to such department, officer or agency, and shall be approved or disapproved by it or him as to all matters within its or his jurisdiction. This approval shall be subject to the same requirements governing the action of the attorney general under subdivision one of this section. This requirement of submission and approval shall be in addition to and not in substitution for the requirement of submission to and approval by the attorney general.

3. A legal opinion or opinions must be submitted to the attorney general, in such form as shall be prescribed or approved by him, concerning the authority of the contracting public agency or agencies of the other state or states to enter into the interlocal agreement or any amendment thereto.

4. A copy of the interlocal agreement and of any amendment thereto, certified by the clerk or other appropriate officer of the governing board of the contracting public agency of this state, shall be filed with the county clerk of each of the counties of this state in which such contracting public agency is located; and another copy, similarly certified, shall be filed with the secretary of state of this state.

§ 476. Definitions

As used in this article, the following terms shall have the following meanings:

1. "Municipality" shall mean any city, town or village within this state.

2. "Control commission" or "commission" shall mean the New York state gaming commission created pursuant to section one hundred two of the racing, pari-mutuel wagering and breeding law.

3. "Bingo" or "game" shall mean and include a specific game of chance, commonly known as bingo or lotto, in which prizes are awarded on the basis of designated numbers or symbols on a card conforming to numbers or symbols selected at random.

4. "Authorized organization" shall mean and include any bona fide religious or charitable organization or bona fide educational, fraternal, civic or service organization or bona fide organization of veterans, volunteer firefighters, or volunteer ambulance workers, which by its charter, certificate of incorporation, constitution, or act of the legislature, shall have among its dominant purposes one or more of the lawful purposes as defined in this article, provided that each shall operate without profit to its members, and provided that each such organization has engaged in serving one or more of the lawful purposes as defined in this article for a period of one year immediately prior to applying for a license under this article.

5. "Bingo control law" shall mean article nineteen-B of the executive law.

6. "Lawful purposes" shall mean one or more of the following causes, deeds or activities:

(a) Those which shall benefit needy or deserving persons indefinite in number by enhancing their opportunity for religious or educational advancement, by relieving them from disease, suffering or distress, or by contributing to their physical well-being, by assisting them in establishing themselves in life as worthy and useful citizens, or by increasing their comprehension of and devotion to the principles upon which this nation was founded and enhancing their loyalty to their governments;

(b) Those which shall initiate, perform or foster worthy public works or shall enable or further the erection or maintenance of public structures;

(c) Those which shall initiate, perform or foster the provisions of services to veterans by encouraging the gathering of such veterans and shall enable or further the erection or maintenance of facilities for use by such veterans which shall be used primarily for charitable or patriotic purposes, or those purposes which shall be authorized by a bona fide organization of veterans, provided however that such proceeds are disbursed in accordance with the rules and regulations of the state gaming commission.

(d) Those which shall otherwise lessen the burdens borne by government or which are voluntarily undertaken by an authorized organization to augment or supplement services which government would normally render to the people.

7. "Net proceeds" shall mean (a) in relation to the gross receipts from one or more occasions of bingo, the amount that shall remain after deducting the reasonable sums necessarily and actually expended for bingo supplies and equipment, prizes, stated rental if any, bookkeeping or accounting services according to a schedule of compensation prescribed by the commission, janitorial services and utility supplies if any, license fees, and the cost of bus transportation, if authorized by the control commission, and (b) in relation to the gross rent received by an organization licensed to conduct bingo for the use of its premises by another licensee, the amount that shall remain after deducting the reasonable sums necessarily and actually expended for janitorial services and utility supplies directly attributable thereto if any.

8. "Net lease" shall mean a written agreement between a lessor and lessee under the terms of which the lessee is entitled to the possession, use or occupancy of the whole or part of any commercial premises for which the lessee pays rent to the lessor and likewise undertakes to pay substantially all of the regularly recurring expenses incident to the operation and maintenance of such leased premises.

9. "Authorized commercial lessor" shall mean a person, firm or corporation other than a licensee to conduct bingo under the provisions of this article, who or which owns or is a net lessee of premises and offer the same for leasing by him, her or it to an authorized organization for any consideration whatsoever, direct or indirect, for the purpose of conducting bingo therein, provided that he, she or it, as the case may be, shall not be

(a) a person convicted of a crime if there is a direct relationship between one or more of the previous criminal offenses and the integrity or safety of bingo, considering the factors set forth in article twenty-three-A of the correction law;

(b) a person who is or has been a professional gambler or gambling promoter or who for other reasons is not of good moral character;

(c) a public officer who receives any consideration, direct or indirect, as owner or lessor of premises offered for the purpose of conducting bingo therein;

(d) a firm or corporation in which a person defined in paragraph (a), (b) or (c) of this subdivision or a person married or related in the first degree to such a person has greater than a ten percent proprietary, equitable or credit interest or in which such a person is active or employed.

Nothing contained in this subdivision shall be construed to bar any firm or corporation that is not organized for pecuniary profit and no part of the net earnings of which inure to the benefit of any individual, member, or shareholder, from being an authorized commercial lessor solely because a public officer, or a person married or related in the first degree to a public officer, is a member of, active in or employed by such firm or corporation.

10. "Limited period bingo" shall mean the conduct of bingo by a licensed authorized organization, for a period of not more than seven of twelve consecutive days in any one year, at a festival, bazaar, carnival or similar function conducted by such licensed authorized organization. No authorized organization licensed to conduct limited period bingo shall be otherwise eligible to conduct bingo pursuant to this article in the same year.

11. "Supercard" shall mean a bingo card on which prizes are awarded, which card is selected by the player, containing five designated numbers, colors or symbols, corresponding to the letters B, I, N, G, O, displayed on the bingo board of the bingo premises operator, which can be played concurrently with the other bingo cards played during the game of bingo.

11-a. "Early bird" shall mean a bingo game which is played as a special game, conducted not more than twice during a bingo occasion, in which prizes are awarded based upon a percentage not to exceed seventy-five percent of the sum of money received from the sale of the early bird cards and which is neither subject to the prize limits imposed by subdivisions five and six of section four hundred seventy-nine and paragraph (a) of subdivision one of section four hundred eighty-one, nor the special game opportunity charge limit imposed by section four hundred eighty-nine of this article. The percentage shall be specified both in the application for bingo license and the license. Not more than one dollar shall be charged per card with the total amount collected from the sale of the early bird cards and the prize for each game to be announced before the commencement of each game.

11-b. "Bonus ball" shall mean a bingo game that is played in conjunction with one or more regular or special bingo games designated as bonus ball games by the licensed authorized organization during one or more consecutive bingo occasions in which a prize is awarded to the player obtaining a specified winning bingo pattern when the last number called by the licensed authorized organization is the designated bonus ball number. The bonus ball prize shall be based upon a percentage of the sales from opportunities to participate in bonus ball games not to exceed seventy-five percent of the sum of money received from the sale of bonus ball opportunities or six thousand dollars, whichever shall be less, and which is not subject to the prize limits imposed by subdivisions five and six of section four hundred seventy-nine and paragraph (a) of subdivision one of section four hundred eighty-one of this article. The percentage shall be specified both in the application for the bingo license and the license. Notwithstanding section four hundred eighty-nine of this article, not more than one dollar shall be charged per player for an opportunity to participate in all bonus ball games conducted during a single bingo occasion, and the total amount collected from the sale of bonus ball opportunities and the amount of the prize to be awarded shall be announced prior to the start of each bingo occasion.

12. "Prize", where supercard is played as set forth in subdivision eleven of this section, shall mean the sum of money or actual value of merchandise awarded to the winner or winners on a game card during a game of bingo and the sum of money or actual value of merchandise awarded to the winner or winners on a supercard in excess of the total receipts derived from the sale of supercards for that specific game.

13. "Ancillary non-gaming activity" shall mean any activity not directly related to the conduct or outcome of any game of bingo, and shall include assisting at any food concession, cleaning, maintenance and site preparation at the location where games of bingo are conducted.

3. Eligibility to vote
4. Filing local law with lottery commission
5. Free bingo
6. Political subdivision affected by authorization

1. Generally; approval

Under the State Constitution and implementing statutes, the game of bingo may not be conducted in the absence of affirmative referendum. It is not necessary to show that consideration was paid or agreed to be paid to play bingo. The game itself is controlled and the old lottery statute, Penal Law § 1370 et seq., is not in effect and prosecutions for unauthorized bingo must now be made under the General Municipal Law. Italian Community Home Federation, Inc. v Kelly, 12 Misc. 2d 33, 178 N.Y.S.2d 694, 1958 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2968 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1958).

No bingo, free or otherwise, is legally permissible unless the local area votes approval. Fedin v Hanifin, 22 Misc. 2d 570, 198 N.Y.S.2d 453, 1959 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3287 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1959).

A municipality may enact a local law or ordinance authorizing qualified organizations to conduct "limited period Bingo" without thereby authorizing the conduct of other forms of the game. 1985 NY Ops Atty Gen 85-F17, 1985 N.Y. AG LEXIS 3.

2. Referendum procedure

A referendum with respect to the authorization of the playing of bingo in the City of Buffalo could be held at the general election in November, 1958. Section 15 of Article IX of the State Constitution limiting the election of local officers to odd-numbered years did not preclude submission of questions or propositions of a local nature. Moreover, bingo amendments specifically authorize submission at general or special election without limitation as to odd-numbered years. Buffalo v Lawley, 6 A.D.2d 66, 175 N.Y.S.2d 547, 1958 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5469 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1958).

Procedure in reference to submission of and action upon any proposition for approval of a local law or ordinance authorizing bingo shall be the same as in the case of any other proposition to be submitted at a general or special election. A city is authorized to enact as local law the provisions of any general law or special act conferring "authority" on the city, and may hold a special election for submission of a bingo referendum. Provisions dealing with registration for a special election should be followed. A board of inspectors of elections need not be set up in each city election district to take registrations of electors, but there must be four inspectors of election in each election district. 1958 NY Ops Atty Gen Apr 1 (Informal), 1958 N.Y. AG LEXIS 125.

A town board, upon receipt of a petition, must cause to be submitted at a town election a proposition upon any question or resolution which may lawfully be submitted, pursuant to law. A proposition in reference to authorizing bingo is of the kind which must be submitted upon receipt of a petition. Following a favorable vote, the board must thereafter enact a bingo ordinance and submit a proposition thereon to referendum. 1958 NY Ops Atty Gen Apr 28 (Informal), 1958 N.Y. AG LEXIS 143.

An ordinance to approve bingo may be submitted to the voters not less than 20 days after its adoption, but a local law may not be submitted less than 60 days after its adoption. 1967 Op St Compt No. 67-856.

3. Eligibility to vote

The legislative body of a municipality should first enact an ordinance authorizing bingo and then submit a proposition thereon to the voters. Any person entitled to vote for officers of a municipality may vote on a proposition authorizing bingo. An ordinance to authorize bingo should be published in full. 1958 NY Ops Atty Gen March 17 (Informal), 1958 N.Y. AG LEXIS 112.

Any qualified elector of a town may vote on a proposition authorizing bingo in the town. It is not required that he be registered to vote at the last general election. 1958 NY Ops Atty Gen March 17 (Informal), 1958 N.Y. AG LEXIS 112.

A town elector, otherwise qualified, may vote on a bingo proposition although not a property owner in the town. 1959 NY Ops Atty Gen May 13 (Informal), 1959 N.Y. AG LEXIS 151.

4. Filing local law with lottery commission

Following disapproval of a bingo proposition at a town election, the board of trustees of a village located within the town may enact an ordinance authorizing bingo within the village, which will become effective if a proposition thereon is approved at a village election. A public hearing should be held prior to enactment of an ordinance legalizing bingo and a copy of such ordinance must be filed with the Lottery Control Commission within 10 days after its adoption. 1958 NY Ops Atty Gen March 18 (Informal), 1958 N.Y. AG LEXIS 115.

The common council of a city desiring to authorize bingo should first enact a local law and then submit a proposition thereon to the voters at a general or special election. A municipality must file with the State Lottery Control Commission a copy of a local law authorizing bingo within 10 days after said law was enacted. 1958 NY Ops Atty Gen March 31 (Informal), 1958 N.Y. AG LEXIS 124.

5. Free bingo

No bingo, free or otherwise, is legally permissible unless the local area votes approval. Fedin v Hanifin, 22 Misc. 2d 570, 198 N.Y.S.2d 453, 1959 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3287 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1959).

6. Political subdivision affected by authorization

A village board of trustees may exercise its discretion as to whether to submit a proposition to authorize the conduct of bingo to the village electors. 1959 NY Ops Atty Gen Sept 4 (Informal), 1959 N.Y. AG LEXIS 201.

§ 479. Restrictions upon conduct of bingo games

The conduct of bingo games authorized by local law or ordinance shall be subject to the following restrictions irrespective of whether the restrictions are contained in such local law or ordinance; but nothing herein shall be construed to prevent the inclusion within such local law or ordinance of other provisions imposing additional restrictions upon the conduct of bingo games:

1. No person, firm, association, corporation or organization, other than a licensee under the provisions of this article, shall conduct such game or shall lease or otherwise make available for conducting bingo a hall or other premises for any consideration whatsoever, direct or indirect.

2. No bingo games shall be held, operated or conducted on or within any leased premises if rental under such lease is to be paid, wholly or partly, on the basis of a percentage of the receipts or net profits derived from the operation of such game.

3. No authorized organization licensed under the provisions of this article shall purchase, lease, or receive any supplies or equipment specifically designed or adapted for use in the conduct of bingo games from other than a supplier licensed under the bingo control law or from another authorized organization.

4. The entire net proceeds of any game of bingo and of any rental shall be exclusively devoted to the lawful purposes of the organization permitted to conduct the same.

5. No prize shall exceed the sum or value of five thousand dollars in any single game of bingo.

6. No series of prizes on any one bingo occasion shall aggregate more than fifteen thousand dollars.

7. No person except a bona fide member of any such organization shall participate in the management or operation of such game.

8. No person shall receive any remuneration for participating in the management or operation of any game of bingo.

9. The unauthorized conduct of a bingo game and any wilful violation of any provision of any local law or ordinance shall constitute and be punishable as a misdemeanor.

9-a. No person licensed to sell bingo supplies or equipment, or their agents, shall conduct, participate in, or assist in the conduct of bingo. Nothing herein shall prohibit a licensed distributor from selling, offering for sale, or explaining a product to an authorized organization, or installing, or servicing bingo equipment, upon the premises of a bingo game licensee.

10. Limited period bingo shall be conducted in accordance with the provisions of this article and the rules and regulations of the commission.

1. To conduct bingo. (a) Each applicant for a license to conduct bingo shall, after obtaining an identification number from the control commission, file with the clerk of the municipality a written or electronic application therefor in the form prescribed in the rules and regulations of the control commission, duly executed and verified, in which such applicant shall state:

(1) the name and address of the applicant together with sufficient facts relating to such applicant's incorporation and organization to enable the governing body of the municipality to determine whether or not the applicant is a bona fide authorized organization;

(2) the names and addresses of the applicant's officers; the place or places where, and the date or dates and the time or times when, the applicant intends to conduct bingo under the license applied for;

(3) in case the applicant intends to lease premises for this purpose from other than an authorized organization, the name and address of the licensed commercial lessor of such premises, and the capacity or potential capacity for public assembly purposes of space in any premises presently owned or occupied by the applicant;

(4) the amount of rent to be paid or other consideration to be given directly or indirectly for each occasion for use of the premises of another authorized organization licensed under this article to conduct bingo or for use of the premises of a licensed commercial lessor;

(5) all other items of expense intended to be incurred or paid in connection with the holding, operating and conducting of such games of bingo and the names and addresses of the persons to whom, and the purposes for which, they are to be paid;

(6) the specific purposes to which the entire net proceeds of such games of bingo are to be devoted and in what manner; that no commission, salary, compensation, reward or recompense will be paid to any person for conducting such bingo game or games or for assisting therein except as in this article otherwise provided; and such other information as shall be prescribed by the rules and regulations of the commission.

(b) In each application there shall be designated an active member or members of the applicant organization under whom the game or games of bingo will be conducted and to the application shall be appended a statement executed by the member or members so designated, that he, she or they will be responsible for the conduct of such bingo games in accordance with the terms of the license, the rules and regulations of the commission and this article.

2. Commercial lessor. (a) Each applicant for a license to lease premises to a licensed organization for the purposes of conducting bingo therein shall file with the clerk of the municipality an application therefor in a form prescribed in the rules and regulations of the control commission duly executed and verified, which shall set forth the name and address of the applicant; designation and address of the premises intended to be covered by the license sought; lawful capacity for public assembly purposes; cost of premises and assessed valuation for real estate tax purposes, or annual net lease rent, whichever is applicable; gross rentals received and itemized expenses for the immediately preceding calendar or fiscal year, if any; gross rentals, if any, derived from bingo during the last preceding calendar or fiscal year; computation by which proposed rental schedule was determined; number of occasions on which applicant anticipates receiving rent for bingo during the ensuing year or shorter period if applicable; proposed rent for each such occasion; estimated gross rental income from all other sources during the ensuing year; estimated expenses itemized for ensuing year and amount of each item allocated to bingo rentals; a statement that the applicant in all respects conforms with the specifications contained in the definition of "authorized commercial lessor" set forth in section four hundred seventy-six of this article, and such other information as shall be prescribed by the rules and regulations of the commission.

(b) At the end of the license period, a recapitulation, in a manner prescribed in the rules and regulations of the commission, shall be made as between the licensee and the municipal governing body in respect of the gross rental actually received during the license period and the fee paid therefor. The licensee shall pay any deficiency of fee thereby shown to be due and any excess of fee thereby shown to have been paid shall be credited to such licensee, in such manner as the commission by rules and regulations shall prescribe.

Notes to Decisions

1. Generally

It is clear from provisions of §§ 480 and 481 that the issuance of local bingo licenses is up to the governing body of the municipality, or its clerk, if so designated, and the State Lottery Commission, under the authority given it by § 435 of the Executive Law to make rules and regulations governing issuance of such licenses gives that Commission no authority to adopt a rule which in effect invades the licensing power of the local authority. Local 320 Club, Inc. v Wackerle, 24 Misc. 2d 679, 206 N.Y.S.2d 957, 1960 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2322 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1960).

In view of the provisions of this section, it can be presumed that an organization granted a bingo license by a local town clerk qualified as a "charity" and eligible to obtain such a license. Febish v New York State Lottery Control Com., 32 Misc. 2d 558, 224 N.Y.S.2d 520, 1961 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1840 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1961).

The proposed Bingo Bucks advertising program is outside the scope of existing statutory authority. 1981 N.Y. Op. Att'y Gen. No. 30, 1981 N.Y. AG LEXIS 34.

§ 481. Investigations; matters to be determined; issuance of license; fees; duration of license

1. The governing body of the municipality shall make an investigation of the qualifications of each applicant and the merits of each application, with due expedition after the filing of the application.

(a) Issuance of licenses to conduct bingo. If the governing body of the municipality determines:

(i) that the applicant is duly qualified to be licensed to conduct bingo under this article;

(ii) that the member or members of the applicant designated in the application to conduct bingo are bona fide active members or auxiliary members of the applicant and are persons of good moral character and have never been convicted of a crime if there is a direct relationship between one or more of the previous criminal offenses and the integrity or safety of bingo, considering the factors set forth in article twenty-three-A of the correction law;

(iii) that such games of bingo are to be conducted in accordance with the provisions of this article and in accordance with the rules and regulations of the commission;

(iv) that the proceeds thereof are to be disposed of as provided by this article;

(v) that no commission, salary, compensation, reward or recompense whatsoever will be paid or given to any person holding, operating or conducting or assisting in the holding, operation and conduct of any such games of bingo except as in this article otherwise provided; and

(vi) that no prize will be offered and given in excess of the sum or value of five thousand dollars in any single game of bingo and that the aggregate of all prizes offered and given in all of such games of bingo conducted on a single occasion under said license shall not exceed the sum or value of fifteen thousand dollars, then the municipality shall issue a license to the applicant for the conduct of bingo upon payment of a license fee of eighteen dollars and seventy-five cents for each bingo occasion.

Notwithstanding anything to the contrary in this paragraph, the governing body shall refuse to issue a license to an applicant seeking to conduct bingo in premises of a licensed commercial lessor where such governing body determines that the premises presently owned or occupied by such applicant are in every respect adequate and suitable for conducting bingo games.

(b) Issuance of licenses to commercial lessors. If the governing body of the municipality shall determine that the applicant seeking to lease a hall or premises for the conduct of bingo to an authorized organization is duly qualified to be licensed under this article; that the applicant satisfies the requirements for an authorized commercial lessor as defined in section four hundred seventy-six that at the time of the issuance of an initial license, the governing body of the municipality shall find and determine that there is a public need and that public advantage will be served by the issuance of such license; that the applicant has filed its proposed rent for each bingo occasion; that the commission has approved as fair and reasonable a schedule of maximum rentals for each such occasion; that there is no diversion of the funds of the proposed lessee from the lawful purposes as defined in this article; and that such leasing of a hall or premises for the conduct of bingo is to be in accordance with the provisions of this article and in accordance with the rules and regulations of the commission, it shall issue a license permitting the applicant to lease said premises for the conduct of bingo to the authorized organization or organizations specified in the application during the period therein specified or such shorter period as the governing body of the municipality shall determine, but not to exceed one year, upon payment of a license fee of ten dollars plus an amount based upon the aggregate rent specified in the license and determined in accordance with the following schedule:

aggregate rental of	$100 to	$499...	$5.00
aggregate rental of	$500 to	$999...	$25.00
aggregate rental of	$1,000 to	$2,499...	$50.00
aggregate rental of	$2,500 to	$4,999...	$125.00
aggregate rental of	$5,000 to	$9,999...	$250.00
aggregate rental of	$10,000 to	$49,999...	$500.00
aggregate rental of	$50,000 to	$100,000...	$2,500.00
aggregate rental in excess of		$100,000...	$5,000.00

2. On or before the thirtieth day of each month, the treasurer of the municipality shall transmit to the state comptroller a sum equal to fifty percent of all commercial lessor license fees and the sum of eleven dollars and twenty-five cents per occasion of all license fees for the conduct of bingo collected by such municipality pursuant to this section during the preceding calendar month.

3. No license shall be issued under this article which shall be effective for a period of more than one year. In the case of limited period bingo, no license shall be issued authorizing the conduct of such games on more than two occasions in any one day nor shall any license be issued under this article which shall be effective for a period of more than seven of twelve consecutive days in any one year. No license for the conduct of limited period bingo shall be issued in cities having a population of one million or more.

Editor's Notes Laws 1973, ch 142, §§ 1, 2, provides as follows:

Section 1. The legislature hereby finds and declares that the conduct of the game of bingo and all attendant activities should be so regulated and adequate controls so instituted as to discourage commercialization in all its forms, including the rental of commercial premises for bingo games, and to ensure a maximum availability of the net proceeds of bingo exclusively for application to the worthy causes and undertakings specified in the laws of this state regulating the conduct of bingo.

§ 2. The legislature hereby further declares that there presently exists an emergency with regard to the licensing of new commercial lessors to lease premises for the conduct of bingo in the city of New York caused by the proliferation of commercial bingo halls and the consequent diversion of the net proceeds of bingo from the charitable, educational, scientific, health, religious, civic and patriotic causes and undertakings sponsored by the authorized organizations conducting bingo to and for the profit of such commercial lessors\.

Amendment Notes The 2017 amendment by ch 59, § 5 (Part MM), in 1(a), substituted "municipality determines" for "municipality shall determine," "such games of bingo" for "such games" twice, "reward of recompense what so ever" for "reward or recompese whatever," "five thousand dollars" for "one thousand dollars," "fifteen thousand dollars, then the municipality shall" for "three thousand dollars, it shall," "such governing body" for "it" and "such applicant" for "said applicant."

The 2019 amendment by ch 55, § 4 (Part II, Subpart E), redesignated former 1(a) as the introductory language and 1(a)(i) through 1(a)(vi); in 1(a)(ii), added "or auxiliary members" and substituted "if there is a direct relationship between one or more of the previous criminal offenses and the integrity or safety of bingo, considering the factors set forth in article twenty-three-A" for "or, if convicted, have received a pardon or a certificate of good conduct or a certificate of relief from disabilities pursuant to article twenty-three"; deleted "and if the governing body is satisfied" at the end of 1(a)(iv); in 1(a)(vi), added "of bingo" twice and deleted "provided, however, that" at the end; and added "Notwithstanding anything to the contrary in this paragraph" at the beginning of the last paragraph; and made related and stylistic changes.

Analysis

1. Generally
2. License to conduct bingo
3. License to commercial lessor

1. Generally

Holders of bingo licenses as authorized organizations had standing to seek nullification of a bingo license issued to a commercial lessor. Our Lady of Good Counsel, Roman Catholic Church & School v Ball, 45 A.D.2d 66, 356 N.Y.S.2d 641, 1974 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4703 (N.Y. 2. License to conduct bingo

Amendment of statute governing issuance of bingo license to require finding of public need and public advantage was not applicable, where city department's unexplained failure to notify state commission that its preliminary investigation had been completed was sole cause for nonissuance of license prior to effective date of the amendment. Our Lady of Good Counsel, Roman Catholic Church & School v Ball, 45 A.D.2d 66, 356 N.Y.S.2d 641, 1974 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4703 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1974), app. dismissed, 37 N.Y.2d 809, 375 N.Y.S.2d 572, 338 N.E.2d 328, 1975 N.Y. LEXIS 2131 (N.Y. 1975), aff'd, 38 N.Y.2d 780, 381 N.Y.S.2d 866, 345 N.E.2d 338, 1975 N.Y. LEXIS 2379 (N.Y. 1975).

It is clear from provisions of §§ 480 and 481 that the issuance of local bingo licenses is up to the governing body of the municipality, or its clerk, if so designated, and the State Lottery Commission, under the authority given it by § 435 of the Executive Law to make rules and regulations governing issuance of such licenses gives that Commission no authority to adopt a rule which in effect invades the licensing power of the local authority. Local 320 Club, Inc. v Wackerle, 24 Misc. 2d 679, 206 N.Y.S.2d 957, 1960 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2322 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1960).

Licenses may not be withheld from otherwise duly authorized and qualified bingo applicants for the sole reason that if additional licenses are issued, the economic impact on those organizations already licensed will be detrimental. Provision is made by Executive Law, § 435, for the State Bingo Control Commission to recommend appropriate legislation. 1974 N.Y. Op. Att'y Gen. No. 25, 1974 N.Y. AG LEXIS 12.

3. License to commercial lessor

The statute which empowers the Bingo Commission to withhold approval of rental charges proposed by commercial lessors, if it finds them not to be "fair and reasonable", is a valid exercise of the police power. Intercounty Associates v Ball, 25 A.D.2d 671, 268 N.Y.S.2d 412, 1966 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4730 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1966), aff'd, 21 N.Y.2d 859, 288 N.Y.S.2d 1011, 236 N.E.2d 165, 1968 N.Y. Notes to Decisions

1. Generally

Since this section requires a bingo license obtained from the local town clerk by an authorized organization to describe the place where and the date or dates when the games will be conducted, a summary order by the State Lottery Control Commission that no bingo shall thereafter be played at a designated hall, with respect to which local bingo licenses have already been issued for games to be played, amounts to an illegal revocation of the local license without notice and hearing, as required by § 484. Febish v New York State Lottery Control Com., 32 Misc. 2d 558, 224 N.Y.S.2d 520, 1961 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1840 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1961).

§ 488. Persons operating and conducting games; equipment; expenses; compensation

1. No person shall hold, operate or conduct any game of bingo under any license issued under this article except a bona fide member of the authorized organization to which the license is issued, and no person shall assist in the holding, operating or conducting of any game of bingo under such license except such a bona fide member or a bona fide member of an organization or association which is an auxiliary to the licensee or a bona fide member of an organization or association of which such licensee is an auxiliary or a bona fide member of an organization or association which is affiliated with the licensee by being, with it, auxiliary to another organization or association and except bookkeepers or accountants as hereinafter provided. Provided, however, any person may assist the licensed organization in any activity related to the game of bingo which does not actually involve the holding, conducting, managing or operating of such game of bingo. No game of bingo shall be conducted with any equipment except such as shall be owned absolutely or leased by the authorized organization so licensed or used without payment of any compensation therefor by the licensee. Lease terms and conditions shall be subject to rules and regulations promulgated by the board. This article shall not be construed to authorize or permit an authorized organization to engage in the business of leasing bingo supplies or equipment. No items of expense shall be incurred or paid in connection with the conducting of any game of bingo pursuant to any license issued under this article, except those that are reasonable and are necessarily expended for bingo supplies and equipment, prizes, stated rental if any, bookkeeping or accounting services according to a schedule of compensation prescribed by the commission, janitorial services and utility supplies if any, and license fees, and the cost of bus transportation, if authorized by the control commission.

2. Notwithstanding any provision of this article to the contrary, a person who is a bona fide member of an organization licensed to conduct the game of bingo and is also a bona fide member of one or more other organizations which are also licensed to conduct the game of bingo, and such organizations are not affiliates or auxiliaries of the others, shall be authorized to operate, conduct or assist in the operation or conduct of games of bingo held by any of such organizations licensed to conduct bingo.

A licensee may advertise the conduct of an occasion of bingo to the general public by means of newspaper, radio, circular, handbill and poster, by one sign not exceeding sixty square feet in area, which may be displayed on or adjacent to the premises owned or occupied by a licensed authorized organization, and through the internet or television as may be regulated by the rules and regulations of the commission. When an organization is licensed to conduct bingo occasions on the premises of another licensed authorized organization or of a licensed commercial lessor, one additional such sign may be displayed on or adjacent to the premises in which the occasions are to be conducted. Additional signs may be displayed upon any firefighting or ambulance equipment belonging to any licensed authorized organization which is a volunteer fire company, volunteer ambulance corps or upon any equipment of a first aid or rescue squad in and throughout the community served by such volunteer fire company, volunteer ambulance corps or such first aid or rescue squad, as the case may be. All advertisements shall be limited to the description of such event as "bingo", the name of the licensed authorized organization conducting such bingo occasions, the license number of the authorized organization as assigned by the clerk; the prizes offered and the date, location and time of the bingo occasion.

Analysis

1. Generally
2. Offenses
3. Judicial review

1. Generally

The entry of a "no contest" plea does not entitle an offender against subd 5 of the above statute to lenient treatment. The diversion of bingo proceeds from lawful purposes is a serious offense in the operation of this form of gambling which the Legislature exempts from prohibitions otherwise existing solely because the proceeds derived therefrom are to be applied to worthwhile causes. S/Sgt. Vincent J. Barbella Post v State Bingo Control Com., 46 Misc. 2d 1054, 261 N.Y.S.2d 611, 1965 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2084 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1965).

2. Offenses

Six-month suspension for falsification of bingo records and diversion of funds by treasurer was not so disproportionate to the offense as to shock one's sense of fairness where the licensee exercised no real control over its treasurer over five-year period, performing only perfunctory audits at annual meetings and making no examination of bank statements to verify balances. Scranton Volunteer Fire Co. v Ball, 37 A.D.2d 757, 323 N.Y.S.2d 463, 1971 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3595 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1971), aff'd, 30 N.Y.2d 589, 330 N.Y.S.2d 802, 281 N.E.2d 848, 1972 N.Y. LEXIS 1454 (N.Y. 1972).

The Bingo Commission is not restricted to instances of intentional fraud as grounds for suspension of license and may suspend a bingo license if books and records kept by the organization in question do not fully and truly record all transactions. In re Disabled American Veterans, 41 Misc. 2d 206, 246 N.Y.S.2d 234, 1963 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1804 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1963).

Where falsification of receipts of bingo games is established it may reasonably be inferred that the unreported receipts have been diverted to purposes other than those specified in the above statute. S/Sgt. Vincent J. Barbella Post v State Bingo Control Com., 46 Misc. 2d 1054, 261 N.Y.S.2d 611, 1965 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2084 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1965).

3. Judicial review

A licensee who files a plea of "no contest" waives the right of review of its guilt of the charge to which it pleads under the above statute. S/Sgt. Vincent J. Barbella Post v State Bingo Control Com., 46 Misc. 2d 1054, 261 N.Y.S.2d 611, 1965 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2084 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1965).

§ 495-a. Unlawful bingo or game

1. For the purposes of this section, "bingo" or "game" shall mean and include a specific game or [of][*] chance, commonly known as bingo or lotto, in which prizes are awarded on the basis of designated numbers or symbols on a card conforming to numbers or symbols selected at random, whether or not a person who participates as a player furnishes something of value for the opportunity to participate.

2. Any person, firm, partnership, association, corporation or organization holding, operating, or conducting bingo or a game is guilty of a misdemeanor, except when operating, holding or conducting:

(a) In accordance with a valid license issued pursuant to this article; or

(b) (i) Within a municipality that has authorized the conduct of bingo games by authorized organizations:

(A) within the confines of a home for purposes of amusement or recreation where (I) no player or other person furnishes anything of value for the opportunity to participate, and (II) the prizes awarded or to be awarded are nominal.

(B) within any apartment, condominium or cooperative complex, retirement community, or other group residential complex or facility where (I) sponsored by the operator of or an association related to such complex, community or facility, (II) such games are conducted solely for the purpose of amusement and recreation of its residents, (III) no player or other person furnishes anything of value for the opportunity to participate, (IV) the value of the prizes shall not exceed ten dollars for any one game or a total of one hundred fifty dollars in any calendar day, (V) such games are not conducted on more than one day per week and not more than thirty times during any calendar year, and (VI) no person other than an employee or volunteer of such complex, community or facility conducts or assists in conducting the game or games.

1. Generally

Use of word "bingo" by television game show broadcast into New York State does not itself bring that show within purview of bingo licensing law; however, if use of word "bingo" is accompanied by bingo type game which involves participation by home viewers, such activity creates impression that home participant is playing state sanctioned bingo which would bring activity within purview of state regulation. 1987 N.Y. Op. Att'y Gen. No. 87-F6.

Indians on a reservation must obtain a bingo identification number and a license issued by the State Bingo Control Commission prior to conducting any game of bingo. Notes to Decisions

1. Generally

In a community which has approved bingo licensing by referendum vote, the game can only be played in conformity with the "Bingo Licensing Law," but in one in which either no referendum has been held, or wherein bingo licensing has been defeated, playing of bingo is not in itself a violation of the General Municipal Law as long as the game is conducted as a "free" or "entertainment" game and does not amount to a lottery. People v Burns, 23 Misc. 2d 636, 207 N.Y.S.2d 762, 1959 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2397 (N.Y. County Ct. 1959), app. dismissed, 10 A.D.2d 809, 202 N.Y.S.2d 1010, 1960 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11394 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1960).

Where the plaintiff, who proposed to conduct a supermarket promotional game called "Super-Bingo" sought to enjoin state officials from interfering with the scheme, defendant's motion for summary judgment was granted, since Bingo could only be played in municipalities which had adopted a local law or ordinance legalizing it and then only by duly licensed authorized organizations. ARTICLE 17 Municipal Annexation Law

709. Annexation by a city of territory in fire, fire protection, or fire alarm districts; assumption of indebtedness; property rights
716. Restrictions and prohibitions

HISTORY:
Add, L 1963, ch 844, § 1, eff Jan 1, 1964.

1. If an annexation of territory by a city includes the entire area of a fire district, the city, as of the date of such annexation, shall become the owner of all of the property and property rights of the fire district and shall assume all of the indebtedness and contract or other liabilities of the fire district, and shall furnish fire protection, and other emergency service which would require the services of firefighters, in the area so annexed in the same manner as in other similar areas of the city.

2. If an annexation of territory by a city includes only a part of the area of a fire district, the indebtedness and any contract or other liabilities, and interest thereon, shall be a charge upon and shall be paid by the city, as the same shall become due and payable, to the fire district in the same proportion to the whole of any such indebtedness or any such liability as the full valuation of the taxable real property of the territory which is annexed bears to the full valuation of the taxable real property of the fire district prior to the annexation. Such full valuation shall be determined in the manner provided in subdivision twenty-one-a of section 2.00 of the local finance law. If the fire district owns any real property or rights in real property in the territory which is annexed, the city may purchase any such property, including any personal property used in connection therewith, from the fire district for a fair and reasonable price to be agreed upon by the governing boards of the city and the fire district and the board of commissioners of the fire district shall have power to execute any necessary instruments in relation thereto. Any such sale shall not be subject to approval at a fire district election. If such real property is a firehouse owned by the fire district, the city shall be required to purchase such real property and any rights in real property appurtenant thereto from the fire district. If the governing boards of the city and the fire district cannot agree on a fair and reasonable price therefor, the city shall proceed to acquire such real property and any such rights by condemnation in the same manner as if the property was owned by an individual. The city shall furnish fire protection, and other emergency service which would require the services of firefighters, in the area so annexed in the same manner as in other similar areas of the city.

3. If an annexation of territory of a city includes the entire area of a fire protection district or of a fire alarm district, the city shall furnish fire protection, and other emergency service which would require the services of firefighters, in the area so annexed in the same manner as in other similar areas of the city.

4. If an annexation of territory to a city includes only a part of the area of a fire district, a fire protection district or a fire alarm district, the governing boards of the city, the fire district and of the town, as the case may be, shall provide for the carrying out and fulfillment of any contract for the furnishing of fire protection to the area of such fire district, fire protection district or fire alarm district which is outside the city.

§ 716. Restrictions and prohibitions

Notwithstanding any other provision of this article or of any other law:

1. An annexation shall not affect the boundaries of any congressional district, senate district or assembly district.

2. The date on which any such annexation shall take effect shall be such that it will not deprive a qualified elector of his right to vote at the general election to be held on the first Tuesday next succeeding the first Monday in November of the year in which the annexation is to become effective.

3. A county shall not annex territory situated in another county unless the territory so annexed shall on the same date be annexed to either a city situated in whole or in part, or to a town situated in the county to which the territory is annexed.

4. A city shall not annex territory situated in a county other than a county in which such city is situated unless the territory so annexed shall on the same date be annexed to the county, or one of the counties, in which such city is situated.

5. A town shall not annex territory situated in a county other than the county in which such town is situated unless the territory so annexed shall on the same date be annexed to the county in which such town is situated.

6. A village shall not annex territory of a city unless the territory so annexed shall on the same date be annexed to the town, or to one or more of the towns, in which the village is situated.

7. A village may annex territory of another village, but such annexation shall not result in any change of the boundaries of any county or town. This provision shall not be deemed to prevent any such annexation simultaneously with an annexation of the same territory by a county and the town or towns in which the village to which such territory is to be annexed is situated in whole or in part or, when the territory so annexed is situated in the same county as such village, with an annexation of the same territory by the town or towns in which such village is situated in whole or in part.

8. A town may annex territory of a city, but such annexation shall not result in any change of the boundaries of a village. This provision shall not be deemed to prevent any such annexation by a town simultaneously with an annexation of the same territory by a county and by a village or villages situated in whole or in part in such town or with an annexation by a village or villages situated in whole or in part in such town.

9. A town may annex territory of another town, but such annexation shall not result in any change in the boundaries of a village. This provision shall not be deemed to prevent any such annexation by a town simultaneously with an annexation of the same territory by a village or villages situated in whole or in part in either or both of such towns.

10. An annexation by a county shall not increase the area of any county improvement district in such county. If a county annexes territory in another county and such territory includes in whole or in part the area of a county improvement district situated in the other county, the area of the county improvement district located in the territory annexed shall cease to be a part of such district when such annexation becomes effective.

11. If a city annexes territory of a town and such territory includes in whole or in part the area of any fire district, fire protection district or fire alarm district or of any town special district or of any town improvement district, the area of any such district located in the territory annexed shall cease to be a part of such district when such annexation becomes effective.

12. If a village annexes territory of the town in which it is situated or of another village located in such town or in another town, any such annexation shall not affect the boundaries of any town special or improvement district in such town or the boundaries of any fire district, fire protection district or fire alarm district.

13. If a town annexes territory of another town, such annexation shall not affect the boundaries of any fire district, fire protection district or fire alarm district, but the territory so annexed shall cease to be a part of any town special or improvement district in such other town when the annexation becomes effective.

TITLE 1 Definitions

HISTORY:
Add, L 2009, ch 74, § 2, eff March 21, 2010 (see 2009 note below).

§ 750. Definitions

As used in this article, the following terms shall have the following meanings:

1. "Component local government entity" shall mean a local government entity that, as a result of successful consolidation proceedings, is combined into a consolidated local government entity.

2. "Consolidation" shall mean either (a) the combination of two or more local government entities resulting in the termination of the existence of each of the entities to be consolidated and the creation of a new entity which assumes jurisdiction over all of the terminated entities, or (b) the combination of two or more local government entities resulting in the termination of the existence of all but one of the entities which shall absorb the terminated entity or entities.

3. "Consolidated local government entity" shall mean a local government entity resulting from successful consolidation proceedings conducted pursuant to this article.

4. "Contiguous" shall mean when a portion of a town or village abuts the boundary of another town or village, including a town or village separated from the exact boundary of another town or village by a street, road, railroad, highway, river or other natural or artificial stream or body of water.

5. "Dissolution" shall mean the termination of the existence of a local government entity.

6. "Dissolution plan" shall mean a written document that contains terms and information regarding the dissolution of a local government entity and that has been finalized and approved by such entity's governing body pursuant to this article.

7. "Elector" shall mean a registered voter of this state registered to vote in the local government entity subject to consolidation or dissolution proceedings conducted pursuant to this article.

8. "Elector initiated consolidation plan" shall mean a written document that contains terms and information regarding the consolidation of two or more local government entities, a majority of whose electors have voted to consolidate, and that has been finalized and approved by the governing body or bodies of such entities or a judicial hearing officer pursuant to this article.

9. "Elector initiated dissolution plan" shall mean a written document that contains terms and information regarding the dissolution of a local government entity, a majority of whose electors have voted to dissolve, that has been finalized and approved by such entity's governing body or a judicial hearing officer pursuant to this article.

10. "Governing body" shall mean the body in which the general legislative, governmental and/or public powers of a local government entity are vested and by authority of which the official business of such entity is conducted.

11. "Initiative" shall mean the filing of the petition containing a proposal for a referendum to be placed on the ballot for an election.

12. "Joint consolidation agreement" shall mean a written document that contains terms and information regarding the consolidation of two or more local government entities and that has been finalized and approved by the governing body or bodies of such entities pursuant to this article.

13. "Local government entity" or "entity" shall mean a town, village, district, special improvement district or other improvement district, including, but not limited to, special districts created pursuant to articles eleven, twelve, twelve-A or thirteen of the town law, library districts, and other districts created by law; provided, however, that a local government entity shall not include school districts, city districts or special purpose districts created by counties under county law.

14. "Proposed dissolution plan" shall mean a written document that contains terms and information regarding the dissolution of a local government entity, and that has been proposed, but not yet finalized and approved, by such entity's governing body pursuant to this article.

15. "Proposed elector initiated consolidation plan" shall mean a written document that contains terms and information regarding the consolidation of two or more local government entities, a majority of whose respective electors have voted to consolidate such entities, that has been proposed, but not yet finalized and approved, by the governing body or bodies of such entities pursuant to this article.

16. "Proposed elector initiated dissolution plan" shall mean a written document that contains terms and information regarding the dissolution of a local government entity, a majority of whose electors have voted to dissolve such entity, and that has been proposed, but not yet finalized and approved, by such entity's governing body pursuant to this article.

17. "Proposed joint consolidation agreement" shall mean a written document that contains terms and information regarding the consolidation of two or more local government entities and that has been proposed, but not yet finalized and approved, by such entities' governing body or bodies pursuant to this article.

18. "Referendum" shall mean a vote seeking approval by a majority of electors of a local government entity or entities voting on a question of consolidation or dissolution placed on the ballot by initiative.

TITLE 2 Consolidation of Local Government Entities

HISTORY:

Add, L 2009, ch 74, § 2, eff March 21, 2010 (see 2009 note below).

§ 751. Commencing the proceeding

1. Two or more local government entities, whether within the same county or different counties, may be consolidated into a single local government entity if each of the local government entities is contiguous to at least one of the other consolidating local government entities and if together the local government entities would form a consolidated local government entity of a kind or class that is authorized under the laws of the state of New York. The requirement that local government entities be contiguous to consolidate does not apply to entities other than towns and villages.

2. Consolidation proceedings may be commenced by either:

(a) a joint resolution by the governing body or bodies of the local government entities to be consolidated endorsing a proposed joint consolidation agreement; or

(b) elector initiative.

§ 754. Public hearings on proposed joint consolidation agreement

1. The governing body or bodies of the local government entities to be consolidated shall set a time and place or places for one or more public hearings on the proposed joint consolidation agreement. The hearing or hearings shall be held no less than thirty-five days and no more than ninety days after commencement of consolidation proceedings pursuant to section seven hundred fifty-two of this title. The hearing or hearings may be held jointly or separately by the governing body or bodies of the entities. Any interested person shall be given a reasonable opportunity to be heard on any aspect of the proposed consolidation.

2. The public hearing or hearings shall be held on notice of at least ten days, but not more than twenty days, published in a newspaper or newspapers having general circulation within each local government entity to be consolidated and displayed on a website maintained by each entity or otherwise on a website maintained by the village, town and/or county in which the entities are located. The notice of the hearing or hearings shall provide a descriptive summary of the proposed joint consolidation agreement and a reference to the public place or places within the entities where a copy of such agreement may be examined.

3. After completion of the final hearing, the governing body or bodies of the local government entities to be consolidated may amend the proposed joint consolidation agreement, provided that the amended version complies with the provisions of subdivision two of section seven hundred fifty-two of this title and is publicized pursuant to subdivision four of this section, and/or approve a final version of the joint consolidation agreement, or decline to proceed further with consolidation proceedings. Any approval by the entities' governing body or bodies of the final version of the joint consolidation agreement must occur within one hundred eighty days of such final hearing.

4. No later than five business days after amending the proposed joint consolidation agreement, the governing body or bodies of the local government entities to be consolidated shall:

(a) cause a copy of the amended version of the proposed joint consolidation agreement, along with a descriptive summary thereof, to be displayed and readily accessible to the public for inspection in a public place or places within each entity; and

(b) cause the amended version of the proposed joint consolidation agreement, along with a descriptive summary thereof and a reference to the public place or places within each such entity where a copy thereof may be examined, to be displayed on a website maintained by each entity or otherwise on a website maintained by the village, town and/or county in which the entities are located.

§ 757. Initiative of electors seeking consolidation

1. The electors of two or more local government entities may commence a consolidation proceeding by filing an original petition, containing not less than the number of signatures provided for in subdivision two of this section and in the form provided for in subdivision three of this section, with the clerk of the town in which the entities or the greater portion of their territory are located, except that if one or more of the entities to be consolidated is a village the original petition of electors from the village shall be filed with the clerk of the village. Accompanying the filed petition shall be a cover sheet containing the name, address and telephone number of an individual who signed the petition and who will serve as a contact person.

2. The petition shall contain the signatures of at least ten percent of the number of electors or five thousand electors, whichever is less, in each local government entity to be consolidated; provided, however, that where the local government entity to be consolidated contains five hundred or fewer electors, the petition shall contain the signatures of at least twenty percent of the number of electors. No signature on a petition is valid unless it is the original signature of an elector.

3. The petition shall substantially comply with, and be circulated in, the following form:

PETITION FOR LOCAL GOVERNMENT CONSOLIDATION

We, the undersigned electors and legal voters of (insert type of local government entity - e.g., town, village or district) of (insert name of local government entity), New York, qualified to vote at the next general or special election, respectfully petition that there be submitted to the electors and legal voters of (insert type and name of local government entities proposed to be consolidated), for their approval or rejection at a referendum held for that purpose, a proposal to consolidate (insert type and name of local government entity) with (insert type and name of local government entity or entities).

In witness whereof, we have signed our names on the dates indicated next to our signatures.

Date	Name - print name under signature	Home Address
1. _____	_____	_____
2. _____	_____	_____
3. _____	_____	_____

(On the bottom of each page of the petition, after all of the numbered signatures, insert a signed statement of a witness who is a duly qualified elector of the state of New York. Such a statement shall be accepted for all purposes as the equivalent of an affidavit, and if it contains a material false statement, shall subject the person signing it to the same penalties as if he or she has been duly sworn. The form of such statement shall be substantially as follows:

I, (insert name of witness), state that I am a duly qualified voter of the state of New York. Each of the persons that have signed this petition sheet containing (insert number) signatures have signed their names in my presence on the dates indicated above and identified themselves to be the same person who signed the sheet. I understand that this statement will be accepted for all purposes as the equivalent of an affidavit, and if it contains a materially false statement, shall subject me to the penalties of perjury.

Date Signature of Witness)

(In lieu of the signed statement of a witness who is a duly qualified voter of the state of New York, the following statement signed by a notary public or a commissioner of deeds shall be accepted:

On the date indicated above before me personally came each of the electors and legal voters whose signatures appear on this petition sheet containing (insert number) signatures, who signed the petition in my presence and who, being by me duly sworn, each for himself or herself, identified himself or herself as the one and same person who signed the petition and that the foregoing information they provided was true.

Date Notary Public or Commissioner of Deeds)

4. An alteration or correction of information appearing on a petition's signature line, other than an un-initialed signature and date, shall not invalidate such signature.

5. In matters of form, this section shall be liberally construed, not inconsistent with substantial compliance thereto and the prevention of fraud.

6. Within ten days of the filing of the petition seeking consolidation pursuant to subdivision one of this section, the clerk with whom the petition was filed shall make a final determination regarding the sufficiency of the number of signatures on the petition and provide timely written notice of such determination to the contact person named in the cover sheet accompanying the petition. The contact person or any individual who signed the petition may seek judicial review of such determination in a proceeding pursuant to article seventy-eight of the civil practice laws and rules.

7. Upon the clerk's determination that the petition contains not less than the number of signatures of electors required in subdivision two of this section, the governing body or bodies of the local government entities to be consolidated shall, no later than thirty days thereafter, enact a resolution in accordance with subdivision two of section seven hundred fifty-five of this title calling for a referendum on the proposed consolidation by the electors in each of the entities and set a date for such referendum.

§ 758. Conduct of referendum

1. A referendum required by sections [section]* seven hundred fifty-five or seven hundred fifty-seven of this title shall be placed before the electors of each of the local government entities to be consolidated at a special election to be held not less than sixty or more than ninety days after the enactment of a resolution calling for such referendum, provided, however, that in cases where a town or village general election falls within such period, the question may be considered during a town or village general election.

2. The referendum may be held in each local government entity on the same day, or on different days, however, not more than twenty days apart.

3. Notice of the referendum shall be given to the electors of each local government entity to be consolidated by publication in a newspaper having a general circulation within the boundaries of each entity at least once a week for four consecutive weeks immediately prior to the referendum. The notice shall include, but not be limited to:

(a) a summary of the contents of the resolution and joint consolidation agreement or petition for consolidation, as the case may be;

(b) a statement as to where may be examined a copy of the resolution and joint consolidation agreement or petition for consolidation, as the case may be;

(c) the names of the local government entities to be consolidated and a description of their territory;

(d) with respect to a resolution calling for a referendum under section seven hundred fifty-five of this title only, the name of the proposed consolidated local government entity;

(e) the time and place or places at which the referendum will be held; and

(f) such other matters as may be necessary to call, provide for and give notice of the referendum and to provide for the conduct thereof and the canvass of the returns thereupon.

4. The referendum question placed before the electors of each local government entity to be consolidated shall be in a form reading substantially as follows:

"Shall (insert type and name of local government entity) be consolidated with (insert type and name of local government entity or entities)?

YES

NO "

5. In any referendum held pursuant to this title, each local government entity to be consolidated shall bear only the costs of holding such referendum in its respective entity and shall not be required to bear the costs of a referendum held in any other entity.

6. In any referendum held pursuant to this title, and except as otherwise specified herein, the referendum shall be conducted in the same manner as other municipal elections or referendums for the local government entities to be consolidated.

§ 759. Canvassing of vote; moratorium on further referendum

1. In any referendum held pursuant to this title, the ballots cast shall be counted, returns made and canvassed and results certified in the same manner as other municipal elections or referendums for the local government entities to be consolidated.

2. Consolidation shall not take effect unless a majority of the electors voting in each local government entity to be consolidated vote in favor of consolidation. If in any one of the entities such a majority vote does not result, the referendum shall fail and consolidation shall not take effect.

3. If consolidation is approved by a majority of the electors voting in each local government entity to be consolidated, certificates of such result shall be immediately filed with the secretary of state and with the clerks of the entities and county in which any part of the entities is situated.

4. If the referendum shall fail, the consolidation process specified by this title shall not be initiated for the same purpose within four years of the date of such referendum. This subdivision, however, does not apply to a permissive referendum conducted

§ 760. Duty to approve proposed elector initiated consolidation plan

1. In the case of a proposed consolidation of local government entities properly initiated by petition of electors pursuant to section seven hundred fifty-seven of this title, if a majority of the electors voting in a referendum held in each of the local government entities to be consolidated vote in favor of consolidation, the entities' governing body or bodies shall meet within thirty days after certification of the favorable vote and, within one hundred eighty days of such meeting, prepare and approve by resolution a proposed elector initiated consolidation plan.

2. The proposed elector initiated consolidation plan shall include:

(a) the name of each local government entity to be consolidated;

(b) the name of what will be the consolidated local government entity, which name shall be such as to distinguish it from the name of any other like unit of government in the state of New York (except the name of any one of the entities to be consolidated);

(c) the rights, duties and obligations of the consolidated local government entity;

(d) the territorial boundaries of the consolidated local government entity;

(e) the type and/or class of the consolidated local government entity;

(f) the governmental organization of the consolidated local government entity insofar as it concerns elected and appointed officials and public employees, along with a transitional plan and schedule for elections and appointments of officials;

(g) a fiscal estimate of the cost of and savings which may be realized from consolidation;

(h) each entity's assets, including, but not limited to, real and personal property, and the fair value thereof in current money of the United States;

(i) each entity's liabilities and indebtedness, bonded and otherwise, and the fair value thereof in current money of the United States;

(j) terms for the disposition of existing assets, liabilities and indebtedness of each local government entity, either jointly, separately or in certain defined proportions;

(k) terms for the common administration and uniform enforcement of local laws, ordinances, resolutions, orders and the like, within the consolidated local government entity, consistent with section seven hundred sixty-nine of this title;

§ 763. Effective date of elector initiated consolidation plan; permissive referendum

1. Local government entities consolidated pursuant to an elector initiated consolidated plan shall continue to be governed as before consolidation until the effective date of the consolidation specified in such plan, which date shall be no less than forty-five days after final approval of such plan pursuant to subdivision three of section seven hundred sixty-two or subdivision four of section seven hundred sixty-four of this title.

2. Notwithstanding subdivision one of this section, the elector initiated consolidation plan shall not take effect if, no later than forty-five days after final approval thereof pursuant to subdivision three of section seven hundred sixty-two or subdivision four of section seven hundred sixty-four of this title, electors of a local government entity to be consolidated pursuant to such plan shall:

(a) file an original petition, containing not less than the number of signatures provided for in subdivision three of this section, seeking a referendum on the question whether the elector initiated consolidation plan shall take effect, with the clerk of the town in which the entity or the greater portion of its territory is located, except that if the entity is a village the original petition of electors from the village shall be filed with the clerk of the village; and

(b) thereafter less than a majority of the electors in the entity vote in the affirmative on such question at a referendum.

3. The petition shall be circulated, signed and authenticated in substantial compliance with the provisions of section seven hundred fifty-seven of this title, shall contain the signatures of at least twenty-five percent of the number of electors or fifteen thousand electors, whichever is less, in the local government entity to be consolidated, and shall be accompanied by a cover sheet containing the name, address and telephone number of an individual who signed the petition and who will serve as a contact person.

4. Within ten days of the filing of the petition seeking a referendum on whether the elector initiated dissolution plan shall take effect, the clerk with whom the petition was filed shall make a final determination regarding the sufficiency of the number of signatures on the petition and provide timely written notice of such determination to the contact person named in the cover sheet accompanying the petition. The contact person or any individual who signed the petition may seek judicial review of such determination in a proceeding pursuant to article seventy-eight of the civil practice law and rules. Upon the clerk's determination that the petition contains no less than the required number of signatures, the governing body of the local government entity to which such petition applies shall within thirty days enact a resolution calling for a referendum by the electors of such entity on the question whether to approve the elector initiated consolidation plan and set a date for such referendum in accordance with subdivision five of this section.

5. The referendum on the question whether the elector initiated consolidation plan shall take effect shall be submitted at a special election to be held not less than sixty or more than ninety days after enactment of a resolution pursuant to subdivision four of this section, provided, however, that in cases where a town or village general election falls within such period, the referendum question may be considered during a town or village general election.

6. Notice of the referendum shall be given to the electors of the local government entity to which the petition applies by publication in a newspaper having a general circulation within the boundaries of the entity at least once a week for four consecutive weeks immediately prior to the referendum. The notice shall include, but not be limited to:

(a) a summary of the contents of the resolution and elector initiated consolidation plan;

(b) a statement as to where may be examined a copy of the resolution and elector initiated consolidation plan;

(c) the time and place or places at which the referendum will be held, in accordance with subdivision five of this section; and

(d) such other matters as may be necessary to call, provide for and give notice of the referendum and to provide for the conduct thereof and the canvass of the returns thereupon.

7. In a referendum held pursuant to this section, the referendum question shall be placed before the electors of the local government entity to which the petition applies in a form reading substantially as follows:

"The voters of the (insert type and name of each local government entity to which the consolidation plan applies) having previously voted to consolidate, shall the elector initiated consolidation plan take effect?

NO"

8. The elector initiated consolidation plan shall not take effect unless a majority of the electors voting in the local government entity to which the petition applies vote in favor of such plan taking effect. If such a majority vote does not result, the referendum shall fail and consolidation shall not take effect.

§ 764. Court-ordered consolidation; mediation; judicial hearing officer

1. If the governing body or bodies of local government entities with a duty to prepare and approve a proposed elector initiated consolidation plan pursuant to section seven hundred sixty of this title fail to prepare and approve such plan or are otherwise unable or unwilling to accomplish and complete the consolidation pursuant to the provisions of this title, then any five electors who signed the petition seeking consolidation may commence a special proceeding against the entities pursuant to article seventy-eight of the civil practice law and rules, in the supreme court within the judicial district in which the consolidated local government entity or the greater portion of its territory will be located, to compel compliance with the provisions of this article.

2. If the court finds that the governing body or bodies attempted in good faith to prepare and approve a proposed elector initiated consolidation plan but were nevertheless unsuccessful, then the court may refer such matter to mediation pursuant to law, with costs of such mediation to be borne by the entities in such proportion as the court shall determine based on appropriate factors including population and the good faith efforts of the respective entities. If the governing body or bodies thereupon prepare and approve a proposed elector initiated consolidation plan conforming to the requirements of subdivision two of section seven hundred sixty of this title, then the provisions of sections seven hundred sixty-one, seven hundred sixty-two and seven hundred sixty-three of this title shall apply as if the governing body or bodies had proposed such plan without the benefit of court-ordered mediation.

3. In all other cases, if the petitioners in such special proceeding shall substantially prevail, then the court shall issue an injunction ordering the governing body or bodies of the local government entities to comply with the applicable provisions of this article. If the governing body or bodies shall violate the injunction, then the court shall appoint a judicial hearing officer pursuant to article forty-three of the civil practice law and rules to hear and determine an elector initiated consolidation plan for the entities that complies with the provisions of subdivision two of section seven hundred sixty of this title.

4. The final determination of the judicial hearing officer shall constitute final approval of the elector initiated consolidation plan and provide such plan takes effect forty five [forty-five]* days after the filing of such determination with the clerk of the court, unless a petition for a permissive referendum is properly filed pursuant to section seven hundred sixty-three of this title.

5. In any proceeding pursuant to this section in which the petitioners substantially prevail, the costs of such proceeding, including the costs of any judicial hearing officer appointed pursuant to subdivision three of this section, shall be borne by the local government entities proportionately, at the rate provided for in article twenty-two of the judiciary law and regulations promulgated pursuant thereto based on appropriate factors, including, but not limited to, population and the court's findings regarding the good faith efforts of the respective entities.

§ 765. General effect of consolidation

1. On and after the effective date of a consolidation, the consolidating local government entities shall be treated and considered for all purposes as one local government entity, under the name and on the terms and conditions set forth in the joint consolidation agreement or the elector initiated consolidation plan, as the case may be.

2. All rights, privileges and franchises of each component local government entity and all assets, real and personal property, books, records, papers, seals and equipment, as well as other things in action, belonging to each component local government entity shall be deemed as transferred to and vested in the consolidated local government entity without further act or deed.

3. All property, rights-of-way and other interests shall be as effectually the property of the consolidated local government entity as they were of the component local government entities prior to their consolidation. The title to real estate, either by deed or otherwise, under the laws of the state of New York vested in any of the component local government entities shall not be deemed to revert or be in any way impaired by reason of the consolidation.

4. The consolidated local government entity shall in all respects be subject to all the obligations and liabilities imposed and shall possess all the rights, powers, and privileges vested by law in other similar entities.

5. Upon the effective date of the consolidation, the joint consolidation agreement or the elector initiated consolidation plan, as the case may be, shall be subordinate in all respects to the contract rights of all holders of any securities or obligations of the local government entities outstanding at the effective date of the consolidation.

6. If a joint consolidation agreement or elector initiated consolidation plan provides for the dissolution of a local justice court, all court records of such court shall be deposited with a justice court judge to be designated by the administrative judge of the judicial district within which the dissolving justice court is located. The designated justice court judge shall have authority to execute and complete all unfinished business.

§ 768. Debts, liabilities and obligations

1. All valid and lawful debts and liabilities existing against a consolidated local government entity, or which may thereafter arise or accrue against the consolidated local government entity, which but for consolidation would be valid and lawful debts or liabilities against one or more of the component local government entities, shall be deemed and taken to be like debts against or liabilities of the consolidated local government entity and shall accordingly be defrayed and answered to by it to the same extent, and no further than, the component local government entities would have been bound if no consolidation had taken place.

2. The rights of creditors and all liens upon the property of any of the component local government entities of a consolidation shall be preserved unimpaired. The respective component entities shall be deemed to continue in existence to preserve such rights and liens, and all debts, liabilities and duties of any of the component entities shall thenceforth attach to the consolidated local government entity and be enforced against it to the same extent as if such debts, liabilities and duties had been incurred or contracted by the consolidated local government entity.

3. NOTES TO DECISIONS

1. In general

Appellate court properly affirmed the trial court's dismissal of the electors' referendum petition challenging the dissolution of the existing fire protection district (FPD) and the creation of two new FPDs because the town board fully and properly complied with all the requirements of the New N.Y. Government Reorganization and Citizen Empowerment Act in dissolving the existing FPD, no wind down was necessary as it had no employees, assets, or liabilities, the town board was empowered to create the new FPDs, and its decision to deliver the services formerly provided by the existing FPD by creating two new FPDs was a proper exercise of that authority. Matter of Waite v Town of Champion, 31 N.Y.3d 586, 106 N.E.3d 1167, 81 N.Y.S.3d 807, 2018 N.Y. LEXIS 1544 (N.Y. 2018).

2. The petition shall contain the signatures of at least ten percent of the number of electors or five thousand electors, whichever is less, in the local government entity to be dissolved; provided, however, that where the local government entity to be dissolved contains five hundred or fewer electors, the petition shall contain the signatures of at least twenty percent of the number of electors. No signature on a petition is valid unless it is an original signature of an elector.

3. The petition shall substantially comply with, and be circulated in, the following form:

PETITION FOR LOCAL GOVERNMENT DISSOLUTION

We, the undersigned, electors and legal voters of (insert type of local government entity — e.g., town, village or district) of (insert name of local government entity), New York, qualified to vote at the next general or special election, respectfully petition that there be submitted to the electors of (insert type and name of local government entity proposed to be dissolved), for their approval or rejection at a referendum held for that purpose, a proposal to dissolve and terminate (insert type and name of local government entity).

In witness whereof, we have signed our names on the dates indicated next to our signatures.

Date	Name - print name under signature	Home Address
1. _____	_____	_____
2. _____	_____	_____
3. _____	_____	_____

(On the bottom of each page of the petition, after all of the numbered signatures, insert a signed statement of a witness who is a duly qualified elector of the state of New York. Such a statement shall be accepted for all purposes as the equivalent of an affidavit, and if it contains a material false statement, shall subject the person signing it to the same penalties as if he or she has been duly sworn. The form of such statement shall be substantially as follows:

I, (insert name of witness), state that I am a duly qualified voter of the state of New York. Each of the persons that have signed this petition sheet containing (insert number) signatures, have signed their names in my presence on the dates indicated above and identified themselves to be the same person who signed the sheet. I understand that this statement will be accepted for all purposes as the equivalent of an affidavit, and if it contains a materially false statement, shall subject me to the penalties of perjury.

4. An alteration or correction of information appearing on a petition's signature line, other than an un-initialed signature and date, shall not invalidate such signature.

5. In matters of form, this section shall be liberally construed, not inconsistent with substantial compliance thereto and the prevention of fraud.

6. Within ten days of the filing of the petition seeking dissolution pursuant to subdivision one of this section, the clerk with whom the petition was filed shall make a final determination regarding the sufficiency of the signatures on the petition and provide timely written notice of such determination to the contact person named in the cover sheet accompanying the petition. The contact person or any individual who signed the petition may seek judicial review of such determination in a proceeding pursuant to article seventy-eight of the civil practice law and rules.

7. Upon the clerk's determination that the petition contains not less than the number of signatures of electors required in subdivision two of this section, the governing body of the local government entity to be dissolved shall, no later than thirty days thereafter, enact a resolution in accordance with subdivision two of section seven hundred seventy-seven of this title calling for a referendum on the proposed dissolution by the electors in the entity and set a date for such referendum.

§ 782. Duty to approve proposed elector initiated dissolution plan

1. In the case of a proposed dissolution of a local government entity properly initiated by petition of electors pursuant to section seven hundred seventy-nine of this title, if a majority of the electors voting at a referendum vote in favor of dissolution, the entity's governing body shall meet within thirty days after certification of the favorable vote and, within one hundred eighty days of such meeting, prepare and approve a proposed elector initiated dissolution plan.

2. The proposed elector initiated dissolution plan shall specify:

(a) the name of the local government entity to be dissolved;

(b) the territorial boundaries of the entity;

(c) the type and/or class of the entity;

(d) a fiscal estimate of the cost of dissolution;

(e) any plan for the transfer or elimination of public employees;

(f) the entity's assets, including but not limited to real and personal property, and the fair value thereof in current money of the United States;

(g) the entity's liabilities and indebtedness, bonded and otherwise, and the fair value thereof in current money of the United States;

(h) any agreements entered into with the town or towns in which the entity is situated in order to carry out the dissolution;

(i) the manner and means by which the residents of the entity will continue to be furnished municipal services following the entity's dissolution;

(j) terms for the disposition of the entity's assets and the disposition of its liabilities and indebtedness, including the levy and collection of the necessary taxes and assessments therefor;

(k) findings as to whether any local laws, ordinances, rules or regulations of the entity shall remain in effect after the effective date of the dissolution or shall remain in effect for a period of time other than as provided by section seven hundred eighty-nine of this title;

(l) the effective date of the dissolution;

(m) the time and place or places for a public hearing or hearings on such proposed dissolution plan pursuant to section seven hundred eighty-four of this title; and

§ 785. Effective date of elector initiated dissolution plan; permissive referendum

1. A local government entity dissolved pursuant to an elector initiated dissolution plan shall continue to be governed as before dissolution until the effective date of the dissolution specified in the elector initiated dissolution plan, which date shall be no less than forty-five days after final approval of such plan pursuant to subdivision three of section seven hundred eighty-four or subdivision three of section seven hundred eighty-six of this title.

2. Notwithstanding subdivision one of this section, the elector initiated dissolution plan shall not take effect if, no later than forty-five days after final approval of such plan pursuant to subdivision three of section seven hundred eighty-four or subdivision three of section seven hundred eighty-six of this title, electors of the local government entity to be dissolved shall:

(a) file an original petition, containing not less than the number of signatures provided for in subdivision three of this section, seeking a referendum on the question whether the elector initiated dissolution plan shall take effect, with the clerk of the town in which the entity or the greater portion of its territory is located, except that if the entity is a village the original petition of electors from the village shall be filed with the clerk of the village; and

(b) thereafter less than a majority of the electors vote in the affirmative on such question at a referendum.

3. The petition shall be circulated, signed and authenticated in substantial compliance with the provisions of section seven hundred seventy-nine of this title, shall contain the signatures of at least twenty-five percent of the number of electors or fifteen thousand electors, whichever is less, in the local government entity to be dissolved, and shall be accompanied by a cover sheet containing the name, address and telephone number of an individual who signed the petition and who will serve as a contact person.

4. Within ten days of the filing of the petition seeking a referendum on whether the elector initiated dissolution plan shall take effect, the clerk with whom the petition was filed shall make a final determination regarding the sufficiency of the number of signatures on the petition and provide timely written notice of such determination to the contact person named in the cover sheet accompanying the petition. The contact person or any individual who signed the petition may seek judicial review of such determination in a proceeding pursuant to article seventy-eight of the civil practice law and rules. Upon the clerk's determination that the petition contains no less than the required number of signatures, the governing body of the local government entity to be dissolved shall within thirty days enact a resolution calling for a referendum by the electors on the question whether the elector initiated dissolution plan shall take effect and set a date for such referendum in accordance with subdivision five of this section.

5. The referendum on the question whether the elector initiated dissolution plan shall take effect shall be submitted at a special election to be held not less than sixty or more than ninety days after enactment of a resolution pursuant to subdivision four of this section, provided, however, that in cases where a town or village general election falls within such period, the referendum question may be considered during a town or village general election.

6. Notice of the referendum shall be given to the electors of the local government entity to be dissolved by publication in a newspaper having a general circulation within the boundaries of the entity at least once a week for four consecutive weeks immediately prior to the referendum. The notice shall include, but not be limited to:

(a) a summary of the contents of the resolution and elector initiated dissolution plan;

(b) a statement as to where may be examined a copy of the resolution and elector initiated dissolution plan;

(c) the time and place or places at which the referendum will be held, in accordance with subdivision five of this section; and

(d) such other matters as may be necessary to call, provide for and give notice of the referendum and to provide for the conduct thereof and the canvass of the returns thereupon.

7. In a referendum held pursuant to this section, the referendum question shall be placed before the electors of the local government entity to be dissolved in a form reading substantially as follows:

"The voters of the (insert type and name of local government entity to be dissolved) having previously voted to dissolve, shall the elector initiated dissolution plan take effect?

NO

8. The elector initiated dissolution plan shall not take effect unless a majority of the electors voting in the local government entity to which the petition applies votes in favor of dissolution. If such a majority vote does not result, the referendum shall fail and dissolution shall not take effect.

§ 786. Court-ordered dissolution; judicial hearing officer

1. If the governing body of a local government entity with a duty to prepare and approve a proposed elector initiated dissolution plan pursuant to section seven hundred eighty-two of this title fails to prepare and approve such plan or is otherwise unable or unwilling to accomplish and complete the dissolution pursuant to the provisions of this article, then any five electors who signed the petition seeking dissolution may commence a special proceeding against the entity pursuant to article seventy-eight of the civil practice law and rules, in the supreme court within the judicial district in which the entity or the greater portion of its territory is located, to compel compliance with the provisions of this article.

2. If the petitioners in such special proceeding shall substantially prevail, then the court shall issue an injunction ordering the governing body to comply with the applicable provisions of this article. If the governing body violates the injunction, the court shall appoint a hearing officer pursuant to article forty-three of the civil practice law and rules to hear and determine an elector initiated dissolution plan for the entity that complies with the provisions of subdivision two of section seven hundred eighty-two of this title.

3. The final determination of the judicial hearing officer shall constitute the final approval of the elector initiated dissolution plan and provide that such plan takes effect forty-five days after the filing of such determination, unless a petition for a permissive referendum is properly filed pursuant to section seven hundred eighty-five of this title.

4. In any proceeding pursuant to this section in which the petitioners substantially prevail, the costs of such proceeding, including the costs of any judicial hearing officer appointed pursuant to subdivision two of this section, shall be borne by the local government entity at the rate provided for in article twenty-two of the judiciary law and regulations promulgated pursuant thereto.

TITLE 4 Miscellaneous Provisions

HISTORY:
Add, L 2009, ch 74, § 2, eff March 21, 2010 (see 2009 note below).

§ 791. Liability of officials and employees

In the absence of fraud, gross negligence or willful misfeasance, no officer or employee of a local government entity shall be held personally liable upon any claim arising from the consolidation or dissolution of a local government entity pursuant to this article or any circumstances connected with such consolidation or dissolution.

HISTORY:
Add, L 2009, ch 74, § 2, eff March 21, 2010 (see 2009 note below).

Editor's Notes: Laws 2009, ch 74, §§ 1 and 18, eff March 21, 2010, provide as follows:

Section 1. Short Title. The act shall be known and may be cited as the "New N.Y. Government Reorganization and Citizen Empowerment Act".

§ 18. Savings clause. Notwithstanding the repeal or amendment of any law by this act, nothing in this act shall be construed to impair the consolidation or dissolution of any local government entity pursuant to any such repealed or amended law if there was commenced in or for such local government entity prior to the effective date of this act a consolidation or dissolution proceeding pursuant to such law, in which event the provisions of such former law shall govern such proceeding as though such former law had not been repealed hereby.

This article shall supersede and replace all other state and local laws relating to the procedures and requirements for the consolidation and dissolution of local government entities to the extent such laws are not consistent with this article, provided, however, that the provisions of any other state or local law now in effect or hereafter enacted that are less restrictive or burdensome than those provided in this chapter shall govern during the period in which such provisions are in effect. A state or local law that imposes procedures and requirements for consolidation and dissolution not addressed by this article is deemed inconsistent.

§ 18. Savings clause. Notwithstanding the repeal or amendment of any law by this act, nothing in this act shall be construed to impair the consolidation or dissolution of any local government entity pursuant to any such repealed or amended law if there was commenced in or for such local government entity prior to the effective date of this act a consolidation or dissolution proceeding pursuant to such law, in which event the provisions of such former law shall govern such proceeding as though such former law had not been repealed hereby.

§ 793. Separability

If any title, section, subdivision, paragraph or other part of this article shall be adjudged invalid by any court of competent jurisdiction, such judgment shall not invalidate the remainder thereof, but shall be confined in its operation to the part directly involved in the controversy wherein such judgment shall have been rendered.

§ 800. Definitions

When used in this article and unless otherwise expressly stated or unless the context otherwise requires:

1. "Chief fiscal officer" means a comptroller, commissioner of finance, director of finance or other officer possessing similar powers and duties, except that in a school district the term shall not mean a member of the board of education or a trustee thereof.

2. "Contract" means any claim, account or demand against or agreement with a municipality, express or implied, and shall include the designation of a depository of public funds and the designation of a newspaper, including but not limited to an official newspaper, for the publication of any notice, resolution, ordinance, or other proceeding where such publication is required or authorized by law.

3. "Interest" means a direct or indirect pecuniary or material benefit accruing to a municipal officer or employee as the result of a contract with the municipality which such officer or employee serves. For the purposes of this article a municipal officer or employee shall be deemed to have an interest in the contract of (a) his spouse, minor children and dependents, except a contract of employment with the municipality which such officer or employee serves, (b) a firm, partnership or association of which such officer or employee is a member or employee, (c) a corporation of which such officer or employee is an officer, director or employee and (d) a corporation any stock of which is owned or controlled directly or indirectly by such officer or employee.

4. "Municipality" means a county, city, town, village, school district, consolidated health district, county vocational education and extension board, public library, board of cooperative educational services, urban renewal agency, a joint water works system established pursuant to chapter six hundred fifty-four of the laws of nineteen hundred twenty-seven, or a town or county improvement district, district corporation, or other district or a joint service established for the purpose of carrying on, performing or financing one or more improvements or services intended to benefit the health, welfare, safety or convenience of the inhabitants of such governmental units or to benefit the real property within such units, an industrial development agency but shall have no application to a city having a population of one million or more or to a county, school district, or other public agency or facility therein.

5. "Municipal officer or employee" means an officer or employee of a municipality, whether paid or unpaid, including members of any administrative board, commission or other agency thereof and in the case of a county, shall be deemed to also include any officer or employee paid from county funds. No person shall be deemed to be a municipal officer or employee solely by reason of being a volunteer firefighter or civil defense volunteer, except a fire chief or assistant fire chief.

6. "Treasurer" means a county treasurer, city treasurer, town supervisor, village treasurer, school district treasurer, fire district treasurer, improvement district treasurer, president of a board of health of a consolidated health district, county vocational educational and extension board treasurer, treasurer of a board of cooperative educational services, public general hospital treasurer, or other officer possessing similar powers and duties.

A declaratory judgment action was appropriate to determine whether the potential or actual conflicts of interest of a negotiator of a public sector collective bargaining agreement violated Gen Mun Law §§ 800 et seq. Stettine v County of Suffolk, 105 A.D.2d 109, 482 N.Y.S.2d 818, 1984 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 20681 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1984), aff'd, 66 N.Y.2d 354, 497 N.Y.S.2d 329, 488 N.E.2d 75, 1985 N.Y. LEXIS 17611 (N.Y. 1985).

N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 800, et seq. did not preempt local law in the field of financial disclosure; therefore, although Suffolk County, N.Y., Admin. Code § A30-10, which required local political officers to file financial disclosure forms, was more stringent than the state law, it did not inhibit operation of the state law and was enforceable against a local republican party chairman. Suffolk County Ethics Comm'n v Neppell, 307 A.D.2d 961, 762 N.Y.S.2d 915, 2003 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8689 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2003).

A county legislator does not have a statutory interest in a contract between the county and a corporation of which his spouse is a major stockholder, when he is an employee of the corporation, provided section 802(1)(b) is applicable. There is an apparent tendency for courts to liberally construe Article 18 and hold municipal officers and employees strictly accountable for conduct which, although not literally prohibited by the Article, is borderline. 1979 Op St Compt No. 79-868.

Contracts which are entered into under State or county contracts, or pursuant to competitive bidding, are not excepted from the conflicts of interest statutes. 1980 Op St Compt No. 80-633, 1980 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 244.

A claim for reimbursement of expenses incurred by a municipal officer or employee in the performance of his municipal functions is not a "contract" within the meaning of that term as defined in the said section. 1981 Op St Compt No. 81-138, 1981 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 749.

Whether a member of a city council who is vice-president of a corporation operating a service station, has a conflict of interest when the city does business with the station depends upon pertinent facts. Section 801(1)(c) is not applicable when the commissioner of finance, who is responsible for entering into contracts on behalf of the city, is an appointee of the mayor and his appointment is subject to the approval of the common council. 1984 Op St Compt No. 84-16, 1984 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 123.

In connection with the state comptroller's authority to oversee the accounts of political subdivisions, the comptroller may request officers and employees of a city to complete a form listing certain outside employment and business interests in order for the comptroller to determine the possible existence of conflicts of interest. 1991 Op St Compt No. 91-60, 1990 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 61.

2. Contracts within scope of article; contract for deposit of public funds

No conflict of interest results from the designation of a bank as a depository of a county sewer district even though one member of said district is also a member of the Advisory Board of a branch of said bank and another member of said district is the President in charge of a branch of said bank, provided that neither of them is the chief fiscal officer, treasurer, or his deputy or employee of the sewer district. However, disclosure of interest must be made in accordance with General Municipal Law, § 803. 1972 NY Ops Atty Gen Nov 2 (Informal), 1972 N.Y. AG LEXIS 154.

A prohibited interest in contract does not occur where: (a) A town supervisor owns less than 5% of the stock of a bank which is a depository of town funds; (b) The wife of the supervisor is part owner of a newspaper in which the town publishes legal notices. 1972 Op St Compt No. 72-4.

A town may designate a bank as depository of town funds, where the town supervisor is an assistant cashier of such bank. 1972 Op St Compt No. 72-9.

Where the president of a central school district board of education is a director of a bank, a prohibited interest in a contract does not occur when the district (1) designates the bank as a depository and (2) sells obligations to the bank in accordance with Local Finance Law, § 60.10. 1972 Op St Compt No. 72-747.

Where a member of a school district board of education is an officer of a bank and employed in the main office thereof, he does not have a prohibited interest in the designation by the school district of a branch office of such bank as the depository of district funds. 1977 Op St Compt No. 77-504.

A county attorney who is director, counsel and stockholder of a bank does not have a prohibited interest where the bank acts as a depository of county funds or purchases county obligations pursuant to Local Finance Law, § 60.10. He would have a prohibited interest in all other transactions between the county and the bank. 1978 Op St Compt No. 78-306.

Member of community college board of trustees who is also president, director and stockholder holding in excess of 5 percent of stock of corporation engaged in printing business would have conflict of interest if college enters into contract with corporation; nonparticipation by trustee in board matters relating to such contracts would not be curative. 1987 Op St Compt No. 87-75, 1987 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 100.

A prohibited interest in contract does not result where a county legislator is the vice president of a bank which is designated as the depository of county funds. However, disclosure is necessary. 1973 Op St Compt No. 73-1201.

A member of a school district board of education does not have a statutory interest in the designation of a bank, of which her spouse is a director and stockholder, as a depository of district funds. 1979 Op St Compt No. 79-549.

3. —Insurance contracts

The local chapter of a civil service employees association was a voluntary nonprofit association as defined under Gen Mun Law § 802(1)(f) and was exempt from the conflict of interest provisions of Gen Mun Law § 801. A public sector collective bargaining agreement is not the type of contract covered by Gen Mun Law Art 18. Stettine v County of Suffolk, 105 A.D.2d 109, 482 N.Y.S.2d 818, 1984 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 20681 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1984), aff'd, 66 N.Y.2d 354, 497 N.Y.S.2d 329, 488 N.E.2d 75, 1985 N.Y. LEXIS 17611 (N.Y. 1985).

A prohibited interest in contract does not occur where a town justice in a town of the first class owns an insurance agency and shares in commissions paid by the town to an insurance agency with which he is not associated. 1971 Op St Compt No. 71-1005.

A village justice is not prohibited from selling group life and hospitalization insurance to the village for employees of the village in which he is an officer, but he must publicly disclose the nature and extent of his interest in the contract. 1973 Op St Compt No. 73-762.

A town supervisor has a prohibited interest in any insurance contracts between the town and an insurance agency which he acquires, where he receives a material or pecuniary benefit as a result of such contracts, and he has the powers and duties enumerated in General Municipal Law, § 801 with respect thereto. 1973 Op St Compt No. 73-979.

A member of a county board of supervisors, who is employed by an insurance firm which sells insurance to the county soil and water conservation district, does not have a statutory interest in such contracts. 1976 Op St Compt No. 76-1024.

A municipal officer does not have a conflict of interest when his insurance firm sells insurance to municipalities other than the one which he serves. 1979 Op St Compt No. 79-206.

The members, officers and employees of a municipal housing authority are not subject to conflicts of interest statutes. However, common law principles relative to interests in contracts are applicable. There is no legal prohibition against firm of which city mayor is officer selling insurance to city housing authority. Auburn Industrial Development Authority members are subject to common law conflicts of interest rules. Firm of Authority member cannot sell insurance to Authority. 1979 Op St Compt no. 79-267.

A member of a village board of appeals, who is also an insurance salesmen, does not have a prohibited interest in the sale of insurance to the village. Disclosure is required. A member of the village board of trustees has a prohibited conflict of interest if a firm of which he is a member sells supplies to the village. 1980 Op St Compt No. 80-623, 1980 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 233.

Two members of a village board of trustees do not have prohibited conflicts of interest in insurance contracts between the village and an insurance company of which they are officers if, as employees of the company, they have nothing to do with the preparation, procurement or performance of the insurance contracts and their remuneration is not directly affected as a result of the contract. 1980 Op St Compt No. 80-443, 1980 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 269.

A village justice, who is an insurance agent, does not have a prohibited conflict of interest in the sale of insurance to the village. Disclosure is required. 1980 Op St Compt No. 80-444.

There is no prohibited conflict of interest where a village mayor or trustee is employed by an insurance agency and is not, in the course of his employment, directly involved in the procurement, preparation or performance of any insurance contract with the village or will not have his remuneration directly affected by such a contract. Likewise, if the mayor or trustee owns stock in an insurance agency which provides insurance to the village but the extent of such stockholders are less than five per cent of the outstanding stock, there is no prohibited interest. If the extent of stockholdings exceeds five per cent of the outstanding stock, the interest will not be prohibited provided that the contract was entered into prior to the time the mayor or trustee was elected, and the contract may not be renewed upon expiration. 1981 Op St Compt No. 81-430.

A town supervisor, who is an employee of an incorporated insurance agency which sells insurance to the town, does not have a prohibited interest in the contracts of insurance when her duties as an employee do not directly involve the procurement, preparation or performance of the insurance contracts and her remuneration is not directly affected as a result of such contracts. 1982 Op St Compt No. 82-12, 1982 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 712.

A planning board member is prohibited from receiving or agreeing to receive compensation for engineering services, such as percolation test and other design work for individuals who are subdividing their property, where such subdivision applications in the future could come before the planning board. Although there is no statutory prohibition against a planning board member performing uncompensated work in connection with such matter before the board, the board member should not participate in the discussion or vote on any such matter. 1990 Op St Compt No. 90-28, 1990 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 35.

4. —Contract for newspaper publication of official notices

A prohibited interest in contract does not occur where: (a) A town supervisor owns less than 5— of the stock of a bank which is a depository of town funds; (b) The wife of the supervisor is part owner of a newspaper in which the town publishes legal notices. 1972 Op St Compt No. 72-4.

5. —Purchase or sale of municipal obligations

Where the president of a central school district board of education is a director of a bank, a prohibited interest in a contract does not occur when the district (1) designates the bank as a depository and (2) sells obligations to the bank in accordance with Local Finance Law, § 60.10. 1972 Op St Compt No. 72-747.

A prohibited interest in contract exists when a city auditor, or his spouse, minor children or other dependents purchase city obligations directly from the city and when he has any of the powers or duties enumerated in General Municipal Law, § 801(1) with respect to the issuance and sale of such bonds and notes. A somewhat different concept applies when he purchases city obligations from a bank which has purchased such obligations in the first instance from the city. 1976 Op St Compt No. 76-610.

A village attorney, who is a stockholder, counsel and director of a bank would have a prohibited conflict of interest in the sale of village bond anticipation notes in the sum of $100,000 to such bank, but not if the sale involved any amount up to $100,000. 1978 Op St Compt No. 78-175, 1979 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 269.

A county attorney who is director, counsel and stockholder of a bank does not have a prohibited interest where the bank acts as a depository of county funds or purchases county obligations pursuant to Local Finance Law, § 60.10. He would have a prohibited interest in all other transactions between the county and the bank. 1978 Op St Compt No. 78-306.

A bank, of which a village attorney is a director, may purchase a bond anticipation note issued by the village and agree to extend the date of maturity, so long as the village attorney does not have the power or duty to perform any of the functions listed in General Municipal Law, § 801(1). This opinion supersedes Opn No. 78-175 to the extent it is inconsistent herewith. 1982 Op St Compt No. 82-251, 1982 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 483.

When a village attorney is a director and stockholder of a bank, he has a conflict of interest if the bank should purchase a statutory installment bond from the village only if he has any of the powers and duties set forth in section 801(1) in relation to the transaction. If he has a conflict of interest, the sale nevertheless would be permissible if made pursuant to Local Finance Law, § 60.10 and the restrictions set forth therein. 1985 Op St Compt No. 85-34, 1985 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 108.

When a secretary-treasurer of a fire district performs the functions of executing the district's bonds and issuing checks for the payment of principal and interest, and has no other powers and duties with respect to the sale, issuance or payment of bonds, the secretary-treasurer would not have a contractual interest prohibited by article 18 of the General Municipal Law if he or she purchased bonds issued by the district. 1991 Op St Compt No. 91-8, 1991 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 7.

6. —Purchase or sale of public property

There was conflict of interest when town board member acquired realty in his town at county tax sale and sale was voidable where, although contract of sale in form concerned only county, by implication it also involved town and was within general municipal law precluding municipal officer from having interest in contract with his municipality when he has power or duty to authorize or approve contract or to appoint officer who has such power or duty, inasmuch as town board's action in preparing town budget was part of approval and authorization culminating in county tax sale and town board fixed salary of collecting officer and filled vacancies in that office. Rose v Eichhorst, 42 N.Y.2d 92, 396 N.Y.S.2d 837, 365 N.E.2d 868, 1977 N.Y. LEXIS 2108 (N.Y. 1977).

No prohibited conflict of interest arises from the sale of real property by an Urban Renewal Agency to a corporation of which a member of such Agency is an officer and director but not a shareholder, provided the conditions set forth in the cited statute are met and disclosure of interest is made. In the public interest the person involved herein should not participate in any transaction between the Agency and the corporation. If a County Board of Ethics has been created, its advisory opinion should be sought. 1969 NY Ops Atty Gen Dec 2 (Informal), 1969 N.Y. AG LEXIS 106.

Under General Municipal Law §§ 801, 802, 804, the proposed sale of a building owned by the Town Supervisor of the Town of Crown Point to the Town of Crown Point would constitute a prohibited conflict of interest unless the purchase and the consideration therefor is approved by the Supreme Court upon petition of the Town Board. 1975 NY Ops Atty Gen Feb 10 (Informal), 1975 N.Y. AG LEXIS 71.

The employment of an alderman, as a real estate sales agent, does not automatically create a conflict of interest even if he is also chairman of the Land Sales Committee of the Common Council. A conflict would exist if the alderman represented another party in a real estate transaction with the city and the commissions were over one hundred dollars. 1978 NY Ops Atty Gen Dec 7 (Informal), 1978 N.Y. AG LEXIS 387.

Whether a prohibited interest in contract occurs where a town contracts to purchase real property from the wife of the superintendent of highways and two highway department employees, who are tenants in common of the parcel, depends upon the powers and duties of the superintendent and the employees with respect to the contract. 1972 Op St Compt No. 72-294.

A city officer or employee may purchase either city real property or tax sale certificates at city tax sales, under certain circumstances. 1973 Op St Compt No. 73-768.

A member of the administrative body of a county sewer district would have a prohibited interest in contract should he purchase personal property sold by the district at public auction, when the sale is authorized or approved by the said body. 1974 Op St Compt No. 74-439.

When a deputy town attorney represents a client in the purchase by that client of a parcel of property from the town, he has a statutory interest in the purchase contract. It is a prohibited interest only if the deputy town attorney performs one or more of the functions set forth in section 801(1) in connection with the contract. 1981 Op St Compt No. 81-387, 1981 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 487.

That an employee of a village who is also a licensed real estate salesman is responsible for acquiring property in connection with the Federal Community Development Block Grant Program does not, in itself, create a statutory conflict of interest. However, a conflict of interest would occur if he should act as salesman for a seller from whom the village purchases property. The village code of ethics should be examined to determine the applicability of any provisions thereof under the circumstances. 1981 Op St Compt No. 81-370, 1981 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 515.

Unless the exception provided by General Municipal Law, § 802(1)(b) is applicable, a member of a school district board of education, who is also an officer of a corporation, would have a prohibited conflict of interest in the sale by the district to the corporation of district real property. 1981 Op St Compt No. 81-65, 1981 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 826.

When a village purchases materials and supplies for the use of its fire department from a corporation of which the fire chief is vice-president, whether the chief has a conflict of interest depends upon pertinent facts and circumstances. 1983 Op St Compt No. 83-211, 1983 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 273.

A city councilperson has a prohibited interest in the sale by the city of property owned by it to a partnership of which she is a partner. The exception contained in section 802(1)(b) is inapplicable. 1984 Op St Compt No. 84-12, 1984 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 124.

7. —Lease of real property

A member of a board of fire commissioners has a prohibited conflict of interest in any agreement between the board and himself as a private businessman, for rental of a portion of the firehouse for use as a barber shop. 1978 Op St Compt No. 78-995.

Where a vice-president and treasurer of a corporation authorize payment of rent under a lease, on behalf of his corporation as lessee, to the Steuben County Industrial Department Agency of which he is a member as lessor, by affixing his name to a corporate check, he is directly involved in the performance of the corporation's contract of lease and has a prohibited conflict of interest in the contract. General Municipal Law, § 802(1)(b) is not applicable as an exception to the provision of General Municipal Law, § 801(1) in this case. 1980 Op St Compt No. 80-214.

A town councilman from whom the town rents a building on a month to month tenancy, does not have a prohibited conflict of interest where the tenancy commenced prior to his election and has continued without interruption. 1980 Op St Compt No. 80-250, 1980 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 345.

8. —Miscellaneous contracts

The extension of the boundaries of a town water district to include real property owned by a town board member does not involve a contract and, therefore, could not give rise to a prohibited conflict of interest. 1979 Op St Compt No. 79-228.

There is no prohibited conflict of interest if a school board member is involved in the sale of trophies to student organizations since there is no contract with a municipality. However, there is potential for abuse and there may be a code of ethics violation in such a situation. 1979 Op St Compt No. 79-444.

A member of a county board of health would have a conflict of interest if he or she is retained as a consultant at $60 per hour to the county health department where an appointee of the board has the power or duty to negotiate the consulting contract, unless and to the extent that one of the exceptions in the General Municipal Law § 802 is applicable. 1990 Op St Compt No. 90-16, 1990 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 18.

Intermunicipal agreement, whereby village agreed to provide use of its mechanics to repair town-owned trucks and equipment if town's highway department was unable to do so, did not fall within definition of "contract" in CLS Gen Mun § 800, and thus member of town board who also served as head village mechanic did not have prohibited interest in such agreement. 2001 Op St Compt No. 2001-14, 2001 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 14.

9. Interest in municipal contracts; generally

Competitive bidding does not cure the prohibition against a municipal officer or employee having an interest in a contract when such officer or employee has power to approve the contract. 1979 NY Ops Atty Gen Sept 14 (Informal), 1979 N.Y. AG LEXIS 44.

City councilman who is employee of corporation does not have conflict of interest in relation to contract between city and corporation when his remuneration is not directly affected as result of such contract and duties of his employment do not directly involve procurement, preparation or performance of any part of such contract. 1987 Op St Compt No. 87-91, 1987 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 143.

Whether a part-time town water superintendent, who is also a contractor, has a prohibited interest in contracts between himself, in his private capacity, and the town for repair of the town water system, depends upon his powers and duties with respect to such contracts. 1978 Op St Compt No. 78-1072.

10. —Contract with official's private business

A prohibited conflict of interest arises where a town supervisor, operator of a mechanical repair shop, performs work on machinery and equipment owned by the town or by the county. 1971 NY Ops Atty Gen July 7 (Informal), 1971 N.Y. AG LEXIS 92.

County Law, § 214(2) requires the publication of the complete text of each local law, and there is no statutorily prohibited conflict of interest where a member of the Orleans County Planning Board has a contract with the County for the disposition of solid waste material in a landfill. 1978 NY Ops Atty Gen August 7 (Informal), 1978 N.Y. AG LEXIS 340.

A prohibited conflict of interest arises when either a town supervisor or a town councilman performs services or sell supplies to the town through their own private businesses. 1979 NY Ops Atty Gen June 5 (Informal), 1979 N.Y. AG LEXIS 112.

In a county which has a director of purchasing who is an appointee of the elected county executive, and an elective county comptroller who is responsible for audit and approval of bills, a county legislator does not have a prohibited interest in contracts between the county and himself as a private businessman. 1973 Op St Compt No. 73-980.

A county supervisor does not have a conflict of interest in a contract between the county and an asphalt company for the supplying of asphalt for county road improvement, where the company hires the supervisor's trucking firm to haul the asphalt to the job site. 1979 Op St Compt No. 79-691.

A village trustee, who is an engineer, would have a prohibited conflict of interest if he should enter into a contract with his village in implementation of a feasibility study on the use of heat pumps in the area, which study is sponsored by a grant to him by the Federal Government. 1980 Op St Compt No. 80-585.

A district commissioner, who is also the proprietor of a travel agency, has a prohibited conflict of interest if the governing board of the district should do business with the agency in connection with travel arrangements for district employees and officers. A conflict of interest does not result if the individual travelers deal with the agency and are reimbursed by the district for travel expenses. 1981 Op St Compt No. 81-138, 1981 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 749.

A community development agency which functions as an urban renewal agency is subject to the provisions of General Municipal Law, art 18. An employee of the sponsoring municipality does not have a conflict of interest in contracts between himself, as an independent contractor in his private capacity, and the community development agency, provided that he is not assigned by the municipality to perform services of the agency. 1981 Op St Compt No. 81-117, 1981 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 775.

A superintendent of a town sewer improvement area, who also owns a construction business, may be retained to perform services for the town, such as snow-plowing and excavation, provided that he, in his town position, does not possess any of the powers or duties enumerated in section 801(1). Disclosure under section 803(1) is required. 1981 Op St Compt No. 81-45, 1981 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 844.

A town highway superintendent, who services sewer systems as a private contractor, does not have a conflict of interest when he supplies such services to the town provided that he does not have any powers or duties enumerated in section 801(1) relative to his contract with the town. 1982 Op St Compt No. 82-301, 1982 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 429.

A member of a hospital board of a city public hospital does not have a prohibited interest in a contract between the city and his accounting firm for the annual audit of city books other than hospital records. Disclosure is required. 1982 Op St Compt No. 82-247, 1982 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 477.

A village mayor does not have a conflict of interest when a company which he owns is engaged in the business of providing consulting services to municipalities and provides such services at no cost to the village provided that the mayor otherwise does not receive a direct or indirect pecuniary or material benefit therefrom. 1982 Op St Compt No. 82-105, 1982 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 620.

When a town councilman's company performs services and supplies parts in connection with the repair of the heating system for a town building, the councilman does not have a conflict of interest if the company receives no pecuniary profit or other material benefit, direct or indirect, as a result of such contract. 1985 Op St Compt No. 85-1, 1985 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 142.

Town supervisor who places insurance as insurance broker through same insurance agency through which town's insurance is placed, but who does not receive commission on town's insurance and is not officer, director, employee, or stockholder of insurance agency, would not have "interest" in town's insurance contracts; however, supervisor should disclose his or her business relationship with insurance agency and, under circumstances, should not participate in discussion or vote on any matter affecting insurance agency. 1996 Op St Compt No. 96-6, 1996 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 8.

In a county which has a director of purchasing who is an appointee of the elective county executive and also an elective county comptroller who is responsible for audit and approval of vouchers, a county legislator does not have a prohibited interest in contracts between the county and himself, but he must disclose his interest in the same. :0298*1978 Op St Compt No. 78-525.

A member of a county legislature does not have a statutory interest in a transaction which involves the loan of funds by the county industrial development agency to himself (or his firm). :0299*1978 Op St Compt No. 78-614.

11. —Contract with official's spouse or relatives

The town justice is an officer of the town. 1990 NY Ops Atty Gen 90-46 (Informal), 1990 N.Y. AG LEXIS 31.

Votes by respondent board member, approving appointment of her 27-year-old son as soccer coach and granting tenure to teacher who had recommended him for coaching position, did not violate General Municipal Law's conflict of interest provisions as (1) respondent's son was not "a minor" under CLS Gen Mun § 2(3) and he was not respondent's dependent merely because he resided in her home, and (2) petitioner failed to prove that respondent derived any pecuniary or material benefit from fact that her son resided in her home. 2001 Op Comm Ed No. 14,826, 2002 NY Educ. Dept. LEXIS 12.

Conflict of interest provisions of General Municipal Law did not prohibit board members whose spouses were employed by respondent school district from participating in contract negotiations and votes. 2004 Op Comm Ed No. 15,135, 2004 NY Educ. Dept. LEXIS 20.

Under the circumstances, there is no prohibited conflict of interest by virtue of the fact that the owners of an excavating firm are brothers of the town superintendent of highways. 1979 Op St Compt No. 79-90.

A town policeman does not have a conflict of interest when a corporation owned by his father performs towing services for the town, provided the policeman does not receive a direct or indirect pecuniary or material benefit as a result of contracts between the town and the corporation. 1981 Op St Compt No. 81-91, 1981 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 796.

A school district clerk does not have an interest in a contract between the district and an accountant firm of which his brother-in-law is a partner if the clerk receives no direct or indirect pecuniary or material benefit as a result of such contract. 1981 Op St Compt No. 81-66, 1981 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 827.

The mayor of a city does not have a statutory interest in insurance contracts between the city and his brother's insurance agency unless he derives a direct or indirect pecuniary or material benefit as a result of such contracts. 1982 Op St Compt No. 82-365, 1982 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 364.

Where the spouse of a town clerk is a printer, the town clerk has a prohibited conflict of interest in contracts between the town and the spouse for printing work done for the clerk's office only if the clerk has any powers and duties set forth in section 801(1) relative to such contracts. 1982 Op St Compt No. 82-264, 1982 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 462.

A town supervisor has a prohibited interest in a contract of his spouse for the preparation of the annual financial report. The contract is void and payment of her voucher should not be approved by the town board. 1985 Op St Compt No. 85-9, 1985 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 134.

A member of a county board of supervisors has a conflict of interest when his spouse, as owner of an apartment house, rents units therein to public assistance recipients and is paid therefor upon vouchers submitted to the county. 1985 Op St Compt No. 85-4, 1985 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 140.

Member of city school district board of education does not have prohibited interest in contract for purchase by district of real property from his father-in-law unless he received direct or indirect benefit as result of contract. 1987 Op St Compt No. 87-23, 1987 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 158.

A planning board member is prohibited from receiving or agreeing to receive compensation for engineering services, such as percolation test and other design work for individuals who are subdividing their property, where such subdivision applications in the future could come before the planning board. Although there is no statutory prohibition against a planning board member performing uncompensated work in connection with such matter before the board, the board member should not participate in the discussion or vote on any such matter. 1990 Op St Compt No. 90-28, 1990 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 35.

A clerk in a town highway superintendent's office, whose duties include checking invoices for accuracy, would not have an interest prohibited by Article 18 of the General Municipal Law if the highway superintendent were to award contracts for the repair of town highway equipment to the clerk's spouse. 1992 Op St Compt No. 92-6.

If real property owned by town board member's spouse is leased to vendor which supplies gravel from property to town, and (1) lease was entered into in anticipation or as direct consequence of vendor's contract with town, or (2) rental payment required by lease varies on basis of amount of gravel removed from premises, then spouse would receive pecuniary benefit "as the result of" vendor's contract with town. 2004 Op St Compt No. 2004-2, 2004 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 2.

If benefit from property lease to vendor which supplies gravel from property to town serves to enhance overall finances of household of board member and his or her spouse (owner of property), then board member would receive at least indirect pecuniary benefit as result of contract between vendor and town and, therefore, have "interest" in contract prohibited by CLS Gen Mun Art 18. 2004 Op St Compt No. 2004-2, 2004 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 2.

If property lease was not entered into in anticipation or as direct consequence of vendor's contract with town to supply gravel from property, and if rental payment required by lease does not vary on basis of amount of gravel removed from premises, then board member (spouse of property's owner) would not have interest in vendor's contract with town "as the result of" spouse's lease with vendor. 2004 Op St Compt No. 2004-2, 2004 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 2.

Even if board member (spouse of property owner) does not have "interest" in contract between town and vendor (by which vendor, as lessee of property, supplies gravel to town), town's code of ethics should be reviewed to ascertain whether it contains any pertinent provisions; if contract between vendor and town is permissible under CLS Gen Mun Art 18 and code of ethics is silent, board member should recuse himself or herself from discussions, and abstain from voting, on matters relating to any current or future town contracts with vendor, at least while vendor leases property from board member's spouse, as well as matters relating to any permissible town contract involving indirectly supply of goods and services by board member's spouse. 2004 Op St Compt No. 2004-2, 2004 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 2.

No prohibited conflict of interest exists where a Village Trustee participates and votes on certain matters involving the Kenmore Police Department when the husband of the Trustee is a desk lieutenant in that Department who has a direct monetary interest and is directly affected by the actions of the Board of Trustees with respect thereto. 1976 NY Ops Atty Gen July 12 (Informal), 1976 N.Y. AG LEXIS 132.

12. —Contracts of employment

Brothers do not enjoy the degree of consanguinity which would make the interest of one the interest of the other. Where a member of a partnership is appointed as a condemnation commissioner in a county acquisition of real property, and thereafter the other partner is elected as a supervisor in that county, and no fees of the condemnation commissioner are received by the partnership, and this is not in violation of the partnership agreement, there is no prohibited conflict of interest. However, where the partners are brothers, there may be the appearance of a conflict of interest but as the appointment of the commissioner was made before the supervisor was elected, disclosure by the supervisor and the condemnation commissioner would eliminate any question of an improper conflict. 1975 NY Ops Atty Gen March 13 (Informal), 1975 N.Y. AG LEXIS 90.

An attorney may be appointed school district attorney even though the attorney's spouse is a member of the board of education of the school district. The authorization contained in General Municipal Law § 800 subdivision 3 constitutes a waiver of the prohibition of such a contract when the contract relates to a spouse of a board member; it is so broad in its terms that there is no reason why the spouse of the attorney may not vote upon the question of the attorney's employment and upon matters relating to the attorney's salary and/or expense vouchers. 1977 NY Ops Atty Gen Dec 27 (Informal), 1977 N.Y. AG LEXIS 370.

There is no legal impropriety where the daughter of a school board member is employed as both clerk and business manager of the school district. 1978 Op St Compt No. 78-391.

The town board fixes the salaries of all town employees and it is not required that a town board member abstain from voting when the board votes on fixing the salary of an employee who happens to be his spouse. 1979 Op St Compt No. 79-68.

There is no legal impropriety where a husband and wife simultaneously serve as town supervisor and town clerk, respectively. However, from a practical point of view, there is a question of the advisability of such an arrangement. 1979 Op St Compt No. 79-171.

A member of a central school district board of education does not have a statutory interest in a collective bargaining agreement between the district and a teachers' union in which his spouse is a member. 1979 Op St Compt No. 79-313, 1979 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 189.

Where a teacher is the child of a member of the board of education of a central school district, a two-thirds vote of the entire board is required when any contract of employment relating to the teacher is renewed, including a contract granting tenure. The board member may vote on such contracts and on matters involving teacher's salary. 1980 Op St Compt No. 80-34, 1980 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 342.

A member of a county board of health would have a conflict of interest if he or she is retained as a consultant at $60 per hour to the county health department where an appointee of the board has the power or duty to negotiate the consulting contract, unless and to the extent that one of the exceptions in the General Municipal Law § 802 is applicable. 1990 Op St Compt No. 90-16, 1990 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 18.

13. —Official as member of contracting firm, partnership or association

A town planning board member does not have a prohibited conflict of interests in the purchase, by the town, of paving materials from a firm in which the planning board member is a partner. 1966 NY Ops Atty Gen Dec 14 (Informal), 1966 N.Y. AG LEXIS 155.

Brothers do not enjoy the degree of consanguinity which would make the interest of one the interest of the other. Where a member of a partnership is appointed as a condemnation commissioner in a county acquisition of real property, and thereafter the other partner is elected as a supervisor in that county, and no fees of the condemnation commissioner are received by the partnership, and this is not in violation of the partnership agreement, there is no prohibited conflict of interest. However, where the partners are brothers, there may be the appearance of a conflict of interest but as the appointment of the commissioner was made before the supervisor was elected, disclosure by the supervisor and the condemnation commissioner would eliminate any question of an improper conflict. 1975 NY Ops Atty Gen March 13 (Informal), 1975 N.Y. AG LEXIS 90.

A member of a central school district board of education does not have a statutory interest in a collective bargaining agreement between the school district and the local chapter of a state-wide teachers union where he is an employee of the regional office of the union. However, he should not participate in board proceedings in connection with the contract, as a matter of policy. 1973 Op St Compt No. 73-952.

A village trustee does not have a statutory interest in contracts between the village municipal housing authority and a firm of which he is a partner. 1974 Op St Compt No. 74-682.

Whether an accounting clerk for a municipal electric service has a prohibited interest in a contract for a computer program between the city and a computer firm, where she has assisted in the development of the program for the firm, depends upon certain facts. 1978 Op St Compt No. 78-840.

City attorney who is officer, employee, director or shareholder of law firm which is professional corporation and which represents city in law suit would have prohibited interest in contract between firm and city if city attorney has power or duty to negotiate, prepare, authorize or approve contract, or to appoint someone with those powers, unless exceptions in CLS Gen Mun § 802 are applicable. 1988 Op St Compt No. 88-75, 1988 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 68.

Member of town board of assessment review who is sole proprietor of company that sells highway-related products has interest in contracts between company and town to sell products for use by town highway department; such interest is not prohibited, but board member must disclose it in accordance with CLS Gen Mun § 803. 2012 Op St Compt No. 2012-1, 2012 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 1.

School board member would not have prohibited conflict of interest under CLS Gen Mun Art 18 if he or she also served as trustee on board of trustees of not-for-profit foundation that raises money and makes gifts to school district; however, board member should not participate in school board discussions or decisions relating to gifts from, or other matters involving, not-for-profit foundation for which board member serves as trustee and, assuming disclosure is not otherwise required by CLS Gen Mun § 803, should disclose his or her relationship with not-for-profit entity. 2008 Op St Compt No. 2008-1, 2008 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 1.

14. —Official as member of law firm

Where a village mayor, who is an attorney, shares offices with another attorney who is personally retained by the village under an arrangement pursuant to which moneys paid by the village to the attorney do not inure to the benefit of any of the others, there is no illegal interest in contract on the part of the village mayor. 1966 Op St Compt No. 66-646.

An interest in contract does not arise where the City of Mount Vernon Urban Renewal Agency contracts for special legal services with a law firm with which two city aldermen are associated. 1969 Op St Compt No. 69-474.

A prohibited conflict of interest: (1) Does not arise where a county treasurer is the owner of less than 5% of the outstanding stock of a bank with which the county does business; (2) Does occur where the law firm of which the treasurer is a member is general counsel for the said bank. 1969 Op St Compt No. 69-1069.

A conflict of interest occurs where the law partner of a town justice in a town of the second class is retained to provide legal services for the town, if the justice receives a direct or indirect material or pecuniary benefit as the result of such contract. There is no legal prohibition against the appointment of the law partner as town attorney. 1971 Op St Compt No. 71-961.

The conflicts of interest statutes do not apply where a village attorney advises the board of trustees with respect to a proposed retainer agreement with a law firm of which the attorney is a member, where the agreement is to be executed subsequent to his retirement from village employment. 1978 Op St Compt No. 78-793.

The conflicts of interest statutes do not apply where the law partner of a member of a county board of supervisors serves as assistant county attorney, because there is no contract with the county in which the supervisor can have an interest. 1980 Op St Compt No. 80-39.

Where a village attorney is paid on a salary basis, and also receives compensation on vouchers for additional work, whether the mayor, who is the father of the village attorney and also associated with him in the practice of law as either a partner or as a member of a professional corporation, has a prohibited interest in contracts between the attorney and the village, depends upon pertinent facts. 1980 Op St Compt No. 80-164.

Where a law partner of the town attorney is retained by the town to perform services on a contractual basis, the town attorney has a conflict of interest only if he derives a direct or indirect pecuniary or material benefit as a result of the contract. 1980 Op St Compt No. 80-712.

While it is not a conflict of interest under Article 18 where a member of a village board of trustees is an attorney whose firm stands to obtain business from a party which has an interest in an application submitted to the board for the approval of the construction of a microwave tower, nevertheless, a court could construe an affirmative vote of the board member as against public policy and invalidate the proceedings. It is recommended that the board member refrain from voting and from other board involvement concerning the application. 1982 Op St Compt No. 82-285, 1982 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 439.

Whether a member of an industrial development agency, who is an attorney, has a prohibited conflict of interest in contracts between the agency and a client, depends upon the circumstances. 1982 Op St Compt No. 82-250, 1982 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 478.

Village attorney does not have conflict of interest when his law firm represents client applying to village for subdivision approval unless application procedure results in § 800(2) contract with village and attorney possesses § 801(1) functions relative thereto; disclosure under § 809 is required even though there is no conflict of interest. 1985 Op St Compt No. 85-60, 1985 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 83.

Village mayor does not have "interest" in contract of employment of law partner of village mayor as village attorney within meaning of CLS Gen Mun § 800(3), if mayor's partner is hired independently of partnership and is paid directly as individual so that none of compensation goes to partnership. 1988 Op St Compt No. 88-67, 1988 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 60.

If compensation paid to law partner of school board member, who is engaged by school district as its attorney, is not mixed with other revenues of partnership, and if board member, directly or indirectly, receives no benefit from monies paid by district, then board member would not have interest in contract between district and law partner, irrespective of whether law partner is engaged as independent contractor or employee. 2004 Op St Compt No. 2004-4, 2004 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 4.

In light of board member's business relationship with school district's attorney as law partner, board member should recuse himself or herself from discussions, and abstain from voting, on matters pertaining to compensation, and other terms and conditions of engagement by school district, of his or her law partner. 2004 Op St Compt No. 2004-4, 2004 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 4.

15. —Official as officer or director of contracting corporation

Fact that former commissioner of public works, charged with having conflict of interest in connection with snow plowing contract and failing to disclose such interest, was both an officer and more than five per cent stockholder in corporation which obtained the contract did not bring him within the exemption provision of conflict of interest law where the individual's interest arises by reason of employment as an officer or employee of a firm contracting with municipality since not only would such result lead to an absurdity but argument ignored statutory requirement that the conflict arise "solely" by reason of employment as an officer or employee. People v Speach, 49 A.D.2d 210, 374 N.Y.S.2d 210, 1975 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10626 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1975).

If a county superintendent of highways is a director of a corporation, a contract for goods or services for his department may not be entered into between the county and that corporation or between any town in that county and that corporation for goods or services to be provided for the function of a town superintendent of highways. 1974 NY Ops Atty Gen Dec 17 (Informal), 1974 N.Y. AG LEXIS 195.

The chief engineer of a village electric department who also formed a cable television company which sought a franchise from the village would have a conflicting interest prohibited by General Municipal Law, § 801, in view of the nature of his duties as chief engineer. 1975 NY Ops Atty Gen Aug 12 (Informal), 1975 N.Y. AG LEXIS 148.

The village attorney has a prohibited interest in a contract between the village and a corporation of which he is a director. The interest of a village trustee in the same contract (arising solely by reason of his ownership of corporate stock) is not prohibited where he owns less than five percent of the outstanding stock of the corporation. 1969 Op St Compt No. 583-A.

A village may purchase supplies and equipment from various stores owned by a corporation of which the village justice is an officer and stockholder. 1973 Op St Compt No. 73-805.

A county legislator does not have a statutory conflict of interest in contracts between a corporation, of which he is president and a stockholder, and the Western Regional Off-Track Betting Corporation, where a director thereof is an appointee of the county legislature. 1974 Op St Compt No. 74-582.

A school board member who is president of a corporation does not have a prohibited interest in a contract for the purchase of buses from said corporation if the exception contained in General Municipal Law, § 802(1)(b) is applicable. 1978 Op St Compt No. 78-133.

If a superintendent of a town water district, who is also the president of a firm which supplies propane gas to the district, has a prohibited interest in contracts between his firm and the town, the fact that the water district is situate on an island apart from the mainland of the town and cannot obtain gas from another supplier, does not create a circumstance which provides an exception to the prohibited interest. 1980 Op St Compt No. 80-586.

Where a town councilman is the president and major stockholder of a corporation which manufactures septic tanks and the corporation sells such tanks to a contractor for use in connection with the performance of a contract with the town for the construction of a sewer system after competitive bidding, there is no conflict of interest in the absence of a commitment between the corporation and the contractor for the purchase of the tanks prior to the award of the contract by the town board. 1982 Op St Compt No. 82-207, 1982 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 507.

Except for the applicability of one or more of the exceptions contained in section 802, a town councilman who is also the vice-president and branch manager of a bank would have a prohibited interest in any contracts between the town and the bank. 1982 Op St Compt No. 82-48, 1982 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 674.

A member of the board of trustees of a community college has a conflict of interest in any contracts between the college and a bank of which he is a director, president and chief executive officer except to the extent that any of the exceptions enumerated in General Municipal Law, § 802 are applicable. 1983 Op St Compt No. 83-143, 1983 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 341.

A councilman on the town board who is the secretary/treasurer and a major stockholder of a truck center business has a prohibited conflict of interest in contracts between the town and the truck center business involving the purchase, by the town, of highway supplies unless the total consideration payable under the contract, when added to the aggregate amount of all consideration payable under contracts in which the councilman had an interest during the fiscal year does not exceed $100. 1983 Op St Compt No. 83-95, 1983 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 391.

Fire district commissioner who is also president and chief stockholder of automotive dealership would have conflict of interest if fire district vehicles are serviced by his company unless pertinent exceptions in CLS Gen Mun § 802 apply; extension for voting on rules relating to contracts between district and his company would not be curative. 1988 Op St Compt No. 88-8, 1988 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 8.

A town councilman has no statutory interest in contracts between the town and a corporation which, together with another corporation of which he is a director and officer, is family owned and closely held. 1972 Op St Compt No. 72-1069.

A city cannot include in its city charter a provision which is inconsistent with any section of General Municipal Law, art 18. A city attorney does not have a prohibited conflict of interest in a contract between the city and a not-for-profit corporation of which she is president. 1980 Op St Compt No. 80-234.

Unless additional pertinent facts necessitate a different conclusion, it would seem that a county supervisor, who is also the vice-president of a corporation, would have a prohibited conflict of interest in a construction contract between the corporation and the county when he is entitled to share in a corporate deferred profit-sharing compensation program. 1981 Op St Compt No. 81-188, 1981 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 705.

16. —Spouse or relative of official as officer or director

The town justice is an officer of the town. 1990 NY Ops Atty Gen 90-46 (Informal), 1990 N.Y. AG LEXIS 31.

Petitioners, two board members, seek a determination annulling that part of the code of ethics adopted by the Board of Education which prohibits board members from voting on employment contracts of their spouses. Sections 800(3) of the General Municipal Law carves out an exception to the conflict of interest rule that prohibits a board member from having an interest in any contact of a spouse which the board has the power or duty to negotiate, authorize, or approve. By expressly exempting spousal contracts from § 801's prohibition against contracts of interest, the Legislature has adjudged it permissible for a school board member to vote on the employment contract of a spouse. The Board of Education may not override this plain intent by enacting ethical codes at odd with the General Municipal Law. The Board of Education's prohibition is also inconsistent with § 3016(2) of the Education Law, which allows school districts to employ as teachers a relative of board members, so long as such employment is approved by two-thirds of the members of the board. Conspicuously absent from this provision is any restriction on the exercise of power by board members whose spouses are employed by the district as teachers. The reasonable inference drawn from this omission is that the Legislature did not intend to restrict board members from voting on their spouses' employment contracts. By enacting a standard which does precisely that, the Board of Education has contravened the plain intent of § 3016, and has, in effect, prevented certain board members from substantially performing the duties of office. Accordingly, the provision of the Board of Education's ethics code which prohibit board members from voting on the employment contract of their spouses is an excess of the authority of the Board of Education, and is null and void. Appeal of Behuniak and Lattimore, 1991 Op Comm Ed No. 12,447.

A member of county board of supervisors has a prohibited interest in contracts between the county and a closely held corporation of which her husband is a major stockholder and president. 1974 Op St Compt No. 74-400.

A county department head is not deemed to have an interest in purchases of supplies made by him for his department pursuant to a general contract with the county between the county and his spouse's corporation. Whether a statutory interest otherwise exists depends upon the circumstances; if so, he would have a prohibited interest in purchases of departmental supplies. 1982 Op St Compt No. 82-291, 1982 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 433.

17. —Official as employee of contracting corporation

The prohibition of these sections is not applicable to a village trustee who is only a salaried employee of a corporation which contracts with the village. 1966 NY Ops Atty Gen Apr 7 (Informal), 1966 N.Y. AG LEXIS 54.

The execution of contracts between a board of cooperative educational services and a county does not give rise to a conflict of interest where a county legislator is an instructor in the employ of the said board. 1969 Op St Compt No. 69-1012.

A prohibited conflict of interest occurs where a member of a county industrial development agency, who is also the attorney for a corporation, represents the corporation in connection with the negotiation of a contract with the industrial development agency. The county code of ethics is inapplicable to the members, officers and employees of the county industrial development agency. 1973 Op St Compt No. 73-919.

Subject to certain exceptions contained in General Municipal Law, § 802, whether a town water and sewer superintendent has a prohibited interest in contracts for the installation of water and sewer connections between the town and the firm by which he is employed depends upon whether inspection of such work by him constitutes approval thereof or is a prerequisite to payment therefor by the town. 1975 Op St Compt No. 75-48.

A county legislator, who is an employee of one of two family-owned and closely held corporations which have common business interests, has a prohibited interest in contracts between the county and either corporation. Whether the exception contained in General Municipal Law, § 802(1)(b) is applicable depends upon pertinent facts. 1975 Op St Compt No. 75-84.

A prohibited interest in contract does not occur where a county legislator is an employee of a not-for-profit hospital corporation which provides services to the county pursuant to contract. 1975 Op St Compt No. 75-1273.

A town councilman does not have a statutory interest in a contract between the town and a firm which has engaged him to perform services as an independent contractor. 1979 Op St Compt No. 79-172.

Whether a town director of the department of solid waste has a prohibited interest in a contract for the operation of the town landfill by a firm by which he is employed, depends upon the pertinent facts. Applicability of town code of ethics should be determined. 1979 Op St Compt No. 79-265.

A county legislator does not have a statutory interest in a contract between the county and a corporation of which his spouse is a major stockholder, when he is an employee of the corporation, provided section 802(1)(b) is applicable. There is an apparent tendency for courts to liberally construe Article 18 and hold municipal officers and employees strictly accountable for conduct which, although not literally prohibited by the Article, is borderline. 1979 Op St Compt No. 79-868.

A village trustee, who is an employee of an automobile dealership, does not have a prohibited conflict of interest in contracts between the village and the dealer involving the purchase of parts for, and the servicing of, village vehicles, if the exception contained in General Municipal Law, § 802(1)(b) has application. 1980 Op St Compt No. 80-730, 1980 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 212.

A "contract", as defined in General Municipal Law, § 800(2), exists between the contractor and the municipality where a municipality approves a grant of Federal moneys to an applicant for home rehabilitation based upon a bid submitted by the contractor. A city alderman, who is an employee of the contractor, has a prohibited interest in that contract unless the exception contained in General Municipal Law, § 802(1)(b) is applicable. 1980 Op St Compt No. 80-216.

A town councilman does not have a conflict of interest where a contractor by which he is employed contracts with a corporation to build a facility for the corporation in the town, and the facility is financed by a loan from the town industrial development agency. 1980 Op St Compt No. 80-574.

The assistant chief of a city fire department consisting of volunteer firemen would not have a prohibited interest in contracts between the city and a company by which he is employed unless he has one or more of the powers or duties enumerated in section 801(1) with respect to such contracts. 1982 Op St Compt No. 82-343, 1982 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 393.

There is no prohibited conflict of interest where a village purchases insurance from an insurance company of which a village trustee is an employee, if the trustee's remuneration will not be directly affected by the transaction and, as an employee of the company, the trustee will have nothing to do with the preparation, procurement or performance of the insurance contracts. 1982 St Compt No. 82-234, 1982 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 496.

A city clerk-chamberlain has a statutory interest in contracts between the city and a contractor for which he performs services as an independent contractor only if he receives a direct or indirect pecuniary or material benefit as a result of the contracts. 1982 Op St Compt No. 82-208, 1982 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 519.

A town supervisor, who is an employee of an incorporated insurance agency which sells insurance to the town, does not have a prohibited interest in the contracts of insurance when her duties as an employee do not directly involve the procurement, preparation or performance of the insurance contracts and her remuneration is not directly affected as a result of such contracts. 1982 Op St Compt No. 82-12, 1982 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 712.

The conflicts of interest statutes are inapplicable when an employee of a town water district is employed as a consultant by applicants for variances, zoning changes and special permits and presents the applications before various boards of the town government. Disclosure by the applicant pursuant to section 809 may be necessary. 1983 Op St Compt No. 83-108, 1983 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 376.

A fire district commissioner who is an employee of a business which services district vehicles has a conflict of interest in any contracts between the district and the business unless the exception contained in section 802(1)(b) is applicable. 1984 Op St Compt No. 84-37, 1984 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 100.

City councilman who is employee of corporation does not have conflict of interest in relation to contract between city and corporation when his remuneration is not directly affected as result of such contract and duties of his employment do not directly involve procurement, preparation or performance of any part of such contract. 1987 Op St Compt No. 87-91, 1987 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 143.

It is existence of statutory power or duty of officer or employee to perform functions specified in CLS Gen Mun § 801 which gives rise to conflict of interest under that section without regard to whether those functions are actually performed, do that, abstention by town official of voting on matters relating to company which employs such town official will not cure prohibited conflict of interest. 1988 Op St Compt No. 88-44, 1988 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 40.

Fire district commissioner, who is salaried employee of firm doing business with district, does not have prohibited conflict of interest in purchase contracts between firm and district if exception contained in CLS Gen Mun Law § 802(1)(b) is applicable. 1988 Op St Compt No. 88-56, 1988 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 52.

A town board member who is employed as a sales representative for a corporation which holds state and county contracts and whose duties as sales representatives require direct involvement in the procurement of contracts with the town would have a prohibited contract of interest if the town purchases materials in excess of 100 dollars under the state or county contract. 1991 Op St Compt No. 91-30, 1991 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 28.

18. —Official as stockholder of contracting corporation

Fact that former commissioner of public works, charged with having conflict of interest in connection with snow plowing contract and failing to disclose such interest, was both an officer and more than five per cent stockholder in corporation which obtained the contract did not bring him within the exemption provision of conflict of interest law where the individual's interest arises by reason of employment as an officer or employee of a firm contracting with municipality since not only would such result lead to an absurdity but argument ignored statutory requirement that the conflict arise "solely" by reason of employment as an officer or employee. People v Speach, 49 A.D.2d 210, 374 N.Y.S.2d 210, 1975 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10626 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1975).

A contracting firm, in which a town police commissioner is the majority stockholder, may bid upon, or accept local contracts upon which no bid is required, so long as the commissioner does not have a municipal function defined in General Municipal Law, § 801. Compliance should be had with the applicable code of ethics of the town established by General Municipal Law § 806. Interpretations of the code may be requested of the board of ethics of Westchester County if such a board has been established under General Municipal Law § 808. 1974 NY Ops Atty Gen Nov 18 (Informal), 1974 N.Y. AG LEXIS 180.

The village attorney has a prohibited interest in a contract between the village and a corporation of which he is a director. The interest of a village trustee in the same contract (arising solely by reason of his ownership of corporate stock) is not prohibited where he owns less than five percent of the outstanding stock of the corporation. 1969 Op St Compt No. 69-583-A.

A prohibited conflict of interest: (1) Does not arise where a county treasurer is the owner of less than 5% of the outstanding stock of a bank with which the county does business; (2) Does occur where the law firm of which the treasurer is a member is general counsel for the said bank. 1969 Op St Compt No. 69-1069.

A village may purchase supplies and equipment from various stores owned by a corporation of which the village justice is an officer and stockholder. 1973 Op St Compt No. 73-805.

A county legislator does not have a statutory conflict of interest in contracts between a corporation, of which he is president and a stockholder, and the Western Regional Off-Track Betting Corporation, where a director thereof is an appointee of the county legislature. 1974 Op St Compt No. 74-582.

A county legislator has a prohibited interest in contracts between the county and a corporation of which he is a major stockholder for services provided for the county home and infirmary when he, as a member of the county board, has any of the powers and duties enumerated in section 801(1). 1979 Op St Compt No. 79-844.

Where a county supervisor had executed a trust agreement whereby title to all stock which he owns in a corporation is transferred to a trustee but he retains the legal right to receive stock dividends from the trust, the stock nevertheless is "owned indirectly" by him and he is deemed to have an interest in contracts between the corporation and the county; that interest is prohibited. 1980 Op St Compt No. 80-151, 1980 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 339.

A town councilman who is the sole stockholder of an insurance corporation has a conflict of interest when the town purchases insurance from his corporation. 1983 Op St Compt No. 83-169, 1983 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 314.

When a village attorney is a director and stockholder of a bank, he has a conflict of interest if the bank should purchase a statutory installment bond from the village only if he has any of the powers and duties set forth in section 801(1) in relation to the transaction. If he has a conflict of interest, the sale nevertheless would be permissible if made pursuant to Local Finance Law, § 60.10 and the restrictions set forth therein. 1985 Op St Compt No. 85-34, 1985 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 108.

Fire district commissioner who is also president and chief stockholder of automotive dealership would have conflict of interest if fire district vehicles are serviced by his company unless pertinent exceptions in CLS Gen Mun § 802 apply; extension for voting on rules relating to contracts between district and his company would not be curative. 1988 Op St Compt No. 88-8, 1988 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 8.

19. —Spouse or relative of official as stockholder

A prohibited conflict of interest would arise in a contract between a town and a private corporation when the spouse of the deputy comptroller of the town is a majority stockholder of that corporation, unless the total consideration payable under the contract does not exceed one hundred dollars. 1975 NY Ops Atty Gen July 7 (Informal), 1975 N.Y. AG LEXIS 133.

A member of county board of supervisors has a prohibited interest in contracts between the county and a closely held corporation of which her husband is a major stockholder and president. 1974 Op St Compt No. 74-400.

A city attorney has a prohibited interest in any "contracts" between the city and a corporation in which his wife owns 25% of the stock. 1978 Op St Compt No. 78-156.

When a village mayor previously has transferred ownership of his stock in a water works company to his son and wife, whether the mayor has a prohibited interest in the purchase by the village of the company assets depends upon whether he receives any pecuniary benefit from the moneys paid to the wife and son as stockholders of the corporation upon the sale of the corporate assets. 1979 Op St Compt No. 79-528.

A county legislator does not have a statutory interest in a contract between the county and a corporation of which his spouse is a major stockholder, when he is an employee of the corporation, provided section 802(1)(b) is applicable. There is an apparent tendency for courts to liberally construe Article 18 and hold municipal officers and employees strictly accountable for conduct which, although not literally prohibited by the Article, is borderline. 1979 Op St Compt No. 79-868.

20. —Contracts involving fire department or district

A statutory conflict of interest does not occur where a village volunteer fire department provides fire protection to a town fire protection district when a town councilman is also a village fire department fire warden. However, he should refrain from participation in any proceedings relating thereto, either as councilman or as fire warden. 1974 Op St Compt No. 74-507.

A member of a board of fire commissioners who is also a private businessman has a prohibited conflict of interest in any contracts between himself and the fire district. 1979 Op St Compt No. 79-4.

Where a village exercises direct financial control over its volunteer fire department, it may contract for repair of its fire trucks with a garage owned, in part, by the chief of its volunteer fire department. Enclosure of Op. No. 70-785. 1979 Op St Compt No. 79-122.

A conflict of interest does not occur where a fire district commissioner, who is a physician, is paid fees for providing medical services to volunteer firemen under the Volunteer Firemen's Benefit Law, when the payments are made by an insurance carrier pursuant to a contract with the district. 1979 Op St Compt No. 79-537, 1979 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 148.

A fire chief of a fire district volunteer fire department does not have a prohibited interest in contracts between the district and a business in which he has a partnership interest unless he exercises certain functions, as fire chief, with respect to such contracts. However, disclosure is required. 1979 Op St Compt No. 79-76, 1979 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 225.

Whether an assistant chief of a village volunteer fire department has a prohibited conflict of interest in contracts between the village and a firm which employs him as a sales representative depends upon his powers and duties, as assistant chief, relative to such contracts. 1979 Op St Compt No. 79-740.

A captain of a volunteer fire company of a village fire department does not have a conflict of interest when the village purchases firemanic supplies from a company of which he is president. 1982 Op St Compt No. 82-60, 1982 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 665.

A fire district commissioner does not have a conflict of interest when the fire district contracts with his adult son for electrical services, providing that the commissioner receives no direct or indirect pecuniary or material benefit as a result of such contracts. 1983 Op St Compt No. 83-40, 1983 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 444.

An assistant chief of a fire district fire department does not have a prohibited interest in purchases of firematic equipment made by the district from a company owned by him, even though he makes recommendations to the board with respect to such equipment needed by the department. 1983 Op St Compt No. 83-30, 1983 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 450.

21. —Miscellaneous interests

While it is doubtful that a material benefit would enure to a Village Trustee by virtue of the granting of a special permit by the Village Board of Trustees to an applicant who is the landlord of such Trustee simply because such Trustee, as a tenant, may thereupon become entitled to use the recreational facility to be constructed by his landlord, it is recommended that disclosure of such possible interest be made and that the Village Code of Ethics be examined and the question submitted to the County Board of Ethics, provided one has been established by the County. 1973 NY Ops Atty Gen March 6 (Informal), 1973 N.Y. AG LEXIS 43.

A prohibited conflict of interest arises where the board of managers of a county public general hospital contracts with a bank for the rental of personal property therefrom, when the president of the said board is also a vice-president of the bank, unless the facts are such to render applicable section 802(1)(b). 1969 Op St Compt No. 69-44.

An individual who serves as a town recreation commissioner and also as a trustee of a village situate within the town does not have a statutory interest in contracts between the town and the village involving joint recreational projects. However, he should not participate in matters relating to such contracts either on behalf of the town or the village. 1978 Op St Compt No. 78-362, 1978 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 86.

Whether the conflicts of interest statutes are applicable when a town highway superintendent sells dry wells, which he has designed, to a distributor, and the distributor sells the wells to other municipalities, including the town, to be used for drainage of highways, depends upon certain facts and circumstances. 1979 Op St Compt No. 79-387.

Whether a water maintenance supervisor of a city water department, who has loaned money to the owners of a plumbing supply company for business purposes, has a statutory interest in the purchase by the city of plumbing supplies from the company, which supplies are used by the water department, depends upon pertinent facts and circumstances. 1981 Op St Compt No. 81-403, 1981 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 484.

The fact that a town councilman, who is also a contractor, performs services for a professional engineer as an independent contractor, does not in itself create a conflict of interest if the town should do business with the engineer. The councilman is not prohibited by statute from voting on a resolution authorizing a contract between the engineer and the town. The councilman need not file a disclosure statement. 1981 Op St Compt No. 81-216, 1981 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 666.

A mayor of a village who is also the owner of an office building, does not have a statutory interest in contracts between the village and an office supply company, which is a lessor of offices in his building, merely because the company is a tenant. In order for a municipal officer or employee to have a conflict of interest, he must derive, directly or indirectly, a pecuniary or material benefit from a contract with his municipality (except to extent that he is "deemed" to have an interest under section 800(3)(a), (b), (c) or (d)). 1981 Op St Compt No. 81-206, 1981 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 680.

A municipal officer or employee does not have a statutory interest by reason of the fact that he is the lessor of property to an individual or firm which is an applicant for a zoning change on other property owned by such individual or firm. It is the position of this Office that the application for, and the granting of, a zoning change by a municipality does not constitute a contract under section 800(2). Disclosure pursuant to section 809 is advisable when a municipal officer or employee is the lessor of property to an applicant for a zoning change, even though the leased property is not involved in the rezoning. 1983 Op St Compt No. 83-114, 1983 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 361.

A contract between a city and a church would not be prohibited on the basis of a councilman's membership in the church because contracts between municipalities and not-for-profit corporations, such as churches, are excepted from the conflict of interest provisions of the General Municipal Law. The conflict of interest statutes does not require the councilman to abstain from voting on the authorization for such contract but he may be required to do so by the local Code of Ethics or by local rules of procedure. (2) A contract between a city fire department and a local business is not prohibited on the basis of a firefighter's spouse's ownership of that business unless the firefighter has the power or duty to negotiate, prepare, authorize or approve the contract or authorize or approve payment thereunder. In both cases, disclosure of the interest must be made, in writing, to the city council. 1983 Op St Compt No. 83-112, 1983 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 372.

The obligation of a municipal officer or employee for care and treatment received by him or by a person for whom he is financially responsible in a hospital or facility operated by his municipality, does not constitute a contract for purposes of the conflicts of interest statutes. Therefore, the said statutes are inapplicable. 1985 Op St Compt No. 85-28, 1985 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 117.

Officers and employees of county community college who are also members of board of directors for not-for-profit corporation which intends to purchase real property held by county for community college will have interest in purchase contract for purposes of CLS Gen Mun §§ 800 et seq., and interest must be disclosed as soon as officer or employee has knowledge of prospective interests; however, such interest would not be prohibited. 1988 Op St Compt No. 88-52, 1988 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 48.

A planning board chairman who borrows money from the board's consulting engineer has a prohibited interest in the engineer's contracts with the town if the loan is determined to be a direct or indirect pecuniary benefit accruing to the chairman as a result of the contracts; to avoid the appearance of impropriety, the chairman should not participate in the discussion or vote on matters affecting the engineer or undertake to approve the engineer's vouchers, as long as the loan is outstanding. 1992 Op St Compt No. 92-3, 1985 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 110.

County public health commissioner who has real estate partnership with member of not-for-profit corporation that provides home health care services to county would not have prohibited interest in not-for-profit corporation's contract with county, but county should review its code of ethics to ascertain whether it contains any pertinent provisions; further, commissioner should consider recusing himself from performance of functions in connection with award of contract for home health care services, with those functions instead being performed by deputy. 2000 Op St Compt No. 2000-8, 2000 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 21.

22. Entities outside scope of article

Trial court properly granted the motions by a town board members and a consultant to dismiss a taxpayer's General Municipal Law action and denied his motion to reargue and/or renew because the taxpayer did not make allegations of fraud or illegality that would support the action where the consultant was not a municipal officer or employee subject to the statutory disclosure requirements, the taxpayer did not allege any interest that the consultant failed to disclose to the town, the town's payment to the consultant for services rendered was not made in reliance upon any representation that a valid contract existed, and the taxpayer did not identify any new facts or change in the law that required a different determination. Budin v Davis, 172 A.D.3d 1676, 101 N.Y.S.3d 487, 2019 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3838 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2019).

Since the officers, directors, and employees of a county cooperative extension association are not subject to the conflict of interest statutes, there is no illegality where an association leases land from a director thereof. 1972 Op St Compt No. 72-930.

The conflicts of interest statutes are not applicable to contracts between volunteer fire departments and officers or members thereof. 1979 Op St Compt No. 79-96.

The members, officers and employees of a municipal housing authority are not subject to conflicts of interest statutes. However, common law principles relative to interests in contracts are applicable. There is no legal prohibition against firm of which city mayor is officer selling insurance to city housing authority. Auburn Industrial Development Authority members are subject to common law conflicts of interest rules. Firm of Authority member cannot sell insurance to Authority. 1979 Op St Compt No. 79-267.

A member of a public housing authority does not have a common law conflict of interest when his son and law partner is appointed authority counsel unless he derives a material or pecuniary benefit as a result thereof. The conflicts of interest statutes are not applicable to municipal housing authorities. 1982 Op St Compt No. 82-166, 1982 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 552.

Whether the conflicts of interest statutes are applicable where a county sheriff is a principal in a corporation constructing senior citizens housing with federal funds depends upon the existence of a contract between the county and the corporation. 1983 Op St Compt No. 83-89, 1983 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 395.

A private industry council established under Federal statute to service a county is not a county agency, and its members are not county officers or employees for purposes of the conflicts of interest statutes. 1983 Op St Compt No. 83-102, 1983 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 375.

23. Employment conflicts; attorneys

An assistant district attorney may properly hold the position of general counsel to a hospital in the county. He must disclose the fact of his employment to the county. 1966 NY Ops Atty Gen April 19 (Informal), 1966 N.Y. AG LEXIS 62.

A prohibited conflict of interest does not result where a town justice of a town of the first class performs services for such town as attorney for special improvement districts created by such town. Nevertheless, disclosure of such interest is mandated by General Municipal Law, § 803. 1973 NY Ops Atty Gen April 4 (Informal), 1973 N.Y. AG LEXIS 53.

A conflict of interest would result if the same person, at the same time, served as both a member of, and attorney for, a Municipal Housing Authority. 1973 NY Ops Atty Gen Feb 13 (Informal), 1978 N.Y. AG LEXIS 399.

A prohibited conflict of interest in a contract arose under section 801 of the General Municipal Law when the Acting Town Attorney of the Town of Greenburgh prepared a draft of a proposed contract between him and said Town for his future employment as Special Counsel to the Town's Urban Renewal Commission, even though said contract was to take effect after the Acting Town Attorney had resigned from his position as Acting Town Attorney. 1975 NY Ops Atty Gen Feb 27 (Informal), 1975 N.Y. AG LEXIS 77.

The attorney for a county sewer district who is later elected to the position of part-time district attorney and who intends to hold both positions, must make a disclosure of interest under section 803 of Article 18 of the General Municipal Law. 1983 N.Y. Op. Att'y Gen. No. 83-45, 1983 N.Y. AG LEXIS 49.

Respondent did not neglect his duty as member of board of education by acting as the trial attorney for plaintiffs in a lawsuit against a school district while he was a member of the board of education, since purely personal transactions, such as respondent's handling of divorce proceedings and private real estate transactions as attorney on behalf of school employee, do not constitute a prohibited conflict of interest because they do not involve a contract with school district. Application of Ackerberg et al., 1985 Op Comm Ed No. 11,561.

A statutory conflict of interest does not occur where a deputy town attorney represents a developer in connection with development of land within the town, where it is necessary to obtain town board and town planning board approval of subdivision plats. Any impropriety from an ethical standpoint depends upon pertinent facts. 1975 Op St Compt No. 75-112.

A county legislator may provide free legal services to county by representing county without compensation in utility rate case. 1979 Op St Compt No. 79-507.

The City of Saratoga Springs may engage a law clerk on an independent contract basis to assist the City Attorney in certain unanticipated legal matters. It would appear that the Assistant City Attorney may not receive additional compensation other than his fixed salary, although a local law or charter amendment may provide for additional compensation for certain specified services under certain circumstances. 1980 Op St Compt No. 80-673.

A statutory conflict of interest does not occur where an attorney and his employee simultaneously serve as part-time county attorney and administrator of the assigned counsel plan, respectively, when the county attorney (in his private practice) receives no direct or indirect pecuniary or material benefit as a result of his employee's position with the county. 1981 Op St Compt No. 81-406, 1981 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 476.

A village attorney does not have a conflict of interest when his law partner is appointed to the office of deputy village attorney. 1981 Op St Compt No. 81-40, 1981 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 855.

City attorney who is officer, employee, director or shareholder of law firm which is professional corporation and which represents city in law suit would have prohibited interest in contract between firm and city if city attorney has power or duty to negotiate, prepare, authorize or approve contract, or to appoint someone with those powers, unless exceptions in CLS Gen Mun § 802 are applicable. 1988 Op St Compt No. 88-75, 1988 N.Y. In a Civil Service Law § 75-b case, the court erred procedurally and substantively in dismissing the school bus driver's complaint based upon documentary evidence purportedly demonstrating that he violated General Municipal Law § 800, therefore vitiating his retaliation claim; the evidence failed to conclusively establish that he possessed any of the authority enumerated in General Municipal Law § 801, thereby creating a conflict of interest. Lilley v Greene Cent. Sch. Dist., 168 A.D.3d 1180, 90 N.Y.S.3d 661, 2019 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 42 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2019).

Petitioner, in seeking removal of respondent board president, failed to establish that respondent's ratification of collective bargaining agreement between local teachers' association and school district, while his spouse was member of local teachers' association, constituted conflict of interest and/or wilful violation or neglect of duty; CLS Gen Mun § 802(1)(f) exempts from prohibited conflicts of interest "contract[s] with a membership corporation or other voluntary non-profit corporation or association," and CLS Gen Mun § 800(3) "explicitly excludes a spouse's employment contract from coverage under the conflict of interest provision and therefore, does not bar a board member from negotiating or voting on the contract of a spouse." 2009 Op Comm Ed No. 15,892, 2009 NY Educ. Dept. LEXIS 34.

Respondent did not neglect his duty as member of board of education by acting as the trial attorney for plaintiffs in a lawsuit against a school district while he was a member of the board of education, since purely personal transactions, such as respondent's handling of divorce proceedings and private real estate transactions as attorney on behalf of school employee, do not constitute a prohibited conflict of interest because they do not involve a contract with school district. Application of Ackerberg et al., 1985 Op Comm Ed No. 11,561.

Provision of code of ethics of central school district, which required members of board of education to recuse themselves from voting on collective bargaining agreements between district and unions if they had family member covered by collective bargaining agreement, was unlawful because it conflicted with express exemptions from conflict of interest coverage in General Municipal Law. 1998 Op Comm Ed No. 13,914.

In an action to set aside determinations and proceedings of a town board with respect to approval of a proposed shopping center development, plaintiffs failed to show any action on the part of the town board chairman, individually, that would provide a basis for setting aside town board approval of a preliminary development plan for construction of the shopping center and a declaration by the town board of its intent to rezone the site where plaintiffs alleged that the chairman made public statements before and after his election to the town board expressing support for defendant's project and criticism of a similar proposal by another developer in that the prohibitions against conflicts of interest by public officials outlined in Gen Mun Law Art 18 involve pecuniary and material interests rather than expressions of personal opinion. Special Term properly dismissed a proceeding to annul a determination by a Town Board concerning the creation of water and sewage districts and the acquisition of undeveloped real property, which proceedings challenged the method used to create the special districts since, under Town Law § 209-g, the town could choose either of the procedures described by Arts 12-A and 12-C of the Town Law. However, petitioners should have been granted leave to serve an amended complaint alleging that the real estate contracts between the town and the sellers was void by reason of the presence of an impermissible conflict of interest, in that the same attorney represented both the town and the sellers, so as to permit the resolution of the question of whether the attorney was the town's "employee" and if so, whether he possessed an "interest" in the contract. Finally, the petition of a party who sought relief under Town Law § 209-g was properly dismissed for lack of standing where petitioner had no special rights or interests other than those common to all taxpayers and citizens. § 801. Conflicts of interest prohibited

Except as provided in section eight hundred two of this chapter, (1) no municipal officer or employee shall have an interest in any contract with the municipality of which he is an officer or employee, when such officer or employee, individually or as a member of a board, has the power or duty to (a) negotiate, prepare, authorize or approve the contract or authorize or approve payment thereunder (b) audit bills or claims under the contract, or (c) appoint an officer or employee who has any of the powers or duties set forth above and (2) no chief fiscal officer, treasurer, or his deputy or employee, shall have an interest in a bank or trust company designated as a depository, paying agent, registration agent or for investment of funds of the municipality of which he is an officer or employee. The provisions of this section shall in no event be construed to preclude the payment of lawful compensation and necessary expenses of any municipal officer or employee in one or more positions of public employment, the holding of which is not prohibited by law.

Editor's Notes: Laws 1964, ch 946, §§ 1 and 13–17, provide as follows:

Section 1. Declaration of policy and purpose. As government becomes increasingly complex, as our democratic processes draw citizens from every walk of life, there is increasing need for known standards of ethical conduct as a guide for public officers. These standards must rest primarily on personal integrity and on community vigilance: law cannot in itself create moral fiber, nor can law quicken the civic conscience. In support of these basic standards, it is the purpose of this chapter to define areas of conflicts of interest in municipal transactions, leaving to each community the expression of its own code of ethics.

The need for the statute does not spring from widespread malfeasance on the part of municipal officers; rather, the Legislature recognizes their integrity as a group, their culpability in only a few instances. But lest the few brand the many, the discernment of the offending case must be made certain, its elimination sure. Existing law is too complex, too inconsistent, too overgrown with exceptions, for such a clarity of understanding to be possible. Basic concepts must be retained, but something more than recodification is needed.

There is another and equally important objective: a formula of conduct which is not only clear but reasonable, one which will permit governmental employees to share the normal benefits of the democratic society and economy they serve. If government is to attract and hold competent administrators, public service must not require a complete divesting of all proprietary interests. Real conflict must be rooted out, without condemning the inconsequential.

The chapter, then, has a trinity of purposes: to protect the public from municipal contracts influenced by avaricious officers, to protect innocent public officers from unwarranted assaults on their integrity and to encourage each community to adopt an appropriate code of ethics to supplement this chapter. The Legislature declares that each purpose is a matter of State concern and adopts the following chapter accordingly, with the intention that it shall be the generic law in relation to conflicts of interest in municipal transactions, not to be superseded by local law of any municipality subject to its provisions.

§ 13. Laws superseded. The provisions of article eighteen of the general municipal law, as added by this act, shall supersede any local law, charter, ordinance, resolution, rule or regulation of any municipality to the extent that such local law, charter, ordinance, resolution, rule or regulation is inconsistent with the provisions thereof. No local law, ordinance, resolution, rule or regulation shall modify or dispense with any provision of article eighteen of the general municipal law, as added by this act; provided, however, that nothing herein contained shall prohibit a code of ethics adopted pursuant thereto from supplementing the provisions of this act.

§ 14. Pending actions and proceedings. No action or proceeding pending at the time when this act shall take effect shall be affected by any provision of this act, but the same may be prosecuted, defended or enforced as if this act had not been enacted.

§ 15. Existing rights and remedies preserved. No existing right or remedy of any character shall be lost, impaired or affected by reason of this act, nor shall the validity of any action taken by any public official under the law in force immediately prior to the time this act shall take effect be affected by the enactment of this act.

§ 16. Laws repealed. Of the laws enumerated in the schedule hereto annexed, that portion specified in the last column is hereby repealed.

Town's furnishing of defense to town assessors and town board members in 2 lawsuits arising out of those officials' public employment, in accordance with local law and CLS Pub O § 18, did not violate constitutional prohibition against municipality giving or lending money or property to individual (CLS NY Const Art VIII § 1) or laws governing municipal conflicts of interest (CLS Gen Mun §§ 800 et seq.) as amounts expended were viewed as additional remuneration for officials' services to town, which constituted lawful public expense. A city cannot include in its city charter a provision which is inconsistent with any section of General Municipal Law, art 18. A city attorney does not have a prohibited conflict of interest in a contract between the city and a not-for-profit corporation of which she is president. 1980 Op St Compt No. 80-234.

Contracts which are entered into under State or county contracts, or pursuant to competitive bidding, are not excepted from the conflicts of interest statutes. 1980 Op St Compt No. 80-633, 1980 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 244.

While there is probably no prohibited conflict of interest under Article 18 of the General Municipal Law when a village building inspector and a village trustee develop property and construct buildings in a village, even though the building inspector must review and approve his own applications for building permits, such arrangement could be held to be inconsistent with the spirit of Article 18 and, therefore, void. In addition, there may be a violation of General Municipal Law, § 805-a(1)(c) or of the local Code of Ethics. 1980 Op St Compt No. 80-437.

A village mayor or a village trustee would have a prohibited conflict of interest if he should sell insurance or building supplies to the village, assuming the inapplicability of an exception contained in General Municipal Law, § 802. 1980 Op St Compt No. 80-481.

A village trustee, who is an engineer, would have a prohibited conflict of interest if he should enter into a contract with his village in implementation of a feasibility study on the use of heat pumps in the area, which study is sponsored by a grant to him by the Federal Government. 1980 Op St Compt No. 80-585.

When a town assessor also is a land developer, contractor, home builder and realtor; whether any given transaction results in a statutory conflict of interest depends upon the facts. Whether it is advisable for a town board to appoint such a person as town assessor when there is a potential for lawsuits by him against the town involving his business undertakings, is questionable, but for determination by the town board. 1981 Op St Compt No. 81-64, 1981 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 825.

When a member of a village committee which acts in an advisory capacity to the village board of trustees relative to the implementation and administration of Federal grants for commercial revitalization, is a recipient of a grant, whether the member has a prohibited conflict of interest depends upon pertinent facts. 1981 Op St Compt No. 81-39, 1981 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 854.

A member of a public housing authority does not have a common law conflict of interest when his son and law partner is appointed authority counsel unless he derives a material or pecuniary benefit as a result thereof. The conflicts of interest statutes are not applicable to municipal housing authorities. 1982 Op St Compt No. 82-166, 1982 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 552.

In connection with the state comptroller's authority to oversee the accounts of political subdivisions, the comptroller may request officers and employees of a city to complete a form listing certain outside employment and business interests in order for the comptroller to determine the possible existence of conflicts of interest. 1992 Op St Compt No. 91-60, 1992 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 2.

No conflict of interest on the part of a town supervisor made it error to affirm the town board's denial of a special use permit because the supervisor's ownership of land near the proposed use and opposition to the use as a candidate for public office did not create a prohibited conflict of interest. Matter of Troy Sand & Gravel Co., Inc. v Fleming, 156 A.D.3d 1295, 68 N.Y.S.3d 540, 2017 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9270 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2017), app. denied, 2018 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8984 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't Apr. 12, 2018), app. denied, 31 N.Y.3d 913, 106 N.E.3d 756, 81 N.Y.S.3d 373, 2018 N.Y. LEXIS 1632 (N.Y. 2018).

Court rejected petitioners' challenge to a town board's negative declaration issued under the State Environmental Quality Review Act (SEQRA) with respect to respondents' casino project, as a board member's public statements and correspondence with respondents, and the speed by which the SEQRA process was completed, did not amount to prohibited bias under N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law art. 18. Casino Free Tyre v Town Bd. of Town of Tyre, 51 Misc. 3d 665, 27 N.Y.S.3d 350, 2016 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 320 (N.Y. Sup. Ct.), aff'd, 140 A.D.3d 1711, 31 N.Y.S.3d 906, 2016 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4417 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 2016).

2. Constitutionality

Since there was reasonable basis for legislation prohibiting municipal officers and employees from having interest in any contract with municipality if they have power to authorize contract or payment thereunder, it was constitutional. Dykeman v Symonds, 54 A.D.2d 159, 388 N.Y.S.2d 422, 1976 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13744 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1976).

II. Prohibited Interests in Municipal Contracts

3. Generally; contract defined

Application for a building permit and subsequent issuance thereof is a "contract" between applicant and municipality by the terms of which municipality confers upon applicant a valuable property right, and, as such, falls within provision of General Municipal Code prohibiting any municipal officer from having an interest in any contract with municipality when such officer has a power or duty to negotiate, prepare, authorize or approve contract. People v Pinto, 88 Misc. 2d 303, 387 N.Y.S.2d 385, 1976 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2669 (N.Y. City Ct. 1976).

Word "contract," within provision of General Municipal Law that no municipal officers shall have an interest in any contract with the municipality when such officer has the power or duty to negotiate, prepare, authorize or approve the contract, includes an agreement with a municipality, express or implied. People v Pinto, 88 Misc. 2d 303, 387 N.Y.S.2d 385, 1976 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2669 (N.Y. City Ct. 1976).

A street excavation permit is not a contract prohibited by General Municipal Law, Art. 18, and may, therefore, be issued to a municipal officer or employee or to a corporation in which he is a stockholder. 1965 NY Ops Atty Gen May 26 (Informal), 1965 N.Y. AG LEXIS 91.

A village trustee, who is an employee of an automobile dealership, does not have a prohibited conflict of interest in contracts between the village and the dealer involving the purchase of parts for, and the servicing of, village vehicles, if the exception contained in General Municipal Law, § 802(1)(b) has application. 1980 Op St Compt No. 80-730, 1980 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 212.

A "contract", as defined in General Municipal Law, § 800(2), exists between the contractor and the municipality where a municipality approves a grant of Federal moneys to an applicant for home rehabilitation based upon a bid submitted by the contractor. A city alderman, who is an employee of the contractor, has a prohibited interest in that contract unless the exception contained in General Municipal Law, § 802(1)(b) is applicable. 1980 Op St Compt No. 80-216.

If a superintendent of a town water district, who is also the president of a firm which supplies propane gas to the district, has a prohibited interest in contracts between his firm and the town, the fact that the water district is situate on an island apart from the mainland of the town and cannot obtain gas from another supplier, does not create a circumstance which provides an exception to the prohibited interest. 1980 Op St Compt No. 80-586.

A municipal officer or employee does not have a statutory interest by reason of the fact that he is the lessor of property to an individual or firm which is an applicant for a zoning change on other property owned by such individual or firm. It is the position of this Office that the application for, and the granting of, a zoning change by a municipality does not constitute a contract under section 800(2). Disclosure pursuant to section 809 is advisable when a municipal officer or employee is the lessor of property to an applicant for a zoning change, even though the leased property is not involved in the rezoning. 1983 Op St Compt No. 83-114, 1983 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 361.

A contract between a city and a church would not be prohibited on the basis of a councilman's membership in the church because contracts between municipalities and not-for-profit corporations, such as churches, are excepted from the conflict of interest provisions of the General Municipal Law. The conflict of interest statutes do not require the councilman to abstain from voting on the authorization for such contract but he may be required to do so by the local Code of Ethics or by local rules of procedure. (2) A contract between a city fire department and a local business is not prohibited on the basis of a firefighter's spouse's ownership of that business unless the firefighter has the power or duty to negotiate, prepare, authorize or approve the contract or authorize or approve payment thereunder. In both cases, disclosure of the interest must be made, in writing, to the city council. 1983 Op St Compt No. 83-112, 1983 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 469.

The obligation of a municipal officer or employee for care and treatment received by him or by a person for whom he is financially responsible in a hospital or facility operated by his municipality, does not constitute a contract for purposes of the conflicts of interest statutes. Therefore, the said statutes are inapplicable. 1985 Op St Compt No. 85-28, 1985 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 117.

4. Power to approve contract

Statute providing that no municipal officer or employee shall have interest in any contract with municipality of which he is officer or employee when such officer or employee individually or as member of a board has power or duty to negotiate, prepare, authorize or approve contract or authorize or approve payment thereunder was enacted for benefit of community in general and citizen who alleged violation thereof had standing to present issue in court. Dykeman v Symonds, 54 A.D.2d 159, 388 N.Y.S.2d 422, 1976 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13744 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1976).

After new city manager assumed office, former acting city manager was without authority, real or apparent, to execute consultant contract on behalf of city with new city manager, and new city manager's act of signing contract which resulted in retaining himself was void as involving prohibited conflict of interest. De Santis v Troy, 83 Misc. 2d 195, 371 N.Y.S.2d 310, 1975 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2876 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1975).

A member of a town planning board, who is a partner in an engineering firm, has a prohibited conflict of interest in contracts between his firm and the town for engineering services in relation to water and sewer projects, when the planning board approves such projects, if that action constitutes approval of the work done by the firm or is prerequisite to payment by the town for the services performed. 1980 Op St Compt No. 80-790.

Competitive bidding does not cure the prohibition against a municipal officer or employee having an interest in a contract when such officer or employee has power to approve the contract. 1979 NY Ops Atty Gen Sept 14 (Informal), 1979 N.Y. AG LEXIS 44.

5. Contracts involving consideration of less than $100

A member of a town board may not have an interest in a contract of insurance with such town except where the total consideration payable thereunder, together with all other considerations payable under contracts with such town in which he has an interest during the fiscal year, does not exceed $100.00; or where his interest is only that of a stockholder owning or controlling less than 5— of the stock of the corporation entering into such contract with the town. In any event, disclosure under § 803 must be made. 1969 NY Ops Atty Gen July 16 (Informal), 1969 N.Y. AG LEXIS 65.

The board of managers of a village public general hospital may not contract for the purchase of supplies with a corporation of which the mayor is a stockholder and officer except to the extent of $100 in the aggregate during any fiscal year. 1964 Op St Compt No. 64-871.

A prohibited conflict of interest does not exist where a town purchases supplies from a business owned by a member of the town board, provided the amount does not exceed the total sum of $100 for any fiscal year. 1968 Op St Compt No. 68-617.

Where a town of the second class sells a parcel of land worth less than $100 to a town justice: (1) a permissive referendum is required without regard to the value of the land; (2) The town justice would not have a prohibited interest in the transaction. 1974 Op St Compt No. 74-477.

6. —Contracts in excess of $100

The sale of hearing aids by a County Legislator to the Department of Social Services of his county, the aggregate value of which during the fiscal year exceeds the sum of $100, results in a prohibited conflict of interest. 1972 NY Ops Atty Gen May 1 (Informal), 1972 N.Y. AG LEXIS 92.

A prohibited conflict of interest exists where a village purchases supplies from a business owned by a member of the board of trustees in excess of $100 during any one fiscal year. This Department has no authority to provide an exception to that statute. 1968 Op St Compt No. 68-536.

Member of board of trustees of community college would have prohibited conflict of interest if, in any fiscal year, college purchased supplies from hardware store owned by trustee and sum of purchases plus consideration under other contracts with college in which trustee had interest exceed $100. 1996 Op St Compt No. 96-14, 1996 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 11.

7. Contracts executed prior to election or appointment of official; contracts for goods and services

The existence of a contract to supply gravel to a town does not disqualify the contracting party from being appointed town attorney. The contract would have to be disclosed in writing to the town board and could be continued until its normal termination date but could not be renewed while the contracting individual holds the office of town attorney. 1980 NY Ops Atty Gen Jan 31 (Informal), 1980 N.Y. AG LEXIS 154.

A village trustee who entered into a contract with the village for professional surveying services prior to his election as trustee, does not have a prohibited conflict of interest in that contract. Disclosure is required. 1980 Op St Compt No. 80-233, 1980 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 331.

Attorney who is appointed town attorney would not have prohibited interest in pre-existing contract between town and his or her law firm, but attorney would be required to disclose his or her interest in contract, and attorney should also recuse him or herself from any matter affecting his or her law firm, with those functions instead being performed by deputy, if any. 2000 Op St Compt No. 2000-22, 2000 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 26.

8. —Insurance contracts

No prohibited conflict of interest arises when a mayor-elect of a city, who is also an officer of an insurance firm from which the city has previously purchased an insurance policy, takes office on January 1, 1968, and the insurance policy expires on June 30, 1968. However, it would be illegal for the city thereafter to purchase any further insurance from the firm. 1967 Op St Compt No. 67-957.

No prohibited conflict of interest arises when an officer of an insurance firm, from which firm a town has purchased insurance policies, is subsequently elected and takes office as town supervisor. However, any renewal of such policies or the purchase of new or other policies from such firm during his tenure of office would be illegal. 1968 Op St Compt No. 68-112.

9. —Lease agreements

A prohibited conflict of interest would arise should a county renew an agreement for the lease of premises for county purposes where the property is owned by a member of the board of supervisors, even though the lease was executed prior to the election of the said supervisor. 1968 Op St Compt No. 68-553.

A town councilman from whom the town rents a building on a month to month tenancy, does not have a prohibited conflict of interest where the tenancy commenced prior to his election and has continued without interruption. 1980 Op St Compt No. 80-250, 1980 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 345.

10. —Other contracts

A prohibited conflict of interest in a contract arose under section 801 of the General Municipal Law when the Acting Town Attorney of the Town of Greenburgh prepared a draft of a proposed contract between him and said Town for his future employment as Special Counsel to the Town's Urban Renewal Commission, even though said contract was to take effect after the Acting Town Attorney had resigned from his position as Acting Town Attorney. 1975 NY Ops Atty Gen Feb 27 (Informal), 1975 N.Y. AG LEXIS 77.

County treasurer may have prohibited conflict of interest in lease pursuant to which county rents gravel pit from corporation of which treasurer owns more than 5 percent of stock, even though original lease was entered into before treasurer was elected to office and treasurer does not have power or duty to negotiate, prepare, authorize or approve contemplated lease renewal, or to approve payments or audit bills or claims under either original lease or renewal, but even if treasurer does not have prohibited interest in lease, treasurer's interest must be disclosed. 1989 Op St Compt No. 89-32, 1989 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 35.

11. Municipal official or employee as contracting party; county official or employee

CLS General Municipal Law § 801 is not violated by collective bargaining agreement between county and county chapter of Civil Service Employees Association despite fact that it was negotiated by county employee at time when local county laws provided that all exempt county employees, including defendant, would be granted same salary adjustments as members of bargaining units of Association, thereby creating in defendant "prohibited interest" in contract that would render it void under CLS General Municipal Law § 804, since Civil Service Employees Association is voluntary nonprofit association within meaning of CLS General Municipal Law § 802(1)(f) and therefore excepted from proscriptions of § 801. Stettine v County of Suffolk, 66 N.Y.2d 354, 497 N.Y.S.2d 329, 488 N.E.2d 75, 1985 N.Y. LEXIS 17611 (N.Y. 1985).

The sale of hearing aids by a County Legislator to the Department of Social Services of his county, the aggregate value of which during the fiscal year exceeds the sum of $100, results in a prohibited conflict of interest. 1972 NY Ops Atty Gen May 1 (Informal), 1972 N.Y. AG LEXIS 92.

County Law, § 214(2) requires the publication of the complete text of each local law, and there is no statutorily prohibited conflict of interest where a member of the Orleans County Planning Board has a contract with the County for the disposition of solid waste material in a landfill. 1978 NY Ops Atty Gen August 7 (Informal), 1978 N.Y. AG LEXIS 340.

A prohibited conflict of interest arises where a member of a county board of supervisors submits a claim to the county for board and other incidental expenses of children placed at his home pursuant to the Social Services Law, when the county offices of commissioner of social services and auditor are appointive. The conclusion is the same whether he or his wife is the licensee. 1967 Op St Compt No. 67-1038.

A prohibited conflict of interest occurs where a county makes purchases from a businessman who is also a member of the county legislature. 1968 Op St Compt No. 68-12.

Any fee paid to a county director of mental health for conducting the mental examination of criminal defendants pursuant to Chapter V of the Code of Criminal Procedure must be turned over to the county treasurer. However, he is entitled to travel expenses. 1969 Op St Compt No. 69-796.

In a county which has a director of purchasing who is an appointee of the elected county executive, and an elective county comptroller who is responsible for audit and approval of bills, a county legislator does not have a prohibited interest in contracts between the county and himself as a private businessman. 1973 Op St Compt No. 73-980.

A county coroner who has a statutory interest in contracts between his private undertaking business and the county, would not have a prohibited interest in such contracts unless he performs functions enumerated in section 801 relative to such contracts. However, disclosure is required. 1979 Op St Compt No. 79-927.

When a county manager is an appointee of the county board of representatives and is empowered by the county charter to award all purchase contracts, a member of the board has a conflict of interest with respect to any contracts for the sale of equipment or materials to the county. 1983 Op St Compt No. 83-185, 1983 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 300.

A prohibited conflict of interest arises where a member of county board of supervisors, who is also a pharmacist, submits vouchers to the county for payment based upon purchases made at his store by recipients of county welfare and assistance, when the county has the appointive offices of county commissioner of social services and county auditor. 1967 Op St Compt No. 67-1012.

In a county which has a director of purchasing who is an appointee of the elective county executive and also an elective county comptroller who is responsible for audit and approval of vouchers, a county legislator does not have a prohibited interest in contracts between the county and himself, but he must disclose his interest in the same. 1978 Op St Compt No. 78-525.

12. —Fire district officials or employees

Where defendant sent a board of fire commissioners a letter falsely stating that plaintiff, a fire district commissioner, had received a commission from the sale of a rescue vehicle to the district, as receiving the commission constituted a violation of N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 801, a misdemeanor, the jury was properly instructed on defamation per se. Geraci v Probst, 15 N.Y.3d 336, 912 N.Y.S.2d 484, 938 N.E.2d 917, 2010 N.Y. LEXIS 2901 (N.Y. 2010).

Where the fire department chief engineer is responsible for the servicing of fire district vehicles, a prohibited conflict of interest occurs when such vehicles are serviced at a service station owned by him. 1969 Op St Compt No. 69-942.

A fire district may have a deputy treasurer and, furthermore, there would be no prohibited interest in contract if the fire district treasurer were an insurance agent who sells insurance to the fire district. 1978 Op St Compt No. 78-670.

A member of a board of fire commissioners who is also a private businessman has a prohibited conflict of interest in any contracts between himself and the fire district. 1979 Op St Compt No. 79-4.

Where a village exercises direct financial control over its volunteer fire department, it may contract for repair of its fire trucks with a garage owned, in part, by the chief of its volunteer fire department. Enclosure of Op. No. 70-785. 1979 Op St Compt No. 79-122.

An assistant chief of a fire district fire department does not have a prohibited interest in purchases of firematic equipment made by the district from a company owned by him, even though he makes recommendations to the board with respect to such equipment needed by the department. 1983 Op St Compt No. 83-30, 1983 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 450.

Fire district commissioner who is also president and chief stockholder of automotive dealership would have conflict of interest if fire district vehicles are serviced by his company unless pertinent exceptions in CLS Gen Mun § 802 apply; extension for voting on rules relating to contracts between district and his company would not be curative. 1988 Op St Compt No. 88-8, 1988 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 8.

Fire district treasurer who is officer and stockholder of insurance agency with which fire district contracts has interest in contract; interest must be disclosed under CLS Gen Mun § 803, but is not prohibited. 1997 Op St Compt No. 97-19, 1997 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 9.

Member of board of fire commissioners of fire district located within county having population of more than 200,000 who is officer and owner of $33^1/_3$ percent of stock of corporation would have prohibited interest in contract for snow plowing and lawn maintenance between fire district and corporation, even if fire district solicits bids for work, corporation is sole bidder, commissioner recuses himself from discussions relative to contract and abstains from voting on matters relating to contract. 2000 Op St Compt No. 2000-7, 2000 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 20.

13. —Town officials or employees

A town building inspector may be paid additional compensation for work performed in revising and recodifying the town's zoning ordinance. However, the town attorney may not receive additional compensation for such work. 1964 Ops St Compt No. 64-935.

A prohibited conflict of interest does not arise where a town constable, who also owns a garage business, services town vehicles and submits a claim therefor, provided that he has no section 801 responsibilities and duties with respect to the contract between himself (in his private capacity) and the town. 1969 Op St Compt No. 69-495.

A member of a town planning board does not have a prohibited interest in a contract with the town to renovate the town hall. If such contract were awarded to the building inspector, the existence of a prohibited interest would depend upon whether certain powers or duties are assigned to him by the town board in connection with the construction. 1973 Op St Compt No. 73-235.

When a town supervisor, who is also a construction contractor, undertakes without town board approval to use his construction equipment to remove ice in a creek under a town highway bridge during an emergency, the supervisor may not recover payment for the work from the town. 1978 Op St Compt No. 78-992.

A member of a town board has a prohibited conflict of interest where the town purchases sand from him for use on town highways. 1978 Op St Compt No. 78-1005.

A prohibited conflict of interest does not occur where a town purchases supplies from a store owned by a town justice (not a member of the town board). Disclosure is required. 1980 Op St Compt No. 80-12.

A town assessor, who is also a plumber, may bid on and be awarded a contract involving a town building, but a written public disclosure of the assessor's interest in the contract is required. 1980 Op St Compt No. 80-129, 1980 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 310.

A superintendent of a town sewer improvement area, who also owns a construction business, may be retained to perform services for the town, such as snow-plowing and excavation, provided that he, in his town position, does not possess any of the powers or duties enumerated in section 801(1). Disclosure under section 803(1) is required. 1981 Op St Compt No. 81-45, 1981 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 844.

A town highway superintendent, who services sewer systems as a private contractor, does not have a conflict of interest when he supplies such services to the town provided that he does not have any powers or duties enumerated in section 801(1) relative to his contract with the town. 1982 Op St Compt No. 82-301, 1982 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 429.

A town supervisor, who also owns the only service station in town, would have a conflict of interest if the town should purchase products and services at his station. The filing of a disclosure statement by the supervisor would not obviate the prohibited interest. 1983 Op St Compt No. 83-168, 1983 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 313.

When a town councilman's company performs services and supplies parts in connection with the repair of the heating system for a town building, the councilman does not have a conflict of interest if the company receives no pecuniary profit or other material benefit, direct or indirect, as a result of such contract. 1985 Op St Compt No. 85-1, 1985 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 142.

Whether electrical contractor who also is chair of town planning board has prohibited interested in contract with town to perform electrical services must be determined on case-by-case basis by examining chair's powers and duties in connection with specific contract; even if interest is not prohibited, disclosure would be required. 1993 Op St Compt No. 93-23.

Whether a part-time town water superintendent, who is also a contractor, has a prohibited interest in contracts between himself, in his private capacity, and the town for repair of the town water system, depends upon his powers and duties with respect to such contracts. 1978 Op St Compt No. 78-1072.

14. —Village officials or employees

No prohibited conflict of interest will arise under General Municipal Law, § 801, when the Building Inspector of the Village of Fishkill, who is also a private contractor, is engaged by a Trustee of the Village, who also serves as Commissioner of Water Lines and Sewers (as authorized by Village Law, § 3-300[3]), to repair breaks in water and sewer lines and such "repair" is inspected and approved by the Commissioner. 1976 NY Ops Atty Gen Oct 13 (Informal), 1976 N.Y. AG LEXIS 161.

A prohibited conflict of interest exists where a village purchases supplies from a business owned by a member of the board of trustees in excess of $100 during any one fiscal year. This Department has no authority to provide an exception to that statute. 1968 Op St Compt No. 78-536.

Two members of a village board of trustees do not have prohibited conflicts of interest in insurance contracts between the village and an insurance company of which they are officers if, as employees of the company, they have nothing to do with the preparation, procurement or performance of the insurance contracts and their remuneration is not directly affected as a result of the contract. 1980 Op St Compt No. 80-443.

A village justice, who is an insurance agent, does not have a prohibited conflict of interest in the sale of insurance to the village. Disclosure is required. 1980 Op St Compt No. 80-444.

A member of a village board of appeals, who is also an insurance salesmen, does not have a prohibited interest in the sale of insurance to the village. Disclosure is required. A member of the village board of trustees has a prohibited conflict of interest if a firm of which he is a member sells supplies to the village. 1980 Op St Compt No. 80-623.

15. —Other officials or employees

A retired teacher who receives retirement benefits under a collective bargaining agreement, and who retains the right to vote for union officials and to approve future collective bargaining agreements may not serve as a member of the school board in that school district. Furthermore, resignation from the union would not change our finding that a conflict of interest exists. 1985 NY Ops Atty Gen 85-33 (Informal), 1985 N.Y. AG LEXIS 64.

A prohibited conflict of interest arises when a city councilman is a co-owner of a nursing home used by the Board of Public Welfare to house some of its patients. 1966 Op St Compt No. 66-711.

A physician who is employed by a public general hospital does not have a prohibited conflict of interest in a contract, between the hospital and a firm of which he is a partner, for emergency room services when he has none of the powers and duties enumerated in Section 801 of the General Municipal Law with respect to such contract. 1978 Op St Compt No. 78-1027.

Except as permitted by the exceptions contained in General Municipal Law, § 802, a member of the board of education of a "special act" school district, who is also a director of a bank, would have a prohibited conflict of interest in any business transactions between the district and the bank. 1980 Op St Compt No. 80-514.

There is no illegality in the sale of insurance by an insurance corporation to an industrial development authority when a member of the authority, who formerly was a stockholder and officer of the corporation, sells all of his stock and resigns his corporate office, and is not otherwise associated with the corporation nor receives a pecuniary or material benefit as a result of the sale. 1981 Op St Compt No. 81-114, 1981 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 779.

A member of a hospital board of a city public hospital does not have a prohibited interest in a contract between the city and his accounting firm for the annual audit of city books other than hospital records. Disclosure is required. 1982 Op St Compt No. 82-247, 1982 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 477.

An employee of a board of cooperative educational services does not have a prohibited conflict of interest in a contract between the BOCES and herself and her spouse relative to the use of a swimming pool owned by them in connection with a summer program for handicapped children when she does not have any section 801 powers or duties relative thereto. 1982 Op St Compt No. 82-58, 1982 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 664.

Section 73(4) of the Public Officers Law is not applicable to officers and employees of a community college. A community college is an instrumentality of its local sponsor and its officers and employees are subject to the conflicts of interest statutes. A faculty member, who is in charge of purchasing for the college, and who also operates a business as a sole proprietorship, would have a conflict of interest if the college should purchase equipment from his business and he, in his college position, possesses the power or duty to perform one or more of the functions enumerated in section 801(1). 1983 Op St Compt No. 83-6, 1983 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 476.

A member of a county board of health would have a conflict of interest if he or she is retained as a consultant at $60 per hour to the county health department where an appointee of the board has the power or duty to negotiate the consulting contract, unless and to the extent that one of the exceptions in the General Municipal Law § 802 is applicable. 1990 Op St Compt No. 90-16, 1990 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 18.

16. —Contract involving another municipality

Where a town rents snow removal equipment to a county for use on state highways and the town superintendent of highways operates such equipment and is compensated strictly as a county employee, he is entitled to retain such compensation, although such arrangement may constitute a prohibited interest in the prime contract between the town and the county. 1965 Op St Compt No. 65-154.

A member of a county civil service commission is not prohibited from having an interest in a contract with a town or village within the county. 1965 Op St Compt No. 65-259.

There is no conflict of interest where a mayor of a city submits to a county embracing the city vouchers for audit and payment of expenses incurred by county welfare recipients for the purchase of merchandise at a store operated by the mayor. 1967 Op St Compt No. 67-315.

17. Municipal official or employee as employee of contracting party; city official or employees

No prohibited conflict of interest exists where a mayor is employed, as a salesclerk and bookkeeper, in a hardware store, which transacts business with this city in the absence of a showing that this remuneration is directly affected or that his duties directly involve the effecting of such contracts on the store's behalf. 1970 NY Ops Atty Gen Feb 16 (Informal), 1970 N.Y. AG LEXIS 32.

A prohibited interest in contract exists where the mayor of the City of North Tonawanda is employed by a hardware store with which the city does business. Whether the exception provided by section 802(1)(b) is applicable depends upon the nature of his duties as a store employee. 1969 Op St Compt No. 69-402.

Whether an accounting clerk for a municipal electric service has a prohibited interest in a contract for a computer program between the city and a computer firm, where she has assisted in the development of the program for the firm, depends upon certain facts. 1978 Op St Compt No. 78-840.

A "contract", as defined in General Municipal Law, § 800(2), exists between the contractor and the municipality where a municipality approves a grant of Federal moneys to an applicant for home rehabilitation based upon a bid submitted by the contractor. A city alderman, who is an employee of the contractor, has a prohibited interest in that contract unless the exception contained in General Municipal Law, § 802(1)(b) is applicable. 1980 Op St Compt No. 80-216.

A city clerk-chamberlain has a statutory interest in contracts between the city and a contractor for which he performs services as an independent contractor only if he receives a direct or indirect pecuniary or material benefit as a result of the contracts. 1982 Op St Compt No. 82-208, 1982 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 519.

A city council member who is a partner in a firm of consulting engineers has a conflict of interest when the city sells a parcel of property to physicians who have retained his firm to prepare site development plans in connection with the construction of an office complex thereon. 1983 Op St Compt No. 83-180, 1983 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 308.

City councilman who is employee of corporation does not have conflict of interest in relation to contract between city and corporation when his remuneration is not directly affected as result of such contract and duties of his employment do not directly involve procurement, preparation or performance of any part of such contract. 1987 Op St Compt No. 87-91, 1987 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 143.

18. —County officials or employees

No prohibited conflict of interest exists in the following situations: (1) A member of the board of supervisors of a county is vice-president of a corporation from which the county purchases materials, and (2) A member of the planning department of a county is also an employee of a firm which contracts with the county; if in both of the above situations, the remuneration of the municipal employee and/or officer is not directly affected as a result of the contracts of their employer (firm and corporation) with the municipality, and the duties of their employment do not directly involve the procurement, preparation, or performance of any part of such contracts, provided their duties with the firm or corporation do not normally include such functions. (3) The wife of the head of the county planning department is employed by a planning firm which does business with the county, if the remuneration of the wife is not directly affected as a result of the contracts of her employer with the municipality and the duties of her employment do not directly involve the procurement, preparation, or performance of any part of such contracts, provided her duties with the firm do not normally include such functions. 1967 Op St Compt No. 67-513.

A prohibited conflict of interest occurs where a pharmacist employed part-time by a county welfare department checks prescriptions submitted by a pharmacy by which he is employed and which participates in the Medicaid program. 1968 Op St Compt No. 68-670.

The execution of contracts between a board of cooperative educational services and a county does not give rise to a conflict of interest where a county legislator is an instructor in the employ of the said board. 1969 Op St Compt No. 69-1012.

A member of a county board of supervisors who is employed by the county extension service association does not have a prohibited interest in contracts between the county and the association. 1975 Op St Compt No. 75-736.

A prohibited interest in contract does not occur where a county legislator is an employee of a not-for-profit hospital corporation which provides services to the county pursuant to contract. 1975 Op St Compt No. 75-1273.

Generally, elective county corner, who is also funeral director, would not have prohibited interest in contract if he or she submitted bills to county department of social services for payment of costs of burying deceased public assistance recipient; 10 Opns St Compt 1954, p 217 superseded to extent inconsistent with this opinion. 1998 Op St Compt No. 98-5, 1998 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 5.

A county legislator, who is an employee of one of two family-owned and closely held corporations which have common business interests, has a prohibited interest in contracts between the county and either corporation. Whether the exception contained in General Municipal Law, § 802(1)(b) is applicable depends upon pertinent facts. 1975 Op St Compt No. 75-84.

Member of county governing board who also serves on board of not-for-profit agency does not have prohibited interest in contract between county and agency, but member must disclose any interest in such contract and should not participate in discussion or vote on contract. 1992 Op St Compt No. 92-30, 1992 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 17.

19. —Fire department or district officials or employees

The chief engineer of a fire district does not have a prohibited interest in contracts for the purchase of firefighting equipment between the district and a firm by which he is employed unless, as a fire district officer, he performs certain functions enumerated in General Municipal Law, § 801(1) in connection with such contracts. 1975 Op St Compt No. 75-459.

Whether an assistant chief of a village volunteer fire department has a prohibited conflict of interest in contracts between the village and a firm which employs him as a sales representative depends upon his powers and duties, as assistant chief, relative to such contracts. 1979 Op St Compt No. 79-740.

The assistant chief of a city fire department consisting of volunteer firemen would not have a prohibited interest in contracts between the city and a company by which he is employed unless he has one or more of the powers or duties enumerated in section 801(1) with respect to such contracts. 1982 Op St Compt No. 82-343, 1982 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 393.

A fire district commissioner who is an employee of a business which services district vehicles has a conflict of interest in any contracts between the district and the business unless the exception contained in section 802(1)(b) is applicable. 1984 Op St Compt No. 84-37, 1984 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 100.

Fire district commissioner who is also president and chief stockholder of automotive dealership would have conflict of interest if fire district vehicles are serviced by his company unless pertinent exceptions in CLS Gen Mun § 802 apply; extension for voting on rules relating to contracts between district and his company would not be curative. 1988 Op St Compt No. 88-8, 1988 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 8.

Fire district commissioner, who is salaried employee of firm doing business with district, does not have prohibited conflict of interest in purchase contracts between firm and district if exception contained in CLS Gen Mun Law § 802(1)(b) is applicable. 1988 Ops St Compt No. 88-56, 1988 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 52.

When a secretary-treasurer of a fire district performs the functions of executing the district's bonds and issuing checks for the payment of principal and interest, and has no other powers and duties with respect to the sale, issuance or payment of bonds, the secretary-treasurer would not have a contractual interest prohibited by article 18 of the General Municipal Law if he or she purchased bonds issued by the district. 1991 Op St Compt No. 91-8, 1991 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 7.

20. —Library officials or employees

A prohibited conflict of interest does not exist where a salesman employed by a publishing company is also a trustee of a public library which is a member of a cooperative library system, and the public library places orders for books through said system which in turn purchases the books from the publishing company, if (a) the remuneration of the salesman is not directly affected as a result of the contract between the company and the library system and (b) the duties of the salesman do not directly involve the procurement, preparation or performance of any part of the contract. 1967 Op St Compt No. 67-385.

However, a prohibited conflict of interest would exist if the salesman's normal duties involve handling the account of the particular library system and he intentionally refrains from assuming such duties. 1967 Op St Compt No. 67-385.

21. —Town official or employees

A prohibited conflict of interest arises on behalf of a town supervisor when a town purchases equipment from a firm by which he is employed, unless an exception afforded by Section 802 of the General Municipal Law is applicable to the circumstances of any given transaction. 1968 Op St Compt No. 68-8.

A prohibited interest in contract exists where a town board purchases a vehicle from a company which employs a member of the board as a salesman, unless the exception afforded by section 802(1)(b) is applicable. 1968 Op St Compt No. 68-810.

There is no prohibited conflict of interest where a town clerk, acting as sales agent, sells cleaning supplies to the town, but disclosure of the interest in contract is required. 1972 Op St Compt No. 72-879.

Subject to certain exceptions contained in General Municipal Law, § 802, whether a town water and sewer superintendent has a prohibited interest in contracts for the installation of water and sewer connections between the town and the firm by which he is employed depends upon whether inspection of such work by him constitutes approval thereof or is a prerequisite to payment therefor by the town. 1975 Op St Compt No. 75-48.

A councilman on the town board who is the secretary/treasurer and a major stockholder of a truck center business has a prohibited conflict of interest in contracts between the town and the truck center business involving the purchase, by the town, of highway supplies unless the total consideration payable under the contract, when added to the aggregate amount of all consideration payable under contracts in which the councilman had an interest during the fiscal year does not exceed $100. 1983 Op St Compt No. 83-95, 1983 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 391.

Newly-elected town board member who is also an employee of the insurance agency with which the town contracts for insurance coverage would have a prohibited conflict of interest in the contract unless the exception contained in either CLS Gen Mun Law § 802(1)(b) or (1)(h) is applicable, as board member, as employee of insurance agency, is deemed to have an interest in any insurance contract between the agency and the town, regardless of whether he receives a direct or indirect pecuniary or material benefit from such contracts. 1989 Op St Compt No. 89-39.

Arrangement whereby recording secretary of town planning board is employed by consulting engineer who regularly represents developers in matters before planning board would not appear to raise questions as to potential prohibited interests in town contracts; however, secretary would be prohibited from performing services for engineering firm in relation to any matter before, or to come before planning board, and he or she would be prohibited from disclosing any confidential information acquired in course of his or her duties as secretary to planning board, or using any such information to further personal interests. 1997 Op St Compt No. 97-12, 1997 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 7.

22. —Village officials or employees

The prohibition of these sections is not applicable to a village trustee who is only a salaried employee of a corporation which contracts with the village. 1966 NY Ops Atty Gen Apr 7 (Informal), 1966 N.Y. AG LEXIS 54.

A village trustee may be employed by a hardware store contracting with the village provided that his salary as such employee will not be directly affected as a result of such contract and provided that the duties of such employment do not directly involve the procurement, preparation or performance of any part of such contract. However, disclosure of such employment must be made by the village trustee in accordance with the General Municipal Law, § 803. 1971 NY Ops Atty Gen Feb 24 (Informal), 1971 N.Y. AG LEXIS 45.

The chief engineer of a village electric department who also formed a cable television company which sought a franchise from the village would have a conflicting interest prohibited by General Municipal Law, § 801, in view of the nature of his duties as chief engineer. 1975 NY Ops Atty Gen Aug 12 (Informal), 1975 N.Y. AG LEXIS 148.

A vice president or stockholder of more than five percent of the outstanding stock of a cable T.V. company granted a franchise by the village has a conflicting interest prohibited by General Municipal Law, § 801, if he were also to serve as village trustee. There would be no conflict if he were merely an employee of the corporation and received remuneration pursuant to General Municipal Law, § 802, subdivision 1(b). 1978 NY Ops Atty Gen Nov 8 (Informal), 1978 N.Y. AG LEXIS 378.

Village mayor, employed full-time as technical sheriff in county sheriff's department, had conflict of interest in negotiating or voting on proposed contract with county for provision of law enforcement services by sheriff's department to village. 1998 NY Ops Atty Gen 98-34 (Informal), 1998 N.Y. AG LEXIS 31.

Under certain circumstances, there is no prohibited conflict of interest where the chairman of a village planning board is also employed by an architectural firm which is retained by the village to render services in connection with the construction of municipal buildings. 1967 Op St Compt No. 67-999.

A prohibited conflict of interest does not arise on behalf of a member of a village planning board where the village contracts to obtain the services of a firm of planning experts by whom the planning board member is employed, provided the planning board does not have the power or duty to do any of the things mentioned in section 801 with respect to the said contract. 1968 Op St Compt No. 68-265.

There is no prohibited conflict of interest where a village mayor or trustee is employed by an insurance agency and is not, in the course of his employment, directly involved in the procurement, preparation or performance of any insurance contract with the village or will not have his remuneration directly affected by such a contract. Likewise, if the mayor or trustee owns stock in an insurance agency which provides insurance to the village but the extent of such stockholdings are less than five per cent of the outstanding stock, there is no prohibited interest. If the extent of stockholdings exceeds five per cent of the outstanding stock, the interest will not be prohibited provided that the contract was entered into prior to the time the mayor or trustee was elected, and the contract may not be renewed upon expiration. 1981 Op St Compt No. 81-430, 1981 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 454.

There is no prohibited conflict of interest where a village purchases insurance from an insurance company of which a village trustee is an employee, if the trustee's remuneration will not be directly affected by the transaction and, as an employee of the company, the trustee will have nothing to do with the preparation, procurement or performance of the insurance contracts. 1982 Op St Compt No. 82-234, 1982 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 496.

A village clerk may enter into a contract with the village for the plowing of village streets but must disclose his statutory interest in the contract in writing to the board of trustees. 1983 Op St Compt No. 83-35, 1983 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 454.

Village trustee who is officer, employee and stockholder of construction corporation would have prohibited interest in any contract between corporation and village unless (a) his or her stock ownership amounts to less than 5 percent of outstanding stock and (b) is employee and officer of corporation, his or her duties do not involve procurement, preparation or performance of village contracts in his or her remuneration is not affected by such contract; there is no exception to conflict of interest provisions of CLS Gen Mun Art 18 for contracts entered into in emergency situations. 1988 Op St Compt No. 88-23, 1988 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 19.

23. Official's spouse or relative as employee of contracting party

Conflict of interest provisions of General Municipal Law did not prohibit board members whose spouses were employed by respondent school district from participating in contract negotiations and votes. 2004 Op Comm Ed No. 15,135, 2004 NY Educ. Dept. LEXIS 20.

Award of contract to firm which employed son of respondent board member did not constitute conflict of interest under CLS Gen Mun § 800(3) as (1) respondent's son was not his "dependent" merely because he resided in respondent's home after graduation and prior to his marriage, where he was at least 23 years old, had salaried position and assumed his own responsibility for taxes, clothing, insurance, medical expenses and entertainment, among other things, and (2) petitioner failed to prove that respondent derived direct or indirect pecuniary or material benefit from having his son reside in his home. 2001 Op Comm Ed No. 14,672, 2001 NY Educ. Dept. LEXIS 143.

Petitioners, two board members, seek a determination annulling that part of the code of ethics adopted by the Board of Education which prohibits board members from voting on employment contracts of their spouses. Sections 800(3) of the General Municipal Law carves out an exception to the conflict of interest rule that prohibits a board member from having an interest in any contract of a spouse which the board has the power or duty to negotiate, authorize, or approve. By expressly exempting spousal contracts from § 801's prohibition against conflicts of interest, the Legislature has adjudged it permissible for a school board member to vote on the employment contract of a spouse. The Board of Education may not override this plain intent by enacting ethical codes at odd with the General Municipal Law. The Board of Education's prohibition is also inconsistent with § 3016(2) of the Education Law, which allows school districts to employ as teachers a relative of board members, so long as such employment is approved by two-thirds of the members of the board. Conspicuously absent from this provision is any restriction on the exercise of power by board members whose spouses are employed by the district as teachers. The reasonable inference drawn from this omission is that the Legislature did not intend to restrict board members from voting on their spouses' employment contracts. By enacting a standard which does precisely that, the Board of Education has contravened the plain intent of § 3016, and has, in effect, prevented certain board members from substantially performing the duties of office. Accordingly, the provision of the Board of Education's ethics code which prohibit board members from voting on the employment contract of their spouses is an excess of the authority of the Board of Education, and is null and void. Appeal of Behuniak and Lattimore, 1991 Op Comm Ed No. 12,447.

No prohibited conflict of interest exists in the following situations: (1) A member of the board of supervisors of a county is vice-president of a corporation from which the county purchases materials, and (2) A member of the planning department of a county is also an employee of a firm which contracts with the county; if in both of the above situations, the remuneration of the municipal employee and/or officer is not directly affected as a result of the contracts of their employer (firm and corporation) with the municipality, and the duties of their employment do not directly involve the procurement, preparation, or performance of any part of such contracts, provided their duties with the firm or corporation do not normally include such functions. (3) The wife of the head of the county planning department is employed by a planning firm which does business with the county, if the remuneration of the wife is not directly affected as a result of the contracts of her employer with the municipality and the duties of her employment do not directly involve the procurement, preparation, or performance of any part of such contracts, provided her duties with the firm do not normally include such functions. 1967 Op St Compt No. 67-513.

A clerk in a town highway superintendent's office, whose duties include checking invoices for accuracy, would not have an interest prohibited by Article 18 of the General Municipal Law if the highway superintendent were to award contracts for the repair of town highway equipment to the clerk's spouse. 1992 Op St Compt No. 92-6.

24. Corporate interest in contract; official as officer or director of corporation

A county employee who held none of the authoritative powers enumerated in Gen Mun Law § 801(1) could not be indicted under that statute but could be indicted under a county law prohibiting conflicts of interest. People v Wendel, 116 Misc. 2d 91, 455 N.Y.S.2d 322, 1982 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3838 (N.Y. County Ct. 1982).

No prohibited conflict of interest arises from the sale of real property by an Urban Renewal Agency to a corporation of which a member of such Agency is an officer and director but not a shareholder, provided the conditions set forth in the cited statute are met and disclosure of interest is made. In the public interest the person involved herein should not participate in any transaction between the Agency and the corporation. If a County Board of Ethics has been created, its advisory opinion should be sought.

1969 NY Ops Atty Gen Dec 2 (Informal), 1969 N.Y. AG LEXIS 106.

A city fireman who is also president of a cable TV company granted a franchise by the city, does not have a conflicting interest prohibited by General Municipal Law, Section 801, but is required by Section 803 to publicly disclose his interest in the cable TV company. 1970 NY Ops Atty Gen July 30 (Informal), 1970 N.Y. AG LEXIS 98.

No prohibited conflict of interest exists in the following situations: (1) A member of the board of supervisors of a county is vice-president of a corporation from which the county purchases materials, and (2) A member of the planning department of a county is also an employee of a firm which contracts with the county; if in both of the above situations, the remuneration of the municipal employee and/or officer is not directly affected as a result of the contracts of their employer (firm and corporation) with the municipality, and the duties of their employment do not directly involve the procurement, preparation, or performance of any part of such contracts, provided their duties with the firm or corporation do not normally include such functions. (3) The wife of the head of the county planning department is employed by a planning firm which does business with the county, if the remuneration of the wife is not directly affected as a result of the contracts of her employer with the municipality and the duties of her employment do not directly involve the procurement, preparation, or performance of any part of such contracts, provided her duties with the firm do not normally include such functions. 1967 Op St Compt No. 67-513.

A county legislator does not have a prohibited interest in purchase contracts between the county and a corporation of which he is president and secretary, where the county officer in charge of purchasing and the auditing officer are appointees of the elective county executive and their appointments are subject to confirmation by the county legislature. 1975 Op St Compt No. 75-484.

A school board member who is president of a corporation does not have a prohibited interest in a contract for the purchase of buses from said corporation if the exception contained in General Municipal Law, § 802(1)(b) is applicable. 1978 Op St Compt No. 78-133.

A county commissioner of health does not have a prohibited interest in contracts between the county and a not-for-profit corporation of which he is a member of the board of directors; however, disclosure is required. 1980 Op St Compt No. 80-73.

Except for the applicability of one or more of the exceptions contained in section 802, a town councilman who is also the vice-president and branch manager of a bank would have a prohibited interest in any contracts between the town and the bank. 1982 Op St Compt No. 82-48, 1982 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 674.

When a village purchases materials and supplies for the use of its fire department from a corporation of which the fire chief is vice-president, whether the chief has a conflict of interest depends upon pertinent facts and circumstances. 1983 Op St Compt No. 83-211, 1983 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 273.

A member of the board of trustees of a community college has a conflict of interest in any contracts between the college and a bank of which he is a director, president and chief executive officer except to the extent that any of the exceptions enumerated in General Municipal Law, § 802 are applicable. 1983 Op St Compt No. 83-143, 1983 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 341.

Whether a member of a city council who is vice-president of a corporation operating a service station, has a conflict of interest when the city does business with the station depends upon pertinent facts. Section 801(1)(c) is not applicable when the commissioner of finance, who is responsible for entering into contracts on behalf of the city, is an appointee of the mayor and his appointment is subject to the approval of the common council. 1984 Op St Compt No. 84-16, 1984 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 123.

Member of county governing board who served as officer of 2 not-for-profit corporations, as well as director of one of those corporations, would have prohibited interest in contracts between county and either corporation, but must disclose any interest he may have in such contract under CLS Gen Mun § 803, and must avoid contravening statutory prohibitions against disclosure of confidential information and compensated appearances before county agencies under CLS Gen Mun § 805-a; furthermore, even if not required by county's code of ethics, county board member should not participate in county board discussions or decisions relating to county contracts with not-for profit corporations for which board member serves as officer, employee or director. 2001 Op St Compt No. 2001-9, 2001 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 9.

25. —Official as stockholder of corporation

A prohibited conflict of interest exists where a village trustee is the owner of more than 5% of the outstanding stock of a corporation whose sales to the village average $2,000 to $3,000 per year. 1965 NY Ops Atty Gen Feb 1 (Informal), 1965 N.Y. AG LEXIS 52.

A street excavation permit is not a contract prohibited by General Municipal Law, Art. 18, and may, therefore, be issued to a municipal officer or employee or to a corporation in which he is a stockholder. 1965 NY Ops Atty Gen May 26 (Informal), 1965 N.Y. AG LEXIS 91.

A city is not precluded from entering into a contract for the purchase of merchandise from a corporation in which a city employee is a stockholder. Proper disclosure of interest must be made. 1965 NY Ops Atty Gen Aug 26, (Informal), 1965 N.Y. AG LEXIS 126.

A town board member who is the principal stockholder of a corporation which contracts with an oil company to deliver oil on a per gallon basis, will have a prohibited conflict of interest in a contract between the town and the oil company for the purchase of oil. 1964 Op St Compt No. 64-1030.

A prohibited conflict of interest arises where a village purchases supplies and equipment from a hardware store operated by a corporation of which a village trustee is the principal stockholder. 1968 Op St Compt No. 68-323.

A prohibited conflict of interest will result if a community college purchases supplies from a corporation in which a member of the board of trustees is a major stockholder, notwithstanding that the corporation has been awarded a State contract pursuant to section 104 of the General Municipal Law. 1968 Op St Compt No. 68-382.

A county legislator has a prohibited interest in contracts between the county and a corporation of which he is a major stockholder for services provided for the county home and infirmary when he, as a member of the county board, has any of the powers and duties enumerated in section 801(1). 1979 Op St Compt No. 79-844.

When a village attorney is a director and stockholder of a bank, he has a conflict of interest if the bank should purchase a statutory installment bond from the village only if he has any of the powers and duties set forth in section 801(1) in relation to the transaction. If he has a conflict of interest, the sale nevertheless would be permissible if made pursuant to Local Finance Law,

§ 60.10 and the restrictions set forth therein. 1985 Op St Compt No. 85-34, 1985 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 108.

County treasurer may have prohibited conflict of interest in lease pursuant to which county rents gravel pit from corporation of which treasurer owns more than 5 percent of stock, even though original lease was entered into before treasurer was elected to office and treasurer does not have power or duty to negotiate, prepare, authorize or approve contemplated lease renewal, or to approve payments or audit bills or claims under either original lease or renewal, but even if treasurer does not have prohibited interest in lease, treasurer's interest must be disclosed. 1989 Op St Compt No. 89-32, 1989 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 35.

Village mayor who is also officer and stockholder of more than 5 percent of outstanding stock of insurance agency would have prohibited conflict of interest if agency sells insurance to village. 1988 Op St Compt No. 88-13, 1988 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 13.

Assistant chief of fire district's fire department who owns more than 5 percent of stock of private corporation contracting with fire district for sale and repair of radios to district does not have prohibited interest in contract if, as assistant chief, he or she does not have any powers and duties listed in CLS Gen Mun § 801 in connection with contract; if assistant chief, on behalf of corporation, exercises direction and control over any corporate employees involved in contract, such fact must be disclosed under CLS Gen Mun § 803(1). 2001 Op St Comp No. 2001-11, 2001 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 11.

26. —Official as both officer or director and stockholder

Conviction of former commissioner of public works on count charging failure to disclose an interest in snow plowing contract awarded to corporation of which Commissioner was officer and stockholder could not be reconciled with verdict of not guilty on count charging a conflict of interest regarding the contract; hence, conviction on the former count was required to be reversed and the charge dismissed; conviction on either charge required a basic finding that the commissioner had an interest in the contract. People v Speach, 49 A.D.2d 210, 374 N.Y.S.2d 210, 1975 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10626 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1975).

There is a prohibited conflict of interest in a contract between a village and a business corporation of which the mayor is a substantial shareholder and an officer. 1964 Op St Compt No. 64-808.

There is a prohibited conflict of interest where members of the village board of trustees are shareholders, directors and an officer of the contracting corporation. 1964 Op St Compt No. 64-808.

The board of managers of a village public general hospital may not contract for the purchase of supplies with a corporation of which the mayor is a stockholder and officer except to the extent of $100 in the aggregate during any fiscal year. 1964 Op St Compt No. 64-871.

An interest in contract does not arise where a person is retained as a consultant by a municipality on an independent contractual basis, and the municipality purchases equipment from a corporation of which he is a stockholder, director and president. 1969 Op St Compt No. 69-17.

The interest in contract is not prohibited where a member of a town conservation advisory council is a stockholder and an officer of a corporation which has contracted to perform alterations on a town building. 1970 Op St Compt No. 70-51.

A village may purchase supplies and equipment from various stores owned by a corporation of which the village justice is an officer and stockholder. 1973 Op St Compt No. 73-805.

A town councilman who is the sole stockholder of an insurance corporation has a conflict of interest when the town purchases insurance from his corporation. 1983 Op St Compt No. 83-169, 1983 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 314.

Fire district commissioner who is also president and chief stockholder of automotive dealership would have conflict of interest if fire district vehicles are serviced by his company unless pertinent exceptions in CLS Gen Mun § 802 apply; extension for voting on rules relating to contracts between district and his company would not be curative. 1988 Op St Compt No. 88-8, 1988 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 8.

Where a town councilman is the president and major stockholder of a corporation which manufactures septic tanks and the corporation sells such tanks to a contractor for use in connection with the performance of a contract with the town for the construction of a sewer system after competitive bidding, there is no conflict of interest in the absence of a commitment between the corporation and the contractor for the purchase of the tanks prior to the award of the contract by the town board. 1982 Op St Compt No. 82-207, 1982 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 507.

27. —Corporate interest of spouse or relatives

A prohibited conflict of interest would arise in a contract between a town and a private corporation when the spouse of the deputy comptroller of the town is a majority stockholder of that corporation, unless the total consideration payable under the contract does not exceed one hundred dollars. 1975 NY Ops Atty Gen July 7 (Informal), 1975 N.Y. AG LEXIS 133.

A member of county board of supervisors has a prohibited interest in contracts between the county and a closely held corporation of which her husband is a major stockholder and president. 1974 Op St Compt No. 74-400.

A city attorney has a prohibited interest in any "contracts" between the city and a corporation in which his wife owns 25% of the stock. 1978 Op St Compt No. 78-156.

When a village mayor previously has transferred ownership of his stock in a water works company to his son and wife, whether the mayor has a prohibited interest in the purchase by the village of the company assets depends upon whether he receives any pecuniary benefit from the moneys paid to the wife and son as stockholders of the corporation upon the sale of the corporate assets. 1979 Op St Compt No. 79-528.

A chief of a fire district is not deemed to have an interest in contracts between the district and a corporation of which his spouse is a director and officer. The existence of a statutory interest depends on whether he receives a pecuniary or material benefit as a result of the contract. Courts may find conflicts of interest where facts indicate violation of spirit, but not letter, of Article 18 legislation. 1980 Op St Compt No. 80-38.

Where a village attorney is paid on a salary basis, and also receives compensation on vouchers for additional work, whether the mayor, who is the father of the village attorney and also associated with him in the practice of law as either a partner or as a member of a professional corporation, has a prohibited interest in contracts between the attorney and the village, depends upon pertinent facts. 1980 Op St Compt No. 80-164.

The mayor of a city does not have a statutory interest in insurance contracts between the city and his brother's insurance agency unless he derives a direct or indirect pecuniary or material benefit as a result of such contracts. 1982 Op St Compt No. 82-365, 1982 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 364.

A conflict of interest does not exist when a county purchases materials and supplies from a corporation owned by the spouse of a department head when the county adopts a resolution relieving the department head from certain functions relative to those contracts and assigning those functions to other county personnel. 1982 Op St Compt No. 82-332, 1982 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 400.

A county department head is not deemed to have an interest in purchases of supplies made by him for his department pursuant to a general contract with the county between the county and his spouse's corporation. Whether a statutory interest otherwise exists depends upon the circumstances; if so, he would have a prohibited interest in purchases of departmental supplies. 1982 Op St Compt No. 82-291, 1982 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 433.

A school district employee does not have a conflict of interest when the district leases space in a former school building to a corporation of which his wife is an officer and stockholder. 1983 Op St Compt No. 83-110, 1983 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 377.

A fire district commissioner does not have a conflict of interest when the fire district contracts with his adult son for electrical services, providing that the commissioner receives no direct or indirect pecuniary or material benefit as a result of such contracts. 1983 Op St Compt No. 83-40, 1983 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 444.

28. —Miscellaneous corporate interests

There is no legal prohibition against a town assessor's having a financial interest in a corporation which sells and constructs swimming pools within the town. 1970 Op St Compt no.. 70-28.

29. Contract for goods or services; municipal purchases which present conflict

The chairman of the Board of Fire Commissioners of a fire district may not sell fuel oil to the district unless the total cost is $100 or less for the fiscal year. 1964 Op St Compt No. 64-765.

A central school district may not purchase automobiles and trucks from a partnership where the spouse of a member of the Board of Education is a partner in the firm, nor may it contract to purchase parts and material for repair for presently-owned school buses from such firm unless the total consideration payable under all contracts with the firm during the fiscal year is less than $100. 1964 Op St Compt No. 64-806.

A county may not legally purchase highway equipment and parts from an automobile agency in which a member of the board of supervisors owns a substantial interest, and the fact that the county had standardized two vehicles sold by the agency would not cure an otherwise illegal interest in contracts. 1964 Op St Compt No. 64-840.

A town board member has a prohibited conflict of interest when the town purchases sand from him. 1979 Op St Compt No. 79-690.

A member of a county board of supervisors has a conflict of interest when his spouse, as owner of an apartment house, rents units therein to public assistance recipients and is paid therefor upon vouchers submitted to the county. 1985 Op St Compt No. 85-4, 1985 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 140.

Member of board of trustees of community college would have prohibited conflict of interest if, in any fiscal year, college purchased supplies from hardware store owned by trustee and sum of purchases plus consideration under other contracts with college in which trustee had interest exceed $100. 1996 Op St Compt No. 96-14, 1996 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 11.

Whether a water maintenance supervisor of a city water department, who has loaned money to the owners of a plumbing supply company for business purposes, has a statutory interest in the purchase by the city of plumbing supplies from the company, which supplies are used by the water department, depends upon pertinent facts and circumstances. 1981 Op St Compt No. 81-403, 1981 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 484.

30. —Municipal purchases which do not present conflict

A firm that is wholly owned by a County Legislator of the County of Herkimer who represents the Town of Danube, as well as other areas in the County of Herkimer, may sell materials and supplies in amounts less than those requiring public bidding to the Town of Danube without creating a prohibited conflict of interest. 1976 NY Ops Atty Gen Dec 15 (Informal), 1976 N.Y. AG LEXIS 192.

A village water superintendent is not prohibited from selling a truck owned by him to the village by which he is employed, after September 1, 1964. 1964 Op St Compt No. 64-725.

A town assessor may sell a truck to a town of which he is an assessor, but must disclose his interest as vendor in writing, to be recorded in the town board minutes. 1967 Op St Compt No. 67-965.

A village clerk-treasurer does not have a prohibited conflict of interest in a contract between her husband and the village in relation to the construction of a shed. However, disclosure is required. 1979 Op St Compt No. 79-147, 1979 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 217.

A town planning board member does not have a prohibited conflict of interests in the purchase, by the town, of paving materials from a firm in which the planning board member is a partner. 1966 NY Ops Atty Gen Dec 14 (Informal), 1966 N.Y. AG LEXIS 155.

31. —Municipality as vendor

Although there would be no prohibited conflict of interest if a town were to provide in its bidding specifications that it reserves the option to sell any equipment, to be traded in, to town employees at the trade-in price, such a procedure could create certain serious problems in determining the low bidder, and might also have the effect of increasing the prices for the items to be purchased. 1968 Op St Compt No. 68-711.

A member of the administrative body of a county sewer district would have a prohibited interest in contract should be purchase personal property sold by the district at public auction, when the sale is authorized or approved by the said body. 1974 Op St Compt No. 74-439.

32. —Miscellaneous contracts

An engineer retained by the Town of Wawarsing to act as engineering consultant to the town, given the nature of his relationship to the town as described herein, is not an "officer or employee" of the town. Therefore, his representation of private clients before the various town boards and the performance of other engineering services involving property within the town is not proscribed by either section 801 of the General Municipal Law or Local Law No. 2 of 1970 of the Town of Wawarsing. 1976 NY Ops Atty Gen Aug 3 (Informal), 1976 N.Y. AG LEXIS 137.

An interest in contract does not arise on behalf of a village trustee where the board of trustees contracts with a general contractor relative to village improvements, and the contractor purchases materials needed therefor from a firm of which the trustee is president. 1968 Op St Compt No. 68-476.

Where the spouse of a town clerk is a printer, the town clerk has a prohibited conflict of interest in contracts between the town and the spouse for printing work done for the clerk's office only if the clerk has any powers and duties set forth in section 801(1) relative to such contracts. 1982 Op St Compt No. 82-264, 1982 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 462.

Where a town supervisor has a prohibited conflict of interest in contracts relating to the maintenance of a town generator, it is possible that he would be required by a court to return to the town moneys received for services performed. 1982 Op St Compt No. 82-244, 1982 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 488.

33. Insurance; municipal purchases which are prohibited

Member of City Board of Aldermen has an interest which comes under the statutory prohibition, where he is an officer and employee of a corporation which has a contract or agreement to procure all insurance required by the city, and receives commissions thereon. 1965 NY Ops Atty Gen March 19 (Informal), 1965 N.Y. AG LEXIS 64.

A prohibited interest in contract exists in a transaction involving the sale of insurance by an insurance broker who also is town attorney, to the town for which he is such officer. 1967 Op St Compt No. 67-329.

A prohibited interest in contract arises where an insurance agency (corporation) by which the mayor of a village is employed sells insurance to the village, unless section 802(1)(b) is applicable. 1968 Op St Compt No. 68-719.

A town auditor generally may not sell insurance to his town. 1969 Op St Compt No. 69-778.

A town supervisor has a prohibited interest in any insurance contracts between the town and an insurance agency which he acquires, where he receives a material or pecuniary benefit as a result of such contracts, and he has the powers and duties enumerated in General Municipal Law, § 801 with respect thereto. 1973 Op St Compt No. 73-979.

Subject to the applicability of the exception contained in General Municipal Law, § 802(1)(b), a director of a regional off-track betting corporation, who is also a principal of an insurance firm, has a prohibited interest in contracts between the corporation and his firm for the purchase of insurance. 1976 Op St Compt No. 76-122.

34. —Municipal purchases which are not prohibited

No prohibited conflict of interest exists where a village police justice sells group hospitalization and life insurance to the village in which he is such officer for the benefit of its employees and officers. 1967 Op St Compt No. 67-397.

A prohibited conflict of interest does not exist where a police surgeon of a city is also the director of Blue Cross-Blue Shield of Northeastern New York, Inc., a corporation through which the city purchases insurance coverage for its employees. 1967 Op St Compt No. 67-407.

A village justice is not prohibited from selling group life and hospitalization insurance to the village for employees of the village in which he is an officer, but he must publicly disclose the nature and extent of his interest in the contract. 1973 Op St Compt No. 73-762.

A fire district may have a deputy treasurer and, furthermore, there would be no prohibited interest in contract if the fire district treasurer were an insurance agent who sells insurance to the fire district. 1978 Op St Compt No. 78-670.

There is no prohibited conflict of interest where a village mayor or trustee is employed by an insurance agency and is not, in the course of his employment, directly involved in the procurement, preparation or performance of any insurance contract with the village or will not have his remuneration directly affected by such a contract. Likewise, if the mayor or trustee owns stock in an insurance agency which provides insurance to the village but the extent of such stockholdings are less than five per cent of the outstanding stock, there is no prohibited interest. If the extent of stockholdings exceeds five per cent of the outstanding stock, the interest will not be prohibited provided that the contract was entered into prior to the time the mayor or trustee was elected, and the contract may not be renewed upon expiration. 1981 Op St Compt No. 81-430, 1981 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 454.

A town supervisor, who is an employee of an incorporated insurance agency which sells insurance to the town, does not have a prohibited interest in the contracts of insurance when her duties as an employee do not directly involve the procurement, preparation or performance of the insurance contracts and her remuneration is not directly affected as a result of such contracts. 1982 Op St Compt No. 82-12, 1982 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 712.

A city supervisor who is an insurance broker does not have a prohibited interest and may participate with other brokers and agencies in the writing of various insurance policies covering the city. 1968 Op St Compt No. 68-424.

A prohibited conflict of interest does not arise where a member of a town planning board sells insurance to the town. 1968 Op St Compt No. 68-819.

35. —Sale of insurance to party contracting with municipality

There is no conflict of interest where a member of a school board writes insurance for a transportation corporation which has a contract with the school to provide transportation for pupils. 1964 Op St Compt No. 64-823.

An interest in contract does not occur where a town councilman sells insurance to a corporation which leases real property from the town. 1969 Op St Compt No. 69-97.

Because of personal conflicting interests, it is highly improper for a town councilman to sell a performance bond to a contractor with respect to a public works contract with his municipality. 1969 Op St Compt No. 69-81.

36. —Receipt of commissions by official

Removal of town supervisor was warranted where his personally owned insurance agency brokered town's insurance, he shared commissions therein, he took steps to disguise situation by having another broker named as broker of record, he was aware prior to being elected that there was conflict of interest, and he was convicted on his guilty plea to violation of CLS §§ 801 and 805 for willful and knowing violation of conflict of interest provisions as to his personal interest in town's insurance business. West v Grant, 243 A.D.2d 815, 662 N.Y.S.2d 863, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10114 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1997).

Removal of town supervisor was appropriate, even though his conviction for violation of CLS Gen Mun §§ 801 and 805 occurred and was well publicized prior to his last reelection, since he conveniently pleaded guilty 4 days prior to election, and he had no opponent. West v Grant, 243 A.D.2d 815, 662 N.Y.S.2d 863, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10114 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1997).

Member of City Board of Aldermen has an interest which comes under the statutory prohibition, where he is an officer and employee of a corporation which has a contract or agreement to procure all insurance required by the city, and receives commissions thereon. 1965 NY Ops Atty Gen March 19 (Informal), 1965 N.Y. AG LEXIS 64.

A town councilman who is a member of an insurance brokerage firm may not share in the pooling of commissions with other brokers with respect to the commissions on the premiums for town insurance. 1965 Op St Compt No. 65-246.

No prohibited conflict of interest exists where a town assessor shares commissions on insurance purchased by the town from an agency with which he is not associated. 1967 Op St Compt No. 67-857.

A prohibited conflict of interest exists where a town attorney, who is also an insurance broker, shares in commissions on insurance placed by the town with an agency other than the one which he owns. 1967 Op St Compt No. 67-947.

A prohibited interest in contract does not occur where a town justice in a town of the first class owns an insurance agency and shares in commissions paid by the town to an insurance agency with which he is not associated. 1971 Op St Compt No. 71-1005.

37. —Election or appointment of member of contracting insurance firm to municipal office

No prohibited conflict of interest arises when a mayor-elect of a city, who is also an officer of an insurance firm from which the city has previously purchased an insurance policy, takes office on January 1, 1968, and the insurance policy expires on June 30, 1968. However, it would be illegal for the city thereafter to purchase any further insurance from the firm. 1967 Op St Compt No. 67-957.

No prohibited conflict of interest arises when an officer of an insurance firm, from which firm a town has purchased insurance policies, is subsequently elected and takes office as town supervisor. However, any renewal of such policies or the purchase of new or other policies from such firm during his tenure of office would be illegal. 1968 Op St Compt No. 68-112.

38. —Miscellaneous interests in insurance contracts

Award of liability insurance contract for city to one agency did not violate statute prohibiting conflict of interest of municipal employee, where it did not appear that the agency was a "municipal employee" within meaning of the statute when it contracted to draw specifications for city's insurance needs. Surdell v Oswego, 91 Misc. 2d 1041, 399 N.Y.S.2d 173, 1977 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2476 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1977).

A member of a town board may not have an interest in a contract of insurance with such town except where the total consideration payable thereunder, together with all other considerations payable under contracts with such town in which he has an interest during the fiscal year, does not exceed $100.00; or where his interest is only that of a stockholder owning or controlling less than 5% of the stock of the corporation entering into such contract with the town. In any event, disclosure under § 803 must be made. 1969 NY Ops Atty Gen July 16 (Informal), 1969 N.Y. AG LEXIS 65.

A prohibited conflict of interest under section 801 of the General Municipal Law does not arise when a county civil service commissioner receives a pecuniary benefit as the result of services performed for an insurance agency relating to a contract which the agency has with the county in which the commissioner serves. 1975 NY Ops Atty Gen May 8 (Informal), 1975 N.Y. AG LEXIS 115.

A prohibited conflict of interest does not arise where a city commissioner of public safety sells group life insurance to participating city employees. Disclosure is, nevertheless, required. 1968 Op St Compt No. 68-55.

An interest in contract does not arise when a county legislator sells insurance to a town within the county. 1969 Op St Compt No. 69-200.

The interest in contract is not prohibited where a corporation, stock of which is owned by a fire district secretary-treasurer, sells insurance to the district. Disclosure is required. 1970 Op St Compt No. 70-52.

Village trustee who is also comptroller of insurance company would have prohibited conflict of interest if village purchases insurance from that company; school district attorney who is also comptroller of insurance company would have prohibited conflict of interest if school district purchased insurance from that company and school district attorney had any of powers or duties listed in CLS General Municipal § 801. 1988 Op St Compt No. 88-15, 1988 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 4.

39. Lease agreements; lease from official or employee

Statute, not violated by a contract or agreement by a justice of the peace who is a member of the town board, to construct on land owned by him in the town, and to lease to the State of New York, a barracks for use by members of the Division of State Police. 1965 NY Ops Atty Gen April 26 (Informal), 1965 N.Y. AG LEXIS 76.

A Town Attorney may not lease real property owned by him to his Town unless (1) it is for office space to be occupied by him in the performance of his official duties or (2) the consideration for all such contracts in which he has an interest during a fiscal year does not exceed one hundred dollars; in either of which events disclosure under General Municipal Law § 803, must be made. 1969 NY Ops Atty Gen Dec 16 (Informal), 1969 N.Y. AG LEXIS 113.

A Town may rent or sub-lease premises owned or leased by its Town Clerk for use in the performance of his official duties. A Town may also rent or sub-lease premises owned or leased by its Town Clerk for other Town purposes but disclosure of the Town Clerk's interest should be made in accordance with Section 803. 1970 NY Ops Atty Gen Sept 8 (Informal), 1970 N.Y. AG LEXIS 111.

A prohibited conflict of interest does not occur where a town rents space from the town historian in the basement of his business establishment for the storage (under proper circumstances) of items of historical significance. 1968 Op St Compt No. 68-320.

A town may rent space in the home or other property of a town officer for use as that officer's town office. 1968 Op St Compt No. 68-442.

A prohibited conflict of interest would arise should a county renew an agreement for the lease of premises for county purposes where the property is owned by a member of the board of supervisors, even though the lease was executed prior to the election of the said supervisor. 1968 Op St Compt No. 68-553.

A member of a city examining board of plumbers is not prohibited from leasing his property to the city which he serves. 1968 Op St Compt No. 68-674.

A mayor of a village who is also the owner of an office building, does not have a statutory interest in contracts between the village and an office supply company, which is a lessor of offices in his building, merely because the company is a tenant. In order for a municipal officer or employee to have a conflict of interest, he must derive, directly or indirectly, a pecuniary or material benefit from a contract with his municipality (except to extent that he is "deemed" to have an interest under section 600(3)(a), (b), (c) or (d)). 1981 Op St Compt No. 81-206, 1981 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 680.

A reasonable rental may be paid by a town to a town officer or employee for a room or rooms owned or leased by the officer or employee and used for the performance of official duties. 1969 Op St Compt No. 69-623.

40. —Lease to official or employee

No conflict of interest under this section exists so as to prohibit a city fireman from leasing city owned real property from such city. 1968 NY Ops Atty Gen Feb 19 (Informal), 1968 N.Y. AG LEXIS 33.

School board president (retired Monsignor) did not negotiate lease between school district and Roman Catholic diocese, nor was he employee of diocese, where his retirement benefits were not directly affected as result of lease and his duties as vicar involved spiritual, not temporal matters, and did not involve procurement, preparation or performance of any part of lease, and thus he did not violate conflict of interest provision of CLS Gen Mun § 801. 1993 Op Comm Ed No. 13,015, 1993 NY Educ. Dept. LEXIS 142.

A member of a board of fire commissioners has a prohibited conflict of interest in any agreement between the board and himself as a private businessman, for rental of a portion of the firehouse for use as a barber shop. 1978 Op St Compt No. 78-995.

There is no prohibited conflict of interest where a county leases an airport hangar to a company which is owned by the commissioner of aviation, if the commissioner does not possess any section 801 duties with respect to the lease. 1979 Op St Compt No. 79-582.

Where a vice-president and treasurer of a corporation authorize payment of rent under a lease, on behalf of his corporation as lessee, to the Steuben County Industrial Department Agency of which he is a member as lessor, by affixing his name to a corporate check, he is directly involved in the performance of the corporation's contract of lease and has a prohibited conflict of interest in the contract. General Municipal Law, § 802(1)(b) is not applicable as an exception to the provision of General Municipal Law, § 801(1) in this case. 1980 Op St Compt No. 80-214.

A member of a central school district board of education, who is also an officer, a 40% stockholder and director of a corporation, would have a prohibited interest in the lease by the corporation of vacant space in a building owned by the district. 1983 Op St Compt No. 83-83, 1983 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 398.

41. —Sales by official's or employee's lessee to municipality

Depending upon the terms of the rental agreement and the performance thereunder, a lease of a farm on which gravel is found, owned by a town councilman, for a fixed rental to a third party and then the sale of the gravel by the third party to the town may or may not constitute a conflict of interest. 1967 Op St Compt No. 67-979.

A prohibited conflict of interest occurs when a town highway superintendent purchases stone from the lessee of a quarry owned by him, and the terms of the lease require payment to the superintendent of a percentage of the moneys received by the lessee for the sale of the stone. 1969 Op St Compt No. 69-286.

42. Legal services; instances in which municipal officer may not provide legal services to municipality

In citizen-taxpayer action to recover funds paid by county to defendant and his law firm for legal services rendered to county while defendant was county attorney, allegedly in violation of CLS Gen Mun § 801 and CLS Pub O § 67, plaintiffs were not required to show proof of fraud, collusion or motivation by personal gain in order to impose personal liability on former county attorney, but were required to do so with respect to his law firm. Clowes v Pulver, 258 A.D.2d 50, 691 N.Y.S.2d 649, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6500 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), app. dismissed, 94 N.Y.2d 858, 704 N.Y.S.2d 533, 725 N.E.2d 1095, 1999 N.Y. LEXIS 3988 (N.Y. 1999).

Bar Association Plan counsel for representation of indigent defendants has conflict of interest if he is member of County Board of Supervisors. 1966 NY Ops Atty Gen Sept 16 (Informal), 1966 N.Y. AG LEXIS 114.

The attorney for a county sewer district who is later elected to the position of part-time district attorney and who intends to hold both positions, must make a disclosure of interest under section 803 of Article 18 of the General Municipal Law. 1983 N.Y. Op. Att'y Gen. No. 83-45, 1983 N.Y. AG LEXIS 49.

An associate corporation counsel, who, by virtue of his office, is counsel to an urban renewal agency, cannot contract with the agency to render additional legal services. 1967 Op St Compt No. 67-690.

A prohibited conflict of interest arises where a member of the county board of supervisors, who is also a practicing attorney, receives compensation for services rendered to indigent defendants under the county assigned counsel plan. 1967 Op St Compt No. 67-952.

A prohibited interest in contract arises where a county attorney is retained by a county sewer agency as an independent contractor to render legal services to the agency. 1968 Op St Compt No. 68-1012.

A prohibited conflict of interest arises when a village trustee, an attorney employed by the village attorney participates in his capacity as such associate in any legal matters involving village affairs, on behalf of the village attorney. 1971 Op St Compt No. 71-909.

A county attorney may have a prohibited conflict of interest in an agreement between himself and a county sewer district to represent the district as an independent contractor, depending upon whether he has any section 801 powers or duties in relation to the agreement. 1979 Op St Compt No.. 79-738, 1980 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 388.

Town attorney would have prohibited interest in contract for additional legal services pursuant to CLS Town Law § 20(2)(a) between town and his or her law firm, if town attorney has any of powers or duties listed in CLS Gen Mun Law § 801, unless one of the exceptions in CLS Gen Mun Law § 802 applies. 1989 Op St Compt No. 89-65, 1989 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 52.

43. —Instances in which municipal officer may provide legal services to municipality

A prohibited conflict of interest does not result where a town justice of a town of the first class performs services for such town as attorney for special improvement districts created by such town. Nevertheless, disclosure of such interest is mandated by General Municipal Law, Sec. 803. 1973 NY Ops Atty Gen April 4 (Informal), 1973 N.Y. AG LEXIS 53.

A village clerk, who is also an attorney, may be retained by the village to render legal services relating to the expansion of its sewage treatment facilities. 1967 Op St Compt No. 67-1009.

A prohibited conflict of interest does not occur where a firm of lawyers, of which the village police justice is a member, is retained by the village to render legal services. 1968 Op St Compt No. 68-544.

An interest in contract does not arise where the City of Mount Vernon Urban Renewal Agency contracts for special legal services with a law firm with which two city aldermen are associated. 1969 Op St Compt No. 69-474.

A county legislator may provide free legal services to county by representing county without compensation in utility rate case. 1979 Op St Compt No. 79-507.

44. —Provision of legal services to other municipalities

A prohibited conflict of interest does not result where a town justice of a town of the first class performs services for such town as attorney for special improvement districts created by such town. Nevertheless, disclosure of such interest is mandated by General Municipal Law, § 803. 1973 NY Ops Atty Gen April 4 (Informal), 1973 N.Y. AG LEXIS 53.

There is no statutory or common law impediment to a town attorney's representing both the town and fire districts therein. However, consideration should be given to the provisions of Canon No. 6 of the Canons of Professional Ethics. 1967 Op St Compt No. 67-1010.

A councilman of one of the towns entering into an agreement for the operation of a joint solid waste disposal facility project may not be employed by such project to perform necessary legal work where the town board of each participating town must approve all contracts relating to the joint project. 1974 Op St Compt No. 74-112.

There is no legal prohibition against the same individual being attorney for both a village and a school district which includes the village. However, due regard should be accorded Canon 6 of the Canons of Professional Ethics of the New York State Bar Association. 1968 Op St Compt No. 68-987.

45. —Provision of legal services to firm contracting with municipality

A village mayor does not have an "interest" in a contract for engineering services entered into by the village board, where he has rendered occasional legal services to the engineering firm but is not on retainer and has not represented the firm with respect to the making of particular contract or the performance thereof. 1967 Op St Compt No. 67-394.

Whether a prohibited conflict of interest arises as to a town officer or employee who, as an attorney, represents persons, firms, or corporations doing business with the town, or on behalf of a member of the planning board who is retained by a developer to engineer a subdivision, depends upon the nature of his duties and powers as a town officer or employee with respect to the contracts. 1968 Op St Compt No. 68-569.

An interest in contract does not occur where a city assistant corporation counsel represents a builder which contracts with the municipal housing authority of the same city. 1970 Op St Compt No. 70-65.

A conflict of interest does not occur where a town supervisor who is also a practicing attorney occasionally represents a town depository bank for the sole purpose of closing a mortgage loan which in no way involves the town, but disclosure is recommended. 1972 Op St Compt No. 72-11.

Village attorney does not have conflict of interest when his law firm represents client applying to village for subdivision approval unless application procedure results in § 800(2) contract with village and attorney possesses § 801(1) functions relative thereto; disclosure under § 809 is required even though there is no conflict of interest. 1985 Op St Compt No. 85-60, 1985 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 83.

46. —Provision of legal services to private individuals

No prohibited conflict of interest foreseen from assignment of part-time assistant county attorney as private counsel for an indigent defendant. 1968 NY Ops Atty Gen Jan 31 (Informal), 1968 N.Y. AG LEXIS 27.

Where a Village Urban Renewal Agency is represented by counsel other than the Village Attorney no conflict of interest prohibited by the General Municipal Law will result from the Village Attorney representing clients whose real property is being acquired by the Agency whether by negotiation or condemnation. However, in view of the dependency of the Agency upon this village and the cooperation necessary between the officers and employees of both, questions of professional ethics may arise. 1969 NY Ops Atty Gen Dec 15 (Informal), 1969 N.Y. AG LEXIS 111.

No constitutional or statutory bar nor any incompatibility or conflict of interest prohibits a part-time county attorney from representing a client in an action against a city within said county, assuming no conflict with respect to the time devoted to official duties. 1971 NY Ops Atty Gen March 30 (Informal), 1971 N.Y. AG LEXIS 59.

Attorney who is appointed town attorney, and possibly his or her law firm, may not perform compensated services for private clients in relation to any matter before any town agency for which town attorney serves as attorney, or any services for contingent compensation in relation to any matter before any town agency. 2000 Op St Compt No. 2000-22, 2000 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 26.

A prohibited conflict of interest occurs where the law associate of the administrator of a county assigned counsel plan is paid a fee for representing indigent defendants under the said plan. 1969 Op St Compt No. 69-873.

47. —Matters involving municipal officer's law associates

Under the above section a conflict of interest does not arise when the Town Attorney of the Town of Pelham is a member of a law firm negotiating a contract for a private client with a village within the town when such town is not a party to said contract. 1970 NY Ops Atty Gen July 8 (Informal), 1970 N.Y. AG LEXIS 92.

Where a village mayor, who is an attorney, shares offices with another attorney who is personally retained by the village under an arrangement pursuant to which moneys paid by the village to the attorney do not inure to the benefit of any of the others, there is no illegal interest in contract on the part of the village mayor. 1966 Op St Compt No. 66-646.

A prohibited conflict of interest does not occur where a firm of lawyers, of which the village police justice is a member, is retained by the village to render legal services. 1968 Op St Compt No. 68-544.

The conflicts of interest statutes do not apply where a village attorney advises the board of trustees with respect to a proposed retainer agreement with a law firm of which the attorney is a member, where the agreement is to be executed subsequent to his retirement from village employment. 1978 Op St Compt No. 78-793.

Where a law partner of the town attorney is retained by the town to perform services on a contractual basis, the town attorney has a conflict of interest only if he derives a direct or indirect pecuniary or material benefit as a result of the contract. 1980 Op St Compt No. 80-712.

City attorney who is officer, employee, director or shareholder of law firm which is professional corporation and which represents city in law suit would have prohibited interest in contract between firm and city if city attorney has power or duty to negotiate, prepare, authorize or approve contract, or to appoint someone with those powers, unless exceptions in CLS Gen Mun § 802 are applicable. 1988 Op St Compt No. 88-75, 1988 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 68.

Town attorney would have prohibited interest in contract for additional legal services pursuant to CLS Town Law § 20(2)(a) between town and his or her law firm, if town attorney has any of powers or duties listed in CLS Gen Mun Law § 801, unless one of the exceptions in CLS Gen Mun Law § 802 applies. 1989 Op St Compt No. 89-65, 1989 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 52.

No prohibited conflict of interest exists where the law partner of a county legislator is employed as an instructor at the county sponsored community college when the compensation received for such services does not become part of the income of the partnership. 1978 NY Ops Atty Gen Aug 17 (Informal), 1978 N.Y. AG LEXIS 347.

A conflict of interest occurs where the law partner of a town justice in a town of the second class is retained to provide legal services for the town, if the justice receives a direct or indirect material or pecuniary benefit as the result of such contract. There is no legal prohibition against the appointment of the law partner as town attorney. 1971 Op St Compt No. 71-961.

48. Real estate sales; sales by municipality to its officials or employees

Mere fact that participant in public auction conducted by village held position as building inspector and village engineer did not constitute violation of CLS Gen Mun §§ 801 and 803 so as to void his bids and obligate village to accept plaintiff's original bid on property since there was no proof that engineer had power or duty to negotiate, prepare, authorize or approve, on behalf of village, contract for sale of real property on which he was bidding to trigger application of § 801, and as mere bidder at auction, engineer never actually had interest in any contract to which village was party and thus had no duty under § 803 to make any formal disclosure of his interest; even assuming engineer had some duty to disclose his potential interest in contract with village, his appearance at public auction served as disclosure of that potential interest. D.E.P. Resources, Inc. v Monroe, 131 A.D.2d 719, 516 N.Y.S.2d 953, 1987 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 48178 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1987).

A county which acquires real property pursuant to Highway Law, § 62 for highway purposes may dispose of property which is no longer necessary for such purposes only to owners of property abutting the highway. This property may be sold to a county officer who is a qualified landowner and who is not a county officer described in General Municipal Law, § 801. 1977 NY Ops Atty Gen April 14 (Informal), 1977 N.Y. AG LEXIS 271.

Urban renewal real property owned by a city may be sold only in accordance with the provisions of General Municipal Law § 507. Real property which has been purchased by a city at tax sale is not "city real estate" such as is contemplated in General City Law § 23 and not subject to the inhibitions of that statute regarding the sale of city real estate. The Administrator, Community Development and Administrative Services of the City of Port Jervis is disqualified from purchasing real property from that city regardless of the method of conducting the sale or the purpose for which the city acquired the real property. 1978 NY Ops Atty Gen Dec 28, 1978 N.Y. AG LEXIS 397.

A prohibited conflict of interest occurs where a village trustee purchases a parcel of tax-delinquent property at a village tax sale. 1969 Op St Compt No. 69-303.

A city officer or employee may purchase either city real property or tax sale certificates at city tax sales, under certain circumstances. 1973 Op St Compt No. 73-768.

A town board may not sell a parcel of real property to the town supervisor where the value of the property exceeds $100. 1973 Op St Compt No. 73-803.

Where a town of the second class sells a parcel of land worth less than $100 to a town justice: (1) a permissive referendum is required without regard to the value of the land; (2) The town justice would not have a prohibited interest in the transaction. 1974 Op St Compt No. 74-477.

There is no prohibited interest in contract where a town contracts to sell real property to the town clerk; however, the clerk's interest in such contract must be publicly disclosed in writing. 1975 Op St Compt No. 75-961.

County officers and employees are not precluded from purchasing tax sale properties from the county by bidding unless they have the power or duty to perform any of the functions enumerated in the said section in connection with the sale by the county. 1979 Op St Compt No. 79-808.

A village trustee would have a prohibited conflict of interest if he purchases real property from the village. 1980 Op St Compt No. 80-479.

A city officer or employee may purchase city real property at public auction except that if he performs any functions enumerated in General Municipal Law, § 801(1) in connection with the sale, he would have a prohibited conflict of interest. 1980 Op St Compt No. 80-500.

A village mayor has a prohibited conflict of interest in the purchase of a parcel of real property from the village. It is immaterial that sealed bids were solicited by public notice, that the mayor submitted the highest bid, and that he refrained from voting on the acceptance thereof. 1981 Op St Compt No. 81-113, 1981 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 772.

Unless the exception provided by General Municipal Law, § 802(1)(b) is applicable, a member of a school district board of education, who is also an officer of a corporation, would have a prohibited conflict of interest in the sale by the district to the corporation of district real property. 1981 Op St Compt No. 81-65, 1981 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 826.

49. —Sales by officials or employees to municipality

A county may purchase real property owned by a membership corporation even though county employees are directors of such membership corporation. 1965 NY Ops Atty Gen Aug 25 (Informal), 1965 N.Y. AG LEXIS 123.

Under the above sections a prohibited conflict of interest would not arise if the appointive Zoning Inspector for the Town of Rochester sold a gravel bank to the Town, provided that full disclosure was made of such transaction and that such sale was not violative of the Code of Ethics adopted by the Town of Rochester. 1973 NY Ops Atty Gen Feb 27 (Informal), 1973 N.Y. AG LEXIS 37.

Under General Municipal Law §§ 800, 802, 804, the proposed sale of a building owned by the Town Supervisor of the Town of Crown Point to the Town of Crown Point would constitute a prohibited conflict of interest unless the purchase and the consideration therefor is approved by the Supreme Court upon petition of the Town Board. 1975 NY Ops Atty Gen Feb 10 (Informal), 1975 N.Y. AG LEXIS 71.

Whether a prohibited interest in contract occurs where a town contracts to purchase real property from the wife of the superintendent of highways and two highway department employees who are tenants in common of the parcel, depends upon the powers and duties of the superintendent and the employees with respect to the contract. 1972 Op St Compt No. 72-294.

That an employee of a village who is also a licensed real estate salesman is responsible for acquiring property in connection with the Federal Community Development Block Grant Program does not, in itself, create a statutory conflict of interest. However, a conflict of interest would occur if he should act as salesman for a seller from whom the village purchases property. The village code of ethics should be examined to determine the applicability of any provisions thereof under the circumstances. 1981 Op St Compt No. 81-370, 1981 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 515.

50. —Sales involving another municipality

There was conflict of interest when town board member acquired realty in his town at county tax sale and sale was voidable where, although contract of sale in form concerned only county, by implication it also involved town and was within general municipal law precluding municipal officer from having interest in contract with his municipality when he has power or duty to authorize or approve contract or to appoint officer who has such power or duty, inasmuch as town board's action in preparing town budget was part of approval and authorization culminating in county tax sale and town board fixed salary of collecting officer and filled vacancies in that office. Rose v Eichhorst, 42 N.Y.2d 92, 396 N.Y.S.2d 837, 365 N.E.2d 868, 1977 N.Y. LEXIS 2108 (N.Y. 1977).

In tax sale conducted by County of Chenango pursuant to procedures set forth in CLS RPTL Art 10, conflict of interest did not arise based on fact that purchaser at tax sale was employed by County of Coventry. Metz v Dorsey, 146 A.D.2d 845, 536 N.Y.S.2d 250, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 34 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), app. dismissed, 74 N.Y.2d 714, 543 N.Y.S.2d 400, 541 N.E.2d 429, 1989 N.Y. LEXIS 737 (N.Y. 1989), app. denied, 77 N.Y.2d 807, 569 N.Y.S.2d 610, 572 N.E.2d 51, 1991 N.Y. LEXIS 579 (N.Y. 1991).

Neither the statutory conflict of interest rules nor the doctrine of incompatibility of public officers would prohibit a town from selling real property to a village where a town board member is also the mayor of the village; however, in the public interest, such board member should disqualify himself from participation in the transaction. 1967 Op St Compt No. 67-962.

51. —Sales involving spouse or relatives

There would be a conflict of interest if an Urban Renewal Agency Attorney purchased property from the Agency either directly or indirectly by means of a corporation owned and/or operated by the attorney's spouse. 1980 NY Ops Atty Gen Feb 27 (Informal), 1980 N.Y. AG LEXIS 146.

Whether a prohibited interest in contract occurs where a town contracts to purchase real property from the wife of the superintendent of highways and two highway department employees who are tenants in common of the parcel, depends upon the powers and duties of the superintendent and the employees with respect to the contract. 1972 Op St Compt No. 72-294.

Where the mayor of a city has the power to veto resolutions enacted by the city council and the duty to sign contracts and deeds, those functions do not constitute approval or authorization of contracts within section 801 so as to create a prohibited interest in a contract between the city and his spouse for the sale of a parcel of city property to his spouse. 1982 Op St Compt No. 82-319, 1982 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 416.

Member of city school district board of education does not have prohibited interest in contract for purchase by district of real property from his father-in-law unless he received direct or indirect benefit as result of contract. 1987 Op St Compt No. 87-23, 1987 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 158.

52. —Miscellaneous real estate transactions

There is a conflict of interest when a city corporation counsel makes a contract for purchase of property from an estate of which he is executor or attorney. 1964 NY Ops Atty Gen Sept 17 (Informal), 1964 N.Y. AG LEXIS 137.

A councilman may vote on matters relating to urban renewal projects where he owns real property in the area designated for slum clearance and the taking of his property is by condemnation or by purchase subject to court approval; however, written disclosure of the nature and extent of his interest must be made to the governing body. 1964 Op St Compt No. 64-929.

The extension of the boundaries of a town water district to include real property owned by a town board member does not involve a contract and, therefore, could not give rise to a prohibited conflict of interest. 1979 Op St Compt No. 79-228.

An acting city judge does not have a prohibited conflict of interest when he is a preferred developer in an unassisted city urban renewal project. 1980 Op St Compt No. 80-480.

A village board resolution providing for improved drainage for private land does not involve a conflict of interest because a village trustee, as real estate broker, has negotiated an option between third parties for purchase of the land to which the village is not a party. 1964 Op St Compt No. 64-750.

When a deputy town attorney represents a client in the purchase by that client of a parcel of property from the town, he has a statutory interest in the purchase contract. It is a prohibited interest only if the deputy town attorney performs one or more of the functions set forth in section 801(1) in connection with the contract. 1981 Op St Comp No. 81-387, 1981 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 487.

A city councilperson has a prohibited interest in the sale by the city of property owned by it to a partnership of which she is a partner. The exception contained in section 802(1)(b) is inapplicable. 1984 Op St Compt No. 84-12, 1984 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 124.

53. Sale of municipal obligations

Whether a prohibited interest in contract results where a school district sells notes at private sale to a bank of which a member of the board of education is an officer, depends upon certain facts and circumstances. 1972 Op St Compt No. 72-71.

A prohibited interest in contract exists when a city auditor, or his spouse, minor children or other dependents purchase city obligations directly from the city and when he has any of the powers or duties enumerated in General Municipal Law, § 801(1) with respect to the issuance and sale of such bonds and notes. A somewhat different concept applies when he purchases city obligations from a bank which has purchased such obligations in the first instance from the city. 1976 Op St Compt No. 76-610.

54. —Prohibited interests in purchasing bank

A town attorney who is director, stockholder and attorney for a bank may not be interested in the sale of obligations to the bank at public sale if his duties as town attorney involve any work in connection with the issuance or sale of the obligations. In the absence of the applicability of Local Finance Law, § 60.10, a town attorney may not have an interest in such a bank in the sale of obligations if his duties as town attorney involve work in relation to the issuance or sale of obligations. If Local Finance Law, § 60.10 is in effect in the town, the town attorney may have an interest in the sale of obligations to the bank at private sale within the limitation set forth in § 60.10. 1965 Op St Compt No. 65-136.

A village attorney, who is a stockholder, counsel and director of a bank would have a prohibited conflict of interest in the sale of village bond anticipation notes in the sum of $100,000 to such bank, but not if the sale involved any amount up to $100,000. 1979 Op St Compt No. 78-175, 1979 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 269.

55. —Permissible interests in purchasing bank

The village may sell bonds and notes to a bank at private sale within certain limitations as to interest rate and amount, if, in addition to being a stockholder, the Mayor is also a director of the bank. 1966 Op St Compt No. 66-99.

A village may sell bonds and notes to a bank at private sale where the Mayor owns less than five per centum of the stock in the bank. 1966 Op St Compt No. 66-99.

Notwithstanding the interest of a school district treasurer in a bank, a school district may sell bonds and notes to such bank pursuant to Section 60.10 of the Local Finance Law. 1967 Op St Compt No. 67-304.

A county attorney who is director, counsel and stockholder of a bank does not have a prohibited interest where the bank acts as a depository of county funds or purchases county obligations pursuant to Local Finance Law, § 60.10. He would have a prohibited interest in all other transactions between the county and the bank. 1978 Op St Compt No. 78-306.

56. Other municipal contracts

A conflict of interest occurs when a town board member acquires premises, located in the town in which he serves, at a county tax sale. Rose v Eichhorst, 42 N.Y.2d 92, 396 N.Y.S.2d 837, 365 N.E.2d 868, 1977 N.Y. LEXIS 2108 (N.Y. 1977).

A successful bidder's former position on Urban Renewal agency, which terminated well prior to the letting of a second contract, did not create any conflict of interest prohibited by statute as the second contract so substantially differed from the first with respect to changes in the contract that the award was not in violation of the prohibition. Mulligan v Lackey, 34 A.D.2d 732, 312 N.Y.S.2d 451, 1970 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5162 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't), app. denied, 26 N.Y.2d 614, 1970 N.Y. LEXIS 1849 (N.Y. 1970).

In a defamation suit filed by a commissioner of a fire district against his business partner after the partner made allegations that the commissioner had illegally profited from a business transaction involving the district, the trial court properly charged the jury that the partner's statement constituted defamation per se as it tended to injure the commissioner in his trade, business, or profession under N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law §§ 801 and 805. Geraci v Probst, 61 A.D.3d 717, 877 N.Y.S.2d 386, 2009 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2881 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2009), aff'd in part, modified, 15 N.Y.3d 336, 912 N.Y.S.2d 484, 938 N.E.2d 917, 2010 N.Y. LEXIS 2901 (N.Y. 2010).

While it is doubtful that a material benefit would enure to a Village Trustee by virtue of the granting of a special permit by the Village Board of Trustees to an applicant who is the landlord of such Trustee simply because such Trustee, as a tenant, may thereupon become entitled to use the recreational facility to be constructed by his landlord, it is recommended that disclosure of such possible interest be made and that the Village Code of Ethics be examined and the question submitted to the County Board of Ethics, provided one has been established by the County. 1973 NY Ops Atty Gen March 6 (Informal), 1973 N.Y. AG LEXIS 43.

No conflict of interest under Article 18 of the General Municipal Law arises when a town councilman who resides in an incorporated village within the town votes, as a member of the town board, on the question of whether the village in which he resides should be allowed to participate in the operation of a recreational facility which is owned by the town and has theretofore been operated only for the benefit of the unincorporated areas of the town. 1975 NY Ops Atty Gen Nov 18 (Informal), 1975 N.Y. AG LEXIS 186.

Under the circumstances, there is no prohibited conflict of interest by virtue of the fact that the owners of an excavating firm are brothers of the town superintendent of highways. 1979 Op St Compt No. 79-90.

Whether the conflicts of interest statutes are applicable when a town highway superintendent sells dry wells, which he has designed, to a distributor, and the distributor sells the wells to other municipalities, including the town, to be used for drainage of highways, depends upon certain facts and circumstances. 1979 Op St Compt No. 79-387.

Town board members who are also members of village fire council do not have conflict of interest with respect to fire protection contract between village and town. 1980 Op St Compt No. 80-101.

Member of community college board of trustees who is also president, director and stockholder holding in excess of 5 percent of stock of corporation engaged in printing business would have conflict of interest if college enters into contract with corporation; nonparticipation by trustee in board matters relating to such contracts would not be curative. 1987 Op St Compt No. 87-75, 1987 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 100.

A town councilman who resides with the owner and president of a hardware store and maintains office space in the same building in which the store is located, but has no relationship with the corporation which owns the hardware store, could have a prohibited interest in contracts between the town and corporation if he or she receives a direct or indirect pecuniary or material benefit as a result of such contracts. 1991 Op St Compt No. 91-63, 1992 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 5.

A planning board chairman who borrows money from the board's consulting engineer has a prohibited interest in the engineer's contracts with the town if the loan is determined to be a direct or indirect pecuniary benefit accruing to the chairman as a result of the contracts; to avoid the appearance of impropriety, the chairman should not participate in the discussion or vote on matters affecting the engineer or undertake to approve the engineer's vouchers, as long as the loan is outstanding. 1992 Op St Compt No. 92-3.

57. Miscellaneous matters

In a Civil Service Law § 75-b case, the court erred procedurally and substantively in dismissing the employee's complaint based upon documentary evidence purportedly demonstrating that he violated General Municipal Law § 800, therefore vitiating his retaliation claim; the evidence failed to conclusively establish that he possessed any of the authority enumerated in General Municipal Law § 801, thereby creating a conflict of interest. Lilley v Greene Cent. Sch. Dist., 168 A.D.3d 1180, 90 N.Y.S.3d 661, 2019 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 42 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2019).

Where statute under which defendant was indicted provided that, "except as provided" in another specified statute of same chapter, no municipal officer shall have interest in contract with municipality, "exception" in statute was actually a "proviso" since it referred to another section of statute for modification, and was not required to be negatively pleaded. People v Raffa, 90 Misc. 2d 97, 393 N.Y.S.2d 852, 1976 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2865 (N.Y. County Ct. 1976).

The obligation of a municipal officer or employee for care and treatment received by him or by a person for whom he is financially responsible in a hospital or facility operated by his municipality, does not constitute a contract for purposes of the conflicts of interest statutes. Therefore, the said statutes are inapplicable. 1985 Op St Compt No. 85-28, 1985 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 117.

Village board member who has financial interest in business which may be negatively impacted by zoning change under consideration by board should publicly disclose his or her interest in matter; if potential negative financial impact of proposed zoning change on board member is not merely speculative and more than de minimus, board member should not participate in discussion or vote on zoning change. 1997 Op St Compt No. 97-9, 1997 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 21.

There is nothing prohibiting town board member from voting on salaries for family members who are elected or appointed town officials; however, under CLS Gen Mun § 806, town board may require in its code of ethics that town board members abstain from voting on resolutions fixing salaries of relatives who are town officials and, even if code of ethics does not require abstention, affected board members should recuse themselves from discussion and abstain from voting on matters relating solely or primarily to salaries of family members. 2000 Op St Compt No. 2000-12, 2000 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 4.

III. Prohibited Interests in Bank Designated as Depository

58. Fiscal officer's interest in bank

A county treasurer may not have any interest in a bank or trust company designated as depository for county funds unless there is no other banking facility available within the county. 1964 NY Ops Atty Gen Aug 24 (Informal), 1964 N.Y. AG LEXIS 132.

This article would not prohibit designation, as a depository of town funds, of any qualified banks in a town where the chief fiscal officer, treasurer, or his deputy or employee has an interest in all of the banks which may be so designated. 1964 NY Ops Atty Gen Oct 1 (Informal), 1964 N.Y. AG LEXIS 141.

Where there are only two banks in a village and the village treasurer has an interest in both, either may be designated as depository, but a written public disclosure of the nature and extent of the treasurer's interest in the banks must be made. 1964 Op St Compt No. 64-833.

59. —Officer as member of bank advisory board

A bank may be designated as a depository for municipal funds where the chief fiscal officer is a member of the advisory board thereof, if his remuneration is in no way affected by such designation and he has nothing to do with the designation of the bank in his capacity as member of the advisory board thereof. 1964 Op St Compt No. 64-710.

A prohibited interest in contract does not result where a county treasurer is appointed to the advisory board of a bank with which the county does business, provided the conditions of section 802(1)(b) are observed. 1969 Op St Compt No. 69-165.

60. —Employment with bank

A bank may not be designated as depository of funds of a joint public hospital in which the hospital treasurer has an interest by reason of employment as assistant cashier and manager of the local branch. 1965 Op St Compt No. 65-413.

There is no prohibited conflict of interest where a school district, the treasurer of which is employed by a bank as a bank teller, designates such bank as depository of school district funds, sells bonds and notes to the bank and otherwise transacts business with said bank, provided the duties of treasurer, as a bank employee, do not directly involve the procurement, preparation or performance of the contract between the bank and the school district and her remuneration as an employee will not be directly affected as a result of such transactions. 1967 Op St Compt No. 67-304.

61. —Miscellaneous interests

A prohibited interest does not arise where a village invests municipal funds in a bank which employs the spouse of the clerk-treasurer, provided it is the only bank for such investment located within the village. 1968 Op St Compt No. 68-800.

A prohibited conflict of interest: (1) Does not arise where a county treasurer is the owner of less than 5% of the outstanding stock of a bank with which the county does business; (2) Does occur where the law firm of which the treasurer is a member is general counsel for the said bank. 1969 Op St Compt No. 69-1069.

Individual who is member of governing board and treasurer of industrial development agency (IDA) does not have prohibited conflict of interest solely because he or she owns less than one percent of stock of bank named as depository of IDA, and disclosure of interest under CLS Gen Mun § 803 is not required; however, individual should not participate in discussion or vote on matters affecting IDA's relationship with bank. 1994 Op St Compt No. 94-16, 1994 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 14.

62. Interest of other municipal officers or employees; member of bank advisory board

No conflict of interest results from the designation of a bank as a depository of a county sewer district even though one member of said district is also a member of the Advisory Board of a branch of said bank and another member of said district is the President in charge of a branch of said bank, provided that neither of them is the chief fiscal officer, treasurer, or his deputy or employee of the sewer district. However, disclosure of interest must be made in accordance with General Municipal Law, § 803. 1972 NY Ops Atty Gen Nov 2 (Informal), 1972 N.Y. AG LEXIS 154.

A prohibited conflict of interest does not occur when a village board designates a bank as the depository of village funds, notwithstanding the membership of a trustee on the bank's advisory board. Disclosure, however, is necessary. 1968 Op St Compt No. 68-323.

A prohibited conflict of interest does not arise: (a) where a superintendent of a central school district is appointed to the advisory board of a bank with which the district does business; (b) where a member of the board of education of a central school district is appointed to the same advisory board, provided certain provisions of section 802 are applicable. 1968 Op St Compt No. 68-941.

A bank, of which a village attorney is a director, may purchase a bond anticipation note issued by the village and agree to extend the date of maturity, so long as the village attorney does not have the power or duty to perform any of the functions listed in General Municipal Law, § 801(1). This opinion supersedes Opn No. 78-175 to the extent it is inconsistent herewith. 1982 Op St Compt No. 82-251, 1982 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 483.

Except for the applicability of one or more of the exceptions contained in section 802, a town councilman who is also the vice-president and branch manager of a bank would have a prohibited interest in any contracts between the town and the bank. 1982 Op St Compt No. 82-48, 1982 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 674.

63. —Employment with bank

No conflict of interest results from the designation of a bank as a depository of a county sewer district even though one member of said district is also a member of the Advisory Board of a branch of said bank and another member of said district is the President in charge of a branch of said bank, provided that neither of them is the chief fiscal officer, treasurer, or his deputy or employee of the sewer district. However, disclosure of interest must be made in accordance with General Municipal Law, § 803. 1972 NY Ops Atty Gen Nov 2 (Informal), 1972 N.Y. AG LEXIS 154.

A prohibited interest in a contract does not result where a member of the Rochester Housing Authority is a vice-president of a local commercial bank and the Authority makes deposits with that bank from time to time or places in a certificate of deposit certain funds of the Authority in that bank if that particular bank is the highest bidder. 1975 NY Ops Atty Gen March 27 (Informal), 1975 N.Y. AG LEXIS 100.

Where the president of a central school district board of education is a director of a bank, a prohibited interest in contract does not occur when the district (1) designates the bank as a depository and (2) sells obligations to the bank in accordance with Local Finance Law, § 60.10. 1972 Op St Compt No. 72-747.

Town supervisor who is director of bank has prohibited interest in designation of bank as town depository unless exception in CLS Gen Mun L § 802(1)(a) applies; exception does not apply if only reason town could not designate another bank within town as depository is because other bank refused to comply with town's preferred policy of requiring securities pledged as collateral to be held by third party custodian; town may sell obligations to bank of which town supervisor is director only in accordance with CLS Loc Fin L § 60.10. 1989 Op St Compt No. 89-4, 1989 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 7.

A prohibited interest in contract does not result where a county legislator is the vice president of a bank which is designated as the depository of county funds. However, disclosure is necessary. 1973 Op St Compt No. 73-1201.

64. —Stockholder of bank

A prohibited conflict of interest will arise under this article in case a confidential secretary to a town supervisor and a civil service employee of the supervisor both own shares of stock in banks designated as depositories for town funds, unless the bank is the only bank or trust company in town. 1964 Op St Compt No. 64-446.

A school district may designate as depository for school district funds a bank in which the assistant to the Superintendent for Business Affairs own stock. 1964 Op St Compt No. 64-801.

There is no prohibited interest where a school board member owns stock in a bank designated as depository for funds of the school district, but he must make disclosure of his interest. 1964 Op St Compt No. 64-823.

A prohibited interest in contract does not occur where: (a) A town supervisor owns less than 5% of the stock of a bank which is a depository of town funds; (b) The wife of the supervisor is part-owner of a newspaper in which the town publishes legal notices. 1972 Op St Compt No. 72-4.

When a village attorney is a director and stockholder of a bank, he has a conflict of interest if the bank should purchase a statutory installment bond from the village only if he has any of the powers and duties set forth in section 801(1) in relation to the transaction. If he has a conflict of interest, the sale nevertheless would be permissible if made pursuant to Local Finance Law, § 60.10 and the restrictions set forth therein. 1985 Op St Compt No. 85-34, 1985 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 108.

65. —Municipal officer as employee and stockholder of bank

A town may designate as a depository for its funds a bank in which a town councilman is an officer, director and stockholder, and may also sell bonds and notes to such bank, within the limitations of § 60.10 of the Local Finance Law. 1964 NY Ops Atty Gen Nov 20 (Informal), 1964 N.Y. AG LEXIS 155.

A prohibited conflict of interest would arise if a town of the second class were to designate as a depository of town funds a bank of which the appointed deputy town supervisor is an officer and stockholder unless it were the only bank in the town. 1965 Op St Compt No. 65-20.

Where there is no bank or trust company located in a town, the town board may designate a bank as depositary even though the supervisor owns stock in the bank and is employed by the bank, provided that his stock ownership is less than five per cent of outstanding stock, his remuneration is not affected as a result of the designation and his duties as a bank officer or employee do not involve the procurement, preparation or performance of the contract. 1968 Op St Compt No. 68-223.

A county attorney who is director, counsel and stockholder of a bank does not have a prohibited interest where the bank acts as a depository of county funds or purchases county obligations pursuant to Local Finance Law, § 60.10. He would have a prohibited interest in all other transactions between the county and the bank. 1978 Op St Compt No. 78-306.

Prospective appointee to fill vacancy in office of town supervisor who is officer and stockholder of bank would have prohibited interest in designation of bank as town depository, renewal of town obligations presently held by bank, and future sale of obligations by town to bank, unless one or more exceptions of CLS Gen Mun § 802 is applicable. 1992 Op St Compt No. 92-54.

66. Eligibility of bank employee for municipal employment

Employee of bank with title of Assistant Cashier is not eligible for position of Treasurer of School District where bank has been named depository of funds for the school district and there is another eligible banking institution located within the district. 1966 NY Ops Atty Gen Oct 4 (Informal), 1966 N.Y. AG LEXIS 125.

However, where duties of school district treasurer, as an employee or officer of the bank, normally involve handling of municipal accounts, treasurer may not intentionally refrain from performance of such duties to avoid prohibited conflict of interest. 1967 Op St Compt No. 67-304.

A person who is employed by a bank which is designated as the depository of the funds of a BOCES would have a prohibited conflict of interest if he should serve as treasurer of BOCES unless an exception contained in section 802 is applicable. 1979 Op St Compt No. 79-500, 1979 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 167.

IV. Employment Conflicts

67. In general

No rule of law prohibits a former member of the New York City Council from the Borough of The Bronx from being selected to fill the vacancy in the office of Bronx Borough President by vote of a majority of city council members representing Bronx Borough (New York City Charter, § 81) following his resignation as a city councilman; provisions of law governing the ethical behavior of members of the city council in the appointment of a member to another post are intended to deal with abuses such as dual office holding and do not prohibit a council member from being chosen by his fellow members to another office at which time he automatically forfeits his position as a council member; common-law principles under prior case law which may be read as prohibiting a governmental body from appointing one of its own members to office have been codified and where different from applicable statutory law, specifically abrogated by legislative enactment (New York City Charter, §§ 33, 1115, 2604; Town Law, § 64, subd 5; General Municipal Law, art 18) and, in any event, respondent was not a "member" of the city council at the time the vacancy in the office of Borough President occurred nor was he a member of the special body of electors convened by the Mayor to elect an interim Borough President. Valentin v Simon, 98 Misc. 2d 5, 413 N.Y.S.2d 266, 1979 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2037 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1979).

Dual employment by the same municipality of the same person in full-time and part-time positions is not prohibited per se under General Municipal Law, § 801, if not otherwise prohibited. 1978 Op St Compt No. 78-946.

Whether a member of an industrial development agency, who is an attorney, has a prohibited conflict of interest in contracts between the agency and a client, depends upon the circumstances. 1982 Op St Compt No. 82-250, 1982 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 478.

Where two school districts jointly contract to field athletic teams, there is no legal prohibition against a member of the board of education of one district from being hired as a coach by the other district when the only function performed by the member's district in relation to the joint contract is to provide a proportionate share of funds to cover the cost of the program. 1983 Op St Compt No. 83-12, 1983 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 469.

68. Appointment or election of private persons to municipal positions

No statutory conflict of interest would be created in the appointment of an assistant vice president of a banking trust company with which an urban renewal agency does business to membership on such agency. 1966 NY Ops Atty Gen June 28 (Informal), 1966 N.Y. AG LEXIS 90.

A physician member of the medical staff of Lewis County General Hospital may not also serve as a member of the Board of Managers of that hospital. 1979 NY Ops Atty Gen Sept 21 (Informal), 1979 N.Y. AG LEXIS 34.

A teacher in a community college may be a member of the board of education of the city school district which sponsors the college. 1966 Op St Compt No. 66-188.

With stated reservations, there is no illegality or impropriety to the appointment of a person engaged in the building industry to a town zoning or planning board. 1969 Op St Compt No. 69-101.

69. Employment of municipal official's spouse or relative

A municipality may enter into a contract of employment with a spouse, minor children or dependents of an officer or employee of such municipality who has the power or duty to approve same or the payments made thereunder. However, teachers related to any member of a board of education may be employed by said board only on consent of two-thirds of the members thereof. 1968 NY Ops Atty Gen Nov 4 (Informal), 1968 N.Y. AG LEXIS 113.

70. —Authority of municipal official over employment

A councilman of the City of Lackawanna is not disqualified by reason of conflict of interest from voting on a resolution granting a salary increase to his wife, who is a properly appointed and properly promoted Senior Stenographer in the city. 1978 NY Ops Atty Gen March 8 (Informal), 1978 N.Y. AG LEXIS 167.

No prohibited conflict of interest exists where a Village Trustee participates and votes on certain matters involving the Kenmore Police Department when the husband of the Trustee is a desk lieutenant in that Department who has a direct monetary interest and is directly affected by the actions of the Board of Trustees with respect thereto. 1976 NY Ops Atty Gen July 12 (Informal), 1976 N.Y. AG LEXIS 132.

71. —City employment

A city may appoint as city attorney or enter into a contract of employment with a person whose spouse is an Alderman of that city even though the spouse, as such Alderman, may have the power or duty to approve such appointment or contract of employment or the payments made thereunder. 1972 NY Ops Atty Gen Nov 30 (Informal), 1972 N.Y. AG LEXIS 163.

A member of the city council must recuse herself from participating in a matter concerning the salary and terms and conditions of employment of her son who serves as the head of the department of public works. 1992 NY Ops Atty Gen 92-18 (Informal), 1992 N.Y. AG LEXIS 19.

There is no illegality where the son of the city director of public works is appointed corporation counsel for the city. Where town attorney and city corporation counsel are law partners, ethical problems may result when there is business between the city and town requiring legal counsel. 1980 Op St Compt No. 80-127.

Under the above sections, there was no violation of General Municipal Law, Article 18, where a three-member Civil Service Commission of the City of Middletown appointed the wife of one of said members as Secretary to said Commission by a two to nothing vote when one of the affirmative votes was cast by the Secretary's husband. 1974 NY Ops Atty Gen Apr 23 (Informal), 1974 N.Y. AG LEXIS 72.

72. —County employment

Sheriff may appoint his wife matron of county jail. 1967 NY Ops Atty Gen Dec 21 (Informal), 1967 N.Y. AG LEXIS 151.

Brothers do not enjoy the degree of consanguinity which would make the interest of one the interest of the other. Where a member of a partnership is appointed as a condemnation commissioner in a county acquisition of real property, and thereafter the other partner is elected as a supervisor in that county, and no fees of the condemnation commissioner are received by the partnership, and this is not in violation of the partnership agreement, there is no prohibited conflict of interest. However, where the partners are brothers, there may be the appearance of a conflict of interest but as the appointment of the commissioner was made before the supervisor was elected, disclosure by the supervisor and the condemnation commissioner would eliminate any question of an improper conflict. 1975 NY Ops Atty Gen March 13 (Informal), 1975 N.Y. AG LEXIS 90.

There is no illegality in the appointment by the county board of supervisors of the spouse of a member of the board to a county office or employment. 1972 Op St Compt No. 72-81.

No conflict of interest arises where the spouse of the person serving as health commissioner of three county health districts is the environmental health engineer of the same health districts. 1967 Op St Compt No. 67-686.

73. —School district employment

A municipality may enter into a contract of employment with a spouse, minor children or dependents of an officer or employee of such municipality who has the power or duty to approve same or the payments made thereunder. However, teachers related to any member of a board of education may be employed by said board only on consent of two-thirds of the members thereof. 1968 NY Ops Atty Gen Nov 4 (Informal), 1968 N.Y. AG LEXIS 113.

An attorney may be appointed school district attorney even though the attorney's spouse is a member of the board of education of the school district. The authorization contained in General Municipal Law § 800 subdivision 3 constitutes a waiver of the prohibition of such a contract when the contract relates to a spouse of a board member; it is so broad in its terms that there is no reason why the spouse of the attorney may not vote upon the question of the attorney's employment and upon matters relating to the attorney's salary and/or expense vouchers. 1977 NY Ops Atty Gen Dec 27 (Informal), 1977 N.Y. AG LEXIS 370.

Votes by respondent board member, approving appointment of her 27-year-old son as soccer coach and granting tenure to teacher who had recommended him for coaching position, did not violate General Municipal Law's conflict of interest provisions as (1) respondent's son was not "a minor" under CLS Gen Mun § 2(3) and he was not respondent's dependent merely because he resided in her home, and (2) petitioner failed to prove that respondent derived any pecuniary or material benefit from fact that her son resided in her home. 2001 Op Comm Ed No. 14,826, 2002 NY Educ. Dept. LEXIS 12.

There was no prohibited conflict of interest when president of central school district's board of education ratified agreement between local teachers' association and district, even though his spouse was member of local teachers' association. 2009 Op Comm Ed No. 15,892, 2009 NY Educ. Dept. LEXIS 34.

Provision of code of ethics of central school district, which required members of board of education to recuse themselves from voting on collective bargaining agreements between district and unions if they had family member covered by collective bargaining agreement, was unlawful because it conflicted with express exemptions from conflict of interest coverage in General Municipal Law. 1998 Op Comm Ed No. 13,914, 1998 NY Educ. Dept. LEXIS 236.

Where a teacher is the child of a member of the board of education of a central school district, a two-thirds vote of the entire board is required when any contract of employment relating to the teacher is renewed, including a contract granting tenure. The board member may vote on such contracts and on matters involving teacher's salary. 1980 Op St Compt No. 80-34, 1980 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 342.

Member of school district board of education who is also employee of not-for-profit corporation would not have prohibited interests in contract between district and corporation for provision by corporation of arts and education programs to district; however, disclosure would be required under CLS Gen Mun L § 803. 1988 Op St Compt No. 88-77, 1988 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 70.

74. —Town employment

Under the above sections the Supervisor of the Town of Milan, Dutchess County, a town of the second class, may designate his wife as a bookkeeper provided that the town board by resolution authorizes him to make a designation for the position and fixes the compensation therefor. 1970 NY Ops Atty Gen March 25 (Informal), 1970 N.Y. AG LEXIS 53.

A member of a town board must recuse herself from acting with respect to the terms and conditions of employment of her spouse, the chairperson of the zoning board of appeals. 1992 NY Ops Atty Gen 92-20 (Informal), 1992 N.Y. AG LEXIS 21.

The spouse of a justice of the peace of a town of the second class may not be employed as clerical assistant to the justice of the peace. 1964 Op St Compt No. 64-850.

In a town of the second class, wherein a justice of the peace is a member of the town board, such board may not fix the said justice's salary at an amount higher than that specified in the notice of hearing on the preliminary budget. The wife, minor children and dependents of a justice of the peace in a town of the second class may not be employed as clerical assistants to such justice. In policy matters relating to the volume of clerical help needed and the mode of compensating such help, the town board must be expected to exercise its own sound discretion. 1964 Op St Compt No. 64-1036.

There is no conflict of interest where a town supervisor appoints his wife as bookkeeper. 1970 Op St Compt No. 70-62.

A town board may not appoint one of its members to the position of custodian of the water district but it may appoint the wife of one of its members. 1980 Op St Compt No. 80-114.

A town councilman does not have a statutory interest in a collective bargaining agreement between the town and a union to which his son, an employee of the town highway department belongs, unless it can be established that he derives a direct or indirect pecuniary benefit as a result of the agreement. 24 Opn St Comp, 1968, p 60 and any other inconsistent opinions superseded. 1981 Op St Compt No. 81-415, 1981 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 471.

The Town Board of the Town of Danube may employ the spouse of one of the Town Justices as clerk to that Justice. 1974 NY Ops Atty Gen Nov 15 (Informal), 1974 N.Y. AG LEXIS 179.

75. —Village employment

The wife of a village clerk may contract with the village for operation of an answering service under subd. (3) of this section after September 1, 1964. 1964 Op St Compt No. 64-506.

A village may employ the minor child of a village trustee as a swimming instructor. No disclosure is required. 1965 Op St Compt No. 67-587.

Position of village auditor is not inherently incompatible with spouse's holding of office of deputy clerk-treasurer of same village. 1979 Op St Compt No. 79-173.

76. —Other employment

The same impropriety would not seem to exist where the spouse of a faculty member of such community college becomes a county legislator. 1974 Op St Compt No. 74-935.

77. Employment of municipal official's business associate; law partner

A village trustee's law partner may not serve as village attorney unless his compensation cannot find its way into partnership funds. 1967 Op St Compt No. 67-666.

A prohibited conflict of interest arises where the law partners of the supervisor receive fees for services rendered county indigents under the same plan, assuming such fees are paid into the partnership treasury. There is no interest in contract if the fees are kept by the partners (other than the supervisor) for their individual benefits. 1967 Op St Compt No. 67-952.

There is no illegality in the holding of the office of assistant public defender by the law partner of the assistant county attorney. 1969 Op St Compt No. 69-100.

There is no illegality where the son of the city director of public works is appointed corporation counsel for the city. Where town attorney and city corporation counsel are law partners, ethical problems may result when there is business between the city and town requiring legal counsel. 1980 Op St Compt No. 80-127.

A village attorney does not have a conflict of interest when his law partner is appointed to the office of deputy village attorney. 1981 Op St Compt No. 81-40, 1981 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 855.

No prohibited conflict of interest exists where the law partner of a county legislator is employed as an instructor at the county sponsored community college when the compensation received for such services does not become part of the income of the partnership. 1978 NY Ops Atty Gen Aug 17 (Informal), 1978 N.Y. AG LEXIS 347.

A conflict of interest occurs where the law partner of a town justice in a town of the second class is retained to provide legal services for the town, if the justice receives a direct or indirect material or pecuniary benefit as the result of such contract. There is no legal prohibition against the appointment of the law partner as town attorney. 1971 Op St Compt No. 71-961.

If there is no prohibited conflict of interest, the law firm in which the town attorney is a partner may be retained by the town board as special counsel for litigation; a law firm so retained would be an independent contractor and no payroll deductions would be made from payment to the firm; if there is no prohibited conflict of interest, a town board may ratify a contract with a law firm as special counsel where there was no prior resolution engaging the services of the firm; a claim submitted by the law firm in 1980 for litigation services performed in 1979 and 1980 may be paid in the current fiscal year under certain circumstances; a town attorney may receive a prospective salary increase for services not anticipated prior to the time salaries are set; payroll deductions would be made from salary paid. 1981 Op St. Compt No. 81-102, 1981 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 781.

78. —Others

Brothers do not enjoy the degree of consanguinity which would make the interest of one the interest of the other. Where a member of a partnership is appointed as a condemnation commissioner in a county acquisition of real property, and thereafter the other partner is elected as a supervisor in that county, and no fees of the condemnation commissioner are received by the partnership, and this is not in violation of the partnership agreement, there is no prohibited conflict of interest. However, where the partners are brothers, there may be the appearance of a conflict of interest but as the appointment of the commissioner was made before the supervisor was elected, disclosure by the supervisor and the condemnation commissioner would eliminate any question of an improper conflict. 1975 NY Ops Atty Gen March 13 (Informal), 1975 N.Y. AG LEXIS 90.

In a situation where an attorney is a real estate broker; a non-attorney is an insurance agent and a real estate broker; the two operate a real estate brokerage business; the attorney's income from practice of law is not credited to the real estate brokerage business; the insurance agent's income from the insurance business is not credited to the real estate brokerage business; other income of the two, except real estate brokerage commissions and fees, is not credited to the real estate brokerage business; and the insurance agent is a town supervisor, the attorney may be appointed town attorney of the same town as neither would receive direct or indirect pecuniary or material benefit from the receipt by the other of town salary. 1977 NY Ops Atty Gen Dec 21 (Informal), 1977 N.Y. AG LEXIS 367.

79. Compatible employment for city officers or employees

Court would annul determination terminating petitioner's employment as city firefighter for engaging in allegedly proscribed political activity in violation of CLS Gen Mun § 801, CLS Gen City § 3, and unnamed "common-law rules" since (1) it was conceded that literal terms of statutes were not violated, (2) petitioner fell within exception to CLS Gen Mun § 801 provided by CLS Gen Mun § 802, (3) petitioner was appointed as firefighter not by common council, as described in CLS Gen City § 3, but by municipal board of public safety, and (4) there was no satisfactory explanation of what was meant by claim that petitioner violated "common-law rules." Girard v Glens Falls, 173 A.D.2d 113, 577 N.Y.S.2d 496, 1991 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 16338 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1991).

The office of Deputy Corporation Counsel of the City of Cohoes and the position of counsel to the Cohoes Model Cities Demonstration Agency may be held simultaneously. 1970 NY Ops Atty Gen April 13 (Informal), 1970 N.Y. AG LEXIS 60.

A person in litigation against a city over a contract claim is not thereby disqualified from running for the office of alderman of the city. If elected he may assume the office but must file a disclosure statement and may not participate, as an alderman, in deliberations or action by the city relating to the defense or settlement of the litigation. 1975 NY Ops Atty Gen Oct 10 (Informal), 1975 N.Y. AG LEXIS 169.

The positions of City Personnel Officer and Affirmative Action Program Administrator for the City of Geneva are compatible and may be held simultaneously by the same person. 1976 NY Ops Atty Gen April 8 (Informal), 1976 N.Y. AG LEXIS 200.

The employment of an alderman, as a real estate sales agent, does not automatically create a conflict of interest even if he is also chairman of the Land Sales Committee of the Common Council. A conflict would exist if the alderman represented another party in a real estate transaction with the city and the commissions were over one hundred dollars. 1978 NY Ops Atty Gen Dec 7 (Informal), 1978 N.Y. AG LEXIS 387.

Municipality by local law may establish exception to common law prohibition on holding incompatible offices where public interest would be served. 1994 NY Ops Atty Gen 94-2 (Informal), 1994 N.Y. Op. Att'y Gen. No. 94-2, 1994 N.Y. AG LEXIS 5.

Under commission form of government in City of Mechanicville, commissioner of finance may also hold office of treasurer of Mechanicville fire department. 1994 NY Ops Atty Gen 94-7 (Informal), 1994 N.Y. AG LEXIS 12.

City of Yonkers' Director of Capital Projects was not precluded from also serving as member of City of Yonkers board of education, and thus petition seeking his removal was dismissed where (1) his affidavit and job description indicated that Director of Capital Projects could not interfere with any action taken by school district and had no power over funding for school district, and (2) as member of board of education, he could not interfere with any action taken by city; conclusory allegations that inherent conflict of interest existed because Director of Capital Projects reported directly to mayor (who allegedly wanted to limit board's funding) was insufficient to prove inconsistency with position on board inasmuch as all board members were mayoral appointees. 1999 Op Comm Ed No. 14,181, 1999 NY Educ. Dept. LEXIS 143.

A prohibited conflict of interest does not arise when a court stenographer employed by a city is paid by it for transcribing minutes of hearings conducted by the corporation counsel, where his services are rendered as an independent contractor outside of his regular working hours. 1968 Op St Compt No. 68-54.

There is no prohibition against a member of the city council of Watervliet being employed by the Watervliet Housing Authority as a clerk-typist. 1969 Op St Compt No. 69-124.

A prohibited conflict of interest does not arise where a city retains the services of two employees (heads of public works and water departments) for the purpose of designing a new sewer installation. Disclosure, however, is required, as provided in section 803. 1969 Op St Compt No. 69-294.

City councilman who is employee of corporation does not have conflict of interest in relation to contract between city and corporation when his remuneration is not directly affected as result of such contract and duties of his employment do not directly involve procurement, preparation or performance of any part of such contract. 1987 Op St Compt No. 87-91, 1987 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 143.

There is no state statute which would prohibit a city auditor in the classified, competitive civil service from holding the position of county committeeman of a political party. Whether the Hatch Political Activities Act (a federal statute) is applicable is a matter for the consideration of the United States Attorney General's Office. 1968 Op St Compt No. 68-484.

80. —Imcompatible employment

In the absence of statutory authorization, the appointment by a city council of one of its members to a position of employment which was created and for which the salary was provided by the council of which he is a member, is violative of General Municipal Law § 801 even though he resigns from the council prior to such appointment. 1966 NY Ops Atty Gen Apr 18 (Informal), 1966 N.Y. AG LEXIS 60.

Under the provisions of the Charter of the City of Geneva § 172, a conflict of interest would exist where the City Assessor continues in the real estate business within the city while serving as such Assessor. 1970 NY Ops Atty Gen Dec 9 (Informal), 1970 N.Y. AG LEXIS 139.

A prohibited conflict of interest, under section 801 of the General Municipal Law, arose when the former City Attorney of the City of Glens Falls approved a contract between himself and the City for his employment to provide legal services to the Community Development Office, a City of Glens Falls agency.

1978 NY Ops Atty Gen May 23 (Informal), 1978 N.Y. AG LEXIS 125.

The employment of an alderman, as a real estate sales agent, does not automatically create a conflict of interest even if he is also chairman of the Land Sales Committee of the Common Council. A conflict would exist if the alderman represented another party in a real estate transaction with the city and the commissions were over one hundred dollars. 1978 NY Ops Atty Gen Dec 7 (Informal), 1978 N.Y. AG LEXIS 387.

Positions of member of city council and city firefighter are incompatible. 1995 NY Ops Atty Gen 95-12 (Informal), 1995 N.Y. AG LEXIS 12.

A prohibited conflict of interest occurs if the city corporation counsel, who is also counsel to the city school district board of education pursuant to the terms of a contract between the school district and the city, is hired by the district as an independent contractor to render services as a labor negotiator. 1968 Op St Compt No. 68-694.

81. Compatible employment for county officers or employees

Positions of assistant district attorney and member of panel of 3 special counsels (to substitute for town attorney, planning board attorney, or zoning board attorney in event any are not available to serve due to conflicts of interests or other disqualifications) are compatible. 1996 NY Ops Atty Gen 96-43 (Informal), 1996 N.Y. AG LEXIS 64.

Positions of member of county economic development agency, industrial development agency, and director of county planning board were compatible. 1998 NY Ops Atty Gen 98-45 (Informal), 1998 N.Y. AG LEXIS 50.

A conflict of interest does not occur where the owner of a tree service company, who is also a member of the county board of representatives, is employed by a town within the county for the purpose of tree removal. 1968 Op St Compt No. 68-25.

There is no impropriety in the holding, by a county legislator, of the office of treasurer of a city within the county. 1969 Op St Compt No. 69-304.

A director of the county laboratory, who is not required by the county board to perform autopsies for coroner's as part of the duties of the office, may contract with the county for a fee in addition to salary to perform autopsies for coroners, provided that the contract is not prohibited by the county code of ethics. 1978 Op St Compt No. 78-4.

Apart from conflicts of interest considerations, there is no legal prohibition against the executive director of an association for retarded children serving as a member of a county community services board which passes upon the association's budget. Whether a prohibited conflict of interest exists where the county contracts for services to be provided by the association depends upon relevant facts. 1978 Op St Compt No. 78-425.

A statutory conflict of interest does not occur where an attorney and his employee simultaneously serve as part-time county attorney and administrator of the assigned counsel plan, respectively, when the county attorney (in his private practice) receives no direct or indirect pecuniary or material benefit as a result of his employee's position with the county. 1981 Op St Compt No. 81-406, 1981 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 476.

A prohibited conflict of interest would not arise if the clerk of a county board of supervisors should be appointed as secretary to the county civil service commission. However, such appointment may be violative of the common law rule enunciated in Wood v Town of Whitehall. 1968 Op St Compt No. 68-478.

No conflict of interest exists where a county legislator is a professional optometrist who, in connection with his private practice, provides optometrical services for Medicaid recipients. However, disclosure is required pursuant to General Municipal Law, § 803(1). 1981 Op St Compt No. 81-407, 1981 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 480.

82. —Incompatible employment

County motor vehicle supervisor appointed by county clerk and whose salary was fixed by county legislature, who thereafter was elected to seat on county legislature, could not serve in both positions and accordingly was required to either resign from office of county legislator or from position of motor vehicle supervisor; fact that supervisor might be able to resist temptation to act in manner incompatible with best interests of county and might actually refrain from her duty of participating in fixation of salary of motor vehicle supervisor was not enough to permit her to hold both positions at same time. Dykeman v Symonds, 54 A.D.2d 159, 388 N.Y.S.2d 422, 1976 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13744 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1976).

Court decision requiring county motor vehicle supervisor to either resign from that office or from her position as county legislator to which she was thereafter elected did not result in her disenfranchisement or that of voters in district. Dykeman v Symonds, 54 A.D.2d 159, 388 N.Y.S.2d 422, 1976 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13744 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1976).

In action for declaratory judgment invalidating county water authority's "Policy Governing Conflict of Interest and Disclosure" and related rules of conduct which prohibited water authority employees from providing private plumbing services requiring inspection and/or approval by water authority, water authority was properly granted summary judgment because policy was rationally based and reasonably related to maintaining public confidence in government, and it was sufficiently narrow in scope so as not to eliminate other opportunities for plaintiffs to engage in outside work. Reichel v Suffolk County Water Auth., 283 A.D.2d 475, 724 N.Y.S.2d 886, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5006 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2001).

Since individual as a member of county legislature had power or duty to fix compensation for office of motor vehicle supervisor which he also held because the office was paid out of county funds, conflict was inherent and inescapable within meaning of statute so that she could not properly serve concurrently in both capacities, notwithstanding fact that she had refrained from the past in participating with negotiations with collective bargaining agent and was willing to abstain from the future from voting upon any and all salary matters coming before the legislative body. Dykeman v Symonds, 85 Misc. 2d 289, 380 N.Y.S.2d 567, 1976 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1993 (N.Y. Sup. Ct.), aff'd, 54 A.D.2d 159, 388 N.Y.S.2d 422, 1976 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13744 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1976).

The offices of Jefferson County Treasurer and member of the Thousand Island Bridge Authority are, when held by the same person, incompatible. 1971 NY Ops Atty Gen April 26 (Informal), 1971 N.Y. AG LEXIS 68.

A county Legislator may not be employed on the teaching staff of a county sponsored community college located within that county. 1975 NY Ops Atty Gen Jan 22 (Informal), 1975 N.Y. AG LEXIS 60.

The governing body of a county may not appoint one of its members as a director of a regional off-track betting corporation. 1979 NY Ops Atty Gen Sept 13 (Informal), 1979 N.Y. AG LEXIS 47.

County fire investigator should not also serve as building inspector in county. 1998 NY Ops Atty Gen 98-44 (Informal), 1998 N.Y. AG LEXIS 51.

A prohibited conflict of interest occurs where a county coroner, who is also a physician, is paid on a fee basis for performing autopsies. 1969 Op St Compt No. 69-280.

Certain improprieties would attach if a teacher in a county-sponsored community college were to be a county legislator at the same time. 1974 Op St Compt No. 74-935.

83. Compatibility of employment for housing authority officers or employees

A common law conflict of interest would ensue if the same person at the same time served as an officer or employee and commissioner for a municipal housing authority. Pursuant to Public Housing Law, § 30(5), a tenant of the Buffalo Municipal Housing Authority, who is also an employee of said Authority, may lawfully seek the office of commissioner of said Authority and if successful may become a commissioner upon resigning his position of employment. 1978 NY Ops Atty Gen Feb 22 (Informal), 1978 N.Y. AG LEXIS 178.

A conflict of interest would result if the same person, at the same time, served as both a member of, and attorney for, a Municipal Housing Authority. 1978 NY Ops Atty Gen Feb 13 (Informal), 1978 N.Y. AG LEXIS 399.

Housing authority commissioner may serve as employee of entity providing services to authority provided that he or she recuses himself or herself when necessary to avoid conflict of interests. 1994 NY Ops Atty Gen 94-11 (Informal), 1994 N.Y. AG LEXIS 8.

A member of a housing authority is precluded by section 36 and the common law rules relating to conflicts of interest from being hired by the owner of a laundry concession, which concession is located in an authority apartment building, to service and maintain the machines. 1983 Op St Compt No. 83-13, 1983 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 470.

84. Compatibility of employment for school district officers or employees

There is no incompatibility between the office of school board member and village trustee of a village in the school district and there is no inherent conflict of interest in the simultaneous holding of the two offices by the same person, which would disqualify him from voting on a plan, inter alia, to move the school district administrative offices to a school located in the village. 1981 NY Ops Atty Gen 81-17 (Informal), 1981 N.Y. AG LEXIS 142.

Respondent did not neglect his duty as member of board of education by acting as the trial attorney for plaintiffs in a lawsuit against a school district while he was a member of the board of education, since purely personal transactions, such as respondent's handling of divorce proceedings and private real estate transactions as attorney on behalf of school employee, do not constitute a prohibited conflict of interest because they do not involve a contract with school district. Application of Ackerberg et al., 1985 Op Comm Ed No. 11,561.

There is no illegality where the attorney for a school district is also a trustee of a village within the district. However, he should avoid involvement in any controversies between the district and the village. 1969 Op St Compt No. 69-70.

A prohibited interest in contract will exist if a dentist, engaged under a State-sponsored pre-school program and paid with school district funds on a per-patient basis, is elected to the board of education and continues to treat program patients, where a separate contract with the school district is entered into for each patient treated. 1971 Op St Compt No. 71-936.

A member of a school district board of education who is also on the faculty of a community college may not be engaged by the district to teach a course, either as an employee of the district or as an independent contractor, in a district school. 1979 Op St Compt No. 79-626.

A retired school administrator, if he should be elected to the board of education of the school district, would have a prohibited interest as a board member in any collective bargaining agreement executed subsequent to his taking office which provides for the payment of the full cost of health insurance for him as a retiree. 1983 Op St Compt No. 83-122, 1983 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 363.

A member of a school district board of education does not have a conflict of interest when he, as a retired teacher, is covered by a health insurance contract paid by the district pursuant to a collective bargaining agreement with the school district notwithstanding that as a board member he has the power to approve the agreement and the insurance contract. Similarly, he has no conflict of interest when he is the beneficiary of a health insurance plan by virtue of his spouse's employment by the district. However, the board member should consider refraining from voting on matters impacting upon benefits paid to him as a retired employee. Opn No. 83-122 superseded. 1986 Op St Compt No. 86-5, 1986 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 168.

School board member does not have conflict of interest pursuant to CLS Gen Mun Law Art 18 solely by virtue of either holding position in state teachers association or owning college entrance and counseling business, however, one or both activities may be regulated by school district's code of ethics. 1989 Op St Compt No. 89-24, 1989 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 27.

There is no legal prohibition against the same individual being attorney for both a village and a school district which includes the village. However, due regard should be accorded Canon 6 of the Canons of Professional Ethics of the New York State Bar Association. 1968 Op St Compt No. 68-987.

Since there was no statutory provision prohibiting teacher of one school district from holding board membership in another district, there was no conflict of interest where said teacher participated in teacher salary negotiations while a member of said board. Op Ed Comm No. 8565.

85. Compatibility of employment for town officers or employees; administrative board members

Supervisor of town may not also serve as town librarian. 1999 NY Ops Atty Gen 99-39 (Informal), 1999 N.Y. AG LEXIS 45.

No prohibited conflict of interest occurs when an accountant, who is a member of a town insurance advisory committee, renders bookkeeping and accounting services to a town either as: (1) an employee of the town, or (2) as an independent contractor. 1968 Op St Compt No. 68-24.

No prohibited conflict of interest occurs when a member of a town historical area board of review contracts with the town for the rendering of his professional services in connection with a building for the town public library district. 1968 Op St Compt No. 68-213.

Generally, there is no legal prohibition against a member of an administrative board of a town appearing before such board in his professional capacity. However, this Department feels that such would not be in the public interest. 1968 Op St Compt No. 68-246.

A conflict of interest would not arise if the director of youth activities of a town should be elected to the office of trustee of the school district within which the town is located. 1968 Op St Compt No. 68-477.

There is no prohibition against the holding, by a member of a town conservation advisory council, of membership on the town planning board. 1969 Op St Compt No. 69-115.

86. —Clerks

A town clerk may be legally employed as stenographer for the town's justice of the peace. 1964 Op St Compt No. 64-753.

An individual may hold the positions of town building inspector and clerk to the town planning board. 1968 Op St Compt No. 68-174.

While there is no legal prohibition against the appointment of the secretary to the town board to the office of deputy town clerk, whether it is advisable is a matter for local determination. 1968 Op St Compt No. 68-191.

A town clerk may receive extra compensation for acting as stenographer for town justice, and, outside office hours, as stenographer for other town agencies. 1968 Op St Compt No. 68-657.

87. —Council members

Member of town board is ineligible to serve as town constable since the incumbent of each position is a town officer and since town board may confer powers on a constable not inconsistent with those conferred by general laws of the State and a town constable, when appointed, serves for an indefinite term at the pleasure of the board. 1966 NY Ops Atty Gen Oct 13 (Informal), 1966 N.Y. AG LEXIS 130.

The dual holding of the two public offices of town councilman and village patrolman is compatible, as is the dual holding of the public office of village trustee and the public employment of custodian of a town, assuming, of course, that there is no conflict with respect to time. Other questions should be referred to local boards of ethics. 1970 NY Ops Atty Gen Aug 13 (Informal), 1970 N.Y. AG LEXIS 103.

A town councilwoman may not serve simultaneously as bookkeeper for the town supervisor except within the confines of the exception contained in General Municipal Law § 802(2[f]). 1977 NY Ops Atty Gen Nov 18 (Informal), 1977 N.Y. AG LEXIS 355.

A town councilman of the town of the second class may be appointed by the town supervisor as secretary to the town supervisor. 1965 Op St Compt No. 65-361.

A prohibited conflict of interest would occur if a town councilman should be hired as an independent contractor to work for the town; and his appointment to a position of employment by the town board would be contrary to public policy. 1968 Op St Compt No. 68-53.

There is no prohibition against the appointment of a town councilman as "liaison" between the town board and the board of education of a school district by which he is employed. 1968 Op St Compt No. 68-291.

Statutory conflicts of interest do not arise by reason of membership of town councilmen and village trustees in the Civil Service Employees Association, notwithstanding that it is the bargaining agent for officers and employees of their respective towns and villages. 1968 Op St Compt No. 68-529.

A town councilman may not receive compensation for services rendered to a town water district. 1969 Op St Compt No. 69-682.

A town board may not appoint one of its members to the position of custodian of the water district but it may appoint the wife of one of its members. 1980 Op St Compt No. 80-114.

A prohibited conflict of interest does not exist where a town councilman is an officer of a volunteer fire company with which the town contracts to receive fire protection and ambulance service. 1968 Op St Compt No. 68-190.

88. —Fire personnel

There is no apparent incompatibility per se between the offices of town fire district fire company line officer and town fire prevention officer. 1968 Op St Compt No. 68-18.

A town board member may also be volunteer fireman. Furthermore, as a board member he may vote on the amount of a contract with his fire company. 1979 Op St Compt No. 79-445.

89. —Highway personnel

The same person simultaneously may hold the two offices of appointed assessor and elected superintendent of highways in a town. 1975 NY Ops Atty Gen Nov 25 (Informal), 1975 N.Y. AG LEXIS 193.

A town superintendent of highways who receives an annual salary cannot be employed to work in the highway department at a fixed hourly rate. 1966 Op St Compt No. 66-43.

A prohibited conflict of interest does not arise where a town highway superintendent is appointed by the town board to the newly created position of park superintendent. 1968 Op St Compt No. 68-56.

A town highway superintendent may legally be employed by the town to work for the water and sewer districts provided that his duties, as highway superintendent, do not include those to be performed as an employee. 1969 Op St Compt No. 69-171.

The employment, by a town, of the town assessor as a full-time employee of the highway department is not violative of the conflicts of interest statutes, nor any other provision of law. 1969 Op St Compt No. 69-193.

There is no legal prohibition against an employee of a town highway department serving as a part-time town policeman. 1974 Op St Compt No. 74-141.

90. —Justices

A prohibited conflict of interest does not result where a town justice of a town of the first class performs services for such town as attorney for special improvement districts created by such town. Nevertheless, disclosure of such interest is mandated by General Municipal Law, Sec. 803, 1973 NY Ops Atty Gen Apr 4 (Informal), 1973 N.Y. AG LEXIS 53.

The same person may simultaneously hold the two offices of town justice, who would not be serving as a member of the town board, and an employee of the town highway department. 1978 NY Ops Atty Gen March 16 (Informal), 1978 N.Y. AG LEXIS 162.

The same person may simultaneously serve as Scio Town Justice and be employed by the Town of Scio to run the town water and refuse disposal systems. 1979 NY Ops Atty Gen Jan 9 (Informal), 1979 N.Y. AG LEXIS 168.

A prohibited interest in contract arises where a justice of the peace of a town of the second class is employed as the private law associate of the attorney retained by the town on a contractual basis to render legal services. 1969 Op St Compt No. 69-54.

In a town of the second class, an elected justice is a member of the town board and, therefore, may not be appointed town assessor by the board. 1969 Op St Compt No. 69-951.

91. —Receivers of taxes

A prohibited conflict of interest does not arise where a town receiver of taxes submits a claim for payment in connection with accounting services rendered to a town water district. 1967 Op St Compt No. 67-1035.

There is no legal prohibition against holding the position of business manager of the town purchasing department by the deputy receiver of taxes. 1968 Op St Compt No. 68-425.

92. —Village employment

A Town Justice may be appointed as an Acting Police Justice for a village located in the town even though he is a contractor who removes snow for the village and does backhoeing at the village dump. 1970 NY Ops Atty Gen May 19 (Informal), 1970 N.Y. AG LEXIS 76.

A Town supervisor may serve concurrently as a village clerk in a village located within the town. 1979 NY Ops Atty Gen Sept 14 (Informal), 1979 N.Y. AG LEXIS 43.

This article does not preclude a Deputy Town Attorney from assuming the concurrent office of member of the Village Zoning Board of Appeals located within the Town he serves; but should an instance of conflict arise, the public attorney must avoid same. 1979 NY Ops Atty Gen May 31 (Informal), 1979 N.Y. AG LEXIS 114.

There is no legal prohibition against the retaining of a town councilman, as an independent contractor, by a village situated within the town, for the purpose of rendering advice to the village on fiscal matters. 1969 Op St Compt No. 69-655.

93. —Other town personnel

The fact that a member of the town's planning and zoning board is a building contractor by occupation in said town does not, per se, create a conflict of interest. 1971 NY Ops Atty Gen Dec 1 (Informal), 1971 N.Y. AG LEXIS 132.

Where substantial conflicts would result, elected or appointed assessor may not serve as real estate broker in municipality where his or her official duties are performed. 1994 NY Ops Atty Gen 94-49 (Informal), 1994 N.Y. AG LEXIS 50.

Person may serve simultaneously as member of zoning board of appeals and member of board of assessment review of town. 1995 NY Ops Atty Gen 95-9 (Informal), 1995 N.Y. AG LEXIS 9.

Positions of assistant district attorney and member of panel of 3 special counsels (to substitute for town attorney, planning board attorney, or zoning board attorney in event any are not available to serve due to conflicts of interests or other disqualifications) are compatible. 1996 NY Ops Atty Gen 96-43 (Informal), 1996 N.Y. AG LEXIS 64.

Positions of town supervisor and director of county veterans agency were compatible, and thus could be held by same person. 1997 NY Ops Atty Gen 97-46 (Informal), 1997 N.Y. AG LEXIS 69.

Person may not hold both positions of master mechanic of fire district and fire district commissioner. 1997 NY Ops Atty Gen 97-44 (Informal), 1997 N.Y. AG LEXIS 74.

Positions of town attorney and director of local development corporation are compatible; office of town board member also is compatible with director position. 1998 NY Ops Atty Gen 98-23 (Informal), 1998 N.Y. AG LEXIS 30.

The same individual may legally render services simultaneously to a town as town engineer, salaried superintendent of a water district, and a non-engineering consultant with respect to water district matters on a fee basis. 1968 Op St Compt No. 68-684.

A town policeman may accept part-time employment with a town water department during his off-duty hours, provided that such employment does not interfere with his official duties. 1969 Op St Compt no. 69-844.

A planning board member is prohibited from receiving or agreeing to receive compensation for engineering services, such as percolation test and other design work for individuals who are subdividing their property, where such subdivision applications in the future could come before the planning board. Although there is no statutory prohibition against a planning board member performing uncompensated work in connection with such matter before the board, the board member should not participate in the discussion or vote on any such matter. 1990 Op St Compt No. 90-28, 1990 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 35.

94. Compatibility of employment for village officers or employees; police

Although there appears to be no statutorily prohibited conflict of interest, the operation of a collection agency by a village police officer is fraught with the possibility of abuse. 1973 NY Ops Atty Gen Sept 24 (Informal), 1973 N.Y. AG LEXIS 111.

Positions of village police officer and member of village zoning board of appeals are compatible. 1999 NY Ops Atty Gen 99-8 (Informal), 1999 N.Y. AG LEXIS 8.

No conflict of interest would arise if a village policeman were to be employed by the village hall custodian. 1967 Op St Compt No. 67-516.

Unless the rules and regulations of a village police department provide otherwise, the holding of the office of part-time village policeman and part-time employee in the village street or water department by the same person may be permissible. 1968 Op St Compt No. 68-578.

95. —Trustees

A village trustee, upon assuming that office, may not retain his employment as a mechanic in that village's highway department, unless his total remuneration for such latter employment does not exceed $100 during any fiscal year. 1970 NY Ops Atty Gen March 25 (Informal), 1970 N.Y. AG LEXIS 54.

The dual holding of the two public offices of town councilman and village patrolman is compatible, as is the dual holding of the public office of village trustee and the public employment of custodian of a town, assuming, of course, that there is no conflict with respect to time. Other questions should be referred to local boards of ethics. 1970 NY Ops Atty Gen Aug 13 (Informal), 1970 N.Y. AG LEXIS 103.

A member of the Board of Trustees of the Village of Greenport may serve as an Assessor or Chairman of a Board of Assessors without compensation if the Village Board of Trustees complies with the provisions of Village Law, Sec. 4-418. 1973 NY Ops Atty Gen May 14 (Informal), 1973 N.Y. AG LEXIS 65.

The spouse of a village clerk-treasurer may be a village trustee of the same village without a conflict of interest resulting. 1981 NY Ops Atty Gen 81-23 (Informal), 1981 N.Y. AG LEXIS 135.

Village trustee may also serve as auxiliary police officer. 1994 NY Ops Atty Gen 94-1 (Informal), 1994 N.Y. AG LEXIS 6.

A village trustee may be employed as a teacher by a central school district, and no disclosure need be made. 1964 Op St Compt No. 64-903.

Statutory conflicts of interest do not arise by reason of membership of town councilmen and village trustees in the Civil Service Employees Association, notwithstanding that it is the bargaining agent for officers and employees of their respective towns and villages. 1968 Op St Compt No. 68-529.

Village trustees may not employ themselves for the purpose of conducting a special appraisal of real property within the village. 1969 Op St Compt No. 69-744.

A village trustee does not have a prohibited conflict of interest when he also serves as Activities Administrator of a joint town/village recreation commission. If he is village employee, disclosure is necessary under General Municipal Law. § 803(1). 1980 Op St Compt No. 80-597.

96. —Others

No conflict of interest or incompatibility arises when a member of a village zoning board of appeals also serves as an officer of a corporation which holds a New York State liquor license. 1976 NY Ops Atty Gen March 3 (Informal), 1976 N.Y. AG LEXIS 73.

One person simultaneously may hold the two village offices of building inspector and village engineer. 1981 NY Ops Atty Gen 81-79 (Informal), 1981 N.Y. AG LEXIS 74.

Village mayor may also serve as chairperson of town zoning board of appeals, but must recuse himself or herself from acting on zoning board of appeals as to matters affecting interests of village or village residents. 1996 NY Ops Atty Gen 96-20 (Informal), 1996 N.Y. AG LEXIS 26.

A Village Board may not employ its mayor for part-time work, such as street repair and mowing lawns. 1964 Op St Compt No. 64-422.

The police justice of a village may enter into a contract of employment as a laborer with the village, but disclosure of the nature and extent of his interest in such a contract is required. 1964 Op St Compt No. 64-814.

The holding by the same person of the positions of chief of a village fire department, part-time village fire station employee and chief fire warden is not permissible. 1968 Op St Compt No. 68-752.

There is no conflict of interest or incompatibility in a member of a village planning board also holding the office of village assessor. 1968 Op St Compt No. 68-880.

There are no provisions of law preventing a person from being a village assessor and simultaneously appraising property in the village for a fee. The holding of these two positions does not, of itself, present a question of ethics or public policy, although, in certain situations, an ethical and public policy issue might be raised. 1968 Op St Compt No. 68-896.

A prohibited interest in contract does not arise should a person retained as publicity agent for a village be appointed deputy village clerk. 1969 Op St Compt No. 68-389.

Where a lessee alleges violation of village building code by lessor with respect to construction work on leased premises, and village attorney, in his private capacity, represents lessor in controversy, whether there is any impropriety or illegality is not a question of municipal law. 1980 Op St Compt No. 80-94.

Positions of assistant town building inspector and part-time building inspector of village are compatible. 1994 NY Ops Atty Gen 94-8 (Informal), 1994 N.Y. AG LEXIS 11.

Specific duties of positions of fire marshal and fire chief in village of Southampton make those positions incompatible so that same person may not simultaneously serve in both positions. 2000 NY Ops Atty Gen 2000-20 (Informal), 2000 N.Y. AG LEXIS 60.

There is no legal prohibition against the same individual being attorney for both a village and a school district which includes the village. However, due regard should be accorded Canon 6 of the Canons of Professional Ethics of the New York State Bar Association. 1968 Op St Compt No. 68-987.

97. Miscellaneous employment conflicts

A collective bargaining agreement between a county and a local chapter of the Civil Service Employees Association (CSEA) was not invalidated by the county negotiator's conflict of interest where the particular conflict (the fact that the negotiator's own salary adjustments would be the same as CSEA members under the agreement being negotiated) was the type of interest exempted from the conflict of interest statute (Gen Mun Law §§ 801). Stettine v County of Suffolk, 105 A.D.2d 109, 482 N.Y.S.2d 818, 1984 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 20681 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1984), aff'd, 66 N.Y.2d 354, 497 N.Y.S.2d 329, 488 N.E.2d 75, 1985 N.Y. LEXIS 17611 (N.Y. 1985).

Under New York Const Art IX §§ 2, 3; Gen Mun §§ 801, 802, 806; Mun Home Rule §§ 2, 10, the Town of East Hampton is not authorized to amend the East Hampton Code of Ethics to require that, once every year, certain of its officers and employees fully disclose and itemize their financial status to include all of their assets and all of their liabilities when there is no apparent or potential conflict of interest in the standard of conduct of such officer or employee as it relates to his employment with the municipality. 1974 NY Ops Atty Gen Nov 12 (Informal), 1974 N.Y. AG LEXIS 173.

The wife of a stockholder in a corporation that holds a liquor license is not thereby disqualified from holding the office of town justice in the Town of Inlet. 1976 NY Ops Atty Gen April 20 (Informal), 1976 N.Y. AG LEXIS 98.

The simultaneous holding of the two positions of clerk of the board of assessors and member of the board of assessors (or sole assessor) by the same person would constitute an incompatibility in function and a conflict of interest and if a clerk is successful in a campaign for election as assessor she must then choose which of the positions she wishes to hold; she cannot hold both at the same time. 1979 NY Ops Atty Gen Oct 18 (Informal), 1979 N.Y. AG LEXIS 24.

A member of a Library Board of Trustees may not simultaneously hold the position of paid custodian of the library. 1979 NY Ops Atty Gen Sept 14 (Informal), 1979 N.Y. AG LEXIS 42.

A member of a Plumber's Examining Board, who also holds the office of plumbing inspector, may receive separate pay for each position, provided that the two positions really are separate. 1964 Op St Compt No. 64-962.

There is no prohibition against the appointment of a town councilman as "liaison" between the town board and the board of education of a school district by which he is employed. 1968 Op St Compt No. 68-291.

There is no conflict of interest or other legal impropriety where an accountant retained by a fire district to prepare its annual financial report is also the owner of a computer firm which is engaged by the district to perform data processing services. 1981 Op St Compt No. 81-373, 1981 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 513.

Member of community college board of trustees who was also president, director and stockholder holding in excess of 5 percent of stock of corporation engaged in printing business would have conflict of interest if college enters into contract with corporation; nonparticipation by trustee and board matters relating to such contracts would not be curative. 1987 Op St Compt No. 87-75, 1987 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 100.

Employment by fire district of professional engineer as independent contractor to prepare plans and specifications, and to supervise work, on construction project when engineer also is one-half owner of construction firm which may bid on building project presents possible violations of ethical and professional conduct standards and of competitive bidding statute. 1989 Op St Compt No. 89-12, 1989 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 15.

A member of a public library board of trustees does not have an interest in a contract between the library and an architectural firm which employs the board member's daughter, but the board member should recuse himself or herself from any discussions and votes on matters relating to the contract. A public library may adopt a code of ethics which should provide standards of conduct in relation to, among other things, contracts between the library and firms which employ relatives of library officers and employees. 1991 Op St Compt No. 91-26, 1991 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 24.

A member of a community college board of trustees would have a prohibited conflict of interest if he should be retained, as an independent contractor, to serve as an adjunct professor. 1981 Op St Compt No. 81-93, 1981 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 798.

Notes to Unpublished Decisions

57. Miscellaneous matters

Unpublished decision: Although title to Smallacre was taken by the company, as plaintiff was the sole owner of the company, he had an interest in the transaction. Accordingly, N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 801 was implicated. Lexjac, LLC v Bd. of Trs. of the Inc. Vill. of Muttontown, 708 Fed. Appx. 722, 2017 U.S. App. LEXIS 17439 (2d Cir. N.Y. 2017).

Unpublished decision: Even if plaintiff recused himself from the vote, he was in a position to influence the Board's decision by virtue of his village board membership. Thus, his recusal did not cure the violation. Lexjac, LLC v Bd. of Trs. of the Inc. Vill. of Muttontown, 708 Fed. Appx. 722, 2017 U.S. App. LEXIS 17439 (2d Cir. N.Y. 2017).

§ 802. Exceptions

The provisions of section eight hundred one of this chapter shall not apply to:

1. a. The designation of a bank or trust company as a depository, paying agent, registration agent or for investment of funds of a municipality except when the chief fiscal officer, treasurer, or his deputy or employee, has an interest in such bank or trust company; provided, however, that where designation of a bank or trust company outside the municipality would be required because of the foregoing restriction, a bank or trust company within the municipality may nevertheless be so designated;

b. A contract with a person, firm, corporation or association in which a municipal officer or employee has an interest which is prohibited solely by reason of employment as an officer or employee thereof, if the remuneration of such employment will not be directly affected as a result of such contract and the duties of such employment do not directly involve the procurement, preparation or performance of any part of such contract;

c. The designation of a newspaper, including but not limited to an official newspaper, for the publication of any notice, resolution, ordinance or other proceeding where such publication is required or authorized by law;

d. The purchase by a municipality of real property or an interest therein, provided the purchase and the consideration therefor is approved by order of the supreme court upon petition of the governing board;

e. The acquisition of real property or an interest therein, through condemnation proceedings according to law;

f. A contract with a membership corporation or other voluntary nonprofit corporation or association including, but not limited to, rural electric cooperatives. For purposes of this paragraph, the term "rural electric cooperative" shall have the same meaning as the term "cooperative" as defined in subdivision (a) of section two of the rural electric cooperative law;

g. The sale of bonds and notes pursuant to section 60.10 of the local finance law;

h. A contract in which a municipal officer or employee has an interest if such contract was entered into prior to the time he was elected or appointed as such officer or employee, but this paragraph shall in no event authorize a renewal of any such contract;

i. Employment of a duly licensed physician as school physician for a school district upon authorization by a two-thirds vote of the board of education of such school district, notwithstanding the fact that such physician shall have an interest, as defined in section eight hundred one of this chapter, in such employment.

j. Purchases or public work by a municipality, other than a county, located wholly or partly within a county with a population of two hundred thousand or less pursuant to a contract in which a member of the governing body or board has a prohibited interest, where:

(1) the member of the governing body or board is elected and serves without salary;

(2) the purchases, in the aggregate, are less than five thousand dollars in one fiscal year and the governing body or board has followed its procurement policies and procedures adopted in accordance with the provisions of section one hundred four-b of this chapter and the procurement process indicates that the contract is with the lowest dollar offer;

(3) the contract for the purchases or public work is approved by resolution of the body or board by the affirmative vote of each member of the body or board except the interested member who shall abstain.

2. a. A contract with a corporation in which a municipal officer or employee has an interest by reason of stockholdings when less than five per centum of the outstanding stock of the corporation is owned or controlled directly or indirectly by such officer or employee;

b. A contract for the furnishing of public utility services when the rates or charges therefor are fixed or regulated by the public service commission;

c. A contract for the payment of a reasonable rental of a room or rooms owned or leased by an officer or employee when the same are used in the performance of his official duties and are so designated as an office or chamber;

d. A contract for the payment of a portion of the compensation of a private employee of an officer when such employee performs part time service in the official duties of the office;

e. A contract in which a municipal officer or employee has an interest if the total consideration payable thereunder, when added to the aggregate amount of all consideration payable under contracts in which such person had an interest during the fiscal year, does not exceed the sum of seven hundred fifty dollars.

f. A contract with a member of a private industry council established in accordance with the federal job training partnership act or any firm, corporation or association in which such member holds an interest, provided the member discloses such interest to the council and the member does not vote on the contract.

Editor's Notes: Laws 1964, ch 946, §§ 1 and 13–17, provide as follows:

Section 1. Declaration of policy and purpose. As government becomes increasingly complex, as our democratic processes draw citizens from every walk of life, there is increasing need for known standards of ethical conduct as a guide for public officers. These standards must rest primarily on personal integrity and on community vigilance: law cannot in itself create moral fiber, nor can law quicken the civic conscience. In support of these basic standards, it is the purpose of this chapter to define areas of conflicts of interest in municipal transactions, leaving to each community the expression of its own code of ethics.

The need for the statute does not spring from widespread malfeasance on the part of municipal officers; rather, the Legislature recognizes their integrity as a group, their culpability in only a few instances. But lest the few brand the many, the discernment of the offending case must be made certain, its elimination sure. Existing law is too complex, too inconsistent, too overgrown with exceptions, for such a clarity of understanding to be possible. Basic concepts must be retained, but something more than recodification is needed.

There is another and equally important objective: a formula of conduct which is not only clear but reasonable, one which will permit governmental employees to share the normal benefits of the democratic society and economy they serve. If government is to attract and hold competent administrators, public service must not require a complete divesting of all proprietary interests. Real conflict must be rooted out, without condemning the inconsequential.

The chapter, then, has a trinity of purposes: to protect the public from municipal contracts influenced by avaricious officers, to protect innocent public officers from unwarranted assaults on their integrity and to encourage each community to adopt an appropriate code of ethics to supplement this chapter. The Legislature declares that each purpose is a matter of State concern and adopts the following chapter accordingly, with the intention that it shall be the generic law in relation to conflicts of interest in municipal transactions, not to be superseded by local law of any municipality subject to its provisions.

§ 13. Laws superseded. The provisions of article eighteen of the general municipal law, as added by this act, shall supersede any local law, charter, ordinance, resolution, rule or regulation of any municipality to the extent that such local law, charter, ordinance, resolution, rule or regulation is inconsistent with the provisions thereof. No local law, ordinance, resolution, rule or regulation shall modify or dispense with any provision of article eighteen of the general municipal law, as added by this act; provided, however, that nothing herein contained shall prohibit a code of ethics adopted pursuant thereto from supplementing the provisions of this act.

§ 14. Pending actions and proceedings. No action or proceeding pending at the time when this act shall take effect shall be affected by any provision of this act, but the same may be prosecuted, defended or enforced as if this act had not been enacted.

§ 15. Existing rights and remedies preserved. No existing right or remedy of any character shall be lost, impaired or affected by reason of this act, nor shall the validity of any action taken by any public official under the law in force immediately prior to the time this act shall take effect be affected by the enactment of this act.

§ 16. Laws repealed. Of the laws enumerated in the schedule hereto annexed, that portion specified in the last column is hereby repealed.

Repeal Notes: [1977, ch 28] Paragraph b of subdivision 2 of Section 802 of the General Municipal Law, repealed by this act, provided that contracts pursuant to Article 11 of the Mental Hygiene Law (entitled "Local and Unified Services") be excepted from the provisions of section 801 of the General Municipal Law which prohibits conflicts of interest by municipal officers or employees.

42. Miscellaneous

1. Generally

A county legislator does not have a statutory interest in a contract between the county and a corporation of which his spouse is a major stockholder, when he is an employee of the corporation, provided section 802(1)(b) is applicable. There is an apparent tendency for courts to liberally construe Article 18 and hold municipal officers and employees strictly accountable for conduct which, although not literally prohibited by the Article, is borderline. 1979 Op St Compt No. 79-868.

In connection with the state comptroller's authority to oversee the accounts of political subdivisions, the comptroller may request officers and employees of a city to complete a form listing certain outside employment and business interests in order for the comptroller to determine the possible existence of conflicts of interest. 1991 Op St Compt No. 91-60, 1992 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 2.

A contract between a city and a church would not be prohibited on the basis of a councilman's membership in the church because contracts between municipalities and not-for-profit corporations, such as churches, are excepted from the conflict of interest provisions of the General Municipal Law. The conflict of interest statutes do not require the councilman to abstain from voting on the authorization for such contract but he may be required to do so by the local Code of Ethics or by local rules of procedure. 1983 Op St Compt No. 83-112, 1983 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 372.

2. Designation of depository; municipal official as member of bank advisory board

No conflict of interest results from the designation of a bank as a depository of a county sewer district even though one member of said district is also a member of the Advisory Board of a branch of said bank and another member of said district is the President in charge of a branch of said bank, provided that neither of them is the chief fiscal officer, treasurer, or his deputy or employee of the sewer district. However, disclosure of interest must be made in accordance with General Municipal Law, § 803. 1972 NY Ops Atty Gen Nov 2 (Informal), 1972 N.Y. AG LEXIS 154.

A prohibited conflict of interest does not occur when a village board designates a bank as the depository of village funds, notwithstanding the membership of a trustee on the bank's advisory board. Disclosure, however, is necessary. 1968 Op St Compt No. 68-323.

A town councilman, who is a member of the advisory board of a bank, does not have a prohibited interest in the designation of the bank as a depository of town funds. 1979 Op St Compt No. 79-427.

3. Official as employee of bank

Employee of bank with title of Assistant Cashier is not eligible for position of Treasurer of School District where bank has been named depository of funds for the school district and there is another eligible banking institution located within the district. 1966 NY Ops Atty Gen Oct 4 (Informal), 1966 N.Y. AG LEXIS 125.

A town may designate a bank as depository in which the town attorney is a director, stockholder and bank attorney on an annual retainer. 1965 Op St Compt No. 65-136.

A bank may not be designated as depository of funds of a joint public hospital in which the hospital treasurer has an interest by reason of employment as assistant cashier and manager of the local branch. 1965 Op St Compt No. 65-413.

There is no prohibited conflict of interest where a school district, the treasurer of which is employed by a bank as a bank teller, designates such bank as depository of school district funds, sells bonds and notes to the bank and otherwise transacts business with said bank, provided the duties of treasurer, as a bank employee, do not directly involve the procurement, preparation or performance of the contract between the bank and the school district and her remuneration as an employee will not be directly affected as a result of such transactions. 1967 Op St Compt No. 67-304.

Where there is no bank or trust company located in a town, the town board may designate a bank as depository even though the supervisor owns stock in the bank and is employed by the bank, provided that his stock ownership is less than five per cent of outstanding stock, his remuneration is not affected as a result of the designation and his duties as a bank officer or employee do not involve the procurement, preparation or performance of the contract. 1968 Op St Compt No. 68-223.

A town may designate a bank as depository of town funds, where the town supervisor is an assistant cashier of such bank. 1972 Op St Compt No. 72-9.

A county attorney who is director, counsel and stockholder of a bank does not have a prohibited interest where the bank acts as a depository of county funds or purchases county obligations pursuant to Local Finance Law, § 60.10. He would have a prohibited interest in all other transactions between the county and the bank. 1978 Op St Compt No. 78-306.

A person who is employed by a bank which is designated as the depository of the funds of a BOCES would have a prohibited conflict of interest if he should serve as treasurer of BOCES unless an exception contained in section 802 is applicable. 1979 Op St Compt No. 79-500, 1979 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 167.

4. —Official as officer or director of bank

A town may designate as a depository for its funds a bank in which a town councilman is an officer, director and stockholder and may also sell bonds and notes to such bank within the limitations of Local Finance Law, § 60.10. 1964 NY Ops Atty Gen Nov 20 (Informal), 1964 N.Y. AG LEXIS 155.

No conflict of interest results from the designation of a bank as a depository of a county sewer district even though one member of said district is also a member of the Advisory Board of a branch of said bank and another member of said district is the President in charge of a branch of said bank, provided that neither of them is the chief fiscal officer, treasurer, or his deputy or employee of the sewer district. However, disclosure of interest must be made in accordance with General Municipal Law, § 803. 1972 NY Ops Atty Gen Nov 2 (Informal), 1972 N.Y. AG LEXIS 154.

A prohibited interest in a contract does not result where a member of the Rochester Housing Authority is a vice-president of a local commercial bank and the Authority makes deposits with that bank from time to time or places in a certificate of deposit certain funds of the Authority in that bank if that particular bank is the highest bidder. 1975 NY Ops Atty Gen March 27 (Informal), 1975 N.Y. AG LEXIS 100.

A prohibited conflict of interest would arise if a town of the second class were to designate as a depository of town funds a bank of which the appointed deputy town supervisor is an officer and stockholder, unless it were the only bank in the town. 1965 Op St Compt No. 65-20.

A town may designate a bank as depository in which the town attorney is a director, stockholder and bank attorney on an annual retainer. 1965 Op St Compt No. 65-136.

Where a member of a school district board of education is an officer of a bank and employed in the main office thereof, he does not have a prohibited interest in the designation by the school district of a branch office of such bank as the depository of district funds. 1977 Op St Compt No. 77-504.

A county attorney who is director, counsel and stockholder of a bank does not have a prohibited interest where the bank acts as a depository of county funds or purchases county obligations pursuant to Local Finance Law, § 60.10. He would have a prohibited interest in all other transactions between the county and the bank. 1978 Op St Compt No. 78-306.

Except for the applicability of one or more of the exceptions contained in section 802, a town councilman who is also the vice-president and branch manager of a bank would have a prohibited interest in any contracts between the town and the bank. 1982 Op St Compt No. 82-48, 1982 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 674.

Town supervisor who is director of bank has prohibited interest in designation of bank as town depository unless exception in CLS Gen Mun L § 802(1)(a) applies; exception does not apply if only reason town could not designate another bank within town as depository is because other bank refused to comply with town's preferred policy of requiring securities pledged as collateral to be held by third party custodian; town may sell obligations to bank of which town supervisor is director only in accordance with CLS Loc Fin L § 60.10. 1989 Op St Compt No. 89-4, 1989 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 7.

Where the president of a central school district board of education is a director of a bank, a prohibited interest in contract does not occur when the district (1) designates the bank as a depository and (2) sells obligations to the bank in accordance with Local Finance Law, § 60.10. 1972 Op St Compt No. 72-747.

5. —Official as stockholder of bank

A town may designate as a depository for its funds a bank in which a town councilman is an officer, director and stockholder and may also sell bonds and notes to such bank within the limitations of Local Finance Law, § 60.10. 1964 NY Ops Atty Gen Nov 20 (Informal), 1964 N.Y. AG LEXIS 155.

Where there is more than one bank in a union free school district, holding of stock by the treasurer of the school district as custodian for her infant children in one such bank precludes it from being designated depository for school district funds. 1964 Op St Compt No. 64-741.

A prohibited conflict of interest would arise if a town of the second class were to designate as a depository of town funds a bank of which the appointed deputy town supervisor is an officer and stockholder, unless it were the only bank in the town. 1965 Op St Compt No. 65-20.

A town may designate a bank as depository in which the town attorney is a director, stockholder and bank attorney on an annual retainer. 1965 Op St Compt No. 65-136.

Where there is no bank or trust company located in a town, the town board may designate a bank as depository even though the supervisor owns stock in the bank and is employed by the bank, provided that his stock ownership is less than five per cent of outstanding stock, his remuneration is not affected as a result of the designation and his duties as a bank officer or employee do not involve the procurement, preparation or performance of the contract. 1968 Op St Compt No. 68-223.

A prohibited interest in contract does not occur where: (a) A town supervisor owns less than 5% of the stock of a bank which is a depository of town funds; (b) The wife of the supervisor is part-owner of a newspaper in which the town publishes legal notices. 1972 Op St Compt No. 72-4.

A county attorney who is director, counsel and stockholder of a bank does not have a prohibited interest where the bank acts as a depository of county funds or purchases county obligations pursuant to Local Finance Law, § 60.10. He would have a prohibited interest in all other transactions between the county and the bank. 1978 Op St Compt No. 78-306.

When a village attorney is a director and stockholder of a bank, he has a conflict of interest if the bank should purchase a statutory installment bond from the village only if he has any of the powers and duties set forth in section 801(1) in relation to the transaction. If he has a conflict of interest, the sale nevertheless would be permissible if made pursuant to Local Finance Law, § 60.10 and the restrictions set forth therein. 1985 Op St Compt No. 85-34, 1985 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 108.

Prospective appointee to fill vacancy in office of town supervisor who is officer and stockholder of bank would have prohibited interest in designation of bank as town depository, renewal of town obligations presently held by bank, and future sale of obligations by town to bank, unless one or more exceptions of CLS Gen Mun § 802 is applicable. 1992 Op St Compt No. 92-54.

6. —Other interests in depository

A prohibited interest does not arise where a village invests municipal funds in a bank which employs the spouse of the clerk-treasurer, provided it is the only bank for such investment located within the village. 1968 Op St Compt No. 68-800.

7. Municipal official as contracting party; county official

The sale of hearing aids by a County Legislator to the Department of Social Services of his county, the aggregate value of which during the fiscal year exceeds the sum of $100, results in a prohibited conflict of interest. 1972 NY Ops Atty Gen May 1 (Informal), 1972 N.Y. AG LEXIS 92.

Where a town rents snow removal equipment to a county for use on state highways and the town superintendent of highways operates such equipment and is compensated strictly as a county employee, he is entitled to retain such compensation, although such arrangement may constitute a prohibited interest in the prime contract between the town and the county. 1965 Op St Compt No. 65-154.

A prohibited conflict of interest arises where a member of county board of supervisors, who is also a pharmacist, submits vouchers to the county for payment based upon purchases made at his store by recipients of county welfare and assistance, when the county has the appointive offices of county commissioner of social services and county auditor. 1967 Op St Compt No. 67-1012.

Member of board of fire commissioners of fire district located within county having population of more than 200,000 who is officer and owner of $33^1/_3$ percent of stock of corporation would have prohibited interest in contract for snow plowing and lawn maintenance between fire district and corporation, even if fire district solicits bids for work, corporation is sole bidder, commissioner recuses himself from discussions relative to contract and abstains from voting on matters relating to contract. 2000 Op St Compt No. 2000-7, 2000 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 20.

8. —Town official

A town planning board member does not have a prohibited conflict of interests in the purchase, by the town, of paving materials from a firm in which the planning board member is a partner. 1966 NY Ops Atty Gen Dec 14 (Informal), 1966 N.Y. AG LEXIS 155.

A justice of the peace of a town of the second class may sell gravel in its natural state and condition to the town upon approval of the consideration by the Supreme Court. 1964 Op St Compt No. 64-625.

Where a town rents snow removal equipment to a county for use on state highways and the town superintendent of highways operates such equipment and is compensated strictly as a county employee, he is entitled to retain such compensation, although such arrangement may constitute a prohibited interest in the prime contract between the town and the county. 1965 Op St Compt No. 65-154.

A town supervisor has a prohibited interest in any insurance contracts between the town and an insurance agency which he acquires, where he receives a material or pecuniary benefit as a result of such contracts, and he has the powers and duties enumerated in General Municipal Law, § 801 with respect thereto. 1973 Op St Compt No. 73-979.

Appointment of town supervisor's business partner to office of town comptroller, by itself, did not constitute prohibited conflict of interest, but supervisor and comptroller would have prohibited interest in contracts between town and partnership, unless exception in CLS Gen Mun § 802 applied; compensated appearances, or performance of other compensated services on behalf of clients of partnership in connection with matters before town may violate CLS Gen Mun § 805-a, depending on particular circumstances. 1998 Op St Compt No. 98-3, 1998 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 3.

9. —Other officials

A prohibited conflict of interest exists where a village purchases supplies from a business owned by a member of the board of trustees in excess of $100 during any one fiscal year. This Department has no authority to provide an exception to that statute. 1968 Op St Compt No. 68-536.

Where the fire department chief engineer is responsible for the servicing of fire district vehicles, a prohibited conflict of interest occurs when such vehicles are serviced at a service station owned by him. 1969 Op St Compt No. 69-942.

10. Municipal official as officer or employee of contracting party; city officials

No prohibited conflict of interest exists where a mayor is employed, as a salesclerk and bookkeeper, in a hardware store, which transacts business with this city in the absence of a showing that his remuneration is directly affected or that his duties directly involve the effecting of such contracts on the store's behalf. 1970 NY Ops Atty Gen Feb 16 (Informal), 1970 N.Y. AG LEXIS 32.

City councilman who is employee of corporation does not have conflict of interest in relation to contract between city and corporation when his remuneration is not directly affected as result of such contract and duties of his employment do not directly involve procurement, preparation or performance of any part of such contract. 1987 Op St Compt No. 87-91, 1987 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 143.

Fire district commissioner who is also president and chief stockholder of automotive dealership would have conflict of interest if fire district vehicles are serviced by his company unless pertinent exceptions in CLS Gen Mun § 802 apply; extension for voting on rules relating to contracts between district and his company would not be curative. 1988 Op St Compt No. 88-8, 1988 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 8.

City attorney who is officer, employee, director or shareholder of law firm which is professional corporation and which represents city in law suit would have prohibited interest in contract between firm and city if city attorney has power or duty to negotiate, prepare, authorize or approve contract, or to appoint someone with those powers, unless exceptions in CLS Gen Mun § 802 are applicable. 1988 Op St Compt No. 88-75, 1988 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 68.

A prohibited interest in contract exists where the mayor of the City of North Tonawanda is employed by a hardware store with which the city does business. Whether the exception provided by section 802(1)(b) is applicable depends upon the nature of his duties as a store employee. 1969 Op St Compt No. 69-402.

11. —County officials

No prohibited conflict of interest exists in the following situations: (1) A member of the board of supervisors of a county is vice-president of a corporation from which the county purchases materials, and (2) A member of the planning department of a county is also an employee of a firm which contracts with the county; if in both of the above situations, the remuneration of the municipal employee and/or officer is not directly affected as a result of the contracts of their employer (firm and corporation) with the municipality, and the duties of their employment do not directly involve the procurement, preparation, or performance of any part of such contracts, provided their duties with the firm or corporation do not normally include such functions. (3) The wife of the head of the county planning department is employed by a planning firm which does business with the county, if the remuneration of the wife is not directly affected as a result of the contracts of her employer with the municipality and the duties of her employment do not directly involve the procurement, preparation, or performance of any part of such contracts, provided her duties with the firm do not normally include such functions. 1967 Op St Compt No. 67-513.

A prohibited conflict of interest occurs where a pharmacist employed part time by a county welfare department checks prescriptions submitted by a pharmacy by which he is employed and which participates in the Medicaid program. 1968 Op St Compt No. 68-670.

A prohibited conflict of interest arises where the board of managers of a county public general hospital contracts with a bank for the rental of personal property therefrom, when the president of the said board is also a vice-president of the bank, unless the facts are such to render applicable section 802(1)(b). 1969 Op St Compt No. 69-44.

A prohibited conflict of interest occurs where a member of a county industrial development agency, who is also the attorney for a corporation, represents the corporation in connection with the negotiation of a contract with the industrial development agency. The county code of ethics is inapplicable to the members, officers and employees of the county industrial development agency. 1973 Op St Compt No. 73-919.

A county legislator, who is an employee of one of two family-owned and closely held corporations which have common business interests, has a prohibited interest in contracts between the county and either corporation. Whether the exception contained in General Municipal Law, § 802(1)(b) is applicable depends upon pertinent facts. 1975 Op St Compt No. 75-84.

A member of a county board of supervisors who is employed by the county extension service association does not have a prohibited interest in contracts between the county and the association. 1975 Op St Compt No. 75-736.

A county legislator does not have a statutory interest in a contract between the county and a corporation of which his spouse is a major stockholder, when he is an employee of the corporation, provided section 802(1)(b) is applicable. There is an apparent tendency for courts to liberally construe Article 18 and hold municipal officers and employees strictly accountable for conduct which, although not literally prohibited by the Article, is borderline. 1979 Op St Compt No. 79-868.

A vice-president and treasurer of a corporation, who is also a member of the Steuben County Industrial Development Agency, does not have a prohibited interest in a lease between the corporation and the Agency when he refrains from signing corporate checks in payment of the rental. 1980 Op St Compt No. 80-422.

Generally, elective county corner, who is also funeral director, would not have prohibited interest in contract if he or she submitted bills to county department of social services for payment of costs of burying deceased public assistance recipient; 10 Opns St Compt 1954, p 217 superseded to extent inconsistent with this opinion. 1998 Op St Compt No. 98-5, 1998 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 5.

Unless additional pertinent facts necessitate a different conclusion, it would seem that a county supervisor, who is also the vice-president of a corporation, would have a prohibited conflict of interest in a construction contract between the corporation and the county when he is entitled to share in a corporate deferred profit-sharing compensation program. 1981 Op St Compt No. 81-188, 1981 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 705.

12. —Town officials

A prohibited interest in contract exists where a town board purchases a vehicle from a company which employs a member of the board as a salesman, unless the exception afforded by section 802(1)(b) is applicable. 1968 Op St Compt No. 68-810.

A prohibited interest in contract arises where a justice of the peace of a town of the second class is employed as the private law associate of the attorney retained by the town on a contractual basis to render legal services. 1969 Op St Compt No. 69-54.

Where a town of the second class does business with a corporation which employs the town justice and his spouse, whether the interest of the justice in town contracts with such corporation is prohibited depends upon the applicability of the statute. 1969 Op St Compt No. 69-659.

Subject to certain exceptions contained in General Municipal Law, § 802, whether a town water and sewer superintendent has a prohibited interest in contracts for the installation of water and sewer connections between the town and the firm by which he is employed depends upon whether inspection of such work by him constitutes approval thereof or is a prerequisite to payment therefor by the town. 1975 Op St Compt No. 75-48.

A member of a town planning board, who is a partner in an engineering firm, has a prohibited conflict of interest in contracts between his firm and the town for engineering services in relation to water and sewer projects, when the planning board approves such projects, if that action constitutes approval of the work done by the firm or is prerequisite to payment by the town for the services performed. 1980 Op St Compt No. 80-790, 1980 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 213.

If a superintendent of a town water district, who is also the president of a firm which supplies propane gas to the district, has a prohibited interest in contracts between his firm and the town, the fact that the water district is situate on an island apart from the mainland of the town and cannot obtain gas from another supplier, does not create a circumstance which provides an exception to the prohibited interest. 1980 Op St Compt No. 80-586.

A town supervisor, who is an employee of an incorporated insurance agency which sells insurance to the town, does not have a prohibited interest in the contracts of insurance when her duties as an employee do not directly involve the procurement, preparation or performance of the insurance contracts and her remuneration is not directly affected as a result of such contracts. 1982 Op St Compt No. 82-12, 1982 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 712.

A councilman on the town board who is the secretary/treasurer and a major stockholder of a truck center business has a prohibited conflict of interest in contracts between the town and the truck center business involving the purchase, by the town, of highway supplies unless the total consideration payable under the contract, when added to the aggregate amount of all consideration payable under contracts in which the councilman had an interest during the fiscal year does not exceed $100. 1983 Op St Compt No. 83-95, 1983 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 391.

13. —Village officials

The prohibition of these sections is not applicable to a village trustee who is only a salaried employee of a corporation which contracts with the village. 1966 NY Ops Atty Gen Apr 7 (Informal), 1966 N.Y. AG LEXIS 54.

A village trustee may be employed by a hardware store contracting with the village provided that his salary as such employee will not be directly affected as a result of such contract and provided that the duties of such employment do not directly involve the procurement, preparation or performance of any part of such contract. However, disclosure of such employment must be made by the village trustee in accordance with General Municipal Law, § 803. 1971 NY Ops Atty Gen Feb 24 (Informal), 1971 N.Y. AG LEXIS 45.

A vice president or stockholder of more than five percent of the outstanding stock of a cable T.V. company granted a franchise by the village has a conflicting interest prohibited by General Municipal Law, § 801, if he were also to serve as village trustee. There would be no conflict if he were merely an employee of the corporation and received remuneration pursuant to General Municipal Law, § 802, subdivision 1(b). 1978 NY Ops Atty Gen Nov 8 (Informal), 1978 N.Y. AG LEXIS 378.

Village mayor, employed full-time as technical sheriff in county sheriff's department, had conflict of interest in negotiating or voting on proposed contract with county for provision of law enforcement services by sheriff's department to village. 1998 NY Ops Atty Gen 98-34 (Informal), 1998 N.Y. AG LEXIS 31.

There is a prohibited conflict of interest where members of the village board of trustees are shareholders, directors and an officer of the contracting corporation. 1964 Op St Compt No. 64-808.

The board of managers of a village public general hospital may not contract for the purchase of supplies with a corporation of which the mayor is a stockholder and officer except to the extent of $100 in the aggregate during any fiscal year. 1964 Op St Compt No. 64-871.

A prohibited conflict of interest exists where a village trustee is employed by an engineering firm retained to perform services for the village when the trustee's duties, as an employee of the firm, involve performance of some part of the firm-village contract. 1968 Op St Compt No. 68-80.

A prohibited conflict of interest does not arise on behalf of a member of a village planning board where the village contracts to obtain the services of a firm of planning experts by whom the planning board member is employed, provided the planning board does not have the power or duty to do any of the things mentioned in section 801 with respect to the said contract. 1968 Op St Compt No. 68-265.

A prohibited interest in contract arises where an insurance agency (corporation) by which the mayor of a village is employed sells insurance to the village, unless section 802(1)(b) is applicable. 1968 Op St Compt No. 68-719.

The village attorney has a prohibited interest in a contract between the village and a corporation of which he is a director. The interest of a village trustee in the same contract (arising solely by reason of his ownership of corporate stock) is not prohibited where he owns less than five percent of the outstanding stock of the corporation. 1969 Op St Compt No. 69-583-A.

A prohibited conflict of interest arises when a village trustee, an attorney employed by the village attorney participates in his capacity as such associate in any legal matters involving village affairs, on behalf of the village attorney. 1971 Op St Compt No. 71-909.

A village may purchase supplies and equipment from various stores owned by a corporation of which the village justice is an officer and stockholder. 1973 Op St Compt No. 73-805.

A village trustee, who is an employee of an automobile dealership, does not have a prohibited conflict of interest in contracts between the village and the dealer involving the purchase of parts for, and the servicing of, village vehicles, if the exception contained in General Municipal Law, § 802(1)(b) has application. 1980 Op St Compt No. 80-730, 1980 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 212.

Two members of a village board of trustees do not have prohibited conflicts of interest in insurance contracts between the village and an insurance company of which they are officers if, as employees of the company, they have nothing to do with the preparation, procurement or performance of the insurance contracts and their remuneration is not directly affected as a result of the contract. 1980 Op St Compt no. 80-443, 1980 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 269.

There is no prohibited conflict of interest where a village mayor or trustee is employed by an insurance agency and is not, in the course of his employment, directly involved in the procurement, preparation or performance of any insurance contract with the village or will not have his remuneration directly affected by such a contract. Likewise, if the mayor or trustee owns stock in an insurance agency which provides insurance to the village but the extent of such stockholdings are less than five per cent of the outstanding stock, there is no prohibited interest. If the extent of stockholdings exceeds five per cent of the outstanding stock, the interest will not be prohibited provided that the contract was entered into prior to the time the mayor or trustee was elected, and the contract may not be renewed upon expiration. 1981 Op St Compt No. 81-430, 1981 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 454.

There is no prohibited conflict of interest where a village purchases insurance from an insurance company of which a village trustee is an employee, if the trustee's remuneration will not be directly affected by the transaction and, as an employee of the company, the trustee will have nothing to do with the preparation, procurement or performance of the insurance contracts. 1982 St Compt No. 82-234, 1982 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 496.

Village trustee who is officer, employee and stockholder of construction corporation would have prohibited interest in any contract between corporation and village unless (a) his or her stock ownership amounts to less than 5 percent of outstanding stock and (b) is employee and officer of corporation, his or her duties do not involve procurement, preparation or performance of village contracts in his or her remuneration is not affected by such contract; there is no exception to conflict of interest provisions of CLS Gen Mun Art 18 for contracts entered into in emergency situations. 1988 Op St Compt No. 88-23, 1988 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 19.

14. —Other officials

Fact that former commissioner of public works, charged with having conflict of interest in connection with snow plowing contract and failing to disclose such interest, was both an officer and more than five per cent stockholder in corporation which obtained the contract did not bring him within the exemption provision of conflict of interest law where the individual's interest arises by reason of employment as an officer or employee of a firm contracting with municipality since not only would such result lead to an absurdity but argument ignored statutory requirement that the conflict arise "solely" by reason of employment as an officer or employee. People v Speach, 49 A.D.2d 210, 374 N.Y.S.2d 210, 1975 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10626 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1975).

There is no prohibited conflict of interest where a school district, the treasurer of which is employed by a bank as a bank teller, designates such bank as depository of school district funds, sells bonds and notes to the bank and otherwise transacts business with said bank, provided the duties of treasurer, as a bank employee, do not directly involve the procurement, preparation or performance of the contract between the bank and the school district and her remuneration as an employee will not be directly affected as a result of such transactions. 1967 Op St Compt No. 67-304.

A school board member who is president of a corporation does not have a prohibited interest in a contract for the purchase of buses from said corporation if the exception contained in General Municipal Law, § 802(1)(b) is applicable. 1978 Op St Compt No. 78-133.

A member of the board of trustees of a community college has a conflict of interest in any contracts between the college and a bank of which he is a director, president and chief executive officer except to the extent that any of the exceptions enumerated in General Municipal Law, § 802 are applicable. 1983 Op St Compt No. 83-143, 1983 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 341.

Fire district commissioner, who is salaried employee of firm doing business with district, does not have prohibited conflict of interest in purchase contracts between firm and district if exception contained in CLS Gen Mun Law § 802(1)(b) is applicable. 1988 Op St Compt No. 88-56, 1988 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 52.

15. Designation of official newspaper

A prohibited interest in contract does not occur where: (a) A town supervisor owns less than 5% of the stock of a bank which is a depository of town funds; (b) The wife of the supervisor is part owner of a newspaper in which the town publishes legal notices. 1972 Op St Compt No. 72-4.

16. Real estate transactions; municipal purchases

Under General Municipal Law §§ 800, 801, 804, the proposed sale of a building owned by the Town Supervisor of the Town of Crown Point to the Town of Crown Point would constitute a prohibited conflict of interest unless the purchase and the consideration therefor is approved by the Supreme Court upon petition of the Town Board. 1975 NY Ops Atty Gen Feb 10 (Informal), 1975 N.Y. AG LEXIS 71.

The exception contained in section 802(1)(d) of the General Municipal Law does not apply to the purchase by a town of gravel in its natural state unless title to the land in which the gravel is contained is acquired by the town. 1967 Op St Compt No. 67-979.

A village may purchase real property from a village trustee provided the purchase and consideration therefor are approved by the supreme court upon petition by the trustees. 1974 Op St Compt No. 74-269.

17. —Municipal sales

There was conflict of interest when town board member acquired realty in his town at county tax sale and sale was voidable where, although contract of sale in form concerned only county, by implication it also involved town and was within general municipal law precluding municipal officer from having interest in contract with his municipality when he has power or duty to authorize or approve contract or to appoint officer who has such power or duty, inasmuch as town board's action in preparing town budget was part of approval and authorization culminating in county tax sale and town board fixed salary of collecting officer and filled vacancies in that office. Rose v Eichhorst, 42 N.Y.2d 92, 396 N.Y.S.2d 837, 365 N.E.2d 868, 1977 N.Y. LEXIS 2108 (N.Y. 1977).

A county which acquires real property pursuant to Highway Law, § 62 for highway purposes may dispose of property which is no longer necessary for such purposes only to owners of property abutting the highway. This property may be sold to a county officer who is a qualified landowner and who is not a county officer described in General Municipal Law, § 801. 1977 NY Ops Atty Gen April 14 (Informal, 1977 N.Y. AG LEXIS 133.

A town board may not sell a parcel of real property to the town supervisor where the value of the property exceeds $100. 1973 Op St Compt No. 73-803.

Officers and employees of county community college who are also members of board of directors for not-for-profit corporation which intends to purchase real property held by county for community college will have interest in purchase contract for purposes of CLS Gen Mun §§ 800 et seq., and interest must be disclosed as soon as officer or employee has knowledge of prospective interests; however, such interest would not be prohibited. 1988 Op St Compt No. 88-52, 1988 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 48.

18. —Corporate interest in contracting party

A county may purchase real property owned by a membership corporation even though county employees are directors of such membership corporation. 1965 NY Ops Atty Gen Aug 25 (Informal), 1965 N.Y. AG LEXIS 123.

No prohibited conflict of interest arises upon the sale of real property by an Urban Renewal Agency to a corporation of which a member of such Agency is an officer and director but not a shareholder, provided the conditions set forth in § 802(1)(b) are met and disclosure of interest under § 803 is made. In the public interest the person involved herein should not participate in any transaction between the Agency and the corporation. If a County Board of Ethics has been created pursuant to § 808 its advisory opinion should be sought. 1969 NY Ops Atty Gen Dec 2 (Informal), 1969 N.Y. AG LEXIS 106.

A central school district may acquire real property from a corporation in which two members of the law firm which acts as school district attorney are stockholders, and such law firm is attorney for the corporation. Section 803 requires a written disclosure of the nature and extent of the attorneys' interests in the contracts in question. 1965 Op St Compt No. 65-97.

Unless the exception provided by General Municipal Law, § 802(1)(b) is applicable, a member of a school district board of education, who is also an officer of a corporation, would have a prohibited conflict of interest in the sale by the district to the corporation of district real property. 1981 Op St Compt No. 81-65, 1981 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 826.

19. —Interest of spouse or relatives

Only if the appropriate procedures are followed, as set forth in art. 18 of the General Municipal Law, may a town purchase real property from the estate of the mother of the wife of a town councilman. 1964 Op St Compt No. 64-684.

A school district may acquire real property from a corporation, a stockholder of which is the brother of a member of the Board of Education. 1965 Op St Compt No. 65-97.

20. —Miscellaneous

Where a vice-president and treasurer of a corporation authorize payment of rent under a lease, on behalf of his corporation as lessee, to the Steuben County Industrial Department Agency of which he is a member as lessor, by affixing his name to a corporate check, he is directly involved in the performance of the corporation's contract of lease and has a prohibited conflict of interest in the contract. General Municipal Law, § 802(1)(b) is not applicable as an exception to the provision of General Municipal Law, § 801(1) in this case. 1980 Op St Compt No. 80-214.

21. Contract with membership or non-profit corporation; hospitals

Contracts may be made between a voluntary, nonprofit hospital corporation and a county welfare district or county laboratory, although the county judge is an unpaid officer of the hospital corporation. 1960 Op St Compt No. 60-319.

A prohibited interest in contract does not occur where a county pays the cost of medical care for eligible patients under the Social Services Law for services rendered by a non-profit hospital corporation when the county commissioner of social services is a member of its board of directors. 1973 Op St Compt No. 73-37.

A prohibited interest in contract does not occur where a county legislator is an employee of a not-for-profit hospital corporation which provides services to the county pursuant to contract. 1975 Op St Compt No. 75-1273.

County public health commissioner who has real estate partnership with member of not-for-profit corporation that provides home health care services to county would not have prohibited interest in not-for-profit corporation's contract with county, but county should review its code of ethics to ascertain whether it contains any pertinent provisions; further, commissioner should consider recusing himself from performance of functions in connection with award of contract for home health care services, with those functions instead being performed by deputy. 2000 Op St Compt No. 2000-8, 2000 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 21.

Member of county governing board who served as officer of 2 not-for-profit corporations, as well as director of one of those corporations, would have prohibited interest in contracts between county and either corporation, but must disclose any interest he may have in such contract under CLS Gen Mun § 803, and must avoid contravening statutory prohibitions against disclosure of confidential information and compensated appearances before county agencies under CLS Gen Mun § 805-a; furthermore, even if not required by county's code of ethics, county board member should not participate in county board discussions or decisions relating to county contracts with not-for profit corporations for which board member serves as officer, employee or director. 2001 Op St Compt No. 2001-9, 2001 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 9.

County code of ethics may not prohibit county officials from serving as members of boards of not-for-profit agencies with which county contracts (such prohibition would be inconsistent with CLS Gen Mun # 802(l)(f)), but code may prohibit county officials from participating in discussion and vote on contracts with not-for-profit agencies for which they serve. 1992 Op St Compt No. 92-30, 1992 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 17.

Member of county governing board who also serves on board of not-for-profit agency does not have prohibited interest in contract between county and agency, but member must disclose any interest in such contract and should not participate in discussion or vote on contract. 1992 Op St Compt No. 92-30, 1992 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 17.

22. —Other corporations

CLS General Municipal Law § 801 is not violated by collective bargaining agreement between county and county chapter of Civil Service Employees Association despite fact that it was negotiated by county employee at time when local county laws provided that all exempt county employees, including defendant, would be granted same salary adjustments as members of bargaining units of Association, thereby creating in defendant "prohibited interest" in contract that would render it void under CLS General Municipal Law § 804, since Civil Service Employees Association is voluntary nonprofit association within meaning of CLS General Municipal Law § 802(1)(f) and therefore excepted from proscriptions of § 801. Stettine v County of Suffolk, 66 N.Y.2d 354, 497 N.Y.S.2d 329, 488 N.E.2d 75, 1985 N.Y. LEXIS 17611 (N.Y. 1985).

The local chapter of a civil service employees association was a voluntary nonprofit association as defined under Gen Mun Law § 802(1)(f) and was exempt from the conflict of interest provisions of Gen Mun Law § 801. A public sector collective bargaining agreement is not the type of contract covered by Gen Mun Law Art 18. Stettine v County of Suffolk, 105 A.D.2d 109, 482 N.Y.S.2d 818, 1984 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 20681 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1984), aff'd, 66 N.Y.2d 354, 497 N.Y.S.2d 329, 488 N.E.2d 75, 1985 N.Y. LEXIS 17611 (N.Y. 1985).

A county may purchase real property owned by a membership corporation even though county employees are directors of such membership corporation. 1965 NY Ops Atty Gen Aug 25 (Informal), 1965 N.Y. AG LEXIS 123.

Provision of central school district's code of ethics which required members of board of education to recuse themselves from voting on contracts involving "a collective bargaining agreement of the District, when under the employ of another School District and/or having been or being a member of a similar unit," was unlawful because it conflicted with express exemption from conflict of interest coverage found in CLS Gen Mun § 802(1)(f), and because it was unreasonably broad. 1998 Op Comm Ed No. 13,914, 1998 NY Educ. Dept. LEXIS 236.

A county commissioner of health does not have a prohibited interest in contracts between the county and a not-for-profit corporation of which he is a member of the board of directors. However, disclosure is required. 1980 Op St Compt No. 80-73.

Officers and employees of county community college who are also members of board of directors for not-for-profit corporation which intends to purchase real property held by county for community college will have interest in purchase contract for purposes of CLS Gen Mun §§ 800 et seq., and interest must be disclosed as soon as officer or employee has knowledge of prospective interests; however, such interest would not be prohibited. 1988 Op St Compt No. 88-52, 1988 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 48.

A town dog control officer, who has an interest in a not-for-profit corporation which operates an animal shelter, does not have a prohibited conflict of interest in a contract between the corporation and the town which he serves for the lease of space to be used as a dog pound. 1981 Op St Compt No. 81-115, 1981 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 773.

23. Sale of bond or notes; sale by school district

There is no prohibited conflict of interest where a school district, the treasurer of which is employed by a bank as a bank teller, designates such bank as depository of school district funds, sells bonds and notes to the bank and otherwise transacts business with said bank, provided the duties of treasurer, as a bank employee, do not directly involve the procurement, preparation or performance of the contract between the bank and the school district and her remuneration as an employee will not be directly affected as a result of such transactions. 1967 Op St Compt No. 67-304.

Notwithstanding the interest of a school district treasurer in a bank, a school district may sell bonds and notes to such bank pursuant to Section 60.10 of the Local Finance Law. 1967 Op St Compt No. 67-304.

Whether a prohibited interest in contract results where a school district sells notes at private sale to a bank of which a member of the board of education is an officer, depends upon certain facts and circumstances. 1972 Op St Compt No. 72-71.

Section 60.10 of the Local Finance Law controls a private sale of notes by a school district to a bank of which a board of education member is a director, and that section may control a similar sale of notes to a bank of which a board of education member is an officer. 1973 Op St Compt No. 73-52.

Where the president of a central school district board of education is a director of a bank, a prohibited interest in contract does not occur when the district (1) designates the bank as a depository and (2) sells obligations to the bank in accordance with Local Finance Law, § 60.10. 1972 Op St Compt No. 72-747.

24. —Sale by village

A village may sell bonds and notes to a bank at private sale where the Mayor owns less than five per centum of the stock in the bank. 1966 Op St Compt No. 66-99.

The village may sell bonds and notes to such bank at private sale within certain limitations as to interest rate and amount, if, in addition to being a stockholder, the Mayor is also a director of the bank. 1966 Op St Compt No.. 66-99.

A prohibited conflict of interest arises where a village sells notes to a bank which employs the spouse of the clerk-treasurer, unless section 802(1)(b) is applicable. In any case, section 802(1)(g) provides a limited exception. 1968 Op St Compt No. 68-800.

25. —Sale by other municipalities

A town may designate as a depository for its funds a bank in which a town councilman is an officer, director and stockholder and may also sell bonds and notes to such bank within the limitations of Local Finance Law, § 60.10. 1964 NY Ops Atty Gen Nov 20 (Informal), 1964 N.Y. AG LEXIS 155.

A prohibited interest in contract exists when a city auditor, or his spouse, minor children or other dependents purchase city obligations directly from the city and when he has any of the powers or duties enumerated in General Municipal Law, § 801(1) with respect to the issuance and sale of such bonds and notes. A somewhat different concept applies when he purchases city obligations from a bank which has purchased such obligations in the first instance from the city. 1976 Op St Compt No. 76-610.

26. Contract made prior to election or appointment; lease agreements

A prohibited conflict of interest would arise should a county renew an agreement for the lease of premises for county purposes where the property is owned by a member of the board of supervisors, even though the lease was executed prior to the election of the said supervisor. 1968 Op St Compt No. 68-553.

A town councilman from whom the town rents a building on a month to month tenancy, does not have a prohibited conflict of interest where the tenancy commenced prior to his election and has continued without interruption. 1980 Op St Compt No. 80-250, 1980 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 345.

Attorney who is appointed town attorney would not have prohibited interest in pre-existing contract between town and his or her law firm, but attorney would be required to disclose his or her interest in contract, and attorney should also recuse him or herself from any matter affecting his or her law firm, with those functions instead being performed by deputy, if any. 2000 Op St Compt No. 2000-22, 2000 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 26.

27. —Other contracts

No prohibited conflict of interest arises when an officer of an insurance firm, from which firm a town has purchased insurance policies, is subsequently elected and takes office as town supervisor. However, any renewal of such policies or the purchase of new or other policies from such firm during his tenure of office would be illegal. 1968 Op St Compt No. 68-112.

A village trustee who entered into a contract with the village for professional surveying services prior to his election as trustee, does not have a prohibited conflict of interest in that contract. Disclosure is required. 1980 Op St Compt No. 80-233, 1980 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 331.

Where newly elected town board member has interest in contract between town and board member, as sole proprietor, under which board member picks up road salt and delivers salt to town storage facility, if contract for road salt delivery between town and town board member were entered into before board member was elected to office, exception in CLS Gen Mun § 802(1)(h) applies and interest is not prohibited; however, board member would be required to disclose such interest in accordance with CLS Gen Mun § 803. 2008 Op St Compt No. 2008-2, 2008 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 2.

Even if not required by town's code of ethics, board member who has existing contract with town for road salt delivery should not participate in town board discussions or decisions relating to such hauling contract, including but not limited to, discussions or decisions pertaining to auditing claims under contract. 2008 Op St Compt No. 2008-2, 2008 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 2.

Newly elected town board member would have prohibited interest in renewals of existing contract for road salt delivery, or in subsequent contracts between town and himself or herself as sole proprietor, unless another exception in CLS Gen Mun § 802 were to apply. 2008 Op St Compt No. 2008-2, 2008 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 2.

28. Stock ownership in contracting corporation; town officials

A member of a town board may not have an interest in a contract of insurance with such town except where the total consideration payable thereunder, together with all other considerations payable under contracts with such town in which he has an interest during the fiscal year, does not exceed $100.00; or where his interest is only that of a stockholder owning or controlling less than 5— of the stock of the corporation entering into such contract with the town. In any event, disclosure under § 803 must be made. 1969 NY Ops Atty Gen July 16 (Informal), 1969 N.Y. AG LEXIS 65.

A contracting firm, in which a town police commissioner is the majority stockholder, may bid upon, or accept local contracts upon which no bid is required, so long as the commissioner does not have a municipal function defined in General Municipal Law, § 801. Compliance should be had with the applicable code of ethics of the town established by General Municipal Law § 806. Interpretations of the code may be requested of the board of ethics of Westchester County if such a board has been established under General Municipal Law § 808. 1974 NY Ops Atty Gen Nov 18 (Informal), 1974 N.Y. AG LEXIS 180.

Fire district commissioner who is also president and chief stockholder of automotive dealership would have conflict of interest if fire district vehicles are serviced by his company unless pertinent exceptions in CLS Gen Mun § 802 apply; extension for voting on rules relating to contracts between district and his company would not be curative. 1988 Op St Compt No. 88-8, 1988 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 8.

29. —Village officials

A vice president or stockholder of more than five percent of the outstanding stock of a cable T.V. company granted a franchise by the village has a conflicting interest prohibited by General Municipal Law, § 801, if he were also to serve as village trustee. There would be no conflict if he were merely an employee of the corporation and received remuneration pursuant to General Municipal Law, § 802, subdivision 1(b). 1978 NY Ops Atty Gen Nov 8 (Informal), 1978 N.Y. AG LEXIS 378.

There is a prohibited conflict of interest where members of the village board of trustees are shareholders, directors and an officer of the contracting corporation. 1964 Op St Compt No. 64-808.

There is a prohibited conflict of interest in a contract between a village and a business corporation of which the mayor is a substantial shareholder and an officer. 1964 Op St Compt No. 64-808.

There is a conflict of interest where a village trustee is a shareholder in the contracting corporation, but, if his holdings are less than five per cent of the outstanding shares, his interest is not prohibited. 1964 Op St Compt No. 64-808.

The board of managers of a village public general hospital may not contract for the purchase of supplies with a corporation of which the mayor is a stockholder and officer except to the extent of $100 in the aggregate during any fiscal year. 1964 Op St Compt No. 64-871.

A prohibited conflict of interest arises where a village purchases supplies and equipment from a hardware store operated by a corporation of which a village trustee is the principal stockholder. 1968 Op St Compt No. 68-323.

The village attorney has a prohibited interest in a contract between the village and a corporation of which he is a director. The interest of a village trustee in the same contract (arising solely by reason of his ownership of corporate stock) is not prohibited where he owns less than five percent of the outstanding stock of the corporation. 1969 Op St Compt No. 69-583-A.

A village may purchase supplies and equipment from various stores owned by a corporation of which the village justice is an officer and stockholder. 1973 Op St Compt No. 73-805.

Fact that former commissioner of public works, charged with having conflict of interest in connection with snow plowing contract and failing to disclose such interest, was both an officer and more than five per cent stockholder in corporation which obtained the contract did not bring him within the exemption provision of conflict of interest law where the individual's interest arises by reason of employment as an officer or employee of a firm contracting with municipality since not only would such result lead to an absurdity but argument ignored statutory requirement that the conflict arise "solely" by reason of employment as an officer or employee. People v Speach, 49 A.D.2d 210, 374 N.Y.S.2d 210, 1975 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10626 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1975).

A city is not precluded from entering into a contract for the purchase of merchandise from a corporation in which a city employee is a stockholder. Proper disclosure of interest must be made. 1965 NY Ops Atty Gen Aug 26 (Informal), 1965 N.Y. AG LEXIS 126.

A central school district may acquire real property from a corporation in which two members of the law firm which acts as school district attorney are stockholders, and such law firm is attorney for the corporation. Section 803 requires a written disclosure of the nature and extent of the attorneys' interests in the contracts in question. 1965 Op St Compt No. 65-97.

A prohibited conflict of interest will result if a community college purchases supplies from a corporation in which a member of the board of trustees is a major stockholder, notwithstanding that the corporation has been awarded a State contract pursuant to section 104 of the General Municipal Law. 1968 Op St Compt No. 68-382.

31. —Spouse or relatives of official

A prohibited conflict of interest would arise in a contract between a town and a private corporation when the spouse of the deputy comptroller of the town is a majority stockholder of that corporation, unless the total consideration payable under the contract does not exceed one hundred dollars. 1975 NY Ops Atty Gen July 7 (Informal), 1975 N.Y. AG LEXIS 133.

A school district may acquire real property from a corporation, a stockholder of which is the brother of a member of the Board of Education. 1965 Op St Compt No. 65-97.

A prohibited interest in contract does not occur where: (a) A town supervisor owns less than 5% of the stock of a bank which is a depository of town funds; (b) the wife of the supervisor is part owner of a newspaper in which the town publishes legal notices. 1972 Op St Compt No. 72-4.

A county legislator does not have a statutory interest in a contract between the county and a corporation of which his spouse is a major stockholder, when he is an employee of the corporation, provided section 802(1)(b) is applicable. There is an apparent tendency for courts to liberally construe Article 18 and hold municipal officers and employees strictly accountable for conduct which, although not literally prohibited by the Article, is borderline. 1979 Op St Compt No. 79-868.

32. Lease of official's property

A Town Attorney may not lease real property owned by him to his Town unless (1) it is for office space to be occupied by him in the performance of his official duties or (2) the consideration for all such contracts in which he has an interest during a fiscal year does not exceed one hundred dollars; in either of which events disclosure under General Municipal Law § 803, must be made. 1969 NY Ops Atty Gen Dec 16 (Informal), 1969 N.Y. AG LEXIS 113.

A Town may rent or sub-lease premises owned or leased by its Town Clerk for use in the performance of his official duties. A Town may also rent or sub-lease premises owned or leased by its Town Clerk for other Town purposes but disclosure of the Town Clerk's interest should be made in accordance with Section 803. 1970 NY Ops Atty Gen Sept 8 (Informal), 1970 N.Y. AG LEXIS 111.

A town may rent space in the home or other property of a town officer for use as that officer's town office. 1968 Op St Compt No. 68-442.

A reasonable rental may be paid by a town to a town officer or employee for a room or rooms owned or leased by the officer or employee and used for the performance of official duties. 1969 Op St Compt No. 69-623.

Under certain circumstances, a city board of education may pay a claim by a superintendent of schools, for rental of office space in his home. 1980 Op St Compt No. 80-59.

Town board may enter into agreement for payment of reasonable rental to town officer who utilizes portion of his or her home as office in connection with performance of his or her official town duties. 1992 Op St Compt No. 92-16.

33. Contracts involving consideration of less than $100

Where consideration of a contract is under $100, the contract is not prohibited by conflict of interest. 1969 Op St Compt No. 69-444.

A member of a county board of health would have a conflict of interest if he or she is retained as a consultant at $60 per hour to the county health department where an appointee of the board has the power or duty to negotiate the consulting contract, unless and to the extent that one of the exceptions in the General Municipal Law § 802 is applicable. 1990 Op St Compt No. 90-16, 1990 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 18.

34. —Insurance contracts

A member of a town board may not have an interest in a contract of insurance with such town except where the total consideration payable thereunder, together with all other considerations payable under contracts with such town in which he has an interest during the fiscal year, does not exceed $100,00; or where his interest is only that of a stockholder owning or controlling less than 5– of the stock of the corporation entering into such contract with the town. In any event, disclosure under § 803 must be made. 1969 NY Ops Atty Gen July 16 (Informal), 1969 N.Y. AG LEXIS 65.

A city alderman cannot participate in the sharing of commissions for city insurance to the extent of $100 per year where the yearly premiums exceed $100. 1964 Op St Compt No. 64-847.

35. —Real estate contracts

A town board may not sell a parcel of real property to the town supervisor where the value of the property exceeds $100. 1973 Op St Compt No. 73-803.

Where a town of the second class sells a parcel of land worth less than $100 to a town justice: (1) A permissive referendum is required without regard to the value of the land; (2) The town justice would not have a prohibited interest in the transaction. 1974 Op St Compt No. 74-477.

36. —Other contracts

The board of managers of a village public general hospital may not contract for the purchase of supplies with a corporation of which the mayor is a stockholder and officer except to the extent of $100 in the aggregate during any fiscal year. 1964 Op St Compt No. 64-871.

A prohibited conflict of interest does not exist where a town purchases supplies from a business owned by a member of the town board, provided the amount does not exceed the total sum of $100 for any fiscal year. 1968 Op St Compt No. 68-617.

Member of board of trustees of community college would have prohibited conflict of interest if, in any fiscal year, college purchased supplies from hardware store owned by trustee and sum of purchases plus consideration under other contracts with college in which trustee had interest exceed $100. 1996 Op St Compt No. 96-14, 1996 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 11.

37. Employment conflicts; county officials

An assistant district attorney may property hold the position of general counsel to a hospital in the county. He must disclose the fact of his employment to the county. 1966 NY Ops Atty Gen April 19 (Informal), 1966 N.Y. AG LEXIS 62.

A prohibited interest in contract does not result where a county treasurer is appointed to the advisory board of a bank with which the county does business, provided the conditions of section 802(1)(b) are observed. 1969 Op St Compt No. 69-165.

Apart from conflicts of interest considerations, there is no legal prohibition against the executive director of an association for retarded children serving as a member of a county community services board which passes upon the association's budget. Whether a prohibited conflict of interest exists where the county contracts for services to be provided by the association depends upon relevant facts. 1978 Op St Compt No. 78-425.

38. —School district officials

Employee of bank with title of Assistant Cashier is not eligible for position of Treasurer of School District where bank has been named depository of funds for the school district and there is another eligible banking institution located within the district. 1966 NY Ops Atty Gen Oct 4 (Informal), 1966 N.Y. AG LEXIS 125.

There is no conflict of interest under Article 18 of the General Municipal Law when the attorney for a school district is the law partner of the mayor of a village which comprises a portion of the school district, nor is there an incompatibility under the common law. 1975 NY Ops Atty Gen June 25 (Informal), 1975 N.Y. AG LEXIS 131.

An attorney may be appointed school district attorney even though the attorney's spouse is a member of the board of education of the school district. The authorization contained in General Municipal Law § 800 subdivision 3 constitutes a waiver of the prohibition of such a contract when the contract relates to a spouse of a board member; it is so broad in its terms that there is no reason why the spouse of the attorney may not vote upon the question of the attorney's employment and upon matters relating to the attorney's salary and/or expense vouchers. 1977 NY Ops Atty Gen Dec 27 (Informal), 1977 N.Y. AG LEXIS 370.

A retired teacher who receives retirement benefits under a collective bargaining agreement, and who retains the right to vote for union officials and to approve future collective bargaining agreements may not serve as a member of the school board in that school district. Furthermore, resignation from the union would not change our finding that a conflict of interest exists. 1985 NY Ops Atty Gen 85-33 (Informal), 1985 N.Y. AG LEXIS 64.

CLS Gen Mun § 802(1)(b) specifically authorizes contracts where school board enters into lease agreement with Roman Catholic Church Diocese for portion of former nonpublic school building. 1993 Op Comm Ed No. 13,015, 1993 NY Educ. Dept. LEXIS 142.

Provision of code of ethics of central school district, which required members of board of education to recuse themselves from voting on collective bargaining agreements between district and unions if they had family member covered by collective bargaining agreement, was unlawful because it conflicted with express exemptions from conflict of interest coverage in General Municipal Law. 1998 Op Comm Ed No. 13,914, 1998 NY Educ. Dept. LEXIS 236.

In proceeding for order to set aside results of school district election upon ground that successful candidate, as a retired teacher receiving insurance benefits, had a prohibited conflict of interest and could not serve as member of board of education, such receipt of insurance benefits pursuant to collective bargaining agreement approved by board of education before election did not give rise to prohibited conflict of interest; if statutory conflict of interest existed at all, it would not exist until after teacher took office, at which time her insurance benefits were cancelled; in addition, to extent that teacher's husband retained family health insurance coverage after teacher took office, there was no prohibited interest in spouse's benefits because a municipal officer is not deemed to have an interest in employment contract of his or her spouse; moreover, there was no merit in argument that teacher, as retired member of teachers' union, had a prohibited conflict of interest by reason of her voting rights as union member. in re Zohn, 1985 Op Comm Ed No. 11,560.

There is no prohibited conflict of interest where a school district, the treasurer of which is employed by a bank as a bank teller, designates such bank as depository of school district funds, sells bonds and notes to the bank and otherwise transacts business with said bank, provided the duties of treasurer, as a bank employee, do not directly involve the procurement, preparation or performance of the contract between the bank and the school district and her remuneration as an employee will not be directly affected as a result of such transactions. 1967 Op St Compt No. 67-304.

Where duties of school district treasurer, as an employee or officer of the bank, normally involve handling of municipal accounts, treasurer may not intentionally refrain from performance of such duties to avoid prohibited conflict of interest. 1967 Op St Compt No. 67-304.

A prohibited conflict of interest does not arise: (a) where a superintendent of a central school district is appointed to the advisory board of a bank with which the district does business; (b) where a member of the board of education of a central school district is appointed to the same advisory board, provided certain provisions of section 802 are applicable. 1968 Op St Compt No. 68-941.

A prohibited interest in contract will exist if a dentist, engaged under a State-sponsored pre-school program and paid with school district funds on a per-patient basis, is elected to the board of education and continues to treat program patients, where a separate contract with the school district is entered into for each patient treated. 1971 Op St Compt No. 71-936.

A retired school administrator, if he should be elected to the board of education of the school district, would have a prohibited interest as a board member in any collective bargaining agreement executed subsequent to his taking office which provides for the payment of the full cost of health insurance for him as a retiree. 1983 Op St Compt No. 83-122, 1983 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 363.

Member of school district board of education who is also employee of not-for-profit corporation would not have prohibited interests in contract between district and corporation for provision by corporation of arts and education programs to district; however, disclosure would be required under CLS Gen Mun L § 803. 1988 Op St Compt No. 88-77, 1988 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 70.

School board member does not have conflict of interest pursuant to CLS Gen Mun Law Art 18 solely by virtue of either holding position in state teachers association or owning college entrance and counseling business, however, one or both activities may be regulated by school district's code of ethics. 1989 Op St Compt No. 89-24, 1989 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 27.

School board member would not have prohibited conflict of interest under CLS Gen Mun Art 18 if he or she also served as trustee on board of trustees of not-for-profit foundation that raises money and makes gifts to school district; however, board member should not participate in school board discussions or decisions relating to gifts from, or other matters involving, not-for-profit foundation for which board member serves as trustee and, assuming disclosure is not otherwise required by CLS Gen Mun § 803, should disclose his or her relationship with not-for-profit entity. 2008 Op St Compt No. 2008-1, 2008 N.Y. Court would annul determination terminating petitioner's employment as city firefighter for engaging in allegedly proscribed political activity in violation of CLS Gen Mun § 801, CLS Gen City § 3, and unnamed "common-law rules" since (1) it was conceded that literal terms of statutes were not violated, (2) petitioner fell within exception to CLS Gen Mun § 801 provided by CLS Gen Mun § 802, (3) petitioner was appointed as firefighter not by common council, as described in CLS Gen City § 3, but by municipal board of public safety, and (4) there was no satisfactory explanation of what was meant by claim that petitioner violated "common-law rules." Girard v Glens Falls, 173 A.D.2d 113, 577 N.Y.S.2d 496, 1991 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 16338 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1991).

No statutory conflict of interest would be created in the appointment of an assistant vice president of a banking trust company with which an urban renewal agency does business to membership on such agency. 1966 NY Ops Atty Gen June 28 (Informal), 1966 N.Y. AG LEXIS 90.

Where no village tax funds are involved and the village is only the fiscal officer to disburse funds of other municipalities for a joint recreation project, and employment of personnel and fixing of salaries is done by another municipality, there is no incompatibility where an employee of such a program is also a trustee of the village which is the fiscal officer of the joint program. 1975 NY Ops Atty Gen May 21 (Informal), 1975 N.Y. AG LEXIS 123.

A common law conflict of interest would ensue if the same person at the same time served as an officer or employee and commissioner for a municipal housing authority. Pursuant to Public Housing Law, § 30(5), a tenant of the Buffalo Municipal Housing Authority, who is also an employee of said Authority, may lawfully seek the office of commissioner of said Authority and if successful may become a commissioner upon resigning his position of employment. 1978 NY Ops Atty Gen Feb 22 (Informal), 1978 N.Y. AG LEXIS 178.

The simultaneous holding of the two positions of clerk of the board of assessors and member of the board of assessors (or sole assessor) by the same person would constitute an incompatibility in function and a conflict of interest and if a clerk is successful in a campaign for election as assessor she must then choose which of the positions she wishes to hold; she cannot hold both at the same time. 1979 NY Ops Atty Gen Oct 18 (Informal), 1979 N.Y. AG LEXIS 24.

A member of a Library Board of Trustees may not simultaneously hold the position of paid custodian of the library. 1979 NY Ops Atty Gen Sept 14 (Informal), 1979 N.Y. AG LEXIS 42.

When a village purchases materials and supplies for the use of its fire department from a corporation of which the fire chief is vice-president, whether the chief has a conflict of interest depends upon pertinent facts and circumstances. 1983 Op St Compt No. 83-211, 1983 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 273.

A fire district commissioner who is an employee of a business which services district vehicles has a conflict of interest in any contracts between the district and the business unless the exception contained in section 802(1)(b) is applicable. 1984 Op St Compt No. 84-37, 1984 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 100.

Brothers do not enjoy the degree of consanguinity which would make the interest of one the interest of the other. Where a member of a partnership is appointed as a condemnation commissioner in a county acquisition of real property, and thereafter the other partner is elected as a supervisor in that county, and no fees of the condemnation commissioner are received by the partnership, and this is not in violation of the partnership agreement, there is no prohibited conflict of interest. However, where the partners are brothers, there may be the appearance of a conflict of interest but as the appointment of the commissioner was made before the supervisor was elected, disclosure by the supervisor and the condemnation commissioner would eliminate any question of an improper conflict. 1975 NY Ops Atty Gen March 13 (Informal), 1975 N.Y. AG LEXIS 90.

There is no conflict of interest where the wife of a teacher at a community college is elected as a non-voting trustee of such college. 1975 NY Ops Atty Gen Dec 16 (Informal), 1975 N.Y. AG LEXIS 202.

Petitioner, in seeking removal of respondent board president, failed to establish that respondent's ratification of collective bargaining agreement between local teachers' association and school district, while his spouse was member of local teachers' association, constituted conflict of interest and/or wilful violation or neglect of duty; CLS Gen Mun § 802(1)(f) exempts from prohibited conflicts of interest "contract[s] with a membership corporation or other voluntary non-profit corporation or association," and CLS Gen Mun § 800(3) "explicitly excludes a spouse's employment contract from coverage under the conflict of interest provision and therefore, does not bar a board member from negotiating or voting on the contract of a spouse." 2009 Op Comm Ed No. 15,892, 2009 NY Educ. Under New York Const Art IX §§ 2, 3; Gen Mun §§ 801, 802, 806; Mun Home Rule §§ 2, 10, the Town of East Hampton is not authorized to amend the East Hampton Code of Ethics to require that, once every year, certain of its officers and employees fully disclose and itemize their financial status to include all of their assets and all of their liabilities when there is no apparent or potential conflict of interest in the standard of conduct of such officer or employee as it relates to his employment with the municipality. 1974 NY Ops Atty Gen Nov 12 (Informal), 1974 N.Y. AG LEXIS 173.

When a village attorney is a director and stockholder of a bank, he has a conflict of interest if the bank should purchase a statutory installment bond from the village only if he has any of the powers and duties set forth in section 801(1) in relation to the transaction. If he has a conflict of interest, the sale nevertheless would be permissible if made pursuant to Local Finance Law, § 60.10 and the restrictions set forth therein. 1985 Op St Compt No. 85-34, 1985 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 108.

A town supervisor has a prohibited interest in a contract of his spouse for the preparation of the annual financial report. The contract is void and payment of her voucher should not be approved by the town board. 1985 Op St Compt No. 85-9, 1985 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 134.

Town attorney would have prohibited interest in contract for additional legal services pursuant to CLS Town Law § 20(2)(a) between town and his or her law firm, if town attorney has any of powers or duties listed in CLS Gen Mun Law § 801, unless one of the exceptions in CLS Gen Mun Law § 802 applies. 1989 Op St Compt No. 89-65, 1989 N.Y. § 803. Disclosure of interest

1. Any municipal officer or employee who has, will have, or later acquires an interest in or whose spouse has, will have, or later acquires an interest in any actual or proposed contract, purchase agreement, lease agreement or other agreement, including oral agreements, with the municipality of which he or she is an officer or employee, shall publicly disclose the nature and extent of such interest in writing to his or her immediate supervisor and to the governing body thereof as soon as he or she has knowledge of such actual or prospective interest. Such written disclosure shall be made part of and set forth in the official record of the proceedings of such body.

2. Notwithstanding the provisions of subdivision one of this section, disclosure shall not be required in the case of an interest in a contract described in subdivision two of section eight hundred two hereof.

Editor's Notes: Laws 1964, ch 946, §§ 1 and 13–17, provide as follows:

Section 1. Declaration of policy and purpose. As government becomes increasingly complex, as our democratic processes draw citizens from every walk of life, there is increasing need for known standards of ethical conduct as a guide for public officers. These standards must rest primarily on personal integrity and on community vigilance: law cannot in itself create moral fiber, nor can law quicken the civic conscience. In support of these basic standards, it is the purpose of this chapter to define areas of conflicts of interest in municipal transactions, leaving to each community the expression of its own code of ethics.

The need for the statute does not spring from widespread malfeasance on the part of municipal officers; rather, the Legislature recognizes their integrity as a group, their culpability in only a few instances. But lest the few brand the many, the discernment of the offending case must be made certain, its elimination sure. Existing law is too complex, too inconsistent, too overgrown with exceptions, for such a clarity of understanding to be possible. Basic concepts must be retained, but something more than recodification is needed.

There is another and equally important objective: a formula of conduct which is not only clear but reasonable, one which will permit governmental employees to share the normal benefits of the democratic society and economy they serve. If government is to attract and hold competent administrators, public service must not require a complete divesting of all proprietary interests. Real conflict must be rooted out, without condemning the inconsequential.

The chapter, then, has a trinity of purposes: to protect the public from municipal contracts influenced by avaricious officers, to protect innocent public officers from unwarranted assaults on their integrity and to encourage each community to adopt an appropriate code of ethics to supplement this chapter. The Legislature declares that each purpose is a matter of State concern and adopts the following chapter accordingly, with the intention that it shall be the generic law in relation to conflicts of interest in municipal transactions, not to be superseded by local law of any municipality subject to its provisions.

§ 13. Laws superseded. The provisions of article eighteen of the general municipal law, as added by this act, shall supersede any local law, charter, ordinance, resolution, rule or regulation of any municipality to the extent that such local law, charter, ordinance, resolution, rule or regulation is inconsistent with the provisions thereof. No local law, ordinance, resolution, rule or regulation shall modify or dispense with any provision of article eighteen of the general municipal law, as added by this act; provided, however, that nothing herein contained shall prohibit a code of ethics adopted pursuant thereto from supplementing the provisions of this act.

§ 14. Pending actions and proceedings. No action or proceeding pending at the time when this act shall take effect shall be affected by any provision of this act, but the same may be prosecuted, defended or enforced as if this act had not been enacted.

§ 15. Existing rights and remedies preserved. No existing right or remedy of any character shall be lost, impaired or affected by reason of this act, nor shall the validity of any action taken by any public official under the law in force immediately prior to the time this act shall take effect be affected by the enactment of this act.

§ 16. Laws repealed. Of the laws enumerated in the schedule hereto annexed, that portion specified in the last column is hereby repealed.

A town assessor, who is also a plumber, may bid on and be awarded a contract involving a town building, but a written public disclosure of the assessor's interest in the contract is required. 1980 Op St Compt No. 80-129, 1980 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 310.

A superintendent of a town sewer improvement area, who also owns a construction business, may be retained to perform services for the town, such as snow-plowing and excavation, provided that he, in his town position, does not possess any of the powers or duties enumerated in section 801(1). Disclosure under section 803(1) is required. 1981 Op St Compt No. 81-45, 1981 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 844.

A village clerk may enter into a contract with the village for the plowing of village streets but must disclose his statutory interest in the contract in writing to the board of trustees. 1983 Op St Compt No. 83-35, 1983 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 454.

A member of a county board of health would have a conflict of interest if he or she is retained as a consultant at $60 per hour to the county health department where an appointee of the board has the power or duty to negotiate the consulting contract, unless and to the extent that one of the exceptions in the General Municipal Law § 802 is applicable. 1990 Op St Compt No. 90-16, 1990 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 18.

Member of town board of assessment review who is sole proprietor of company that sells highway-related products has interest in contracts between company and town to sell products for use by town highway department; such interest is not prohibited, but board member must disclose it in accordance with CLS Gen Mun § 803. 2012 Op St Compt No. 2012-1, 2012 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 2.

In a county which has a director of purchasing who is an appointee of the elective county executive and also an elective county comptroller who is responsible for audit and approval of vouchers, a county legislator does not have a prohibited interest in contracts between the county and himself, but he must disclose his interest in the same. 1978 Op St Compt No. 78-525.

Whether electrical contractor who also is chair of town planning board has prohibited interested in contract with town to perform electrical services must be determined on case-by-case basis by examining chair's powers and duties in connection with specific contract; even if interest is not prohibited, disclosure would be required. 1993 Op St Compt No. 93-23.

2. Official as officer or employee of contracting party

Conviction of former commissioner of public works on count charging failure to disclose an interest in snow plowing contract awarded to corporation of which Commissioner was officer and stockholder could not be reconciled with verdict of not guilty on count charging a conflict of interest regarding the contract; hence, conviction on the former count was required to be reversed and the charge dismissed; conviction on either charge required a basic finding that the commissioner had an interest in the contract. People v Speach, 49 A.D.2d 210, 374 N.Y.S.2d 210, 1975 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10626 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1975).

The prohibition of these sections is not applicable to a village trustee who is only a salaried employee of a corporation which contracts with the village. 1966 NY Ops Atty Gen April 7 (Informal), 1966 N.Y. AG LEXIS 54.

A city fireman who is also president of a cable TV company granted a franchise by the city, does not have a conflicting interest prohibited by General Municipal Law, Section 801, but is required by Section 803 to publicly disclose his interest in the cable TV company. 1970 NY Ops Atty Gen July 30 (Informal), 1970 N.Y. AG LEXIS 98.

A village trustee may be employed by a hardware store contracting with the village provided that his salary as such employee will not be directly affected as a result of such contract and provided that the duties of such employment do not directly involve the procurement, preparation or performance of any part of such contract. However, disclosure of such employment must be made by the village trustee in accordance with General Municipal Law, § 803. 1971 NY Ops Atty Gen Feb 24 (Informal), 1971 N.Y. AG LEXIS 45.

There is no prohibited conflict of interest where a town clerk, acting as sales agent, sells cleaning supplies to the town, but disclosure of the interest in contract is required. 1972 Op St Compt No. 72-879.

A member of a county board of supervisors who is employed by the county extension service association does not have a prohibited interest in contracts between the county and the association. 1975 Op St Compt No. 75-736.

There is no prohibited conflict of interest where a village mayor or trustee is employed by an insurance agency and is not, in the course of his employment, directly involved in the procurement, preparation or performance of any insurance contract with the village or will not have his remuneration directly affected by such a contract. Likewise, if the mayor or trustee owns stock in an insurance agency which provides insurance to the village but the extent of such stockholdings are less than five per cent of the outstanding stock, there is no prohibited interest. If the extent of stockholdings exceeds five per cent of the outstanding stock, the interest will not be prohibited provided that the contract was entered into prior to the time the mayor or trustee was elected, and the contract may not be renewed upon expiration. 1981 Op St Compt No. 81-430, 1981 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 454.

There is no prohibited conflict of interest where a village purchases insurance from an insurance company of which a village trustee is an employee, if the trustee's remuneration will not be directly affected by the transaction and, as an employee of the company, the trustee will have nothing to do with the preparation, procurement or performance of the insurance contracts. 1982 Op St Compt No. 82-234, 1982 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 496.

Fire district treasurer who is officer and stockholder of insurance agency with which fire district contracts has interest in contract; interest must be disclosed under CLS Gen Mun § 803, but is not prohibited. 1997 Op St Compt No. 97-19, 1997 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 9.

Attorney who is appointed town attorney would not have prohibited interest in pre-existing contract between town and his or her law firm, but attorney would be required to disclose his or her interest in contract, and attorney should also recuse him or herself from any matter affecting his or her law firm, with those functions instead being performed by deputy, if any. 2000 Op St Compt No. 2000-22, 2000 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 26.

Member of county governing board who served as officer of 2 not-for-profit corporations, as well as director of one of those corporations, would have prohibited interest in contracts between county and either corporation, but must disclose any interest he may have in such contract under CLS Gen Mun § 803, and must avoid contravening statutory prohibitions against disclosure of confidential information and compensated appearances before county agencies under CLS Gen Mun § 805-a; furthermore, even if not required by county's code of ethics, county board member should not participate in county board discussions or decisions relating to county contracts with not-for profit corporations for which board member serves as officer, employee or director. 2001 Op St Compt No. 2001-9, 2001 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 9.

Member of county governing board who also serves on board of not-for-profit agency does not have prohibited interest in contract between county and agency, but member must disclose any interest in such contract and should not participate in discussion or vote on contract. 1992 Op St Compt No. 92-30, 1992 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 17.

3. Official as stockholder of contracting party

A city is not precluded from entering into a contract for the purchase of merchandise from a corporation in which a city employee is a stockholder. Proper disclosure of interest must be made. 1965 NY Ops Atty Gen Aug 26 (Informal), 1965 N.Y. AG LEXIS 126.

No conflict of interest ensues where a member of the Fire Commission of the City of Geneva, who has neither the power nor the duty to authorize or approve a contract between said City and a corporation in which he is a stockholder, or any payments to be made thereunder. However, disclosure of such interest in accordance with General Municipal Law, section 803, must be made. 1973 NY Ops Atty Gen May 23 (Informal), 1973 N.Y. AG LEXIS 69.

Newly elected town board member would have prohibited interest in renewals of existing contract for road salt delivery, or in subsequent contracts between town and himself or herself as sole proprietor, unless another exception in CLS Gen Mun § 802 were to apply. 2008 Op St Compt No. 2008-2, 2008 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 2.

4. Designation of depository

No conflict of interest results from the designation of a bank as a depository of a county sewer district even though one member of said district is also a member of the Advisory Board of a branch of said bank and another member of said district is the President in charge of a branch of said bank, provided that neither of them is the chief fiscal officer, treasurer, or his deputy or employee of the sewer district. However, disclosure of interest must be made in accordance with General Municipal Law, § 803. 1972 NY Ops Atty Gen Nov 2 (Informal), 1972 N.Y. AG LEXIS 154.

A prohibited conflict of interest does not occur when a village board designates a bank as the depository of village funds, notwithstanding the membership of a trustee on the bank's advisory board. Disclosure, however, is necessary. 1968 Op St Compt No. 68-323.

A conflict of interest does not occur where a town supervisor who is also a practicing attorney occasionally represents a town depository bank for the sole purpose of closing a mortgage loan which in no way involves the town, but disclosure is recommended. 1972 Op St Compt No. 72-11.

5. Contracts involving fire districts

A fire district whose commissioners are members of a volunteer fire company may contract with such company, but a disclosure of such contract is required. 1969 Op St Compt No. 69-522.

A fire chief of a fire district volunteer fire department does not have a prohibited interest in contracts between the district and a business in which he has a partnership interest unless he exercises certain functions, as fire chief, with respect to such contracts. However, disclosure is required, 1979 Op St Compt No. 79-76, 1979 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 225.

Assistant chief of fire district's fire department who owns more than 5 percent of stock of private corporation contracting with fire district for sale and repair of radios to district does not have prohibited interest in contract if, as assistant chief, he or she does not have any powers and duties listed in CLS Gen Mun § 801 in connection with contract; if assistant chief, on behalf of corporation, exercises direction and control over any corporate employees involved in contract, such fact must be disclosed under CLS Gen Mun § 803(1). 2001 Op St Compt No. 2001-11, 2001 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 11.

6. Insurance contracts

A member of a town board may not have an interest in a contract of insurance with such town except where the total consideration payable thereunder, together with all other considerations payable under contracts with such town in which he has an interest during the fiscal year, does not exceed $100.00; or where his interest is only that of a stockholder owning or controlling less than 5— of the stock of the corporation entering into such contract with the town. In any event, disclosure under § 803 must be made. 1969 NY Ops Atty Gen July 16 (Informal), 1969 N.Y. AG LEXIS 65.

A prohibited conflict of interest does not arise where a city commissioner of public safety sells group life insurance to participating city employees. Disclosure is, nevertheless, required. 1968 Op St Compt No. 68-55.

A village justice is not prohibited from selling group life and hospitalization insurance to the village for employees of the village in which he is an officer, but he must publicly disclose the nature and extent of his interest in the contract. 1973 Op St Compt No. 73-762.

There is no prohibited conflict of interest where a village mayor or trustee is employed by an insurance agency and is not, in the course of his employment, directly involved in the procurement, preparation or performance of any insurance contract with the village or will not have his remuneration directly affected by such a contract. Likewise, if the mayor or trustee owns stock in an insurance agency which provides insurance to the village but the extent of such stockholdings are less than five per cent of the outstanding stock, there is no prohibited interest. If the extent of stockholdings exceeds five per cent of the outstanding stock, the interest will not be prohibited provided that the contract was entered into prior to the time the mayor or trustee was elected, and the contract may not be renewed upon expiration. 1981 Op St Compt No. 81-430, 1981 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 454.

7. Lease of office space

A Town Attorney may not lease real property owned by him to his Town unless (1) it is for office space to be occupied by him in the performance of his official duties or (2) the consideration for all such contracts in which he has an interest during a fiscal year does not exceed one hundred dollars; in either of which events disclosure under General Municipal Law § 803, must be made. 1969 NY Ops Atty Gen Dec 16 (Informal), 1969 N.Y. AG LEXIS 113.

A Town may rent or sub-lease premises owned or leased by its Town Clerk for use in the performance of his official duties. A Town may also rent or sub-lease premises owned or leased by its Town Clerk for other Town purposes but disclosure of the Town Clerk's interest should be made in accordance with Section 803. 1970 NY Ops Atty Gen Sept 8 (Informal), 1970 N.Y. AG LEXIS 111.

8. Legal services

A district attorney of a county having a population of less than one hundred thousand is not precluded from the practice of law and consequently may, as a part of such private law practice, represent the county self-insurance workmen's compensation plan on a fee basis. Disclosure of such contract pursuant to General Municipal Law, § 803 must, however, be made. 1972 NY Ops Atty Gen Sept 6 (Informal), 1972 N.Y. AG LEXIS 132.

A prohibited conflict of interest does not result where a town justice of a town of the first class performs services for such town as attorney for special improvement districts created by such town. Nevertheless, disclosure of such interest is mandated by General Municipal Law, § 803. 1973 NY Ops Atty Gen April 4 (Informal), 1973 N.Y. AG LEXIS 53.

A conflict of interest does not occur where a town supervisor who is also a practicing attorney occasionally represents a town depository bank for the sole purpose of closing a mortgage loan which in no way involves the town, but disclosure is recommended. 1972 Op St Compt No. 72-11.

9. Real estate transactions; municipal purchases

Defendants, the County of Putnam and the members of the Board of Supervisors of the county, are entitled to rescind a contract for the purchase of realty where it is established that a county officer had an undisclosed interest as a real estate broker in the performance of the contract in violation of section 803 of the General Municipal Law; despite the fact that the officer held no powers or duties with respect to the purchase of the land by the county, any undisclosed interest of a municipal officer or employee is prohibited by article 18 of the General Municipal Law and renders a contract willfully entered into by or with a municipality unenforceable. (General Municipal Law, § 804.) Furthermore, inasmuch as section 805 of the General Municipal Law provides that it is a misdemeanor for public officers and employees to willfully and knowingly neglect to disclose their interests, the statute's plain purpose of protecting the public is effectuated by inflicting criminal sanctions, and the legislative recognition of the criminality must be accompanied by the judicial refusal to enforce a contract which is derived from a criminal act. Landau v Percacciolo, 66 A.D.2d 80, 412 N.Y.S.2d 378, 1978 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13907 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1978), aff'd, 50 N.Y.2d 430, 429 N.Y.S.2d 566, 407 N.E.2d 412, 1980 N.Y. LEXIS 2387 (N.Y. 1980).

A central school district may acquire real property from a corporation in which two members of the law firm which acts as school district attorney are stockholders, and such law firm is attorney for the corporation. Section 803 requires a written disclosure of the nature and extent of the attorneys' interests in the contracts in question, and such a school district may acquire real property from a corporation, a stockholder of which is the brother of a member of the Board of Education. 1965 Op St Compt No. 65-97.

10. —Municipal sales

Mere fact that participant in public auction conducted by village held position as building inspector and village engineer did not constitute violation of CLS Gen Mun §§ 801 and 803 so as to void his bids and obligate village to accept plaintiff's original bid on property since there was no proof that engineer had power or duty to negotiate, prepare, authorize or approve, on behalf of village, contract for sale of real property on which he was bidding to trigger application of § 801, and as mere bidder at auction, engineer never actually had interest in any contract to which village was party and thus had no duty under § 803 to make any formal disclosure of his interest; even assuming engineer had some duty to disclose his potential interest in contract with village, his appearance at public auction served as disclosure of that potential interest. D.E.P. Resources, Inc. v Monroe, 131 A.D.2d 719, 516 N.Y.S.2d 953, 1987 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 48178 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1987).

No prohibited conflict of interest arises upon the sale of real property by an Urban Renewal Agency to a corporation of which a member of such Agency is an officer and director but not a shareholder, provided the conditions set forth in § 802(1)(b) are met and disclosure of interest under § 803 is made. In the public interest the person involved herein should not participate in any transaction between the Agency and the corporation. If a County Board of Ethics has been created pursuant to § 808 its advisory opinion should be sought. 1969 NY Ops Atty Gen Dec 2 (Informal), 1969 N.Y. AG LEXIS 106.

There is no prohibited interest in contract where a town contracts to sell real property to the town clerk; however, the clerk's interest in such contract must be publicly disclosed in writing. 1975 Op St Compt No. 75-961.

11. Employment conflicts

Effective September 1, 1964, dual employment by the same municipality of the same person in full-time and part-time positions is not prohibited under this law if not otherwise prohibited, but disclosure of such employment must be made in accordance with this section. 1964 NY Ops Atty Gen Sept 29 (Informal), 1964 N.Y. AG LEXIS 140.

The attorney for a county sewer district who is later elected to the position of part-time district attorney and who intends to hold both positions, must make a disclosure of interest under section 803 of Article 18 of the General Municipal Law. 1983 NY Ops Atty Gen 83-45 (Informal), 1983 N.Y. Op. Att'y Gen. No. 83-45, 1983 N.Y. AG LEXIS 49.

Dual employment by the same municipality of the same person in full-time and part-time positions is not prohibited per se under General Municipal Law, § 801, if not otherwise prohibited. 1978 Op St Compt No. 78-946.

School board member would not have prohibited conflict of interest under CLS Gen Mun Art 18 if he or she also served as trustee on board of trustees of not-for-profit foundation that raises money and makes gifts to school district; however, board member should not participate in school board discussions or decisions relating to gifts from, or other matters involving, not-for-profit foundation for which board member serves as trustee and, assuming disclosure is not otherwise required by CLS Gen Mun § 803, should disclose his or her relationship with not-for-profit entity. 2008 Op St Compt No. 2008-1, 2008 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 1.

12. —City officials

While it is doubtful that a material benefit would enure to a Village Trustee by virtue of the granting of a special permit by the Village Board of Trustees to an applicant who is the landlord of such Trustee simply because such Trustee, as a tenant, may thereupon become entitled to use the recreational facility to be constructed by his landlord, it is recommended that disclosure of such possible interest be made and that the Village Code of Ethics be examined and the question submitted to the County Board of Ethics, provided one has been established by the County. 1973 NY Ops Atty Gen March 6 (Informal), 1973 N.Y. AG LEXIS 43.

A person in litigation against a city over a contract claim is not thereby disqualified from running for the office of alderman of the city. If elected he may assume the office but must file a disclosure statement and may not participate, as an alderman, in deliberations or action by the city relating to the defense or settlement of the litigation. 1975 NY Ops Atty Gen Oct 10 (Informal), 1975 N.Y. AG LEXIS 169.

A prohibited conflict of interest does not arise where a city retains the services of two employees (heads of public works and water departments) for the purpose of designing a new sewer installation. Disclosure, however, is required, as provided in section 803. 1968 Op St Compt No. 68-294.

A prohibited conflict of interest does not arise where the same individual holds two city employments. Disclosure is required. 1979 Op St Compt No. 79-20.

A contract between a city and a church would not be prohibited on the basis of a councilman's membership in the church because contracts between municipalities and not-for-profit corporations, such as churches, are excepted from the conflict of interest provisions of the General Municipal Law. The conflict of interest statutes do not require the councilman to abstain from voting on the authorization for such contract but he may be required to do so by the local Code of Ethics or by local rules of procedure. (2) A contract between a city fire department and a local business is not prohibited on the basis of a firefighter's spouse's ownership of that business unless the firefighter has the power or duty to negotiate, prepare, authorize or approve the contract or authorize or approve payment thereunder. In both cases, disclosure of the interest must be made, in writing, to the city council. 1983 Op St Compt No. 83-112, 1983 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 372.

Where newly elected town board member has interest in contract between town and board member, as sole proprietor, under which board member picks up road salt and delivers salt to town storage facility, if contract for road salt delivery between town and town board member were entered into before board member was elected to office, exception in CLS Gen Mun § 802(1)(h) applies and interest is not prohibited; however, board member would be required to disclose such interest in accordance with CLS Gen Mun § 803. 2008 Op St Compt No. 2008-2, 2008 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 2.

13. —County officials

Although the person who negotiated a public sector collective bargaining agreement on behalf of the county did not have a prohibited interest in the resulting collective bargaining agreement by virtue of a county law extending to the negotiator the same salary adjustment as would be received by the members of the local union under the agreement, the negotiator did have a statutory interest which had to be disclosed in writing pursuant to Gen Mun Law § 803. However, the negotiator's interest was adequately disclosed where his role in negotiating the agreement was publicly known and unconcealed. The public purpose underlying the statute was sufficiently protected since the County Executive and County Legislature knew of his interest when they approved and ratified the agreement. Stettine v County of Suffolk, 105 A.D.2d 109, 482 N.Y.S.2d 818, 1984 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 20681 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1984), aff'd, 66 N.Y.2d 354, 497 N.Y.S.2d 329, 488 N.E.2d 75, 1985 N.Y. LEXIS 17611 (N.Y. 1985).

An assistant district attorney may properly hold the position of general counsel to a hospital in the county. He must disclose the fact of his employment to the county. 1966 NY Ops Atty Gen April 19 (Informal), 1966 N.Y. AG LEXIS 62.

One person may simultaneously serve as a county legislator and as the Executive Director of the Adirondack Park Local Government Review Board so long as he avoids conflicts of interest in discrete situations as they may arise. 1981 NY Ops Atty Gen 81-101 (Informal), 1981 N.Y. AG LEXIS 51.

Where the full-time secretary to the sheriff accepts a part-time position as a jail matron, work performed as a matron after the completion of the eight-hour workday as a secretary is not to be compensated on an overtime basis. Disclosure is necessary pursuant to General Municipal Law, § 803(1). 1981 Op St Compt No. 81-118, 1981 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 776.

Officers and employees of county community college who are also members of board of directors for not-for-profit corporation which intends to purchase real property held by county for community college will have interest in purchase contract for purposes of CLS Gen Mun §§ 800 et seq., and interest must be disclosed as soon as officer or employee has knowledge of prospective interests; however, such interest would not be prohibited. 1988 Op St Compt No. 88-52, 1988 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 48.

14. —Other officials

A retired teacher who receives retirement benefits under a collective bargaining agreement, and who retains the right to vote for union officials and to approve future collective bargaining agreements may not serve as a member of the school board in that school district. Furthermore, resignation from the union would not change our finding that a conflict of interest exists. 1985 NY Ops Atty Gen 85-33 (Informal), 1985 N.Y. AG LEXIS 64.

Although member of board of education who was also an attorney was held not to have violated the provisions of General Municipal Law § 801 by acting as the trial attorney for plaintiffs in a lawsuit against the school district while he was member of board of education, nonetheless, such member had a duty to publicly disclose his interest in the lawsuit to board of education in writing pursuant to General Municipal Law § 803(1). In re Ackerberg et al., 1985 Op Comm Ed No. 11,561.

A village trustee does not have a prohibited conflict of interest when he also serves as Activities Administrator of a joint town/village recreation commission. If he is village employee, disclosure is necessary under General Municipal Law. § 803(1). 1980 Op St Compt No. 80-597.

Member of school district board of education who is also employee of not-for-profit corporation would not have prohibited interests in contract between district and corporation for provision by corporation of arts and education programs to district; however, disclosure would be required under CLS Gen Mun L § 803. 1988 Op St Compt No. 88-77, 1988 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 70.

Individual who is member of governing board and treasurer of industrial development agency (IDA) does not have prohibited conflict of interest solely because he or she owns less than one percent of stock of bank named as depository of IDA, and disclosure of interest under CLS Gen Mun § 803 is not required; however, individual should not participate in discussion or vote on matters affecting IDA's relationship with bank. 1994 Op St Compt No. 94-16, 1994 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 14.

No conflict of interest exists where a county legislator is a professional optometrist who, in connection with his private practice, provides optometrical services for Medicaid recipients. However, disclosure is required pursuant to General Municipal Law, § 803(1). 1981 Op St Compt No. 81-407, 1981 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 480.

Town board member who is officer of incorporated volunteer fire company does not have prohibited interest in contract between town and fire company to provide fire protection for fire protection district in town; however, member is required to disclose interest to board. 1986 Op St Compt No. 86-78, 1986 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 95.

15. —Official's spouse or relatives

Brothers do not enjoy the degree of consanguinity which would make the interest of one the interest of the other. Where a member of a partnership is appointed as a condemnation commissioner in a county acquisition of real property, and thereafter the other partner is elected as a supervisor in that county, and no fees of the condemnation commissioner are received by the partnership, and this is not in violation of the partnership agreement, there is no prohibited conflict of interest. However, where the partners are brothers, there may be the appearance of a conflict of interest but as the appointment of the commissioner was made before the supervisor was elected, disclosure by the supervisor and the condemnation commissioner would eliminate any question of an improper conflict. 1975 NY Ops Atty Gen March 13 (Informal), 1975 N.Y. AG LEXIS 90.

A village may employ the minor child of a village trustee as a swimming instructor. No disclosure is required. 1965 Op St Compt No. 65-587.

A clerk in a town highway superintendent's office, whose duties include checking invoices for accuracy, would not have an interest prohibited by Article 18 of the General Municipal Law if the highway superintendent were to award contracts for the repair of town highway equipment to the clerk's spouse. 1992 Op St Compt No. 92-6.

Any contract willfully entered into by or with a municipality in which there is an interest prohibited by this article shall be null, void and wholly unenforceable.

HISTORY:

Add, L 1964, ch 946, § 2, eff Sept 1, 1964.

Editor's Notes: Laws 1964, ch 946, §§ 1 and 13–17, provide as follows:

Section 1. Declaration of policy and purpose. As government becomes increasingly complex, as our democratic processes draw citizens from every walk of life, there is increasing need for known standards of ethical conduct as a guide for public officers. These standards must rest primarily on personal integrity and on community vigilance: law cannot in itself create moral fiber, nor can law quicken the civic conscience. In support of these basic standards, it is the purpose of this chapter to define areas of conflicts of interest in municipal transactions, leaving to each community the expression of its own code of ethics.

The need for the statute does not spring from widespread malfeasance on the part of municipal officers; rather, the Legislature recognizes their integrity as a group, their culpability in only a few instances. But lest the few brand the many, the discernment of the offending case must be made certain, its elimination sure. Existing law is too complex, too inconsistent, too overgrown with exceptions, for such a clarity of understanding to be possible. Basic concepts must be retained, but something more than recodification is needed.

There is another and equally important objective: a formula of conduct which is not only clear but reasonable, one which will permit governmental employees to share the normal benefits of the democratic society and economy they serve. If government is to attract and hold competent administrators, public service must not require a complete divesting of all proprietary interests. Real conflict must be rooted out, without condemning the inconsequential.

The chapter, then, has a trinity of purposes: to protect the public from municipal contracts influenced by avaricious officers, to protect innocent public officers from unwarranted assaults on their integrity and to encourage each community to adopt an appropriate code of ethics to supplement this chapter. The Legislature declares that each purpose is a matter of State concern and adopts the following chapter accordingly, with the intention that it shall be the generic law in relation to conflicts of interest in municipal transactions, not to be superseded by local law of any municipality subject to its provisions.

§ 13. Laws superseded. The provisions of article eighteen of the general municipal law, as added by this act, shall supersede any local law, charter, ordinance, resolution, rule or regulation of any municipality to the extent that such local law, charter, ordinance, resolution, rule or regulation is inconsistent with the provisions thereof. No local law, ordinance, resolution, rule or regulation shall modify or dispense with any provision of article eighteen of the general municipal law, as added by this act; provided, however, that nothing herein contained shall prohibit a code of ethics adopted pursuant thereto from supplementing the provisions of this act.

§ 14. Pending actions and proceedings. No action or proceeding pending at the time when this act shall take effect shall be affected by any provision of this act, but the same may be prosecuted, defended or enforced as if this act had not been enacted.

§ 15. Existing rights and remedies preserved. No existing right or remedy of any character shall be lost, impaired or affected by reason of this act, nor shall the validity of any action taken by any public official under the law in force immediately prior to the time this act shall take effect be affected by the enactment of this act.

§ 16. Laws repealed. Of the laws enumerated in the schedule hereto annexed, that portion specified in the last column is hereby repealed.

§ 17. Effective date. This act shall take effect September first, nineteen hundred sixty-four.

After new city manager assumed office, former acting city manager was without authority, real or apparent, to execute consultant contract on behalf of city with new city manager, and new city manager's act of signing contract which resulted in retaining himself was void as involving prohibited conflict of interest. De Santis v Troy, 83 Misc. 2d 195, 371 N.Y.S.2d 310, 1975 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2876 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1975).

Under General Municipal Law §§ 800, 801, 802, the proposed sale of a building owned by the Town Supervisor of the Town of Crown Point to the Town of Crown Point would constitute a prohibited conflict of interest unless the purchase and the consideration therefor is approved by the Supreme Court upon petition of the Town Board. 1975 NY Ops Atty Gen Feb 10 (Informal), 1975 N.Y. AG LEXIS 71.

A prohibited conflict of interest in a contract arose under section 801 of the General Municipal Law when the Acting Town Attorney of the Town of Greenburgh prepared a draft of a proposed contract between him and said Town for his future employment as Special Counsel to the Town's Urban Renewal Commission, even though said contract was to take effect after the Acting Town Attorney had resigned from his position as Acting Town Attorney. 1975 NY Ops Atty Gen Feb 27 (Informal), 1975 N.Y. AG LEXIS 77.

A prohibited conflict of interest, under section 801 of the General Municipal Law, arose when the former City Attorney of the City of Glens Falls approved a contract between himself and the City for his employment to provide legal services to the Community Development Office, a City of Glens Falls agency. 1978 NY Ops Atty Gen May 23 (Informal), 1978 N.Y. Op. Att'y Gen. No. 83-45, 1983 N.Y. AG LEXIS 49.

A prohibited conflict of interest arises when a city councilman is a co-owner of a nursing home used by the Board of Public Welfare to house some of its patients. 1966 Op St Compt No. 66-711.

A member of a county board of health would have a conflict of interest if he or she is retained as a consultant at $60 per hour to the county health department where an appointee of the board has the power or duty to negotiate the consulting contract, unless and to the extent that one of the exceptions in the General Municipal Law § 802 is applicable. 1990 Op St Compt No. 90-16, 1990 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 18.

2. Exempt entities

CLS General Municipal Law § 801 is not violated by collective bargaining agreement between county and county chapter of Civil Service Employees Association despite fact that it was negotiated by county employee at time when local county laws provided that all exempt county employees, including defendant, would be granted same salary adjustments as members of bargaining units of Association, thereby creating in defendant "prohibited interest" in contract that would render it void under CLS General Municipal Law § 804, since Civil Service Employees Association is voluntary nonprofit association within meaning of CLS General Municipal Law § 802(1)(f) and therefore excepted from proscriptions of § 801. Stettine v County of Suffolk, 66 N.Y.2d 354, 497 N.Y.S.2d 329, 488 N.E.2d 75, 1985 N.Y. LEXIS 17611 (N.Y. 1985).

In proceeding to, inter alia, enjoin town from purchasing property with intention of conveying it to defendant corporation, court properly dismissed cause of action alleging that individual defendants who acted on behalf of defendant corporation violated CLS Gen Mun § 804 and thus were guilty of misdemeanor under CLS Gen Mun § 805 as (1) record did not support petitioners' conclusory assertions that corporate defendant failed to qualify as not-for-profit corporation and that individual defendants had unspecified interest in corporate defendant which was prohibited by CLS Gen Mun Art 18, and (2) no valid and sufficient accusatory instrument, which is nonwaivable jurisdictional prerequisite to criminal prosecution, was filed. Schulz v Town of Kingsbury, 229 A.D.2d 707, 645 N.Y.S.2d 567, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7717 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), app. dismissed, 89 N.Y.2d 859, 653 N.Y.S.2d 281, 675 N.E.2d 1234, 1996 N.Y. A town councilwoman may not serve simultaneously as bookkeeper for the town supervisor except within the confines of the exception contained in General Municipal Law § 802(2[f]). 1977 NY Ops Atty Gen Nov 18 (Informal), 1977 N.Y. AG LEXIS 355.

An attorney may be appointed school district attorney even though the attorney's spouse is a member of the board of education of the school district. The authorization contained in General Municipal Law § 800 subdivision 3 constitutes a waiver of the prohibition of such a contract when the contract relates to a spouse of a board member; it is so broad in its terms that there is no reason why the spouse of the attorney may not vote upon the question of the attorney's employment and upon matters relating to the attorney's salary and/or expense vouchers. 1977 NY Ops Atty Gen Dec 27 (Informal), 1977 N.Y. AG LEXIS 370.

3. Remedies

Defendants, the County of Putnam and the members of the Board of Supervisors of the county, are entitled to rescission of a contract for the purchase of realty where it is established that a county officer had an undisclosed interest as a real estate broker in the performance of the contract in violation of section 803 of the General Municipal Law, and a majority of the board, upon becoming aware of that interest, acted promptly to disaffirm the contract. Landau v Percacciolo, 66 A.D.2d 80, 412 N.Y.S.2d 378, 1978 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13907 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1978), aff'd, 50 N.Y.2d 430, 429 N.Y.S.2d 566, 407 N.E.2d 412, 1980 N.Y. LEXIS 2387 (N.Y. 1980).

Where a town supervisor has a prohibited conflict of interest in contracts relating to the maintenance of a town generator, it is possible that he would be required by a court to return to the town moneys received for services performed. 1982 Op St Compt No. 82-244, 1982 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 488.

4. Sanctions

Defendants, the County of Putnam and the members of the Board of Supervisors of the county, are entitled to rescind a contract for the purchase of realty where it is established that a county officer had an undisclosed interest as a real estate broker in the performance of the contract in violation of section 803 of the General Municipal Law; despite the fact that the officer held no powers or duties with respect to the purchase of the land by the county, any undisclosed interest of a municipal officer or employee is prohibited by article 18 of the General Municipal Law and renders a contract willfully entered into by or with a municipality unenforceable. (General Municipal Law, § 804.) Furthermore, inasmuch as section 805 of the General Municipal Law provides that it is a misdemeanor for public officers and employees to willfully and knowingly neglect to disclose their interests, the statute's plain purpose of protecting the public is effectuated by inflicting criminal sanctions, and the legislative recognition of the criminality must be accompanied by the judicial refusal to enforce a contract which is derived from a criminal act. Landau v Percacciolo, 66 A.D.2d 80, 412 N.Y.S.2d 378, 1978 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13907 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1978), aff'd, 50 N.Y.2d 430, 429 N.Y.S.2d 566, 407 N.E.2d 412, 1980 N.Y. LEXIS 2387 (N.Y. 1980).

A town supervisor has a prohibited interest in a contract of his spouse for the preparation of the annual financial report. The contract is void and payment of her voucher should not be approved by the town board. 1985 Op St Compt No. 85-9, 1985 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 134.

Constitutionally valid General Municipal Law provision prohibiting municipal officer or employee from soliciting any gift was severable from constitutionally defective section prohibiting such officer or employee from accepting any gift having value of $25 or more under circumstances in which it could reasonably be inferred or expected that the gift was intended to influence him. People v Moore, 85 Misc. 2d 4, 377 N.Y.S.2d 1005, 1975 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3269 (N.Y. County Ct. 1975).

Other than the said statute, which has been declared unconstitutional by a lower court, there is no statute applicable state-wide which precludes a municipal officer or employee from accepting gifts from the general community in recognition of birthdays and other holidays. However, utmost discretion should be exercised in accepting such gifts. 1983 Op St Compt No. 83-64, 1983 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 417.

3. Applicability

Acting as counsel to an organization representing property owners' interest while a member of a Rent Guidelines Board would constitute a violation of the ethics provisions of the General Municipal Law. 1984 NY Ops Atty Gen 84-F11, 1984 N.Y. AG LEXIS 24.

A member of a town planning board may not receive compensation to represent a party in an application before that board. A local government should act to prohibit such representation, whether with or without compensation. 1984 NY Ops Atty Gen 84-3 (Informal), 1984 N.Y. AG LEXIS 86.

Record supported removal of petitioner as member of board of education where (1) she sent complaint letter to State Education Department's Office of Vocational and Educational Services for Individuals with Disabilities (VESID) alleging that district was in violation of federal and state laws and regulations and requesting that VESID investigate respondent's special education programs, (2) documents that accompanied complaint letter contained student numbers, which were personal identifiers that district assigned to each student in order to access to variety of data in district's computer programs, (3) she sent those documents to various media sources and newspapers, and (4) even after board's attorney advised her that student numbers were considered confidential, she refused to disclose identity of persons to whom she had revealed student numbers, and she refused to return to respondent's attorney copies of documents containing student numbers obtained in her capacity as board member, thereby violating her duty to district and board; petitioner had no right to retain information or copies of documents that she obtained in course of her duties as board member, and she did not appeal respondent's actions, but unilaterally defied its directives. 2009 Op Comm Ed No. 15,964, 2009 NY Educ. Dept. LEXIS 111.

Board member's surreptitious taping and disclosure of executive sessions, and her unilateral disclosure of executive session material. violated her fiduciary duties as board member, her oath of office and General Municipal Law, despite her claim that she acted in interest of justice; while individual board members are free to express their opinions and to vote separately, only majority of board can relinquish protection afforded once executive session is convened. 2005 Op Comm Ed No. 15,315, 2005 NY Educ. Dept. LEXIS 153.

While no precise legal impropriety exists where a member of a town planning board is employed with a local engineering and surveying design firm which does 95— of the subdivision work reviewed by the board and where the duties of such employment are unrelated to the preparation of subdivision plans, ethical considerations militate against such individual continuing to serve on the planning board, and this is so notwithstanding the possible applicability of a town code of ethics. 1978 Op St Compt No.. 78-218.

While there is probably no prohibited conflict of interest under Article 18 of the General Municipal Law when a village building inspector and a village trustee develop property and construct buildings in a village, even though the building inspector must review and approve his own applications for building permits, such arrangement could be held to be inconsistent with the spirit of Article 18 and, therefore, void. In addition, there may be a violation of General Municipal Law, § 805-a(1)(c) or of the local Code of Ethics. 1980 Op St Compt No. 80-437.

4. Municipal contractors

Member of town planning board may not be compensated or enter into agreement to be compensated for preparation of test borings, data from which would be incorporated into subdivision maps and site plans to be presented to planning board for review. 1995 NY Ops Atty Gen 95-14 (Informal), 1995 N.Y. AG LEXIS 69.

Representation of town board by municipal attorney in matter before zoning board of appeals is not violation of CLS Gen Mun § 805-a(1)(c); zoning board of appeals has implied authority to employ legal services regarding matter. 1997 NY Ops Atty Gen 97-41 (Informal), 1997 N.Y. AG LEXIS 137.

Independent contractor who defends town in real property tax certiorari proceedings should not serve as deputy supervisor. 2000 NY Ops Atty Gen 2000-11 (Informal), 2000 N.Y. AG LEXIS 51.

Part-time assistant town attorney whose work is limited to matters relating to town plumber's examining board may represent private clients before other town agencies so long as compensation is fixed according to reasonable value of services rendered, rather than contingent on any agency action on matter before it, and so long as individual facts of any such representation do not create appearance of impropriety or violate common-law conflict of interest standards. 2003 NY Ops Atty Gen 2003-8 (Informal), 2003 N.Y. Op. (Inf.) Att'y Gen. 8, 2003 N.Y. AG LEXIS 10.

It would be a violation of the General Municipal Law § 805-a(1)(c), (2) if a town planning board member receives compensation as a land surveyor for services involving an application to this board, even if he disqualifies himself when the board considers the application. 1978 Op St Compt No. 78-318.

A planning board member is prohibited from receiving or agreeing to receive compensation for engineering services, such as percolation test and other design work for individuals who are subdividing their property, where such subdivision applications in the future could come before the planning board. Although there is no statutory prohibition against a planning board member performing uncompensated work in connection with such matter before the board, the board member should not participate in the discussion or vote on any such matter. 1990 Op St Compt No. 90-28, 1990 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 35.

Member of county governing board who served as officer of 2 not-for-profit corporations, as well as director of one of those corporations, would have prohibited interest in contracts between county and either corporation, but must disclose any interest he may have in such contract under CLS Gen Mun § 803, and must avoid contravening statutory prohibitions against disclosure of confidential information and compensated appearances before county agencies under CLS Gen Mun § 805-a; furthermore, even if not required by county's code of ethics, county board member should not participate in county board discussions or decisions relating to county contracts with not-for profit corporations for which board member serves as officer, employee or director. 2001 Op St Compt No. 2001-9, 2001 N.Y. While it is not a conflict of interest under Article 18 where a member of a village board of trustees is an attorney whose firm stands to obtain business from a party which has an interest in an application submitted to the board for the approval of the construction of a microwave tower, nevertheless, a court could construe an affirmative vote of the board member as against public policy and invalidate the proceedings. It is recommended that the board member refrain from voting and from other board involvement concerning the application. 1982 Op St Compt No. 82-285, 1982 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 439.

Comptroller of village which prepares its own assessment roll may maintain private tax certiorari practice limited to representing owners of property located outside village without violating CLS Gen Mun Art 18. 1992 Op St Compt No. 92-22.

6. Conflicts

There is no per se conflict of interest for the director of county planning to serve on the board of directors of a savings bank located within the county. However, that person should not take advantage of information acquired during the course of his public duties to benefit the bank, and that person should not participate in reviewing proposed zoning action involving property in which the bank has a financial interest. 1975 NY Ops Atty Gen Sept 8 (Informal), 1975 N.Y. 7. Confidential information

In tort action against board of education brought by principal who had been suspended from his position pending disciplinary hearing under CLS Educ § 3020-a, court properly denied board's motion to strike certain purportedly privileged letters under CLS CPLR § 4503 and CLS Gen Mun § 805-a, both of which prohibit disclosure of confidential information, since neither statute provides for such relief once documents are made public. Sullivan v Board of Education, 131 A.D.2d 836, 517 N.Y.S.2d 197, 1987 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 48280 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1987).

In proceeding under CLS Educ § 306, petitioners' conclusory assertions did not provide basis to find that any board member revealed confidential information contained in special counsel's report to candidate for election to board in violation of CLS Gen Mun § 805-a(1)(b), where all board members stated in sworn affidavits that they never shared report with candidate, and candidate attested that no board member showed report to him. 1995 Op Comm Ed No. 13,314, 1994 NY Educ. Dept. LEXIS 227.

The applicability of the said statute when a town supervisor utilizes a town vendors list as a source of invitees for a fund raising affair depends upon whether the list is considered as "confidential information." 1982 Op St Compt No. 82-246, 1982 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 480.

Electrical contractor who is chair of town planning board and performs work for private parties may not disclose confidential information acquired in course of his or her official duties, use such information to further his or her personal interests, or agree to be paid for electrical services rendered in relation to any matter which is pending or must be brought before planning board. 1993 Op St Compt No. 93-23.

Arrangement whereby recording secretary of town planning board is employed by consulting engineer who regularly represents developers in matters before planning board would not appear to raise questions as to potential prohibited interests in town contracts; however, secretary would be prohibited from performing services for engineering firm in relation to any matter before, or to come before planning board, and he or she would be prohibited from disclosing any confidential information acquired in course of his or her duties as secretary to planning board, or using any such information to further personal interests. 1997 Op St Compt No. 97-12, 1997 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 7.

Statements made by a particular member of a Town Board to a representative of the news media in opposition to a bid on property received by the Board despite the Board's holding of an executive session, does not represent a violation of Public Officers Law § 98 but may be a violation of General Municipal Law § 805-a in that one may argue that the information under discussion in the executive session was "confidential" and the Town Board member's disclosure might have jeopardized the Town's position in the bidding process. NY Comm Pub Acc Rec, OML—Ad Op 561.

Commissioner of Education's removal of a board member from his school board position was proper because he was removed for violating the statute by disclosing confidential information from a Board executive session, not as a result of allegedly protected speech, there was a break in the causal connection between his speech and the filing of the removal application, and he would have been removed despite his protected comments. Matter of Paladino v Board of Educ. for the City of Buffalo Pub. Sch. Dist., 183 A.D.3d 1043, 124 N.Y.S.3d 409, 2020 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2937 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2020).

Agency Opinions

1. Confidential information

Matters properly discussed by board of education in executive session, although not public knowledge, were not "confidential" under CLS Gen Mun § 805-a(1)(b), and board member could not be prohibited from disclosing information acquired in executive sessions, since information is "confidential" only when government has no discretion and must withhold records or discuss matter in private, and matters appropriate for executive sessions could be discussed in open meetings at option of board; school district matters are "confidential" only rarely, e.g., when information involves student records or records subject to attorney-client privilege. Davies, Article 18 of New York's General Municipal Law: the state conflicts of interest law for municipal officials. 59 Alb. L. Rev. 1321.

§ 806. Code of ethics

1. (a) The governing body of each county, city, town, village, school district and fire district shall and the governing body of any other municipality may by local law, ordinance or resolution adopt a code of ethics setting forth for the guidance of its officers and employees the standards of conduct reasonably expected of them. Notwithstanding any other provision of this article to the contrary, a fire district code of ethics shall also apply to the volunteer members of the fire district fire department. Codes of ethics shall provide standards for officers and employees with respect to disclosure of interest in legislation before the local governing body, holding of investments in conflict with official duties, private employment in conflict with official duties, future employment and such other standards relating to the conduct of officers and employees as may be deemed advisable. Such codes may regulate or prescribe conduct which is not expressly prohibited by this article but may not authorize conduct otherwise prohibited. Such codes may provide for the prohibition of conduct or disclosure of information and the classification of employees or officers.

(b) Effective on and after January first, nineteen hundred ninety-one, such codes of political subdivisions, as defined in section eight hundred ten of this article, may contain provisions which require the filing of completed annual statements of financial disclosure with the appropriate body, as defined in section eight hundred ten of this article. Nothing herein shall be construed to restrict any political subdivision or any other municipality from requiring such a filing prior to January first, nineteen hundred ninety-one. Other than as required by subdivision two of section eight hundred eleven of this article, the governing body of any such political subdivision or other municipality may at any time subsequent to the effective date of this paragraph, adopt a local law, ordinance or resolution pursuant to subdivision one of section eight hundred eleven of this article and any such political subdivision or municipality, acting by its governing body, may take such other action as is authorized in such subdivision. Any political subdivision or other municipality to which all of the provisions of section eight hundred twelve of this article apply may elect to remove itself from the ambit of all (but not some) provisions of such section in the manner authorized in subdivision three of such section eight hundred twelve. In such event any such political subdivision or municipality shall be subject to certain conditions and limitations set forth in paragraphs (a), (b) and (c) of such subdivision three which shall include, but not be limited to, the promulgation of a form of an annual statement of financial disclosure described in subdivision one of such section eight hundred eleven.

2. The chief executive officer of a municipality adopting a code of ethics shall cause a copy thereof to be distributed to every officer and employee of his municipality. The fire district commissioners shall cause a copy of the fire district's code of ethics to be posted publicly and conspicuously in each building under such district's control. Failure to distribute any such copy or failure of any officer or employee to receive such copy shall have no effect on the duty of compliance with such code, nor the enforcement of provisions thereof.

Editor's Notes: Laws 1964, ch 946, §§ 1 and 13–17, provide as follows:

Section 1. Declaration of policy and purpose. As government becomes increasingly complex, as our democratic processes draw citizens from every walk of life, there is increasing need for known standards of ethical conduct as a guide for public officers. These standards must rest primarily on personal integrity and on community vigilance: law cannot in itself create moral fiber, nor can law quicken the civic conscience. In support of these basic standards, it is the purpose of this chapter to define areas of conflicts of interest in municipal transactions, leaving to each community the expression of its own code of ethics.

The need for the statute does not spring from widespread malfeasance on the part of municipal officers; rather, the Legislature recognizes their integrity as a group, their culpability in only a few instances. But lest the few brand the many, the discernment of the offending case must be made certain, its elimination sure. Existing law is too complex, too inconsistent, too overgrown with exceptions, for such a clarity of understanding to be possible. Basic concepts must be retained, but something more than recodification is needed.

There is another and equally important objective: a formula of conduct which is not only clear but reasonable, one which will permit governmental employees to share the normal benefits of the democratic society and economy they serve. If government is to attract and hold competent administrators, public service must not require a complete divesting of all proprietary interests. Real conflict must be rooted out, without condemning the inconsequential.

The chapter, then, has a trinity of purposes: to protect the public from municipal contracts influenced by avaricious officers, to protect innocent public officers from unwarranted assaults on their integrity and to encourage each community to adopt an appropriate code of ethics to supplement this chapter. The Legislature declares that each purpose is a matter of State concern and adopts the following chapter accordingly, with the intention that it shall be the generic law in relation to conflicts of interest in municipal transactions, not to be superseded by local law of any municipality subject to its provisions.

§ 13. Laws superseded. The provisions of article eighteen of the general municipal law, as added by this act, shall supersede any local law, charter, ordinance, resolution, rule or regulation of any municipality to the extent that such local law, charter, ordinance, resolution, rule or regulation is inconsistent with the provisions thereof. No local law, ordinance, resolution, rule or regulation shall modify or dispense with any provision of article eighteen of the general municipal law, as added by this act; provided, however, that nothing herein contained shall prohibit a code of ethics adopted pursuant thereto from supplementing the provisions of this act.

§ 14. Pending actions and proceedings. No action or proceeding pending at the time when this act shall take effect shall be affected by any provision of this act, but the same may be prosecuted, defended or enforced as if this act had not been enacted.

§ 15. Existing rights and remedies preserved. No existing right or remedy of any character shall be lost, impaired or affected by reason of this act, nor shall the validity of any action taken by any public official under the law in force immediately prior to the time this act shall take effect be affected by the enactment of this act.

§ 16. Laws repealed. Of the laws enumerated in the schedule hereto annexed, that portion specified in the last column is hereby repealed.

Laws 1987, ch 813, § 1, eff Aug 7, 1987, provides as follows:

Section 1. Short title. Sections two through seventeen of this act shall be known and may be cited as the "Ethics in Government Act".

1. Generally

Federal Election Campaign Act (2 USCS §§ 453 et seq.) does not preempt New York City Charter's conflict of interest rules, or limit jurisdiction of New York City Conflicts of Interest Board over ethical violations allegedly committed by New York City Comptroller. Holtzman v Oliensis, 91 N.Y.2d 488, 673 N.Y.S.2d 23, 695 N.E.2d 1104, 1998 N.Y. LEXIS 1020 (N.Y. 1998).

In enacting section 806 of the General Municipal Law, which mandates the governing body of each county, city, town, village and school district, and authorizes the governing body of any other municipality, to adopt a code of ethics setting forth standards of conduct for its officers and employees with respect to specified matters "and such other standards relating to the conduct of officers and employees as may be deemed advisable", and also provides that such codes "may regulate or prescribe conduct which is not expressly prohibited by this article . . . [and] may provide for the prohibition of conduct", the State has clearly expressed an intention not to occupy the field of ethical standards for officers and employees of local governments. Belle v Town Bd. of Onondaga, 61 A.D.2d 352, 402 N.Y.S.2d 677, 1978 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9745 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1978).

2. Applicability

Respondent properly interpreted New York City Charter's conflict of interest provisions as applying to comptroller's imposition of "quiet period," during which she and her staff could have no communications with firms that responded to request for proposals (RFP) for selection of new co-management team to underwrite city's general obligations and water bonds, as comptroller thereby obtained advantage through her public office in that she had debtor-creditor relationship with bank that responded to RFP and she deferred collection of her debt to bank during pendency of selection process. Holtzman v Oliensis, 91 N.Y.2d 488, 673 N.Y.S.2d 23, 695 N.E.2d 1104, 1998 N.Y. LEXIS 1020 (N.Y. 1998).

In upholding respondent's determination that comptroller was guilty of ethical violations, court properly dismissed argument that comptroller's conduct was exempt from conflict of interest rules pursuant to New York City Charter § 2604(c)(3), which states that public servant is not prohibited from obtaining loan from any financial institution on terms and conditions available to general public, as comptroller was sanctioned for failing to recuse herself from selection of new co-management team to underwrite city obligations after bank with which she had debtor-credit relationship responded to her request for proposals (RFP), not for obtaining loan, and for availing herself of "quiet period" during which she and her staff could have no communications with firms that applied, thereby delaying her payment on loan. Holtzman v Oliensis, 91 N.Y.2d 488, 673 N.Y.S.2d 23, 695 N.E.2d 1104, 1998 N.Y. LEXIS 1020 (N.Y. 1998).

Town board's determination that Superintendent of Water and Sewer Department had violated code of ethics by accepting stereo as gift from chemical supplier and then replacing chemicals of other suppliers with donor's chemicals and that superintendent had been derelict and incompetent in the performance of his official duties in failing to notify town supervisor or county health department of fact that malfunctioning pumping station was causing raw sewage to be dumped into river was supported by substantial evidence. Merrin v Town Board of Kirkwood, 48 A.D.2d 992, 369 N.Y.S.2d 878, 1975 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10299 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1975).

While it is doubtful that a material benefit would enure to a Village Trustee by virtue of the granting of a special permit by the Village Board of Trustees to an applicant who is the landlord of such Trustee simply because such Trustee, as a tenant, may thereupon become entitled to use the recreational facility to be constructed by his landlord, it is recommended that disclosure of such possible interest be made and that the Village Code of Ethics be examined and the question submitted to the County Board of Ethics, provided one has been established by the County. 1973 NY Ops Atty Gen March 6 (Informal), 1973 N.Y. AG LEXIS 43.

Matters relating to the Judiciary in the State of New York are of State concern and Chapter VIII, section 90, subdivision 5, of the Ordinances of the City of Buffalo relating to disclosures by certain officers or employees of the City of Buffalo does not apply to a Judge of the City Court of Buffalo. 1975 NY Ops Atty Gen Feb 20 (Informal), 1975 N.Y. Pending litigation against municipal board or board members does not as matter of law require that board members recuse themselves in separate application by party that commenced lawsuit; however, recusal may be appropriate in particular cases. 2000 NY Ops Atty Gen 2000-22 (Informal), 2000 N.Y. AG LEXIS 62.

Petitioners, two board members, seek a determination annulling that part of the code of ethics adopted by the Board of Education which prohibits board members from voting on employment contracts of their spouses. Sections 800(3) of the General Municipal Law carves out an exception to the conflict of interest rule that prohibits a board member from having an interest in any contract of a spouse which the board has the power or duty to negotiate, authorize, or approve. By expressly exempting spousal contracts from § 801's prohibition against conflicts of interest, the Legislature has adjudged it permissible for a school board member to vote on the employment contract of a spouse. The Board of Education may not override this plain intent by enacting ethical codes at odd with the General Municipal Law. The Board of Education's prohibition is also inconsistent with § 3016(2) of the Education Law, which allows school districts to employ as teachers a relative of board members, so long as such employment is approved by two-thirds of the members of the board. Conspicuously absent from this provision is any restriction on the exercise of power by board members whose spouses are employed by the district as teachers. The reasonable inference drawn from this omission is that the Legislature did not intend to restrict board members from voting on their spouses' employment contracts. By enacting a standard which does precisely that, the Board of Education has contravened the plain intent of § 3016, and has, in effect, prevented certain board members from substantially performing the duties of office. Accordingly, the provision of the Board of Education's ethics code which prohibit board members from voting on the employment contract of their spouses is an excess of the authority of the Board of Education, and is null and void. 1991 Op Comm Ed No. 12,447.

The City of Batavia code of ethics may not, by local legislation, be made applicable to the officers and employees of the Batavia Urban Renewal Agency or the Batavia Housing Authority. 1969 Op St Compt No. 69-649.

The county code of ethics is inapplicable to the members, officers and employees of the county industrial development agency. 1973 Op St Compt No. 73-919.

A city code of ethics does not have application to a physician who is an employee of a professional corporation which contracts with a city hospital for pathology services. 1978 Op St Compt No. 78-825.

While there is probably no prohibited conflict of interest under Article 18 of the General Municipal Law when a village building inspector and a village trustee develop property and construct buildings in a village, even though the building inspector must review and approve his own applications for building permits, such arrangement could be held to be inconsistent with the spirit of Article 18 and, therefore, void. In addition, there may be a violation of General Municipal Law, § 805-a(1)(c) or of the local Code of Ethics. 1980 Op St Compt No. 80-437.

The propriety of a County Assistant Sealer of Weights and Measures engaging in the business of selling to merchants weighing devices which are subject to inspection (after purchase by the merchants) by the County Office of Sealer of Weights and Measures, is a matter for local determination. 1980 Op St Compt No. 80-697.

A member of a town board who, as a renter of a house located on a parcel of property for which re-zoning is sought, would be forced to re-locate if the zoning change is granted, is not legally precluded from voting on the application. However, the town code of ethics may be pertinent. 1982 Op St Compt 82-200, 1982 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 727.

Town's code of ethics does not apply to officers and employees of fire district located within town, and town's board of ethics may not act with respect to officers and employees of fire district located within town. 1989 Op St Compt No. 89-20, 1989 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 23.

3. Authority of board

A local government, through enactment of a local law, may grant to its board of ethics the authority to receive complaints alleging violations of ethics regulations, to investigate these complaints, and to conduct investigations on its own initiative as to whether violations of ethics standards have occurred; moreover, the board may be given enforcement authority and the local law may provide for the administering of penalties. 1991 NY Ops Atty Gen 91-68 (Informal), 1991 N.Y. AG LEXIS 80.

A village board of ethics may not be authorized by local legislation to render opinions at the request of the general public. 1974 Op St Compt No. 74-583.

Failure of a municipality to advise the State Comptroller of the establishment of a board of ethics does not affect the legality of the board or of acts performed by it. 1974 Op St Compt No. 74-719.

Town's code of ethics does not apply to officers and employees of fire district located within town, and town's board of ethics may not act with respect to officers and employees of fire district located within town. 1989 Op St Compt No. 89-20, 1989 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 23.

4. Filing and distribution

Alleged failure to serve copy of code of ethics on town employee did not excuse employee from complying with code nor did it affect enforcement of code's provisions. Merrin v Town Board of Kirkwood, 48 A.D.2d 992, 369 N.Y.S.2d 878, 1975 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10299 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1975).

The filing of a municipal or school district code of ethics with the State Comptroller, as required by the said statute, is not a prerequisite to the validity thereof. 1978 Op St Compt No. 78-245.

5. Appointment of municipal officials

No patent conflict of interest ensues from the appointment of a licensed real estate broker to the office of town assessor. A member of a town board may be appointed by that board to the town board of assessment review in accordance with Real Property Tax Law § 1524. 1972 NY Ops Atty Gen Apr 6 (Informal), 1972 N.Y. AG LEXIS 81.

An attorney may be appointed school district attorney even though the attorney's spouse is a member of the board of education of the school district. The authorization contained in General Municipal Law § 800 subdivision 3 constitutes a waiver of the prohibition of such a contract when the contract relates to a spouse of a board member; it is so broad in its terms that there is no reason why the spouse of the attorney may not vote upon the question of the attorney's employment and upon matters relating to the attorney's salary and/or expense vouchers. 1977 NY Ops Atty Gen Dec 27 (Informal), 1977 N.Y. AG LEXIS 370.

A town councilman simultaneously may hold a position with the county purchasing department of the county within which the town lies. 1980 NY Ops Atty Gen Oct. 21 (Informal), 1980 N.Y. AG LEXIS 51.

One person simultaneously may hold the two village offices of building inspector and village engineer. 1981 NY Ops Atty Gen June 2 (Informal), 1981 N.Y. AG LEXIS 74.

A village code of ethics may include a provision barring any village officer or employee from appearing before a board or commission on behalf of a client if such former officer or employee was instrumental in the appointment of a member of the board or commission, although the enforceability of such a provision is open to question. 1974 Op St Compt No. 74-583.

When a town assessor also is a land developer, contractor, home builder and realtor; whether any given transaction results in a statutory conflict of interest depends upon the facts. Whether it is advisable for a town board to appoint such a person as town assessor when there is a potential for lawsuits by him against the town involving his business undertakings, is questionable, but for determination by the town board. 1981 Op St Compt No. 81-64, 1981 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 825.

Appointment of town supervisor's business partner to office of town comptroller, by itself, did not constitute prohibited conflict of interest, but supervisor and comptroller would have prohibited interest in contracts between town and partnership, unless exception in CLS Gen Mun § 802 applied; compensated appearances, or performance of other compensated services on behalf of clients of partnership in connection with matters before town may violate CLS Gen Mun § 805-a, depending on particular circumstances. 1998 Op St Compt No. 98-3, 1998 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 3.

6. Attorneys subject to code of ethics

Where a Village Urban Renewal Agency is represented by counsel other than the Village Attorney no conflict of interest prohibited by the General Municipal Law will result from the Village Attorney representing clients whose real property is being acquired by the Agency whether by negotiation or condemnation. However, in view of the dependency of the Agency upon the village and the cooperation necessary between the officers and employees of both, questions of professional ethics may arise. 1969 NY Ops Atty Gen Dec 15 (Informal), 1969 N.Y. AG LEXIS 111.

In the absence of a provision in the retainer agreement, the town code of ethics can and may govern private practice of a special town counsel and the county board of ethics may issue opinions as to propriety of such practice. 1971 NY Ops Atty Gen Aug 24 (Informal), 1971 N.Y. AG LEXIS 105.

The attorney for a county sewer district who is later elected to the position of part-time district attorney and who intends to hold both positions, must make a disclosure of interest under section 803 of Article 18 of the General Municipal Law. 1983 NY Ops Atty Gen 83-45 (Informal), 1983 N.Y. Op. Att'y Gen. No. 83-45, 1983 N.Y. AG LEXIS 49.

A community college sponsored by a county is considered as an agency of the county. A county legislator would be in violation of the county code of ethics should the law firm of which he is a partner represent a client involved in litigation against the county community college. 1974 Op St Compt No. 74-768.

There is no legal prohibition against an attorney, who is a village trustee, accepting a fee for work done in representing a private client in an action against the village prior to the time he assumed office. 1980 Op St Compt No. 80-421.

7. Contract interests

School board member who voted to approve paid services of insurance consultant with whom he had preexisting fee sharing arrangement, and voted to approve contracts with insurance provider from which he benefited financially, while supposedly acting under CLS Educ § 1709(34-a), was properly charged with official misconduct where grand jury evidence indicated that he was aware of his statutory duties, including his ethical obligation to perform those duties free from conflicts and disclose such conflicts; mere fact that conduct charged was also prohibited by rules of ethical conduct adopted by school board under CLS Gen Mun § 806 did not preclude criminal prosecution. People v Lynch, 176 Misc. 2d 430, 674 N.Y.S.2d 894, 1998 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 117 (N.Y. County Ct. 1998).

No conflict of interest results from the designation of a bank as a depository of a county sewer district even though one member of said district is also a member of the Advisory Board of a branch of said bank and another member of said district is the President in charge of a branch of said bank, provided that neither of them is the chief fiscal officer, treasurer, or his deputy or employee of the sewer district. However, disclosure of interest must be made in accordance with General Municipal Law § 803. 1972 NY Ops Atty Gen Nov 2 (Informal), 1972 N.Y. AG LEXIS 154.

Under the above sections a prohibited conflict of interest would not arise if the appointive Zoning Inspector for the Town of Rochester sold a gravel bank to the Town, provided that full disclosure was made of such transaction and that such sale was not violative of the Code of Ethics adopted by the Town of Rochester. 1973 NY Ops Atty Gen Feb 27 (Informal), 1973 N.Y. AG LEXIS 37.

A contracting firm, in which a town police commissioner is the majority stockholder, may bid upon, or accept local contracts upon which no bid is required, so long as the commissioner does not have a municipal function defined in General Municipal Law, § 801. Compliance should be had with the applicable code of ethics of the town established by General Municipal Law § 806. Interpretations of the code may be requested of the board of ethics of Westchester County if such a board has been established under General Municipal Law § 808. 1974 NY Ops Atty Gen Nov 18 (Informal), 1974 N.Y. AG LEXIS 180.

A prohibited conflict of interest under section 801 of the General Municipal Law does not arise when a county civil service commissioner receives a pecuniary benefit as the result of services performed for an insurance agency relating to a contract which the agency has with the county in which the commissioner serves. 1975 NY Ops Atty Gen May 8 (Informal), 1975 N.Y. AG LEXIS 115.

County Law, § 214(2) requires the publication of the complete text of each local law, and there is no statutorily prohibited conflict of interest where a member of the Orleans County Planning Board has a contract with the County for the disposition of solid waste material in a landfill. 1978 NY Ops Atty Gen August 7 (Informal), 1978 N.Y. AG LEXIS 340.

A retired teacher who receives retirement benefits under a collective bargaining agreement, and who retains the right to vote for union officials and to approve future collective bargaining agreements may not serve as a member of the school board in that school district. Furthermore, resignation from the union would not change our finding that a conflict of interest exists. 1985 NY Ops Atty Gen 85-33 Informal), 1985 N.Y. AG LEXIS 64.

8. Employment conflicts; assessors

Evidence supported determination that comptroller obtained personal advantage from imposition of "quiet period" during which (to avoid appearance of bias or preferential treatment) she and her staff could have no communications with firms that responded to request for proposals (RFP) for selection of new co-management team to underwrite city's general obligations and water bonds, where she had debtor-creditor relationship with bank that responded to RFP, she did not recuse herself from participation in selection process or disclose her debtor-creditor relationship with bank, and she was able to defer repayment of loan during quiet period. Holtzman v Oliensis, 91 N.Y.2d 488, 673 N.Y.S.2d 23, 695 N.E.2d 1104, 1998 N.Y. LEXIS 1020 (N.Y. 1998).

The fact that one engages in the contracting business within a city does not disqualify such person from being an assessor in said city, provided, however, that such person does not participate in the assessment of property upon which he has performed any contracting work. 1975 NY Ops Atty Gen March 3 (Informal), 1975 N.Y. AG LEXIS 82.

The question of whether or not an individual who is an active real estate broker in the Town of Brunswick and is also involved in residential construction in that township ought to be barred from serving on that Town's Board of Assessment Review because of possible conflicts of interest is primarily a consideration involving a question of ethics, and, there being no express statutory proscription against simultaneous involvement in these endeavors, should be decided by applying the local code of ethics and, if necessary, referring such question to an appropriate local board of ethics. 1978 NY Ops Atty Gen Jan 25 (Informal), 1978 N.Y. AG LEXIS 252.

The simultaneous holding of the two positions of clerk of the board of assessors and member of the board of assessors (or sole assessor) by the same person would constitute an incompatibility in function and a conflict of interest and if a clerk is successful in a campaign for election as assessor she must then choose which of the positions she wishes to hold; she cannot hold both at the same time. 1979 NY Ops Atty Gen Oct 18 (Informal), 1979 N.Y. 10. —County officials

Positions of county legislator and senior clerk of county board of elections were incompatible, and thus one person could not occupy both positions, since legislator would be in position to vote on budget and personnel of board of elections, as well as salary of commissioners who were clerk's supervisors and who could remove clerk at their pleasure; such conflict could not be ameliorated by legislator recusing herself from any votes on budget of board of elections since budget was established in consideration of needs of other county agencies and departments and resources of county, so that legislator would have to recuse herself from entire budgetary process to remove any suggestion of conflict of interest or appearance of impropriety, which would deprive constituents of voice in significant aspect of legislature's responsibilities. Dupras v County of Clinton, 213 A.D.2d 952, 624 N.Y.S.2d 309, 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3343 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1995).

14. Restraints on political activity

Municipalities may enact local laws restricting municipal officers, employees and board members from holding offices in political parties, under the authority of section 806 of the General Municipal Law, which mandates the governing body of each county, city, town, village and school district, and authorizes the governing body of any other municipality, to adopt a code of ethics setting forth standards of conduct for its officers and employees with respect to specified matters "and such other standards relating to the conduct of officers and employees as may be deemed advisable", and also provides that such codes "may regulate or prescribe conduct which is not expressly prohibited by this article . . . [and] may provide for the prohibition of conduct". Belle v Town Bd. of Onondaga, 61 A.D.2d 352, 402 N.Y.S.2d 677, 1978 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9745 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1978).

Provision of code of ethics adopted by board of education pursuant to Gen. Mun. § 806(1), whereby members of immediate family of any board member are precluded from full-time employment with school district, cannot be applied as additional eligibility requirement for board membership, since Educ. § 2102 establishes the qualifications for board membership, and statutory provisions dealing with conflict of interest specifically except from the definition of "interest" the employment of immediate family members (Gen. Mun. § 800). 1984 Op Comm Ed No. 11,211.

There is nothing prohibiting town board member from voting on salaries for family members who are elected or appointed town officials; however, under CLS Gen Mun § 806, town board may require in its code of ethics that town board members abstain from voting on resolutions fixing salaries of relatives who are town officials and, even if code of ethics does not require abstention, affected board members should recuse themselves from discussion and abstain from voting on matters relating solely or primarily to salaries of family members. 2000 Op St Compt No. 2000-12.

§ 807. Posting of statute

The chief executive officer of each municipality shall cause a copy of sections eight hundred through eight hundred nine of this article to be kept posted in each public building under the jurisdiction of his or her municipality in a place conspicuous to its officers and employees. Failure to post any such copy shall have no effect on the duty of compliance with this article, nor with the enforcement of the provisions thereof.

Editor's Notes: Laws 1964, ch 946, §§ 1 and 13–17, provide as follows:

Section 1. Declaration of policy and purpose. As government becomes increasingly complex, as our democratic processes draw citizens from every walk of life, there is increasing need for known standards of ethical conduct as a guide for public officers. These standards must rest primarily on personal integrity and on community vigilance: law cannot in itself create moral fiber, nor can law quicken the civic conscience. In support of these basic standards, it is the purpose of this chapter to define areas of conflicts of interest in municipal transactions, leaving to each community the expression of its own code of ethics.

The need for the statute does not spring from widespread malfeasance on the part of municipal officers; rather, the Legislature recognizes their integrity as a group, their culpability in only a few instances. But lest the few brand the many, the discernment of the offending case must be made certain, its elimination sure. Existing law is too complex, too inconsistent, too overgrown with exceptions, for such a clarity of understanding to be possible. Basic concepts must be retained, but something more than recodification is needed.

There is another and equally important objective: a formula of conduct which is not only clear but reasonable, one which will permit governmental employees to share the normal benefits of the democratic society and economy they serve. If government is to attract and hold competent administrators, public service must not require a complete divesting of all proprietary interests. Real conflict must be rooted out, without condemning the inconsequential.

The chapter, then, has a trinity of purposes: to protect the public from municipal contracts influenced by avaricious officers, to protect innocent public officers from unwarranted assaults on their integrity and to encourage each community to adopt an appropriate code of ethics to supplement this chapter. The Legislature declares that each purpose is a matter of State concern and adopts the following chapter accordingly, with the intention that it shall be the generic law in relation to conflicts of interest in municipal transactions, not to be superseded by local law of any municipality subject to its provisions.

§ 13. Laws superseded. The provisions of article eighteen of the general municipal law, as added by this act, shall supersede any local law, charter, ordinance, resolution, rule or regulation of any municipality to the extent that such local law, charter, ordinance, resolution, rule or regulation is inconsistent with the provisions thereof. No local law, ordinance, resolution, rule or regulation shall modify or dispense with any provision of article eighteen of the general municipal law, as added by this act; provided, however, that nothing herein contained shall prohibit a code of ethics adopted pursuant thereto from supplementing the provisions of this act.

§ 14. Pending actions and proceedings. No action or proceeding pending at the time when this act shall take effect shall be affected by any provision of this act, but the same may be prosecuted, defended or enforced as if this act had not been enacted.

§ 15. Existing rights and remedies preserved. No existing right or remedy of any character shall be lost, impaired or affected by reason of this act, nor shall the validity of any action taken by any public official under the law in force immediately prior to the time this act shall take effect be affected by the enactment of this act.

§ 16. Laws repealed. Of the laws enumerated in the schedule hereto annexed, that portion specified in the last column is hereby repealed.

§ 17. Effective date. This act shall take effect September first, nineteen hundred sixty-four.

TITLE 1 Infancy

HISTORY:
Add, L 1963, ch 576, § 1, eff Sept 27, 1964.

§ 3-112. Liability of parents and legal guardians having custody of an infant for certain damages caused by such infant

1. The parent or legal guardian, other than the state, a local social services department or a foster parent, of an infant over ten and less than eighteen years of age, shall be liable to any public officer, organization or authority, having by law the care and/or custody of any public property of the state or of any political subdivision thereof, or to any private individual or organization having by law the care, custody and/or ownership of any private property, for damages caused by such infant, where such infant has willfully, maliciously, or unlawfully damaged, defaced or destroyed such public or private property, whether real or personal, or, where such infant, with intent to deprive the owner and/or custodian of such property or to appropriate the same to himself or herself or to a third person, has knowingly entered or remained in a building and has wrongfully taken, obtained or withheld such public or private personal property from such building which personal property is owned or maintained by the state or any political subdivision thereof or which is owned or maintained by any individual, organization or authority, or where such infant has falsely reported an incident or placed a false bomb as defined in section 240.50, subdivision one or two of section 240.55, section 240.60 or section 240.61 of the penal law. Such public officer, organization or authority, or private individual or organization, as the case may be, may bring an action for civil damages in a court of competent jurisdiction for a judgment to recover such damages from such parent or legal guardian other than the state or a local social services department or a foster parent. For the purposes of this subdivision, damages for falsely reporting an incident or placing a false bomb shall mean the funds reasonably expended by a victim in responding to such false report, as set forth in subdivision eleven of section 60.27 of the penal law. In no event shall such damages portion of a judgment authorized by this section, as described in this subdivision, exceed the sum of five thousand dollars.

2. Notwithstanding the provisions of subdivision one of this section, prior to the entering of a judgment under this section in the sum total of five hundred dollars or more, the court shall provide such parent or legal guardian of such infant with an opportunity to make an application to the court based upon such parent's or legal guardian's financial inability to pay any portion or all of the amount of such sum total which is in excess of five hundred dollars, and upon the return date of such application, or any adjournment thereof, the court shall, in summary fashion, hear and consider all evidence of financial hardship presented tending to establish the inability of such parent or legal guardian to pay any or all of the amount of the sum total in excess of five hundred dollars, and the court shall render its decision as to such party's inability to make such payment based upon a preponderance of the evidence presented. Upon a decision that such party has established his or her inability to make such payment, the court shall enter the judgment authorized by this section but in an amount within the financial capacity of such parent or legal guardian, provided, however, that since the original of the sum total exceeded five hundred dollars, no such judgment shall be entered for an amount which is less than five hundred dollars.

3. It shall be a defense to an action brought under this section that restitution has been paid pursuant to section seven hundred fifty-eight-a or 353.6 of the family court act, or paragraph (g) of subdivision two of section 65.10 of the penal law. It shall also be a defense to an action brought under this section that such infant had voluntarily and without good cause abandoned the home of the parent or guardian and without good cause refused to submit to the guidance and control of the parent or guardian prior to and at the time of the occurrence of such damages or destruction. In no event shall it be a defense that the parent or legal guardian has exercised due diligent supervision over the activities of such infant, provided, however, that in the interests of justice, the court may consider mitigating circumstances that bear directly upon the actions of the parent or legal guardian in supervising such unemancipated infant.

4. For the purposes of this section the following definitions shall apply:

a. The terms "enters or remains unlawfully" and "building" shall have the same meaning as ascribed to such terms in section 140.00 of the penal law.

b. "Public officer, organization or authority" shall include but not be limited to: those having by law the care and custody of a municipal district or corporation; those having by law the care and custody of the public property of the state or of any agency, department, board, bureau, commission, division, office, council, committee of the state, or of a public benefit corporation or public authority; and the board of education or trustees of any city, union free or common school district or the city board of any New York City community school district.

c. "Private individual or organization" shall include, but not be limited to: any individual, private or public corporation or partnership or sole proprietorship, organized church, synagogue or temple, not-for-profit organization or corporation, cemetery corporation, or, if such liability is as a result of damage upon any cemetery plot or mausoleum, the next of kin of a person upon whose gravesite such damage or destruction occurred.

Notes to Decisions

Fifteen-year-old boy's act in striking at another teenager constituted an assault and thus a willful and unlawful act within meaning of statute making parent or legal guardian liable civilly for damage caused by willful and unlawful act of minor. Izzo v Gratton, 86 Misc. 2d 233, 383 N.Y.S.2d 523, 1976 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2125 (N.Y. City Ct. 1976).

Where legal guardian of 15-year-old boy had no control over boy's assault of another teenage and had no warning or notice of boy's altercations with others or his continuing dispute with assaulted teenager, guardian could not be held liable for property damage caused during the assault. Izzo v Gratton, 86 Misc. 2d 233, 383 N.Y.S.2d 523, 1976 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2125 (N.Y. City Ct. 1976).

Where, in a paternity proceeding, in which the respondent, who was an infant, 17 years old, at the time the proceeding was commenced, the defects in service, which was made on the respondent only, were cured when he made a voluntary, general appearance after reaching majority, where no guardian ad litem was appointed for the respondent prior to his reaching majority, where the respondent's parents never appeared with him in court, and where the motion for an order requiring the respondent's parents to pay the cost for the blood-grouping test, which had been moved for by respondent, were never served on them, the parents could not be ordered to pay for the blood-grouping tests. Richardson v Gibson, 110 Misc. 2d 20, 441 N.Y.S.2d 641, 1981 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3035 (N.Y. Fam. Ct. 1981).

Although their 11-year-old child acted negligently when he threw a set of keys onto a street in the course of playing a game with other children, no liability would attach to the parents under Gen Oblig Law § 3-112 for the resulting property damage to a passing car, where the infant did not act with wilful or malicious intent. Deliso v Cangialosi, 117 Misc. 2d 105, 457 N.Y.S.2d 396, 1982 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 4028 (N.Y. Civ. Ct. 1982), aff'd, 124 Misc. 2d 822, 480 N.Y.S.2d 315, 1984 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3344 (N.Y. App. Term 1984).

A father could be held liable up the statutory maximum of $1,500 for his son's unlawful act of maliciously destroying an automobile, causing $2,500 in damages, even though his son had made restitution in the amount of $479.21 as ordered by the court as a condition of being treated as a youthful offender and receiving a sentence of probation, since the amount of court-ordered compensation was limited by Penal L § 65.10 to the amount defendant's son could afford to pay, while the father's responsibility as a parent to reimburse the insured party for his son's act up to a maximum of $1,500 under Gen Oblig Law § 3-112 was separate and distinct and under that statute the wrongdoer's parent was entitled to benefit from any court-ordered restitution only to the extent by which it reduced the actual damages remaining unpaid below the statutory liability limit. A. v B., 121 Misc. 2d 750, 468 N.Y.S.2d 992, 1983 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3995 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1983).

Court would dismiss small claims action brought by mother of 17-year-old girl under Parental Liability Act (CLS Gen Oblig § 3-112) seeking damages for injuries and loss of personal property sustained by her child during fight with defendant's daughter, also 17 years old, since Act was unconstitutional bill of attainder in substantial intent and practical effect inasmuch as it imposed tort liability on parents or legal guardians for malicious and destructive acts of minor children in their custody, predicated solely on blood relation (or its legal equivalent) of parent and child. Owens v Ivey, 138 Misc. 2d 671, 525 N.Y.S.2d 508, 1988 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 151 (N.Y. City Ct. 1988).

Defendant, who had joint but not physical custody of his 17-year-old daughter at time she took plaintiff's vehicle, was not liable under CLS Gen Oblig § 3-112 for any portion of damages arising from his daughter's unauthorized use of vehicle; it would be unfair to impose such liability where parent, such as defendant, could not have done anything to prevent incident from taking place. Leonard v O'Neil, 159 Misc. 2d 1029, 608 N.Y.S.2d 618, 1994 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 7 (N.Y. J. Ct. 1994).

Agency Opinions

The State Legislature, by enacting and/or amending statutes such as General Obligations Law § 3-112; Executive Law § 171; Family Court Act §§ 755, 756, 757 and 758-a; General Municipal Law § 78-a; Education Law §§ 1604(35), 1709(36), 2503(18), 2554(16-b), 2590-g(15), and Penal Law § 260.10(2), has preempted the field of legislation on the subject of parental responsibility for the acts of a minor and a municipality has no authority to legislate in this field. 1977 NY Ops Atty Gen Dec 27 (Informal), 1977 N.Y. AG LEXIS 369.

A town has no authority to enact a juvenile curfew that holds parents responsible for their children's violation of the curfew. A town does have authority to enact a juvenile curfew under its police power if the curfew is necessary for the protection or preservation of the public health, safety and welfare. However, such curfew must be reasonable in relation to the ends sought to be achieved and should be narrowly drawn to avoid infringing on the fundamental rights of juveniles. 1980 NY Ops Atty Gen Dec. 15 (informal).

Repeal of various statutes concerning parental responsibility of acts of minor does not necessarily indicate, for purposes of determining permissible extent of local authority, that Legislature intended to narrow scope of state legislation with respect to civil liability of parents for acts of their children, since such repeal was consolidation of those provisions into current CLS Gen Oblig § 3-112. 2005 NY Ops Atty Gen I 05-13.

TITLE 1 Compensation

HISTORY:
Add, L 1963, ch 576, § 1, eff Sept 27, 1964.

§ 11-106. Compensation for injury or death to police officers and firefighters or their estates

1. In addition to any other right of action or recovery otherwise available under law, whenever any police officer or firefighter suffers any injury, disease or death while in the lawful discharge of his official duties and that injury, disease or death is proximately caused by the neglect, willful omission, or intentional, willful or culpable conduct of any person or entity, other than that police officer's or firefighter's employer or co-employee, the police officer or firefighter suffering that injury or disease, or, in the case of death, a representative of that police officer or firefighter may seek recovery and damages from the person or entity whose neglect, willful omission, or intentional, willful or culpable conduct resulted in that injury, disease or death.

2. Nothing in this section shall be deemed to expand or restrict the existing liability of an employer or co-employee at common-law or under sections two hundred five-a and two hundred five-e of the general municipal law for injuries or death sustained in the line-of-duty by any police officer or firefighter.

HISTORY:
Add, L 1996, ch 703, § 5, eff Oct 9, 1996 (see 1996 note below).

Editor's Notes: Laws 1996, ch 703, §§ 1, 3 and 6, eff Oct 9, 1996, provide as follows:

Section 1. Legislative intent. The legislature finds that the nature of modern police work in this state has exposed our police officers to an unprecedented risk of death and physical injury. In view of this fact, chapter 346 of the laws of 1989 gave injured officers and representatives of deceased officers a right of action against individuals found liable for such deaths or injuries.

The legislature concludes that the duties of our state's police officers are performed in a variety of contexts and that the liability imposed pursuant to chapter 346 of the laws of 1989 should not be limited to violations pertaining to the safe maintenance and control of premises. Since our police officers are required to confront dangerous conditions under many and varied circumstances, there is a need to ensure that a right of action exists regardless of where the violation causing injury or death occurs.

Since the enactment of chapter 474 of the laws of 1992, our courts have continued to differ on the scope of the remedy afforded by chapter 346 of the laws of 1989. This act is intended to ensure once and for all that section 205-e of the general municipal law is applied by the courts in accordance with its original legislative intent to offer an umbrella of protection for police officers, who, in the course of their many and varied duties, are injured by the negligence of anyone who violates any relevant statute, ordinance, code, rule and/or regulation.

§ 3. Legislative intent. The legislature finds that the nature of the work of modern fire fighting in this state has exposed our firefighters to an unprecedented risk of death and physical injury. In view of this fact, the legislature gave injured firefighters and representatives of deceased firefighters a right of action against individuals found liable for such deaths or injuries.

The legislature concludes that the duties of our state's firefighters are performed in a variety of contexts and that the liability imposed should not be limited to violations pertaining to the safe maintenance and control of premises. Since our firefighters are required to confront dangerous conditions under many and varied circumstances, there is a need to ensure that a right of action exists regardless of where the violation causing injury or death occurs.

The legislature further concludes that a right of action should exist regardless of whether the person whose negligence leads directly or indirectly to the violation causing injury or death owns or controls the premises where such violation occurs.

§ 6. This act shall take effect immediately and shall apply to all actions commenced or pending on and after such date.

1. In general

Common-law firefighter's rule, which was partially abrogated in 1996 by enactment of CLS Gen Oblig § 11-106, does not apply to sanitation workers, since such workers are not experts engaged, trained, and compensated by public to deal on its behalf with emergencies and hazards. Ciervo v City of New York, 240 A.D.2d 693, 659 N.Y.S.2d 320, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7105 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1997), aff'd, 93 N.Y.2d 465, 693 N.Y.S.2d 63, 715 N.E.2d 91, 1999 N.Y. LEXIS 773 (N.Y. 1999).

General construction contractor and subcontractor were not entitled to summary judgment dismissing city police detective's action under CLS Gen Mun § 205-e and CLS Gen Oblig § 11-106 for personal injuries sustained at construction site when he tried to rescue 2 homeless men from fire set with construction debris where (1) general contractor had overall responsibility for coordinating safety, including removal of construction debris, (2) its construction manager had deemed area of fire to be "attractive nuisance" and "dangerous situation," (3) subcontractor had been repeatedly reprimanded for its handling of debris, knew that homeless persons camped out and set fires at site, and was not absolved of liability by general contractor's assumption of contractual duty to remove debris, and (4) thus, there were triable issues of fact as to whether those defendants violated NYC Admin Code § 27-1019, requiring removal of combustible debris from construction sites at reasonable intervals, and, if so, whether such violation directly or indirectly caused detective's harm. Johnson v George A. Fuller Co., 266 A.D.2d 158, 699 N.Y.S.2d 348, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12353 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1999).

Security guard company was not entitled to summary judgment dismissing city police detective's action under CLS Gen Mun § 205-e and CLS Gen Oblig § 11-106 for personal injuries sustained at construction site when he tried to rescue 2 homeless men from fire set with construction debris where there was evidence indicating that company's employees failed to observe fire, crowd around fire, or police and firefighters responding to fire, and thus there was triable issue of fact as to whether company violated NYC Admin Code § 27-1024, requiring competent watchmen at construction sites. Johnson v George A. Fuller Co., 266 A.D.2d 158, 699 N.Y.S.2d 348, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12353 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1999).

Intervening act of homeless persons in setting fire with construction debris at construction site was reasonably foreseeable, and thus did not preclude liability of general construction contractor, subcontractor, and security guard company under CLS Gen Mun § 205-e and CLS Gen Oblig § 11-106 for personal injuries sustained at site by police detective when he tried to rescue 2 homeless men from fire set with construction debris, where defendants knew that homeless persons camped out at site and set fires to keep warm. Johnson v George A. Fuller Co., 266 A.D.2d 158, 699 N.Y.S.2d 348, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12353 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1999).

Trial court erred in granting partial summary judgment to a realty company in an action by an individual who was injured in an apartment fire, as material questions of fact existed as to whether the realty company's employees were negligent in giving incorrect instructions to the firefighters regarding the location of the fire, and, if so, whether correct instructions would have obviated the individual's injury. Baker v Riverhouse Realty Co., 300 A.D.2d 214, 751 N.Y.S.2d 361, 2002 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13324 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2002).

Supreme Court erred in granting those parts of a motion for summary judgment filed by two farm owners seeking dismissal of common-law negligence and N.Y. Gen. Oblig. Law § 11-106 causes of action against them, where although they could not be held liable for the manner in which the silo was razed by the independent contractors, a triable issue of fact existed concerning whether the owners were negligent in creating and allowing a dangerous condition on their property and whether such alleged negligence caused a volunteer firefighter's injuries. Green v Peterson, 13 A.D.3d 1157, 787 N.Y.S.2d 759, 2004 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 16344 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 2004).

Trial court erred in granting a motion filed by a county, its sheriff's department, and a part-time SWAT team (the defendants), for summary judgment in a personal injury action filed by a candidate for the team and his wife because they failed to establish, prima facie, that the candidate was their special employee, failed to establish governmental immunity by showing that there was a set procedure for administering the physical test and that they did not violate accepted practices, their reliance on the "firefighter's rule" was misplaced in light of the fact that they failed to establish that the candidate was their special employee, and they failed to establish, prima facie, that the doctrine of primary assumption of risk was applicable under the circumstances of the case. Dube v County of Rockland, 160 A.D.3d 807, 75 N.Y.S.3d 239, 2018 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2635 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2018).

Widow's wrongful death action under General Obligations Law § 11-106 and General Municipal Law § 205-e, which sought to recover for the death of a state trooper, was dismissed; no wrongful death claim can be made under § 11-106 because the purpose of the statute is to revive a police officer's right to sue for injuries sustained in the line-of-duty caused by the tortious conduct of third-party wrongdoers. Brinkerhoff v County of St. Lawrence, 875 N.Y.S.2d 877, 24 Misc. 3d 426, 241 N.Y.L.J. 71, 2009 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 649 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 2009), aff'd, 70 A.D.3d 1272, 897 N.Y.S.2d 269, 2010 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1540 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2010).

Policeman's complaint against a village and a county based on an assault by a suspect during an undercover drug buy was proper because, inter alia, the complaint failed to state a N.Y. Gen. Oblig. Law § 11-106 violation claim; the policeman's participation in a joint task force made the policeman's relationship with the village and the county akin to his relationship with his employer. Rodriguez v County of Rockland, 43 A.D.3d 1026, 842 N.Y.S.2d 488, 2007 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9830 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2007).

2. Firefighters rule

N.Y. Gen. Oblig. Law § 11-106 largely abolishes the firefighter's rule by giving firefighters and police officers a cause of action in negligence for injuries suffered while in the line of duty. Giuffrida v Citibank Corp., 100 N.Y.2d 72, 760 N.Y.S.2d 397, 790 N.E.2d 772, 2003 N.Y. LEXIS 989 (N.Y. 2003).

Firefighter rule, N.Y. Gen. Oblig. Law § 11-106(1), barred an officer's claim for injuries suffered while entering a police department parking lot because the cause of the injury, a high-security device protecting the police headquarters parking lot, was plainly a risk associated with the particular dangers inherent in police work; whether the officer was on duty or not was not dispositive. What was dispositive is the nature of the risk. Wadler v City of New York, 14 N.Y.3d 192, 899 N.Y.S.2d 73, 925 N.E.2d 875, 2010 N.Y. LEXIS 30 (N.Y. 2010).

Although, by virtue of CLS Gen Oblig § 11-106, "firefighter's rule" no longer barred recovery by police officer injured in performance of his duties on defendants' premises, defendants were entitled to summary judgment where there was no evidence that they either created or had notice of alleged defect, in form of paint can on steps leading from roof to sixth floor of defendants' building. Scheddin v Stein, 240 A.D.2d 720, 660 N.Y.S.2d 1008, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7110 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1997).

Defendants, owner and operator of van which rear-ended 3-wheeled "scooter" in which police officer was seated while on scene investigating unrelated accident, were improperly granted summary judgment in officer's common-law negligence claim since such claim was no longer barred by so-called "firefighter's rule," and fact issues existed, inter alia, as to whether van operator should have seen alleged oil spill before he collided with officer's vehicle. Cammilleri v S & W Realty Assocs., 243 A.D.2d 530, 663 N.Y.S.2d 222, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9807 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1997).

In action under CLS Gen Mun § 205-e(1) by police officer whose patrol car, parked on shoulder of thruway, was struck by car that skidded off thruway in severe snow storm, officer was entitled to have stricken affirmative defense based on "firefighters rule" where that defense was rendered meritless by enactment of CLS Gen Oblig § 11-106. Dubois v Vanderwalker, 245 A.D.2d 758, 665 N.Y.S.2d 460, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12940 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1997).

Police officer, who was performing function of "recorder" in patrol car, was at increased risk of being injured in motor vehicle accident, and thus her common-law claims against city and city police department were barred; CLS Gen Oblig § 11-106 which partially abrogated the so-called firefighter rule, applies only where the police officer's or the firefighter's injury, disease, or death "is proximately caused by the neglect, willful omission, or intentional, willful or culpable conduct of any person or entity, other than that police officer's or firefighter's employer or co-employee". Thus, the firefighter rule continues to bar a police officer or firefighter from asserting a common-law negligence cause of action against his or her employer or a fellow officer where the performance of the police officer's or firefighter's duties increased the risk of the injury happening, and did not merely furnish the occasion for the injury. Melendez v City of New York, 271 A.D.2d 416, 706 N.Y.S.2d 132, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3739 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2000).

Since the enactment of N.Y. Gen. Oblig. Law § 11-106, a common-law negligence cause of action was no longer barred by the so-called "firefighters' rule," and the new legislation provided for a common-law cause of action against negligent landowners in certain situations; in a case brought by a fireman against a building owner, alleging that the building owner was negligent in failing to promptly respond to tenants' complaints of a gas odor, the denial of the building owner's motion for summary judgment was affirmed where the fireman's expert raised a triable fact issue as to whether there was a connection between the alleged violations and the fireman's injuries sustained while responding to a gas explosion and fire at the building. Brennan v N.Y. City Hous. Auth., 302 A.D.2d 483, 756 N.Y.S.2d 73, 2003 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1644 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2003).

Where a decedent police officer was killed by a mental health clinic outpatient, the firefighter's rule was inapplicable by reason of N.Y. Gen. Oblig. Law § 11-106(1) under which the police officer could seek recovery and damages for on-duty injuries caused by the negligence of the county in failing to prevent the outpatient from harming the officer. Padula v County of Tompkins, 303 A.D.2d 804, 756 N.Y.S.2d 664, 2003 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2208 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2003).

Trial court did not err in preventing the movie theater and movie theater owner from presenting an assumption of the risk defense in a case where the security guard, an off-duty police officer, sued them for injuries he sustained when patrons assaulted him as he tried to prevent an assault by one patron upon another; N.Y. Gen. Oblig. Law § 11-106 abrogated the "firefighter's rule," which had precluded firefighters and police officer from commencing negligence actions. Gerbino v Tinseltown USA, 13 A.D.3d 1068, 788 N.Y.S.2d 538, 2004 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 16269 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 2004).

Since there was an indicia of joint employment for purposes of N.Y. Gen. Oblig. Law § 11-106 when a city and county worked together on a drug operation, and since N.Y. Agric. & Mkts. Law § 121(2) did not support a city police officer's N.Y. Gen. Mun. Law § 205-e claim, the county and the investigators were entitled to summary judgment. Connery v County of Albany, 73 A.D.3d 198, 898 N.Y.S.2d 298, 2010 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2634 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), app. denied, 15 N.Y.3d 702, 906 N.Y.S.2d 816, 933 N.E.2d 215, 2010 N.Y. LEXIS 1355 (N.Y. 2010).

Safety device manufacturer's motion for summary judgment was properly denied because a question of fact existed as to whether the alleged defect in the firefighter's safety device was a substantial factor in causing or exacerbating his injuries. At best, the firefighters involved in the rescue had only a general idea as to the injured firefighter's approximate location within the debris field, an area that measured approximately 12 feet by 40 feet and was roughly four to six feet deep Dryer v Musacchio, 117 A.D.3d 1115, 985 N.Y.S.2d 302, 2014 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2918 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2014).

A firefighter's suit against a homeowner for personal injuries resulting from slipping on a snowy roof during a rescue was properly dismissed via summary judgment because the house was a private dwelling, not a multiple dwelling requiring fire-resistant enclosures, and no purported ordinance violation for failing to obtain permits for work performed inside the home caused or contributed to the firefighter's injuries. Metzger v Lazala, 171 A.D.3d 1287, 97 N.Y.S.3d 350, 2019 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2605 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2019).

Court denied sergeant's motion for summary judgment on the negligence/wrongful death claims where (1) the sergeant owed a duty of care to decedent and decedent's death arose from risks within the scope of that duty; and (2) a rational jury could conclude that the sergeant should have known that decedent had passed by officers without incident, and, thus, that decedent was a plainclothes officer. Breitkopf v Gentile, 41 F. Supp. 3d 220, 2014 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 121581 (E.D.N.Y. 2014).

3. Employer or coemployee

Under CLS Gen Oblig § 11-106, no tortfeasor other than employer of injured or deceased police officer or firefighter may challenge claim of common-law negligence; thus, police officer could not be prevented from maintaining cause of action founded on common-law negligence with respect to sidewalk defect over which he tripped and fell, except insofar as claim was asserted against city as his employer. Cosgriff v City of New York, 241 A.D.2d 382, 659 N.Y.S.2d 888, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7422 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1997), aff'd sub. nom., Gonzalez v Iocovello, 93 N.Y.2d 539, 693 N.Y.S.2d 486, 715 N.E.2d 489, 1999 N.Y. LEXIS 1422 (N.Y. 1999).

City police officer's personal injury action against city under CLS Gen Mun § 205-e was barred by CLS Gen Oblig § 11-106 where officer was injured when he tripped and fell on public sidewalk while attempting to apprehend suspect. Jackson v City of New York, 251 A.D.2d 457, 674 N.Y.S.2d 721, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6843 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1998).

New York City police officer, under CLS Gen Oblig § 11-106, could not sue City in its capacity as owner of premises abutting sidewalk on which he was injured since statute specifically precludes claims against municipal employer, generally and without exception, not just claims against employer in its capacity as such; moreover, in view of fiscal considerations underlying employer exemption, there is no basis to conclude that statute was intended to expand common-law liability of municipalities so as to afford injured police officer cause of action against city for negligent maintenance of city-owned property. Grogan v City of New York, 259 A.D.2d 240, 699 N.Y.S.2d 12, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12054 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1999).

Plaintiffs were properly denied leave to amend their complaint nunc pro tunc to assert cause of action under CLS Gen Oblig § 11-106 against agency of plaintiffs' employer (New York City), since § 11-106(2) specifically precludes assertion of cause of action against employees' municipal employer and fellow municipal employees. Plunkett v Emergency Med. Servs. Corp., 260 A.D.2d 193, 687 N.Y.S.2d 375, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3634 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1999).

N.Y. Gen. Oblig. Law § 11-106 allowed the policeman to have a common law negligence claim against a builder for the policeman's on-duty slip and fall on construction debris as the builder was not the policeman's employer or co-employee. 4. Liability shown

Police officer was entitled to summary judgment on the issue of a truck driver's liability because prior to beginning his turn, the driver was aware that there was a police officer conducting a traffic stop on foot and a police car parked on the northbound side of the road, and although the driver believed he could make the turn safely, the rear of the trailer hit the officer; thus, the driver's failure to exercise due care in operating the truck proximately caused the officer's injuries. 5. Liability not shown

Defendants established their prima facie entitlement to summary on plaintiff's negligence cause of action because defendants did not own or control the subject premises, or assume any duty to plaintiff police officer, which might serve as a predicate for liability, and, in opposition, plaintiff failed to raise a triable issue of fact. Maher v White, 184 A.D.3d 630, 125 N.Y.S.3d 445, 2020 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3318 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2020).

§ 142-b. Removal of snow and ice, making of repairs, and rental of town highway machinery; school and other districts

The town board of any town may authorize the town superintendent to

(1) remove snow and ice from any property within the town belonging to a school district, upon such terms as may be agreed upon by the town board and governing board of any such school district.

(2) Repair roads and sidewalks within the town belonging to a school district, upon such terms as may be agreed upon by the town board and the governing board of any such school district.

(3) Permit the use of town highway machinery, tools and equipment within the town by any fire district, special improvement district or school district, located in whole or in part in any such town, upon such terms and conditions as may be agreed upon by the town board and the governing board or governing body of any such district.

(4) Except as otherwise provided in section one hundred forty-two-c of this chapter with respect to the use of town highway machinery, snow and ice removal equipment, tools and equipment by a village located wholly or partly within the town, permit the use of town highway machinery, snow and ice removal equipment, tools and equipment during an emergency by any city, village, town, county, fire district, special improvement district or school district, upon such terms and conditions as may be agreed upon by the town board and the governing board or governing body of any such district.

(5) Moneys received by a town pursuant to the provisions of this section shall be first applied to the credit of the fund authorized by subdivision four of section one hundred forty-one of this chapter to the extent that any expense incurred was originally charged thereto, and the balance of such moneys, if any, shall be credited to the fund authorized by subdivision three of section one hundred forty-one of this chapter.

1. Generally

The town superintendent of highways may not retain for his own use and benefit moneys paid by the county to the town under an agreement concerning the rental of town highway machinery with operator for his services on county roads unless he is employed by the county. 1954 Op St Compt No. 54-6775.

2. School district snow and ice removal

A town board may authorize the town superintendent to remove snow from a parking lot within the town belonging to a school district and may direct the town clerk to give any necessary notice to the school district; such a service may only be given pursuant to a contract between the town board and governing board of the school district and supported by fair consideration. 1966 Op St Compt No. 66-381.

A town board may enter into an agreement with a school board for the town to plow snow on school district property located within the town and the town board may direct that the town superintendent of highways perform such plowing. 1983 Op St Compt No. 82-340, 1982 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 383.

3. Use of town machinery

Once authorization is given to the highway superintendent to permit the use of town highway equipment, only the town highway superintendent or his deputy may agree to such a rental. 1967 Op St Compt No. 67-879.

A town may not rent its highway equipment to a private corporation. 1980 Op St Compt No. 80-63, 1980 N.Y. Comp. LEXIS 348.

The Town Superintendent, with the approval of the Town Board and the County Superintendent, may permit the Soil Conservation District to use town highway machinery at a rate not less than that fixed by the State Comptroller for the rental of highway machinery; its use is not required to be confined to the boundaries of the town as is the case under this section. 1945 Op St Compt No. 45-451.

4. —By fire district

Upon compliance with the terms of this section, a town board may authorize the town superintendent of highways to permit the use of town highway machinery, tools, and equipment by a fire district within the town. 1953 NY Ops Atty Gen June 23 (Informal), 1953 N.Y. AG LEXIS 274.

The town board of any town may authorize the town superintendent to remove snow and ice from any property within the town belonging to a fire district, and to construct a driveway to a pond in the vicinity, upon such terms as may be agreed upon by the town board and governing board of any such fire district. 1958 NY Ops Atty Gen Mar 13 (Informal), 1958 N.Y. AG LEXIS 109.

Town highway machinery, tools, and equipment may be rented to a Fire District for the purpose of removing snow from a road giving access to the water supply of the fire district. 1947 Op St Compt No. 47-12.

A town may agree with a fire district to use town salt trucks to salt a private driveway which provides access to a fire house. 1979 Op St Compt No. 79-105.

A town may authorize the town highway superintendent to lease town highway equipment to a fire district located within the town. 1967 Op St Compt No. 67-879.

5. —By special improvement district

A Town Board may authorize the rental of town highway machinery and equipment by a special improvement district in the town. 1946 Op St Compt No. 46-147.

6. —By soil conservation district

The Town Superintendent, with the approval of the Town Board and the County Superintendent, may permit the Soil Conservation District to use town highway machinery at a rate not less than that fixed by the State Comptroller for the rental of highway machinery; its use is not required to be confined to the boundaries of the town as is the case under this section. 1945 Op St Compt No. 45-451.

7. —By refuse and garbage district

The Town Board of any town may authorize the use of town highway machinery, tools, and equipment for the collection of garbage in a Refuse and Garbage District upon such terms as it may see fit, subject to the minimum daily rental prescribed by the State Comptroller. 1945 Op St Compt No. 45-285.

8. —On private property

Towns may not rent or permit the use of machinery, etc. for plowing snow on private driveways unless authorized by statute. 1946 Op St Compt No. 46-43.

The Superintendent of Highways is not authorized to permit the use of town highway machinery and equipment to remove snow from a private road leased by the United States. 1946 Op St Compt No. 46-147.

9. Negligent operation of leased machinery

A town that leases its highway equipment to a fire district may still be liable for the negligent operation of such equipment. 1967 Op St Compt No. 67-879.

10. Charges

The Town Board of any town may authorize the use of town highway machinery, tools, and equipment for the collection of garbage in a Refuse and Garbage District upon such terms as it may see fit, subject to the minimum daily rental prescribed by the State Comptroller. 1945 Op St Compt No. 45-285.

The Town Superintendent, with the approval of the Town Board and the County Superintendent, may permit the Soil Conservation District to use town highway machinery at a rate not less than that fixed by the State Comptroller for the rental of highway machinery; its use is not required to be confined to the boundaries of the town as is the case under this section. 1945 Op St Compt No. 45-451.

11. —Funds applied

Moneys received from such a snow removal contract must first be credited to snow removal fund to the extent of charges incurred, and the remainder to the machinery fund. 1966 Op St Compt No. 66-381.

2105.	Excess line brokers; licensing
2118.	Excess line brokers; duties

HISTORY:
Add, L 1984, ch 367, § 1, eff Sept 1, 1984.

(a) The superintendent may issue an excess line broker's license to any person, firm, association or corporation who or which is licensed as an insurance broker under section two thousand one hundred four of this article, or who or which is licensed as an excess line broker in the licensee's home state, provided, however, that the applicant's home state grants non-resident licenses to residents of this state on the same basis, except that reciprocity is not required in regard to the placement of liability insurance on behalf of a purchasing group or any of its members; authorizing such person, firm, association or corporation to procure, subject to the restrictions herein provided, policies of insurance from insurers which are not authorized to transact business in this state of the kind or kinds of insurance specified in paragraphs four through fourteen, sixteen, seventeen, nineteen, twenty, twenty-two, twenty-seven, twenty-eight, thirty-one, and thirty-two of subsection (a) of section one thousand one hundred thirteen of this chapter and in subsection (h) of this section, provided, however, that the provisions of this section and section two thousand one hundred eighteen of this article shall not apply to ocean marine insurance and other contracts of insurance enumerated in subsections (b) and (c) of section two thousand one hundred seventeen of this article. Such license may be suspended or revoked by the superintendent whenever in his or her judgment such suspension or revocation will best promote the interests of the people of this state.

(b) Before the superintendent issues any such license or renewal, there shall be filed in the superintendent's office an application by the person, firm, association or corporation desiring such license, in such form or forms, and supplements thereto, and containing information the superintendent prescribes. For each business entity, the sub-licensee or sub-licensees named in the application shall be designated responsible for the business entity's compliance with the insurance laws, rules and regulations of this state. A person or entity licensed as an excess line broker in his, her or its home state may receive a non-resident excess line broker license pursuant to subsection (a) of this section with the submission of the application.

(c) (1) At the time of application for every such license, and for every renewal, each applicant shall pay the superintendent the following fees:

(A) Two hundred dollars for each year or fraction of a year in which a license shall be valid, if the applicant maintains an office in, or acts as an excess line broker in placing insurance on risks located in, any county in this state having a population of one hundred thousand or more inhabitants.

(B) Twenty-five dollars for each year or fraction of a year in which a license shall be valid in all other cases.

(2) The population of any county shall be determined by the most recent official census, whether by the United States or by this state.

(d) Every license issued pursuant to this section shall be for a term expiring with the expiration of the qualifying broker license and may be renewed for the ensuing period of twenty-four months upon the filing of an application in conformity with subsection (b) of this section and paying the fee prescribed by subsection (c) of this section. In the case of a license issued to a new applicant, the superintendent may issue a license for a term of more than two years, provided however, such term shall not exceed thirty months.

(e) Any such license issued to a firm, association or corporation shall authorize as sub-licensee only the sub-licensees named in its license as insurance broker, and each such sub-licensee may act thereunder only in the name of and on behalf of the licensee.

(f) [Repealed]

(g) The superintendent may issue a replacement for a currently in force license which has been lost or destroyed. Before such replacement license shall be issued, there shall be on file in the office of the superintendent a written application for such replacement license, affirming under penalty of perjury that the original license has been lost or destroyed, together with a fee of fifteen dollars.

(h) Pursuant to subsection (a) of this section, an excess line broker may procure policies of insurance from insurers which are not authorized to transact business in this state for personal accident insurance and accident disability insurance, in which the insured is a non-resident of this state, and the nature of the risk to be insured is related to the operation of motor vehicles at high speeds for the enjoyment of spectators, is unusual and difficult to place and where such broker, after diligent effort, could not procure substantially similar coverage from an insurer authorized to do business in this state.

(i) Pursuant to subsection (a) of this section, an excess line broker may procure policies of salary protection insurance from insurers that are not authorized to transact business in this state.

1. Generally

Former § 122 [now §§ 2105, 2118] in some circumstances permits placing of insurance with companies not authorized to insure in this state. I. Tanenbaum Son & Co. v Rothenberg & Co., 201 A.D. 272, 194 N.Y.S. 315, 1922 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6302 (N.Y. App. Div. 1922), aff'd, 236 N.Y. 520, 142 N.E. 267, 236 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 520, 1923 N.Y. LEXIS 938 (N.Y. 1923).

A policy of insurance signed and sealed in Massachusetts by a corporation organized and doing business in that state, and mailed to the insured in this state pursuant to an order by mail, is a Massachusetts contract and not void under former § 137 [predecessor to former § 122, now §§ 2105, 2118]. While former § 122 [now §§ 2105, 2118] allows insurance brokers to secure policies from unauthorized or unadmitted companies in special circumstances, it does not admit the insuring companies to the state or authorize the carrier to transact business here. Empire Mut. Ins. Co. v International Tram-Po-Line Mfrs., Inc., 39 Misc. 2d 810, 242 N.Y.S.2d 28, 1963 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1950 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1963).

Weather authorized insurer that issues commercial general liability policy may charge minimum and deposit premium is dependent on insurer's ability to prove that minimum and deposit premium filed equals costs associated with issuing policy, and to cover expenses of writing business; unauthorized insurer that issues commercial general liability policy through licensed excess line broker under CLS Ins §§ 2105 and 2118 is not prohibited from issuing minimum and deposit premium. Surety bond required from debt collection agency that collects child support payments may be sold by unauthorized insurer, absent requirement by New York City Department of Consumer Affairs (DCA). NY Ins Dep't Gen Counsel, Opinion No. 04-08-24, 2004 NY Insurance GC Opinions LEXIS 206.

Proceedings against unauthorized foreign or alien insurers, including unauthorized reinsurers, arising out of insurance policies effectuated in accordance with CLS Ins § 2117(b) or (c) or § 2105 where insurance contract designates Superintendent of Insurance to be served with legal process on behalf of such insurer, are exempt from CLS Ins § 1213 pursuant to subparagraph (e). NY Ins Dep't Gen Counsel, Opinion No. 04-12-17, 2004 NY Insurance GC Opinions LEXIS 312.

Regulation 41 (11 NYCRR Part 27), which was effective January 1, 1994, does not apply to trust agreement that was entered into prior to promulgation of regulation, where company was placed into liquidation and ceased writing new business prior to promulgation of regulation. NY Ins Dep't Gen Counsel, Opinion No. 08-03-17, 2008 NY Insurance GC Opinions LEXIS 65.

It would constitute acting as insurance agent or broker for which licensing would be required where owner of web site that was unrelated to insurance solicited users of web site for information about their insurance needs, and then sold information to specific insurance brokers and insurers, with whom web site owner had contracted to gather information, and who would subsequently contact insureds directly with offers to sell insurance. NY Ins Dep't Gen Counsel, Opinion No. 01-02-10, 2001 NY Insurance GC Opinions LEXIS 204.

2. Excess line insurance

Former § 122 [now §§ 2105, 2118] was clearly enacted to cure some of the problems raised by prior practice of brokers placing excess-line insurance with companies not subject to the regulatory powers of this state, and was aimed at protecting the insured. People v Condor of Americas, Inc., 43 Misc. 2d 899, 252 N.Y.S.2d 619, 1964 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1587 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1964), aff'd, 23 A.D.2d 822, 258 N.Y.S.2d 338, 1965 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5667 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1965).

Superintendent of Insurance does not hold hearings to determine whether particular coverage is eligible for procurement from unauthorized insurer in excess line market, since Insurance Law expressly delineates permissible kinds of insurance that excess line broker may procure through excess line market. NY Ins Dep't Gen Counsel, Opinion No. 06-08-05, 2006 NY Insurance GC Opinions LEXIS 146.

Unauthorized insurer that provides coverage in excess line market may not offer insureds "accident" coverage as endorsement to insurer's basic general liability policy, since such coverage would fall within parameters of accident and health insurance or workers' compensation insurance, and unauthorized insurer doing business in excess line market may not write such coverage in New York under CLS Ins Law § 2105. NY Ins Dep't Gen Counsel, Opinion No. 08-04-12, 2008 NY Insurance GC Opinions LEXIS 16.

New York-licensed excess line broker may procure coverage for electronic media liability, computer information security liability and privacy liability under group insurance policy (Master Policy) for New York members of proposed Identity Theft Purchasing Group Insurance Program, whose risks are resident in New York; such coverage constitutes liability insurance under federal Liability Risk Retention Act, 15 USCS §§ 3901 et seq. NY Ins Dep't Gen Counsel, Opinion No. 10-12-14, 2010 NY Insurance GC Opinions LEXIS 92.

Broker licensed under either CLS Ins § 2104(b)(1)(A) (life insurance) or CLS Ins § 2104(B) (property/casualty insurance) may act as retail broker with respect to salary protection insurance transaction in excess line market; Insurance Department considers salary protection insurance to be type of accident and health insurance, which both life insurance broker and property/casualty insurance broker are authorized to place. NY Ins Dep't Gen Counsel, Opinion No. 11-09-01, 2011 NY Insurance GC Opinions LEXIS 38.

3. —Repossession insurance

"Repossession insurance," although insurance, was kind that could not be offered in New York either by authorized multi-line property/casualty Company or by excess lines broker on behalf of unauthorized insurer. NY Ins Dep't Gen Counsel, Opinion No. 00-09-10, 2000 NY Insurance GC Opinions LEXIS 29.

Nothing in Insurance Law or regulations thereunder precludes endorsement in excess line policy that excludes coverage for employees of subcontractor. NY Ins Dep't Gen Counsel, Opinion No. 03-11-05, 2003 NY Insurance GC Opinions LEXIS 306.

4. —Legal services insurance

Excess line broker may not procure legal services insurance from unauthorized insurer; CLS Ins § 2105(1) restricts kinds of insurance which excess line broker may procure from unauthorized insurer, and legal services insurance as defined in CLS Ins § 1113(a)(29) is not among those kinds. NY Ins Dep't Gen Counsel, Opinion No. 01-09-09, 2001 NY Insurance GC Opinions LEXIS 27.

Excess line broker may not place legal services insurance because excess line brokers are not so authorized under CLS Ins § 2105(a). NY Ins Dep't Gen Counsel, Opinion No. 06-05-04, 2006 NY Insurance GC Opinions LEXIS 103.

5. —Kidnap and ransom insurance

Kidnap and ransom insurance may be written on excess line basis, provided that is done in compliance with applicable statutory requirements; there are no special or compulsory clauses that must be included in such coverage. NY Ins Dep't Gen Counsel, Opinion No. 02-01-35, 2002 NY Insurance GC Opinions LEXIS 154.

6. —Political risk insurance

As to regulation of excess line insurance, situs of risk depends on particular facts of situation for which coverage is sought; procuring political risk coverage policy directly from unauthorized insurer without having to use excess line market would not be permissible. NY Ins Dep't Gen Counsel, Opinion No. 03-01-37, 2003 NY Insurance GC Opinions LEXIS 110.

Where political risk insurance coverage is considered to constitute one or more of types of coverage referenced in CLS Ins § 2105(a), then coverage could be placed by excess line broker with unauthorized insurer that is in compliance with requirements contained in CLS Ins § 2118 and 11 NYCRR § 27 (Regulation 41). NY Ins Dep't Gen Counsel, Opinion No. 03-01-37, 2003 NY Insurance GC Opinions LEXIS 110.

7. —Marine insurance

Marine insurance may be procured from unauthorized insurer only by licensed excess lines broker and is subject to excess line premium taxes, except that to extent specifically provided for in CLS Ins § 2117, licensed insurance broker may place certain classes of marine insurance exempt from excess lines premium tax. NY Ins Dep't Gen Counsel, Opinion No. 03-03-18, 2003 NY Insurance GC Opinions LEXIS 45.

Marine protection and indemnity insurance is not subject to excess line taxes in connection with ocean going vessels; any other contract of marine protection and indemnity insurance would be subject to excess line taxes. NY Ins Dep't Gen Counsel, Opinion No. 03-03-18, 2003 NY Insurance GC Opinions LEXIS 45.

8. —Terrorism exclusion

There is no general prohibition against terrorism exclusion in policy written on excess line basis, but such exclusion would not be permissible as to peril of fire and certain statutorily required coverages. NY Ins Dep't Gen Counsel, Opinion No. 02-05-19, 2002 NY Insurance GC Opinions LEXIS 36.

9. —Lead paint exclusion

Nothing in New York Insurance Law would have prevented unauthorized insurer from issuing liability insurance policy through excess lines broker containing "Lead Paint Exclusion." NY Ins Dep't Gen Counsel, Opinion No. 03-03-12, 2003 NY Insurance GC Opinions LEXIS 51.

10. —Mold exclusion

Nothing in New York Insurance Law or regulations thereunder specifically prohibit mold exclusion in insurance policy; however, in policy issued by authorized insurer written on risks or operations in New York State, exclusion that is misleading or violative of public policy is not permissible (Superintendent of Insurance has not approved any mold-related exclusions). NY Ins Dep't Gen Counsel, Opinion No. 03-04-04, 2003 NY Insurance GC Opinions LEXIS 31.

11. Excess line insurer

Appeals court reversed and declared that an excess line insurer did not have to defend or indemnify a building owner insured in an underlying action since the policy clearly excluded lead-based paint injuries; under N.Y. Ins. Law § 2105(a), the broker, not the excess line insurer, was required to be licensed in New York. But, even so, requiring the insurer to provide coverage greater than the policy allowed would have been too great a penalty to impose under N.Y. Ins. Law § 1102(a).3405 Putnam Realty Corp. v Chubb Custom Ins. Co., 14 A.D.3d 310, 788 N.Y.S.2d 64, 2005 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2005).

Unauthorized insurer who transacts insurance business through excess line market must adhere to 11 NYCRR § 27 and CLS Ins §§ 2105, 2118, and 2130; financial and other requirements including prohibited activities do not change by virtue of fact that portion of risk is subsequently reinsured with large insurance company such as Lloyds of London. NY Ins Dep't Gen Counsel, Opinion No. 01-11-12, 2001 NY Insurance GC Opinions LEXIS 278.

As to regulation of excess line insurance, situs of risk depends on particular facts of situation for which coverage is sought; procuring political risk coverage policy directly from unauthorized insurer without having to use excess line market would not be permissible. NY Ins Dep't Gen Counsel, Opinion No. 03-01-37, 2003 NY Insurance GC Opinions LEXIS 110.

CLS Ins § 1213(e) would apply to formerly listed excess line insurer where policy that is subject of lawsuit was placed on excess lines basis under CLS Ins § 2105, excess line insurer was on Excess Lines Association of New York's (ELANY) list of eligible excess lines insurers when policy was written, and insurer continued to maintain excess line trust fund under 11 NYCRR Part 27 (Regulation 41), provided (1) excess line insurer has complied with all applicable provisions of Insurance Law and Regulations and its contract designates Superintendent of Insurance as its attorney on whom lawful process in any proceeding instituted by or on behalf of insured may be served, and (2) insurer has sufficient funds in its excess line trust fund that is available to satisfy any final judgment. NY Ins Dep't Gen Counsel, Opinion No. 06-08-12, 2006 NY Insurance GC Opinions LEXIS 162.

12. Excess line broker

Insurance broker violated Insurance Department Regulation 121 (11 NYCRR § 73.2) by placing in New York, through excess line broker, claims-made liquor liability policies; fact that insurer issuing policies was unauthorized insurer beyond reach of Insurance Department was irrelevant to applicability of Regulation 121's prohibition of claims-made policies to procuring broker. John Paterno, Inc. by & Through Paterno v Curiale, 88 N.Y.2d 328, 645 N.Y.S.2d 424, 668 N.E.2d 395, 1996 N.Y. LEXIS 1191 (N.Y. 1996).

Although the New York Insurance Law generally prohibits the sale in New York of insurance underwritten by insurers not authorized to conduct business in New York, N.Y. Ins. Law § 1102(a); N.Y. Ins. Law § 2117(a), which is an exception to this rule permits certain licensed brokers, known as excess line brokers, to procure insurance from unauthorized insurers under limited circumstances, N.Y. Ins. Law § 2105(a), 2117(h). Under the excess line statutory scheme, it is the excess line broker, not the unauthorized insurer, that must be licensed, N.Y. Ins. Law § 2105(a).3405 Putnam Realty Corp. v Chubb Custom Ins. Co., 14 A.D.3d 310, 788 N.Y.S.2d 64, 2005 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2005).

It is well established that New York residents may properly procure insurance from unlicensed and unadmitted insurance companies through excess-line brokers, and that such contracts are enforceable in this state and assessments levied by insurance companies not licensed to do business in New York are valid and enforceable therein against New York policy holders. Kelly v Bremmerman, 42 Misc. 2d 148, 247 N.Y.S.2d 655, 1964 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2029 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1964), rev'd, 23 A.D.2d 346, 260 N.Y.S.2d 971, 1965 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3783 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1965).

Only licensed excess line broker may procure insurance policies from insurers not authorized to transact business in New York State as described in CLS Ins § 2105, or licensed broker under CLS Ins § 2117(b) or (c). NY Ins Dep't Gen Counsel, Opinion No. 01-02-08, 2001 NY Insurance GC Opinions LEXIS 205.

There is no specific obligation on excess line broker under CLS Insurance Law to advise, whether in writing or orally, why unauthorized insurer has increased its premium; however, such broker should make effort to determine cause, and to advise insured of his findings, in accordance with CLS Ins § 2110, which requires excess line broker to act in competent, honest, and trustworthy manner. NY Ins Dep't Gen Counsel, Opinion No. 02-07-02, 2002 NY Insurance GC Opinions LEXIS 264.

Insured, which is tax-exempt unit of another state government, is not required to pay excess line premium taxes to Superintendent of Insurance and stamping fees imposed by Excess Line Association of New York; said taxes and fees in New York are imposed on New York licensed excess line broker, although such brokers commonly pass on cost to insured by means of written service fee memorandum signed by insurer. NY Ins Dep't Gen Counsel, Opinion No. 02-10-07, 2002 NY Insurance GC Opinions LEXIS 318.

Excess line broker may accept Part C affidavit sent to it by producing broker by means of facsimile transmission and use it in order to satisfy requirements in Regulation 41 that there be proof of declinations before business may be placed by excess line broker with unauthorized insurer. NY Ins Dep't Gen Counsel, Opinion No. 03-01-39, 2003 NY Insurance GC Opinions LEXIS 108.

As to placement of insurance with unauthorized insurer for risk located on Indian Reservation physically within New York State, such risk would be considered to be inside New York, and excess line broker must be utilized in placing risk with unauthorized insurer. NY Ins Dep't Gen Counsel, Opinion No. 03-04-23, 2003 NY Insurance GC Opinions LEXIS 12.

New York may license Illinois corporate non-resident excess line broker that does not maintain office in New York although Illinois, broker's home state, does not license corporations as excess line brokers, since Illinois permits New York corporate excess line broker to operate in Illinois through licensed employee of corporation acting in name of corporation. NY Ins Dep't Gen Counsel, Opinion No. 04-08-09, 2004 NY Insurance GC Opinions LEXIS 192.

Excess line broker may not procure liability insurance from unauthorized alien insurer that is not eligible to issue insurance coverage through excess line market. NY Ins Dep't Gen Counsel, Opinion No. 06-01-19, 2006 NY Insurance GC Opinions LEXIS 19.

In placing excess line insurance, excess line broker must comply with requirements of 11 NYCRR Part 27 (Regulation 41) and CLS Ins §§ 2105, 2118 and 2130; onus is on excess line broker to ensure that unauthorized insurer satisfies financial and other requirements contained in Part 27. NY Ins Dep't Gen Counsel, Opinion No. 06-01-19, 2006 NY Insurance GC Opinions LEXIS 19.

13. Surplus lines

Former § 137 [predecessor to former § 122, now §§ 2105, 2118] in relation to "surplus line" does not have the effect of authorizing foreign companies to transact business in this state, but allows brokers to procure such insurance from a foreign company. When the agreement of an insured to procure other insurance is conditional upon the fact that the insurer is not authorized to do business in this state, it cannot contend that it had a limited authority to do business in this state, by force of former § 137 [now §§ 2105, 2118], so as to make the contract one which was perfected here. Friedland v Commonwealth Fire Ins. Co., 143 A.D. 570, 128 N.Y.S. 705, 1911 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 878 (N.Y. App. Div. 1911), aff'd, 207 N.Y. 705, 101 N.E. 1102, 207 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 705, 1913 N.Y. LEXIS 1361 (N.Y. 1913).

14. Foreign insurance company

Since foreign insurance companies are made subject to suit in New York with respect to policies issued and secured from them pursuant to former § 122 [now §§ 2105, 2118], it would seem that equal protection of the law demands that such unauthorized carriers be permitted to sue here with respect to policies so issued, such as to obtain a judicial declaration of nonliability on the policy, without complying with the requirements of § 210 of the General Corporation Law. Empire Mut. Ins. Co. v International Tram-Po-Line Mfrs., Inc., 39 Misc. 2d 810, 242 N.Y.S.2d 28, 1963 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1950 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1963).

15. Licensing

16. —Revocation

Where the petitioner, a principal in a Florida insurance company not approved by the Superintendent of Insurance, placed business with that company with full knowledge of its precarious financial condition, he was therefore properly deemed by the Superintendent to be an untrustworthy licensee, and his license was properly revoked. B & R Excess Corp. v Stewart, 36 A.D.2d 812, 320 N.Y.S.2d 146, 1971 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4285 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't), app. denied, 29 N.Y.2d 481, 1971 N.Y. LEXIS 2056 (N.Y. 1971).

17. —Third party administrator

Insurance Department does not issue license that is denominated "third party administrator" license, nor are their registration requirements under Insurance Law as to "third party administrators"; however, entity that engages in activities that would require licensing (e.g., acting as insurer, agent, broker, or adjuster), or registration (e.g., service contract providers, purchasing groups and risk retention groups, among others), must obtain appropriate license from, or register with, Insurance Department. NY Ins Dep't Gen Counsel, Opinion No. 01-11-05, 2001 NY Insurance GC Opinions LEXIS 286.

18. Bonds

Where a bond is given to satisfy the requirements of former § 122 [now § 2105], that the licensee faithfully comply with all requirements, and specifically provides for recovery of the penal sum by the people of the State of New York, the bond is not simply an indemnification bond but a forfeiture bond and the state is entitled to recover the full amount if it establishes fraudulent conduct on the part of the licensee or sub-licensee. People v Condor of Americas, Inc., 43 Misc. 2d 899, 252 N.Y.S.2d 619, 1964 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1587 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1964), aff'd, 23 A.D.2d 822, 258 N.Y.S.2d 338, 1965 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5667 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1965).

19. Excess line tax

If broker does not use its New York excess line license to place insurance on New York risks but insurance transaction is negotiated in California between insured domiciled there and California office of nationwide broker, there would be no New York excess line tax and stamping fee if such were non-New York transaction; however, CLS Tax § 1551 imposes tax on insured that obtains insurance from insurer not authorized in New York covering risks in New York, and if policy covers risks located both in New York and out-of-state, § 1551 taxes are allocated based on amount of premiums pertaining to New York risks. NY Ins Dep't Gen Counsel, Opinion No. 02-10-07, 2002 NY Insurance GC Opinions LEXIS 318.

Where corporation has locations in more than one state, and policy is placed in New York by excess line broker, excess line premium tax is to be allocated in accordance with allocation schedules in 11 NYCRR Part 27 (Regulation 41); method of allocation varies depending on nature of risk and type of insurance. NY Ins Dep't Gen Counsel, Opinion No. 03-04-15, 2003 NY Insurance GC Opinions LEXIS 20.

Where insurance policy is principally negotiated, issued, and delivered outside of New York, it is not subject to New York's excess line laws, and excess line premium tax is not due; however, insured may be required to pay tax to New York in regard to New York risks. NY Ins Dep't Gen Counsel, Opinion No. 03-04-15, 2003 NY Insurance GC Opinions LEXIS 20.

Tax-exempt status of Indian tribe does not exempt excess line broker from paying excess line premium tax on insurance policy. NY Ins Dep't Gen Counsel, Opinion No. 03-04-23, 2003 NY Insurance GC Opinions LEXIS 12.

20. Fees

Law concerning fees is same for "retail agents," "managing general agents," and "surplus lines" brokers as it is for insurance agents and brokers; however, brokers, unlike agents, may also charge insured service fee, in addition to, not in lieu of, commission, provided there is written memorandum signed by insured specifying amount of fee under CLS Ins § 2119(c). NY Ins Dep't Gen Counsel, Opinion No. 03-05-21.

Analysis

1. Generally
2. Surplus lines
3. Agent
4. Licensing

1. Generally

Contracts for insurance on steamers, placed with unauthorized foreign corporations, are not subject to regulation. 1909 N.Y. Op. Att'y Gen. No. 752.

2. Surplus lines

Residents who have received certificates authorizing them to write surplus lines may place such insurance in foreign or unauthorized Lloyds without becoming liable for criminal misdemeanor. 1910 N.Y. Op. Att'y Gen. No. 871.

3. Agent

Agents authorized to procure insurance are agents of insured and not of insurers, and where insurance was actually procured, though afterwards cancelled, agent should pay tax of three per cent. 1910 N.Y. Op. Att'y Gen. No. 880.

4. Licensing

Former § 137 [predecessor to former § 122, now § 2105] permits the licensing of persons only for the purpose of obtaining from nonadmitted companies insurance policies against fire, bombardment, invasion, insurrection, riot, civil war or commotion, or military or usurped power on property located in the state; hence it does not permit the licensing of persons to obtain householders comprehensive policy from London Lloyds. 1923 NY Ops Atty Gen June 7.

§ 2118. Excess line brokers; duties

(a) (1) Every licensee licensed pursuant to section two thousand one hundred five of this article shall be required to use due care in selecting the unauthorized insurer from whom policies are procured under his license.

(2) (A) No policy of insurance may be procured by a licensee from any foreign or alien insurer which is controlled, by a foreign government or by a political subdivision thereof, or which is an agency of any such government or subdivision if the superintendent determines that: (i) such insurer receives a subsidy or other competitive advantage, as a result of such control or status, that would enable it to compete unfairly with similarly situated insurers which are not so controlled or constituted; (ii) such insurer is entitled to claim sovereign immunity as a result of such control and the insurer has not waived the sovereign immunity; or (iii) the use of such insurer would be detrimental to the interests of the people of this state.

(B) No licensee shall be deemed to be in noncompliance with this subsection unless: (i) the superintendent has made a prior determination that the foreign or alien insurer from which the licensee procured a policy of insurance should not be used as an excess line insurer in this state in accordance with the provisions of this subsection; or (ii) the licensee knew or should have known that such insurer should not be used as an excess line insurer in accordance with the provisions of this subsection. The superintendent may promulgate regulations to provide guidance to the licensee.

(C) Every such insurer shall otherwise satisfy all applicable requirements for placement by an excess line broker.

(b) [Eff until July 1, 2024] (1) Within forty-five days after a policy is procured, a licensee shall submit the declarations page or cover note of every policy procured under his or her license to the excess line association established pursuant to section two thousand one hundred thirty of this article for recording and stamping. In the event that no declarations page or cover note is available to the licensee, within forty-five days after the policy is procured, the licensee shall submit a binder to the excess line association in lieu of such declarations page or cover note. In the event that a binder is submitted to the excess line association, the licensee shall submit the declarations page or cover note to the excess line association promptly upon receipt. Every insurance document submitted to the excess line association pursuant to this subsection shall set forth:

(A) the name and address of the insured;

(B) the gross premium charged;

(C) the name of the unauthorized insurer; and

(D) the kind of insurance procured.

(2) Subsequent endorsements which do not affect the premium charged are exempted from stamping.

(3)

(A) Except as provided in subparagraph (F) of this paragraph, submission of insurance documents to the excess line association shall be accompanied by a statement subscribed to, and affirmed by, the licensee or sublicensee as true under the penalties of perjury that, after diligent effort, the full amount of insurance required could not be procured, from authorized insurers, each of which is authorized to write insurance of the kind requested and which the licensee has reason to believe might consider writing the type of coverage or class of insurance involved, and further showing that the amount of insurance procured from an unauthorized insurer is only the excess over the amount procurable from an authorized insurer. The licensee, however, shall be excused from affirming that a diligent effort, as defined above, was made to procure the coverage from authorized insurers if the licensee's affidavit is accompanied by the affidavit of another broker involved in the placement affirming as true under the penalties of perjury that, after diligent effort by the affirming broker, the required insurance could not be procured from an authorized insurer which the affirming broker had reason to believe might consider writing the type of coverage or class of insurance involved. The licensee and the affirming broker shall be excused from affirming that a diligent effort was made if the superintendent determines, pursuant to paragraph four of this subsection, that no declinations are required.

(B) A licensee or affirming broker shall be considered to have the reason to believe required by subparagraph (A) of this paragraph if the decision to offer the risk to the authorized insurer was based on any of the following:

(i) Recent acceptance by the authorized insurer of a type of coverage or class of insurance similar to that for which coverage is presently being sought;

(ii) Advertising by the authorized insurer or its agent indicating that the authorized insurer is willing to consider acceptance of this or a similar type of coverage or class of insurance;

(iii) Media communications (i.e., newspaper or magazine articles, trade publications, television and radio programming) indicating that the authorized insurer is writing, or is considering writing, this type of coverage or class of insurance;

(iv) Communications with other insurance professionals, risk managers, trade associations, the excess line association or the department of financial services which indicates that the authorized insurer might consider writing this type of coverage or class of insurance; or

(v) Any other valid basis for making such decision.

(C) Every licensee, or affirming broker, in connection with the placement of each risk pursuant to this section, shall record on the affidavit required pursuant to subparagraph (A) of this paragraph the information relied upon that formed the basis of such licensee's or affirming broker's reason to believe that the authorized insurer might consider writing the type of coverage or class of insurance involved.

(D) Declinations obtained from authorized insurers which are affiliates of, or, as defined in article fifteen of this chapter, under common control with, each other or the unauthorized insurer shall not meet the requirements of this subsection unless such related insurers operate as distinct and autonomous entities, and for underwriting purposes, compete with each other for the same type of coverage or class of insurance.

(E) The superintendent, in a regulation, may determine whether there are circumstances where it may be appropriate, due to the unavailability from an authorized insurer of the leading type of coverage or the leading class of insurance required by the insured, to waive the requirement in subparagraph (A) of this paragraph that a licensee may procure from an unauthorized insurer only the amount of insurance which is excess over the amount procurable from an authorized insurer, and to instead permit the licensee to procure from an unauthorized insurer the full amount of insurance required by the insured.

(F) A licensee seeking to procure or place insurance in this state for an exempt commercial purchaser shall not be required to satisfy any requirement of this state to make a due diligence search to determine whether the full amount or type of insurance sought by the exempt commercial purchaser can be obtained from authorized insurers if:

(i) the licensee procuring or placing the excess line insurance has disclosed to the exempt commercial purchaser that the insurance may or may not be available from the authorized market that may provide greater protection with more regulatory oversight; and

(ii) the exempt commercial purchaser has subsequently requested in writing that the licensee procure or place the insurance from an unauthorized insurer.

(4) The number of declinations constituting diligent effort in regard to placement of coverage with authorized insurers for purposes of paragraph three of this subsection shall be three, unless the superintendent after a hearing, on a record, upon findings and conclusions, determines that another number of such declinations is appropriate in regard to particular coverages. In making such determinations, the superintendent shall consider relevant market conditions, including unavailability of particular coverages from authorized insurers, and may conduct market surveys. Any such determination shall be reviewed at least annually by the superintendent.

(5) Before placing business with an unauthorized insurer, each licensee shall ascertain and verify the fact that such insurer is authorized in its domiciliary jurisdiction to write the insurance policy proposed to be procured from it by the licensee. No unauthorized insurer shall be deemed unacceptable for placement of business solely on the ground that it has been so authorized to write such business in its domiciliary jurisdiction for a period of less than three years preceding the placement of such risk by the licensee. In determining whether business may be placed with such unauthorized insurer, the superintendent shall consider such factors as: the interests of the public and policyholders, the length of time such insurer has been authorized in its domiciliary jurisdiction and elsewhere, its financial condition, and unavailability of particular coverages from authorized insurers.

(6) It shall be unlawful for a licensee as defined in section two thousand one hundred one of this article and pursuant to sections two thousand one hundred four and two thousand one hundred five of this article to deliver in this state any declarations page of an insurance policy or cover note evidencing insurance unless such insurance document is stamped by the excess line association or is exempt from such requirements; provided, however, that a licensee's failure to comply with the requirements of this subsection shall not affect the validity of the coverage.

(7) Compliance by a licensee with the requirements set forth in this section in connection with submitting for recording and stamping declarations pages, cover notes, binders, endorsements, affidavits, notices of excess line placement and other excess line insurance documents may be accomplished by means of electronic or other media transmission, provided the superintendent first approves such methods of submitting for recording and stamping.

(b) [Eff July 1, 2024] (1) When any policy of insurance is procured under the authority of a license issued pursuant to section two thousand one hundred five of this article, there shall be submitted, both by the licensee or sub-licensee and by the insured, statements subscribed and affirmed by them as true under the penalties of perjury setting forth facts showing that such insured and such licensee were unable after diligent effort to procure, from authorized insurers, each authorized to write coverages of the kind requested, the full amount of insurance required to protect the interest of such insured, and further showing that the amount of insurance procured from an unauthorized insurer or insurers is only the excess over the amount so procurable from authorized insurers; provided, however, that the licensee shall be excused from affirming that a diligent effort was made to procure the coverage from such authorized insurers if the licensee's affidavit is accompanied by the affidavit of another broker involved in the placement affirming as true under the penalties of perjury that, after diligent effort by the affirming broker, the required insurance could not be procured from such authorized insurers.

(2) The number of declinations constituting diligent effort in regard to placement of coverage with authorized insurers for purposes of paragraph one of this subsection shall be three, unless the superintendent after a hearing, on a record, upon findings and conclusions, determines that another number of such declinations is appropriate in regard to particular coverages. In making such determinations, the superintendent shall consider relevant market conditions, including unavailability of particular coverages from authorized insurers, and may conduct market surveys. Any such determination shall be reviewed at least annually by the superintendent.

(3) Before placing business with an unauthorized insurer, each licensee shall ascertain and verify the fact that such insurer is authorized in its domiciliary jurisdiction to write the insurance policy proposed to be procured from it by the licensee. No unauthorized insurer shall be deemed unacceptable for placement of business solely on the ground that it has been so authorized to write such business in its domiciliary jurisdiction for a period of less than three years preceding the placement of such risk by the licensee. In determining whether business may be placed with an unauthorized insurer, the superintendent shall consider such factors as: the interests of the public and policyholders, the length of time such insurer has been authorized in its domiciliary jurisdiction and elsewhere, its financial condition, and unavailability of particular coverages from authorized insurers.

(4) The statements required pursuant to paragraph one of this subsection shall be filed by such licensee with the superintendent within thirty days after such policies have been procured.

(c) [Eff until July 1, 2024] (1) The licensee shall keep a complete and separate record of all policies procured from unauthorized insurers under such license. The licensee shall also maintain files supporting declinations by authorized insurers. An authorized insurer need not maintain underwriting submissions or other records with respect to any declination, unless the superintendent, after a hearing on a record, finds substantial abuses of the provisions of this section and determines that recordkeeping or reporting requirements in regard to authorized insurers are necessary to redress or eliminate such abuses.

(2) Such records shall be open to examination by the excess line association as provided for in section two thousand one hundred thirty of this article and by the superintendent, as provided in section three hundred ten of this chapter, at all reasonable times and shall show:

(A) the exact amount of each kind of insurance permitted under this section which has been procured for each insured;

(B) the gross premiums charged by the insurers for each kind of insurance permitted under this section;

(C) the amount of each kind of premiums of insurance permitted by this section which were returned to each insured;

(D) the name of the insurer or insurers which issued each of said policies;

(E) the effective dates of such policies;

(F) the terms for which they were issued; and

(G) the cities and villages within this state in which the insured risks, respectively, are located.

(c) [Eff July 1, 2024] (1) The licensee shall keep a complete and separate record of all policies procured from unauthorized insurers under such license. The licensee shall also maintain files supporting declinations by authorized insurers. An authorized insurer need not maintain underwriting submissions or other records with respect to any declination, unless the superintendent, after a hearing on a record, finds substantial abuses of the provisions of this section and determines that recordkeeping or reporting requirements in regard to authorized insurers are necessary to redress or eliminate such abuses. The superintendent shall review recordkeeping requirements applicable to this section and, by October first, nineteen hundred eighty-six, shall take measures in order to simplify forms and other aspects of compliance with such requirements.

(2) Such records shall be open to examination by the superintendent, as provided in section three hundred ten of this chapter, at all reasonable times and shall show:

(A) the exact amount of each kind of insurance permitted under this section which has been procured for each insured;

(B) the gross premiums charged by the insurers for each kind of insurance permitted under this section;

(C) the amount of each kind of premiums of insurance permitted by this section which were returned to each insured;

(D) the name of the insurer or insurers which issued each of said policies;

(E) the effective dates of such policies;

(F) the terms for which they were issued; and

(G) the cities and villages within this state in which the insured risks, respectively, are located.

(d)

(1) Where this state is the insured's home state, a person, firm, association or corporation licensed pursuant to the provisions of section two thousand one hundred five of this article shall pay to the superintendent a sum equal to three and six-tenths percent of the gross premiums charged the insureds by the insurers for insurance procured by such licensee pursuant to such license, less the amount of such premiums returned to such insureds.

(2) The amount of such payments which represents a sum equal to three percent of fire insurance premiums shall be distributed by the superintendent as prescribed in section nine thousand one hundred five of this chapter, and the balance thereof shall be paid over by the superintendent to the state treasurer.

(3) Such licensee shall be required to make such payments to the superintendent on the fifteenth day of March of each year for the taxes on all policies procured by such licensee, pursuant to such license, during the next preceding calendar year, and on such date such licensee shall also file with the superintendent a return in the form prescribed by the superintendent, showing such information as may be necessary for the proper distribution of such payments.

(e) (1) Except as provided in paragraph two of this subsection, no licensee shall be required to obtain a declination from an association established pursuant to article fifty-four or fifty-five of this chapter, or to apply for insurance through a plan established pursuant to article fifty-three of this chapter, as a condition of procuring insurance pursuant to this section.

(2) (A) Unless the licensee obtains a declination from the appropriate association, or from an insurer pursuant to an application for coverage through a plan, no diligent effort shall be considered to have been made if the insurance is available from the plan or association in connection with the placement of:

(i) a policy of non-commercial motor vehicle liability insurance;

(ii) medical malpractice insurance for a general hospital, as defined in subdivision ten of section two thousand eight hundred one of the public health law, a physician or dentist; or

(iii) insurance which by law must be provided by an authorized insurer.

(B) In connection with the placement of any other kind of insurance, a declination from the appropriate association, or from an insurer pursuant to an application for coverage through a plan, shall be required unless prior to the placement the insured has been advised of the availability of insurance from the plan or association.

(C) The affirming broker shall provide written notice to the insured that the placement was made with an unauthorized insurer. A copy of this notice shall be attached to the affirming broker's affidavit. The affidavits required by this section to be completed by the affirming broker shall include a statement that the affirming broker advised the insured in writing:

(i) that the unauthorized insurer with which the coverage is being placed is not authorized to do an insurance business in this state and is not subject to supervision by this state;

(ii) that in the event of the insolvency of the unauthorized insurer, losses will not be covered by any New York state insolvency fund;

(iii) that the policy may not be subject to all of the regulations of the superintendent pertaining to policy forms; and

(iv) such other information as the superintendent may, by regulation, require.

(f) (1) An excess line broker licensed pursuant to section two thousand one hundred five of this article may execute an authority to bind coverage and may exercise binding authority on behalf of an insurer not licensed or authorized to do business in this state pursuant to the provisions of this subsection.

(2) As used in this subsection:

(A) an "authority to bind coverage" means the written agreement between an excess line broker and an insurer not licensed or authorized to do business in this state and shall set forth the terms, conditions, and limitations governing the exercise of binding authority by the excess line broker;

(B) a "binder" means written evidence of a temporary insurance contract; and

(C) "binding authority" means the authority to issue and deliver binders, and to issue and deliver insurance policies on behalf of an insurer not licensed or authorized to do business in this state.

(3) (A) Every excess line broker who exercises binding authority shall have filed an authority to bind coverage, the contents of which shall not be public, with the excess line association established pursuant to section two thousand one hundred thirty of this article.

(B) Such authority shall be valid until (i) terminated by the appointing insurer after termination in accordance with the contract between the broker and the insurer; (ii) the excess line license is suspended or revoked by the superintendent; or (iii) the excess line license expires and is not renewed.

(4) Notwithstanding any other provision of law to the contrary, the execution or filing of an authority to bind coverage and the exercise of binding authority by an authorized excess line broker shall not constitute the doing of insurance business by an insurer not licensed or authorized to do business in this state.

(5) Any coverage so written must be in compliance with this section.

(6) Every binder shall contain a description and location of the subject of insurance, coverage, conditions and term of insurance, the premium, the name and address of the excess line broker, the name and address of the producing broker, the name of the insurer and the name and address of the insured.

(7) Any binding authority agreement made and filed pursuant to this section may authorize an excess line broker to bind coverage for risks located within or outside of the state of New York, notwithstanding any other provision of this chapter.

(8) Any binding authority agreement made and filed pursuant to this section may authorize an excess line broker to issue notice of cancellation of any insurance policy bound pursuant to such agreement (A) for non-payment of premium, (B) for a material increase in the hazard insured, or (C) upon discovery of a material misrepresentation in the application for insurance. The excess line broker shall not be deemed an agent of the insurer solely for issuing such notice of cancellation.

Editor's Notes: Laws 1986, ch 220, § 1, eff June 28, 1986, applicable to contracts in force and effect on and amended, executed, modified, renewed or altered on June 28, 1986, provides as follows:

Section 1. Legislative intent. The legislature hereby finds and declares that the state is in the midst of an insurance crisis which affects all aspects of the public and private sectors. Day care centers, not-for-profit organizations, volunteer groups, businesses, governmental entities, housing and transit authorities, professionals and others have experienced sudden and inexplicable cancellations and nonrenewals of their liability insurance policies with little, if any, notice. In other cases, policyholders and the public have been confronted by skyrocketing premiums or reductions in coverage. These events have disastrous effects on a multitude of public entities, groups and individuals, and threaten to undermine economic development and the delivery of essential and necessary services to residents, consumers and businesses throughout New York state. Because critical coverages have become unavailable or unaffordable, a comprehensive, balanced approach is imperative to provide stability and safeguard the public interest.

The legislature further finds and declares that, by the enactment of the provisions of this act, it is the intent of the legislature to fulfill its constitutional obligation to provide for the health, safety and welfare of the people of this state. It is imperative that this state provide stability, security and certainty for commercial risk, public entity and professional liability insurance policyholders and the public at-large by the enactment of this act.

This act is intended to alleviate the problems of unaffordability and unavailability of such insurance, to provide for increased security of rates and rating procedures, and to provide for increased disclosure and knowledge of insurance company financial practices, by, among other measures:

(a) establishing a flexible rating system, with prior approval of rate changes beyond flexibility bands, for certain liability insurance;.

(b) preventing unwarranted mid-term cancellations and affording policyholders minimum notice of nonrenewal of policies, reductions in coverage and premium increases;.

(c) allowing New York counties, towns, cities, villages, district corporations, school districts and boards of cooperative educational services to organize and subscribe to statewide municipal reciprocal insurers;.

(d) authorizing the issuance of property/casualty insurance policies on a group basis for public entities and not-for-profit organizations;.

(e) establishing stand-by joint underwriting authority by expanding the powers of the New York property insurance underwriting association;.

(f) instituting qualified immunity for uncompensated officers and directors of not-for-profit organizations;.

(g) increasing capacity by expediting access to alternative voluntary markets where appropriate;.

(h) providing for annual reports to the governor and legislature of insurance company rating and financial practices;.

(i) authorizing costs upon frivolous claims and counterclaims; and.

(j) authorizing the admissibility of recovery from collateral sources.

Laws 1988, ch 630, § 5, eff Jan 1, 1989, provides as follows:

Laws 1990, ch 190, § 385(p), eff May 25, 1990, provides as follows:

§ 385. This act shall take effect immediately, provided that:

(p) sections one hundred ninety-five through two hundred seven of this act shall take effect July 1, 1990 and shall apply to policies purchased or renewed on or after such date, provided that the amendment to subsection (a) of section 2130 of the insurance law made by section one hundred ninety-six of this act shall not affect the expiration as provided by section 5 of chapter 630 of the laws of 1988;.

Laws 1993, ch 663, § 1, eff Aug 4, 1993, provides as follows:

Section 1. Legislative findings and declaration. The legislature hereby finds and declares that a principal goal of effective insurance regulation must be to allow citizens of this state reasonable access to financially sound and reliable insurers for their insurance coverage needs. Under current law, citizens are denied access to certain insurers which are financially sound and reliable because the insurers are controlled by a governmental entity. The legislature hereby declares that certain of these insurers should be allowed to provide coverage to citizens of this state, either as licensed insurers or as eligible excess line insurers, provided certain conditions and safeguards are met.

Laws 1993, ch 684, §§ 1, 6, eff Oct 1, 1993, provide as follows:

Section 1. Legislative intent. Chapter 220 of the laws of 1986 recognized the importance of the excess line insurance market to New York consumers. In chapter 630 of the laws of 1988, the legislature further determined that access to financially sound unauthorized insurers was of importance to this state and established the excess line association to better ensure that excess line brokers were procuring coverage with financially sound unauthorized insurers. This act is intended to reaffirm the importance of the excess line insurance market to New York insurance buyers.

§ 6. This act shall take effect October 1, 1993; provided, however, that the amendments to subsection (b) of section 2118 of the insurance law made by section three of this act shall not affect and shall be subject to the expiration of such subsection (b) as provided by section 5 of chapter 630 of the laws of 1988 as amended.

Laws 1996, ch 498, § 4, eff Sept 7, 1996, provides as follows:

§ 4. This act shall take effect thirty days after it shall have become a law; provided, however, that the amendments to certain provisions of the insurance law made by sections one and three of this act shall not affect the expiration of such provisions and shall be deemed to expire therewith.

Laws 2001, ch 74, § 5, eff June 29, 2001, provides as follows:

§ 5. This act shall take effect immediately; provided, however, that the amendments to section 2130 of the insurance law made by section two of this act and the amendments to subsection (b) of section 2118 of the insurance law made by section three of this act shall not affect the expiration of such provisions as provided by section 5 of chapter 630 of the laws of 1988, as amended, and shall be deemed repealed therewith.

Laws 2003, ch 687, § 49, eff Oct 21, 2003, provides as follows:

§ 49. This act shall take effect immediately; provided that sections two through twenty-one, forty-one and forty-three through forty-eight of this act shall take effect January 1, 2004; and provided further that the amendments to subsection (b) of section 2118 of the insurance law made by section forty-two of this act shall not affect the expiration of such subsection and shall be deemed to expire therewith.

Laws 2011, ch 61, § 19, sub (2)–(4) (Part I), eff July 21, 2011, provides as follows:

(2) the amendments to subsection (b) of section 2118 of the insurance law made by section twelve of this act shall not affect the expiration and reversion of such subsection and shall be deemed to expire therewith;.

(3) sections thirteen and fourteen of this act shall apply to insurance contracts that have an effective date on or after July 21, 2011 and sections fifteen through eighteen of this act shall apply to taxable insurance contracts that have an effective date on or after July 21, 2011; and.

(4) effective immediately, the addition, amendment, or repeal of any rules and regulations necessary for the implementation of this act on its effective date are authorized and directed to be made and completed on or before such effective date.

1. Generally

Former § 137 [predecessor to former § 122, now §§ 2105, 2118] in relation to "surplus line" does not have the effect of authorizing foreign companies to transact business in this state, but allows brokers to procure such insurance from a foreign company. When the agreement of an insured to procure other insurance is conditional upon the fact that the insurer is not authorized to do business in this state, it cannot contend that it had a limited authority to do business in this state, by force of former § 137 [now §§ 2105, 2118], so as to make the contract one which was perfected here. Friedland v Commonwealth Fire Ins. Co., 143 A.D. 570, 128 N.Y.S. 705, 1911 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 878 (N.Y. App. Div. 1911), aff'd, 207 N.Y. 705, 101 N.E. 1102, 207 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 705, 1913 N.Y. LEXIS 1361 (N.Y. 1913).

Former § 122 [now §§ 2105, 2118] in some circumstances permits placing of insurance with companies not authorized to insure in this state. I. Tanenbaum Son & Co. v Rothenberg & Co., 201 A.D. 272, 194 N.Y.S. 315, 1922 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6302 (N.Y. App. Div. 1922), aff'd, 236 N.Y. 520, 142 N.E. 267, 236 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 520, 1923 N.Y. LEXIS 938 (N.Y. 1923).

It is well established that New York residents may properly procure insurance from unlicensed and unadmitted insurance companies through excess-line brokers, and that such contracts are enforceable in this state and assessments levied by insurance companies not licensed to do business in New York are valid and enforceable therein against New York policy holders. Kelly v Bremmerman, 42 Misc. 2d 148, 247 N.Y.S.2d 655, 1964 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2029 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1964), rev'd, 23 A.D.2d 346, 260 N.Y.S.2d 971, 1965 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3783 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1965).

Former § 122 [now §§ 2105, 2118] was clearly enacted to cure some of the problems raised by prior practice of brokers placing excess-line insurance with companies not subject to the regulatory powers of this state, and was aimed at protecting the insured. People v Condor of Americas, Inc., 43 Misc. 2d 899, 252 N.Y.S.2d 619, 1964 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1587 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1964), aff'd, 23 A.D.2d 822, 258 N.Y.S.2d 338, 1965 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5667 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1965).

As to regulation of excess line insurance, situs of risk depends on particular facts of situation for which coverage is sought; procuring political risk coverage policy directly from unauthorized insurer without having to use excess line market would not be permissible. NY Ins Dep't Gen Counsel, Opinion No. 03-01-37, 2003 NY Insurance GC Opinions LEXIS 110.

As to regulation of excess line insurance, situs of risk depends on particular facts of situation for which coverage is sought; procuring political risk coverage policy directly from unauthorized insurer without having to use excess line market would not be permissible. NY Ins Dep't Gen Counsel, Opinion No. 03-01-37, 2003 NY Insurance GC Opinions LEXIS 110.

It would be impossible, under any circumstances, for excess line broker to comply with CLS Ins § 2118 when New York authorized insurer conditions renewal of covered policy subject to CLS Ins § 3426 on policy's placement with unauthorized insurer, be it affiliate or not. NY Ins Dep't Gen Counsel, Opinion No. 05-11-03, 2005 NY Insurance GC Opinions LEXIS 238.

Superintendent of Insurance does not hold hearings to determine whether particular coverage is eligible for procurement from unauthorized insurer in excess line market, since Insurance Law expressly delineates permissible kinds of insurance that excess line broker may procure through excess line market. NY Ins Dep't Gen Counsel, Opinion No. 06-08-05, 2006 NY Insurance GC Opinions LEXIS 146.

Under CLS Ins § 2118(b)(8), when portion of risk is in New York, only New York licensed excess line broker may procure policy in New York from unauthorized insurer; however, CLS Ins § 2118(b)(9) allows excess line licensee to place excess line insurance in another state when property or risk exposure is both in New York and in another state, provided that certain other requirements are met. NY Ins Dep't Gen Counsel, Opinion No. 07-08-12, 2007 NY Insurance GC Opinions LEXIS 126.

2. Rights and obligations

Since foreign insurance companies are made subject to suit in New York with respect to policies issued and secured from them pursuant to former § 122 [now §§ 2105, 2118], it would seem that equal protection of the law demands that such unauthorized carriers be permitted to sue here with respect to policies so issued, such as to obtain a judicial declaration of nonliability on the policy, without complying with the requirements of § 210 of the General Corporation Law. Empire Mut. Ins. Co. v International Tram-Po-Line Mfrs., Inc., 39 Misc. 2d 810, 242 N.Y.S.2d 28, 1963 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1950 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1963).

While former § 122 [now §§ 2105, 2118] allows insurance brokers to secure policies from unauthorized or unadmitted companies in special circumstances, it does not admit the insuring companies to the state or authorize the carrier to transact business here. Empire Mut. Ins. Co. v International Tram-Po-Line Mfrs., Inc., 39 Misc. 2d 810, 242 N.Y.S.2d 28, 1963 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1950 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1963).

Excess line broker or producing broker may deliver ACORD or similar form of certificate of insurance to third party without legend required by 11 NYCRR § 27.17(b). NY Ins Dep't Gen Counsel, Opinion No. 01-08-11, 2001 NY Insurance GC Opinions LEXIS 60.

As to policy written by unauthorized insurer, CLS Ins § 2118(b)(1) requires excess line broker to submit to Excess Line Association of New York (ELANY) copy of policy's declarations page, cover note, or binder within 45 days after coverage is bound, and thereafter endorsements exhibiting changing premium are to be sent by excess line broker to ELANY. NY Ins Dep't Gen Counsel, Opinion No. 02-07-02, 2002 NY Insurance GC Opinions LEXIS 264.

There is no specific obligation on excess line broker under CLS Insurance Law to advise, whether in writing or orally, why unauthorized insurer has increased its premium; however, such broker should make effort to determine cause, and to advise insured of his findings, in accordance with CLS Ins § 2110, which requires excess line broker to act in competent, honest, and trustworthy manner. NY Ins Dep't Gen Counsel, Opinion No. 02-07-02, 2002 NY Insurance GC Opinions LEXIS 264.

Insurance broker may not cancel, mid-term, in-force property insurance policy with New York authorized insurer in order to place same risk with unauthorized insurer, even if insured consents. NY Ins Dep't Gen Counsel, Opinion No. 07-09-13, 2007 NY Insurance GC Opinions LEXIS 144.

New York-licensed broker may not lawfully place insurance coverage in excess line market on risks located in New York State that would cover punitive damages. NY Ins Dep't Gen Counsel, Opinion No. 08-08-09, 2008 NY Insurance GC Opinions LEXIS 201.

3. Standards of conduct

In concluding that insurance broker violated CLS Ins § 2118 by failing to personally verify that kind of insurance sought by insured was unobtainable in New York prior to agreeing to act as excess line broker, Superintendent of Insurance reasonably determined that broker was not relieved from doing so because "another broker" had secured necessary declinations and completed affidavit to that effect where other broker was not licensed to do business in New York; allowing use of affidavits from brokers who are not licensed in New York to satisfy statutory mandate would not comport with legislature's intent to maintain accountability by requiring signed affidavits from parties over whom Department of Insurance has regulatory authority. Cleveland v Department of Ins., 206 A.D.2d 659, 614 N.Y.S.2d 620, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7392 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1994).

In legislating the standard of conduct required of excess-line brokers, adoption of general requirements of "due care" and "diligent effort" was sufficient basis for implementation by administrative regulation. B. & R. Excess Corp. v Thacher, 37 Misc. 2d 307, 234 N.Y.S.2d 486, 1962 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2374 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1962), aff'd, 18 A.D.2d 1137, 239 N.Y.S.2d 531, 1963 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5434 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1963).

Unauthorized insurer who transacts insurance business through excess line market must adhere to 11 NYCRR § 27 and CLS Ins §§ 2105, 2118, and 2130; financial and other requirements including prohibited activities do not change by virtue of fact that portion of risk is subsequently reinsured with large insurance company such as Lloyds of London. NY Ins Dep't Gen Counsel, Opinion No. 01-11-12, 2001 NY Insurance GC Opinions LEXIS 278.

As to policy written by unauthorized insurer, if declarations page or cover note has been filed with Excess Line Association of New York (ELANY), and policy premium is thereafter increased or decreased, premium change endorsement must be sent to ELANY, and where binder has been filed with ELANY, amended binder exhibiting premium change must be sent to ELANY; however, there is no requirement under CLS Ins § 2118 for endorsement to state reason for changing premium. NY Ins Dep't Gen Counsel, Opinion No. 02-07-02, 2002 NY Insurance GC Opinions LEXIS 264.

New York-licensed broker may not lawfully hire third party to place insurance coverage in excess line market on risks located in New York State that would cover punitive damages. NY Ins Dep't Gen Counsel, Opinion No. 08-08-09, 2008 NY Insurance GC Opinions LEXIS 201.

4. Application of other regulations

Regulation 41 promulgated by the Insurance Commissioner is not violative of petitioner's constitutional rights in imposing specific requirements on "excess line" brokers with respect to placement of risks, compensation, etc., and represents a proper continuation of legislative policies in this field. B. & R. Excess Corp. v Thacher, 37 Misc. 2d 307, 234 N.Y.S.2d 486, 1962 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2374 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1962), aff'd, 18 A.D.2d 1137, 239 N.Y.S.2d 531, 1963 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5434 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1963).

Where political risk insurance coverage is considered to constitute one or more of types of coverage referenced in CLS Ins § 2105(a), then coverage could be placed by excess line broker with unauthorized insurer that is in compliance with requirements in CLS Ins § 2118 and 11 NYCRR § 27 (Regulation 41).

NY Ins Dep't Gen Counsel, Opinion No. 03-01-37, 2003 NY Insurance GC Opinions LEXIS 110.

Excess line broker may accept Part C affidavit sent to it by producing broker by means of facsimile transmission and use it in order to satisfy requirements in Regulation 41 that there be proof of declinations before business may be placed by excess line broker with unauthorized insurer. NY Ins Dep't Gen Counsel, Opinion No. 03-01-39, 2003 NY Insurance GC Opinions LEXIS 108.

Where political risk insurance coverage is considered to constitute one or more of types of coverage referenced in CLS Ins § 2105(a), then coverage could be placed by excess line broker with unauthorized insurer that is in compliance with requirements contained in CLS Ins § 2118 and 11 NYCRR § 27 (Regulation 41). NY Ins Dep't Gen Counsel, Opinion No. 03-01-37, 2003 NY Insurance GC Opinions LEXIS 110.

Excess line broker may accept Part C affidavit sent to it by producing broker by means of facsimile transmission and use it in order to satisfy requirements in 11 NYCRR Part 27 (Regulation 41) that there be proof of declinations before business may be placed by excess line broker with unauthorized insurer. NY Ins Dep't Gen Counsel, Opinion No. 03-01-39, 2003 NY Insurance GC Opinions LEXIS 108.

Where corporation has locations in more than one state, and policy is placed in New York by excess line broker, excess line premium tax is to be allocated in accordance with allocation schedules in 11 NYCRR Part 27 (Regulation 41); method of allocation varies depending on nature of risk and type of insurance. NY Ins Dep't Gen Counsel, Opinion No. 03-04-15, 2003 NY Insurance GC Opinions LEXIS 20.

Regulation 107 (11 NYCRR § 71.4) does not apply to excess line policies and does not preclude issuance of such policies on basis that liability policies may not provide separate limits for defense costs. NY Ins Dep't Gen Counsel, Opinion No. 05-12-14, 2006 NY Insurance GC Opinions LEXIS 54.

In placing excess line insurance, excess line broker must comply with requirements of 11 NYCRR Part 27 (Regulation 41) and CLS Ins §§ 2105, 2118 and 2130; onus is on excess line broker to ensure that unauthorized insurer satisfies financial and other requirements contained in Part 27. NY Ins Dep't Gen Counsel, Opinion No. 06-01-19, 2006 NY Insurance GC Opinions LEXIS 19.

Under CLS Ins § 2118, 11 NYCRR § 27.13(a), (b) & (g) (Regulation 41) and other applicable sections of the Insurance Law and Regulation, company must be in compliance with, among other things, solvency requirements of New York and be on list of eligible insurers to renew policies, even if renewal is only for limited period. NY Ins Dep't Gen Counsel, Opinion No. 06-08-12, 2006 NY Insurance GC Opinions LEXIS 162.

Where claims-made liability insurance policy issued by unauthorized insurer on New York risk has been properly placed through excess line broker under CLS Ins § 2118 and 11 NYCRR Part 27 (Regulation 41), policy is exempt from 11 NYCRR Part 73 (Regulation 121) extended reporting period requirements. NY Ins Dep't Gen Counsel, Opinion No. 06-11-15, 2006 NY Insurance GC Opinions LEXIS 203.

Regulation 41 (11 NYCRR Part 27), which was effective January 1, 1994, does not apply to trust agreement that was entered into prior to promulgation of regulation, where company was placed into liquidation and ceased writing new business prior to promulgation of regulation. NY Ins Dep't Gen Counsel, Opinion No. 08-03-17, 2008 NY Insurance GC Opinions LEXIS 65.

5. Taxes

Insurance Superintendent was permitted to independently calculate amount of taxes due where petitioners had failed to maintain records and to provide records during audit, as required by CLS Ins § 2118(c)(1) and (2). V.P. Mgmt. Corp. v Levin, 257 A.D.2d 490, 684 N.Y.S.2d 211, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 425 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1999).

Insured, which is tax-exempt unit of another state government, is not required to pay excess line premium taxes to Superintendent of Insurance and stamping fees imposed by Excess Line Association of New York; said taxes and fees in New York are imposed on New York licensed excess line broker, although such brokers commonly pass on cost to insured by means of written service fee memorandum signed by insurer. NY Ins Dep't Gen Counsel, Opinion No. 02-10-07, 2002 NY Insurance GC Opinions LEXIS 318.

If broker does not use its New York excess line license to place insurance on New York risks but insurance transaction is negotiated in California between insured domiciled there and California office of nationwide broker, there would be no New York excess line tax and stamping fee if such were non-New York transaction; however, CLS Tax § 1551 imposes tax on insured that obtains insurance from insurer not authorized in New York covering risks in New York, and if policy covers risks located both in New York and out-of-state, § 1551 taxes are allocated based on amount of premiums pertaining to New York risks. NY Ins Dep't Gen Counsel, Opinion No. 02-10-07, 2002 NY Insurance GC Opinions LEXIS 318.

Marine insurance may be procured from unauthorized insurer only by licensed excess lines broker and is subject to excess line premium taxes, except that to extent specifically provided for in CLS Ins § 2117, licensed insurance broker may place certain classes of marine insurance exempt from excess lines premium tax. NY Ins Dep't Gen Counsel, Opinion No. 03-03-18, 2003 NY Insurance GC Opinions LEXIS 45.

Where insurance policy is principally negotiated, issued, and delivered outside of New York, it is not subject to New York's excess line laws, and excess line premium tax is not due; however, insured may be required to pay tax to New York in regard to New York risks. NY Ins Dep't Gen Counsel, Opinion No. 03-04-15, 2003 NY Insurance GC Opinions LEXIS 20.

Excess line brokers are responsible for 3.6 percent premium tax on each policy procured pursuant to excess line license; no additional fire tax is imposed. NY Ins Dep't Gen Counsel, Opinion No. 06-08-05, 2006 NY Insurance GC Opinions LEXIS 146.

Fees that are charged by insurer, such as policy fees and inspection fees, are considered part of "premium" and are subject to excess line premium tax. NY Ins Dep't Gen Counsel, Opinion No. 06-09-16, 2006 NY Insurance GC Opinions LEXIS 177.

Commercial liability insurance policy is not subject to New York excess line tax and ELANY stamping fees where New Jersey domiciled insurance broker who has New York nonresident broker's license, and is licensed as excess line broker in both New York and New Jersey, plans to negotiate and place commercial liability insurance policy in New Jersey for New Jersey domiciled insured (construction firm with its parent company based in People's Republic of China); such transaction does not constitute doing of insurance business in New York. NY Ins Dep't Gen Counsel, Opinion No. 06-09-18, 2006 NY Insurance GC Opinions LEXIS 179.

6. Fees

Fees that are charged by insurer, such as policy fees and inspection fees, are considered part of "premium" and are subject to stamping fee. NY Ins Dep't Gen Counsel, Opinion No. 06-09-16, 2006 NY Insurance GC Opinions LEXIS 177.

Under CLS Ins § 9108, fire insurance fee does not apply to excess line insurance companies in New York; however, excess line premium tax paid by broker does include component representing fire premium tax. NY Ins Dep't Gen Counsel, Opinion No. 06-11-10, 2006 NY Insurance GC Opinions LEXIS 198.

If inspection is conducted by insurer itself or on behalf of insurer, and insured pays fee directly to insurer or insurer's inspector for that inspection, then that fee is considered part of premium, even if such fee is separate charge from premium, and as such, fee is subject to excess line premium tax; on other hand, if insurer requires inspection but does not dictate who performs it, and insured pays inspection fee directly to party who performs inspection, then that fee is not part of premium and is not subject to excess line premium tax. NY Ins Dep't Gen Counsel, Opinion No. 07-03-08, 2007 NY Insurance GC Opinions LEXIS 28.

Both installment payment fee and reinstatement fee are subject to excess line premium tax, because under broad definition of "premium" set forth in CLS Ins § 9101(b), such fees constitute "consideration" and "compensation" to insurer for insurance contract. NY Ins Dep't Gen Counsel, Opinion No. 07-03-08, 2007 NY Insurance GC Opinions LEXIS 28.

7. Premiums

Whether authorized insurer that issues commercial general liability policy may charge minimum and deposit premium is dependent on insurer's ability to prove that minimum and deposit premium filed equals costs associated with issuing policy, and to cover expenses of writing business; unauthorized insurer that issues commercial general liability policy through licensed excess line broker under CLS Ins §§ 2105 and 2118 is not prohibited from issuing minimum and deposit premium. NY Ins Dep't Gen Counsel, Opinion No. 02-06-04, 2002 NY Insurance GC Opinions LEXIS 26.

Unauthorized insurer that issues commercial property/casualty insurance policy on excess line basis is not subject to rating requirements contained CLS Insurance Law Art 23 and CLS Ins § 3426; thus, whether such unauthorized insurer may increase premium after coverage is bound depends on terms of insurance contract. NY Ins Dep't Gen Counsel, Opinion No. 02-07-02, 2002 NY Insurance GC Opinions LEXIS 264.

As to policy written by unauthorized insurer, such unauthorized insurer is not subject to policy form filing provisions contained in CLS Insurance Law Art 23; thus, whether endorsement, or other writing, must denote reason why such insurer has increased premium is dependent on terms of insurance contract. NY Ins Dep't Gen Counsel, Opinion No. 02-07-02, 2002 NY Insurance GC Opinions LEXIS 264.

If same coverage is available by authorized insurer, even though premium is higher, excess line broker must obtain coverage from authorized insurer, under requirements of CLS Ins § 2118(b). NY Ins Dep't Gen Counsel, Opinion No. 03-04-27, 2003 NY Insurance GC Opinions LEXIS 8.

Price is not sufficient reason to place insurance otherwise available in authorized market in excess line market. NY Ins Dep't Gen Counsel, Opinion No. 05-12-14, 2006 NY Insurance GC Opinions LEXIS 54.

8. Declination

If authorized insurer has offered to issue coverage then excess line broker may not place business with unauthorized insurer even if 3 or more other authorized insurers declined to issue coverage. NY Ins Dep't Gen Counsel, Opinion No. 05-12-14, 2006 NY Insurance GC Opinions LEXIS 54.

Requirement for 3 declinations in CLS Ins § 2118(b)(4) is only relevant to whether diligent effort has been made if no authorized insurer has offered to place insurance. NY Ins Dep't Gen Counsel, Opinion No. 05-12-14, 2006 NY Insurance GC Opinions LEXIS 54.

Excess line broker that has obtained quote from authorized insurer for liability policy that contains defense within limits offset provision and quote from eligible excess line insurer for liability policy with unlimited defense outside liability limit, may place policy with excess line insurer where excess line broker has also received 3 declinations from other authorized insurers. NY Ins Dep't Gen Counsel, Opinion No. 06-03-08, 2006 NY Insurance GC Opinions LEXIS 54.

Failure of authorized insurer to respond to solicitation for insurance coverage does not constitute declination for purpose of determining that insurance is unobtainable in whole or in part from insurers authorized to write such insurance in New York State. NY Ins Dep't Gen Counsel, Opinion No. 06-08-05, 2006 NY Insurance GC Opinions LEXIS 146.

In determining that insurance is unobtainable from authorized insurer, excess line broker may not rely on declinations obtained with respect to other insureds in lieu of obtaining separate declinations for insured. NY Ins Dep't Gen Counsel, Opinion No. 06-08-05, 2006 NY Insurance GC Opinions LEXIS 146.

Excess line broker may place business for New York hospital that is in excess of that available through Medical Malpractice Insurance Pool from unauthorized insurer, provided that broker adheres to New York's excess line rules, including declination requirement of CLS Ins § 2118 and 11 NYCRR § 27.3(a). NY Ins Dep't Gen Counsel, Opinion No. 06-08-10, 2006 NY Insurance GC Opinions LEXIS 160.

9. Electronic submission

CLS Ins §§ 2118(b)(7) and 2130(i) specifically provide that submission and filing of excess line documents may be accomplished by electronic or other media transmission, providing Superintendent of Insurance first approves proposed methods of electronically submitting, receiving, recording and stamping such documents. NY Ins Dep't Gen Counsel, Opinion No. 05-06-01, 2005 NY Insurance GC Opinions LEXIS 136.

Insurance Law permits Excess Line Association of New York (ELANY) to accept electronic signatures on submitted broker affidavits. NY Ins Dep't Gen Counsel, Opinion No. 05-06-01, 2005 NY Insurance GC Opinions LEXIS 136.

CLS Ins § 2118(b)(7) specifically permits electronic or other media transmission of excess line documents by excess line brokers. NY Ins Dep't Gen Counsel, Opinion No. 06-04-02, 2006 NY Insurance GC Opinions LEXIS 82.

New York-licensed excess line broker that procures certificates of insurance under group insurance policy (Master Policy) covering New York members of proposed Identity Theft Purchasing Group Insurance Program may submit and file excess line documents required by CLS Ins § 2118 electronically with Excess Line Association of New York. NY Ins Dep't Gen Counsel, Opinion No. 10-12-14, 2010 NY Insurance GC Opinions LEXIS 92.

Insurance transaction under proposed "Identity Theft Purchasing Group Insurance Program," involving interactions between Purchasing Group, New York licensed excess line broker and Purchasing Group's New York members, may be conducted entirely by electronic means from application through issuance of certificate of insurance; however, only those New York members of Purchasing Group who have consented to engage in electronic transaction to obtain identity-theft insurance coverage through Program may be required to participate by electronic means; Program must accommodate needs of those New York members of Purchasing Group who have not consented to engage in electronic transaction, and transactions involving those members must be conducted using paper and non-electronic means of communication, such as postal service mailings. NY Ins Dep't Gen Counsel, Opinion No. 10-12-14, 2010 NY Insurance GC Opinions LEXIS 92.

10. Exclusions

There is no general prohibition against terrorism exclusion in policy written on excess line basis, but such exclusion would not be permissible as to peril of fire and certain statutorily required coverages. NY Ins Dep't Gen Counsel, Opinion No. 02-05-19, 2002 NY Insurance GC Opinions LEXIS 36.

Nothing in New York Insurance Law would have prevented unauthorized insurer from issuing liability insurance policy through excess lines broker containing "Lead Paint Exclusion." NY Ins Dep't Gen Counsel, Opinion No. 03-03-12, 2003 NY Insurance GC Opinions LEXIS 51.

Nothing in New York Insurance Law or regulations thereunder specifically prohibit mold exclusion in insurance policy; however, in policy issued by authorized insurer written on risks or operations in New York State, exclusion that is misleading or violative of public policy is not permissible (Superintendent of Insurance has not approved any mold-related exclusions). NY Ins Dep't Gen Counsel, Opinion No. 03-04-04, 2003 NY Insurance GC Opinions LEXIS 31.

Nothing in Insurance Law or regulations thereunder precludes endorsement in excess line policy that excludes coverage for employees of subcontractor. NY Ins Dep't Gen Counsel, Opinion No. 03-11-05, 2003 NY Insurance GC Opinions LEXIS 306.

Surety bond required from debt collection agency that collects child support payments may be sold by unauthorized insurer, absent requirement by New York City Department of Consumer Affairs (DCA). NY Ins Dep't Gen Counsel, Opinion No. 04-08-24, 2004 NY Insurance GC Opinions LEXIS 206.

Product or system group insurance policy, such as automobile anti-theft reimbursement policy, may not be procured by excess line broker. NY Ins Dep't Gen Counsel, Opinion No. 04-10-09, 2004 NY Insurance GC Opinions LEXIS 248.

Excess line broker may not place business with unauthorized insurer that provides separate limit for defense costs when authorized insurer offers same coverage except that defense costs are covered within policy's limits of liability. NY Ins Dep't Gen Counsel, Opinion No. 05-12-14, 2006 NY Insurance GC Opinions LEXIS 54.

If insurance is available through Medical Malpractice Insurance Pool, then excess line broker may not place medical malpractice insurance for New York hospital with unauthorized insurer. NY Ins Dep't Gen Counsel, Opinion No. 06-08-10, 2006 NY Insurance GC Opinions LEXIS 160.

11. Records

Under CLS Ins § 2118(c)(1), excess line broker must maintain complete and separate record of all policies procured from unauthorized insurers and files supporting declinations by authorized insurers. NY Ins Dep't Gen Counsel, Opinion No. 06-04-02, 2006 NY Insurance GC Opinions LEXIS 82.

CLS Ins § 2118(c)(2) specifies that records are subject to examination by Excess Line Association of New York (ELANY) as provided in CLS Ins § 2130 and by Superintendent of Insurance as provided in CLS Ins § 310. NY Ins Dep't Gen Counsel, Opinion No. 06-04-02, 2006 NY Insurance GC Opinions LEXIS 82.

12. Illustrative cases

Insurance broker violated Insurance Department Regulation 121 (11 NYCRR § 73.2) by placing in New York, through excess line broker, claims-made liquor liability policies; fact that insurer issuing policies was unauthorized insurer beyond reach of Insurance Department was irrelevant to applicability of Regulation 121's prohibition of claims-made policies to procuring broker. John Paterno, Inc. by & Through Paterno v Curiale, 88 N.Y.2d 328, 645 N.Y.S.2d 424, 668 N.E.2d 395, 1996 N.Y. LEXIS 1191 (N.Y. 1996).

An Article 78 proceeding seeking to annul a regulation and a form issued to comply therewith, which regulation and form were promulgated to establish procedures essential to meet the standards of due care and diligent efforts set forth in Ins Law § 122 [now § 2118], was improperly dismissed as untimely commenced under CPLR § 217 since that section provides that a proceeding against a body or officer must be commenced within four months after the determination to be reviewed becomes final and binding upon petitioner, and notwithstanding that the regulation was promulgated more than four months prior to the commencement of the proceeding, the form that was adopted to comply with the regulation contained a requirement which represented a material addition to the regulation so that it was not until after the form was adopted that the petitioner had a final determination from which to ascertain the possible consequences of the regulation and, accordingly, the four-month limitation period did not start to run until the adoption of the form, which time period was less than four months prior to the inception of the Article 78 proceeding. New York Excess & Surplus Lines Asso. v Lewis, 92 A.D.2d 839, 460 N.Y.S.2d 557, 1983 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 17215 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't), aff'd, 61 N.Y.2d 650, 472 N.Y.S.2d 87, 460 N.E.2d 228, 1983 N.Y. LEXIS 3640 (N.Y. 1983).

In an action by a professional corporation against professional liability insurers for a declaration that defendants were obligated to defend and indemnify with respect to a malpractice action instituted against plaintiff by a former client, the complaint would be dismissed without prejudice to an application for leave to serve an amended complaint where the complaint failed to allege that movant ever issued a policy or had any obligation to do so and where movant was at most an excess line broker, not an insurer and dismissal would be required for failure to state a cause of action since the only liability sought to be imposed against movant was as an insurer. Raskin v Nassau Ins. Co., 93 A.D.2d 774, 461 N.Y.S.2d 804, 1983 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 17619 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1983).

In an action by a pawnbroker, whose business was destroyed by fire, to recover on an excess line insurance policy for damages to the premises and contents, and damages from business interruption, the insurance company, an out-of-state corporation, was not required to post a bond to cover plaintiff's possible damages, even though Ins Law § 59-a [now § 1213] requires the posting of a bond by an insurer not authorized to do business within the state, where that requirement was not applicable to any suit arising out of any contract of insurance effectuated in accordance with Ins Law § 122 [now § 2118] when the contract contained a provision designating the superintendent as the insurance company's attorney upon whom service could be made, where § 59-a [now § 1213] also allowed a broker to place insurance with a foreign insurer if the extent of the insurance was only the excess of the amount procurable from authorized insurers, where plaintiff had been unable to obtain any insurance from authorized insurers, where the amount procurable thus was zero, where any amount obtainable from an excess line insurance company thus was over the amount procurable, and where the insurance contract contained an explicit statement that the superintendent of insurance was the insurance company's agent for the service of process. Willis Pawnbrokers, Inc. v Ambassador Ins. Co., 100 A.D.2d 771, 474 N.Y.S.2d 44, 1984 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 17868 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1984).

A policy of insurance signed and sealed in Massachusetts by a corporation organized and doing business in that state, and mailed to the insured in this state pursuant to an order by mail, is a Massachusetts contract and not void under former § 137 [predecessor to former § 122, now §§ 2105, 2118]. Hammond v International R. Co., 116 N.Y.S. 854, 63 Misc. 437, 1909 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 151 (N.Y. Sup. Ct.), aff'd, 134 A.D. 995, 119 N.Y.S. 1127, 1909 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3882 (N.Y. App. Div. 1909).

Insurance agent that failed to strictly comply with all the requirements of N.Y. Ins. Law § 2118 could not claim the protection of that section for violation of N.Y. Ins. Law § 2117 by obtaining liability insurance for its customer, a motel owner, with an insurer not admitted in New York, so that when the insurer became insolvent, the customer was required to pay its own expenses in a premises liability action; this non-compliance established the broker's breach of contract and breach of fiduciary responsibilities as a matter of law, and the customer was entitled to indemnification, but not punitive damages. East Coast Mgt. Ltd. v Genatt Assoc., Inc., 801 N.Y.S.2d 705, 9 Misc. 3d 440, 234 N.Y.L.J. 14, 2005 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1594 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 2005).

Even though the evidence clearly indicated that two insurance brokers involved in procuring excess line coverage for a group of affiliated nightclubs had not complied with N.Y. Ins. Law § 2118 and with N.Y. Comp. Codes R. & Regs. tit. 11, §§ 27.17 and 27.18, violation of those provisions could not be the basis for an argument of negligence per se where private causes of action had never been recognized for violations of the Insurance Law and the existence of such a cause of action could not be implied from the statutory scheme. Polly Esther's S., Inc. v Bogdanoff, 807 N.Y.S.2d 799, 10 Misc. 3d 375, 234 N.Y.L.J. 55, 2005 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1923 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 2005).

Unauthorized foreign insurer was subject to personal jurisdiction in New York under CLS CPLR § 301 where it had delegated authority to excess line brokers in New York, services performed by those brokers were "essential part" of foreign insurer's business rather than "mere solicitation," and foreign insurer demonstrated its desire to do business in New York by taking deliberate steps to comply with applicable insurance regulations. Anglo Am. Ins. Group, P.L.C. v CalFed, Inc., 899 F. Supp. 1070, 1995 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 12414 (S.D.N.Y. 1995).

13. —Indian tribes

As to placement of insurance with unauthorized insurer for risk located on Indian Reservation physically within New York State, such risk would be considered to be inside New York, and excess line broker must be utilized in placing risk with unauthorized insurer. NY Ins Dep't Gen Counsel, Opinion No. 03-04-23, 2003 NY Insurance GC Opinions LEXIS 12.

Tax-exempt status of Indian tribe does not exempt excess line broker from paying excess line premium tax on insurance policy. NY Ins Dep't Gen Counsel, Opinion No. 03-04-23, 2003 NY Insurance GC Opinions LEXIS 12.

Tax-exempt status of Indian tribe does not exempt excess line broker from paying excess line premium tax on excess line insurance policy insuring tribe or member of tribe, since tax burden is on broker and not insured and whether broker is to be reimbursed for tax amount is purely contractual arrangement between insured and broker. NY Ins Dep't Gen Counsel, Opinion No. 05-05-27, 2005 NY Insurance GC Opinions LEXIS 128.

14. —Municipalities

There is no New York insurance law that prohibits municipality from purchasing insurance from unauthorized insurer; however, statutes other than Insurance Law may require insurance that is purchased only from New York authorized insurers (such as CLS Veh & Tr Law § 311), and municipality purchasing insurance may have laws or regulations with requirements for purchasing insurance. NY Ins Dep't Gen Counsel, Opinion No. 04-07-06, 2004 NY Insurance GC Opinions LEXIS 182.

CLS Ins § 2118, which permits, in certain situations, excess line broker to procure insurance from unauthorized insurer, would not conflict with requirement by municipality that contractor bidding on public project must use insurer that is authorized to do insurance business in New York, since CLS Ins § 2118(b) and 11 NYCRR Part 27 require that diligent effort be made to procure insurance from authorized insurer and generally permits placement with unauthorized insurer only after broker first obtains 3 declinations from authorized insurers. NY Ins Dep't Gen Counsel, Opinion No. 04-11-01, 2004 NY Insurance GC Opinions LEXIS 255.

Analysis

1. Generally
2. Taxes
3. Exclusions

1. Generally

Residents who have received certificates authorizing them to write surplus lines may place such insurance in foreign or unauthorized Lloyds without becoming liable for criminal misdemeanor. 1910 N.Y. Op. Att'y Gen. No. 871.

2. Taxes

Agents authorized to procure insurance are agents of insured and not of insurers, and where insurance was actually procured, though afterwards cancelled, agent should pay tax of three per cent. 1910 N.Y. Op. Att'y Gen. No. 880.

3. Exclusions

Contracts for insurance on steamers, placed with unauthorized foreign corporations, are not subject to regulation. 1909 N.Y. Op. Att'y Gen. No. 752.

Section

2335. Motor vehicle liability insurance rates; prohibition of surcharges for certain accidents and traffic infractions
2335-a. Prohibition of rate increases for persons involved in emergency use of vehicles
2342. Expiration of certain provisions.
2346. Reduction in rates of fire insurance, homeowners insurance or property/casualty premiums for residential property

HISTORY:

Add, L 1984, ch 367, § 1, eff Sept 1, 1984.

§ 2335. [For expiration date, see § 2342] Motor vehicle liability insurance rates; prohibition of surcharges for certain accidents and traffic infractions

No insurer authorized to transact or transacting business in this state, or controlling or controlled by or under common control by or with an insurer authorized to transact or transacting business in this state, which sells a policy providing motor vehicle liability insurance coverage in this state shall increase the policy premium in connection with the insurance permitted or required by this chapter solely because the insured or any other person who customarily operates an automobile covered by the policy:

(a) has had an accident that does not result in aggregate damage to property in excess of two thousand dollars, provided that any policy surcharge shall be permissible for any accident which results in bodily injury or if the insured has more than one accident in the merit rating experience period. Nothing in this subsection shall change the dollar amount of the accident reporting threshold required under paragraph one of subdivision (a) of section six hundred five of the vehicle and traffic law.

(b) has been found guilty of a traffic infraction under any of the provisions of the vehicle and traffic law provided, however, that this provision shall not apply to a conviction for a violation which occurred during the thirty-six month period ending on the last day of the fourth month preceding the month of the effective date of the policy if such conviction consisted of:

(1) operating a motor vehicle at a speed of more than fifteen miles per hour in excess of the legal limit;

(2) operating a motor vehicle in excess of the speed limit, or in a reckless manner, where injury or death results therefrom;

(3) operating a motor vehicle in excess of the speed limit, or reckless driving, or any combination thereof, on three or more occasions;

(4) operating a motor vehicle while intoxicated or impaired by the consumption of alcohol;

(5) operating a motor vehicle while impaired by the use of a drug, within the meaning of section one thousand one hundred ninety-two of the vehicle and traffic law;

(6) homicide or assault arising out of the use or operation of a motor vehicle, or criminal negligence in the use or operation of a motor vehicle resulting in the injury or death of another person, or use or operation of a motor vehicle directly or indirectly in the commission of a felony;

(7) operating a motor vehicle while seeking to avoid apprehension or arrest by a law enforcement officer;

(8) filing or attempting to file a false or fraudulent automobile insurance claim, or knowingly aiding or abetting in the filing or attempted filing of any such claim;

(9) leaving the scene of an incident without reporting;

(10) filing a false document with the department of motor vehicles, or using a license or registration obtained by filing a false document with the department of motor vehicles;

(11) operating a motor vehicle in a race or speed test;

(12) knowingly permitting or authorizing an unlicensed driver to operate a motor vehicle insured under the policy;

(13) operating a motor vehicle insured under the policy without a valid license or registration in effect, except when the person convicted had possessed a valid license or registration which had expired and was subsequently renewed, or during a period of revocation or suspension thereof, or in violation of the limitations applicable to a license issued pursuant to article twenty-one or article twenty-one-a of the vehicle and traffic law; or

(14) two or more moving violations of any other provision of the vehicle and traffic law;

(c) has had a temporary suspension of a driver's license pending a hearing, prosecution or investigation or an indefinite suspension of a driver's license which is issued because of the failure of the person suspended to perform an act, which suspension will be terminated by the performance of the act by the person suspended, or has had more than one such temporary or indefinite suspension arising out of the same incident issued against him or her, provided that the foregoing provisions of this section shall not apply if such suspension or suspensions has or have not been terminated on or before the effective date of the policy; or

(d) with respect to a non-commercial private passenger automobile insurance policy, has had an accident while operating a commercial vehicle in the course of employment and in the discharge of the employee's duties at the time of the accident, unless the accident is determined to have been caused by the intentional action or gross negligence of the insured.

§ 4. This act shall take effect on the ninetieth day after it shall have become a law provided that the amendment to section 2335 of the insurance law made by section three of this act shall expire on the same date as such section expires and shall not affect the expiration of such section as provided in section 2342 of the insurance law, as amended by chapter 185 of the laws of 1988.

Laws 1990, ch 932, § 3, eff Nov 1, 1990, provides as follows:

§ 3. This act shall take effect immediately, provided that the amendment made to section 2335 of the insurance law made by section two of this act shall expire on the same date as such section expires and shall not affect the expiration of such section as provided in section 2342 of the insurance law, as amended by chapter 185 of the laws of 1988.

Laws 2010, ch 277, § 2, eff Nov 27, 2010, provides as follows:

§ 2. This act shall take effect on the one hundred twentieth day after it shall have become a law provided that the amendments to section 2335 of the insurance law made by section one of this act shall expire on the same date as such section expires; and provided, further, that this act shall only apply to policies entered into, modified, or renewed on or after such effective date.

Notes to Decisions

Analysis

1. Rate changes and surcharges generally
2. Construction
3. Surcharges due to DWI

1. Rate changes and surcharges generally

Insurer may not waive surcharge when 3-year period for surcharge with respect to accident will expire within approximately first 30-40 days of new policy with 12-month term. NY Ins Dep't Gen Counsel, Opinion No. 06-11-02, 2006 NY Insurance GC Opinions LEXIS 191.

Premiums charged by insurance companies, including surcharges, are required to be in accordance with rate/rule filings and may not summarily be changed by insurer in disregard of its filings. NY Ins Dep't Gen Counsel, Opinion No. 06-11-02, 2006 NY Insurance GC Opinions LEXIS 191.

2. Construction

Insurance Department, in interpreting Insurance Law, has generally construed term "motor vehicle" to include motorcycles, except where there is specific exclusion of motorcycles from definition of motor vehicle, such as can be found in CLS Ins § 5102; in addition, department also construes term "automobile," as used in CLS Ins § 2335, to have same meaning as motor vehicle. NY Ins Dep't Gen Counsel, Opinion No. 04-10-06, 2004 NY Insurance GC Opinions LEXIS 245.

3. Surcharges due to DWI

CLS Ins § 2335 permits insurer to surcharge insured for certain traffic infractions, and specifically, CLS Ins § 2335(a)(4) permits surcharges for DWI convictions; however, insurer may not surcharge client under CLS Ins § 2335(a)(4) where there was no DWI conviction. NY Ins Dep't Gen Counsel, Opinion No. 04-09-02, 2004 NY Insurance GC Opinions LEXIS 223.

CLS Ins § 2335(a)(4) permits insurer, with respect to insurance policy covering motor vehicle, including motorcycle, to impose surcharge for DWI conviction "which occurred during the thirty-six month period ending on the last day of the fourth month preceding the month of the effective date of the policy." NY Ins Dep't Gen Counsel, Opinion No. 04-10-06, 2004 NY Insurance GC Opinions LEXIS 245.

Insurer transacting business in New York may not increase automobile insurance policy premium as result of violation of CLS Veh & Tr § 1192-a, since individual under age of 21 is not necessarily legally intoxicated or impaired if individual's blood alcohol content (BAC) is between 0.02 percent and 0.07 percent and thus CLS Ins § 2335 would not apply; however, insurer may cancel policy under CLS Ins § 3425(c)(1)(B), if underage driver's license is revoked or suspended as result of violation and driver is named insured under policy or person who customarily operates vehicle insured under policy. NY Ins Dep't Gen Counsel, Opinion No. 07-05-08, 2007 NY Insurance GC Opinions LEXIS 46.

§ 2346. Reduction in rates of fire insurance, homeowners insurance or property/casualty premiums for residential property

1. The superintendent may provide for a reduction in the rates of fire insurance premiums or the fire insurance component of homeowners insurance premiums applicable to residential real property equipped with smoke detecting alarm devices, approved sprinkler systems or fire extinguishers, should a statistically valid study of insurer experience indicate an actuarially significant decrease in losses in the aforementioned circumstances. The reductions provided for shall be proportionally related to the actuarially calculable decrease in losses in the aforementioned circumstances.

2. The superintendent may provide for a reduction in the rates of homeowners insurance premiums applicable to residential real property equipped with dead-bolt locks, should a statistically valid study of insurer experience indicate an actuarially significant decrease in losses attributable to the use of such a device. The superintendent shall by regulation establish standards for dead-bolt locks for which a reduction may be approved. The reductions provided for shall be proportionally related to the actuarially calculable decrease in losses attributable to the use of such a device.

3. The superintendent shall provide for an actuarially appropriate reduction in the rates of homeowner's insurance premiums applicable to residential real property fitted or retrofitted with hurricane/storm shutters. The superintendent shall by regulation establish standards for hurricane/storm shutters, including the safe and secure installation thereof.

4. The superintendent shall provide for an actuarially appropriate reduction in the rates of homeowner's insurance premiums applicable to residential real property fitted or retrofitted with hurricane resistant laminated glass windows or doors. The superintendent shall by regulation establish standards for hurricane resistant laminated glass windows and doors, including the safe and secure installation thereof.

5. (a) Definitions. For the purposes of this subsection, the following terms shall have the following meanings:

(1) "Completion certificate" means a document which cannot be altered and which is provided to a person who successfully completes a homeowner natural disaster preparedness, home safety and loss prevention course.

(2) "Natural disaster" means the occurrence or imminent threat of widespread catastrophic or severe damage, injury, or loss of life or property resulting from any natural cause including, but not limited to, fire, flood, earthquake, hurricane, tornado, high water, landslide, mudslide, wind, storm, wave action, ice storm, epidemic, air contamination, blight, drought, infestation, explosion, water contamination, bridge failure, or bridge collapse.

(3) "Homeowner natural disaster preparedness, home safety and loss prevention course" means a natural disaster preparedness, home safety and loss prevention course that has been submitted to the superintendent for their information and review by an applicant. Such course may provide useful information to participants on items including, but not limited to: courses of action that can be taken before, during and after the occurrence of a natural disaster, strategies to reduce risk exposure to insured residential property owners and renters, and information about the installation of equipment, devices or other capital improvements to real property which can help to eliminate or mitigate damage to real or personal property, personal injury or the loss of life caused by a natural disaster or other insurable event or occurrence of a fire, theft, burglary, personal injury or property damage.

(4) "Applicant" means an insurer, or any other person, agency or organization which submits a proposed homeowner natural disaster preparedness, home safety and loss prevention course to the superintendent for their information and review, and who or which is prepared and able to offer such course to insureds upon the approval thereof.

(b) The superintendent may provide for an actuarially appropriate reduction for a period of three years in rates of homeowner's insurance and property/casualty insurance premiums applicable to residential real property for each triennial completion of a homeowner natural disaster preparedness, home safety and loss prevention course by the insured occupant of such residential real property. In addition, the superintendent may also provide for actuarially appropriate reductions in such rates for the installation of equipment, devices or other capital improvements to real property which can help to eliminate or mitigate natural disaster damage, improve home safety or prevent other losses.

(c) An insurer, upon approval of the superintendent, may upon submission of a completion certificate by an insured, provide an actuarially appropriate reduction, for a period of three years, of the premium for such insured's homeowner's insurance or property/casualty insurance on the residential real property which is the insured's place of residence.

(d) The superintendent may establish, by rule or otherwise, standards or guidelines to be used by the superintendent when reviewing the proposed homeowner natural disaster preparedness, home safety and loss prevention courses.

HISTORY:

Editor's Notes Laws 2016, ch 54, §§ 1 and 3 (Part BB), eff Jan 1, 2017, provide:

Section 1. Legislative intent. The legislature declares that the purpose of this act is to clearly provide in statute for insurers to offer and for homeowners, condominium owners, cooperative apartment owners, and renters to obtain a financial incentive if they complete a course of instruction on how to make their residence more resilient to a natural disaster, reduce the potential loss of life or property damage that could result from a natural disaster, reduce the risk of fire, theft, burglary, personal injury or property damage, and raise their awareness of natural disaster preparedness by offering property/casualty insurance premium reductions.

§ 3. This act shall take effect on the first of January next succeeding the date on which it shall have become a law; provided, however, that effective immediately, any actions necessary to be taken for the implementation of the provisions of this act on its effective date are authorized and directed to be completed on or before such effective date.

Amendment Notes The 2016 amendment by ch 54, § 2 (Part BB), added "or property/casualty" in the section heading; added 5; and made a related change.

ARTICLE 32 Insurance Contracts—life, Accident and Health, Annuities

Section
3216. Individual accident and health insurance policy provisions
3221. Group or blanket accident and health insurance policies; standard provisions.

HISTORY:

Add, L 1984, ch 367, § 1, eff Sept 1, 1984.

§ 3216. Individual accident and health insurance policy provisions

* * * * *

(i) Every person insured under a policy of accident and health insurance delivered or issued for delivery in this state shall be entitled to the reimbursements and coverages specified below.

* * * * *

(24) (A) Every policy which provides major medical or similar comprehensive-type coverage shall include coverage for prehospital emergency medical services for the treatment of an emergency condition when such services are provided by an ambulance service issued a certificate to operate pursuant to section three thousand five of the public health law.

(B) Payment by an insurer pursuant to this section shall be payment in full for the services provided. An ambulance service reimbursed pursuant to this section shall not charge or seek any reimbursement from, or have any recourse against an insured for the services provided pursuant to this paragraph, except for the collection of copayments, coinsurance or deductibles for which the insured is responsible for under the terms of the policy.

(C) An insurer shall provide reimbursement for those services prescribed by this section at rates negotiated between the insurer and the provider of such services. In the absence of agreed upon rates, an insurer shall pay for such services at the usual and customary charge, which shall not be excessive or unreasonable.

(D) The provisions of this paragraph shall have no application to transfers of patients between hospitals or health care facilities by an ambulance service as described in subparagraph (A) of this paragraph.

(E) As used in this paragraph:

(i) "Prehospital emergency medical services" means the prompt evaluation and treatment of an emergency medical condition, and/or non-airborne transportation of the patient to a hospital, provided however, where the patient utilizes non-air-borne emergency transportation pursuant to this paragraph, reimbursement shall be based on whether a prudent layperson, possessing an average knowledge of medicine and health, could reasonably expect the absence of such transportation to result in (I) placing the health of the person afflicted with such condition in serious jeopardy, or in the case of a behavioral condition placing the health of such person or others in serious jeopardy; (II) serious impairment to such person's bodily functions; (III) serious dysfunction of any bodily organ or part of such person; (IV) serious disfigurement of such person; or (V) a condition described in clause (i), (ii), or (iii) of section 1867(e)(1)(A) of the Social Security Act.

(ii) "Emergency condition" means a medical or behavioral condition that manifests itself by acute symptoms of sufficient severity, including severe pain, such that a prudent layperson, possessing an average knowledge of medicine and health, could reasonably expect the absence of immediate medical attention to result in (I) placing the health of the person afflicted with such condition in serious jeopardy, or in the case of a behavioral condition placing the health of such person or others in serious jeopardy; (II) serious impairment to such person's bodily functions; (III) serious dysfunction of any bodily organ or part of such person; (IV) serious disfigurement of such person; or (V) a condition described in clause (i), (ii), or (iii) of section 1867(e)(1)(A) of the Social Security Act.

(25) (A) Every policy which provides coverage for hospital or surgical coverage shall not exclude coverage for screening, diagnosis and treatment of medical conditions otherwise covered by the policy solely because the treatment is provided to diagnose or treat autism spectrum disorder.

(B) Every policy that provides physician services, medical, major medical or similar comprehensive-type coverage shall provide coverage for the screening, diagnosis and treatment of autism spectrum disorder in accordance with this paragraph and shall not exclude coverage for the screening, diagnosis or treatment of medical conditions otherwise covered by the policy because the individual is diagnosed with autism spectrum disorder. Such coverage may be subject to annual deductibles, copayments and coinsurance as may be deemed appropriate by the superintendent and shall be consistent with those imposed on other benefits under the policy. This paragraph shall not be construed as limiting the benefits that are otherwise available to an individual under the policy, provided however that such policy shall not contain any limitations on visits that are solely applied to the treatment of autism spectrum disorder. No insurer shall terminate coverage or refuse to deliver, execute, issue, amend, adjust, or renew coverage to an individual solely because the individual is diagnosed with autism spectrum disorder or has received treatment for autism spectrum disorder. Coverage shall be subject to utilization review and external appeals of health care services pursuant to article forty-nine of this chapter as well as case management and other managed care provisions.

(C) For purposes of this paragraph:

(i) "autism spectrum disorder" means any pervasive developmental disorder as defined in the most recent edition of the diagnostic and statistical manual of mental disorders.

(ii) "applied behavior analysis" means the design, implementation, and evaluation of environmental modifications, using behavioral stimuli and consequences, to produce socially significant improvement in human behavior, including the use of direct observation, measurement, and functional analysis of the relationship between environment and behavior.

(iii) "behavioral health treatment" means counseling and treatment programs, when provided by a licensed provider, and applied behavior analysis, when provided by a person licensed, certified or otherwise authorized to provide applied behavior analysis, that are necessary to develop, maintain, or restore, to the maximum extent practicable, the functioning of an individual.

(iv) "diagnosis of autism spectrum disorder" means assessments, evaluations, or tests to diagnose whether an individual has autism spectrum disorder.

(v) "pharmacy care" means medications prescribed by a licensed health care provider legally authorized to prescribe under title eight of the education law.

(vi) "psychiatric care" means direct or consultative services provided by a psychiatrist licensed in the state in which the psychiatrist practices.

(vii) "psychological care" means direct or consultative services provided by a psychologist licensed in the state in which the psychologist practices.

(viii) "therapeutic care" means services provided by licensed or certified speech therapists, occupational therapists, social workers, or physical therapists.

(ix) "treatment of autism spectrum disorder" shall include the following care and assistive communication devices prescribed or ordered for an individual diagnosed with autism spectrum disorder by a licensed physician or a licensed psychologist:

(1) behavioral health treatment;

(2) psychiatric care;

(3) psychological care;

(4) medical care provided by a licensed health care provider;

(5) therapeutic care, including therapeutic care which is deemed habilitative or nonrestorative, in the event that the policy provides coverage for therapeutic care; and

(6) pharmacy care in the event that the policy provides coverage for prescription drugs.

(D) Coverage may be denied on the basis that such treatment is being provided to the covered person pursuant to an individualized education plan under article eighty-nine of the education law. The provision of services pursuant to an individualized family service plan under section twenty-five hundred forty-five of the public health law, an individualized education plan under article eighty-nine of the education law, or an individualized service plan pursuant to regulations of the office for persons with developmental disabilities shall not affect coverage under the policy for services provided on a supplemental basis outside of an educational setting if such services are prescribed by a licensed physician or licensed psychologist.

(E) Nothing in this paragraph shall be construed to affect any obligation to provide services to an individual under an individualized family service plan under section twenty-five hundred forty-five of the public health law, an individualized education plan under article eighty-nine of the education law, or an individualized service plan pursuant to regulations of the office for persons with developmental disabilities.

(F) Nothing in this paragraph shall be construed to affect any obligation to provide coverage for otherwise-covered services solely on the basis that the services constitute early intervention program services pursuant to section three thousand two hundred thirty-five-a of this article or an individualized service plan pursuant to regulations of the office for persons with developmental disabilities.

(G) Nothing in this paragraph shall be construed to prevent a policy from providing services through a network of participating providers who shall meet certain requirements for participation, including provider credentialing.

(H) Coverage under this paragraph shall not apply financial requirements or treatment limitations to autism spectrum disorder benefits that are more restrictive than the predominant financial requirements and treatment limitations applied to substantially all medical and surgical benefits covered by the policy.

(I) The criteria for medical necessity determinations under the policy with respect to autism spectrum disorder benefits shall be made available by the insurer to any insured, prospective insured, or in-network provider upon request.

(J) For purposes of this paragraph:

(i) "financial requirement" means deductible, copayments, coinsurance and out-of-pocket expenses;

(ii) "predominant" means that a financial requirement or treatment limitation is the most common or frequent of such type of limit or requirement; and

(iii) "treatment limitation" means limits on the frequency of treatment, number of visits, days of coverage, or other similar limits on the scope or duration of treatment and includes nonquantitative treatment limitations such as: medical management standards limiting or excluding benefits based on medical necessity, or based on whether the treatment is experimental or investigational; formulary design for prescription drugs; network tier design; standards for provider admission to participate in a network, including reimbursement rates; methods for determining usual, customary, and reasonable charges; fail-first or step therapy protocols; exclusions based on failure to complete a course of treatment; and restrictions based on geographic location, facility type, provider specialty, and other criteria that limit the scope or duration of benefits for services provided under the policy.

(K) An insurer shall provide coverage under this paragraph, at a minimum, consistent with the federal Paul Wellstone and Pete Domenici Mental Health Parity and Addiction Equity Act of 2008 (29 U.S.C. § 1185a).

(26) (A) No managed care health insurance policy that provides coverage for hospital, medical or surgical care shall provide that services of a participating hospital will be covered as out-of-network services solely on the basis that the health care provider admitting or rendering services to the insured is not a participating provider.

(B) No managed care health insurance policy that provides coverage for hospital, medical or surgical care shall provide that services of a participating health care provider will be covered as out-of-network services solely on the basis that the services are rendered in a nonparticipating hospital.

(C) For purposes of this paragraph, a "health care provider" is a health care professional licensed, registered or certified pursuant to title eight of the education law or a health care professional comparably licensed, registered or certified by another state.

(D) For purposes of this paragraph, a "managed care health insurance policy" is a policy that requires that services be provided by a provider participating in the insurer's network in order for the insured to receive the maximum level of reimbursement under the policy.

(27) [There are two paragraphs (27)] (A) Every policy that includes coverage for dialysis treatment that requires such services to be provided by an in-network provider and that does not provide coverage for out-of-network dialysis treatment shall not deny coverage of such services because the services are provided by an out-of-network provider, provided that each of the following conditions are met:

(i) The out-of-network provider is duly licensed to practice and authorized to provide such treatment;

(ii) The out-of-network provider is located outside the service area of the insurer;

(iii) The in-network healthcare provider treating the insured for the condition issues a written order for dialysis treatment stating that in his or her opinion such treatment is necessary;

(iv) The insured has notified, in writing, the insurer at least thirty days in advance of the proposed date or dates of such out-of-network dialysis treatment. The notice shall include the authorization required by clause (iii) of this subparagraph. In the event the insured must travel on sudden notice due to family or other emergency, shorter notice may be permitted, provided that the insurer has reasonable opportunity to review the travel and treatment plans of the insured;

(v) The insurer shall have the right to pre-approve the dialysis treatment and schedule; and

(vi) Such coverage is limited to no greater than ten out-of-network treatments in a calendar year.

(B) Where coverage for out-of-network dialysis treatment is provided pursuant to subparagraph (A) of this paragraph, no insurer shall be obligated to reimburse the out-of-network provider at an amount greater than it would have paid for the same treatment within a network, including all drugs and ancillary services tied to dialysis treatment, and any amount charged by a provider in excess of the amount reimbursed by the insurer shall be the responsibility of the insured receiving the out-of-network services.

(C) Such coverage of out-of-network dialysis services required by subparagraph (A) of this paragraph shall otherwise be subject to the limitations, exclusions and terms of the policy, including, but not limited to, utilization review, annual deductibles, copayments, and coinsurance, consistent with those required for other similar benefits under the policy.

(27) [There are two paragraphs (27)] No policy delivered or issued for delivery in this state which provides coverage for prescription drugs and for which cost-sharing, deductibles or co-insurance obligations are determined by category of prescription drugs shall impose cost-sharing, deductibles or co-insurance obligations for any prescription drug that exceeds the dollar amount of cost-sharing, deductibles or co-insurance obligations for non-preferred brand drugs or its equivalent (or brand drugs if there is no non-preferred brand drug category).

(28) [There are two paragraphs (28)] Notwithstanding title eleven of article five of the social services law or any other law to the contrary, every policy which provides coverage for prescription drugs shall, with regard to eye drop medication requiring a prescription that has been approved by the insurer for coverage, allow for the limited refilling of the prescription prior to the last day of the approved dosage period without regard to any coverage restrictions on early refill of renewals. Provided, however, that any refill dispensed prior to the expiration of the prescribed and approved coverage period pursuant to this paragraph, shall, to the extent practicable, be limited in quantity so as not to exceed the remaining dosage initially approved for coverage. Provided, further, that such limited refilling shall not limit or restrict coverage with regard to any previously or subsequently approved prescription for eye drop medication and shall be subject to the terms and conditions of the policy otherwise applicable to this coverage. Provided, further, that a pharmacist may contact the prescribing physician or health care provider to verify the prescription.

(28) [There are two paragraphs (28)] Any policy that provides coverage for prescription drugs shall permit each insured to fill any covered prescription that may be obtained at a network participating mail order or other non-retail pharmacy, at the insured's option, at a network participating non-mail order retail pharmacy provided that the network participating non-mail order retail pharmacy agrees in advance, through a contractual network agreement, to the same reimbursement amount, as well as the same applicable terms and conditions, that the insurer has established for the network participating mail order or other non-retail pharmacy. In such a case, the policy shall not impose a co-payment fee or other condition on any insured who elects to purchase prescription drugs from a network participating non-mail order retail pharmacy which is not also imposed on insureds electing to purchase drugs from a network participating mail order or other non-retail pharmacy.

(29) Every individual policy which provides medical, major medical or similar comprehensive-type coverage that includes coverage for a physical or well care visit once in every three hundred sixty-five days shall be interpreted to mean that such physical or well care visit can be had once every calendar year, regardless of whether or not a period of three hundred sixty-five days has passed since the previous physical or well care visit.

(A) Every policy that provides hospital, major medical or similar comprehensive coverage shall provide inpatient coverage for the diagnosis and treatment of substance use disorder, including detoxification and rehabilitation services. Such inpatient coverage shall include unlimited medically necessary treatment for substance use disorder treatment services provided in residential settings. Further, such inpatient coverage shall not apply financial requirements or treatment limitations, including utilization review requirements, to inpatient substance use disorder benefits that are more restrictive than the predominant financial requirements and treatment limitations applied to substantially all medical and surgical benefits covered by the policy.

(B) Coverage provided under this paragraph may be limited to facilities in New York state that are licensed, certified or otherwise authorized by the office of alcoholism and substance abuse services and, in other states, to those which are accredited by the joint commission as alcoholism, substance abuse, or chemical dependence treatment programs and are similarly licensed, certified or otherwise authorized in the state in which the facility is located.

(C) Coverage provided under this paragraph may be subject to annual deductibles and co-insurance as deemed appropriate by the superintendent and that are consistent with those imposed on other benefits within a given policy.

(D) This subparagraph shall apply to facilities in this state that are licensed, certified or otherwise authorized by the office of alcoholism and substance abuse services that are participating in the insurer's provider network. Coverage provided under this paragraph shall not be subject to preauthorization. Coverage provided under this paragraph shall also not be subject to concurrent utilization review during the first twenty-eight days of the inpatient admission provided that the facility notifies the insurer of both the admission and the initial treatment plan within two business days of the admission. The facility shall perform daily clinical review of the patient, including periodic consultation with the insurer at or just prior to the fourteenth day of treatment to ensure that the facility is using the evidence-based and peer reviewed clinical review tool utilized by the insurer which is designated by the office of alcoholism and substance abuse services and appropriate to the age of the patient, to ensure that the inpatient treatment is medically necessary for the patient. Prior to discharge, the facility shall provide the patient and the insurer with a written discharge plan which shall describe arrangements for additional services needed following discharge from the inpatient facility as determined using the evidence-based and peer-reviewed clinical review tool utilized by the insurer which is designated by the office of alcoholism and substance abuse services. Prior to discharge, the facility shall indicate to the insurer whether services included in the discharge plan are secured or determined to be reasonably available. Any utilization review of treatment provided under this subparagraph may include a review of all services provided during such inpatient treatment, including all services provided during the first twenty-eight days of such inpatient treatment. Provided, however, the insurer shall only deny coverage for any portion of the initial twenty-eight day inpatient treatment on the basis that such treatment was not medically necessary if such inpatient treatment was contrary to the evidence-based and peer reviewed clinical review tool utilized by the insurer which is designated by the office of alcoholism and substance abuse services. An insured shall not have any financial obligation to the facility for any treatment under this subparagraph other than any copayment, coinsurance, or deductible otherwise required under the policy.

(E) An insurer shall make available to any insured, prospective insured, or in-network provider, upon request, the criteria for medical necessity determinations under the policy with respect to inpatient substance use disorder benefits.

(F) For purposes of this paragraph:

(i) "financial requirement" means deductible, copayments, coinsurance and out-of-pocket expenses;

(ii) "predominant" means that a financial requirement or treatment limitation is the most common or frequent of such type of limit or requirement;

(iii) "treatment limitation" means limits on the frequency of treatment, number of visits, days of coverage, or other similar limits on the scope or duration of treatment and includes nonquantitative treatment limitations such as: medical management standards limiting or excluding benefits based on medical necessity, or based on whether the treatment is experimental or investigational; formulary design for prescription drugs; network tier design; standards for provider admission to participate in a network, including reimbursement rates; methods for determining usual, customary, and reasonable charges; fail-first or step therapy protocols; exclusions based on failure to complete a course of treatment; and restrictions based on geographic location, facility type, provider specialty, and other criteria that limit the scope or duration of benefits for services provided under the policy; and

(iv) "substance use disorder" shall have the meaning set forth in the most recent edition of the diagnostic and statistical manual of mental disorders or the most recent edition of another generally recognized independent standard of current medical practice, such as the international classification of diseases.

(G) An insurer shall provide coverage under this paragraph, at a minimum, consistent with the federal Paul Wellstone and Pete Domenici Mental Health Parity and Addiction Equity Act of 2008 (29 U.S.C. § 1185a).

(30) Every policy that provides medical coverage that includes coverage for physician services in a physician's office and every policy that provides major medical or similar comprehensive-type coverage shall include coverage for equipment and supplies used for the treatment of ostomies, if prescribed by a physician or other licensed health care provider legally authorized to prescribe under title eight of the education law. Such coverage shall be subject to annual deductibles and coinsurance as deemed appropriate by the superintendent. The coverage required by this paragraph shall be identical to, and shall not enhance or increase the coverage required as part of essential health benefits as defined in subsection (a) of section three thousand two hundred seventeen-i of this article.

(A) Every policy that provides medical, major medical or similar comprehensive-type coverage shall provide outpatient coverage for the diagnosis and treatment of substance use disorder, including detoxification and rehabilitation services. Such coverage shall not apply financial requirements or treatment limitations to outpatient substance use disorder benefits that are more restrictive than the predominant financial requirements and treatment limitations applied to substantially all medical and surgical benefits covered by the policy.

(B) Coverage under this paragraph may be limited to facilities in New York state that are licensed, certified or otherwise authorized by the office of alcoholism and substance abuse services to provide outpatient substance use disorder services and, in other states, to those which are accredited by the joint commission as alcoholism or chemical dependence substance abuse treatment programs and are similarly licensed, certified, or otherwise authorized in the state in which the facility is located.

(C) Coverage provided under this paragraph may be subject to annual deductibles and co-insurance as deemed appropriate by the superintendent and that are consistent with those imposed on other benefits within a given policy.

(D) A policy providing coverage for substance use disorder services pursuant to this paragraph shall provide up to twenty outpatient visits per policy or calendar year to an individual who identifies him or herself as a family member of a person suffering from substance use disorder and who seeks treatment as a family member who is otherwise covered by the applicable policy pursuant to this paragraph. The coverage required by this paragraph shall include treatment as a family member pursuant to such family member's own policy provided such family member:

(i) does not exceed the allowable number of family visits provided by the applicable policy pursuant to this paragraph; and

(ii) is otherwise entitled to coverage pursuant to this paragraph and such family member's applicable policy.

(E) This subparagraph shall apply to facilities in this state that are licensed, certified or otherwise authorized by the office of alcoholism and substance abuse services for the provision of outpatient, intensive outpatient, outpatient rehabilitation and opioid treatment that are participating in the insurer's provider network. Coverage provided under this paragraph shall not be subject to preauthorization. Coverage provided under this paragraph shall not be subject to concurrent review for the first four weeks of continuous treatment, not to exceed twenty-eight visits, provided the facility notifies the insurer of both the start of treatment and the initial treatment plan within two business days. The facility shall perform clinical assessment of the patient at each visit, including periodic consultation with the insurer at or just prior to the fourteenth day of treatment to ensure that the facility is using the evidence-based and peer reviewed clinical review tool utilized by the insurer which is designated by the office of alcoholism and substance abuse services and appropriate to the age of the patient, to ensure that the outpatient treatment is medically necessary for the patient. Any utilization review of the treatment provided under this subparagraph may include a review of all services provided during such outpatient treatment, including all services provided during the first four weeks of continuous treatment, not to exceed twenty-eight visits, of such outpatient treatment. Provided, however, the insurer shall only deny coverage for any portion of the initial four weeks of continuous treatment, not to exceed twenty-eight visits, for outpatient treatment on the basis that such treatment was not medically necessary if such outpatient treatment was contrary to the evidence-based and peer reviewed clinical review tool utilized by the insurer which is designated by the office of alcoholism and substance abuse services. An insured shall not have any financial obligation to the facility for any treatment under this subparagraph other than any copayment, coinsurance, or deductible otherwise required under the policy.

(F) The criteria for medical necessity determinations under the policy with respect to outpatient substance use disorder benefits shall be made available by the insurer to any insured, prospective insured, or in-network provider upon request.

(G) For purposes of this paragraph:

(i) "financial requirement" means deductible, copayments, coinsurance and out-of-pocket expenses;

(ii) "predominant" means that a financial requirement or treatment limitation is the most common or frequent of such type of limit or requirement;

(iii) "treatment limitation" means limits on the frequency of treatment, number of visits, days of coverage, or other similar limits on the scope or duration of treatment and includes nonquantitative treatment limitations such as: medical management standards limiting or excluding benefits based on medical necessity, or based on whether the treatment is experimental or investigational; formulary design for prescription drugs; network tier design; standards for provider admission to participate in a network, including reimbursement rates; methods for determining usual, customary, and reasonable charges; fail-first or step therapy protocols; exclusions based on failure to complete a course of treatment; and restrictions based on geographic location, facility type, provider specialty, and other criteria that limit the scope or duration of benefits for services provided under the policy; and

(iv) "substance use disorder" shall have the meaning set forth in the most recent edition of the diagnostic and statistical manual of mental disorders or the most recent edition of another generally recognized independent standard of current medical practice such as the international classification of diseases.

(H) An insurer shall provide coverage under this paragraph, at a minimum, consistent with the federal Paul Wellstone and Pete Domenici Mental Health Parity and Addiction Equity Act of 2008 (29 U.S.C. § 1185a).

(31-a) (A) No policy that provides medical, major medical or similar comprehensive-type coverage and provides coverage for prescription drugs for medication for the treatment of a substance use disorder shall require prior authorization for an initial or renewal prescription for all buprenorphine products, methadone or long acting injectable naltrexone for detoxification or maintenance treatment of a substance use disorder except where otherwise prohibited by law.

(B) Coverage provided under this paragraph may be subject to copayments, coinsurance, and annual deductibles that are consistent with those imposed on other benefits within the policy.

(32) No policy delivered or issued for delivery in this state that provides reimbursement for non-physician surgical first assistant services when the services are provided by a non-physician surgical first assistant shall exclude such coverage on the basis that the non-physician surgical first assistant services were performed by a registered nurse first assistant provided that: (A) the registered nurse first assistant is certified in operating room nursing; (B) the services are within the scope of practice of a non-physician surgical first assistant; and (C) the terms and conditions of the policy otherwise provide for the coverage of the services. Nothing in this paragraph shall be construed to prevent the medical management or utilization review of the services or prevent a policy from requiring that services are to be provided through a network of participating providers who meet certain requirements for participation, including provider credentialing.

(33) [There are two paragraphs (33)] Every policy delivered or issued for delivery in this state that provides coverage for prescription drugs subject to a copayment shall charge a copayment for a limited initial prescription of an opioid drug, which is prescribed in accordance with paragraph (b) of subdivision five of section thirty-three hundred one of the public health law, that is either (i) proportional between the copayment for a thirty-day supply and the amount of drugs the patient was prescribed; or (ii) equivalent to the copayment for a full thirty-day supply of the opioid drug, provided that no additional copayments may be charged for any additional prescriptions for the remainder of the thirty-day supply.

(33) [There are two paragraphs (33)] Whenever in this section an insurer is required to provide benefits with no coinsurance or deductible, the requirement only applies with respect to participating providers in the insurer's network, or with respect to non-participating providers, if the insurer does not have a participating provider in the in-network benefits portion of its network with the appropriate training and experience to meet the particular health care needs of the insured pursuant to subsection (d) of section three thousand two hundred seventeen-d of this article.

(34) [There are two paragraphs (34)] Health care forensic examinations performed pursuant to section twenty-eight hundred five-i of the public health law covered under the policy shall not be subject to annual deductibles or coinsurance.

(34) [There are two paragraphs (34)] Every policy that provides coverage for hospital, surgical or medical care shall provide the following coverage for pasteurized donor human milk (PDHM), which may include fortifiers as medically indicated, for inpatient use, for which a licensed medical practitioner has issued an order for an infant who is medically or physically unable to receive maternal breast milk or participate in breast feeding or whose mother is medically or physically unable to produce maternal breast milk at all or in sufficient quantities or participate in breast feeding despite optimal lactation support. Such infant shall: (i) have a documented birth weight of less than one thousand five hundred grams; or (ii) have a congenital or acquired condition that places the infant at a high risk for development of necrotizing enterocolitis.

(A) Every policy delivered or issued for delivery in this state that provides coverage for inpatient hospital care or coverage for physician services shall provide coverage for the diagnosis and treatment of mental health conditions as follows:

(i) where the policy provides coverage for inpatient hospital care, benefits for inpatient care in a hospital as defined by subdivision ten of section 1.03 of the mental hygiene law and benefits for outpatient care provided in a facility issued an operating certificate by the commissioner of mental health pursuant to the provisions of article thirty-one of the mental hygiene law, or in a facility operated by the office of mental health, or, for care provided in other states, to similarly licensed or certified hospitals or facilities; and

(ii) where the policy provides coverage for physician services, benefits for outpatient care provided by a psychiatrist or psychologist licensed to practice in this state, a licensed clinical social worker who meets the requirements of subparagraph (D) of paragraph four of subsection (1) of section three thousand two hundred twenty-one of this article, a nurse practitioner licensed to practice in this state, or a professional corporation or university faculty practice corporation thereof.

(B) Coverage required by this paragraph may be subject to annual deductibles, copayments and coinsurance as may be deemed appropriate by the superintendent and shall be consistent with those imposed on other benefits under the policy.

(C) Coverage under this paragraph shall not apply financial requirements or treatment limitations to mental health benefits that are more restrictive than the predominant financial requirements and treatment limitations applied to substantially all medical and surgical benefits covered by the policy.

(D) The criteria for medical necessity determinations under the policy with respect to mental health benefits shall be made available by the insurer to any insured, prospective insured, or in-network provider upon request.

(E) For purposes of this paragraph:

(i) "financial requirement" means deductible, copayments, coinsurance and out-of-pocket expenses;

(ii) "predominant" means that a financial requirement or treatment limitation is the most common or frequent of such type of limit or requirement;

(iii) "treatment limitation" means limits on the frequency of treatment, number of visits, days of coverage, or other similar limits on the scope or duration of treatment and includes nonquantitative treatment limitations such as: medical management standards limiting or excluding benefits based on medical necessity, or based on whether the treatment is experimental or investigational; formulary design for prescription drugs; network tier design; standards for provider admission to participate in a network, including reimbursement rates; methods for determining usual, customary, and reasonable charges; fail-first or step therapy protocols; exclu-

sions based on failure to complete a course of treatment; and restrictions based on geographic location, facility type, provider specialty, and other criteria that limit the scope or duration of benefits for services provided under the policy; and

(iv) "mental health condition" means any mental health disorder as defined in the most recent edition of the diagnostic and statistical manual of mental disorders or the most recent edition of another generally recognized independent standard of current medical practice such as the international classification of diseases.

(F) An insurer shall provide coverage under this paragraph, at a minimum, consistent with the federal Paul Wellstone and Pete Domenici Mental Health Parity and Addiction Equity Act of 2008 (29 U.S.C. § 1185a).

(G) This subparagraph shall apply to hospitals in this state that are licensed by the office of mental health that are participating in the insurer's provider network. Where the policy provides coverage for inpatient hospital care, benefits for inpatient hospital care in a hospital as defined by subdivision ten of section 1.03 of the mental hygiene law provided to individuals who have not attained the age of eighteen shall not be subject to preauthorization. Coverage provided under this subparagraph shall also not be subject to concurrent utilization review during the first fourteen days of the inpatient admission, provided the facility notifies the insurer of both the admission and the initial treatment plan within two business days of the admission, performs daily clinical review of the patient, and participates in periodic consultation with the insurer to ensure that the facility is using the evidence-based and peer reviewed clinical review criteria utilized by the insurer which is approved by the office of mental health and appropriate to the age of the patient, to ensure that the inpatient care is medically necessary for the patient. All treatment provided under this subparagraph may be reviewed retrospectively. Where care is denied retrospectively, an insured shall not have any financial obligation to the facility for any treatment under this subparagraph other than any copayment, coinsurance, or deductible otherwise required under the policy.

(j) (1) Every insurer issuing a policy of accident and health insurance for delivery in this state which provides coverage for in-patient hospital care must make available and, if requested by the policyholder, provide coverage for care in a nursing home. Such coverage shall be made available at the inception of all new policies and, with respect to all other policies at any anniversary date of the policy subject to evidence of insurability.

(A) In this paragraph nursing home care means the continued care and treatment of a covered person who is under the care of a physician but only if (i) the care is provided in a nursing home as defined in section twenty-eight hundred one of the public health law or a skilled nursing facility as defined in subchapter XVIII of the federal Social Security Act, 42 U.S.C. §§ 1395 et seq, (ii) the covered person has been in a hospital for at least three days immediately preceding admission, and (iii) further hospitalization would otherwise be necessary. The aggregate of the number of covered days of care in a hospital and the number of covered days of care in a nursing home, with two days of care in a nursing home equivalent to one day of care in a hospital, may not exceed the number of covered days of hospital care provided under the contract in a benefit period. The level of benefits to be provided for nursing home care must be reasonably related to the benefits provided for hospital care.

(B) Ambulatory care means care in hospital outpatient facilities, as a hospital is defined in section twenty-eight hundred one of the public health law or subchapter XVIII of the federal Social Security Act, 42 U.S.C. §§ 1395 et seq, and physicians' offices. Ambulatory care in hospital out-patient facilities means services for diagnostic X-rays, laboratory and pathological examinations, physical therapy and radiation therapy, and services and medications used for nonexperimental cancer chemotherapy and cancer hormone therapy, provided that such services and medications are (i) related to and necessary for the treatment or diagnosis of the patient's illness or injury, (ii) ordered by a physician and (iii) in the case of physical therapy, services are to be furnished in connection with the same illness for which the patient had been hospitalized or in connection with surgical care, but in no event need benefits be provided for physical therapy which commences more than six months after discharge from a hospital or the date surgical care was rendered, and in no event need benefits for physical therapy be provided after three hundred sixty-five days from the date of discharge from a hospital or the date surgical care was rendered. Ambulatory care in physicians' offices means services for diagnostic X-rays, radiation therapy, laboratory and pathological examinations, and services and medications used for nonexperimental cancer chemotherapy and cancer hormone therapy, provided that such services and medications are related to and necessary for the treatment or diagnosis of the patient's illness or injury, and ordered by a physician. Such coverage shall be made available at the inception of all new policies and, with respect to all other policies, at any anniversary date of the policy subject to evidence of insurability.

(2) Every insurer issuing a policy of accident and health insurance for delivery in this state which provides coverage supplementing part A and part B of subchapter XVIII of the federal Social Security Act, 42 U.S.C. §§ 1395 et seq, must make available and, if requested by the insured, provide coverage of supplemental home care visits beyond those provided by part A and part B, sufficient to produce an aggregate coverage of three hundred sixty-five home case visits per policy year. Such coverage shall be provided pursuant to regulations prescribed by the superintendent.

(3) Consistent with federal law, every insurer issuing a policy of accident and health insurance for delivery in this state which provides coverage supplementing part A and part B of subchapter XVIII of the federal Social Security Act, 42 USC §§ 1395 et seq., shall make available and, if requested by the insured, provide coverage for at least ninety days of care in a nursing home as defined in section twenty-eight hundred one of the public health law, except where such coverage would duplicate coverage that is available under the aforementioned subchapter XVIII. Such coverage shall be made available at the inception of all new policies and, with respect to all other policies, at each anniversary date of the policy.

(A) Coverage shall be subject to a copayment of twenty-five dollars per day.

(B) Brochures describing such coverage must be provided to all applicants at the time of application for all new policies and thereafter on each anniversary date of the policy, and with respect to all other policies annually at each anniversary date of the policy. Such brochures must be approved by the superintendent in consultation with the commissioner of health.

(C) The commensurate rate for the coverage must be approved by the superintendent.

(D) Such insurers shall report to the superintendent each year the number of contract holders to whom such insurers have issued such policies for nursing home coverage and the approximate number of persons covered by such policies.

(k) Any person, partnership or corporation willfully violating any provision of this section, regulation or order of the superintendent made in accordance with this section, shall forfeit to the people of the state a sum not to exceed one hundred dollars for each such violation. The superintendent may also suspend or revoke the license of an insurer or agent or broker for any such willful violation.

(l) An insurer shall not offer individual hospital, medical or surgical expense insurance policies unless the policies meet the requirements of subsection (b) of section four thousand three hundred twenty-eight of this chapter. Such policies that are offered within the health benefit exchange established by this state also shall meet any requirements established by the health benefit exchange.

(m) An insurer shall not be required to offer the policyholder any benefits that must be made available pursuant to this section if the benefits must be covered as essential health benefits. For any policy issued within the health benefit exchange established by this state, an insurer shall not be required to offer the policyholder any benefits that must be made available pursuant to this section. For purposes of this subsection, "essential health benefits" shall have the meaning set forth in subsection (a) of section three thousand two hundred seventeen-i of this article.

Laws 1988, ch 692, § 4, eff Jan 15, 1989, provides as follows:

§ 4. This act shall take effect on the fifteenth day of January next succeeding the date on which it shall have become a law and shall apply according to its terms to all policies and contracts issued or renewed on or after such date.

Laws 1989, ch 93, § 7, eff Sept 1, 1989, provides as follows:

§ 7. This act shall take effect September 1, 1989 and shall apply to all policies and certificates delivered or issued for delivery on or after such date, and as to those policies and certificates delivered or issued for delivery prior to such date, on the date such policies and certificates are renewed, modified, altered or amended.

Laws 1989, ch 417, § 5, eff Jan 1, 1990, provides as follows:

§ 5. This act shall take effect on the first day of January next succeeding the date on which it shall have become a law and shall apply to all policies and contracts issued, renewed, modified, altered or amended on or after such date.

Laws 1989, ch 689, § 11, eff July 22, 1989, provides as follows:

§ 11. This act shall take effect immediately; except that section 4600 and sections 4605 through 4619 of the public health law, as added by section one of this act, and sections three through ten of this act shall take effect January 1, 1990; and provided further that any regulations that are necessary to effectuate the purposes of this act may be promulgated in accordance with the provisions of this act prior to such date.

Laws 1990, ch 853, § 4, eff Jan 1, 1991, provides as follows:

§ 4. This act shall take effect on the first day of January next succeeding the date on which it shall have become a law and shall apply to all policies and contracts issued, renewed, modified, altered or amended on or after such effective date.

Laws 1990, ch 897, § 4, eff Jan 1, 1991, provides as follows:

§ 4. This act shall take effect the first day of January next succeeding the date on which it shall have become a law and shall apply according to its terms to all policies and contracts issued or renewed on or after such date, provided, however, effective immediately the superintendent of insurance is authorized to promulgate regulations to implement the provisions of this act.

Laws 1991, ch 467, § 30, eff July 19, 1991, provides as follows:

§ 30. This act shall take effect immediately; provided, however, that no person who is receiving any benefit on such effective date by reason of his or her active duty in the armed forces of the United States during the period of the Korean conflict shall suffer any diminution of such benefit because of amendments made by this act; and provided further that sections one and two of this act shall take effect on August 1, 1991; and provided further that sections twenty-two through twenty-five of this act shall take effect on January 1, 1992 and shall apply to contracts, policies, and certificates of insurance renewed, issued, modified, altered, or amended on and after such date; sections twenty-seven and twenty-eight of this act shall take effect on the sixtieth day after they have become a law; and provided further that sections eighteen, nineteen, twenty and twenty-one of this act shall be deemed to have been in full force and effect on and after August 2, 1990.

Laws 1992, ch 131, § 7, eff June 8, 1992, provides as follows:

§ 7. This act shall take effect immediately, except that sections one, two, three and four of this act shall take effect on the first day of January next succeeding the date on which this act shall have become a law and shall apply to all policies, contracts and certificates issued, renewed, modified, altered or amended on or after such January first effective date.

Laws 1992, ch 771, §§ 1, 5, eff Jan 1, 1993, provide as follows:

Section 1. Legislative findings. The legislature finds and determines that there are thousands of cases of cervical cancer each year and that thousands of women die from the disease; that if detected early, cervical cancer is curable; that there is a general consensus among medical professionals that women who have reached eighteen years of age should have an annual pelvic examination and cervical cytology screening ("Pap smear") to detect the presence of cancerous and pre-cancerous cells; and that if women are not promptly diagnosed and treated, it may ultimately lead to prolonged hospitalization or death from cervical cancer.

§ 5. This act shall take effect on the first day of January next succeeding the date on which it shall have become a law and shall apply according to its terms to all policies and contracts issued or renewed on or after such date.

Laws 1993, ch 378, § 4, eff Jan 1, 1994, provides as follows:

§ 4. This act shall take effect on the first day of January next succeeding the date on which it shall have become a law and shall apply according to its terms to all policies and contracts issued, renewed, modified, altered or amended on, or after, such date.

Laws 1993, ch 380, §§ 1, 5, 6, eff Jan 1, 1994, provide as follows:

Section 1. Legislative intent and findings. The legislature recognizes that the following aminoacidopathies are rare hereditary genetic metabolic disorders: phenylketonuria (PKU), branched-chain ketonuria, galactosemia and homocystinuria. Lacking in these aminoacidopathies is the body's ability to process or metabolize amino acids. If left untreated or without proper therapeutic management, these disorders cause severe mental retardation and chronic physical disabilities. The only form of treatment is by restricting food intake in order to remove the problem amino acids (which are necessary in the diet) and then replenishing them in carefully controlled measured amounts of a nutritional food substitute. For purposes of this section, nutritional food substitute is defined as any specially formulated food substitute (formula) that is medically necessary to enable the body to process or metabolize needed amino acids, used for the therapeutic treatment of rare aminoacidopathies and administered under close medical supervision.

It is the finding of the legislature that in an attempt to encourage the development of new products, increase availability and reduce cost, formulas were removed from the Federal prescription list and reclassified as "medical foods". An unfortunate side effect has been the reluctance of many insurance companies to cover the cost of these formulas. In instances where coverage is provided, it is random and subject to inconsistent interpretation.

It is not the intent of this legislation to require insurance coverage for normal food products used in the dietary management of these disorders, but to provide for such coverage of formulas that are equivalent to a prescription drug, medically necessary for the therapeutic treatment of such rare hereditary genetic metabolic disorders and administered under the direction of a physician.

In recognition by the legislature that such formulas are medically necessary and critical to the well-being of individuals afflicted with rare hereditary genetic metabolic disorders, it shall be required that every health insurance policy issued in this state shall include such coverage.

§ 5. The superintendent of insurance is authorized to promulgate regulations to implement the provisions of this act.

§ 6. This act shall take effect on the first day of January next succeeding the date on which it shall have become a law and shall apply according to its terms to all policies and contracts issued or renewed on or after such date.

Laws 1993, ch 456, § 5, eff Sept 1, 1993, provides as follows:

§ 5. This act shall take effect on the first day of September next succeeding the date on which it shall have become a law and shall apply to all policies and contracts issued, renewed, modified, altered or amended on or after such date.

Laws 1993, ch 728, § 4, eff April 1, 1994, provides as follows:

§ 4. This act shall take effect on the first day of April next succeeding the date on which it shall have become a law and shall apply to all policies and contracts issued, renewed, modified, altered or amended on or after such date.

Laws 1996, ch 56, §§ 1 and 8, eff Jan 1, 1997, provide as follows:

Section 1. Legislative findings and intent. The legislature finds that certain health insurance carriers, health maintenance organizations, health plans, and hospitals have been restricting maternity coverage and care with respect to the length of hospital stay following delivery in ways that jeopardize the life and health of mothers and newborns and violate reasonable professional standards. The provisions of this act are necessary to provide a reasonable and uniform standard of coverage and care to protect the public health.

The provisions of this act relating to home visits are intended to insure that in those instances where a mother chooses to leave the hospital earlier than the time periods specified in the act, she and the newborn will still receive the full scope of appropriate professional maternity care.

The intent of this act is to require maternity inpatient care providers to offer care, and third-party payers to provide coverage for care, as set out in this act. This act shall not be construed (i) to limit a mother's choice of care for herself and her newborn, (ii) to permit the mother's maternity care coverage to be affected by her choice of care, or (iii) to limit a provider's ability to make reasonable arrangements for care consistent with this act.

§ 8. This act shall take effect January 1, 1997 and shall apply to all policies and contracts issued, renewed, modified, altered or amended on or after such effective date; provided, however, that any regulations necessary for the implementation of this act on its effective date shall be promulgated on or before such effective date.

Laws 1996, ch 705, § 21, eff Oct 9, 1996, provides as follows:

§ 21. This act shall take effect immediately; provided, however that:

1. Sections three, four, twelve and fourteen of this act, sections 4801 and 4803 of the insurance law, as added by section fifteen of this act, and section twenty of this act shall take effect January 1, 1997.

2. Sections one, two, six, seven, eight, nine, ten, eleven, and thirteen of this act, sections 4802 and 4804 of the insurance law, as added by section fifteen of this act, and sections sixteen, seventeen, eighteen, and nineteen of this act shall take effect April 1, 1997, and shall apply to all policies and contracts issued, renewed, modified, altered or amended on or after such effective date.

Laws 1997, ch 20, § 6, eff Jan 1, 1998, provides as follows:

§ 6. This act shall take effect January 1, 1998, and sections one through three of this act shall apply to all policies and contracts issued, renewed, modified, altered or amended on or after such date.

Laws 1997, ch 21, § 4, eff Jan 1, 1998, provides as follows:

§ 4. This act shall take effect January 1, 1998, and sections one through three of this act shall apply to all policies and contracts issued, renewed, modified, altered or amended on or after such date.

Laws 1997, ch 177, § 7, eff Dec 25, 1997, provides as follows:

§ 7. This act shall take effect on the one hundred eightieth day after it shall have become a law, and shall apply to all policies and contracts issued, renewed, modified, altered, or amended on or after such date.

Laws 1997, ch 426, §§ 1 and 7, eff Jan 1, 1998, provide as follows:

Section 1. Legislative intent. The legislature recognizes that multiple health professions are trained and licensed to diagnose and treat the same or similar conditions through the use of modalities, therapies, services and philosophies that vary from profession to profession. It is the specific intent of this legislature to assure that health insurance policies, plans and contracts that provide coverage for the diagnosis and treatment of conditions, complaints, ailments, disorders or injuries by any health care profession, that may be diagnosed and treated by a doctor of chiropractic, must provide access to and equivalent coverage for the diagnosis and treatment of those conditions, complaints, ailments, disorders or injuries by a duly licensed doctor of chiropractic, within the lawful scope of chiropractic practice even if different terminology, philosophy, services, treatments or modalities are used by the various health professions; and such equivalent coverage shall not be abridged by any regulation heretofore promulgated or to be promulgated.

§ 7. This act shall take effect January 1, 1998 and shall apply to policies and contracts issued, renewed, modified, altered or amended on or after such date; provided, however, that subparagraph (B) of paragraph 21 of subsection (i) of section 32l6, subparagraph (B) of paragraph 11 of subsection (k) of section 3221 and of paragraph (2) of subsection (y) of section 4303 of the insurance law, as added by sections two, three and four of this act shall expire and be deemed repealed on December 31, 1999; and upon such date the provisions of subparagraph (C) of paragraph 21 of subsection (i) of section 3216, subparagraph (C) of paragraph 11 of subsection (k) of section 3221 and of paragraph (3) of subsection (y) of section 4303 of the insurance law, as added by sections two, three and four of this act, shall take effect.

Laws 1997, ch 659, §§ 1 and 2, eff Sept 24, 1997, provide as follows:

Section 1. Legislative purpose. The purpose of this act is to facilitate the creation of the necessary components for the development of a broader and more integrated continuum of long term care, financed by a range of private, public and public/private options.

§ 2. This act may be cited as the "Long Term Care Integration and Finance Act of 1997".

§ 2. This act may be cited as the "Long Term Care Integration and Finance Act of 1997".

Laws 1997, ch 661, § 23, eff Sept 24, 1997, provide as follows:

§ 23. This act shall take effect immediately and shall be deemed to have been in full force and effect on and after July 1, 1997 and sections two through nine, eleven, thirteen through twenty, and twenty-two of this act shall apply to all policies and contracts issued, renewed, modified, altered or amended on or after such date.

Laws 1998, ch 495, § 4, eff July 29, 1998, provides as follows:

§ 4. This act shall take effect immediately and shall apply to all policies and contracts issued, renewed, altered or modified on and after such date.

Laws 1998, ch 586, §§ 42, 43 and 45 subs 1(a), (b), 2 and 3, eff Aug 5, 1998, provides as follows:

§ 42. Nothing in this act shall bar, limit, impair, diminish or affect in any way any rights or remedies in any judicial or other forum pursuant to state or federal law of any enrollee, whether or not eligible to elect external appeal under this act, for coverage of a health service, including but not limited to an experimental or investigational service, a clinical trial treatment, or provision of a pharmaceutical product pursuant to prescription for a use other than those uses for which such pharmaceutical product has been approved for marketing by the federal Food and Drug Administration. No enrollee may be required to pursue or exhaust external appeal prior to seeking judicial relief.

§ 43. The provisions of this act shall not apply to claims under the workers' compensation law nor shall the provisions of this act be construed to alter, limit, modify, or repeal any provision of such law.

§ 45. This act shall take effect immediately, provided:

1. Sections one through forty-one-e of this act shall take effect July 1, 1999; provided that:

(a) the commissioner of health and the superintendent of insurance may promulgate regulations prior to such date;.

(b) a standard or expedited appeal in progress on the effective date of this act shall be subject to the provisions of law in effect when such an appeal was initiated, provided that any final adverse determination pursuant to such an appeal made after the effact may be externally appealed pursuant to the provisions of this act;.

2. Sections thirty-nine through forty-one-a of this act shall apply to all policies and contracts issued, renewed, modified, altered or amended on or after such date; and.

3. Notwithstanding any contrary provisions of sections 3216, 3221, 3231, 4304, 4305 and 4317 of the insurance law, or of any later amendments or success or provision or regulations or rules that implement said sections, an insurer, company, organization or other entity subject to article forty-nine of the public health law or article forty-nine of the insurance law may elect to unilaterally modify the coverage for a policy or contract of hospital, surgical or medical expense insurance, effective April 1, 2000, to comply with the requirements of sections thirty-nine through forty-one-a of this act without regard to the time of coverage renewal and without providing for the termination, non-renewal or discontinuance of said coverage.

Laws 2000, ch 557, § 5, eff March 1, 2000, provides as follows:

§ 5. This act shall take effect 120 days after it shall have become a law and shall apply to policies or contracts issued, renewed, modified, altered, or amended on or after such date (Amd, L 2003, ch 170, § 1, eff July 22, 2003, deemed eff on and after Dec 31, 2003.).

Laws 2000, ch 593, § 8, eff Sept 1, 2001, provides as follows:

§ 8. This act shall take effect on the first day of September next succeeding the date on which it shall have become a law and shall apply to all policies and contracts issued, renewed, modified, altered, or amended on or after such date.

Laws 2001, ch 506, § 4, eff Jan 1, 2002, provides as follows:

§ 4. This act shall take effect January 1, 2002 and shall apply to all policies and contracts issued, renewed, modified, altered or amended on or after such date.

Laws 2003, ch 170, § 1, eff July 22, 2003, amended L 2000, ch 557, § 5, so as to delete and expiration provision of Dec 31, 2003, applicable to amendment of subdivision (i).

Laws 2003, ch 338, § 5, eff Jan 1, 2004, provides as follows:

§ 5. This act shall take effect on the first of January next succeeding the date on which it shall have become a law and shall apply to all policies and contracts issued, renewed, modified, altered or amended on or after such date.

Laws 2004, ch 58, § 56, sub 5 (Part B), eff Aug 20, 2004, provides as follows:

§ 56. This act shall take effect immediately, provided, however, that:

5. Sections thirty-one and thirty-two of this act shall take effect on the ninetieth day after it shall have become a law and shall apply to all policies and contracts issued on or after such date;

Laws 2006, ch 557, § 4, eff Jan 1, 2007, provides as follows:

§ 4. This act shall take effect on the first of January next succeeding the date on which it shall have become a law and shall apply to all policies or contracts issued, renewed, modified, altered or amended on and after such effective date.

Laws 2007, ch 58, § 69, subs 1–5, eff April 9, 2007, deemed eff on and after April 1, 2007, provides as follows:

§ 69. This act shall take effect immediately and shall be deemed to have been in full force and effect on and after April 1, 2007; provided, however, that:

1. Any rules or regulations necessary to implement the provisions of this act may be promulgated and any procedures, forms, or instructions necessary for such implementation may be adopted and issued on or after the date this act shall have become a law;

2. This act shall not be construed to alter, change, affect, impair or defeat any rights, obligations, duties or interests accrued, incurred or conferred prior to the enactment of this act;

3. The commissioner of health and the superintendent of insurance and any appropriate council may take any steps necessary to implement this act prior to its effective date;

4. Notwithstanding any inconsistent provision of the state administrative procedure act or any other provision of law, rule or regulation, the commissioner of health and the superintendent of insurance and any appropriate council is authorized to adopt or amend or promulgate on an emergency basis any regulation he or she or such council determines necessary to implement any provision of this act on its effective date;

5. The provisions of this act shall become effective notwithstanding the failure of the commissioner of health or the superintendent of insurance or any council to adopt or amend or promulgate regulations implementing this act;

Laws 2009, ch 240, § 8, eff Sept 1, 2009, provides as follows:

§ 8. This act shall take effect September 1, 2009 and shall apply to contracts issued, renewed, modified, altered or amended on or after such date.

Laws 2010, ch 357, § 5, eff Jan 1, 2011, provides as follows:

§ 5. This act shall take effect on the first of January next succeeding the date on which it shall have become a law, and shall apply to all policies and contracts issued, renewed, modified, altered or amended on or after such effective date.

Laws 2010, ch 457, § 5, eff Jan 1, 2011, provides as follows:

§ 5. This act shall take effect on the first of January next succeeding the date on which it shall have become a law and shall apply to insurance policies and contracts issued, renewed, modified or altered on or after such effective date.

Laws 2010, ch 536, § 1, eff Oct 31, 2010, provides as follows:

Section 1. Legislative findings. The cost-sharing, deductibles and co-insurance obligations for certain drugs are becoming cost prohibitive for persons trying to overcome serious and often life-threatening diseases and conditions such as cancer, multiple sclerosis, rheumatoid arthritis, hepatitis C, hemophilia and psoriasis. These drugs are typically new, produced in lesser quantities than other drugs, and not available as less expensive brand name or generic prescription drugs. Some health insurance plans and policies in other states as well as some self-insured plans in New York have established unique categories or specialty tiers for these drugs, sometimes referred to as Tier IV or Tier V. Patients under these plans are required to pay a percentage of the cost of these high-priced drugs, rather than the traditional co-payment amounts for generic, preferred brand, and non-preferred brand prescription drugs, often covered by Tier I, Tier II, and Tier III plans and policies, respectively. As a result, patients covered under plans with specialty tiers must pay thousands of dollars in out-of-pocket costs for drugs critical for their treatment.

It is in the public interest to help patients to afford necessary prescription drugs by prohibiting cost-sharing, deductibles and co-insurance obligations by patients that exceed payments for non-preferred brand prescription drugs or the equivalent thereof. It is not the intent of this legislation to preclude plans or policies from categorizing drugs used in the treatment of these common diseases as brand name prescription drugs or generic prescription drug equivalents.

The extraordinary disparity in cost-sharing, deductible and co-insurance burdens imposed on patients whose life and health depend on these drugs places serious and unjustified hardships on individuals based on their disease or disability.

This legislation is intended to provide patients more affordable access to prescription drugs essential for their treatment of cancer, multiple sclerosis, rheumatoid arthritis, hepatitis C, hemophilia, psoriasis, and other diseases (Amd, L 2010, ch 565, § 1, eff Oct 31, 2010.).

Laws 2011, ch 219, § 70, sub 1, eff July 20, 2011, provides as follows:

§ 70. This act shall take effect immediately:

1. provided, that for policies renewed on or after such date but before September 23, 2011, this act shall take effect upon the renewal date;

Laws 2011, ch 559, §§ 1 and 5, eff Jan 1, 2012, provide as follows:

Section 1. Legislative findings. The legislature finds that advances in medical research have led to significant new developments of various medical treatments. These treatments offer patients a wide range of new choices to combat very serious diseases. The area of cancer treatment has been one of the fields that has seen these significant new medical advancements. In recent years, oral chemotherapy treatments have been developed that provide viable alternatives to traditional intravenous cancer treatments for patients. This oral chemotherapy treatment offers the treating physician and the patient a choice in relation to treatment options. However, this choice is sometimes limited as the oral chemotherapy treatments are, in most cases, covered under the prescription drug benefit of an insurance plan rather than under the major medical insurance benefit of an insurance plan. This discrepancy in coverage can limit a patient's ability to choose the oral chemotherapy treatment because of the cost associated with the disparate treatment.

§ 5. This act shall take effect on the first of January next succeeding the date on which it shall have become a law and shall apply to all policies and contracts issued, renewed, modified, altered or amended on or after such effective date.

2000. Chapter 601, § 1 amended:

By adding sub (i), par (11-a).

The 2014 amendment by ch 41, § 1 added (i)(30) and (i)(31).

The 2015 amendment by ch 536, § 1, added (i)(32).

The 2016 amendment by ch 23, § 1, rewrote (i)(32).

The 2016 amendment by ch 69, § 1 (Part B), added (i)(31-a).

The 2016 amendment by ch 71, §§ 1 (Part B), 2 (Part C), in (i)(30)(A), added "inpatient coverage shall include unlimited medically necessary treatment for substance use disorder treatment services provided in residential settings as required by the Mental Health Parity and Addiction Equity Act of 2008 (29 U.S.C. § 1185a)" in the second sentence and in the third sentence, added "Further, such inpatient" and "including utilization review requirements"; added (i)(30)(D); and added (i)(33).

The 2016 amendment by ch 74, §§ 1, 2, in (i)(11)(B), substituted "shall not" for "may" and "or coinsurance" for "and coinsurance as may be deemed appropriate by the superintendent and as are consistent with those established for other benefits within a given policy" and added (i)(11)(F).

The 2016 amendment by ch 74, § 3, second setout, added (i)(33).

The 2017 amendment by ch 414, § 1, added "which may be provided by breast tomosynthesis" wherever it appears in (i)(11)(A); and added "provided, however, that mammography screening shall also include breast tomosynthesis" in (i)(11)(C).

The 2018 amendment by ch 57, § 4 (Part HH), added (i)(34).

The 2018 amendment by ch 57, §§ 3, 10 (Part MM), added (i)(31)(E) and (i)(34).

The 2018 amendment by ch 335, § 2, in (i)(11-a)(B), substituted "shall not" for "may" and "or coinsurance" for "and coinsurance as may be deemed appropriate by the superintendent and as are consistent with those established for other benefits within a given policy."

The 2018 amendment by ch 469, § 1, in (i)(21)[first setout], deleted "for those individuals who are or will become malnourished or suffer from disorders, which if left untreated, cause chronic physical disability, mental retardation or death" following "treatment regimen" in the second sentence, in the third sentence, added "and disorders," deleted "with failure to thrive" following "gastroesophageal reflux" and substituted "including, but not limited to immunoglobulin E and nonimmunoglobulin E-mediated allergies to multiple food proteins; severe food protein induced enterocolitis syndrome; eosinophilic disorders; and impaired absorption of nutrients caused by disorders affecting the absorptive surface, function, length, and motility of the gastrointestinal tracy" for "which if left untreated will cause malnourishment, chronic physical disability, mental retardation or death" and in the last sentence, added "as well as severe protein allergic conditions" and "or are amino acid based."

The 2019 amendment by ch 25, § 4, added (i)(17)(E)(v).

The 2019 amendments by ch 57, §§ 1, 2, 6-9 (Part J, Subpart B), in (c)(5)(A), rewrote the first sentence, deleted the second sentence and added the third sentence; rewrote (g)(2)(E); in (i)(21) [first setout], substituted "policy that provides" for "policy which provides" in the first sentence, "formulas that are" for "formulas which are" in the fourth sentence and in the last sentence, substituted "based that are" for "based which are" and deleted "and such coverage for such modified solid food products for any calendar year or for any continuous period of twelve months for any insured individual shall not exceed two thousand five hundred dollars" at the end; in (i)(30), substituted "policy that provides" for "policy which provides" twice in the first sentence, and rewrote the third sentence; in (l), deleted "On and after October first, two thousand thirteen" at the beginning of the first sentence and rewrote the second sentence; rewrote (m); and made a stylistic change.

The 2019 amendment by ch 57, § 3 (Part L), added (i)(13)(C).

The 2019 amendment by ch 57, § 3 (Part M), in (i)(17)(E)(v), added "pursuant to 42 U.S.C. 18022 and identified in the comprehensive guidelines supported by the health resources and services administration and thereby incorporated in the essential health benefits benchmark plan" in the firt sentence and added (d).

The 2019 amendments by ch 57, §§ 1-8 (Part BB, Subpart A), in (i)(4), substituted "health conditions" for "nervous, or emotional disorders or ailments" and added "or a nurse practitioner"; deleted the third sentence of (i)(25)(B); deleted "including autistic disorder, Asperger's disorder, Rett's disorder, childhood disintegrative disorder, or pervasive developmental disorder not otherwise specified (PDD-NOS)" at the end of (i)(25)(C)(i); rewrote (i)(25)(C)(iii); added (i)(25)(H) through (i)(25)(K); rewrote (i)(30); rewrote (i)(31); in (i)(31-a), deleted the (A) designation, in the first sentence, substituted "the formulary forms" for "a five day emergency supply" and deleted "where an emergency condition exists" following "substance use disorder," in the second sentence, substituted "without prior authorization shall include formulary forms of" for "of an emergency supply shall include" and added "or dispensed" and deleted (B) and (C); added (35); and made related changes.

The 2019 amendment by ch 748, § 1, rewrote (i)(31-a).

The 2020 amendment by ch 56, § 1 (Part DDD), added "provided however, the total amount that a covered person is required to pay out of pocket for covered prescription insulin drugs shall be capped at an amount not to exceed one hundred dollars per thirty-day supply, regardless of the amount or type of insulin needed to fill such covered person's prescription and regardless of the insured's deductible, copayment, coinsurance or any other cost sharing requirement" in (i)(15-a)(B).

1. In general

The law does not look with favor upon forfeitures in insurance policies, and refuses to give that effect to them unless the case is brought squarely within the provisions of the policy. Press Pub. Co. v General Acci. Fire & Life Assurance Corp., 160 A.D. 537, 145 N.Y.S. 711, 1914 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4767 (N.Y. App. Div. 1914), aff'd, 217 N.Y. 648, 112 N.E. 1072, 217 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 648, 1916 N.Y. LEXIS 1407 (N.Y. 1916).

Individual chiropractors and chiropractic association did not have standing to maintain action for declaratory and injunctive relief, alleging that defendant health maintenance organizations (HMOs) violated CLS Ins § 3216(i)(21)(A) whose purpose was to secure coverage for chiropractic services to HMO enrollees, as statute was not adopted for benefit of chiropractors. Hudes v Vytra Health Plans Long Island, Inc., 187 Misc. 2d 861, 724 N.Y.S.2d 278, 2001 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 84 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 2001), aff'd, 295 A.D.2d 788, 744 N.Y.S.2d 80, 2002 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6503 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2002).

Action alleging that defendant health maintenance organizations (HMOs) violated CLS Ins § 3216(i)(21)(A), whose purpose was to secure coverage for chiropractic services to HMO enrollees, was dismissed although plaintiff HMO enrollee fell within class for whose benefit statute was enacted, as private right of action would not promote legislative purpose and would be inconsistent with legislative scheme, which contained its own review mechanism for this kind of dispute. Hudes v Vytra Health Plans Long Island, Inc., 187 Misc. 2d 861, 724 N.Y.S.2d 278, 2001 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 84 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 2001), aff'd, 295 A.D.2d 788, 744 N.Y.S.2d 80, 2002 N.Y. App. Div. Conversion policy or contract need not provide same benefits as were provided in former group policy or contract. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 02-03-16.

Insurer may consider health-related history when individual is applying for increase in existing disability insurance coverage. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 02-04-35.

2. Applicability of section to various types of insurance

Section 164 [now § 3216] is not applicable to medical expense indemnity corporations organized under § 250 (provisions of which now appear in Article 43). Shapira v United Medical Service, Inc., 15 N.Y.2d 200, 257 N.Y.S.2d 150, 205 N.E.2d 293, 1965 N.Y. LEXIS 1581 (N.Y. 1965).

This section [now § 3216] did not apply to renewals of a policy expiring in 1903. Hodgson v Preferred Acci. Ins. Co., 188 A.D. 981, 176 N.Y.S. 903, 1919 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7389 (N.Y. App. Div. 1919).

This section [now § 3216] does not apply to mutual companies doing business on assessment basis. Nigro v Commercial Travelers Mut. Acci. Ass'n, 267 A.D. 915, 47 N.Y.S.2d 169, 1944 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5490 (N.Y. App. Div. 1944).

In an action by a patient seeking benefits under his hospital insurance policy for his stay at an alcoholism treatment facility that was located in the same hospital in which the patient had undergone withdrawal from alcohol addiction, benefits would be denied in view of an exclusion for costs that were incurred in admission to a hospital "primarily for . . . convalescent . . . care," where the longer-term care that the patient elected after withdrawal treatment consisted of group therapy and counseling, and did not require the use of full hospital facilities. Riggs v Blue Cross of Western New York, Inc., 92 A.D.2d 365, 460 N.Y.S.2d 677, 1983 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 16629 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1983).

This section [now § 3216] is not applicable to insurance companies generally, as appears from the fact, inter alia, that § 168 [now § 3404], providing for a standard fire insurance policy provides for a 12-month period of limitation, while subd 3, ¶ 11, of this section [now § 3216(d)(1)(K)] provides for three-year limitation. Estock v Associated Hospital Service, Inc., 45 Misc. 2d 504, 257 N.Y.S.2d 559, 1964 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1685 (N.Y. Civ. Ct. 1964).

Insurance carrier was entitled to declaratory judgment that facility which provided independent and enhanced living programs for older adults in residential setting was not "nursing home" under long-term care insurance nursing home indemnity policy issued to insured, where facility was not licensed to provide nursing care, did not have medical doctor available, and was not shown to keep clinical records on each resident. Gregg by & Through Gregg v IDS Life Ins. Co., 178 Misc. 2d 895, 681 N.Y.S.2d 451, 1998 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 573 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1998), aff'd, 261 A.D.2d 799, 692 N.Y.S.2d 182, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5551 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1999).

3. Construction of insurance provisions, generally

Insured was entitled to reimbursement for cost of surgery-related anesthesiologist's services under insurance policy that covered cost of certain medical and surgical care, but specifically excluded "anesthesia," as exclusion did not unambiguously apply to medical services associated with administration of anesthetic agents, and could just as readily be construed to only exclude cost of agents themselves. Tanzer v Health Ins. Plan, 91 N.Y.2d 850, 668 N.Y.S.2d 151, 690 N.E.2d 1257, 1997 N.Y. LEXIS 3712 (N.Y. 1997), cert. denied, Terio v Terio, 522 U.S. 1129, 118 S. Ct. 1080, 140 L. Ed. 2d 138, 1998 U.S. LEXIS 1161 (U.S. 1998).

An action to recover on an accident and sickness disability income insurance policy that was commenced more than 3 years following inception of the cause of action was barred by the 3-year limitation period stated in the policy and in Ins Law § 164 [now § 3216], even though the policy also referred to the 6-year period for breach of contract actions in CPLR § 213, where the 3-year limitation period was mandated by the legislature, and where the policy contained a standard provision covering conformity with state statutes, and where no ambiguity thus existed despite the inclusion of both periods of limitation in the contract. Rodriguez v Nationwide Ins. Co., 97 A.D.2d 817, 468 N.Y.S.2d 693, 1983 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 20592 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1983).

Court properly dismissed breach of contract action against insurance company in which insured sought disability benefits for life because he was no longer able to perform duties of police officer, since policy clearly stated that insured would receive benefits for 2 years if he were unable to perform his former duties, and that benefits would continue thereafter only for as long as insured was unable to be otherwise gainfully employed; where terms of policy are clear and unambiguous, they must be enforced as written. Ellis v Metlife Sec. Ins. Co., 130 A.D.2d 951, 515 N.Y.S.2d 935, 1987 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 46932 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1987).

Health insurance policy clause, excluding preexisting condition for which "medical advice was given, treatment was recommended by or received from a health care provider" within 12 months before commencement of coverage, was ambiguous since it could be interpreted to exclude coverage if insured received both medical advice and medical treatment, or recommendation as to treatment, during preceding 12-month period; thus, clause would be construed in favor of insured to exclude coverage only if insured was actually treated or given recommendation as to treatment during such period. Mannino v Agway, Inc. Group Trust, 192 A.D.2d 131, 600 N.Y.S.2d 723, 1993 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7405 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1993).

Health insurance policy clause excluding preexisting condition for which "medical advice was given, treatment was recommended by or received from a health care provider" within 12 months before commencement of coverage, was ambiguous since term "condition" could mean either actually diagnosed disease or any distinct symptom of undiagnosed disease; under either interpretation, clause would be construed to cover insured's leukemia, which she had contracted before effective date of policy, since medical advice received by insured prior to such effective date was given neither for leukemia nor for any symptom distinctly related to leukemia, in that neither physical symptoms exhibited by insured nor test results obtained prior to effective date of policy would have permitted physician to make reasonably accurate diagnosis of leukemia. Mannino v Agway, Inc. Group Trust, 192 A.D.2d 131, 600 N.Y.S.2d 723, 1993 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7405 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1993).

Health insurance policy clause, excluding preexisting condition for which "medical advice was given, treatment was recommended by or received from a health care provider" within 12 months before commencement of coverage, was ambiguous since term "treatment" could be broadly defined to encompass not only rendition of services to alleviate pain or suffering but rendition of services to investigate cause of particular symptom; thus, clause would be construed in favor of insured to apply only to medical services designed to alleviate disease, illness or symptom thereof, rather than to diagnostic testing. Mannino v Agway, Inc. Group Trust, 192 A.D.2d 131, 600 N.Y.S.2d 723, 1993 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7405 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1993).

Health insurance policy clause excluding preexisting condition for which "medical advice was given, treatment was recommended by or received from a health care provider" within 12 months before commencement of coverage, applied only when (1) insured received both medical advice and medical treatment, or recommendation as to treatment, (2) such advice and treatment or recommendation of treatment was related to actual disease or illness for which insured was seeking indemnification, or to symptom directly related to that disease, and (3) advice and treatment or recommendation as to treatment included rendition or recommendation of medical services designed to alleviate such disease, illness or symptom. Mannino v Agway, Inc. Group Trust, 192 A.D.2d 131, 600 N.Y.S.2d 723, 1993 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7405 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1993).

Provision of health insurance policy covering "newborn children" from date of "birth" until 31st day following birth or first day of second month following birth, whichever is longer, was clear and unambiguous, and for purposes of coverage required measurement of relevant time period from date of plaintiff's child's birth, rather than from date order of filiation was issued determining his paternity of child. Locascio v Mutual of Omaha Ins. Co., 198 A.D.2d 403, 603 N.Y.S.2d 580, 1993 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10913 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1993).

In action by disability insurer for judgment declaring that insured was not entitled to benefits under 2 reinstated noncancelable policies, based solely on reinstated policies' exclusion of coverage for disabilities caused by pre-existing conditions, insured was entitled to summary judgment and declaration in his favor on ground that insurer was precluded by 2-year incontestability clause required by CLS Ins § 3216(d)(1)(B)(ii) from disclaiming coverage; statutory language and legislative intent indicate that § 3210 is to be read as limiting § 3216(d)(1)(D), which dictates policy language relating to reinstatement. Equitable Life Assur. Soc'y of the United States v Madis, 240 A.D.2d 100, 669 N.Y.S.2d 599, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2459 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't), app. dismissed, 92 N.Y.2d 919, 680 N.Y.S.2d 459, 703 N.E.2d 271, 1998 N.Y. LEXIS 2847 (N.Y. 1998).

Insured injured when baseball bat broke and struck him in eye was covered by disability insurance policy where policy language "loss of sight" was ambiguous as to whether it meant loss of sight in one eye or both eyes, and ambiguity had to be resolved against insurer as drafter of policy. Scalia v Equitable Life Assur. Soc'y of U.S., 263 A.D.2d 537, 693 N.Y.S.2d 218, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8385 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1999).

In an action in Small Claims Court by an insured under an insurance contract for medical bills and hospital costs to recover for the costs of a second attending physician, the Small Claims Court judgment granting costs to the insured was affirmed, where the insured's contract was ambiguous in that it provided that the insurer would reimburse the insured for one attending physician and one consulting physician but did not explicitly state that the insured was entitled to recovery for only one attending physician, the insured drafted the contract containing the ambiguity, and the contract did not with certainty limit the policy's coverage to only one attending physician. Goldbas v Medical & Surgical Care, Inc., 120 Misc. 2d 324, 466 N.Y.S.2d 107, 1981 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3516 (N.Y. County Ct. 1981).

Claimant suffering from bone cancer was entitled to reimbursement under health insurance policy for expense of compatibility tests performed at his doctor's direction on sibling to determine her potential as bone marrow donor, notwithstanding sibling was not covered person under policy, since expense of tests was not excluded under language of policy, and claimant demonstrated tests were conducted for his benefit and as part of treatment of his illness within meaning of "General Medical Care" coverage provision of insurance contract. Zwerin v Group Health, Inc., 143 Misc. 2d 679, 541 N.Y.S.2d 1014, 1989 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 296 (N.Y. Civ. Ct. 1989).

Claimant suffering from bone cancer was not entitled to reimbursement under health insurance policy for expense of sperm bank procedures undertaken due to potential of infertility from chemotherapy, since such procedures were not part of actual treatment of claimant's illness and did not fall within any other stated coverages of policy. Zwerin v Group Health, Inc., 143 Misc. 2d 679, 541 N.Y.S.2d 1014, 1989 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 296 (N.Y. Civ. Ct. 1989).

Combination of chemotherapy and bone marrow transplant procedure for HIV-infected plaintiff, followed by treatment with antiviral drug AZT, did not constitute experimental or investigative procedure falling within health insurance policy exclusion, especially since availability of noninfected bone marrow from plaintiff's twin brother removed most serious obstacle to successful transplant, "graft-versus-host" disease. Bradley v Empire Blue Cross & Blue Shield, 149 Misc. 2d 20, 562 N.Y.S.2d 908, 1990 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 460 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1990).

Placement of a disability insurer's Relation of Earnings to Insurance (REI) clause with the policy's general provisions rather than with the total disability benefit provisions was not inappropriate under N.Y. Ins. Law § 3216(c)(7), which would entitle the insured to a statutory penalty under N.Y. Ins. Law § 4226, as N.Y. Ins. Law § 3216(c)(7) explicitly excepted exceptions and reductions of indemnity set forth in § 3216(d); the insurer's REI clause was in the precise wording of § 3216(d)(2)(F) and, thus, was excepted. Friedman v Connecticut Gen. Life Ins. Co., 9 N.Y.3d 105, 846 N.Y.S.2d 64, 877 N.E.2d 281, 2007 N.Y. LEXIS 2718 (N.Y. 2007).

There are no provisions in CLS Pub Health Art 44, 10 NYCRR Part 98, or CLS Ins Art 32 mandating time period for participating providers to submit claims to HMOs; any such time limitation should be contained in applicable participating provider contract between provider and HMO. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 02-06-21.

There is no provision in CLS Insurance Law permitting physician to submit "revised" claim to HMO for up to 6 years after date of service. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 02-06-21.

Group contract issued by health service corporation must cover annual mammography screening for individuals over age 50, except for contract issued to cover employees employed in more than one state. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 02-09-09.

4. Effect of policy not in compliance with legal requirements

The rider to a policy of accident insurance is part thereof and, therefore, within the requirement that no policy shall be issued until a copy of its form shall have been filed with the superintendent. Failure to file the rider, however, does not invalidate the policy, but whenever its provisions conflict with statute, latter is to govern rights of parties. Hopkins v Connecticut General Life Ins. Co., 225 N.Y. 76, 121 N.E. 465, 225 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 76, 1918 N.Y. LEXIS 822 (N.Y. 1918).

A provision in a policy of health and accident insurance, although not in the order or words as set forth in the statute, is valid. Equitable Life Assurance Soc. v Mait, 279 A.D. 194, 109 N.Y.S.2d 82, 1951 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2896 (N.Y. App. Div. 1951).

5. Incontestability clause

Under rule that ambiguities in contract must be construed against drafter, insured was entitled to inference that term "in force" as used, but not defined, in incontestability clause of disability policy, referred to earlier "date of issue" rather than later "effective date" of policy, and policy thus became incontestable 2 years after its "date of issue." Guardian Life Ins. Co. v Schaefer, 70 N.Y.2d 888, 524 N.Y.S.2d 377, 519 N.E.2d 288, 1987 N.Y. LEXIS 19936 (N.Y. 1987).

Defendant insurer was not entitled to summary judgment in action for breach of policies providing for payment of $1,000 per month in event of "total disability," on ground that action was time barred because limitations period was triggered when insurer ceased paying benefits to insured; considering interpretation that most closely comported to literal terms of policies, 90-day proof of loss requirements in policies and, by extension, 3-year limitations periods, commenced on termination of insured's disability as objective medical fact. Panepinto v New York Life Ins. Co., 90 N.Y.2d 717, 665 N.Y.S.2d 385, 688 N.E.2d 241, 1997 N.Y. LEXIS 3694 (N.Y. 1997).

Incontestability clause of disability insurance policy precluded insurer from denying benefits to policyholder based on exclusion for pre-existing conditions not disclosed on insurance application. New England Mut. Life Ins. Co. v Doe, 93 N.Y.2d 122, 688 N.Y.S.2d 459, 710 N.E.2d 1060, 1999 N.Y. LEXIS 223 (N.Y. 1999).

The statutory incontestability clause in an accident and health insurance policy, providing that after the policy has been in force for two years during lifetime of the insured (excluding any period during which the insured is disabled) it shall become incontestable as to statements contained in the application, cannot serve as basis for granting summary judgment dismissing the complaint in an action by the insurer for rescission of the policy for concealment, by insured, in his application, that he had suffered a disabling heart attack, where it appears that he had suffered subsequent disabling heart attacks since the policy became in force, the duration of disability under which presents a triable issue of fact. Union Mut. Life Ins. Co. v Kevie, 13 A.D.2d 755, 215 N.Y.S.2d 298, 1961 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10658 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1961).

Disclaimer based on previous manifestation of illness is perforce also based on previous existence and, as such, not permitted by incontestability clause. White v Massachusetts Casualty Ins. Co., 96 A.D.2d 732, 465 N.Y.S.2d 345, 1983 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 19314 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't), app. dismissed, 60 N.Y.2d 702, 1983 N.Y. LEXIS 6264 (N.Y. 1983).

Insured was entitled to partial summary judgment declaring that his heart condition and coronary artery disease were risks insured against, even though he had been hospitalized for those conditions prior to issuance of disability policy and had failed to mention either conditions or treatments on his policy application, since insured had heart attack more than 2 years after issuance of policy, and statutory incontestability clause covered all preexisting conditions notwithstanding policy language limiting coverage to sickness "which first makes itself known" while policy is in force. Monarch Life Ins. Co. v Brown, 125 A.D.2d 75, 512 N.Y.S.2d 99, 1987 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 40743 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1987).

Court properly determined that incontestability clause of disability policy barred insurer from raising defense that insured's multiple sclerosis condition first manifested itself prior to date on which policy was issued; incontestability clause did not incorporate exception for "fraudulent misstatements." Favata v Paul Revere Life Ins. Co., 254 A.D.2d 804, 678 N.Y.S.2d 197, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10521 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1998).

The incontestability clause clearly limited the effect of the loss coverage restrictions to loss incurred during the first two years, and the insured could recover for an illness that had not been mentioned in the application for the policy after it had been effect for over two years. Rackear v Springfield Fire & Marine Ins. Co., 48 Misc. 2d 707, 265 N.Y.S.2d 715, 1965 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1285 (N.Y. App. Term 1965).

Incontestability clause, which is mandated in all accident and sickness policies and which provides that no claim for loss incurred or disability commencing after two years from date of issuance of policy shall be reduced or denied on ground that disease or physical condition existed prior to effective date of policy coverage, did not bar disability insurer from denying insured's claim for benefits even though claim was made more than two years after issuance of policies where claim sought benefits for total disability from date only three months after issuance of policies. Mutual Life Ins. Co. v Hayden, 87 Misc. 2d 1039, 386 N.Y.S.2d 978, 1976 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2356 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1976), disapproved, White v Massachusetts Casualty Ins. Co., 96 A.D.2d 732, 465 N.Y.S.2d 345, 1983 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 19314 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1983).

Incontestability clause, which is mandated in all accident and sickness policies and which provides that no claim for loss incurred or disability as defined in policy commencing after two years from date of issue of policy shall be reduced or denied on ground that disease or physical condition existed prior to effective date of policy coverage, only prohibits denials of claims based on prior existence of disease and does not bar disability insurer from denying claim where disease existed and was manifested prior to disability policies' issuance. Mutual Life Ins. Co. v Hayden, 87 Misc. 2d 1039, 386 N.Y.S.2d 978, 1976 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2356 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1976), disapproved, White v Massachusetts Casualty Ins. Co., 96 A.D.2d 732, 465 N.Y.S.2d 345, 1983 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 19314 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1983).

Where insurance policy provided that benefits would be paid for period of 5 years due to total disability as result of "sickness" and paid for insured's lifetime for total disability resulting from "accident", insurance company properly limited benefits to 5 years under "sickness" provision where insured suffered disability due to accident occurring prior to effective date of policy, but where injuries did not manifest themselves until policy was in effect for more than 2 years, as incontestability clause of policy is not applicable and was not rendered null by insurance company's actions, and further, incontestability clause does not affect limitation provision otherwise applicable. Fuller v Massachusetts Indem. & Life Ins. Co., 680 F. Supp. 128, 1988 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 1651 (S.D.N.Y. 1988).

Incontestability clause did not comply with CLS Ins Law § 3216(d) and was void, where incontestability clause of disability insurance policy permitted insurer to void policy at any time for innocent or negligent misrepresentation in application if insurer contested such by letter within 2 years after issuance of policy, because clause was less favorable to insured than statutory clause. Burke v First UNUM Life Ins. Co., 975 F. Supp. 310, 1997 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 13015 (S.D.N.Y. 1997).

Incontestability clause was void and unenforceable where it permitted carrier to rescind disability insurance policy based on insured's innocent or negligent misrepresentations in her application for policy at any time provided carrier had contested such misrepresentations by letter within 2 years after issuance of policy; Superintendent of Insurance's approval of policy form did not save clause, and invalidating clause did not violate Contract Clause (CLS US Const Art I § 10). Burke v First UNUM Life Ins. Co., 975 F. Supp. 310, 1997 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 13015 (S.D.N.Y. 1997).

Whether or not individual long term care insurance policy is incontestable after being in force during life of insured for period of 2 years depends on whether or not policy is tax qualified for federal income tax purposes. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 02-02-04.

6. Misrepresentation by insured

A renewal certificate is simply a contract to continue in force a pre-existing policy of insurance. Statute providing that the falsity of any statement in the application for any policy shall not bar a right to recover unless it was made with intent to deceive or materially affects acceptance of risk, applies only to policies issued after statute's effective date. Baumann v Preferred Acci. Ins. Co., 225 N.Y. 480, 122 N.E. 628, 225 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 480, 1919 N.Y. LEXIS 1148 (N.Y. 1919).

Statutory provision that every policy of insurance issued or delivered "on or after January 1, 1907, by any life insurance corporation shall contain the entire contract between the parties . . . and all statements purporting to be made by the insured shall in the absence of fraud be deemed representations and not warranties," is by its express words limited to policies issued "by any life insurance corporation," and has no application to accident insurance. Baumann v Preferred Acci. Ins. Co., 225 N.Y. 480, 122 N.E. 628, 225 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 480, 1919 N.Y. LEXIS 1148 (N.Y. 1919).

Insurance carrier may, compatibly with incontestability clause, protect itself by including provision in its incontestability clause creating exception for "fraudulent misstatements." New England Mut. Life Ins. Co. v Doe, 93 N.Y.2d 122, 688 N.Y.S.2d 459, 710 N.E.2d 1060, 1999 N.Y. LEXIS 223 (N.Y. 1999).

Whether an applicant's representations as to conditions of his health constituted a material misrepresentation so as to avoid the policy under former § 107 and provision of the application, is properly left to the jury. Denler v Continental Casualty Co., 213 A.D. 30, 209 N.Y.S. 629, 1925 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8425 (N.Y. App. Div. 1925).

Misrepresentation by the plaintiff that his weekly earnings exceeded the amount of weekly indemnity was not, as matter of law, immaterial to company's acceptance of risk, especially in view of the provisions of former § 107. Wicklow v United States Fidelity & Guaranty Co., 220 A.D. 199, 221 N.Y.S. 157, 1927 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9267 (N.Y. App. Div. 1927).

Subdivision 3 of this section [now § 3216(d)], reserves to an insurer the right to defend on the ground of false and fraudulent representations in the policy application relating to medical treatment, etc., and permits the insurer to raise issues of fact as to making of misrepresentations and their materiality, and it would be improper for a court to grant a summary judgment to plaintiffs without a hearing on such defenses. Greenhaus v American Progressive Health Ins. Co., 18 A.D.2d 1076, 239 N.Y.S.2d 406, 1963 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4055 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1963).

Provisions in a hospital insurance policy which, in accordance with this section [now § 3216], are prescribed by law, the first, precluding, after two years from date of issuance of the policy, a defense of misstatements, other than fraudulent, by the applicant for the policy, and the second precluding a defense, after like period, of nondisclosure of a disease or physical condition within the coverage of the policy, do not bar a defense of fraudulent nondisclosure with respect to pre-existing conditions or treatment. Greenhaus v American Progressive Health Ins. Co., 33 Misc. 2d 280, 225 N.Y.S.2d 590, 1962 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3790 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1962), aff'd, 18 A.D.2d 1076, 239 N.Y.S.2d 406, 1963 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4055 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1963).

Material misrepresentations made by insured about his medical history in applying for highest, nonguaranteed level of monthly payments available under disability insurance policy precluded him from recovering any benefits at all, even if he would have been entitled to lowest level of benefits without regard to his medical condition; denying lower benefits which insured could have obtained without making misrepresentations would discourage misrepresentation in insurance applications. Jackson v Travelers Ins. Co., 113 F.3d 367, 1997 U.S. App. LEXIS 11325 (2d Cir. N.Y. 1997).

A mistake in naming the company with which an applicant for insurance had a policy could not have been made with the intent to deceive nor was it material to the risk and therefore it should not give the right to abatement under subd. (F) of former § 107. Solez v Zurich General Acci. & Liability Ins. Co., 54 F.2d 523, 1931 U.S. App. LEXIS 3961 (2d Cir. N.Y. 1931).

The materiality of an answer to risk is of no moment under either [former] § 58 or this section [former § 107] if applicant means to deceive. Solez v Zurich General Acci. & Liability Ins. Co., 54 F.2d 523, 1931 U.S. App. LEXIS 3961 (2d Cir. N.Y. 1931).

No privilege protected hospital's peer review and quality assurance records from disclosure to disability insurer in insured physician's breach of contract action in which insurer sought rescission of policy based on physician's alleged failure to disclose his history of drug and alcohol abuse. Tartaglia v Paul Revere Life Ins. Co., 948 F. Supp. 325, 1996 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 18773 (S.D.N.Y. 1996).

Interests of justice significantly outweighed need for confidentiality of patient records, justifying disclosure in insured physician's breach of contract action wherein disability insurer sought rescission of policy based on physician's alleged failure to disclose his history of drug and alcohol abuse. Tartaglia v Paul Revere Life Ins. Co., 948 F. Supp. 325, 1996 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 18773 (S.D.N.Y. 1996).

Insurer is denied summary dismissal of claim under disability policy, even though it alleges that insured made fraudulent misrepresentations in his answers to certain questions in insurance application and did not correct them upon date of his first premium payment, because, under Ins § 3216(d), absent fraud, condition precedent to contract of insurance, which requires insured to have provided true and complete statements in application for insurance as of date on which initial premium is paid, cannot operate to void policy where insurer's disclaimer is made more than 2 years after policy was issued. Carden v First UNUM Life Ins. Co., 46 F. Supp. 2d 240, 1999 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 5703 (S.D.N.Y. 1999).

An insurance carrier may, compatibly with the incontestability clause, protect itself by including a provision in its incontestability clause creating an exception for fraudulent misstatements. The supreme court properly dismissed an insured person's claims that an insurer's incontestability clause was in violation of the law and void because the insurer was allowed to create an exception in that clause for fraudulent misrepresentation; the insured had been diagnosed with Parkinson's disease before applying for insurance, had failed to state that he was diagnosed with the disease prior to applying for insurance, had submitted a claim based on Parkinson's disease, and the insurer had rescinded the policy based on his fraudulent misrepresentation. Weinberger v Berkshire Life Ins. Co. of Am., 7 A.D.3d 789, 776 N.Y.S.2d 849, 2004 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7248 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2004).

Life insurance policy issued to the insured was rescinded ab initio because a material misrepresentation in the application intended to defraud the insurer under N.Y. Ins. Law §§ 3105(b), 3216(d)(1)(B)(I) was made; the insured knew that the answers were false, and the insured's failure to disclose his condition of chronic back pain, which had resulted in the insured's hospitalization within five years of the application, affected his insurable risk. Dwyer v First Unum Life Ins. Co., 41 A.D.3d 115, 837 N.Y.S.2d 635, 2007 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6707 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2007).

7. Limitation on actions

If disability insurer is actually prejudiced by insured's delay in asserting claim within 3 year limitations period following termination of insured's disability as objective medical fact, insured's claim may be barred by principles similar to those underlying doctrine of laches. Panepinto v New York Life Ins. Co., 90 N.Y.2d 717, 665 N.Y.S.2d 385, 688 N.E.2d 241, 1997 N.Y. LEXIS 3694 (N.Y. 1997).

Actions upon accident insurance policies commenced approximately five years after the death of insured were time barred. Ross v Continental Casualty Co., 25 A.D.2d 702, 268 N.Y.S.2d 92, 1966 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4707 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1966).

The legality of a limitation period in a life insurance policy prohibiting commencement of an action more than 12 months after the date of the accident causing insured's loss of life was determinable by the law as it existed at the time of the issuance of the policy. Schmuckler v Commer. Travelers Mut. Accident Ass'n, 32 A.D.2d 560, 300 N.Y.S.2d 199, 1969 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4189 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1969).

Subd 3, ¶ 11, of this section [now § 3216(d)(1)(B)] does not mandate a three-year statute of limitation as against shorter period established by contract, but merely provides maximum period in respect to commencement of actions on accident and health insurance policies. Estock v Associated Hospital Service, Inc., 45 Misc. 2d 504, 257 N.Y.S.2d 559, 1964 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1685 (N.Y. Civ. Ct. 1964).

District court erred in holding that the three year time limit set out in a disability insurance policy was applicable to an insured's breach of contract and wrongful rescission claims under N.Y. C.P.L.R. 201 (2004) because the policy's provision was less favorable to the insured than New York law: (1) although N.Y. Ins. Law § 3216(d)(1)(K) allowed insurers to impose a three year time limit on actions arising out of their policies, the time limit applied only to actions to recover benefits under the policy and did not impose the time limit as to other types of claims; (2) the policy's three year time limit was unenforceable as to the insured's claims because she was seeking, in her suit,to undo the insurer's decision to rescind her policy; and (3) N.Y. C.P.L.R. 213(2) (2004), which imposed a six year time limit for bringing breach of contract claims, applied to an insured's claims against an insurer. Terry v Unum Life Ins. Co. of Am., 394 F.3d 108, 2005 U.S. App. LEXIS 345 (2d Cir. N.Y. 2005).

8. Particular causes of death or injury within scope of policy coverage

Plaintiff, who lost an eye by the explosion of a bottle, seeks to recover upon a policy of insurance against accident and sickness, one article of which provides for payment of a fixed sum for the loss of the eye and another makes separate and distinct provision for a weekly indemnity for total disability. He suffered as the result of the loss of the eye an affliction of the heart resulting in disability to transact the kind of business transacted by him in the past, and seeks to ignore the specific provision as to the indemnity for the loss of the eye and recover the weekly indemnity for total disability. The total disability provided for is one that is not in consequence of an injury within the purview of the provision for specific injury. If disability follows an injury within the purview of the specific provision, payment is not to exceed the principal sum, or a prescribed fraction thereof, except that there may be weekly indemnity up to the date of death, dismemberment or loss of sight. The promise of compensation for the injuries specifically enumerated, such as for the loss of an eye, excludes the promise of compensation for their secondary consequences. Goldstein v Standard Acc. Ins. Co., 236 N.Y. 178, 140 N.E. 235, 236 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 178, 1923 N.Y. LEXIS 872 (N.Y.), reh'g denied, 236 N.Y. 637, 142 N.E. 315, 236 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 637, 1923 N.Y. LEXIS 1081 (N.Y. 1923).

An accident and health insurance policy insured against death caused by accidental injury independently and exclusively of all other causes. Insured was injured in an elevated railroad collision. The action was brought on the theory that the injury produced pleurisy which, in turn, aggravated a heart condition. Death was caused directly by acute dilatation of the heart. It was error to charge that the insurer is liable if the injury, by aggravating heart disease, accelerated death, but the complaint is not dismissed since the plaintiff may show that the heart condition was caused by the injury. Waiver of filing proof of loss must be pleaded. Smith v Massachusetts Bonding & Ins. Co., 241 N.Y. 558, 150 N.E. 554, 241 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 558, 1925 N.Y. LEXIS 637 (N.Y. 1925).

In an action to recover under a policy of indemnity insurance for liability incurred by plaintiff as the result of an automobile accident, where the policy provided for payment of "interest accrued on the judgment rendered" against plaintiff, the inclusion in the judgment of an item of interest on the principal sum found due, from the date when the accident occurred to the date when the judgment for damages was entered against the plaintiff, is erroneous. The effect of a provision of the policy cannot be overcome by the statutory provision (Decedent Estate Law § 132) requiring clerk on rendition of verdict to add interest from date of death of person injured. The two provisions are written from entirely different viewpoints, and each one is independent of the other. Cleghorn v Ocean Acci. & Guarantee Corp., 244 N.Y. 166, 155 N.E. 87, 244 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 166, 1926 N.Y. LEXIS 636 (N.Y. 1926).

If insured under accident insurance policy voluntarily and deliberately engages in fight as aggressor, and receives injuries which are natural and probable consequences of his acts, there can be no recovery under policy since injuries cannot be said to have been produced by accident or accidental means. Krulls v Hartford Accident & Indem. Co., 144 A.D.2d 744, 535 N.Y.S.2d 157, 1988 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10910 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1988).

One armed with deadly weapon who attacks police officer performing his duty must expect deadly resistance, so his death at hands of officer is foreseeable and, therefore, not accidental within meaning of accident insurance policy. Krulls v Hartford Accident & Indem. Co., 144 A.D.2d 744, 535 N.Y.S.2d 157, 1988 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10910 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1988).

Beneficiary of insurance policy bears burden of proving that death of insured was covered by terms of policy. Lachter v Insurance Co. of North America, 145 A.D.2d 540, 536 N.Y.S.2d 93, 1988 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13613 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1988).

Whether occurrence constitutes "accident" within meaning of insurance policy is generally for trier of fact to determine. Lachter v Insurance Co. of North America, 145 A.D.2d 540, 536 N.Y.S.2d 93, 1988 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13613 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1988).

Beneficiary under accident insurance policy was not entitled to summary judgment since issues of whether occurrence constituted "accident" and whether occurrence caused insured's death were questions of fact for jury where (1) insured died of massive pulmonary emboli shortly after returning from business trip to Japan, (2) beneficiary claimed that insured's immobilization during approximately 14-hour flight from Japan caused blood clot to form in his knee, which ultimately traveled to his lung and caused death, and that such occurrence was "accident" within meaning of policy, and (3) insurance company claimed that occurrence was caused by illness or disease rather than by accident. Lachter v Insurance Co. of North America, 145 A.D.2d 540, 536 N.Y.S.2d 93, 1988 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13613 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1988).

Summary judgment would be granted against health insurer for cost of insured's daughter's hospitalization, and insurer's claim that coverage for hospitalization was excluded under psychiatric care limitation of policy would be rejected, where (1) daughter was admitted to hospital for malnutrition and hypotension resulting from anorexia nervosa, but was not admitted to psychiatric unit of hospital in order to have her psychiatric disorder treated, and (2) she was given same treatment as any person suffering from malnutrition and was released from hospital when her physical condition was stabilized. Simons v Blue Cross & Blue Shield, 144 A.D.2d 28, 536 N.Y.S.2d 431, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 75 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't), app. denied, 74

Insurance company which issued homeowners policy would not be required to defend and indemnify defendants in personal injury action arising from incident in which defendant (who was son of defendant insureds) raped and stabbed plaintiff behind high school, since incident fell within exclusion for intentional acts where defendant pleaded guilty to second degree attempted murder and stated that he meant to kill plaintiff. Nancie D. v New York Cent. Mut. Fire Ins. Co., 195 A.D.2d 535, 600 N.Y.S.2d 472, 1993 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7346 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1993).

Plaintiff was entitled to recover medical payments under an insurance policy covering injury to persons "while in or upon . . . automobile, if the injury arises out of a use thereof" where the injury was sustained after he had stopped the car to investigate a noise and while he was attempting to fix the front bumper which had fallen off. Lokos v New Amsterdam Casualty Co., 93 N.Y.S.2d 825, 197 Misc. 40, 1949 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3004 (N.Y. Mun. Ct. 1949), aff'd, 96 N.Y.S.2d 153, 197 Misc. 43, 1950 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1523 (N.Y. App. Term 1950).

A beneficiary can recover on an insurance policy where the insured died by electrocution at the hands of the state for conviction of murder, by interpretation of § 155 [now § 3203] and § 164 [now § 3216]. Prudential Ins. Co. v Goldstein, 43 F. Supp. 765, 1942 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 3083 (D.N.Y. 1942).

9. —Autopsy to determine cause

Fact that the only justification for request by insurer for a postinterment autopsy of insured was a four-day hospitalization for some relatively minor heart pains seven years prior to insured's death, with no suggestion of any subsequent heart trouble, coupled with fact that insured's automobile slid on icy pavement and struck concrete steps, causing insured's neck to be broken, raised question of whether request for autopsy was reasonable which issue could only be resolved by trier of fact upon proper instructions; if jury were to find that the demand was unreasonably made, the failure to comply with demand for autopsy would not bar recovery on accident policy. Saperstein v Commer. Travelers Mut. Accident Ass'n, 36 N.Y.2d 79, 365 N.Y.S.2d 154, 324 N.E.2d 539, 1975 N.Y. LEXIS 1653 (N.Y. 1975).

The exhumation of a body for purpose of performing an autopsy pursuant to terms and conditions of a contract of insurance is not, in and of itself, forbidden by law. Saperstein v Commer. Travelers Mut. Accident Ass'n, 36 N.Y.2d 79, 365 N.Y.S.2d 154, 324 N.E.2d 539, 1975 N.Y. LEXIS 1653 (N.Y. 1975).

In action by beneficiary to recover proceeds of life and accidental death insurance policies, court should have granted insurer's application to exhume cremated remains of person alleged to be insured, to permit forensic examination, although application was made after note of issue and statement of readiness were filed, since (1) evidence supported reasonable doubt as to veracity of beneficiary's representation that cremated remains were those of insured, (2) insurer submitted pathologist's affirmation stating that sufficient number of teeth customarily survive cremation process to permit identification by deceased's dental records, and that insured's dental X-rays would be satisfactory for intended purpose, and (3) written permission to open grave was given by insured's daughters, who were his sole distributees. Buntin v Guardian Life Ins. Co., 134 A.D.2d 473, 521 N.Y.S.2d 258, 1987 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 50668 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1987).

10. Injury or death while engaged in unlawful act

Under a life or accident insurance policy which by its terms provides that the company shall not be liable for accidental injuries or death while the insured is engaged in an unlawful or illegal act if such act is a statutory offense, the answer setting up such defense must set out all the statutory elements thereof, and it must allege a causative connection between the offense and the injury sustained. An independent legal contract of insurance, founded upon a good and valid consideration, is not made void by an incidental violation of the Highway Law. Messersmith v American Fidelity Co., 187 A.D. 35, 175 N.Y.S. 169, 1919 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6446 (N.Y. App. Div. 1919), aff'd, 232 N.Y. 161, 133 N.E. 432, 232 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 161, 1921 N.Y. LEXIS 487 (N.Y. 1921).

Where an insured died as the result of injuries sustained during the course of an attempted escape from jail, his beneficiary will not be permitted to recover on the ground that he was engaged in the commission of a felony, and also on the ground that his injuries were self-inflicted since he engaged in a deliberate and reckless act of jumping from the roof of a building 45 feet above the ground. Udisky v Metropolitan Life Ins. Co., 32 N.Y.S.2d 579, 177 Misc. 960, 1941 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2562 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1941), rev'd, 264 A.D. 890, 35 N.Y.S.2d 1021, 1942 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5264 (N.Y. App. Div. 1942).

Where the insured died as a result of being stabbed in self defense by his wife while he was choking her, his death resulted from his commission of the crime of assault and consequently the policy on his life is not collectible. Kaminsky v Home Life Ins. Co., 45 Misc. 2d 819, 258 N.Y.S.2d 266, 1965 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2133 (N.Y. App. Term 1965).

11. Notice of accident or injury

The requirement of former § 107 [now § 3216] that notice of injury must be given an insurer "within twenty days after date of accident causing such injury," may be extended by necessity, so that such notice may be given as soon as reasonably possible; but affirmative proof of loss must be given within the ninety-day limit after the loss, as prescribed by the statute. Mackay v Metropolitan Life Ins. Co., 281 N.Y. 42, 22 N.E.2d 154, 281 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 42, 1939 N.Y. LEXIS 977 (N.Y. 1939).

A motion to dismiss the complaint in an action to recover a death benefit under an insurance policy containing a provision for immediate notice of accidental death was properly denied. Kempfner v Guardian Life Ins. Co., 280 A.D. 967, 116 N.Y.S.2d 461, 1952 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4398 (N.Y. App. Div. 1952).

The provision of subd 3 (A, 7) of this section [now § 3216(d)(1)(G)] that failure to furnish proofs of loss within 90 days shall not invalidate claim if it was not reasonably possible to give proof within such time, only became effective on July 1, 1951, and consequently a policy entered into before that time requiring affirmative proof of loss within 90 days after date of loss is not subject to such provision. Bland v Trevvett, 23 A.D.2d 534, 256 N.Y.S.2d 644, 1965 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5036 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1965), aff'd, 19 N.Y.2d 915, 281 N.Y.S.2d 102, 227 N.E.2d 896, 1967 N.Y. LEXIS 1494 (N.Y. 1967).

While less demanding standards of notice apply to the plaintiff injured party than to an insured, the record was inadequate to determine whether the notice given to defendant by the injured party was given "as soon as practicable" under the provisions of the policy, and the lower judgment was reversed and a new trial granted. Rogers v Merchants Mut. Casualty Co., 28 A.D.2d 919, 282 N.Y.S.2d 29, 1967 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3568 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1967).

In an action by an insurer seeking a declaration that the insurer was not obligated to defend or indemnify insured construction firm in a personal injury action involving the firm's truck driver, the trial court erred in not permitting the insurer to inquire into a worker's conversation with the construction firm's foreman regarding the underlying accident, since the insurer was entitled to such information in order to attempt to show that the information given to the foreman was imputed to the construction firm's president, to show that the president's belief that the firm was not liable for the driver's injuries was unreasonable, and to show there was no excuse for the firm's failure to give timely notice to the insurer of the driver's injuries. Holyoke Mut. Ins. Co. v B.T.B. Realty Corp., 83 A.D.2d 603, 441 N.Y.S.2d 301, 1981 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 14891 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1981).

Insurer was entitled to summary judgment dismissing action to recover on disability insurance policy, which required notice of disability within 20 days after occurrence or "as soon thereafter as is reasonably possible," where it was undisputed that insured did not give notice of disability until 8 months after accident and offered no credible excuse for such delay. Gresham v American General Life Ins. Co., 135 A.D.2d 1121, 523 N.Y.S.2d 282, 1987 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 52986 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1987).

Disability insurer was entitled to summary judgment dismissing insured's claim where unambiguous policy required written notice to insurer within 45 days of possibility of claim, and there was no excuse for delay of over 4 years in giving such notice. Roche v G.E. Capital Life Assur. Co., 281 A.D.2d 932, 722 N.Y.S.2d 456, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2822 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't), review or reh'g denied, 726 N.Y.S.2d 43, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5744 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 2001).

It is not a legal duty of the insured under an accident policy to notify the beneficiary of the existence of the policy and his failure to do so is not chargeable against the beneficiary, as respects the duty of the beneficiary to give notice of death. Trieger v Commercial Travelers Mut. Acc. Ass'n, 202 N.Y.S. 410, 122 Misc. 159, 1923 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1414 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1923).

Insured was required to give notice of injury but not of accident under health and accident policy requiring written notice of injury. Turner v Mutual Ben. Health & Accident Ass'n, 5 Misc. 2d 524, 160 N.Y.S.2d 883, 1957 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3319 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1957), aff'd, 5 A.D.2d 951, 172 N.Y.S.2d 571, 1958 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6757 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1958).

As soon as reasonably possible simply means within a reasonable time under all of the circumstances; New York courts have noted that a determination of reasonable time necessarily includes a determination of the diligence of claimant, but have not otherwise delineated the circumstances to be considered. Ajnoha v JC Penney Life Ins. Co., 480 F. Supp. 2d 663, 2007 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 23734 (E.D.N.Y. 2007).

12. —Proof of loss

Proof that death of the insured was caused by his possession and usage of a hypodermic needle, does not establish negligence as a matter of law and prevent a recovery by reason of a provision of the policy that it does not extend to or cover injuries or death caused by negligence of insured. The health law was not intended to provide protection for insurance companies, but to prevent the constant use of any habit-forming drug, and to protect "habitual drug users." It does not provide that the use of hypodermic needle is a crime, therefore it cannot be said as a matter of law that the insured was guilty of negligence. Townsend v Commercial Travelers' Mut. Accident Ass'n, 231 N.Y. 148, 131 N.E. 871, 231 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 148, 1921 N.Y. LEXIS 618 (N.Y. 1921).

In action arising out of insurance policies providing for payment of $1,000 per month in event of "total disability," insurer was not entitled to summary judgment due to insured's failure to submit notice of claim and proof of loss 5 years into her alleged disability, although policies provided that definition of "total disability" changed after 5 years of disability, where nothing in policies suggested that insured was required to file new claim or proof of loss at that point. Panepinto v New York Life Ins. Co., 90 N.Y.2d 717, 665 N.Y.S.2d 385, 688 N.E.2d 241, 1997 N.Y. LEXIS 3694 (N.Y. 1997).

Although this section [now § 3216] provides that acceptance of proofs of loss shall not waive defensive claims made under a policy, it does not provide for a waiver of defects in the proof of loss itself. Binder v Commercial Travelers Mut. Acci. Asso., 165 F.2d 896, 1947 U.S. App. LEXIS 2084 (2d Cir. N.Y. 1947).

Beneficiary did not make a loss of sight claim until nearly two years after his wife was pronounced dead; even assuming the beneficiary could not reasonably have been expected to know of the grounds for a loss of sight claim until the autopsy was performed, he offered no justification for the additional 19 months that elapsed before he asserted a loss of sight claim. Therefore, the claim was untimely. Ajnoha v JC Penney Life Ins. Co., 480 F. Supp. 2d 663, 2007 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 23734 (E.D.N.Y. 2007).

With respect to the accidental death claim, the beneficiary's attorney's representation that he had difficulty in obtaining certain reports was a valid excuse for his failure to provide proof of loss within 90 days; indeed, the insurer did not dispute that its agents told the attorney that there would be no problem as long as he submitted proof of loss as soon as he could. Therefore, whether proof of loss was submitted within a "reasonable time" presented a question of fact. Ajnoha v JC Penney Life Ins. Co., 480 F. Supp. 2d 663, 2007 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 23734 (E.D.N.Y. 2007).

13. Exceptions in policy renewals

Where an insurance company which had issued to the same person for a series of years, policies against injury or death by accident, each of which policies was based upon a new application by the insured which became part of the yearly contract, reinsured one-half of the risk with the defendant, another insurance company each policy was a new, separate and independent contract and not a renewal of the preceding. Hence, where former policies of insurance and reinsurance provided that they did not cover injury or death in the territory of Alaska, that provision was not carried forward so as to become part of policies of reinsurance subsequently issued to the same person, but containing no exception as to the territory of Alaska, and, therefore, where the original insurer paid the amount of the policy to the beneficiary of the insured, who was killed in Alaska, it can recover of the defendant who reinsured the risk. This is true, although plaintiff's letter asking for reinsurance referred to the proposed contract as a "renewal" of a former contract, and although the insured when applying for a prior policy stated that he did not contemplate any special journey or hazardous undertaking. Casualty Co. of America v United States Casualty Co., 161 A.D. 591, 146 N.Y.S. 957, 1914 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5436 (N.Y. App. Div. 1914), aff'd, 221 N.Y. 560, 116 N.E. 1039, 221 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 560, 1917 N.Y. LEXIS 1416 (N.Y. 1917).

Each renewal of an expired policy is a separate and distinct contract. The provision of (former) § 107 that an exception is invalid if printed in the policy in a less prominent type than the beneficial clause therein is printed, applies to renewals of expired policies. Hodgson v Preferred Acc. Ins. Co., 182 A.D. 381, 169 N.Y.S. 28, 1918 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4389 (N.Y. App. Div. 1918).

14. Renewal of policy; payment of premium

Where, in an action upon an accident insurance policy, it appears that the plaintiff was injured five years and two days after the issuance of the policy, which was "a continuous policy" and subject to lapse upon but one contingency, namely, the failure of the plaintiff to pay each premium within the month on the first of which it became due, whether the month was before or after the expiration of five years from the date of issue, the plaintiff is entitled to recover on the policy, although he had not paid the premium for the month on the third day of which he was injured. In a "continuous policy" of accident insurance, a clause providing against the payment of benefits "for illness or death occurring before the policy has been in force two months," applies only to the first two months following the issuance of the policy. Turner v New York Safety Reserve Fund, 158 A.D. 835, 144 N.Y.S. 261, 1913 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8114 (N.Y. App. Div. 1913).

A provision in an insurance policy that the policy is issued for the period of twelve months to commence a certain day and to end a certain day and that it may be renewed by payment of premiums in advance from term to term of twelve months each, provided the insured shall not have attained the age of sixty, is not an age limitation of the policy. Provision relates to the term and termination of the policy which in accordance with this section [now § 3216] must be stated in a portion of the policy preceding its execution by the insurer, which is not otherwise prescribed in formal wording. Equitable Life Assurance Soc. v Mait, 279 A.D. 194, 109 N.Y.S.2d 82, 1951 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2896 (N.Y. App. Div. 1951).

An accident policy by its terms, extending to a specified date, "and for such further time as may be stated in renewal receipts," and providing that premiums were payable the first of each month in advance, constituted a continuing offer by the company to renew the policy whenever an additional premium was paid, and on insured's failure to pay the renewal premium in advance, the policy terminated, precluding recovery for the insured's accidental death thereafter and before tendering premium, notwithstanding the insurer had previously accepted delayed premiums. Raynor v National Casualty Co., 210 N.Y.S. 586, 125 Misc. 174, 1925 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 882 (N.Y. App. Term 1925).

When plaintiff insured's major medical policy lapsed for nonpayment of premiums without notification to the insured, the insured was not entitled to reinstatement of the policy 18 months later retroactive to the date of lapse so as to cover accrued claims where the insured's policy provided for a 90-day grace period for reinstatement, in that Ins Law § 164 [now § 3216] requires only that a grace period of 31 days minimum be given for semiannual or annual policies for reinstatement in the event of default, and since the default in question was not caused by fraud or deception on behalf of the insurer. Margulis v William Penn Ass'n, 123 Misc. 2d 216, 472 N.Y.S.2d 848, 1984 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2977 (N.Y. Civ. Ct. 1984).

15. Cancellation of policy

An insurer is entitled to a judgment in an action cancelling a policy of accident insurance as to future coverage while the insured was recovering from injuries suffered in an accident for which he had received a lump sum settlement on his executing a general release to insurer for any further liability growing out of the accident, where it appears that the insurer served written notice of cancellation of the policy on the insured and tendered to him a refund of the unearned portion of the premium in conformity with the provisions of the policy, which refund the insured accepted without objection or protest. Friedman v Connecticut General Life Ins. Co., 251 A.D. 292, 296 N.Y.S. 146, 1937 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6920 (N.Y. App. Div. 1937).

Although defendant health insurers' prior practice of retroactive termination without advance notice violated parties' contract and CLS Gen Bus § 349, plaintiff insureds were not entitled, in class action, to injunctive relief from insurers' revised procedures where (1) insurers presently provided advance notice with their billing statements, (2) that notice included clear explanation of subscriber's right to remit any overdue payment during ensuing 30-day grace period and of fact that, if payment were not received, coverage would be terminated retroactive to end of day before premium due date, and (3) that notice was not sort of deceptive act that was likely to mislead reasonable consumer who was acting reasonably under circumstances. Makastchian v Oxford Health Plans, Inc., 281 A.D.2d 197, 721 N.Y.S.2d 351, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2208 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2001).

Individualized notice of termination of health insurance policies, sent only after default by insureds, was not required, and retroactive termination was not prohibited by contract or law, even though CLS Ins § 3216(d)(1)(C) requires that coverage remain in effect during any grace period to pay premiums, where (1) under subject policies, it was only after grace period expired and premiums were not paid that coverage terminated to end of last month for which subscriber paid, and (2) although State Department of Insurance's decision—that retroactive termination of coverage back to last day for which premium was paid was allowed when premium was not received during grace period—was not binding on Appellate Division, it was entitled to deference. Makastchian v Oxford Health Plans, Inc., 281 A.D.2d 197, 721 N.Y.S.2d 351, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2208 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2001).

A clause in an accident insurance policy by which members of a travel club were insured, premiums on the policy being paid by each individual member and the club merely acting as an agent for the insurance company in the collection and paying over of said premiums, which provides that the policy may be cancelled at any time by the company by giving five days' written notice to the club, that cancellation of the policy shall have the effect of cancelling the insurance as to every member, and that notice of cancellation in writing delivered to the club or mailed to the club, shall be a sufficient notice, violates provisions of (former) § 107 [now § 3216] which permits insurer to cancel policy of insurance, "at any time by written notice delivered to the insured or mailed to his last address," and is direct contravention of said statute which expressly forbids such substitution for the purpose of notice of cancellation as adopted in defendant's policy. Grossman v London Guarantee & Accident Co., 208 N.Y.S. 582, 124 Misc. 520, 1925 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 693 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1925).

Health plan was not (1) required to cover one-person groups under N.Y. Ins. Law §§ 3216(g)(2)(B), 3221(p)(3)(A), since "group" meant more than one person under N.Y. Ins. Law § 4235, (2) N.Y. Ins. Law § 4237 blanket policy, (3) N.Y. Ins. Law § 3216(g)(2) individual plan, or (4) terminated, so statutory termination notice to solo member "group" was not required. Bentley v JLT Servs. Corp., 18 A.D.3d 205, 794 N.Y.S.2d 46, 2005 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4763 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2005), app. denied, 2005 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8742 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't Aug. 18, 2005).

16. Change in insured's occupation or employment

Where plaintiff stated in his application that he was a "financial writer and reporter," and the policy provided for reduced liability if insured were injured in more hazardous occupation than that stated, "except . . . while engaged in recreation," and where the classification manual filed prior to plaintiff's application pursuant to this section [now § 3216] stated that an airship operator, builder, owner, experimenter or inventor was not insurable, the plaintiff was not engaged in "recreation" when he was injured while operating a plane which he had constructed with the view to renting it on shares to aviators. Ridgely v Aetna Life Ins. Co., 160 A.D. 719, 145 N.Y.S. 1075, 1914 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4820 (N.Y. App. Div. 1914), aff'd, 217 N.Y. 720, 112 N.E. 1073, 217 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 720, 1916 N.Y. LEXIS 1501 (N.Y. 1916).

In an action on an accident insurance policy, it appeared that the policy was issued to insured at a time when he was employed in a nonhazardous business; that an army officer in field service was not insurable by the defendant; that the insured entered the army as an officer after he had taken out the policy and was killed in field service; that the policy contained a provision that in case a policyholder should change his occupation to a more hazardous one than that stated in the policy, such change would not forfeit the policy but the company's liability thereafter should not exceed such proportion of the principal sum or other indemnity under the policy as the premium paid would purchase at the rate fixed by the company for such increased hazard, in accordance with the classification of risks and rates, and that under said classification the limits of the risk of the company applicable to an army officer in field service were stated. Under defendant's classification of occupation of army officer in full service as an extra hazardous risk, plaintiff was entitled to recover the amount of insurance which the premiums paid would purchase under a schedule for extra hazardous employment. Gillies v Preferred Acc. Ins. Co., 203 A.D. 588, 197 N.Y.S. 51, 1922 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7252 (N.Y. App. Div. 1922).

A physician's action to recover proceeds pursuant to disability insurance policies would be dismissed where, after his heart attack and stroke, the physician had been limited to teaching, administration, and supervisory responsibilities, and where he could not be deemed totally disabled despite the fact that he no longer engaged in private practice. Taterka v Nationwide Mut. Ins. Co., 91 A.D.2d 568, 457 N.Y.S.2d 53, 1982 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 19395 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1982), aff'd, 59 N.Y.2d 743, 463 N.Y.S.2d 441, 450 N.E.2d 247, 1983 N.Y. LEXIS 3095 (N.Y. 1983).

Insured was not entitled to recover under disability policy after she developed rheumatoid arthritis and was forced to discontinue her occupation as flight attendant where she thereafter engaged in occupation as restaurant manager; although insured claimed that she received no wages or compensation, that she managed restaurant for therapeutic gain, and that she was supported by family members, she obtained SBA loan for restaurant, lived above restaurant, and negotiated lease whereby restaurant paid all expenses of building. Centennial Life Ins. Co. v Scherrer, 191 A.D.2d 298, 594 N.Y.S.2d 768, 1993 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2590 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1993).

17. Effect of other benefits covering same or similar losses

Where a policy of insurance against a disability preventing plaintiff from carrying on his occupation as a physician contains a clause practically identical with subd (d) ¶ (2) clause 17 [now § 3216(d)(2)(D)], the clause does not cover life insurance policies in other companies with disability clauses, where such policies carried by plaintiff do not cover same loss as policy in suit. Oglesby v Massachusetts Acc. Co., 230 A.D. 361, 244 N.Y.S. 576, 1930 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8615 (N.Y. App. Div. 1930).

Hospital patient, eligible for medicare as well as benefits under private policy which paid for other medical charges not covered by medicare benefits which were paid to the hospital, was not entitled to recover from his private insurer for the amount that medicare paid directly to hospital even though patient was nominal debtor to hospital in event medicare defaulted in payment, since insurance contract called for insured to pay only those charges for which patient was legally obligated to pay. Seligman v Guardian Life Ins. Co., 59 A.D.2d 859, 399 N.Y.S.2d 121, 1977 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 14018 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1977), app. dismissed, 44 N.Y.2d 646, 1978 N.Y. LEXIS 4371 (N.Y. 1978), app. dismissed, 44 N.Y.2d 838, 406 N.Y.S.2d 759, 378 N.E.2d 122, 1978 N.Y. LEXIS 2037 (N.Y. 1978), app. dismissed, 44 N.Y.2d 851, 1978 N.Y. LEXIS 4706 (N.Y. 1978).

In action to determine which of 2 health insurance plans was primarily liable to reimburse medical expenses incurred by patient during period of time when he was retired and eligible for Medicaid, court erred in granting summary judgment to plan which covered patient as dependent under his wife's insurance, thereby effectively declaring that plan administrator had properly determined that such plan was secondary to plan that covered patient in connection with his former employment, where both plans excluded coverage in event of patient's eligibility for Medicaid, and triable questions of fact existed as to who was at fault for administrator's lack of awareness of patient's status as retired and eligible for Medicaid. Cooperative Health Ins. Fund v Blue Cross & Blue Shield, 237 A.D.2d 963, 654 N.Y.S.2d 895, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3562 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1997), reh'g denied, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6465 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't May 30, 1997).

A life insurance policy providing for double indemnity in the case of accidental death does not cover the "same loss" as a health and accident policy containing the standard provision that the payment of death benefits thereunder shall be pro-rated where the insured carried other insurance with another company "covering the same loss". Thomas v Mutual Ben. Health & Acci. Asso., 123 F. Supp. 167, 1954 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 3125 (D.N.Y. 1954), aff'd, 220 F.2d 17, 1955 U.S. App. LEXIS 3296 (2d Cir. N.Y. 1955).

18. Maternity care

Insurance carriers and their trade association, challenging the constitutionality of chapter 843 of the Laws of 1976 [now § 3216(i)(10)], which mandates the inclusion of maternity care coverage in health and accident insurance policies issued after January 1, 1977, and which was enacted to remedy the absence of adequate insurance coverage for rapidly rising maternity care costs falling on young families usually of moderate income, have failed to establish that the chapter is unfair, unjust or arbitrary and thus a deprivation of due process; the choice of means to meet the objective of making maternity care coverage widely available was within the legislative prerogative, and, absent an unconstitutional selection, the wisdom of the Legislature in exercising its discriminating authority is beyond the scope of judicial review. Health Ins. Asso. v Harnett, 44 N.Y.2d 302, 405 N.Y.S.2d 634, 376 N.E.2d 1280, 1978 N.Y. LEXIS 1940 (N.Y. 1978).

Chapter 843 of the Laws of 1976 [now § 3216(i)(10)], which mandates the inclusion of maternity care coverage in health and accident insurance policies issued after January 1, 1977, is not unconstitutional as to its substantive provisions, but may not constitutionally require the addition of such coverage to policies in existence before that date and thereafter renewed, if the renewal is at the option of the insured alone without the consent of the insurer. Health Ins. Asso. v Harnett, 44 N.Y.2d 302, 405 N.Y.S.2d 634, 376 N.E.2d 1280, 1978 N.Y. LEXIS 1940 (N.Y. 1978).

Chapter 843 of the Laws of 1976 [now § 3216(i)(10)], which mandates the inclusion of maternity care coverage in health and accident insurance policies written, altered, amended or renewed after January 1, 1977, may not constitutionally be applied to policies issued before its effective date as "guaranteed renewable policies", i.e., policies renewable at the sole option of the insured, because of the constitutional restrictions on impairment of obligations of contracts. Health Ins. Asso. v Harnett, 44 N.Y.2d 302, 405 N.Y.S.2d 634, 376 N.E.2d 1280, 1978 N.Y. LEXIS 1940 (N.Y. 1978).

If parent does not add newborn infant within prescribed 30-day period following delivery, HMO is only required to provide inpatient hospital coverage for mother and newborn infant for at least 48 hours after vaginal birth and at least 96 hours after caesarean birth. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 08-04-15.

19. Nursing care

Insurer was entitled to summary judgment declaring that insured was not entitled to benefits under "long term care insurance nursing home indemnity policy," where facility to which she moved after suffering stroke was not licensed to operate as nursing home and thus did not meet policy definition of "nursing home," but rather operated as apartment building offering apartments with range of amenities and optional in-home care services at additional charge. Gregg by Gregg v IDS Life Ins. Co., 261 A.D.2d 799, 692 N.Y.S.2d 182, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5551 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1999).

Plaintiff was entitled to preliminary injunction, compelling health insurer to pay for nursing care required by plaintiff as result of 1989 stroke, and to provide such coverage pending action, on basis that insurer was equitably estopped from claiming that its 1983 group policy with plaintiff's employer and corresponding benefits booklet, under which lifetime benefits vested on onset of covered disability, were superseded by 1989 insurance contract terminating disability benefits within year or 2 of termination of contract, since (1) irreparable injury to be sustained by plaintiff from lack of nursing care would be more burdensome than defendant's payments, and (2) preliminary injunction would not alter status quo, in that defendant initially paid full benefits and plaintiff was simply seeking to have them continued. Kimm v Blue Cross & Blue Shield, 160 Misc. 2d 97, 608 N.Y.S.2d 385, 1993 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 575 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1993).

In action to compel defendant health insurer to pay for nursing care required by plaintiff as result of 1989 stroke, defendant was equitably estopped to claim that its 1983 group policy with plaintiff's employer and corresponding benefits booklet, under which lifetime benefits vested on onset of covered disability, were superseded by 1989 insurance contract terminating disability benefits within year or 2 of termination of contract, where plaintiff was not provided with copy of 1989 contract or new benefits booklet conforming thereto which would have alerted covered members to important difference between 1983 and 1989 coverages. Kimm v Blue Cross & Blue Shield, 160 Misc. 2d 97, 608 N.Y.S.2d 385, 1993 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 575 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1993).

20. Medically prescribed procedures

Health insurer should have been granted summary judgment dismissing action by insured to recover reimbursement for cost of massage therapy since applicable plan expressly excluded coverage for medical expenses that insurer determined were not medically necessary, and insured's affidavit merely contended that therapy was prescribed for neck and back problems but did not argue that any medical diagnosis existed to support such conclusion. Wait v Metropolitan Life Ins. Co., 168 A.D.2d 867, 564 N.Y.S.2d 535, 1990 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 15762 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1990).

Insurer was obligated to pay for blood laboratory work ordered by insured's physician as aid to ordering treatment or therapy where (1) health insurance policy provided for coverage of "reasonable and customary charges" for covered medical services performed or supplies prescribed by doctor due to sickness, (2) it was shown that insured displayed symptoms requiring treatment by physician, (3) insured's physician was duly licensed, and (4) there was no claim that physician's approach of treating whole person, with biochemical methods and emphasis on elemental deficiencies and food allergies, was experimental or that he was not practicing medicine; however, insurer had right to prove that charges for services were excessive. Tudor v Metropolitan Life Ins. Co., 143 Misc. 2d 180, 539 N.Y.S.2d 690, 1989 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 189 (N.Y. Dist. Ct. 1989).

Claimants were entitled to reimbursement under their health insurance policies for medically prescribed visual stimulation therapy provided to their visually impaired child at their home by special education teacher of blind and partially sighted, notwithstanding insurers' assertions that teacher was not licensed to render such therapy, that her services could only be rendered in public school, and that such therapy was not covered medical service, since teacher's certification was sufficiently broad to encompass rendering of visual stimulation therapy and did not mandate that services be rendered only at schools, and claimants' medical experts established that early intervention of visual stimulation therapy was medically necessary for child. Saxe v Metropolitan Life Ins. Co., 152 Misc. 2d 635, 577 N.Y.S.2d 570, 1991 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 694 (N.Y. Civ. Ct. 1991).

Terms of health insurance policy were sufficiently broad to provide coverage for replacement hairpiece prescribed by plaintiff's treating physician where policy provided coverage for prosthetic appliances to support or replace part or all of body function. Zuckerman v Empire Blue Cross & Blue Shield, 155 Misc. 2d 271, 598 N.Y.S.2d 665, 1993 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 183 (N.Y. App. Term 1993).

Insured was entitled to recover under health insurance policy for cost of special visual therapy teacher for his daughter where insurer denied coverage on ground that such teacher was not "Provider" as defined in policy, but did not controvert insured's allegation that daughter's condition could be treated only by visual therapy, which could be provided only by visual therapy teacher; insurer's denial of coverage violated 11 NYCRR § 52.16, which does not list daughter's condition among permissible exclusions. Saxe v Metropolitan Life Ins. Co., 169 Misc. 2d 363, 650 N.Y.S.2d 66, 1996 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 415 (N.Y. App. Term 1996).

CaminoPro drink (used to treat Phenylketonuria, or "PKU") is "enteral formula" under CLS Ins § 4303(y), not modified solid food; while § 4303(y) does not specifically define "enteral formula," common definitions do not exclude orally administered formulas, and include both formulas "taken" by mouth and formulas administered via feeding tube. NY Ins Dep't Gen Counsel, Opinion No. 10-12-03, 2010 NY Insurance GC Opinions LEXIS 79.

21. Consequential damages

Plaintiff's request for consequential damages arising out of need to sell home and incur relocation costs in order to pay medical and hospital bills would be denied in action for breach of health insurance contract since such damages were not foreseeable or within contemplation of parties at time of contract. White v Blue Cross & Blue Shield, 146 Misc. 2d 125, 549 N.Y.S.2d 598, 1989 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 821 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1989).

Plaintiff's request for consequential damages arising out of need to sell home and incur relocation costs in order to pay medical and hospital bills would be denied in action for breach of health insurance contract since such damages were not foreseeable or within contemplation of parties at time of contract. White v Blue Cross & Blue Shield, 146 Misc. 2d 125, 549 N.Y.S.2d 598, 1989 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 821 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1989).

Plaintiff's request for damages for emotional distress and loss of reputation would be stricken from complaint in action for breach of health insurance contract, since such damages are not recoverable in breach of contract suits. White v Blue Cross & Blue Shield, 146 Misc. 2d 125, 549 N.Y.S.2d 598, 1989 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 821 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1989).

22. Punitive damages

In action for reimbursement of portion of expense of 3-month hospitalization for treatment of eating disorder, depression and drug abuse which was commenced after insurer reimbursed insured for first 30 days of hospitalization but denied reimbursement for remainder of hospital stay, insurer was entitled to summary judgment dismissing claim for punitive damages since there was nothing to support plaintiff's assertion that insurer systematically denied reimbursement for treatment of eating disorders, and insurer's general practice was to reimburse eating disorder claims insofar as they required acute medical treatment but to deny reimbursement for nonacute treatment. DiBlasi v Blue Cross of Western New York, Inc., 156 A.D.2d 986, 548 N.Y.S.2d 829, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 16174 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1989).

In class action for wrongful termination of health insurance coverage, plaintiffs were not entitled to amend complaint to add claim for punitive damages where (1) punitive damages could not be sought for those causes of action that were based on insurers' failure to provide advance notice of termination or, because of class nature of action, in connection with plaintiffs' CLS Gen Bus § 349 claim, (2) although plaintiffs might have shown that termination of coverage could have devastating results, their assertions of reckless procedures by insurers were essentially claims that insurers did not deal with them and other members of their class in good faith, and (3) such claims were insufficient to allege separate tort, independent of plaintiffs' breach of contract claims, on which claim for punitive damages might be based. Makastchian v Oxford Health Plans, Inc., 281 A.D.2d 197, 721 N.Y.S.2d 351, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2208 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2001).

Plaintiff's claim for punitive damages would be sustained in action for breach of health insurance contract where defendant's admittedly improper denial of reimbursement for medical and hospital expenses resulted in plaintiff's loss of home and car and eventual need to leave country, and flawed review procedures pursuant to which defendant denied plaintiff's claim constituted wrong not merely to plaintiff but to public in general. White v Blue Cross & Blue Shield, 146 Misc. 2d 125, 549 N.Y.S.2d 598, 1989 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 821 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1989).

23. Attorneys' fees

In action for breach of health insurance contract, under which defendant insurer admitted improperly denying coverage, plaintiff's request for attorneys' fees would not be stricken, notwithstanding rule that such fees are generally not available in breach of contract suits, since plaintiff had viable claim for punitive damages and attorneys' fees may be recovered as part of such claim. White v Blue Cross & Blue Shield, 146 Misc. 2d 125, 549 N.Y.S.2d 598, 1989 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 821 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1989).

White v Blue Cross & Blue Shield, 146 Misc. 2d 125, 549 N.Y.S.2d 598, 1989 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 821 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1989).

24. Miscellaneous

Insurance company was entitled to summary judgment in action for payment of benefits under accident insurance policy where insured was killed by police when they attempted to execute arrest warrant after identifying themselves, and returned fire after insured shot at them; plaintiff's contention that insurer's cross motion for summary judgment should have been denied because she had not yet deposed officers would be rejected since, having moved for summary judgment herself, she could not be heard to complain that cross motion was premature, and assertion that testimony of officers at examination before trial might vary from their sworn statements was highly speculative and improbable. Krulls v Hartford Accident & Indem. Co., 144 A.D.2d 744, 535 N.Y.S.2d 157, 1988 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10910 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1988).

Defendant insurance company was entitled to summary judgment in action to recover insurance proceeds under casualty insurance policy where plaintiff executor refused to appear for examination under oath and thereby materially breached insurance contract. Silver v General Accident Ins. Co., 203 A.D.2d 354, 609 N.Y.S.2d 674, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3743 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1994).

Plaintiff's health insurance carrier was not entitled to intervene in plaintiff's personal injury action under CLS CPLR §§ 1012 or 1013 where insurance policy limited its right to recover from third parties to amounts paid to insured through settlements or satisfied judgments, which specifically identified amounts paid for health care services; intervention of medical providers could unduly complicate and delay determination of personal injury actions, and submission of issues to jury relating to plaintiff's compensation from collateral sources could prejudice plaintiff's case. Humbach v Goldstein, 229 A.D.2d 64, 653 N.Y.S.2d 950, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1603 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1997), app. dismissed, 91 N.Y.2d 921, 669 N.Y.S.2d 263, 692 N.E.2d 132, 1998 N.Y. LEXIS 149 (N.Y. 1998).

Where subscribers to health care policy offered by defendant insurers sought declaratory and injunctive relief on theories of breach of contract, negligent misrepresentation, promissory estoppel, waiver, common-law fraud and deceptive trade practices, court properly determined that action should be prosecuted as class action because (1) all policyholders were affected by question of whether defendants' general practice of terminating policies for nonpayment of premiums without notice violated policies, and (2) any questions relating to individual reliance, causation and damages were relatively insignificant in view of essentially declaratory nature of relief sought. Makastchian v Oxford Health Plans, Inc., 270 A.D.2d 25, 704 N.Y.S.2d 44, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2581 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2000).

Plaintiffs, who were members of defendants' health maintenance organization and whose son had Crohn's Disease, failed to state cause of action under CLS Gen Bus § 349 based on fact that, after putting on television commercial featuring case in which they flew child with Crohn's Disease to "The Cleveland Clinic," defendants told plaintiffs that "The Cleveland Clinic" was not available to enrollees in New York; ad in question would not have conveyed to reasonable consumer that treatment at "The Cleveland Clinic" would be considered for every enrollee with Crohn's Disease. Maltz v Aetna U. S. Healthcare, Inc., 270 A.D.2d 68, 704 N.Y.S.2d 562, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2608 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2000).

Insurance broker was not entitled to summary judgment dismissing disability insurer's cause of action for indemnification, and judgment would be modified to reinstate it, even though broker was not responsible for making disability payments to insured, where (1) key element of common-law action for indemnification is not duty running from indemnitor to injured party but, rather, separate duty owed indemnitee by indemnitor, and (2) at least, broker, as insurer's agent, owed insurer duty to report truthfully regarding information requested on applications, which specifically included existence of other disability policies held by prospective insured. Equitable Life Assur. Soc'y of the U.S. v Werner, 286 A.D.2d 632, 730 N.Y.S.2d 329, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8816 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2001).

In a discovery proceeding, where executrix, widow of deceased airplane pilot, seeks payment of $25,000 under insurance policy, naming no beneficiaries, and where insurer is acting as stakeholder because of controversy between widow and guardian ad litem on behalf of decedent's two children, Court rejected widow's contention that the policy was an "accident and health insurance" policy with indemnity for loss of life payable, in the absence of a designated beneficiary, to decedent's estate, and agreed with guardian ad litem's position that policy was within statutory definition of "motor vehicle and aircraft insurance", which, by providing benefits for crew member and providing that persons having a cause of action for death shall execute a release of all claims, was interpreted as meaning that the payment was one for the wrongful death of decedent and the proceeds were payable to those who suffered a pecuniary loss, the widow and children. In re Gilly's Estate, 66 Misc. 2d 894, 322 N.Y.S.2d 742, 1971 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1484 (N.Y. Sur. Ct. 1971).

Court would order insurer to reimburse insured for cost of special teacher as medically necessary expense for insured's child who suffered from cortical visual impairment, even though special teacher was not "provider" within meaning of policy as "any doctor, dentist, nurse, chiropractor, certified nurse service, or facility legally licensed to perform a covered medical service," since (1) no provider who would be covered by insured's definition existed for such special problem, (2) insurer had never said that medically necessary expenses required for treatment of such problem were excluded from policy, and (3) services required by insured's child could be provided only by special education teacher who was specially trained to provide necessary visual therapy services. Saxe v Metropolitan Life Ins. Co., 162 Misc. 2d 513, 618 N.Y.S.2d 180, 1994 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 453 (N.Y. Civ. Ct. 1994), aff'd, 169 Misc. 2d 363, 650 N.Y.S.2d 66, 1996 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 415 (N.Y. App. Term 1996).

Health insurer that paid medical benefits to injured plaintiff under her father's group health insurance plan, for injuries sustained in accident allegedly caused by defendants, was not entitled to intervene in personal injury action against defendants for purpose of pursuing its equitable subrogation rights to recoup covered medical expenses awarded by jury, because plaintiffs would be precluded under CLS CPLR § 4545 from recovering from defendants any medical benefits previously provided to injured plaintiff from collateral sources; however, insurer would be allowed to intervene for limited purpose of asserting its equitable subrogation rights as to covered medical expenses, if any, included in terms of any settlement, and would have concomitant right to appear and be heard on proceeding brought to obtain court approval of any settlement. Niemann v Luca, 168 Misc. 2d 1023, 645 N.Y.S.2d 401, 1996 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 218 (N.Y. Sup. Ct.), amended, 168 Misc. 2d 1023 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1996).

Adult care facility was required to credit decedent's estate for difference between daily rate of $457 guaranteed by respondent (decedent's spouse) and daily rate of $1,278 billed to and received from respondent's insurance carrier, even though insurance carrier was not party to contract between respondent and facility, as respondent's insurance coverage had enabled facility to collect higher payments, and facility would receive windfall of difference between its agreed daily rate with respondent and daily rate received from insurance carrier, unless amount received from carrier were applied to reduce obligation of decedent's estate. In re Estate of Breen, 171 Misc. 2d 905, 656 N.Y.S.2d 122, 1997 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 81 (N.Y. Sur. Ct. 1997).

Plaintiff's insurer was not entitled or permitted to intervene in medical malpractice action wherein plaintiff asked court to approve proposed compromise and settlement of her claim and declare what percentage of settlement insurer should receive as subrogor, as insurer's interests were adequately represented by plaintiff, consolidation of plaintiff's personal injury claim with insurer's contractual indemnification claim would dehumanize plaintiff's sufferings, and consolidation could also prejudice defendants by introducing evidence of insurer's payment of medical expenses. Johnson v Edwards, 173 Misc. 2d 907, 662 N.Y.S.2d 443, 1997 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 407 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1997).

Insurer's alleged breach of obligation to pay disability insurance benefits, and its use of agent on 2 occasions to contact health care professionals in alleged effort to interfere with physician-patient relationship, did not demonstrate that it had national policy to terminate unprofitable disability policies, and thus did not support insured's claim under CLS Gen Bus 349. Magee v Paul Revere Life Ins. Co., 954 F. Supp. 582, 1997 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 1803 (E.D.N.Y. 1997)).

New York Insurance Law does not prohibit for-profit insurers that issue accident and health insurance from paying brokers or agents bonuses or other compensation in addition to ordinary commissions paid for facilitating sale of insurance; however, bonuses or other additional compensation to be paid, and criteria established for making such pay ments, must be filed with Insurance Department for Superintendent's approval, in accordance with statutes and regulations relating thereto. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 00-10-02.

Neither New York Insurance Law nor regulations promulgated thereunder obligated insurer to honor assignment of benefits request made by insured, wherein payment of health services under health insurance policy would go directly to provider of health services, and not to insured; however, New York common law might place duty on insurer to adhere to assignment of benefits request. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 00-11-06.

Whether physician group could charge administrative fee to patient for collection of patient's co-payment fee that was charged at time of delivery of service which was not paid would depend on whether or not charging of administrative fee was stated in "certificate of coverage" which was approved by Insurance Department; if certificate of coverage did not state that administrative fee could be charged in event that patient neglected to pay co-payment at time of service, then it could not be charged to patient. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 01-03-21.

Managed care organization that issues contract in New York is not required to cover court ordered services (i.e. psychological evaluations) for at-risk juvenile beyond limits of its policy or contract. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 01-04-02.

Privacy regulations under 11 NYCRR Parts 410 and 421 do not apply to Prepaid Health Service Plan (PHSP) providing coverage to Medicaid beneficiaries, or to PHSP providing coverage under Family Health Plus program, but they do apply to PHSP issuing coverage under Child Health Plus program. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 02-04-29.

"Prudent layperson" standard of CLS Ins § 4303(a)(2) would apply to all services rendered in emergency department; however, since statute by its terms only regulates coverage decisions in policies and contracts insuring in-patient hospital care, standard does not serve to provide coverage that would not otherwise exist. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 02-07-10.

Whether denial such as "physician build emergency room services are not covered, except for CPR when performed in the emergency room" would be in contravention of Regulation 62 is dependent on coverage provided under policy or contract. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 02-07-10.

There is no prohibition in New York Insurance Law against use of credit card to pay premium on long-term care insurance policy. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 02-09-08.

Group contract issued by health service corporation must cover annual mammography screening for individuals over age 50, except for contract issued to cover employees employed in more than one state. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 02-09-09.

Existing individual health insurance policy will automatically provide coverage to adopted child, provided insured purchased, or now purchases, family coverage. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 02-09-10.

Recognition of same sex marriages and civil unions lawfully entered into in other jurisdictions will have no impact on criteria applied to individuals seeking coverage as domestic partners. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 04-05-25.

Registration of domestic partnership, such as is authorized in New York City (NYC Admin Code §§ 3-240 et seq.) would constitute strong evidence of mutual interdependence for purposes of policies that extend coverage to those "dependent" or "chiefly dependent" on insured (i.e., in case of group policies written by commercial insurer, non-profit insurer or HMO, or in case of individual policies written by commercial insurer). Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 04-05-25.

Coverage of either in-patient or out-patient hospital care is not necessary condition precedent for imposition of mandated benefits in accident and health insurance policies since there are mandated benefits that do not have such condition, for which see CLS Ins §§ 3216, 3221, and 4235. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 04-07-09.

With respect to disability income insurance, insurer may, in lieu of declining application, exclude disabilities caused by preexisting chronic condition. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 05-06-10.

While insurer may impose preexisting condition exclusion in disability income policy, it may decide in exercise of its underwriting judgment that increased morbidity from particular preexisting condition is so much in excess of other causes of disability that exclusion would swallow coverage and, in such situations, insurer may decide to reject all applicants with that preexisting condition; in alternative, insurer may validly decide that cost of determining whether disability was caused by preexisting condition outweighs premium being charged for disability income policy and opt to reject all applicants with that preexisting condition. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 05-06-10.

Different standard for determining whether to admit chiropractor to HMO network would not be violative of L 1997, ch 426 given limited range of services that may be provided by chiropractor (CLS Educ § 6551), as contrasted with scope of practice of physician (CLS Educ § 6521). Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 05-06-12.

"Withholds" as defined by 11 NYCRR § 101.3(l), are recognized form of sharing of financial risk between managed care organizations and participating health care providers; since they are utilized with wide range of health care providers, they are not violation of L 1997, ch 426. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 05-06-12.

Managed care organization would not be in violation of L 1997, ch 426 if it reimburses participating health care providers at level less than that utilized by Center for Medicare and Medicaid Services (CMS) of United States Department of Health and Human Services since there is no methodology or fee schedule mandated by statute or regulation for calculation of reimbursement by health insurers or Health Maintenance Organizations (HMOs) of chiropractors. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 05-06-12.

Insurer which provides prescription drug coverage may not refuse to reimburse insured or subscriber for prescription drug because health care provider prescribing drug (optometrist) does not have registration number issued by federal Drug Enforcement Administration (DEA), since optometrists are not authorized to prescribe controlled substances in New York, and thus they are not subject to registration by DEA. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 05-10-11.

Trial court erred in granting an insured's cross-motion for summary judgment as to two claims concerning a disability insurance policy, because a relation of earnings to insurance clause in the policy complied with all of the requirements of N.Y. Ins. Law § 3216, thus defeating the insured's claims. Friedman v Connecticut Gen. Life Ins. Co., 30 A.D.3d 349, 818 N.Y.S.2d 201, 2006 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8531 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2006), app. denied, 2006 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12070 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't Oct. 3, 2006), app. dismissed, 8 N.Y.3d 875, 832 N.Y.S.2d 485, 864 N.E.2d 615, 2007 N.Y. LEXIS 195 (N.Y. 2007), aff'd in part, modified, 9 N.Y.3d 105, 846 N.Y.S.2d 64, 877 N.E.2d 281, 2007 N.Y. LEXIS 2718 (N.Y. 2007).

Under CLS Ins §§ 3216(h)(24), 3221(l)(15) and 4303(aa), ambulance company issued certificate to operate under CLS Pub Health § 3005 may not bill patient directly for prehospital emergency ambulance services where New York authorized insurer or HMO has made partial payment of bill under insurance contract that provides major medical or similar comprehensive-type coverage; however, if such contract is not involved, these provisions do not apply and there is no prohibition in Insurance Law against ambulance company billing patient directly for balance of bill. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 06-06-02.

Medical provider, such as ambulance company issued certificate to operate under CLS Pub Health § 3005, may bill patient directly for prehospital emergency ambulance services where New York authorized insurer or health maintenance organization has denied payment entirely, subject to remedies available to patient. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 06-06-02.

If person were admitted to hospital through emergency room for mental health and chemical dependency and remains in hospital for period of days, there would need to be case-by-case determination by insurer or HMO as to whether to apply medically necessary standard for utilization review rather than prudent lay person standard. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 06-10-02.

Insurance Law and corresponding regulations do not specifically require insurer or HMO to provide ambulance company (which is non-participating provider that renders emergency medical services to patient) with copy of insurance policy or contract so that ambulance company will know amount of copayment and deductible that patient is responsible for under insurance policy or contract and can bill patient accordingly. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 07-02-13.

Although CLS Ins §§ 3216(i)(24), 3221(l)(15), and 4303(aa) refer to term "usual and customary charge," nowhere does Insurance Law or its corresponding regulations define such term; rather, definition of that term ordinarily is set forth in insurance contract between insurer or HMO and insured. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 07-02-13.

Insurance Department has not amended its regulations to permit or require employers to provide health insurance coverage to same-sex couples married outside of New York State. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 07-09-27.

Insurance company that issues managed care product is required to include coverage for chiropractic care if product includes either coverage for physician services in physician's office, or major medical or similar comprehensive-type coverage. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 07-09-29.

Managed care plan, HMO or insurer may not deny claim for covered service after predetermined number of visits to doctor of chiropractic, or impose pre-authorization requirements, if managed care plan, HMO or insurer would not deny same claim, or impose pre-authorization requirements where service was rendered by practitioner other than doctor of chiropractic. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 08-05-16.

Third party administrator, utilization review agent, IPA or other contract entity acting as agent for managed care plan, HMO or insurer may not issue adverse determination to doctor of chiropractic, whereby denial is made or prior approval is required after certain number of visits for doctor of chiropractic when, under similar circumstances, denial would not be made or preapproval would not otherwise be required for another health care provider rendering same or similar services. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 08-05-16.

CLS Ins § 4303(x)(1) and related statutes do not require insurer to pay claim for facility fee for post-mastectomy breast reconstruction surgery performed in physician's office. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 08-06-07.

In determining whether to cover visit to hospital Emergency Department, insurer, including health maintenance organization (HMO), must utilize "prudent lay person" standard; in determining whether to cover in-patient admission and subsequent hospital stay, insurer must utilize "medical necessity" standard. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 08-07-07.

CLS Ins § 4303(x) and related statutes prohibit insurer from applying its utilization review process to post-mastectomy breast reconstruction because statute mandates coverage for breast reconstruction surgery that is performed in manner determined by attending physician and patient to be appropriate. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 08-07-18.

CLS Ins § 4303(x) and related statutes apply to request or claim for breast reconstruction surgery that follows successful completion of all stages of initial post-mastectomy breast reconstruction. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 08-07-18.

CLS Ins §§ 3216(i)(24), 3221(l)(15) and 4303(aa) require insurer, in absence of participating provider contract, to pay for certain ambulance services at usual and customary or reasonable (UCR) rate, which insurers typically establish using claims data collected by insurer (or data purchased by data collection agency) and set forth in insurance policy or contract. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 08-07-20.

Insurance Law explicitly prohibits ambulance company from "balance billing" patient when authorized New York insurer or HMO that provides major medical or similar comprehensive-type coverage has made to it partial payment. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 08-07-20.

Agency Opinions

1. In general

Section 107 [now § 3216] prescribing standard provisions for accident and health policies was enacted in 1910, that is four years after the statutes of 1906 required participation by all policies in a surplus of any corporation which did participating business. We have, therefore, a legislative interpretation in 1910 that the provisions § 107 [now § 3216] do not require participation by accident and health policies. 1919 NY Ops Atty Gen Jan. 2.

§ 3221. Group or blanket accident and health insurance policies; standard provisions.

* * * * *

(j) No policy of group or blanket accident and health insurance shall be issued as excess coverage for volunteer firefighters over and above the coverage provided for pursuant to the volunteer firefighters' benefit law unless such excess policy provides for each of the types of coverages set forth in subdivision one of section five of such law. Any excess policy which does not contain such provisions shall be construed as if such coverages were embodied therein.

(k) (1) (A) Every group policy delivered or issued for delivery in this state which provides coverage for in-patient hospital care shall provide coverage for home care to residents in this state, except that this provision shall not apply to a policy which covers persons employed in more than one state or the benefit structure of which was the subject of collective bargaining affecting persons who are employed in more than one state. Such home care coverage shall be included at the inception of all new policies and, with respect to all other policies, added at any anniversary date of the policy subject to evidence of insurability.

(B) Such coverage may be subject to an annual deductible of not more than fifty dollars for each person covered under the policy and may be subject to a coinsurance provision which provides for coverage of not less than seventy-five percent of the reasonable charges for such services.

(C) Home care means the care and treatment of a covered person who is under the care of a physician but only if hospitalization or confinement in a nursing facility as defined in subchapter XVIII of the federal Social Security Act, 42 U.S.C. §§ 1395 et seq, would otherwise have been required if home care was not provided, and the plan covering the home health service is established and approved in writing by such physician.

(D) Home care shall be provided by an agency possessing a valid certificate of approval or license issued pursuant to article thirty-six of the public health law and shall consist of one or more of the following:

(i) Part-time or intermittent home nursing care by or under the supervision of a registered professional nurse (R.N.).

(ii) Part-time or intermittent home health aide services which consist primarily of caring for the patient.

(iii) Physical, occupational or speech therapy if provided by the home health service or agency.

(iv) Medical supplies, drugs and medications prescribed by a physician, and laboratory services by or on behalf of a certified home health agency or licensed home care services agency to the extent such items would have been covered under the contract if the covered person had been hospitalized or confined in a skilled nursing facility as defined in subchapter XVIII of the federal Social Security Act, 42 U.S.C. §§ 1395 et seq.

* * * * *

(7) (A) Every group or blanket accident and health insurance policy issued or issued for delivery in this state which provides medical coverage that includes coverage for physician services in a physician's office and every policy which provides major medical or similar comprehensive-type coverage shall include coverage for the following equipment and supplies for the treatment of diabetes, if recommended or prescribed by a physician or other licensed health care provider legally authorized to prescribe under title eight of the education law: blood glucose monitors and blood glucose monitors for the visually impaired, data management systems, test strips for glucose monitors and visual reading and urine testing strips, insulin, injection aids, cartridges for the visually impaired, syringes, insulin pumps and appurtenances thereto, insulin infusion devices, and oral agents for controlling blood sugar. In addition, the commissioner of the department of health shall provide and periodically update by rule or regulation a list of additional diabetes equipment and related supplies such as are medically necessary for the treatment of diabetes, for which there shall also be coverage. Such policies shall also include coverage for diabetes self-management education to ensure that persons with diabetes are educated as to the proper self-management and treatment of their diabetic condition, including information on proper diets. Such coverage for self-management education and education relating to diet shall be limited to visits medically necessary upon the diagnosis of diabetes, where a physician diagnoses a significant change in the patient's symptoms or conditions which necessitate changes in a patient's self-management, or where reeducation or refresher education is necessary. Such education may be provided by the physician or other licensed health care provider legally authorized to prescribe under title eight of the education law, or their staff, as part of an office visit for diabetes diagnosis or treatment, or by a certified diabetes nurse educator, certified nutritionist, certified dietitian or registered dietitian upon the referral of a physician or other licensed health care provider legally authorized to prescribe under title eight of the education law. Education provided by the certified diabetes nurse educator, certified nutritionist, certified dietitian or registered dietitian may be limited to group settings wherever practicable. Coverage for self-management education and education relating to diet shall also include home visits when medically necessary.

(B) Such coverage may be subject to annual deductibles and coinsurance as may be deemed appropriate by the superintendent and as are consistent with those established for other benefits within a given policy; provided however, the total amount that a covered person is required to pay out of pocket for covered prescription insulin drugs shall be capped at an amount not to exceed one hundred dollars per thirty-day supply, regardless of the amount or type of insulin needed to fill such covered person's prescription and regardless of the insured's deductible, copayment, coinsurance or any other cost sharing requirement.

(C) This paragraph shall not apply to a policy which covers persons employed in more than one state or the benefit structure of which was the subject of collective bargaining affecting persons employed in more than one state unless such policy is issued under the New York state health insurance plan established under article eleven of the civil service law or issued to or through a local government.

Laws 1985, ch 369, §§ 18, 19, eff Jan 1, 1986, provides as follows:

§ 18. This act shall apply to a group policy issued outside the state to a trustee or trustees of a fund established or participated in by two or more employers not in the same industry, of the type described in paragraph four of subsection (b) of section four thousand two hundred sixteen or subparagraph (D) of paragraph one of subsection (c) of section four thousand two hundred thirty-five, with respect to an employer principally located within the state, when the coverage for such employer becomes effective under the policy on or after January first, nineteen hundred eighty-six. For employers principally located within the state covered under such a group policy on the effective date of this act, this act shall apply to all certificate holders of that employer on the anniversary date of the effective date of coverage of the employer under the policy occurring on or after January first, nineteen hundred eighty-seven.

§ 19. This act shall take effect January first, nineteen hundred eighty-six and shall be applicable to all policies and contracts issued or delivered on or after such date and to all certificates except as stated in section eighteen of this act, issued or delivered on or after such date, regardless of the effective date of the policies or contracts.

Laws 1987, ch 210, § 3, provides as follows:

§ 3. This act shall take effect on the thirtieth day after it shall have become a law and shall be applicable to all group policies and contracts issued or delivered on or after such effective date and, with respect to those group policies and contracts issued or delivered prior to such effective date, on the date such policies and contracts are renewed, modified, altered or amended.

Laws 1987, ch 306, § 6, eff Sept 1, 1987, provides as follows:

§ 6. This act shall take effect on the first day of September next succeeding the date on which it shall have become a law and shall apply to policies and contracts issued, renewed, modified, altered or amended on or after such date.

Laws 1987, ch 444, § 4, eff Jan 1, 1988, provides in part as follows:

§ 4. This act shall take effect on the first day of January next succeeding the date on which it shall have become a law and shall apply to policies and contracts issued, renewed, modified, altered or amended on or after such date. . . .

Laws 1988, ch 692, § 4, eff Jan 15, 1989, provides as follows:

§ 4. This act shall take effect on the fifteenth day of January next succeeding the date on which it shall have become a law and shall apply according to its terms to all policies and contracts issued or renewed on or after such date.

Laws 1989, ch 417, § 5, eff Jan 1, 1990, provides as follows:

§ 5. This act shall take effect on the first day of January next succeeding the date on which it shall have become a law and shall apply to all policies and contracts issued, renewed, modified, altered or amended on or after such date.

Laws 1989, ch 689, § 11, eff July 22, 1989, provides as follows:

§ 11. This act shall take effect immediately; except that section 4600 and sections 4605 through 4619 of the public health law, as added by section one of this act, and sections three through ten of this act shall take effect January 1, 1990; and provided further that any regulations that are necessary to effectuate the purposes of this act may be promulgated in accordance with the provisions of this act prior to such date.

Laws 1990, ch 853, § 4, eff Jan 1, 1991, provides as follows:

§ 4. This act shall take effect on the first day of January next succeeding the date on which it shall have become a law and shall apply to all policies and contracts issued, renewed, modified, altered or amended on or after such effective date.

Laws 1990, ch 897, § 4, eff Jan 1, 1991, provides as follows:

§ 4. This act shall take effect the first day of January next succeeding the date on which it shall have become a law and shall apply according to its terms to all policies and contracts issued or renewed on or after such date, provided, however, effective immediately the superintendent of insurance is authorized to promulgate regulations to implement the provisions of this act.

Laws 1991, ch 467, § 30, eff July 19, 1991, provides as follows:

§ 30. This act shall take effect immediately; provided, however, that no person who is receiving any benefit on such effective date by reason of his or her active duty in the armed forces of the United States during the period of the Korean conflict shall suffer any diminution of such benefit because of amendments made by this act; and provided further that sections one and two of this act shall take effect on August 1, 1991; and provided further that sections twenty-two through twenty-five of this act shall take effect on January 1, 1992 and shall apply to contracts, policies, and certificates of insurance renewed, issued, modified, altered, or amended on and after such date; sections twenty-seven and twenty-eight of this act shall take effect on the sixtieth day after they have become a law; and provided further that sections eighteen, nineteen, twenty and twenty-one of this act shall be deemed to have been in full force and effect on and after August 2, 1990.

§ 18. Notwithstanding any other provision of law, and specifically those sections of this act that may be applicable to labor organizations or insurers thereof, nothing contained in this act shall be applicable to organizations, associations or trusts maintained pursuant to one or more collective bargaining agreements, including, but not limited to, any trust which qualifies as a Taft Hartley Trust pursuant to Title 29 of the United States Code.

§ 21. This act shall take effect immediately; provided, however, that sections three, five, seven, eight, nine, ten and fifteen shall take effect January 1, 1993 and shall apply to all policies and contracts issued, renewed, modified, altered or amended on or after such date; provided further, that sections two, four, thirteen, fourteen and seventeen shall take effect April 1, 1993, except that (i) these sections shall apply to new policies and contracts delivered and coverage effectuated in this state on or after such date, (ii) new policies and contracts delivered in this state and new coverage effectuated in this state on or after the date this act is signed into law, but on or before March 31, 1993, shall have initial rating periods which terminate March 31, 1993 so that these sections will apply to such policies, contracts and coverages as of April 1, 1993, (iii) these sections shall apply to existing policies and contracts delivered in this state and existing coverage effectuated in this state on or after April 1, 1992 but before the date this act is signed into law at their next renewal rating period, (iv) existing policies and contracts delivered in this state and existing coverage effectuated in this state before April 1, 1992 shall have their next renewal rating period terminate March 31, 1993 so that these sections will apply to such policies, contracts and coverages as of April 1, 1993, and (v) in the case of multi-year rating periods which began prior to the effective date of this act, such sections shall apply as of the next renewal rating period, but if the next renewal rating period begins prior to April 1, 1993 that rating period shall terminate March 31, 1993 so that these sections will apply to such policies and contracts as of April 1, 1993 instead; and provided further, that the superintendent of insurance and the commissioner of health may take all actions necessary prior to the effective date of this act for the purposes of timely implementation of this act.

Laws 1992, ch 771, §§ 1, 5, eff Jan 1, 1993, provide as follows:

Section 1. Legislative findings. The legislature finds and determines that there are thousands of cases of cervical cancer each year and that thousands of women die from the disease; that if detected early, cervical cancer is curable; that there is a general consensus among medical professionals that women who have reached eighteen years of age should have an annual pelvic examination and cervical cytology screening ("Pap smear") to detect the presence of cancerous and pre-cancerous cells; and that if women are not promptly diagnosed and treated, it may ultimately lead to prolonged hospitalization or death from cervical cancer.

§ 5. This act shall take effect on the first day of January next succeeding the date on which it shall have become a law and shall apply according to its terms to all policies and contracts issued or renewed on or after such date.

Laws 1993, ch 378, § 4, eff Jan 1, 1994, provides as follows:

§ 4. This act shall take effect on the first day of January next succeeding the date on which it shall have become a law and shall apply according to its terms to all policies and contracts issued, renewed, modified, altered or amended on, or after, such date.

Laws 1993, ch 380, §§ 1, 5, 6, eff Jan 1, 1994, provide as follows:

Section 1. Legislative intent and findings. The legislature recognizes that the following aminoacidopathies are rare hereditary genetic metabolic disorders: phenylketonuria (PKU), branched-chain ketonuria, galactosemia and homocystinuria. Lacking in these aminoacidopathies is the body's ability to process or metabolize amino acids. If left untreated or without proper therapeutic management, these disorders cause severe mental retardation and chronic physical disabilities. The only form of treatment is by restricting food intake in order to remove the problem amino acids (which are necessary in the diet) and then replenishing them in carefully controlled measured amounts of a nutritional food substitute. For purposes of this section, nutritional food substitute is defined as any specially formulated food substitute (formula) that is medically necessary to enable the body to process or metabolize needed amino acids, used for the therapeutic treatment of rare aminoacidopathies and administered under close medical supervision.

It is the finding of the legislature that in an attempt to encourage the development of new products, increase availability and reduce cost, formulas were removed from the Federal prescription list and reclassified as "medical foods". An unfortunate side effect has been the reluctance of many insurance companies to cover the cost of these formulas. In instances where coverage is provided, it is random and subject to inconsistent interpretation.

It is not the intent of this legislation to require insurance coverage for normal food products used in the dietary management of these disorders, but to provide for such coverage of formulas that are equivalent to a prescription drug, medically necessary for the therapeutic treatment of such rare hereditary genetic metabolic disorders and administered under the direction of a physician.

In recognition by the legislature that such formulas are medically necessary and critical to the well-being of individuals afflicted with rare hereditary genetic metabolic disorders, it shall be required that every health insurance policy issued in this state shall include such coverage.

§ 5. The superintendent of insurance is authorized to promulgate regulations to implement the provisions of this act.

§ 6. This act shall take effect on the first day of January next succeeding the date on which it shall have become a law and shall apply according to its terms to all policies and contracts issued or renewed on or after such date.

Laws 1993, ch 677, § 6, eff Aug 4, 1993, provides as follows:

§ 6. This act shall take effect immediately, except that sections one and five of this act shall apply to all contracts, policies and certificates issued, renewed, modified, altered or amended on or after such date; and sections three and four of this act shall take effect September 1, 1993 and shall apply to all contracts, policies and certificates issued, renewed, modified, altered or amended on or after such date.

Laws 1993, ch 728, § 4, eff April 1, 1994, provides as follows:

§ 4. This act shall take effect on the first day of April next succeeding the date on which it shall have become a law and shall apply to all policies and contracts issued, renewed, modified, altered or amended on or after such date.

Laws 1996, ch 56, §§ 1 and 8, eff Jan 1, 1997, provide as follows:

Section 1. Legislative findings and intent. The legislature finds that certain health insurance carriers, health maintenance organizations, health plans, and hospitals have been restricting maternity coverage and care with respect to the length of hospital stay following delivery in ways that jeopardize the life and health of mothers and newborns and violate reasonable professional standards. The provisions of this act are necessary to provide a reasonable and uniform standard of coverage and care to protect the public health.

The provisions of this act relating to home visits are intended to insure that in those instances where a mother chooses to leave the hospital earlier than the time periods specified in the act, she and the newborn will still receive the full scope of appropriate professional maternity care.

The intent of this act is to require maternity inpatient care providers to offer care, and third-party payers to provide coverage for care, as set out in this act. This act shall not be construed (i) to limit a mother's choice of care for herself and her newborn, (ii) to permit the mother's maternity care coverage to be affected by her choice of care, or (iii) to limit a provider's ability to make reasonable arrangements for care consistent with this act.

§ 8. This act shall take effect January 1, 1997 and shall apply to all policies and contracts issued, renewed, modified, altered or amended on or after such effective date; provided, however, that any regulations necessary for the implementation of this act on its effective date shall be promulgated on or before such effective date.

Laws 1996, ch 705, § 21, eff Oct 9, 1996, provides as follows:

1. Sections three, four, twelve and fourteen of this act, sections 4801 and 4803 of the insurance law, as added by section fifteen of this act, and section twenty of this act shall take effect January 1, 1997.

2. Sections one, two, six, seven, eight, nine, ten, eleven, and thirteen of this act, sections 4802 and 4804 of the insurance law, as added by section fifteen of this act, and sections sixteen, seventeen, eighteen, and nineteen of this act shall take effect April 1, 1997, and shall apply to all policies and contracts issued, renewed, modified, altered or amended on or after such effective date.

Laws 1997, ch 20, § 6, eff Jan 1, 1998, provides as follows:

§ 6. This act shall take effect January 1, 1998, and sections one through three of this act shall apply to all policies and contracts issued, renewed, modified, altered or amended on or after such date.

Laws 1997, ch 21, § 4, eff Jan 1, 1998, provides as follows:

§ 4. This act shall take effect January 1, 1998, and sections one through three of this act shall apply to all policies and contracts issued, renewed, modified, altered or amended on or after such date.

Laws 1997, ch 177, § 7, eff Dec 25, 1997, provides as follows:

§ 7. This act shall take effect on the one hundred eightieth day after it shall have become a law, and shall apply to all policies and contracts issued, renewed, modified, altered, or amended on or after such date.

Laws 1997, ch 426, §§ 1 and 7, eff Jan 1, 1998, provide as follows:

Section 1. Legislative intent. The legislature recognizes that multiple health professions are trained and licensed to diagnose and treat the same or similar conditions through the use of modalities, therapies, services and philosophies that vary from profession to profession. It is the specific intent of this legislature to assure that health insurance policies, plans and contracts that provide coverage for the diagnosis and treatment of conditions, complaints, ailments, disorders or injuries by any health care profession, that may be diagnosed and treated by a doctor of chiropractic, must provide access to and equivalent coverage for the diagnosis and treatment of those conditions, complaints, ailments, disorders or injuries by a duly licensed doctor of chiropractic, within the lawful scope of chiropractic practice even if different terminology, philosophy, services, treatments or modalities are used by the various health professions; and such equivalent coverage shall not be abridged by any regulation heretofore promulgated or to be promulgated.

§ 7. This act shall take effect January 1, 1998 and shall apply to policies and contracts issued, renewed, modified, altered or amended on or after such date; provided, however, that subparagraph (B) of paragraph 21 of subsection (i) of section 3216, subparagraph (B) of paragraph 11 of subsection (k) of section 3221 and of paragraph (2) of subsection (y) of section 4303 of the insurance law, as added by sections two, three and four of this act shall expire and be deemed repealed on December 31, 1999; and upon such date the provisions of subparagraph (C) of paragraph 21 of subsection (i) of section 3216, subparagraph (C) of paragraph 11 of subsection (k) of section 3221 and of paragraph (3) of subsection (y) of section 4303 of the insurance law, as added by sections two, three and four of this act, shall take effect.

Laws 1997, ch 659, §§ 1 and 2, eff Sept 24, 1997, provide as follows:

Section 1. Legislative purpose. The purpose of this act is to facilitate the creation of the necessary components for the development of a broader and more integrated continuum of long term care, financed by a range of private, public and public/private options.

§ 2. This act may be cited as the "Long Term Care Integration and Finance Act of 1997".

§ 2. This act may be cited as the "Long Term Care Integration and Finance Act of 1997".

Laws 1997, ch 661, § 23, eff Sept 24, 1997, provide as follows:

§ 23. This act shall take effect immediately and shall be deemed to have been in full force and effect on and after July 1, 1997 and sections two through nine, eleven, thirteen through twenty, and twenty-two of this act shall apply to all policies and contracts issued, renewed, modified, altered or amended on or after such date.

Laws 1998, ch 495, § 4, eff July 29, 1998, provides as follows:

§ 4. This act shall take effect immediately and shall apply to all policies and contracts issued, renewed, altered or modified on and after such date.

Laws 1998, ch 586, §§ 42, 43 and 45 subs 1(a), (b), 2 and 3, eff Aug 5, 1998, provides as follows:

§ 42. Nothing in this act shall bar, limit, impair, diminish or affect in any way any rights or remedies in any judicial or other forum pursuant to state or federal law of any enrollee, whether or not eligible to elect external appeal under this act, for coverage of a health service, including but not limited to an experimental or investigational service, a clinical trial treatment, or provision of a pharmaceutical product pursuant to prescription for a use other than those uses for which such pharmaceutical product has been approved for marketing by the federal Food and Drug Administration. No enrollee may be required to pursue or exhaust external appeal prior to seeking judicial relief.

§ 43. The provisions of this act shall not apply to claims under the workers' compensation law nor shall the provisions of this act be construed to alter, limit, modify, or repeal any provision of such law.

§ 45. This act shall take effect immediately, provided:

1. Sections one through forty-one-e of this act shall take effect July 1, 1999; provided that:

(a) the commissioner of health and the superintendent of insurance may promulgate regulations prior to such date;.

(b) a standard or expedited appeal in progress on the effective date of this act shall be subject to the provisions of law in effect when such an appeal was initiated, provided that any final adverse determination pursuant to such an appeal made after the effective date of this act may be externally appealed pursuant to the provisions of this act;.

2. Sections thirty-nine through forty-one-a of this act shall apply to all policies and contracts issued, renewed, modified, altered or amended on or after such date; and.

3. Notwithstanding any contrary provisions of sections 3216, 3221, 3231, 4304, 4305 and 4317 of the insurance law, or of any later amendments or success or provision or regulations or rules that implement said sections, an insurer, company, organization or other entity subject to article forty-nine of the public health law or article forty-nine of the insurance law may elect to unilaterally modify the coverage for a policy or contract of hospital, surgical or medical expense insurance, effective April 1, 2000, to comply with the requirements of sections thirty-nine through forty-one-a of this act without regard to the time of coverage renewal and without providing for the termination, non-renewal or discontinuance of said coverage.

Laws 1999, ch 558, §§ 55–57, eff Oct 5, 1999, provide as follows:

§ 55. Existing rules, policies, and regulations for the reimbursement of alcohol, substance abuse, or chemical dependence costs under the medical assistance program shall remain unchanged until an affirmative action is taken by the department of health, in consultation with the office of alcoholism and substance abuse services, and approved by the division of budget.

§ 56. Continuity of rules, regulations, and other acts. All rules, regulations, acts, orders, determinations, licenses, operating certificates, and decisions of the office of alcoholism and substance abuse services in force at the time of the effective date of this act shall continue in force and effect as rules, regulations, orders, determinations, licenses, operating certificates, and decisions of the office of alcoholism and substance abuse services until duly modified, abrogated, or repealed by such office or the commissioner of alcoholism and substance abuse services.

§ 57. This act shall take effect immediately; provided, however, that nothing contained in this act shall be deemed to affect the application, qualification, expiration, reversion or repeal of any provision of law amended by any section of this act and the provisions of this act shall be applied or qualified or shall expire or revert or be deemed repealed in the same manner, to the same extent and on the same date as the case may be as otherwise provided by law.

Laws 2000, ch 557, § 5, eff March 1, 2000, provides as follows:

§ 5. This act shall take effect 120 days after it shall have become a law and shall apply to policies or contracts issued, renewed, modified, altered, or amended on or after such date (Amd, L 2003, ch 170, § 1, eff June 22, 2003, deemed eff on and after Dec 31, 2003.).

§ 5. This act shall take effect September 1, 2002 and shall apply to all policies and contracts issued, renewed or modified on or after such date; provided, however, effective immediately the superintendent of insurance is authorized and directed to promulgate any regulations necessary for the implementation of the provisions of this act.

Laws 2002, ch 420, § 9, eff Sept 1, 2004, provides as follows:

§ 9. a. Nothing in this act shall prohibit or limit the activities or services on the part of any person in the employ of a program or service operated, regulated, funded, or approved by the department of mental hygiene, the office of children and family services, the office of temporary and disability assistance, the department of corrections and community supervision, the state office for the aging, the department of health, or a local governmental unit as that term is defined in article 41 of the mental hygiene law or a social services district as defined in section 61 of the social services law, provided, however, this section shall not authorize the use of any title authorized pursuant to article 154 of the education law, except that this section shall be deemed repealed one year from the date that the regulations issued in accordance with section six of part Y of the chapter of the laws of 2018 which amended this subdivision appear in the state register, or the date such regulations are adopted, whichever is later; provided however that the state education department shall notify the legislative bill drafting commission upon the occurrence of the date such regulations appear in the state register and the date of their adoption in order that the commission may maintain an accurate and timely effective database of the official text of the laws of the state of New York in furtherance of effectuating the provisions of section 44 of the legislative law and section 70-b of the public officers law (Amd, L 2016, ch 59, § 1 (Part J), eff April 13, 2016; L 2018, ch 57, § 8 (Part Y), eff April 12, 2018).

Laws 2002, ch 420, § 11, eff Sept 1, 2004, provides as follows:

§ 11. This act shall take effect September 1, 2004; and provided, further, however, that the commissioner of education and the board of regents are authorized, prior to such effective date, to promulgate such rules or regulations as may be necessary for the timely implementation of this act.

Laws 2002, ch 554, § 18, eff Jan 1, 2003, provides as follows:

§ 18. This act shall take effect on the first day of January next succeeding the date on which it shall have become a law and shall apply to all policies issued, renewed, modified or altered on or after such date.

Laws 2003, ch 170, § 1, eff July 22, 2003, amended L 2000, ch 557, § 5, so as to delete and expiration provision of Dec 31, 2003, applicable to amendments of subdivision (k), paragraph (1), subparagraphs (C) and (D).

Laws 2003, ch 338, § 5, eff Jan 1, 2004, provides as follows:

§ 5. This act shall take effect on the first of January next succeeding the date on which it shall have become a law and shall apply to all policies and contracts issued, renewed, modified, altered or amended on or after such date.

Laws 2006, ch 557, § 4, eff Jan 1, 2007, provides as follows:

§ 4. This act shall take effect on the first of January next succeeding the date on which it shall have become a law and shall apply to all policies or contracts issued, renewed, modified, altered or amended on and after such effective date.

Laws 2006, ch 748, §§ 1, 2, 6 and 8, eff Jan 1, 2007, provide as follows:

Section 1. Legislative finding and intent. The legislature hereby declares that health insurance policies and health maintenance organization contracts have not provided comparable coverage for adults and children with biologically based mental illness or serious emotional disturbance disorders affecting children under the same terms and conditions as provided for medical treatment for physical illnesses. Although federal law has prohibited the imposition of lower annual and lifetime dollar limits by certain plans on mental health coverage, it is the intent of this legislation to strengthen and enhance those protections, and to ensure that mental health coverage is provided by insurers and health maintenance organizations, and is provided on terms comparable to other health care and medical services. Nothing in this act is intended to limit or restrict the right of health maintenance organizations and health insurers to require that all services covered by them satisfy reasonable and appropriate utilization review requirements, in accordance with their contracts, and applicable laws and regulations, provided that such utilization review requirements are applied in a consistent fashion to all services covered by such contracts.

§ 2. Short title. This act shall be known and may be cited as "Timothy's law".

§ 6. The superintendent of insurance shall monitor the implementation of the coverage required pursuant to subparagraph (A) of paragraph 5 of subsection (l) of section 3221, paragraph (1) of subsection (g) of section 4303 and paragraph 1 of subsection (h) of section 4303 of the insurance law, and take such action as may be necessary, to ensure that insurers' contracts or policies do not contain an unreasonable definition of mental, nervous or other emotional disorders or ailments in their contracts or policies. In determining whether such definition may be unreasonable, the superintendent of insurance shall ensure that any exclusions and limitations on covered benefits are consistent with benefits provided to public officers and employees pursuant to article 11 of the civil service law.

§ 8. This act shall take effect on the first of January next succeeding the date on which it shall have become a law; and the provisions of this act shall apply to policies and contracts issued, renewed, modified, altered or amended on or after such effective date (Amd, L 2009, ch 181, § 1, eff July 11, 2009.).

Laws 2007, ch 502, § 4, eff Aug 1, 2007, deemed eff on and after Jan 1, 2007, provides as follows:

§ 4. This act shall take effect immediately and shall be deemed to have been in full force and effect on and after January 1, 2007, and shall apply to all policies and contracts issued, renewed, modified, altered or amended on or after such date; provided, however, that the notice of availability of coverage requirements provided in sections one, two and three of this act and the amendments relating to school blanket contracts made by sections two and three of this act shall take effect immediately and shall apply to all contracts issued, renewed, modified, altered or amended on or after such effective date; and provided further, that the amendments to paragraph 5 of subsection (l) of section 3221 and subsections (g) and (h) of section 4303 of the insurance law made by sections one, two and three of this act shall not affect the expiration of such provisions and shall expire therewith.

Laws 2009, ch 181, § 1, eff July 11, 2009, amended L 2008, ch 748, § 8, so as to delete an expiration provision of Dec 31, 2009, applicable to amendments of subdivison (l), paragraph 5, subparagraph (A).

Laws 2009, ch 236, § 4, eff July 1, 2009, provides as follows:

§ 4. This act shall take effect on July 1, 2009 and shall apply to policies and contracts issued, renewed, modified, altered or amended between July 1, 2009 and October 31, 2009, and shall apply to all policies and contracts on and after November 1, 2009 (Amd, L 2009, ch 498, § 4, eff Nov 19, 2009, deemed eff on and after July 1, 2009.).

Laws 2009, ch 240, § 8, eff Sept 1, 2009, provides as follows:

§ 8. This act shall take effect September 1, 2009 and shall apply to contracts issued, renewed, modified, altered or amended on or after such date.

Laws 2009, ch 498, § 5, sub (a), eff Nov 19, 2009, expires and repealed July 1, 2010, priovides as follows:

§ 5. This act shall take effect immediately; provided, that:

(a) sections one, two and three of this act shall expire and be deemed repealed July 1, 2010; and

Laws 2010, ch 130, § 16, eff June 18, 2010, deemed eff on and after June 1, 2010, provides as follows:

§ 16. [Formerly § 15, as renumbered § 16, L 2010, ch 132, § 5] This act shall take effect immediately; provided that sections thirteen, fourteen and fifteen of this act shall take effect immediately and shall be deemed to have been in full force and effect on and after June 1, 2010 and such sections shall be deemed repealed one year from the date that the regulations issued in accordance with section six of part Y of the chapter of the laws of 2018 which amended this section appear in the state register, or the date such regulations are adopted, whichever is later; provided however that the state education department shall notify the legislative bill drafting commission upon the occurrence of the date such regulations appear in the state register and the date of their adoption in order that the commission may maintain an accurate and timely effective database of the official text of the laws of the state of New York in furtherance of effectuating the provisions of section 44 of the legislative law and section 70-b of the public officers law; provided further that the amendments to section 9 of chapter 420 of the laws of 2002 amending the education law relating to the profession of social work made by section thirteen of this act shall repeal on the same date as such section repeals; provided further that the amendments to section 17-a of chapter 676 of the laws of 2002 amending the education law relating to the practice of psychology made by section fourteen of this act shall repeal on the same date as such section repeals (Amd, L 2010, ch 132, § 6, eff June 18, 2010, deemed eff on and after June 1, 2010, L 2013, ch 57, § 3 (Part AA), eff March 29, 2013, deemed eff on and after April 1, 2013; L 2016, ch 59, § 3 (Part J), eff April 13, 2016; L 2018, ch 57, § 10, eff April 12, 2018).

Laws 2010, ch 357, § 5, eff Jan 1, 2011, provides as follows:

§ 5. This act shall take effect on the first of January next succeeding the date on which it shall have become a law, and shall apply to all policies and contracts issued, renewed, modified, altered or amended on or after such effective date.

Laws 2010, ch 398, § 1, eff Jan 1, 2011, provides as follows:

Section 1. Short title. This act shall be known and may be cited as "Ian's law".

Laws 2010, ch 457, § 5, eff Jan 1, 2011, provides as follows:

§ 5. This act shall take effect on the first of January next succeeding the date on which it shall have become a law and shall apply to insurance policies and contracts issued, renewed, modified or altered on or after such effective date.

Laws 2010, ch 536, § 1, eff Oct 31, 2010, provides as follows:

Section 1. Legislative findings. The cost-sharing, deductibles and co-insurance obligations for certain drugs are becoming cost prohibitive for persons trying to overcome serious and often life-threatening diseases and conditions such as cancer, multiple sclerosis, rheumatoid arthritis, hepatitis C, hemophilia and psoriasis. These drugs are typically new, produced in lesser quantities than other drugs, and not available as less expensive brand name or generic prescription drugs. Some health insurance plans and policies in other states as well as some self-insured plans in New York have established unique categories or specialty tiers for these drugs, sometimes referred to as Tier IV or Tier V. Patients under these plans are required to pay a percentage of the cost of these high-priced drugs, rather than the traditional co-payment amounts for generic, preferred brand, and non-preferred brand prescription drugs, often covered by Tier I, Tier II, and Tier III plans and policies, respectively. As a result, patients covered under plans with specialty tiers must pay thousands of dollars in out-of-pocket costs for drugs critical for their treatment.

It is in the public interest to help patients to afford necessary prescription drugs by prohibiting cost-sharing, deductibles and co-insurance obligations by patients that exceed payments for non-preferred brand prescription drugs or the equivalent thereof. It is not the intent of this legislation to preclude plans or policies from categorizing drugs used in the treatment of these common diseases as brand name prescription drugs or generic prescription drug equivalents.

The extraordinary disparity in cost-sharing, deductible and co-insurance burdens imposed on patients whose life and health depend on these drugs places serious and unjustified hardships on individuals based on their disease or disability.

This legislation is intended to provide patients more affordable access to prescription drugs essential for their treatment of cancer, multiple sclerosis, rheumatoid arthritis, hepatitis C, hemophilia, psoriasis, and other diseases (Amd, L 2010, ch 565, § 1, eff Oct 31, 2010.).

Laws 2011, ch 219, § 70, subs 1 and 2, eff July 20, 2011, provides as follows:

§ 70. This act shall take effect immediately:

1. provided, that for policies renewed on or after such date but before September 23, 2011, this act shall take effect upon the renewal date;

2. provided, however, that sections eight, nine, ten, fourteen, fifteen, sixteen, seventeen, eighteen, twenty-three, twenty-six, twenty-seven, twenty-eight, twenty-nine, thirty, forty, forty-one, forty-two and forty-three of this act shall, with respect to blanket policies of hospital, medical, surgical or prescription drug expense insurance covering students pursuant to subparagraph (C) of paragraph 3 of subsection (a) of section 4237 of the insurance law, take effect January 1, 2012 and apply to policies issued or renewed on and after such date; and

Laws 2011, ch 559, §§ 1 and 5, eff Jan 1, 2012, provide as follows:

Section 1. Legislative findings. The legislature finds that advances in medical research have led to significant new developments of various medical treatments. These treatments offer patients a wide range of new choices to combat very serious diseases. The area of cancer treatment has been one of the fields that has seen these significant new medical advancements. In recent years, oral chemotherapy treatments have been developed that provide viable alternatives to traditional intravenous cancer treatments for patients. This oral chemotherapy treatment offers the treating physician and the patient a choice in relation to treatment options. However, this choice is sometimes limited as the oral chemotherapy treatments are, in most cases, covered under the prescription drug benefit of an insurance plan rather than under the major medical insurance benefit of an insurance plan. This discrepancy in coverage can limit a patient's ability to choose the oral chemotherapy treatment because of the cost associated with the disparate treatment.

§ 5. This act shall take effect on the first of January next succeeding the date on which it shall have become a law and shall apply to all policies and contracts issued, renewed, modified, altered or amended on or after such effective date.

Laws 2011, ch 589, § 4, eff Oct 14, 2011, provides as follows:

The 2020 amendment by ch 56, § 2 (Part DDD), added "provided however, the total amount that a covered person is required to pay out of pocket for covered prescription insulin drugs shall be capped at an amount not to exceed one hundred dollars per thirty-day supply, regardless of the amount or type of insulin needed to fill such covered person's prescription and regardless of the insured's deductible, co-payment, coinsurance or any other cost sharing requirement" in (k)(7)(B).

NOTES TO DECISIONS

1. Generally

Trial court properly granted the insurers' motion to dismiss an insured's cause of action for violations of New York's mental health parity law, also known as Timothy's Law, because no intent to create a private right of action could fairly be implied from the statutory language and legislative history of Timothy's Law. Laws 1994, ch 425, § 1, eff Oct 18, 1994, provides as follows:

Section 1. Legislative intent. The legislature hereby finds and declares that a substantial segment of the public labors under certain misconceptions regarding automobile liability insurance. Many people fail to realize that their own liability insurance does not provide them with certain coverages. Too many people are unaware that what they really need to be protected in the event of loss sustained by themselves caused by an uninsured or underinsured motorist is uninsured motorist coverage on their own policies. To remedy this, policyholders should be given notice of the availability of such coverage.

Laws 1995, ch 305, § 12, eff July 26, 1995, provides as follows:

§ 12. This act shall take effect immediately, except that sections one through eleven of this act shall take effect January 1, 1996 and shall apply to all accidents occurring on or after such date.

Laws 2008, ch 388, § 8, eff Jan 17, 2009, provides as follows:

§ 8. This act shall take effect on the one hundred eightieth day after it shall have become a law, and shall apply to policies issued or delivered in this state on or after such date and to any action maintained under such a policy; provided, however, that effective immediately, the addition, amendment and/or repeal of any rule or regulation necessary for the implementation of this act on its effective date are authorized and directed to be made and completed by the superintendent of insurance on or before such effective date.

Laws 2012, ch 496, § 2, eff April 16, 2013, provides as follows:

§ 2. This act shall take effect on the one hundred twentieth day after it shall have become a law and shall apply to any policies issued or renewed on or after such date. Effective immediately, the addition, amendment and/or repeal of any rules or regulations necessary for the implementation of this act on its effective date is authorized to be made on or before such effective date.

Laws 2017, ch 490, § 2, eff June 16, 2018, provides:

§ 2. This act shall take effect on the one hundred eightieth day after it shall have become a law, and shall apply to new insurance policies and contracts issued on and after such effective date and shall expire and be deemed repealed June 30, 2023 (Amd, L 2020, ch 58, § 1 (Part XXX, Subpart B, Item S), eff April 3, 2020).

Laws 2018, ch 15, § 2, eff June 16, 2018, provides:

§ 2. This act shall take effect on the same date and in the same manner as chapter 490 of the laws of 2017 takes effect; provided, however, that the amendments to paragraph (2-a) of subsection (f) of section 3420 of the insurance law made by section one of this act shall not affect the repeal of such paragraph and shall be deemed repealed therewith.

Laws 2019, ch 59, § 20 (Part III), eff April 12, 2019, provides:

§ 20. This act shall take effect immediately; provided, however, that sections eight, ten, eleven and fourteen of this act shall take effect on the first of November next succeeding the date on which it shall have become a law; provided, however, sections nine and twelve of this act shall take effect on the one hundred eightieth day after it shall have become a law; provided, however, sections thirteen and nineteen of this act shall take effect on the first day of January next succeeding the date on which it shall have become a law and shall apply to all policies issued, renewed, altered, or modified on or after such date; provided, however, section fifteen of this act shall take effect on the thirtieth day after it shall have become a law; provided, however, section eighteen of this act shall take effect October 1, 2019; provided, further, that effective immediately, the department of transportation and the department of motor vehicles are authorized and directed to promulgate such rules and regulations as are necessary for the implementation of this act on its effective date.

2002 Recommendations of the Law Revision Committee: Insurance Law § 3420(g) is an apparent anomaly in insurance statutes nationwide. Its continued survival is at odds with the Legislature's clear intent to protect all other persons from losses resulting from accidents, regardless of their relationship. Moreover, Insurance Law § 3420(g) is the only exclusion which need not be disclosed in the insurance contract. These distinctions, coupled with the fact that optional spousal coverage is universally unavailable in New York, bring into doubt the propriety of the statute. The policy justification underlying the statute — the danger of collusion — has been consistently rejected by many courts and jurisdictions, including the Court of Appeals.

The Commission recommends that Insurance Law § 3420 be amended to include two mutually dependent requirements. The recommendation is loosely based on the current scheme for supplemental underinsured and uninsured motorist coverage whereby every insurer is required to provide notice to its insured of the benefits of SUM coverage and the cost of a SUM endorsement.

Thus, in the context of Insurance Law § 3420(g), the recommended amendment requires insurers, first, to disclose the existence and operation of Insurance Law § 3420(g) each time a liability policy is issued. The public's ignorance of the effect of Insurance Law § 3420(g) on coverage for injuries caused by an insured to his or her spouse is a serious defect, particularly when every other type of policy exclusion must be brought to the insured's attention "in clear and unmistakable language." Thus, providing notice is a critical part of any reform effort.

Secondly, coverage for injuries to spouses must be available. As noted in this report, the language of Insurance Law § 3420(g) reflects an intent by the Legislature to allow an insured to contract for spousal coverage, but such coverage is unavailable in New York. Thus, to ensure compliance with the intent of the statute, the Commission determined that insurers should be compelled to offer such coverage upon request. The Commission recommends, therefore, that the Insurance Law be amended to include a provision requiring licensed insurers to provide supplemental liability coverage for injuries to spouses when it is (1) requested by the insured and (2) a premium is paid for such coverage.

This recommendation benefits both consumers and insurance companies. Although insurers would have to make the coverage available and provide notice, a premium will be received to offset the associated cost and exposure. At the same time, married persons will benefit as they will be able to choose whether the additional coverage and cost is appropriate to their individual circumstances. Moreover, this approach is completely consistent with the Legislature's clear intention to permit spouses to contract for coverage.

However, the Commission recommends limiting the notice and optional coverage requirements to automobile liability insurance. The bar to recovery created by Insurance Law § 3420(g) has had little effect on a spouse's right to recover under homeowners policies in light of the willingness of the Legislature and courts to permit household exclusions in homeowners' policies. It appears that a household exclusion is permissible because homeowners' insurance is not mandatory. In contrast, an insurer is not permitted to exclude household members (other than spouses) in an automobile liability policy or an uninsured policy because such coverage is mandatory and its provisions prescribed by law. Accordingly, the need for reform lies in the automobile liability insurance context.

I. General Considerations

1. In general

In an action by a cooperative apartment corporation against its bankrupt management agent, the insurer who had issued the agent a fidelity bond providing coverage for loss sustained by the agent through fraudulent or dishonest acts by its employees, and others, the insurer was entitled to summary judgment since the fidelity bond could not be considered a "policy or contract insuring against liability for injuries to persons or property," within the meaning of Ins Law former § 167(1) [now § 3420], so as to allow the corporation's direct claim against the agent's insurer. 175 East 74th Corp. v Hartford Acci. & Indem. Co., 51 N.Y.2d 585, 435 N.Y.S.2d 584, 416 N.E.2d 584, 1980 N.Y. LEXIS 2737 (N.Y. 1980).

Where provisions of insurance policy are clear and unambiguous, courts should not strain to superimpose unnatural or unreasonable construction. Maurice Goldman & Sons v Hanover Ins. Co., 80 N.Y.2d 986, 592 N.Y.S.2d 645, 607 N.E.2d 792, 1992 N.Y. LEXIS 3887 (N.Y. 1992).

Unless some statute imposes different liability, the Vehicle and Traffic Law § 17 and predecessor to § 3420 are liberally interpreted by the courts in favor of persons injured by acts of those insured despite provisions in indemnity policies which seek to limit coverage. Baron v Auto Mut. Indem. Co., 247 A.D. 731, 285 N.Y.S. 486, 1936 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8533 (N.Y. App. Div. 1936).

No liability clause operates unless there is sufficient insurance to meet the minimum set by the financial responsibility laws. Davis v De Frank, 33 A.D.2d 236, 306 N.Y.S.2d 827, 1970 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5724 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't), aff'd, 27 N.Y.2d 924, 318 N.Y.S.2d 142, 266 N.E.2d 822, 1970 N.Y. LEXIS 946 (N.Y. 1970).

Liability insurer was not required to defend or indemnify son of insureds where clear language of policy limited coverage to 2 named insureds and other categories of persons into which their son did not fit; to expand coverage to include son would require rewriting of policy. D'Angelo v Empire Mut. Ins. Co., 125 A.D.2d 533, 509 N.Y.S.2d 611, 1986 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 62833 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1986).

"All Risk Armored Car Coverage Premises and Transit Policy" was liability policy under CLS Ins § 3420(a), not indemnification policy, where it provided that insurance company would be "liable to the Insured for the Insured's liability to others as the result of loss or damage to Property"; fact that policy did not include provisions specified by § 3420 did not require contrary result, but merely triggered CLS Ins § 3103(a), and inclusion of required provisions would be made by implication. State v Federal Ins. Co., 189 A.D.2d 4, 594 N.Y.S.2d 445, 1993 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2085 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1993).

N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(a)(5) was enacted in January 2009 and does not apply retroactively to an insurer's 2006 policy. Tower Ins. Co. of N.Y. v Classon Hgts., LLC, 82 A.D.3d 632, 920 N.Y.S.2d 58, 2011 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2409 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2011).

Trial court properly granted an insurer's motion to dismiss a lessee's complaint against it because the lessee lacked standing and failed to state a cause of action inasmuch as it was not a named insured under the policy and did not obtain a judgment against the lessor. GM Broadcasting, Inc. v Cornelius Enters., LLC, 156 A.D.3d 1038, 66 N.Y.S.3d 548, 2017 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8634 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2017).

A liability policy incorporating the provisions of former § 167 [now § 3420] permits the holder of a policy to recover from the insurer if specific provisions are followed. Specht v Bankers Indem. Ins. Co., 140 F.2d 30, 1944 U.S. App. LEXIS 3869 (2d Cir. N.Y. 1944).

CLS Ins § 3420 did not apply to insurance policy issued by out-of-state insurer through agent in that state to corporation in that state which was not policy specific to corporation's New York building contract or to other work in New York; moreover, fact that insurer issued certificate of insurance to New York corporation to prove that its insured had insurance did not bring policy within statute, since certificate was not policy, it did not purport to alter rights of parties, and, in fact, it did not do so. Marino v New York Tel. Co., 944 F.2d 109, 1991 U.S. App. LEXIS 22013 (2d Cir. N.Y. 1991).

CLS Ins § 3420 did not govern insurance contract issued by out-of-state insurer to out-of-state insured, even though insurer stipulated that New York law governed case, since it is matter of "common sense" that when parties stipulate to application of New York law they agree to application of "appropriate" New York laws; statute, by its terms, applies only to liability policies "delivered or issued for delivery" in New York. Marino v New York Tel. Co., 944 F.2d 109, 1991 U.S. App. LEXIS 22013 (2d Cir. N.Y. 1991).

N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420 creates a statutory cause of action for an injured third party against an insurer, that; (1) compliance with the prerequisites of the statute allows a third party the right to litigate coverage issues; (2) the statute must be strictly construed because it creates a cause of action in derogation of the common law; and (3) compliance with the prerequisites under the statute, entry of a judgment and a 30 day waiting period, are conditions precedent. Vargas v Boston Chicken, Inc., 269 F. Supp. 2d 92, 2003 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 10900 (E.D.N.Y. 2003).

There is no requirement under New York Insurance Law for auto insurer to provide its insureds with certificates of insurance of ACORD-form type. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 00-06-09.

Umbrella liability insurance policy sold in New York by insurance agent representing authorized insurer generally is valid to cover those exposures located in other states where insurer is not licensed; most local coverages are recognizable and enforceable in all states giving full faith and credit and due process to insurance contract but there are exceptions. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 02-01-27.

There is nothing in Insurance Law and regulations that prohibits insurance company from sending personal homeowners or automobile insurance policies electronically to insureds who agree to receive their insurance policies electronically, as long as insurance policies delivered to consenting insureds on-line meet requirements contained in Insurance Law and regulations and forms have been filed with Department for use in New York. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 04-03-24.

There is no law that prohibits insurance company from offering to its insureds insurance records management on-line. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 04-03-24.

Establishment licensed to sell liquor at retail for consumption on premises is not required to procure liquor liability insurance. NY Ins Dep't Gen Counsel, Opinion No. 10-09-09, 2010 NY Insurance GC Opinions LEXIS 44.

Stature requiring insurers to demonstrate prejudice to disclaim coverage based on untimely notice was not applicable to an insurance policy because the statute applied only to liability insurance, not property insurance. Therefore, the insurer was not required to demonstrate that it was prejudiced by the insureds' alleged delay in providing prompt notice of a loss. Sunrise One, LLC v Harleysville Ins. Co. of N.Y., 293 F. Supp. 3d 317, 2018 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 53383 (E.D.N.Y. 2018).

2. Construction with other laws

Plaintiff insurer, which paid first-party no-fault benefits to passenger injured in automobile insured by it could not recover such benefits from tort-feasor's insurer in action brought pursuant to Ins Law § 3420, since plaintiff's sole remedy was arbitration proceeding pursuant to Ins Law § 5105; although plaintiff had claim to recover first-party benefits against tort-feasor's insurer, Ins Law § 5105 provides that sole remedy of any insurer to recover on claim arising under provision shall be submission of controversy to mandatory arbitration. State-Wide Ins. Co. v Buffalo Ins. Co., 105 A.D.2d 315, 483 N.Y.S.2d 393, 1984 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 20700 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1984), app. dismissed, 64 N.Y.2d 1041, 489 N.Y.S.2d 467, 1985 N.Y. LEXIS 19740 (N.Y. 1985).

Court properly granted insurer's motion for summary judgment declaring that it had no duty to indemnify or further defend insureds in pending underlying action in federal court where it was undisputed that subject policy had exclusion for liability under Federal Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974 (ERISA), and insureds were seeking indemnification for judgment expressly based on ERISA liability only, and continuing defense in litigation that could not include state common-law claims; thus, it was error to deny summary judgment on insureds' counterclaim alleging that insurer acted in bad faith in refusing to settle underlying action. Zurich Ins. Co. v Texasgulf, Inc., 233 A.D.2d 180, 649 N.Y.S.2d 153, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11678 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1996).

Municipality, by extending protection of CLS Pub O § 18 to municipal hospital, did not thereby assume role of primary insurer and effectively relegate hospital's liability insurance carriers to roles of excess insurance carriers, where statutory right of indemnification would be triggered if and only if insurance policies were insufficient to indemnify insureds, and policies issued to hospital referred to other insurance coverage in describing themselves as "excess" coverage, but did not explicitly refer to right of indemnification afforded by CLS Pub O § 18. Town of Massena v Healthcare Underwriters Mut. Ins. Co., 281 A.D.2d 107, 724 N.Y.S.2d 107, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4180 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2001), aff'd in part, modified, 98 N.Y.2d 435, 749 N.Y.S.2d 456, 779 N.E.2d 167, 2002 N.Y. LEXIS 2729 (N.Y. 2002).

The phrase "injuries to person," as used in former § 109 [predecessor to former § 167, now § 3420] is in harmony with reference to the definition of "personal injury" as found in General Construction Law, § 37-a. Brustein v New Amsterdam Casualty Co., 238 N.Y.S. 313, 135 Misc. 352, 1929 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1029 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1929), aff'd, 230 A.D. 716, 243 N.Y.S. 770, 1930 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8832 (N.Y. App. Div. 1930).

Plaintiff's motion for summary judgment against an insurer should be granted in the amount of its judgment against the carrier, where the indorsement to the contract of cargo of the insurance of carrier provides that the indorsement is to assure compliance by the carrier with § 215 of the Motor Carrier Act, which provides for insurance coverage as security for protection of the public, and these provisions of indorsement are controlling even to the exclusion of former § 109 [predecessor to former § 167, now § 3420]. William Atkin Co. v National Liberty Ins. Co., 5 N.Y.S.2d 863, 168 Misc. 334, 1938 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1751 (N.Y. Mun. Ct. 1938).

Administratrix for a deceased pedestrian was entitled to sue the Motor Vehicle Accident Indemnification Corporation (MVAIC) under N.Y. Ins. Law § 5201 et seq. because, even though one of the vehicles that struck the pedestrian was insured, her estate was entitled to an independent recovery against the unidentified vehicle that also struck her based on an analogy to N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(f)(1)(2). Matter of Fragoso v Motor Veh. Acc. Indem. Corp., 870 N.Y.S.2d 902, 23 Misc. 3d 430, 241 N.Y.L.J. 13, 2009 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 77 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 2009).

Any construction of this section that would permit its application to a risk retention group chartered in another state was preempted pursuant to 15 U.S.C.S. § 3902 because such application would thwart the efficient interstate operation of risk retention groups. Wadsworth v Allied Prof'ls Ins. Co., 748 F.3d 100, 2014 U.S. App. LEXIS 6212 (2d Cir. N.Y. 2014).

Where a creditor sought to declare a state court judgment nondischargeable under 11 U.S.C.S. § 523(a)(6) and alternatively sought to recover the unsatisfied judgment from the debtor's insurer, which alleged that its policies excluded coverage because the debtor's actions in injuring the creditor were intentional, although the insurer demanded a jury trial and indicated that it would not consent under 28 U.S.C.S. § 157(e), that did not override other factors that weighed in favor of exercising jurisdiction over the coverage dispute and declining to abstain under 28 U.S.C.S. § 1334(c)(1). Hough v Margulies (In re Margulies), 476 B.R. 393, 2012 Bankr. LEXIS 3768 (Bankr. S.D.N.Y. 2012).

When general and special, or specific, statute are antagonistic, courts must respect time honored tenet of statutory construction, that special statute prevails over general statute, accordingly, CLS, Insurance Law former § 167(4) [now § 3420(i)] prevails over CLS, CPLR § 5201(a), and as result, money judgment may not be enforced against judgment debtor's marine liability insurance policy pursuant to § 5201(a). WABCO Trade Co. v SS Inger Skou, 663 F.2d 369, 1981 U.S. App. LEXIS 16522 (2d Cir. N.Y. 1981).

State law governs interpretation of insurance policies implicated by liability under Comprehensive Environmental Response, Compensation and Liability Act. City of Utica v Genesee Mgmt., 934 F. Supp. 510, 1996 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 10723 (N.D.N.Y. 1996).

Ins § 3420 is substantive, not procedural, and thus must be applied in diversity suits under Erie doctrine. Richards v Select Ins. Co., 40 F. Supp. 2d 163, 1999 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 2875 (S.D.N.Y. 1999).

Federal declaratory judgment action against insurer is dismissed, where manufacturer sues bankrupt supplier and its commercial general liability insurer seeking damages stemming from purchase of lace that allegedly was not machine-washable as warranted, but lacks present right to sue insurer under Ins § 3420 since there has been no entry of judgment against supplier, because this court, sitting in diversity, must make delicate accommodation between state substantive and federal procedural law. NAP, Inc. v Shuttletex, Inc., 112 F. Supp. 2d 369, 2000 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 13062 (S.D.N.Y. 2000).

Private passenger automobile insurance coverage and homeowner's insurance coverage can be bound on Internet by authorized New York insurer following completion on Internet of electronic application that has been electronically signed by applicant; it is acceptable for insurer that binds such insurance coverage on Internet to give insured option to print insurance binder off Internet, and insurer need not separately file electronic version of binder that will be transmitted over Internet. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 00-05-15.

Insurer may non-renew or conditionally renew 2 percent of its business written on or before August 1, 2001 based on total number of insurer's covered policies in force at last year's-end of each year in each of insurer's rating territories in use in New York. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 02-06-32.

Insurer may non-renew or conditionally renew one additional policy written in territory on or before August 1, 2001, in excess of 2 percent limit, for every 2 new automobile policies written on or after August 2, 2001, in that particular territory. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 02-06-32.

Neither federal Electronic Signatures in Global and National Commerce Act ("E-Sign," 15 USCS §§ 7001-7013) nor New York Electronic Signatures and Records Act ("ESRA," which is contained in CLS St Tech §§ 101-109) supersedes requirements of Insurance Law or regulations applicable to insurance company doing business in New York. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 04-03-24.

3. Regulatory power of superintendent

Regulation of superintendent of insurance which permits limitation of coverage of liability to others to "a lessee or borrower" of a vehicle where injuries are sustained in the process of loading or unloading does not apply to ambulatory passengers of a motor vehicle. Association for Help of Retarded Children, Inc. v Insurance Co. of North America, 59 A.D.2d 518, 397 N.Y.S.2d 109, 1977 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13297 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1977).

No effective cancellation of assigned risk automobile insurance policy was shown, and thus stay of arbitration of uninsured motorist claim should have been granted, where carrier who issued policy conceded at hearing before court that its final premium bill did not contain statement advising policyholder that payment could be made directly to insurance company or to "producer of record" as required by Rules of New York Automobile Insurance Plan § 14(E)(2)(b). State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. v McLean, 228 A.D.2d 510, 643 N.Y.S.2d 680, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6570 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1996).

4. Miscellaneous

Under the terms of a comprehensive liability insurance policy, issued by the insurer to a contractor engaged in certain demolition work, providing that nothing therein contained should give any person a right to join the insurer as co-defendant in any action against the insured to determine the insured's liability, an oil company for whom the contractor was doing demolition work under a contract requiring him to indemnify the oil company against any and all claims of negligence, including the oil company's own negligence, in connection with the work, and to provide insurance coverage, not being the named insured, had no right of action against the insurer to require it to defend a negligence action brought against it, the oil company, assertable against the insurer by way of third-party complaint, notwithstanding the policy had been indorsed to cover the demolition job. Jefferson v Sinclair Refining Co., 10 N.Y.2d 422, 223 N.Y.S.2d 863, 179 N.E.2d 706, 1962 N.Y. LEXIS 1511 (N.Y. 1962).

Subcontractor's liability insurance carrier was not collaterally estopped from seeking declaratory judgment that it was entitled to contribution from general contractor's liability carrier based on prior lawsuit in which Supreme Court ruled that it was obligated to defend and indemnify general contractor in underlying wrongful death action, because "identicality of issue" was lacking, where dispositive issue in prior lawsuit was its obligation to defend and indemnify general contractor, not whether general contractor's liability carrier was coinsurer with duty of contribution. National Union Fire Ins. Co. v Hartford Ins. Co., 93 N.Y.2d 983, 695 N.Y.S.2d 740, 717 N.E.2d 1077, 1999 N.Y. LEXIS 1426 (N.Y. 1999).

Landlord, granted summary judgment holding that tenant breached its agreement to obtain liability insurance for landlord's benefit, was not entitled to recover full amount of loss on underlying personal injury claim where it had procured its own insurance; recovery was limited to out-of-pocket damages caused by tenant's breach, including purchase cost of substitute insurance, deductibles, co-payments and increased future premiums. Inchaustegui v 666 5th Ave. Ltd. P'ship, 96 N.Y.2d 111, 725 N.Y.S.2d 627, 749 N.E.2d 196, 2001 N.Y. LEXIS 1050 (N.Y. 2001).

Assuming that insurer's unaccepted offer of payment under a policy requires the insurer to pay the insured that sum, the duty to do so does not arise if the insured has failed to perform an act constituting a condition precedent to that duty, such as the filing of proofs of loss. Mass v Great American Ins. Co., 33 A.D.2d 912, 307 N.Y.S.2d 604, 1970 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5784 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1970).

Although actions of defendant in changing grade or property and permitting vehicles to drive thereon over objections of adjacent landowner were purposive, and where alleged as willful in original complaint, resulting collapse of adjacent landowner's garage was accidental within coverage provisions of defendant's insurance policy; thus garage owner was entitled to judgment against defendant's insurer for damages recovered on basis of defendant's negligence alleged in amended complaint. McGroarty v Great American Ins. Co., 43 A.D.2d 368, 351 N.Y.S.2d 428, 1974 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5848 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1974), aff'd, 36 N.Y.2d 358, 368 N.Y.S.2d 485, 329 N.E.2d 172, 1975 N.Y. LEXIS 1814 (N.Y. 1975).

Where automobile liability insurer elected to take the risk of insuring applicant for more than the minimum required by statute without first investigating her application, and where it was only after suit was brought against her for negligent operation of the insured vehicle that the insurer made an investigation which disclosed the falsity of key statements in the policy application, it was much too late for the insurer, which sought to reform the policy to bring it down to the statutory required minimum amounts, to visit upon the innocent injured plaintiffs the effects of its failure to shoulder its burden of prompt investigation to discover the applicant's fraud. Olivio v Government Employees Ins. Co., 46 A.D.2d 437, 362 N.Y.S.2d 873, 1975 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8512 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1975).

In action by manufacturer of mercury thermometers for declaration that insurers were obligated to indemnify it in completed actions arising from mercury spill in its plant in Vermont, there was insufficient evidence in record to make choice of law determination regarding applicability of pollution exclusion clause in policies where (1) policies did not appear in record in their entirety, (2) no evidence in record resolved issues such as location of insured risk, residence of parties, and place where contracts were issued and negotiated, and (3) no evidence in record established Vermont law as to pollution exclusion clause. Munzer v St. Paul Fire & Marine Ins. Co., 145 A.D.2d 193, 538 N.Y.S.2d 633, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1978 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1989).

In negligence actions arising from automobile accident in which each driver was represented by privately retained counsel as plaintiff and represented by counsel provided by his or her insurance company as defendant, parties were denied right to be represented by counsel of their own choosing by court ruling that only counsels provided by insurance companies would be permitted to participate in trial since (1) strategy of attorney representing one party was to avoid payment of any money damages by his carrier regardless of consequences to driver, which course of conduct was in derogation of attorney's duty to driver, and (2) mother-in-law of one driver, who was passenger in vehicle, was afforded no representation at all. Rosenzweig v Blinshteyn, 149 A.D.2d 280, 544 N.Y.S.2d 865, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11067 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1989).

Daughter, who had lived with but was estranged from mother and who was residing with father at time she negligently injured person at mother's residence, was insured person under both mother's and father's liability insurance policies since (1) she continued to receive mail at mother's home, ate meals there, and retained and used mother's house key, (2) she used mother's address on driver's license, registration, and for school purposes, (3) she visited mother nearly every day, and (4) she never expressed desire to permanently leave mother's home. Nationwide Ins. Co. v Allstate Ins. Co., 181 A.D.2d 1022, 581 N.Y.S.2d 955, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4622 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1992).

Supreme Court properly dismissed, on forum non conveniens grounds, declaratory judgment action brought by insurance company regarding its obligation to defend and indemnify environmental claims against its insured since (1) New York had no involvement with sites covered by relevant insurance policies, and (2) 3 sites at issue, and 2 suits concerning personal injury claims, were located in New Jersey, and New Jersey had been determined to be appropriate forum for those matters. Employers Ins. of Wausau Mut. Co. v UniDynamics Corp., 183 A.D.2d 657, 584 N.Y.S.2d 55, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7377 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't), app. denied, 80 N.Y.2d 757, 589 N.Y.S.2d 308, 602 N.E.2d 1124, 1992 N.Y. LEXIS 3236 (N.Y. 1992).

Two insurance companies provided concurrent insurance to general contractor where (1) general contractor was named as "additional insured" under first company's policy of subcontractor, (2) first company's policy contained endorsement providing that general contractor was insured only as to liability arising out of operations performed for general contractor by or on behalf of subcontractor, (3) general contractor also obtained its own policy from second company, (4) both policies provided coverage in event that general contractor was to become legally obligated to pay damages because of "personal injuries," and (5) both policies purported to be primary insurance; companies' status as coinsurers was not affected by fact that second company's policy provided general contractor with coverage against liability beyond that by first company. B.K. Gen. Contractors v Michigan Mut. Ins. Co., 204 A.D.2d 584, 612 N.Y.S.2d 198, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5465 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1994).

In action by general liability insurer for judgment declaring that it was not obligated to cover insured for costs associated with closure of hazardous waste landfill in New York, dismissal was not warranted on forum non conveniens grounds since environmental offense originated in New York, regulatory agency connected with offense was located in New York, majority of witnesses resided in New York, and insured would not suffer extreme hardship because it was incorporated in New York and proof necessary for litigation was mainly in New York. Price v Brown Group, 206 A.D.2d 195, 619 N.Y.S.2d 414, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11916 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1994), app. denied, 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3992 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't Mar. 17, 1995).

Insureds' son was not resident of their household for purposes of coverage under homeowners insurance policy, which specifically provided coverage to insureds and residents of their household if such residents were, inter alia, their relatives, where son had moved all his clothing and furniture to second residence owned by insureds that was covered by rental dwelling property insurance policy, he received his mail at second residence, motorcycle and hunting licenses reflected such address, and that was where he and his family resided for more than 14 months prior to accident in question. Walburn v State Farm Fire & Casualty Co., 215 A.D.2d 837, 626 N.Y.S.2d 315, 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4816 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1995).

In action seeking declaration that insurer was not obligated to defend or indemnify insureds' son and others in underlying personal injury action arising from incident which resulted in son having been adjudicated youthful offender after having been charged with third degree assault following minor automobile accident, insurer could not utilize any disclosure devices to compel son to divulge contents of his otherwise confidential youthful offender records; requiring such disclosure would undermine grant of confidentiality under CLS CPL § 720.35(2). State Farm Fire & Cas. Co. v Bongiorno, 237 A.D.2d 31, 667 N.Y.S.2d 378, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12886 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1997).

Litigation conducted by excess professional liability insurer against its own insured to recover cost of litigation and settlement of third-party action against insured arising from failed real estate transaction was absolutely barred as against public policy where insurer had transformed potential liability, involving questions of policy coverage, into potential for recovery against counsel to its insured, and this end was achieved not only by direct action against insured but also by agreement between insurer and insured, in which insured waived appeal from award of summary judgment to insurer (which might have obviated malpractice claim against insured's former counsel) and assigned to insurer whatever claim insured might have against its former counsel; thus, insurer's manipulation of litigation conflicted with public interest in assuring integrity of insurers' relations with their insureds and in averting even potential for conflict of interest. Jones Lang Wootton USA v LeBoeuf, Lamb, Greene & MacRae, 243 A.D.2d 168, 674 N.Y.S.2d 280, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4053 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't), app. dismissed, 92 N.Y.2d 962, 683 N.Y.S.2d 172, 705 N.E.2d 1213, 1998 N.Y. LEXIS 4090 (N.Y. 1998).

In action by insured for breach of contract and related claims arising from insurer's denial of coverage, where Supreme Court granted summary judgment to insurer on ground that coverage was excluded under certain section of policy and insured appealed, insurer could not raise its contention that coverage was excluded under different section of policy where, although it raised both exclusions as affirmative defense in its answer, it only raised exclusion ruled on by Supreme Court in its motion papers before Supreme Court. Oot v Home Ins. Co., 244 A.D.2d 62, 676 N.Y.S.2d 715, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8459 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1998).

Policy should have been reformed to include as named insured claimants, who were owners of and only parties with insurable interest in building, where policy had been issued in name of business owned by claimants rather than in their individual names, policy had clearly been intended to be issued to owner of building, and claimants' broker testified that name on application for policy had been amended 3 times, and that he had assumed building was owned by corporation but never sought to clarify matter. In re Liquidation of Galaxy Ins. Co., 257 A.D.2d 351, 683 N.Y.S.2d 59, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 566 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1999).

Although not sufficient, standing alone, to prove insurance coverage as matter of law, certificate of insurance representing agreed coverage raised triable issue of fact in opposition to claim of breach of duty to procure insurance coverage as additional insured. DiMaggio v Chase Manhattan Bank, 266 A.D.2d 89, 698 N.Y.S.2d 656, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11641 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1999).

Construction contractor that employed injured plaintiff in underlying tort action was entitled to summary judgment declaring that it fulfilled its contractual duty to procure liability insurance for construction manager and owner of project where documentary evidence and insurer's admissions proved that manager and owner were named as additional insureds under commercial general liability policy for relevant period issued to contractor. Lehrer McGovern Bovis, Inc. v Component Assembly Sys., 266 A.D.2d 94, 698 N.Y.S.2d 648, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11675 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1999).

In action under CLS Ins § 3420(a)(2), it was abuse of discretion to deny defendant insurers' motion to vacate default judgment where motion was made within few weeks of receiving notice of default, there was no prejudice to plaintiff, defendants' failure to forward summons and complaint to their attorney and his subsequent default on motion were not willful, and they offered proof that judgment exceeded limits of insurance policy at issue. Burgos v Allcity Ins. Co., 272 A.D.2d 195, 707 N.Y.S.2d 438, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5667 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2000).

There was no merit in plaintiff's challenge to constitutionality of marital exclusion in CLS Ins § 3420(g). Mathieu v Commercial Mut. Ins. Co., 275 A.D.2d 613, 713 N.Y.S.2d 471, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9183 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2000).

Given plain import of CLS Ins § 3420(g), there was no basis for claim that it was legislature's intention that coverage be provided for interspousal liability. Mathieu v Commercial Mut. Ins. Co., 275 A.D.2d 613, 713 N.Y.S.2d 471, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9183 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2000).

Liability insurer was entitled to summary judgment dismissing third-party claim by insurance agent for fraud in causing agent and employer of injured worker to rely on alleged promises that underlying defendant in personal injury action had been named as additional insured under employer's liability policy where agent did not prove justifiable reliance on insurer's alleged promises, fraud claim stemmed from parties' contractual relationship, and breach of contract claims previously had been dismissed. Maheu v Long Island R.R., 275 A.D.2d 695, 713 N.Y.S.2d 354, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9149 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2000).

General rule is that commercial general liability insurance policy does not afford coverage for breach of contract; to hold otherwise would render insurer surety for performance of its insured's work. Structural Bldg. Prods. Corp. v Business Ins. Agency, Inc., 281 A.D.2d 617, 722 N.Y.S.2d 559, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3055 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2001).

Assignor's N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420 suit against an excess insurer was not barred by res judicata based on a declaratory judgment in a prior action; the determinative issue in the declaratory judgment action was whether notice of the underlying claims given to the insured's insurance broker could have been imputed to the excess insurer, but in the case at bar, no contract, agency, or insurance coverage issues were involved. Rather, this was a statutory action to collect an unpaid settlement in which the only defense available was that the assignor did not satisfy the statutory obligation to provide notice as soon as reasonably possible in light of the opportunities to do so afforded under the circumstances. Cicero v Great Am. Ins. Co., 53 A.D.3d 461, 863 N.Y.S.2d 395, 2008 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6272 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2008).

Cause of action based on negligent spoliation of evidence may be asserted by insured in third-party action against its insurer based on insurer's alleged loss or destruction of key evidence crucial to insured's defense in underlying action. Fada Indus. v Falchi Bldg. Co., L.P., 189 Misc. 2d 1, 730 N.Y.S.2d 827, 2001 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 225 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 2001).

Since the tortfeasors' policy limits for bodily injury liability were identical to the insurer's policy limits for bodily injury liability, pursuant to N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(f)(2)(A), the tortfeasors' vehicle was not underinsured. Matter of Government Empls. Ins. Co. v Young, 39 A.D.3d 751, 835 N.Y.S.2d 283, 2007 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4745 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2007).

It was unavailing for insureds to argue that an excess policy was issued for delivery in New York pursuant to N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(d); the insureds were not specified or expressly mentioned in the policy. Thus, Ohio law governed the dispute. FC Bruckner Assoc., L.P. v Fireman's Fund Ins. Co., 95 A.D.3d 556, 944 N.Y.S.2d 84, 2012 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3646 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2012).

N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(d), which applies to coverage for death or bodily injury arising out of a motor vehicle accident or any other type of accident occurring within the state, has nothing to do with liability under a directors and officers policy, and only applies within the State of New York; therefore, it did not apply to the determination in an Illinois bankruptcy court of whether an excess insurer of a debtor's officers and directors had a duty to timely respond to the debtor's notice of circumstances. Chatz v Nat'l Union Fire Ins. Co. (In re Nanovation Techs., Inc.), 347 B.R. 314, 2006 Bankr. LEXIS 1614 (Bankr. N.D. Ill. 2006), aff'd in part and rev'd in part, 372 B.R. 368, 2007 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 27536 (N.D. Ill. 2007).

It was undisputed that the at-issue boat was a "vessel," and the court declined to address the physical capacities of the boat and focused instead upon the express geographical limits expressed in the marine insurance policy at issue to conclude that the boat was not an "ocean going vessel" for purposes of N.Y. Ins. Law § 2117(b)(3)(B); accordingly, N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420 applied to the policy. Jefferson Ins. Co. v Cassella, 261 F. Supp. 2d 160, 2003 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 7882 (E.D.N.Y. 2003).

Since N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420 creates a statutory cause of action where one did not exist under common law, it is strictly construed and does not create any rights which are not expressly provided in it. Vargas v Boston Chicken, Inc., 269 F. Supp. 2d 92, 2003 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 10900 (E.D.N.Y. 2003).

Court dismissed injured parties' direct action against insurers, which was brought under Cal. Ins. Code § 11580, because New York law applied; the relevant automobile insurance policies contained references to New York law, N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(a)(2) imposed limits on insurers' liability and notice requirements not included in Cal. Ins. Code § 11580, and the mere fact that the collision involving the injured parties occurred in California did not outweigh New York's interests. Van Winkle v Allstate Ins. Co., 290 F. Supp. 2d 1158, 2003 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 19855 (C.D. Cal. 2003).

Ocean-going vessels are statutorily exempt from the requirements of N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420. Ins. Co. of N. Am. v Zaglool, 526 F. Supp. 2d 361, 2007 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 90339 (E.D.N.Y. 2007).

On renewal of insurance policy, insurance company may forward to insured declaration sheet; however, if there are any changes in policy, insurance company must send either new policy or new endorsements. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 00-01-09.

As to those insurance policies which are subject to Insurance Department Regulation No. 90 (fire insurance, fire and extended coverage insurance, and private passenger automobile insurance subject to CLS Ins § 3425), if insurer chooses to send more than one notice of refusal to issue coverage, all notices of refusal to issue coverage mailed or delivered to applicant by insurer, including notice over Internet, must contain anti-redlining notice as prescribed in regulation; neither anti-redlining statute nor regulation applies to homeowner's insurance, and redlining statement is not required in connection with such policies. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 00-05-15.

As to those insurance policies which are subject to Insurance Department Regulation No. 90 (fire insurance, fire and extended coverage insurance, and private passenger automobile insurance subject to CLS Ins § 3425), notices of refusal to issue coverage must be mailed or delivered to applicant, which can be done by electronic means if applicant consents to use of electronic technology, not more than 30 days after application is received by insurance agent or broker; regulatory requirements for mailing or delivery of notice of refusal to issue does not apply to homeowner's policies. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number.

Insurer is required under 11 NYCRR § 243.2 to retain all pertinent information on claim for personal injury or property damage for at least 6 years after claim is closed or after completion of statutory examination covering period in which claim arose, whichever is later. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 00-07-04.

Requirement for motor vehicle insurers to disclose policy limits when requested in writing by claimant's attorney would be covered under CLS Ins §§ 3420(f)(2)(A) and 2601(a)(6). Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 02-05-10.

Terrorism exclusion in general liability insurance policy is not permissible if it is misleading or violative of public policy. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 02-07-16.

Provided that applicable regulatory approvals have been secured in jurisdiction where property is located, authorized insurer's policy form that has been approved in New York may be endorsed to exclude terrorism coverage for property or risk located outside New York where endorsement is not otherwise acceptable in New York so long as such endorsement does not apply to New York property or risk and does not modify New York policy provisions or render them misleading or violative of public policy; such conclusion is not dependent on whether policy was issued in New York or elsewhere. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 02-07-17.

It is permissible under New York Insurance Law for insurer to include coverage for workers compensation and employers liability insurance and homeowner's insurance policy that insurers co-operatively own apartment. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 02-09-01.

When insurance carrier terminates medical benefits for eligible injured person in motor vehicle accident, medical provider generally may not be reimbursed under that person's health insurance policy for additional services provided at provider's usual and customary fees, which exceed those established under no-fault fee schedule. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 02-09-24.

When there is disputed claim for supplementary uninsured/underinsured motorist benefits available under motor vehicle liability policy, insured has right, under Insurance Department Regulation 35-D, to request arbitration or alternately, may choose to initiate court action. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 03-03-27.

Under Rules of New York Automobile Insurance Plan § 14(E)(2)(b), insured must be advised that it has option of remitting premium payment either to his producer or to insurer directly; thus, insurance agent or broker must always take premium payment proffered to it in acceptable form by insured of Assigned Risk Plan. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 05-02-19.

Short time period for submission of information to central organization ISO under 11 NYCRR § 216.8(d)(2) (Regulation 64) makes electronic submission of information pragmatic and acceptable. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 05-05-28.

Although there is no statutory requirement for insurance agent or broker to personally meet individual to whom insurance policy is being sold, individual insurers may require it, and New York Automobile Insurance Plan (NYAIP) requires producer to meet in person with individual to whom insurance policy is being sold. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 06-11-13.

If authorized insurer issues, in New York, policy that is delivered to insured principally headquartered outside of New York, and policy covers multiple-affiliated corporate entities with operations in various states including New York, policy form is subject to form filing requirements in CLS Ins Art 23, and may be subject to other applicable provisions of Insurance Law and regulations promulgated thereunder. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 10-01-04.

Where liquidating trustee and debtors' motor vehicle insurer entered into a stipulation and memorandum of understanding (MOU) to make clear how insurance claims would be handled, claimant had not identified anything about the plan, the MOU, or the pre-petition insurance agreements that violated applicable law because both the liquidating trustee and the insurer represented that the statutory minimums would be paid by the insurer. In re Metro Affiliates, Inc., 2016 Bankr. LEXIS 324 (Bankr. S.D.N.Y. Feb. 3, 2016).

II. Provisions Regarding Injuries To Persons Or Property Generally

5. In general

A legal obligation created by former § 109 [predecessor to former § 167, now § 3420] attaches itself to those policies which insure against liability for bodily injury and property damage or against either type of liability as separate risk. Skenandoa Rayon Corp. v Halifax Fire Ins. Co., 245 A.D. 279, 281 N.Y.S. 193, 1935 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10281 (N.Y. App. Div. 1935), aff'd, 272 N.Y. 457, 3 N.E.2d 867, 272 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 457, 1936 N.Y. LEXIS 951 (N.Y. 1936).

An insured's obligation is then "finally determined" when a jury has brought in a verdict which includes, with other items, that obligation. Bogardus v United States Fidelity & Guaranty Co., 269 A.D. 615, 58 N.Y.S.2d 217, 1945 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3051 (N.Y. App. Div. 1945), reh'g denied, 270 A.D. 801, 60 N.Y.S.2d 270, 1946 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3983 (N.Y. App. Div. 1946).

In an action to recover damages for personal injuries arising out of an auto accident, summary judgment was properly granted to defendant dismissing the complaint on the ground that there were no triable issues of fact, where plaintiff failed to show that he had sustained a "serious injury" in view of the fact that he received only emergency treatment at the hospital before being discharged within two hours, the fact that the physician's report noted gradual improvement to the point when plaintiff was able to return to work in less than two months, and the fact that most of plaintiff's complaints were subjective. Salisbury v St. Louis, 91 A.D.2d 745, 457 N.Y.S.2d 985, 1982 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 19631 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1982).

In action by insured to compel insurance companies to indemnify it in completed action and proceeding arising from mercury spill at its factory, insured had burden of establishing that general provisions of policies provided coverage. Munzer v St. Paul Fire & Marine Ins. Co., 145 A.D.2d 193, 538 N.Y.S.2d 633, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1978 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1989).

N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(d), by its terms, was limited to disclaimers for death or bodily injury and was therefore inapplicable to a contractor's suit seeking indemnification under a commercial general liability policy for negligence and contractual claims brought against it. J. Lucarelli & Sons, Inc. v Mountain Val. Indem. Co., 64 A.D.3d 856, 881 N.Y.S.2d 708, 2009 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5315 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2009).

Former § 109 [predecessor to former § 167, now § 3420] requires the defendant to insure for liability and "for damages for death or for injuries to person or property." The requirement of former § 109 is valid and within the police power of the state, so that an insurance company is bound by the provisions thereof and it was without power to limit or vary the prescribed liability by inconsistent contractual provisions. Brustein v New Amsterdam Casualty Co., 238 N.Y.S. 313, 135 Misc. 352, 1929 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1029 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1929), aff'd, 230 A.D. 716, 243 N.Y.S. 770, 1930 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8832 (N.Y. App. Div. 1930).

A third party bringing an action by virtue of the provisions of former § 109 [predecessor to former § 167, now § 3420] can only avail himself of the effect of such provisions if the policy in question was in full force and effect for the benefit of the insurer. Searle v Southern Surety Co., 247 N.Y.S. 340, 138 Misc. 699, 1930 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1737 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1930).

Purpose of former § 109 [predecessor to former § 167, now § 3420] is to protect an injured person. Larkin v Munson S.S. Line, 100 F.2d 393, 1938 U.S. App. LEXIS 2659 (2d Cir. N.Y. 1938).

Unless there has been actual physical damage to property other than property of insured, there can be no recovery for intangible losses under New York Insurance Law. Aetna Casualty & Surety Co. v General Time Corp., 704 F.2d 80, 1983 U.S. App. LEXIS 29267 (2d Cir. N.Y. 1983).

Insurance Law, which requires owners of all motor vehicles operating in New York to maintain minimum of $25,000/$50,000 in third party liability coverage on their vehicles, does not require owner of livery vehicle operating in New York City to maintain minimum $100,000/$300,000 in third party liability coverage; rather, it is Taxi and Limousine Commission that requires livery vehicles to maintain $100,000/$300,000 of such coverage. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 02-03-07.

Even though specific language of standard fire policy is not mandated, no insurance policy may provide coverage as to peril of fire that is not at least as favorable to insured as provided in standard fire policy; thus, as to peril of fire, no insurer may issue policy on any property in New York containing exclusion not specifically allowed under CLS Ins § 3404. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 02-05-19.

Terrorism exclusion is not one of permissible exclusions that are specified in standard fire policy, and addition of such exclusion would have effect of narrowing coverage otherwise provided under standard fire policy; thus, no fire insurance policy made, issued, or delivered on any property in New York may contain terrorism exclusion as to peril of fire. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 02-05-19.

As to perils other than fire, there is nothing in CLS Insurance Law that specifically restricts or otherwise limits exclusions that may be contained in property insurance policy in that regard or that would otherwise require special risk insurer to provide coverage for damage or loss resulting from acts of terrorism; however, CLS Ins § 2307(b) states that policy may not be misleading or violative of public policy and, although special risk insurer is exempt from filing policy forms for approval by Superintendent of Insurance, those standards are nonetheless applicable since CLS Ins Art 63 exempts special risk insurers from only filing requirements, not compliance and standards requirements as expressed in CLS Insurance Law and regulations promulgated thereunder. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 02-05-19.

New York State Insurance Law does not require insurance policy, which provides comprehensive personal liability insurance on one, 2-, 3-, or 4-family owner-occupied dwelling, to include workers' compensation coverage for domestic worker who works fewer than 40 hours per week for same policyholder. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 03-05-22.

Policyholder under comprehensive personal liability insurance for one, 2-, 3-, or 4-family owner-occupied dwelling may obtain workers' compensation coverage for domestic worker if policyholder elects to secure compensation to such employee by (1) "insuring and keeping insured the payment of such compensation in the state fund," or (2) "insuring and keeping insured the payment of such compensation with any stock corporation, mutual corporation or reciprocal insurer authorized to transact the business of workmen's compensation insurance in the state." Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 03-05-22.

Homeowners policy must provide coverage for obligations that homeowner incurs pursuant to provisions of Workers' Compensation Law. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 05-11-13.

6. Particular happenings as injuries to persons or property

The loss of a wife's services does not fall within the category of injuries to persons as those words are used in former § 109 [predecessor to former § 167, now § 3420]. Brustein v New Amsterdam Casualty Co., 255 N.Y. 137, 174 N.E. 304, 255 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 137, 1931 N.Y. LEXIS 657 (N.Y. 1931).

A policy of insurance indemnifying a physician against loss from claim for damages "on account of any malpractice, error or mistake committed" by the insured does not cover liability in an action for breach of an express agreement by the insured to remove certain markings from a patient's face and restore it to normal. Safian v Aetna Life Ins. Co., 260 A.D. 765, 24 N.Y.S.2d 92, 1940 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4712 (N.Y. App. Div. 1940), aff'd, 286 N.Y. 649, 36 N.E.2d 692, 286 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 649, 1941 N.Y. LEXIS 2195 (N.Y. 1941).

In action by infants to recover directly from defendant father for unsatisfied personal injury judgment entered against father, who is defendant's insured under homeowners insurance policy, for injuries suffered in skiing accident, summary judgment dismissing complaint was properly granted because interfamily exclusion in policy issued to plaintiff's father relieved defendant of any duty to indemnify him for his liability to his daughter; exclusion is clear, unambiguous and plainly applicable, and is neither prohibited by Insurance Law nor void as against public policy. Suba v State Farm Fire & Casualty Co., 114 A.D.2d 280, 498 N.Y.S.2d 656, 1986 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 49981 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't), app. denied, 67 N.Y.2d 610, 504 N.Y.S.2d 1023, 495 N.E.2d 356, 1986 N.Y. LEXIS 18707 (N.Y. 1986), app. dismissed, 68 N.Y.2d 665, 505 N.Y.S.2d 1029, 496 N.E.2d 242, 1986 N.Y. LEXIS 19077 (N.Y. 1986).

Exclusions in policy issued to gas station for damages caused by release of petroleum into "any body of water" did not apply where soil and underground water was contaminated by gasoline leaking from service station's underground storage tanks and where there were no underground lakes, rivers, or ponds in area, but only percolating water in various rock strata; such water does not fall within common understanding of term "body of water." State v Travelers Indem. Co., 120 A.D.2d 251, 508 N.Y.S.2d 698, 1986 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 60012 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1986), app. dismissed, 70 N.Y.2d 669, 518 N.Y.S.2d 962, 512 N.E.2d 545, 1987 N.Y. LEXIS 17318 (N.Y. 1987).

Action brought by employee injured at work in fall from ladder, alleging that employer deprived her of potential recovery against manufacturer by negligently discarding ladder, could rationally be construed as one falling within provisions of insurance policy which obligated employer's workers' compensation and employer liability carrier to defend any proceeding "alleging personal injuries" sustained in course of employment and "seeking damages on account thereof"; thus, employer was entitled to summary judgment in its action against carrier seeking recovery for counsel fees expended in defending against employee's claim after carrier had refused to do so. Arnot Ogden Memorial Hospital v Unigard Mut. Ins. Co., 128 A.D.2d 960, 512 N.Y.S.2d 924, 1987 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 44623 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1987).

Allegations of injury from exposure to asbestos installed or applied by insulation contractor fell within "products hazard" coverage of contractor's insurance policies where (1) first policy covered "any bodily injury or property damage arising out of the named insured's products" away from insured's premises and after insured's relinquishment of physical possession of products, (2) second policy covered "the handling or use of, the existence of any condition in or a warranty of...goods or products manufactured, sold, handled or distributed by the named insured," (3) underlying complaints sought to impose liability for hazardous and injurious nature of "asbestos containing products" allegedly negligently installed and applied by contractor, and thus negligent installation claims would require proof that insulation material itself was injurious, and (4) installation was handling or distribution of product installed, even though product was supplied in combination with service of installation. Frontier Insulation Contrs. v Merchants Mut. Ins. Co., 238 A.D.2d 894, 660 N.Y.S.2d 768, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4684 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't), reh'g denied, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7990 (N.Y. In action involving 3 insurers which issued consecutive policies on building in which child suffered injuries due to continuous exposure to lead based paint, insurer whose policy was in effect from February 1987 to February 1988 was not entitled to summary judgment on its claim for full reimbursement of share of settlement amount (which it had paid on advance basis) where, although child was born in May 1987 and was not seen ingesting lead paint until May 1990, child already had increased lead level in November 1988 when he was 18 months old, and mother complained about paint in apartment from before child's birth through his diagnosis in September 1990. American Empire Ins. Co. v PSM Ins. Cos., 259 A.D.2d 341, 687 N.Y.S.2d 32, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2767 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1999).

Seizure and impounding of plaintiff's vehicle by sheriff did not constitute "theft" within comprehensive loss provision of plaintiff's insurance policy. Pangburn v Travelers Ins. A comprehensive clause in an automobile insurance policy that provided coverage "for direct and accidental loss to [the] covered" vehicle, afforded protection to the insured for damages caused by negligence allegedly committed by defendant automobile repair shop, where the clause was designed to afford protection against all causes of loss, damage or destruction not specifically excluded, and where the policy's exclusion for damages resulting from mechanical breakdowns or failures was inapplicable, in that it applied only when the damage was caused solely by mechanical defects, not when the alleged negligence was an intervening proximate cause of the damage. Caccioppo v United Services Auto. Ass'n, 125 Misc. 2d 698, 479 N.Y.S.2d 688, 1984 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3472 (N.Y. Civ. Ct. 1984).

Claim of state against landowner responsible for discharge of petroleum into creek which ran through his property, for amounts expended by state in cleanup effort, constituted property damage covered under landowner's liability policy, since statute imposing cost of cleanup, CLS Nav § 170, is not punitive in nature but rather reflects state's power to establish damages for injury to public resources. Don Clark, Inc. v United States Fidelity & Guaranty Co., 145 Misc. 2d 218, 545 N.Y.S.2d 968, 1989 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 618 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1989).

Claim of state against landowner responsible for discharge of petroleum into creek which ran through his property, for amounts expended by state in cleanup effort, constituted property damage covered under landowner's liability policy, although policy did not cover damage to landowner's own property, since creek was not property owned by landowner. Don Clark, Inc. v United States Fidelity & Guaranty Co., 145 Misc. 2d 218, 545 N.Y.S.2d 968, 1989 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 618 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1989).

Where a plaintiff suffered a "wry neck" as the result of opening windows to clear an apartment of coal gas escaping from the heating system, she sustained bodily injuries accidentally suffered. Cohen v National Casualty Co., 29 N.Y.S.2d 999, 1941 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2200 (N.Y. Mun. Ct. 1941).

Malpractice policy was a policy or contract insurance liability for injury to person under N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(a) as the policy covered personal injury claims, notwithstanding its exclusion for bodily injury claims; injury to person in § 3420(a) overlapped the concept of personal injury in N.Y. Gen. Constr. Law § 37-a and the concept of personal injury in the policy. McCabe v St. Paul Fire & Mar. Ins. Co., 884 N.Y.S.2d 634, 25 Misc. 3d 726, 2009 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2153 (N.Y. Sup. III. Insolvency of Insured

7. In general

An action cannot be maintained under former § 109 [predecessor to former § 167, now § 3420] to recover from an insurer, which had issued a policy covering accidents resulting in "bodily injuries or death" the amount of the judgment against the insured, who was insolvent, for loss of services, resulting from injuries to plaintiff's wife in automobile accident, occasioned through negligence of insured. Brustein v New Amsterdam Casualty Co., 255 N.Y. 137, 174 N.E. 304, 255 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 137, 1931 N.Y. LEXIS 657 (N.Y. 1931).

An insurer is liable under former § 167 [now § 3420] for the amount of the judgment plaintiff obtained against the insolvent assured and the fact that the accident happened after the cancellation of the policy does not bar the action. Kelley v Indemnity Ins. Co., 252 A.D. 58, 297 N.Y.S. 228, 1937 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5580 (N.Y. App. Div.), aff'd, 276 N.Y. 606, 12 N.E.2d 599, 276 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 606, 1937 N.Y. LEXIS 1164 (N.Y. 1937).

Former § 167 [now § 3420] confines the remedy given in the event of insolvency of a judgment debtor solely to the person injured or his personal representative. Jackson v Citizens Casualty Co., 252 A.D. 393, 299 N.Y.S. 644, 1937 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5676 (N.Y. App. Div. 1937), aff'd, 277 N.Y. 385, 14 N.E.2d 446, 277 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 385, 1938 N.Y. LEXIS 993 (N.Y. 1938).

Client was not entitled to summary judgment in a legal malpractice suit arising out of the lawyers' failure to to preserve the client's N.Y. Lab. Law § 240 claim during the site owner's bankruptcy because there was no proof that the client's employer included the site owner as an additional insured as required by contract, and the client thus failed to establish that a potential claim existed under N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420 against the insurer. Lue v Finkelstein & Partners, LLP, 94 A.D.3d 1386, 943 N.Y.S.2d 636, 2012 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3264 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2012).

While N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(a)(1) provided that an insured's bankruptcy did not limit or diminish the insurer's exposure to a customer's personal injury claims, the customer's professed confusion regarding the applicable law was insufficient to constitute a reasonable excuse for a 38-month delay in notifying the insurer of an accident and the customer's claims. Kalthoff v Arrowood Indem. Co., 95 A.D.3d 1413, 943 N.Y.S.2d 645, 2012 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3505 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), app. denied, 19 N.Y.3d 815, 955 N.Y.S.2d 553, 979 N.E.2d 814, 2012 N.Y. LEXIS 3306 (N.Y. 2012).

Under former New York common law, insurer under indemnity insurance policy was not liable to injured person who has obtained judgment against insured even though insured is insolvent and cannot pay judgment; CLS Ins § 3420(i) expressly preserves application of such common-law rule to marine insurance contracts, such as protection and indemnity (P&I) policies. Dicola v American S.S. Owners Mut. Protection & Indem. Assoc. (In re Prudential Lines), 158 F.3d 65, 1998 U.S. App. LEXIS 24614 (2d Cir. N.Y. 1998).

Former § 109 [predecessor to former § 167, now § 3420] required that any policy issued by an insurance corporation, in the future, to indemnify the owner of a motor vehicle against liability to persons injured through negligence in its operation, shall provide that the insolvency or bankruptcy of the insured shall not release the company from the payment of damages for an injury sustained during the life of the policy, and that, in case execution against the insured in an action brought by a person so injured shall be returned unsatisfied because of such insolvency or bankruptcy, the injured person may maintain an action against the company on the policy for the amount of the judgment not exceeding the amount of the policy: Held (1) that the regulation is reasonable and within the police power; it cannot be said to deprive the insurance company of property without due process of law. (2) That it does not conflict with the bankruptcy act by providing for illegal preference. Merchants Mut. Auto. Liability Ins. Co. v Smart, 267 U.S. 126, 45 S. Ct. 320, 69 L. Ed. 538, 1925 U.S. LEXIS 817 (U.S. 1925).

The provision of former § 109 [predecessor to former § 167, now § 3420] "that the insolvency or bankruptcy of the person insured or the insolvency of his estate, shall not release the insurance carrier from the payment of damages for injury sustained" is not "in conflict with" provisions of a policy under which as between the insured and insurer the insured bears the loss. Larkin v Munson S.S. Line, 100 F.2d 393, 1938 U.S. App. LEXIS 2659 (2d Cir. N.Y. 1938).

Insurance Law former § 167(1) [now § 3420(a)] was designed to insure that injured persons with unsatisfied claims against a bankrupt receive the proceeds of insurance before they enrich the bankrupt's general creditors. The legislative history makes it clear that the section was not intended to establish any difference in the substantive rights of one who has procured a judgment against his injuror before bankruptcy and one who has not. Thus, the subrogee of the injured person has the right to satisfy its claim against the insured out of the proceeds of the insurance policy, subject to the limitations only that the subrogee could not recover from the insurer more than the a face value of the policy, and that rights acquired by the insured by virtue of its own payments to the injured person would be taken into account. In re F. O. Baroff Co., 555 F.2d 38, 1977 U.S. App. LEXIS 13414 (2d Cir. N.Y. 1977).

8. What constitutes insolvency

Under former § 109 [predecessor to former § 167, now § 3420] providing that the insolvency or bankruptcy of an insured shall not release the liability insurer, where an execution against insured is returned unsatisfied, it was held that "insolvency" is not limited to judicially declared insolvency, but must be given its usual broad meaning of general financial irresponsibility. Miller v Union Indem. Co., 209 A.D. 455, 204 N.Y.S. 730, 1924 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8653 (N.Y. App. Div. 1924).

Debtor and Creditor Law, § 271 furnishes a satisfactory definition in determining what is meant by the term "insolvency" in the policy and in former § 109 [predecessor to former § 167, now § 3420]. Gullo v Commercial Casualty Ins. Co., 226 A.D. 429, 235 N.Y.S. 584, 1929 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8741 (N.Y. App. Div. 1929).

Where execution against the defendant's insured was returned unsatisfied, such return was prima facie evidence of the insured's insolvency. Under such circumstances, an action under former § 109 [predecessor to former § 167, now § 3420] may be maintained against the insurance company. Shaw v Citizens' Casualty Co., 241 A.D. 399, 273 N.Y.S. 153, 1934 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8261 (N.Y. App. Div. 1934).

The word "insolvency," as used in former § 109 [predecessor to former § 167, now § 3420], means general financial irresponsibility and should not be construed as referring only to judicially declared insolvency. Weiss v New Jersey Fidelity & Plate Glass Ins. Co., 228 N.Y.S. 314, 131 Misc. 836, 1928 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 806 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1928).

9. Necessity of execution and levy

The return of an execution unsatisfied, even if occasioned by a restraining order of a Federal court, because of a judgment based on insolvency, is the same as a return unsatisfied because of insolvency, for the purpose of this section. Gullo v Commercial Casualty Ins. Co., 226 A.D. 429, 235 N.Y.S. 584, 1929 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8741 (N.Y. App. Div. 1929).

The fact that no levy was made under execution was immaterial, where the execution was returned unsatisfied because of insolvency, particularly where the defendant established the fact that the assured has other unsatisfied judgments against him. Perlman v Independence Indem. Co., 235 N.Y.S. 194, 134 Misc. 499, 1929 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 849 (N.Y. App. Term 1929).

10. Insurer's defenses

Plaintiffs' actions to recover for personal injuries received through the negligent operation of an automobile, who, the owner being insolvent, bring their actions against the insurance company, can recover only when the insured has complied with the condition of the policy. Seltzer v Indemnity Ins. Co., 252 N.Y. 330, 169 N.E. 403, 252 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 330, 1929 N.Y. LEXIS 564 (N.Y. 1929).

In an action to recover the amount of the unsatisfied judgment from an insurance company, the trial court properly denied the insurance company summary judgment as while it made diligent efforts to bring about the insured's cooperation, its submissions failed to demonstrate that the conduct of the insured constituted willful and avowed obstruction for the insurance company to avoid liability. Foddrell v Utica First Ins. Co., 178 A.D.3d 901, 116 N.Y.S.3d 59, 2019 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9076 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2019).

Former § 109 [predecessor to former § 167, now § 3420], providing that an insured's bankruptcy shall not release the insurer from liability to an injured person, does not deprive the insurer of any defense which it could urge against the insured under the policy. An insured's refusal to give the insurer information respecting claim against the insured for improperly filling prescription was held a breach of liability policy requiring the insured to co-operate with the insurer in defending actions. What constitutes "co-operation" within a policy requiring the insured to co-operate with the insurer in defense of an action against him, is usually a question of fact. Coleman v New Amsterdam Casualty Co., 213 N.Y.S. 522, 126 Misc. 380, 1926 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 572 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1926), aff'd, 220 A.D. 748, 222 N.Y.S. 788, 1927 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9854 (N.Y. App. Div. 1927).

Although subd. 1 of former § 167 [now § 3420(a)] prohibits use of the insured's insolvency or bankruptcy as a defense to the insurance company and gives the injured person a direct cause of action against the insurer if his judgment against the insured remains unsatisfied for 30 days, where the insured is insolvent at the time of the accident and subsequently goes into bankruptcy, thereby discharging any possibility of collecting from him the excess amount of the judgment obtained against him over his insurance coverage, his trustee in bankruptcy has no cause of action against the insurer for bad faith in failing to settle the claim of the injured person within the limits of the policy coverage, as, in such case, the insured can establish no damage suffered as the result of the insurer's failure to settle. Harris v Standard Acci. & Ins. Co., 297 F.2d 627, 1961 U.S. App. LEXIS 3036 (2d Cir. N.Y. 1961), cert. denied, 369 U.S. 843, 82 S. Ct. 875, 7 L. Ed. 2d 847, 1962 U.S. LEXIS 2217 (U.S. 1962).

11. Other matters

Where an execution upon a judgment, recovered in an action by a member of the crew against the owner for personal injuries received upon vessel, is returned unsatisfied by reason of the insolvency of the owner, an action may be maintained under former § 109 [predecessor to former § 167, now § 3420] to recover upon policy of marine insurance, as defined in former § 150 [predecessor to former § 46, now § 1113] insuring against liability for personal injuries suffered by any person while on the vessel. Provisions of former § 109 [predecessor to former § 167, now § 3420] apply to any policy issued by a stock company authorized to insure against liability for personal injuries, whether on land or sea. Hansen v Continental Ins. Co., 262 N.Y. 136, 186 N.E. 420, 262 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 136, 1933 N.Y. LEXIS 926 (N.Y. 1933).

Under § 109 (1) [predecessor to former § 167, now § 3420] a cause of action may not be assigned where a judgment against insured, recovered in an action for personal injuries, remains unsatisfied. Royal Indem. Co. v Travelers' Ins. Co., 244 A.D. 582, 280 N.Y.S. 485, 1935 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5877 (N.Y. App. Div. 1935), aff'd, 270 N.Y. 574, 1 N.E.2d 337, 270 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 574, 1936 N.Y. LEXIS 1635 (N.Y. 1936).

Court properly stayed arbitration of uninsured motorist claim where claimant, who had access to policy in that named insured was his wife with whom he resided, failed to comply with condition precedent to coverage under uninsured motorist endorsement of policy requiring that he file statement under oath within 90 days of accident. American Home Assurance Co. v Ceballos, 224 A.D.2d 612, 639 N.Y.S.2d 397, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1369 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't), app. denied, 88 N.Y.2d 809, 647 N.Y.S.2d 714, 670 N.E.2d 1346, 1996 N.Y. LEXIS 2076 (N.Y. 1996).

In an action under former § 109 [predecessor to former § 167, now § 3420], the statutory right of action against an insurer, on judgment recovered against a bankrupt insured and the return of unsatisfied execution thereon is not postponed to determination of appeal from such judgment. This conclusion is fortified by the language of policy and provisions of Vehicle & Traffic Law, § 17. Materazzi v Commercial Casualty Ins. Co., 283 N.Y.S. 942, 157 Misc. 365, 1935 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1606 (N.Y. Sup. Ct.), aff'd, 246 A.D. 522, 283 N.Y.S. 430, 1935 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8869 (N.Y. App. Div. 1935).

Trial court erred in granting insurer's petition to stay arbitration on insured's demand for supplementary uninsured motorist ("SUM") benefits where the insured, as a purchaser of SUM benefits allowed by N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(f)(2), was entitled to seek those benefits on the insolvency of an alleged tortfeasor's insurer and was not required to proceed against the New York Public Motor Vehicle Liability Security Fund. Metro. Prop. & Cas. Ins. Co. v Carpentier, 7 A.D.3d 627, 777 N.Y.S.2d 146, 2004 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6874 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2004).

Insurer was not liable to the liquidator of an insurance company under N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(a)(2) and a directors and officers policy where the president had diverted the insurance company's premiums to his other entities as part of an integrated transaction designed to benefit his entities and the policy contained exclusions for personal profit or advantage and for dishonesty. Serio v National Union Fire Ins. Co. of Pittsburgh, Pa., 18 A.D.3d 319, 795 N.Y.S.2d 529, 2005 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5242 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2005), app. denied, 2005 N.Y. App. Div. Asbestosis claimants received nothing of value from trustee of insolvent shipping line when trustee (with approval by Bankruptcy Court) disbursed damages payment to each claimant, who then returned money to trustee as non-recourse loan so that it would be on hand to pay next claimant, and so on; thus, trustee sustained no true loss and such sham transaction failed to trigger indemnification obligation on part of trustee's insurer under pay first provision requiring that trustee pay any claims prior to seeking indemnification from insurer. Dicola v American S.S. Owners Mut. Protection & Indem. Assoc. (In re Prudential Lines), 158 F.3d 65, 1998 U.S. App. LEXIS 24614 (2d Cir. N.Y. 1998).

Marine insured's lack of assets to satisfy claims against bankrupt estate typically leaves insured unable to sustain loss and pay claim; this is simply one consequence of purchasing marine policy of indemnity rather than liability policy. Dicola v American S.S. Owners Mut. Protection & Indem. Assoc. (In re Prudential Lines), 158 F.3d 65, 1998 U.S. App. LEXIS 24614 (2d Cir. N.Y. 1998).

Where a debtor had consented to the lifting of the automatic stay under 11 U.S.C.S. § 365 so that certain personal injury claims could proceed as long as recovery was limited to insurance proceeds, the debtor's failure to pay a retrospective premium claimed to be due, or failure to fund the costs of, or any awards resulting from, the personal injury actions to the extent of the self-insured retention amount, did not relieve an insurance company of its obligation to pay claims under a pre-petition policy. This conclusion did not violate the term of the self-insured retention endorsement and was consistent with N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420's requirement that the insurance company would not be relieved of its obligations because of the debtor's bankruptcy. Admiral Ins. Co., v Grace Indus. (In re Grace Indus.), 341 B.R. 399, 2006 Bankr. LEXIS 473 (Bankr. E.D.N.Y. 2006), aff'd, 409 B.R. 275, 2009 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 63785 (E.D.N.Y. 2009).

Bankruptcy court found that cause existed under 11 U.S.C.S. § 362(d) to allow two insurers that issued director and officer liability insurance and errors and omissions insurance to a commodities firm that declared Chapter 11 bankruptcy to pay costs the firm's directors and officers incurred in defending lawsuits that were filed by customers who did business with the firm and an affiliated business, and entities that held securities the firm issued. The insurers remained liable under the policies, pursuant to N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420, even though the firm had declared bankruptcy, and although the policies were property of the firm's bankruptcy estate under 11 U.S.C.S. § 541, the purpose of the policies was to protect the firm's officers and directors and they had a present need to receive the benefit of their contractual rights. In re MF Global Holdings Ltd., 469 B.R. 177, 2012 Bankr. LEXIS 1543 (Bankr. S.D.N.Y. 2012), app. dismissed, 566 Fed. Appx. 81, 2014 U.S. App. LEXIS 9188 (2d Cir. N.Y. 2014).

Where bankrupt was insured under former § 109 [predecessor to former § 167, now § 3420] a claimant could not be allowed to continue an action in a state court under stipulation that he should not use any judgment obtained against estate in bankruptcy and execution being unsatisfied the claimant could then proceed under § 109 [Now § 3420] against the insurance carrier. Foust v Munson S.S. Lines, 299 U.S. 77, 57 S. Ct. 90, 81 L. Ed. 49, 1936 U.S. LEXIS 943 (U.S. 1936).

Where the bankrupt was insured at the time of the wrongful death of claimant's deceased and an action was pending in state court, that action should be completed to liquidate claim and give claimant the added assurance that the debt, if established, would be paid by the insurance company. In action by injured third party against bankruptcy trustee for insured debtor, Insurance Law former § 167 [now § 3420] permits recovery by third party against funds paid by insurer to insured debtor for indemnification up to policy limits for partial satisfaction of judgment obtained by third party. In re F. O. Baroff Co., 555 F.2d 38, 1977 U.S. App. LEXIS 13414 (2d Cir. N.Y. 1977).

Under New York common law, insurer under indemnity insurance contract is not liable to injured person who has obtained judgment against insured, even though insured is insolvent and cannot pay judgment; while New York has changed this common law rule by statute permitting direct action by injured person against insurer, statute is made expressly inapplicable to marine insurance contracts. Ahmed v American S.S. Owners Mut. Protection & Indem. Asso., 444 F. Supp. 569, 1978 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 19910 (N.D. Cal. 1978), aff'd in part, 640 F.2d 993, 1981 U.S. App. LEXIS 19525 (9th Cir. Cal. 1981).

IV. Rights of Judgment Creditor of Insured

12. In general

An action by the injured person against the tortfeasor's liability insurer as authorized by statute is not an action in the nature of one brought on a judgment. Holmes v Allstate Ins. Co., 33 A.D.2d 96, 305 N.Y.S.2d 563, 1969 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2779 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1969).

The judgment rendered against the insured is binding upon the insurer in an action by the judgment creditor only to the extent of the matters necessarily adjudged therein. Holmes v Allstate Ins. Co., 33 A.D.2d 96, 305 N.Y.S.2d 563, 1969 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2779 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1969).

Former § 109 [predecessor to former § 167, now § 3420] makes a return of execution unsatisfied on a judgment against the insured the sole condition precedent to an action against the insurer under the statute. Youknot v United States Fidelity & Guaranty Co., 283 N.Y.S. 902, 158 Misc. 83, 1935 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1602 (N.Y. Sup. Ct.), aff'd, 245 A.D. 705, 281 N.Y.S. 968, 1935 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10429 (N.Y. App. Div. 1935).

Former § 167 [now § 3420] is not limited to the insured person named in the policy but extends to third-party judgment creditors of the insured. Kaye v Doe, 125 N.Y.S.2d 135, 204 Misc. 719, 1953 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2292 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1953).

Except as Insurance Law former § 167 [now § 3420] gives the judgment creditor a right of action, he is not a third-party beneficiary of the contract of insurance obtained by the insured; injured party has no right of action against the insurer, after having obtained a judgment in excess of the policy limits, for failure of the insurer to settle the claim within the policy limits prior or during the action. Browdy v State-Wide Ins. Co., 56 Misc. 2d 610, 289 N.Y.S.2d 711, 1968 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1557 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1968).

In plaintiffs' action pursuant to N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(a)(2) to recover an unsatisfied judgment against an insured of defendant, an insurance company, the trial court erred in converting plaintiffs' motion for summary judgment in lieu of complaint pursuant to N.Y. C.P.L.R. 3213 to one for summary judgment pursuant to N.Y. C.P.L.R. 3212, as the facts and circumstances did not support such a conversion, and the use of a "motion-action" pursuant to N.Y. C.P.L.R. 3213 was not appropriate, as the insurance company was not named in the judgment, a prima facie case against the company was not made out by the judgment itself, and the outside evidence needed to demonstrate the liability of the company for the judgment required more than a de minimis deviation from the face of the judgment. Gottlieb v Blue Ridge Ins. Co., 300 A.D.2d 541, 752 N.Y.S.2d 565, 2002 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12713 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2002).

Where the insurer cited the failure of its insureds to provide it notice, but the injured person furnished notice of the accident shortly after the occurrence of the automobile accident, summary judgment should have been granted in favor of the injured person in his N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(a)(2) and (b)(1) action. Vacca v State Farm Ins. Co., 15 A.D.3d 473, 790 N.Y.S.2d 177, 2005 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1590 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2005).

Nothing in CLS Ins L § 3420 suggests that judgment creditor can execute on judgment against judgment debtor's insurer, but rather, statute merely provides for liability in event that judgment creditor, as third-party beneficiary of insurance contract, brings separate suit against insurer. Matthews v CTI Container Transport International, Inc., 689 F. Supp. 348, 1988 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 7960 (S.D.N.Y. 1988).

13. Liability in event policy does not contain provision of subsection (a)(2)

Plaintiffs' claim under this section failed since defendant one did not issue or deliver an insurance policy in New York State. Carlson v American Intl. Group, Inc., 130 A.D.3d 1479, 12 N.Y.S.3d 715, 2015 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5693 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't), app. denied, 132 A.D.3d 1331, 17 N.Y.S.3d 346, 2015 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7149 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 2015), modified, 30 N.Y.3d 288, 89 N.E.3d 490, 67 N.Y.S.3d 100, 2017 N.Y. LEXIS 3280 (N.Y. 2017), in part, 28 N.Y.3d 1163, 71 N.E.3d 583, 49 N.Y.S.3d 90, 2017 N.Y. LEXIS 181 (N.Y. 2017).

Claim under this section against defendant two failed as the insured (I) hired the driver's employer (DE) under a cartage agreement as an independent contractor, and the fact that I required the DE vehicles to have a certain appearance did not show the requisite control over the vehicle for a hired automobile; the vehicle was not being used at the time of the accident by I's employee or in its behalf, but was being used by the DE's employee under an independent contract, and I did not have control over the DE's vehicle and could not grant the DE permission to use it. Carlson v American Intl. Group, Inc., 130 A.D.3d 1479, 12 N.Y.S.3d 715, 2015 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5693 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't), app. denied, 132 A.D.3d 1331, 17 N.Y.S.3d 346, 2015 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7149 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 2015), modified, 30 N.Y.3d 288, 89 N.E.3d 490, 67 N.Y.S.3d 100, 2017 N.Y. LEXIS 3280 (N.Y. 2017), in part, 28 N.Y.3d 1163, 71 N.E.3d 583, 49 N.Y.S.3d 90, 2017 N.Y. LEXIS 181 (N.Y. 2017).

Inasmuch as former § 109 [predecessor to former § 167, now § 3420] requires that no policy of liability insurance shall be issued or delivered in this state unless it contains a provision making an insurance carrier liable for judgment for damages recovered against an insured, it must be presumed that the policy sold to an insured did contain that provision. Searle v Southern Surety Co., 247 N.Y.S. 337, 139 Misc. 175, 1930 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1736 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1930).

Since former § 167 [now § 3420] requires that policies of motor vehicle liability insurance contain a provision that in case judgment against the insured in an action brought to recover damages remains unsatisfied an action may be maintained against the insurer under the terms of the policy for the amount of such judgment, such a provision is deemed to be part of, and will be read into, every policy of automobile liability insurance upon its issuance in this state. Mireider v New Hampshire Fire Ins. Co., 24 Misc. 2d 765, 204 N.Y.S.2d 504, 1960 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2561 (N.Y. City Ct. 1960).

14. Nature and extent of insurer's liability

Under a policy in which the defendant insurer agreed to pay the insured "all sums which the insured shall become obligated to pay by reason of the liability imposed upon him by law for damages . . . caused by accident" arising out of the use of his automobile, the defendant's liability became fixed on the happening of such an accident to the plaintiff. Stonborough v Preferred Acci. Ins. Co., 292 N.Y. 154, 54 N.E.2d 342, 292 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 154, 1944 N.Y. LEXIS 1386 (N.Y. 1944).

Where a judgment has been obtained by an injured person against the operator of a motor vehicle, this judgment limits the liability of the insurer in any action brought thereafter against the owner of the motor vehicle. Sarine v American Lumbermen's Mut. Casualty Co., 258 A.D. 653, 17 N.Y.S.2d 754, 1940 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8263 (N.Y. App. Div. 1940).

In an action pursuant to former § 167 [now § 3420] by husband and wife as judgment creditors of the assured under an automobile liability insurance policy, to require payment of the judgments obtained by plaintiffs against the assured, amount of the judgment obtained against the insurer could not exceed the policy limits for the insurer's liability with respect to each person and each accident, and must be reduced to accord with such limitations. Wasserman v Glens Falls Ins. Co., 19 A.D.2d 552, 240 N.Y.S.2d 917, 1963 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3750 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1963).

Former § 167 [now § 3420], in giving the injured person the right to sue the insurer after judgment unsatisfied, does not enlarge the insurer's liability. Spadaro v Newark Ins. Co., 21 A.D.2d 226, 249 N.Y.S.2d 753, 1964 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3722 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1964), aff'd, 15 N.Y.2d 1000, 260 N.Y.S.2d 16, 207 N.E.2d 611, 1965 N.Y. LEXIS 1460 (N.Y. 1965).

An action could not be maintained by an insured against his insurer for the balance of a verdict recovered against him over and above the policy limit, where the plaintiff contended that the insurer refused to settle the action for the policy limit, which the insured claimed could have been done prior to the commencement of the trial of the negligence action, where the insured's actions and statements influenced the insurance carrier to reject the offer of settlement. Colbert v Home Indem. Co., 35 A.D.2d 326, 315 N.Y.S.2d 949, 1970 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3291 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1970), app. denied, 28 N.Y.2d 483, 1971 N.Y. LEXIS 1749 (N.Y. 1971).

Where limits of liability under automobile liability insurance policy were $20,000 and insurer had already paid $10,000 in settlement with other parties injured in collision, insurer was liable to remaining injured parties in amount of only $10,000 even though those parties had obtained judgment against insured in amount of $122,000. Negron v Eveready Ins. Co., 53 A.D.2d 815, 385 N.Y.S.2d 87, 1976 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13635 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't), app. dismissed, 40 N.Y.2d 970, 390 N.Y.S.2d 921, 359 N.E.2d 429, 1976 N.Y. LEXIS 3177 (N.Y. 1976).

Motorist was properly awarded judgment against a driver's purported insurer pursuant to N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(a)(2) for the motorist's injuries from a vehicle collision, despite the insurer's claim that the insurer did not insure the driver's vehicle at the time of the collision, because the insurer was notified of a prior proceeding in which the motorist's insurer claimed the driver's insurer did insure the driver's vehicle at the time of the collision, yet the driver's insurer declined to participate in that prior proceeding, so, when it was determined, in that prior proceeding, that the driver's insurer covered the driver's vehicle, the driver's insurer was collaterally estopped, in the subsequent proceeding initiated under § 3420(a)(2), from denying coverage. Creinis v Hanover Ins. Co., 59 A.D.3d 371, 872 N.Y.S.2d 544, 2009 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 740 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't), app. denied, 12 N.Y.3d 710, 881 N.Y.S.2d 660, 909 N.E.2d 583, 2009 N.Y. LEXIS 976 (N.Y. 2009).

When a driver's insurer was found liable to a motorist, in a proceeding initiated under N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(a)(2), for the driver's negligence, the insurer's liability was limited to the statutory minimum coverage required for personal injury liability under N.Y. Veh. & Traf. Law § 311(4)(a) because the insurer met the insurer's burden to show that the insurer had no relevant coverage in effect at the time of the subject vehicle collision. Creinis v Hanover Ins. Co., 59 A.D.3d 371, 872 N.Y.S.2d 544, 2009 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 740 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't), app. denied, 12 N.Y.3d 710, 881 N.Y.S.2d 660, 909 N.E.2d 583, 2009 N.Y. LEXIS 976 (N.Y. 2009).

To the extent that the trial court determined that an insurer failed to provide timely notice of its disclaimer to an owner and/or an engineer as claimants, such a determination was premature because, pursuant to N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(a)(2), an injured claimant had a direct cause of action against an insurer only after the injured claimant first obtains a judgment against the insured; neither the owner nor the engineer had obtained a judgment against the insured, and thus both the owner and the engineer failed to fulfill the condition precedent to seek relief directly from the insurer. Sevenson Envtl. Servs., Inc. v Sirius Am. Ins. Co., 74 A.D.3d 1751, 902 N.Y.S.2d 279, 2010 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4955 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 2010).

Where an automobile liability policy did not obligate the insurer either by express terms, or when read in connection with former § 109 [predecessor to former § 167, now § 3420], to distribute the amount of the insurer's liability ratably between the estates of two persons killed in a single accident, the insurer, on exhausting the amount of policy by payment of judgment first recovered was discharged from further liability by reason of the accident. Stolove v Fidelity & Casualty Co., 282 N.Y.S. 263, 157 Misc. 106, 1935 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1419 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1935).

An action against the liability insurer of a car owner, based upon an unsatisfied judgment for damages against the owner, cannot succeed where the policy binds insurer to pay damages "caused by accident," but the judgment in question arose out of the insured's deliberate action in running into the plaintiff's car in an attempt to stop it for personal reasons. McCarthy v United Services Auto. Ass'n, 24 Misc. 2d 79, 204 N.Y.S.2d 420, 1960 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2503 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1960).

Insurer is not liable for order of costs against insured executed by county clerk pursuant to remittitur from Court of Appeals following adjudication of jurisdictional matter, such order not being a judgment within meaning of former § 167 [now § 3420] since it did not determine the rights of the parties on the substantive issue. Seider v Hartford Accident & Indem. Co., 51 Misc. 2d 645, 273 N.Y.S.2d 639, 1966 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1489 (N.Y. Dist. Ct. 1966).

To require an automobile liability insurer to pay an award of punitive damages would be against public policy. Teska v Atlantic Nat'l Ins. Co., 59 Misc. 2d 615, 300 N.Y.S.2d 375, 1969 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1649 (N.Y. Dist. Ct. 1969).

Where an insurer failed to defend its insured and failed to settle litigation within the policy limits, and an excess judgment was rendered against the insured over and above the amount paid by the insurer, in an action by the insured against the insurer based on failure to defend and to settle, the insured was not entitled to punitive damages. Gordon v Nationwide Mut. Ins. Co., 62 Misc. 2d 689, 309 N.Y.S.2d 420, 1970 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1756 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1970), aff'd, 37 A.D.2d 265, 323 N.Y.S.2d 550, 1971 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3514 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1971).

The statute barring direct actions against an insurance company unless and until there is a judgment unsatisfied against the insured for 30 days in the underlying liability action (Insurance Law, former § 167, subd 1, par [b] [now § 3420(a)(2)]) applies only where indemnification of a judgment in the underlying liability action is sought and does not apply to an impleader action by the defendant insured for breach of the insurer's duty to defend a pending liability action so that a declaratory judgment action to establish an insurer's obligation to defend (CPLR 3001; CCA, § 212-a) need not await the outcome of the underlying liability action. Galpern v General Motors Corp., 102 Misc. 2d 975, 425 N.Y.S.2d 1008, 1980 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2047 (N.Y. Civ. Ct. 1980).

An automobile liability insurance policy issued to a Pennsylvania resident which provided a $75,000 limit of liability to be used to satisfy all claims against the insured but included a provision permitting adjustments above that limit if an accident occurred in a state whose law required a higher minimum limit of liability, would meet the minimum requirements of New York for an accident involving a vehicle driven by the insured in which one person died and three were injured since New York law requires minimum coverage of $50,000 for one death, $20,000 for bodily injury to two or more individuals and $5,000 to compensate for property damage arising out of any one accident and, therefore, since the $75,000 coverage meets the maximum cumulative exposure of the insured arising from the accident, the policy as it stands would not be modified to provide greater coverage since the court does not have the authority to modify a contract that is clear and unambiguous on its face. Harleysville Mut. Ins. Co. v Boerst, 115 Misc. 2d 1006, 454 N.Y.S.2d 826, 1982 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3804 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1982), aff'd, 101 A.D.2d 686, 475 N.Y.S.2d 809, 1984 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 18226 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1984).

In an action pursuant to N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(a)(2) to collect an unpaid judgment an injured party and his wife obtained in a personal injury action upon the default in answering or appearing of the alleged insured of an insurer, the trial court properly granted the insurer's motion for summary judgment pursuant to N.Y. C.P.L.R. 3212, as the alleged insured was not a resident of his parents' home at the time of the accident in question, and therefore was not covered under the insurance policy at issue. Fennell v N.Y. Cent. Mut. Fire Ins. Co., 305 A.D.2d 452, 759 N.Y.S.2d 533, 2003 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5367 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2003).

Trial court properly granted a subcontractor's insurer's motion for summary judgment as: (1) the contractor did not seek recovery as an additional insured under the insurance policy issued to the subcontractor, (2) the only basis for the indemnification claim was the indemnification provision in the subcontract between the contractor and the subcontractor, to which the insurer was not a party, and (3) under N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420, the contractor could recover against the insurer only if a judgment was obtained against the subcontractor, which remained unsatisfied for more than 30 days. Northland Assocs. v Joseph Baldwin Constr. Co., 6 A.D.3d 1214, 776 N.Y.S.2d 663, 2004 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6256 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 2004).

Insurer bore the burden of proving that an alleged policy limited coverage to the statutory minimum. When the insurer denied that a policy existed, the insurer was liable for the full amount of the default judgment against its alleged insured. Kleynshvag v GAN Ins. Co., 13 A.D.3d 588, 789 N.Y.S.2d 160, 2004 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 15696 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2004).

Trial court properly granted summary judgment to a driver in his action under N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(a)(2) against another car owner's insurer, arising from an unsatisfied judgment obtained by the driver against the other car owner after the driver was struck by the other owner's car, as the insurer had failed to assert that there was no coverage of the owner in an earlier proceeding and accordingly, it was estopped to deny coverage; the judgment against the insurer should not have been limited to the statutory minimum limit of N.Y. Veh. & Traf. Law § 311(4)(a), as the driver was entitled to the full amount of the judgment obtained where the insurer had failed to offer evidence as to any limitation on coverage. Kleynshvag v GAN Ins. Co., 21 A.D.3d 999, 801 N.Y.S.2d 383, 2005 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9198 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2005).

Insurer was entitled to summary judgment dismissing an accident victim's complaint to recover an unsatisfied judgment against the insured, brought pursuant to N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(a)(2), because an exclusion contained in an endorsement form to the commercial general liability policy the insurer issued to the insured did not violate N.Y. Gen. Oblig. Law § 5-322.1. Wilson v Sirius Am. Ins. Co., 44 A.D.3d 754, 844 N.Y.S.2d 349, 2007 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10566 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2007).

Judgment creditor may recover value of 22 tons of pepper from debtor's insurer since debtor would have been entitled to indemnity under insurance policy, despite clause excluding from coverage "unexplained loss" or "mysterious disappearance," since such language is ambiguous. McCormick & Co. v Empire Ins. Group, 878 F.2d 27, 1989 U.S. App. LEXIS 8382 (2d Cir. N.Y. 1989).

15. Status as judgment creditor

Rights of automobile lessee, injured in an accident caused by the negligent operation of the leased vehicle while being driven by a friend, against the lessor relative to an unsatisfied judgment obtained by the lessee against the driver, could be enforced under either Insurance Law provision [now § 3420] allowing a direct action against an insurer where an insured fails to pay a judgment, or under CPLR article 52, since the lessor was an insurer of the driver, obligated to pay judgments against him, and was thus a judgment debtor of the driver on his debt to the lessee. Guercio v Hertz Corp., 40 N.Y.2d 680, 389 N.Y.S.2d 568, 358 N.E.2d 261, 1976 N.Y. LEXIS 3087 (N.Y. 1976).

A person residing with the insured may recover under former § 109 [predecessor to former § 167, now § 3420] against the insurer under a policy indemnifying the insured against loss on account of injuries suffered by any person within or upon certain premises of which they were owners, where such person has recovered judgment against the insured which is unsatisfied on return of execution. Hall v Columbia Casualty Co., 246 A.D. 756, 283 N.Y.S. 950, 1935 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10068 (N.Y. App. Div. 1935).

Agreement between automobile accident victim's administratrix and owner of automobile involved in accident under which administratrix obtained a contingent security interest in owner's stock pending outcome of litigation begun by owner against its excess insurer did not deprive administratrix of her status as a judgment creditor within meaning of the Insurance Law. Preisch v Continental Casualty Co., 55 A.D.2d 117, 389 N.Y.S.2d 700, 1976 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 14553 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1976), app. denied, 41 N.Y.2d 802, 1977 N.Y. LEXIS 2978 (N.Y. 1977).

16. Rights of judgment creditor in relation to rights of insured

The plaintiffs, in actions brought under predecessor to former § 167 [now § 3420] to enforce a policy of indemnity insurance issued to one against whom the plaintiffs have recovered judgments upon which executions have been returned unsatisfied, stand in the shoes of the insured and forfeit the insurance if there has been a breach of conditions in the policy. Weatherwax v Royal Indem. Co., 250 N.Y. 281, 165 N.E. 293, 250 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 281, 1929 N.Y. LEXIS 878 (N.Y. 1929).

Where execution has been returned unsatisfied on a judgment for personal injuries sustained in an automobile accident, the injured party stands "in the shoes" of the insured, and may bring an action on the policy. Wenig v Glens Falls Indem. Co., 294 N.Y. 195, 61 N.E.2d 442, 294 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 195, 1945 N.Y. LEXIS 811 (N.Y. 1945).

Plaintiff, in suing insurer under CLS Ins § 3420(b)(1) on judgment plaintiff has recovered against insured, is in legal privity with insured for purpose of application of collateral estoppel; by proceeding directly against insurer, plaintiff does so as subrogee of insured's rights and is subject to whatever rules of estoppel would apply to insured. D'Arata v New York Cent. Mut. Fire Ins. Co., 76 N.Y.2d 659, 563 N.Y.S.2d 24, 564 N.E.2d 634, 1990 N.Y. LEXIS 3484 (N.Y. 1990).

It was error to dismiss an administrator's N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(a)(2) and (b) claims against a contractor's insurer because (1) the administrator adequately pled a vehicle owner was an "insured" under the contractor's policies, as the administrator showed the industry practice for the owner's trucks to be hired autos the policies were priced to cover, (2) a relevant schedule of hire was not produced, and (3) the fact-specific degree of the contractor's control of the trucks was pivotal to whether the trucks were hired autos. Carlson v American Intl. Group, Inc., 30 N.Y.3d 288, 89 N.E.3d 490, 67 N.Y.S.3d 100, 2017 N.Y. LEXIS 3280 (N.Y. 2017).

A judgment creditor, seeking recovery against a liability insurer, stands in the shoes of the insured and can recover against the insurer only if the insured could recover under the terms of the policy. Holmes v Allstate Ins. Co., 33 A.D.2d 96, 305 N.Y.S.2d 563, 1969 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2779 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1969).

Judgment creditor's right to collect under policy of insurance is no greater than that of the insured. Bache & Co. v Liberty Mut. Ins. Co., 47 A.D.2d 885, 367 N.Y.S.2d 11, 1975 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9290 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1975).

The right of the judgment creditor to proceed against the insurer is no greater than the right given to the insured. O'Dwyer v Grove Service Corp., 15 Misc. 2d 154, 181 N.Y.S.2d 338, 1958 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2543 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1958), aff'd, 15 A.D.2d 457, 222 N.Y.S.2d 683, 1961 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7375 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1961).

Former § 167 [now § 3420], in setting up a direct cause of action against the insurer after recovery of judgment against the insured, and providing that the action may be maintained against the insurer "under the terms of the policy," clearly intends to provide a right of action to the injured judgment-creditor, in an action brought pursuant thereto, for determination of the issue of whether a judgment-debtor is or is not an insured. Mireider v New Hampshire Fire Ins. Co., 24 Misc. 2d 765, 204 N.Y.S.2d 504, 1960 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2561 (N.Y. City Ct. 1960).

A judgment creditor, seeking to enforce a policy insuring the judgment debtor against liability, stands in the shoes of the assured and can recover against the insurer only if the assured could recover under the terms of the policy. Fadden v Cambridge Mut. Fire Ins. Co., 51 Misc. 2d 858, 274 N.Y.S.2d 235, 1966 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1552 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1966), aff'd, 27 A.D.2d 487, 280 N.Y.S.2d 209, 1967 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4018 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1967).

Judgment creditors of a default judgment against a condominium unit owner that was premised on personal injuries suffered by a tenant of the unit owner could not recover any more than the unit owner could recover against an insurer that issued a liability insurance policy to the condominium complex itself. Since the claims in the personal injury action required that the insurance policy at issue be construed, as a matter of law, to exclude the unit owner from coverage, the judgment creditors could not meet their burden of establishing coverage and the insurer established, as a matter of law, its claims that it was not responsible for the unpaid default judgment; summary judgment dismissal of the judgment creditors' suit under N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(a)(2), (b), was affirmed. Fliegman v Traveler's Prop. Cas. Ins. Co., 15 A.D.3d 536, 790 N.Y.S.2d 683, 2005 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1845 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2005).

With respect to an indemnity claim, plaintiff (standing in the shoes of insured) failed to prove that an incident was an accident where the insured continued to roll forward at a slow speed even after he was substantially certain that plaintiff could no longer get out of the way and would be struck, but did not apply his brakes until after he struck plaintiff and thus, hitting and injuring plaintiff was not unforeseen or unexpected from the insured's point of view. Even though the insured did not intend to harm him, plaintiff's injury was inherent in the nature of the act; nor was the incident fortuitous, as plaintiff's injury flowed directly and immediately from the insured's actions and was not beyond the control of either party. Hough v Margulies (In re Margulies), 541 B.R. 156, 2015 Bankr. LEXIS 3908 (Bankr. S.D.N.Y. 2015), aff'd, app. denied, 566 B.R. 318, 2017 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 39765 (S.D.N.Y. 2017).

17. Notice to insurer of entry of judgment

Service of notice of entry of judgment against insured upon attorney retained by the insurer to defend the insured fulfills the requirements of former § 167 [now § 3420]. Thrasher v United States Liability Ins. Co., 19 N.Y.2d 159, 278 N.Y.S.2d 793, 225 N.E.2d 503, 1967 N.Y. LEXIS 1703 (N.Y. 1967).

In a direct action suit against an insurer provided for by former § 167 of the Insurance Law [now § 3420], the plaintiff's failure to plead and prove that notice of entry of judgment had been served on the insured and the insurer does not affect the Supreme Court's competence to entertain the suit, but only affects the Supreme Court's power to render a judgment on the merits in plaintiff's favor because they fail to state a cause of action upon which relief could be granted. In other words, notice of entry of judgment is a substantive element of the cause of action and not a jurisdictional element, and if the service of notice does not comply with the statutory requirement that the insurance company be served, plaintiff's action should be dismissed for failure to state a complaint upon which relief can be granted, rather than on the ground that the complaint was jurisdictionally defective. Thrasher v United States Liability Ins. Co., 19 N.Y.2d 159, 278 N.Y.S.2d 793, 225 N.E.2d 503, 1967 N.Y. LEXIS 1703 (N.Y. 1967).

Since Insurance Law former § 167 [now § 3420] does not specifically provide a method for giving notice of entry of judgment to the insurer, any method of service which is reasonably calculated to do so ought to be sufficient to comply with the statutory requirement, and while service upon an officer of the insurance company may be preferable to service upon an attorney retained by the insurance company, it cannot be said that service upon the attorney is not reasonably calculated to give notice. Thrasher v United States Liability Ins. Co., 19 N.Y.2d 159, 278 N.Y.S.2d 793, 225 N.E.2d 503, 1967 N.Y. LEXIS 1703 (N.Y. 1967).

Plaintiff's failure to plead and prove that notice of entry of judgment had been served on the insured and the insurer did not affect the Supreme Court's competence to entertain the suit, but only affected the Supreme Court's power to render a judgment on the merits in plaintiffs' favor because they failed to state a cause of action upon which relief could be granted; in other words, notice of entry of judgment is a substantive element of the cause of action and not a jurisdictional element. Thrasher v United States Liability Ins. Co., 19 N.Y.2d 159, 278 N.Y.S.2d 793, 225 N.E.2d 503, 1967 N.Y. LEXIS 1703 (N.Y. 1967).

The provisions of subd. 1(b) of former § 167 [now § 3420(a)(2)] are mandatory. A judgment creditor of the assured under a policy of liability insurance may not prevail in an action against the insurer where he failed to serve notice of entry of judgment either upon the assured or his attorney. McNamara v Allstate Ins. Co., 3 A.D.2d 295, 160 N.Y.S.2d 51, 1957 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6226 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1957).

With respect to a claim based upon judgment obtained in an automobile accident case against the defendant's liability insurer, under subd. 1(b) of former § 167 [now § 3420(a)(2)] the insurance policy in question must be deemed to contain a provision requiring that a copy of the judgment with notice of entry be served upon the insurer, and, accordingly, an allegation of performance of all terms and conditions of the policy by the person seeking to enforce it in effect alleges that such service was made upon the insurer. Price v Allstate Ins. Co., 12 A.D.2d 911, 210 N.Y.S.2d 945, 1961 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12596 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1961).

Where the insurer could not locate its insured, its contention that under the terms of subd 1(b) of former § 167 [now § 3420(a)(2)] it is a condition precedent to recovery by the injured person that he must effect service of his judgment with notice of entry thereof in some manner reasonably calculated to bring notice to such insured does violence to the manifest purpose of such statute. Surely it was never intended that an individual claimant must trace an insured who cannot be found by an insurance company with vast and expert investigative resources. The State's solicitude for the victims of automobile accidents is far too great to permit such interpretation in view of the plain wording of the statute. Fortis v Glens Falls Ins. Co., 23 A.D.2d 88, 258 N.Y.S.2d 753, 1965 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4384 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1965), aff'd, 18 N.Y.2d 779, 275 N.Y.S.2d 265, 221 N.E.2d 807, 1966 N.Y. LEXIS 1084 (N.Y. 1966).

For the purpose of serving notice of entry of judgment upon the insured under the provision of subd 1(b) of former § 167 [now § 3420(a)(2)], the action in which the judgment was obtained is still pending at the time of such service and hence service may be had under the provisions of CPLR § 2103 which applies to the service of papers in a pending action. Fortis v Glens Falls Ins. Co., 23 A.D.2d 88, 258 N.Y.S.2d 753, 1965 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4384 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1965), aff'd, 18 N.Y.2d 779, 275 N.Y.S.2d 265, 221 N.E.2d 807, 1966 N.Y. LEXIS 1084 (N.Y. 1966).

Claim filed in court of claims prior to service of judgment with notice of entry is jurisdictionally defective, not amenable to amendment and must be dismissed. Manshul Constr. Corp. v State Ins. Fund, 118 A.D.2d 983, 500 N.Y.S.2d 87, 1986 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 54791 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1986).

Denial of an insurer's summary judgment motion was improper in a claim seeking to recover a judgment against its insured pursuant to N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420 because the insurer showed that plaintiff failed to serve it with a copy of the unsatisfied judgment and notice of entry 30 days before she brought the direct action against the insurer, and, in opposition, plaintiff failed to raise a triable fact issue; contrary to plaintiff's contention, she did not comply with the service requirements by sending a letter to the broker of the insured, rather than to the insurer, informing the broker that the judgment enclosed with the letter had been entered against the insured and requesting the broker to satisfy the judgment, despite the fact that the letter and the judgment apparently were forwarded by the broker to the insurer. Plaintiff's contention that the broker would not cooperate with her in identifying the insurer, standing alone, did not demonstrate that it was impossible for her to learn the insurer's identity and directly serve it. Guayara v Hudson Ins. Co., 48 A.D.3d 628, 852 N.Y.S.2d 359, 2008 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1567 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2008).

Judgment creditors were entitled to summary judgment in their N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(a)(2) action to recover an unsatisfied judgment against the insured because the creditors were reasonably diligent in ascertaining the identity of an excess insurer and in providing notice to it, and the insurer did not raise a triable issue of fact in opposition. Golebiewski v National Union Fire Ins. Co. of Pittsburgh, Pa., 101 A.D.3d 1074, 958 N.Y.S.2d 161, 2012 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8953 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2012).

Under subd. 1(b) of former § 167 [now § 3420(a)(2)], plaintiff, seeking to require a liability insurer of the defendant to pay a judgment obtained in an action for damages, must, before commencing suit against the insurer, have served a copy of the judgment on the insurer as well as on the insured or his attorney and permitted 30 days to elapse prior to instituting suit against the insurer, otherwise he has no right of action under this section. Clark v Utica Mut. Ins. Co., 31 Misc. 2d 1005, 222 N.Y.S.2d 239, 1961 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1899 (N.Y. Mun. Ct. 1961).

18. Effect of prior failure to notify insurer of claim

Plaintiff, seeking to enforce judgment in a negligence action against the judgment debtor's insurer, could not recover as against the insurer's defense that timely notice was not given to it by the insured or by plaintiff, and, it being established that the insured gave insurer no notice at all and the trial court having reached the conclusion that plaintiff failed to give notice within the time prescribed or as soon thereafter as reasonably possible, from the evidence, in accordance with subd. 1(d) of former § 167 [now § 3420(a)(4)], the complaint must be dismissed. Allen v Allstate Ins. Co., 20 A.D.2d 763, 247 N.Y.S.2d 489, 1964 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4243 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1964).

In an action against an insurer to recover upon an unsatisfied judgment previously rendered against the defendant's insured, the complaint should have been dismissed where the record did not establish that proper notice of the accident was given by either the insured or the plaintiff prior to entry of the judgment against the defendant's insured. Feigelson v Allstate Ins. Co., 38 A.D.2d 535, 327 N.Y.S.2d 115, 1971 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2684 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1971), aff'd, 31 N.Y.2d 913, 340 N.Y.S.2d 646, 292 N.E.2d 787, 1972 N.Y. LEXIS 884 (N.Y. 1972).

Personal injury plaintiff who obtained default judgment against insured tortfeasor, but neither entered judgment against tortfeasor's insurer nor served copy of judgment with notice of entry on insurer, was not entitled to execution with notice to garnishee and sheriff's levy against insurer seeking to satisfy default judgment out of proceeds of insurance policy, since as stranger to insurance agreement and not third-party beneficiary thereof, plaintiff's only remedy against insurer arising out of insurance agreement was direct action against it pursuant to CLS Ins § 3420, which requires as condition precedent that copy of judgment with notice of entry be served on insurer. Rodriguez v JLF Properties, Inc., 191 A.D.2d 211, 594 N.Y.S.2d 206, 1993 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1859 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1993).

Because the injured parties did not notify an insurer of their action against its purported insured until they sought to recover an unsatisfied default judgment against the insured under N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(a)(2), the injured parties were not entitled to summary judgment regardless of the sufficiency of the opposing papers. Lopez v State Farm Fire & Cas. Co., 51 A.D.3d 640, 858 N.Y.S.2d 252, 2008 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4109 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2008).

Pedestrian's N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(a)(2) suit failed as: (1) the pedestrian failed to notify the insurer of the accident or of the underlying suit against the insured; (2) the insured failed to timely notify the insurer of the accident and did not forward the pleadings in the underlying suit to the insurer until four months after the insured was served; (3) the pedestrian failed to prove that the insured did not have notice of the underlying action until it received the insurer's disclaimer letter as the insured's principal merely denied having prior notice of the suit without giving an explanation; and (4) the disclaimer letter bound the pedestrian. Konig v Hermitage Ins. Co., 93 A.D.3d 643, 940 N.Y.S.2d 116, 2012 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1662 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2012).

There is no basis for a motion for summary judgment against the liability insurer, in an action brought under former § 167 [now § 3420] following recovery by plaintiffs of default judgment against the insured, where there is no proof that the insurer had notice or knowledge of the action against the insured or an opportunity to defend such action. Zappia v Allstate Ins. Co., 28 Misc. 2d 723, 212 N.Y.S.2d 698, 1961 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3276 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1961).

Where an action is brought against a motorist carrying liability insurance for damage sustained in an accident covered by such insurance, and plaintiff's attorney knows of the insurance and has opened negotiations with the insurer looking to settlement of plaintiff's claim, a default judgment later obtained against the insured motorist, without giving timely notice of such suit to the insurer that such an action has been brought or is pending, so as to give the insurer an opportunity to come in and defend or at least to make timely motion to vacate a default judgment, defeats any right of action under former § 167 [now § 3420] to collect the judgment from the insurer. Clark v Utica Mut. Ins. Co., 31 Misc. 2d 1005, 222 N.Y.S.2d 239, 1961 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1899 (N.Y. Mun. Ct. 1961).

Although an individual failed to file a notice of a personal injury claim pursuant to 11 U.S.C.S. § 524(e) during one of the theaters' bankruptcy proceedings, the failure did not prevent the individual from proceeding against the non-bankrupt theaters and an insurer under N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(a)(1). Minafri v UA Theatres, Inc., 782 N.Y.S.2d 177, 5 Misc. 3d 474, 2004 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1449 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 2004).

Despite the insured's three-year delay in notifying the insurers of the incident in which a judgment creditor was assaulted and battered by an employee of the insured, the insurers' failure to disclaim coverage over a year after they received notice was unreasonable as a matter of law. Therefore, the failure of the insurers to timely disclaim coverage under N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(d) precluded them from raising that bar to the judgment creditor's claims against the insurers. NYAT Operating Corp. v Gan Natl. Ins. Co., 800 N.Y.S.2d 272, 8 Misc. 3d 975, 2005 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1279 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 2005).

19. Burden of proof as to effectiveness of policy and breach of conditions

The complaint in an action by judgment creditors against an insurance company was dismissed for failure of the policy to cover the automobile involved in the accident. Schaller v Aetna Casualty & Surety Co., 280 A.D. 988, 116 N.Y.S.2d 729, 1952 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4512 (N.Y. App. Div. 1952), aff'd, 306 N.Y. 725, 117 N.E.2d 908, 306 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 725, 1954 N.Y. LEXIS 1080 (N.Y. 1954).

In order that the judgment creditor may recover against the insurer, he must establish that, at the time of the accident, there was in full force and effect an agreement of insurance between the insurer and the judgment debtor covering the latter for the liability merged in the judgment. Holmes v Allstate Ins. Co., 33 A.D.2d 96, 305 N.Y.S.2d 563, 1969 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2779 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1969).

In action pursuant to Insurance Law former § 167, subd 1(b) [now § 3420(a)(2)], insurer could not rely on its earlier disclaimer under policy provision excluding coverage for damage resulting from insured's change in grade of property where insurer offered no proof that collapse of plaintiff's garage resulted from an excluded cause. McGroarty v Great American Ins. Co., 43 A.D.2d 368, 351 N.Y.S.2d 428, 1974 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5848 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1974), aff'd, 36 N.Y.2d 358, 368 N.Y.S.2d 485, 329 N.E.2d 172, 1975 N.Y. LEXIS 1814 (N.Y. 1975).

In an action brought by a judgment creditor on an automobile liability policy the burden of proving a breach of the policy that the automobile should be kept and used principally at a designated place or area was upon the defendant. Arbuckle v (American) Lumbermens Mut. Casualty Co., 129 F.2d 791 (CA2 NY 1942).

20. Claims against partnerships

A complaint, alleging that an automobile was being operated by one individual defendant for and on behalf of another, does not import a partnership use of the automobile by operator at the time of accident, and, where judgment was recovered against them, the plaintiff cannot recover the amount thereof, under former § 109 [predecessor to former § 167, now § 3420] in action on policy of indemnity insurance protecting them against loss by reason of automobile accidents for which their partnership is liable and to that extent individually as members of firm but not otherwise. Geitner v United States Fidelity & Guaranty Co., 251 N.Y. 205, 167 N.E. 222, 251 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 205, 1929 N.Y. LEXIS 705 (N.Y. 1929).

A policy issued to two individuals contemplates separate and distinct obligations to the various named assured rather than a single obligation to all of the assured. Hence, plaintiff who held an unsatisfied judgment against two partners individually and as partners, for personal injuries suffered when he was assaulted by one of them while acting in the course of the partnership business, was entitled to judgment against the insurer on a public liability policy issued to the partners individually, for although the policy exclusion of wilful assault applied to one of them, the other was not guilty of wilful assault. Morgan v Greater New York Taxpayers Mut. Ins. Ass'n, 305 N.Y. 243, 112 N.E.2d 273, 305 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 243, 1953 N.Y. LEXIS 819 (N.Y. 1953), limited, Admiral Ins. Co. v Joy Contrs., Inc., 19 N.Y.3d 448, 948 N.Y.S.2d 862, 972 N.E.2d 103, 2012 N.Y. LEXIS 1352 (N.Y. 2012).

21. Relationship to other laws

The statutory right conferred upon a judgment creditor against an insurer by the provisions of former § 167 [now § 3420], did not flow to the judgment creditor from the rights which accrued to the policyholder. Hence, such a judgment creditor was not a person deriving his title through or under the policyholder by assignment or otherwise, within the provisions of the Civil Practice Act § 347. Friedman v United States Fidelity & Guaranty Co., 9 Misc. 2d 306, 170 N.Y.S.2d 226, 1957 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1934 (N.Y. App. Term 1957).

Action against insurer under Insurance L former § 167 [now § 3420] is not an action in the nature of an action on a judgment within the meaning of CPLR 3213. Feuer v Insurance Co. of North America, 66 Misc. 2d 931, 323 N.Y.S.2d 178, 1971 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1600 (N.Y. App. Term 1971).

It was unnecessary for claimant to proceed separately against insurance carriers to recover amount of default judgment entered against insureds in primary action, and the trial court, acting under CPLR §§ 103(c) and 5240, initiated an action pursuant to Insurance Law former § 167 subd 1(b) [now § 3420(a)(2)], where each essential ingredient of such action was present, and the liability insurance carriers were actively present in the defense of the primary litigation, having full notice of the proceedings. Brown v Reid, 72 Misc. 2d 237, 339 N.Y.S.2d 204, 1972 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1244 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1972).

In the absence of specific guidelines for proceedings pursuant to Insurance Law former § 167, subd 1(b) [now § 3420(a)(2)], the general declaratory judgment rules of the CPLR, read through CPLR §§ 103(c) and 104, applied to claimant's action to recover from insurers the amount of a declaratory judgment entered against insureds. Brown v Reid, 72 Misc. 2d 237, 339 N.Y.S.2d 204, 1972 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1244 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1972).

22. Defenses available to insurer against judgment creditor

In an action under former § 109 [predecessor to former § 167, now § 3420] against an insurer after unsatisfied judgment against the insured, the defense of release is not binding on the plaintiff where such is not permitted by the policy. Rushing v Commercial Casualty Ins. Co., 225 A.D. 49, 232 N.Y.S. 255, 1928 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8739 (N.Y. App. Div. 1928), rev'd, 251 N.Y. 302, 167 N.E. 450, 251 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 302, 1929 N.Y. LEXIS 719 (N.Y. 1929).

In an action against an insurer under former § 109 [predecessor to former § 167, now § 3420], after a return wholly unsatisfied of execution duly issued against the insured, the defense and counterclaim that the plaintiff and her attorney and defendant's insured and his attorney in previous action for the purpose of procuring a much larger verdict, and to enforce the payment of it against the defendant, entered into a conspiracy to waive jury trial of issues in that action, after the verdict had been set aside, and to submit such issues, upon the evidence presented at trial, to the trial justice who presided, is insufficient and should be stricken out. Rhodes v Ocean Acci. & Guarantee Corp., 235 A.D. 340, 257 N.Y.S. 214, 1932 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7960 (N.Y. App. Div. 1932).

The right of a judgment creditor to recover in an action brought under former § 109 [predecessor to former § 167, now § 3420] is identical with the insured's right to recover on the policy where he has paid the judgment and is seeking indemnity from the insurance company, and any defense to the action brought by the insured is available to one brought under the statute. Fox v Employers' Liability Assurance Corp., 243 A.D. 325, 276 N.Y.S. 917, 1935 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7062 (N.Y. App. Div.), aff'd, 267 N.Y. 609, 196 N.E. 604, 267 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 609, 1935 N.Y. LEXIS 1331 (N.Y. 1935).

In an action against an insurer based on a refusal of the insurer to honor its obligation under an insurance contract to pay the amount due on a judgment, a default was properly entered against the insurer, where the insurer's excuse that a partner in its counsel's law firm underwent heart surgery did not excuse the insurer's failure to file an answer, in that the partner was not an active participant in the defense of the action, and where the insurer failed to show a meritorious defense, in that for five years, from the time the claim arose until after jury selection and commencement of proof, the insurer failed to honestly and accurately advise any of the parties or the court of its insurance coverage limits. Fredericks v Home Indem. Co., 101 A.D.2d 614, 474 N.Y.S.2d 870, 1984 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 18154 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1984).

Manufacturer was entitled to summary judgment against shipper's insurance company in manufacturer's action directly against insurer pursuant to CLS Ins § 3420, where manufacturer's goods had been lost in transit, shipper had settled with insurance company for far less than full value of loss, in earlier suit manufacturer had won judgment against shipper for full value, and where insurer, who had at first been impleaded by shipper into prior action but later dismissed from that suit, opposed summary judgment on grounds that (1) it was released from liability based on its settlement with shipper and (2) collateral estoppel barred manufacturer from seeking relief in current action; manufacturer was not bound by settlement agreement between shipper and insurance company since manufacturer was not party to that settlement and such holdings would encourage collusion between insurers and insureds to limit their liability to injured third-parties, and collateral estoppel did not apply since in first action manufacturer sought relief solely against shipper and did not have full and fair opportunity to contest issue of insurance company's liability. Smith & Wesson v Birmingham Fire Ins. Co., 123 A.D.2d 135, 510 N.Y.S.2d 606, 1987 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 39891 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1987).

Insurer was not estopped from asserting that its insured acted intentionally by virtue of finding of negligence in underlying action brought against insured where underlying judgment was entered on default, and issue of negligence was not actually litigated in prior action. Rourke v Travelers Ins. Co., 254 A.D.2d 730, 678 N.Y.S.2d 195, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10411 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1998).

Insurer was entitled to summary judgment in a pedestrian's action to recover the amount of an unsatisfied judgment against the insured because the insured's partial premium payment for a $ 2 million umbrella policy resulted in the insurer's valid cancellation of the policy after the prorated period covered by her payment expired, and the umbrella policy, and the insured's coverage, terminated upon cancellation a few hours before the pedestrian was injured. Garcia v Government Empls. Ins. Co., 151 A.D.3d 1020, 58 N.Y.S.3d 428, 2017 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5123 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't), aff'd, 30 N.Y.3d 1033, 91 N.E.3d 1185, 69 N.Y.S.3d 206, 2017 N.Y. LEXIS 3725 (N.Y. 2017).

Failure of a judgment creditor to litigate a bad faith claim against the insurer in the earlier Insurance Law § 3420(a)(2) action did not bar litigation of that claim in the instant action because the insureds' assigned all of their rights and claims against the insurer to the judgment creditor after he had recovered in the direct action; thus, res judicata did not bar the judgment creditor's action. Corle v Allstate Ins. Co., 162 A.D.3d 1489, 79 N.Y.S.3d 414, 2018 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4192 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 2018).

Defendant was obligated to satisfy a judgment that plaintiff obtained against defendant's insured, as defendant had not shown that the insured failed to cooperate; rather, defendant's contention that the insured's principal refused to respond to certain telephone calls and letters was insufficient to show an attitude of willful and avowed obstruction, and although there was evidence that the principal said before a trial date was set that he would not attend any trial, defendant did not allege that he actually failed to appear. DeLuca v RLI Ins. Co., 187 A.D.3d 709, 131 N.Y.S.3d 716, 2020 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5644 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2020).

The plaintiff, after obtaining judgment against taxicab corporation for personal injuries, and execution having been returned unsatisfied, commenced an action against defendant insurance company to recover the face value of the policy of insurance issued by defendant company for the benefit of the public pursuant to Highway Law, § 282-b. Defendant interposed defense that it was not liable on policy as judgment was not recovered after trial of issues but after assessment of damages by sheriff's jury. Interposition of such a defense by the insurance company was unethical and questionable and that it should not be permitted, even under the statute itself, to avoid liability on its policy on such a slight or technical ground. Devlin v New York Mut. Casualty Taxicab Ins. Co., 206 N.Y.S. 365, 123 Misc. 784, 1924 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1208

(N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1924), modified, 213 A.D. 152, 210 N.Y.S. 57, 1925 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8453 (N.Y. App. Div. 1925).

The defense of release is available to an insurer where it would have been available to the judgment debtor had he defended the action. Moulton v Utica Mut. Ins. Co., 76 N.Y.S.2d 34, 190 Misc. 878, 1948 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2042 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1948).

An insurer paid its assured $50.00 dollars in full satisfaction of a claim for loss of goods by the plaintiff. Held: this satisfaction did not constitute a defense to an action by the plaintiff, as judgment creditor of the insured against the insurer, on the theory that in such action the plaintiff stood in the shoes of the insured and could recover only if insured could himself do so. Karan Knitwear, Inc. v National Ben Franklin Ins. Co., 12 Misc. 2d 93, 174 N.Y.S.2d 480, 1958 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3528 (N.Y. App. Term 1958).

Where an action is brought under former § 167 [now § 3420] against the liability insurer upon the basis of judgment obtained and remaining unsatisfied against the operator of the automobile, who is not the owner thereof, and the question arises whether the liability insurance policy covers the operator as one who was driving the automobile with the owner's permission, which issue has not been adjudicated, a motion by defendant insurer for summary judgment should not be granted merely upon affidavit of the owner and the unverified statement of the operator alleging that the latter was operating the automobile without the owner's permission. Mireider v New Hampshire Fire Ins. Co., 24 Misc. 2d 765, 204 N.Y.S.2d 504, 1960 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2561 (N.Y. City Ct. 1960).

Where a liability insurer, after receiving summons in an action against it by a judgment creditor of the insured, did not move to vacate the inquest judgment obtained against the insured and, instead, interposed an answer to the complaint in the second action, it surrendered any right to reopen the default judgment against the insured and must stand or fall on the issue of whether plaintiff's attorneys were required to give the company notice of the prior litigation before starting suit against the insurer under former § 167 [now § 3420]. Clark v Utica Mut. Ins. Co., 31 Misc. 2d 1005, 222 N.Y.S.2d 239, 1961 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1899 (N.Y. Mun. Ct. 1961).

In an action by an automobile passenger to recover an unsatisfied judgment against the driver of the vehicle involved in a collision with another vehicle, the Canadian liability insurer, which had been given a full opportunity to defend the action and had made a deliberate determination not to do so was estopped from raising defenses that the accident occurred through the sole negligence of the driver of the other automobile, that the statute of limitations had expired, and that plaintiff had released the insured defendant. Bonde v General Sec. Ins. Co., 55 Misc. 2d 588, 285 N.Y.S.2d 675, 1967 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 979 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1967).

The statutory right to sue, giving an injured person an action against the insurer of the tortfeasor, is remedial for the correction of injustice, since prior to the enactment of the statute an injured person possessed no cause of action against such an insurer because of lack of privity of contract. However, since the judgment creditor's rights against the insurer are no greater than those of the insured, defenses good against the insured are also good against the injured person. Bonde v General Sec. Ins. Co., 55 Misc. 2d 588, 285 N.Y.S.2d 675, 1967 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 979 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1967).

In injured party's direct action against the insurance company after an unsatisfied judgment against insured, the insurance company cannot go behind judgment and raise defenses going to merits of injured party's claim against driver. Di Martile v Country-Wide Ins. Co., 86 Misc. 2d 36, 381 N.Y.S.2d 579, 1975 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3356 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1975), aff'd, 51 A.D.2d 869, 379 N.Y.S.2d 685, 1976 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11488 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1976), aff'd, 51 A.D.2d 869, 379 N.Y.S.2d 684 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1976).

In an action pursuant to Ins Law former § 167(5) [now § 3420(c)], defendant insurer would not be able to disclaim coverage under its casualty policy on the ground that its insured failed to notify defendant of the incident or cooperate in the defense of the action and that the insured could not be located, where defendant had failed to meet its burden of demonstrating due diligence in locating its insured, and where plaintiff provided defendant with sufficient and reasonable notice of the accident and ample opportunity to inspect its insured's vehicle and to investigate the accident. Banner Casualty Co. v Nationwide Ins. Co., 115 Misc. 2d 453, 454 N.Y.S.2d 264, 1982 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3707 (N.Y. Civ. Ct. 1982).

23. Other matters

A plaintiff is entitled to judgment in an action under former § 109 [predecessor to former § 167, now § 3420] to recover from the defendant insurer the amount due on an unsatisfied judgment entered in an action for personal injuries suffered while the plaintiff was a passenger in an automobile owned and driven by the defendant's insured, where it appears that after the accident but before judgment the plaintiff and the insured were married; the insurer's obligation under the policy became fixed upon the happening of the accident. Stonborough v Preferred Acci. Ins. Co., 292 N.Y. 154, 54 N.E.2d 342, 292 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 154, 1944 N.Y. LEXIS 1386 (N.Y. 1944).

Plaintiff, in action brought directly against liability insurer for personal injuries suffered when he was shot by insured, was collaterally estopped to relitigate question of whether shooting was intentional (and thus excluded from policy coverage) where criminal jury had previously found insured guilty of first degree assault. D'Arata v New York Cent. Mut. Fire Ins. Co., 76 N.Y.2d 659, 563 N.Y.S.2d 24, 564 N.E.2d 634, 1990 N.Y. LEXIS 3484 (N.Y. 1990).

Where a casualty insurance company fails to give a bond or undertaking on appeal to stay the execution of a judgment procured against the insured for injuries to its employees, and the insured in order to prevent the sale of his property pays the judgment, he may immediately bring an action against the insurer, although the policy provides that no action shall lie under the policy "unless it shall be brought for loss or expense actually sustained and paid in satisfaction of a final judgment." When levy under the execution was discharged by the insured, the judgment then was final, within the meaning of the policy, for it had finally resulted in loss or expense to him, which the policy covered. Where a casualty company fails to defend actions brought against the insured by surgeons employed by him to render necessary services to injured employees, the insured may recover the amount of such judgments, where it is bound by the policy to "render to the company at all times all co-operation and assistance in his power." E. M. Upton Cold Storage Co. v Pacific Coast Casualty Co., 162 A.D. 842, 147 N.Y.S. 765, 1914 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6052 (N.Y. App. Div. 1914).

Defendant insurance company has no right to prefer claim which it paid as an insurer for a general employer against a general liability policy which it issued to a contractor and take that sum out of the fund in priority to judgment which the plaintiff obtained against the contractor, the execution of which was returned unsatisfied. Haberman v Hartford Acci. & Indem. Co., 230 A.D. 314, 244 N.Y.S. 161, 1930 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8605 (N.Y. App. Div. 1930).

In an action brought under former § 109 [predecessor to former § 167, now § 3420] by guest riders to recover from the insurer under the terms of its policy issued to insured amount of judgments against insured returned unsatisfied, and not exceeding limits specified in said policy, an order granting plaintiff's motion for summary judgment was proper. Mastruzzi v United States Casualty Co., 246 A.D. 593, 284 N.Y.S. 808, 1935 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9279 (N.Y. App. Div. 1935).

In an action pursuant to former § 167 [now § 3420] to compel defendant insurance company to pay a judgment recovered by plaintiffs in an action for damages for assault and battery, the insurer's alleged liability being under a "comprehensive personal liability policy" which excluded coverage of injuries caused intentionally or by direction of the insured, defendant's motion for summary judgment, based on the exclusion clause, was properly denied. Baldinger v Consolidated Mut. Ins. Co., 15 A.D.2d 526, 222 N.Y.S.2d 736, 1961 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7088 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1961), aff'd, 11 N.Y.2d 1026, 230 N.Y.S.2d 25, 183 N.E.2d 908, 1962 N.Y. LEXIS 1088 (N.Y. 1962).

In action for wilful damage to property, defendant insured's failure to notify insurer of amended complaint asserting negligence cause of action did not abrogate insurer's liability and duty to defend under policy where original complaint forwarded to insurer alleged collapse of plaintiff's garage, which, though caused by defendant's purposive conduct in raising grade and permitting vehicles to drive thereon over adjacent landowner's objections, was accidental within coverage provisions of defendant's insurance policy; thus garage owner was entitled to recover under Insurance Law former § 167, subd 1(b) [now § 3420(a)(2)] based on insurer's liability. McGroarty v Great American Ins. Co., 43 A.D.2d 368, 351 N.Y.S.2d 428, 1974 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5848 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1974), aff'd, 36 N.Y.2d 358, 368 N.Y.S.2d 485, 329 N.E.2d 172, 1975 N.Y. LEXIS 1814 (N.Y. 1975).

While plaintiff established her compliance with the requirements of N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(a)(2) in attempting to recover an unsatisfied judgment from a personal injury action against an alleged insured and the driver of the insured vehicle, the insurer raised a triable issue of fact as to the existence of coverage for the driver under the particular policy at issue; however, the insurer was not entitled to summary judgment based on its conducting an exhaustive search of the driver's and the insured's names in the insurer's records. Marsala v Travelers Indem. Co., 50 A.D.3d 864, 855 N.Y.S.2d 669, 2008 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3384 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2008).

Judgment creditor failed to sufficiently plead a claim under this statute against a claims administrator (CA) for a policy because the CA did not have independent authority to issue the disclaimer and only did so at the insurer's direction, the CA was not an insurance company and did not participate in any way in the underwriting, issuance, or binding of the policy, and the CA had no contractual privity with the insured or the creditor. S.P. v Dongbu Ins. Co., 174 A.D.3d 911, 106 N.Y.S.3d 365, 2019 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5882 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2019).

In an action by an insurer of the owner of premises and the owner against a coal supply company and its insurer to recover the sum paid by plaintiff insurer in settlement of an action by third party against the owner and coal supply company as joint tort feasors to recover for personal injuries alleged to have been caused by negligence in replacing coal hole cover, it seems, that plaintiffs may have a cause of action, under former § 109 [predecessor to former § 167, now § 3420] against defendant insurer, provided it is established that the judgment has been recovered and that execution has been returned unsatisfied against the defendant insured. Greater New York Taxpayers' Mut. Ins. Ass'n v Sinram Bros., Inc., 267 N.Y.S. 796, 149 Misc. 223, 1933 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1725 (N.Y. City Ct. 1933).

Where liability for damages pursuant to Insurance Law former § 167 subd 1(b) [now § 3420(a)(2)] was sharply contested as between the Motor Vehicle Accident Indemnification Corporation and a commercial insurance carrier which was being liquidated under the supervision of the State Insurance Department, the state could have made some arrangement for payment of damages recovered by injured motorist in default judgment previously entered against insured owner and uninsured operator. Brown v Reid, 72 Misc. 2d 237, 339 N.Y.S.2d 204, 1972 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1244 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1972).

Where a liability policy provides that an action be started within twelve months from the time of loss, the time begins to run from the time of the recovery of the judgment against insured. Oakley v Firemen's Ins. Co., 70 N.Y.S.2d 458, 1947 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2419 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1947).

Worker's N.Y. C.P.L.R. art. 78 proceeding was an improper basis to compel the state insurance fund (SIF) to pay a judgment issued in favor of the worker against his former employer because there was no evidence that the SIF was enjoined by law to do so, there was no undisputed agreement for it to do so, and it was exempt from having to do so under Insurance Law; the SIF was entitled to an order to show cause for an order dismissing the petition. The court lacked subject matter jurisdiction over the action, which should have been brought in the Court of Claims, because the worker was trying to collect money damages against a state agency. Miraglia v State Ins. Fund, 920 N.Y.S.2d 633, 32 Misc. 3d 471, 2011 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1454 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 2011).

New York State Insurance Fund is exempt from the requirements of N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(a), (b) due to N.Y. Ins. Law § 1108(c). Town of Amherst v Hilger, 106 A.D.3d 120, 962 N.Y.S.2d 837, 2013 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1901 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 2013).

As N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(a)(1) required, the policy provided that the bankruptcy or insolvency of the rental company would not relieve the insurer of its obligations under the policy; the insurer therefore would have to provide indemnification to plaintiffs in the underlying action if the rental company declared bankrupt or became insolvent. Sunbelt Rentals, Inc. v Charter Oak Fire Ins. Co., 839 F. Supp. 2d 680, 2012 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 37613 (S.D.N.Y. 2012).

V. Procedure for Giving Notice of Accident

24. In general

When the legislature, in 1939, added the words providing for "written notice by or on behalf of the insured person", it did not intend to change the rule of Weatherwax v Royal Indem. Co. (1929) 250 NY 281, 165 NE 293, which held that the provision for "notice" by the insured as described in the statute authorized a policy provision requiring written notice by the insured. Bazar v Great American Indem. Co., 306 N.Y. 481, 119 N.E.2d 346, 306 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 481, 1954 N.Y. LEXIS 1019 (N.Y. 1954).

Requirement that insured notify its liability insurance carrier of potential claim "as soon as practicable" operates as condition precedent to coverage, and insured has burden of showing reasonableness of any excuse for delay in giving notice. White v New York, 81 N.Y.2d 955, 598 N.Y.S.2d 759, 615 N.E.2d 216, 1993 N.Y. LEXIS 1127 (N.Y. 1993).

The provision of subd. 1(c) of former § 167 [now § 3420(a)(3)] that notice given by the insured to any licensed agent of the insurer shall be deemed notice to the insurer does not exempt the insured from compliance with the provision of an insurance policy that notice shall be in writing and as soon as practicable. Nothhelfer v American Surety Co., 277 A.D. 1009, 100 N.Y.S.2d 331, 1950 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4265 (N.Y. App. Div. 1950), aff'd, 302 N.Y. 910, 100 N.E.2d 184, 302 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 910, 1951 N.Y. LEXIS 1010 (N.Y. 1951).

Plaintiff insurance company, which insured the corporate defendant's building, is under no obligation to defend or indemnify the corporate defendant in a negligence action against the latter brought by an infant plaintiff and his mother after the infant, then one and one-half years old, ingested lead paint chips while in his apartment in the building, where the corporate defendant was apprised of the occurrence several days after its occurrence, but no notice of claim was served upon the insurer for some four and one-half years; the mother was immediately aware that her son had ingested the lead paint and as a matter of law failed in her obligation to inform the insurer of the occurrence as soon as was reasonably possible (see Insurance Law, former § 167, subd 1, par [d] [now § 3420(a)(4)]) thereby prejudicing the insurer in its investigation and defense of the claim. A court should not judicially legislate a tolling provision for an infant's minority into former section 167 [now § 3420]. Insurance Co. of Greater New York v 156 Hamilton Realty Corp., 72 A.D.2d 403, 424 N.Y.S.2d 683, 1980 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9695 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1980).

The contractual requirement of notice contained in an insurance policy was satisfactorily met by appellant's written communications with insurance company detailing the claim, where there was no statutory requirement that a specific notice of claim form be used and where there was no contractual requirement that a specific form be used. Metropolitan Property & Liability Ins. Co. v Torcivia, 90 A.D.2d 811, 455 N.Y.S.2d 666, 1982 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 19043 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1982).

Insureds could not avoid provisions of insurance policy requiring written notice of accident by claiming that policy was never delivered to them since no legitimate reason was given for their lack of diligence in ascertaining extent of their coverage. Losi v Hanover Ins. Co., 139 A.D.2d 702, 527 N.Y.S.2d 458, 1988 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4546 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't), app. dismissed, 72 N.Y.2d 950, 533 N.Y.S.2d 54, 529 N.E.2d 422, 1988 N.Y. LEXIS 2659 (N.Y. 1988).

Insured's notice to broker did not constitute notice to authorized agent where broker was retained by insureds to handle their insurance needs. Kamyr, Inc. v St. Paul Surplus Lines Ins. Co., 152 A.D.2d 62, 547 N.Y.S.2d 964, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 14347 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1989).

Insurance company was not relieved of duty to defend and indemnify physician in medical malpractice action on basis that physician failed to notify insurance company of action in timely manner where (1) insurance company issued policy to university health service, (2) complaint alleged that physician treated plaintiff both in his individual capacity and in his capacity as employee of health service, and (3) health service, which was also named as defendant, forwarded copy of complaint to insurance company in timely manner; insofar as physician was employee of health service, he and health service were united in interest and notice by health service was sufficient. National Union Fire Ins. Co. v Insurance Co. of N. Am., 188 A.D.2d 259, 590 N.Y.S.2d 463, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13509 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1992), app. denied, 81 N.Y.2d 709, 599 N.Y.S.2d 803, 616 N.E.2d 158, 1993 N.Y. LEXIS 1270 (N.Y. 1993).

General liability insurer properly disclaimed coverage for injuries sustained by parishioner on premises of insured church, on ground that written notice of accident, which had been delivered 9 months thereafter, was not given "as soon as practicable" as required by policy, notwithstanding fact that church had telephonically informed its insurance broker of accident on morning after it happened and policy contained sticker advising church to notify its broker in case of loss, since there was no evidence of existence of agency relationship between broker and insurer, or proof that insurer authorized placement of broker's sticker on policy or in any way empowered broker to modify policy's written notice requirement. Shaw Temple A.M.E. Zion Church v Mount Vernon Fire Ins. Co., 199 A.D.2d 374, 605 N.Y.S.2d 370, 1993 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12170 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1993).

Former § 167 [now § 3420] does not require the injured person to give written notice when one has already been given by or on behalf of the insured. Hence, a written notice from the insurance broker of the insured satisfied the requirements of this section. The statute intended to provide (1) that the insured company should receive written notice and (2) that, if the insured failed to give written notice, the injured person must do so. Pitts v Aetna Casualty & Surety Co., 218 F.2d 58, 1954 U.S. App. LEXIS 3229 (2d Cir. N.Y. 1954), cert. denied, 348 U.S. 973, 75 S. Ct. 535, 99 L. Ed. 757, 1955 U.S. LEXIS 1035 (U.S. 1955).

Insurer could not rely on the date of issuance of an insurance policy to show that an insured's claim that N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(a)(5) applied was invalid, as that provision applied to policies that were either issued or delivered after January 17, 2009; although the policy was issued prior to that time, the insured alleged that it was delivered thereafter. B&A Demolition & Removal, Inc. v Markel Ins. Co., 818 F. Supp. 2d 592, 2011 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 88196 (E.D.N.Y. 2011).

25. Right of injured party to give notice

In an action by an insurance company against an insureds, owners of a barn that was destroyed by a fire, and the insurance company of those owners, in which the plaintiff sought a declaration that it had no duty to defend or indemnify its insureds, the plaintiff's disclaimer of coverage was ineffective against the owners of the barn since the disclaimer was grounded solely on its assertion that its insureds had failed to give timely notice under the policy and since an injured party had the independent right to give notice to the insurer and may not be charged vicariously with the insured's delay in giving notice. Metropolitan Property & Liability Ins. Co. v Horner, 79 A.D.2d 869, 434 N.Y.S.2d 556, 1980 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 14284 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1980).

In an action by an injured party against a liability insurer for the amount of an unsatisfied judgment that the injured party had obtained on stipulation against an insured aviation company, the insurer's motion for summary judgment based on its insured's failure to comply with the notice provisions of Ins Law former § 167 [now § 3420] would have been denied had the case been decided under New York law since the failure of an insured to give proper notice does not bar the injured party, at least if the injured party has given notice with as much diligence as is reasonably possible, and since an injured third party may seek recovery from an insured's carrier despite the failure of the insured to provide timely notice of the accident; under the "grouping of contracts" rule, however, the rights of the parties under the policy were governed by the law of New Hampshire where the location of the insured risk and most of the contacts was indisputably New Hampshire, where the parties clearly understood that the principal location of the insured risk was New Hampshire, where the accident took place in that state and the injured party, although a resident of New York, was in fact a summer camper in New Hampshire at the time of the accident, and where the policy was issued through brokers apparently in New Hampshire. Steinbach v Aetna Casualty & Surety Co., 81 A.D.2d 382, 440 N.Y.S.2d 637, 1981 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10922 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1981).

Injured third party may directly give notice to insurer for claim of no-fault benefits where insured has failed to do so; timely notice requirement will not be held as strictly against injured party as it would be against insured, but diligence in giving notice to insurer is still required; 3-year delay of injured party in notifying insurer of claim for no-fault benefits is not excused merely by injured party's unawareness of possible eligibility for such benefits. Koretnicki v Firemen's Ins. Co., 109 A.D.2d 993, 486 N.Y.S.2d 491, 1985 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 47488 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1985).

Stipulation by an injured party, along with the insured, to allowing the insurer extra time to respond to the injured party's complaint did not constitute notice to the insured entitling the injured party to a response; the untimely notice given earlier by the insured controlled, and relieved the insured of its obligations under the insurance contract. Ringel v Blue Ridge Ins. Co., 293 A.D.2d 460, 740 N.Y.S.2d 109, 2002 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3349 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2002).

In a coverage dispute, an insurer was entitled to summary judgment declaring it was not obligated to defend or indemnify an insured in an underlying personal injury action because neither the insured nor the injured party, who received notice of the insured's policy renewal after the underlying incident occurred, ever notified the insurer of the underlying incident or the ensuing lawsuit, N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(a)(3); the injured party neither contacted the insurer nor took any other action to investigate whether a policy had been in effect on the date of the incident. Tower Ins. Co. of N.Y. v Rong Rong Sun, 105 A.D.3d 561, 963 N.Y.S.2d 225, 2013 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2578 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2013).

It is now settled that former § 167 [now § 3420] of the Insurance Law confers on the injured person an independent right to give notice to the liability insurer of the vehicle, and that, if he gives notice as soon as reasonably possible, he may maintain an action against the insurer despite the insured's failure to give notice. Zurich Ins. Co. v Martinez, 24 Misc. 2d 437, 201 N.Y.S.2d 810, 1960 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2796 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1960), aff'd, 14 A.D.2d 754, 218 N.Y.S.2d 526, 1961 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8447 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1961).

Although former § 167 [now § 3420] places on the insured the obligation to notify his liability insurer of any litigation, it likewise gives the plaintiff in an action involving liability covered by the insurance policy the right to notify the company of the litigation, and the giving of such notice by plaintiff is impliedly an obligation if he intends to enforce liability against the insurer for payment of any judgment obtained. Clark v Utica Mut. Ins. Co., 31 Misc. 2d 1005, 222 N.Y.S.2d 239, 1961 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1899 (N.Y. Mun. Ct. 1961).

A person injured by operation of an insured motor vehicle can preserve his rights to proceed directly against the insurer by, himself, giving notice of injury to the insurer, as he has a statutory interest in the policy, although he is not privy to it. De Abreu v Lumbermans Mut. Casualty Co., 32 Misc. 2d 634, 223 N.Y.S.2d 953, 1961 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2121 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1961).

Subd 1(c) of former § 167 [now § 3420(a)(3)] confers on injured person independent right to give notice to the insurance carrier and if he gives notice as soon as was reasonably possible under former subd 1(d) [now subd (a)(4)] he may maintain action against insurer despite insured's failure to give notice. And standards of what is reasonably possible are less rigorous in his case than those applied to notice by insured. National Grange Mut. Ins. Co. v Ogassian, 45 Misc. 2d 729, 257 N.Y.S.2d 451, 1965

N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2332 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1965), aff'd, 26 A.D.2d 908, 274 N.Y.S.2d 1013, 1966 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6342 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1966).

Obligation of insured under a policy to give notice of details of accident to insurer is separate and distinct from that of an injured claimant who seeks to obtain the benefits of policy issue to the insured. Pensky v Aetna Life & Casualty Co., 84 Misc. 2d 270, 375 N.Y.S.2d 780, 1975 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3120 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1975), rev'd, 55 A.D.2d 640, 390 N.Y.S.2d 162, 1976 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 15386 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1976).

Trial court erred in denying an insurer's petition pursuant to N.Y. C.P.L.R. art. 75 to permanently stay arbitration of an uninsured motorist claim by injured parties; because a company's insurer was properly notified of the accident by the injured parties pursuant to N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(a)(3), the company's vehicle was insured at the time of an accident. Gov't Emples. Ins. Co. v Jones, 6 A.D.3d 534, 774 N.Y.S.2d 435, 2004 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4435 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2004).

Motor vehicle insurer was required to defend and indemnify its insureds in an accident victim's tort action although the insureds did not notify it of the accident or the action; the purposes of the notice requirement were served because the victim notified the insurer of the accident under N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(a)(3), his attorney advised the insurer that he had been retained to pursue accident-related claims, and the insurer suffered no prejudice. American Tr. Ins. Co. v B.O. Astra Mgt. Corp., 814 N.Y.S.2d 849, 12 Misc. 3d 740, 235 N.Y.L.J. 91, 2006 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1011 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 2006), aff'd in part, modified, 39 A.D.3d 432, 835 N.Y.S.2d 106, 2007 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5172 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2007).

Motor vehicle insurer was not entitled to a default judgment against its insureds in its action for a declaration that it was not required to defend or indemnify them in a tort action filed by an accident victim because of their failure to notify the insurer of the accident or of the victim's action; the insurer's duty to indemnify them was preserved by the notice given to the insurer of the accident by the victim under N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(a)(3). American Tr. Ins. Co. v B.O. Astra Mgt. Corp., 814 N.Y.S.2d 849, 12 Misc. 3d 740, 235 N.Y.L.J. 91, 2006 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1011 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 2006), aff'd in part, modified, 39 A.D.3d 432, 835 N.Y.S.2d 106, 2007 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5172 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2007).

Insurer was not obligated to defend and indemnify its insured in a patron's underlying slip and fall claim because the insured's nine-month delay in notifying the insurer of the claim was unreasonable, and the patron also failed to act diligently in attempting to ascertain the identity of the insurer or notifying the insurer of the claim for purposes of N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(a)(3); no request for information regarding the insurer of the licensee was requested from public agencies or anyone else. Additionally, a letter from the patron's counsel to the insured simply suggested that the insured forward the letter to its insurance carrier. Tower Ins. Co. of N.Y. v Lin Hsin Long Co., 50 A.D.3d 305, 855 N.Y.S.2d 75, 2008 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2925 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2008).

If the injured party may provide notice to protect its right to sue the insurer when the insured party never gives notice, then it would make no sense to say that the injured party's notice becomes "superfluous" for the purpose of protecting its right to sue simply because the insured party gave the insurer prior notice. Cont'l Ins. Co. v Atl. Cas. Ins. Co., 603 F.3d 169, 2010 U.S. App. LEXIS 8867 (2d Cir. 2010).

In a home insurer's suit against a contractor's liability insurer for satisfaction of a default judgment against the contractor, N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(a) permitted the home insurer to give the liability insurer independent notice of its claim after the contractor had given untimely notice, but the liability insurer was entitled to summary judgment because the roofing limitation endorsement in the liability insurance policy excluded coverage of the fire. Cont'l Ins. Co. v Atl. Cas. Ins. Co., 603 F.3d 169, 2010 U.S. App. LEXIS 8867 (2d Cir. 2010).

Because the pedestrians' efforts in making a claim under N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(a)(2) to facilitate proper notice to the insurer were sufficient in light of the opportunities to do so afforded them under the circumstances, the motion court properly found that their personal injury action was not barred. Cirone v Tower Ins. Co. of N.Y., 39 A.D.3d 435, 835 N.Y.S.2d 111, 2007 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5145 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't), app. denied, 9 N.Y.3d 808, 844 N.Y.S.2d 784, 876 N.E.2d 513, 2007 N.Y. LEXIS 2807 (N.Y. 2007).

26. Notice to agent of insurer

Although the owners of an automobile involved in an accident fail to give timely notice thereof to their liability insurer, where they give such notice and forward summons and complaint to a different insurer, who forwards the papers to the proper insurer, the complaint gives adequate notice in writing to the latter of the accident and the circumstances, leaving, however, the question of whether such notice was timely. Mason v Allstate Ins. Co., 12 A.D.2d 138, 209 N.Y.S.2d 104, 1960 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6284 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1960).

Decision below dismissing complaint at close of plaintiff's case reversed on the ground that plaintiff's proof made out a prima facie case as to giving written notice of accident. Morgan v Travelers Ins. Co., 23 A.D.2d 797, 258 N.Y.S.2d 943, 1965 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4378 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1965).

Oral notification of accident given by insured to insurance company's authorized agent at informal social function did not constitute proper notice where policy provisions required written notice. Losi v Hanover Ins. Co., 139 A.D.2d 702, 527 N.Y.S.2d 458, 1988 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4546 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't), app. dismissed, 72 N.Y.2d 950, 533 N.Y.S.2d 54, 529 N.E.2d 422, 1988 N.Y. LEXIS 2659 (N.Y. 1988).

In third-party action by gasoline service station owner for declaration that its liability insurer had duty to defend and indemnify him in connection with underlying suit to recover cost of cleaning up underground gasoline leak, there was no merit in owner's claim that insurer received actual or constructive notice of leak within several months of its occurrence, either by communication between owner and his insurance agent or through insurer's annual inspection of premises, where his contention based on constructive notice had no foundation in law, and evidence did not support contention that he satisfied notice requirement by informing his agent of incident. State v Ackley, 245 A.D.2d 668, 664 N.Y.S.2d 876, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12582 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1997).

A person who is merely an insurance broker has no authority to receive a notice of accident from an insured person for and on behalf of the liability insurer, and his receipt of such a notice is not due notice to the carrier under the terms of the policy or of former § 167 [now § 3420]. Curreri v Allstate Ins. Co., 37 Misc. 2d 557, 236 N.Y.S.2d 719, 1963 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2383 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1963).

Where an insurance claimant personally notified an insurance agent of his accident and one month thereafter talked with the manager of the insurance company's claim division who referred the matter back to the agent, there was sufficient notice to comply with former § 167 [now § 3420]. Barrett v Century Indem. Co., 115 N.Y.S.2d 729, 1952 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1745 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1952).

Individual asbestos injury related claimants giving of notice by serving their summonses and complaints on counsel for the insured insulation company was sufficient notice of occurrences. This was especially so where the insurance companies were made aware of occurrences as soon as the first asbestos actions were commenced (after N.Y. C.P.L.R. 214-c was enacted in 1986, thousands of asbestos-caused personal injury actions were filed in New York between that year and 1992, the year that the products aggregates in the insurance polices were exhausted), and thus the insurance companies could have begun investigating immediately thereafter. Continental Cas. Co. v Employers Ins. Co. of Wausau, 839 N.Y.S.2d 403, 16 Misc. 3d 223, 237 N.Y.L.J. 92, 2007 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3336 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 2007), rev'd, 60 A.D.3d 128, 871 N.Y.S.2d 48, 2008 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9966 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2008).

Summary judgment for an insurer in a daughter's claim for supplementary uninsured/underinsured motorists coverage was error because, inter alia, the agency relationship between the agent and the insurer resulted in the insured's notice to the agent about the accident being notice to the insurer under N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(a)(3); the evidence that the insured had left New York to be with the daughter following the serious injuries she suffered in the accident was sufficient to raise a factual issue as to whether the delay of about one month beyond the 30-day notice requirement was sufficiently justified. Further, the insurer did not submit proof that it was prejudiced by the delay. Waldron v New York Cent. Mut. Fire Ins. Co., 84 A.D.3d 1480, 922 N.Y.S.2d 609, 2011 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3610 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), superseded, vacated, 88 A.D.3d 1053, 930 N.Y.S.2d 687, 2011 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7023 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2011).

Defendant insurer was denied summary judgment on the direct action claim of plaintiff whose house had burned down, brought pursuant to N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420, where the insurer had accepted notice of loss in a routine manner from the insured contractor's broker, who was cloaked in apparent authority to act on the insurer's behalf. Cohen v Utica First Ins. Co., 436 F. Supp. 2d 517, 2006 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 44411 (E.D.N.Y. 2006).

27. Other matters

The rule of CPLR 3015 requiring a defendant to deny the performance of any condition precedent specifically and with particularity, is not immune from the policy of New York law that the allegations of a pleading shall be liberally construed with a view to substantial justice between the parties, and where a plaintiff pleads as her sole cause of action a right of recovery as one standing in the shoes of the insured, it being alleged that the latter "duly performed all the conditions of said policy of insurance on its part", an answer that the "insured" had failed to give notice should have been liberally construed as applicable to the cause of action brought to recover under Insurance Law former § 167 [now § 3420]. Frazier v Fidelity & Casualty Co., 27 A.D.2d 922, 279 N.Y.S.2d 599, 1967 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4400 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1967).

In an action against an insurer under a liability policy, Special Term erred in granting plaintiff's motion for summary judgment on the issue of the insurer's liability and for an assessment of damages where it erred in holding, as a matter of law, that the insurer's disclaimer of coverage for the plaintiff was ineffective pursuant to former Subd 8 of Ins Law § 167 [now § 3420(d)] in that former Subd 8 was inapplicable when there was no "death or bodily injury arising out of . . . any other type of accident occuring within this state." The allegations of tort against the plaintiff encompassed acts requiring intent so that they did not fall within the meaning of "accident" as used in Ins Law former § 167 [now § 3420] since "accident" connotes something unexpected or unintended. Spinosa v Hartford Fire Ins. Co., 90 A.D.2d 574, 456 N.Y.S.2d 140, 1982 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 18639 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1982).

Landlords' receipt of health department's order to abate nuisance, which did not apprise them that particular child in their building had been injured by elevated lead levels in his apartment, did not place them on notice of "a concrete threat of litigation" and thus did not trigger their obligation to notify their insurance carrier of potential claim. Scharf v Generali - U.S. Branch, 259 A.D.2d 349, 687 N.Y.S.2d 47, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2751 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1999).

State was entitled to summary judgment declaring that third party insurer was obligated to defend and indemnify it, although coverage had been disclaimed for state's failure to provide timely notice of occurrence, since insurer had received timely notice from nonparty construction company, which was required to procure and maintain insurance for state. Rose v State, 265 A.D.2d 473, 696 N.Y.S.2d 527, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10620 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1999).

Notice of accident provided by insured construction company to its general liability insurer was not effective notice of same accident on behalf of insured city under second policy with same insurer, even though company had bought second policy naming city as insured, where company and city held adverse positions in litigation. National Union Fire Ins. Co. v State Ins. Fund, 266 A.D.2d 518, 699 N.Y.S.2d 111, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12246 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1999).

Notice by alleged additional insured to insurer, of accident involving injury to primary insured's employee while working on roofing project at alleged additional insured's gas station, would not be imputed to primary insured where alleged additional insured was not claimant but merely sought indemnification from insurer based on its belief that it was additional insured under primary insured's policy; neither notice provided by another insured nor insurer's actual knowledge of claim satisfies contractual duty of insured to give timely notice. Roofing Consultants, Inc. v Scottsdale Ins. Co., 273 A.D.2d 933, 709 N.Y.S.2d 782, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6715 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't), app. denied, 95 N.Y.2d 770, 722 N.Y.S.2d 473, 745 N.E.2d 393, 2000 N.Y. LEXIS 3859 (N.Y. 2000).

Alleged lack of specificity of notice of accident could not be raised on appeal by insurer as basis for denying no-fault insurance benefits where insurer's belated claim that insured's notice was insufficiently specific to satisfy 11 NYCRR § 65.11(m)(2) was not raised as basis for denying benefits either in initial denial of claim sent to insured or in later denial of claim sent to insured' assignee, and insurer did not raise that claim until it became apparent that its claim of untimeliness of notice was not viable. N.Y. & Presbyterian Hosp. v Enter. Rent-A-Car, 281 A.D.2d 526, 721 N.Y.S.2d 823, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2568 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2001).

Notice given to a liability insurer of an accident and claim against the policy was considered adequate "to identify the insured" from the fact that the insurer immediately thereafter and without delay took statements from the assureds. Allstate Ins. Co. v Alford, 25 Misc. 2d 707, 206 N.Y.S.2d 388, 1960 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2282 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1960), aff'd, 14 A.D.2d 650, 218 N.Y.S.2d 313, 1961 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9437 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1961).

Nothing in Insurance Law creates automatic right for insurer to request and receive copy of accident report from police department on behalf of insured; in addition, nothing in Insurance Law requires police department to provide copy of police accident report to insurer. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 05-05-21.

In an insurance coverage dispute, even if the automotive insurer had not been provided with timely notice by the insured, it was not entitled to relief because there was no showing of prejudice in the absence of evidence of something it would have done differently during the course of litigation, a utilization of different defenses, or pursuit of a different course of strategy. Harleysville Worcester Ins. Co. v Wesco Ins. Co., 752 Fed. Appx. 90, 2019 U.S. App. LEXIS 3349 (2d Cir. N.Y. 2019).

VI. Requirement that Notice be Timely

28. In general

Notice provisions in insurance policies afford the insurer an opportunity to protect itself. Security Mut. Ins. Co. v Acker-Fitzsimons Corp., 31 N.Y.2d 436, 340 N.Y.S.2d 902, 293 N.E.2d 76, 1972 N.Y. LEXIS 880 (N.Y. 1972), limited, Brandon v Nationwide Mut. Ins. Co., 97 N.Y.2d 491, 743 N.Y.S.2d 53, 769 N.E.2d 810, 2002 N.Y. LEXIS 977 (N.Y. 2002).

The term "denial of coverage" in Ins Law former § 167 [now § 3420] refers to those instances in which insurance covering the event could be said to exist but for some nonpayment of premiums, cancellation, or other exclusion that would arguably defeat such coverage. Therefore, where there never was any coverage in insurance contracts because the car involved was neither an "owned vehicle" nor a "non-owned" vehicle, a 15-month delay in giving a notice of disclaimer was not unreasonable, and the disclaimer, in fact, was not required at all. Zappone v Home Ins. Co., 80 A.D.2d 661, 436 N.Y.S.2d 402, 1981 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10365 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1981), aff'd, 55 N.Y.2d 131, 447 N.Y.S.2d 911, 432 N.E.2d 783, 1982 N.Y. LEXIS 3077 (N.Y. 1982).

A determination that an insurance company was not required to defend or indemnify defendants in an action instituted by a foster child who, while under defendants' custody, was injured when his arm went into a hay baler being driven by defendants' son, on the ground that defendant failed to give the insurance company written notice of the occurrence as soon as practicable, would be reversed where defendants demonstrated a good faith belief in nonliability and were not required to notify their insurer, inasmuch as the injury appeared to have been a relatively minor fracture and the child's residence in defendant's home terminated a few months after the accident without further problems occurring. Merchants Mut. Ins. Co. v Hoffman, 86 A.D.2d 779, 448 N.Y.S.2d 68, 1982 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 15360 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't), aff'd, 56 N.Y.2d 799, 452 N.Y.S.2d 398, 437 N.E.2d 1155, 1982 N.Y. LEXIS 3443 (N.Y. 1982).

Insureds lacked standing to assert violation of CLS Ins § 3420, despite assertion that insurer failed to give injured parties prompt notice of its denial of coverage, where insureds had not suffered injury as result thereof and they were not within zone of interest which statutory requirement of notice to injured parties seeks to protect. Batchie v Travelers Ins. Co., 130 A.D.2d 536, 515 N.Y.S.2d 271, 1987 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 46540 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1987).

Injured party has independent right to provide written notice to insurer and cannot be bound by insured's late notice. Walters v Atkins, 179 A.D.2d 1067, 579 N.Y.S.2d 525, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2427 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1992).

Insurer was not entitled to summary judgment in its suit seeking a declaration that it had no duty to defend or indemnify the insured in an underlying claim because issues remained as to the effectiveness of the insurer's disclaimer of coverage such that it could not have been determined whether the insurer was obligated to defend and indemnify; the insured plausibly claimed that it was prejudiced by the disclaimer delay and the insurer failed to rebut that claim. Where, as here, the underlying claim involved only economic injury, the timeliness, and thus effectiveness, of an insurer's disclaimer was not governed by Insurance Law § 3420(d)(2) but rather was governed by the common law, under which prejudice had to generally be established as the result of an unreasonable delay in disclaiming before an insurer was to have been estopped from asserting noncoverage. Penn Millers Ins. Co. v C.W. Cold Stor., Inc., 103 A.D.3d 1132, 959 N.Y.S.2d 315, 2013 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 652 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 2013).

Whether notice of claim against a liability policy is given to the insurer within a reasonable time under the circumstances is a question of law for the court where no excuse for delay is offered, but one of fact where an excuse is offered. Lukin v Massachusetts Bonding & Ins. Co., 28 Misc. 2d 876, 218 N.Y.S.2d 322, 1961 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2759 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1961).

The provision in subsection 1(d) of former § 167 [now § 3420(a)(4)] that failure to give any notice required to be given by a policy of liability insurance within the time prescribed shall not invalidate any claim if it is shown not to have been reasonably possible to give such notice within the prescribed time and notice was given as soon as reasonably possible, is construed as requiring notice to be given within a reasonable time under all the circumstances. Lukin v Massachusetts Bonding & Ins. Co., 28 Misc. 2d 876, 218 N.Y.S.2d 322, 1961 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2759 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1961).

Where the victim was injured while driving the owner's vehicle, the victim's insurer's petition to stay underinsured motorist benefits arbitration was properly denied, as the insurer's filing of the disclaimer four months after consenting to the settlement of the personal injury action against the owner was untimely under N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(d). Aull v Progressive Cas. Ins. Co., 300 A.D.2d 302, 751 N.Y.S.2d 292, 2002 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11623 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2002).

While a party is entitled to a rebuttable presumption of receipt of notice based on proof of regular mailing, where the party fails to submit sufficient evidence attesting to the mailing of a letter or to the existence of an office practice geared to ensure the proper addressing or mailing of the letter, then the party has failed to establish that the party provided timely written notice of an underinsured motorist claim. Phoenix Ins. Co. v Tasch, 306 A.D.2d 288, 762 N.Y.S.2d 99, 2003 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6216 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2003).

In a liquidation proceeding pursuant to N.Y. Ins. Law art. 74, an injured person's claim against an insurance company was properly disallowed where the injured person did not notify the insurance company of the accident until over four after it occurred and two years after filing suit against the insured; the injured person did not exercise his right pursuant to N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(a)(3) to provide independent notification to insurance company, and notice to the insured's insurance broker was not notice to the insurance company. First Cent. Ins. Co. v Malave, 3 A.D.3d 494, 771 N.Y.S.2d 141, 2004 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 261 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't), app. denied, 2 N.Y.3d 704, 780 N.Y.S.2d 310, 812 N.E.2d 1260, 2004 N.Y. LEXIS 940 (N.Y. 2004).

Liability insurer need not show prejudice to avoid coverage based on late notice. City of Utica v Genesee Mgmt., 934 F. Supp. 510, 1996 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 10723 (N.D.N.Y. 1996).

Under New York law, insured's duty to notify its excess carrier of occurrence was triggered when circumstances suggested reasonable possibility that claim would trigger excess insurer's coverage. City of Utica v Genesee Mgmt., 934 F. Supp. 510, 1996 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 10723 (N.D.N.Y. 1996).

Since the insurer failed to address the issue of the injured person's independent right to give notice and the injured person failed to offer any proof as to when he first provided notice to the insurer or as to his alleged due diligence in attempting to ascertain the insurer's identity, summary judgment was not appropriate as to either party where the injured person obtained a default judgment against the insured. Becker v Colonial Coop. Ins. Co., 24 A.D.3d 702, 806 N.Y.S.2d 720, 2005 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 14756 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2005).

29. Criteria for judging timeliness of notice by injured or insured distinguished

With respect to reasonableness of notice given by the injured party to the defendant's liability insurer, the standards are different from those applied to the insured. Price v Allstate Ins. Co., 12 A.D.2d 911, 210 N.Y.S.2d 945, 1961 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12596 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1961).

In a medical malpractice action brought by defendant physician's former patient 16 years after defendant had treated her, the insurer that had carried defendant's malpractice insurance at the time of such treatment would be required to defend and to indemnify the physician in the action where, though the physician had not notified such insurer of the claim against him for more than a year after the malpractice action was filed, defendant had promptly notified his current malpractice carrier of such claim, and had later promptly notified his prior carrier after the current carrier notified him that the treatment dates were not within the period of coverage of its policy, whereupon defendant had taken steps to determine the existence of the prior coverage. Van Buren v Employers Ins. of Wausau, 98 A.D.2d 774, 469 N.Y.S.2d 488, 1983 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 21099 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1983).

The courts in determining the question of notice apply a more liberal standard to the injured party suing under former § 167 [now § 3420] of the Insurance Law than is applied to the insured suing under the policy. Matthews v Glens Falls Ins. Co., 21 Misc. 2d 1079, 192 N.Y.S.2d 811, 1959 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2942 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1959).

In determining whether notice of claim or accident has been given as soon as reasonably possible, the standards to which the injured party is held are less rigorous than those applied to the insured, the question of whether notice was timely is ordinarily one of fact, and only when the delay is found to be wholly unexcused is the notice held too late as matter of law. Zurich Ins. Co. v Martinez, 24 Misc. 2d 437, 201 N.Y.S.2d 810, 1960 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2796 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1960), aff'd, 14 A.D.2d 754, 218 N.Y.S.2d 526, 1961 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8447 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1961).

The provisions of subsection 1(c) of former § 167 [now § 3420(a)(3)] giving the injured party the right to give notice of claim to the liability insurer permits a more liberal standard to be applied as to reasonableness of delay in giving notice on the part of the injured party than on that of the insured. Lukin v Massachusetts Bonding & Ins. Co., 28 Misc. 2d 876, 218 N.Y.S.2d 322, 1961 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2759 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1961).

A provision in an automobile liability policy requiring the insured to give written notice to the insurer "as soon as practicable" after the occurrence of an accident, requires the insured, for his own protection, to give such notice within a reasonable time under all the circumstances, and while an injured person may preserve his rights against the insurer by giving his own notice, pursuant to subd. 1(d) of former § 167 [now § 3420(a)(4)], such notice must also be given within a reasonable time under all the circumstances. Allstate Ins. Co. v Manger, 30 Misc. 2d 326, 213 N.Y.S.2d 901, 1961 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3168 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1961).

A person damaged or injured by negligence of an insured motorist can protect his rights against the negligent driver's insurer by giving notice as soon as "reasonably possible" after discovery of the identity of the insurance carrier, and the standard for judging reasonableness of delay on his part in notifying the carrier is necessarily more liberal than that applicable to the insureds themselves. Charney v Stypukowski, 35 Misc. 2d 662, 231 N.Y.S.2d 364, 1962 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3047 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1962).

With respect to timeliness of notice of accident given to a motor vehicle liability insurer, although the courts are inclined to take a more lenient attitude toward tardiness of notice from the injured party, even in such case if notice is late it must be shown that the notice could not have been given sooner. Curreri v Allstate Ins. Co., 37 Misc. 2d 557, 236 N.Y.S.2d 719, 1963 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2383 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1963).

With respect to giving of notice by an injured person to the insurer of the offending motorist pursuant to subds. (1)(c) and (d) of former § 167 [now § 3420(a)(3), (4)], the test of reasonable timeliness is not as stringent as in case of the insured's delay and is to be judged in the light of what was reasonably possible in view of information obtainable by due diligence. Pereyma v Safeguard Ins. Co., 38 Misc. 2d 759, 238 N.Y.S.2d 834, 1963 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2166 (N.Y. Civ. Ct. 1963), aff'd, 42 Misc. 2d 164, 247 N.Y.S.2d 789, 1964 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2062 (N.Y. App. Term 1964).

While lateness of notice given by the insured may support a carrier's disclaimer against the insured, in an action by the injured party the criteria is different and the injured party may sustain its action even if the insured could not. Hartogs v Employers Mut. Liability Ins. Co., 89 Misc. 2d 468, 391 N.Y.S.2d 962, 1977 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1888 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1977).

30. Circumstances justifying delay in giving notice

It was error to deny insured's motion for summary judgment declaring that excess insurance policy provided coverage to plaintiff in connection with 1984 claim, even though notice of claim was not given until 1987, since it was not until then that insured could reasonably conclude that potential damages were large enough to reach excess insurance policy. Paramount Communs. v Gibraltar Cas. Co., 204 A.D.2d 241, 612 N.Y.S.2d 156, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5788 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1994), reh'g denied, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11150 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't Nov. 10, 1994).

Defendant insurance carrier was entitled to judgment declaring that it was not obligated to defend and indemnify its insured under auto business liability policy in action arising from collision between injured party's car and van leased by insured and driven by its employee in course of his employment, as insured's claim that it did not inform defendant of accident because it assumed that it would be covered under liability insurance policy issued to lessor of van did not provide legally cognizable excuse for its lengthy delay in providing notice of accident to its own carrier. Metropolitan N.Y. Coordinating Council on Jewish Poverty v National Union Ins. Co., 222 A.D.2d 420, 634 N.Y.S.2d 730, 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12569 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1995).

Insurer of owners, general contractors, and construction managers (insureds) of project on which worker was injured was entitled to summary judgment declaring that insurer of project subcontractor was obligated to reimburse it for costs incurred in defending worker's underlying personal injury action against subcontractor, his employer, for negligence and violation of CLS Labor §§ 240 and 241(6), as well as third-party action, where (1) insureds were held liable in underlying action, even though subcontractor was found solely negligent, because subcontractor was by then officially dissolved, (2) plaintiff insurer was subrogee of insureds because it had paid loss for which they were entitled to be indemnified by subcontractor, (3) plaintiff insurer's notice to defendant insurer under CLS Ins § 3420(a)(3) was timely because delay resulting from subcontractor's dissolution was not attributable to plaintiff insurer, and (4) even if notice were late, defendant insurer did not mention it in its disclaimer and thus could not assert it on appeal. Aetna Cas. & Sur. Co. v National Union Fire Ins. Co., 251 A.D.2d 216, 674 N.Y.S.2d 685, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7704 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1998).

Because the reasonableness of the injured party's actions in attempting to provide notice to the insurer under N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(a)(3) presented a question of fact for a jury to resolve, the insurer was not entitled to summary judgment. Nationwide Mut. Fire Ins. Co. v Maitland, 79 A.D.3d 1348, 915 N.Y.S.2d 180, 2010 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9176 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2010).

Trial court properly denied an insurer's motion for summary judgment in the insured's action for defense and indemnification in an underlying action because the trial court correctly determined that the insured's liability had not actually been "determined" by a court of competent jurisdiction or by binding arbitration where a prior action was vacated more than a year before the insurer raised the issue, and the insurer failed meet its burden to prove that it was prejudiced by the delay in receiving notice. Castillo v Prince Plaza, LLC, 142 A.D.3d 1127, 38 N.Y.S.3d 74, 2016 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6077 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2016).

The diligence of an attorney for an injured person in giving notice of claim to the liability insurer of the owner and operator of the car is to be tested in the light of circumstances facing him at the time, not by those disclosed by later proof. Zurich Ins. Co. v Martinez, 24 Misc. 2d 437, 201 N.Y.S.2d 810, 1960 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2796 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1960), aff'd, 14 A.D.2d 754, 218 N.Y.S.2d 526, 1961 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8447 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1961).

The rule that if the trier of facts has found that it was reasonable under the circumstances for the person insured under a liability policy to believe that no injury was sustained, even though he knew of the accident, he is justified in not notifying the insurer until he becomes aware that there is injury, has never been abrogated. Lukin v Massachusetts Bonding & Ins. Co., 28 Misc. 2d 876, 218 N.Y.S.2d 322, 1961 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2759 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1961).

The absence of the word "infancy" from Insurance Law former § 167(1)(d) [now § 3420(a)(4)] does not require the court to ignore the fact of infancy. If by virtue, of infancy—or any other disability—it is not "reasonably possible to give such notice within the prescribed time" the claim is not invalidated. Ferguson v Nationwide Mut Ins. Co., 61 Misc. 2d 912, 307 N.Y.S.2d 347, 1970 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1954 (N.Y. Civ. Ct. 1970).

Landlord's receipt of administrative order stating, inter alia, that "a person residing at the above dwelling unit has a blood-lead level of 30 micrograms per deciliter" did not sufficiently notify landlord of tenant's personal injury claim for insurance purposes where order used technical language in describing occurrence and did not definitively identify injured party, tenant never notified landlord of any injury or claim, and landlord had owned building for only 2 months when it received order; since order did not suggest possibility of lawsuit, landlord's obligation to notify its liability insurer was not triggered until it received tenant's summons and complaint. Mount Vernon Fire Ins. Co. v East Side Renaissance Assocs., 893 F. Supp. 242, 1995 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 8261 (S.D.N.Y. 1995).

31. —Absence of knowledge of insurance coverage

Ten-year delay by insured, New York City Housing Authority (NYCHA), in notifying its liability insurer of accidental injury to child on NYCHA playground could not be excused by NYCHA's asserted lack of knowledge of incident where incident report had been filled out in triplicate by NYCHA police officer, who filed one copy with his precinct command and sent 2 copies to his superiors in housing police department, even though NYCHA received no other notice of incident. White v New York, 81 N.Y.2d 955, 598 N.Y.S.2d 759, 615 N.E.2d 216, 1993 N.Y. LEXIS 1127 (N.Y. 1993).

Insured is required to make diligent efforts to determine whether there is coverage under insurance policy, and ignorance of policy provisions, which insured has in her possession, is inexcusable. Allstate Ins. Co. v Frank, 57 A.D.2d 950, 394 N.Y.S.2d 902, 1977 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12230 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1977), rev'd, 44 N.Y.2d 897, 407 N.Y.S.2d 696, 379 N.E.2d 222, 1978 N.Y. LEXIS 2083 (N.Y. 1978).

Mere ignorance of coverage does not by itself excuse late notice for purposes of policy requirement that notice be given "as soon as practicable"; the lack of knowledge must be reasonable under all the circumstances. Aetna Cas. & Sur. Co. v Pa. Mfrs. Ass'n Ins. Co., 57 A.D.2d 982, 394 N.Y.S.2d 330, 1977 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12278 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1977).

Insured's untimely notice of claim more than 5 months after loss was not excused on ground that insured did not know that additional insurance coverage was issued where it was shown that letter confirming additional coverage was sent to insured and that insured paid premium for such coverage several months before loss. Omni Commercial Corp. v The Travelers, 210 A.D.2d 107, 621 N.Y.S.2d 840, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12685 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1994).

Absence of knowledge of insurance coverage by the insured may excuse delay in giving notice of claim against the insured to the insurer. Zurich Ins. Co. v Martinez, 24 Misc. 2d 437, 201 N.Y.S.2d 810, 1960 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2796 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1960), aff'd, 14 A.D.2d 754, 218 N.Y.S.2d 526, 1961 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8447 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1961).

Denial by malpractice insurer of coverage to the clients was not operative against them under N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(a) as the insurer did not disclaim coverage due to the timeliness of the clients' notice to the insurer until a declaratory judgment suit was filed, and the clients acted with due diligence in attempting to discover the insurer's identity from an attorney by sending four certified letters to the attorney, making numerous phone calls to the attorney, and seeking a court order compelling the attorney to disclose the attorney's malpractice carrier. McCabe v St. Paul Fire & Mar. Ins. Co., 884 N.Y.S.2d 634, 25 Misc. 3d 726, 2009 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2153 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 2009), app. dismissed, 79 A.D.3d 1611, 913 N.Y.S.2d 616, 2010 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9970 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 2010).

Insurer's disclaimer of liability was not dilatory because it only learned sufficient facts that defendant's policy provided coverage when defendant produced its policy during discovery, it was reasonable for the insurer to delay disclaimer until it determined the existence of alternate insurance sources, and it had effectively disclaimed coverage by filing its declaratory judgment action. United Fin. Cas. Co. v Country-Wide Ins. Co., 779 Fed. Appx. 761, 2019 U.S. App. LEXIS 19581 (2d Cir. N.Y. 2019).

32. —Belief of nonliability

While a good-faith belief of nonliability may excuse or explain a seeming failure to give timely notice, the insured's belief must be reasonable under all the circumstances, and it may be relevant on the issue of reasonableness, whether and to what extent, the insured has inquired into the circumstances of the accident or occurrence. Security Mut. Ins. Co. v Acker-Fitzsimons Corp., 31 N.Y.2d 436, 340 N.Y.S.2d 902, 293 N.E.2d 76, 1972 N.Y. LEXIS 880 (N.Y. 1972), limited, Brandon v Nationwide Mut. Ins. Co., 97 N.Y.2d 491, 743 N.Y.S.2d 53, 769 N.E.2d 810, 2002 N.Y. LEXIS 977 (N.Y. 2002).

New York City Housing Authority (NYCHA) did not demonstrate reasonable belief of nonliabilty as excuse for its delay in giving notice of accident to its liability insurance carrier in light of seriousness of injury (fractured skull requiring 6 days' hospitalization) and apparent lack of adult supervision on playground at which 3-year-old fell from slide. White v New York, 81 N.Y.2d 955, 598 N.Y.S.2d 759, 615 N.E.2d 216, 1993 N.Y. LEXIS 1127 (N.Y. 1993).

Insured was not entitled to summary judgment in action to require insurance company to defend and indemnify him in underlying personal injury action, arising from incident which occurred while insured was high school student, where there was more than 6-year delay in giving notice of incident to insurance company, and there was question of fact as to whether incident was only trivial high school scuffle that would not lead reasonable person to believe in potential for liability, especially as insured admitted that he was aware at time of incident that his conduct could result in criminal complaint. Winstead v Uniondale Union Free Sch. Dist., 170 A.D.2d 500, 565 N.Y.S.2d 845, 1991 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2049 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1991).

Insured building owner's delay in notifying insurer of claim would be excused, even though manager learned of assault on tenant in basement of building on day it occurred but did not report it to insurer until 22 months later, since owner had good-faith belief that he would not be liable for assault given that he had never been sued civilly for damages incurred by criminal acts of third party, and such suits were relatively rare when assault occurred. Beach Haven Apartments, No. 6, Inc. v Allcity Ins. Co., 182 A.D.2d 658, 581 N.Y.S.2d 689, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6052 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't), app. denied, 80 N.Y.2d 761, 592 N.Y.S.2d 670, 607 N.E.2d 817, 1992 N.Y. LEXIS 3915 (N.Y. 1992).

Insurer was entitled to judgment declaring that it was not required to defend its insureds in action brought against them for personal injuries sustained in altercation where insureds did not notify insurer of occurrence until they were served with summons and complaint in action about one year after occurrence, notwithstanding contention that insureds did not honestly believe that civil claim would be made against them or that personal injury had occurred, since insureds' excuse for delay in notification of insurer was not reasonable under circumstances. Allstate Ins. Co. v Grant, 185 A.D.2d 911, 587 N.Y.S.2d 382, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10101 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1992).

Fact that injured party voiced intent not to sue anyone will not excuse insured's delay in giving notice to insurer under homeowners policy when facts and circumstances surrounding event are such that reasonable person would envision liability; although mere number or frequency of lawsuits in similar circumstances is not relevant, existence of lawsuits in which property owner was actually found liable in similar circumstances may be relevant in determining whether reasonable person could envision liability. Vradenburg v Prudential Property & Casualty Ins. Co., 212 A.D.2d 913, 622 N.Y.S.2d 623, 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1633 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1995).

Insurer was obligated under homeowners insurance policy to defend and indemnify its insured in underlying personal injury action which arose from incident in which friend of insured's son accidentally shot another friend of insured's son while playing with gun that was part of insured's gun collection, despite insured's delay in giving notice of incident, where insured had reasonable good faith belief in nonliability given facts that (1) injury was caused by reckless conduct of son's friend, who was sole person charged with criminal responsibility for incident, (2) neither insured nor his son (who was asleep at time of incident) participated in, permitted, or condoned conduct, and (3) insured was not at home at time of incident and did not know that his son and his friends would be there. Vradenburg v Prudential Property & Casualty Ins. Co., 212 A.D.2d 913, 622 N.Y.S.2d 623, 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1633 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1995).

Court properly denied insurer's motion for summary judgment in action brought by insured seeking judgment declaring, inter alia, that it gave insurers notice of potential claim against insured "as soon as practical" as required by policy, even though insured was immediately aware of accident but waited until injured individual commenced underlying action almost 3 years later to notify insurer of accident, since fact issue existed as to whether insured had reasonable belief in nonliability so as to excuse its delay in notifying insurer. G.L.G. Contracting Corp. v Aetna Casualty & Sur. Co., 215 A.D.2d 821, 626 N.Y.S.2d 307, 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4811 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1995).

Insurance carrier was entitled to judgment declaring that it was not obligated to defend and indemnify its insured under auto business liability policy in action arising from collision between injured party's car and vehicle driven by its employee in course of his employment, as insured failed to show that its lengthy delay in providing notice of accident to its carrier was reasonable, notwithstanding its assertion that it had good faith belief of nonliability because it was not originally named as defendant in underlying accident; reasonable and prudent corporate employer could not have believed itself to be free from potential liability for injuries allegedly caused by negligence of its employee. Metropolitan N.Y. Coordinating Council on Jewish Poverty v National Union Ins. Co., 222 A.D.2d 420, 634 N.Y.S.2d 730, 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12569 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1995).

Insureds had reasonable good-faith belief in their nonliability for injuries caused by third party's criminal attack on visitor to their apartment building, and thus they were entitled to judgment declaring that their delay in giving notice of incident to insurer was excused, and that insurer was required to defend and indemnify them in underlying action. Condren Realty Mgmt. Corp. v Insurance Co. of N. Am., 222 A.D.2d 1089, 635 N.Y.S.2d 844, 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 14169 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1995).

Insurance company was entitled to summary judgment declaring that it was not obligated to defend and indemnify insured on negligence and Labor Law causes of action brought by independent contractor, where insured failed to timely notify insurer of accident and its only excuse was that it was unaware of strict liability provisions of Labor Law and believed that it could not be used by independent contractor, which was unreasonable as matter of law in light of fact that it previously had been sued under Labor Law by another independent contractor for injuries sustained in almost identical accident. Can-Am Roofing v American States Ins. Co., 229 A.D.2d 973, 645 N.Y.S.2d 253, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9020 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1996).

Insureds, as matter of law, had reasonable belief in nonliability where accident occurred on property they did not own, occupy, control, or make special use of; thus, they were entitled to summary judgment declaring that their insurer had duty to defend them in underlying action where they immediately forwarded summons and complaint in underlying action to insurer after receipt thereof some 14 months after accident. New Pines v North River Ins. Co., 233 A.D.2d 563, 649 N.Y.S.2d 250, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11456 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1996).

In action for injuries allegedly sustained by tenants as result of having been exposed to lead paint, landlords did not have reasonable belief in nonliability prior to commencement of action against them which would excuse their furnishing late notice to their liability insurer as matter of law, because their receipt of 2 health department notices (indicating that lead paint was present on their property and that tenant children's blood lead levels were elevated while they were living there) raised question as to reasonableness of their asserted failure to recognize possibility that claim might be asserted against them, or to make further inquiry. Seals by Seals v Powell, 236 A.D.2d 700, 653 N.Y.S.2d 452, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1131 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1997).

Actual knowledge of occurrence is substantively distinct from reasonableness of delay in giving insurer notice of occurrence based on good-faith belief in nonliability. Hudson City Sch. Dist. v Utica Mut. Ins. Co., 241 A.D.2d 641, 659 N.Y.S.2d 948, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7333 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1997).

Under insurance policy provision requiring notice of claim to insurer as soon as practicable, claim of deceased insured's executrix was timely because she gave insurer notice within few days after she learned of claim, where executrix stated in her affidavit that she did not believe that claim would be made against insured's estate because she knew of no one who would benefit from death of insured's stepchild, who was adopted, had no dependents, earned meager wages, and was predeceased by his adoptive mother and stepfather. Randolph v Nationwide Mut. Fire Ins. Co., 242 A.D.2d 889, 662 N.Y.S.2d 650, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10441 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1997).

In third-party action by gasoline service station owner for declaration that its liability insurer had duty to defend and indemnify him in connection with underlying suit to recover cost of cleaning up underground gasoline leak, owner's claim that his delay in notifying insurer of loss was reasonable, because he was unaware that he had suffered loss until plaintiff in underlying suit for cleanup costs demanded reimbursement in 1993, was belied by evidence that owner was told of his ultimate liability for cleanup costs, and of plaintiff's intent to seek reimbursement, just days after spill occurred in 1986; thus, he could not have had reasonable belief in his nonliability thereafter. State v Ackley, 245 A.D.2d 668, 664 N.Y.S.2d 876, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12582 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1997).

Restaurant owner, who had been sued 4 or 5 times before, failed to establish reasonable good-faith belief of nonliability sufficient to excuse his delay in notifying his insurer of potential personal injury claim, where he was aware that plaintiff was involved in altercation at his restaurant, he observed plaintiff on floor following altercation and later on crutches, and he was informed that plaintiff had obtained medical treatment for his injury. Duffin v Colonial Indem. Ins. Co., 270 A.D.2d 942, 706 N.Y.S.2d 559, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3585 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 2000).

33. Timeliness of notice by injured party, particular cases

Notice of suit given to the insurer, not by the insured, but by an injured party 83 days after the accident and 40 days after the commencement of the action were given within a reasonable time, and the insurer was not entitled to a declaratory judgment that it was not obligated to provide coverage for its insured by reason of the failure to give timely notice of the accident or of the subsequent legal proceedings. Aetna Ins. Co. v Millard, 25 A.D.2d 341, 269 N.Y.S.2d 588, 1966 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4327 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1966).

Woman who hired counsel to file insurance claim 4 ½ months after she was injured in automobile collision was properly found to have acted on her claim "as soon as practicable" where her estranged husband, the driver of the car in which the woman was riding, had failed to "take care of the details" as he had promised at the time of the accident. Dalrymple v Nationwide Mut. Ins. Co., 40 A.D.2d 814, 338 N.Y.S.2d 149, 1972 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3283 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1972).

Any and all notice of accident, first of which was given insurer by injured party some 2 ½ years after accident, were untimely as a matter of law and were properly rejected by insurer for that reason. Pensky v Aetna Life & Casualty Co., 55 A.D.2d 640, 390 N.Y.S.2d 162, 1976 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 15386 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1976).

An insurer was not obligated to defend or indemnify its insured in a negligence action arising out of an automobile accident, where the only written notice the insurer received was given by the injured party one year and ten months after the accident and one year and eight months after the injured party was apprised by the Department of Motor Vehicles of the insurance coverage, and where no excuse or mitigating circumstances was offered for the delay; testimony by the injured party's attorney that he had given the insurer telephone notice of the accident was not the written notice required by Ins Law § 167(1)(c) and by the policy and was insufficient as a matter of law, where the record did not reflect that the insurer was apprised of all relevant particulars as to the accident and the claim, and no follow-up correspondence was sent for almost one year and eight months thereafter. Jenkins v Burgos, 99 A.D.2d 217, 472 N.Y.S.2d 373, 1984 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 16543 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1984).

In declaratory judgment action determining that insurer received timely notice of incident giving rise to plaintiffs' cause of action against its insured, court did not err in finding that plaintiffs acted reasonably in providing notice to insurer, although such notice was not sent until one year after plaintiffs learned insured had coverage, where plaintiffs were repeatedly told by insured that insurer had been notified. Walters v Atkins, 179 A.D.2d 1067, 579 N.Y.S.2d 525, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2427 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1992).

Defendant insurer should have been granted summary judgment where plaintiff, as sole distributee of her mother's estate, was only one who would benefit from any damages recovered by estate, she was fully aware of accident, which occurred in her own home, and she learned cause of her mother's death within days thereafter, yet failed to provide notice to defendant for over 21 months; lack of personal representative for estate did not excuse delay in providing notice. Kramer v Government Emples. Ins. Co., 269 A.D.2d 567, 703 N.Y.S.2d 514, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2120 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2000).

Insured's failure to provide liability insurer with timely notice of underlying action by injured party did not preclude injured party's direct claim against insurer, but questions of fact concerning exactly when her attorney became aware of insurer's identity, and whether her attorney gave written notice to insurer as soon as reasonably practicable, precluded finding as matter of law that her notice to insurer was or was not timely. GA Ins. Co. v Simmes, 270 A.D.2d 664, 704 N.Y.S.2d 700, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2909 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2000).

Insurer's action to stay arbitration of a motorist's supplemental underinsured motorist claim was proper because a show cause order was irrelevant under N.Y. C.P.L.R. 304; the insurer's disclaimer of the motorist's claim was timely because the claim form originally submitted by the motorist to the insurer did not make it readily apparent that the claim was being made under his father's policy as opposed to motorist's own policy. Because the insurer timely disclaimed coverage under the father's policy in response to the motorist's first notice of a claim under that policy, the determination granting the petition to stay arbitration was proper. Matter of New York Cent. Mut. Fire Ins. Co. v Gordon, 46 A.D.3d 1296, 850 N.Y.S.2d 653, 2007 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13214 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2007).

Summary judgment for a judgment creditor was improper in her N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(a)(2) suit against an insurer seeking to recover for a judgment against the insurer's insured because the insurer rebutted the presumption of proper service with the affidavit of its claims manager denying that it received a copy of the underlying judgment before commencement of instant action, and, further, although the insurer was entitled to disclaim coverage because of the almost two-year delay in receiving notice of the commencement of the underlying action against its insured, a triable fact issue existed as to the timeliness of the disclaimer; the insurer asserted it did not receive notice of the underlying action until after the entry of judgment against its insured, and, thus, the insurer was not collaterally estopped from litigating the merits of the underlying action, as it was not provided a full and fair opportunity to contest the decision. In any event, the award of summary judgment in the judgment creditor's favor was premature. Jimenez v New York Cent. Mut. Fire Ins. Co., 71 A.D.3d 637, 897 N.Y.S.2d 143, 2010 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1738 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2010).

Paragraph (d) of subdivision 1 of former § 167 [now § 3420(a)(4)], requiring written notice of injury to be given as soon as practicable by the insured or by the injured person to the insured's insurance company, was sufficiently complied with where the injured person's attorney used due diligence in attempting to notify the insured and his insurance company. Delay in giving written notice to the insurance company was caused by new system of the Motor Vehicle Bureau and the misspelling of insured's name. Jamestown Mut. Ins. Co. v Valentine, 10 Misc. 2d 606, 172 N.Y.S.2d 9, 1958 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3788 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1958).

With respect to a claim for injuries sustained by an infant in falling out of a swing on premises covered by liability insurance, where the insured property owner did not give notice of claim to her insurer because she believed no injuries were sustained, the injured infant's attorney did not have access to the insurance policy or any direct information regarding the name of the insurance carrier, the insured gave prompt notice to her insurance broker after she was advised that a claim would be made, but the broker mistakenly notified a later insurer rather than the one whose policy was in force at time of the occurrence, and the later insurer promptly contacted plaintiff's lawyer and continued correspondence with him until it became aware that it was not on the risk, and plaintiff's attorney immediately notified the insurer whose policy covered the risk when advised of the mistake, the latter was notified "as soon as was reasonably possible," within the requirements of this section. Lukin v Massachusetts Bonding & Ins. Co., 28 Misc. 2d 876, 218 N.Y.S.2d 322, 1961 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2759 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1961).

Delay of 68 days in giving notice of accident and claim by an injured pedestrian to the car owner's liability insurer was prejudicial to the insurer where it established that its normal procedure was to investigate accidents possibly involving its insurance coverage immediately upon being advised of them, by diligent inquiry at the scene, locating and interrogating witnesses, attempting an early settlement of any claim, etc. Allstate Ins. Co. v Manger, 30 Misc. 2d 326, 213 N.Y.S.2d 901, 1961 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3168 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1961).

Where the plaintiff, who had been injured in an automobile collision on October 12, 1961 while riding as a passenger, was unable to notify the insurance carrier of the car that had collided with the one in which plaintiff was riding of the existence of plaintiff's claim until February 2, 1963, despite a diligent effort to do so, and the driver of the insured car had not notified the company of the accident, the notice had been given as soon as was reasonably possible and the insurer's attempted disclaimer of liability because of the lack of timely notice was improper, especially where the insurer issued a policy covering the car in which plaintiff was riding and had been notified of the accident by the driver of that vehicle. Cousins v Liberty Mut. Ins. Co., 47 Misc. 2d 413, 262 N.Y.S.2d 760, 1965 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2027 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1965), aff'd, 276 N.Y.S.2d 839 (N.Y. App. Div. 1966), aff'd, 26 A.D.2d 992, 1966 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6613 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1966).

Notice given to the insurer of a tortfeasor with reference to injuries to a 13-year-old child, was given as soon as "reasonably possible" so as to permit the collection of a default judgment, rendered against the insured, even though the mother could not collect damages in her own behalf since notice was not given to the insurer until 28 months had elapsed after the accident. Ferguson v Nationwide Mut Ins. Co., 61 Misc. 2d 912, 307 N.Y.S.2d 347, 1970 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1954 (N.Y. Civ. Ct. 1970).

Where mother of infant, injured in automobile accident, waited 19 months to retain an attorney, and 28 months elapsed before any notice was given to the insurer of the tortfeasor, the mother of the infant could not collect a default judgment entered against the insured from his insurer. Ferguson v Nationwide Mut Ins. Co., 61 Misc. 2d 912, 307 N.Y.S.2d 347, 1970 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1954 (N.Y. Civ. Ct. 1970).

Where automobile liability insurer of motorcycle owner was not notified of accident, in which a motorcyclist, not the motorcycle owner, was injured by uninsured motorist, until 215 days after the accident, the insurer was not notified of the accident "as soon as practicable" and, even if the motorcyclist were an insured under the uninsured motorist endorsement of the policy, the insurer could not be called upon to pay. Summit Ins. Co. v Beach, 80 Misc. 2d 382, 363 N.Y.S.2d 210, 1974 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1899 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1974).

Trial court erred in denying an injured party's motion for summary judgment pursuant to N.Y. C.P.L.R. 3212 seeking a declaration that the insurer had to defend and/or indemnify it insured in an underlying personal injury action, as the injured party provided adequate notice of the claim to the insurer, and therefore the disclaimer did not meet the requirements of N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(d). Hereford Ins. Co. v Mohammod, 7 A.D.3d 490, 776 N.Y.S.2d 87, 2004 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6388 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2004).

When default judgment was entered against an insurer's insureds in a dog bite case, after which the insureds notified the insurer of the claim and the insurer notified its insureds and the injured party who obtained judgment against the insureds that it disclaimed coverage, there was a genuine fact issue as to whether the injured party acted diligently in attempting to learn who the insureds' insurer was and to provide notice to the insurer, given the injured party's counsel's affirmation that he only became aware of who the insureds' insurer was two days before receiving the insurer's disclaimer, so it was error to grant the insurer summary judgment in the injured party's suit against it under N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(b). Appel v Allstate Ins. Co., 20 A.D.3d 367, 799 N.Y.S.2d 467, 2005 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8120 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2005).

Insurer made out an unrebutted prima facie case of unreasonable delay under N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420 by insureds in notifying the insurer of a hunting accident in which an insured killed another hunter, but summary judgment in favor of the insurer in its declaratory judgment action was improper as issues of fact existed as to whether notice by decedent's counsel to the insurer regarding the incident was reasonable. Allstate Ins. Co. v Marcone, 29 A.D.3d 715, 815 N.Y.S.2d 235, 2006 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS

6530 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't), app. dismissed, 7 N.Y.3d 841, 824 N.Y.S.2d 208, 857 N.E.2d 529, 2006 N.Y. LEXIS 2669 (N.Y. 2006).

As estate and wife of a decedent who was killed in a hunting accident had an independent interest in the protection afforded by the liability coverage of the shooter, the reasonableness of the notice of the accident given by counsel for the estate to the insurer was an issue independent of the reasonableness of the notice given by the insured to the insurer. Thus, although the insured failed to give reasonable notice of the accident, questions of fact regarding the reasonableness of counsel's notice to the insurer existed, which precluded summary judgment in favor of the insurer. Allstate Ins. Co. v Marcone, 29 A.D.3d 715, 815 N.Y.S.2d 235, 2006 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6530 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't), app. dismissed, 7 N.Y.3d 841, 824 N.Y.S.2d 208, 857 N.E.2d 529, 2006 N.Y. LEXIS 2669 (N.Y. 2006).

Trial court properly granted petitioner's motion in an action pursuant to N.Y. C.P.L.R. art. 75 to permanently stay arbitration of an action to collect uninsured motorist benefits, because the disclaimer of coverage by the insurer of the offending vehicle was unreasonable, as the insurer received timely notice of the claim from parties allegedly injured in the crash as required by N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420. Matter of Allstate Ins. Co. v Cruz, 30 A.D.3d 511, 817 N.Y.S.2d 129, 2006 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8025 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2006).

Summary judgment for a judgment creditor was improper in her N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(a)(2) suit against an insurer seeking to recover for a judgment against the insurer's insured because the insurer rebutted the presumption of proper service with the affidavit of its claims manager denying that it received a copy of the underlying judgment before commencement of instant action, and, further, although the insurer was entitled to disclaim coverage because of the almost two-year delay in receiving notice of the commencement of the underlying action against its insured, a triable fact issue existed as to the timeliness of the disclaimer; the insurer asserted it did not receive notice of the underlying action until after the entry of judgment against its insured, and, thus, the insurer was not collaterally estopped from litigating the merits of the underlying action, as it was not provided a full and fair opportunity to contest the decision. In any event, the award of summary judgment in the judgment creditor's favor was premature. Jimenez v New York Cent. Mut. Fire Ins. Co., 71 A.D.3d 637, 897 N.Y.S.2d 143, 2010 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1738 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2010).

34. —Delay due to difficulty in ascertaining identity of insurer or insured

Plaintiff who was injured when his automobile collided with a truck and who had obtained judgment against a firm which had rented the truck gave timely notice to the firm's liability insurers where the firm refused to disclose the name of its insurer and plaintiff did not discover the name of the insurer until 13 months after the accident and then gave immediate notice. Lauritano v American Fidelity Fire Ins. Co., 3 A.D.2d 564, 162 N.Y.S.2d 553, 1957 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5601 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1957), aff'd, 4 N.Y.2d 1028, 177 N.Y.S.2d 530, 152 N.E.2d 546, 1958 N.Y. LEXIS 944 (N.Y. 1958).

Although delay of the insured in giving notice of accident to the liability insurer does not preclude the injured party from enforcing his rights under former § 167 [now § 3420] against the insurer, and the timeliness of notice given by the injured party to the insurer is judged by somewhat different standards than those imposed upon the insured, where it appears that neither the insured nor the injured party gave notice to the insurer within a reasonable time after the accident, and the record fails to show lack of knowledge on the part of the injured person of the insurance coverage, recovery of judgment by the latter against the insurer as against a defense of lack of timely notice cannot be sustained. Mason v Allstate Ins. Co., 12 A.D.2d 138, 209 N.Y.S.2d 104, 1960 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6284 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1960).

Where plaintiff residents of Connecticut injured in a New York automobile accident on November 9, 1963 failed to bring in a New York attorney until May 18, 1964, although their Connecticut attorney was unsuccessful in contacting the defendants by mail or by phone, and after the appearance of the New York attorney considerable time was allowed to pass until an insurance search was made and the defendant's carrier notified of the accident; the insurer's disclaimer of liability for failure of proper notification of the claim was valid. Richter v Fireman's Fund American Ins. Co., 27 A.D.2d 223, 277 N.Y.S.2d 737, 1967 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4706 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1967).

Where a pedestrian was struck by an automobile driven by insured's son, remained unconscious for 4 weeks and died, and where deceased's son-in-law before death had attempted to discover insured's carrier; had succeeded after death when he also became executor under deceased's will; then had made a claim on behalf of deceased's estate to the family liability insurer less than 3 months after the accident, son-in-law, as executor, had duly notified insurer of the accident on behalf of the injured person and on behalf of his next-of-kin as required by statute "as soon as was reasonably possible." Globe Indem. Co. v Agate, 37 A.D.2d 595, 323 N.Y.S.2d 9, 1971 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3849 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1971).

Plaintiff, who was struck by defendant's automobile, was entitled to judgment declaring that defendant's insurer was obligated to defend and indemnify him in plaintiff's personal injury action, despite insurer's assertion that defendant failed to notify it of any claims as required under policy, since (1) plaintiff's 2-month delay in ascertaining defendant's identify and insurance coverage, and notifying insurer, was not unreasonable given hit-and-run nature of accident, and (2) defendant voluntarily signed 2 statements detailing his involvement in accident as soon as he was located. Elmuccio v Allstate Ins. Co., 149 A.D.2d 653, 540 N.Y.S.2d 465, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5333 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1989).

Insureds' 15-month delay in providing insurer with notice of underlying action due to insureds' error as to who their insurer was constituted failure to act "promptly" under notice provision of insurance policy and relieved insurer of obligation to defend or indemnify insureds. People v Helinski, 203 A.D.2d 672, 610 N.Y.S.2d 378, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3877 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), app. denied, 84 N.Y.2d 804, 618 N.Y.S.2d 6, 642 N.E.2d 325, 1994 N.Y. LEXIS 3111 (N.Y. 1994).

Because a Public Administrator contacted the insured within a short time after an incident and demanded that the insurer be notified of a claim, pursuant to N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(a)(3), the insurer was not entitled to summary judgment in the Administrator's action declaring that it was obligated to defend and indemnify the insured in an underlying action. Malik v Charter Oak Fire Ins. Co., 60 A.D.3d 1013, 877 N.Y.S.2d 114, 2009 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2554 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2009).

Insurer was not obligated to defend or indemnify the occupant of the insured premises or the named insured in the underlying action because the occupant failed to act diligently in attempting to ascertain the insurer's identity and in expeditiously notifying the insurer. Hawley v Seville, 139 A.D.3d 921, 33 N.Y.S.3d 314, 2016 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3718 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2016), app. denied, 29 N.Y.3d 902, 80 N.E.3d 398, 57 N.Y.S.3d 705, 2017 N.Y. LEXIS 717 (N.Y. 2017).

Trial court properly granted an insurer's cross-motion for summary judgment in an injured patron's Insurance Law action to recover the amount of an unsatisfied judgment because the insurer was not required to show that it was prejudiced by the insured's untimely notice, the insurer demonstrated that the patron did not act diligently in attempting to ascertain the identity of the insurer, the insured, in failing to keep its address current with the Secretary of State, foreclosed the possibility of receiving service of process, and its four-month delay in doing so was unreasonable as a matter of law, and the patron failed to raise a triable issue of fact in opposition to the insurer's prima facie showing. Dritsanos v Mt. Hawley Ins. Co., 180 A.D.3d 753, 118 N.Y.S.3d 664, 2020 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1072 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2020).

Delay by the injured party in giving notice of claim to the liability insurer was excusable where the attorney for claimant was unable at first to ascertain from the Bureau of Motor Vehicles the names and addresses of the owner and operator of the vehicle, turned to the police department for information, by whom he was informed that the owner of the car was a certain corporation, telephoned an officer of that corporation and was told by him that the corporation was familiar with the accident, was insured, and had notified the insurance company, notwithstanding it later developed that the corporation had leased the car to another who was operating it at the time of the accident and had taken out independent liability insurance of which the lessor corporation was unaware. Similarly where an automobile was leased by one corporation to another, and the contract of lease called for the lessee to take out liability insurance for protection of the lessor in a stipulated amount, but the vehicle was already covered by a fleet policy taken out by lessor, and lessor was not advised at the time of being notified of a claim for personal injuries sustained by a third person from operation of the vehicle that the lessee had taken out insurance for its benefit, its delay in notifying the liability insurer on the policy taken out by the lessee, until after it became aware of issuance and existence of that policy, was excusable. Zurich Ins. Co. v Martinez, 24 Misc. 2d 437, 201 N.Y.S.2d 810, 1960 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2796 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1960), aff'd, 14 A.D.2d 754, 218 N.Y.S.2d 526, 1961 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8447 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1961).

Delay on the part of the injured party in giving notice of accident to the liability insurer may be excused where he had difficulty in ascertaining the identity of the insured or the insurer, but he must, in any event, show that he exercised diligence, and if no excuse whatsoever is offered the question of whether notice was timely is one of law for the court. Allstate Ins. Co. v Manger, 30 Misc. 2d 326, 213 N.Y.S.2d 901, 1961 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3168 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1961).

An injured person's claim of rights against the liability insurer of the allegedly negligent motorist was given as soon as reasonably possible, under former § 167 [now § 3420], where it was given immediately after ascertainment of identity of the insurer and within only 51 days following the accident. Charney v Stypukowski, 35 Misc. 2d 662, 231 N.Y.S.2d 364, 1962 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3047 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1962).

Notice of claim, pursuant to subd. 1(d) of former § 167 [now § 3420(a)(4)], was given to the insurer of the offending motorist "as soon as practicable" by the injured person where he retained counsel three days after the accident who, thereafter, was diligent in attempting to locate the offending motorist for service of process but was unable to locate him and discover whether or not he had insurance coverage for about four months, whereupon prompt notice was given to the insurer. Pereyma v Safeguard Ins. Co., 38 Misc. 2d 759, 238 N.Y.S.2d 834, 1963 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2166 (N.Y. Civ. Ct. 1963), aff'd, 42 Misc. 2d 164, 247 N.Y.S.2d 789, 1964 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2062 (N.Y. App. Term 1964).

Held that under following circumstances injured person gave notice as soon as reasonably possible within terms of subd 1(d) of former § 167 [now § 3420(a)(4)]: (1) the accident in which he was injured took place on December 7; (2) he retained counsel on December 17; (3) his attorneys mailed claim letters to owner and to driver of automobile which injured him on January 17; (4) successive requests for information as to identity of carrier of insurance on such automobile were sent to Motor Vehicle Department on January 21 and March 6; (5) letter to such owner requesting information as to his insurance carrier was sent on March 5; (6) successive acknowledgments were received from Motor Vehicle Department, first indicating that search of its records was begun on March 8, and second that it was begun on April 17; (7) summons and complaint was served on such owner on May 11; (8) a letter to such owner informing him that no answer had been received to such complaint was sent on May 31; (9) a copy of this last letter was sent to his insurer which acknowledged receipt thereof on June 4 and requested information as to date and place of the accident; (10) injured person's counsel supplied such required information on June 5; (11) it was assumed that information as to identity of such carrier was received by such counsel sometime between May 11 and May 31; and (12) it appeared that delay in ascertaining such identity was due to slow processing machinery in Motor Vehicle Department. National Grange Mut. Ins. Co. v Ogassian, 45 Misc. 2d 729, 257 N.Y.S.2d 451, 1965 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2332 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1965), aff'd, 26 A.D.2d 908, 274 N.Y.S.2d 1013, 1966 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6342 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1966).

The proof might sustain a finding that notice of accident was given "as soon as practicable," where the accident occurred May 22, 1961, summons in an action against the insured was served June 14, 1961 and forwarded to the insurer on July 13, under a pleading detailing efforts made by the injured parties to communicate with the insurer prior to service of the summons. National Union Fire Ins. Co. v Martes, 229 N.Y.S.2d 78 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1962).

In an action arising out of an automobile accident occurring in 1949 at which time there was no public record of auto liability insurance coverage, it was possible under former § 167, subd 1(d) [now § 3420(a)(4)] of the Insurance Law for the plaintiff to give timely notice of the accident and suit to the insurer, even after judgment had been obtained against the insured, so long as the plaintiff had been reasonably diligent in attempting to learn the identity of the insurer and the notice given 15 years after the occurrence of the accident was as soon as practicable. Florio v General Acci. Fire & Life Assurance Corp., 396 F.2d 510, 1968 U.S. App. LEXIS 6402 (2d Cir. N.Y. 1968).

35. Timeliness of notice by insured, particular cases

Negligence of the insured owner of a motor vehicle, in giving notice of accident or claim on liability insurance to the wrong insurer, will not excuse his failure to give notice to the proper insurer. Mason v Allstate Ins. Co., 12 A.D.2d 138, 209 N.Y.S.2d 104, 1960 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6284 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1960).

A company, to whom an insurer issued an excess reinsurance contract with respect to amounts the company would be required to pay under Workers' Compensation in excess of an amount for which the company was self-insured, was required to give notice of an accident that might involve liability on the part of the insurer when the company knew or reasonably should have known that it was likely that excess coverage would be involved, where the policy provided for immediate written notice upon any accident "which in the opinion" of the company would involve liability on the part of the insurer. Loblaw, Inc. v Employers' Liability Assurance Corp., 85 A.D.2d 880, 446 N.Y.S.2d 743, 1981 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 16717 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1981), aff'd, 57 N.Y.2d 872, 456 N.Y.S.2d 40, 442 N.E.2d 438, 1982 N.Y. LEXIS 3760 (N.Y. 1982).

In an action brought by an insured for a declaration that her insurer was obligated to defend and indemnify her in a lawsuit arising out of a traffic accident, the trial court erred in granting summary judgment to the insurer on the basis that the insured's notice of the accident, which the insurer learned of almost a year after it had occurred, did not constitute notification of the occurrence "as soon as practicable" as required by the policy, where plaintiff's affidavit, in which she stated that the accident had been minor, that she had not thought she was liable, that she did not know the difference between an insurance agent and an insurance broker and thought that her insurance broker, to whom she had reported the accident, was the insurer's authorized agent, and that she thought notice to the insurance broker was notice to the insurer, and had relied on the broker to handle the claim and protect her interests, were sufficient to raise a question of fact as to whether, under all the circumstances, notice had been given to the insurer in a timely manner. Nowicki v Insuramerica, 103 A.D.2d 1013, 478 N.Y.S.2d 214, 1984 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 19701 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1984).

Insured which notified insurer of accident as soon as it received summons and complaint gave notice within reasonable time as matter of law (and thus insurer was obligated to defend or indemnify insured in underlying personal injury action) since insured had conducted investigation at time of accident and had been assured by child's father that child only required few stitches and was otherwise alright; subsequent letter from child's attorney did not place insured on notice that claim was going to be asserted since father had different last name than child. Rosen-Michaels, Inc. v Hartford Acci. & Indem. Co., 129 A.D.2d 871, 514 N.Y.S.2d 139, 1987 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 45558 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1987).

Insurer was not required to defend and indemnify insureds in negligence action commenced on behalf of insureds' infant grandchildren where policy required that notice be given "as soon as practicable" since (1) neither insureds' inability to understand English language nor their unfamiliarity with United States legal system permitting interfamilial suits constituted legally cognizable excuse for 22-month delay in notifying carrier of accident, (2) fact of claimants' infancy did not toll notice requirement contained in policy, and (3) claimants' assertion that they did not know that children could sue their grandparents did not relieve them from notifying insurer when insureds failed to do so. Virtuoso v Aetna Casualty & Surety Co., 134 A.D.2d 252, 520 N.Y.S.2d 439, 1987 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 50440 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1987).

Insurance company was not entitled to summary judgment dismissing action by state under CLS Nav § 190 to recover cost of cleanup of oil spill, notwithstanding that policy required immediate notice of claim and that no notice was forwarded to insurance company until state obtained judgment against insured, since state presented adequate excuse for delay where, although insured had informed state that insurance company was its insurer, insured also mistakenly advised state that insurance company had already disclaimed coverage. State v Zurich Ins. Co., 199 A.D.2d 916, 605 N.Y.S.2d 575, 1993 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12389 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1993).

Insurer was not entitled to summary judgment in action seeking declaration that it must defend and indemnify insured in underlying tort action where fact issues existed as to whether insured's delay in notifying insurer of alleged occurrence was reasonable and premised on good faith belief that claim would not be made against insured, and whether alleged occurrence fell within completed operations hazard or products hazard exclusion of liability policy. Mill Basin Flower Shop v U.S. Underwriters Ins. Co., 207 A.D.2d 387, 616 N.Y.S.2d 50, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8245 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1994).

Notice of occurrence to insureds' employee was imputable to insureds where (1) employee was ranking supervisory-level employee on duty at time of accident involving infant plaintiff, (2) employee testified at examination before trial that he received notice of occurrence, went to view scene, observed plaintiff lying on floor, and watched as plaintiff was taken from site by ambulance, (3) it was within scope of employee's duties to notify his employer of accident which he had notice of and was witness to, and (4) employee admittedly had duty to notify his employer's front office of accident. Bauer v Whispering Hills Assocs., 210 A.D.2d 569, 620 N.Y.S.2d 147, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11847 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1994), app. denied, 86 N.Y.2d 701, 631 N.Y.S.2d 605, 655 N.E.2d 702, 1995 N.Y. LEXIS 2695 (N.Y. 1995).

In action by plaintiff who was injured on premises owned by defendant power authority which sought contribution and indemnification from plaintiff's employer, insurer that provided workers' compensation and employer's liability coverage to plaintiff's employer was entitled to summary judgment declaring that it was not obligated to defend or indemnify plaintiff's employer in third-party action, where employer's liability policy required insured to "immediately forward...every demand, notice, summons or other process received by him," and where insurer received notice of accident and began paying workers' compensation before plaintiff's lawsuit was commenced, but was not notified of lawsuit and third-party action against plaintiff's employer until 3 ½ years after third-party action was commenced. Thomson v Power Auth., 217 A.D.2d 495, 629 N.Y.S.2d 760, 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8122 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1995).

Insureds failed to meet their burden of demonstrating that 10-month delay in giving notice to liability insurance carrier was reasonable where there was no substantiation for insureds' assertions that insurer refused several requests to take over defense and that someone must have independently told insurer about accident, and insureds offered no excuse for delay, citing merely "time required for ordinary litigation and investigation procedures." Holmes v Morgan Guar. & Trust Co., 223 A.D.2d 441, 636 N.Y.S.2d 778, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 509 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1996).

Insured's delay in notifying insurer of incident until more than one month after he was served with underlying amended complaint was unreasonable as matter of law; thus, it was error to grant insured's summary judgment motion declaring that insurer must defend and indemnify insured in underlying action. Safer v Government Emples. Ins. Co., 254 A.D.2d 344, 678 N.Y.S.2d 667, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10800 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1998).

Defendant did not have reasonable explanation for his delay in complying with liability policy's notice requirement where he contended that he believed it would be "useless act" to forward summons and complaint to insurer because of earlier denial of coverage to other parties for same accident, since that denial had been based on determination that other parties were not proper insureds, and insurer had given no indication that it would not afford coverage to defendant. Centenniel Ins. Co. v Hoffman, 265 A.D.2d 629, 695 N.Y.S.2d 774, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10331 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1999).

Insurance company was entitled to judgment declaring that it was not obligated to defend or indemnify its insureds in wrongful death action due to untimely notice of accident, as insureds' 7-month delay in obtaining police report of accident after they became aware of potential for wrongful death action was unreasonable, no satisfactory explanation was given for their subsequent delay in contacting Department of Motor Vehicles to obtain insurance information, and fact that insurance company was notified within one month of appointment of personal representative of decedent's estate did not excuse delay. American Home Assur. Co. v State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co., 277 A.D.2d 409, 717 N.Y.S.2d 224, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12282 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2000).

Pursuant to N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(c)(2)(A), an insurer was not obligated to defend and indemnify its insured in an underlying dog-bite case because the insured had not complied with the policy's notice provisions; the insured knew within 48 hours that a complaint had been made about the incident, even if he did not know the claimant's identity. However, the insured did not notify the insurer of the incident until he was served with the summons and complaint in the underlying action, six months after the incident. Zimmerman v Peerless Ins. Co., 85 A.D.3d 1021, 926 N.Y.S.2d 124, 2011 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5414 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2011).

The insurers were not required to defend or indemnify the subrogee with respect to the employee's underlying personal injury action because the subrogee failed to give the insurers timely notice of the underlying action. Nationwide Ins. Co. v Empire Ins. Group, 294 A.D.2d 546, 742 N.Y.S.2d 387, 2002 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5565 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2002).

Appeals court concluded that the insured did not prove that he gave to the insured timely notice of the insured's underinsured motorist claim by regular mail; therefore, the underinsured motorist claim was barred and, under N.Y. C.P.L.R. art. 75, so was the arbitration claim. Phoenix Ins. Co. v Tasch, 306 A.D.2d 288, 762 N.Y.S.2d 99, 2003 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6216 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2003).

City was not entitled to defense and indemnity under a contractor's commercial umbrella liability excess coverage policy. Since the city was an additional insured, it had an independent duty to provide the insurer with a timely notice of claim against the insurer and its demand for coverage by the insurer even if the insurer got a notice of the claim from the primary insured or from another source. City of New York v St. Paul Fire & Mar. Ins. Co., 21 A.D.3d 978, 801 N.Y.S.2d 362, 2005 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9191 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2005).

Summary judgment was awarded to the insurers dismissing the complaint because the insurers timely disclaimed coverage following a thorough and diligent investigation and, contrary to the insured's contention, the insurers did not have all the information they needed to disclaim coverage and properly commenced an investigation to determine the specifics surrounding the incident and to verify when knowledge of the claim was first acquired. Plotkin v Republic-Franklin Ins. Co., 177 A.D.3d 790, 113 N.Y.S.3d 133, 2019 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8234 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't), app. dismissed, 177 A.D.3d 794, 110 N.Y.S.3d 305, 2019 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8237 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2019).

Under N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420, insurers who disclaimed coverage for bodily injury claims had to do so in writing as soon as reasonably possible after they learn of the grounds on which to deny coverage. N.Y. Ins. Law§ 3420(d)(2). However, because the court could not decide as a matter of law whether the excess insurer's delay in disclaiming coverage was the product of a reasonably diligent investigation, summary judgment on that point was inappropriate. Homestead Vill. Assoc., L.P. v Diamond State Ins. Co., 818 F. Supp. 2d 642, 2011 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 105545 (E.D.N.Y. 2011).

Summary judgment in favor of the insurer was affirmed because the insured did not provide the insurer with notice of the slip and fall accident for 57 days after it had become aware of the incident that gave rise to the claim, and plaintiffs' claim that the delay was justified by the insured's "good faith belief" that it was not liable for injuries was belied by evidence establishing that upon a reasonable investigation the insured should have realized that there was a reasonable possibility of liability. Steinberg v Hermitage Ins. Co., 26 A.D.3d 426, 809 N.Y.S.2d 569, 2006 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2119 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2006).

36. —Delay due to age or condition of insured

In connection with a claim for damages sustained by insured against the casualty insurer of her automobile, there was ample evidence to support a conclusion that written notice was given to the insurer within a reasonable time, under all the circumstances, where it appeared that the insurer had written notice of the accident from its authorized agent on October 28 following occurrence of the accident on September 8, as a sequel of oral notice given by her attorney to the agent on September 11, was confined in a hospital for a considerable time after the accident, had never received a copy of the policy because it was missent by the underwriting agency, and her requests for a duplicate were ignored. Holubetz v National Fire Ins. Co., 13 A.D.2d 228, 215 N.Y.S.2d 986, 1961 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10427 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1961).

Where notice of accident and claim is given to the liability insurer by or on behalf of the insured, and is considered to have been given "as soon as practicable" within the policy requirements in view of the age and condition of the named insured it will also be considered timely notice in behalf of the injured person or claimant. Allstate Ins. Co. v Alford, 14 A.D.2d 650, 218 N.Y.S.2d 313, 1961 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9437 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1961).

Where the time limitation in an automobile liability insurance policy for giving notice to the insurer was only "as soon as practicable" after occurrence of the accident, notice to the insurer was timely given where the accident was reported to its agent 65 days after the accident, by letter enclosing summonses served only one or two days before on the named insured and the operator of the vehicle, the named insured, owner of the car, being more than 70 years of age and in bad health, and the operator being about 19 years of age and laboring under the impression that, under the circumstances surrounding the accident, no claim would result therefrom. Allstate Ins. Co. v Alford, 25 Misc. 2d 707, 206 N.Y.S.2d 388, 1960 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2282 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1960), aff'd, 14 A.D.2d 650, 218 N.Y.S.2d 313, 1961 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9437 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1961).

37. —Delay due to doubt as to liability or policy coverage

In an action for a declaration that defendant insurance company had received timely notice from plaintiff, the owner of a trailer park, of an injury to one of its tenants, despite more than 13 months having elapsed between the time of the injury and the time notice was given, the court erred in directing a verdict in plaintiff's favor where, although evidence showed that the tenant informed the owner's manager that her fall occurred on her own driveway, which the manager reasonably believed would not be covered by the policy, the manager's letter giving the insurer notice of the tenant's lawsuit indicated he was aware the tenant claimed plaintiff was liable in that it stated that the tenant asked for compensation from the owner at the time of her fall. Mobile Home Estates, Inc. v Preferred Mut. Ins. Co., 105 A.D.2d 883, 482 N.Y.S.2d 355, 1984 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 21010 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1984).

Dental corporation's former malpractice insurer was not obligated to defend and indemnify insured who failed to give notice of suit "as soon as practicable," even though insured claimed that its 3-year delay was based on its reasonable reliance on coverage by its present insurer, since unexplained failure to exercise due diligence to ascertain coverage manifests failure to meet notice requirement as matter of law; moreover, even after present insurer notified insured that alleged malpractice might have occurred during period of former policy, insured's unexplained failure to give notice to former insurer for almost 5 months failed to satisfy notice requirement. Young v New York State Dep't of Ins., Liquidation Bureau, 152 A.D.2d 835, 543 N.Y.S.2d 768, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9404 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1989).

Court erred in finding that insureds' 9 ½ -year delay in notifying their liability insurer of serious eye injury suffered by their granddaughter when she slipped on defective staircase on their premises was excusable under policy provision requiring notice of occurrence "as soon as practicable," even though insureds notified insurer promptly when they were served with summons and complaint in personal injury action brought on behalf of granddaughter, since (1) delay in notification is not excusable where reasonable and prudent insured would have concluded that there existed strong possibility that liability claim would be made, and seriousness of granddaughter's eye injury would have caused reasonable and prudent insured to give notice under circumstances, and (2) fact that insured is unaware that interfamilial lawsuit can be commenced is not legally cognizable reason to delay notifying insurer of accident. Greater New York Mut. Ins. Co. v Farrauto, 158 A.D.2d 514, 551 N.Y.S.2d 277, 1990 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1804 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't), app. denied, 76 N.Y.2d 701, 557 N.Y.S.2d 878, 557 N.E.2d 114, 1990 N.Y. LEXIS 1274 (N.Y. 1990).

Insurance company was not required to defend or indemnify owners of apartment building in connection with action by employee of roofing contractor who fell from ladder at building where (1) owners were aware that employee was taken to hospital by ambulance following fall, and thus could not have had reasonable belief of nonliability, and (2) although insurance policy required prompt notice, owners did not notify insurance company of accident until 4 months after fall, when they received written claim letter from employee's attorney. Zadrima v PSM Ins. Cos., 208 A.D.2d 529, 616 N.Y.S.2d 817, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9358 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1994), app. denied, 85 N.Y.2d 807, 627 N.Y.S.2d 324, 650 N.E.2d 1326, 1995 N.Y. LEXIS 1258 (N.Y. 1995).

Insured (commercial landlord) should not have been granted summary judgment declaring that its insurer was obligated to defend and indemnify insured in underlying action brought by tenant for property damage where fact question existed as to reasonableness of insured's investigation into its tenant's complaints and its resulting conclusion that there was no basis for liability so as to excuse its delay in giving notice of claim. Kreger Truck Renting Co. v American Guar. & Liab. Ins. Co., 213 A.D.2d 453, 623 N.Y.S.2d 623, 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2717 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1995).

In action for declaration as to whether liability insurer was obligated to defend and indemnify insured in connection with loss arising from its operation of warehouse, insurer was entitled to summary judgment based on insured's failure to give timely written notice of loss, as required by policy, where documentary evidence established that insured knew about loss 4 ½ -years before it gave notice; insured's obligation to give written notice of "every loss" that might give rise to liability under policy was not rendered ambiguous by policy provision authorizing insured to itself adjust any claim for less than $750, and insured's excuse that there was no reason to believe that possible liability exceeded $750 until customer provided statement of loss was insufficient as matter of law to excuse delay. Morgan & Brother Manhattan Storage Co. v GRE Ins. Group, 220 A.D.2d 236, 632 N.Y.S.2d 17, 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9817 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1995), app. denied, 87 N.Y.2d 811, 644 N.Y.S.2d 144, 666 N.E.2d 1058, 1996 N.Y. LEXIS 635 (N.Y. 1996).

Court erred in granting insureds' motion for partial summary judgment declaring that insurer was obligated to defend them in underlying action where fact issue existed as to whether insureds had reasonable good faith belief in nonliability so as to excuse their failure to provide timely notice of accident. Collins v

Isaksen, 221 A.D.2d 403, 633 N.Y.S.2d 539, 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11975 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1995).

It was announcement of jury verdict in underlying personal injury action that marked insured's obligation to give written notice of claim within 90 days after accident "or as soon as practicable," where insured notified insurer of accident immediately after it happened, pursuant to request for first-party benefits, but could not at that or any other time prior to jury's verdict know that school district and school bus driver, who were insured for one million dollars, would be absolved of all liability for accident, leaving her with only $25,000 policy of automobile driver. Allstate Ins. Co. v Sala, 226 A.D.2d 172, 640 N.Y.S.2d 517, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3645 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't), app. denied, 89 N.Y.2d 801, 653 N.Y.S.2d 278, 675 N.E.2d 1231, 1996 N.Y. LEXIS 4212 (N.Y. 1996).

Insurer could not disclaim coverage on ground that insureds, building owners, had been advised by Health Department that there were lead paint violations in apartment, and that insureds had not given notice of "occurrence" that might result in claim "as soon as practicable" as required by policy, where there was sufficient evidence that insureds did not receive notices from Health Department as to alleged injury to tenants and that insureds' had reasonable belief in nonliability. Public Serv. Mut. Ins. Co. v Hollander, 228 A.D.2d 283, 644 N.Y.S.2d 214, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7123 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't), app. denied, 88 N.Y.2d 816, 651 N.Y.S.2d 17, 673 N.E.2d 1244, 1996 N.Y. LEXIS 3307 (N.Y. 1996).

Premises liability insurer was not entitled to summary judgment declaring that it was not obligated to defend and indemnify landlord in personal injury action arising from lead based paint condition in apartment due to landlord's alleged failure to notify it of "occurrence" as soon as practicable as required by insurance policy, where "Order to Landlord/Agent" from New York City Department of Health Bureau of Lead Poisoning Control, on which insurer relied as having placed landlord on notice of "occurrence," did not indicate that affected tenant was infant, that tenant's blood-lead level was caused by exposure to conditions in apartment, or that injury had occurred; such order, in itself, did not necessarily suggest potential liability. Public Serv. Mut. Ins. Co. v AYFAS Realty Corp., 234 A.D.2d 226, 651 N.Y.S.2d 513, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12908 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1996), reh'g denied, app. denied, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3264 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't Mar. 6, 1997), app. dismissed, 90 N.Y.2d 844, 660 N.Y.S.2d 870, 683 N.E.2d 776, 1997 N.Y. LEXIS 1576 (N.Y. 1997).

Insurer was entitled to judgment declaring that it was not obligated to defend or indemnify insured, whose car hit another vehicle from behind, where insurer timely disclaimed coverage due to insured's failure to "promptly" notify it of accident as required by policy; insured's delay in giving notice of accident to insurer was not shown to be reasonable merely because no one had complained of bodily injury at time of accident, and insured should have immediately realized that accident was more than minor occurrence when he was unable to drive his car from scene until he tied his front bumper to tree in order to free bumper from wheel. New York Cent. Mut. Fire Ins. Co. v Riley, 234 A.D.2d 279, 650 N.Y.S.2d 308, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12789 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1996).

Primary and excess insurers were properly granted summary judgment declaring that they had no duty to defend or indemnify defendant insureds under their respective policies, where insureds' delayed notification of underlying lawsuits precluded timely investigation of claims and chance to effect early settlement, and insureds' assertion that they did not promptly notify insurers of underlying suits because they mistakenly believed that coverage did not exist did not excuse their delay absent showing that they made reasonably diligent efforts to ascertain whether coverage existed. Hartford Fire Ins. Co. v Baseball Office of the Comm'r, 236 A.D.2d 334, 654 N.Y.S.2d 21, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1685 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't), app. denied, 90 N.Y.2d 803, 661 N.Y.S.2d 179, 683 N.E.2d 1053, 1997 N.Y. LEXIS 2246 (N.Y. 1997).

Liability insurer which disclaimed coverage due to plaintiff's 6-month delay in notifying it of incident at his tavern was not entitled to summary judgment dismissing complaint because issue of fact existed as to plaintiff's asserted good-faith belief in nonliability where (1) he maintained that he was not present when altercation took place, and that he first learned of it when he received police report accusing 2 patrons of assault, and (2) police report and accusatory documents did not indicate that plaintiff or his employees had participated in, permitted or condoned assault or that alcohol served at tavern played any role therein. Marinello v Dryden Mut. Ins. Co., 237 A.D.2d 795, 655 N.Y.S.2d 156, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2432 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1997).

Insured school district that demonstrated it did not know that student hit his head at school or that his subsequent brain injury was in any way related to fall at school raised question of fact, precluding summary judgment for insurer on ground of untimely notice of claim. Hudson City Sch. Dist. v Utica Mut. Ins. Co., 241 A.D.2d 641, 659 N.Y.S.2d 948, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7333 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1997).

Insured sprinkler system company's alleged belief that it was not liable for fire and thus did not have to give timely notice of claim to its excess liability insurer was unreasonable as matter of law where (1) insured caused its agent to immediately notify primary insurer, (2) number and size of claims asserted against insured, as evidenced by claims service reports regularly mailed to it by primary insurer, made it virtually impossible that it was unaware of its potential liability, (3) counsel acknowledged insured's potential liability, and (4) excess liability policy required that notice be given when it became likely that excess policy would be involved "without regard to legal liability."319 McKibben St. Corp. v General Star Nat'l Ins. Co., 245 A.D.2d 26, 664 N.Y.S.2d 785, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12510 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1997).

Insurer was not obligated to defend and indemnify law firm against legal malpractice claims where firm failed to report claims within policy period of claims-made policy, or within 60-day extended reporting period, in the mistaken belief that claims were covered by successor insurer. Gomez v Feder, Connick & Goldstein, P.C., 260 A.D.2d 348, 687 N.Y.S.2d 679, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3648 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1999).

Insured's notice of claim was timely, under underinsurance liability policy provision requiring that such notice be given "as soon as possible," where insured discovered limits of underinsured motorist's policy on or about July 1 and gave notice to insurer on July 16; although insurer speculated that insured might have learned of limits earlier if his attorney had been more aggressive in pursuing matter, attorney was diligent in requesting information, and there was no indication that further requests would have produced information any sooner. Travelers Prop. Cas. Corp. v Fusilli, 266 A.D.2d 48, 698 N.Y.S.2d 641, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11596 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1999).

Liability insurer which denied coverage in connection with claim by Department of Environmental Conservation (DEC) for reimbursement under CLS Nav § 192 was not entitled to summary judgment on ground that disclaimer was justified because insured failed to give timely notice of occurrence and promptly forward legal papers received in DEC action, or because policy's pollution exclusion barred coverage, as (1) insured's sworn statement that she promptly notified insurer by telephone when she learned of fuel oil discharge, but was told that there was nothing insurer could do because "contamination" was not covered by her policy, made out prima facie showing on issues of prompt notice and good-faith belief in noncoverage excusing her subsequent failure to provide insurer with legal papers, and (2) DEC employee's deposition testimony indicated that oil spill involved "sudden and accidental" discharge expressly falling outside policy exclusion. Strand v Pioneer Ins. Co., 270 A.D.2d 600, 704 N.Y.S.2d 683, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2636 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2000).

Insurer was not entitled to summary judgment in action by insured under homeowner's liability policy on ground that it was not notified of claim until 9 months after accident, in violation of requirement that insured notify it of claim "as soon as practicable," where undisputed facts established that failure of sooner notice was reasonably based on ignorance of existence of coverage or possible claim by estate of injured party, as established by uncontroverted affidavit in which deceased policyholder's executrix stated that she had no basis to believe that claim would be made on behalf of injured party (who was policyholder's adult stepson). Randolph v Nationwide Mut. Ins. Co., 170 Misc. 2d 364, 650 N.Y.S.2d 964, 1996 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 437 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1996), aff'd, 242 A.D.2d 889, 662 N.Y.S.2d 650, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10441 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1997).

Where an insured and its insurers disputed whether an intentional act by the insured's employee fell within the exclusionary language of a business insurance policy, the insurers' delay in disclaiming was reasonable as a matter of law pursuant to N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(d). RJC Realty Holding Corp. v Republic Franklin Ins. Co., 303 A.D.2d 573, 756 N.Y.S.2d 631, 2003 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2658 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2003), rev'd, 2 N.Y.3d 158, 777 N.Y.S.2d 4, 808 N.E.2d 1263, 2004 N.Y. LEXIS 601 (N.Y. 2004).

Insurer's disclaimer under the livery vehicle exclusion was timely as a matter of law, under N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(d), because it was issued contemporaneously upon the completion of its investigation, which was reasonable due to the contradictory evidence regarding whether the driver had paying passengers in his vehicle at the time of the accident. Halloway v State Farm Ins. Cos., 23 A.D.3d 617, 805 N.Y.S.2d 107, 2005 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13463 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2005), app. denied, 6 N.Y.3d 708, 813 N.Y.S.2d 44, 846 N.E.2d 475, 2006 N.Y. LEXIS 522 (N.Y. 2006).

38. —"As soon as practicable"

Insureds were entitled to judgment declaring that their insurance carrier was obligated to defend and indemnify them in underlying dog bite action, although they did not give notice of action until after they received summons and complaint, nearly 3 years after incident, since notice was given "as soon as possible" in light of fact that injured party's parents had initially declined insureds' offer to pay medical expenses and indicated they did not intend to sue. D'Aloia v Travelers Ins. Co., 85 N.Y.2d 825, 623 N.Y.S.2d 837, 647 N.E.2d 1345, 1995 N.Y. LEXIS 124 (N.Y. 1995).

Cases involving inquiry into whether policyholder notified liability insurer "as soon as practicable" of occurrence that might give rise to claim by third person against policyholder, while useful to extent that they deal with reasonableness of excuses in general, are not directly controlling in underinsurance situation, because underinsurance has unique conditions and features for ripening of claims that do not exist in primary insurance cases; underinsurance analyses are intensely fact specific and therefore particularly well-suited for determinations of timeliness of notice on case-by-case basis. Metropolitan Prop. & Cas. Ins. Co. v Mancuso, 93 N.Y.2d 487, 693 N.Y.S.2d 81, 715 N.E.2d 107, 1999 N.Y. LEXIS 1296 (N.Y. 1999).

Where a period of only 2 months and 14 days elapsed from the time of the accident to the time of the actual notice to the insurer, the notice was given "as soon as was reasonably possible" even though the defendants in the negligence action instituted by the passenger did give their insurer timely and proper notice, and insurer was required to defend action brought by passenger against the insureds. Manhattan Casualty Co. v Hoynacky, 33 A.D.2d 919, 307 N.Y.S.2d 251, 1970 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5710 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1970).

Viewing facts most favorably to defendant manufacturer in whose favor judgment was entered in declaratory judgment action, information transmitted to manufacturer through self-employed manufacturer's representative regarding incident in which plant employee caught hand in machine manufactured by it, resulting in serious injury, coupled with information of similar incident at different plant, while not sufficient predicate for giving immediate notice to manufacturer's insurer, should have caused reasonably and prudent person to investigate and evaluate potential liability and having failed to do so, manufacturer, thus armed with notice of claimed defect and two mishaps, could not later rely upon belief of nonliability to justify its failure for almost 11 months to give required notice to liability insurer, pursuant to policy requiring notice "as soon as practicable" after occurrence. Utica Mut. Ins. Co. v C. L. Haines Mfg. Co., 55 A.D.2d 834, 390 N.Y.S.2d 320, 1976 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 15649 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1976).

In action by insurer for judgment declaring that it had no duty to defend or indemnify insureds in personal injury action because they did not give written notice of occurrence "as soon as practicable" as required by their policy, judgment in favor of insureds would be reversed in light of trial court's erroneous holding that insurer was precluded from disclaiming coverage because policy did not expressly warn insureds that noncompliance with notice provision might result in forfeiture of coverage; new trial was warranted in interest of justice to allow insureds to demonstrate whether they had provided notice "as soon as practicable" since it was possible that they had failed to adduce proof relative to this issue because of trial court's ruling in their favor. Greater New York Mut. Ins. Co. v Farrauto, 136 A.D.2d 598, 523 N.Y.S.2d 853, 1988 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 415 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1988).

Notice of loss given by insureds to excess insurers almost 2 years after accident was untimely as matter of law where (1) insureds had no good-faith belief of their nonliability regarding accident, (2) policy required notification to insurers "as soon as practicable," (3) insureds were aware that accident involved goods which they supplied and that damages exceeded limits of primary policy within 2 days following accident, and (4) insureds' general counsel was aware of potential liability one year before notice was given. Kamyr, Inc. v St. Paul Surplus Lines Ins. Co., 152 A.D.2d 62, 547 N.Y.S.2d 964, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 14347 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1989).

Notice of claim was given to insurer "as soon as possible," albeit 7 months after incident, and court properly declared that insurer was obligated to defend and indemnify insured, where incident occurred in May 1994, allegedly injured parties never indicated any intention to sue until they served summons and complaint on insured in December 1994, and insured promptly notified insurer after suit was instituted. Sphere Drake Ins. Co. v Aspen Tree Specialists, 234 A.D.2d 358, 651 N.Y.S.2d 881, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12989 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1996), app. denied, in part, app. dismissed, 91 N.Y.2d 831, 666 N.Y.S.2d 562, 689 N.E.2d 532, 1997 N.Y. LEXIS 4105 (N.Y. 1997).

Court should have granted insurer's motion for summary judgment declaring that it was not obligated to defend or indemnify its insured in underlying action where policy required insured to give insurer notice "as soon as reasonably possible," insured did not notify insurer of action until year after it was brought, and insured's allegation that it failed to give notice earlier because it thought that complaint was untrue was unreasonable excuse for its delay as matter of law. Edmund J. Bergassi Agency v Employers Reinsurance Corp., 247 A.D.2d 577, 669 N.Y.S.2d 345, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1782 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't), app. denied, 92 N.Y.2d 803, 677 N.Y.S.2d 73, 699 N.E.2d 433, 1998 N.Y. LEXIS 1739 (N.Y. 1998).

Insureds' unexplained delay of over 10 months in providing insurer with notice of underlying action was not reasonable where policy required written notice of occurrence "as soon as it is practical"; thus, insurer should have been granted summary judgment declaring that it did not have duty to defend and indemnify insureds in underlying action. Boutin v Aetna Cas. & Sur. Co., 264 A.D.2d 434, 694 N.Y.S.2d 134, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8698 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1999).

Plaintiff was entitled to summary judgment declaring that it complied with terms of its commercial liability policy requiring it to notify insurer of potential claim "as soon as practicable," although it failed to notify defendant insurer of underlying action by contractor's employee, who was injured when bundle of steel rebar being unloaded from plaintiff's truck fell on his foot, until service of third-party summons and complaint 2 years after incident as (1) it had good-faith belief of nonliability based on union restrictions prohibiting truck drivers from loading or unloading materials and its own truck driver's sworn statement that he did not participate in unloading rebar, and that first bundle was unloaded without incident, and (2) inquiry by investigator for contractor's insurance carrier, regarding its loading and unloading practices, was insufficient to put it on notice of potential third-party claim. Spa Steel Prods. Co. v Royal Ins., 282 A.D.2d 864, 722 N.Y.S.2d 827, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3675 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2001).

Insurance carrier was improperly granted summary judgment declaring that it was not obligated to indemnify insureds in underlying personal injury action where (1) affidavit stating that insureds did not receive notice of claim until more than 3 years after incident, and that they notified insurer 5 weeks later, raised issue of fact as to whether they provided requisite notice "as soon as practicable," and (2) conclusory statement in affidavit of insurer's liability specialist, that policy limits had been exhausted, was insufficient to establish exhaustion of policy as matter of law. Hoverson v Herbert Constr. Co., 283 A.D.2d 237, 725 N.Y.S.2d 320, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5106 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2001).

The insured's delay in notifying the insurer of the occurrence giving rise to the claim, the sole ground on which the insurer disclaimed coverage, was obvious from the face of the notice of claim and the accompanying complaint, and the insurer had no need to conduct an investigation before determining whether to disclaim. The insurer's 30-day delay in disclaiming coverage was therefore unreasonable as a matter of law under N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(d). W. 16th St. Tenants Corp. v Pub. Serv. Mut. Ins. Co., 290 A.D.2d 278, 736 N.Y.S.2d 34, 2002 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 161 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2002).

Because questions of fact existed concerning the reasonableness of an insured's actions in waiting to notify the insurer that the insured might be subject to liability, and because the insurer's disclaimer was not untimely, pursuant to N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(a), (d), the parties' motion and cross-motion for summary judgment on the notice issue were properly denied. U.S. Underwriters Ins. Co. v Carson, 49 A.D.3d 1061, 853 N.Y.S.2d 700, 2008 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2466 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2008).

Where the relevant provision of the subject insurance policy requires that an insured give written notice of an underinsured motorist claim as soon as practicable, the insured is required to provide timely written notice of the claim for underinsurance benefits as soon as practicable from the date he knows or should know that the tortfeasor is underinsured. Phoenix Ins. Co. v Tasch, 306 A.D.2d 288, 762 N.Y.S.2d 99, 2003 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6216 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2003).

As a hospital did not notify its 1975 primary/excess policy insurers of an underlying medical malpractice suit by an incapacitated person, who was born in 1975 with brain damage, for 11 months after the 1996 suit, notice was not "as soon as practicable" under the policy and the insurers' disclaimer a little over 30 days later was timely under N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(d), the court declared, by summary judgment, that the insurers did not have to indemnify the hospital. St. Charles Hosp. & Rehab. Ctr. v Royal Globe Ins. Co., 18 A.D.3d 735, 795 N.Y.S.2d 343, 2005 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5651 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't), app. denied, 5 N.Y.3d 710, 804 N.Y.S.2d 35, 837 N.E.2d 734, 2005 N.Y. LEXIS 2593 (N.Y. 2005).

Insurer had the burden of establishing prejudice from any untimely lack of notice since notice was provided as soon as practicable within two years of the time the insured became aware of the claim, and notice was not required within two years of the incident giving rise to the claim. Hernandez Castillo v Prince Plaza, LLC, 981 N.Y.S.2d 906, 43 Misc. 3d 335, 2014 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 828 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 2014), aff'd, 142 A.D.3d 1127, 38 N.Y.S.3d 74, 2016 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6077 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2016).

39. —Particular periods of delay; less than one year

Where an insured fails to show a reasonable excuse or the existence of circumstances which could justify a protracted delay in notifying his insurer, a court should as a matter of law, hold that there had been a breach of the policy condition requiring the insured to give prompt notice. So, a restaurant owner failed to give timely notice to its insurer of an assault on one of his customers by a third party where 8 months elapsed between the assault and the notice. During this period, the owner had seen his lawyer and notified the ABC Board, the customer had demanded money from him and the customer's lawyer had asked for the name of his insurer. Zurich General Acci. & Liability Ins. Co. v Harbil Restaurant, Inc., 7 A.D.2d 433, 184 N.Y.S.2d 51, 1959 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9349 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1959), app. dismissed, 8 N.Y.2d 751, 201 N.Y.S.2d 767, 168 N.E.2d 104, 1960 N.Y. LEXIS 1351 (N.Y. 1960).

Notice of accident, which was mailed six months after the occurrence of the accident, was not given "as soon as was reasonably possible," and precluded recovery by insured under the policy. Goldson v Traveler's Ins. Co., 27 A.D.2d 539, 275 N.Y.S.2d 95, 1966 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2949 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1966).

Notice to the insurer of an accident was timely, under evidence that a child fell out a window on July 16 on premises owned by the insured; that the insured was informed on September 13 of a claim of liability; and the insured informed the insurer of the claim on September 16. 875 Forest Ave. Corp. v Aetna Cas. & Sur. Co., 37 A.D.2d 11, 322 N.Y.S.2d 53, 1971 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3835 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1971), aff'd, 30 N.Y.2d 726, 332 N.Y.S.2d 896, 283 N.E.2d 768, 1972 N.Y. LEXIS 1335 (N.Y. 1972).

Insurer was required to defend and indemnify insured in personal injury action brought by passenger in insured's car, even though insurer did not receive written notice of accident until 5 months later, since (1) insured had immediately reported accident to its broker, who mistakenly notified wrong carrier, (2) on discovery of error, necessary documentation of accident was sent to insurer, and (3) there was uncontradicted testimony by injured passenger that insurer's investigator visited her home approximately 3 months after accident; under circumstances, insured complied with police requirement that notice be provided "as soon as practicable." Universal Underwriters Ins. Co. v Patriot Ambulette, Inc., 149 A.D.2d 500, 539 N.Y.S.2d 981, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4860 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1989).

Insurance company was entitled to summary judgment declaring that it had no obligation to defend or indemnify its insured in underlying action brought to recover for personal injuries sustained in motor vehicle accident on basis of lack of timely notice of accident where (1) accident occurred in July 1984, (2) nonresident injured party promptly retained counsel and counsel obtained police report of accident, which contained insurance code for insurance company, in December 1984, (3) nonresident injured party commenced action in February 1985 in hope that insured would forward process with notice to insurance company, (4) after default by insured in appearing in action, nonresident injured party's counsel requested insurance search on insured's vehicle in April 1985, and (5) in July 1985, within 2 weeks of receiving insurance information, nonresident injured party's counsel sent written notice of accident to insurance company. Eveready Ins. Co. v Chavis, 150 A.D.2d 332, 540 N.Y.S.2d 860, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5688 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1989).

Insured's 10-month delay in notifying liability insurer of claim was unreasonable as matter of law, even though at time claim occurred claimant indicated to insured that she did not intend to sue anyone, where claimant, who was close personal friend of insured, was injured on insured's boat, injury was immediately reported to Coast Guard and claimant was taken to hospital, and claimant served summons and complaint on insured 10 months later. Platsky v Government Employees Ins. Co., 181 A.D.2d 764, 581 N.Y.S.2d 235, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3740 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1992).

Insurer was entitled to summary judgment declaring that it had no duty to defend or indemnify its insured in underlying action brought by property owners to recover for property damage they sustained as result of insured's installation of new roof on their home since policy specifically required that insurer be "promptly" notified if insured became "aware of anything that indicates that there might be a claim under the (policy)," and insured failed to advance explanation for his approximate 4-month delay in notifying insurer following owners' affidavit to city court stating that they were going to sue insured for damages. McCarthy v Nova Cas. Co., 239 A.D.2d 851, 657 N.Y.S.2d 466, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5579 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), app. denied, 90 N.Y.2d 807, 664 N.Y.S.2d 268, 686 N.E.2d 1363, 1997 N.Y. LEXIS 3025 (N.Y. 1997).

Insured's unexcused 8-month delay in notifying insurer of claim was breach of its contractual obligations and vitiated any coverage afforded by policy, which required insured to provide notice of claim "as soon as practicable" and to "immediately" forward copy of summons and complaint to insurer. International Furniture Rentals of NY/CT, Inc. v United States Fid. & Guar. Co., 256 A.D.2d 308, 681 N.Y.S.2d 326, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13193 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1998).

Court erred in granting insureds' summary judgment motion declaring that insurer was obligated to defend and indemnify insureds in underlying personal injury action where reasonableness of insureds' actions in failing to notifying insurer of Order to Abate Nuisance and in not forwarding notice of legal proceedings against them to insurer until 4 months after they received it were fact issues in light of insurer's requirement that insureds must give prompt notice of "anything that indicates there might be a claim under this policy." Kaliandasani v Otsego Mut. Fire Ins. Co., 256 A.D.2d 310, 681 N.Y.S.2d 323, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13178 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1998).

Insurance carrier was entitled to summary judgment dismissing action to collect proceeds of homeowner's insurance policy, as insureds' 9-month delay in giving notice of accident and 5-month delay in giving notice of underlying lawsuit was unreasonable as matter of law in absence of excuse or mitigating factors, and in light of close family relationship between injured plaintiff and insureds. Serravillo v Sterling Ins. Co., 261 A.D.2d 384, 689 N.Y.S.2d 521, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4524 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1999), app. denied, 95 N.Y.2d 758, 713 N.Y.S.2d 2, 734 N.E.2d 1213, 2000 N.Y. LEXIS 1722 (N.Y. 2000).

Defendant insurer was properly granted summary judgment declaring that it was not obligated to defend and indemnify plaintiff in underlying action, despite plaintiff's assertion that it did not learn of underlying action until conditional default order was served on person designated as its agent with Secretary of State, for even though such circumstance might have been sufficient to raise fact issue as to whether plaintiff complied with its obligation under policy to give defendant notice of suit as soon as practicable, it was not sufficient to raise fact issue as to whether plaintiff complied with its obligation under policy to immediately send defendant copies of any legal papers received, and no valid reason was given for plaintiff's almost 2-month delay in notifying defendant of its receipt of conditional default order. Viles Contr. Corp. v Hartford Fire Ins. Co., 271 A.D.2d 349, 708 N.Y.S.2d 281, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4573 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2000).

In action to recover no-fault insurance benefits, insurer did not raise triable issue of fact as to whether it received timely notice of accident where its initial denial of claim was within relevant 90-day period after accident, and thus insured's notice of accident was necessarily timely. N.Y. & Presbyterian Hosp. v Enter. Rent-A-Car, 281 A.D.2d 526, 721 N.Y.S.2d 823, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2568 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2001).

Even if "loss run" report otherwise satisfied requirement of commercial general liability insurance policy that insured, as condition precedent to coverage, give insurer notice of any occurrence within 15 days of learning about it or as soon as was reasonably practicable thereafter, report was untimely where it would have been received at least one month after insured learned of incident, insured gave insurer's claims administrator written notice of incident on day after it occurred, nothing made it impracticable to give insurer notice before expiration of 15-day period, and it would have been apparent to insured and administrator from outset that potential exposure arising from claim at issue exceeded $25,000 limit of insured's self-insured retentions. Steadfast Ins. Co. v Sentinel Real Estate Corp., 283 A.D.2d 44, 727 N.Y.S.2d 393, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5695 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2001).

Insurer was not entitled to a stay of the N.Y. C.P.L.R. art. 75 arbitration proceedings, as it failed to give notice of the disclaimer to the insured party within a reasonable time under N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(d); the insurer had sufficient knowledge of the facts as of February 21, 2003, to disclaim, yet it failed to do so until April 10, 2003. Am. Express Prop. Cas. Co. v Vinci, 18 A.D.3d 655, 795 N.Y.S.2d 329, 2005 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5276 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2005).

Insurer was not entitled to a stay of the N.Y. C.P.L.R. art. 75 arbitration proceedings, as it failed to give notice of the disclaimer to the insured party within a reasonable time under N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(d); the insurer had sufficient knowledge of the facts as of February 21, 2003, to disclaim, yet it failed to do so until April 10, 2003. Am. Express Prop. Cas. Insurer's motion for summary judgment should have been granted in a county public administrator's suit seeking a declaration that the insurer was obligated to defend insureds in an underlying wrongful death suit because, while N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(a)(3) provided an injured party with an independent right to provide an insurance carrier with written notice of an accident, the injured party was required to demonstrate that he or she acted diligently in attempting to learn the identity of the insurer and expeditiously notify it, and the insurer established its prima facie entitlement to judgment as a matter of law by establishing that the administrator did not provide any explanation for the five-month delay in ascertaining the insurer's identity or in notifying the insurer of the accident after the administrator was appointed to represent the decedent's estate. Trepel v Asian Pac. Express Corp., 16 A.D.3d 405, 791 N.Y.S.2d 161, 2005 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2296 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2005).

Where insureds, having information of personal injuries arising from a fire in building against which structural violations had been posted by municipality, failed to exercise reasonable care and diligence in ascertaining facts about alleged accident and in evaluating potential liability, delay of 19 months in giving notice was inexcusable. Security Mut. Ins. Co. v Acker-Fitzsimons Corp., 31 N.Y.2d 436, 340 N.Y.S.2d 902, 293 N.E.2d 76, 1972 N.Y. LEXIS 880 (N.Y. 1972), limited, Brandon v Nationwide Mut. Ins. Co., 97 N.Y.2d 491, 743 N.Y.S.2d 53, 769 N.E.2d 810, 2002 N.Y. LEXIS 977 (N.Y. 2002).

Fact that split limestone manufacturer's liability insurer, which sought to have truck dealer's liability insurer's policy declared primary with respect to action arising out of accident occurring when automobile struck "cement brick" on roadway, did not give such insurer notice of accident and pending lawsuit until almost 13 months after manufacturer's insurer knew that manufacturer's truck had not come within three miles of accident and that truck, which dealer loaned to manufacturer, had passed scene short time before or after accident, was not an "excusable delay" for purposes of policy provisions requiring that notice be given as soon as practicable. Aetna Cas. & Sur. Co. v Pa. Mfrs. Ass'n Ins. Co., 57 A.D.2d 982, 394 N.Y.S.2d 330, 1977 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12278 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1977).

In action for declaratory judgment regarding insurance company's duty to defend insured in personal injury action arising out of motor vehicle accident, where insured did not notify insurance company of accident until approximately 18 months after accident when he first found out that other party involved claimed personal injuries, insured failed to satisfy burden of establishing that there was no reasonable ground for believing, prior to his receipt of summons and complaint for personal injuries, that bodily injury had resulted from accident; bare reliance on fact that no one complained of personal injury at time of accident was insufficient where manner in which accident occurred and extent of damage to other party's vehicle should have suggested to reasonable and prudent person that there existed strong possibility that personal injury claim would eventually be made. Eveready Ins. Co. v Levine, 145 A.D.2d 526, 536 N.Y.S.2d 87, 1988 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13642 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1988).

Insurance company was entitled to judgment declaring that it had no duty to defend insured in personal injury action arising out of motor vehicle accident since insured breached duty to notify insurance company of accident as soon as reasonably practical when he did not notify insurance company of accident until 18 months after accident, when he was served with summons and complaint. Eveready Ins. Co. v Levine, 145 A.D.2d 526, 536 N.Y.S.2d 87, 1988 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13642 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1988).

Service of summons and complaint on insureds by injured party, which were then forwarded to insurer almost 12 months after accident, was insufficient to constitute notice on behalf of injured party "as soon as was reasonably possible" under CLS Ins § 3420(a)(4), and thus insurer was not obligated to defend and indemnify insureds in underlying action. Government Employees Ins. Co. v Blecker, 150 A.D.2d 428, 541 N.Y.S.2d 39, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6427 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1989).

Ten-year delay by insured New York City Housing Authority in reporting personal injury claim to its liability insurer constituted breach of authority's obligation under policy to give notice of pertinent occurrence "as soon as practicable" and entitled insurer to disclaim any duty to defend or indemnify authority, notwithstanding fact that authority itself received no notice of occurrence giving rise to injury other than that contained in police accident report; even if notice of claim provisions of CLS Gen Mun § 50-e were interpreted to mean that its police department's knowledge of accident could not be imputed to municipality, authority's duty of notification was controlled by insurance policy rather than by statute. White v New York, 180 A.D.2d 324, 585 N.Y.S.2d 41, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8146 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1992), aff'd, 81 N.Y.2d 955, 598 N.Y.S.2d 759, 615 N.E.2d 216, 1993 N.Y. LEXIS 1127 (N.Y. 1993).

Insurer was not required to defend third-party action against its insured arising out of injuries sustained by independent contractor who fell from ladder while working for insured as painter, notwithstanding painter's assertion to insured shortly after accident that he did not intend to sue anyone for injuries, since insured's 15-month delay in notifying insurer only after third-party action was commenced was unreasonable as matter of law. E.B. Gen. Contracting v Nationwide Ins. Co., 189 A.D.2d 796, 592 N.Y.S.2d 455, 1993 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 328 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1993).

Insurer properly disclaimed coverage based on late notice of loss where policy required insured to "give immediate written notice of...loss to the Company," and insurer was not formally notified in writing of insured's claim until more than 13 months had passed after accident. Town Bd. v Continental Ins. Co., 213 A.D.2d 475, 623 N.Y.S.2d 894, 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2733 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't), app. denied, 86 N.Y.2d 712, 635 N.Y.S.2d 949, 659 N.E.2d 772, 1995 N.Y. LEXIS 4498 (N.Y. 1995).

Plaintiff failed to give notice of his claim as soon as was reasonably possible as required by CLS Ins § 3420(a)(4) where policy was listed on multiple dwelling registration form filed by insured in 1982, injury was sustained in June 1985, underlying action was commenced in June 1988, plaintiff's default judgment in underlying action was entered in August 1991, and plaintiff's attorney first gave notice of claim when he informed insurer of default judgment in October 1991. Rodriguez v Liberty Mut. Ins. Co., 214 A.D.2d 366, 625 N.Y.S.2d 489, 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4156 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1995).

In action by plaintiff who was injured on premises owned by defendant power authority which sought contribution and indemnification from plaintiff's employer, general liability insurance carrier was entitled to summary judgment declaring that it was not obligated to defend or indemnify plaintiff's employer in third-party action as notice given to it by plaintiff's employer was untimely as matter of law, where it did not receive notice until 5 years after accident, almost 4 years after plaintiff's employer was first impleaded by power authority. Thomson v Power Auth., 217 A.D.2d 495, 629 N.Y.S.2d 760, 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8122 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1995).

Absent valid excuse, 28-month delay in providing notice of accident was unreasonable. Collins v Isaksen, 221 A.D.2d 403, 633 N.Y.S.2d 539, 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11975 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1995).

Insured did not give notice of occurrence "as soon as practical," as required by excess liability policy, where notice was not provided until May 1994, and insured must have known as early as September 1992 that claims submitted in connection with fire were likely to involve excess policy because claims reports from primary insurer were mailed to it describing lawsuit seeking damages of $5 million and stating that "the appropriate excess letter has been forwarded to [insured] in response to a review of this lawsuit."319 McKibben St. Corp. v General Star Nat'l Ins. Co., 245 A.D.2d 26, 664 N.Y.S.2d 785, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12510 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1997).

General liability insurance policy was vitiated by insured's failure, without valid excuse, to notify insurer of accident or seek coverage under policy until 4 years after accident. National Union Fire Ins. Co. v State Ins. Fund, 266 A.D.2d 518, 699 N.Y.S.2d 111, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12246 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1999).

Insureds' 17-month delay in notifying insurer of relevant claims was unreasonable and vitiated coverage under policy; it was no excuse that delay was caused by error of insureds' broker in initially notifying wrong insurer. Martini v Lafayette Studio Corp., 273 A.D.2d 112, 710 N.Y.S.2d 39, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7176 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2000).

Insurer was not required to defend or indemnify insured regarding underlying action by insured's injured employee where insurer properly disclaimed coverage based on insured's failure to provide timely notice of claim, insured's delay of 2 years and 10 months in providing notice of claim was unreasonable as matter of law, insurer was not obligated to disclaim coverage until insured provided notice of accident or claim, and disclaimer in insurer's answer was timely notice of disclaimer. Roofing Consultants, Inc. v Scottsdale Ins. Co., 273 A.D.2d 933, 709 N.Y.S.2d 782, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6715 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't), app. denied, 95 N.Y.2d 770, 722 N.Y.S.2d 473, 745 N.E.2d 393, 2000 N.Y. LEXIS 3859 (N.Y. 2000).

Insurer was entitled to summary judgment dismissing action under CLS Ins § 3420(b)(1) to recover amount of judgment obtained against insured where insurer first received notice of motor vehicle accident about 2 years and 7 months after it occurred, and plaintiff failed to present any evidence that delay was reasonable. Centrone v State Farm Fire & Cas., 275 A.D.2d 728, 713 N.Y.S.2d 211, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9265 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2000), app. denied, 96 N.Y.2d 704, 723 N.Y.S.2d 131, 746 N.E.2d 186, 2001 N.Y. LEXIS 260 (N.Y. 2001).

Under insurance policy provision requiring notice of supplemental uninsured motorist claim "as soon as practicable"—that is, with reasonable promptness after insured knew or should have known that tortfeasor was underinsured—delay of over 2 years was unreasonable as matter of law and shifted burden to insured to provide reasonable excuse for delay or due diligence in ascertaining insurance coverage of vehicles involved in accident. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. v Hernandez, 275 A.D.2d 989, 713 N.Y.S.2d 618, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9545 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 2000).

Insurer was not obligated to defend insured in underlying claim because insured failed to notify insurer of the accident for over 14 months without a reasonable excuse. Insurer established that it validly disclaimed coverage based on late notice, and provided timely written notice of disclaimer in accordance with N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(d). Sevenson Envtl. Servs., Inc. v Sirius Am. Ins. Co., 64 A.D.3d 1234, 883 N.Y.S.2d 423, 2009 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5647 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 2009).

Named insured was entitled to coverage under this statute because she provided notice within two years of the time required under the policy and the insurer failed to show that its ability to investigate or defend the claim had been "materially impaired" by the delay; the named insured became aware of the limits of the tortfeasor's policy in September 2012, and notified the insurer in August 2014 of her supplemental uninsured/underinsured claims. Slocum v Progressive Northwestern Ins. Co., 137 A.D.3d 1634, 28 N.Y.S.3d 181, 2016 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2187 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't), reh'g denied, app. denied, 140 A.D.3d 1715, 32 N.Y.S.3d 524, 2016 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4491 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 2016).

Liability insurer had no obligation to satisfy a judgment against an insured who knew of the occurrence immediately but waited more than a year to give notice, absent evidence that the insured had a good faith belief in nonliability, and a former version of this section did not require the insurer to show that it was prejudiced by the insured's failure to give timely notice. A delay in disclaiming coverage was excusable as reasonably related to the insurer's completion of its investigation. Ramlochan v Scottsdale Ins. Co., 150 A.D.3d 1166, 55 N.Y.S.3d 369, 2017 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4090 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2017).

Commercial general liability insurer which provided coverage during period in which claim was made was nevertheless entitled to summary judgment declaring that it was not obligated to defend or indemnify insured, where policy required insured to give written notice as soon as practicable, and insurance broker notified wrong insurer, thereby delaying proper notice for 17 months; fact that delay was due to broker's error did not relieve insured of its obligation to timely notify insurer of claim. Martini v Lafayette Studios Corp., 177 Misc. 2d 383, 676 N.Y.S.2d 808, 1998 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 302 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1998).

Insurer made out a prima facie case of unreasonable notice under N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(a)(4) where an insured was involved in an incident in which he killed another deer hunter, but he failed to advise the insurer of the incident until more than two years later after he had been served with a complaint in a wrongful death action. Allstate Ins. Co. v Marcone, 29 A.D.3d 715, 815 N.Y.S.2d 235, 2006 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6530 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't), app. dismissed, 7 N.Y.3d 841, 824 N.Y.S.2d 208, 857 N.E.2d 529, 2006 N.Y. LEXIS 2669 (N.Y. 2006).

Because an insurer was not notified of a property damage claim for more than one year after the insured received notice of such claim from its tenant, the insured's belief in nonliability was unreasonable; accordingly, the trial court properly granted the insurer's motion for summary judgment. Ponok Realty Corp. v United Natl. Specialty Ins. Co., 69 A.D.3d 596, 893 N.Y.S.2d 125, 2010 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 132 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2010).

Prior insurer properly disclaimed coverage for an underlying personal injury claim on the basis of untimely notice because its policy predated the effective date of the amendments to N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(a)(5) which required a showing of prejudice and the later insurer knew of the incorrect date of underlying accident at least one year before the prior insurer was notified, which notice happened five years after the accident; although this tender, made on behalf of the insured, was sufficient to fulfill the policy's notice of claim requirements so as to trigger the insurer's obligation to issue a timely disclaimer pursuant to § 3420(d), the delay in giving such notice of claim was clearly unreasonable. 25 Ave. C New Realty, LLC v Alea N. Am. Ins. Co., 96 A.D.3d 489, 949 N.Y.S.2d 2, 2012 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4599 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2012).

District court's conclusion that insured failed to notify insurer "promptly" of claim as required by policy was not clearly erroneous where it was conceded that insured did not provide notice to insurer until 17 months after accident which gave rise to claim. Marino v New York Tel. Co., 944 F.2d 109, 1991 U.S. App. LEXIS 22013 (2d Cir. N.Y. 1991).

Delay of more than 6 months in giving notice of claim to liability insurer, after insured was clearly notified that city would sue unless it assumed cleanup costs for polluted site, was unreasonable as matter of law, particularly where there were prior indications that environmental claims would be made and insured had furnished information to environmental agency 4 years earlier. City of Utica v Genesee Mgmt., 934 F. Supp. 510, 1996 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 10723 (N.D.N.Y. 1996).

41. Timeliness of notice of accident involving uninsured motorist, particular cases

Court did not err as matter of law in granting insurer's petition to stay arbitration of insured's underinsurance claim, on ground that insured did not give notice of underinsurance claim "as soon as practicable" pursuant to his policy, where he commenced action shortly after accident but did not learn of limits of tortfeasor's policy until 10 months later, in connection with settlement offer. Metropolitan Prop. & Cas. Ins. Co. v Mancuso, 93 N.Y.2d 487, 693 N.Y.S.2d 81, 715 N.E.2d 107, 1999 N.Y. LEXIS 1296 (N.Y. 1999).

Court properly granted insurer's petition to stay arbitration of insured's underinsurance claim, on ground that insured did not give notice of underinsurance claim "within 90 days or as soon as practicable" as required by his policy, where he did not file underinsurance claim until 14 months after he began his personal injury action and 3 years after accident. Metropolitan Prop. & Cas. Ins. Co. v Mancuso, 93 N.Y.2d 487, 693 N.Y.S.2d 81, 715 N.E.2d 107, 1999 N.Y. LEXIS 1296 (N.Y. 1999).

Hearing is required to determine factual issues presented in proceeding to compel the MVAIC to accept, as timely filed, notice of claim filed by petitioner under an automobile accident insurance policy containing the usual indemnification endorsement against uninsured motorists required by former § 167 [now § 3420]. Ryan v Motor Vehicle Acci. Indemnification Corp., 22 A.D.2d 949, 255 N.Y.S.2d 908, 1964 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2385 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1964).

An order which stayed arbitration of a claim for damages for personal injuries asserted against the MVAIC and directed a jury trial on the issue whether the filing of notice of claim by the injured 17-year-old infant 120 days after the accident satisfied the condition precedent prescribed by the policy that notice be given within 90 days "or as soon as practicable" was proper, since it could not be held as a matter of law that by reason of claimant's infancy the filing was timely. Gardner v Motor Vehicle Acci. Indemnification Corp., 27 A.D.2d 783, 277 N.Y.S.2d 239, 1967 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4863 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1967).

It was error for Special Term to deny petitioner's application for permanent stay of arbitration since although respondents, who sustained injuries in automobile accident on June 15, 1981, acted promptly in retaining counsel and procuring copy of police accident report, counsel's subsequent delay, over 2 years, in notifying petitioner of their claim was patently excessive. Nassau Ins. Co. v Doyle, 114 A.D.2d 899, 495 N.Y.S.2d 72, 1985 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 53930 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1985).

Insurer was not entitled to permanent stay of arbitration of uninsured motorist claim, despite its assertion that insureds failed to comply with policy provision requiring notice to police within 24 hours or as soon as practicable after accident, where insureds made repeated efforts to seek assistance from police but, through no fault of their own, they were unable to obtain written police report verifying such contacts until some time after accident. Lumbermen's Mut. Casualty Co. v Crivello, 210 A.D.2d 177, 621 N.Y.S.2d 20, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13218 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1994).

Insureds' willful breach of cooperation clause barred their recovery under homeowner's policy where (1) they had filed for bankruptcy and were on verge of losing their home at foreclosure sale on date of fire, (2) they refused to provide insurer with personal and corporate tax returns requested because of suspicious nature of fire, and (3) although their son, who was college student residing at insured premises, was home several hours before fire broke out, they refused to produce him for examination under oath or to respond to interrogatory seeking his current address. Weissberg v Royal Ins. Co., 240 A.D.2d 733, 659 N.Y.S.2d 505, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7134 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1997).

Court improperly denied insurer's petition for permanent stay of arbitration and directed that arbitration proceed in accordance with insured's demand for supplemental uninsured motorist coverage where fact issue existed as to whether, under circumstances, notice of claim was given to insurer as soon as practicable 4 months after insured knew or should have known he had potential serious injury. Travelers Ins. Co. v DeLosh, 249 A.D.2d 924, 672 N.Y.S.2d 219, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5008 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1998).

Insured's delay in ascertaining offending vehicle's policy limits for more than 15 months after accident constituted lack of due diligence which justified insurer's disclaimer of coverage on ground of late notice. Owen v Allstate Ins. Co., 250 A.D.2d 1018, 673 N.Y.S.2d 477, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5916 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1998).

Notice of claim for underinsured motorist coverage, served on insurer more than 4 years after accident, was untimely as matter of law in absence of valid excuse for delay. LaBella v Allstate Ins. Co., 261 A.D.2d 367, 689 N.Y.S.2d 197, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4506 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1999).

Respondent had reasonable excuse for failing to provide notice of her supplemental underinsured motorist (SUM) claim until 9 months after February 1997 accident, where she was initially diagnosed with relatively minor injury, extent of injury became apparent in June, she underwent surgery in August and then retained attorney, attorney's efforts to discover extent of tortfeasor's insurance coverage were frustrated due to fact that police accident report did not state vehicle owner's identity, and her attorney gave petitioner written notice of potential SUM claim in November 1997 in event vehicle owner was underinsured or uninsured. Nationwide Ins. Enter. v Leavy, 268 A.D.2d 661, 700 N.Y.S.2d 582, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 146 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2000).

Insured did not prove reasonable excuse for his delay in notifying insurer of supplemental uninsured motorist claim, even if he did not know true extent of his injuries until second surgery 17 months after accident, where his additional delay of 9 months was without excuse. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. v Hernandez, 275 A.D.2d 989, 713 N.Y.S.2d 618, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9545 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 2000).

Hearing was required to determine whether insured acted with due diligence in trying to ascertain policy limits where (1) his supplemental uninsured motorist (SUM) coverage was excess after deduction of any amounts recovered from tortfeasor or other SUM insurer, (2) carrier insuring vehicle that insured was driving went into bankruptcy, and its debts were taken over by Liquidation Bureau of State Insurance Department, and (3) although insured's second attorney was retained in 1998, record did not show what, if any, efforts prior attorney made to ascertain limits. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. v Hernandez, 275 A.D.2d 989, 713 N.Y.S.2d 618, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9545 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 2000).

Where an injured person covered by liability insurance was injured by an uninsured motorist, being a pedestrian struck by the motorist after January 1, 1959, and sought to require his own insurer to arbitrate the claim as provided in the original policy, likewise issued after January 1, 1959, promptly so notified his insurer, and the insurance company failed to deny coverage and assert that liability, if any, rested on the Motor Vehicle Accident Indemnification Corporation only after it was too late to file notice of claim against the corporation, the liability insurer would be compelled to arbitrate the claim pursuant to the policy, regardless of whether liability could have been imposed upon the corporation. Gallagher v Government Employees Ins. Co., 25 Misc. 2d 777, 207 N.Y.S.2d 555, 1960 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2520 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1960), rev'd, 12 A.D.2d 981, 212 N.Y.S.2d 575, 1961 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12436 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1961).

An application by the father of an infant, who was struck by a hit and run vehicle, to compel the MVAIC to arbitrate the claim was granted, where filing the claim one year and six days after the accident and approximately one month after retention of an attorney constituted filing as soon as practicable. McNulty v Motor Vehicle Accident Indemnification Corp., 51 Misc. 2d 1, 272 N.Y.S.2d 514, 1966 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1736 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1966), aff'd, 28 A.D.2d 1209, 284 N.Y.S.2d 858, 1967 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8019 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1967).

The phrase "as soon as practicable," in the MVAIC's indorsement relating to the giving of notice, required that notice be given within a reasonable time under all circumstances, and the MVAIC had to accept a notice of claim made within such reasonable time. Timbone v Stuyvesant Ins. Co., 51 Misc. 2d 916, 274 N.Y.S.2d 489, 1966 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1421 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1966).

Special patrolman in hospital was a "peace officer" within former § 608 [now § 5208] of the Insurance Law, so that non-English speaking litigant who reported accident to said officer upon arriving at the hospital after the accident would be granted leave to sue the MVAIC. Rodriguez v Motor Vehicle Accident Indemnification Corp., 54 Misc. 2d 361, 282 N.Y.S.2d 625, 1967 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1451 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1967), aff'd, 29 A.D.2d 846, 288 N.Y.S.2d 588, 1968 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5741 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1968).

In view of the fact that claimant filed her notice under the uninsured motorist indorsement within 10 days after receiving notice of disclaimer of liability by insurer, no good faith assertion could be made that claimant's notice was untimely. Murphy v Criterion Ins. Co., 57 Misc. 2d 52, 293 N.Y.S.2d 851, 1968 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1680 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1968).

The failure of a claimant to report a hit-and-run accident as required by the uninsured motorist clause was not excused by the fact that he did not discover that there was a hit-and-run automobile involved until some seven months after the accident when his attorney received a copy of a motor vehicle report submitted by the driver of a vehicle which was propelled by an alleged hit-and-run motorist into the rear of a preceding vehicle which vehicle was, in turn, propelled into claimant's vehicle. Shamrock Casualty Co. v Mack, 61 Misc. 2d 240, 305 N.Y.S.2d 525, 1969 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1062 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1969).

42. —Delay due to time lag in discovering uninsured status

The extension of coverage afforded by former § 167, subd. 2-a [now § 3420(f)] to damage sustained from operation of an uninsured vehicle is not available unless and until it can be established that the vehicle in question, or its operator, was not insured at the time of the incident. Whether or not notice of claim against MVAIC was given within a reasonable time depends upon whether there was due diligence in investigating possible or asserted insurance coverage, and in serving notice of claim on MVAIC after it became clear that such coverage did not exist. Motor Vehicle Accident Indem. Corp. v Brown, 15 A.D.2d 578, 223 N.Y.S.2d 309, 1961 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6818 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1961), app. dismissed, 11 N.Y.2d 968, 229 N.Y.S.2d 416, 183 N.E.2d 696, 1962 N.Y. LEXIS 1194 (N.Y. 1962).

The March 14, 1966 claim of a motorist injured in an accident with an uninsured vehicle on May 19, 1965 was untimely, since the inaction of claimant's first lawyer was charged to claimant and it appeared that claimant did not request information from the Motor Vehicle Department as to whether the other car carried insurance until February 8, 1966 which was almost nine months after the date of the accident, and did not serve his notice of claim until approximately 10 months after the date of the accident. De Jesus v Motor Vechicle Acci Indemnification Corp., 31 A.D.2d 917, 298 N.Y.S.2d 458, 1969 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4351 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1969).

Claimant who has not complied with 90-day notice requirement in policy must shown that he diligently sought to determine whether insurance coverage existed during critical period preceding giving of notice, and expeditious service of notice after receipt of disclaimer of insurance company named by other party does not demonstrate diligence from time of accident; failure to request insurance information from department of motor vehicles demonstrates lack of diligence and conclusive reliance on accuracy of other party's representations is unreasonable; unexplained failure to make attempt to ascertain other party's insurance status for period of 11 months forecloses finding that notice had been filed as soon as practicable. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. v Romero, 109 A.D.2d 786, 486 N.Y.S.2d 297, 1985 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 47282 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1985).

Where the attorney for an injured motorist did everything which could be expected to ascertain the insurance status of the owner and operator of the other vehicle, and was not informed, until March 23, 1960, that there was no insurance coverage, then filed the claim with the Motor Vehicle Accident Indemnification Corporation on March 24, 1960, it could be determined as matter of law that the claim was filed as soon as practicable under the circumstances. Brown v Motor Vehicle Accident Indemnification Corp., 24 Misc. 2d 550, 206 N.Y.S.2d 294, 1960 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2651 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1960).

Where petitioners, injured in a collision with an uninsured motor vehicle, retained counsel six days following the accident and clearly established that a diligent effort was made to determine whether or not the other vehicle was insured but did not receive a final letter from the Motor Vehicle Bureau advising them that the other vehicle was not insured until seven months later, at which time their attorneys immediately notified MVAIC of the accident and claim against it, their claims were filed as soon as reasonably possible as matter of law. Gorgoni v O'Boyle, 33 Misc. 2d 788, 227 N.Y.S.2d 709, 1961 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2367 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1961).

Notice of claim against MVAIC was given "as soon as practicable" where the claimant, an infant, sustained injuries in an accident on June 21, 1959, his parents retained counsel on July 2, who immediately started to investigate the facts and who were advised by MVAIC that the offending motorist was insured, whereupon they started suit against such motorist in which he failed to appear and defend and only then found out by inquiry that his insurance had been cancelled long prior to the accident, following which his former insurer affirmed the cancellation and disclaimed liability in December, 1959. Motor Vehicle Acci. Indemnification Corp. v Soister, 33 Misc. 2d 704, 227 N.Y.S.2d 979, 1962 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3583 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1962).

Where the accident in which petitioner was injured occurred October 2, 1961, petitioner was advised at all times that the negligent motorist causing the accident was covered by liability insurance, started suit against that motorist, and did not discover that there was a claim of cancellation of defendant's liability insurance, or the identity of his alleged insurer, until late in March, 1962, following disclaimer of liability by the insurer, whether notice of claim against MVAIC was given "as soon as practicable" was a question of fact to be determined by the court prior to granting a demand for arbitration against MVAIC. Kaiser v Motor Vehicle Acci. Indemnification Corp., 35 Misc. 2d 636, 231 N.Y.S.2d 178, 1962 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3137 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1962).

In connection with a motorist's application to compel MVAIC to arbitrate a claim for damages sustained by petitioner in a collision with an allegedly uninsured automobile, notice of claim was given to MVAIC as soon as practicable after occurrence of the accident on October 2, 1961, where the driver of the other car informed plaintiff's attorney on October 23, 1961 that he had insurance and the attorney did not further find out that such insurance had been cancelled until March 18, 1962, whereupon after attempting to verify this, on March 31, 1962, he filed notice of intent to sue MVAIC. Kaiser v Motor Vehicle Acci. Indemnification Corp., 36 Misc. 2d 724, 233 N.Y.S.2d 944, 1962 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2631 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1962).

Where the accident in which plaintiff, an infant, was allegedly injured by negligence of an uninsured motorist, occurred June 11, 1960, and the first notice was not given to MVAIC until February 23, 1961, more than five months after plaintiff was first notified by a purported insurance company, to whom his attorney was referred by the Motor Vehicle Bureau, that the offending motorist had no insurance coverage, the notice of claim against MVAIC was not given "as soon as practicable," and no cause of action existed against MVAIC. Sorrentino v Motor Vehicle Acci. Indemnification Corp., 37 Misc. 2d 550, 236 N.Y.S.2d 123, 1962 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2162 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1962).

Reasonableness of a delay by an insured in giving MVAIC notice of a claim under the uninsured motorist indorsement depends upon the insured's diligence in ascertaining the insurance status of the other operator, and giving notice once his lack of insurance is discovered. A notice given 140 days after a collision had occurred was held to be reasonable applying the standard of a reasonably diligent attorney, not that of a most diligent attorney. Merchants Mut. Ins. Co. v Anziano, 59 Misc. 2d 673, 300 N.Y.S.2d 187, 1969 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1606 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1969).

Where an insured had attempted to enforce his personal injury claim and was assisted by his insurer, which had notice the other automobile was uninsured, a notice given by insured to his company two days after he found out the other motorist was uninsured was given as soon as it was reasonably practicable for him to do so and precluded a stay of arbitration under the uninsured motorist indorsement. It was also held that settlement negotiations of the claim under the "uninsured motorist" indorsement conducted by claimant's insurer constituted a waiver of any alleged defect in the notice. Cuozzo v Lumbermens Mut. Casualty Co., 60 Misc. 2d 294, 303 N.Y.S.2d 12, 1969 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1395 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1969).

Where an insured had attempted to enforce his personal injury claim and was assisted by his insurer, which had notice the other automobile was uninsured, a notice given by insured to his company two days after he found out the other motorist was uninsured was given as soon as it was reasonably practicable for him to do so and precluded a stay of arbitration under the uninsured motorist indorsement. It was also held that settlement negotiations of the claim under the "uninsured motorist" indorsement conducted by claimant's insurer constituted a waiver of any alleged defect in the notice. Cuozzo v Lumbermens Mut. Casualty Co., 60 Misc. 2d 294, 303 N.Y.S.2d 12, 1969 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1395 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1969).

43. Burden of proof as to reasonableness of delay

Where, in giving notice of an accident, there has been a delay of twenty-two days, which is not the immediate notice called for by the policy of indemnity insurance, the burden of proof to show delay was reasonable rests on the insured, and his judgment creditor, suing under former § 167 [now § 3420], stands in his shoes and is chargeable with breach of condition. She is not affected, however, by a compromise between insurer and insured. Rushing v Commercial Casualty Ins. Co., 251 N.Y. 302, 167 N.E. 450, 251 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 302, 1929 N.Y. LEXIS 719 (N.Y. 1929).

Requirement that insured notify its liability insurance carrier of potential claim "as soon as practicable" operates as condition precedent to coverage, and insured has burden of showing reasonableness of any excuse for delay in giving notice. White v New York, 81 N.Y.2d 955, 598 N.Y.S.2d 759, 615 N.E.2d 216, 1993 N.Y. LEXIS 1127 (N.Y. 1993).

Where a judgment creditor of the insured in an automobile liability policy seeks to impose liability upon the insurer, and it appears that there was delay in giving notice of accident and claim to the insurer with respect to the accident or occurrence out of which plaintiff's cause of action arose, plaintiff has the burden of excusing the delay. Mason v Allstate Ins. Co., 12 A.D.2d 138, 209 N.Y.S.2d 104, 1960 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6284 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1960).

In action for declaratory judgment regarding insurance company's duty to defend insured in personal injury action arising out of motor vehicle accident, where insured did not notify insurance company of accident until approximately 18 months after accident when he first found out that other party involved claimed personal injuries, insured bore burden to establish that there was no reasonable ground for believing, prior to his receipt of summons and complaint for personal injuries, that bodily injury had resulted from accident. Eveready Ins. Co. v Levine, 145 A.D.2d 526, 536 N.Y.S.2d 87, 1988 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13642 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1988).

Although a more liberal standard is applied to what delay is reasonable in the giving of notice of an accident by an injured person to the liability insurer, the burden of proving that delay was reasonable is still upon the injured person. Allstate Ins. Co. v Manger, 30 Misc. 2d 326, 213 N.Y.S.2d 901, 1961 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3168 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1961).

The requirement that the injured motorist give notice of claim against MVAIC "as soon as practicable" requires giving of notice to MVAIC within a reasonable time under all the circumstances, and the burden of proving that any delay was reasonable is upon the injured motorist. Kaiser v Motor Vehicle Acci. Indemnification Corp., 35 Misc. 2d 636, 231 N.Y.S.2d 178, 1962 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3137 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1962).

With respect to an insured's claim for property damage due to water damage that occurred when a fire in the residential unit above the insured premises was put out, as personal injury was not involved, the matter did not fall within the ambit of N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(d); further, where the insured failed to show proof of prejudice from the delay, the insurer was not estopped from disclaiming coverage or rescinding the policy based on the insured's misrepresentation regarding lack of smoke detectors. Nunez v U.S. Underwriters Ins. Co., 921 N.Y.S.2d 462, 31 Misc. 3d 418, 2011 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 394 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 2011).

Insured bears burden of showing reasonableness of delay in giving notice of claim and occurrence for purposes of coverage under liability policy; where no valid excuse is given for delay, even short delay will be unreasonable and void coverage. City of Utica v Genesee Mgmt., 934 F. Supp. 510, 1996 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 10723 (N.D.N.Y. 1996).

In a dispute between two insurers regarding a duty to defend, an insurer failed to show that late notice of the claim materially impaired its ability to investigate or defend the claim because there is no support in the record for either the claim that the passage of time materially impaired its ability to conduct such an investigation and there was no explanation of why pre-suit negotiations would have been more effective at resolving the dispute than the negotiations in which it could have engaged after notice, particularly as there was no claim that the insurer ever engaged in negotiations with the claimant. Wausau Underwriters Ins. Co. v Old Republic Gen. Ins. Co., 122 F. Supp. 3d 44, 2015 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 103954 (S.D.N.Y. 2015).

44. Lack of required notice as vitiation of policy

Absent a valid excuse, a failure to satisfy the notice requirement vitiates the policy and the insurer need not show prejudice before it can assert the defense of noncompliance. Security Mut. Ins. Co. v Acker-Fitzsimons Corp., 31 N.Y.2d 436, 340 N.Y.S.2d 902, 293 N.E.2d 76, 1972 N.Y. LEXIS 880 (N.Y. 1972), limited, Brandon v Nationwide Mut. Ins. Co., 97 N.Y.2d 491, 743 N.Y.S.2d 53, 769 N.E.2d 810, 2002 N.Y. LEXIS 977 (N.Y. 2002).

Insurance carrier may assert that it has the right to reject claim of injured person, who seeks to secure the benefits of policy issued to the insured, on basis of failure of injured person to give notice within a reasonable time. Pensky v Aetna Life & Casualty Co., 55 A.D.2d 640, 390 N.Y.S.2d 162, 1976 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 15386 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1976).

Giving of required notice is condition of insurer's liability, and failure to comply with notice requirements vitiates the policy, but requirement that notice be given as soon as practicable after accident merely requires that notice be given within reasonable time under all circumstances. Hartford Fire Ins. Co. v Masternak, 55 A.D.2d 472, 390 N.Y.S.2d 949, 1977 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10003 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1977).

Unexplained delay by insured under automobile liability policy in furnishing written notice of claim to insurer constituted breach of notice provision of policy, and such provision was not satisfied by insured's cooperation in giving recorded statement to insurer one week after accident. Gizzi v State Farm Mut. Ins. Co., 56 A.D.2d 973, 393 N.Y.S.2d 107, 1977 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11386 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1977).

Policy requirement that notice be given "as soon as practicable" requires that notice be given within a reasonable time under all the circumstances; failure to give such notice vitiates the contract as to both the insured and party recovering a judgment against him. Aetna Cas. & Sur. Co. v Pa. Mfrs. Ass'n Ins. Co., 57 A.D.2d 982, 394 N.Y.S.2d 330, 1977 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12278 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1977).

Application to permanently stay arbitration was properly granted where court found that written notice of automobile accident was mailed some 6 months after accident and insured failed to establish valid excuse for failure to comply with policy's 90-day notice provision; absent valid excuse, failure to satisfy notice requirement in insurance policy vitiates coverage. Allstate Ins. Co. v Kashkin, 130 A.D.2d 744, 516 N.Y.S.2d 43, 1987 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 46756 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't), app. denied, 70 N.Y.2d 608, 521 N.Y.S.2d 224, 515 N.E.2d 909, 1987 N.Y. LEXIS 18926 (N.Y. 1987).

Disclaimer of coverage under comprehensive general liability policy was effective where insurer clearly and unambiguously indicated that reason for disclaiming coverage was insureds' unexcused 22-month delay in notifying carrier of accident; failure to itemize prejudice suffered as result of delay did not invalidate disclaimer, and disclaimer letter was properly sent to claimants' attorney rather than to claimants directly, as authorized by CLS CPLR § 2103. Virtuoso v Aetna Casualty & Surety Co., 134 A.D.2d 252, 520 N.Y.S.2d 439, 1987 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 50440 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1987).

Insurance company was entitled to summary judgment declaring that it had no duty to defend or indemnify insureds where company had not received timely written notice of accident as required under policy and valid disclaimer of coverage was sent to insureds. Losi v Hanover Ins. Co., 139 A.D.2d 702, 527 N.Y.S.2d 458, 1988 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4546 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't), app. dismissed, 72 N.Y.2d 950, 533 N.Y.S.2d 54, 529 N.E.2d 422, 1988 N.Y. LEXIS 2659 (N.Y. 1988).

Insurance company was entitled to summary judgment dismissing action to recover under fire insurance policy where insured received 60-day demand to file statements of loss on October 9, but proofs of loss were not filed by insured's retained adjuster until December 10; theory of waiver was not available to insured as he could not have properly relied on any prior representations which adjuster made to him, nor could insured rely on doctrine of equitable estoppel since there was no evidence of conduct by insurance company which could have reasonably lulled him into inaction. Brostowin v Hanover Ins. Co., 154 A.D.2d 418, 546 N.Y.S.2d 4, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12430 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1989).

Insurer was entitled to summary judgment declaring that it was not obligated to defend or indemnify insured in underlying action, even though insurer was timely notified of accident on which action was based and it conducted investigation, where insured failed to satisfy notice requirement in policy to forward to insurer legal process, which caused insurer irreparable harm by depriving it of opportunity to meaningfully participate in pretrial discovery proceedings. Melhado v Catsimatidis, 182 A.D.2d 576, 582 N.Y.S.2d 434, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6369 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1992).

Insurance company was entitled to summary judgment in action by insured to recover under "claims made" policy, regardless of whether it was prejudiced by insured's short delay in giving notice of claim, since insured under "claims made" policy knows in advance that there is applicable date that cuts off claims, this being distinct characteristic of such policy that directly relates to rate setting. Rochwarger v National Union Fire Ins. Co., 192 A.D.2d 305, 595 N.Y.S.2d 459, 1993 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3241 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1993).

Insurers were not required to defend or indemnify city housing authority in action arising from fall of child, even though housing authority had promptly forwarded notice of claim to insurers, where authority later incorrectly advised them that no action had been commenced, authority waited 4 years before answering complaint, nearly 3 years passed before it finally advised insurers of pendency of action, and their ability to defend was prejudiced by destruction of documents and by inability to locate witnesses. New York City Hous. Auth. v Insurance Co. of N. Am., 210 A.D.2d 152, 620 N.Y.S.2d 347, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12975 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1994).

Failure to file sworn statement of claim within 90 days after accident vitiated coverage, even though insurance policy contained ambiguous provision as to furnishing of notice of claim, where police report relative to accident was not forwarded to carrier until more than 6 months after accident. American Home Assurance Co. v Joseph, 213 A.D.2d 633, 624 N.Y.S.2d 250, 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3131 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1995).

Court properly granted insurer application to stay arbitration of uninsured motorist claim based on insured's failure to provide timely written notice of claim as required by policy even though insured's letter to insured 3 days after accident, informing him of his no-fault insurance options, demonstrated that it had actual notice of accident; fact that insurer receives notice of accident does not vitiate breach of policy requirement, and insurer does not have to show prejudice before it can advance claim for noncompliance. Progressive Ins. Co. v Morales, 236 A.D.2d 672, 653 N.Y.S.2d 193, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1112 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1997).

In action for declaratory judgment that insurer was not obligated to defend and indemnify its insured in underlying personal injury action, court's denial of insurer's prior motion for summary judgment, on ground that issue of fact existed as to whether policy contained condition requiring insured to give written notice of accident to insurer as soon as practicable, did not bar consideration of plaintiff's subsequent renewed motion for same relief where court granted renewed motion on ground that notice, which was not received by insurer until 3 years after accident, was not given within reasonable time as matter of law. Mount Vernon Fire Ins. Co. v Timm, 237 A.D.2d 586, 655 N.Y.S.2d 611, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3056 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't), app. denied, 90 N.Y.2d 806, 663 N.Y.S.2d 511, 686 N.E.2d 223, 1997 N.Y. LEXIS 2974 (N.Y. 1997).

New York law, under which insurer need not show that it was prejudiced by insured's failure to comply with policy's notice conditions in order to disclaim coverage based on such noncompliance, applied to insurer's action for declaration that it had no duty to defend or indemnify insured under commercial general liability policy in connection with underlying action for sexual assault in insured's Nevada apartment complex where (1) although insured's operations were national in scope, New York was its place of incorporation and principal place of business, from which it had negotiated special terms of policy and to which policy presumably was delivered, and (2) thus, New York was state in which contract was made and was main location of insured risk. Steadfast Ins. Co. v Sentinel Real Estate Corp., 283 A.D.2d 44, 727 N.Y.S.2d 393, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5695 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2001).

"MCS-90" endorsement to policy issued to registered interstate motor carrier required defendant insurer to pay damages to plaintiff pursuant to default judgment obtained against driver and owner of tractor leased to carrier, as it was undisputed that driver and owner of tractor fell within policy's definition of "insured" and, even if they failed to give insurer prompt notice of loss as required by subject policy, MCS-90 endorsement (mandated by 49 USCS § 13906(a)(1) and 49 CFR 387.15) created duty running from insurer to members of public such as plaintiff, without regard to policy limitation between insurer and insured. Pierre v Providence Wash. Ins. Co., 286 A.D.2d 139, 730 N.Y.S.2d 550, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9195 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2001), aff'd, 99 N.Y.2d 222, 754 N.Y.S.2d 179, 784 N.E.2d 52, 2002 N.Y. LEXIS 3782 (N.Y. 2002).

When claimants under an insurance policy sought a declaratory judgment that an insurer was obligated to defend its insured in an underlying action, the insurer was entitled to summary judgment because the insured did not comply with the policy's notice requirements, thereby vitiating it, and its disclaimer of coverage for this reason was effective against other claimants under the policy, as they did not exercise their rights to independently notify the insurer, under N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(a)(3), Viggiano v Encompass Ins. Co., 6 A.D.3d 695, 775 N.Y.S.2d 533, 2004 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4903 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2004).

Because neither the insured nor the injured party timely notified the insurer about the injured party's claim against the insured for injuries that resulted from an accident at the insured's facility in accordance with N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(a), the trial court improperly denied the insurer's motion for summary judgment. Seneca Ins. Co. v W.S. Distrib., Inc., 40 A.D.3d 1068, 838 N.Y.S.2d 99, 2007 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8540 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2007).

Although an insurer was timely notified of an automobile accident, it was not timely notified of the underlying litigation in accordance with N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(a)(3); therefore, because the insurer had no duty to defend or indemnify the insureds, it was entitled to summary judgment. Am. Transit Ins. Co. v Rechev of Brooklyn, 238 N.Y.L.J. 38, 2007 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 6131 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. July 27, 2007), aff'd, 57 A.D.3d 257, 867 N.Y.S.2d 914, 2008 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9338 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2008).

Irrebuttable presumption of prejudice to an insurer for lack of timely notice of a claim did not apply since a default judgment which entered against the insured prior to the notice was subsequently vacated after the notice, and thus the insured's liability was not finally established prior to the notice and the insurer was not precluded from defending against the claim. Hernandez Castillo v Prince Plaza, LLC, 981 N.Y.S.2d 906, 43 Misc. 3d 335, 2014 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 828 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 2014), aff'd, 142 A.D.3d 1127, 38 N.Y.S.3d 74, 2016 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6077 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2016).

Even if the untimeliness of the notice of occurrence did not become clear until June 26, that did not explain why the insurer waited another 32 days to notify the insured that it was denying coverage; the insurer waited to notify the insured that it was denying coverage until after the insurer had conducted an investigation into matters that ultimately played no role in the insurer's decision to deny coverage. The insurer's proffered excuse for its delay was thus unrelated to its own decision to disclaim, and as such, the insurer's 48-day delay in giving written notice was unreasonable as a matter of law. McAlpin v RLI Ins. Co., 509 F. Supp. 2d 242, 2007 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 65675 (W.D.N.Y. 2007).

Obligation to provide prompt notice under N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(d) is triggered when the insurer has a reasonable basis upon which to disclaim coverage, and cannot be delayed indefinitely until all issues of fact regarding the insurer's coverage obligations have been resolved. McAlpin v RLI Ins. Co., 509 F. Supp. 2d 242, 2007 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 65675 (W.D.N.Y. 2007).

Duty to disclaim promptly is imposed by N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(d); an insurer should not be permitted to avoid this mandate simply by issuing a letter reserving its right to disclaim at some point in the future, regardless of when or whether the insurer is in possession of facts showing that there are grounds for disclaimer. McAlpin v RLI Ins. Co., 509 F. Supp. 2d 242, 2007 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 65675 (W.D.N.Y. 2007).

Under N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(a)(3), an injured party must provide notice to an insurer in order to preserve its right to collect against a financially responsible defendant; thus, where insureds did not tender their defense to an insurer in a reasonable manner, they subjected themselves to the insurer's timely disclaimer. United States Underwriters Ins. Co. v Kum Gang, Inc., 443 F. Supp. 2d 348, 2006 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 52299 (E.D.N.Y. 2006).

45. —Waiver by insurer

In an action against an insurance company for the amount of judgment obtained against an insolvent policyholder in a negligence action arising out of an automobile accident, the notice of accident was not duly given by assured to company; the company by assuming control and defending negligence action thereby waived notice, and duty of the company was to elect whether to disclaim liability or waive defense of lack of notice. Farrell v Merchants' Mut. Auto. Liability Ins. Co., 203 A.D. 118, 196 N.Y.S. 383, 1922 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7142 (N.Y. App. Div. 1922).

In an action seeking a declaration that a doctor's insurer was obligated to defend a nurse employed by the doctor in a medical malpractice action against the doctor and his nurse, the trial court properly determined that the coverage of the doctor's policy did not extend to the nurse where the policy clearly provided for the defense and indemnification of the doctor but did not provide for the defense or indemnification of an employee. Further, any contention that the insurer's denial of coverage was untimely pursuant to Ins Law former § 167 subd. 8 [now § 3420(d)], and therefore waived, was without merit in that the doctrine of waiver is inapplicable in deciding the issue of the existence of coverage, and since in the present case the denial of coverage was made less than a month after the demand, and no contractual relationship ever existed between the insurer and the nurse, no denial of coverage was necessary. Since the action was one for a declaratory judgment, the proper procedure would have been to declare the rights of the parties and not to dismiss the action, and thus, the trial court would be directed to enter a judgment declaring that the insurer was not obligated to defend the nurse under the insurance policy it had issued to the doctor. National Union Fire Ins. Co. v Medical Liability Mut. Ins. Co., 85 A.D.2d 851, 446 N.Y.S.2d 480, 1981 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 16681 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1981).

Written notice of accident requirement under policy was not waived when insureds allegedly orally notified insurer's agent of accident where there was no evidence that agent signified, by words or conduct, that oral notice would suffice. Collins v Isaksen, 221 A.D.2d 403, 633 N.Y.S.2d 539, 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11975 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1995).

In action against insurer by plaintiff who was injured while riding in insured vehicle, insurer was estopped from raising plaintiff's alleged untimely notice as defense, where it originally disclaimed coverage based solely on its insured's failure to provide timely notice, and it did not assert as affirmative defense in underlying action that plaintiff also failed to give timely notice; furthermore, plaintiff did all he reasonably could to provide notice. Wraight v Exchange Ins. Co., 234 A.D.2d 916, 651 N.Y.S.2d 803, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13639 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1996), app. denied, 89 N.Y.2d 813, 657 N.Y.S.2d 406, 679 N.E.2d 645, 1997 N.Y. LEXIS 467 (N.Y. 1997).

Purported "course of dealing" under commercial general liability insurance policy did not alter clear terms of policy requiring insured, as condition precedent to coverage, to give insurer notice of any occurrence within 15 days of learning about it or as soon as was reasonably practicable thereafter where (1) insured did not cite any instance in which insurer accepted tender of claim despite insured's failure to comply with notice conditions, (2) contemporaneous correspondence concerning claim proved that insured and its claims administrator understood that policy required that insurer be given specific notice of particular occurrence and of commencement of litigation in accordance with policy, and (3) fact that insurer did not choose to become actively involved in claims until they approached limit of insured's self-insured retentions did not estop it from disclaiming coverage based on insured's noncompliance with express notice conditions. Steadfast Ins. Co. v Sentinel Real Estate Corp., 283 A.D.2d 44, 727 N.Y.S.2d 393, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5695 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2001).

Court properly concluded that insurer waived its defense of lack of timely notice where disclaimer letter did not discuss occurrence of "collapse" but rather talked about slab conditions that were "of long duration"; insurer's failure to disclaim based on late notice of "collapse" rendered underlying issue of timeliness of notification irrelevant. Benjamin Shapiro Realty Co. v Agric. Ins. Co., 287 A.D.2d 389, 731 N.Y.S.2d 453, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9931 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2001).

Liability insurer was precluded from disclaiming coverage on the ground that personal injury claimants had not provided timely notice of their action because the insurer's notice of disclaimer addressed only the insured's failure to provide notice of a slip and fall occurrence and neither asserted that a notice of the underlying action provided directly by the claimants was untimely nor disclaimed coverage as to the claimants based on failure to provide timely notice. Pollack v Scottsdale Ins. Co., 143 A.D.3d 794, 39 N.Y.S.3d 211, 2016 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6592 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2016), app. denied, 29 N.Y.3d 908, 80 N.E.3d 405, 57 N.Y.S.3d 712, 2017 N.Y. LEXIS 1343 (N.Y. 2017).

In an action brought under former § 167 [now § 3420] against an automobile insurer, any defect in timeliness of notice given to the insurer was waived by delay in advising plaintiff of a reservation, in answering, of any right to disclaim under the policy, constituting a failure to reserve effectively such rights insofar as plaintiff's action under former § 167 was concerned. Matthews v Glens Falls Ins. Co., 21 Misc. 2d 1079, 192 N.Y.S.2d 811, 1959 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2942 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1959).

Insurer did not waive its late notice defense when, in response to insured's letter seeking coverage, it sent insured letter which requested more information from insured, including copies of other contracts and other information; insurer's letter, which did not explicitly disclaim coverage or assume defense, specifically reserved right to disclaim on basis of any unmet condition in policy. City of Utica v Genesee Mgmt., 934 F. Supp. 510, 1996 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 10723 (N.D.N.Y. 1996).

46. Other matters

Paragraph [d] of subd. 1 of former § 167 [now § 3420(a)(4)], in providing that failure to give any notice required by a liability policy within the time prescribed is not to invalidate any claim if such notice is given as soon as as reasonably possible embraces "the entire notice complex", and there is no justification for differentiating between notice of accident, notice of claim, and notice of suit. Holubetz v National Fire Ins. Co., 13 A.D.2d 228, 215 N.Y.S.2d 986, 1961 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10427 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1961).

Where record which concentrated on issue of whether insured gave timely notice of claim was insufficient for determining whether injured party gave timely notice of claim under Insurance Law former § 167, subd 1(c), (d) [now § 3420(a)(3), (4)], new trial was granted for determination of all issues, including issue of whether insurer's notice of disclaimer was sufficient under Insurance Law former § 167, subd 8 [now § 3420(d)]. Cosmopolitan Mut. Ins. Co. v Vasquez, 40 A.D.2d 796, 338 N.Y.S.2d 121, 1972 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3335 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1972).

Third-party plaintiff's failure to timely notify its insurer of plaintiff's underlying claim, which resulted in loss of its own insurance coverage, would not defeat its separate right to indemnification from third-party defendant. Katz v City of New York, 203 A.D.2d 179, 610 N.Y.S.2d 521, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4213 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1994).

Injured party or other claimant, having been statutorily granted independent right to give notice and recover directly from insurer, is not charged vicariously with insured's delay. Aetna Cas. & Sur. Co. v National Union Fire Ins. Co., 251 A.D.2d 216, 674 N.Y.S.2d 685, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7704 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1998).

Monthly "loss run" reports sent to insurer's Illinois office and reporting hundreds of claims against insured without designating which claims would be tendered to insurer as allegedly covered by commercial general liability policy did not satisfy policy's requirement that insured, as condition precedent to coverage, give insurer notice of any occurrence within 15 days of learning about it or as soon as was reasonably practicable thereafter. Steadfast Ins. Co. v Sentinel Real Estate Corp., 283 A.D.2d 44, 727 N.Y.S.2d 393, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5695 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2001).

Even if "loss run" report satisfied requirement of commercial general liability insurance policy that insured, as condition precedent to coverage, give insurer notice of any occurrence within 15 days of learning about it or as soon as was reasonably practicable thereafter, insurer's denial of coverage was independently justified where insured failed to comply with separate policy condition that action papers of underlying claim against insured be "immediately forward[ed]" to insurer, and no valid reason for that failure was given. Steadfast Ins. Co. v Sentinel Real Estate Corp., 283 A.D.2d 44, 727 N.Y.S.2d 393, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5695 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2001).

A notice by employer's compensation insurer of employee's injury, to public liability insurer, was not a notice in behalf of the injured person, but was solely in behalf of the compensation insurer, in order to protect its claim against a possible third party, who might be liable to the injured employe. Zurich Gen. Accident & Liab. Ins. Co. v Chesterford Homes, Inc., 18 Misc. 2d 470, 188 N.Y.S.2d 891, 1959 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3725 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1959).

An injured claimant is not required to go to the trouble of notifying the defendant's insurance company before suit is commenced or before the claimant knows that the insurer is disclaiming under its policy. Matthews v Glens Falls Ins. Co., 21 Misc. 2d 1079, 192 N.Y.S.2d 811, 1959 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2942 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1959).

Declaratory judgment was properly entered for a general liability carrier in a suit brought by the insured's workers' compensation carrier seeking common-law and contractual indemnification in an underlying third-party suit arising out of an employee's injuries as the general liability carrier specifically excluded claims arising out of employees' injuries, the disclaimer was not untimely under N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(d), the general liability carrier did not waive reliance on the exclusionary language, and the disclaimer was not rendered ineffective by the general liability insurer's quotation of only part of the exclusion. Realm Nat'l Ins. Co. v Hermitage Ins. Co., 8 A.D.3d 110, 778 N.Y.S.2d 492, 2004 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8364 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2004).

Where insured provided notice that was unreasonable as a matter of law and did not show that the delay was reasonable under the circumstances, the insurer was not required to show that it was prejudiced by the delay because the provision that eliminated the "no prejudice" rule did not apply since the policy was issued outside of New York since the parties' signatures were affixed in Pennsylvania. Indian Harbor Ins. Co. v City of San Diego, 972 F. Supp. 2d 634, 2013 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 137873 (S.D.N.Y. 2013), aff'd, 586 Fed. Appx. 726, 2014 U.S. App. LEXIS 18986 (2d Cir. N.Y. 2014).

VII. Policy Coverage for Operation or Use of Motor Vehicle

47. In general

Although the owners of private motor vehicles are free to remain uninsured and contract of insurance may restrict its coverage as to time and place and use and as to injuries covered, if the owner of a motor vehicle takes out policy of liability insurance, the provisions of former § 109 [predecessor to former § 167, now § 3420] will be read into policy. Bakker v Aetna Life Ins. Co., 264 N.Y. 150, 190 N.E. 327, 264 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 150, 1934 N.Y. LEXIS 1408 (N.Y. 1934), limited, Conte v Yorkshire Ins. Co., 5 Misc. 2d 670, 163 N.Y.S.2d 28, 1957 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3223 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1957).

Assault on infant while passenger on school bus did not arise out of use of that vehicle. Calvert Ins. Co. v CIGNA Ins. Co., 239 A.D.2d 243, 658 N.Y.S.2d 12, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5201 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1997).

No statute prohibits a provision in a policy to the effect that, in consideration of a reduced rate, the automobile will be operated only by named persons and if injury is caused by operation of other than named persons the insured will reimburse the company for payments made by reason of subd. 2 of former § 167 [now § 3420(e)]. Standard Acci. Ins. Co. v Solomon, 88 N.Y.S.2d 667, 195 Misc. 48 (1949).

Incorporation of the provisions of Vehicle & Traffic Law § 59 into an insurance policy pursuant to Insurance Law former § 167(2) [now § 3420(e)] did not give any specific primary action on the contract against an insurer to an injured party. Liability can only be fixed in an action against the owner of the vehicle involved. Bornhurst v Massachusetts Bonding & Ins. Co., 12 Misc. 2d 149, 175 N.Y.S.2d 542, 1958 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3115 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1958), rev'd, 11 A.D.2d 632, 200 N.Y.S.2d 955, 1960 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10055 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1960).

Subdivision (2) of former § 167 [now § 3420(e)] of the Insurance Law as well as § 388 of the Vehicle and Traffic Law require that all liability insurance cover the insured against liability incurred under § 388, but as long as the policy provides that coverage nothing in either of these sections require that it use the precise language of the statutes. Singerman Bus Corp. v American Fidelity Fire Ins. Co., 44 Misc. 2d 4, 252 N.Y.S.2d 780, 1964 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1620 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1964).

Additional insureds to an automobile liability insurance policy who become such by virtue of the statutorily required omnibus clause which provides protection to other persons operating a motor vehicle with the named insured's consent (Insurance Law, former § 167, subd 2 [now § 3420(e)]), must take the policy as they find it, subject to all conditions, limitations, and exceptions that exist with respect to the original named insured. Pelych v Potomac Ins. Co., 91 Misc. 2d 973, 401 N.Y.S.2d 374, 1977 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2460 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1977).

"Coverage" as used in Ins Law provision requiring notice of disclaimer when coverage is denied pursuant to an exclusion contained in the policy means not only what is found under the heading "insurance agreement" but also what the "exclusion" clause expressly says is not covered; "denial of coverage" refers to those instances in which insurance covering the event could be said to exist but for some non-payment of premiums, cancellation, or other exclusion that would arguably defeat such coverage. Blackmer v Travelers Indem. Co., 110 Misc. 2d 704, 442 N.Y.S.2d 923, 1981 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3145 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1981).

New York Department of Motor Vehicles form MV-104, required to be filed following accident in which person is killed or injured or damage exceeds $600, does not constitute prima facie evidence of insurance coverage so as to shift burden of proving lack of coverage to insurer since (1) form is unsupported by any independent proof of insurance coverage, (2) form is not certificate or affidavit as to fact ascertained or act performed by public officer in course of official duty (CLS CPLR § 4520), and (3) form is unlike police report containing insurance information based on insurance identification card, which does shift burden of proof to named insurer. Mona Leasing, Inc. v Travelers Indem. Co., 148 Misc. 2d 877, 564 N.Y.S.2d 665, 1990 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 636 (N.Y. Dist. Ct. 1990).

New York Department of Motor Vehicles (DMV) form MV-104, required to be filed following accident in which person is killed or injured or damage exceeds $600, does not constitute prima facie evidence of insurance coverage so as to shift burden of proving lack of coverage to insurer since form is unsupported by any independent proof of insurance coverage and is thus unlike either DMV form FS-25, which does constitute prima facie evidence of insurance coverage, or registration application, which has been held barely adequate to shift burden of proof to named insurer. Mona Leasing, Inc. v Travelers Indem. Co., 148 Misc. 2d 877, 564 N.Y.S.2d 665, 1990 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 636 (N.Y. Dist. Ct. 1990).

Opinion addressing concerns about compliance with Third Amendment to Regulation 29 (11 NYCRR § 20.4) as to minimum details for receipts, which requires description of risk as it relates to automobile insurance policies; opinion addresses situations where vehicles are frequently being added, subtracted, or substituted on insurance policies and that, if too much detail is required, office may make error. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 02-01-01.

Insurer may decline coverage based on insufficient mileage. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 02-02-06.

Insurance company may not contract with insured to provide less than legally mandated personal injury protection coverage in automobile insurance policy in exchange for lower premium; there are number of other possible ways to reduce costs of total automobile insurance premium (e.g., one can choose not to purchase optional automobile insurance coverages, one can request higher deductible, and one can purchase automobile safety or security devices or take driver safety course). Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 02-02-11.

New York Insurance Law does not specifically require insurers to send notice of cancellation or nonrenewal of automobile insurance policy to automobile lienholder; however, if automobile insurance policy contains provision that requires insurer to send notice of cancellation or nonrenewal to automobile lienholder, such notice must be provided in accordance with provisions of insurance policy. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 02-08-20.

There are number of factors that insurers may use to determine automobile insurance premium, including applicant's driving record, place of residence, use of vehicle, and creditworthiness. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 06-01-10.

48. Construction and purpose

The contention that the policy must be deemed, by operation of law, to include a provision insuring the owner against liability for the death or injuries to person or property without limitation or qualification, so as to cover loss of services cannot be sustained. The reasonable construction of the statute is that the policy must be read as if it contained an extended liability clause, but that it may be limited in amount and coverage as the parties may agree. Brustein v New Amsterdam Casualty Co., 255 N.Y. 137, 174 N.E. 304, 255 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 137, 1931 N.Y. LEXIS 657 (N.Y. 1931).

The primary purpose of the extended liability clause in former § 109 [predecessor to former § 167, now § 3420] is to meet the defense in an action on a policy that the owner was not at the time of the accident operating the car personally or by his agent, although it was being operated by a member of his family or another with his consent, express or implied. Purpose is not to make insurance compulsory or to prevent limitation of coverage. Lavine v Indemnity Ins. Co., 260 N.Y. 399, 183 N.E. 897, 260 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 399, 1933 N.Y. LEXIS 769 (N.Y. 1933).

Under automobile insurance policy defining "occupying" as "in, on, entering, or alighting from" insured vehicle, worker who had just finished repair job and deposited tools in back of van and was walking toward locked driver's door of van when he was hit by another vehicle was not "entering" van at time of injury where he had not yet reached side door of van, and his departure from van was not mere temporary interruption of continuing journey. State Farm Auto. Ins. Co. v Antunovich, 160 A.D.2d 1009, 555 N.Y.S.2d 231, 1990 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5022 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1990).

Automobile insurance policy was valid where it provided limited compulsory bodily injury liability coverage for tractor, even though it contained endorsement excluding coverage for, inter alia, claims arising when tractor or any trailer attached to it was "used to carry property in any business," since policy also provided that endorsement was "not applicable to any compulsory coverages," and it provided excess liability coverage for nontrucking operations. Hanover Ins. Co. v Connor, 232 A.D.2d 925, 648 N.Y.S.2d 839, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11263 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1996).

Because an endorsement in a marine insurance policy violated N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(e) (2002) by excluding coverage for a permissive user who was operating defendant insured's boat, the endorsement was void and unenforceable. Jefferson Ins. Co. v Cassella, 261 F. Supp. 2d 160, 2003 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 7882 (E.D.N.Y. 2003).

49. Extraterritorial application of section

Former § 109 [predecessor to former § 167, now § 3420] has an extraterritorial effect and applies to an accident occurring in another state. Kobryn v Travelers Ins. Co., 279 N.Y. 623, 17 N.E.2d 680, 279 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 623, 1938 N.Y. LEXIS 875 (N.Y. 1938).

Where a policy of motor vehicle liability insurance was issued to the owner of the vehicle in Iowa and the vehicle was not principally garaged or used in New York State, § 388 of the Vehicle and Traffic Law, dealing with owner's liability for negligence of a person operating the car with his consent, was inapplicable and Iowa law governed coverage of the policy, so that where, under that law, the owner was not liable because neither driving the car himself nor accompanying the driver at the time of the occurrence of the New York accident, neither was the insurer. Stobinsky v Kyser, 42 Misc. 2d 53, 247 N.Y.S.2d 567, 1964 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2036 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1964).

50. Effect of distinction between liability and collision insurance

A so-called "Family Combination Automobile Policy" covering medical expenses of the insured and each named relative in connection with accidental injuries sustained while occupying or being struck by an automobile is essentially a "liability" policy, governed as to certain standard provisions by this section. Black v Hanover Ins. Co., 30 Misc. 2d 1081, 220 N.Y.S.2d 168, 1961 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2281 (N.Y. Mun. Ct. 1961).

The provisions of former § 167 [now § 3420] apply only to liability policies or coverage and do not control collision insurance situations. John F. Welgan, Inc. v Government Employees Ins. Co., 49 Misc. 2d 816, 268 N.Y.S.2d 700, 1966 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2007 (N.Y. County Ct. 1966).

51. Insured person

Automobile insurance policy stating that "covered person" included "any person using your covered automobile" would not be construed to require that driver must have permission of insured to drive automobile, since policy was clear and unambiguous and such limitation could have been provided by defining "covered person" as "any person using your covered automobile with your permission;" fact that policy provided more favorable coverage than required by CLS Ins § 3420(e) could not be ignored. Kenyon v Newton, 144 A.D.2d 901, 534 N.Y.S.2d 600, 1988 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 14344 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1988).

Automobile insurance policy covered driver of insured vehicle where (1) automobile was purchased by son of insured, registered in insured's name and added to insured's policy, and (2) driver was friend of son's, with whose permission she was driving automobile, although she might not have had permission of insured to drive it; policy did not require that driver have permission of insured to drive vehicle and court would not rewrite policy to so state. Kenyon v Newton, 144 A.D.2d 901, 534 N.Y.S.2d 600, 1988 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 14344 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1988).

Insurance company was required to defend and indemnify insured under homeowners insurance policy in underlying actions involving automobile accident, notwithstanding that insured was sued in his capacity as treasurer of political committee associated with campaign, since political committee was unincorporated association, and members of committee were liable for their actions as individuals. Heleniak v Blue Ridge Ins. Co., 162 A.D.2d 1041, 557 N.Y.S.2d 229, 1990 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9828 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1990).

Insurer was entitled to stay of arbitration of uninsured motorist claim on basis that decedent was not resident of insured's household at time of accident, and thus did not fall within policy's definition of "insured," where (1) decedent was citizen of Portugal who was visiting insured, who was his daughter, as well as other family members, and (2) decedent's immigration status required him to return to Portugal before specified date. State Farm Mut. Ins. Co. v Leonardo, 166 A.D.2d 601, 560 N.Y.S.2d 888, 1990 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12538 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1990).

Insurance company was entitled to summary judgment declaring that it had no duty to defend or indemnify state in claim pending before Court of Claims for damages resulting from construction-related flooding along state highway, since state, which issued highway work permits to mall developer with requirement that state be named as insured in liability insurance policy covering work which was issued by defendant, was not so named and it was not established that state was intended beneficiary under policy's broad-form but unambiguous "contractual liability coverage" clause. State v American Mfrs. Mut. Ins. Co., 188 A.D.2d 152, 593 N.Y.S.2d 885, 1993 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1093 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1993).

Automobile liability policy provided coverage to son of insureds where son was listed as "named driver" along with insureds; failure of policy to define "named driver" or to exclude it from coverage gave rise to ambiguity that would be construed in favor of insured. Kennedy v Valley Forge Ins. Co., 203 A.D.2d 930, 612 N.Y.S.2d 712, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4932 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't), aff'd, 84 N.Y.2d 963, 621 N.Y.S.2d 512, 645 N.E.2d 1212, 1994 N.Y. LEXIS 4217 (N.Y. 1994).

Court would uphold clause in insurance policy for leased truck which limited coverage to lessees, borrowers, and employees of named insured during loading and unloading of truck. Coburn v Aetna Casualty & Sur. Co., 212 A.D.2d 752, 623 N.Y.S.2d 599, 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2194 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1995).

Insured's daughter-in-law, who was involved in accident while driving loaner car obtained by insured while his car was being repaired, came within "Insured Persons" provision of insurance policy where loaner car was "insured auto" under terms of policy, and "you" and "your" were defined in policy as meaning insured and insured's spouse, and "your," when added to "insured auto" for purposes of defining "insured persons," referred to insured's or his resident wife's insured automobile. Nationwide Mut. Ins. Co. v Allstate Ins. Co., 218 A.D.2d 880, 630 N.Y.S.2d 591, 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8248 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1995).

Insurer was properly awarded judgment declaring that auto liability policy did not cover insureds' son because, at time of accident, he was not "resident" of insureds' household, where he had been living with his girlfriend and her children for more than one year prior to accident, his residence at his girlfriend's home had been periodically interrupted due to domestic disputes when he would temporarily move back in with insureds until he and his girlfriend reconciled, he had been living at insureds' home for 3 weeks at time of accident only because of domestic dispute, and both he and insureds expected that he would resume cohabitation with his girlfriend as soon as they had reconciled. New York Cent. Mut. Fire Ins. Co. v Kowalski, 222 A.D.2d 859, 634 N.Y.S.2d 894, 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13002 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1995).

Passengers of taxicab, who opened door in path of bicyclist when they alighted from cab, were not entitled to indemnity or defense under taxicab owner's business auto policy, as they were not additional insureds under policy. Swee v Vals Trans, 225 A.D.2d 113, 649 N.Y.S.2d 146, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11499 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1996), app. denied, 90 N.Y.2d 802, 660 N.Y.S.2d 712, 683 N.E.2d 335, 1997 N.Y. LEXIS 1635 (N.Y. 1997).

Insurer was entitled to hearing and stay of arbitration as to whether son was "insured person" under his parents' automobile insurance policy where it contended that son was not living in same household at time of accident, as policy required; evidence that son's driver's license, voter's registration card and previous year's income tax returns listed his parents' address as his residence was insufficient to establish that he was "living with" parents. American Nat'l Prop. & Cas. Co. v Chulack, 265 A.D.2d 550, 697 N.Y.S.2d 153, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10806 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1999).

In an action by a judgment-creditor against the liability insurer under this section, the judgment having been obtained, not against the owner of the vehicle, but against the one who was driving it, but the policy providing that the word "insured" includes the named insured and any person using the car with his permission, the driver of the car, if he was using it with the insured's permission, must be considered an "additional" insured and, the issue of permission not having already been adjudicated, plaintiff is entitled to have it adjudicated in the statutory action.

Mireider v New Hampshire Fire Ins. Co., 24 Misc. 2d 765, 204 N.Y.S.2d 504, 1960 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2561 (N.Y. City Ct. 1960).

Wife who had separated from husband at time automobile which husband had transferred to her was destroyed was not a named insured and was thus not entitled to recover insurance proceeds paid to husband for loss of said vehicle, even though husband obtained proceeds by displaying a certificate of registration which he fraudulently procured from Department of Motor Vehicles on an application for lost registration, knowing that he had earlier transferred the vehicle to wife. Moran v Moran, 74 Misc. 2d 384, 346 N.Y.S.2d 424, 1973 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1774 (N.Y. Dist. Ct. 1973).

Since, under one definition, the injured person was covered, but, under the other, she was not, that was a classic "ambiguity" in its purest etymological sense. Resolution of the inconsistency against the drafter of the inconsistent language resulted in coverage for the injured person. Matter of Preferred Mut. Ins. Co. v Bath, 881 N.Y.S.2d 629, 25 Misc. 3d 175, 2009 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1450 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 2009).

Subsection (2) of § 167 [now § 3420] is patterned after CLS Veh & Tr § 388, and mandates that policy contain provision insuring named insured against liability for injury resulting from negligence in operation or use of automobiles by any person using it with permission of named insured; provision concerns derivative liability and does not require coverage in favor of lessor as to liability resulting from defects or faulty workmanship. Taylor v Kinsella, 742 F.2d 709, 1984 U.S. App. LEXIS 19477 (2d Cir. N.Y. 1984).

Insurer that writes single vehicle motor vehicle policies rather than one policy for all of vehicles in household may not require insured to obtain Supplemental Spousal Liability coverage for all of policies issued to single household when insured requests coverage under just one of policies. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 03-04-22.

Owner or officer of business may not be excluded from coverage on commercial liability automobile insurance policy even if that person is not going to drive insured vehicle. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 08-07-23.

52. Vehicles to which section applies

Where the plaintiffs' property was damaged by a tugboat covered by marine insurance and judgment was obtained against the owner of the boat, but execution thereon was returned unsatisfied because of the owner's insolvency, the insurance carrier is liable since the tugboat was vehicle propelled by motive power within the meaning of this section. Hinkle v Globe & Rutgers Fire Ins. Co., 271 N.Y. 585, 3 N.E.2d 197, 271 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 585, 1936 N.Y. LEXIS 1309 (N.Y. 1936).

The exclusion of guest coverage in an insurance policy provided by a corporation renting motor vehicles did not violate subdivision 2 of former section 167 [now § 3420(e)] of the Insurance Law where a van was rented in New York by a New York resident who was to deliver the van three days later to the lessor in Maine, inasmuch as the mandatory provisions of subdivision 2 of former section 167 [now § 3420(e)], one of which required coverage for injuries suffered by a passenger in the vehicle (Vehicle and Traffic Law, § 311; 11 NYCRR 60.1), are applicable only to policies issued on vehicles principally garaged or used in this State and the vehicle in question was registered in Massachusetts and was only temporarily in New York. Travelers Indem. Co. v Ryder Truck Rental, Inc., 47 N.Y.2d 139, 417 N.Y.S.2d 53, 390 N.E.2d 771, 1979 N.Y. LEXIS 1992 (N.Y. 1979).

Provisions of automobile liability policy issued to vehicle owner's husband could be construed to extend coverage to situation in which owner's son might be held liable because of his use of vehicle and owner might be held liable because of her ownership, despite language that purportedly limited coverage in situations in which "the person...does not own or hire the auto," where policy was ambiguous as to whether such language was intended to modify or narrow coverage contemplated in general clause that defined "insured" as "you or your family member for the ownership, maintenance or use of any auto"; thus, fact that one family member to be covered owned accident vehicle did not negate insurer's obligations to defend and indemnify that family member. Handelsman v Sea Ins. Co., 85 N.Y.2d 96, 623 N.Y.S.2d 750, 647 N.E.2d 1258, 1994 N.Y. LEXIS 3371 (N.Y. 1994).

Self-insured automobile rental company is subject to same minimum liability insurance requirements as companies that purchase insurance policies or post surety bonds under CLS Veh & Tr § 370(1). ELRAC, Inc. v Ward, 96 N.Y.2d 58, 724 N.Y.S.2d 692, 748 N.E.2d 1, 2001 N.Y. LEXIS 695 (N.Y. 2001).

The words "vehicle drawn, propelled or operated by any motive power" in former § 109 [predecessor to former § 167, now § 3420] include tugboats. Hinkle v Globe & Rutgers Fire Ins. Co., 246 A.D. 737, 283 N.Y.S. 870, 1935 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9990 (N.Y. App. Div. 1935), aff'd, 271 N.Y. 585, 3 N.E.2d 197, 271 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 585, 1936 N.Y. LEXIS 1309 (N.Y. 1936).

Insurance company could not deny coverage on insured's automobile involved in accident on December 4, 1982 on basis of "New York Automobile Insurance Plan Policy Change Request" form completed and signed by insured's broker on December 1, 1982 for purpose of securing replacement coverage under policy on second vehicle, since form declared that coverage requested would only become effective "in accordance with the provisions of the policy or upon the issuance of a legal registration by an issuing office of [the Department of Motor Vehicles] whichever is earlier" (15 NYCRR 32.13) and registration for insured's replacement vehicle was not issued until on or after December 6, 1982, and company made no showing that its policy contained provision making coverage on replacement vehicle effective prior to registration date. Farrant v State Farm Ins. Co., 131 A.D.2d 538, 516 N.Y.S.2d 481, 1987 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 47995 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1987).

Court erred in declaring that policy issued to insured provided excess coverage for accidents arising out of her use of vehicle owned by her husband where policy provided coverage for accident arising from use of "other cars," extending coverage "to the use, by an insured, of a newly acquired car, a temporary substitute car or a non-owned car," there was no suggestion that vehicle owned by insured's husband was "newly acquired," and policy defined "temporary substitute car" as "car not owned by your or your spouse," and "non-owned car" as "a car not...owned by...you, your spouse, or any relatives. Crull v State Farm Fire & Cas. Co., 225 A.D.2d 1071, 639 N.Y.S.2d 601, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2911 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1996).

Defendant, which issued commercial automobile insurance policy and Form E Motor Carrier Certificate of Insurance to individual who had been granted certificate of public conveyance and necessity by Department of Transportation to operate as common carrier of passengers, was obligated to provide coverage to its insured for accident involving vehicle being operated as livery van under lease agreement with insured but which was not specified in policy; on issuing policy and Form E to its insured, authorized carrier, defendant undertook risk of insuring every vehicle operated under its insured's certificate of public convenience and necessity. Gish v Allstate Ins. Co., 171 Misc. 2d 294, 654 N.Y.S.2d 558, 1997 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 9 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1997), rev'd, 248 A.D.2d 435, 668 N.Y.S.2d 942, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2311 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1998).

Whether insurer is required to provide automobile liability insurance coverage where member of named insureds' household is involved in accident while driving automobile that is not owned by named insureds or household member depends on whether or not vehicle not owned by named insureds or household member was furnished or made available to household member for regular use; if automobile was not provided for household member's regular use, mandatory liability coverage for non-owned automobile applies and there is coverage, but if automobile was provided for household member's regular use, mandatory coverage for non-owned automobile does not apply and there is no coverage. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 02-07-21.

53. Activities constituting operation of motor vehicle

Regulation of Superintendent of Insurance permitting an insurer to limit liability coverage as to bodily injury or property damage sustained in the process of loading or unloading a vehicle to a lessee or borrower of vehicle or an employee of the named insured does not conflict with Vehicle and Traffic Law and Insurance Law mandating liability coverage for any party either using a vehicle with permission of named insured or responsible for the vehicle. Breen v Cunard Lines S.S. Co., 33 N.Y.2d 508, 355 N.Y.S.2d 333, 311 N.E.2d 478, 1974 N.Y. LEXIS 1676 (N.Y. 1974).

Under provisions of policy by which insurer agrees to pay on behalf of the insured all sums which insured shall become legally obligated to pay as damages because of bodily injury caused by an occurrence arising out of "use or operation" of any automobile, "use or operation" encompasses more than just driving a car, and the phrase "use or operation" includes all activities necessarily part of driving a car, such as getting in and getting out. Nassau County Chapter of Asso. for Help of Retarded Children, Inc. v Insurance Co. of North America, Inc., 59 A.D.2d 525, 397 N.Y.S.2d 107, 1977 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13308 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1977).

Insurance company was not obligated to defend or indemnify insured ambulance service under its business automobile insurance policy for claim asserted by party who was injured when she slipped and fell inside doors to entrance of hospital after being transported to hospital by insured, regardless of whether insurance company was aware that insured's duties included escorting patients in and out of hospital, since accident was outside scope of policy's coverage as matter of law because it did not arise from use or operation of insured's vehicle. Wausau Underwriters Ins. Co. v St. Barnabas Hospital, 145 A.D.2d 314, 534 N.Y.S.2d 982, 1988 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12936 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1988).

Appellant was not "occupant" of automobile within meaning of automobile insurance policy where (1) appellant's automobile broke down and she moved automobile out of traffic and parked it, (2) after making telephone calls to try to find someone to help her, she returned to automobile, gathered her belongings, and left automobile to go home, and (3) while crossing road, she was struck by another vehicle and injured. Travelers Ins. Co. v Wright, 202 A.D.2d 680, 609 N.Y.S.2d 642, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2909 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1994).

Accident did not occur from "use or operation" of vehicle where insured and 2 companions and had been driving 4-wheel vehicle on service road that paralleled railroad track when vehicle became stuck in gap between track and plank road as it passed over trestle, whereupon insured walked around vehicle, ostensibly to assess situation, and fell through hole in trestle. New York Cent. Mut. Fire Ins. Co. v Hayden, 209 A.D.2d 927, 619 N.Y.S.2d 910, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11917 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1994).

Passenger of taxicab was not "operator" under CLS Veh & Tr § 113; thus, while taxicab owner's business auto policy provided liability coverage for owner and its drivers in personal injury action resulting from passenger's negligent opening of taxicab door in path of bicyclist, policy's liability coverage did not extend to passenger. Swee v Vals Trans, 225 A.D.2d 113, 649 N.Y.S.2d 146, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11499 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1996), app. denied, 90 N.Y.2d 802, 660 N.Y.S.2d 712, 683 N.E.2d 335, 1997 N.Y. LEXIS 1635 (N.Y. 1997).

Actions of insured's wife in turning vehicle around, accelerating, and striking decedent with enough force to crush his skull could not be deemed "an accident" within meaning of automobile insurance policy; thus, insurer was entitled to summary judgment declaring that it had no duty to defend and indemnify wife in wrongful death action. Allstate Ins. Allstate Ins. Co. v Bostic, 228 A.D.2d 628, 646 N.Y.S.2d 128, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7430 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1996).

Liability insurer was properly granted summary judgment declaring that it was not obligated to defend or indemnify insureds in personal injury action involving alleged negligent operation of ride known as "the Whip," which was secured to rear of truck covered by auto policy, where ride ran on truck's engine but was operated by clutch in rear of truck, and there were no allegations that truck was used negligently. Progressive Cas. Ins. Co. v Yodice, 276 A.D.2d 540, 714 N.Y.S.2d 715, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10151 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2000).

Where an accident happended during the unloading process, any person or corporation engaged in that process was using the vehicle with permission of the named insured and, therefore, was an insured under the omnibus clause of the policy. Commercial Pipe & Supply Corp. v Allstate Ins. Co., 63 Misc. 2d 870, 313 N.Y.S.2d 846, 1970 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1516 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1970), rev'd, 36 A.D.2d 412, 321 N.Y.S.2d 219, 1971 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3977 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1971).

Person may "use" vehicle, even if he or she was not behind steering wheel, so long as there was purposeful exercise of control by person claiming to be covered under automobile liability insurance policy; one covered party may be "mechanical" driver of vehicle while another party directed and "controlled" route, speed, and manner of operation. Excelsior Ins. Co. v Progressive Cas. Ins. Co., 170 Misc. 2d 78, 649 N.Y.S.2d 331, 1996 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 392 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1996).

54. Liability of insurer in particular circumstances

Where the injuries sustained resulted from conduct of a 16-year-old girl having only a learner's permit, in ramming another car while driving a stolen out-of-state automobile at excessive speed, the liability insurer of the girl's mother could not escape liability under a policy which covered nonowned automobiles operated by "relatives" except as to vehicles "not regularly furnished for the use of such relative," merely because the girl had stolen the car and it was not voluntarily furnished to her. Sperling v Great American Indem. Co., 7 N.Y.2d 442, 199 N.Y.S.2d 465, 166 N.E.2d 482, 1960 N.Y. LEXIS 1399 (N.Y.), reh'g denied, 8 N.Y.2d 785, 1960 N.Y. LEXIS 1932 (N.Y. 1960).

In an insurer's declaratory judgment action, the insurer would not be required to defend and indemnify the insured in connection with a negligence action brought against the insured where the policy obligated the insurer with respect to accidents arising out of the ownership, maintenance, or use of an automobile, and where the injury had resulted from a fall in an icy parking lot. Lumbermen's Mut. Casualty Co. v Logan, 88 A.D.2d 971, 451 N.Y.S.2d 804, 1982 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 17345 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1982).

In an insured's action against his automobile insurance company for bad faith refusal to settle a liability claim within the policy limits, the insured's cause of action against the insurance company would not be dismissed where the insured had alleged that the insurance company first had offered the insured's deceased passenger's estate only $500 less than the $10,000 policy limit, that the insurance company then offered to settle for the policy limit on the condition that the deceased's parents furnish the company with information as to the assistance and payments that the deceased had furnished for the parents, and that the company had finally offered an unconditional settlement for the policy limit more than five months after the estate's initial demand. Reifenstein v Allstate Ins. Co., 92 A.D.2d 715, 461 N.Y.S.2d 104, 1983 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 17006 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1983).

Insurer of operator of vehicle, who was involved in accident while driving another person's vehicle because his own vehicle was not operational, was properly determined to be obligated to provide primary coverage in view of policy's inclusion of "temporary substitute" within definition of "covered auto" and fact that "other insurance" clause of policy was clearly intended to provide secondary or excess coverage in situations where insured was involved in accident while driving unowned vehicle other than one being used as "temporary substitute." Utica Mut. Ins. Co. v Preferred Mut. Ins. Co., 180 A.D.2d 195, 583 N.Y.S.2d 986, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7868 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1992).

Insurer of owner of vehicle which, at time of accident, was being driven by another whose policy provided primary coverage for vehicle as "temporary substitute," was likewise obligated to provide primary coverage as primary insurer of accident vehicle specifically named in policy; concurrent coverage was established since each carrier was providing coverage of same interest and against same risk. Utica Mut. Ins. Co. v Preferred Mut. Ins. Co., 180 A.D.2d 195, 583 N.Y.S.2d 986, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7868 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1992).

Insurance company would be required to defend and indemnify driver and his father in underlying action arising from motor vehicle accident which occurred when driver was operating automobile that had been left with his family by his uncle, notwithstanding exclusion with regard to any nonowned vehicle furnished or available for regular use of family member, where (1) driver and his father testified that driver used automobile about 5 times over 6-week period and that, on each occasion, it was necessary for driver to obtain permission of father before he was given keys to automobile, and (2) automobile belonged to uncle who lived in Florida, and it was left with family for repairs. New York Cent. Mut. Fire Ins. Co. v Jennings, 195 A.D.2d 541, 600 N.Y.S.2d 486, 1993 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7406 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1993).

Assault on infant while passenger on school bus did not come within coverage of defendant's policy, which extended only to bodily injury "caused by an accident." Calvert Ins. Co. v CIGNA Ins. Co., 239 A.D.2d 243, 658 N.Y.S.2d 12, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5201 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1997).

Insurer was entitled to summary judgment declaring that it was not obligated to defend or indemnify driver of car involved in accident, even though driver claimed that she was authorized driver of "non owned" car under insurance policies issued to her parents, where certificate of title and "Vehicle Registration/Title Application" showed that ownership of subject car was transferred to driver in 1993, and there was no evidence of later transfer. Westchester Fire Ins. Co. v Canceleno, 245 A.D.2d 286, 664 N.Y.S.2d 829, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12088 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1997), app. denied, 92 N.Y.2d 801, 677 N.Y.S.2d 71, 699 N.E.2d 431, 1998 N.Y. LEXIS 1443 (N.Y. 1998).

Plaintiff insurer was properly granted summary judgment declaring that defendant insurer had issued farmowner's insurance policy under which it must cover liability of defendant's insured and his employee arising out of ownership, use, and operation of pick-up truck that was involved in accident with vehicle driven by plaintiff's insured where truck was properly registered as farm vehicle under CLS Veh & Tr § 401(13), was used exclusively for farm purposes, and, at time of accident, was traveling along most direct route between 2 farms operated by insured; moreover, under policy, highway where accident occurred was part of "insured premises." Nationwide Mut. Ins. Co. v Erie & Niagara Ins. Ass'n, 249 A.D.2d 898, 672 N.Y.S.2d 596, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4977 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1998).

Insurer was precluded by a default judgment from litigating whether it provided coverage to an offending vehicle pursuant to N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(a)(2) to recover the amount of an unsatisfied judgment entered against the owner and operator of the offending vehicle. Gaston v American Tr. Ins. Both Vehicle and Traffic Law § 388 and Insurance Law former § 167, subd 2 [now § 3420(e)] require coverage of the owner only, and not of the user with permission of the named insured. Neither statute mandates nor projects coverage of users with permission into policies issued to owners. Hiscock v Kuinlan, 62 Misc. 2d 842, 310 N.Y.S.2d 331, 1970 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1741 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1970).

In an action by an insurer seeking a declaratory judgment concerning its obligations under an automobile insurance policy, the insurer would not be obligated with respect to an accident that occurred two days after an automobile that was equipped with transporter plates had been given by the insured to another person for delivery to a nearby body shop, where the policy had provided for coverage for automobiles that were not owned by the named insured only while the automobiles were operated with transporter plates for the purpose of delivery, and where the automobile had not been operated for the purpose of delivery at the time of the accident. Interboro Mut. Indem. Ins. Co. v Karpowic, 116 Misc. 2d 947, 456 N.Y.S.2d 967, 1982 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3983 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1982).

In a declaratory judgment action by a motorist injured in an automobile accident against her insurer to determine the insurer's obligation under an underinsured motorist endorsement in plaintiff's policy, the amount payable on the policy would be the limits of the policy reduced by the payment from the underinsured motorist, where plaintiff carried liability coverage of $100,000, and where the value of the accident would probably far exceed the $10,000 liability policy limits offered in settlement by the insurer of the other vehicle. Further, plaintiff would be entitled to such judgment before trial, where the underinsured endorsement was not applicable if plaintiff made any settlement without the insurer's consent, and where the prejudice to plaintiff in having to proceed to trial without judicial construction of the endorsement's provision reducing the amount payable under the endorsement by all sums paid on behalf of the underinsured vehicle would overcome arguments of prematurity. Gull v General Accident Fire & Life Assurance Corp., 121 Misc. 2d 721, 469 N.Y.S.2d 1004, 1983 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3990 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1983).

Provision in automobile liability insurance policy which excluded from coverage anyone driving covered vehicle "while employed or otherwise engaged in the business or occupation of parking" was valid, and permitted insurer to refuse to defend parking attendant who allegedly struck plaintiff while parking her car; CLS Veh & Tr § 345 does not require coverage of permissive drivers as additional insureds. Strizik v Home Indem. Co., 137 Misc. 2d 12, 519 N.Y.S.2d 600, 1987 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2576 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1987).

In action arising out of accident which occurred while repossessed automobile was being transported, garage liability policy of entity performing repossession and business automobile policy of secured party directing repossession would each be construed to provide primary insurance, and proportionate share provisions of each policy would be applied. Hartford Ins. Co. v Nationwide Mut. Ins. Co., 143 Misc. 2d 897, 542 N.Y.S.2d 920, 1989 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 368 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1989).

Insurance company would be required to defend and indemnify owner of motor vehicle in regard to action arising from motor vehicle accident, although accident occurred on day before owner registered and obtained plates for vehicle, since (1) owner filed application for insurance coverage with New York Automobile Insurance Plan and application was assigned to, and accepted by, insurance company about 3 weeks prior to accident, and (2) vehicle was "for hire," and therefore provision of Plan, which provided that insurance coverage is ineffective until vehicle is registered, did not apply. Eagle Ins. Co. v Barraeau, 150 Misc. 2d 831, 569 N.Y.S.2d 1019, 1991 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 264 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1991).

Plaintiff, issuer of automobile liability insurance policy covering individual van operator in which defendant motor carrier, which authorized van owner to operate route under lease agreement, was named as additional insured, was obligated to provide coverage to carrier for accident involving van not specified in policy since plaintiff, having issued requisite Form E Uniform Motor Carrier Bodily Injury and Property Damage Liability Certificate of Insurance to Department of Transportation, certifying that it had issued policy to carrier, undertook risk of insuring every vehicle operated under carrier's certificate of public convenience and necessity. American Nat'l Fire Ins. Co. v Levy, 156 Misc. 2d 608, 594 N.Y.S.2d 118, 1992 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 618 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1992).

In action to determine insurance coverage of family automobile operated by owner's son while employed as pizza deliveryman, insurance company which insured automobile could not disclaim on basis of provision of policy which excluded coverage for "any vehicle while being used to carry persons or property for a fee," although deliveryman was paid (in addition to hourly wage) 50 cents per delivery for gas and related costs and sometimes received tips for deliveries, since exclusion, which was authorized by 11 NYCRR § 60-1.2(a), only extended to automobile used without limitation to convey general public. American Motorists Ins. Co. v Travelers Ins. Co., 158 Misc. 2d 257, 604 N.Y.S.2d 475, 1993 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 562 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1993).

Supreme court's decision that granted a permanent stay of arbitration to the underinsured motorist insurer was reversed because the driver's action of hitting a utility pole was the proximate cause of respondent's injuries sustained while respondent was attempting to run away from wires falling from the damaged pole and respondent was thus covered under the provisions of the policy provided by the insurer. Farm Family Cas. Ins. Co. v Trapani, 301 A.D.2d 740, 753 N.Y.S.2d 198, 2003 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2003).

In order for coverage under automobile insurance policy to apply to person being transported by ambulance who is injured prior to boarding or after removal from ambulance, injury must be result of act or omission related to use or operation of ambulance. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 05-01-13.

If licensed driver has permission from insured owner to operate motor vehicle in New York, insurance policy for vehicle would provide coverage in event that its operator is involved in accident. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 08-02-02.

Insurer may charge additional premium (including retroactively on personal lines automobile insurance policy) to cover licensed driver in household who should have been, but was not, listed on policy as named operator. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 08-02-02.

55. —Accident after owner transferred vehicle

In consolidated declaratory judgment actions brought by two insurers to determine coverage for an underlying personal injury action arising out of an accident involving a tanker truck, in which action a verdict was returned against both the purchaser and the seller of the truck, and the seller had judgment over against the purchaser, the tanker was, at the time of the accident, an owned automobile covered by a business automobile policy issued to the purchaser, where the policy provided liability insurance for any auto and the annexed "Schedule of Covered Autos You Own" listed the tanker, among others; the policy protected the seller as well, where its definition of "insured" included the statement that, "Anyone liable for the conduct of an insured described above is an insured but only to the extent of that liability;" moreover, it was of no consequence that the policy excluded liability assumed under any contract, since the seller's judgment over against the purchaser was based not only on the hold-harmless agreement between them, but also on the seller's common-law right to indemnification, which depended not on contract but on the fact that the seller had been held vicariously liable for the negligence of the purchaser; because the policy stated that, "For any covered auto you own this policy provides primary insurance," there could be no question that its coverage was primary. The seller's insurer, whose comprehensive liability policy covered no more than the liability of its insured, was not obligated to provide coverage for the accident, which occurred while the tanker was being operated by one of the purchasers subsequent to the execution of sale and security agreements and a promissory note, since it is only when the policy by its terms covers the operator as an insured that the insurer of a vehicle's former owner will be liable to pay a judgment obtained against an operator-transferee after execution of a bill of sale or similar document, since by its terms the policy excluded as an insured "the owner of a non-owned automobile," and since the sale and security agreements and note, which were executed 22 days prior to the accident, left no question that at the time of the accident the tanker was not owned by the seller within the meaning of the policy, notwithstanding that it still carried plates issued to the seller. Dairylea Cooperative, Inc. v Rossal, 64 N.Y.2d 1, 483 N.Y.S.2d 1001, 473 N.E.2d 251, 1984 N.Y. LEXIS 4754 (N.Y. 1984).

The statutory requirement imposed by former § 167 [now § 3420] that automobile liability insurance policies extend protection to car owners against liability for negligent operation of the insured vehicle in the insured's business or with his consent does not extend existing liability insurance coverage of a car owner after he has parted with title to and control over the vehicle, by sale or gift, and the car is being operated by, or with the consent of, the new owner, unless the policy specifically covers such a situation. Mason v Allstate Ins. Co., 12 A.D.2d 138, 209 N.Y.S.2d 104, 1960 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6284 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1960).

The original insured in a motor vehicle liability policy was entitled to a declaratory judgment requiring his insurer to defend an action against him and his brother, who was operating the car at the time of an accident with the insured's consent, notwithstanding title to the vehicle had been transferred by insured to a corporation which was operating a camp for pupils of the institution at which both brothers were teaching, and insured had transferred title to the vehicle to the corporation without notifying or obtaining consent of the insurer, insured still retaining possession and control of the vehicle notwithstanding the transfer by way of gift. Tyrnauer v Travelers Ins. Co., 15 A.D.2d 293, 223 N.Y.S.2d 151, 1961 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6804 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1961), aff'd, 13 N.Y.2d 613, 240 N.Y.S.2d 603, 191 N.E.2d 89, 1963 N.Y. LEXIS 1222 (N.Y. 1963).

The emphasis on liability coverage, not only as written in a policy but as mandated by statute, under subd. 2 of former § 167 [now § 3420(e)], relates to more than nominal ownership and continues as long as an insured owner continues to have possession and control of the car, and an interest therein, notwithstanding transfer of title to another. Tyrnauer v Travelers Ins. Co., 15 A.D.2d 293, 223 N.Y.S.2d 151, 1961 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6804 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1961), aff'd, 13 N.Y.2d 613, 240 N.Y.S.2d 603, 191 N.E.2d 89, 1963 N.Y. LEXIS 1222 (N.Y. 1963).

Where insureds fail to remove license plates from automobile when they sold automobile and in fact consented to buyer's use of them, they were estopped to deny ownership and thereby escape liability for damages resulting from accident in which buyer became involved; however, where insurer was neither aware of nor consented to transfer and policy neither permitted nor contemplated coverage under such circumstances, estoppel did not prevent insurer from disclaiming liability. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. v Elgot, 48 A.D.2d 362, 369 N.Y.S.2d 719, 1975 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9893 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1975).

Insurance company was not insurer of automobile that was being driven without permission or authority when it was involved in accident with claimant on April 2, 1984, since insured had signed and tendered certificate of title to buyer on March 31, 1984 without notifying company, notwithstanding that insured's license plates had not been removed; thus, court erred in ordering company to defend and indemnify insured and driver of automobile and in ordering stay of arbitration demanded by claimant under uninsured motorist endorsement of policy issued by her insurer. Feliciano v Hanover Ins. Co., 140 A.D.2d 607, 528 N.Y.S.2d 653, 1988 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5693 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1988).

Plaintiff was not insured under motor vehicle insurance policy issued by defendant insurer to former owner since coverage under that policy terminated when former owner transferred automobile to plaintiff. Warzinski v Travelers Ins. Co., 182 A.D.2d 1125, 583 N.Y.S.2d 94, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7017 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't), app. denied, 80 N.Y.2d 760, 591 N.Y.S.2d 138, 605 N.E.2d 874, 1992 N.Y. LEXIS 3863 (N.Y. 1992).

For purposes of determining whether insurance policy issued to former owner of car was in effect on date of accident when car was still registered to him, record supported conclusion that title of car was transferred to purchaser 2 days prior to accident when he paid most of purchase price to former owner's brother, received bill of sale and certificate of title executed by former owner, and took possession of car from which license plates had been removed. Potter v Keefe, 261 A.D.2d 864, 690 N.Y.S.2d 361, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4898 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1999).

Failure of insurer to notify Department of Motor Vehicles pursuant to CLS Veh & Tr § 313 that insured substituted one vehicle for another under same policy did not render ineffective insurer's deletion of originally insured vehicle from policy, since notification requirement of § 313 applies only to termination or cancellation of policy itself. Huertas v Pino, 143 Misc. 2d 776, 542 N.Y.S.2d 484, 1989 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 297 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1989).

56. —Driver of stolen vehicle

Automobile insurer, whose omnibus clause extended coverage to named insured or to "any person operating or using * * the vehicle with the permission, express or implied, of the named insured," had no duty to defend driver who admittedly had stolen insured vehicle before driver was involved in accident while driving insured vehicle. Robb v Royal Globe Ins. Co., 48 A.D.2d 935, 369 N.Y.S.2d 809, 1975 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10227 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1975).

Where it appeared that underlying personal injury and property damage actions had been tried, and that jury returned verdict in favor of owner of insured vehicle which absolved him of liability, finding was therefore negated that insured had given driver, who admittedly stole insured vehicle, permission and consent to use the vehicle, so as to require insurer to defend driver under omnibus clause which extended policy's coverage to the named insured or to any person operating or using the vehicle with permission of named insured. Robb v Royal Globe Ins. Co., 48 A.D.2d 935, 369 N.Y.S.2d 809, 1975 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10227 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1975).

An insurer was not liable for injuries arising out of an automobile accident between plaintiffs and a thief who had stolen its insured's vehicle, notwithstanding its failure to send plaintiffs a denial of coverage or disclaimer of liability after receiving notice of their action, against the thief and others in which they had alleged that the thief had operated the vehicle wth the owner's consent in spite of their knowledge that the thief had been convicted of grand larceny as a result of his theft of the vehicle, where the policy expressly excluded all coverage while the vehicle was operated or used without permission, express or implied, of the owner, where Ins L § 167(8) [now § 3420] did not require written notice of disclaimer of liability or denial of coverage when no coverage for the person involved in the accident had ever existed under the policy, and where plaintiffs were aware from the inception that the vehicle had been stolen and was being operated by the thief. Katz v Allstate Ins. Co., 96 A.D.2d 930, 466 N.Y.S.2d 376, 1983 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 19567 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1983), app. denied, 61 N.Y.2d 608, 1984 N.Y. LEXIS 7198 (N.Y. 1984).

Entitlement exclusion of automobile liability policy that excluded coverage to "any person...using a vehicle without a reasonable belief that that person is entitled to do so" excluded liability coverage for "family member" who used vehicle without permission, and thus insurance carrier was entitled to summary judgment declaring that it had no obligation to defend and indemnify insureds' son, who broke into his parents' house while they were away on vacation, searched for keys which had been hidden, and took covered vehicle against his parents' express wishes; court would overrule its prior decision in Paychex, Inc. v Covenant Ins. Co., 156 AD2d 936. Hartford Ins. Co. v Halt, 223 A.D.2d 204, 646 N.Y.S.2d 589, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9006 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1996), app. denied, 89 N.Y.2d 813, 658 N.Y.S.2d 243, 680 N.E.2d 617, 1997 N.Y. LEXIS 487 (N.Y. 1997).

Disclaimer was required when a denial of coverage was based on a policy exclusion without which the claim would have been covered and failure to comply with N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(d) precluded the denial of coverage based on a policy exclusion; since policy provisions were in the nature of exclusions, where insured was driving a vehicle without the owner's permission at the time of the accident, the insurer's failure to give notice of disclaimer that the vehicle was not covered precluded it from denying coverage based on that exclusion. Miceli v State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co., 306 A.D.2d 903, 762 N.Y.S.2d 199, 2003 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6776 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 2003), rev'd, 3 N.Y.3d 725, 786 N.Y.S.2d 379, 819 N.E.2d 995, 2004 N.Y. LEXIS 2444 (N.Y. 2004).

Order denying petition to stay arbitration was affirmed, as insurer could not avoid its obligation to provide the mandatory coverage required by N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(f)(1) by relying on definitions in the supplementary uninsured motorist (SUM) endorsement, as that provided the terms and conditions governing the SUM coverage required by § 3420(f)(2), not the basic uninsured motorist coverage required by § 3420(f)(1). Matter of Hartford Acc. & Indem. Co. v Dellegrazie, 2021 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 321 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2021).

57. —Driver under legal age limit

The provision of former § 167 [now § 3420] that every policy of automobile liability insurance shall insure the owner against liability for death or injury to person or property resulting from the negligent operation of his car by another person, while legally using or operating same with his permission, does not prevent a limitation of coverage and coverage may be limited by a provision for the exclusion from liability for an accident occurring while the car was being operated by person "under age limit fixed by law." Operator being under that age, the policy did not cover. Taylor v United States Casualty Co., 269 N.Y. 360, 199 N.E. 620, 269 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 360, 1936 N.Y. LEXIS 1396 (N.Y.), reh'g denied, 270 N.Y. 611, 1 N.E.2d 354, 270 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 611, 1936 N.Y. LEXIS 1658 (N.Y. 1936).

Former § 109 [predecessor to former § 167, now § 3420] does not prohibit an insurer from limiting its coverage and excluding its liability under a policy, where the person driving with owner's consent is under age and driving illegally. Devitt v Continental Casualty Co., 269 N.Y. 474, 199 N.E. 765, 269 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 474, 1936 N.Y. LEXIS 1413 (N.Y. 1936).

Former § 167 [now § 3420] does not prevent a limitation of coverage and coverage may be limited by a provision for the exclusion from liability for an accident occurring while the car was being operated by a person "under the age limit fixed by law." The operator being under that age, the policy did not cover. Devitt v Continental Casualty Co., 269 N.Y. 474, 199 N.E. 765, 269 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 474, 1936 N.Y. LEXIS 1413 (N.Y. 1936).

A junior licensee operating a car with the knowledge and consent of the owner was not a person under the age fixed by law as a prerequisite of the operation of automobiles within the meaning of former § 167 [now § 167, now § 3420]. Smith v American Auto. Fire Ins. Co., 274 N.Y. 626, 10 N.E.2d 583, 274 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 626, 1937 N.Y. LEXIS 1009 (N.Y.), reh'g denied, 275 N.Y. 532, 11 N.E.2d 734, 275 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 532, 1937 N.Y. LEXIS 1505 (N.Y. 1937).

An action may not properly be maintained by an aggrieved third party against the automobile liability insurance carrier, pursuant to former § 109 [predecessor to former § 167, now § 3420], on the unsatisfied judgment recovered against the assured not compelled by law to carry insurance, where the injury resulted from collision with an automobile driven by the assured's unlicensed sixteen-year-old son, and policy provided that insurer should not be liable for a loss occurring while the automobile was being operated by a person "under the age fixed by law for drivers of automobiles." Letson v Sun Indem. Co., 264 N.Y.S. 519, 147 Misc. 690, 1933 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1169 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1933), aff'd, 241 A.D. 629, 269 N.Y.S. 965, 1934 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8479 (N.Y. App. Div. 1934).

The provision in a policy excluding defendant insurer from liability where the automobile is driven "by any person under age fixed by law" is not in violation of former § 109 [predecessor to former § 167, now § 3420]. Taylor v United States Casualty Co., 281 N.Y.S. 361, 156 Misc. 607, 1935 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1309 (N.Y. Sup. Ct.), aff'd, 245 A.D. 800, 281 N.Y.S. 705, 1935 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10940 (N.Y. App. Div. 1935).

In actions under this section to recover from an insurer the amount of certain judgments recovered against insured operation of automobile, at the time of the accident, by one who was over the age of fourteen years but under the age of eighteen years, who was the holder of a junior operator's license, but was concededly operating the car in violation of the terms and restrictions of such license, is not excluded from coverage of the policy although it provides that policy does not apply while the automobile is operated by any person "in violation of a State, Federal or Provincial law as to age applicable to such person." Dibble v Travelers Ins. Co., 298 N.Y.S. 48, 163 Misc. 540, 1937 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1442 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1937).

Liability policy on insured's all-terrain vehicle, covering claims based on "ownership, maintenance or use" of vehicle, provided coverage for claim based on insured's negligent entrustment of vehicle to 16-year-old who was thereby injured since (1) any claim for injury sustained by person operating vehicle was clearly covered by plain language of policy, and (2) any ambiguity as to whether claim for negligent entrustment fell within policy language would be resolved against insurer. Progressive Casualty Ins. Co. v Jackson, 151 Misc. 2d 479, 573 N.Y.S.2d 556, 1991 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 419 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1991), aff'd, 181 A.D.2d 1035, 585

N.Y.S.2d 716, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4635 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1992).

58. —Leased vehicle

The exclusion of guest coverage in an insurance policy provided by a corporation renting motor vehicles did not violate subdivision 2 of former section 167 [now § 3420(f)] of the Insurance Law where a van was rented in New York by a New York resident who was to deliver the van three days later to the lessor in Maine, inasmuch as the mandatory provisions of subdivision 2 of former section 167 [now § 3420(f)], one of which required coverage for injuries suffered by a passenger in the vehicle (Vehicle and Traffic Law, § 311; 11 NYCRR 60.1), are applicable only to policies issued on vehicles principally garaged or used in this State and the vehicle in question was registered in Massachusetts and was only temporarily in New York. Travelers Indem. Co. v Ryder Truck Rental, Inc., 47 N.Y.2d 139, 417 N.Y.S.2d 53, 390 N.E.2d 771, 1979 N.Y. LEXIS 1992 (N.Y. 1979).

Excess and primary carriers of insurance purchased by owner of leased van could recover against lessee's comprehensive insurance carrier, on ground that lessee's comprehensive carrier was primary co-insurer of van, where business auto portion of comprehensive policy did not contain "additional insured" clause but contained specific change endorsement that made "Hired and Non-Owned Coverage" applicable in New York. Jefferson Ins. Co. v Travelers Indem. Co., 92 N.Y.2d 363, 681 N.Y.S.2d 208, 703 N.E.2d 1221, 1998 N.Y. LEXIS 3664 (N.Y. 1998).

Non-trucking-use exclusion referring to lessee's contractual obligation to obtain business coverage, but not expressly providing that exclusion was only operative if lessee had business use liability coverage in effect for accident in question, was not valid because lessee's contractual obligation might be insufficient to provide coverage if lessee breached contract by not having insurance in effect at time of accident. Royal Indem. Co. v Providence Wash. Ins. Co., 92 N.Y.2d 653, 684 N.Y.S.2d 470, 707 N.E.2d 425, 1998 N.Y. LEXIS 4141 (N.Y. 1998).

After disregarding truck lessor's invalid insurance policy provision excluding coverage for liability when truck was being used in business of any person to whom it was rented, since lessor's policy was self-denominated as primary insurance and lessee's policy was denominated as excess, lessor's insurer was liable for full amount of stipulated damages resulting from operation of leased truck. Randazzo v Cunningham, 56 A.D.2d 702, 392 N.Y.S.2d 740, 1977 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10864 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1977), aff'd, 43 N.Y.2d 937, 403 N.Y.S.2d 894, 374 N.E.2d 1245, 1978 N.Y. LEXIS 1833 (N.Y. 1978).

In a declaratory judgment action to determine the respective rights of insurers under their policies, summary judgment would be granted directing each insurer to contribute in proportion to its limit amount of insurance in order to pay that portion of a settlement that remained unsatisfied where the insured vehicle had struck an infant pedestrian, where one insurer had issued its policy to the lessee of the vehicle, where the other insurer had issued its policy to the lessor, and where the excess coverage clauses of both policies had cancelled out each other inasmuch as each policy purported to have been excess to the other. Jefferson Ins. Co. v Glens Falls Ins. Co., 88 A.D.2d 925, 450 N.Y.S.2d 888, 1982 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 17268 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1982).

Step-down provision in automobile insurance policy, which provided specific amount of over-all coverage to owner-lessor of automobile andprovided that coverage to lessee was subject to any limit of liability contained in lease agreement, was valid even though provision created 2-tiered coverage since no statute or rule prohibited such coverage. Liberty Mut. Ins. Co. v Aetna Casualty & Surety Co., 168 A.D.2d 121, 571 N.Y.S.2d 735, 1991 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8047 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1991).

In declaratory judgment action to determine obligations of various insurance companies with regard to underlying personal injury action, first layer of insurance available to satisfy judgment was $100,000 of policy issued to vicariously liable owner-lessor of vehicle at fault, but remainder of $1 million policy was excess to policy issued to lessee-employer of operator of vehicle at fault where owner-lessor's policy contained step-down provision whereby lessee of vehicle was subject to $100,000 limit of liability contained in lease agreement. Liberty Mut. Ins. Co. v Aetna Casualty & Surety Co., 168 A.D.2d 121, 571 N.Y.S.2d 735, 1991 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8047 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1991).

In personal injury action brought by pedestrian who was struck by truck owned by rental company, which was leased to trucking company and driven by employee of trucking company pursuant to trucking service contract between trucking company and motion picture company, insurance policies of rental company and trucking company were primary policies; insurance policy of motion picture company was only excess policy, as motion picture company did not hire truck. Federal Ins. Co. v Ryder Truck Rental, 189 A.D.2d 582, 592 N.Y.S.2d 38, 1993 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 64 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1993), aff'd, 82 N.Y.2d 909, 609 N.Y.S.2d 173, 631 N.E.2d 115, 1994 N.Y. LEXIS 2 (N.Y. 1994).

Term "same limits," within provision of automobile liability insurance policy stating that "where the law extends coverage to a non-permitted driver, the same limits shall apply," was sufficiently ambiguous to bar insurer from denying coverage within limits of "additional liability insurance" for accident involving injuries to passengers in rental car where limits of liability were raised by purchase of additional liability insurance, and paragraph entitled "additional liability insurance" stated that those limits applied "instead of the limits in the preceding paragraph on liability insurance." Ozturk v Taskiran, 245 A.D.2d 355, 665 N.Y.S.2d 420, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12777 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1997).

Defendant was not primary insurer of rental car which its insured had used while his van, which was policy's designated vehicle, was being repaired, and it was therefore not obligated to indemnify rental agency for liability arising from accident which occurred while insured's friend was driving rental car, where insured had loaned rental car to his friend after his van was repaired, thereby indicating his intention to resume regular use of his van, at which point "temporary substitute" provision of policy issued by defendant ceased to serve its purpose and coverage for insured's van was restored. ELRAC, Inc. v Mehlinger, 258 A.D.2d 500, 684 N.Y.S.2d 625, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1038 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1999).

Six-wheeled box truck with load capacity in excess of 2,000 pounds and separate storage area was not "private passenger auto" as defined by motor vehicle insurance policy issued to defendant lessee by third-party defendant insurer, and thus insurer was entitled to summary judgment declaring that it was not obligated to defend or indemnify plaintiff lessor in underlying negligence action pursuant to lessee-insured's agreement to indemnify lessor for losses above required statutory limit. Gardner v Ryder Truck Rental, Inc., 261 A.D.2d 505, 690 N.Y.S.2d 614, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5427 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1999), overruled in part, Reyes v Diamond State Ins. Co., 35 A.D.3d 830, 827 N.Y.S.2d 263, 2006 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 15887 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2006).

The fact that the driver of a leased automobile was under age, in violation of the lease agreement does not necessarily relieve the lessor of responsibility for payment of damages to the driver and lessee measured in part by such judgment as the injured parties might obtain where there was an alleged breach of an insurance clause requiring lessor to obtain a standard policy of insurance protecting the lessee. Location Auto Leasing Corp. v Lembo Corp., 62 Misc. 2d 856, 310 N.Y.S.2d 365, 1970 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1689 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1970).

Automobile liability policy issued by petitioner insurer, which provided coverage for vehicle rented when insured's vehicle was stolen, was not excess over insurance purchased pursuant to rental agreement, where petitioner committed itself to liability coverage for insured's stolen vehicle and any rental replacement of it, and rental agreement was tailored to save renter cost of duplicating extant coverage by not providing liability coverage. Allstate Ins. Co. v Mark, 156 Misc. 2d 188, 592 N.Y.S.2d 212, 1992 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 559 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1992).

CLS Ins § 3420 deals with what must be provided in automobile liability insurance policies and does not require that rented vehicle already insured through lessee's own policy also be insured through lessor. Allstate Ins. Co. v Mark, 156 Misc. 2d 188, 592 N.Y.S.2d 212, 1992 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 559 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1992).

Truck lessee's liability insurance did not cover accident occurring when lessor dispatched truck from terminal for purpose of transporting goods for third party, as truck was not operating in furtherance of lessee's business when accident occurred where lessor failed to obtain lessee's authorization or consent to sublease truck to third party, thereby placing use of truck outside scope of agency relationship. R. E. Turner, Inc. v Connecticut Indem. Co., 925 F. Supp. 139, 1996 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 6647 (W.D.N.Y. 1996).

Exclusion in "bobtail" policy which (under facts of case) operated to defeat coverage because subleasing carrier's insurers refused to extend coverage, thereby creating "gap" in coverage for legal liability accruing to owner under CLS Veh & Tr § 388, was invalid given potential disclaimer of coverage by third party sublessor whose load truck was going to pick up at time of accident. R. E. Turner, Inc. v Connecticut Indem. Co., 925 F. Supp. 139, 1996 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 6647 (W.D.N.Y. 1996).

59. — —Operation with lessee's permission

Under the doctrine of constructive consent, lessor's insurer could not disclaim coverage on basis that lessee had breached provision of car rental agreement that lessee would not surrender use of car to another without obtaining lessor's consent. Motor Vehicle Accident Indemnification Corp. v Cont'l Nat'l Am. Group Co., 35 N.Y.2d 260, 360 N.Y.S.2d 859, 319 N.E.2d 182, 1974 N.Y. LEXIS 1294 (N.Y. 1974).

While an automobile lessor, as a self-insurer, would not without more be liable for injuries sustained by lessee in accident caused by negligence of friend who, with lessee's permission, was driving at time of accident, the lessor was liable because of rental agreement's additional provision that any self-insurance would be subject to same terms as prior liability policy, which included a provision insuring named insured against damages occasioned by negligence of persons operating the vehicle with is consent; moreover, the lessor was not relieved of liability because of lessee's apparent violation of rental agreement prohibition against others operating the vehicle, since a prior civil court finding that lessor gave lessee permission to allow underage friends to operate the vehicle was binding. Guercio v Hertz Corp., 40 N.Y.2d 680, 389 N.Y.S.2d 568, 358 N.E.2d 261, 1976 N.Y. LEXIS 3087 (N.Y. 1976).

It was error to dismiss an administrator's N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420 claims against a contractor's insurer on the ground the contractor could not grant the owner of a relevant vehicle permission to use the vehicle because, under industry practice, public policy, and the insurance policy, permission in the context of motor vehicle liability insurance turned not on whether a driver had permission to use the vehicle for the particular activity at issue, but on whether the driver had permission to use the vehicle at all. Carlson v American Intl. Group, Inc., 30 N.Y.3d 288, 89 N.E.3d 490, 67 N.Y.S.3d 100, 2017 N.Y. LEXIS 3280 (N.Y. 2017).

Where lessee of automobile was injured in accident while riding with another person who was operating the vehicle with the actual permission of the lessor, and where, if lessor had secured standard policy of liability insurance, its insurer would have been financially responsible for the negligence of the driver, against whom the lessee had obtained a judgment which was unsatisfied, the lessor, in its status as a self-insurer, was required to satisfy the judgment within the limits of its self-insurance. Guercio v Hertz Corp., 50 A.D.2d 830, 377 N.Y.S.2d 103, 1975 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11685 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1975), aff'd, 40 N.Y.2d 680, 389 N.Y.S.2d 568, 358 N.E.2d 261, 1976 N.Y. LEXIS 3087 (N.Y. 1976).

An automobile lessor's insurer was liable on its policy for the defense of a lawsuit for personal injuries caused by a vehicle covered by its policy and leased to the operator of a day camp where, despite the operator's violation of the lease by allowing the vehicle to be driven by a 19-year-old counselor, on camp business, without a chauffeur's license, public policy prevented insurer's of automobile rental companies from availing themselves of a lessee's violation of a rental agreement for the purpose of escaping the duty to indemnify persons covered by the policy for liability for injuries to innocent third parties (see Veh & Tr Law §§ 128, 388; Ins Law [former] § 167[2], [2-a], now § 3420[e], [f]). Tom Sawyer Country Day School v Providence Washington Ins. Co., 108 A.D.2d 810, 485 N.Y.S.2d 126, 1985 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 43130 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't), app. denied, 65 N.Y.2d 608, 494 N.Y.S.2d 1028, 484 N.E.2d 671, 1985 N.Y. LEXIS 14577 (N.Y. 1985).

In action to determine which insurance company was responsible for second $500,000 of $1 million settlement in personal injury action, defendant, which was insurer of driver's employer, was entitled to summary judgment where (1) defendant insured employer for automobile liability to maximum of $500,000 and provided general liability policy that excluded automobile liability, and there was contractual liability endorsement that did not exclude automobile liability, (2) any liability of employer to leasing company which owned vehicle was obviated when leasing company waived its cross-claim against employer on settlement of personal injury action, and (3) settlement thus solely represented employer's liability to injured party, which did not arise from contract. Federal Ins. Co. v Michigan Mutual Ins. Co., 173 A.D.2d 387, 570 N.Y.S.2d 17, 1991 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7586 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1991).

Liability insurers of partnership could not be held liable for judgment arising from rental car accident in which driver of car was son of partner, although partner had used partnership credit card to rent car, since son's use of car was not for carrying on of business pursuant to CLS Partn law § 20, and policies covered only partnership's use of vehicle and liabilities imposed on partnership by law or contract. Lanera v Hertz Corp., 180 A.D.2d 667, 579 N.Y.S.2d 720, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1461 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1992).

Insurer was obligated to defend and indemnify insured in action brought against him by individual hired to transport insured's grader, who was injured in loading grader onto his trailer, since insured was "lessee or borrower" engaged in "moving property to or from a covered auto"—i.e., injured party's trailer —within meaning of applicable policy. Tarolli v Continental Casualty Co., 181 A.D.2d 1021, 581 N.Y.S.2d 510, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4621 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1992).

Insurance company was not liable for damages awarded in action by bicyclist for injuries sustained when he was struck by car where (1) insurance company insured employer of husband of motor vehicle operator, (2) husband leased motor vehicle and was reimbursed for cost of lease by his employer on submission of his credit card statement, (3) although husband listed employer's name on preprinted rental agreement as designated customer, rental agency looked to husband's credit for payment, (4) there was no evidence that employer knew that its name was listed on rental agreement or that husband had authority to list its name on rental agreement, and (5) agreement of employer to reimburse husband for lease was based on special circumstances pertaining to friendship between husband and employer, and fact that husband was dying of cancer. Liberty Mut. Ins. Co. v CNA Ins. Cos., 189 A.D.2d 1060, 593 N.Y.S.2d 92, 1993 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 786 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1993).

Plaintiff car rental agency was entitled to summary judgment directing defendant insurer to pay proportionate share of its litigation expenses in defending underlying personal injury action, where defendant's insured had rented van from plaintiff to transport her family members to family reunion and, although she informed plaintiff that she would not actually be traveling in van and she was not in van at time of accident, complained-of injuries arose out of her "use" of non-owned vehicle within meaning of policy issued by defendant in that she had agreed with her friend (who was sole authorized driver) and other passengers to use van for purpose for which it was rented. Hertz Corp. v GEICO, 250 A.D.2d 181, 683 N.Y.S.2d 483, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12917 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1998), app. denied, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5215 (N.Y. 60. —Vehicle operated by employee of owner

A policy of insurance under which the defendant agreed to pay all damages which assured, county, might become liable to pay through negligent operation of automobile mentioned in policy, and also agreed that "The insurance granted by the foregoing provisions shall apply to additional assured as follows: (a) any person while riding in any automobile described in said declarations or while operating any automobile described in said declarations with the permission of the assured," should be construed to cover the sheriff of the county for whose use the automobiles had been purchased and for whose protection the insurance was taken, and a judgment for the plaintiff in an action under former § 109 [predecessor to former § 167, now § 3420] is affirmed, where proof shows that the plaintiff had recovered in a prior action for personal injuries suffered in the automobile accident through the negligence of the sheriff of the county. Hammond v New York Casualty Co., 239 A.D. 627, 269 N.Y.S. 290, 1934 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10905 (N.Y. App. Div. 1934).

In an action brought under former § 109 [predecessor to former § 167, now § 3420], the terms and conditions of an omnibus coverage clause extending coverage afforded by the policy to named assured, "to any person . . . legally responsible for the operation of such automobiles, provided such use or operation is with the permission of the named Assured," were not changed or modified by rider attached to comply with requirements of former § 109 [predecessor to former § 167, now § 3420], and Vehicle and Traffic Law, § 59, which extends the policy to protect named assured "against liability and responsibility for damages resulting from negligence in the operation of such motor vehicle . . ., in the business of such owner or otherwise, by any person legally using or operating the same with the permission, express or implied, of such owner." The clauses insure the operator of a vehicle only when he is lawfully using the vehicle in the business of the owner municipality or with the municipality's permission, express or implied. Fox v Employers' Liability Assurance Corp., 243 A.D. 325, 276 N.Y.S. 917, 1935 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7062 (N.Y. App. Div.), aff'd, 267 N.Y. 609, 196 N.E. 604, 267 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 609, 1935 N.Y. LEXIS 1331 (N.Y. 1935).

The implied consent to use of an automobile for individual purposes, binding on municipality, cannot be spelled out from the fact that the employer's superior knew the employee was using the automobile as if it were individual property, and that he failed to protest, and that the chief of the fire department and other municipal employees also had knowledge of such use. Fox v Employers' Liability Assurance Corp., 243 A.D. 325, 276 N.Y.S. 917, 1935 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7062 (N.Y. App. Div.), aff'd, 267 N.Y. 609, 196 N.E. 604, 267 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 609, 1935 N.Y. LEXIS 1331 (N.Y. 1935).

In an action under former § 109 [predecessor to former § 167, now § 3420], a defendant insurance company may not be held liable on the theory that an automobile was being employed in the business of the municipality at the time of the collision because while at a resort an employee saw the owner of the apartment house concerning a complaint relating to the absence of lights in the hall of his building. Fox v Employers' Liability Assurance Corp., 243 A.D. 325, 276 N.Y.S. 917, 1935 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7062 (N.Y. App. Div.), aff'd, 267 N.Y. 609, 196 N.E. 604, 267 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 609, 1935 N.Y. LEXIS 1331 (N.Y. 1935).

Former § 109 [predecessor to former § 167, now § 3420] does not provide coverage to an employee or permittee of the owner of an automobile. Kuhn v Auto Cab Mut. Indem. Co., 244 A.D. 272, 279 N.Y.S. 60, 1935 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5806 (N.Y. App. Div. 1935), aff'd, 270 N.Y. 587, 1 N.E.2d 343, 270 N.Y. (N.Y.S.) 587, 1936 N.Y. LEXIS 1643 (N.Y. 1936).

An insurer is not liable for personal injuries suffered when the plaintiff was struck by a truck operated by insured's employees while engaged in removing snow from a county highway, where the policy covered the truck when in "commercial use . . . usual to business" of insured, which was described in policy as that of "sand and gravel dealer." Euto v (American) Lumbermens Mut. Casualty Co., 247 A.D. 613, 288 N.Y.S. 232 (1936).

Comprehensive automobile liability insurance policy issued to company did not cover liability arising out of woman's accident while driving her father's car while engaged in company's business, since policy excluded coverage for employees. Mead v Fidelity & Casualty Co., 155 A.D.2d 896, 547 N.Y.S.2d 491, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 14732 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1989).

In declaratory judgment action to determine obligations of various insurance companies with regard to underlying personal injury action, summary judgment was not available to determine that operator of motor vehicle at fault was operating vehicle in course of her employment where (1) operator averred in affidavit that accident occurred while she was employed by store but did not specifically aver that she was operating vehicle in course of employment at time of accident, (2) operator also averred that accident occurred immediately after leaving shopping plaza where she had been conducting comparison shopping for her employer, but "immediately" was ambiguous and did not make clear exact amount of time between comparison shopping and accident, (3) operator did not reveal whether her employment was exclusive, or even principal, reason for trip toshopping center, and (4) evidence existed to show that vehicle was not generally used in course of employment and was used as second family car by operator, who was wife of principal officer of store. Liberty Mut. Ins. Co. v Aetna Casualty & Surety Co., 168 A.D.2d 121, 571 N.Y.S.2d 735, 1991 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8047 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1991).

61. —Poicy cancelled

Misrepresentation made by insured as to her true address did not render automobile insurance policy void ab initio; cancellation of automobile insurance policy may be prospective only. Interboro Mut. Indem. Ins. Co. v Cermak, 187 A.D.2d 513, 590 N.Y.S.2d 746, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12698 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1992).

Motorcycle insurance policy remained in force as of date of accident where insurance company failed to comply with strict statutory notice of termination requirements set forth in CLS Veh & Tr § 313(1)(a), even though insured permitted his registration to lapse prior to date of accident. Public Serv. Mut. Ins. Co. v Foley, 190 A.D.2d 800, 593 N.Y.S.2d 847, 1993 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1527 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't), app. dismissed, 82 N.Y.2d 712, 602 N.Y.S.2d 808, 622 N.E.2d 309, 1993 N.Y. LEXIS 5264 (N.Y. 1993).

While New York's compulsory automobile insurance laws provide only for prospective cancellation of automobile insurance policies, thus abrogating insurer's common-law right to void policy from its inception on ground that it was obtained through fraud or misrepresentation, such rule is designed to protect innocent victims of motor vehicle accidents and does not bar action to void policy ab initio where it is alleged that claimant himself participated in fraudulent issuance of policy. Travelers Indem. Co. v Avelino, 191 A.D.2d 229, 594 N.Y.S.2d 249, 1993 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2133 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1993).

Court properly dismissed action for judgment declaring that plaintiffs' assigned risk automobile insurance policy was in full force and effect, having been unlawfully canceled by defendant insurer, where record showed that after having received adverse determination on cancellation issue from Governing Committee of New York Automobile Insurance Plan, which was administrator of assigned risk plan, plaintiffs failed to appeal determination to New York Superintendent of Insurance, as they were entitled to do under CLS Ins § 5304, and thus failed to pursue available administrative remedy. Ingber v New Hampshire Ins. Co., 198 A.D.2d 266, 603 N.Y.S.2d 547, 1993 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10439 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1993).

Plaintiff was entitled to summary judgment declaring that his current insurer was obligated to defend and indemnify him in action by injured party who was hit by his car on October 16, where parties stipulated that plaintiff's application for new insurance was mailed by certified mail on October 15 to New York Automobile Insurance Plan and plaintiff submitted unrebutted deposition testimony stating that certified mail receipt number was placed on envelope and date on certified mail receipt was October 15; plaintiff's failure to place certified receipt number on application, which is sole condition precedent to fixing effective date of coverage as 12:01 a.m. of day following postmark date, was apparently inadvertent and should not operate to interrupt plaintiff's coverage, in light of public policy in favor of uninterrupted insurance coverage of all automobiles. Fogarty v Boston Old Colony Ins. Co., 222 A.D.2d 484, 635 N.Y.S.2d 647, 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12808 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1995).

62. Other matters

Where non-trucking-use endorsement in insurance policy obtained by owner of commercial vehicle was void as against public policy due to absence of express language stating that exclusion was effective only if vehicle's lessee was required to obtain insurance coverage, it was also ineffective to limit liability to financial security minima required by New York law; owner's policy was to be read as if exclusion did not exist. Royal Indem. Co. v Providence Wash. Ins. Co., 92 N.Y.2d 653, 684 N.Y.S.2d 470, 707 N.E.2d 425, 1998 N.Y. LEXIS 4141 (N.Y. 1998).

Insurance carrier was entitled to judgment declaring that car involved in accident was not covered by primary liability insurance policy covering business corporation's fleet of vehicles where (1) corporation already owned car when original policy commenced and car was not listed in schedules of covered vehicles which either formed part of original policy or constituted modifications of original policy, (2) policy did not provide for "blanket" or "fleet" coverage, and (3) car was concededly covered by another insurance company's primary policy. Dairy Maid Food Corp. v Home Indem. Co., 135 A.D.2d 774, 522 N.Y.S.2d 886, 1987 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 52718 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1987), app. denied, 72 N.Y.2d 802, 530 N.Y.S.2d 554, 526 N.E.2d 45, 1988 N.Y. LEXIS 1123 (N.Y. 1988).

Plaintiff was entitled to summary judgment granting her claim for recovery under collision provision of her automobile policy where her affidavit, admission in insurance company's answer, and report of insurance company's expert clearly indicated that her automobile struck object in road, causing puncture in oil pan, rapid loss of motor oil, and immediate engine seizure. Bekermus v State Farm Mut. Ins. Co., 154 A.D.2d 323, 545 N.Y.S.2d 799, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12251 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1989).

Insurance company was collaterally estopped from litigating whether vehicle in question was covered by policy it had issued where (1) same issue was decided in prior arbitration proceeding at which insurance company was represented by counsel and had opportunity to present its position, and (2) although arbitration related to relatively small claim, insurance company was or reasonably should have been aware that personal injury action had been or likely would be commenced. Allstate Ins. Co. v Toussaint, 163 A.D.2d 444, 558 N.Y.S.2d 579, 1990 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8778 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1990).

11 NYCRR § 65.10(d)(5)(iii) applies where there are companion cases arising out of same accident and issue submitted to arbitration is fault of drivers of respective vehicles involved; it is not intended to deny preclusive effect to arbitration determination concerning disclaimer of coverage where coverage was issue before arbitrator. Allstate Ins. Co. v Toussaint, 163 A.D.2d 444, 558 N.Y.S.2d 579, 1990 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8778 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1990).

Disclaimer of coverage by car dealer's liability insurer was invalid where it was based on fact that insured vehicle—"loaner" car that dealer was permitting its customer to use at no charge while his own car was being repaired—was being driven by customer's son at time of accident; dealer's loan of vehicle to customer constituted constructive consent for its use by his son, even though son's use was allegedly in violation of "rental agreement" signed by customer. Liberty Mut. Ins. Co. v Clench, 180 A.D.2d 684, 579 N.Y.S.2d 725, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1453 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1992).

Where insurer offered 2 separate vehicle liability policies to insured tortfeasor (garage policy and business auto policy) each of which provided that if insured had other insurance covering loss with insurer, limit of its liability for loss under all such polices would be highest limit for applicable coverage in any one such policy, insurer could not deny coverage under garage policy after paying amount equal to limits of liability under business auto policy, since policies applied to same loss, and no clear "no liability" clause was present. Hough v United States Fidelity & Guar. Co., 192 A.D.2d 1035, 596 N.Y.S.2d 903, 1993 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4470 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1993).

Insurance company was entitled to summary judgment dismissing action which alleged its bad faith refusal to settle underlying tort action within policy limits since plaintiffs had been paid full amount of compensatory damages awarded by jury in underlying action and plaintiffs, as assignees of insured, were not entitled to recover unpaid punitive damages award as (1) there was no evidence that insurance company acted with malice or intent to harm insured, and (2) punitive damages award was not insurable. Soto v State Farm Ins. Co., 195 A.D.2d 992, 600 N.Y.S.2d 407, 1993 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7781 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1993), aff'd, 83 N.Y.2d 718, 613 N.Y.S.2d 352, 635 N.E.2d 1222, 1994 N.Y. LEXIS 1034 (N.Y. 1994).

In action against homeowners arising from incident in which party was injured while exiting from motor vehicle which began to slide down driveway, homeowners' insurer was not entitled to have its retained counsel substituted on cause of action for negligent maintenance of driveway where insurer had improperly refused to defend homeowners, who were thus required to obtain judgment that insurer had obligation to defend, and insurer's interest in defending action was in conflict with homeowners' interest since it would be in insurer's interest to develop motor vehicle negligence claims in derogation of homeowners' interest to either defeat claims entirely or to involve both homeowners' insurer and motor vehicle insurance carrier to cover liability for party's injury. Wiley v New York Cent. Mut. Fire Ins. Co., 210 A.D.2d 829, 620 N.Y.S.2d 592, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13258 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1994).

In declaratory judgment action brought by first insurer against second insurer, it was error to grant summary judgment to second insurer on ground that second insurer's amended endorsement providing coverage on vehicle in question was void because it effectuated coverage after loss of which insurer had no knowledge, since insurer in its disclaimer letter and answer did not assert that policy was void because of fraud, mistake, or its agent's lack of authority, nor did it commence action to rescind or reform policy based on those grounds. Reliance Ins. Co. v National Grange Mut. Ins. Co., 225 A.D.2d 1046, 639 N.Y.S.2d 615, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2870 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1996).

It was error for court to issue declaration construing terms of policy issued by automobile insurance carrier in action where that carrier had not been joined as party defendant. Wrobel v La Ware, 229 A.D.2d 861, 646 N.Y.S.2d 391, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7992 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1996).

Plaintiff, administratrix of estate of individual who was operating automobile insured by defendant, was not entitled to summary judgment declaring that defendant was obligated to provide coverage for her claim for uninsurance or underinsurance benefits since fact issues existed as to whether decedent or named insured, in seeking to obtain insurance coverage, made material misrepresentations. Taradena v Nationwide Mut. Ins. Co., 239 A.D.2d 876, 659 N.Y.S.2d 646, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6234 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1997).

On summary judgment motion, it could be determined as matter of law that provisions of 1983 personal liability umbrella policy were still in effect and provided coverage for accident, notwithstanding insurer's claim that policy had been amended in 1986 and 1989, where insured denied having received amended policy jackets or inserts and insurer failed to proffer sufficient evidence that such items were properly mailed to insured. Allstate Ins. Co. v Young, 265 A.D.2d 278, 696 N.Y.S.2d 189, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9670 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1999).

Court erred in declaring that assigned risk auto policy was void ab initio based on claimant's fraudulent concealment of material fact in applying for coverage, where policy was not cancelled in compliance with CLS Veh & Tr § 313 prior to accident; policy remained in effect, and insurer was responsible to any innocent third parties injured in accident. Insurance Co. of N. Am. v Kaplun, 274 A.D.2d 293, 713 N.Y.S.2d 214, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9274 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2000).

Insurer was not entitled to summary judgment discharging it from any obligation under auto policy due to insured's substantial misrepresentation that vehicle was stolen at time of accident because, although insured pleaded guilty to filing false police report in connection with accident and insurer could utilize his admission of guilt as basis to disclaim coverage sought for himself, innocent third parties seeking recovery under policy were shielded from effects of insured's wrongful conduct where section of policy dealing with fraud stated "we will provide coverage to such insured for damages sustained by any person who has not made fraudulent statements or engaged in fraudulent conduct if such damages result from accident which is

Insurer of an offending vehicle in an automobile accident had an obligation to defend and/or provide coverage to an accident victim under N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(f)(1) (formerly N.Y. Ins. Law § 167(2)(a)), even though the offending driver had given the police fraudulent identity information, because the insurer's defense of fraudulent inducement was outweighed by the public policy of protecting innocent, injured victims of the fraud. Anderson v Baker, 194 Misc. 2d 228, 750 N.Y.S.2d 466, 2002 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1457 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 2002), rev'd, 2 A.D.3d 376, 769 N.Y.S.2d 549, 2003 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12839 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2003).

In action by South Carolina automobile insurer to rescind South Carolina insurance policy ab initio following New York automobile accident, on basis that insured had fraudulently misrepresented that he resided in South Carolina, South Carolina law permitting rescission (rather than New York law prohibiting rescission) applied under New York's choice of law rules; New York's strong public policy of compulsory insurance would not be substantially compromised by choice of South Carolina law, whereas application of New York law would effectively undermine South Carolina's interest by placing same burden on South Carolina insurers to uncover misrepresentations that New York insurers bear. American Centennial Ins. Co. v Sinkler, 903 F. Supp. 408, 1995 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 15991 (E.D.N.Y. 1995).

In action to recover for environmental damage caused when truck owned by New York resident was involved in accident in New York, court would apply New York law for purposes of determining whether coverage existed under insurance policy issued to owner, even if policy were not issued in New York, where insurer was authorized to do business in New York. R. E. Turner, Inc. v Connecticut Indem. Co., 925 F. Supp. 139, 1996 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 6647 (W.D.N.Y. 1996).

Insurer with respect to New York Automobile Insurance Plan policy must make policy limit above $500,000 available, if application contains documentation from appropriate federal authority, state authority, municipal authority, school district or other political subdivision stating that such higher policy limits are required by law. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 04-10-21.

VIII. Protection Against Uninsured Motorists

63. In general

Object of compulsory automobile insurance is to assure the protection of members of the public who are innocent victims of motor vehicle accidents by providing compensation for and protection from tortious wrongs committed against them. Rosado v Eveready Ins. Co., 34 N.Y.2d 43, 356 N.Y.S.2d 8, 312 N.E.2d 153, 1974 N.Y. LEXIS 1587 (N.Y. 1974).

Provision of family automobile policy excluding any accident with an uninsured automobile occurring within state of New York was inapplicable where policy contained required New York automobile accident indemnification endorsement providing coverage for accidents involving uninsured automobiles occurring in New York. Public Service Mut. Ins. Co. v Katcher, 36 N.Y.2d 295, 367 N.Y.S.2d 752, 327 N.E.2d 799, 1975 N.Y. LEXIS 1763 (N.Y. 1975).

Purpose of uninsured motor vehicle endorsement required by Insurance Law is to extend insurance coverage to insured persons who are victims of automobile accidents involving a negligent, financially irresponsible motorist. Country-Wide Ins. Co. v Wagoner, 45 N.Y.2d 581, 412 N.Y.S.2d 106, 384 N.E.2d 653, 1978 N.Y. LEXIS 2362 (N.Y. 1978).

Insurer's uninsured motorist policy endorsement must be construed as if all provisions of CLS Ins § 3420(f)(1) were embodied therein. Rowell v Utica Mut. Ins. Co., 77 N.Y.2d 636, 569 N.Y.S.2d 399, 571 N.E.2d 707, 1991 N.Y. LEXIS 628 (N.Y. 1991).

Motor vehicle accident indemnification corporation law does not supplement coverage of insured automobiles or protect insured persons against risks not covered by standard policy. Moffitt v Moffitt, 46 A.D.2d 944, 362 N.Y.S.2d 229, 1974 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3290 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1974).

Although uninsured motorist endorsement is required by Insurance Law, the obligation of the insurance company is contractual rather than statutory in nature. State Farm Mut. Auto Ins. Co. v Basile, 48 A.D.2d 868, 368 N.Y.S.2d 584, 1975 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10099 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1975).

In order to be covered against "underinsured" motorist, insured must purchase optional supplementary uninsured motorist insurance. Metropolitan Property & Liability Ins. Co. v Villarrubia, 119 A.D.2d 576, 500 N.Y.S.2d 744, 1986 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 55503 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1986).

Provisions of CLS Ins § 3420(f)(2), made mandatory at insured's option, require insurer to provide underinsured motorists coverage to extent of insured's liability coverage, and insurer may not limit such protection, through terms of automobile insurance policy, to amount of insured's underinsurance coverage; statute specifies that proper measure is whether other vehicle's underinsurance coverage is for lesser amount than claimant's bodily injury liability insurance limits of coverage, and statute does not confine measure to amount of insured's underinsurance coverage but rather calls for measure to be taken against insured's over- all liability insurance coverage. Automobile Ins. Co. v Stillway, 165 A.D.2d 572, 568 N.Y.S.2d 727, 1991 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4469 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1991).

Automobile insurance policy did not provide underinsurance coverage, notwithstanding that policy applied to certain accidents where allegedly offending vehicle had insurance, since (1) such coverage only applied where coverage for allegedly offending vehicle was less than minimum limits of liability under state law, and (2) language used in policy was consistent with statutory requirement for providing uninsured coverage for accidents involving financially irresponsible motorists. Liberty Mut. Ins. Co. v Annunziatio, 187 A.D.2d 429, 589 N.Y.S.2d 551, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12474 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1992).

Injured party may not combine its liability coverage from several policies to determine whether or not underinsurance benefits of one policy is triggered. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. v Roth, 206 A.D.2d 376, 613 N.Y.S.2d 713, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7091 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1994), app. denied, 84 N.Y.2d 812, 622 N.Y.S.2d 915, 647 N.E.2d 121, 1995 N.Y. LEXIS 33 (N.Y. 1995).

Insurer was entitled to stay of arbitration of underinsurance claim despite insured's contention that she should be excused for failing to obtain insurer's consent as condition precedent to coverage before releasing her claim against tortfeasors and their insurer in derogation of insurer's subrogation rights, on ground that wording of declaration sheet was misleading and ambiguous, as insurer's use of phrase "uninsured motorist" to denote, generically, separate categories of coverage that legislature labeled as "uninsured" and "supplementary uninsured" motorist coverage was not misleading. Travelers Ins. Co. v Magyar, 217 A.D.2d 954, 629 N.Y.S.2d 900, 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8379 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1995).

CLS Ins § 3420(f)(2) requires only that insurance company make available uninsured motorist insurance if insured requests it, and prohibits only refusal of insurance company to provide supplementary uninsured motorist insurance if insured requests it; insurance company is not required to specifically offer supplementary uninsured motorist insurance coverage to insured unless insured requests it. Downey v Allstate Ins. Co., 638 F. Supp. 322, 1986 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 22450 (S.D.N.Y. 1986).

Insurer would not have right to seek to enforce its rights under policy to demand physical examination or oral examination once insured had filed lawsuit if insurer had sufficient time to enforce its rights and failed to exercise them; if insurer presented justifiable excuse for its failure to enforce its rights, court of competent jurisdiction could stay proceedings to allow for discovery. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 01-12-02.

64. Construction with other laws

Statutory exemption for police vehicles under uninsured motorist statute does not relieve governmental entities from liability for injuries sustained in police vehicles that are caused by uninsured motorists, since police vehicles are expressly included under "no-fault" provisions of Insurance Law, requiring municipality to provide first-party benefits for loss arising out of use or operation of vehicles. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. v Amato, 72 N.Y.2d 288, 532 N.Y.S.2d 239, 528 N.E.2d 162, 1988 N.Y. LEXIS 1670 (N.Y. 1988).

The power delegated to MVAIC by the provision of former § 606(b) [now § 5206] authorizing it to prescribe, subject to the approval of the superintendent, the endorsement form to be issued embodying the coverage required by subd 2-a of former § 167 [now § 3420(f)] is confined to the drafting of an endorsement which carries out the spirit and intention of the statute. And the approval by the Superintendent of Insurance does not render the endorsement invulnerable. Any endorsement which places an additional legal impediment on the right of an otherwise qualified person to avail himself of the remedies under former Article 17-A [now §§ 5201-5225] is contrary to the intention of that statute and is therefore void. Consequently the provision of Condition 4 of the Motor Vehicle Accident Indemnification endorsement requiring that if before MVAIC makes payment of loss under the policy, the insured or his legal representative institutes any action for bodily injury a copy of the summons and complaint or other process served in connection with such action shall be forwarded immediately to MVAIC is null and void. Brown v Motor Vehicle Accident Indemnification Corp., 48 Misc. 2d 170, 264 N.Y.S.2d 671, 1965 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1345 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1965).

As between liquidated commercial insurance company and the Motor Vehicle Accident Indemnification Corporation, the latter was not liable for amount of default judgment recovered against insured motor vehicle owner and uninsured operator as joint tort-feasors, where there was no indication that commercial insurer would have been unable to pay the damages under the supervision of the State Insurance Department pursuant to Insurance Law former § 510 [now § 7401]. Brown v Reid, 72 Misc. 2d 237, 339 N.Y.S.2d 204, 1972 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1244 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1972).

In dispute between insured and insurer arising out of accident in Ontario, Canada, in which insured was injured by uninsured Ohio vehicle, insured could recover Canadian limit of uninsured first-party benefits, which was higher than New York limit, since 11 NYCRR 60.1 mandates reading of such higher minimal coverage limits into New York policies not containing them. Smith v Nationwide Mut. Ins. Co., 145 Misc. 2d 318, 546 N.Y.S.2d 522, 1989 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 639 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1989), aff'd, 181 A.D.2d 342, 585 N.Y.S.2d 899, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9142 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1992).

Respondent, Montana resident who purchased automobile liability insurance there providing for maximum of $100,000 for bodily injury to one person in one accident and uninsured motorist coverage of $25,000/$50,000, was not entitled to underinsured motorist coverage for accident in New York caused by insured motor vehicle with liability limit of $50,000 since Montana, unlike New York, does not statutorily require that insurers offer underinsured motorist coverage, and respondent's uninsured motorist coverage, being viable amount of protection under Montana law, could not be deemed to also provide underinsured motorist protection. Allstate Ins. Co. v Richards, 148 Misc. 2d 759, 561 N.Y.S.2d 362, 1990 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 510 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1990), aff'd, 178 A.D.2d 142, 576 N.Y.S.2d 577, 1991 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 15236 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1991).

Automobile rental company had no statutory or contractual duty to offer supplemental uninsured motorist insurance in its lease agreement, where company's lease agreement promises no more than bare "self-insurance" required by CLS Veh. & Tr. Law § 370. Danner v Hertz Corp., 584 F. Supp. 293, 1984 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 17691 (D. Del. 1984).

65. Liability policy distinguished

The indorsement required by Insurance Law former § 167 [now § 3420] exists independently from the standard policy to which it is annexed and remains viable even though liability under the main policy has been disclaimed by the insurer. Knickerbocker Ins. Co. v Faison, 22 N.Y.2d 554, 293 N.Y.S.2d 538, 240 N.E.2d 34, 1968 N.Y. LEXIS 1184 (N.Y.), reh'g denied, 22 N.Y.2d 973, 295 N.Y.S.2d 1033, 242 N.E.2d 499, 1968 N.Y. LEXIS 2305 (N.Y. 1968), cert. denied, 393 U.S. 1055, 89 S. Ct. 692, 21 L. Ed. 2d 696, 1969 U.S. LEXIS 2817 (U.S. 1969).

In a proceeding by an excess insurer to stay arbitration demanded by claimants who alleged that an uninsured motorist indorsement containing an arbitration clause was either incorporated by reference in the umbrella policy from the underlying automobile liability policy or was mandated by Ins Law former § 167 [now § 3420], the trial court correctly granted the insurer's petition to stay arbitration where the umbrella policy clearly provided excess protection and incorporated the underlying policies only as they provided for protection against liability for damages to third parties, where the uninsured motorist coverage provided by the underlying automobile liability policy did not involve claims of liability against the claimants from third parties and was not incorporated by the umbrella policy, and where the claimants received the protection of Ins Law former § 167 [now § 3420] through their primary underlying automobile liability insurance policy and were not left without any relief. Matarasso v Continental Casualty Co., 82 A.D.2d 861, 440 N.Y.S.2d 40, 1981 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 14550 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1981), aff'd, 56 N.Y.2d 264, 451 N.Y.S.2d 703, 436 N.E.2d 1305, 1982 N.Y. LEXIS 3358 (N.Y. 1982).

The endorsement required pursuant to former § 167 [now § 3420] has frequently and mistakenly been viewed as a liability policy, but it is evident there is a major difference between the insurance agreement contained in a liability policy and the indemnification indorsement, whereby the former protects the insured owner for any fault on his part which results in injuries to others, whereas the latter indorsement protects the insured owner or any person in his automobile for any injuries sustained by the negligent operation of an "uninsured motor vehicle." Shumate v Motor Vehicle Accident Indemnification Corp., 50 Misc. 2d 31, 269 N.Y.S.2d 639, 1966 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1927 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1966).

66. Extraterritorial application

Insureds who were injured in accident in New Jersey with uninsured motorist were not entitled to recover under automobile policy which expressly limited uninsured motorist coverage to accidents occurring within New York. Sentry Ins. Co. v Amsel, 36 N.Y.2d 291, 367 N.Y.S.2d 480, 327 N.E.2d 635, 1975 N.Y. LEXIS 1754 (N.Y. 1975).

Former § 167 [now § 3420] requiring inclusion of uninsured motorist coverage does not obligate an insurer to provide uninsured motorist coverage for accidents occurring outside the state. Sentry Ins. Co. v Amsel, 36 N.Y.2d 291, 367 N.Y.S.2d 480, 327 N.E.2d 635, 1975 N.Y. LEXIS 1754 (N.Y. 1975).

Insured was covered by uninsured motorist provisions of automobile insurance policy issued on automobile principally garaged or principally used in this state for injuries resulting from accident while a passenger in uninsured motor vehicle occurring in Canada, notwithstanding the language of Insurance Law former § 167 [now § 3420] requiring such uninsured motorist coverage for "accident occurring in this state." Askey v General Accident Fire & Life Assur. Corp., 30 A.D.2d 632, 290 N.Y.S.2d 759, 1968 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3994 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1968), aff'd, 24 N.Y.2d 937, 302 N.Y.S.2d 576, 250 N.E.2d 65, 1969 N.Y. LEXIS 1319 (N.Y. 1969).

Injured party was not entitled to uninsured motorist benefits under CLS Ins § 3420(f)(1) where accident occurred outside of state. Transport Ins. Co. v Tedesco, 147 A.D.2d 936, 537 N.Y.S.2d 390, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1174 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1989).

New York resident, who was involved in automobile accident while driving in New Jersey, was entitled to coverage under uninsured motorist provision of his automobile insurance policy, notwithstanding that policy explicitly stated that coverage was limited to accidents in New York, since (1) CLS Ins § 5103(e) requires that policy provide benefits in at least minimum amount prescribed by law of any state in which vehicle was operated, (2) 11 NYCRR § 60.1(e) provided that policy must provide at least minimum amount and type of coverage required by any other state, and (3) New Jersey law required uninsured motorist coverage. American Transit Ins. Co. v Abdelghany, 173 A.D.2d 611, 570 N.Y.S.2d 191, 1991 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7606 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1991), aff'd, 80 N.Y.2d 162, 589 N.Y.S.2d 842, 603 N.E.2d 947, 1992 N.Y. LEXIS 3492 (N.Y. 1992).

New York residents, who were injured in automobile accident in province of Quebec, Canada, when their car collided with vehicle operated by Quebec resident, could not recover under uninsured motorist endorsement contained in policy of motor vehicle liability insurance on their car issued by New York insurance carrier since offending vehicle was insured for bodily injury liability under Quebec Automobile Insurance Act (QAIA), mandatory system of insurance reparations that compensates nonresident claimants to extent they are not responsible for accident to maximum of $20,000; offending vehicle was not "uninsured" simply because coverage was provided by governmental reparation program, and QAIA coverage applicable to offending vehicle, being tantamount to "owner's policy of liability insurance" (CLS Veh & Tr § 311(4)(a)), and clearly enabling offending driver "to respond in damages" (CLS Veh & Tr § 311(3)), constituted requisite proof of financial security. Federal Ins. Co. v Watnick, 176 A.D.2d 38, 578 N.Y.S.2d 624, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 738 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't), aff'd, modified, 80 N.Y.2d 539, 592 N.Y.S.2d 624, 607 N.E.2d 771, 1992 N.Y. LEXIS 4225 (N.Y. 1992).

Motorist who was injured while driving rental truck in Connecticut was not entitled to recover underinsured motorist benefits under policy, issued in New York to rental agency, in which agency elected supplementary uninsured motorist coverage of $10,000 per person as minimum amount allowable "extended out-of-state," where applicable Connecticut statute providing that uninsured and underinsured coverage be equal to that purchased for bodily injury liability did not make latter required "minimum amount" of coverage under CLS Ins § 5103(e), and unambiguous provisions of underinsured motorist endorsement made motorist's entitlement to benefits subject to offset by $100,000 that he recovered from other driver's insurer. Roberts v Eveready Ins Co., 245 A.D.2d 239, 666 N.Y.S.2d 627, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13428 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1997).

Motorist who was injured while driving rental truck in Connecticut was not entitled to recover underinsured motorist benefits under policy, issued in New York to rental agency, in which agency elected supplementary uninsured motorist coverage of $d10,000 per person as minimum amount allowable "extended out-of-state," where applicable Connecticut statute providing that uninsured and underinsured coverage be equal to that purchased for bodily injury liability did not make latter required "minimum amount" of coverage under CLS Ins § 5103(e), and unambiguous provisions of underinsured motorist endorsement made motorist's entitlement to benefits subject to offset by $d100,000 that he recovered from other driver's insurer. Roberts v Eveready Ins Co., 245 A.D.2d 239, 666 N.Y.S.2d 627, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13428 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1997).

Nonresident operator of Florida-registered vehicle was not uninsured within meaning of New York driver's uninsured motorist endorsement where nonresident operator was "subject to the financial responsibility law...of [this] state," so that her policy furnished bodily injury liability protection under its "Out of State Insurance" clause, and such protection conformed to that required by version of New York's Financial Security Act (CLS Veh & Tr § 311(3) and (4)(a)) in effect at time of accident, irrespective of whether such coverage must be read into policy under CLS Ins § 5107(a). General Accident Ins. Co. v Loi Tran, 246 A.D.2d 543, 667 N.Y.S.2d 417, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 204 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1998).

Motor Vehicle Accident Indemnification Corporation may be required to proceed to arbitration of a claim for damages submitted against it by one injured by the operator of a stolen automobile which was covered by insurance in favor of its owner issued in another state if the out-of-state insurance policy was not the equivalent of a standard New York policy or did not additionally provide for coverage of negligent acts of an insured while operating a stolen vehicle or intentional acts of the insured. Motor Vehicle Accident Indemnification Corp. v Kilgallon, 40 Misc. 2d 822, 244 N.Y.S.2d 123, 1963 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1453 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1963).

The fact that Ins Law § 167(2-a) [now § 3420] provides $50,000 uninsured motorist coverage for wrongful death within the state did not require that an optional supplementary insurance policy be construed to provide that amount of coverage, where voluntary supplemental uninsured motorist insurance for bodily injury occurring outside of the state, pursuant to the policy's uninsured motorist indorsement and Ins Law § 167(2-a) [now § 3420], had a maximum amount of coverage of $10,000 for each person on account of bodily injury, sickness or disease, including death. Home Indem. Co. v Allwood, 122 Misc. 2d 757, 471 N.Y.S.2d 824, 1984 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2943 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1984).

New York resident, who sustained injuries in New York accident when leased vehicle in which she was passenger was struck by another vehicle, was not entitled to underinsurance coverage from insurer of leased vehicle, which was registered in Rhode Island and leased to New Jersey resident, where underinsurance coverage was made available to but declined by lessee, and policy provided underinsurance coverage "only in those states where such coverage is statutory," since although Rhode Island law, unlike New York law, mandated underinsurance coverage for vehicles registered in that State, it did so only for liability policies delivered or issued for delivery in Rhode Island, and instant policy was issued and delivered in New Jersey. Lumbermen's Mut. Casualty Co. v Morse, 152 Misc. 2d 482, 577 N.Y.S.2d 566, 1991 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 666 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1991).

67. Types of vehicles to which provisions apply

Former § 167 [now § 3420] is not applicable in the construction of the term "uninsured automobile" as defined in a policy issued by a private liability insurance company, since plaintiff's suit was not against MVAIC and the accident occurred outside of the state. Vanguard Ins. Co. v Polchlopek, 18 N.Y.2d 376, 275 N.Y.S.2d 515, 222 N.E.2d 383, 1966 N.Y. LEXIS 986 (N.Y. 1966).

Where an insured was struck by an uninsured motorist while operating his motorcycle and maintained a liability policy on the motorcycle although he also qualified as an "insured" under a policy issued by a second insurer, the issuer of the policy on the motorcycle is a primary insurer and the second insurer's exposure is limited to that of an excess insurer, since the term "automobile", as it appears in an automobile accident indemnification endorsement, includes the term "motorcycle"; the endorsement, in compliance with subdivision 2-a of former § 167 [now § 3420(f)] of the Insurance Law, forms a part of New York State motor vehicle liability policies, and provides that with respect to bodily injury to an insured while occupying an automobile not owned by the named insured, the insurance shall apply only as excess insurance over any primary insurance in the amount by which the limit of liability exceeds the applicable limit of liability of the other insurance, and except as previously provided, if the insured has other similar insurance available, the company will not be liable for a greater proportion of any loss than the liability limit bears to the sum of the limits of liability of the policy and the other insurance. Country-Wide Ins. Co. v Wagoner, 45 N.Y.2d 581, 412 N.Y.S.2d 106, 384 N.E.2d 653, 1978 N.Y. LEXIS 2362 (N.Y. 1978).

The term "automobile", as it appears in an automobile accident indemnification endorsement which, in compliance with subdivision 2-a of former § 167 [now § 3420] of the Insurance Law, forms a part of New York State motor vehicle liability policies, and provides that with respect to bodily injury to an insured while occupying an automobile not owned by the named insured, the insurance shall apply only as excess insurance over any primary insurance in the amount by which the limit of liability exceeds the applicable limit of liability of the other insurance, and, except as previously provided, if the insured has other similar insurance available, the company will not be liable for a greater proportion of any loss than the liability limit bears to the sum of the limits of liability of the policy and the other insurance, includes the term "motorcycle", since the purpose of the endorsement is to provide coverage to insured persons who suffer automobile accident injuries at the hands of financially irresponsible motorists, and calls for a policy of inclusion rather than exclusion in determining whom it covers; the principal Insurance Law provisions from which the endorsement is derived confirm this policy as it applies to motorcycles, inasmuch as each policy must contain an endorsement making payable to an insured certain amounts "as damages from an owner or operator of an uninsured motor vehicle" (Insurance Law, § 167, subd 2-a [now § 3420(f)]), and "motor vehicle" encompasses "motorcycle" Country-Wide Ins. Co. v Wagoner, 45 N.Y.2d 581, 412 N.Y.S.2d 106, 384 N.E.2d 653, 1978 N.Y. LEXIS 2362 (N.Y. 1978).

Municipality, as unregulated self-insurer, was not required to provide uninsured motorist coverage to police officers who were injured when their police vehicles were struck by uninsured vehicles, since police vehicle is specifically excluded from definition of "motor vehicle" in CLS Veh & Tr § 388, and thus CLS Ins § 3420(f) has no application to such vehicle. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. v Amato, 72 N.Y.2d 288, 532 N.Y.S.2d 239, 528 N.E.2d 162, 1988 N.Y. LEXIS 1670 (N.Y. 1988).

Court would decline to endorse exclusion which purports to exclude from uninsured motor vehicle endorsement vehicles used "to carry persons or property for a fee" since neither CLS Ins § 3420(f)(1) nor any applicable regulations mentions any exclusions, and any such exclusions should be expressly authorized. Liberty Mut. Ins. Co. v Hogan, 82 N.Y.2d 57, 603 N.Y.S.2d 409, 623 N.E.2d 536, 1993 N.Y. LEXIS 3359 (N.Y. 1993).

Failure of Superintendent of Insurance to withdrawal approval of uninsured motor vehicle policy which contained "livery exclusion" would not be construed as approval of exclusion since inaction does not divest court of its duty to interpret statutes so as to reach reasonable result wherever possible. Liberty Mut. Ins. Co. v Hogan, 82 N.Y.2d 57, 603 N.Y.S.2d 409, 623 N.E.2d 536, 1993 N.Y. LEXIS 3359 (N.Y. 1993).

Where plaintiff was injured while riding in a police vehicle driven by a fellow officer that was struck by an underinsured vehicle, the fellow officer's insurer was not required to provide plaintiff supplementary uninsured/underinsured motorist coverage because a police vehicle was not a "motor vehicle" for purposes of mandatory underinsured motorist coverage under this section. Matter of State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. v Fitzgerald, 25 N.Y.3d 799, 38 N.E.3d 325, 16 N.Y.S.3d 796, 2015 N.Y. LEXIS 1526 (N.Y. 2015).

Supplementary uninsured/underinsured motorist (SUM) endorsement prescribed by this section exempts police vehicles from its definition of the term "motor vehicle" absent a specific provision to the contrary in a given SUM endorsement. Matter of State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. v Fitzgerald, 25 N.Y.3d 799, 38 N.E.3d 325, 16 N.Y.S.3d 796, 2015 N.Y. LEXIS 1526 (N.Y. 2015).

Insurance Law former § 167, subd 2-a [now § 3420(f)] includes uninsured motorcycles in the term "uninsured motor vehicles." Askey v General Acci. Askey v General Accident Fire & Life Assur. Corp., 30 A.D.2d 632, 290 N.Y.S.2d 759, 1968 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3994 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1968), aff'd, 24 N.Y.2d 937, 302 N.Y.S.2d 576, 250 N.E.2d 65, 1969 N.Y. LEXIS 1319 (N.Y. 1969).

Where an infant claimant was injured by a motor scooter operated by a boy who found it in the woods, without license plates and apparently abandoned, plaintiff's application for leave to submit his claim to arbitration under the uninsured motorist's endorsement in her father's automobile liability insurance policy was granted, since it was sufficiently established the motor scooter was uninsured, or stolen, or operated without the owner's consent and the policy endorsement's coverage of "uninsured automobiles" included an uninsured motor scooter. Early v Motor Vehicle Acci. Indemnification Corp., 32 A.D.2d 1042, 303 N.Y.S.2d 709, 1969 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3294 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1969).

An insurer was liable under term of uninsured motorist endorsement contained in policy issued to deceased wife referring to "uninsured automobiles", as it was deemed to cover all uninsured motor vehicles and the motor driven cycle involved in the accident was an "uninsured motor vehicle" within the meaning of the endorsement. Lalomia v Bankers & Shippers Ins. Co., 35 A.D.2d 114, 312 N.Y.S.2d 1018, 1970 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3949 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't), app. dismissed, 27 N.Y.2d 796, 315 N.Y.S.2d 856, 264 N.E.2d 349, 1970 N.Y. LEXIS 1068 (N.Y. 1970), app. denied, 27 N.Y.2d 490, 1970 N.Y. Co., 213 A.D.2d 325, 624 N.Y.S.2d 392, 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3290 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1995).

Automobile liability insurer was obligated to provide plaintiff insureds with uninsured motorist benefits for injuries caused by uninsured all-terrain vehicle operator, since policy coverage extended, as matter of law, to all motor vehicles as defined by CLS Veh & Tr § 125, which, at time of accident, did not specifically exclude all-terrain vehicles (although it was subsequently amended to exclude them). Harper v Lumbermens Mut. Casualty Co., 174 A.D.2d 1031, 572 N.Y.S.2d 195, 1991 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8976 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't), app. dismissed, 78 N.Y.2d 1110, 578 N.Y.S.2d 873, 586 N.E.2d 56, 1991 N.Y. LEXIS 4975 (N.Y. 1991).

Automobile liability insurance policy with standard New York uninsured motorist endorsement provided uninsured motorist coverage to minor daughter of insured where she was injured while riding as passenger on uninsured all-terrain vehicle (ATV) since ATVs are treated on par with motorcycles for insurance purposes and policy did not expressly exclude either ATVs or motorcycles from definition of uninsured automobile. Nationwide Mut. Ins. Co. v Riccadulli, 183 A.D.2d 111, 589 N.Y.S.2d 356, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12211 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1992).

In action by insured whose child was pinned between bumpers of pickup truck and car being manually pushed toward truck, insurer was not entitled to summary judgment dismissing uninsured motorist claim on ground that car, because it was temporarily inoperable at time of accident, did not qualify as motor vehicle under CLS Veh & Tr § 125 and thus was not "uninsured motor vehicle" under subject policy as matter of law; factual issues existed whether accident arose out of maintenance or use of vehicle within meaning of policy. Dupra v Benoit, 270 A.D.2d 856, 705 N.Y.S.2d 781, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3490 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 2000).

Motorcycle was not "automobile" within uninsured motorist endorsement of family automobile policy issued to motorcycle owner which defined "insured" as named insured and any other person while occupying an automobile owned by the named insured and thus, driver of owner's motorcycle was not an "insured" and could not recover from the insurer for injuries sustained in a collision with an uninsured motorist. Summit Ins. Co. v Beach, 80 Misc. 2d 382, 363 N.Y.S.2d 210, 1974 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1899 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1974).

Ins Law § 601(a) excludes police vehicles from the definition of motor vehicles for purposes of claims against the Motor Vehicle Accident Indemnification Corporation, and such exclusion is incorporated into Ins Law § 167(2-a), which governs actions involving insurers or self-insurers. Accordingly, the City of New York, a self-insurer, would not be obligated to provide uninsured motorist benefits to employee police officers who were injured in a collision between their police vehicle and an uninsured automobile. New York v Collins, 126 Misc. 2d 377, 482 N.Y.S.2d 422, 1984 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3625 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1984), disapproved, State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. v Amato, 129 A.D.2d 221, 517 N.Y.S.2d 728, 1987 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 44895 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1987).

There is no requirement in Insurance Law or Vehicle and Traffic Law that cab companies, or any other self-insured entity, maintain supplemental uninsured motorist (SUM) coverage in excess of mandatory limits. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 04-04-28.

68. Qualified and insured person

Although former § 167 [now § 3420] is not controlling in the construction of the term "uninsured motorist" as defined in a policy issued by a private liability insurer, it does express the public policy of New York that motorists should be protected against damages inflicted by a financially irresponsible party and should not be ignored. Vanguard Ins. Co. v Polchlopek, 18 N.Y.2d 376, 275 N.Y.S.2d 515, 222 N.E.2d 383, 1966 N.Y. LEXIS 986 (N.Y. 1966).

Phrase "occupying the automobile" as used in defining whether person is "insured" under both uninsured motorist endorsement and CLS Ins § 3420(f)(3) should be interpreted liberally due to expansive definition in statute ("in or upon or entering into or alighting from" automobile) and in standard policy endorsements. Rowell v Utica Mut. Ins. Co., 77 N.Y.2d 636, 569 N.Y.S.2d 399, 571 N.E.2d 707, 1991 N.Y. LEXIS 628 (N.Y. 1991).

"Use" of automobile, for purpose of determining whether person is "insured" under both uninsured motorist endorsement and CLS Ins § 3420(f)(3), encompasses more than simply its driving and includes all necessary incidental activities such as entering and leaving its confines. Rowell v Utica Mut. Ins. Co., 77 N.Y.2d 636, 569 N.Y.S.2d 399, 571 N.E.2d 707, 1991 N.Y. LEXIS 628 (N.Y. 1991).

Plaintiff's act of opening vehicle door and trying to enter as it was being stolen fit within broad definition of "occupying" and "using" vehicle under both standard uninsured motorist policy endorsement and CLS Ins § 3420(f)(3) for purpose of determining whether plaintiff was "insured" under endorsement and statute. Rowell v Utica Mut. Ins. Co., 77 N.Y.2d 636, 569 N.Y.S.2d 399, 571 N.E.2d 707, 1991 N.Y. LEXIS 628 (N.Y. 1991).

Reasonable interpretation of scope of permission given by insured to her brother to use her vehicle, for purpose of determining whether brother was "insured" under standard uninsured motorist policy endorsement, included brother's attempt to stop thief from stealing vehicle while it was in his trust. Rowell v Utica Mut. Ins. Co., 77 N.Y.2d 636, 569 N.Y.S.2d 399, 571 N.E.2d 707, 1991 N.Y. LEXIS 628 (N.Y. 1991).

Bicyclist injured by uninsured motorist was not "family member" covered by his father's insurance policy where policy defined "family member" as person related to insured who was resident of insured's household, whereas bicyclist resided in his own Manhattan apartment more than 80 percent of time, although he stored some belongings in his parents' New Jersey house and occasionally spent night there. Aetna Casualty & Surety Co. v Gutstein, 80 N.Y.2d 773, 587 N.Y.S.2d 268, 599 N.E.2d 672, 1992 N.Y. LEXIS 1530 (N.Y. 1992).

Insurer's application for stay of arbitration was properly denied where insurer contended that policy purchased by husband of accident victim involving uninsured motorist did not extend coverage to her; regardless of specific terms of policy, coverage would be deemed to extend to spouse of insured, who was resident in same household as insured, under 11 NYCRR § 60.1(c). Insurance Co. of North America v Lyman, 148 A.D.2d 456, 538 N.Y.S.2d 829, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2472 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1989).

Appellant was not covered person entitled to underinsured motorist benefits under her father's motor vehicle insurance policy where policy provided coverage only for persons related to insured by blood, marriage, or adoption who were residents of insured's household, and appellant merely stored some belongings in her father's house and visited about once per month. Aetna Casualty & Sur. Co. v Panetta, 202 A.D.2d 662, 609 N.Y.S.2d 631, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2895 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1994).

Appellant was not shown to be "family member" within meaning of policy, and thus he was not entitled to arbitration of his claim for underinsured motorist benefits under his uncle's insurance policy, where he offered no documentary evidence regarding residence in his uncle's house, and hearing court determined that his testimony, and that of his mother, was incredible. Koback v Commercial Union Ins. Co., 223 A.D.2d 708, 637 N.Y.S.2d 424, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 665 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't), app. denied, 88 N.Y.2d 807, 647 N.Y.S.2d 164, 670 N.E.2d 448, 1996 N.Y. LEXIS 1603 (N.Y. 1996).

Insurer was not entitled to summary judgment in action alleging, inter alia, that it was estopped from denying supplemental underinsured motorist (SUM) coverage, on ground it had previously failed to dispute plaintiff's eligibility and made representations that SUM coverage would be available, since correspondence between plaintiff and insurer suggested that during course of their dealings insurer recognized plaintiff's claim to SUM coverage, and whether plaintiff could show that she relied to her detriment on insurer's representations sufficiently to establish estoppel presented triable fact issue; change in state of law resulting from Matter of Prudential Property & Casualty Co. v Szeli, 83 NY2d 681, did not constitute detrimental reliance. Reeve v General Accident Ins. Co., 239 A.D.2d 759, 658 N.Y.S.2d 143, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5227 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1997).

Insurer was properly granted summary judgment declaring that plaintiff was not covered under underinsured provisions of named insured's automobile policy, even if word "spouse" in policy could be understood to include same-sex partners living together in spousal-type relationship, since plaintiff failed to raise fact issue as to whether such was nature of his relationship with insured. Ortiz v New York City Transit Auth., 267 A.D.2d 33, 699 N.Y.S.2d 370, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12635 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1999).

Former wife was not covered person entitled to supplementary uninsured motorist benefits under her former husband's insurance policy where policy provided such coverage only for "named insured and, while residents of the same household (the insured's) spouse and the relatives of either of (the named insured or spouse)," notwithstanding that former wife stored some belongings in her then-estranged husband's home, had key, and would visit to obtain clothing, since she admitted in sworn documents and in police accident report that she had been living separate and apart from her husband at time of accident and that her resident address was not marital address. Nationwide Ins. Co. v Smaller, 271 A.D.2d 537, 706 N.Y.S.2d 140, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4015 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2000).

A person who is covered by a policy of insurance issued pursuant to this section recovers under the terms of the policy as set forth therein, without regard to the rights of a "qualified person" to recover in other circumstances under the provisions of former art. Motor Vehicle Accident Indemnification Corp. v Morera, 31 Misc. 2d 51, 219 N.Y.S.2d 553, 1961 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2449 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1961).

Insurance carrier was not liable for claim under uninsured motorist endorsement of policy covering only injury to persons "occupying" or "upon" insured vehicle where injured party had one foot on ground and other on runningboard of insured vehicle, which was parked with motor on when struck by vehicle which left scene, since more than mere intent to occupy vehicle is required to alter status of individual from pedestrian to one "occupying" vehicle. Colonial Penn Ins. Co. v Curry, 157 Misc. 2d 282, 596 N.Y.S.2d 317, 1993 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 109 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1993).

Registered domestic partner did not fall within definition of insured under prescribed endorsement except as occupant of motor vehicle insured for supplemental uninsured motorist under policy. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 00-07-08.

69. —Qualified or insured status of particular vehicles and motorists

Person who left her vehicle to change places with driver behind her, injured when impact of uninsured third vehicle pinned her between the two autos being exchanged, was not, regardless of her interrupted intent to enter second vehicle, an occupant of either vehicle, and thus, although not an "insured" entitled to uninsured motorist coverage pursuant to Insurance Law former § 167, subd 2-a [now § 3420], was a "qualified person" as defined by Insurance Law former § 601, subd b [now § 5202(b)], and as such entitled to proceed against the MVAIC. Rice v Allstate Ins.

Co., 32 N.Y.2d 6, 342 N.Y.S.2d 845, 295 N.E.2d 647, 1973 N.Y. LEXIS 1435 (N.Y. 1973).

Uninsured motorist policy endorsement required by CLS Ins § 3420(f)(1)should be considered to be embodied in policy where insured was injured while attempting to stop theft of vehicle, which coincidentally was vehicle that was insured under policy in question; thus, insured would be declared entitled to make claim only against insurer, even though policy purported to exclude coverage for damages caused by "an automobile owned by named insured." Rowell v Utica Mut. Ins. Co., 77 N.Y.2d 636, 569 N.Y.S.2d 399, 571 N.E.2d 707, 1991 N.Y. LEXIS 628 (N.Y. 1991).

Vehicle owned by Quebec citizen in automobile accident occurring in Quebec was not "uninsured" within meaning of either Insurance Law or policy issued to New York accident victims where Quebec vehicle was covered by province's mandatory system of insurance reparations which is "tantamount to an owner's policy of liability insurance" in that it permits its insureds to respond in damages for any bodily injury which they may cause to others, and thus provides its insureds with proof of financial security. Federal Ins. Co. v Watnick, 80 N.Y.2d 539, 592 N.Y.S.2d 624, 607 N.E.2d 771, 1992 N.Y. LEXIS 4225 (N.Y. 1992).

In a proceeding by a sanitation worker who had been injured in the scope of his employment when his sanitation truck was struck by unidentified motor vehicle which left scene of accident wherein the worker sought arbitration of his uninsured motorist claim, the trial court erred in finding that the city was required to afford uninsured motorist protection to the worker, where the city, although subject to tort liability, was statutorily exempt from the requirement of providing proof of financial security on its motor vehicles by virtue of the statutory exemption granted to political entities, and where, since the city had not voluntarily obtained liability coverage for its vehicles, it was an unregulated self-insurer, and in such capacity was not required to furnish uninsured motorist coverage. Nassau Ins. Co. v Guarascio, 82 A.D.2d 505, 442 N.Y.S.2d 83, 1981 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11384 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1981).

A taxicab driver who, while exchanging credentials with the driver of a vehicle with which he had a minor collision, was struck by a third uninsured motorist did not cease to be qualified to recover under the uninsured motorist endorsement of his policy, where the taxicab driver, upon completion of the exchange of credentials, had every intention to return to his cab, and when a departure from a vehicle is occasioned by or is incident to some temporary interruption and the occupant remains in the immediate vicinity of the vehicle and intends to resume his place in the vehicle upon completion of the objective, he does not cease to be a covered person under the uninsured motorist endorsement. In re Nassau Ins. Co., 103 A.D.2d 780, 477 N.Y.S.2d 415, 1984 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 19396 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1984).

Hearing was required when issue of fact was raised as to whether daughter lived with her father, so as to be included in father's household as insured under father's policy, where daughter gave, as her permanent address, address different than her father's when she was admitted to hospital following accident, she subsequently submitted affidavit asserting that she resided with father on day of accident, but she failed to submit affidavit from father confirming that assertion. Aetna Casualty & Surety Co. v Facciponti, 133 A.D.2d 60, 519 N.Y.S.2d 3, 1987 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 49586 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1987).

Insurance carrier was entitled to permanent stay of arbitration of uninsured motorist claim under policy issued to closed corporation since individual who was officer, director and shareholder of corporation was not covered thereunder for injuries sustained when he was struck by car while riding his bicycle; policy language covered only automobiles owned by corporation and occupants thereof, and it would reach beyond plain meaning of policy to hold that persons not mentioned in policy were nonetheless covered when not occupying corporate vehicles. Continental Ins. Co. v Velez, 134 A.D.2d 348, 520 N.Y.S.2d 824, 1987 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 50525 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1987).

Insurer was entitled to stay of arbitration of underinsured motorist claim brought by daughter of insureds, who was listed as "driver" on face sheet and declarations page of her parents' auto policy but was not listed as "insured" and did not reside in her parents' household at time she was injured, since she was excluded from coverage by plain language of policy, which provided for insurer to pay all sums that "insured" was legally entitled to recover as damages from owner of underinsured vehicle, and which defined "insured" as "named insured and, while residents of the same household, his spouse and the relative of either." Metropolitan Property & Liability Co. v Feduchka, 135 A.D.2d 715, 522 N.Y.S.2d 616, 1987 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 52654 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1987).

Motor Vehicle Accident Indemnification Corporation was not entitled to stay of arbitration for no-fault benefits where respondent, who was driver of uninsured vehicle, was involved in accident with another uninsured vehicle since he fit definition of qualified person under CLS Ins § 5221, even assuming that vehicle driven by him was owned by his wife. Motor Vehicle Accident Indemnification Corp. v Mitchell, 155 A.D.2d 296, 547 N.Y.S.2d 60, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 14017 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1989), app. denied, 76 N.Y.2d 703, 559 N.Y.S.2d 982, 559 N.E.2d 676, 1990 N.Y. LEXIS 1406 (N.Y. 1990).

Offending vehicle was underinsured within meaning of claimant's policy where (1) policy stated that underinsured vehicle meant vehicle to which bodily injury liability policy applied at time of accident, "but its limit for bodily injury liability is less than the bodily injury liability limits provided under this policy," and (2) limit of bodily injury liability of offending vehicle was $50,000/$100,000, and limit of bodily injury liability of insured's vehicle was $300,000; issue would not be resolved by comparison of bodily injury liability limits of offending vehicle's policy with limits of underinsured motorist coverage of claimant's policy. Liberty Mut. Ins. Co. v Balaran, 163 A.D.2d 314, 557 N.Y.S.2d 159, 1990 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8272 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1990).

Automobile driver's insurance company was entitled to summary judgment dismissing action by automobile owner's insurance company for reimbursement of amount of settlement in action by injured third person against driver and owner since driver's insurance company was prejudiced by 2-year delay by owner's insurance company in notifying it of accident and action, and driver's insurance company was not estopped from disclaiming liability under CLS Ins § 3420(d). Allstate Ins. Co. v Aetna Cas. & Sur. Co., 191 A.D.2d 665, 595 N.Y.S.2d 552, 1993 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3150 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't), app. dismissed, in part, app. denied, 82 N.Y.2d 744, 602 N.Y.S.2d 798, 622 N.E.2d 299, 1993 N.Y. LEXIS 3193 (N.Y. 1993).

Automobile was not insured on date of accident, since policy had automatically expired when insured failed to notify insurer of her acquisition of vehicle within 30 days of such acquisition as required by terms of policy. St. Paul Fire & Marine Ins. Co. v Nocca, 207 A.D.2d 457, 615 N.Y.S.2d 766, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8318 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1994).

Plaintiff, who was passenger in uninsured vehicle which collided with insured vehicle, was not covered by uninsured motorist portion of automobile liability policy issued to corporation owned by plaintiff's father since policy expressly provided that "uninsured motorist coverage" (which included both uninsured and underinsured coverage) applied to "owned autos only." Truncali v Fireman's Fund Ins. Co., 208 A.D.2d 826, 618 N.Y.S.2d 50, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10078 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1994).

Insurer should have been granted summary judgment declaring that supplemental underinsured motorist (SUM) coverage did not extend to injuries sustained by insured's spouse while operating motorcycle, despite contention that SUM coverage for injuries "incurred while occupying a motor vehicle" under subject policy should be read to include any injuries sustained while occupying motorcycle, where personal injury portion of policy expressly excluded from its ambit injury to "any person while occupying a motorcycle." Cohen v Chubb Indem. Ins. Co., 286 A.D.2d 264, 729 N.Y.S.2d 105, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8056 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2001).

Where at the time his daughter was struck by a hit and run vehicle the petitioner had in effect a policy of automobile liability insurance, the benefits of which extended to the members of his household, the infant claimant was covered by the policy and was an "insured" person whose rights were governed solely by the contract. McNulty v Motor Vehicle Accident Indemnification Corp., 51 Misc. 2d 1, 272 N.Y.S.2d 514, 1966 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1736 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1966), aff'd, 28 A.D.2d 1209, 284 N.Y.S.2d 858, 1967 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8019 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1967).

Insured's daughter, who was injured while a passenger in a non-owned automobile being operated without the owner's implied or express consent, was an "insured person" for the purposes of insured's uninsured motorist coverage under Insurance L former § 167, subd 2-a [now § 3420(f)]. Dingsor v Merchants Mut. Ins. Co., 72 Misc. 2d 862, 340 N.Y.S.2d 562, 1973 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2241 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1973).

Coverage afforded bus driver under uninsured motorist endorsement of his personal automobile policy could not be extended to afford coverage under policy to a bus passenger injured as a result of a collision between bus and an admittedly uninsured vehicle. Empire Mut. Ins. Co. v Brown, 80 Misc. 2d 712, 363 N.Y.S.2d 713, 1975 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2242 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1975).

Supplementary uninsured/underinsured motorist (SUM) endorsement issued to church under business motor vehicle liability insurance policy covered church employee when employee was driving her own personal motor vehicle in course of her employment and while acting within scope of her duties as church employee; further, passengers in church employee's personal motor vehicle were covered as insureds under church's SUM endorsement. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 02-02-07.

Individual who had personal auto insurance policy with Uninsured Motorist (UM) coverage of $25,000, but had not purchased Supplementary Uninsured Motorist (SUM) Coverage, could file SUM claim under his brother's policy for up to $75,000 in SUM coverage where individual suffered injuries in excess of $25,000, and brother, who lived in same household, had separate personal auto insurance policy with SUM coverage of $100,000. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 04-10-10.

70. Situations in which provision becomes operative

Some involvement of another vehicle is prerequisite to uninsured motorist coverage under both New York and New Jersey law. Metropolitan Property & Liability Ins. Co. v Falkovitz, 73 N.Y.2d 798, 537 N.Y.S.2d 23, 533 N.E.2d 1052, 1988 N.Y. LEXIS 3370 (N.Y. 1988).

Insured under automobile insurance policy could not recover from insurer pursuant to underinsured motor vehicle coverage where (1) his policy defined "underinsured motor vehicle" as one having lower limit of liability than insured's vehicle, (2) insured's limit of liability was $10,000, and (3) other vehicle involved in accident also had $10,000 limit of liability; underinsured motor vehicle coverage was definitionally not available under policy terms despite fact that one who purchases minimum $10,000 coverage may never have occasion to recover on underinsured motorist endorsement. Maurizzio v Lumbermens Mut. Casualty Co., 73 N.Y.2d 951, 540 N.Y.S.2d 982, 538 N.E.2d 334, 1989 N.Y. LEXIS 371 (N.Y. 1989).

Where the driver admitted that he was uninsured when the accident occurred and the driver's insurance broker testified that he had received a copy of the cancellation notice, the weight of credible evidence established that the liability policy had already been cancelled when the accident occurred and thus there was proper recourse to the uninsured motorist clause under the other driver's policy. Empire Mut. Ins. Co. v Insurance Co. of North America, 83 A.D.2d 822, 442 N.Y.S.2d 776, 1981 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 15185 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1981), aff'd, 55 N.Y.2d 837, 447 N.Y.S.2d 703, 432 N.E.2d 596, 1982 N.Y. LEXIS 3046 (N.Y. 1982).

Uninsured motorist provision permitting payments made under mandatory uninsured motorist endorsement to be offset by amounts paid in lieu of first-party benefits under Workers' Compensation Law would be violative of Insurance Law, since qualified person injured by uninsured motorist is guaranteed at least $10,000 worth of coverage available to compensate him for pain and suffering (noneconomic loss); however, covered person's entitlement to any greater benefits would depend solely on terms of insurance contract, since additional uninsured motorist protection may be purchased in order to afford higher level of coverage. Fox v Atlantic Mut. Ins. Co., 132 A.D.2d 17, 521 N.Y.S.2d 442, 1987 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 49535 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1987).

Court should have granted insurer's motion to stay arbitration of claim by its insured for benefits under underinsured motorist endorsement of policy, since definition of "underinsured motor vehicle" under policy was limited to vehicles covered by "bodily injury liability bond or policy" at time of accident, and thus offending vehicle—which carried no insurance at all—was not "underinsured" within meaning of policy; under CLS Ins § 3420(f)(2), underinsured motorist coverage may properly be limited to situations involving underinsured, but not uninsured, vehicles. Continental Ins. Co. v Reilly, 143 A.D.2d 64, 531 N.Y.S.2d 316, 1988 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8163 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1988).

Offending vehicle was underinsured within meaning of insured's policy, and thus insurance company was not entitled to stay of underinsured motorist arbitration, where (1) offending vehicle was insured with single limit liability coverage in amount of $100,000, and (2) insured had bodily injury liability in amount of $300,000 and uninsured/underinsured coverage in amount of $100,000 per person, not to exceed $300,000 per accident; proper comparison was between bodily injury limits of policies and not between underinsured motorist provisions. Prudential Property & Casualty Ins. Co. v Cooper, 192 A.D.2d 935, 597 N.Y.S.2d 205, 1993 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4045 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1993).

Insured motorist could not maintain action against his insurer to recover uninsured motorist benefits for injury resulting from "the actions of an unidentified motorist," since it was mere conjecture that tree in roadway, which caused insured to swerve and collide with another car, resulted from actions of unidentified motorist. Don v MGM Transp. Corp., 279 A.D.2d 446, 718 N.Y.S.2d 867, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 177 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2001).

Insured was not entitled to uninsured motorist benefits where passing motorist had grabbed her purse, causing her to be pulled alongside accelerating vehicle and ultimately thrown to ground, and thus her injury was not result of accident; insurer's application to stay arbitration should have been granted. Progressive Northwestern Ins. Co. v Van Dina, 282 A.D.2d 680, 724 N.Y.S.2d 431, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4002 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2001).

Former § 167 [now § 5201] specifies the several situations, enumerated in Insurance Law § 600(2), in which the MVAIC indorsement becomes operative so as to render proper the making of a claim against the MVAIC. Gonzalez v Motor Vehicle Accident Indemnification Corp., 48 Misc. 2d 958, 266 N.Y.S.2d 640, 1966 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2307 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1966).

Automobile liability insurer would be held liable for accident to insured hit by uninsured vehicle while traveling on bicycle, since law of both New York and Ontario, Canada, where accident occurred, mandated coverage in situations where covered vehicle is not directly involved in accident. Smith v Nationwide Mut. Ins. Co., 145 Misc. 2d 318, 546 N.Y.S.2d 522, 1989 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 639 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1989), aff'd, 181 A.D.2d 342, 585 N.Y.S.2d 899, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9142 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1992).

Insured motorist was entitled to order directing his insurance company to submit to arbitration of uninsured motorist claim arising from incident in which sand or dirt fell from unidentified dump truck onto roadway and precipitated collision between insured and another vehicle which was traveling next to him, even though there was no contact between insured's vehicle and dump truck; physical contact with material carried on dump truck was sufficient to trigger coverage under uninsured motorist provision of policy. Bajrami v General Accident Ins. Co., 156 Misc. 2d 435, 593 N.Y.S.2d 405, 1993 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 8 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1993), dismissed, 206 A.D.2d 527, 615 N.Y.S.2d 281, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7576 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1994).

71. —Accidents involving assault or battery

Plaintiff could not recover against MVAIC for personal injuries sustained when the owner and operator of an insured automobile deliberately and intentionally ran into the car in which she was riding, her injuries being the result of an assault and battery and not an "accident," and both the driver and the assaulting car being covered by a standard policy of liability insurance. McCarthy v Motor Vehicle Acci. Indemnification Corp., 16 A.D.2d 35, 224 N.Y.S.2d 909, 1962 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11299 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1962), aff'd, 12 N.Y.2d 922, 238 N.Y.S.2d 101, 188 N.E.2d 405, 1963 N.Y. LEXIS 1448 (N.Y. 1963).

There is no provision in the Motor Vehicle Financial Responsibility Act indicating legislative intent to protect all victims of motor vehicles, regardless of how the vehicle may have been used as an instrument of injury, the legislative intent being only to protect victims of "motor vehicle accidents," and the standard "assault and battery clause" being part of the provisions prescribed for an owner's policy of liability insurance. McCarthy v Motor Vehicle Acci. Indemnification Corp., 16 A.D.2d 35, 224 N.Y.S.2d 909, 1962 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11299 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1962), aff'd, 12 N.Y.2d 922, 238 N.Y.S.2d 101, 188 N.E.2d 405, 1963 N.Y. LEXIS 1448 (N.Y. 1963).

An intentional assault is not an "accident" within the meaning of the MVAIC provisions and if an assault were proved, MVAIC could not be held liable to a policeman injured while attempting to apprehend a stolen vehicle. Fuscaldo v Motor Vehicle Acci. Indemnification Corp., 24 A.D.2d 744, 263 N.Y.S.2d 919, 1965 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3284 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1965).

The function of MVAIC is not to indemnify a wrongdoer, but to compensate an innocent victim, and it would not be against public policy of the State of New York to permit recovery against MVAIC for willful vehicular assaults, but the provisions limiting its liability to injury sustained by "accident" preclude MVAIC from being found liable in assault cases. Application of Motor Vehicle Accident Indemnification Corp., 32 Misc. 2d 946, 228 N.Y.S.2d 508, 1962 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3845 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1962), rev'd, Motor Vehicle Acci. Indemnification Corp. v Jerman, 18 A.D.2d 810, 238 N.Y.S.2d 507, 1963 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5015 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1963), rev'd, Motor Vehicle Accident Indemnification Corp. v Brinson, 18 A.D.2d 809, 236 N.Y.S.2d 567, 1963 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5014 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1963).

The word "accident" as used in former §§ 167 and 600 [now §§ 3420 and 5201] of the Insurance Law has a precise judicial interpretation and intentional assaults are not within the range of its meaning. Application of Motor Vehicle Accident Indemnification Corp., 32 Misc. 2d 946, 228 N.Y.S.2d 508, 1962 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3845 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1962), rev'd, Motor Vehicle Acci. Indemnification Corp. v Jerman, 18 A.D.2d 810, 238 N.Y.S.2d 507, 1963 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5015 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1963), rev'd, Motor Vehicle Accident Indemnification Corp. v Brinson, 18 A.D.2d 809, 236 N.Y.S.2d 567, 1963 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5014 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1963).

72. —Disclaimer of liability by insurer

Subdivision 2-a of former § 167 [now § 3420(f)] requires all liability policies to contain a provision insuring against loss "where the insurer disclaims liability or denies coverage," but it is not sufficient to give an injured person a right of action against MVAIC under coverage of the required statutory indorsement that an insurer has disclaimed, without judicial investigation of validity of the disclaimer and of whether the policy even provided effective coverage. Motor Vehicle Accident Indemnification Corp. v Malone, 16 N.Y.2d 1027, 265 N.Y.S.2d 906, 213 N.E.2d 316, 1965 N.Y. LEXIS 1013 (N.Y. 1965).

Referee properly granted petition to stay arbitration of uninsured motorist claim, on ground that offending vehicle was insured as of date of accident, where petitioner produced certified copy of vehicle registration record indicating that vehicle was insured as of date of accident, and respondent insurer failed to produce any evidence indicating that it filed cancellation notice with Commissioner of Motor Vehicles as required by CLS Veh & Tr § 313(2) and (3). State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. v Kanter, 217 A.D.2d 633, 629 N.Y.S.2d 786, 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7802 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1995).

Insurer waived its right to rely on policy clause excluding plaintiffs from uninsured motorist coverage when such coverage was available to them under another policy, where insurer did not refer to this exclusion in its disclaimer letter but rather disclaimed coverage on ground that stacking was not permitted under New York law. Cain v Allstate Ins. Co., 234 A.D.2d 775, 650 N.Y.S.2d 886, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12470 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1996).

MVAIC has no right to demand that the injured person first establish prima facie validity of the disclaimer before proceeding directly against MVAIC, where it is not in a position to contest the fact of disclaimer or denial of liability by the alleged insurer. Application of Motor Vehicle Acci. Indemnification Corp., 33 Misc. 2d 567, 227 N.Y.S.2d 864, 1962 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3634 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1962).

Although the New York Automobile Accident Indemnification Indorsement which is required by subd. 2-a of former § 167 [now § 3420(f)] to be included in every automobile liability policy issued in New York State, makes no specific reference to a disclaimer of liability by the insurer of the offending vehicle, under the clear language of this section the indorsement clearly and as matter of law is deemed to include protection for an insured "where the insurer disclaims liability or denies coverage." Application of Motor Vehicle Acci. Indemnification Corp., 33 Misc. 2d 567, 227 N.Y.S.2d 864, 1962 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3634 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1962).

Where it appears, in connection with an application to require MVAIC to submit to arbitration, under the Standard Statutory Motor Vehicle Accident Indemnification Indorsement on a motorist's policy, that the offending motorist was insured at the time of the accident and that his insurer has not disclaimed, or denied coverage, there is no present basis for a proceeding against MVAIC. Application of Di Stefano, 34 Misc. 2d 68, 228 N.Y.S.2d 404, 1962 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3508 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1962).

With respect to a petition by an injured motorist to require MVAIC to submit to arbitration, under the Statutory Standard Indemnification Indorsement, following a denial of coverage by the negligent motorist's insurer, MVAIC was not entitled to raise an objection that the negligent motorist was covered by insurance. Kaiser v Motor Vehicle Acci. Indemnification Corp., 35 Misc. 2d 636, 231 N.Y.S.2d 178, 1962 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3137 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1962).

Where MVAIC challenges status of an injured person in seeking to enforce its liability on the basis of disclaimer by the liability insurer, the court need not consider the fact that the injured person has theretofore asserted status as a "qualified" person in attempting to make a claim pursuant to former § 608 [now § 5208]. In re Motor Vehicle Acci. Indemnification Corp., 37 Misc. 2d 97, 232 N.Y.S.2d 443, 1962 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2857 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1962).

Subdivision 2-a of former § 167 [now § 3420(f)] imposes no requirement that a liability insurer's disclaimer of liability be valid before an injured person is entitled to impose liability upon MVAIC, and MVAIC accordingly has no right to challenge validity of the disclaimer as a matter for determination in advance of submission of its liability to arbitration. In re Motor Vehicle Acci. Indemnification Corp., 37 Misc. 2d 97, 232 N.Y.S.2d 443, 1962 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2857 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1962).

The insured automobile in which the claimant was riding as a passenger at the time she was injured in a one-car accident did not become an uninsured vehicle by virtue of the insurance carrier's disclaimer based upon the failure of the insured to give timely notice of the accident. Shumate v Motor Vehicle Accident Indemnification Corp., 50 Misc. 2d 31, 269 N.Y.S.2d 639, 1966 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1927 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1966).

Where passenger was injured in a single vehicle collision and insurer disclaimed liability on ground of failure of insured to give timely notice, claimant had coverage under MVAIC indorsement to insured's driver's liability policy. Murphy v Criterion Ins. Co., 57 Misc. 2d 52, 293 N.Y.S.2d 851, 1968 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1680 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1968).

In action by plaintiff who was injured in one-car accident while riding in defendants' vehicle, wherein defendants' insurer disclaimed coverage and brought separate action against defendants and plaintiff for judgment declaring that it was not obligated to defend and indemnify defendants, plaintiff was not entitled to amend his complaint to assert, as against insurer, that he was covered by uninsured motorist provision of policy issued to defendants, as such claim was patently lacking in merit; insured vehicle cannot itself qualify as uninsured vehicle for coverage purposes based on insurer's own disclaimer of coverage. Brociner v Mann, 184 Misc. 2d 789, 711 N.Y.S.2d 691, 2000 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 258 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 2000).

Court erred in declining to permit an insurance company to submit evidence that the use of its insured's vehicle at the time of the accident was nonpermissive and focusing solely on the timeliness of the insurance company's disclaimer under N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420. Only if the nonpermissive use falls within a policy exclusion must the court address the timeliness of the disclaimer. Liberty Mut. Ins. Co. v McDonald, 6 A.D.3d 614, 775 N.Y.S.2d 83, 2004 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4721 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2004).

73. —Hit and run accident

The insurer's motion for an order permanently staying arbitration must be granted in an action brought to recover for damages sustained when ice and snow dislodged from an unidentified truck approaching from the opposite direction struck and broke plaintiff's windshield, since there was no "physical contact" within the contemplation of the Insurance Law with respect to "hit and run" cases. Smith v Great American Ins. Co., 29 N.Y.2d 116, 324 N.Y.S.2d 15, 272 N.E.2d 528, 1971 N.Y. LEXIS 1162 (N.Y. 1971).

The remedy of a pedestrian struck by a hit-and-run driver is under former § 167 [now § 3420], not under former § 618 [now § 5218], if any he has, where, although he does not himself own an automobile, he is covered by insurance carried by his wife on her automobile as a member of the family. Balletti v Motor Vehicle Accident Indemnification Corp., 16 A.D.2d 814, 228 N.Y.S.2d 768, 1962 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9574 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1962).

References in MVAIC legislation to unidentified or unascertainable motor vehicle and operator does not limit application of such legislation to situations in which the automobile leaves the scene of the accident before the operator's identity could be determined, but also includes the situation where, at the time of the accident, there is no need to inquire into the identity of the operator since there is no apparent injury, and the failure to inquire results in inability to ascertain the identity of the operator at a later time. Riemenschneider v Motor Vehicle Acci. Indemnification Corp., 26 A.D.2d 309, 274 N.Y.S.2d 71, 1966 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3260 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1966), aff'd, 20 N.Y.2d 547, 285 N.Y.S.2d 593, 232 N.E.2d 630, 1967 N.Y. LEXIS 1094 (N.Y. 1967).

Where an unidentified car struck the vehicle of defendant, thence propelling such vehicle into that of claimant, a hit-and-run automobile was involved within the meaning of the uninsured motorist statute. Powers v Continental Ins. Co., 29 A.D.2d 1041, 289 N.Y.S.2d 467, 1968 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4167 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), app. denied, 22 N.Y.2d 645, 1968 N.Y. LEXIS 2099 (N.Y. 1968).

Plaintiff denied leave to sue the Motor Vehicle Accident Indemnification Corporation under evidence that plaintiff was injured when the taxicab in which she was a passenger was struck by a hit-and-run vehicle; that at the time of the accident the wife of the taxicab driver owned still another automobile and was the holder of a liability insurance policy covering it; that the policy contained the standard indorsement required by subdivision 2-a of former § 167 [now § 3420(f)] of the Insurance Law, under which indorsement an "insured" included a person occupying any automobile which was operated by the named insured or her spouse; and that therefore the plaintiff was occupying an automobile driven by the insured's spouse and thus was an "insured" and therefore could not sue the Motor Vehicle Accident Indemnification Corporation. Gorskie v Motor Vehicle Acci. Indemnification Corp., 33 A.D.2d 1045, 308 N.Y.S.2d 805, 1970 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5429 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1970).

Passengers who were injured when the bus on which they were riding was involved in an accident with a hit-and-run automobile were "insured persons within the definition of that term in the standard indemnification indorsment and therefore could not sue the Motor Vehicle Accident Indemnification Corporation since they had an adequate remedy against the insurer of the bus. Saitz v Motor Vehicle Acci. Indemnification Corp., 33 A.D.2d 1048, 308 N.Y.S.2d 763, 1970 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5433 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1970).

Uninsured motorist provision in insurance policy providing coverage where there cannot be ascertained the "identity of either the operator or the owner of such hit-and-run automobile" would be construed to permit arbitration in situation in which owner of hit and run vehicle was known but operator thereof was not and owner was not liable to plaintiff for injuries. Allstate Ins. Co. v McGouey, 42 A.D.2d 730, 346 N.Y.S.2d 115, 1973 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3830 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1973).

Arbitration of insurance coverage was stayed pending determination upon trial of whether there was in fact "contact" with a "hit and run vehicle" where insured's failure to mention "contact" with another vehicle either in police report of accident or in motor vehicle report raised questions of insured's credibility and whether there actually was "contact". Allstate Ins. Allstate Ins. Co. v Morales, 42 A.D.2d 951, 348 N.Y.S.2d 148 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1973).

It was apparent from language used in definition of "hit and run automobile" in uninsured motorist endorsement in automobile insurance policy that insured would not be apt to consider it to mean that both owner and operator of car must be unknown in order to constitute hit and run vehicle and ambiguity should be resolved in favor of insured; accordingly, insured's automobile, which rolled forward injuring her after stranger was seen reaching into car and doing something with his hands immediately before accident, was not excluded from definition of "hit and run" automobile. Carmichael v Government Employees Ins. Co., 54 A.D.2d 140, 388 N.Y.S.2d 354, 1976 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13739 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1976).

On a claim under an uninsured motorist indorsement arising from claimant's alleged accident with a hit-and-run vehicle, the trial court erred in denying the insurer's application to stay arbitration, where a factual issue was clearly presented as to whether there was physical contact between claimant and the alleged hit-and-run vehicle. Allstate Ins. Co. v Jacobs, 85 A.D.2d 542, 444 N.Y.S.2d 665, 1981 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 16322 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1981).

Motorist involved in automobile collision with vehicle driven by unknown man was not entitled to uninsured motorist benefits because his injuries were not caused by accident, and did not arise from physical contact between vehicles, where he was not injured as result of collision but was shot with handgun by other driver after both he and other driver exited their vehicles; therefore, insurer was entitled to summary judgment dismissing motorist's complaint. Locascio v Atlantic Mut. Ins. Co., 127 A.D.2d 746, 511 N.Y.S.2d 934, 1987 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 43231 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1987), app. denied, 70 N.Y.2d 616, 526 N.Y.S.2d 436, 521 N.E.2d 443, 1988 N.Y. LEXIS 144 (N.Y. 1988).

Insurer was entitled to stay of arbitration of bicycle commuter who claimed uninsured motorist benefits for injury he sustained when truck passed so close as to graze portfolio strapped to bicycle's rear carrier, causing fall, since truck never came in contact with insured or his bicycle, bicycle is not within definition of "motor vehicle," and contact did not originate in "collision" that could enable insured to proceed on theory of indirect physical contact. General Accident Ins. Co. v Gladstone, 260 A.D.2d 855, 687 N.Y.S.2d 830, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4031 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1999).

Plaintiff was precluded from recovering uninsured motorist benefits, and thus court properly granted insurer's motion to stay arbitration of uninsured motorist claim, where insured failed to report alleged hit-and-run accident to police within 24 hours or as soon as reasonably possible, as insurance policy required. Gov't Emples. Ins. Co. v Snell, 286 A.D.2d 682, 729 N.Y.S.2d 779, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8445 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2001).

The definition of "hit-and-run" automobile in the uninsured motorist indorsement required by law in New York State automobile liability policies, not only requires that the accident be reported within 24 hours or as soon as reasonably possible to police, etc., officials or to the Commissioner of Motor Vehicles, but also that the injuries sustained arise out of physical contact of the hit-and-run car with the insured car, both conditions being prerequisite to filing of a claim against MVAIC. Motor Vehicle Acci. Indemnification Corp. v Stein, 35 Misc. 2d 1007, 231 N.Y.S.2d 727, 1962 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2896 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1962).

An insured motorist, seeking arbitration of a claim against MVAIC on the basis of injury sustained in an accident involving a hit-and-run vehicle, is not bound by the police records concerning the report of the accident not showing that a hit-and-run car was involved, and neither is MVAIC bound to accept, without a hearing, petitioner's version of the accident as occasioned by being sideswiped by such a vehicle, and in such case arbitration should be stayed pending determination of the issues raised. Motor Vehicle Acci. Indemnification Corp. v Reuter, 36 Misc. 2d 65, 232 N.Y.S.2d 835, 1962 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2822 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1962).

74. —Insolvency of insurer

The uninsured motorist coverage of former section 167 (subd 2-a) [now § 3420(f)] of the Insurance Law does not provide an alternative remedy to that prescribed in former sections 333 and 334 [now §§ 7601 et seq.] of the Insurance Law, which create a fund for the payment of claims against insolvent domestic insurers, and, where a person is injured in an automobile accident and the person allegedly responsible for the accident is insured by a domestic insurer which becomes insolvent subsequent to the accident, the injured person may not elect between the two remedies. State-Wide Ins. Co. v Curry, 43 N.Y.2d 298, 401 N.Y.S.2d 196, 372 N.E.2d 31, 1977 N.Y. LEXIS 2464 (N.Y. 1977).

A vehicle insured by a domestic insurer which becomes insolvent after the vehicle is involved in an accident is neither "an uninsured motor vehicle" nor "an insured motor vehicle where the insurer disclaims liability or denies coverage" within the meaning of former section 167 (subd 2-a) [now § 3420(f)] of the Insurance Law, requiring that insurers provide the New York Automobile Accident Indemnification Endorsement. State-Wide Ins. Co. v Curry, 43 N.Y.2d 298, 401 N.Y.S.2d 196, 372 N.E.2d 31, 1977 N.Y. LEXIS 2464 (N.Y. 1977).

Where an insolvent insurer apparently was not licensed to do business in New York and, therefore, had not contributed to the Security Fund created by statute (Insurance Law, former § 333 [now § 7601]) to pay claims against insolvent insurers, and, as a result, claimants could not seek compensation from that fund, the insureds of that insolvent insurer were uninsured motorists, and the New York Automobile Accident Indemnification Endorsement (Insurace Law, former § 167, subd 2-a [now § 3420(f)]) was properly held applicable, not as an alternative remedy to the Security Fund, but as the exclusive remedy. State-Wide Ins. Co. v Curry, 43 N.Y.2d 298, 401 N.Y.S.2d 196, 372 N.E.2d 31, 1977 N.Y. LEXIS 2464 (N.Y. 1977).

The insolvency of an insurance carrier caused a vehicle insured by it to become an "uninsured vehicle" within the meaning of subd 2-a of former § 167 [now § 3420(f)] of the Insurance Law and the petitioner was held entitled to arbitrate her claim against the insurer of one of the other defendants. Travis v General Acci. Group, 31 A.D.2d 20, 294 N.Y.S.2d 874, 1968 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2906 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1968).

The standard uninsured motorist indorsement extends coverage to an injured innocent "insured" victim of an automobile accident, where the alleged tortfeasor at the time of the accident was covered by liability insurance which subsequently became ineffective by reason of the insolvency of the tortfeasor's insurer. In re Taub, 31 A.D.2d 378, 298 N.Y.S.2d 212, 1969 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4408 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1969).

Insolvency of insurer, resulting in failure of insurer to defend insured, held to constitute a "denial of coverage" within terms of uninsured motorist clause of policy so that injured motorist was entitled to arbitration of claim under his own policy. Bendelow v Travelers Indem. Co., 57 Misc. 2d 327, 293 N.Y.S.2d 629, 1968 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1298 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1968).

The insolvency and liquidation of the insurer of the offending vehicle is tantamount to a disclaimer or denial of coverage, permitting a claimant to proceed to arbitration under the arbitration indorsement under his own policy. Motor Vehicle Accident Indemnification Corp. v Goldberg, 65 Misc. 2d 778, 317 N.Y.S.2d 846, 1970 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1210 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1970).

Insurance carrier's subsequent insolvency did not render offending vehicle uninsured for purposes of arbitration under respondents' insurance policy where respondents had available remedy through Public Motor Vehicle Liability Security Fund; thus, permanent stay of arbitration was granted. Government Emples. Ins. Co. v Silber, 178 Misc. 2d 451, 679 N.Y.S.2d 552, 1998 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 500 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1998).

Motorist carrying supplementary uninsured motorist coverage may apply that coverage toward an accident with a vehicle which is insured but whose insurance company subsequently becomes insolvent. Am. Mfrs. Mut. Ins. Co. v Morgan, 296 A.D.2d 491, 746 N.Y.S.2d 726, 2002 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7506 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2002).

Insolvency of an insurer whose insured vehicle collided with a passenger's vehicle did not entitle the passenger to uninsured motorist coverage because the insured vehicle did not fall into any of the uninsured motorist classifications established in N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(f)(1) in that the vehicle was insured and registered in New York, it was not stolen or unidentified, it was operated with the owner's permission, and the insurer's insolvency did not constitute a disclaimer of liability or a denial of coverage; the policy survived the insolvency because coverage was available from the New York Public Motor Vehicles Liability Security Fund (PMV fund) established by N.Y. Ins. Law § 7604(a), and, since the passenger had not sought coverage from the PMV fund, she could not claim that coverage had been denied. Am. Tr. Ins. v Barger, 819 N.Y.S.2d 654, 13 Misc. 3d 386, 2006 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2028 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 2006).

Passenger who was injured when her vehicle collided with another vehicle covered by an insurer that later became insolvent was not entitled to uninsured motorist coverage because coverage was available through the New York Public Motor Vehicles Liability Security Fund under N.Y. Ins. Law § 7604 and the passenger did not show that she was covered by supplemental uninsured motorist coverage; the expanded definition of an uninsured motorist in N.Y. Comp. Codes R. & Regs. tit. 11, § 60-2.3, known as Regulation 35-D, that included motorists covered by insolvent insurers came into play only when a claimant had purchased supplemental uninsured motorist coverage available through N.Y. Ins. Law 3420(f)(2), and there was no evidence that the passenger had purchased such coverage. Am. Tr. Ins. v Barger, 819 N.Y.S.2d 654, 13 Misc. 3d 386, 2006 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2028 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 2006).

75. —Vehicle used without owner's permission

Fraud of automobile lessee in obtaining use of the vehicle from lessor, i.e., by use of stolen credit card and forged or stolen identification card and license, was not the equivalent of theft and did not render the vehicle a "stolen" vehicle within meaning of provision of liability policy covering other vehicle involved in collision and obligating such insurer to furnish coverage in event an operator of the insured vehicle was involved in an accident with a stolen vehicle. Allstate Ins. Co. v Dailey, 47 A.D.2d 375, 367 N.Y.S.2d 87, 1975 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9249 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1975), aff'd, 39 N.Y.2d 759, 384 N.Y.S.2d 776, 349 N.E.2d 876, 1976 N.Y. LEXIS 2702 (N.Y. 1976).

In reference to uninsured motorist endorsement in automobile insurance policy which specifically excluded automobile owned by named insured from its coverage for uninsured automobiles, exclusion from coverage as "uninsured automobile" of insured's automobile, which rolled forward injuring insured after stranger was seen reaching into car and doing something with his hands, was contrary to her status as insured; exclusion could not be held to encompass situation where insured's own automobile was used by person without her permission. Carmichael v Government Employees Ins. Co., 54 A.D.2d 140, 388 N.Y.S.2d 354, 1976 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13739 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1976).

Evidence established that offending vehicle was uninsured where (1) it was stolen prior to accident, and theft was reported to police 3 days prior to accident and after term of rental agreement for vehicle had expired without return of vehicle, and (2) at time of accident, vehicle, which had been rented under false pretenses, was being driven by someone other than individual who rented it. State-Wide Ins. Co. v Morales, 204 A.D.2d 336, 614 N.Y.S.2d 146, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4515 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1994), app. denied, 84 N.Y.2d 812, 622 N.Y.S.2d 915, 647 N.E.2d 121, 1995 N.Y. LEXIS 34 (N.Y. 1995).

Nonpermissive use exclusion in uninsured motorists insurance endorsement of motor vehicle liability policy did not violate CLS Ins § 3420(f)(1). Graphic Arts Mut. Ins. Co. v Leno ex rel. Leno, 251 A.D.2d 981, 674 N.Y.S.2d 535, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6992 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't), app. denied, 92 N.Y.2d 814, 681 N.Y.S.2d 474, 704 N.E.2d 227, 1998 N.Y. LEXIS 4009 (N.Y. 1998).

Insurers were entitled to permanent stay of arbitration where insureds' knowing and active participation in unauthorized use of vehicle precluded their recovery for injuries resulting from that conduct, under nonpermissive use exclusion in uninsured motorists insurance endorsement of motor vehicle liability policy. Graphic Arts Mut. Ins. Co. v Leno ex rel. Leno, 251 A.D.2d 981, 674 N.Y.S.2d 535, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6992 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't), app. denied, 92 N.Y.2d 814, 681 N.Y.S.2d 474, 704 N.E.2d 227, 1998 N.Y. LEXIS 4009 (N.Y. 1998).

76. Burden of proof

For an injured person to recover against MVAIC on the basis of its compulsory statutory indorsement of every automobile liability insurance policy with respect to damage caused by the owner or operator of an "uninsured" automobile "by accident," plaintiff has the burden of establishing (1) that the automobile which caused her injury was an uninsured one, and (2) that her injury was "caused by accident." McCarthy v Motor Vehicle Acci. Indemnification Corp., 16 A.D.2d 35, 224 N.Y.S.2d 909, 1962 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11299 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1962), aff'd, 12 N.Y.2d 922, 238 N.Y.S.2d 101, 188 N.E.2d 405, 1963 N.Y. LEXIS 1448 (N.Y. 1963).

The party seeking to stay arbitration has the burden of showing the existence of sufficient evidentiary facts to establish a genuine issue as to whether an uninsured vehicle was involved. O'Brien v Aetna Casualty & Surety Co., 33 A.D.2d 1085, 307 N.Y.S.2d 689, 1970 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5477 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1970).

A denial of a claim to recover for damages allegedly sustained in a collision with an uninsured motor vehicle was proper, where on claimant's request for insurance information, claimant listed an incorrect plate number, where due to that error claimant failed to prove that the automobile that struck him was uninsured, and where it was incumbent upon the claimant, not the insurer, to establish by competent evidence that the vehicle involved was uninsured. Superintendent of Ins. as Liquidator of Resources Ins. Co. v Lilley, 100 A.D.2d 807, 474 N.Y.S.2d 736, 1984 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 17912 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1984).

In proceeding to determine uninsured motorist claim, proof of insurance offered by claimant's insurer in form of Department of Motor Vehicles DP-37 form is sufficient prima facie evidence of coverage to shift burden of going forward with proof to company disclaiming coverage. American Transit Ins. Co. v Glaude, 208 A.D.2d 376, 617 N.Y.S.2d 7, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9403 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1994).

In proceeding to determine uninsured motorist claim, court erred when it deemed introduction of Department of Motor Vehicles DP-37 form by claimant's insurer to be conclusive evidence of coverage, thereby failing to properly credit disclaiming company's rebuttal evidence that exhaustive search was made and no policy could be located. American Transit Ins. Co. v Glaude, 208 A.D.2d 376, 617 N.Y.S.2d 7, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9403 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1994).

Summary judgment was improperly denied on ground that evidence did not prove whether plaintiff's damages exceeded $10,000 prerequisite for recovery under underinsurance provision in CLS Ins § 3420(f)(2)(A) where plaintiff's moving papers included his medical and hospital records and his verified bill of particulars, his settlement for $10,000 maximum under policy had been approved by insurer, there was no dispute as to extensive nature of his injuries, and IAS Court was not required to calculate damages but simply to find that coverage existed and direct hearing on damages. Gorgone v Regency Agency, 238 A.D.2d 265, 656 N.Y.S.2d 622, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4320 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1997).

Where an injured person who is an "insured person" seeks to require MVAIC, under the New York Automobile Accident Indemnification Indorsement, to submit liability arising out of an accident involving an allegedly uninsured vehicle to arbitration, and MVAIC opposes the application, petitioner has the preliminary burden of establishing that such other vehicle was uninsured and is not entitled to have its demand for arbitration granted unless he so establishes, as there is no presumption whatsoever that the other vehicle was uninsured. Application of Motor Vehicle Acci. Indemnification Corp., 36 Misc. 2d 985, 234 N.Y.S.2d 445, 1962 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2920 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1962).

Although a lack of insurance will not be presumed in a proceeding for arbitration of a claim against MVAIC, where the automobile alleged to be uninsured was registered in another state which keeps no record of automobile liability insurance, lack of such insurance was sufficiently proved by testimony of counsel for such claimant that the owner of such automobile had stated to him that he had no such insurance. Motor Vehicle Accident Indemnification Corp. v Mahoney, 46 Misc. 2d 3, 258 N.Y.S.2d 801, 1965 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2007 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1965), aff'd, 25 A.D.2d 821, 270 N.Y.S.2d 381, 1966 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7078 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1966).

A claimant has the burden of establishing the noninsured status of the other vehicle by a fair preponderance of the evidence, and is neither assisted by any presumption of noninsurance nor is burdened by any contrary affirmative presumption of insurance. Foster v Motor Vehicle Accident Indemnification Corp., 55 Misc. 2d 784, 286 N.Y.S.2d 775, 1967 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1253 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1967).

The claimant, who sustained personal injuries when the taxicab he was driving was struck by an automobile owned by a Pennsylvania resident and driven by a resident of New York City, by presenting uncontradicted evidence showing that the New York State Department of Motor Vehicles had revoked the nonresident motor vehicle privileges of the owner of the Pennsylvania automobile for failure to submit evidence that he was properly insured at the time of the accident and in addition evidence that the driver of the Pennsylvania car was not covered by the requisite liability insurance on the date of the accident had sufficiently sustained his burden of establishing the uninsured status of the other vehicle and was entitled to proceed to arbitration. Foster v Motor Vehicle Accident Indemnification Corp., 55 Misc. 2d 784, 286 N.Y.S.2d 775, 1967 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1253 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1967).

Where the claimant offered proof that the vehicle which struck the automobile in which he was riding as a passenger was driven by an l8-year-old AWOL sailor, who was driving while intoxicated and without a license, and that the sailor had never filed a report of the accident, the motion by the insurer to stay arbitration proceedings was denied since to require more proof of the lack of insurance coverage would be to propose an impossible burden upon the innocent victim of an automobile accident and entirely frustrate the purpose of the law. Merchants Mut. Ins. Co. v Schmid, 56 Misc. 2d 360, 288 N.Y.S.2d 822, 1968 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1821 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1968).

Although the burden of proof is on the injured party to establish the existence of coverage by the offending motorist's insurer in order to recover from such insurer, and the burden is likewise on the injured party to establish the lack of such coverage in order to recover from his own insurer under his uninsured motorist clause, in a declaratory proceeding to which both insurers were parties the injured person's claim could not be defeated by his inability to prove either the existence or the lack of coverage of the offending motorist. Olenick v Government Employees Ins. Co., 68 Misc. 2d 764, 328 N.Y.S.2d 50, 1971 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1115 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1971), modified, 42 A.D.2d 760, 346 N.Y.S.2d 320, 1973 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3757 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1973).

In a proceeding by a passenger on a public transit authority bus who was injured when the bus collided with another vehicle and who demanded arbitration, the passenger would not be required to prove that the other vehicle was uninsured, since the burden of proving uninsurance was on the insurer, and a preliminary hearing on the lack of insurance would be required only in the absence of a positive statement by the passenger that the vehicle was uninsured coupled with a supportable contention by the insurer that the status of insurance was in doubt. Manhattan & Bronx Surface Transit Operating Authority v Coccia, 118 Misc. 2d

378, 460 N.Y.S.2d 446, 1983 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3324 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1983).

One who claims uninsured motorist benefits is neither assisted by presumption that adverse vehicle was not insured nor burdened by presumption that it was. Eagle Ins. Co. v Ruiz, 141 Misc. 2d 815, 535 N.Y.S.2d 294, 1988 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 705 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1988).

77. Limitations on amount of liability

Terms of underinsured motorist coverage, providing that $100,000 per person policy limit "is the amount of coverage for all damages due to bodily injury to one person" and that $300,000 limits of liability for "'Each Accident' is the total amount of coverage for all damages due to bodily injury to 2 or more persons in the same accident," were ambiguous where policy did not contain any language deeming $300,000 per accident limit "subject to" per-person limit; thus, policy terms would be construed in favor of insureds. Mostow v State Farm Ins. Cos., 88 N.Y.2d 321, 645 N.Y.S.2d 421, 668 N.E.2d 392, 1996 N.Y. LEXIS 1169 (N.Y. 1996).

Where insured, who was injured when his car collided with another car, recovered policy limits of other driver's insurance, but alleged injuries exceeding policy limits and sought to recover from his own insurer under his policy's supplementary underinsured motorist endorsement, authorized by CLS Insurance § 3420(f)(2), insured could not recover under supplementary underinsured motorist coverage since driver of other car and insured's policies have same bodily injuries limits, and thus other driver cannot be deemed either underinsured motorist under insured's policy or one who would trigger coverage under § 3420(f)(2). Hanover Ins. Co. v St. Louis, 119 A.D.2d 529, 501 N.Y.S.2d 347, 1986 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 55462 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't), app. dismissed, 68 N.Y.2d 751, 506 N.Y.S.2d 336, 497 N.E.2d 703, 1986 N.Y. LEXIS 19509 (N.Y. 1986).

Supreme Court erred in granting insurer permanent stay of arbitration based on ground that underinsured motorist coverage was not available to insured because bodily injury coverage provided in insurance policies issued to operator and owner of motor vehicle involved in accident equaled or exceeded state's minimum financial responsibility requirements since, under CLS Ins § 3420(f)(2), applicability of underinsured motorist coverage is governed not by state's financial responsibility requirements but by whether bodily injury liability coverage applicable to motor vehicle in question is less than limit of bodily injury liability coverage in policy issued by insurer to insured. Fireman's Fund Ins. Co. v Freda, 156 A.D.2d 364, 548 N.Y.S.2d 319, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 15418 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1989).

New York residents, who were injured in automobile accident in province of Quebec, Canada, when their car collided with vehicle operated by Quebec resident, could recover under underinsured motorist endorsement contained in policy of motor vehicle liability insurance on their car issued by New York State insurance carrier since (1) offending vehicle was insured for bodily injury liability under Quebec Automobile Insurance Act (QAIA), mandatory system of insurance reparations that compensates nonresident claimants to extent they are not responsible for accident to maximum of $20,000, (2) instant policy, in compliance with CLS Ins § 3420(f)(2), defined underinsured vehicle as one to which bodily injury liability bond or policy applied but where its limit of liability was less than limit of liability provided in policy, and (3) limit of QAIA bodily injury liability coverage was less than that provided under underinsured motorist endorsement of policy; moreover, since policy coverage expressly included provinces of Canada, insurance laws of which carrier was presumed to have knowledge, carrier could not be allowed to collect premiums therefor and then deny liability. Federal Ins. Co. v Watnick, 176 A.D.2d 38, 578 N.Y.S.2d 624, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 738 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't), aff'd, modified, 80 N.Y.2d 539, 592 N.Y.S.2d 624, 607 N.E.2d 771, 1992 N.Y. LEXIS 4225 (N.Y. 1992).

Underinsured motorist provision providing coverage of $11,000 was not "null and void" on ground that it was not equal to amount of liability coverage provided by policy. Morrison by Morrison v Worldwide Ins. Group, 212 A.D.2d 518, 622 N.Y.S.2d 120, 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1099 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1995).

Insured could not seek $20,000 per accident limit of her supplementary uninsured motorist endorsement on ground that 2 people were injured in accident since only insured had made claim under such endorsement, and thus she was limited by $10,000 per person limit of endorsement. Nationwide Ins. Co. v Riley, 244 A.D.2d 337, 665 N.Y.S.2d 533, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11018 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1997).

An arbitrator's award directing an insurer to pay the insured's wife the sum of $20,000 and to pay the insured the sum of $16,500 was based on an error of law with the arbitrator exceeding his power and would be vacated where, even though the insured and his wife were both injured in the same automobile accident involving an uninsured motorist, and the uninsured motorist coverage provided to the insured by the insurer was under separate automobile liability insurance policies for which the insured paid separate premiums, the insureds were not entitled to aggregate or "stack" coverage under the two policies. Nationwide Mut. Ins. Co. v Miller, 124 Misc. 2d 561, 476 N.Y.S.2d 761, 1984 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3240 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1984), aff'd, 111 A.D.2d 438, 488 N.Y.S.2d 497, 1985 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 51530 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1985).

Insured would be declared entitled to full $50,000 amount of his underinsured motorist coverage where policy provided liability coverage of $100,000/$300,000 and his injuries exceeded $50,000 liability limit in settling tortfeasor's policy, since in determining extent of underinsured motorist coverage under CLS Ins § 3420(f)(2), tortfeasor's limit is to be compared with insured's liability limit rather than with insured underinsurance coverage limit. Gullo v Hartford Ins. Co., 145 Misc. 2d 330, 547 N.Y.S.2d 187, 1989 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 637 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1989).

Arbitration of claim for underinsured motorist coverage in amount of $10,000 would be directed to proceed where claimant's automobile liability policy had bodily injury coverage in amount of $100,000/$300,000, with supplementary underinsurance coverage with limits of $10,000/$20,000, and insurer for other party to accident tendered policy liability limit of $10,000; reference point triggering availability of underinsurance coverage pursuant to CLS Ins § 3420 (f) (2) is bodily injury limit of insured's policy compared to policy limit of other vehicle, not amount of insured's underinsurance coverage. Tetteris v Travelers Ins. Co., 146 Misc. 2d 140, 549 N.Y.S.2d 585, 1989 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 824 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1989).

In uninsured motorist arbitration, wherein question existed as to whether insurer's limit of liability was $25,000 to each claimant less that claimant's setoff or $50,000 less combined setoff, principle enunciated in Matter of Mostow v State Farm Insurance Companies, 88 NY2d 321, that such endorsement was ambiguous, was applicable; adoption of regulation 35-D (11 NYCRR subpart 60-2) and its mandatory form of subject endorsement has not done away with any presumption that might be made in favor of insured, since ambiguous language does not become less so because it is repeated elsewhere. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. v Aponte, 182 Misc. 2d 372, 702 N.Y.S.2d 747, 1999 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 486 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1999).

78. —Apportionment of recovery among various claimants

Where automobile liability policy is written for minimum $20,000 amount in case of injury or death to more than one person in any one accident as required by subd 2-a of former § 167 [now § 3420(f)], it is permissible for insurer to settle with one of several claimants although result is that the insurer is unable to pay full amount of judgments subsequently obtained by other claimants. Duprey v Security Mut. Casualty Co., 22 A.D.2d 544, 256 N.Y.S.2d 987, 1965 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4678 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1965).

Insurance law § 3420 limits recovery of insured under uninsured motorist endorsement to $10,000 per person and $20,000 per occurrence and case law prohibits "stacking" of such insurance coverage; therefore, despite fact that husband and wife both hold separate automobile liability policies, $20,000 limitation is clearly applicable where there is only one "occurrence." Nationwide Mut. Ins. Co. v Miller, 111 A.D.2d 438, 488 N.Y.S.2d 497, 1985 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 51530 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1985).

There is no authority for issuing a stay of execution against enforcement of a judgment obtained against MVAIC by arbitration, notwithstanding inability to obtain such a stay may result in an inequitable exhaustion of MVAIC's maximum liability with respect to any one accident before other claimants of damages for injuries sustained in the same accident, can perfect their claims against MVAIC. Steinitz v Motor Vehicle Accident Indemnification Corp., 33 Misc. 2d 228, 225 N.Y.S.2d 147, 1962 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3744 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1962).

Since the accident indemnification endorsement in New York is limited to $20,000 for any one accident, where two "qualified" persons and one "insured" person brought an action against the MVAIC for injuries sustained while passengers in an uninsured vehicle, it was held that only $20,000 was available to the three claimants, and that each claimant was limited to $10,000 of that amount. The court held the insured individual must establish the amount owed to him through arbitration with his insurer, and the qualified claimants must establish the amount of their damages in a court against the MVAIC. Richter v Vitale, 59 Misc. 2d 374, 299 N.Y.S.2d 293, 1969 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1666 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1969).

In case of multiple liability claims against limited liability policy, carrier who has notice of multiple claims must consolidate such claims in interest of dividing as fairly as possible limited assets available, and if carrier fails to consolidate claims, then carrier must be prepared to pay each claim that is awarded within policy limits, even if cumulatively awards exceed such limits. Belizaire v Aetna Cas. & Sur. Co., 171 Misc. 2d 473, 654 N.Y.S.2d 982, 1997 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 21 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1997).

Court would confirm arbitration award of $10,000 where petitioner was injured while one of 4 passengers in car involved in hit-and-run car accident, even though 2 of other passengers had been awarded damages in prior arbitration proceedings, which left only $2,500 of $10,000 per person, $20,000 per incident coverage available under uninsured motorist endorsement of policy for disposition of petitioner's claim and that of fourth passenger who also filed claim, since insurer was aware of but failed to consolidate multiple claims. Belizaire v Aetna Cas. & Sur. Co., 171 Misc. 2d 473, 654 N.Y.S.2d 982, 1997 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 21 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1997).

79. —Other awards which offset amount recoverable

Workmen's compensation benefits paid to a decedent during his lifetime should be set off against an award payable to the next of kin for wrongful death in an action against the MVAIC, and where decedent had collected more than $10,000 in compensation benefits before expiring from the results of a collision with an uninsured motorist, the MVAIC was entitled to a permanent stay of arbitration. Napolitano v Motor Vehicle Acci. Indemnification Corp., 21 N.Y.2d 281, 287 N.Y.S.2d 393, 234 N.E.2d 438, 1967 N.Y. LEXIS 981 (N.Y. 1967).

Unlike minimum coverage mandated by CLS Ins § 3420(f)(1), supplemental uninsured motorist coverage is optional and nothing in CLS Ins § 3420(f)(2) prohibits parties from agreeing to reduce supplemental recovery by amounts received pursuant to workers' compensation laws. Valente v Prudential Property & Casualty Ins. Co., 77 N.Y.2d 894, 568 N.Y.S.2d 901, 571 N.E.2d 71, 1991 N.Y. LEXIS 313 (N.Y. 1991).

Where decedent's car was first hit by first motorist's car, casting him to pavement where he was hit by unknown second motorist and then by third motorist and Motor Vehicle Accident Indemnification Corporation paid claim against second motorist, corporation had right to reimbursement out of recovery against first and third motorists but could not intervene in death action against them because there were no common issues of law or fact. McGee v Horvat, 23 A.D.2d 271, 260 N.Y.S.2d 345, 1965 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4008 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1965).

Where decedent's car was first hit by first motorist's car, casting him to pavement where he was hit by unknown second motorist and then by third motorist and Motor Vehicle Accident Indemnification Corporation paid claim against second motorist, first and third motorists could not claim corporation's payment in mitigation of damages. McGee v Horvat, 23 A.D.2d 271, 260 N.Y.S.2d 345, 1965 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4008 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1965).

Since insurance companies and the Motor Vehicle Accident Indemnification Corporation are separate corporations, separately funded, and provide protection for separate classes of persons, indemnification by insurance company of its own insured does not reduce the $20,000 MVAIC fund available to those victims of uninsured motorists who are not themselves insured. Rittenhouse v Motor Vehicle Acci. Indemnification Corp., 48 A.D.2d 1, 366 N.Y.S.2d 488, 1975 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9528 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1975).

Owner and operator of vehicle which was hit by vehicle in which plaintiff was passenger after unidentified vehicle allegedly sideswiped passenger's vehicle was entitled to include $10,000 payment by host driver's insurer under uninsured motorist provision in mitigation of alleged damages. Brink v Killeen, 48 A.D.2d 823, 368 N.Y.S.2d 547, 1975 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10030 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1975).

Insured, who was injured while passenger on uninsured motorcycle which collided with automobile, and who accepted $10,000 in settlement of claim against motorist, could not recover on uninsured motorist endorsement which limited insurer's liability to $10,000 and which provided for reduction of amount payable by amounts received by insured from persons jointly or severally liable with owner or operator of uninsured vehicle. State Farm Mut. Auto Ins. Co. v Basile, 48 A.D.2d 868, 368 N.Y.S.2d 584, 1975 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10099 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1975).

Arbitrator acted improperly in determining to offset amount of damages awarded under supplementary uninsured motorist endorsement, by deducting workers' compensation benefits insured had received, since offset violated strong public policy to provide injured person with right to obtain compensation for losses other than basic economic loss; however, since parties had agreed that any supplementary coverage payments would be reduced by any amounts paid for workers' compensation, benefits that exceeded $10,000 could properly be offset. Prudential Property & Casualty Ins. Co. v Carleton, 145 A.D.2d 492, 535 N.Y.S.2d 738, 1988 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13258 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1988).

Mandatory provision for offset of amounts recovered from third party tortfeasors and anti-stacking provisions required to be set forth in underinsured motorist endorsements pursuant to 11 NYCRR subpart 60-2 are not arbitrary, capricious or irrational as violative of public policy. National Ass'n of Independent Insurers v Curiale, 190 A.D.2d 597, 593 N.Y.S.2d 812, 1993 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1542 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't), app. denied, 81 N.Y.2d 711, 600 N.Y.S.2d 442, 616 N.E.2d 1104, 1993 N.Y. LEXIS 1809 (N.Y. 1993).

Insurance company would be required to proceed to arbitration on claim for underinsurance benefits where (1) insurance company for driver at fault settled insured's claim for full $10,000 limit of its policy, and (2) insured's policy had limits of $10,000/$20,000 and insurance company claimed that it was entitled to offset for amount already paid to insured, but (3) face sheet of policy did not indicate that underinsured benefits were subject to reduction, as it did for comprehensive and collision. Nationwide Mut. Ins. Co. v Davis, 195 A.D.2d 561, 600 N.Y.S.2d 482, 1993 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7354 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1993), app. denied, 82 N.Y.2d 664, 610 N.Y.S.2d 152, 632 N.E.2d 462, 1994 N.Y. LEXIS 54 (N.Y. 1994).

Where motor vehicle insurance policy covering vehicle involved in accident did not provide bodily injury coverage equivalent to that provided under decedent passenger's policy, coverage provided under supplementary underinsured motorist coverage of passenger's policy was available to cover decedent's claims; although applicable limit of each policy was $100,000, coverage available under policy covering involved vehicle had to be reduced to account for at least minimal amount of property damage insurance required by law. Estate of Schutowich v Allstate Ins. Co., 211 A.D.2d 747, 621 N.Y.S.2d 690, 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 675 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1995).

Court erred in enforcing reduction in coverage clause of insurance policy where policy did not contain single combined endorsement for uninsured and underinsurance motorist coverage. Paolilli v Aetna Ins. Co., 228 A.D.2d 683, 645 N.Y.S.2d 815, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7513 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1996).

In proceeding by insurer under CLS CPLR Art 75, permanent stay of arbitration of underinsured motorist claim would be granted where policy contained single combined limit of uninsured and underinsured motorist coverage of $10,000, and insurer was entitled to offset of $10,000, which was amount that insured recovered from tortfeasor; there was nothing left to arbitrate, because insured had exhausted his policy limit. Nationwide Ins. Co. v Kuchta, 238 A.D.2d 510, 657 N.Y.S.2d 927, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4010 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1997).

In proceeding by insurer under CLS CPLR Art 75, arbitration award to insured of $9,000 would be vacated, because policy limit was exhausted, where policy contained single combined limit of uninsured and underinsured motorist coverage of $10,000, and insurer was entitled to offset of $10,000 that insured recovered from tortfeasor. Nationwide Mut. Ins. Co. v Damaskinos, 238 A.D.2d 511, 657 N.Y.S.2d 928, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3997 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1997).

In proceeding under CLS CPLR Art 75 to permanently stay arbitration of underinsured motorist claim, offset provision relied on by petitioning insurer was enforceable where policy contained single, combined limit of uninsurance/underinsurance covered by one premium and combined endorsement of uninsured and underinsured coverage. Commerce & Indus. Ins. Co. v Weber, 240 A.D.2d 742, 660 N.Y.S.2d 1001, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7130 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1997).

Policy's offset provision authorized by 11 NYCRR § 60-4.1(c) effectively reduced insured's underinsured motorist claim to zero where it was undisputed that insured received $10,000 from carrier of tortfeasor's vehicle, and policy's supplementary uninsured motorist endorsement had $10,000 per person limit. Nationwide Ins. Co. v Riley, 244 A.D.2d 337, 665 N.Y.S.2d 533, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11018 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1997).

Motorist who was injured while driving rental truck in Connecticut was not entitled to recover underinsured motorist benefits under policy, issued in New York to rental agency, in which agency elected supplementary uninsured motorist coverage of $10,000 per person as minimum amount allowable "extended out-of-state," where applicable Connecticut statute providing that uninsured and underinsured coverage be equal to that purchased for bodily injury liability did not make latter required "minimum amount" of coverage under CLS Ins § 5103(e), and unambiguous provisions of underinsured motorist endorsement made motorist's entitlement to benefits subject to offset by $100,000 that he recovered from other driver's insurer. Roberts v Eveready Ins Co., 245 A.D.2d 239, 666 N.Y.S.2d 627, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13428 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1997).

Motorist who was injured while driving rental truck in Connecticut was not entitled to recover underinsured motorist benefits under policy, issued in New York to rental agency, in which agency elected supplementary uninsured motorist coverage of $d10,000 per person as minimum amount allowable "extended out-of-state," where applicable Connecticut statute providing that uninsured and underinsured coverage be equal to that purchased for bodily injury liability did not make latter required "minimum amount" of coverage under CLS Ins § 5103(e), and unambiguous provisions of underinsured motorist endorsement made motorist's entitlement to benefits subject to offset by $d100,000 that he recovered from other driver's insurer. Roberts v Eveready Ins Co., 245 A.D.2d 239, 666 N.Y.S.2d 627, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13428 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1997).

80. —Statutory limits

CLS Ins § 3420(f)(2), which requires insureds to "exhaust...by payment" limits of all applicable bodily injury insurance policies before insurer is required to pay under underinsurance endorsement, requires primary insurers to pay every last dollar, and requires insureds to accept no less, prior to initiation of underinsurance claim. Federal Ins. Co. v Watnick, 80 N.Y.2d 539, 592 N.Y.S.2d 624, 607 N.E.2d 771, 1992 N.Y. LEXIS 4225 (N.Y. 1992).

Limit to be used in comparison under CLS Ins § 3420(f)(2) between "limits of liability under all bodily injury liability bonds and insurance policies of another motor vehicle liable for damages" and "bodily injury liability insurance limits of coverage" is insured's bodily injury limit, not limit contained in insured's supplementary uninsured/underinsured motorist endorsement. Prudential Property & Casualty Co. v Szeli, 83 N.Y.2d 681, 613 N.Y.S.2d 113, 635 N.E.2d 282, 1994 N.Y. LEXIS 1282 (N.Y. 1994).

By its terms, CLS Ins § 3420(f)(2) calls for facial comparison of policy limits without reduction from judgment of other claims arising from any given accident. Prudential Property & Casualty Co. v Szeli, 83 N.Y.2d 681, 613 N.Y.S.2d 113, 635 N.E.2d 282, 1994 N.Y. LEXIS 1282 (N.Y. 1994).

With regard to injuries sustained by Massachusetts insured in automobile accident which involved uninsured motorist and which occurred in New York after July 1, 1973, applicable limit of such insured's recovery under uninsured motorist coverage of automobile liability policy, which provided for all the coverages mandated under Massachusetts law including uninsured motorist coverage of $5,000 per person/$10,000 per occurrence, was the higher $10,000 New York State limit. O'Wyatt v New Hampshire Ins. Co., 53 A.D.2d 454, 385 N.Y.S.2d 627, 1976 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13075 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1976).

Bodily injury liability limits contained in insured's policy are relevant to determine whether insurer must provide underinsured motorist insurance coverage to insured under CLS Ins § 3420(f)(2), but do not limit such coverage, and thus pedestrian, injured by driver who carried bodily injury liability limits of $10,000, was covered to extent of $50,000 pursuant to underinsurance provisions of his own and his parents' auto policies, and coverage was not limited to $25,000 based on bodily injury liability insurance limits contained in his own policy; under statute, applicable bodily injury liability insurance limits must be exhausted as condition precedent to insurer's obligation to pay, but insured is covered if other driver's bodily injury liability insurance limits are less than his own. Di Stasi v Nationwide Mut. Ins. Co., 132 A.D.2d 305, 522 N.Y.S.2d 340, 1987 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 51562 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1987).

Since CLS Ins § 3420(f)(1) prescribes minimum of $20,000 in uninsured motorist coverage when more than one person is injured in single occurrence, and further states that payment of benefits shall be subject to $10,000 "limit for any one person so injured," insurer which paid one claimant $17,500 under uninsured motorist endorsement after being informed that petitioner intended to file claim could not deduct its overpayment from coverage which should have been available to petitioner. Michigan Mut. Ins. Co. v Miller, 170 A.D.2d 102, 573 N.Y.S.2d 305, 1991 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10942 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1991).

State employee, who was allegedly injured in accident with uninsured driver while he was driving vehicle owned by state, was not entitled to dismissal of state's affirmative defense that, as self-insurer, it was only required to maintain "uninsured motorist coverage not exceeding maximum amount of limit set forth on account of injury in CLS Ins § 3420(f)(1)," since obligations imposed by legislative history and public policy on self-insureds are coextensive with those of other insureds. Krieg v State, 183 A.D.2d 1025, 583 N.Y.S.2d 621, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6860 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1992).

Court erred in confirming arbitration award which exceeded $10,000 per person statutory limit of New York City Transit Authority's uninsured motorist coverage that was in effect at time of accident. Spears v New York City Transit Auth., 262 A.D.2d 493, 692 N.Y.S.2d 100, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6671 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1999), app. denied, 94 N.Y.2d 761, 707 N.Y.S.2d 142, 728 N.E.2d 338, 2000 N.Y. LEXIS 232 (N.Y. 2000).

Where the insured parties made a claim for uninsured motorist coverage based on the inability of the bus company to pay the deductible under its insurance policy, the insured parties failed to establish a meritorious defense under N.Y. C.P.L.R. 5015(a)(1) and N.Y. C.P.L.R. 317 as required to vacate the default in favor of the insurer on the insurer's motion to stay arbitration; in order to oppose a stay of arbitration, the insured parties had to demonstrate that the bus was uninsured, and the insured parties were not uninsured because they had recourse to the fund administered by the New York Motor Vehicle Accident Indemnification Corporation Act, N.Y. Ins. Law § 5201 et seq., since the uninsured motorist limits in the policy did not exceed fund limits under N.Y. Ins. Law §§ 3420(f)(1), 5210(a)(1). Matter of Nationwide Mut. Ins. Co. v Carlini, 814 N.Y.S.2d 856, 12 Misc. 3d 718, 2006 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 960 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 2006).

81. —Contractual limits

Tortfeasor in multiple-victim automobile accident should be deemed underinsured under CLS Ins § 3420(f)(2) where he had "single limit" policy providing $300,000 limit per accident for both bodily injury and property damage liability, while insured had "split limit" policy containing bodily injury limit of $100,000 per person and $300,000 per accident, and separate limit for property damage liability. Prudential Property & Casualty Co. v Szeli, 83 N.Y.2d 681, 613 N.Y.S.2d 113, 635 N.E.2d 282, 1994 N.Y. LEXIS 1282 (N.Y. 1994).

Per accident limit in supplementary uninsured/underinsured motorist endorsement, not per person limit, should be employed in underinsurance comparison under CLS Ins § 3420(f)(2) when there is multiple-victim accident but only one underinsurance claimant. Prudential Property & Casualty Co. v Szeli, 83 N.Y.2d 681, 613 N.Y.S.2d 113, 635 N.E.2d 282, 1994 N.Y. LEXIS 1282 (N.Y. 1994).

An uninsured motorist indorsement, unequivocally providing that damages recoverable thereunder were not to include any amount for medical expenses paid or payable under the medical payment provisions of the policy, did not violate either statute or public policy and was enforceable. Miller v Cosmopolitan Mut. Ins. Co., 33 A.D.2d 917, 307 N.Y.S.2d 592, 1970 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5707 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1970).

Passenger in automobile was entitled to underinsured motorist coverage contained in owner's policy without offset pursuant to reduction in coverage clause since endorsement provisions of policy were misleading as they deceptively reduced stated underinsurance coverage and prevented insurance company from ever having to pay underinsurance coverage limit. CNA Ins. Cos. v Grandstaff, 188 A.D.2d 965, 591 N.Y.S.2d 900, 1992 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 14757 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1992), app. denied, 81 N.Y.2d 711, 600 N.Y.S.2d 442, 616 N.E.2d 1104, 1993 N.Y. LEXIS 1802 (N.Y. 1993).

Condition contained in uninsured motorist endorsement, providing that uninsured motorist benefits would be reduced by any sums paid by or on behalf of any "person or persons jointly or severally liable" with uninsured driver, was enforceable. Automobile Ins. Co. v Klein, 205 A.D.2d 685, 613 N.Y.S.2d 663, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6394 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1994).

Offset provision of insurance policy was valid and enforceable because policy contained single, combined limit of uninsurance/underinsurance covered by one premium and combined endorsement for uninsurance and underinsurance. Arnold v Nationwide Mut. Ins. Co., 238 A.D.2d 415, 657 N.Y.S.2d 362, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3798 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1997).

Insurer was entitled to permanent stay of arbitration of underinsured motorist claim where amount that insured received from tortfeasor's insurer exceeded amount of underinsured motorist benefits provided under subject policy. Commerce & Indus. Ins. Co. v Weber, 240 A.D.2d 742, 660 N.Y.S.2d 1001, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7130 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1997).

Court erred in determining that underinsurance offset provision of respondents' insurance policy was unenforceable where that provision provided single, combined liability limit for both uninsurance and underinsurance; thus, respondents, who recovered $10,000 from tortfeasor's insurer, were entitled to no more than $15,000 in underinsurance coverage from petitioner, not full $25,000 policy limit. New York Cent. Mut. Fire Ins. Co. v Smith, 244 A.D.2d 958, 665 N.Y.S.2d 994, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12354 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1997).

Insured was not entitled to temporary stay of arbitration of uninsured motorist claim in order to obtain discovery where insured had ample time to seek discovery of insurer as provided for in underlying insurance policy, and insured's failure to do so was unjustified. Mudd v State, 255 A.D.2d 386, 679 N.Y.S.2d 844, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11795 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1998).

Limit of insured's bodily injury liability coverage was greater than that in tortfeasor's policy, and thus insured was entitled to judgment declaring that he could pursue supplemental uninsured motorist claim against his insurer, where (1) insured had single limit coverage of $100,000 for both bodily injury and property damage, (2) tortfeasor had split liability limit of $50,000 per person and $100,000 per accident for bodily injury, (3) insured was sole person injured in accident, and (4) insured settled his personal injury liability claim with tortfeasor for $50,000. Jones v Peerless Ins. Co., 281 A.D.2d 888, 721 N.Y.S.2d 890, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2658 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 2001).

In an insured's action to recover supplementary uninsured/underinsured motorists (SUM) coverage, the supreme court erred in denying the insurer's motion for summary judgment because it demonstrated that the insured's personal umbrella policy did not include SUM coverage; the insured received $ 100,000 from the tortfeasor, which was equal to the limit of the SUM coverage he purchased, and thus, the amount he was entitled to recover under the automobile insurance policy's SUM coverage was zero Nafash v Allstate Ins. Co., 137 A.D.3d 1088, 28 N.Y.S.3d 381, 2016 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2052 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2016).

Supplementary uninsured/underinsured motorists (SUM) endorsement contained in an insured's automobile policy did not violate statute; while an insured has the option of purchasing SUM coverage in an amount up to the bodily injury liability insurance limits of coverage, he or she is not required to purchase SUM coverage at that maximum amount, and the statute does not prohibit insurers from offering SUM coverage with limits less than the bodily injury liability limits of coverage in the policy. Nafash v Allstate Ins. Co., 137 A.D.3d 1088, 28 N.Y.S.3d 381, 2016 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2052 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2016).

Insured was entitled to summary judgment declaring that his auto policy provided $10,000/$20,000 underinsured motorist coverage, as written, for accident with vehicle having identical coverage, although policy defined "underinsured motor vehicle" as one whose limit for bodily injury liability was less than insured's liability limit, since policy would otherwise preclude underinsurance coverage, and it would violate public policy to deny coverage paid for by insured. Drapak v Aetna Casualty & Surety Co., 137 Misc. 2d 156, 520 N.Y.S.2d 303, 1987 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2663 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1987).

Provisions in a motor vehicle policy and "drive other car" endorsement were reasonably subject to two interpretations as to whether an insured was entitled to $50,000 or $1 million in supplemental UM coverage for an accident; because the ambiguity was construed against the insurer, the insured was entitled to $1 million in supplemental UM coverage. Penna v Federal Ins. Co., 28 A.D.3d 731, 814 N.Y.S.2d 226, 2006 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4882 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2006).

82. — —Other insurance coverage

Where insured had separate policies on his automobile and on motorcycle he was operating at time of accident with uninsured motorist, and both policies contained required New York automobile accident indemnification endorsement provided, in case of other insurance, that "company shall not be liable for a greater proportion of any loss to which this coverage applies than the limit of liability hereunder bears to the sum of the applicable limits of liability of this insurance and such other insurance," insurers were coinsurers with regard to insured's claim arising from accident with uninsured vehicle and, as limits of both policies were identical, both insurers were required to contribute equally to sum to be determined at arbitration. Public Service Mut. Ins. Co. v Katcher, 36 N.Y.2d 295, 367 N.Y.S.2d 752, 327 N.E.2d 799, 1975 N.Y. LEXIS 1763 (N.Y. 1975).

Exemption provisions of CLS Work Comp § 29(1-a), which apply to recovery of compensation or medical benefits paid in lieu of first-party benefits under CLS Ins § 5104(a), do not apply to proceeds of claims made against insured's own uninsured motorist benefits under CLS Ins § 3420(f)(1) and (2). Shutter v Philips Display Components Co., 90 N.Y.2d 703, 665 N.Y.S.2d 379, 688 N.E.2d 235, 1997 N.Y. LEXIS 3684 (N.Y. 1997).

Uninsured motorist provision of host driver's insurance policy, upon which driver paid premiums and under which passenger in host driver's vehicle recovered for injuries sustained when unidentified vehicle allegedly sideswiped passenger's vehicle causing passenger's vehicle to hit another vehicle, was not a "collateral source" exempt from use for purposes of mitigation of damages in suit by passenger against driver of vehicle hit by passenger's vehicle. Brink v Killeen, 48 A.D.2d 823, 368 N.Y.S.2d 547, 1975 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10030 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1975).

In an action by a wife's insurer seeking a declaration that its uninsured motorist coverage was excess insurance, secondary to the uninsured motorist coverage provided by the husband's primary insurer, and that the husband and wife could not therefore recover under the wife's uninsured motorist indorsement, the trial court erred in denying the wife's insurer's requested relief where the "other insurance" clause of the wife's uninsured motorist indorsement provided that it would be only excess insurance in the event of an accident while occupying an automobile not owned by the wife, and where the husband's motorcycle, on which the husband and wife were riding when the accident occurred, was considered an "automobile" for the purposes of the clause. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. v Drysdale, 81 A.D.2d 1011, 440 N.Y.S.2d 94, 1981 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11765 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1981).

Special Term properly dismissed insured's complaint seeking recovery under underinsured motorists indorsement of his automobile liability insurance policy where limits of liability of policy held by other motorist were same as, not less than, limits of liability provided by insured's coverage, even though insured's prior judgment from other motorist exceeded other motorist's policy limits due to multiple recoveries by other parties, since definition of "underinsured motorist" expressed in CLS Ins § 3420 applies only where motorist responsible for damages holds policy with liability limits less than those of injured insured's underinsured indorsement. Manfredo v Centennial Ins. Co., 124 A.D.2d 979, 508 N.Y.S.2d 811, 1986 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 62292 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1986).

Pedestrian who was struck by underinsured vehicle was insured to extent of aggregate limits of underinsured motorist coverage under his own auto policy and policy covering his parents' cars, since 2 policies were separate contracts, each containing underinsured motorist provision which expressly covered him, and his purchase of underinsurance coverage in connection with his own auto policy did not remove him from underinsurance provision in his parents' policy in absence of evidence that carrier reduced parents' premium accordingly or notified them that their policy would be modified to their detriment if family member purchased separate policy; fact that insured's attempt to make use of more than one policy provision could be labeled "stacking" was not determinative. Di Stasi v Nationwide Mut. Ins. Co., 132 A.D.2d 305, 522 N.Y.S.2d 340, 1987 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 51562 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1987).

Where limits of uninsured motorist coverage available to respondent, who was injured while riding in insured vehicle which was involved in accident with uninsured vehicle, was less than limits of policy issued to respondent's husband, respondent was entitled to supplementary uninsured motorist coverage under husband's policy, under which she was also covered. State Farm Mut. Ins. Co. v Amarosa, 208 A.D.2d 545, 617 N.Y.S.2d 35, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 9277 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1994).

It was not inequitable to enforce unambiguous provision precluding stacking of supplementary uninsured motorist (SUM) coverage, even though insured and his wife paid separate premiums, since each premium was reduced by multi-car discount in amount that far exceeded premium for SUM coverage. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. v Hill, 213 A.D.2d 976, 625 N.Y.S.2d 387, 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3756 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't), app. dismissed, 86 N.Y.2d 779, 631 N.Y.S.2d 611, 655 N.E.2d 708, 1995 N.Y. LEXIS 5668 (N.Y. 1995).

Arbitrator's award of underinsurance benefits would be vacated where $50,000 limit on underinsurance benefits contained in insured's policy was completely offset by $50,000 that she received in settlement from insurer of negligent tortfeasor. Arnold v Nationwide Mut. Ins. Co., 238 A.D.2d 415, 657 N.Y.S.2d 362, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3798 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1997).

In granting petition to permanently stay arbitration of underinsured motorist claim after monetary limits applicable to bodily injury liability protection covering underinsured motorist were exhausted by settlement, court erred in considering payments received by claimant from insurer of second, adequately insured tortfeasor in determining whether claimant was entitled to pursue underinsured motorist claim against petitioner. Allstate Ins. Co. v Charno, 276 A.D.2d 552, 714 N.Y.S.2d 309, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10184 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2000), app. denied, 96 N.Y.2d 705, 725 N.Y.S.2d 277, 748 N.E.2d 1073, 2001 N.Y. LEXIS 242 (N.Y. 2001).

In action by insured decedent's estate for judgment declaring its entitlement to $100,000 as limit of coverage under supplementary uninsured motorists endorsement of decedent's automobile insurance policy, insurer was entitled to $50,000 offset for amount previously paid to estate by another insurer under higher priority policy where lower priority policy with defendant insurer provided that coverage under lower priority policy "applies only to the extent that it exceeds the coverage" provided by the higher priority policy. Dudley v Allstate Ins. Co., 281 A.D.2d 941, 722 N.Y.S.2d 448, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2702 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 2001).

In an action arising out of a hit-and-run incident, where a separate premium for uninsured motorist coverage was charged that each of two vehicles owned by the injured person, said person was not twice insured for that regard so as to allow a "stacking" of the coverage afforded each vehicle since, in the absence of supplementary uninsured motorist insurance, Ins Law former § 167 [now § 3420] limits an insured person's recovery to a maximum of $10,000 regardless of how many such endorsements or policies may be otherwise available. Sission v Travelers Ins. Cos., 114 Misc. 2d 594, 452 N.Y.S.2d 133, 1982 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3526 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1982), modified, 94 A.D.2d 953, 464 N.Y.S.2d 77, 1983 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 18431 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1983).

Defendant driver's primary liability insurer, which provided coverage of $50,000 per person and $100,000 per accident, would be required to make total of $150,000 available for one-car accident in which plaintiff's husband was killed and plaintiff sustained paraplegia, since CLS Ins § 3420(f)(1) requires primary insurer to have available policy limit of $50,000 for each injured party up to maximum of $100,000 for personal injuries and additional $50,000 for wrongful death. Oto v Ogtong, 143 Misc. 2d 905, 542 N.Y.S.2d 953, 1989 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 363 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1989).

Defendant insurance company was entitled to judgment declaring that any claim for damages to which vehicle operator was entitled for single accident pursuant to terms of supplemental underinsured motorist endorsements in 2 automobile policies issued to vehicle owner, each of which provided maximum of $100,000, would be covered by each policy equally, up to total maximum of $100,000, even though there is no statutory proscription against stacking supplemental uninsured motorist coverage, since maximum amount set forth in CLS Ins § 3420(f)(2) operated as ceiling, limiting insurer's liability to $100,000 in any one accident. Rifkin v State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co., 157 Misc. 2d 141, 595 N.Y.S.2d 846, 1993 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 88 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1993).

Court would enforce provisions in separate automobile policies issued by same insurer to husband and wife prohibiting "stacking" of benefits where wife's policy provided for multi-vehicle premium discount, in effect insuring 2 vehicles for one premium; thus, where both husband's and wife's policies provided supplementary underinsured motorist coverage benefits of $50,000 per person, and husband was injured while operating wife's vehicle, recovery would only be $50,000 and not $100,000. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. v Raglan, 164 Misc. 2d 790, 626 N.Y.S.2d 356, 1995 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 177 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1995).

83. Notice requirement for claim involving uninsured motorist

Held that the language of the uninsured motorist indorsement under the former § 167 [now § 3420] and the provisions of the statute itself indicate clearly that the filing of a notice of intention to make claim against the MVAIC is not the equivalent of giving notice of intention to arbitrate. Motor Vehicle Acci. Indemnification Corp. v McDonnell, 23 A.D.2d 773, 258 N.Y.S.2d 735, 1965 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4459 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1965).

In a petition by an insurance company to stay arbitration demanded by an insured under a policy covering a car that allegedly was involved in a hit-and-run accident, in which the insurer asserted that the insured failed to furnish it with sufficient proof that the hit-and-run accident actually occurred, and in which the insured opposed the petition, asserting that the insurer was precluded from asserting that the insured was not entitled to uninsured motorist coverage because it failed to issue a timely notice of disclaimer pursuant to Ins Law § 167(8), an order dismissing the petition was erroneous, since, in the absence of a showing that the accident arose through involvement with an uninsured automobile as defined in the endorsement to the policy, it could not be said that the policy covered the vehicle involved, absent which there would be no duty upon the insurer to deny coverage pursuant to the statute and since the issue of whether there was physical contact between the insured vehicle and the alleged hit-and-run automobile required a hearing. In re Prudential Property & Casualty Ins. Co., 104 A.D.2d 557, 479 N.Y.S.2d 262, 1984 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 20012 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1984).

Insurer had sufficient evidence of noninsurance of defendant so as to bring insured's claim under uninsured motorist indorsement, and so as to require insurer to send insured prompt written notice of its intent to deny liability on stated grounds, where (1) defendant's attorney submitted letter stating that defendant was uninsured, (2) report from state division of motor vehicle states that defendant's vehicle's license plate had expired prior to accident and had not been renewed, and (3) New York had suspended defendant's driving privileges in state because of his refusal to file accident report which would have included insurance information. Empire Mut. Ins. Co. v Mahmud, 114 A.D.2d 324, 494 N.Y.S.2d 316, 1985 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 53006 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1985).

Notice to insurance company of insured's intent to pursue uninsured motorist claim sent 16 days after receiving notice from another insurance company that vehicle involved in accident was not insured by it, was timely notice given "as soon as was reasonably possible" as required by CLS Insurance § 3420(a)(4), and insured had no reason to serve notice of intent to pursue uninsured motorist claim prior to receipt of insurance company's disclaimer since Department of Motor Vehicles' FS-25 form had initially indicated that other automobile involved in accident was insured. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. v Santarpia, 119 A.D.2d 825, 501 N.Y.S.2d 450, 1986 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 55767 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1986).

In action seeking arbitration under uninsured motorist endorsement, insurance company's contention that notice of claim from insured was not received in timely manner would be rejected where (1) postal receipts introduced by insured's attorneys provided clear proof of mailing of 2 items to insurance company within 3 weeks of accident and receipt by insurance company of those items, (2) lawyer from firm produced mailing book which demonstrated that items were notices of claim, and (3) insurance company's assertion of nonreceipt was unaccompanied by any knowledgeable and clear indication as to contents of mailings from insured's attorneys. Allstate Ins. Co. v Patrylo, 144 A.D.2d 243, 533 N.Y.S.2d 436, 1988 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10836 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1988).

Notices of intention to make claim under uninsured motorist endorsement which did not denote insured's policy number or effective and expiration dates of policy were not defective for not containing enough information to process claim, since notices contained insured's name and address and insurance company could not reasonably assert that it was unable to locate policy in files based upon data given. Allstate Ins. Co. v Patrylo, 144 A.D.2d 243, 533 N.Y.S.2d 436, 1988 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10836 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1988).

Motorist's attorney properly served demand for arbitration of uninsured motorist claim on insurance company's California office where policy indicated that it was issued by California company, and all of motorist's previous correspondence was sent to California office, which had established file for her claim and arranged for payment of her medical bills. Colonial Penn Ins. Co. v Ennab, 168 A.D.2d 494, 562 N.Y.S.2d 736, 1990 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 15429 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1990), app. denied, 78 N.Y.2d 851, 573 N.Y.S.2d 69, 577 N.E.2d 60, 1991 N.Y. LEXIS 847 (N.Y. 1991), app. dismissed, 78 N.Y.2d 953, 573 N.Y.S.2d 648, 578 N.E.2d 446, 1991 N.Y. LEXIS 6149 (N.Y. 1991).

Court erred in finding that insured had failed to report hit-and-run accident to police within 24 hours after accident where police were on scene within minutes of accident, and police accident report was completed on same day; it was immaterial that report failed to make reference to physical contact or failed to specifically label accident as "hit-and-run." Aetna Casualty & Surety Co. v Stone, 170 A.D.2d 599, 566 N.Y.S.2d 374, 1991 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2293 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1991).

Insurance company was entitled to permanent stay of arbitration of uninsured motorist claim based on failure of insured to give timely notice of claim where insured had made numerous inquiries as to whereabouts of owner and driver of other vehicle involved in collision and as to existence of insurance coverage for such individuals, and results of those inquiries should have alerted him to fact that he had potential uninsured motorist claim. Nova Casualty Co. v Helmstadt, 204 A.D.2d 330, 611 N.Y.S.2d 271, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4510 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1994).

Insurance company did not waive requirement that proof of uninsured motorist claim be given as soon as practicable after written request therefor by company by letter it wrote to respondents' attorney, 2 years after its receipt of respondents' notice of claims and numerous requests of their attorney to provide proof of claims, stating that although it had not yet received proof of claims, it would, should respondents pursue matter, exercise its right under endorsement to examination under oath, physical examinations, and inspection of insured vehicle. Lumbermens Mut. Cas. Co. v Fadeyeva, 243 A.D.2d 368, 663 N.Y.S.2d 177, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10309 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1997).

Insured claimants' notice of their intent to seek underinsured motorist benefits was timely where they first became aware of amount of other available coverage not long before they served notice, in course of presenting their personal injury actions, uninsured portion of insurer's policy did not specifically set forth any time limits for giving of such notice, and insurer had timely notice of accident and was able to conduct investigation. Travelers Ins. v Torres, 245 A.D.2d 82, 665 N.Y.S.2d 86, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12793 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1997).

Breach of terms of insurance policy requiring written notice of claim for underinsurance benefits by insured, who was injured in collision with vehicle driven by defendant in underlying negligence action, was not negated by fact that insurer had potential knowledge of such claim because it insured both injured insured and defendant and was aware of extent of injuries and defendant's limited coverage where injured insured learned of defendant's limited coverage on November 30, 1995, but did not provide insurer with written notice of his claim until March 18, 1996. Allstate Ins. Co. v Dewyea, 245 A.D.2d 667, 664 N.Y.S.2d 684, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12588 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1997).

Defendant insurer was entitled to protective order where plaintiffs sought to depose its employees and employees of insurance agent to determine their interpretation of policy requirement that plaintiffs give notice of claim on supplemental uninsured motorist coverage "as soon as practicable," since defendant's interpretation of phrase was irrelevant. Dixon v New York Cent. Mut. Fire Ins. Co., 265 A.D.2d 914, 695 N.Y.S.2d 826, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10039 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1999).

Even if insurer had actual notice of accident, such notice did not vitiate policy requirement that insured provide notice of claim on supplemental uninsured motorist coverage. Dixon v New York Cent. Mut. Fire Ins. Co., 265 A.D.2d 914, 695 N.Y.S.2d 826, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10039 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1999).

After October 27 1995 accident, insured gave notice of claim under supplemental uninsured motorist coverage "as soon as practicable," and thus insurer was not entitled to stay of arbitration, where insured reasonably believed that she had not sustained "serious injury" within meaning of CLS Ins § 5102(d) until June 1997, then promptly commenced action against tortfeasor, and gave notice to insurer on July 17, 1997. Nationwide Ins. Co. v Brown-Young, 265 A.D.2d 918, 695 N.Y.S.2d 823, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10044 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1999).

Request for uninsured motorist benefits was not made as soon as reasonably possible through exercise of ordinary diligence where insured waited almost 16 months following accident before requesting uninsured motorist benefits. Fatima Cab Corp. v Sharma, 267 A.D.2d 237, 699 N.Y.S.2d 461, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12534 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1999).

In action involving issue of whether insurer was entitled to judgment declaring that it had no duty to provide supplementary uninsured motorist (SUM) coverage to insured, there was no merit to insured's claim that he did not try to ascertain other driver's policy limits during period of his delay in giving notice of claim because insurer failed to provide relevant information about insured's coverage when insured asked for it shortly after accident where (1) insured did not ask insurer about SUM coverage until 16 months after accident, (2) when insured asked insured for policy information shortly after accident, seriousness of insured's injuries was not apparent, and insurer had no reason to believe that insured had SUM claim, and (3) absent fraud or other wrongful conduct by insurer, insured was conclusively presumed to know contents of policy and to assent them. Ciaramella v State Farm Ins. Co., 273 A.D.2d 831, 709 N.Y.S.2d 296, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6839 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 2000).

In action involving issue of whether insurer was entitled to judgment declaring that it had no duty to provide supplementary uninsured motorist (SUM) coverage to insured, insurer's potential knowledge of insured's SUM claim because insurer was also insured's no-fault carrier did not alter fact that insured did not provide timely written notice of claim; insurer's actual notice of accident does not vitiate requirement that insurer provide timely notice of claim. Ciaramella v State Farm Ins. Co., 273 A.D.2d 831, 709 N.Y.S.2d 296, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6839 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 2000).

Insured's failure to comply with legal notice provision of insurance policy did not afford insurer basis for disclaimer where insurer had not claimed any prejudice, nor was any prejudice shown. Brandon v Nationwide Mut. Ins. Co., 284 A.D.2d 886, 727 N.Y.S.2d 727, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6855 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2001), aff'd, 97 N.Y.2d 491, 743 N.Y.S.2d 53, 769 N.E.2d 810, 2002 N.Y. LEXIS 977 (N.Y. 2002).

Respondent's notice to its insurer of supplemental uninsured motorist claim did not constitute notice to second insurer, which insured vehicle which respondent was driving at time of accident, even though copy of respondent's letter was sent to second insurer. Allstate Ins. Co. v Earl, 284 A.D.2d 1002, 726 N.Y.S.2d 522, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5810 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 2001).

Insurance responsibility under Automobile Accident Indemnification Indorsement exists independently of standard policy provisions, and plaintiffs who were injured in one-car accident in which insured vehicle was involved could not be deprived of coverage by failure of named insured to give proper notice of accident. Colbert v Hill, 75 Misc. 2d 258, 347 N.Y.S.2d 635, 1973 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1879 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1973).

Insured's declaratory judgment action which sought entitlement to supplementary underinsured motorist (SUM) coverage against his insurer should not have been dismissed, pursuant to the insurer's motion under N.Y. C.P.L.R. 3211(a)(7), because the 90-day notice provision in the personal injury coverage provision of the policy was inapplicable to the SUM endorsement; there could also be no determination as a matter of law, without a factual review, that the insured's late notice of the pendency of a legal action against the tortfeasor, or the settlement thereof, vitiated the SUM coverage entitlement under N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420, absent a showing that the insurer had been prejudiced by the delay. Banks v Am. Mfrs. Mut. Ins. Co., 306 A.D.2d 120, 762 N.Y.S.2d 588, 2003 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6987 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 2003).

Trial court properly denied an insurer's petition under N.Y. C.P.L.R. art. 75 to permanently stay arbitration of an insured's uninsured motorist claim, as N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(a)(3) did not impose a duty on the insured to provide notice of an accident to an alleged tortfeasor's insurance carrier. Matter of Progressive Northeastern Ins. Co. v Yeger, 30 A.D.3d 524, 817 N.Y.S.2d 119, 2006 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7994 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2006).

Occupant who was injured in police vehicle owned by his city employer, and which vehicle was struck by uninsured motor vehicle, was required to file notice of claim with city prior to making claim for uninsured motorist coverage. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 01-07-05.

84. —Notice requirement imposed by particular policy indorsements

In underinsurance context, phrase "as soon as practicable" means that insured must give notice with reasonable promptness after insured knew or should reasonably have known that tortfeasor was underinsured, employing objective standard as to what constitutes reasonable ascertainment; this test, however, does not lend itself to mathematic precision. Metropolitan Prop. & Cas. Ins. Co. v Mancuso, 93 N.Y.2d 487, 693 N.Y.S.2d 81, 715 N.E.2d 107, 1999 N.Y. LEXIS 1296 (N.Y. 1999).

Where provision of policy as to injury by uninsured motor vehicle operator provided for by subd 2-a of former § 167 [now § 3420(f)] requires that notice of claim be filed with the MVAIC "within 90 days or as soon as practicable," it may be interpreted to provide only that notice of claim must be filed within a reasonable time. Whether or not notice has been given within such time, necessarily includes determination of diligence of claimant, and is basically a factual issue. Question of timeliness of such notice should not be decided on basis of affidavits but plenary hearing should be held to determine such issue by means of jury trial. Motor Vehicle Accident Indemnification Corp. v Stein, 23 A.D.2d 526, 255 N.Y.S.2d 483, 1965 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5103 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1965).

Where terms of policy covering injury by uninsured motor vehicle operator required by subd 2-a of former § 167 [now § 3420(f)] provide for notice "within 90 days or as soon as practicable," whether notice is given as soon as practicable requires a determination whether it was given within reasonable time under all circumstances. But in absence of a satisfactory explanation, delay in giving notice may be unreasonable as matter of law. Claimant or his counsel must be diligent in trying to ascertain whether other vehicle involved in accident was insured, and where it is indisputably demonstrated that inquiries were not made at proper source, lack of any diligent effort to determine existence of insurance until many months had passed was held to require directed verdict that notice was not given as soon as practicable. Application of Motor Vehicle Accident Indemnification Corp., 23 A.D.2d 546, 256 N.Y.S.2d 427, 1965 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4936 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1965).

The purpose of subd 2-a of former § 167 [now § 3420(f)] and of the uninsured motorist endorsement thereunder is to allow recovery against MVAIC where the insurer of the offending automobile disclaims liability or denies coverage because of acts or omissions of the named or any additional insureds under the policy covering the automobile which caused the injury. And to obtain the benefits of such statute and of the policy, the insured is allowed 90 days within which to give written notice of claim to MVAIC. To give effect to such purposes, the limitation period of the policy should be contrued to run from the time of the accrual of the petitioner's right to relief against MVAIC. American Arbitration Asso. v Motor Vehicle Acci. Indemnification Corp., 24 A.D.2d 541, 261 N.Y.S.2d 356 (4th Dept 1965).

Insurer was entitled to permanent stay of arbitration of dispute as to coverage under automobile liability policy where neither insured nor his attorney informed insurer of hit and run accident until nearly one month beyond 90-day period required under policy, especially since insured had retained counsel shortly after accident and had timely filed notice with Motor Vehicle Accident Indemnification Corporation. Eveready Ins. Co. v Saunders, 149 A.D.2d 456, 539 N.Y.S.2d 957, 1989 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4617 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1989).

Insured exercised due diligence in asserting claim against owner of automobile for injuries sustained in accident, and thus owner's insurance company would be required to proceed to arbitration on claim for underinsured motorist benefits, notwithstanding that claim for benefits was not made within 90-day time limit specified in policy, where (1) insured retained attorney and attempted to ascertain limits of insurance policy issued to owner of automobile, but insurance company refused to divulge limits until after suit was commenced, (2) after commencement of suit, insurance company revealed that limits were $10,000/$20,000 and offered to settle for full $10,000, and (3) insured then sought underinsured benefits from his insurance company. Nationwide Mut. Ins. Co. v Edgerson, 195 A.D.2d 560, 600 N.Y.S.2d 483, 1993 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7355 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1993).

Insured exercised due diligence in asserting claim against owner of automobile for injuries sustained in accident, and thus owner's insurance company would be required to proceed to arbitration on claim for underinsured motorist benefits, notwithstanding that claim for benefits was not made within 90-day time limit specified in policy, where (1) insured retained attorney and attempted to ascertain limits of insurance policy issued to owner of automobile, but insurance company refused to divulge limits until after suit was commenced, (2) after commencement of suit, insurance company revealed that limits were $10,000/$20,000 and offered to settle for full $10,000, and (3) insured then sought underinsured benefits from his insurance company. Nationwide Mut. Ins. Co. v Edgerson, 195 A.D.2d 560, 600 N.Y.S.2d 483, 1993 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7355 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1993).

Notice provisions of uninsured motorist endorsement were ambiguous where one portion required claimant to file statement under oath within 90 days after accident, while endorsement also contained contradictory clause requiring claimant to furnish sworn written proof of claim "after written request by the company"; thus, since it was undisputed that claimants provided insurer with notice of their claim within time limit provided in policy, their failure to additionally file sworn statement under oath within 90 days after accident did not vitiate coverage. Eveready Ins. Co. v Ruiz, 208 A.D.2d 923, 618 N.Y.S.2d 80, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10592 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1994).

Submission of unsworn and undated application for no-fault benefits in connection with hit-and-run accident did not comply with condition precedent to coverage under uninsured motorist endorsement that insureds submit, within 90 days of accident, statement under oath that they had cause of action arising out of accident against person whose identity was unascertainable. State Farm Ins. Co. v Velasquez, 211 A.D.2d 636, 621 N.Y.S.2d 357, 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 101 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1995).

Insured's notification to insurer of accident with detailed statement containing diagram of accident and fact that it was "hit and run," forwarded to insurer with 90 days of occurrence, was sufficient to put insurer on notice that insured was seeking to file uninsured motorist claim, where standard policy issued to insured required that sworn statement be provided within 90 days of occurrence, but uninsured coverage section of supplemental policy contained no written notice requirement; thus, insurer's application to permanently stay arbitration was denied. Lumbermens Mut. Cas. Co. v Schrem, 227 A.D.2d 280, 642 N.Y.S.2d 666, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5397 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1996).

Insureds were properly granted summary judgment in declaratory judgment action to recover underinsured motorist benefits where they gave insurer written notice of their potential claim for such benefits before they received actual notice of policy limits, based on fact that insured's injuries appeared to be more significant than they were at time claim for no-fault benefits was filed, insureds gave timely notice of accident, and policy phrase "as soon as practicable" as to event which triggered duty to provide notice was ambiguous. Matan v Nationwide Mut. Ins. Co., 243 A.D.2d 978, 663 N.Y.S.2d 906, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10359 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1997).

Insurer received notice of claim as soon as practicable, in compliance with notice provision in uninsured motorist endorsement, even though insureds did not notify insurer of their intention to make uninsured motorist claim until 5 ½ years after hit-and-run accident that allegedly caused subject injuries, where insurer was informed of accident on day after it occurred and of nature of injuries only 3 months after insureds first learned of causal connection between accident and injuries. Travelers Ins. Co. v Lianides, 246 A.D.2d 490, 668 N.Y.S.2d 200, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 693 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1998).

Insurer was not entitled to permanent stay of arbitration of uninsured motorist claim on ground that insured failed to notify it of her claim "as soon as practicable" under terms of her policy where time to notify insurer of that claim did not begin to run until underlying defendant's vehicle became uninsured, which occurred when defendant's insurer disclaimed coverage of accident. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. v Pantina, 255 A.D.2d 592, 681 N.Y.S.2d 82, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12869 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1998).

Defendant insurer was properly granted summary judgment dismissing uninsured motorist claim on ground that plaintiff failed to give notice of his claim "as soon as practicable," where notice was not given until 23 months after March 1994 accident, plaintiff failed to show that he did not know or could not reasonably have known that tortfeasor's vehicle was underinsured prior to February 1996 when he first undertook to determine liability limits of tortfeasor's insurance, and he failed to show that he was not reasonably aware of severity of his condition until February 1996, given that he was referred to neurosurgeon in September 1995 and underwent spinal fusion in January 1996. Unwin v New York Cent. Mut. Fire Ins. Co., 268 A.D.2d 669, 700 N.Y.S.2d 580, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 111 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 2000).

Unexplained 2 ½ -year delay in serving notice of underinsurance claim was unreasonable as matter of law, where policy required insured to serve notice "as soon as practicable." State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. v Tremaine, 270 A.D.2d 962, 705 N.Y.S.2d 477, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3541 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 2000).

Court properly granted insurer's motion to stay arbitration of claim for underinsured motorist benefits where relevant provision of insurance policy required that insured give notice of claim to insurer "as soon as practicable," insured provided notice of possible underinsurance claim more than 18 months after accident, and he failed to show that he acted with due diligence in ascertaining insurance status of offending vehicles. American Cas. Ins. Co. v Silverman, 271 A.D.2d 528, 705 N.Y.S.2d 676, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4034 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2000).

Insurer was entitled to judgment declaring that it had no duty to provide supplementary uninsured motorist coverage to insured where policy required insured to give notice of such claim "as soon as practicable," insured did not give notice until 1 ½ years after accident, and even if insured were excused from providing timely notice until true extent of his injury was known, he did not explain subsequent 8-month delay. Ciaramella v State Farm Ins. Co., 273 A.D.2d 831, 709 N.Y.S.2d 296, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 6839 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 2000).

85. Insurer's rights against uninsured motorist

Insured's execution of general release to tortfeasor responsible for automobile accident, for full limit of tortfeasor's liability coverage, did not prejudice subrogation rights of insured's insurer, entitling it to stay of arbitration of insured's claim for underinsurance benefits, where release expressly reserved "any and all rights under the underinsured coverage portion" of insured's policy; even assuming arguendo that release did not expressly reserve insurer's subrogation rights, its execution did not preclude insurer from enforcing its right of subrogation against tortfeasor because tortfeasor knew of those rights at time of release. United States Fidelity & Guaranty Co. v Mitchell, 168 A.D.2d 941, 564 N.Y.S.2d 894, 1990 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 16486 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1990).

Section 7 of the standard accident indemnification provisions which are made part of every motor vehicle liability policy does not create a trust for the benefit of MVAIC to the extent of conferring upon it any right of action against a "financially irresponsible motorist" by reason of settlement of claims of "insured persons" against such motorist, without requiring the claimant to sue them, but MVAIC nevertheless has a right of action against the irresponsible motorist for indemnification by right of subrogation. Ackerman v Motor Vehicle Acci. Indemnification Corp., 36 Misc. 2d 1048, 234 N.Y.S.2d 303, 1962 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2506 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1962), aff'd, 18 A.D.2d 307, 239 N.Y.S.2d 463, 1963 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3911 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1963).

Although this section makes no provision for a written assignment of the claim of an "insured" person against a financially irresponsible motorist to MVAIC, that corporation, following settlement of such a claim without requiring the "insured person" to sue the financially irresponsible motorist, can proceed against the latter for indemnification or by right of subrogation. Ackerman v Motor Vehicle Acci. Indemnification Corp., 36 Misc. 2d 1048, 234 N.Y.S.2d 303, 1962 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2506 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1962), aff'd, 18 A.D.2d 307, 239 N.Y.S.2d 463, 1963 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3911 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1963).

Any right which MVAIC may have to sue a "financially irresponsible motorist," after making financial settlement of the claim of an "insured person" against the irresponsible motorist, without requiring the claimant to sue such motorist, stems from this former § 167 [now § 3420]. Ackerman v Motor Vehicle Acci. Indemnification Corp., 36 Misc. 2d 1048, 234 N.Y.S.2d 303, 1962 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2506 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1962), aff'd, 18 A.D.2d 307, 239 N.Y.S.2d 463, 1963 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3911 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1963).

Under N.Y. Ins. Law § 5104(b), an insurer has only a limited right to pursue a subrogation claim against a non-covered person for basic first party no-fault benefits; to the extent an insurer acquires additional subrogation rights by paying supplementary uninsured motorist benefits pursuant to N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(f), such payments are properly made only in cases involving serious injuries. Consequently, an insurer suing a non-covered person upon such a subrogated claim for supplementary uninsured motorist benefits is required to plead and prove the serious injury in order to obtain a judgment against the defendant on the latter cause of action. Utica Mut. Ins. Co. v Lynton, 918 N.Y.S.2d 332, 31 Misc. 3d 804, 2011 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 891 (N.Y. Dist. Ct. 2011).

86. Waiver of right to proceed under uninsured motorist provision

Respondent's failure to file statement under oath with insurance company pertaining to specifics of hit and run accident did not, as matter of law, bar his request to seek coverage under uninsured motorist coverage provision of policy on vehicle he was driving where (1) he forwarded police report prepared at scene of accident to insurance company, together with written report of accident, (2) he was neither owner of car nor insured under policy, and (3) insurance company did not seek sworn statement for more than one year. Eveready Ins. Co. v Schwartzberg, 203 A.D.2d 101, 611 N.Y.S.2d 1, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3809 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1994).

While commencement of an action by an "insured person" against the person or persons who are alleged to have been the cause of his injuries or damage may constitute an irrevocable waiver and abandonment by plaintiff of any right to arbitration of a claim against MVAIC arising out of the same accident, the question of waiver and abandonment depends upon the facts of the particular case. Mailman v Motor Vehicle Acci. Indemnification Corp., 36 Misc. 2d 825, 235 N.Y.S.2d 14, 1962 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2827 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1962).

No prejudice results to MVAIC where an "insured person" proceeds to sue a person deemed legally liable for his injuries without the written consent of MVAIC and carries his action through to the point of obtaining verdict against such person, which involves a finding that the latter is not an "insured motorist," as long as the plaintiff in such action does not proceed to have judgment entered in his favor on the verdict so obtained. Diamond v Motor Vehicle Acci. Indemnification Corp., 37 Misc. 2d 714, 235 N.Y.S.2d 505, 1962 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2126 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1962), aff'd, 19 A.D.2d 590, 240 N.Y.S.2d 954, 1963 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5662 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1963).

Passenger in insured vehicle, who commenced an action to recover damages for her personal injuries against her driver, did not waive her right to proceed in arbitration against insurer to recover damages under the uninsured motorist provision in a separate proceeding. Alston v Amalgamated Mut. Casualty Co., 53 Misc. 2d 390, 278 N.Y.S.2d 906, 1967 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1644 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1967).

If a claimant commences an action at law on the contract against the insurer, such action would constitute a waiver of the right to arbitrate an uninsured motorist claim, but the commencement of a negligence action against the uninsured motorist, standing alone, does not constitute a waiver to make a claim under the insurance contract, in the absence of some provision therein to the contrary. Alston v Amalgamated Mut. Casualty Co., 53 Misc. 2d 390, 278 N.Y.S.2d 906, 1967 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 1644 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1967).

Commencement of action against alleged tort-feasor did not constitute waiver of right to arbitrate claim under uninsured motorist endorsement, where discovery of claimed lack of insurance occurred after the action was begun. Allcity Ins. Co. v Di Noto, 80 Misc. 2d 1022, 364 N.Y.S.2d 712, 1975 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2308 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1975).

87. Effect of action against uninsured motorist on right to recovery

In negligence actions for personal injuries suffered by a husband and wife arising out of an automobile collision with a "hit-and-run" automobile, the husband's action was barred by a previous arbitration award of $100,000, but the wife's action, as well as the husband's derivative action based on her injuries, was not barred by a previous award of $10,000; since the wife's award was a statutory limit under Ins Law former § 167 [now § 3420], it was not considered to be the total damages due for noneconomic loss, in absence of a determination by the arbitrator that it was the full extent of such damages. Leto v Petruzzi, 81 A.D.2d 296, 440 N.Y.S.2d 343, 1981 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10529 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1981).

Insured was precluded from asserting claim for benefits under underinsured motorist provision where policy provided as condition of coverage that insured could not settle with any person or organization who might be liable for insured's bodily injury without insurer's written consent, and insured failed to obtain written consent prior to settling with underinsured offending driver and executing general release without limitation or reservation, thus depriving insurer of its subrogation rights against offending driver. State Farm Mut. Ins. Co. v Donath, 164 A.D.2d 889, 559 N.Y.S.2d 567, 1990 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 10569 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't), app. dismissed, 76 N.Y.2d 1016, 565 N.Y.S.2d 765, 566 N.E.2d 1070, 1990 N.Y. LEXIS 4459 (N.Y. 1990).

Where plaintiff who sustained injuries in automobile accident involving taxicab obtained arbitration award of $8,500 under uninsured motorist endorsement of her husband's automobile policy after commencing action against taxicab defendants and receiving no response from their insurer, and plaintiff thereafter executed general release in favor of taxicab defendants on accepting late $3,000 settlement offer, insurer was entitled to partial summary judgment on issue of liability on its counterclaim to recover face amount of arbitration award, since plaintiff breached her obligations under uninsured motorist endorsement by releasing tortfeasors and thereby impairing insurer's subrogation rights, but plaintiff would merely be directed to pay insurer $3,000 she received from tortfeasors. Desiderato v N & A Taxi, Inc., 190 A.D.2d 250, 597 N.Y.S.2d 958, 1993 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5018 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1993).

Insured who accepts settlement of claim against third-party tortfeasor without protecting insurer's subrogation rights or complying with consent to settlement provision of insurance policy generally is precluded from asserting uninsured motorist claim against insurer. Devereaux v Agway Ins. Co., 190 A.D.2d 1050, 594 N.Y.S.2d 1009, 1993 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1265 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1993).

Insurance carrier was not entitled to stay of arbitration of supplementary underinsured motorist claim on ground that insureds' attorney, who was unaware of 30-day provision of policy, initially provided it with only 10 days to object to settlement offered by tortfeasor's liability insurer, where insureds' attorney took prompt curative action on learning that carrier was entitled to 30 days, and settlement funds were not released until 30 days from carrier's receipt of notice of settlement. Allstate Ins. Co. v Mannuci, 258 A.D.2d 869, 686 N.Y.S.2d 149, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1949 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1999).

The provision in the Standard Indemnification Indorsement that it shall not apply to bodily injury suffered by an insured if, without written consent of MVAIC he "prosecutes to judgment" any action against the person legally liable therefor means prosecuting such an action up to and including obtaining judgment, and where an insurer prosecutes such an action only to the point of obtaining verdict against the person he deems legally liable, but does not cause judgment to be entered against such person upon such verdict, he is not barred from proceeding against MVAIC because of his failure to obtain written consent of MVAIC to the proceedings up to that point. Diamond v Motor Vehicle Acci. Indemnification Corp., 37 Misc. 2d 714, 235 N.Y.S.2d 505, 1962 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2126 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1962), aff'd, 19 A.D.2d 590, 240 N.Y.S.2d 954, 1963 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 5662 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1963).

A claim against MVAIC for injury sustained through negligence of an uninsured motorist is not precluded by the Standard Accident Indemnification Indorsement provision requiring written consent of MVAIC for the prosecution "to judgment" of an action against the person legally liable for the injury where the injured person merely brings an action against the person asserted to be liable in which the latter's insurer disclaims liability and the judge signs a decision awarding damages to plaintiff and authorizing submission of judgment for signatures, no judgment in fact being entered. Di Maria v Motor Vehicle Acci. Indemnification Corp., 37 Misc. 2d 617, 236 N.Y.S.2d 443, 1963 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2377 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1963).

88. Arbitrability of particular issues

New York victims of Quebec automobile accident were not entitled to arbitrate their underinsured motorist endorsement claim with their New York insurer where Quebec automobile insurance board, under province's mandatory system of insurance reparations, awarded one victim only $82.12 out of possible $20,000 for his injuries, and denied second victim's claim entirely in finding her 100 percent at fault for accident, and thus neither victim had "exhausted by payment" limits of all applicable bodily insurance policies as required by their policy and CLS Ins § 3420(f)(2). Federal Ins. Co. v Watnick, 80 N.Y.2d 539, 592 N.Y.S.2d 624, 607 N.E.2d 771, 1992 N.Y. LEXIS 4225 (N.Y. 1992).

"Livery exclusion" contained in uninsured motorists coverage endorse ment of personal automobile liability policy was invalid, and thus required arbitration of uninsured motorist claim, since exclusion is not based on statute or regulation and is inconsistent with purpose of mandatory uninsured motor vehicle statutes and public policy. Liberty Mut. Ins. Co. v Hogan, 82 N.Y.2d 57, 603 N.Y.S.2d 409, 623 N.E.2d 536, 1993 N.Y. LEXIS 3359 (N.Y. 1993).

MVAIC, by answer to a demand for arbitration under the Standard Statutory Liability Indorsement, and examining plaintiff before trial, may waive any right to object to scope of the arbitration as going beyond issues of fault and damages. Stroud v Motor Vehicle Acci. Indemnification Corp., 17 A.D.2d 616, 231 N.Y.S.2d 18, 1962 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8530 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1962), aff'd, 13 N.Y.2d 611, 240 N.Y.S.2d 602, 191 N.E.2d 89, 1963 N.Y. LEXIS 1221 (N.Y. 1963).

The question of timely notice is not within the scope of the arbitration clause of uninsured motorist coverage and cannot be submitted to the arbitrators, a hearing being required to determine the preliminary issue concerning timely filing. Sorg v Motor Vehicle Acci. Indemnification Corp., 30 A.D.2d 540, 291 N.Y.S.2d 385, 1968 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4092 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1968).

The Transit Operating Authority, a self-insured public benefit corporation, was bound to proceed to arbitration with respect to an uninsured motorist claim asserted by a claimant who was injured in a collision involving an uninsured motor vehicle and the Authority's bus on which the claimant was a passenger. Manhattan & Bronx Surface Transit Operating Authority v Evans, 95 A.D.2d 470, 467 N.Y.S.2d 387, 1983 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 19643 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1983).

Arbitrator did not exceed authority granted him under arbitration clause of motor vehicle insurance policy when he went beyond determination of amount of damages under supplementary uninsured motorist endorsement and also determined amounts by which those damages should be offset under terms of policy. Prudential Property & Casualty Ins. Co. v Carleton, 145 A.D.2d 492, 535 N.Y.S.2d 738, 1988 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13258 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1988).

Where underinsured motorist provision of auto insurance policy specifically provided for arbitration of issue of whether insured was entitled to damages, insurer was not entitled to stay of arbitration proceeding commenced by insured despite insurer's claim that insured had prejudiced insurer by signing general release with offending party without reserving insurer's subrogation rights. Gen. Accident Ins. Co. v Ramee, 157 A.D.2d 877, 549 N.Y.S.2d 880, 1990 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 46 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't 1990).

Claimant for underinsurance benefits failed to satisfy conditions precedent to arbitration, and thus insurer's petition to stay arbitration was properly granted, where, prior to demand for arbitration, claimant failed to advise insurer of offer to settle underlying action and to seek insurer's consent to settle, and claimant did not show that insurer's right of subrogation would be preserved under settlement agreement. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. v Hardina, 225 A.D.2d 486, 639 N.Y.S.2d 374, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3089 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1996).

Issue of whether underinsured motorist provisions of insurance policy apply is for court to determine in first instance, not arbitrator, when arbitration clause of policy limits arbitration to essentially 2 questions—right to recover from alleged tortfeasor and amount of insured's damages. Government Emples. Ins. Co. v DePietto, 226 A.D.2d 723, 641 N.Y.S.2d 403, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4589 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1996).

Court erred in referring issue of discovery to arbitrator where parties agreed to arbitrate only whether respondent was entitled to supplemental uninsured motorist benefits and, if so, in what amount. State Farm Ins. Co. v Hiney, 262 A.D.2d 1076, 691 N.Y.S.2d 804, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7341 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1999).

Permanent stay of arbitration of claim for underinsured motorist benefits was properly granted where insured failed to comply with policy provisions requiring him to give insurer written notice of claim as soon as practicable, and to provide copy of summons and complaint in underlying action immediately on commencement of that action, since satisfaction of those requirements constituted condition precedent to arbitration. Lancer Ins. Company/Teachers' Ins. Plan v Sciandra, 282 A.D.2d 535, 722 N.Y.S.2d 764, 2001 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3572 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2001).

Judgment in an N.Y. C.P.L.R. art. 75 proceeding denying an insurer's challenge to a change of venue in an uninsured motorist (UM) claim arbitration was error because UM arbitrations were to have been conducted pursuant to American Arbitration Association (AAA) rules, and the arbitrator violated AAA rules by placing the venue of the hearing over 100 miles from the insured's home. Matter of Erie Ins. Co. (Malcolm), 50 A.D.3d 1459, 857 N.Y.S.2d 393, 2008 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4664 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 2008).

With respect to the claim of an insured person against MVAIC seeking to compel arbitration on the basis of the standard statutory indorsement on his insurance policy because the insurer of the offending motorist has disclaimed liability for failure to give timely notice of accident, determination of whether the claimant is or is not insured is for the courts, not subject to arbitration, and arbitration should be stayed until this question is determined. Application of Motor Vehicle Acci. Indemnification Corp., 33 Misc. 2d 703, 227 N.Y.S.2d 882, 1961 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2009 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1961).

The Manhattan and Bronx Surface Transit Operating Authority would be required to submit an uninsured motorist claim to arbitration, because it is required to provide uninsured motorist coverage, and the right to arbitrate is guaranteed in the terms and conditions for inclusion in the uninsured motorist coverage indorsement of the standard automobile liability policy and would apply to all claimants entitled to uninsured motorist coverage regardless of whether they deal with a self-insurer or an insurer. Manhattan & Bronx Surface Transit Operating Authority v Evans, 117 Misc. 2d 614, 459 N.Y.S.2d 374, 1983 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3192 (N.Y. Sup. Ct.), aff'd, 95 A.D.2d 470, 467 N.Y.S.2d 387, 1983 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 19643 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1983).

A passenger in an uninsured automobile who was injured in a collision with an insured automobile in a hit-and-run accident was entitled to seek arbitration under the uninsured motorist coverage of the uninsured vehicle (former Ins Law § 167(2-a)), and was not obligated to proceed against the driver of the other car. Country Wide Ins. Co. v Eber, 126 Misc. 2d 1084, 484 N.Y.S.2d 764, 1984 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 3716 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1984).

In context of motor vehicle accident involving unidentified motorist, failure to report accident to proper authorities, within specified and limited parameters of time, may be raised as bar to uninsured motorist arbitration. Eagle Ins. Co. v Ruiz, 141 Misc. 2d 815, 535 N.Y.S.2d 294, 1988 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 705 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1988).

Despite language of CLS Ins § 3420(f)(2), requiring that underlying limits of liability insurance have been exhausted by payment of judgments or settlements before any claim may be made for arbitration under underinsurance endorsement of policy, statutory aim of safeguarding underinsurer's right of subrogation is satisfied where underinsurer has consented to settlement of underlying action for full amount of available liability insurance, even if actual payment of settlement amount has yet to be made; thus, judicial approval of proposed settlement of infant's personal injury claim for full amount of tortfeasor's liability insurance was unnecessary as condition precedent to arbitration. Guerra v Fernandez, 149 Misc. 2d 25, 562 N.Y.S.2d 1020, 1990 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 587 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1990).

1992 demand for arbitration of claim for underinsured motorist benefits arising out of 1983 automobile accident was not time barred by 6-year arbitration statute of limitations of CLS CPLR § 213 since claim for underinsured motorist benefits does not accrue until exhaustion of all insurance policies covering underinsured vehicle, and primary insurance involved here was not exhausted until payment of settlement in 1992. Westchester Fire Ins. Co. v Imperiale, 157 Misc. 2d 721, 598 N.Y.S.2d 685, 1993 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 188 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1993).

Insured was entitled to judgment declaring that arbitration requirement of uninsured motorist provision of his policy was inapplicable, and insurer was not entitled to order under CLS CPLR § 7503 or medical examination of insured under prearbitration terms of policy on basis that it disagreed with damages claimed by insured, because insurer was bound by jury verdict and subsequent judgment in insured's prior action against uninsured driver of offending vehicle where it was notified of trial and participated therein; judgment after trial as to amount of damages due to plaintiff is most unequivocal and decisive determination of amount insured is legally entitled to recover. New York Cent. Mut. Fire Ins. Co. v Matteson, 170 Misc. 2d 957, 652 N.Y.S.2d 199, 1996 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 473 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1996).

Where the maximum uninsured motorist (UM) coverage in an endorsement of plaintiff insureds' insurance policy equaled the minimum amount of coverage required by N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(f)(1), arbitration of the insureds' dispute with defendant insurer regarding the insureds' entitlement to UM benefits for a certain accident involving an uninsured vehicle was mandatory pursuant to 11 NYCRR § 60-2.3(f) upon the insurer's demand, and the trial court properly granted the insurer's cross motion to dismiss the insureds' complaint against the insurer. Mahmood v Fid. & Guar. Ins. Co., 303 A.D.2d 385, 755 N.Y.S.2d 667, 2003 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2109 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2003).

When a dispute arises between an insurer and an insured with regard to the right of an insured to payment of Supplementary Uninsured/Underinsured Motorists Endorsement benefits under N.Y. Ins. Law § 3420(f)(2), the insured has the option to decide whether to proceed to arbitration or litigation to resolve the dispute; the option is the insured's only and the Supreme Court of New York has subject-matter jurisdiction of such claims. Sclafani v Allstate Ins. Co., 777 N.Y.S.2d 251, 3 Misc. 3d 634, 2004 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 227 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 2004).

Insured can decide whether to proceed to arbitration or litigation of uninsured motorist coverage claim. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 00-05-05.

Under 11 NYCRR § 60-2, only insured can decide whether or not to proceed to arbitration for supplemental uninsured/underinsured motorist (SUM) claims or to litigation, except in instance where SUM coverage is equal to minimum limits amount of uninsured motorist coverage required to be provided by CLS Ins § 3420(f)(1), in which case either insured or insurer can request arbitration of disputed claims. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 00-05-05.

As to supplementary uninsured/underinsured motorists (SUM) coverage, Insurance Department Regulation No. 35-D (11 NYCRR § 60-2.3) specifically provides that insured may arbitrate issue of whether it is "legally entitled to recover damages from the owner or operator of an uninsured motor vehicle" or "the amount of payment that may be owing under this SUM coverage"; while language of regulation would seem to indicate that demand for arbitration may limit issue(s) to be decided by arbitrator, in practice 2 issues are almost always indivisible. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 01-12-02.

Carrier may request that court stay judicial action and enforce insurer's contractual right to submit controversy to arbitration and court may so order where, in minimum coverage situation, insured commences litigation against insurance company as to supplementary uninsured/underinsured motorists coverage, and on receipt of court papers, carrier decides to opt for arbitration by serving written demand as required under policy provisions. Insurance Department, Opinions of General Counsel, Opinion Number 01-12-02.

89. Stay of arbitration

In proceeding to stay uninsured motorist claim arbitration, insurance company failed to establish that it did not insure offending vehicle at time of accident where (1) petitioner introduced into evidence copy of registration plate record from Department of Motor Vehicles which indicated insurance coverage for vehicle, (2) registration plate record did not indicate that assigned risk policy rather than voluntary policy had been issued for offending vehicle, and (3) insurance company's underwriter searched only assigned risk files before concluding that no policy covered offending vehicle at time of accident. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. v Fenelon, 202 A.D.2d 436, 608 N.Y.S.2d 709, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 1888 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1994).

In proceeding under CLS CPLR Art 75 to stay arbitration of uninsured motorist claim, in which threshold question of fact was raised as to whether offending vehicle was being driven with owner's permission, and thus whether it was insured, court should have directed hearing on issue and permitted joinder of owner of offending vehicle and his insurance carrier. Aetna Casualty & Sur. Co. v Arhaniotis, 202 A.D.2d 497, 609 N.Y.S.2d 31, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 2380 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1994).

Insured was entitled to arbitration of uninsured motorist claim, notwithstanding that document issued by Department of Motor Vehicles indicated that offending vehicle was insured by another insurance company, and despite testimony that document may have resulted from business practice of other insurance company of issuing pre-signed insurance identification cards to brokers so that they could issue card to individual who wished to register his or her car even though insurance policy had not been issued, since (1) it was undisputed that offending vehicle was uninsured, (2) there was no indication that other insurance company or agent actually issued insurance card to offending driver, and (3) other insurance company was not negligent in issuing pre-signed insurance cards to brokers. Wiggan v Allstate Ins. Co., 203 A.D.2d 468, 610 N.Y.S.2d 320, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3929 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1994).

Court erred in granting insurance company's application to stay arbitration of uninsured motorist claim where company offered no evidence in support of its initial burden, but merely cross-examined representative of alleged insurer of offending vehicle; by voluntarily offering testimony of its representative, alleged insurer of offending vehicle did not assume or undertake to carry burden of proof, thereby casting upon it ultimate responsibility of proving that its policy was properly canceled. Nationwide Mut. Ins. Co. v Wausau Underwriters Ins. Co., 203 A.D.2d 805, 610 N.Y.S.2d 411, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 4110 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dep't), app. denied, 84 N.Y.2d 802, 617 N.Y.S.2d 136, 641 N.E.2d 157, 1994 N.Y. LEXIS 2622 (N.Y. 1994).

Court erred in compelling arbitration of uninsured motorist claim since preliminary factual question existed as to whether vehicle that struck insured's automobile was itself struck by debris from back of unidentified dump truck and, if so, whether that contact constituted "physical contact" for purpose of uninsured motorist coverage. Bajrami v General Accident Ins. Co., 206 A.D.2d 527, 615 N.Y.S.2d 281, 1994 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7576 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1994).

Court erred in granting insurer's application for stay of arbitration of insured's claim for underinsured motorist benefits where language of policy did not clearly distinguish between 2 types of coverage; thus, it was for arbitrator to determine whether underinsured coverage in policy provided benefits when accident involved vehicle that had no insurance. Utica Mut. Ins. Co. v Hurd, 221 A.D.2d 903, 634 N.Y.S.2d 320, 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13383 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1995).

Court erred in dismissing insurer's petition for stay of arbitration of uninsured motorists claim where insured had received insurance proceeds from insurer of tortfeasor's vehicle, there was no proof that policy insuring vehicle driven by insured provided supplementary uninsured motorists coverage, or underinsurance, and demand for arbitration made no claim for underinsurance coverage. Travelers Ins. Co. v Kelly, 221 A.D.2d 931, 634 N.Y.S.2d 302, 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 13417 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dep't 1995).

In action by insurer to stay arbitration of underinsured motorist claim, court erred in considering issue of insurer's maximum liability under policy; courts have no authority to grant stay of arbitration on ground that damages sought under auto policy are excessive. Allstate Ins. Co. v Olsen, 222 A.D.2d 579, 634 N.Y.S.2d 773, 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12907 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1995).

Question of whether disclaimer of coverage issued by insurer of offending vehicle was effective against injured claimant was proper issue for consideration in proceeding to permanently stay arbitration of uninsured motorist claim. Eagle Ins. Co. v Collado, 222 A.D.2d 587, 636 N.Y.S.2d 641, 1995 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12912 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1995).

Court properly granted insurance company's petition to stay arbitration of uninsured motorist claim because there was no "physical contact" between insured's vehicle and unidentified vehicle which allegedly cut off police car, causing police car to strike insured's vehicle, which was then propelled into unoccupied parked car. Federal Ins. Co. v Luhmann, 229 A.D.2d 438, 645 N.Y.S.2d 86, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7677 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1996).

Insurer did not waive its right to offset by failing to seek stay of arbitration for underinsured motorist benefits where only issues before arbitrator, pursuant to pertinent endorsement provision and insured's demand for arbitration, were those of fault for accident and amount of damages caused by tortfeasor. Deckaj v State Farm Mut. Ins. Co., 230 A.D.2d 735, 646 N.Y.S.2d 173, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 8299 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1996).

Court erred in denying petition to stay arbitration of underinsured motorist claim, even though policy at issue contained agreement to arbitrate uninsured motorist claims, since there was no such agreement as to underinsured motorist claims. American Centennial Ins. Co. v Williams, 233 A.D.2d 320, 649 N.Y.S.2d 190, 1996 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 11576 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1996).

In denying petitioner's application to permanently stay arbitration of uninsured motorist claim, it was error for court to determine that offending vehicle was uninsured without holding hearing and joining alleged insurance carrier as necessary party, as petitioner established prima facie case as to existence of insurance coverage by producing police accident report which contained offending vehicle's insurance code designation, and letter from claim department of offending vehicle's alleged carrier, stating in conclusory fashion that it did not insure offending vehicle, was insufficient to overcome petitioner's prima facie case. Eagle Ins. Co. v Sadiq, 237 A.D.2d 605, 655 N.Y.S.2d 601, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3042 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1997).

Arbitration of insured claimants' underinsured motorist claims, and any disclosure therein, would be temporarily stayed pending resolution of their personal injury actions; availability of underinsured benefits depends on exhaustion of every last dollar payable under any applicable bodily injury liability policy, and issue of such exhaustion could not be determined until claimants' personal injury actions were resolved. Travelers Ins. v Torres, 245 A.D.2d 82, 665 N.Y.S.2d 86, 1997 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 12793 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1997).

Court erred in granting petition to permanently stay arbitration of uninsured motorist claim on ground that petition was governed by Florida statute of limitations and thus was time-barred, even though insurance broker who sold policy was in Florida and insured vehicle was registered in Florida, since contract was negotiated over telephone from insureds' primary New York residence, and they garaged their automobile at their New York home. Allstate Ins. Co. v Conigliaro, 248 A.D.2d 293, 670 N.Y.S.2d 469, 1998 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 3264 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dep't 1998).

In proceeding to stay arbitration of uninsured motorist claim, court improperly denied petitioner's motion for leave under CLS CPLR § 401 to join proposed additional respondents, on ground that notice of petition and petitioner were improperly served on them, since petitioner was not required to serve proposed additional respondents inasmuch as court had not yet joined them as parties; only by court-ordered service on proposed additional respondents of supplemental notice of petition and supplemental petition under CLS CPLR § 1003, once they had been added as additional respondents, could proper service be effectuated. Liberty Mut. Ins. Co. v Bohl, 262 A.D.2d 645, 694 N.Y.S.2d 72, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7663 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1999).

Omission of date of notary's jurat in affidavit of petitioner's counsel in support of petition to stay arbitration of uninsured motorist claim was technical defect of verification insufficient to warrant denial of petition. Liberty Mut. Ins. Co. v Bohl, 262 A.D.2d 645, 694 N.Y.S.2d 72, 1999 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 7663 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 1999).

Court erred in summarily denying insurer's application for stay of arbitration of uninsured motorist claim on ground that insurer failed to timely disclaim coverage, as coverage did not attach until it was established that offending vehicle was uninsured at time of accident, insurer was under no obligation to disclaim coverage before coverage attached, and evidentiary hearing was necessary to determine whether vehicles identified as having caused accident were actually involved in accident and whether alleged offending vehicle was insured on date of accident. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. v Campbell, 268 A.D.2d 524, 701 N.Y.S.2d 654, 2000 N.Y. App. Div. LEXIS 701 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dep't 2000).
